The Chair will alternate recognition between the parties, with each party limited to not to exceed 30 minutes, and each Member, except the majority leader, the minority leader, or the minority whip, limited to not to exceed 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Florida (Mr. STEARNS) for 5 minutes.

GAS PRICES

Mr. STEARNS. Madam Speaker, I am here to speak on a growing controversy, the controversy of who is to blame for the high gas prices, particularly in the Midwest, the high spikes. Some say it is big oil and others say it is the result of the EPA forcing through Phase II formulated gasoline.

Let us this afternoon analyze the facts and begin to see where the responsibility lies. Let me cite from an internal Energy Department memo that proves that the administration knew that the new formulated gasoline, RFG, as required by EPA was a major reason for the spikes in the Midwest.

The memo was circulated while the administration was publicly blasting the big oil companies for gouging Americans. The Washington Times obtained the June 5 memo that was written for Secretary Richardson of the Department of Energy by the Department's acting policy director, Ms. Kenderdine.

This memo mirrors what analysts and oil companies have been stating; the mix of high demand and low supply has led to high prices for all gasoline. We all realize that; that makes sense. Of course, that is part of the cycle in a free market experience. The disturbing part of that memo goes on to say, and let me quote, Madam Speaker, "the Milwaukee and Chicago areas supply situation is further affected by, among other things, an RFG formulation specific to the area that is more difficult to produce."

Despite the clear-cut facts in the memo, the administration has claimed that the price hikes and spikes were unexplainable. In fact, they have openly speculated that it is probably big business beating up on poor citizens again. When, in fact, it is big government beating up on the American taxpayers again.

Refineries have been working to capacity to produce a new EPA-mandated gasoline and have been strained to meet the summer demands. This has left reserve supplies in a dangerous position.

According to the DOE memo, Chicago refineries do not have the capacity to step up production when there is a shortage and the specifically formulated gasoline mixed with the ethanol in the region could not be imported from other areas because few make the unique blend of fuel.

The most damaging evidence is the conclusion in that memo from June 5 that supplies were sufficient to meet overall demand at the time. The market was "sufficiently tight," he went on later to say "that any disruption in the distribution system could contribute to Phase II RFG shortages" throughout the summer. So there we have it, that is where the spikes came from.

The White House has attempted to rely on a strategy to deflect blame from the real culprit, themselves. Considering the gasoline problems facing Americans today, I am very surprised at the timing of the EPA and this administration to move forward with the implementation of this new blend, this RFG Phase II.

I do not think the administration intentionally did this, but I am not sure. Where is their energy plan today? Where are the steps that could have prevented this from happening? Why did the EPA simply not postpone changing the gas formulas until such a time as the oil market had leveled off? Also, why did St. Louis, Missouri receive a waiver while, to my knowledge, no other city did?

Another shocking piece of this show is on Friday, June 30, the EPA released in a proposed rulemaking a comment period on whether reformulated gasoline is needed to meet the air quality standards. In other words, they are saying is this even needed. What? I mean, here they are mandating they be put in place, yet now they are issuing a memo to say is it needed. You mean to tell me that they insisted on moving forward with Phase II of RFG without knowing if they even needed to keep the program?

When will the EPA do their homework before they force regulations upon the American people? It appears to me from the evidence that the spiked prices in the Midwest were due to the EPA forcing a new formulation, a new blend of gasoline, during this time of high OPEC prices and low supplies.

The EPA should accept responsibility for putting the public through the expensive process of reformulated gasoline without proof that the gasoline would help improve our air and should withhold moving forward with any other new RFG regulations in any other cities.

Madam Speaker, the EPA and Department of Energy must formulate a plan and study to make sure their plan is effective before they gouge the American people at the pumps.

LIVABLE COMMUNITIES

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. BLUMENAUER) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. BLUMENAUER. Madam Speaker, the Federal Government has no greater priority than to be a good partner to promote livable communities.

The morning paper carried a story about another independent study to chart the ecological vital signs of our national park systems.

Madam Speaker, I think this is an important area to pose attention to, first, because it shows how the Federal Government can lead by example, and, second, it serves as a powerful refutation that somehow the United States, being a huge and wealthy Nation, does not have to worry about things like sprawl and congestion, unplanned growth and loss of farmland, that we just pave more, continue to expand, create more of whatever land we wish of farm, housing or roads.

Madam Speaker, it is reminiscent of Alice in Wonderland's experience with the Mad Hatter's tea party. "Yes, that's it" said the Hatter with a sigh, "it's always tea time and we've no time to wash the things between whiles."

"Then you keep moving round, I suppose?" said Alice.

"Exactly so," said the Hatter, "as the things get used up."

"But what happens when you come to the beginning again?" Alice ventured to ask.

"Suppose we change the subject," the March Hare interrupted, yawning. "I'm getting tired of this. I vote the young lady tells us a story."

Our tea party with the built and natural environment is not solved with more stories. We are going to have to face realities in our mature cities, small town America, fraying suburbs, even in our national parks. There are limits to the strains we can put on the land in our transportation systems.

The numbers are staggering in our national parks and other federally-managed sites. In 1997, over 370 million visitors increasingly jammed on clogged parking lots, jammed highways, fragile and irreplaceable resources suffering damage from too many vehicles and too many people. Nearby gateways communities are also negatively impacted by trafficking, decreased air quality, but there is a new trend in thinking about how we solve these problems.

Part of the TEA-21 Transportation Equity Act for the 21st Century called for a coordination and study between the Department of Transportation and the Secretary of the Interior. They have already produced recommendations for public transportation services at 128 sites that will enhance the visitor experience and protect the environment.

Madam Speaker, this new broach to transportation has already produced tangible results in a number of areas.

The Zion National Park in Utah, which has suffered from severe congestion, gridlock and destruction of natural resources, has helped to implement a new program, a shuttle bus system initiated in May of this year helps protect the fragile natural resources and protect visitors away as they visit from the canyon and provide services to the gateway community of Springdale.

The National Park Service has proposed a light rail transit system for the south rim of the Grand Canyon. It will allow visitors to leave their cars outside the park and ride the light rail train to a canyon view information plaza, there they can view exhibits, ride alternatively-fueled vehicles and hike along the canyon's rim. Construction has already begun on the information plaza in April, and the light rail system is expected to be in place by the spring of 2004.

It is also a priority to reduce traffic congestion in the Yosemite National Park. It is already implemented a 2-year demonstration program for a regional transportation system that would allow visitors to leave their cars outside the park and travel by shuttle bus into and around the Yosemite Valley.

Together activities like this will reduce reliance on private automobiles for visitors, allow for sustainable use and enjoyment of our public lands, improve the livability and quality of life in nearby communities, and allow visitors to better enjoy their experience.

Unlike the Mad Hatter, we cannot continue to just move to the next place at the party. Fortunately, this leadership shows how we can achieve this, not just for national parks, but as a model for American communities to make them safer, healthier and more economically secure.

RECESS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 12 of rule I, the Chair declares the House in recess until 2 p.m.

Accordingly (at 12 o'clock and 41 minutes p.m.), the House stood in recess until 2 p.m.

□ 1400

AFTER RECESS

The recess having expired, the House was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. MILLER of Florida) at 2 p.m.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, the Reverend Daniel P. Coughlin, offered the following prayer:

Lord, our God, our history as a people has been great. We are humbled by reflecting upon the events of the past. Fill us with hope and vision.

Preserve us from making the mistakes of the past. Grant us greater judgment that we may be children born of freedom and strong in virtue.

May we honor the heroic men and women of the past who, when insulted, did not return insult; and, when threatened, handed themselves over to You, the One who judges justly. In them we have come to recognize Your grace shining through human weakness.

May those who suffered for justice' sake receive the beatitude's reward; and may those who cried out in the void of justice, today be heard that a new day of peace may be born rooted in justice, for You live and are attentive to our cries now and forever. Amen.

THE JOURNAL

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair has examined the Journal of the last day's proceedings and announces to the House his approval thereof.

Mr. GIBBONS led the Pledge of Allegiance as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

COMMUNICATION FROM THE CLERK OF THE HOUSE

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following communication from the Clerk of the House of Representatives:

OFFICE OF THE CLERK,
HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
Washington, DC, July 14, 2000.

Hon. J. DENNIS HASTERT,
The Speaker, House of Representatives,
Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. SPEAKER: Pursuant to the permission granted to Clause 2(h) of Rule II of the Rules of the U.S. House of Representatives, the Clerk received the following message from the Secretary of the Senate on July 14, 2000 at 9:05 a.m.

That the Senate Passed without amendment H.R. 3544.

Clerk of the House.

AMERICA'S FOREIGN OIL DEPENDENCY

(Mr. GIBBONS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GIBBONS. Mr. Speaker, Americans are paying more for gas now than at any other time in our history. Families like David and Jenny Davis of Reno, Nevada are being forced to eliminate their vacation plans and change their daily schedules, like eliminating after-school programs for their children, just to save money on gas; and all of this when our country's dependency on foreign oil is at an all-time high.

Yet, for 8 years, the Clinton-Gore administration has refused to address and reduce our dependence on foreign oil or to prevent foreign oil price-fixing schemes. Instead, the administration continues to support oil-producing countries, even though they blatantly banned together to raise oil prices.

Now American families are paying for the administration's actions or inactions. Our hard-working families should not have to sacrifice their livelihoods just because the administration refuses or fails to stand up to foreign oil pricing nations.

I yield back the administration's national policy which continues to cost Americans precious money every time they go to the gas pump.

STOP GIVING TECHNOLOGICAL CHARITY TO CHINA

(Mr. TRAFICANT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. TRAFICANT. Something is wrong, Mr. Speaker. China has already stolen our nuclear secrets; and what they have not stolen, the White House has given to them, specifically, super-computer and satellite technology that enhances China's missile program, and they have missiles pointed at us.

Now, if that is not enough to download your hard drive, news reports now confirm that the White House will allow private sector high-tech companies to hire Chinese scientists involved with their military technologies.

Beam me up. What is next? Will we give China our Star Wars umbrella?

Mr. Speaker, I yield back both the danger and the stupidity of this charity to China.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX, the Chair announces that he will postpone further proceedings today on each motion to suspend the rules on which a recorded vote or the yeas and nays are ordered or on which the vote is objected to under clause 6 of rule XX.

Any record votes on postponed questions will be taken after debate has concluded on all motions to suspend the rules, but not before 7 p.m. today.

“(II) the transmitting, routing, or providing of connections is carried out through an automatic process without selection of the material or activity by the provider;

“(III) the provider does not select the recipients of the material or activity, except as an automatic response to the request of another person; and

“(IV) the material or activity is transmitted through the system or network of the provider without modification of its content; or

“(B) ELIGIBILITY.—An interactive computer service provider is described in this subparagraph only if the provider—

“(2) COURT ORDER TO INTERACTIVE COMPUTER SERVICE PROVIDERS.—

“(A) APPLICATION.—A Federal or State law enforcement agency, acting within its authority and jurisdiction and having reason to believe that a particular online site residing on a computer server owned, controlled, or operated by or for the provider is being used by another person to violate this section, may apply ex parte to a United States magistrate judge for an order to such provider under this paragraph to take the actions described in subparagraph (D).

“(B) ORDER.—The magistrate judge shall issue the order sought under subparagraph (A) upon a showing of probable cause to believe the particular on line site is being so used.

“(ii) making reasonable efforts to notify the alleged violator of the order; the law enforcement agency shall give the provider a copy of the court order. At that time the order shall take immediate effect. An alleged violator may, however, contest the order by requesting an expedited hearing from the court during that 72-hour period. If the alleged violator does so, the court shall as soon as possible hold the hearing, at which the law enforcement agency shall have the burden of establishing by a preponderance of the evidence that the on line site is being used in violation of this section.

“(D) SCOPE OF ORDER.—An order under this paragraph shall require that the provider expeditiously—

“(i) remove or disable access to the material or activity residing at that online site that allegedly violates this section; or

“(ii) in any case in which the provider does not control the site at which the subject material or activity resides, the provider, through any agent of the provider designated in accordance with section 512(c)(2) of title 17, or other responsible identified employee or contractor—

“(I) notify the Federal or State law enforcement agency that the provider is not the proper recipient of such order; and “(II) upon receipt of a subpoena, cooperate with the Federal or State law enforcement agency in identifying the person or persons who control the site.

“(E) CONTENTS OF ORDER.—An order issued under this paragraph shall—

“(i) identify the material or activity that allegedly violates this section;

“(ii) provide information reasonably sufficient to permit the provider to locate (and, as appropriate, in an order issued under subparagraph (D)(i) to block access to) the material or activity;

“(iii) be supplied to any agent of a provider designated in accordance with section 512(c)(2) of title 17, if information regarding such designation is readily available to the public; and

“(iv) provide information that is reasonably sufficient to permit the provider to contact the law enforcement agency that obtained the order, including the name of the law enforcement agency, and the name and telephone number of an individual to contact at the law enforcement agency (and, if available, the electronic mail address of that individual).

“(F) POSTORDER HEARING.—An alleged violator that has not contested an order under subparagraph (C) may, not later than 60 days after the order takes effect, apply to have the order rescinded. A United States magistrate judge shall hear and determine that application. At that hearing the law enforcement agency that sought the order shall have the burden to show, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the site was being used by that alleged violator to violate this section.

“(3) INJUNCTIVE RELIEF.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—The United States, or a State law enforcement agency acting within its authority and jurisdiction, may, not less than 24 hours following the issuance to an interactive computer service provider of an order described in paragraph (2)(B), in a civil action, obtain a temporary restraining order, or an injunction to prevent the use of the interactive computer service by another person in violation of this section.

“(B) LIMITATIONS.—Notwithstanding any other provision of this section, in the case of any application for a temporary restraining order or an injunction against an interactive computer service provider described in paragraph (1)(B) to prevent a violation of this section—

“(i) arising out of activity described in paragraph (1)(A)(i), the injunctive relief is limited to—

“(I) an order restraining the provider from providing access to an identified subscriber of the system or network of the interactive computer service provider, if the court determines that there is probable cause to believe that such subscriber is using that access to violate this section, by terminating the specified account of that subscriber; and “(II) an order restraining the provider from providing access, by taking reasonable steps specified in the order to block access, to a specific, identified, foreign online location;

“(ii) arising out of activity described in paragraph (1)(A)(ii), the injunctive relief is limited to—

“(I) the orders described in clause (i)(I);

“(II) an order restraining the provider from providing access to the material or activity that violates this section at a particular online site residing on a computer server operated or controlled by the provider; and

“(III) such other injunctive remedies as the court considers necessary to prevent or restrain access to specified material or activity that is prohibited by this section at a particular online location residing on a computer server operated or controlled by the provider, that are the least burdensome to the provider among the forms of relief that are comparably effective for that purpose.

“(C) CONSIDERATIONS.—The court, in determining appropriate injunctive relief under this paragraph, shall consider—

“(i) whether such an injunction, either alone or in combination with other such injunctions issued, and currently operative, against the same provider would significantly (and, in the case of relief under subparagraph (B)(ii), taking into account, among other factors, the conduct of the provider, unreasonably) burden either the provider or the operation of the system or network of the provider;

“(ii) whether implementation of such an injunction would be technically feasible and effective, and would not materially interfere with access to lawful material at other online locations;

“(iii) whether other less burdensome and comparably effective means of preventing or restraining access to the illegal material or activity are available; and

“(iv) the magnitude of the harm likely to be suffered by the community if the injunction is not granted.

“(D) NOTICE AND EX PARTE ORDERS.—Injunctive relief under this paragraph shall not be available without notice to the service provider and an opportunity for such provider to appear before the court, except for orders ensuring the preservation of evidence or other orders having no material adverse effect on the operation of the communications network of the service provider.

“(4) ADVERTISING OR PROMOTION OF NON-INTERNET GAMBLING.—

“(A) DEFINITIONS.—In this paragraph:

“(i) CONDUCTED.—With respect to a gambling activity, that activity is ‘conducted’ in a State if the State is the State in which the gambling establishment (as defined in section 1081) that offers the gambling activity being advertised or promoted is physically located.

“(ii) NON-INTERNET GAMBLING ACTIVITY.—The term ‘non-Internet gambling activity’ means—

“(I) a gambling activity in which the placing of the bet or wager is not conducted by the Internet; or “(II) a gambling activity to which the prohibitions of this section do not apply.

“(B) IMMUNITY FROM LIABILITY FOR USE BY ANOTHER.—

“(i) IN GENERAL.—An interactive computer service provider described in clause (ii) shall not be liable, under any provision of Federal or State law prohibiting or regulating gambling or gambling-related activities, or under any State law prohibiting or regulating advertising and promotional activities, for—

“(I) content, provided by another person, that advertises or promotes non-Internet gambling activity that violates such law (unless the provider is engaged in the business of such gambling), arising out of any of the activities described in paragraph (1)(A) (i) or (ii); or “(II) content, provided by another person, that advertises or promotes non-Internet gambling activity that is lawful under Federal law and the law of the State in which such gambling activity is conducted.

“(ii) ELIGIBILITY.—An interactive computer service is described in this clause only if the provider—

“(I) maintains and implements a written or electronic policy that requires the provider to terminate the account of a subscriber of its system or network expeditiously following the receipt by the provider of a notice described in paragraph (2)(B) alleging that such subscriber maintains a website on a computer server controlled or operated by the provider for the purpose of engaging in advertising or promotion of non-Internet gambling activity prohibited by a Federal law or a law of the State in which such activity is conducted;

“(II) with respect to the particular material or activity at issue, has not knowingly permitted its computer server to be used to engage in the advertising or promotion of non-Internet gambling activity that the provider knows is prohibited by a Federal law or a law of the State in which the activity is conducted, with the specific intent that such server be used for such purpose; and

“(III) at reasonable cost, offers residential customers of the provider's Internet access service, if the provider provides Internet access service to such customers, computer software, or another filtering or blocking system that includes the capability of filtering or blocking access by minors to online Internet gambling sites that violate this section.

“(C) NOTICE TO INTERACTIVE COMPUTER SERVICE PROVIDERS.—

“(i) NOTICE FROM FEDERAL LAW ENFORCEMENT AGENCY.—If an interactive computer service provider receives from a Federal law enforcement agency, acting within its authority and jurisdiction, a written or electronic notice described in paragraph (2)(B), that a particular online site residing on a computer server owned, controlled, or operated by or for the provider is being used by another person to advertise or promote non-Internet gambling activity that violates a Federal law prohibiting or regulating gambling or gambling-related activities, the provider shall expeditiously take the actions described in paragraph (2)(A) (i) or (ii) with respect to the advertising or promotion identified in the notice.

“(ii) NOTICE FROM STATE LAW ENFORCEMENT AGENCY.—If an interactive computer service provider receives from a State law enforcement agency, acting within its authority and jurisdiction, a written or electronic notice described in paragraph (2)(B), that a particular online site residing on a computer server owned, controlled, or operated by or for the provider is being used by another person to advertise or promote non-Internet gambling activity that is conducted in that State and that violates a law of that State prohibiting or regulating gambling or gambling-related activities, the provider shall expeditiously take the actions described in paragraph (2)(A) (i) or (ii) with respect to the advertising or promotion identified in the notice.

“(D) INJUNCTIVE RELIEF.—The United States, or a State law enforcement agency, acting within its authority and jurisdiction, may, not less than 24 hours following the issuance to an interactive computer service provider of a notice described in paragraph (2)(B), in a civil action, obtain a temporary restraining order, or an injunction, to prevent the use of the interactive computer service by another person to advertise or promote non-Internet gambling activity that violates a Federal law, or a law of the State in which such activity is conducted that prohibits or regulates gambling or gambling-related activities, as applicable. The procedures described in paragraph (3)(D) shall apply to actions brought under this subparagraph, and the relief in such actions shall be limited to—

“(i) an order requiring the provider to remove or disable access to the advertising or promotion of non-Internet gambling activity that violates Federal law, or the law of the State in which such activity is conducted, as applicable, at a particular online site residing on a computer server controlled or operated by the provider;

“(ii) an order restraining the provider from providing access to an identified subscriber of the system or network of the provider, if the court determines that such subscriber maintains a website on a computer server controlled or operated by the provider that the subscriber is knowingly using or knowingly permitting to be used to advertise or promote non-Internet gambling activity that violates Federal law or the law of the State in which such activity is conducted; and

“(iii) an order restraining the provider of the content of the advertising or promotion of such illegal gambling activity from disseminating such advertising or promotion on the computer server controlled or operated by the provider of such interactive computer service.

“(E) APPLICABILITY.—The provisions of subparagraphs (C) and (D) do not apply to the content described in subparagraph (B)(i)(II).

“(5) EFFECT ON OTHER LAW.—

“(A) IMMUNITY FROM LIABILITY FOR COMPLIANCE.—An interactive computer service provider shall not be liable for any damages, penalty, or forfeiture, civil or criminal, under Federal or State law for taking in good faith any action described in paragraphs (2)(A), (4)(B)(ii)(I), or (4)(C) to comply with a notice described in paragraph (2)(B), or complying with any court order issued under paragraph (3) or (4)(D).

“(B) DISCLAIMER OF OBLIGATIONS.—Nothing in this section may be construed to impose or authorize an obligation on an interactive computer service provider described in paragraph (1)(B)—

“(i) to monitor material or use of its service; or

“(ii) except as required by a notice or an order of a court under this subsection, to gain access to, to remove, or to disable access to material.

“(C) RIGHTS OF SUBSCRIBERS.—Nothing in this section may be construed to prejudice the right of a subscriber to secure an appropriate determination, as otherwise provided by law, in a Federal court or in a State or local tribunal or agency, that the account of such subscriber should not be terminated pursuant to this subsection, or should be restored.

“(e) AVAILABILITY OF RELIEF.—The availability of relief under subsections (c) and (d) shall not depend on, or be affected by, the initiation or resolution of any action under subsection (b), or under any other provision of Federal or State law.

“(f) APPLICABILITY.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Subject to paragraph (2), the prohibition in this section does not apply to—

“(A) any otherwise lawful bet or wager that is placed and received, or otherwise made wholly intrastate for a State lottery, or for a multi-State lottery operated jointly between 2 or more States in conjunction with State lotteries if—

“(i) each such lottery is expressly authorized, and licensed or regulated, under applicable State law;

“(ii) the bet or wager is placed on an interactive computer service that uses a private network or a closed-loop subscriber based service regulated and operated by the State lottery or its expressly designated agent for such activity;

“(iii) each person placing or otherwise making that bet or wager is physically located when such bet or wager is placed at a facility that is open to the general public; and

“(iv) each such lottery complies with sections 1301 through 1304, and other applicable provisions of Federal law;

“(B) any otherwise lawful State-regulated parimutuel wagering activities on live horse or dog racing, or live jai alai, conducted on a closed-loop subscriber-based system, provided that the type of wagering activity has been authorized by the State.

“(C) any otherwise lawful bet or wager (other than a bet or wager described in subparagraph (A)) that is placed, received, or otherwise made wholly intrastate, if such bet or wager, or the transmission of such information, as applicable is—

“(i) expressly authorized, and licensed or regulated by the State in which such bet or wager is initiated and received, under applicable Federal and such State's laws; and

“(ii) placed on a closed-loop subscriber based service; or

“(D) any otherwise lawful bet or wager (other than a bet or wager in any class III game conducted by a tribe that is not explicitly authorized by an applicable tribal-State compact between that tribe and the State where the tribe is located) that is—

“(i) placed on a closed-loop subscriber based service or a private network; and

“(ii) is lawfully received by a federally recognized Indian tribe, or the sending, receiving, or inviting of information assisting in the placing of any such bet or wager, if the game is permitted under and conducted in accordance with the Indian Gaming Regulatory Act, so long as each person placing, receiving, or otherwise making such a bet or wager, or transmitting such information, is physically located on Indian lands (as that term is defined in section 4 of the Indian Gaming Regulatory Act) when such person places, receives, or otherwise makes the bet or wager.

“(2) BETS OR WAGERS MADE BY AGENTS OR PROXIES.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—Paragraph (1) does not apply in any case in which a bet or wager is placed, received, or otherwise made by the use of an agent or proxy using the Internet or an interactive computer service.

“(B) QUALIFICATION.—Nothing in this paragraph may be construed to prohibit the owner operator of a parimutuel wagering facility that is licensed by a State from employing an agent in the operation of the account wagering system owned or operated by the parimutuel facility.

“(3) ADVERTISING AND PROMOTION.—The prohibition of subsection (b)(1)(B) does not apply to advertising, promotion, or other communication by, or authorized by, anyone licensed to operate a gambling business in a State.

“(g) RULE OF CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in this section may be construed to affect any prohibition or remedy applicable to a person engaged in a gambling business under any other provision of Federal or State law.”.

(b) TECHNICAL AMENDMENT.—The analysis for chapter 50 of title 18, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following:

“1085. Internet gambling.”.

SEC. 3. REPORT ON ENFORCEMENT.

Not later than 3 years after the date of enactment of this Act, the Attorney General shall submit to Congress a report, which shall include—

(1) an analysis of the problems, if any, associated with enforcing section 1085 of title 18, United States Code, as added by section 2 of this Act;

(2) recommendations for the best use of the resources of the Department of Justice to enforce that section; and

(3) an estimate of the amount of activity and money being used to gamble on the Internet.

SEC. 4. SEVERABILITY.

If any provision of this Act, an amendment made by this Act, or the application of such provision or amendment to any person or circumstance is held to be unconstitutional, the remainder of this Act, the amendments made by this Act, and the application of this Act and the provisions of such amendments to any other person or circumstance shall not be affected thereby.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. GOODLATTE) and the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. CONYERS) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. GOODLATTE).

Mr. GOODLATTE. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 3 minutes.

Mr. Speaker, the Internet Gambling Prohibition Act is designed to respond to a major scourge on the Internet. There are now, more than 700 unregulated out-of-control Internet casino-style gambling sites on the Internet. Sports betting may be even larger than the casino gambling. The proposals now, not by any of the States, but by some who would ask that the States begin to provide the sale of lottery tickets online in people's homes, something that a great many people are very concerned about.

The bill allows the use of the Internet by the States for the sale of lottery tickets in public places where children can be screened out. But there are those who stand to make tens of millions of dollars selling lottery services to the States to sell those tickets online. No State does that today. This bill prevents that from occurring.

The bill is supported by a wide array of organizations, including the National Collegiate Athletic Association, the National Football League, the National Basketball Association, Major League Baseball, the National Hockey League, all concerned about sports betting online, particularly by children.

The bill is supported by a wide array of religious organizations, the National Council of Churches, the Presbyterian Church of the United States, the Family Research Council, Focus on the Family, the Christian Coalition, Jerry Falwell Ministries, the American Family Association, the United Methodist Church, the Southern Baptist Convention, the Home School Legal Defense Association.

But the bill's original purpose is served by the request of the National Association of Attorneys General, NAAG, who came to Senator KYL in the Senate and to myself in the House and said that the 1961 Wire Act prohibiting gambling interstate on electronic means of communications is out of date and needs to be updated. That is what this bill responds to. They strongly support the legislation, as does the National Coalition Against Gambling Expansion.

I would like to thank a number of Members for their help with this legislation: the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. WOLF); the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. TAUZIN), chairman of the Subcommittee on Telecommunications, Trade and Consumer Protection from the Committee on Commerce, which helped to work out additional language to make it absolutely clear that this legislation does not expand gambling in any way, shape, or form; the gentleman from New York (Mr. NADLER) who helped to work out new language in the legislation related to due process rights for those who may have their sites taken down or blocked.

I would like to thank the gentleman from Florida (Mr. WEXLER) and the gentleman from Florida (Mr. HASTINGS) for their leadership on this issue as well as the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. BOUCHER) who has been very supportive.

I would like to thank the gentleman from Texas (Mr. ARMEY), the majority leader, and the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. HYDE), chairman of the Committee on the Judiciary, for their support of this legislation, which I believe will pass with overwhelmingly strong bipartisan support.

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 30 seconds.

Mr. Speaker, let me say from the outset that I believe that it is highly inappropriate to consider a controversial deeply flawed bill on the Suspension Calendar. This is the wrong process because I and other Members have amendments we want to offer that we are foreclosed from offering in this process.

So on that basis alone, I believe this suspension ought to be rejected. The most controversial aspect of it are the carve-outs for the powerful special interests.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Rhode Island (Mr. KENNEDY).

Mr. KENNEDY of Rhode Island. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Michigan just pointed out that there are carve-outs for horse racing and Jai-Alai and dog racing. How are we going to have a realistic bill if Jai-Alai and dog racing and all these others have exemptions carved out?

The real rub in this bill is that, while those have exceptions, State lotteries do not. I think we would also agree that our State lotteries are perhaps the best form of gaming we have out there and that they are giving legitimate dollars to our States, for the education of our kids, for education, for housing.

Now, no one disputes that we ought to regulate these offshore gambling casino interests in the Antilles and Antigua. No one disputes that we ought to have that on the books.

Let me say at the beginning that I applaud the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. GOODLATTE) and applaud the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. TAUZIN) for their efforts to put those provisions in this bill.

But do my colleagues know what? In creating those provisions, they have created numerous other problems by carving out all these exemptions for these special interests gaming operations. Really, this language has come from the Christian Coalition. I thought that the Congress ought to be the one that writes legislation, not the Christian Coalition. It is ironic that the Christian coalition wants to have an exception for dog racing. The Christian Coalition does not seem to have a problem with that, but they have a problem with State lotteries providing necessary educational funds for their kids in the different States.

In addition to that, this legislation also does not do enough to protect the important sovereignty that exists between Native American tribes and our Federal Government, something that the majority continues to trample on at every single turn.

As vice chair of the Native American Caucus, I just am so upset that this bill would ignore the important sovereignty provisions that the States have worked out with these tribes, the Federal tribe relationship. It is a sovereign relationship.

Finally, the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. GOODLATTE) understands that these Internet service providers, the very people that are charged with policing this bill, are unequipped to deal with this. The fact is that we have an Internet that is in its infancy. We all know the Internet is in its infancy. My colleagues are going to put the regulatory burden, the enforcement burden for these regulations on these Internet service providers, many of whom are woefully inadequate to do so. So it is going to create a real hell of a time for these Internet service providers.

So let me just say that, while my colleagues have the Attorneys General on their side, we have the governors. Every governor, the Governors' Association, has written strongly opposing this legislation because it would absolutely gut the funding for the necessary programs that many of these governors rely on in order to provide our very constituencies with the educational funding that we need.

Finally, let me just say we need more money in education. The thought that my colleagues are going to take money away from education in our States at a time when we need more of it is just absolutely incredible to me. The fact that they carve out exceptions for these other gambling operations, while not carving out an exemption, for example, for State lotteries, to me, it just does not make any sense. State lotteries ought to be the ones that we at least carve out an exemption for, not these others.

So I just cannot say that this is a good bill. I agree with the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. CONYERS), we ought to consider this bill on regular calendar and regular order so that we can have a deeper dialog and discussion about the very controversial nature of this legislation.

Mr. GOODLATTE. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 1 minute to say to the gentleman that not every governor agrees. In fact, we have a real problem here with forged letters from governors, as indicated on the front page of Roll Call and in The New York Times, with a letter being circulated by opponents of this legislation claiming that Governor Jeb Bush of Florida wrote a letter in opposition to the bill when in point of fact no such thing occurred. The Florida Department of Law Enforcement is now investigating the matter.

I would also say to the gentleman that there are no exemptions in this legislation for horse racing. That is why all of these groups are supporting this legislation. And who would know better than the reporters for the racing industry. Here is the headline in the Daily Racing Form: "Internet bill said to lose exemption for racing." Blood Horse Magazine: "Racing to lose Internet bill exemptions."

The fact of the matter is this bill has been carefully crafted with the assistance of the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. TAUZIN) to make it absolutely clear that while parimutuel betting is treated fairly, they are not in any way exempt or carved out under this legislation.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. WEXLER).

Mr. WEXLER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H.R. 3125.

I strongly support this bill for three primary reasons: first, it gives law enforcement the ability to block offshore casino Web sites; second, the bill protects children from gambling; and, third, it protects the rights of States to continue governing a legal, regulated, taxpaying industry, the parimutuel industry.

Parimutuel gaming is and always has been a State issue. States control parimutuel gaming, and they control it effectively. It is an industry that is highly regulated, pays taxes and has a respectable place in the States many of us represent. States do not, however, control casinos on Indian reservations. They certainly do not control offshore casino Web sites, of which there are at least 700, many of them in the Caribbean, which are not regulated and not taxed.

I have heard concerns about cheating on the Internet. Parimutuel bets, however, are safe bets, equally safe made in person or at a simulcast.

Finally, we do not have to worry about children logging on to the parimutuels and placing bets. Individuals would have to participate in a closed-loop subscriber-based service to wager on horses, greyhounds, or Jai-Alai. It does not get brought into the home unless a person wants it.

The bill strikes a perfect balance for what is needed, a prohibition on Internet casino gambling and a preservation of the rights of States to regulate the parimutuel industry.

References were made by my respected colleague and friend with respect to the effect of education dollars of this bill. Speaking as a representative of the State of Florida, let there be no mistake, the State lottery of Florida has not added, relatively, a single penny to the schools and to the education coffers of the State of Florida. Just the opposite.

Mr. Speaker, I urge support of the bill.

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 15 seconds.

It may be that my friend from Virginia is not aware of the latest version of his bill that eliminates the requirements that wagers on horse racing, dog racing, and Jai-Alai be initiated from a State in which such betting or wagering is lawful and received in a State in which such betting is lawful.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. FRANK).

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Mr. Speaker, I hope people approaching the Capitol will be careful because they might stumble on the increasingly growing pile of discarded Republican ideas.

In Sunday's Washington Post, there was an excellent article by Stephen Moore of the Cato Institute documenting the extent to which the Republican Party in the House has abandoned its notion of controlling spending. I recommend people read Mr. Moore's article. He used to be a consultant to the Republicans on the Committee on the Budget. He said the Republicans have given up really on controlling spending. They spend it wrong, in some ways; but they spend a lot of it.

In this morning's Washington Post, we have another Republican idea of yore biting the dust: term limits. Some people with very long memories, inconvenient ones, will remember term limits. It used to be part of the Contract With America. Some people do not remember the Contract With America, or the contract of Mr. Gingrich; but term limits has also been discarded. It cited cases of the Republican leadership urging Members to break their pledge with regard to term limits.

Well, today two more old Republican principles bite the dust. One was not that old, because the Internet is not that old. But we used to hear about freedom of the Internet. We used to hear how important it was that people be allowed to do what they want on the Internet. Now we understand the true principle. It is important that people be able to do what the Republican Party wants them to do on the Internet. If the Republican Party has no objection, then they can do it. But if the Republican Party thinks there are pictures they should not look at, or perhaps booze they should not buy, or bets they should not make, then freedom for the Internet goes away.

This is a very intrusive regulation of the Internet. This notion that citizens ought to be able to make their own decisions about what to do over the Web now stands revealed as a very insufficient idea. In fact, we were told we must protect children against this because children live in houses with parents with computers, and we must not allow the parents to be the ones who decide what their children do. We, the Federal Government, will step in and we will protect children from that Internet, which will reach out and grab them when their parents are not looking.

Another principle that appears to be on its last legs that the Republican Party sometimes professes support for is that of States' rights. I understand the governor of Florida has said that was not an accurate letter from him. I also understand that we would need subpoena power to get the governor of Florida to tell us what he really thinks about this. And since I, at least, do not have that vote, I cannot tell. The governor of Florida has said he will not tell us his position, but most of the governors are against it.

And I was particularly struck when my friend from Florida said, well, parimutuel betting should be an exemption, although it is an exemption that the author of the bill says does not exist. But the gentleman from Florida, defending that nonexistent exemption, says, well, parimutuel betting is controlled by the States and Jai-Alai is controlled by the States. Well, are lotteries run by the States not controlled by the States? This bill makes it illegal for States to decide that they wish to use the Internet for their lotteries.

Now, remember, the State would have a decision to stay off the Internet if it wanted to. So here we have a bill that says to the States that we will tell them, the States, that they may not use the Internet for their lottery distribution. What a two-fer: two great principles with one stone. First of all, freedom of the Internet; secondly, States' rights. Bang, they both go with this bill.

Here we say to the States we will let parimutuel gambling go on, because that is a closed loop, and that is okay because States have regulated that. And my friend from Florida said the State lottery in Florida has not given Florida enough money for education, has not given them any money for education. I am sorry about that, but I will tell my colleague that in the State of Massachusetts the lottery has, I think, been very helpful for education.

I do not understand why this Congress ought to interfere with the decision by the people of Massachusetts and the governor and the legislature of Massachusetts to use the Internet.

Now, understand what we have been told. If the States want to act to make sure that retailers in a downtown are not disadvantaged in the collection of sales taxes, we will get in their way. But if the States want to put their lottery on the Internet, we, the Federal Government, will interfere, if this bill passes; and we will tell them to forget all that stuff they read about Internet freedom because if the Federal Government does not like what the States are doing on the Internet, to use a technical parliamentary term "freedom schmedom." We will interpose our superior morality and tell the States that gambling is not right; and, therefore, while the State may choose to have a lottery, and individuals may choose to use the Internet for that lottery, we, the Federal Government, know better than the States and we know better than the individuals.

I do not think that I have seen in one piece of legislation a more stunning repudiation of principles.

Mr. GOODLATTE. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1½ minutes to the gentleman from Nevada (Mr. GIBBONS).

Mr. GIBBONS. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time, and I rise in strong support of the Internet Gambling Prohibition Act. As an original cosponsor, I urge all my colleagues to support this very important bill.

After listening to my colleague from Massachusetts, I hope we can all come back to reality for just a minute. Everyone, including Republicans and Democrats, would agree the Internet is a great educational tool and a valuable source of information and communication. However, American families must be protected from the dangers associated with unrestricted and unregulated gaming.

In States like Nevada, the gaming industry is well regulated and its activities are tightly monitored. However, allowing gambling to be conducted on the Internet would open the floodgates for corruption, abuse, and fraud. Not only could unscrupulous operators bilk millions of unsuspecting customers, but our children could easily obtain their parents' credit cards, turn their bedrooms into casinos, and with these sites unknowingly squander their families' hard-earned money.

The Internet Gambling Prohibition Act provides the necessary tools for law enforcement officials to crack down on these fly-by-night Internet gambling sites. I urge my colleagues to support this bipartisan bill which will protect our children, our homes, and our technology from fraudulent, unscrupulous, and unregulated Internet gaming and gambling site operators.

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. SCOTT), the ranking member of the subcommittee.

Mr. SCOTT. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time, and I rise in opposition to the bill.

Unfortunately, H.R. 3125 will actually do nothing to stem the tide of Internet gambling. In fact, the bill constitutes a significant step backwards for several reasons.

First, it provides for extended Internet gambling in the areas of horse racing, dog racing, and Jai-Alai. And there seems to be some question about that, so I will just read from the bill, starting on page 34: "The prohibition in this section does not apply to," and when we turn to page 35 it says, "any otherwise lawful State regulated parimutuel wagering activities on live horse or dog racing or live Jai-Alai conducted on a closed-loop subscriber-based system." That closed-loop subscriber-based system is about as hard to get on as opening up an Internet brokerage account to trade stocks. About anybody can do it. As a result of these exemptions, the bill will proliferate rather than prohibit gambling over the Internet, and that is because people would rather gamble at home rather than having to go all the way to the track.

In addition, the bill will not effectively prohibit those gambling interests it actually seeks to stop because offshore the Federal Government has no authority to close those particular Web sites. We can tell AOL or another company to shut down a domestic site, but we have no authority to shut down something offshore in a rogue nation for which we have no diplomatic relations. That will give them essentially a complete exclusive franchise to run these operations.

Lastly, the bill is not effective because it provides no individual liability. While it makes activities by certain gambling entities running the operation illegal, it does not make it illegal for the individual to gamble.

For that reason, Mr. Speaker, the title of the bill, the Internet Gambling Prohibition Act, is one that I am sure a lot of Americans will support. But this bill will actually expand gambling for horse racing, dog racing, and Jai-Alai. It will be ineffective in stopping casino gambling and sports betting run by offshore businesses and, as a result, the Internet Gambling Prohibition Act is more sound bite than reality; and, therefore, I must oppose the legislation.

Mr. GOODLATTE. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. HASTINGS).

(Mr. HASTINGS of Florida asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time, and I thank him for his leadership on this particular measure.

Mr. Speaker, today I have come to the floor to speak on behalf of H.R. 3125, the Internet Gambling Prohibition Act. As my colleagues may know, unregulated Internet gambling through virtual casino games has become a very lucrative business.

□ 1430

These Web sites are not regulated, taxed or licensed by the States and are available to the public, including those who are underage and would not be allowed in an actual gambling facility, on the open Internet.

New sites offering games such as blackjack and roulette crop up each day, and the industry has plans for major expansion next year if the issue is not addressed legislatively by Congress in this session.

H.R. 3125 effectively addresses the problems created by these sites, clarifies Federal law, and gives the authorities the tools necessary to regulate Internet gambling activities. At the same time, the bill establishes a regulatory framework for Internet gaming activities that recognizes the leadership role that should be played by the individual States in regulating legal gaming activities they have already authorized.

Mr. Speaker, the Senate companion bill passed the Senate late last year by unanimous consent and we are ripe to enact legislation clarifying the complex issue of Internet gambling. If H.R. 3125 is not passed this year, it will likely be too late to stop the problems caused by these unregulated gambling businesses. H.R. 3125 is a good bill that works, as is evidenced by the broad level of support that it has garnered from various groups and on both sides of the aisle.

I would like to urge my colleagues to join me in voting for this practical and necessary legislation and working to enact the Internet Gambling Prohibition Act into law.

I also would like to clarify the fact that lotteries are not affected. Lotteries are regressive. And we all know that.

Mr. GOODLATTE. Mr. Speaker, it is my pleasure to yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. WOLF) a real champion in the fight against gambling.

(Mr. WOLF asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Speaker, this will not expand gambling. I rise in strong support. I can stand here all day to categorize the number of hurt and pain and suffering and agony and even death of many young people who get involved in gambling. Gambling hits the poor, the elderly and, sadly, the young.

I want to share that every Member of this body who was here when the National Gambling Commission was established, voted for the National Gambling Commission, which issued a report, and it said as follows: Simply put, "Adolescent gamblers are more likely to become problem or pathological gamblers. Several studies have shown the link between youth gambling and its association with alcohol and drug use, truancy, low grades, illegal activities to finance gambling."

The Commission goes on to strongly support the bill of the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. GOODLATTE). The Commission reported in 28 percent of the cases where children carried a gun to school, gambling was a factor.

This legislation would address an industry that has grown overnight on the Web virtually without anyone focusing on it until the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. GOODLATTE) did.

As the gambling commission noted, youth gambling like youth smoking is often an issue of accessibility and marketing. Nothing is more accessible to young people that we now have than the Internet.

I urge my colleagues, if we miss this opportunity, more children will be hurt and go through pain and suffering and agony and even death. This is an opportunity to do what the National Commission says we should do. This is an opportunity to do what most people know is absolutely right.

I urge my Members, particularly those who say they are for strong family values and they care about the future of young people and they care about all these issues, to come to the House tonight when we vote and vote aye on the Goodlatte bill.

I would like to also put a list of the stories we have taken off the wire service in the last few months of the hurt and the pain and the suffering and the agony of the people who have gotten involved in gambling.

SAMPLE NEWS CLIPS ON GAMBLING

"As many as 500,000 Michigan adults could be 'lifetime compulsive gamblers,' and the number could swell with two new Detroit casinos in operation and a third to open soon, says a new state report. The survey, released Wednesday, also found that well over half of those with gambling problems began young. 'When we asked compulsive gamblers 'When did you start having a problem?' we were startled to learn that 77% of them said they were already compulsive by the time they were 18,' said Jim McBryde, special assistant for drug policy in the Michigan Department of Community Health." (Detroit News, 1/13/00)

"As allies of the National Collegiate Athletic Association push legislation that would ban wagering on college sports, a new study found that one out of every four male student-athletes may be engaging in illegal sports betting—and that one in 20 places bets directly through illegal bookies. And though prevalent among student-athletes, the study found that sports wagering activity is higher among ordinary students—39% among male nonstudent athletes.

"The study surveyed 648 student-athletes and 1,035 students, both male and female, at three midwestern universities. The study also found that 12% of male student-athletes—roughly the same portion as nonathletes—showed signs of problem gambling. About 5% of the overall athlete sample demonstrated signs of pathological gambling disorders." (Las Vegas Sun, 7/6/00).

"More than 850 Internet gambling sites worldwide had revenues in 1999 of $1.67 billion, up more than 80% from 1998, according to Christiansen Capital Advisors, who track the industry. Revenues are expected to top $3 billion by 2002." (Reuters, 5/31/00).

"Will Torres Jr. spends part of his day listening to sad stories. As the director of the Terrebonne Parish (La.) District Attorney's Office's Bad Check Enforcement Program, Torres has heard some doozies. "I've seen people lose their homes, their retirements wiped out, their marriage. People losing everything they have," Torres said. Gambling, specifically video poker, is starting to catch up with drugs and alcohol as a precursor to local crime. . . . "Torres and the District Attorney's Office recently noticed an interesting trend while profiling bad-check writers: a large number of their suspects are video poker addicts. 'We're not talking about people who mistakenly write a check for groceries at Winn-Dixie for $25.33,' Torres said. 'We're talking about people who are writing checks for $25 or $30 eight times a day at locations with video machines or places in close proximity of video poker machines.' "So far this year, Torres' office has collected $320,000 for Terrebonne Parish merchants who were given 3,600 worthless checks. Torres said about 30% of those bad checks are connected to gambling. "It's eating people up," he said. "It's real sad when people don't have a dollar. No money for food because of gambling addictions. I've seen it up close, and video poker plays a large role in the problem." (The Courier [Houma, La.], 8/28/99)

"Rodney Stout, 25, of Pine Bluff (Ark.) was sentenced Friday to 30 years in prison for abducting Stacey Polston of Jacksonville and her 18-month-old daughter at gunpoint and stealing Polston's van. . . . Stout was under financial pressure, he said. He had a 'gambling problem' that came to a head when he gambled away $5,000 he had set aside for moving expenses." (Arkansas Democrat-Gazette, 5/9/00).

"Former University of Southern California baseball player Shon Malani was sentenced Wednesday to two years in federal prison for stealing nearly $500,000 from the federal credit union where he worked. U.S. District Judge Helen Gillmor rejected a request for leniency made by Malani's attorney, who said he stole the money to pay off gambling debts totaling hundreds of thousands of dollars." (Associated Press, 3/1/00).

"One third of 120 compulsive gamblers participating in a pioneering treatment study have either filed for bankruptcy or are in the process of filing, a University of Connecticut researcher said Tuesday. . . . (Nancy) Petry said she recently gave a talk to a group of bankruptcy lawyers who estimated that as many as 20% of their clients had mentioned gambling as a reason for their problems." (Hartford Courant, 6/14/00).

"Of all the heroes who emerged from the 1984 Los Angeles Olympics, perhaps none was more inspirational than Henry Tillman. A big, tough hometown kid, he had plunged into serious trouble when he was rescued in a California Youth Authority lockup by a boxing coach who saw a young man of uncommon heart and untapped talent. In a little more than two years, he would stand proudly atop the Olympic platform at the Sports Arena, just blocks from his boyhood home, the gold medal for heavyweight boxing dangling from his neck.

"But two years after his mediocre pro career ended, he was back behind bars. And now he stands accused of murder in a case that could put him away for life.

"[G]ambling got Tillman into trouble. He was arrested in January 1994 for passing a bad credit card at the Normandie. He pleaded no contest and got probation. In 1995, he pleaded guilty to using a fake credit card in an attempt to get $800 at the Hollywood Park Casino in Inglewood.

"I have suffered from a long history of gambling addiction, which I am very ashamed had taken over my life," Tillman wrote in a letter to the court." (Los Angeles Time, 1/26/00)

"More than half the state's adult population has visited a casino, either in Michigan or elsewhere, a statewide poll shows. . . . People at the top and bottom of the income scale are the biggest spenders at the casinos. Those making less than $15,000 a year spend $172 per visit, and those earning more than $100,000 per year spend $161 per visit. People in the $30,000-$45,000 income bracket spend the least, reporting an average of $87.40 per visit. "Pollster Ed Sarpolus noted that the age groups most likely to visit casinos are between 18 and 24, and between 50 and 54." (Detroit Free Press, 11/17/99)

"Tethered to his post by a curly plastic cord that stretched from his belt loop to a frequent-player card inserted in a Black, Widow slot machine, James Lint pondered. What happens to the little guy when casinos come to town?

"I see a lot of people leave with tears in their eyes," said the Georgia businessman, taking a short break from the machine in Biloxi's Beau Rivage casino. "They come here too much, and they spend too much money."

"Lint, who flies his private plane to Biloxi three times a year to kick back at the casinos, doesn't count himself among the ranks of those who gamble away what they cannot afford. But some people do lose their grocery money to slot machines, and no one—not casino operators, not gung-ho promoters of the industry—denies it.

"It would be hard to: The Mississippi Coast has been at the center of several high-profile compulsive gambling incidents, including one involving two famous writers, brothers who squandered an inheritance worth more than $250,000 at blackjack and slots.

"It is a hard-edged reality that happens—at casinos, at racetracks, at church bingos, at state lottery outlets. The Mississippi Coast has seen a 26-fold increase in the number of Gamblers Anonymous meetings—to 13 a week—since the first casino opened in 1992." (Lexington [Ky.] Herald-Leader, 9/12/99)

"There is an ugly undercurrent that's sweeping away thousands of Missourians—people whose addiction to gambling has led to debt, divorce and crime. This is a world of people like Vicky, 36, a St. Charles woman who regularly left her newborn son with baby sitters to go to the casinos and who considered suicide, after losing $100,000. "And Kathy, a homemaker and mother of two from Brentwood, who would drop her kids at school and spend the entire day at a casino playing blackjack. She used a secret credit card that her husband didn't know about to rack up more than $30,000 in debt. . . .

"In a three-month look at compulsive gambling, the Post-Dispatch found that . . . Fast-cash machines on casino floors can hasten a problem gambler's descent into debt, prompting the nation's largest machine supplier last month to let people deactivate their cards in casinos. Hard Numbers on gambling-related crimes are elusive, but fraud detectives in St. Louis say they're seeing an increase in workers with access to money taking it to support gambling habits." (St. Louis Post-Dispatch, 2/6/99)

"The battle against domestic violence is gaining ground, and work by University of Nebraska Medical Center researcher Dr. Robert Muellemann is helping. . . . Muellemann worked on a . . . study at the UNMC hospital this summer. The study has not been published yet, so the results are not entirely concluded, he said, but some preliminary inferences can be drawn. "It looks as if problem gambling in the partner is going to be as much a risk factor as problem alcohol and that's really new information," he said." (Daily Nebraskan, 1/13/00)

"A Charlotte, N.C., postal worker is suing First Citizens Bank and Visa for his Internet gambling debts—because he says it's illegal for the bank and Visa to let their credit cards be used for gambling online. . . . Lawyers for (Mark) Eisele filed the suit, which seeks class action status, in the U.S. District Court in San Francisco, where Visa International is based. . . . The suit claims Visa and First Citizens, which issued Eisele's credit card, violated the federal Wire Act, which prohibits use of wire communications services for some gambling." "A casino executive who fudged his tax returns should have his license renewed anyway, New Jersey's top casino regulator said Monday. James Hurley, chairman of the state Casino Control Commission, said Mirage Resorts Inc.-Atlantic City president Mark Juliano demonstrated 'extremely poor judgment and an acute lack of sensitivity regarding his financial reporting responsibilities.' But Hurley said it wasn't serious enough to deny Juliano a license to work in New Jersey casinos. Juliano, 44, of Haddonfield, a former president of Caesars Atlantic City Hotel Casino, wrote off $8,965 for a 'phantom' personal computer, reported gambling losses as a business expense and told the IRS he drove 180,000 miles on a car found to have traveled only 69,000 total miles, according to an investigation by the state Division of Gaming Enforcement." He used more than $350,000 to gamble on horse racing, at New Jersey casinos and in card games." (Richmond Times-Dispatch, 6/3/00)

"Before casino gambling, (Atlantic City) was home to numerous thriving churches of various denominations. But in recent years, churches and synagogues have begun to close. . . . The Rev. Patrick J. Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 15 seconds, mainly to remind my friend from Virginia that the gambling commission advocated a ban on Internet gambling without exception. And that is not this bill.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Utah (Mr. CANNON).

Mr. CANNON. Mr. Speaker, I would like to begin by saying that I agree with the comments of my friend the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. WOLF). Gambling is a pernicious vice.

H.R. 3125, the Internet Gambling Prohibition Act of 2000, is well-intentioned but I do not think it succeeds in what it is attempting to do. Instead, this legislation creates legislation that is unenforceable and places great regulatory burdens on Internet service providers and represents the first full-blown regulation of the Internet passed by this body.

This bill will expand gambling online and undermine the State's authority to regulate gambling. The carve out for parimutuel betting will allow for parimutuel betting nationwide even in those States where gambling is currently illegal.

A business licensed and regulated in one State will be allowed to take bets from someone located in other States regardless of whether the State where the bettor is located has authorized such activity. All the bettor would need to do is dial into the licensed business taking the bets. This would constitute a closed loop. Anyone who so desires would be able to load the software to be able to perform this function on his computer and the States would not be able to enforce their laws.

Internet service providers are burdened by being required by the Government to act as enforcers of this law. By passing this bill, we will be deputizing ISPs with the task of denying their customers access to any site that allows wagering. The courts will need to issue a court order to each and every ISP in the country telling them to shut off access to any offending site, and the ISP will be required to put in place filters to ensure that none of their subscribers can gain access.

What is the cost? Let me assure my colleagues that it is not just monetary. ISPs, in order to be in full compliance with this law, will need to monitor what sites its customers are visiting. Keeping up with the sites that allow gaming will be impossible for most ISPs. AOL may have the resources to monitor the activity on every site accessed by its servers, but Rocky Mount Internet based in Utah does not.

ISPs now have or will soon have the technology to shield the identity of its customers. People will be able to access gambling sites anonymously, rendering it impossible for this law to be enforced. With this technology, both the gambling site as well as the subscriber will be able to mask the address from Federal agents. Any filters required by the law will, therefore, be rendered useless.

This legislation is harmful and ultimately unenforceable. We should reject this legislation.

Mr. GOODLATTE. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 30 seconds to say to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. CONYERS) that the National Gambling Impact Study Commission said the Federal Government shall prohibit without new or expanded exemptions Internet gambling not already authorized.

This legislation, thanks to the good work of the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. TAUZIN), makes it perfectly clear that there are no exemptions for anyone under this legislation.

I would say to the gentleman from Utah (Mr. CANNON) that we have worked very closely with Internet service providers and we will continue to do that to make sure that the burdens are manageable, and they have seen and worked with us on the language contained in this bill.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. STEARNS).

(Mr. STEARNS asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. STEARNS. Mr. Speaker, let me say in the beginning, let us not let the perfect become the enemy of the good here.

I commend the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. GOODLATTE) for his bill and the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. TAUZIN) for crafting a compromise that we can support. So I hope all the folks will come on board here. We can mend this bill later on if they are not happy with it.

Opponents of this legislation cry out there is special legislation here creating carve-outs for specific industries. And I say, Mr. Speaker, the carve-outs that they cite are not carve-outs. Rather, they allow for activity that is already lawful under existing law to continue.

This legislation permits parimutuel wagering to operate as it has for many, many years under Federal and State laws. This legislation is mindful of States' rights and sovereignty and allows States their rights to regulate activity within their border, and that is currently legal. So there are no carve-outs here.

As such, the bill does not expand or promote gambling on the Internet. Instead it allows for those activities as currently permitted by States to exist. This legislation has the support of a lot of groups. I urge my colleagues to support it.

Mr. Speaker, let me start off by stating let's not let the perfect become the enemy of the good. The Internet Gambling Prohibition Act before us today is not a perfect bill. But it is a step in the right direction and I commend my friend from Virginia, Mr. GOODLATTE, and my good friend from Louisiana, Mr. TAUZIN, for crafting a compromise we can support.

Some of the opponents of this legislation will say that this bill promotes or expands gambling on the Internet. Nothing can be further from the truth. The legislation before us today in no way expands gambling on the Internet. First and foremost, the legislation offered by my friend from Virginia prohibits gambling businesses from using the Internet to place, receive, or otherwise make a bet or wager. It does not create new government laws, or additional regulations on the Internet, it merely brings the interstate gambling ban up to date. H.R. 3125 in no way expands gambling on the Internet and permits only activities that are otherwise lawful and regulated by the states.

Opponents of this legislation cry that H.R. 3125 is special favor legislation creating carve outs for specific industries. Mr. Speaker, the carve outs they cite are not carve outs, rather, it allows for activity that is already lawful under existing law to continue. This legislation permits parimutuel wagering to operate as it has for many years under federal and state laws. This legislation is mindful of states' rights and sovereignty, and allows states their right to regulate activity within their borders that is currently legal. As such, the bill does not expand or promote gambling on the Internet, instead, it allows for those activities as currently permitted by states.

This legislation has the support of the National Football League, Major League Baseball, National Association of Attorneys General, the Christian Coalition, the Family Research Council, as well as numerous other organizations.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to vote in favor of this legislation. Though not perfect, it certainly is a step in the right direction, and it is the first step in battling the proliferation of illegal gambling on the Internet—with future Congresses free to revisit this matter and amend this legislation as necessary.

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 1 minute.

Mr. Speaker, I would hope that this vote would turn only on the question of whether or not there are exemptions created in the bill.

This is the administration's beginning statement. "The administration strongly opposes H.R. 3125, which appears to be designed to protect certain forms of Internet gambling that are currently illegal while potentially opening the floodgates for other forms of illegal gambling. The administration is especially troubled by the exemptions included in the bill for parimutuel wagering on activities such as horse races, dog races and Jai-Alai. These exemptions could have the effect of allowing individuals to bet on dog and horse racing from their homes, giving children and other vulnerable populations unsupervised, unlimited access to such gambling activities."

That is an exemption. There is no policy justification for such exemptions.

Mr. GOODLATTE. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I think the best response to the comments of the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. CONYERS) would come from the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. TAUZIN) who has played a critical role in making it absolutely clear that the language in this bill does not provide any exemptions.

Mr. Speaker, it is my pleasure to yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. TAUZIN) the chairman of the Subcommittee on Telecommunications, Trade and Consumer Protection, a subcommittee of the Committee on Commerce.

Mr. TAUZIN. Mr. Speaker, I thank my friend for yielding me the time.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 3125, the Internet Gambling Prohibition Act. It is a good bill. I urge my colleagues to vote for it this afternoon.

Back in June the subcommittee I am honored to chair, the Subcommittee on Telecommunications, Trade and Consumer Protection, was afforded the opportunity to hold a hearing on this bill. At the hearing, we learned many things regarding current State and Federal law as it applied to both interstate and intrastate gambling activities.

While the existing framework governing such activity is not always a model of clarity, our hearing revealed that this bill as it came to us to the committee explicitly legalized certain interstate parimutuel gaming activities that the Justice Department believes are prima facie illegal under current Federal law, namely the Wire Act.

As a result, the administration did, in fact, oppose H.R. 3125 when we held our hearings and they opposed it on the grounds that first it did then expand gambling beyond and above what is allowed by existing law according to Justice's interpretation of the Wire Act and, secondly, that it was not technologically neutral and that it made legal on the Internet activities that might be illegal when conducted on phone wire.

In response to these criticisms, my good friend the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. GOODLATTE) and I, along with the gentleman from Virginia (Chairman BLILEY), the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. HYDE) and the gentleman from Florida (Mr. MCCOLLUM) and their staffs, recrafted the parimutuel gaming provisions of the bill as we see them today.

Working with the sports leagues, many religious interests and the parimutuel gaming interests themselves, we are happy to report that we were successful in coming up with the compromise language that makes it clear that the bill no longer draws any legal distinction between the Internet and wire line gaming activities and, as a result, in no way expands gambling beyond the present limits whatever those limits are according to the Justice Department or the courts of the land.

This language now added to H.R. 3125 in the form of a managers amendment clarifies the bill prohibits all online gambling and only permits otherwise lawful, State regulated, live parimutuel wagering activities that are conducted on a closed subscriber-based loop.

By the way, I should also point out it does allow the Internet intrastate for the use of the lottery activities provided that they are conducted in a public place. With this language, H.R. 3125 now addresses the administration's concerns and places an appropriate ban on gambling activities that is badly needed for the country and needs to be adopted.

In the past couple years, online gambling has flourished into a $1 billion industry with more than 700 sites in existence. The sports-related casino style gambling taking place over the Internet today has, as the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. WOLF) pointed out, ruined the lives of many Americans young and old.

If we fail to present the President with this legislation this year, the proliferation will be enormous. Make no mistake. This bill needs to be passed. It is neutral. It does not expand gambling. It needs to be addressed.

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 30 seconds, merely to advise my friend from Louisiana as well as the gentleman from Virginia that the changes that they made made the expansion of gambling worse. That came from the Department of Justice, whom you thought you were trying to satisfy. The Department has received a copy of the language, they say, which we believe constitutes the amendment intended to resolve concerns over the exemption of horse racing, dog racing, and Jai-Alai. It is our position that this amendment may be even more problematic than the current version of the bill.

Mr. GOODLATTE. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 30 seconds to respond to the gentleman and say that the Justice Department says that the Wire Act covers these situations but does not prosecute anyone. Under this legislation, they would have new tools requested by the National Association of Attorneys General to combat this very serious problem on the Internet, and that is exactly what we intend to give them with this legislation. There are no exemptions. We certainly do not expand gambling. We attack the multi-billion dollar industry that is growing on the Internet, the 700 cybercasinos, the sports betting, the threat of sales of lottery tickets in people's homes.

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. Cox).

Mr. COX. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Michigan for yielding me this time, and I thank my colleagues on both sides of the aisle for trying to do the right thing here today, because I share the concerns of my colleagues about the spread of illegal Internet gambling. But I rise in reluctant opposition to this legislation because while it is well intentioned, it is bad telecommunications policy.

This legislation would create enormous, if unintentional, regulatory problems. First, it proposes to treat online and offline gambling under different rules. That is a violation of the fundamental tenet of the Internet Non-discrimination Act that this House passed very recently by the overwhelming vote of 352-75. Regulating commerce on the Internet under different rules from commerce in the offline world is a dangerous precedent that invites significant new regulation of the Internet such as we have not yet seen.

Second, the bill expands gambling opportunities to make legal certain types of bets over the Internet that would be illegal if they were made over the telephone. Third, the bill would unfairly make Internet service providers and search engines and other interactive service providers, ISPs, who have nothing to do with gambling, people who have nothing to do with gambling, it would make them responsible for policing the behavior of their subscribers. This is the principle that we rejected when then Representative WYDEN and I brought the Internet Freedom and Family Empowerment Act to the floor so that we could stop the approach that the Senate had adopted with the Communications Decency Act, later rejected by the Supreme Court.

In this bill in order to avoid criminal prosecution, ISPs and other interactive services would have to make sure that they are not hosting or linking to Web sites containing gambling advertising or information. To avoid criminal prosecution, they would have to block users from accessing foreign Web sites over which they have no control, an especially dangerous precedent while the United States at this very moment is seeking to oppose efforts by foreign governments to do that to our Web sites.

Fourth, this bill would have the Federal Government dictate, indeed amend, the terms and conditions on which ISPs today offer service. It would require that every ISP terminate the account of any subscriber who is suspected of using the service to gamble. Fifth, the bill contains price controls. It requires every ISP to offer gambling filtering software at, quote, "reasonable cost," putting the Federal Government in an unspecified way in charge of determining what is a reasonable price for filtering software.

For the mom-and-pop Internet service providers who constitute the vast majority of America's thousands of ISPs, the legal and regulatory costs of complying with this new Federal regulatory scheme are significant. That is why this imperfect bill remains opposed by so many groups, the Computer and Communications Industry Association, AT&T, the Center for Democracy and Technology, the Electronic Privacy Information Center, the Traditional Values Coalition, the Free Congress Foundation, the Seniors Coalition, and Americans for Tax Reform. Oppose this legislation.

Mr. GOODLATTE. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the balance of my time.

First, let me respond to the gentleman from California for whom I have great respect but with whom I must disagree on every single point raised. This legislation does not treat online gambling unfairly compared to offline gambling. In fact, the activities complained of have been going on on the telephone lines for decades and this legislation is simply designed to bring the Wire Act, written in 1961 when the Wire Act was a good description of telecommunications in this country, into the modern age when telecommunications takes on a whole host of different ramifications, including the Internet. It does not in any way expand gambling on the Internet. We have made that perfectly clear time and time again. Why else would the National Coalition Against Gambling Expansion support this legislation?

The bill retrenches gambling on the Internet by fighting 700 online cybercasinos, by giving law enforcement new tools to deal with sports betting online, by stopping the efforts of some who stand to make tens of millions of dollars selling services to State lotteries to sell tickets online in people's homes.

I want to make the point perfectly clear that we do not tell the States that they cannot use the Internet. We simply say that when they use the Internet, they have to use it in public places, like convenience stores or other places where children can be screened out and they cannot buy tickets online as they could at home. That is why the Home School Legal Defense Association supports the legislation, the Southern Baptist Convention supports it, and many, many other religious and family organizations.

Furthermore, we do not require Internet service providers to police the Internet. We simply require them to cooperate with law enforcement. And we do not require them to shut down suspected sites, because the bill provides due process requirements of notice and hearing before a judge, and a judge finding that an action should be taken before an Internet service provider can be required to take down or block a site.

The legislation has been carefully crafted to be sensitive to the Internet industry, which I am very supportive of. After all, I am the chairman of the Congressional Internet Caucus and have worked on many issues with the gentleman and others to promote the Internet. But one way to promote the Internet is to make sure that the seamy side of life is dealt with on the Internet. Just like child pornography has to be dealt with on the Internet, so does unregulated, out-of-control, illegal gambling. That is why the National Collegiate Athletic Association, the National Football League, Major League Baseball, the National Hockey League, and the National Basketball Association support this legislation because of the renewed threat to amateur and professional sports in America brought on by an incredible explosion in gambling and sports betting because of the Internet. These new tools are needed by law enforcement. That is why the National Association of Attorneys General have asked us for this legislation. That is why I ask my colleagues to support it.

It is also important to note that this legislation treats Indian gaming fairly. Every word in this legislation has been signed off on by the gentleman from Alaska (Mr. YOUNG), the chairman of the Committee on Resources.

I urge my colleagues to support this effective legislation to fight gambling on the Internet.

Mr. SHAW. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H.R. 3125, the Internet Gambling Prohibition Act of 2000. This legislation is necessary to stem the rising tide of Internet gambling, which is largely unregulated and unreachable by American authorities.

Mr. Speaker, Internet gambling has the potential to make thousands of Americans who enjoy video games into gambling addicts. All that an Internet gambler needs to play casino-style games on the Internet is a computer, a modem, and a credit card—and therein lies the dangerous allure of this type of wagering. Unlike a glitzy casino where playing games of chance is a social experience, Internet gambling is usually done alone, with the only limit being the limit on one's credit card. I believe that gambling over the Internet has the potential to turn a generation of children who are addicted to video games into a generation of adults addicted to playing casino-style games over the Internet.

Furthermore, most of the cyber-casinos are located in the Caribbean, so that the few gamblers who do win have no recourse if there is a dispute. Mr. Speaker, banning Internet gambling now will prevent much more serious social problems later. For that reason, I urge all of my colleagues to vote for passage of H.R. 3125.

Ms. ESHOO. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to H.R. 3125, The Internet Gambling Prohibition Act, a bill that threatens the continued growth of e-commerce as well as the privacy rights of individuals.

The Department of Justice, high-tech companies and socially conservative organizations agree—H.R. 3125 is fatally flawed. By prohibiting some types of gambling and expanding others, H.R. 3125 puts an inappropriate burden on high tech companies and interferes with the civil liberties of Americans.

The legislation is rife with loopholes. Betting on horses and dogs is allowed; sports and casino-style games are not. Jai-alai is in, while state lotteries are out. This arbitrary patchwork of exemptions and prohibitions seems to be rooted in the degree of power of a particular interest group rather than sound public policy.

H.R. 3125 imposes new and unprecedented regulatory burdens on the Internet that are shortsighted and threaten our civil liberties. The notice and take-down provisions are overbroad, too burdensome for ISPs, and give the government too much power.

Finally, the blocking provisions in H.R. 3125 threaten to intrude on individual privacy. This Congress is still in the process of drafting legislation aimed at assuring the privacy of individuals using the Internet. H.R. 3125 would leap over that thoughtful process and attempt to regulate what many Members have vowed to allow—freedom on the Internet. H.R. 3125 puts artificial boundaries on the Internet when the Internet is designed specifically to transcend boundaries.

I share my colleagues's desire to protect society from the dangers of abusive gambling which can be a corrosive agent, both culturally and personally. However, H.R. 3125 does not do what it purports to do. If Congress wants to ban gambling on the Internet then it should ban all gambling on the Internet. The piecemeal approach embodied in H.R. 3125 is an exercise in hypocrisy. I urge my colleagues to vote against H.R. 3125.

Mr. SENSENBRENNER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H.R. 3125, the Internet Gambling Prohibition Act. During Judiciary Committee mark-up, I brought up my concerns relating to the tribal gaming exemption. I am pleased that the Gentleman from Virginia, Mr. GOODLATTE, and the Gentleman from Alaska, Mr. YOUNG, were willing to work with me to include language which addresses my concerns about what I believe was an ambiguous section of the bill.

I would like to take a moment to explain my concerns and how, through the manager's amendment, these concerns were addressed. The provision exempting gambling on a closed loop system requires both the sender and the receiver to be on Indian lands. This is not limited to the Indian lands on which the game is conducted, therefore, it would allow linking of all Indian lands nationwide. My concern with this language was how multi-Tribal linking could impact individual Tribal/State gaming Compacts.

Let me provide an example: If State A's Compact allows for slots, and State B's Compact allows for blackjack and slots, absent clarification, the tribe in State A could argue it can now participate in blackjack. Included in the manager's amendment is additional language on this section to ensure that no Class III gaming activity can occur without the explicit authorization of a Tribal/State Compact. This language does not require Tribes to renegotiate their Compacts with states; rather it reinforces the Tribal/State Compact.

In conclusion, the Indian gaming language has been clarified so that the carefully negotiated Tribal/State compacts are not at risk. I urge my colleagues to support the bill.

Mr. BACA. Mr. Speaker, I oppose H.R. 3125, the Internet Gambling Prohibition Act.

I am concerned that the bill creates unfair carve outs. In-home gambling on horse and dog races is allowed, but tribal Internet gaming is prohibited. I fail to see how dog races are acceptable but tribal gaming is not. This bill does not deserve our support.

The bill is so riddled with exemptions it is opposed by the Traditional Values Coalition, which says that the bill does little to address the problems it purports to solve.

Tribal gaming has been essential in furthering economic development on our reservations. It has allowed for medical clinics and upgrading of substandard housing. It has lifted Native Americans from poverty. It has given them self-determination over their destiny. It has furthered Native American sovereignty.

It is important we recognize all Native Americans have given to this country. For that reason, earlier in the year I introduced H. Res. 487 to honor Native Americans.

Native Americans have shown their willingness to fight and die for this nation in foreign lands. They honor the American flag at every powwow.

Native Americans should be treated fairly. We should not burden them with restrictions we are unwilling to place on others.

The bill is opposed by the Department of Justice, AT&T, the San Manuel Band of Mission Indians, Computer and Communications Industry Association, Covad Communications, Center for Democracy and Technology, National Congress of American Indians, Electronic Privacy Information Center, ACLU, Traditional Values Coalition, Seniors Coalition, Free Congress Foundation, Americans for Tax Reform, CATO Institute, American Association of Concerned Tax Payers, and Coalition for Constitutional Liberties.

For all of the above reasons, I am opposing H.R. 3125.

Mr. UDALL of New Mexico. Mr. Speaker, today I rise in opposition to H.R. 3125, which could more appropriately be re-titled the Internet Gambling Proliferation Act.

What this proposed legislation does is impose a new set of laws that selectively privilege some forms of gambling by exempting them from these laws. At the same time, other forms of gambling are condemned. What Congress should do is work with the states to enact legislation, which deals rationally with prohibiting or regulating Internet gambling.

Furthermore, in my home State of New Mexico—as in many other states—this legislation would unnecessarily complicate the ability of states and tribal governments to work out a rational regulatory scheme.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. MILLER of Florida). The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. GOODLATTE) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 3125, as amended.

The question was taken.

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Speaker, I object to the vote on the ground that a quorum is not present and make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8, rule XX and the Chair's prior announcement, further proceedings on this motion will be postponed.

The point of no quorum is considered withdrawn.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. GOODLATTE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material on H.R. 3125.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Virginia?

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from New York (Mr. MCHUGH) and the gentleman from Florida (Mr. HASTINGS) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New York (Mr. MCHUGH).

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. MCHUGH. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on H.R. 4437.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

There was no objection.

Mr. MCHUGH. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, as with any measure of this magnitude, the point at which a bill comes to the floor of this House, of course, is realized only through the concerted efforts and a great deal of hard work by a number of good people, and that is certainly the case here today.

In that regard, I want to begin by expressing my deepest appreciation particularly to the ranking member on the subcommittee, the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. FATTAH), his staff, the staff of the full subcommittee, for their efforts, for their support and most importantly their substantive and constructive input. I would say not only is the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. FATTAH) a primary cospon-sor of this legislation, he is indeed one of the primary authors; and frankly his input, his participation made what I think is a good piece of legislation even better.

I also want to thank the chairman of the full committee, the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. BURTON), and, of course, his colleague, the gentleman from California (Mr. WAXMAN), the ranking member on the full committee, for their cooperation and for their efforts in helping to bring this very worthy piece of legislation before us today.

The bill before us, Mr. Speaker, seeks to achieve two very important objectives. The first is to extend the authorization of the highly successful breast cancer research stamp. It was not that long ago in the 105th Congress under the guidance of two of our former colleagues, a fellow State associate of mine, the gentlewoman Susan Molinari from New York, and Vic Fazio, the gentleman from California, who worked so hard in realizing what became the first ever semipostal issuance in the history of the United States. Since that time, since the creation of the breast cancer research stamp, the proceeds from the sales of these issues from voluntary purchases has resulted in some $15 million in additional funds made available for breast cancer research.

There is truly, Mr. Speaker, not a person in this country that has not in some way been touched by the cruel hand of this disease, a wife, a mother, a close friend, a loved one or, in my own case, a grandmother. Those dollars, willingly donated by millions upon millions of caring individuals, will hopefully bring us ever closer to the day when this scourge is but a sad and very frightening memory. Without our action here through this bill, Mr. Speaker, the current authorization will end at the conclusion of this month, on July 29, in fact.

So many in this House, so many in this Nation have called upon us to act further. In the House, I would say we owe particular thanks to the gentleman from New Hampshire (Mr. BASS), who gathered 117 of our colleagues calling for this extension. In fact, the authorization for such an action contained in this bill is modeled on the gentleman from New Hampshire's bill and would extend the current program for an additional 2 years.

As I mentioned, our presence here today also comes through the urging and support of many, many others, far too many to properly credit them all by name. But we certainly want to thank and commend each and every one of those folks. But I do want to pay particular tribute to just a few, if I might. Ms. Betsey Mullen, who was here with us in Washington earlier today, I believe and I hope she still is, and her colleague at the Women's Information Network Against Breast Cancer, Dr. Bodai, for their untiring efforts. I would also like to thank Ms. Mullen's 6½-year-old nephew and her 8½-year-old niece who took the time out of what I know are their busy lives and busy summers to actually address handwritten letters to all of us here in Congress urging our continued efforts on behalf of this semipostal.

Mr. Speaker, I include the letters in their entirety for the RECORD.

DEAR CONGRESS, Girls and boys can get breast cancer and I don't want girls and boys and the President and his wife, cat and dog to get sick. Keep the stamp going.

From Brendon Fisher.

JULY 16, 2000.

DEAR CONGRESS, I think it's very important to keep the stamp because if we don't every girl is going to worry about it or maybe get breast cancer. But if we keep it we will get money to cure to stop it. My Aunt Betsey risked her life on it and I'm proud of her. If you think about it no one likes it because you can die from it. I think and a lot of other people agree with me that it would be best to keep the stamp and then things will go perfect.

Hope my letter makes a difference because not just me is counting on this.

By Paige Fisher, 8 in a half years old, MD.

If I might, I would like to read a part of both of those.

"Dear Congress:

"Girls and boys can get breast cancer and I don't want girls and boys and the President and his wife, cat and dog to get sick. Keep the stamp going."

That is from Brendon Fisher, who is, as I said, 6½ years old.

□ 1500

And this one: "Dear Congress, I think it is very important to keep the stamp, because if we don't, every girl is going to worry about it or maybe get breast cancer. But if we keep it, we will get money to cure, to stop it. My Aunt Betsey risked her life on it and I'm proud of her. If you think about it, no one likes it because you can die from it. I think, and a lot of other people agree with me, that it would be best to keep the stamp and then things will go perfect. I hope my letter makes a difference, because not just me is counting on this. By Paige Fisher, 8½ years old."

Paige, I want to let you know that yours and Brendon's efforts have indeed made a difference. As I said, I have many to thank.

I would like to give a personal thanks to a special individual, a lady by the name of Jennifer Katz, who has a tangential professional interest in this cause, but who long before this question evolved, Mr. Speaker, through her own life experiences taught me and I suspect many, many others how to learn from her efforts that through tragedy one can identify important goals and challenges and learn in life some things so personal that can become bigger than self, and to thank her for helping me better understand that reality.

Lastly, Mr. Speaker, and certainly not least, we all owe our thanks to the dedicated administration and employees of the Postal Service, because it was through their selfless commitment, through their efforts that this program in its initial stages has reached the historic levels that it has. Yes, Mr. Speaker, many, many thanks to so many people.

The second equally important part and important section of this bill would establish a permanent process and give defined authority within the Postal Service to regularly and formally establish future semipostals that will serve similar purposes in the national American public interest.

The success of the Breast Cancer Research Stamp has understandably led many of our colleagues to propose similar initiatives that are designed to benefit many other worthy causes. And, indeed, this year alone in this Congress, we have had some 14 bills introduced into both bodies that attempt to achieve just such a goal.

Mr. Speaker, I will read from them briefly: the gentlewoman from California (Ms. MILLENDER-MCDONALD) on AIDS research; the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. WELDON) on diabetes; the gentleman from Rhode Island (Mr. WEYGAND) on Alzheimer's; the gentleman from California (Mr. CUNNINGHAM) on prostate cancer; the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE) on emergency food relief; the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. MORELLA) on organ and tissue donation; the gentlewoman from California (Ms. LOFGREN) on World War II memorial; the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. TRAFICANT) on the American Battle Monuments Commission; the gentleman from Colorado (Mr. HEFLEY) on domestic violence. And in the other body, Mr. LOTT on Highway-Rail Grade crossing safety; Mr. NIGHTHORSE-CAMPBELL on domestic violence; Mr. DEWINE on organ and tissue donation, and the list goes on and on.

Clearly, Mr. Speaker, all of these are very worthy initiatives, and I think it is just that fact that perhaps most clearly of all calls for the passage of this bill. I fear absent our action, Mr. Speaker, that none of these may be achieved, that in the perhaps regrettable, but I think undeniable political reality of this Congress as we push back and forth toward trying to achieve our own personal and sometimes equally laudable goals, none of them may be passed.

Mr. Speaker, through this legislation, we can say to the postal service, we must establish a system that must consider these kinds of initiatives and they must issue them on a regular basis. In this fashion, Mr. Speaker, I think we can most assuredly guarantee that these kinds of initiatives will indeed continue into the future, as I think they should.

Mr. Speaker, I would say, while the Breast Cancer Research Stamp Initiative has gone exceedingly well, it has not been without its flaws. Some observers including the General Accounting Office have found that some of the procedural and administrative surroundings have been less than perfectly implemented. This bill seizes upon a report done by the GAO that calls for certain reforms within future issuances, providing for better accounting methods to make sure that both the expenditure and the revenue side are clearly defined and clearly recorded, a provision for full reporting on the program, including regularly reports to both bodies in this Congress, methods to ensure full costs coverage, so that those who choose not to participate in the stamp are not somehow burdened with added costs, to ensure that any future, postal increases necessitated are not a result of semipostals no matter how worthy the cause.

In sum, Mr. Speaker, I do firmly believe that this is a balanced and well-reasoned and in my humble opinion a very worthy and necessary piece of legislation, and I would urge its passage here today.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

(Mr. HASTINGS of Florida asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Mr. Speaker, first let me thank the gentleman from New York (Mr. MCHUGH), the chairman of this committee, for being forthcoming with reference to this legislation. Additionally, I would like to thank the delegate, the gentlewoman from the District of Columbia (Ms. NORTON), my good friend, for graciously allowing me to manage the time on this important measure.

I would like to join the gentleman from New York (Mr. MCHUGH) in the consideration of H.R. 4437, the Semipostal Authorization Act, legislation, granting the postal service the discretionary authority to issue semipostals. This measure was unanimously reported from the committee on June 29, 2000.

I am pleased to note that on June 29, the gentleman from New York (Mr. MCHUGH) reported out an amendment in the nature of a substitute to H.R. 4437, which made a number of important changes to the original text. We owe our interests in semipostals to Dr. Ernie Bodai, chief of surgery at the Kaiser Permanente Medical Center in Sacramento, California, and one of our former colleagues, former Congressman Vic Fazio from California.

Mr. Speaker, Dr. Bodai first proposed the idea of a semipostal with the money raised going toward breast cancer research. He took his idea to Congressman Vic Fazio; and on May 7, 1996, Congressman Fazio introduced the first semipostal bill, H.R. 3401, the Breast Cancer Research Stamp Act.

He was joined in this effort by Senator DIANNE FEINSTEIN when she sponsored identical legislation in the Senate. Congressman Fazio subsequently reintroduced his bill in the 105th Congress as H.R. 407. On May 13, 1997, Representative Fazio joined Representative Susan Molinari from New York, former Congresswoman, in sponsoring H.R. 1585, Stamp Out Breast Cancer Act.

The bill, as amended, and passed by the House on July 22, 1997, by a vote of 423-3 permitted the postal service to establish a special rate of postage for first class mail, not to exceed 25 percent of the original first class rate of postage. Stamps issued under this special rate are available for purchase by the public on a voluntary basis and as an alternative to regular postage.

After deducting an amount sufficient to cover reasonable costs attributable to the printing, sale, and distribution of the stamps, the postal service would transfer 70 percent of the amount generated to the National Institutes of Health and 30 percent to the Department of Defense for breast cancer research.

The National Institutes of Health designated the money to support innovative pilot studies that will further breast cancer awareness. The Department of Defense designated the money for awards intended to encourage innovative approaches to breast cancer research.

H.R. 1585 was subsequently enacted into law, Public Law 105-41, in addition to authorizing the breast cancer research stamp for 2 years, required the General Accounting Office to submit a report to Congress that evaluated the effectiveness and the appropriateness of this method of fund-raising.

In its April 2000 report, entitled "Breast Cancer Research Stamp, Millions Raised for Research, But Better Costs Recovery Criteria Needed," the GAO determined that the semipostal was successful. It is expected that by July 28, 2000, well over 215 million stamps will have been sold and more than 15 million in revenue raised.

GAO further determined that the semipostal was an effective and appropriate way to fund-raise.

Mr. Speaker, the incidence of breast cancer continues to far outstrip available resources and funds. The statistics are as sobering as they are rising. Breast cancer is still the number one cancer killer of women between the ages of 15 and 24. The disease claims another woman's life every 15 minutes in the United States. More than 2 million women are living with breast cancer in America today, yet 1 million of them have not been diagnosed.

More and more people are joining the ranks of breast cancer survivors rather than breast cancer victims due in large part to breakthroughs in cancer research. According to the American Association for Cancer Research, 8 million people are alive today as a result of cancer research. The bottom line is that every dollar we continue to raise will save lives.

Clearly, the American public by purchasing more than 215 million breast cancer semipostal stamps believes this is a good cause and one worthy of contributions. I would urge on behalf of the gentlewoman from the District of Columbia (Ms. NORTON) and the committee that we move quickly and pass H.R. 4437.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MCHUGH. Mr. Speaker, I would ask the gentleman from Florida (Mr. HASTINGS) if he has any further requests for time.

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. MCHUGH. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests, but before yielding back, let me compliment and express my appreciation to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. HASTINGS) for his invaluable assistance here and to associate myself with his remarks about not just the importance of this bill in its two major aspects but to the invaluable contributions of both our former colleagues, Mr. Fazio and Ms. Molinari, as I attempted to state in my remarks, but also as I said, the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. FATTAH), the gentlewoman from the District of Columbia (Ms. NORTON), and others for the great assistance that they have given and urge all of our colleagues to join us in expressing their support of this bill.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. MILLER of Florida). The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from New York (Mr. MCHUGH) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 4437, as amended.

The question was taken; and (two-thirds having voted in favor thereof) the rules were suspended and the bill, as amended, was passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

VICKI COCEANO POST OFFICE BUILDING

Mr. MCHUGH. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 3985) to designate the facility of the United States Postal Service located at 14900 Southwest 30th Street in Miramar City, Florida, as the "Vicki Coceano Post Office Building".

The Clerk read as follows:

H.R. 3985

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. VICKI COCEANO POST OFFICE BUILDING.

(a) DESIGNATION.—The facility of the United States Postal Service located at 14900 Southwest 30th Street in Miramar, Florida, shall be known and designated as the "Vicki Coceano Post Office Building".

(b) REFERENCES.—Any reference in a law, map, regulation, document, paper, or other record of the United States to the facility referred to in subsection (a) shall be deemed to be a reference to the "Vicki Coceano Post Office Building".

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from

New York (Mr. MCHUGH) and the gentleman from Florida (Mr. HASTINGS) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New York (Mr. MCHUGH).

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. MCHUGH. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on H.R. 3985.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

There was no objection.

Mr. MCHUGH. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I had the honor of standing on this floor just last week as we proposed four similar naming bills and made the comment that I felt very strongly then, and I continue to believe in that we are indeed fortunate to have the efforts of so many Members of this body from across the country who work so hard and have done such a tremendous job in identifying truly worthy individuals to which and upon whom we can extend this honor of a post office naming.

I would like to pay my compliments and thanks to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. HASTINGS), the primary sponsor of this legislation, for keeping us on track in that regard and for helping us to uphold a record in which we all take a great deal of pride.

As the Clerk has read, Mr. Speaker, this bill does indeed designate the United States Postal Service building located at 14900 Southwest 30th Street in Miramar, Florida, as the Vicki Coceano Post Office Building.

H.R. 3985 was amended by the full committee but only as a result of a necessary technical correction to the address that was originally identified by the Postal Service, and has no other substantive impact upon the bill itself.

We are indeed fortunate, as we just heard on the previous piece of legislation, to have the gentleman from Florida (Mr. HASTINGS) with us, and I know that he is prepared to make a very full statement about Ms. Coceano. I do not want to take away from that opportunity, but let me note that as we attempt to do on all of these bills we have looked over the background and the contributions of this very special lady, a special lady, who I understand is affectionately known in her community as Mayor Vicki, which I think speaks volumes about the affection and the respect of those who know her best and how they view this very, very unique individual.

As a resident of South Florida for some 40 years, I understand that is a fairly remarkable achievement in a State that benefits from the migration of many people from my State, for example. So she has been there for 4 decades contributing to her community, as her nickname suggests, serving in public office and serving in a distinguished way, but clearly her contributions extend far beyond that of running for mayor or some other public position. She has been a contributor, a volunteer and a doer in a wide range of activities that have certainly benefited her community. But through such efforts as on the White House Conference on Aging and others, she has not limited her scope and her influence to the wonderful community of Miramar but has attempted to serve this entire nation.

So it is with a great deal of pride that I rise today to put forward this bill and to commend, as I said, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. HASTINGS) and the entire Florida delegation who have joined in the cosponsoring of the bill, and I urge all of our colleagues to join us in supporting this initiative.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

(Mr. HASTINGS of Florida asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Mr. Speaker, first let me thank the gentleman from New York (Mr. MCHUGH) for his warm and generous comment. I am deeply appreciative. Additionally, I would like to thank our full committee chairman, the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. BURTON), for assisting my office in expediting this matter before the end of this portion of our session.

I would also like to thank the gentleman from the District of Columbia (Ms. NORTON) again for giving me the privilege of going forward today in this regard, as well as the ranking member, the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. FATTAH), who has been extremely helpful to us.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong support of H.R. 3985. I introduced this bill earlier in the year to name a post office in my hometown of Miramar, Florida, for Vicki Coceano. The city commission of the City of Miramar passed a resolution overwhelmingly supportive of this measure before I undertook any action at all. Additionally, my colleague, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. DEUTSCH), in whose district this facility actually exists, was also extremely supportive.

For me, it becomes a moment of personal privilege. I am now in my fourth term here in the United States Congress. And I have had the good fortune of doing a significant number of things on behalf of the people that I represent in the district that I am privileged to serve. And I would hope on behalf of this Nation and indeed the entire Earth that some of my actions have been helpful. But none gives me any greater pride than to offer this measure today for indeed as is the case with a lot of Members who come forward with legislation, today it is a point of real privilege for me because Vicki Coceano is a person that I have known for 38 years. And I have known her to be more than forthright as a citizen. In the days of segregation, it was Vicki Coceano that spoke out frequently with reference to matters of this kind.

So, Mr. Speaker, and I would also say to my dear friends in South Florida, this honor is altogether fitting and appropriate.

In the few minutes that I have, let me say a little more about a wonderful woman in South Florida, Vicki Coceano, that the gentleman from New York (Mr. MCHUGH) so rightfully brought up, Mayor Vicki. Mayor Vicki, as she is affectionately known by some, Vicki by some of us, and has preferred it that way, has resided in South Florida for more than 40 years and has generously given both her time and talents throughout that period to make Broward County, which its largest city is Fort Lauderdale but its proudest city is Miramar, during that period of time to make it a better place to live and work.

She was elected to serve as a Miramar city commissioner in 1977 and elected mayor in 1989, serving the people of Miramar for more than 20 years, indeed all of its existence. There is one who has departed, former Mayor Calhoun, who I know is looking down on us today as we take this action and is proud of the fact that Vicki is being a recipient of this honor.

Vicki has also served on many boards at the Federal, State and county levels, including the Blue Ribbon Committee for Broward County Schools, the Area Agency on Aging and the White House Conference on Aging.

