NEVADA'S PRESCRIPTION DRUG PLAN WILL WORK

(Mr. GIBBONS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GIBBONS. Madam Speaker, last week Vice President GORE criticized the State of Nevada for its innovative prescription drug plan for seniors.

Mr. GORE said it would not work. Mr. GORE said it was a complete failure. He also said insurance companies would not participate.

Well, Mr. Speaker, I rise today to respectfully say that Mr. GORE's statements about Nevada's prescription drug plan were false and misleading, and Mr. GORE should apologize to the hard-working people of Nevada.

At least five insurance companies have asked to serve as the vendor for the State's program. The State of Nevada will provide the selected insurance company with help and, in turn, Nevada's low-income seniors will truly benefit from reduced prescription costs, starting next year.

Providing an insurance-based prescription drug benefit can work and Nevada is leading the way. It is time to get Washington, D.C. out of the medicine cabinets of American seniors. It is time to follow Nevada's lead and provide a voluntary, flexible, and affordable prescription drug plan under Medicare.

INDONESIAN MILITIAS KILL U.N. STAFF IN WEST TIMOR

(Mr. MCGOVERN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. MCGOVERN. Madam Speaker, in 1999, militias, armed and supported by the Indonesian military, rampaged through East Timor because the people of East Timor voted for freedom and independence.

One year later, the militias are on the rampage again. Today, pro-Indonesia militias killed at least three United Nations refugee workers in West Timor.

Over 100,000 refugees from East Timor remain trapped in squalid refugee camps in West Timor, under the control of the militias. These U.N. workers were providing much-needed relief to these refugees.

Let me tell my colleagues how they died. A mob of thousands of militiamen, wielding machetes and rifles stormed the U.N. headquarters in West Timor. The militias stabbed their victims to death, dragged their bodies into the street, and then set them on fire.

President Clinton must condemn these brutal murders and demand the Indonesian government disarm and disband the militias and ensure the safe return of the refugees to East Timor.

Finally, the United States must maintain the suspension of all U.S. military aid and relations with the Indonesian military until this has been accomplished.

The murder and mayhem in West Timor must stop today.

THE FIRST CONGRESS OPENED WITH PRAYER

(Mr. PITTS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. PITTS. Madam Speaker, on this day, September 6, 1774, 226 years ago, the first Congress assembled in Philadelphia. According to the Records of Congress, Congress established two important precedents on that day. First, rules of governing its procedures; and, second, it decided to open its sessions with prayer.

John Adams provided the details on that second decision, reporting that ''When Congress first met, Mr. Cushing made a motion that it should be opened in prayer. It was opposed by one or two, because we were so divided in religious sentiment that we could not agree on the same act of worship. Mr. Samuel Adams rose and said, 'He was no bigot, and could hear a prayer from a gentleman of piety and virtue, who was at the same time a friend to his country, and therefore he moved that Mr. Duche, an Episcopalian clergyman, might be desired to read prayers to the Congress tomorrow morning.' The motion was seconded and passed in the affirmative.''

Interestingly, although objections were raised against public prayers two centuries ago, Congress quickly learned that prayer was a unifying rather than a dividing force. Now, two centuries later, we still benefit from what they learned 226 years ago today.

TAKE HEED REGARDING ELECTRIC UTILITY DEREGULATION

(Mr. FILNER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. FILNER. Madam Speaker, I returned home, like all of my colleagues, to my district in August. And what did I find in my hometown of San Diego? In a word, disaster.

San Diego is the first area of California to fully deregulate its electrical utility industry. The result is that in just 3 months the double and tripling of electrical rates by the price-gouging electrical generators; seniors on fixed incomes wondering whether to turn up their air conditioning or pay for their medicines; small businesses wondering how long they can hold out; hospitals, libraries, youth centers, schools, the military, all their budgets thrown into turmoil.

While the State legislature has just administered a Band-Aid to stop the bleeding, we need stronger and longer-lasting action. I am asking the House today to pass legislation to roll back the wholesale rates for electricity in the western region and roll those back retroactively. Those who have gouged our consumers for more than $350 million in the last 3 months should pay the bill for their actions.

We need to take this action now. So, my colleagues, welcome back, but look closely at San Diego. We are the poster children for the nation. Many of my colleagues have deregulation bills in their States and we have deregulation bills on our floor. Deregulation cannot work when the basic commodity is controlled by monopolies. Take heed, Congress.

DEATH TAX OVERRIDE

(Mr. BALLENGER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BALLENGER. Madam Speaker, author Pearl S. Buck once wrote, ''Our society must make it right and possible for old people not to fear the young or to be deserted by them, for the test of a civilization is the way that it cares for its helpless members.'' Yet our Nation's tax policies do desert the elderly.

The IRS bureaucrats tax seniors who work, scrimp, and save all their lives to build a business or a family farm. Their property and profits are taxed yearly. They even pay taxes on their employees. And what is the result? Upon the death of the owner, a successful business is hit with a death tax of up to 55 percent of the business' worth. Most family businesses cannot survive such crippling taxes, and families are forced to sell.

The death tax is uncivilized. Let us override the Clinton veto of the death tax.

CONGRESS SHOULD LOOK INTO CHINESE MONEY LAUNDERING SCHEME AND ATTORNEY GENERAL'S REFUSAL TO INVESTIGATE

(Mr. TRAFICANT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. TRAFICANT. Madam Speaker, something stinks. First it was the Chinese general, then it was the Chinese Communist party, and then along came another 96 Chinese nationals. And they all had one thing in common: They all made illegal contributions to the Democratic National Committee.

□ 1415

And after all that, the Justice Department said no investigation is warranted.

Now, if that was not enough to tip off Barney Fife, my colleagues, task force chairmen LaBella and Conrad and FBI Director Louis Freeh all recommended an independent counsel for the matter and Janet Reno said no. She said no three times, my colleagues.

Beam me up.

Janet Reno has betrayed America.

Congress should demand immediately an investigation into both this Chinese money laundry business and, number two, Janet Reno.

I yield back the statement of the CIA that, as we speak, Chinese missiles are pointed at us.

ESTATE TAX

(Mr. EHLERS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. EHLERS. Madam Speaker, when I was a young lad, I grew up successively in two different farming villages. One had 800 occupants. Another had 200. And I became acquainted with the work of the farmers. They work very, very hard. They struggle to build their farms. They reinvest in their farms. And when they die, they want to leave it to their children.

But unfortunately, because of something called the death tax, established in order to finance World War I, they frequently are not able to leave that farm to their children.

The death tax can be as high as 55 or 60 percent. They simply cannot afford to pay the tax in order to keep the farm. They do not have the cash. Their money is tied up in the land.

We passed a bill in the House and the Senate to get rid of the death tax. The President vetoed that plan. He and the Democrats in this Chamber argue that this is a tax cut for the rich. They should go talk to some farmers. They will find out they are not rich. Their money is tied up in the land. It is not in their wallets.

I urge that we override the President's veto and make things right for these people.

The rich escape the estate tax. They have attorneys who show them all the ways to get rid of it. The farmers cannot afford to hire those attorneys.

I urge an override of the veto.

INTERNATIONAL CHILD ABDUCTION

(Mr. LAMPSON asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. LAMPSON. Madam Speaker, I rise today on my continued effort to bring to the attention of this House my deepest concern for the American families destroyed by cases of international child abduction.

Today I will share with my colleagues the story of Ms. Ildiko Gerbatsch and her two daughters, Naomi, 13, and Isabelle, 10.

In the summer of 1997, Naomi and Isabelle visited their father in Germany. At the end of the children's visit, their father failed to return them to their mother in the United States. After 3 years of legal disputes costing close to $100,000 in legal fees, the mother now has full custody of both children, but only on paper.

Ms. Gerbatsch has only been allowed to visit with Naomi and Isabelle on three occasions. She has been mistreated by the German courts, who have failed to comply with the Hague Treaty.

Madam Speaker, I come to the floor for these daily 1-minutes because I care about families and reuniting children and parents. Let us make it our duty to place pressure on countries who are Hague signatories and who choose not to abide by that agreement.

I urge my colleagues to join me in spreading the message and taking a responsible role in bringing our children home.

SAVING SOCIAL SECURITY AND IMPROVING EDUCATION IN AMERICA

(Mr. SMITH of Michigan asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. Madam Speaker, over the last month, I held many town hall meetings, meetings with constituents across the 7th Congressional District of Michigan.

Two priority issues that seem to come from those meetings as a message to me to bring back to Washington was making sure we save Social Security, not only a concern of the seniors but a concern of their kids and their grandkids.

Secondly was somehow doing a better job to improve education to make sure every child has the opportunity to learn to their maximum potential.

So I challenge myself and I challenge my colleagues to give education a top priority, to get the money out of Washington and into the district.

In terms of Social Security, we must have provisions that make sure that that generation that works so hard, that did so much, that sacrificed, that saved string, that saved tinfoil are not deprived of the Social Security that they have been promised by this Congress. Let us make that effort.

In the last 7½ years, this administration has failed to give us the leadership to solve those problems.

SAVING SOCIAL SECURITY AND IMPROVING EDUCATION IN AMERICA

(Mr. SMITH of Michigan asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. Madam Speaker, over the last month, I held many town hall meetings, and forums with constituents across the 7th Congressional District of Michigan.

Two priority issues that came up in most every meeting was Education and Social Security. Making sure we save Social Security, was not only a concern of the seniors but a concern of younger workers.

Parents were concerned about the K through 12 education for their kids; somehow doing a better job to improve education to make sure every child has the opportunity to learn to their maximum potential.

So I challenge myself and I challenge my colleagues to give education a top priority, to get the money out of Washington and into the class room so educators and parents can decide how best to use it.

In terms of Social Security, we must have provisions that make sure that that generation that worked so hard, that did so much, that sacrificed, that saved string, that bundled tinfoil for the war effort are not deprived of the Social Security that they were promised. Let us make that effort.

In the last 7½ years, this administration has failed to give us the leadership to solve those problems. Let us do better in the future.

STATE DEPARTMENT ANNUAL REPORT ON INTERNATIONAL RELIGIOUS FREEDOM

(Mr. WOLF asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. WOLF. Madam Speaker, the State Department's Annual Report on International Religious Freedom was released yesterday.

Among the countries that continue to stand out because of their horrible record on religious freedom are China and Sudan.

The report says of China: ''Government respect for religious freedom in China deteriorated, as the persecution of several religious minorities increased.''

Such groups as Tibetan Buddhists, Muslims, Falun Gong practitioners, and unofficial Protestants and Roman Catholics were subject to harassment, extortion, prolonged detention, physical abuse, and incarceration in prison or reeducation camps through labor, while the State Department says that there are credible reports that the Chinese Government beat and tortured these people of faith.

Also, in Sudan, it says the Muslim-dominated regime continued to persecute members of different religious minorities, Christian and Muslim.

The report says that much of the world's population lives in countries in which the right to religious freedom is restricted or prohibited.

The Congress, the Clinton administration, and the next administration must do more to stand up for those who are persecuted or suffer because of their religious faith.

PRESIDENT CLINTON'S TRAVEL EXCESSES

(Mr. STEARNS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. STEARNS. Madam Speaker, remember back in 1992 when President Clinton was criticizing then President Bush for his travels around the world? And remember in the Democrat Convention they had T-shirts that said, ''George Bush's around-the-world tour''?

Well, it has been 8 years. Let us look at the record. President Clinton has been one of the most widely traveled of all Presidents, according to the Washington Post. He has traveled with huge entourages. He has spent almost $300 million just in the last 3 years. And while his term is ending, President Clinton decided to go on one more worldwide tour while he still was on the taxpayers' tab.

According to the GAO, Clinton and other government officials had been on 159 trips in the last 3 years.

Mr. President, it is time to come home and tend to business.

PRESCRIPTION DRUG PLANS

(Ms. NORTON asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. NORTON. Madam Speaker, after the Bush press conference yesterday, there are now competing prescription drug plans from the candidates. But for the elderly or the baby-boomers, the competition is already over.

The Bush plan is a fundamental, third-rail change from universally available benefits the way Social Security and Medicare have always been to a low-income benefit more like welfare. If they have little money, they get it; otherwise, they do not.

I represent a lot of lower-income seniors who will be taken care of by either both the Bush or the Gore plan. But I am not about to support a plan that leaves out my many middle-income seniors who are in the same boat when it comes to expensive drugs.

Governor Bush cannot restructure Medicare by restructuring the middle class out of it.

The Chair recognizes the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. MORELLA).

GENERAL LEAVE

Mrs. MORELLA. Madam Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on H.R. 4884.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentlewoman from Maryland?

There was no objection.

Mrs. MORELLA. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, I commend the sponsor of this legislation, the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. KNOLLENBERG), for introducing this legislation,

H.R. 4884, introduced on July 19, 2000, that designates the facility of the United States Postal Service located at 200 West 2nd Street in Royal Oak, Michigan, as the ''William S. Broomfield Post Office Building.''

This legislation has the support of all members of the House delegation from the State of Michigan, pursuant to the policy of the Committee on Government Reform.

Madam Speaker, it is my privilege to speak briefly on the former Member of Congress and my friend, William S. Broomfield, for whom I was privileged to serve for 6 years.

Mr. Broomfield was born in Royal Oak, Michigan, and graduated from Michigan State College, now known as Michigan State University. He served in the United States Army Air Corps during the Second World War and then went into the real estate and property management business.

Bill, as he continues to be known by his friends and by those whom he has represented, was elected to the Michigan State House of Representatives from 1949 to 1954. He served as speaker pro tem in 1953. He was then elected to the State Senate in 1955 and 1956.

In January 1957, Michigan's 18th district elected him to the 85th Congress. He served for 17 succeeding Congresses until January 1992, when he voluntarily retired.

During his tenure in Congress, Representative Broomfield served as a member of the Committee on Foreign Affairs and was ranking member from 1975 until his retirement in 1992.

After retirement, Bill Broomfield started a foundation in Michigan that supports various charities in southeast Michigan, including the efforts to cure cancer, spina bifida, Alzheimer's, and the Salvation Army.

Mr. Broomfield is now a resident of Lake Orion, Michigan. It is fitting that a post office be named after William S. Broomfield in Royal Oak, the birthplace of this dedicated and respected public servant.

I wholeheartedly endorse this resolution and urge all of our colleagues to support this bill, H.R. 4884, honoring Bill Broomfield, a gentleman and a colleague and a friend of many in this House.

Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. CUMMINGS. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, as a member of the House Committee on Government Reform, I am pleased to join my friend and fellow committee member, the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. MORELLA), in the consideration of these postal-naming bills.

We seek to pass bills which name eight post offices after a number of distinguished Americans. Collectively, we will honor two former Members of Congress, a pastor, the first African American chaplain, a POW, an assemblyman, and the first African American municipal court judge and a fine university educator and administrator. I look forward to the swift passage of these measures, as H.R. 4884.

This bill, which redesignates a post office after William S. Broomfield, was introduced by the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. KNOLLENBERG) on July 19, 2000.

Mr. Broomfield was born in Royal Oak, Michigan, and graduated from high school and attended Michigan State College. He served in the United States Army Air Corps and was a member of the Michigan State House and Senate. He was elected to the 85th Congress in 1956 and represented the 18th Congressional District until his retirement in 1992.

Former Congressman Broomfield was a member of the Committee on International Relations and widely recognized as a consensus builder. He represented his constituents for well over 40 years and is still involved in local charity work.

I urge the swift adoption of this measure.

Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

□ 1430

Mrs. MORELLA. Madam Speaker, I am pleased to yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. KNOLLENBERG), the chief sponsor of this bill.

Mr. KNOLLENBERG. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. MORELLA) for yielding me this time. I want to begin also by thanking the gentleman from New York (Mr. MCHUGH) for bringing this bill to the floor today. I also want to thank the ranking member, the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. FATTAH), for his valuable assistance as well; and I appreciate the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CUMMINGS) being with us during this debate today.

I rise to pay much deserved tribute to Congressman William S. Broomfield who is so endearing and personable that he was known to his constituents simply as Bill. And Bill Broomfield is here with us today. I stand before the House as the sponsor of H.R. 4884, legislation that has been described as naming the post office building at 200 West Second Street in Royal Oak, Michigan in honor of my friend and predecessor.

I am pleased to report to my colleagues that the entire Michigan House delegation has not only signed on as cosponsors but as original cosponsors of this bill. Madam Speaker, Bill Broomfield is so well respected by his colleagues on both sides of the aisle that both Republicans and Democrats stand together to honor this fine man.

As was mentioned, Bill Broomfield was born in Royal Oak, Michigan back in 1922; went on to Michigan State University, then known as Michigan State College; and he has been serving ably in the Michigan legislature and in Congress for, as has been mentioned, over 40 years. He was first elected to Congress in 1956, the same time as the second Eisenhower administration; and he did not stop serving his constituents until his retirement from this body in 1992, a span of 36 years. During his tenure, he served with eight different presidents.

During his tenure, Bill Broomfield was the hallmark of bipartisanship and a self-defined consensus builder. He served as a member of the Foreign Affairs Committee, later named the International Relations Committee, where he helped craft America's foreign policy during the critical Cold War era. He served as the ranking member of this committee from the mid-1970s until his retirement from this body. He was also the point person in Congress for many of the foreign policy initiatives championed by Presidents Reagan and Bush. From Nicaragua to the Persian Gulf to Eastern Europe to North Korea, he led the charge in Congress for the foreign policy that ultimately won the Cold War.

For this effort, Michiganders and Americans everywhere owe him a tremendous debt of gratitude. The history books may credit Reagan and Bush with bringing down communism, but make no mistake, it should also mention Bill Broomfield in the same breath for his outstanding contribution to the effort that won the Cold War.

Bill Broomfield was also a careful keeper of Congress's prerogatives in foreign policy. He made sure that the legislative branch of government fulfilled its constitutional duty and that the President consulted with lawmakers. For example, Mr. Broomfield ensured that President Bush would consult with Congress when the chief executive ordered a massive troop buildup in Saudi Arabia in response to Iraq's aggression in Kuwait. When President Bush did come to Congress, Bill Broomfield supported his efforts. He said, ''We must give the President the power he needs to convince Saddam that he has no other alternative.''

Think about all the changes in America that Bill Broomfield had the privilege of witnessing firsthand during his 36-year tenure in this body. He has seen the rise and fall of Soviet totalitarianism. He has seen man reach the Moon and Jim Crow fall. He helped move the U.S. post-war era economy to the brink of the technological revolution.

As we move into the 21st century, we should not forget the legacy of those who helped us get there and Bill Broomfield was at the forefront of that crusade. Just because he retired from elective office did not mean that he stopped serving the public. In fact, he started a foundation that supports many causes and charities throughout southeast Michigan, including the Salvation Army and efforts for fighting cancer, Alzheimer's and spina bifida.

Bill Broomfield is Royal Oak's favorite son and a true man of the people. He loves the people that he served for and they have love, admiration and respect for him. I also want to mention his devoted wife of so many years, Jane, who was so active in the community. From the middle of the Eisenhower era to the beginning of the Clinton administration, Bill Broomfield was a gentleman in every sense of the word and an example of everything that is good and decent in public service and this institution. Naming the post office in his hometown of Royal Oak is just one way we can pay tribute to this fine man.

I urge support for the bill.

Mr. CUMMINGS. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I want to thank the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. KNOLLENBERG) for sponsoring this legislation. The thought came to my mind of something that Voltaire said. He said, ''He who give not thanks to man give not thanks to God.'' And so it is quite appropriate that we do this this afternoon.

Madam Speaker, I am very pleased to yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. LEVIN).

Mr. LEVIN. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CUMMINGS), the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. MORELLA), the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. KNOLLENBERG) and everybody else who has joined together for this happy moment. And that it is. I first knew Bill Broomfield as a constituent. My wife and I moved to Berkley in 1957. Bill Broomfield was Congressman while we lived there through 1972 when the districts changed.

I also came to know Bill Broomfield as a competitor, in a sense. In the early 1960s, I was the county chair of the Democratic Party; and then in 1968, I was the State chair. And we tried very hard to defeat Bill Broomfield. So I knew him as a competitor. And then I had the privilege, beginning in 1982, to know Bill as a colleague. And throughout all of these relationships, his characteristics were constant, a dedicated public servant, honest to the core, hardworking in DC., and at home; and when I was the Democratic chair I thought he was too hardworking. It also was so characteristic that in all of his relationships, there was a complete civility.

I think these characteristics were well noted upon Bill's retirement, first by President Carter who said, ''Your record number of terms is testimony to the impact you have made on the lives of all whom you have served so well over the years,'' and also former President Ronald Reagan who said, ''It was an honor to have you 'on my team.' Through your dedication, you have established a distinct record of community service that has so intimately been dedicated to your fellow man.''

During those years, the Carter years and the Reagan years, as noted, Bill Broomfield was on Foreign Affairs and became ranking there. And they were years of controversy, as Bill Broomfield remembers so well. I was there during many of these controversies. El Salvador, just among some of them, the nuclear weapons freeze, Lebanon, issues relating to Greece and Turkey, and even though often we were on different sides, there was always this effort to find a consensus and, most important, an air and reality of civility.

Truly, Bill, has been a public servant, a wonderful public servant in terms of your dedication. I first represented Royal Oak in 1982 in the Congress. That was 10 years after Bill Broomfield no longer represented his home city Royal Oak. But everywhere I went in those early years, Bill Broomfield was fondly remembered and still remains such.

As mentioned, he was born in Royal Oak, he was raised in the city of Royal Oak, he went to schools there, several of which have been torn down, some near where we now live. He represented the Royal Oak area in the State and then the Federal legislatures for almost 25 years. So in a word, it is highly fitting today that the post office in Royal Oak be named after Bill Broomfield. It marks, this designation, the service of Bill Broomfield and his wife Jane on behalf of the citizens of Royal Oak. Royal Oak has grown mightily these last 10, 15 years, so much so that I think Bill's beloved parents would hardly recognize it. But Royal Oak has remained, in a sense, as it was and it has retained its roots, and the post office is an important institution within this community.

So I say to you, Bill Broomfield, it is a pleasure to join so many others in this effort today. We feel especially pleased that you are here, healthy and continuing in service to the community. This is a joyful moment for us all. I am sure this institution will rise together in naming the post office of Royal Oak after a distinguished, dedicated public servant, William S. Broomfield.

Mrs. MORELLA. Madam Speaker, I am pleased to yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. SMITH).

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. Madam Speaker, in behalf of this House, we welcome the Honorable Bill Broomfield to this Chamber again, to his old Chamber. Bill helped me when he was first elected to office in 1957 when he first came in, and he helped me again in his last year in 1992. In 1957, my brother, who was a jet pilot, was killed in Asia. All of his personal effects had been lost coming back to Michigan. Chan's wife, Bonnie, and I went to Bill Broomfield. Bonnie is from Royal Oak. And so this new freshman Congressman pushed ahead, found Chan's personal effects and got them back to us.

Again when I was first elected in 1992, I won a tough primary, did not have any final opposition in the general, and came to Bill Broomfield who had been a friend in between to help give me some guidance on learning to be a good Congressman. What struck me as significant is Bill said, ''Look, one of the things I try to do the best I can is responding honestly and quickly to mail coming in from constituents.'' At that time the Congressman had a turnaround time for 98 percent of his mail of 24 hours. So he had set a target. Do we not all wish we had a 24-hour turnaround time that we could give that kind of attention and dedication to mail? He did that. I have tried to achieve it.

Here is a gentleman that has guided us through foreign policy decisions for his 36 years in the United States Congress, from the problems of Soviet invasion in Hungary, their invasion of Czechoslovakia, Nicaragua, the Persian Gulf, Eastern Europe, Iran, Iraq, the problems with North Korea. We should be consulting with him on a regular basis for our current international affairs. Bill Broomfield, again, congratulations. I am proud to be a cosponsor of this legislation.

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. Madam Speaker, in behalf of this House, we welcome the Honorable Bill Broomfield to this Chamber again, to his old stomping grounds. Bill helped me when he was first elected to office in 1957, in his first year, and he helped me again in his last year in 1992. In 1957, my brother, Chan, who was a jet pilot, was killed in Asia. At that time the Congressman had a turnaround time for 98 percent of his mail of 24 hours. So he had set a target and achieved it. Do we not all wish we had the ability to respond to constituent inquiries in a 24-hour turnaround time; that we could give that kind of attention and dedication to mail? He did that. I have tried to follow his advice and example.

Here is a gentleman that has guided us through foreign policy decisions for his 36 years in the United States Congress, from the problems of Soviet invasion in Hungary, their invasion of Czechoslovakia, the problems in Nicaragua, the Persian Gulf, Eastern Europe, Iran, Iraq, the problems with North Korea. Bill is still an excellent consultant for our current international challenges. Bill Broomfield, again, congratulations. I am proud to be a cosponsor of this legislation honoring you.

Mr. CUMMINGS. Madam Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Ohio (Mr. TRAFICANT).

Mr. TRAFICANT. Madam Speaker, I commend both the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CUMMINGS) and the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. MORELLA) for bringing this to the floor and for the committee. It is good to see our good friend Mr. Broomfield here. I want to commend the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. KNOLLENBERG) for the legislation.

I heard comments earlier of what a competitor he was. Bill Broomfield was not just a competitor. He was a consummate winner, a winner for Royal Oak, a winner for Michigan, a winner for the United States of America, and with his distinguished record if you take the time to really look at it, he was a winner for the entire world.

Just earlier I was here. I did not know this bill was scheduled. Mr. Broomfield came over. He is a dear friend to all of us and always has time for everyone. He said, I just wish that my parents could be here today. I want to say on the House floor, his parents are here today; they are here in you. And all of your family that will follow will benefit from the fact that they will see the great contributions of your parents and you and your family as this post office is named on your behalf.

This is truly fitting, and it is an honor that is justly deserved; and I am proud to be a part of this today and wish you and your family the very best.

Mrs. MORELLA. Madam Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from New York (Mr. GILMAN), chairman of the Committee on International Relations.

(Mr. GILMAN asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GILMAN. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. MORELLA) for yielding the time to me.

Madam Speaker, I am pleased to rise today in strong support of H.R. 4884, designating the facility of the United States Postal Service located at 200 West Second Street in Royal Oak, Michigan, as the William Broomfield Post Office Building. And I commend the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. MORELLA) and the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. KNOLLENBERG) for bringing this resolution to the floor, along with the gentleman from New York (Mr. MCHUGH), chairman of the Subcommittee on Postal Service, and the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CUMMINGS) for bringing this to our attention today.

Bill Broomfield, who we are pleased is with us today and in this Chamber, was first elected to the Congress in 1956 and meritoriously served his constituents of Michigan's 18th district for some 36 years, until he retired in 1992.

As a member of Committee on International Relations, earlier known as the Committee on Foreign Affairs, I had the distinct pleasure of serving with Bill for many years, where, as our ranking member, Bill Broomfield helped to establish our Nation's foreign policy during the critical Cold War period.

It was during all of those years in working with Bill that I experienced Bill Broomfield's unique ability to bring our Members of Congress together as he sought to build a consensus on numerous important issues championed by then President Reagan and President Bush.

Accordingly, I urge all of our colleagues to support this resolution that appropriately honors former Congressman Bill Broomfield and the constituents he served so well for so long in the 18th District of Michigan.

Mr. CUMMINGS. Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mrs. MORELLA. Madam Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. EHLERS).

Mr. EHLERS. Madam Speaker, I did not have the pleasure of working with Mr. Broomfield, but I do want to offer some testimonials based on the information I have as a fellow Michiganian.

I think it is entirely appropriate that we name the post office in Royal Oak in honor of this gentleman. For years he carried the mail for the Republicans in the Congress and also for the Republicans in the White House. And even while he was carrying the mail for the President, very often he also had the courage, when he thought the mail was inappropriate or not addressed properly, to stand up to the Presidents and say, wait a minute, I think you are going down the wrong track; I think you have to rethink this and do it differently. Frequently, they were willing to listen.

He is a man of honor, a man of good service, and a man of good political sense. My first acquaintance with him was when I first moved to Michigan in 1967. He had then been in office 11 years; he had taken office when I was just entering graduate school. But soon after I came to Michigan, I began reading about him in the papers; and I thought that this is a man who knows what he is doing and knows how to do it right, and my judgment was correct.

I am sorry that I was not able to serve with him. I arrived in the Congress only 11 months after he left, but his legend has persisted; and I have appreciated him, particularly his excellence in foreign affairs, something in which I personally believe the Congress, both the House and the Senate, should play a much more active role, similar to what they did a number of years ago during and following World War II. He was a careful keeper of Congress' prerogatives in foreign policy, and he served well and honorably in so many ways, not only in the Committee on Foreign Relations, but in other ways and particularly in service to his constituents.

I had no idea when I moved to Michigan in 1967 that I would some day be serving in this House. In fact, I had no intention of doing so, but I am pleased to be here to try to carry on the work and fulfill the legend that Mr. Broomfield established for Michigan, for his district and for this country. He is an honorable person who did an outstanding job for his country, and we are here today to show our appreciation for what he has done for us.

Mr. CUMMINGS. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, I did not have the opportunity to serve with Congressman Broomfield, but the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. DINGELL), who wanted to be here today but is tied up in a conference committee, told me that Mr. Broomfield is probably one of the greatest public servants he served with. One of the things that he said is that no matter how difficult the arguments became, no matter how heated, he always knew that he was speaking from his heart and synchronizing his conscience with his conduct, and perhaps that is the type of example that we here now serving should follow.

So it is indeed my honor to salute him. And I can say this for all of our honorees today, the people that we will be honoring, Madam Speaker, when I asked a fellow Marylander how it felt to have a post office named after him, and his name is Sam Lacey, one of the great sports writers, he broke out into tears, and he said just the idea that children yet unborn will walk past that post office and see my name and they simply will ask the question, who was he? And if someone can simply answer with a smile that he was a great man and that he touched this earth and made it better, then that makes me happy.

I am sure Congressman Broomfield can say the same thing, and so we take this moment to honor him and honor the people of Michigan.

Madam Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mrs. MORELLA. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Again, I am very honored to be here with this bill that I support so strongly, H.R. 4884, honoring our former Member of Congress, Bill Broomfield. He was indeed, as we have heard, a coalition builder, someone who was always fair, a gentle man and always who respected all of his colleagues and respected the people that he represented and very committed to the work of making America as best as could be done.

Madam Speaker, I congratulate all of us for the idea of having a post office named for Bill Broomfield, and I congratulate him and Mrs. Broomfield.

Mr. DINGELL. Madam Speaker, I rise today in support of the gentleman from Michigan's resolution, and in honor of a fellow Michigander, William Broomfield, with whom I had the privilege of serving with in this body for thirty-six years. William Broomfield was born in Royal Oak, Michigan and represented it in Congress with distinction. It is only fitting that the city's post office be named in his honor.

William Broomfield was a man of principle and foresight. Moreover, he was a dedicated and tireless public servant who honorably represented residents of Michigan in our State legislature and, most notably, in the U.S. House of Representatives for most of his adult life. William Broomfield's capable service to his constituents was rewarded time and time again by their continual support for him as their Representative.

William Broomfield was also a mainstay of the Foreign Affairs Committee. As Ranking member for fourteen years, he was a workhorse rather than a show horse. He did not seek out the spotlight, but worked tirelessly, often behind the scenes, to help craft important legislation that was amiable to both sides of the isle and in the best interests of our great country.

Naming the Royal Oak Post Office Building in William Broomfield's honor is a proper tribute to a man who vigorously served his constituents and honorably served his country in doing so. As such, Mr. Speaker, I would ask my colleagues to support this resolution and join me in honoring a good man and public servant who did much for his state and country, William Broomfield.

Mr. BEREUTER. Madam Speaker, this Member wants to express strong support for H.R. 4884, which would name a United States Postal Service facility in Royal Oak, Michigan, as the ''William S. Broomfield Post Office Building.'' This Member became well acquainted and impressed with the decency, convictions, and leadership of Representative Bill Broomfield. A Member of this body from 1956–1992, Bill Broomfield served the state of Michigan with extraordinary distinction. When this Member joined the House Foreign Affairs Committee at the beginning of his 3rd term, Representative Broomfield, the senior Republican member of the Committee, gave this member great advice when requested, support and encouragement, and most importantly an outstanding example of how a Representative can so capably represent their constituency and state, while pursuing the national interest on matters of foreign policy. During his time as a senior member of the Foreign Affairs Committee, this nation faced numerous crises—the Cuban missile crisis, the Vietnam War, the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan, turmoil in Latin America, and the collapse of the Soviet empire. In each instance, Bill Broomfield's first thought was toward the U.S. national interest. Thus the designation of this Post Office Building with his name in his home town is certainly one way his colleagues and newer Members of Congress can appropriately recognize the outstanding contributions he made to America while a Member of the U.S. House of Representatives.

Madam Speaker, obviously, this Member encourages his colleagues to support this legislation and hereby extend this Member's appreciation of his service to Bill Broomfield and his family.

Mrs. MORELLA. Madam Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mrs. BIGGERT). The question is on the motion offered by the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. MORELLA) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 4884.

The question was taken.

Mrs. MORELLA. Madam Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX and the Chair's prior announcement, further proceedings on this motion will be postponed.

JAMES T. BROYHILL POST OFFICE BUILDING

Mrs. MORELLA. Madam Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 4534) to designate the facility of the United States Postal Service located at 114 Ridge Street in Lenoir, North Carolina, as the ''James T. Broyhill Post Office Building,'' as amended.

H.R. 4534

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. JAMES T. BROYHILL POST OFFICE BUILDING

(a) DESIGNATION.—The facility of the United States Postal Service located at 114 Ridge Street, N.W. in Lenoir, North Carolina, shall be known and designated as the ''James T. Broyhill Post Office Building''.

(b) REFERENCES.—Any reference in a law, map, regulation, document, paper, or other record of the United States to the facility referred to in subsection (a) shall be deemed to be a reference to the ''James T. Broyhill Post Office Building''.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. MORELLA) and the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CUMMINGS) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. MORELLA).

GENERAL LEAVE

Mrs. MORELLA. Madam Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on H.R. 4534, as amended.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentlewoman from Maryland?

There was no objection.

Mrs. MORELLA. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

(Mrs. MORELLA asked and was given permission to revise and extend her remarks.)

Mrs. MORELLA. Madam Speaker, I want to commend the sponsor of this legislation, the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. BURR), for introducing H.R. 4534. The bill was introduced on July 19 of this year and is cosponsored by each member of the House delegation from the State of North Carolina.

This legislation, as amended, will designate the facility of the United States Postal Service located at 114 Ridge Street, Northwest, in Lenoir, North Carolina, as the James T. Broyhill Post Office Building.

James Thomas Broyhill was born in Lenoir, North Carolina, in 1927. He attended public schools and graduated from the University of North Carolina in 1950 with a BS degree in business administration. Later, he was elected to the 88th Congress and served until January 3, 1986.

Mr. Broyhill was elected to the House of Representatives to represent the 10th District of North Carolina in 1962 and was reelected to 11 succeeding Congresses. During this period, he served as the ranking member on the Committee on Energy and Commerce. Mr. Broyhill resigned his House seat in July 1986 when he was appointed to the United States Senate to fill the unexpired term of Senator James East of North Carolina who died unexpectedly.

Senator Broyhill was respected by both Houses on both sides of the aisle as a level-headed and open-minded legislator.

Madam Speaker, I commend our colleague, the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. BURR), for sponsorship of this legislation. I urge support of H.R. 4534 by all of our colleagues.

Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. CUMMINGS. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, H.R. 4534, which names a post office after James T. Broyhill, was introduced by the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. BURR) on May 24, 2000.

James T. Broyhill was born in Lenoir, North Carolina in 1927. He graduated from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill in 1950. He served as vice president of Broyhill Furniture Industries and was a member of the Lenoir Chamber of Commerce where he served as president for 2 years.

In 1962, James Broyhill was elected to the United States House of Representatives where he served until 1986. He was the ranking member of the House Energy and Committee on Commerce for a number of years.

Upon the death of Senator John East, Congressman Broyhill was appointed to the United States Senate by the governor. He subsequently lost in his election bid for the Senate seat and was appointed to serve as the chairman of the North Carolina Economic Development Board. He is currently retired and living in Winston Salem, North Carolina. I urge the swift adoption of this measure.

Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mrs. MORELLA. Madam Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. BURR), the author of this legislation.

(Mr. BURR of North Carolina asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BURR of North Carolina. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. MORELLA) for yielding the time to me.

Madam Speaker, it is indeed an honor to be here today to ask my colleagues to support H.R. 4534, which was cosponsored by every member of the North Carolina delegation.

Jim Broyhill, along with his entire family, has always had a sincere dedication to serving the community and helping wherever there was a need. His parents instilled in him the importance of giving of oneself and time to help make a better place for all to live. It was because of this desire that in 1962 Jim Broyhill first ran for the United States Congress in the old eighth district of North Carolina.

There is a story that is told on Jim; it is still told today about that first campaign. Old timers in Alexander County remember the first speech that Jim Broyhill gave as a candidate. They said it was one of the worst speeches they ever heard a political candidate ever give, but thank goodness Jim Broyhill got better as that campaign went on.

In time, he rose to the position of ranking member of the Committee on Commerce; and with this, his influence grew and his reputation for honesty, for hard work grew with that. Jim Broyhill was a workhorse when serving in the Congress, and while he may not have been seen on the Sunday talk shows, everyone in Washington knew the value of what he was doing.

In 1985, Jim announced he would run for the United States Senate; but before he could, Senator East died and he was appointed to that position.

For the remainder of the year after losing that Senate race, Jim could have gone into retirement, but he did not do it. He continued to serve and was appointed in 1987 as the chairman of North Carolina Economic Development Board, the chief advisory board for the North Carolina Department of Commerce. From this post, he assisted the State's efforts to recruit new business and expand existing industries in North Carolina.

Then in 1989, at the request of Governor Martin, Jim took on the full-time responsibility of serving as the Secretary of the Department of Commerce, a position he held until 1991. It should be noted that in the years in which he was affiliated with the Department of Commerce, they saw some of the greatest gains in economic expansion in North Carolina's history.

In 1991, Jim finally did enter retirement; and it is fortunate for Winston-Salem that he chose to be there, with his wife, Louise Robbins Broyhill, who is one of the most gracious ladies and has always been supportive of Jim's ventures. They are the parents of three children and several grandchildren.

I commend Jim today, because Jim Broyhill is a true example of what a public servant should be, a man more concerned with doing his duty and serving his country than with personal gain. He has built a reputation of dedication and devotion to his State, his country, and, even in retirement, Jim Broyhill finds time to work with the local food bank and the other organizations where he gives his time and his expertise.

Jim Broyhill never went in for negative campaigning. That is the type of individual Jim Broyhill was, a very optimistic person.

Jim Broyhill's years of service deserve some form of recognition, and the naming of a post office in his hometown is a small way in which we can honor the work that he has already done before us.

I urge my colleagues to vote in support of H.R. 4534, to rename the Lenoir Post Office as the ''James T. Broyhill Post Office Building.''

Mr. CUMMINGS. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, in listening to the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. BURR), and I want to thank him for sponsoring the legislation, but he talked about Mr. Broyhill not engaging in negative campaigning. I think it was Mother Teresa who said something so profound, she said always be for something, not against things.

I think that that says a lot for him. He was for himself and for making sure that his community was well represented and well served, and is still doing it. So I think it is quite appropriate that we take this action today, and again I want to thank the gentleman.

Mrs. MORELLA. Madam Speaker, I am pleased to yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. COBLE).

Mr. COBLE. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman from Maryland and the gentleman from Maryland for having brought this bill to the floor.

Madam Speaker, about 25 years ago I had the pleasure of visiting my uncle on his Watauga County farm in the shadow of the Tennessee border. It was late April, and there was a nip in the air, because summertime comes late in the Blue Ridge.

He and I were walking across the cow pasture, and I said to him, ''Have you seen Jim Broyhill lately?'' He instinctively opened the pocket of his overalls and removed a rumpled, worn letter and proudly extended it to me. It was a letter from Jim Broyhill addressed the previous Christmas, 4 months earlier, to him and his wife, to my uncle and his wife, wishing them a happy Christmas. I bet he had shown that letter to 125 people, and he proudly put it back into his overall pocket when I returned it to him.

That testimony, that rumpled letter, testified to me how Jim Broyhill's constituents felt about him. He was revered by all who knew him, because, Madam Speaker, he, unlike some elected officials, was not a stealth representative. He did not all of a sudden become accessible 5 weeks before the next election. He was consistently accessible, consistently providing outstanding constituency service. He is a good man, and was an exceptional Member of Congress.

Madam Speaker, I say to the gentlewoman from Maryland and the gentleman from Maryland, when I next drive through Lenoir on my way to the crest of the Blue Ridge Mountains, I will feel just a little better as I drive through that little mountain town, knowing that its Post Office bears the name of Jim Broyhill, an outstanding American, an outstanding public servant. I know that my colleagues in the House, here in the people's House, join me in extending our best wishes to Jim and Louise Broyhill and their family.

Mrs. MORELLA. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentleman from North Carolina for his very heartfelt comments.

Madam Speaker, I am pleased to yield 2 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. BALLENGER).

Mr. BALLENGER. Madam Speaker, I would like, first of all, to thank the gentlewoman from Maryland for yielding me time, and also thank the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. BURR) for allowing me to be one of the cosponsors to bring this bill to the floor to name a post office after Jim Broyhill.

Jim and I have been friends for years. He was in Congress, from 1962 to 1986, and during those times he was sometimes unopposed. I can remember one time, because he was so strong in the Republican Party, when things got bad, we needed somebody to run against Jim Broyhill so that he would campaign. I do not say I did this, but I was accused of it, in fact he was unopposed until about 3 weeks before the election, and some strange, kind of a, I want to say some sort of a nut from Western North Carolina, filed against him. Jim Broyhill called me up on the telephone and said, ''Cass, you paid that guy to run against me.''

I would like to tell Jim right here and now I did not do that, but I thought it was a wonderful idea for whoever did do it.

Another thing about Jim Broyhill, it was his unbelievable memory of people. I have campaigned with him many times, and he would walk up to what I would consider a complete stranger and say, ''Madam, how is your husband after his operation?'' First of all, he knew her name, and, second of all, there was an operation, and, third, two years before is when this all happened. Yet he remembered all these things.

He was the most exceptional politician I ever saw in the fact that he was close to the people and they knew it, and he did a wonderful job.

Madam Speaker, everybody said how he was a ranking member on the Committee on Energy and Commerce, and the present ranking member, a Democrat, we will not mention names, has said to me many times that he was probably the most reasonable Republican he ever saw to work with. That was Jim's way of doing things. He was just a person more dedicated to getting something done than playing politics.

As one might gather, I have a special reason to honor Jim Broyhill, for it was Jim's appointment to the Senate which first allowed me to run for Congress representing the people of the 10th District of North Carolina. Many of you may know Jim Broyhill for his distinguished record of public service. He is a great friend of mine and has helped me in every election since 1986.

Let me just say, Western North Carolina has been greatly rewarded by both Jim and his family.

Mrs. MORELLA. Madam Speaker, I am pleased to yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from North Carolina, (Mr. JONES).

Mr. JONES of North Carolina. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman for yielding me time, and also the ranking member.

Madam Speaker, I bring a little different perspective, because my father, who is deceased, served in the United States Congress from 1966 to 1992, and he had the pleasure of serving with Jim Broyhill. At the time, I was a member of the North Carolina House of Representatives, a Democrat at that time, and my father and I would talk on the weekends, and many times those conversations would deal with his colleagues in Washington, both the delegation, both Republicans and Democrats.

The reason I wanted to come to the floor was because my father told me, he said there was not a finer Member of Congress than Jim Broyhill, because he was a man of quality and a man of integrity.

So I think the fact that my friend, the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. BURR), has offered H.R. 4534 and the committee has brought it to the floor is a special day, not only for Jim Broyhill and his family, but also the citizens of North Carolina, because I think too many times, as the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. BURR) said in his comments, too many times the people do not realize there are more workhorses in the U.S. Congress than show horses, and that is probably the way it needs to be, because we are doing, as the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. COBLE) said, the people's business.

I just wanted to come to the floor to say to Jim Broyhill, Senator Broyhill, and his wife and his children and their grandchildren, that this is not only a great day for you, but it is a great day for North Carolina, because you have been and still are one of the finest citizens, you and your family, and America is a better place because you served in the United States House and the United States Senate.

Mr. CUMMINGS. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, it certainly is appropriate that we honor Senator Broyhill. The comments that have been made today I am certain will go a long ways towards letting us know why Senator Broyhill meant so much to the great State of North Carolina, to this country and to the world. So we take this moment, Madam Speaker, this moment in time, to salute him by naming this post office after him.

Madam Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mrs. MORELLA. Madam Speaker, I urge passage of H.R. 4534.

Madam Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. DINGELL. Madam Speaker, I rise today in support of the gentleman from North Carolina's resolution honoring James T. Broyhill, a good friend and honorable man with whom I had the privilege of serving in this body for almost twenty-three years. Moreover, I was pleased to have had the opportunity to work with Jim Broyhill in his capacity as Ranking Member of the House Commerce Committee while I was Chairman.

As a Member of the House and Senate, Jim Broyhill was a dedicated and tireless public servant. He capably and honorably represented his constituents and they rewarded him time and time again with their continual support for him as their representative.

Jim Broyhill was also a good friend and true gentleman. I can think of no more honorable man in this institution and his contributions as Ranking Member of the Commerce Committee were of the highest quality.

Jim Broyhill was a workhorse, not a show horse. He did not seek the spotlight, but worked vigorously to ensure that the committee passed effective legislation for the good of this country.

Jim Broyhill was well respected by both constituents and colleagues for his integrity, kindness and ability to get things done. Renaming the Lenoir Post Office in honor Jim Broyhill is a proper tribute to a good man and public servant who did much for his state and country.

Mr. ETHERIDGE. Madam Speaker, I rise today to urge my colleagues to support H.R. 4534, a bill to designate a facility of the United States Postal Service as the James T. Broyhill Post Office Building. This legislation, which was cosponsored by every Member of the North Carolina Delegation, is a fitting tribute to one of our state's model public servants.

Jim Broyhill was born on August 19, 1927, in Lenoir, North Carolina to the late J.E. and Sadie Hunt Broyhill and is a graduate of University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. His parents taught him the value of service and devotion to his community that has guided him throughout his career in public service. That career began in 1962, in the old 8th Congressional District of North Carolina, when Broyhill won his first of eleven elections to the House of Representatives.

Upon his election, Broyhill immediately began to build a reputation for honesty and integrity that allowed him to wield influence with both Democrats and Republicans. During his 11 terms in the House, Broyhill made a name for himself as a member, and later as Ranking Member, of the Energy and Commerce Committee. Following the untimely death of Senator John East, then Governor Jim Martin appointed Broyhill to complete the remaining two years of Senator East's term. In 1986, Broyhill's 24-year Congressional career ended when he lost his bid to win his Senate seat outright.

Despite his personally disappointing loss, Broyhill continued to work on the behalf of the people of North Carolina. Broyhill's public career continued as he served as the Chairman of the North Carolina Economic Development Board. In 1989 Governor Martin gave Broyhill the responsibility of promoting and expanding North Carolina business and industry by appointing him the Secretary of the Department of Commerce. Jim Broyhill retired from public service in 1991 to spend more time with his wife, Louise Robbins, his children, and his grandchildren.

Madam Speaker, it gives me great pleasure to pay tribute to a great North Carolinian and American by naming a Post Office in Lenoir after James T. Broyhill. I ask my colleagues to support H.R. 4534, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mrs. BIGGERT). The question is on the motion offered by the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. MORELLA) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 4534, as amended.

The question was taken; and (two-thirds having voted in favor thereof) the rules were suspended and the bill, as amended, was passed.

The title was amended so as to read: ''A bill to redesignate the facility of the United States Postal Service located at 114 Ridge Street, N.W. in Lenoir, North Carolina, as the 'James T. Broyhill Post Office Building'''.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

REVEREND J.C. WADE POST OFFICE

Mrs. MORELLA. Madam Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 4615) to redesignate the facility of the United States Postal Service located at 3030 Meredith Avenue in Omaha, Nebraska, as the ''Reverend J.C. Wade Post Office.''

The Clerk read as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. REVEREND J.C. WADE POST OFFICE.

(a) DESIGNATION.—The facility of the United States Postal Service located at 3030 Meredith Avenue in Omaha, Nebraska, and known as the Ames Station, shall be known and designated as the ''Reverend J.C. Wade Post Office''.

(b) REFERENCES.—Any reference in a law, map, regulation, document, paper, or other record of the United States to the facility referred to in subsection (a) shall be deemed to be a reference to the ''Reverend J.C. Wade Post Office''.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. MORELLA) and the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CUMMINGS) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. MORELLA).

GENERAL LEAVE

Mrs. MORELLA. Madam Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on H.R. 4615.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentlewoman from Maryland?

There was no objection.

Mrs. MORELLA. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, the gentleman from Nebraska (Mr. TERRY) introduced H.R. 4615 on June 8, 2000. This legislation has been supported by the entire House delegation of the State of Nebraska pursuant to the policy of the Committee on Government Reform.

H.R. 4615 designates the facility of the United States Postal Service located at 3030 Meredith Avenue in Omaha, Nebraska, as the Reverend J.C. Wade Post Office.

Reverend James Commodore Wade was a noted pastor and a civic leader. He was born in Oklahoma in 1909. His mother died when he was 5 years old, his father died when he was 8, and his grandfather died when he was 11. At age 17, he was completely out on his own. He joined the ministry at age 21. He was known as being the youngest pastor in the State of Oklahoma.

J.C. Wade was invited to speak in Omaha in 1944 and stayed on. He served on the Mayor's Advisory Committee in Omaha and organized the first Head Start Program in Salem, Nebraska. He was a member of the Baptist Pastors Conference and the Interdenominational Alliance. He served as the President of the New Era Baptist State Convention, Incorporated, for 9 years, and also as the State vice president to the National Baptist Convention for 9 years. On the national level, he was a member of the National Baptist Convention U.S.A., Inc.; the Gospel Music Workshop of America; and the NAACP. Dr. Wade died in August 1999.

Madam Speaker, I want to thank the gentleman from Nebraska (Mr. TERRY) for introducing this legislation, and I want to urge our colleagues to support H.R. 4615.

Mr. CUMMINGS. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, H.R. 4615, which names a post office after the Reverend J.C. Wade, was introduced by the gentleman from Nebraska (Mr. TERRY) on June 8, 2000. We thank him for doing that.

Reverend James Commodore Wade was a noted pastor and a civic leader. He was born in Oklahoma in 1909. He served on the Mayor's Advisory Committee in Omaha, and organized the first Head Start program in Salem, Nebraska. He was a member of the Baptist Pastor's Conference and the Interdenominational Alliance.

He served as a President of the New Era Baptist State Convention for 9 years, and also as a State Vice President to the National Baptist Convention for 9 years. I want to personally note as a member of that convention that I am very pleased to see that we are honoring him today.

On the national level, he was a member of the National Baptist Convention, the Gospel Music Workshop of America, and the NAACP. Ralph Waldo Emerson once said that you cannot judge a man by his station in life, but what he has done to get there.

I listened to the words of my distinguished colleague, the gentlewoman from Maryland, as she noted the fact that his parents died at an early age but yet he was able to overcome, and as a matter of fact, become a minister at a very early age. Again, on a personal note, as the son of two ministers, I can appreciate what we are doing here today.

Just to know that this gentleman who hales from Oklahoma was able to and became a significant part of the National Baptist Convention says a whole lot. It is a very distinguished convention, and it is a very important one in our Nation.

With that, Madam Speaker, I urge the swift adoption of this measure.

Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mrs. MORELLA. Madam Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Nebraska (Mr. TERRY), and I thank him for introducing this piece of legislation.

Mr. TERRY. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman for yielding time to me, and I thank the gentleman from Maryland. I thank both members for managing this bill on the floor. I also thank the chairman of the committee, the gentleman from New York (Mr. MCHUGH), and the ranking member, the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. FATTAH), for their efforts in committee to make sure that this bill passes and becomes reality.

In our society I think it is important, and especially for our children, to recognize those people that have had such a positive impact and effect on their community. It is truly an honor to be able to stand here and name a post office after one such gentleman in Omaha, Nebraska.

This bill renames the Ames Street Station after Reverend J.C. Wade, who for 44 years was the pastor and emeritus pastor of the Salem Missionary Baptist Church in north Omaha, which is the largest African-American church in Nebraska, and frankly, is one of the largest churches, period, in the State of Nebraska, because of his commitment and leadership.

Reverend Wade, as we learned, was born in Oklahoma, Wybark, Oklahoma, September 1, 1909. Wybark, by the way, is now called Chase, Oklahoma. Unfortunately for the Omaha, Nebraska community to which he moved in around 1950, he passed away on August 30, 1999.

Madam Speaker, I submit for the RECORD the program of his memorial service that outlines in more detail his achievements for his community.

A copy of the memorial service program is as follows:

OBITUARY

(The obituary was prewritten by Rev. Dr. James Commodore Wade, Sr.)

The life of James Commodore Wade, Sr. is a theocratic reply to the somewhat desparaging question, ''Who's gonna take the boy?'' James Commodore Wade, Sr. was birthed in a small hamlet called Wybark, Oklahoma, now Chase, Oklahoma, on September 1, 1909 to the parentage of George W. Wade and Henrietta Ayers Wade. When the boy, James, was 5, his mother died and that marked the beginning of that disparaging question, ''Who's gonna take the boy?'' At age 8, he experienced the death of his father and again the question was raised, ''Who's gonna take the boy?'' Then at age 11, he witnessed the demise of his grandfather, Mr. Samuel Ayers, who at the time was his guardian. Once more, we encounter the query, ''Who's gonna take the boy?'' Seeming to be an orphan child, living as he says, ''from pillar to post,'' it was at that point that God intervened and replied to that disheartening question by saying, ''I will take the boy and make him the beneficiary of special providence.'' And the rest of the life of James Commodore Wade, Sr. is but a constant unfolding of God's providential care for a boy without a guardian or a home. Prior to the death of his grandfather, at age 10, he accepted Christ at the Union Grove Baptist Church, Wybark, Oklahoma, and was baptized in the Arkansas River by the late Rev. W.L. Turner.

Because of the twin afflictions of poverty and segregation, James went to a little one-room school, when he could, and finished the eighth grade in his mid-teens. By the time James was 17, he was completely out on his own. It was at this point that James left his native home and moved to Tulsa, Oklahoma. After moving to Tusla, he united with the St. Andrews Baptist Church under the leadership of Rev. W.H. Woods. It was during these years that James picked up the pace of his flight from his life's calling. He attempted to do what so many have sought to do, and that is to run away from the ''preacher'' calling. But God always has a way of making his servants give in to the clarion call. For J.C. Wade, God brought about a cataclysmic experience in the solar system. According to Rev. Wade's own testimony, ''The sun, instantaneously switched places.'' Because of that stunning experience, J.C. Wade, Sr. confessed his call to the ministry at age 21 and preached his first sermon on April 1, 1931 at the St. Andrews Baptist Church, Tulsa, Oklahoma, whose pastor was Rev. W.H. Woods.

The year 1933 began another phase in the life of Rev. J.C. Wade, Sr., for in 1933, Rev. Wade was called to be the pastor of the Fountain Baptist Church in Haynes, Oklahoma for an overwhelming salary of 50¢ per week, sometimes! Pastor Wade had the sweet, torturous task of walking five miles on Sunday to preach the gospel to a dense crowd of 50 to 100 people, that is, if it didn't rain or snow. After serving the Fountain Baptist Church, the oldest church in the state of Oklahoma for approximately 2–2½ years, Pastor Wade, who bore the distinction of being the youngest pastor in the state of Oklahoma, resigned the Foundation Baptist Church and moved to the southern metropolis of Memphis, Tennessee. Memphis, at that time, was considered to be the haven of great preachers. There were two significant reasons for his moving to Memphis. One was that his father in the ministry wanted him to go to school; and secondly, he wanted him to be his assistant pastor at the Bethlehem Baptist Church.

After moving to Memphis, Rev. Wade met at Bethlehem a tender young lady named Mary Frazier, whom God had delivered from the crippling affliction called polio. Rev. Wade was most impressed with Mary, but Mary was most unimpressed with him. In fact, she was so unimpressed with him until when he would seek to pay her a visit, she would say, ''Here comes that Old Esau.'' But her being unimpressed did not deter nor dissuade Rev. Wade. There was a prominent member of the Frazier family who genuinely admired ''Old Esau,'' and that was Mary's mother, who everybody affectionately called ''Mama Frazier.'' Since Mary refused to court Rev. Wade, Rev. Wade took a most effective alternate approach. He courted Mary through her mother, ''Mama Frazier.'' It was an effective approach because on December 18, 1935, Rev. Wynn united in holy matrimony, Rev. J.C. Wade, Sr. and Mary ''Unimpressed'' Frazier.

Those early years were some tough days. Because of grave circumstances, Rev. and Mrs. Wade lived five years with her mother, ''Mama Frazier.'' Rev. Wade worked at the government fleet, better known then as working on the levy. While working on the levy in the fall of 1936, Rev. Wade was called to be the shepherd of the Middle Baptist Church. However, a strange thing occurred: After serving as pastor for approximately three months, Rev. Wade permitted a visiting minister to preach for him during the Christmas season; he had to work on Sundays. The congregation, feeling that the visiting minister could outpreach Rev. Wade, dismissed him and called the visiting minister.

In the year 1937, Pastor Wade became pastor of the Shiloh Baptist Church on Court Street in Memphis, Tennessee. The membership totaled less than 100 people. This time, there was a substantial pay increase from ''sometimes'' 50¢ per week. The financial arrangement at Shiloh was 40/60.

Whatever was raised on Sunday, 40% was to be retained by the church and 60% was to be given to the pastor-elect. What an arrangement! However, the offering was a modest $6.00 per Sunday.

Then in 1940, Pastor Wade accepted another church in Memphis called the Riverside Baptist Church in the south Memphis area which had a membership of 200 people. Pastor Wade did something that was a church custom in the South at that time. That custom was to pastor, simultaneously, more than one church. Pastor Wade accepted the Riverside Baptist Church at a great salary increase: He began his ministry there at $25.00 per week.

To show you that Pastor Wade was concerned about providing for the needs of his family, while pastoring two churches, he took on a job at Mr. Green's store on Horn Lake Road and Ingle as a butcher.

In Genesis 1:28, we read, ''And God said unto them, be fruitful and multiply and replenish the earth.'' The year 1937 marks the beginning of the Wade's being fruitful. On March 20, 1937, a little girl was born, and she was named Ruth Evelyn. On July 24, 1938, a boy was born and he was named James Commodore Wade, Jr. In the fall of 1939, tragedy almost struck the Wade household. Mrs. Wade became dangerously ill and was carried to the hospital in an unconscious condition. While Mrs. Wade was en route to the hospital, Rev. Wade went into their pantry and shut up with God and said, ''God, you can't take her now. I don't want my children growing up as I did, not knowing Mother.'' God heard and answered that prayer because by the time Rev. Wade arrived at the hospital, Mrs. Wade was sitting up, dangling her feet on the side of the bed. After Mrs. Wade's recovery, they moved from Mama Frazier's to rent from Mr. George Griffin on Dixon Street. After having moved on Dixon, the Wades continued to be fruitful, for on March 15, 1941, another girl was born. She was named Doretha. Then on September 18, 1944, another son was born, and he was named Melvin Von.

In the early summer of 1944, Rev. Wade was invited by Rev. Woods, his father in the ministry, to preach a two-week revival at the Salem Baptist Church in Omaha Nebraska. Excitedly, he told many ministers who would gather at the Polk Printing office on Monday mornings. With a jubilant spirit, he went to Omaha to preach, for two weeks, only to find out after reaching Omaha, that Rev. Woods was not in the city. So, in an embarrassed state and at the request of the official board, Rev. Wade remained in Omaha. On the third Sunday in July, Rev. Wade was called to be the pastor of the Salem Baptist Church which had a roll of 250 members with 88 present. Rev. Wade states that there were three significant reasons for accepting a church who kept their pastors for two years at a time: 1) God ordained it so; 2) He did not want to rear his children in the segregated South; and 3) His mother-in-law's sainted sister Emma Highsmith told him that the Lord told her that his field was not in Memphis, and pointing in a northern direction, she said it's going to be that way.

The unique thing about Pastor Wade moving to Omaha was that, gradually, all of Sister Wade's family moved to Omaha.

After moving to Omaha, the Wades continued to be fruitful. In 1949, Sister Wade conceived a son, and to their dismay, that son passed away at birth. However, desiring to have one more child, on March 10, 1951, a little girl was born, and she was named Marsha Ann.

In 1949, Pastor Wade began to make extensive changes on Salem's structure. Then in 1955, with the membership having exceeded the present seating capacity. Rev. Wade sought to enlarge the sanctuary to accommodate the overflow crowd. That vision met with much opposition. But in spite of opposition, the structure was completed in 1956. Two years after that completion, the loan which they almost didn't get, was paid off.

1957 and 1958 were exciting years, not only because a loan was paid off, but because in December, 1957, Pastor Wade watched his daughter Doretha conduct her first musical. It was a Christmas cantata. And then in the spring of 1958, his elder son James confessed his call to the ministry and preached his first sermon. Then in 1961, with much ecstasy, he watched his son James receive a B.A. degree from Bishop College. Another exciting year for Pastor and Mrs. Wade was 1962. For 27 years, Rev. and Mrs. Wade lived in the following places: with Mama Frazier, in a rental house, and in a church parsonage. But in 1962, a dream came true. They purchased their first home at 3612 North 42nd Street. Then in 1963, his second son, Melvin, preached his first sermon.

After being told that the freeway was going to include the Salem structure at 28th and Decatur, Pastor Wade began to search out a location for a new Salem site.

In 1970, ground was broken for a new church structure at 34th and Lake Streets and was completed in April, 1971. That loan was paid off in 1978.

Another milestone was reached when he was informed in 1982 that government funds had been granted for the construction of a senior citizens' complex.

Yes, it was God who took the boy. For only God could take an orphan child, without much education, call him to preach, change his education insight, make him a rhetorical genius, and a linguistical genius. Make him a husband, a father, a pastor, a shepherd, a builder, and an evangelist. Because God had taken care of the boy, Rev. Wade was one of the most influential pastors in Omaha. He stood in some of the great preaching places in America, and he traveled extensively, evangelizing and proclaiming the gospel. Because God had taken care of an orphan boy from Wybark, Dr. Wade held key denominational positions, both locally and nationally.

Yes, God, indeed had taken care of the boy, James Commodore Wade, Sr. Rev. Wade also acknowledged, lest he seem ungrateful, the three years he spent as a member of the Friendship Baptist Church, Kansas City, Missouri, under the pastorate of the Rev. S. C. Doyle, who was a pastor and friend to him.

Rev. Wade will be greatly missed by ALL who knew him but he leaves to cherish his memories his wife of sixty-three years: Mary Frazier-Wade, Omaha; three daughters and son-in-law: Ruth Murray, Doretha Wade-Wilkerson, Los Angeles, California, Marsha Ann (Rev. Clyde) Nichols, Denver, Colorado; two sons and daughters-in-law: Rev. James C., Jr. (Ella) Wade, East Chicago, Indiana, Rev. Melvin V., Sr. (Jacquie) Wade, Los Angeles; nephew: Gene Bell, Evanston, Illinois; four nieces: Tina Williams, Chicago, Illinois, Marguerite Anderson, Cincinnati, Ohio, Myrtis Twyman, Westchester, Illinois, Wilma Hardiman, Omaha; sisters-in-law and brothers-in-law: Susan and William Cooper, Queon Temple, Agnes Brown, Sam (Grace) Frazier, all of Omaha; nine grandchildren; six great-grandchildren; and other relatives.

Madam Speaker, renaming this postal facility in his honor is an attempt to pay tribute to this outstanding citizen and dedicated man of God. The work initiated by Reverend Wade continues to this day in our community, and his impact on our community should be remembered, as it will forever have changed our community.

Among the notable community service achievements, Reverend Wade created the Salem Preschool for Children. In the early fifties, he realized that our youngest children have to go to school ready to learn, so he started the preschool to make sure that when they entered school they were ready; the precursor to what we call the Head Start program today. He started it before anyone in government had ever thought of that concept.

He organized, too, the first adult basic education in Omaha, Nebraska, at the church. He participated, and we have heard deeply in our community through the Mayors' Advisory Council, the Interdenominational Council, which by the way unifies our community from all faiths and geographic areas.

As a leader in the religious community, Reverend Wade served as the President of the New Era Baptist State Convention, the State Vice President to the National Baptist Convention, and director of religious education for the Sunday School and Baptist Training Union of the New Era State Convention.

As a member of the National Baptist Convention U.S.A., Reverend Wade brought the Baptist National Convention to Omaha three times. During his tenure at Salem Baptist, Reverend Wade grew the congregation from 250 members to nearly 4,000 members.

I was reminded the other day of a fascinating story about this man who took the Salem Baptist Choir to Crookston, Minnesota, for a concert in the late 1960s. This church in Crookston was based in an all-white community. Some of the Crookston members had never associated with African-Americans before, but this choir performed their concert even while their hearts were grieving because of riots that were occurring in Omaha, Nebraska.

The Choir fellowshipped with church members at a picnic following the concert, and later stayed in Crookston members' homes. The event broke down racial barriers and helped develop friendships between the two congregations that last to today. This outreach was a great success, particularly at a time when riots were going on not only in our hometown but throughout the country. It greatly affected the members of both churches.

All these earthly achievements testify to the character of Reverend J.C. Wade, who we seek to honor today by passing H.R. 4615 designating the Reverend J.C. Wade Post Office.

Finally, I would like to honor Reverend Wade's wife of 63 years, an amazing woman, Mary Frazier Wade, and thank her for her assistance and her support in this legislation.

Madam Speaker, I urge my colleagues to support this legislation.

Mr. CUMMINGS. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, I was very pleased to hear the gentleman from Nebraska (Mr. TERRY) reiterate the concern that Reverend J.C. Wade had for the education of young people. If we were to honor him, I am sure he would want to be honored for his pastoral duties and his efforts, but I am sure he would also want to be honored for looking towards the future so that he could make sure that young children could rise up to be the very best they could be.

When we are talking about establishing the first Head Start center in Omaha, I think that says a lot, because he clearly had a vision of the future. As I often say, he cared about somebody other than himself. He wanted to make sure that those children were able to rise up.

I am sure that as they pass the post office, a lot of those children who benefited from his efforts, they can only stop to salute and say, thank you.

Madam Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mrs. MORELLA. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, I am very moved to hear about the contributions of Reverend J.C. Wade. I want to thank the gentleman from Nebraska (Mr. TERRY) for so acknowledging and for introducing this legislation to name a post office building in his name.

Madam Speaker, I urge support for the bill, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mrs. BIGGERT). The question is on the motion offered by the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. MORELLA) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 4615.

The question was taken; and (two-thirds having voted in favor thereof) the rules were suspended and the bill was passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

HENRY McNEAL TURNER POST OFFICE

Mrs. MORELLA. Madam Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 3454) to designate the United States post office located at 451 College Street in Macon, Georgia, as the ''Henry McNeal Turner Post Office.''

The Clerk read as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. DESIGNATION OF POST OFFICE.

(a) DESIGNATION.—The United States post office located at 451 College Street in Macon, Georgia, shall be known and designated as the ''Henry McNeal Turner Post Office''.

(b) REFERENCES.—Any reference in a law, map, regulation, document, paper, or other record of the United States to the facility referred to in subsection (a) shall be deemed to be a reference to the ''Henry McNeal Turner Post Office''.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. MORELLA) and the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CUMMINGS) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. MORELLA).

GENERAL LEAVE

Mrs. MORELLA. Madam Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on this legislation.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentlewoman from Maryland?

There was no objection.

Mrs. MORELLA. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, the legislation before us, H.R. 3454, was introduced by our colleague, the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. CHAMBLISS). All Members of the House delegation from Georgia have cosponsored this bill.

H.R. 3454 designates the post office located at 451 College Street in Macon, Georgia, as the Henry McNeal Turner Post Office.

There is much to be said about the man honored by this legislation, but I will speak briefly. Henry McNeal Turner was a well-known missionary, pastor, evangelist, church administrator, Army chaplain, author of religious publications, and postmaster.

Turner faced many obstructions in his youth. However, he taught himself to read, and at the age of 19 became a preacher in the African Methodist Episcopal Church. In 1863, he organized the first regiment of African-American troops, and he became the first African-American Army chaplain, and then became a chaplain of the regular troops.

Mr. Turner was appointed as a delegate to the Constitutional Convention in 1867. He was elected to the Georgia State Legislature in 1868 and in 1870. He was appointed postmaster of Macon in 1869. After a year as postmaster, Mr. Turner returned to the State Legislature and founded the Georgia Equal Rights League. He actively championed equal rights, and led mission trips to Sierra Leone, Liberia, and South Africa.

Madam Speaker, I urge our colleagues to support H.R. 3454, honoring an individual who sought equality for all Americans and for people around the world.

I want to thank the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. CHAMBLISS) for bringing our focus to this great individual, Henry McNeal Turner.

Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. CUMMINGS. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, I join the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. MORELLA) in thanking the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. CHAMBLISS) for sponsoring H.R. 3454.

Henry McNeal Turner was a well-known missionary pastor, evangelist, church administrator, Army chaplain, author of religious publications, and postmaster. He taught himself to read, and at the age of 19 he became a preacher in the African-American Methodist Episcopal Church.

In 1863, he organized the first regiment of African-American troops. He became the first African-American Army chaplain, and then became a chaplain of the regular troops. He was elected to the Georgia State legislature in 1868.

I guess it is easy for us to say that today, but when we think about the times back in 1868, for an African-American man to be elected to the State legislature is phenomenal.

In 1869 he was appointed Postmaster of Macon, Georgia. He actively championed equal rights, and led missions to Sierra Leone, Liberia, and South Africa. So we pause here to honor him by naming this post office after him.

I must say that it is so important that we do this, for he is a hero to so many people, and particularly to African-American people. Just the thought that this post office will be named after him, and children again will have to say, well, who was he, Henry McNeal Turner, I think somebody can turn around and say that he was a great man and accomplished a lot of great things in a very difficult time.

Madam Speaker, I urge my colleagues to vote for this measure.

Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mrs. MORELLA. Madam Speaker, I am honored to yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. CHAMBLISS), the prime sponsor of this legislation.

Mr. CHAMBLISS. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. MORELLA) and the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CUMMINGS) for their kind comments regarding Henry McNeal Turner and for bringing this bill to the floor today.

Madam Speaker, last year I introduced H.R. 3454 to designate the United States Post Office located at 451 College Street in Macon, Georgia, as the Henry McNeal Turner Post Office. Today we have the opportunity to honor a great man by passing this bill.

Bishop Henry McNeal Turner was one of Georgia's most dynamic African American men in the 1800s. He was a missionary, an evangelist, a theologian and church administrator, an Army chaplain, a postmaster, an author, a politician, and a staunch supporter of equal rights in America.

Bishop Turner was born in South Carolina in 1834. He taught himself to read and, at the age of 19, became a pastor in the African Methodist Episcopal Church. As he helped to build the membership of the church, Turner was appointed a deacon, then elder, and eventually bishop of the AME Church.

By 1880, Bishop Turner was responsible for churches from Nova Scotia to Louisiana. Additionally, Turner traveled extensively in Africa as a missionary and established churches in Liberia, Sierra Leone, and South Africa.

In the United States, Turner strove for equality amongst blacks and whites. In 1863, he helped organize the first United States regiment of African American troops and became the first African American Army chaplain appointed by President Abraham Lincoln.

During Reconstruction, he worked to make life in 19th century Georgia a better place for blacks. Turner helped organize the Republican Party in Georgia in 1867 and was first elected to the Georgia State Senate in 1868 as a Republican.

During his political career, Turner introduced bills for higher education for blacks, to protect black people from the Ku Klux Klan, and to give women the right to vote. Turner was an ardent supporter of public schools in Georgia and championed equal rights by founding the Georgia Equal Rights League.

In 1869, after all the black legislators were expelled from the legislature because of their race, Turner was appointed postmaster in Macon, Georgia. But he was then returned to the Georgia legislature in the following year.

Bishop Henry McNeal Turner is remembered as a man of many accomplishments. His influence spread far and wide, and his power was felt from rural towns in Georgia to churches in Africa. In the United States Army, in the postal service, in the African Methodist Episcopal Church, and in government Bishop Turner fought fiercely to improve the lives of the minorities and to defend their rights. Turner College and Turner Theological Seminary in Atlanta are named for him, as are many churches across Georgia, Kentucky, South Carolina, and Louisiana.

Bishop Turner stood for freedom, justice, and equality and left an endearing mark on our society. In reference to Bishop Turner, the Reverend Augusta Hall, Jr., senior pastor of the Saint Paul AME Church in Covington, Georgia, stated as follows:

''Georgia stands as your living testament. Churches you have built throughout her realm, ordaining those who would serve the Church of Allen, true servants of God you placed at her helm.

''Bishop Turner, even when your days drew nigh, look upwards you taught us, for inspiration comes from on high. Bishop Turner, may you dwell forever in God's heavenly sky. God bless the name of Henry Turner, may your legacy never die.''

Bishop Turner's commitment to education, service, missionary work, the improvement of people, and racial equality deserve our recognition. Naming the post office in Macon, Georgia, of which he was postmaster at one time, is certainly a fitting tribute to this great man.

All 11 members of the Georgia congressional delegation are cosponsors and supporters of this bill to honor Bishop Henry Turner. I would encourage my colleagues to join me in passing this bill to recognize Bishop Turner's contributions to Georgia and America.

I give special thanks to Elder Ben Ridley and current Macon Mayor Jack Ellis for their assistance and cooperation in researching Bishop Turner and for helping to bring this post office naming to a reality.

Mr. CUMMINGS. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, in listening to the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. CHAMBLISS), I could not help but think about the fact that, when he talked about how Henry McNeal Turner worked hard many, many years ago for equal rights, for African Americans, and women, it is so interesting, Madam Speaker, that the denomination in which he was a bishop, the African Methodist Episcopal Church, just named one of our neighbors, one of my neighbors in Baltimore, Bishop Vashti McKenzie. I cannot help but think that it was people like Henry McNeal Turner who laid the foundation for such a wonderful opportunity for women and in particular for Bishop Vashti McKenzie.

So today we salute him, and I urge all of our Members to vote in favor of this very, very important piece of legislation.

Madam Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mrs. MORELLA. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, I cannot help but be moved by what I hear about Bishop Turner, and I am very pleased that we have before us this naming post office bill for Bishop Turner, a man who was early on demonstrative of great courage, conviction, equality for African Americans, as well as for women, and for helping those who need it most.

So I urge this House to unanimously pass H.R. 3454, and I thank the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. CHAMBLISS) for introducing it.

Madam Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mrs. BIGGERT). The question is on the motion offered by the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. MORELLA) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 3454.

The question was taken; and (two-thirds having voted in favor thereof) the rules were suspended and the bill was passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

EVERETT ALVAREZ, JR. POST OFFICE BUILDING

Mrs. MORELLA. Madam Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 4484) to designate the facility of the United States Postal Service located at 500 North Washington Street in Rockville, Maryland, as the ''Everett Alvarez, Jr. Post Office Building.''

The Clerk read as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. EVERETT ALVAREZ, JR. POST OFFICE BUILDING.

(a) DESIGNATION.—The facility of the United States Postal Service located at 500 North Washington Street in Rockville, Maryland, shall be known and designated as the ''Everett Alvarez, Jr. Post Office Building''.

(b) REFERENCES.—Any reference in a law, map, regulation, document, paper, or other record of the United States to the facility referred to in subsection (a) shall be deemed to be a reference to the ''Everett Alvarez, Jr. Post Office Building''.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. MORELLA) and the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CUMMINGS) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. MORELLA).

GENERAL LEAVE

Mrs. MORELLA. Madam Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on H.R. 4484.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentlewoman from Maryland?

There was no objection.

Mrs. MORELLA. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 4484, which designates the facility of the United States Postal Service located at 500 North Washington Street in Rockville, Maryland as the Everett Alvarez, Jr. Post Office Building. It is with great pride that we in the Maryland Congressional Delegation honor a man for whom our entire Nation is eternally grateful.

During his life, Mr. Alvarez has faithfully served as a distinguished military officer and public servant. In 1960, after earning a Bachelor of Science in Electrical Engineering from the University of Santa Clara and becoming the first in his family to go to college, Mr. Alvarez joined the United States Navy.

After serving in the Navy for 20 years, he retired from his position with program management at the Naval Air Systems Command in Washington, D.C. and accepted an appointment as deputy director of the Peace Corps.

In 1982, President Reagan nominated him, and the Senate confirmed his appointment, as the deputy administrator of the Veterans Administration. After leaving the position of deputy administrator of the VA, Mr. Alvarez joined the Hospital Corporation of America before forming his own consulting company, Conwal, Incorporated.

A dedicated civil servant, Mr. Alvarez is best known to the public as the first American aviator shot down over North Vietnam. In 1964, then LTJG Everett Alvarez, an A–4 Skyhawk pilot, was assigned to Attack Squadron 144 on board the U.S.S. Constellation. On August 5, he was shot down and captured on the first raid in North Vietnam.

Commander Alvarez was reported as captured at about 4 p.m. Hanoi time at Hon Gai Bay in the Gulf of Tonkin. He was kept in the local jail cell in Hon Gai with two Vietnamese prisoners for 2 days, then moved to a nearby farm until August 12. On the 12th, he was taken in Hanoi and placed into room 24 in the infamous Hanoi Hilton where he lived until March of 1965, at which time other American prisoners started to arrive.

Commander Alvarez earned the dubious distinction of not only being the first naval aviator captured by the North Vietnamese, but also the longest confirmed prisoner of war in North Vietnam. On February 12, 1973, Commander Alvarez was finally released after 8½ years of imprisonment.

For his courageous service, Everett Alvarez holds numerous military decorations. He has been honored with the Silver Star, two Legions of Merit, with combat ''V,'' two Bronze Stars, with combat ''V,'' the Distinguished Flying Cross, and two Purple Heart medals.

In addition, a city park and two housing projects in California and Texas have been named in honor of Mr. Alvarez. In 1987, his hometown of Salinas, California, named a new high school in his honor. In March of 1998, he was awarded with the Daughters of the American Revolution's Medal of Honor.

Today, we have the opportunity to honor him in Rockville, Maryland, where Mr. Alvarez, his wife Thomasine, and his two sons, Mark and Bryan, currently reside. Unfortunately the Alvarez family was not able to be in the gallery this afternoon because Mr. Alvarez continues to serve America and America's future with his position on the Board of Regents of the Uniformed Services University of Health Sciences and is currently at their annual board meeting in Colorado.

Commander Alvarez's life stands as a testament to patriotism, to courage, and to perseverance. He, like any of our Nation's veterans, deserves our highest praise for risking his life defending this great Nation.

In the historical publication, We Came Home, Commander Alvarez reflects on his prisoner-of-war experience with this statement:

''For years and years, during our long incarceration, we dreamed of the day when we would come home to our families and friends. We never gave up hope that this day might come soon, because we had faith—faith in God, in our country, and in ourselves. It was this faith that maintained that someday our dreams would come true. No one can be prouder than I am for having had the association of some of the bravest men this country has ever seen—my fellow prisoners who were held in North Vietnamese jails.''

Madam Speaker, it is a privilege for me to sponsor this legislation endorsed by all of the Maryland delegation to honor one of America's great heroes, Everett Alvarez, Jr.

Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. CUMMINGS. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, H.R. 4484, which names a post office after Everett Alvarez, was introduced by the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. MORELLA), my good friend and colleague, on May 17, 2000.

Everett Alvarez was born in Salinas, California, in 1937. He earned a Bachelor of Science Degree in Electrical Engineering and a Master's degree in Operations Research and Systems Analysis, and a Juris Doctorate.

After earning his bachelor's degree in 1960, he joined the United States Navy and was an officer. He was taken prisoner of war in August of 1964 and held captive in North Vietnam for 8½ years until the general release of prisoners in February of 1973.

He served in program management at the Naval Air Systems Command in Washington, D.C. until his retirement in 1980. In 1981, he accepted an appointment as deputy director of the Peace Corps. President Reagan nominated him, and he was confirmed by the Senate, to be deputy administrator of the Veterans Administration in 1982.

Mr. Alvarez is a recipient of numerous military declarations and civilian awards and serves on several boards of directors. The fact is that he is a military man and he has given so much to his country, and someone once said freedom is not free. The fact is that Mr. Alvarez took time out of his life to sacrifice so that we could all be free and enjoy the wonderful life that we enjoy in this country and around the world.

Madam Speaker, I urge the adoption of H.R. 4484. I thank the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. MORELLA) for recognizing this great Marylander.

Madam Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mrs. MORELLA. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, I want to acknowledge and demonstrate my appreciation to the chairman of the Committee on Government Reform, the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. BURTON), and the ranking member; as well as the chairman of the subcommittee before whom this bill came, the gentleman from New York (Mr. MCHUGH) and his ranking member, the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. FATTAH).

I want to also thank the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CUMMINGS) for his sponsorship of this bill. It is interesting that we have the two Marylanders managing the time for a bill to name a post office for a national hero that will be in Maryland. So I urge support of this bill.

Madam Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mrs. BIGGERT). The question is on the motion offered by the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. MORELLA) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 4484.

The question was taken.

Mrs. MORELLA. Madame Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX and the Chair's prior announcement, further proceedings on this motion will be postponed.

JAMES W. MCCABE, SR. POST OFFICE BUILDING

Mrs. MORELLA. Madame Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 2302) to designate the building of the United States Postal Service located at 307 Main Street in Johnson City, New York, as the ''James W. McCabe, Sr. Post Office Building.''

The Clerk read as follows:

H.R. 2302

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. DESIGNATION.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The building of the United States Postal Service located at 307 Main Street in Johnson City, New York, shall be known and designated as the ''James W. McCabe, Sr. Post Office Building''.

(b) REFERENCES.—Any reference in a law, map, regulation, document, paper, or other record of the United States to the building referred to in subsection (a) shall be deemed to be a reference to the ''James W. McCabe, Sr. Post Office Building''.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. MORELLA) and the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CUMMINGS) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. MORELLA).

GENERAL LEAVE

Mrs. MORELLA. Madame Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on H.R. 2302.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentlewoman from Maryland?

There was no objection.

Mrs. MORELLA. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, our colleague, the gentleman from New York (Mr. HINCHEY) introduced H.R. 2302 on June 22, 1999. Pursuant to the policy of the Committee on Government Reform, each House Member of the State delegation of New York has cosponsored the legislation.

H.R. 2302 designates the building of the United States Postal Service at 307 Main Street in Johnson City, New York, as the James W. McCabe, Sr. Post Office Building.

James W. McCabe was born in Johnson City, New York, in 1917. He attended elementary school in Johnson City and high school at Holy Cross Seminary in Notre Dame, Indiana. He graduated cum laude from the University of Notre Dame where he majored in Latin and had minors in English and philosophy. He then attended SUNY-Albany to complete teaching requirements, and he also received a master's degree in education. He did further graduate studies at Syracuse University, Colgate University and Ithaca College.

Mr. McCabe served with the Army Air Corps from 1943 through 1945. He was stationed in the South Pacific with a B–24 bomber crew. He was awarded the Air Medal with an oak leaf cluster and was honorably discharged with the rank of technical sergeant.

After military service, Mr. McCabe taught Latin and English at Johnson City High School. James McCabe served as mayor of Johnson City from 1963 to 1971, and on the executive committee of the New York Conference of Mayors in 1970 to 1971. He was elected to represent his constituents as an assemblyman from January 1973 to 1985.

For his efforts on behalf of the mentally disabled, the Mayor of New York, on behalf of the City of New York and the Advisory Board of the New York City Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation Services, presented Mr. McCabe the Human Service Award in 1977. Also in 1977, he received the Legislator of the Year Award from the New York State Personnel and Guidance Association for his work in mental health.

In 1981 and 1982, Mr. McCabe was named Legislator of the Year by the New York State Association of Counties and the Friend of Education Award.

After his service in the State assembly, Mr. McCabe served on the New York State Board of Regents for 5 years.

Mr. McCabe died in Johnson City on May 23, 1999. He is survived by his wife of 55 years, Margaret Flynn McCabe.

Madam Speaker, this bill honors an individual who devoted his life to public service. It is most appropriate to honor James W. McCabe, Sr., by naming a United States Post Office in Johnson City, New York, where Mr. McCabe was born, served his community and died; and I urge all Members to support H.R. 2302 honoring James W. McCabe, Sr.

Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. CUMMINGS. Madam Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from New York (Mr. HINCHEY), the author of the legislation.

Mr. HINCHEY. Madam Speaker, it is with a great deal of pleasure that I rise and ask the House to support us in designating the building of the United States Postal Service, which is located at 307 Main Street in Johnson City, New York, as the James W. McCabe, Sr. Post Office Building.

In doing so, I want to express my appreciation to my friend and colleague, the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. MORELLA), and others who are supporting us in this endeavor. I thank them very much.

Jim McCabe, Sr. served a total of 17 years in New York State government. As a former Mayor of Johnson City and a member of the New York State legislature, Jim served his community and he served his entire State with great distinction.

Many members of the New York congressional delegation served with Jim during his six terms in the assembly and remember him for his dedication, for his kindness, and, most of all, I think, for his great strong sense of integrity. His leadership was always based upon his conscience, not on the polls and not on party. His intelligent leadership earned him the friendship and respect of all those who were privileged to serve with him.

Jim McCabe died in 1999, and naming the Johnson City Post Office after him would permanently honor his memory in the community that he served so well. This tribute is particularly appropriate since Jim's father served as the postmaster in Johnson City.

Jim McCabe was born in Johnson City, New York, on April 17, 1917. He graduated cum laude from the University of Notre Dame. He then attended the State University of New York at Albany for a semester to complete his teaching requirements, and later received a master's degree in education. He did further graduate study at Syracuse University, at Colgate University, and also Ithaca College.

He was a devoted family man and was married for 56 years to his wife Margaret, and together they had seven children.

Jim served with the Army Air Corps from 1943 through 1945. He was a World War II veteran. He was stationed in the South Pacific with a B–24 bomber crew. And for his service there, he was awarded the Air Medal with an oak leaf cluster.

Jim taught Latin and English at Johnson City High School when he was discharged from the service from 1946 to 1973. He also served as a counselor at that school.

From 1963 to 1971, Jim was the Mayor of Johnson City. As mayor, Jim was a strong proponent of the construction of New York Route 17, soon to be redesignated as part of the interstate highway system, Interstate 86. The construction of that Route 17 brought economic development to the area. At a time when the region was dumping raw sewage into the Susquehanna River, Jim helped establish the Binghamton-Johnson City Joint Sewer Treatment Plant, which still serves the people of Broome County. And it was his foresight and leadership on this important environmental issue that made that possible.

From 1970 to 1971, he served as a member of the Executive Committee of the New York State Conference of Mayors. Jim McCabe also served six terms in the New York State assembly. That service was from 1973 until 1982. During that time, he was chairman of the Assembly Committee on Local Government and also chair of the Legislative Commission on State and Local Relations.

As a member of the State Assembly's Committee on Mental Health, Education and on the Rules Committee and its Task Force on the Disabled, Jim was a passionate advocate on behalf of the mentally disabled, and he became known all across New York State for that service. In fact, for his efforts, Jim received the Human Service Award in 1977. The award was presented by then New York City Mayor Abraham Beame on behalf of New York City and the Advisory Board of the New York City Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation Services.

In the same year, Jim McCabe received the Legislator of the Year Award from the New York State Personnel and Guidance Association, additionally for his work in mental health. Jim was named Legislator of the Year in 1981 and 1982 by the New York State Association of Counties. He also received the Friends of Education Award in 1982 from the New York Education Association.

After his service in the State Assembly, and in a way as a capstone of his entire service in both State and local government, Jim served for 5 years on the New York State Board of Regents. The New York State Board of Regents, of course, is the board which oversees the entire educational system within New York. It was a very appropriate way for Jim McCabe to end his public service, in the sense that throughout his years, in local government and in the State legislature, and wherever he worked, with young people and old everywhere, his educational skills served him in good stead.

Jim, first and foremost, was an educator. And everyone with whom he came in contact benefitted from his skills, from his experience, from his wide breadth of service both here at home and abroad. It is, Mr. Speaker, with a great sense of pride that I offer this legislation to the Congress of the United States to name the Post Office Building in Johnson City as the James W. McCabe, Sr. Post Office.

Mrs. MORELLA. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume to congratulate the gentleman from New York (Mr. HINCHEY) for introducing this bill for someone who certainly deserves the recognition.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. CUMMINGS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I also applaud the gentleman from New York (Mr. HINCHEY) for this bill and for introducing it. I think he has said it quite eloquently as to why we are honoring this wonderful gentleman, James W. McCabe, in naming a post office after him.

The fact is, as I have said about some of our other honorees earlier today, they have come upon the Earth, they have seen it, they saw they could make a difference and made that difference.

With that, I would associate myself with the statement that the gentleman from New York just made and would urge our colleagues to vote in favor of this very important legislation based upon that.

I also want to thank the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. MORELLA) also for all her assistance.

Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mrs. MORELLA. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume and I again urge this House to unanimously pass H.R. 2302, the legislation naming the James W. McCabe Post Office Building.

Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. KUYKENDALL). The question is on the motion offered by the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. MORELLA) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 2302.

The question was taken; and (two-thirds having voted in favor thereof) the rules were suspended and the bill was passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

JUDGE ROBERT BERNARD WATTS, SR. POST OFFICE BUILDING

Mrs. MORELLA. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 4448) to designate the facility of the United States Postal Service located at 3500 Dolfield Avenue in Baltimore, Maryland, as the ''Judge Robert Bernard Watts, Sr. Post Office Building.''

The Clerk read as follows:

H.R. 4448

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. JUDGE ROBERT BERNARD WATTS, SR. POST OFFICE BUILDING.

(a) DESIGNATION.—The facility of the United States Postal Service located at 3500 Dolfield Avenue in Baltimore, Maryland, shall be known and designated as the ''Judge Robert Bernard Watts, Sr. Post Office Building''.

(b) REFERENCES.—Any reference in a law, map, regulation, document, paper, or other record of the United States to the facility referred to in subsection (a) shall be deemed to be a reference to the ''Judge Robert Bernard Watts, Sr. Post Office Building''.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. MORELLA) and the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CUMMINGS) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. MORELLA).

GENERAL LEAVE

Mrs. MORELLA. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on H.R. 4448.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentlewoman from Maryland?

There was no objection.

Mrs. MORELLA. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, it is an honor to bring before the House H.R. 4448, legislation that was introduced by our colleague, the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CUMMINGS). This bill was introduced on May 15 of this year and is supported by all Members of the House delegation from the State of Maryland, and I am honored to be a cosponsor.

□ 1600

This legislation designates the United States Post Office located at 3500 Dolfield Avenue in Baltimore, Maryland, as the ''Judge Robert Bernard Watts, Sr. Post Office.''

Judge Watts graduated with honors from Morgan State College in 1943. He joined the Army and served until 1945. After this service, he earned a law degree from the University of Maryland in 1948.

Judge Watts was deeply involved with the civil rights movement and worked closely with the NAACP. He was instrumental in desegregating numerous theaters, restaurants, department stores, hotels, and the Gwynn Oak Amusement Park. Judge Robert Bernard Watts was the first African American to be appointed full time to the bench of the Municipal Court of Baltimore City and was the first judge in Maryland to open hundreds of adoption records.

Mr. Speaker, I urge all Members to support H.R. 4448 in honor of a gentleman, a gentleman who has made a difference in the lives of his community and his State.

I also want to congratulate the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CUMMINGS) for taking time to introduce this bill and for bringing the good works of Judge Watts to the attention of our colleagues.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. CUMMINGS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to thank the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. MORELLA), the gentleman from New York (Mr. MCHUGH), and the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. FATTAH) the ranking member of the Subcommittee on Postal Service, for their support in bringing this bill to the floor.

I believe that persons who have made meaningful contributions to society should be recognized. The naming of a postal building in one's honor is truly a salute to the accomplishments and public service of an individual.

H.R. 4448 designates the United States Postal Building located at 3500 Dolfield Avenue, Baltimore, Maryland, as the ''Judge Robert Bernard Watts, Sr. Post Office Building.''

I am pleased to be able to speak today about Judge Robert Bernard Watts, Sr. Judge Watts was born in west Baltimore, was at the center of the civil rights movement in the State of Maryland. He began his civil rights work as chairman of the NAACP Youth Chapter at Morgan State University. His chapter, with 200 members, was the largest in the country at that time. Because of his outstanding work, the NAACP sent him to his first national convention in Atlanta, Georgia, in 1942, where he met the late Justice Thurgood Marshall with whom he worked for 15 years on various civil rights cases.

He was the first African American to be appointed full time to the bench of the Municipal Court of Baltimore City. He then served in the Army until 1945. He earned a law degree from the University of Maryland, my alma mater, in 1949, where he was the editor of the Maryland Law Review, which is a very high honor.