Above all, Vicki has always been interested in our Nation's youth, recognizing that they are tomorrow's leaders and that our future rests in their hands.

She spearheaded a successful fundraising campaign to build a youth center and has since been honored with a Spirit of Life Humanitarian Award.

Though struggling with illness at this time, Mayor Vicki is still very much involved with the planning and zoning board; serves on the executive committee of the Area Agency on Aging and is a volunteer at the Broward County Humana Hospital.

For Vicki Coceano, civil service is part of a life blended with optimism, fervency and genuine care for those she serves. Her commitment has both shaped her legacy and the life of Miramar's residents.

Coceano was recently awarded the Spirit of Life Humanitarian Award at a banquet in which the proceeds will benefit the Mayor Vicki Coceano Cancer Research Fellowship at the National Medical Center and Beckman Research Institute.

In addition, her name brandishes both the Broward County Hall of Fame and the Broward County Women's Hall of Fame.

The new post office in Miramar will service the transactions and connections people forge each day. If we can add Mayor Vicki's name to this building, it would certainly be fitting for a leader who understands the power of communicating the language of change and articulating its power through her actions, commitments and spirit.

Mr. Speaker, I am proud that all 22 of my Florida colleagues have cosponsored this bill with me, and I am equally proud that Senator BOB GRAHAM has introduced an identical bill in the Senate.

Clearly, Floridians know and wish to honor Vicki Coceano. I am delighted to see this honor bestowed today upon a delightful woman that has served us so much.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. MCHUGH. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, in conclusion, let me again thank the gentleman from Florida (Mr. HASTINGS) for bringing to us the name of an individual, as we heard in some detail, who really does bespeak what is good and right about this country and, more importantly, good and right about its people. We are indebted to him and to all of his colleagues who joined with him in supporting it.

Finally, I would urge of all of our Members here today to support us in passing this very worthy bill.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. MILLER of Florida). The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from New York (Mr. MCHUGH) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 3985, as amended.

The question was taken; and (two-thirds having voted in favor thereof) the rules were suspended and the bill, as amended, was passed.

The title of the bill was amended so as to read:

"A bill to redesignate the facility of the United States Postal Service located at 14900 Southwest 30th Street in Miramar, Florida, as the 'Vicki Coceano Post Office Building'."

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

SENSE OF HOUSE REGARDING NATIONAL SECURITY POLICY AND PROCEDURES

Mr. SPENCE. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and agree to the resolution (H. Res. 534) expressing the sense of the House of Representatives that the recent nuclear weapons security failures at Los Alamos National Laboratory demonstrate that security policy and security procedures within the National Nuclear Security Administration remain inadequate, that the individuals responsible for such policy and procedures must be held accountable for their performance, and that immediate action must be taken to correct security deficiencies.

The Clerk read as follows:

H. RES. 534

Whereas two computer hard drives containing a large quantity of sensitive classified nuclear weapons data at the Department of Energy's Los Alamos National Laboratory, Los Alamos, New Mexico, were recently missing for an undetermined period of time, exposing them to possible compromise;

Whereas the President's Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board, in its report dated June 1999 on security problems at the Department of Energy, concluded that "the Department of Energy and the weapons laboratories have a deeply rooted culture of low regard for and, at times, hostility to security issues";

Whereas in response to longstanding security problems with the nuclear weapons complex and to recommendations made by the President's Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board in that report, Congress enacted the National Nuclear Security Administration Act (title XXXII of Public Law 106-65) to establish a semi-autonomous National Nuclear Security Administration with responsibility for the administration of programs for the national security applications of nuclear energy;

Whereas the Special Oversight Panel on Department of Energy Reorganization of the Committee on Armed Services of the House of Representatives concluded in February 2000 that the Department's plan to implement the provisions of that Act "taken as a whole appears to allow continued DOE authority, direction, and control over the NNSA and retain current DOE management, budget, and planning practices and organizational structures";

Whereas the Secretary of Energy has recognized the need to address nuclear weapons security problems within the Department of Energy and has sought to make improvements;

Whereas the Secretary of Energy, in fulfilling the duties and functions of the Under Secretary for Nuclear Security, and the Director of the Office of Security and Emergency Operations of the Department of Energy, in serving as the Chief of Defense Nuclear Security of the National Nuclear Security Administration, were responsible for nuclear weapons security policies and implementation of those policies while the computer hard drives were missing;

Whereas the effective protection of nuclear weapons classified information is a critical responsibility of those individuals entrusted with access to that information; and

Whereas the compromise of the nuclear weapons data stored on the computer hard drives, if confirmed, would constitute a clear and present danger to the national security of the United States and its allies: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That it is the sense of the House of Representatives that—

(1) the security failures at Los Alamos National Laboratory revealed to Congress on June 9, 2000, demonstrate the continued inadequacy of nuclear weapons security policy and procedures within the National Nuclear Security Administration and at facilities of the Administration;

(2) individuals responsible for the implementation, oversight, and management of nuclear weapons security policy and procedures within the Administration and its facilities must be held accountable for their performance; and

(3) the Administrator for Nuclear Security must take immediate action to improve procedures for the safeguarding of classified nuclear weapons information and correct all identified nuclear weapons security deficiencies within the Administration.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPENCE) and the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. SKELTON) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPENCE).

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. SPENCE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on H. Res. 534, the resolution under consideration.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from South Carolina?

There was no objection.

Mr. SPENCE. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, 5 weeks ago the Department of Energy informed Congress that two computer hard drives containing a large quantity of classified nuclear weapons data were missing from the Los Alamos National Laboratory and had been missing for at least 6 weeks. This breach of security was just the last in a long and sorry history of lax security at our nuclear weapons laboratories.

In direct response, Congress last year created a semi-autonomous agency, the National Nuclear Security Administration, and charged it with the responsibility to better manage the Nation's nuclear weapons complex.

Secretary of Energy Bill Richardson opposed this new organization from the beginning and has sought to undermine the implementation of NNSA at every step. Contrary to congressional direction, he declared himself as the administrator for nuclear security and he dual hatted his own chiefs of security and counterintelligence to serve in these positions for both the DOE and NNSA.

While this arrangement is directly counter to the law, it leaves no doubt as to who was running the new administration and who was responsible for security at the labs in June.

In fact, Secretary Richardson and the senior DOE leadership told Congress repeatedly that the security problems at the nuclear weapons laboratories were being fixed. In May of 1999, Secretary Richardson stated that the safeguards of national secrets have been dramatically strengthened and improved.

On March 2, 2000, Secretary Richardson testified to the Committee on Armed Services, quote, "that we have reached a point where we have very strong security procedures," unquote; and, quote, "there is no longer a culture of lax security. That has ended," unquote.

Furthermore, the Secretary's independent oversight office recently reviewed security practices at Los Alamos National Laboratory and stated that they were, quote, "first class," unquote.

Of course, Mr. Speaker, this latest episode at Los Alamos has demonstrated that these assertions were not true. Through briefings and hearings, the Committee on Armed Services determined that security procedures at the labs continued to be unacceptably lax and ineffective. We learned that no log was kept of the individuals who entered the vault where the hard drives were stolen; that the Department was not even aware of how many people have access to the vault; and that the vault was inadequately secure.

I simply cannot understand how any reasonably comprehensive review of a laboratory's security procedures would conclude that such procedures were adequate, much less first class.

Mr. Speaker, H. Res. 534 appropriately expresses concern by the House of Representatives over security matters within the national nuclear laboratories and calls for immediate corrective action. It also expresses the view that those responsible for these serious lapses in security must be held accountable.

The senior leadership of the Department chose to accept responsibility for the management of NSA and eagerly and erroneously claimed credit for improving security. They must now accept responsibility for their failures as well.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to support H. Res. 534.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. SKELTON. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I rise today in support of this resolution, which is a resolution expressing the sense of the House concerning recent security lapses at the Energy Department, particularly at the Los Alamos National Laboratory.

On June 9 of this year, the Committee on Armed Services was notified by the Department of Energy that two computer hard drives containing classified, restricted data were missing from a document storage vault located in the weapons design "X Division" at the Los Alamos National Laboratory. The information on these hard drives relates to the development, design, and manufacture and use of nuclear weapons. In a very real sense, the information on these computer disks represents the "keys to the kingdom." Fortunately, the missing hard drives have been recovered, but we still do not know whether they were simply misplaced or whether they were copied or otherwise used by those with hostile intentions toward the United States.

The security lapses that led to the apparently temporary loss of the two computer disks containing highly sensitive nuclear weapons secrets are inexcusable. I am especially distressed that a culture continues to exist at the Los Alamos National Laboratory that relegates security concerns to secondary importance. Something must be done to change that culture. I applaud Secretary Richardson's efforts to improve security and get the Department of Energy on the right track; but obviously, the steps he has taken so far are somewhat inadequate to ensure that our nuclear secrets are adequately safeguarded.

The protection of nuclear weapons information is a critical responsibility for all of those with access to that information. The compromise of the data on the missing hard drives could seriously jeopardize the national security of our country and of our allies.

Mr. Speaker, the resolution before the House today, which the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPENCE) and I have cosponsored, expresses the sense of the House that the security failures at the Los Alamos National Laboratory show that our existing nuclear weapons security policy is inadequate, that the individuals responsible for implementing that security policy should be held accountable, and that the administrator of the Nuclear Security Administration must take immediate action to improve our procedures concerning the safeguarding of nuclear weapons information.

It is my sincere hope that Secretary Richardson and others with the responsibility for security matters within the Department will heed the words of this resolution and take prompt steps to ensure that we do not again suffer security breaches such as that involving the loss of hard drives at Los Alamos. Our Nation simply cannot afford lax security when it comes to our nuclear secrets.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to support H. Res. 534.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. SPENCE. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. THORNBERRY), who is chairman of the Special Oversight Panel of the Department of Energy Reorganization.

Mr. THORNBERRY. Mr. Speaker, I appreciate my chairman yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, I think it is perfectly appropriate for the House to express its concern over the recent incidents at Los Alamos. A number of people in the country perhaps have lost sight of the fact that nuclear weapons continue to constitute the central element of this country's security apparatus around which the rest of our defense efforts support, and to have an incident like this at Los Alamos I think is both shocking and frustrating for a number of Members. It is shocking because once we get into some of the details, there are several common sense sort of measures that are simply not employed; and the difficulty for us is how we legislate common sense into the day-to-day activities of these facilities.

But it has also been very frustrating, because this is not an isolated incident; this is simply the latest in a long series, a long string of incidents. Last year, as the chairman mentioned, Congress, to try to stop this long string, enacted reforms in the Department of Energy which have not been implemented to the letter and spirit of the law. So there is a great sense of frustration that we continue to have security lapses while we continue to do business as usual, which has not worked, for the past 20 years.

Mr. Speaker, we have to break this stream. Recently, General John Gordon has been installed as the administrator of the Nuclear Security Administration and we need to support him to make sure that he can take the necessary action to break this string.

Mr. Speaker, this resolution includes two important points. One is that we have to hold individuals accountable, and that is exactly the principle of the reforms we passed last year, to have a clear chain of command, more like a military-style chain of command, but also a system of accountability, so that if somebody messes up, we know who to hold responsible for those lapses.

The second element here urges the administrator to take appropriate action quickly. It is appropriate for him to do so, and General Gordon is beginning to go around to all of the sites and try to get a clear picture of the strengths and weaknesses in our current nuclear weapons complex.

However, Congress cannot legislate the details of every silly thing that may cause a security lapse. It is up to the administrator, General Gordon, supported by Congress and others within the administration, to change this culture which the chairman talked about, to make the institutional reforms. That is really the answer.

So I support this resolution. I think it is an appropriate expression of the deep concern we have, but it also gets at the heart of what it is going to take to fix it.

Mr. SKELTON. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Guam (Mr. UNDERWOOD).

Mr. UNDERWOOD. Mr. Speaker, I thank the distinguished ranking member for yielding me this time.

I too today rise in support of House Resolution 534, which focuses attention on the recent nuclear weapons security failures at Los Alamos National Lab and calls for improvements of the current system, especially increased accountability by those in charge.

However, while I am in strong support of the need to improve efforts to protect and preserve our national security, these efforts should not impinge on the civil rights for all Americans, especially those of Asian and Pacific Islander ancestry. The security procedures at the Los Alamos National Lab have had a significant impact on the Asian-American community. The case of Wen Ho Lee, a Chinese American scientist who was arrested last year for mishandling classified data at Los Alamos, clearly indicates the nature of these effects. The effects of Lee's case on other Asian-American scientists was immediate and of sufficient concern for the Department of Energy to take action to address charges of racial profiling and treatment of Asian-Pacific Americans in DOE national labs.

In Sunday's New York Times, James Glanz reported several APA groups have called to boycott the labs and are urging Asian and Asian-American scientists not to seek employment there.

I do not support this policy; but while I do not support it, it is important to note the impact of this case on the recruitment and retention of Asian-Pacific Americans in the labs. The number of Asian applicants decreased from an average of 28 in 1998 and 1999 to three in the first half of the year 2000. And with Sandia and Livermore laboratories included, the percentage of postdoctoral appointments of Asian Americans fell from 14 percent in 1998 to half this year. These declines are disturbing, since Asian-Americans are a huge source of talent and have contributed more in a disproportionate way to the security of this country, and they earn over a quarter of all Ph.D.s in science and technology at American universities each year.

The charges of racial profiling and discriminatory investigation at hand illustrate just how much security procedures have had an effect on the Asian-Pacific American community. All employees should be held accountable, regardless of race or ethnicity, but no one should be held additionally responsible either. Let us make sure that our nuclear weapons security and any subsequent activities in the labs in the name of security remain the focus of this resolution. Let us make sure that political posturing or advantage does not intimidate this effort, and let us make sure that a commitment to justice and fairness for all citizens is not sacrificed in the pursuit of national security.

Mr. Speaker, I include the following article for the RECORD:

[From the New York Times, July 16, 2000]

AMID RACE PROFILING CLAIMS, ASIAN-AMERICANS AVOID LABS
(By James Glanz)

Asian and Asian-American scientists are staying away from jobs at national weapons laboratories, particularly Los Alamos, saying that researchers of Asian descent are systematically harassed and denied advancement because of their race.

The issue has long simmered at the laboratories, but it came to a boil last year with the arrest of Dr. Wen Ho Lee, who is accused of mishandling nuclear secrets at Los Alamos. Though officials vehemently deny it, many Asian-Americans said Dr. Lee, a naturalized citizen born in Taiwan, was singled out because of his ethnicity.

In any event, Asians and Asian-Americans said, security procedures implemented after Dr. Lee's arrest fall hardest on them. Since the arrest, some scholarly groups have even called for a boycott of the laboratories, urging Asian and Asian-American scientists not to apply for jobs with them.

Whether because of the calls for a boycott, the underlying claims of discrimination, or both, all three national weapons laboratories—Los Alamos, Lawrence Livermore and Sandia—have seen declines in Asian and Asian-American applicants for postdoctoral positions, according to their own statistics. Other Asian and Asian-American scientists have left voluntarily.

Los Alamos, for example, has seen the number of Asian applicants (those granted formal reviews by committees) dwindle to 3 in the first half of 2000 from an average of 28 in 1998 and 1999. The number accepting jobs at Los Alamos fell from 18 in 1998 to 9 in 1999 to 3 in the first half of 2000.

The combined acceptances of Asians and Asian-Americans at Sandia and Livermore, which compile statistics by fiscal years ending in late September, are similar to Los Alamos, falling to 3 so far in 2000 from 21 in 1998. At Los Alamos, the number of Asians applying for jobs declined in percentage as well, to 4 percent of total applications from 12 percent in 1998. Over all, postdoctoral appointments of Asian and Asian-American fell to 7 percent from 14 percent when the three laboratories, with their slightly different recordkeeping, are combined.

"To me, this is an indicator that some of the best have decided either not to apply, or even when they do apply, not to come when they're offered a position," said Dr. John C. Browne, director of Los Alamos.

The decline is troubling for two reasons. First, Asians and Asian-Americans represent a huge pool of talent—more than a quarter of all Ph.D.'s awarded in science and technology at American universities each year. Second, postdoctoral appointments, which are generally filled by researchers who have recently earned Ph.D.'s are an essential source of candidates for permanent positions. The appointments constitute "the primary means of recruiting future scientists and engineers for Los Alamos," said Jim Danneskiold, a spokesman for the laboratory.

In May, the National Science Foundation, a major source of research money, reported that "heightened security concerns" at the laboratories were hindering efforts to recruit and retain Asian and Asian-American scientists.

And last week, speaking before a panel of the House Armed Services Committee on reorganizing the Energy Department, Representative Ellen O. Tauscher, Democrat of California, referred to suspicions of racial profiling at Livermore and Sandia.

Mrs. Tauscher said there was "the sense that Asian-Americans are targeted or scapegoated as potentially coming to work at the labs because they can spy," adding that the problem "has a deleterious effect on our ability to recruit and retain."

Observers say they are not surprised by the comments.

"There's no question in my mind that the Asian-Americans are conscientiously avoiding working in Los Alamos and the other labs like the plague," said Prof. L. Ling-chi Wang, chairman of the department of ethnic studies and director of the Asian American studies program at the University of California at Berkeley.

Two organizations, the Asian Pacific Americans in Higher Education and the Association for Asian American Studies, have called for a boycott, urging Asian-Americans not to work at the laboratories.

Professor Wang, who helped organize the boycott calls, is not alone in thinking that they have contributed to the flight from the laboratories.

Dr. Browne said that an "overall black cloud" caused by the boycott was driving Asian and Asian-American scientists away, but said that he did not believe racial profiling had occurred at Los Alamos.

Still, it is difficult to say whether anger over security measures is the sole reason for the sharp drop in Asian and Asian-American applicants, particularly with laboratory budget cuts and a booming economy creating lucrative jobs in private industry. But the impact is apparent.

"The labs are falling apart," said Dr. Jonathan Medalia, a specialist in national defense at the Congressional Research Service and the author of a study on the laboratories, which he presented at a conference but has not yet delivered to Congress.

The loss of talent is most severe in computer science, Dr. Medalia said, and if it continues, could threaten the nation's ability to ensure the safety and reliability of its nuclear weapons.

He said that tightened security measures increased the losses among all ethnic groups, but that the economy and other effects contributed.

Accusations of racism have also led to formal complaints.

In December, nine Asian-American scientists and engineers at Livermore filed a discrimination complaint with the State of California that the California Department of Fair Employment and Housing is investigating.

The federal Equal Employment Opportunity Commission has also begun an investigation, said officials at the laboratory and a lawyer for the scientists.

Secretary of Energy Bill Richardson, whose agency oversees the laboratories, conceded that political pressures from Congress had created "an atmosphere of fear" among foreign-born scientists.

A year ago, Mr. Richardson named a committee to investigate complaints of racial profiling, and he appointed Dr. Jeremy Wu, a former official in the Agriculture Department's office of civil rights, as the department's ombudsman to review diversity issues and hear employee complaints. But the problems are so ingrained, scientists said, that those measures are not enough.

"For years, a lot of these things have festered, and it was typical of the Asian way to say nothing," said Kalina Wong, an American-born scientist of Chinese and Hawaiian descent who tracks inventories of nuclear materials at Livermore, and one of the employees who filed the complaint. Now, Ms. Wong said, "Pandora's Box is open."

Laboratory officials deny any systematic discrimination. If anything, they said, administrators are eager to promote members of ethnic groups.

THE COMPLAINTS—A HISTORY OF DISCRIMINATION

The new security directives do not explicitly mention Asian-Americans or any other group; moreover, Mr. Richardson accompanied the directives with a warning that they should not be seen as an excuse to question the "loyalty and patriotism" of Asian-Americans as a group.

But the directives required scientists to report "close and continuing contact" with nationals of sensitive countries—a designation that covers Russia and most countries in Asia, but few countries in Europe.

"If you have relatives in sensitive countries, you are under the microscope," said Dr. Aaron Lai, a climate researcher at Los Alamos and a naturalized citizen born in Taiwan. "Before the Wen Ho Lee case, the chance of getting promoted was very low," Dr. Lai said. But with the new rules, he said, "it's getting worse."

Joel Wong, an engineer at Livermore, who is from Hong Kong and is now an American citizen, said, "They associate foreign-born with being a threat."

The 19-member committee appointed by Mr. Richardson, issued a report earlier this year, based on interviews with workers. Its recommendations included appointing an ombudsman, as Mr. Richardson has done, and compiling data on minority groups across the department. Existing data are sketchy at best. The report also described pervasive feelings of unease and fear.

In October, the Congressional Asian Pacific American Caucus heard from several scientists who said Asian-Americans faced discrimination at the laboratories.

Ms. Wong, the Livermore scientist, told the group of a lagging salary, racially insensitive comments from officials, her removal from sensitive projects and an unexplained erosion of authority.

"The whole Chinese spy allegation has set us back further," said Ms. Wong, whose family has been in the United States for five generations and who has worked at Livermore for more than two decades. "It seems now that there is license to do as was done to me because we Asians are potential spies."

Livermore officials said racial bias has not played a role in the treatment of scientists, either before or after the Lee case.

"There is no underlying discrimination," a Livermore spokeswoman, Susan Houghton, said. "If anything, it's the opposite. It is still very much a goal to increase minority representation in management."

In an interview, Ms. Houghton and Tommy Smith, a mechanical engineer who is the laboratory's director of affirmative action and diversity, said Livermore had established goals for increasing the numbers of Asians and other minorities in management and held a one-day workshop for employees in April. "Obviously, we can always do a better job," Ms. Houghton said.

She also noted that the investigations into discrimination claims were not proof of wrongdoing.

Los Alamos has about 7,000 employees, including 3,500 scientists, said Mr. Danneskiold, the laboratory spokesman.

Over all, Asians or Pacific Islanders make up 2.4 percent of the staff and about 4 percent of the scientists, he said.

But of 99 senior managers, only 1 is of Asian descent, Mr. Danneskiold said. And of 322 leaders of technical groups, a lower rung in management, only 3 are Asian-American.

Similar if somewhat less pronounced disparities exist at Livermore; at Sandia, the proportion of Asians in management and the laboratory are nearly the same.

Michael Trujillo, the equal employment opportunity officer at Los Alamos, also rejected the idea that Asian-Americans' relatively low representation in management was a result of bias. But Mr. Trujillo said he could not offer an explanation. "I don't think that there's an easy answer on that," he said.

THE RULES—RESPONSE THAT SOME CALLED RACIAL PROFILING

The Energy Department ombudsman, Dr. Wu, said in an interview that he believed new security rules had infringed on "individual rights and scientific freedom" and added that he hoped he could improve the situation.

He has been on the job since January, but he began visiting the laboratories last year and has already investigated several bias complaints. In two cases, involving the loss of a security clearance and the termination of a grant, rulings against Asian and Asian-American scientists have been overturned, he said.

Edward J. Curran, who directs the Energy Department's counterintelligence office, said a review almost two years ago led to increased reporting requirements for many employees and to polygraph testing of some scientists. He said the rules were intended to make intelligence officials aware of any unusual inquiries from foreign nationals and to help catch any American scientists who were spying, whatever their ethnicity.

Among the directives are two that Mr. Richardson issued last July in which scientists are required to report certain "close and continuing contact" during unclassified visits with people from countries deemed sensitive.

Dr. Al West, a security director at Sandia, said that at least one Asian-American scientist, whose fiancée was from Hong Kong, left for a longstanding job offer in private industry "because they got tired of dealing with all the inquiries into their personal affairs" as a result of the new rule.

And Dr. Shao-Ping Chen, a physicist at Los Alamos, criticized a requirement to list all contacts and relationships with people in sensitive countries.

"Where it should stop is not easy to tell," said Dr. Chen, originally from Taiwan but now an American citizen. "If you have a big family, those people are large numbers."

Henry Tang, chairman of the Committee of 100, a group of Chinese-Americans engaged in public policy issues, said that in enforcing the new rules, security officials "are no different than a highway patrolman suspecting someone merely by virtue of their physical characteristics."

Dr. Paul D. Moore, who was the F.B.I.'s chief of Chinese counterintelligence analysis for more than 20 years and is now at the Center for Counterintelligence and Security Studies, a nongovernmental training center in Alexandria, Va., said that belief was mistaken. But Dr. Moore said that it had ultimately taken root because, in his view, the Chinese government specifically courts ethnic Chinese in the United States when looking for potential spies. As a result, he said, counterintelligence agents focus on Chinese-Americans. "It's unfair," he said, "but what are you going to do?"

THE BOYCOTT—A MIXED REACTION AMONG SCIENTISTS

As racism accusations simmer, the moves that have sparked the most discussion—and dissension—are the calls for a boycott.

Dr. Shujia Zhou, who left Los Alamos last year, said, "The Asian people feel hit hard."

Dr. Zhou published research in journals like Science and Physical Review Letters but said he left the laboratory because officials made continuing his work difficult, revoking his computer access, for example, and because the atmosphere had soured for Asians.

He easily found another job, Dr. Browne, the Los Alamos director, said that revoking computer privileges for some Asian scientists was an "unfortunate" overreaction and that fairer procedures had been put in place.

The calls for a boycott have generated mixed reactions at the laboratories. Dr. Manvendra K. Dubey, a Los Alamos scientist and chairman of its Asian-American Working Group, said he opposed a boycott "because if we disappear from within, we will have no voice." Some say the heightened sensitivity to race may eventually help the laboratories.

But for now, the security concerns about Asian countries, the lack of data on where and how Asian-American scientists work, and the near-absence of Asians in upper ranks are hindering progress at the laboratories, many Asian-American scientists say.

Perhaps more pernicious, they add, is the idea, prevalent among some Americans of European descent, that rational scientists must be immune to ordinary racial bias. That visceral difference in viewpoint may pose the most elusive but enduring barrier to improvements, some Asian scientists say.

"I think it's hard for a white person to appreciate the bias," said Dr. Huan Lee, a Chinese-American scientist at Los Alamos.

Mr. SPENCE. Mr. Speaker, I have no further speakers at this time.

Mr. SKELTON. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. FRANK).

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Mr. Speaker, I am very pleased to be speaking right after the delegate from Guam, because I very much agree with the points he made.

As I read the resolution, I do not disagree with much of what it says, but I am troubled by the climate that brought it forward and by the climate I think it will exacerbate.

First, I believe there has been a substantial exaggeration of the threat to national security that has so far occurred from mistakes made at Los Alamos. I do not believe that we have any showing that America's security has been, in fact, jeopardized by the errors that have happened. I also think that we are likely to see our security jeopardized if we overreact in a way that drives first-rate scientists away from participating in the national security enterprise, and I fear we are coming close to that point.

There is, after all, a tension between security and the kind of intellectual freedom and creativity that is necessary for science to flourish. Of course, we must not sacrifice security, but neither can we focus only on security and disregard the negative impact an excessively harsh and rigid regime can have on those scientists who especially today have many other choices. They do not have to come to work for the Federal Government. They do not have to come to work in these laboratories. If we make the mistake of treating them as perspective spies and criminals, we drive them away.

I must say I am especially concerned about the anti-Asian-American impact of some of these efforts. I, like the gentleman from Guam, was disturbed to read in The New York Times, in effect, admissions by some of those concerned with security that there was, in fact, an anti-Asian bias. Indeed, I was interested to see when the Federal Government was forced to produce its potential list of countries with whom Wen Ho Lee may have dealt that it was clear that his own ethnicity was irrelevant to this. Even in the allegations, it was not a case of some ideological or homeland betrayal; the allegation is that Dr. Lee was a man afraid of losing his job and he may have behaved improperly in pursuit of another job with a range of countries. I have no knowledge of these accusations, and I obviously should not and would not talk about them. But it is interesting to say that even in this most prominent case, no allegation that his ethnicity and his being of Chinese ancestry was at all relevant.

Yes, it is important for us to preserve security. It is also important for us not to exaggerate and promote fear because there has not been any showing that our security has, in fact, been damaged; and it is especially important to avoid even the hint of prejudice against our Asian-American fellow citizens. We have had too many cases in American history in which Asian-Americans have been singled out and in every single one of them they have been shown to be unfair.

So if this resolution goes forward, it in and of itself does no harm. But the climate that brought it forward and the climate it may produce must be resisted.

Mr. SKELTON. Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. SPENCE. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. THORNBERRY).

Mr. THORNBERRY. Mr. Speaker, I just want to briefly comment on some of the things we have heard here on the floor.

The first thing is, of course, there is nothing in this resolution which promotes or in any way encourages the sorts of concerns that both the gentlemen have talked about. Of course, none of us want to do that.

In fact, Mr. Speaker, I fully agree and I think the committee and Congress fully agrees that we want to be very cautious about saying to any particular group "We don't want you," because the fact is, we have to get and keep top quality people in our National Laboratories and plants. We can afford to do nothing to drive them away.

But I think it is important to get back to the principles that are in this resolution, which include individual accountability. That is, if not a group but an individual makes a mistake or worse, then that individual will be held accountable for it.

That is what our national security requires. It requires that we get and keep the best quality people, but once they are there and privy to some of the most sensitive information in the country, that we hold them accountable for how they treat that information. That is the principle I think that General Gordon will move ahead with as he tries to reach that difficult balance of doing the work in these facilities and also balancing the security, and bringing it all together to see that our security is not compromised.

I think that there is a concern that all of us share. We want to get and keep the best quality people, but this resolution does not hinder that. In fact, I would argue that it helps it by moving towards and encouraging individual accountability.

Mr. BEREUTER. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. THORNBERRY. I yield to the gentleman from Nebraska.

Mr. BEREUTER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding.

I had not intended to participate in this discussion, but as a member of the Cox Select Committee, I do have to say that we developed extraordinary evidence in a unanimous report from that committee, a bipartisan committee, that indeed there were grave security losses from and inappropriate security procedures at the Los Alamos Lab.

I would also like to mention that there was no specific reference to Mr. Lee made in that report. An investigation conducted by the Federal Bureau of Investigation was the way that, I believe, there was the first time his identity was ever mentioned in the media or anyplace else. The Cox Committee made no recommendations.

I do think the people who suggest in some fashion that Congress has been identifying particular ethnic group as responsible for espionage or as security risks, is inappropriate and inaccurate.

Mr. SPENCE. Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. MILLER of Florida). The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPENCE) that the House suspend the rules and agree to the resolution, H. Res. 534.

The question was taken.

Mr. SPENCE. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX and the Chair's prior announcement, further proceedings on this motion will be postponed.

SMALL WATERSHED REHABILITATION AMENDMENTS OF 2000

Mr. LUCAS of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 728) to amend the Watershed Protection and Flood Prevention Act to authorize the Secretary of Agriculture to provide cost share assistance for the rehabilitation of structural measures constructed as part of water resource projects previously funded by the Secretary under such Act or related laws, as amended.

The Clerk read as follows:

H.R. 728

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "Small Watershed Rehabilitation Amendments of 2000".

TITLE I—DAM REHABILITATION

SEC. 101. REHABILITATION OF WATER RESOURCE STRUCTURAL MEASURES CONSTRUCTED UNDER CERTAIN DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE PROGRAMS.

The Watershed Protection and Flood Prevention Act (16 U.S.C. 1001 et seq.) is amended by adding at the end the following new section:

"SEC. 14. REHABILITATION OF STRUCTURAL MEASURES NEAR, AT, OR PAST THEIR EVALUATED LIFE EXPECTANCY.

"(a) DEFINITIONS.—For purposes of this section:

"(1) REHABILITATION.—The term 'rehabilitation', with respect to a structural measure constructed as part of a covered water resource project, means the completion of all work necessary to extend the service life of the structural measure and meet applicable safety and performance standards. This may include (A) protecting the integrity of the structural measure or prolonging the useful life of the structural measure beyond the original evaluated life expectancy, (B) correcting damage to the structural measure from a catastrophic event, (C) correcting the deterioration of structural components that are deteriorating at an abnormal rate, (D) upgrading the structural measure to meet changed land use conditions in the watershed served by the structural measure or changed safety criteria applicable to the structural measure, or (E) decommissioning the structure, if requested by the local organization.

"(2) COVERED WATER RESOURCE PROJECT.—The term 'covered water resource project' means a work of improvement carried out under any of the following:

"(A) This Act.

"(B) Section 13 of the Act of December 22, 1944 (Public Law 78-534; 58 Stat. 905).

"(C) The pilot watershed program authorized under the heading 'FLOOD PREVENTION' of the Department of Agriculture Appropriation Act, 1954 (Public Law 156; 67 Stat. 214).

"(D) Subtitle H of title XV of the Agriculture and Food Act of 1981 (16 U.S.C. 3451 et seq.; commonly known as the Resource Conservation and Development Program).

"(3) STRUCTURAL MEASURE.—The term 'structural measure' means a physical improvement that impounds water, commonly known as a dam, which was constructed as part of a covered water resource project, including the impoundment area and flood pool.

"(b) COST SHARE ASSISTANCE FOR REHABILITATION.—

"(1) ASSISTANCE AUTHORIZED.—The Secretary may provide financial assistance to a local organization to cover a portion of the total costs incurred for the rehabilitation of structural measures originally constructed as part of a covered water resource project. The total costs of rehabilitation include the costs associated with all components of the rehabilitation project, including acquisition of land, easements, and rights-of-ways, rehabilitation project administration, the provision of technical assistance, contracting, and construction costs, except that the local organization shall be responsible for securing all land, easements, or rights-of-ways necessary for the project.

"(2) AMOUNT OF ASSISTANCE; LIMITATIONS.—The amount of Federal funds that may be made available under this subsection to a local organization for construction of a particular rehabilitation project shall be equal to 65 percent of the total rehabilitation costs, but not to exceed 100 percent of actual construction costs incurred in the rehabilitation. However, the local organization shall be responsible for the costs of water, mineral, and other resource rights and all Federal, State, and local permits.

"(3) RELATION TO LAND USE AND DEVELOPMENT REGULATIONS.—As a condition on entering into an agreement to provide financial assistance under this subsection, the Secretary, working in concert with the affected unit or units of general purpose local government, may require that proper zoning or other developmental regulations are in place in the watershed in which the structural measures to be rehabilitated under the agreement are located so that—

"(A) the completed rehabilitation project is not quickly rendered inadequate by additional development; and

"(B) society can realize the full benefits of the rehabilitation investment.

"(c) TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE FOR WATERSHED PROJECT REHABILITATION.—The Secretary, acting through the Natural Resources Conservation Service, may provide technical assistance in planning, designing, and implementing rehabilitation projects should a local organization request such assistance. Such assistance may consist of specialists in such fields as engineering, geology, soils, agronomy, biology, hydraulics, hydrology, economics, water quality, and contract administration.

"(d) PROHIBITED USE.—

"(1) PERFORMANCE OF OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE.—Rehabilitation assistance provided under this section may not be used to perform operation and maintenance activities specified in the agreement for the covered water resource project entered into between the Secretary and the local organization responsible for the works of improvement. Such operation and maintenance activities shall remain the responsibility of the local organization, as provided in the project work plan.

"(2) RENEGOTIATION.—Notwithstanding paragraph (1), as part of the provision of financial assistance under subsection (b), the Secretary may renegotiate the original agreement for the covered water resource project entered into between the Secretary and the local organization regarding responsibility for the operation and maintenance of the project when the rehabilitation is finished.

"(e) APPLICATION FOR REHABILITATION ASSISTANCE.—A local organization may apply to the Secretary for technical and financial assistance under this section if the application has also been submitted to and approved by the State agency having supervisory responsibility over the covered water resource project at issue or, if there is no State agency having such responsibility, by the Governor of the State. The Secretary shall request the State dam safety officer (or equivalent State official) to be involved in the application process if State permits or approvals are required. The rehabilitation of structural measures shall meet standards established by the Secretary and address other dam safety issues. At the request of the local organization, personnel of the Natural Resources Conservation Service of the Department of Agriculture may assist in preparing applications for assistance.

"(f) RANKING OF REQUESTS FOR REHABILITATION ASSISTANCE.—The Secretary shall establish such system of approving rehabilitation requests, recognizing that such requests will be received throughout the fiscal year and subject to the availability of funds to carry out this section, as is necessary for proper administration by the Department of Agriculture and equitable for all local organizations. The approval process shall be in writing, and made known to all local organizations and appropriate State agencies.

"(g) PROHIBITION ON CERTAIN REHABILITATION ASSISTANCE.—The Secretary may not approve a rehabilitation request if the need for rehabilitation of the structure is the result of a lack of adequate maintenance by the party responsible for the maintenance.

"(h) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There is authorized to be appropriated to the Secretary to provide financial and technical assistance under this section—

"(1) $5,000,000 for fiscal year 2001;

"(2) $10,000,000 for fiscal year 2002;

"(3) $15,000,000 for fiscal year 2003;

"(4) $25,000,000 for fiscal year 2004; and

"(5) $35,000,000 for fiscal year 2005.

"(i) ASSESSMENT OF REHABILITATION NEEDS.—The Secretary, in concert with the responsible State agencies, shall conduct an assessment of the rehabilitation needs of covered water resource projects in all States in which such projects are located.

"(j) RECORDKEEPING AND REPORTS.—

"(1) SECRETARY.—The Secretary shall maintain a data base to track the benefits derived from rehabilitation projects supported under this section and the expenditures made under this section. On the basis of such data and the reports submitted under paragraph (2), the Secretary shall prepare and submit to Congress an annual report providing the status of activities conducted under this section.

“(2) GRANT RECIPIENTS.—Not later than 90 days after the completion of a specific rehabilitation project for which assistance is provided under this section, the local organization that received the assistance shall make a report to the Secretary giving the status of any rehabilitation effort undertaken using financial assistance provided under this section.”.

TITLE II—DAM SAFETY

SEC. 201. DAM SAFETY.

(a) INVENTORY AND ASSESSMENT OF OTHER DAMS.—

(1) INVENTORY.—The Secretary of the Army (in this section referred to as the “Secretary”) shall establish an inventory of dams constructed by and using funds made available through the Works Progress Administration, the Works Projects Administration, and the Civilian Conservation Corps.

(2) ASSESSMENT OF REHABILITATION NEEDS.—In establishing the inventory required under paragraph (1), the Secretary shall also assess the condition of the dams on such inventory and the need for rehabilitation or modification of the dams.

(b) REPORT TO CONGRESS.—Not later than 2 years after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall transmit to Congress a report containing the inventory and assessment required by this section.

(c) INTERIM ACTIONS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—If the Secretary determines that a dam referred to in subsection (a) presents an imminent and substantial risk to public safety, the Secretary is authorized to carry out measures to prevent or mitigate against such risk.

(2) EXCLUSION.—The assistance authorized in paragraph (1) shall not be available to dams under the jurisdiction of the Department of the Interior.

(3) FEDERAL SHARE.—The Federal share of the cost of assistance provided under this subsection shall be 65 percent of such cost.

(4) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There is authorized to be appropriated to carry out this section a total of $25,000,000 for fiscal years beginning after September 30, 1999, of which not more than $5,000,000 may be expended on any 1 dam.

(d) COORDINATION.—In carrying out this section, the Secretary shall coordinate with the appropriate State dam safety officials and the Director of the Federal Emergency Management Agency.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. LUCAS) and the gentleman from Texas (Mr. STENHOLM) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. LUCAS).

Mr. LUCAS of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the efforts of the gentleman from Texas (Chairman COMBEST) and the ranking member, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. STENHOLM), in helping me bring forward H.R. 728, the Small Watershed Rehabilitation Amendments.

I also appreciate the support of the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Chairman SHUSTER) and the gentleman from New York (Mr. BOEHLERT) for this very important bill.

Seeing the need for rehabilitation of aging dams built across the State of Oklahoma and the country, I introduced H.R. 728. This legislation will give the Secretary of Agriculture the authority to provide financial assistance to local organizations for up to 65 percent of the total rehabilitation construction costs for those dams built under the Small Watershed Program.

H.R. 728 will authorize a total of $90 million over the next 5 years, beginning in 2001, to help us rehabilitate our Nation's watershed projects and ensure that we and our communities continue to enjoy the benefits that watershed projects offer.

My predecessors left a legacy with the Small Watershed Program. They realized the impact that this program would have on both the State of Oklahoma and the Nation as whole.

I was raised in and still live in Roger Mills County, Oklahoma. One of the things I most clearly recall from growing up there was the sight of these flood control dams near my home. I did not know it at the time, but those dams were built because community and political leaders knew from firsthand experience the importance of flood control. They had witnessed the horrible floods that washed across Oklahoma's watersheds in the 1930s and 1940s, terrifying events that inspired them to take the necessary steps to reduce the threats that flooding poses to people, land, and water quality.

Since 1944, over 10½ thousand small watershed dams have been built in the United States. Over 2,000 of those dams are located in Oklahoma. Many of these dams were planned and designed with a lifespan of 50 years. Fifty years ago there was little concern about what to do when these dams reached their life expectancy.

During the week of July 4, 1998, a celebration in Cordell, Oklahoma, marked the 50th anniversary of America's first United States Department of Agriculture small watershed dam. This is just one of a thousand dams that will reach the end of their 50-year life expectancy within the next 10 years.

Although the Federal government paid for the construction costs of these dams, under current law, there is no Federal authority or funds to rehabilitate them. Repair costs are far beyond the budgets of the local sponsors.

The Federal government clearly has a responsibility to ensure dam safety. We cannot wait until a disaster happens. If rehabilitation is not done, we may be faced with the awesome and awful possibilities of flooding, loss of wildlife habitat, water shortages, and pollution. Far more regrettable in the case of failure, we might be confronted with the loss of life, and yes, property, crops, and livestock.

The economic impact of dam failures on communities and local economies would be devastating. We must act before any of these situations occur.

The small watershed program is one of our Nation's most successful public and private partnerships. In fact, these completed small watershed projects have provided over $2.20 in benefits for every $1 in cost. Very few government programs can make that claim. We must continue to build on this partnership.

Today the Small Watershed Program represents an $8.5 billion Federal investment and an estimated $6 billion local investment in the infrastructure of our Nation. We do not allow our highways to crumble, nor should we ignore our small watershed dams. It is time we address the rehabilitation needs of these structures.

The fact is, these small watersheds have done such a good job that most people do not even realize they exist as they drive by them, as they go up and down the highways. There are not many programs that have that kind of a success factor.

We must continue to build on this program that our predecessors started over 50 years ago. It has been a great privilege to champion this cause here in our Nation's capital that will have such a direct impact on my home county, my home State, and our Nation as a whole. I look forward to seeing this legislation passed into law, and continuing to build on one of the most successful programs our government has known.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. STENHOLM. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H.R. 728, the Small Watershed Rehabilitation Amendments of 2000. This bill amends the Watershed Protection and Flood Control Protection Act, also known as P.L. 566 program, to authorize the Secretary of Agriculture to provide financial assistance to eligible local organizations to cover a portion of the total cost for the rehabilitation of structural measures originally constructed as part of the Department of Agriculture's USDA water resource project.

Under current law, the Secretary of Agriculture, acting through the Natural Resources Conservation Service, is authorized to provide technical and financial assistance to local organizations in planning and carrying out small watershed projects for flood protection, agriculture and water management, recreation, municipal and industrial water supply, and wildlife enhancement.

Many of the 10,000-plus dams built under this program are reaching the end of their 50-year design life and are in need of rehabilitation. In fact, some now pose a threat to public health and safety.

During the Committee on Agriculture's markup of this legislation, I offered an amendment to protect the privacy of information provided to USDA by the farmers and ranchers participating in the Department's voluntary programs or receiving technical assistance.

My amendment, which was accepted by the committee, was designed to protect the trust established between the USDA and America's farmers and ranchers resulting in the high level of participation we currently enjoy in our voluntary conservation programs.

When landowners come in on a voluntary basis to work on their local NRCS, Farm Service Agency, or conservation district office to implement conservation measures on their farms and ranches, they need to be assured that the information they provide remains confidential. Concerns have been raised that if this information was transferred to other agencies or entities, it would lose its confidential nature and could be made public.

The provision I offered would not have prevented other Federal agencies from collecting data under their own statutory authority. It would merely protect from disclosure to other Federal regulatory entities the confidential information provided to USDA, local conservation districts, or RC&D councils by a farmer, rancher, or landowner who has participated in the USDA conservation program.

Without this protection, the billions of dollars in technical and financial assistance spent every year by the taxpayers to help the Nation's landowners protect our soil and water resources could be jeopardized because of the unwillingness of producers to participate in our voluntary programs. In short, my amendment would have ensured that our voluntary, incentive-based programs are kept separate from the regulatory efforts of other agencies.

If Members doubt the callous disregard that some Federal agencies have for the American farmer, rancher, and the average citizen in general, look no further than EPA's persistence with the total maximum daily load (TMDL) regulations.

After a dozen congressional hearings, 35,000 written comments, and clear intent from Congress via the military construction conference report that the proposed TMDL regulations needed to be withdrawn and thoroughly re-examined, the EPA persisted in their policy to put forth these tainted regulations.

We need to send a strong message that information provided on a voluntary basis for purposes of receiving assistance from USDA should remain confidential to all parties working in cooperation with USDA. While it is unfortunate that this could not be accomplished here today on this worthy bill, this issue must be addressed by Congress.

I want to applaud and thank my colleague, the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. LUCAS), for his hard work in working to draft and pass this legislation. I urge my colleagues to support H.R. 728.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. LUCAS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. SHERWOOD).

Mr. SHERWOOD. Mr. Speaker, on behalf of the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure, I rise in support of H.R. 728, the Small Watershed Rehabilitation Amendments of 2000.

First let me congratulate the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. LUCAS) and his colleagues, and commend the leadership of the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure and the Committee on Agriculture for moving forward with this important legislation.

H.R. 728 responds to a growing crisis in water resources infrastructure throughout this Nation. There are over 10,000 dams constructed under national resource conservation service programs; many are in need of critical repair and are presenting flooding and environmental threats to communities.

This bill responds in two ways. Title I authorizes NRCS to rehabilitate aging and deteriorating dams constructed under the agency's small watershed program. Title II authorizes the Corps of Engineers to inventory and assess the condition of dams constructed decades ago under other authorities, such as the Work Projects Administration and the Civilian Conservation Corps, and in the interim, to provide emergency measures to prevent risks to the public.

A good example of these aging dams is the Mountain Springs dam right on the edge of my congressional district. It is a dam that has provided flood control and watershed qualities throughout 60 years, and now it is about to be drained because it is deemed dangerous. We need these things attended to.

Mr. Speaker, I would also like to emphasize that these projects should be performed in the most cost-effective manner that accomplishes the rehabilitation objective. However, the Secretary is not required to develop a cost benefit ratio analysis or a cost benefit ratio.

Mr. Speaker, this bill is about restoring infrastructure, enhancing public safety, and protecting the environment. America's rural communities in particular will benefit.

For all of these reasons, Mr. Speaker, I strongly urge my colleagues to support H.R. 728.

Mr. LUCAS of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Nebraska (Mr. BEREUTER).

(Mr. BEREUTER asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BEREUTER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Oklahoma for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of H.R. 728. I want to thank the distinguished gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. LUCAS) for his outstanding initiative and effort in introducing this legislation and the leadership of the two committees for advancing it.

As a cosponsor of this legislation, this Member certainly supports the goals of this measure. It is clearly appropriate to provide necessary resources to aid in the rehabilitation of the small watershed structures which have been constructed over the past 50 years. These small dams and other structures, constructed under the P.L. 566 program, have provided numerous benefits over the past decades, including flood control, wildlife habitat, recreation, irrigation and water supplies.

This program has been especially important to Nebraska. Over the years, the P.L. 566 program has resulted in the installation of 880 dams and other structures in Nebraska. In fact, this Member is proud to point out that his district, the First Congressional District of Nebraska, has more P.L. 566 dams and structures than any other district in the Nation. The more than 700 structures in this Member's district provides flood protection, reduces erosion and provides many useful benefits.

Throughout Nebraska, it is estimated that the State realizes a minimum of $27 million in annual direct benefits as a result of these structures. Documentation and examples of those benefits are found in the report by the National Resource Conservation Service, the NRCS, of the USDA, entitled "Protecting the 'Good Life' through P.L. 566; The Watershed Protection and Flood Prevention Act across Nebraska."

As just mentioned, during the previous 50 years, more than 10,000 upstream flood control dams have been built throughout the United States. The NRCS has provided cost-sharing and technical assistance while local sponsors have assumed responsibility for the operation and maintenance of the structures when they were completed. Unfortunately, many of those structures are now reaching the end of their 50-year designed life. Without significant rehabilitation, much of this investment could be lost.

This act authorizes the Secretary of Agriculture to cover a portion of the total costs incurred for the rehabilitation of those structures. The bill does not allow any assistance to be provided to perform operation and maintenance activities, a limitation this Member strongly supports.

During a hearing of the Subcommittee on Water and Environment of the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure, this Member shared with the subcommittee a letter from Dayle Williamson who, until very recently, was the outstanding, highly respected director of the State of Nebraska's Natural Resources Commission, he just retired, which emphasized that the sponsors of Nebraska's projects have been providing adequate maintenance over the years for the structures. Therefore, he suggested, and this Member agrees, that they should not be penalized for their stewardship by allowing other States to tap into scarce resources to perform routine operation and maintenance which they routinely should have been providing. The gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. LUCAS) has taken that fully into consideration. Another outstanding feature of this legislation.

This Member additionally asked for specific safeguards to ensure that funding would not be used for the purposes of routine operation and maintenance. I am pleased, therefore, to note that a provision was added to the legislation which states that the Secretary of Agriculture may not approve a rehabilitation request if it is determined that the need for rehabilitation of the structure is the result of a lack of adequate maintenance by the party responsible for the maintenance.

Nevertheless, it is clear that there are a great many instances where assistance is appropriate and necessary. This Member believes that H.R. 728 recognizes this growing need and provides a far-sighted approach in addressing these problems. By providing additional assistance now, we can ensure that the original investments will continue to pay dividends well into the future.

Mr. Speaker, this Member urges his colleagues to support H.R. 728 and again commends the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. LUCAS) for his outstanding initiative.

Mr. STENHOLM. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, let me just say again in reiteration of what all of my colleagues who have testified in favor of this legislation today and the Subcommittee on Water Resources and Environment of the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure, I do also thank them for their work and input into this very important legislation.

I know, speaking from back home in Texas, the importance of these projects has been demonstrated time and time again over these 50 years, but now particularly as cities like Dallas and Fort Worth begin to look at some very serious flood concerns that they have and how they might address that. Other cities all over the United States, most communities will find, when one looks at how to solve a problem of flood control that one will find the small watershed projects would be right at the top of the list.

Now, when we have these large number of dams that have been built and are in need of rehabilitation, this legislation only make makes very, very serious common sense.

So I appreciate, again, the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. LUCAS) for bringing this legislation to all of our attention, and all of the cooperation that has been made to reach it to the point to where we are today. I encourage the House to support the bill.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. LUCAS of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, in conclusion, I wish once again to express my appreciation of the gentleman from Texas (Mr. STENHOLM), the gentleman from Nebraska (Mr. BEREUTER), and the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. SHERWOOD) and all of the members of the various committees and subcommittees who worked on this.

From a concept that initially came together in July of 1998 at a gathering to celebrate 50 years of successful service by one of these structures to the bill, that was then filed again in February of 1999, that has worked its way through subcommittee and full Committee on Agriculture, subcommittee and full Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure, that has been examined by resources, a bill that is, if there is such a thing, a textbook way of reviewing legislation, we have at one point or other in the last year and a half examined every facet of this concept, I think, from every perspective.

The legislation that we have today, thanks to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. STENHOLM), ranking member, and the gentleman from Texas (Chairman COMBEST), and many other Members, is a good solid piece of legislation that will do the things that need to be done in this country and in a fashion we will all be proud of.

Mr. Speaker, I urge all of my colleagues to support the continued program that has been so successful for half a century now or more.

Mr. SHUSTER. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 728, the small watershed rehabilitation amendments of 2000. The bill takes steps to improve the nation's deteriorating water resources infrastructure and requires the Secretary of Agriculture to rehabilitate aging dams built under programs of the Natural Resources Conservation Service.

The bill also requires the Secretary of the Army to inventory and assess certain dams from the Great Depression era and authorizes actions to mitigate against immediate threats to public safety.

I commend Representative FRANK LUCAS and his colleagues for championing this legislation and the leadership of the Agriculture Committee for their cooperation, as well. Thanks should also go to my colleagues on the Transportation and Infrastructure Committee, in particular Representative JIM OBERSTAR, the ranking Democrat, Representative SHERRY BOEHLERT, the chairman of the Water Resources and Environment Subcommittee, and Representative BOB BORSKI, the subcommittee's ranking member.

The Transportation and Agriculture Committees share jurisdiction over the NRCS's small watershed program and worked together closely to revise and improve title I of this critically important legislation. I also appreciate the Agriculture Committee's cooperation with respect to title II, relating to the Army Corps of Engineers' authorities regarding dam safety and included by the Transportation and Infrastructure Committee.

Mr. Speaker, the needs are great. Rehabilitating the nation's dams will not be cheap but the benefits will be enormous. With over 10,000 small watershed dams in need of rehabilitation, H.R. 728 takes an important and timely first step. We anticipate NRCS and affected local communities will undertake cost-effective rehabilitation measures and coordinate closely with State dam safety officials. We also anticipate that, if funded, this bill will make communities safer and cleaner as flooding and sedimentation risks are reduced.

Mr. Speaker, I support passage of H.R. 728, and urge my colleagues to do the same.

Mr. BOEHLERT. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of H.R. 728, the Small Watershed Rehabilitation Amendments of 2000. H.R. 728 authorizes the Department of Agriculture, through the Natural Resources Conservation Service, to rehabilitate dams constructed as part of their small watershed program and other conservation programs.

This bill also authorizes additional dam safety measures for the Corps of Engineers. H.R. 728 requires the Secretary of the Army to inventory and assess the condition of certain dams and to take interim actions to prevent threats to public safety.

This bill invests in our nation's aging dam infrastructure. It will increase public health and safety and environmental protection. It will bring jobs, piece of mind and environmental benefits to communities with deteriorating dams.

The final language, essentially what the Transportation and Infrastructure Committee reported last November, is the result of extensive input from engineers, construction contractors, environmental advocates, dam safety officials, local government representatives, and Federal agencies. It includes, among other things, important flexibility in defining "rehabilitation" so that environmentally sound and locally supported options, such as "decommissioning," may be considered.

I congratulate Representative FRANK LUCAS and his colleagues for pursuing this legislation and I thank the Transportation and Infrastructure Committee and the Agriculture Committee for their cooperation and leadership. In particular, I thank the leadership of the Agriculture Committee and Chairman BUD SHUSTER, Ranking Democrat JIM OBERSTAR, Ranking Democrat of the Water Resources and Environment Subcommittee, Representative BOB BORSKI, for their interest and support. From the beginning, our Subcommittee on Water Resources and Environment, which I chair, recognized H.R. 728 could help make communities safer and cleaner.

For all these reasons, I urge my colleagues to pass this important, critically-needed legislation.

Mr. WATKINS. Mr. Speaker, I stand before you today in full support of H.R. 728, the Small Watershed Rehabilitation Amendments of 1999. Most importantly, I want to stress to my colleagues why this piece of legislation is vital to so many rural areas of the United States.

Since the 1940's, over 100,000 small watershed dams have been built under USDA programs. Small watershed dams provide great benefit to their surrounding areas. These dams provide downstream flood protection, water quality improvement, irrigation water, and rural water supplies. In flood control alone, the Natural Resources Conservation Service and the USDA estimate the small watershed dams prevent more than $800 million in damages each year. People can also enjoy increased recreation and wildlife habitat.

The bad news is that many have reached or are rapidly approaching their fifty year life span. Numerous structures are in need of rehabilitation to ensure the continued environmental and economic benefits that our country currently enjoys. Action must be taken to prevent the loss of life, water supply, and flood control that these dams afford to many rural areas.

Currently, no funding source exists to restore watershed projects, and local sponsors do not have the resources to attempt to save these dams. H.R. 728 establishes financial assistance for the assessment and rehabilitation of small watershed dams over the next ten years. With federal cost sharing, local sponsors will now have the opportunity to repair these crucial watersheds.

The necessity of federal attention to this problem is critical, and I thank my friend and Oklahoma colleague Mr. LUCAS for his leadership of this matter and his support and commitment to the restoration of these structures. I call upon my colleagues to recognize the importance of this legislation with their support of H.R. 728.

Mr. LUCAS of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. MILLER of Florida). The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. LUCAS) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 728, as amended.

The question was taken; and (two-thirds having voted in favor thereof) the rules were suspended and the bill, as amended, was passed.

The title of the bill was amended so as to read:

"A bill to amend the Watershed Protection and Flood Prevention Act to authorize the Secretary of Agriculture to provide cost share assistance for the rehabilitation of structural measures constructed as part of water resource projects previously funded by the Secretary under such Act or related laws, and for other purposes."

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. LUCAS of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on H.R. 728, the bill just adopted.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Oklahoma?

There was no objection.

CONGRATULATING REPUBLIC OF LATVIA ON 10TH ANNIVERSARY OF REESTABLISHMENT OF INDEPENDENCE FROM FORMER SOVIET UNION

Mr. BEREUTER. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and agree to the concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 319) congratulating the Republic of Latvia on the 10th anniversary of the reestablishment of its independence from the rule of the former Soviet Union.

The Clerk read as follows:

H. CON. RES. 319

Whereas the United States had never recognized the forcible incorporation of the Baltic states of Estonia, Latvia, and Lithuania into the former Soviet Union;

Whereas the declaration on May 4, 1990, of the reestablishment of full sovereignty and independence of the Republic of Latvia furthered the disintegration of the former Soviet Union;

Whereas Latvia since then has successfully built democracy, passed legislation on human and minority rights that conform to European and international norms, ensured the rule of law, developed a free market economy, and consistently pursued a course of integration into the community of free and democratic nations by seeking membership in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO); and

Whereas Latvia, as a result of the progress of its political and economic reforms, has made, and continues to make, a significant contribution toward the maintenance of international peace and stability by, among other actions, its participation in NATO-led peacekeeping operations in Bosnia and Kosovo: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate concurring), That the Congress—

(1) congratulates Latvia on the occasion of the 10th anniversary of the reestablishment of its independence and the role it played in the disintegration of the former Soviet Union; and

(2) commends Latvia for its success in implementing political and economic reforms, which may further speed the process of that country's integration into European and Western institutions.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Nebraska (Mr. BEREUTER) and the gentleman from California (Mr. LANTOS) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Nebraska (Mr. BEREUTER).

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. BEREUTER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on H. Con. Res. 319.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Nebraska?

There was no objection.

Mr. BEREUTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

(Mr. BEREUTER asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks, and include extraneous material.)

Mr. BEREUTER. Mr. Speaker, this Member rises in very strong support for H. Con. Res. 319, a resolution congratulating the Republic of Latvia on the 10th anniversary of the reestablishment of its independence from the former Soviet Union. This Member is pleased to be a cosponsor of this important statement of support.

Mr. Speaker, the Baltic States of Latvia, Lithuania, and Estonia had been prosperous and progressive independent nations, a set of three nations, prior to the infamous Molotov-Ribbentrop Pact, an agreement that heralded 5 decades of repression.

The United States, of course, never recognized this unlawful act of international aggression. By 1990, the Soviet terror machine no longer held sway, and the long-standing courage and determination of the Latvian people was finally rewarded with freedom. Again, it was the United States that was among the first to recognize their independence when they broke free.

No one could have predicted the rapid reintegration with the West. Free elections have now become the norm, and the Saeima acts as a fully-functioning parliament. Inflation has been reduced, and Latvia has made major strides in privatization.

While the export market to Russia has collapsed, important new trading partnerships have been found in Poland, Germany and the West. Much remains to be done, but Latvians and Latvian-Americans can take justifiable pride at what has thus far been accomplished in Latvia.

For our part, the United States continues to work for the Baltic nations to deepen and broaden our relationship. As but one example, NATO military officers, including Americans, continue to work with the Latvian military directly and through NATO's Partnership For Peace program.

Latvia-Americans should also be proud of their contributions, with some retired military officers actually serving in key positions in the Latvian Armed Forces and the Ministry of Defense.

As the NATO Summit in Washington, D.C. last year concluded, Latvia joined in the Enhanced and More Operational Partnership, EMOP, a program designed to speed the day when Latvia can become a full contributing member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. The goal, which this Member strongly endorses, is to move beyond the expressions of support and facilitate the concrete steps that will result in Latvia's further integration into the West.

In other areas of cooperation, Peace Corps volunteers now teach Latvian schools and help Latvian small businessmen and women with such basic tasks as accounting and marketing. This Member is particularly pleased that the United States has created a Baltic American Enterprise Fund designed to underwrite fledgling entrepreneurs from Lithuania, Latvia, and Estonia.

Finally, this Member would point out that the House of Representatives has been and is assisting the Latvian Saeima with such basic necessities as law books and computers, various kinds of library assistance.

In 1995, this Member was part of a bipartisan House task force which approved and oversaw this assistance to this parliamentary body, as we did in the other two Baltic States, and visited Latvia for that and other foreign policy security purposes. It should be noted, additionally, that such assistance most assuredly is not a hand-out. Rather, we are offering a helping hand to a nation with historically close ties to the United States. We are helping Latvians build a future where their country can continue to progress in its rightful place as a full member of the European family of democratic nations.

Mr. Speaker, this Member congratulates, in particular, the distinguished gentleman from Illinois (Mr. SHIMKUS) for crafting a resolution that merits the support of all Members of this body. This Member urges support for H. Con. Res. 319.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. LANTOS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, let me at the outset congratulate the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. SHIMKUS) for crafting this very excellent resolution. I want to thank the gentleman from Nebraska (Mr. BEREUTER) for his eloquent and cogent and strong statement. I want to associate myself with the comments of the gentleman from Nebraska, and I call on all of my colleagues to support H. Con. Res. 319.

As we congratulate Latvia on the 10th anniversary of its renewed independence, I think it is important to recognize proudly that the United States stood on principle at the time of the beginning of the Second World War in refusing to accept the incorporation of Latvia, Lithuania and Estonia into the Soviet Union.

Not many of our fellow citizens know that the embassies of these three Baltic countries continued to function during the long decades of both the Second World War and the Cold War here in Washington, D.C., underscoring the principled commitment of the United States under Republican and Democratic administrations to the independence of the Baltic States.

Mr. Speaker, Latvia, along with Lithuania and Estonia, has made enormous progress in developing an economy that was stifled by the nonfunctional Soviet system and building an increasingly democratic and open and free society. I have had the privilege and the pleasure of visiting Latvia, Lithuania, and Estonia during the crucial days of their attempted breaking away from Soviet control; and I have had the privilege of visiting in the Baltics repeatedly since, most recently just a few months ago.

It is reassuring, Mr. Speaker, that democracy is taking hold; that the orientation of Latvia and her two Baltic neighbors to democratic principles is strong; their desire to become admitted to the Europe Union is great; to become members of NATO; these are all manifestations of positive developments.

There is one aspect of development in these three countries that I would like to touch upon, which is as yet unfinished business. At the time of the early days of the Second World War, the Baltic states were whipsawed between Hitler's Germany and Stalin's Soviet Union. As the German forces occupied the Baltic states, understandably perhaps, large numbers of citizens in these countries greeted the Nazis with joy because they represented liberation from the Soviet Union. Many joined Nazi military units.

Now, time has gone on, and most of the members of these military units are no longer alive. But some are, and it has been critical to remind our friends in the Baltic states that it is their moral and legal obligation to bring the perpetrators of crimes against humanity to justice, irrespective of their age and medical condition.

I have had the privilege of working with the presidents of all three Baltic countries and with members of parliament and, on the whole, I want to commend them for approaching this important remaining assignment from the dark period of the Second World War with diligence and sincere commitment. There is no doubt in my mind that under the current leadership of these three countries, with three strong democratically oriented presidents and strong democratically controlled parliaments, this job will be done and the three Baltic states will occupy their proper role in the family of democratic nations within the framework of the European Union and within the framework of NATO.

It is in that spirit that I want to congratulate the people of Latvia and the government of Latvia for the remarkable progress they have made during the course of the last decade, and I strongly urge all of my colleagues to approve this resolution.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. BEREUTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume to commend the gentleman from California (Mr. LANTOS), the distinguished gentleman who gave a very articulate extemporaneous remark. He has followed the history of these Baltic states, and he has certainly followed their evolution since in fact they have gained their freedom; and I thank him for his outstanding remarks.

Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. SHIMKUS), the distinguished gentleman who, by his activism, by his leadership, and by his heritage has been recognized already in his time here in the House as a leader on matters related to the Baltic states.

(Mr. SHIMKUS asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SHIMKUS. Mr. Speaker, it is with great pleasure that I rise today in strong support of House Concurrent Resolution 319, congratulating the Republic of Latvia on the 10th anniversary of the reestablishment, and I underscore reestablishment, of its independence from Russia.

I want to take this opportunity also to thank my colleagues, the gentleman from New York (Mr. GILMAN), the gentleman from Nebraska (Mr. BEREUTER), but especially the gentleman from California (Mr. LANTOS), who is the conscience of the House and who has been a good friend as we negotiated these new areas, which are uncharted waters for me. And I would be remiss if I did not mention the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. KUCINICH), who is the co-chair of the Baltic Caucus. I appreciate his friendship and support, as well as all of the original cosponsors of this legislation.

Mr. Speaker, Latvia lost its freedom on August 23, 1939, when Nazi Germany and the U.S.S.R. signed a nonaggression pact and the Baltic states were placed in the Soviet sphere of influence. By August 1940, the nation had been placed under Soviet military occupation and was incorporated as a republic of the U.S.S.R. The United States never recognized the incorporation of these independent countries into the Soviet Union, and the Russian Federation currently has no claims on these independent countries today.

For the subsequent 50 years, the brave people of Latvia endured the slaughter of innocent citizens, deportations to Siberia, and heavy political oppression. Despite these hardships, the Latvian people kept independence alive in their minds and spirits, resisting occupation in silent and public ways, serving as a secret weapon against the tyranny of the Soviet Union.

On May 4, 1990, the people of Latvia solidified their full sovereignty, which served to further the disintegration of the Soviet Union. In just one decade, Latvia has successfully pursued policies to build a strong democracy, protect human rights, expand the rule of law, develop a free market system, and pursue a course of integration into the community of free and democratic nations, including the seeking of membership in the European Union and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Latvia, together with the Republics of Estonia and Lithuania, continues to make a significant contribution toward maintaining peace and stability in the surrounding region, notably in peacekeeping operations in Bosnia and Kosovo. I applaud their participation and signature on the Vilnius statement signed on May 19 of this year, especially their commitment to individual liberty, the free market, and the rule of law.

Latvia is a nation that has made tremendous progress since its independence and has unlimited potential and optimism for the future. The story of Latvian independence deserves to be widely acknowledged and remembered as a successful nonviolent model for social and political change.

In the United States, we have imperfect individuals attempting to form a more perfect union. In Latvia, the attempt by imperfect individuals to form a more perfect democracy should be commended. That is why I urge my colleagues to join with me in passing House Concurrent Resolution 319 and remembering the good people of Latvia for all their perseverance and triumph over the monstrosity of communism.

Mr. LANTOS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume to thank my very good friend, the gentleman from Nebraska (Mr. BEREUTER), for his most generous comments, as well as my very good friend and colleague, the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. SHIMKUS).

Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. BEREUTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume to thank the gentleman for his remarks earlier, and also the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. SHIMKUS), as I said, for his leadership and his outstanding statement.

I take particular pleasure in being able to manage this legislation. Not only do we have a significant Lithuanian community in both Lincoln and Omaha, and a small Estonian one in Lincoln; but we have a relatively larger community of Latvians in Lincoln. They came to Nebraska in the early part of the 20th century for freedom, to escape religious persecution, and for economic benefits.

As a part of that immigration, shortly following them was a young dissident from Latvia. His name was Karlis Ulmanis. After receiving his bachelor's degree from the University of Nebraska, he worked for some time in Nebraska and Texas before returning to Latvia. There he became the president of Latvia between World War I and World War II.

He was long-tenured, and an outstanding and benevolent leader of Latvia during that period of time. When the Soviets came in, they seized him; and that is the last the world knew of what happened to Karlis Ulmanis.

Later, it was only justice that his grandnephew became the recent president of Latvia. For a period of time, his mother and he had to change their name in order to escape persecution from the Soviets. But the second Ulmanis did become a very distinguished and able president, and the Lincoln community is very pleased and proud of both the Ulmanises for their outstanding leadership of Latvia.

Finally, Mr. Speaker, I thank my Latvian-American constituents for their outstanding support for the cause of freedom over the years for the Baltic states.

Mr. KNOLLENBERG. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to support this resolution and to commend the success the Republic of Latvia has achieved since the May 4, 1990 reestablishment of its full sovereignty and independence from the former Soviet Union.

Since the declaration of its independence, Latvia has established a democratic government, passed legislation on human and minority rights, ensured the rule of law and sustained the development of its free market economy.

Latvia has also consistently pursued a course of integration into the community of free and democratic nations by seeking membership in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO). I support admitting the Baltic states into NATO and I hope my colleagues here in the House will support their entry also in the next round of NATO expansion.

Latvia has made great strides over the last ten years and this resolution helps to highlight this success. I thank Representative SHIMKUS for his efforts to bring House Concurrent Resolution 319 to the floor and the opportunity to congratulate Latvia on the last ten years of progress.

Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of House Concurrent Resolution 319, which congratulates the Republic of Latvia on the 10th anniversary of its independence from the rule of the former Soviet regime.

I am certain that all of us in this Congress appreciate how difficult it has been for countries such as Latvia to move forward with badly-needed political and economic reforms over the last decade.

But, many of us can also recall the terrific challenges the Latvian people and their neighbors in Lithuania and Estonia had to overcome to regain their independence ten years ago.

This Resolution congratulates the Latvian people for their success—against all odds—in regaining their rightful independence, and commends them for carrying forward since then with the reforms that should lay the foundation for their full integration into European and Western institutions.

Mr. Speaker, I support the Resolution and urge my colleagues to join in its adoption.

Mr. BEREUTER. Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. MILLER of Florida). The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Nebraska (Mr. BEREUTER) that the House suspend the rules and agree to the concurrent resolution, H. Con. Res. 319.

The question was taken.

Mr. BEREUTER. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX and the Chair's prior announcement, further proceedings on this motion will be postponed.

CONDEMNING 1994 ATTACK ON AMIA JEWISH COMMUNITY CENTER IN BUENOS AIRES, ARGENTINA

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and agree to the resolution (H. Res. 531) condemning the 1994 attack on the AMIA Jewish Community Center in Buenos Aires, Argentina, urging the Argentine Government to punish those responsible, and for other purposes, as amended.

The Clerk read as follows:

H. RES. 531

Whereas on July 18, 1994, 86 innocent human beings were killed and 300 were wounded when the AMIA Jewish Community Center was bombed in Buenos Aires, Argentina;

Whereas the United States welcomes Argentine President Fernando de la Rúa's political will to pursue the investigation of the bombing of the AMIA Jewish Community Center to its ultimate conclusion;

Whereas circumstantial evidence attributes the attack to the terrorist group Hezbollah, based in Lebanon and sponsored by Iran;

Whereas evidence indicates that this bombing could not have been carried out without local assistance from elements of the Argentine security forces, some of which are reported to be sympathetic to anti-Semitic positions and to have participated in the desecration of Jewish cemeteries in recent years;

Whereas additional evidence indicates that the tri-border area where Argentina, Paraguay, and Brazil meet, and which is known to be rife with terrorist activity as well as drug and arms smuggling, was used to channel resources for the purpose of carrying out the bombing attack;

Whereas the 6 years since the bombing have been marked by efforts to minimize the involvement of these Argentine security elements;

Whereas Argentine officials have acknowledged that there was negligence in the initial phases of the investigation and that the institutional and political conditions must be created to advance the investigation of this terrorist attack;

Whereas failure to duly punish the culprits of this act serves merely to reward these terrorists and help spread the scourge of terrorism throughout the Western Hemisphere;

Whereas the democratic leaders of the Western Hemisphere issued mandates at the 1994 and 1998 Summits of the Americas that they condemn terrorism in all its forms and that they will, using all legal means, combat terrorist acts anywhere in the Americas with unity and vigor;

Whereas the Government of Argentina supports the 1996 Declaration of Lima To Prevent, Combat and Eliminate Terrorism, which refers to terrorism as a serious form of organized and systematic violence that is intended to generate chaos and fear among the population, results in death and destruction, and is a reprehensible criminal activity, as well as the 1998 Commitment of Mar del Plata which calls terrorist acts serious common crimes that erode peaceful and civilized coexistence, affect the rule of law and the exercise of democracy, and endanger the stability of democratically elected constitutional governments and the socioeconomic development of our countries;

Whereas the Government of Argentina was successful in enacting a law on cooperation from defendants in terrorist matters, a law that will be helpful in pursuing full prosecution in this and other terrorist cases; and

Whereas it is the long-standing policy of the United States to stand firm against terrorist attacks wherever and whenever they occur and to work with its allies to ensure that justice is done: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the House of Representatives—

(1) reiterates its condemnation of the attack on the AMIA Jewish Community Center in Buenos Aires, Argentina, in July 1994, and honors the victims of this heinous act;

(2) strongly urges the Government of Argentina to fulfill its international obligations and its promise to the Argentine people by pursuing the local and international connections to this act of terrorism, wherever they may lead, and to duly punish all those who were involved;

(3) calls on the President to continue to raise this issue in bilateral discussions with Argentine officials and to underscore the United States concern regarding the 6-year delay in the resolution of this case;

(4) recommends that the United States Representative to the Organization of American States seek support from the countries comprising the Inter-American Committee Against Terrorism to assist, if required by the Government of Argentina, in the investigation of this terrorist attack;

(5) encourages the President to direct United States law enforcement agencies to provide support and cooperation to the Government of Argentina, if requested, for purposes of the investigation into this bombing and terrorist activities in the tri-border area; and

(6) desires a lasting, warm relationship between the United States and Argentina built on mutual abhorrence of terrorism and commitments to peace, stability, and democracy in the Western Hemisphere.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentlewoman from Florida (Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN) and the gentleman from California (Mr. LANTOS) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentlewoman from Florida (Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN).

GENERAL LEAVE

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on House Resolution 531.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentlewoman from Florida?

There was no objection.

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

(Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN asked and was given permission to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Mr. Speaker, tomorrow marks the sixth anniversary of the heinous terrorist act against the AMIA Jewish Community Center in Buenos Aires, Argentina. Six years ago, on July 18, 1994, a dark cloud of fear and anguish enveloped this South American city when 86 innocent human beings, including frail little girls and boys, were killed, and 300 were wounded as a result of the bombing.

However, 6 years later, Mr. Speaker, sorrow, despair and frustration still permeate the air. Six years later, justice, peace, and security continue to be elusive abstract concepts. But as Argentina's current president, Fernando de la Rúa, has stated, it is imperative to keep the memory alive, because forgetfulness is a shelter for impunity.

This leads to the primary reason why I introduced this resolution, to renew and redirect international attention in order to ensure that justice will be finally served. Further, this resolution serves to honor and remember the victims; to outline the evidence supporting the international and local connections to the bombing; to bring to the forefront reported attempts by elements of the Argentine security forces to derail the main investigation by hiding evidence and creating false leads.

The need to effectively address the alleged Argentine participation for this terrorist act was underscored by the de la Rúa administration in April of this year when it established a task force to look into the corrupt police officers and their possible role in the financing of the attack, in providing the vehicle used in the bombing. This task force will also pursue undeveloped leads and information regarding the international Iranian terrorist network which has orchestrated and carried out horrific acts against defenseless human beings.

It was clear from the onset that this attack and the earlier one on the Israeli Embassy were part of a campaign of violence targeted at the Jewish community in Argentina and throughout the world by radical militant groups in the Middle East. Circumstantial evidence would later support this connection, attributing the bombing to the terrorist group Hezbollah based in Lebanon and sponsored by Iran.

Additional evidence indicates that the tri-border area, where Argentina, Paraguay and Brazil meet, were used to channel resources for the purpose of carrying out this terrorist attack. Other circumstantial data indicates that this bombing could not have been carried out without local assistance from elements of the Argentine security forces. This link was supported by the indictment of 15 military and police officers, with five described as "necessary parties to the bombing" charged with multiple counts of murder, conspiracy and corruption.

The wounds will not begin to heal until the investigation into the AMIA bombing is pursued with vigor and determination and until effective action is taken by all to ensure that justice is served. The scars will serve as a constant reminder of the need for vigilance in our hemisphere, of the need for democratic countries to unite in condemning such horrid acts and work together to protect the right of every citizen in every society to live in peace and liberty free from the threat of terrorism.

This resolution is an important first step toward achieving that goal. It is a call to action. It sends an unequivocal message to all that the United States considers the resolution of this case to be a priority, that it is prepared to take the necessary steps to ensure this end, working both with regional neighbors as well as with the Argentine government, providing them with assistance when requested.

Six years have passed. We cannot wait any longer. It is time for the rule of law to be seen and to be heard in this important case. We cannot allow justice to be held captive by inaction.

For the sake of the victims, for the sake of hemispheric and global security, and for the sake of justice, I ask our colleagues to support this resolution today.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. LANTOS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, first I want to commend my very good friend and distinguished colleague from Florida (Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN) for crafting a very important, very powerful, and very eloquent resolution. And, of course, I rise in strong support of this resolution.

Mr. Speaker, a dark cloud hangs over the honor of Argentina. This neighbor of ours in this hemisphere has tolerated now two heinous terrorist acts, a terrorist act against the Embassy of Israel and the terrorist act against the Jewish Community Center in Argentina, to go unpunished for years.

The evidence is clear. Although the direct perpetrators are most likely to have been members of the terrorist group Hezbollah, supported by the Government of Iran, the complicity and participation of Argentinian police and security forces is beyond any doubt. This corrupt, far right-wing partnership with Islamic terrorism in our hemisphere cannot be tolerated.

I welcome the statement of the new president of Argentina assuring us that he will do his utmost at this late stage to bring the perpetrators to justice and to attempt to clean and clear the honor and reputation of Argentina. But we will not rest until these things happen.

Eighty-six innocent men, women and children lost their lives. Over 300 innocent men, women and children were wounded for no reason except their religious affiliation. There is no room in this hemisphere for terrorist acts of any kind, certainly for terrorist acts as hate crimes directed against various religious groups. It is long overdue for the authorities in Argentina to close this chapter, which is a chapter that has brought infamy to that nation.

Following the bombing of the Israeli Embassy, this bombing of a community center in the heart of Argentina brings back memories of the darkest days of the Second World War when innocent men, women and children, for no reason whatsoever, were massacred and murdered.

Argentina must come clean. The new President of Argentina now has an opportunity to instruct all authorities to pursue this case with diligence and determination. Until the perpetrators are brought to justice, a question mark will hang over the relationship of Argentina to all other civilized nations.

I commend my colleague, the gentlewoman from Florida (Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN), and I call on all of my colleagues to approve this resolution.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Nebraska (Mr. BEREUTER).

(Mr. BEREUTER asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BEREUTER. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of H. Res. 531, for it properly places the U.S. Congress on record in marking the tragic occasion of the sixth anniversary of the July 18, 1994, terrorist bombing of the AMIA Jewish Community Center in Buenos Aires. Eighty-seven people lost their lives, and 200 to 300 people were injured in that attack.

This Member thanks his colleague, the gentlewoman from Florida (Ms.

ROS-LEHTINEN), from the Committee on International Relations, the distinguished chairwoman of the Subcommittee on International Policy and Trade, for introducing this resolution.

Last year, the Argentine Congress passed important legislation that allows Investigating Judge Juan Jose Galeano to engage in plea bargaining. Nonetheless, the trial of the Argentinian citizens charged with complicity in this terrorist bombing has, regrettably, been much delayed.

During a recent visit to the United States, Argentina's president, Fernando de la Rúa, made a point of visiting the Holocaust museum and issuing a public apology for the role Argentina played in harboring Nazis during World War II.

President De la Rúa said, "Today, before you and before the world, I want to express my most sincere pain and to ask forgiveness that this happened, that Nazis were hidden among us."

Solving this terrible crime and bringing those responsible to justice is the proper way to bring healing to the still open wounds in Argentina.

Mr. Speaker, this Member urges his colleagues to join in unanimously supporting this resolution. Again, I commend my colleague the gentleman from California (Mr. LANTOS) for his outstanding statement and especially the distinguished gentlewoman from Florida (Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN) for her eloquent statement and for her introduction and able movement of this legislation to the House floor.

Mr. LANTOS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I want to thank my good friend the gentleman from Nebraska (Mr. BEREUTER) for his powerful and eloquent statement. I want to thank the gentlewoman from Florida (Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN) for her diligent and outstanding work on this issue.

I urge all of my colleagues to support this resolution.

Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I want to thank my colleague the gentleman from California (Mr. LANTOS) for his eloquent words, for his skilled leadership, and for his deep knowledge of history that has helped us to pass this resolution today. I also thank our colleague the gentleman from Nebraska (Mr. BEREUTER) for his constant support of all items worthy of support, and certainly our fight against terrorism is on that list. I thank the gentleman for that.

I also thank the gentleman from California (Chairman GILMAN) for his assistance in allowing this resolution to be brought up to the floor so rapidly.

Mr. Speaker, in conclusion, I would like to quote from Ambassador Aviran of Israel, whom I believe encapsulated the need for this resolution and for justice. He said, "Crimes that go unpunished are crimes that get repeated."

The time to act is now. Six years more should not be allowed to pass before the guilty are brought to justice.

I would like to especially commend the organization B'nai B'rith for its efforts on behalf of the Argentine Jewish community and on behalf of justice in this case. May that day of justice come quickly.

Therefore, I ask my colleagues to support House Resolution 531.

Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Speaker, this resolution properly places the U.S. Congress on record in marking the tragic occasion of the sixth anniversary of the July 18, 1994 terrorist bombing of the AMIA Jewish Community Center in Buenos Aires, Argentina. Eight-seven people lost their lives and two hundred people were injured in this attack.

I thank my colleague from our International Relations Committee, the distinguished chairwoman of the Subcommittee on International Economic Policy and Trade, Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN of Florida, for introducing this resolution.

I have long been interested in seeing that this heinous crime is resolved and those responsible are brought to justice.

Last year, the Argentine Congress passed important legislation that allows Investigating Judge Juan Jose Galeano to engage in plea bargaining. Nonetheless, the trial of the Argentinian citizens charged with complicity in this terrorist bombing has, regrettably, been unduly delayed. Six years is too long a time to let pass without justice.

When the local trial does finally get underway, I urge Argentina's authorities to invite and permit international observers to witness the trial proceedings.

During a recent visit to the United States, Argentina's president, Fernando de la Rúa, made a point of visiting the Holocaust museum and issuing a public apology for the role Argentina played in harboring Nazis after World War II.

President De La Rúa said, "Today, before you and before the world, I want to express my most sincere pain and to ask forgiveness that this happened, that Nazis were hidden among us."

I believe in President De La Rúa's sincerity and thank him for his important statement.

Solving this terrible crime and bringing those responsible to justice is the proper way to bring healing to the still open wounds in Argentina.

I urge my colleagues to join me in adopting this important resolution.

Mr. ACKERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H. Res. 531 and would like to add my voice to those marking the sixth anniversary of the cowardly bombing of the AMIA Jewish Community Center in Buenos Aires, Argentina. This searing event horrified the world and has, unfortunately, become a barometer for the political culture of Argentina.

While we commend the statements of interest and commitment made by President Fernando de la Rúa, I, along with many in this House, remain wary, in light of the six years of stumbling, ineffectual investigation and the reality of justice denied. The truth in this matter points unmistakably to elements within the Argentine state and unfortunately, this reality has been a source of delay and obfuscation rather than a catalyst for action by Argentine investigators.

In addition to this disturbing procrastination on the part of investigators to dig deep into the roots of official involvement, the search for justice in Argentina has also skipped lightly over the possible involvement of Hizbollah, Iran and Syria. Notwithstanding the myriad statements pledging an absolute commitment to the search for truth and justice, the reality of the Argentine investigation has been a half-hearted, poorly funded, undermanned, uninspired, slow-motion search for answers.

Mr. Speaker, six years ago in Buenos Aires, 86 people were killed and hundreds more were injured by a car bomb created and delivered by an unknown group of conspirators, who targeted their victims because of their Jewish faith. Cowardly and offensive, the bombing of the AMIA Jewish Community Center came little more than two years after the bombing of the Israeli embassy in the same city. By all accounts, Argentina's response to these two horrific crimes has been lackadaisical and disappointing. The victims of these crimes, old and young, male and female, deserve better than to have their quest for justice fade in a bureaucratic haze.

I want to commend my colleagues Congresswoman ROS-LEHTINEN and Congressman LANTOS for their excellent leadership on this important resolution, which I strongly urge this House to adopt. Putting the House on record on this matter is a vital step toward ensuring a genuine and effective investigation, and ultimately, a fair trial which provides just punishment for the guilty parties.

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. MILLER of Florida). The question is on the motion offered by the gentlewoman from Florida (Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN) that the House suspend the rules and agree to the resolution, H. Res. 531, as amended.

The question was taken.

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX and the Chair's prior announcement, further proceedings on this motion will be postponed.

RECESS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 12 of rule I, the Chair declares the House in recess until approximately 7 p.m.

Accordingly (at 4 o'clock and 41 minutes p.m.), the House stood in recess until approximately 7 p.m.

□ 1900

AFTER RECESS

The recess having expired, the House was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. SHIMKUS) at 7 p.m.

MAKING IN ORDER AT ANY TIME ON JULY 18, 2000, OR ANY DAY THEREAFTER, CONSIDERATION OF H.J. RES. 103, AUTHORIZING EXTENSION OF NONDISCRIMINATORY TREATMENT (NORMAL TRADE RELATIONS TREATMENT) TO PEOPLE'S REPUBLIC OF CHINA

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that it be in order at any time on July 18 of 2000, or any day thereafter, to consider in the House the joint resolution (H.J. Res. 103) disapproving the extension of the waiver authority contained in section 402(c) of the Trade Act of 1974 with respect to the People's Republic of China; that the joint resolution be considered as read for amendment; that all points of order against the joint resolution and against its consideration be waived; that the joint resolution be debatable for 2 hours equally divided and controlled by the Chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means, in opposition of the joint resolution, and a Member in support of the joint resolution; that pursuant to section 152 and 153 of the Trade Act of 1974, the previous question be considered as ordered on the joint resolution to final passage without intervening motion; and that the provision of section 152 and 153 of the Trade Act of 1974 shall not otherwise apply to any joint resolution disapproving the extension of the waiver authority contained in section 402(c) of the Trade Act of 1974 with respect to the People's Republic of China for the remainder of the second session of the 106th Congress.

Mr. Speaker, let me say that it is the intention of this unanimous consent request that the 2 hours of debate be yielded fairly between Members of the majority and the minority parties on both sides of this issue.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

PERMISSION TO FILE CONFERENCE REPORT ON H.R. 4576, DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 2001

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the managers on the part of the House may have until midnight tonight, July 17, 2000, to file a conference report on the bill (H.R. 4576) making appropriations for the Department of Defense for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2001, and for other purposes.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. SHIMKUS). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

SPECIAL ORDERS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 6, 1999, and under a previous order of the House, the following Members will be recognized for 5 minutes each.

ON THE NEED FOR MORE BORDER PATROL AGENTS ON AMERICA'S NORTHERN BORDER

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Washington (Mr. METCALF) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. METCALF. Mr. Speaker, I do not have to remind this House about the fine work of our border patrol officers. They put their lives at risk every day to slow the flow of illegal drugs into this country and to keep our border safe from dangerous aliens. Their work in helping to arrest a suspected terrorist near Port Angeles, Washington, last December was exemplary.

Due to the current inept management of the INS, however, the jobs of these officers are made much, much more difficult. Over the past two fiscal years, Congress has appropriated funds for the INS to hire 2,000 new Border Patrol Agents. The agency has failed to hire anywhere near that number, and the vast majority of the new agents they have hired have been assigned to the southern border.

There is no reason why northern border staffing should not be greatly increased. Since 1996, I have sent numerous communications to President Clinton, Attorney General Reno, and INS Commissioner Doris Meissner demanding a permanent end to the transfers of Northwestern Border Patrol Agents and urging higher staffing levels on the northern border.

Instead, Commissioner Meissner has recently ordered another reassignment of agents from the northern to the southern border. In addition, she has ordered every Border Patrol plane moved from the State of Washington. In a month's time, every plane along the entire northern border will be moved south.

A few days ago, in protest to these moves, the entire delegation from the State of Washington wrote to Immigration and Naturalization Service Commissioner Doris Meissner protesting her recent decision to transfer Washington State Border Patrol Agents and equipment to the Mexican border.

Ms. Meissner's latest raid on the northern border is unconscionable, especially because a July 8 story in the Seattle Times reports that "When Meissner made this decision, she possessed a confidential February report by the Department of Justice's Office of the Inspector General which determined that 'The 311 Border Patrol Agents along the northern border cannot adequately patrol the approximately 4,000 mile border with Canada.'"

The February report also notes that between 1993 and 1998, agents along the northern border were nine times more likely to encounter someone smuggling drugs and 14 times more likely to encounter someone smuggling weapons than agents along the southwest border.

Despite this overwhelming discrepancy, more than 95 percent of INS's Border Patrol Agents are on the southern border. In addition, INS Commissioner Meissner's decision to move personnel was made knowing that last year's arrest of suspected terrorist Ahmed Ressam highlighted additional reasons to maintain maximum coverage on the northern border.

I have also previously asked Commissioner Meissner to hire additional northern border agents, for which Congress has already appropriated the money. She has not only not hired additional agents, she has again relocated some of the few agents we have.

□ 2000

In addition, she removed all of the patrol planes from the Washington border. Most outrageous of all, it turns out she has made these relocations while refusing to release the contents of a Department of Justice report that specifically highlights the severe personnel shortages on the U.S.-Canadian border.

Relocating agents and equipment while hiding details of the dangerous understaffing problem at the northern border is a dereliction of duty. It is risky. It is wrong. It is irresponsible. If Commissioner Meissner cannot do an adequate job on our northern border, then we must get someone in the position who can.

UNITED NATIONS SECURITY COUNCIL ADDRESSES HIV/AIDS

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. SHIMKUS). Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, today I had the honor of joining the Ambassador of the United States to the United Nations, along with the gentlewoman from California (Ms. LEE) and the gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. MALONEY), in New York.

We were invited to witness a historic debate at the U.N. Security Council on an issue of peacekeeping and security addressing the question of HIV/AIDS. For the first time, the world voice, the United Nations, took a unanimous stand to fight HIV/AIDS in the peacekeeping forces around the world.

Although we applaud their bravery, we realize that the military personnel that travel from one developing nation to another without the proper education and training are in harm's way, not only in terms of war, but in terms of the devastation of disease. Based upon our work, we are delighted that this kind of effort was made on behalf of the United Nations.

Mr. Speaker, I yield to the distinguished gentlewoman from California (Ms. LEE) who has been the moving force on fighting AIDS in this Congress.

Ms. LEE. Mr. Speaker, let me thank the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE) for her leadership and also for her efforts in helping the orphans and the children of Africa who are suffering now as a result of their parents dying of AIDS. I thank the gentlewoman for her leadership.

We participated in a mission last year. During that time in Southern Africa, we realized that we had to come back and do something. We looked in the eyes of babies, and there was no way that we could let these children live like this without us at least trying to do something for them.

This morning, I had the honor and the privilege to participate with the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE) and the gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. MALONEY) in actually witnessing the United Nation's Security Council's historic discussion and vote regarding the importance of HIV and AIDS education and prevention as it relates to peacekeeping forces.

We all know that an ounce of prevention is really worth a pound of cure. We should be proud of the fact that our own ambassador, Ambassador Holbrooke, has and continues to take the lead in raising the moral concerns, the humanitarian concerns, and, yes, the security concerns of the AIDS pandemic. He has done remarkable work in little time to educate the world community; and that is, definitely, he has put forth and set forth a course to actually break the silence in the world with regard to this pandemic.

We were waging war on this. I am proud of the Congress in terms of our bipartisan efforts to wage war on this deadly disease. I think today the resolution that was passed by the Security Council really takes us one step forward in waging the battle that we must wage on this.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, might I say that the leadership of the gentlewoman from California (Ms. LEE) in the United States Congress, along with the amendment on debt relief offered by the gentlewoman from California (Ms. WATERS) and the gentlewoman from California (Ms. PELOSI) last week brought us to where we needed to be by adding $42 million back into the Foreign Operations appropriations.

I think it is important for the American people to understand that as the world is endangered by the devastation of the elimination of large populations by HIV/AIDS, we need to recognize here in America that we are fully impacted.

I know for many it seems as if we are looking distant, far away, but AIDS can be compared to the times historically of the bubonic plague when large numbers of Europeans were devastated and eliminated with this disease.

This disease is killing one in five in South Africa. Forty million children will be orphaned. I am very proud that the Ambassador to the United Nations joined in the causes with, first, the Vice President speaking before the United Nations, then our respective Senators, the gentlewoman from California (Ms. LEE), who has just returned from Durban, South Africa, to say that we really are in a war.

As we fight for peace, peace is intertwined in fighting against this devastating disease. I would hope that we will continue this effort. I thank the gentlewoman from California (Ms. LEE) for her leadership, and, of course, I applaud the United Nations for its effort.

REPORT ON RESOLUTION PROVIDING FOR CONSIDERATION OF A MOTION TO GO TO CONFERENCE ON H.R. 4810, MARRIAGE TAX PENALTY ELIMINATION RECONCILIATION ACT OF 2000

Ms. PRYCE of Ohio, from the Committee on Rules, submitted a privileged report (Rept. No. 106-752) on the resolution (H. Res. 553) providing for consideration of a motion to go to conference on any Senate amendments to the bill (H.R. 4810) to provide for reconciliation pursuant to section 103(a)(1) of the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2001, which was referred to the House Calendar and ordered to be printed.

TAKE BACK CONTROL OF URANIUM ENRICHING FACILITIES BEFORE AMERICA BECOMES DEPENDENT ON FOREIGN SOURCES FOR ENERGY

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. STRICKLAND) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. STRICKLAND. Mr. Speaker, I represent a district in Southern Ohio that is a part of the Appalachian area. I am very proud of my constituents.

Many of my constituents throughout the long years of the Cold War worked at a facility in southern Ohio which enriches uranium. During the early days of the Cold War, that facility enriched uranium which went into our nuclear weapons. In more recent years, that facility has produced enriched uranium necessary to create the fuel that produces the nuclear power generated in this country, the electricity through nuclear power.

Two years ago, this administration and this Congress privatized that industry; and just a few weeks ago, this new privatized corporation announced that it was closing the facility in my district, thereby terminating the employment of some nearly 2,000 men and women. These are individuals who have served our country well. Many of them have been exposed to dangerous chemicals and to radiation. They have developed cancers. Many have lost their lives.

Later on this week, Mr. Speaker, I am introducing legislation which will set in motion a process whereby this government can once again assume ownership of this industry. Why would I do this, and why is it important to the economic and energy security of our Nation? It is because some 23 percent of the electricity generated in this country is generated through nuclear power. Only two facilities in this country enrich the uranium which is necessary to produce the fuel for these nuclear power plants.

The direction of this privatized corporation troubles me. I am very concerned that their ultimate goal is not to be producers of enriched uranium, but simply to become brokers of enriched uranium. It is my concern that their ultimate goal is, not only to close my facility, but also to close the facility in Paducah, Kentucky.

If that were to happen, Mr. Speaker, this Nation would become totally dependent on foreign sources for at least 20 percent of all of the electricity that is generated in this country. We cannot let that happen. As a body, as a group of elected Representatives of the people, we must not allow ourselves to become dependent on foreign sources for a huge portion of all of the electricity generated within this country.

I am calling tonight upon my colleagues to join me in the introduction of this legislation. It is essential and necessary. We made a mistake when we privatized this vital industry. We made a mistake when we turned it over to the private sector who are not necessarily loyal to this country or to the objectives of this government. They are not necessarily loyal to the energy security need of this Nation. Their primary objective is to their investors and their stockholders.

I am deeply troubled, Mr. Speaker, that the individual that oversaw the privatization process, the individual who was the CEO of the public corporation before it became private, was dealing with a major, major conflict of interest. As a government employee, he was making approximately $350,000 a year. Once this became a privatized corporation, his salary skyrocketed to $2.48 million a year. Not only that, but he convinced the board of directors to give him a golden parachute of $3.6 million. If he is fired or he loses his job, he can walk away with $3.6 million.

The workers in my district, many of them who have served this country as Cold War warriors who have exposed themselves to dangerous conditions, are being terminated of their jobs, many with only weeks to go before they qualify for retirement. It is simply wrong. It is wrong for my constituents. It is wrong for this Nation.

I urge my colleagues to join me in the efforts to once again take over the ownership of this vital industry and protect our country from being so totally dependent on foreign sources for energy.

UNITED NATIONS SECURITY COUNCIL SEES HIV/AIDS AS GLOBAL CRISIS, NOT JUST A HEALTH PROBLEM

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. MALONEY) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mrs. MALONEY of New York. Mr. Speaker, I am really here to join two previous speakers, the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE) and the gentlewoman from California (Ms. LEE), who were with me today at the United Nations Security Council in New York where the United Nation's Security Council for the first time in history voted for a united effort and attack on the AIDS crisis in the world and saw it as a security problem, not just a health challenge before us. It recognized that HIV/AIDS is more than a health problem but actually a global crisis. It set a very important target to work towards the reduction of AIDS by 25 percent by the year 2010 in the age group of 15 to 24.

It was a very significant and groundbreaking action, but it is by no means an end. It is a beginning of many more steps that we have to take.

Earlier in January, I was there when Vice President GORE announced his support for this effort, and I applaud the leadership, not only of the Vice President, but of Ambassador Holbrooke who have worked with the Security Council to bring it to the vote today on this important resolution.

It will look at AIDS as a long-term and domestic policy. It will set up a tracking system around the world. It will focus on training and education around the world, but also on the peacekeepers, testing voluntarily the peacekeepers, and making them aware of the crisis and the harm that it can be to their own health and to many others.

I might add that this body has also acted to combat the AIDS crisis. The Department of Defense legislation contained $10 million to really work, in a joint effort, with military organizations around the world to educate and combat AIDS. Just last week, in the Foreign Operations bill, there was a vote of $244 million for USAID to combat AIDS.

I also applaud the hard work of the gentlewoman from California (Ms. LEE) on her "Marshal Plan" against AIDS, which was reported out of the Committee on Banking and Financial Services with strong bipartisan support with $100 million authorization for 1 year and $500 million over 5 years. That legislation is currently before the Senate. We hope it will likewise receive strong bipartisan support.

I wanted to join my colleagues in really applauding the first-ever action by the Security Council in recognizing AIDS as a health problem, a security problem in our new world of interdependence and globalization, in a very positive step that they took today in passing out this resolution which I will place in the RECORD as follows:

DRAFT SECURITY COUNCIL RESOLUTION ON HIV/AIDS

The Security Council,

Recalling its meeting of 10 January 2000 chaired by the Vice President of the United States, at which it was briefed the President of the World Bank, the Administrator of the United Nations Development Program, and the Executive Director of the Joint United Nations Programme on the connection between the spread of HIV/AIDS and peace and security in Africa,

Deeply concerned by the extent of the HIV/AIDS pandemic worldwide and by the severity of the crisis in Africa in particular,

Bearing in mind that it has the primary responsibility under the Charter of the United Nations for international peace and security,

Recalling in this context, the Statement of its President on the role of the Security Council in the prevention of armed conflicts (S/PRST/1999/34),

Reaffirming the importance of a coordinated international response to the economic, health, social, cultural and humanitarian problems which are often the root causes of armed conflict,

Recognizing that the adverse effects of the spread of HIV/AIDS on all sectors of society, including individuals, families, workers, political leadership, and the military, have weakened the capacity of affected countries to maintain domestic and regional peace and security,

Further Recognizing that the spread and impact of the HIV/AIDS pandemic is greatly exacerbated by poverty and lack of development,

Further Recognizing that the HIV/AIDS pandemic not only poses a threat to stability and security, but is also exacerbated by conditions of violence and instability,

Recognizing that HIV/AIDS poses a truly global risk to all continents and peoples both civilian and military, Expressing Concern at the damaging impact of HIV/AIDS on international peace-keeping operations.

Welcoming the March report of the UN Special Committee on Peacekeeping which affirmed the need to incorporate HIV/AIDS prevention training in aspects of the UNDPKO training for peacekeepers,

Welcoming the Report of the Secretary-General for the Millennium Assembly of the United Nations, and in particular, those sections where he notes that the spread of HIV/AIDS is a truly global crisis, that unless action is taken HIV/AIDS will be even more damaging in the future, and his call for coordinated and intensified international action to reduce the rate of new HIV infections by 25% by the year 2010,

Commending the efforts by UNAIDS to coordinate and intensify the work of the world's states and the UN organizations against the HIV/AIDS pandemic,

Commending the efforts of the United Nations Department of Peacekeeping Operations to address this issue, including providing HIV/AIDS prevention awareness information to peacekeepers through its train-the-trainers courses and materials:

1. Requests the Secretary-General ensure the provision of mission-specific training of all peacekeepers on issues related to the prevention of the spread of HIV/AIDS, and ensure the further development of pre-deployment and on-going training of all peacekeepers on issues related to the prevention of the spread of HIV/AIDS,

2. Urges all states to acknowledge the problem of HIV/AIDS directly, including in uniformed national military forces, and develop, in consultation with the international community and UNAIDS, effective civilians and military personnel on the prevention of the spread of HIV/AIDS,

3. Urges all member states to institute voluntary and confidential counseling and testing for HIV/AIDS for civilians and members of uniformed national military forces, especially for troops to be deployed to international peacekeeping missions, because of the proven effects of testing to reduce high-risk behaviors,

4. Further urges countries to increase international cooperation among national military organizations to assist with the creation and execution of HIV/AIDS prevention, testing and treatment policies within the militaries,

5. Requests the Secretary General ensure that UNAIDS cooperate with member states, including those states that contribute peacekeeping troops, to establish voluntary consultations and a database to track these countries' HIV/AIDS prevention education, testing, deployment, counseling and treatment policies,

6. Calls upon the leadership of all UN organizations to address the HIV/AIDS pandemic in the context of their organization's respective mandates and to adjust their organization's activities accordingly to ensure they are assisting wherever possible in the global efforts against the HIV/AIDS pandemic

Decides to remain seized of the matter and to continue to seek information and guidance on this issue from all appropriate sources.

CONGRATULATIONS TO REVEREND VASHTI M. MCKENZIE OF BALTIMORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. PITTS). Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CUMMINGS) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. CUMMINGS. Mr. Speaker, tonight I rise to salute and pay tribute to a friend, Bishop Vashti McKenzie, who was just elevated to be a bishop in the African Methodist Episcopal Church in Cincinnati just a few days ago. She is the first woman to achieve this high goal, and she is certainly very deserving.

Bishop Vashti McKenzie, whose church is within one block of my house in the 7th Congressional District of Maryland, for many, many years has labored in the vineyards of lifting up people, pastoring the Payne Memorial A.M.E. Church and being a wonderful, wonderful pastor, a wonderful wife, and one who has constantly been about the business of empowering not only her church members but her community.

Bishop McKenzie is a member of the Delta Sigma Theta sorority, and she has been a very active member and she has constantly done things within the 7th Congressional District to address the question of how to empower people. She recently spent a tremendous amount of time working with the banks in Baltimore trying to make sure that they were not redlining. She spent a tremendous amount of effort pulling together banks and making sure that their lending practices were consistent throughout the entire Baltimore metropolitan area.

But more important than that, even when she was not even considering running for the position of bishop, she constantly worked in the vineyards. I have often said that when one is unknown, unseen, unappreciated and unapplauded, it is what they do in those moments that really count. So I take a moment not only to salute Bishop Vashti McKenzie, but I also take a moment to salute the African Methodist Episcopal Church. There are so many churches that do not even want women to be pastors, and here is a church that not only have many pastors throughout these United States but has decided to elevate one of its daughters to be a bishop.

It is with great honor that I recognize and thank Bishop Vashti McKenzie for all of her work; and, Mr. Speaker, it is my pleasure to congratulate her for her accomplishments.

TAXES AND THEIR IMPACT

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 6, 1999, the gentleman from Colorado (Mr. MCINNIS) is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the majority leader.

Mr. MCINNIS. Mr. Speaker, I have just come back from the district, and I spent my entire weekend traveling throughout the district. Interestingly, the subject that came up time and time again were the death taxes. So this evening I am going to talk a little about taxes. I think it is a good forum for us to discuss really four basic taxes, and so I am going to address those with my colleagues here this evening.

The first, of course, is the death tax. I will go into some detail about what that exactly encompasses and why it is so punitive on the citizens of this country; why it is an unjust tax; why there is no justification for the death tax in our tax system; what it does to open space and to the preservation of open space in districts such as mine, the Third Congressional District of the State of Colorado.

Then I will move on and talk about the capital gains tax reduction that the Republicans put into place and what capital gains means as far as creation of capital and why it is critical for the economic well-being of our country.

From there, I will move on to talk a little about the marriage penalty. To the best of my knowledge, only in the United States of America, only in the United States of America do we tax couples because they are married. This, by the way, is the leading country in the world which advocates family. We advocate marriage. We want people to get together and tie that bond, the very basic entity of the family foundation which has made this country great. But Uncle Sam comes along, not to be left out of the game, and puts a tax on it. We will talk a little about that.

Finally, I also want to talk about our homes. Every homeowner, every one of our constituents, colleagues, who are homeowners out there in this fine country of ours, we need to talk about what happens when they sell that home for a profit; what used to happen and what now happens as a result of the Republican leadership. And, frankly, that was a bipartisan vote, but it is a Republican bill; and we will discuss what it did to those homeowners and how it helps homeowners in this country.

It has some bearing for every one of my colleagues in this Chamber because the majority of our constituents own homes. And in these good economic times, a lot of our constituents have the opportunity to sell their homes; or if they sell their home, they will sell it for a profit.

But first of all let us begin with the tax that I think is without justification, a tax which was initiated as a vendetta, as a way to get even with the wealthy families, the families who met success in America: the Fords, the Carnegies, the Vanderbilts, the Rockefellers.

Back then the feeling was, how dare those people make that much money; we have to figure out a way, without working for it, to take the wealth from them and transfer it to us, the Government, in Washington, D.C. What better approach than to put a tax on them on the day they die. The day that person dies, Uncle Sam will be at the door, right behind the mortician, except that Uncle Sam gets to collect before the mortician, by the way, on the death tax.

So we will talk a little about what this death tax means; how it impacts things in the environment, like open space in Colorado; how it devastates families who were brought up and who lived the American Dream; how everyone's dream, those my age, is to leave something for the generation behind them, and how that dream has been dashed; what the impact is for the generation ahead of me that wanted to leave something for this generation to get kind of a head start, how it has been demolished in many cases; and what the impact is of death tax transferring, spinning money right out of the community to be transferred, without work, without value, simply transferred from our local community to the bureaucracy in Washington, D.C. under the death tax.

One of the best articles I have read is out of a newspaper which I read on a regular basis, the Wall Street Journal. Excellent editorials, by the way, colleagues. I would urge all my colleagues to read those. It was interesting to me that the TV talk host, Oprah Winfrey, is quoted as saying, "I think it is irritating that once I die 55 percent of my money goes to the government of the United States."

Why is that irritating? Because that individual may have already paid nearly 50 percent. What Oprah is referring to is that the money being taxed upon that person's death, if that estate qualifies, is property upon which that individual may have already paid taxes on. It is not money that was put away in some little chuckhole somewhere and not had taxes paid on it. It is money, in many cases, that has been taxed not only once, but twice and sometimes three times.

Let me go on with her quote: "When you leave a house or money to people, then they're taxed at 55 percent. So you've got to leave them enough so once they're taxed they still have some money."

When we talk about taxes in a country, we have to look around the world. It is, after all, America that is the symbol of free enterprise. It is the dream in America that a person can start out and if they can figure out a better mousetrap, a better way of doing things, a product that will benefit the people, give value to the people, then that person is rewarded the fruits of their labor. That is the American concept.

Look at other countries. Look at some of the countries that have the reputations for high taxes in this world. Look at Switzerland. Not only Switzerland, but look at Germany, or look at Belgium. Even their death taxes are lower than the United States. Only one country that I can find in research, as cited by the Wall Street Journal article, Japan, has a higher rate than the United States.

Now, as my colleagues know, the administration, the President and the Vice President, as a team, are prepared to veto the elimination of the death tax. The U.S. House, by a bipartisan vote, meaning Democrats and Republicans, supported the Republican bill to eliminate the death tax. The Senators, both Democrats and Republicans, adopted the Senate bill, the Republican Senate bill, to eliminate the death tax. Yet this bipartisan effort will be vetoed in the next few days by the President and Vice President team.

A lot of us hoped, however, that they would just leave it alone. When we started this year, we were surprised when we got the President and Vice President's budget, which not only of course does not call for elimination of the death tax, it increases the death tax, and increases it by $9.5 billion. Today we are sending them a bill that will finally allow equity in regards to this, to eliminate it; but the President and the Vice President see fit to veto it.

Now, some of my colleagues or their constituents out there may say, well, that does not impact me, the death tax is only for the wealthy. Interesting statistic I saw the other day. The American Association of General Contractors pointed out that a contractor, somebody who wants to go out and dig some dirt, who purchases the three basic tools necessary to move dirt, a bulldozer, a dump truck and a front-end loader, that contractor in America that buys a front-end loader, a bulldozer and a dump truck, their estate is now in the status that it will be faced with the death tax upon their death.

Look, colleagues, this does not just apply to the wealthiest of Americans, this applies to a lot of Americans; and it applies to Americans who do not necessarily have high cash flow. This contractor who has a bulldozer, a dump truck, and a backhoe may have no cash flow, or their business is just breaking even, and upon the death of this contractor, the Federal Government comes in and they will crush that business because the only way that estate can pay that estate tax is to sell the bulldozer or sell the dump truck or sell the front-end loader. Now, how, as a contractor, when the business needs those three basic pieces of equipment, how can the business be operated with just two of the three? It cannot.

The same thing applies to ranchers and farmers, in particular, in rural America. My State, for example: Colorado, the district I represent, the Third Congressional District of Colorado, geographically larger than the State of Florida, essentially all the mountains of Colorado. Do my colleagues understand what is happening to our ranching community out there because of this death tax?

I wish the President's policy wonks and the Vice President's policy wonks would come out to Colorado and see what they are doing to open space. They are forcing it to go into 35-acre ranchettes because the family, who is part of a ranching operation, does not have heavy cash flow. In some cases, not even positive cash flow. When the head of the family passes away and the estate is activated for the death tax, what choice do they have? It is like the contractor who has to sell one of the three or maybe two of the three pieces of equipment.

It demolishes it. The contractor's business is gone. And that is what is happening to ranches in Colorado. Yet our President and Vice President decided that it was appropriate not only to have a death tax imposed upon all of us but to increase the death tax this year in their budget by $9.5 billion.

Let us go on with this article. I think it is very interesting. "Then there are casualties," speaking about the death tax, again from the Wall Street Journal, July 29, 1999, "then there are casualties in small business, particularly family businesses. Hardest hit are owners of asset-rich enterprises and areas like farming or timber that, while growing, may not throw off much cash. In theory, again, the law provides a break for these families. However, the reality is that prohibitive estate taxes force the heirs to dismantle their legacy to pay the taxes on it."

That is what is happening to Colorado ranches. That is what is happening to ranches all around this country. Let me tell you, the very wealthiest people in this country are the ones that can afford the legions of attorneys and accountants to figure out how to preserve that, but the middle class in America who does not have the money to acquire the attorneys and the CPAs for the protection of that estate are suffering.

Why should they suffer? It is one thing, we all have a tax burden. The citizens of this country acknowledge and know that we have to pay our fair share in taxes and the people who acquire these estates under the umbrella of the American dream they know they have to pay taxes and they pay them as they acquire their property. But then at the end, for the United States Government to step in through the door of death and say now that you have died it has become a taxable event, we all know what are taxable events. If you buy something at the store, you pay, it is a taxable event. If you buy a car, it is taxed, it is a taxable event. You get a license plate, it is a taxable event.

But the U.S. Government and the President and Vice President think that the policy should be that when you die, it is an event so remarkable that it should be taxed, so remarkable that it should be taxed, regardless of the impacts of what that tax does.

I have heard and I have read some editorials lately, not many, most of the editorials I read support doing away with the death tax, but I read a couple that say, hey, what are you talking about? All you are doing is hitting the rich people. How wrong those people are.

Interestingly, one of those articles I saw in the Wall Street Journal, and it was not an editorial but it was a guest comment; and I thought to myself, I wonder if the author of that article had ever been outside of the boundaries of the Potomac River to the farmlands and to the ranchlands and to the small businesses in America and asked those people what is it going to be like when mom or dad dies and you have got to pay estate taxes? What kind of impact does it have on your community?

Let us talk about that for a minute. What happens to the community? Some people as they write in these editorials think that the only impact is upon the family with whom the death occurred. My gosh, they need to open their eyes, my colleagues, because it goes much further than just the family that has the death.

I will give my colleagues an example. In my district, I had a friend of mine who lived the American dream, who went out with soil in his hand and worked it and worked hard; and he was rewarded through life. He figured out a better mousetrap. He figured out how to build a better road. He knew how to work harder. He knew how to count his pennies. And, as a result, he got the fruits of his labor.

Do you know what he did with the fruits of his labor, the money that he made? He made some money. Do you know what he did with it? He invested it in the community. He underwrote 75 percent of the local Episcopal church budget, 75 percent of it, every year. You could go to my buddy Joe and he would write the check. The United Way, the Cancer Society, the Lung Society, M.S., high school yearbook, you name it, Joe helped provide in that community. And it was money that Joe made but he kept in the community and it circulated.

Joe also gave people jobs. He hired people to work in his construction company. He hired people to help him on his land. And those people then took their money home to their families in that community. That money was important to that community.

And what happened when Joe died? Guess who comes in from Washington, D.C., as if they reserved a private jet just to fly into this small community in Colorado to go and smile over the deceased because it is a taxable event. They came into that community and they hit his estate, when you combine it with capital gains at a rate in excess of 80 percent, 80 cents on every dollar, and by the way, every dollar that had already been taxed at the time it was accumulated, any interest or investment or return since then was taxed, 80 percent on every dollar.

Do you know what happened to the 57 percent of the local Episcopal church budget that was underwritten? Gone overnight. Do you know what happened to your major contributions, to your charities and the community, the United Way, the Cancer Society, Lung Society? Gone overnight. Do you know what happened to jobs in that community that were there as a result of the investments that he made in that community? Gone overnight.

And yet our President and our Vice President are willing to stand down there and veto the elimination of this unjustified death tax. It is not fair.

I have a wonderful little niece. She is 2 years old. She has a way of crossing her arms and looking you in the eye and she says, "it's not fair." That is exactly what is happening here.

How can you justify in any regard other than the fact that you want to be vindictive against people who have been successful in our society, how can you justify a taxable event upon their death? How can you look at the surviving members of their family or how can we look at the young people, look at the 20-some-year-olds in this country who are out there working 60 and 70 hours a week, who have the energy that we all my age remember well, the opportunity to be something, the opportunity to make it your own way, you want it your way, make it your way, the American free enterprise system, only to know that your goal, and it was a goal I have had ever since my wife and I had our first child, it was a mutual goal, and that is we dedicated ourselves a certain portion of the hard-earned money that we made, and we are not wealthy, but the hard-earned money we made we dedicated a portion of that because we wanted the next generation to maybe have a home or maybe our son and daughter who wants to be a contractor and go out and buy those three basic pieces of equipment, a backhoe, a dump truck and a bulldozer.

Whoever dreamed when we were young and those were the days, whoever dreamed when those were the days that it would be the United States Government that, upon your death, would call it a taxable event and come in and take away the dreams that you and your spouse have had for a long time, take away the prosperity that a community enjoys?

Where does that money go? It spends right out of your community, right out of your family, right out of your estate. It spends East where and it comes to Washington, D.C., to be redistributed by the Government.

Is it fair? Of course it is not fair.

Let me go on. I am particularly addressing right now ethnic minority groups. It is worth noting that a good share of those people who are vulnerable are owned by two groups whom high tax leftists claim to protect, women and minorities.

A survey of black-owned businesses by Kenneshaw State College in Georgia found six in ten firms by women and minorities, six in ten firms reported that the estate tax makes the survival of their business after the current generation significantly more difficult or impossible. Close to a third of those people said their heirs would have to sell their businesses just to pay the taxes.

Let me read a few letters that I have gotten in my office that are right on point when we talk about the impact that happens by this Government upon its own people. Colleagues, it is happening to our constituents simply because they die and simply because they have lived the American dream and they have had success.

Now, look, if you want to be vindictive, if you are against people being successful, then I guess you are satisfied with this death tax. And apparently that is perhaps the policy of the White House, because they are going to veto a bipartisan bill, Democrat and Republican. Although it is a Republican bill, the Democrats voted for it, some of them; and in the Senate Republican bill, some Democrats voted for it. The President still chooses to veto it.

This gentleman is named Mr. Roberts. "My family has ranched in northern Colorado for 125 years. My sons are the sixth generation to work this land. We want to continue, but the Internal Revenue Service is forcing almost all ranchers and many farmers out of business. The problem is the death tax. The demand for our land is very high, and 35-acre ranchettes are selling in this area for as high as $4,500 per acre. We have many thousands of acres. We want to keep it as open space, but the United States Government is making it impossible because we will have to pay 55 percent of the valuation of that acreage upon my parents' death.

"Ranchers are barrel scrapping by these days, anyway. But since we want to save the ranch, we are in trouble. The family has been able to scrape up the death taxes as each generation dies up to now. This time I think we're done for. Our only other option is to give the ranch to a nonprofit organization. And they all want it.

"My dad is 90. We don't have much time left. We are one of only two or three ranchers left around this area. Most ranches have been subdivided. One of the last to go was a family that had been there as long as ours. When the old folks died, the kids borrowed money to pay the taxes. Soon they had to start selling cattle to pay the interest. When they ran out of cattle, their ranch was foreclosed on and is now being developed. The family now lives in a trailer near town, and the father works as a highway flagman.

"If you want to stop sprawl, you better ask the U.S. Government to get off the backs of family farms and ranches."

The next letter, Ron Edwards:

"Dear Representative McInnis,

I'm writing to bring to your attention an issue of utmost importance to me and my family, employees, and the businesses: elimination of the death tax. I urge you to support and pass the death tax repeal legislation this year. Family-owned businesses need relief from those death taxes now. We are celebrating 66 years in business."

Now, that is the American dream. That is the American dream, Mr. Speaker, 66 years in business. Six generations in this letter, six generations on the same ranch. Do my colleagues want to be a part of the team that ruins those six generations? Do they want to be a part of the team that comes in here after 66 years of business? Let me continue.

"My grandfather, Vic Edwards, started with a fruit and vegetable farm in 1933 at our location in Colorado. The business grew into a grocery store and then a lawn and garden center. My father, Vic Edwards, is 80 years old, and he is in poor health. No business can remain competitive in a tax regime that imposes rates as high as 55 percent upon the death of the owner. Our tax law should encourage rather than discourage the perpetuation of these businesses."

Let me repeat that. Our tax laws, Mr. Speaker, should encourage the continuity of these businesses, not discourage the continuity. This guy works in his family grocery store and that is what he is telling us, Mr. Speaker. He is saying we should encourage the continuity of these businesses, encourage them to go on, not destroy it.

If you support that death tax, you are going to destroy a lot of these family businesses. Leonard Harris, first-generation owner of a food center in Chicago, Illinois. His store is one of less than 20 African-American-owned supermarket companies in the United States. Mr. Harris has said, my focus has been putting my earnings back into grow the business. For this reason, cash resources to pay the Federal death taxes based on the valuation, the way valuation is made, would force my family to sell the store in order to pay the IRS within 9 months of my death. Our yearly earnings would not cover the payment of this tax. I should know. I started my career as a certified public accountant. So here is an African American, first generation in business, taking the cash flow, the profits out of that business, putting it back into the business to create more business, to create capital, to create jobs, to create an economic solid block in a community. Now he is saying, "Look, it isn't going to go beyond one generation if this government continues to put the death tax on us."

Rich Newman, Sr. Our company was founded in 1917 by Rich Newman's father and uncle and currently operates 33 grocery stores in Illinois, Missouri, Kansas and Iowa and provides jobs for 3,000 people. 3,000 people. When Rich's father passed away suddenly in 1969, the family was faced with a death tax of several hundred thousand dollars which by law was due within several months. The Newman family had to use all of the resources from the sale of the company's wholesale operations to pay the death tax bill. These proceeds could have been put to a better use by being reinvested in retail stores and new jobs. The sale of the wholesale side of the business provided the funds to pay the estate taxes. Now Mr. Newman, to preserve what is left of the business, has estimated over the years he has spent in excess of $600,000 just on accountants and CPAs to help him figure out how to pass that business on to the next generation without the death tax.

Brookhart Building Centers in Grand Junction and Montrose, Colorado. Those are two thriving communities in my district out in Colorado. Last September the Brookhart Building Centers had to be sold in order to avoid paying the death tax. The owner said that it was the hardest decision the family had made in 52 years of business. And it was a decision that was not brought on by their failure because maybe they did not work hard enough. The decision to sell was not brought on because they did not have a good product to sell. It was not brought on because they could not service the community. It was not brought on by dissatisfaction of consumers. It was brought on by the Federal bureaucracy in Washington, D.C. which decided that they are going to tax this family upon the death and they are going to break that business apart. Watt said the current death taxes forced his father to make the sale prior to his father's death in order to protect our family. Can you believe that? We have a constituent, colleagues, talking about in order to protect our family from the government, in order to protect our family from a death tax, from a taxable event which was put in in the early 1900s just as a vindictive tool to get at the Rockefellers and the Carnegies, in order to protect our family and our employees. Remember what I said about the community impact? To protect our employees, too, and our community from a forced liquidation upon the death of the father and the wife, Betty, the best thing now would be to sell the company. And it was sold.

Let me conclude with one other article and then we will move on to some other taxes. But listen to this. I do not like reading from scripts. But this is an important one. I hope you have the patience to listen to this. I think it is very moving. I think it shows you exactly how punishing, how punitive the death tax is and how unfair and how unjustified they are and how the President and the Vice President of this country with their policy can not only veto the bill, bipartisan bill to get rid of it, the President and the Vice President have actually proposed raising the death tax by 9.5 billion in their budget they proposed. This came out of the Aspen Times.

There are lots of tales to be told about the conversion of former ranches into luxury homes or golf courses throughout the valley. Sometimes it was a simple financial decision, a choice to take advantage of soaring development values in the face of plummeting cattle prices, but for other families the passing of a parent meant the passing of a way of life. Listen to that sentence, colleagues. But for other families, the simple death of a parent meant the death of a way of life. The death of a parent meant the death of a way of life for the whole family. We have been around a long time, said Dwight. The family roots are dug deep along Capital Creek Road in Old Snow Mass and for nearly a century, heritage and hard work were enough to sustain those who lived on our 13-acre stretch of land. But it all changed. Until Dwight's father's death, each generation, each generation in that 100 years, presided over a working cattle ranch which was both the lifeblood and the livelihood of the clan, the Monron clan. His later years were lean times for Dwight's father but the fate of this ranch was not at risk until the government came around to collect its due on the death of Dwight. The tax bill came to $750,000. And what it took to pay the bill was this. We had to sell half the ranch, the ability of the Monron cattle to migrate in the winter months in 10 years, until we were able to pay our final last installment. What those taxes took was also something very vital, the ability of the next generation to support their family by working the land that had been theirs for such a long, long time.

So the government came in and not only took the money but they took away the future ability of this family to continue ranching operations. It is just like the contractor. If you come in and you have the three pieces of equipment, the bulldozer, the dump truck and the backhoe and you take one of those pieces of equipment away, you can no longer function as a construction operation. What those taxes have done to our family is exactly that. Now one of our heirs works full time as a mechanic, the son, works full time as a mechanic for the school district and then works on the ranch when he gets home at night. He doesn't mind the long hours he has to put in. What does get under his skin is the memory of how IRS agents overseeing his father's taxes either didn't recognize the devastation that was about to occur or didn't care. It was just pay us or we'll seize everything. If anything's left over, you can keep it, or if you can't make ends meet on what's left, you can hit the streets. He has no intention of selling the remaining 640 acres but he wonders if his daughters will be willing to go through what he has gone through just to keep the ranch intact. With only half of the land to graze and falling beef prices, the ranch itself is only making enough to cover its operating costs and annual property taxes. It is the day job at the school district that pays the doctor bills, the car insurance, the grocery bills and everything else. There has always been hope that things will change before his daughters have to make decisions. But he wonders if people really think about the permanent changes that take place when the ranch is sold. It's not just a loss to the family, it is a loss to the community. It is a loss to the people who work on that ranch. There are some movements in the right direction but are they moving quickly enough? Because once our land is sold to developers, it is gone forever. It will never again have the integrity of a ranch.

That is what your estate, those death taxes are doing. Some of you out there, colleagues, who are supporters of the death tax and claim to be guardians of the environment, well, you are not doing it in rural America because in rural America you are costing us, you are forcing us to develop those communities. By now you should have drawn the conclusion, I hope, that the death tax is fundamentally flawed. There is no basis for it. There is no justification for it. The only reason really it came about were two reasons: One, vindictively to settle a score with the wealthy people. It was jealousy in my opinion that drove it. And, two, the government as usual looks for an easy way to take money without earning it and transfer it to somebody else who did not work for it. Remember that every time you give a dollar to somebody that is not working, you are taking it from somebody who is. Every debit has a credit, every credit has a debit. That is exactly what we are doing with this death tax. We ought to, every one of us to the person in these chambers, ought to stand up to the President and the Vice President of this country and say, sign the bill to eliminate the death tax, Mr. President and Mr. Vice President. Quit standing by and letting our small businesses, our family ranches and our family farms be destroyed. Quit standing by, Mr. President and Mr. Vice President, with this policy and letting our communities, our minority communities who are now finally getting the opportunity, the fair opportunities that should have been given to them a long time ago only to find out now that the very government which espouses its push for affirmative action and equality and so on and on forth is the very one who steps in on the day of death and says, come here, we want the money, we want the money to transfer.

Let us move on to another tax I want to visit with you about. This one you will feel good about. It is a big break if you own a home. There are a lot of young people out here today. Our country now has homeowners that I think probably are the youngest age in the history of our country, or certainly in recent years. I mean people in their 20's, early 20's are able to buy a home, and economically it is probably the largest investment most of those families will make during their lifetime. Let me show you what happened in the past if you sold that home for a profit.

We will just take a couple of examples here. Let us say as an individual you have bought a home for $100,000 and over time you sold the home, let us say 10 years later you sold the home for $350,000. So your profit, and this applies to every homeowner in the country, your profit if you own a home was $250,000 and you were taxed on $250,000, although you could defer the tax by rolling it over into a home of greater or higher value or if you were over, I think, 62, you got a once-in-a-lifetime exemption I think of $125,000. We felt that this was punitive. Let me say to you, I am not up here to get in a partisan battle. But the Democrats, frankly, you could have gotten rid of that death tax a long time ago, and you could have done something when you held control for 40 something years on these home taxes. But I am proud to say you joined us, you joined the Republicans in doing away with this tax. In my opinion, this tax break on the profit of your home when you sold it is probably the biggest tax break that you have seen in our tax structure, I would guess in the last 15 years.

How so? We changed the law completely. It is the Republicans' position that, sure we need to have taxes, we do not disagree with taxes. But we believe we are under a fiduciary duty to take the taxes that are necessary to give you the functions that you demand. But beyond that, we think you should have the tax back. The money in your pocket works a lot more effectively than the money back here. Take, for example, if you won the lottery and you won $2 million, do you think for one minute, any one of my colleagues out here, that you would take that $2 million and send it to the government in Washington, D.C. to invest? Of course you would not. Or even to distribute. Of course you would not. If you wanted to give it to the poor people, would you send your money to Washington to be distributed to the poor people? Of course not. Because of the inefficiencies we saw in the government. So what we did is we put in a tax bill. Let us take the same example. The individual, again, buys the house for $100,000, again sells the home for $350,000, realizing a profit of $250,000. Under our bill, which became law, it is the law today, this is not a hope, it is not a dream we are hoping for, it is here. The Republican tax break passed. Your taxes today, zero. The amount you were taxed on before, $250,000. What we have said today, and everyone out there who owns a home, listen up, colleagues. Any of you that own a home now under our tax law as a result of that Republican bill, and I am proud of it, I am proud as a Republican to say we did this, now as a result of that, you get to take the first $250,000 of net profit, not gross profit, of net profit from the sale of your home per person. So, remember, most homes are owned by individuals.

In those cases, it is $500,000, the $250,000 per person doubled, $500,000, we get to take the first $500,000 of our net profit. I said net income, I meant net profit, I stand corrected, of your net profit; and we get to put it into your pocket taxfree. That is great.

Mr. Speaker, that is a tremendous tax benefit that many, many people in this country do not realize; but, colleagues, every time we go back to our districts, we should tell homeowners, which are most of the people that we represent, we should tell them what an opportunity now exists out there for them. They are not going to be penalized when they sell their home at a profit up to $500,000.

The benefit of what we did in this bill is it is renewable every 2 years. If we have a colleague outside of maybe Vail or Aspen, Colorado, where we have really escalating profits, or the Hamptons, most people are not going to make that kind of money every 2 years, there is maybe an exception here and there; but the reality of it is, this is a blue collar working family, middle income, lower income tax break of significant portions. I am very proud of that.

Mr. Speaker, keep that in mind, any of my colleagues, any of our constituents that we hear, they are saying we are selling our home or we are getting ready to move or we may have some constituents that say to us, we are getting ready to buy a new house; and in a lot of those cases, they are also selling their old house.

We ought to take just a moment and explain to our constituents what a great tax benefit they have ahead of them. In fact, they do not have to roll it over. It goes straight to their pocket. By the way, unless our constituent takes that money and digs a hole and puts it in the ground, that is the only exception, unless that happens, the money then will regurgitate in the community; they will take their money; they will put it in the bank. The bank will loan it out or they will take their money and build a bigger and better house, so we will have contractors and workers going. That money circulates.

The beauty of this tax break, the big beauty of this tax break is it keeps the money in your community; that is one of my issues with the death taxes. The death tax, taxing death as an event takes the money from your local community and moves it east to Washington, D.C. This took money from your local community and moved it from your community east to Washington, D.C.

This law that we have passed and if the President and Vice President will sign the repeal of the death tax, it will keep money in your community. It will be money that will be used for our local charities, not for the national ones. It will be money that will keep local people employed. It is money in your community. It spends in your community. It is worth it.

MARRIAGE PENALTY

Let me talk for a moment about something else, the marriage penalty. Can we believe it? I mean, can we really believe it that in the United States a country that prides itself upon encouragement of family, that talks about the great foundation, accurately talks about the great foundation of our country is family, and yet this government always is looking for a taxable event, always trying to figure out how to put another tax on us. They figured out well, we take them on death. Guess what else, there is another ceremony.

Mr. Speaker, I think they look at ceremonies. There is a ceremony called a wedding. Let us go ahead and put a tax on a marriage. That certainly is a good way to espouse family relations; that certainly is a good way to encourage people to be married and living as a family unit. Our government actually penalizes people for being married. They tax them for being married.

We have had a long time to change that. It has not changed. Again, I stand proud as a Republican. One of our priorities was to eliminate not just the death tax, not just give a break on the sale of your home, which is now a law, but also to go out to those people that are being taxed as a result of being married and say this is a mistake in policy.

We are not above ourselves to admit that Washington sometime back made a mistake. Washington should have never taxed the marriages. Washington should not have a death tax. The House tax was excessive. Let us get rid of the marriage tax. I was surprised that we would have opposition to that.

I was also surprised that we had no votes on the repeal for the death tax. Frankly, I was shocked that the President not only did not oppose eliminating the death tax, but also proposed a $9 billion increase. We actually had people on this floor back to the marriage tax who opposed it who said we ought to be penalized.

Mr. Speaker, remember, here we are, we are penalized at death, and now when we get married on that great day. We have a bill working its way through. We have a bill which will take the eraser to the death tax, that will be in front of the President in the next 3 or 4 days. He has promised to veto it, unfortunately. I hope we all remember the President's and the Vice President's policy is to support the death tax.

We also have another bill making its way down to the White House, and that is to eliminate the marriage penalty. We want to get rid of the marriage penalty. Now, the President also has promised to veto on that; although, in the last few weeks the President and Vice President said let us make a deal, kind of like the movie show, "Let Us Make a Deal," we go ahead and support a brand new massive spending program for prescription care in this country. It is a massive obligation of taxpayer dollars, billions and billions and billions of dollars, and we will be fair and eliminate the marriage tax penalty. No deal; no bargain.

The marriage penalty is a tax that is not justified. It should not be there. The same way with the death tax; no deal. It is not right. It is not fair. It is not justified. Stand up, Washington, D.C., and have enough gumption to say these things are not good tax policy. It does not work out in theory, and it does not work out in reality.

I would urge the President and the Vice President to change their policy. I would urge the Vice President and the President to repeal, to get rid of the death tax, join Republicans, by the way, Democrats, join Republicans and Democrats in the House of Representatives and then in the United States Senate to get rid of the death tax. Join Republicans on the Republican bill, Democrats in both the House and Senate to get rid of the marriage penalty.

I say to the President and the Vice President that the President down there has an opportunity to change it; do not play let us make a deal. On its face, standing alone the marriage penalty is fundamentally flawed, and obviously the death tax is unfair.

CAPITAL GAINS TAXATION

Let me, with my remaining time, speak about another issue, and that is called capital gains taxation. Now, capital gains taxation really used to be a description that we applied to the wealthy people who had lots of investments. Those were the ones that made the so-called capital gains.

Guess what has happened? The small, little things happened in the last few years with the economic boom; a lot of people in America are now facing capital gains. There are mutual funds. There are retirement funds, the sale of their land or the sale of investments. Investments in this country are not restricted to the upper class or to the wealthy. And more than ever in the history of our country, the middle class and even the lower-income class are now making investments, monetary investments.

Mr. Speaker, we felt that in order to encourage this, that is what creates capital, not taxation, taxation does not create capital. Taxation is simply a transfer from your pocket to the Government's pocket. What creates capital is us out there plowing a field or making a product or delivering a service, but we felt the encouragement out there was being disassembled by a punitive tax called the capital gains tax. That tax was at 28 percent.

Mr. Speaker, 28 cents on every dollar, 28 cents out of every dollar that we made on the sale of an investment went east to Washington, D.C.; that is right where it went. We felt that tax was too punitive. We felt the tax should be eliminated.

If we eliminate the tax, what happens to the 28 cents? The 28 cents, it does not go to Washington, D.C. No, it stays in your community. It stays at home where it is going to be invested, where it is going to create jobs.

We had to have negotiations on this. The President would not agree with us, the President and the Vice President. They would not go with our bill of no capital gains, and we had to have their signature or enough votes to override the veto which we did not have. So we made a compromise. We at least have gotten this far. We dropped the 28 cents to 20 cents.

Mr. Speaker, that does not sound like a lot, but wait until we sell our investment and the tax, the IRS comes knocking on your door, all of a sudden 8 cents on the dollar savings, it adds up. It makes a difference.

Now, our goal is not to be satisfied with the 20-cent capital gains, because capital gains, the taxation itself simply is not a creation of wealth, it is a transfer of wealth. Again, it moves the money from our community to Washington, D.C.

Our idea, and we will not stop until we get to this point, our idea is eliminate the capital gains taxation, so when we make money on our investment we send zero dollars to D.C.; we keep all of the money, all of it, 100 percent of it in our community to invest in new projects.

I will give my colleagues an idea. There is a farming family in New Castle, Colorado, a good, good, family. I was out visiting them not long ago, actually, about 3 or 4 years ago. I remember to this day what the father said. He said, You see those fields, Scott. He said they are not being worked, they are being wasted. He said, by all rights, there should be a young couple, a couple that has just gotten married, 23, 24 years old, a kid or two, and they want to work the land. There should be a young couple working on that land up there.

He said, But because of the capital gains taxation and the government, because of the taxing policy of the government, I cannot afford to sell it. So as a result, that land sits empty, and that young couple will never have the opportunity that my wife and I had many years ago when the ranching generation or farming generation ahead of us allowed us to go up and work the field, allowed us to have our turn with our hand in the soil. It makes a difference.

Let me wrap up this evening with the time that I have remaining telling my colleagues why I talked about taxes. I am so focused on what is good at the local level, at the community level. Our Federal Government is important, and we have to finance the Federal Government to operate. But we have seen over the years a vast expansion of what the Federal Government is expected to do in our lives.

We have seen a dramatic dilution of individual responsibility; and more than that, we have seen a focus shifting government from the local level to the Federal level and a lot of that follows tax dollars. I think that the best government is the government at the communitywide level, at the State level.

Obviously, we need to have that Federal Government; but our real focus of power in this country should be at the local level, not the Federal level. In order to do that, we need to come up with policy that encourages money to stay in the community, that encourages money that stays in the community to create capital, not take the capital from the community in a transfer transaction and send it to Washington, D.C. for redistribution, because the dollar that goes out of our community, one, is a transfer, it is not a creation. The dollar that goes out of our community will never come back to our community as a dollar; some of it is necessary.

We need a national defense. We need a national commerce system. We need a national highway system. We need a commitment to education. We need a commitment to certain health care with closely defined parameters; but we also need to recognize that taxes, if they are unfair, are punitive or if they are in the excess, then we ought to have enough courage to stand up to the American people.

By the way, it is not an act of courage. It is a fiduciary responsibility of all of us in these Chambers to stand up and say, hey, we collected too many tax dollars. We are overcharging our constituents.

It is a fiduciary duty of us to stand up and say, is it right, colleagues, for us to tax people because they are married? It is a fiduciary responsibility on our part to stand up and say, is it really a taxable event because somebody dies and they leave property that has been taxed and taxed already? Is that a taxable event?

It is a fiduciary responsibility of ours to stand up and say, gosh, does the 28 percent capital gains rate really make sense? Does it really encourage American free enterprise? Does it encourage those young people, those couples just starting out, individuals starting out in their early twenties, does it really encourage them to be prosperous?

Remember, when our people in this country are prosperous, our country as a whole is prosperous. If our local communities are prosperous, then our States are prosperous. When our States are prosperous, the Federal government is. It makes sense to keep those dollars in the community.

In conclusion, Mr. Speaker, I urge all Members tomorrow to pick up a phone and call the President and the Vice President and say to them, Mr. President and Mr. Vice President, they need to listen to the American people. Let us get rid of this death tax. Death should not be a taxable event. Hang up the phone, pick it back up and call them back, Mr. President and Mr. Vice President, it is not fair to tax people in this country for being married. Regardless of the ramifications to the dollars coming in, it is fundamentally not fair to tax on death and it is fundamentally not fair to tax on marriage. It is a big difference. We have an obligation to be fair to the people we represent.

I hope all Members take me up on that challenge and make every attempt they can to persuade the President and the Vice President to change their policies and not veto our bipartisan effort to eliminate the marriage penalty, and to not veto our bipartisan effort to get rid of the death tax.

THE NEED OF SENIOR CITIZENS TO HAVE A MEDICARE PRESCRIPTION DRUG BENEFIT

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 6, 1999, the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. PALLONE) is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the minority leader.

Mr. PALLONE. Mr. Speaker, I would like to call the attention of the House this evening, as I have many times, to the need for senior citizens to have a Medicare prescription drug benefit.

I do not really think it is necessary tonight to go into the reasons why this is necessary. We all know that the price of prescription drugs continues to rise, that seniors as a particular group have tremendous out-of-pocket expenses, and that many of them do not have access not only not under Medicare but in general to any kind of prescription drug insurance.

Many times seniors have to make choices between whether they are going to pay their bills, the rent, buy food, as opposed to having access and being able to buy prescription drugs that are really important for them to survive, for them to be able to live a decent life and to not have to worry about whether they are going to be here the next day. The President, President Clinton, has made it quite clear that this is a major priority if not the number one priority for him.

I listened to the previous speaker, the gentleman from Colorado, talk about the marriage penalty, the estate tax repeal. I would remind my colleagues and the American people that the Republicans are in the majority. It is very difficult for us as Democrats to get a proposal up and considered unless the Republicans who are in the majority allow that, allow us to bring it to the floor.

The President and myself and most of the Democrats have not been happy with the marriage penalty repeal and the estate tax repeal that the Republican leadership has proposed, not because we do not want to see changes with regard to tax on married couples, not because we do not want to see changes in the estate tax, because we have proposed changes, but the President has said and the Democratic leadership has said that the bills that the Republicans have proposed essentially spend too much and spend too much on a small percentage of the people impacted by the estate tax who are very wealthy, whereas the Democratic proposal protects the small business owner, the ranchers, the people, the overwhelming majority that are paying the estate tax. The same is true for the marriage penalty.

But the President is making an effort to try to get something accomplished around here, because I think most people know that not a great deal is being accomplished in this Congress. The Republicans, my colleague, the gentleman from Colorado (Mr. MCINNIS) brings up his proposal for the marriage penalty, his proposal for the estate tax. It differs from the Democratic proposal, so we do not come to agreement. Nothing gets accomplished.

What the President has said is, Look, I will take some form of estate tax repeal, I will take some sort of adjustment in the marriage penalty that benefits the average person, but along with that we want the Republican leadership to agree to provide a Medicare prescription drug plan, the one that the President and the one that the Democrats have proposed.

I ask my colleagues, not only my friend, the gentleman from Colorado (Mr. MCINNIS), but my colleagues in general, what better way to try to accomplish something, what better way than to take some of the Republican proposals and take some of the Democratic proposals, particularly this one on prescription drugs, and try to accomplish that goal?

In fact, last week when we voted on the Republican marriage penalty legislation the Democrats proposed a motion to recommit that would do just that, that would even take the Republican plan, as long as the Medicare prescription drug proposal was added to it. And, of course, the Republicans rejected that and nothing was accomplished.

If we are going to accomplish anything, we have to work out things together. The most important thing for the Democrats, certainly one of the most important things for the Democrats, is that we get a Medicare prescription drug plan passed so our seniors have access and everyone is covered; just like they are covered now by Medicare for hospitalization, for their doctors' bills, that they get a prescription drug benefit. It is absolutely crucial that that happen, and certainly we can afford it if we all get together and figure out how to deal with this budget.

I wanted to point out that, unfortunately, when the Republicans a few weeks ago proposed a prescription drug program and had a vote on the House floor with regard to their prescription drug program, which is not part of Medicare, that they would not allow the Democratic proposal to be considered. Once again, we were shut out. Once again, the Democrats were told no, they do not even want to consider our proposal on the House floor.

What are they afraid of? I think their problem is that they are afraid that if we look at the Democratic plan, which seeks to include prescription drugs within Medicare, that ultimately there would be overwhelming support for it with the American people and probably even within the Republican caucus among the Republicans here as well, if they only had a chance to vote on it; to have the opportunity for us to be heard and to explain it and to finally have a vote.

What the Republicans have done instead is they decided maybe a month ago, I actually have an article that was in the June 15 New York Times, about 2 weeks ago or maybe 3 weeks ago they asked a pollster to do a poll. Basically the pollster came back, this was Glenn Bolger, a pollster with Public Opinion Strategies, a Virginia firm, and warned the House Republicans that the prescription drug issue was a political problem for them.

In other words, they realized that politically if they ran for reelection in November and they did not have a prescription drug plan of some sort, that they would probably be defeated and would no longer be the majority here in the House of Representatives.

So Mr. Bolger basically told them that the best thing to do is to at least start talking about the prescription drug issue, talk about how seniors are negatively impacted, seniors suffer, and we have to do something about the problem.

In fact, Mr. Bolger went so far as to advise, and I quote from this New York Times article on June 15, "It is more important to communicate that you have a plan than it is to communicate what is in the plan." Basically what Mr. Bolger said is, "Look, come up with some rhetoric, if you will, about prescription drugs, suggest some sort of program, but do not worry too much about what is in it, or certainly do not worry about whether it will ever pass or be signed by the President. Just bring something up on the floor of the House and vote on it, talk about it, and nothing will ever happen, but at least you will have something. You can say you approved something, so when you go to the voters in November you will have something to say."

This is the impetus, if you will, for the House Republican prescription drug plan called the Medicare RX 2000 Act. It is an illusory plan. It provides no real prescription drug coverage to anyone, to seniors or anyone. Instead, what it does is it says, "We will give you some money, depending on your income, and you can go out and see if you can get, with your own money and the little bit that we subsidize, see if you can get a drug company to sell you a prescription drug-only policy."

Think about that a minute. We have this great program called Medicare that was started in the sixties and that almost all seniors take advantage of which provides for their hospitalization, which provides for their doctor bills, most of their doctor bills to be cared for.

Instead of doing what the Democrats say, which is just bring prescription drugs under the rubric of Medicare and administer it essentially under Medicare, which is a proven program, instead, the Republicans say, no, go out and see if you can get a private insurance company to sell you a drugs-only policy.

Now, what the Republican leadership forgot to tell anyone is that the insurance industry itself does not want to sell those policies. We had representatives from the insurance lobby that came to the Committee on Commerce, that has jurisdiction over Medicare prescription drugs, and they basically told the committee, we do not want to sell these drug prescription policies. We will not sell them.

There is a good reason why they will not sell them: They cannot make any money. It is like some of my colleagues use the analogy of a haircut. Everybody gets a haircut. Everybody who is a senior, or at least 99, 95 percent, needs some kind of prescription drugs. So insurance companies do not want to underwrite something that is essentially a benefit that everybody is getting because they cannot make any money. They operate on risk. They assume some people will get coverage and others will not, and they pool their resources, and they make money because some people do not take advantage of the benefit.

We cannot do that with prescription drugs with seniors. Almost everybody is going to have the benefit and need the benefit. That is certainly why it makes sense to include it as a benefit under Medicare. Just like we include hospitalization and we include doctor bills, we include prescription drugs as a benefit.

Let me just talk a little bit about the Democratic proposal and explain really how very simple it is and why it makes sense.

Right now if one is over 65 and signs up for Medicare, which almost everyone does, they get their hospitalization through Part A, and if they pay a monthly premium of about $45 or so, they get their doctor bills paid for mostly under Part B.

What Democrats are saying, "We will do the same thing. You pay a certain amount per month and we will set up a program called Part C or Part D of Medicare whereby we will pay a certain percentage of the prescription drugs," just like they get their doctor bills paid for.

What the Democrats say is that we will guarantee the benefit. Not only will we guarantee the benefit through Medicare if they want it, if they voluntarily sign up for it like they do for Part B, but it covers all the medicines that are medically necessary as determined by their doctor, not the insurance company. So they sign up, they are guaranteed the prescription drug benefit, and the nature of what kind of drugs they get, what kind of medicine they get, is determined by their physician in consultation with them, not by the insurance company.

Now, the Republican bill not only is not under Medicare, not only will not work because what insurance company is going to sell it, but beyond that, they do not even say to the insurance company what they have to cover. The insurance company, if they decide to sell a policy, they may decide, well, we will give certain drugs and we will determine what prescription drugs they need. They do not define what the benefit is, is essentially what I am trying to get across.

But most important, the Republican proposal, which just says, go out and shop around and see if you can find an insurance company that will sell you a policy, does not address the issue of price. We know that one of the major problems right now with prescription drugs is that seniors who do not get prescription drug coverage through their pension or their employer after they retire, or because they may sign up with an HMO, if they have prescription drug coverage, that is the way they usually get it. But if one has to go out and buy prescription drugs themselves because one does not have an HMO or coverage through their employer where they have worked over the years, they pay a much higher price for the drugs than the HMO or those employer pension benefit plans because they do not have the ability basically to negotiate a price.

Well, what the Democrats are saying is we are going to address that price issue, too, because we are going to say that the agency that is in charge of the Medicare program can negotiate a price or at least can set up in different regions of the country someone who will negotiate a better price for you because now there are so many people in the Medicare program, 30 million, 40 million seniors who these drug companies essentially we are at the mercy of, because if they want to sell them and sell to the government program, they have to offer the better price that they are offering to the HMO or to the employer benefit plan.

So the Democratic plan basically operates under the rubric of Medicare, is voluntary if one wants to sign up, guarantees one the benefit, guaranteeing all medical care, medically necessary drugs as determined by one's physician and also seeks to address the problem of price.

The Republican bill does none of the above. Frankly, I would say that the Republican proposal would never work and is nothing more than an effort to try to talk about something and try to give the impression that they care.

But most important, going back to what I said initially, the Republican proposal passed the House of Representatives, but it is not moving in the Senate. The President is not going to sign it. Why do we not try to get together, Democrat and Republican, and come up with a proposal like what the President has suggested where we have the Medicare prescription drug program, and then we address the issue of the marriage penalty and the estate tax in a way that benefits the average American.

Now, I wanted to, just in case my colleagues doubt that when I talk about this Republican proposal for prescription drugs to be doomed to failure, there was a very interesting article that appeared, I think it was the Saturday before last, July 8, in the New York Times on the front page which talked about the Nevada experience.

I think a lot of my colleagues know that what often happens in Congress is that one or more of the 50 States tries something within their own State to see if it works; and if it does, then Members usually from that State look at the idea and say, gee, that is a good idea, why do we not try it on the Federal level.

Well, interestingly enough, within the State of Nevada, within the last 6 months, they decided to implement, on a State level, something that is almost exactly like what the Republicans propose for a prescription drug program here; in other words, basically giving some money, depending on one's income, that one will put with whatever other resources one has to go out and buy a prescription drug only insurance policy.

It has not worked. Not only when I say it has not worked, I do not mean that it even has a chance at working, because when the State of Nevada put out this proposal to the insurance company and said, okay, we will entertain proposals from insurance companies to sell this kind of insurance, not one single insurance company in the whole State offered to do it.

I think they had one company that did not qualify under the law for some reason that asked to do it, and the State knew that they were not qualified to do it, so they did not consider it. But not one insurance company that was qualified offered to do it.

Now, what better reason could one have to not adopt that type of a program? But what do the Republicans do here in Congress? They see the Nevada example, which was adopted by Republicans, their Republican Governor, and they seek to enact it into law here.

Usually what we do in Congress is, if the States are doing something that is good, we copy it, and we institute it on a national level. I cannot think of a single circumstance where we had a State try something that failed and then we adopted it anyway. It makes no sense to me other than going back to what I said before, which is the Republicans did not really want to pass something that would actually be enacted into law and become a law and actually be utilized by anybody. So they did not. They just wanted something to talk about.

I wanted to, just interesting, if I could, just quote a little bit from this New York Times article. But this was in the New York Times on July 8 of this year, about a week or 2 ago, and I am just going to read from a few quotes here. I do not usually like to quote, but this is so appropriate.

It says, "Nevada has adopted a prescription drug program for the elderly very similar to one approved last month by the United States House of Representatives, but is off to a rocky road."

"Insurance companies have spurned Nevada's invitation to provide coverage. The risks and the costs are too high, they say, and the subsidies offered by the state are too low."

Nevada's experience offers ominous lessons for Congress, especially Republicans, who want to subsidize insurance companies to entice them into providing drug benefits for elderly and disabled people on Medicare."

"In March, the State invited hundreds of insurance companies to bid for its business providing drug coverage for 10,000 to 14,000 people age 62 or older. Only one company responded, but it was ineligible because it was not licensed to sell insurance in Nevada."

Now, what they did in Nevada is, within the legislature, they set up a task force that was going to review whatever proposals came forward by insurance companies to see if they qualified.

Barbara F. Buckley, a state assemblywoman who co-chairs this task force monitoring what was going on said, "I have my doubts that an insurance company will be able to offer meaningful drug benefits under this program. If an insurance company does bid on it but the benefits are paltry, senior citizens will be up in arms."

The article goes on and on. But the point is well made. This does not work. No insurance company wants to offer it. This is a ruse. This is a sham. This is not a serious effort to address the issue.

The Democrats have a serious plan. But we do not have an opportunity to bring it up. We will continue to be here every night until we have that opportunity.

Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Maine (Mr. ALLEN) who really, more than anybody else in the Congress, brought this issue to the forefront and particularly pointed out the problem with price discrimination that exists for many seniors and the problem of, because he is in the State of Maine, and he so witnessed it firsthand, about how people will go over into Canada and be able to buy drugs for significantly less than in the United States. That is simply not fair.

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from New Jersey for yielding to me, and I thank him for all the good work he has done on this issue. He has been a real leader and has been sort of pounding away.

We have learned, have we not, since our time here in the Congress that the status quo is the status quo, and it is very hard to change. It only gets changed if people speak out again and again and again about an injustice until something is done about it.

While the gentleman from New Jersey was talking about the State of Nevada, and its failed effort to rely on private insurance companies to provide prescription drug coverage, I was reminded how proud I am of my home State of Maine, which has taken a different tact.

Basically what the State of Maine did in the last legislative session through the leadership of Chellie Pingree, a State Senator, Mark Lawrence who is running for the U.S. Senate, and some others, was to adopt a law which provides that the State of Maine will negotiate lower prices for all of those people, seniors and others, who are not now covered with prescription drug insurance of one kind or another. So about 300,000 people in Maine would be covered under this plan.

The way the law is written, the State would essentially act as what is called as a pharmacy benefit manager. They would negotiate prices with the pharmaceutical industry to get a reduced price based on the fact that they represent 300,000 people, the kinds of discounts that Aetna and Cigna and United negotiate for their beneficiaries, and the kind of discount that I have suggested we really should do for Medicare beneficiaries here.

The bill I have introduced, H.R. 664, the Prescription Drug Fairness for Seniors Act, is very simple. It involves the creation of no new bureaucracy. It does not involve any significant expenditure of Federal money, but it would allow pharmacies to buy drugs for Medicare beneficiaries at the best price given to the Federal Government. The best price is usually what the VA pays for drugs or what Medicaid pays for drugs for people who qualify for their programs.

It is real simple, a real simple idea. If one is part of a big pool, one ought to get a decent discount. That is all we are suggesting for Medicare beneficiaries. But that is only through that piece of legislation. But that is only part of a solution.

The other part of the solution, of course, is to get a real Medicare reform, a benefit under Medicare so that those people for whom a discount is not enough would be able to get assistance in covering their prescription drugs.

Basically, the Maine legislation is a path that would get discounted prices for our seniors without a significant cost to the government.

I was listening earlier to some of the commentary from folks on the other side of the aisle about tax cuts, tax cuts, tax cuts, how, with this huge new surplus, we really need to, first thing, is to have tax cuts, tax cuts larger than any we have seen certainly in my lifetime here in the Congress. We see them in a variety of different proposals.

A year ago, the Republican majority came to us with a suggestion for a tax cut that was $800 billion. Now they have carved it up into pieces, but the total is still $800 billion. What is really tragic about this proposal is, not that there are tax cuts themselves, because there should be tax cuts. We ought to eliminate the marriage penalties. We ought to reduce the estate taxes. We can provide relief in a number of other ways. But we should not take the whole on-budget surplus and spend it all on tax cuts.

Why? Because we learn something, we teach our kids something that we hopefully learned ourselves; and that is, when we have responsibilities to others, we need to meet those responsibilities before we give ourselves presence. What I mean by that is this, Medicare is going to be under increasing pressure. Right now, there are 39 million Medicare beneficiaries. But when we get out to about 2030, there will be close to 75 million to 80 million Medicare beneficiaries. At that point, it is obvious Medicare needs to be shored up. It needs more funding. We cannot get there just going along the way we are right now.

The real tragedy, the real tragedy, in New Jersey, we see it all across this country, and I am glad that people from Maine pointed it out to me so long ago now, too many seniors just cannot do it. They cannot take their prescription drugs. While folks on the other side of the aisle are talking about an estate tax repeal that would benefit primarily the 1 percent of the wealthiest taxpayers in the country, though I believe we should have estate tax relief, still our priority ought to be let us take care of those people who simply cannot afford to take the medical care that their doctors tell them they have to take.

Every day in this country, people are trying to decide, can I afford to buy the food I need today? Can I afford to pay the electric bill? Can I afford to pay the rent? Or can I somehow scrape together enough to take the full dosage of the prescription drugs that I am supposed to?

When I talk to people in Maine, many of them are taking one pill out of three. They are cutting pills in half. They are not filling their prescriptions, because they cannot do it.

That is not what health care is supposed to be like in this country. It is not supposed to be like that. In this country, one would have thought, the wealthiest country on earth, at the moment in its history when it is most prosperous, we could at least provide prescription drugs for our seniors.

The truth is we can. There is no question, with the surpluses that are projected, that we can provide a Medicare prescription drug benefit for our seniors. Absolutely no question.

What have we got? We have got the kind of proposal that went through here a few weeks ago on a three-vote margin, not even close to a bipartisan approach, that basically said, what we need to do for our seniors for prescription drugs is turn them over to HMOs and insurance companies; and if we give enough money to the HMOs and insurance companies, maybe, just maybe, we will not require it, but maybe, just maybe, they will provide insurance for our seniors.

Now, this might seem logical except that the insurance industry says, no, there is no way we are going to provide insurance for prescription drugs for seniors. No way. That is what Chip Kahn, the head of the Health Insurance Association of America has said. Leaders of the Blue Cross plans have made the same point. Why? Because everybody is a claimant. If one is a senior, the chances are good, 85 percent, that one is on some form of prescription medication. So everybody is a claimant.

I say to people in Maine, if Maine were a low-lying State, and every year 85 percent of the people made a claim for flood insurance, one would not be able to buy flood insurance in Maine, not at all, not at any price. Well, the same is true for prescription medication for seniors, and the health insurance industry knows that.

Who does not know it in this country? Well, the pharmaceutical industry does not know it because the pharmaceutical industry is out there basically promoting this private insurance scheme. The Republicans from this House do not get it either, because they are basically proposing a plan that the health insurance industry is saying we will never comply with, we will never provide this kind of insurance.

I come back to what I said about responsibility. This country at this moment in its history can afford to provide prescription drug coverage for seniors, not to pay for all of the drugs that every senior needs, but a decent health care plan. We can afford it.

And what holds us back, what holds us back is the view of the majority that the one thing we cannot tolerate in this country is strengthening Medicare; the one thing we cannot tolerate is strengthening a government health care plan for our seniors. It has to be done through the private sector.

Well, look at the private sector. I do not know in how many States this is true, but I know it is true in a lot of places; but as of July 1, 700,000 people in this country who had some form of prescription drug coverage through their HMO simply got dropped by their HMO. Why? Because it was not profitable to cover them.

In Maine, there were a grand total of 1,700 people under Medicare managed care, under an Aetna plan. And as of July 1, Aetna announced they are pulling out of the State of Maine. So there will be no coverage under managed care plans in Maine for seniors who need prescription drug coverage.

What that means for my State is probably about 50 percent of all the seniors in Maine have absolutely no coverage at all for their prescription drugs. And many of the people that I know are supposed to take $200, $300, $400, $600, $1,000 a month in prescription medications. They cannot begin to do that.

What we have in this country now is a rationing system that rations prescription drugs by wealth, by how wealthy we are. What kind of system is that? It is not fair, it is not right, it is completely antithetical to what we should have in terms of health care for our seniors in this country.

People can stand up here and talk about the need to eliminate what they call the death tax. I am not talking about relief, because I think we need relief for our small businesses. I think we need relief for family farmers. I think the rate should come down, and I think the exemption should go up. Reform is one thing, but repeal is another. What repeal does is put Bill Gates and Steve Forbes and the megabillionaires in this country ahead of people who today cannot afford their prescription drugs, cannot afford the medication that keeps them out of the hospital, that extends their lives, that improves their lives. They cannot do it.

We are stuck in this Congress. We are stuck because the majority simply cannot abide strengthening Medicare. The majority simply cannot abide having Medicare benefits receive the same kind of discounts and benefits that the people who are lucky enough to have private health insurance through Aetna or Cigna get. And there are lots of complaints about health care in this country. Individuals working for a company that provides a quality health care plan, they get their prescription drugs covered. But seniors, 12 percent of the population, buy a third of all prescription drugs, and somewhere between 40 and 60 percent have either no coverage at all or very inadequate coverage.

We need to act. We need to act this year. There is no reason why we cannot. The Democratic plan was a comprehensive plan that would have provided a benefit, would have provided a discount, would have worked, did not rely on insurance companies saying they would not do anything. That plan should have come to this floor and been debated, the way substitutes to Republican legislation normally is, but the Republican majority would not allow a full debate and vote on that particular issue. I think that is the scandal. That is the real scandal.

We have a responsibility here to take the most serious problems in this country and deal with them. We ought to be thinking about the country as a whole, what will strengthen this country; what will be the best for our citizens; and deal with our responsibilities: to improve Social Security, to strengthen Medicare, to provide a prescription drug benefit, to invest in education, and, sure, to have some targeted tax cuts and to pay down the debt. Do not squander this moment of prosperity simply on tax cuts, which inevitably are weighted to wealthier people in this country.

There is a real choice, a real debate going on in this House right now, and it seems to me that what we are trying to do on the Democratic side is live up to a wide range of responsibilities. We are trying to figure out what is best for all of us, all Americans, all the people in this country together. We are not saying, as the other side is, me, me, me. Give me money. We are saying we. We are saying we have got to hang together. And when we have our parents and grandparents unable to buy, unable to take medication that their doctors tell them they have to take, we ought to do something about it. And we ought to do it this year, now, before we go home.

I thank the gentleman very much for all he is doing on this topic. I still hope, I still hope that as we get closer to November that we will have some of our colleagues on the Republican side come forward with a plan, and not a plan that is a showpiece, not a plan that is just there to basically look like something has been done even if it is not understood, but a plan that will mean something to millions of American seniors who today simply cannot take the medication they should, cannot eat well, cannot pay the rent, cannot do all those things that they expected to do in their retirement years.

So I thank the gentleman very much.

Mr. PALLONE. I want to thank my colleague from Maine. The gentleman mentioned a number of things that I wanted to comment on. The tragedy is, of course, that what we really want to do is get something done around here. That is what the gentleman has said and that is what the Democrats have been saying.

I do not know if the gentleman was here earlier when our colleague from Colorado delivered his special order before me; but I think, as my colleague just mentioned, he talked about the marriage penalty and the estate tax, and I do not think the President could be more plain when a couple of weeks ago he said, look, I will take a version of the marriage tax penalty repeal, and I want to eliminate the estate tax for most of the people that are now paying it, so give me that with the prescription drug plan under Medicare, that the gentleman and I have been talking about; and I will sign it as one big package, which accomplishes all these goals in one fell swoop. But the Republicans will not do it.

The only reason I can think that they will not do it goes back to what the gentleman said before, which is, for some reason, ideologically they just do not like Medicare. When Medicare was started by Lyndon Johnson in the 1960s, with a Democratic Congress, most of the Republicans voted against it because they said it was government-controlled or socialism.

Obviously, this idea of prescription drug-only insurance policies is not going to work, because the insurance companies would not sell them. But even if they did, what we would essentially be doing is privatizing Medicare. We would set the stage to go back to that old Republican ideology that says that we should not have any kind of government health program for the seniors. So who is to say they would not next say, okay, let us privatize the doctor bills. Instead of having a part B, seniors can go out and buy insurance coverage for that. Or let us privatize hospital care, so go out and buy insurance for that.

It is a very dangerous precedent. I just think that they have a problem with the Medicare program.

Mr. ALLEN. If the gentleman will yield once again. I find talking to people in Maine, where we have had a number of changes, and I hear about this from other colleagues here in the House as well, by and large, there are a lot of mergers going on in the health care insurance industry. Lots of mergers. We are getting now to about five major companies plus the Blue Cross plans, and that is about all there is in terms of companies that really represent more than 4 or 5 million people in this country. But what happens every time there is a change, and this happened with my parents and other people I know, it throws the seniors into a position of trying to figure out what to do next.

If they have to change their health care plan, the first question that comes up is, well, will a new health care plan allow me to see the doctor I am seeing now. Sometimes yes, sometimes no. It is that kind of change, where the benefits change and the premiums change and the way claims are handled changes that just really frustrate and upset so many seniors.

Not to mention, not to mention the small business people and the self-employed in this country who are now buying catastrophic coverage only because they cannot afford the cost of health care, of group health insurance, or sometimes individual insurance, which is now vanishing from Maine as well. But what I am really troubled by is costs are going up everywhere. And it is one thing for people who are employed to cope with those changes, but it is another for seniors to try to cope with the constant changes with changes in plans, with being pushed off one insurance plan into another plan, if they can find it, for supplemental coverage, I mean, and it is just too much. It is too much.

Medicare works. Its administrative costs are 3 percent. Turn to the private insurance market, and we are talking administrative costs of roughly 30 percent. Medicare is efficient. Now, one of the strengths of Medicare is its stability and predictability and equity, and one of its weaknesses is it has not changed very often, and there are all sorts of problems with it. I do not disagree with that. But it is there. It does not cover only those people in urban areas. It covers every senior in this country who signs up.

Basically, it provides the equity. It can be strengthened; it can work. We simply need to make it work before we go home.

Mr. PALLONE. One of the things I was looking at in that article that talks about the Nevada experience that I quoted before, it is interesting, I just noticed that Nevada is the only State that has gone this route of trying to get to buy private insurance. It mentioned there are 14 States, including my own State of New Jersey that have programs to help older people obtain prescription medicines, but in every one of those cases the State is the insurer. The State is running the program. Just like Medicare, essentially. Obviously, Nevada's proposal does not work, so why would we want to emulate that when the other 14 States are doing the opposite?

The other thing the gentleman pointed out, which I think is real important, is we actually have some statistics about the HMOs that are quitting Medicare. And, of course, we make the same argument as Democrats. Right now, the HMOs, which is a form of private insurance that a lot of seniors have relied on to get their prescription drug coverage, they are pulling out all over the place. This study that came out, I guess within the last couple of weeks, said that in the last 2 years, HMOs have pulled out of more than 400 counties and at least 33 States, directly affecting 734,000 Medicare beneficiaries.

And they say that as of July 1, or I guess it is July 3, which was the deadline when they had to notify if they wanted to get out by January 1 of 2001, we have Cigna, which I think the gentleman mentioned, Cigna Corporation is ending coverage for 104,000 Medicare beneficiaries, including those in my State. They are dropping 4,800 in northern New Jersey alone, not just the whole State. And Aetna, with 676,000 Medicare beneficiaries, said it would pull out of some markets also. And we have to, I guess, get more information about that. So we are getting hundreds of thousands of seniors that were relying on HMOs to provide their drug coverage that are now canceling.

One of the things I hear from the Republicans is, they say, well, we want to give seniors choice. That is what we want to let them go out and buy private insurance because they will have choice. But even for seniors who are in HMOs now, or who have employer plans that they are getting it through after they retire, we provide under other Democratic proposal for the majority of the prescription drug costs for those plans. It is anything from like 51 percent to 70 percent, depending, that we are going to be paying for by the Federal Government under our proposal.

So I would argue they will have more choice. Because the bottom line is they will have no choice with the Republican plan, because no insurance company will provide it. With us, if they want to stay in their HMO or if they want to stay in their employer plan, they are more likely to offer it because we are going to be paying anywhere from 50 percent to two-thirds of the cost. So to argue that somehow we are not providing choice, we are providing choices, lots of choices, in addition to the fact that they can just stay in their regular Medicare and get the prescription drug plan.

So I am more and more convinced every day that the Republicans are just talking, going back to that original pollster memo. They are not really serious; they are just talking about it. And that is basically it.

I wanted to thank the gentleman for joining me. This is certainly not the last our colleagues will hear from us. We tried last week to put our prescription description drug plan on the marriage penalty, and we are going to try every maneuver we can to get it up here and voted on before this session is completed.

JOINT EXPLANATORY STATEMENT

The managers on the part of the House and the Senate at the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 4576), making appropriations for the Department of Defense for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2001, and for other purposes, submit the following joint statement to the House and the Senate in explanation of the effect of the action agreed upon by the managers and recommended in the accompanying conference report.

The conference agreement on the Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 2001, incorporates some of the provisions of both the House and Senate versions of the bill. The language and allocations set forth in House Report 106-644 and Senate Report 106-298 should be complied with unless specifically addressed in the accompanying bill and statement of the managers to the contrary.

Senate Amendment: The Senate deleted the entire House bill after the enacting clause and inserted the Senate bill. The conference agreement includes a revised bill.

DEFINITION OF PROGRAM, PROJECT, AND ACTIVITY

The conferees agree that for the purposes of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985 (Public Law 99-177) as amended by the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Reaffirmation Act of 1987 (Public Law 100-119) and by the Budget Enforcement Act of 1990 (Public Law 101-508), the term program, project, and activity for appropriations contained in this Act shall be defined as the most specific level of budget items identified in the Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 2001, the accompanying House and Senate Committee reports, the conference report and accompanying joint explanatory statement of the managers of the Committee of Conference, the related classified annexes and reports, and the P-1 and R-1 budget justification documents as subsequently modified by Congressional action. The following exception to the above definition shall apply:

For the Military Personnel and the Operation and Maintenance accounts, the term “program, project, and activity” is defined as the appropriations accounts contained in the Department of Defense Appropriations Act. At the time the President submits his budget for fiscal year 2002, the conferees direct the Department of Defense to transmit to the congressional defense committees budget justification documents to be known as the “M-1” and “O-1” which shall identify, at the budget activity, activity group, and subactivity group level, the amounts requested by the President to be appropriated to the Department of Defense for operation and maintenance in any budget request, or amended budget request, for fiscal year 2002.

CONGRESSIONAL SPECIAL INTEREST ITEMS

The conferees direct that projects for which funds are provided as indicated in the tables or paragraphs of the Conference Report in any appropriation account are special interest items for the purpose of preparation of the DD Form 1414. The conferees also direct that the funding adjustments outlined in the tables shall be provided only for the specific purposes outlined in the table.

ITEMS ADDRESSED IN SUPPLEMENTAL ACTS

The recently passed Military Construction Appropriations Act, 2001 (Public Law 106-246), included the Emergency Supplemental Act, 2000 for the Department of Defense. This Supplemental addressed shortfalls in military personnel, recruiting, advertising, and retention by providing a total of $134,400,000 in the Military Personnel accounts, and $373,000,000 in the Operation and Maintenance accounts. In this Act, the conferees have agreed to include a total of $50,000,000 for “Military Personnel, Navy”, also designated as emergency supplemental appropriations in Title IX of this Act.

PERSONNEL UNDEREXECUTION SAVINGS

The conferees recommended a total reduction of $243,800,000 to the Active Military Personnel accounts due to lower than budgeted fiscal year 2000 end strengths, and differences in the actual grade mix of officers and enlisted recommended in the budget request. The General Accounting Office estimates that the active components will have approximately 3,500 fewer personnel on board to begin fiscal year 2001, and as a result, the fiscal year 2001 pay and allowances requirements for personnel are incorrect and the budgets overstated.

Force Structure Changes

The conferees recommend a total of $160,000,000 in the Military Personnel and Operation and Maintenance accounts for force structure that was not included in the budget request, as follows:

ADDITIONAL READINESS FUNDING TO ADDRESS SERVICE SHORTFALLS

The conferees note that, in addition to the funding recommended in title II of this Act, the conference agreement includes additional fiscal year 2000 emergency supplemental appropriations in title IX, reflecting critical readiness shortfalls identified by the Chiefs of the Military Departments and addressed by the House during its consideration of H.R. 1398 (Emergency Supplemental Appropriations for fiscal year 2000). These emergency appropriations include $529,000,000 in the services' Operation and Maintenance accounts, including $234,000,000 for depot maintenance, $250,000,000 for real property maintenance, and $45,000,000 for readiness spares kits.

OVERSEAS CONTINGENCY OPERATIONS TRANSFER FUND

The conferees direct the Secretary of Defense to provide the Appropriations Committees and the General Accounting Office reports identifying contingency related expenses no later than 30 days after the end of each month for which contingency costs are incurred.

BIOMETRICS INFORMATION ASSURANCE

The Conferees include in this Title of the bill $7,000,000 for Army, $3,000,000 for Navy, and $3,000,000 for Air Force, and include $12,000,000 in Title III of the bill for Army, all to support the efforts of Army as Executive Agent to lead, consolidate, and coordinate all biometrics information assurance programs of the Department of Defense (DoD), pursuant to the June 12, 2000 United States Army Report on the Biometrics Project (Report) prepared at the request of the Committees on Appropriations, and direct that the near-term and long-term implementation plan defined in the Report be implemented.

Recognizing the concerns expressed in the Report and elsewhere regarding social and legal issues associated with the uses of biometrics in the Government and private sectors, the Conferees support a comprehensive, in-depth legal and social assessment of the issues associated with the current and near-term uses of biometrics in the United States, to include plans for long-term monitoring of human biometrics uses, which are expected to increase substantially, and further recommend that this assessment be initiated as soon as practicable, pursuant to the Report.

To reduce lease costs and to support operating capability of the Biometrics Fusion Center by Fiscal Year (FY) 2004, the Conference recommended that the funds appropriated for this program in FY 2000 be made available immediately to develop specifications and requirements, not later than June 30, 2001, for the acquisition, via lease, of space suitable for the Biometrics Fusion Center Final Operating Capability in accordance with the Report.

INTEGRATED TRAINING AREA MANAGEMENT

The conferees understand that commanders are consistently reporting reduced ITAM funding as a training readiness issue in the Monthly Readiness Report. Therefore, the conferees recommend an increase of $5,100,000 for ITAM and direct the Army to realign additional resources in order to fully fund the ITAM program.

TACTICAL MISSILE MAINTENANCE

Of the amount provided for Operation and Maintenance, Army, specifically depot maintenance, the conferees direct that $48,300,000 be applied to Army Tactical Missile Depot Maintenance requirements, to include ground support equipment, at its organic public depots.

REAL PROPERTY MAINTENANCE

The conferees observe that the Army has reallocated $1,100,000,000 of its operational training funds during fiscal years 1997 through 1999, and failed to meet tank mile training goals by an average of 20 percent. The Army cites that training resources were moved to other operation and maintenance programs such as real property maintenance. The conferees have provided significant real property maintenance and Quality of Life Enhancement resources to the Army for fiscal year 2001, and expects the service to execute the training plan and budget proposed in the budget request. The conferees direct the Army to allocate real property maintenance resources, by major command, at levels not less than those provided in Senate Report 106-298.

UNDERUTILIZED PLANT CAPACITY

The conferees are aware that the Office of the Secretary of Defense has directed the Army to study the scale and capacity of the arsenals and ammunition plants, in an effort to mitigate the need for further cash subsidies. The Army shall provide this report to the Appropriations Committees no later than September 15, 2000.

INDUSTRIAL PREPAREDNESS

The conferees do not agree to reductions as proposed in the House and Senate versions of the bill to the Industrial Preparedness subactivity group in Operation and Maintenance, Army.

AIR BATTLE CAPTAIN

The conferees direct to the Secretary of the Army to submit to the Appropriations Committees a detailed recruitment plan, specifically addressing the Air Battle Captain program, within sixty days of enactment of the conference report.

ENHANCED SKILLS TRAINING PROGRAM

The conferees understand that the Army has decided to terminate the Enhanced Skills Training Program (ESTP) for students at Historically Black colleges and Universities (HBCU) and to replace it with a distance learning program. Because of the historic role that HBCU's have played in integrating the Army, the conferees direct the Army to maintain through fiscal year 2001 the ESTP as configured during fiscal year 2000. To better understand the benefits of ESTP, the conferees directs the Army to provide a report to the congressional defense committees not later than October 1, 2000, on its long term plans for its partnership with HBCU's in preparing students for the Army.

OPEN BURN/OPEN DISPOSAL PRACTICES

The conferees are aware of public concern regarding possible health risks to civilian populations associated with the open burning/open detonation (OB/OD) of munitions and equipment at Army depots at various locations in the U.S. Most of these risks are believed to be associated with airborne gases, particles and other contaminants carried downwind of the burn/detonation sites. The Army is directed to study potential alternative closed disposal technologies that do not release into the atmosphere and to report to Congress no later than September 30, 2001 on the possibility of phasing out OB/OD in favor of closed disposal methods. The report should include a review of technologies currently in existence and under development and assess the cost and feasibility of constructing facilities employing those technologies.

MEDIUM GENERAL PURPOSE TENTS

The conferees direct that $14,000,000 of the funds provided for Operation and Maintenance, Army be made available only for the purpose of meeting prospective requirements for modular general purpose tents (MGPT) associated with wartime and other mobilizations as described in the report accompanying the House-passed Department of Defense Appropriations bill for fiscal year 2001. The conferees also note that the Department has refused to fully obligate previously appropriated funds for the program, citing a lack of firm direction from the Congress. The conferees therefore believe it necessary to clarify their strong support for the MGPT program, and direct the Secretary of the Army to expend the full amount of Operation and Maintenance, Army funds designated for MGPT in the fiscal year 2000 Department of Defense Conference Report without further delay.

TACONY WAREHOUSE SITE

The conferees direct that of the funds provided in Operation and Maintenance, Army, $5,000,000 shall be available only to demolish the Army's Tacony Warehouse depot site owned by Fort Dix in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

ENHANCED SAFETY IN DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE
INDUSTRIAL FACILITIES

Public Law 106-79 directed the Department to initiate programs that improved safety practices at DOD facilities. The conferees again urge the Department to undertake measures to improve the safety of work conditions at DOD industrial facilities. No later than December 1, 2000, the Secretary of Defense shall submit to the congressional defense committees a report regarding the feasibility of establishing pilot programs at maintenance depots and public shipyards to improve worker safety. The report shall include proposals, to include any requisite legislative language, for employing gain sharing incentives for the procurement of professional safety services.

FALLON NAS GREENBELT

The conferees understand that the navy has conducted studies to determine the feasibility of restoring current and previously irrigated lands around the perimeter ("Greenbelt") of Fallon Naval Air Station, Nevada, to its natural ecological condition. Further, the conferees understand that the Commander, NAS Fallon, has consulted with the Army Corps of Engineers concerning their expertise in similar efforts. The conferees direct, as the Secretary of the Navy strives to eliminate the need for irrigation to the "Greenbelt", consistent with aircrew safety and the direction provided in Public Law 101-618, that the Navy continue to cooperate with the Army Corps of Engineers to study the most expedient methods to achieve this non-agricultural, non-irrigated state in the "Greenbelt" lands. The conferees direct that of the funds available to the Department of the Navy under the heading Operation and Maintenance, Navy, $100,000 shall be available to expedite the study described above.

CENTER OF EXCELLENCE FOR DISASTER
MANAGEMENT AND HUMANITARIAN ASSISTANCE

The conferees recommend $5,000,000 for the Center for Excellence for Disaster Management and Humanitarian Assistance. Within these funds, $960,000 is to fund the Casualty Care Research Center. The Committee expects the Centers to work collaboratively to provide disaster response services in domestic, international, military and civilian settings.

RESTORATION OF USS TURNER JOY

The conferees direct the Navy to cooperate with the Bremerton Naval Memorial and Historic Ships Association in the repair of the USS Turner Joy. Of the funds available for Operation and Maintenance, Navy, $750,000 shall be available for the maintenance and repair of the USS Turner Joy.

NEW ENERGY SAVING TECHNOLOGY

The conferees are aware of the unique energy savings and anticorrosion properties of Ambient Temperature Cure (ATC) Glass coatings for air-conditioning systems. The conference agreement includes $500,000 in Operation and Maintenance, Air Force funding for the 6th Civil Engineering Squadron located at MacDill Air Force Base, Florida, for an energy demonstration of ATC glass coating technology as a follow-on to its initial testing of this technology on air conditioning systems. Accordingly, the conferees direct the Air Force to conduct a before and after test and evaluation of energy savings of ATC glass coated air conditioning-systems, at MacDill Air Force Base, over a three-month period. The evaluation shall measure and document energy consumption and provide comment regarding effectiveness on existing air-conditioning units of varying ages and levels of corrosion. The Secretary of the Air Force shall provide the results of this testing to the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations not later than April 1, 2001.

CONTAMINANT AIR PROCESSING SYSTEM

The conferees commend the Secretary of the Air Force for standardizing mission-critical equipment that allows Air Force personnel to be effectively processed after contact with biological, chemical and nuclear agents. The conferees encourage the Secretary to use existing funds to continue implementation of standardized contaminant air processing systems (CAPS) throughout Air Force installations.

C-130 OPERATIONS

The conferees recommend a total of $5,000,000 for personnel and operation and maintenance costs to support Air National Guard C-130 operational support aircraft and those stand-alone aircraft currently utilized by selected States.

OVERSEAS CONTINGENCY OPERATIONS TRANSFER FUND

The conferees agree to provide $3,938,777,000 for the Overseas Contingency Operations Transfer Fund. This amount provides for continuing operations in and around Bosnia, Kosovo and Southwest Asia adjusted for unanticipated changes in the number of troops supporting these operations.