Also in 1949, he formed the first major African American law firm in Baltimore. He was the first African American appointed to the Municipal Court in Maryland. In 1968 he was appointed by Governor Spiro Agnew to the Supreme Bench of Baltimore City.

As a judge, Watts was instrumental in desegregating numerous theaters, restaurants, department stores, hotels, and the Gwynn Oak Amusement Park. He was the first judge in Maryland to open hundreds of adoption records, reuniting numerous families. Judge Watts was one of the few judges who volunteered to be a part of our family court, the court that dealt with various disputes with regard to family matters, divorces, adoptions, and child support.

I had an opportunity, many opportunities, to go before him. And quite often he would tell us that the reason why he liked doing this kind of work was because he wanted to bring families together and have them see the bigger picture. He cared so much about children he wanted to make sure that fathers understood that they needed to be a part of their children's lives.

Moreover, Judge Robert Watts not only served justly and fairly in the courtroom but served in numerous organizations in the community. At one point in his career he served on 14 boards at the same time, among them Bon Secours Hospital, which is located in the seventh Congressional District. He chaired three gubernatorial task forces regarding family law, AIDS, and prison overcrowding and served the community as a member of Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity, Inc.

He died October 8, 1998.

He was such a wonderful, wonderful husband to his wife Jacqueline. He was married to her for over 50 years.

And so we take this moment to salute him for all that he has done to make life better for so many people.

One great author said that, when speaking of a great person, he said he brought life to life. It is clear that Judge Watts did that.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mrs. MORELLA. Mr. Speaker, again I thank the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CUMMINGS) for introducing this legislation.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. CUMMINGS. Mr. Speaker, I am very pleased to yield 5 minutes to my distinguished colleague, the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CARDIN).

Mr. CARDIN. Mr. Speaker, first let me thank my friends, the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CUMMINGS) and the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. MORELLA), for bringing forward this legislation that honors Judge Watts.

I can think of no person more appropriate to be honored than Judge Watts. He was my friend. He was my mentor. As my colleagues have pointed out, yes, he was responsible for breaking many barriers. He was an outstanding jurist. He was a colleague of my father on the Supreme Bench of Baltimore City and a close friend of my father and our family.

I remember sharing many dinners together with Judge Watts and his family. He was an extraordinary individual. But I think his greatest accomplishment was the way that Judge Watts was able to bring communities and people together. He could mediate problems in a neighborhood. He could mediate problems in a city. He could mediate problems in our State. He was called upon by governors, by legislators, by jurists, by attorneys to help bring his wisdom to improve our community. And as the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CUMMINGS) pointed out, he never turned down a request, serving on 14 boards at one time.

Let me just share with my colleagues one example of one board that he agreed to serve on. He served with me as a trustee at St. Mary's College in St. Mary's City, Maryland, not exactly close to his hometown of Baltimore. It was about a 2-hour commute in order to attend the trustees meetings.

Now, Judge Watts was well known in Baltimore, but he was willing to take his knowledge and expertise and use it to help a small liberal arts college in a rural part of our State.

He never missed a meeting that I can remember. He was always an active participant. We had a very sensitive issue that, quite frankly, I do not think anyone but Judge Watts could have resolved.

St. Mary's College is one of the finest public liberal arts colleges in this Nation. And this is a tribute also to Judge Watts' talent, leadership, and willingness to get involved in community activities.

Mr. Speaker, he spent his life serving his community. I am proud that today we are going to be able to honor his community by the naming of this facility.

I congratulate all involved.

Mrs. MORELLA. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. CUMMINGS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CARDIN) for his comments. As he was speaking, I could not help but remember the many times that Judge Watts sat in the meetings of blacks and Jews, we called them Blews, and tried to make sure that African-Americans and Jewish people worked together to resolve problems. He was a man who constantly looked for what people had in common, as opposed to their differences; and he fully understood that if we concentrated on the things we have in common, we can accomplish so very, very much.

So we take this moment not only to salute Judge Watts, but we also salute Mrs. Watts, Jacqueline Watts; his five children Robert, Rodney, Jacqueline, Janelle, and Bobbett; and we take this moment to name this post office after him so that, as I have said so many, many times, so that when children look at the post office and look at the name up there, they can say, Well, who was Judge Watts? And it may be many, many years from now and somebody will be able to say, Well, he was a great jurist, he was a great great humanitarian and, in the words of the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CARDIN), he was a consensus builder and one who brought people together.

I do not think we can give any greater tribute to any person greater than the one we have given here today. I urge passage of this legislation.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mrs. MORELLA. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, we can see there is unanimity among the Maryland delegation on behalf of the Nation and the service of Judge Robert Bernard Watts, Sr. So I urge passage of this bill.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. KUYKENDALL). The question is on the motion offered by the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. MORELLA) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 4448.

The question was taken.

Mrs. MORELLA. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX and the Chair's prior announcement, further proceedings on this motion will be postponed.

DR. FLOSSIE MCCLAIN DEDMOND POST OFFICE BUILDING

Mrs. MORELLA. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 4449) to designate the facility of the United States Postal Service located at 1908 North Ellamont Street in Baltimore, Maryland, as the ''Dr. Flossie McClain Dedmond Post Office Building.''

The Clerk read as follows:

H.R. 4449

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. DR. FLOSSIE McCLAIN DEDMOND POST OFFICE BUILDING.

(a) DESIGNATION.—The facility of the United States Postal Service located at 1908 North Ellamont Street in Baltimore, Maryland, shall be known and designated as the ''Dr. Flossie McClain Dedmond Post Office Building''.

(b) REFERENCES.—Any reference in a law, map, regulation, document, paper, or other record of the United States to the facility referred to in subsection (a) shall be deemed to be a reference to the ''Dr. Flossie McClain Dedmond Post Office Building''.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. MORELLA) and the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CUMMINGS) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. MORELLA).

GENERAL LEAVE

Mrs. MORELLA. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on H.R. 4449.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentlewoman from Maryland?

There was no objection.

Mrs. MORELLA. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, the bill before us, H.R. 4449, was introduced by the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CUMMINGS), my colleague. This legislation designates the post office located at 1908 North Ellamont Street in Baltimore, Maryland, as the ''Dr. Flossie McClain Dedmond Post Office.'' Each member of the Maryland delegation has cosponsored this legislation, pursuant to the policy of the Committee on Government Reform.

Dr. Flossie McClain Dedmond earned a bachelor's degree in English from Fisk University, a master's degree from Columbia University, and she pursued postgraduate studies in English and speech at Ohio State University and Catholic University of America, respectively.

Dr. Dedmond taught and held administrative positions at Allen University, Benedict College, Knoxville College, Morgan State University, and Coppin State College, where she spent 31 years in various posts.

She held various positions at Coppin, including professor of English, head of the English Department, and chair of numerous committees. She was also the director of the summer/evening college and retired as dean of the arts and sciences division.

The first residence hall at Coppin State College was named ''The Flossie M. Dedmond Center for Living and Learning.'' Dr. Dedmond was bestowed the honor of Dean Emeritus when she retired from Coppin State.

Dr. Dedmond passed away on September 11, 1998.

Mr. Speaker, I urge our colleagues to support H.R. 4449, a bill that honors a great academician who has inspired innumerable young Americans.

I also want to recognize the dedicated work of the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CUMMINGS) in bringing this legislation to the floor.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. CUMMINGS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, Dr. Flossie McClain Dedmond earned a bachelor's degree in English from Fisk University, received a master's degree from Columbia University, and pursued postgraduate studies at Ohio State University and Catholic University of America. She served in teaching and administrative positions at Allen University, Benedict College, Knoxville College, Morgan State University, and Coppin State College.

Dr. Dedmond spent 31 years working at Coppin State College where she served in numerous roles. Upon her retirement, the honor of Dean Emeritus was bestowed upon her. In 1993, Coppin's first residence hall was named after her and is called the Flossie M. Dedmond Center for Living and Learning.

A talented musician, Dr. Dedmond composed the alma mater for Allen University, and the song is still in use today. Along with her other many talents and honors, Dr. Dedmond was a prize winning poet. For over 6 years, she served as the Governor's appointee on a 13-member appellate judicial nominating commission. She is the former national vice president of the National Council of Negro Women. Dr. Dedmond was also a 52-year member of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, a service sorority. In her many years of service to this organization, she was a former national public relations director of the sorority and was one of the organization's incorporators of the Cleveland Job Corps. She died on September 11, 1998.

Dr. Burnett, the President of Coppin State University, tells a very interesting story about how, when she was dean, she had a major trip that she was supposed to take to Austria to deliver a paper and it was probably the most important trip of her life as a college educator. He said that she was prepared to go but they had some problems at the university and so he thought that she had flown off to deliver her paper in Austria. So he walks in early that Monday morning to try to address the problems, and she is sitting there in his office. He said, ''Why are you still here?'' She says, ''I'm here because I didn't want to leave you here to drown. I wanted to stay here to make sure that the students who come through the doors of this university have an opportunity to move forward and become the great people that I know that they can be.''

That was what Dr. Dedmond was all about, touching the lives of college students, making sure that they were prepared to go out of the doors of Coppin State University and other historically black colleges and universities so that they could touch others to make their lives better.

She would often talk about breaking the cycle of poverty and breaking the cycle of illiteracy and breaking the cycle of alcoholism and health problems and she wanted to do her part; and she did, staying so long at Coppin State University, touching the young people's lives, making it so that they could break the cycles in their own families. And so today we salute her.

Mr. Speaker, I urge all of my colleagues to vote in favor of this very important legislation.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mrs. MORELLA. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

This legislation honors a woman, Dr. Dedmond, who was a woman of arts and letters and great service to her country and to her community.

It is important that we open the doors of opportunity for others, but it is also very important that we prepare them to go through those doors. That is what Dr. Dedmond did.

I urge passage of H.R. 4449.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. KUYKENDALL). The question is on the motion offered by the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. MORELLA) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 4449.

The question was taken; and (two-thirds having voted in favor thereof) the rules were suspended and the bill was passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

COMMUNICATION FROM THE CLERK OF THE HOUSE

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following communication from the Clerk of the House of Representatives:

OFFICE OF THE CLERK,
HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
Washington, DC, August 7, 2000.

Hon. J. DENNIS HASTERT,
Speaker, House of Representatives,
Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. SPEAKER: Pursuant to the permission granted in Clause 2(h) of Rule II of the Rules of the U.S. House of Representatives, I have the honor to transmit a sealed envelope received from the White House on Monday, August 7, 2000 at 12:25 p.m., and said to contain a message from the President whereby he returns without his approval, H.R. 4810, the ''Marriage Tax Relief Reconciliation Act of 2000''.

Sincerely yours,

JEFF TRANDAHL,
Clerk of the House.

MARRIAGE TAX RELIEF RECONCILIATION ACT OF 2000—MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES—(H. DOC. NO. 106–291)

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following veto message from the President of the United States:

To the House of Representatives:

I am returning herewith without my approval H.R. 4810, the ''Marriage Tax Relief Reconciliation Act of 2000,'' because it is poorly targeted and one part of a costly and regressive tax plan that reverses the principle of fiscal responsibility that has contributed to the longest economic expansion in history.

Mr Administration supports marriage penalty relief and has offered a targeted and fiscally responsible proposal in our fiscal year 2001 budget to provide it. However, I must oppose H.R. 4810. Combined with the numerous other tax bills approved by the Congress this year and supported by the congressional majority for next year, it would drain away the projected surplus that the American people have worked so hard to create. Even by the Congressional Budget Office's more optimistic projection, this tax plan would plunge America back into deficit and would leave nothing for lengthening the life of Social Security or Medicare; nothing for voluntary and affordable Medicare prescription drug benefits; nothing for education and school construction. Moreover, the congressional majority's tax plan would make it impossible for us to get America out of debt by 2012.

H.R. 4810 would cost more than $280 billion over 10 years if its provisions were permanent, making it significantly more expensive than either of the bills originally approved by the House and the Senate. It is poorly targeted toward delivering marriage penalty relief—only about 40 percent of the cost of H.R. 4810 actually would reduce marriage penalties. It also provides little tax relief to those families that need it most, while devoting a large fraction of its benefits to families with higher incomes.

Taking into account H.R. 4810, the fiscally irresponsible tax cuts passed by the House Ways and Means Committee this year provide about as much benefit to the top 1 percent of Americans as to the bottom 80 percent combined. Families in the top 1 percent get an average tax break of over $16,000, while a middle-class family gets only $220 on average. But if interest rates went up because of the congressional majority's plan by even one-third of one percent, then mortgage payments for a family with a $100,000 mortgage would go up by $270, leaving them worse off than if they had no tax cut at all.

We should have tax cuts this year, but they should be the right ones, targeted to working families to help our economy grow—not tax breaks that will help only a few while putting our prosperity at risk. I have proposed a program of targeted tax cuts that will give a middle-class American family substantially more benefits than the Republican plan at less than half the cost. Including our carefully targeted marriage penalty relief, two-thirds of the relief will go to the middle 60 percent of American families. Our tax cuts will also help to send our children to college, with a tax deduction or 28 percent tax credit for up to $10,000 in college tuition a year; help to care for family members who need long-term care, through a $3,000 long-term care tax credit; help to pay for child care and to ease the burden on working families with three or more children; and help to fund desperately needed school construction.

And because our plan will cost substantially less than the tax cuts passed by the Congress, we'll still have the resources we need to provide a Medicare prescription drug benefit; to extend the life of Social Security and Medicare; and to pay off the debt by 2012—so that we can keep interest rates low, keep our economy growing, and provide lower home mortgage, car, and college loan payments for the American people.

This surplus comes from the hard work and ingenuity of the American people. We owe it to them to make the best use of it—for all of them, and for our children's future.

Since the adjournment of the Congress has prevented my return of H.R. 4810 within the meaning of Article I, section 7, clause 2 of the Constitution, my withholding of approval from the bill precludes its becoming law. The Pocket Veto Case, 279 U.S. 655 (1929). In addition to withholding my signature and thereby invoking my constitutional power to ''pocket veto'' bills during an adjournment of the Congress, to avoid litigation, I am also sending H.R. 4810 to the House of Representatives with my objections, to leave no possible doubt that I have vetoed the measure.

WILLIAM J. CLINTON.
THE WHITE HOUSE, August 5, 2000.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. KUYKENDALL). Consistent with the action of Speaker Foley on January 23, 1990, when in response to a parliamentary inquiry the House treated the President's return of an enrolled bill with a purported pocket veto of H.R. 2712 of the 101st Congress as a ''return veto'' within the meaning of Article 1, Section 7, clause 2 of the Constitution, the Chair, without objection, orders the objections of the President to be spread at large upon the Journal and orders the message to be printed as a House document.

Mr. ARCHER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the veto message of the President, together with the accompanying bill, H.R. 4810, be referred to the Committee on Ways and Means.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

Hon. J. DENNIS HASTERT,

DEAR MR. Clerk of the House.

DEATH TAX ELIMINATION ACT OF 2000—VETO MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES (H. DOC. NO. 106–292)

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following veto message from the President of the United States:

To the House of Representatives:

I am returning herewith without my approval H.R. 8, legislation to phase out Federal estate, gift, and generation-skipping transfer taxes over a 10-year period. While I support and would sign targeted and fiscally responsible legislation that provides estate tax relief for small businesses, family farms, and principal residences along the lines proposed by House and Senate Democrats, this bill is fiscally irresponsible and provides a very expensive tax break for the best-off Americans while doing nothing for the vast majority of working families. Starting in 2010, H.R. 8 would drain more than $50 billion annually to benefit only tens of thousands of families, taking resources that could have been used to strengthen Social Security and Medicare for tens of millions of families.

This repeal of the estate tax is the latest part in a tax plan that would cost over $2 trillion, spending projected surpluses that may never materialize and returning America to deficits. This would reverse the fiscal discipline that has helped make the American economy the strongest it has been in generations and would leave no resources to strengthen Social Security or Medicare, provide a voluntary Medicare prescription drug benefit, invest in key priorities like education, or pay off the debt held by the public by 2012. This tax plan would threaten our continued economic expansion by raising interest rates and choking off investment.

We should cut taxes this year, but they should be the right tax cuts, targeted to working families to help our economy grow—not tax breaks that will help only the wealthiest few while putting our prosperity at risk. Our tax cuts will help send our children to college, help families with members who need long-term care, help pay for child care, and help fund desperately needed school construction. Overall, my tax program will provide substantially more benefits to middle-income American families than the tax cuts passed by the congressional tax-writing committees this year, at less than half the cost.

H.R. 8, in particular, suffers from several problems. The true cost of the bill is masked by the backloading of the tax cut. H.R. 8 would explode in cost from about $100 billion from 2001–2010 to about $750 billion from 2011–2020, just when the baby boom generation begins to retire and Social Security and Medicare come under strain.

Repeal would also be unwise because estate and gift taxes play an important role in the overall fairness and progressivity of our tax system. These taxes ensure that the portion of income that is not taxed during life (such as unrealized capital gains) is taxed at death. Estate tax repeal would benefit only about 2 percent of decedents, providing an average tax cut of $800,000 to only 54,000 families in 2010. More than half of the benefits of repeal would go to one-tenth of one percent of families, just 3,000 families annually, with an average tax cut of $7 million. Furthermore, research suggests that repeal of the estate and gift taxes is likely to reduce charitable giving by as much as $6 billion per year.

In 1997, I signed legislation that reduced the estate tax for small businesses and family farms, but I believe that the estate tax is still burdensome to some family farms and small businesses. However, only a tiny fraction of the tax relief provided under H.R. 8 benefits these important sectors of our economy, and much of that relief would not be realized for a decade. In contrast, House and Senate Democrats have proposed alternatives that would provide significant, immediate tax relief to family-owned businesses and farms in a manner that is much more fiscally responsible than outright repeal. For example, the Senate Democratic alternative would take about two-thirds of families off the estate tax entirely, and could eliminate estate taxes for almost all small businesses and family farms. In contrast to H.R. 8—which waits until 2010 to repeal the estate tax—most of the relief in the Democratic alternatives is offered immediately.

By providing more targeted and less costly relief, we preserve the resources necessary to provide a Medicare prescription drug benefit, extend the life of Social Security and Medicare, and pay down the debt by 2012. Maintaining fiscal discipline also would continue to provide the best kind of tax relief to all Americans, not just the wealthiest few, by reducing interest rates on home mortgages, student loans, and other essential investments.

This surplus comes from the hard work and ingenuity of the American people. We owe it to them—and to their children—to make the best use of it. This bill, in combination with the tax bills already passed and planned for next year, would squander the surplus—without providing the immediate estate tax relief that family farms, small businesses, and other estates could receive under the fiscally responsible alternatives rejected by the Congress. For that reason, I must veto this bill.

Since the adjournment of the Congress has prevented my return of H.R. 8 within the meaning of Article I, section 7, clause 2 of the Constitution, my withholding of approval from the bill precludes its becoming law. The Pocket Veto Case, 279 U.S. 655 (1929). In addition to withholding my signature and thereby invoking my constitutional power to ''pocket veto'' bills during an adjournment of the Congress, to avoid litigation, I am also sending H.R. 8 to the House of Representatives with my objections, to leave no possible doubt that I have vetoed the measure.

I continue to welcome the opportunity to work with the Congress on a bipartisan basis on tax legislation that is targeted, fiscally responsible, and geared towards continuing the economic strength we all have worked so hard to achieve.

WILLIAM J. CLINTON.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. PAUL. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on the subject of the special order today of the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. COBLE).

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. TANCREDO). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

SPECIAL ORDERS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 6, 1999, and under a previous order of the House, the following Members will be recognized for 5 minutes each.

IN MEMORY OF KANSAS SENATOR JANICE HARDENBURGER

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Kansas (Mr. MORAN) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. MORAN of Kansas. Mr. Speaker, something sad happened back home in Kansas last week. Cancer took the life of one more of our State's citizens. Our State has many treasures: beautiful sunsets, rolling prairie hills, city factories, waves of wheat, meadowlarks, cottonwood trees, and grazing cattle. But what matters to us Kansans most, what makes our place the State we choose to call home is our people, Kansans.

The death of one Kansan takes something away from every Kansan. With the death of Janice Hardenburger, the loss is evident. Janice is the epitome of who we are and what we would like to be, one who knew reality of how things are, yet one who could envision how things ought to be.

A fighter for her beliefs, strong willed and plain spoken, devoted to her family as a wife and mother and grandmother, she was generous with her time, a farmer, a rancher, a listener and a doer, a supporter of others and, for the last 8 years, a State senator, a public servant.

For more than 25 years, Janice has been my friend. For 4 years she was my colleague in the State senate. Born in the small north central Kansas town of Haddam, Janice had a lifelong love for education and politics. She graduated valedictorian from Haddam Rural High School before attending Kansas State University and graduating with a degree in home economics and education.

She married her husband in 1952, and due to his career in the Air Force, she and her family moved often. During these years, she kept busy as a volunteer and raising two sons, Joseph and Thomas.

With Bill's retirement from the military in 1971, the Hardenburgers moved back home to Kansas. Janice got involved in her community, and she sought a seat on the Washington County Commission. She recognized the importance of health care in rural communities, and she developed the first rural health initiative project in Kansas.

She chaired Ronald Reagan's campaign for President in our State and served the Reagan administration in the Department of Health and Human Services regional office in Kansas City. She worked hard every time to see that her fellow Kansan, Bob Dole, would be elected President.

In 1992, she decided she could even do more for others and was elected to State senator for the 21st district. She was reelected in 1996 and was campaigning for reelection at the time of her death. During her time in the Kansas senate, she worked hard on health care issues and fought for local control. She believed that government should be local and limited. She chaired the elections on local government committee.

Janice was ill during the last session of the legislature. She could not eat, and she had pain. But despite huge impediments, she worked all session long to fashion an ethics law worthy of passage. As State Senator Dave Kerr indicated at her memorial service, that legislation now stands as a lasting tribute to one highly ethical lady who gave her waning strength to bring higher standards of ethics in all elective politics in Kansas. Senator Hardenburger never became silent about things that mattered.

For those of us who are privileged to work in public service, where the toll for entry can be excruciatingly high and the price of staying even higher, we do not always expect to find true friendship, true loyalty, and a true devotion for making things better. We had that in State Senator Janice Hardenburger.

Our State and its people are better off because of one life, a life that will be greatly missed. I offer my condolences to Janice's family, but we also praise God for a life well lived and the legacy she leaves behind.

LORI BERENSON TO GET NEW CIVILIAN TRIAL IN PERU

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. MALONEY) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mrs. MALONEY of New York. Mr. Speaker, after nearly 5 years in Peruvian prisons, my constituent, Lori Berenson, could finally be coming home.

Last week, the military tribunal that gave Lori a life sentence announced that her conviction is being overturned and her case is being transferred to a civilian court.

Lori was convicted by a hooded military tribunal in a trial that lacked any semblance of due process. She never had a chance to present her side, to call witnesses and present evidence in her defense.

For nearly 5 years, I have been asking my colleagues to join me in protesting her conviction. I have circulated three letters to the President over the years, and each letter has been signed by more and more Members of Congress in support of Lori. In August, 221 Members of Congress, in a bipartisan way, signed a letter calling for Lori's release.

I will be circulating a new letter asking for mercy for Lori, asking for Peru to act with compassion and send Lori home on humanitarian grounds.

Since her conviction, Lori's health has deteriorated. She was originally sent to Yanomayo Prison, located high in the Andes, over 12,000 feet above sea level. The altitude destroyed her health. People like Lori who have not grown up in the Andes cannot acclimate to the high altitude of Yanomayo.

I visited with Lori in October of 1997. When I saw her, her fingers were swollen and she had circulatory problems as a result of the high altitude. Very little natural light comes into the prison, and prisoners are allowed only 1 hour a day to exercise outside. As a result, Lori's eye sight was failing. Yanomayo was not heated, and the temperature rarely rises above 40 degrees. The cold gave Lori perpetual laryngitis.

Eventually, the Peruvian officials responded to pleas to move Lori. But in some ways, she faced an even harder challenge to her health. The new prison was more than 5,000 feet above sea level, better than the former prison, but still hard for a New Yorker. The altitude, while less dangerous to her health, continued to affect her circulatory system.

The toughest part was that she was forced to spend months completely alone. For more than 100 days, Lori was kept in solitary confinement. The isolation had an extremely negative effect on her psychological well-being.

Despite the difficult circumstances, Lori has always been quiet, polite, and well behaved, a model prisoner. I am hopeful that Peru will take these circumstances into account and act with mercy and compassion.

I returned to Peru in April of 1998 and, together with the gentleman from New York (Mr. GILMAN), met with President Fujimori. He was very open during our meeting and agreed to take another look at Lori's case if new evidence was presented. Apparently, Peru has uncovered new evidence, and Lori is getting a new trial in a civilian court.

Since Lori was arrested, her parents, Mark and Rhoda Berenson, have worked every day tirelessly for her release. They know Lori as a young idealist who traveled to Peru as a journalist. University professors who live in my district, the Berensons have given up their careers to devote themselves to trying to free their daughter and bring her home. They welcome the news that Lori's conviction has been overturned, but they worry that political pressures will ensure that she will receive a long sentence in a civilian trial.

In Peru, it is a crime to express sympathy for the MRTA, the crime is apologia. In the United States, it would be protected as free speech. There it can carry a long prison sentence.

I hope that Peru can be persuaded to act with mercy. There is nothing to be gained by keeping Lori in prison any longer. Peru has already admitted that Lori was not the terrorist leader she was originally convicted of being.

I wrote to President Fujimori yesterday to let him know how pleased I am that Lori will have a civilian trial. President Fujimori has taken a brave step that has subjected him to enormous criticism at home. I am pleased that he recognized that the evidence showed that Lori did not belong in Peru's military courts.

Now it is time for Peru to take the next step and release Lori. Lori will not be getting off lightly if she is released now. She has spent nearly 5 years in prison in conditions that have seriously undermined her health. I hope that whatever the outcome of her trial, Lori's ordeal will soon be over. For humanitarian reasons, for the sake of compassion, and for her health, I hope Lori will be allowed to come home.

Mr. Speaker, I include my letter to President Fujimori for the RECORD as follows:

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
Washington, DC, September 5, 2000.

President ALBERTO FUJIMORI,
Palacio de Gobierno, Plaza de Armass S/N, Lima 1 Peru.

DEAR PRESIDENT FUJIMORI: I am pleased to learn that Lori Berenson's conviction has been overturned by Peru's military tribunal. As you know from our conversation when we met in April 1998, Lori Berenson is a constituent of mine and I am deeply concerned about her. I appreciated your willingness and that of members of your government to discuss her case with me during those visits.

The tribunal's decision is a tremendous step forward for human rights in Peru. I applaud the members of the tribunal for looking at new evidence in this case and concluding that the new evidence did not support the original verdict.

In October 1997, I visited Lori in prison and I found her spirits to be good despite her deteriorating health. Like many people who are unaccustomed to high altitudes, Lori could not acclimate to living at Yanomayo prison. The high altitude played havoc with her health. When I saw her, her fingers were swollen, her eyesight was failing, and she was having circulatory problems and perpetual laryngitis. After she was moved to a prison at a lower altitude, she spent more than 100 days in solitary confinement. Despite the severe privation, she has always been quiet, polite and well-behaved—a model prisoner.

I am grateful that she will have a civilian trial. However, after nearly five years in prison, Lori has already undergone severe punishment and I hope, whatever the outcome of her trial, her ordeal will soon be over. For humanitarian reasons, for the sake of compassion and for her health, I hope Lori will soon be allowed to come home.

Sincerely,

CAROLYN B. MALONEY,
Member of Congress.

MINDING OUR OWN BUSINESS REGARDING COLOMBIA IS IN THE BEST INTEREST OF AMERICA

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. PAUL) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. PAUL. Mr. Speaker, those of us who warned of the shortcomings of expanding our military presence in Colombia were ignored when funds were appropriated for this purpose earlier this year. We argued at that time that clearly no national security interests were involved; that the Civil War was more than 30 years old, complex with three factions fighting, and no assurance as to who the good guys were; that the drug war was a subterfuge, only an excuse, not a reason, to needlessly expand our involvement in Colombia; and that special interests were really driving our policy: Colombia Oil Reserves owned by American interests, American weapons manufacturers, and American corporations anxious to build infrastructure in Colombia.

Already our foolish expanded pressure in Colombia has had a perverse effect. The stated purpose of promoting peace and stability has been undermined. Violence has worsened as factions are now fighting more fiercely than ever before for territory as they anticipate the full force of U.S. weapons arriving.

The already weak peace process has been essentially abandoned. Hatred toward Americans by many Colombians has grown. The Presidents of 12 South American countries rejected outright the American-backed military operation amendment aimed at the revolutionary groups in Colombia.

This foolhardy effort to settle the Colombian civil war has clearly turned out to be a diplomatic failure. The best evidence of a seriously flawed policy is the departure of capital. Watching money flows gives us a market assessment of policy; and by all indication, our policy spells trouble.

There is evidence of a recent large-scale exodus of wealthy Colombians to Miami. Tens of thousands of Colombians are leaving for the U.S., Canada, Costa Rica, Spain, Australia. These are the middle-class and upper-class citizens, taking their money with them. Our enhanced presence in Colombia has accelerated this exodus.

Our policy, unless quickly and thoroughly reversed, will surely force an escalation of the civil war and a dangerous increase in our involvement with both dollars and troops. All this will further heighten the need for drug sales to finance all factions of the civil war. So much for stopping the drug war.

Our policy is doomed to fail. There is no national security interest involved; therefore, no goals can be set and no victory achievable. A foreign policy of non-intervention designed only to protect our sovereignty with an eagerness to trade with all nations willing to be friends is the traditional American foreign policy and would give us the guaranteed hope of peace, the greatest hope of peace and prosperity.

Let us think seriously about our foreign policy, and hopefully someday we will pursue a policy in the best interest of America by minding our own business.

HISPANIC HERITAGE MONTH

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from California (Mr. BACA) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. BACA. Mr. Speaker, today I rise to bring about the awareness of Hispanic Heritage Month, which begins September 15 and continues through October 5.

Today, according to the U.S. Census Bureau, more than 29 million people of the United States are of Hispanic origin. This is about 10 percent of the country. Close to half of those reside in California. More than 600,000 reside in my district of San Bernardino County.

Why, just the other day, the Los Angeles Times was discussing the fact that, in California, Hispanics are no longer the minority. That is why this coming month is a time for all Latinos to be able to recognize the great accomplishments by the people here in the States as well as around the world.

We recognize the great achievements of people like Cesar Chavez who led the fight for the protection of farm workers' health and health rights; Bishop Barnes, who represents San Bernardino Riverside Catholic Diocese; Miguel de Cervantes Saavedra, who wrote about the great Don Quixote; and people like Andres Segovia, Tito Peuntes, and Julio Iglesias, who were and still are some of the best Spanish musicians in the world.

The teachings and contributions of Hispanics like these, and learning about the cultures from which they come, are how we are able to continue our tradition through our youth.

In many of our classrooms around the country, teachers will hold activities and discussions that will focus on what our ancestors have accomplished. That is why they will learn the great accomplishment of the Spanish explorers as well as those who first settled in States like California and Texas.

This is why cities like Los Angeles, San Bernardino, San Antonio, amongst many other cities, have Hispanic names. Such teachings and discussions will not only educate our children, but also provide them with the proper role models needed to succeed. It also lets them know that they too can accomplish higher dreams; Hispanics in positions, in leadership positions throughout the United States.

We now see that Hispanic Heritage Month is not just about celebration, but it is about uniting our community to better educate our children and to educate ourselves about what it means to be a Hispanic. It means being proud of who we are. It does not matter if we are Mexican, Puerto Rican, Cuban, Spanish, or Central American. This is a time we all continue to celebrate our cultures as a whole.

And what a culture we have. The number of Hispanic-owned businesses in the United States increased by 76 percent between 1986 and 1992 and continues to grow daily. Across America we find more and more Hispanic businesses growing and more and more Hispanic business owners, business owners like Richard Romero out of my district who owned quite a few car dealerships, who just recently passed away.

We have more representatives in government now than we have ever had in the history of this country and of our people. Each year, from now until the year 2050, the Hispanic population is projected to add more to people in the United States than any other race or ethnic group, and we are soon to become the largest minority in the country. But even with the success, we still have problems. We lack full health care benefits for all people. There are still problems with immigrant laws that were written in haste and do not protect the people they were originally written for. High school dropout rates and teen pregnancy numbers are too high. We must address these issues if we plan to build a better culture and a better country for all people of America.

And speaking of education, we have to address the issues of bilingual education and the digital divide. And that does not just apply to Spanish children, it applies to all children. We have to begin by providing our youth with the tools necessary to succeed. We can begin to provide these tools right here in Congress.

By understanding each other's culture we can understand what is needed for everyone and we learn to respect one another. And respect is what we all ask for. That is why it is so important for this Congress to recognize this month and to take time to learn about a great culture with a great future, that is each other's culture and the Hispanic culture this month.

Before I go on, I also want to recognize September 16, Mexico Independence Day. I want to recognize the hardship that the people have had to face in order to achieve their independence. Like this country, they too believe in the freedom of choice and independence from tyrannical government. Only through a better understanding can we achieve our goals, a united country working for the betterment of ourselves, and not only where we come from but where we are going. Together, united, our country will be a lot better.

REPORT ON RESOLUTION PROVIDING FOR CONSIDERATION OF H.R. 4115, UNITED STATES HOLOCAUST MEMORIAL MUSEUM

Mr. REYNOLDS, from the Committee on Rules, submitted a privileged report (Rept. No. 106–822) on the resolution (H. Res. 570) providing for consideration of the bill (H.R. 4115) to authorize appropriations for the United States Holocaust Memorial Museum, and for other purposes, which was referred to the House Calendar and ordered to be printed.

TRIBUTE TO FIREFIGHTERS

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. TANCREDO). Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Idaho (Mr. SIMPSON) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. SIMPSON. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to thank the men and women who have been selflessly fighting fires throughout the western United States this summer. Unfortunately, I have the distinction of representing the district that has, what I am told, the largest fire and the most acres burned in the United States. The Clear Creek fire alone covers an area of over 200,000 acres, outside of Salmon, Idaho, an area one-third the size of the State of Rhode Island. It is but one of many that have been burning throughout Idaho and the western United States.

I was fortunate that I was able to spend 2 days on the fire lines and in the camps with the men and women who have been heroically fighting these catastrophic fire. I saw firefighters on the line in the smoke and ash. I met with support crews in the camps who cook, provide firefighting supplies and equipment, make maps all night long in preparation for morning briefings, and the men who run the showers so that the firefighters can have a basic semblance of normalcy, a hot shower after 16 hours on the fire line. That is what it comes down to for front-line firefighters, food, a hot shower, and, if they are lucky, a little sleep.

Many of the firefighters and support personnel are wives and husbands who have left their families in other areas of the country for weeks at a time. I met one woman from Missouri who worked at a Forest Service district office there. She was running the commissary. It is the people on the front lines and behind the scenes working together that help to contain these wild fires, with some help from Mother Nature. Without their dedication, perseverance, and individual sacrifices, many more lives, structures, and wildlife habitat would have been lost. Their commitment and dedication is unsurpassed, and they are the best in the world.

Spending a couple of days in the fire camps and on the lines, I picked up a few things from the people who are at the ground level. One is obvious, and we have been discussing it for years.

We have to manage our forests. They are in an unhealthy state, with the Forest Service's own estimate placing 40 million acres at high fire risk. I saw the high fuel loads; lodgepole pines so thick it looked like toothpicks had been dropped from the sky, and the high levels of brush on the ground.

We need to find a way to restore many of our forests to a more healthy, natural state that includes managing prescribed burns and thinning. We may not agree on every aspect of getting to that natural state, but we can find common areas that we can agree on; that fuels reduction is better than fuels feeding these catastrophic fires in our forest. The old adage that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure is very appropriate.

A well-funded fuels reduction program will pay significant dividends in reducing the firefighting and restoration costs over time. Think how far the $1 billion we are spending on fighting these fires this summer would have gone towards fuels reduction. We also have to come up with an approach to rehabilitate and restore these fire-stricken lands that works for all of those who are interested in the care of our Nation's forests.

As I was meeting with the staff and operations managers in the fire camp, I also noticed something was missing. It took me a while to figure it out, but I finally realized that there was a lack of younger personnel who would be taking the place of the fire managers as they retire in the years to come. Recent hiring freezes and reductions in personnel have left a gap in the level of experience that we have coming up to fight future fires. Men and women who have been working for 20 to 30 years fighting fires have institutional knowledge about the dynamics and management of firefighting in these warlike conditions. Ensuring that the agencies have adequate funding for personnel in these crucial positions is critical to the security of our forests.

We also need to address the current pay system that acts as a disincentive for experienced fire personnel to work on the lines, although I was pleased to hear there has been a temporary correction to this policy.

Mr. Speaker, these are but a few of the things I discovered while spending time on the Clear Creek fire. Healthy forests and fuel management is an issue Congress has to spend more time discussing and finding answers to. My fellow colleagues, the gentlewoman from Idaho (Mrs. CHENOWETH-HAGE) and the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. GOODLATTE), have each been seeking more proactive ways to manage our Nation's forests. I have asked that their respective forest committees hold a joint hearing to explore future avenues for forest management, including fuels reduction and treatment, in order to decrease the likelihood of a future catastrophic fire. I am hopeful this hearing will generate the necessary dialogue so that we can start the process of restoring and rehabilitating our Nation's forests.

Finally, Mr. Speaker, I want to thank George Matejko, forest supervisor for the Salmon-Challis National Forest, who allowed my chief of staff and I to get a first-hand look at the fires. I also want to thank Tom Hutchinson, fire management officer for the Valvermo Ranger District of the Angeles National Forest. Tom served as the incident commander for the California Incident Management Team 4 that was managing the fire. He and Virginia Gibbons, public affairs specialist for the Deschutes National Forest, gave us a close look at how fire operations work.

Finally, I want to thank all of those who have given their time and efforts to protect Idaho and the West from these catastrophic fires. The people of Idaho and I thank you.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from Hawaii (Mrs. MINK) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Mrs. MINK of Hawaii addressed the House. Her remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

WORK MADE FOR HIRE AND COPYRIGHT CORRECTIONS ACT OF 2000

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. COBLE) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. COBLE. Mr. Speaker, today I am introducing, along with the gentleman from California (Mr. BERMAN), the ranking member of the Subcommittee on Courts and Intellectual Property of the Committee on the Judiciary, H.R. 5107, the Work Made for Hire and Copyright Corrections Act of 2000. This bill addresses the controversy over the recent amendment to the Copyright Act that added sound recordings to the list of works eligible to be works made for hire. It resolves the controversy and is supported by all parties involved. It also includes other noncontroversial corrections to the Copyright Act.

First, some background about sound recording as works made for hire is necessary. A work made for hire is, one, a work prepared by an employee within the scope of his or her employment; or, two, a work especially ordered or commissioned for use as a contribution to a collective work if the parties expressly agree in a written instrument signed by them that the work shall be considered a work made for hire.

The Copyright Act provides authors a right to terminate a grant of right 35 years after the grant. The termination right, however, does not apply to works made for hire. Since 1972, sound recordings have been registered by the Copyright Office as works made for hire, even though they were not statutorily recognized as such prior to the enactment of the Intellectual Property and Communication Omnibus Reform Act of 1999. This statute, known as IPCORA, included a provision that added sound recordings to the list of works eligible for work made for hire status.

Following the passage of the amendment last year, recording artists argued that the change was not a clarification of the law and that it had substantively affected their termination rights. When apprised of these arguments, I agreed to hold a hearing on the issue of sound recordings as works made for hire. The subcommittee subsequently held a hearing on May 25, 2000, after which the gentleman from California (Mr. BERMAN) and I encouraged both sides to seek a mutually satisfactory resolution through private negotiations. Representatives of the artists and the recording industry negotiated diligently and in good faith, and during the August work period they presented us with a compromise solution.

H.R. 5107, Mr. Speaker, implements that solution. It is a repeal of the amendment without prejudice. In other words, it restores both parties to the same position they were in prior to the enactment of the amendment in November 1999. The bill states that in determining whether any work is eligible to consider a work made for hire, neither the amendment in IPCORA nor the deletion of the amendment through this bill shall be considered or otherwise given any legal significance or shall be interpreted to indicate congressional approval or disapproval of any judicial determination by the courts or the Copyright Office.

Given the complex nature of copyright law, this compromise was not easily reached, but I believe it is a good solution and I want to thank everyone who worked so diligently to resolve this controversy. I want to give special thanks as well to the gentleman from California (Mr. BERMAN), ranking member on our subcommittee, and the ranking member of the full committee, the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. CONYERS), for their participation and cooperation.

I also want to recognize Mr. Cary Sherman of the RIAA, the recording industry, and Mr. Jay Cooper, who represents the recording artists, for their efforts to find a solution.

H.R. 5107 also includes other noncontroversial corrections to the Copyright Act. These amendments remove expired sections and clarify miscellaneous provisions governing fees and recordkeeping procedures. These are necessary amendments which will improve the operation of the Copyright Office and clarify U.S. copyright law.

Mr. Speaker, it was my belief this amendment merely codified existing practice and that remains my belief, and there is ample authority that supports my contention. In fairness to the artist community, there is also ample and convincing authority that supports the artists' contention regarding this issue. I believe we have reached a fair compromise with which all parties can live.

In conclusion, Mr. Speaker, I think H.R. 5107 is a good, noncontroversial bill. I urge my colleagues to support H.R. 5107 when it is considered on the floor, hopefully imminently, maybe even within the next couple weeks.

Mr. BERMAN. Mr. Speaker, today, Representative HOWARD COBLE and I have introduced H.R. 5107, the Work Made for Hire and Copyright Corrections Act of 2000. Because of the very important nature of this bill, I believe it merits an extensive explanation.

Section 2(a)(1) of this bill would remove the words ''as a sound recording'' from paragraph (2) of the definition of ''works made for hire'' in Section 101 of the Copyright Act—words that this Congress added less than a year ago through Section 1000(a)(9) of Public Law Number 106–113. When Congress enacted Section 1000(a)(9) last year, we believed it was a non-controversial, technical change that merely clarified current law. However, since that time, we have been contacted by many organizations, legal scholars, and recording artists who take strong issue with Section 1000(a)(9), asserting that it constitutes a significant, substantive change in law. We have discovered that there exists a serious debate about whether sound recordings always, usually, sometimes, or never fall within the nine, pre-existing categories of works eligible to be considered ''works made for hire,'' and thus there exists a serious debate about the substantive or technical nature of Section 1000(a)(9).

In testimony before the House Judiciary Subcommittee on Courts and Intellectual property on May 25, 2000, esteemed legal scholars took broadly divergent views. Professor Paul Goldstein of Stanford University Law School stated that ''the contribution of an individual sound recording as one of several selections on a CD or other album will typically constitute a 'contribution to a collective work,' '' while Professor Marci Hamilton of Cardozo School of Law maintained that, in a vast majority of instances, sound recordings would fail to qualify as ''contributions to collective works'' or as ''compilations.'' Marybeth Peters, the Register for Copyrights in the United States Copyright Office, testified that, depending on the particular facts surrounding its creation, a sound recording might, or might not, constitute a contribution to a collective work. In a letter received by Congressman Coble and me prior to that May 25, 2000 hearing, twenty-five highly respected professors of Law stated ''there may be particular situations in which a musical artist would be considered as having contracted to provide a 'contribution to a collective work,' '' but asserted that, prior to the addition of the words, ''as a sound recording'' to Section 101 of the copyright Act, sound recordings would most often fail to qualify under the nine pre-existing categories of works eligible to be ''made for hire.''

As I stated, the testimony and correspondence of these intellectual property law experts and others demonstrate the existence of a serious debate about whether and the extent to which sound recordings were eligible to be ''works made for hire'' under paragraph 2 of the definition prior to enactment of Section 1000(a)(9) of Public Law Number 106–113. By mandating that all sound recordings are eligible to be works made for hire, Section 1000(a)(9) effectively resolved this debate, and impaired the ability of authors of sound recordings to argue that particular sound recordings and sound recordings in general cannot be works made for hire. Since it eviscerates the legal arguments of those on one side of this debate, Section 100(a)(9) may constitute a substantive change in certain situations and to the extent that courts might otherwise have upheld those arguments.

This leads to the question of why it is necessary to undo Section 1000(a)(9) by removing the words ''as a sound recording'' from Section 1010 of the Copyright Act. The change embodied by Section 2000(a)(9) precludes authors of sound recordings from arguing that their sound recordings are not eligible to be considered works made for hire, and thus effectively prevents those authors from attempting to exercise termination rights under Section 203 of Title 17. Because Section 1000(a)(9) has the potential to have such a negative effect on the legal arguments and rights of authors of sound recordings, Congress should have undertaken more extensive deliberations before making this change. While Section 1000(a)(9) was published in the Congressional Record more than a week prior to its final passage, and while the Members on the Conference Committee were fully aware of its existence, there were no congressional hearings or committee mark-ups in which Section 1000(a)(9) was considered or discussed.

It is my opinion that we should immediately undo Section 1000(a)(9) so as to prevent any prejudice to the legal arguments of authors of sound recordings. Then a future Congress, after more extensive deliberation and careful consideration, could decide whether this legal debate should be resolved through legislation.

However, we are sensitive that, in undoing the amendment made by Section 1000(a)(9), we must be careful not to adversely affect or prejudice the rights of other interested parties. Specifically, we do not want the removal of the words ''as a sound recording'' from the definition of works-made-for-hire in Section 101 of the Copyright Act to be interpreted to preclude or prejudice the argument that sound recordings are eligible to be works made for hire within the nine, pre-existing categories. In essence, we want the removal of the words ''as a sound recording'' from Section 101 of the Copyright Act to return the law to the status quo ante, so that all affected parties have the same rights and legal arguments they had prior to enactment of Section 1000(a)(9).

It is for those reasons that we were convinced of the need to include Section 2(a)(2) within this statute. Section 2(a)(2) intends to ensure that the removal of the words ''as a sound recording'' will have no legal effect other than returning the law to the exact state existing prior to enactment of Section 1000(a)(9).

Our legal research shows that a simple repeal of a previous amendment may not be interpreted by the courts as simply returning the law to its previous state, but may be seen as actually altering that state. For instance, in American Automobile Association v. United States, 367 U.S. 687 (1961), the plaintiff had for years been using an accounting method that it believed was permitted under a general provision of law despite the absence of a statute specifically allowing this practice. Subsequently, Congress enacted Section 452 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, which specifically allowed this accounting practice, but one year later repealed Section 452. In interpreting this repeal, Justice Scalia wrote for the majority: ''the fact is that [Section] 452 for the first time specifically declared petitioner's system of accounting to be acceptable for income tax purposes, and overruled the long-standing position of the Commissioner and courts to the contrary. And the repeal of the section the following year . . . was just as clearly a mandate from the Congress that petitioner's system was not acceptable for tax purposes.''

The present set of circumstances are quite similar. For years, record companies have treated sound recordings as works made for hire, and have entered into contracts to this effect, whether enforceable or not, with recording artists. Though previous law did not specifically list sound records as a category of works made for hire, record companies regarded sound recordings as fitting with the nine, existing categories of works made for hire. Section 1000(a)(9) represented the first specific, statutory declaration by Congress that sound recordings are a category of works made for hire.

As a result of the close parallel between the current situation and the facts in American Automobile Association, it appears possible that courts would interpret a simple repeal of Section 1000(a)(9) in the same way the Supreme Court interpreted the simple repeal of Section 452 in that case—namely as a sign that Congress does not consider sound recordings to be eligible for works made for hire status.

The probability of the courts interpreting a simple repeal in this manner is increased by the existence of two U.S. District Court opinions that some may argue are on point. Under a well-known canon of statutory construction, courts assume that Congress is aware of existing judicial decisions when it enacts legislation and, unless Congress indicates otherwise and to the extent reasonable, courts interpret such legislation to be consistent with those decisions. Prior to the enactment of Section 1000(a)(9), U.S. District Courts in Staggers v. Real Authentic Sound and Ballas v. Tedesco stated, in dicta, that sound recordings were not eligible to be considered works made for hire because they were not specifically included as a category of works eligible to be works made for hire under Section 101 of the Copyright Act. Though the eligibility of sound recordings for inclusion within the nine categories of works made for hire was not briefed or argued by the parties in either case, and though the courts did not provide a detailed rationale for their comments in dicta, future courts might interpret a simple repeal bill to indicate Congressional acquiescence to these decisions.

These considerations indicate that a simple repeal bill would negatively prejudice the argument, available prior to enactment of Section 100(a)(9), that a particular sound recording was eligible to be considered a work made for hire because it fit within one of the nine, pre-existing categories. Because of the potential prejudice to this argument, it appears that a simple repeal of the words ''as a sound recording'' would not accomplish our goal, which is to return the law on the eligibility of sound recordings for work made for hire status to its state prior to enactment of Section 1000(a)9).

Therefore, we have crafted Section 2(a)(2) to ensure that the removal of the words ''as a sound recording'' will not have prejudicial effect. With the inclusion of Section 2(a)(2) in this bill, we ensure that courts will interpret Section 101 exactly as they would have interpreted it if neither Section 1000(a)(9) nor this bill were ever enacted.

Lastly, Section 2(b)(1) gives Section 2(a) retroactive effect. The need to make these sections retroactive stems from the confusion and injustice that would otherwise result. Because these sections will have retroactive effect, there will be only one, uninterrupted law governing the eligibility of sound recordings to qualify as works made for hire—namely the same law that existed prior to the November 29, 1999 enactment of Section 1000(a)(9). If Section 2(a) were not given retroactive effect, then sound records created or contracted for between November 29, 1999 and the date of enactment of this bill could be treated differently than sound recordings created before or after those dates. Such a result would be both confusing for the courts to administer and unfair to those who happened to enter into agreements to author sound recordings after November 29, 1999 and before the date of this bill's enactment.

Unfortunately, there is some question as to whether it is constitutional under the Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments of the U.S. Constitution to give Section 2(a) retroactive effect. If the courts disagree with our conclusion that Congress can constitutionally make these provisions retroactive, we have added a severability clause in Section 2(b)(2) to ensure that the courts will not strike down the whole bill.

In short, we believe passage of this bill is vital to ensure that whatever rights the authors of sound recordings may have had previously are restored, and that such restoration is achieved in a way that does not unfairly impair the rights of others. I urge all my colleagues to support this legislation when it is brought to the House floor for their consideration.

A DISASTER FOR SAN DIEGO: DEREGULATION OF ELECTRIC UTILITIES

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from California (Mr. FILNER) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. FILNER. Mr. Speaker, I rise tonight to tell my colleagues about a tragic situation going on in San Diego, California. Like all of my colleagues, I went home at the beginning of August for a work period in our district, but what I found in San Diego was a disaster, and not a natural disaster but a man-made disaster, a disaster made by a few companies who are willing to put the whole quality of life of San Diegoans at risk for their own profit; a disaster that did not affect only a few people, but affected all of the residents of San Diego County, 2½ million people.

What was the basis of this disaster? San Diego is the first area in California to fully deregulate the electrical utility industry, to fully deregulate, which means that San Diegans pay the market price for electricity. The market price is determined by the few generators of electricity who control the power grid into San Diego.

So what was the result of this deregulation, a deregulation which was supposed to bring competition and lower the cost? It doubled and then tripled the cost of electricity in just 3 months. In just 3 months, if they were a resident in San Diego County, their bill went up from $45 to $50 to $100 one month and $150 the next month. If they were a small business struggling to get by, their $800 bill went up to $1,500 in one month and then went up to $2,500 the next month.

How could they stay in business with those increases in prices?

Hospitals, libraries, youth centers, schools, the military, all of their budgets thrown into turmoil. And what was the reaction of people? Rebellion. Many people just tore up their bills.

Elected bodies in San Diego County said they are not going to pay the doubled or tripled price, they are going to pay only what they paid the year before, because they knew their costs were not determined by a supply-and-demand function but by price gouging and manipulation of the market.

Rallies were held. Demonstrations took place. Political figures at the city, county, State level tried to begin to solve this problem. The State legislature acted earlier this week by putting a cap on the retail price of electricity, a cap on the retail price. But what the State legislature did was merely put a Band-Aid on a bleeding city. Because that price was just deferred to a later time. It was not refunded. It was deferred. And the people who would have to pay that price were not the folks who gouged San Diegans to begin with, but the actual consumers who were the victims of this price gouging.

We must go beyond what the State of California's legislature did. The Federal Government must act and can act. The wholesale price of electricity can be set by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission. And this Congress should direct that commission, known as FERC, to in fact roll back the wholesale price of electricity to the price that was paid before deregulation in which people had made profits and good profits at that price; and yet they were charging and are now charging prices double, triple, quadruple, five times what they were before deregulation.

I have a bill, my colleagues, called the Help San Diego Act: Halt Electricity Price Gouging in San Diego and Halt it Now.

The people in San Diego cannot survive the doubled and tripled prices of electricity rates. Small businesses are going under. Seniors are having to make choices between using their air conditioning or paying for their food or medical prescriptions.

I ask my colleagues to look closely at San Diego, a little dot on the southwest corner of our Nation, because we are the poster children for the future. The rest of the State of California will soon be deregulated. Many of my colleagues in their States have deregulation bills in their legislatures. This House has deregulation bills in front of it. This deregulation cannot work, my colleagues, when a basic commodity is controlled by a few monopoly corporations.

The San Diego example makes it clear the consumer must be protected if this kind of policy is going to be pursued.

Deregulation in California took place without consumer protection. It took place in an atmosphere of monopoly control of a basic commodity. My city was in danger of dying economically. We have stopped it temporarily with State legislative action. But the Federal Government must act now. FERC must roll back the wholesale price of electricity retroactively.

The people, the companies, who forced these unconscionable rates on the citizens of San Diego should pay the price and not the consumers, the victims themselves.

My colleagues, look closely at San Diego. Your city may be next.

SLORC REGIME INTENSIFIES CRACKDOWN ON OPPOSITION IN BURMA

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. TANCREDO). Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from California (Mr. ROHRABACHER) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. ROHRABACHER. Mr. Speaker, yes, I think the people should watch San Diego. It is a pity that the liberal-left coalition that controls the Democratic Party is so allied with extreme environmentalists that for 20 years they have prevented the development of any new energy resources in California. So now the people of San Diego and all of California suffer under this loss because we are having an energy shortage in a State where we should have abundance in energy.

Unfortunately, the only solution that we have being offered seems to be price controls rather than developing new energy sources, which will only make the situation worse.

But tonight I need to talk about what is going on in Burma, which is something of importance now because thousands of lives are at stake in that country.

During the past week, the SLORC regime, which controls Burma with an iron fist, a regime backed by the Communist Chinese, has intensified their crackdown on the opposition in Burma. This is a new round of brutality by the SLORC regime, and it occurred after democracy leader Aung San Suu Kyi was prevented from leaving Rangoon to visit her party's members outside the capital city.

Soldiers surrounded her car. This is a Nobel Prize winner, the person who is the rightful governmental leader of that country because of the elections her party won. She was forced to sit in a car in the sun for a full week and then forcibly return to the capital.

Aung San Suu Kyi is one of the true heroes of our time. She is now under house arrest. Her house is surrounded by SLORC military forces and secret police, and many diplomats in Rangoon are expressing concern about her health and her well-being.

Yesterday, the British Ambassador to Burma was roughed up by the SLORC goons when he tried to visit Aung San Suu Kyi. The National League for Democracy in Rangoon has had their offices raided and documents confiscated and their members have been arrested and face arbitrary jail sentences.

In the countryside, the SLORC regime continues its brutality and ethnic cleansing against indigenous tribal groups such as the Christian Karens and Karennis, who are seeking emergency refuge in Thailand in growing numbers. The SLORC and Communist Chinese benefit from the narcotics trafficking of the ruthless Wa State Army, which is destabilizing Thailand and spreading the poison of deadly heroin throughout the world.

The United States Congress is not ignorant of the corrupt and brutal practices of the Burmese dictatorship. Their wicked deeds will continue and will continue to be noted here. Their continued repression of democracy is evident.

The United States and the Democratic nations which are doing business with SLORC, and I might add Japan, Australia, Israel, Singapore and others, those of us in the democratic world will not sit by and watch this idly as this type of repression continues forever.

Investment in Burma has already been affected. Tragically, the people of Burma suffer as commerce and trade has dried up. And they are already suffering terrible deprivation in Burma as their gangster regime which controls their country impoverishes what should be a rich land.

This regime, the SLORC regime in Burma, is condemning those people who should be living a prosperous life. They are condemning them to poverty and deprivation and tyranny. A country so rich in natural resources is now one of the poorest in the world without freedom.

Tonight, as we note this is going on in Burma, let us note a champion of human rights. Ginetta Sagan passed from this scene last week. Ginetta Sagan helped me many times in the cause of human rights in Burma and in other countries. Ginetta Sagan first volunteered to fight tyranny as a member of the Resistance against Fascists and Nazis in World War II.

After she was captured then, she was brutally tortured. And after she survived that torture, she helped lay the foundation for the modern human rights movement.

Ginetta Sagan was under 5 foot in height, but she was a giant in the fight for justice and liberty, saving thousands of political prisoners through her efforts in Poland, Vietnam, Chile, and Greece. She died, unfortunately, after a full life, on September 1.

Ginetta Sagan is gone, but the fight for human rights continues and the struggle against gangsters like those who control Burma continues. We have to pick up the torch and carry on where Ginetta left off. Justice and democracy will triumph over evil because we will not falter and Ginetta Sagan will not be forgotten.

Let me just say that Ginetta Sagan and I were active for 20 years. She had enormous energy and love for people. She will be missed. But the tyrants in Burma and elsewhere should not think that this is a loss, because her spirit will continue to inspire others to continue this fight for liberty and justice.

ESTATE TAX

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from California (Mr. SHERMAN) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. SHERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from San Diego, California (Mr. FILNER).

Mr. FILNER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding to me.

Mr. Speaker, I just briefly want to respond to the gentleman from Orange County, California (Mr. ROHRABACHER). I invite him to visit San Diego.

It is misplaced to blame the San Diego crisis on environmental regulations. Yes, we need more capacity as the environment grows. Yes, we need environmentally sensitive generating capacity. And, yes, we need alternative sources of energy. There is plenty of sun in San Diego. But this crisis is not one of supply and demand.

This crisis had to do with monopoly pricing and manipulation of the market. The price had nothing to do with when the load was at peak or when supply was needed. It had to do with the people who controlled it and what price they could get.

Mr. SHERMAN. Mr. Speaker, reclaiming my time, I want to add my voice to that of the gentleman from California (Mr. ROHRABACHER) in calling for human rights in Myanma, also known as Burma.

Mr. Speaker, with Senator LIEBERMAN's recent notoriety, the country has learned a few words of Yiddish. And one of the more interesting words is the world chutzpah, best defined as the kind of extreme galling nerve as when someone who has killed their parents asks for mercy because, after all, they are an orphan.

Mr. Speaker, there is something that calls for even more chutzpah than the Menendez brothers asking for a commutation of their sentence because of their status as orphans, and that is when our Republican colleagues come to this floor and accuse the Democrats of waging class warfare when they will bring before this House tomorrow an override of the President's wise veto of the estate tax repeal.

They will try to ram through this House a bill that provides $50 billion in tax cuts once it is fully effective. Not one penny, not one penny, for the home health care worker. Not one penny for the fast-food employee. Not one penny for the janitor. Fifty billion dollars and not one penny for those struggling to get by. All of it for the richest 1½ percent of Americans, most of it for the 3,000 richest families in America.

And they will have the chutzpah to come here and say that they want to imperil this economic expansion for the benefits of those lucky few and accuse us of waging class warfare.

Mr. Speaker, I represent a district that is not envious. I do not represent class envy. Malibu is the second richest city in my district. My constituents, more than most others, do pay the estate tax. But they have sent me here to Washington to fight for fiscal responsibility, for Social Security, for Medicare with prescription drug coverage, and for Federal aid to education and to the environment.

They did not send me here to ask for $50 billion, all of it, all of it for the wealthiest 1½ percent of Americans.

This estate tax does not affect any family or will not affect any family with $2 million or less to leave to their children. But it will affect the as of yet unborn Bill Gates, Jr.

Mr. Speaker, I think that it is important that our children and grandchildren inherit a government that is debt free rather than a few families are able to inherit millions or even billions of dollars that are tax free.

Mr. Speaker, this $50 billion of tax relief aimed at those with the most will imperil Social Security, Medicare, and prescription drug coverage; imperil our ability to pay off the national debt, maintain fiscal responsibility and continue our unprecedented economic growth.

There are two other bad aspects of this bill that have not been discussed on this floor. First, in order to keep the cost down to only $50 billion, the authors of this bill, which should have been vetoed, actually increase the tax of many widows, increase the income tax of widows by denying them a step up in basis for their income tax returns. And, second, this estate tax repeal will cost America's hospitals, universities, and charities billions of dollars. They will come here asking for our help, but with $50 billion a year less in Federal revenue, we will not be able to help them. This is the unspoken secret. The universities and their development officers will not tell us about it because they do not want to bite the hand that feeds them. But major charitable gifts to universities will bite the dust if we uphold this veto.

Do not vote to override the veto.

NATIONAL MISSILE DEFENSE

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. TANCREDO). Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. WELDON) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. WELDON of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, this past Friday, President Clinton gave a major foreign policy speech at Georgetown University announcing his decision not to move forward with the plan to deploy a national missile defense. It took the President 7 years and 8 months of his administration to finally make a speech about missile defense. He did not make a speech after 26 young Americans came home in body bags because we could not defend against a low complexity Scud missile.

He did not make a speech after in January of 1995 the Russians almost responded with an attack on the U.S. because they misread a Norwegian rocket launch, an attack that we could not defend against; and he did not make a speech 2 years ago after the North Koreans test-fired their three-stage missile which the CIA now claims can hit the U.S. directly. But he did make a speech this past Friday.

I was not surprised, because his position has been consistent with both he and AL GORE for the past 8 years. In fact, Mr. Speaker, I could respect the President if he would have come out publicly and simply said, ''I disagree with the Congress and the American people. I don't support missile defense and will not during my administration move forward.'' That is what he has done for 8 years. In fact, the day that my bill came up on the House floor for a vote just a year ago he wrote a letter to every Member of the House opposing the bill, saying please vote against it. Yet 103 Democrats joined 215 Republicans in giving a veto-proof margin to move this country forward. So the President did what he does so frequently. He used a political game and pretended that he really was for missile defense.

Mr. Speaker, again I could respect him if he simply said that he opposed missile defense as he did in that letter to every Member a year ago in March. But, instead, the President of the United States in his speech before Georgetown University publicized around the world last Friday told half-truths, misrepresented factual information and, Mr. Speaker, sadly he just downright lied.

Mr. Speaker, beginning tomorrow, at a speech before the National Defense University, I will respond to the President factually, I will respond to his specific words, and I will show the American people how this President and this Vice President have chosen to ignore the reality of the threats that are emerging. I will focus on four key areas the President focused on: The emergence of the threat, the arms control record of this administration, the Russian and world response to missile defense, and the technology readiness, because those are the issues the President spoke to, and I will take apart word by word taking the opportunity to define ''is'' as the President defines ''is,'' and I will show the American people that again this President and this Vice President just do not get it.

This Congress voted overwhelmingly with veto-proof margins in the House and the Senate to move forward. And this President, in a typical election-year maneuver the Friday before Labor Day, before he was to travel to the U.N. this week, chose to give the American people bad information.

The American people deserve to hear the other side. Beginning tomorrow, I will give the other side and through a series of special orders over the next several months will outline for the American people the factual response to President Clinton's falsehoods that he outlined at Georgetown this past Friday.

ILLEGAL NARCOTICS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 6, 1999, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. MICA) is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the majority leader.

Mr. MICA. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to return to the House of Representatives after our August recess and district work period and continue this series that I began nearly 18 months ago as chairman of the Subcommittee on Criminal Justice, Drug Policy and Human Resources, a series that I began on the topic of illegal narcotics and its impact upon our Nation.

Tonight, I thought I would recap some of what has taken place during this congressional recess, some of the activities that have occurred relating to illegal narcotics and our attempts to bring illegal narcotics and drug abuse in some control and order in our society, and also give an update on some of the actions of the administration in this interim period while Congress was in recess.

I think that it is important that we keep in perspective the history of the efforts by Congress and this administration and other administrations in trying to curtail what has become probably the most serious social problem facing our Nation and certainly the youth of this country. I think that the statistics that have recently been released about crime show that some of the murder rate in this country is down. And I think that, in the next week, our subcommittee is looking at some of the statistics that have been released; but I think they are startling figures that will show that more people are now dying as a direct result of drug abuse and misuse in this country than some of the murders that are committed. And I know that that is the case in the area that I represent.

I represent a beautiful area in Florida from Orlando to Daytona Beach, the central Florida and greater Orlando area, and the headlines blurted out some nearly 2 years ago that deaths by drug overdoses had exceeded homicides in our area of central Florida. And I think that is now occurring, and we will be able to substantiate these figures, on a national basis. So if people are concerned about the use of firearms, about commissions of murder, mayhem in our society, I think that we have now reached the point where drug deaths and overdose as a direct result of illegal narcotics are now taking an even greater toll than other forms of murder.

I will never forget that a parent who had lost a child in central Florida said, Mr. MICA, that in fact drug overdoses are a form of murder, and certainly when you have a son or a daughter lost to illegal narcotics, either someone providing them or the individual dying as a result of someone distributing to them illegal narcotics, you certainly view that as murdering or destroying the life of your loved one.

But tonight, I want to try to shed a little light. I try not to do this in a partisan fashion. I do not think that our efforts to curtail illegal narcotics is a partisan matter. I think that both sides of the aisle are sincere in trying to find solutions. But I think we also have to look at some of the facts involved and some of the spin that is even put on what is happening at the national level, possibly for the sake of politics, maybe for the sake of applying some cosmetics to a record that is not too attractive. That is something that we have to deal with. And we must, in fact, deal with facts if we are going to find real solutions to the problem we face with illegal narcotics.

So tonight I want to talk about the Clinton administration's attempt to blur some of their failure in Colombia in their shutdown of our war on illegal drugs and some of the steps that were taken even during this recess by the President to try to put a happy face or a successful face on really a policy of disaster that has taken place since the beginning of the Clinton-Gore administration in 1993 when they took office and began systematically dismantling any semblance of a real war on drugs.

The President, as we know, visited Colombia with great fanfare for some 8 hours. He spent 8 hours there out of nearly 8 years in the White House. And again, I think, to put the best face possible on a situation that they helped in fact create through some of their actions.

Let me first review how we got ourselves into the situation in Colombia where the Congress had to, in an emergency fashion, dedicate $1.3 billion just in this fiscal year that we are approaching for aid to Colombia. According to the President's own drug czar last year, Barry McCaffrey, he called Colombia, and I will use his quote, he said it was a flipping nightmare last summer and then asked, in fact, that the President consider it an emergency situation. This is after tens of thousands of Colombians were slain, members of the police force, members of the military, civilians, legislators, members of their Congress, local and national judges, attorneys general and other officials from top to bottom in Colombia were slaughtered in a war that has been fueled by narcoterrorists. So finally the administration woke up last year and said the situation had gotten out of control, and in fact it had gotten out of control.

Now, to get out of control, it was not easy. In fact, I believe some very specific steps by the Clinton administration, and I want to go over them tonight, led us to be forced really to pass an aid package of historic proportions. $1.3 billion for any country, we know there is something dramatically wrong. This did not happen overnight. It began with a systematic shutdown of assistance in combating illegal narcotics and the situation that was developing and deteriorating in Colombia.

So let me first start by reviewing, if I may, the situation. Members know that most of the illegal narcotics are now coming from Colombia. This chart which was prepared by the drug enforcement agency shows that most of the cocaine and heroin, in 1997, and it is true today, is coming from Colombia. This was not the case as I will point out in 1993 at the beginning of this administration. But this administration took some steps back in 1993 when they first came into office that turned out to be disastrous.

In 1994, the Clinton administration stopped providing information and intelligence to the Colombians regarding drug flights tracked by the United States, which, in fact, eliminated the effectiveness of Colombia's shootdown policy.

Now, prior to 1994, Colombia was participating with shootdown drug trafficking planes, and Colombia was primarily a transit route for narcotics. And in that era, 1993, some 7 years ago, the beginning of this administration, it was mostly cocaine that was coming through and transcending or being processed. It was not grown in Colombia.

This administration managed to turn the situation, where Colombia again was just a transit point and a transshipment point, into a major producing country. The first step, as I said, was the refusal to share intelligence.

Now, this is an interesting chart we had prepared. In 1993, the cocaine production in Colombia was some 65 metric tons, very little, almost off the charts in 1993, 65 metric tons. The poppies grown in Colombia for producing heroin was almost zero in 1993. And in 1999, we have 520 metric tons of cocaine; and this, I believe, is in the 80 percent range of all the cocaine produced in the world. They managed to develop a market in Colombia and, again, by some very specific policy decisions.

These are the charts that the President certainly would not want to show and the administration would not want to show. Almost no heroin produced again in 1993, some 7 years ago. Now, this figure refers to probably 75 percent of all the heroin that is seized in the United States.

According to DEA signature testing program, they can take the DNA of the heroin that is confiscated and seized and actually tell almost to the field where it is produced, but some 75 percent of all of the heroin produced in Colombia and seized in the United States comes from Colombia. Now, this took place in this administration.

The first decision was to stop the shootdown policy, stop information sharing. Now, in this vast arena of going after drug traffickers at their source, which is most effective, because we stop shipment of a ton or quantities, we stop it at its source, once it gets into the United States and beyond these distribution points, it is costly, it is ineffective, and we are never going to get it all.

One DEA official I met in the jungle of Central America described it so aptly. He said, Mr. MICA, down here we can stop the drugs at their source where they are produced cost effectively for a few dollars. In fact, when the coalition started cutting the source country programs, some of the DEA agents chipped in and put some of their own personal money to stop some of the production and activity down there, because they were so dedicated to the program, knew it would work.

This agent said, Mr. MICA, trying to stop the illegal narcotics once they get to our shores is sort of like getting a hose, hooking it up to a spigot and then putting a 360 degree sprinkler out in your lawn and running around with coffee cans trying to catch the water as it sprinkles out. And that is the analogy that this agent used in the jungles to me. He said the best thing to do is to turn that spigot on and turn off the illegal narcotics. That would be a simple strategy.

It was a strategy that worked under the Reagan and Bush administration and as far back as the Nixon administration. There was a heroin epidemic under the Nixon administration. He stopped it at its source. He went in and through purchasing and through other programs that he set up, President Nixon, they stopped that.

President Reagan and President Bush created an Andean strategy, a Vice President's task force, and as my colleagues may recall, even when we had a Central American leader involved in narcotic trafficking and money laundering.

Remember President Noriega of Panama? In 1989, President Bush sent American troops in. In fact, American lives were lost in that case, but they went in with force and with determination and stopped that trafficking at the choke point.

In this case, it was Panama and the Ismus of Panama and the head of a country who was involved, and they captured him, as my colleagues may recall from television days, and put him in jail for dealing in illegal narcotics and for money laundering and corruption. So that was the way they dealt with it.

The way the Clinton-Gore administration dealt with the problem is they stopped the shootdown policy. So the first thing they did is stop the shootdown policy and stop information sharing so we could not go after drug traffickers at their source. This policy so enraged Members of Congress.

I remember my colleague, I just gotten elected in 1993 and the gentleman from California (Mr. HORN) was elected the same year. In 1994, when they did this, they took this first step, everyone was shocked, and the gentleman from California (Mr. HORN) said, ''As you will recall as of May 1, 1994, the Department of Defense decided unilaterally to stop sharing real-time intelligence regarding aerial traffic in drugs with Colombia and Peru. Now, as I understand it, that decision, which hasn't been completely resolved, has thrown diplomatic relations with the host countries into chaos.'' That is 1994.

Now, that was the Republican viewpoint in 1994 when the administration took this step.

This is what the Democrats had to say. Remember, the Democrats controlled the White House. In 1993 to 1995, they controlled the House of Representatives by a wide majority. They also controlled the other body, the United States Senate. And this is what the Democrats said in August of that same year, 1994, committee chairmen of two House subcommittees blasted the Clinton administration yesterday for its continuing refusal to resume sharing intelligence data with Colombia and Peru that would enable those Andean nations to shoot down aircraft carrying narcotics to the United States.

So we see the beginning of $1.3 billion problem developing through very specific policy decisions not criticized just by Republicans, but this is how we got ourselves into this mess, with, again, stopping the information sharing, stopping having Colombia get a handle on this situation early on and repeated requests by both Republicans and Democrats not to take these steps.

So these policy decisions had some very serious implications, and those implications resulted in a change in trafficking patterns and production patterns of narcotics.

This is an interesting chart, because it shows Andean cocaine production. And we see in 1991, 1992 the situation; and this line that we have going through here is Bolivia. This line, the blue line going through here and down is Peru. And the line, the red line that we have we have going up here is Colombia, and this is cocaine production.

What the administration did was, in fact, stop information sharing. Then in 1996 and 1997, the Clinton administration decertified Colombia. We have a certification law that I helped work on when I worked back in the Senate and develop, and it is a simple law. It says that every year the President must certify that a country is cooperating in stopping both the production and trafficking of illegal narcotics. The President must certify. The President sends that certification, and he says that they are cooperating. In return for when the President certifies that there is cooperation, these countries get foreign assistance; they are eligible for foreign aid. They are eligible for trade benefits of the United States of America, and they are also eligible for finance benefits.

Benefits of our country are bestowed on them for their little bit of cooperation in stopping illegal narcotics. A nice trade we thought when we developed the law.

Now, we found in developing the law that we wanted to make a statement and say that a country was decertified as not fully cooperating and cooperating, and that might have been the case with Colombia because of its leadership. But we also put in the law a provision that said you could decertify, but you could issue a national interest waiver, and even though a country was decertified, in our national interests, the interests of the United States, we could continue to give assistance to fight illegal narcotics.

In 1996, 1997 this administration, Clinton-Gore, decertified Colombia without using the provision put in law so that we could continue to get aid, let them help us with the illegal narcotics problem. So what happened here is cocaine production, actual growth of coca in Colombia dramatically increased. Look, it just took off the charts, with their policy of not getting aid down there. What happened?

Now, the Republicans took control of the House of Representatives, and we were able to pass measures. We also took control of the other body; but we were also able to pass measures and funding to start two programs, and I know because I was involved with these, with the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. HASTERT), who is now the Speaker of the House, Mr. Zellif, the former chairman of the subcommittee jurisdiction that I now chair, we went down to Peru and Colombia and Bolivia to see what it would take to get this under control.

Again, this is not rocket science. It is a simple thing. We stop the production of these drugs at their source, cost effective; and we put very few million, maybe $20 million, $30 million, in some of these programs in Bolivia and Peru. And guess what?

In our alternative crop programs, in our enforcement programs, in our eradication programs, look what happened here. In fact, we have reduced by over 50 percent, 55 percent the production of cocaine in Peru. President Fujimori has done an incredible job, not only in bringing stability to that country, but cooperation.

Recently, I must commend him, he has shot down drug traffickers after the United States, again, after we went through the fiasco of not sharing information and intelligence for drug trafficking air shootdowns to these countries, we found that the administration repeated the mistake and even our own Ambassador from Peru was saying, continue to get information to us.

This is in a report I got this last December. In the report the United States Ambassador from Peru, I believe in 1998, said they were making the same mistake and they should continue the information sharing. That information sharing, I believe now we have gotten some of that started again. President Fujimori has ordered the shootdown of drug trafficking planes, and they are given fair warning.

We know that they are carrying death and destruction out of that country and across other borders and into our streets and our communities and our schools. So we have a situation in which we know what works.

In Bolivia, we put together a plan, and the plan has worked with the incredible cooperation of President Hugo Suarez Banzer, the President of Bolivia, who has cooperated. The vice president has helped lead the effort. And in the package that we are now sending, that we have now passed and are sending to Bolivia, and actually it is in the $1.3 billion, there is $100 million for Bolivia of the total Colombian aid package, because we do not want this to continue here.

We have the possibility within the next 24 to 36 months of completely eradicating cocaine production in Bolivia. I tell you, if you can do it in Peru, and I went to Peru at the turn of the last decade, 1990–1991, before President Fujimori took office, there was pure chaos. There were people sleeping in the streets, there was gunfire at night, the parks were full, the Shining Light Path Mao terrorists were blowing up buildings, power supplies, they had control of some cities, you could not travel there.

Within a short period of time and two administrations, President Fujimori has not only brought stability and peace to that country and a stable way of life, but he also has dramatically decreased the cocaine and coca production in that country, and with very few dollars. He was punished some by this administration and by the liberals from the other side of the aisle because of his so-called human rights violations, or that his election was by popular election, an additional term and approved by the people. His opponent asked that the election be delayed.

Could you imagine in this country that you do not like the results of the election, and you say, oh, let us have another election at another date? Fujimori again won the majority vote. Now there are those that are again giving President Fujimori, who has done an incredible job in assisting the United States, a difficult time. But this is a program of success. This will eradicate for very few dollars coca production and cocaine production.

We can do the same thing in Colombia. Of course, the situation has deteriorated much more in that country, and, again, because of specific policies of this administration and specific steps that were taken by this administration that got us in this mess.

So here we are with this production going off the chart. Here we are with the House of Representatives, the other body and the administration providing $1.3 billion now in aid to get our cart out of the ditch in Colombia, which is the major producer of heroin, some 75 percent as we demonstrated by the other chart, and some 80 percent of the cocaine production for the entire world now out of Colombia.

This was not easy for the Clinton-Gore Administration to achieve. I mean, to make this country into a disaster in 7 short years, the leader in production in cocaine, the leader in production in heroin coming into the United States, was no easy step, but they managed to do it by distorting the intent and also the provisions of the drug certification law.

One of the interesting things you hear the administration talking about, and we even heard some of the leaders from South America talking about, is, first of all, having the United States abolish the certification process, and then turning that over to an international body.

Could you imagine having the United States benefits of foreign aid, eligibility for finance assistance and trade benefits, given to another organization outside the sovereign United States, to determine who is eligible for foreign assistance and benefits, trade and finance from the United States? It is almost ludicrous, but the administration has been nodding and bowing to some of these suggestions, and I would fear that they would fall into the trap of letting someone else determine who gets benefits of the United States. I cannot believe it, but it is being talked about.

Repeatedly since the new majority, the Republican side, came into office, and even before that, I know we have requested that steps be taken not to allow the situation in Colombia to deteriorate. During the 1993 to 1995 period when again the Democrats, the other party, controlled the House of Representatives in vast numbers, I had over 130 Members request a hearing on our national drug policy, and in a period of 2 years there was really one hearing, if you did not count appropriations, routine hearings, on the question of our national drug policy and what was happening to it. I had 130 requests for hearings, and almost none were held.

I am pleased to say we have probably done some 40 hearings, almost one a week, since I have chaired the subcommittee, looking for solutions, looking for ways in which we can tackle this great social challenge and social and health problem that our country is facing with the illegal narcotics, and really it has become a national security problem. But one hearing was held in 1993–1994.

In 1995, when the new majority took office and control of the House and the other body, we again pleaded with the administration to get assistance to Colombia. We sent letters, we sent joint requests, we sent resolutions, and we actually even funded monies to go to that country. Each time the administration blocked assistance getting to Colombia.

After tremendous pressure by the Congress, in 1998 we did get action by the administration to certify with a national security waiver by the administration, so finally some 2 years ago they granted this waiver.

Now, they granted a waiver to allow narcotics fighting equipment and resources to get to Colombia. That was their so-called policy. But in practice what they did was a disaster. Let me just show you some of the things that they did.

We funded money; they diverted money. They diverted resources. I am told the vice president had directed some of the AWACS aircraft that we had flying, surveillance aircraft, from the drug producing region to Alaska to check for oil spills.

The President took money from what we had pledged to give to this region, the drug producing region, and diverted it to Haiti in his nation building attempts in that country. I could spend the rest of the night talking about the disaster of the Haitian policy, and Haiti has now turned into one of the major drug transit countries in the entire hemisphere and world, despite nearly $3 billion in diversion of some of the money that the Republican-led Congress had authorized for that war on drugs. They moved the money into Haiti. They moved the equipment into Bosnia and to Kosovo and to other administration deployments.

So even when we finally got them to grant this waiver that is allowed to get the resources there, the resources were diverted in fact.

Then what we found is we asked not only that appropriated funds by the Congress get there to help bring this situation which was deteriorating in Colombia under control, and we saw the production dramatically rising, which the charts supplied even by the administration confirm, but the other thing that we always asked to help if you are going to have a war or effort or a fight to assist in tackling a problem is you need equipment and resources.

This is an interesting article from last year, ''Colombia turns down dilapidated United States trucks.'' We tried to get surplus equipment. Okay, if you will not take the money that the Congress has appropriated, the Republican-led Congress has said to get there to do the job, how about just supplying some of the surplus? Heaven knows we have tons of surplus equipment in our downsizing, and some of it is not used or is in mothballs. They took these trucks, which actually I am told were designed for a northern or arctic climate, and sent them down to Colombia, and sent equipment that could not be used or was so expensive to repair or convert for use in the jungle or the tropic application that it was useless.

Now, this would not be bad enough, but the Congress saw this coming, and again the Republican-led Congress tried to do its best to get the resources to Colombia in a timely fashion. Again, the policy of not sharing information, of stopping the shoot down policy in 1994–1995 created a disaster. In 1996 to 1998 they decertified without a national interest waiver, so no aid was going down. 1998, they finally granted a waiver to allow aid to go down. They send down aid that cannot be used.

The Congress passed some 2 years ago a $300 million appropriation to send Blackhawk helicopters and equipment resources to Colombia to get the situation under control. Now, you would think that with the direction of the Congress, the administration could carry this out. Wrong. Until January of 1999, I am sorry, until January of 2000, this year, we were not able to get the helicopters to Colombia in a fashion that could be used. Almost an incredible scenario of bungling, of mismanagement in delivering the Blackhawk helicopters, which arrived, sent by this administration to Colombia without proper armoring and without ammunition.

What made it even worse is some of the ammunition that we ended up asking be sent to Colombia ended up during the Christmas holidays, from December to January looking for this ammunition, which should have been there over a year ago, ended up on the loading dock of the Department of State, another bungled disaster in trying to get aid that the Congress, the Republican-led Congress, had worked since 1995 to get to Colombia in a timely fashion, and, again, aid that could be used in an effective manner.

So the major expenditure of the $300 million that we asked some 3 or 4 years ago to get these resources and funded several years ago, the major component of this package were these helicopters which they need to get to high altitude to go after both the traffickers and also do the eradication. Other equipment will not work, but we know what will work, and we could not get that there. In a very limited quantity it finally got there the beginning of this year, but not armed, not properly armored, and not properly equipped, with the ammunition that was outdated.

So one does not get oneself into a $1.3 billion disaster emergency appropriation by accident. One does not get oneself where we have a country which is a transit country for narcotics into the major producing country now in the world for the supply of hard narcotics coming into the United States, we do not get this accomplished by just a couple of easy steps. Unfortunately, we take some steps that I have outlined here tonight that in fact turn the situation into a disaster, and cause the Congress to expend hard-earned taxpayer dollars to sort of mop up the mess.

All this was now sort of blurred by the President in his grandstanding and going down to Colombia for some 8 hours to make this all look good. I am sure his action, the reports I have, are poll-driven that in fact the situation had deteriorated so badly, not only in Colombia, and the public was aware of it, but also with illegal narcotics flooding into the country in unprecedented quantities that it began to affect the credibility of this administration and those running for higher office.

I will quote from the New York Times. I do not want to prejudice this, because I am a partisan from the Republican side, and I do not want to prejudice it with my statement, but we will take the New York Times August 30 article.

It said, ''The U.S. authorities describe Colombia's drug trade, which supplies about 80 percent of the world's cocaine and two-thirds of the heroin on U.S. streets, as a national security concern. But analysts suggest domestic politics rather than foreign policy may be behind the timing of Clinton's trip.''

I did not say this, the New York Times said this. Let me quote again from this article:

''Since Clinton took office in 1992, Colombia's cocaine output has risen more than 750 percent, to 520 metric tons last year, leading to Republican charges that the Democrats have soft-peddled on drugs.''

The rest of the article says, ''Diplomatic sources say Wednesday's trip will give Clinton the perfect stage to strike a tough pose on drugs and allow Democratic Party presidential candidate Al Gore to say the current administration did not fall asleep at the switch.''

This is the New York Times article. I did not say that, they in fact said that.

But these accidents in fact have created a disaster. The failed policy in Haiti has created a disaster, turning Haiti into the key transit zone for illegal narcotics coming through the Caribbean today. Again, do not take my word, let us take the administration's drug czar's word.

General Barry McCaffrey, director of the Office of Drug Policy, said ''My only broad-gauge assessment is that Haiti is a disaster. We've got a weak to nonexistent democratic institution, a police force that is on the verge of collapse from internal corruption, and eroding infrastructure that is creating a path of very little resistance. We are watching an alarming increase.''

This is, again, not my comment but the comment of our drug czar. This is after the administration's policy of nation-building, after spending probably some $3 billion in Haiti and much of the funds in the institution of nation-building, building the police force and building the judicial system, building a legislative body, and this is the assessment by the administration's drug czar that this has turned into a drug haven.

I have not gotten into Panama. I just described how the policy of President Bush was to go in and go after a drug trafficker. In this case it happened to be the President of a country, Noriega, who he sent our troops for, who captured him and jailed him.

The contrast is that the Clinton and Gore administration allowed Panama to be given up, which it did have to be given up, we will give them that, as far as our base, but they turned over $10 billion in assets. We requested that we at least be allowed to lease and use the bases which we had established there, even if we had to pay for them, as a continuance of our forward drug surveillance operations.

We have to remember that before May 1 of last year all of our drug surveillance operations for this entire region of the Caribbean, where all these narcotics are grown and sourced and transited from, all of that surveillance operation was located in Panama at our bases.

In a bungled negotiation with Panama not only did we lose everything as far as the canal is concerned, and we were expected to lose that, but we lost all of the other assets. The Air Force bases, all of our strategic locations, and every operation for our forward drug surveillance and intelligence operations were housed at Howard Air Force base in Panama. This was, again, a total loss, and it is sad to report to the Congress and to the American people that the administration is now trying to still piece together a substitute for Howard Air Force Base.

So rather than pay a little bit of rent or assistance for using the facility that we had even built in Panama for this operation and other national security operations, we are now paying Ecuador, and we will probably pay over $100 million to build an airstrip, and we will have a limited contract with that country. We are going to pay for improvements and facilities at Aruba and Curacao, and we are going to pay additionally in El Salvador.

But what has happened, since May of last year, until we are now told today it is 2002, we have a wide open gap. So not only do we have Colombia producing incredible quantities, actually producing heroin, actually poppies that produce heroin and they come from there, but we have cocaine coming from there in unprecedented quantities, and also the coca bean grown there.

We have this incredible producing country, and our surveillance operations cut dramatically. In fact, we are told until 2002 that we will not be up to where we were when Howard Air Force base was opened.

What is of even more concern is the administration, when they came in in 1993, took some very specific steps, Clinton-Gore, in closing down the source country programs, in closing down the interdiction programs. They have great disdain to begin with for the military, and they wanted to make certain that they took them out of the war on drugs.

Now, of course, Members can hear the comments that the war on drugs is a failure. The commentators are always saying that. But the war on drugs, Mr. Speaker, basically closed down with the advent of this administration. That was in 1993. They stopped the interdiction programs, cut the source country programs, took the military out of the surveillance operations, and last year we lost the forward operating location.

So if Members wonder why we have a disaster in Colombia, there are specific steps that led to that. If Members wonder why our streets are flooded with heroin in unprecedented quantities and cocaine in unprecedented amounts, there is a reason for that. That is that surveillance operations are basically closed down, and are in the process of being replaced at great expense to the American taxpayers. The latest estimates are probably in the $150 million range, in addition to what we lost in assets in Panama.

That is some of the situation that we got ourselves into. The President went down with great fanfare, and we would think that he had solved the problem when in fact he helped to create the problem through some very specific steps that I think I have documented here tonight.

Mr. Speaker, what I would like to do is just talk for a few minutes about another thing that has taken place during the recess.

During the recess, we had with great fanfare not only the President visiting Colombia to make it look like they had done something, and of course I did not describe what they did tonight in detail about how they got us into this pickle, but we heard just in the last few days the drug czar and Donna Shalala, our Secretary of Health and Human Services, come out and proclaim that illegal drug use is down among teens. Of course, there is this headline in the Washington Times that says also that it is up for young adults.

They were trying to stage during this recess, in addition to the President's staging appearance in Colombia, that drug use was down among teens. What they had to do really was to counter the other headlines and reports that had been coming out one after another.

This is from the Washington Times: ''Threat of Ecstasy Reaching Cocaine, Heroin Proportions.'' This is August 16 of 2000. This is a report, and we had before my subcommittee the folks from the Centers for Disease Control who issued a stinging report that said ''High-schoolers Report More Drug Use.'' This is the New York Times. This is from Friday, June 9, 2000.

So the administration staged an event to try to make it look like they had gotten a handle on teen drug use, and it was in response to these reports coming out, the Centers for Disease Control and other reports that we have.

What disturbs me as chair of the subcommittee is that it is almost a deceitful use of statistics. We passed a $1 billion program to combat illegal narcotics use and drug abuse, an anti-drug media campaign some 2 years ago, and some $200 million plus per year is being expended over a period of time to try to get this situation under control.

When we passed that we wanted some measurable results, and we required in the law that we passed that there be measurable performance standards and a report back to Congress. I didn't think that the drug czar's office could do this or the administration would do this, but they took statistics and they molded them in this presentation as a follow-up to the President's staged appearance in Colombia, and used them in a fashion which I think was deceiving and which violates the intent.

In fact, there is an article which says the administration may have violated the law by not properly reporting to the Congress as required by the law.

But what they did was they took the perceived drug use as harmful of 12th graders, and they took a 1996 baseline that we started out with, and showed that 59.9 percent in 1996 perceived drug use as harmful, these 12th graders. Each year that had decreased.

We wanted to find out if the $1 billion we are spending is effective. They came out with a report, and what they did was they changed the baseline. They changed the baseline from 1996 to 1998 so that they could show it was a smaller baseline.

In this drug control strategy we require that they set a goal, so we know that we are getting something for our money, and we try to reach this goal. The goal they set was for 80 percent of the use, the 12th grade use to perceive this as harmful, drug use as harmful. What we have seen is actually a deterioration in this.

The administration cleverly took, and it was not discovered by our subcommittee but by a reporter, and changed the baseline to 1998, used the new baseline. They shifted from 12th grade, because they had slightly more favorable statistics for eighth-graders, and used those statistics. So what they did was they said they were getting closer to their goal, and eighth-graders were 73 percent more likely to perceive drug use as harmful, and said they were 7 percent from reaching their goal, when in fact they had actually deteriorated in the 12th-grade range, and researchers will tell us that 12th grade is a better measure of long-term drug use. Twelfth-graders usually set the stage for their lifetime action with the illegal narcotics.

So we have seen a clever and rather deceitful distortion of a law that we passed to try to gauge performance and find out if we are meeting our objectives, and I find that very disturbing. I do not know if time permits to bring folks in and to conduct a hearing; but we certainly will be, if necessary, subpoenaing records to find out how they could take the intent and law passed by this Congress to set meaningful goals, to set performance standards, and then evaluate and report back to the representatives of the people.

So I take this matter very seriously that the law, intent and spirit of the law may have not been measured up to by this administration in an attempt to make it look like they have done something to help us, when in fact, if we start looking at statistics, we find that Ecstasy use is absolutely skyrocketing. This shows the Ecstasy use.

If we look at methamphetamine, almost no methamphetamine back at the beginning of this administration. These charts were given to me by another agency of this administration. We see from 1993 to 1999 the country, these colored parts here showing methamphetamine going at a rapid rate.

If we look at 12th grade drug use and the charts that again were provided and information by this administration, we still see serious increases, some leveling off. If we look at the prevalence of cocaine use, we see again dramatic increases under the watch of this administration.

So I do not particularly like to call this to the attention of the Congress and the American people, but I think it is a distortion of the intent of Congress to try to get measurable results and effective expenditure of our dollars and our antinarcotics effort.

So tonight, I appreciate the time and patience of my colleagues. I will try to return maybe again this week and finish the rest of this report. But we still face a very serious illegal narcotics problem that is taking a record number of lives, destroying families, and imposing great social devastation across our land.

Mr. Speaker, I appreciate again the attention of the House.

PRESCRIPTION DRUG BENEFIT FOR AMERICAN SENIORS

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. TANCREDO). Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 6, 1999, the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. PALLONE) is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the minority leader.

Mr. PALLONE. Mr. Speaker, I would like to discuss in a little depth tonight the issue of prescription drugs and trying to provide a prescription drug benefit to America's seniors.

In that context, I wanted to specifically, Mr. Speaker, make reference to the proposal that the Republican candidate for President, Mr. Bush, has made in the last few days, and draw the contrast between that and the plan that the Democrats have been putting forward in the House of Representatives and that is also supported by Vice President GORE. I know I am going to be joined tonight by some of my colleagues on the Democratic side of the aisle.

Mr. Speaker, my concern about what has been happening with the Bush Medicare plan, or I should say with the Bush prescription drug plan, it is just basically too little too late. The Democrats here in the House have been talking about expanding prescription drugs through Medicare. On the Republican side of the aisle, we have seen fig leaves go out about different proposals to provide some sort of voucher or subsidy for seniors who might want to go out and buy a prescription drug plan.

But the Republican proposal really does not do anything, nor does Mr. Bush's proposal do anything to help the average senior. I think it is just a lot of rhetoric. It does not actually do anything to solve the problems that seniors face today. I just wanted to contrast because, in many ways, I think that what Mr. Bush has proposed is really no different. It is just another version of what the Republican leadership in the House has been talking about for the last 6 months.

On the other hand, the Democratic proposal which we have been putting forth and has been supported by Vice President GORE has very specific remedies for dealing with the problems that seniors face. So I would just like to run through some of the distinctions if I could.

All that the Republicans are doing, and that includes their presidential candidate, Mr. Bush, is throwing some money or proposing to throw some money at the insurance companies, hoping that they will sell a drug-only insurance policy; and the insurance companies admit that they are not going to be selling those kinds of policies, that basically a drug-only insurance policy will not be available.

What the Democrats have been saying is that we have a tried-and-true program, a Medicare program, that has been around for over 30 years now; and all we have to do is take that existing Medicare program and expand it through a new part D where one would pay a premium per month and one would get a prescription drug benefit in the same way that one gets one's part B benefit to pay for one's doctor's bills right now. One pays a modest premium, and the Government pays for a certain percentage of one's drug bills.

The Democrats, and here is one of the most important distinctions, the Democrats guarantee that the drug benefit one gets through Medicare covers all one's medicines that are medically necessary as determined by one's doctor, not the insurance company.

The Republicans and Mr. Bush tell one to go out and see if one can find an insurance policy to cover one's medicine; and if one cannot find it, well, that is just tough luck. Even if one does manage to find an insurance company through the voucher that the Government might give one under the Bush plan, there is no guarantee as to the cost of the monthly premium or what kind of medicine that one gets.

Now I find myself when I talk to seniors that they want certainty. They want to know that, if they pay a premium, as they do under part B, and now they would under the part D proposed by the Democrats and by the Vice President, that they are guaranteed certain prescription drug coverage and it is going to be there for them whenever they need it.

Lastly, I think in contrasting these two plans, the Republican and the Democratic plans, and just as important, I see the gentleman from Maine (Mr. ALLEN) just came in, and he has been the biggest supporter of this issue, is that the Republicans and the Bush plan leave American seniors open to continued price discrimination. There is nothing in the Bush plan or in the Republican plan to prevent the drug companies from charging one whatever they want. The Democratic plan, on the other hand, says that the Government will choose a benefit provider who will negotiate for one the best price, just like the prices that are negotiated by the HMOs and other preferred providers.

The real difference, though, is that the Democrats are working with the existing Medicare program to basically expand Medicare to provide prescription drug coverage, and that would make a difference for the average senior. The first prescription drug, the first medicine that they need would be covered under the Democratic plan.

The Republican plan is just, in my opinion, nothing more than a cruel hoax on the seniors. It is the same type of thing that the Republicans in Congress have been proposing.

I wanted to just mention two more things, then I would like to yield to my colleagues who are joining me here tonight. There was an article in today's New York Times where the Republican candidate, Mr. Bush, was spelling out his prescription drug program. Interestingly enough, when asked about the issue of price discrimination, he actually criticized GORE's plan, the Democratic plan, by suggesting that, in the way that we set aside benefit providers and say they are going to negotiate a good price so that seniors do not get ripped off, and the price discrimination that currently exists disappears, what Mr. Bush says is that that would do nothing but ultimately lead to price controls.

I just wanted to use this quote if I could, Mr. Speaker. It says that Mr. Bush today, much like the drug industry, criticized Mr. GORE's plan as a step towards price controls. ''By making government agents the largest purchasers of prescription drugs in America,'' Mr. Bush said, ''by making Washington the Nation's pharmacist, the

Gore plan puts us well on the way to price control for drugs.''

Now, what that says to me is that what Mr. Bush wants, he wants to do something that is going to help the pharmaceutical companies, he wants to do something that is going to help the insurance agencies, the insurance companies; but he is not doing something that helps the average American.

We had time for the last month or so when we were all in our districts, and I had a lot of forums and town meetings, many of which were with seniors. Whether they were seniors or not, everybody talked to me about the price, the cost of prescription drugs. Now do my colleagues mean to tell me that when we pass a prescription drug plan we are not going to address that issue? If we do not address that issue in some way by at least saying this the Government is going to try to have someone out there to negotiate a better price, then any prescription drug plan that is put into place is not going to really solve anybody's problem because the cost is going to be too high.

The other thing I wanted to point out, and this is something that I said before we had our August break, is that what Mr. Bush is proposing and what the Republicans proposed here in the House of Representatives when we were in session during the summer and the spring has already been tried in at least one State; and that is the State of Nevada.

In the State of Nevada, back in the springtime, they passed a prescription drug plan that was very similar to what Mr. Bush and the Republicans have proposed; and that is essentially giving a subsidy, giving a voucher to seniors so that they can go out and try to find their own prescription drug plan, their own prescription drug policy through some insurance company. In the State of Nevada, none of them were sold. People tried to find a plan, and there were no insurance companies that was willing to sell it.

The only thing that I can see happening with Mr. Bush's plan is that some of the HMOs will offer the coverage because if they can take that voucher and add it to whatever seniors now get under Medicare, that they may be willing in some cases through HMOs to take up the slack and perhaps provide some benefits for prescription drugs.

But the problem with that is that as we know over the last 6 months and over the last 2 years since more and more seniors have gotten into HMOs, a lot of those HMOs are now cutting back. They are simply getting out of the Medicare program. They are telling the seniors they have to have a higher deductible, more of a co-payment, basically telling the seniors that they have to pay more out of pocket.

So I do not think pushing seniors into HMOs is the answer. I think there is a serious problem with managed care, not that managed care is necessarily a bad thing. But if Mr. Bush thinks that we are going to solve the prescription drug prices for seniors by simply pushing them into HMOs, the experience of the last 2 years shows that is simply not the answer.

What we are facing here is a Republican plan under the Republican candidate for President that basically does not do anything for the average American senior. We have to realize now the only way we are going to get real coverage for seniors is if we add a prescription drug benefit to the Medicare program, which is exactly what the Vice President and the Democrats have been proposing for the last 2 years.

With that, I yield to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. TURNER), a gentleman who has been outspoken on this issue and who I know really cares a great deal about the seniors in his district and trying to solve this problem. I know he has had a number of forums over the last month or so in Texas, his home State. We talked a little bit and shared some thoughts today about how the response from seniors that we have again been getting over the last month has been really very similar. They are really crying out for reform. They have a problem. They cannot afford to pay prescription drugs out of pocket. They are crying out for relief, which is what the Vice President wants to achieve.

Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. TURNER).

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. PALLONE) for yielding to me. It is good to be here and to share this hour with him and our colleagues on the Democratic side of the aisle who have worked for so long now trying to pass a prescription drug benefit for our senior citizens under the Medicare program.

Mr. Speaker, 2 months ago the Republicans tried to diffuse the issue by passing a bill on the floor of this House by a very narrow margin that was simply a plan that told the insurance companies to go out there and offer insurance policies for prescription drugs to our seniors. They did it in spite of the fact that, during the hearings on the very bill, the insurance companies came in and said that it was not going to work. In fact, the president of Blue Cross and Blue Shield said the idea of a private insurance drug benefit, and I am quoting, ''provides false hope to America's seniors because it is neither workable nor affordable.''

Now we see that Governor Bush has belatedly approached the same plan.

He simply says that we need to rely on private insurance companies to provide prescription drug coverage for our seniors. It is quite interesting to note that the Republicans and Governor Bush have said we can rely on private insurance companies to cover our seniors' prescription drug needs when at this very moment the private insurance companies are pulling out of providing Medicare+Choice plans for our seniors.

In early August, I had the opportunity to travel around my district. I visited about 40 communities and talked to hundreds of seniors who are struggling to pay their prescription drug bills. I stopped in many pharmacies and talked to many seniors who brought in their prescription medicine bottles. In fact, I had urged them to bring in their empty medicine bottles to allow me to take them back to Washington. This is one of them from Kirbyville.

I urged my seniors to use these empty prescription medicine bottles as a way to send a message to the Congress that they are ready for this Congress to do something about the high cost of prescription drugs and to provide a Medicare benefit for prescription drugs. I have got at least four full boxes of these, and it shows that the seniors that I represent are tired of waiting for this Congress to do something. We have been working on this for over 2 years now, and the truth of the matter is it is time for this Congress to act.

When I talked to the seniors in my district, many of them had prescription medicine bills that run several hundreds of dollars a month. I met seniors who are trying to make do by taking their pills and breaking them in half; trying to get by and lower the cost that way. Others told me they just try to take a pill every other day instead of every day as prescribed. I met seniors who are having to make the difficult choice of whether to buy their groceries or to fill their prescription.

In the community of Navasota in my district I was there at a local pharmacy that is located in a grocery store, and a lady came up to me, she did not know I was going to be there to talk about this issue, and she just overheard me so she stopped in to listen. Afterwards, she came up to me and she said, I just brought my prescription in yesterday and I had come back today to pick it up. She said I was just back at the pharmacy counter and the pharmacist told me that it would be $125. She said I told him he would just have to keep it. I asked the pharmacist later if that was a common problem and he said it was. He said many people come in and ask to have their prescriptions filled only to find that the price is too high for them to afford.

In a Nation as prosperous as this Nation is, and in a Nation that is as compassionate as we like to think and say we are, I believe it is time for us to recognize that we can do something for our seniors in helping them with the cost of prescription drugs.

I had a lady in a little town of Teneha come up and hand me an envelope, and she said to me, ''Would you please read this on your way to your next stop?'' When I got in the car I began to read this letter, and I want to share it with my colleagues.

This lady that handed me the letter had been in the insurance business for 19 years and she relates a story about her deceased mother. She says, ''Dear Congressman Turner: I am writing this in memory of my mother, who passed away last November in Conroe at the age of 87. My mother had multiple health problems that resulted in her having to take many expensive prescription drugs for the last 20 years of her life. She was very active and able to live a full life in spite of her health problems, and was grateful for medication that could help her. She very meticulously followed her doctor's orders on medication and diet.

''Like most people her age who lived through the Great Depression and World War II, she possessed much pride in self-sufficiency. She did not ask anyone for handouts. She believed in paying her bills first and foremost and maintaining good credit. People of this era worked hard. And even though they worked hard and paid the maximum through Social Security, their retirement income is still not sufficient to meet the total cost of retirement living, especially if there is a prescription drug bill every month of $300 or more.

''My mother's only income was her Social Security retirement income with a prescription drug cost of $300 a month. After her death, I discovered that her major indebtedness was a credit card with over $6,000 on it. I inquired and determined that it was practically all for prescription drugs. She used the card when she needed medicine and had no money left in the bank. She knew that the account could be paid off when her modest home was sold. Because of her pride and self-sufficiency, I did not know this until her death.''

It is of quite a surprise, I am sure, to this lady, to know her mother had to charge her prescription drugs on her credit card and run up a $6,000 bill just to be sure she could take her medicine.

These stories and many like it were repeated to me over and over again as I traveled around my district during our August work period. These people that I talked to are in desperate need of some help. We need sound policies and a meaningful prescription drug coverage plan, not empty promises, not press releases.

Today, the problems of the drug crisis has reached a new crisis. This is brought about by the fact that all across our country seniors who signed up for these so-called Medicare+Choice plans, offered by the big HMOs as a substitute for regular Medicare, have been canceling their coverage of our seniors. Hundreds of seniors told me that they personally received these notices of cancellation to be effective on December 31 of this year. In the 19 counties in my district, as of the end of December, 15 of those counties will have no Medicare+Choice HMO option offered to them.

All across this country seniors are receiving similar notices of cancellation. In fact, at last count there were over 900,000 seniors in this country that are receiving notices from their insurance companies saying their Medicare+Choice HMO plans are canceled as of December 31. Many of those are in my State of Texas. One would think that Governor Bush would understand that private insurance HMO coverage for prescription drugs is not the answer, particularly in light of the fact that hundreds of thousands of seniors across this country are being told no by their HMO.

We have learned, I think, an important lesson, one that our Republican friends and Governor Bush also need to learn, and that is we cannot rely upon private insurance as a safety net for our seniors. Once again the Republicans propose that private insurance can solve the problem. Recently, when Governor Bush announced his new plan, he said he would begin to cover prescription drugs in year 5 of his proposal by reforming Medicare, and for the next 4 years he said he would give $12 million a year to the States to allow them to do something about the problem of prescription drugs for seniors.

Now, the States tell us that they do not want to have this ball. The National Governors Association has already said, and I quote, ''If Congress decides to expand prescription drug coverage to seniors, it should not shift the responsibility or its cost to the States.'' Why should we give money to our States to subsidize insurance companies instead of just using the money to provide meaningful prescription drug coverage under the traditional Medicare program that seniors understand and trust? The insurance companies are abandoning our seniors right and left, and yet our Republican friends continue to say that insurance, private insurance, can take care of the problem.

Medicare was signed into law by a great Texan, Lyndon Johnson, in 1965, in a day when prescription drug coverage was not nearly as important as it is today, because prescription drugs were a very small percentage of our total health care cost. Today it is a much larger percentage and a much more serious problem. After 35 years of protecting our seniors, we should be strengthening Medicare with a prescription drug benefit, not dissolving it in favor of private insurance companies out to earn a buck when we already know from our current experience that private insurance companies cannot be relied upon.

We only need to look back to see what has happened to seniors across this country in recent months. In rural east Texas, the area of the country that I represent, 65 percent of our seniors on Medicare do not have access to any of these Medicare+Choice plans that offer prescription drug coverage. What are we going to do for those when the Republican plan goes into effect? Seniors in my district know what their Social Security check is down to the penny. They know how much rent they pay and they know their other bills almost to the penny. What they need is a specific defined prescription drug benefit.

The Republican plan, the Bush plan, does not give them that. The Bush Republican plan only gives them more questions. Seniors will not know how much that plan costs them, seniors will not know what it covers, and seniors certainly will not know how long it will be there for them.

The Democratic plan is very simple. We know how much it is going to cost. We have already talked about the cost of the Democratic plan. It begins about $24 a month and rises slightly over the period of increased coverage. It covers 50 percent of the first $5,000 of prescription drug cost and covers everything above that, and it is a part of Medicare, not some insurance company plan that may go away next year. That is the kind of security senior citizens want; that is the kind of security that senior citizens deserve.

The private insurance industry clearly has to try to make a profit. They are not in the business of providing a safety net for our seniors. That is the appropriate role of government. We cannot afford to abandon our seniors to those same HMOs that have been dropping them all across the Nation to date. Our prescription drug benefit plan is universal, it is affordable, it is understandable, and it is voluntary. If there be any senior who chooses not to sign up for the Medicare prescription drug benefit that we propose, they simply will not have to pay the premium.

So our plan, I think, is the one that seniors deserve, and I hope that we can continue to push until this goal is accomplished, hopefully in this Congress, but, if not, in the future I am confident that we will prevail.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back to the gentleman from New Jersey.

Mr. PALLONE. Mr. Speaker, I want to thank my colleague from Texas because he really lays out the differences between the Bush Republican plan and the Gore Democratic plan, but there were two things I just wanted to comment on because I thought they were so important.

First, the gentleman pointed out that when he talked about these private insurance-only policies that the Bush Republican plan is relying on, they are assuming that there is going to be a voucher of some sort that seniors are going to be able to take with them and go to buy this private insurance policy for prescription drugs. It is illusory. It is not going to happen. The reason is very simple, which is that insurance companies do not provide benefits, they insure against risk. We know that almost every senior is going to have to use prescription drugs, so it makes sense to put it as a benefit under the existing Medicare program rather than look at it as some sort of risk. Insurance companies are not going to provide coverage when they know that every senior would actually benefit and take advantage of the plan.

That is why these insurance policies were not sold in Nevada and why they will never be sold anywhere else.

The second thing is that the Bush Republican plan is sort of a cruel hoax. The gentleman laid out that during the month or so that we were back in our districts and Congress was not in session that he talked to real people, as did I, and they are suffering. They are making choices; dividing pills, having to make choices between food and prescription drugs. When the gentleman went to a lot of the towns in his district, he knew this was a real problem.

I feel that what Governor Bush has proposed is just something that is illusory and is there to give the impression that somehow he wants to address the problems that these real people have. And he has really only come up with it in the last few weeks because AL GORE has been out there talking about the Democratic machine and it has gotten a positive response. So all of a sudden Governor Bush had to come up with something, knowing full well that it is not going to work. And I think that is a real cruel hoax on these people that we have been seeing every day for the last month that are crying out for some relief.

I want to yield to my colleague, the gentleman from Maine (Mr. ALLEN). Again, I know that he has been out there talking about the problem of price discrimination because so many seniors now that do not have coverage and have to buy prescription drugs at the local pharmacy out of pocket pay significantly higher prices than those who are in HMOs or some kind of an employer plan that is able to buy the prescription drugs in bulk and negotiate a good price.

The thing that really bothered me was the fact that, in laying out his plan today, Governor Bush actually criticized the Democratic plan, the Gore plan, because it tried to address the issue of price discrimination that somehow even making this attempt was a bad thing, and yet that is the biggest problem that seniors face right now and everyone faces because of that price discrimination.

Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Maine (Mr. ALLEN).

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. PALLONE) for all his good work on this issue and will begin by saying he is absolutely right, people know that the amount they are spending on prescription drugs is going up and up, that drugs themselves are getting more expensive.

As people get older, they use more and more prescription drugs. My colleague was talking a little earlier about how many people use prescription drugs. Well, for seniors it is 85 percent. Eighty-five percent of all seniors take at least one prescription drug; and many, as we know, take more than one.

My parents have their rows of pill bottles. And certainly the industry has done a great deal to extend people's lives and to improve the quality of people's lives. But the fact is that these medicines do no good for people who cannot afford to take them and there are millions and millions of Americans, at least 13 million seniors alone, who simply have no coverage at all for their prescription drugs.

It has got to be tough to be a Republican these days because watching Governor Bush try to thread the needle, as the House Republicans did before, we see the same kind of exercise. On the one hand, they want to sound like Democrats, they want to sound as if they are reforming Medicare, they are providing a Medicare prescription drug benefit. But because they do not really want to strengthen a government program, which is what, of course, Medicare is, they have to figure out some other way to do it.

It is so different from the private sector because people who are employed and have their insurance through Aetna or Cigna or United or a Blue Cross plan may very well, and probably do in many cases, have prescription drug coverage provided by the health care carrier.

But the Republicans are completely adverse to having Medicare provide a prescription drug benefit just as those private sector plans do; and so they go through all sorts of contortions to argue against the simplest, most cost-effective, fairest system possible, which is a Medicare prescription drug benefit.

I want to comment a little bit on the Bush plan because it is so much like what our friend on the Republican side threw up in this House some time ago.

The interesting thing about this plan, among many interesting things, is, first of all, he says we are going to provide a subsidy of 25 percent for people over the lowest income level, we are going to provide a subsidy of 25 percent of the premium. And so the logical question to ask is, Well, how much is the premium? Because then we will know how much the subsidy is. And the answer is, Well, there is no information on that because the premium will be offered and chosen and decided by a set of private insurance companies. And so then the question is, Well, how much will the deductible be? And there is no answer to that because the deductible will be decided by HMOs and other insurance companies.

Then there is the question of the copay and how much will the copay be. Same thing. There is no answer to any of those questions. There are no details. And the reason is they cannot abide the thought of strengthening Medicare, they cannot abide the thought of really modernizing Medicare.

When the Republicans talk about modernizing Medicare, watch out. Because they are not modernizing it. They are basically saying, we are going to reform it by transforming it; we are going to turn Medicare over to HMOs and insurance companies and you will all be better off.

Now, of course, it is true that when you look at the experience of HMOs in Medicare now, they are leaving the program. Seniors are being dropped all across this country. And the coverage is very uneven. For about somewhere between 14 and 15 percent of seniors in this country, they get prescription drug coverage through a managed care plan. But the number who get their coverage that way are falling off.

In my home State of Maine, as of a month or two ago, there were a grand total of 1,700 seniors who got their prescription drugs through a Medicare managed care plan. As of January 1, there will be none. We will have no Medicare managed care in Maine; therefore, no way for seniors to get prescription drug coverage through a managed care company in my State. There simply will be no way.

Governor Bush, in presenting his plan, and the Republicans in the House, in presenting their comparable plan here some time ago, always said, We are going to leave it up to the consumer. It is their choice. Well, it is not their choice if there is no plan to chose from.

And whose choice is it really? What they are really talking about when it comes to choice is not the choice of the consumers; it is the choice of the insurance companies. Because they are the ones who will decide the premiums, the copays, the benefit levels. And those benefit levels, those premiums, those copays can change year after year after year.

I have talked to a lot of seniors in my district, and what they want and what they need is stability and continuity and predictability and equity. They need to know that what they had for a benefit last year will be there next year and the year after and the year after, and they want to know if there is a copay that it will be about the same year to year to year. And most of all, they want to know that the plan will be there.

That is what Medicare provides. Medicare provides a guaranteed benefit that will be there year after year after year.

All of my colleagues on the other side who attack Medicare over and over again as a bureaucracy are ignoring the fact that the HMOs and the other insurance companies are bureaucracies in themselves, but they are much more expensive and much more unfair and much more unpredictable than Medicare.

Mr. PALLONE. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentlewoman from Florida (Mrs. THURMAN).

Mrs. THURMAN. Mr. Speaker, after what Maine has done, which is kind of the leader in the country right now and I think through the leadership that the gentleman from Maine (Mr. ALLEN) has provided here in the House, they came back in their legislature with a very strong bill based on many of the studies that we have done in our districts about the cost of what has happened in Canada and what has happened in Mexico.

But when we talk about these plans with the insurance companies, I will say to my colleague, and I think that many of us know this, is that in the Committee on Ways and Means, we actually had the chairman of the insurance industry and I asked him the question, I said, Mr. Kahn, I said, do you believe that insurance companies will offer a stand-alone drug benefit? And do my colleagues know what his answer was? No, absolutely not. They have no interest in going into any of our districts to cover any of the folks, whether they have been on HMOs or whether they are in a Medicare program stand-alone, a fee-for-service. They have no interest in this. The risk is too high for them to take. And we know that insurance companies work off of risk. And because the sickest would be the ones going into these programs, they cannot afford to offer a plan.

So what my colleague is saying here is exactly right. It does not matter how much money we offer as far as a tax deduction, and nobody has told me whether or not they have a liability or no liability on their deductions, we do not even know that part of it yet, even though it seems to be based just to those that are the very low-income seniors. So my guess is that it would only be for those who have tax liability; there is no plan out there.

And we are hitting the same thing in Florida. I mean, in one of the counties that I represent, in Hernando County, we had 9,000 seniors dropped from two Medicare Choice programs. Two. These people are afraid because there is nobody there to pick up this prescription drug benefit, and they do not know what they are going to do.

Mr. PALLONE. Mr. Speaker, reclaiming my time, what I said before in response to what the gentlewoman said, we had the example in Nevada that implemented the Republican plan almost exactly what Mr. Bush and the Republicans in the House have proposed 6 months ago, and not one insurance company has offered to sell that kind of a policy.

So we do not even have to take the word of Mr. Kahn. We have an example in a State where there is no policy offered.

Mrs. THURMAN. Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman will continue to yield, I think one of the things that is significant about the plan that is being offered by the Democrats is that it is a voluntary program. And, in fact, if people want to stay in their HMOs and those HMOs are not pulling out, we also provide about $25 billion to them to make sure that we strengthen those HMO Medicare Choice programs that are available and that are left in this country. And I think that is an added advantage to what we are trying to do in this whole debate is to never take something away from something, only to add to those that have nothing.

Mr. PALLONE. Mr. Speaker, reclaiming my time, I yield now to my colleague, the gentleman from Arkansas (Mr. BERRY), who again has been one of the main proponents of increasing health care access and addressing the problem of prescription drugs and has been working on these health care issues for some time.

Mr. BERRY. Mr. Speaker, I thank my colleague, the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. PALLONE), for yielding me the time. He has done a great job in the leadership of health care in this House, and we appreciate what he has done. He has been at this longer than I have.

It is also nice to join my colleague, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. TURNER), the gentleman from Maine (Mr. ALLEN), and the gentlewoman from Florida (Mrs. THURMAN). I appreciate their efforts on behalf of the American people to see that our senior citizens have a decent prescription drug benefit with Medicare.

We stand here this evening the greatest Nation that has ever been in the history of the world. There has never been another country that has the economic, the military, and the political power that this country does. And yet our senior citizens, many of them, millions of them, are going to go to bed tonight and not have enough to eat or not have the medicine they need because our prescription drug manufacturers are simply robbing them of that.

Medicare was even admitted to being a success by Governor Bush yesterday, even knowing that the former speaker, Mr. Gingrich, and his colleagues in the majority have vowed for years that they would see Medicare wither on the vine, I believe is the way they put it.

What we know, and we do not have to spend all of August in the First Congressional District of Arkansas to find this out, we can go to any congressional district in the country, this is a real problem for real people; and it is causing real pain, and it is time that we do something about it.

As Congress takes the next month or so to wrap up legislative business for this year, there is simply no excuse for leaving seniors and the disabled without a reliable prescription drug benefit under Medicare.

The Republican leadership has reluctantly been forced to put forward what they call a plan because of the overwhelming public outcry created by rapidly escalating, outrageously profitable prescription drug prices charged by manufacturers.

Being forced to develop a plan, the best Republican leaders have been able to do is to listen to their friends in the pharmaceutical industry. If they had traveled with any of us over August and listened to the stories that we heard, every one of us heard, and they are heartbreaking, these are people that worked hard, played by the rules, and thought they had made the right decisions to provide for their senior years.

They would know that we have got to do something about this problem, and it is time to have a prescription drug benefit for Medicare. The Democratic plan will use the purchasing power of our seniors covered by Medicare to negotiate large discounts from drug makers. I believe Governor Bush said yesterday that that would be a dangerous thing to do. It might actually reduce by a little bit the outrageous profits of these drug companies. They might actually even have to cut back on some of the tremendous salaries that they pay the people that run these companies, and that would be too bad to cut some of those folks back under maybe $100 million a year.

The Republican plan is a cynical game being played with our seniors' health, a shameful attempt to deceive our seniors. They have proposed a large first step toward privatizing Medicare and forcing our seniors to deal with private insurance companies to get the care and the prescription drugs that they need. The insurance companies say they do not want it. They do not want anything to do with it. That is why we have to have Medicare. Medicare is a success.

You can ask the Republicans, ''What does it cover?'' And they will tell you, ''Well, we don't know.'' Then you can say, ''How much does it pay?'' And they will say, ''We don't know.'' Then you can say, ''What are the premiums?'' And they will say, ''We don't know.'' They do not want to see drug companies' exorbitant profits damaged. That is what the interest is in the plan that Governor Bush put forward yesterday, that, and continuing to try to destroy Medicare as we know it.

Their plan only provides subsidies to their insurance companies, the donors and the pharmaceutical companies' profits rather than giving any direct assistance to our seniors. It does nothing to see that Americans can buy prescription medicine at the same price as every other country in the world and we pay two to three times as much in this country. Their plan is based on the discredited theory that private insurers will offer affordable prescription insurance if they are given enough government subsidies. But the HMOs and the insurance companies just simply say this will not work.

It is also unlikely that the country will be able to pay for prescription drug coverage under Medicare because the Republicans are continuing their attempts to squander any available moneys on tax cuts that are disproportionately benefitting the wealthy. The American people want a prescription drug benefit for our seniors, and it is time for this Congress and the next President to recognize the tremendous need that our seniors have and do the right thing and pass a legitimate prescription drug benefit for Medicare.

Mr. PALLONE. I want to thank the gentleman. Certainly he speaks the truth about what we are facing and how the Bush Republican plan does not address the problems that we were hearing about during the August recess.

I yield to the gentleman from Maine.

Mr. ALLEN. I thank the gentleman for yielding. I do not think that anyone says it better than the gentleman from Arkansas (Mr. BERRY). He is a pharmacist himself. He knows what he is talking about when it comes to the things that people are going through.

I wanted to come back for a moment and talk about one part of the Bush plan that was announced yesterday or the day before and that strikes me as completely unrealistic. What he is saying is we are going to provide $48 billion over 4 years in terms of grants to the States in order to provide immediate relief for seniors who need help.

There are several points to be made. The first point. The fact is that the people who are suffering the most are not necessarily those with the lowest income. They are the people with the highest prescription drug cost. I was talking to a man up in Waterville not so long ago, Waterville, Maine, who had owned his own garage, his own auto repair business, he and his wife were now retired but they were not quite 65 and they had a little bit of coverage for their prescription drugs that they would lose when they hit 65. His wife's expenses and his together were already running at $1,000 a month. He was terrified as to what would happen to him when he hit 65, he lost his coverage, there is no coverage under Medicare and he knew he would be in great trouble. So there is one problem. People all up and down the senior income ladder have difficulty paying for their prescription drugs.

The second problem is this: There are only 16 plans, 16 States in the country which have functioning programs for the low-income elderly. Now, five States have passed legislation to get them to that place and there are a couple of other States trying innovative things, but when you look at the number of people covered by these plans, you are talking about somewhere between, in most cases, with the exception of three States, somewhere between 5,000 and, oh, roughly 50,000 people in the entire State. These programs are not working. They are not available. They would have to be created. Certainly Texas does not have any form of low-income assistance for the elderly, prescription drug insurance. These plans are not able to pick up the slack any time soon and if they did, they would be misguided.

The fundamental problem is this: Medicare is a Federal health care plan. Republicans do not like that. They do not like the plan, but Medicare is a Federal health care plan. It works. It is cost efficient. Its administrative costs run about 3 percent a year. When you turn to the private insurance industry after all the administrative costs and the overhead and those executive salaries, you are talking about 30 percent a year. And they are picking and choosing among the people they want to cover. So the fundamental fact is that if we are going to have a cost effective system, it is going to be through Medicare. If we are going to have a fair system that covers everyone, it is going to be through Medicare. If we are going to have a system where people can predict their premiums, their copays, their deductible from year to year to year to year, it is going to be through Medicare. It is simply wrong to take this issue that is just really doing enormous damage to our seniors now, people who cannot afford their prescription drugs and their food and their rent and basically to say to them that we have got to wait until we can transform Medicare by turning it over to HMOs and insurance companies and then if we give them enough money, maybe they will give you prescription drug insurance. It is pathetic.

Mr. PALLONE. I agree. Just one minute and then I want to yield to the gentleman from Texas here because he has been waiting. When I had my senior forums in August in New Jersey, the people that came were the people that could not take advantage of the existing State program in New Jersey. Let us face it, if you are below a certain income, very low, then you have Medicaid and you have prescription drug coverage, not maybe as all inclusive as we would like but something.

In New Jersey, we have a program financed with casino revenue money from Atlantic City that pays for people just above that. But that program increasingly is running out of money because the revenues are not keeping up with the cost of all these drugs. But the people that came to my forums, and my district is not an affluent district, it is about middle of the road, middle income, most of the people were not eligible for either of those programs. That is the rub. It is those people, it is the middle class that do not have the benefit.

What I wanted to say, what you were talking about specifically is that it is funny, I heard Governor Bush keep talking about choice, how the Republicans were going to give choice. There is no question there is more choice in our plan. It is a voluntary plan. You do not have to sign up for part D if you do not want to. If you want to keep your State prescription drug plan, you can if you are a certain income. If you have an employer-based retirement plan and you want to keep it, if you want to go to an HMO, you can keep it. The bottom line is everybody is guaranteed the coverage under Medicare. That is what is so beautiful about the Gore Democratic plan and so different from what Bush and the Republicans are proposing.

I yield to the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. TURNER. I just want to say when I heard the gentleman from Maine (Mr. ALLEN) talking about the issue that it is so very true that private insurance companies are not the answer, and I think our senior citizens understand that. I think they understand full well that Medicare works, it has served them well, and the seniors that I talked to in August who had received these notices of cancellation, seniors that had signed up for these Medicare+Choice plans simply because they offered them some prescription drug coverage in addition to the regular Medicare coverage, those seniors understand that you cannot count on private insurance, and it is just as the gentleman from Arkansas (Mr. BERRY) said a minute ago, the Republican plan offered by Governor Bush does not assure any senior what it is going to cost them, does not guarantee them what it is going to cover, does not tell them what the deductibles are, and it certainly does not promise them that it is going to be there because, as we have learned, these HMOs can pull out any time they want to. Our plan is understandable. We have already laid out the cost to seniors. It is going to be available to everybody on a volunteer basis. Seniors can get the prescription drug their doctor prescribes. And they are going to know that it will be there, not just today but tomorrow as well.

Now, that is what our seniors need. The choice that Governor Bush was talking about is a choice of confusion. He is saying that private insurance companies are going to be offering all kinds of plans and you can just choose the one you want. The truth is, that is a false promise. It has not worked in Medicare+Choice with over 900,000 seniors in this country receiving a notice that as of December 31 their Medicare+Choice plan is going to be canceled.

Medicare is a good program. It has served us well since 1965 and there is absolutely no reason to abandon it. We need to pass the Democratic plan. It is the plan that seniors can understand and that they need.

Mr. PALLONE. We have about 4 minutes, so I would like to split the time between my colleague from Florida and my colleague from Arkansas.

I will start with my colleague from Florida.

Mrs. THURMAN. As we are in an era of when we are talking about surpluses and times of when things are fairly good, things may not always be this good. One of the things that we have to remember is that it is our job to protect Medicare and the solvency of that trust fund. Quite frankly, one of the things that I see in this debate that gets forgotten is that under Medicare today, we pay for prescription drugs as they are needed in the hospitals. When we bring somebody in to stabilize them, we provide them with those medicines. But when we let them out of the hospital and they walk into that pharmacy and all of a sudden they are told that what they had to have in the hospital now just costs them $400 a month and they cannot pay that and they have to make that decision of what drug they take that month or that week or that day as versus whatever other expenses they might have, we are also costing this system millions of dollars every day because we let them out of the hospital after we have stabilized them and then we, 2 months later, find them back in the same situation as we left them before. And we are thinking to ourselves, we want to make the solvency of the Medicare program, we want to continue the program. The only thing we can do, contrary to whatever anybody else says is, this has got to be a Medicare program. It has got to be done under the Medicare program. It is good for the solvency and it is good for the patient.

I think we really have to take all of these things into account. I would love to talk to my pharmacist, the gentleman from Arkansas (Mr. BERRY), and thank all of us for being here tonight. This is a good debate and it needs to be had in this country.

Mr. PALLONE. I yield to the gentleman from Arkansas.

Mr. BERRY. Like many of you, I know that many of you have held public forums and senior meetings and all of those things over and over again, into the hundreds. I hear a lot of criticism about a lot of things, about the government. We all do. I have never had anyone tell me, ''You ought to do away with Medicare.'' I do not understand. Our seniors like Medicare. It is a good program. It works. It is successful. It is what they need. They just need a prescription drug benefit to go along with it. I just simply do not understand why Governor Bush and the Republicans are so determined to destroy it. Why would they want to do that to our seniors when we know this is the only way we can provide decent health care protection for our senior citizens, and it is absolutely a mystery to me why they would engage in this attempt, this shameful attempt, to destroy Medicare that has been such a wonderful thing, and will continue to be if we add a prescription drug benefit to it.

Mr. PALLONE. Mr. Speaker, I want to thank everyone for participating in this tonight and make the point that this is our first day back in session, but we are going to keep at this. We are going to keep demanding that the Republicans take action and that the Republican leadership allow the Democratic proposal to be considered and that we pass a prescription drug program under Medicare that really is meaningful because that is what the people need. It has to be addressed. It should be addressed between now and when we adjourn, not next year.

DEATH TAX

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. SCARBOROUGH). Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 6, 1999, the gentleman from Colorado (Mr. MCINNIS) is recognized for 60 minutes.

Mr. MCINNIS. Mr. Speaker, good evening colleagues.

I note that I am kind of outnumbered here five to one. The gentlewoman from Florida (Mrs. THURMAN), whom we just heard, said we have had a good debate here. I wish that my colleagues would understand that we have only heard one side of the debate. In fact, what we have heard are five individuals who are highly, in my opinion, speaking the partisan tone and presenting one side of the case.

Now, my remarks tonight really are going to center on the death tax, but I cannot go without at least rebutting some of the comments that were made. I refer to the gentleman from Arkansas (Mr. BERRY), the pharmacist. This is a closest I have ever come, colleagues, to asking that the words be stricken from the RECORD after I listened to the gentleman from Arkansas over here.

This gentleman from Arkansas (Mr. BERRY), the pharmacist, in my opinion, has totally mislead the public when he says that the Republicans or the Democrats or any elected politician wants to do away with Medicare. It is exactly what the gentleman said, that the Republicans want to do away with Medicare.

Now, tell me, colleagues, tell me one elected official on this House floor, Democrat, Republican, eastern, western, northern, southern, show me one elected Congressman that wants to do away with Medicare. That is about the grossest misrepresentation that I have heard on the RECORD on Special Orders.

I want to continue to go on. I mean, the only way that we are going to be able to help the senior citizens of this country and not, by the way, just the senior citizens but a lot of other people who also face high prescription services, is to work as a team, and not to develop highly partisan comments late at night, late into the hour when most of our colleagues are off the floor, not to use the tactics of fear, which seem to be the tactics that some of these previous speakers have used: the senior citizens are going to be trashed, the senior citizens Medicare program is going to be destroyed by the Republicans, all the Republicans care about are the pharmaceuticals.

We can sure tell we are about to come up to a national election, can we not? That is not how we are going to resolve this problem, and you know it is not how we are going to resolve this problem, so do my colleagues that have conveniently just left the House floor.

What team do they want to be on? Do they want to be on a team that really can go out and help people with high prescription medical services or prescriptions?

Mr. PALLONE. Would the gentleman yield?

Mr. MCINNIS. The gentleman had 1 hour totally unrebutted, and I intend to rebut it with the next hour.

Mr. Speaker, I have control of the floor. I have control of the House.

Mrs. THURMAN. The gentleman does not want to debate.

Mr. MCINNIS. Mr. Speaker, I say to the gentlewoman I love to have a debate that is not one sided. That is why I am taking time away from the death tax, which I intend to talk about.

Mr. PALLONE. Mr. Speaker, does the gentleman from Colorado want to hear from us? I am just asking.

SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Colorado has the hour.

Mr. MCINNIS. Mr. Speaker, the key here is my colleagues can come across the party aisle, Democrats and Republicans come across the party aisle, George W. Bush ought not to be criticized in the late hour of the House of Representatives by a very partisan team who are out strictly to destroy any kind of proposal that George W. Bush comes up with. Now look, my colleagues may not agree with everything that George W. Bush says, but is the whole concept, every line of it intended to destroy Medicare? Of course it is not. It is just the same as GORE and Clinton, they have come up with some ideas. But should my colleagues just in blank say because it was GORE or because it was Clinton that it ought to be destroyed? No.

I think my colleagues owe it to the people that we are elected to represent, to go on a very constructive fashion, as I intend to do here in a few minutes talking about the death tax and talk about the pluses and the minuses, talk about the details of it, talk about the fine print.

I saw an excellent article today, I pulled it out of the newspaper, The Washington Post, it says 12 questions to ask about the proposals of AL GORE. ''If the projected budget surpluses on which you are basing your spending plans do not materialize or come up short, which promises will you put on hold?

The reason I bring these questions up to my colleagues on the Democratic side is, look, I realize that it is an election season, it is the time for promises. It is almost if you are a teacher telling all your kids whatever wishes you want to come true, I will grant them, just as long as I get my contract renewed.

Look, somewhere you are going to have to face these voters and you are going to have to tell them how you are going to pay for this. If you want to talk about socialized medicine, talk about it as socialized medicine, be upfront with our constituents. They are not dummies. In fact, they elected us to come back up here so we will speak frankly to them, so that we will talk to them. This is what it is going to cost you.

Take a look at your tallies. Just in today's Washington Post, GORE promises another $300 billion, the Medicare program, the pharmaceutical program. Some of these are needs that we have to address. But as we begin to address them and as we begin to critique other people's programs, we ought to keep a little cost tally on the right-hand side to see if we can afford them.

It is kind of like going to the car dealership and saying all right I promised my son this car and I promised my daughter this car, my other daughter this car, my other son this car and my wife promised me this car, and I promised her that car. At some point the salesman is going to stop and say, Congressman MCINNIS, can you afford what you are promising all of this family? Are you really serious? Are you really going to deliver the money to provide these cars for your four, five children and your wife and your wife for you, or are you just talking? Are you just trying to get me excited as a salesman?

I am afraid that is what the previous hour just did. It is an effort to get people excited about this upcoming election by giving them, in my opinion, distorted and inaccurate information. That is pretty strong terminology, but do you think that the gentleman who is a pharmacist, the gentleman from Arkansas (Mr. BERRY), the Congressman here, can fairly stand up in front of my colleagues and say that George W. Bush's plan and the Republican plan their whole intent is to destroy Medicare? Give me a break.

As I said earlier, there is nobody on this floor, nobody in an elected office, not a county commissioner, not a city councilman, not a governor, not anywhere in the country that wants to destroy Medicare; and using that kind of fear tactic on our senior citizens is unjustified.

Constructive criticism is welcome. That is exactly what this House floor is for, constructive criticism. But to come up here and patently mislead, in my opinion, is very unfortunate, and that is really frankly what gives people kind of a bad taste in their mouth about politics in this country.

Let me move on to something which I intended to speak about the entire time. My wife and I have faced it, many of our young people in this country, the young people, I am talking about the people in their 20s, the people that are going to college for an education, the young people of our country that have dreams, I am talking about the next generation in their mid-40s such as myself. That generation has been able to realize a part of their dreams, and then I am talking about the generation ahead of me that have realized their dreams, but their biggest dream is to see what they can do for the generation that is behind them or the generations that are behind them.

I cannot think of a more fundamental question in front of all of us to decide whose team you are on then to vote tomorrow. The vote we have on this House floor tomorrow is a vote to override the Presidential veto on our bill that passed this House. By the way, I think it was 65 Democrats. So some of the Democrats, not the leadership, but some of the mainstream Democrats more conservative Democrats crossed the party aisle and voted to eliminate the death tax.

The President, by the way, this year in his budget did not call for elimination of the death tax, did not call for the status quo of the death tax, in other words, keep the death tax absolutely the same. Instead, the President this year in his budget which was submitted to this Congress actually increases the death tax by $9.5 billion. Again, the President does not eliminate the death tax. The President does not keep the death tax neutral. The President increases the tax by $9.5 billion. No wonder he vetoed this House of Representatives' and the U.S. Senate's proposal to eliminate the death tax.

Tomorrow, every one of us is going to have an opportunity to cast our vote on that tally board up there as to whether or not we think fundamentally the death tax is a fair tax to have in this system.

Now, I have heard on the August recess, I heard some of the rhetoric coming out to justify a death tax in this country: Well, it is only for the wealthy; well, it is only just for a few people in this country. Well, it is selfish for you to think of doing away with the death tax. Every one of those defenses, every one of those items of rhetoric avoids the basic question, and the basic question is should a government based, as a democratic government of the United States is based, should it have a tax based simply on the event of a death?

It is not based on what you have earned. It is not an income tax. It is not based on a Social Security-type of tax. It is not based on a you-sell-someland-for-a-huge-profit, a capital-gains type of tax. This tax is based strictly on the event of your death; that is the only justification for that tax. You died, the Government gets to tax you.

By the way, take a look at how this goes. Let us give you an idea who qualifies for this. Let us say you are a rancher or a farmer, and I was appalled, by the way, when I was driving in a car in my district out there in Colorado listening to the newscast about President Clinton vetoing this death tax, and I was appalled to hear some professor, I do not know where he came from, but some professor say, well, there has never been a family farm in America lost because of the death tax.

I about drove off the road. I feel like getting that person, that professor, getting him out of the ivory tower, grabbing him by his necktie and say why could you not come out to the rural parts of this country and see what this death tax does to us. Take a look at the impacts to the community and take a look at the impacts generation after generation.

You know what it takes to qualify? Let us say a young person, they are 20 years old, 25 years old, they just get out of college or they just get out of some type of technical school and they want to start a construction company; and let us say they buy on credit, they buy a truck, they buy a bulldozer, they buy a backhoe and maybe they buy some other type of equipment, say a cable layer or maybe a smaller type of piece of equipment. The day they pay those pieces of equipment off, more likely than not, they will be in that bracket that the President calls the special privileged.

How about for farming? If you own a tractor, a combine and a few cows and your pickup truck, watch out, because you are now in the category of what the President and the Secretary of Treasury called the elite few, only those 2 percent. Not only that, as I started to point out earlier, let us say that you have an estate that is hit by the death tax, and you pay the taxes on that. So you pay them here. Let us say your father or your grandfather paid for that in 1970, then that same piece of property, although it has already been taxed, and by the way, almost all of the death tax is a tax on property that has already been taxed. You already paid income tax on it. You already paid capital gains on it. You already paid any other type of tax, with the exception of some IRAs.

What happens here? Here is property that is already taxed. It gets taxed when your grandfather died. Your grandfather, let us say, was fortunate enough to be able to pass some of it on to your father, and when your father dies, this same property that was already taxed 30 years ago gets taxed again, generation after generation. In other words, every generation that comes on to the farm, one of their highest priorities is not how do you grow better potatoes, how do we get more production out of our cattle, how do we grow better wheat, how do we do this or do that better?

The first question of this generation of young people that want to go into small business or want to go into a farming operations their first question is, Gosh, how do I make enough money to pay for the day when mom or dad die and I have to pay for the estate tax or I get kicked off the farm?

That is the wrong place. The United States of America should not be the country where the first question you ask is how do I pay the government taxes for the event of death? In our country, the reason we are such a great country is because the first question in history we have always asked is how can we do it better? What can we do to increase proficiency on this farm or proficiency in this small business?

Well, tomorrow we are going to get a chance, and the American public, colleagues, are going to see where you are, which side of the team you are on. Either you want a death tax, either you support the government being able to go to every citizen in this country who has been successful and qualifies. What you are supporting tomorrow if you do not vote to override Clinton, in other words if you go along with Clinton, what you are supporting is a tax on the event of death that is punitive.

Those of us, and I stand here very proudly to tell you I am going to be one of the first votes to cast an override on the presidential veto, those of us, and I am confident we will pass it out of here, with Democrats across the party aisle, those of us who vote to eliminate the death tax stand on the other side of the team.

I have listened to some arguments, some other rhetoric that has come up, but before I get into that, let me point out something else. The rhetoric has as its base a focus on the 2 or 3 or 4 or 5 or 6 percent of the people impacted by the estate tax. Now, remember the death tax, and I should correctly call it the death tax, not estate tax, the death tax, got its beginnings in the early 1900s. It was a way to go get the robber barons, to go after who they alleged to be the robber barons, to go after the Carnegies, to go after the Rockefellers, to go after those type of families. That is why that tax was devised. Hey, let us get them on their death. Let us get that money back into the hands of the people.

Let me tell you what happens to a small community, and I will give you an example. Take a small community in any State. I live in Colorado, so take a small community in the Third Congressional District of the State of Colorado. Let us say that we have an individual there who is a young person in their twenties, and I know many of them, and so do you, colleagues, who had big dreams. As they worked through life, through a lot of hard work, through a lot of risk by the way, a lot of risk, they took risks, through a lot of risks they built a successful business in this small town. By the way, my story is based on facts. It happened in a small community in Southwestern Colorado.

Then they are successful in this business, and, unfortunately, they meet an untimely death, or even if they died in the normal course of things. What happens to the risk and to the business that they built up in that small community?

Here is what happens. If you have a business in a community, a successful individual, in this particular case that I am thinking of it was a man and wife team, they own a construction company, they built it up from scratch. They started out, they worked 16 hour days for most of their life. Up until the day probably about 3 weeks before his death, he was going to the office to work, and what happened is while they were successful in this community, and they had many years of success, they provided funding for the local church, 80 percent of the budget. They provided the majority of funding for things like charities. They provided more jobs than any other employer in town. They provided more opportunity in this small community from an economic standpoint than any other employer in town.

Well, what happened upon their death? What happened upon their death was no more support in the local community. Instead, what happens with the death tax is that success of that individual, sure, that individual was wealthy by most of our standards, but what happens is they take the money from that individual's estate, they do not leave it in the community and say, look, we are going to require that the estate continue to distribute into this community, the monies to the local church or to the local United Way. No.

What happens is the government takes the money and transfers it out of your community, any community USA, takes it out of your community and transfers it to Washington, DC, where a government bureaucracy takes those dollars and redistributes those dollars throughout the bureaucracy.

The money that the government takes in these death tax cases does not stay in your local community. That is what rubs me wrong. Look, I do not think it is right that you go after somebody because they have been successful and they have made some money. I mean, that is the American way. But I have got a lot more sympathy for the community, which gets that money sucked out of their community, and that money is transferred to Washington, DC. That is where it is unfair.

I have gotten a number of different letters and correspondence. I want to give you some real live examples.

Let me clarify a couple of things first. First of all, as I said earlier at the beginning of my comments, my wife and I, our big dream in life, and my wife's name is Lori, our big dream in life was not have a big house, not to have a big boat, although we would like to have those things. But the fact is we have to list priorities. We did not spend a lot of money on other things like recreational equipment and things, and have no objection to those who do. But our focus was we really wanted to put money away so that our kids would at least get a chance at maybe owning a house some day.

We are not wealthy. My wife and I do not come from a lot of wealth. But, especially early in our marriage, we put money aside. Every time we got a spare penny, we did not put it in a payment for a new car, we did not remodel our house, we put our money in investments so that some day our children when they got married and were starting their young families could maybe have a down payment or maybe own a home. That was our dream.

You know what, I do not think it is a unique dream. I do not think it is a dream just limited to my wife and I. I think it is a dream that most of us on this House floor and most of the people that we represent also dream of, what can we do for our kids?

I know of no higher priority for a family than their children, and one of the focuses of planning for the future of your children is economic, and one of the economic factors is you want to try and give them some kind of opportunity, to either take over the family farm, or get a start in the family business, or, as in my wife and my case, because we do not own a business, to at least have a little money for a down payment on a home.

That is the dream that can be trashed by your own government. Who would have ever imagined our forefathers when they wrote that Constitution and when they talked about taxes in that Constitution, that the government would tax the event of death, and, furthermore, they would take that tax from the local community whereupon the death occurred and the person resided and transfer it to the Nation's Capital to feed a very, very hungry bureaucracy?

Now, do not be kidded when people tell you, well, this is one of the tax cuts, those big tax cuts, and we just cannot afford tax cuts right now. Well, that is an argument for another day. But the reality of it is the death tax generates very little tax income revenue for this country, and you know it and I know it.

By the time you are done administering it, and by the way, the wealthiest families, including I would guess the people in the administration, once the administration's job is over in January, I would guess that most of those, including the Secretary of Treasury and the President himself, will go on to very successful and lucrative business careers, and I will bet you money, I will bet the finest dinner in Washington to anyone in here, that in a couple of years the President and the Secretary of Treasury and all the other members of his administration who are voting to keep this death tax in place will have gone out and secured the services of professional tax attorneys and CPAs and trust attorneys so they can avoid or minimize any kind of payment that they themselves say is a justified death tax.

This is nothing but a punishment. This tax is a punishment for success in our country. How can you look at our young people and say we want you to be successful, we want you to work hard, and part of your responsibility, although it seems to be inherent and human nature, part of your responsibility is to provide for your children; but, by the way, if you are too successful, or if you provide for your children a little too much, like giving them an opportunity to come on the family farm, we will punish you and we will destroy you, if that is what is necessary, to take the money that we figure you owe the government, because you died and we are going to transfer that money out to Washington, DC.

Now, you may think that I am just up here talking about hypothetical situations. The fact is I am not. I am going to spend the next few minutes giving you some real live stories.

Headline, Daily Sentinel, great newspaper, Grand Junction, Colorado. ''Owner sells Brookhart's in Grand Junction and in Montrose to a company in Dallas. The pressure of estate taxes,'' death taxes, ''has forced the owner of Brookhart's Building Centers in Mason and Montrose Counties to sell to a Dallas lumber company, a Brookhart's official said today. Brookhart's owner of Colorado Springs said it is one of the hardest decisions his family has made in 52 years of business. Watts said the current Federal estate taxes forced his father to make this sale. In order to protect our family, in order to protect our current employees, from a forced liquidation upon the death of my father or my mother, we felt the best thing would be now to sell this company.''

This letter, dated August 28, 2000, ''My grandparents purchased land on the east side of Lake Washington across from Seattle in 1932. People thought they were crazy. It was a very long trip to anywhere, but they were school teachers, just back from helping build an orphanage in Alaska, and they liked the more rural lifestyle along the waterfront next to the duck hunters' cabin.

''They salvaged old bricks from a road that was being torn up, they chipped off the mortar and they built themselves a home. A few years ago grandma died and left the house and the land and some stocks and bonds to my dad, who was 68 years old at the time. It was quite a windfall, because that lakeside lot is now worth more than $1 million, even though the house is very old and in need of new basic plumbing, wiring, et cetera.

''My dad and his wife plan to live there. Times have been tough and they have no home of their own. The question became one of economics: Would there be enough inheritance to pay the estate or the death tax bought selling that lot that had been in the family, that they had started from scratch?''

Just like many young couples today. This letter reflects 40 years from now if we have this death tax in place what a lot of our young people today that are setting out to have their dreams, and this same kind of letter will apply to those people if we do not do something about it.

''Good news. They got to keep the house. Now it is my worry. Some day I will inherit my grandparents' homestead, but I cannot imagine how we will be able to keep it in the family if we have to pay death taxes. The burden of this tax would force us to sell. Sure, we would be wealthy if we decided to sell the old house to condominium developers, but we would be more interested in preserving the place of family picnics, swims on hot summer days, and green beans fresh from the garden.

''Our family is not amongst the rich. We are middle class Americans, and we are proud of it. We believe in family heritage and in our country. But why would our country want to take away the heritage that my grandparents built one brick at a time?''

Be a hero do it for the country. Vote to override that veto that we vote on tomorrow.

Let me mention one other thing. In Colorado, I am very proud of the State of Colorado. Obviously I am exceedingly proud of my district, the Third Congressional District. Basically the Third Congressional District covers almost all of the mountains in Colorado. It is a district geographically that is larger than the State of Florida, and we have lots of discovery in that area. A lot of people have discovered how beautiful Colorado is. So we have a lot of people that are moving into our State. We have a lot of threat to open space, open space we never thought would be threatened by development of condominiums and so on.

Do you know what is forcing a lot of that development, to those of you tomorrow who are going to support the President in keeping the death tax and imposing the death tax, and that is what your vote tomorrow will be, you will be imposing the death tax on the American people? You are directly responsible, in my opinion, for the development of much open space in Colorado, because those family farms and ranches cannot afford to keep that open space open if in fact they get hit with the death tax.

They have to sell it, and they are smart to sell it as soon as they can to try to avoid and minimize this death tax.

So for our environment, for our environment this death tax is damaging, and this leads me to other letters.

My name, and I will leave that out. ''My family lives in a central part of Idaho. Our family's cattle ranch is 45 miles from Sun Valley. The ranch consists of 2,600 deeded acres, 700 head of cattle. My youngest brother Ross lives with and manages the ranch with my mother.

''Although I am still involved in the ranch, my husband and I also operate a small business in Ketchum. My two brothers, my sister, and I all grew up working alongside my father, my mother, and my grandfather. We worked weekends, we worked holidays, and we worked summer breaks. We moved cattle, we rode the range, and we fixed the fences.

''We didn't have a lot of material things. We didn't have a lot of material things, but we had our family. We had our land and we had our lifestyle.

''On October 5, 1993, my father was accidentally killed when his clothing got caught in farm machinery. He was 71 and he was very healthy. He worked from dawn to dusk, and he loved the land, and he loved his family. We were always a very close-knit family. The hub of our family was my father and the ranch.

''Even though my brother, my sister, and I don't live there anymore, we all go home, along with the grandchildren, to help with the seasonal work. My daughter and I take as much time off in the summer as we can and we work at our summer cow camp moving cattle. My mother puts on a lot of church and community picnics and barbecues down by the swimming hole.

''Every June our family enters the local parade with a float representing our ranch.'' That shows a lot of pride. ''All of the other ranchers and families in the Valley do the same exact thing. Last year, the theme for the parade was the heritage ranching, mining, and logging.

''My father's death was the most devastating event that any of us could have ever gone through. The second most devastating event was sitting down with the attorney after his death. I will never forget those attorney's words, and I quote, 'There is no way you can keep this place, absolutely no way.' Still in shock from the accident, I said, 'How can this be? We own this land. We have no debt on the land. We have just lost my father, and now we are going to lose our ranch, too?' ''

Our attorney proceeded to pencil out the death taxes that would be due after my mother's death, and we all sat in total shock. It had taken my grandfather and my father their entire lifetimes to build up the ranch and now we can't continue on, and the grandchildren will not have the land and the rich heritage that it provides.

''It has been 3½ years since my father's accident. We still don't know what we are going to do. We only know we will not be able to keep the ranch unless something is done with the estate tax.

''The same scenario is happening to many ranchers in our valley. Eighty percent of the ranches have been owned by the same families for two or three generations. The value of the land on these ranches has risen dramatically in the last 5 years. All of these ranchers live on modest incomes, and most of them can barely educate their children off those incomes. I am certain none of them will be able to pay the death tax.''

At the same time while I am reading this letter, keep in mind that the Treasury, the Secretary of Treasury, calls it an act of selfishness to do away with this death tax. The President, the administration, this year proposed not only not doing away with it, as I mentioned earlier, not keeping it the same, but increasing it $9 billion.

''This community will not be able to survive without the ranching community that has made it. What is happening is these ranches are being bought by wealthy absentee owners who do not run cattle and who fly in only once or twice a year. It has already happened to two neighboring ranches. Both of the owners, both second generations, were killed in accidents. Their families could not pay the death taxes and sold the ranches to wealthy Southern Californians.

''I have heard it said before that the death tax exists to redistribute wealth, to take from the rich, presumably to benefit others less fortunate. Let me tell you, from where I stand now I know that this tax accomplishes exactly the opposite. For my family, the tax means we will not be able to continue running the ranch that has been our heritage for 60 years.

''This Congress says it is pro-family. However, I know from personal experience that the current death tax is anti-family. The death tax will force us to sell the ranch to a wealthy absentee owner who is unlikely to run cattle or keep the workers employed, or contribute to the community in a way such as my mother and my father and my grandfather have done.

''Surely if Congress does not provide relief from this tax many other families will suffer a similar fate. Ultimately, I wonder if towns like Mackee as we know it today will continue to exist. I urge you to ask yourselves,'' and I think this is a very pertinent paragraph, ''I urge you to ask yourselves, why does this tax exist? Is it worth the great harm it has caused to my family and many others like us? If it is not worth the harm, then the tax shouldn't exist. I hope you will do everything in your power to eliminate the Federal death tax.''

I have got example after example. I have a couple more here I want to talk to the Members about. But I think the message is clear: What are we doing here in America taxing death? Why do we look at death as a taxable event?

The Democrat leadership justifies this tax by saying, We are only going after the wealthy. How can they justify going after anybody based on the fact of an untimely death?

I should note how interesting it is. It is kind of like the people here on this floor who talk about public schools and how good public schools are, and oppose any kind of choice. But my understanding is there is not one of us on this House floor, there is not one of us on this House floor who send their kids to public schools in Washington, D.C. They are all in private schools or other schools, but not the public schools in Washington, D.C.

It seems somewhat hypocritical. The same thing here. There are a lot of people who support the death tax because they figured out a way around it, but the fundamental question comes back, and I think it is presented by these letters, what right do we have as Congressmen of the United States, what right does the government have to go upon its citizens and tax them because one of the citizens has died, and to tear apart family farms and ranches?

That professor from that ivory tower that commented and supported President Clinton's veto of the death tax, who said there has never been a family farm in America that has been liquidated or destroyed by the death tax, that person was born with blinders on.

I would be happy, and in fact, I would give that professor frequent flier miles to fly to Colorado and let us go visit these. Let us go up to Idaho, sit down and talk with that family, Mr. Professor. Mr. President, let us get on Air Force One. He took it to Africa, why does he not take it to Idaho? Why does he not go talk to some of these people and ask them what the death tax is doing to their families, and the heritage of their families?

The President can use that Air Force one for a little domestic travel. Give it a try. It is very moving.

Here is another one, Derrick Roberts. This was a letter to the editor we got.

''My family has ranched in northern Colorado for 125 years. My sons are the sixth generation, the sixth generation to work this land. We want to continue, but the IRS is forcing almost all ranchers and many farmers out of business.

''The problem is death taxes. The demand for our land is very high, and 35-acre ranches are selling in this area for as high as 4,500 an acre. We have 20,000 acres. We want to keep it as open space, but the U.S. Government is making it impossible because we have to pay a 55 percent tax on the valuation of this acreage when my parents pass on.

''Ranchers are barely scraping by these days. If we were willing to develop homesites, we could stop the mining, but since we want to save the ranch, we are in trouble. The family has been able to scrape up the death taxes as each generation has died up to now.'' That was my earlier example. ''This time, however, I think we are done for. Our only other option is to give the ranch to a nonprofit organization, and they all want it, but they won't guarantee they will not develop it, either.

My dad is 90, so we don't have a lot of time left to decide. We are one of only two or three ranchers left around here. Our ranches have been subdivided. One of the last to go was a family that had been there as long as ours. When the old folks died, the kids borrowed money to pay the death taxes. Soon they had to start selling cattle to pay the interest. When they ran out of cattle their 18,000 to 20,000 acre place was foreclosed on and is now being developed. The family now lives on in a trailer in town and the father works as a highway flagman.

''If you want to stop sprawl, you had better ask the U.S. Government to get off the backs of family farms and ranches.''

Mr. Speaker, Ron Edwards. ''I am writing to bring to your attention an issue of the utmost importance to me,'' which was the elimination of the death tax. ''I urge you to support and pass death tax repeal legislation this year.'' Well, Ron, we did it. We passed it, by the way, in the House chambers with bipartisan support. We had 65 Democrats join us. I hope tomorrow on this Republican legislation we have 65 Democrats that come across the aisle and join us again to override the veto. So we have passed legislation, but the President vetoed it.

''Family-owned businesses need relief from death taxes now. We are celebrating 66 years in business. My grandfather, Vic Edward, started with a fruit and vegetable stand in 1933 at our current location, east of Fort Morgan. The business grew into a grocery store and a lawn and garden center. My father, Vic Edward, is 80 years old and in very poor health.

''No business can remain competitive in a tax regime that imposes death taxes as high as 55 percent. Our death taxes should encourage rather than discourage the perpetuation of these businesses.''

Of all the letters, Mr. Speaker, that I have read on this issue, and obviously it is a big issue to me and I hope it is a big issue to Members, I cannot think of one sentence that is more pertinent and more outstanding than the sentence I just gave.

Let me repeat that sentence again: ''Our tax laws should encourage rather than discourage the perpetuation of these businesses.'' In other words, the government should go to these farmers, should go to the young people that are starting out with their dreams, and say, we want to encourage family business to go from one generation to the next generation.

We can look at a lot of countries in this world. One of the bonds to strong families is the fact that homes and farms and small businesses have gone from one generation to the next generation to the next generation. In these countries the government encourages, not discourages, as they do in the United States, but encourages the passing from generation to generation of these family businesses.

''Being a member of the House Committee on Ways and Means, I am sure you already know the urgency of the death tax repeal. The economics of the estate tax are not good at all. Family-owned businesses and their employees will continue to suffer until this unfair, unproductive, and uneconomic death tax is abolished.

''My wife, Vicky, and I are very active, and look forward to working with you and your staff to enact some commonsense legislation to preserve and promote'', to preserve and promote, ''our Nation's family-owned enterprises.''

This is a story about a ranch in Aspen, Colorado. We all know about Aspen, which is in my district. I have all the mountain resorts in Colorado. I have Aspen, Telluride, Vail, Beaver Creek. I grew up there. My family has been in Colorado for many generations.

I remember going into Aspen when it was nothing but a coal mining town. One could buy a lot for $600. I remember stopping in the Vail Valley and all there was was a ranch house.

What has happened is there were a lot of family farms and ranches. Because of the popularity of these communities, those families, those what we call basic salt of the earth kind of people, are seeing that their dreams of passing on their hard work to the next generation are being dashed by the tax policies of this country.

By the way, not a lot of countries in the world exercise this type of tax policy, but the United States does.

In Aspen, there are a lot of tales to be told with the conversion of former ranches into luxury homes or golf courses throughout this valley. Sometimes it was a simple financial decision, a choice to take advantage of soaring development values in the face of plummeting cattle prices. But for other families, the passing of a parent meant the passing of a life-style.

We have been around for a long time. The Maurin family's roots are deep in Long Capital Creek Road in Old Snowmass. For nearly a century, heritage and hard work, heritage and hard work for nearly a century were enough to sustain those that lived on that 300,000 acre stretch of land, but it all changed in 1976.

Until Dwight's father's death, each generation presided over a working cattle ranch that was both the lifeblood and livelihood of our clan. His later years were lean years for Dwight's father, but the fate of the ranch was not at risk until the Internal Revenue Service showed up.

The tax bill on this ranch was to $750,000, and what it took to pay the bill was to cut the ranch in half. No longer could the Maurin cattle migrate in winter months. It would be 10 years after cutting the ranch in half and selling off half of it, it would be 10 years of installments before the death tax could be paid.

What those taxes took was something very vital, the ability of our family to support the families by working the land that has so long been theirs. Maurin now works full time as a mechanic for the Roaring Fork School District, then helps with the ranch when he gets home at night. He does not mind the long hours he puts in.

What does get under his skin is the memory of an IRS agent overseeing his father's taxes either did not recognize that devastation was about to occur or did not care. It was just pay us, or we will seize everything. If anything is left over, we will keep it. If you cannot make ends meet on what is left, you can find work elsewhere.

We have no intention of selling the remaining 640 acres, but what happens to our daughters when we die? What choice will they have with only half of the land to graze. The ranch itself is only making enough to cover its operating costs and its annual property taxes.

It is Maurin's day job at the school district that pays the doctor bills, the car insurance, the grocery bills, and everything else. There is always hope that things will change before our daughters need to make a decision about the ranch.

But I wonder if people really think about the permanent changes that take place when a ranch is sold. It is not just a loss to the family, it ripples much wider. There are movements in the right direction, but are they moving quickly enough? Because once it is sold to developers this ranch is gone forever.

Real quickly, ''I Am a Businessman''. So I am telling my colleagues this is not just families, farms and ranches.

I am a businessman. My business is all about what a small business is. I have 42 people employed, and we are in our second generation. I am all too familiar with the death tax, as my father passed away 2 years ago. My mother, my sister and I have been through the experience of paying estate taxes at 50 percent-plus rate. Let me explain how we were fortunate enough to get into this bracket.

My father left school after the 8th grade in 1938 and did odd jobs until serving for 3 years in World War II. Afterward, he purchased a small diner and built a 12-unit motel in a small town in Pennsylvania. He and mom worked 16 hours a day 7 days a week for 12 years before migrating to the restaurant supply business. That was better business. But it was not an easy task either.

I can remember him saying for many years that he hoped Monday's mail would have enough money to cover the payroll costs he had written on the previous Friday.

You can ask in this country, why would anybody start a business? There are obviously still Americans that are willing to risk everything to be in control of their lives. The satisfaction of proving that you can do better is still a motivator in our country. The key word is ''risk''. People are willing to take this risk, provide the jobs and tax base that makes this country grow.

Only by taxes from those who take risk does the government even exist. This is why when I see our Secretary of Treasury write about the repeal of the estate tax I can become exorcised. He seems to think that this money is the Treasury's money to dispense as it pleases.

Maybe it appears to be a simple view of fairness and equity if you spent your life in academia and never had to worry about making a payroll. But I resent like hell being told that I am selfish to want to keep what I and my family have earned and already paid taxes on.

In effect, the government is saying to businessmen, and I am skipping, by the way, some paragraphs, in effect, the government is saying to businessmen, since you worked harder and longer and were more successful, we will use your estate to pay for programs which we take political credit.

The original purpose of this death tax was to catch a handful of robber barons from the early industrial America. Now it reaches into the most productive parts of America. Is not the fact that 5 percent of our citizens now pay 50 percent of the tax bill evidence that there is more than enough progresstivity in the Tax Code.

This was an article written in the Washington Post dated Friday, July 14th, 2000. I have other cases, more samples.

The key is this, Mr. Speaker, tomorrow we face on this floor a very significant vote. The President of the United States of America has made a decision that the death tax in this country should stand. The President of the United States of America has submitted to the U.S. House of Representatives in his budget a proposal, not only to let the death tax stand, but to increase it by $9.5 billion.

The President of this country has vetoed a bipartisan bill. In other words, Republicans and Democrats sent to the President a piece of legislation saying, Mr. President, enough is enough. Get rid of this death tax. It fundamentally will not alter the revenues to this country. It is not a big revenue producer. Get rid of it. The President of the United States vetoed that bill, and tomorrow the President of the United States sends up to us on this House floor his veto message, and we have the opportunity to override it.

I am confident that we in these chambers and that the Democrats will come across the aisle and that, as a team, we will stand up and be counted and say that the death tax is not justified in this country, that the role of our government should be to encourage, not discourage the passing of business or property from one generation to the next generation.

Tomorrow we will stand, and we will take that vote. I am not sure how the result is going to be in the Senate, but I hope they vote to override it, too.

During my entire term in Congress, I cannot think of something that would be more pro family, that would help preserve more open space, that just out of fundamental fairness would go back to a fair and equitable tax scheme than doing away with the death tax.

Tomorrow it is on our shoulders. No way out. If one is going to be here to vote, one is going to have to post one's vote. Do not give one's constituents some magic tale about why one voted to keep the death tax in place. One is either for elimination of it or one is not.

Tomorrow my colleagues are going to make that decision. I hope for the sake of future Americans, I hope for the sake of the young people in their mid twenties that want to make their dreams come true, for the couples like my wife and I who want to make our dreams come true and for my parents who want to pass their dreams on to the next generation, I hope for the sake of those people, for my colleagues' constituents, that my colleagues stand tall against the President and vote to override his veto.

Congressional Record

PROCEEDINGS AND DEBATES OF THE 106th CONGRESS, SECOND SESSION

Vol. 146 WASHINGTON, WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 6, 2000 No. 102

Senate

The Senate met at 9:30 a.m. and was called to order by the President pro tempore (Mr. THURMOND).

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Dr. Lloyd John Ogilvie, offered the following prayer:

Almighty God, we commit this day to You. By Your grace, You have brought us to the beginning of another day. There is so much to do today: votes to cast, speeches to give, and loose ends to be tied. In the rush of things, it is so easy to live with flat ''horizontalism,'' dependent only on our own strength and focused on what others can do for us or with us. Today, we lift up our eyes to behold Your glory, our hearts to be filled with Your love, joy, and peace, and our bodies to be replenished.

Fill the wells of our souls with Your strength and our intellects with fresh inspiration. We know that trying to work for You will wear us out, but allowing You to work through us will keep us fit and vital.

Now, here are our minds, enlighten them; here are our souls, empower them; here are our wills, quicken them; here are our bodies, infuse them with energy. You are our Lord and Saviour. Amen.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The Honorable WAYNE ALLARD, a Senator from the State of Colorado, led the Pledge of Allegiance, as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

RECOGNITION OF THE ACTING MAJORITY LEADER

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The able Senator from Colorado is recognized.

SCHEDULE

Mr. ALLARD. Mr. President, today the Senate will resume postcloture debate on the motion to proceed to the China PNTR legislation. It is hoped an agreement can be reached to begin debate on the substance of the bill during today's session of the Senate. The Senate will also continue debate on the energy and water appropriations bill during this evening's session. The Schumer amendment regarding an energy commission is the pending amendment.

By previous consent, during today's consideration of the energy and water appropriations bill, Senator DASCHLE, or his designee, will be recognized to offer a motion to strike the language relating to the Missouri River. There will be up to 3 hours of debate on the amendment prior to a vote in relation to the motion; therefore, votes could occur into the evening.

I thank my colleagues for their attention.

RESERVATION OF LEADER TIME

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. ALLARD). Under the previous order, leadership time is reserved.

TO AUTHORIZE EXTENSION OF NONDISCRIMINATORY TREATMENT TO THE PEOPLE'S REPUBLIC OF CHINA—MOTION TO PROCEED

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Senate now resumes postcloture debate on H.R. 4444, which the clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

A motion to proceed to the bill (H.R. 4444) to authorize extension of nondiscriminatory treatment (normal trade relations treatment) to the People's Republic of China, and to establish a framework for relations with the United States and the People's Republic of China.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Montana.

Mr. BAUCUS. I yield to my friend from Minnesota for purposes of making a unanimous consent request.

Mr. WELLSTONE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent I be allowed to follow the Senator from Montana in this debate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Montana.

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, as we begin the debate about whether to grant China Permanent Normal Trade Relations status, PNTR, we need to remind ourselves what the Senate vote is all about and what it is not about.

We are voting on whether American companies, American farmers, American workers, and American consumers will be able to take advantage of the new market opportunities afforded by changes that China will make over the next 5 years once it becomes a member of the World Trade Organization, the WTO. If we grant PNTR, China will have to give Americans all the benefits that we, and other WTO members, successfully negotiated after an arduous 13 years. If we fail to grant China PNTR status, then our Japanese and European competitors will be able to do business in China in ways that will be unavailable to us and at the expense of our exporters, our farmers, our manufacturers, our financial service companies, our Internet companies.

During the Senate debate this month, we will hear a lot about other issues, with Senators offering a plethora of amendments. The list will probably include human rights, worker rights, religious freedom, prison labor, Taiwan security, arms proliferation, and export of American jobs, among others.

Most, if not all, of these subjects are important. They should be of concern to the United States Senate, and to all Americans. A number of issues that go beyond the strict granting of PNTR to China, such as human rights, monitoring and enforcement of Chinese commitments at the WTO, promotion of the rule of law, and Taiwan's accession to the WTO, are included in the bill we are considering. Other issues, such as proliferation and Taiwan security, are best dealt with apart from this legislation.

I share many of the concerns that some of my Senate colleagues will express over the coming days. But we are not voting on whether China is our friend. We are not voting about whether China should be an ally of the United States. And we are not voting about whether China should be a democracy or not.

To repeat, we are voting about whether American workers, farmers, and businesses will benefit from a decade-long negotiation, or whether we will allow our competitors in Japan and Europe to benefit while Americans do not.

That said, there are also broader implications involved in the Senate vote on PNTR. Let me mention a few.

First, a rejection of PNTR will be seen by China as an American policy decision to isolate them, to impair their growth and development, and to prevent China from emerging as a great regional power. That is how they will see it. Our intention should be to incorporate China into the global trading system, to get them to follow the same rules that we all use in international trade, and to make them accountable to an international institution for their trade policies and trade actions. The more China is integrated into the global system, the more responsibly they will act. It is that simple.

Second, a rejection of PNTR will likely lead to an indefinite delay in Taiwan's accession to the WTO. On the other hand, passage of PNTR will result in Taiwan's accession. What will happen after both China and Taiwan accede to—that is, are members of—the WTO?

They will participate together, along with all other WTO members, in meetings ranging from detailed technical sessions to Ministerials. There will be countless opportunities for interaction. Under the WTO's most-favored-nation rule, they will have to provide each other the same benefits that they grant to other members.

Taiwan's current policy limiting direct transportation, communication, and investment with the mainland will likely be found to violate WTO rules. Both will be able to use the WTO dispute settlement mechanism against the other. And WTO-induced liberalization, in both Taiwan and the PRC, will increase and deepen ties between them in trade, investment, technology, transportation, information, communications, and travel. It will promote stability across the Taiwan Strait.

Third, consider Chinese behavior once it joins the WTO. We should not expect to see changes overnight; nobody does. Those people in business and government fighting to maintain their vested interests in the status quo will not disappear. The reformers will be strengthened, but they will still be under constant attack as the battle between the forces of reform and the forces of reaction continues. But it is certainly a vital interest of the United States to do everything we can to support those who favor reform over totalitarianism, to support those who favor private enterprise over state-owned enterprises, to support those who favor incorporating China into the global trading community over autarky.

We need to engage China to promote responsible behavior internally and externally, to encourage them to play by international rules, to integrate the Chinese economy into the market-driven, middle-class-participatory economies of the West. China's entry into the WTO will help anchor and sustain these economic reform efforts and empower economic reformers. China will not become a market-driven economy overnight, but it is in our interest that they move in this direction, and WTO will help.

I look forward to a vigorous debate in the best tradition of the Senate. I urge all my colleagues to support this PNTR legislation without amendments.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. L. CHAFEE). The Senator from Minnesota.

Mr. WELLSTONE. I thank the Chair.

Mr. President, I thank my colleague from Montana for his remarks. We are not in agreement on this question, but I have a tremendous amount of respect for his work in the Senate.

Let me, first of all, state at the beginning of this debate that it is commonly assumed the Senate is going to pass PNTR. For most, this is a foregone conclusion, but I think this is an extremely important debate and, as a matter of fact, one of the reasons I am very proud to be a Senator from Minnesota is that, unlike the House of Representatives where it was really difficult to have an extensive debate, we will have that debate in the Senate. I will have a number of amendments I will bring to the floor. They will be substantive. I think my colleagues will believe they are thoughtful, and we will have up-or-down votes.

I also echo the remarks of my colleague from Montana when he says we should be very clear about what this debate is about and what it is not about. This debate is not about whether or not we have trade with China. We do have trade with China. We will have trade with China. It is not about whether or not we communicate with China. We most definitely will. It is not about whether we isolate China. We are not going to do that. It is not about whether we should have an embargo of China, as we do with Cuba. That is not even on the radar screen.

Nobody is talking about any of that. The question before us is whether or not we in the Congress give up our right to have annual review of normal trade relations with China—we used to call it most-favored-nation status—whether or not we give up what has been our only leverage to promote noncommercial values—I emphasize that, I say to my colleagues—noncommercial values in our trading relationships, such as human rights, labor rights, and environmental protection. Do we put human rights, labor rights, environmental protection, religious rights, the right not to be persecuted for practicing one's religious beliefs or exercising one's religious beliefs in parentheses, of no interest or concern to us, or do we maintain some leverage as a country to speak out on this?

The larger question is not whether China is integrated into the world economy. China is a part of the world economy. The questions are: Under what terms will China be integrated? what will the rules be? who will decide those rules? who will benefit from these decisions? and who will be harmed by them?

The trade agreement negotiated by the United States and China last November and the PNTR legislation currently before the Senate provide very discouraging answers to these questions as to who will decide, who will benefit, and exactly who is going to be asked to sacrifice.

Our bilateral agreement contains page after page of protections for U.S. investors. It is a virtual wish list for multinational corporations operating in China and for those who wish to relocate their production there, but it contains not a word about human rights, nothing about religious freedom, nothing on labor rights, and nothing on the environment.

It has been said that the United States could not demand such things because we have conceded nothing in our deal with China. That is far from the truth. With PNTR, the United States gives up our annual review of China most-favored-nation trading privileges, as well as our bilateral trade remedies.

MFN review has not been used as effectively as it should be, I grant that, but it is about the only leverage we have left to speak up for human rights, and when we as a nation do not speak up for human rights in other countries, we diminish ourselves. Just ask Wei Jingsheng, who I hope will receive the Nobel Prize for his courageous speaking out for democracy in China. Ask him the difference it made when every year normal trade relations with China came up for review here while he was in prison. The treatment was better. The Government was worried about what we would do. Now we give up that leverage.

It is also true that our bilateral trade remedies have not been used as effectively as they should, but section 301 remains our only explicit remedy against China's violation of core labor standards.

The United States right now absorbs 40 percent of China's exports. The argument that we could not have done better by way of some concessions on these basic issues falls on its face. In exchange for the concessions we have made to China, could we not have at least exacted some concessions with regard to human rights? We did not. Yet this year's annual report by the State Department says China's human rights performance continued to worsen in 1999.

Today in the New York Times there is another State Department report which we called for, we required, on the whole question of religious freedom or lack of religious freedom. I quote from just the first two paragraphs of today's New York Times:

> As more and more Chinese seek to practice faiths including Tibetan Buddhism, Christianity and Islam, government officials have increasingly responded with harassment, extortion, detention, and even torture, the State Department said today.
> As a result, a ''marked deterioration'' in religious freedom has occurred in China during the last year, enabled by a new law granting state and local officials broad authority to suppress 14 minority religions, including the Falun Gong movement, the State Department said in its second annual report on religious freedom around the world.

We have had more relations, more trade, and this vote is coming up this year, and when it comes to the question of whether people can exercise the right to practice their own religion, there is more persecution.

I will have an amendment that will deal with the whole question of religious freedom. It will mirror the conclusions of a commission we set up to look at religious freedom throughout the world, to look at religious freedom in China, a commission which recommended to the Congress that we not grant automatic trade relations with China unless the Chinese Government meets essential minimum decency requirements when it comes to not persecuting people because of their religious practice.

According to the State Department's report:

> The government's poor human rights record deteriorated markedly throughout the year as the government intensified efforts to suppress dissent, particularly organized dissent. Abuses included instances of extrajudicial killings, torture, mistreatment of prisoners, and denial of due process.

We are talking about hundreds, maybe thousands, of people in China sentenced to long prison terms where they have been beaten, tortured, and denied medical care.

According to Amnesty International, throughout China, mass summary executions continue to be carried out. At least 6,000 death sentences and 3,500 executions were officially recorded last year. The real figures are believed to be much higher. Nor did we obtain any concessions on religious freedom in our negotiations with China. Scores of Roman Catholics and Protestants—I speak as a Jew—have been arrested. A crackdown on Tibet was carried out during the ''strike hard'' campaign. Authorities ordered the closure of monasteries in Tibet and banned the Dalai Lama's image. At one monastery which was closed, over 90 monks and novices were detained or ''disappeared.'' That is why the U.S. Commission on International Religious Freedom recommended delaying PNTR until China makes ''substantial improvement in allowing people the freedom to worship.'' I say to my colleagues, do you just want to turn your gaze away from this question?

We obtained no concessions from China on complying with their existing commitments on forced prison labor which they have not lived up to. Harry Wu, a man of extraordinary courage and character, has documented China's extensive forced labor system. His research has identified more than 1,100 labor camps across China, many of which produce products for export to dozens of countries around the world, including the United States.

We demanded no concessions from the Chinese on their persecution of labor organizers. If you try to form an independent union, if you should want to make more than 3 cents an hour, or 14 cents an hour, if you should not want to work 16 and 18 hours a day, if you should want to be treated with some dignity, and you try to organize a union, then you are faced with 3 to 8 years in a hard labor camp. We pay no attention to this question at all, I say to Senators, Democrats and Republicans alike.

Absent any minimum standards for human rights, for labor, or for the environment, the most likely scenario is for China to become an export platform, attracting foreign manufacturers, with lax regulations, and wages as low as 3 cents an hour.

Unfortunately, many of the concessions that we chose to demand from China will only make it easier for the United States, for multinational corporations to relocate there, paying people 10 cents an hour, 3 cents an hour, 13 cents an hour—I am going to give examples in my opening statement in just a few minutes—in competition with American workers and ordinary people in our country, who, by the way, if they oppose our trade agreements, are accused of being backward, are accused of not being sophisticated, are accused of not understanding this new global economy in which we live.

Please forgive ordinary citizens and wage earners for their skepticism that without some basic standards, what you are going to see is China becoming a magnet for more and more companies to go there and pay people deplorable wages, with deplorable working conditions, while we lose our jobs.

I believe the time has come for a different approach in negotiating our trade agreements and for reforming the rules of the global economy. I want to make it very clear at the beginning of my opening statement, I say to my colleagues, I am an internationalist. I am a fierce internationalist. I am the son of a Jewish immigrant who fled persecution from the Ukraine, who was born in the Ukraine, and then lived in Russia, who spoke 10 languages fluently. I am not an isolationist.

But I will say today on the floor of the Senate that we should be looking forward, and we should be looking to how we participate in this new global economy, and how we can have some rules, some edifice, some kind of framework so this new global economy works for working people and the environment and human rights. Too many of my colleagues want to put all of these concerns in parenthesis.

I think we need to be clear about what is at stake. My colleague from Montana, Senator BAUCUS, said that as well. That is why so many people in this country are concerned about passage of this legislation.

The PNTR is being sold as an agreement to increase U.S. exports. I have heard this said a million times: If we pass PNTR, we will dramatically increase U.S. exports to China, and it will be a win-win—a win-win for agriculture, a win-win for business, a win-win for labor.

This legislation and trade deal with China is much more about investment than it is about exports. It is much more about making it easier for U.S. firms to relocate jobs in China than it is about exports.

First of all, the argument that this debate is all about exports and reducing our trade deficit falls on its face. I say to my colleagues, last August the U.S. International Trade Commission, the ITC, completed a study on the effects of the China deal on our trade balance. The ITC found that the China deal will increase our trade deficit with China, not lower it.

Second of all, it is not at all true that we need PNTR to be able to have trade with China. China is already obligated, under the 1979 bilateral trade agreement, according to our own General Accounting Office, the GAO, to give us all of the benefits by way of tariff reductions that it gives any of the other WTO countries. Even the administration concedes this point.

Third of all, PNTR will lead to more imports from China by encouraging multinationals to invest in China manufacturing to export to the U.S. market. That is what this is all about. Big companies could go to China—I will give many examples—they would not have to worry any longer about annual reviews, about normal trade relations. They could go there.

People can't organize a union. They are thrown in prison. There is no respect for human rights. There is no respect for people to practice their religion. As a result, they could go there and pay people deplorable wages, under deplorable conditions, and then export back to our country.

Let me just be real clear about it. Before the House vote on PNTR—and I hope colleagues will listen—few noticed that the ITC had predicted that the trade deal with China would significantly increase investment of multinational corporations in China. But after the House vote, the New York Times, the Washington Post, and the Wall Street Journal all carried articles laying out what this legislation is really about.

Now, as it is in the Senate, and we have the benefit of a little bit more wisdom and knowledge, let me just quote, first of all, an article entitled, ''Playing the China Card,'' from the New York Times:

Although the Clinton Administration often listed exports as the headline benefit of broadening trade with China, the real advantage for U.S. companies is probably enhanced rights of investment and ownership there. . . . Most companies try to crack the difficult China market by setting up local operations, often using those plants as export production bases as well.

Here is what the Wall Street Journal had to say the day after PNTR passed the House in an article entitled, ''House Vote Primes U.S. Firms to Boost Investments in China'':

While the debate in Washington focused mainly on the probable lift for U.S. exports to China, many U.S. multinationals have something different in mind. ''This deal is about investment, not exports,'' says Joseph Quinlan, an economist with Morgan Stanley Dean Witter & Co. . . .

In the tense weeks leading up to last night's vote, business lobbyists emphasized the beneficial effect the agreement would have on U.S. exports to China. They played down its likely impact on investment, leery of sounding supportive of labor union arguments that the deal would prompt companies to move U.S. production to China. But many businessmen concede that investment in China is the prize. . . .

Then finally, after the House vote, the U.S. Business and Industrial Council surveyed the web sites of dozens of U.S. multinationals who have been lobbying for PNTR, and they reached similar conclusions:

In contrast to the focus in their congressional lobbying and their advertisements, American multinationals say almost nothing about exports when they describe their China business on their web sites. There, the overwhelming emphasis is on supplying the China market—and often other markets, like the U.S. market—from factories they build or acquire or work with in China. . . .

Mr. President, this should come as no surprise to colleagues. According to the Economic Policy Institute, U.S. investment in Chinese manufacturing—I am talking about before this vote—shot up from $123 million in 1988 to $4 billion in 1998.

The number of U.S. affiliates manufacturing in China rose from 64 in 1989 to 350 in 1997, and the value of their sales rose from $121 million in 1989 to $8 billion in 1997. That is before we pass normal trade relations with China. U.S. agribusiness conglomerates that have been promoting U.S. exports to China as much as anyone are also investing in production facilities there in China. As the Wall Street Journal noted the day after the House vote:

Even agriculture companies are getting in on the act. Poultry giant Purdue Farms, Inc. is ratcheting up its investment in China with a joint venture for a processing plant and hatchery near Shanghai.

Purdue isn't the only one. Cargill operates a fertilizer blending plant and a malt plant and two feed mills in different areas of China and boasted in a press release last year that it is a ''major exporter of Chinese corn and steel.''

I urge farmers in Minnesota to listen to that. Cargill says: We set up operations in China; we are a major exporter of corn. Steel workers in the Iron Range, listen to that. They don't have to worry about environmental rules and regulations. They don't have to worry about fair labor standards. They don't have to worry about human rights standards that the Chinese Government will impose. They can produce corn well below the cost of production of corn growers in Minnesota, and they themselves brag about the fact that they are a major exporter of Chinese corn.

Cargill, Archer-Daniels-Midland, and ConAgra, which have operated in China for years, lobbied hard for a provision in the China trade deal that will let them set up distribution networks that can be used for exports as well as imports. And John Deere has a joint venture with one of China's state-owned companies that sells tractors.

If we look at our trade deficit with China, it tells the story. Our trade deficit with China rose 256 percent from 1992 to 1999. Imports from China more than tripled in real terms, while exports grew only 69 percent. Our trade deficit with China jumped $11 billion last year to $68 billion. In 1999, we had a 6-to-1 ratio of imports to exports.

We do trade with China. There is a huge trade imbalance. And as U.S. investment in China goes up, that is what is going to happen. As our trade deficit gets worse, China is developing into an export platform for foreign firms that seek the world's cheapest labor and access to the world's largest consumer market—not China but ours. People in China are, by and large, very poor. The market is not China. The market is in this country. The U.S. today absorbs about 40 percent of China's exports, and about 40 percent of China's exports, more than $200 billion in 1998, came from multinational firms operating in China.

If this debate is really about investment and not exports, then the question is, Why are so many U.S. corporations so eager to invest in China? The answer that many of these corporations will give is that they want access to China's huge internal market. But as we have seen, most of the production they are investing in is for export to the United States and other foreign markets. There is a good reason for that. This was the same argument made about NAFTA—we want to have this market in Mexico. But the problem is, the wages are so low in these countries, the poverty is so great, we don't have the market.

So why are U.S. corporations so interested in relocating production in China? Why are they so interested that we no longer reserve for ourselves the right to annually review normal trade relations with China? The most important reason is they are interested in low cost, and that is a euphemism. What I really mean to say is, they are interested in low wages and the repression of worker rights. That is what is so attractive about investment in China.

The year 1994 is the last data we have. I am trying to bring to the floor of the Senate in this debate as much empirical data as I can. Chinese production workers who worked in the factories of the U.S. multinationals earned on average of 83 cents an hour. That is the last year for which the data is available. By way of comparison, the average manufacturing worker today in our country makes $16.87.

The State Department human rights report last year confirms the appalling state of labor rights in China. I will quote a few sections.

Independent trade unions are illegal. . . The government has not approved the establishment of any independent unions to date.

The government continues its effort to stamp out union activity, including through detention or arrest of labor activists.

The State Department then goes on to list a number of labor activists who have been imprisoned because they did nothing more than demand the right to be able to form a union so they could bargain collectively and get better wages. They are in prison, and we pay no attention to that.

I cite a recent report by the National Labor Committee which should dispel any doubts whether there are irresponsible U.S. corporations taking advantage of these appalling labor conditions. By the way, there are responsible U.S. corporations as well. However, the shame of it is, without any kind of standards, it is what the irresponsible U.S. corporations get away with.

The conclusion of the NLC:

Recent in-depth investigations of 16 factories in China producing car-stereos, brakes, shoes, sneakers, clothing, TVs, hats, and bags for some of the largest U.S. companies clearly demonstrate that [these corporations] and their contractors in China continue to systematically violate the most fundamental human and worker rights while paying below subsistence wages. The U.S. companies and their contractors operate with impunity in China, often in collaboration with repressive and corrupt local government authorities.

NLC investigators found brand name—Kathie Lee/Wal-Mart—handbags being made in a factory ''where 1,000 workers were held under conditions of indentured servitude, forced to work 12 to 14 hours a day, seven days a week, with only one day off a month, while earning an average of 3 cents an hour.''

I hope my colleagues are not going to vote against an amendment that I am going to bring to the floor that is going to deal with basic human rights and another amendment I will bring to the floor dealing with the problem of religious persecution.