The conferees included a general provision which reduces the available funding for overseas contingency operations. The conferees recognize that current levels of deployed forces committed to peacekeeping operations may be reduced during fiscal year 2001. To ensure that current operations are uninterrupted if force levels and commitments are unchanged, the conference agreement provides sufficient emergency funding for overseas contingencies.

UNITED STATES COURT OF APPEALS FOR THE ARMED FORCES

The conference agreement provides $8,574,000 for the United States Court of Appeals for the Armed Forces.

The conference agreement provides $21,412,000 for Environmental Restoration, Defense-Wide.

ENVIRONMENTAL RESTORATION, FORMERLY USED DEFENSE SITES

The conference agreement provides $231,499,000 for Environmental Restoration, Formerly Used Defense Sites.

The conference agreement provides $55,900,000 for Overseas Humanitarian, Disaster, and Civic Aid.

FOREIGN MILITARY SALES

In 1999, the Department of Defense signed a multi-year contract for the E-2C program. The E-2C multi-year contract assumed a total E-2C purchase which included both Department of the Navy and international aircraft deliveries in future years. The negotiated price for the Navy aircraft reflected the assumption that the international sales would be successfully completed in the future years. This process raises serious concerns that the Department of Defense might negotiate future multi-year contracts with sales prices that presume Congressional approval of potential international sales in future years. Such a practice is unacceptable and would violate the intent and spirit of the Foreign Military Sales notification and approval process.

The conferees direct that any future multi-year contracts shall reflect pricing which assumes only the U.S. military procurement quantities. The Department of Defense is expressly prohibited from negotiating any multi-year contracts which include quantities and pricing that reflect foreign military sales yet to be approved by the Congress.

INFORMATION ASSURANCE

The House recommended a net increase of $150,000,000 over the President's budget for selected information assurance and computer network security programs. The conferees endorse the high priority given this effort by the House and recommended a net increase of over $150,000,000 for specific information assurance initiatives, to include:

- $35,000,000 to purchase hardware and software applications to monitor computer networks for suspicious activity;
- $19,000,000 for new digital secure phones to replace the outdated STU-III;
- $18,600,000 to accelerate the DOD's Public Key Infrastructure (PKI) program;
- $16,400,000 for information security awareness, education and training;
- $15,000,000 for the Information Security Scholarship Program;
- $10,000,000 to ensure security capabilities are built into new cell phones, rather than retrofitting them later at a significantly higher cost;
- $10,000,000 for information operations vulnerability analysis;
- $5,000,000 to examine the use of information operations against certain critical target sets;
- $5,000,000 for the Institute for Defense Computer Security and Information Protection;
- $3,000,000 for additional basic (6.1) research into information assurance; and
- $26,000,000 for USARPAC C4I and Information Assurance.

The conferees expect the Department to execute these funds in a coordinated manner, and where possible, to make use of existing institutions and training programs to ensure the maximum benefit from these resources. The conferees understand that even these investments will be of limited value if the software used by the Department has been designed with intentional weaknesses to permit future unauthorized access. The conferees expect the Department to carefully consider the origin of all software used in developing or upgrading information technology or national security systems.

TELECOMMUNICATIONS INFRASTRUCTURE UPGRADES

The conferees believe that additional cost savings could be realized if DOD tenant agencies would include their telecommunications infrastructure upgrades with those of the parent installation and thus achieve the benefits of economies of scale. The conferees therefore direct DOD agencies that are located on Army, Navy and Air Force installations to coordinate their infrastructure upgrades with those of the installation where they reside.

FORWARD LOOKING INFRARED DEVICES

The Horizontal Technology Integration second generation forward looking infrared (FLIR) is being fielded on the M1A2 Abrams tank system enhancement program, M2A3 Bradley Fighting Vehicle, and the long range advanced scout surveillance system. It met the original Apache helicopter FLIR requirements for the proposed upgrade to the AH-64 Apache target acquisition designation sight/pilot night vision system, which the Army subsequently changed. The conferees are concerned that the change in requirements may not result in a significant increase in performance that would outweigh the advantages of commonality between air and land systems in areas such as unit cost, improved logistics support, and life cycle cost savings. The conferees direct the Army to perform a cost-benefit analysis, using the original and revised aviation FLIR requirements, which compares the Horizontal Technology Integration second generation FLIR and the proposed aviation FLIR upgrade. The conferees further direct that none of the funds in this Act may be obligated for an Apache FLIR upgrade that is not common with the FLIR for ground systems unless the Secretary of the Army submits a report to the congressional defense committees which justifies a requirement for a unique FLIR for airborne applications and demonstrates that it is affordable compared to a common system.

COMBAT SEARCH AND RESCUE AIRCRAFT

The conferees note that the Air Force has decided to consider several different aircraft for its combat search and rescue mission, including such existing products as the EH-101 helicopter. The conferees understand that the Navy may be considering alternative to either extend the life of or replace the existing MH-53E helicopters used in the Vertical Onboard Delivery and the dedicated Airborne Mine countermeasures missions. The conferees believe that any such analysis should follow a similar competitive process as used by the Air Force, to ensure that the Navy takes advantage of all existing operational designs to obtain the best rotorcrafts available for those missions.

SLQ-32 Electronic Warfare System

The conferees direct the Department of the Navy to provide a report within 120 days which outlines the Navy's assessment of the operational readiness status of the AN/SLQ-32(V) electronic warfare system. The report should include an analysis of the SLQ-32 to meet current threats, together with plans and funding requirements to structure a program which insures the tactical viability of the AN/SLQ-32(V) until it is no longer the primary, shipboard EW system.

RC-135 RIVET JOINT Theater Airborne Warning System (TAWS)

The conferees direct that all of the funds provided for the Theater Airborne Warning System (TAWS) in the Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 2000, may be obligated to purchase sensors and modify COBRA BALL or RIVET JOINT aircraft, whichever is in the best interests of National Security and at the discretion of the Secretary of the Air Force. The conferees further direct that the Future Years Defense Program should fully fund the completion of the TAWS modifications and the fielding of TAWS on whichever aircraft the Secretary determines will be modified with the fiscal year 2000 funds.

Advanced Targeting Pods

The Air Force requested $34,921,000 for the Advanced Targeting Pod program. The conferees agree to provide this amount subject to the reporting requirements directed by the House. The conferees direct that of the quantity of Advanced Targeting Pods procured with fiscal year 2001 appropriations, no less than 15 pods shall be assigned on a permanent basis to Air National Guard units deployed to Desert Storm which have otherwise not been upgraded to perform the SEAD mission. The conferees further direct the Air Force to implement its proposal to upgrade such units with F-16 Block 30 or better aircraft no later than fiscal year 2003.

JOINT STRIKE FIGHTER

The conferees have provided a total of $688,650,000 to continue JSF development, allocated between the demonstration/validation effort and the engineering and manufacturing development program. The reduction to the total budget request reflects the acknowledged delay of at least three months in moving the program into the EMD phase. The conferees direct that all flight testing should be completed and fully evaluated prior to the selection of a JSF EMD design. The conferees direct that DoD conduct a complete flight test program for the JSF prototypes and perform a full evaluation of all flight test results as part of the EMD proposal review.

The conferees' recommendation includes an increase of $225,000,000 to pay for the industry costs of extending the JSF demonstration/validation effort. The conferees commend DoD for its efforts to maintain financial parity between the JSF airframe competitors. However, the conferees are opposed to DoD plans to require industry to make additional unreimbursed investments in the JSF development program. The conferees direct that the added funds shall only be available to pay each team for the costs of fully executing the demonstration/validation phase and completing all planned and necessary testing.

The conferees endorse the DoD decision to proceed with the original acquisition strategy of selecting a single design, and associated industry team, to develop the Joint Strike Fighter. The conferees continue to believe that industrial base concerns can best be addressed after the source selection decision.

To ensure that Congress is kept apprised of the status of the JSF program, the conferees direct that the Secretary of Defense provide a report on the status of the JSF program with the submission of the Fiscal Year 2002 Defense Budget Request.

The report should provide an overview of the status and results of the JSF technical development and flight test program. Based on the results achieved prior to the budget submission, the report should provide a detailed schedule for completion of the dem/val phase as well an updated plan for the EMD program. Finally, the report should provide current estimates for the cost to complete the JSF dem/val and EMD phases as well as a re-validated estimate of the JSF unit flyaway and total production program cost.

ARTILLERY SYSTEMS – DEMONSTRATION/VALIDATION

The Conferees direct that 50 percent of the fiscal year 2001 funding for Crusader not be obligated or expended until 30 days after the Secretary of Defense submits to the congressional defense committees a comprehensive Analysis of Alternatives (AOA) on Crusader. The AOA is to include an analysis of Crusader and the Future Combat System (FCS) in the objective force.

ENHANCED SKILLS TRAINING PROGRAM

The conferees understand that the Army has decided to terminate the Enhanced Skills Training Program (ESTP) for students at Historically Black Colleges and Universities (HBCU) and to replace it with a distance learning program. Because of the historic role that HBCU's have played in integrating the Army, the conferees direct the Army to maintain through fiscal year 2001 the ESTP as configured during fiscal year 2000. To better understand the benefits of ESTP, the conferees direct the Army to provide a report to the congressional defense committees not later than October 1, 2000, on its long term plans for its partnership with HBCU's in preparing students for the Army.

Network Centric Warfare (NCW)

The conferees agree to provide a total of $7,000,000 for NCW and a Naval Fires Network Demonstration. The conferees agree that these funds should be used to continue development of the Naval Fires Network Demonstrator, test the tactical dissemination of intelligence for Time Critical Strike capabilities, and refine the NCW concept of operations. The conferees are pleased with the progress the Navy has made in advancing NCW from theory to substance and supports the NCW development and implementation plan through the proposed Executive Integrated Process Team (EIPT) and working group structure.

Navy Information Technology Center

The Conferees have provided $6,000,000 in Operation and Maintenance, Navy and $9,000,000 in Research, Development, Test and Evaluation, Navy only for continuing the human resource enterprise strategy in accordance with Section 8147 of the 1999 Defense Appropriations Act including operational support costs and equipment needs at the Navy Program Executive Office for Information Technology's (PEO/IT) ITC and the completion of Navy and Naval Reserve manpower and personnel central design activity consolidations.

INTELLIGENCE, SURVEILLANCE, AND RECONNAISSANCE (ISR) BATTLE MANAGEMENT

The conferees are aware that the Air Force desires to initiate a program called the Intelligence, Surveillance, and Reconnaissance (ISR) Battle Management. The ISR Battle Management is an effort to extend required ISR command and control functions now resident in the Distributed Common Ground System to the Air Operations Center. This program was not identified in the fiscal year 2001 budget request. However, the conferees believe this effort should be initiated and the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations would expeditiously consider a reprogramming request of up to $7,500,000 for this effort.

DISCOVERER II

After careful consideration, the conferees direct that the Discoverer II program be terminated.

To move forward in a more cost-effective manner, the conferees have provided $30,000,000 to the National Reconnaissance Office to undertake steps to further develop and mature low cost electronically scanned array radar technologies for space applications. The conferees further directed the continued participation of the Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency in these efforts.

The Director of the National Reconnaissance Office, in consultation with the Director of the Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency, shall submit a program plan for the development, testing and application of technologies funded under this revised initiative. The conferees direct that none of the funds provided may be used to develop a stand-alone satellite demonstrator.

JOINT EJECTION SEAT PROGRAM

The conferees are concerned about the Defense Department's management of the Joint Ejection Seat Program, including the failure to complete a memorandum of agreement between the Navy and the Air Force concerning operation of the joint program. The conferees have deleted all funds for DoD's separate program to develop the K-36 seat. The conferees have provided a total of $20,689,000 only for the Joint Ejection Seat Program. The conferees direct that the Department of Defense conduct a full and open competition among any and all candidate seats under this program, with no arbitrary restrictions applied by DoD to limit the competition.

The conferees direct that no contract award for the joint ejection seat program using funds provided in fiscal year 2000 be made until 30 days after the Secretary of Defense submits a program plan for the Joint Ejection Seat Program as required by the Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 2000. This program plan should address all specific applications for the ejection seat or ejection seat technology developed under the JESP. Further, the report should specifically address the cost and commonality benefits of using any JESP-developed seat in the Joint Strike Fighter (JSF). None of the funds appropriated in fiscal years 2000 or 2001 may be obligated until the Secretaries of the Navy and Air Force certify to the congressional defense committees that a joint program office is in place to manage the program in a manner which fairly meets both services' requirements. The conferees reiterate that the objective of the Joint Ejection Seat Program is to completely qualify at least two modern and safe ejection seats for potential use in existing and future tactical aircraft.

LIFE SUPPORT SYSTEMS

The conferees have provided an increase of $4,000,000 only for the ACES II ejection seat. These funds are provided only to complete development and testing on discrete modifications of existing ACES II seats to provide digital sequencing capability and to accommodate higher weight individuals. It is not the conferees' intent to fund any activity in this program that would give an unfair advantage to a bidder for the Joint Ejection Seat program.

FOCUS PROGRAM

The conferees support the semiconductor Focus Center Program in university research as it moves into full-scale operation. The conferees urge the Department to include funding for this program as it is currently planned in the POM so that the Department may gain the benefits of this highly leveraged long-term research.

INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY CENTER

The conferees have provided $20,000,000 only for the Joint Information Technology Center Initiative. These funds shall be available only to establish two, Pacific-based Information Technology Centers (ITC's). These centers allow DoD to integrate and implement the many successful logistics and personnel initiatives underway throughout the Department of Defense. The centers will process the wide range and volume of information essential to the day-to-day operations of our military personnel and defense civilians. The centers will allow DoD to eliminate legacy systems and to upgrade to more capable and more flexible information technology tools. The conferees direct that the Secretary of Defense provide a report to the congressional defense committees no later than May 1, 2001, which outlines DoD's plan for proceeding with the establishment of these centers.

COMMERCIAL MAPPING AND VISUALIZATION TOOLKIT

The conferees agree to provide a total of $6,000,000 over the request for the National Imagery and Mapping Agency (NIMA) Commercial Mapping and Visualization Toolkit. Of these funds $3,000,000 is for upgrades and $3,000,000 is for visualization and bomb blast for force protection. The conferees anticipate that NIMA will pursue all avenues of fair and open competition for the acquisition of the Commercial Mapping and Visualization Toolkit.

NIMA OMNIBUS CONTRACT PROGRAM

The National Imagery and Mapping Agency (NIMA) has been required to begin using Architectural and Engineering contracting procedures for all production contracts. This has lead to the development of the "Omnibus Contract" program, allowing NIMA to replace 67 individual production contracts with one contract vehicle for all geospatial information and imagery intelligence requirements. The conferees agree that the omnibus contract program is a special congressional interest item.

The conferees understand that NIMA plans to continue efforts for the Shuttle Radar Topography data reduction program and the Feature Foundation DATA program. The conferees strongly support NIMA's efforts to fully fund these important projects in fiscal year 2001 and beyond.

Total, Revolving and Management Funds	1,304,434	1,316,934	4,195,357	4,157,857

DEFENSE WORKING CAPITAL FUNDS

The conferees agree to provide $916,276,000 for the Defense Working Capital Fund.

NATIONAL DEFENSE SEALIFT AND AIRLIFT FUNDS

The appropriation for the ‘National Defense Sealift Fund’ provides funds for the lease, operation, and supply of prepositioning ships; operation of the Ready Reserve Force; acquisition of large medium speed roll-on/roll-off ships for the Military Sealift Command; and acquisition of ships for the Ready Reserve Force. The budget includes $258,000,000 for Ready Reserve Force and $130,158,000 for acquisition activities in fiscal year 2001.

The conferees have agreed to an expansion of this account to recognize the fact that sea and air mobility are essential ingredients in the Department of Defense’s force projection capability. Thus, the conferees have recommended renaming this account to create the ‘National Defense Mobility Fund’ account. This new account will incorporate the existing ‘National Defense Sealift Fund’ account and establish the ‘National Defense Airlift Fund’ account.

In addition to providing an increase of $12,500,000 to the budget request amount for the ‘National Defense Sealift Fund’ the conference recommendation also provides an increase of $2,840,923,000 for the ‘National Defense Airlift Fund.’ This recommendation includes $2,428,723,000 for the acquisition of 12 C–17 aircraft and advance procurement for the fiscal year 2002 purchase of 15 DC–17 aircraft. Further, the increase includes $412,200,000 for the interim contractor support of the existing C–17 fleet. The conferees have directed that the C–17 procurement and fleet support programs continue without any interruption during fiscal year 2001. The conferees have included appropriate legislative authority to permit the transfer of these funds for the continuation of C–17 acquisition and support.

The conferees direct that the Department of Defense budget for all future C–17 procurement and support costs within the National Defense Airlift Fund. The conferees direct that future budget documents for the NDAF should conform to the requirements for other DoD procurement accounts including the content and format of budget exhibits, reprogramming thresholds among procurement, advanced procurement, and interim contractor support line items, application of the procurement full funding policy, and Congressional notification for changes in quantity.

THE DOD/DVA DISTANCE LEARNING PILOT PROJECT

The conferees are pleased with the progress report on the DoD/DVA Distance Learning pilot project to transition clinical nurse specialists to the role of nurse practitioners. It is noted that 27 students graduated from the first virtual advanced program and 35 new students have been admitted for the second class of distance learning. The conferees encourage further refinement of this program as requirements develop.

PEER REVIEWED MEDICAL RESEARCH PROGRAM

The conferees have provided $50,000,000 for a Peer Reviewed Medical Research Program. The conferees direct the Secretary of Defense, in conjunction with the service Surgeons General, to establish a process to select medical research projects of clear scientific merit and direct relevance to military health.

Such projects could include: acute lung injury research, arthropod transmitted infectious diseases, biological hazard detection system/bio-sensor microchip, CAT scan technology for lung cancer, childhood asthma, Dengue fever vaccine, digital mammography imaging, freeze dried platelets, Fungi Free (a topical anti-fungal agent effective in mitigating onychomycosis), Gulf War illness research, health system information technology, health care informatics, human imaging institute/magnetoencephalography laboratory, medical surgery technology, medical records management, microsurgery and robotic surgery research, molecular biology for cancer research, neural mechanisms of chronic fatigue syndrome, obesity related disease prevention especially for minorities, Padgett's disease, quantum optics, remote emergency medicine ultrasound, smoking cessation, social work research, tissue regeneration for combat casualty care, Venus 3-D technology program, and vitamin D research.

The conferees direct the Department to provide a report to the Congressional Defense Committees by March 1, 2001, on the status of this Peer Reviewed Medical Research Program, to include the corresponding funds provided in previous fiscal years.

ADDITIONAL DEFENSE HEALTH PROGRAM FUNDING TO ADDRESS SHORTFALLS

In addition to recommending sizable funding increases for the Defense Health Program for fiscal year 2001 over current year levels, the conferees note that the recently enacted Emergency Supplemental Appropriations Act for fiscal year 2000 (Public Law 106-246) included over $1.3 billion to address other critical shortfalls confronting the military health care system. Of this amount, $615,600,000 was provided explicitly to finance existing contract claims for fiscal years 1998-2000 against the Department's TRICARE managed care system. An additional $695,900,000 was provided in section 107 of P.L. 106-246 to address other known DHP funding difficulties. The conferees express their intent that the section 107 funds be used by the Secretary of Defense and the service Surgeons General, in conjunction with the funds provided in this conference agreement, to meet the most critical of the remaining outstanding DHP funding needs. These may include financing additional TRICARE contract claims (such as those forecast for fiscal year 2001), unfunded requirement associated with the operations of military treatment facilities, and other needs as identified by the Secretary of Defense and the service Surgeons General.

The conferees further note that in this conference agreement, they have with one exception deferred action on explicitly providing funds for any proposed expansion or modification of the medical benefit for service members and military retirees which would require changes in existing law through the congressional authorization process. The conference agreement does provide funding for an improved pharmacy benefit for military retirees, including those over 65, in recognition of the fact that both the House and Senate-passed versions of the fiscal year 2001 National Defense Authorization Act each provide for this initiative, albeit in differing fashions. The conferees have been advised by both the Secretary of Defense and the Office of Management and Budget that the potential fiscal year 2001 costs of this improved benefit, which was not requested in the President's budget, could be $200,000,000. The conferees recommend addressing this by providing a fiscal year 2001 appropriation of $100,000 for an improved pharmacy benefit in the Defense Health Program appropriation. Title IX of the conference agreement provides an additional $100,000,000 in contingent emergency appropriations, subject to release only if the President submits a budget request pursuant to existing law. The conferees believes this approach strikes the necessary balance needed to ensure that, if authorized, adequate funding has been made available for this important initiative.

T-AGOS SUPPORT

The conferees agree to provide $15,026,000 for T-AGOS support. The conferees are aware that changing drug trafficking patterns in the Transit Zone have altered the original operational concept of using T-AGOS ships to detect and monitor aircraft and ships smuggling illegal drugs into the United States and that other methods exist to accomplish this mission. The conferees direct the Department to analyze the operational effectiveness of the currently configured T-AGOS ships to determine if their contribution to the counter-drug mission is the most effective and cost efficient method to accomplish transit zone surveillance and to provide a summary of suggested alternative platforms or assets and their associated costs. The Department is directed to report their findings to the defense committees no later than March 30, 2001.

NATIONAL GUARD COUNTER-DRUG SUPPORT

The conferees agree to provide an additional $20,000,000 to the budget request for National Guard Counter-drug Support and to concur with language contained in Senate report 106-298 regarding future budget submissions for this project.

Out of the funding provided in the "Drug Interdiction and Counter-drug Activities, Defense" account, the conferees direct that $1,000,000 be provided above its state allocation to the Florida National Guard to support a Port Security prototype project and that $2,000,000 above its state allocation be provided to the Nevada National Guard to allow the Counter-Drug Reconnaissance and Interdiction Detachment unit in northern Nevada to expand operations into southern Nevada.

CAPER FOCUS

The conferees continue to receive reports on the positive contribution of Operation Caper Focus to drug interdiction efforts. Despite this, Caper Focus continues to be virtually ignored in the budget submission. The conferees direct the Department to provide sufficient funding for this initiative in the fiscal year 2002 budget submission.

OFFICE OF THE INSPECTOR GENERAL

The conferees agree to provide $147,545,000 for the Office of the Inspector General. Of this amount, $144,245,000 shall be for operation and maintenance and $3,300,000 shall be for procurement.

PROCEEDINGS AND DEBATES OF THE 106th CONGRESS, SECOND SESSION

Vol. 146

WASHINGTON, MONDAY, JULY 17, 2000

No. 92

Senate

The Senate met at 12 noon and was called to order by the President pro tempore [Mr. THURMOND].

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Dr. Lloyd John Ogilvie, offered the following prayer:

We praise You, dear God. You have promised never to leave or forsake us. Our confidence is in You and not ourselves. We come to You in prayer, not trusting our own goodness but solely in Your grace. You are our joy when we get down, our strength when we are weak, our courage when we vacillate. You are our security in a world of change and turmoil. Even when we forget You in the rush of life, You never forget us. Thank You for Your faithfulness.

At this moment we claim that faithfulness for our friend, Senator PAUL COVERDELL, as he undergoes surgery. Bless him, care for him, and heal him.

And now dear God, filled with wonder, love, and gratitude, we commit this week to live and work for You, inviting the indwelling power of Your spirit. Bless the Senators. Control their minds and give them Your discernment. Give them boldness to take stands for what You have revealed is the application of Your righteousness and justice for our Nation.

Thank You for the privilege of living this week for You. In Your all powerful name. Amen.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The Honorable PETER G. FITZGERALD, a Senator from the State of Illinois, led the Pledge of Allegiance, as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

RECOGNITION OF THE MAJORITY LEADER

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. FITZGERALD). The majority leader.

Mr. LOTT. I thank the Chair.

PRAYERS AND REFLECTIONS

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I express my appreciation also once again to our Chaplain of the Senate, Lloyd John Ogilvie, and for his remembering our friend and my most trusted confidante, most reliable lieutenant, the Senator from Georgia, PAUL COVERDELL. I don't know of a Senator who works any harder or has a more indomitable spirit. I noticed particularly Friday afternoon how happy he was as he took leave of this Chamber because of the vote that we had just taken and realizing that he would have the opportunity to be home in Georgia on Friday afternoon and on Saturday. Our thoughts and our prayers are with him as he apparently undergoes a surgical procedure at this hour. I thank the Chaplain for his prayer.

Coincidentally, this weekend I also had a little more time than I anticipated and was able to spend some time thinking about our country and reading some books. One of those that I read was "Going For The Max," by Senator MAX CLELAND, also of Georgia. It is a really inspirational book about his life and his experience as a Vietnam veteran and the recovery period he had to go through and the inspiration from things he had learned in his life—12 principles of life that he had learned and on which he relies. I talked to him this morning to tell him how much I enjoyed his book; that I was inspired by it. And he said he was at that very moment standing there looking at Piedmont Hospital where our friend, Senator COVERDELL, is, and he was saying a prayer for him. He offered to cover any meetings or appointments that needed to be done today or this week by Senator COVERDELL.

That is the kind of real love and appreciation and bipartisanship we need more of in this institution and in our lives. So I encourage my colleagues in the Senate, if you have not read it, get a copy of "Going For The Max," and it will be an inspiration to you.

SCHEDULE

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, today the Senate will be in a period of morning business until 3 p.m. with Senators BYRD and THOMAS in control of the time.

Following morning business, the Senate will resume consideration of the Interior appropriations bill, and hopefully we will be able to complete our deliberations on that bill and get to final passage on all amendments and the bill itself tomorrow morning.

Under the previous agreement, there are up to 10 amendments remaining to the Interior bill that must be offered and debated during today's session. Hopefully, some of those amendments will be withdrawn, others will be accepted, and maybe we will not need to have more than a couple of them actually voted on, and then go to final passage tomorrow morning. I believe those votes will be stacked in the morning at 9:45 a.m.

At 6:15 this evening, the Senate will begin the final votes on the reconciliation bill which provides for the elimination of the marriage penalty tax. Senators should be aware that during the remainder of the afternoon on Friday, when all amendments were offered and/or debated, almost 40 potential votes could occur in regard to this legislation.

Again, I hope and I think that several of those amendments were just filed as a precaution and that not nearly that many will actually require a vote; some of them can be accepted. But I do expect there will be somewhere between 10 and 15, at least, that will require a recorded vote. We will try to do a major portion of those tonight, if not all of them. We may try to get a consent to finish the remainder of the votes on amendments and final passage tomorrow morning after we take a look at exactly how many we are going to have to do, look at how many we would have to vote on tonight, how many we would have to vote on in the morning, and try to be reasonable in how we schedule those votes. But we do need to get both of them completed not later than tomorrow morning. So votes are expected into the night. We could have, I guess, conceivably 10, 15, or more votes tonight beginning at 6:15. Of course, we have stacked them and the votes will be limited to 10 minutes in length after the first vote. Senators will be encouraged to remain in the Chamber again during the votes.

We were able to record 10 votes in about 1½ hours I think on Friday, which probably is some kind of new record. A lot of the credit for that goes to Senator HARRY REID, the assistant minority leader, because he stayed in the Chamber and helped me make sure that we wrapped those votes up as quickly as was possible.

This will be an important week. After we complete those two very important issues, we will need to go to the Agriculture appropriations bill which has been awaiting action in the Senate now for probably a month. Senator COCHRAN has indicated he will be ready to go tomorrow morning or right after lunch, whichever is available to him, to begin debate on this very important legislation.

We also would like to have the opportunity to consider the energy and water appropriations bill this week also. It is ready and should not take a lot of time. But that will depend on how long it takes on the Agriculture appropriations bill.

I see smiles throughout the Chamber, the idea that we would complete these two bills I have already mentioned and then take up two appropriations bills, but with determination we can get it done.

We achieved more last week than most people thought we would be able to do. It took work and it took some time and it took cooperation between leaders on both sides of the aisle. We were able to get that. I hope we can do it this week. I thank my colleagues for their participation and their cooperation.

With that, I will yield the floor and I observe the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. BURNS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

CONSERVATION REINVESTMENT ACT

Mr. BURNS. Mr. President, on the eve of marking up the Conservation Reinvestment Act—an act that can only be described as great politics but very bad policy—to enact a law that gives the Federal Government a blank check to buy land for the purpose of conservation, preservation, or any other so called environmental cause is ill-advised and ill-conceived, it appears, on the surface, the idea of putting land under Federal control for conservation purposes is a good idea and good policy for the nation. However, under the surface, hidden in the dark side of government ownership of lands, it is very bad policy.

Nobody has hunted or fished and appreciated it more than this Senator. Nobody enjoys the outdoors as much as I do—the cold crisp mornings in a hunting camp or a fishing camp is unequaled and one would not need a fishing rod or a rifle.

I would say that nobody in this body has fought harder for habitat and policies that promote the enjoyment of the outdoors, hunting, and fishing. As former cochairman of the sportman's caucus and still active in the foundation, we guard this privilege.

There is no way, Mr. President, this piece of legislation can be made to reflect or fulfill our role in the protection and improvement of our public lands. Just adding acres to the Federal estate does not get it done. Just no way. The supporters of this legislation has been blinded by the prospects of dollars, free dollars coming to their respective States. The money comes from royalties from off-shore drilling. I have no problem with that and, in fact, support such a scheme. It is the purchasing of land for the Federal estate that I cannot support.

I ask your patience to bear with me but I feel some facts should be made part of this record and my colleagues need reminding of some startling facts.

The Federal Government now controls one-third of the land in the United States. That is wrong and was never intended to be as envisioned by the Founders of our Nation nor the Framers of our Constitution.

However, the Federal Government has from its first day, a healthy appetite for land ownership and has never stopped acquiring more and more land. Some for good and solid reasons. In the last 40 years, however, land acquisition has been under the guise of conservation and preservation.

Do we have enough surplus of money to squander on the idea that the Federal Government needs more land.

Since 1960, major Federal land agencies have added 33.6 million acres of land. That is the area the size of Florida.

These agencies control more than 612 million acres or just over one-fourth of the land area of the United States.

True, the majority of Americans support land conservation and some acquisition, but few know or understand what it entails.

Most of those demanding public ownership of lands have come from groups who have little regard for private land ownership or property rights as provided by our Constitution. Land ownership is the cornerstone to individual freedom which most Americans hold very dear. Have you not seen the movie, "The Patriot"?

... A major increase in Federal funding for land acquisition has long been needed. There is a tremendous backlog in land purchases. ...

So says Carl Pope, Ex. Director of the Sierra Club.

Ron Tipton, a vice president of the National Park Conservation Association echoes the same line.

I would suggest that both organizations have the money and the political will to buy land for conservation, preservation, or to heal some real or perceived environmental ill. The problem arises that they also would be responsible for the operation and management of the lands.

That being the case, why in the world does the Federal Government need more land? That is why I started to do some research some 3 or 4 years ago and using some information gathered by very credible organizations, I was startled what I found.

The Congressional Budget Office has gone so far as to suggest a freeze on Federal acquisitions. A 1999 report asserts:

Land management agencies should improve their stewardship of the lands they already own before taking on additional acreage and management responsibilities.

Environmental objectives might be best met by improving that they already own.

There is one glaring fact that throughout our history, private individuals and groups have offered the best and most sound resource conservation. Several organizations such as the Sierra Club has the funds and expertise to do and I suggest they proceed.

Here is CBO's concern. BLM, USF&W, and NPS have added 840,000 acres per year since 1960. That is the area the size of Rhode Island.

In the 1990's, 3.4 million acres and 25 new units for NPS; 2.7 million acres and 24 new units for USF&W; plus 18 million acres in military installations, 8.5 million acres in BOR, and 11.7 million acres in the Corps of Engineers. Even the conservation reserve "CRP" controls 33 million acres.

SPIRALING COSTS AND BALLOONING BUDGETS

Here are the reasons the Congressional Budget Office suggested a freeze in land acquisition:

Annual costs for land management have far outpaced the rate at which the Federal estate was expanding.

For the past 40 years, government's appetite for land ownership grew the total acres just over 6 percent, yet operating budgets have risen 262 percent above inflation.

From 1962 to 1998, land acquisition cost $10.5 billion. At that same time-frame, managing Federal lands cost $176 billion, $6.6 billion in 1999 alone.

It is a little easier to grasp when one looks at the cost of management in 1962 at $3 per acre. In 1997 the cost has grown to $10 per acre adjusted for inflation.

The NPS operating expenses have risen 2.6 percent per year above inflation since 1980. During the same time, the system grew only 1 percent per year in acreage and units. The system has always gotten more money to operate. Park visits, nationally, only grew 2.3 percent per year.

BLM generated .50 cents for every $1.00 invested and the NPS .08 cents for every $1.00. While operating budgets for day-to-day upkeep and services have grown faster than acreage, provisions for infrastructure and major maintenance have not followed a similar pattern.

In some instances, these capital budgets that provide for long-term facility maintenance have shrunk. Between 1980 and 1995, NPS declined to an annual rate of 1.5 percent when adjusted for inflation. As a result, the NPS has a $5.6 billion deficit for construction and maintenance and a $2 billion deficit for resource management.

The USFS has a $5 billion maintenance backlog. Throwing more money into the Federal trough is not getting us what we want. Eroding forest roads, deteriorating water quality, disappearing wildlife habitat, and loss of priceless artifacts are just the most obvious indicators that current policies are not providing quality management. Buying more land only contributes to a situation that is not achieving the environmental objectives that we want.

Billions of dollars are spent each year to manage our Federal lands, and the public is not getting the benefits of multiple-use fiscal responsibility, or good resource stewardship.

A number of ecologists have also questioned the ability to fulfill its mission of resource protection. Biologist Charles Kay of Utah State University has documented the destruction of the Crown Jewel of national parks, Yellowstone. Overpopulation of elk and buffalo has taken its toll. The result is starvation of thousands of elk, and overgrazed range, the destruction of plant communities, the elimination of critical habitat, and a serious decline in biodiversity. Karl Hess reported the same in Rocky Mountain National Park.

Some 39 million acres of Federal forest land are, as we speak, at risk of catastrophic wildfire and disease according to a GAO report of last year.

BETTER TOOLS—BETTER RESULTS—SATISFIED CONSERVATIONISTS

It is clear that merely dipping into the Federal Treasury does not ensure land conservation for the future. Under the current system of command and control, politics plays a major role in Federal land management. Some pragmatic changes in our Federal land agencies, however, could help us get the incentives right.

RECREATIONAL LAND

Lands historically used for recreation, should pay or attempt to pay their own way and not rely entirely upon congressional appropriations.

There is no doubt that park managers can better care for the land that Federal overseers in Congress who fail to allocate funds for necessary maintenance. The Fee Demonstration Program is a step in the right direction.

As land managers generate revenues and decide how the money will be spent, they are allowed to be more responsive to visitors, more expedient with maintenance, and more protective of natural resources.

COMMODITY LANDS

Not all Federal lands are equally deserving of preservation. In a world of limited resources, it makes sense to sell lands with lesser conservation values to ensure adequate protection for those worthy of conservation.

HABITAT SET-ASIDES

There are some lands under Federal management that are not likely to ever pay their own way, but have ecological or cultural value. The land might be critical wildlife habitat, watershed for large, diversified users, or the site of some historical event. These should be placed under a trust or endowment board. A portion of revenues derived from user fees at more popular sites or the sale of other lands could be used as endowment funds to manage these valuable areas. I am very supportive of this idea.

NEW ACQUISITIONS

Current Federal land management permits land acquisitions without regard to operating and maintenance costs. Before adding more land to the Federal estate and obligating the American taxpayer, a detailed accounting of annual operating and maintenance costs should be prepared and, like private conservators, laws should require that funding for proper management be part of the appropriation. No O&M money, no deal. I will insist on it.

LAND EXCHANGES

There is no doubt in my mind that land exchanges are necessary. Small units of range should be either traded or sold to block up large units for management purposes. The funds derived from the sales should be placed in the trust or endowment for management of other public holdings.

PRIVATE SOLUTIONS

As an alternative to Federal land conservation, private conservation by individuals and groups is a viable option with a long history in the United States. The growing demand to protect land resources has created a new impetus for private conservation through ownership and other legal mechanisms. Whether the land is managed for profit or to fulfill a mission, these private conservators have the right incentives. They face the opportunity costs for alternative uses of the resources. The result is often better land management than that provided by our Federal land managers.

FEE SIMPLE

Private landownership is the oldest and simplest form of land conservation.

It will continue to exist as long as property rights are well-defined and owners can profit from their investment in conservation or achieve their conservation goals.

LAND TRUSTS, CONSERVATION EASEMENTS

Tax benefits.

Perpetual easements.

Restructuring easements.

CONCLUSION

Changes that would improve land conservation and mitigate environmental damage without adding more land to the Federal estate include:

Lands for recreational use should pay their own way or generate some revenue to cover costs;

Land use rights on commodity producing lands should be sold for the highest value use. The winning bid could be commercial timber harvest, selective harvest to enhance wildlife habitat, wilderness, recreation, or some combination of uses;

Income from the sale of land and land use rights should be put into endowment funds to buy or manage lands with higher conservation values, such as those with critical wildlife habitat, scenic value, or historical significance; and Barriers should be lowered to encourage private conservation and good stewardship.

At present our Federal land agencies are poor land stewards. Many times through no fault of their own, their budgets reach into the billions, yet damage to roads, sewers, buildings, forest, and rangelands remain and continue to worsen.

Only the lands that are under long-term lease arrangements with individuals or groups continue to improve.

Given the right incentives, we can protect areas like Yellowstone and Yosemite, preserve the Bob Marshall Wilderness of Montana, and the east front. But forests such as Clinch Valley, VA, are better left in private hands.

Again, I must iterate that the Conservation Reinvestment Act as written and presented this day, is ill-conceived and ill-advised. We can and must invest those dollars where the environmental objectives are clearly achievable.

Mr. President, I yield the floor. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

MORNING BUSINESS

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, there will now be a period for morning business not to extend beyond the hour of 3 o'clock with Senators permitted to speak therein for up to 10 minutes each, with the following exceptions: The Senator from West Virginia, Mr. BYRD, from 12 p.m. to 2 p.m.; and the Senator from Wyoming, Mr. THOMAS, or his designee from 2 p.m. until 3 p.m.

The Senator from West Virginia is recognized.

Mr. BYRD. I thank the Chair.

Mr. President, Alexander Hamilton spoke 6 hours at the Constitutional Convention. So I think I am in rather good company.

THE PLIGHT OF OUR NATION

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, the great English novelist, Charles Dickens, began his epic novel, "A Tale of Two Cities," with these words, "It was the best of times, it was the worst of times. . . ."

Well over a century later, and a continent away from the writing of Dickens' story, those words could well describe the plight of our nation in the last year of the 20th century.

That is this century—the last year of the 20th century.

The United States has never been more affluent, in terms of material wealth and creature comforts, or more impoverished in terms of spiritual well-being. It is the best of times materially. It is the worst of times spiritually. Millions are made daily on Wall Street, American consumerism fuels booming international economic and trade markets, and our Nation's living standard is the envy of the world. We have eliminated our staggering deficits at home, at least on paper, and jobs are available for our people in abundance.

Yet, America is, in many ways, a hollow nation. We are a people on the edge of a precipice. Despite all of our economic prosperity, despite all of our fascination with the glittery toys that money can buy us, despite all of the accouterments of success and prosperity, so envied by the rest of the world, all of the material comforts we so enthusiastically chase, can never pacify the hunger beginning to emerge in our collective souls, nor even start to solve the endemic problems which crowd the dark corners of our national psyche.

Our children randomly slaughter each other in our schools, clothes are torn off of innocent women in a public park, smut crowds the airwaves, the traditional family structure continues to deteriorate, advertising reflects little but sexual innuendo and the desire for a mad rush to some materialistic nirvana, song lyrics are not fit for polite company, and even the barest mention of the existence of a Creator is castigated as inappropriate or viewed as the unbalanced ravings of the lunatic fringe.

We are a people seemingly in deep denial of our own humanity—in deep denial of our own unquenched inner need for meaning and purpose and direction in our lives. We have succumbed to the glossy promise of more, and more, and more, in a vain and pointless effort to deny the one essential element which is so glaringly missing from our aimless, restless pursuit of prosperity.

Religion has all but vanished from our national life. Worse than that, religion is discouraged; religion is frowned upon. Religion is suppressed, spurred by what I believe is a misguided attempt to ensure a completely secular society and a gross misreading of constitutional intent. Oh, what ills are born when we forget our history! What ills are born when we forget our history!

This Nation was founded, in part, so that religion could freely flourish. The Constitution was written and ratified by men who possessed a strong spiritual awareness. These were not Godless men who wrote the Constitution of the United States. They had a spiritual awareness. The universal principles espoused in the Declaration of Independence in 1776, and other early American documents reflect aspirations, which are, at their core, based on a belief in a Supreme Being and on the existence of a human soul. What are these if not religious principles? Such lofty and spiritual beliefs as the bedrock equality of all humans—as the bedrock equality of all humans—and the endowment by a Creator of basic rights cannot be secularized out of existence in a nation so rooted in a deep spiritual consciousness as is ours. Every single value upon which this country was so painstakingly built—individual sacrifice for the greater good, fairness, charity, truthfulness, morality, personal responsibility, honesty—all of these are, at root, qualities derived from Judeo-Christian teachings. To try to separate this nation from the religious grounding which it so obviously exhibits in every aspect of its history, is like trying to bifurcate muscle from bone. Dysfunction is the result—sterile bone which cannot move, and useless tissue with no support. That is what happens when spiritual values become separated from our national life.

Nowhere are the results of such an unfortunate rending more obvious, more destructive or more heart-breaking than in the evident damage we have done to our most precious commodity, our children. Millions of our innocents are lost in a maze of drugs, cheap sex, violence, and materialism. They are starving—starving—for lessons by which to live their lives, and what do we offer them? We offer them only hedonistic baubles. Love of pleasure, greed, gratification of sex, deification of the crude and the outrageous, and the selfish culture of Me, me, me, and More, more, more, are no guidelines on which to build a life or a character whether it be a nation or the individual. These are only empty distractions that lead down roads previously reserved for misfits and criminals. We must look hard at ourselves in the mirror each morning and ask what in the name of God we are coming to if we continue on this course? We are all at fault, all of us—the clergy for not speaking out, the Church doesn't speak out like it used to when I was a boy.

The church took a strong stand on the great national issues. But the church, as so many of us, has been driven into a closet; so the clergy for not speaking out; the leaders of business in this country for looking only at profits; the leaders of both political parties for pandering—pandering. Most of the issues that plague us nationally—such as violence in our schools, inadequate health care for the weakest in our society, crime, greed in politics, all of these issues, all of them, are at their root—are issues of right and wrong, issues of morality.

Yet in order to avoid offending anyone—don't offend anyone; that is why so many of the colleges and schools have taken history out of the required courses, because history might offend somebody. It might offend some group—in order to avoid offending anyone or any group, we try to totally secularize our politics on the left and overly polarize our politics, with too much false piety, on the right. So both are in the wrong. The result is only endless power struggle and pandering to the various groups which keep us in power. As such, political power has become an end, not a means, and the leadership of this nation too often winds up pursuing solutions to the effects of our ills and ignoring their causes.

A prejudice against the influence of religious commitment and moral values upon political issues now characterizes almost every sector of American society from the media to law to academia. We have seen the Supreme Court rule, again and again, against allowing voluntary prayer in public school in this country. I believe that this ingrained predisposition against expressions of religious or spiritual beliefs is wrongheaded, destructive, and completely contrary to the intent of the Founders of this great nation. Instead of ensuring freedom of religion in a nation founded in part to guarantee that basic liberty, a literal suffocation of that freedom has been the result. The rights of those who do not believe in a Supreme Being have been zealously guarded, to the denigration, I repeat, denigration, of the rights of those who do so believe.

The American doctrine of separation of church and state—and you don't find that in the Constitution; it says nothing about separation of Church and State in the Constitution—forbids the establishment of any one religion by the state, but not, I repeat, not the influence of religious values in the life of the nation. Religious faith has always been an underpinning of American life.

One of the most perceptive of observers of the early American scene was Alexis de Tocqueville. Writing in the 1830's on his observations while traveling in America, de Tocqueville grasped the moral content of America. Coming from France where abuse of power by the clergy had made anticlericalism endemic, he was amazed to find it virtually unknown in America.

De Tocqueville writes:

In France, I had almost always seen the spirit of religion and the spirit of freedom marching in opposite directions, but in America, I found they were intimately united, and that they reigned in common over the same country. . . . Religion . . . must be regarded as the first of their political institutions

He is talking about Americans in the 1830s. Let me say that again—DeTocqueville:

Religion . . . must be regarded as the first of their political institutions; for if it does not impart a taste for freedom, it facilitates the use of it.

He concluded that most Americans held religion, to be indispensable to the maintenance of Republican institutions.

John Adams was the second President of the United States. He served as Vice President for 8 years under George Washington. He was a member of the Continental Congress, and a signer of the Declaration of Independence. He greatly influenced the States to ratify the new Constitution by writing a three-volume work, entitled, "A Defense of the Constitutions of the Government of the United States."

I like to go back to John Adams' work from time to time and just read it again. I recommend it to our people who are listening in this Chamber. One might say that, when it came to building the governmental structure of these United States, John Adams was in on the ground floor. In his diary entry dated February 22, 1756, John Adams wrote—listen to John Adams now:

Suppose a nation in some distant region should take the Bible for their only law book, and every member should regulate his conduct by the precepts there exhibited! Every member would be obliged in conscience to temperance, frugality, and industry; to justice, kindness, and charity towards his fellow men; and to piety, love, and reverence toward Almighty God What a Utopia, what a Paradise would this region be.

That was John Adams. Obviously, John Adams believed that moral precepts and Biblical teachings would be an ideal foundation on which to lay the government of a great nation.

On July 8, 1776, the Declaration of Independence was read publicly at the Continental Congress while the famous "Liberty Bell" was rung. Wouldn't you have liked to have been there? Congress then established a three-man Committee consisting of Thomas Jefferson, John Adams, and Benjamin Franklin, for the purpose of designing a great seal for the United States. What were Franklin's suggestions? Franklin's suggestions for a seal and motto characterizing the spirit of this new nation were—this is Franklin talking, not ROBERT C. BYRD:

Moses lifting up his wand, and dividing the red sea, and pharaoh in his chariot overwhelmed with the waters. This motto: "Rebellion to tyrants is obedience to God."

What did Thomas Jefferson propose? This is Thomas Jefferson talking, not ROBERT C. BYRD. Thomas Jefferson proposed:

The children of Israel in the wilderness, led by a cloud by day, and a pillar of fire by night.

Try as I may, I sense no hypersensitivity about absolute separation of religion and the government of the new country in these suggestions for symbols of our new nation. Would such men as Jefferson and Franklin have suggested such symbols if they intended for an absolute wall of separation to be erected between government and any sort of religious expression? I think not.

When it comes to current attitudes about the proper role of religion in America, the apple has fallen very far from the tree. In fact, our greatest leaders have shown no trepidation about God's proper place in the American panorama. I am talking about our greatest leaders. Every session of the U.S. House of Representatives and the United States Senate begins with a prayer. I heard the Chaplain pray today, and so did you. And each House, from the Nation's beginning, has had its Chaplain paid with Federal tax dollars. The Supreme Court of the United States begins each session only after a solemn pronouncement that concludes with "God save the United States and this Honorable Court."

So it is then, with almost total incredulity, that I read the continued pronouncements on the subject of prayer in school by our Supreme Court, which since 1962, has steadily chipped away at any connection between religion and the governmental sphere. How could such rulings be handed down time after time by learned men and women who are obviously familiar with the history of this nation, and with the faith-based grounding of our entire governmental structure? And recently we have this latest decision by the Supreme Court, involving voluntary student-led prayer at a Texas high school football game.

I don't attend football games. I have attended one in the 48 years that I have been in Washington, and I attended that only at halftime to crown the Queen; West Virginia and Maryland were playing. But even if I don't attend football games, there are people who do attend. And if it is their wish to have prayers, if the students in the band or on the football teams want to have prayer, more power to them.

On June 19, the highest court in our land ruled in a 6-3 decision that somehow this voluntary student-led prayer violated the Constitution's establishment clause.

Justice Stevens, writing for the majority opinion, said that even when attendance was voluntary and the decision to pray was made by students:

the delivery of a pregame prayer has the improper effect of coercing those present to participate in an act of religious worship.

What nonsense—nonsense. Such a pronouncement ignores a separate

First Amendment problem, in that it amounts to the censorship of religious speech in a governmental forum. What about the rights of those students who wish to pray, perhaps for the safety of their classmates? Such a ruling tramples on the Constitutional rights of those students in favor of some mythical possibility that coercion might be felt by someone.

In a dissenting opinion, Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist summed up the matter pretty nicely, I think, when he stated that the majority opinion "bristles"—bristles—"with hostility to all things religious in public life."

Mr. Chief Justice Rehnquist said it right: The majority opinion "bristles with hostility to all things religious in public life."

For that statement, the Chief Justice will always have my gratitude. He is eminently correct, and, of course, it took courage to say what he did. As everyone knows, I am no fan of amending the U.S. Constitution, and I believe it should be done only rarely and with great care. Certainly this year, an election year, is no year to try to pass a constitutional amendment on school prayer.

But I intend to implore the two major party candidates—and I do implore the two major party candidates—to seriously consider including a constitutional amendment in the nature of clarifying the intent of the framers in the area of prayer in school as part of both party platforms.

I have yet to read a party platform. Never read one. I have never read a Democratic Party platform or any other party platform, but there are many who do, and it is only natural the parties should have platforms. People expect them to have a platform to indicate where they stand on the great issues of the day. So I urge Mr. Bush and Mr. GORE to work to put the words in the party platforms urging that there be an amendment to clarify the intent of the framers in the area of prayer in school.

The intent of the framers was clearly only to keep the new government from endorsing or favoring one religion over another, but not from favoring a free exercise of religion over nonreligion. Certainly, it was never to prohibit voluntary expressions of a religious nature by our citizens.

Just what do we teach our children? Upon what do we base the most fundamental codes of society if we are not to base them on moral precepts and spiritual precepts? How can we lead our own people, how can we grapple with issues of right and wrong, or how can we continue to inspire downtrodden peoples from around the globe if we continue to deny and to sever our basic ties to faith-based principles?

Alarming, we are crafting a political secularism which does not reflect the views or practices of most Americans, the overwhelming majority of Americans. Consider these facts:

Nine Americans in 10 say they have never doubted the existence of God. Eight Americans in 10 say they believe they will be called before God on Judgment Day to answer for their actions, their words, their deeds. Eight Americans in 10 say they believe God still works miracles, and he does.

One sits right over there in the chair. Here sits some up here. These are miracles. There are literally millions of things that could have happened to each of us, and we would never have been born or in being born we would have been confronted with many health problems. There are miracles every day.

Seven Americans in 10 believe in life after death. I do, and I daresay most, if not all, of the people in this Chamber do believe there is a life after death. What would there be to live for otherwise? Oh, you may laugh now, but wait until you are 82, as I am, and well on your way to 83. To what do you have to look forward to each day of your life which is fast ebbing? Yes, you will change your mind then.

How can the beliefs of such sizable sections of the American population totally escape the attention of politicians and educators? They are all going to die, too. Every one of them, and they are going to have to go out and meet God in eternity, which is a long, long, long time.

How could these statistics escape the nine members of the Supreme Court of the United States? Does the answer lie in the elitism that so permeates this arrogant capital city? Does theology tend to thin out as one gravitates toward the top of the socioeconomic scale, rather like the thinner air at the top of some elevated peak? Are we, indeed, witnessing the writing of a new "Tale of Two Cities" as we watch public policy diverge ever more dramatically from the views of the people and the plain-as-day record of our own documented history?

Power unchecked by moral insight, teaching untempered by spiritual values, government unenlightened by faith in a Creator—no city and no nation can sustain such a course. While we may distract ourselves for a time with the affluence that a booming economy provides, eventually there is a kind of nihilism in a society whose God is materialism—whose only God is materialism.

Look carefully around you at the culture of America today. Just stop and think for a moment. You do not even have to look around you. Stop and think for a moment about the culture of this country today. Note the banality of most public discourse, the lack of respect for authority, the absence of common civility, the crudeness of popular entertainment, the glorification of violence.

There is no map, there is no compass, there is no vision, and "Where there is no vision, the people perish."

Mr. President, the very first sentence of the first amendment to the Constitution of the United States—here is the Constitution; so small that it fits into a shirt pocket—the very first sentence of the first amendment to the Constitution of the United States reads as follows: "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; . . ." It seems to me that the U.S. Supreme Court, over the years, in its rulings on school prayer over the last 40 years has bent over backwards to enforce the first clause in that amendment dealing with an establishment of religion, but the Court has seemingly exhibited a strong bias against the equally important—the equally important—second part of the sentence. That sentence has two parts. And the second part is, I quote: ". . . or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; . . ."

In ruling after ruling, over the past 40 years the Court seems to be going farther and farther in the direction of prohibiting the free exercise of religion. In precedent after precedent, the Court, often by slim majorities, has seemed bent upon totally eradicating any semblance whatsoever of religious speech in our public schools, even when such speech is not in any way, shape, or form connected with an "establishment" of religion.

When I read the first amendment clause dealing with freedom of religion, the words of the amendment seem to strike a balance between an establishment of religion, on the one hand, and the free exercise of religion, on the other. But the Court seems determined to completely ignore, and thus obliterate, any right to a free exercise of religion in the public schools. No wonder many people take their children out of the public schools. I believe that the framers of the United States Constitution—yea, the founders of this Republic itself—would be appalled. Can you imagine what the founders—the framers, the people who framed the Constitution, the people who voted on the ratification of the Constitution—how they would feel? I believe they would be appalled at the Court's apparent drift over the last 40 years toward total secularism and away from any modicum of voluntary religious expression in the public schools of this country.

Now let us briefly reflect upon the impact of religion on the development of American constitutionalism. Let's go back. Let's go back over the decades, yea, even over the centuries, and reflect upon the impact of religion on the development of American constitutionalism. We will find that the roots of religion run deep. As one scholar, Donald S. Lutz, has noted—this is what he says—"The political covenants written by English colonists in America lead us to the church covenants written by Protestants in the late 1500's and early 1600's and these, in turn, lead us back to the Covenant tradition of the Old Testament." That is what he said. The American constitutional tradition derives in much of its form and content from the Judeo-Christian tradition—we can't avoid it; it is there; nothing can erase it; you can take all the history books out of the schools that you want, but the fact remains that it is still there—the Judeo-Christian tradition as interpreted by the radical Protestant sects to which belonged so many of the original European settlers in British North America.

Lutz, in his work, entitled, "The Origins of American Constitutionalism," says this: "The tribes of Israel shared a covenant that made them a nation. American federalism originated at least in part in the dissenting Protestants' familiarity with the Bible".

The early Calvinist settlers who came to this country from the Old World brought with them a familiarity with the Old Testament Covenants that made them especially apt in the formation of colonial documents and State constitutions.

Now, let me refer to Winton U. Solberg. He tells us that in 17th century colonial thought, divine law—a fusion of the law of nature in the Old and New Testaments—usually stood as fundamental law. The Mayflower Compact—how many of us like to claim that our forebearers were on the Mayflower? "Oh, they were there. They were on the Mayflower." Well, there was such a thing written as the Mayflower Compact.

The Mayflower Compact exemplifies the doctrine of covenant or contract. Puritanism exalted the biblical component and drew on certain scriptural passages for a theological outlook. Called the Covenant or Federal Theology, this was a theory of contract regarding man's relations with God and the nature of church and state.

If we examine the public political literature written between 1760 and 1805, the book most frequently cited in that literature is the Bible.

Let me say that again. If we examine the public political literature written between 1760 and 1805, the book most frequently cited in that literature is the Bible.

Saint Paul, the great apostle, is cited about as frequently as Montesquieu and Blackstone, the two most cited secular authors. Deuteronomy is cited almost twice as often as all of Locke's writings put together.

Many of the references to the Bible came from reprinted sermons, while other citations came from secular works. Saint Paul was the favorite in the New Testament, especially his Epistle to the Romans, in which he discusses the basis for, and limits on, obedience to political authorities. From the Old Testament, Deuteronomy was the most cited book, followed by Isaiah, Genesis, Exodus, and Leviticus. The authors most frequently referred to the sections about covenants and God's promises to Israel.

The movement towards independence found the clergy out in front—the movement toward independence in this country found the clergy out in front, not back in the closet; out in front—and the clergy were also most vigorous in maintaining morale during the Revolutionary War. When reading comprehensively in the political literature of the war years, one cannot but be struck by the extent to which biblical sources used by ministers and traditional Whigs undergirded the justification for the break with Great Britain, the rationale for continuing the war, and the basic principles of Americans writing their own Constitutions at the State level.

Let us look at the Mayflower Compact, of November 11, 1620. Here is what they wrote:

In the name of God, Amen. We, whose names are underwritten, the loyal subjects of our dread sovereign Lord, King James, by the grace of God, . . . having undertaken, for the glory of God, and advancement of the Christian faith, . . . by these presents solemnly and mutually in the presence of God, and of one another, covenant and combine ourselves together into a civil body politick, for our better ordering and preservation and furtherance of the ends aforesaid; and by virtue hereof to enact, constitute, and frame such just and equal laws, ordinances, acts, Constitutions, and offices, from time to time, as shall be thought most . . . convenient for the general good of the colony unto which we promise all due submission and obedience. . . .

That was the Mayflower Compact. The authors of the Mayflower Compact had no hesitation about mentioning God, no hesitation about placing their lives in his hands and saying so. Now let us examine briefly "The Fundamental Orders of Connecticut." Here we will find many references to the Deity, in these orders which were adopted by a popular Convention of the three towns of Windsor, Hartford, and Wethersfield, on January 14, 1639, 361 years ago. The form, according to historians, was "the first written Constitution, in the modern sense of the term, as a permanent limitation on governmental power, known in history, and certainly the first American Constitution of government to embody the Democratic idea."

I shall quote the following references to the Deity from The Fundamental Orders of Connecticut: Forasmuch as it hath pleased the Almighty God by the wise disposition of his divine providence . . .; "and well knowing where a people are gathered together the word of God requires that to maintain the peace and union of such a people, there should be an orderly and decent government established according to God, . . ."; ". . . to maintain and preserve the liberty and purity of the Gospel of our Lord Jesus which we now profess, . . ."; ". . . do swear by the great and dreadful name of the everlasting God, . . ."; ". . . so help me God, in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ . . ."; ". . . according to the righteous rule of God's word; so help me God, and so forth."

Now let us look at the opening words of the treaty with Great Britain in 1783, 217 years ago, providing for the complete independence of the American states and acknowledgment by Great Britain: "In the name of the Most Holy and Undivided Trinity. It having pleased the Divine Providence to dispose the hearts of the most serene and most potent Prince George III, by the grace of God. . . ."

The foregoing extracts, and others, from American historical documents are sufficient to impress us with the fact that religious conviction permeated the blood stream of American Constitutionalism and American statecraft as far back as 200 years prior to the writing of the Constitution in 1787.

Now let us examine the first inaugural address of George Washington, 1789, who had been chairman of the convention which framed the Constitution. Here is the greatest President we have ever had. A few extracts therefrom will leave no doubt as to where the Nation's first President stood when it came to religious expression in matters pertaining to Government: ". . . it would be peculiarly improper to omit, in this first official act, my fervent supplications to that Almighty Being who rules over the Universe, who presides in the councils of nations, and whose providential aids can supply every human defect, that His benediction may consecrate to the liberties and happiness of the people of the United States a government instituted by themselves for these essential purposes, and may enable every instrument employed in its administration to execute with success the functions allotted to His charge. In tendering this homage to the great Author of every public and private good, I assure myself that it expresses your sentiments not less than my own; nor those of my fellow citizens at large less than either. No people can be bound to acknowledge and adore the Invisible Hand which conducts the affairs of men more than the people of the United States. Every step by which they have advanced to the character of an independent nation, seems to have been distinguished by some token of providential agency."

That is George Washington, the father of our country, the commander in chief at Valley Forge, the presiding officer of the Constitutional Convention, first President of the United States and the best by any measure, by any standard. He had no hesitancy in speaking of that invisible hand that guides the Nation. If he were alive today and a Member of this Senate or a Member of the Supreme Court or President of the United States again. How clear, how incisive, and how powerful were these allusions to God by our first and greatest President!

Further expressions by George Washington in that same inaugural address were indicative of an unabashed religious faith:

Since we ought to be no less persuaded that the propitious smiles of heaven can never be expected on a nation that disregards the eternal rules of order and right, which heaven itself has ordained; . . . I shall take my present leave, but not without resorting once more to the benign Parent of the human race, in humble supplication, that, since He has been pleased to favor the American people with opportunities for deliberating in perfect tranquility . . .; . . . so His divine blessing may be equally conspicuous in the enlarged views, the temperament consultations and the wise measures, on which the success of this government must depend.

There you have it.

Having quoted from Washington's first inaugural address, now let me quote briefly from Lincoln's first inaugural address—no hesitation here about calling upon—no hesitancy here about calling upon the Creator: "If the Almighty Ruler of Nations—he is not talking about King George III—with His eternal truth and justice, be on your side of the North, or on yours of the South, that truth and that justice will surely prevail by the judgment of this great tribunal of the American people . . .; Intelligence, patriotism, Christianity, and a firm reliance on Him who has never yet forsaken this favored land are still competent to adjust in the best way all our present difficulty."

Issuing the Emancipation Proclamation in 1863, Lincoln closed his remarks with these words: "And upon this act, sincerely believed to be an act of justice, warranted by the Constitution, upon military necessity, I invoke the considerate judgment of mankind and the gracious favor of Almighty God." That is Abraham Lincoln.

Lincoln, in his second inaugural address, rises to a rare pitch of eloquence, marked by a singular combination of tenderness and determination:

If we shall suppose that American slavery is one of those offenses which, in the providence of God, must needs come, but which, having continued through His appointed time, He now wills to remove, and that He gives to both North and South this terrible war, as the woe due to those by whom the offense came, shall we discern therein any departure from those divine attributes which the believers in a living God always ascribe to Him? Fondly do we hope—fervently do we pray—that this mighty scourge of war may speedily pass away. Yet, if God wills that it continue until all the wealth piled by the bondsman's 250 years of unrequited toil shall be sunk, and until every drop of blood drawn with the lash shall be paid by another drawn with a sword, as was said three thousand years ago, so still it must be said: "The judgments of the Lord are true and righteous altogether."

Now hear that, Supreme Court of the United States. Hear those words by Abraham Lincoln.

Lincoln then went on to say those words with which we all are so familiar: "With malice towards none; with charity for all; with firmness in the right, as God gives us to see the right, let us strive on to finish the work we are in; to bind up the nation's wounds; to care for him who shall have borne the battle and for his widow and his orphan, to do all which may achieve and cherish just and lasting peace among ourselves and with all nations."

How can one read and reflect upon these clear and unrestrained references to Almighty God expressed by our nation's two greatest Presidents—Washington and Lincoln—and hold any doubt whatsoever as to the impact of religion upon the thoughts, the character, and the lives of the two greatest statesmen America has ever produced?

And yet, the Supreme Court in recent years, in majority opinions, has not scrupled to bow to materialism in the Court's rulings concerning voluntary prayer in public school settings!

A further examination of the inaugural addresses of the Presidents finds John Adams, the second President, closing his inaugural address with the following invocation:

And may that Being who is supreme over all, the Patron of Order, the Fountain of Justice, and the Protector in all ages of the world of virtuous liberty, continue His blessing upon this nation and its government and give it all possible success and duration consistent with the ends of His providence.

Thomas Jefferson's closing words in his second inaugural address were these:

I shall need, too, the favor of that Being in whose hands we are, who led our fathers, as Israel of old, from their native land and planted them in a country flowing with all the necessities and comforts of life; who has covered our infancy with His providence and our riper years with His wisdom and power, and to whose goodness I ask you to join in supplications with me that He will so enlighten the minds of your servants, guide their councils, and prosper their measures that whatsoever they do shall result in your good, and shall secure to you the peace, friendship, and approbation of all nations.

James Madison, the chief author of our Constitution, showed no hesitancy in expressing his dependence upon Providence:

My confidence will under every difficulty be best placed, next to that which we have all been encouraged to feel in the guardianship and guidance of that Almighty Being whose power regulates the destiny of nations, whose blessings have been so conspicuously dispensed to this rising Republic, and to whom we are bound to address our devout gratitude for the past, as well as our fervent supplications and best hopes for the future.

Having quoted from the inaugural addresses of our country's first four Presidents, I shall now recall to my fellow Senators references to God in the inaugural addresses of four Presidents in the current 20th century. I begin with William Howard Taft who, subsequent to having served as President, fulfilled a lifelong dream in 1921 when he was sworn in as Chief Justice of the United States. He ended his inaugural address with these words:

I invoke the considerate sympathy and support of my fellow citizens and the aid of the Almighty God in the discharge of my responsible duties.

Franklin D. Roosevelt refers to the Supreme Being in each of his inaugural addresses, but I shall quote only from the fourth and last:

The Almighty God has blessed our land in many ways. He has given our people stout hearts and strong arms with which to strike mighty blows for freedom and truth. He has given to our country a faith which has become the hope of all peoples in an anguished world.

So we pray to Him now for the vision to see our way clearly—to see the way that leads to a better life for ourselves and for all our fellow men—to the achievement of His will, to peace on earth.

Dwight D. Eisenhower, who had been Supreme Commander of Allied Forces in Europe during World War II, and had served as Supreme Commander of NATO, took the oath of office as President using both George Washington's Bible and one given to him by his mother at his graduation from the Military Academy at West Point.

Many of us remember his prayer at the beginning of his first inaugural address:

Almighty God, as we stand here at this moment my future associates in the executive branch of government join me in beseeching that Thou will make full and complete our dedication to the service of the people in this throng, and their fellow citizens everywhere.

Give us, we pray, the power to discern clearly right from wrong, and allow all our words and actions to be governed thereby, and by the laws of this land. Especially we pray that our concern shall be for all the people regardless of station, race, or calling.

May cooperation be permitted and be the mutual aim of those who, under the concepts of our Constitution, hold to differing political faiths; so that all may work for the good of our beloved country and Thy glory. Amen.

Dwight D. Eisenhower led the Nation in prayer himself.

Eisenhower's was the first prayer to be uttered by a President in his inaugural address to the nation, but it was not to be the last. President Reagan, in his second inaugural address, began his inaugural address with a silent prayer:

I wonder if we could all join in a moment of silent prayer. [Moment of silent prayer.] Amen.

George Bush, after taking the oath with his hand placed on George Washington's Bible, began his presidency with a prayer:

And my first act as President is a prayer. I ask you to bow your heads:

Heavenly father, we bow our heads and thank You for Your love. Accept our thanks for the peace that yields this day and the shared faith that makes its continuance likely. Make us strong to do Your work, willing to heed and hear Your will, and write on our hearts these words: 'Use power to help people.' For we are given power not to advance our own purposes, nor to make a great show in the world, nor a name. There is but one just use of power, and it is to serve people. Help us to remember it, Lord. Amen.

That was George Bush.

I have a reason for quoting from these great American documents and for these inaugural and other addresses by some of our Presidents. There have been other Presidents whom I could have quoted.

All of these references to religious faith that I have quoted from early American documents and from inaugural addresses by Presidents bear witness to the fact that a strong spiritual consciousness has pervaded the fabric of American statecraft and American Constitutionalism for two centuries prior to the writing of the U.S. Constitution and for these two centuries following that event.

Mr. President, the Framers of the Constitution, the voters who ratified that Constitution, the members of the First Congress who supported the first amendment to the Constitution, and the people in the states who ratified the First Amendment, would be aghast at the interpretations of the First Amendment clause by U.S. Supreme Court rulings concerning prayer in the public schools of America. I say that those rulings are having the effect of "prohibiting the free exercise" of religion. The court has drifted too far from the shore.

I lauded the six members of the Supreme Court whose votes declared the Line Item Veto Act of 1995 to be unconstitutional. But the Court's majority has adopted a dangerous trend in case after case concerning the free exercise of religion in the public schools. The situation has become so bad that most school boards frown upon the use of God's name by teachers or students for fear of being hit with a costly law suit. I have had that happen right in West Virginia, and just within the last year. Consequently, God is being driven out of the public schools completely. I shudder to think that what we put into the schools will, in a generation, dominate the nation, and what we drop from the schools will, in a generation, leave the nation. Can it be said, therefore, that the U.S. Supreme Court is heading us down the road to becoming a godless nation?

The opponents of voluntary prayer in schools are quick to say that the place for prayer is in the home—and it is—and not in the schoolroom. This argument portrays an amazing ignorance of the religious awareness that has been the underpinning of our Republic from its earliest beginnings. Prayer in the public schools was prevalent in our country until the courts began to whittle away at this tradition in recent years. So, we are told that there is no place for God in the schoolroom.

It must be confusing to the child who is taught by parents at bedtime to repeat the words: "Now I lay me down to sleep, I pray the Lord my soul to keep; if I should die before I wake, I pray the Lord my soul to take", but if the same child mentions the Lord's name in school, the teacher feels it necessary to say "shuh, we must not mention the Lord's name in school."

At home and at the breakfast table, America's children are taught to say: "God is great, God is good, and we thank Him for this food; by His goodness all are fed, give us Lord our daily bread," but in the schoolroom at lunchtime, the children must not say grace over the food. That might offend someone. Hence, the home and the school are at war with each other today.

I wonder if the high court is aware of the chaos that it is creating in the schools of the country? School administrators are caught in a bind. I wonder if the court is aware of the harm that it is doing to the nation when it strongly enforces the first half of the religious clause while it shows a dangerous bias against the second half of the same clause? Isn't it about time that the Supreme Court demonstrates an equal balance in its interpretation of the first sentence of the First Amendment to the Constitution? It seems to me that the court is drifting farther and farther to the left of center in its drift towards materialism and radical secularism as its opinions serve more and more to inhibit any display of religious belief by the nation's school children. In an effort to ensure a tolerance for all beliefs, the courts are bending too far, in effect, establishing an environment of intolerance rather than tolerance.

Mr. President, we rail, and moan, and gnash our teeth, and wring our hands as we see more and more violence in our schools and a general decline in morals throughout the nation. Is it any wonder? Our nation's leaders are no longer paragons of rectitude. Don't point to them as being the idols of our youth. The institution of marriage is crumbling; the church, more and more, refrains from speaking out boldly on the great moral issues of the day; and God is being driven from the classrooms of our nation's schools by the U.S. Supreme Court's decisions that favor secularism, materialism, and the stifling of any voluntary and free exercise of religion in the public schools. Is it any wonder that more and more parents are determined to send their children to private schools and to religious schools?

Mr. President, George Washington, the Father of our country, our first President, bequeathed to us a clear vision of the importance of religion to morality in our national life, when he said, in his farewell address to the nation in September, 1796: "Of all the dispositions and habits which lead to political prosperity, religion and morality are indispensable supports. In vain would that man claim the tribute of patriotism who should labor to subvert these great pillars of human happiness, these firmest props of the duties of men and citizens. The mere politician, equally with the pious man, ought to respect and to cherish them. A volume could not trace all their connections with private and public felicity. Let it simply be asked, George Washington said, where is the security for property, for reputation, for life, if the sense of religious obligation desert the oaths, which are the instruments of investigations in courts of justice? And let us with caution indulge the supposition that morality can be maintained without religion. It can't be done. Whatever may be conceded to the influence of refined education on minds of peculiar structure, reason and experience both forbid us to expect that national morality can prevail in exclusion of religious principle." I hope the Supreme Court will review those words by our first president, the man who presided over the Constitutional Convention in 1787.

Mr. President, it is not an idle reflection if, while discussing the issue of prayer in the public schools, we contemplate the profundity of Benjamin Franklin's words to the Constitutional Convention on June 28, 1787, when he made a sobering suggestion that brought the assembly of doubting minds "to a realization that destiny herself sat as guest and witness in this room." The weather had been hot, and the delegates to the Convention were tired and edgy. The debates were seemingly getting nowhere and a melancholy cloud seemed to hover over the Convention. Little progress was being made, and the prevailing winds were those of discouragement, dissension, and despair, when old Dr. Franklin, sitting with the famous double spectacles low on his nose, broke silence; he had said little during these past days. Addressing himself to George Washington in the chair, Franklin, according to Catherine Drinker Bowen, in her book, "Miracle at Philadelphia," reminded the Convention how, at the beginning of the war with England, the Continental Congress had had prayers for Divine protection, and in this very room. "Our prayers, Sir, were heard," said Franklin, "and they were graciously answered. All of us who were engaged in the struggle must have observed frequent instances of a Superintending providence in our favor. To that kind Providence we owe this happy opportunity of consulting in peace on the means of establishing our future national felicity. And have we now forgotten that powerful friend? I have lived, Sir, a long time, and the longer I live, the more convincing proofs I see of this truth—that God governs in the affairs of men."

Bowen, in her magnificent story of the Constitutional Convention, goes on to say that on Dr. Franklin's manuscript of his little speech, "the word God is twice underscored, perhaps as indication to the printer. But whether or no Franklin looked upon the Deity as worthy of three capital letters, his speech was timely." You will read this same speech in Madison's notes.

"If a sparrow cannot fall to the ground unseen by Him," Franklin continued, "was it probable that an empire could arise without his aid? 'I firmly believe this, and I also believe that without his concurring aid we shall succeed in this political building no better than the builders of Babel.'" Franklin proposed that "henceforth prayers imploring the assistance of heaven and its blessings on our deliberations, be held in this Assembly every morning before we proceed to business, and that one or more of the clergy of this city be requested to officiate in that service."

Roger Sherman at once seconded Franklin's motion. Incidentally, on yesterday, July 16, 1787, the convention adopted the great compromise, without which none of us would be here today. That compromise established two bodies in the legislative branch and provided that each State would be equal in this branch, that we would have votes in this branch. I won't go further, but you might recall it was only yesterday.

But Hamilton and several others, wrote Madison, feared that calling in a clergymen at so late a stage might lead the public to suspect dissensions in the Convention. Williamson of North Carolina made the frank statement that everyone knew the real reason for not engaging a chaplain: the Convention had no funds. Franklin's motion failed, though Randolph proposed that on the approaching Fourth of July, a sermon be preached at the request of the Convention and that thenceforth prayers be used. In any event, we can all learn a lesson from this episode: God was very much a part of national life at a time when the greatest document of its kind—the Constitution of the United States—was ever written, a time when it was being formed.

Mr. President, I close with words from the Bible, which Franklin aptly used in his speech: "Except the Lord build the house, they labor in vain that build it; except the Lord keep the city, the watchman waketh but in vain."

It would be well, Mr. President, if this Biblical admonition were kept in mind as future cases concerning school prayer come before the courts of the land.

As a matter of fact, this admonition is one on which all three branches of government should reflect. We here in the legislative branch bear some responsibility. Here is where laws are made, and here is where some positive steps could originate on a path toward correcting a court imposed imbalance. The executive branch, too, could play some useful role in that regard. This being an election year, I urge that the Democratic and Republican political Conventions adopt planks—why not—in their respective platforms advocating a Constitutional amendment concerning prayer in schools. Both the Democratic and Republican nominees for President should be urged to support such an amendment.

Both nominees should be urged to speak out on this subject during the campaigns. I intend to urge that both nominees do that.

I thank all Senators and I yield the floor.

Mr. HOLLINGS. I see the distinguished Senator from Colorado is supposed to take over the time. I ask unanimous consent to be yielded 5 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. KYL). Under the previous order, the Senator from Wyoming, Mr. THOMAS, or his designee, has from 2 o'clock until 3 p.m.

Does the Senator from Colorado wish to respond to the Senator from South Carolina?

Mr. ALLARD. I am willing to grant the Senator from South Carolina 5 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from South Carolina is recognized.

THE DEBT AND TAX CUTS

Mr. HOLLINGS. Mr. President, in response to my amendment relative to eliminating the tax cut, I ask unanimous consent that my comments of February 10, this year, in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD, be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

FRAUD

Mr. HOLLINGS. Mr. President, if people back home only knew. This whole town is engaged in the biggest fraud. Tom Brokaw has written that the greatest generation suffered the Depression, won the war, and then came back to lead. They not only won the war but were conscientious about paying for that war and Korea and Vietnam. Lyndon Johnson balanced the budget in 1969.

I ask unanimous consent to print in the RECORD the record of all the Presidents, since President Truman down through President Clinton, of the deficit and debt, the national debt, and interest costs.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

* Historical Tables, Budget of the US Government FY 1998; Beginning in 1962 CBO'S 2001 Economic and Budget Outlook.

Mr. HOLLINGS. Mr. President, Lyndon Johnson balanced the budget in 1969. At that time, the national debt was $365 billion with an interest cost of only $16 billion. Now, under a new generation without the cost of a war, the debt has soared to $5.6 trillion with annual interest costs of $365 billion. That is right. We spend $1 billion a day for nothing. It does not buy any defense, any education, any health care, or highways. Astoundingly, since President Johnson balanced the budget, we have increased spending $349 billion for nothing.

Early each morning, the Federal Government goes down to the bank and borrows $1 billion and adds it to the national debt. We have not had a surplus for 30 years. Senator TRENT LOTT, commenting on President Clinton's State of the Union Address, said the talk cost $1 billion a minute. For an hour-and-a-half talk, that would be $90 billion a year. Governor George W. Bush's tax cut costs $90 billion a year. Together, that is $180 billion. Just think, we can pay for both the Democratic and Republican programs with the money we are spending on interest and still have $185 billion to pay down the national debt. Instead, the debt increases, interest costs increase, while all in town, all in the Congress, shout: Surplus, surplus, surplus.

Understand the game. Ever since President Johnson's balanced budget, the Government has spent more each year than it has taken in—a deficit. The average deficit for the past 30 years was $175 billion a year. This is with both Democratic and Republican Presidents and Democratic and Republican Congresses. Somebody wants to know why the economy is good? If you infuse $175 billion a year for some 30 years and do not pay for it, it ought to be good.

The trick to calling a deficit a surplus is to have the Government borrow from itself. The Federal Government, like an insurance company, has various funds held in reserve to pay benefits of the program—Social Security, Medicare, military retirement, civilian retirement, unemployment compensation, highway funds, airport funds, railroad retirement funds.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to print in the RECORD a list of trust funds located to balance this budget.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

	1998	1999	2000
Social Security	730	855	1,009
Medicare:
HI	118	154	176

Mr. HOLLINGS. Mr. President, these funds are held in trust for the specific purpose for which the taxes are collected.

Under corporate law, it is a felony to pay off the company debt with the pension fund. But in Washington we pay down the public debt with trust funds, call it a surplus, and they give us the "Good Government" award.

To make it sound correct, we divide the debt in two: The public debt and the private debt. Of course, our Government is public, and the law treats the debt as public without separation. The separation allows Washington politicians to say: We have paid down the public debt and have a surplus. There is no mention, of course, that the Government debt is increased by the same amount that the public debt is decreased. It is like paying off your MasterCard with your Visa card and saying you do not owe anything. Dr. Dan Crippen, the Director of the Congressional Budget Office, describes this as "taking from one pocket and putting it in the other."

For years we have been using the trust funds to report a unified budget and a unified deficit. This has led people to believe the Government was reporting net figures. It sounded authentic. But as the unified deficit appeared less and less, the national debt continued to increase. While the unified deficit in 1997 was $21.9 billion, the actual deficit was $187.8 billion. In 1998 the unified budget reported a surplus of $70 billion, but actually there was a deficit of $109 billion. In 1999 the "unified surplus" was $124 billion, but the actual deficit was $127.8 billion.

Now comes the Presidential campaign. Social Security is a hot topic. Both parties are shouting: Save Social Security. Social Security lockbox. The economy is humming, booming. With high employment, the Social Security revenues have increased. It appears that, separate from Social Security, there will be enough trust fund money to compute a surplus. We have reached the millennium—Utopia—enough money to report a surplus without spending Social Security.

Washington jargon now changes. Instead of a "unified budget," the Government now reports an "on-budget" and an "off-budget." This is so we can all call it an on-budget surplus, meaning without Social Security. But to call it an on-budget surplus, the Government spends $96 billion from the other trust funds.

We ended last year with a deficit of $128 billion—not a surplus. The President's budget just submitted shows an actual deficit each year for the next 5 years. Instead of paying down the debt, the President shows, on page 420 of his budget, the debt increasing from the year 2000 to the year 2013—$5.686 trillion to $6.815 trillion, an increase of $1.129 trillion.

They are all talking about paying off the debt by 2013, and the actual document they submit shows the debt increasing each year, and over that period an increase of over $1 trillion.

Each year, Congress spends more than the President's budgets. There is no chance of a surplus with both sides proposing to reduce revenues with a tax cut. But we have a sweetheart deal: The Republicans will call a deficit a surplus, so they can buy the vote with tax cuts; the Democrats will call the deficit a surplus, so they can buy the vote with increased spending. The worst abuse of campaign finance is using the Federal budget to buy votes.

Alan Greenspan could stop this. He could call a deficit a deficit. Instead, appearing before Congress in his confirmation hearing, Greenspan, talking of the Federal budget, stated: "I would fear very much that these huge surpluses . . ." and on and on. We are in real trouble when Greenspan calls huge deficits "huge surpluses." Greenspan thinks his sole role is to protect the financial markets. He does not want the U.S. Government coming into the market borrowing billions to pay its deficit, crowding out private capital, and running up interest costs.

But Congress' job is to not only protect the financial markets but the overall economy. Our job, as the board of directors for the Federal Government, is to make sure the Government pays its bills. In short, our responsibility is to eliminate waste.

The biggest waste of all is to continue to run up the debt with devastating interest costs for nothing. In good times, the least we can do is put this Government on a pay-as-you-go basis. Greenspan's limp admonition to "pay down the debt" is just to cover his backside. He knows better. He should issue a clarion call to stop increasing the debt. While he is raising interest rates to cool the economy, he should categorically oppose tax cuts to stimulate it.

Our only hope is the free press. In the earliest days, Thomas Jefferson observed, given a choice between a free government and a free press, he would choose the latter. Jefferson believed strongly that with the press reporting the truth to the American people, the Government would stay free.

Our problem is that the press and media have joined the conspiracy to defraud. They complain lamely that the Federal budget process is too complicated, so they report "surplus." Complicated it is. But as to being a deficit or a surplus is clear cut; it is not complicated at all. All you need to do is go to the Department of the Treasury's report on public debt. They report the growth in the national debt every day, every minute, on the Internet at "www.publicdebt.treas.gov."

In fact, there is a big illuminated billboard on Sixth Avenue in New York that reports the increase in the debt by the minute. At present, it shows that we are increasing the debt every minute by $894,000. Think of that—$894,000 a minute. Of course, increase the debt, and interest costs rise. Already, interest costs exceed the defense budget. Interest costs, like taxes, must be paid. Worse, while regular taxes support defense, and other programs, interest taxes support waste. Running a deficit of over $100 billion today, any tax cut amounts to an interest tax increase—an increase in waste.

If the American people realized what was going on, they would run us all out of town.

Mr. HOLLINGS. I ask unanimous consent the Public Debt to the Penny, issued by the Secretary of the Treasury, dated as of last Friday, July 14, be printed in the RECORD.

Mr. HOLLINGS. Mr. President, right to the point. Surplus, surplus, everywhere man cries surplus—paraphrasing Patrick Henry. But there is no surplus.

I know not, of course, what others may say, but as for me, I want to pay down the debt rather than engage in this shabby charade. As a result, the only way to do that and pay down the debt is stop this sweetheart deal of giving a little on spending increases and giving a little again, of course, on tax cuts. We do not have a surplus to divide. That is the point of my particular amendment.

I appreciate the distinguished Senator from Colorado giving me these few moments, and I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. BUNNING). The Senator from Colorado.

ELIMINATING THE MARRIAGE PENALTY

Mr. ALLARD. Mr. President, I have come to the floor to support eliminating the marriage penalty. I think it is timely that we have some votes scheduled this evening, I understand about 6:15 p.m. By eliminating the marriage penalty, we eliminate one of the most egregious examples of unfairness and complexity in the Tax Code to date. Another example of that would be the death tax or the inheritance tax. We dealt with that issue last week. I am extremely excited that it has passed the House, passed the Senate, and is now going on to the President for his signature.

Both these taxes are prominent concerns of my constituents, at a time when the tax burden is at record high levels in this country. When we are talking about eliminating the death tax, we are talking about the family business and what happens to a family business after an unexpected death without any estate planning, and how much the Government takes of that estate, forcing the sale. Many times it is a farm or a ranch that has been in the family for many, many generations.

When we talk about the marriage penalty—we are eliminating that unfair burden—we are talking about the family. We are talking about reducing the tax burden. We are talking about fairness and Tax Code simplification.

Just a brief description needs to be made of the marriage penalty. The marriage penalty exists when a married couple, filing a joint tax return, pays higher taxes than if the same couple were not married and were filing as individuals. The penalty varies, depending on the tax bracket in which the couple may find themselves. The example that has been used before is based on an assumption that both spouses are each holding down separate jobs, each earning about $30,000, in 1999. It is determined they would pay about $7,655 in Federal income taxes. If these two individuals were not married and both earned the same amount of money, and had each filed a single tax return, they would pay only $6,892 in combined tax liability. There is a $763 difference in tax liability. This is what we refer to when we talk about the marriage tax penalty.

According to the Congressional Budget Office, almost half of all married couples—it figures out to about 22 million—suffered from the marriage tax penalty last year. The average penalty paid by these couples was around $1,500. In the previous example, the marriage penalty was the result of a higher combined standard deduction for two workers filing as singles than for married couples, and the income tax bracket thresholds for married couples are less than twice the threshold for single taxpayers. We are trying to eliminate this problem.

The best illustration of the real tax burden faced by families is to compare today's tax burden of an average family with the tax burden of a family with average income of four decades ago. The total tax burden for the family today is 39 percent of its income. That is up from 18 percent in 1955. The Federal payroll taxes and State and local taxes have literally doubled the total tax burden faced by families. As a result, the middle-income family today has 25 percent less disposable income than a similar family in 1955.

The bill we have been working on in the Senate, and which many of us support, addresses the standard deduction problem I alluded to, and it increases the standard deduction for married couples filing jointly to twice the standard deduction for single taxpayers. According to the Subcommittee on Taxation, this provision provides tax relief to approximately 25 million couples filing joint returns. Hopefully, it can be made effective after December 31, 2000. That is what we are talking about in this particular marriage penalty relief bill.

It also raises the tax brackets. The bill expands, over a 6-year period—this is not happening all at once, it is gradually happening over a 6-year period—the 15-percent and 28-percent income tax brackets for a married couple filing a joint return to twice the size of the corresponding brackets for an individual filing a single return. This is a phase-in provision, ultimately providing relief to 21 million married couples, including 3 million senior citizens.

We also try to address the earned-income credit. This bill increases the beginning and the end of the phase out of the earned-income credit for couples filing a joint return. Currently, for a couple with two or more children, the earned-income credit begins phasing out at $12,690 and is eliminated for couples earning more than $31,152. Under this bill, the new range would be $2,500 higher. The maximum increase in the earned-income tax credit in this provision for an eligible couple is $526. As you recall, the earned-income tax credit was put in place to try to help low-income individuals so they would be encouraged to go out and get a job and to stay off welfare. Also, there is a provision preserving the family tax credits.

The bill permanently extends the current temporary exemption from the individual alternative minimum tax for family-related tax credits. This is so that, once you grant tax deductions and credits, the alternative minimum tax doesn't come in and take that all away.

One of the complaints I hear from my constituents is it seems as if Congress has been working on tax cuts, they pass tax cuts, they get signed by the President, but we don't seem to feel it when we are paying our taxes on April 15. One of the reasons that you do not feel it is because, in some cases, the alternative minimum tax kicks in, it takes effect, and that means the previous tax cuts that were applied to a particular taxpayer did not take effect because of the alternative minimum tax.

Members of the Democratic Party have thwarted passage of any kind of relief for marriage, as far as the Tax Code is concerned, since 1995. In 1995, we had the marriage tax penalty bill passed by the Congress, sent to the President, a Democratic President. He vetoed it. In 1999, we sent a bill to the Democratic President and he vetoed it. Earlier this year, in April, there was a Democratic filibuster that prevented a marriage penalty bill from moving forward. We need to pass and the President needs to sign a marriage tax penalty provision to give relief to married couples.

This year I have held town meetings in all 63 of Colorado's counties. At those meetings I heard from many of my constituents about how strongly they feel about tax relief. In Colorado, over 400,000 couples incur an additional tax burden simply because they are married.

I have some numbers here, numbers from the Congressional Budget Office. I find them very disturbing. Almost half of all married couples, the 22 million couples I mentioned earlier, suffered from the marriage penalty provisions last year.

Again, as in the rest of the country, many of these couples on average have suffered a $1,500 penalty where, if they had not been married, they would not have had to pay this amount.

Cumulatively, the marriage tax penalty increases the taxes on affected couples throughout the United States by about $32 billion per year. That is money that families could use toward their own needs, rather than Washington trying to set the priorities for American families.

This penalty is not a tax on the rich. The marriage tax penalty exists because of multiple tax brackets and the fact that the standard deductions for married couples are not twice those given to single people. This tax can be incurred by folks in every tax bracket. In fact, families with two wage earners are the hardest hit by the marriage penalty. There are more and more of these families in today's workforce. Many of these folks are in the lower to middle class—people working hard to provide for their children. Taxing these folks for being married is plain wrong.

Another one of the groups implicitly taxed under the marriage penalty is the working poor. The earned-income tax credit is an effective tool in helping these low-income workers, but the EITC is phased out more quickly for married couples than for individuals. So the families incur a greater tax burden simply for being married.

Some colleagues of mine call for more Government spending for education, health care, and housing. I believe if we simply allow the American family to keep more of their money, we permit them to better afford the things they need.

In this time of a historic budget surplus, we still have nearly record high taxation. Hard-working American families deserve to keep some of this money. It is theirs in the first place, and I see it as the responsibility of Congress to return some of this money to the people.

To permit the marriage tax penalty to continue is wrong. Allowing American families to keep this money is the right thing to do, and I believe it is time to do away with the marriage tax penalty.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Utah.

Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, I rise today to express my strong support for the Marriage Tax Penalty Relief Act of 2000. This much-needed bill has had a long and difficult journey in getting to this point where we can pass it in the Senate. Passage will occur today; and, as we did in 1999, the Congress will send legislation to help married couples being hurt by marriage tax penalties to the President.

I congratulate my colleague, the chairman of the Finance Committee, Senator ROTH, for his very effective leadership on this issue. I realize that this matter has not been an easy one for Chairman ROTH this year, because he has been unfairly criticized by our colleagues on the other side of the aisle for taking the approach on marriage tax penalty relief that is reflected in this bill. Let me explain.