Continuing from the NLC report:

However, after months of work, 46 percent of the workers surveyed earned nothing at all—in fact, they owed money to the company. The workers were allowed out of the factory for just an hour and a half a day. The workers were fed two dismal meals a day and housed 16 people to one small, crammed dorm room. Many of the workers did not even have enough money to pay for bus fare to leave the factory to look for other work. When the workers protested being forced to work from 7:30 a.m. to 11:00 p.m. seven days a week, for literally pennies an hour, 800 workers were fired.

They didn't even make 3 cents an hour.

Do Members not think in this trade agreement we might not want to have some conditions calling on the Chinese Government to live up to basic standards of decency?

One factory producing brand name sneakers for the U.S. market hires only females between the ages of 18 and 25—another U.S. company in China.

The base wage at the factory is 18 cents an hour, and workers need permission to leave the factory grounds. Factory and dorms—where 20 women share one small dorm room, sleeping on triple-level bunk beds—are locked down at 9:00 p.m. every night. When workers in the polishing section could no longer stand the grueling overtime hours and low pay and went on strike, they were all fired. Factory management then lectured the remaining workers that they would not tolerate unions, strikes, bad behavior, or the raising of grievances.

I will have an amendment that will say we should condition automatic normal trade relations with China on their living up to the basic standard that people should be able to form an independent union if that is what they believe they should do without being imprisoned.

At a plant making brand name—Nike—clothing for American consumers, young workers worked from 7:30 a.m. to 10:30 p.m., 7 days a week. They made 22 cents an hour. Wal-Mart, by the way, is in China. I think they are paying 14 cents an hour. And another factory manufacturing for export to the U.S. market does not hire anyone older than 25; workers are paid 20 cents an hour and work 11- to 12-hour shifts.

I have no doubt that some of our companies—I hope many—want to be responsible employers. But when we don't have any standards and we sign onto trade agreements without any standards whatsoever, we create economic incentives that push in the wrong direction, where the companies wanting to do well by workers are at a competitive disadvantage and it becomes a race to the bottom.

In our country—I am proud to say as a former college teacher—among young people is the best organizing of justice, idealism, and activism I have seen in many years. But how can you support the anti-sweatshop campaign, denounce the rapid proliferation of sweatshops all over the world, and denounce the resurgence of sweatshops here in the U.S. and then turn around and promote unregulated investment in China without any conditions whatsoever?

I simply say that I seriously question, on the basis of some pretty solid empirical evidence, whether this China deal is going to lift living standards overseas to our levels or whether this China deal and some of our other trade policy is going to lower living standards down to theirs. It is not very hard to figure out what this deal is about. It is going to encourage more investment in China under the conditions I have described.

I wish to give two case studies. On July 7, the New York Times ran a story about Zebco Corporation, world-famous makers of fishing reel, which moved most of its production to China in June. Most of Zebco's 240 workers will eventually lose their jobs. They said:

With most of Zebco's competitors having already set up fishing tackle plants in China, allowing them to undercut Zebco's prices at Wal-Marts everywhere, Zebco began a year ago to explore the possibility of moving its own lines to China. The company found that it could commission Chinese factories to produce and deliver reels to the United States for one-third less than it could make them at home, company officials said.

As assembly-line factory jobs go, Zebco offers ordinary pay but solid benefits, including Christmas gifts of stock certificates. Workers returned the loyalty. Turnover was low.

This is what it was all about.

Then, earlier this year, the company pushed assembly-line workers to raise their output by at least 10 percent a month, and China became a cattle prod.

That is in the New York Times piece.

Still, the shop floor fell into stunned silence one Monday afternoon when the president of the company read a brief statement as first-shift workers finished their day. Zebco was moving some production to China. Many of those listening would lose their jobs. Zebco reels no longer commanded an ''adequate profit,'' the statement said.

Many leading United States companies are like Zebco. They face competitive pressure to save money by producing in China—often exporting back to the United States—rather than making goods here to sell in China.

The workers as Zebco are not alone. Warren Davis is a courageous, outspoken United Auto Workers leader. He is their regional director for Ohio and Pennsylvania. In a recent letter, he told me about 90 workers at a plant he represents who are all going to lose their jobs because of the conditions that I have described. He writes:

Nestaway Corporation has been under contract with the Rubbermaid Corporation of Wooster, Ohio. It is losing its critical contract because Rubbermaid claims it can no longer afford to buy Nestaway's sink strainers. . . .

The victims are the workers at Nestaway Corporation in Garfield Heights, Ohio. They are mainly single parents with poor prospects for finding any other job that pay a wage comparable to the $9 an hour they had been paid. . . .

Basically, it is the same thing. They can't compete. I continue to quote from him:

My question to you is, for whom does the bell toll? Because this is not just about the jobs of Region 2 members of the United Auto Workers. This is about all of American manufacturing. And it is about the debate in the Senate.

The stories of workers at Zebco and Nestaway tell a larger story. We have an exploding trade deficit with China, and it is only going to get worse because without any kind of conditions, without any kind of human rights standards, without any kind of fair labor standards, without any kind of minimal standards for human rights, what we are going to see is more and more companies not exporting but investing in China, going to China, paying low wages. This becomes the export platform, and then the products are exported back to our country. According to the EPI, our exploding trade deficit with China cost over 683,000 jobs between 1992 and 1999. This trade deal with China will cost even more—over 870,000 jobs, just looking into the immediate future.

Well, let me now make two final points in my opening statement. It is commonly argued that everybody benefits, that it is exports, and I have tried to take that on. We get the arguments of the trade agreement, and I have tried to take that on. It is argued that, in fact, this is a policy that will help people in China. I have tried to take that argument on. Let me simply talk about the inequality in our country. Even free trade economists have now concluded that existing trade policy is the single largest cause of growing inequality since 1979. We have a booming economy, but we have the widest gap between the rich and the poor of any industrialized nation in the world. Inequality, both within countries and between countries, has dramatically increased.

When we went through the debate on NAFTA, the argument was there will be winners and losers, but we will be better off as a country, and we certainly will be there to compensate the losers; we will have job training and education programs and all of the rest. But do you know what? That was fine sentiment expressed on the floor of the Senate, but after NAFTA was passed and we lost hundreds of thousands of jobs, support for the training and assistance suddenly dried up. All of the Senators and all of the Representatives who I hear say, ''Yes, there will be losers and we are certainly going to have to do better''—I would like to hear those Senators and Representatives talk about health security for people in this country, affordable child care, good education for their children, increasing the minimum wage. But quite often you find just the opposite.

I wish to talk about an amendment I am going to bring to the floor of the Senate, which I think is terribly important. Part of what is going on, unfortunately, with our trade policy—and given the size of China, this will sharply widen the inequality. This will exacerbate this, I think, most serious question of all.

The message is, if you organize, we are gone; we will go to these other countries. The message is that if you want to work for more than 3 cents an hour, you don't get our investment.

But if this is all about workers, and if this is all about coming through for working people in our country—making sure that the jobs we have in our country are good jobs, and there are decent health care benefits for people, and they can support their families—I think we will have to look at the very strong correlation between unionization and good jobs and good working benefits—and that is a well established correlation—and, therefore, the need to give people the right to organize.

Right now in the country during an organizing drive, in 91 percent of the cases employers require employees to listen to the companies but deny the employees any opportunity to listen to both sides. I am going to introduce a right-to-organize amendment. That should no longer be the case. Employees should be allowed to hear from both sides.

In 31 percent of all the organizing campaigns, employers illegally fire union sympathizers with virtual impunity. Ten thousand workers are fired illegally every year. It is profitable to do so. In this amendment, I say if a company breaks the law and illegally fires that worker, that company is going to be faced with stiff financial penalties.

In one-third of the cases, even after the employees say they want to join a union so they can make better wages, the companies refuse to negotiate. This amendment will call, therefore, for mediation to be followed by binding arbitration.

I hope my colleagues will support this right-to-organize amendment.

I think the way our country is going is that people and families are more concerned about the right to be able to organize and bargain collectively, earn a decent living, and support their families.

I say especially to the Democrats that you ought to support this amendment. You ought to support this amendment because this is all about the basic right of people to be able to organize and to do better for themselves and their families. This is all about being on the side of working people. Do I not hear that the Democratic Party is on the side of working people? I have an amendment that will give Democrats, and I hope Republicans, an opportunity to be on the side of working people.

In conclusion, we have a choice. I think the choice is really clear. We are in a global economy. We are in an international economy. The question is, Are there going to be any new rules?

We live in a democracy. My father taught me more than anything else to love my country, and I love my country because we live in a democracy. I get to speak on the floor of the Senate. Citizens get to speak up. We have a voice.

On the one hand, we have the current model of a business trade policy designed to serve mainly the interests of multinational corporations, Wall Street financial institutions, and global business conglomerates. This is the model of globalization that has generated such outrage and certainly skepticism on the part of most ordinary citizens in the country. Good for them.

I think there is a 2-to-1 margin—as I remember the recent polling data—of people who say they don't believe these trading agreements are going to lead to good job prospects but are going to more likely take away good jobs for Americans.

Just think about it for a moment. We passed not too long ago the CBI initiative. That is all about, as my colleague said, helping poor working people in the Caribbean countries. How do you help poor working people in the Caribbean countries where they don't even have the right to work? They can't join a union. The Caribbean countries with the fastest growing exports have experienced—are you ready for this?—the steepest decline in wages.

So often I hear from my colleagues: Well, Paul, we know you support working people but do not seem to be supporting the poor in these developing nations. I say to my colleagues that every time I go to a trade conference, I look for the poor. I never see the poor at these trade conferences. I see the elites from these countries. I don't see the poor represented.

In any case, with the Caribbean countries, let me cite one very interesting correlation. Those countries with the fastest growing exports and that have the lowest wages have seen the steepest decline in wages.

The question is, Who benefits from expanding trade benefits without any enforceable labor standards? Who benefits from trade and investment policies that discourage rather than encourage the right to organize? Not American workers; not workers in the other countries; not the poor in other countries. This is not win-win; this is lose-lose.

I will not cite a lot of statistics about the global economy, but for a moment I want to cite a few to point out to colleagues that many foreign countries have not fared so well under this ''Washington consensus trade and investment policy'' of recent decades.

More than 80 countries have per capita income lower than they did in 1970, lower in 1999 than in 1978 by 200 million poor people living in abject poverty.

Only 33 countries have achieved and sustained 3-percent growth between 1980 and 1996, and in 59 countries the per capita GNP actually declined.

The number of poor continues to grow throughout the world.

There are 100 million people in industrialized countries living below the poverty line, and 35 million of them are unemployed.

There are 1.3 billion people in the developing world earning less than $1 per day and who have no access to clean water for themselves or their children.

You are coming out here on the floor of the Senate and trying to argue that trade policy has been a great benefit for the poor in the world. I don't think the empirical data support that.

Let me conclude where I started.

I am an internationalist. I hear all this discussion about how this debate and this vote is all about whether or not you believe we live and work in a global economy. I take seriously those words that we live and work in a global economy. It certainly is true. But may I point out to my colleagues the implications of this point of view.

If we live in a global economy and if we are truly concerned about human rights, then we can no longer concern ourselves only with human rights at home.

If we live in a global economy and we truly care about religious freedom, then we can no longer concern ourselves only with religious freedom at home.

If we live in a global economy and work in a global economy and we care about the rights of workers to organize and bargain collectively and earn a better standard of living for themselves and their children, then we can no longer concern ourselves with labor rates only at home.

If we truly care about the environment and we live in a global economy, then we can no longer concern ourselves with environmental protection only at home.

Raising living standards is not only the right thing to do, it is necessary if we are to maintain our own living standard. We need to ensure that prosperity is shared more broadly so that the world economy is stabilized and that healthy and sustainable products are created for our exporters. When people make 3 cents an hour and are poor, they cannot buy what we produce in our country.

I am proud to associate myself with those who have been engaged in human rights work. I think I care more about human rights issues than almost any other set of issues in my family background. They have understood a basic truth; it is this: That Americans can never be indifferent to the circumstances of exploited and abused people in the far reaches of the globe. When the most basic human rights and freedoms of others are infringed upon or endangered, we are diminished by our failure to speak out for human rights.

When we embrace the cause of human rights, we reaffirm one of the greatest traditions of American democracy, but we are not embracing the cause of human rights with this trade bill.

There is another truth, and it is reaching a larger and larger public. The well-being of our families, the well-being of ordinary wage earners in the United States of America, depends to a considerable degree on the welfare of people who we have never met, people who live halfway across the planet. Our fates are intertwined.

Some of my colleagues say the global markets will take care of themselves; they cannot be tamed; there is nothing we should do; this is laissez faire economics at its best.

I point my colleagues to the lessons of our own economic history. As we debate this piece of legislation on the floor of the Senate—and I will have an amendment that will deal with religious freedom, an amendment that deals with human rights; I will have an amendment that deals with exports from China from forced prison labor; I will have an amendment that deals with a right to organize in China; and I will have an amendment that deals with the right to organize in our own country—let Members for a moment think about this debate in an historic context. I heard my colleague, Senator BAUCUS, for whom I have great respect, say this is a very important debate. Senator MOYNIHAN, who will retire—and the Senate and our country will miss him—believes this is one of the most important votes we will cast. I agree. I think this is one of the most important debates that has taken place in the Senate.

I deal with a sense of history. One-hundred years ago, our country moved from an economy of local economic units to an industrialized economy. It was a wrenching economic transformation, a major seismic change in our economy. We were moving toward a national, industrialized economy 100 years ago, at the beginning of the last century.

As that happened, there was a coalition—some of them were evangelical, some were populist, some were farmers, some were women, some were working people—that made a set of demands. The farmers said: We want antitrust action because these big conglomerates are pushing us off the land or they were exploiting the consumers. They want a 40-hour workweek. We want the right to organize. We want some protections against exploiting children, child labor. Women said: We want the right to vote. We want direct election of the U.S. Senators. They made those demands, and nobody thought they had a chance.

The Pinkertons killed anyone trying to organize a union. All too often that happened. The media was hostile to this set of demands, by and large. Journalists followed this debate. I am not bashing all journalists, but in general the media was not supportive. And believe it or not, money probably dominated politics even more than it does today.

However, those women and men felt, as citizens of a democracy, they had the right to demand for themselves and their families all they thought was right and all they had the courage to demand. They didn't win everything, but a lot of their demands became the law of the land and their collective efforts made our country better. Their efforts amounted to an effort to civilize a new national economy.

So it is today, 100 years later. These amendments I will bring to the floor of the Senate reflect an effort on the part of people in the United States of America and others throughout the world to say, yes, we live in a new global economy, but just as 100 years ago men and women organized and had the courage to make that new national economy work for them, we make a set of demands. We bring a set of issues before the Senate. We call for votes on amendments which basically say that we need to make sure that this new global economy works for working people, works for family farmers, works for the environment, works for human rights.

Mr. President, we want to make sure we can civilize this new global economy so that it works for most of the people.

I ask unanimous consent that the next two Democratic speakers be Senator DORGAN and Senator TORRICELLI, and that Senator TORRICELLI's statement be considered a morning business statement, after Senator GORTON speaks.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Washington.

Mr. GORTON. I ask unanimous consent to speak as in morning business.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

PRIORITIES

Mr. GORTON. Mr. President, after a refreshing though strenuous August recess, we are now in the home stretch not only of this session of Congress but of this Congress.

The previous speaker discussed one of the great national and international priorities, normal trade relations with China on a permanent basis. I have several other priorities, both national and regional, that I will discuss, each of which I think is vitally important for the successful conclusion of this Congress of the United States.

At the very top of my list is pipeline safety. More than a year ago, a tragic accident in Bellingham, WA, occurred with a liquid pipeline. A huge explosion snuffed out the lives of three bright young people and destroyed a magnificent and beautiful park. Ever since the date of that accident, my colleague from the State of Washington and I have focused a great deal of attention on the renewal and the strengthening of the Pipeline Safety Act and of the Office of Pipeline Safety, designed to enforce its restrictions.

We have succeeded in passing a relatively strong Pipeline Act reauthorization through the Senate Commerce Committee with certain objections, with a number of amendments that were seriously contested and closely divided in that committee. We have now worked diligently with all concerned and I believe we are on the verge of a bill that can come before this Senate and can be passed enthusiastically, and I believe unanimously, by the Senate of the United States. It is imperative that we do so quite promptly because while the House has begun to focus attention on the issue, time is very short before the end of this Congress to actually accomplish the goals we seek in increasing pipeline safety.

A dramatic and equally tragic incident during the course of the last month with a national gas pipeline in New Mexico has illustrated most regrettably, once again, the essential nature of our improving pipeline safety standards all across the United States. I am focused particularly on giving a more significant voice in pipeline safety matters to the people who live in the vicinity of these pipelines and whose lives regrettably seem to be very much at risk with respect to either negligence or oversight on the part of those who own and operate these pipelines.

Pipelines, both for natural gas and for the transmission of liquid petroleum products, are a vitally important part of our economy. In some respects, they are safer than other forms of transportation for these commodities. However, accidents are all too frequent, and all too frequently those accidents are devastating and fatal in nature.

The importance of passing this legislation cannot be overemphasized. I am highly optimistic on this subject. I had an extensive discussion last evening with the majority leader and have his encouragement. I believe in the course of the next few days we will be able to take up this bill.

Regrettably, on another high national priority, I find myself frustrated that we have not made a sufficient degree of progress. A number of days, over a period of weeks and months, have been devoted in this body to a debate on education policy and a renewal of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act. For all practical purposes, that bill is being frustrated by extended discussion, led by the unalterable opposition to providing more trust and confidence in our local school authorities on the part of the Democratic leadership and the senior Senator from Massachusetts.

An integral part of the bill, which is still before this body and which has majority support, is Straight A's. Straight A's gives State school authorities several options: One, to continue under the present system. Two, for a dozen or so States to combine a dozen or more present categorical aid programs into one system that comes to the State, is passed through with at least 95 percent of the money to individual school districts on one undertaking and one undertaking only, and that undertaking is that each State that would get this authority will sign a contract pursuant to which there will be an improvement in the skills of the students over a 5-year period; that is to say, by any objective measure that the State uses, our kids will be better educated.

It is a dramatic change. It is a change from process accountability, the form of accountability we have at the present time—that is to say: Did you fill out the forms correctly?—to results accountability: Are our children better educated? I am convinced and a majority of this body is convinced that by providing more trust and confidence in parents and teachers and principals and school board members—the people who know our children's names—that the students' education will improve. There is still time to pass such a bill. I regret the opposition even to a test, optional to each State, is so great it seems unlikely that this vitally important education reform will be passed.

Just last week I spoke to the junior and senior classes at Bridgeport High School, a rural school in Washington State, a very small school, not more than 100 students and faculty combined. They do not need more Federal rules and regulations. They don't need to be told they should use the newest Federal program to hire roughly half a teacher, which is what they get under that program. They need our trust and confidence in the dedicated nature of those teachers and administrators and parents in that community, who know better than we do here in Washington, DC, what the students of Bridgeport, WA, need. The same thing is true of 17,000 other school districts across the United States.

I also note present on the floor today my distinguished friend and colleague from North Dakota. He and I are joined in at least two other priorities with which we are dealing this year. One is the opportunity to end unilateral boycotts against the export of food and medicines from the United States. We represent, I am convinced, a substantial majority of the Members of the Senate, as well as the House of Representatives. We have a termination to those boycotts in the Agriculture appropriations bill that is now before our conference committee. I know he joins with me in believing that it is absolutely essential, and long overdue, that we end those agricultural boycotts at the present time and provide additional markets to American farmers and agricultural producers as at least one modest step toward returning prosperity to the agricultural sector of our economy.

We are also joined in believing that Americans are overcharged for prescription drugs, that we have a system under which American pharmaceutical companies—who benefit from very large subsidies, both indirectly from the National Institutes of Health, and directly through tax credits for the development of prescription drugs—that when those companies charge Americans twice as much or more than twice as much for those drugs as they charge, for all practical purposes, almost anyone outside the United States, that something is absolutely wrong. Again, we have passed in this body at least a significant step in the direction of correcting that injustice. I think it is very important that the appropriations bill to which that important matter is attached be passed and we make at least a significant step, a genuine step forward toward fair and nondiscriminatory treatment of all Americans in the cost of the prescription drugs that are so important to their health.

On two other subjects, this body has passed a bill attempting to ensure the reliability of our electrical transmission system and the supply of electricity to all the people of the United States. We have had unwarranted price hikes. We have had both the existence and threat of brownouts in various parts of this country this year. That situation is only going to get worse until we do something about it. A noncontroversial but vitally important electricity reliability bill has passed this body. I urge my colleagues in the House of Representatives to do the same.

Finally, on a regional issue, the great issue in the Pacific Northwest is the future of our hydroelectric dam system on the Columbia and Snake Rivers, and particularly the four dams on the lower Snake River. Many in this administration have pursued the foolish goal of removing those dams in order, the administration asserts, to save salmon. Nothing could be less cost effective as against the many absolutely first rate programs that are going on in the Pacific Northwest directly to that end, programs that not at all incidentally have been remarkably successful if we measure them by this year's return of spring chinook salmon to the Columbia River system.

The administration and the Vice President have blinked in this connection, knowing the proposal is as unpopular as it is absurd in the Pacific Northwest. One group in the administration said it would be off the table for 8 years. However, the chairman of the White House Council on Environmental Quality was cited in the course of the last month saying that moratorium will only be for 3 years, and the Vice President is not guaranteeing 3 years but just, ''as long as it [the present system] works.'' My own view is that that is until after the November election.

So to the best of my ability to do so, the administration will be given the opportunity to put its money where its mouth is with a prohibition against its using any money in the appropriations bill for fiscal year 2001, not only for removing the dams but for any step or purpose on the road to removing those dams. The debate over salmon recovery, a universal goal in the Pacific Northwest, will be far more constructive and far more productive when that particular view is taken off of the agenda in its entirety.

Finally, as the Senator responsible for the management of the Interior appropriations bill, we must, of course, deal with the remaining fires across the United States in our forests and on our rangelands, and particularly again in the Northwest part of the United States from which my State has not been entirely free but with which it has not been afflicted to the extent that Montana, Idaho, and certain other States have been. Whatever our concerns about the causes of those fires, the expenditures that have been made and are to be made in connection with their suppression are a genuine emergency and will be included in the conference committee report on the Interior Department bill as an emergency. At the same time, due to the very hard work of my friend and colleague, the senior Senator from Idaho, there are dramatic changes in fire prevention policies which will also be included in that bill that are vitally important to see to it that we do not soon have a repetition of the disastrous fires that have consumed so many hundreds of thousands, even millions of acres of our public and private lands during the course of this summer.

Mr. President, that is an ambitious agenda, but I believe it to be a vitally important agenda, not only for my own constituents but for the people of the United States as a whole.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. HUTCHINSON). Under the previous order, the Senator from North Dakota is to be recognized.

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senator from New Jersey be recognized for 10 minutes, following which I will be recognized.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered. The Senator from New Jersey.

Mr. TORRICELLI. I thank my friend, the Senator from North Dakota, for his consideration.

TELEVISED POLITICAL ADVERTISING

Mr. TORRICELLI. Mr. President, I want to address the Senate today on the question of the national elections and the rising interest by the American people in campaign finance reform. There is no better time to debate the intricacies of how we are financing and conducting national elections than in the midst of the very contests themselves.

Over the next 8 weeks, candidates for Federal office will spend more money than at anytime in American history to attempt to persuade the American people in the casting of their votes. There is one simple, compelling reason for this spiraling increase in campaign expenditures, and that is the cost of televised political advertising, the cost of being on the national television networks.

This Congress has tangentially dealt with some of the campaign finance problems. It is obviously positive that Congress tightened regulations for the disclosure of contributions for section 527 organizations. It was a small victory.

We have, through the years, increased the number of votes in this institution, of which I am one, for comprehensive reform as envisioned by Mr. FEINGOLD and Mr. MCCAIN. But indeed, even if both of these provisions were enacted, the pressure for increased expenditures would not abate. With all of these reforms in place, the pressure to raise more money and spend more money would still dominate the system, which leads to the proposition that to deal with the costs of advertising on television, either this Congress must go beyond the current debate on campaign finance reform or others outside of the Congress must become part of the solution.

Ironically, the principal critique of the campaign finance system is coming from the very people who are driving its costs—the television networks. A 30-second prime time advertisement in the New York City market now costs $50,000. In Chicago, the same advertisement can cost more than $20,000. This is the heart of the problem.

The New York Times estimates the 2000 elections will cost $3 billion. This is a 50-percent increase over the 1996 elections. And $600 million, or 20 percent of those expenditures, will be on political advertisements on television. This represents a 40-percent increase in only 4 years.

During the Presidential primaries, both GORE and Bush spent 46 percent of all of their campaign expenditures just on television ads, twice as much as any other category of expenditures. The evidence is overwhelming. What is driving this increase in expenditures, hence requiring the raising of these exorbitant, even obscene, amounts of money, is the cost of television advertising. It could not be clearer.

Potentially the most expensive Senate race in American history is going to be the current Senate race in New Jersey. A study by the Alliance for Better Campaigns focused on last June's primary in my State. It came to the following conclusions:

Local television stations in New York and Philadelphia took in a record $21 million from New Jersey Senate candidates, but these same television affiliates of the networks devoted an average of only 13 seconds per night in the final 2 weeks of the Senate campaign to actual news.

This chart illustrates what was available to the people of my State in choosing a Senator. In New York, a CBS affiliate—this is in the final 2 weeks of the campaign, only the last 14 days—devoted 10 seconds to coverage of news on the campaign. In Philadelphia, one network gave an average of 1 second per night to actual news about the campaign.

It is, therefore, not unpredictable that this would lead to candidates unable to communicate with voters through the news spending exorbitant amounts of money in advertisements. Indeed, during the final 2 weeks of the New Jersey Senate primary, viewers in Philadelphia and New York markets were 10 times more likely to receive a communication from a candidate through a paid advertisement than they were through an actual news story. They were 10 times more likely, if they were watching the news, to see an ad rather than actually seeing a report from a reporter on the campaign.

Paid advertisements have come to dominate sources of information over actual news reports in American political campaigns.

During the last Presidential primary season, it was much the same. The typical local television station aired less than 1 minute of candidates discussing issues each night. During the month before the Super Tuesday primary on March 7, the national networks aired a nightly average of 36 seconds. The people of the United States were choosing their two nominees in the major national primary, and for the preceding month the television networks devoted 36 seconds to discussing issues. Of the 22 televised Presidential debates held during this year's primary season, 2 were aired on network television. ABC, CBS, and NBC reduced by two-thirds the amount of time that was then devoted to the national political conventions.

This is the source of some obvious changes in the American political culture. Not only is this collapse of news coverage leading candidates to raise more money and buy more advertisements, it is obviously changing how the American people make their judgments.

On average, since 1952, 22 percent of voters have said they decided how to vote based on their observation of political conventions. This is also in a state of collapse. People made judgments on hard news, they made judgments on political conventions, they watched for sources of news that were unbiased or professional, and that is being replaced by political advertisements, not by choice but because there is no choice.

It is extraordinary, given this state of affairs, that the principal force driving allegedly for campaign finance reform has been in the media.

The networks reduced the amount of news coverage, radically increased the cost of advertising, and then complained about campaign financing. It is an extraordinary state of affairs.

Indeed, at this point, the television networks have political advertising as the third most lucrative source of their revenues—only behind the automobile companies and retail advertisers.

Indeed, buying air time for political ads is now 10 percent of the revenues of the television networks. Hence, it will become clear why they may complain about the cost of political campaigns, appropriately—because we all want reform in this institution more than they—but one can see why they are leading by complaint, not by example, in doing anything about the costs. They are themselves living off of and profiting by the system. And it is accelerating.

In the last decade, the percentage of political ads as a portion of total revenue of the television networks has gone from 3 percent of all revenue in political ads in 1992 to 9.2 percent this year and rising.

During the last cycle, network broadcasters accepted $531 million in political advertising. This is a 33-percent increase since 1996 and over a 110-percent increase since a decade ago. It isn't just that they are charging exorbitant money; it is rising in multiples every year. They are driving the cost of American political campaigns.

Candidates have been living, for the last 25 years, with the same $1,000 limit in raising hard Federal dollars—$1,000 per American per election. But the networks are up 110 percent in how much they are taking in, meaning that candidates are spending more and more time, going to more and more people, raising more and more money to communicate with the same voters.

I do not know how we get this Congress to enact campaign finance reform. I trust at some point it will happen. I do not know what else the Democratic Party can do. We have had 45 seats in the Senate for the last 2 years, and every single Democrat has voted for campaign finance reform.

But even if we were to have succeeded in those votes, it would not have solved this problem. We would limit how much would be raised, perhaps, but we would not deal with these expenditures. Ultimately, it is these expenditures that must be addressed.

As my friend, Senator MCCONNELL, stated many times on the floor of this Senate, the Nation does not suffer from too much political debate. It probably suffers from too little. If we lower the amount that can be raised, and the networks keep raising the amount that is required to be spent, all we are going to accomplish is less discussion of issues. If the networks were devoting more time to the impartial discussion of issues, debates, news coverage, conventions, it would be a good substitute for political advertising. But the amount of news coverage is collapsing while the costs go up.

If we control the expenditures, the net result will simply be this: The American people, making vital decisions about the Nation's future, with less and less and less information.

The hypocrisy of this gets worse. It is not just that networks charge more money and have less news coverage. For those of us who believe there should be a requirement for free or reduced-rate air time over the public airwaves, to reduce the need to raise this money, guess who is working against us. The very people who employ Mr. Brokaw, Mr. Rather, and Mr. Jennings, who, every night, are complaining about the cost of political advertising. Their employers are lobbying to stop the reforms. The National Association of Broadcasters, the lobbying arm of the television networks, spent $2.8 million lobbying Congress in 1998.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator's time has expired.

Mr. TORRICELLI. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent for an additional 2 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. TORRICELLI. In the year 2000, they have already spent $1.4 million.

As the Washington Post reported on May 2, when it comes to helping solve the political fundraising problem, the broadcasting industry ''doesn't see beyond its own bottom line.'' Exactly.

They are for campaign finance reform, unless they have to make a contribution. They are the principal component of this problem. Every person in this institution is spending time raising money when they should be working on legislation—compromising public confidence in the Congress by raising exorbitant amounts of money to feed the television networks that do not meet their own responsibility in reporting the news, no less in reducing the costs.

This is everybody's problem. The principal burden of solving it is in this Senate. I do not excuse that. The principal burden is here. We should be requiring free or low-cost television. But it is not our problem alone. Everyone in America can make a contribution to this. And it begins with the networks. You have a public license. The airwaves of the United States belong to the American people. In no other democracy in the world does the cost approach what we require for political candidates to raise money to use the public airwaves to communicate with our own constituents—sold at a profit.

I believe this Senate should require the FCC to have the networks offer a reasonable amount of free or reduced-rate advertising to candidates for Federal office as a matter of law. But until we do, the networks, as a matter of public responsibility, need to evaluate how much time they are devoting to political news so the American people are informed, recognizing that is the only way for democracy to reach sound judgments, and to unilaterally meet their responsibility and reduce these costs unless or until this Congress takes action. I believe this is the heart of the campaign finance problem.

Mr. President, I thank the Senator from North Dakota, once again, for allowing me the time.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from North Dakota.

TO AUTHORIZE EXTENSION OF NONDISCRIMINATORY TREATMENT TO THE PEOPLE'S REPUBLIC OF CHINA—MOTION TO PROCEED—Continued

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, am I recognized for 30 minutes by previous consent in postcloture debate?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator has up to 1 hour.

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, some long while ago I was at a meeting in North Dakota, and I was talking about senior citizen issues and health care, and a range of things, and I used a statistic. I told the senior citizens who were at the meeting that there are two men for every woman over the age of 80 in the United States. And an older fellow rose from his chair and leaned forward on his cane and said to me: Young man, that is one of the most useless statistics I have ever heard.

I thought about that for a while. There are a lot of useless statistics used in all kinds of different venues. In this discussion about trade, there will certainly be plenty of statistics used. Perhaps plenty of them will be useless. But I do want to talk about some trade statistics today because we are now debating the motion to proceed to the bill that would make normal trade relations with China permanent.

I think there are a lot of wonderful things going on in this country. All of us should count our blessings that we live in a country that is doing so well. The economy is growing, growing rapidly; we have unprecedented economic growth and opportunity. It is a great time. Unemployment is down, way down. Inflation is down, way down. Crime is down. Home ownership is up.

You could look at all of the data. Productivity is up, up, way up. All of the data shows that this country is doing very well. All of us need to be thankful for that.

But there are some storm clouds on the horizon in one area, and that is in the area of international trade. And we should not ignore them.

This is not about Republicans and Democrats. It is about a public policy area this country must address. If we don't address it in a thoughtful way, we will not continue this kind of economic opportunity and growth.

Here is a chart that describes what is happening in trade. This is the merchandise trade deficit for this country; that is, the trade in goods. I have not included the trade in services, only the trade in merchandise goods. This is essentially manufacturing. We eliminated the red ink in the budget. The budget deficits are gone. But the trade deficits are going up, way up. This year especially. In June, the monthly merchandise trade deficit increased to $36.8 billion. The deficit for the first half of this year was $216 billion. That means that at the end of this year we will probably have a $430 billion merchandise trade deficit. We are buying from abroad $1.2 billion a day in goods more than we are selling abroad, and that can't continue forever.

With whom are these deficits? Well, for the first half of the year 2000, the merchandise deficit that we have with Mexico is nearly $12 billion; with Canada, $22.6 billion and increasing dramatically. With the European Union, it is a dramatic increase from $16 billion for the first half of last year to $26 billion this year. With China, it has increased from $29 billion to $36 billion.

These are not yearly figures. These are 6-month figures, January through June. So this is equal to a $72 billion annual trade deficit with the country of China. With Japan, this is almost unforgivable, year after year, forever, we have had these huge budget deficits with Japan. Now they are totaling nearly $80 billion a year.

What is happening is wrong. I am not a classic ''protectionist,'' as the press would describe some of those involved in this debate. I believe we need to expand international trade. I believe we ought to be open for competition and be required to compete. But I also believe the trade ought to be fair; the rules of trade ought to be fair. Globalization attends to it some requirement that we have global rules, not only global markets.

What is happening here, with Japan and China and, yes, others, is they are selling into our marketplace at a record pace in a whole range of areas, yet we are not able to access opportunities in their marketplace. I wonder how many Americans know what the tariff would be on a pound of U.S. beef that is shipped to Japan today? Do you want to ship a T-bone steak that comes from a ranch in North Dakota to Tokyo? What do you think the tariff would be on a T-bone steak going to Tokyo? I will tell you what it is. It is over 40 percent, a tariff of over 40 percent on American beef going into Japan. That is after we have negotiated an agreement with Japan. That shows the failure of our negotiations. A country that has an $80 billion trade surplus with us is allowed to have a greater than 40-percent tariff on American beef going to them. Obviously, there is something fundamentally wrong with the way we negotiate trade agreements.

We recently negotiated a trade agreement with China, a big, old country with 1.2 billion people. One can't help but stand on the Great Wall of China and look at those mountains, at the country, and express wonder at who they are and where they have been, their rich history, and what they will be tomorrow. What an interesting country. But we have a $72 billion merchandise trade deficit with China. We just negotiated an agreement that is a bad agreement. Let's take automobiles as one example: China has 1.2 billion potential drivers, as soon as they all reach driving age, and we want to sell American cars to some of them. So here is what we said when we negotiated the agreement: This is what we will do. You have a $72 billion trade surplus with us, or we have a big deficit with you. So we will negotiate a bilateral agreement with you where we will have a 2.5-percent tariff on any Chinese automobiles you want to send to us, and we will have a 25-percent tariff on any automobiles we send into China. In other words, after the negotiation is done, we will agree that we will accept a tariff imposed by China that is 10 times higher on U.S. automobiles than will be imposed by the United States on vehicles from China.

Ask somebody, how on Earth can that happen? Was somebody drinking heavily while they negotiated? How can one possibly agree to something that is that unfair? I could go on and on. It will serve no purpose, except to say that these numbers ought to demonstrate that while things are doing well in this country and while we are blessed with a wonderful economy, these storm clouds with respect to the trade imbalance need to be attended to. We need better trade agreements, and we need more attention to trade agreements that require elements of fair trade between our country and Japan, between us and the Chinese, between us and Europe, and between us and Canada.

Last month, The Wall Street Journal had a piece ''Will the Trade Gap Lower the Boom?'' It notes that our trade gap is now about 4.2 percent of our overall economy, and it goes on to say that:

> A percentage that high would scare the green eyeshades right off the analysts in many industrialized nations.

We don't hear a whisper about it—not here, not around the country, very seldom in the press. This is a very unusual story. It also says:

> But there is a disaster scenario that . . . gets more likely with each breath that fills the trade deficit balloon. . . . On average, the current account gap hits its limit at 4.2 percent of GDP, exactly where the U.S. finds itself today. . . . Confidence in our economy could collapse before the rest of the world is firmly back on its feet.

The point is there is something wrong here, and Congress cannot ignore it. That is why Senator STEVENS, Senator BYRD, and I created in legislation a trade deficit review commission. It has finished its meetings and is now developing recommendations to policymakers both in the administration and Congress, on how to deal with this issue.

I have supported normal trade relations with China in the past. But, the issue for me isn't shall we make it permanent or not. Shall we have NTR with China? Of course, we should. The issue is: Are we going to do something about these deficits? Does anybody think having a $72 billion deficit with China is normal? Is that a normal trade relationship? Of course, it is not. It is abnormal. It is a perversion. How about Japan? Is this a normal trade relationship, having an $80 billion deficit with the country of Japan? That is not normal. It is abnormal. We, as a country, need to understand and say to China and Japan and others, the European Union, that we are all for expanded trade. We have been the leader in expanding trade. But we are also going to be the leader in standing up for our economic interests and demanding that the rules of trade be fair rules.

The first 25 years after the Second World War we could compete with anybody around the world with one hand tied behind our back. It was no problem at all. That was when our trade policy was just flat out foreign policy. The second 25 years, we have seen tougher economic competitors. Countries have developed with strong economies. They have become shrewd economic competitors. Every one of these countries have a managed trade economy in which they say: We will not allow what the United States allows. We will not ever allow the kind of run up of a trade deficit that the United States will allow.

We do it because we don't pay attention to it. We have this philosophy that somehow it will all right itself at some point in the future. It will not right itself without action by the Congress and the administration to say we are the leaders in free, expanded and fair trade, and we insist the rules of trade be fair.

I come to the floor during this discussion about China PNTR to say that there are other elements, in many ways bigger issues, to this trade debate that we must be attentive to and we must do so soon.

While there is a lot of good news—and we will hear a great deal of it during the campaigns by Republicans and Democrats, claiming credit for this, that, and the other thing—but I hope we will all claim credit for the responsibility to begin solving these problems. During good times, it seems to me, is the opportunity to look down the road and see where the storm clouds develop and figure out how to respond to them. We must, it seems to me, decide that it is a significant issue and it is in the interest of all citizens in this country that Congress begin to tackle this issue in a way that reduces these trade deficits, continues to expand our trade opportunities, but puts us on a better footing with our trading partners.

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that I may speak as in morning business.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

SPRINTING TO THE FINISH

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, yesterday I spoke briefly about the agenda that confronts this Congress in the next 5 weeks. This is literally a sprint to the finish. Much of what we will discuss and debate are the most important issues people worry about and are talking about around the supper table. They talk about the issues that affect them every day: Are our kids going to good schools? Are we proud of the schools we send our kids to? Do I have a good job? Does it provide retirement benefits, insurance, security? Will grandma and grandpa have adequate health care when they have serious health problems? Is our neighborhood a safe one in which to live? Can we afford the prescription drugs that the doctor prescribes and says we need to maintain a healthy lifestyle and to control a disease we may have?

All of these things are the things that interest families who discuss what their lives are like these days and how they can be improved.

I want to talk about the agenda and the issues with which we have to deal before this Congress adjourns. Before I do, as a way of introducing that, let me tell you about a television story that appeared on KFYR Television in Bismarck, ND, about 2 to 3 weeks ago. KFYR Television News did a piece about my Uncle Harold. My Uncle Harold, from Dickinson, ND, is now 80 years old, and he is a runner. There are not very many 80-year-old runners, so the television news did a story about him. The story showed him running down the street, with the gold medals he has won, and doing various things.

Here is the story about my uncle. About 6 or 7 years ago, he and my aunt went to the Prairie Rose Games in Fargo, ND, where they have events for everybody in different age brackets. They decided to enter the bowling event because they bowl. Harold also saw that they had races for people who are 70 and above, so he decided to enter one at about age 71. He had never run before, but he decided to enter three races at the Prairie Rose Games, and he won all three easily. He said, ''You know, I never knew I could run like that.'' So he started running. He went to Minnesota to run, and then to South Dakota, and Arizona.

Pretty soon, Uncle Harold started specializing. Now he runs in the 400 meter and 800 meter events. So I have this uncle who just turned 80 running in races all over the country. He now has 45 gold medals. My aunt thinks he has had a stroke. She thinks it is as goofy as the devil that this 80-year-old man is running. Yet he discovered he is the fastest around in his age bracket. He is going to try out for the Senior Olympics and go one more time. He took fifth out of 200-some runners the last time. Now that he is 80 and at the bottom of a new age bracket, he thinks he will get a gold medal in the Olympics. My uncle is a fisherman, so I don't know whether this is true, but he said he runs the 400 meter race in 79 seconds. I run a little as well. One of these days I will figure out whether I can run it in 79 seconds.

I should mention one other thing about Uncle Harold. He also golfs, and he is the strangest golfer I have ever golfed with. I went golfing with my uncle a couple of years ago. He takes a bag and only takes four or five clubs. He hits the ball and, because he is always in training for the Senior Olympics, he sprints on a dead run to the ball. It is a strange looking thing to see a guy who was 78 years old at the time hit a ball and go on a dead run to find out where it rested and then hit it again. In the meantime, my wife and I were driving a cart, and this 78-year-old man is sprinting on the golf course. I have since decided I should never drive a cart when golfing with my uncle.

The point is, here is this 80-year-old guy jogging 3 miles a day, getting ready to try to qualify to go again to the National Senior Olympics. That is pretty remarkable when you think about it. Thirty years ago, that would not have happened. Usually, when you are 80, you find a chair someplace and relax. But these days people are living longer, healthier lives. My uncle, for example, is training for the Olympics. That is the result of a lot of things: lifestyle changes, nutrition changes, cultural changes, better health care, Medicare. A whole series of things are happening in this country that are pretty remarkable. That really all relates to the agenda that we have in the next 5 weeks in this Congress.

Americans are living longer, living better, at a time when we are so blessed in this country. We have an agenda in the Congress that will have an impact on people's lives. Yes, for my uncle, but for everybody's aunts, uncles, brothers, and sisters—the agenda of health care and education and other things that mean so much to people's lives.

Let me talk for a minute about what we need to do and why. First of all, one of the advancements that allows people to live longer and healthier lives is the increase in the use of prescription drugs. There are so many illnesses and diseases for which, 35 years ago when Medicare was developed by this Congress, there were no medicines. But now there are miracle drugs, prescription medicines. We have decided that it is important to add a prescription drug benefit to the Medicare program. Why? Because being able to afford the right prescription drugs can allow people to lead healthier lives and treat illnesses and stay out of a hospital, which is horribly expensive. It is, in the long run, a bargain for the American people to say let's have a prescription drug benefit in the Medicare program.

Now, some say, well, we cannot afford it. The fact is that it will cost a lot more if we don't have it. People will get sick and go to hospitals and it will cost more. The issue of affordability applies more to senior citizens than to the Government. The reason we need this benefit is that too many senior citizens know they need a medicine, but they can't afford to buy it.

A doctor in Dickinson, ND, testified at a hearing I held in Dickinson. He said he prescribed a drug to a senior citizen who had a mastectomy in order to treat her breast cancer. The doctor said to his patient: This is the drug I am going to prescribe for you because it will reduce the chances of a recurrence of your cancer. She said: What does it cost? He told her and she said: Doctor, I can't afford to take that drug. I will just have to take my chances.

At every hearing I have held, I have heard testimony from people who say: We go to the back of the grocery store where the pharmacy is first because we have to buy our prescription drugs first; only then, will we know how much money we have left over to buy food.

Spending on prescription drugs increased 16 percent last year in this country. Sixteen percent. Some of that is increased utilization and some is increased prices. But too many senior citizens know they need a prescription drug, and they can't afford it. We need to do two things: put on pressure to bring drug prices down and, No. 2, add an affordable, universal, voluntary prescription drug benefit to the Medicare program.

Mr. President, with your permission, I want to show a couple of pill bottles. I ask unanimous consent to be allowed to do that.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DORGAN. I will speak about the prices charged for prescription drugs in this country versus the prices charged elsewhere in the world for the identical medicine.

These two bottles are slightly different but they contain the same pill. Both bottles are for a wonderful drug called Zocor, which is used to lower cholesterol in patients. It is a medication that a lot of people use. I commend all those who did the research to create these kind of drugs. But to those who decided the prices that ought to be charged for these medications to various citizens around the world, I don't say good job.

Let me describe what has happened.

In both bottles are the same pill, in the same dosage, made by the same company, perhaps made in the same manufacturing plant, approved by the FDA. Once the medicine is approved by the FDA, the FDA approves the manufacturing plants, and the company produces the drug for sale. This bottle they sent to Canada. They say to the Canadians: Do you want to buy some Zocor? It will lower your cholesterol. It is $1.82 per tablet.

This other bottle they sent to Grand Forks or Minot, ND, or anywhere else in the U.S. To Americans they say: Do you want to buy some Zocor? Well, you will have to pay $3.82 per tablet. $1.82 and $3.82, why the difference? That is something we ought to ask the drug companies.

I have taken a group of senior citizens to Canada to a little drugstore in Emerson, Manitoba. I stood in that one-room pharmacy, and I saw the prices charged there. I have seen the prices charged for the same medications in North Dakota. I know the drugstores on Main Streets in North Dakota are not charging higher prices because they want to overcharge. They are simply having to pay the drug companies an inflated price far above that which is charged in Canada, England, Germany, Italy, France, and in virtually every other country in the world because the pharmaceutical manufacturers impose that charge on them. This is not the fault of Main Street drugstores.

Again, I ask the question—I have asked this many times—is there anyone in the Senate who wants to stand up and say: Count me in on supporting these prices; I really believe it is fair and right to charge the American consumer $3.82 for the exact same pill for which a Canadian is charged $1.82? Is there one Senator willing to say this? There hasn't been one in the last six weeks that I have asked this question. If there is not any Senator willing to stand up and say this, then will all of them join us to try to change this situation so that the American consumer who needs to purchase prescription drugs receives a fair price?

The amendment that we passed in the Senate is now in conference. I am one of the conferees. What we are saying with this legislation is that pharmacists and drug wholesalers have the same right to reimport prescription drugs into this country that the drug companies already have, provided that the imported medications are FDA-approved and made in FDA-approved plants. It is very simple. We need to do that before this session of Congress ends.

The prescription drug companies are working overtime, of course, to kill this provision. They say the issue is safety. It is not. It is profits. That is what the issue is—profits, not safety. These are pills made in FDA-approved plants. These are medicines approved by the FDA with a chain of custody that can be traced from the manufacturing plant to the drugstores. There is no safety issue at all.

Adding a prescription drug benefit to the Medicare Program and enacting legislation that we passed on the floor with the bipartisan support of Senator JEFFORDS, Senator GORTON, myself, and many others who have worked on this are two things Congress must do before adjourning this year.

The other thing we need to do is pass a Patients' Bill of Rights.

I want to talk a few minutes about that today because we have Patients' Bill of Rights legislation that is in conference.

What is the Patients' Bill of Rights? This legislation says let's even up the odds a little bit between people who are sick and their insurance companies. Let's even up the odds a little bit.

In some cases what has been happening is that a person's medical care has become a function of their insurance company's profit. All too often doctors are not the ones making the decision about what kind of care is provided to a patient. It is an accountant in some insurance office thousands of miles away.

Yesterday, I mentioned a young boy in Nevada. I want to mention him again because it seems to me that he illustrates, as with so many others, the problem. A young man named Christopher Roe died October 12 last year. His mother came to a hearing that Senator REID and I co-chaired in Nevada. He died on October 12, 1999, on his 16th birthday. The official cause of his death was leukemia. But his mother tells us that the real reason he died was that his health care plan denied him the investigational chemotherapy drug that he needed. He needed a shot, a chance, and the bureaucracy of the managed care organization never gave him that chance. They just took forever to get to that point.

Christopher Roe died, and Christopher Roe's mother came to our hearing. She held up a large picture of Christopher. She wept as she told us about her son who from his sickbed looked up at her, and said, ''Mom, I just don't understand how they could do this to a kid?'' Good question? Christopher died.

Or let me share another example. A woman fell off a cliff in the Shenandoah mountains. She was hauled into an emergency room unconscious with broken bones. She was treated. After a difficult period, she survived, and was then told by her managed care organization that they wouldn't cover her emergency room treatment because she didn't get prior approval. She was hauled in on a gurney unconscious, but the managed care organization said: You did not get prior approval for emergency room treatment.

That is the kind of thing that is happening all too often in this country.

Or, perhaps a better way to describe it is with the story of Ethan Bedrick, a young boy born with cerebral palsy resulting from a complicated delivery who was told that he had only a 50-percent chance of being able to walk by age 5. The managed care organization denied him the therapy he needed because they said a 50-percent chance of a young boy being able to walk by age 5 was insignificant. They considered it insignificant that a young boy had a 50-percent chance of being able to walk with the right kind of therapy.

Is there a reason to question those who are making health care decisions in the sterile offices of managed care organizations 1,000 miles away from where the doctor is seeing the patient and describing the medical treatment that is necessary for the patient's care? Yes. That is why I wanted to make this point.

We had a debate on patients' care in the Senate a while back. We lost by one vote, effectively, because there were some Members missing. We may have turned the tide in the Senate based on that vote, in which case the Presiding Officer may very well have broken the tie. But a substitute Patients' Bill of Rights was offered by our colleague, Senator NICKLES, when we offered the Patients' Bill of Rights.

Dr. GREG GANSKE, a Republican Member of the U.S. House, wrote a letter to all of us about that substitute. In fact, the local papers described the substitute that the Senate passed as the Patients' Bill of Rights. It was not a Patients' Bill of Rights. It was a ''patients' bill of goods.'' But the Senate passed it, and the papers wrote exactly what those who supported it had hoped they would: The Senate passed a Patients' Bill of Rights.

Dr. GANSKE, a Republican Member of Congress, said this Senate legislation virtually eliminates any meaningful remedy for most working Americans and their families against death and injury caused by HMOs.

That is not a Democrat speaking. That is a Republican Member of the U.S. House, Dr. GANSKE.

Let me describe the legal analysis he sent around to every Member of the Senate:

> . . . The measure would appear to undo State law remedies for medical injuries caused by managed care companies treatment decisions and delays.
> . . . In the name of patient protection the Senate legislation appears to eliminate virtually any meaningful remedy for most working Americans and their families.
> . . . A vehicle for protecting managed care companies from various forms of legal liability under current law.
> Viewed in this light, the congressional passage of the Senate bill would be worse than were Congress to enact no measure at all.

I raise this because this is not a Democrat being critical of a Republican proposal. It is a Republican Member of Congress saying that the proposal passed by the Senate was worthless, just worthless.

This is not partisan criticism, it is Dr. GANSKE, a Republican Member of Congress, saying what the majority of the Senate claimed was a real Patients' Bill of Rights was worthless.

Now we could, and should, and I hope will pass a real Patients' Bill of Rights. There is a commercial being run in a northeastern State on behalf of a Member of the Senate who voted for our Patients' Bill of Rights, the Norwood-Dingell Patients' Bill of Rights that was passed on a bipartisan basis by the House. A Member of the Senate who voted for that—a Republican; there were only a very few—is running a commercial paid for by the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee that says this Senator voted for a real Patients' Bill of Rights—meaning ours.

It is fascinating to me that we now have a circumstance where the Republican Campaign Committee is saying that the Patients' Bill of Rights we proposed was the ''real one.'' We will have more to say about that and have a more aggressive debate about that in the days ahead.

My expectation is that there will be a tie vote when another vote occurs—and it will happen again; we fully intend it to happen again. Fortunately, we will have a Vice President to break that tie. The Patients' Bill of Rights issue is very important.

Let me mention a couple of other issues, and then I will conclude.

We also have a responsibility to deal with the farm crisis and we have not done so very well. We have a farm bill that doesn't work. The Freedom to Farm bill does not work. It has been a failure since it was enacted in 1996. The promise was: Produce what you want; we will sell it overseas and get rid of the farm program and things will be better off.

Since that time, prices have collapsed and family farmers have had an awful time trying to make ends meet. In most cases, they are receiving far less now in real terms than they received during the Great Depression for their product. These are not people who are slothful. These are not people who aren't being productive. They are economic all-stars. They produce in prodigious quantity the food the world needs so desperately. Yet the market says: By the way, your food has no value.

While people climb trees to pick leaves to eat in countries around the world where there is not enough food, family farmers driving a 2-ton truck to a country elevator are told by the grain trader: Your food has no value.

Something is wrong with that. What really has no value is the current farm program. It doesn't work. It is long past time to fix it. We are within three or four votes of doing that. I encourage help from the other side to give us the votes needed to pass a farm program that provides real assistance for family farmers.

While we are on the subject of freedom, those who wrote the Freedom to Farm bill—I didn't, and I voted against it—should understand there is something called the freedom to sell. The freedom to sell means if you want to give family farmers the freedom to produce whatever, let's also give them the freedom to sell their products in markets such as Iran, Iraq, Cuba, North Korea, and others that have been off limits to them because this country has imposed economic sanctions against countries whose behavior we don't like. I am fine with economic sanctions. Slap them with sanctions. But don't ever include food as a part of those sanctions. Using food as a weapon is unbecoming to this country. A country as big and as good and as powerful and as important as this country ought never use food as a weapon.

The freedom to sell is a pretty important principle which we ought to care a bit about. There is an amendment that I put in the appropriations bill now in conference, and I know there are a couple of House leaders who are intending to try to kill that as we get to conference. I am hoping with the bipartisan support we received in the Senate that we will prevail on this issue.

Finally, one of the other important issues we face as we wrap up this Congress is trying to do something to strengthen the education system in our country. We have the opportunity to do that. It is just that we have all of this bickering back and forth. We have things that we know need to be done. Everybody here understands that if you are in a classroom of 15 people, there is more learning going on than if there is a classroom with 1 teacher and 30 kids. Class size matters. We have proposals to reduce class size which will dramatically improve education.

We also understand you cannot learn in schools that are in functional disrepair. No wonder there is disrepair in the schools. They were built 50 or 60 years ago, after World War II, when we had soldiers coming back, having families, and building schools for their children all across the country. Many of these schools are still in use today and are in desperate need of repair and remodeling. If anyone doubts that, take a trip to the Ojibwa school on the Turtle Mountain Indian Reservation or the Cannon Ball Elementary School, south of Bismarck, ND. Take a look at those schools and ask yourself whether those schools need help.

The third grader who walks through the classroom door in the Cannon Ball School ought to be able to expect the same opportunity for a good education as all kids in this country. Yet these children don't have the same opportunity. We know that. Yet legislation to improve and modernize our schools languish in this Senate because some people don't believe it is important, or some people believe they cannot do it because if they did, somebody would declare victory for a public policy that makes sense.

Let's declare victory for a little common sense in all of these areas: Education, health care, agriculture. There are so many areas. The agenda in this Congress is the agenda we establish. If we are a Congress of underachievers, that is our fault, not something we blame on anybody else.

I wish I were in the majority here, but I am not. The majority establishes a schedule; we don't. I accept that. We have a right, and insist on the right, between now and the 5 weeks when this Congress wraps up its business, to try to bring to the floor of the Senate once again a real Patients' Bill of Rights and have another vote. We have a right to try to push these policies to get them done. We have a right to try to push education policies that we think will enhance and improve education in this country. We have a right to try to push policies that say we want to add a prescription drug benefit to the Medicare program. We have a right to insist that the American consumer pay prices for prescription drugs that are fair—not the highest prices of anyone in the entire world.

We have a right to address all of those issues, and we should. There is time. It is just a matter of will. Will the Members of the Senate who do the scheduling, who plan the agenda, exhibit the will to do what is right in the final 5 weeks and pass this kind of legislation?

As I said when I started, when people sit down at the dinner table and talk about their lives, they are talking about things that matter to them. All of the things I have talked about are things that matter to them: Are our kids going to good schools? Do grandpa and grandma have the opportunity to get decent health care when they are sick? Are the neighborhoods safe? Do I have a decent job? Does it pay well? Does it have security? All of those are things that are important to the American people. All of those are things they should expect this Congress to address in the coming 5 weeks.

I yield the floor.

Mr. GRAMS. Mr. President, what is the order of business pending before the Senate?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senate is debating the motion to proceed on the permanent normal trade relations with China.

Mr. GRAMS. Mr. President, I would like to talk about my support for H.R. 4444, but I just want to respond briefly to one comment of the Senator from North Dakota, Mr. DORGAN. I think he was bragging a little bit, maybe, about his uncle who is 80 years old and running in a marathon. I just congratulate him. How great that our senior citizens, because of the advances of medicine, can do that. I have a friend retiring at the age of 65. He wanted to retire to spend more time playing golf with his dad. Another is an uncle who was 85 last year who got his first hole-in-one, Ray Sandey. I just wanted to put that into the RECORD and congratulate them on their achievements.

Mrs. LINCOLN. Mr. President, I wish to comment on the comments of my two colleagues who have spoken about the important issues facing our aging populations in this Nation. They both commented on the 83-year-olds and the 84-year-olds. I think I have them beat. My husband's grandmother will turn 103 on the last day of this month.

So the issues for the elderly in Arkansas are extremely important to us, a No. 1 priority, and something I hope we will address in the context of a prescription drug piece for the elderly, as well as reauthorizing the Older Americans Act, not to mention the importance of solidifying and preserving Social Security and Medicare.

TO AUTHORIZE EXTENSION OF NONDISCRIMINATORY TREATMENT TO THE PEOPLE'S REPUBLIC OF CHINA—MOTION TO PROCEED—Continued

Mr. GRAMS. Mr. President, I rise in strong support of H.R. 4444, which grants permanent normal trade relations—PNTR—to China. We should have passed this in early June, and I deeply regret the delay and hope we can expedite the House bill without amendments.

I believe this is a no brainer. China negotiated a WTO accession agreement with the United States—an agreement in which China has committed to improve market access for most U.S. products and services to China. In exchange, the one thing we are required to grant them is PNTR—the same treatment all WTO members afford each other.

The U.S.-China WTO agreement is a good one. China has made commitments in nearly every sector of our economy—agriculture, goods and services. Strong enforcement measures were included which allow us to not only continue use of our strong trade remedy laws, but China has agreed to allow us to use a tougher safeguard standard than our current ''201'' law and continued use of tougher antidumping laws. This will help us enforce the agreement and generally allow us to use very tough trade remedy laws to address dumping and import surges.

U.S. competitiveness will also be protected since China has dropped its requirement that U.S. companies transfer technology in order to export or invest in China. Exports to China will no longer require Chinese components or performance requirements. China will allow competition through imports for the first time. U.S. exporters can sell directly rather than using a government distribution system. It has made commitments on intellectual property enforcement as well.

For the first time, China will be subject to the multilateral trade disciplines of the WTO. Any WTO member can enter into the dispute settlement process with China if China does not live up to any of its bilateral commitments. We can still use our trade remedy laws against China if necessary, and the Administration has tripled resources to monitor and enforce the U.S.-China WTO accession agreement.

Some may say this week that we can continue our annual Jackson-Vanik review of China and still receive the benefits of the U.S.-China agreement—or they will say the 1979 U.S.-China Bilateral Agreement will provide the same benefits as the 1999 agreement. They will claim we need the annual review to achieve progress on human rights, nuclear proliferation and other areas of differences we have with China. However, virtually none of the concessions achieved in the 1999 agreement are covered in the 1979 agreement. And we will not receive the benefits under the 1999 agreement if we do not grant China PNTR. The annual review is not responsible for the progress we have made in China—so it is time to end it.

Let's examine what PNTR will mean to U.S. farmers and workers. A Goldman Sachs estimate indicates U.S. exports to China will increase by $14 billion per year by 2005. In 1998, U.S. exports to China exceeded $14 billion, which supported over 200,000 high-wage American jobs. Therefore, exports will more than quadruple by 2005—and the potential is enormous as China continues to grow in the future. USDA projects China will account for over one-third of the growth in U.S. ag exports in the next ten years. It will spend over $750 billion for new infrastructure projects.

Since the benefits for Minnesota my home state are particularly important to me, I want to use that as a reference, but I think it represents other States and their opportunities as well. Minnesota's exports to China in 1998 tripled the 1996 volume. China is now Minnesota's 12th largest export destination, up from 22nd in 1993. We are now exporting 25 product groups compared to 21 in 1993. There are many farmers and workers who will benefit from the projected growth in agriculture and infrastructure project sales in China.

Overall, America's farmers will prosper with an end to corn export subsidies, increased corn and wheat quotas, reduced tariffs from an average of 31 percent to 14 percent with greater decreases on soybeans, beef, pork, poultry, cheese, and ice cream. For example, my home State of Minnesota is the third largest soybean producer in the courtry, and China is the largest growth market for soybean products. Minnesota is the fourth largest feed corn producer, and the tariff-rate quota for corn will expand by 2004. China consumes more pork than any other country and will lower its pork tariffs and accept USDA certification. This is a huge boon for Minnesota pork producers. Cheese tariffs will be reduced from 50 percent to 12 percent, which will benefit Minnesota dairy farmers. Potato product tariffs will also be cut in half benefiting Minnesota's potato farmers and processors. Vegetable producers will see their tariffs drop up to 60 percent by 2004. And fertilizer and all ag products can now be distributed without going through a Chinese middleman.

Tariff reductions will help other Minnesota workers export more in the areas of ag equipment, forest products, medical equipment, scientific, and measuring instruments, computers, pumps, machinery of all kinds and environmental technology equipment. PNTR will open markets for our banking, insurance, telecommunications and software services. In fact, the Coalition of Service Industries states:

> It will enable U.S. service industries to begin to operate in one of the world's most important—and until now, most restricted—markets in the world.

Minnesota's largest exports to China now are industrial machinery, computers, and food products. And exports from small- and medium-sized businesses will expand. Right now Minnesota exports 55 percent of its total exports to China from small and medium businesses. Crystal Fresh, American Medical Systems, Inc., Image Sensing Systems, Inc., Minnesota Wire & Cable, ADC Telecommunications, Brustuen International, and Auto Tech International are among Minnesota's smaller companies with success stories to tell. Their China markets are expanding, and the 1999 agreement will only increase their potential. Of course we have long-time exporters such as Honeywell, 3M, Cargill, Pillsbury, Land O'Lakes, and many others who will be able to expand their exports to China as well.

You have heard that the 1999 agreement will not produce overnight results, but I believe it will produce some short-term positive results. And the best benefit will be the longer term prospects. It is important to continue building commercial relationships for the future in order to reap those longer-term benefits. If we are not there early on, we may miss out on important future gains. As China develops and more of its citizens improve their earning power, they will demand more food products, goods and services. PNTR will allow U.S. firms the opportunity to compete for their business.

I would now like to address some of the concerns of our labor union friends who believe PNTR will result in huge job losses in the U.S. That is curious to me since the U.S.-China WTO accession agreement is one sided. Union leaders cite an Economic Policy Institute—EPI—study alleging at least 872,091 jobs will be lost between 1999 and 2010, but the EPI study assumes every Chinese import displaces domestic production. However, a CATO analysis shows most of our imports from China substitute for imports from other countries or are inputs used in the U.S. to produce final U.S. products. If a rising trade deficit causes job losses, why are our unemployment rates the lowest they have been in 30 years?

The Institute for International Economics also indicates that most of the growth of the U.S.-China trade imbalance is due to China taking market share from other East Asian economies rather than from U.S. producers.

The bilateral agreement includes greater protections against unfair imports than we currently have and it will eliminate many Chinese practices that have helped it stimulate its own exports as well as forcing many U.S. companies to invest in China. Any ''giant sucking sound'' we may have seen in the past will be reversed under the U.S.-China WTO agreement. China will be forced to abandon many of its policies which did force or encourage U.S. companies to invest there. The agreement will grow U.S. jobs by allowing us to export more of our products from the U.S. rather than selling through U.S. investments in China.

Union leaders also speculate that U.S. companies want to shift production to China to take advantage of labor rates ''as low as 13 cents an hour.'' The average production worker wage at U.S. companies in China is $4 an hour and $9.25 for higher skilled workers. The World Bank indicates average Chinese wages grew by 343 percent between 1987 and 1997, mainly due to China's engagement with other countries. I believe approving PNTR and allowing more trade with China would continue the trend toward higher wages for Chinese workers.

A group of 12 academicians recently commented on China's low wages and stated that PNTR would help improve China's labor standards. They discussed China's poverty as the main reason for low wages and often poor working conditions. They concluded child labor often is necessary to help families survive. They believe China's entry into the WTO will help it enforce and improve its own laws, and that opposing PNTR undermines China's efforts to improve its labor rights. They concluded by stating:

> Whoever may benefit from a sanctions approach to trade with China, it will certainly not be Chinese workers or their children.

You will also hear claims that the U.S. is being flooded with products made by Chinese forced labor. Both our trade laws and the WTO prohibit forced-labor imports, and the U.S. Customs Service vigorously enforces our law.

Union leaders also talk about PNTR as a reward to China, yet it is hard to see how the bilateral agreements negotiated by China to enter the WTO are a reward. Many, many concessions were made, and those commitments are binding and will be vigorously enforced bilaterally and through the WTO.

I hope union members, who will benefit from the U.S.-China WTO agreement, will listen to their elder statesman Leonard Woodcock, who stated recently:

> I have been startled by organized labor's vociferous negative reaction to this agreement . . . in this instance, I think our labor leaders have got it wrong. . . . American labor has a tremendous interest in China's trading on fair terms with the U.S. The agreement we signed with China this past November marks the largest single step ever taken toward achieving that goal.

In my State of Minnesota, Governor Jesse Ventura, in his March testimony before the Ways and Means Committee, also sent union leaders a message. The Governor said:

> They (unions) better modernize themselves and realize that opening up China to our trade is going to create more jobs here. . . .

I have spoken to union members and others who are also concerned about labor and environmental practices in China. While China, as a developing country, has a way to go on these issues, they certainly have made some progress as well. And I am proud that American companies investing in China have created better jobs, higher wages and better working conditions and have begun to serve as a model for their Chinese counterparts. Many U.S. companies have ''best practices'' of environmental, health, and safety standards which provide good job opportunities for many Chinese citizens. Housing, meals, insurance, and medical care are often included in their employment.

Here is what a Chinese employee of one American company in Shanghai stated:

> I, a common girl, with no power and no money, could hardly imagine all these things could be done several years ago . . . don't let the friendship become cool (U.S.-China). Many of the Chinese people are longing for knowledge, techniques and culture from western countries, especially U.S.

An employee of another American firm in China stated:

> . . . when our local company merged two years ago, my salary was increased five or six times . . .

Another worker said:

After I joined the company, my family's life and living standard improved, I have some deposit in the bank and bought a new apartment which is big enough for my family.

You will hear a lot during this debate about how we are pandering to U.S. companies who want to trade with China, ignoring all of our concerns with China. However, as noted previously, there are many examples of how American companies are helping Chinese citizens improve their lives, and as China privatizes more of its state-owned industries, the new owners will look to our companies as an example of how to succeed. I strongly believe American companies care about their employees and that they do not invest abroad to exploit local workers and ruin the environment. I believe American companies help bring about positive changes in China and other nations, and the exposure to Western ideals and values they bring to China includes a better work experience for those they hire. In fact, American companies are taking their responsibility seriously by setting up programs in their Chinese subsidiaries addressing issues from fair labor practices and environmental standards to community involvement.

For those concerned about human rights, I again ask why they believe human rights would be aided by isolating ourselves from China. Maintaining relationships with the Chinese people through trade and other contact I believe is the best way to help the Chinese people help themselves. They are the ones who will promote changes from within that will improve their lives. Even Martin Lee, the Chairman of the Democratic Party of Hong Kong, who has long fought for human rights in China, recently stated:

The participation of China in the WTO would not only have economic and political benefits, but would also serve to bolster those in China who understand that the country must embrace the rule of law.

The Dalai Lama, also long critical of China's human rights practices, especially in Tibet, states:

Joining the World Trade Organization, I think, is one way (for China) to change in the right direction . . . I think it is a positive development.

Some believe granting PNTR will help promote hardliners in China's leadership. However, a Washington Post story earlier this year noted that China analysts have found hardliners, including PLA officials, worrying that WTO membership will privatize more of China's economy and import more western ideas about management and civil society which they see as a threat to those who want to ensure the longevity of the one-party Communist state.

The U.S. should be part of this, through the granting of PNTR. While China will become a member of the WTO with or without us, I would certainly prefer the U.S. have a part in using our improved trade relationship as a way to make progress on our differences with China.

Many human rights activists support China PNTR. Former political prisoner Fu Shenqi says:

I unquestionably support the (view that NTR and the human rights question be separated because) the annual argument over NTR renewal exerts no genuine pressure on the Chinese communists and performs absolutely no role in compelling them to improve the human rights situation . . .

The China Democracy Party, founded two years ago, issued a statement including:

. . . We declare hereby to support the Unconditional PNTR to China by the U.S. government.

Zhou Yang, Executive director of the China Democracy and Freedom Alliance, states:

Granting PNTR to China is a positive force in promoting China's recognition of world human rights and in improving the human rights situation of the Chinese people.

Noted Chinese human rights activist Bao Tong was more direct, saying: ''Pass permanent normal trade relations with China . . .'' and adding, ''But in the U.S., the 'Seattle coalition . . . have combined their lobbying firepower to oppose the move (PNTR). From here in China, their intellectual counterparts are looking on in dismay . . . it doesn't make sense to use trade as a lever. It just doesn't work.'' There are many others with similar advice.

Included in the definition of human rights is religious persecution. While religious leaders remain concerned about the recent report from the U.S. International Religious Freedom Commission, which points out China has a long way to go toward religious freedom, they point to progress as well. A letter signed by 13 religious organizations concluded:

Change will not occur overnight in China. Nor can it be imposed from outside. Rather, change will occur gradually, and it will be inspired and shaped by the aspirations, culture and history of the Chinese people. We on the outside can help advance religious freedom and human rights best through policies of normal trade, exchange and engagement for the mutual benefit of peoples of faith, scholars, workers and businesses. Enacting permanent normal trade relations with China is the next, most important legislative step that Congress can take to help in this process.

As you know, the House has attached a Commission on China to PNTR, which would monitor human rights progress with an annual report. It would set a U.S. objective to work to create a WTO mechanism to measure compliance, and requires an annual USTR report on the PRC's compliance with the 1999 agreement and also authorizes additional staff to monitor China's compliance. It also includes sense-of-the-Congress language that China and Taiwan should enter the WTO at the same time.

The bottom line is PNTR is easy. China had to do all the heavy lifting. We gave up noting in these negotiations, and PNTR doesn't force us to give up anything. I urge my colleagues to oppose all amendments offered in an attempt to either slow down or kill PNTR. While the amendments point out problem areas we have with China, these matters should be, and are, addressed separately in high-level contact between our two countries. I address them as well in contact I have with Chinese officials.

Particularly, I urge you to oppose the Thompson-Torricelli amendment. While I will have a much longer statement once that amendment is offered, I will only say now that this amendment in any form will drive a wedge through our efforts to improve our relationship with China. It will foster a relationship of mistrust that will not help us improve China's proliferation record or its record on any other differences. The amendment is counterproductive. The amendment will not accomplish its goal of reducing proliferation, and it will create hostility between our countries. As Henry Kissinger stated:

If hostility to China were to become a permanent aspect of our foreign policy, we would find no allies. Nationalism would accelerate throughout the region. Just as American prestige grew with the opening to China, most Asian nations would blame America for generating an unwanted cold war with Beijing.

This amendment will force us on the path of a cold war most of us never want to see again. Also, there have been so many drafts of this amendment, I am not sure any of us will really know what we are voting on. An amendment as controversial as this one deserves to go through the usual congressional committee process, and not be offered in a highly politicized matter on the Senate floor.

There has been progress with China and proliferation, human rights and other issues. Let's work with China toward further progress—and use the laws we already have, if necessary, to address lack of progress. Above all, let's not use trade as a weapon. Let's pass PNTR to provide our workers and farmers the benefits of the U.S.-China WTO agreement. This should be one of the easiest trade votes we will ever take. Let's vote on H.R. 4444 without amendment now—this week—not 2 weeks from now.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. BURNS). The Senator from Arkansas.

Mrs. LINCOLN. Mr. President, I, too, am here to speak on the issue of permanent normal trade relations with China.

In order to be successful in today's global economy, every industry must market its products overseas. And in order for the United States to continue the unprecedented economic growth we have seen during the last few years, we must adopt policies that open international markets for farmers, small businesses, manufacturers and service industries.

On November 15 of last year, our Government successfully negotiated an historic trade agreement with the People's Republic of China that will bring China into the World Trade Organization. The potential impact of this arrangement cannot be overstated. China is home to one-fifth of the world's population and is growing by 7 percent each year. Access to China's enormous population will help sustain American economic growth.

But before the United States and Arkansas can reap the full benefits of this agreement, Congress must vote to grant China Permanent Normal Trade Relations status. The WTO requires that its members extend normal trade relations to all other members.

There is a lot at stake depending on whether or not the United States grants PNTR to China. Since February, I have been urging the Senate leadership to bring this issue up for a vote as soon as possible. I had hoped that we would approve this legislation prior to the August recess, but nevertheless, I am anxious to finish work on this bill as soon as possible and get it on the President's desk for signature. There are so many things at stake. We must not lose this opportunity.

China will join the WTO regardless of the congressional decision on PNTR, so a decision to deny this new status to China will only give China license to keep its markets closed to U.S. services and agriculture, and to keep its high tariffs in place on U.S. goods and services while opening it up to all other WTO members.

All sectors of our economy, especially agriculture, will benefit from increased trade with China. Likewise, all sectors of our economy will suffer if we don't trade with China. Chinese accession into the WTO could mean $2 billion more a year in national agricultural exports to China by the year 2005.

On U.S. priority agricultural products, tariffs will drop from an average of 31 percent to 14 percent. China will also expand access for bulk agricultural products, permit private trade in these products, and eliminate export subsidies. In my home State of Arkansas, rice, poultry, soybean and cotton producers will stand to reap enormous benefits from opening markets with China, including lower tariffs and increased trade. For instance, under its WTO accession agreement, China will cut tariffs on rice to 1 percent. Also, China is already the second leading market for U.S. poultry exports. If Congress approves PNTR status, it will cut tariffs in half from 20 percent to 10 percent by the year 2004 for frozen poultry cuts.

In addition to the agricultural changes, China's tariffs on American industrial goods will fall from an average of about 25 percent to less than 10 percent within 5 years. Industries including telecommunications, banking, insurance, reinsurance, and pensions will all gain expanded market access. In information technology, tariffs on products such as computers, semiconductors and all Internet-related equipment will decrease from an average of 13 percent to zero by the year 2005.

In exchange, the U.S. gives up nothing; our trade policies remain the same. The economic reasons make so much sense and are themselves a very powerful reason for passage of PNTR.

But the opportunity we have as a nation to make an impact on the humanity of China only exists if we are engaged with the country and its people. We cannot build a relationship that is effective if we turn our backs on China and isolate them.

Is China a perfect country? No.

I too share the concerns about human rights abuses in China and believe that a greater international presence in the country, fostered by free trade, will help to improve the lives of Chinese workers and citizens. WTO membership will strengthen the forces of reform inside China by exposing the Chinese to better paying jobs, and higher labor and environmental standards.

Finally, permanent normal trade relations with China will force the Chinese to play by the rules in the international marketplace.

Only under this agreement with their accession into the WTO will we have the proper recourse to be able to question their practices.

The WTO's dispute settlement system will force China to explain its actions if other member countries question them. In addition, the WTO's trade policy review mechanism will allow all other members to review a country's entire trade system. This type of scrutiny of China is virtually unprecedented in history.

If we do not approve PNTR status for China, the missed opportunities will be tremendous, not to mention the devastation it could have on our strong economy today. Our producers and industries will not be in a position to openly access the 1.3 billion people who live in China. The United States will not have the ability to challenge China's trade practices or demand better human rights practices. In short, the United States stands to gain enormously if we grant PNTR status to China, and we stand to lose enormously if we do not.

Certainly once China does enter the WTO, there will still be many challenges ahead for all of us, but congressional approval of PNTR for China is a critical first step. It means so much to this Nation and to my home State of Arkansas. We must take this first step in passage of a good, clean PNTR bill in the Senate. Having China in the WTO is a good deal for Arkansas and a good deal for this Nation.

I encourage my colleagues to approve the House-passed bill granting permanent normal trading relations with China—soon, not later—and that we send it to the President to be confirmed so we can continue building a relationship which will benefit both countries.

I yield the floor and suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. FEINGOLD. I rise today, Mr. President, to express my opposition to granting permanent normal trade relations to the People's Republic of China.

The recent history of U.S.-China relations has been a study in self-delusion. The administration and this Congress do not lack for evidence or information about the nature of the Chinese government. But I am afraid the siren song of vast Chinese markets has deafened too many ears to the news of oppression and abuse inside China. Too often, the U.S. has chosen to ignore the realities before us and, as in this trade debate, has engaged in political and intellectual contortions to compartmentalize and seal off a host of important issues so that the promise of vast profits can stand alone and unencumbered.

But I urge my colleagues to remember today—the mythological sirens' song served to lure sailors onto the rocks that crushed their ships. And refusing to look at the whole picture of U.S.-China relations in the single-minded pursuit of trade is, I submit, both foolish and dangerous. I fear that this country will find its policy in shambles unless we force ourselves to see the facts before us.

The fact is that China continues to be one of the most oppressive states in the world.

The State Department acknowledges that the human rights situation in China has deteriorated over the past year—a year in which the U.S. has extended normal trade relations with China, casting doubt on the claims that trade will lead to greater openness and therefore greater civil and political rights in China.

The list of abuses committed by the Chinese government is so lengthy, so encompassing, as to be numbing. Thousands of political prisoners remain in prison—many sentenced after unfair trials or no trial at all. Torture is regularly used to extract ''confessions'' from detainees. Authorities continue to use the brutal laogai system of ''re-education through labor'' to detain dissidents and others deemed dangerous to this paranoid state. Religious freedom does not exist in China; from global faiths like Catholicism to more obscure sects, the leadership in Beijing has sought to force its will and its agenda on spirituality. Nowhere is this more egregious than in Tibet, where thousands of monks and nuns still are arbitrarily detained, where something termed ''patriotic education'' is forced on Tibetans at their monasteries, where individuals have been arrested and sentenced to imprisonment for activities such as displaying the banned

Tibetan flag, where an entire culture is at risk. And forced abortion and forced sterilization are realities in the PRC.

The Chinese government has waged a campaign to destroy all sources of dissent. Leading members of the China Democracy Party have been sentenced to lengthy prison terms for ''conspiring to subvert state power.'' Activists in Xinjiang have been the target of a campaign of arrests, substandard trials, and executions. Leaders of laborers and peasants daring to call for worker's rights are detained. Expression, in virtually all of its forms, is restricted. The government of China has zealously launched into a campaign to monitor and control content on the internet. According to Human Rights Watch, ''last fall, local newspapers and magazines were put under Communist Party control. And the State Press and Publications Administration banned foreign investment in wholesale book publication and distribution, and limited the right to distribute textbooks, political documents, and the writing of China's leaders to a handful of enterprises.''

My colleagues, this is the state that seems so promising to the supporters of PNTR. This is the China with which we are urged to engage. This is to be our full partner.

That very abbreviated list of abuses sounds awfully bad, doesn't it? But the Administration's material on PNTR sounds so good. It is full of promises and optimism. How, I wonder, do they imagine getting from here to there—to that promised land in which our relationship with China is all about good news and profits?

I would suggest that the influence of money in politics goes a long way toward explaining the peculiar nature of this debate and U.S. policy toward China more broadly.

The push for PNTR legislation is one of the most expensive lobbying campaigns in history. Business interests are pitted against labor unions, as they make PAC and soft money contributions, and wage huge lobbying campaigns on television and in the halls of Congress. So before we go any further with this legislation, I would like to Call the Bankroll on the PNTR issue, to give my colleagues and the public an idea of the spending spree that has gone on to lobby us on this bill.

Labor unions have donated heavily to the parties as they have fought against Permanent Normal Trade Relations with China. The Center for Responsive Politics estimates labor's overall soft money, PAC and individual contributions at roughly $31 million so far in this election cycle in a May 24th report. In particular, the AFL–CIO and its affiliates, which have campaigned hard against PNTR, have given $60,000 in soft money through the first 15 months of this election cycle.

And then there's the other side of the debate. On the side of PNTR we find corporate America, which, according to a New York Times report, engaged in its ''costliest legislative campaign ever'' to win this fight—including an $8 million advertising campaign. The ''costliest legislative campaign ever'' by corporate America—now that's saying something.

As we know, corporations typically spend the most in the political money game, and often win as a result. And it looks like PNTR will be no exception, Mr. President.

For example, take the Business Roundtable, a well-known business coalition eager to get this bill passed. The Center for Responsive Politics' May 24th report put the collective contributions of Business Roundtable members at $58 million in soft money, PAC money and individual contributions so far in the election cycle. And that is in addition to the Roundtable's $10 million dollar advertising campaign to push PNTR, according to the Center.

Business Roundtable members are corporations like Boeing, Philip Morris, UPS and Citigroup. These are heavy hitters who regularly write checks to the political parties for $50,000, $100,000, even a quarter million dollars. These companies have to ante up to stay in the game, Mr. President—PNTR is a high stakes game, and the ante is bigger than ever.

I will quickly run down the soft money contributions of these companies, Mr. President. These are huge numbers, and they are just through the first 15 months of this election cycle: Boeing has given more than $465,000 in soft money through the first 15 months of the election cycle, including 10 contributions of $25,000 or more.

UPS, its subsidiaries and executives have given more than $960,000 in soft money through March 31st of the current cycle. That includes two contributions of a quarter million dollars.

Citigroup, its subsidiaries and executives gave more than one million dollars in soft money through the first 15 months of this election cycle, including six contributions of $50,000 or more.

And of course who could forget Philip Morris, Mr. President? Long known as the granddaddy of political donors, Philip Morris and its subsidiaries have given more than $1.2 million in soft money through March 31st of the election cycle, including more than eight donations of $100,000 or more.

Since I've mentioned Philip Morris' contributions here, let me take a moment to discuss the impact of contributions of large multinational corporations with many legislative interests. Some might argue that is unfair to mention Philip Morris in this calling of the bankroll because its main interest is tobacco legislation.

That is exactly the beauty of soft money contributions from the point of view of the corporate donor. They buy access for the company that makes them. They aren't payment for a particular piece of legislation. No, they are more powerful than that because they are so large, and so sought after by the parties. They further the interests of that company on all pieces of legislation. There can be no doubt that Philip Morris has an interest in PNTR.

China is a huge untapped market for cigarettes. So Philip Morris's soft money contributions open the doors for its lobbyists on this issue, just as they open the doors for its anti-tobacco control arguments.

Everyone knows that PNTR is the very top legislative priority for the business community in this country. There is absolutely no dispute about that. The lobbying effort has been extraordinary. And Philip Morris's legislative and lobbying muscle, supported by their huge campaign contributions, have been put at the service of that priority, as well as of its own particular interest in tobacco legislation.

Mr. President, corporations such as Philip Morris, and the other members of the Business Roundtable pay to play—they get visibility in the debate, and they get their voices heard loud and clear. The shape of the PNTR debate so far is exactly what we should expect from a campaign finance system that is rigged to value money above all else.

So it is clear that some people do stand to gain from PNTR and China's accession to the World Trade Organization. But I think that camp has vastly overstated its case. These forces, which have paid to pipe the siren song into the halls of the Senate for months now, claim, for example, that America's farmers will benefit greatly from PNTR for China. They wave impressive graphs, they promise access to vast markets. But I for one, as a Senator from a very important agriculture state, am not convinced that those claims are more than just empty promises. China's Vice Minister of Trade has already noted publicly that market-opening promises for U.S. wheat exporters are only a theoretical opportunity—not an actual one. The fact is that China's promises to import more agricultural products conflict with internal Chinese political and cultural dynamics—dynamics that are affected by longstanding fears about dependence on foreign food and by employment-creation imperatives. China has produced a glut of agricultural goods for years. Beijing now has massive stockpiles and a three-to-one ratio of exports to imports. Chinese prices will likely continue to be lower than American ones for years. I am not convinced that there is a big pay-off in store for American agriculture.

Ask Wisconsin's ginseng growers about the Chinese commitment to rule-governed trade. They will tell you that the Chinese have continued to mislabel their ginseng as ''Wisconsin-grown ginseng.'' As a result of this misleading practice, the price paid to actual American ginseng farmers has steadily declined. Recent press reports even suggest that the Chinese are now smuggling ginseng containing dangerously high levels of harmful pesticides and chemicals into U.S.—again inaccurately labeled as Wisconsin ginseng.

I concede, Mr. President, that profits are within the reach of some. And I recognize that the business community is responsible to its shareholders. Seeking profitable opportunities is their very purpose, and there is nothing wrong with that. But this Senate is responsible to all of the citizens of the United States, to the core values of this country, and to future generations of Americans. And the United States of America does not stand only for profit. Even if I were convinced that Permanent Normal Trade relations with China and Beijing's accession to the WTO would bring significant new economic opportunities to a large number of Americans—and I am not convinced of this fact—I still believe it is my responsibility to weigh that factor against others—including the fact that the Chinese government's human rights record is unquestionably appalling. I still believe that certain economic gains are not worth their moral price. I still believe that the prosperity we all seek for our great country should never be a prosperity that also brings shame.

But de-linking trade from human rights and prohibiting an annual debate on this issue suggests that I do not have the right to weigh these factors, that I cannot consider the totality of U.S.-Chinese bilateral relations when matters of trade arise. Apparently, we are all simply supposed to follow the music.

I argue that to compartmentalize our national values is to cordon off our national identity, to subordinate what we stand for so completely that it no longer affects how we behave. That is dangerous. I think it is an abdication of the responsibility I accepted when I took this office.

So apart from the question—and it is a good question, a question not answered nearly so easily as the Administration would like—of whether or not a significant number of Americans will reap economic benefits from PNTR for China—and apart from legitimate questions grounded in the historical record about whether or not China will stick to its trade-related commitments—apart from these issues, we are debating whether or not to draw a sharp, impenetrable division between one of our interests—economic gain—and what we believe and who we are. That is the question that has been evaded in the mountains of pro-PNTR literature and the countless pro-PNTR briefings that have become a fixture on Capitol Hill in recent months. I cannot support such a division. I will not abdicate my responsibilities in the hopes of avoiding tough choices and decisions. I cannot support this bill.

I yield the floor, and I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. HOLLINGS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire). Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. HOLLINGS. Mr. President, in making opening comments relative to permanent normal trade relations with China, I feel compelled to sort of qualify as a witness in that we have over the years in these particular debates about international trade made very little progress, whether with Democratic administrations or Republican administrations.

My rising in opposition and my amendments will be to the thrust of not having permanent and not having normal trade relations with anybody because our normal trade relations are a $350 billion to $400 billion trade deficit which is destroying the middle class in our society, weakening our democracy, and diminishing our influence in world affairs. With all of the pep talk about the wonderful economy, we are actually, on this particular score, in tremendous decline.

I say ''as a witness'' in a sense because I can remember when southern Governors started computing. People up in New Hampshire and other places say that they are from down south and that they are blind protectionists; they do not understand the importance of manufacturing and international trade and exports. So I hearken back to the day when I represented the northern textile industry from New Hampshire as well as the southern textile industry. I appeared before the old International Tariff Commission. Who ran me around the room? None other than Tom Dewey. This was back in 1960. The subject was textiles—that 10 percent of the American consumption of textiles in clothing was represented in imports, and if this continued at the pace that it was going, before long we would be out of business.

By the way, they told me at that particular hearing: Governor, what do you expect? For those emerging Third World countries in the Pacific rim and everywhere else, what do you expect them to make? Let them make the shoes and the clothing, and we will make the computers and the airplanes.

Fast forward 40 years: They are making the shoes. They are making the clothing. They are making the airplanes and they are making the computers. They are making all of it. Actually, we have high tech. I want to get into that in a minute. High tech—they think that is saving us. We have a deficit in the balance of trade with the People's Republic of China in high technology.

This Congress doesn't have any idea where we are on this particular score. Everybody is outside talking about the new economy. True it is, we are all proud of that new economy, particularly on this side of the aisle. They were afraid to say they raised the Social Security tax in 1993 when Clinton came into office. But I wasn't afraid. I brought it in line with all other pension plans. We are afraid to say we raised gasoline taxes. But we did. We cut spending $250 billion. The taxes that were supposed to be $250 billion are now up to $370 billion. Then we cut some taxes very minimally. We reduced the size of government by some 377,000 Federal employees.

They have the new economy. But the new economy has a private side and a public side. The private side is doing extremely well. High employment, low unemployment, low interest rates, booming economy, booming stock market, strong bank system—but the public side is almost a disaster. I say that advisedly. The reason I say it is so that, for one thing, they are talking surplus, surplus. Everywhere, someone cries ''surplus.''

The public debt to the penny according to the U.S. Treasury Department shows that, as of September 1, the debt is $5.676 trillion. At the beginning of the fiscal year of September 30, 1999, it was $5.656 trillion.

I ask unanimous consent to have this printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Mr. HOLLINGS. Mr. President, that shows that the debt has increased $20 billion—no surplus. They don't want to say where they get the surplus from. I can tell you where they get the surplus from. We had an increased measure of taxation over the years. When we had the 1983 Social Security settlement, we wanted it to increase to build up a trust fund to take care of the baby boomers in the next generation—which is now. In 1992, the Social Security surplus was $50 billion; now the Social Security surplus is $150 billion.

Over the last 8 years—because of what we did back in 1983—we have an additional $100 billion surplus, if you please, for the Social Security trust fund. We voted it here—section 13–301 of the Budget Act—that you shall not use Social Security surpluses in your budgets. Section 12 of the Greenspan commission said it should be set aside. It took us from 1983 until 1990 in order to get that done, but we finally got it done. Ninety-eight Senators voted for it. Almost all the Members of the House voted for it. It was signed into law on November 5, 1990, by President George Bush.

But all of them are running around saying we are going to save Social Security while they are spending it with all kinds of monkeyshine plans—invest a little, invest a lot, do this, or do that to save Social Security. They set up the straw man in violation of the law—the policy of the Greenspan commission and talking about surpluses when there is not any surplus. The debt is increasing. If there is a surplus, why has the debt increased $20 billion? With all the wonderful income tax from which we had revenues on April 15, with all the good corporate tax revenues in June, we are still increasing the debt some $20 billion.

All of them say tax cut, tax cut, but if you cut the estate taxes, you have increased the debt. All tax cuts are increasing the debt. They are all saying pay down the debt, pay down the debt. It is Alice in Wonderland. It is double talk. They are not talking sense with relation to what is actually going on.

Everybody says we are paying down the debt. But they are for all of these taxes. Whether it is middle class, or targeted, or estate, or gasoline, or capital gains, or marriage penalty, any of those tax cuts under present circumstances obviously amount to an increase in debt. They talk about surplus that doesn't exist, and they talk about paying down the debt as they regularly increase it. They don't mention waste.

As a result of this charade, interest costs have gone up to $366 billion for this fiscal year. I remember when we balanced the budget in 1968 and 1969 under President Lyndon Johnson. The interest cost on the national debt was less than $1 trillion; the interest cost was only $16 billion. That was the cost of all the wars from the Revolution, to the Civil War, the Spanish-American War, World War I, World War II, Korea, Vietnam. We had a debt of less than $1 trillion and they had interest costs of only $16 billion. Now we are up to $5.7 trillion, with $1 billion a day being spent. Wait until the whopping payment is made in September.

I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD the interest expense as of this minute.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

INTEREST EXPENSE ON THE PUBLIC DEBT OUTSTANDING

Mr. HOLLINGS. It is $321 billion without the August and September payments. When we get those particular payments, it will go up, up, and away. And that is under low interest rate circumstances.

We have the worst waste of all. I served on the Grace Commission under President Reagan. We were going to cut out waste, fraud, and abuse. Now we have caused the greatest waste of all.

After President Clinton early this year made the State of the Union Address, the comment was made by the distinguished majority leader that it was costing $1 billion a minute. The President talked for 90 minutes; that is $90 billion. Governor Bush wants to give a $90 billion tax cut. We could give President Clinton $90 billion in spending. We could give Governor Bush $90 billion in tax cuts and still have $170 billion left for all the increases to the Department of Health, for class size reduction and school construction and any and every kind of research at NIH that we wanted.