The Senate last year, led by Chairman ROTH, passed a marriage penalty relief provision in the Taxpayer Refund Act, which used a different solution to the marriage penalty problem than the one included in the bill before us today. Last year's bill would have solved the marriage penalty problem by allowing married couples the option of filing as single taxpayers on a combined joint return. I supported that bill as did a majority of our colleagues. It was a good approach to solving a major tax problem for American families.

Last year's bill was effective in relieving the marriage penalty. However, it left untouched another glaring family tax problem that I will call the single-earner penalty. I would like to illustrate this with a hypothetical example of three Utah families.

Let's suppose we have three families, all neighbors living on the same street in Ogden, UT. These families are nearly identical, in that they each have three children and household incomes of $80,000 per year. The only differences in these three families are in the marital status of the parents and in who earns the income. In the first family, the Allen family, the parents are married and both work outside the home and earn $40,000 each for a total of $80,000. The second family, the Brown family, are also married but only the husband works outside the home, earning $80,000 per year. The third family, the Campbell-Clark family, are unmarried parents and each of them earns $40,000 per year for a total of $80,000.

As you can see from this chart, under current law, the Allen and the Brown families each pay about $9,200 in income tax each year. The Campbell-Clark family, however, because they can file as single taxpayers, pay only a combined $7,900. Because the Allens each earn one-half the family income, if they were to divorce and file as singles, they could reduce their combined tax bill down to $7,900, the same as the Campbell-Clarks. Therefore, the Allens suffer a marriage penalty of about $1,300 each year.

The marriage penalty relief provision included in last year's tax bill would have eliminated this marriage penalty and reduced the tax bill of the Allen family down to the same level paid by the Campbell-Clarks. However, by doing so it would have left behind the Brown family, who would still be paying income taxes of $9,200 per year.

This is not fair. We must not, in the name of fairness, fix the marriage tax problems of one category of families, but not another category. It is true that the Browns do not suffer a marriage penalty, but why should they pay higher taxes simply because their family income is earned by one spouse and not two?

There are approximately 210,000 couples in my home state of Utah, who, like the Allens, suffer a marriage penalty. However, there are also about 108,000 couples in Utah who are like the Browns, and would be left behind by marriage tax relief like we passed in 1999.

This is why this year's marriage penalty bill is superior to last year's. The bill before us today lowers the tax burden of both the Allen family and the Brown family. It alleviates the marriage penalty and the one-earner penalty. It does not leave any family behind.

In essence, the Internal Revenue Code results in marriage tax penalties and bonuses because it pursues three conflicting ideals or principles—marriage neutrality, equal treatment of married couples with the same household income, and progressive taxation.

The ideal of marriage neutrality states that a couple's tax liability should not be determined based on their marital status. In other words, there should not be a tax incentive either to marry, to remain single, or to divorce. Under our example, current law does penalize the Allen family, because they would pay about $1,300 per year less if they were to divorce and live together. That is ridiculous. We want to encourage people to live together in marriage.

The equally important principle of equal treatment holds that married couples with equal incomes should pay the same amount in taxes without regard to how much each spouse contributes to the couple's income. Under this principle, the Allens and the Browns should pay the same tax since they are both married with identical family incomes. Currently, they do pay the same, but this principle would be violated if we did not also lower the Browns' tax while fixing the Allens' marriage penalty.

Progressive taxation is the principle that those with higher incomes should pay a higher percentage of their incomes in taxes than is required of those with lower incomes.

It is mathematically impossible for the Tax Code to achieve all three of these tax policy ideals simultaneously.

One of the three objectives must be sacrificed. If we continue to insist on a progressive tax system, we cannot solve both the marriage penalty and the one-earner penalty. Simply put, last year's marriage penalty relief provision did solve the marriage penalty, but it violated the one-earner penalty. The bill before us today does not totally solve the marriage penalty, but it greatly alleviates it for most families. And, it does not create a one-earner penalty. All in all, it represents the fairest approach for the most families in our country.

As long as we have a progressive tax system, we will never achieve total family tax fairness. Therefore, no marriage tax penalty bill will be perfect. While making tremendous progress toward marriage penalty relief for most families, the bill before us leaves some serious marriage penalties in place.

For example, the current-law student loan interest deduction provision penalizes married couples struggling to pay off student loans. In February, the Senate passed an amendment to the education tax bill that Senator MACK and I offered that would have eliminated this problem. I had hoped to add that provision to this bill, but it would not be germane under the reconciliation rules. I hope we can take care of that problem in another tax bill later this year.

President Clinton has given strong indications he will veto this bill because it gives tax relief to families who do not suffer from marriage penalties. This is a shortsighted point of view that ignores the structure of our tax system and the needs of American families.

In fact, it kind of makes me wonder whether President Clinton's real concern is the idea of cutting taxes. He has made no secret of his opposition to tax cuts. He has fought us every step of the way in our efforts to return a portion of the budget surplus to those hard-working Americans who produced it.

But, I will be very sorry if a Presidential veto denies American families even this tax cut which is not being made for its own sake, but rather to correct a longstanding inequity in the Tax Code.

I implore the President to reconsider that all American families need fair and substantial tax relief—those where both spouses work outside the home as well as those where one parent stays home. I hope he will sign this bill into law.

And, allow me to say just a word about parents who forego outside income to remain at home. Everyone in this body knows that I believe we must have adequate child care for those families who need it. I have worked with my Republican colleagues and my Democratic colleagues across the aisle on child care legislation. But, I cannot say emphatically enough that the best child care is still provided by a parent. I have yet to hear a single Senator disagree with that. Yet, our Tax Code penalizes a family in which one parent makes this choice to stay at home with their children.

I am glad that my wife stayed home with our children. She did work in the early years of our marriage as a grade school teacher, but she stayed home virtually all of the time our children were growing up, and I think it shows.

It is high time we fix this problem. It is high time we correct the marriage penalty for both the Allens and the Browns in Utah, and families like them all over the country. Today, we have the means to do it. I say to my colleagues on the other side of the aisle: There are no more excuses.

Again, I thank Chairman ROTH for his insight and leadership on this important issue, and I urge my colleagues to support final passage of this bill. I urge President Clinton to sign it.

One last thing, and that is, when you have a $4.3 trillion surplus in the budget, you know darn well somebody is being taxed too much. Why can't we at least solve these inequities that are literally calling out to us for a solution? Why can't we make it clear that being married should not be a disadvantage to couples? Why don't we make it clear that we are going to treat married couples just as well as those who live together and are not married, who don't pay as much in taxes today?

These three families illustrate this as well as I think we can illustrate it. Why should the Allen family and the Brown family pay $9,222, while the Campbell-Clark family, just because they live together—each of them single, and each of them earning $40,000—why should they get a tax bill of $1,300 less than the other two families?

I urge the President to sign this bill. I think it is the right thing to do.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

THE PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Idaho.

PRAYERS AND THOUGHTS FOR SENATOR PAUL COVERDELL

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, before I deliver my remarks on the marriage tax penalty, for just a moment, let me say that our colleague, PAUL COVERDELL, is struggling at this moment. Our prayers and thoughts are with him and his wife Nancy as he struggles with his health in an Atlanta hospital. He is a champion of the issue of the marriage penalty tax relief.

MARRIAGE PENALTY TAX RELIEF

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, certainly, KAY BAILEY HUTCHISON, our colleague from Texas, has led us on the issue of the marriage penalty tax. I think probably she has sensitized all of us to it as only a woman can. I mean that in the sense of understanding the true balance that ought to be in this Tax Code that isn't in the Tax Code. She has been persistent with the Congress and with this Senate to assure that we develop a sense of equity and balance in the Tax Code that our marriage penalty tax relief legislation will offer.

Who pays the marriage penalty? In our country, about 22 million married couples do. They are not wealthy. They are modest- and middle-income families. In my State of Idaho, that is 129,710 families.

To really bring this home, if, from the time a couple marries, they were to put away, with interest, the difference in the disparity of taxes between $1,000 and $1,400 per year, on the average, for their first child, they could afford to pay 3 years of his or her education at a State institution in my State of Idaho. So it is significant. It is important. There is no question it would help, and can help, the American family.

The usual suspects out there who are opposed to this, I think, are using the most tired and sad arguments against tax relief. They simply are arguing from a position of the wrong facts. We have heard them whining about tax cuts and saying the tax cuts are for the rich and somehow you ought not give the rich any opportunity. Of course, in this instance they have simply missed the mark, and they know it. They know they are on the wrong side of this issue.

Tax relief, in the area of the marriage penalty tax, helps working families. It ends discrimination against married couples. It reduces the Tax Code's antifamily bias that no tax code should have in it. We have always said that the very foundation of our culture and our country is the family, and yet we take advantage of that union in the Tax Code by causing them to pay more in taxes.

Low- and middle-income married couples are the ones who truly are hurt by this penalty. On average, a married couple hit by the marriage penalty will pay about $1,400 more a year in taxes than two single persons at the same combined income. That is where the penalty rests.

In total, the marriage penalty overcharges couples in this country $32 billion a year, according to the Congressional Budget Office—that is right, $32 billion a year—that could stay out there with those young couples.

I use the example in my State of Idaho that if they simply put it in a bank, with interest, by the time their first child is old enough to go to college, they can afford his first or her first 3 years at a State institution in my State.

I think those who oppose marriage tax penalty relief oppose, frankly, all tax relief. The more they can get to spend on Government programs and Government solutions—and go home to their constituents and talk about what wonderful things Government is doing for them—somehow they think that most of our citizens are either undertaxed, and not giving enough to Government for all those wonderful solutions to their problems, or the current Tax Code is fair.

They are not worried about a Tax Code that charges a family an extra $1,400 or more, when a family certainly needs that additional income as they become a family unit. They are opposed to all tax relief. If you pay taxes, somehow, in this argument, you are rich; and the rich do not need the relief.

How many times have we heard that? At least I have heard it in the good number of years I have been in the Senate. Every time we talk about tax relief, somebody over there on the other side of the aisle says: Gee, those darn Republicans want to give that money back to the rich, and the rich don't need tax relief.

Low- and middle-income families do need tax relief. So the opposition on the other side always ponies up some kind of what I call tax-relief "lite" amendments to offer, so they can show some degree of compassion. Yet at the same time they offer nothing except a new Government program.

Let me break it down into the three most significant ways that the Tax Code extracts the marriage penalty for us to understand.

First of all, it is discrimination in the standard deduction area. About two-thirds of the taxpayers take the standard deduction. For a married couple, the standard deduction this year is $7,200. For two single taxpayers with the same combined income, it is $8,600. This is the first $392 of the marriage penalty. Lower and middle-income taxpayers are more likely to take the standard deduction than upper-income persons. Many middle-income families who itemize are still hurt by standard deduction discrimination because the amount of the standard deduction determines whether they itemize. In other words, one element triggers the other element in our Tax Code.

The Senate bill would provide relief to 25 million couples by making the standard deduction for married couples filing jointly equal to the standard deduction for two singles with the same combined income. That is a little complicated, but it is easy to understand that for those who take the standard deduction—and those tend to be the lower and middle-income families—the benefit is immediate and, as we have said, is approximately $1,400 a year.

The second area deals with discrimination in the earned-income tax credit area, the EITC. We are all familiar with the EITC. It is supposed to reward work, ease income tax and other tax burdens, and supplement incomes for low-income working families with children. It is astonishing, in a program designed to help lower income families, the phaseout schedule for EITC benefits again imposes an antimarriage, antifamily penalty. This is the very program Congress designed to help low-income families. Yet when we look inside the code, the way the IRS has interpreted it and administers it, there is an antimarriage, antifamily penalty. The Senate bill would begin addressing marriage penalty inequity in the EITC by first increasing the maximum credit by $526, starting the phaseout range $2,500 higher than it was at an income level just above $15,000.

The third area of discrimination is in the tax brackets. For the average couple paying a marriage penalty, bracket discrimination charges them another $1,000. Bracket discrimination usually takes the lower income earned by one spouse, which would be taxed in the 15-percent bracket if he or she were single, and taxes it at the other spouse's 28-percent rate. This devalues the spouse and the spouse's work that provides the second income for the family. Of course, in some instances, both spouses are professional and choose to seek their profession in the marketplace. In other marriages, one spouse simply wants to supplement the overall family income to broaden the ability of that family to earn, to save, to invest, and to provide for its children. In this instance, this particular structure of the Tax Code actually devalues the value of the income of that spouse who goes into the marketplace to earn additional income for the family.

For folks with modest means, this adds what we could easily call insult to the very injury that the Tax Code levies to the taxpayer. Time after time on this floor, we hear how many families are forced to earn a second income to make ends meet. Currently, the heavy hand of Government has the first claim on the second income. For anybody who would choose to vote against this particular provision, shame on them. Especially shame on them if they then turn around and argue that circumstances are so tough out there that every family needs two incomes. Let us work today to lessen that burden, to make it less tough, to give that family unit greater choices as to whether they both want to work in the marketplace or one would choose to stay home.

The Senate bill provides help for 21 million couples, including 3 million senior citizens, by expanding the 15-to-28 percent bracket for one couple to a range equal to that for two singles. In addition, this bill preserves the full effect of the family tax credits enacted in the 1997 Taxpayers Relief Act. We now find that particular provision taking effect. More and more middle-income families are slipping into the alternative minimum tax or the AMT. In fact, even some EITC families are now being affected by this. The AMT is already a dubious tax. It requires thousands of taxpayers to figure their returns according to two different tax systems. I don't think anyone really intended the AMT to apply and wipe out the family tax credits we enacted in 1997, including the $500-per-child tax credit, the HOPE education credit, the lifetime earnings credit, and the ongoing dependency care credit. It is time to cut back on the antifamily AMT, and that is exactly what this provision will do.

In conclusion, we want a Government that is truly profamily. Certainly all of us—and in a sincere way—want to make sure our laws are profamily. Yet those who will vote against the marriage tax penalty are talking about two different systems. They are being very inconsistent with honesty and integrity in debating this kind of an issue. You cannot talk profamily on one side of the issue and turn around and vote against this provision that we will be voting on on the floor this evening.

Our Tax Code says, unless we change it tonight, don't get married. And if you do, you are going to pay higher taxes. We say it is time we create equity in this equation. Our Tax Code says you will pay a penalty if both spouses work and you will be the most heavily taxed if your incomes are about equal. We say the best anti-poverty program is a family and a job in America, or two jobs in America taxable at a lower rate, leaving more money inside the family unit to provide for that family and those portions of the American dream they seek to secure. We encourage our citizens to dream a better dream, of a fairer and freer society. Our Tax Code has a great deal to say about the size and the scope of their dreams.

I hope we will vote tonight to strike a blow for a profamily, pro-American, American-dream approach, not have the Tax Code constantly confusing the message and sending a negative signal. We are going to pass it, I do believe, and seize the opportunity.

In closing, I say to the President: Come on. Quit playing the political games you are playing right now. You have to have this new spending program and this new spending program with a multitrillion-dollar surplus. Give the highest taxed generation in history just a little break. When this bill gets to your desk, sign it.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Virginia.

Mr. ROBB. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Democratic side be permitted to reclaim the 15 minutes accorded to the other side of the aisle earlier today so that I may speak at this particular moment.

Mr. CRAIG. Reserving the right to object, and I will not, I ask unanimous consent that Senator COLLINS retain 15 minutes in morning business prior to the Interior bill following the comments of the Senator from Virginia.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

PRESCRIPTION DRUG AMENDMENT ON THE MARRIAGE PENALTY RECONCILIATION BILL

Mr. ROBB. Mr. President, I rise today to speak about an amendment that I submitted on Friday to the marriage penalty bill, which the Senate will take up and vote on later today. My amendment, which is cosponsored by Senators KENNEDY, GRAHAM and BRYAN, follows up on a similar proposal I offered in April to the Senate budget resolution that would have required Congress to enact a new Medicare prescription drug benefit before considering any massive tax cuts. While a procedural hurdle prevented that amendment from passing, fifty-one senators voted to waive a budget point of order, indicating they favored it, and sending the American people a strong signal that a majority of the U.S. Senate thought we should put the needs of our nation's seniors before excessive tax cuts.

The majority, however, has moved in the opposite direction since then. This past Friday, we passed a large tax bill that would phase out the tax on the estates of those seniors who die, but did nothing to provide needed prescription drugs that can preserve the lives of those seniors who are living. Because I had cosponsored earlier legislation to ease the estate tax burden in order to preserve family farms and small businesses, I voted for this bill. Even though all of our Democratic amendments were defeated—and look forward to crafting more equitable legislation to address these same concerns after the President vetoes the bill we passed Friday.

The bill before the Senate now, however, is very different. Under the guise of eliminating the "marriage penalty," the majority has brought a bill to the floor that would devote over half of its benefits to people who either aren't married, or who are actually receiving right now a tax benefit, or "bonus," for being married. As I have stated previously, Mr. President, this takes a lot of chutzpah.

Mr. President, I believe we ought to eliminate the marriage penalty for those who actually suffer the marriage penalty and need the relief most. With all the rhetoric from the other side of the aisle about eliminating the marriage penalty, one might think that they'd share my view, and want to pass a bill that would actually focus on the penalty.

But a closer examination of the Republican bill reveals that it isn't quite what it's described to be. Mr. President, there are in fact 65 provisions in the current tax code that contain a marriage penalty, including Social Security. The bill reported from the Finance Committee on a straight party-line vote takes care of one marriage penalty provision completely and two others partially, and leaves the other 62 marriage penalties untouched. The Democratic bill addresses all 65 provisions, and takes care of the entire penalty for almost everyone.

Mr. President, it's time that we set our priorities straight. We ought not to be devoting billions of dollars of the surplus to individuals who currently suffer no marriage penalty whatever when we've done nothing to help those that suffer from the "senior citizens' drug penalty"—the high prices our nation's seniors are forced to pay for prescription drugs.

The amendment that I've offered would force Congress to address these priorities. It simply says that the tax bill before the Senate today won't take effect until Congress has also fulfilled its responsibility to enact a meaningful Medicare prescription drug benefit. My amendment won't prevent Congress from enacting marriage penalty relief this year, nor will it keep a single married couple from enjoying the tax benefits in this bill. What it will do is ensure that we don't backtrack from the Senate's vote to enact a prescription drug benefit before we do major tax cuts.

Let me say, Mr. President, that this isn't just rhetoric. The problems faced by our nation's seniors in affording prescription drugs are immediate and real. I'd like to remind the Senate of a story I heard from a physician in my state recently about a patient who was splitting her doses of Tamoxifen—a breast cancer drug—with two of her friends who also had breast cancer, but couldn't afford the medication. As a result, all three women had inadequate doses of the medication.

Or consider the story of a disabled father of three from Pennington Gap, Virginia, who broke his neck several years ago, and went from making $50,000 a year to $800 a month in disability benefits. While he qualifies for Medicare, he's forced to choose each month between spending nearly half of his disability benefit on prescription drugs, or helping out his family, because Medicare offers no coverage for his medications.

These Virginians are not alone in their troubles. The average Medicare beneficiary will spend $1100 on prescription drugs this year. Most of them won't have adequate prescription drug coverage to help them cover these crushing costs. And the numbers of those that do have coverage are dropping rapidly.

Despite the suggestions of some of my colleagues, this problem isn't limited solely to the poor. One in four Medicare beneficiaries with a high income—defined as $45,000 a year for a couple—has no coverage for prescription drugs. And while some seniors do have coverage, nearly half of them lack coverage for the entire year, making them extremely vulnerable to catastrophic drug costs.

Complicating this matter for the elderly is the "senior citizens' drug penalty" that seniors without drug coverage are forced to pay. Most working Americans who are insured through the private sector pay less than the full retail price for prescription drugs. This is because insurers generally contract with private sector entities that negotiate better prices for drugs, and pass on the power of group purchasing to their customers.

Seniors lack this option, however, and must still pay full price for their drugs. One recent study showed that seniors without drug coverage typically pay 15 percent more than people with coverage. And the percentage of Medicare beneficiaries without drug coverage who report not being able to afford a needed drug is about 5 times higher than those with coverage.

This "senior citizens' drug penalty," in my view, is unconscionable. Senior citizens are more reliant on drugs, and have higher drug costs, than any other segment of the population. They deserve to have the same bargaining power that benefits other Americans.

Mr. President, in April, the other side spoke against my budget amendment, claiming that there was already adequate language in the Republican budget resolution to ensure that we pass a prescription drug benefit this year. At the time, they pointed to the $40 billion reserve fund which was included in the budget resolution that the Committee had reported, arguing that this would provide ample money to enact a prescription drug benefit and offer tax relief.

Republicans asked, in essence, that we trust them that the Senate won't put tax cuts before our nation's seniors. Let me say that I do trust my good friends on the other side of the aisle. But to borrow a line from Ronald Reagan, I believe we should trust—but verify. That requires deeds as well as words.

Mr. President, our nation's seniors deserve better than this. In April, at least fifty-one senators felt the same way. I urge every one of them, as well as senators who opposed my amendment then because they thought the $40 billion reserve fund would guarantee a prescription drug benefit, to support my amendment now. With its passage, we'll be able to eliminate both the true "marriage penalty" and the "senior citizens' drug penalty."

With that, Mr. President, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Maine is recognized.

Ms. COLLINS. I believe under the previous order I will be recognized to speak.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is recognized for 15 minutes.

CONCERN FOR SENATOR PAUL COVERDELL

Ms. COLLINS. Mr. President, I want to express the sorrow that is in my heart, and I know in the hearts of all of my colleagues and, indeed, everybody who works in the Senate, about the sad news of the unexpected ill health of our friend and colleague, Senator PAUL COVERDELL of Georgia. My heart and my prayers go out to him, his family, his staff, his constituents, and all of the many people who care so much about our good friend. He will be in our hearts and in our prayers. I know I speak for all of my colleagues when I wish him a speedy recovery.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Maine is recognized.

CONCLUSION OF MORNING BUSINESS

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Morning business is closed.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR AND RELATED AGENCIES APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 2001

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the hour of 3 p.m. having arrived, the Senate will now resume consideration of H.R. 4578, which the clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (H.R. 4578) making appropriations for the Department of the Interior and related agencies for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2001, and for other purposes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Washington.

Mr. GORTON. Mr. President, we are now back for the final 3 and one-quarter hours of debate on amendments to the Interior appropriations bill. Any Member who reserved an amendment to that bill may present it between now and 6:15 this evening, at which time, by unanimous consent, we go to the marriage penalty bill for what may be an extended series of votes. Any of the amendments reserved on the Interior bill will be voted on, if, in fact, the vote is necessary, tomorrow morning.

I list 12 amendments that were reserved for debate during this period of time. I am informed by staff that we have settled 4 of them. That leaves eight amendments: two by the Senator from New Mexico, Mr. BINGAMAN; one by the Senator from California, Mrs. BOXER; one by the Senator from Nevada, Mr. BRYAN; one by the Senator from Connecticut, Mr. LIEBERMAN; one by the Senator from Oklahoma, Mr. NICKLES; one by the Senator from Rhode Island, Mr. REED; one by the Senator from Wyoming, Mr. THOMAS.

Curiously enough, most of these Senators who have said they will be here from between 5 o'clock and 6 o'clock p.m., which takes a considerable portion of the debate time, are away. I think some of those eight amendments I have listed will themselves be settled without debate or by agreement. If any of the seven Senators whose names I have just mentioned are within hearing and sight of this debate, I urge that Senator to reach the Senate floor promptly. At this point they have a real opportunity to present their amendments. Later on, they are likely to be very constricted as to time.

Therefore, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Ms. COLLINS). The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. THOMPSON. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. THOMPSON. Madam President, as we debate this bill to provide funding for the Department of the Interior in the next fiscal year, I would like to discuss an issue that is of increasing concern to me: our underinvestment in our national parks.

There are 379 national parks in the United States and U.S. territories, covering over 80 million acres. These parks provide Americans with an opportunity to enjoy activities such as hiking, camping, white water rafting, or horseback riding in some of the most beautiful sites in the world. The Great Smoky Mountains National Park in my home State of Tennessee is often referred to as the crown jewel of the national park system, and for good reason.

But one can't help but be concerned about what is happening in our parks today. I have seen first hand the problems associated with air pollution, traffic congestion, and invasive species in our parks. Folks come to the Smokies to escape the big city and breathe the clean mountain air. Unfortunately, there are too many days now when the air quality in the Smokies is worse than in major cities. Already this year, the park has recorded 13 days with unhealthy ozone levels. Who would believe that visiting a national park could be hazardous to your health?

Air pollution is also diminishing the experience of visitors in the park. People visit the Smokies for the magnificent mountain vistas. Unfortunately, the pollution reduces their visibility not only by affecting how far they can see from a scenic overlook, but also how well they can see. Ground level ozone washes out the bright colors of the leaves in the fall and the flowers in the spring. These air quality problems have landed the Great Smoky Mountains National Park on the list of 10 most endangered national parks compiled by the National Parks and Conservation Association.

Another major threat facing many of our national parks, including the Smokies, is damage from invasive species. Organisms that are not native to parks are finding their way in and are killing wildlife. Virtually all of the frasier firs on top of Klingman's Dome in the Smokies are dead. At first glance, it would appear that they were killed by fire, but that is not the case. These trees were killed by the balsam woolly adelgid which is not native to the Smokies and has no natural predator there.

These and similar problems afflict our entire national park system. That is why I'm pleased that the appropriations bill before us today recognizes these serious threats by providing $11 million for the National Park Service's Natural Resource Challenge. This money will help fund air and water quality studies in our parks. It will also fund efforts to address the problems caused by non-native invasive species. I thank the Senators from Washington and West Virginia for their attention to these needs. I especially thank Senator GORTON for his leadership as chairman of this very important subcommittee.

I am also growing increasingly concerned that our national parks are showing the wear and tear of neglect. Each year our parks are host to more and more visitors. In 1998, almost 300 million people visited our national parks. Ten million of those visitors went to the Smokies, making it the most visited national park in the country. That is more visitors than the Grand Canyon and Yosemite combined—which rank second and third in terms of park visitation.

We in Tennessee and North Carolina welcome these visitors to our beautiful mountains. National parks are here to be used and enjoyed. But our parks are laboring under their popularity. One might say our parks are being loved to death. We must face up to the stresses to infrastructure that result from increased visitation. More visitors cause more wear and tear on the trails, campgrounds, and roads. Growing visitation also requires higher staffing levels in the parks since more visitors mean more stranded hikers that need to be rescued, more comfort stations that need to be cleaned, and more trash that needs to be picked up.

Unfortunately, park budgets have not kept pace with increases in visitation. The National Park Service estimates that there is currently a $4.3 million maintenance backlog. Park Service staff are struggling to do more with fewer resources.

Fortunately, they have been able to rely on a number of organizations for help such as friends groups, the National Park Foundation and other cooperating associations. These organizations raise money to fund maintenance and educational projects within the parks.

I am proud that the Friends of the Great Smoky Mountains National Park is held up as the model friends group for the country. Over the last 7 years, the Friends of the Smokies has raised $6 million—$1.5 million last year alone. This money has come from donation boxes in the park, license plate sales, telethons and direct contributions. And, it is used for a variety of projects. For example, the Friends just produced a new orientation film to welcome park visitors. The Friends funded the restoration of the historic Mount Cammerer Fire Tower. And, the Friends help organize and manage volunteer projects in the park. When a team of volunteers goes out to work on a trail, it's the Friends of the Smokies that buys the materials needed to do the job. The hard work and generosity on the part of the Friends of the Smokies is critical to assisting the Park Service officials maintain our valuable natural resource.

Just as important as the financial contributions to our national parks are the generous donations of time. This year alone, volunteers will donate almost 75,000 hours valued at $1.1 million to run the visitor centers and help maintain trails and campgrounds in the Great Smoky Mountains National Park. Because the Smokies was a gift from the residents of Tennessee and North Carolina to the Federal Government, citizens living near the park have a strong sense of ownership. They want to volunteer to take care of their park.

Several years ago, Congress also recognized the need to increase resources to our national park system, and we passed legislation to provide the Park Service with new sources of funding for maintenance projects. This new law allows national parks to retain most of the entrance and other fees they may charge, and use that money for visitor services. Fee revenue can be used to fund maintenance projects or to pay seasonal employees, but it cannot be used to fund basic operations. This year, Smokies' fees will generate $1.9 million over and above the park's $13.2 million annual appropriated budget.

Fee revenue, volunteer hours, and donations are critical to keeping our parks running, but they are just not enough. Without an adequate operations budget and enough permanent full-time staff, the Park Service lacks the capability to handle the generosity of groups like the Friends of the Smokies.

Again, I compliment my colleagues from Washington and West Virginia for recognizing the most pressing needs of our national park system by providing a substantial increase in the Park Service's basic operations budget in this bill. The bill before us includes over $1.4 billion for the National Park Service. That's an increase of more than $80 million over FY 2000.

But as impressive a job as the managers have done here today, I'm sure they would both agree with me when I say that Congress still must do better for our national parks. I believe that the Federal Government has a fundamental responsibility to ensure the protection of these natural resources for the enjoyment of both the current and future generations. But we are not meeting that responsibility fully. We must provide our park officials with adequate resources to maintain the trails and campgrounds. We must give them better tools to combat threats like air pollution.

As Congress debates what to do with the projected budget surplus, I think we should start by determining whether government is meeting its fundamental responsibilities now. If we see that we are neglecting certain responsibilities, then we need to make fulfilling those obligations a priority.

I believe that increasing our investment in our national parks is a priority. I intend to work closely with my colleagues in the years to come to ensure that Congress provides the funding necessary to protect our precious natural resources for the enjoyment of my grandchildren and their grandchildren.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Nevada is recognized.

Mr. REID. Madam President, before my friend leaves the floor, I want to tell him how very much I appreciate his statement. In years past, I offered amendments when we did not have a budget surplus to increase funding for our park system. I hope next year we can work together in a bipartisan fashion to increase significantly the funding for our National Park System.

I have not had the good fortune to be in the park to which the Senator referred, the Great Smoky Mountain National Park, but I have been to a number of national parks. For example, the living conditions our park rangers have to put up with in our national parks is a disgrace. My colleague should see what park rangers live in at the Grand Canyon National Park. They are from World War II. They look like icehouses; they are square. It is disgraceful.

We only have one national park in Nevada. It is one of the newer ones, so I really do not have the right to complain as many do, but we have so many things that need to be done there. We do not have a visitors center. Interpretive trails have not been built. There are parts of our great National Park System that we have closed as a result of dangerous conditions. The Park Service simply does not have the resources to keep up.

I commend and applaud my friend from Tennessee. He has given a great statement. I look forward to next year. Perhaps we can work together to come up with a funding formula that would be permanent in nature to take care of the $5 billion backlog in our National Park System.

Mr. THOMPSON. Madam President, I thank my friend from Nevada for those comments. This is something upon which I believe we can all agree. Even those who view the role of Government to be a limited one must agree that there are certain basic obligations and functions the Federal Government has. Of course, national defense is one of them; infrastructure is one of them. Our national parks are a precious resource that we must all protect.

They are, as the Senator indicates, being attacked from so many different directions right now. We are taking them for granted and slowly, but surely, they are falling into disrepair, and they are being damaged environmentally. We in the Smokies have a particular problem with the weather patterns, for example. Not only do we have some old coal-fired plants in the area, but we have a weather pattern that brings the pollution in from other parts of the country that just seems to hover over that particular area. We have days where there is more pollution on top of the Smoky Mountains than there is in downtown New York City. It is an increasing problem. Hopefully, as my colleague suggests, we can join together and do even more next year.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Democratic leader.

Mr. DASCHLE. Madam President, first, I thank our distinguished assistant Democratic leader for his graciousness once again in providing me the opportunity to say a couple of words this evening.

MARRIAGE TAX PENALTY RELIEF

Mr. DASCHLE. Madam President, the Senate will be voting on two competing marriage penalty relief proposals. The choice really could not be more clear. I want to talk a little bit about that choice this afternoon. The Republican bill has very little to do with the marriage penalty.

In fact, I was just commenting that if the Republicans were trying to treat an illness, they would be sued for malpractice—given the bill they are proposing this afternoon—malpractice because they are not curing the disease. In fact, in some ways they are causing the disease, this marriage penalty disease, to be even more problematic, more difficult. They are actually creating another disease—a singles penalty. We need to be aware of the repercussions of what the Republicans are attempting to do with their legislation this afternoon. The singles penalty is something I will talk a little bit more about.

To begin, I don't think there is any doubt that if you asked all 100 Senators: should we fix the marriage penalty, the answer would be emphatically yes. The question is, How do we fix it, and are we really intent on fixing it?

Our Republican colleagues only deal with three of the marriage penalty provisions incorporated in the law today. If you were going to completely eliminate the entire marriage penalty, you would have to deal not with 3 but with 65 of the provisions incorporated in the tax law that have caused the imbalance or the inequity to exist today. The Republicans have only dealt with three. Yet the cost to the Treasury of their plan—the one we will vote on today—is $248 billion overall.

I don't know what it would cost if you were going to try to fix all 65 under the Republican plan. Republican amendments were filed addressing six additional provisions, totaling $81 billion, in the Finance Committee. The remaining 56 provisions, untouched in the Republican bill, not addressed at all, have yet to be calculated in terms of what the cost might be with regard to the approach our Republican colleagues use.

The second chart spells out what that means. If you only deal with 3 of the 65 provisions, this is what happens. Take a married couple with a joint income of $70,000. Under current law, if the couple were single and they each paid their share of the tax, their tax total would be $8,407, depicted on the chart. Yet because they are kicked into a higher tax bracket when they reach that $70,000 joint income level, their tax is not $8,407; their tax is $9,532. So the marriage penalty is $1,125 under current tax law.

Here is what the Republicans do. The Republicans will provide, under their bill, 39-percent relief. That is all you get. Here they are, spending $248 billion, and they can't even do it right. They can't even fix all 65 provisions. They fix three. So you leave the balance, under the Republican bill, for another day, apparently.

We don't believe that ought to be the way to fix the marriage penalty. We think you ought to fix the marriage penalty, if you are saying you are going to fix it. We provide 100-percent relief, $1,125 in relief for that couple making $70,000 a year. That is what we do. That is why we believe it is important for people to know there is a clear choice tonight when we vote on those plans: You can vote for the $248 billion Republican plan that fixes 3 or you can vote for the Democratic plan that provides for 100-percent relief and fixes all 65.

I think it is very important for us to understand that not only is there a choice in trying to address the marriage penalty, but there is also another problem.

We know how doctors try to fix one disease and sometimes create another side effect they had not anticipated because they prescribed the wrong medicine. We have a true illustration of prescription drugs as we know it in this country today, with a $248 billion fix when you could do it for a fraction of the cost. Not only that, their prescription doesn't cure the disease. Not only does it not cure the disease, it actually creates a new one.

I guarantee my colleagues, within the next few years, you will have somebody come to the floor and say: Now we have to fix the singles penalty. It is broken. We may need another $248 billion tax plan to fix the singles penalty.

This is what happens under the Republican plan. You have a joint income for that couple of $70,000. Current law requires their tax liability of $10,274. The Republican plan would provide $8,743, leaving the $443 relief I mentioned a moment ago.

Let's take a widow, a widow who is making that $70,000 income—not a couple but a widow. She has a tax liability under current law of $14,172. Yet her penalty, a singles penalty, would go from $3,898 under current law to $5,429 under the Republican plan.

What happens with this tax plan for a single person under certain circumstances—take a widow, a widow who is already probably faced with all kinds of serious financial pressures. Her tax burden goes up by $1,531, a new singles penalty created—I assume inadvertently—because our Republican colleagues are rushing to try to fix a marriage penalty, and they can't do it right. That is why this vote this afternoon is so important.

The Democrats will be offering a plan that recognizes another inequity in the Republican plan. I have already talked about two: First, the importance of recognizing that out of the 65 provisions, the Republican plan only deals with 3; and then secondly, how we now have created—I assume inadvertently—this singles penalty.

Look at the third problem with the Republican plan that has caused us to want to come to the floor to offer the alternative we will tonight. If you are making $20,000, the amount of tax relief you get under the Republican plan is $567. That is all you get. But if you are making $20,000, under the Democratic plan, your tax reduction, the amount of relief, is $2,164. If you are making $30,000 a year, according to the Joint Committee on Taxation, which has analyzed this, under the Republican plan you get $800. Under the Democratic plan, you get $4,191. Why? Because we fix the marriage penalty. We provide entire relief, all 65 provisions.

Look at what happens if you are making $50,000. I don't know what the Republicans have as a problem with those who are making $50,000, but they are sure penalizing them here. You only get $240 under the Republican plan in relief. Why you would want to penalize somebody making $50,000, I don't know. Under the Democratic plan, you get $1,913 in relief.

Let us skip all the way over to the other end of the spectrum. This probably tells it best.

If you are providing real relief, you are going to go to those people who need the relief the most, those people in the $30,000 to $50,000 category. Under the Republican plan, if you are making more than $200,000, that is when you start kicking in to real money. You get $1,335 in relief there. But if you make $50,000 in income, you get $240. That is the third reason we are so concerned about this Republican plan.

Under the Republican plan, you get $1,335 in relief if you are making tons of money. If you are making $50,000, as are most people in the country—couples—you are going to get $240.

We are concerned for those three problems. That is why we are offering our alternative tonight. The Democratic marriage penalty relief plan allows married couples to file separately or jointly—another very important aspect: Give them the flexibility. Let them decide what is most helpful to them.

That is how we avoid the so-called singles penalty, not the Republican plan. It eliminates all marriage tax penalties for taxpayers earning $100,000 or less, 100 percent. It reduces all marriage tax penalties for those taxpayers earning up to $150,000 and does not expand the so-called marriage bonus or the singles penalty that we are actually creating inadvertently today.

I want to show one last chart that probably makes the case as well as I can. The marriage penalty bill proposed by the Republican plan deals with three. The Democratic alternative deals with the standard deduction and the problem we have with the marriage penalty and the standard deduction; earned income tax credits; child tax credits; Social Security benefits; rate brackets; IRA deductions, student loan interest deductions, and the 56 other marriage penalty provisions that exacerbate the marriage penalty today. We do them all. The Republican's do three.

There is one other nonsubstantive but procedural concern I have, which I am compelled to bring up. The regular order in the Senate right now is the marriage penalty. We ought to be taking this bill up under the regular order, but we are not doing that. I think everyone here in the Chamber knows why. We are not doing that because the Republicans don't want to vote on tax amendments. That is why we are not doing it. They are using the brick wall they built around their marriage penalty, this impenetrable wall. So this is an up-or-down vote, a take-it-or-leave-it vote. You either like it or don't; you either take it or leave it. That is the way it is going to be. We are not going to give the Democrats an amendable vehicle. We are going to give them a vehicle they can't amend, a vehicle that will allow the one alternative; and we are not going to debate tax policy, even though this goes to the heart of tax policy.

So for the second time in less than a week we are going to be voting on a bill that I think deserves to be defeated. We should have defeated the estate tax bill. I will offer to Senator LOTT that I am willing to sit down today and negotiate with him and the Finance Committee Democrats and Republicans to come up with a bill the President will sign. That isn't going to happen with the bill they passed last week. This bill is going to get vetoed, too. This bill will be vetoed, and it will be vetoed for good reason. It doesn't fix the marriage penalty. It costs $248 billion. It helps those at the high end and leaves everyone else in the lurch. It creates a singles penalty. That isn't the way to legislate. That is why we normally have amendments—to try to fix problems that were caused on purpose or inadvertently.

I am hopeful the majority will take great care before they pass the bill that they are going to be pressing this evening. I hope they will work with us to come up with an alternative that the President will sign. We can do things the right way and we can enact them into law and provide meaningful accomplishment and meaningful relief and meaningful help to victims of the marriage penalty. Or we can simply make more statements about how some in this Senate prefer simply to help those at the very top of the income scale, once again, whether they need it or not. That is our choice. I hope Senators will take great care in making their choice, and I look forward to the debate and vote later this evening. Again, I thank the Senator from Nevada for yielding the floor.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Washington is recognized.

Mr. GORTON. Madam President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. HELMS. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from North Carolina is recognized.

Mr. HELMS. I thank the Chair.

A SMASHING SUCCESS

Mr. HELMS. Madam President, a noted sports figure in American sports history once commented that "Bragging ain't bragging if you can prove it."

On that basis, I want to brag a little bit about North Carolina which has had its share of top sports figures—perhaps more than our share when you consider such outstanding sports figures, past and present, as Arnold Palmer, Catfish Hunter, Charlie "Choo-Choo" Justice, Michael Jordan, Richard Petty, David Thompson, Sonny Jurgensen, Dean Smith, Everett Case, Joe Gibbs, Enos Slaughter, and Wallace Wade, who by the way took two teams from Duke University to the Rose Bowl. But he didn't have to go very far for the second one because it was held in Durham, NC, right after Pearl Harbor. It was feared that the Japanese might try to bomb the stadium out in California, so they moved the whole thing across the country to North Carolina—the only time the Rose Bowl was not played in Pasadena.

But I don't recall any previous teenager—from anywhere—who has been described as a "tennis phenomenon who walks in Chris Evert's footsteps". But that's the accolade handed 14-year-old Alli Baker of Raleigh my hometown—in the May edition of Metromagazine in a sparkling and detailed piece by Patrik Jonsson, writing from Boca Raton, Florida.

As I read the tribute to Alli Baker, I was reminded that this young lady is a great granddaughter of the late Lenox Dial Baker, one of America's leading orthopedic surgeons. Dr. Baker almost single-handedly founded a children's hospital, later named for him, at Duke University Medical Center in Durham, where hundreds of crippled children's lives have brightened and their lives improved because of Dr. Baker's selfless and loving interest in them.

I am going to let the article about Alli Baker speak for itself. Therefore, I ask unanimous consent that the tribute to the amazing 14-year-old Alli Baker by Patrik Jonsson be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

TEENAGE TENNIS PHENOMENON WALKS IN CHRIS EVERT'S FOOTSTEPS

[From Metromagazine, May 2000]

BOCA RATON, FLA.—Alli Baker is fuming. Frustrated during a drill at the Evert Tennis Academy, the 14-year-old tennis phenomenon from Raleigh huffs and puffs as if she's about to blow somebody's house down. Then a few easy ground strokes go into the net. That's it. Baker's Volkl racket goes flying into a patch of grass. Conversations hush. Eyes glance sideways at the lithe, freckled Southern girl whom everybody knows as the number one ranked 14-year-old in the country, and the highest-ranked female player yet to come out of North Carolina. The court mood tenses the way it used to when John McEnroe yelled at refs, or when the young German Boris Becker pumped his fists in defiance. This is just practice. Still, being Alli Baker's rival right now seems like a very, very bad idea.

"It's true, I get very competitive," says Baker, who is also the seventh-ranked 16-and-under player in the country, an hour before the brief blow-up on the court. "I love to win. It's my greatest strength."

Tennis may not be a gritty contact sport, but it is, above all, a game of mind over body. Anger and other unchecked emotions are widely known to scatter the concentrations of even the most experienced players in clutch situations. But the coaches here already know that North Carolina's newest sports star hones her on-court emotions, polishes them like treasure, and beams them into that fuzzy yellow ball, straight back at her opponents on the other side of the net at center court. Indeed, she's beaten some of the world's best tennis players in her age group by funneling her competitive angst into devastating trickery.

"She's a very mature player," says her coach, John Evert, the brother of Wimbledon champ Chris Evert, and a 17-year coach in his own right. "Her strength is that she figures out how to play exactly to her opponents' weaknesses, and she doesn't let herself get into the dumps."

Last year, Baker won five tournament tie breakers in a row, an almost unheard of feat that epitomizes her unwillingness to lose. "I've yet to see her play in a tournament," one of the other Evert Academy coaches confides. "But they say she is very, very hungry."

Don't get the wrong idea, though. Off the court, Alli Baker is about as sweet as strawberry pie, as humble as corn pone. Freckled, tan and every bit the exuberant teenager, she talks about fashion, missing home, seeing the world (Paris is her favorite city), bonding with tennis stars Monica Seles and Martina Hingis, how she loves her mentor, Chris Evert, and the life-affirming step she's getting ready to take into professional tennis. She's making "a million new friends" while coaxing her Raleigh confidantes to hurry down to where it's nice and warm and where the beaches stretch on and on.

So far, it's been a whirlwind tour from the halls of Raleigh's Daniels Middle School to the star-studded tennis courts of SoFla.

HANGING IN WEST BOCA

It's here—to the Evert Tennis Academy, near some of the world's largest country clubs, where the average annual income is $65,000 and where the warm prevailing winds collect tall afternoon thunder clouds over the coast—that Alli decided to come this spring after it became clear that to follow her dream, she had to follow it right out of North Carolina.

Although the family will stay in Raleigh, where dad Bill Baker is a vice president for a major construction firm, the family just bought a house across Glades Avenue in west

Boca as a permanent base here. Baker and her family made the decision after acknowledging the lack of a steady stream of crack practice partners and full-time coaches in Raleigh. While Bill works and helps shuttle their second daughter, 11-year-old Lenox, to her soccer games, mom Leigh Baker has found a permanent seat on the red-eye to Boca.

Of course, there were some questions among family friends: How could the Bakers send a 13-year-old (her birthday is in April) off to fend for herself in such a competitive, cutthroat world? Bill Baker has an easy answer: "She called yesterday from a hotel room overlooking Key Biscayne. She said, 'Dad, I'm here looking over the bay and the blue water. It's so beautiful here.' I think she's going to be all right."

If Baker has what it takes to be an international tennis star, Evert Academy is where the transformation from sharpshooting local kid to Grand Slam winning hardball player will likely take place. It's a place where the phrase, "Yeah, Agassi decided not to come down today," seems rote. Don't be surprised to see top-ranked players such as France's Sebastian Grosjean and Vince Spadea sweating through a four-hour practice. Tiny, but fiery Amanda Coetzer shows up here from time to time to practice—and to show the reverent young ones how it's done.

On these finely groomed courts nestled amidst swaying coconut palms is also where Chris Evert practices with students three times a week, and where there's a lyrical constant of English, French, Spanish and even Czech spoken over the grunts of determined players returning smashes. Bordered by dozens of clay and hard courts, flanked by a beige dormitory hall, this tucked-away facility is what the doorstep to the big time now looks like for Alli Baker.

"Her dream is to be the top-ranked tennis player in the world," says Bill Baker at his Raleigh office overlooking Falls of the Neuse Road. "We knew that wouldn't happen if she stayed here. She's doing all this herself. All that we're doing is making the sacrifices to provide her with the opportunities to pursue this dream. Sometimes it's hard as a parent to not get emotionally involved. But in the end, the fire to do it has to come from within her."

STYLE POINTS

Naturally athletic, Baker picked tennis over other sports for reasons perhaps girls can best understand. First, it's not so—she searches for the word—"tomboy-ish." The outfits, in other words, look great. Plus, there's no physical contact, only the physicality of pressurized felt ball against tight catgut, the action crashing back and forth across the net in an elaborate joust. It is a game you can win by using your mind to imbue the body with the power of wit, intensity and strategy.

"I think it's the best game out there for girls," she says. "You can play hard and be super-competitive—and you can look good doing it."

Indeed, Baker already has the fresh, jaunty look that has potential sponsors swooning. With the exception of Adidas (clothes) and Volkl (racket), Baker has so far turned down major sponsorships. In April, she unofficially entered the pro circuit at a minor qualifying event. This spring, she will play pro tournaments in Little Rock and Hilton Head. But she's still an amateur, meaning she can't take any winnings home yet. Still, it's at those tournaments, as well as at her new home base here in Boca, where she's getting the first real taste of her new life and where she is, as Bill Baker says, "meeting a lot of people who have been where she wants to go—including some who made it and some who didn't."

Impressed with Baker's natural talent, intense competitiveness and impressive number of wins against tough players, the United States Tennis Association and John Evert, now Baker's development coach, "recruited" her into the program.

"She has shown great skill and promise, but this is the time for her to get on the court and work hard, because this is where it's going to get tougher now," says Ricardo Acuna, USTA's Southeast region coach, who oversees Baker's overall training program.

For coaches like Evert and Acuna, right now is when the ball meets the clay for the great-granddaughter of the late Sports Hall of Famer Lenox Baker, the famed Duke orthopedic surgeon and sports medicine pioneer, and the granddaughter of single-handicappers Robert F. Baker and Robert M. Hines of Raleigh, the five-time Carolina Country Club Senior Championship winner. Wedged between childhood and the muscular 16- and 17-year-olds playing above her, this is when this next generation Baker has to concentrate more on fundamentals than winning—a difficult task for someone who has gotten used to eating victories for lunch. She says she still lags behind some of her key competitors as far as skills go. "Ground strokes are about the only part of my game I'm really good at," she admits.

"She's had a pretty easy time with practices up to this point, where she's been able to turn it up and win matches," says Evert. "But now I'm trying to figure out how she can match that intensity during practice. At this point, I'm even ready to cut back on her practice time to foster that intensity. For Alli right now, quality is more important than quantity."

THE CHRISSIE FACTOR

Although other tennis academies offer similarly competitive programs, here Baker is becoming a member of the Famed Evert family tennis tradition, which began with legendary tennis coach Jim Evert's long-time directorship of Fort Lauderdale's public Holiday Park tennis program from which Chris Evert emanated. Indeed, it may have been the "Chrissie presence" that finally convinced the Bakers to make the move.

Having a role model like Chris Evert, who won 18 grand slams and 159 tournaments before retiring in 1989, rifling balls at you from the other side of the net is unbelievable, Baker says. "I just love her. She comes out here to practice, and she still plays really hard. My mom says she would love to have her body."

But Baker and Evert are not two peas in a pod as far as playing style. Evert was known for staring her opponents down from the baseline, playing a cool-headed volley game. Fans recall her "icy stare" that unnerved some opponents enough to immobilize them. On the other hand, Baker loves to explode to the net with a tenacity that dad Bill Baker says has also yielded success in her doubles game.

Indeed, as Baker has served, sliced and backhanded her way to the top of the rankings, from playing in tournaments from Rio de Janeiro to Paris, comparisons run more to former teenage phenomenon Monica Seles than to Evert or today's young superstars like Serena and Venus Williams. "She has to play smarter because she's not as big as some of the other players," says her dad.

Still, Baker's skinny frame is mentioned as a potential liability, especially when matched against the new breed of power players such as the Williams sisters, who tower above their competitors.

But don't dismiss a growth spurt yet, says, Acuna, the USTA coach. "I've seen her increase in size by a lot just this year," he adds confidently. While Baker sometimes has trouble getting fired up for practice, she loves the weight room and working out. As part of her routine at Evert Tennis Academy, she endures a strenuous regimen along with nearly four hours of court time a day against some of the best young players in the world.

Despite her early success, it's still not advantage Baker. Most of her competitors were already enrolled in tennis academies when then 8-year-old Alli Baker started playing with her mom at Carolina Country Club, drawn more to the sport for the "cute outfits" than the competition. Other tennis kids get started way before that, as evidenced by a muffin-sized front-court player, perhaps 5 years old, who spent two hours cranking backhands at her dad-slash-coach on a recent day at the academy. The girl rode her pink Barbie bike with training wheels off the court after the practice. In Baker's case, however, her natural talents shone through right away, and she quickly made up for lost time. She started beating her mom as a 9-year-old—showing right off the bat a natural inclination toward not just good tennis, but winning tennis.

"It was a little bit later when I started to really like the feeling of winning," she says. "Before that, it was just about the outfits and having fun with my friends."

That love for the game and the big win is now starting to pay off.

* * * * *

Interest in Baker began to percolate two years ago, when USTA began sniffing around Raleigh, following rumors of a phenom-in-the-making. After attending a few national camps and doing well in a number of regional tournaments, Baker bloomed for real last year.

Locally, North Hills Tennis Club coach Nancy Arndt, Raleigh Racquet Club's Mike Leonard and Rali Bakita, and a handful of other top-notch coaches worked on Baker's fundamentals, knowing they had a potential star on their hands. But it was at the Ace Tennis Academy in Atlanta, where Leigh Baker would shuttle her daughter on weekends, that Baker culled those extra pointers that propelled last year's successes.

Before last summer, Baker had already won both singles and doubles at the coveted Easter Bowl, a triumph that sent her like a projectile to the top ranking in the USTA under-14 category. Against older girls up to age 16, Baker is still ranked number seven. Impressed with the wily Raleigh youngster, CBS included Baker in a segment called "Top Spin" last summer, along with Pete Sampras and Serena Williams.

The Easter Bowl victory led to Baker's USTA National Champion ribbon. She finished third in the World Cup held in the Czech Republic last year. She was also a runner-up in the Banana Bowl in Brazil, and a semi-finalist in the Acunson Bowl in Paraguay, and the Windmill Cup in the Netherlands. This year she is again on the U.S. National Team and this spring worked her way into the doubles finals tournaments in London and France. Right now is when competitive circuits around the world are really starting to heat up.

On top of the thrill of competition another boon to her meteoric rise into international tennis is the gang of cool friends. Baker is building around her. Currently, she e-mails a dozen friends in Russia and France, as well as her clan of pals and fans in Raleigh.

CHALLENGER FROM QUEENS

But Ally's best friend on the ground in Boca right now is a gritty, 15-year-old power player from the blue-collar sky-line of Queens, Shadisha Robinson. The two squared off against each other last year where Baker came back from a deep deficit, unwound

Robinson in a 7-6 second set and thrashed her 6-1 in the third. They've been best friends ever since. Evert uses the friendship to boost both players' performance on the court: While Baker leans how to defend against pure power, Robinson gets a lesson in wiliness from the freckle-cheeked Southerner.

"John doesn't really play us together competitively," Baker says. "He knows we are good for each other as training partners, but he doesn't want us to get too much of a rivalry going."

A straight-A student through primary and middle school, Baker is also managing to keep up with her academic work through it all. While vacationing at the beach last year. Retired Daniels Middle School teacher Lynn Reynolds heard about Baker's decision to go to Florida. She immediately called up the family and volunteered to come out of retirement and "sign up for the team" as a home schoolteacher. Reynolds and her young charge have since become close friends, constantly in touch via e-mail and fax—the methods they also use to exchange homework assignments and tests. Daily, the teacher and student log onto the College Boards web site to work out a daily test question posted there—just to make sure Baker is ready for the SAT's when that time comes.

"This high-tech teacher and student relationship has really been fun for both of us," Reynolds say. "She's a quick study and a very smart girl. We've become great friends. This is one of the best teaching assignments of my whole career."

In two short years, Baker has traveled from Prague to Paris, from Palm Springs to Rio. She says she's enamored with this lifestyle that a simple game has already given her. She misses her friends, but they'll come visit, they promise. Everyone says they will.

If the "tennis thing" doesn't work out, Baker says, "with all the agents I've already met, I've got a chance with my singing"—country, that is, her backburner passion. Already the world has opened its doors to a talented Raleigh kid with enough sense to know that dreams are out there for the getting. "I mean, if this were to give me a leg up to go to a school like Stanford or Duke, then it's already worth it," she says. "Plus, just look at this place," she adds, holding out her hands as if to weigh the fresh, precious Florida air. "This is perfect."

Mr. HELMS. I thank the Chair. I yield the floor.

Mr. GORTON. Madam President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. KENNEDY. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

TAX BREAKS

Mr. KENNEDY. Madam President, between last Friday and today, in the span of just 4 days, Republican Senators will pass tax breaks, overwhelmingly targeted for the wealthy, that will cost the Treasury one and a half trillion dollars over the next 20 years. You would think that careful attention would be paid to the merits of these astronomical tax giveaways before they are passed. Instead, they are being rammed through by a right-wing Republican majority in Congress bent on rewarding the wealthy and ignoring the country's true priorities that have a far greater claim on these enormous resources.

What about prescription drug coverage for millions of senior citizens under Medicare? I have just returned from Massachusetts where I met with the elderly people. They are asking, Will the Senate of the United States, will Congress, take action to provide some relief to the elderly people in my State and across the country? Really, the unfinished business of Medicare is the prescription drug program. We did not debate that last Thursday and last Friday. We are not debating that issue today. We have basically said, let's find out how we can give the one and a half trillion dollars away over the next 20 years, instead of dealing with the Medicare issue on prescription drugs.

What about greater Federal aid to education to help schools and colleges across the country and the students who attend them? We put into the RECORD last Friday the most recent studies of the Congressional Research Service that showed that by moving to smaller class sizes, there was an enhancement of academic achievement and accomplishment by students in California. That supports the STARS Program of Tennessee. Senator MURRAY of the State of Washington has been our leader championing for smaller class sizes, because we believe that that can be enormously important in enhancing academic achievement. If we do that, plus ensure that teachers get training and professional advancement in their classrooms, working to enhance their professionalism, we will see a very important, significant gain in academic achievement and accomplishment.

We also know the value of after-school programs, tutorials, and accountability, as Senator BINGAMAN has talked about; the newer digital divide that Senator MIKULSKI has talked about; construction, the need to make sure our schools will be safe and secure and not crumbling, as so many of them are. But, no, we have set that aside. We are not going to have the resources to do that. Make no mistake about it, I say to American families, we have made enhancing academic achievement for our teachers, smaller class sizes, afterschool programs, a lesser priority than providing $1.5 trillion from the Federal Treasury to the wealthiest individuals.

What about health insurance for the millions of hard-working Americans who have no coverage today? We made a downpayment in terms of the children in the CHIP program in a bipartisan way. We reach out to try to get coverage for their hard-working parents, an increasing number of Americans, who do not have health insurance. But we have not put that on the agenda. We are not debating that here on the floor of the Senate. There will not be the resources to try to do that. We are saying we want $1.5 trillion for the wealthiest individuals. Health insurance for hard-working Americans is put aside.

What about raising the minimum wage for millions of low-income Americans, the 13 million Americans, the majority of whom are women who have children? It is a women's issue, it is a children's issue, and it is a civil rights issue because so many of these men and women are men and women of color. It is a fairness issue. People who work 40 hours a week, 52 weeks a year, should not have to live in poverty. No, we cannot debate that up here in the Senate. We can get tax breaks for the wealthiest individuals in this country, but we will not debate an increase in the minimum wage. We will not do it.

I hope we are not going to hear long lectures from the other side about how we ought to be funding, now, the special needs programs. We had great statements from the other side: We have failed in meeting our responsibility to special needs children, to help local communities in the area of education. We have heard that time in and time out, while we have been trying to do some of these other actions for children in this country. We had an opportunity to pay for all those special needs children, but I did not hear from the other side that this is a priority. We did not hear it when they had the $780 billion tax cut 2 years ago, and we could have taken a fifth of that tax cut and funded special needs education for every child in this country for 10 years. No, no, that is not enough of a priority. We are not going to do it. Our tax cut is too important. We are going to give $1.5 trillion away without spending a single nickel on special needs children.

The list goes on about protecting Social Security and Medicare. Right now, I am sure there are scores of Members of the Congress and the Senate going on about how we ought to protect Medicare and Social Security. It is very clear what the priority has been in the Senate: $1.5 trillion, not to protect Medicare, not to protect Social Security, but to provide it to the wealthiest individuals in this country.

That is what has happened over the period of these last 4 days, including a Sunday when we were not even here. All of these priorities and many more are being blatantly ignored by this Republican Congress in their unseemly stampede to enact these tax breaks for the wealthy. Never, in the entire history of our country, has so much been given away so quickly to so few with so little semblance of fairness or even thoughtful consideration.

I make that statement. I wait to be challenged on that. Never, never in the history of this body has so much been given away to so few, in such a short period of time, with such little semblance of fairness and even thoughtful consideration.

I hope we are not going to hear from the other side: We need to study these issues more carefully in our committee; this hasn't been carefully considered by the committee—when they come out with that $1.5 trillion tax cut, that never even saw the light of day in committee, on the estate tax. Think of having a committee report, think of having a committee discussion, think of having some debate about what the implications of this might be in terms of a wide range of different issues? Absolutely not. We just took it, faced it, and passed it.

So it goes on. Plums for the rich and crumbs for everyone else will be the epitaph of this Republican Congress. It's a dream Congress for the superwealthy and their special interest friends, and a nightmare Congress for hard-working families across America.

The Republican's trillion-dollar tax breaks will eminently deserve the veto that President Clinton is about to give them. The Republicans fail to honestly weigh the nation's priorities, and I believe that this is an irresponsible and reckless way to legislate. Some may view it as good political theater, red meat for the Republican right wing on the eve of the Republican convention. But it is a disservice to all Americans because it prevents action on the many true priorities facing this Nation.

I suspect that Americans who see and understand what is happening here this week in Washington will ask a single question: What if George W. Bush were in the White House? He would sign these irresponsible tax break monstrosities, and the nation would suffer for years to come.

I suspect that millions of Americans who see what is happening here would say: No thanks, we don't need a Congress that would pass such irresponsible legislation—and we certainly don't need a President who would sign it.

Last Friday's estate tax bill gave $250 billion to America's 400 wealthiest families, yet this same $250 billion would buy 10 years of prescription drug coverage for 11 million senior citizens who don't have access to coverage now. Our senior citizens face a crisis today. The extraordinary promise of fuller and healthier lives offered by new discoveries in medicine is often beyond their reach. They need help to afford the life-saving, life-changing miracle drugs that are increasingly available. Cutting a trillion dollars from the federal budget clearly jeopardizes our ability to add a prescription drug benefit to Medicare.

Today, in schools across the country, students face over-crowded classrooms, teachers go without adequate training, school buildings are crumbling, and violence is a constant threat. One would think that at some opportunity over these past few days we would have debated what most families are concerned about, as well as insuring academic achievement for their children in a safe and secure area.

No, we are denied that opportunity. We cannot debate that. We are told somehow that it is not relevant. It is relevant to what parents care about, which is their children in school. I daresay it is a lot more relevant than the fact that we will be giving $1.5 trillion, $250 billion of which will go to the 400 wealthiest families. It is a lot more relevant to their lives than that other factor, the giveaway.

Yet, Republicans are rushing through a trillion dollars in tax cuts without serious consideration of what it means for the nation's unmet education needs. Today, the booming economy is helping many Americans, but those who work day after day at the minimum wage are falling farther and farther behind. A recent study by the pro-business Conference Board finds that the number of working poor is actually rising, in spite of the record prosperity. The number of working poor families who seek emergency help in soup kitchens and food pantries across the nation is far ahead of the ability of agencies to meet their needs.

Read the reports from last week about what is happening to children in our society. The total number of poor children has gone down by about a percentage point, a point and a half, maybe, in the last 2 years. But the ones who are living in poverty are living in deeper poverty than they have ever experienced.

We are finding an increased number of children who are not being immunized against basic diseases, and here we are cutting $1.5 trillion, when we are not immunizing our children and cannot find ways to make those programs workable and effective. We are not debating that and trying to find ways to improve it.

The cost of rental housing is skyrocketing in most cities because of the economic boom, but the wages of millions of families who need that housing has failed to keep pace.

My colleague and friend from Massachusetts, JOHN KERRY, made this case so well last week to, effectively, a deaf audience in the Senate. Cutting tax revenues by a trillion and half dollars jeopardizes our ability to respond to these needs.

The American people cry out for action on many other basic priorities, but the tax breaks being passed by the Republican Congress would make fair action on all those priorities virtually impossible. Republicans are well aware that their tax-cutting extravaganza would not survive if it were honestly weighed against the nation's real priorities. That is why Republicans resort to gross distortion of the facts.

They apply the phony label "death tax" of trying to deal with family farms and small businesses. Republicans told story after story about how the estate tax hurts owners of small businesses and family farms. Our Democratic alternative would grant them protection, but it wasn't enough for Republicans. Their position was to basically hold small business owners and small farmers hostage until they could get the larger breaks for the largest estates and the wealthiest individuals in the country.

They know this President is going to veto this measure, and instead of truly doing something that would benefit those small family farms and small businesses, they say: Oh, we would rather have it vetoed. We will serve those small family farms up rather than deal with them. They know this is true in the marriage tax penalty as well.

Listen to this: They apply the phony label "marriage tax penalty" to the current bill even though 58 percent of the tax cuts go to couples who pay no marriage penalty at all. Do my colleagues hear that? Fifty-eight percent of the benefits of this measure, according to the Joint Tax Committee, a measure which we will start voting at 6:30 this evening, will go to couples who pay no marriage tax penalty at all.

The Democrats have a simple alternative to address the marriage penalty: Let them file as a single person if it will mean it lowers their taxes. What in the world could be simpler than that? If one is paying more because of their marriage situation as a result of commingling of the funds, Democrats say: OK, file as single individuals. That will solve it. There is no red tape and no administrative bureaucracy. It is simple. It meets a particular challenge.

The Republicans: Oh, no. We want our program which will provide this extraordinary windfall to the wealthiest individuals.

Our Democratic alternative would cost $11 billion a year less than the Republican bill—but it would provide greater marriage tax penalty relief to families with incomes below $150,000 a year. But, our sensible Democratic approach does not overwhelmingly benefit the wealthy so the Republicans reject it. Republicans intentionally designed their bill to give 78 percent of the total tax savings to the wealthiest 20 percent of taxpayers.

Ending the marriage tax penalty is a thinly veiled pretext to their latest installment of massive tax breaks for the wealthy. We saw the same tactics during the debate on the estate tax. We heard story after story of how the estate tax will hurt owners of small businesses and family farms.

I found Senator CONRAD's presentation of our Democratic alternative compelling and effective, virtually unchallenged on the floor of the Senate. Oh, yes, there was a challenge saying: Look, why are we supporting that because all of the various groups evidently support the Republican position?

I thought that was very interesting coming after our debate on HMO reform where we had 330 organizations support our HMO reform, and this particular Senate voted against it when they did not have a single one supporting their proposal and the responses by Senator CONRAD were responsive to this challenge.

They are holding small businesses and farmers hostage to their flagrant scheme to help the super-rich even while they talk piously of helping the middle class.

This Republican Congress is the trillion-dollar-travesty Congress. Fortunately, President Clinton and AL GORE are here—in this case, President Clinton—with a veto pen to burst their bubble. But thank goodness that working families, middle-income families, have a President who really cares about the economic and financial situation in this country.

I take pride that I was one of 11 Members of the Senate who voted against the Reagan tax cut that took us from $400 billion to $4 trillion in debt. That is why I am always interested in listening to those on the other side talk about what wonderful economic programs we have had over the recent times.

Let me finally use these charts to demonstrate, once again, what this repeal of the estate tax will cost. It is $55 billion per year that we are effectively giving the wealthiest individuals by the year 2010. This could fund every program in the Department of Education.

We are not saying that just throwing money at it answers all the problems. But it is a pretty clear indication about what a nation's priorities are, about how we are going to allocate resources. We could have fully done that, funded all of education, on this. We could have funded the total cost of prescription drug medicines for every beneficiary and had $15 billion left over. We could have had funding for all the beneficiaries, for all of our senior citizens. We could have provided the funding for the $20 billion which takes care of all the medical research in the National Institutes of Health, and you would still have $35 billion left.

This is an indication of priorities. This is another indication.

This chart depicts that from the Republican estate tax, those who are going to benefit from it, benefit from it to the average of $268,000. All we are trying to get is a Medicare prescription drug benefit that will be valued for our senior citizens at $900.

Here it is: $268,000, by 2010, for those who will benefit under the Republican tax cut. All we are trying to do is get $900 for our senior citizens, our 40 million senior citizens we will have at that time. Or to put it another way, the beneficiaries will have the estates worth $2.3 million. The people we are trying to help average $13,000 a year. They are the people we are trying to look out for.

This is the contrast. I believe, as I have said, never has so much been given to so few in such a short period of time—without, I think, the fair, adequate national debate or discussion in terms of what is really necessary, in terms of meeting the human needs of families in this country, the educational needs, the health needs, of what is needed in terms of housing for working families and what is necessary in terms of prescription drugs.

How are we going to have clean air? How are we going to have clean water? How are we going to clean up the brownfields? How are we going to make sure people are going to continue to have an opportunity to work in employment and have the training and the skills in order to be able to compete in the new economy?

All of those priorities have been washed away. With $1.3 trillion, we would be able to provide the investments for the American people. We have given that away. We have given that away without adequate and fair consideration of these priorities. I welcome the fact that we have a President who is going to veto those measures.

I yield the floor.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR AND RELATED AGENCIES APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 2001—Continued

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. ROBERTS). The Senator from Rhode Island.

AMENDMENT NO. 3798

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I have amendment No. 3798 at the desk, and I ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the amendment.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Rhode Island [Mr. REED] proposes an amendment numbered 3798.

Mr. REED. I ask unanimous consent reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

(Purpose: To increase funding for weatherization assistance grants, with an offset)

On page 182, beginning on line 9, strike “$761,937,000” and all that follows through “$138,000,000” on line 17 and insert “$769,937,000, to remain available until expended, of which $2,000,000 shall be derived by transfer from unobligated balances in the Biomass Energy Development account and $8,000,000 shall be derived by transfer of a proportionate amount from each other account for which this Act makes funds available for travel, supplies, and printing expenses: Provided, That $172,000,000 shall be for use in energy conservation programs as defined in section 3008(3) of Public Law 99-509 (15 U.S.C. 4507): Provided further, That notwithstanding section 3003(d)(2) of Public Law 99-509, such sums shall be allocated to the eligible programs as follows: $146,000,000”.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Senator KENNEDY and Senator SCHUMER be added as cosponsors of this amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, this amendment would provide an additional $8 million for the Department of Energy's Weatherization Assistance Program.

Across the country this summer, Americans have faced unacceptably high gasoline prices. Last winter, our constituents, particularly in the Northeast, saw extraordinary increases in home heating oil prices.

Members of this body have offered various proposals to address this issue, ranging from urging OPEC to increase production; increasing domestic crude oil production, by drilling in new areas; building up our refining capacity; and expanding our use of ethanol and alternative fuels. Essentially, all of these proposals are supply side proposals, increasing the supply of energy.

In fact, we are reaching a point now where the proposal to encourage OPEC might be running out of time. I note that the Saudi Arabians are asking for a meeting of OPEC in the next few days, because if there is not a meeting immediately, even if there is an increase in production, it will be insufficient in terms of reaching our markets for the winter heating season.

All of these supply side proposals are interesting, but we are neglecting an important aspect of the overall composition of the heating market—and that is demand.

The weatherization program goes right to this critical issue of demand. By weatherizing homes, by making them more energy efficient, we are literally cutting down the demand for energy, and typically foreign energy.

As Congress debates these proposals for supply relief, we should also start thinking seriously about demand reduction. That is critically involved in the whole issue of energy efficiency and weatherization. At the same time, our weatherization program protects the most vulnerable people in our society because they are aimed at the elderly, individuals with disabilities, children, all of them being subject to huge increases in heating costs, not only in the wintertime—that is the case in the Northeast—but in the Southeast and Southwest and the very hot parts of this country in the summertime.

In fact, it was not too long ago—several years ago—in Chicago where there was an extraordinary heat spell. People literally died because they could not afford to keep their air-conditioners running, if they had air-conditioning. Or they could not afford to keep paying exorbitant energy costs because their homes were inefficient in terms of retaining the cool air from air-conditioning. So this is a program that cuts across the entire country.

The Weatherization Assistance Program supports the weatherization of over 70,000 low-income homes each year. To date, over 5 million American homes have been weatherized with Federal funds, and also local funds, which must be part of the formula in order to provide this type of assistance for American homes.

Last December, I had a chance to witness this program in action. I was in Providence, RI, with Secretary of Energy Bill Richardson. We went to a low-income home in Providence. In just a few hours, a contractor was able to blow in insulation between the walls; they were able to caulk windows and doorways; they were able to conduct tests to ensure that the energy efficiency of the structure had increased dramatically.

This was a home of a family of first-generation Americans. They had come from Southeast Asia in the turmoil of the war in Southeast Asia. The father was in his late 40s, early 50s, and had several children—all of them American success stories. The children were in college. His mother was living with them. She was disabled, suffering from Alzheimer's.

This is typically the type of families—low-income families, struggling, working hard with jobs, trying to get kids through college—who are the beneficiaries of this program. It is an excellent program. It is a program that is terribly needed by these low-income families.

Typically, low-income families will spend about 15 percent of their income on heat—or in the summer, air-conditioning—more than four times the average of more affluent families. Over 90 percent of the households that are served by this weatherization program have annual incomes of less than $15,000. This is a program that works. It works for these individual families.

Not only that, it also works for us. It creates jobs. About 8,000 jobs throughout the country have been created because of this weatherization program. It also saves us from consuming and wasting energy.

I argue, as I have initially, one should look at the supply side complications of the energy crisis. One should implore OPEC to increase production. One should have sensible problems to ensure supply. But if we neglect the demand part of the equation, we are not only missing the boat, but I think we are deficient in our responsibility to formulate a comprehensive approach to energy efficiency in this country.

In 1996, the budget was $214 million, but because of cuts generated by the Contract With America, and other proposals, it dipped down to about $111 million—a significant cut. This was one of those programs that was devastated by the budget policies of the mid-1990s.

Since that time, we have added money back because, again, I believe this body particularly recognizes both the fairness and the efficiency of this program. But still we are at about $135 million in fiscal year 2000.

That is still 37 percent below the 1996 figure.

If we can afford, as Senator KENNEDY said, at length and eloquently, to engage in trillion-dollar tax cuts, multi-billion-dollar benefits that go to the very wealthiest Americans, we should be able to at least increase our weatherization funding by $8 million to cover additional families, low-income families, families who have disabled members, families who are working hard trying to get by and need this type of assistance.

Again, as we look over the last several weeks, and even this week, talking about relief for the marriage penalty, estate tax relief, it reminds me of a play on Winston Churchill's famous line about the RAF, "never have so many owed so much to so few." We seem to be in a position of saying, never have so few gotten so much from so many.

I want to ensure that at least when it comes to weatherization we are responding to the critical needs of families across this country. I had hoped we could move towards the President's request of $154 million. That would be about a 14-percent increase over our present level of $135 million. My amendment does not seek that full increase. It simply seeks an additional $8 million. I think the money will be well spent. The program works. It puts people to work. It helps low-income families. It helps us address a problem which is growing with increasing importance, and that is to control our insatiable demand for energy, particularly petroleum.

For all these reasons, I urge my colleagues to support this amendment. I hope, perhaps, we can even work out a way in which this amendment can be accepted by the chairman and his colleagues.

If it is appropriate, I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There appears to be a sufficient second.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Washington.

Mr. GORTON. Mr. President, just under 2 hours ago, at the outset of this debate, the distinguished Senator from Tennessee, Mr. THOMPSON, came to the floor with an eloquent plea about the lack of money to properly manage Great Smokey National Park and pointed out the tremendous challenges to that major national park in our system. The Senator from Nevada, the other Mr. REID, spoke in agreement with that proposition. The Senator from Tennessee did not have an amendment to increase the appropriations for Great Smokey National Park or for any other.

I have found it curious that in the several years I have managed this bill and written this bill, almost without exception the amendments that are brought to the floor are amendments to increase the amount of money we donate to other units of Government for their primary purposes and almost never do they express a concern for increasing the amount of money to support the functions of the Government of the United States itself.

I have gone a long way—my committee has gone a long way—in drafting this bill at least to begin to make up for the deferred maintenance in our national parks and in our national forests and with respect to our Indian reservations and our Indian programs and the management of the Bureau of Public Lands. I think we have at least turned the corner. As I said in my opening remarks on the bill, this is our primary function and our primary goal; that is, to see to it that we manage the public lands of the United States and the other functions in this bill that are exclusively Federal functions first and deal with other matters later.

I sympathize with the eloquent statement of the Senator from Rhode Island. In fact, I have supported that case in this bill for several years. When one compares this appropriation with that in the first year during which I managed this bill, it is increased by a good 20 percent. But here we have a proposal to add another $8 million, which will come out of every program for which the U.S. Government has exclusive responsibility. It will mean there will be less—not much less, but there will be less—for Great Smokey National Park. There will be less for the Fish and Wildlife Service and its multitude of obligations. There will be less for the Smithsonian Institution. There will be less for research and development of the very programs for energy efficiency which are the key to providing both energy independence and the proper and efficient use of energy.

With all respect to the Senator from Rhode Island, this has nothing to do with the tax debate. We have a budget resolution and a set of allocations that have given this committee a fixed number of dollars with which to work. I repeat that: a fixed number of dollars with which to work. It is all spent in this bill. So we can't just add this $8 million or $18 million to the bill and say, well, let's take it out of a tax cut or out of a budget surplus or the like. The Senator from Rhode Island recognizes that. He has a match for this $8 million. But I simply have to repeat: The match is from the primary functions of the Federal Government, the management of our national parks and forests, the energy research we undertake, the cultural institutions of the United States. That is from where this match comes.

A year ago, we said: If this program is so important to the States, let's require them to match what we come up with by 25 percent. Let them come up with 25 percent. Some States do provide some money for this. We had to postpone that for a year. In this bill we have had to have a way to grant State waivers, when States regard this program evidently as so lacking in importance that they are not willing to put up 25 percent of the money for their own citizens for something that is primarily their responsibility.

As I said, we are $3 million above the level for the current year. The House is $5 million above the level for the current year. If we end up with a larger allocation—and, personally, I hope for a larger allocation—by the time the conference committee has completed its work, we will have a modestly larger amount of money for this program in a final conference committee report. But it is not responsible to take it out of our National Park System. It is not responsible to take it out of our existing energy research. It is not responsible to take it out of the cultural institutions of the United States. That is precisely what this does.

Mr. REED. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. GORTON. Certainly.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I do applaud the Senator's efforts over many years to increase this account. He has done that. I think it makes a great deal of sense to provide a local match, which he has, and we would encourage more local participation. It is true we have provided an offset because I recognize that we do not have unlimited free money to put back into the budget.

We have taken money from every Federal agency. But I am told that our cut represents .05 percent per agency coming out of travel pay, coming out of administrative overhead. I think that is probably something they could well absorb. I daresay it would not require them to either turn down the heat or turn off the air-conditioning, whereas we are talking about a situation of homes throughout this country where they don't have that luxury.

So I agree in principle that we are taking it from agencies, but we are taking such a minute fraction that I think it would be readily absorbed. And we are putting it into a program that is both worthwhile and necessary in so many cases, and also going to the heart of ensuring that people can go into this heating season—particularly in the Northeast—with a little more confidence. I am concerned we are going to see tremendous oil heating price hikes which will force people into very difficult choices between heating or eating. This is a way, I believe, in which we can begin to start addressing this point.

Again, I recognize that the chairman has very diligently and sincerely tried to increase these funds. I hope we can do better. I don't think we are penalizing the agencies, and I don't anticipate a park being shut down by the loss of .5 percent of their travel expenses and other overhead.

Mr. GORTON. Mr. President, first, there is another far more important program and far more expensive program that goes to these very issues. The appropriations bill for military construction included many other matters. There was $600 million more for the direct assistance to people with their heating oil bills. In some respects, this is every bit as important a program because it tries to lower the bills in the first place.

The Senator from Rhode Island is correct; this is a small percentage of the budgets for the national parks. It is also the subject of match for several other amendments here because it is so easy. We don't say this program is much more important than another program, so let's cut the other program; we just say, in effect, cut them all across the board. But it is $8 million more in deferred maintenance for our national parks, or for our other national lands. And since this is a program that, over the course of the last 5 years, has increased more rapidly, bluntly, than the amount of money we have for these primary responsibilities, that is the reason we came up with the amount that we did.

Would I have liked to come up with more? Yes. If I have a larger allocation later, I will. Will there be more? There will be. I don't think at this point, for a State program, that many States aren't matching—and the requirement for match is only 25 percent—that this is as important as the national priorities that are the subject of the rest of this bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The distinguished Senator from Wyoming is recognized.

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the pending amendment be temporarily laid aside.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

AMENDMENT NO. 3800

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Wyoming [Mr. THOMAS], for himself, Mr. CRAIG, Mr. GRAMS, Mr. CRAPO, and Mr. ENZI, proposes an amendment numbered 3800.

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

(Purpose: To provide authority for the Secretary of the Interior to conduct a study on the management of conflicting activities and uses)

On page 125, line 25 strike “$58,209,000” through page 126, line 2 and insert in lieu thereof “$57,809,000, of which $2,000,000 shall be available to carry out the Urban Park and Recreation Recovery Act of 1978 (16 U.S.C. 2501 et seq.).

SEC. . MANAGEMENT STUDY OF CONFLICTING USES.

(a) SNOW MACHINE STUDY.—Of funds made available to the Secretary of the Interior for the operation of National Recreation and Preservation Programs of the National Park Service $400,000 shall be available to conduct a study to determine how the National Park Service can:

(1) minimize the potential impact of snow machines and properly manage competing recreational activities in the National Park System; and

(2) properly manage competing recreational activities in units of the National Park System.

(b) LIMITATION OF FUNDS PENDING STUDY COMPLETION.—No funds appropriated under this Act may be expended to prohibit, ban or reduce the number of snow machines from units of the National Park System that allowed the use of snow machines during any one of the last three winter seasons until the study referred to in subsection (a) is completed and submitted to the Committee on Appropriations of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Appropriations of the Senate.

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. President, I come to the floor today to talk about an issue that is very important to many people. It is certainly important to me as chairman of the parks subcommittee in the Senate and as a supporter of parks. Having grown up right outside of Yellowstone Park, the parks there are very much a part of our lives.

Let me quickly summarize what this amendment does. I can do it very quickly because it is quite simple. It deals with the idea and the concept of having access to national parks, when it is appropriate, for the use of individual snow machines—something we have done for some 20 years—frankly, without any particular objection until this last year, and without any real evidence that we can't make some changes that would allow us to continue to do that.

Unfortunately, rather than looking for an opportunity to bring about some changes in the machines, or some changes in the way they are used, or to manage the way they are used, this administration has simply said: We are going to bring about a regulation unilaterally that will eliminate the use of snow machines in the parks of the United States.

What this amendment does, simply, is provide some money—$400,000; and we have found a place to get that money—to conduct a study to determine how the national parks can do a couple of things: One, minimize the potential impact of snow machines and properly manage competing recreational activities in the National Park System. That is pretty logical stuff. In fact, you can almost ask yourself, haven't they done this? The answer is that they have not. Two, properly manage competing recreational activities in units of the national park. Again, that is pretty easy to do. In Yellowstone Park, where there is a great demand for using snow machines, on the one hand, and cross-country skiing, on the other, with management you can separate these two so that they are not conflicting uses. Of course, that requires some management.

So then the second part of it is that no funds may be appropriated until such time, basically, as the Park Service has completed their study and submitted it back to the Committee on Appropriations in the House of Representatives and the Committee on Appropriations in the Senate. So this doesn't put any long-time restriction on what can be done. It simply says: Here is some money; take a look at where we are, what the problems are, and what we can do about them, and bring that back and make some management decisions. It is fairly simple and, I think, fairly reasonable. That is what this amendment is all about.

I guess the real issue comes about due to the fact that we have had a considerable amount of activity. What really brings it about is a winter use study that is going on now in Yellowstone and the Teton Parks. It has to do with the broad aspect of winter use and with buffalo moving out of the park and what kinds of things can be done there; and how people can get in and out of the parks and utilize them in the wintertime, which really brought about this whole thing. The Assistant Secretary of the Interior went out to look and came back with an idea—I think mostly of his own—that we ought to do away with snowmobile use. He did this without having any facts, science, or looking at what could be done so that you could be consistent with the purpose of the park.

The purpose of a park is basically to maintain the resource and to maintain it in such a way that its owners can enjoy the use of it. Those things are not inconsistent. Those things are not inconsistent with snowmobiles, in my judgment. But whether it is my judgment or not, more importantly, the idea to come to the conclusion that they are inconsistent without any facts is something we ought not to accept.

I am a little surprised that someone in this Congress would rise to defend the authority of the executive branch to go around the Congress and to do something without even including the Congress or the people. That is not the way this place is set up. That is not what we are here for. That is why we have a division between the executive and the legislative and the judicial—a very important division. It is, frankly, being ignored by this administration not only on this issue but on many of them. They are overtly saying: If we don't get approval, we will just do it. That is not the way things are supposed to happen.

I am also a little surprised, frankly, that a representative of a public lands State would be interested in having the agencies that manage—in the case of Nevada—nearly 90 percent of the land and, in Wyoming, over half, making decisions without involving some of the people who should be involved, who are involved with living in these areas.

I think we are really talking about a system of rulemaking—a system of regulation—and one that needs to be based on facts and based on the idea that you take a look at issues. Frankly, the substantial amount of evidence about what has been said about snowmobiles in west Yellowstone and other places simply isn't factual. I could go through all of that stuff, but I will not. But it is terribly important that we try to do things based on real facts.

The Department of Interior has announced that it intends to ban snowmobiles in all but 12 of about 30 parks—not all in the West, as a matter of fact. We sent a letter to the Secretary of the Interior some time ago with 12 signatures on it. They quickly came to the Senate from Maine, from Minnesota, from the west coast, and some from the Rocky Mountains. It is not only in the area that has limited interest; it has interest from all over the whole country.

The Department claims that only a complete ban to curb snowmobiles on issues and noise will protect the wildlife. That simply isn't the only alternative that is available.

I want to make it very clear that it is not my position, nor would I defend the notion that snowmobiles ought to continue to be used as they are currently being used. They can be changed substantially. We have had meetings with the manufacturers, which, by the way, have a very strong presence in Minnesota. Lots of jobs and lots of issues are involved. Jobs isn't really the issue. The issue is access to the land that belongs to the people of this country, but they can be changed.

One of the things that has not happened and that should happen is there ought to have been some standard established for snowmobiles, saying here is the level of emissions that is acceptable, and here is the level of noise that is acceptable. If you want to use your machine in the park, you have to have one that complies with these regulations. There have been none.

The same thing could be said about where you use the machine. If you are going to be in the same track as deer, it doesn't need to be that way.

We have had failure on the part of management of the Park Service to do something to make these kinds of uses compatible with the purposes of the parks. Rather than do that, or rather than making efforts to do that, they simply say, no. They are just going to cut it out; they aren't going to do that.

I object to that process. I don't think that is the kind of process that we ought to look forward to in this country—whether it is snowmobiles, or water, or whether it is automobiles, or whether it is food regulations, or whatever. We have to have something better. Interior has never considered a single management scheme to be able to make it better.

Certainly I hear all the time: Well, the snow machine people should have done something better. Maybe so. I don't argue with that. However, if you were a developer of snow machines, if you were a manufacturer and you were going to invest a good deal of money to make changes in them, I think it would be important to you to know what the standard is going to be so you are able to meet those requirements and continue to be able to put out the machine that would comply.

We have had hearings. We have met with those manufacturers. They testified they can and will produce and market the machine, if EPA will set the standard.

It is kind of interesting that most of the parks, such as Yellowstone, are full of cars, buses, and all kinds of things in the summertime which do not seem to have an impact here. But in the wintertime, it seems that something much less in terms of numbers is what we are going to cut off.

I want to deal largely with the concept that we ought to really pay attention to the purpose of these resources—to make them available, to have access to them, that we need to have a system that is based on findings of fact and science, and be able to come up with alternatives rather than simply making the bureaucrat decision downtown that we are going to do away with this or we are going to do away with that.

We ought to put into effect a time that this agency can study this issue, look at the alternatives, provide some money to do that, have them bring their findings back, and then certainly make some choices.

This amendment is simple and straightforward. I think that is better than the bureaucratic approach of just deciding somewhere in the bowels of the Interior Department we are going to do something.

I find a great deal of reaction to it in my State, of course, and the surrounding States which are very much impacted.

This is not a partisan issue. I have worked with the majority leader and the Senator from Montana to try to find a solution. We are looking for solutions. That is really what we need some time to be able to do.

Mr. GRAMS. Mr. President, I rise in support of the amendment to reverse the snowmobile ban in our national parks and provide funding for a study to determine how the National Park Service can minimize the impact of snow machines and properly manage competing recreational activities in the National Park System. I want to thank Senators THOMAS and CRAIG for their efforts to bring this important amendment before the Senate for consideration.

While the Interior Department's ill-conceived ban will not immediately affect snowmobiling in Minnesota's Voyageurs National Park, it will impact snowmobiling in at least two units of the Park System in my home state—Grand Portage National Monument and the St. Croix National Scenic Riverway. In addition, this decision will greatly impact Minnesotans who enjoy snowmobiling, not only in Minnesota, but in many of our National Parks, particularly in the western part of our country.

When I think of snowmobiling in Minnesota, I think of families and friends. I think of people who come together on their free time to enjoy the wonders of Minnesota in a way no other form of transportation allows them. I also think of the fact that in many instances snowmobiles in Minnesota are used for much more than just recreation. For some, they're a mode of transportation when snow blankets our state. For others, snowmobiles provide a mode of search and rescue activity. Whatever the reason, snowmobiles are an extremely important aspect of commerce, travel, recreation, and safety in my home state.

Minnesota, right now, is home to over 280,000 registered snowmobiles and 20,000 miles of snowmobile trails. According to the Minnesota United Snowmobilers Association, an association with over 51,000 individual members, Minnesota's 311 snowmobile riding clubs raised $264,000 for charity in 1998 alone. Snowmobiling creates over 6,600 jobs and $645 million of economic activity in Minnesota. Minnesota is home to two major snowmobile manufacturers—Arctic Cat and Polaris. And yes, I enjoy my own snowmobiles.

People who enjoy snowmobiling come from all walks of life. They're farmers, lawyers, nurses, construction workers, loggers, and miners. They're men, women, and young adults. They're people who enjoy the outdoors, time with their families, and the recreational opportunities our diverse climate offers. These are people who not only enjoy the natural resources through which they ride, but understand the important balance between enjoying and conserving our natural resources.

Just three years ago, I took part in a snowmobile ride through a number of cities and trails in northern Minnesota. While our ride didn't take us through a unit of the National Park Service, it did take us through parks, forests, and trails that sustain a diverse amount of plant and animal species. I talked with my fellow riders and I learned a great deal about the work their snowmobile clubs undertake to conserve natural resources, respect the integrity of the land upon which they ride, and educate their members about the need to ride responsibly.

The time I spent with these individuals and the time I've spent on my own snowmobiles have given me a great respect for both the quality and enjoyment of the recreational experience and the need to ride responsibly and safely. It has also given me reason to strongly disagree with the approach the Park Service has chosen in banning snowmobiles from our National Parks.

I was stunned to read of the severity of the Park Service's ban and the rhetoric used by Assistant Secretary Donald J. Barry in announcing the ban. In the announcement, Assistant Secretary Barry said, "The time has come for the National Park Service to pull in its welcome mat for recreational snowmobiling." He went on to say that snowmobiles were, "machines that are no longer welcome in our national parks." These are the words of a bureaucrat whose agenda has been handwritten for him by those opposed to snowmobiling.

The last time I checked, Congress is supposed to be setting the agenda of the federal agencies. The last time I checked, Congress should be determining who is and is not welcome on our federal lands. And the last time I checked, the American people own our public-lands—not the Clinton administration and certainly not Donald J. Barry.

I can't begin to count the rules, regulations, and executive orders this Administration has undertaken without even the most minimal consideration for Congress or local officials. It has happened in state after state, to Democrats and Republicans, and with little or no regard for the rule or the intent of law. I want to quote Interior Secretary Bruce Babbitt from an article in the National Journal, dated May 22, 1999. In the article, Secretary Babbitt was quoted as saying:

When I got to town, what I didn't know was that we didn't need more legislation. But we looked around and saw we had authority to regulate grazing policies. It took 18 months to draft new grazing regulations. On mining, we have also found that we already had authority over, well, probably two-thirds of the issues in contention. We've switched the rules of the game. We're not trying to do anything legislative.

As further evidence of this Administration's abuse of Congress—and therefore of the American people—Environmental Protection Agency Administrator Carol Browner was quoted in the same article as saying:

We completely understand all of the executive tools that are available to us—And boy do we use them.

While Ms. Browner's words strongly imply an intent to work around Congress, at least she did not join Secretary Babbitt in coming right out and admitting it.

Well, Mr. President, I for one am getting a little sick and tired of watching this Administration force park users out of their parks, steal land from our states and counties, impose costly new regulations on farmers and businesses without scientific justification, and force Congress to become a spectator on many of the most controversial and important issues before the American people. Quite frankly, I'm getting a little sick and tired of this Administration's positions of zero-cut, zero-access, and zero-fun on public lands.

When forging public policy, those of us in Congress often have to consider the opinions of the state and local officials who are most impacted. If I'm going to support an action on public land, I usually contact the state and local official who represent the area to see what they have to say. I know that if I don't get their perspective, I might miss a detail that could improve my efforts are necessary or if they're misplaced. They can alert me to areas where I need to forge a broader consensus and of ways in which my efforts might actually hurt the people I represent. I think that is a prudent way to forge public policy and a fair way to deal with state and local officials.

I know, however, that no one from the Park Service ever contacted me to see how I felt about banning snowmobiling in Park Service units in Minnesota. I was never consulted on snowmobile usage in Minnesota or on any complaints that I might have received from my constituents. While I've not checked with every local official in Minnesota, not one local official has called me to say that the Park Service contacted them. In fact, while I knew the Park Service was considering taking action to curb snowmobile usage in some parks, I had no idea the Park Service was considering an action so broad, and so extreme, nor did I think they would issue it this quickly.

This quick, overreaching action by the Park Service, I believe, was unwarranted. It did not allow time for federal, state, or local officials to work together on the issue. It didn't bring snowmobile users to the table to discuss the impact of the decision. It didn't allow time for Congress and the Administration to look at all of the available options or to differentiate between parks with heavy snowmobile usage and those with occasional usage. This decision stands as a dramatic example of how not to conduct policy formulation and is an affront to the consideration American citizens deserve from their elected officials.

That is why this amendment is so important. It reverses the dark of night, back room tactics used by this Administration to arrive at this decision. We cannot simply stand by and watch as the administration continues its quest for even greater power at the expense of the deliberative legislative processes envisioned by the founders of our country. Secretary Babbitt, Administrator Browner, and Donald J. Barry may believe they're above working with Congress, but only we can make sure they're reminded, in the strongest possible terms, that when they neglect Congress they're neglecting the American people. This amendment does just that.

Mr. ENZI. Mr. President, I rise in support of the amendment introduced by the Senator from Wyoming, Senator CRAIG THOMAS, regarding a study on snowmobile use within our National Parks.

The development of the Yellowstone and Grand Tetons National Parks winter use plan draft environmental impact statement has been a landmark exercise for inclusion and cooperation between state, local and Federal Agencies involved in the land management planning process. While this endeavor has not progressed without flaws, it has established that local and state governments possess the expertise and ability to respond in a timely and educated manner to address issues critical to the development of a comprehensive land-use document.

In spite of these efforts, however, the United States Department of the Interior has announced a decision to usurp this process and has chosen to implement an outright ban on all snowmobiles, in virtually all national parks, including Yellowstone.

I must admit I am not surprised at the over-reaching nature of this action. In fact, several months ago I predicted that the Park Service would ban snowmobiles in Yellowstone Park and would extend its ban on snowmobiles to all national parks. I am further concerned that this action will spread to include other public land including the national forests. In fact, discussions with National Forest supervisors surrounding Yellowstone indicate that all it will take is an adverse opinion by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service to ban snowmobiles altogether.

The United States Forest Service could claim that increased snowmobile use on our national forests will impact the Canadian lynx, or some other threatened or endangered species, without proof or documentation to put such a ban in place.

After a ban in the forests, we can expect action on BLM lands. After snowmobiles, what next? A ban on automobiles and then even on bicycles? If that sounds farfetched, think back just three years ago when we were assured that snowmobiles would not be banned in Yellowstone Park. Soon, we may even expect that bans on other types of recreation will follow and our public lands will no longer be available to the public.

As one of the Senators representing the bulk of Yellowstone, I feel it is my duty to correct some of the misconceptions that surround this proposal by the federal government to prohibit access to our nation's oldest and dearest of national parks.

Millions of visitors come to Yellowstone National Park each year to experience first hand the park's unique and awesome beauty. They come from all over the world to see Earth's largest collection of geothermal features and to witness some of the largest free-roaming bison and elk herds in the United States.

In a proposal announced March 24, 2000 the U.S. Department of the Interior declared its plan to permanently ban snowmobiles from the park beginning in 2002. This announcement was followed by a later statement, on April 27, 2000, where the Department of Interior expanded a proposed ban to dozens of other national parks across the country. If federal officials and national special interest groups have their way, however, a visit to Yellowstone National Park may become as rare and endangered as the trumpeter swan or black footed ferret.

There is little evidence to support claims that this proposal was made to protect the environment or to reduce the impact on Park animals. In fact, later statements by park personnel indicate that the main reason for this ban was to comply with changing Park Service policy which was developed to supersede ongoing efforts to reach a reasonable compromise on national park winter use.

As I stated earlier, the decision to ban snowmobiles was announced before the Park Service had completed its review of comments on a draft environmental impact statement created by the park and adjacent states and counties to address concerns over winter use in Yellowstone and its neighbor, Grand Teton National Park. The announcement also came before officials could incorporate revisions and amendments to major studies that the Park Service relied on in drafting the draft environmental impact statement.

The Park Service admits these initial studies were seriously flawed and exaggerated snowmobile pollution estimates. The original draft study on snowmobile emissions erroneously computed emissions amounts using pounds instead of grams as is used to compute all standard emission amounts.

So what is the real reason for banning snowmobiles from Yellowstone and all other national parks? The Park Service's proposal to ban snowmobiles is all about deciding who will have the privilege of experiencing the Park up close and in person, and who will be forced to stay home. Unfortunately, this will leave an even larger segment of the United States ignorant of how vast and wonderful our parks really are.

It is vitally important, therefore, that a true picture be painted for the American public to understand what is really being taken away from them.

One poll touted by national environmental organizations claims most Americans favor banning snowmobiles, partially based on an image of snowmobiles as heinous, smog producing, noisy devices used to run down poor, defenseless animals and lacking a conception of the size of the park and the limited number of snowmobiles accessing the park on any given day.

The administration failed to inform the public of other alternatives to an outright ban that were in the works. For example: snowmobile manufacturers are interested in cleaner, quieter machines. There was also discussion about reducing the number of snowmobiles that could access the park every winter. Not many people realize that local leaders were very involved in trying to resolve the situation to avoid implementing a full fledged ban.

In addition, the snowmobile industry has been working for several years to develop air and noise standards with the Environmental Protection Agency so there is a clear target for cleaner, quieter machines. Industry has stated time and time again that once they have clearly defined standards they will develop the technology to meet those standards (assuming some reasonableness to the standard) One company even gave the Park Service some advanced model snowmobiles to test.

Right now, snowmobiles are only allowed on groomed roads, the same roads used by cars in the summer and average less than two-thousand snowmobiles a day. A speed limit of 45 miles per hour is strictly enforced. Any driver who puts one ski off the designated trails is subject to fines and possible arrest. The same goes for speeding.

This is a significant point to make by the way, because the Executive order this ban is based on regulates off-road vehicle use on our national parks, and as I just noted, snowmobiles are not off-road vehicles in national parks.

What a snowmobile ban really does is deny access for old and young riders with physical limitations that preclude them from snowshoeing or cross country skiing into the park. The only alternative left for those visitors unable to snowshoe or ski into the park will only be able to access the park via a mass transit vehicle known as a snow coach.

Because of its size, and the type of terrain, it is incredibly impractical to limit access to Yellowstone to just snow coaches or cross country skis and snowshoes. Yellowstone is made up of approximately 2.2 million acres, most of which is already closed to public access other than by foot, snow shoe or skis, and has less than 2,000 snowmobiles inside the park on any given day.

By comparison, the State of Connecticut is slightly larger than Yellowstone Park with more than 3.3 million people, many of which drive a car every day. Perspective is important.

On its face, and in the safety of your own living room, the idea of riding a van-sized, over snow vehicle may sound like a romantic mode of travel, but in reality, snow coaches are large, cumbersome vehicles that grind, scrape, and shake their way across high mountain passes. It is impossible to ride in a snow coach for long periods of time.

As a result, the proposal to only access the park by means of mass transit further restricts time and access to the park by virtually eliminating all entrances to Yellowstone except for the gate at West Yellowstone, Montana. The terrain and elevation at Wyoming's East Gate is so rugged and high that it is impractical for snow coaches to travel in that area of the park. Sylvan Pass reaches an elevation of 8,530 feet and is surrounded by mountains that rise well over 10,000 feet on one side, and gorges with sheet drops of several thousand feet on the other. This is definitely not a place for a snow coach.

Furthermore, by moving the southern access point from Flag Ranch to Colter Bay, the Park Service makes any southern day trip into Yellowstone an impossible 113 miles round trip. This also creates a serious safety problem for Idaho snow groomers who, in the past, filled up their gas tanks at Flag Ranch. Under the current proposal, these facilities will be closed and the groomers will not have enough gas to make one complete round trip. This creates a serious safety problem and shuts off access to more than 60 miles of non-Park Service trails.

Once again, I would like to reiterate that the complete banning of snowmobiles is not the only available alternative for national park recreational winter use. For the past three years, I have worked with the communities surrounding Yellowstone to develop a more practical and more inclusive approach to Yellowstone winter use.

After holding dozens of meetings with residents and business owners, we have been able to create a proposal that preserves the park's environmental health while at the same time ensuring future access—for everyone. This amendment will enable the Park Service to rethink its actions and hopefully incorporate a more positive approach to winter management.

I grew up spending time in Yellowstone where grandparents camped inside the park all summer. I have been back many times since, sometimes on a snowmobile. In fact, I get there every year. Over the years the park has improved, not been overrun or run down as efforts mostly to get additional funds imply. Anyone who knows and loves Yellowstone like I do can attest to the fact that there is room enough for wildlife, snowmobiles, snowshoers, cross country skiers and snow coaches in Yellowstone, and a reasonable compromise can be reached to include all of these uses, that is unless federal officials don't step in first and ensure everyone is excluded. Wildlife and human enjoyment of the wildlife are not mutually exclusive. Good administration would accommodate both.

The study outlined in this amendment would establish a necessary first step in restoring access, not just to the park, but to the land planning process, for those people who will bear the brunt of the Park Service's decision to ban snowmobiles. Clearly, the Park Service's decision in this matter is an arbitrary decision that bypassed local communities, counties, states and even Congress. The Park Service needs the direction provided for in this amendment.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The distinguished Senator from Idaho is recognized.

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, I stand in support of my colleague from Wyoming on his amendment.

I was quite surprised when Senator REID of Nevada spoke on the floor about this issue because I heard what he was saying before. It was given in testimony before the Subcommittee on Parks, chaired by the Senator from Wyoming, by the national environmental groups. He was following their script. Their script says: Get all of the snowmobiles out of the park. For some reason that impacts the parks. I have ridden snowmobiles in Yellowstone. I am not sure the Senator from Nevada has. I am not sure many Senators have. I don't dispute the need to manage the number of snowmobiles and the entry of snowmobiles where they travel.

But arbitrarily and without justification, Assistant Secretary Barry—who has now fled to the Wilderness Society once he tried to accomplish his damage here in this administration with the Park Service—came before the committee and emphatically said they had to go. In a press conference a few days prior to that hearing in almost a defiant, arrogant way, he said he was going to take all of them out of the parks, finish the rulemaking in Yellowstone, and so be it—failing to recognize the industries that have built up around snowmobiling at both entrances to Yellowstone Park; failing to deal with them in a responsible, cooperative way—so that he could ensure the mantra of the Clinton administration, and that public lands generate economies in recreation and tourism.

Here quite the opposite was going on—no economy, everything for the environment, even though the facts bear out that you can still have an economy, meaning people on snowmobiles in Yellowstone in the wintertime, and still protect the environment.

How do you accomplish that? You work with the industry. What do you do with the industry? You ask them to redesign their sleds so they make little to no noise and very little pollution—if there is any of consequence that would damage the environment to begin with.

What does the industry say? They can do it. In fact, last winter they were operating in Yellowstone with a prototype put out by one of the snowmobile manufacturers. It was a four-cycle instead of a two-cycle engine. The Senator from Nevada was bemoaning the pollution of the two-cycle. We now know they can produce a four-cycle that will be certainly less environmentally damaging. They are willing to do that.

The moment the industry said to the Park Service we can supply you with a new sled that meets these standards, the Park Service says: Oh, well, it wasn't air pollution, it wasn't noise pollution, it was wildlife harassment.

Somehow the wildlife of Yellowstone is going through some emotional problem as a result of snowmobiles trafficking by recreationists on a daily basis. I am not quite sure they have had any examples of these wildlife species in therapy. But somehow they seem to know a great deal about it.

The bottom line is simply this: The environmentalists have told this administration they want snowmobiles out of the parks.

I suggest to the National Park Service that they have a real problem on their hands in management. In other words, they are denying public access to parks that were designed to protect the environment and also allow public access. They have a crisis in management.

They don't have an environmental problem in Yellowstone, they have a management problem, a failure on the part of this administration, and certainly this President, to recognize the cooperative balance between the environment and the public and how one benefits from creating this kind of balance for all to benefit from.

Mr. GORTON. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. CRAIG. I am happy to yield to the Senator.

Mr. GORTON. Mr. President, I note another Senator interested in the subject. I note there are 55 minutes between now and 6:15. I have a minimum of 3 amendments that I know are going to be debated and will require votes, and perhaps five. While there are no limitations on this, I appreciate it being concluded relatively quickly so we can go to the Senator from Nevada. His amendment will be contested, and there will be more after that. We are scheduled to go off this bill, for good, except for votes, at 6:15.

Mr. CRAIG. I thank the chairman of the subcommittee for giving an evaluation of the time remaining on the amendments that must be dealt with. I know the chairman has been struggling since around 3:15 to get Senators to debate the amendments, and now all of a sudden they appear on the floor in the last minutes.

I conclude my debate. The Senator from Montana, I know, wants to speak to this issue. It impacts his State and the economy of his State. Once again I say to the administration, shame on you for taking people out of the environment, all in the name of the environment. It doesn't seem a very good solution to me, if you are going to tout tourism and recreation to us western States as an alternative to the elimination of the extractive resource industries that have provided economies to our States for the last 100-plus years.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The distinguished Senator from Montana is recognized.

Mr. BURNS. It will not take long to make the point. I will facilitate everything, as the chairman of the subcommittee wants.

If Members want to talk about wildlife in Yellowstone, you will see very little variety in wildlife in Yellowstone in the wintertime. If you have been there, you know that about the only thing you will see is bison. Let me tell you, you don't bother them with a little old snowmobile. They are just walking around, and they go wherever they want to, whenever they want to. So let's not be worried about the bison. Whether you agree with it or not, there are too many bison in the park. We have grazed that country right into the ground.

I remind Members that those who operate the snowmobiles out of West Yellowstone have gone to the Park Service and said: We will make arrangements to prevent line-ups at the gate, we will get new, cleaner, quieter machines, we will work with you in order to protect the environment of Yellowstone Park.

There will be more people in a week this summer through the park than all of next winter. You cannot even get through that park for traffic right now. One of these days, you will have to go to a gate and pick a number and they call your number and you get to go to the park. The impact is in the summer, not in the winter, no matter what you are riding. It could be an old gray horse or a snowmobile, it doesn't make any difference. And are we concerned about that?

Let's not be shocked. The Senator from Wyoming has a good idea. It is time we take a realistic look at this, do the study, and go forward with the recommendations that are made.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, the Environmental Protection Agency has issued proposed regulations governing the emissions of snowmobiles in our National Park System. It is very clear that these vehicles cause big problems. Why do I say that? A single snowmobile belches out the same pollution that 20 automobiles do. One snowmobile equals the pollution of 20 passenger cars.

Also, my friend from Tennessee earlier talked about the air pollution in the Great Smoky Mountains because of coal-fired generating plants in that area. There isn't much that can be done, at this stage at least, to stop those longstanding power producers from generating the emissions they do. But there is something we can do to stop air pollution from developing as it has in our National Park System.

It is a national disgrace that the levels of toxic pollution, such as carbon monoxide—in Yellowstone National Park, to pick just one—rival major urban centers such as Los Angeles and Denver. I repeat, it is a national disgrace that levels of toxic pollutants such as carbon monoxide, in our national parks—especially Yellowstone—at times, rival major urban centers such as Los Angeles and Denver. That is significant.

But what is being proposed by the Environmental Protection Agency is nothing that is going to eliminate snowmobiling in our country.

For example, of the more than 130,000 miles of designated snowmobile trails in the United States, less than 1,000 of those miles are in national parks—to be exact, there are 600 miles. So this furor, and the offering of this amendment, to eliminate this proposal to stop the air pollution of snowmobiles in national parks is really a red herring. There are other places you can ride snowmobiles. In fact, you can ride them over 129,000 miles in the United States alone. We need not ride them this 600 miles in national parks.

Appropriate access to national parks is important, but such access does not include all forms of transportation at all times. Protecting parks from air, water, and noise pollution, for the enjoyment of all Americans, should be our No. 1 goal.

I am very happy that the Senator from Tennessee spoke earlier about how important national parks are. I agree with him. We are the envy of the rest of the world with our national parks.

Yosemite, Great Basin National Park, Yellowstone National Park—these wonderful gems of nature, that we are attempting to preserve, need to be preserved.

The amendment would prohibit the Park Service from doing its job to protect some of America's most awe-inspiring national treasures. The landscape of our national parks should reflect the wonders of our Creator, which I think we have an obligation to protect. National parks do not need to serve as racetracks for noisy, high-polluting snow machines.

The State of Nevada shares Lake Tahoe with California. We wish we had all of Lake Tahoe, but we do not mind sharing it with California. It is a wonderful, beautiful lake. There is only one other lake like it in the world, and that is Lake Bakal in the former Soviet Union, now Russia, an alpine glacial lake. Lake Tahoe it is very deep—not as deep as Lake Bakal, which is over 5,000 feet deep, but very deep. It was only 35 years ago they found the bottom of Lake Tahoe. It is extremely cold. It is beautiful. It is emerald colored.

But one of the things contributing to the ruination of Lake Tahoe is two-stroke engines. They were outlawed last year. I am glad they were outlawed. People may complain: What are we going to do for recreation?

There are plenty of things to do for recreation without these two-stroke engines. They are gone now. The lake is less polluted. It sounds better. Two-stroke engines are also the engines that snowmobiles use. They have been outlawed at Lake Tahoe. Why? Because they are inefficient, highly polluting, and contribute disproportionately to the decline of the lake's legendary clarity and degradation of its water quality.

Our national parks deserve similar protection from the pollution produced by these snow machines.

In sum, the use of snowmobiles currently prevents adequate protection of air and water quality for wildlife. Damage is being done to national parks not some time in the future but right now. The unnecessary delay caused by this amendment would allow further damage to our parks.

Congress should allow individual parks that currently allow snowmobiling to go through a public comment process to determine what course of action is appropriate. This amendment would eliminate that.

EPA agrees that the Park Service has the primary and immediate duty to take action to protect parks from snowmobile impacts. In comments on the draft EIS for winter use at Yellowstone, EPA said:

We encourage the National Park Service to take the steps necessary to protect human health and the environment immediately rather than to depend on future regulations of off-highway vehicle engines from EPA.

They are saying let's not wait for us to do it. The Park Service has an obligation to do it right now. Postponing Park Service action on the snowmobile issue is a delay tactic, pure and simple.

The amendment we are debating assumes there is an inherent right of snowmobiles to run wild in the national parks, irrespective of their impact on other users and the environment. This is a very flawed assumption. They have no inherent right to run wild in national parks.

All Americans have the right to enjoy our national parks but only in ways that do not damage the parks. Prohibiting snowmobiles in national parks will have an insignificant impact on recreational opportunities available to snowmobilers. Again, there are more than 130,000 miles of designated trails in the United States, and less than 1,000 of those miles are in national parks. That is less than 1 percent.

Because millions of acres of public lands are already open to public snowmobiling, banning snow machines in national parks does not prevent recreationists from using their vehicles. It just prevents them from using the most sensitive and heavily visited public lands.

Arguing that every form of recreational access should be allowed in national parks is silly. Visitors do not need to jet boat in Crater Lake National Park. Visitors do not need to ride dirt bikes in the Grand Canyon. Visitors do not need to bungee jump from the Washington Monument.

Prohibitions against such activities do not restrict Americans' access to our parks; rather, they indicate a willingness to protect parks for the enjoyment of all visitors.

Great Basin National Park in Nevada already prohibits snowmobile use. Glacier and Yosemite Parks do not allow snowmobile use.

What are some of the environmental problems caused by snowmobiles in national parks?

Environmental analyses done at Yellowstone and elsewhere have shown that snowmobiles can seriously damage park resources. According to the Environmental Protection Agency, existing scientific evidence "clearly and convincingly demonstrates [that] current snowmobile use is adversely affecting the natural . . . aesthetic . . . and scenic values" in Yellowstone.

Air pollution: Yellowstone and several other national parks are recognized as Class I airsheds under the Clean Air Act. The Park Service is required by law to protect these areas from any degradation. The presence of snowmobiles in the park makes that task virtually impossible.

Air quality monitors at Yellowstone's west entrance have found carbon monoxide levels that rival or exceed those found in major urban areas such as Denver and Los Angeles.

Snowmobiles account for up to 68 percent of Yellowstone's annual carbon monoxide emissions and up to 90 percent of hydrocarbon emissions, even through automobiles out number them 16 to 1.

Water pollution: Every winter, snowmobiles spew unburned fuel into the snow in national parks and ultimately into their rivers and lakes.

Contaminants released by snowmobiles two-stroke engines include polycyclic aromatic hydrocarbons (PAH) and methyl tertiary butyl ether.

PAHs in water are toxic to aquatic life, and MTBE is an identified human health hazard.

Noise pollution: The preservation of natural sounds is a major national park management objective.

A study of snowmobile noise interfered with visitors' ability to hear natural sounds at 12 out of 13 popular locations, including Morning Glory Pool, Grand Prismatic Spring, and other destinations. At Old Faithful, the world's most famous geyser, snowmobile engines were the dominant sound 100 percent of the time.

Wildlife impacts: The NPS Biological Resources Division found that "snowmobile usage adversely affects wildlife."

Noise and the physical presence of snowmobiles cause animals to alter their activity patterns. This behavioral response is of concern because snowmobile use occurs when food supplies are low and an animal's ability to conserve energy may be critical to its survival.

Heavily used snowmobile routes can cut off winter migration paths used by park wildlife.

Conflicts with other park visitors: Snowmobiles detract from other people's experience in the national parks. A 1996 visitor use study conducted in Yellowstone found many people who reported that encounters with snowmobiles were the least enjoyable part of their park visit because of the noise, pollution, and impact on wildlife viewing.

How will restrictions on national parks affect other recreational snowmobiling opportunities?

According to the International Snowmobile Manufacturers Association there are approximately 230,000 miles of groomed and marked snowmobile trails in North America, and about 130,000 miles in the United States. This does not include areas such as national forest roads that are open to snowmobiles but not explicitly designated for snowmobiles. In contrast, there are only about 600 miles of roads and waterways open to snowmobile in national parks in the continental United States, and 300 of those miles are excluded from the NPS April 26 announcement. Closing national parks will not diminish recreation opportunities for snowmobiles, but it will help reduce noise, pollution, and congestion in Yellowstone and other parks.

Many states have thousands of miles of designated trails for snowmobilers to enjoy. Promotional material from the state of Wyoming does not even mention Yellowstone National Park, but does promise that "with over 2,200 miles of snowmobile trails, you can access some of the most scenic backcountry in the world." (See attachment #8)

Snowmobile opportunities in other States include: Colorado, over 3,000 miles of trails; Idaho, over 7,200 miles of trails; Maine, over 12,000 miles of trails; Michigan, 5,800 miles of trails;

Minnesota, 14,000 miles of trails; and Montana, over 2,500 miles of trails.

How much snowmobile use is there in the national parks?

There are 42 units of the National Park System that allow snowmobiles, 28 of these parks are in the continental U.S. Over 175,000 snowmobiles use these 28 parks annually. The five parks with the most annual use are: Yellowstone, 65,000 are 1.5 million registered snowmobiles in the United States.

How will this affect individual national parks?

The National Park Service action DOES NOT immediately ban snowmobile use in all national parks. Late this summer, the Park Service plans to release a proposed rule that will amend its overall snowmobile regulation, 36 CFR 2.18 and address each of the parks that currently allow snowmobiles. This proposed rule would modify or amend those special regulations to bring parks into compliance with the Executive Orders, statutes, and regulations. Public comments will be incorporated before the rule is made final.

For example, approximately 80 percent of existing snowmobile use at Picured Rocks National Lakeshore is expected to continue, and at St. Croix National Scenic Riverway, an annual "Winterfest" celebration that includes snowmobiles is expected to continue under a special use permit.

There are arguments by opponents of Park Service regulations.

Argument: A snowcoach system in Yellowstone would deny visitors access to the park.

Response: The snowcoach system proposed by the Park Service for Yellowstone and Grand Teton national parks will provide park visitors access to all of the areas currently open to snowmobile visitors.

The only access proposed to be limited is that of backcountry ski and snowshoe visitors in off-trail areas of critical winter wildlife habitat.

The snowcoach system will allow the same number, if not more, of visitors to enter the park each winter, while reducing the number of vehicles by 90% (assuming average capacities of one person per snowmobile and the ten per snowcoach).

There is a tendency to confuse access with recreational use. Snowmobiles as currently used are a form of recreation. The parks have a duty to determine the means of access to park attractions that cause the least damage to resources. In no way is public access being eroded, rather a recreational pursuit is being eliminated due to its negative impacts on park resources. A less damaging mode of transportation will be substituted to allow visitor access to the parks.

Proposals to allow snowmobiles but to cap their numbers would essentially limit the numbers of winter visitors to the park. People are not the problem in the parks. Noisy, polluting machines are what's needed to be limited.

In relation to economic impacts—argument: The Yellowstone gateway communities are uniformly opposed to the removal of snowmobiles because it will destroy their winter economies.

Response: Scores of businesspeople in West Yellowstone, MT, the main winter gateway to Yellowstone, have raised their voices in support of removal of snowmobiles from the park. Several representatives of the community/business owner organization West Yellowstone Citizens for a Healthy Park traveled to Washington, D.C. this spring to tell Congress that the health of their local economy depends on the health of Yellowstone National Park.

Current snowmobile use in Yellowstone creates numerous problems of safety, noise and air pollution in gateway communities. A change in winter park transportation will allow for much-desired diversification of gateway economies.

In relation to improved technology—Argument: The regulation of snowmobiles in national parks should be delayed until new snowmobile technologies are available.

Response: The EPA has explicitly told the Park Service not to wait for upcoming EPA regulations: "This DEIS includes extensive analysis of the effects from current winter use and that analysis demonstrates significant environmental and human health impacts. We encourage NPS to take the steps necessary to protect human health and the environment immediately rather than to depend on future regulation of OHV engines from EPA." EPA comments on Draft EIS for Winter Use Plans, Yellowstone and Grand Teton National Parks and John D. Rockefeller Jr. Memorial Parkway, Region 8 EPA, Denver, CO.

EPA regulations will not address noise emissions from snowmobiles and may not require air emissions stringent enough to protect park air quality.

Compliance with park regulations and laws regarding wildlife, noise and visitor conflict will not be addressed by the development of snowmobiles with less air pollution.

Less polluting snowmobiles would not address the mass transit needs of the parks. Many parks are adopting mass transit using the cleanest, quietest technologies available; this is also the case in Yellowstone. Transportation alternatives to the one-person, one vehicle model have been implemented in Acadia and Denali, and will soon be in place in Grand Canyon, Zion and Yosemite National Parks. The NPS should be a leader in promoting clean, quiet and affordable modes of group transportation that are protective of the natural qualities of the parks.

Recognizing that it is the vehicles, not the people at the root of the problem, Yellowstone in winter is a natural place to look next for expansion of the alternative transportation program already taking place in the Park System.

In relation to the history of Snowmobiling in Yellowstone National Park, in 1963, the first snowmobile enters Yellowstone. In 1973–1974, 30,000 snowmobiles enter Yellowstone. In 1972 the National Park Service Regional Director asked all parks to devise winter use plans. Glacier National Park undertook such a review and noted the variety of problems caused by snowmobiling in the park including air and noise pollution, wildlife disturbance and conflicts with other park users. For these reasons and because of strong public sentiment against disrupting the quiet and beauty of Glacier National Park with snowmobiles, the park decided to ban them. Yosemite, Sequoia/Kings Canyon, Lassen and others followed suit.

Yellowstone, however, did not follow the directive to assess the impact of snowmobiles on park resources. Complaints from visitors and park rangers concerning air and noise pollution grew commonplace and the first studies documenting adverse impacts to wildlife from snowmobile use were completed. Future superintendents of Yellowstone allowed further expansion of snowmobiling in the park despite ongoing concerns about air and noise pollution and wildlife impacts. Finally, in the 1990s conditions in Yellowstone and Grand Teton grew so bad that the parks were forced to take action.

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, I wanted to take a few minutes to discuss the rulemaking that has been proposed by the National Park Service to limit the use of snowmobiles in national parks.

National parks are the crown jewels of our nation's system of public lands. They harbor diverse wildlife, rare and beautiful species of plants and spectacular geological formations. In my home state of South Dakota, the Badlands National Park is home to a rich trove of ancient fossils and it provides important habitat for the black-tailed prairie dog and black-footed ferret.

I support the efforts of the National Park Service to ensure that these lands remain pristine so that future generations of Americans can enjoy them. I also understand the strong desire of many snowmobilers to continue to have wintertime access to these lands, where the activity has been enjoyed for many years.

While snowmobiling does not currently take place in national parks in South Dakota, there is a great deal of interest in this issue in the state and support for appropriately managed access to national parks. By carefully managing the parks, I believe that we can provide this access in a manner that is sensitive to the needs of the environment and to those who go to public lands in search of solitude and quiet.

Today, Secretary Bruce Babbitt wrote me to describe in greater detail how the National Park Service intends to proceed in coming months. I believe that it is critical for the agency to review a variety of options for managing snowmobiles and to ensure a full opportunity for public comment. According to the Secretary's letter, the agency does not intend to ban snowmobiles, but will proceed with a rulemaking and public comment period that will allow a full analysis of this issue and provide options for the controlled use of snowmobiles in national parks. I look forward to continuing to discuss this issue with my colleagues, the administration, representatives of environmental groups and snowmobiling enthusiasts.

I ask unanimous consent that a letter from Secretary Babbitt be included in the RECORD at this time.

There being no objection, the letter was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

THE SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR,
Washington, July 17, 2000.

Hon. THOMAS A. DASCHLE,
U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR DASCHLE: I am responding to your recent request for clarification of the status of National Park Service actions on the use of snowmobiles in national parks. Since there have been some misperceptions about what the Service has done, I appreciate the opportunity to provide this clarification.

In response to a petition for a rulemaking, the National Park Service has reviewed the snowmobile use that is now allowed in 42 of the 379 units of the national park system. That review, including a review by the Office of the Solicitor of the Department, had led us to conclude that much of the snowmobile use that is now occurring is not consistent with the requirements of Executive Orders 11644 and 11898, issued by Presidents Nixon and Carter, and other legal requirements. Accordingly, in April the Department and the Service announced that we would undertake a new rulemaking to modify the existing system-wide general rule (36 CFR 2.18), and additional park-specific special rules, to bring them into compliance with the applicable legal requirements. We did not announce that any decision had been made, but instead that we intend to initiate a rulemaking process. In that process, we will comply with all established requirements for rulemaking, including the requirements for seeking and considering public comments. It is our current intent to publish by mid-September a proposed rule, for public comment, to begin the formal process of making these changes.

Until a new rulemaking is completed, the existing rules on snowmobile use in the national parks remain in effect.

We will seek public comment on a proposed rule generally following the format of the existing rule, which prohibits snowmobile use in national parks except in certain instances. The draft rule has not yet been completed, but, when finalized, it would not affect snowmobile use opportunities in national park system areas for the following purposes: For access to private, or other non-federal property; for access across national parks to reach private or other public lands that are open to snowmobiles use; where the roads through national parks are not under federal jurisdiction; and as authorized in specific national park enabling statutes (i.e., with respect to national parks in Alaska and Voyageurs National Park).

In addition, as a result of settlement of litigation, the National Park Service is in the final stages of preparing a Winter Use Management Plan and EIS for Yellowstone and Grand Teton National Parks. The final decisions on winter use have not been made there, but those decisions will determine future winter use management in these two parks, including the use of snowmobiles.

If we do propose a rule containing these elements, and if, following public comment, we finalize a rule along these lines, the net effect would be that some level of snowmobile use would continue in about 30 of the 42 national parks where it is now allowed. Of course, since the proposed rule will be subject to public review and comment, we are likely to consider additional alternatives during this process and a different outcome could result.

To summarize, the National Park Service has not made any final decisions on what changes to make in the snowmobile use that is allowed in national parks, and any decisions we make will be made following public comment and in compliance with other requirements for agency rulemaking. I appreciate the opportunity to clarify this.

Sincerely,

BRUCE BABBITT.

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, I would like to take a moment to comment on the issue of snowmobiling in Yellowstone.

It is pretty clear to anyone who has visited Yellowstone during the winter that changes need to be made to protect the park. I have met with folks on all sides of this issue, and I think that most people agree that the noise, air pollution and wildlife impacts are unacceptable and have to be addressed.

Yellowstone is the engine for local economies and is part of our national heritage. We owe it to our children and grandchildren to make sure that we don't harm the park and its wildlife.

That having been said, I don't think we need an outright ban. I believe that we can protect the park and its wildlife in other ways. Already, people have put forth a number of creative alternatives to meet these goals, including limiting the number of snowmobiles allowed in the park, requiring clean and quiet machines, and using guided tours.

I think we need to explore all these alternatives and work together to strike a common-sense balance that best serves Yellowstone and Montana. A balance that protects the Park, the local economies and involves people on all sides of this issue.

As my colleagues in this body know, I am not in favor of legislating on appropriations bills. I am pleased that the Senate has decided to not pursue that route for the time being. It is my hope that the current administrative process that is underway for Yellowstone will produce an administrative compromise that protects Yellowstone National Park and provides for a broad range of visitor uses of the Park.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Wyoming is recognized.

AMENDMENT NO. 3800, WITHDRAWN

Mr. THOMAS. I thank the Senator from Montana and the other Members who have joined.

There is no one in this place who is a stronger supporter of national parks than I. I continue to support the national parks. Here is a chance to find some alternative ways to do that.

I thank the chairman of the subcommittee for giving time.

I do not intend to ask for a vote.

Mr. GORTON. Is the Senator withdrawing the amendment?

Mr. THOMAS. I will withdraw the amendment. I intend to withdraw the amendment to try to find a mutual resolution.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the amendment is withdrawn.

Mr. GORTON. I thank the Senator from Wyoming for that gesture. I support the cause to which he has spoken. If there is a way to get at least part of that adopted, I will try to find it.

I express my appreciation to my friend from Nevada to whom I made a promise about debating this amendment earlier that I could not keep. He has been most understanding.

Mr. BRYAN. I appreciate the distinguished leader's comments. The Senator from Washington has honored his commitment because, as the Senator knows, I had a previous commitment earlier in the day. I thank the Senator for his accommodation.

As I understand the parliamentary status, I will need to seek unanimous consent to set aside the pending amendment for the purpose of offering an amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is correct.

Mr. BRYAN. I ask unanimous consent that the pending amendment be set aside.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the Senator is recognized.

AMENDMENT NO. 3883

Mr. BRYAN. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Nevada [Mr. BRYAN], for himself, and Mr. FITZGERALD, proposes an amendment numbered 3883.

Mr. BRYAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

(Purpose: To reduce the Forest Service timber sale budget by $30,000,000 and increase the wildland fire management budget by $15,000,000)

On page 164, line 19, strike "$1,233,824,000," and insert "$1,203,824,000,".

On page 164, line 23, strike "(16 U.S.C. 4601(a)(i)):" and insert "(16 U.S.C. 4601(a)(i)), of which $220,844,000 shall be available for forest products:".

On page 165, beginning on line 6, strike "Provided" and all that follows through "accomplishment:" on lines 11 and 12.

On page 165, line 25, strike "$618,500,000, to remain available until expended:" and insert "$633,500,000, to remain available until expended, of which $419,593,000 shall be available for preparedness and fire use functions:".

Mr. BRYAN. Mr. President, today I am offering an amendment with my colleague from Illinois that is a win-win for the American taxpayer and for those communities that reside near our National Forests.

The Bryan-Fitzgerald amendment will cut $30 million from the Forest

Service's money losing timber program and shift $15 million to needed fire planning and preparedness activities.

There is a crucial need for increased fire planning on our National Forests.

Our amendment responds to the findings of a recent internal Forest Service report that found that the agency was violating its own National Fire Management Policy due to the lack of "Fire Management Plans" for each national forest.

The report indicated that fire management planning has not been a priority within the Forest Service, with less than 5 percent of the National Forests having current, approved fire plans.

The Federal Wildland Fire Management Policy calls for "every area with burnable vegetation [to] have an approved Fire Management Plan."

The Wildland Fire program protects life, property, and natural resources on the 192 million acres of National Forest System lands as well as an additional 20 million acres of adjacent State and private lands that are protected through fee or reciprocal protection agreements.

In my home state of Nevada, we have a multi-jurisdictional firefighting organization known as the Sierra Front, which is comprised of federal, state, and local fire management agencies. I might say, parenthetically, in my experience both as a former Governor and as a member of this body, the Sierra Front has done an extraordinary job in terms of coordinating and preparing its own activities and is relied upon by local, State, as well as national forest administrators for a coordinated effort.

There are similar organizations in other States, and all of these organizations depend heavily on Federal fire preparedness funds for necessary training and organizational planning activities.

The amendment we offer will provide an additional $15 million for the Forest Service to enhance its capability to prevent, detect, or take prompt, effective, official suppression action on wildlife fires.

There is a financial benefit, a cost-benefit analysis that needs to be considered. I bring my colleagues' attention to an internal Forest Service report issued earlier this year entitled "Policy implications of large fire management, the strategic assessment of factors influencing the cost." I think our colleagues will be interested to know that this report concludes that estimates have shown that for every dollar of appropriated preparedness dollars received, there is a savings of $5 to $7 in fire suppression and emergency rehabilitation funds spent.

The point that needs to be made is, a little fire management planning goes a long way to reduce and to minimize the overall impact when fire comes because of the training, the planning, and the preparedness activities that go on as a result of that. That is a dollar savings to the American taxpayer and, in my judgment, is a very prudent expenditure of Federal dollars.

Unfortunately, notwithstanding this assessment, the myth that commercial logging is the best method of fuels reduction is driving some of my colleagues to appropriate more funds for the timber program at the expense of needed fire plans for national forests, increased education for residents on wildland boundaries, and on fire preparedness activities. In fact, to the contrary, it is widely recognized in the scientific community that past commercial logging and associated road-building activities are the prime culprits for the severity of many of our wildfires.

Commercial logging removes the least flammable portion of trees—their main stems or trunks, while leaving behind their most flammable portions—their needles and limbs, directly on the ground. Untreated logging slash can adversely affect fire behavior for up to 30 years following the logging operations.

According to the Sierra Nevada Ecosystem Project report, issued in 1996 by the Federal Government, timber harvest, through its effects on forest structure, local microclimate and fuel accumulation, has increased fire severity more than any other recent human activity.

In addition, a recent GAO report stated that:

Mechanically removing fuels through commercial timber harvesting and other means can also have adverse effects on wildlife habitat and water quality in many areas. Officials told GAO that, because of these effects, a large-scale expansion of commercial timber harvesting alone for removing materials would not be feasible. However, because the Forest Service relies on the timber program for funding many of its other activities, including reducing fuels, it has often used this program to address the wildfire problem. The difficulty with such an approach, however, is that the lands with commercially valuable timber are often not those with the greatest wildfire hazards.

Logging causes adverse changes in forest composition—intensive thinning and clearcutting dry out soils and leave behind debris that becomes tinder dry in open clearcuts.

Congress should invest in proactive fire planning and non-commercial hazardous fuels reduction projects as the best means of avoiding the high costs to taxpayers, damage to ecosystems, and risk to firefighters from reactive, unplanned, emergency fire suppression actions.

This bill contains $250 million for the administration of the timber sale program, which is more than $30 million above the Administration's budget request.

These expenditures for a money losing timber program are an enormous drain on the Treasury.

In their most recent Forest Management Program Annual Report, July, 1998, the Forest Service admits to losing $88.6 million from their timber program in FY97.

This was the second consecutive year that the Forest Service reported a loss.

In addition to the reported loss, the $88.6 million figure excludes a full accounting of all costs associated with logging.

In past fiscal years, independent analyses estimate the loss from below-cost timber sales are far greater than those reported by the Forest Service.

The General Accounting Office estimated that the timber program cost taxpayers at least $2 billion from 1922 to 1997, and in recent testimony they indicated that "[t]he Forest Service is still years away from providing the Congress and the public with a clear understanding of what is being accomplished with taxpayer dollars."

Our amendment would reduce funding for the Forest Service's timber program by $30 million to the level requested by the Administration.

In spite of the fact that our National Forest supply a mere 4% of our nation's annual timber harvest, this bill continues to reflect the dominance of the timber program at the expense of other programs designed to improve forest health and enhance the public's enjoyment of our national forest.

Over 380,000 miles of roads criss-cross the national forests—that is over eight times the distance of the Federal Interstate Highway System—and, in addition, there are an additional 40,000 miles of uninventoried roads.

The Forest Service estimates that over 80% of these roads are not maintained to public safety and environmental standards.

As a matter of public policy, I would argue that it makes more sense to maintain the roads we already have than to spend money building new roads we don't need for a logging program that costs taxpayers millions of dollars each year.

I urge my colleagues to support the Bryan-Fitzgerald amendment to cut wasteful subsidies for the commercial timber industry and to enhance the Forest Service's ability to combat the devastating wildfires confronting many of our communities in the West.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The distinguished Senator from Idaho is recognized.

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, I have been listening with great interest for the last several minutes as the Senator from Nevada made his presentation in relation to an amendment to take $30 million out of the timber program. He has given the reason that we have a catastrophic situation in the West today—some 39 million acres of our public timbered lands are in a critical situation as it relates to stand-altering fires, and we ought to do better planning. Therefore, we ought to take the money out to do better planning so we could circumvent this situation. And, oh, by the way, logging exacerbates that problem by leaving some slash on the ground.

The argument of the Senator might have some modicum of validity if we had not done what we did last week.

Last week, we passed Senator PETE DOMENICI's bill for which the Senator from Nevada voted. We put $240 million, not $30 million—$240 million in a fuel reduction program. In fact, the Forest Service says it funds entirely, Senator BRYAN, all that they can do. It even provides additional money for planning. So, really, the fire issue should be set aside in your debate, based on the actions of the Senate last week. I think what the Senate did last week is responsible, to put that kind of money into fuel reduction, especially in the urban interface and in those areas of the kind we saw at Los Alamos, in New Mexico, where we saw hundreds of homes go up in smoke as a result of bad policy and bad management on the part of this administration coming together.

What are we talking about, then, if the fire issue has been dealt with appropriately by this Senate? If what we are talking about is the existing timber program that obviously the Senator from Nevada opposes, as do many environmental groups that he finds himself here on the floor today representing, then the fire issue I think is relatively moot. So let's talk about the timber sale program.

What the Senator from Nevada is doing when he talks about it being a money loser is he is taking money out of a program from a portion of the program that really is the money maker. So he is fulfilling a prophesy of argument that somehow this will continue to be a money loser, and most assuredly it will be if you take money from that kind of program.

Let me talk about the program for a few moments, where it is as a part of an overall forest policy in our Nation, and why it is important we keep some approach to a timber program, whether it is for green sales to supply dimensional timber to the housing industry of our Nation, or whether it is for the purpose of thinning and reducing the overall burden of the number of trees within a stand of timber, therefore increasing the viability of forest health in our Nation's forests.

Those 39 million acres of timberland that are in critical condition today across our Nation are, in fact, a result of the overstocking of these acreages. Some 400-plus trees per acre now exist on land that 100 years ago, long before man was out there logging them, had only 60 trees per acre.

As a result, we need a concentrated program of management for fuels reduction for fire, but I also think we can reasonably argue that we can take some of those trees out for timber, logging, home building, purposes for the Nation's economy.

Let me give an example of where we are with the industry at this moment and why I think it is important we discuss it.

On this first chart, it shows in 1989 there were about 150,000 jobs in the timber industry nationwide. In 1997, that had been reduced to about 55,000 timber jobs, almost a two-thirds reduction in overall employment that is in direct correspondence, in part, to the amount of logging that goes on.

Since the Clinton administration has come to Washington, its timber policies have reduced logging on our national forests by over 80 percent nationwide—an 80-percent reduction nationwide in overall logging.

What does that mean on a State-by-State basis? Let me give an example of what it means in at least three States. It does not mean much in the State of Nevada. They do not have trees to log, except in very limited ways. This is what it means in the State of Washington from 1989 to present: It means 55 mills closed and 3,285 primary mill jobs. That is what that kind of policy means. In my State of Idaho, 13 mills closed, 1,083 people. In the State of Oregon, 111 mills closed and 11,600 people. That is even after the President's new plan.

Remember, when he came to office, he held a big timber summit in Oregon: Save the trees and save the jobs. They have not been able to produce the jobs. In fact, they had to backtrack and even back away from their own policy because of the pressure from environmental groups. They were unwilling to support their own policy. The Senator from Nevada is now on the floor trying to argue for a major reduction in that policy.

In the State of California, 46 mills and 4,427 jobs. It will not affect Nevada. They do not cut trees there, or cut very few.

I have worked with the Senator from Nevada on an area that I think is tremendously important. The Committee on Energy and Natural Resources just reported out S. 1925, the Lake Tahoe Restoration Act. The Senator from Nevada and his colleague have been extremely concerned about the health of the forest in the Greater Tahoe Basin, and he should be. That forest is an overmature, climax forest. In other words, it is beyond the point of healthy adulthood. Trees are dying; trees are too thick. There is an urban interface with beautiful big recreational homes built amongst the stands of timber. They have a silviculture problem with the potential of massive wildfires in the Tahoe Basin, losing those beautiful homes, and creating a catastrophic environmental situation that could badly damage the beautiful Lake Tahoe itself.

The Senator from Nevada has a problem. He has a bill that authorizes work to be done in the basin, but he has no money. What he is doing tonight is cutting out of one of the budgets of the Forest Service, some of the very money that will go to restore Lake Tahoe and the Tahoe Basin. I am not quite sure he can get it both ways.

I have worked with the Senator from Nevada to try to assure the Tahoe Basin restoration program will go forward and that we will have adequate moneys to begin to do the kinds of silviculture programs, the thinnings and the necessary efforts, that will create a higher level of forest health in the Tahoe Basin. We cannot do it tonight because the Senator from Nevada is cutting $30 million to the detriment of his own program.

I suggest when he was approached by the environmental groups to do this amendment that was not a factor, but what is a factor is that the Senator from Nevada has not had money appropriated for his project. He will hand it over to the Forest Service at large. It is a bill that will authorize the Forest Service to move in that area, and he is even cutting the budgets of the Forest Service, or attempting to as we speak.

That is frustrating. It is extremely frustrating to this Senator who has worked very closely with the Senator from Nevada to assure that his Tahoe Basin project is authorized because it is necessary and it is appropriate.

Last week, the Senator from Nevada joined with us to put over $240 million into a fire reduction program and a program to allow the Forest Service to study even greater amounts of fire suppression by reduction of the fuel loading on our national forest floors.

Yet today he comes back with that argument. Let me suggest this argument is for one purpose and one purpose only, and his amendment will serve for one purpose and one purpose only. We find it right here in a letter from the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America. This labor union—men and women who work for the forest products industries—says:

The Bryan amendment places thousands of forest product jobs at risk and jeopardizes the social and economic stability of rural communities.

You are darned right it does. In the rural communities of Idaho, Oregon, and Washington that still have mill jobs, that still ought to be cutting trees. We have 13 and 14 percent unemployment, and this will drive the unemployment up even further.

No, those communities are not reaping the benefit of the current full employment economy. The mills on the eastern side of Washington are not reaping the benefit of the high-tech jobs of western Washington. The mills in north Idaho are not reaping the benefits of the high-tech jobs of south Idaho, and so on.

What we have attempted to do with reasonably consistent and environmentally sound policy is to ensure a balance. The Senator from Nevada denies us that balance by refusing to allow the Forest Service to have the very tools necessary to properly manage the current timber program.

This is not about new roads. There is a road moratorium. The Senator from Nevada knows that. The environmental community last week claimed a major victory with the President's new roadless area initiative. The Senator knows there is not going to be any new roads built. So roads are not the argument, not now and not for the near future.

What is at stake is the very jobs that produce the dimensional lumber that comes to the markets that builds the homes of America. It is right and reasonable to assume that some of it ought to come from the forests of Idaho, Oregon, Washington, and California.

I hope the Senator, recognizing that this whole issue has shifted pretty dramatically in the last 72 hours, will recognize that his amendment no longer has carrying with it the validity that his argument might have had just last week.

Mr. President, $240 million later, this Congress, in a responsible fashion, has addressed the catastrophic fire situation that might now exist in our public lands and are willing to deal with it. Those are the issues at hand that are so very important to all of us.

Lastly, the very money the Senator will eliminate from the projects and from the programs—here is a letter from the Society of American Foresters saying that the fire in Los Alamos that cost us 235 homes clearly demonstrates that if we had been allowed to have used the stewardship timber sales programs that, in part, the Senator's amendment will now deny us, we could have reduced the fuel loading and, in many instances, we might have saved those homes. That is exactly what we are trying to deal with here.

I hope my colleagues will vote with me in voting down the Bryan amendment. There is no basis for the arguments that are placed today that relate to the amendment itself. I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Nevada.

Mr. BRYAN. Mr. President, I will be very brief. I must say I have difficulty following the arguments of my friend from Idaho. First, I have no objection to—in fact, I am very supportive of it—the amendment offered by Senator DOMENICI last week. That has to do with hazardous fuels reduction, $120 million going to the Forest Service, $120 million going to BLM. I am for that.

As the Senator knows, that is a separate budget category entirely than the issue of the Bryan-Fitzgerald amendment. That is a subcategory of fire operations. What we are talking about is preparedness money, a totally different concept.

The issue is not whether Lake Tahoe could be harmed. Lake Tahoe does not have a commercial harvest timber program as such. It is minimal. We are talking about the money that is necessary to do the hazardous fuels reduction. The Senator from Nevada is very supportive of that. The Senator from Nevada wants to see more money set aside for preparedness and planning which is cost effective.

Let me, by way of an additional comment, point out that the program which the Senator from Nevada supports is cost effective; that is, it saves taxpayers dollars. It is a savings. The argument that the Senator from Idaho made refers to a program that has cost taxpayers, between 1992 and 1997, $2 billion. We are subsidizing them. I do not think that is a particularly good value.

But even though I might not think it is a particularly good value, I have not sought to eliminate that program. That program would be funded, if the Bryan-Fitzgerald amendment were offered, for $220 million. That is what the President recommended.

So what we are simply trying to do is to reprogram some of that money into an area that would be cost effective, in terms of planning and preparedness—something that all of the agencies that interface with the urban, forest, local, State, and Federal support and favor—and simply reduce, by the amount of $30 million, the amount that would go into a timber harvest program that has been found, by the GAO, and other internal reports, to be cost ineffective in a substantial subsidy.

So the issue is not, as my colleague from Idaho suggested, whether you favor timber harvest in the national forests—that is not the issue we are debating today; maybe he wants to make that the issue—but the question of where you allocate the funds.

Mr. CRAIG. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. BRYAN. I will yield.

Mr. CRAIG. We checked with the Forest Service when we prepared the Forest Service budget, and their preparedness program has been fully budgeted for the year. They told us that it was adequate to meet their needs, and the current needs.

Does the Senator know otherwise?

Mr. BRYAN. The Senator from Nevada believes it is not adequate. Indeed, I think the amount of money that has been—

Mr. CRAIG. Even though the chief and his budget people say it is? I see. That is what we understood. Does the Senator now have information from the Forest Service that says otherwise?

Mr. BRYAN. If the Senator follows that line of reasoning, would he not agree the same managers will tell you that $220 million is adequate for the timber harvest program, would the Senator agree with that?

Mr. CRAIG. No, not at all, because what we did with the $220 million—

Mr. BRYAN. Did they argue for more?

Mr. CRAIG. Are you talking about timber harvest or the fuel reduction program?

Mr. BRYAN. The program that is called timber harvest.

Mr. CRAIG. I am quite sure they would say that it is funded adequately because this administration does not want to cut trees commercially.

Mr. BRYAN. You can't have it both ways.

Mr. CRAIG. Yes, we can, because I am giving categorical facts that the President's chief of the Forest Service said the preparedness program was fully funded. That is all I am saying.

Mr. BRYAN. I would say to the Senator from Idaho, I thought we were all Americans, and these positions did not represent a particular party; they represent the entire country. The national forests belong not to Democrats or Republicans.

Mr. CRAIG. Now, the chief is a political appointee.

Will the Senator yield for another question?

Mr. BRYAN. I would yield for one more question.

Mr. CRAIG. In the Tahoe Basin Restoration Program, that is near and dear to the Senator—and it is to me; it is a beautiful part of our country.

Mr. BRYAN. It is indeed.

Mr. CRAIG. Where trees must be removed—merchantable timber—there are areas where thinning is clearly necessary and so proscribed under the act.

Mr. BRYAN. The Senator from Nevada would agree with that.

Mr. CRAIG. Those would be under the commercial logging program because they could be done for less money and more efficiently. And that is the point of my argument, I say to the Senator. That is the program you are cutting.

Mr. BRYAN. I am not sure I would agree with the Senator from Idaho. Clearly, the hazardous fuels reduction program, in which we have provided, as you pointed out, 120 million additional dollars, would be the program that would address that issue, in my judgment.

I know other colleagues need to speak.

Mr. CRAIG. We yield the floor.

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, I know my colleague from Connecticut has an amendment, so I will defer to him.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The distinguished Senator from Connecticut is recognized.

Mr. LIEBERMAN. I thank the extremely distinguished occupant of the chair. I also thank my friend from Oklahoma. I will try to respond to his graciousness by being brief.

AMENDMENT NO. 3811

Mr. LIEBERMAN. Mr. President, I call up amendment No. 3811, which I filed at the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the pending amendment is set aside.

The clerk will report the amendment.

The bill clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Connecticut [Mr. LIEBERMAN] proposes an amendment numbered 3811.

Mr. LIEBERMAN. I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

(Purpose: To provide funding for maintenance of a Northeast Home Heating Oil Reserve, with an offset)

On page 183, strike line 15 and insert “$165,000,000, to remain available until expended, of which $8,000,000 shall be derived by transfer of unobligated balances of funds previously appropriated under the heading “NAVAL PETROLEUM AND OIL SHALE RESERVES”, and of which $8,000,000 shall be available for maintenance of a Northeast Home Heating Oil Reserve.”.

On page 225, between lines 11 and 12, insert the following:

SEC. 3. STRATEGIC PETROLEUM RESERVE PLAN.

(a) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of Amendment No. 6 to the Strategic Petroleum Reserve Plan transmitted by the Secretary of Energy on July 10, 2000, under section 154 of the Energy Policy and Conservation Act (42 U.S.C. 6234), the Secretary may draw down product from the Regional Distillate Reserve only on a finding by the President that there is a severe energy supply interruption.

(b) SEVERE ENERGY SUPPLY INTERRUPTION.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—For the purposes of subsection (a), a severe energy supply interruption shall be deemed to exist if the President determines that—

(A) a severe increase in the price of middle distillate oil has resulted from an energy supply interruption; or

(B)(i) a circumstance other than that described in subparagraph (A) exists that constitutes a regional supply shortage of significant scope or duration; and

(ii) action taken under this section would assist directly and significantly in reducing the adverse impact of the supply shortage.

(2) SEVERE INCREASE IN THE PRICE OF MIDDLE DISTILLATE OIL.—For the purposes of paragraph (1)(A), a severe increase in the price of middle distillate oil shall be deemed to have occurred if—

(A) the price differential between crude oil and residential No. 2 heating oil in the Northeast, as determined by the Energy Information Administration, increases by—

(i) more than 15 percent over a 2-week period;

(ii) more than 25 percent over a 4-week period; or

(iii) more than 60 percent over its 5-year seasonally adjusted rolling average; and

(B) the price differential continues to increase during the most recent week for which price information is available.

Mr. LIEBERMAN. Mr. President, I rise to offer an amendment along with my colleague from Connecticut, Senator DODD, and Senator LEAHY of Vermont. I ask unanimous consent Senators DODD and LEAHY be added as cosponsors to the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. LIEBERMAN. Mr. President, we think this amendment is critical for the energy security of the Northeastern United States. Last winter, in the Northeast, we were really whacked by oil market whims, as we saw the prices of home heating oil soar, and we hovered dangerously close to heating oil supply shortages.

In New England, the price of home heating oil rose from an average of $1.18 a gallon to about $1.79 a gallon in just 3 weeks' time.

Some residents of my State were actually paying over $2 for a gallon of heating oil, which meant they were spending almost $500—some of them—to fill their tanks. Of course, lower income residents and fixed-income residents, including thousands of elderly, were faced with the tough choice of buying heating oil for their homes or food for their tables.

This burdensome situation was caused by high crude oil prices, resulting from low crude oil supplies and low stocks of home heating oil converging with a downward turn in the weather that led to these price shocks that so disrupted the Northeast.

There were a series of meetings and much concern last winter. I think one of the best ideas that emerged was to build on the strategic crude oil reserve that we have and to create a regional Northeast home heating oil reserve in which the Government would possess home heating oil, which at times of crisis could be moved out into the market to increase supply and therefore reduce price.

I recall that one of the places that this idea was discussed was at a bipartisan meeting of Members of Congress from the Northeast with the President at the White House. He said he would take this under advisement. In fact, President Clinton did act to create a Northeast home heating oil reserve earlier this month, pursuant to his congressionally authorized authority under the Energy Policy and Conservation Act.

This amendment, which Senators DODD and LEAHY and I offer, would appropriate $4 million to maintain the Northeast heating oil reserve that the President has now created. The President has directed that the reserve be filled with home heating oil by conducting oil exchanges with the Strategic Petroleum Reserve. Therefore, there is no initial cost of filling the reserve.

However, the funding that is made possible by this amendment is critical for maintaining the reserve. The reserve itself is an integral piece of ensuring that if we do encounter exorbitant prices and short supplies again this winter, we will be able to count on our own publicly owned reserves of heating oil to get us through the crisis.

In fact, the following Energy Information Agency report, unfortunately, indicates that the industry at the current time is way below the desirable level of building up inventories of home heating oil, which means that if this continues as we head toward the winter and the weather turns cold, people in our region of the country are going to be suffering economically and physically. So that is the intention of offering this amendment.

I do want to indicate that I am exercising my prerogative as sponsor of the amendment to modify the amendment by striking the section of the amendment that begins on line 8 on the first page, and ends at the end of the document. This section describes an appropriate trigger mechanism for releasing the home heating oil reserve. In addition, I want to change the amount of funding requested from $8 million to $4 million. Finally, I would like to specify that the offset for these funds would come from unobligated funds from the Strategic Petroleum Reserve petroleum account in the amount of $3 million, and $1 million from the Naval Petroleum Reserve and oil shale reserves.

AMENDMENT NO. 3811, AS MODIFIED

Mr. President, I send to the desk, therefore, a copy of the amendment as it emerges after the modifications that I have just announced, which is effectively a $4 million appropriation for this regional reserve the President has created.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the modification?

Without objection, it is so modified.

The amendment, as modified, is as follows:

On page 183, strike line 15 and insert "$165,000,000, to remain available until expended, of which $3,000,000 shall be derived by transfer of unobligated balances of funds previously appropriated under the heading 'STRATEGIC PETROLEUM RESERVES PETROLEUM ACCOUNT', and of which $1,000,000 shall be derived by transfer of unobligated balances of funds previously appropriated under the heading 'NAVAL PETROLEUM AND OIL SHALE RESERVES', and of which $4,000,000 shall be available for maintenance of a Northeast Home Heating Oil Reserve.'"

Mr. LIEBERMAN. Mr. President, I rise today to offer an amendment to the Interior appropriations bill that I think is critical for the energy security of the Northeastern United States. My amendment would fund the Northeast Home Heating Oil Reserve, which was created by the President on Monday, July 10. The President created this reserve under his Congressionally authorized authority under the Energy Policy and Conservation Act.

The Northeast region of the country is heavily dependent upon home heating oil—instead of natural gas, as is the case in much of the rest of the country—for heating homes and other buildings during cold months of the year. As heating oil is refined from crude oil that is produced both domestically and abroad, the price of heating oil is subject to the same market whims that we have seen and continue to see in gasoline and other petroleum products. The difference, however, is that when a family runs out of heating oil, they literally run out of heat. This is a dangerous situation in the Northeast, where people may face days at a time of icy-cold weather.

This past winter in the Northeast, we got a taste of market whims as we saw the prices of home heating oil soar, and as we hovered dangerously close to heating oil supply shortages. The price of home heating oil rose from an average in New England of $1.18 per gallon to about $1.79 per gallon in three weeks. Some residents were paying over $2.00 for a gallon of heating oil. Lower-income residents were faced with buying heat for their homes versus food for their tables. In this instance, we saw high crude oil prices and low stocks of heating oil converge with extremely cold weather, leading to the price shocks that so disrupted the Northeast. We saw a similar situation in 1996, when prices of heating oil soared.

I want to offer my amendment to ensure that this type of problem does not happen again. My amendment would appropriate four million dollars to maintain the Northeast heating oil reserve that the President has created. The President has directed that the reserve be filled with home heating oil by conducting oil exchanges with the Strategic Petroleum Reserve. Therefore, there is no initial cost to filling the reserve. However, this funding is critical for maintaining the reserve. The reserve itself is an integral piece to ensuring that if we do encounter exorbitant prices and short supplies again, we will be able to count on our own reserves of heating oil to get us through the crisis.

I would like to exercise my prerogative to modify my amendment by striking the section of the amendment that begins on line 8 on the first page and ends at the end of the document—this section describes an appropriate trigger mechanism for releasing home heating oil from the regional reserve. In addition, I would like to change the amount of funding requested from eight million dollars to four million dollars. Finally, I would like to specify that the offset for these funds will come from unobligated funds from the Strategic Petroleum Reserve Petroleum Account in the amount of three million dollars and from the Naval Petroleum and Oil Shale Reserves in the amount of one million dollars.

Senator DODD joins me in offering this amendment.

I thank the Chair and yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. L. CHAFEE). The Senator from Washington.

Mr. GORTON. Mr. President, I thank the Senator from Connecticut for his explanation and for the modifications which have at least brought this amendment within the parameters of the bill itself. I must say, without going into it, I think there are several serious policy questions about this amendment, but more than that I think it needs to be resolved in the context of a reauthorization of the Energy Policy and Conservation Act. I understand the Senator from Connecticut is working with the chairman of the committee on that, and so we can defer our final decision until tomorrow.

Mr. CRAPO. Mr. President, I rise today in opposition to an amendment that would make drastic cuts to the timber program.

While we have heard a lot of rhetoric regarding the timber program, it is important to understand the context within which these cuts to the timber sale and road construction programs are being considered. Federal timber sales are in a steep and devastating decline. Forest health is increasingly at risk from fire, insects and disease.

Both the economic and ecological contexts created by this reduction are undesirable.

More than 80,000 jobs have been lost and a 1999 General Accounting Office study reported that over forty million acres of National Forest system lands are at risk of catastrophic wildfire. Another twenty-six million acres are at risk from insects and disease. The recent fires in New Mexico and in other states provide alarming evidence of the impact of increased fuel loads in our forests. Already this year, more than four-and-a-half million acres have burned. Active management is vital to forest health, and it is irresponsible for the federal government to reduce the management options available to local forest managers who best know how to deal with their specific situations.

It is confounding that additional cuts in the federal timber sale program are being considered at a time when the industry and those working men and women who depend on it has already been crippled by deep cuts and our forests are suffering from lack of active management that includes responsible timber harvest. Since the early 1990s, the timber program has been reduced by 70 percent and more than 75 percent of the National Forest system is off-limits to timber harvest. The federal timber supply has dropped from twelve billion board-feet harvested to three billion board-feet harvested annually. This amendment would jeopardize 55,000 jobs and $2 billion in employment income, mostly in rural areas. In addition, national forests have 50 percent of our nation's softwood growing stock, which is used for home construction. New reductions in the availability of this supply will hurt housing prices.

In my home State of Idaho, small, rural communities continue to suffer devastating reductions in Forest Service Payments-to-states funds from timber sales. In rural Idaho and America, schools are going without needed renovation, county governments are struggling, and basic services are already being jeopardized by steep reductions in federal timber harvest in recent years. This amendment would further reduce payments to rural counties by $7 million and returns to the treasury by $30 million.

While some will claim that recreation receipts can replace timber receipts, this simply is not true in Idaho. Eight counties in Idaho derive more than 20 percent of their employment activity from the primary timber industry. There are only two counties in Idaho that have more than a 5 percent dependence on the recreation industry.

This amendment is also counterintuitive from an environmental perspective. Active forest management, including thinning and other timber harvest, has widely acknowledged benefits. In fact, most timber sales are currently designed to attain other stewardship objectives. Interestingly enough, it is the sales that have been planned to focus on stewardship objectives that have been criticized as below cost. Timber sales are the most economical, efficient, and effective method available to local resource managers to treat and control many insect epidemics. These harvests contribute greatly to reducing the risk of catastrophic wildfire and promoting diverse stands.

Each year, the National Forest system grows 23 billion board-feet. Six billion board-feet die naturally. Only 3 billion board-feet are harvested annually. Tree growth in the National Forest system exceeds harvest by 600 percent. There is no need, environmental or otherwise, to further cripple this important program. I urge my colleagues to vote against this amendment and for the health of rural economies and the forests within the National Forest system.

Mr. ENZI. Mr. President, I rise in opposition to the amendment introduced by the Senator from Nevada, Senator BRYAN, that would cut funding for the United States Forest Service's Timber Sale program. Our Nation is experiencing a renaissance in Forest Health initiatives. The terrible tragedies suffered in New Mexico earlier this summer have awakened our understanding of the current state of our forests.

These forests, that traditionally housed wildlife and produced valuable resources used in building our Nation, have become deadly fire time bombs. The Forest Service itself has reported that more than 40 million acres of our National Forest System are at high risk of destruction by catastrophic wildfire and an additional 23 million acres are at risk from insects and disease. And yet, at a time when national awareness is up, and we have an increased commitment to improve forest health, there are still those critics who would remove the Forest Service's single most effective tool for restoring forest health.

The use of modern silviculture practices in regards to Federal timber sales are designed to accomplish a number of goals and objectives in regards to forest management. And they do so in a way that provides jobs for local communities, and money for rural schools and counties. We have also just begun to realize the value that a well-designed and carefully conducted timber sale can have on things like water quality and the future of a healthy water table.

The city of Denver had to learn this the hard way. Several years ago a fire swept through the city's watershed and turned the surrounding ecosystem into ashes. Since then, the city has had to pay millions of dollars to dredge and remove silt and other particles carried into its water supply. What the city learned is that fires, not timber sales are the biggest threat to watershed health. The city now actively manages its watershed and conducts regular assessment and thinning to maintain a healthy, fire resilient forest.

Notice I said fire resilient, not fire resistant. Fire can be an invaluable management tool when conducted under the proper circumstances. Those conditions, however, do not exist in Western forests, nor will they exist until our forest managers are allowed to thin out the forests and remove the dense undergrowth and some of the increasingly taller layers of trees that create the deadly fuel ladders that feed catastrophic fires.

I am also deeply concerned about the impact this amendment could have on rural economies. The United States is importing more and more wood every year as a result of declines in federal timber sales. This means that the American lumber market is being fed by highly-subsidized timber that was produced under conditions that do not meet our Nation's high environmental standards. As a result, not only do we lose the environmental benefits that federal timber sales can produce, but we are feeling negative social and economic effects as America jobs are lost and moved offshore. The brunt of these losses are felt most keenly in rural areas, where forest products jobs are concentrated.

In closing, Mr. President, I would like to add that the Federal Timber Sale Program is not a subsidy for the forest products industry. Federal timber contractors do not receive any special benefit, nor do they pay less money for the timber they harvest on federal lands. Federal timber is sold by means of a competitive bid system. As a result, these auction sales are the most likely of any type of commercial transaction to generate the returns that meet or exceed market value. Because timber sales are designed to generate market value prices, we therefore must conclude that there is no subsidy.

Furthermore, the forest products industry has consistently demonstrated that the benefits gained by the public through the Federal timber sale program far outweigh the costs to the Federal treasury. I therefore urge my colleagues to oppose Senator BRYAN's amendment and to support our National Forest and rural communities.

AMENDMENT NO. 3884

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to set aside the pending amendment, and I send an amendment to the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Oklahoma [Mr. NICKLES] proposes an amendment numbered 3884.

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:
(Purpose: To defend the Constitutional system of checks and balances between the Legislative and Executive branches)

At the appropriate place, add the following:

SEC. . FUNDING FOR NATIONAL MONUMENTS.

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, no funds shall be used to establish or expand a national monument under the Act of June 8, 1906 (16 U.S.C. 431 et seq.) after July 17, 2000, except by Act of Congress.

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, this amendment basically says: Notwithstanding any other provision of law, no funds shall be used to establish or expand a national monument under the act of June 8, 1906, the Antiquities Act, after July 17, 2000, except by an Act of Congress.

What I am trying to do is to make sure we don't have additional national monuments declared by this administration without some congressional input.

I will insert a copy of the Antiquities Act for the RECORD. It was passed in 1906. The Antiquities Act states:

The President of the United States is authorized, in his discretion, to declare by public proclamation historic landmarks, historic and prehistoric structures, and other objects of historic or scientific interest that are situated upon the lands owned or controlled by the Government of the United States to be national monuments, and may reserve as a part thereof parcels of land, the limits of which in all cases shall be confined to the smallest area compatible with the proper care and management of the objects to be protected.

That is the Antiquities Act.

This administration, particularly this year, has added millions of acres under the designation of national monuments without congressional authorization or approval, without consent of Governors, without consent of local entities. I am saying there is another process. I happen to serve on the Energy Committee with Chairman MURKOWSKI and others. We pass land bills all the time. I urge the President, if he wants to pass or declare something a national monument, send it to Congress. We are happy to look at it. We are happy to pass it. This is a committee that works in a bipartisan fashion. We pass land bills all the time. This week we are supposed to mark up 17. We do that in a bipartisan fashion.

I also will include for the RECORD a comparison of lands that have been added as national monuments during all the Presidents.

This Antiquities Act passed under Theodore Roosevelt in 1906. It is interesting to note, Theodore Roosevelt, who was quite the conservationist, made some very significant additions to the national monuments, the total acreage of which was 1.5 million acres. President Clinton has done more than that this year alone. As a matter of fact, President Clinton has already designated 3.7 million acres. He has done more than any other President of the United States, with the exception of President Carter, who added a lot of land in the State of Alaska.

It is also interesting to note that the State of Alaska Senators had amended the Antiquities Act to say no lands should be made into a national monument that exceeds 5,000 acres unless there is an act of Congress. That doesn't apply to the rest of the country.

This administration, while they had designated 1.7 million acres in the first

7 years, in this year, since January, has already declared 2 million acres a national monument. There is some talk that there are additional monuments in the works. If there are, great. If this amendment passes—I hope and expect that it will—I am sure Congress will be happy to receive the request from the President. We will review it. We will consider it. We will have hearings. We will go through the legislative process. We will hear from the Governors. We will hear from local entities. We will make a decision, as the process should be.

I believe the President's actions, particularly this year, have greatly exceeded what is called for in the Antiquities Act. Again, in the Antiquities Act, it says, that the area:

... in all cases should be confined to the smallest area compatible with the proper care and management of the objects to be protected.

We should abide by this law. When the President has added 2 million acres this year alone, I don't believe he is in compliance with it. I think Congress has a legitimate role. If not, are we going to allow the President to declare wilderness areas, millions of acres?

My point is, I may well agree with the President on every single designation he has made, but the process needs congressional authorization. It needs congressional input; it needs congressional hearings. It needs input from local officials and people who are directly impacted.

I hope our colleagues will support this amendment. I appreciate the leadership of my friend and colleague, Senator GORTON of Washington, and also Senator BYRD. I used to chair the subcommittee. It is a challenging subcommittee, one which the Senator from Washington and the Senator from West Virginia have handled with a great deal of professionalism and expertise. I compliment them on their efforts. I urge our colleagues to support this amendment.

I ask unanimous consent to print in the RECORD a list of Presidents and what they have added to the national monuments under the Antiquities Act.

There being no objection, the list was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Mr. NICKLES. I mentioned all of the Presidents. President Clinton has greatly exceeded the amount of new additions compared to any President, with the one exception of President Carter. To give a comparison, President Ford added 86 acres in national monuments in his tenure as President. President Reagan and President Bush added zero. Teddy Roosevelt added 1.5 million acres; William Taft, 32,000 acres. I could go on down the list. My point is, the amount President Clinton has added this year alone exceeds what almost any other President has done.

I ask unanimous consent to print in the RECORD a copy of the Antiquities Act.

There being no objection, the act was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

ANTIQUITIES ACT

TITLE 16—CONSERVATION

CHAPTER 1—NATIONAL PARKS, MILITARY PARKS, MONUMENTS, AND SEASHORES

Subchapter LXI—National and International Monuments and Memorials

SEC. 431. NATIONAL MONUMENTS; RESERVATION OF LANDS; RELINQUISHMENT OF PRIVATE CLAIMS.

The President of the United States is authorized, in his discretion, to declare by public proclamation historic landmark, historic and prehistoric structures, and other objects of historic or scientific interest that are situated upon the lands owned or controlled by the Government of the United States to be national monuments, and may reserve as a part thereof parcels of land, the limits of which in all cases shall be confined to the smallest area compatible with the proper care and management of the objects to be protected. When such objects are situated upon a tract covered by a bona fide unperfected claim or held in private ownership, the tract, or so much thereof as may be necessary for the proper care and management of the object, may be relinquished to the Government, and the Secretary of the Interior is authorized to accept the relinquishment of such tracts in behalf of the Government of the United States.

(June 8, 1906, ch. 3060, Sec. 2, 34 Stat. 225.)

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. NICKLES. I am happy to yield.

Mr. CRAIG. I thank the Senator for the leadership he has taken in this area. It is so critically important.

About a month and a half ago, I got a call from the Secretary of the Interior, Bruce Babbitt, who said: I am headed to Idaho. I am going to look at the Craters of the Moon National Monument. I might want to expand it.

"I might want to expand it," was what he said. It is currently 54,000 acres. He has recommended that it be expanded to 754,000 acres. He doesn't take into consideration grazing. He wants to overlay Park Service and BLM management into a confusing new kind of configuration.

Most importantly—this is the point the Senator from Oklahoma has just made—there have been no public hearings, no local input. He went around and held some meetings with some affected or potentially affected parties.

If the Congress were handling this, we would have the full NEPA process. We would have an EIS. We would incorporate our county governments. We would look at the kind of impact this designation would have. The Senator is right, he and I might ultimately agree with it, but what about the county roads that go through it and some of the private roads that go through it and the elimination or the blockage of those roads. Those are the kinds of issues this President and this Secretary have totally ignored in the name of the Clinton legacy.

I hope this amendment will pass. It is time we halt this action and bring this through the Congress to an appropriate public process to sort out all these difficulties. That is what the committee on which the Senator from Oklahoma and I serve has the responsibility of doing: refining and crafting public policy.

I thank the Senator.

Mr. NICKLES. I thank my colleague, Mr. President.

I know the chairman of the subcommittee wants to address this and perhaps other issues.

One other comment: The President did this first in September of 1996 prior to the election. I know my colleague from Nevada might remember this because he did it with a press conference overlooking the Grand Canyon, talking about the addition of a new national monument, except the monument he was talking about was not in Arizona, not in the Grand Canyon; it was actually in Utah. It was the Grand Staircase National Monument, 1.7 million acres. It happened to have billions of dollars of raw materials.

Interestingly enough, the Utah Governor was not consulted. The Utah congressional delegation was not consulted. People in the community were not consulted. We had a massive land grab, power mineral grab—you name it—by the President of the United States for a photo op for election purposes that, in my opinion, may have been granted but needed congressional input and authorization. That is the purpose of the amendment, to make sure this type of thing does not continue without at least some input from other local officials.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Washington.

Mr. GORTON. Mr. President, we have about 5 minutes remaining. The Senator from Nevada is going to introduce two additional amendments, quite appropriately, before that.

In connection with this amendment, however, I need to say that this amendment causes a conflict on my part more than any other here. I agree with the amendment. I think the power has been misused. I am not sure it can be reversed by another President. The Senator from Idaho seems to feel that it can be. But I believe we have had a number of actions that have raised far more questions than they have actually settled.

By the same token, I know perfectly well if this amendment is in the bill that goes to the President, the President will veto the bill. I simply say, since I know my friend from Nevada will be on the conference committee, I don't intend to send a bill to the President that we don't believe he ought to sign, at the very least. I just have to leave that notice at this point.

We have 4 more minutes. I will say one other thing. At least in theory, amendments can be brought up and discussed to this bill—the amendments that are listed in the unanimous consent agreement—and they could be further discussed after the end of the many votes that we have tonight.

I yield the floor to the Senator from Nevada so he can introduce the remaining amendments.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the pending amendment will be temporarily set aside.

AMENDMENT NO. 3885

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Nevada [Mr. REID], for Mrs. BOXER, proposes an amendment numbered 3885.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

At the appropriate place insert the following:

None of the funds appropriated under this Act may be used for the preventive application of a pesticide containing a known or probable carcinogen, a category I or II acute nerve toxin or a pesticide of the organophosphate, carbamate, or organochlorine class as identified by the Environmental Protection Agency in National Parks in any area where children may be present.

AMENDMENT NO. 3886 TO AMENDMENT NO. 3885

Mr. GORTON. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Washington [Mr. GORTON], for Mr. BOND, proposes an amendment numbered 3886 to amendment No. 3885.

Mr. GORTON. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

(Purpose: To prohibit use of funds for application of unapproved pesticides in certain areas that may be used by children)

In lieu of the matter proposed to be inserted, insert the following:

SEC. . PROHIBITION ON USE OF FUNDS FOR APPLICATION OF UNAPPROVED PESTICIDES IN CERTAIN AREAS THAT MAY BE USED BY CHILDREN.

(a) DEFINITION OF PESTICIDE.—In this section, the term “pesticide” has the meaning given the term in section 2 of the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide, and Rodenticide Act (7 U.S.C. 136).

(b) PROHIBITION ON USE OF FUNDS.—None of the funds appropriated under this Act may be used for the application of a pesticide that is not approved for use by the Environmental Protection Agency in any area owned or managed by the Department of the Interior that may be used by children, including any national park.

(c) COORDINATION.—The Secretary of the Interior shall coordinate with the Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency to ensure that the methods of pest control used by the Department of the Interior do not lead to unacceptable exposure of children to pesticides.

Mr. BOND. Mr. President, my bipartisan amendment, cosponsored by Senators LINCOLN, KERREY of Nebraska, and ROBERTS, prevents funds from being used for the application of any pesticide that is not approved for use by the Environmental Protection Agency in any area managed by the U.S. Park Service that may be used by children. Further, it directs the Secretary of the Interior to coordinate with EPA to ensure that pest control methods do not lead to unacceptable exposure of children to pesticides.

Let there be no mistake that every member of this Senate supports the protection of children. It is the mandate of the EPA to do so. They are already required by law to do so.

The strict standard that mandates EPA on product approval is: “reasonable certainty of no harm.” That is a tall hurdle.

The shocking thing about this underlying amendment by the Senator from California is that its premise holds that the EPA, is not, I repeat, not, doing its job protecting children. Let me repeat, this is a referendum on whether EPA is protecting children. Now, I think, that if the EPA were paying attention, it would be news to the EPA Administrator that her agency is not protecting children. As Chairman of the Appropriations Subcommittee on VA/HUD, I have listened to countless hours of testimony about the Administrator’s devotion to protecting children. I would think, that if we had a Sense of the Senate that Administrator Browner is not doing her job protecting children, we would defeat that.

I asked the nominee (James V. Aida) to be Assistant Administrator for Toxic Substances of the Environmental Protection Agency if the EPA already protects children on military bases from harmful pesticides and we got the following response:

The protection of children is one of our highest priorities. When we register, re-register, or reassess tolerances for existing pesticides we try to ensure that our actions are protective of all consumers, especially children.

He continued on to say that,

FQPA requires special protections for infants and children including: an explicit determination that tolerances are safe for children; an additional safety factor, if necessary, to account for uncertainty in data relative to children; and consideration of children’s special sensitivity and exposure to pesticide chemicals.

Let the record also show that the reason that many pesticides are used is to protect children from bacteria and disease including asthma, encephalitis, malaria, lyme disease, Legionnaires’ disease, and other diseases all of which that occur here in the U.S.

Mr. President, what is a pesticide? According to EPA,

... all of these common products are considered pesticides. Cockroach sprays and baits; insect repellents for personal use; rat and other rodent poisons; flea and tick sprays, powders, and pet collars; kitchen, laundry, and bath disinfectants and sanitizer; products that kill mold and mildew; some lawn and garden products, such as weed killers; and, some swimming pool chemicals.

Pesticides eradicate a wide variety of pests, including cockroaches, biting insects, algae, bacteria, poisonous Brown Recluse Spiders—as found in the U.S. Capitol buildings—and infectious microbes which result in unsanitary and unhealthy conditions at food and medical care facilities.

Many common cleaners, disinfectants and sanitizer are used to eradicate infectious microbes, bacteria, and algae in bathroom and kitchens and nursing homes, hospitals and other health care facilities. Cooling systems and water supplies are treated. Chlorine, which is registered as a pesticide by EPA could be affected by the underlying amendment. Products that sterilize medical equipment are carcinogenic and would thus also be affected.

Used according to EPA—label instructions, pesticides not only prevent property damage from termites, but also protect our children. West Nile virus and encephalitis, which have been detected throughout the mid-Atlantic, are carried by mosquitoes. Deer ticks carry lyme disease, and cockroaches have been linked to the worsening of asthma symptoms.

According to the New York Times, asthma is now the most common cause of hospitalization among American children affecting a total of five million. Deaths among children with the condition rose 78 percent from 1980 to 1993.

Again, these pesticides are approved by the EPA following a rigorous and science-based process to determine what is safe and what is not safe. With our concern for the safety of our children in mind, this body passed the Food Quality Protection Act (FQPA) unanimously in 1996. FQPA was designed to update the safety standards of pesticides especially with respect to children and other vulnerable sub-populations. The Environmental Protection Agency has been implementing this law for the past four years. In the regulatory review process EPA reviews data from up to 120 tests conducted on pesticides prior to registration.

When registration decisions are made, the EPA includes additional safety factors for children. According to EPA, “. . . these specific requirements in the statute will help EPA in its efforts to implement the NAS report and ensure that risks to infants and children are always considered. . . .” And, under FIFRA, EPA has the authority to immediately cancel the use of any pest control product that it believes poses an imminent risk to public health.

Obviously, EPA has the authority to protect children. Obviously, EPA believes that the law protects children. Obviously, EPA believes they are protecting children.

Since the new law in 1996, EPA has re-reviewed thousands of products. We are spending about $50 million in taxpayer money to pay full-time experts at the EPA to Administer the FQPA and to re-review the products. They tell us what is safe and what is not safe.

Contrary to what was mistakenly represented in previous debate, EPA does NOT support this amendment. According to EPA in answers in response to questions I submitted for the RECORD on June 30, 2000, “. . . the amendment has not been subject to a full review by the Administration, nor has the Administration taken a position on the amendment.”

With this extensive regulatory process in place and recently updated, I cannot support the Senator’s proposal to regulate further pesticides by completely ignoring and circumventing EPA’s aggressive implementation of FQPA, as well as the Clinton Administration’s entire regulatory process. The Senator from California’s proposal will effectively regulate pesticides from the Senate floor on an appropriations bill, which is not only bad science, but bad public policy as well, and a process we all should want to avoid. I think if we are going to have a referendum on whether the EPA protect’s children, we should have some cursory review of the subject first.

I am also not an expert on asthma or encephalitis or lyme’s disease or salmonella, or e. Coli or Legionnaires’ disease or the West Nile virus.

If the Senator from California has some information that says that the EPA is not doing their job, then I think the information should be reviewed and the EPA should have the opportunity to respond and comment and defend itself. If there is an emergency that the Senator from California is aware of, EPA has the regulatory authority to deal with it and they should. If EPA is not appropriately dealing with an emergency, perhaps we should ask the Administrator to tell us why that is the case. Absent that, it is not a very good idea for us to be substituting our scientific judgment for the judgment of Administrator Browner's scientists as to what is and is not safe.

We also know that according to industry and EPA, there is no legal or regulatory or industry "term of art" for a "category I or category II acute nerve toxin." If we are going to tell EPA to prohibit something, EPA should understand what we want them to prohibit. If we are going to tell industry that they cannot use a product, they should know what product they are forbidden to use.

One organophosphate, for example, is Raid. Organochlorides, I am told, are products that contain carbon and chlorine which wipes out all hard surface disinfectants. One such hard surface disinfectant which is used daily to clean our bathrooms is Lysol disinfectant. Some of the same products are used to clean our cafeteria. Some carcinogens are used to sterilize medical equipment.

The chairman of the House Committee on Appropriations has just received a bipartisan letter from the Chairmen and Ranking Members of the House committee of jurisdiction stating that this is an issue under their jurisdiction which should be dealt with solely through the authorization process. The bipartisan letter was signed by Congressmen COMBEST, STENHOLM, GOODLATTE and CLAYTON.

Mr. President, I am continuously amazed at the knowledge and dedication of my Senate colleagues but I will admit that I am not an expert on organophosphates or nerve toxins. I fear that this issue about nerve toxins and organophosphates and "probable carcinogens" may be a mystery to a good number of my colleagues and it is a horrible precedent for regulation, which will impact not only the urban uses of pest control products, but also the agricultural uses for our Nation's farmers.

We know that the EPA does not support this amendment. It has not reviewed it and I don't expect them to review it during an election year.

My amendment protects children by allowing Carol Browner and her cops on the beat to do their job.

We have a dreadful picture of a bite from a Brown recluse spider. This spider is bad news as the picture indicates. This poisonous spider was found in the Capitol on more than one occasion and it is called a recluse spider because it is hard to discover. In the last three weeks, a Senate appropriations staffer was bitten by this spider.

Used according to EPA-label instructions, pesticides protect our children by controlling harmful pests like disease carrying insects, infectious bacteria, poison ivy, and other noxious weeds.

This underlying Boxer amendment would prohibit the use of products that have been scientifically tested and approved for use by the EPA to help prevent disease and improve the quality of life for all Americans, especially children. The EPA has a sound regulatory process in place that protects children and provides safe, effective pest control tools for use in the farmer's field, the cafeteria, hospitals, playgrounds, and the home. To undermine the process of the strictest pesticide regulations in the world would not only set a misguided precedent, but would indeed threaten the health of our children. It would also send a shocking message that our EPA is not following its legal mandate and its perpetually-articulated mission of protecting children.

In summary, the underlying amendment it is unnecessary, it is overly-broad, it is a horrible precedent and it is encumbered with far-reaching unintended negative consequences that are harmful to children.

I just do not believe the U.S. Senate should take an action which makes the visitor's centers of our national parks the largest cockroach hotels on the planet.

My amendment prohibits the use of any pesticide not approved by Administrator Browner's team and ensures consultation to ensure that pest control methods do not lead to unacceptable exposure of children to pesticides. I urge my colleagues to support my amendment and preserve the effectiveness and the integrity of the science-based regulatory system.

I ask unanimous consent to print in the RECORD a letter from the Farm Bureau opposing the underlying amendment.

There being no objection, the letter was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

AMERICAN FARM BUREAU FEDERATION,
Washington, DC, July 17, 2000.

Hon. CHRISTOPHER S. BOND,
U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR BOND: On behalf of the American Farm Bureau Federation, I am writing to express our deep concern and opposition to the Boxer amendment to the Interior Appropriations bill. The amendment as proposed would stop the use of pesticides on public lands, pesticides used to prevent and control noxious weeds, invasive species and other pests that threaten the health and long-term sustainability of those lands. The amendment is without merit or scientific basis and should be defeated.

This amendment is misguided and would be harmful to the public interest. The current federal laws governing pesticide use, specifically the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide and Rodenticide Act (FIFRA) and the Food Quality Protection Act (FQPA) require scores of tests and large amounts of scientific data to be submitted to the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) before a pesticide is approved for public use. Products used in accordance with the label are safe. It is essential for public confidence that pesticide decisions be based on sound science and objective regulatory review. This amendment arbitrarily circumvents the regulatory process and creates confusion in the public mind.