The point is, we are spending the money and we are not getting anything for it and we don't talk about it on the campaign trail. What do they avoid talking about? The $350 to $400 billion—and it will probably be nearly $400 billion—deficit in the balance of trade. The economists say that costs us at least 1 percent on our GNP. Instead of 4.1, we would have 5.1, and more jobs.

This is ignoring the failure of the United States to compete in international trade. I emphasize that for a reason, for those who say we are blind protectionists, that we don't understand the global economy, the global competition and do not want to compete and want to start a trade war. No. 1, we have been in a trade war and we have been losing. They don't understand that. No. 2, on globalization, I don't want to sound like the Vice President, but I helped invent it 40 years ago. I went as a young Governor to Europe. I have that Deutsche Telekom bill that they talked about in the paper the other day. The truth is, I called on the Germans in Frankfurt. Today we have 116 German industries in the little State of South Carolina. I will never forget calling on Michelin in downtown Paris in June of 1960 with 11,600 Michelin employees. We have Hoffman-LaRoche from Switzerland. And Honda broke ground a few years ago. I was amazed to hear that Honda produced and exported more vehicles than General Motors.

I have been in public service 50 years. I have been debating this issue in all five textile bills that passed here. Four of them passed the House also and were vetoed by Presidents over the years. When we come to trade and globalization, I think it behooves me not to talk about permanent, not to talk about normal, but use this opportunity to sober up the Congress and the leadership of the United States, making them realize that we are in a real competition, but not for profit. That is, the American multinational. They could care less. They don't have a country. Boeing came out the other day and said in the United States, we are not a U.S. company but an international company. Caterpillar has been holding in Illinois. But they were international. They think it is fine. The Chamber of Commerce has forgotten about Main Street America and gone with the multinationals. NAM and the Business Roundtable—we are in the hands of the Philistines. We are losing our manufacturing base because we don't understand that the global competition is not for profit but for jobs and market share.

Let me talk a minute about jobs. At the fall of the wall, 4 billion workers came from behind the Iron Curtain, ready to work for anything, anywhere, at any time. In the last 10 years, with computerization and satellites, you can transfer your technology on a computer chip, you can transfer your financing by satellite. You can produce anything anywhere that you please. That is the global competition and international trade.

While our American producers for the so-called profit want to manufacture, say, in the People's Republic of China, for 10 percent of the labor costs than it is paying in the United States, we have been losing, losing, losing. In manufacturing, they say 30 percent of volume is in the cost of labor. Or you can save 20 percent of your volume by moving the manufacturer of your product offshore or down to Mexico. Simply put, you can maintain your executive and your sales force here but put your manufacturing elsewhere. If you have $500 million in sales, at 20 percent, before taxes, you can save $100 million. Or you can continue to work your own people and go broke because your competition is headed that way. That is the job policy of the U.S. Congress today. It is to accelerate the exodus and the export of jobs.

I will never forget when they told us that NAFTA was going to create 200,000 jobs. I just looked at the figure from the Bureau of Labor Statistics. It is more than just that 38,700 figure, but in textiles alone we have lost 38,700 jobs since NAFTA; in North Carolina, 90,000. I will never forget when they came down to Charlotte and said they wanted to talk about the digital divide. They are the ones dividing it. You think if you lost a job you are going out and buying a $2,000 or $3,000 computer? ''It's the economy, stupid.'' That is where we are. You just can't understand we are here, when they think it is a productivity thing on jobs: Productivity, productivity, productivity—We have global competition.

The U.S. industrial worker was the most productive industrial worker in the world, all during the 60s, all during the 1970s, all during the 1980s, all during the 1990s, and is today still the most productive industrial worker. They are not the highest paid. They pay much more in Germany and a bunch of other countries—and I will have a word to say about that, where the rich are getting richer and the poor are getting poorer and the middle class is disappearing. But the point is, we are losing our manufacturing strength and capability. We are losing our economy.

America's security and strength is like a three-legged stool. You have the one leg which is the values of a nation, and that is unquestioned. We commit for freedom in Somalia and down in Haiti, Bosnia, Kosovo. There are nine peacekeeping missions currently and we are adding four more around the world. People admire the United States of America and its high principles and values.

The second leg is one of the military, and that is unquestioned.

But the third leg is a fraud—intentionally so. You see, after World War II we had the only industry, so with the Marshall Plan, that really started globalization. We not only sent the money, we sent the technology and the expertise—and capitalism has defeated communism. In the People's Republic of China, which is the present subject, they are tending more every day towards capitalism. That is a wonderful thing.

The question is, Can we afford to give away the store? We have sacrificed and sacrificed so that now Boeing of Seattle, WA is moving production of airplanes—the most prominent of export industries—out of the country. Why do you think the machinists at Boeing led the strike not to break up in Seattle last December? That was a crowd that came out of Oregon, if I remember correctly, the Ruckus Society, or something like that. But the AFL–CIO march, at that WTO meeting in Seattle in December was led by the Boeing machinists. Why? Because 70 percent of the Boeing 777—McDonnell 90–10 is made overseas. In order to sell the Boeing plane in the People's Republic of China, according to Bill Greider, 50 percent of the Boeing 777 is made in downtown Shanghai.

So we are losing the best, the best of the jobs. We know about jobs. We know about globalization. We are looking at this constant drain, so to speak, over the 50-year period. At the end of World War II we had 41 percent of our workforce in manufacturing. Last month, we lost another 69,000 manufacturing jobs. Go to the Department of Commerce—ask them.

So we have gone from 41 percent down to 12 percent. Akio Morita, the former head of Sony said: Wait a minute, that world power that loses its manufacturing capacity ceases to be a world power. That is why we stand opposed to permanent normal trade relations with China.

I know full well—I live in the real world—we are going to have trade with China. I am not opposed to trade with China. I am opposed to permanent, normal. When I say ''permanent,'' that is exactly what these CEOs of the Fortune 500 companies want. Because they know if they go over and invest in China and it has been permanent, they can come back appealing, ''Don't change anything,'' and they can get a foothold there and they can really make a wonderful profit. But, of course, that puts us more and more in jeopardy because we cannot shout ''productivity'' to the most productive industrial worker while at the same time saddling him with all the penalties.

What are the penalties? What are the costs of productivity? We, the Congress of the United States, say: Before you open up the XYZ manufacturing company you have to have a minimum wage, Social Security, Medicare, Medicaid, clean air, clean water, safe working place, safe machinery, plant closing notice, parental leave. We might add on prescription drugs. Everybody is for prescription drugs. That is the cost of doing business.

You can go down to Mexico for none of that, 58 cents, $1 an hour. You can go, for 10 percent of the cost, to China. We run around here like we understand something when we are totally off base, operating in the dark, on one of the most important issues confronting the United States. They think: Technology, high tech, high tech. Let's talk about jobs. High tech jobs? Do you know that a third of Microsoft's workers are part time? At one time they were all full time and lower-level workers sued and said: We are going to get some of these stock options and other benefits. And they won the case in court. So Gates and Microsoft turned around and gave them a 364-day contract. They are part time; 40 percent of the employees in Silicon Valley are part time. They don't give them any jobs. Gates has 22,000 up there in Redmond, WA and Boeing has 100,000. But what jobs they do have don't produce anything to export.

We had a deficit balance of trade in advanced technology products with the People's Republic of China of $3.5 billion in 1999. This year it will be almost $5 billion. So don't give me anything about high tech—the high tech is going to save us. That is not going to save us at all. Advances in technology has spurred productivity. We all acknowledge that. The Japanese, after all, are the ones that taught us that with their advances in robotics in the early 80's. The BMW plant in Spartanburg, SC has been able to incorporate cutting edge technology and machinery. That is why over half the employees came off the farms within 50 miles and the other little textile industries and have been able to produce very efficiently. The quality of the Spartanburg plant exceeds the quality of Munich BMW. As a result, BMW is doubling the size of its operations at the Spartanburg plant.

Open your eyes. The most productive automobile plant in the world, according to J.D. Power, is not in Detroit, it is down in Mexico—the Ford plant. We know about productivity and we know about jobs. While we lost 69,000 manufacturing jobs this August, we took on some 127,000 service jobs. We are going just the way of England.

At the end of the war, they told the Brits: Don't worry; instead of a nation of brawn, this will be a nation of brains; and instead of producing products, we will provide services. Instead of creating wealth, we will handle it and be a financial seller. And England has gone to hell in an economic hand basket. Even Land Rover is leaving there now, and there is some question with the BMW plant there.

I am not anti-British. I love the Brits. But London has become a downtown amusement park. I like to go there like everybody else. What I am talking about here is economic strength. The British Army is not as big as our Marine Corps. We are running around here puffing and blowing about the world's superpower. You cannot use and you would not use the hydrogen bomb. They couldn't care less now about the 6th Fleet or our military superiority.

So what counts? Money. Money talks in international affairs. I will never forget when in the U.N. there was a resolution to examine China with respect to human rights and they were preparing to set up the hearings. This was 1993.

The last time I checked 5 years later, 1998, they did not have the hearings. Why? Because the Chinese are the best diplomats. The Chinese are the best negotiators. They are the best business people. They have the best commercial minds. They went all around Africa, down into Australia and everywhere else. They never called for the hearings. Why? Because everybody wants to get into that rich market of $1.3 trillion. At the moment, we have the richest market in the world, and we refuse to use it and whine: Be fair, fair trade, level the playing field.

Come on. Trade is not Boy Scouts. There is no morality to trade—be fair. I know what they are talking about. I know the word ''trade'' itself. ''Free trade'' is an oxymoron, but they hope there will be no barriers, no tariffs, no limitations.

As we shout for free trade, the same thing we shout for is world peace. I do not believe we are going to get either one in my lifetime. Maybe in Strom's. The fact of the matter is, the father of this country said the best way to preserve the peace is to prepare for war. The best way to get free trade is to compete, raise the barriers and then remove them. The Chinese do that. They use their market.

Some come to the floor and talk at length with respect to how the agreement is so good and it will not do this and it will not do that. I will touch on one thing this afternoon because I am limited in my time. My colleagues will remember, they said there would not be any more forced technology transfers. That is what Qualcomm thought when it invested in China. Ambassador Barshefsky, the Special Trade Representative, said:

The rules put an absolute end to forced technology transfers.

This was November of last year after they had the agreement. I have an article from the Wall Street Journal with regard to ''Qualcomm learns from its mistake in China'':

U.S. mobile phone maker listens to Beijing's call for local production.

This is dated June 7 of this year. The Ambassador is telling us the agreement does one thing, but the reality is quite another. Qualcomm, trusting it would not have to transfer, has to have local production before it can sell. So it is with all of these other industries.

I am not anti-Chinese. I am anti this policy. I have been against this particular policy for years on end. We had a GAO report—about which I could go on at length—that the agreement is indecisive and complex. When we negotiate, we find out again and again it is normal trade relations; namely, you have to give before you can take. You have to give the Chinese the technology, and move production to China. I do not fault China. The Chinese are doing only what we did to build this great United States of America.

In the earliest days, we had just won our freedom, and the Brits corresponded with the fledgling Colonies and said: Now that you have won your freedom, why don't you trade with us what you produce best, and we will trade back with you what we produce best—the doctrine of comparative advantage these economists will tell you about.

Alexander Hamilton had the wisdom, outlined in the Report on Manufactures. There is one copy left at the Library of Congress. That little booklet in a line told the Brits to bug off: We are not going to remain your colony. As a result, the second bill that ever passed Congress—the first being the Seal of the United States—was a protectionist measure passed on July 4, 1789, a tariff bill of 50 percent on 60 different articles. From there we began to build our own economic strength, our own industrial capacity, carried on by President Lincoln. When plans were being made to build the transcontinental railroad, some said buy the steel from London. Lincoln said: Oh, no, we are going to build our own steel plants, and then when we get through, we will not only have the railroad, we will have a steel capacity.

Again, that crowd that comes around here whining about free trade, getting all the protection you can possibly imagine—the farmers—are solid for this. They are going to learn a lesson—be careful what you wish for. Maybe I will get on to that in a minute.

It was Franklin Delano Roosevelt who instituted marketing quotas, protective import quotas, price supports—protectionism that built up. Yes, I am for the farmer and we are the greatest agriculture producer in the world. But do not tell me about free trade. There have not been any price supports for my textiles and my 38,700 textile workers who have lost their jobs since NAFTA. Incidentally, I remind people just exactly what happened. Yes, they are having to turn to service jobs if they can.

I remember Onieta Industries in Andrews, SC. They made T-shirts. Everybody can understand it. They closed the plant in the early part of last year. There were approximately 480 employees with an average age of 47. Do it Washington's way; do it the way Congress lectures: Education, education—we have to reeducate. They sound like a bunch of Mao Tse-tungs. So we reeducate, and tomorrow we have 487 expert computer operators. Are you going to hire the 47-year-old or the 21-year-old?

Those 47-year-olds are out of a job. The average employer is not going to take on the pension costs and health costs for the 47-year-old when they have relatively none to consider for the 20-year-old. So they are sidelined. And that is the anxiety explored recently in Business Week: ''The Backlash Behind the Anxiety of Globalization.''

President Clinton, himself—this is from the Los Angeles Times in May of this year. I quote:

So Clinton asked rhetorically, why are we having this debate on PNTR? Because people are anxiety ridden about the forces of globalization.

I just finished reading David Kennedy's ''Freedom from Fear,'' the legacy of Franklin Delano Roosevelt. The legacy of William Jefferson Clinton is fear and fear itself. Global anxiety. Why? Because that 47-year-old who worked at a plant for 25 years was saving his money, making his home payments, his car payments and had a little boat down on the Black River—now he is high and dry. At best, he is trying to get a job at McDonald's or at the laundry or somewhere else in the service economy that doesn't pay.

Talking about those jobs, I think we ought to really emphasize the fact that we are separating, if you please, the society. In Fortune magazine, dated September 4 there is the article entitled, ''Are the Rich Cleaning Up?'' It is by Cait Murphy:

Blue-collar workers make less than they did a generation ago while the earnings of professionals have soared.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have this article printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

[From Fortune, Sept. 4, 2000]

ARE THE RICH CLEANING UP?

(By Cait Murphy)

The average price of a Manhattan apartment south of Harlem has hit more than $850,000—at a time when two-fifths of New York City's residents make $20,000 or less a year. In Silicon Valley teachers struggle with the rent while dot-com-rich parents wonder how to cope with ''affluenza''—the perils of new and great wealth. (Hint: Just don't buy that helicopter.) In leafy suburbs nurses and cops commute from 50 miles away: They cannot afford to live near their work.

This dichotomy—between new wealth and the not-so-wealthy—has lately become something of an academic and political obsession. Economists and social scientists have turned the study of income inequality into a thriving cottage industry. And while the rich-poor gap has not cropped up explicitly in the presidential campaign, it is the stubtext for a number of front-burner issues like tax cuts, educational reform, and the ''digital divide.'' When a politician uses the word ''fairness'' in an economic debate, that's often shorthand for ''inequality.''

Why the concern about inequality? Basically, because there's more of it. From 1977 on, the cash earnings of the poorest fifth of the U.S. population fell about 9%, estimates the Center on Budget and Policy Priorities; middle-class earnings rose 8%; and upper-income earnings, 43%. The exact numbers are hotly contested, but it is clear that the distance between the top and the bottom tiers of the income distribution has grown strikingly since the 1970s. By some measures, Americans' earnings are more unequal today than at any time in the past 60 years; at best, even after the past several years, when income has grown throughout the income distribution, the gap has plateaued at or near record levels.

Of course, no serious person would argue that everyone should get the same-sized piece of the economic pie. That would be unfair to those who work hard, as opposed to those who watch reruns of Gilligan's Island all day. And if spectators want to pay more to watch a baseball game than, say, a badminton match, there is no reason both sets of athletes must be paid alike. At the same time, no serious person would deny that inequality can hit such levels (think medieval societies) that it comprises both an ethical problem and a threat to social peace (the peasants revolt). Finally, there is little disagreement about whether inequality has increased. It has. But there is also massive mud-wrestling about how much it has grown, why, and what it all means.

FORTUNE will spare you the arcane details—for now, anyway. But the fundamental argument about inequality is simple. The pessimists contend that income distribution has grown so lopsided that all society is worse off. Richard Freeman of Harvard speculates that there is a link between inequality and crime. He notes that high school dropouts fill the nation's jails—and that these men have lost the most ground economically. Edward Wolff of New York University contends that if young men had a better shot at earning a stable living they might be more willing to marry and stop having children on a freelance basis. Robert Greenstein of the Center on Budget and Policy Priorities argues that earnings disparities are one of the reasons that almost one in five children lives in poverty. America's lowest-paid workers make less, as a percentage of the median wage (the point at which 50% are above and 50% below), than their counterparts in any other country (38%, compared with 46% in Britain and Japan and more than 50% in France and Germany). This means that many low-skilled parents just cannot earn enough to escape poverty. ''If there were somewhat less inequality,'' Greenstein concludes, ''more would have a better standard of living.''

There is also considerable (but contentious) literature that more-equal societies are healthier. And there is the inchoate but deeply felt belief that inequality at current levels is simply un-American. It gives the rich too loud a voice. It makes it too hard for those at the bottom to rise to prosperity. And it allows the wealthy to separate themselves from society through private clubs, private schools, and gated communities.

The optimists respond to that critique with a polite yawn. Or perhaps a rude word along the lines of ''Rubbish!'' Sure, inequality has grown, but so what? As long as people at the bottom have not become absolutely worse off, goes this set of arguments, it doesn't matter that the rich got richer faster. And no, the poor are not worse off. Though men's earnings seem to have fallen since 1973 (and maybe they haven't), women's have clearly risen. That trend and smaller households mean that family income and income per head have increased all along the income distribution. Housing quality and access to medical care have improved markedly for the poor since 1973.

Besides, people don't necessarily stay in the same position. They move up and down the income ladder: Horatio Alger was not just making stuff up. Today's income distribution is the result of long-standing economic forces and social trends. Nothing is broke, so don't fix it.

Those are the broad outlines of a debate in which the devil is most definitely in the details. What follows is a primer of the arguments, followed by a suggestion about how to get out of this thicket.

What are people so concerned about? Students of inequality use several tools in their trade. One is the Gini coefficient; a 0 coefficient is perfect equality (everyone has exactly the same share of the economic pie). A coefficient of 1 is perfect inequality (Bill Gates gets it all). In America the coefficient has risen from 0.323 in 1974 to 0.375 in 1997, according to the Luxembourg Income Study, higher than in any other rich country. Britain's is 0.346, Germany's 0.300, Canada's 0.286, and Sweden's 0.222.

Matters naturally are not quite that straightforward. Alan Greenspan has pointed out that while the Gini coefficient is comparatively high for income, when applied to consumption it is about 25% lower. In other words, poorer people are spending more like the rich; they are, for example, almost as likely to own such things as dryers and microwave ovens. So the economic distance between the top and the bottom may be narrower than the income numbers suggest. And Europe's greater equality may simply reflect the widely accepted premise that while America has adapted to economic change by allowing inequality to rise, Europe has adjusted by allowing higher unemployment. Which is better?

Another favored analytical tool for measuring inequality is to divide the population into fifths, or quintiles, and see what share of the nation's earnings each fifth took home. According to the Census Bureau, in 1998 the bottom 20% earned only 3.6% of total income (4.2% in 1973), compared with more than 49% for the top 20% (44% in 1973).

But wait a minute. The Heritage Foundation points out that the Census defines quintiles in terms of households—and households in the bottom quintile are much smaller than those at the top. Therefore, while there are 64 million people in the richest quintile, there are fewer than 40 million in the poorest one. Adjust for population, and the share of the bottom fifth grows. Also, many Americans have income that is not in the form of wages or cash transfers—food stamps and housing subsidies for the poor, realized capital gains for the better-off. Adjust for that, and the distribution narrows again, as it does after accounting for taxes. Should the adjustment include Medicaid and Medicare? If so (and that is debatable), the gap shrinks further still; put it all together, and Heritage figures that the bottom quintile takes in 9.4% of national income, and the top 39.6%.

There is, then, no consensus on how to measure inequality. There is, however, broad agreement that it has indeed grown. Since the early 1970s the cash incomes of the rich have indeed risen faster than those of the poor, with the middle class hanging in there; the higher up the income ladder, the faster the growth. That may help explain why the poverty rate, now 12.7%, has still not dipped to 1973 levels (11.1%). Median household income (the point at which 50% are above and 50% below) has grown grudgingly, rising about 9% in real terms from 1973 to 1998 and passing its 1989 peak only in 1998.

Men have had a particularly dismal time. The median income of men is significantly lower than in 1973 ($27,394 then vs. $25,212 in 1997, in 1997 dollars). Men under 45 are making less now, in real terms, than they did in 1967, and blue-collar workers have taken the biggest hit. Blacks and women, however, have seen their earnings rise.

Why is inequality increasing? Income inequality is increasing because wage inequality is. The U.S. economy has evolved to reward highly educated people even more than in the past—a trend that social scientists, in a flight of whimsy, call ''skill-biased technological change.'' This means that demand for labor has shifted toward the skilled and away from the unskilled. Brains beat brawn—hands down.

That explains the rise in the college premium—the extra income college graduates can expect to earn compared with those who finish only high school. The premium rose much faster in the U.S. than in Europe because the supply of graduates in the U.S. did not rise as fast in the 1980s and 1990s as the demand for them; Europe came closer to matching demand and supply. It sounds like a tautology, and perhaps it is: Income shifted toward the more highly skilled because employers would pay more for their services. But it really is that simple.

Of course, that by itself doesn't explain the income gap. Another significant factor has been family structure. Weighing on the downscale side of income distribution has been the burgeoning number of single-parent families, particularly those headed by never-married mothers; overall, single-parent families earn about half as much as two-parent households. On the upscale side, there has been an increase in families in which both spouses make lots of money. To put it another way, there are almost 2½ times as many people working in the richest fifth of households as in the poorest fifth. Less than a third of the people in the bottom quintile live in households headed by a married couple; the rest are single (55%) or in single-parent families. In the top quintile some 90% live in married-couple families.

Changes in family structure account for more than a third of the increase in income inequality since 1979, figures Gary Burtless of the Brookings Institution, making it a slightly more important factor than the widening wage gap. Lynn Karoly of the Rand Institute in California calculates that the wage gap is a bigger deal, but no matter: No one disputes that both factors are crucial.

Other suspects in the inequality lineup are the declining minimum wage (lower in real terms than in 1973), declining unionization among men (accounting for as much as 20% of the gap, estimates Freeman), deregulation (protected industries kept wages high), immigration (which can depress wages), and trade (that giant sucking sound). Higher levels of entrepreneurship may also be associated with higher inequality.

All those things probably count, but to a minor degree compared with the changes in earnings patterns and family structure. Immigrants, for example, can drive down wages in local labor markets, particularly among the low-skilled, but that effect is muted across the country as a whole. When it comes to trade, the effect is even more difficult to identify. While some companies have certainly shipped jobs to cheaper climes, most U.S. trade is with other rich countries, and most low-paid jobs are domestic, such as cleaning or food service. Remember, too, that to critique immigration and trade strictly in terms of their impact on inequality is to look through a cracked mirror: Doing so ignores the contributions immigrants make to America and the opportunities wrought by freer trade.

What is more important than any of these individual factors, Karoly notes, is how all of them have reinforced one another. At the same time, there have been few countervailing forces. The U.S. could have tried to slow these trends, as Europe has done, through high minimum wages or centralized wage bargaining or protective trade barriers or high taxes. It chose not to.

What can be done? The primary rule of economic policy should be like that of medicine: First, do no harm. And the problem with many of the knee-jerk policy responses to inequality is that they cannot pass that test. Looking at the list of culprits responsible for the run-up in inequality, for instance, one could argue for less technological change, less trade, more regulation, and less entrepreneurship. Would America really be better off with such an economic blueprint? To ask the question is to answer it.

Even the more plausible approaches carry side effects worth thinking about. Take unions. Unions are an essential part of a free society, and they do an excellent job of raising wages for members. But they can also be associated with not-so-good things, such as protecting their workers at the expense of those trying to get into the labor market—an important factor in the high level of European unemployment. In July, Alan Greenspan contended that it was America's greater labor-market flexibility that had allowed it to take advantage of information technologies faster and more fully than Europe; tech-led productivity has been the bedrock of America's recent wage and productivity surge. In this context, the case for actively encouraging more unionization begins to weaken.

What about raising the minimum wage? That's plausible too, and the increased minimum wage probably played a role in steadying inequality in the past few years. Moreover, countries like France, which has a high minimum wage, have seen inequality grow much less. America may be robust enough to swallow the proposed minimum-wage increase to $6.15. But there is clearly a point where a minimum wage can become burdensome, killing job opportunities, as has happened in Europe. And raising the minimum wage is an awkward way to lessen inequality. Most minimum-wage workers do not live in low-income households (think of suburban teens), and many poor households have no workers at all. So most of the gain from a higher minimum wage goes to families that are not poor. Worse, the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development has documented a connection between the minimum wage and youth unemployment: the higher the wage, the more idle youngsters. That has to be a large part of the reason a quarter of France's under-25-year-olds are out of work.

Is all this simply an argument for complacency? Not quite. It is really an argument for looking at the issue from a different perspective. Let's face it: Normal Americans do not fret about rising Gini coefficients or quintile displacements. They do however, worry if hard-working people, even professionals, cannot find a home of their own that fits their means. They don't want children suffering, even if their parents made bad choices. They believe that opportunity is available to all and that government should not hinder people's ability to take care of themselves. Americans, in short, are hapless at class warfare (perhaps because they are so absorbed in racial and ethnic issues). If they were better at it, they would be howling, say, at the proposed death of the death tax, which applies to only a tiny share of estates. Instead, most people want it killed. The attitude seems to be, ''Hey, that might be my estate someday.''

Given such attitudes, a plausible list of goals for government might go something like this: Enhance the prospects of poor children, improve living conditions, reward work, bolster family responsibility, keep taxes from impoverishing people and ensure mobility.

And surprise, surprise: American social policy in the 1980s and '90s has done almost precisely that. The Reagan Administration can take credit for the 1986 tax reform, which released many lower-income Americans from federal income-tax liability. The earned-income-tax credit (EITC), also a Reagan-era initiative, supplements the pay of low-wage workers with children through a refundable tax credit of up to 40% of earnings. The Bush and Clinton Administrations expanded the EITC (the latter in the teeth of strong Republican opposition). Both also expanded the provision of support services for poor children outside the home—child care, foster care, Head Start, and so on. Child-support enforcement expanded under all three (with, it has to be said, spotty results), and health insurance and child-care subsidies for poor children expanded under Bush and Clinton. The welfare reform of 1996 (in the teeth of strong Democratic opposition) explicitly connected working to the receipt of benefits. Overall, these policies make up a broadly consistent approach that Americans are in tune with—and that has delivered real improvements.

Perhaps, then, the way to remedy inequality is not so much to try to lessen the Gini coefficient—through redistributive taxation, for example—but to ameliorate the problems of those snagged at the bottom. One such problem is clearly housing. There is a gap between the growing numbers of low-income renters (10.5 million in 1995) and the shrinking numbers of low-cost rental units (6.1 million). A record 5.4 million households spend more than half of their income on rent or live in substandard housing. The feds can and should do more in this regard by boosting the number of housing vouchers. (Congress eliminated new housing vouchers for four years in the 1990s; the 2000 budget envisions expansion.)

But inequality begins at home. It is not coincidental that two cities with massive affordability problems—New York and San Francisco—may also have the most tortured housing markets in the country. Byzantine regulations suppress new construction and raise its cost. Insiders—those who have scored a price-controlled apartment—benefit at the expense of outsiders, who pay prices exaggerated by the artificially induced constraint in supply. So while rent decontrol rarely makes the egalitarian to-do list, it deserves to be on it. And Silicon Valley and other wealthy communities should take a hard look at regulations—two-acre zoning and the like—that put up a keep out sign for the unrich.

Expanding the EITC further—by increasing the credit (particularly to families with three or more children) and extending it to childless full-time workers—would also help. The EITC is first-rate social policy. Essentially it promises parents that if they work, their income will exceed the poverty line. In 1998, EITC supplements lifted almost five million people out of poverty, and that money has proved an important carrot to get former welfare recipients into the job market. A further expansion would put more dollars in low earners' pockets and reduce the ranks of the working poor, without the scattershot effect of the minimum wage. It also makes perfect equity sense in the context of the tax cuts both parties are fiddling with. Don't believe the fluff: Tax cuts would benefit the better-off most, for the very good reason that they pay the lion's share of taxes. The top 1% of earners, for example, pays almost a fifth of all individual federal income taxes, according to the Congressional Budget Office, and the top fifth almost 60%. The bottom two quintiles contribute 8%. An expanded EITC, in combination with tax cuts, would spread tax largesse all the way up and down the income distribution. Along the same lines, states that are considering cutting taxes would do well to cut sales taxes, which hit the poor hardest, rather than income taxes. Or they could start or expand their own versions of the EITC, as more than a dozen states have already done.

Third, surely a country as rich and talented as America can figure out some way to ensure reasonable, regular health care at a level of access that, say, Ireland provided in the 1960s. There has been expansion of guaranteed medical provision for poor children, but about 15% still slip between the cracks. A system with fewer gaps could also promote mobility; it is scary for low-income people in a job with health coverage to try to improve their position by moving to a new job without it.

Fourth, let's remember that not every problem comes with a ready solution, from government or anywhere else. For example, it would be an unambiguously good thing for America as a whole if families formed more readily and stayed together more reliably. This would also narrow wage inequality and boost family income. It's just far from obvious how to get there from here.

Social policy is not a field of dreams; miracles are rare. Across the rich world, estimates Ignazio Visco of the OECD, the long-term poor are some 2% to 4% of the population. But at any given time, these families make up half of the population living in poverty—everyone else moves up and out. The major problem in such homes is not lack of money but disorganization, illness, lack of social skills, and general cluelessness. In her book What Money Can't Buy, Susan Mayer of the University of Chicago argues that after basic needs are met, additional income has little effect on children's prospects. Using a form of regression analysis that only a social scientist could love (or indeed understand), Mayer estimates that doubling the income of the poor would reduce high school dropout rates by one percentage point, increase education by a few months, have no effect on teen pregnancy, and possibly worsen male idleness. ''Any realistic redistribution strategy,'' she concludes, ''is likely to have a relatively small impact on the overall incidence of social problems.'' Enhancing living standards to provide dignity and reasonable comfort is a social good in itself. But humility is warranted in terms of the long-range benefits of doing so.

In the long run, because so much of inequality is connected with the higher returns on skills, it is crucial that Americans learn the things they need to know in order to succeed. Which brings us to education, the most important component of the mobility that is the bedrock of the American dream. Poor people in poor communities are educationally short-changed, and the problems begin early. That Americans of almost any intellectual level can find a college to accept them does not excuse the lack of basic skills too many high school graduates demonstrate. Money may be part of the answer, but only part. Cash can be spent wisely or stupidly; there is, at best, an ambiguous correlation between spending and achievement. But evidence indicates that increased attention to education in early childhood brings enduring and positive results. It's clear that there has to be more emphasis on accountability and outcomes—what children actually learn—as opposed to how much is being spent. That's beginning to happen. And it's hard to believe that competition—vouchers, charter schools, and the like—would not be a goad to improvement.

Finally, let's remember that nothing good is going to happen if the economy goes into the tank. Tight labor markets have done more to make welfare reform work than any aspect of its design; productivity has driven up wages since 1993 faster than any transfer program could have done. Remedies to inequality that hurt the economy as a whole will hurt the poor first and worst.

Laura D'Andrea Tyson, former head of the Council of Economic Advisors under President Clinton, offered a striking way of looking at these issues at a Federal Reserve conference in 1998. Imagine the income distribution, she suggested, as an apartment building in which the penthouse is more and more luxurious, and the basement, in which a number of dwellers (and their children) are stuck year after year, is rat infested. What to do? Well, some social critics, offended by the presence of wealth amid such distress, would like to pillage the penthouse. Tyson simply notes, ''We need to do something about that rat-infested basement.'' Taking care of the rats and making sure people can climb out of the cellar: That seems about right.

Mr. HOLLINGS. You begin to understand—when we talk about jobs, when we talk about pay, when we talk about our society, when we talk about our economic strength, when we talk about the middle class—that the strength of our democracy is disappearing.

So, yes, we are going to trade with China. But if you make it permanent and you make it normal and you want to compete with China, you are going to be in one heck of a fix, is all I have to say.

Let me say a word about market share. Japan has been practicing this for a long time. They have a society that sacrifices at the home market in order to take on the international market, the market of the United States. There is no question about it.

That Lexus that costs $34,000 in the United States costs $40,000 to $44,000 in downtown Tokyo. That camera that sells for $300 here—a Japanese camera—sells for $600 to $1,000 in downtown Tokyo. That Handycam that sells for $640 in the United States—made in Japan—sells for almost $2,000 in downtown Tokyo.

We do not have that kind of society. This is a spoiled society. We are supposed to give you tax cuts even though we have hardly any taxes to cut. And they can't be punitive, because look at the economy. By the way, we are paying down the debt, but we do not tell them we are increasing the debt at the same time.

I really have not had but one person ask me about the estate tax. Nobody has asked me about the Social Security tax because we put it in line with all other pension plans. Nobody has bothered about gasoline. Overseas, they regularly sacrifice $4.20 for a gallon of gas. When we get to $2 a gallon, we go ape and hold Federal investigations, TV shows, and everything else.

So the competition in globalization is one of sacrifice. In China, they call it communism; sacrifice, in Japan, in Korea, and even in France and Germany. They have all kinds of rules and regulations. Try to buy a year 2000 Toyota in France. They keep it at the Port of Le Havre and inspect it a year or so, and you can buy the year 2000 model on January 1, 2001.

They have all kinds of barriers and different tricks. We talk about globalization and productivity as if we know something about it and that all we have to do is reeducate and get more engineering graduates. Come on.

I am talking about middle America, the blood and guts of this society, the blood and guts of this democracy. That is what keeps us a strong country. That Fortune magazine article that came out the day before yesterday will tell you about that divide, will tell you that the take-home pay of that industrial worker is less than what it was 20 years ago, adjusted for inflation. It is a devil of a trend, but they are not talking about that or even mentioning trade. But when it comes to market share, the Japanese set the pace.

What is going on in telecommunications?

I have a bill which is a reminder because the law is there. I am going to testify tomorrow that it is nothing more than a reminder. No communications bill is going to pass unless they put it as a rider on one of these appropriations bills. Because they do not want to debate these things.

All you have to do is look at Deutsche Telekom's SEC reports and know they call themselves a monopoly and that the German government is in control.

When you are a country in control, you can print money. We know that better than anybody. We have been running deficits since 1968, 1969 under Lyndon Johnson; now the debt is $5.7 trillion. So we know about governments printing money.

Deutsche Telekom had its stock at $100 earlier this year, in March. Now it is down to $40. Do you think Ron Sommer, the CEO of Deutsche Telekom, is worried? He could care less. He says: I have $100 billion.

He just had a bond issue of $14 billion. Everybody got into it. We could not get a $14 billion bond issue going in this country. But a government-controlled company can easily get it because that company can't go broke. It is bound to win.

Sommer says: I have $100 billion. And I am ready to buy AT&T or MCI or Sprint or VoiceStream or any telecom company I please. If his stock was down in the regular market to $40, and he had $100 billion, there would be a footrace between Boone Pickens and Carl Icahn. They would be in there in a flash. There would have been a takeover long ago. You see, they can come in with all kinds of capital and distort the competitive market.

That is why we deregulated telecommunications from U.S. Government control in 1996. We certainly did not do it to put it under German Government control. That is why we have the World Trade Organization, in order to get competition, not to set up government-controlled companies to take over in the private market.

But why do they do that? Who does offer the highest price, they tell me, per subscriber in one of these communications entities. Previously the highest bid was $12,000 per subscriber. Deutsche Telekom comes in with $21,000 to $22,000. Money is nothing to them. Why? Because they want market share. They battle. And the whole fight in globalization is for either jobs on the one hand, market share on the other hand, or both.

That is the globalization. That is the trade. And we do not have a trade policy.

They talk about free trade, and they get together. Unfortunately, our Democratic leadership gets together with the Republican leadership on this score.

They put out the white tent and they fixed the vote. The New York Times wrote the article about it. The New York Times put in there that they got the NAFTA vote by giving our friend, Jake Pickle, a culture center; another Congressman two C–17s; another one a golf match. They had 26 gimmies to fix the vote. So they fixed the vote here in the Finance Committee and fixed the vote with the leadership, and they have the unmitigated gall to come and say: No amendments, don't discuss it, when can we vote, let's get this thing over with, free trade, free trade, free trade.

I am going to join my friend, our leader from West Virginia, Senator BYRD, and others, and hope we bring some sobriety to this crowd up here in Washington. Let's start competing and let's start being productive. Congress berates the U.S. industrial worker. You must become productive. But we can't pass an increase in the minimum wage. We can't pass a patients' bill of rights. We can't pass gun control. We can't pass campaign finance. We can't do anything.

Remember, we are competing with ourselves. I think that is one of the main points to be understood. I will never forget those industrialists who traveled all the way to Europe and back with jet lag to implement the Marshall Plan. Now with the profit the corporations make, they don't mind the jet lag. They don't mind moving for a while to Japan and Korea and other places. And as of 1973, the banks—Citicorp and Chase Manhattan—made a majority of their revenues and profits outside of the United States. They became more or less multinational. Then, of course, the corporations themselves started traveling over there and they organized in order to support this so-called free trade, which they knew historically was a bummer. They organized the Trilateral Commission and the Foreign Policy Association. If you run for President, the first thing you do is get a gilded invitation to go up and pledge on the altar of almighty free trade your loyalty and your fealty to free trade. So you become sophisticated. You become knowledgeable. Yet you don't know what you are talking about.

Then they give the contributions to the college campuses so that you not only have the companies and the banks, but you have the campuses. There was a Ms. Jacobson who put out a study back in the 1980s where the majority of the contributions, I think, on the Harvard campus were Japanese. So you get all the campuses. You get the consultants. You get the Washington lawyers. We don't hear too much from our friend Pat Choate. I wish he would run again. Pat Choate wrote ''The Agents of Influence.''

The agents of affluence were our special Trade Representatives, whether it was Eberly or Brock or Strauss, those representing us immediately went to represent the other side. It would be like General Powell going to represent Saddam Hussein and Iraq. But that is what has been going on. To Mickey Kantor's credit, he has not done that. But I have been here long enough to watch all of them. Carla Hills, who gets all of these awards and everything else, represented the other side, the competition.

Then you have the retailers. We used to debate a bill, Mr. President. I would go down to Bloomingdale's, and I would get a lady's blouse made in Taiwan and one made in New Jersey because they are trying to fill up the order. They were never the same price, and the American manufacturer wasn't the lower price. I went to Herman's and got a catcher's mitt, one made in Michigan, one made in Korea—the same thing, the one from Korea was cheaper. So they make a bigger profit, the retailers. And the retailers pay the newspapers through advertisements. That is the source of the majority of newspapers' profits. The business manager of that newspaper says you have to be for free trade because the retailers are their clientele.

I just heard the distinguished Senator from Arkansas talk about free trade. She was very much for this particular bill. Their biggest industry? Wal-Mart, import industry. They are going to sell a few chickens in Arkansas. Tyson hopes he can sell a few chickens. But they are not producing anything else there. So we have to go over to the retailers.

We have the banks, the corporations, the consultants, the societies, the campuses, the lawyers, special trade representatives and, yes, the lawyers. The Commerce Committee does not consider a bill that your office does not fill up with this crowd. In fact, these folks are confusing the Deutsche Telekom bill that my distinguished colleague cosponsored with me, running around the whole month of August trying to figure out how to get this vote and how to get that vote.

Section 310(a) says you cannot license a foreign government in telecommunications. It has been that way since 1934. We argued and debated it in the 1996 bill. We ultimately left it alone. In spite of the White House and the FCC and all the other legal shenanigans they have ongoing, the law is still there, but they are trying to confuse that.

It is like Spain with the fifth column. We have the enemy within, like Bobby Kennedy wrote about. I mean, I am not worried about China. I would run it the same way they are running it. They have a $68 to $70 billion plus balance of trade. We have got $70 billion minus balance of trade and it has been growing each year. It is going to continue to grow.

This is not about jobs in the United States. It is about jobs in China. The Wall Street Journal had a big headline that said investors are racing now to invest in downtown Beijing, get a foothold there and then get the protection of the WTO—because you know who the WTO is going to rule in favor of. Fidel Castro can cancel your vote, Senator, my vote, the U.S. vote. I mean, come on, the WTO setting our trade policy?

I have introduced a bill in each of the last sessions of Congress and I will introduce it again next year. I am trying to get the 28 Departments and the Agencies coordinated in a department of trade and commerce so that we can have a coordinated assault on the needs of this Nation. At the present time, it is all spread around, disparate. You have the policy from the Trade Representative. No, it is the Commerce Secretary. No, it is the Secretary of Defense. No, it is the White House. No, it is some other ruling that the administrative body, the FCC, has made. That is why we have these booming 60,000 lawyers at the bar in the District of Columbia—not 6, 60,000. I believe 59,000 of them are communications lawyers.

If we could just coordinate and get one trade policy for this country and get competitive like the old Yankee trader; otherwise, we are losing our jobs, our manufacturing. We are in economic decline. We are losing our middle class. Unfortunately, we are losing the strength of our democracy. I really believe that.

My friend, the Senator from New York, says this is a most important vote. Well, I think it is just as important for the exact opposite reason, that we kill it, not pass it, kill this thing, have regular trade, not normal, because we have been losing. I want to start competing. I certainly don't want a permanent trade agreement. Don't have one Congress try to bind the other Congresses. ''Permanent'' was put in there by the NAM Business Roundtable and the downtown lawyers. They are trying to get predictability to that investment over there, and they want to come back and tell ensuing Congresses: Look, you told us it was permanent and so we have our money over there.

And so just like the Senator from Arkansas protects Wal-Mart, which he should, maybe I would be here trying to protect a textile company that wants to produce in downtown Beijing.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. GREGG). The time under cloture has expired.

Mr. HOLLINGS. I thank the Chair and yield the floor.

Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The senior assistant bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, I come to the floor of the Senate this afternoon to discuss a motion to proceed on what many of us believe to be a very important issue, and that is Permanent Normal Trade Relations (PNTR) for China.

While this issue has been a long time in coming to the floor of the Senate, its time has come. Our Nation, for a good number of years, has pursued a relationship with mainland China to improve the trade and commerce flows that are critical to this country. The agreement that we are here to ultimately get to final debate and passage on, is an agreement that allows an unprecedented access to the China market.

I support PNTR for China because it will seal the deal on the U.S.-China Bilateral Agreement and finally allow U.S. business and farmers the access to Chinese markets that the Chinese have to our market. In other words, America has had a relatively open market to China while China's market has been, for all intents and purposes, closed—except by category and by definition. Passage of PNTR will help pave the way for China's eventual membership in the World Trade Organization.

I think, as you would probably agree, all of these are critical in our relationship to this very large country and the role that it will inevitably play in our future world. This deal cuts the barriers to trade that U.S. farmers and businesses have unfairly encountered for decades. It serves Idaho because it slashes tariffs on exports critical to Idaho's economy.

Let me give a couple of examples. On U.S. priority industry products, tariffs will fall to 7.1 percent. Tariffs will fall on several products that are critical to my State, including wood and paper, which are critical to my State; chemicals, a growing industry in my State; and capital and medical equipment. In information technology—now a very important part of Idaho's economy—the tariff on products, such as computers, semiconductors, and all Internet-related equipment will fall from an average of 13 percent to zero by the year 2005.

On U.S. priority agricultural products, tariffs will be reduced from an average of 35.1 percent to 14 percent by January of 2004, at the latest. It will also expand market access for U.S. corn, cotton, wheat, rice, barley, soybeans, meat, and other products.

I think we all know the current state of the agricultural economy, and while we will set policy, to hopefully help production agriculture, we have always known that knocking down trade barriers and expanding the world marketplace for our producers in agricultural products remains critical. We have long since passed the day when we are the consumers of all that we produce. Now, well over 50 percent of everything a farmer or rancher produces on his or her property has to be sold in world markets to maintain current economies and to improve the profitability of those individual operations.

China, without question, is struggling today to determine what it will do in agriculture. Without question, it will want to feed itself and to continue to do so. Any nation worth its own gravity wants to provide food and fiber for its own citizens. But as that economy improves—and it is improving—the ability of disposable income in the hands of the mainland Chinese means that they will want to buy more of a variety of products that our tremendous agricultural economy produces. This is merely a step, and that is why I say dropping tariffs from 31.5 percent to 14.5 percent by the year 2004 is significant. As we work with them, those tariffs could actually drop more rapidly in that area with additional agreements. There is no question that future Administrations in this country will continue to pressure the Chinese to move in the direction of even lower tariffs, but that significant drop of over 15 percent will rapidly enhance agricultural opportunities for sales to China.

The United States needs this deal. We are the strongest economy in the world and, as a Senator, would I stand here and say we need this deal? Yes, because we do. The U.S. trade deficit with China is large and continuing to widen. The deficit surged from $6.2 billion in 1989 to nearly $57 billion in 1998. And it continues to rise.

That statement alone is proof that our economy has been a largely open economy and theirs has been a relatively closed economy. This agreement, however, rapidly moves them toward a much more open economy and, therefore, spells in very simple language an opportunity for American business and industry and America's working men and women to expand the products they produce to sell into the Chinese markets.

In addition to reducing barriers to trade, it will also force China to play by the rules.

There is, I guess, a bit of a saying that when you deal with the Chinese on the mainland, you sign the contract, and then you begin to negotiate. In this country, when you sign the contract, you have made the agreement. The negotiation is complete. That is why bringing them on line with PNTR and into WTO means that not only will they have to ultimately play by the rules, but there will be a learning process for them as well. In working with the dispute mechanisms of the WTO they will obviously learn that as they move more aggressively into world markets, there is a rule of law that we have all trading nations of the world play by; that is, a rule of fair trade based on the standards established and negotiated within the agreements.

Let me give you an example of the problems we face today.

Idaho is known for its beautiful orchards. Of course, the State of Washington—our neighbor—is known for more orchards and that fine red apple that many of us see on the shelves of the produce markets and supermarkets of our country. Today, many of those orchards that produce those marvelous apples in Idaho and Washington are being pulled out and replaced by other crops. Why? Because the Chinese have flooded the United States market with concentrated apple juice—that when you buy apple juice in the marketplace, the apple juice could well be produced from a Chinese concentrate shipped into our markets, then processed and bottled and sold into the American market.

The only way we can control the Chinese flow of concentrated apple juice into our market today would be to either openly threaten or close down our markets—close down our borders to the Chinese. That makes very little sense when you are working to expand markets because they then would counter by closing down access to another portion of their markets only to hurt another segment of our agriculture.

If they were in the WTO—if we accept this agreement—then they come under entirely new standards so that they have to regulate the flow of their concentrated apple juice into our markets, and without question, substantially improve the overall economy of the fresh fruit industry of this Nation and of the State of Idaho, and the State of Washington.

PNTR also means better opportunity for Idaho business-people and for the Idaho workforce.

For several years now Idaho has exported to China on a growing basis. We are 1.2 million strong in the State of Idaho. We are not a large State—at least population-wise.

In 1993, my State exported just about $2 million worth of goods and services to China. But by just 2 years ago, in 1998, that number had grown to $25 million. That is a 1,000-percent increase in the flow of goods and services leaving Idaho and going to mainland China, which just shows you the tremendous expansiveness in the marketplace that still remains relatively closed. This agreement rapidly opens that market and allows us greater access.

This last year, in December of 1999, I had the opportunity to lead an Idaho trade mission to China. I asked 13 different businesses and industries to go along with me and my wife, Suzanne, and some of our staff. Representatives from agricultural companies and building material companies and the high-tech community went along with us. We were all united, not only in our recognition of the importance of China's entry into the WTO, but all of these companies that went along went to look for opportunities to expand the marketplace of products built in Idaho for expanding the economy of my State and expanding the workforce and the job opportunities that exist in my State.

While we were there, we had the distinct privilege of meeting with President Jiang Zemin. President Jiang gave us the courtesy of nearly an hour of his time in a direct discussion with myself and the trade delegation. During that time, he talked about China's future and he expressed it this way. He said China is serious about a transition to a more market-based economy, although the President made it very clear that China was not going to fall for the Russian model. In other words, they weren't going to throw out the old and assume that the new would just naturally take its place.

What they recognized and what they are doing at this moment is a progressive step-by-step approach for greater access in the marketplace, greater flexibility in the marketplace, without collapsing their economy, and without destroying the job base they currently have. There is no question that China is eager to gain the economic benefit and the political prestige of a WTO membership.

During that tour, we also went to an area and a province to the coastal city of Xiamen. There you can see firsthand what happens when an economy that was once guarded, protected, and limited by state-owned companies and by political control is turned, relatively, loose to join the world economy. Xiamen is one of six free-trade zones in China that was created by Premier Deng Xiaoping a good number of years ago. Their gross domestic product is phenomenal with average GDP of 20 percent, and job creation of the kind that is tremendously significant in giving the workforce of China the kind of upward mobility that all of us seek for all peoples of the world.

While we were there, we toured a brand new Kodak plant that was built on about 19 acres of ground. It was once a rice paddy for water buffalo and cobra snake. In just 19 months, this rice paddy was transformed into a very modern company that met all of the building codes, standards, and safety requirements as if they were built in my backyard, or in your backyard, or anywhere in this Nation. It was the home of thousands of workers, working for a much higher wage given the kind of power that a higher wage gives, and even given the opportunity to buy and own their own apartment.

If we really want to see China change, we must help give their workforce this kind of an economy, give them more money in their pockets, a chance to own private property, and then we will watch, over the years, a political change that will take place.

PNTR for China will improve the standard of living for many Chinese who have endured very poor standards of living.

PNTR isn't just a good deal for the farmers of Idaho, or the business men and women of Idaho. It is a good deal for the Chinese people who have suffered poverty beyond compare, and who are now beginning to experience through the marketplace, the opportunity of upward mobility, and the opportunity of private property ownership that truly begins to transform the political base and the landscape of a country.

Over the last year, as this issue developed and certainly over the last 6 months as we have known and as the Nation has known that we would ultimately debate the issue of permanent trade status for China and debate their entry into the WTO, I have received a multitude of letters from Idaho from all kinds of constituents who for one reason or another see the issue of permanent trade status the same way I do. While we agree that some of the human rights issues in China, and some of the other kind of concerns that we have are important, we also agree that our Nation must be continually engaged with the Chinese to change the world and to change their role in the world. Building a wall or turning our backs on this huge population base is no way to gain those kinds of ultimate changes or benefits.

These letters, and letters from my Governor, Dirk Kempthorne, I think note, at least for the moment, that I share them with you. Let me give you a couple of examples.

Here is one from David Sparrow, of Boise, ID.

He writes:

DEAR SENATOR: As a constituent and a member of the agricultural community, I continue to urge your strong support of PNTR legislation with China.

He goes on to say:

PNTR for China is vital to the farmers and other agricultural interests in our district. Your vote is critical.

Another one is just a simple one-liner from a gentleman in America Falls, when he said:

Support trade with China. Nothing to lose except a market to other countries.

That is exactly right. If we don't compete effectively, then our producers and our American workforce will be the loser as other economies of the world continue to increasingly engage the Chinese marketplace in their bid for consumer products and a role in the world markets.

Doug Garrity from Blackfoot, ID, wrote this Senator:

DEAR SENATOR: As your constituent, I urge you to vote in favor of Permanent Normal Trade Relations with China. Congress must approve PNTR this year in order to secure unprecedented access to world markets for my company and others across America.

He was talking about a company in American Falls, ID, that is an agriculture-based company.

When the Idaho trade delegation and I met with President Jiang Zemin it was very clear from what he was saying that they believed this time, it was their turn to make the concessions. He openly talked about why they had made these concessions, why they were lowering their trade barriers, why they would phase them in over a period of time, and openly discussed even freer markets than the kind that are proposed in the current agreement Ambassador Charlene Barshefsky negotiated in late October and early November. President Jiang Zemin recognizes that the strength of his country in the future is not going to be based on the strength of a government but the strength of an economy and the right of his people to share in that economy, both individually and collectively as a country. He spoke very openly about that.

It was an amazing experience to visit for well over an hour with a man who had walked behind Mao in the great revolution. He did not mention that once, but instead talked in terms of open and free markets and talked about China's role in a world economy and our role and our companies' roles and our national economy's influence over them and their economy. It was a dialog I would not expect to have. Yet it is a dialog that is now pursued nearly every day of the week in China by U.S. companies who are openly and actively gaining a piece of that market.

Another letter from Marlene Sanderlin of Lewiston, ID, which is a forest products and agricultural town. It is the location of our seaport where ocean-going barges come all the way up the Columbia and Snake Rivers into the heart of Idaho to take out Montana and Idaho grain, forest products, paper, and coal from Montana. All of that is moving out to the Pacific rim and some of it ultimately going to China. The vitality of that seaport, in the heart of Idaho, is in large part connected to the vitality of our trade in the Pacific rim and China. And China's economic growth, without question, is an opportunity for that seaport and for every seaport in the United States and the men and women who work in the maritime industries.

As your constituent, I urge you to support PNTR legislation for China. This legislation benefits real people: Me, my family, and my country. It guarantees economic growth for America and promotes the growth of democracy in China.

She speaks from my experience and my limited exposure in China, and the absolute truth when she says it addresses the growth of the democracy or the democratic actions within China itself.

Potlatch Corporation happens to be a company that is a large paper and fiber producer in Lewiston, ID. They write, asking that we support this. Why? Because of the thousands of workers they have at Potlatch and the products they can supply into the Pacific rim and into the Chinese market.

I have a good many letters from Idaho. We have received thousands. I know that nearly every Senator has received phenomenal communiques from their State in support of this particular issue that is now before the Senate itself. Establishing a permanent trade relationship with China means establishing a permanent, but also growing and developing relationship with the most populated country in the world. Without question, it is a vast opportunity for the sale of our products, and for an ongoing and working relationship with those Chinese people that can do nothing but help improve the ongoing relationship.

We will have some important tests in the coming days as other votes on other issues directly related to China come up. I will take a serious look at some of them because we need to make very clear, straightforward statements to our friends in China as to what we can and will expect and what we don't expect as it relates to their role in the world community and our role along with theirs.

If PNTR were voted down, the real losers would be the American business person, the American farmer, and the American workforce. We have a vibrant economy today, and our economy is vibrant because we can sell in an ever-opening world market. It has not cost us jobs, it has continually improved and built a stronger economic base and a greater job opportunity for nearly every citizen in our country who seeks it. While that economy is strong, in the agricultural communities of Idaho and across the Nation, it is weak. It is weak because nearly 20 percent of the world market is off limits or in some way restricted to direct access for our production agriculture.

This is a quantum leap forward to not only gaining greater access but improving the economy of hometown, smalltown America. Idaho, my State, has a good many of them. PNTR is a critical link in providing that business economy, jobs, and growth relationship with China and China's future. Rejecting permanent normal trade relations would, in my opinion, have a dramatic impact on the economy for all the opposite reasons I have expressed that passage would have a positive impact.

Lastly, if we reject this, we largely freeze our relations with China. We can't afford to do that as a country. We can't afford to do that as a world leader. I, along with a lot of my colleagues, have been very stressed in the last several months with some of the utterances coming from China and some of what appear to be their activities here. Shame on us if we ignore this and if we ignore all of those other utterances. Full engagement is the only way we can deal with the Chinese. Full engagement economically, full engagement in trade, dealing with defense matters, openly stating our positions in unequivocal ways as to how we will deal with our friends, neighbors, and potential adversaries around the world.

It is that kind of leadership that is incumbent upon this country, it is that kind of leadership that is asked for in the Senate now in the passage of a permanent normalizing trade relationship with mainland China. I hope as we move to this vote we can get there, pass it, pass it as cleanly as possible, and get it to the President for his signature.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative assistant proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. CRAIG). Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, the Senate is presently considering the extension of permanent normal trade relations status, or PNTR, to the People's Republic of China contingent upon China's accession to the World Trade Organization, WTO. Earlier this year, it appeared that China might seek to join the WTO this fall, but now, in the first blush of autumn, that possibility has receded. And so has the urgency for us to consider granting PNTR on a permanent basis or on a temporary basis to China. Yet, here we are, with but a scant handful of days left in this Congress and a large number of must-pass appropriations bills awaiting our attention, discussing the merits or demerits or lack of merits of forevermore foregoing our annual ritual of reviewing and extending normal trade relations to China.

It might be worthwhile for the Senate to so consume its time, if we were taking this debate seriously. After all, it is quite a significant vote, the outcome of which may have long-lasting effects on our economy, on American jobs and on American workers. Proponents of extending PNTR to China note with some alarm that, should China join the WTO, the United States could be subject to sanctions by China because we do not currently treat it exactly the same as we do other trading partners, both in the WTO and outside the WTO. And that is true. We do not treat China the same as, say, the United Kingdom or Japan. We put conditions on our trade with China, human rights conditions and labor conditions and nonproliferation conditions. We do so out of concern for those issues with respect to China.

Our annual debate and vote to extend for another year normal trade relations, with conditions or without conditions, allows us, here in Congress, to comprehensively review our relationship with China. The annual vote on NTR is important to China, more important, perhaps, than any other single piece of legislation might be. The United States is a huge market, an attractive market, and an important market for Chinese goods. The competitive advantage of NTR tariff rates is consequential. It is both a carrot and a stick to persuade China to alter its behavior with regard to issues near and dear to Americans, such as religious freedom, such as nonproliferation.

I would be happy to spend many hours on this debate, and discussing this important trade and security relationship. I consider it an important debate. But I am somewhat dismayed to read news accounts about a cabal among Senators to stifle one of the most important rights granted by the Constitution to the Senate. That is the right to offer and have debate on and votes on amendments. In the House, the rule guides debate and the number and content of amendments that might be offered to a bill. That is perhaps necessary in a body with 435 Members. But the Constitution says: Each House may determine its own rules. The framers made the Senate a place where minority views, and small States, had an equal voice.

Thus, West Virginia, a State consisting of 24,000 square miles—as a matter of fact, 24,231.4 square miles—is not a very large State when placed beside, on a geographic map, the great State of New York, which is so ably represented and which has been so ably represented by the senior Senator from New York, Mr. MOYNIHAN.

I oppose this legislation with due apologies to my friend. And he is my friend—a man of great wit, of great stature, a man of natural grace, a student, a scholar, a teacher—PAT MOYNIHAN. I apologize to him for having to vote against this bill, but I shall do it with gusto.

The framers established the Senate as a forum for unlimited debate and unlimited amendment. Or did they? They certainly did so with respect to unlimited amendments. But for several years, there was the previous question here in the Senate by which debate could be limited. But when Aaron Burr completed his tenure as Vice President of the United States and made his farewell address to the Senate, in early March of 1805, he recommended that the previous question be dropped from the rules. It had only been used 10 times in the previous years from the inception of the Republic. When the rules were revised in 1806, the previous question was dropped. It was then that unlimited debate reigned pure and undefiled and unchallenged in the Senate of the United States. So this is a precious birthright.

By the way, there were no limitations placed upon debate from that time—1806 or 1805—until 1917, when the present rule XXII—not exactly the present rule; it has been changed some since then—but a rule providing for the invoking of cloture was adopted in the Senate in 1917.

But this group of Members—I do not know who they are, and I am not sure that such a group exists, but I will take rumor for truth at this point because it very well could occur to some Members to want a ''clean'' vote, up or down.

This group of Members, I read, want a ''clean'' vote, up or down, on the House-passed bill. They, and a number of House Members, do not want a conference. And they do not want a second vote in both Houses on a conference report. So these Senators—well-intentioned, well-meaning—are determined to defeat every amendment, I hear, to this bill, regardless of merit. So having heard it, let me accept it as the truth and proceed accordingly. I am embarrassed to read that. I hope that it is not true, that Members of this body would relinquish a critical Senate prerogative, especially over so important an issue. Perhaps they would say: Well, it isn't exactly relinquishing a prerogative. Other Senators may call up amendments, but we will vote them down. They shall not pass.

If it is true, then we are just spinning our wheels here, are we not, by trying to fulfill our Constitutional role of regulating foreign commerce? We are just spinning deep ruts in the Senate floor by attempting to offer amendments to improve this bill before we close off our opportunity to annually review and affect our relationship with China.

I have reviewed the House bill, somewhat cursorily, I admit. It is not that the House-passed bill is a bad bill. It contains a number of reporting requirements that attempt to assuage concerns about human rights and labor rights in China. But without the goal of an annual renewal of NTR status behind it, what force does a report have to affect behavior in China? How can a report protect American workers whose jobs are in jeopardy because of unfair actions in the trade field by China? How can a report protect American missionaries in China or Chinese citizens who wish to practice their religious beliefs? How does a report turn back a shipment of missile technology? How does a report turn back threatening words and actions directed at another nation like Taiwan?

The goal of this administration, and of the past few administrations—and I say this most advisedly; I have been in Congress now 48 years—and every administration since I came to Washington, Democratic and Republican, has been the same way, always singing the same old tune, and is guided, it seems to me, by the State Department.

The goal of all of these administrations, including the present one, has been to, bit by bit, eat away at the constitutional powers of this body to regulate foreign commerce. This is the message behind limiting mechanisms such as fast track. The argument is that our trading partners do not like agreements to be amended so it is take it or leave it for the Senate. But the Senate must make judgments based on our national interest.

Trade is a matter of increasing national interest. No one would dream of making the argument that we cannot vote for reservations or changes in arms control treaties because it would upset our negotiating partner. The Soviets promptly renegotiated the changes we made with respect to the INF treaty, a very fundamental change on the question of the very definition of the missiles that were the subject of the treaty. So are we to conclude that we can amend arms control treaties but not trade agreements, or even legislation dealing with trade agreements?

Trade has now become a varsity sport in America, especially here in Washington. It is very important to our well-being, important to millions of workers, important to the quality of our environment, important to the world's environment. It is important to large industrial and service sectors, a matter of such importance that we should at least pay careful attention to our constitutional responsibilities. The final product will be more in the national interest and Senators will have done their duty to their constituents and to our Nation, as it was envisioned by our Founding Fathers, if we debate this matter at length and if we offer amendments, debate them in good faith, and have votes up or down on them and let the chips fall where they may.

Is it not possible that we might improve this legislation by the vote of a majority here in the Senate? Suppose one were to offer an amendment vital to our security interest. It is not germane, but there is no rule of germaneness in the Senate except under rule XVI with respect to appropriations bills or when time agreements obtain or when cloture is invoked. So why not? Why not offer subject matter that is important to our national security interest?

If there is a group of Senators who have, by tacit understanding, by a wink and a nod, or by words openly declared that they will oppose any and every amendment regardless of its complexity or its complexion or whether it is good or bad or in between—if there is such a group of Senators, why not abstain from that and let us vote? Let us have a vote up or down and have a vote based on the subject matter of the amendment without any prior agreement, without any wink or nod, if there be such. Let us see where the chips fall.

Are we to say that this particular bill is the acme of perfection and we should not have any further amendments of any sort regardless of merit? I don't think that would be the right way to commence.

Once granted, PNTR will be difficult, though not impossible, to retract. Any attempt to withdraw PNTR status in the future, if it is granted now, will cause an uproar, and not just in China. The diplomatic crowd in the aptly named Foggy Bottom here in D.C. will bleat that rejecting PNTR will upset delicate negotiations with the Chinese. The big business crowd will complain about lost opportunities to sell or invest in China. The Administration at the time will prate erroneously about Congress interfering with their sovereign right to conduct foreign affairs. And even in Congress, bills might be introduced, only to die an unremarked death in some committee or on some calendar. I have been here a long time. I have seen a lot of bills die and I know a thing or two about how to kill them. So I know that undoing a thing is much harder to do than doing it in the first place. It will be much harder to undo PNTR than it will be to grant it.

So why are we apparently so gung-ho to have this sham debate and vote now, this year, this week or next? There is no great urgency. The bill will not even take effect until China's accession to the WTO is voted upon. Why do it now, just weeks after a damning report has been issued about China's role in the proliferation of missiles and missile technology? Why do it now—why not next week sometime or next month or next year sometime—mere weeks after Chinese authorities conducted another raid on a so-called Christian sect that resulted in three Taiwan-born American citizens and approximately 100 Chinese citizens being arrested for meeting in worship? Why do it now, just months after Chinese officials have made still more threatening gestures toward Taiwan?

Why do it now, before the final negotiations on the bilateral U.S.-Chinese trade agreement, particularly the trade subsidy portions, have been ironed out?

Perhaps someone was listening to that advertisement I have heard on the TV so many times: Do it now, do it here. Well, we don't do it now.

China's record on trade agreements is not stellar. Since 1992, six trade agreements have been made—and broken—by China. In the last two years, we have seen the effects of dumping on the U.S. steel industry, as well as on the apple industry. So why are we rushing this vote? Why now? Why are we rushing this in such haste that we will not even seriously consider amendments that might improve the legislation? It is hardly perfect, sprung like Minerva, fully formed, from the forehead of Jove, or like Aphrodite from the ocean foam.

In that vein, I have several amendments prepared which I believe could improve this agreement. One concerns prospective U.S. investments in the Chinese energy sector. This amendment, if adopted, supports the market for clean energy technology in China's admittedly booming economy. I believe this amendment would pass the Senate. I think it would command a decided majority in the Senate, if left to its own merits. Sales of such clean technology helps U.S. firms, of course, but also provide a mechanism for the Chinese to improve their air and water quality, a necessary step if China is ever to step up to what should be leadership role for her among the world's developing nations with regard to climate change.

Now I am all for dealing with global warming. I am for the Kyoto Protocols, if China will get on board. So why not have an amendment to that effect. Let's have a vote here in the Senate.

After all, by the year 2015 at the latest, China is expected—let's see, I will be serving in my tenth term; that will be my tenth term. After all, by 2015 at the latest, China is expected to surpass the United States as the world's leading emitter of greenhouse gases. For her own sake, as well as for the future of all of us, China needs to step up to the plate and tackle her role in addressing the global issue of climate change. The United States would also benefit from this effort, as increased volume of clean technology sales helps to reduce prices and make the best technology more affordable to retrofit on existing U.S. facilities.

My other amendments are perhaps somewhat more specific in nature. In light of China's less-than-sterling record of abiding by previous trade agreements, these amendments are focused on increasing the transparency of Chinese Government subsidies made to China's many state-owned enterprises, and on improving existing U.S. procedures for acting on dumping complaints. China has made vague promises about not dumping and about not providing unfair subsidies to her enterprises. Yet China has also staked a verbal claim to the status of developing nations, which would exempt her from any sanctions with regard to subsidies made to Chinese industries. My amendments would require reports on China's state-owned enterprises—what's wrong with that?—and the advantages they enjoy, which would better enable us to determine if China's actions are fair.

Another of my amendments would add certainty to the sometimes excessively lengthy process used to determine if such subsidies have adversely affected U.S. companies and U.S. workers. These amendments will help us better to protect American manufacturers, American jobs, American workers, and American families from unfair trade practices.

American trade negotiators have crowed that, in the U.S.-China Bilateral Trade Agreement, the United States has given up nothing, while the Chinese have made substantial concessions and have offered to significantly lower tariff rates on certain goods. But I argue that the United States is giving up something substantial, though not directly through the U.S.-China Bilateral Trade Agreement. We are making our part of the bargain now. We are giving up our annual review and extension of normal trade relations with China in favor of a permanent normal trade relations status. And we are doing it now, before China has to make a single concession as a result of the bilateral agreement, which, like PNTR, is contingent upon China's accession to the WTO. But I suspect that the Chinese may also be gambling on the fact that having once made the plunge in granting PNTR to China, the United States will give it to them even if they never make it to the WTO, or even if the details of the bilateral change are ignored. That is the way we are, and the Chinese know it as well as I do.

We have an obligation to our constituents and to the citizens of our great Nation to look out for their best interests. The Constitution gives us a role. Yes, it does. This is the Constitution that I hold in my hand for all to see through that electronic eye. This is the Constitution. Article I, section 8 gives Congress the power to regulate interstate and foreign commerce. So why don't we utilize that power? Why don't we utilize it? The Constitution gives us a role in regulating foreign commerce. I am not sure that we perform that obligation very well. We grant—I don't—fast-track authority to the Executive to negotiate massive trade deals and leave ourselves without the ability to amend. We take away the Senate's right under the Constitution to amend. We grant fast-track authority to the Executive to negotiate massive trade deals and leave ourselves without the ability to amend them, as we did with NAFTA and GATT, both of which I voted against—proudly, I voted against both.

My State certainly did not benefit from those actions. West Virginia lost jobs and lost a lot of the diversity in its manufacturing base. China is an enormous potential market, perhaps, but she is also an enormous labor pool competing for jobs and competing at a price advantage. Our economy is strong, but we cannot all sit at computer keyboards and be information age technology wizards. As a Nation, we also need to actually make things and grow things. Production and farming are important. But I would not invest in planting a new apple orchard right now, with Chinese apples and apple juice flooding the U.S. market. I would think twice about establishing a new assembly plant or some factory right now that faces competition from lower-paid workers in China, who do not have the same labor protections that workers in the United States enjoy and deserve. The future is uncertain and cloudy.

Who will get the prize? Chinese or American workers? Will China be rewarded despite a history of broken trade agreements, weapons proliferation, religious repression, poor labor protection, and aggressive foreign policy statements? Will China be rewarded before the final trade issues concerning subsidies have been inked in? Or will American workers enjoy a respite? Will American concerns for security, human rights, and fair trade hold sway for a little while longer? I say to my colleagues, let it wait. Let it wait. This debate, this vote, can wait until we have the leisure and the will to do it right. If we persist in this misguided charade of a debate with no intention of considering any amendments on their merits, I will fulfill my obligations. I will offer amendments—good amendments, useful amendments, not dilatory amendments. I hope they will not be tabled simply to avoid a vote up or down, to avoid going to conference.

At this time, I believe it would be extremely unwise to simply rubber stamp the House bill and approve PNTR with China without amendments.

Granting PNTR to China with no amendments and no conditions signals that the U.S. Congress has given up on putting worker rights and environmental standards on the international trade agenda. Coupled with the rhetoric of the President, the Vice President, and the U.S. Trade Representative in support of PNTR, congressional acquiescence will reduce American credibility on labor and environmental issues to virtually nothing.

At this time, it is not known whether China will actually apply for membership in the WTO. But one thing is clear; the Chinese Government has not wavered in its absolute opposition to any consideration of labor rights and social standards in the WTO. Despite claims that a market economy is bringing democracy to China, the U.S. State Department's 1999 human rights report on China concludes that the Chinese Government's ''poor human rights record deteriorated markedly throughout the year, as the government intensified efforts to suppress dissent, particularly organized dissent.'' Documented human rights violations include torture and mistreatment of prisoners, forced detentions, denial of due process, and extra-judicial killings. Violent repression of all efforts to organize independent union activity continues.

Given such a record, it would seem unbelievable to many that the United States Congress would grant a green light to PNTR with China, without so much as even a nod toward conditions or amendments.

Are we to turn a blind eye to every deeply held principle we have as a people about justice, freedom, and right and wrong for the pie-in-the sky promises of economic gain? I hope not. For that would be much, much more than a sell-out. That would be a shame.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New York.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Mr. President, I rise with deference and not a small measure of awe at the continued erudition of my colleague from West Virginia. The first decision I made when I came to the Senate was to support him for majority leader, and I have not made one of equal consequence since. None has given me greater pleasure.

I say on the question of amendments that it is a point of significance. When the Finance Committee reported a measure on its own, it was a two-page bill. It was not a complicated matter. It was just agreed to. It will allow us to reap the benefits of an agreement that was reached between two countries.

Now, I must say with absolute openness—and I hope always to be such. Yes. It is the hope of the managers of the legislation that the Senator from Delaware, the chairman of the Finance Committee, and the ranking member, that we not amend the House bill. We have agreed to take up H.R. 4444, because if we amend it with a semicolon, it will require us to go back. The bill will go back. I do not have to tell the Senator. It will have to go to conference and pass the House again, and then come here and pass the Senate. Time has run out. This would have been a wholly acceptable and sensible approach in May, but here we are in September of an election year in the last weeks of the Senate.

So the Senator from West Virginia is right. He said he has read it in the newspapers. I stand here to tell him that it is the case. I hope we made no effort to conceal this. It is simply our judgment and the administration's judgment.

I would like to say one last thing about fast track. The Senator could not be more correct—that we have given up our right to amend the trade agreements. But we did that in the aftermath of the disastrous experience, which was the Smoot-Hawley Tariff Act of 1930. If you were to make a list of five events that led to the Second World War, Smoot-Hawley would be one. We raised our tariffs to the 60-percent level by trading on the floor in the most normal political process that works very well in most matters. But in trade it can be ruinous. We reached a level of tariffs of 60 percent. We were in that early stage of a sharp market crash. The economy was down. But it came back up. But with Smoot-Hawley, indeed imports dropped by two-thirds. And exports dropped by two-thirds. The British went off free trade into commonwealth preferences. The Japanese went to the Greater East Asian Coprosperity sphere.

In 1933, with unemployment rates of almost 33 percent, Germany elected Hitler chancellor.

So under Cordell Hull, that great statesman from Tennessee, and Secretary of State under President Roosevelt, we began reciprocal trade agreements. We gave the President the authority to negotiate reciprocal reductions in tariffs without coming back for the formal approval of the Congress. This was the predecessor of, the precedent for, the fast track procedures that were established in the Trade Act of 1974. In effect, the Congress itself said we will deny ourselves this temptation, if you like. We can always take it back.

Indeed, right now the President has no fast-track authority. It expired in 1994. He could not get it in the atmosphere of the divided parties.

It is that atmosphere, too, that leads us to believe that we should not send this measure back to the House. It had been thought that the permanent normal trade relations bill might pass by two or three votes. It was more, but not overwhelming. As the Senator from West Virginia knows, here in the Senate Chamber 86 votes were cast in July on the motion to proceed.

I want to be open about this matter, if I can, and as I am. There is nothing more to say than what I have said, save that I believe I have more time—possibly 3 hours—apportioned to me in this debate. If the beloved President pro tempore—and all of those things—would wish more of my time to speak further, he would only have to ask.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from West Virginia.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I thank the very distinguished senior Senator from the State of Alexander Hamilton, New York. Alexander Hamilton was the only one of the New York delegation who finally signed the Constitution. He was one of the truly great statesmen in the early life of this Republic. He helped guide the people of that delegation at the Convention to a resolution concerning this great document, and one who helped, along with John Jay and James Madison, to write those, if I might use the word, ''immortal'' papers, the Federalist Papers. He helped to win the approval of the State of New York for the Constitution.

There is no one with whom I would rather, very honestly, discuss this particular subject in the Senate than the Senator from New York because I am so opposed to the view that he has just expressed. I am so opposed to it. I could with much greater passion say that if it were someone else.

I respect the Senator. I admire him. I know he was and is the great teacher. I wish I had had the good fortune to sit in a class and listen to Senator MOYNIHAN speak as a Professor.

I am proud to say that I had much to do with Senator MOYNIHAN's being a member of the Finance Committee, as he also had to do with my becoming majority leader.

But I am very, very much opposed to this approach. I am very, very much opposed to and somewhat chagrined and disappointed, I say with due apologies to my friend, at the philosophy which seems to govern the Senate at the moment with respect to this legislation, with respect to not adopting amendments.

The distinguished Senator has had no hesitancy whatever. He is not doing something behind closed doors or under the table or under the desk, but sitting it on front of the desk: This we are doing and this is why we are doing it.

He honestly believes that is the best for his country. I admire that. I respect the Senator for that forthrightness. He would not be otherwise but forthright. I respect his reasons, therefor. However, I cannot agree with him. I am totally, absolutely, unchangeably, unalterably set in my viewpoint that this is not the right thing to do; it is not in accordance with the Constitution of the United States; it is not in accordance with the wishes, the intentions of the framers. So be it. I am not going to argue that point. We will just disagree and be as great friends as we have ever been. And the Senator will win when we cast our final vote on this. His conscience will be clear and mine will be clear.

My State has lost under these trade agreements—GATT. Our country has lost under NAFTA. It is my understanding that we have lost 440,000 workers in this country as a result of NAFTA. Those are the statistics my staff has been able to get from the administration.

As I say, I will not belabor the point further. I thank the distinguished Senator for leadership that he has given the Senate. He is a man who has always enjoyed the respect of his colleagues whether he agrees or disagrees in a particular matter. He doesn't go out of this Chamber and carry it with him. We all love him, and we will all hate to see him go. But I will say to him, of his illustrious words that have been spoken in the Senate so many times, I have very carefully listened to them, and they will never dim from my memory.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New York's time has expired.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. I ask for an additional 1 minute to thank my illustrious, incomparable colleague for his remarks.

I yield the floor, and I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk called the roll.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, inasmuch as no Senator seeks recognition, and there is a little time remaining before the Senate goes back to the appropriations bill dealing with energy and water, I ask unanimous consent that I may speak for not to exceed 10 minutes without the time being charged against time under the rule.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

FAITH AND POLITICS

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I rise today to congratulate Vice President GORE on his particularly fine choice of a running mate for the coming Fall election.

JOE LIEBERMAN is an able Senator. More importantly, he is a sincere and thoughtful Senator. He really fits no ideological sleeve, although some are already busily trying to label him. JOE LIEBERMAN is his own man, I believe. He follows his own conscience, I am confident of that, as even these early days of the Presidential campaign have already demonstrated.

Senator LIEBERMAN has firmly gripped the national political steering wheel, and he is bravely addressing one of the more fundamental issues before this Nation, namely the erosion of faith-based values from public life and public policy and the consequences of that regrettable loss.

On July 17, I took this Senate floor to express my own general concern and alarm over the direction this nation seems to be taking when it comes to spiritual values. My speech on that occasion was aimed in particular at a recent Supreme Court decision regarding voluntary prayer at a high school football game, but my remarks reflected my long-held general view that the Supreme Court has gone too far on such matters, and has increasingly misinterpreted the Framers intent regarding the establishment clause and perhaps more to the point the free exercise clause of the first amendment.

During my remarks, I called for a Constitutional amendment which might help to clarify the Framers' intentions. I even wrote to both Presidential candidates, with the hope of focusing attention on the matter, and thereby starting a national conversation about the proper place of religion in our public life, in our political life, in our country's life.

My friend, JOE LIEBERMAN, has done this Nation a great service by making his belief that faith-based principles and religion must and ought to have a place in our national policy and in our discussions about directions and priorities.

To my utter amazement, however, JOE LIEBERMAN has been misunderstood, and even maligned by some.

My colleague, now a candidate for the second highest office in the land, is not trying to force his religion or any religion down the throats of any unwilling recipient. Nor is JOE LIEBERMAN claiming, at least I do not read his remarks in this way, that a person cannot be moral if that person is not religious—even though I have to say that George Washington made it clear that without religion, morality cannot prevail; George Washington, in his Farewell Address. So, upon that authority I would rest my case. JOE LIEBERMAN is simply saying that in trying to assure that no one is coerced into embracing any one religion, or any religion, for that matter, the pendulum may have swung too far. JOE LIEBERMAN is simply expressing his own, and many other people's views, that it sometimes appears that persons of religious faith are not allowed their full freedom to practice and live their various faiths as their consciences dictate. He wants to have a national conversation about that, and I applaud his courage, for it is a subject easily misunderstood.

Political correctness gets in the way of all too many things in this country of ours. I am not a subscriber of political correctness by any means, shape or form. It has gotten in the way of an honest and open dialogue about how to allow for the open expression of faith-based values and practices for those who want those things in their lives, without infringing on the rights and beliefs of those who don't.

In my humble opinion, we must, as a Nation have this dialogue. The pendulum has swung too far. The Framers did not intend surely for a totally secular society to be forced on the populace by government policy. They only wished for individuals to be free to embrace whatever faith they wished, or none at all, if they desired none.

Prayer abounds throughout the speeches of our great men. References to God virtually drip from our public buildings, and invocations of the Creator's blessing crop up at every important public gathering throughout our history. We have wandered off the Framers' track on this, and we need to work toward a better understanding of what was intended, what was to be protected and why.

I hope that our fine colleague, Mr. LIEBERMAN, continues to try to further the conversation. Not to do so would be detrimental. I fear that the misunderstanding about this issue is huge and growing. There is a new sort of intolerance about religion that I find most disturbing. It has become the thing we don't talk about, because it is not politically correct, so many of us are driven into a closet. It is seen as a divider in our culture, instead of the force for good it certainly can and should be.

Where we do not want to go, and where we have rapidly been heading, is toward an instituted governmental policy which is prejudiced against all religion. We need to think long and hard about this together, as a country. How sadly ironic it would be if, after over 200 years, a nation grounded in religion and founded by religious men and women, with shining faith-based ideals about equality, fairness, freedom, and justice, and decades of effort to make those ideals a reality, wound up reflecting in its laws and policies a prejudice against religion and religious people.

SENATOR DIANNE FEINSTEIN'S INJURY

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I yield the floor—I seek recognition again for 1 minute simply to express my joy in seeing my friend and our illustrious, highly respected, and able colleague, DIANNE FEINSTEIN, back with us on the floor today. We are sorry that misfortune has for the moment seen fit to not deal with her fairly, but in time all will be corrected and I am sure she will be just as always, as new. She is a fine Senator. She is a great friend of mine. I consider her to be someone we should all try to emulate. It might be very difficult for some of us to emulate her. But we are proud of her, proud of the work she does. I salute her today, and I yield the floor.

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. I thank the distinguished Senator from West Virginia. I very much appreciate those comments. Last Friday night, I took a tumble down stone stairs and managed to have a compound fracture of my tibia and crack a couple of ribs, so I can't say I am none the worse for wear, but I thank the Senator very much for his warm words. I greatly appreciate it.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to speak for some time in morning business for the purposes of introducing a bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from California is recognized.

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. I thank the Chair.

(The remarks of Mrs. FEINSTEIN and Mr. SPECTER pertaining to the introduction of S. 3007 are located in today's RECORD under ''Statements on Introduced Bills and Joint Resolutions.'')

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. I thank the Chair. I yield the floor and suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. Mr. President, under rule XXII of the Senate, I ask unanimous consent that my hour to speak under cloture for the motion to proceed be yielded to Senator MOYNIHAN.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. I yield the floor, and I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. VOINOVICH). Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. THOMAS. What is the order of business?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senate is in a postcloture situation on the motion to proceed to the PNTR.

TO AUTHORIZE EXTENSION OF NONDISCRIMINATORY TREATMENT TO THE PEOPLE'S REPUBLIC OF CHINA—MOTION TO PROCEED—Continued

Mr. THOMAS. I will proceed with PNTR on that basis. I thank the Chair.

Mr. President, as chairman of the Subcommittee on East Asian and Pacific Affairs of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, I rise today in strong support of H.R. 4444, a bill to establish permanent normal trade relations with the People's Republic of China.

Let me begin today by disposing of the principle argument offered by opponents of this bill—that this bill somehow is a ''gift'' to the PRC, a reward. To hear the opponents of this bill talk, you would think that we were on the losing end of this equation.

However, examining the basic facts shows there is a fatal flaw in that assertion. Our markets are already open to the Chinese and to Chinese goods; the same is not true about our ability to enter China's markets. This bill, and the accompanying accession of China to the WTO, changes that. This bill opens up their markets to the United States. This bill lowers tariff and nontariff barriers to our goods and services. This bill gives us a level playing field. In other words, it is a win-win situation for the United States.

It is estimated that in the first year after this bill is enacted, and China accedes to the WTO, our trade with China will increase by $14 billion; in other words, almost double today's volume. And that translates into more jobs for U.S. workers and U.S. companies.

To use my home State of Wyoming, as an example, which is not a large export State, China ranked as Wyoming's 15th largest export destination in 1999; that is up from 16th in 1998 and 19th in 1997. Our largest exports are agricultural products, such as beef, grains, and, in addition to that, minerals.

Under this agreement, Wyoming farmers and cattlemen will no longer have to compete with export subsidies China uses to make its agricultural products unfairly competitive. China has agreed to eliminate sanitary requirements which are not based on sound scientific bases and which act as artificial barriers to products from America's Northwest, which includes Wyoming. Wyoming producers will benefit from a broadening of the right to import and distribute imported products in China, and from wide tariff cuts on a wide range of products.

To illustrate, under the agreement, China has cut its tariff on beef from 45 percent to 12 percent. It has cut its tariff on pork from 20 percent to 12 percent. And, significantly for a great number of my constituents in Sweetwater County, it will reduce its exorbitant tariffs on soda ash—90 percent of which is mined in Wyoming—from double-digits to 5.5 percent.

Passage of this bill means fewer barriers to U.S. exports. Fewer barriers mean more exports, and more exports mean more jobs for Wyoming farmers, ranchers, cattlemen and small business owners.

I don't need to tell my colleagues about the present sorry economic state of many of our agricultural sectors and small businesses. The key to their continuing viability and growth is increasing their share of foreign markets. It is for that principal reason that I support this bill and for China to go into the WTO. Clearly, it is going to be more advantageous for us to deal with the People's Republic of China through this organization than on a unilateral basis which we have done for the last number of years. By the way, this same trade arrangement has been available to them on an annual basis.

Let me make one more observation before moving on. Defeating the bill will not keep the PRC out of the WTO. China will accede to that body regardless of what we do this week, regardless of whether or not we want it. We don't have a veto over their admission, and we make it sound as if that is the case from time to time.

What defeating this bill will do, however, will be to deny us the benefits of an open Chinese market, at least a more open Chinese market. It would allow China to keep its doors closed. It would give our allies and competitors a huge advantage over us.

I was there a while back, when we had a feud going on between the United States and China. They canceled large orders from Boeing and bought airbuses from France. That is the way the world has become. They can do that. It would set in stone our present trade regime where 40-percent tariffs are the norm, not the exception. That is what would happen if we don't pass this bill.

These are not the only bases for my support. Unlike some of my colleagues, I believe China is changing for the better and that admitting them to the WTO will, hopefully, speed that process. One has only to compare the China of 1978—the China of the Cultural Revolution, of Mao suits, and Marxism-Leninism-Mao Zedong theory—with the China of 2000, the China of the economic revolution, to see that changes are indeed both substantial and widespread.

This is not to say that everything is great there. That is not really part of the discussion. Of course, there are a number of things that need to be done. The country continues to have an abysmal human rights record, to stifle political dissent, to subjugate Tibetans, to stridently attempt to cow Taiwan into submission. All these things continue to go on. No one likes that, but that is not really the issue. The issue is how can we best bring about change.

There is no argument in this Senate as to whether China needs to change. We all agree it does. I believe the real issue is how do we effectuate that change. Do we do it by continuing to attempt to isolate China, as some Members would have us do, by pushing them away from us, or do we accomplish the task by seeking to engage China, by drawing it further into the community of nations, by giving its people an opportunity to see how others live in the world and then become impatient to make that transformation for themselves?

We can see that happening in a number of places around the world. Is it too slow? Sure. Isolating China off by itself is to some a feel-good position, a solution for some people. Improve your human rights record or we will cut off trade. Stop threatening Taiwan or we will cut off military exchanges. Stop selling military hardware to other countries or we will cut off high-tech transfers. Do we want a policy that makes us feel good or do we want something that works?

I don't believe you can unilaterally isolate a country such as China. Cut off trade and the European Union is more than happy to step in, sell China Airbuses, as I mentioned, in place of our Boeings. Cut off military-to-military exchanges and we lose the opportunity to impress the PLA with the vast superiority of our military while improving increasing mutual distrust among our two militaries. Cut off high-tech transfers and Beijing simply gets it somewhere else. Add that to the fact that foreign governments rarely react kindly to ultimatums from other governments—take, for example, how we in the U.S. would react to another country if they told us how to manage our affairs—and I believe the unworkability of the ''isolationist solution'' becomes self-apparent.

Instead, I believe the best way to influence China is to engage it, to draw it inextricably into the world community, to expose it to the world of ideas.

In 1995, on my first trip to China as subcommittee chairman the difference that contacts and trade with the West made in the PRC were clearly evident. I have not traveled there over the years as many people have, but just in the last few years there has been great change. Perfect? Absolutely not. More change is needed, of course.

In Beijing, the vast majority of the population was still riding bicycles. There were, 5 years ago, very few private cars, and political questions, especially in Taiwan, and the party line were the sole topic of discussion. In Shanghai, bicycles were replaced by mopeds and more private cars. While Taiwan and ''one China'' were still topics of discussion, individuals I met there were more interested in talking about trade, what they could do to facilitate economic change and growth. In Guangzhou, there were fewer bicycles or mopeds to be seen. Private cars, including BMW and Mercedes Benz, appeared to be the norm. Politics wasn't talked about a great deal.

The lesson was quite clear. The establishment of the rudiments of a market economy coupled with trade with the outside world leads to increased personal wealth and to increased personal entrepreneurship. That in turn leads to an increased interest in and expectation of growth and certain basic personal freedoms. We have seen that same development in Taiwan and South Korea where authoritarian governments have been replaced by thriving democracies over the last 20 years. The same hopefully will happen with China. Once the genie is out of the bottle, there is no putting it back. The march toward an open democratic society will happen. The only question is how long it will take.

I am told by experts that in Asia it probably takes a generational change before some of those things happen. I am sure that is true. I believe, however, that we do speed its pace by passing this legislation. I also believe that Chinese accession will remove a major irritant in our relationship. Whenever we have a disagreement with China over trade relations, be it intellectual property or market access or whatever, our reaction is to apply some unilateral sanctions on China, sanctions which only serve eventually to limit the rest of our relationship and our exports to that country. It is ineffective here and it has been ineffective other places. We have removed a number of those sanctions this year.

By bringing China into the WTO, we turn trade disputes from unilateral into multilateral issues. We transform the dispute from ''I said/he said'' to one mediated by an independent international body. We thereby lessen the irritation of bilateral affairs while at the same time increasing the likelihood that China will find a remedy to the problem.

For all those reasons, I support H.R. 4444.

Before I close, let me add a word or two about possible amendments which may be offered for consideration. Regardless of their relative merit, I, as Senator ROTH, chairman of the Finance Committee, and many others am strongly opposed to adding any amendments to the China PNTR bill. Any amendment will only have the effect of killing it for this year, since amending would require it to be sent back to the conference committee. Once in conference, it is unlikely the bill would emerge before we adjourn sine die. We only have some 20 legislative days remaining in this session and a full plate of domestic appropriations and legislation with which to deal. It would be a herculean task under any circumstances, but this year makes it more difficult because, of course, some on the other side of the aisle are doing everything they can to stall the process. We hope that won't continue to happen.

There is not, realistically, enough time for a conference and to pass it back through both Houses. It is clear the House fully supports the present unamended version. It passed by a vote of 237–197. So does a vast majority of the members of the Senate Finance and Foreign Relations Committees, and so do I.

Mr. President, despite all the hyperbole about passage of H.R. 4444, it does not mean we are selling out to the Chinese, that we are telling them it is all right to proliferate, to abuse human rights, or to threaten Taiwan. It means we expect them to play by the same rules we do; we expect them to be a responsible member of the world community, and we expect to be able to reap the same benefits they do from an ever-expanding global economy. No more, no less. The bill is good for the United States, good for U.S. companies, good for U.S. workers, and good for the U.S. consumers.

In the final analysis, this is good for China because it will undoubtedly bring about the kind of changes that many would like to see in that country, including many Chinese. Many Chinese would like to see democratization, rule of law, and respect for basic fundamental human rights.

For all these reasons, I urge my colleagues to support the passage of H.R. 4444.

Mr. SCHUMER. Mr. President, I rise to echo the remarks made yesterday by Chairman ROTH and also to concur with my friend and senior colleague from New York, PAT MOYNIHAN, regarding China's compliance, or lack thereof, with the U.S.-China bilateral agreement signed as part of China's admission to the World Trade Organization.

I am concerned that after laboriously working out a bilateral trade agreement that addressed myriad economic issues, China seems to be picking and choosing which aspects of the agreement to follow and which to ignore. A prime example is insurance. Under the bilateral agreement signed last November, China agreed to preserve the existing market access currently enjoyed by foreign insurance companies. In other words, under the agreement, a foreign-owned insurance company in China would be able to continue to operate and to add new branches and subbranches as a wholly-owned company once China entered the WTO. Less than a year after this historic and painstaking agreement was signed, China is unilaterally rewriting the rules and treating these grandfathered companies like new entrants into the China market. This puts the very companies that invested in China's economic growth at a competitive disadvantage to new entrants.

Fundamental to the foundation of the U.S.-China bilateral agreement, to China's ascension into the WTO, and to the possible establishment of Permanent Normal Trade Relations with China is the belief that agreements will be honored, not on a piecemeal basis, but fully. This ''interpretation'' by the Chinese government on insurance begins to cast doubts about whether ironclad agreements with China will truly be completely and totally honored.

I still intend on supporting PNTR for China, but I am disappointed that China appears to be backsliding on its agreement regarding insurance. I hope that the Chinese leadership will adhere to the agreements signed last year on insurance, and absent that, I hope the Administration continues to apply forceful pressure to see that China keeps its end of the bargain. That is the essence of free, fair and open trade.

Domenici amendment No. 4032, to strike certain environmental-related provisions.

Schumer/Collins amendment No. 4033, to establish a Presidential Energy Commission to explore long- and short-term responses to domestic energy shortages in supply and severe spikes in energy prices.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Mexico.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I have a request that the leader asked me to make that has been cleared on both sides.

I ask unanimous consent that immediately following the Thursday morning vote relative to the Missouri River provision in the energy and water appropriations bill, the Senate then proceed to a vote on the adoption of the motion to proceed on H.R. 4444, notwithstanding the provisions of rule XXII.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that with respect to the energy and water appropriations bill, all first-degree amendments must be filed at the desk by 6:30 p.m. this evening, with the exception of up to five amendments each to be filed by Senator DOMENICI of New Mexico and Senator REID of Nevada, and those be filed no later than 7:30 p.m. tonight, and that all first-degree amendments be subject to relevant second-degree amendments.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I note the presence of the distinguished Senator from the State of Missouri, Mr. BOND. I say to the Senate, since the amendment that we are now going to take up for up to 3 hours this evening has to do with the upper and lower Missouri River debate, I am not going to manage any of that. I am going to let the management be in the hands of Senator KIT BOND, if he does not mind, in my stead. I join him in his effort. He knows that. But nonetheless, it is his issue. I prefer to have him managing it.

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

AMENDMENT NO. 4081

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, I have an amendment at the desk and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from South Dakota [Mr. DASCHLE], for Mr. BAUCUS, for himself, Mr. DASCHLE, and Mr. JOHNSON, proposes an amendment numbered 4081.

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

(Purpose: To strike the section relating to revision of the Missouri River Master Water Control Manual)

On page 58, strike lines 6 through 13.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There are 3 hours of debate on this amendment.

The Democratic leader.

Mr. DASCHLE. I thank the Presiding Officer.

Mr. President, this issue really has a very fundamental premise. The issue is: Can we use the best information available to us to manage the Missouri River, to manage it in a way that recognizes the sensitive balance that exists today—environmentally, industrially, agriculturally, recreationally? Can we take the best information we have available to us and put together the best management plan recognizing that balance? That is the essence of the question before us.

My distinguished colleague from Missouri, Senator BOND, has said: I don't want the Corps of Engineers to alter the manual that has been used now for more than 40 years. His view is that the manual that was written in the 1950s and adopted in approximately 1960 ought to be the manual that we use from here on out, and he wants to stop in its tracks any effort to consider whether or not the Missouri River management reflects today that sensitive balance.

I think it is wrong to say to the Corps of Engineers—to say to any Federal agency—we don't want you to look at the facts. We don't want you to look at the information. We don't want you to take into account that delicate balance. We want you to blindly follow whatever decisions you made in 1960—I might add, before even all the dams on the Missouri River were built—and we want you to follow that verbatim.

We can't afford to do that. The decisions that we make on the Missouri affect the decisions we make on the Mississippi and on virtually every other river in this country. For us to freeze in place whatever decisions may have been made decades ago, and say it must not change, is putting our head in the sand and, I must say, endangering the health and the very essence of the river for years, if not decades, to come.

It was in 1804 that Meriwether Lewis and William Clark set out on their Corps of Discovery expedition to explore the Missouri River and search for a passage to the Pacific Ocean.

Stephen Ambrose wrote an extraordinary book, ''Undaunted Courage,'' that I just reread over the summer. I must say, I do not know that there is a better book about what they found and the splendor that they discovered having traversed the entire Missouri River.

Along this expedition, Lewis and Clark encountered a wild river, teeming with fish and wildlife, that rose every spring to carry the snowmelt from the Rocky Mountains and shrank back in the summer as part of the ancient and natural flow cycle. That is what the river did; that is what most rivers do.

Since that historic trip, we have constructed six major dams and we have forever changed the flow and the character of that river. The last earthen dam was completed during the administration of John F. Kennedy. To manage the dams, the Corps produced, in 1960, as I noted a moment ago, a management plan, that we call the master manual. That manual caters primarily to barge traffic on the Missouri River at the expense, virtually, of everything else, at the expense of fish and wildlife, at the expense of agriculture, at the expense of recreation, at the expense of ecological considerations, at the expense of the environment, at the expense of people virtually north of the State of Missouri.

What is amazing to me is that we do this with the recognition that the barge industry today is minuscule, valued at $7 million—that is million with an ''m''—and it transports less than 1 percent of all agricultural goods transported in the upper Midwest. Talk about the tail wagging the dog. This is the tip of the tail wagging the tail and the dog. The legs, the head, you name it, it is all wagging because of the tip of the tail.

These charts reflect the current circumstances on the river. This is the barge traffic that was first projected. They thought, when they wrote the master manual, that about 12 million tons of traffic would be carried by barge on the river on an annual basis. That was the estimate when the manual was written in 1960. I was about 10 years old, I suppose, when that manual was written. The Corps, of course, did the best they could projecting what they thought would be the level of traffic, 12 million tons. But as oftentimes is the case, they made a mistake. It wasn't 12 million tons. By 1977, it was only 3 million tons. And guess what. Current traffic is not 12, it is not 3, it is 1.5. That is all the traffic there is, 1.5 million tons, representing three-tenths of 1 percent of all agricultural traffic.

What is really amazing—as I said a moment ago, is that this is a classic example of the tip of the tail wagging the rest of the tail and all of the dog. Look who has sacrificed. Navigation provides roughly $7 million in benefits annually, compared to $85 million in recreational benefits. It compares to $415 million in flood control, $542 million in water supply projects and priorities of all kinds, and $677 million, two-thirds of $1 trillion, in hydropower. Yet we have written a manual, incredibly, that says we are going to let this minuscule $7 million industry dictate what is best for the 85, the 415, the 542, and the $677 million. Figure that out. Who in his right mind would say that somehow we ought to let that minuscule amount dictate what is best. Forget the ecological and environmental factors for a moment.

I go back to my original point. Barge traffic today is three-tenths of 1 percent. If I had not magnified this slice, you couldn't even find it in this pie. Roughly 99.7 percent of all agriculture produced in the Upper Midwest doesn't go by barge. How does it go? It goes the way the rest of the country. It goes by rail and by truck. So why would we threaten to throw even more out of kilter the ecological priorities of the river by putting barge traffic first? Why would we endanger hydropower, water supply, flood control, and recreation? I cannot answer that question.

But that is not even the question we are facing tonight. There are those on the other side who have said: We don't care what factors are out there. We don't care what percentage is barge traffic. We will not even let the Corps consider, even think about the possibility of changing the master manual, regardless of the facts. Don't confuse us with the facts. We are going to protect the barge industry, and it does not matter what the costs are.

We will have to face extraordinarily problematic ramifications of this provision for all of these other very critical priorities, including the ecology of the river. Three endangered species are headed towards extinction: the piping plover, the least interior tern, and the pallid sturgeon. Two fish species are candidates for listing on the endangered species list. But that isn't the only thing this fight is about. What this fight is all about is whether or not we can recognize the delicate balance that exists today.

This fight is not about endangered species. This fight is about an endangered river. This fight is about whether or not the health of the Missouri can be secured. That is what this fight is about. This fight is about restoring balance to management of the river. We will never go back to the days of Lewis and Clark, the pre-dam period. That will never happen. But there are things we can do through good management that will give us the opportunity to make the river as vibrant as it can be. But we cannot do it if the current provision in this bill stays intact and becomes law.

Recognizing that, the question is whether or not we will let the Corps be the Corps, whether or not we will allow the Corps to go through the legal process involved in evaluating what is best for the river and change the management plan to reflect a more fair balance.

That is all we are asking. Let us come up with a plan that allows us in the most complete way to analyze what is happening to the river, what is best for the river, what can be done in Montana and the Dakotas and Iowa and Missouri and all the way up and down the Missouri River to ensure that the health and vitality of that river can be sustained and even improved upon. That is what the Corps is trying to do.

What the Corps is simply trying to do is to say, look, we can do a better job than we did in the 1950s and 1960s in managing this river. We can reflect the new balance, and the recognition must be made that things have changed dramatically since the fifties and sixties. We need to reflect that change in the master manual itself.

Here is the process; the process is pretty simple. A preliminary draft of the EIS, environmental impact statement, was completed all the way back in 1998. Following that, there was a coordination and public comment period that lasted through January of 1999. That period allowed tribal and public officials to respond to the preliminary revised draft of the environmental statement. Then we went on to the fish and wildlife consultation and biological opinion phase, which some of our colleagues on the other side of the aisle tried to stop just recently. They wanted to kill that, to move it so we would not have the opportunity to consider very carefully what the scientists and biological experts have said about the quality of life on the Missouri today. They wanted to kill it.

Thanks to the Director of the Corps, Joe Westphal, and others, we are now in a position to at least hear what the scientists have had to say, and we will have that report by November 1. Following that, there will be a revised draft of the environmental impact statement. They will take into account all of the comments made by those who are concerned on all sides. They will take into account this coordination and what comments public officials have made, in particular. They will then take into account fish and wildlife and biological opinions.

When all of that has been gathered, we will then revise the draft and make available to the public a draft for additional comment for 6 months. We then see the final environmental impact statement after a 6-month tribal and public comment period. Washington will then review all of those comments. A record of decision will be made and the revise of the master manual will then be implemented. Those are all the steps.

This is like a court of law. This is like any other legal process. There are a number of very important steps that we apply in all cases—in all cases where difficult decisions involving critical public policy have to be made. We make these steps for a reason. We want public comment. We want scientific input, the best decisions from governmental leaders at all levels. We want to do that with the full involvement in a democracy of everyone who cares and everyone who has some responsibility.

But here is what happens. Under the provision currently in the bill, there is a big red stop sign on this process. It says: You are not going to do any of this. We are going to stop you in your tracks. We are not going to let you go through that process. We are not going to allow public comment and the array of other opportunities for public involvement. We are not going to have that process. It is over. That is what this amendment says; that is what the provision in the bill says.

So I have to say it is extraordinarily damaging to the river to have this attitude. It is such an important issue involving so many priorities—environmental, ecological, industrial, recreational, agricultural—because it is endangering the interests of our country in such a profound way on this river. This administration has said, without equivocation, it will be vetoed if this provision is still in the bill. That is how strongly the administration feels about it. It will be vetoed. So we can play this game as long as our colleagues wish to do so. But let's make one thing clear. This will not become law. This will not become law because it is just too important.

I don't fully appreciate the reasons my colleagues on the other side of the aisle are opposed to even allowing the process to go forward, given what I have said is this multistep opportunity for careful consideration of all the options. But it goes down to, as I said in the beginning, a need on the part of some to protect this minuscule barge industry regardless of all of its ramifications on everything and everybody else.

But as I understand it, there are those on the other side who are opposed because they understand that what has happened is that there has been some effort to find this new balance. This new balance is a recognition of all of the different factors that need to be calculated, in part, through the Fish and Wildlife Service and, in part, through the Corps of Engineers and, in part, through States' direct involvement.

What has been proposed is that the Corps slightly revise its master manual to increase spring flows, known as a ''spring rise,'' once every 3 years—not every year, but once every 3 years they would increase the spring rise in an effort to attempt to bring back a natural flow, a natural rejuvenation of the river as we have understood it prior to the time the dams were built. They would reduce summer flows, known as a ''split season,'' every year.

The spring rise and the split season roughly mimic the natural flow of the river, which increase in the spring due to snowmelt and sharply decline in the summer, beginning around July 1. It is as Lewis and Clark found it. We can't go back to Lewis and Clark. Nobody is suggesting that. What we are attempting to do, however, is to show once again that there is this balance, this need to recognize that if we are going to keep the river healthy, we have to allow it to do what it once did, prior to the time the dams were built. This is the flow pattern under which native species developed, which is absolutely critical to their very survival—not just the three endangered species, but all species on the river.

The spring rise is needed to scour sandbars clean of vegetation so they can be used by endangered birds for nesting habitat.

The spring rise also signals native fish species that it is time to spawn. This is the green light. They see these spring rises, and that triggers to the species that they can spawn. When they don't have that spring rise, the whole natural cycle is put out of whack. That is what has been happening year after year and decade after decade.

The low summer flows, or split season, exposes the sandbars during the critical nesting time, so that the birds have sufficient room to nest and so that the nests don't get flooded. To prevent any potential downstream flooding, the Corps, Fish and Wildlife Service, and others, have already thought about addressing the concern of some downstream who are understandably concerned about flooding. They would simply eliminate this plan from implementation during the 10 percent highest flow years—eliminate it; it would not happen. Changes would not be implemented during the 25 percent lowest flow ''drought'' years.

So this plan would not harm Mississippi River navigation. We have already conceded that. This is the balance. This is an effort to try to find middle ground. We are going to say we will lop off the top 10 percent and the top 25 percent; we will deal with those normal years in the middle. Once consultation between the Corps and Fish and Wildlife Service is completed, the Corps then still will take into account other suggestions made during the public comment period.

There are so many beneficiaries of this plan. Naturally, the river itself is the biggest beneficiary.

The river itself—not species on the river, not those living along the river, not the States upstream, but the river—will be the prime beneficiary of this effort. Why? For the reasons I have just stated—because we want to find a way to bring balance back into the management. We want to find middle ground in an effort to recognize all uses on the river.

Downstream farmers will benefit from better drainage from fields during the summertime. That is a given. The public will have greater opportunities to recreate up and down the river. Even the Mississippi barge industry will benefit from the changes that are being called on for the Missouri River.

I wish to take a few minutes to talk briefly about each of those benefits.

First, with regard to the river itself, the combination of the spring rise and flood season will help restore the health of the river and recover from the dangerous imbalance that we have with regard to all species on the river today.

According to the Fish and Wildlife Service's draft opinion and the Corps of Engineers' revised draft environmental impact statement of 1998, high spring flows will signal native fish species to spawn, flush detrital food into the river, inundate side channels for young fish habitat, and build up the sandbars in the river channel for the tern and plover nesting habitat, and provide a greater area for the endangered birds to nest, as well as for all birds.

The 600-page draft of the Fish and Wildlife Service opinion is based on hundreds of published peer review studies. The opinion itself was a peer review by a panel of experts who supported all of those conclusions.

The fact is that whether or not we give the Missouri River the chance to survive, to flourish, to be healthy again depends in large measure on whether or not we as Senators will allow the Corps, the Fish and Wildlife Service, and all affected governmental authorities to recognize the importance of proper balance; to recognize that what we decided to do in 1960 does not now apply and should not be used to manage the river in the next century; to recognize that if we are going to take all of the economic and environmental concerns and put them in proper balance, we have to revise the manual. To say that the Corps will be prohibited from doing so is just bad, bad policy.

We recognize that maybe the barge industry on the Missouri—not the Mississippi barge industry—will be hurt by this. But we recognize that this minuscule three-tenths of 1 percent should not dictate all of the other uses of this river, or any river. We shouldn't let the tip of the tail wag the tail and the dog. But that is what is happening today. That is what this legislation would do. That is why it is so important that we strike it when we have the vote. That is why I feel so strongly about this issue.

There is one other factor as we look at the barge industry itself that is perplexing. Barge benefits on the river economically are about $7 million. The subsidies to the barge industry last year exceeded the total benefits of the industry itself. There is $8 million in subsidies to the barge industry even recognizing that the industry generated $7 million in benefits. Not only do we have managerial concerns, not only do we have concerns reflecting the life and health of one of the most important rivers in the United States of America, we ought to have taxpayer concerns. Why in Heaven's name are we subsidizing a $7 million barge industry with an $8 million subsidy? That one I don't understand. But that is why we are having this debate.

I am very appreciative of the leadership shown by the senior Senator from Montana, Mr. BAUCUS, who has been the preeminent environmentalist and environmental leader, as ranking member of the Committee on Environment and Public Works. I am grateful for his presence on the floor, as well as my colleague from South Dakota, Senator JOHNSON, who has been an extraordinary advocate of the effort that we have made now for several months to ensure that the Missouri River has the future that it deserves.

I yield the floor. I retain the remainder of my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Missouri is recognized.

Mr. BOND. Mr. President, I certainly concur with my friend from South Dakota on the great words he said about Stephen Ambrose's book, ''Undaunted Courage.'' I know the occupant of the chair read it. A lot of the guys who started out in my State wound up in the State of Oregon. It is truly a masterful piece of work and a wonderful piece of history.

I had a great, great, great, great-grandfather who was one of the fellows who poled the barges up the river. He wasn't sufficiently outstanding to get his name in the book. But it is quite an honor to have somebody who went up the river who was with Lewis and Clark. So I have been a great devotee of the river and have followed it a good bit.

I was really interested to hear the Senator from South Dakota talk about what we were trying to do to hurt the poor old river. The minority leader claims the provision that he seeks to strike would stop any changes in the Missouri River manual and would keep the plans just as they have been for 50 years.

So I thought to myself: Gee, that wasn't the section that I put in. Maybe they changed it somehow in the writing of it. So I went back and read section 103. This is the provision that would be stricken. It says:

None of the funds made available in this Act may be used to revise the Missouri River Master Water Control Manual when it has been made known to the Federal entity or official to which the funds are made available that such revision provides for an increase in the springtime water release program during the spring heavy rainfall and snow melt period in States that have rivers draining into the Missouri River below the Gavins Point Dam.

What it says is that you can't implement a plan to increase flooding during spring flood season on the Missouri River during the course of 2001.

Contrary to what you have just heard, any other aspect of the process to review and amend the operation of the Missouri River, to change the Missouri River manual, to consider the opinions, to discuss, to debate, to continue the vitally important research that is going on now on the river and how we can improve its habitat will continue.

I have been proud to sponsor the Mississippi and Missouri River Habitat Improvement Program in which we funded the Corps of Engineers to make changes to improve the river and to bring it back more to its natural state. It is not going to be all the way back to its natural state but to provide conservation opportunities, to provide spawning habitats, nesting habitats for birds, the kind of habitat we want to encourage the biological diversity on the river.

The U.S. Geological Survey has an environmental research arm that is studying the river to find out what really works. Do you know something. That work is going on. Those studies are being pursued. They have some interesting information that they don't have a conclusion on yet. It is not the spring rise that would improve the habitat. Perhaps it is the gravel bars on side channels. That looks promising. This work can continue; so can all of the work under the National Environmental Policy Act to develop an environmental impact statement. Any other change to the manual can continue. Analysis and public comment can continue.

The provision is clear. It tells the U.S. Government that the ''risky scheme'' of increasing the height of the river in the flood-prone spring months is one option and the only option that cannot be implemented during the coming year because it is too dangerous.

This is the fifth time that we have put forward this prohibition. It has been signed into law four times previously by this President.

Why is it so important this year? Because the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service decided to short circuit the process, to jump over all of the proceedings, the hearings, the studies, that the Corps of Engineers has carried out.

They issued what I guess is called in an authoritarian, Communist government, a diktat, a letter, on July 12 to the Corps of Engineers: You will change the manual to have a spring rise, the spring surge.

They were the ones who wanted to skip over the process. They were the ones dictating to the Corps—despite the public comment, despite all the other information—they should implement that.

We have spring rises on the Missouri River. This chart shows 1999. In March and April the river rises. These are the rises at different stages of the river. We have spring rises. We already do because there are many tributaries coming in. Perhaps we don't have quite the floods in some years that we did because there have been dams built to reduce the danger of flooding and to reduce somewhat the loss of life and the damage to property and communities.

We already have a spring rise because of tributaries, including the Platte and the Kansas, the Tarkio, the Blue, the Gasgonade, and others. That spring rise results in frequent flooding. And the more water released at Gavins Point, the greater the flood risk.

Since when should this deliberative body, the U.S. Congress, say we should encourage a Federal agency to take a premeditated action to increase flood risk when there is no scientific evidence that it will have the benefit for endangered species that is proposed.

This is untenable for farmers living along the river. One-third of the commodities of Missouri are grown in the floodplains of the Missouri and Mississippi Rivers. It is untenable for mayors who want their communities and their critical infrastructure protected. It is imperative for the families who do not want to lose their family members in floods. Some who don't live in areas of flood may not know but floods do take lives. Floods are deadly. Floods are devastating. I have witnessed the aftermath of too many floods. I have seen the heartbreak and devastation, not just the loss of homes. I have seen families who have lost a parent, lost a child, in floods.

Agricultural groups, flood control groups, have supported our position very strongly. It is not a complicated issue. It is certainly not a partisan issue. The Governor of Missouri is a Democrat. The Democratic mayors of St. Louis and Kansas City support this provision. The Southern Governors Association supports this provision because of the impact of the Missouri River on the Mississippi River and its lower tributaries.

Make no mistake about it, the impact of this spring flood is serious on the traffic on the Mississippi River.

I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD letters regarding this issue.

There being no objection, the letters were ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Hon. TOM DASCHLE,
U.S. Senate, Hart Senate Office Building, Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATORS: On behalf of the Southern Governors' Association, I am writing to express concerns about proposed plan by the Fish and Wildlife Service for a springtime rise of 17,500 cubic feet per second in the Missouri River at Gavins Point Dam. This plan has the potential to harm citizens and agricultural activities along the lower portion of the Missouri River and urge your support for restricting this spring rise proposal.

If the current plan is implemented and these states incur significantly heavy rains during the rise, there is a real risk that farms and communities along the lower Missouri River will suffer serious flooding. In addition, a spring rise has a negative effect on agriculture land. Sustaining high river flow rates over several consecutive weeks will exacerbate the problems of wetness and poor drainage historically experienced by farmers along the river, limiting the productivity and accessibility of floodplain crop lands.

Finally, the proposal for a spring rise also brings harm to Mississippi River states and users of the nation's inland waterway system. Any spring rise in April or May puts additional water in the Mississippi River when it is normally high and does not need the extra water. This spends water out of a limited water budget in the Missouri River Basin and ends up subtracting water out of the Mississippi during the summer or fall when the water is needed for river commerce.

We appreciate your serious attention to these concerns and urge your support for a restriction on the spring rise proposal.

Sincerely,

MIKE HUCKABEE.

OFFICE OF THE GOVERNOR,
STATE OF MISSOURI,
Jefferson City, August 17, 2000.

The PRESIDENT,
The White House,
Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. PRESIDENT: I am writing regarding recent developments surrounding efforts to revise the Missouri River Master Manual. Specifically, I am concerned about proposed plans by the Fish and Wildlife Service outlined in letters to the Corps of Engineers dated March 28, 2000 and July 12, 2000. The July 12 letter directs the Corps of Engineers to implement major changes in operations affecting both the Missouri and Mississippi Rivers while circumventing the public review processes required by law.

I respectfully request your immediate assistance in directing the Service to reevaluate its plan and to commit to a more open process that conforms to the public involvement requirements of the National Environmental Policy Act. Further, there are legislative efforts underway to prohibit the Service from initiating its plan at this time, and I request your support of those efforts.

Absent a change in the Service's plan, it is likely that efforts to restore endangered species along the river will be damaged, an increase in the risk of flooding river communities and agricultural land will occur, and states along the river will suffer serious economic damage to their river-based transportation and agricultural industries.

There are numerous problems with the plan as proposed by the Service that may actually harm endangered species rather than help them recover. The plan calls for a significant drop in water flow during the summer. The months of June and July are, in fact, the two highest flow months under natural pre-dam conditions primarily because of mountain snow melt combined with downstream rainfall. Unfortunately, the mistiming of the Service's plan will allow predators to reach river islands on which endangered terns and plovers nest giving predators access to the young still in the nests. Predation is discussed in the species recovery plans as one of the significant impediments to restoration of healthy tern and plover populations.

In addition, model runs of the Fish and Wildlife Service's proposal indicate substantially greater water storage behind the Missouri River dams as compared with current operations. This increased water storage would raise average reservoir levels so that approximately 10 miles of free-flowing river would be sacrificed to the artificial lakes. If solving the Missouri River endangered species problems is the objective, it would seem reasonable for the Fish and Wildlife Service to make proposals that do not increase the dominance of reservoirs over free-flowing rivers.

The spring rise will also increase our susceptibility to flooding along the Missouri and Mississippi Rivers. An analysis of the Missouri River flooding that occurred during the spring of 1995 shows that if the spring rise proposed by the Service had been in effect, the level of flooding would have been worse. The Corps could not have recalled water already released hundreds of miles upstream, as the water's travel time from Gavins Point to St. Charles, Missouri is 10 days. If the proposed plan is implemented and heavy rains occur during the spring rise, there is a real risk that farms and communities along the lower Missouri River will suffer increased flooding.

The Service's plan for a spring rise also will damage prime agricultural land because it will limit the productivity and accessibility of floodplain croplands. If implemented, the Service's plan will result in the Missouri River being held four feet higher for several consecutive weeks along southwestern Iowa and northwestern Missouri. Our agricultural community is extremely concerned that increased soil saturation and poor drainage will compromise the productivity of their farms. In addition, the plan will damage the ability for agricultural producers and commercial employers to utilize the river to move their products to markets. Consequently, it will make the price of these products increase and damage the ability of our farmers and manufacturers to compete in the world economy.

Mr. President, it is vitally important to the residents of the State of Missouri as well as the entire Midwest that the Service's plan be reevaluated. Again, I would appreciate your assistance in this very important matter.

Very truly yours,

MEL CARNAHAN.

OFFICE OF THE MAYOR,
CITY OF ST. LOUIS, MO,
August 30, 2000.

Re: H.R. 4733, the Energy and Water Appropriations Bill

Hon. CHRISTOPHER S. BOND,
U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR BOND: The City of St. Louis is a central transportation hub for the Midwest that includes the second largest inland port in the nation. Water transportation on the Mississippi River has been central to St. Louis' development and today is integral to our economic structure. All of this stands to be threatened by the Fish and Wildlife Service proposal to implement a policy that increases the risk of flooding on our principal inland waterways.

The movement of more than 100 million tons of cargo through the Port of St. Louis could be placed in jeopardy during low water years if flows from the Mississippi River are restricted during the summer and fall months. Conversely, the St. Louis region has struggled periodic flooding during the spring that would be devastating without the management of the Mississippi River for flood control purposes.

I urge you to press forward with your provision to H.R. 4733, the Energy and Water Appropriations Bill, that would restrict implementation of a ''spring rise'' in the spring and a ''split navigation season'' in the summer and fall as requested by the Fish and Wildlife Service. Before any provision or policy reversing the multiple uses of the rivers can be supported, we must fully understand the economic and environmental implications to the citizens of St. Louis.

Sincerely,

CLARENCE HARMON,
Mayor.

OFFICE OF THE MAYOR,
Kansas City, MO, July 25, 2000.

Subject: Spring Rise on Missouri River: Sec. 103—Energy & Water Appropriations Bill.

Hon. CHRISTOPHER S. BOND,
U.S. Senate, Russell Building, Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR BOND: The City of Kansas City, Missouri wishes to express its concern over consideration being given to a spring rise along the Missouri River. The increase in release rate being proposed for Gavins Point by the Fish & Wildlife Service would raise the water service levels along the lower Missouri River by approximately two feet. As you know, Kansas City is susceptible to flooding from the Missouri River and in 1993 several of the levees protecting our city came within inches of overtopping. Any allowed increase in flows will subject us to a worsened flooding condition.

As we proceed with the study of seven levees along the Missouri and Kansas Rivers, in cooperation with the Corps of Engineers and several other local sponsors, to investigate changes that may be needed and justified to enhance flood protection from the Missouri River it seems inappropriate at best to be considering changes that will serve to decrease our level of protection. Additionally, the spring rise will necessitate a split navigation season, the impacts of which would be potentially disastrous to the barge industry along the lower Missouri River and have far reaching impacts to the economy in our region.

We strongly urge that Section 103 preventing the study and implementation of a spring rise along the Missouri River be included in the upcoming Energy & Water Appropriations Bill. Thank you for your consideration of this matter and for your continued support in helping to reduce flooding throughout the City of Kansas City, Missouri.

Sincerely,

KAY BARNES,
Mayor.

Mr. BOND. Every waterway group and every flood control group that I have spoken to that is knowledgeable about the river supports the provision.

I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD a letter signed by 92 organizations supporting my provision.

There being no objection, the letter was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

NATIONAL WATERWAYS ALLIANCE,
Washington, DC, September 1, 2000.

Hon. CHRISTOPHER S. BOND,
Russell Senate Office Building,
U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR BOND: On September 5, 2000, the Senate is scheduled to begin consideration of H.R. 4733, the Energy and Water Development Appropriations Bill for FY 2001. We are writing to express our strong opposition to any efforts to strike Section 103, which prohibits implementation of a ''spring rise'' on a portion of the inland navigation system.

A recent directive issued by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service to implement a ''spring rise'' immediately on the Missouri River is a reversal of water resource policy without appropriate public review, independent scientific validation, Congressional debate or endorsement. For decades, every Congress and Administration has endorsed a policy of water resource development that was designed to protect communities against natural disasters and serve efficient and environmentally friendly river transportation, reliable low-cost hydropower and a burgeoning recreation industry.

The ''spring rise'' demanded by the Fish and Wildlife Service is based on the premise that we should ''replicate the natural hydrograph'' that was responsible for devastating and deadly floods as well as summertime droughts and even ''dust bowls.'' For decades, we have worked to mitigate the negative implications of the ''natural hydrograph'' with multiple-purpose water resources management programs, including reservoirs storing excess flood and snow-melt waters in the spring and releasing those waters in low-flow periods. These efforts have protected communities from floods, enabled the safe and efficient movement of a large percentage of the Nation's intercity freight by a mode that results in cleaner air, safer streets, and a higher quality of life and also provided hundreds of thousands of family-wage jobs in interior regions.

Retaining Section 103 will allow National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA) compliance and provide time for Congress to adequately consider whether reversing proven water resources policy makes sense and whether a ''spring rise'' is scientifically supported. We urge you to keep the existing language in H.R. 4733 and oppose any efforts to strike or unnecessarily amend it.

Mr. BOND. These organizations represent labor, agriculture, port facilities, flood control districts, and others. They are located in areas as distant as the States of Washington, Louisiana, Minnesota, and Pennsylvania.

Since this letter was signed, additional groups have asked to join with us in our position in support of section 103. They include the Minnesota Association of Cooperatives, the St. Louis Building and Construction Trades Council, the Minnesota Farm Bureau, the Minnesota Soybean Growers Association, and the Minnesota Corn Growers Association.

In Missouri, our Department of Natural Resources supports section 103. They oppose raising the spring river height, and they are just as knowledgeable and just as dedicated as the so-called experts at the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service who want to jump over the process and impose their particular risky scheme on our State and all the downstream States.

I had a very enlightening week traveling from the northwest corner of my State, down the Missouri and the Mississippi Rivers, talking with real people, knowledgeable people, scientists, and experts about this proposal. I was joined and supported by members of the Governor's staff. I was joined by the director of our department of natural resources. I was joined by farmers and mayors and chambers of commerce officials, economists and flood control advocates, and other members of our resource agencies. I was joined by representatives of our independent department of conservation—one of the finest departments of conservation in the Nation, one that is looked to as a model, and one that is engaged in ongoing work to preserve the pallid sturgeon and to work with us on reasonable, common sense, scientifically proven ways to assure that we keep the pallid sturgeon.

From all of these people I heard firsthand how dangerous the Fish and Wildlife Service plan is and how unnecessary it is. I heard from people who ship the goods on the river now and from people who want to ship on the river in the future but who are withholding investment in river facilities until the uncertainty of the Fish and Wildlife Service proposal is resolved. I have heard from mayors who are worried about the flood risk in the spring. Unless you have been in one of those communities or one of our large cities where a flood has hit, you do not appreciate how devastating a flood is.

I have heard from power companies worried about not having adequate water for cooling in the summer. I have heard from farmers who have been flooded and know firsthand that more water in the spring, despite suggestions to the contrary, means more risk of flood.

The farmers who live along the river know that even if it doesn't flood, a higher river level in the spring means more seepage under the levees and wetter fields that you cannot plow and you cannot plant.

We are here tonight discussing section 103 because despite the views of the Corps of Engineers, the U.S. Geological Survey, the downstream States, the agricultural groups, and the waterway users, the Fish and Wildlife Service is determined to have it their way or no way. The Fish and Wildlife Service wants to experiment with spring flooding. They must think we have forgotten about the controlled burn in Los Alamos. They want to give us controlled floods on the Missouri River in the spring. I say no thanks; we have been there; we have done it; and we don't need the Federal Government making floods worse.

This is not a new proposal. It was raised by the Corps of Engineers in 1993, and after public hearings in Omaha, Kansas City, St. Louis, Quincy, Memphis, New Orleans, and elsewhere, the administration went back to the drawing room to find a consensus with the States. Apparently, the Fish and Wildlife Service is not interested in a consensus or we would not be here today. They are not interested in the dangers of increased flood risk or we would not be here today. They are not interested in the public meetings and the viewpoints that were expressed in 1995 or this would have ended then. They want to raise the height of the river in the spring because they think flooding may improve the breeding habitat for the pallid sturgeon.

The distinguished minority leader says we ought to be able to act on the best information available. I have asked these people: Where is the information?

When I talked with them last week, our resource agencies, the U.S. Geological Survey had not seen any biological opinion. They issued that diktat, that letter of instruction, on July 12. As of last week, the State agencies, the U.S. Geological Survey, with expertise in environmental assessment, a fellow Federal agency, had not seen it.

How can we let them go ahead with the scheme when they won't even allow us to look at the basis for their proposal? This truly is a risky scheme. This is one that we cannot tolerate.

Our State Department of Natural Resources disagrees with Fish and Wildlife. Our State Conservation Department believes the Fish and Wildlife plan is not necessary. They have presented a plan that does not have spring flooding and no transportation flows in the spring—in the summer and fall. And they believe that plan will do more to help preserve the pallid sturgeon, the least tern, and the piping plover, than this risky scheme put forward by Fish and Wildlife.

Our State Conservation Department has an alternative species recovery plan. They cannot get Fish and Wildlife to look at it. Don't you think they would want to look at the various options? Don't you think they would want to consider the evidence before they threaten property and lives with spring floods in Missouri?

I have a lot of respect for the difficult and important job of Fish and Wildlife, but let me say this is not about who cares the most about endangered species. The commitment of our Natural Resources Department and our Conservation Department to fish and wildlife is not inferior to that of Fish and Wildlife of the U.S. Government. U.S. Fish and Wildlife does not have a monopoly on dedication and they do not have a monopoly on wisdom. In fact, our Department of Natural Resources has some serious concerns the Fish and Wildlife Service plan may actually harm endangered species rather than help them recover. That fear was expressed by our Governor of Missouri, Governor Carnahan, a Democrat, in a letter to the President 2 weeks ago. Why? Because normally in the summer the natural hydrograph is for the snowmelt to bring the river up. Under this plan, river levels will be going down. That means less water cover. It means burying sandbars where predators might come after the smallest hatch.

Fish and Wildlife has a twofold plan. One, it proposes a split season which will end river transportation on the Missouri and do great harm to the river transportation on the Mississippi River. Without water transportation, we are left with a regional railroad monopoly.

The minority leader said we initially projected there would be 12 million tons on the river. That is not true. If you look at the 1952 report and the testimony in 1952 and 1956 when they were developing the Missouri River plan, they said 5 million tons. This past year, it was 8 million tons on the river. As I said earlier, there would be a lot more because there is investment out there waiting to happen if we know that Fish and Wildlife is not going to take over the river and get rid of all barge traffic.

Barge traffic is the most environmentally sound means of transporting grain to the world markets. It is the most efficient. One barge, one tow with 25 barges, carries the same amount of grain as 870 individual semitrailer trucks that put out far more pollution. Barge transportation bringing inputs to farmers up the river is much more efficient than rail or truck. That lowers the price farmers pay for goods brought in in the spring for Missouri farmers. It lowers them for South Dakota farmers too; the landed price at Sioux City has an impact on what farmers pay. If you got rid of river transportation altogether—which I think may be the ultimate goal. I don't think the Fish and Wildlife Service and the people supporting this just want to flood out the people downstream in the spring; I think there is a greater objective—getting rid of barge transportation altogether. One can only assume that the railroad industry thinks that having no competition is a good idea. But I seriously question whether we, as Senators, should be supporting consolidation rather than competition.

The low summer flow proposed by Fish and Wildlife is curious for two additional reasons: One, because it will reduce energy revenues by more than one-third at the dams generating hydropower, particularly during high usage months in the summer. We are about to debate the necessity of a national energy commission to look at how we can meet our growing energy needs, and here we are with a Fish and Wildlife plan to decrease clean hydropower generation. We do not have the luxury of letting existing power capacity go to waste. The low summer flow proposed by the Fish and Wildlife Service reduces revenues in the high demand summer months by more than one-third.

Another reason the low flow is curious is that, while the Fish and Wildlife Service said they want the river to ''mimic its natural hydrograph,'' historically the highest flows were following the summer snowmelt upstream, and that is the same time Fish and Wildlife demands a low flow. They go the opposite way of their stated objective.

This risky scheme has not been subject to adequate analysis and comment by scientists, by people who understand, who live along, work with, and study the river. That is why we say it should not be implemented in the coming year. Let the studies, the debates go on. We would like to see sound science. We would like to see the best information available. Fish and Wildlife has not shown it to us.

The fall harvest is approaching. It looks like bumper crops. We have short supplies of storage. As a matter of fact, many elevators, grain elevators, started calling my office saying they do not have rail capacity. The railroads cannot get them the cars they need to carry out the fall harvest, and they are going to have to stop taking in grain that comes in. Two years ago, because of railcar shortages and disorganization, grain was piled up on the ground as it was in the former Soviet Union. The Fish and Wildlife Service proposes a complete reliance on that one mode of transportation.

Last night on the floor, Senator REID spoke candidly about the value of our Nation's inland waterway system and noted that:

> To move this additional cargo by alternative means would require an additional 17.6 million trucks on our Nation's highway system or an additional 5.8 million railcars on the nation's rail system. To say what can be handled by our inland water system can be moved by rail or trucks, it simply can't be done.

I agree with Senator REID. He is quite right. Fish and Wildlife seeks to eliminate water transportation on the Missouri. But Fish and Wildlife has really thought this through because they have a solution for eliminating the transportation options. They are going to propose, through this plan, to curtail agriculture production by flooding farmers in the spring with high water. As I said earlier, raising the river levels in the spring keeps farmers out of the field. So, as a result of the Fish and Wildlife spring rise, there will be less agricultural production awaiting the transportation that is not available.

Doesn't that just gladden your hearts? I mean, the farmers who depend for their living upon raising crops and shipping them economically into the world market—guess what, you are not going to have the transportation. But we will take care of that because we will keep you from having the production. That is why the farmers of Missouri say, ''No thanks.''

Let me speak to a couple of assertions that do not paint a very full picture of the importance of the debate. First, there is the assumption by some that the Missouri River ends suddenly and does not impact the Mississippi River. That is convenient, but it is not true. I have seen the confluence with my own eyes. I know that in low-water years, drought years, dry summers, 65 percent of the flow of the Mississippi River at St. Louis comes from the Missouri River. And to say that the Mississippi barge traffic would love to have that water cut back is absolutely ludicrous. That is why the southern Governors, noting the importance of the Missouri River flow in the Mississippi, have sent a resolution in support of section 103 that the minority leader seeks to strike.

Second, there is this notion—we heard it expressed earlier—the Corps will never release extra water in the spring if there is a risk of flooding. Good intention, of course. Give them full credit for trying. But they could only carry out this intention if they could predict the weather perfectly because water released from the South Dakota dam takes 11 days to arrive in St. Louis. A lot of weather can happen in 11 days.

Have any of you watched the weather forecasts for the Midwest this summer? I try to keep some trees alive. I watch it. I turn on the weather channel in the morning. It is a lot more informative than some of the morning talk shows. My Farmers Almanac said we were going to have heavy rains in mid-June and the end of June. The week before, 5 days before the middle of June—the middle of July, they said this is a drought season; there is not going to be a drop of water; it is going to be a dry year. The heavens opened up, and we had 5-, 6-, 8-inch rains. A lot of weather can occur in even 3 days.

I have a lot of respect for my friend from South Dakota—political miracles we see him perform—but I don't trust him or the Fish and Wildlife Service to predict the weather 11 days in advance downstream.

One mistake is all it takes to result in a Government-imposed flood that brings to mind the controlled burn in Los Alamos. That was not supposed to happen, either. The water is not retrievable when it is released.

Rainfall in the lower basin will swell the river after the release, and water from the release will only supplement the flood damage.

If the water is at your Adam's apple, the Federal Government will do you the courtesy of raising it to your temple.

Third, there is already a spring rise as I have stated. If a spring rise is what is needed to recover the species, we ought to have sturgeon all over the place because we had bodacious floods in 1993 and 1995. Those little sturgeons should be popping up all over because we had a spring rise to end all spring rises. It did not happen.

Fourth, with respect to water transportation benefits, the Fish and Wildlife Service and my colleague from South Dakota assume that in the absence of competition, the railroad industry will not raise rates on farmers. Try that out on any shipper. Ask anybody in the Midwest who has been captive of the railroad if they really believe that competition does not make any difference. That is the assumption which underlies the small $7 million in benefits from river transportation cited by the opponents of this transportation.

If it sounds as if I am picking on the railroad industry, which would be the biggest beneficiaries, along with farmers and producers in Latin America and Australia and Europe, I am not. I have no quarrel with the railroads aiming to maximize their profits. You cannot blame a compass for pointing north. They need to maximize profits.

If the Government wants to eliminate their competition, why would they interfere? Every Senator knows, or should know if they studied economics, that in the absence of competition, prices will rise. We see prices rise at the end of the navigation season. On the Mississippi, we see prices rise when locks are closed for maintenance.

There is a Fortune 100 firm on the Mississippi River that has built a river terminal it has never used except when it negotiates with the railroads. It has that river terminal, and the railroads come in and say: We are going to charge you x amount for bringing your product in. And they say: We will just open up this river terminal, and we will beat your prices down. They come around.

According to the Tennessee Valley Authority which did a study on the Missouri River, the savings to rail shippers because of competition created by barge traffic is an estimated $200 million annually. That is the benefit to shippers. Those people get goods coming in and those shipping commodities out. That includes benefits worth $56 million to shippers in Missouri, $43 million to shippers in Iowa, $36 million to shippers in Nebraska, and as the occupant of the Chair will be interested to know, $52 million to shippers in Kansas, and $14 million to shippers in South Dakota.

In summary, flood control is important, energy production is important, and having modern and competitive transportation options for our farmers and shippers is important.

With respect to the species, our resource agencies say the Fish and Wildlife Service is wrong and their plan is harmful and unnecessary. That is why I included the provision for the fifth year. This provision does not stop the process as has been alleged by my colleague. It simply says the water management manual cannot be changed to force a dangerous spring rise. It is a risky scheme on which we cannot afford to gamble. It is a controlled flood that is not controllable.

Ten years ago, the courts decided to review the river management. Seven years ago, it proposed a spring rise. It was opposed in public hearings from Sioux City to Memphis to New Orleans. It was opposed by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. It was opposed by the U.S. Department of Transportation. It was opposed by agriculture and other shippers.

Twenty-seven Senators in a bipartisan letter to the President opposed it. So in 1995, the administration rejected the spring rise and went back to the drawing board. The President ordered the Corps to work with the States to find a consensus. Meanwhile, Congress included section 103 four different times to remind the Fish and Wildlife Service that their obsession to increase flooding was not acceptable.

Last year, seven out of eight States arrived at a consensus that the Corps accepted which did not include a spring rise. Then, notwithstanding the public hearings in 1994, the letter to the President, the legislative provisions, notwithstanding the consensus, the Fish and Wildlife Service arrogantly pushes the same old plan to raise the river height in the spring.

The U.S. Geological Survey told me last week that they do not know enough about the river or the pallid sturgeon to know if there is any chance the Fish and Wildlife Service's plan will work. They are the ones who work to define habitat and biological response. They have not been shown the information from the Fish and Wildlife Service.

The Missouri department of conservation says they have an alternative to recover species which does not do premeditated damage to safety, to property, and to human lives. The Missouri department of natural resources said the Fish and Wildlife Service's plan is flawed and unnecessary.

The provision permits any experiment the Fish and Wildlife Service can dream up except the one risky scheme of a controlled flood in the spring which we cannot tolerate. Members of Congress have every right to place commonsense parameters on bureaucratic excursions. That is the purpose of this provision.

We know there are many other benefits that come from wise management of the Missouri River. The spring rise does not help the upstream States. In fact, States such as the Dakotas and Montana will find that they will not have the water they want for recreational purposes if it is flushed down the river in the spring. I know the Fish and Wildlife Service wants to run this river, just as it wants to take over management of a lot of other rivers, but the rivers are authorized for multiple uses. That is the way the Corps and the States manage them.

Because the proposal to initiate floods is harmful, because there are alternatives, I believe section 103 is a prudent and restrained safeguard that should be retained in this legislation, and I urge my colleagues to oppose the motion to strike.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. ROBERTS). The distinguished Senator from Montana is recognized.

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, I rise to support the Daschle-Baucus amendment to strike section 103 from the energy and water appropriations bill. One might ask why. The answer is very simple: Because section 103 is an anti-environmental rider that prevents the sound management of the Missouri River. It is that simple.

I begin by endorsing the points made so well by Senator DASCHLE. The Army Corps of Engineers is managing the Missouri River today on the basis of a master manual that was written in 1960. Guess what? It has not changed much since then. It is 40 years old. It is like trying to run the Internet based on a plan that was written in the heyday of rotary telephones. Conditions are different. Priorities are different.

As Senator DASCHLE explained, the master manual favors some uses of the river, such as barge traffic, that may have made sense in 1960 but makes little sense today. That is a very important point. In effect, a 40-year-old master manual favors the barge industry, which may have made sense in 1960 but makes virtually no sense today based upon the Corps's own economic analysis of the river, and it favors those uses over other uses, such as recreation, which are much more important now than they were in 1960.

As has been pointed out, the master manual also wastes taxpayers' dollars. We are today spending more than $8 million a year in operation and maintenance costs to support a $7 million barge industry. That is a bad deal for taxpayers. It is a subsidy that does not make sense.

In the interest of time, I will not elaborate on all those points. The Senator from South Dakota, the minority leader, has covered that ground very well. I do not want to repeat them. Instead, I would like to make three additional points.

First, the anti-environmental rider proposed by the Senator from Missouri harms my State of Montana. Second, it prevents the Corps of Engineers from complying with the law, from complying with the Endangered Species Act. And third, the rider derails a process of carefully revising the master manual, a process that is working.

In addition, I want to respond to an important argument made by the Senator from Missouri and other proponents of the rider. They argue that the rider is necessary to reduce the risk of floods. I will address that in a later point.

First, the impact of the rider on my State of Montana would be profound. The Missouri River flows not only through our State but through our history, as well as the history of other States.

Meriwether Lewis found the source of the Missouri River on August 12, 1805. It is at Three Forks, MT. It is shown on this map up here to the left, just east of the Continental Divide.

From there the river flows north, winding around near Helena, Great Falls, past Fort Benton, and then east through the lake created by the Fort Peck Dam near Glasgow.

There is Fort Peck Dam right here on the map. It is one of the major dams in the Missouri River system.

This is eastern Montana, an agricultural region. As the occupant of the Chair knows, agriculture has been suffering some very hard economic times for more than a decade with low prices for wheat, low prices for beef, drought. In eastern Montana, as well as in the western Dakotas, people are moving out, looking for jobs, virtually for survival.

Fort Peck Lake—that is this lake shown on the map right here—is a key part of our plan in our State to revive our State's economy, at least in that part of the State. It is a center for boating, a center for fishing, and, I might say, all kinds of recreation which is related to the lake.

Fort Peck is host to several major walleye tournaments each summer. The biggest is called the Governor's Cup, which attracts people from all around the State, all around the Nation, and all around the world.

I was there last July with one of the major sponsors of it, Diane Brant. I might say, she provides the gusto that makes the tournament work. It is incredible watching everybody line up to go out and go walleye fishing. Hundreds of boats went by the review stand, in single file, as walleye anglers set forth to prove their mettle.

This tournament brings jobs and excitement to the area. We are working hard to get more done. For example, I am working with Diane and local community leaders, and others, to establish a warm water fish hatchery on the north bank of the river to improve the walleye fishery. But we face a problem. It is a big one. Under the master manual, water levels in the Fort Peck Lake are often drawn down in the summer, largely to support the barge traffic downstream, which is an industry that need not be subsidized near to the degree that it is, and certainly according to the Army Corps of Engineers' information.

In fact, there have been times when the lake has been drawn down so low that boat ramps are a mile or more from the water's edge. This is what this photograph shows. This is a photograph of a boat landing at Fort Peck Lake. It is called Crooked Creek. It is a mile from the boat landing to the edge of the lake.

Why? Because Fort Peck has been drawn down to support a barge industry downstream. Frankly, the industry is dated and does not need to be supported near that much at the expense of people upstream, upriver, who, frankly, do not have many means of recreation. But the main thing they want to do is to be able to put a boat in the river. They are unable to do so because the boat ramp is over a mile from the river.

These drawdowns have occurred frequently. The effect is devastating. Obviously, drawdowns prevent people from boating and fishing. They also reduce the numbers of walleyes, sturgeon, and other fish.

Let me be specific. Right now the water level at Fort Peck has been drawn down about 10 feet, to increase flows for downstream barge traffic. That is right now. A few weeks ago there was another walleye tournament at Crooked Creek, and it could well have been canceled. There was a lot of concern because ramps could not be used. Fortunately, it did not happen this year, but very often it does.

The drawdowns are a big part of the economic raw deal that eastern Montana has been getting for years. More balanced management of this system, which takes better account of upstream economic benefits is absolutely critical to reviving our State's economy in eastern Montana.

I am not going to stand here and try to kid anybody. This debate is, to a significant degree, about who gets Missouri River water, and when. That is accurate. But that is not all this debate is about. There is an awful lot more to it.

The section 103 rider prevents the Corps of Engineers from obeying the law of the land. Let me repeat that. The section 103 rider prevents the Army Corps of Engineers from obeying the law. It is that simple. It is that specific. It is that accurate. Specifically, it prevents the Corps from following the Endangered Species Act.

Before I get into the details, let me say a couple things about the Endangered Species Act. A lot of people are watching tonight. They may wonder: What is all this fuss about? There is less than a month left of the congressional session. Big issues need to be addressed—the budget, prescription drug coverage, trade with China. Why in the middle of all of this are we debating the fate of two birds and a fish? Good question. This is why.

Any time an issue such as this comes up, it is tempting to think only about the particular species that are being involved—the snail darter, the spotted owl. In this case, the piping plover, the least tern, and the pallid sturgeon. But that is thinking too narrowly.

In a much broader sense, the debate is about whether we really are serious about protecting endangered species. It is about whether our generation is going to meet its moral obligation to preserve the web of life that sustains us, and pass it along, as a legacy, to future generations.

If we create a loophole here, there will be pressure to create another loophole somewhere else—and another and another. Before you know it, the law will be shredded into tatters.

Don't get me wrong. I am not saying that the Endangered Species Act is perfect. It is not—far from it. I have worked for years to come up with reforms that would improve the act, that would increase public participation, assure that decisions are based on sound science, give a greater role to the States, get more certainty to landowners, bring people together, rather than drive them apart.

Over the last decade, I have worked as hard as anyone to reform the Endangered Species Act. But those reforms have not passed. They have been reported out of the Committee on Environment and Public Works, but they have been kept off this Senate floor, as good as they are.

Nevertheless, in the meantime, the Endangered Species Act today remains the law of the land. We have to respect it. It is the law.

With that as background, let me turn to specifics and explain how Senator BOND's rider prevents the Army Corps of Engineers from managing the Missouri River in a way that is consistent with the law.

The river provides habitat for three endangered species: the piping plover, the least tern, and the pallid sturgeon. Each of these species evolved along a river that had higher flows in the spring and lower flows in the summer. That is the natural order of things. Each species depended on a life cycle that depended on this pattern.

The tern and the plover need higher flows in the spring. Why? To create the sandbars they nest on. Higher flows create sandbars. They need lower flows in the summer. Why? To create a buffer that reduces the risk that the nests might be washed away by, say, a storm. That is the natural order of things.

The sturgeon needs high flows in the spring for breeding and lower flows in the summer for the development of young fish.

But the way I just described the natural order is not the way the river is being managed today. Under the master manual, today's management system, the Corps tries to maintain steady water levels through the spring and summer so there is always enough water to support the barge traffic downstream. It is this steady, even, but unnatural, flow that is driving the three species to the brink of extinction.

The management plan in the master manual may have made sense in 1960, before we knew about the threat to these species and before the Endangered Species Act was passed—I remind my colleagues, it was passed 13 years later, in 1973—but the master manual does not make sense today. It may have made sense in 1960, not today. Therefore, when the Corps began to revise the master manual 10 years ago—they have been at this for a long time—it was the first time the Corps seriously considered how the dams on the river affect endangered species.

There have been a lot of reports, a lot of discussions, a lot of give-and-take, but finally, after a decade of work, the process is moving forward. We are close to revising the master manual, revising it so we have a better, more balanced current use of the river, such as flood control, navigation, but also more to protect the plover, the tern, and the sturgeon.

How do we do this? Basically by providing for a moderate rise in flows in the spring and reduced flows in July and August. This is the so-called spring rise/split season alternative. This alternative has strong support. Fish and game officials from all seven Missouri River basin States say it is the right thing to do.

Last summer, they recommended that we—I will not read the whole quote, I will begin in the middle—

> . . . provide higher flows during critical spring and early summer periods for native fish spawning and habitat development followed by lower flows during the critical summer period.

That is the recommendation. They have studied this thing, believe me. Guess what? The Fish and Wildlife Service agrees. Its draft biological opinion says:

> Spring and summer flow management is an integral component of the measures to avoid jeopardy to listed species . . . This would include higher spring flows and lower summer flows than currently exist.

They have studied this. Guess what again? The Army Corps of Engineers recognizes the benefits of a spring rise and a split season. The Corps has said that ''periodic high flows are required for terns and plovers to remove encroaching vegetation, but during the nesting season, stable or declining flows are needed to avoid nesting flight.'' The Corps has made similar observations about the pallid sturgeon. In other words, the fish and game experts from the Missouri River basin States, the Fish and Wildlife Service, and the Corps of Engineers all recognize the importance of higher flows in the spring and lower flows in the summer.

This is where the section 103 rider comes in. Simply put, the rider prevents the Corps from revising the master manual to provide for higher water levels in the spring. The Senator from Missouri said so. He said that is what he intends to do. Those are the words of the rider: Prevent the master manual from providing higher water levels in the spring. By doing so, the rider contradicts what fish and game experts from the basin States and Federal agencies involved all recognize is necessary to provide more protection for the three endangered species and comply with the law.

Again, the debate is not just about the allocation of water between upstream and downstream States. The debate is also fundamentally about whether in one fell swoop we tell the Corps of Engineers to ignore the law; ignore the Endangered Species Act regarding the management of one of the country's largest rivers. The answer, of course, is obvious. The Corps should obey the law, just like everyone else.

Forget about the species for a minute, think about basic fairness. We require private landowners to comply with the Endangered Species Act, so why shouldn't we also require the Federal Government to do so. They shouldn't get a free pass, especially when the Federal Government is the main cause of the problem. The Federal Government should not get a free pass. The Federal Government—in this case, the Army Corps of Engineers—should be held to the same standard as everybody else, and the Corps agrees that it should be held to that same standard.

That brings me to a related point; that is, government by litigation. Stop and think about this for a moment. If we think about it, we probably all know what will happen down the road if this rider becomes law. What is going to happen? The Fish and Wildlife Service will issue its final biological opinion. Like the draft, it probably will recommend higher flows in the spring, lower flows in the summer. Normally, the Corps would then revise the master manual. But because of the rider, the Corps cannot make the revisions necessary to comply with the Endangered Species Act. The rider says: Army Corps of Engineers, you cannot follow the law.

So what is going to happen? At that point there is certain to be a lawsuit brought by environmental groups challenging the Corps' failure to obey the law. Guess what? The environmental groups are likely to win. Why? Because the master manual will effectively ignore the needs of the species and therefore violate the Endangered Species Act.

It is not just my opinion that a master manual without a spring rise and a split season would ignore the needs of the endangered species. This is the unanimous opinion of the experts who reviewed the biological opinion. This unanimous recommendation was based on sound science. I might add, two people from the State of Missouri were on the peer review committee. They unanimously agreed that this is the alternative—that is spring rise/split season—which is necessary to protect these species.

Let's go back a little bit. Let's say that the rider passes. Let's say a lawsuit is brought. As I mentioned, the likelihood is very high that the plaintiffs, the environmentalists, would win. What happens next? We wind up with the river being operated not by the Corps of Engineers, not influenced by the Congress, but by the courts, a judge in some Federal court somewhere—they will get venue probably somewhere along the Missouri River—will be overseeing the operation of the entire Missouri River system; again, because of a lawsuit that wins. That might be politically convenient for some, but it is an abdication of our responsibility. As we have seen along the Columbia and Snake Rivers, it generates much more litigation and much more uncertainty.

Let us not go down the path of litigation. We do have a process in place to carefully revise the master manual. It has been underway for years; 10 years to be more specific. Now at the last moment, when the end is in sight, here we find a rider on an appropriations bill which would derail the process by taking not only one of the alternatives right off the table but the one that probably is necessary to comply with the law. Of course, that is not fair; of course, it is not right. It is not the right way for us to be doing business here. Instead, we should give the process we began 10 years ago a chance to work.

Now that we have a draft biological opinion, there will be an opportunity—this is a very important point—for public comment, both on the draft and on the later environmental impact statement. That way we have a decision that is not made in a vacuum. But this rider makes a mockery of that process. There will be an extensive period for public comment, but the public agencies cannot take any of those comments into account. That is what this rider does. It says: OK, here is your alternative, but you can't be implemented so the comments are irrelevant. What kind of message does that send to our people, already cynical about the way Government works? I say there is a better way: allow the process to work.

With that, I will briefly respond to a point made by the Senator from Missouri and some of his supporters. Concern has been expressed that if we have higher flows in the spring, there is a greater chance of flooding—a wonderful metaphor, floods; wonderful picture, floods; wall of water; risky proposition. It gets people scared and nervous, obviously. That is what it is designed to do. It is designed to scare people, scare them into supporting the rider. But we are not only emotional entities, we are supposedly analytical beings.

We are supposed to think about this stuff a little bit, look at the facts, not just the emotion. So let's look at the facts, I say to my other good friend from Missouri who is managing this bill at this time.

First of all, nobody wants floods. Flood control comes first. There is no question about it. Flood control comes first. I might say, though, the Corps and other agencies have taken flood control into account. In fact, the Corps has modeled many different river management alternatives. Their models show that under a spring rise/split season, there is no difference in flood control. Statistically, it is about 1 percent, which is basically zero. The Army Corps of Engineers has taken this question fully into account already. Of course, they would; it is their responsibility, and they have done that. Their conclusions show that under this alternative, there is virtually no difference in flooding compared with the current master manual—virtually none.

I heard one of my good friends from Missouri say, well, gee, nobody can predict the weather. Mr. President, that is a total red herring, totally irrelevant. That has nothing to do with what we are talking about here. We can't predict the weather today under the current master manual or tomorrow if the spring rise/split season are adopted—in either event. The two floods mentioned—in 1993 and 1997—under this proposal, the spring rise/split season, would not have been in effect; that is, the spring rise/split season proposal would not have been permitted because of the modeling and the anticipation of the flood years 1993 or 1997. Actually, the spring rise is to be implemented only once every 3 years. Say year No. 1 comes up, and 4 years later year No. 1 comes up again, and this might be a flood year. The model says, no, we don't implement a spring rise; we are not going to take the risk of more flooding.

So let's get the flood scare tactic off the table here. It has nothing to do with what we are talking about. The Army Corps of Engineers' own models conclude that the risk of flooding is virtually insignificant.

In closing, I want to also point out one other thing. The basic argument of the Senator from Missouri is that we are just taking one item off the table—spring rise/split season. That is all we are doing. We are not taking other alternatives off the table, other environmental enhancement measures, wetlands restoration, and habitat restoration. We are not taking that off the table. So what is the big fuss here? That is the basic argument.

The flaw in that argument is that the people who have studied this, the peer reviewers, have unanimously concluded that both are needed in order to solve this problem—that is, both a spring rise/split season and legislation to help restore habitat. Both are needed. They have concluded you can't have one without the other; you have to have both. You have to have the spring rise/split season. It makes sense because that is the natural order of things; that is the way the river runs naturally. It tends to flood in the spring and not later on.

The argument has also been made that this is going to hurt Mississippi barge traffic downstream. Frankly, that is another red herring designed to scare Senators downstream from Missouri, from St. Louis. It is a scare tactic because if you look at the data, at the facts, the facts show that, actually, because more water is being let out of the dams in the spring, and it is saved in the summer, on a net basis, they are going to have to let a little bit more out in the fall, which benefits the barge industry on the Mississippi. So it is a red herring. It is inaccurate—more to the point—that this proposal would hurt barge traffic down from St. Louis. That is not right. The Corps data shows more water is going to be released at the time it is more necessary.

To sum it all up, let's pass this amendment that strikes section 103.

Let the process continue to work. There is ample opportunity for public comment. But let's not disrupt it in a way that will cause a lawsuit and will cause a lot more problems than it will solve. I understand Senators who feel obligated, regardless of the facts, to support the Senator. But let's do what is right and not pass this.

I yield the floor.

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. President, I am pleased to take this opportunity to join my colleagues to discuss the issue of the how the Missouri River should be managed by the Corps of Engineers. I strongly urge the Senate to adopt the Daschle-Baucus-Johnson amendment to strike Section 103 from the Energy and Water Appropriations bill, which prevents needed changes to the management of the Missouri River that have been called for by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. President Clinton has stated that he will veto the bill if this amendment is not included. The time has come to manage the river in line with current economic realities.

This issue has come before the Senate because some Senators from states downstream on the Missouri River are attempting to politicize the management of the River. As has been done in the last four years, they are trying to politicize this issue by adding a rider to the Energy and Water Appropriations bill to prevent the Army Corps of Engineers from changing the 40 year old master manual that sets the management policy of the river.

Mr. President, let me assure you and the rest of my colleagues that after 40 years, the management of the Missouri River is in serious need of an update to reflect the current realities of the River. The Corps current plan for managing water flow from the Missouri River Dams, known as the master manual provides relatively steady flows during the spring, summer and fall to support a $7 million downstream barge industry. The manual has not been substantially revised on 40 years.

In that time, the projections of barge traffic used to justify the manual have never materialized. Instead, the steady flows required by the manual have contributed to the decline of fish and wildlife along the river.

To counter this problem, the Army Corps of Engineers has proposed a revision of the master manual which governs how the river is managed.

I was among those who first called for a revision of the master manual because I firmly believed then, as I do now, that over the years, we in the Upper Basin states have lived with an unfortunate lack of parity under the current management practices on the Missouri River. It is no secret that we continue to suffer from an upstream vs. downstream conflict of interest on Missouri River uses. Navigation has been emphasized on the Missouri River, to the detriment of river ecosystems and recreational uses. I recognize that navigation activities often support midwestern agriculture, however the navigation industry has been declining since it peaked in the late 1970's. It is no longer appropriate to grossly favor navigation above other uses of the river.

Those of us from the upstream States have been working for more than 10 years to get the Corps of Engineers to finally make changes in the 40 year old master manual for the Missouri River.

After more than 40 years, the time has come for the management of the Missouri River to reflect the current economic realities of an $90 million annual recreation impact upstream, versus a $7 million annual navigation impact downstream. The downstream barge industry carries only 3/10 percent of all agriculture goods transported in the upper Midwest. The Corps has been managing the Missouri River for navigation for far too long and it is time to finally bring the master manual into line with current economic realities. Passage of the Daschle-Baucus-Johnson amendment will do just that.

As I stated earlier, the process to review and update the master manual began more than 10 years ago, in 1989, in response to concerns regarding the operation of the main stem dams, mainly during drought periods. A draft Environmental Impact Statement (DEIS) was published in September 1994 and was followed by a public comment period. In response to numerous comments, the Corps agreed to prepare a revised DEIS.

After years of revisions and updates that have dragged this process out to ridiculous lengths, the Corps finally came forward with alternatives to the current master manual, including the ''split season'' alternative, which I strongly support, along with my colleagues from the Upper Basin States.

The rider to prevent implementation of changes in the manual has been included for the last 4 years. In previous years, this rider was not as important because the Corps was not ready to revise the river management policies. However, this year, the Corps is consulting extensively with the Fish and Wildlife Service and is officially learning that it must implement a spring rise and split season to avoid driving endangered species to extinction. Since the Corps finally has a schedule to complete the process in the near future, rejecting this rider is more than important than ever.

Those of us from the States in the Upper Basin are determined to work aggressively for the interests of our region. For decades our states have made many significant sacrifices which have benefitted people living further south along the Missouri River.

Mr. President, now is the time to finally bring an outdated and unfair management plan for the Missouri River up to date with modern economic realities. I urge my colleagues to support this amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The distinguished Senator from Missouri is recognized.

Mr. ASHCROFT. Mr. President, I yield as much time as the Senator from Iowa may consume in opposing this motion to strike.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Iowa is recognized.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, I strongly urge my colleagues to support section 103 of the energy and water appropriations bill. This section would prohibit changes to management of the Missouri River which would unquestionably increase flood risk on the lower Missouri and Mississippi Rivers. If this section is dropped from the bill, landowners in Iowa along the Missouri River will face the threat of increased flooding. Farmers and other river barge users would face increased transportation costs in getting their grain and other goods to market. Both of these outcomes are unacceptable to a majority of Iowans.

There is nothing new in this bill language. It has been placed in four previous appropriations bill by my distinguished colleague from Missouri, Senator BOND. Each of these bills has been signed into law by this President. The measure would prohibit the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers from implementing a U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service plan to increase releases of water from Missouri River dams in the spring. The Daschle amendment could result in significant flooding downstream given the heavy rains that are usually experienced in my, and other downstream states during that time.

We must keep in mind that it takes 8 days for water to travel from Gavins Point to the mouth of the Missouri.

Unanticipated downstream storms can make a ''controlled release'' a deadly flood inflicting a widespread physical and human cataclysm. There are many small communities along the Missouri River in Iowa. Why should they face an increased potential risk for flooding and its devastation? They shouldn't.

Equally unacceptable is the low-flow summer release schedule proposed by the Clinton-Gore administration's Fish and Wildlife Service. A so-called split navigation season would be catastrophic to the transportation of Iowa grain to the marketplace. In effect, the Missouri River would be shut-down to barge traffic during a good portion of the summer. It would also have a disastrous effect on the transportation of steel to Iowa steel mills located along the Missouri, construction materials and farm inputs such as fertilizer.

Opponents of section 103 will advance an argument that a spring flood is necessary for species protection under the Endangered Species Act, and that grain and other goods can be transported to market by railroad. I do not accept that argument. I believe that there is significant difference of opinion whether or not a spring flood will benefit pallid sturgeon, the interior least tern or the piping plover. In fact, the Corps has demonstrated that it can successfully create nesting habitat for the birds through mechanical means. Further, it is in dispute among biologists whether or not a flood can create the necessary habitat for the sturgeon.

I would further point out that the Fish and Wildlife Service has yet to designate ''critical habitat'' for the pallid sturgeon as required by the Endangered Species Act.

Loss of barge traffic would deliver the western part of America's great grain belt into the monopolistic hands of the railroads. Without question, grain transportation prices would drastically increase with disastrous results on farm income.

Every farmer in Iowa knows that the balance in grain transportation is competition between barges and railroads. This competition keeps both means of transportation honest. This competition keeps transportation prices down and helps to give the Iowa farmer a better financial return on the sale of his grain. This competition helps to make the grain transportation system in America the most efficient and cost effective in the world. It is crucial in keeping American grain competitively priced in the world market. The Corps itself estimates that barge competition reduces rail rates along the Missouri by $75–200 million annually.

Further, if a drought hits during the split navigation season, there would be even less water flowing along the Missouri. This would greatly inhibit navigation along the Mississippi River. We cannot let this happen.

Less water flowing in the late summer would also affect hydroelectric rates. The decreased flows would mean less power generation and higher electric rates for Iowans who depend upon this power source.

I agree with the National Corn Growers and their statement that, ''an intentional spring rise is an unwarranted, unscientific assault on farmers and citizens throughout the Missouri River Basin.'' I urge my colleagues to support section 103. Vote against the Daschle amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The distinguished Senator from Missouri is recognized.

Mr. BOND. Mr. President, I rise to speak in support of section 103, and I yield myself such time as I may consume to make my remarks.

Section 103 of this bill is a provision that is necessary for the millions of Americans who live and work along the Missouri and Mississippi Rivers. But before I get into detailing those considerations, let me commend Senator BAUCUS and the Senate Appropriations Committee for including section 103 in the energy and water appropriations bill.

This section protects the citizens of my State of Missouri and other States from dangerous flooding and allows for cost-efficient transportation of grain and cargo. Of course, cost-efficient transportation provides a basis for much of our industry and agriculture.

The pending amendment would delete section 103 in the underlying bill, thereby sanctioning the Fish and Wildlife Service's attempt to bully the Corps of Engineers into immediately changing the river's water management plan to include a spring rise which would increase flood risk on the lower Missouri and Mississippi Rivers.

This is not just a dispute between the States of Missouri and the Dakotas. It is a much larger issue. It is about whether we will prevent unnecessary administrative intrusion into the operation of the Missouri or any U.S. river, and whether the public it is about should have the opportunity to review proposed changes and whether we should allow a disputed biological opinion to be the subject of independent scrutiny.

Without section 103, decades of operating the Nation's commercially navigable rivers for multiple purposes will be reversed without clear congressional direction.

Joining us in urging defeat of the pending amendment is a bipartisan collection of people and organizations representing farmers, manufacturers, labor unions, shippers, cities, and port authorities from 15 Midwest States. Also supporting us in opposing the Daschle amendment are major national organizations, including the American Farm Bureau, the American Waterways Association, the National Grange, and the National Soybean Association.

We are united in opposing this amendment because of the risk. It would lead to a dangerous flooding condition and could interfere with the movement and cost of grain and cargo shipped on our Nation's inland waterways.

It is not a novel thing for me to stand in defense of the Missouri River. I come to this debate after fighting for Missouri's water rights as the Missouri attorney general and Governor, and I will continue to make water flows on the Missouri and Mississippi Rivers top priorities.

As background for this debate, Senators need to know that the use of the Missouri River is governed by what is known as the Missouri River Master Manual. Right now, there is an effort underway to update that manual. The specific issue that is at the crux of this debate today is what is called a spring rise. A spring rise in this case is a release of huge amounts of water from above Gavins Point Dam on the Nebraska-South Dakota border during the flood-prone spring months.

To see whether such a controlled flood may improve the habitat of the pallid sturgeon, the least tern, and the piping plover, section 103 is a commonsense provision that states:

> None of the funds made available in this act may be used to revise the Missouri River Master Water Control Manual if such provisions provide for an increase in the springtime water release program during the spring heavy rainfall and snow melt period in States that have rivers draining into the Missouri River below the Gavins Point Dam.

This policy has been included in the last four energy and water appropriations bills, all of which the President signed without opposition.

In an effort to protect the species' habitats, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service issued an ultimatum to the Army Corps of Engineers insisting that the U.S. Corps of Engineers immediately agree to its demand for a spring rise. The Corps was given 1 week to respond to the request of Fish and Wildlife for immediate implementation of a spring rise. The Corps' response was a rejection of the spring rise proposal, and they called for further study of the effect of the spring rise.

The Bond language in section 103 will allow for the studies the Corps recommends.

National environmental groups want to delete section 103. They want to do that in an attempt to circumvent additional analysis of the effects of the proposal.

What is ironic and even tragic is that spring flooding could hurt the targeted species more than it would protect them, and it would do so in a way that would increase the risks of downstream flooding and interfere with the shipment of cargo on our Nation's highways.

Dr. Joe Engeln, assistant director of the Missouri Department of Natural Resources, stated in a June 24 letter that there are several major problems with the Fish and Wildlife's proposed plan that may have a perverse effect of harming the targeted species rather than helping the targeted species.

First, Dr. Engeln points out that the plan would increase the amount of water held behind the dams, which would have the effect of reducing the amount of river between the big reservoirs by about 10 miles in an average year and a reduction in certain parts of the river.

In addition, Dr. Engeln writes, ''The higher reservoir levels would also reduce the habitat for the terns and plovers that nest along the shorelines of the reservoirs.''

Dr. Engeln also points out that because the plan calls for a significant drop in flow during the summer, predators will be able to reach the islands upon which the terns and plovers nest, giving them access to young still in nests. It is clear there isn't a single view about the value, even in terms of seeking to protect these species which are the focus of this debate.

Some advocates of the proposed plan claim this plan is a return to more natural flow conditions. They say, we want to return the river to its condition at the time of the Lewis and Clark expedition. Not only is it unrealistic to return the river to its ''natural flow'' when the Midwest was barely habitable because of erratic flooding conditions, according to Dr. Engeln,

> The proposal would benefit artificial reservoirs at the expense of the river and create flow conditions that have never existed along the river in Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, and Missouri.

Dr. Engeln's letter states:

Balancing the needs of all river users is complicated. Predicting the loss of habitat and its impact on the terns and plovers should not be subject to disagreements. The Fish and Wildlife Service and the Corps of Engineers need to examine the implications of this proposal and recognize its failure to protect these species.

Listen to the last comment: The Missouri Department of Natural Resources—I might note, this is a well-recognized department; our conservation and natural resource departments are nationally recognized. We are especially supportive, with special independent tax revenues for the conservation commission. The Missouri Department of Natural Resources states that the Fish and Wildlife Service should recognize the proposal's failure to protect these species.

The plan by the Fish and Wildlife Service fails to protect species. It exposes the citizens of the Midwest and Southern States and their farms and cities and ports to dangerous flooding. It also interferes with the shipment of cargo and could lead to higher prices being charged for the shipment of cargo.

Over 90 organizations representing farmers, shippers, cities, labor unions, and port authorities sent a letter to Congress last week that Senator BOND has had printed in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD. Let me briefly quote from this letter:

The spring rise demanded by the Fish and Wildlife Service is based on the premise that we should ''replicate the national hydrograph'' that was responsible for devastating and deadly floods, as well as summertime droughts and even dust bowls.

The letter goes on to say:

For decades we have worked to mitigate the negative implications of the natural hydrograph with multiple purpose water resource programs. These efforts have protected communities from floods and also provided hundreds of thousands of families wage jobs in interior regions.

These 90-plus organizations are exactly right. For decades, the Government has made water resource management decisions by taking into account the many varied uses of the river in balancing the interests of all affected groups: agriculture, energy, municipal, industrial, environmental, and recreational. Our policies in the past have been designed to protect communities against natural disasters, as well as allow efficient and environmentally friendly river transportation, low-cost and reliable hydropower and a burgeoning recreation industry.

Let me indicate when I was attorney general of the State of Missouri—and that is several decades ago—there was a run made on the river at that time to divert the river, to run it through a pipeline to the lower Gulf States and to run the river in conjunction with powdered coal through the pipeline as a means of taking the river.

I guarded the river then because I knew of its value to our State. Half the people in the State of Missouri drink water from the Missouri River. It is a tremendous resource in terms of transportation, in moving grain downstream for international sale. Soybean farmers in America have to sell over half of their crop overseas. Moving their crop to the ports is essential. Moving the crop efficiently to the ports is very important in terms of our competitive position. It is a necessary thing that we preserve this potential for those who operate our family farms—not just to have the transportation—to avoid the unnecessary and devastating potential of floods.

Last week, the sponsors of the pending amendment circulated a Dear Colleague letter regarding their amendment. It is a letter to explain their idea of striking section 103. They laid out the arguments. The environmental groups who are supporting the Daschle amendment have made many of the same points in defense of their position. I want to take a few minutes to refute the main points of the supporters of this amendment, which is to strike this provision.

First, the supporters argue that the Missouri River management changes will not create potential downstream flooding because the spring rise would not occur every year. It would not be implemented during the 10 percent highest flow years, they say, ''and the Corps would not release additional water from Gavins Point dam if the Missouri were already flooding.''

While this may sound reassuring, it is not acceptable to those citizens living downstream because unreliable waterflows pose a grave danger to everyone living and working along the banks of the river. The spring rise would come at a time in the year when downstream citizens are most vulnerable to flooding and downstream agriculture is certainly very vulnerable to flooding.

It normally takes 11 or 12 days for water to travel from the Gavins Point reservoir to St. Louis. During the spring, the weather in the Midwest is unpredictable. I might want to protect myself. It may be that the weather in the Midwest is always predictable.

I remember last summer visiting a flood-ravaged city in eastern Missouri in this watershed. Union, MO, had a 14-inch rain that was not predicted. I had flooding on my farm in late July when we had a 7-inch unpredicted rain. And not only just this kind of outburst or cloud burst, but we know that the weather in the Midwest is hard to predict. Heavy rain or a series of heavy rains in the 12-day period following a spring rise would certainly greatly increase the chances for downstream flooding, and the amount that would be necessary to top a levy here and there could be the amount precipitated with the rise, the purposeful release of the water.

The second major point the opponents make is that section 103 prohibits the Corps from producing a final environmental impact study. The true fact is the language of section 103 only forbids the use of Federal funds to make revisions of the master manual to allow for a spring rise. It does not impact the Corps' ability to produce a final environmental impact study, nor does it permanently ban revisions. Section 103 would only be operative for fiscal year 2001.

The third point that the opponents make is that the Fish and Wildlife Service proposal will help Mississippi barge navigators. The true fact is every Mississippi navigational organization and transportation entity is against the proposed spring rise and in support of section 103. They say these folks will all be assisted by this. But all the folks who actually work in this industry, every single navigational organization says that kind of assistance ''we don't want.'' It is akin to the fellow saying: I don't think the check is in the mail and I don't think you are from the Federal Government and here to help me.

The fourth point that our opponents make is that the Missouri River farmers will benefit by the proposed management changes. The real fact is that every farm group is against the proposal and is in favor of retaining section 103. The American Farm Bureau Federation, the National Corn Growers Association, the National Association of Wheat Growers, the American Soybean Association, the National Grain and Feed Association, the National Council of Farmer Cooperatives, Agriculture Retailers Association—enough.

The fifth point our opponents make is that public recreational opportunities in upstream States will be improved by the proposed changes. According to the mark 2,000 set of groups, no evidence exists to suggest that recreation and tourism will benefit from a spring rise.

The sixth point our opponents make is that the spring rise will help to restore the health of the river and recover endangered fish and bird species. No documentation has been provided that establishes the need for a spring rise beyond what currently occurs naturally. As I mentioned before, the Missouri Department of Natural Resources strongly disagrees that a spring rise would have environmental benefits for endangered birds.

The seventh point our opponents make in their letter is that the only industry harmed by the proposal would be the downstream barge industry. They don't always make this point. Sometimes they say this will not make any difference to the barge industry. Sometimes they say it is going to help the barge industry. Then they say the only industry that would be hurt would be the barge industry. I think what we can all agree on is the barge industry would be affected, and I think we ought to listen to the barge industry. The barge industry simply says very clearly they don't want any part of this, that they reject this concept.

Competition on the waterways, of course, would be impaired. If you hurt the barge industry, it is totally naive to think that you can hurt the barge industry and that would be the only industry hurt. If you hurt the barge industry and take that grain shipment capacity out of the system, all of a sudden you have to load more trucks. So there would be a greater demand for trucking. With more demand, we all know what happens: Supply and demand, if the supply is the same the price goes up. In fact, it doesn't take a particularly strong analytical bent to get there. But the Tennessee Valley Authority has made some estimates about this. According to the TVA, water competition holds down railroad rates, not only trucking rates but railroad rates, and the holddown of the railroad rates by water competition is about $200 million each year.

If you are talking about that kind of impact holding down those rates, I think it is fair to say there are potential ripple effects on a lot of other folks than just the barge industry, and I happen to believe this is a time when the American farmer might find himself on the tracks and the fast freight coming through, and not for the benefit of the American farmer. It is time for us to say we need as much competition as possible in hauling these resources to market rather than to minimize that competition.

Finally, the amendment sponsors say the President will veto this bill if section 103 is maintained. If the President decides to veto the entire bill after having signed this provision four times previously, it states a very clear message by the Clinton-Gore administration to the citizens of the Midwest. It is very easy to understand. Unfortunately, it would be very hard to digest and accommodate. But the message would be this: The Clinton-Gore administration is willing to flood downstream communities as part of an unscientific, risky scheme that will hurt, not help, the endangered species it seeks to protect. If that is the message, I wouldn't want to be the messenger. A vote for the Daschle amendment sends the message to communities all along the Missouri River that this Congress supports increased flooding of property and higher costs for family farmers, factory workers, and industrial freight movers.

I think it is pretty clear that there is not sound science to support some protection of these species. There is a clear disagreement among scientists, and a strong argument that the implementation of this plan would, in fact, damage the capacity of some of these species to continue.

I urge Senators to look closely at the facts and to stand with the men and women who depend upon sane, scientific management of the Missouri and Mississippi Rivers, and to join me in voting no on the Daschle amendment.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time? The distinguished Senator from Montana.

Mr. BAUCUS. I don't know if the Senator from Missouri wants to speak now. I have maybe 5 or 10 minutes of points I want to make, but if the Senator wants to speak now——

Mr. BOND. Please; my colleague has the floor.

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, just several points for the record. In all due respect, listening to my colleagues, there were lots of conclusions. I don't hear a lot of facts, support for the statements made.

One of the statements I heard is that flood control benefits will be much worse under the preferred plan, that is the spring rise/split season. But that is not what the facts are, according to the Army Corps of Engineers. If you look at all the various data here on all the various alternatives that the Corps considered, it totaled up the flood control benefits for the river from the Fort Peck Dam down to the mouth, and I must say there is statistically no difference in flood control benefits. So this big scare tactic of floods—I have heard some say, not on this floor, a wall of water—is, according to the facts, inaccurate. It is inaccurate according to the modeling done by the Corps on all the various alternatives.

The benefits under the current master manual, flood control benefits, according to the Army Corps of Engineers, are about $414 million. The spring rise/split season flood control benefits are virtually statistically the same; that is, $410 million—virtually no difference. Those are the facts. Not the rhetoric, not the abstraction, not the generalization, but the facts.

Second, I have heard here that the spring rise/split season will increase Mississippi River navigation costs. That is the assertion. Let's look at the facts, again, facts according to studies done by the Army Corps of Engineers—not by that dreaded Fish and Wildlife Service, but by the Army Corps of Engineers.

The facts: If you look at the average annual Mississippi River navigation costs for the Army Corps of Engineers, under the master manual it is about $45.70 million; under the spring rise alternative is it $46.85, which comes out to less than a 1-percent difference. So, again, it is a scare tactic and an inaccurate scare tactic to say that the spring rise/split season is going to increase navigational costs downriver on the Mississippi. It is just not accurate, according to studies done by the Army Corps of Engineers.

I have also heard on the floor this evening that the spring rise/split season will decrease hydropower benefits for the main stem reservoir system. That is the assertion. That is the rhetoric. Let's look at the facts. Let's look at what the Army Corps of Engineers' actual data says. I have it here before me. Under the current master manual, the average annual hydropower benefits total $676 million. Under the spring rise/split season, the average annual hydropower benefits are higher, $683 million; not lower, higher. So the hydropower benefits under the spring rise/split season are actually better, higher than they are under the current master manual.

Another point, you have heard stated many times on the floor tonight this provision has been in the appropriations bill for about 4 years and there has been no objection; the President hasn't objected, so what is the big deal? The difference is in those prior years it was all abstraction. That is, there was no Fish and Wildlife Service biological opinion. We were dealing with thin air, not dealing with something substantive. Now we are. The Fish and Wildlife Service issued their biological opinion. We have something definite. And they concluded the spring rise/split season is necessary.

On that same point, I might say the group that peer-reviewed this proposal—I think there are seven or eight from the Missouri River basin—unanimously concluded this is necessary.

I might tease my good friend from Missouri, saying his colleague at length quoted a Missourian who has had problems with the proposal alternative. I might tease my friend from Missouri, pointing out of the seven scientists on the peer review who unanimously concluded this makes sense, two of them are Missourians, one with the department of conservation and the other with the University of Missouri at Columbia. One says it is a bad idea; two say it is a good idea. I will take the majority vote from the Missourians.

I might also point out that basically we want the Corps of Engineers to follow the law. Under the law, whenever a species is threatened or endangered, the Fish and Wildlife Service consults with the relevant agency—in this case the Army Corps of Engineers. And under the law, the alternative must comply with the Endangered Species Act. It will not have the devastating effect that has been asserted.

I say so not as an assertion but backed up by facts, backed up by the Army Corps of Engineers' own data. Look at the data. The data shows, A, this is not going to cause all the problems that have been asserted and, B, this is probably necessary under the law. Otherwise, it is thrown in the courts, and we all know what happens when something like this is thrown into the judicial system. We will be wrapped up trying to resolve this for years and years.

I strongly urge my colleagues to do what is right. Follow the science, follow the law, and vote to delete section 103 from the appropriations bill.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The distinguished Senator from Missouri is recognized.

Mr. BOND. Mr. President, I yield myself 5 minutes, which I hope ends this debate for this group who is listening in rapt attention. I appreciate the attention of those people who are sitting on the edge of their seats learning more than they ever wanted to know about the Missouri River. It is important to us. It is vitally important to Missouri and other downstream States.

We do disagree with some of the statements that have been made by my colleagues on the other side. We have a disagreement on the interpretation and I think a disagreement on the facts.

The statement has been made that the Fish and Wildlife Service's split season does not have any impact on the river flows in the Mississippi River. That has not happened. The Fish and Wildlife Service proposal, according to the Corps of Engineers' advice to us today, has not happened. That is not accurate.

I believe strongly the spring rise will take water out of upstream reservoirs. They need that water for recreation. I have worked very closely with my friend and colleague from Montana, and others, to do what we can to accommodate legitimate recreation needs. My colleague from Montana was a very valuable ally when we pushed through the middle Missouri River habitat mitigation plan that made changes that we think are improving fish and wildlife habitat along the Missouri. I thank him for that.

When he says the models show there is a statistically insignificant impact downstream, any kind of spring rise in any year which is an exceptional flood year is going to have exceptional and disastrous impacts. Look at it in a low-flow year. It may not make much difference, but if you put that spring surge down the river in a year when we get that unexpected 6-inch, 8-inch, 10-inch, 14-inch rise, we have a devastating flood that not only wipes out property and destroys facilities along the river but puts lives at danger.

The statement was made that fish and game agencies are united behind this plan. They are not. This is one of the big questions that needs to be resolved. Resolution of those questions can and must go on during the coming year. We do not stop all of the agencies from continuing the discussions and debate. Contrary to what has been said on this floor by the proponents of the motion to strike, we only say you cannot implement the spring rise.

This risky scheme needs to be thoroughly worked out, thoroughly debated, before anybody has a thought of putting it into action. That is why we want to have a year with no spring rise implemented as ordered by the diktat of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service in their letter of July 12.

The statement was made that the consensus of the States in the Missouri River Basin Association was in favor of a spring rise. There is a difference between a spring rise in the upper part of the river which is above the dams, above Gavins Point, which makes the difference on what the flows are in Missouri, Kansas, Iowa, and Nebraska.

The Missouri River Basin Association recommends trial fish enhancement flows from Fort Peck Reservoir. The enhanced flows will be coordinated with the unbalancing of the upper basin reservoirs and thus will occur approximately every third year. This is in the upper basin. It does not have any impact directly downstream.

With respect to the lower Missouri River, which is below the last dam—that is, Gavins Point releases—the statement of the Missouri River Basin Association is that it recognizes the controversial nature of adjustment to releases from Gavins Point Dam. MRBA recommends the recovery committee investigate the benefits and adverse impacts of flow adjustment to the existing uses of the river system. They did not, have not, and are not recommending increased flows.

This effort by the Fish and Wildlife Service to impose their views over the views not only of the neighbors of the people downstream who have studied it, the fish and wildlife agencies, this is a risky scheme that provides tremendous potential for a flooding disaster along the Missouri River, and I urge my colleagues tomorrow to oppose the motion to strike.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Montana is recognized.

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, I want to say it has been a good debate. Our views have been aired. I deeply respect that different Senators might have different points of view on this issue. After all, that is why we run for this job. That is why we are here. We all have various points of view. I do not want to be corny, but that is what makes democracy strong—various points of view.

I very much respect and appreciate my good friend from Missouri and others who are arguing to include this provision in the appropriations bill to prevent the spring rise. My basic point is we have different points of view on this. My basic point is let the process work, do not preempt it. There will be plenty of opportunities for comments on the draft opinion and on whatever alternative the Army Corps of Engineers picks. There are lots of different options. Let's not prejudge it by saying it cannot be one as opposed to others. Somebody might come up with a better idea between now and then. My belief is we should let the process work. We can let it work by not adopting this rider to the appropriations bill. We should work through this as it evolves.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

Mr. BOND. Mr. President, I am prepared to yield back time on this side and bring this to a blessed conclusion after stating that I appreciate the chance to discuss this issue with my good friend from Montana and to say we are willing to let the process go forward. Just do not send us a controlled flood next spring. That is all we ask. Let the process work. Do not send the water down.

I now yield back the time on this side.

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, I yield back the remainder of my time and ask that we let the process work.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. All time is yielded back.

MORNING BUSINESS

Mr. BOND. Mr. President, I now ask unanimous consent that the Senate now proceed to a period of morning business, with Senators permitted to speak for up to 10 minutes each.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

AIRPORT SECURITY IMPROVEMENT ACT OF 2000

Mr. MCCAIN. Mr. President, on June 15, 2000, the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation reported S. 2440, the Airport Security Improvement Act of 2000. A report on the bill was filed on August 25, 2000. At that time, the committee was unable to provide a cost estimate for the bill from the Congressional Budget Office. On September 1, 2000, the accompanying letter was received from the Congressional Budget Office, and I now make it available to the Senate. I ask unanimous consent that the letter from CBO be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

U.S. CONGRESS,
CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE,
Washington, DC, September 1, 2000.

Hon. JOHN MCCAIN,
Chairman, Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation, U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: The Congressional Budget Office has prepared the enclosed cost estimate for S. 2440, the Airport Security Improvement Act of 2000.

If you wish further details on this estimate, we will be pleased to provide them. The CBO staff contacts are James O'Keeffe (for federal costs),who can be reached at 226–2860, Victoria Heid Hall (for the state and local impact), who can be reached at 225–3220, and Jean Wooster (for the private-sector impact), who can be reached at 226–2940.

Sincerely,

BARRY B. ANDERSON
(For Dan L. Crippen, Director).

CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE COST ESTIMATE, SEPTEMBER 1, 2000

S. 2440: AIRPORT SECURITY IMPROVEMENT ACT OF 2000, AS REPORTED BY THE SENATE COMMITTEE ON COMMERCE, SCIENCE, AND TRANSPORTATION ON AUGUST 25, 2000

SUMMARY

S. 2440 would require the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) to revise certain airport security policies and procedures. These policies would direct airports and air carriers to implement a number of security measures, including Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) electronic fingerprint checks before filling certain jobs, better training for security screeners, and more random security checks of passengers. S. 2440 also would require the FAA to expand and accelerate the current effort to improve security at air traffic control facilities.

CBO estimates that implementing S. 2440 would cost $155 million over the 2001–2005 period, assuming appropriation of the necessary amounts. That amount represents the difference between estimated spending under FAA's current plan for security improvements and spending for such improvements under the bill. Because S. 2440 would affect direct spending, pay-as-you-go procedures would apply, but CBO estimates the net impact on direct spending would be negligible.

S. 2440 contains an intergovernmental mandate as defined in the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act (UMRA) because it would require airport operators to improve airport security. CBO estimates that the new requirements would impose no significant costs on state, local, or tribal governments, including public airport authorities.

S. 2440 would impose private-sector mandates, as defined in UMRA, on air carriers and security screening companies. CBO expects that total costs of those mandates would not exceed the annual threshold established by UMRA for private-sector mandates ($109 million in 2000, adjusted for inflation).

ESTIMATED COST TO THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT

The estimated budgetary impact of S. 2440 is shown in the following table. The costs of this legislation fall within budget function 400 (transportation).

SPENDING ON SECURITY IMPROVEMENTS TO AIR TRAFFIC CONTROL FACILITIES SUBJECT TO APPROPRIATION

[By fiscal year, in millions of dollars]

	2000	2001	2002	2003	2004	2005
Spending Under Current Plan:
Estimated Authorization Level	12	19	20	23	25	25
Estimated Outlays	6	20	20	22	24	25
Proposed Changes:
Estimated Authorization Level	0	61	70	67	−25	−25
Estimated Outlays	0	46	68	68	−2	−25
Spending Under S. 2440:
Estimated Authorization Level	12	80	90	89	0	0
Estimated Outlays	6	66	88	90	22	0

BASIS OF ESTIMATE

For this estimate, CBO assumes that S. 2440 will be enacted near the beginning of fiscal year 2001 and that the necessary amounts will be appropriated for each fiscal year. Estimated outlays are based on historical spending patterns.