Agricultural producers who farm and ranch on or adjacent to public land face increased threats to their economic viability. The spread of pests, noxious weeds and invasive species represents a real economic burden to farming and ranching operations in many areas, particularly where they are near public lands. Additionally, they pose a substantial environmental and public health risk if left uncontrolled. For example, efforts to control mosquitoes carrying the deadly West Nile encephalitis virus could be threatened by this amendment, as could efforts to control pests such as the Gypsy Moth Caterpillar and Asian Longhorned Beetle that have devastated hardwoods in both our urban and rural areas.

Please oppose the Boxer amendment to the Interior Appropriations bill.

Sincerely,

BOB STALLMAN,
President.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, the amendment I offered on behalf of Senator BOXER would limit the use of dangerous pesticides in our national parks. In particular, it prohibits the routine use of highly toxic pesticides—those containing known or probable carcinogens, acute nerve toxins, organophosphates, carbamates, or organochlorines—in our national parks, where children may be present.

Such pesticides could be used in the case of an emergency. This is already the policy of the National Park Service. This amendment would codify this important policy.

Mr. GORTON. Mr. President, the Bond second-degree amendment prevents funds from being used for the application of any pesticide that is not approved for use by the Environmental Protection Agency in any area managed by the Park Service that may be used by children, and directs the Secretary of Interior to coordinate with EPA to assure pest control methods do not lead to unacceptable exposure of children to pesticides.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the pending amendments be temporarily set aside.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

AMENDMENT NO. 3887

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Nevada [Mr. REID], for Mr. BINGAMAN, proposes an amendment numbered 3887.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

(Purpose: To express the sense of the Senate regarding the protection of Indian program monies from judgment fund claims)

On page 163, after line 23, add the following:

SEC. . (a) FINDINGS.—The Senate makes the following findings:

(1) in 1990, pursuant to the Indian Self Determination and Education Assistance Act (ISDEA), 25 U.S.C. et seq., a class action lawsuit was filed by Indian tribal contractors and tribal consortia against the United States, the Secretary of Interior and others seeking redress for failure to fully pay for indirect contract support costs (Ramah Navajo Chapter v. Babbitt, 112 F.3d 1455 (10th Cir. 1997));

(2) the parties negotiated a partial settlement of the claim totaling $76,200,000 which was approved by the court on May 14, 1999;

(3) the partial settlement was paid by the United States on September 14, 1999, in the amount of $82,000,000;

(4) the Judgment Fund, 31 U.S.C. 1304, was established to pay for legal judgments awarded to plaintiffs who have filed suit against the United States;

(5) the Contract Disputes Act of 1978 requires that the Judgment Fund be reimbursed by the responsible agency following the payment of an award from the Fund;

(6) because the potential exists that Indian program funds in the Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA) and the Indian Health Service (IHS) would be used in Fiscal Year 2001 to reimburse the Judgment Fund, resulting in significant financial and administrative disruptions in the BIA, the IHS, and the Indian tribes who rely on such funds;

(b) SENSE OF THE SENATE.—It is the sense of the Senate that—

(1) the Secretary of the Interior and the Secretary of the Department of Health and Human Services should declare Indian program funds unavailable for purposes of reimbursing the judgment fund; and

(2) if the Secretary of the Interior and the Secretary of the Department of Health and Human Services determines that there are no other available funds, the agencies through the Administration should seek an appropriation of funds from Congress to provide for reimbursement of the judgment fund.

KYOTO PROTOCOL RESTRICTIONS

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, as the Senate debates the FY 2001 Interior and Related Appropriations Act, I would like to take a moment to ask the distinguished subcommittee Chairman and Ranking Member a clarifying question concerning Section 329 of the bill. That section, as my colleagues know, contains language concerning the implementation of the Kyoto Protocol.

Mr. President, the Senate has clearly expressed its views regarding the Kyoto Protocol in S. Res. 98, the Byrd-Hagel resolution adopted unanimously by the Senate on July 25, 1997. That resolution calls on the Administration to support an approach to climate change that protects the economic interests of the United States and seeks commitments from developing countries to reduce greenhouse gas emissions. The Administration is aggressively engaging developing countries to reduce greenhouse gas emissions through international projects and activities emphasizing market-based mechanisms and environmental technology. Furthermore, the U.S. is currently engaged in climate change negotiations to ensure meaningful participation of developing countries and to ensure that greenhouse gas emissions reductions are achieved in the most cost-effective manner.

Mr. President, I ask my friend from West Virginia if my understanding is correct that Section 329 of the FY 2001 Interior bill is not intended to restrict the Administration from engaging in these international negotiations related to both the Framework Convention on Climate Change, which was ratified by the Senate in 1992, and the Kyoto Protocol to that Convention? Am I also correct in my understanding that Section 329 is not intended to restrict international programs or activities to encourage commitments by developing countries to reduce greenhouse gas emissions?

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I appreciate the question from my distinguished colleague from Vermont, whose background in international affairs is well known and impressive, indeed. In response, I say to my friend that his understanding is correct, Section 329 is not intended to restrict U.S. negotiations or the other activities such as he has described. On the contrary, the section is intended to prevent the Administration from implementing the Kyoto Protocol prior to its ratification by the Senate.

Mr. GORTON. Mr. President, I concur with the statement just provided by the Senator from West Virginia.

SEA TURTLE CONSERVATION

Mr. BREAU. Mr. President, will the distinguished Chairman of the Interior Appropriations Subcommittee yield for a question?

Mr. GORTON. Mr. President, I will gladly yield to a question from my good friend from Louisiana.

Mr. BREAU. Mr. President, I thank the distinguished Chairman. I want to commend the gentleman from Washington and the distinguished ranking member for the great leadership they have demonstrated in crafting the FY2001 Interior Appropriations bill. Gentlemen, last year you were both instrumental in securing funds for a project of great personal interest to Senator LOTT and myself, the Kemp's ridley sea turtle project. The project, funded in part through the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service is a twenty-year-old on-going success story in the recovery of a highly endangered species. Since 1978, the United States Fish and Wildlife Service has spearheaded the sea turtle conservation work at Rancho Nuevo, Mexico. This collaborative conservation project with the Mexican government and the U.S. shrimp industry, through the National Fisheries Institute, protects Kemp's ridley sea turtle nests and females from predation and other hazards, and ensures that young turtles make it into the sea. I am pleased to report that this Spring, the project has reached an all time success level with some 750 turtles laying eggs in over 5,000 nests, a record in the past 40 years. However, this year, despite the demonstrable success of the project, the Fish and Wildlife Service did not request funds for the Kemp's ridley sea turtle project. I am extremely concerned and want to express my strong support for continued funding for this valuable conservation effort.

Mr. GORTON. It is clear from my friend's statement that he knows much about the sea turtle conservation project, and I share his enthusiasm for these important efforts to project the Kemp's ridley sea turtle. While I am keenly aware of the fiscal constraints on the Fish and Wildlife Service, I once again encourage the Service to consider providing whatever support it can within these existing budget constraints.

Mr. BYRD. I agree with my colleagues from Washington and Louisiana. The Fish and Wildlife Service should make every effort to support this project in order to uphold a scientifically justified success in endangered species management.

REGARDING THE NEED FOR EMERGENCY FUNDING FOR THE WASHAKIE DAM IN WYOMING'S WIND RIVER RESERVATION

Mr. ENZI. Mr. President, I would like to thank my colleague, Senator GORTON, for helping me address the need for emergency funding for the Shoshone and Arapaho Tribes of Central Wyoming. On June 1, 2000, Gary Collins, Director of Tribal Water Engineers Office for the Shoshone and Arapaho Tribes on the Wind River Indian Reservation in central Wyoming announced the need to evacuate homes down river from the Washakie Dam. The evacuation was the result of a "first fill" test being conducted by the tribe for the newly refurbished Washakie Dam. In accordance with first fill protocol and criteria, the dam was filled to the first of two target levels and then held at that first level for a specified number of days to allow inspection of the dam's operation. Because of unusually high seepage at a key structural point—50 gallons per minute at the toe of the dam, however, the tribe implemented its Emergency Action Plan, ordered the down stream evacuation and conducted temporary repairs to stop the flow. The repairs were successful and the immediate danger temporarily abated.

While the seep is now under control, the first fill protocol is still to be completed. Under normal conditions, the tribe would have restarted the first fill protocol and would have refilled the dam to test it again for additional seepage or any other problems. There is not enough water, however, to complete the first fill on the Washakie Dam. Wyoming, along with the rest of the west is suffering from a serious drought situation. The first fill test will not be completed until next spring when, hopefully, we will have enough snowfall to generate the water needed to fill the reservoir.

As with the first fill of any dam, there is always a concern that some unanticipated event will occur which requires immediate action to protect life and property. The reconstruction project was finished ahead of time, and under budget, but the remaining funds will be inadequate to respond to any catastrophic incident. It makes much more sense to set aside funds up front to mitigate a possible catastrophe, than to spend millions of additional dollars, and possibly lose human life, for a disaster that could have been averted.

The decision by Congress to provide emergency funding for incidents before they occur is not without precedent. For example, in 1997 the U.S. Congress provided funds to prevent flooding in and around Devil's Lake in North Dakota. No actual disaster had occurred, but impending weather conditions threatened surrounding communities and we provided the means to avert disaster.

I am therefore asking my colleague for his thoughts on what we can do to help out the Eastern Shoshone and Northern Arapaho Tribes and ensure the safety of the residents living around the Washakie Dam.

Mr. GORTON. Mr. President, I appreciate the comments of my colleague and recognize the potential severity of the situation at the Washakie Dam.

I would like to assure my colleague that I will work with him to ensure that adequate funding is available to make any necessary repairs to the dam or to conduct other activities necessary to ensure the safety of people living in the vicinity of the dam.

HAZARDOUS FUEL REMOVAL

Mr. KYL. Mr. President, I'm pleased to sponsor Senator DOMENICI's amendment, number 3782, to the fiscal year 2001 Interior and Related Agencies Appropriations bill which adds critical funding to the budgets of the Bureau of Land Management and the Forest Service for hazardous fuel removal. These funds are necessary to address the immediate threats to wildland/urban interface areas across the country which are surrounded by public lands choking with natural fuels build-up from a half-century of fire suppression. The Los Alamos fire was a tragic reminder of the threat that exists today around many communities. In my own state of Arizona, which has the largest ponderosa pine forest in the world, the communities of Flagstaff, Tucson, Summer Haven, Pinetop-Lakeside, Showlow, and countless others are virtually surrounded by the national forest.

The work being done by the Ecological Restoration Institute at Northern Arizona University to address forest ecosystem restoration is world-class. I believe my colleagues are aware of the forest treatment and public education programs there. I understand that an agreement was reached to provide $8.8 million directly to the Ecological Restoration Institute for its ongoing efforts from within the funds made available to the Bureau of Land Management. Is this correct?

Mr. DOMENICI. I'm glad to have the Senator from Arizona as a sponsor of my amendment, which does provide additional necessary funding to the BLM and the Forest Service for fuels reduction. And I am aware of the work being done by the Ecological Restoration Institute. My staff met with the director of the program. It is my understanding that, from within funds provided for the Bureau of Land Management in this amendment, $8.8 million is provided for the Ecological Restoration Institute.

Mr. GORTON. That is what we have agreed to, with the concurrence of Senator BYRD.

Mr. BYRD. I am in agreement with that understanding.

HISTORICAL SITES IN NEW JERSEY

Mr. TORRICELLI. Mr. President, I rise to ask the distinguished managers of the bill if they would consider a request I have concerning the conference.

Mr. GORTON; I would be happy to consider a request from my colleague from New Jersey.

Mr. TORRICELLI. I rise to talk about two sites in New Jersey which are worthy of federal funding for their protection. I would hope that should additional funding become available, the Senate would consider providing federal funding to contribute to the acquisition of these sites.

The first is The Historic New Bridge Landing, located in Bergen County, New Jersey. I am concerned that this site will be lost unless federal protection is afforded to it. In November 1776, reeling from a series of devastating defeats in Brooklyn and Manhattan, the Continental Army fled across the Hudson River to New Jersey. The Red Coats, in hot pursuit, continually forced Washington to retreat.

After crossing New Bridge, Washington instructed a contingent of troops to dismantle the bridge and protect the army's rear. Though unable to destroy the bridge, Washington's troops held off the British long enough to allow the Army to escape.

This bridge called "The Bridge that Saved a Nation," was strategically situated at the narrows of the Hackensack River. The bridge and surrounding area were a hotly contested battleground, encampment ground, military intelligence post and headquarters. In 1780, when the Continental army regained control of the area surrounding the New Bridge, Washington used the Steuben house as a headquarters and stayed in a second floor bedroom.

This property has been the object of attention for historians and preservationists for many years. The historical significance of this has been confirmed; the site is listed on both the New Jersey and National Registers of Historic Places. In addition, in 1999, the site was named among the 10 Most Endangered Historic Sites in New Jersey by Preservation New Jersey, a private state-wide historic preservation organization. Finally, this site is included in the National Park Service's Revolutionary War and War of 1812 Battlefield study, which aims to catalog important sites in need of protection.

New Bridge Landing encompasses 18 acres on both sides of the Hackensack River in Central Bergen County, New Jersey. Commercial development, neglect and time, have combined to erode and threaten to destroy this historically significant site. Since 1995, the Historic New Bridge Landing Commission has been working toward the establishment of a major new historic and cultural park at Historic New Bridge Landing, in Central Bergen County, NJ. The Commission has established a General Management Plan which outlines the objectives of the proposed park.

Today, this site remains a hotly contested battleground, and while the nature of the battle is different, the importance of prevailing is no less important. New Jersey has undergone a revolution from "Garden State" to "Suburban State." More than 40 percent of New Jersey is developed. New Jersey is by far the most built-over state in the nation and it is number 1 in the rate at which it is losing its open space. Since 1961, New Jersey has lost over half a million acres to sprawl. The area adjacent to New Bridge Landing have not been spared. Virtually all of the land adjacent to the site has been developed. This development is visible from the site, altering its character and diminishing the visitor's experience of the park's historic landscape.

Mr. President, I would like to introduce this letter from the National Park Service testifying to the importance of Historic New Bridge Landing, and the need for federal efforts to preserve and protect it. Historic New Bridge Landing is worthy of our protection, and I would hope that the Senate would consider providing funding for the protection of this important site.

The second site which I rise today to speak in support of, is the Glen Gray Boy Scout Camp, located in the heart of the Ramapo Mountains, in New Jersey.

Much like the rest of my state, this 850 acre tract is threatened with development. Sprawl threatens to eat away at this pristine site, and the remainder of the Highlands. New Jersey knows all too well the peril of sprawl and has paid a terrible price at the hands of developers of shopping malls and subdivisions.

An average of 10,000 acres of rural/agricultural land is being developed piecemeal every year in New Jersey. The NY-NJ Highlands has seen a 60 percent increase in urbanization in the last 25 years, and is expected to absorb a 14 percent increase in population by 2010. Years ago, we made an important step in the preservation of the Highlands with the effort to protect Sterling Forest. This effort was aided by a study of the New York-New Jersey Highlands Region, conducted by the Forest Service.

That study also found the Highlands to be of national significance due to the diversity and quality of its natural resources and landscape. In addition, the study confirmed threats from development to water quality, critical open space, and recreational resources.

The Highlands regional study has shown us that this region is deserving of federal funding to allow for its protection. I am hopeful that the Committee will share my concern for this region, and commit funding for its protection.

I realize that the Committee faces many demands when putting this bill together. While these requests were not included in the bill, I would ask the Committee to consider funding for these worthy projects in the Conference.

Mr. GORTON. I thank the Senator from New Jersey and assure him that the Committee recognizes the importance of protecting threatened lands throughout the country.

IDAHO PROGRAMS

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, would the distinguished Chairman of the Subcommittee yield for a colloquy regarding several important, proposed projects under the jurisdiction of the Interior Subcommittee?

Mr. GORTON. I would be pleased to yield to the Senator from Idaho to discuss this important issue.

Mr. CRAIG. First, allow me to thank the Chairman and the Ranking Member for their hard work on the Fiscal year 2001 Interior and Related Agencies Appropriations bill. Despite scarce resources and tough choices, they came up with a fiscally responsible bill that meets important priorities, which I support.

There are some important projects to be funded in this bill that I would like to work with the Chairman on.

We are proud to be the home of Lake Coeur d'Alene in North Idaho. It has become a world-class destination for all sorts of outdoor activities—from golf to water sports to mountain biking. This tourism is important to the local economy and the ability to partake in these activities is vital to the local residents' quality of life. I know the Chairman is very familiar with the area, since it is a short distance from Spokane, Washington and is a popular recreation destination for many of his constituents.

The problem we have encountered is a lack of public boat launching facilities. Most of the lake front land around the lake is privately owned, so land for public launch facilities is scarce. However, the Bureau of Land Management has purchased land for a boat launch facility and has completed all of the appropriate studies and planning; they are simply lacking the funds to build the facility. The local community, including many residents of Washington State, tenaciously support the project and are willing to provide about $700,000 toward the project.

In the same part of the great State of Idaho, mining has been and, hopefully, will continue to be a substantial part of the local economy—providing the minerals we all need. The University of Idaho and Washington State University want to work with the U.S. Geological Survey to develop new high-tech methods of modeling geology, to be tested in North Idaho, but eventually applied world-wide, to provide better exploration and modeling techniques to find groundwater, minerals, etc.

In the Southern part of Idaho, we are very concerned about the proposed listing of the Sage Grouse as an endangered species. The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service has been petitioned to list the species, which would have a dramatic impact on the lives of the people of Southern Idaho, as well as future BLM and Forest Service operations. It becomes readily apparent when you visit Southern Idaho that the entire region is habitat for Sage Grouse.

Local working groups have been formed across Southern Idaho to find local, collaborative projects to restore Sage Grouse habitat and the species which would make a listing under the Endangered Species Act unnecessary. To be successful, this effort appropriately requires some federal support.

Finally, also in Southern Idaho, there is an urgent need to re-open the BLM's air tanker resupply base at the Twin Falls airport. This base was closed in 1998, after an internal inspection indicated unsafe conditions. This is the only such base within 100 miles of most of the Idaho-Nevada border, which uniquely suits it to provide the fastest possible response and turnaround times in this area during the fire season. In this vast expanse of vulnerable landscape, in the dry season, a small accident rapidly could become a major fire disaster. We've seen that happen in other parts of the country and we should take steps here to prevent it. The community has worked diligently with the local BLM office to re-open the base as soon as possible. However, in the national office, this project has been slipped back from year to year and down the priority list. Everyone agrees this base must be replaced. Our concern is simply that it should be done now, rather than be subject to further postponement.

I hope the chairman will work with me when this bill goes to conference to find funds for all of these important and fiscally responsible projects.

Mr. GORTON. I appreciate the Senator from Idaho's interest in these projects. I am familiar with them and recognize their value.

I would be happy to work with the Senator to make sure appropriate consideration is given to these projects in the Conference Committee.

Mr. CRAIG. I thank the Chairman.

CLEAN COAL TECHNOLOGY

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, as the Senate considers the Fiscal Year 2001 Interior and Related Agencies appropriations bills, I wish to take a moment to address the Department of Energy's Clean Coal Technology Demonstration program, one of the most successful public-private research ventures ever undertaken, and one of the more important projects funded in this legislation.

Fundamentally, the goal of the Clean Coal program is simple: Encourage the private sector to design and demonstrate advanced technologies which will use coal, our most abundant fossil energy resource, more cleanly and efficiently. To achieve that goal, I initiated the Clean Coal Technology Demonstration program in 1984 with an initial appropriation of $750 million. In subsequent years, I was able to add to those funds for a total amount in excess of $2.0 billion. I am pleased to recall that then-President Ronald Reagan joined with me in endorsing the Clean Coal Technology Demonstration program.

As established, the program calls for the cost of clean coal demonstration projects to be shared equally between the Federal government and the private sector. Forty clean coal projects have been selected through a series of competitive solicitations issued by the Department of Energy. And while Congress required industry to contribute 50 percent of the cost of selected projects, I am proud to say that, in toto, industry has in fact contributed more than 66 percent of the total cost. Moreover, project sponsors are required to repay the Federal government's share of the project cost if and when the technologies are commercialized.

Beyond the successes that have come from the Clean Coal program, though, a few simple facts will also underscore the real necessity of the program as well. Our nation has approximately 274 billion tons of recoverable coal reserves. At current rates of consumption those reserves amount to more than a 200-year supply. Furthermore, more than one half—54 percent to be exact—of the electricity generated in this country last year came from coal. Mr. President, those are staggering statistics which prove that American coal is, and will remain, an abundant and critically important energy source. But those statistics also suggest that our reliance on coal must be carried out in a manner which utilizes the cleanest and most efficient technologies possible. And that is what the Clean Coal program is intended to accomplish.

In furtherance of that objective, the Committee on Appropriations, through its report accompanying this bill, has directed the Department of Energy to issue a report to Congress by March 1, 2001, depicting the nature and content of a potential new round of Clean Coal Technology projects. This information is vital if we in the Congress are to direct the Department to utilize funds already available in the Clean Coal program for the purpose of funding additional demonstration projects.

Indeed, Mr. President, I have heard from a number of companies interested in coal and the development of technologies that will allow this nation to make the best use of this abundant energy resource. These companies, some of which are in my own state of West Virginia, have recommended that any new clean coal solicitation be focused principally upon technologies that will reduce the environmental impacts from existing, as well as new, coal-fired facilities. In addition, I believe that we ought to be encouraging newer technologies that are even more advanced than the clean coal technologies that have been demonstrated thus far. A new solicitation should therefore encourage technologies capable of reducing emissions of sulfur dioxide (SO₂), nitrogen oxide (NO_x), or mercury, as well as increasing the operating efficiency of coal-fired power plants thereby reducing—and through technologies, working to eliminate—carbon dioxide emissions.

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, I, too, would like to join my distinguished colleague from West Virginia in addressing the Clean Coal Technology program. I would also like to commend the Chairman of the Interior Subcommittee, Senator GORTON, and of course the Ranking Member, Senator BYRD for their work relating to the Clean Coal Technology Demonstration program.

Mr. President, I share the optimism of the leaders of the Interior Appropriations Subcommittee with respects to the innovations that could be made with further clean coal technology projects. I specifically want to draw attention to one area in which I think that there is great potential—lignite energy development. In my state of North Dakota, the lignite industry provides a low-cost, reliable energy source for more than 2 million people in the upper Midwest. This industry directly employs 3,000 people in North Dakota and has great potential to increase the efficiency of coal-fired power plants while reducing the emissions with the application of new coal technologies.

Mr. President, because of the importance of lignite coal, I would urge the Department of Energy to specifically explore the development of low-rank coals, coals containing high-sodium, and mine-mouth applications and concepts in any new round of Clean Coal Technology projects. I also believe, and I would hope the Department would agree, too, that preference should be given to those states that have lignite research and development programs requiring public and private collaboration. This kind of work should be aspects of the study that the Committee report requires of the Department.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I appreciate the comments of the distinguished Senator from North Dakota and I agree that the lignite energy industry has the potential to develop more environmentally sound and economically efficient technologies. I certainly welcome efforts to ensure that the lignite energy industry is given due consideration by the Energy Department as it develops its criteria for further Clean Coal Technology projects.

Mr. President, does the Chairman of the Interior Subcommittee agree with us about the need to consider the potential of lignite energy technologies in any new round of Clean Coal Technology projects?

Mr. GORTON. Mr. President, I recognize that the Clean Coal Technology program is an important priority for Senator BYRD and Senator DORGAN and I urge the Department of Energy to consider the viability of concepts not fully developed on low-rank coals and coals containing high sodium as it works on the study we have requested.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I thank the Senator for his consideration, and wonder if he would answer a question or two to help clarify the Committee's directive regarding the Clean Coal Technology Demonstration program?

Mr. GORTON. Mr. President, I would be happy to answer the Senator's questions. I know he is a champion of coal and the Clean Coal Technology program, and I am also aware of his abiding interest in the environmentally sound use of coal as a source of power for this nation.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, would it be the Senator's thought that the Department should support technologies which control emissions from coal use or increase the operating efficiency of coal-based power plants?

Mr. GORTON. In response, let me say, Mr. President, that those are certainly the types of technologies that the Department should address.

Mr. BYRD. Would the distinguished Senator also agree with me that further demonstrations projects should be at a size that would permit immediate scale up to commercial capacity? And also, in that instance where the technology is to be applied to an existing plant, that the technology should be widely applicable to a very significant number of existing coal-fired generating facilities?

Mr. GORTON. Mr. President, again, I agree with the Senator. Given pending environmental requirements applicable to these coal-fired units, it would be my hope that the Department of Energy would consider larger scale projects able to be commercialized immediately. Also, any program should be aimed at developing technologies that could be applied to the greatest number of existing units possible.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I thank the Senator from Washington for his courtesy in answering my inquiries.

Mr. BENNETT. I would like to ask the Chairman a question about the language concerning the 1994 Desert Tortoise Recovery Plan on page 18 of the report accompanying this legislation. It is the Chairman's understanding that the language refers specifically to certain tasks which the Fish and Wildlife Service committed in the Recovery Plan to complete by 1999 and, to my knowledge, have not even begun?

Mr. GORTON. The Senator is correct.

Mr. BENNETT. As the Chairman knows, I am deeply troubled that the United States Fish and Wildlife Service, Bureau of Land Management, and other federal agencies have moved very quickly to impose the land use controls recommended in the Recovery Plan, but have failed to undertake the basic tasks called for in that document to determine whether those land use controls are truly appropriate and are proving to be effective. I am speaking of three tasks: the desert tortoise monitoring that the Plan called "crucial to determining if desert tortoise populations are stationary, declining, or increasing"; the desert tortoise population estimations that the Plan stated would be made every three to five years; and the Plan's reassessment that also was to be conducted every three to five years.

Mr. GORTON. The Senator is correct. The Committee fully expects the USFWS to fulfill its commitments in the Recovery Plan to carry out the desert tortoise monitoring, population estimation, and Recovery Plan reassessment. Additionally, the Committee expected the plan called for in the report language will focus solely on those three tasks.

Mr. BENNETT. One last point. To ensure that appropriated funds are spent wisely, I want to voice my concern that any methodology to be employed in conducting the monitoring be designed to permit correlation of the new data with the data gathered between 1980 and 2000. This will ensure that population trends, and the efficacy of programs and mitigation undertaken since 1980, can be determined.

Mr. GORTON. The Senator makes an excellent point. The Committee agrees that the desert tortoise monitoring methodology should be designed as you suggest.

Mr. BENNETT. I thank the Senator.
LAND AND WATER CONSERVATION FUNDS FOR IDAHO

Mr. CRAPO. Mr. President, would the distinguished Chairman of the Subcommittee yield for a colloquy regarding Land and Water Conservation Funds for Idaho?

Mr. GORTON. I would be pleased to yield to the Senator to discuss this important issue.

Mr. CRAPO. First, allow me to commend the Chairman for his leadership and hard work on this bill. He and the Subcommittee have had to make difficult decisions with scarce resources and have worked hard to do so in a fair manner. I appreciate the Chairman's efforts and diligence.

Idaho is a state of spectacular natural beauty and wildlife habitat. As the Chairman knows, an opportunity exists to use Land and Water Conservation Funds (LWCF) to acquire easements in the state to protect these valuable habitats and scenic values.

While I am concerned regarding the level of funding appropriated, I appreciate the Subcommittee's recognition of the importance of funding easements in the Sawtooth National Recreation Area, near the Snake River Birds of Prey National Conservation Area, and on the Lower Salmon River. However, many other LWCF projects in the state were not funded. Protecting deer habitat in the Soda Springs Hills, acquiring inholdings to protect elk range and address historic mining activities in the Silver Spar Land Acquisition, securing easements along the Upper Snake River and South Fork of the Snake River, and acquiring private land, the Sulfur Creek Ranch, within the Frank Church River of No Return Wilderness area are all important projects. These projects are all locally-driven, with wide-spread support, and anxious willing-sellers.

I recognize that the Subcommittee is operating under significant financial restraints and that, unfortunately, not all worthy projects can be funded. It is my hope that if additional LWCF money becomes available, the Chairman can revisit these important Idaho projects. I would ask the Chairman if he would work with us in conference to evaluate these requests, with an eye toward inclusion in the conference report.

Mr. GORTON. I appreciate Senator CRAPO's interest in these projects. I am familiar with these projects and recognize the value in protecting these lands.

I would be happy to work with the Senator to reevaluate these projects in the conference committee. If additional LWCF funding becomes available, we will consider what can be done to address these needs.

Mr. CRAPO. I thank the Chairman.

Mrs. MURRAY. Mr. President, our Nation is blessed with many natural treasures that hold unique scientific or cultural value.

That's why in 1906 the Congress passed and the President signed the Antiquities Act to give us a way to protect these unique lands.

Since 1906, presidents of all parties have used the act to designate over 100 national monuments—including several which Congress later designated as National Parks including the Grand Canyon, Grand Teton and Olympic National Parks.

Each year, more than 50 million visitors enjoy our country's national monuments. Today, there are other unique areas throughout our country that hold similar value. Unfortunately, some of these remarkable areas are threatened by growth, development, and harvesting.

I believe we have a responsibility to protect these natural treasures. I believe we have a responsibility to be a good steward of these lands and to pass them on—untarnished—to future generations.

I'm proud that Washington state is home to the Hanford Reach—which is the last-free flowing stretch of the Columbia River. During World War II and the Cold War, the people of the Tri-Cities made sacrifices that helped our nation end World War II and win the Cold War. Because of the high security around the nuclear facility, for decades this part of the Columbia River and the surrounding land was protected from development. Unfortunately, its future was not certain.

The Hanford Reach is a key salmon spawning ground and as many of my colleagues know we are working in the Pacific Northwest to help recover our once-abundant salmon stocks. I was pleased that the President used his authority—under the Antiquities Act—to designate the Hanford Reach as a National Monument.

Mr. President, it was the right thing to do.

That designation will help us recover salmon stocks, will ensure families can continue to enjoy the Reach, and will share the history of the Tri-Cities with the American public. And of course, the designation will preserve a unique habitat for future generations.

I hope that in the future, the Hanford Reach National Monument receives the attention and recognition that it deserves. The Olympic National Park began as a National Monument—one of the first—designated by President Roosevelt in 1909. Many generations of Americans have enjoyed the natural splendor that the Olympics and the surrounding area offer. I hope that the Hanford Reach will also become a destination for Americans eager to learn more about our past.

Unfortunately, the Nickles' amendment would deny the possibility of such protection to other deserving areas around the country. It is clear that supporters of this amendment are unhappy with the President's use of the Antiquities Act. But in the end, the President has legally exercised the authority vested in him by the Act.

If this Congress is really unhappy with the Antiquities Act, it could amend the Act itself or override particular designations. But we all know that won't happen. The reason it won't happen is because the majority of Americans believe that the lands protected under the Antiquities Act are deserving of such protection.

The Grand Canyon, Devils Tower, Mt. Olympus, Jackson Hole, Death Valley, Joshua Tree—have all been named as national monuments. Few would argue these areas are not worthy of such recognition and protection. The fact is many of these designations have been so popular that Congress later designated them as national parks, often expanding them at the same time. Again, Olympic National Park in my home state is an example of such Congressional action.

In 1906, Congress had the wisdom to grant the President the power to protect important natural and historic areas of our country. The need for such power is not at an end. Threats of development and impacts from other activities will continue and in some cases will lead to the recognition that greater protection for certain federal lands is warranted. At that time, the President, who ever she or he may be, should have the ability to act as every President has since 1906. Indeed, since the Antiquities Act was passed 14 of the 17 Presidents have used its powers.

If it is indeed the will of Congress to limit this historic power of the Presidency, then let us do so after a full and public legislative process. This amendment is simply a back-door attempt to accomplish what the sponsor and supporters know they cannot do through a stand alone bill.

Despite some controversy, the President's designations have had the support of members of Congress and the public. In fact, I—along with many members of my state's delegation in the House—supported the President's recent designation of the Hanford Reach as a national monument. This designation was also supported by many people in the Tri-Cities and across the state.

Before I close I remind my colleagues that a similar amendment was included in the House Interior bill as it was reported by the Committee. Fortunately, thanks to the leadership of Congressman DICKS and Congressman BOEH-LERT, that amendment was removed from the House bill. However, before the amendment's removal, the House bill received a veto threat because of this provision. We can certainly expect a similar veto threat from the Administration if this amendment is adopted.

For the first time in years, we have the opportunity to pass a free standing Interior Appropriations bill into law. This amendment would seriously compromise that possibility.

We should stand up for the people and communities who are eager to share in the benefits of these national monuments.

Mr. President, I urge my colleagues to reject this amendment.

Mr. TORRICELLI. Mr. President, I rise in support of the Bryan amendment, which would ensure protection of our nations forests. This amendment would cut $30 million from the National Forest System's forest products program and would redirect $15 million to the Wildland Fire Management's fire preparedness program. The amendment would return the remaining funds to the Treasury to reduce the national debt. There are many reasons why I support this amendment, but let me discuss just two.

First, is the need to end corporate welfare. It is estimated that within the federal budget corporate welfare makes up anywhere from $86 billion (CATO Institute) to $265 billion (Progressive Policy Institute). A recent report by the Green Scissors Coalition estimates that over a five year period the Federal government will spend $36 billion on wasteful and environmentally harmful projects such as the forest products program.

Second, simply, is that by passing this amendment, we enact good environmental policy. The continual construction of new roads required to access our nation's forests removes ground cover and creates a channel for water to run down, accelerates soil erosion, weakens hillsides and fouls streams, destroying the foundation of our recreational and commercial fisheries. Logging roads are a major source of non-point source water pollution. According to the National Forest Service, 922 communities receive their drinking water from streams within the national forests—streams that are polluted from contaminated run-off associated with construction.

The protection of our roadless areas is important because they represent an important legacy for future generations. Areas without roads are becoming scarce in this country and in our national forests. Roadless areas provide significant benefits including: opportunities for dispersed recreation, clean, clear sources of public drinking water; large undisturbed landscapes that provide privacy and seclusion; bulwarks against the spread of invasive species; habitat for fish and game and other rare plant and animal species.

While I would prefer to see this program eliminated completely, at the minimum timber companies should not be subsidized by the taxpayers. The timber industry, like any other business, should bear its own costs. At a time when we are asking all Americans to do more with less, we should have the courage to ask the special interests to at least pay their own way. I support the Bryan amendment, and ask my colleagues to join me by voting for this important initiative.

While I have the floor, I will take a moment to comment on legislation that the Senate will soon consider. The Conservation and Reinvestment Act would guarantee full funding for the Land and Water Conservation Fund, and afford permanent protection to our nation's threatened natural, cultural, and historical treasures.

In 1964, Congress made the decision to reinvest revenue from the development of non-renewable resources into acquisition and permanent protection of key land, water, and open space. In the 30 years since its creation, the Land and Water Conservation Fund (LWCF) has been responsible for the acquisition of nearly seven million acres of parkland-contributing to the creation of the Appalachian Trail, Everglades and Rocky Mountain National Parks. In New Jersey, it helped fund the acquisition of Sterling Forest, and the Cape May and Walkill National Wildlife Refuges.

However, the LWCF is not a true trust fund in the way "trust fund" is generally understood by the public. Despite the fact that by law, the revenues are supposed to go to the LWCF, Congress must appropriate the money before it can be spent; if appropriations are not made, the revenues instead go to the General Treasury, to be spent on defense, or roads, or whatever Congress decides. The practical effect is that historically, only a small portion of the funds in the LWCF has actually been used for land preservation.

At no time has full funding of the LWCF been more needed than today, as the demands of development and suburbanization jeopardize land preservation efforts. The United States loses 50 acres an hour to development. In New Jersey, we know all too well the effects of suburban sprawl. Since 1961, New Jersey has lost half a million acres to sprawl. This is not surprising when you consider that New Jersey ranks 9th in terms of population. The reality is that sprawl is settling in over our open space.

In a very exciting development, the House of Representatives recently passed LWCF legislation, and this bill now stands in the Senate. I am hopeful that the Senate will mark up its legislation this week, and I urge the Leadership to schedule floor time for this landmark initiative as soon as possible.

Inscribed in one of the hallways of our nation's Capitol are the words of Theodore Roosevelt. He said: "The nation behaves well if it treats the natural resources as assets which it must turn over to the next generation increased, and not impaired in value." Let us act on this vision and pass this extraordinary initiative during the 106th Congress.

Mr. GRAMS. Mr. President, every year at this time it seems we're here on the Senate floor debating another attack on the Forest Service's Timber Management Program. Every year those who wish to eliminate logging in our National Forests come up with another angle which they claim helps protect the environment by eliminating "wasteful" spending on logging practices. Every year people throughout northern Minnesota and forested regions across the country see their jobs and their livelihoods threatened in the name of preservation or conservation. And every year, those of us who represent the good people of the timber and paper industry in our states have to fight, scratch, and claw our way to a narrow victory that saves those jobs and those families from economic ruin.

I come from a state in which the forest and paper industry is vital to our economy. The reduction in the timber program on National Forests has had a dramatic impact over the past ten years on the number of jobs and the economic vitality of northern Minnesota. According to Minnesota Forest Industries (MFI), jobs provided by the timber program in Minnesota dropped from over 1,900 in 1987 to less than 1,100 last year, and they continue to decline.

The reduction in timber harvests on federal lands has had an equally dramatic effect on unrealized economic impacts. MFI estimates that unrealized economic benefits include over $10 million from timber sales, $25 million in federal taxes, $2.5 million in payments to states, and $116 million in community economic impact in Minnesota alone.

It's important to point out that the timber program in National Forests have a very positive impact on the amount of federal money that goes to rural counties and schools. Nationally, the program contribute $225 million to counties and schools each year through receipts from timber sales in national forests. In Minnesota, the timber program provided roughly $1.7 million to counties and schools in 1998 alone. If the timber program would have met its allowable sale quantity in 1998, that number would have risen to nearly $2.5 million.

I'm fascinated by the claims of some of my colleagues that the timber program is a subsidy to wealthy timber and paper companies and the claims that the timber program loses money because we're giving timber away to these companies. If you truly believe that, I challenge you to visit forested regions and speak with the families who have lost their mills and the loggers who have lost their jobs. Talk to the counties and the private landowners who cannot access to their own property because the Forest Service doesn't have enough money to do the environmental reviews. Or talk directly to the Forest Service personnel and let them tell you how lengthy and costly environmental reviews and the overwhelming number of court challenges to those reviews are making the timber program so costly.

Then go speak with state or county land managers and ask them why their timber programs are so successful. Ask them why their lands are so much more healthy than the federal lands and why they're able to make money with their timber programs. In Minnesota, St. Louis County only has to spend 26 cents in order to generate one dollar of revenue in their timber program and the State of Minnesota spend 75 cents to generate one dollar of revenue. The Superior National Forest, on the other hand, spend one dollar and three cents to get the same results.

I cannot see how my colleagues can stand here on the Senate floor and tell me that the forest and paper industry in our country, and its employees, are the bad guys. The forest and paper industry in America employs over 1.5 million people and ranks among the top ten manufacturing employers in 46 states. These are good, traditional jobs that help a family make a living, allow children to pursue higher education, help keep rural families in rural areas, and provide a legitimate a base from which rural counties can fund basic services. These are jobs that we in Congress should be working diligently not only to protect, but to grow.

Unfortunately, many Members of Congress who advocate these ideas have never taken the time to understand the positive economic and environmental benefits of science-based timber harvests. They've never sat down with a county commissioner who doesn't know where he is going to get the money for some of the most basic services the county provides to its citizens. They've never considered that for every 1 million board feet in timber harvest reductions in Minnesota, 10 people lose their jobs and over $570,000 in economic activity is lost. And they've never taken the time to go into a health forest where prudent logging practices have been essential to ensuring the vitality and diversity of species.

If Members of this body want to make the timber program profitable across the country, then we should have an honest debate about what works and does not work in the program. We should discuss frankly the ridiculous number of hoops public land managers have to jump through in order to process a timber sale. I think we need to discuss the fact that under the Alaska National Interest Lands Conservation Act the federal government must provide access across federal lands for state, county, and private landowners to access their land. Yet in Minnesota, those landowners either have to wait a number of years or pay for the environmental reviews themselves because the Forest Service claims it doesn't have enough money. We should also discuss openly the dramatic impact court challenges are having on the ability of the Forest Service to do its job and to carry out the timber program in a cost-effective manner. On top of that, it's clear that under this Administration the Forest Service doesn't want a timber program that shows a profit and they've done an effective job of using the powers of the Executive Branch to vilify both the timber program and the men and women of my state who rely upon that program in order to meet their most basic needs.

Virtually everyone in this body, including this Senator, is committed to the protection of our environment and to the conservation of our wildlife species and wildlife habitat. I believe we can expand upon our commitment to wildlife and provide additional resources for habitat protection. But I do not believe we must do so on the backs of timber and paper workers throughout the nation. I am willing to work with anybody in this chamber towards those conservation efforts, but let's not do it by pitting timber and paper workers against conservationists.

We cannot simply stand here and claim that the Bryan amendment is an easy way to throw some money towards planning for the threat of forest fires. Rather, this amendment is going to take jobs from my constituents and hurt the economy of the northern part of my state. The Bryan amendment is just one more step down the road toward eliminating logging on federal land. This amendment is going to reduce the ability of a number of rural counties in my state to make ends meet and to provide necessary services to residents. These are just a few of the realities of the Bryan amendment and just a few of the reasons why I cannot and will not support its passage.

ARCHIE CARR NATIONAL WILDLIFE REFUGE FUNDING

Mr. GRAHAM. Mr. President, I would like to first thank my colleagues, Senators GORTON and BYRD for their support in obtaining $2 million in the Fiscal Year 2001 Interior Appropriations bill for the Archie Carr National Wildlife Refuge.

Archie Carr National Wildlife Refuge was established in 1991. It is 900 acres in Brevard County Florida which makes up the twenty mile section of coastline from Melbourne Beach to Wabasso Beach in Florida. It is the most important nesting area for loggerhead sea turtles in the western hemisphere and the second most important nesting beach in the world.

Mr. MACK. I would like to join my colleague in thanking Senators GORTON and BYRD and the Interior Appropriations Subcommittee for their support for the Archie Carr National Wildlife Refuge. Twenty percent of all loggerhead sea turtle and 35% of all green sea turtle nests in the United States occur in this twenty mile zone. Nesting densities of 1,000 nests per mile have been recorded. Approximately half of this area is available for acquisition. The funds in this legislation will be critical in our ability to move forward on these acquisitions.

Mr. GRAHAM. Despite the importance of this refuge to the loggerhead sea turtle, there is no refuge station at Archie Carr. The result is both a lack of educational opportunities for visitors and a lack of security at the refuge. I join my colleague, Senator MACK, in proposing that $200,000 of the funds provided by the Fiscal Year 2001 Interior Appropriations bill for the Archie Carr National Wildlife Refuge be available for use by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service for the purpose of site evaluation for a visitor center/research and education center.

Mr. GORTON. Thank you, Senators MACK and GRAHAM. I share your desire to support the need of our National Wildlife Refuges, in particular the needs of Archie Carr National Wildlife Refuge, and will work with Senators MACK and GRAHAM to see if funds can be identified to support site evaluation for a visitor center/research and education center.

Mr. BYRD. Thank you, Senator GORTON. I, too, share the goal of ensuring that our National Wildlife Refuge System receives the funds it requires to preserve the critical habitat it was designed to protect. I concur with your position on the proposal made by Senators GRAHAM and MACK.

NORTH CAROLINA'S STREAM GAUGES AND MONITORING EQUIPMENT

Mr. EDWARDS. I thank you for including my amendment to provide $1,800,000 in emergency funds for the United States Geological Survey to repair and replace stream monitoring equipment damaged by natural disasters. As you know, your Committee recommended a significant increase in the USGS's Real Time Hazards Initiative, including $3,100,000 for new or upgraded stream gauging stations.

1999 was a devastating year for North Carolina. Hurricanes Floyd, Dennis and Irene did extensive damage across eastern North Carolina. And early indications are that this hurricane season will be just as active for North Carolina as last year. North Carolina's stream gauges and monitoring equipment are in desperate need of upgrade and enhancement. I respectfully request that the Committee recommend that the United States Geological Survey give special consideration to North Carolina's needs and address the need for upgrades and enhancements through this appropriation.

Mr. GORTON. I understand that the USGS is willing to address North Carolina's specific needs for stream gauges and monitoring equipment through the Real Time Hazards Initiative. The Committee recognizes the unique danger in North Carolina and, therefore, strongly encourages the USGS to ensure that North Carolina's stream gauges and monitoring devices are enhanced or upgraded to the degree possible within appropriations provided for these types of activities.

ELECTRO-CATALYTIC OXIDATION (ECO)

Mr. DEWINE. Mr. President, I would like to ask my colleagues, Senator GORTON, Chairman of the Interior Appropriations Subcommittee; and Senator BYRD, the Ranking Member of the Subcommittee, about a new and innovative technology. Mr. Chairman, are you aware of an emerging technology known as electro-catalytic oxidation (ECO), which has the potential to reduce emissions, as well as unusable by-products at coal-fired power plants?

Mr. GORTON. Mr. President, I would inform the Senator from Ohio that I have been made aware of ECO.

Mr. DEWINE. I ask if he concurs that the Secretary of Energy should participate in a full-scale demonstration of this technology that is planned for the near future.

Mr. GORTON. I would certainly encourage the Department to take a close look at this technology within the context of its coal research programs, and consider carefully any related research or demonstration proposal that may be submitted.

Mr. DEWINE. As the senior Senator from West Virginia is aware, the early tests of this technology show a significant reduction of nitrogen oxide (Nox), sulfur dioxide (SO₂), mercury, and fine particulate matter. Would the Senator agree that a cost-effective reduction of these emissions is in the best interest of coal-fired power consumers as well as the coal industry?

Mr. BYRD. I would agree with the Senator from Ohio.

Mr. DEWINE. I thank the very distinguished senior Senator from West Virginia and would note that the Senator from New Hampshire, the state where ECO was developed, is optimistic about the potential of the technology. Would the Senator agree?

Mr. SMITH (of New Hampshire). I would agree with my colleague from Ohio and add that I applaud the innovative efforts that have led to the development of this emerging emissions control technology. As many of you know, the Senate Environment and Public Works Committee is currently working to develop a bill that will address the significant problem of the hodge-podge of overlapping Clean Air Act regulation on utilities. Our goal is to draft a comprehensive, multi-pollutant bill to provide a more sensible emission control regime on utilities while at the same time achieving greater reductions of pollutants than is currently possible under the Clean Air Act. New technologies, much as electro-catalytic oxidation will be critically important to our ability to successfully revise our approach to utility emission control. I would support any efforts to expedite the development of this technology.

Mr. DEWINE. Mr. President, I thank the Chairman of the Environment and Public Works Committee for his support of this important technology, and I would welcome the opportunity to more closely examine his proposals related to Clean Air reauthorization, and comment on them at a future time. I also thank the Chairman of the Interior Subcommittee and the senior Senator from West Virginia and would encourage them to consider the benefits of ECO to consumers of coal-fired power as well as coal producing states when this bill moves to conference with the other body.

FY 2001 INTERIOR APPROPRIATIONS FOR MAINE PROJECTS

Ms. SNOWE. Mr. President, Maine and the nation have an opportunity to accomplish an enormously meaningful level of forest protection in Maine's 10 million acre Northern Forest if significant funding for Forest Service accounts is allocated for Maine projects in fiscal year 2001. In the last two years, an astounding 20 percent of Maine's total forestland acreage has changed ownership, an occurrence that represents a significant shift in the pattern of stable long-term ownership and use that has characterized the Maine woods for at least the last hundred years.

Ms. COLLINS. The Senior Senator for Maine is correct, Mr. Chairman. This tremendous turnover calls into question whether the traditional use of these lands for forestry and for outdoor recreational activities will continue. We are fortunate that the present owners of these valuable lands are offering an opportunity to secure their lasting protection and productivity. I, along with Senator SNOWE, support these efforts through funding from the Forest Legacy Program and the Forest Service's land acquisition program and hope we can work together during this appropriations process to take advantage of the opportunity afforded us at this time.

Ms. SNOWE. Mr. President, I want to thank you for your strong support for Forest Legacy funding in FY 2000 in approving $3 million Title 6 funding for Maine for Phase I of the 656,000 acre West Branch project. This funding, along with the $2 million already allocated from the state grant portion of LWCF, will complement the $4 million being secured through non-federal sources for the conservation and protection of 70,000 acres of undeveloped forestland, including more than 100 miles of undeveloped shoreline along Moosehead Lake, Sebomook Lake, and several smaller lakes.

Ms. COLLINS. Phase II of the West Branch project consists of the remaining acreage of approximately 580,000 acres of what is one of the largest contiguous blocks of forest under single management in the eastern United States and has sustained a flow of timber products for more than 100 years.

Mr. GORTON. I appreciate the Senators' interest in this worthy project and I would be happy to work with the Senators to ensure appropriate consideration is given to these projects in Conference.

Ms. SNOWE. The second Forest Legacy project, Mr. Chairman, known as Mt. Blue/Tumbledown Mountain, is a two-phase project totaling approximately 33,400 acres and will protect some of Maine's most scenic areas—including Tumbledown Mountain, Jackson Mountain, Blueberry Mountain and trailheads leading to these peaks.

Ms. COLLINS. An amount of $1.2 million in Forest Legacy funding will allow the acquisition in fee of 3,600 acres immediately adjacent to Maine's Mt. Blue State Park, and will bring needed protections to Maine's scenic and popular Western Mountain region. I want to express my strong support for the project.

Mr. GORTON. Once again, I appreciate the Senators' interest in this worthy project and I would be pleased to work with the Senators to see that this project is considered fully in Conference.

Ms. SNOWE. I also want to thank you for your appropriations support for funds for the Pingree Forest, which is an excellent example of private sector cooperation and conservation, while at the same time preserving the working forests of our State. The Pingree Family of Maine has been exemplary in the way it has managed its lands for seven generations—160 years. As you are aware, the Pingree Family has entered into the Pingree Forest Partnership with the New England Forestry Foundation, which has committed to raise $30 million for a conservation easement on 754,673 acres of land in Northern and Western Maine.

Ms. COLLINS. The New England Forestry Foundation is within $11.5 million of its goal, which, under the terms of the partnership agreement with the Pingree family, must be met by December 31 of this year. I would note that the Pingree Family has agreed to sell this easement on their land at only $37.10 an acre.

Mr. GORTON. I am very much in support of what the parties are trying to preserve—a way of life through forestry in Maine and the conservation of the magnificent Northeast forests of this nation—and I will carry that support into conference. Funding of this project is certainly a wise use of federal funds for the conservation of outstanding undeveloped lands, and also keeping the Maine woods in sustainable forestry.

Ms. SNOWE. I thank you for your close scrutiny of the merits of this project and your support for what is currently the largest single land conservation project in the world. I would like to point out that, for any appropriation to work under the agreement, I urge you to allocate the funds through the National Fish and Wildlife Foundation to the New England Forestry Foundation, which will hold the easement for the Pingree land.

Ms. COLLINS. I would like to add that, in the past, all of NFWF's federal grants have been appropriated through a designation to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service's Land and Water Conservation Fund, and NFWF has received funds from the Forest Service for grants over the past ten years. NFWF's excellent track record gives me confidence that it is the right steward of this important project.

Mr. GORTON. I agree that this clarification is necessary and agree that the funds should be allocated through NFWF.

Ms. SNOWE. Once again, I thank my distinguished colleague from Washington State and praise his continuing efforts for the conservation of our nation's private lands, especially those of great importance to the people of Maine.

Ms. COLLINS. I also thank you for your support, Mr. Chairman, for supporting these appropriations that will enable Pingree land to continue to supply area mills and support the local economy while allowing the public continued recreational access.

Mr. SANTORUM. Mr. President, I would like to engage in a brief colloquy with the distinguished Chairman of the Interior Appropriations Subcommittee, Senator GORTON, concerning future demonstration projects under the Clean Coal Technology program. Mr. President, clarifying the intent of the program will be helpful in my efforts to ensure that a very worthwhile initiative in Pennsylvania received full consideration by the Department of Energy.

The lack of a coherent and consistent energy policy has contributed to the high fuel prices that have hit the working families in Pennsylvania and across the nation very hard. It is the lack of a national energy policy that has led to our nation's reliance on foreign oil. Today, we import 56 percent of our fuel. This is the highest level in the history of our country. For a historical perspective, we only imported 36 percent of our oil during the energy crisis of the 1970s.

Mr. President, we must reduce our reliance on imported oil. We must conserve energy resources, improve energy efficiencies, and increase domestic energy supplies. We also need to aggressively expand our research and development efforts to encourage the use of domestic renewable energy sources.

The Pennsylvania initiative that I referred to would do just that by developing a facility that would convert Anthracite culm to a clean diesel fuel. The project would produce 1.4 million barrels a year of zero-sulfur, high-energy diesel fuel, at the same time reclaiming land now rendered unusable and environmentally damaging. Additionally, it would create 1,000 construction and 150 permanent jobs.

Would the Senator agree that the establishment of such a facility, whose principal focus is to develop domestic renewable energy sources by transforming coal and coal waste into high quality diesel fuel, is the type of activity that the Clean Coal Technology program should encourage?

Mr. GORTON. I agree with my friend that the Clean Coal Technology program is meant to encourage projects that develop environmentally-friendly technologies, such as coal conversion. I believe that the Department of Energy should use its limited funding resources to expand its efforts to encourage the development of domestic renewable energy sources.

Mr. SANTORUM. As this bill moves forward into conference, is it the Senator's intention to seek adequate funding for the Clean Coal Technology program so that the Department of Energy can begin a new round of demonstration projects, including a project such as the Pennsylvania initiative I have described here today?

Mr. GORTON. As my colleague is aware, the Senate report accompanying the FY 2001 Interior bill directs the Department to report on options for a new solicitation in the Clean Coal program. In the context of preparing this report, and in conducting any future solicitation, I would expect the Department to give full consideration to such worthwhile projects as the one described by my friend from Pennsylvania.

Mr. President, with 1 minute to spare, that concludes the introduction of all amendments pursuant to the unanimous consent agreement of last week.

I repeat, if Members wish to speak to these amendments, they may do so after the conclusion of all of the votes on H.R. 4810, which will begin almost immediately. These amendments, to the extent that they require rollcall votes, will be voted on tomorrow, with the exception of the Bingaman amendment. It has 15 minutes for debate tomorrow.

Mr. REID. If the Senator will yield, I think we agree that we have heard adequate explanation previous times about these amendments. The Senator is not soliciting more comments, is he?

Mr. GORTON. The Senator from Nevada states my position perfectly.

MARRIAGE TAX PENALTY RELIEF RECONCILIATION ACT OF 2000

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the hour of 6:15 p.m. having arrived, the Senate will resume consideration of H.R. 4810.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (H.R. 4810) to provide for reconciliation pursuant to section 103(a)(1) of the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2001.

AMENDMENT NO. 3876, WITHDRAWN

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent, on behalf of Senator DODD, that his amendment No. 3876 be withdrawn from consideration with respect to H.R. 4810.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

Mr. President, what is the regular order?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on the motion to waive by the Senator from Delaware.

AMENDMENTS NOS. 3868 THROUGH 3873, WITHDRAWN

Mr. STEVENS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to withdraw all six of my pending amendments.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. MOYNIHAN. I second the motion.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

There are 2 minutes of debate equally divided on the motion of the Senator from Delaware to waive.

Mr. REID. I couldn't hear the Chair. What did the Chair say?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There are 2 minutes of debate equally divided.

Mr. REID. But the amendments of the Senator from Alaska were withdrawn. Is that right?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Yes.

MODIFICATION OF MOTION

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, it was my intention when I moved to raise this point of order, the waiver for the Lott wraparound amendment, that it be a comprehensive waiver to this point of order for the different permutations of the earned-income tax proposals contained in both the majority and minority proposals. However, the majority leader subsequently offered an amendment that will be considered later.

I ask unanimous consent that the Lott amendment be included in the original waiver that I raised.

Specifically, the new motion is to waive all points of order under the budget process arising from the earned-income credit component in this pending tax—the amendment by Senator MOYNIHAN, the amendment offered by Senator LOTT, the House companion bill, any amendment between the Houses, and any conference reports thereon.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the modification?

Mr. REID. Reserving the right to object, Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Delaware has the floor.

Does he yield for a quorum call?

Mr. REID. Isn't his minute up?

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Mr. President, there is no quorum call.

I urge the adoption of the chairman's proposal.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The chairman has requested a modification of the motion.

Is there objection?

Mr. MOYNIHAN. As modified, sir.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the motion is so modified.

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, I ask that we vitiate the yeas and nays on the motion.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the substance of the motion, which is now a unanimous consent request?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

The revisions are so adopted.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. That is the spirit. Let's get on with it.

Mr. ROTH. All right.

MOTION TO COMMIT

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is now on the motion of the Senator from Wisconsin to commit the bill to the Finance Committee.

Who yields time?

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, the Senate is again considering legislation that will provide, at long last, relief from the marriage tax penalty.

The marriage tax penalty unfairly affects middle class married working couples. For example, a manufacturing plant worker makes $30,500 a year in salary. His wife is a tenured elementary school teacher, also bringing home $30,500 a year in salary. If they both file their taxes as singles they would pay 15 percent in income tax. But if they choose to live their lives in holy matrimony and file jointly, their combined income of $61,000 pushes them into a higher tax bracket of 28%. The result is a tax penalty of approximately $1,400.

The Republican marriage penalty relief bill eliminates this unfairness without shifting of the tax burden and without increasing taxes on any individual. Middle and low income families would benefit as much as earners with higher incomes.

According to the Congressional Budget Office, almost half of all married couples—21 million—are affected by the marriage penalty. Over 640,000 couples in Virginia are affected, according to one study.

Most of the tax relief under our plan goes to the middle class. The Congressional Joint Committee on Taxation's distribution analysis estimates that couples making under $75,000 annually will be the biggest winners. Additionally, the Joint Tax Committee estimates that couples earning between $20,000 and $30,000 will receive the biggest percentage reduction in their federal taxes out of any income level, with couples making between $30,000–$40,000 fairing almost as well.

This money belongs to the taxpayers. With a surplus of over $2 trillion, not including Social Security, all taxpayers are entitled to a return of their tax overpayment. In addition, the federal government, through tax policy, should not discourage either parent from staying at home with children. The government should not penalize a family simply because it takes both spouses working outside of the home to make ends meet. Being a stay at home parent should be rewarded.

The Congressional Budget Office estimates that taxpayers will send Uncle Sam almost $2 trillion in additional surplus taxes over the next ten years—after Congress has locked up 100% of Social Security surplus and paid down the public debt. This proposal gives back to the middle class families just 10 cents out of every surplus dollar they send to Washington. As I have said before, the Federal government should not put a price tag on the sacrament of marriage.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Mr. President, are there 2 minutes equally divided for the rest of the evening?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. That is correct.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Mr. President, I yield 1 minute to the Senator from Wisconsin.

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, this motion requires we do first things first. It says we should pass marriage penalty relief, but it also says we should substantially extend the solvency of Social Security and Medicare at the same time. By 2037, the Social Security trust fund will have consumed all of its assets. By 2025, the Medicare HI trust fund will have consumed all of its assets.

To fix Social Security and Medicare, we can make small changes now or big changes later. That is why President Clinton was right when he said "save Social Security first." It would be irresponsible to enact tax cuts this size before doing anything about Social Security and Medicare. Before the Senate passes tax cuts this size, the Finance Committee should report a plan to extend Social Security and Medicare. We should do first things first. That is what this motion requires.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time in opposition?

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, Senator FEINGOLD's motion to commit to the Finance Committee will not accomplish its stated purpose of Social Security and Medicare reform. The bill before the Senate is limited under the budget resolution to tax cuts. As chairman of the Finance Committee, I can tell you we are actively pursuing a real bipartisan Medicare reform package. Our efforts are not a political stunt, like this motion. On Social Security reform, everyone believes that it is a worthy goal but not one where there is currently a bipartisan consensus. I urge my colleagues to reject Senator FEINGOLD's motion.

Mr. FEINGOLD. I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There is a sufficient second.

The question is on agreeing to the motion. The clerk will call the roll.

AMENDMENT NO. 3849 WITHDRAWN

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to withdraw Senator BROWNBACK's amendment No. 3849.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from New York.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Democratic alternative, amendment No.

3863, and related amendments and motions be considered next, and that amendment No. 3863 be considered germane.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there an objection?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, what is the pending business?

MOTION TO WAIVE

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The pending business is the Roth motion to waive the Budget Act for the amendments that would strike the sunset provisions in the bill and the Democratic alternative.

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, the Finance Committee complied with the Byrd rule by terminating or sunseting the tax cuts in the bill generally on December 31, 2004. I note the Finance Committee Democratic alternative contained a similar sunset provision. The case before us that benefits a simple, broad-based tax policy change that reduces some of the tax burden placed on married couples, outweighs the implications of the Byrd rule.

Frankly, I think there are few more compelling cases for waiving the Byrd rule. Clearly, though, we differ on how to deliver it. Every Senator should place an importance on permanent marriage tax relief. I urge my colleagues to strike a blow for permanent marriage tax relief and support my motion to waive the Byrd rule.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New York.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. I regret that I have to disagree with my chairman. The Byrd rule has proved such an important measure to maintain budgetary discipline. It has brought about the present happy circumstances; and this is no time, in our view, to move back to earlier practices which were so devastating in their effect during the 1980s.

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, have the yeas and nays been ordered?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. They have not.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New York.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Mr. President, I yield back our time, and I raise a point of order that the Roth amendment No. 3864 to strike would worsen the Nation's fiscal position in years beyond those reconciled in the budget resolution and, thus, violates section 313(b)(1)(e) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The point of order is sustained and the amendment falls.

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, on amendment No. 3865, I yield back the time and I will make a point of order that it is in violation of the Byrd rule.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from New York yield back his time?

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Yes.

Mr. ROTH. Again, I make a point of order that this amendment is in violation of the Byrd rule of the Budget Act.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The point of order is sustained.

AMENDMENT NO. 3863

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Mr. President, I will exercise a brief 1 minute to describe the Democratic alternative, which is now to be offered.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New York is recognized.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Mr. President, this amendment can be described in one sentence. There are not many such, and I would hope the body might hear me: We propose that married couples be enabled to file jointly or singly, period, end of subject.

There are, sir, 65 marriage penalties in the Tax Code. This amendment abolishes them all. It would not allow the alternative minimum tax to take away the benefits of marriage penalty relief either. Whereas we have before us as a basic amendment that which would only take care of one marriage penalty and touch two others, here is the opportunity to get rid of them all.

In our tax system, no matter how large or small, whatever we do, we must see that the American public believes the tax system is fair. If there is a considerable judgment anywhere that something is not fair, then it ought to be corrected. Our amendment will do that, sir.

Thank you.

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, this amendment is the same one we considered in the Finance Committee. Supporters of this amendment claim it is preferable because it is more targeted, that it only benefits certain married families, and that it provides more comprehensive marriage penalty relief.

I do not shy away from the fact that our bill benefits virtually every American family. I welcome it. The Joint Committee on Taxation tells us that our bill will help over 45 million families. They also tell us the Democratic alternative will assist only 24 million.

Our bill also addresses the marriage penalty without creating a new penalty—a so-called homemaker penalty. With our approach, all married couples with the same income will be treated alike. This cannot be said of the alternative.

Finally, the Democratic alternative includes that income cap. If we are serious about addressing the inequity of this tax, we should not make this an issue of rich versus poor. Our bill is fair, it is comprehensive, and it is the right thing to do. I urge my colleagues to oppose this Democratic substitute.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. All time has expired.

Mr. ROTH. Have the yeas and nays been ordered?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. No.

Mr. ROTH. I so request.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

AMENDMENT NO. 3845

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The pending business is the amendment of the Senator from Wisconsin, Senator FEINGOLD, amendment No. 3845. There are 2 minutes equally divided between each side.

The Senator from Wisconsin.

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, this amendment cuts taxes for 7 of 10 taxpayers who take a standard deduction and ensures that many working Americans would not owe any income taxes at all. It would increase the standard deduction for individuals by $250, and would also increase the standard deduction for heads of households. It would continue to increase the standard deduction for married couples to twice that of an individual. It is paid for by striking the provision in the bill that benefits only taxpayers in the top quarter of the income distribution by expanding tax brackets.

My amendment better targets the marriage penalty relief and would simplify taxes and free many from paying income taxes altogether. The tradeoff is clear. Strike the new benefits for the best off quarter of taxpayers to fund benefits for 7 out of 10 taxpayers.

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, this amendment would strike the increase in the rate brackets of the underlying bill. As my colleagues may know, in dollar terms, the greatest source of marriage penalty for American families is the rate brackets. Under current law, for instance, the 15 percent rate bracket ends for singles at $26,250; it ends for couples at $43,850. Our bill has remedied that unfairness by phasing in a doubling of the married couples' rate bracket so that it ends at twice the ending point of the single's bracket.

While I agree that a further increase in the standard deduction is a good idea, I do not believe we should do it at the expense of the increase in the rate brackets. Accordingly, I must oppose this amendment.

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, I ask for the yeas and nays.

AMENDMENT NO. 3846

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. FITZGERALD). There are now 2 minutes evenly divided on the Feingold amendment No. 3846.

The Senator from Wisconsin.

Mr. FEINGOLD. The vital program known as COBRA helps ensure that people who lose their jobs do not lose their health insurance at the same time.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, can we have order in the Senate so we can hear what the Senator is saying?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senate will be in order. Senators will please take their conferences off the floor.

The Senator from Wisconsin.

Mr. FEINGOLD. The vital program known as COBRA helps ensure that people who lose their jobs do not lose their health insurance at the same time. My amendment would expand access to affordable health insurance through COBRA in two ways. First, it would expand COBRA to cover retirees whose employer-sponsored coverage is terminated.

Employers who promise retiree coverage and then drop it will have to allow early retirees to have COBRA-continued coverage until they qualify for Medicare.

Second, it would create a 25-percent tax credit for COBRA premiums generally. This credit will improve access to and affordability of health insurance for this very vulnerable group. The amendment pays for this health coverage by eliminating an inequitable tax loophole: the percentage depletion allowance for hard rock minerals mined on Federal public lands.

I thank the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time in opposition?

Mr. ROTH. I yield such time as the Senator from Nevada may use.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Nevada.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, this amendment would be devastating to one of the finest industries in America today: hard rock mining. It is a net exporter of gold especially. Tens of thousands of jobs will be wiped out. These are the highest paid blue-collar jobs in America.

This amendment is bad. We should do everything we can to defeat it. Therefore, Mr. President, I move that the pending amendment is not germane and raise a point of order that the amendment violates section 305(b)(2) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Wisconsin.

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, pursuant to section 904(c) of the Congressional Budget Act, I move to waive the applicable section of that act for consideration of my amendment, and I ask for the yeas and nays.

EXPLANATION FOR NOT VOTING

Mr. ROCKEFELLER. Mr. President, on vote No. 198, I was unavoidably detained. I apologize for that. I missed the first vote. Had I been present, I would have voted aye.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Iowa.

AMENDMENT NO. 3847

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, I call up my amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Amendment No. 3847 is pending. The Senator has 1 minute.

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, if we are for equal pay for women and men who do the same work, then this is the amendment to do it—the Paycheck Fairness Act, which was introduced under Senator DASCHLE's leadership. It provides stronger remedies in wage discrimination cases and provides resources to educate employers on wage discrimination. It ensures that women cannot be retaliated against for sharing their pay information with fellow employees.

It is time to stop giving America's women lipservice for equal pay for equal work, but to actually do something to make it happen. That is what this amendment does. I urge its adoption.

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, as we discuss the tax code and the issue of fairness for families, Senator HARKIN has offered an important amendment to address an issue of fairness faced by millions of working women and their families. Senator HARKIN and I have worked hard to craft legislation that addresses the wage gap between men and women in this country. This amendment is modeled after my bill, S. 74, the Paycheck Fairness Act. In an era characterized by economic opportunity, it is time for the Senate to consider how America's prosperity can be broadly and fairly shared.

While much has changed over the past 35 years, one thing has remained the same: the wage gap between men and women. When President Kennedy signed the Equal Pay Act in 1963, a woman earned only 59 cents for every dollar earned by a man. This landmark bill reduced the pay gap and helped women make great strides to narrow the pay gap. Nonetheless, 35 years later, women, on average, continue to earn only 73 cents for every dollar earned by a man. This disparity is patently unfair. The time has come to improve and strengthen President Kennedy's landmark law.

Some have suggested that the pay gap is insignificant, but working women know better. Even after accounting for differences in education and the amount of time in the workforce, a woman's pay still lags far behind the pay of a man doing the same work. This persistent wage gap doesn't shortchange just women. It shortchanges families. The wage gap causes the average American working family to lose more than $4000 a year. In fact, it is women's salaries that often bring children and families out of poverty. And families suffer more in South Dakota than in most states because we have the highest percentage in the nation of working mothers with children under the age of 6. These mothers deserve equal pay for equal work.

To address this serious problem, the Paycheck Fairness Act uses a simple approach: we believe that the pay gap will decrease if women and men have more information about it; we believe the pay gap will decrease if we enable women to pursue meaningful suits against employers that have discriminatory practices; and we believe that the pay gap will decrease if employers are educated and rewarded for doing their part to end wage discrimination.

My bill is a modest but needed step in the fight against wage discrimination. The simple fact remains—working families face the problem of wage discrimination every day and lose billions of dollars in wages because of it. Instead of the risky tax scheme the Senate is considering today, we should give women and American families a much needed raise. We should pass the Harkin amendment today and continue to work towards the day when the pay gap is eliminated.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Delaware.

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, I yield my time to the Senator from Oklahoma.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Oklahoma.

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, this amendment that my colleague from Iowa has offered amends the Fair Labor Standards Act but it has never had a hearing before the Labor Committee. It has never been marked up by the Labor Committee. It is legislation that would make the trial lawyers very happy because it authorizes unlimited punitive and compensatory damages for discrimination cases brought under the Equal Pay Act. In fact, it would authorize remedies not available in any title VII discrimination case or Americans with Disabilities Act case because damages under those statutes are capped. It would also make it easier for trial lawyers to create class action lawsuits. It is bad legislation and it does not belong on this bill. I encourage my colleagues to support the point of order and reject the amendment.

Mr. President, I make a point of order that the amendment offered by my colleague from Iowa is not germane to the underlying bill and would, therefore, result in a section 305(b)(2) point of order under the Budget Act. I, therefore, raise a point of order against the amendment pursuant to section 305(b)(2) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Iowa.

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, pursuant to section 904 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, I move to waive the applicable sections of that act for the consideration of the pending amendment, and I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. On this vote, the yeas are 45, the nays are 53. Three-fifths of the Senators duly chosen and sworn not having voted in the affirmative, the motion is rejected. The amendment would add new subject matter to the bill and is therefore not germane. The point of order is sustained and the amendment falls.

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. CRAIG. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Nevada is recognized.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask the two managers to yield to the Senator from Louisiana for a unanimous consent request.

AMENDMENT NO. 3888

Ms. LANDRIEU. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the amendment I send to the desk be in order and that it take the place of a Dodd amendment that was removed from the list.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

(5) DEFINITION OF CHILD WITH SPECIAL NEEDS.—Section 23(d)(3) of such Code (defining child with special needs) is amended to read as follows:

(e) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 2000.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, if I may have the attention of the Members, these 10-minute votes have been going much closer to 15, 16, or 17 minutes. At this late hour, I ask the Senators to stay in the Chamber or someplace nearby. We are having to vote long periods of time with people coming from offices and other places. We can do better and save a lot of time if we can vote within the 10-minute period.

AMENDMENT NO. 3848

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on the Kennedy amendment No. 3848.

The Senator from Massachusetts is recognized.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, we are talking about relief from the so-called marriage penalty in the Tax Code. But low-income married parents face a more serious marriage penalty under Medicaid. Under the current law, parents who are married lose their health coverage under Medicaid in some 14 States. In other States, they lose their health coverage under Medicaid if they work more than 100 hours a month. That is wrong.

Our answer to this problem is to provide States with the resources and authority to expand S-CHIP and Medicaid to the parents of the children who are covered under these programs. It is a sensible system. The President has paid for it in his budget. It provides needed relief from the health marriage and work penalty under Medicaid. I urge my colleagues to support it.

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, the FamilyCare initiative prematurely doubles the size and scope of the new State Children’s Health Insurance Program. S-CHIP has been enrolling children for less than 3 years—and it has not reached its goals in terms of covering eligible children. Let us make sure the S-CHIP model works before we expand it so dramatically.

In fact, Mr. President, it is worth noting that if the states want to extend coverage to parents, they may do so now under Medicaid waivers, or even under S-CHIP, if that coverage is “cost-effective”.

In addition to program concerns, FamilyCare raises a fundamental question. Should parenthood be the driving factor in terms of eligibility for health insurance coverage? FamilyCare rewards parenthood and disadvantages working poor individuals who decide to postpone having families until they are better able to afford to raise a child.

Finally, this new initiative is extremely costly. We are talking about creating a new program with a cost of $50 billion over ten years—all without holding hearings on the bill and without any discussion of priorities.

Mr. President, I make a point of order that the Kennedy amendment is neither germane nor relevant to the reconciliation bill, it is in violation of 305(b)(2) of the Budget Act.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, pursuant to section 904 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, I move to waive the applicable sections of that act for the consideration of the pending amendment, and I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. On this vote the yeas are 51, and the nays are 47. Three-fifths of the Senators present and voting, not having voted in the affirmative, the motion to waive the Budget Act is not agreed to. The amendment would add new subject matter to the bill and is therefore not germane. The point of order is sustained. The amendment falls.

Mr. ROTH. I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. STEVENS. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 3851 TO AMENDMENT NO. 3850

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the Bond second-degree amendment to the Durbin amendment.

The Senator from Missouri.

Mr. BOND. Mr. President, it is not fair that a self-employed person cannot deduct 100 percent of health care costs when a large business can. A self-employed person is denied that deductibility, even though we have worked since 1995 when this body accepted my amendment at that time to increase the deductibility of insurance costs for the self-employed. Still, only 60 percent of the health insurance cost is deductible by the self-employed.

I have talked to a lot of these people. They cannot wait until 2003 when they will get 100-percent deductibility. My amendment says there is 100-percent deductibility this year and makes sure that the 5 million Americans in households headed by self-employed can get health care coverage, including 1.3 million children.

It also corrects a disparity in current law which says if a self-employed person is eligible for health coverage from another plan, a second job, or a spouse's plan, they cannot deduct. This says you can deduct so long as you do not participate in another health care plan.

I thank my colleagues on both sides and my colleague from Illinois.

I urge this body to accept the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Illinois.

Mr. DURBIN. The Senator from Missouri has taken a very good amendment and made it even better. I hope Members will join in supporting the second-degree amendment by Senator BOND to my amendment, for the full deductibility of the health insurance premiums for the self-employed. I hope you will resist efforts, if we are successful, to remove this amendment at a later time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the second-degree amendment.

The amendment (No. 3851) was agreed to.

Mr. BOND. I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment, as amended.

The amendment (No. 3850), as amended, was agreed to.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. BOND. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 3852

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Illinois.

Mr. DURBIN. I have another amendment at the desk, which if I am not mistaken, is next in order on the list for consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on amendment 3852.

The Senator from Illinois.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, there are 44 million Americans without health insurance. Among uninsured workers, most of them work for small businesses. This amendment creates a tax credit for small businesses which will offer health insurance for their employees. The tax credits especially favor those businesses which have not offered it in the past. I think it is a good investment to help small businesses take care of their No. 1 concern: health insurance for the owners of the business, health insurance for the employees of the small business.

I urge my colleagues in the Senate to support this amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Oklahoma.

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, I look at my colleague's amendment, and he says for health care we will make it a tax credit. That means it is more valuable than wages; that means it is more valuable than any other expenditure for an employer.

We passed several tax provisions to encourage employers and individuals to buy health care. We passed that with the Patients' Bill of Rights. We passed it with minimum wage. The amendment of my colleague from Illinois, in my opinion, is misdirected and very expensive. We have not had a hearing in the Finance Committee. I think it happens to be bad policy. It says for this type of expenditure, it is more important than any other that an employer would make.

I make a budget point of order under section 305 that it is in violation of the Budget Act.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, pursuant to section 904 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, I move to waive the applicable sections of the act for consideration of the pending bill, and I seek the yeas and nays.

AMENDMENT NO. 3853

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The next amendment is amendment No. 3853 offered by the Senator from Virginia, Mr. ROBB.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, will the Senator withhold for a moment? It is my understanding this is going to be the last vote tonight, is that correct, I ask the Chairman?

Mr. ROTH. Yes, that is correct.

Mr. REID. There are going to be some other votes that do not require rollcalls after this?

Mr. ROTH. Yes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Virginia is recognized.

Mr. ROBB. Mr. President, recognizing this is the last rollcall vote of the evening, I will not take the time of this Chamber. It is a very simple amendment. A majority of this body has already gone on record saying that we will make certain we pass a prescription drug benefit for seniors before we pass all of these other tax cuts. We passed a major tax cut on Friday. We are proposing to pass tomorrow morning another major tax cut.

All this amendment says is, before these tax cuts go into effect, we will have actually delivered on the promise to provide a prescription drug benefit.

I hope it will be the pleasure of this Senate to adopt this amendment and keep the faith with our seniors.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Delaware.

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, this is an amendment that undermines, not advances, progress on two important issues. Its only effect will be to stop tax cuts for families while not advancing by a day Medicare reform that should include a prescription drug benefit. If anything, it slows down Medicare reform by politicizing the issue.

Prescription drugs should not be pitted against family tax cuts. We can and should be for both. The budget surplus allows for both. The budget passed by Congress allows for both and both are necessary policies, but they must first each be correctly thought through.

Now is the time to pass marriage tax relief, an issue on which we have been working for years. Now is the time to be working together on Medicare reform, as we are in the Finance Committee. Working together we can succeed on both policies. Seeking division we will fail on each. Notwithstanding any policy objections, the pending amendment offered by the Senator from Virginia is not germane to the underlying bill and would, therefore, result in a section 305(b)(2) point of order under the Budget Act. Therefore, I raise a point of order against the amendment pursuant to section 305(b)(2) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974.

Mr. ROBB. Mr. President, pursuant to section 904 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, I move to waive the applicable sections of that act for the consideration of the pending amendment, and I ask for the yeas and nays.

NOT VOTING—1

The PRESIDING OFFICER. On this vote, the yeas are 49, the nays are 50. Three-fifths of the Senators duly chosen and sworn not having voted in the affirmative, the motion is rejected. The amendment makes provisions of this act contingent upon enactment of other legislation. Therefore, it is non-germane. The point of order is sustained and the amendment falls.

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

AMENDMENTS NOS. 3854, 3855, 3859, 3860, 3877, AND 3888

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the following amendments be agreed to en bloc, the motions to reconsider be laid upon the table, and any statements relating to the amendments be printed in the RECORD. The amendments are the following: Nos. 3854, 3855, 3859, 3860, 3877, and 3888.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendments (Nos. 3854, 3855, 3859, 3860, 3877, and 3888) were agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 3859

Mr. CLELAND. Mr. President, The Cleland Savings Bond Tax-Exclusion for Long-Term Care Services Amendment would exclude United States savings bond income from being taxed if used to pay for long-term health care expenses. Current law provides an income exclusion for savings bond income used to pay for qualified higher education expenses. This amendment expands the tax code section 135 to allow the savings bond income exclusion for eligible long-term care expenses as well. This measure will assist individuals struggling to accommodate costs associated with many chronic medical conditions and the aging process. A staggering 5.8 million Americans are afflicted with the financial burdens of long-term care.

This legislation will assist families by:

Providing a tax exclusion for savings bonds used to pay for long-term care;

Allowing families to use their savings bond assets to face the dual challenge of paying for long-term care services and higher education expenses.

Thank you and I urge you to support this proposal to provide tax relief to Americans burdened by the financial constraints of providing long-term care and higher education expenses. I yield the floor.

AMENDMENT NO. 3860

Mr. CLELAND. Mr. President, we have on the books today a special enhanced tax deduction for individuals and corporations which donate computers to our nation's elementary and secondary schools. This deduction—which helps to keep America on the cutting-edge in technology—is scheduled to expire at the end of the year. The amendment I am offering is twofold: it would extend this tax deduction for five years and it would expand it to include computer donations to public libraries and non-profit and governmental community centers as well.

My amendment will help to close the “digital divide” which exists in this country by providing a viable alternative for Americans who are being left behind because they do not have access in their homes to computer and Internet use. We know, for example, that Americans earning less than $20,000 who use the Internet outside the home are twice as likely to get their access through a public library or community center. And Americans who are not in the labor force, such as retirees or homemakers, are twice as likely to use public libraries for on-line access.

I urge my colleagues to support this amendment. It would extend a tax deduction which has proved invaluable in boosting efforts by individuals and companies to donate computer equipment and web access to our Nation's schools. And it will help to keep this Nation a leader in the global economy by helping to close the gap between the technological haves and the have nots.

AMENDMENTS NOS. 3856, 3857, 3861, 3862, 3866, 3867, 3876, 3879, 3880, AND 3882 WITHDRAWN

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, I further ask unanimous consent that the following amendments be withdrawn: Nos. 3856, 3857, 3861, 3862, 3866, 3867, 3876, 3879, 3880, and 3882.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Senators DASCHLE and JOHNSON be added as cosponsors of the Dorgan amendment No. 3877.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Senator JOHNSON be added as a cosponsor of the Moynihan amendment No. 3863.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, I want to make a few comments about the reconciliation bill before us containing marriage penalty tax relief.

This is an issue about fairness, Mr. President for around thirty years our Tax Code has been penalizing people just because they happen to be married. This is a perfect example of how broken our Tax Code is. Just like the earnings limitation that discriminated against older Americans, this unfair Tax needs to be dumped. It took a Republican-led Congress to repeal the Social Security earnings limit.

And now, it's the same Republican-led Congress that's talking the lead in repealing the marriage penalty tax. We tried it a couple of months ago, but we were blocked by the Democratic side from passing the bill. Now, we're back under reconciliation instructions that prevent the other side from gridlocking the Senate.

Of course, the minority side wants you to believe they're all for getting rid of the marriage penalty tax. Of course, they had control of the Congress for decades and never once tried to repeal it.

What's worse, now they're using the old bait-and-switch routine. They say they're for this tax relief, but not until Social Security and Medicare are fixed.

We all know neither the administration nor the Democratic side have comprehensive proposals to fix Social Security and Medicare, so this is just a delaying tactic to kill the bill so, they say they're for marriage penalty relief—but only sometime in the unknown future. That's Washington D.C. double-talk.

Delaying this tax relief really means no tax relief at all.

Mr. President, we've heard other misleading arguments that under the majority bill, married couples would get a tax cut, but single mothers with kids would not get one. However, an important part of our bill repeals the alternative minimum tax for over ten million people. Many of those helped will be single mothers. But, guess what's even more interesting? The Democrat alternative bill is the bill that doesn't help single mothers at all.

In addition, it's important to note that the Democrat alternative discriminates against stay-at-home moms. That's right, the Democrat proposal only helps two earner couples. So, it not only doesn't help those single mothers the other side was crying crocodile tears over—it hurts those families where one parent decides to stay at home with the children.

I hope all of you stay-at-home parents out there listening understand what the Democratic alternative will do to them.

Mr. President, we're going to pass this tax relief measure and send it to President Clinton.

This begs the question—where is the Clinton-Gore administration on providing this tax relief to working Americans? Well, a few weeks ago, the administration offered to accept marriage penalty tax relief for a Medicare prescription drug benefit. This is the same tax relief bill the Clinton-Gore administration and Democrats have been attacking and deriding for months. Now, they're saying, forget all those bad things we said, we're ready to deal.

This just shows the Clinton-Gore administration either doesn't have any principles, or they're willing to trade them to the highest bidder.

Of course, for years this administration has been saying they would work with Congress to save social security and medicare. But, here we are near the end of this administration, and it has no comprehensive plan to save either program. They're reduced to trying to salvage a legacy by creating a hugely expensive entitlement program that could end up draining the hard-earned surplus. This is a surplus earned by the American people, not the Government, who wants to spend it all. Interestingly, a recent poll said that 60 percent of Americans credit American workers and businesses for our successful economy. Only 39 percent credit the administration, who would like you to believe they did it all.

I think the American people are finally figuring out the Clinton-Gore charade.

We're going to see more and more of these con-games as the Year winds down, and this tired, worn-out administration desperately tries to reshape its disappointing place in history.

Mr. President, the time for delay is over. The time for gridlock is over. Now is the time to pass this important tax relief measure, and I urge the members of this body to come together and do what's right, by passing this legislation.

Ms. SNOWE. Mr. President, I rise in strong support of H.R. 4810—legislation that would dramatically reduce one of the most insidious aspects of the tax code: the marriage penalty.

As my colleagues are aware, there are several primary causes of the "marriage penalty" within the tax code, including different tax rate schedules and different standard deductions for joint filers versus single filers.

In terms of the impact of these differing tax provisions, the marriage penalty is most pronounced for two-earner couples in which the husband and wife have nearly equal incomes. While this may not have been as noticeable in society 30 or 40 years ago, the demographic changes that have occurred since the 1960s—with more married women entering the workforce to help support their families—has led to a significant increase in the share of couples who suffer from the marriage penalty.

Make no mistake, the impact of the marriage penalty is severe. According to the Congressional Budget Office (CBO), 42% of married couples incur marriage penalties that average nearly $1,400.

When measured by income category, fully 12% of couples with incomes below $20,000 incurred a marriage penalty in 1996; 44% of couples with incomes of $20,000 to $50,000; and 55% of couples with incomes above $50,000.

In addition, according to CBO, empirical evidence suggests that the marriage penalty may affect work patterns, particularly for a couple's second earner. Specifically, because filing a joint return often imposes a substantially higher tax rate on a couple's second earner, the higher rate reduces the second earner's after-tax wage and may cause that individual to work fewer hours or not at all. As a result, economic efficiency is harmed in the overall economy.

Furthermore, while I would hope that the tax code would not be a factor in a couple's decision to marry or stay single, the simple fact is that a couple's tax status could worsen if married and could, therefore, impact a couple's decision to marry. Therefore, we should eliminate this potential barrier to marriage and ensure that couples make one of life's biggest decisions based on their values and beliefs—not on the federal tax code.

As a strong opponent of the marriage penalty, I am an original cosponsor of S. 15, legislation introduced by Senator

HUTCHISON that eliminates the marriage penalty through a proposal known as "income splitting." Under this approach, a married couple would add up all their income and then split it in half. Each spouse would then file as a single individual and pay taxes on his or her half of the total income, with exemptions, deductions and credits being split evenly between the two spouses.

Last year, to advance this legislation or any other proposal that would provide marriage penalty relief, I offered an amendment during the markup of the FY 2000 budget resolution that ensured a significant reduction in—or the outright elimination of—the marriage penalty would be a central component of any tax cut package adopted during last year's reconciliation process.

Later that summer, in accordance with my budget amendment, the $792 billion tax cut reconciliation package that was passed by the Senate included such relief, as did the final House-Senate conference report. However, just as President Clinton vetoed the tax bill in 1995 that included marriage penalty relief, last year's tax bill was vetoed as well.

In an effort to address this issue outside a broader tax package, the House of Representatives passed legislation earlier this year—by a bipartisan vote of 268 to 158—that would reduce the marriage penalty. The Senate considered its version of the legislation in April, but a Democratic filibuster prevented us from bringing the bill to a final vote. Today, we are considering nearly identical legislation yet again, but—thanks to the budget reconciliation process—we are assured it will come to a final vote.

Mr. President, H.R. 4810 would dramatically reduce the marriage penalty by doubling the standard deduction for married couples relative to single filers; expanding the 15 percent and 28 percent income tax brackets for married couples to twice the size of the corresponding tax brackets for single filers; increasing the phase-out range of the Earned Income Credit for couples filing joint returns; and permanently exempting family tax credits from the individual Alternative Minimum Tax.

I am especially pleased that the legislation does not penalize families in which a spouse foregoes an income to raise children. Unfortunately, the proposal that is being espoused by the minority would do just that.

Specifically, by allowing married couples to file their taxes as if they were single, the substitute proposal would provide relief only to families in which both spouses have taxable incomes. As a result, if a spouse has no earned income by virtue of the fact that he or she is working at home to raise the family's children—but doesn't actually earn a salary for each of the myriad of tasks this profession entails—the couple would receive none of the benefits of the larger tax brackets or standard deduction that a single taxpayer currently receives because only one-half of the couple has an income to report.

I believe a spouse's decision to work outside the home and utilize daycare, or work at home to raise children, should be made with only the best interests of the family in mind—not the tax code. We should not take a significant step to eliminate the marriage penalty only to replace it with a "homemaker penalty"—and I'm pleased that H.R. 4810 ensures that the benefits it provides can be used by all couples, including those in which a spouse foregoes an income to raise a family.

It is my hope that, by considering this package of marriage penalty relief proposals as a stand-alone bill—and not as part of a broader, and potentially controversial, tax cut package—we will not only pass this legislation with strong bipartisan support, but ultimately send a bill to the President that he will sign for the benefit of all married couples.

The bottom line is that we should not condone or accept a tax code that penalizes married couples or discourages marriage, and this bill provides the Senate with the opportunity to correct this inequity in a straightforward manner.

Ultimately, the bill we are considering is not simply about providing the American people with a reasonable and rational tax cut—rather, it is about correcting a gross discrepancy in the tax code that unfairly impacts married couples. Accordingly, even though individual members of this body disagree on a wide variety of tax cuts policies, I would hope we would all agree that the act of marriage should not be penalized by the Internal Revenue Code—and would support S. 4810 accordingly.

Mr. CRAPO. Mr. President, I rise today to express my strong support for this pro-family, pro-economic growth legislation. It is unfortunate that government continues to burden its citizens with excessive and unfair taxation. Indeed, America's income tax system reduces freedom and economic growth. An embarrassing example of this inequity is the marriage penalty—essentially, a quirk in the income tax code that causes some married couples to be penalized and taxed at higher rates, simply because they marry.

The treatment of marriage provides an important example of why we need to support equity in the tax code. Consider that two couples who are exactly the same—except one is married and the other couple is not. A peculiar feature in our tax code is that these two couples may pay different taxes. Simply put, when a man and woman get married, their tax liability can rise and the federal government can take more of the married couple's money. This is a fundamental problem in the tax code. I believe in fairness and simplicity when it comes to taxes. A married couple should not pay more taxes than an unmarried couple with the same total income. This is poor policy.