S. 2440 would require the FAA to expand and accelerate its current plans to improve security at air traffic control facilities. Based on information from the FAA, implementing this provision of the bill would cost about $155 million over the 2001–2005 period. This amount includes a spending increase of $182 million during the 2001–2003 period and a $27 million reduction in spending over the following two years, relative to current plans for security improvements.

Implementing S. 2440 would require airports and air carriers to increase the number of fingerprint checks on employees and potential hires that are conducted by the FBI with assistance from the Office of Personnel Management. Both of these agencies would receive payments from airport operators and air carriers (or their contractors), which would be recorded as offsetting receipts (a credit against direct spending). These payments could then be spent without further appropriation action to conduct fingerprint checks on employees. Since the additional direct spending and offsetting receipts would be approximately equal, we estimate that the net impact on direct spending of this provision would be negligible.

PAY-AS-YOU-GO CONSIDERATIONS

the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act sets up pay-as-you-go procedures for legislation affecting direct spending or receipts. implementing S. 2440 would affect direct spending, but CBO estimates that any such effects would be negligible.

ESTIAMTED IMPACT ON STATE, LOCAL, AND TRIBAL GOVERNMENTS

S. 2440 contains an intergovernmental mandate as defined in UMRA because it would require airport owners and operators to improve airport security. Based on information from the Airports Council International and the Air Transport Association, CBO estimates that the new requirements would impose no significant costs on state, local, or tribal governments, including airport authorities, because under existing contracts and agreements any additional costs would be borne by air carriers and other airport tenants.

ESTIMATED IMPACT ON THE PRIVATE SECTOR

S. 2440 would impose private-sector mandates, as defined by UMRA, on air carriers and security screening companies. Based on information from the FAA and industry representatives, CBO estimates that the costs of those mandates would not exceed the annual threshold established by UMRA for private-sector mandates ($109 million in 2000, adjusted for inflation).

First, the bill would mandate new hiring procedures and training standards for airport security workers. Section 2 would require air carriers to conduct an FBI electronic fingerprint check on all applicants for certain positions related to airport security positions with unescorted access to sensitive areas, positions with responsibility for screening passengers or property (screeners), and screener supervisor positions. Because the FBI electronic fingerprint checks would make the current price of employment investigations and subsequent audits of those investigations unnecessary, enacting this section could result in savings for air carriers. Section 3 would require additional hours of training for security screeners. In addition, the bill would require that computer training facilities be located near certain airports.

Second, the bill would accelerate the effective date of two sets of requirements that the FAA plans to implement in the next year. Section 3 would accelerate the FAA's current proposed rule on the Certification of Screening Companies. The rule is intended to improve aviation security by requiring companies and air carriers that provide security screening to be certified by the FAA. Section 4 would also accelerate a number of requirements on air carriers to improve security at access control points at airports. Most significantly, the section would require air carriers to develop and implement programs that foster and reward compliance with access control requirements. Because S. 2440 would accelerate implementation of those new mandates, air carriers and security screening companies would incur some compliance costs months earlier compared to current law.

Third, Section 6 would require the FAA to gradually increase the random selection factor in the Computer-Assisted Passenger Prescreening System (CAPPS) at airports where bulk explosive detection equipment is used. The selection factor controls the number of passengers randomly selected to have their baggage undergo enhanced security checks. If bulk explosive detection equipment is available, it is used for this enhanced security check. If it is not available, the passenger's baggage is placed on the airplane only after the air carrier has confirmed that the passenger is on board.

Because only about 5 percent of airports use the bulk explosive detection equipment, enacting Section 6 would, in theory, increase the number of bags that would be checked with the bulk explosive detection equipment in only a few airports. According to the FAA and industry representatives, however, a limitation in CAPPS would not allow an increase in the random factor in a subset of selected airports. All airports would be subject to the increased random factor. Thus, to comply with the mandate air carriers would have to either (1) reprogram their computer systems to selectively increase the random selection factor in airports that use bulk explosive detection equipment or (2) increase the number of bags undergoing enhanced security checks based on the factor whether or not an airport uses such equipment. In either case, air carriers would incur the incremental cost of checking the additional bags at airports that use bulk explosive detection equipment.

VICTIMS OF GUN VIOLENCE

Mr. REID. Mr. President, it has been more than a year since the Columbine tragedy, but still this Republican Congress refuses to act on sensible gun legislation.

Since Columbine, thousands of Americans have been killed by gunfire. Until we act, Democrats in the Senate will read the names of some of those who have lost their lives to gun violence in the past year, and we will continue to do so every day that the Senate is in session.

In the name of those who died, we will continue this fight. Following are the names of some of the people who were killed by gunfire one year ago today. September 6, 1999: Andres Aguliar, 33, Houston, TX; Sharon Barraso, 20, Philadelphia, PA; Tony Butler, 18, Philadelphia, PA; Edwin Cordova, 23, Houston, TX; Tijuan Dickey, 19, Baltimore, MD; Ellis Hair, 21, Chicago, IL; Anthony Jones, 32, Detroit, MI; Louis Merril, 17, Chicago, IL; Oscar Murray, 24, Detroit, MI; Isaac Noyola, 21, Houston, TX: Kevin Parker, 23, St. Louis, MO; Michael Sanchez, 28, Philadelphia, PA: Gregory Scott, 30, Houston, TX; Vincent Casey Stanley, 36, Memphis, TN; Cheryl Thornton, 20, New Orleans, LA; Unidentified Male, 58, Norfolk, VA; and Unidentified Male, 25, Norfolk, VA.

One of the gun violence victims I mentioned 23-year-old Edwin Cordova of Houston, was on his way home from a trip to Galveston with a group of friends. After passing a truck that had been attempting to block their way, one of the truck's passengers fired gunshots through the rear window of the vehicle. Cordova, who was riding in the front passenger's seat, died at the hospital of a gunshot wound to the neck.

We cannot sit back and allow such senseless gun violence to continue. The deaths of these people are a reminder to all of us that we need to enact sensible gun legislation now.

A STRONG MEDICARE FOR OUR SENIORS' FUTURE

Mr. ABRAHAM. Mr. President, Medicare, that's what seniors and health care providers in Michigan talked about with me over the August recess—Medicare. Whether it was prescription drug coverage for Medicare beneficiaries, Medicare reimbursement restoration so that health care providers can continue to provide quality health care for beneficiaries, or reining in the excesses in this Administration's crusade to ferret out Medicare fraud and abuse, even where it does not exist, I have heard the message of my constituents, and that is that Medicare needs to be modernized, reformed, and refocused on providing the best health care possible for seniors and the disabled.

Nowhere has the national debate on Medicare focused more clearly than on prescription drug costs. The increased reliance on prescription drugs in health care treatments in recent years means seniors are paying a much higher portion of their income on drugs. As new drugs come on the market that allow doctors to treat illnesses without surgery, or even allow them to treat illnesses for the first time, the result is that health care has shifted from inpatient hospital services for surgical treatment to outpatient care that utilizes more, better, and more specific drugs. The result is that while per unit costs of drugs are expected to increase by an average of 3.2 percent over the next five years, overall drug expenditures are expected to rise by almost 14.5 percent per year as the number of prescriptions per senior shoots up by more than 20 percent.

But Medicare, developed in the late 1960's, and little changed since then, is still geared primarily towards the antiquated focus on intensive, inpatient care, and continues to miss the fundamental shift towards modern care techniques, including prescription drugs. Comprehensive Medicare reform, such as that outlined in the recommendations of the Bipartisan National Commission on the Future of Medicare that embodies choice, competition, and modernization, would allow Medicare to continue its guarantee of health coverage, while providing the type of health coverage that a modern senior needs. Unfortunately, apparently due to the election cycle games of this Administration, the necessary super-majority could not be mustered to report these proposals to Congress. So, America's seniors continue to be denied without a modern Medicare system, including prescription drug coverage.

But these political realities do not lessen the immediacy of the problem, nor the need for this Congress to move now on providing a prescription drug benefit. I believe we must move on passing a prescription drug coverage plan for Medicare seniors, and pass it now. I hear the cry of my colleagues who say this will take the wind out of the sails for needed overall Medicare reform, but that assumes comprehensive reform is possible during this session of Congress. Given the politically charged nature of this election, and the fact that our colleagues on the other side of the aisle seem to find new excuses every week for why they can't vote for even the most non-controversial of the appropriations bills, I doubt that will happen. In the short term, Medicare will remain solvent and will be able to provide adequate medical care for seniors. However, Michigan seniors need prescription drug coverage as soon as possible, and I intend to see that happen.

Twice this summer, once on my own, and once with a bipartisan group of 12 other Senators, I have called upon the Senate Leadership to bring to the Senate floor a meaningful prescription drug plan that will not only cover these increasingly expensive drugs, but also ensure that such a plan does not impose additional costs on our seniors, additional costs that would wipe out any savings the coverage would provide. It makes little sense to me to establish a prescription drug plan that pays for 50 percent, or even 100 percent, of a senior's drug expenses, which average about $550 per year, but then saddle them with $600 in new premiums, and have them end up with greater out-of-pocket expenses than if they never had the coverage in the first place. That's not what I hear Michigan seniors say they want in a prescription drug plan. No, what I hear them say is that they want a prescription drug plan that will actually reduce their out-of-pocket expenses, allow them the most freedom and choice in determining their own coverage, and protect them from unexpectedly high drug expenses, expenses that can make their daily choice one between food and drugs.

That's why I am so excited about the prescription drug plan on which I have been working with Senators HAGEL and MCCAIN as well as the other cosponsors, the Medicare Rx Drug Discount and Security Act of 2000, S. 2836. Of all the plans we have seen presented before this and the other Chamber, I believe this bill most directly addresses the major issues of prescription drug coverage. First, unlike any other bill currently before Congress, it provides broad and deep discounts for prescription drugs, on average 30–39 percent discounts, through multiple, competing drug discount buying plans. Much has been made over the last few years about the relative price difference American seniors pay for their prescription drugs as compared to those paid by their Canadian counterparts, where prices are fixed by the Government. But those comparisons are of the retail price. When the prices paid by Canadian seniors are compared to the prices paid by American seniors that are in group buying plans, the American senior pays less.

And these plans are not uncommon. In fact, 71 percent of all prescription drugs paid for by third parties have been administered by these group buying plans, such as with the Michigan National Guard's drug insurance coverage plan. Furthermore, many group buying plans are offered outside of insurance programs, such as those innovative programs being offered by Macomb and Wayne Counties in Michigan, where price savings of as much as 70 percent on drugs are obtained. But as I've pointed out before, Medicare beneficiaries can't take advantage of these savings because the Medicare system still employs the antiquated priorities and structures of the days in which it was born.

For the average American senior with drug expenses of about $670 per year, in 2002, our plan would provide an immediate savings of $235 per year. And, depending upon the drugs they have prescribed, savings could be as high as 70–85 percent for the more common drugs where usage is higher and competing brands more plentiful. Furthermore, there would be even greater market pressure for lower prices under our plan because multiple, competing drug discount plans would be available from which seniors could choose. If the particular drugs a senior uses were cheaper under another plan, that senior could shift over to that plan, and enjoy those better discounts. By allowing the market to drive down prices we can provide robust market price discounts that no other plan before Congress can beat, and which are substantially better than those offered under almost every Democrat plan which I've seen. In fact, because almost every plan that has been offered by Democrats in both the Senate and the House allows for only a single entity to control the price discounting for Medicare seniors, there will be little competitive pressure to pass along savings to Senior consumers, and little incentive to even try to get prices down. The Congressional Budget Office recognized this during their analysis of the President's prescription drug proposal, and determined that drug discounts would only average 12.5 percent, or about a third of those that would be seen under the Hagel-Abraham plan.

But reducing the price of drugs is only half of the prescription drug equation. The other half is ensuring that Medicare provides the needed protections for Seniors against expensive drug treatments that may force them to decide between putting bread on the table or taking a life-saving drug. And the Hagel-Abraham bill does just that with the best catastrophic drug coverage of any bill before Congress. By tiering the coverage to income, we assure all seniors they will not be financially devastated by drug expenses for some of the new treatments that can approach $500 per month.

Here is how the prescription drug costs caps break down under the Hagel-Abraham plan. Seniors earning less than 200 percent of poverty, $16,700 for a single and $22,500 for a couple, would pay no more than $1,200 annually. All drug expenses after that would be covered by the Federal Government. For those seniors that earn more than that, but below 400 percent of poverty, $33,400 for singles and $45,000 for couples, costs would be limited to $2,500 annually. And Seniors above 400 percent of the poverty level, up to $100,000 for singles and $200,000 for couples, would pay no more than $5,000 annually. Although some of my colleagues may believe that prescription drug insurance should be available to all Medicare beneficiaries, and that the government should subsidize the insurance of even the wealthiest Americans, I don't think it makes sense to subsidize the drug expenditures for those single seniors making more than $100,000, and those couples making more than $200,000, especially considering they have much easier access to private insurance coverage.

What makes this proposal particularly attractive, in my opinion, is that it does not require seniors to pay hundreds of dollars in new Medicare premiums, premiums that could be greater than their actual drug expenses. In fact, the Congressional Budget Office has determined that when the President's prescription drug proposal is fully implemented, seniors will have to pay more almost $600 per year in new Medicare premiums, on top of the $88 per month they will have to pay for their existing Part B Medicare coverage. I can't see how that can be a good deal for America's seniors. CBO also recently scored the drug proposal offered by Senator ROBB as an amendment to the Senate's Labor-HHS Appropriations Bill. That proposal would, according to CBO, increase Medicare's financing gap between revenues and outlays by 25 percent, while imposing new premiums of $80 per month, or $960 per year! Forcing America's seniors to pay almost $1,000 per year, just to have the privilege of participating in this big-government drug program, is wrong, flat-out wrong. And it will most likely wipe out any savings they would gain from the coverage in the first place. I believe by the time these plans were fully implemented, Michigan seniors would be wishing for the ''good ol' days'' where the government wasn't providing them such ''great'' coverage that forced them to spend more than they did before.

I am not merely railing against these plans because they represent a big-government view of legislating. No, it's that I am deeply concerned with the record of the Health Care Financing Administration and its existing prescription drug programs. The fact of the matter is that HCFA's centralized, top-down, bureaucratic method of providing it's current inpatient drug benefit has led to drug rationing, cutbacks in coverage, and price fixing. Just recently this Administration announced that it intends to cut back coverage of cancer-fighting drugs administered in doctors' offices and set the price for those drugs by Executive fiat, even while it says that it's proposed additional drug coverage will not result in these same things. There is no escaping the fact that when the government controls all aspects of prescription drug insurance the quality of care and access are placed in jeopardy. It has been happening in Canada and we cannot allow that to happen to whatever new prescription drug coverage we provide.

But we are taking action to stop the Administration's attempts to cut back cancer drug coverage for sick seniors. I am cosponsoring with Senator ASHCROFT the Cancer Care Preservation Act, which will guarantee that HCFA cannot implement any reductions in Medicare reimbursements for outpatient cancer treatment unless those changes are developed in conjunction with the Medicare Payment Advisory Commission and representatives of the cancer care community, provides for appropriate payment rates for outpatient cancer therapy services, and is specifically authorized by an act of Congress. Furthermore, I am sending a letter to the President of the United States today, calling upon him to rescind HCFA's plan until such time as such changes can be fully examined by the cancer care community and Congress. To think that the Medicare system could stop covering the most effective cancer treatments simply by it's own edict should be a clear warning to all of my colleagues on the dangers in having a single agency control the access to our senior's prescription drugs.

And that leads me to the second problem I've been hearing about in Michigan the issue of how HCFA and this Administration manage Medicare, especially with regard to reimbursement rates. When I first came to the Senate, Medicare was going broke quickly, and was bound for bankruptcy by 2001. The Balanced Budget Act of 1997 implemented necessary changes to contain the growth in Medicare spending to extend the system's solvency until 2015, giving us time to implement necessary structural and market-based reforms in Medicare, reforms that can make the program viable for generations to come. But those modest reductions in the rate of growth for Medicare have become full-blown cuts in the face of this Administration's refusal to spend the money Congress has authorized them to spend.

In fact, this Administration has short-changed Medicare by $37 billion in the last two years. The Congressional Budget Office's July 2000 Budget Projection update indicates that Medicare spending this year will be $14 billion below what Congress budgeted, following last year's spending by the Administration of only $209 billion for Medicare versus the $232 billion Congress provided. The fact of the matter, is that most reimbursement rates are set by the Administration and HCFA, and this Administration has repeatedly refused to spend the money on Medicare that Congress has given them. In fact, while the original Balanced Budget Act of 1997 was expected to reduce Medicare growth by $103 billion between 1998 and 2002, this Administration's relentless ratcheting down of reimbursements over and above that authorized by Congress has pushed those cuts to almost $250 billion. And between 2001 and 2005, the cuts are expected to be even more dramatic, climbing from $163 billion to $457 billion, 280 percent greater than Congress originally intended.

The consequences for Michigan's health care industry are devastating. According to the March 2000 Michigan Health and Hospital Association report, ''The Declining State of Michigan Hospitals'' HCFA's implementation of BBA 97 has cost Michigan hospitals an average of $8.5 million each. As a result, 68 percent of the hospitals have been forced to eliminate at least one service, ranging from urgent care and rural health clinics, to rehabilitation and pain management centers, to screening and preventative health services. Forty-five percent of all the hospitals have eliminated at least two of the services, and more than half of those who haven't yet eliminated services yet are considering it for 2000. Previous reports have put the statewide total lost hospital revenue at $2.5 billion, or just over $13.5 million per hospital.

But hospitals are not the only health care provider hit by the effects of BBA 97 and the voracious appetite of HCFA bureaucrats. Home Heath Care agencies have been particularly hard hit by HCFA policies seemingly intent on driving them all out of business. Home health care spending was expected to grow by $2 billion even after BBA 97 cost containment measures, but have dropped by $9 billion, a 54 percent drop in just two years. In fact, the number of home health care claims have dropped by 50 percent in just two years, and the average payment per patient lowered by 38.5 percent, far lower than originally projected with BBA 97. CBO stated this unexpected drop in reimbursements as the primary reason that total Medicare spending dropped last year. Over the four years covered by BBA 97, CBO now expects home health care spending to be reduced by $69 billion, over four times the original $16 billion that they originally estimated. Like hospitals, home health care has been decimated. Over 2,500 home health agencies have closed or stopped serving Medicare patients. Moreover, HCFA estimates that nearly 900,000 fewer home health patients received services in 1999 than in 1997.

Finally, I think we need to look at the effects of this Administration's policies on reimbursements to skilled nursing facilities. Under BBA 97, the rate of growth for skilled nursing facility reimbursements was to be slowed by $19.8 billion between 1998 and 2004. However, since that original projection, reimbursements are now expected to fall by an additional $15.8 billion. This even takes into account the $2 billion in reimbursement restorations provided by the Balanced Budget Refinement Act of 1999. For Michigan, the numbers are equally disconcerting.

Michigan has lost $643 million in nursing facility reimbursements, over and above those projected with BBA 97, over 75 percent more than originally projected. Is it any wonder then, that 25 percent of all skilled nursing facilities serving Medicare patients are operating in bankruptcy and that why the number one problem for hospital discharge coordinators is that they can't find nursing facilities for their patients needing them?

We have provided some important reimbursement relief in the Balanced Budget Refinement Act of 1999. But it was only a first step and by no means a complete response to the Administration's policies. While Medicare reimbursements over the next five years are projected to be cut by $295 billion more than originally projected, BBRA 99 only restored about $16 billion of that, or less than 5 percent of the additional cuts. Containing the growth of Medicare was necessary to ensure Medicare did not go bankrupt, but this continuous, unsustainable ratcheting down of reimbursements is simply wrong, and we must reverse it now. That is why this body must bring to the floor real, substantive, Medicare reimbursement restoration legislation. And we must do it very soon. We cannot wait until next Congress, or even until next month. We must do it now. Ensuring Medicare's fiscal solvency on the backs of Medicare providers is not only wrong, but counterproductive, and will ultimately lead to the insolvency of Medicare's health care guarantees as we know it.

I have been working very hard to provide specific reimbursement relief for Michigan's health care providers. First, Senator HUTCHISON of Texas and I have been fighting for two years now to improve the inpatient reimbursements for hospitals. Our American Hospital Preservation Acts of 1999 and 2000 would do just that. This year's version will restore the entirety of the Market Basket Indicator inflation adjustment for inpatient hospital reimbursement rates, returning over $6.9 billion to hospitals over the next five years, and $13.5 billion over the next 10. That will in turn mean more than $536 million in increased reimbursements for Michigan hospitals over the next ten years, or more than $3.4 million per hospital.

Likewise, I have joined 53 of my colleagues in cosponsoring S. 2365, the Home Health Payment Fairness Act to eliminate the automatic 15 percent reduction to home health payments currently scheduled to go into effect on October 1, 2001. The home health care industry cannot survive with the current reimbursement reductions, let alone another 15 percent across-the-board cut. Finally, I am working closely with a number of my colleagues to craft a bill that will provide for adequate nursing home reimbursements through a refinement of the inflation adjustment factors. We believe appropriate legislation will be available this week or next, and if any of my colleagues are interested in joining this effort, I encourage them to contact me immediately.

The third concern I hear from Michiganians about Medicare, is that even with the steps we have taken to improve its financial standing and the quality of care, it is still headed towards bankruptcy in the very near future. Seniors in Michigan are scared, scared that they will lose their Medicare benefits because we cannot modernize Medicare so that it will stay solvent for generations to come. But it looks like things are getting better with Medicare and that at least in the short term, we have the fiscal breathing room to make the necessary changes to avoid a train wreck down the way.

This summer the Board of Trustees of the Federal Hospital Insurance Trust Fund issued a correction to their 2000 Annual Report. In it, the Trustees reported that the financial projections were more favorable than those made in 1999, that the Trust Fund income exceeded expenditures for the second year in a row, and that the Fund now met the Trustees' test of short-range financial adequacy. In fact, income is now projected to continue to exceed expenditures for the next 17 years, a substantial increase over previous estimates.

Now 2017 is still too soon for us to rest in our efforts to ensure the permanent solvency of Medicare through market-based modernization and reform, as well as provide seniors' access to the full spectrum of health care options. First, we need to shift Medicare from a centrally-controlled government system to a market-based system, one that maximizes choice and can best respond to changing medical care needs, such as recommended by the National Bipartisan Commission on the Future of Medicare.

Second, to ensure that we don't raid the Medicare Trust Funds to pay for non-Medicare spending, as repeatedly proposed by this Administration, we need to wall off the Medicare Trust Fund surpluses so that they can only be used for Medicare. I have been proud to vote for a Medicare lockbox proposal. But recent analysis by conservative groups such as the Heritage Foundation, and liberal groups such as the Center on Budget and Policy Priorities have raised serious questions about the efficacy of each of these proposals, and so I will be working with my colleagues on both sides of the aisle, especially my fellow Budget Committee Members, to draft a Medicare lockbox that not only protects the Medicare surpluses, but also enhances our ability to provide for the long-term solvency of the system. Even after providing for a new prescription drug benefit, and after providing for healthier reimbursements for health care providers, we will still have about $110 billion in Medicare surpluses available to fund this reform. Given that the Bipartisan Medicare Commission's reform proposal would actually end up costing less than the current Medicare system through competition and choice, I believe this is more than adequate to fix our problems with Medicare. Regardless, the Medicare lockbox will ensure those surpluses are still there when the need comes for any funds to finance reform.

Third, I believe we need to allow Americans to prepare for their retirement health care needs outside of Medicare through Medical Savings Accounts, or MSAs, long-term care insurance, and existing health care benefit flexibility. Today's able-bodied workers will be tomorrow's seniors, and to the extent that we can set in motion now provisions that will allow them more choices, more options, and more access to quality health care, the healthier our entire retirement health care system will be, including Medicare. As we all know, MSAs are a market-based alternative for quality health care. They offer maximum flexibility for the self-employed, employees, and employers while reducing the out-of-pocket cost of insurance. MSAs are an alternative health insurance plan with real cost-control benefits for the millions of Americans who have been forced into managed care and feel they have lost control of their health care decisions. By establishing these MSAs now, tomorrow's seniors will have sizable balances available in their retirement years to supplement whatever coverage is available under Medicare. To that end, I believe we should make MSAs permanent and affordable by removing eligibility restrictions, including allowing Federal employees to have MSAs, lowering the minimum deductible, permitting both employer and employee MSA contributions, and allowing MSAs in cafeteria plans. Furthermore, I believe we should also waive the 15 percent penalty tax on non-medical distributions if the remaining balance at least equals the plan deductible.

As for long-term care insurance, I support legislation phasing-in 100 percent deductibility of long-term care insurance premiums, when they are not substantially subsidized by an employer. Under my plan, individuals age 60 and older would not be subject to such a phase-in period, and would qualify for 100 percent deductibility immediately. I believe we should also allow long-term care insurance to be offered as a cafeteria plan benefit. By providing for more accessible long-term care options, retirees can build insurance against the catastrophic expenses of long-term home and nursing facility care that is becoming increasingly difficult to obtain under Medicare.

Finally, we should allow for greater health insurance plan flexibility, especially with regards to the multipurpose Flexible Spending Accounts. Flexible Spending Accounts and cafeteria plans have become a popular means of providing health benefits to employees, but under current law, unused benefits are forfeited. This ''use it or lose it'' rule has limited the appeal of these plans as well as forfeiting substantial amounts of money that could be available for retirement health care needs. I support legislation which will allow transferring up to $500 in unused Flexible Spending Account balances from one year to the next, or to roll-over that amount into an IRA, 401(k) retirement plan, or a Medical Savings Account.

All of these proposals will help retirees better plan for and provide for their health care needs. But regardless of these supplemental programs, Medicare will still be at the base of any retirees health care program. That's why it's even more heartening to see in the corrected Medicare Trustees' report that some of the more drastic measures we once thought would be required are no longer necessary to keep Medicare sound. For example, in 1997, when Medicare was on the verge of bankruptcy by 2001, many of us, on a bipartisan basis, voted in favor of a limited move to raise the retirement age for Medicare eligibility from 65 to 67 years of age starting in 2003 and phased-in over the following twenty-four years. We did that on a near emergency basis, because the Medicare system was threatened. But I noted at the time, if the situation improved, such a change would not be necessary. In my opinion, that is now the case, and that kind of approach no longer needs to be considered in light of the improved financial condition of Medicare and the emergence of significant Medicare trust fund surpluses.

In fact, at the time I cast my vote on this question, I entered into the RECORD on July 14, 1997, a number of prerequisites which I indicated would have to be met in order for me to support the actual implementation of the proposal. In that none of these prerequisites—the development of a viable system for low- and middle-income seniors to obtain and maintain affordable health care until eligible for Medicare, as well as concurrence by the National Bipartisan Medicare Commission on the Future of Medicare on raising the eligibility age—have been addressed in the two to three year time-frame that I set forth in my statement, I have withdrawn my support for raising the eligibility age. I no longer believe this change is necessary in light of the improved financial status of Medicare, or prudent in light of the failure of its sponsors to adequately address the concerns I raised.

Finally, the fourth Medicare issue on which I have been inundated with complaints is how hard it is to navigate the regulatory complexity of the Medicare system. I have heard from doctors and hospital administrators, home health care agencies and skilled nursing facilities, about how even a simple mistake, or even a difference of opinion, can embroil them in legal controversies that take years to resolve, and many times more in legal bills than the amount of the originally contested bill. HCFA has now produced over 111,000 pages of Medicare regulations, three times the size of the incredibly complex Internal Revenue Code. These regulations make it nearly impossible to operate efficiently, and make simple administrative errors appear to be criminal fraud. In fact, on August 10th, 1998, Dr. Robert Walker, president emeritus of the Mayo Foundation, told the National Bipartisan Commission on the Future of Medicare, ''The public has been led to believe that the, Medicare, program is riddled with fraud, when in reality, complexity is the root of the problem. This has contributed to the continuing erosion in public confidence in our health care system. We must all have zero tolerance for real fraud, but differences in interpretation and honest mistakes are not fraud.''

Recently, the Association of American Physicians and Surgeons conducted a survey of its members as to the impact of HCFA regulations on their ability to treat patients. They found that it costs on average 27 percent more to process a Medicare claim as it does a private health insurer claim, and that doctors and their staffs spend more than a fifth of their time on Medicare compliance issues. Furthermore, more than half of all doctors say they will retire from active patient care at a younger age because of ''increased hassles with Medicare.'' This is bad news for Medicare seniors, as further pointed out by the survey. Almost a quarter of all doctors are no longer accepting new Medicare patients, and of those that do, 34 percent are restricting services to those patients, such as difficult surgical procedures or comprehensive medical work-ups. Last, these are not changes simply to stop previously fraudulent activity. Thirty-eight percent of all doctors surveyed stated they submitted Medicare claims that they knew were for less than for which they were entitled, or ''downcoding'' in the Medicare regulatory parlance, but did not want to subject themselves to the potential of erroneous HCFA reviews and claim denials. Similar ''downcoding'' results have been found with hospitals who deny patients the most appropriate regimen of care in complex cases because they do not believe they will be fully reimbursed by Medicare if they submit such a complex care claim.

That is why on July 27, I introduced S. 2999, the Health Care Providers Bill of Rights, a bill aimed at addressing the numerous regulatory and law enforcement abuses in the Medicare system that have brought to my attention by Michigan health care providers. This bill addresses many of the specific regulatory ''hassles'' experienced by doctors and providers everyday as they try to provide the best possible care for our Seniors.

The bill is divided into six titles: Title I—Reform of HCFA Regulatory Process; Title II—Reform of Appeals Process; Title III—Reform of Overpayment Procedure; Title IV—Reform of Voluntary Disclosure Procedure; Title V—Criminal Law Enforcement Reforms; and Title VI—Provider Compliance Education.

Provisions that should be of particular interest to my colleagues are those that rescind HCFA's ability to withhold future reimbursements in order to offset alleged prior underpayments, a strict 180 day time line for completion of the Medicare administrative appeals cases, placing program participation terminations and suspensions in abeyance while appeals are pending, prohibiting the use of sample audit results to reduce future reimbursement rates, stopping overpayment collections while appeals are pending, and establishing voluntary disclosure procedures that also bring the Department of Justice and U.S. Attorneys into the process, as well as providing safe harbor from prosecution for those that enter into and abide by the voluntary disclosure requirements.

Some further provisions that were specifically recommended by providers include requiring HCFA, fiscal intermediaries, and carriers to all spend a portion of their Medicare funds on provider education, requiring them to provide legally binding advisory opinions on Medicare coverage, billing, documentation, coding, and cost reporting requirements, as well as extending the current anti-kickback, civil monetary penalty, and physician self-referral advisory opinion requirements that are set to expire August 21st of this year.

A number of organizations have expressed their strong support for this legislation, including the Michigan Health & Hospital Association, the Federation of American Hospitals, the National Association for Home Care, the American Federation of Home Care Providers, the Healthcare Leadership Council, and the American Health Care Association. I ask unanimous consent these letters of support be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the letters were ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

MICHIGAN HEALTH &
HOSPITAL ASSOCIATION,
Lansing, MI, August 9, 2000.

Hon. SPENCER ABRAHAM,
U.S. Senate, Dirksen Senate Building, Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR ABRAHAM: The Michigan Health and Hospital Association (MHA) appreciates the opportunity to comment on the Health Care Provider Bill of Rights and Access Assurance Act. The legislation includes many provisions aimed at ensuring that health care providers are treated in a fair, equitable and civil manner.

Michigan's hospitals and health systems must contend with an array of complex Medicare laws and regulations. Too often, Medicare billing errors, due to confusing and conflicting regulations and instructions, are presumed to be purposeful and intentional acts. Title I of the bill positively addresses this regulatory maze, mandating that the Health Care Financing Administration follow clear and specific procedures when issuing regulations.

Another provision that will be particularly beneficial is the inclusion of criminal law enforcement reform. Establishing specific search warrant rules as well as revising current law enforcement powers of the Health and Human Services Office of Inspector General will greatly assist in minimizing any disruption of patient care or threats to the confidentiality of patient records.

We commend you for addressing these areas of concern. The MHA also would like to express its gratitude for your leadership on hospital issues as we work to maintain the highest quality of care for Medicare beneficiaries.

Sincerely,

BRIAN PETERS,
Vice President, Advocacy.

FEDERATION OF AMERICAN HOSPITALS,
Washington, DC, July 27, 2000.

Hon. SPENCER ABRAHAM,
Dirksen Senate Office Building, Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR ABRAHAM: The Federation of American Hospitals commends you for your work to clarify and improve the regulatory burdens and administration of the Medicare program. The regulatory burden health care providers face is massive, growing every day, and diverts us from our primary mission of delivering high quality health care to the patients in our communities. Hospitals and other health care providers take their responsibility to comply with Medicare laws and regulations very seriously and have devoted significant amounts of energy and resources to these obligations. While HHS has been diligent in its efforts to implement an unprecedented number of regulatory changes in the program, more work is needed to address problem areas in the current administration of the Medicare Program and to develop a more active partnership with health care providers to promote the integrity of the Program.

The ''Health Care Provider Bill of Rights and Access Assurance Act'' proposes some important changes to the status quo to address some key problem areas. One of the most important checks and balances on the validity of the regulations HCFA promulgates is the ability of health care providers to challenge those regulations in a court of law when they believe that the regulations are excessive, unconstitutional, beyond the scope of statutory authority or have been promulgated in violation of the Administrative Procedures Act. This legislation solidifies timely judicial review of these challenges. Another important provision in the legislation promotes greater health care provider participation in program integrity efforts by improving the voluntary disclosure and overpayment repayment processes.

The bill also contributes to health care provider education and compliance efforts by providing for the reauthorization of the existing advisory opinion provisions subject to expire in August and setting some new advisory opinion requirements. The existing advisory opinion statutes provide guidance on the application of the antikickback and physician self-referral laws. The bill also adds a new requirement that HCFA, acting through its contractors, provide written answers to health care providers on nuts and bolts billing, coding and cost report questions. In a program this complex, errors are likely and providers need greater assistance to navigate the myriad of law, regulation and policy. Hospitals want to be active partners in the effort to promote program integrity and hope to work closely with HCFA and its program integrity partners on education and prevention efforts.

We appreciate your interest in these matters and look forward to working with you on this important legislation.

Sincerely,

THOMAS A. SCULLY,
President and CEO.

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION FOR HOME CARE,
Washington, DC, July 27, 2000.

Hon. SPENCER ABRAHAM,
U.S. Senate, Dirksen Senate Office Building, Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR ABRAHAM: On behalf of the National Association for Home Care (NAHC), the nation's largest organization representing home care providers and the patients they serve, I want to extend my sincerest appreciation and support for your legislation, ''The Health Care Provider Bill of Rights and Access Assurance Act.'' This legislation to reform the regulatory processes used by the Health Care Financing Administration (HCFA) to administer the Medicare program is greatly needed.

Home health agencies are currently instituting an overwhelming number of administrative changes. Many of these changes are costly and significantly increase the workloads of already strained agency staffs, affecting the ability of agencies to retain staff and continue to provide high-quality, appropriate care. HCFA frequently ignores public notice and comment requirements in implementing programmatic changes, and often underestimates or downplays the impact of new requirements on struggling agencies. As a result, providers are subject to onerous and burdensome requirements without an opportunity for input, and are given insufficient time to make operational changes in order to comply with regulations.

This legislation would ensure public input in HCFA's regulatory process and prevent arbitrary actions and erroneous decisions by HCFA from having a devastating impact on home care providers and their patients before corrective action is taken. Too often today home care agencies are bankrupted and their patients lose care before faulty policies are corrected. This bill would provide an opportunity to correct errors before irreparable harm is done. It would also prevent sanctions for conduct which providers did not know was against the rules. Providers have every intention of following the rules, but they must have advance notice of what the rules are.

The Medicare home health benefit is at great risk due to severe financial reductions and onerous and unnecessary administrative burdens. Direct intervention by the Congress is necessary to ensure the integrity and future of this important and popular benefit. We deeply appreciate your concern for home health patients and those who care for them. Enactment of the provisions in this bill would make a major contribution to expanding access to home health care and strengthening the home care infrastructure. Our hats are off to you for this groundbreaking legislation.

With best regards,

Sincerely,

VAL HALAMANDARIS,
President.

HEALTHCARE LEADERSHIP COUNCIL,
Washington, DC, July 26, 2000.

Hon. SPENCER ABRAHAM,
U.S. Senate, Dirksen Senate Office Building, Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR ABRAHAM: On behalf of the Healthcare Leadership Council (HLC), I would like to express our deep appreciation for your proposal to help health care providers comply with Medicare's increasingly burdensome regulatory maze.

The HLC is a chief executive coalition of over 50 of the largest health care organizations in the country, including hospital systems, insurers, pharmaceutical companies, and medical device companies. The HLC has zero tolerance for true fraud and abuse. True fraud and abuse in our health care system undermines quality, threatens patients' trust and should not be tolerated.

However, the public's confidence in the nation's health care system has been eroded by headlines of health care fraud investigations that are most often not the result of true, intentional fraud—but rather errors or misunderstandings due to countless, complex regulations. We believe strongly that Medicare's complexity actually undermines compliance and, ultimately, the quality of patient care.

The Provider Bill of Rights and Access Assurance Act contains several provisions that will improve communication and relations among Medicare's providers, regulators, and enforcers. Provisions that we particularly support are those that would expand providers' appeals rights, coordinate voluntary disclosure procedures among enforcement agencies, and educate providers regarding the application of certain regulations through advisory opinions and other means.

The Healthcare Leadership Council commends you for your leadership on this very important issue and we stand ready to help you further refine this legislation so that it will serve to greatly improve the Medicare program for providers and patients alike.

Sincerely,

MARY R. GREALY,
President.

AMERICAN FEDERATION OF HOMECARE PROVIDERS, INC.,
Silver Spring, MD, July 25, 2000.

Sen. SPENCER ABRAHAM,
U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR ABRAHAM: The American Federation of HomeCare Providers is pleased to endorse your legislation, the ''Medicare Provider Bill of Rights.''

Our members are small business health care providers who say that they would much rather deal with the Internal Revenue Service than with the Health Care Financing Administration (HCFA) and its contractors. Home care businesses have no rights that the Fiscal Intermediaries, carriers, and state surveyors appear to feel obligated to respect. There is no penalty for incorrect contractor decisions and no viable system to resolve disputes. Even instances of blatant abuse of providers and beneficiaries go without remedy because there is nothing to hold HCFA and its agents accountable when they are wrong and when their behavior goes beyond the bounds of ethical and legal behavior. Contractors routinely refuse to consider documentation, deny that they received records sent by providers, deny the obvious wording of the law and regulation, and sometimes even refuse to abide by court decisions.

Health care providers also believe that speaking out for the right of patients to receive an appropriate level of care and standing up for their own rights become grounds to target them for harassment. They believe that they are held to 100 percent standards of excellence and accuracy, which they are proud to meet, and those who serve as HCFA's contractors are held to no standards of excellence and accuracy in their dealings with the provider community. It is now time to ensure due process rights so that conscientious health care companies, who render critical and appropriate services in their communities and abide by the tenets of the Medicare law and regulation, are not subject to arbitrary and abusive behavior that has the potential to put them out of business, literally on the spot. Favorable decisions by Administrative Law Judges are of little comfort to a home health agency that has unjustifiably been shut down, on specious surveyor claims that it does not meet the Medicare Conditions of Participation, or by massive statistical sampling overpayment assessments, later overturned on appeal.

Medicare providers must be accorded the same type of protections that Congress saw fit to enact for the American pubic in the Taxpayer Bill of Rights. We believe that your legislation would do just that.

Sincerely yours,

ANN B. HOWARD,
Vice President for Policy.

AMERICAN HEALTH CARE ASSOCIATION,
Washington, DC, July 28, 2000.

Hon. SPENCER ABRAHAM,
U.S. Senate, Dirksen Senate Office Building, Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR ABRAHAM: On behalf of the American Health Care Association (AHCA), a federation of state affiliates representing more than 12,000 non-profit and for-profit nursing facility, assisted living, residential care, intermediate care for the mentally retarded, and subacute care providers I am writing to thank you and express our support for your legislation, The Health Care Provider Bill of Rights and Access Assurance Act.

This legislation is extremely important to long term care providers for a number of reasons. Recently, in, Shalala v. Illinois Council on Long Term Care, Inc., the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that virtually all challenges to the legality of Medicare regulations or policy must be brought through the same Department of Health and Human Services (''HHS'') administrative review process used to address individual provider reimbursement and certification issues before proceeding to federal court. The Court's decision means that a provider or beneficiary cannot challenge the legality of any Medicare regulation or policy without accepting an adverse agency action and proceeding through a time-consuming and costly administrative process. It is particularly problematic for nursing homes because many components of HHS's survey and enforcement regulations and policies conflict with federal law and are fundamentally flawed. Your legislation would give Medicare providers the right to challenge directly the constitutionality and statutory authority of HCFA's regulations and policies.

Additionally, the bill will suspend the termination and sanction process while appeals on deficiencies are pending, as well as prohibit the public dissemination of deficiency determinations while an appeal is pending, absent clear and convincing evidence of criminal activity. In the current survey system, skilled nursing facilities are cited and then may be terminated for highly questionable deficiencies which do not present a risk to resident health and safety. Additionally, these citations may be posted on a public website and this plus the risk of closure of a facility can confuse and scare the residents and their families. Your bill would prevent facilities from closing while they appeal a citation. Also, the bill establishes precedence for administrative appeals so that providers will have an affirmative defense in appeals where other providers have gone through similar appeals. This would add must needed certainly to the complex rules and regulations under the Medicare program. We appreciate your commitment to this important provision.

Among many other provisions in the legislation, the bill will make needed changes to the False Claims Act. It will require that claims brought under the Act for damages alleged to have been sustained by the government must be of a material amount, which will limit False Claims Act claims to those that have a significant impact on the Medicare program.

Senator Abraham, we commend your efforts and praise your leadership. As the nation's largest association of long term care providers, AHCA is available to assist you in any way that we can to advance this legislation.

Sincerely,

CHARLES H. ROADMAN II, M.D.,
President and CEO.

Mr. ABRAHAM. I am continuing to reach out to additional organizations to garner their support, as well as to my colleagues in the Senate to join Senators COCHRAN of Mississippi and Senator GRAMS of Minnesota as cosponsors. Furthermore, Members of the other body will soon introduce companion legislation to S. 2999 in the hope that we can incorporate these necessary reforms in a Medicare reimbursement restoration bill or other reform legislation that may pass this Congress. Finally, I am joining Senator CRAIG in calling on the Senate Finance Committee to hold immediate hearings on this legislation, and the broader issue of HCFA regulatory complexity. With this legislation, I believe we can break down one of the primary obstacles to assuring access to quality health care in this country, the seemingly unfettered abuses of Medicare bureaucrats against doctors and providers alike. I urge my colleagues to join me on this important measure.

I believe I have laid out a comprehensive and sensible policy for ensuring the continued viability of Medicare. Medicare has provided millions of seniors access to quality health care where otherwise they would go without. But more must be done, and must be done soon: we must modernize Medicare so that it provides for coverage of prescription drug expenses; we must improve reimbursements to providers so that reform and cost containment does not come at the expense of the very access to health care Medicare is trying to provide; we must implement comprehensive Medicare reform that improves beneficiaries choices in their health care decisions, mirrors the health care needs of the modern senior, and is fiscally sound for generations to come; and we must rein in the abusive and incredibly complex bureaucratic behemoth that has crippled health care providers' ability to operate efficiently in the Medicare system. We can do all of this, but time is running very short. Our seniors need these changes, and the time to act is now.

I ask unanimous consent a section-by-section analysis of the measure be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

THE ABRAHAM HEALTH CARE PROVIDERS' BILL OF RIGHTS (S. 2999)

SECTION-BY-SECTION SUMMARY

Title I—Regulatory Reform

Section 101. Prohibiting the Retroactive Application of Regulations

Providers have complained that HCFA, its Financial Intermediaries (FI's; the private firms that administer the Part A payments), and its carriers (the private firms that administer the Part B payments), issue retroactive rules and policies that are not subject to the Administrative Procedures Act. In fact, they show where HCFA has often issued these rules and policies rather than regulations specifically to avoid the requirements of the Administrative Procedures Act (public hearings, public discussion periods, publication in the Federal Register, etc.), and that they do so retroactively. This section will prohibit HCFA from issuing anything regarding the legal standards governing the scope of benefits, the payments rates, or eligibility rules except by regulation, and then only prospectively, so that no retroactive regulations are issued.

Section 102. Requiring HCFA to Follow Normal Regulation Issuance Procedures

Providers also complain about how HCFA circumvents the Administrative Procedures Act regulatory process by issuing interim final rules, which are implemented without the public discussion period and hearings, under emergency powers called the ''Good Cause'' clause, but fails to provide any justification other than simply that they have good cause. In order to prevent these tautologies from continuing, this section prohibits HCFA from issuing interim final regulations that haven't gone through the normal regulation public vetting process.

Section 103. GAO Report on HCFA Compliance with Regulatory Procedure Laws

Given the extensive reports of HCFA abusing its regulatory issuance authority, this section directs GAO to conduct an audit of, and report to Congress within 18 months on, HCFA's compliance with the Administrative Procedures Act and the Regulatory Flexibility Act.

Section 104. Providing for Summary Judicial Challenges of HCFA Regulations on Constitutional or Other Broad Grounds

Before the Supreme Court Decision of Shalala v. Illinois Council this spring, providers had a right to prospective judicial challenges to HCFA regulations they thought were either unconstitutional or were beyond HCFA's statutory authority to issue. After this decision, however, the only recourse providers have to challenge these regulations is to wait until they are found in violation, then appeal the HCFA decision. This section reestablishes a prospective regulatory and judicial challenge process of those HCFA regulations to challenge the constitutionality or statutory authority of a regulation, or to preemptively challenge an interim final rule issued under the Good Cause clause.

Section 105. Delineating Procedures for National Coverage Determination Changes

There is a regulatory process that is exempt from even the currently liberal HCFA regulatory issuance rules, called National Coverage Determinations. These determine what will, and will not, be covered by the Medicare program, and can change rules on what medical procedures that will be covered rules overnight. This section establishes a National Coverage Determination review process that requires a 30-day prior notice of initiating such a process, and allows for adequate public comment before implementing the new coverage determination.

Title II—Appeals Process Reform

Section 201. Expanding Providers' Overpayment Appeal Rights

Current appeal regulations only allow providers three options when HCFA tells them they have been overpaid: admit the overpayment and pay it; submit evidence in mitigation to reduce the amount of alleged overpayment but waive all appeal rights; or appeal the decision, but be subjected to a Statistically Valid Random Sample Audit (SVRS), a process which essentially shuts the provider down. This section will allow providers to exercise the second option (submitting evidence in mitigation) without waiving their appeal rights.

Section 202. Deadlines for Appeal Adjudication

This section requires the Medicare appeals process to be completed within 180 days, 90 days for the Administrative Law Judge first level appeal and 90 days for the Departmental Appeals Board second level appeal. Where the appeals process does not meet these deadlines, this section provides for the appeals process to be automatically advanced to the next stage.

Section 203. Provider Appeals on the Part of Deceased Beneficiaries

This section allows providers to pursue appeals on behalf of deceased beneficiaries where no substitute party is available.

Section 204. Suspending Terminations and Sanctions During Appeals

Currently, if HCFA makes a determination that a provider is abiding by HCFA standards, it can terminate that provider's participation in Medicare, publicly disseminate that deficiency information, and impose sanctions short of termination, even if the provider appeals the determination. This section suspends the termination and sanction process while appeals on deficiencies are pending, as well as prohibits the public dissemination of deficiency determinations while the appeal is pending, absent clear and convincing evidence of criminal activity.

Section 205. Establishing Precedence for Administrative Appeals

Ninety-eight percent of all appeals that are adjudicated at the first level of the appeals process (the Administrative Law Judge level), are determined in favor of the provider. This appears to be due in large part because HCFA apparently tries to squeeze providers into not fighting overpayment determinations in the hope that some providers simply will pay rather than fight. This section will give Departmental Appeals Board decisions national precedence in the Medicare appeals process so that providers will not have to fight the same appeal over and over.

Section 206. Safe Harbor for Substantial Compliance With HCFA Procedures

Providers can try their very best to comply with HCFA regulations but then be told by HCFA that they have violated some policy or rule, and be subject to fines and overpayment determinations. This section gives providers protection from HCFA action where a claim was submitted by a provider in reliance on erroneous information or written statements supplied by a Federal agency.

Section 207. GAO Audit of HCFA's Statistical Sampling Procedures

HCFA bases much of its compliance determinations on statistical sample audits, either through random audits as part of the Medicare Integrity Program, or through overpayment audits. However, there is substantial evidence that HCFA's statistical sampling procedures do not follow generally accepted procedures, and don't interpret the data in a statistically valid manner. This section direct GAO to conduct an audit of HCFA's (and its Financial Intermediaries' and Carriers') statistical sampling and utilization procedures.

Title III—Overpayment Procedure Reform

Section 301. Prohibit Retroactive Overpayment Determinations through New Policies

HCFA currently has the authority to change policy interpretations and implement them so as to make retroactive overpayments determinations, even though the previous policy may have allowed the charges. This section bars HCFA from making overpayment determinations based upon the retroactive application of a new policy interpretation.

Section 302. Prohibit Reductions of Future Payments Based on Sample Audits of Past Claims

HCFA currently reduces future payments by whatever error rate they derive from their statistical sample audits, even where there is no evidence that the pending or future payments are similarly in error, they simply assume that they are so, even if under appeal. Furthermore, the provider has no way to stop that withholding until the appeal is decided in their favor. This section bars HCFA from making such blanket withholdings from future payments, without clear and convincing evidence of fraud.

Section 303. Prohibit Withholding of Underpayments or Future Payments for Past Overpayments

In addition to withholding future payments by whatever error rate a HCFA sample audits produce, HCFA also regularly withholds underpayments owed the provider, as well as the full amount of future payments, and applies them to past overpayments, regardless of whether the provider is appealing the overpayment determination, or has entered into a repayment agreement. This can effectively strangle a provider's entire revenue flow, and has forced many providers into bankruptcy, even when such overpayments are being appealed. This section prohibits HCFA from withholding underpayments or future payments to pay for past overpayments, unless clear and convincing evidence of fraud exists.

Section 304. Suspend Overpayment Collections While Appeals are Pending

Even if a provider decides to be subjected to the lengthy and expensive appeals process, they are still required to immediately repay HCFA for alleged overpayments. This section suspends overpayment recoupment while appeals are pending. Given that appeals will be expedited under this bill to 180 days, the Medicare system will still have timely access to any overpayment funds.

Title IV—Voluntary Disclosure Procedure Reform

Section 401. Effective Voluntary Disclosure Procedures

Many times the first person to discover that a provider has been overpaid or has not been in compliance with Medicare regulations is the provider himself. However, the Department of Health and Human Services voluntary disclosure procedures still allow the Attorney General and U.S. Attorneys to use the exact same information provided by the provider to the Department Office of Inspector General under the current voluntary disclosure process against the provider for prosecution. This section directs the Secretary of Health and Human Services (HCFA's parent department) and the Attorney General to make joint voluntary disclosure procedures which provide a safe harbor from prosecution for providers who report the violation so long as these agencies haven't already approached them about the possible violation or overpayment, and there isn't previously and independently obtained clear and convincing evidence of fraud.

Title V—Criminal Law Enforcement Reform

Section 501. Rescind Law Enforcement Powers of HHS OIG Investigators

Currently, the Department of Health and Human Services' Office of Inspector General investigators are the enforcement arm of the Medicare program for HCFA, and are deputized by the U.S. Marshal Service to execute those duties. This has turned into their being granted near carte blanche authority for enforcing Medicare laws and regulations. With that, it is increasingly evident that OIG investigators may abuse that power, such as raiding hospitals and physicians offices with the same tactics that SWAT teams use on crack houses. This section rescinds OIG's deputation, and bars those investigators from carrying weapons in the execution of their duties.

Section 502. Codify More Stringent Search Warrant Rules for Health Care Facilities

Many health care providers who find themselves on the wrong side of an HHS OIG investigation are subjected to unnecessarily intrusive search warrant executions, with doctors and nurses accosted by gun-wielding investigators, and patients removed from medical care. This section codifies search warrant rules that so as to protect the confidentiality of medical records, the provider-patient relationship, and the uninterrupted continuation of medical care. Specifically, it requires the law enforcement agency requesting the search warrant to take the least intrusive approach to executing the warrant, consistent with vigorous and effective law enforcement. It also directs the law enforcement agency seeking the warrant to work closely with the Department of Justice and the relevant U.S. Attorney's office to ensure the warrant is indeed necessary and that the search minimizes disruption to patient care or threats to the confidentiality of patient records.

Title VI—Provider Compliance Education

Section 601. Provider Education Funding

This section requires Financial Intermediaries and Carriers to spend 3 percent of their Medicare funds on provider billing and compliance education, and HCFA to dedicate 10% of their Medicare Integrity Program funds to such education, so as to try to decrease the rate of provider non-compliance, as well as over- and under-billing.

Section 602. Advisory Opinions for Health Care Providers

This section requires HCFA to provide written answers to questions about coverage, billing, documentation, coding, cost reporting and procedures under the Medicare program, answers which can be used as an affirmative defense against an overpayment determination or an allegation of violating Medicare regulations.

Section 603. Extension of Existing Advisory Opinion Provisions of Law

The Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act (HIPAA) included a provision requiring the Secretary to issue written advisory opinions on certain specified topics under the anti-kickback statute and civil monetary penalty provisions. However, that provision sunsets on August 21st, 2000. The Balanced Budget Act of 1997 (BBA 97) provides a similar provision regarding the legality of referrals under the physician self-referral laws, which also sunsets August 21st, 2000. This section extends these advisory opinion provisions permanently.

SUPPORTING THE PRESIDENTIAL VETO OF THE ESTATE TAX REPEAL LEGISLATION

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. President, I will vote to uphold the President's veto of the wildly irresponsible estate tax repeal bill sent to his desk, and I will also continue to support changes in the law that will provide additional relief for the two percent of American families that are subject to this law.

Under current law, family farms and small business pay no Federal estate tax unless their property is worth more than $1.3 million. Others are eligible for an estate tax exemption of $675,000. I recently voted to raise the small business and family farm exemption to $4 million by 2001 and with a phased in exemption of $8 million by 2010. The general exemption would increase to $2 million by 2001 and $4 million by 2010.

The cost to the Treasury for this additional exemption for America's wealthiest families comes to about $61 billion over ten years. The cost of the total-repeal bill being vetoed by the President, however, comes to $105 billion over the first ten years, and a whopping $750 billion when fully phased in during the next ten years.

Very few South Dakota farms or small businesses have any Federal estate tax liability whatever under current law, but I do want to make sure that exemptions are ample. What I don't want to see, however, is an estate tax repeal bill that is so terribly expensive that it makes it almost impossible for Congress to pass tax relief for middle class taxpayers, to shore up Medicare, to pay down more of the accumulated national debt or improve education.

Keep in mind that most of the budget surplus that is being talked about will not materialize for another five years or so, and prudence would suggest to us that it may never materialize at all. Thank heavens for some adult supervision from the White House at a time when Congress has been behaving like spoiled children under the Christmas tree. Supporters of this irresponsible legislation believe there is room in our budget to give multimillionaires an $8 million tax break, but the legislation sent to the President would have broken the bank and denied relief and assistance to the other 98 percent of American families.

Once Congress concludes its partisan political finger-pointing games, it is my hope that estate tax and marriage penalty relief can be passed in a proper and careful manner that will allow for debt reduction, Medicare improvements, and a commitment to education.

PURPLE HEART AWARDED TO SPECIALIST RAYMOND S. TESTON

Mr. BURNS. Mr. President, I would like to take a moment to recognize Raymond S. Teston. Ray is a great man, and an American hero.

Specialist Raymond S. Teston had served close to one full year of field duty and was to leave Vietnam to return home to Georgia. The night before his departure, August 12, 1969, and the following morning, ''C'' troop, First Squadron, 1st Calvary of the American Division was overrun while at Base Camp, Hawk Hill, Hill 29. The first wave of the attack was from rocket propelled grenades and 122 mm rockets killing several soldiers and injuring many more. Ray was critically wounded during the ensuing battle and out of the 86 men assigned, was one of only eleven who survived.

On November 5, 1999, the President of the United States of America, the Army Adjutant General and the Secretary of the Army awarded the Purple Heart to Specialist Raymond S. Teston, United States Army, for wounds received in action in the Republic of Vietnam on August 12, 1969. This is Ray's second award of the Purple Heart; his first came on April 2, 1968, just outside of the Tam Key, Vietnam.

I commend Ray Teston's courage and bravery. I thank him, and all veterans, for their service and sacrifices to our great country and for defending our freedoms. Each time I salute the flag, I like to think of heroes such as Raymond S. Teston, who symbolize all the things that are good about this country—duty—honor—faith in our democracy. Thank you Raymond S. Teston.

SENATOR MOYNIHAN: A PROFILE IN RARE COURAGE

Mr. SCHUMER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that ''Moynihan—a Profile in Rare Courage'' from yesterday's Newsday in praise of the courage and commitment of Senator DANIEL PATRICK MOYNIHAN be incorporated into the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.

Mr. President, while certainly the race for the seat which Senator MOYNIHAN has left open has excited New Yorkers and the Nation, it is my desire today to simply remind the Nation what a treasure the State of New York bestowed on all of us through Senator MOYNIHAN. I am confident that I speak for all of my colleagues in the Senate when I say that his intellect and leadership will be greatly missed.

There being no objection, the article was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

MOYNIHAN—A PROFILE IN RARE COURAGE

(By Gray Maxwell)

As the final summer of Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan's public career comes to an end, I think back to one languid Friday afternoon three summers ago.

Not much was happening. The Senate was in recess. So Moynihan—my boss at the time—and I went to see an exhibit of Tyndale Bibles at the Library of Congress. William Tyndale wrote the first English Bible from extant Greek and Hebrew manuscripts. Moynihan was eager to learn more about a man whose impact on the English language, largely unacknowledged, is equal to Shakespeare's.

One might wonder what Tyndale has to do with the United States Senate. Not much, I suppose. But like Tennyson's Ulysses, Moynihan is a ''gray spirit yearning in desire to follow knowledge like a sinking star.'' He has unbounded curiosity. I'm not one who thinks his intellectualism is some sort of indictment. Those who do are jealous of his capabilities, or just vapid. In a diminished era when far too many senators know far too little, I have been fortunate to work for one who knows so much and yet strives to learn so much more.

There is little I can add to what others have written or will write about his career. But I would make a few observations. On a parochial note, no other senator shares his remarkable facility for understanding and manipulating formulas—that arcane bit of legislating that drives the allocation of billions of dollars. He has ''delivered'' for New York, but it's not frequently noted because so few understand it.

More important, every time he speaks or writes, it's worth paying attention. I think back to the summer of 1990, when Sen. Phil Gramm (R–Texas) offered an amendment to a housing bill. Gramm wanted to rob Community Development Block Grant funds from a few ''Rust Belt'' states and spread them across the rest of the country. The amendment looked like a winner: More than 30 states would benefit. Moynihan spoke in opposition. He delivered an extemporaneous speech on the nature of our federal system worthy of inclusion in the seminal work of Hamilton, Madison, and Jay as The Federalist No. 86.

(His speech was effective. The amendment was defeated. New York's share of CDBG funding was preserved.) What I most want to comment on is Moynihan's courage. Too many of today's tepid, timid legislators are afraid to offer amendments they know will fail.

They are afraid of offending this constituency or that special interest. They have no heart, no courage. Moynihan always stands on principle, never on expediency. He's not afraid to cast a tough vote, to be in the minority—even a minority of one. His positions on issues from bankruptcy ''reform'' to government secrecy, from welfare repeal to habeas corpus, from the ''line item'' veto to Constitutional amendments du jour, haven't been popular. But I'm confident they are right. It just takes the rest of us a while to catch up with him.

While Moynihan has been successful as a legislator, I think of him as the patron senator of lost causes (i.e., right but unpopular). Every senator is an advocate for the middle class. That's where the votes are. What I admire and cherish about Moynihan is his long, hard, eloquent fight on behalf of the underclass—the disenfranchised, the demoralized, the destitute, the despised.

T.S. Eliot wrote to a friend, ''We fight for lost causes because we know that our defeat and dismay may be the preface to our successors' victory, though that victory itself will be temporary; we fight rather to keep something alive than in the expectation that anything will triumph.'' Eliot's wistful statement, to me, captures the essence of Moynihan. He has an unflinching sense of responsibility.

For the past quarter century, Moynihan has been the Senate's reigning intellectual. But he has been more than that. He has defended precious government institutions under attack by those who have contempt for government.

And he has been the Senate's—and the nation's—conscience. His fealty as a public servant, ultimately, has been to the truth as best as he can determine it. He seeks it out, and he speaks it, regardless of who will be discomfited.

He has done so with rigor, and wit, a little bit of mischief now and then, and uncommon decency.

I have been privileged to work in the United States Senate for 16 years, and for several outstanding members, Republicans and Democrats. I will not see another Moynihan in my career. He is sui generis.

When Thomas Jefferson followed Benjamin Franklin as envoy to France, he told the Comte de Vergennes, ''I succeed him; no one could replace him.'' Others will succeed Moynihan; no one will replace him. We should pause for a moment, and give thanks that he has devoted his life and considerable talents to public service.

THE VERY BAD DEBT BOXSCORE

Mr. HELMS. Mr. President, at the close of business yesterday, Tuesday, September 5, 2000, the Federal debt stood at $5,678,475,470,839.16, five trillion, six hundred seventy-eight billion, four hundred seventy-five million, four hundred seventy thousand, eight hundred thirty-nine dollars and sixteen cents.

Five years ago, September 5, 1995, the Federal debt stood at $4,968,613,000,000, four trillion, nine hundred sixty-eight billion, six hundred thirteen million.

Ten years ago, September 5, 1990, the Federal debt stood at $3,241,866,000,000, three trillion, two hundred forty-one billion, eight hundred sixty-six million.

ADDITIONAL STATEMENTS

RECOGNITION OF TOM NORRIS AND JAMES BROWN FOR CONTRIBUTIONS TO THE FEDERAL WAY SUMMER MATH PROGRAM

● Mr. GORTON. Mr. President, imagine 140 students who want to spend their summer learning math. For students participating in the Summer Math Program at Thomas Jefferson High School in Federal Way, Washington, this is just the case. For the past five years, Tom Norris and James Brown have worked tirelessly and created a successful program that has dramatically improved the math skills of hundreds of students.

When Mr. Norris and Mr. Brown started the Summer Math Program, they had five students in attendance. Since then, the program has become well-known throughout Thomas Jefferson High School as a resource for students struggling with math or hoping to improve their SAT scores and has grown by leaps and bounds.

The Summer Math Program is based on a three part system that includes: Advanced Algebra or Pre-Calculus, an SAT summer program, and ''The Math Team.'' The Advanced Algebra and Pre-Calculus course enables students who desire to complete Calculus before they leave high school to enroll in higher math classes in the following school year. The SAT summer program, offered at a much lower cost than other SAT review classes, equips students with the skills and confidence needed for their college preparatory exams. As a result, Thomas Jefferson High School has some of the highest SAT scores in the South Puget Sound of Washington State.

Additionally, students who enjoy competing in math competitions can participate on the Math Team. Students practice throughout the summer in preparation for the annual national competition which took place in July. As a true testament to the excellence of the program, Mr. Norris and Mr. Brown coached the team to a fifth-place victory last summer when the students participated against 50 other schools. This certainly was a great accomplishment for the program and students participating!

Samuel Kim, a Math Team member who will be a senior this year, told me that the Math Team, ''keeps you in the right frame of mind during summer so you can keep your math skills strong, and it gives you good interaction with others.'' Samuel had nothing but applause for his coaches stating, ''Mr. Norris is very friendly and inspirational, yet demanding and excited to see us succeed in competition, while Mr. Brown is more light-hearted in his motivational tactics.''

The record of the Math Team and the achievements of students in the Summer Math Program speaks not only to the excellence of the program but also to the efforts and drive of both Mr. Norris and Mr. Brown. Their dedication to education, and math in particular, is rarely paralleled in other local school districts during the summer months. I am impressed with the dedication of these two men to their students' education even during the summer months. It is with great pleasure that I recognize them for their outstanding service to the students of Thomas Jefferson High School.●

RETIRED U.S. DISTRICT JUDGE ROBERT R. MERHIGE, JR.

● Mr. ROBB. Mr. President, I'd like to take a moment to pay special recognition to a good friend of mine and a distinguished former jurist, Robert R. Merhige, Jr. of Richmond, Virginia. Now in private practice after serving as a U.S. District Judge, Bob was recognized a few months ago in an article in The National Law Journal as the driving force behind the resolution of the Dalkon Shield Claimants Trust. The article details Judge Merhige's efforts to resolve over 400,000 claims, and it's clear that he accomplished this difficult task by working towards a fair result with skill and intellect. He kept his eye on the ball until the job was concluded. I ask that the article be printed in the RECORD.

$3 BILLION LATER, DALKON TRUST CLOSES SHOP: MASS TORT CLEARINGHOUSE SEEN BY SOME AS THE BEST-RUN OUTFIT OF ITS KIND

(By Alan Cooper)

RICHMOND, VA.—The numbers are impressive, even by mass tort standards.

More than 400,000 claims reviewed. Nearly $3 billion distributed. Administrative costs just 9%, including lawyer fees.

Even more impressive, the job is done.

The Dalkon Shield Claimants Trust closed on April 30 with a claim to being the best-managed mass tort plan so far.

Retired U.S. District Judge Robert R. Merhige, Jr., now of counsel at Hunton & Williams, gets much of the credit for what many view as the success of the trust, as well as the blame for what others see as its shortcomings.

The trust emerged from the 1985 bankruptcy petition of A.H. Robins Co., which sold 3.6 million intrauterine birth devices called the Dalkon Shield between 1971 and 1974. Robins took it off the market under government pressure.

Robins and its products liability insurer, Aetna Casualty & Surety Co., were overwhelmed by allegations that women had suffered perforated uteruses and pelvic inflammatory disease that left them sterile. More than 326,000 women filed claims in response to a worldwide ad campaign.

Judge Merhige's 1987 estimate that the liability wouldn't top $2.475 billion set off a bidding war, won by American Home Products Corp. It acquired Robins by providing about $2.3 billion for claimants, to be paid by the trust, and $700 million-plus in stock to Robins shareholders.

Claimants' payments were based on amounts Robins paid to settle cases before the bankruptcy and based on their medical records. With interest, they totaled nearly $3 billion.

Robert E. Manchester, of Burlington, Vt., who represented 3,500-plus claimants, said of Judge Merhige, ''He shaped the solution by tapping into people who were willing to be constructive.''

''There was a significant number of people who felt they were treated badly by the process''—mostly atypical claimants —plaintiffs' lawyer Stephen W. Bricker, of Richmond said.

James F. Szaller, of Cleveland's Brown & Szaller, said that Judge Merhige ''sometimes took unusual courses, but he did get it done. The result for the vast majority of people was good.''●

RETURN OF FLAGSHIP ''NIAGARA'' TO LAKE ERIE

● Mr. SANTORUM. Mr. President, I would like to recognize Captain Walter Rybka and the officers and crew of the Flagship Niagara on their return from their East Coast ten-month voyage. The Flagship Niagara is a symbol of Erie, Pennsylvania's history and serves as an Ambassador of the Commonwealth when in participates in tall ship events. As a resident of Pennsylvania, I am proud to have such a treasure as part of our history.

The Flagship Niagara has played an important role in our nation's history. It sailed proudly in the War of 1812 and fought in the Battle of Lake Erie. I commend the Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission, the Flagship Niagara League, and the City of Erie for restoring the ship and making it available so that others in the United States may learn of its history.

I would also like to take this opportunity to express my sincere appreciation to those who serve on the Flagship Niagara. The Flagship Niagara is a part of Pennsylvania's history, and your commitment to the ship and to Erie is highly commendable.

RECOGNITION OF JIM SUTTON, SUPERINTENDENT OF THE KALAMA SCHOOL DISTRICT

● Mr. GORTON. Mr. President, I would like to bring the Senate's attention today to Mr. Jim Sutton, a man who has given a generation of Kalama students a unique look at the courageous acts of an older generation—the men and women who fought in World War II. Mr. Sutton is the Superintendent of the Kalama School District and also finds the time to teach a course on World War II and the Cold War. Through his great personal interest in WWII and his desire to transfer some of his interest onto his students, Jim has made history come alive for them.

Mr. Sutton's class, based on the book Band of Brothers, by Stephen Ambrose, uses firsthand accounts of companies who were a part of D-Day in WWII. Ambrose's book documents the accounts of E Company, which the movie, ''Saving Private Ryan,'' was based.

Mr. Sutton has made it possible for his students to meet some of these great men who fought in WWII. Jim has brought an Italian officer that fought Rommel in the African Campaign, a P–51 pilot who brought actual video footage from his wing cameras, a machine gunner who landed at D-Day, and a German soldier who spent two years in a Russian prisoner of war camp.

Anyone can see how Mr. Sutton recognizes the sacrifices of the WWII generation and has shared it with others. Most impressive was in June when five of Mr. Sutton's students accompanied him to the opening of the D-Day museum in New Orleans, Louisiana where students were able to meet their history book heroes in person.

I have always considered my ''Innovation in Education'' Awards to highlight special people and programs, and this award demonstrates how innovative a typical U.S. history class can be. Mr. Sutton has created a live link between the past and the present for his students.

Greg Rayl, Principal of Kalama Middle and High School, who nominated Mr. Sutton for the award adds, ''Too often superintendents are many steps removed from the daily classroom management and operations of their district's schools. Jim not only walks the halls interacting with students and teachers, but teaches as well.''

As an avid reader of history, I am delighted to learn about Mr. Sutton who has gone the extra mile to make history come alive for his students. I ask that the Senate join me in commending Mr. Sutton for his dedication to his students and for bringing two generations together.●

STATEMENT ON THE PASSING OF MRS. CORETTA OGBURN

● Mr. SANTORUM. Mr. President, I would like to take this opportunity to recognize Mrs. Coretta Ogburn who died on Monday July 31, 2000. She was born on July 30, 1909 in Pittsburgh to the late Sally and Henry Black.

Mrs. Ogburn graduated from the Pittsburgh Public School System and later became employed for many years with the Allegheny County Health Department from which she retired in the 1970s. She was also well known as a dedicated and highly respected community leader for her committed efforts to her Church and community organizations. She was actively involved in the Negro Emergency Education Drive (NEED), the Urban League, the YWCA, the YMCA, and the Pittsburgh branch of the NAACP.

During her tenure as a member of the NAACP, Mrs. Ogburn sat on the Executive Committee, Human Rights Dinner Committee, Scholarship Committee, Women in the NAACP (WIN), and the Membership Committee. As Chair of the Membership Committee, she was instrumental in increasing branch memberships for the organization, and in 1958, she received her first award for soliciting the most NAACP memberships. In addition, the National Office of the NAACP awarded Mrs. Ogburn a medal for her accomplishments as one of the top membership solicitors in the entire nation. Mrs. Ogburn was awarded several other awards for her commitment and dedication to this organization.

It is an honor for me to recognize Mrs. Coretta Ogburn and the selfless time and energy she put towards her community. She was a true civil servant and community leader, and Pittsburgh was very blessed to have her a resident of its city. She cared a great deal for her loved ones, illustrated true dedication to the organizations which she belonged, and will be sorely missed by all those who knew her.●

Treaty Doc. 105–48. Inter-American Convention on Sea Turtles (Exec. Rept. 106–18).

TEXT OF THE COMMITTEE RECOMMENDED RESOLUTION OF ADVICE AND CONSENT:

Resolved, (two thirds of the Senators present concurring therein), That the Senate advise and consent to the ratification of the Inter-American Convention for the Protection and Conservation of Sea Turtles, With Annexes, done at Caracas, Venezuela, on December 1, 1996 (Treaty Doc. 105–48), which was signed by the United States, subject to ratification, on December 13, 1996, referred to in this resolution of ratification as ''The Convention,'' subject to the understandings of subsection (a), the declarations of subsection (b) and the provisos of subsection (c).

(a) UNDERSTANDINGS.—The advice and consent of the Senate is subject to the following understandings, which shall be included in the instrument of ratification of the Convention and shall be binding on the President:

(1) ARTICLE VI (''SECRETARIAT'').—The United States understands that no permanent secretariat is established by this Convention, and that nothing in the Convention obligates the United States to appropriate funds for the purpose of establishing a permanent secretariat now or in the future.

(2) ARTICLE XII (''INTERNATIONAL COOPERATION'').—The United States understands that, upon entry into force of this Convention for the United States, the United States will have no binding obligation under the Convention to provide additional funding or technical assistance for any of the measures listed in Article XII.

(3) ARTICLE XIII (''FINANCIAL RESOURCES'').—Bearing in mind the provisions of paragraph (7), the United States understands that establishment of a ''special fund,'' as described in this Article, imposes no obligation on Parties to participate or contribute to the fund.

(b) DECLARATIONS.—The advice and consent of the Senate is subject to the following declarations:

(1) ''NO RESERVATIONS'' CLAUSE.—Concerning Article XXIII, it is the sense of the Senate that this ''no reservations'' provision has the effect of inhibiting the Senate in its exercise of its constitutional duty to give advice and consent to ratification of a treaty, and the Senate's approval of these treaties should not be construed as a precedent for acquiescence to future treaties containing such provisions.

(2) TREATY INTERPRETATION.—The Senate affirms the applicability to all treaties of the constitutionally based principles of treaty interpretation set forth in Condition (1) of the resolution of ratification of the INF Treaty, approved by the Senate on May 27, 1988, and Condition (8) of the resolution of ratification of the Document Agreed Among the State Parties to the Treaty on Conventional Armed Forces in Europe, approved by the Senate on May 14, 1997.

(3) NEW LEGISLATION.—Existing federal legislation provides sufficient legislation authority to implement United States obligations under the Convention. Accordingly, no new legislation is necessary in order for the United States to implement the Convention. Because all species of sea turtle occurring in the Western Hemisphere are listed as endangered or threatened under the Endangered Species Act of 1973, as amended (Title 16, United States Code, Section 1536 et seq.), said Act will serve as the basic authority for implementation of United States obligations under the Convention.

(4) ARTICLES IX AND X (''MONITORING PROGRAMS,'' ''COMPLIANCE'').—The United States understands that nothing in the Convention precludes the boarding, inspection or arrest by United States authorities of any vessel which is found within United States territory or maritime areas with respect to which it exercises sovereignty, sovereign rights or jurisdiction, for purposes consistent with Articles IX and X of this Convention.

(5) It is the sense of the Senate that the entry into force and implementation of this Convention in the United States should not interfere with the right of waterfront property owners, public or private, to use or alienate their property as they see fit consistent with pre-existing domestic law.

(c) PROVISOS.—The advice and consent of the Senate is subject to the following provisos:

(1) REPORT TO CONGRESS.—The Secretary of State shall provide to the Committee on Foreign Relations of the Senate a copy of each annual report prepared by the United States in accordance with Article XI of the Convention. The Secretary shall include for the Committee's information a list of ''traditional communities'' exceptions which may have been declared by any party to the Convention.

(2) SUPREMACY OF THE CONSTITUTION.—Nothing in the Convention requires or authorizes legislation or other action by the United States of America that is prohibited by the Constitution of the United States as interpreted by the United States.

STATEMENTS ON INTRODUCED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS

By Mr. FEINGOLD:

S. 3005. A bill to require country origin labeling of all forms of ginseng; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

GINSENG TRUTH IN LABELING ACT OF 2000

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce a package of legislation (S. 3005 and S. Res. 348) that addresses the increased amount of smuggled and mis-labeled ginseng entering this country.

This legislation provides for some common sense reforms that would require country-of-origin labeling for ginseng products, and express the Sense of the Senate that customs should put a stop to the flow of smuggled ginseng into the United States. My legislation will push for stricter enforcement of ginseng importation and allow consumers the information they need to determine the origin of the ginseng they buy.

SMUGGLING-LABELING PROBLEM

Mr. President, Chinese and Native American cultures have used ginseng for thousands of years for herbal and medicinal purposes.

In America, ginseng is experiencing a newfound popularity, and I am proud to say that my home state of Wisconsin is playing a central role in ginseng's resurgence.

Wisconsin produces 97 percent of the ginseng grown in the United States, and 85 percent of the country's ginseng is grown in Marathon County.

The ginseng industry is an economic boon to Marathon County, as well as an example of the high quality for which Wisconsin's agriculture industry is known.

Wisconsin ginseng commands a premium price in world markets because it is considered to be of the highest quality and because it has a lower pesticide and chemical content.

With a huge market for this high-quality ginseng overseas, and growing popularity for the ancient root here at home, Wisconsin's ginseng industry should have a prosperous future ahead.

Unfortunately, the outlook for ginseng farmers is marred by a serious problem—smuggled and mislabeled ginseng. Wisconsin ginseng is considered so superior to ginseng grown abroad that smugglers will go to great lengths to label ginseng grown in Canada or Asia as ''Wisconsin-grown.''

Here's how the switch takes place: Smugglers take Asian or Canadian-grown ginseng and ship it to plants in China, allegedly to have the ginseng sorted into various grades.

While the sorting process is itself a legitimate part of distributing ginseng, smugglers often use it as a ruse to switch Wisconsin ginseng with the Asian or Canadian ginseng considered inferior by consumers.

The smugglers know that while Chinese-grown ginseng has a retail value of about $5–$6 per pound, while Wisconsin-grown ginseng is valued at roughly $16–$20 per pound.

To make matters even tougher for Wisconsin's ginseng farmers, there is no accurate way of testing ginseng to determine where it was grown, other than testing for pesticides that are legal in Canada and China but are banned in the United States.

And in some cases, smugglers can even find ways around the pesticide tests. A recent ConsumerLab.com study confirmed that much of the ginseng sold in the U.S. contained harmful chemicals and metals, such as lead and arsenic.

And that's because the majority of Ginseng sold in the U.S. originates from countries with lower pesticide standards, so it's vitally important that consumers know which ginseng is really grown in Wisconsin

CONSUMER/PRODUCER IMPACT

For the sake of ginseng farmers and consumers, the U.S. Senate must crack down on smuggled and mislabeled ginseng.

Without adequate labeling, consumers have no way of knowing the most basic information about the ginseng they purchase—where it was grown, what quality or grade it is, or whether it contains dangerous pesticides.

The country of origin labeling is a simple but effective way to enable consumers to make an informed decision. And putting the U.S. Senate on record in support of cracking down on ginseng smuggling is an important first step toward putting an end to the illegal ginseng trade.

The lax enforcement of smuggled ginseng also puts our producers on an unfair playing field. The mixing of superior Wisconsin ginseng with lower quality foreign ginseng root penalizes the grower and eliminates the incentive to provide the consumer with a superior product.

Mr. President, we must give ginseng growers the support they deserve by implementing country-of-origin labeling that lets consumers make informed choices about the ginseng that they consume.

We must ensure when ginseng consumers reach for a quality ginseng product—such as Wisconsin grown ginseng—that they are getting the real thing, not a cheap imitation.

By Mr. ASHCROFT:

S. 3006. A bill to remove civil liability barriers surrounding donating fire equipment to volunteer fire companies; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

THE GOOD SAMARITAN VOLUNTEER FIREFIGHTER ASSISTANCE ACT

• Mr. ASHCROFT. Mr. President, today I rise to introduce the Good Samaritan Volunteer Firefighter Assistance Act of 2000. This bill will assist our nation's volunteer firefighters, who daily risk their lives to protect our families, friends and neighbors. The legislation I am introducing will allow volunteer fire departments to accept much needed fire-fighting supplies from manufacturers and others by limiting the liability of companies and fire departments that donate certified surplus equipment.

In the United States today, the local fire department is expected to be protector of life, property and environmental safety concerns. Many communities must rely on the capable and courageous men and women in the local volunteer fire department to protect lives and safety. In fact, 75 percent of firefighters in this country are volunteers. Most volunteer departments serve small, rural communities and are quite often the only fire fighting services available for these areas. Unfortunately, one of the largest problems faced by volunteer fire services is lack of sufficient resources. Too often, these departments are struggling to provide their members with adequate protective clothing, safety devices and training programs.

In my home state of Missouri, there are approximately 450 fire departments throughout the state that have a budget of less than $15,000 per year. Many have budgets under $7,000/year and there are even some under $2,000/year. After paying insurance premiums, most departments do not even have $5,000 in their operating budgets. This is simply not enough money to purchase new and much needed fire-fighting equipment. In addition, the cost of fire and emergency medical apparatus and equipment has steadily increased over the past 20–30 years. Because of this, volunteer firefighters spend a large amount of time raising money for new equipment; time that could be better spent providing training to respond to emergencies.

Fire protection equipment is constantly improving and advancing with new state-of-the-art innovation. Because industry is constantly updating its fire protection, it is not unusual for plants and factories to accumulate surplus fire equipment that is slightly dated, but still effective, and most is almost new, or never used. Despite the excellent condition of most of these surplus items, company attorneys usually refuse to allow donations to fire departments, which desperately need this equipment. Companies routinely destroy surplus equipment to guarantee it will never be used by other firefighters. Pressure bottles for breathing apparatus are cut in half and the regulators buried. Protective fire coats are cut apart. Fire trucks are broken up and sold for scrap. All of this is done to prevent any liability from falling on corporate donors. Approximately $20 million per year in surplus equipment is scrapped, while a lot of rural departments go without the most basic supplies, such as protective clothing. Tragically, each year millions of dollars worth of fire equipment is destroyed instead of donated to these volunteer fire departments.

Mr. President, it does not make sense that quality fire-fighting tools are destroyed because of fear of liability by those who wish to donate their unused equipment. According to some estimates, over 800,000 volunteer firefighters nationwide save state and local governments $36.8 billion annually. We need to support the volunteer fire departments, and Congress should start by removing liability barriers that keep volunteer firefighters from receiving perfectly safe, donated equipment. Under this bill a person who donates qualified fire control or fire rescue equipment to a volunteer fire company will not be liable in civil damages in any State or Federal Court for personal injuries, property damage, or death proximately caused by a defect in the equipment. In order to protect firefighters from faulty donated equipment, this bill requires the equipment to be recertified as safe by an authorized technician. The bill does not protect those persons who act with malice, gross negligence, or recklessness in making the donation; nor does it protect the manufacturer of the donated equipment.

Mr. President, this bill is supported by a number of firefighting organizations. In States that have removed liability barriers through legislation similar to this, volunteer fire companies have received millions of dollars in quality fire fighting equipment. For example, in 1997, the Texas state legislature passed a bill that limited the liability of companies who donated surplus equipment to fire departments. Prior to passage of this bill, companies in Texas had refrained from donating their used equipment for fear of potential lawsuits. Now, companies donate their surplus equipment to the Texas Forest Service, which then certifies the equipment and passes it on to volunteer fire departments. The donated equipment must meet all original specifications before it can be sent to volunteer departments. The program has already received in excess of six million dollars worth of equipment for volunteer fire departments.

Companion legislation has been introduced in the House of Representatives by Congressman CASTLE. I urge my Senate colleagues to join me in ending the wasteful destruction of useful fire equipment, saving taxpayer funds, and better equipping our volunteer firefighters to save lives. I am proud to introduce this bill and look forward to working to ensure that the federal government increases its commitment to the men and women who make up our local volunteer fire departments.•

By Mrs. FEINSTEIN (for herself, Mr. LUGAR, Mr. SPECTER, Mr. INHOFE, Mr. SANTORUM, Mr. GRAMS, Mr. MURKOWSKI, Ms. COLLINS, Mr. MOYNIHAN, and Mr. FITZGERALD):

S. 3007. A bill to provide for measures in response to a unilateral declaration of the existence of a Palestinian state; to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

UNILATERAL PALESTINIAN STATEHOOD DISAPPROVAL ACT OF 2000

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. Mr. President, I rise today to join Senator LUGAR in introducing the Unilateral Palestinian Statehood Disapproval Act. This is cosponsored by Senators MOYNIHAN, SPECTER, INHOFE, SANTORUM, GRAMS, COLLINS and MURKOWSKI.

We are now 7 days away from September 13. That is the day that the Palestinian Authority Chairman Yasser Arafat has set, in the past, as a day when he would declare, unilaterally, Palestinian statehood. He has recently said that he would reassess his intention to declare an independent Palestinian state unilaterally. I am hopeful that he will. But, nonetheless, I am concerned that neither he nor other senior Palestinian leaders have repudiated the idea of a unilateral declaration of statehood.

As part of the 1993 Oslo accords, the Israelis and Palestinians committed to resolving all outstanding issues through negotiation. Chairman Arafat reiterated this position on July 25 of this year, at the conclusion of the last round of the Camp David negotiations when he and Prime Minister Barak issued a statement agreeing on the importance of ''avoiding unilaterally action that prejudiced the outcome of negotiations.'' Indeed, one of the keys to the success of the peace process thus far has been the commitment by each side to avoid any unilateral action that would undermine the search for a mutually satisfactory agreement.

A unilateral declaration of Palestinian statehood would violate the commitments of Oslo. A unilateral declaration of statehood would be a grave blow to the peace process, one from which that process might not be able to recover.

I believe very strongly, and my cosponsors do as well, that any Palestinian state should be the result of negotiations between Israel and the Palestinians, not the result of the unilateral action of either one side or the other.

It is my sincere hope that in the next few days, Mr. Arafat and others in the Palestinian leadership will step back from the September 13 deadline and recommit themselves to the Oslo process and negotiations with Israel.

This legislation is necessary, however, because should Mr. Arafat go forward with the unilateral declaration, the repercussions for the peace process and stability in the Middle East are, indeed, both serious and severe. The United States must make it clear that we will not recognize or condone a unilateral declaration and that the United States will work to make sure the international community neither accepts nor supports a unilaterally declared Palestinian state.

The legislation we introduce today would do the following:

It would state that the United States should not recognize any unilaterally declared Palestinian state.

It would urge the President and the Secretary of State to use all diplomatic means to work with other countries to deny recognition to such a unilaterally declared state.

It would prohibit any direct U.S. assistance to a unilaterally declared Palestinian state, except for humanitarian assistance or cooperation on antiterrorism efforts.

It would direct the Secretary of the Treasury to oppose membership in any international financial institution by a unilaterally declared Palestinian state and oppose any financial assistance from these institutions to such a state.

It would state the sense of the Congress that the President should downgrade the status of the Palestinian office in the United States to an information office.

It would also state the sense of the Congress that the President should oppose Palestinian membership in the United Nations or any other international organization, and that the United States should oppose economic or other assistance to a unilaterally declared Palestinian state, except for humanitarian or security assistance.

Finally, it would urge the President to expedite and upgrade the ongoing review of strategic relations between the United States and Israel.

We have included a Presidential national interest waiver authority so that if the President deems that even with a unilateral declaration that the peace process can move forward, the United States will have the flexibility to continue that process.

I realize that it is a little unusual to say, but it is my sincere hope that this legislation will never require action, let alone implementation.

I have been a long-time supporter of the peace process and for a peace agreement that provides security for Israel and leads to the consensual establishment of a Palestinian state that will be a peaceful neighbor of Israel. Since coming to the Senate, I have worked long and hard as an advocate for peace in the Middle East and as a supporter of the negotiations led by President Clinton, Secretaries Christopher and Albright, and conducted so ably by Dennis Ross.

Because of this support, it is my sincere hope that Mr. Arafat will not choose to heed those who have suggested that the Palestinian Authority should unilaterally declare a Palestinian state on September 13. If Mr. Arafat is willing to continue to work within the context of the peace process and stick to his commitments at Oslo and Camp David not to take unilateral steps, then I believe the United States should continue our partnership with the Palestinian people in search for peace. Under such circumstances, there is no need for this legislation.

I was deeply disappointed that the last round of negotiations at Camp David did not succeed in reaching an agreement. Prime Minister Barak appeared to make every effort to reach out and extend the hand of peace and placed items on the table for negotiation that no Israeli Prime Minister was previously even willing to discuss with the Palestinian leadership.

Although there is still a long way to go, I believe that if both sides are sincere in their desire for peace, a negotiated settlement is still possible, and it is my hope that Israel and its Palestinian neighbors will once again find themselves at the negotiating table in the not too distant future. I understand that Mr. Arafat, Prime Minister Barak, and President Clinton will be meeting in New York this week, and I hope the talks can get back on track. But if the Palestinians should choose to endanger the peace process by a unilateral declaration of statehood on September 13, the United States must be clear what our policy should be.

The United States has a vital and an important role to play as an honest broker in the region and as a guarantor of the peace process and any peace that may result. It is precisely our role as an honest broker that compels me to offer this legislation. If the Palestinians take unilateral steps that undermine the peace process, the United States must make it clear that we will neither condone nor support such actions.

I urge my colleagues to join the Senator from Indiana and me in sending a clear and compelling message in support of the Middle East peace process. Unilateral actions are not acceptable to the United States, and should the Palestinian Authority choose to break with the peace process, the United States will act accordingly.

Mr. President, it is my understanding that Senator SPECTER may well be coming to the floor to make some comments on this. If he does, I ask unanimous consent that his comments be reflected directly following mine and Senator LUGAR's.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. LUGAR. Mr. President, I rise to join Senator FEINSTEIN and other Members from both sides of the aisle to introduce the Unilateral Palestinian Statehood Disapproval Act of 2000. I am pleased to be an original co-sponsor of this legislation.

At the conclusion of the July round of negotiations between Israel and the Palestinian Authority at Camp David, Prime Minister Barak and Chairman Arafat issued a statement agreeing on the importance of ''avoiding unilateral action that prejudices the outcome of negotiations.'' They both acknowledged that progress is best assured if both parties refrain from unilateral actions that would have the effect of undermining the peace process.

After the Camp David talks ended, Chairman Arafat announced that he intended to unilaterally declare an independent Palestinian state by September 13 if negotiations with Israel did not conclude in a satisfactory manner by then. Such a statement is harmful to the negotiations and would be disastrous to the peace process.

It is important for the Congress to be heard on this issue. A unilateral declaration of a Palestinian state is objectionable and would create an unnecessary rupture in our ability to work with the Palestinian Authority to advance the peace process. It is my hope that Chairman Arafat will listen to the voices of other leaders in the Arab world, and elsewhere, which have counseled caution and urged him to refrain from these unilateral steps toward statehood.

Our legislation proposes several targeted limitations and restrictions on the Palestinian Authority should they decide to declare a Palestinian state in advance of a final agreement. It states that if Chairman Arafat unilaterally declares a Palestinian state, the U.S. should not recognize it, that we should work with our friends and allies not to recognize any such state, and that we should downgrade the Palestinian office in the United States to an information office.

The legislation places limitations on official U.S. assistance to a unilaterally declared Palestinian state but provides exceptions for cooperation on anti-terrorism and security matters. Our bill also urges the President to oppose membership to a unilaterally declared Palestinian state in the United Nations and to oppose any economic and financial assistance from the U.N., affiliated agencies and international financial institutions.

It is my hope that none of these restrictions will have to be implemented. Because we want to insure that the President can use all the tools available to him to assist the parties to succeed in the peace negotiations, we included a presidential national interest waiver authority on those provisions pertaining to economic and financial assistance.

I hope my colleagues will agree to support this legislation and the longstanding effort to construct a comprehensive peace in the Middle East.

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, I have sought recognition to comment about the statements by Palestinian Chairman Yasser Arafat that there may be a unilateral declaration of Palestinian statehood on September 13. That, in my judgment, would be a grave mistake, and the United States and our allies ought to do everything in our power to prevent Chairman Arafat of the Palestinian Authority from making that unilateral declaration of statehood.

When the Oslo accords were signed in 1993, there was an agreement that all of the outstanding issues between Israel and the Palestinian Authority would be negotiated with a solution. There have been very extensive discussions, including recent talks at Camp David, which have not produced that kind of an agreement and that has led Chairman Arafat to raise the issue—perhaps more accurately called ''threat''—to have a unilateral declaration of statehood on September 13.

I have cosponsored S. 3007, which was introduced today by the distinguished Senator from California, Mrs. FEINSTEIN, which calls for action by the United States in the event that there is a unilateral declaration of statehood. The bill contains provisions which would articulate the policy of the United States not to recognize a unilaterally declared Palestinian state, to extend diplomatic efforts to deny recognition by working with the allies of the United States, the European Union, Japan, and other countries, to downgrade the status of the Palestinian office in the United States if there should be such a unilateral declaration, to prohibit U.S. assistance to the Palestinian Authority if there should be such a unilateral declaration, to take steps to oppose Palestinian membership in the United Nations or other international organizations, and to oppose Palestinian membership in or assistance from the international financial institutions.