Marriage neutrality is the principle that when two people get married, their total bill should not change. Unfortunately, the U.S. income tax is not marriage neutral. According to the Congressional Budget Office, almost half of all married couples—22 million—suffered from the marriage penalty last year. In my home state of Idaho, 129,710 couples were adversely affected because of this system. These married couples on average paid an extra $1,500 in income tax. Moreover, as women are working hard to achieve salary equity, it is unfortunate that as women approach income levels similar to their husbands, the marriage penalty increasingly kicks in and the federal government simply takes their money back.

Under this bill, beginning next year, Congress will restore marriage neutrality to the code. The Marriage Tax Penalty Relief Reconciliation Act will increase the standard deduction for married couples to approximately $8,800. This is twice the basic standard deduction for a single tax filer. The bill will also widen the 15 percent and 28 percent income tax brackets for married couples filing a joint return to twice the size of the corresponding rate brackets of single individuals. This is a commonsense solution to ending any disparity for married couples who find they are paying a penalty. Fortunately for them, the rules under which we are debating the Marriage Tax Penalty Relief Reconciliation Act will also shield senators from excess delay and we will have an up-or-down vote. True to the bill's name, we are here to reconcile an unfair tax provision that is counterproductive to our goal of equity and fairness.

Today, we have finally put an end to expensive entitlements and the reckless fiscal behavior that created large deficits in the 1970s, 1980s, and early 1990s. Indeed, the surging U.S. economy has produced an unprecedented tidal wave of federal tax receipts. This year, the country will see a $76 billion dollar surplus—over the next ten years the non-social security surplus is estimated at $1.9 trillion. This raises the question: when will the government start returning money to the people? With these surpluses there is no doubt that there is room for marriage tax relief and additional debt reduction. Therefore, we should seize this opportunity to return these surplus dollars, before the bureaucrats in town start spending them. If we do not, an opportunity to restore horizontal equity to the tax code will be lost, because surpluses—like we have today—will certainly invite an irresponsible flurry of new spending.

Americans have historically and consistently expressed their discontent for excessive and unfair taxation. I have stacks of letters in my office from honest and hard-working Idahoans who rightfully want to know where their tax cut is. Let us take this opportunity to return something to those American families who are married and working to support families and loved ones. Let us make good on our constituent promise by voting to eliminate the marriage tax penalty and let us give the President an opportunity to honor his State of the Union promise by signing this bill.

The federal tax code remains intrusive, overly complicated, and excessively burdensome. As part of my effort to bring tax relief to the American people, I have co-sponsored or voted for legislation to reduce the death tax, gas tax, beer tax, and telephone excise tax. Today, we have an opportunity to vote for a bill that I hope will have broad bipartisan support. Senators should be mindful of the opportunity to provide needed relief to married couples. Death and taxes are certainties in life. Let us vote to ensure that fairness is too. I urge my colleagues to support repeal of the marriage tax penalty. It is the right thing to do.

Mr. KYL. Mr. President, it was about two-and-a-half years ago that I came to the Senate floor to call on the Senate to repeal two of the most egregious and unfair taxes imposed by the nation's Tax Code: the steep taxes imposed on people when they get married and when they die. The good news is, for the second time in two years, the Senate has cleared legislation to repeal the death tax. And this week, for the third time, we will clear a measure to repeal the marriage penalty.

In 1995, Congress passed legislation that would have provided a tax credit to married couples to offset this penalty somewhat. President Clinton vetoed that bill.

In 1999, Congress again approved a measure to provide married couples with some relief. Last year's bill would have set the standard deduction for couples at twice the deduction allowed for singles. It would also have set the lowest income-tax bracket for married couples at twice that allowed for single taxpayers. President Clinton vetoed that measure last September.

According to the nonpartisan Tax Foundation, the total tax burden borne by American taxpayers dipped slightly in 1998. That is the good news. The bad news is that Americans still spent more on federal taxes than on any of the other major items in their household budgets. For the median-income, two-earner family, federal taxes still amounted to 39 percent of the family budget—more than what they spent on food, housing, and medical care combined. One of the reasons why they paid so much is the continuation of the marriage penalty that exists in the Nation's tax code.

According to the Congressional Budget Office, nearly half of all married taxpayers—about 21 million couples—filing a joint return paid a higher tax than they would have if each spouse had been allowed to file as a single taxpayer.

The marriage penalty hits the working poor particularly hard. Two-earner families making less than $20,000 often must devote a full eight percent of their income to pay the marriage penalty. Eight percent is an extraordinary amount for couples that count on every dollar to make ends meet.

Let me stop here and give an example of the marriage penalty at work. In this example, the penalty comes about because workers filing as single taxpayers get a higher standard deduction, and because income-tax bracket thresholds for married couples are lower than the threshold for singles. Consider a married couple in which each spouse earns about $30,000 a year. They would have paid $7,655 in federal income taxes last year. By comparison, two individuals earning the same amount, but filing single returns, would have paid only $6,892 between the two of them. That is a marriage penalty of $763.

The average penalty—average penalty—paid by couples is even higher than that—about $1,400 a year, according to the Congressional Budget Office. Think what families could do with an extra $1,400. They could pay for three or four months of day care if they choose to send a child outside the home—or make it easier for one parent to stay at home to take care of the children, if that is what they decide is best for them. They could make four or five payments on their car or minivan. They could pay their utility bill for nine months.

The bill before us is the most comprehensive effort yet to eliminate the marriage penalty. It would expand the standard deduction for married couples filing jointly; widen the tax brackets for such couples; and increase the income phase-outs for the earned income credit.

Unlike President Clinton's so-called relief bill, the plan Chairman ROTH brings to us today does not neglect married couples who choose to have one parent stay at home to raise the children. It gives them relief, and, in so doing, it lets them know we value the choice they have made to stay home and raise a family.

Unlike the Clinton plan, which would preserve the penalty for many couples, our plan would eliminate the marriage penalty in its entirety. Sure, that means the revenue loss associated with this legislation is greater than the President proposed, but the smaller cost of providing relief under the Clinton plan is also indicative of just how little it would do to solve the problem. We should not be stingy when attempting to ensure fairness in the tax code.

Passage of this legislation would continue the good progress we have made this year in making the tax code fairer. First, we passed the measure to repeal the Social Security earnings limitation, a tax that has unfairly penalized seniors for more than 60 years, simply because they wanted to earn some extra income to supplement their monthly retirement checks. That measure is now law.

Last week, we voted to eliminate the death tax, which unfairly taxes people simply because they die. We voted to substitute a capital-gains tax so that inherited assets are taxed at the appropriate time—when they are sold, and when income is actually realized.

Hopefully, the marriage-penalty repeal bill, like the death-tax repeal, will pass with a strong, bipartisan majority, and President Clinton will rethink his opposition and sign it when it reaches his desk.

We can debate the merits of any number of changes in the tax code: whether a flat tax is preferable to a sales tax; whether tax rates should be reduced across the board; or whether we should make the tax code more conducive to savings and investment. There are legitimate points to be made on both sides.

But when it comes to fairness, we need to do what is right. The marriage penalty, like the earnings limit and the death tax, is wrong, it is unfair, and it is time to put it to rest. I urge support for the marriage-penalty repeal bill.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, today the Senate will consider legislation to address the anomaly in the tax code known as the marriage penalty. The Senate will consider this legislation in light of recent budget projections that show a windfall in federal budget surpluses over the next ten years, and under expedited rules that will almost guarantee passage of some form of marriage penalty relief.

First, I am, as are many other Senators, concerned about the so-called marriage penalty. I can think of no reason why a married couple should have a higher tax liability simply because they have chosen to make a lifelong commitment together through the sacred bond of marriage. I doubt that any Senator would refute the assertion that the promotion of marriage and family stability benefits the nation at large. Indeed, the marriage bond as recognized in the Judaeo-Christian tradition, as well as in the legal codes of the world's most advanced societies, is a cornerstone on which societies build their morals and values. The Bible tells us in 1 Corinthians 7 to "... let every man have his own wife, and let every woman have her own husband. Let the husband render unto the wife due benevolence: and likewise also the wife unto the husband. The wife hath not power of her own body, but the husband: and likewise also the husband hath not power of his own body, but the wife. Defraud ye not one the other, except it be with consent for a time, that ye may give yourselves to fasting and prayer; and come together again, that Satan tempt you not for your incontinency." The institution of marriage was prized in the Bible, and likewise, by the ancient world in Rome, and more particularly, in Greece. "There is nothing nobler or more admirable than when two people who see eye to eye keep house as man and wife, confounding their enemies and delighting their friends," wrote Homer in The Odyssey (9th Century BC).

Our federal government has no official policy on marriage with respect to taxing or subsidizing the institution. Still, what can only be referred to as a quirk in the tax code causes some married couples to pay higher taxes than they would if they were single. I have always believed that the federal income tax code should, at the very least, be marriage neutral. Unfortunately, marriage neutrality has proven to be an elusive goal. The reason is that marriage neutrality is incompatible with a progressive tax system that allows for joint tax returns. When two single taxpayers are married, their incomes increase and can, in some cases, push the couple into a higher tax bracket than when they filed as separate singles. The opposite can also happen, where married couples find themselves in a lower tax bracket than when they were single.

Both the Republican and Democratic proposals before the Senate today attempt to balance the competing interests of progressive taxation, joint tax returns, and marriage neutrality in the best way possible. The Republican proposal, for example, reduces the marginal tax rates for married couples so that recently married couples would not be bumped up into a higher tax bracket. This would effectively eliminate the marriage penalty relating to marginal tax rates. The trade-off is that marriage bonuses, which occur when a married couple pay less in taxes than they would if they filed as two single taxpayers, would be increased.

While some Senators would argue that the Republican proposal is a tax giveaway to households that already receive favorable tax treatment because of marriage, marriage bonuses provide increased assistance for families who make the difficult choice to forgo a second income or career and for one parent to stay at home with their children. Families in this situation ought to be extended tax incentives just the same as those families with a limited income and a child in the child care system. Raising children to be responsible, caring, law-abiding adults is one of the most important tasks that any of us will ever undertake. As we can see daily from the steady stream of frightening newspaper headlines on schoolyard shootings and gang activities, it is also one of the hardest. The fabric of our society, the warp of family closeness and the woof of community, is torn and frayed. If a family makes the increasingly difficult choice to allow one parent to stay at home and focus on child rearing, then, frankly, I think we ought to make it easier for them to do so. We certainly should not make it harder, or more financially punitive! It is too important for the continued strength of our society. I am pleased that this bill takes this important step of recognizing the role of the stay-at-home parent by providing these families with a small amount of relief to assist with the costs of raising a child.

The Democratic proposal also attempts to balance the goals of joint tax entities and progressive taxation with marriage neutrality. This proposal would allow married couples to calculate their income tax as either a married couple or as two singles, depending on which method would be less costly. The effect of this approach would be the elimination for eligible couples of all sixty-five marriage penalty provisions in the tax code, while maintaining the existing marriage bonuses.

Both proposals provide marriage penalty relief to families of all income levels. In the Republican proposal, lower-income families who receive the earned income tax credit would benefit from marriage penalty relief, while the elimination of the marriage penalty caused by the standard deduction would benefit middle-income households. The Democratic proposal, however, is more targeted to lower- and middle-income households because the marriage penalty relief is phased out for couples with an income above $150,000 per year.

But, make no mistake, both proposals, even in the glow of recent surplus projections, would be extremely expensive. The Republican proposal would cost $248 billion over ten years, and $39 billion per year thereafter. The Democratic proposal is slightly less expensive because of the income cap, but would still cost $54.2 billion over five years. My concern is not so much the cost of these proposals, because I think that the cost would be justified by the marriage incentives provided in each, but that marriage penalty relief could open the floodgates to other, more massive tax cuts. Most Senators are aware that the Office of Management and Budget announced during the week of June 26 that projected budget surpluses would exceed estimates made just four months ago by $1.3 trillion, and the Congressional Budget Office is close to releasing its projections that are likely to predict similar results. These new projections raise the estimate of surpluses that will be collected by the government over the next ten years (excluding Social Security) to $1.9 trillion, and, consequently, have fanned the furor for massive tax cuts.

These surplus projections can have an intoxicating effect, so much so that massive tax cuts seem suddenly affordable. What is forgotten is the fact that these surplus projections are highly volatile, and subject to dramatic change. Just since last year, these ten-year surplus projections have increased by almost $2 trillion. Some of that increase stemmed from an increase in tax revenues from the strong economy, but most resulted from simple changes in expectations about how well the economy would perform five and ten years out into the future. These expectations could easily change in the next few years so that, just as quickly as these surpluses appeared, they could disappear.

I think that it is unfortunate that higher-than-expected surpluses have paved the way for the enactment of massive tax cuts. The repeal of the estate tax, for example, which was recently passed by this body, if enacted into law, would cost $105 billion over ten years, and then $50 billion per year thereafter. No hearings were held on this proposal in the Senate. Little consideration was given to an alternative plan that would have been less costly and would have more expeditiously addressed the plight of farmers and small businesses by eliminating most from estate tax rolls. Little, if any, consideration was given to the negative effect that repealing the estate tax would have on charitable contributions, which are deductible from the gross value of an estate under current law. Yet, this body repealed the estate tax under the guise that it was necessary to protect small family farmers and businesses, when much less costly proposals might have done the job just as well.

Let us disabuse ourselves of the idea that all tax cuts are good policy because they are politically popular. They are not. It is easy to vote for tax cuts. It does not require courage. And, in the end, the American people will not thank us for acting in a fiscally irresponsible manner. As I have said on many occasions, while budget projections look rosy now, the future is fraught with peril as the baby-boomers exit the economy, and the Social Security and Medicare programs become unable, as presently structured, to pay full benefits to recipients. The Social Security and Medicare Board of Trustees projected last March that Social Security payroll taxes by themselves would not be enough to cover benefit payments by 2015, and that the Social Security trust fund would be insolvent by 2037. Likewise, the trustees projected that the Medicare Hospital Insurance trust fund would be insolvent by 2025.

While I support eliminating any marriage penalties that may exist in the tax code, my preference would be to delay enactment of these costly proposals until the long term solvency of Social Security and Medicare have been addressed. However, in order to meet the political deadline of the upcoming Party conventions, the Senate is acting on this legislation today, which is unfortunate.

I support marriage penalty relief, and I believe that both the Republican and Democratic proposals would provide substantial relief. However, I object to the fashion in which these proposals are being considered. As I said before, these proposals are extremely expensive. They should be debated in a way that would allow for many amendments and ample debate time. Unfortunately, they were brought up under reconciliation protections to avoid such restrictions. While the intent of the legislation may be worthwhile, I object to legislation being pushed through in this manner. The fast-track reconciliation procedures that were enacted in the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 were never intended to be used as a method to enact massive tax cuts that could not be passed without a thorough debate and amendment process. I know, because I helped to write the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, and it was never my contemplation that the reconciliation process would be used in this way and for these purposes—never! I would not have supported it. I would have voted against it.

In fact, I would have left some loopholes in the process that would have saved us from this spectacle every year, where tax legislation with wide-ranging ramifications on domestic and defense spending priorities that should be debated at great length and amended many times is rushed through this Chamber in order to fulfill a political party's agenda. Reconciliation has become a bear trap that cuts off senators from debate and ensures that legislation will be voted upon regardless of whether there has been ample debate. Reconciliation typically allows for only twenty hours of debate, equally divided between the two leaders, which can be yielded back by the leaders under a nondebatability motion. This year, the reconciliation bill will be voted upon after only two hours and twenty-two minutes of debate. Less than two and one-half hours on a measure that would cost $248 billion over ten years. We owe the American people the assurance that their representatives are enacting legislation that will substantively address the marriage penalty problem in the most cost-efficient method possible.

I spoke in April on marriage penalty relief and the majority party's insistence on pushing this particular legislation through the Senate. While I supported marriage penalty relief then, I still opposed cloture to end debate on the underlying bill to allow senators to offer amendments, debate those amendments, and then vote on those amendments. Incidentally, this legislation was withdrawn from the floor after the minority party insisted on these rights, which is why this marriage penalty relief bill is now being considered in this fashion, under reconciliation protection. I made remarks in April on the marriage penalty relief bill, and made reference to James Madison's ideas on popular government, and the irony of how pushing through marriage penalty relief based on the notion that it is politically popular represented Madison's most profound worries about the character of republican politics. A fear of impulsive and dangerous influence that runaway public opinion could exert over legislation lay at the core of his thinking in 1787 and 1788. Indeed, Madison searched for the proper mechanics for the safe expression of public opinion to prevent popular majorities from pursuing their purposes through means that wore away the bonds that might otherwise restrain them. I think it is also fair to say that Madison would have opposed legislating in this fashion, and the enactment of tax legislation under reconciliation instructions because it removes the bonds that ordinarily would prevent the majority party from pushing through legislation which happens to be the hot political issue of the moment. The Senate will learn one day the detrimental cost of legislating in this fashion.

Nonetheless, as I have said before, I will support both marriage penalty relief proposals in order to eliminate what can only be described as an unintended and unfair consequence of the income tax code. However, I do so with a certain degree of reluctance out of concern that my support would, in any way, be considered an endorsement of this style of legislating or that it would indicate my willingness to forsake fiscal responsibility relating to Social Security and Medicare in order to finance massive tax cuts.

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that votes occur in relation to the following amendments in the following sequence, beginning immediately after the adoption of the Interior appropriations bill, with 2 minutes prior to each vote for explanation: Burns No. 3872, Hollings No. 3875, Lott No. 3881, final passage.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, I further ask unanimous consent that following passage, the Senate insist on its amendment, request a conference with the House, and the Chair be authorized to appoint conferees on the part of the Senate, with those conferees being ROTH, LOTT, and MOYNIHAN.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. ROTH. Therefore, there will be no further votes, as already has been announced, this evening. Up to 11 votes will occur in a stacked sequence beginning at 9:45 a.m. on Tuesday.

ORDER OF PROCEDURE

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate now turn to the Interior appropriations bill and I be recognized to call up the managers' package of amendments which is at the desk, the amendments be reported and agreed to, the motions to reconsider be laid upon the table, and the Senate then turn to H.R. 4516, the legislative appropriations bill, for Senator BOXER to offer her amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Senator from California, Mrs. BOXER, is recognized.

AMENDMENT NO. 3909

Mrs. BOXER. Mr. President, I will take but 2 minutes of the Senate's time, given that it is so late this evening.

I thank the managers of the legislative appropriations bill for accepting this amendment. I think the Chair would be interested in it as well, given the fact that he is the chairman of the Environment Committee on which I proudly serve.

This amendment merely says that we would limit the use of dangerous pesticide spraying here at the Capitol and on the Capitol Grounds where we have so many children and so many families visiting us every year. My amendment prohibits the routine use of highly toxic pesticides. Those are the ones that contain known or probable carcinogens. They are acute nerve toxins and others that contain highly toxic chemicals.

We do permit the spraying of such highly toxic chemicals in the rare case of an emergency. If there were a sudden emergency, if there were an outbreak where we needed to go to those highly toxic pesticides, under my amendment we would be allowed to do that. But for routine spraying, we would go to the mildest forms of these pesticides, the ones which are classified by the EPA as having the greatest risk to public health.

I could cite studies that show how vulnerable children are to these various compounds. Children are not little adults. They are changing; their bodies are changing. They react very badly to these toxic chemicals.

Seven to ten million people visit the Capitol and surrounding buildings every year. A million take guided tours of our historic buildings. We don't know how many of those are children, but just by looking at the crowds, quite a number are. I know in my office alone—and I am sure the Chair has thousands of youngsters visiting in his office—we studied it, and we have visits by over 33,000 school-age children every year. I think by adopting this amendment, we are setting a valuable example here at the Capitol that I hope all the State capitols will follow. We will begin to see that we can in fact control these pests in a way that is much more friendly to our children.

In closing, there is a wonderful organization in California named after a beautiful little child who died of environmental causes several years ago. Her parents founded this organization. It is called CHEC, the Children's Health Environmental Coalition. They are the ones, years ago, who got me interested in this area. What we are trying to do on every bill that we can is to set this example and say we won't be using this highly toxic form of controlling pests. Tomorrow I will have a debate with one of my colleagues on the other side of the aisle. I am trying to offer a similar amendment to the Interior bill, but we may get into a bit of a debate then.

Tonight is the night for me to say thank you to you, Mr. President, for your indulgence, and to the managers who are here late this evening handling this. I will yield back my time, and I expect we will have a voice vote and I would like to be present for that, if we could do that.

I yield back my time and ask that we have a voice vote at this time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The amendment (No. 3909) was agreed to, as follows:

AMENDMENT NO. 3909

(Purpose: limit funds for pesticide use)

At the appropriate place, insert the following:

“None of the funds appropriated under this Act may be used for the preventative application of a pesticide containing a known or probable carcinogen, a category I or II acute nerve toxin or a pesticide of the organophosphate, carbamate, or organochlorine class as determined by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency to U.S. Capitol buildings or grounds maintained or administered by the Architect of the U.S. Capitol.”

PESTICIDES AMENDMENT

Mrs. BOXER. Mr. President, I want to thank the managers of the Legislative Branch Appropriations bill for agreeing to my amendment to limit the use of toxic pesticides on U.S. Capitol buildings and grounds. My amendment prohibits the preventive use of pesticides containing a known or probable carcinogen, a class I or II acute nerve toxin or a pesticide of the organophosphate, carbamate or organochlorine class as identified by the Environmental Protection Agency. Such pesticides could be used, however, in the case of an emergency.

Every year, approximately 7 to 10 million people visit the Capitol, many of them children. The National Academy of Sciences has found that children are particularly vulnerable to the harmful effects of toxic pesticides, that current Environmental Protection Agency pesticide standards are not protective of children and that up to 25 percent of childhood learning disabilities may be attributable to a combination of exposure to toxic chemicals like pesticides and genetic factors. My amendment will help protect young visitors to Washington from the harmful effects of toxic pesticides by limiting the use of such pesticides at the U.S. Capitol.

Mr. President, I thank the managers for their support and I hope that they will work to ensure that this amendment is preserved in conference. May I inquire of the distinguished Ranking Member of the Subcommittee if she will support the amendment in conference with the House?

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. I thank my colleague from California for her question. I assure her that I will work in conference to retain the Senator's amendment on pesticide use at the U.S. Capitol.

Mrs. BOXER. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. ROTH. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The provisions of the unanimous consent agreement are executed.

The bill (H.R. 4516), as amended, was read the third time and passed, as follows:

Resolved, That the bill from the House of Representatives (H.R. 4516) entitled “An Act making appropriations for the Legislative Branch for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2001, and for other purposes.”, do pass with the following amendments:

MORNING BUSINESS

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, I now ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to a period of morning business with Senators permitted to speak therein for up to 10 minutes each.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

VICTIMS OF GUN VIOLENCE

Mr. REID. Mr. President, it has been more than a year since the Columbine tragedy, but still this Republican Congress refuses to act on sensible gun legislation.

Since Columbine, thousands of Americans have been killed by gunfire. Until we act, Democrats in the Senate will read some of the names of those who lost their lives to gun violence in the past year, and we will continue to do so every day that the Senate is session.

In the name of those who died, we will continue this fight. Following are the names of some of the people who were killed by gunfire one year ago today.

July 17: Reggie Allen, 20, Miami-Dade County, FL; Brady Ball, 25, New Orleans, LA; Lynn Beck, 16, Dallas, TX;

Sherron Britt, 31, St. Louis, MO; Khary Daley, 24, Boston, MA; Willie Ennett, 23, Detroit, MI; Monroe Gibson, 23, New Orleans, LA; Hemenorio Gonzalez, 45, San Antonio, TX; Wilbert Hooten, 64, Chicago, IL; Fernando Marquez, 32, Chicago, IL; Jim Rest, 58, Minneapolis, MN; Terrence Roberts, Detroit, MI; Paul Trapp, 50, Detroit, MI; Sam Wright, 35, Detroit, MI; Unidentified male, 77, Nashville, TN.

SURFACE TRANSPORTATION BOARD'S RAIL MERGER MORATORIUM

Mr. HOLLINGS. Mr. President, I rise to commend the Surface Transportation Board for issuing its rail merger moratorium, which has just been upheld by the D.C. Circuit Court of Appeals. We on the Commerce Committee have been watching the railroad industry closely these last several years and we believe time is needed to reevaluate where the industry has been and where it should be going. To have moved forward with a new round of mergers now would have been shortsighted and not in the public interest. I am pleased that the Board had the courage to call a time-out on rail mergers to reexamine its rail merger policy before proceeding further at this important crossroads for the rail sector. I am also gratified that the Court shared my view, and the view of many of us in the Senate, that the Board has the authority to do what needs to be done.

WILDLIFE AND SPORT FISH RESTORATION PROGRAMS IMPROVEMENT ACT OF 2000

Mr. BURNS. Mr. President, today I rise on behalf of the men and women of this country who value hunting and fishing as an important part of their lives. I am one of them, and I know I am not alone in the Senate. Many of my colleagues have joined me as members of the Sportsmen's Caucus, and I am pleased that we enjoy such strong support. In my home state of Montana, hunting and fishing are incredibly important. These are some of the activities we engage in to enjoy our beautiful outdoors. Hunting and fishing give us the chance to spend time with our families, and to take part in the traditions that generations of Montanans have enjoyed.

It is this strong tradition that brings me here today. There has been a grave injustice dealt to America's sportsmen. I am referring to the abuse of Pittman-Robertson and Dingell-Johnson funds by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. These are funds from the Wildlife and Sport Fish Restoration Programs which impose an excise tax on the equipment hunters and fishermen buy. Then the tax monies from the sporting goods are used for things like wildlife habitat and hunter safety programs. These programs were started in 1937, with the strong support of both the sportsmen who pay the tax and the states who administer the projects.

As years went by, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service which manages the programs, started straying further and further from the original intent of Pittman-Robertson funds. After an oversight investigation by House Committee on Resources, chaired by Mr. YOUNG of Alaska, it was found that the Fish and Wildlife Service was using Pittman-Robertson for purposes far outside the intent of the law. Funds were used for everything from foreign travel to grants for anti-hunting groups and programs that work against the interests of hunters. This is just plain wrong, and goes against everything the program was originally intended to accomplish.

In response to the abuse uncovered by his Committee, Mr. YOUNG introduced legislation to fix the problems. Part of the legislation caps the administrative expenses for the program and sets in stone what is an authorized administrative expense. This is a step in the right direction, because it will restore the integrity to this program. His bill, H.R. 3671, passed the House on April 5th with an overwhelming vote of 423-2.

I am proud to be included as a cosponsor of the Senate version of this bill, S. 2609. My colleagues from Idaho, Mr. CRAIG and Mr. CRAPO, have modeled it after H.R. 3671 and included provisions for valuable programs like hunter safety, as well as a multi-state conservation grant program. This bill ensures that the money sportsmen pay for wildlife conservation and hunter safety is actually used for those purposes and restores the accountability that has been missing for too long. It is time we made this right, and earned back the trust of the people we are here to serve.

ADDITIONAL STATEMENTS

HEALTHY CULTURE INITIATIVE

• Mr. BROWNBACK. Mr. President, I rise to recognize the ground-breaking and encouraging work being performed by the Healthy Culture Initiative, a non-profit group with which I am honored to be associated. The Healthy Culture Initiative (HCI) is an organization committed to strengthening and improving the health of America's culture by recognizing and replicating the many innovative, local initiatives aimed at solving community challenges.

The Healthy Culture Initiative recognizes that there are many challenges we face as a nation—over the last thirty years, we have seen huge increases in family breakdown, out-of-wedlock births, single parent families, teen suicide, drug abuse, violence, and civic disengagement. But for every problem in America, there is already a solution—a solution that is in place in neighborhoods across America. Indeed, many of the most effective solutions to the complex social problems of crime, drug abuse, family breakdown, teen suicide, illegitimacy, and poverty arise from the committed efforts of a small group of individuals working within their own community.

The Healthy Culture Initiative seeks to recognize these exciting efforts, and encourage their replication. HCI has four primary objectives:

First, through a series of Success Summits to be held in cities across America, the Healthy Culture Initiative will recognize, and help replicate, community-based solutions to pressing social challenges.

Second, the Healthy Culture Initiative will jump-start important civic dialogue about ways that ordinary people, working alone or in small groups, can help strengthen families, schools, neighborhoods, and ultimately, our Nation.

Third, HCI will measure the success of new initiatives. In conjunction with the Gallup organization, the Healthy Culture Initiative will work to quantify the actual results of each new initiative launched, so that resources and attention can be concentrated on the most effective efforts.

And finally, HCI will develop a network of information resources, including web links and educational materials, to assist community activists in initiating new programs in their neighborhoods.

I can personally attest to the exciting work undertaken by the Healthy Culture Initiative, in that I and Senator JOE LIEBERMAN, currently serve as honorary co-chairs. I am excited by the caliber and quality of individuals who are leading this initiative—including Don Clifton, President and CEO of the Gallup Corporation; Charles Krulak, former Commandant of the United States Marine Corps, Executive Director Cindy Cobb; Don Eberly, CEO of the National Fatherhood Initiative, Curt Smith of the Hudson Institute, Jay Spiegel of the Reserve Officers Association, and many others.

The plans of the Healthy Culture Initiative are ambitious and wide-ranging. It is my hope that by celebrating the many exciting success stories taking place in our communities across America, we can encourage their replication—and build a healthier culture, and a stronger America.●

225TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE U.S. ARMY

● Mr. SMITH of Oregon. Mr. President, I rise today to commemorate the 225th Anniversary of the United States Army and ask unanimous consent that an article written by the Chief of Staff of the Army, General Eric K. Shinseki, which pays due tribute to the U.S. Army and its contributions to our freedoms be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the article was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

THE ARMY AT 225: A NEW PATRIOTISM (By Eric K. Shinseki)

WASHINGTON—In two weeks, Mel Gibson's latest movie, "The Patriot," opens nationwide. Set during the American Revolution, it is the story of a colonist who becomes a militia leader when the sweep of war and the advance of the British endanger his farm and family.

Whether by design or mere coincidence, the release of "The Patriot" comes at a particularly fitting time in our nation's history because this month marks the 225th anniversary of the birth of our Army.

The birth of our Nation and the birth of our Army are inseparably linked.

A year before we formally declared our independence, we had already begun fighting for it at Lexington and Concord and the Battle of Bunker Hill, the bloodiest single engagement of the Revolution. On that small piece of ground, over the course of one day, the British lost a staggering 1,054 regulars. The colonists lost about 440.

After Bunker Hill, the British would never again underestimate the tenacity and fighting spirit of the American soldier. These early engagements surprised the British, who saw themselves as professionally trained soldiers and the militiamen as little more than a disorganized rabble.

But let us not forget that we surprised ourselves as well. Despite our dogged determination to confront the foe, we were unproven and uncertain of our abilities. Who could have imagined that our ill-equipped and untrained colonial militia would fare as well as it did? Our success in those early battles was significant.

The victories strengthened national pride, engendered new confidence and bolstered the will to fight. When word spread down the coast that New England farmers had successfully stood up to the well-equipped and well-trained British regulars, colonists everywhere were filled with newfound courage and patriotic fervor. Frustration turned to motivation, and from that point on, the cry for independence simply would not be quelled.

On June 14, 1775, Congress took the first formal step in the march toward independence by voting to establish what was then the Continental Army.

In those days, the term patriot more closely equated to insurgent. A patriot was a revolutionary who promoted the independence of his people from the country or union of countries that controlled them.

From the British perspective, patriots were criminals; to them, the term was an epithet carrying the negative connotation of disloyalty. Thus, in 1775, when George Washington dubbed the original rag-tag band of fighters "the patriot army," he was making a profoundly political and deliberately inflammatory statement; this newborn army would win independence for America.

Over time, the word "patriot" evolved to a more heroic meaning—a person who loves his country and who defends and promotes its interests. It is especially applied to soldiers who fight for love of country. Thanks to the success of the American Revolution, the connotation of that simple term changed from one of disloyalty to one of allegiance.

Since the end of the Revolution, American soldiers, imbued with the spirit of the original patriots, have pledged their allegiance to this nation through their sacrifices in uniform. In doing so, hundreds of thousands of them have given their last full measure of devotion in ultimate demonstration of love for country.

Today, thousands of soldiers serve around the globe to maintain our freedom and to provide the promise of a better life to others for whom liberty is but a dream. They are the finest men and women the nation has to offer—active, guard and reserve soldiers doing the heavy lifting so we can enjoy the comforts and freedoms of our way of life.

They are unknown to most of us, but they sacrifice daily in places like Kosovo, Saudi Arabia, Bosnia, East Timor, Kuwait, Korea and Macedonia in order to promote democracy and to preserve peace and stability.

These men and women are our patriots. They are prepared to defend our country, and they are also the best ambassadors for democracy we could have, carrying the same torch of liberty that was lit 225 years ago. In the remotest corners of the globe, American soldiers command respect because they symbolize the traits of our forefathers; a passion for liberty and a willingness to fight to protect freedom.

As we reflect on the Army's 225th birthday, let us remember that with our Army was born a nation; with that nation was born democracy; and with democracy was born the hope that peace and liberty could someday be attained by all oppressed peoples of the world.●

PETITIONS AND MEMORIALS

The following petitions and memorials were laid before the Senate and were referred or ordered to lie on the table as indicated:

POM-551. A resolution adopted by the Assembly of the State of Wisconsin relative to the Washington Juneteenth 2000 National Holiday Observance; ordered to lie on the table.

ASSEMBLY RESOLUTION 29

Whereas, more than 130 years old, Juneteenth, National Freedom Day is the oldest and only African-American holiday observance in the United States, which is also known as "Emancipation Day," "Emancipation Celebration," "Freedom Day," "Jun-Jun" and "Juneteenth"; and

Whereas, Juneteenth National Freedom Day commemorates the survival, due to God-given strength and determination, of African-Americans, who were first brought to this country stacked in the bottom of slave ships in a month-long journey across the Atlantic Ocean, known as the "Middle Passage"; and

Whereas, approximately 11,500,000 African-Americans survived the voyage to the New World (the number that died is likely greater), only to be subjected to whipping, castration, branding, rape, tearing apart of families and forced submission to slavery for more than 200 years after arrival in the United States; and

Whereas, Juneteenth commemorates the day on which freedom was proclaimed to all slaves in the South by Union General Granger, on June 19, 1865, in Galveston, Texas, more than 2.5 years after the signing of the Emancipation Proclamation by President Abraham Lincoln; and

Whereas, for the first time, in over 130 years of the annual celebration, Juneteenth has finally been "officially recognized" as Juneteenth Independence Day in America by the President and Congress of the United States; and

Whereas, this reality is particularly underscored by the fact that it was in the 1st Session of the 105th Congress, via the bipartisan cooperation of former Congresswoman Barbara Rose-Collins (D-Michigan, former Senator Carol Mosley-Braun (D-Illinois), Congressman J.C. WATTS (R-Oklahoma), former

House Speaker Newt Gingrich (R-Georgia), Senate Majority Leader TRENT LOTT (R-Mississippi) and Senate Minority Leader TOM DASCHLE (D-South Dakota), that Senate Joint Resolution 11 and House Joint Resolution 56 were successfully shepherded through both houses of Congress, in a successful effort to officially recognize Juneteenth as the Independence Day observance of Americans of African descent in 1997; and

Whereas, Americans of all colors, creeds, cultures, religions and countries-of-origin share in a common love of, and respect for, "freedom," as well as a determination to protect their right to freedom through democratic institutions, by which the "tenets-of-freedom" are guaranteed and protected; and

Whereas, the "19th of June" or Juneteenth Independence Day, along with the "4th of July," completes the "cycle of freedom" for America's Independence Day observances; and

Whereas, "Until All are Free, None are Free" is an oft-repeated maxim that can be used to highlight the significance of the end of the era of slavery in the United States; and

Whereas, the National Juneteenth Observance Foundation is sponsoring the premier celebration, concert, worship services and campaign to commemorate America's 2nd Independence Day observance, the "19th of June," as one which completes the cycle of America's 18th century Independence Movement, initiated with the "4th of July," 1776, "Declaration of Independence" and to recognize this country's movement towards a "One America," advanced by a sincere dialogue of the realization of what Juneteenth historically means to all Americans, promoting racial healing, restoration and justice: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the assembly, That the members of the Wisconsin assembly support this historic recognition and encourage participation of our members, families and communities in the "officially recognized" Washington Juneteenth 2000 National Holiday Observance, on the National Mall, Lincoln Memorial and U.S. capital grounds, scheduled for Saturday, June 17, 2000, from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m., which will be followed by a Sunday evening Juneteenth Fathers' Day Benefit Concert honoring African-American Fathers, and a Monday, June 19, 2000, noon rally in support of National Juneteenth Independence Day holiday legislation and a series of evening Juneteenth prayer and praise worship services in churches and houses of worship throughout the Washington, D.C., area and the country; and, be it further

Resolved, That the assembly chief clerk shall provide a copy of this resolution to the president and secretary of the U.S. senate, to the speaker and clerk of the U.S. house of representatives and to each member of the congressional delegation from this state attesting the adoption of this resolution by the 1999 assembly of the state of Wisconsin.

POM-552. A resolution adopted by the General Assembly of the State of New Jersey relative to flood areas and flood victims; to the Committee on Banking, House, and Urban Affairs.

ASSEMBLY RESOLUTION NO. 200

Whereas, Tremendous damage was caused in the State of New Jersey by the high winds, waves, storm surge, severe flooding and fires associated with Hurricane Floyd; and

Whereas, Up to 13 inches of rain fell in portions of the State, causing rivers and other inland waterways to flood streets, homes and businesses, and high winds downed many trees and damaged many structures; and

Whereas, The President of the United States declared certain counties in this State, including Bergen, Essex, Hunterdon, Mercer, Middlesex, Morris, Passaic, Somerset, and Union, to be federal disaster areas, and this federal disaster declaration allows for the federal funding of disaster relief to public entities, businesses and individuals, as well as funding for mitigation against future similar disasters; and

Whereas, The damages in the State resulting from Hurricane Floyd and its associated flooding are estimated by the Federal Emergency Management Agency to be approximately $500,000,000 and this estimate is rising as more assessments are conducted and verified; and

Whereas, The total number of houses, apartments and businesses destroyed, damaged or affected by Hurricane Floyd and its associated flooding exceeds 70,000; and

Whereas, United States Senator Frank Lautenberg and United States Representative Marge Roukema have proposed federal legislation to help small businesses and farmers recover from the damage inflicted by Hurricane Floyd and its associated flooding, which legislation would make available, through the Federal Emergency Management Agency, one-time grants to small businesses and farmers in amounts up to $50,000 or at least 50 percent of the cost to replace non-insured contents and inventory or to carry out repairs, provided that the grant is not used to relocate the business outside of the community and provided that the grant recipient purchases and maintains flood insurance coverage; and

Whereas, Individuals and businesses have suffered extraordinary hardships, and it is in the public interest to assist individuals and businesses recovering from the devastating effects of Hurricane Floyd in the most expeditious manner possible; and

Whereas, It is in the best interest of the residents of the State to urge the President, the Congress of the United States, and the Federal Emergency Management Agency to take all available steps to provide financial assistance in the most expeditious manner possible to New Jersey's flood areas and flood victims; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the General Assembly of the State of New Jersey:

1. This House urges the President and the Federal Emergency management Agency to provide financial assistance in the most expeditious manner possible to provide relief to New Jersey's flood areas and flood victims. This House also urges the President and the Federal Emergency Management Agency to not deduct any State monies provided for flood relief from the calculation of federal monies allocated to New Jersey to recover from the devastating effects of Hurricane Floyd and its aftermath.

2. This House urges the Congress of the United States to act swiftly on legislation proposed by United States Senator Frank Lautenberg and United States Representative Marge Roukema to help small business and farmers recover from the damage inflicted by Hurricane Floyd and its associated flooding.

3. A duly authorized copy of this resolution, signed by the Speaker of the General Assembly and attested by the Clerk thereof, shall be transmitted to the President of the United States, the President of the United States Senate, the Speaker of the United States House of Representatives, the majority and minority leaders of the United States Senate and the United States House of Representatives, the Director of the Federal Emergency Management Agency, and each member of Congress elected from the State of New Jersey.

POM-553. A joint resolution adopted by the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Virginia relative to consumer credit reporting agencies; to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs.

HOUSE JOINT RESOLUTION NO. 310

Whereas, the Fair Credit Reporting Act established a statutory framework for protecting the rights of consumers to fair disclosure of credit information; and

Whereas, the Fair Credit Reporting Act permits credit reporting agencies to report information related to a consumer's credit history; and

Whereas, credit reporting agencies provide an overall rating of the consumer's credit risk on the consumer's credit report; and

Whereas, credit reporting agencies consider the number of inquiries into a consumer's credit report when determining the overall rating; and

Whereas, the number of inquiries requesting a consumer's credit report is not substantially related to a consumer's credit risk and is often outside the consumer's control; and

Whereas, creditors rely on the information reported by credit reporting agencies to evaluate the credit risk of a consumer; and

Whereas, many consumers are denied credit based on a credit reporting agency's rating of that consumer: Now, therefore be it

Resolved by the House of Delegates, the Senate concurring; That the Congress of the United States be urged to amend the Fair Credit Reporting Act to prohibit credit reporting agencies from using information related to the number of inquiries in a consumer's credit report to determine the consumer's overall rating; and, be it

Resolved further, That the General Assembly of Virginia most fervently urge and encourage each state legislative body of the United States of America to enact this resolution, or one similar in context and form, as a show of solidarity in petitioning the federal government for greater protection for consumers in obtaining credit; and, be it

Resolved finally, That the Clerk of the House of Delegates transmit copies of this resolution to the President of the United States, the Speaker of the United States House of Representatives, the President of the United States Senate, the Secretary of the United States Department of Labor, each member of the Virginia Congressional Delegation, and to the Chairman of the Council of State Governments, requesting that he distribute copies of this resolution to the presiding officer of each house of each state legislative body in the United States of America in order that they may be apprised of the sense of the General Assembly of Virginia in this matter.

POM-554. A concurrent resolution adopted by the Legislature of the State of Hawaii, relative to community goals and outcomes; to the Committee on Governmental Affairs.

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION NO. 12

Whereas, the Hawaii State Legislature has recognized the importance of measuring progress towards shared outcomes through the establishment of the Hawaii Performance Partnerships Board by Act 160, Session Laws of Hawaii 1999, and the adoption of House Concurrent Resolution No. 38 by the Legislature in 1998; and

Whereas, a memorandum of agreement has been executed between the federal, state, county, community, and business sectors to encourage and facilitate cooperation to redesign and test an outcomes-oriented approach to intergovernmental service delivery; and

Whereas, the federal government, through the efforts of the National Partnership for Reinventing Government, has empowered federal agencies to provide incentives, such as decreased state matching funds, waived regulations, or additional federal funds to state agencies in partnership with community-based organizations that measure progress towards shared outcomes through initiatives such as Boost4Kids; and

Whereas, Hawaii's aloha spirit connects its people in a unique manner, by guiding our decisions and actions; and

Whereas, Hawaii's communities have joined together to create outcomes and goals to improve the well-being of Hawaii's people in several different efforts, such as Ke Ala Hoku, Education Goals 2000, Healthy 2010, Hawaii Family Touchstones; and

Whereas, the acceptance of a common set of desired outcomes, compatible with statutory mandates, will enable state, county, and community agencies to focus on achieving positive results that exemplify Hawaii's uniqueness; and

Whereas, achieving results require creation of accountability systems that cross agency boundaries to measure the combined efforts of many partners, both public and private; and

Whereas, the Hawaii Performance Partnerships Board has considered the achievements of many of Hawaii's people in creating outcomes and goals: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate of the Twentieth Legislature of the State of Hawaii, Regular Session of 2000, the House of Representatives concurring, That the following key community outcomes are hereby endorsed by the Legislature as state policy:

- (1) A safe, nurturing social environment;
- (2) A healthy, natural environment;
- (3) A thriving, diverse, sustainable economy;

POM-555. A resolution adopted by the Council of the City of Mayfield Heights, Ohio relative to a United Nations Convention, to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

POM-556. A joint resolution adopted by the Legislature of the State of California relative to East Timorese refugees; to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

ASSEMBLY JOINT RESOLUTION NO. 54

Whereas, In 1975, after the former Portuguese colony of East Timor gained its independence, Indonesian forces invaded East Timor and occupied the country despite the call of the United Nations Security Council for Indonesia to withdraw its forces; and

Whereas, In 1976 the Indonesian government admitted that 60,000 East Timorese had been killed since the invasion and President Suharto signed legislation declaring East Timor as Indonesia's 27th province; and

Whereas, In the 1970's and 1980's tens of thousands of East Timorese died of starvation, military bombardment, and executions as thousands of other suffered malnutrition, sterilization, relocation in settlement camps, and arrest and torture at the hands of the Indonesian forces; and

Whereas, Despite continued military attacks on East Timorese civilians during 1999 and fears of widespread violence against voters, a heavy turnout at the polls on August 30, 1999, provided almost an 80 percent vote for the independence of East Timor from Indonesia; and

Whereas, Within hours of the announcement of the election results on September 4, 1999, a systematic campaign of terror was launched against the East Timorese by the Indonesian armed forces and their allied militias during which three-quarters of the population was displaced. In a coordinated manner, the Indonesian military and militias forced hundreds of thousands of East Timorese at gunpoint to board trucks, boats, and airplanes for transportation to West Timor and other parts of Indonesia; and

Whereas, By the end of 1999, United Nations agencies reported that over 125,000 East Timorese had returned home; however, more than 100,000 East Timorese remain unable to return home, many months after the announcement of the referendum results and despite repeated pledges by the Indonesian government to remedy the situation. Thousands of East Timorese taken to other areas of Indonesia remain unaccounted for now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Assembly and Senate of the State of California, jointly, That the Legislature of the State of California respectfully requests the President and the Congress of the United States to employ diplomatic and other resources to persuade the Indonesian government to expedite the return of all East Timorese refugees in Indonesia who wish to return home; and be it further

Resolved, That the Chief Clerk of the Assembly transmit copies of this resolution to the President and Vice President of the United States, and to each Senator and Representative from California in the Congress of the United States.

Whereas, Pearl Harbor Naval Shipyard is the largest industrial employer in the State of Hawaii; and

Whereas, Pearl Harbor Naval Shipyard spends in excess of $350 million in material purchases, contracts with local businesses, and payroll costs; and

Whereas, Pearl Harbor Naval Shipyard provides for trade and skills training for the youth of Hawaii through the Apprentice program in partnership with the University of Hawaii; and

Whereas, Pearl Harbor Naval Shipyard has the capacity to accomplish more Navy work in Pearl Harbor with the skilled workforce and the availability of the Homeport ships; and

Whereas, Pearl Harbor Naval Shipyard needs to be "right sized" for its current and future workload to allow Pearl Harbor and the Navy to maintain and overhaul ships in Hawaii; and

Whereas, Pearl Harbor Naval Shipyard would require the hiring of 700 to 800 permanent civilian employees over the next two years to obtain the necessary skilled personnel to execute the Navy work; and

Whereas, Pearl Harbor Naval Shipyard has an application list of 1,000 qualified local applicants seeking employment at Pearl Harbor Naval Shipyard: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the United States Navy is requested to brief the Legislature and community business leaders on the future work load plans for Pearl Harbor Naval Shipyard; and be it further

Resolved, That certified copies of this Concurrent Resolution be transmitted to the President and Vice President of the United States, the Hawaii Congressional Delegation, the Governor, and the United States Navy through the chain of command to the Chief of Naval Operations, the Secretary of the Navy, and the Secretary of Defense.

POM-558. A resolution adopted by the House of the Legislature of the State of Hawaii relative to toxic waste; to the Committee on Armed Services.

HOUSE RESOLUTION NO. 124

Whereas, the United States and the people of Hawaii have had long historical, cultural, and economic ties with the people of the Philippines as part of the Pacific-Asia community; and

Whereas, Filipinos all over the world, including the Filipino-American community in Hawaii and the United States and their friends, commemorated the centennial of the birth of the Republic of the Philippines (June 12, 1898), a culmination of the Filipino peoples' struggle for freedom and independence against Spanish colonial rule; and

Whereas, in December 1992, United States military forces withdrew from Clark Air Base and Subic Naval Base, thus ending almost a century of United States military presence in the Philippines; and

Whereas, reports from the United States General Accounting Office, United States Department of Defense, the World Health Organization, United States experts, environmental baseline surveys conducted by American firms, and recent media reports, including those conducted by the Boston Globe and CNN, identified serious contamination at forty-six sites at both Clark and Subic bases; and

Whereas, many of the chemicals identified, such as polychlorinated biphenyls (PCBs) Aldrin, Dieldrin, Benzene, and Heptachlor, are part of the family chemicals known as persistent organic pollutants (POPs) because of their persistence in the environment and association with health problems like cancer, reproductive failure, and behavior disorders; and

Whereas, a "Health for All" survey conducted by internationally-recognized health expert Doctor Rosalie Bertell on behalf of the Canadian Institute for the Concern for Public Health and released in November 1998, found conspicuously high and disparate levels of kidney, urinary, nervous, and female system health problems among 716 families surveyed in the Clark Air Base area alone; and

Whereas, on January 27, 1999, the Philippines House of Representatives Committee on Ecology released a report holding the United States responsible for toxic wastes left behind in the former United States military bases at Clark and Subic, which threaten to make these areas economically devastated, largely uninhabitable, and unusable; and

Whereas, the Filipino-American community, including the National Federation of Filipino American Associations (NFFAA) and various church groups, such as the Church Coalition for Human Rights in the Philippines and the 20th General Synod of the United Church of Christ (United States), have expressed grave concern for the United States government's lack of response and responsibility over its legacy of toxic wastes in the Philippines; and

Whereas, The Filipino Coalition for Solidarity, Inc., a civil rights group based in Hawaii, is spearheading the information campaign in Hawaii regarding this issue: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the House of Representatives of the Twentieth Legislature of the State of Hawaii, Regular Session of 2000, That the Legislature expresses its strong concern for the serious environmental problems caused by toxic wastes left behind by the United States and the grave threat these wastes pose to public health in the communities adjoining its former bases in Clark and Subic; and be it further

Resolved, That the Legislature calls on the United States government to assist the Philippines, which has neither the funds nor the technical capacity to conduct an environmental clean up, as it has already done in cleaning up toxic contamination in overseas United States military bases in Germany, Italy, the United Kingdom, and in other countries; and be it further

Resolved, That certified copies of this Resolution be transmitted to the President of the United States, the President pro tempore of the United States Senate, the Speaker of the United States House of Representatives, the Secretary of State, the Secretary of Defense, the Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, the members of Hawaii's congressional delegation, the Governor of Hawaii, the President of the Philippines, the President of the Philippines Senate, and the Speaker of the Philippines Senate, and the Speaker of the Philippines House of Representatives.

POM-559. A joint resolution adopted by the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Virginia relative to the United States Army Museum; to the Committee on Armed Services.

HOUSE JOINT RESOLUTION NO. 207

Whereas, the Department of the Army has been granted approval by Congress to establish a national United States Army Museum; and

Whereas, several sites are being considered by Congress for the location of this museum, including Fort Belvoir in Fairfax County; and

Whereas, Fort Belvoir is located near Mount Vernon, the residence of George Washington, the first President of the United States and Commander-in-Chief; and

Whereas, locating the United States Army Museum in Virginia would enhance Virginia's tourism and economic development efforts; and

Whereas, locating the United States Army Museum at Fort Belvoir is a logical choice due to its proximity to Washington, D.C., the Pentagon, and Arlington Cemetery: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the House of Delegates, the Senate concurring, That the Congress of the United States be urged to establish the national United States Army Museum at Fort Belvoir, Virginia; and, be it

Resolved further, That the Clerk of the House of Delegates transmit copies of this resolution to the Speaker of the United States House of Representatives, the President of the United States Senate, and the members of the Virginia Congressional Delegation in order that they may be apprised of the sense of the General Assembly of Virginia in this matter.

POM-560. A joint resolution adopted by the Legislature of the State of California relative to commercial marketing; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

ASSEMBLY JOINT RESOLUTION NO. 50

Whereas, The death penalty was originally instituted in California in 1851 under the Criminal Practices Act and reinstated in 1978; and

Whereas, Due to the heinous nature of crimes that are punishable by the death penalty, only 5 percent of murderers reside on death row; and

Whereas, The international retail corporation, the United Colors of Benetton, has glamorized death row inmates through photos and interviews, in order to sell Benetton products; and

Whereas, Such "Shock marketing" perverts profiles criminals who have committed grossly inhuman acts of murder; and

Whereas, The 26 criminals profiled by Benetton have murdered at least 45 innocent victims; and

Whereas, The advertisement campaign is causing unnecessary pain and distress to the family and friends of the murder victims; and

Whereas, This marketing constitutes a flippant "style statement" in what has been, and should remain, a serious issue for responsible public debate; and

Whereas, A good corporate citizen must maintain a good standard of ethics and respect the bounds of responsible discourse concerning matters of policy dealing with the lives of citizens and the values of law-abiding citizens; and

Whereas, The glamorization of death row inmates in Benetton's marketing campaign does not appear to be consistent with being a good corporate citizen: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Assembly and Senate of the State of California Jointly. That Benetton's glorification of criminals for profit is both inappropriate and insensitive to the families of the victims; and be it further

Resolved, That the Members of the Assembly and Senate of the State of California encourage all citizens in California to express to the United Colors of Benetton, in whatever manner they deem most effective, their opinion of the inappropriate and insensitive death row marketing campaign and be it further

Resolved, That the Chief Clerk of the Assembly transmit copies of this resolution to the President and Vice President of the United States, the Majority Leader of the Senate, the Speaker of the House of Representatives, to each Senator and Representative from California in the Congress of the United States, to the President of the United States Chamber of Commerce, the President of the California Chamber of Commerce, the Chairman of the New York Stock Exchange, and the Chairman of the Board of the United Colors of Benetton.

POM-561. A joint resolution adopted by the General Assembly of the State of Colorado relative to the Federal Communications Commission; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

SENATE JOINT RESOLUTION 00-031

Whereas, According to its comprehensive plan and its duly adopted zoning regulations, the Board of County Commissioners of Jefferson County, Colorado denied an application by Lake Cedar Group, LLC, to rezone land on Lookout Mountain from residential and agricultural zoning to planned development zoning in order to allow construction of an 854-foot telecommunications supertower and a 26,000 square foot support building; and

Whereas, Such decision was a quasi-judicial decision based on factual evidence presented to the Jefferson County Board of County Commissioners and application of applicable legal standards and as such can be appealed judicially to Jefferson County District Court, which court is fully empowered to grant full and appropriate relief to the appellant if appropriate under the facts of the case; and

Whereas, Lake Cedar Group filed an appeal of Jefferson County's decision in Jefferson County District Court, which appeal is now pending the filing of briefs by the parties; and

Whereas, Despite the pending judicial appeal, and after Jefferson County spent several months preparing the voluminous record of proceedings for the Jefferson County District Court action, Lake Cedar Group, without notifying the Jefferson County Board of County Commissioners or any other interested party, filed a petition with the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) requesting the FCC to "preempt" Jefferson County's decision and to declare Jefferson County's decision "prohibited and unenforceable"; and

Whereas, By Public Notice dated April 10, 2000, the FCC seeks public comment on Lake Cedar Group's petition; and

Whereas, In the United States, control over individual land use decisions is firmly vested in local governments, through statutory delegation from state governments; and

Whereas, The FCC is barred by the 10th Amendment to the United States Constitution from attempting to preempt decisions made by local governments on individual land use applications because the United States Congress has not directed or authorized the FCC to preempt such local decisions; and

Whereas, The FCC lacks not only the authority, but also the expertise and any adopted standards to second-guess and invalidate local government land use decisions; and

Whereas, Any attempt by the FCC to preempt local government land use decision-making in this manner would represent an illegal, unauthorized, and unjustified attack on state- and local-government land use authority; Now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate of the Sixty-second General Assembly of the State of Colorado, the House of Representatives concurring herein:

That the General Assembly of the State of Colorado hereby encourages the FCC not to preempt local government land use decision-making and state judicial processes, thus overriding local and state government authority; and be it further

Resolved, That copies of this Joint Resolution be sent to the President of the United States Senate; the Speaker of the United States House of Representatives; each member of Colorado's Congressional delegation; each member of the House of Representatives Subcommittee on Telecommunications, Trade and Consumer Protection of the Committee on Commerce; the Governor of Colorado; and the Commissioners of the Federal Communications Commission.

POM-562. A concurrent resolution adopted by the Legislature of the State of Louisiana relative to Internet taxation; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

HOUSE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION NO. 9

Whereas, the Internet is a collection of computer networks that enables people to communicate electronically with people in other states and nations around the world and millions of organizations and consumers are taking advantage of this technological innovation to transact electronic interstate commerce; and

Whereas, business-to-consumer sales transacted through the Internet have increased the interstate commerce of items which have traditionally been sold in intrastate commerce, increasing competition between traditional "main street" family businesses and interstate mail order and electronic commerce businesses; and

Whereas, under current federal court decisions, some Internet vendors and other remote sellers cannot be legally compelled to collect sales and use taxes from consumers in other states; and

Whereas, the difficulties in requiring sales and use tax collections from remote sellers place local "main street" merchants at an unfair competitive disadvantage and the Internet and Internet vendors should not receive preferential tax treatment at the expense of such merchants; and

Whereas, state sales and use tax collections comprise a substantial percentage of state revenues; and

Whereas, states have the primary responsibility for the delivery of education, public safety, transportation, and health and human services; and

Whereas, the projected growth of electronic commerce transactions will have a substantial negative impact on state sales and use tax collections; and

Whereas, the federal Internet Tax Freedom Act has temporarily limited the states' ability to design new taxing schemes to keep up with today's rapidly transforming technology-drive economy; and

Whereas, prior to the end of the moratorium period imposed by the Internet Tax Freedom Act, the United States Congress will be charged with the responsibility to decide the future course of taxation of the Internet, possibly to the detriment of state and local governments and traditional "main street" merchants; Therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Louisiana Legislature does hereby memorialize the United States Congress to consider the needs of state and local governments and local "main street" retailers when determining a course of action regarding Internet taxation; be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this Resolution be transmitted to the presiding officers of the Senate and the House of Representatives of the Congress of the United States of America and to each member of the Louisiana congressional delegation.

POM-563. A concurrent resolution adopted by the Legislature of the State of Louisiana relative to the Migratory Bird Treaty Act; to the Committee on Appropriations.

HOUSE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION NO. 23

Whereas, the Migratory Bird Treaty Act of 1972 as amended (16 U.S.C. 701 et seq.) was enacted to protect and manage migratory birds in the United States and includes the regulation of taking, possessing, transporting, shipping, exporting, and importing of migratory birds; and

Whereas, the enforcement of those laws and regulations is essential to the goal of the Migratory Bird Treaty Act, enforcement which, in the state of Louisiana, is the responsibility of the enforcement division of the Department of Wildlife and Fisheries; and

Whereas, the hunting of migratory birds is a widespread recreational and tourist activity in the state of Louisiana with an economic impact in the state in excess of $131 million, including an annual harvest of over 3.5 million birds by more than 128,000 hunters participating in over 1.7 million hunting trips; and

Whereas, with that level of activity in the state of Louisiana, the enforcement division of the Department of Wildlife and Fisheries is confronted with the monumental task of enforcement of the provisions of the Migratory Bird Treaty Act, violations of which are estimated to have an annual negative impact on the state's economy of nearly $8.2 million; and

Whereas, the enforcement division of the Department of Wildlife and Fisheries has performed this responsibility through the years and, in fact, has issued more than eighty-nine percent of the citations issued for violations of the Migratory Bird Treaty Act, all without the benefit of federal monetary support for its efforts; Therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Louisiana Legislature does hereby memorialize the U.S. Congress to authorize and appropriate sufficient funds to the enforcement division of the Department of Wildlife and Fisheries to enable the enforcement of the Migratory Bird Treaty Act, and to enable efforts for conservation and protection of the migratory birds required by that Act; be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this Resolution be forwarded to the presiding officers of the House of Representatives and the Senate of the U.S. Congress and to each member of the Louisiana congressional delegation.

POM-564. A joint resolution adopted by the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Virginia relative to highway rest stops; to the Committee on Appropriations.

HOUSE JOINT RESOLUTION NO. 103

Whereas, it is a well-established fact that driver fatigue is a major factor contributing to highway accidents; and

Whereas, federal law prescribes limits on the number of continuous hours truckers may drive and the length of time they must rest before driving again; and

Whereas, one of the most convenient places where long-haul truckers could break their trip and get the rest they need to operate safely is rest stops along interstate highways; and

Whereas, this option is not realistically open to truckers, because the Commonwealth limits vehicle stays at these rest stops to no more than two hours; and

Whereas, the cost of motel rooms and the inability of many motel parking lots to accommodate large tractor-trailer combinations make use of motels an impractical option for truckers seeking to get their required rest as prescribed by federal law; and

Whereas, construction of additional interstate highway rest stops and expansion of existing facilities would enable truckers to comply with federal hours-of-service requirements safely and inexpensively, resulting in fewer highway accidents and improved safety for the motoring public: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the House of Delegates, the Senate concurring, That the Congress of the United States be urged to provide federal funding for expansion of certain highway rest stops and for construction of additional interstate highway rest stops and, be it

Resolved further, That the Clerk of the House of Delegates transmit copies of this resolution to the Speaker of the United States House of Representatives, the President of the United States Senate, and the members of the Virginia Congressional Delegation in order that they may be apprised of the sense of the General Assembly of Virginia in this matter.

POM-565. A joint resolution adopted by the Legislature of the State of California relative to hemophilia relief; to the Committee on Appropriations.

ASSEMBLY JOINT RESOLUTION NO. 55

Whereas, The Ricky Ray Hemophilia Relief Fund Act of 1998 (P.L. 105-369) was enacted by Congress to provide for compassionate payments to individuals with blood-clotting disorders, such as hemophilia, who contracted the human immunodeficiency virus due to contaminated blood products; and

Whereas, In its review of the events surrounding the HIV infection of thousands of people with blood-clotting disorders, such as hemophilia, a 1995 study, entitled "HIV and the Blood Supply," of the Institute of Medicine found a failure of leadership and an inadequate institutional decisionmaking process in the system responsible for ensuring blood safety, concluding that a failure of leadership led to less than effective donor screening, weak regulatory actions, and insufficient communication to patients about the risk of AIDS; and

Whereas, It is important for both the federal and state government to halt immediately the funding of a product or program if they become aware of a risk of infection when using the product and have not informed the public; and

Whereas, This legislation, named after a teenage hemophiliac who died from AIDS, was enacted to provide financial relief to the families of hemophiliacs who were devastated by the federal government's policy failure in its handling of the AIDS epidemic; and

Whereas, Although the relief bill has been enacted into law, Congress has been reluctant to fund it: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Assembly and Senate of the State of California, jointly, That the Legislature of the State of California respectfully memorializes the President and the Congress of the United States to fully fund the Ricky Ray Hemophilia Relief Fund, enacted into law under the Ricky Ray Hemophilia Relief Fund Act of 1998, so that there is no delay between the authorization and the timely appropriation of this relief; and be it further

Resolved, That the President and the Congress of the United States are respectfully urged to withhold the appropriation of funds to programs that have not clearly disclosed to the consumer the risks of infection for a product the program manufactures or distributes; and be it further

Resolved, That the Chief Clerk of the Assembly transmit copies of this resolution to the President and Vice President of the United States, to the Speaker of the House of Representatives, and to each Senator and Representative from California in the Congress of the United States.

NATIONAL WILDLIFE REFUGE SYSTEM CENTENNIAL COMMEMORATION ACT OF 2000

Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, I am proud to come before the Senate today to introduce the "National Wildlife Refuge System Centennial Commemoration Act of 2000". This landmark bill commemorates the centennial of the first national wildlife refuge in the United States, established on March 14, 1903, by a great man and conservationist, President Theodore Roosevelt. By setting aside land at Indian River Lagoon on Pelican Island, Florida as a haven for birds, President Roosevelt began a conservation legacy known as the National Wildlife Refuge System.

Today, the National Wildlife Refuge System has evolved into the most comprehensive system of lands devoted to wildlife protection and management in the world—spanning nearly 93 million acres across the United States and its territories. By placing special emphasis on conservation, our nation's network of refuges ensures the continued protection of our wildlife resources, including threatened and endangered species, and land areas with significant wildlife-oriented recreational, historical and cultural value.

Currently, there are more than 500 refuges in the United States and its territories, providing important habitat for 700 bird species, 220 mammal species, 250 species of amphibians and reptiles, and over 200 fish species. The Refuge System also hosts some of our country's premiere fisheries, and serves a vital role in the protection of threatened and endangered species by preserving their critical habitats.

Approximately 98 percent of the Refuge System land is open to the public. Each year, the System attracts more than 34 million visitors to participate in a variety of recreational activities that include observing and photographing wildlife, fishing, hunting and taking part in system-sponsored educational programs. By providing the public with an opportunity to participate in these activities, refuges promote a sense of appreciation for the natural wonders of this nation and emphasize our important role as stewards of these lands.

The bill that I introduce today marks a milestone in the history of conservation and celebrates 100-years of the National Wildlife Refuge System on March 14, 2003. The bill commemorates the Refuge System by creating a Commission that will oversee the Centennial anniversary and promote public awareness and understanding of the importance of refuges to our nation. Additionally, the bill directs the Fish and Wildlife Service to prepare a long-term plan for the Refuge System that will enable the Service to look ahead and determine the future needs and priorities of the system network.

This bill celebrates the legacy of our national refuge lands, and recognizes the tireless efforts of numerous dedicated individuals from both the private and public sectors who have worked to preserve this invaluable national heritage. I encourage my colleagues to show your support for the National Wildlife Refuge System by co-sponsoring this legislation. I ask unanimous consent to print the text of the bill in the appropriate place in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 2878

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "National Wildlife Refuge System Centennial Commemoration Act of 2000".

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

Congress finds that—

(1) President Theodore Roosevelt began an American wildlife conservation legacy by establishing the first national wildlife refuge at Indian River Lagoon on Pelican Island, Florida, on March 14, 1903;

(2) the National Wildlife Refuge System is comprised of more than 93,000,000 acres of Federal land managed by the United States Fish and Wildlife Service in more than 520 individual refuges and thousands of Waterfowl Production Areas located in all 50 States and the territories of the United States;

(3) the System is the only network of Federal land that—

(A) is dedicated singularly to wildlife conservation; and

(B) has wildlife-dependent recreation and environmental education as priority public uses;

(4) the System serves a vital role in the conservation of millions of migratory birds, hundreds of endangered and threatened species, some of the premier fisheries of the United States, marine mammals, and the habitats on which those species depend;

(5)(A) each year the System provides millions of Americans with opportunities to participate in wildlife-dependent recreation, including hunting, fishing, and wildlife observation; and

(B) through those activities, Americans develop an appreciation for the natural wonders and wildlife heritage of the United States;

(6) the occasion of the centennial of the beginning of the System, in 2003, presents a historic opportunity to enhance natural resource stewardship and expand compatible public enjoyment of the national wildlife refuges of the United States; and

(7) the United States Fish and Wildlife Service—

(A) recognizes that the System has a backlog of unmet critical operations and maintenance needs;

(B) has worked to prioritize those needs; and

(C) has made efforts to control the extent of the backlog.

(1) $100,000 for fiscal year 2001; and

(2) $250,000 for each of fiscal years 2002 through 2004.

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, I am pleased to join Chairman SMITH and others to introduce the "National Wildlife Refuge System Centennial Commemoration Act of 2000."

First established by that great conservation leader, President Theodore Roosevelt in 1903, the National Wildlife Refuge System has grown today to be the premier system of reserves for the conservation of wildlife habitat and biological diversity in the world.

There are more than 500 refuges today, supporting over 1500 vertebrate species and thousands of species of plants. Open to the public, these refuges are the focal point of thousands of visitors each year that participate in wildlife viewing, photography, hunting, fishing or biking. They are places where families go to introduce youngsters to nature and to teach them the meaning of stewardship.

In some cases, refuges provide the last habitats for endangered species. In all cases, the nearly 93 million acres in the National Wildlife Refuge system provide special places for wildlife, fish, plants and people. These lands provide a buffer against ever-increasing development and are reserved for future generations to enjoy and learn from.

In Montana, we have seven National Wildlife Refuges including the 2,800 acre Lee Metcalf Refuge, the 15,500 acre Bowdoin National Wildlife Refuge in the Central Flyway, and the National Bison Range, originally set aside to protect the last of the great bison herds.

Mr. President, the bill that we are introducing today will celebrate the last 100 years of the National Wildlife Refuge System on May 14, 2003. In addition, the bill establishes a commission to look ahead and plan for the future, including a review of the backlog of maintenance needs at our refuges. It is my hope that this bill will increase public awareness and understanding of these national treasures.

I encourage my colleagues to support this bill.

By Ms. COLLINS (for herself, Mr. BREAUX, Mr. ABRAHAM, Mr. BUNNING, and Mr. CRAIG)

S. 2879. A bill to amend the Public Health Service Act to establish programs and activities to address diabetes in children and youth, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

PEDIATRIC DIABETES RESEARCH AND PREVENTION ACT

Ms. COLLINS. Mr. President, today, on behalf of myself, Senator BREAUX, and Senator ABRAHAM, I am pleased to introduce the Pediatric Diabetes Research and Prevention Act. Both Senator BREAUX and Senator ABRAHAM have been leaders in the fight against diabetes.

Our legislation will help us reduce the tremendous toll that diabetes takes on our Nation's children and young people. Diabetes is a devastating, lifelong condition that affects people of every age, race, and nationality.

Sixteen million Americans suffer from diabetes, and about 800,000 new cases are diagnosed each year. It is one of our nation's most costly diseases in both human and economic terms. Diabetes is the leading cause of kidney failure, blindness in adults, and amputations not related to injury. It is a major risk factor for heart disease and stroke and shortens life expectancy up to 15 years. Moreover, diabetes costs our nation more than $105 billion a year in health-related expenditures. More than one out of every ten health care dollars and about one out of four Medicare dollars are spent on people with diabetes.

Unfortunately, there is no method to prevent or cure diabetes, and available treatments have only limited success in controlling its devastating consequences. The burden of diabetes is particularly heavy for children and young adults with type I, or insulin dependent diabetes, also known as juvenile diabetes. In type I diabetes, the immune system attacks the insulin-producing beta cell in the pancreas and destroys them. As a consequence, the pancreas produces little or no insulin. Juvenile diabetes is the second most common chronic disease affecting children. Moreover, it is one that they never outgrow.

As the founder of the Senate Diabetes Caucus, I have met many children with diabetes who face a daily struggle to keep their blood glucose levels under control: kids like nine-year-old Nathan Reynolds, an active young boy from North Yarmouth who was Maine's delegate to the Juvenile Diabetes Foundation's Children's Congress last year. Nathan was diagnosed with diabetes in December of 1997, which forced him to change both his life and his family's life. He has learned how to take his blood—something his four-year-old brother reminds him to do before every meal—check his blood sugar level, and give himself an insulin shot on his own, sometimes with the help of his parents or his school nurse. Nathan told me that his greatest wish was that, just once, he could take a "day off" from his diabetes.

The sad fact is that children like Nathan with diabetes can never take a day off from their disease. There is no holiday from dealing with their diabetes. They face a lifetime of multiple daily finger pricks to check their blood sugar levels and daily insulin shots. Moreover, insulin is not a cure for diabetes, and it does not prevent the onset of serious complications. As a consequence, children like Nathan also face the possibility of lifelong disabling complications, such as kidney failure and blindness.

Reducing the health and human burden of diabetes as well as its enormous economic impact depends upon identifying the factors responsible for the disease and developing new methods for prevention, better treatment, and ultimately a cure. The Pediatric Diabetes Research and Prevention Act, which I am introducing today, will do just that.

One of the most important actions we can take is to establish a type I diabetes monitoring system. Currently, there is no way to track the incidence of type I diabetes across the country. As a consequence, the estimates for the number of people with type I diabetes from the American Diabetes Association, the Juvenile Diabetes Foundation, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, and the National Institutes of Health vary enormously—from 123,000 to over 1.5 million, a 13-fold variation.

According to noted epidemiologist Alex Languimer, "Good monitoring does not necessarily ensure the making of right decisions, but it does reduce the risk of wrong ones." One of the best ways to define the prevalence and incidence of a disease, as well as to characterize and study populations, is to establish a registry specific to that disease. The bill I am introducing today directs the Secretary of Health and Human Services (HHS), acting through the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), to create a National Registry on Juvenile Diabetes so that we can develop a national database on type I diabetes, including information about incidence and prevalence. The Secretary would also be directed to establish an advisory board of epidemiologists, clinicians, ethicists, patients and others to help guide this effort.

Obesity and inadequate physical activity—both major problems in the United States today—are important risk factors for type 2, or non-insulin dependent diabetes. Unfortunately, obesity is a significant and growing problem among children in the United States, which has led to a disturbing increase in the incidence of type 2 diabetes among young people. This is particularly alarming since type 2 diabetes has long been considered an "adult" disease. Nearly all of the documented cases of type 2 diabetes in young people have occurred in obese children, who are also at increased risk for the complications associated with the disease. Moreover, these complications will likely develop at an earlier age than if these children had developed type 2 diabetes as adults.

The Pediatric Diabetes Research and Prevention Act will direct the Secretary of HHS to implement a national public health effort to address type 2 diabetes among children, including: 1) enhanced surveillance systems and expanded research to better assess the prevalence of type 2 diabetes in young people and determine the extent to which type 2 diabetes is incorrectly diagnosed as type 1 diabetes among children; 2) assistance to States to establish coordinated school health programs and physical activity and nutrition demonstration projects to control weight and to increase physical activity among school children; and 3) development and improvement of laboratory methods to assist in diagnosis, treatment, and prevention of diabetes.

In addition, the Collins, Breau, Abraham legislation calls for long-term studies of persons with type 1 diabetes at the National Institutes of Health (NIH) where these individuals will be followed for 10 years or more. These long-term studies will examine disease manifestations, medical histories, environmental factors, development of complications, and other factors. This long-term analysis of type 1 diabetes will provide an invaluable basis for the identification of potential environmental triggers thought to precipitate the disease. It will also provide for the delineation of clinical characteristics or lab measures associated with the complications of diabetes as well as help to identify a potential study population for clinical trials.

Type 1 diabetes is considered an autoimmune disease, which results when the body's system for fighting infection turns against a part of the body. A variety of promising new approaches to treatment and prevention of autoimmune responses are currently under development. For the most part, however, these studies are conducted in adult populations. Moreover, at present, there is an insufficient infrastructure to conduct the clinical trials necessary to take advantage of new therapeutic approaches.

The Pediatric Diabetes Research and Prevention Act directs the Secretary of HHS, acting through the Director of the NIH, to support regional clinical centers for the cure of type 1 diabetes and through these centers, provides for: (1) a population of children appropriate for study; (2) well-trained clinical scientists able to conduct such trials; (3) appropriate clinical settings to house these studies; and (4) appropriate statistical capability, data, safety and other monitoring capacity.

And finally, the legislation directs the Secretary of HHS to provide for a national effort to develop a vaccine for type 1 diabetes. Animal studies suggest great promise for the development of a new vaccine to prevent type 1 diabetes in humans. The Pediatric Diabetes Research and Prevention Act provides for a combination of increased efforts in research and development of candidate vaccines, coupled with an enhanced ability to conduct large clinical trials in children.

The Pediatric Diabetes Research and Prevention Act will help us to better understand and ultimately conquer this disease which has had such a devastating impact on millions of American children and their families. I urge all of my colleagues to join me in cosponsoring this important legislation.

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, will the Senator yield to me?

Ms. COLLINS. I am happy to yield to the Senator from Idaho.

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, I thank the Senator from Maine, and I want to recognize her leadership in this area.

In the last couple of years, I have begun to focus my attention on childhood type 1 diabetes. What the Senator from Maine is offering today is clearly moving us well in advance.

I ask the Senator to allow me to be a sponsor of her legislation.

The Senator's effort struck a particularly loud chord with me, because it was exactly one year ago today that the Senate and I lost a friend and colleague, Ken Foss, related to his diabetes.

This Senate and this Congress should focus on diabetes, as we have cancer and other health areas in our country, to move more quickly toward a cure.

The Senator is so right in recognizing we have already moved a long way and there is a great deal known. My rather limited reading suggests that the great push forward might well break us into those areas of remedy, at least for type 1, and there is a great deal of work going on. My congratulations to the Senator for her leadership in that area. I stand to help in any way I can.

Ms. COLLINS. Mr. President, I very much appreciate the kind, supportive words from my colleague. I am very honored to add him as a cosponsor of my bill.

By Mr. CONRAD (for himself and Mr. DORGAN):

S. 2880. A bill to provide construction assistance for a project for a water transmission line from the Missouri River to the city of Williston, North Dakota; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

CONSTRUCTION ASSISTANCE WATER PROJECT IN WILLISTON, NORTH DAKOTA

THE WILLISTON WATER TRANSMISSION LINE

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce legislation to authorize the Army Corps of Engineers to construct a new water transmission line from the Missouri River to the city of Williston. This project is very important to the reliability of the water supply for the residents of Williston and is needed to mitigate long-term consequences from construction of the Garrison Dam.

The construction of the Garrison Dam and creation of Lake Sakakawea by the Corps forced the city of Williston to relocate its water intake and treatment plant to its present location approximately five miles upstream of the city. As a requirement of the new location, a large-diameter transmission line was constructed to convey the entire city's water supply from the treatment plant to the city.

All of the water for the city's residents and businesses must flow through this single transmission line. As a result, the existing transmission line is the only link between the water treatment plant and the city's water distribution system.

The existing transmission line has been in service for nearly 40 years with limited maintenance to date in part because the line runs through an area near the river that has become supersaturated due to the rising water table behind the dam. As the transmission line continues to age, it has become susceptible to failures, as demonstrated in April 1998.

On April 8, 1998, maintenance crews discovered a major leak in the transmission line near the water treatment plant. City officials immediately alerted residents of the problem and imposed water restrictions to essential water uses only. Through an emergency declaration, the National Guard was enlisted to install an overland pipeline to help provide temporary water for the city. The high water table from Lake Sakakawea made repairs difficult with extensive pumping and dewatering procedures needed to locate and fix the broken pipeline. It took more than two weeks to make the necessary repairs. If the failure had occurred during the winter, repairs and temporary water service would have been almost impossible to provide. This experience supports the need for Williston to have a second transmission line from the water treatment plant to the city's water distribution system.

The bill I am introducing today will authorize the Corps to construct a new transmission line. The city has identified a new route for the line that provides improved access, avoids unstable site conditions, provides potential service for future industrial sites, while minimizing the length and cost of the new transmission line.

Mr. President, I believe the Federal government has a responsibility to assist communities mitigate the adverse consequences resulting from the construction of the Garrison Dam and creation of Lake Sakakawea. The Corps of Engineers built the Garrison Dam which resulted in the need for this project, and in my view the Corps should be responsible for addressing the unintended consequences of building that dam. This bill will help the Federal government live up to its responsibility and ensure that the residents of Williston have a reliable water supply. I urge my colleagues to review this legislation quickly so we can pass it this year, before there is another disruption to the city's water supply.

S. 2882. A bill to authorize Bureau of Reclamation to conduct certain feasibility studies to augment water supplies for the Klamath Project, Oregon and California, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

THE KLAMATH BASIN WATER SUPPLY
ENHANCEMENT ACT OF 2000

Mr. SMITH of Oregon. Mr. President, today I am introducing legislation, cosponsored by my colleague Mr. WYDEN, to authorize the Bureau of Reclamation, an agency of the Department of the Interior, to conduct feasibility studies in the Klamath basin.

The Klamath Project in Oregon and California is one of the earliest federal reclamation projects. The Secretary of the Interior authorized development of the project on May 15, 1905, under provisions of the Reclamation Act of 1902. The project irrigates over 200,000 acres of farmland in south-central Oregon and north-central California. The two main sources of water supply for the project are Upper Klamath Lake and the Klamath River, as well as Clear Lake Reservoir, Gerber Reservoir, and Lost River, which are located in a closed basin. The total drainage area is approximately 5,700 square miles. The Klamath River is subject to an interstate compact between the States of Oregon and California.

There are also several wildlife refuges in the basin that are an important part of the western flyway. There are listed suckers in Upper Klamath Lake that require the lake to be maintained at certain levels throughout the summer. There are also salmon in the Klamath River for which federal agencies are seeking additional flow. It is my understanding that there will be significant additional flow requirements next year.

The Upper Basin has not been adjudicated by the State of Oregon, which is trying to use an alternative process to formal adjudication. The tribes in the basin are also seeking a resolution of their water rights claims.

In recent years, there has been growing concern about meeting the competing needs of various water uses in the Basin, including the needs of the farmers, the fish, the tribes and the wildlife refuges. There is a consensus in the basin about the need to increase overall water supplies in order to meet these growing needs and enhance the environment.

The bill I am introducing today is an effort to build on this consensus. I have discussed the concepts in this bill with a number of the stakeholders in the Upper Basin, and I am committed to a legislative process that will consider the views of the various interest groups in the basin. I know that there will be other issues that stakeholders will want considered, and I will endeavor to do so.

I believe it is vitally important, however, that we take the first step to enable the Department of the Interior to study ways to improve both the water quality and the water quantity in the Upper Klamath basin. There is significant private irrigation in the Upper Basin as well, and I am committed to a process that includes these water users as well.

By Mr. CRAPO (for himself, Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire, Mr. HUTCHINSON, Mr. CRAIG, Mr. SHELBY, Mr. COVERDELL, Mr. ENZI, Mr. GRAMM, and Mr. INHOFE):

S.J. Res. 50. A joint resolution to disapprove a final rule promulgated by the Environmental Protection Agency concerning water pollution; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

DISAPPROVING A FINAL RULE PROMULGATED BY THE ENVIRONMENTAL PROTECTION AGENCY CONCERNING WATER POLLUTION

• Mr. CRAPO. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce a joint resolution, co-sponsored by Senators BOB SMITH, HUTCHINSON, CRAIG, SHELBY, COVERDELL, ENZI, GRAMM, and INHOFE, revoking the Environmental Protection Agency's (EPA) rule on Total Maximum Daily Loads under the Clean Water Act.

I strongly support the EPA's goal of cleaning up our nation's water bodies but disagree with its approach. We must accelerate cleanup of our rivers, lakes, and streams; unfortunately, the EPA's rule will not accomplish that goal. In fact, the EPA's hastily completed rule will divert billions of dollars from programs that are working to an unreasonable, prohibitively-expensive, and technically-unworkable program.

Since the EPA's draft TMDL rule was first published in August 1999, many stakeholders including states, industry, environmental organizations, the public, and Congress have all raised serious concerns. The EPA received over 34,000 public comments, most overwhelmingly in opposition to the rule. Twenty public forums were conducted; again, sentiments ran overwhelmingly in opposition to the EPA's rule. Twelve congressional hearings were held, revealing that the proposal is unreasonable and unworkable. The National Governors' Association denounced the rule as an inflexible, unfunded mandate that will eliminate opportunities to reduce overall pollution. In a May 19 letter, six environmental groups urged the EPA to "withdraw the current version of the proposed rule, which is so fundamentally flawed that it would weaken the existing TMDL program."

When it became clear that the EPA was ignoring concerns and proceeding to fast-track its rule, even in the face of such serious opposition, Congress, rightly, exercised its oversight responsibility by including specific language in the Fiscal Year 2001 Military Construction Supplemental Appropriations bill to prevent finalization of the rule. Similar language was also passed by the House in the FY 2001 VA-HUM-Independent Agencies Appropriations bill. In clear defiance of Congress, the EPA promulgated the rule on July 11, 2000.

The Congressional Review Act, 5 U.S.C. 801-808 provides for expedited congressional review of agency rule-making; specially, Section 802 provides a legislative procedure by which Congress can disapprove an agency's rule. This congressional review statute was approved in the 104th Congress for situations just such as this to reserve to Congress a mechanism for exercising its agency oversight responsibility.

It is important that we work to develop a program that will enhance, not hinder, our cleanup efforts. Repeatedly, the EPA was urged to repropose a rule that will accomplish our goal of more clean water more quickly; revoking the hurriedly completed rule will allow the EPA to focus its efforts on a program that will actually achieve the goals of the Clean Water Act. I urge my colleagues to join me in opposing the EPA's efforts to circumvent Congress and encouraging it to develop an effective proposal in collaboration with the public.●

SENATE RESOLUTION 337—RELATIVE TO THE DEATH OF THE HONORABLE JOHN O. PASTORE, FORMERLY A SENATOR FROM THE STATE OF RHODE ISLAND

By Mr. LOTT (for himself and Mr. DASCHLE) submitted the following resolution; which was considered and agreed to:

S. RES. 337

Resolved, That the Senate has heard with profound sorrow and deep regret the announcement of the death of the Honorable John O. Pastore, formerly a Senator from the State of Rhode Island.

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Senate communicate these resolutions to the House of Representatives and transmit an enrolled copy thereof to the family of the deceased.

Resolved, That when the Senate adjourns today, it stand adjourned as a further mark of respect to the memory of the deceased Senator.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, tonight, as we adjourn, we do so in memory of John O. Pastore, who served the people of Rhode Island here in the Senate from 1950 to 1976.

Senator Pastore's life was in many ways a realization of the American dream—characterized by humble beginnings, hard work, opportunity, and accomplishment. His father was an immigrant tailor who passed away when John was a young boy. From that time on, he and his four siblings were reared by their mother, who supported the family as a seamstress.

Senator Pastore earned his law degree from Northeastern University, through evening classes the school offered at the Providence YMCA. The family home was his first law office.

Senator Pastore was initially elected to office in 1934, when he became a Member of the Rhode Island House of Representatives. He subsequently served as assistant state attorney general, lieutenant governor, and in 1945 became governor when his predecessor resigned for another office. Senator Pastore was then elected to two terms in his own right.

In 1950, he was elected to the U.S. Senate to fill a vacant seat. Two years later, he won the first of four full terms in this institution. He never lost an election.

Many individuals have passed through the doors of this great chamber, and each has left a unique imprint. Senators for years to come will think of John Pastore whenever the "Pastore rule", relating to germaneness of debate, is invoked.

Senator Pastore will be remembered in the United States Senate as a servant of the people and a man committed to his beliefs.

Today, the thoughts and prayers of the Senate are with his family and his constituents.

given the term in section 2 of the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide, and Rodenticide Act (7 U.S.C. 136).

Mr. REID (for Mr. BINGAMAN) proposed an amendment to the bill, H.R. 4578, supra; as follows:

On page 163, after line 23, add the following:

SEC. . (a) FINDINGS.—The Senate makes the following findings:

(1) in 1990, pursuant to the Indian Self Determination and Education Assistance Act (ISDEA), 25 U.S.C. et seq., a class action lawsuit was filed by Indian tribal contractors and tribal consortia against the United States, the Secretary of the Interior and others seeking redress for failure to fully pay for indirect contract support costs (Ramah Navajo Chapter v. Babbitt, 112 F.3d 1455 (10th Cir. 1997));

(2) the parties negotiated a partial settlement of the claim totaling $76,200,000 which was approved by the court on May 14, 1999;

(3) the partial settlement was paid by the United States on September 14, 1999, in the amount of $82,000,000;

(4) the Judgment Fund, 31 U.S.C. 1304, was established to pay for legal judgments awarded to plaintiffs who have filed suit against the United States;

(5) the Contract Disputes Act of 1978 requires that the Judgment Fund be reimbursed by the responsible agency following the payment of an award from the Fund;

(6) because the potential exists that Indian program funds in the Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA) and the Indian Health Service (IHS) would be used in Fiscal Year 2001 to reimburse the Judgment Fund, resulting in significant financial and administrative disruptions in the BIA, the IHS, and the Indian tribes who rely on such funds.

(b) SENSE OF THE SENATE.—It is the sense of the Senate that—

(1) the Secretary of the Interior and the Secretary of the Department of Health and Human Services should declare Indian program funds unavailable for purposes of reimbursing the judgment fund; and

(2) if the Secretary of the Interior and the Secretary of the Department of Health and Human Services determines that there are no other available funds, the agencies through the Administration should seek an appropriation of funds from Congress to provide for reimbursement of the judgment fund.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, tonight, as we adjourn, we do so in memory of John O. Pastore, who served the people of Rhode Island here in the Senate from 1950 to 1976.

Senator Pastore's life was in many ways a realization of the American dream—characterized by humble beginnings, hard work, opportunity, and accomplishment. His father was an immigrant tailor who passed away when John was a young boy. From that time on, he and his four siblings were reared by their mother, who supported the family as a seamstress.

Senator Pastore earned his law degree from Northeastern University, through evening classes the school offered at the Providence YMCA. The family home was his first law office.

Senator Pastore was initially elected to office in 1934, when he became a Member of the Rhode Island House of Representatives. He subsequently served as assistant state attorney general, lieutenant governor, and in 1945 became governor when his predecessor resigned for another office. Senator Pastore was then elected to two terms in his own right.

In 1950, he was elected to the U.S. Senate to fill a vacant seat. Two years later, he won the first of four full terms in this institution. He never lost an election.

Many individuals have passed through the doors of this great chamber, and each has left a unique imprint. Senators for years to come will think of John Pastore whenever the “Pastore rule”, relating to germaneness of debate, is invoked.

Senator Pastore will be remembered in the United States Senate as a servant of the people and a man committed to his beliefs.

Today, the thoughts and prayers of the Senate are with his family and his constituents.

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the resolution be agreed to, the preamble be agreed to, the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table, and a statement of explanation appear at this point in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The resolution (S. Res. 337) was agreed to.

The preamble was agreed to.

The resolution, with its preamble, reads as follows:

S. RES. 337

Resolved, That when the Senate adjourns today, it stand adjourned as a further mark of respect to the memory of the deceased Senator.

ORDERS FOR TUESDAY, JULY 18, 2000

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that when the Senate completes its business today, it adjourn until the hour of 9:15 a.m. on Tuesday, July 18.

I further ask unanimous consent that on Tuesday, immediately following the prayer, the Journal of the proceedings be approved to date, the morning hour be deemed to have expired, the time for the two leaders be reserved for their use later in the day, and the Senate then resume consideration of the Interior appropriations bill under the previous order.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, further, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate stand in recess from 12:30 p.m. until 2:15 p.m. for the weekly party conferences to meet.

Following the disposition of the Interior appropriations bill, the Senate will begin the final four votes on the reconciliation bill. Therefore, Senators should be prepared to stay in the Chamber for up to 12 votes, with all votes after the first vote limited to 10 minutes each.

For the remainder of the day, it is expected that the Senate will begin consideration of the Agriculture appropriations bill.