I believe this bill is an effective shot across the bow.

I wrote to Chairman Arafat on August 18 of this year, urging Chairman Arafat to abandon any thoughts about a unilateral declaration of statehood for the Palestinian Authority. I ask unanimous consent that the full text of this letter be printed in the RECORD at the conclusion of my statement.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

(See Exhibit 1.)

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, the essence of the letter which I wrote to Chairman Arafat is contained in two paragraphs where I say:

> . . . There is a strong feeling, both in the United States Senate and the United States House of Representatives, as well as that expressed by President Clinton, that there be no such unilateral declaration of statehood.
> There has been tremendous support in the Senate and House, as well as from the President, for an overall peace settlement and that Congressional support has included U.S. contributions to implement such an accord. That Congressional support would certainly be eroded by a unilateral declaration of statehood.

I had urged Chairman Arafat in the past to avoid a unilateral declaration of statehood when the possibility was raised that such a unilateral declaration might be made back on May 4, 1999.

Chairman Arafat came to the United States on March 23, and I was scheduled at that time to visit him in his hotel in Virginia, but shortly before our scheduled appointment I found that Chairman Arafat was visiting on the House side in the Capitol complex, and I had an opportunity to invite Chairman Arafat to my Capitol office.

At that time, we had an extensive discussion where I urged him not to make the unilateral declaration of statehood. He asked me at that time, if he would refrain from that unilateral declaration of statehood, whether I would make a statement saying it was a wise course of action, giving recognition to the restraint of Chairman Arafat and the Palestinian Authority. I said I would do so and that I would make a statement on the floor of the Senate on May 5 if Chairman Arafat and the Palestinian Authority, in fact, did not make a unilateral declaration of statehood. I wrote Chairman Arafat to that effect on March 31, 1999.

I ask unanimous consent that a copy of this letter be printed in the Congressional RECORD at the conclusion of my statement.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

(See exhibit 2.)

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, I made two statements for the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—one on April 26, 1999, which I incorporate by reference, and another statement on May 4, 1999, when Chairman Arafat and the Palestinian Authority did not make a unilateral declaration of statehood.

The meeting I had with Chairman Arafat in my Capitol office was a very interesting one and a very constructive one. One note which I had referred to in one of my earlier statements on the floor is worth a very brief reference. I have a very large poster which has a joint picture of President Clinton with thumbs up and a picture of Chairman Arafat right next to him making the V sign, obviously not taken together but juxtaposed together on one large poster. It looks like a campaign poster, almost as if the two men were running for political office, which, of course, they were not.

I had accompanied President Clinton on his trip to Israel in December of 1998. I saw the poster and thought it a nice item of memorabilia and had it framed and put in my Capitol office. When Chairman Arafat saw his picture on my wall, it did a good bit more than any of my persuasive comments to establish an aura of goodwill in a complimentary sense. He very much liked seeing his picture there. In fact, he wanted to take a picture of the two of us standing in front of his picture, which now stands beside the poster in my Capitol office.

I mention that because of the—I am searching for the right word. ''Congenial meeting'' might not be exactly right, but it was a businesslike meeting where Chairman Arafat listened to my arguments against a unilateral declaration of statehood.

When I recite this, I do not really mean to suggest my voice was the determinative voice. I think that comported with what the Palestinian Authority had in mind in any event. I think every extra bit of pressure that can be brought ought to be brought. That is why I wrote to Chairman Arafat earlier this year, on August 18, and that is why I am supporting the bill introduced by the Senator from California, Mrs. FEINSTEIN, which would impose certain restraints and, in effect, certain sanctions on the Palestinian Authority if they do make a unilateral declaration of statehood. In my judgment, it would set back the peace process between Israel and the Palestinian Authority substantially. I retain some optimism that the differences between Israel and the Palestinian Authority may yet be reconciled.

I compliment the President and the Secretary of State for their very extensive efforts to try to bring about that accord. I believe those efforts should be continued and intensified. I also compliment Dennis Ross of the State Department who has done so much in the negotiating process with the parties.

While there are meetings underway at the United Nations, there may be some occasion for the President to act further in consultation with Israeli Prime Minister Barak and Palestinian Authority Chairman Yasser Arafat to try to bring about advances on the peace process and ultimately an accord. But certainly a unilateral declaration of statehood by the Palestinian Authority would be met with grave opposition in this Chamber—I know that for a certainty—and I believe also in the House of Representatives.

In conclusion, I urge Chairman Arafat and his colleagues in the Palestinian Authority not to make a unilateral declaration of statehood on September 13, or at any other time, but to continue the peace process to try to work out outstanding differences in accordance with the commitments made by the Palestinian Authority on the Oslo accord.

I thank the Chair and yield the floor.

U.S. SENATE,
COMMITTEE ON VETERANS' AFFAIRS,
Washington, DC, March 31, 1999.

Chairman YASSER ARAFAT,
President of the National Authority,
Gaza City, GAZA, Palestinian National Authority.

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: Thank you very much for coming to my Senate hideaway and for our very productive discussion on March 23.

Following up on that discussion, I urge that the Palestinian Authority not make a unilateral declaration of statehood on May 4 or on any subsequent date. The issue of the Palestinian state is a matter for negotiation under the terms of the Oslo Accords.

I understand your position that this issue will not be decided by you alone but will be submitted to the Palestinian Authority Council.

When I was asked at our meeting whether you and the Palestinian Authority would receive credit for refraining from the unilateral declaration of statehood, I replied that I would go to the Senate floor on May 5 or as soon thereafter as possible and compliment your action in not unilaterally declaring a Palestinian state.

I look forward to continuing discussions with you on the important issues in the Mid-East peace process.

Sincerely,

ARLEN SPECTER.

EXHIBIT 2

U.S. SENATE,
COMMITTEE ON VETERANS' AFFAIRS,
Washington, DC, August 18, 2000.

Chairman YASSER ARAFAT,
President of the National Authority,
Gaza City, GAZA, Palestinian National Authority.

DEAR CHAIRMAN ARAFAT: On March 23, 1999, when you visited my Senate Office in Washington, I urged you not to make a unilateral declaration of Palestinian statehood, which had been discussed as a possibility for May 4, 2000.

At that time, I told you that I would make a statement on the Senate floor on May 5, 1999, praising your decision not to declare statehood unilaterally if, in fact, you made that decision. You did not declare statehood on May 4, 1999; and, as promised, I made the statement on the Senate floor. For your re-review, I enclose a copy of that statement.

Now, again, there is talk that there may be a unilateral declaration of Palestinian statehood on September 13, 2000. Again, I urge you not to make such a declaration, but to continue negotiations to try to work out an overall agreement with Israel.

I know that there is a strong feeling, both in the United States Senate and the United States House of Representatives, as well as that expressed by President Clinton, that there be no such unilateral declaration of statehood.

There has been tremendous support in the Senate and House, as well as from the President, for an overall peace settlement and that Congressional support has included U.S. contributions to implement such an accord. That Congressional support would certainly be eroded by a unilateral declaration of statehood.

If you do not make such a unilateral declaration of Palestinian statehood on September 13, I will again speak on the Senate floor in praise of your restraint.

Again, I urge you to renew discussions with Israel for an overall settlement.

I look forward to our next meeting when you are in Washington or I am in the Mideast.

Sincerely,

ARLEN SPECTER.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, before the Senator from Pennsylvania leaves the floor, I want the RECORD to reflect the statements he has made are bipartisan in nature. I underline and underscore the importance of the statement of the Senator from Pennsylvania. I think it would be very unwise for Chairman Arafat to move unilaterally on establishing statehood. I hope he will sit back and look at the great loss that will take place if an agreement is not reached at this time.

I commend and applaud the Senator from Pennsylvania for his statement.

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, I thank my distinguished colleague from Nevada for those very timely comments. It is important to have that note of bipartisanship. May the RECORD further reflect, 20 minutes ago the distinguished Senator from New Mexico said he wanted to do something sharp at 6 p.m., and the big hand is at the 12 and the little hand is at the 6 in this instant.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, if I knew when I asked the Senator from Pennsylvania if he could be finished in 20 minutes that he was going to be delivering such an important speech, I might have been reluctant to ask him. I do commend him on that speech—not the brevity and coming in on time, but the substance is very important.

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, I thank my colleague from New Mexico for those comments. We have worked together for many years and earlier today on the Appropriations Committee, and I appreciate what he just said.

By Mr. JEFFORDS (for himself, Mr. KENNEDY, and Mr. FEINGOLD):

S. 3008. A bill to amend the Age Discrimination in Employment Act of 1967 to require, as a condition of receipt of Federal funding, that States waive immunity to suit for certain violations of that Act, and to affirm the availability of certain suits for injunctive relief to ensure compliance with that Act; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

THE OLDER WORKERS RIGHTS RESTORATION ACT OF 2000

Mr. JEFFORDS. Mr. President, I am pleased to be here today to introduce legislation that will restore to state employees the ability to bring claims of age discrimination against their employers under the Age Discrimination and Employment Act of 1967. The Older Workers Rights Restoration Act of 2000 seeks to provide state employees who allege age discrimination the same procedures and remedies as those afforded to other employees with respect to ADEA.

This legislation is needed to protect older workers like Professor Dan Kimel, who has taught physics at Florida State University for nearly 35 years. Despite his years of faithful service, in 1992, Professor Kimel found that he was earning less in real dollars than his starting salary. To add insult to injury, his employer was hiring younger faculty out of graduate schools at salaries that were higher than he and other long-service faculty members were earning. In 1995, Professor Kimel and 34 colleagues brought a claim of age discrimination against the Florida Board of Regents.

Dan Kimel and his colleagues brought their cases under the Age Discrimination and Employment Act of 1967 (''ADEA''). In 1974, Congress amended the ADEA to ensure that state employees, such as Dan Kimel has full protection against age discrimination. I stand before you today because this past January the Supreme Court ruled that Dan Kimel and other affected faculty do not have the right to bring their ADEA claims against their employer. The Court in Kimel v. Florida Board of Regents, held that Congress did not have the power to abrogate state sovereign immunity to individuals under the ADEA. As a result of the decision, state employees, who are victims of age discrimination, no longer have the remedies that are available to individuals who work in the private sector, for local governments or for federal government. Indeed, unless a state chooses to waive its sovereign immunity or the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission decides to bring a suit, state workers now find themselves with no federal remedy for their claims of age discrimination. In effect, this decision has transformed older state employees into second class citizens.

For a right without a remedy is no right at all. Employees should not have to lose their right to redress simply because they happen to work for a state government. And a considerable portion of our workforce has been impacted. In Vermont, for example, the State is one of our largest employers. We cannot and should not permit these state workers to lose the right to redress age discrimination.

This legislation will resolve this problem. The Older Workers Rights Restoration Act of 2000 will restore the full protections of the ADEA to Dan Kimel and countless other state employees in federally assisted programs. The legislation will do this by requiring the states to waive their sovereign immunity as a condition of receiving federal funds for their programs or activities. The Older Workers Rights Restoration Act of 2000 follows the framework of many other civil rights laws, including the Civil Rights Restoration Act of 1987. Under this framework, immunity is only waived with regard to the program or activity actually receiving federal funds. States are not obligated to accept such funds; and if they do not they are immune from private ADEA suits. The legislation also confirms that these employees may bring actions for equitable relief under the ADEA.

I urge all my colleagues to join me in supporting this bill.

I ask unanimous consent that a copy of this bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 3008

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the ''Older Workers Rights Restoration Act of 2000''.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

Congress finds the following:

(1) Since 1974, the Age Discrimination in Employment Act of 1967 (29 U.S.C. 621 et seq.) has prohibited States from discriminating in employment on the basis of age. In EEOC v. Wyoming, 460 U.S. 226 (1983), the Supreme Court upheld Congress' constitutional authority to prohibit States from discriminating in employment on the basis of age. The prohibitions of the Age Discrimination in Employment Act of 1967 remain in effect and continue to apply to the States, as the prohibitions have for more than 25 years.

(2) Age discrimination in employment remains a serious problem both nationally and among State agencies, and has invidious effects on its victims, the labor force, and the economy as a whole. For example, age discrimination in employment—

(A) increases the risk of unemployment among older workers, who will as a result be more likely to be dependent on government resources;

(B) prevents the best use of available labor resources;

(C) adversely effects the morale and productivity of older workers; and

(D) perpetuates unwarranted stereotypes about the abilities of older workers.

(3) Private civil suits by the victims of employment discrimination have been a crucial tool for enforcement of the Age Discrimination in Employment Act of 1967 since the enactment of that Act. In Kimel v. Florida Board of Regents, 120 S. Ct. 631 (2000), however, the Supreme Court held that Congress lacks the power under the 14th amendment to abrogate State sovereign immunity to suits by individuals under the Age Discrimination in Employment Act of 1967. The Federal Government has an important interest in ensuring that Federal funds are not used to facilitate violation of, the Age Discrimination in Employment Act of 1967. Private civil suits are a critical tool for advancing that interest.

(4) As a result of the Kimel decision, although age-based discrimination by State employers remains unlawful, the victims of such discrimination lack important remedies for vindication of their rights that are available to all other employees covered under the Act, including employees in the private sector, of local government, and of the Federal Government. Unless a State chooses to waive sovereign immunity, or the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission brings an action on their behalf, State employees victimized by violations of the Age Discrimination in Employment Act of 1967 have no adequate Federal remedy for violations of the Act. In the absence of the deterrent effect that such remedies provide, there is a greater likelihood that entities carrying out federally funded programs and activities will use Federal funds to violate the Act, or that the Federal funds will otherwise subsidize or facilitate violations of the Act.

(5) Federal law has long treated nondiscrimination obligations as a core component of programs or activities that are, in whole or part, assisted by Federal funds. Federal funds should not be used, directly or indirectly, to subsidize invidious discrimination. Assuring nondiscrimination in employment is a crucial aspect of assuring nondiscrimination in those programs and activities.

(6) Discrimination on the basis of age in federally assisted programs or activities is, in contexts other than employment, forbidden by the Age Discrimination Act of 1975 (42 U.S.C. 6101 et seq.). Congress determined that it was not necessary for the Age Discrimination Act of 1975 to apply to employment discrimination because the Age Discrimination in Employment Act of 1974 already forbade discrimination in employment by, and authorized suits against, State agencies and other entities that receive Federal funds. In section 1003 of the Rehabilitation Act Amendments of 1986 (42 U.S.C. 2000d–7), Congress required all State recipients of Federal assistance to waive any immunity from suit for discrimination claims arising under the Age Discrimination Act of 1975. The earlier limitation in the Age Discrimination Act of 1975, originally intended only to avoid duplicative coverage and remedies, has in the wake of the Kimel decision become a serious loophole leaving millions of State employees without an important Federal remedy for age discrimination resulting in the use of such funds to subsidize or facilitate violations of the Age Discrimination in Employment Act of 1967.

(7) The Supreme Court has upheld Congress' authority to condition receipt of Federal funds on acceptance by the States or other recipients of conditions regarding or related to the use of those funds, as in Cannon v. University of Chicago, 441 U.S. 677 (1979). The Court has further recognized that Congress may require a State, as a condition of receipt of Federal assistance, to waive the State's sovereign immunity to suits for a violation of Federal law, as in College Savings Bank v. Florida Prepaid Postsecondary Education Expense Board, 527 U.S. 666 (1999). In the wake of the Kimel decision, in order to assure compliance with, and to provide effective remedies for violations of, the Age Discrimination in Employment Act of 1967 in State programs or activities receiving Federal assistance, and in order to ensure that Federal funds do not subsidize or facilitate violations of the Age Discrimination in Employment Act of 1967, it is necessary to require such a waiver as a condition of receipt of that Federal financial assistance.

(8) The waiver resulting from the acceptance of Federal funds by 1 State program or activity under this Act will not eliminate a State's immunity with respect to other programs or activities that do not receive Federal funds; a State waives sovereign immunity only with respect to Age Discrimination in Employment Act of 1967 suits brought by employees within the programs or activities that receive such funds. With regard to those programs and activities that are covered by the waiver, the State employees will be accorded only the same remedies that were available to State employees under the Age Discrimination in Employment Act of 1967 before Kimel and that are accorded to all other covered employees under the Act.

(9) The Supreme Court has repeatedly held that State sovereign immunity does not bar suits for prospective injunctive relief brought against State officials, as in ex parte Young, 209 U.S. 123 (1908). Clarification of the language of the Age Discrimination in Employment Act of 1967 will confirm that the Act authorizes such suits. The injunctive relief available in such suits will continue to be no broader than the injunctive relief that was available under the Act before the Kimel decision, and that is available to all other employees under that Act.

SEC. 3. PURPOSES.

The purposes of this Act are—

(1) to provide to State employees in federally assisted programs or activities the same rights and remedies for practices violating the Age Discrimination in Employment Act of 1967 as are available to other employees under that Act, and that were available to State employees prior to the Supreme Court's decision in Kimel v. Florida Board of Regents, 120 S. Ct. 631 (2000);

(2) to provide that the receipt of Federal funding for use in a program or activity constitutes a State waiver of sovereign immunity from suits by employees within that program or activity for violations of the Age Discrimination in Employment Act of 1967; and

(3) to affirm that suits for equitable relief are available against State officials in their official capacities for violations of the Age Discrimination in Employment Act of 1967.

SEC. 4. REMEDIES FOR STATE EMPLOYEES.

Section 7 of the Age Discrimination in Employment Act of 1967 (29 U.S.C. 626) is amended by adding at the end the following:

''(g)(1)(A) A State's receipt or use of Federal financial assistance in any program or activity of a State shall constitute a waiver of sovereign immunity, under the 11th amendment to the Constitution or otherwise, to a suit brought by an employee of that program or activity under this Act for equitable, legal, or other relief authorized under this Act.

''(B) In this paragraph, the term 'program or activity' has the meaning given the term in section 309 of the Age Discrimination Act of 1975 (42 U.S.C. 6107).

''(2) An official of a State may be sued in the official capacity of the official by any employee who has complied with the procedures of subsections (d) and (e), for equitable relief that is authorized under this Act. In such a suit the court may award to the prevailing party those costs authorized by section 722 of the Revised Statutes (42 U.S.C. 1988).''.

SEC. 5. SEVERABILITY.

If any provision of this Act, an amendment made by this Act, or the application of such provision or amendment to any person or circumstance is held to be unconstitutional, the remainder of this Act, the amendments made by this Act, and the application of such provision or amendment to another person or circumstance shall not be affected.

SEC. 6. EFFECTIVE DATE.

(a) WAIVER OF SOVEREIGN IMMUNITY.—With respect to a particular program or activity, section 7(g)(1) of the Age Discrimination in Employment Act of 1967 (29 U.S.C. 626(g)(1)) applies to conduct occurring on or after the day, after the date of enactment of this Act, on which a State first receives Federal financial assistance for use in that program or activity.

(b) SUITS AGAINST OFFICIALS.—Section 7(g)(2) of the Age Discrimination in Employment Act of 1967 (29 U.S.C. 626(g)(2)) applies to any suit pending on or after the date of enactment of this Act.

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, I am pleased to join my distinguished colleagues, Senator JEFFORDS and Senator KENNEDY, as an original cosponsor of the Older Workers Rights Restoration Act of 2000.

With advances in medicine and science, Americans are living longer than ever before. This means that older Americans are also working longer than ever before. We should ensure that those Americans who work well into the golden years of their lives—including state employees—can do so without fear of being denied a job, fired or overlooked for a promotion based on their age.

Since enactment of the Age Discrimination in Employment Act in 1967, our Nation has come a long way in eliminating age discrimination in the workplace. But the Supreme Court's decision earlier this year in Kimel v. Florida Board of Regents threatens to turn back the clock on the progress we've made. Under that decision, a state employee who has a claim of employment discrimination based on age cannot bring a private lawsuit against a state government under the Age Discrimination in Employment Act. The state government is immune from such suits. The individual's only legal recourse is to file a complaint with the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission and hope that the EEOC takes the case. But the EEOC has limited resources and only pursues a fraction of the cases filed.

Mr. President, this result is unacceptable. Older American workers make important contributions to their employers—both businesses and governments, at the state and federal levels. Older Americans should be able to work free of even a hint of discrimination. And older Americans employed by state governments deserve the same protections against discrimination on the job that other older Americans employed by private businesses or the federal government enjoy.

This bill that we introduce today would do just that. It ensures that state employees in federally assisted programs or activities have the same rights and remedies for practices violating the Age Discrimination in Employment Act as are available to other employees under that act and that were available to state employees prior to the Supreme Court's Kimel decision.

Mr. President, I have had a longstanding commitment to aging issues, both as a U.S. Senator and, previously, as a Wisconsin State Senator. In the U.S. Senate, I have served on the Special Committee on Aging. In the Wisconsin state senate, I served for ten years as the chairman of the Senate Committee on Aging. In fact, the first legislation I introduced as a state senator was a bill to eliminate mandatory retirement. That bill passed and was signed into law. As a result, older Wisconsin residents have the right to work without being forced to retire at a certain age.

I look forward to working with Senator JEFFORDS to move this important legislation through the Senate. I urge my colleagues to join us in taking this step toward restoring protections for state employees against age discrimination.

Thank you, Mr. President. I yield the floor.

By Mr. GRASSLEY:

S. 3010. A bill to amend title 38, United States Code, to improve procedures for the determination of the inability of veterans to defray expenses of necessary medical care, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Veterans' Affairs.

LEGISLATION FOR THE BENEFIT OF LAND-RICH CASH POOR VETERANS

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, I am today introducing a bill which would exclude the value of real property of a veteran, or a veteran's spouse or dependent, in determining how a veteran's eligibility for health care from the Department of Veterans Affair (VA) is classified. The bill would also simplify eligibility determinations by eliminating the annual self-reporting burden for veterans, and instead enable the Department to obtain income information directly from the Internal Revenue Service and the Social Security Administration.

The problem asset-rich, cash-poor veterans experience in gaining eligibility for veterans pension and health care benefits was brought to my attention late last year by one of my constituents, Larry Sundall. Larry is one of Iowa's county veterans service officers. He serves veterans in Emmet County, in northwest Iowa. In the course of his work, he was finding that many of his farmer-veteran constituents where in desperate straits with no, or little, income, but still could not qualify for VA pension programs without selling their land. Because of the value of their land, these veterans would also be classified in Category 7 for purposes of health service eligibility in the event they sought health care from the VA. Category 7 veterans can receive health care services as long as the VA has sufficient funds. However, they are required to pay co-payments for any health care they receive through the VA because of the value of their land, even if they have no income and are in debt to boot. If the administration and Congress don't appropriate enough money, these Category 7 veterans will not be eligible for health care services from the VA.

At Larry's urging, I decided to convene a meeting of interested parties in Des Moines last April to talk over this issue. Because many of his county veterans officials in Iowa, Minnesota, Nebraska, and South Dakota were encountering constituents with similar problems, we invited the associations of county veterans service officers from those states to send a representative to participate. We invited the State Veterans Affairs Officers from those states. VA staff from headquarters, regional offices, and VISNs also participated. The meeting was very useful and informative from my perspective, and I am grateful to all who participated. As it happens, the VA's Health Services Administration had already recognized the asset test as a problem for veterans and had formed a task force to look into the feasibility of eliminating the asset test. The Veterans Benefits Administration had also begun to discuss the issue. In any case, VA participants at the meeting agreed to convey the essentials of our discussion to principal officials at VA headquarters.

The problem follows from a provision of Title 38 which holds that the Secretary may deny benefits to a veteran ''. . . when the corpus of the estate of the veteran . . . is such that under all the circumstances . . . it is reasonable that some part of the corpus of such estates be consumed for the veteran's maintenance''. In other words, if the income and estate of a veteran are large enough, they should be used before the veteran receives benefits from the VA. The law also states, however, that liquidations of assets should be required only when it can be done at ''no substantial sacrifice'' to the veteran. Regulations implementing this provision of law contain essentially the same language. The complications begin with a VA manual, 21–1, which lays out criteria to be used by VA staff in adjudicating eligibility for pension and health benefits. Under the criteria set out in M21–1, the net worth of a veteran must be adjudicated when the veteran's income and net worth is greater than $50,000. Ownership of $50,000 of farm land or other real property does not automatically and inevitably mean that adjudicators will declare a farmer veteran ineligible for these VA programs. In principle, the $50,000 is just a threshold which is to trigger adjudication of a veteran's claim for benefits, not to automatically disqualify a veteran for benefits.

But there are two problems with the treatment of assets in the schema. First is the $50,000 level. It's obviously much too low, even as a trigger for adjudication. In Iowa currently, the average value of an acre of farm land is $1,781. So a farm holding valued at $50,000 would average about 28 acres, clearly two small to be viable. A 40 acre farm, at the current average value per acre, would be worth $71,240. A more viable 80 acre farm would be valued at $142,480. It seems to me, therefore, that the threshold triggering review of a farmer veteran's income and assets should be raised to $150,000. But, second, and more fundamentally, the law stipulates, as I noted earlier, that divestiture of an estate should not involve ''substantial sacrifice''. It is difficult for me to see that selling off the family farm, in many, if not most, cases, the sole source of livelihood for a farm family, would not involve substantial sacrifice. It thus seems inherently unrealistic to require a veteran to liquidate land holdings in order to become eligible for VA pension benefits or in order to pay co-payments for VA health care services.

What the bill I am introducing today would do is eliminate completely the asset test as a factor is establishing eligibility for health care services. A veteran's income, however, would still be considered in eligibility determinations. The bill would also permit the Secretary to determine the attributable income of the veteran using income date from the year preceding the prior year in the event that the Secretary is unable to use prior year data. Finally, the bill would permit the Secretary to use information obtained from the Secretary of the Department of Health and Human Services and the Treasury for the purpose of determining the attributable income of a veteran.

The VA estimates that this proposal should save the VA money, Mr. President. They estimate that more than $11 million would be saved in fiscal year 2001, growing to more than $13 million in fiscal year 2005.

I ask that the full text of the bill be included in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 3010

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. IMPROVEMENT OF PROCEDURES FOR DETERMINATION OF INABILITY TO DEFRAY EXPENSES OF NECESSARY MEDICAL CARE.

(a) EXCLUSION OF CERTAIN ASSETS FROM ATTRIBUTABLE INCOME AND CORPUS OF ESTATES.—Subsection (f) of section 1722 of title 38, United States Code, is amended—

(1) in paragraph (1), by inserting before the period at the end the following: '', except that such income shall not include the value of any real property of the veteran or the veteran's spouse or dependent children, if any, or any income of the veteran's dependent children, if any''; and

(2) in paragraph (2), by striking ''the estates'' and all that follows and inserting ''the estate of the veteran's spouse, if any, but does not include any real property of the veteran, the veteran's spouse, or any dependent children of the veteran, nor any income of dependent children of the veteran.''.

(b) ALTERNATIVE YEAR FOR DETERMINATION OF ATTRIBUTABLE INCOME.—That section is further amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

''(h) For purposes of determining the attributable income of a veteran under this section, the Secretary may determine the attributable income of the veteran for the year preceding the previous year, rather than for the previous year, if the Secretary finds that available data do not permit a timely determination of the attributable income of the veteran for the previous year for such purposes.''.

(c) USE OF INCOME INFORMATION FROM CERTAIN OTHER FEDERAL AGENCIES.—Section 5317 of that title is amended—

(1) by redesignating subsections (f) and (g) as subsections (g) and (h), respectively; and

(2) by inserting after subsection (e) the following new subsection (f):

''(f) In addition to any other activities under this section, the Secretary may utilize income information obtained under this section from the Secretary of Health and Human Services or the Secretary of the Treasury for the purpose of determining the attributable income of a veteran under section 1722 of this title, in lieu of obtaining income information directly from the veteran for that purpose.''.

(d) PERMANENT AUTHORITY TO OBTAIN INFORMATION.—(1) Section 5317 of that title, as amended by subsection (c), is further amended by striking subsection (h).

(2) Section 6103(l)(7)(D) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (26 U.S.C. 6103(l)(7)(D)) is amended in the flush matter at the end by striking the second sentence.

By Mr. LEAHY:

S. 3012. A bill to amend title 18, United States Code, to impose criminal and civil penalties for false statements and failure to file reports concerning defects in foreign motor vehicle products, and to require the timely provision of notice of such defects, and for other purposes; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

TRANSPORTATION INFORMATION RECALL ENHANCEMENT ACT

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, like so many Americans, I have been faced with a barrage of confusing and frightening information about the recent Firestone tire recall. I have a Ford Explorer, and it has Firestone tires on it. My wife and I drive it and take our children and our friends and others for rides in that vehicle. So I understand what a lot of my fellow Vermonters are going through regarding this deadly episode. It never should have happened.

But it is not just Explorer owners who are at risk—pedestrians, joggers, bicyclists, and other cars could be hit by out-of-control vehicles or by tire pieces.

The tires on my car are the same size and type as those covered by the recall. But they were manufactured at a different plant—a North Carolina plant. Even though employees of that plant have raised serious concerns about quality control in that factory, the tires on my Explorer are not eligible for the recall. But I have to tell you, I look long at them each time I get into the vehicle, and it is in the back of my mind every time I drive.

Even though they tell me that they are not yet the subject of a recall, I wonder what tomorrow's news may bring.

The first foreign recall occurred on August 1999, but the Secretary of Transportation apparently was not even informed of this by the manufacturer until May of 2000—nearly a year after the fact. That is outrageous. It is unacceptable. Worse yet, that kind of delay has proven deadly. I don't even want to think about the lives that could have been saved had there been quicker action, and had the manufacturers been honest enough to notify the public immediately.

Even after the recall was issued, the deadly risk continues as families have to wait to get replacement tires. I want to mention one sad case. A grandfather, Gary Meek of Farmersville, California, was a retired police officer. He, his wife and granddaughter, Amy, 13 years old, were driving on August 16, a couple weeks ago, when a Firestone tire on the Ford Explorer separated. His wife survived the crash, but Mr. Meek and his granddaughter were killed. His widow has to carry on with those awful memories.

I am going to introduce legislation today to mandate that the Secretary of Transportation be immediately notified of defects in motor vehicles or vehicle components—immediately after the foreign manufacturer becomes aware of the dangerous defect or when the manufacturer is notified about the defect by the foreign government. This notification would be earlier in time than the beginning of a foreign recall or any efforts to replace the defective product.

My bill also requires the manufacturer file a full report on the circumstances regarding each defective vehicle or vehicle component. The bill will impose stiff criminal penalties for false or misleading statements, or efforts to coverup the truth, regarding these reports. It also imposes criminal and civil penalties for other violations of the bill. In other words, if tires are defective, or are going to be recalled or replaced in some other country, they have to notify us—and notify us accurately and truthfully.

One would think some of these foreign tire companies would feel a moral duty to save lives. You would think that would be enough to motivate them. One would think even the idea of huge fines might motivate them. That doesn't seem to be enough. Maybe if they think they will get a jail sentence if they don't notify us truthfully, maybe, they will put the interests of the lives and safety of the public ahead of the short-term gains of their own companies.

My bill, the Transportation Information Recall Enhancement Act, requires notification of a foreign dangerous defect within 48 hours. It requires even more detailed information filings a few days later. My bill also requires notification of increases in deaths or serious injuries in foreign countries regarding vehicles and vehicle components that could prove deadly if they are on American soil.

Secretary Slater said in an interview that there should be a law requiring that the United States be immediately notified of foreign recalls. We are on the way to making that a reality. I will work with any Senator, Republican or Democrat, on this issue so we can pass this legislation or any other bill to get the job done in the next couple of weeks.

It is incomprehensible to me how any corporate executives can live with themselves when they withhold information that could have saved people's lives. If they are going to conceal the truth or make false statements, they should face criminal sanctions. Sometimes if a person thinks they are going to end up in the slammer, they will pay a lot more attention to the safety of people, rather than simply looking at the balance sheet.

For example, we just received reports about Mitsubishi over the past two decades. For 20 years, they routinely withheld information about dangerous products which ended up in America and other countries. These corporate officers should be forced to explain their inaction to the families of those who have been injured using their products. Maybe Americans should not buy any Mitsubishi products because they lied for 20 years. Criminal penalties are clearly needed. In the global economy there has to be some compassion for the suffering that is sometimes caused around the world. There seems to be almost a disconnect. The President of Ford Motors, for example, when he heard that Congress was going to question him, at first was unwilling to testify personally.

I think he heard an almost national outcry over that insolence and disregard of the people of this country, insolence and arrogance that kept him from realizing how concerned Americans were. Fortunately, he changed his mind and found the time. I suspect the appropriate congressional committees would have gotten a subpoena, and the result would have been the same. He would have testified.

Every corporation has a right to sell their products. Every corporation has a right to make a decent profit. They ought to be able to do that. When they know they have a product that can bring about death or injury, and especially when only they know it and nobody else does, they ought to make those facts known. The law should be very clear that they have to make it known. If they manufacture a product in this country to sell both here and abroad, if there are problems in the other country and the product is defective, they should notify this country of that fact. They will lose some business in the short term. In the long term, they will do better. The American public will be secure, and the American public will not be endangered.

What Firestone did, what Ford did, and for that matter, what Mitsubishi did, was wrong. It was absolutely wrong. I want corporate leaders never to do this again. I want a law that says if you provide information to our government regarding defective products that is false, misleading or untruthful that you are going to go to jail.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to print a summary of the bill in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 3012

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the ''Transportation Information Recall Enhancement Act''.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS AND PURPOSE.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that—

(1) in an interview with ABC News on September 3, 2000, Secretary of Transportation Rodney Slater stated that he thinks there should be a law requiring that the United States be immediately notified of a foreign recall, ''especially in the global economy when you've got U.S. goods really being used by individuals around the world. We should know when there's a problem someplace else.'';

(2) as of the date of enactment of this Act, there is no legal requirement for manufacturers of motor vehicles and their components to notify United States agencies of a recall issued in a foreign country;

(3) between August 1999 and spring 2000, Ford Motor Company replaced Firestone tires on 46,912 vehicles in Saudi Arabia, Thailand, Malaysia, and South America;

(4)(A) on May 2, 2000, the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration opened a preliminary evaluation into Firestone ATX, ATX II, and Wilderness AT tires after receiving 90 complaints, primarily from consumers in the Southeast and Southwest, about tread separations or blowouts;

(B) as of September 2000, the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration has received over 1,400 complaints, including reports of more than 250 injuries and 88 deaths; and

(C) some of the complaints date back to the early 1990s, and 797 of the complaints report that a tire failure took place between August 1, 1999, and August 9, 2000; and

(5)(A) on August 9, 2000, Bridgestone/Firestone announced a United States recall of 6,500,000 ATX, ATX II, and Wilderness AT tires; and

(B) that date was 3 months after the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration commenced its investigation and nearly 9 months after Ford Motor Company initiated the replacement of the tires in foreign countries.

(b) PURPOSE.—The purpose of this Act is to ensure that defects in motor vehicles or replacement equipment in foreign countries are quickly, accurately and truthfully reported to the United States Secretary of Transportation in cases in which—

(1) the motor vehicles or replacement equipment is manufactured for export to the United States; or

(2) the motor vehicles or replacement equipment is manufactured in the United States using a manufacturing process that is the same as, or similar to, the manufacturing process used in the foreign country, with the result that the motor vehicles or replacement equipment manufactured in the United States may also be defective.

SEC. 3. CRIMINAL AND CIVIL PENALTIES IN CONNECTION WITH REPORTING OF DEFECTS IN FOREIGN MOTOR VEHICLE PRODUCTS.

''(3) makes or uses a false writing or document knowing that the writing or document contains any materially false, fictitious, or fraudulent statement or entry; shall be fined under this title, imprisoned not more than 5 years, or both.

''(2) COMPROMISE OF PENALTY.—The Attorney General may compromise the amount of a civil penalty imposed under paragraph (1).

''(3) DETERMINATION OF AMOUNT.—In determining the amount of a civil penalty or compromise under this subsection, the Attorney General shall consider—

''(A) the appropriateness of the penalty or compromise in relation to the size of the business of the manufacturer liable for the penalty; and

''(B) the gravity of the violation.

''(4) DEDUCTION OF AMOUNT OF PENALTY.—The United States Government may deduct the amount of the civil penalty imposed or compromised under this section from any amount that the Government owes the manufacturer liable for the penalty.''.

SEC. 5. EFFECTIVE DATE.

This Act and the amendments made by this Act take effect on the date that is 180 days after the date of enactment of this Act.

SUMMARY

This Act will provide criminal penalties for making false or misleading statements in notifications or reports made to the U.S. Government regarding recalls or replacement actions regarding motor vehicles and component parts. This criminal liability and the requirements for providing notice is triggered when a foreign government makes the manufacturer aware of the defect in motor vehicles or replacement parts, even before it triggers recalls or replacement actions.

This Act will help ensure accurate, truthful information and timely notice regarding recalls or replacement actions concerning defective motor vehicles or replacement equipment such as tires in foreign countries are quickly reported to the United States Secretary of Transportation where such vehicles are manufactured for export to the United States or where the defective product or equipment is manufactured in the United States in a manner that is similar to its manufacture in the foreign country and thus may likewise be dangerous.

The notification must be provided to the Secretary within 48 hours of when the foreign manufacturer learns or is notified of the defect by the foreign government. Within 5 days of that 48-hour deadline, a more detailed, accurate and truthful report must be provided to the Secretary of Transportation describing the basis for actions taken and providing information about serious injuries or fatalities related to the defect.

In addition, even if a defect is not identified, the Secretary must be notified each time there is a significant increase in deaths or serious injuries in a foreign country related to vehicles or vehicle components manufactured in foreign countries for export to the United States or related to vehicles or components manufactured in the United States using similar manufacturing processes (as are used in the foreign country), as defined in regulations of the Secretary.

Failure to comply with these requirements, and any related requirements set by the Secretary under the bill, shall result in a civil money penalty of up to $500,000, per day. In addition, for manufacturers or employees of foreign motor vehicle products (manufacturing vehicles for export to the United States or using manufacturing processes similar to that used in the United States) who in reporting to the Secretary knowingly or willfully: falsifies, conceals, or covers up a material fact; makes a materially false, fictitious, or fraudulent statement or representation; or makes a false writing or document, shall be imprisoned for up to 5 years and shall be subject to criminal fines of up to $500,000 for corporations, or $250,000 for individuals.

This Act shall be effective beginning six months after enactment.

By Mrs. MURRAY:

S.J Res. 51. A joint resolution authorizing special awards to veterans of service as United States Navy Armed Guards during World War I or World War II; to the Committee on Armed Services.

LEGISLATION TO HONOR NAVAL ARMED GUARD VETERANS

Mrs. MURRAY. Mr. President, I am introducing legislation today to provide a long overdue honor to a distinguished group of American veterans. The United States Naval Armed Guard made heroic contributions to our naval efforts in World War I and World War II and the time has come for a grateful nation to recognize these brave veterans.

The Armed Guard consisted of the officers, gunners, radiomen, signalmen and later medics and radarmen who were placed on cargo ships to protect them from armed assault.

The U.S. Navy Armed Guard was first constituted during World War I and armed gunners served on 384 ships. During World War II, the U.S. Navy Armed Guard served on 6,236 merchant ships. 710 of these ships were sunk and many more were damaged in combat. The Armed Guard has 144,970 men assigned to it before the war ended in 1945. 1,810 men were killed during engagements with the enemy.

I am here today because the contributions to victories in the two world wars of these fine patriots has never been recognized by our Government or the Navy. I believe the Congress should act to honor these veterans whose recognition is both deserved and long overdue.

The wartime contributions of these men were absolutely vital to the safe delivery of cargos that took the war to our enemies. Many times they stayed in the fight even as the decks of their ships were awash and sinking. What is most notable is that other nations that now are free because of the contributing sacrifices of the U.S. Navy Armed Guards, have awarded special medals in recognition of the heroic actions of the members of the U.S. Navy Armed Guard Special Force.

Mr. President, It is high time we did the right thing and recognized these fine fighting men for their service. This legislation would honor these men in a very fitting way. It will recognized former members of the U.S. Armed Guard Special Force with a special medal that honors them as American heroes. It will recognize the military character of their service by awarding each of them at least one of the three World War II campaign medals for service in the American, Asiatic-Pacific, and Europe-Africa-Middle East theaters of war. Let's do the right thing for this unrecognized group of American veterans who sacrificed so much for their country. For more than fifty years, members of the Naval Armed Guard have shared their wartime stories of sacrifice and commitment with one another. Now is the time for all Americans to acknowledge their service in a heart felt way.

I urge prompt Senate consideration and passage of this legislation.

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION 134—DESIGNATING SEPTEMBER 8, 2000, AS GALVESTON HURRICANE NATIONAL REMEMBRANCE DAY

Mrs. HUTCHISON (for herself and Mr. GRAMM) submitted the following concurrent resolution; which was considered and agreed to:

S. CON. RES. 134

Whereas September 8, 2000 marks the 100th anniversary of the hurricane that struck Galveston, Texas on September 8, 1900, the deadliest natural disaster in United States history;

Whereas an estimated 6,000 people died in a few hours in this thriving port of 37,000, dubbed the ''Wall Street of the West'' at the dawn of the 20th century;

Whereas vast waves, surging flood waters, and powerful winds of more than 120 miles an hour overtook the town, in an era without radar, satellites, or modern radio, making off-shore hurricanes difficult to track;

Whereas the residents of Galveston island showed much courage and sacrifice during the tempest, exemplified by 10 nuns who lost their lives along with the 90 children they were trying to save at St. Mary's Orphanage on the beach;

Whereas Galveston never lost her resilient spirit, built a sturdy 17-foot sea wall that staved off other fierce hurricanes, pumped in millions of tons of sand from the Gulf of Mexico in order to raise the level of the city and its buildings to a safer height, and became a beautiful and prosperous town yet again;

Whereas the city of Galveston is this year holding a ceremony commemorating the hurricane, launching educational efforts, and celebrating the rebirth of Galveston after the storm; and

Whereas our Nation, which benefits from modern weather technology and the lessons learned from the Galveston tragedy, should never cease to improve hurricane forecasting and make life safer and more secure along our coasts: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That—

(1) September 8, 2000 is designated as Galveston Hurricane National Remembrance Day; and

(2) the President is authorized and requested to issue a proclamation in memory of the thousands of Galvestonians and other Americans who lost their lives in the devastating hurricane of 1900 and the survivors who rebuilt Galveston.

SEC. ___02. FINDINGS AND PURPOSE.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Congress finds that—

(1) fiscal discipline, resulting from the Balanced Budget Act of 1997, and strong economic growth have ended decades of deficit spending and have produced budget surpluses without using the social security surplus;

(2) fiscal pressures will mount in the future as the aging of the population increases budget obligations;

(3) until Congress and the President agree to legislation that strengthens social security, the social security surplus should be used to reduce the debt held by the public;

(4) strengthening the Government's fiscal position through public debt reduction increases national savings, promotes economic growth, reduces interest costs, and is a constructive way to prepare for the Government's future budget obligations; and

(5) it is fiscally responsible and in the long-term national economic interest to use an additional portion of the nonsocial security surplus to reduce the debt held by the public.

(b) PURPOSE.—It is the purpose of this title to—

(1) reduce the debt held by the public with the goal of eliminating this debt by 2013; and

(2) decrease the statutory limit on the public debt.

Any obligation which is paid, redeemed, or bought with amounts from the account shall be canceled and retired and may not be reissued. Amounts deposited in the account are appropriated and may only be expended to carry out this section.

''(c) If the Congressional Budget Office estimates an on-budget surplus for fiscal year 2000 in the report submitted pursuant to section 202(e)(2) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 in excess of the amount of the surplus set forth for that fiscal year in section 101(4) of the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2001 (House Concurrent Resolution 290, 106th Congress), then there is hereby appropriated into the account on the later of the date of enactment of this Act or the date upon which the Congressional Budget Office submits such report, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2000, an amount equal to that excess. The funds appropriated to this account shall remain available until expended.

''(d) The appropriation made under subsection (c) shall not be considered direct spending for purposes of section 252 of Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985.

''(e) Establishment of and appropriations to the account shall not affect trust fund transfers that may be authorized under any other provision of law.

''(f) The Secretary of the Treasury and the Director of the Office of Management and Budget shall each take such actions as may be necessary to promptly carry out this section in accordance with sound debt management policies.

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, as in executive session, I ask unanimous consent that the injunction of secrecy be removed from the following convention transmitted to the Senate on September 6, 2000, by the President of the United States:

Convention for International Carriage by Air, Treaty Document No. 106–45.

I also ask that the convention be considered as having been read the first time; that it be referred, with accompanying papers, to the Committee on Foreign Relations and ordered to be printed; and that the President's message be printed in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The message of the President is as follows:

To the Senate of the United States:

I transmit herewith, for Senate advice and consent to ratification, the Convention for the Unification of Certain Rules for International Carriage by Air, done at Montreal May 28, 1999 (the ''Convention''). The report of the Department of State, including an article-by-article analysis, is enclosed for the information of the Senate in connection with its consideration of the Convention.

I invite favorable consideration of the recommendation of the Secretary of State, as contained in the report provided herewith, that the Senate's advice and consent to the Convention be subject to a declaration on behalf of the United States, pursuant to Article 57(a) of the Convention, that the convention shall not apply to international carriage by air performed and operated directly by the United States for noncommercial purposes in respect to its functions and duties as a sovereign State. Such a declaration is consistent with the declaration made by the United States under the Convention for the Unification of Certain Rules Relating to International Carriage by Air, done at Warsaw October 12, 1929, as amended (the ''Warsaw Convention'') and is specifically permitted by the terms of the new Convention.

Upon entry into force for the United States, the Convention, where applicable, would supersede the Warsaw Convention, as amended by the Protocol to Amend the Warsaw Convention, done at Montreal September 25, 1975 (''Montreal Protocol No. 4''), which entered into force for the United States on March 4, 1999. The Convention represents a vast improvement over the liability regime established under the Warsaw Convention and its related instruments, relative to passenger rights in the event of an accident. Among other benefits, the Convention eliminates the cap on carrier liability to accident victims; holds carriers strictly liable for proven damages up to 100,000 Special Drawing Rights (approximately $135,000) (Special Drawing Rights represent an artificial 'basket' currency developed by the International Monetary Fund for internal accounting purposes to replace gold as a world standard); provides for U.S. jurisdiction for most claims brought on behalf of U.S. passengers; clarifies the duties and obligations of carriers engaged in codeshare operations; and, with respect to cargo, preserves all of the significant advances achieved by Montreal Protocol No. 4.

I recommend that the Senate give early and favorable consideration to this Convention and that the Senate give its advice and consent to ratification, subject to a declaration that the Convention shall not apply to international carriage by U.S. State aircraft, as provided for in the Convention.

WILLIAM J. CLINTON.

THE WHITE HOUSE, September 6, 2000.

ORDER OF PROCEDURE—S. 1608

Mr. BOND. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the vitiation order with respect to the agreement for consideration of S. 1608 be extended until 12 noon on Friday.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The preamble was agreed to.

The resolution, with its preamble, reads as follows:

S. CON. RES. 134

Whereas September 8, 2000 marks the 100th anniversary of the hurricane that struck Galveston, Texas on September 8, 1900, the deadliest natural disaster in United States history;

Whereas an estimated 6,000 people died in a few hours in this thriving port of 37,000, dubbed the ''Wall Street of the West'' at the dawn of the 20th century;

Whereas vast waves, surging flood waters, and powerful winds of more than 120 miles an hour overtook the town, in an era without radar, satellites, or modern radio, making off-shore hurricanes difficult to track;

Whereas the residents of Galveston island showed much courage and sacrifice during the tempest, exemplified by 10 nuns who lost their lives along with the 90 children they were trying to save at St. Mary's Orphanage on the beach;

Whereas Galveston never lost her resilient spirit, built a sturdy 17-foot sea wall that staved off other fierce hurricanes, pumped in millions of tons of sand from the Gulf of Mexico in order to raise the level of the city and its buildings to a safer height, and became a beautiful and prosperous town yet again;

Whereas the city of Galveston is this year holding a ceremony commemorating the hurricane, launching educational efforts, and celebrating the rebirth of Galveston after the storm; and

Whereas our Nation, which benefits from modern weather technology and the lessons learned from the Galveston tragedy, should never cease to improve hurricane forecasting and make life safer and more secure along our coasts: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That—

(1) September 8, 2000 is designated as Galveston Hurricane National Remembrance Day; and

(2) the President is authorized and requested to issue a proclamation in memory of the thousands of Galvestonians and other Americans who lost their lives in the devastating hurricane of 1900 and the survivors who rebuilt Galveston.

ORDERS FOR THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 7, 2000

Mr. BOND. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that when the Senate completes its business today, it adjourn until the hour of 9:30 a.m. on Thursday, September 7. I further ask consent that on Thursday, immediately following the prayer, the Journal of proceedings be approved to date, the morning hour be deemed expired, the time for the two leaders be reserved for their use later in the day, and the Senate then resume debate on the Daschle motion regarding the Missouri River, with 10 minutes equally divided in the usual form prior to a vote on or in relation to the motion.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

PROGRAM

Mr. BOND. When the Senate convenes at 9:30 a.m., there will be 10 minutes remaining for closing remarks with respect to the motion to strike the Missouri River provision contained in the energy and water appropriations bill. Immediately following that vote, a vote will occur on the motion to proceed to the China PNTR legislation. Therefore, two back-to-back votes will occur at approximately 9:40 a.m. Following those two votes, the Senate will consider the China PNTR bill. It is hoped that agreements can be reached on various amendments to the bill and, therefore, votes can be expected to occur throughout the day.

As a reminder, the filing deadline for all first-degree amendments to the energy and water appropriations bill was 6:30 this evening. As a further reminder, the Senate will continue to consider the China trade bill and the energy and water appropriations bill on a dual track for the remainder of the week, with votes expected throughout each day.

ADJOURNMENT UNTIL 9:30 A.M. TOMORROW

Mr. BOND. Mr. President, if there is no further business to come before the Senate, I now ask unanimous consent that the Senate stand in adjournment under the previous order.

There being no objection, the Senate, at 8:23 p.m., adjourned until Thursday, September 7, 2000, at 9:30 a.m.

EXTENSIONS OF REMARKS

IN HONOR OF MARY A. PTASZEK

HON. DENNIS J. KUCINICH

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 6, 2000

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, today I rise to honor Mary Ptaszek, a woman who committed her life to serving her community and improving the lives of those who lived in it.

A dedicated servant to her community Mrs. Ptaszek served as precinct committeewoman for three different wards, and on the Democratic Executive Committee. A native of Cleveland, Mrs. Ptaszek committed her life to helping others. A devoted wife and sibling, Mrs. Ptaszek was a lifelong member of St. Barbara Catholic Church where she sang in the choir.

When her mother passed away Mrs. Ptaszek became her family's matriarch, hosting large family gatherings at her home. Mrs. Ptaszek's caring touch was extended not only to her family but to the greater community as well. Her devotion to her community was evident as, even her final years, she would drive fellow seniors to their medical appointments or to the shopping centers.

Through politics Mrs. Ptaszek looked to better the lives of those around her. A kind-hearted, community minded women Mrs. Ptaszek sought to use politics as a tool of good to create better communities.

Mrs. Ptaszek was a kind, dedicated, passionate woman who selflessly gave of herself to help others. Mr. Speaker, I ask my fellow colleagues to join me in celebrating the life and tremendous accomplishments of this truly remarkable woman who worked tirelessly on behalf of others.

IN HONOR OF EII, INC., AT THE INFENIUM LINDEN BUSINESS AND TECHNOLOGY CENTER, FOR RECEIVING APPROVAL FROM OSHA TO PARTICIPATE IN THE STAR VOLUNTARY PROTECTION PROGRAMS (VPP)

HON. ROBERT MENENDEZ

OF NEW JERSEY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 6, 2000

Mr. MENENDEZ. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor EII, Inc., at the Linden Business and Technology Center, located in Linden, New Jersey, for its exceptional employee safety and health programs.

EII, Inc.'s recent approval for participation in the Occupational Safety and Health Administration's (OSHA) Voluntary Protection Programs (VPP) is a testament to a company that puts the well-being of its employees above the careless and irresponsible desire to increase profits at all costs—rare behavior at a time when profits often seem more important than people.

EII, Inc. is an electrical contractor providing maintenance and process support at the Infenium Linden Business and Technology Center. EII, Inc.'s employees, all represented by their respective trade unions, include electricians, pipefitters, millrights, and carpenters. Each employee has been incremental in OSHA's evaluation and approval of EII, Inc.

OSHA's recognition of EII, Inc. is the result of a special relationship that has developed between management and employees, a relationship established by the management's commitment has to the safety and health of the hard working men and women at EII, Inc.

In addition, EII, Inc. is the only electrical contractor to receive VPP approval, with less than 20 construction companies participating nation-wide—only two of which are in New Jersey.

Today, I ask my colleagues to join me as I honor EII, Inc., a company that truly understands the safety needs of its employees, and a company that puts people before profits.

IN MEMORY OF GINETTA SAGIN—PIONEER HUMAN RIGHTS ACTIVIST

HON. TOM LANTOS

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 6, 2000

Mr. LANTOS. Mr. Speaker, I wish to call the attention of my colleagues in the House to the passing of a dear, dear personal friend and a true giant in the struggle for human rights. Just a few days ago, on Friday, August 25, Ginetta Sagan died of cancer at the age of 75.

I know that all of my colleagues who had the good fortune to know and work with her, and I know there are many here today who share my tremendous feeling of loss for not only a stalwart defender for human rights and humanity around the world, but also a true and wonderful personal friend and outstanding human being.

Mr. Speaker, the President of the United States appropriately honored the lifetime achievements of this remarkable woman when he awarded her the Presidential Medal of Freedom in 1994, the highest civilian honor our nation can bestow. Throughout her life, she has brought healing, justice, and mercy to the oppressed and has helped to change the thinking of those who are in positions of power and authority.

Born in Milan, Italy, to a Jewish mother and Catholic father, Ginetta Sagan first worked against the fascists at the early age of 17, bringing clothes and food coupons to Jews in hiding. Her mother and father were arrested by Mussolini's Black Brigade in 1943 and did not survive the war. In 1943, Ginetta—and she almost always went only by her first name—worked as a courier for the Italian resistance, using her nickname Topolino, or ''Little Mouse.'' Ginetta was only 5 feet tall, but she had the energy and the power of a giant. She helped to transport more than 300 fugitives and thousands of pamphlets through the Italian Alps, before she was betrayed and arrested in early 1945.

Mr. Speaker, for over a month and a half, she was beaten, burned, electrically shocked and raped. On April 23, 1945—the very day scheduled for her execution—she managed to escape with the help of the Italian Resistance and two friendly German officers. In the deep dungeons of her Fascist torturers, where all hope is lost and only pain and fear live, Ginetta Sagin found her deep and unshakable commitment to human rights. It was there that she found her incredible strength to work tirelessly on behalf of the downtrodden. When a guard tossed her a loaf of bread, she found a matchbox with a slip of paper hidden inside. Inscribed on this piece of paper was only one word, which epitomizes her whole life: the Italian word Coraggio—Courage. Ginetta later named the first newsletter for Amnesty International Matchbox, reflecting this very moving experience.

After the war, Mr. Speaker, Ginetta attended the prestigious Sorbonne University in Paris. She continued her study of child development in 1951 at the University of Chicago, where she met and married Leonard Sagan, a medical student who later became a public health physician. After living in Washington, DC., Boston and Japan, the Sagans moved to my home state of California in 1968. Leonard Sagan died in 1977.

While living in Washington, DC., Ginetta began her lifelong work with Amnesty International, the London-based human rights organization. Ginetta helped found the United States chapter of this world-wide organization and, as its honorary chairwoman, worked tirelessly for its goals.

Mr. Speaker, Amnesty International annually awards a prize named in Ginetta's honor in recognition of her outstanding service and leadership on behalf of women and children's rights. Not surprisingly, as soon as she reached the Bay Area in California, she gathered like-minded activists and founded Amnesty International's Western Regional Office. In addition, Ginetta created the Aurora Foundation in order to investigate and campaign actively against torture in postwar Vietnam. The Foundation continues to play a crucial role in supporting human rights activists around the world.

Ginetta also actively campaigned against human rights abuses in Chile, Greece, Algeria, Poland, the Philippines and South Africa. In 1971, Ginetta organized a concert in Berkeley to raise funds for political prisoners in Greece. The concert, which featured her friend, folk singer Joan Baez, and Greek entertainer Melina Mercouri, drew some 10,000 people.

Mr. Speaker, the San Francisco Chronicle, in its obituary of her published on August 29, quotes Julianne Cartwright Taylor, chair of Amnesty International USA Board of Directors: ''Her [Ginetta's] legacy is a constant reminder that our role is vital, and that without the work of human rights defenders, thousands upon thousands of individuals would be affected for the worst.''

● This ''bullet'' symbol identifies statements or insertions which are not spoken by a Member of the Senate on the floor.

Matter set in this typeface indicates words inserted or appended, rather than spoken, by a Member of the House on the floor.

In addition to her outstanding human rights work, this energetic woman found time to become an accomplished cook and cookbook author. She taught cooking classes for congressional spouses and was also an outstanding gardener. A species of orchids is named in her honor.

Mr. Speaker, Ginetta Sagan is survived by three sons—Loring, Duncan and Pico—as well as six grandchildren.

IN MEMORY OF KENNETH BLAND

HON. ROBERT W. NEY

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 6, 2000

Mr. NEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in memory of Kenneth Bland, who passed away on August 27, 2000. Kenneth was born on June 11, 1933 in Cadiz, Ohio to George and Bernice Bland.

Kenneth was a retired coal miner with Y&O Coal Company Nelms No. 2 mine near Cadiz. He served his country in the Army during the Korean war. Kenneth was the father and stepfather of six wonderful children; James, John, Jana, Jennifer, Robert and Lesley. Kenneth's family also included four grandchildren and two stepgrandchildren.

Mr. Speaker, it is a privilege for me to pay my last respects to a man who gave so much of himself to his community, his area and his family. Kenneth will be missed by all whose lives he touched. I am honored to have represented him and proud to call him a constituent and a friend.

IN HONOR OF JOSEPH TAKACS

HON. DENNIS J. KUCINICH

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 6, 2000

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, today I rise to remember Joseph Takacs, a man who devoted his life to the betterment of mankind, and the struggles of those who needed help the most.

Mr. Takacs led the autoworkers at General Motor's Fisher Body plant in Cleveland for more than 10 nonconsecutive years in the 1960's and 1970's. A courageous fighter for the working man, Mr. Takacs was one of 250 workers who staged a sit-in at General Motor's Cleveland plant that lasted from December 1936 into February 1937. Through the dedication and determination of Mr. Takacs and his striking colleagues a nationwide strike began. The strike forced the company to recognize the union as a bargaining agent for its hourly employees, even today, considered one of the greatest union victories.

Mr. Speaker, Mr. Takacs was a dedicated man who committed his life to union reform, helping the poor, and fighting for the working men and women of this nation. Mr. Takacs was an inspirational leader and a mentor for generations to come. A champion of the causes of working people Mr. Takacs never turned his back on anyone. A leader dedicated to his fellow colleagues, during strikes, Mr. Takacs would beg for food to make sure that there was always food at the union hall.

Mr. Takacs, a past president of United Auto Workers Local 45, has served on the front lines of the battle for working families since the 1930's. I ask my distinguished colleagues to join me in celebrating the life of this truly remarkable man, who has dedicated his life to serving others.

I ask my congressional colleagues to join me in congratulating St. Thomas Episcopal Parish on its golden anniversary and in wishing the parishioners much continued success and longevity.

THE APPOINTMENT OF BILL LANN LEE AS ASSISTANT ATTORNEY GENERAL FOR CIVIL RIGHTS

HON. TOM LANTOS

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 6, 2000

Mr. LANTOS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to applaud to the recess appointment of Bill Lann Lee as assistant Attorney General for Civil Rights. Bill Lann Lee is a true civil rights crusader, and his appointment reflects the Clinton-Gore administration's unflinching commitment to protecting the civil rights of all Americans by rigorously enforcing our nation's civil rights legislation.

Mr. Speaker, Mr. Lee's personal experiences with discrimination as an Asian-American have driven him to fight passionately for the last quarter century to secure the civil rights of all Americans. Bill Lann Lee's deep and personal commitment to civil rights and his outstanding record of service make him an exemplary choice for this critical position. In Bill Lann Lee all Americans can rest assured that they have a true civil rights crusader looking out for their civil rights, forcefully advocating fair affirmative action policies for all those discriminated against. The appointment of Bill Lann Lee as Assistant Attorney General for Civil Rights brings to this critical position a proven civil rights leader with a deep and personal commitment to protecting the rights of all Americans.

Bill Lann Lee's personal drive in civil rights advocacy was fueled by the experiences of his father, a proud but poor Chinese immigrant. Bill Lann Lee grew up knowing his father fought for freedom abroad in World War II even though he was denied dignity and freedom here at home because of his ethnicity. Inspired by that kind of unshakeable patriotism, Bill Lann Lee set out to establish a legal career in which he could fight to protect all Americans from the kind of discrimination his father experienced. Today he says, ''Whenever I work on cases for women, for minorities, for individuals who need help, I sincerely feel that they are people like my father.'' Bill Lann Lee's desire to protect everyone from discrimination is a personal one, and it is this kind of commitment that makes him an outstanding choice for Assistant Attorney General for Civil Rights.

Mr. Speaker, Bill Lann Lee brings a strong work ethic and record of service to his new position. He who grew up near Harlem's 125th street, and spent hours sorting piles of dirty clothes in his family laundry. He experienced racism because of his Asian-American background, but he had the courage and determination to work beyond that bias and excel in the classroom. Because of his hard work, he had the opportunity to take advantage of a scholarship for minorities and attended Yale University, graduating Phi Beta Kappa.

He went on to Columbia Law School, where he studied with Jack Greenberg, a veteran civil rights lawyer who succeeded Thurgood Marshall as director-counsel of the NAACP Legal Defense Fund. Because of Bill Lann Lee's hard work, he received an excellent education and laid the foundation for an outstanding legal career at the forefront of Civil Rights advocacy. It is from this position that he has spent the last 25 years continuing to work hard to protect the civil rights of all Americans.

Mr. Speaker, for the past 25 years of his distinguished legal career, Bill Lann Lee has been an advocate for civil rights enforcement, leading the fight for health care accessibility, public transportation equity, fair employment and housing rights and school desegregation. He worked for the NAACP since 1974 and the Center for Law in the Public Interests since 1983 where he served for five years as supervising attorney for Civil Rights Litigation. Among his most noteworthy victories are a 1985 case that provided housing for Los Angeles area residents displaced by the Century Freeway; a 1987 case that broke down barriers to the hiring and promotion of women and minorities at Lucky Stores, a retail chain in California; and a 1991 case that led to the expansion of California's efforts to screen underprivileged children for lead poisoning.

On December 15, 1997, Bill Lann Lee was appointed Acting Attorney General for Civil Rights at the Department of Justice. In this position, he has worked to strengthen our nation's hate crime laws, make society accessible to Americans with disabilities, fight housing discrimination, and protect reproductive health care providers and combat modern day slavery. His accomplishments as Acting Assistant Attorney General have been remarkable, and that taken together with his previous accomplishments in the NAACP and the Center for Law in the Public Interests make him an excellent choice for Assistant Attorney General for Civil Rights.

Mr. Speaker, Bill Lann Lee has established a remarkable record of service as Acting Assistant Attorney General, and it is most fitting that President Clinton made the recess appointment of Mr. Lee as Assistant Attorney General because of his deep commitment to protecting the civil rights of all Americans. Bill Lann Lee deserves to serve in this position, but more importantly, our country needs to have Bill Lann Lee in this post.

Mr. Speaker, I commend President Clinton for appointing Bill Lann Lee to the post of Assistant Attorney General, and I applaud the appointment of the first Asian-American to America's top civil rights post.

IN HONOR OF ROSE MARIE LOVANO

HON. DENNIS J. KUCINICH

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 6, 2000

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, today I rise to remember Rose Marie Lovano, a woman who dedicated her life to improving her community and the lives of those who lived in it.

While Rose was active in her community it was through politics that she felt that she could best help those around her. Rose believed in politics as a tool to help improve people's lives. Rose's long and distinguished career in public service started in 1960, as precinct committeewoman. Rose went on to serve as president of the Garfield Heights Democratic Club and has been a ward leader since 1981. Rose has also been awarded the distinct honor of representing her community at every Democratic National Convention since 1980.

Born in Cleveland, Rose, before her career in politics, served as a dedicated union member throughout her working life. She joined Bakery Workers Local 19, during her six years working for J. Spang Baking Co., then joined the Upholsterers Union during her seven years working for Krohler Furniture. Rose went on to work for Greyhound Bus Lines, and was a steward in Local 1517 of the Amalgamated Transit Union, serving also as president of the Greyhound credit union.

Politics was Rose's true passion. Rose is a true example of how politics can serve the needs of the people, and benefit people's lives. Rose never turned her back on any of her constituents. Residents would constantly call her at the home she shared with her family, and Rose would never turn her back on them. If she couldn't help she would find others who could. Rose's life serves as model, to all, of how politics can be used as a tool of good, to help the people who often need it the most.

Mr. Speaker, on a personal note, I knew Rose, and the dedication, passion, and persistence that she brought to politics, and her life long commitment to helping others has had a profound effect on my life. It is for this reason, I ask my fellow colleagues to join me in celebrating the life of this truly remarkable human being who dedicated her life to helping others.

IN HONOR OF EII, INC., AT THE INFENIUM BAYWAY CHEMICAL PLANT, FOR RECEIVING APPROVAL FROM OSHA TO PARTICIPATE IN THE STAR VOLUNTARY PROTECTION PROGRAMS (VPP)

HON. ROBERT MENENDEZ

OF NEW JERSEY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 6, 2000

Mr. MENENDEZ. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor EII, Inc., at the Bayway Infenium Chemical Plant, located in Linden, New Jersey, for its exceptional employee safety and health programs.

EII, Inc.'s recent approval for participation in the Occupational Safety and Health Administration's (OSHA) Voluntary Protection Programs (VPP) is a testament to a company that puts the well-being of its employees above the careless and irresponsible desire to increase profits at all costs—rare behavior at a time when profits often seem more important than people.

EII, Inc. is an electrical contractor providing maintenance and process support at the Infenium Chemical Plant, a VPP Star for five years running. EII, Inc.'s employees, all represented by their respective trade unions, include electricians, pipefitters, millrights, and carpenters. Each employee has been incremental in OSHA's evaluation and approval of EII, Inc.

OSHA's recognition of EII, Inc. is the result of a special relationship that has developed between management and employees, a relationship established by the management's commitment has to the safety and health of the hard working men and women at EII, Inc.

In addition, EII, Inc. is the only electrical contractor to receive VPP approval, with less than 20 construction companies participating nation-wide—only two of which are in New Jersey.

Today, I ask my colleagues to join me as I honor EII, Inc., a company that truly understands the safety needs of its employees, and a company that puts people before profits.

HONORING ROY MARTINEZ

HON. SCOTT McINNIS

OF COLORADO

Wednesday, September 6, 2000

Mr. MCINNIS. Mr. Speaker, at this time I would like to extend my gratitude to the Honorable Roy Martinez. Mr. Martinez's commitment to improving his community through public service has made San Luis, Colorado a better place for everyone who lives there. After donating 26 years to his community, Mr. Martinez is stepping down from public office.

Mr. Martinez has served his community admirably and his dedication and drive to succeed will be missed.

Roy, you have made your community, state and nation proud. I commend you on your service to the citizens of Costilla County and I wish you the best in your future endeavors.

RELIGIOUS WORKER VISAS

HON. ELTON GALLEGLY

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 6, 2000

Mr. GALLEGLY. Mr. Speaker, I would like to express my support of H.R. 1871, the Mother Teresa Religious Worker Act of 1999, by adding my name as a cosponsor. H.R. 1871 is an important bill that permanently extends the religious worker visa program, which is set to expire at the end of this month. Under the current program, 5,000 religious workers enter the United States each year to participate in spiritual and charitable work in communities throughout our country, including many communities in my native California.

The visa program allows religious organizations to sponsor non-minister religious workers from foreign countries. These volunteers often work with our most needy individuals through church programs to ensure they have shelter and food. Aside from assisting with the bare necessities, they minister to the sick, work with adolescents at risk, and assist refugees and immigrants when they first arrive in the United States.

This program is due to expire on September 30 of this year. I call upon my colleagues to extend this religious worker visa program before this date to avoid any disruption for those seeking to enter our country.

At the same time, both the Department of State and the Immigration and Naturalization Service have expressed concerns that the religious worker visa program is vulnerable to fraud. I share many of these concerns. Therefore, as this legislation moves through Congress, we must address the issues raised by the State Department and INS and ensure that only those persons who perform religious work enter on these visas.

I urge the permanent extension of the religious worker visa program at the earliest possible date.

IN HONOR OF THE 40TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE SOUTHLAND YWCA

HON. DENNIS J. KUCINICH

The Southland YWCA in Middleburg Heights, Ohio is commemorating its 40th Anniversary on September 8 and 9, 2000. These two days of celebration should prove to be embraced throughout the community, as women and their families show their appreciation for an organization that has continually served the people of its area with a large variety of beneficial programs.

In 1960, the Southland YWCA moved to its current location in Middleburg Heights, Ohio, and it has continued to serve families in the area ever since. The Southland YWCA serves the Southwest area of Cleveland in the areas of fitness, child care, and diversity programming, among many others. It has implemented many programs and activities for the community, including swimming lessons, summer day camp for children, exercise classes, karate lessons, homemaking lessons, craft classes, divorce support programs, help for battered women, and even an investment club. Through these many services, the YWCA has encouraged women to become activists in their own communities.

I take their opportunity to applaud the fine service the Southland YWCA has provided to Cleveland for forty years because I believe that organizations such as this one are essential to the development of our communities throughout the country. I would like to wish the YWCA the best of luck in the future, and hope to see the organization commended again forty years from now.

REVEREND MONSIGNOR GERARD T. LA CERRA DISTINGUISHED AND BELOVED CHANCELLOR AND FRIEND

HON. ILEANA ROS-LEHTINEN

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 6, 2000

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Mr. Speaker, it is with great sadness that I note the passing of Reverend Monsignor Gerard T. La Cerra, one of South Florida's most beloved and distinguished residents.

With selfless devotion and love, Monsignor La Cerra served the Archdiocese of Miami not only as its Chancellor from 1978 to 1993, but also as a source of strength and inspiration to all who knew him. Although we will all remember his important position in the Church for he was designated as Prelate with Honor with the title of Reverend Monsignor by His Holiness Pope John Paul II and was appointed Founding Supervising Principal of the new Catholic High School in South Dade, Archbishop Coleman F. Carroll High, we will remember most his extraordinary acts of kindness to the people of South Florida.

We were fortunate to have Monsignor La Cerra and the love and kindness that he expressed to our community and our church will forever be remembered and cherished. My office and the rest of the South Florida Congressional delegation had the opportunity to get to know Monsignor La Cerra more closely and to restitute some of the work he did for his parish by organizing an effort to increase public awareness on the need for organ transplant and donations. He underwent a successful heart transplant surgery and was able to continue his work in the Archdiocese of Miami.

I ask my Congressional colleagues to join me in paying tribute to this devoted spiritual leader and to express our heartfelt condolences to his family and friends, may they find peace and comfort in the knowledge that he made significant differences in the many lives he touched. He will forever be remembered.

HONORING PAT LATRONICA

HON. SCOTT McINNIS

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 6, 2000

Mr. McINNIS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to take a moment to recognize a very distinguished woman, Pat LaTronica of Pueblo, Colorado. Mrs. LaTronica passed away July 3, 2000 at the age of 62. She was best known for her work at a local restaurant as well as her charity work. With her warm heart and great eye for classy fashion, she brought a smile to patrons of her restaurant, no matter their age or background.

In addition to her work at the restaurant, Mrs. LaTronica was also an enthusiastic volunteer in her community. If it wasn't helping serve holiday dinners to those less fortunate, it was working hard on the board of directors of the Salvation Army. No matter the time of year, this wonderful woman could be found bringing smiles to the faces of citizens through her considerable volunteer efforts.

Mrs. LaTronica brought a spirit of joy to all of those around her no matter where or what she was doing. It is this sense of joy and happiness that will be missed, but not soon forgotten.

Ms. LaTronica was a great citizen and an even better person. She will be greatly missed by friends, family and the citizens of Pueblo.

IN HONOR OF THE UNION CITY HOUSING AUTHORITY, CELEBRATING 50 YEARS OF AFFORDABLE HOUSING

HON. ROBERT MENENDEZ

OF NEW JERSEY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 6, 2000

Mr. MENENDEZ. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor the Housing Authority of Union City, New Jersey, celebrating a half-century of providing affordable housing to area families.

The 50th anniversary of the Union City Housing Authority is a wonderful cause for celebration. However, the real celebration lies in the extraordinary success the Authority has achieved in community building, which has led to its recognition as one of the top performing housing authorities in the nation.

This success has been accomplished through a clear understanding that building houses alone will not build communities. Compassion, hard work, dedication, and solid planning are the heart and mind of the Union City Housing Authority, and it is this heart and mind that builds prosperous communities.

When people envision public housing, they do not envision communities that provide for the spiritual and social needs of residents. Most picture dismal, neglected houses, empty streets, and residents disconnected from the mainstream.

Public housing has changed because we have changed. For many years now, the Union City Housing Authority has had a different vision of public housing; and today, that vision has touched countless lives, satisfying for many the age-old need for a real home—not just a shelter from the harsh elements.

Today, I ask my colleagues to join me as I honor the Union City Housing Authority for its extraordinary success at providing affordable housing, establishing communities, and changing lives.

TRIBUTE TO MS. KATHRINE SMITH OF MADISON COUNTY, ALABAMA

HON. ROBERT E. (BUD) CRAMER, JR.

OF ALABAMA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 6, 2000

Mr. CRAMER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to a wonderful woman in my district, Ms. Kathrine ''Kate'' Smith. Today Ms. Smith celebrates her 94th birthday. For almost a century, she has graced North Alabama with her dignified presence and has shared her talents and gifts with her community.

Ms. Smith's community service accomplishments would fill many a page, so it will suffice to say that she gives back to her community tenfold. Ms. Smith has been recognized for her service with many awards, plaques and certificates and thus it is fitting that the United States Congress join the many others in honoring her for her full and selfless life.

In addition to her outstanding community service, she is also a member of First Missionary Baptist Church, she sings in the church choir and is a member of the Missionary Society, OES (Eastern Star) and The Good Neighbor's Club.

I join Ms. Smith's friends and family who love her dearly in wishing her a happy and healthy 94th year. I thank her for her extraordinary contributions to our community and wish her a well-deserved happy birthday.

TRIBUTE TO CASTRO VALLEY UNIFIED SCHOOL DISTRICT AND ST. MARY'S COLLEGE SCHOOL OF EDUCATION

HON. ELLEN O. TAUSCHER

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 6, 2000

Mrs. TAUSCHER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor an outstanding public-private partnership in my district and all the participants who share a deep commitment for the education of our children. Castro Valley Unified School District and St. Mary's College of California have developed and implemented a partnership that has led to a comprehensive literacy development program at kindergarten through postgraduate collegiate levels.

I commend St. Mary's College of California for forming a public-private partnership with the Castro Valley Unified School District. This commitment to the betterment of children and education by extending professional learning experiences and teaching strategies has greatly increased the school district's ability to deliver a comprehensive literacy program. Because of their efforts, almost all Castro Valley Unified School District students completing third grade are at or above reading level, student achievement is up, literacy attainment is heightened, and teaching strategies are being redefined and better directed.

I take great pride in honoring the dedication and professional leadership that St. Mary's College has taken in establishing this partnership. The partnership has helped expand the role of the public school teacher to a researcher, writer, and facilitator and created a model for successful literacy teacher-training programs. I believe that this public-private partnership should serve as a model to school districts and colleges across the country in order to create higher standards of literacy and literacy education at kindergarten through post-graduate collegiate levels.

HONORING PATTY ARAGON

HON. SCOTT McINNIS

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 6, 2000

Mr. MCINNIS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to take this moment to celebrate the wonderful life of Patricia Aragon. Mrs. Aragon recently passed on after a courageous battle with cancer.

Patty was a beloved citizen of Pagosa Springs where she and her husband, Ross, raised their six children. And with Patty, it was always children—hers and others in her community—that came first. She served on the local school board for over a decade where she was proud to pass out diplomas at commencement ceremonies. Everyone who came in contact with Patty was instantly overtaken with her loving spirit. When she wasn't helping the school system, she could be found serving patron's of her restaurant. She and her husband owned Al's and Al's West restaurants where Patty was famous for her chiliburgers and homemade tortillas.

Patty Aragon was an incredibly spirited person who loved to see others smile. Through her business and public service, she touched the lives of hundreds children and adults alike.

It is with this, Mr. Speaker, that I say thank you to this remarkable woman and great Coloradan. She will be greatly missed, but not soon forgotten.

LEBARON TAYLOR—A MAN FOR ALL SEASONS

HON. EDOLPHUS TOWNS

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 6, 2000

Mr. TOWNS. Mr. Speaker, next week the Congressional Black Caucus Foundation will host its 30th Annual Legislative Weekend. For the first time in the history of this event, we will be without our beloved friend, and former CBC Foundation Chairman and board member, H. LeBaron Taylor. LeBaron died from cardiac arrest on July 19th.

LeBaron was both Senior Vice President for Corporate Affairs at Sony Music Entertainment and Vice President for Corporate Affairs at Sony Software Corporation. His responsibilities ranged from government and public affairs issues to corporate responsibilities including equal opportunity employment and minority development and corporate philanthropy. LeBaron's impact on the entertainment industry, however, far exceed his formal titles or positions within the Sony corporate structure.

From his entry in the music industry as a broadcast engineer as well as an on-air personality and program director at WCHB in Detroit to a stint as station manager at WDAS in Philadelphia to his move into the record business with the creation of Revilot Records in 1967, LeBaron was a pioneer in the promotion of Black music. He would later move to Atlantic Records in New York City before joining CBS Records in 1974. Black Enterprise magazine noted that LeBaron ''defined black music in the '70's.''

LeBaron's unique relationships with artists led to his position with CBS Records as the head of their marketing department for Black music. Under his leadership, CBS Records' Black music Marketing department became the model for the entire industry. Three years later, he became the company's first vice president of Black Music Marketing, with the added responsibility of Jazz/Progressive Music Marketing. LeBaron was recognized by Ebony magazine as one of the ''Top 50 Black American Executives in Corporate America'' and, most recently, as one of the top Blacks in the entertainment industry.

Throughout his career, he received numerous awards for his public service activities and his pioneering efforts in Black music marketing. A two-time recipient of the Congressional Black Caucus Chair Award, LeBaron also received the Chairman's Humanitarian Award from TransAfrica Forum; the NAACP Corporate Image Award; and awards from the National Urban League; the National Association of Black Owned Broadcasters; The Black Entertainment and Sports Lawyers Hall of Fame, the White House Conference on Small Business and The Business Policy Review Council among many others that are too numerous to mention. His civic activities included board membership with organizations such as the CBC Foundation, the Joint Center for Political and Economic Studies Board of Governors and the Rhythm & Blues Foundation.

Characteristically, the accomplishment of which LeBaron was most proud was his recognition by the Black Employees Organization of CBS Inc. for mentoring and fostering the growth and development of minorities within the company.

A native of Detroit, LeBaron graduated from Wayne State University and recently was awarded an Honorary Doctor of Law degree from Miles College in Fairfield, Alabama. He was also a board member of the Grand Boule Foundation of Sigma Pi Phi Fraternity and chaired its Social Action Committee. He is survived by his wife, Kay Loverlace Taylor, Ed.D. and four children: Eric and Tiffani from his first marriage and his stepchildren, Laura and Jason, from his second marriage. His first wife, Yvonne passed away in January of 1997.

The CBC Foundation's Annual Legislative Weekend will be forever changed by the absence of LeBaron Taylor not only because of his dedication to our Weekend's activities, but also because of his lasting contributions to the public service work of the Foundation, his friendship and support for CBC Members and his contributions to the Black music industry.

IN HONOR OF ELLI STASSINOPOULOS

HON. DENNIS J. KUCINICH

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 6, 2000

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to celebrate the extraordinary life of Elli Stassinopoulos, mother and grandmother, whose singular, unselfish devotion to her family and friends places her in that pantheon which awaits all those who have made the every need of their loved ones a higher cause than themselves. ''Angles fly because they take themselves lightly,'' she would tell her children. Elli's voyage through life was that of a lighted persona which the darkness of history could not comprehend, nor could personal tragedy embitter.

Elli Stassinopoulos knew peril and hardship early in life. Her family fled Russia during the 1917 Revolution. She was captured by the Germans when she joined the anti-Nazi Greek resistance. She surmounted a disappointing marriage. Despite here early travails, she lived each day in simplicity and humility, triumphant, with a grateful heart and a sense of wonder. She slipped past the would-be conquerors of spirit to establish her domain in the sanctity of the home. In it she created magic with food and philosophy. Her household sustained and uplifted body, mind and spirit for her beloved daughters, Arianna, and Agapi and granddaughters Christina and Isabella.

''From the heirloom carpet spirited out of the Caucasus to her last pair of gold earrings, she sold everything along the way to pay for our schooling, sending me to Cambridge, and my sister Agapi to the Royal Academy of Dramatic Arts. But far beyond an education, she gave us what I know is the greatest gift a mother can give her child: her attention, her energy, her unconditional loving,'' wrote Arianna in a recent Mother's Day tribute to ''Yaya'' (Greek for grandmother).

Yaya's knowledge of the Greek classics, her stunning eloquence and her joy of living defined enchantment for all visitors to her home. Her life was an unceasing hymn of praise to her loved ones. And long after her beautiful voice has become a blessed memory, the music of that praise will be felt in the hearts of those who loved her so much, and all reecho in the voices of her daughters and granddaughters through the years. Great love reverberates greatly.

Mr. Speaker, I ask all Members of the House of Representatives to join with me in recognizing the life of Elli Stassinopoulos, a woman who exemplified the kind of caring and devoted love of a mother and grandmother which is cherished and which makes each home a holy place.

TRIBUTE TO MAYOR CLYDE FOSTER OF TRIANA, ALABAMA

HON. ROBERT E. (BUD) CRAMER, JR.

OF ALABAMA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 6, 2000

Mr. CRAMER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to Mr. Clyde Foster, a resident of my district and the former Mayor of Triana, Alabama. The City of Triana has designated today as ''Clyde Foster Day'' and I want to join the City in recognizing their unsung hero.

Mr. Foster has dedicated many years of outstanding public service to his community and to the entire state of Alabama. He has accumulated over fifty years of community service including the twenty he spent as Mayor of the lovely city of Triana. In the position of Mayor, Mr. Foster held the city together improving the lives of its citizens and making Triana a better place to work and raise a family.

I wish to take this opportunity to thank Mr. Foster for his exemplary role as a leader in our community. I join the Governor of Alabama and the State Senate in commending Mr. Foster for his selfless lifetime commitment to improving his city. As his friends, neighbors and family join today to honor him, I share their pride in and gratitude for the life and accomplishments of their beloved Mr. Foster. On behalf of the United States Congress, I thank him for a job well done.

A TRUE COLORADO HERO

HON. SCOTT McINNIS

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 6, 2000

Mr. MCINNIS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to take a moment to recognize an extraordinary young man, Travis Stout. Travis, a young Cub Scout, just recently received the Boy Scouts of America Medal of Merit. It was on November 24, 1999 that Travis' quick actions and knowledge of emergency actions allowed him to save his father from danger. This lifesaving award is being presented to a young man that not only saved his father, but also exemplified the characteristics of what it takes to be a true hero.

Travis, his younger brother Allen, and father Wayne were checking oil field generators as they often do on weekends. When methanol was blown back out of the line, Wayne was hit in the eyes and mouth. Travis, realizing the danger of the event, quickly flushed out his father's eyes with water and dialed help. With help unable to reach the area in time, Travis operated his father's truck and drove to the Utah-Colorado border to meet help.

Travis, a ten-year-old, took it upon himself to help his father and in doing so became a hero of a size much greater than his own. I think we all owe this young gentleman our congratulations and commendations on this incredible feat of heroism. Travis is a true hero and an outstanding citizen of our great nation, as well as an example for all to follow.

IN TRIBUTE TO JIM AND MARIE MCCOY

HON. ELTON GALLEGLY

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 6, 2000

Mr. GALLEGLY. Mr. Speaker, I pay tribute to Jim and Marie McCoy, who recently celebrated 40 years as owners and operators of McCoy's Automotive & Towing in Santa Paula, California, a city in my district known for its world-renowned citrus and hardworking citizens.

McCoy's Automotive offers foreign and domestic car service to its customers. Jim and Marie McCoy offer dedication and devotion to their community.

While building a thriving business, Jim McCoy also found time to be president of the Chamber of Commerce, a City Councilman and Santa Paula's mayor. Marie McCoy has been active with the Brownies, the PTA and several other community organizations. Together, they took on many of the community's fund-raising needs, most recently the Jim Knight Annual Golf Tournament, which benefits Santa Paula Memorial Hospital.

They built a family as they built a family business. The McCoys started with a two-bay garage in 1960 and expanded to a three-bay garage, with expanded services, three years later. By 1975, the McCoys had built such a loyal following that they had to move to their present location—an eight-bay garage—where they continue to grow.

Mr. Speaker, it is fitting that on the day we return from our districts, having just celebrated Labor Day, that we honor Jim and Marie McCoy. They epitomize the small businessperson—people who strive to build America's economy while raising strong families with strong ideals. They epitomize the entrepreneur, who takes time from his hectic schedule to serve as an elected official and community leader, and who takes time from her hectic schedule to raise funds for nonprofit organizations and serve in our schools.

Mr. Speaker, I know my colleagues will join me in congratulating Jim and Marie McCoy for 40 years of successful ownership of McCoy Automotive & Towing, and thank them for a lifetime of devotion to their community.

TRIBUTE TO DR. ROBERT J. FISHER, SUPERINTENDENT, CASTRO VALLEY UNIFIED SCHOOL DISTRICT

HON. ELLEN O. TAUSCHER

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 6, 2000

Mrs. TAUSCHER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor a very special leader in my district. Dr. Robert Fisher has been involved in education for 36 years as a teacher and administrator. As Superintendent, Dr. Fisher has successfully worked for the betterment of the entire school community.

Dr. Bob Fisher emphasized increased student achievement marked by 95 percent of all third graders reading at grade level by the end of third grade, distinguished performance by schools on the statewide assessments, and four schools receiving recognition as State Distinguished Schools. Dr. Fisher established a partnership with St. Mary's College, the Annenberg Foundation, and the Hewlett Foundation. These public-private partnerships have helped Dr. Fisher to better serve the school community and increase literacy rates among students.

I take great pride in honoring Dr. Bob Fisher's dedication and leadership. His hard work has created high standards, rigorous curricula and excellent teachers throughout the District. Under his direction, Castro Valley Unified School District has served as a model for schools in Alameda County and throughout the State of California. I believe that school districts across the country should follow Dr. Fisher's example and take the opportunity to learn from his successful and innovative ways.

PRESIDENT MUST PRESS VAJPAYEE ON HUMAN RIGHTS AND SELF-DETERMINATION

HON. EDOLPHUS TOWNS

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 6, 2000

Mr. TOWNS. Mr. Speaker, next week Indian Prime Minister Atal Bihari Vajpayee is coming to visit the United States. He will meet with several American leaders, including President Clinton and perhaps both major-party Presidential candidates. When he meets with these leaders, they must bring up the issue of human rights and self-determination.

India claims to be a democracy, but in truth there is no democracy in India. It is a militant Hindu fundamentalist state. Christians, ,Sikhs, Muslims, Dalits, and other minorities suffer severe oppression and atrocities at the hands of Hindu fundamentalists.

Just last month, a priest in Gujarat was kidnapped, tortured, and paraded through town naked by militant Hindu nationalists. The Indian government has refused to register a complaint against the kidnappers. This is the latest act in a campaign of terror against Christians that has been going on since Christmas 1998. This campaign has seen the murders of priests, rape of nuns, Hindu militants burning a missionary and his two sons to death in their van, the destruction of schools and prayer halls, and other anti-Christian atrocities. Most of these activities have been carried out by allies of the government or people affiliated with organizations under the umbrella of the RSS, the parent organization of the ruling BJP, which was founded in support of Fascism.

Recently, Bal Thackeray, the leader of Shiv Sena, a coalition partner of the ruling BJP, threatened to engulf the country in violence if he is held responsible for his part in hundreds of murders in 1992. In India, democracy apparently requires making coalitions with killers.

The Christians are not the only minority that is being oppressed. When President Clinton visited India in March, 35 Sikhs were massacred in the village of Chithi Singhpora in Kashmir. The Indian government killed five Muslims, claiming that they were the individuals responsible for the killings. Later they were forced to admit that these Muslims were innocent. Now the Indian government has arrested two more people on the claim that they are responsible for the massacre. Yet two independent investigations have clearly established that the Indian government itself was responsible for the massacre. How can a democratic nation justify these actions?

The Sikhs have declared their independence from India, forming the new country of Khalistan in 1987. The people of Kashmir were promised a plebiscite on their future in 1948, and India promised the United Nations that this referendum would be held as well. The people of predominantly Christian Nagalim seek their independence. There are several other freedom movements within India's borders. It seems to this Member that the best, fairest, and most democratic way to settle these issues is to conduct a free and fair plebiscite on the question of independence in these minority nations.

In addition to our legitimate nuclear-proliferation concerns, it is important that as the world's only superpower, our leaders press the government of India to live up to the democratic standards they proclaim by allowing all people within their borders to enjoy basic human rights and self-determination. If they do not do so, we should cut off U.S. aid to India and put this Congress on record with a resolution in support of human rights, self-determination, and nuclear nonproliferation for all the people of South Asia.

HONORING CINDY K. BOWEN

HON. SCOTT McINNIS

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 6, 2000

Mr. MCINNIS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to take a moment to honor the service of the Honorable Cindy K. Bowen, of Montrose County, Colorado. Ms. Bowen is retiring after over a decade of service as County Commissioner. Before serving as Commissioner, Ms. Bowen was a Senior Auditor for Dalby, Wendland and Company, CPA's, where she served as Montrose County's Auditor from 1978–1987.

For years, Cindy has done great service to western Colorado as a Commissioner and, because of her distinguished tenure, has received a number of awards. Among them are CCI Outstanding Freshman Commissioner of the year in 1989, and CCI Outstanding Commissioner of the year in 1994. Ms. Bowen's service to Montrose County has helped to make it a better place for all its citizens. Her outstanding commitment to public service is greatly appreciated and will be missed.

It is with this, Mr. Speaker, that I congratulate Cindy on her upstanding service as a County Commissioner and wish her all the best in all her future endeavors.

TRIBUTE TO MRS. HELEN ELLIS JOHNSTON OF HUNTSVILLE, AL

HON. ROBERT E. (BUD) CRAMER, JR.

OF ALABAMA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 6, 2000

Mr. CRAMER. Mr. Speaker, it is with great pleasure that I rise today to pay tribute to a resident of my district and a dear friend, Mrs. Helen Ellis Johnston. Mrs. Johnston's accomplishments and service to her community would fill many a page. She is greatly loved and respected throughout the community and will be honored by the local chapter of the Arthritis Foundation with their annual Humanitarian award.

A native Kentuckian, Mrs. Johnston is married to Mr. William Hooper Johnston. She has three daughters: Mrs. Patricia Vidler, Ms. Christy Catts, and Mrs. Cathy Nickelson. Mrs. Johnston moved to Alabama in 1952. Shortly thereafter she began the years of nonprofit and volunteer service that have been the lifeblood of so many organizations.

After arriving in Huntsville, Mrs. Johnston soon found her niche in working to improve this community's public health safety. She served for 12 years as Executive Director for the North District of the Alabama Lung Association of Alabama. In this position, she took a proactive approach to public health awareness helping to write and implement the first Alabama Health Curriculum Guide for schools across the State. Receiving a grant from the EPA, she conducted the first workshop in North Alabama to create citizen awareness on the need for adoption of the Clean Air Amendment and later served on Alabama's Environmental Quality Control Board.

Among her numerous community service ventures, she shared her talents and gifts with the Symphony Guild originating and chairing both the first Symphony Ball in 1964 and the first Silver Tea in 1967 for the Youth Symphony. Mrs. Johnston inaugurated several of our community's premier charity social functions including the Von Braun Center's Beaux Arts Ball, the Library's ''Vive Le Livre'' and Huntsville Hospital Foundation's Celebrity Golf Classic.

I believe this is a fitting tribute for one who has dedicated many years to serving the nation and the citizens of North Alabama. I send my congratulations to Mrs. Johnston and her family as she accepts the well-deserved Humanitarian Award from the Arthritis Foundation of North Alabama. On behalf of the people of Alabama's 5th Congressional District, I join them in celebrating the extraordinary accomplishments of a wonderful lady, Mrs. Helen Ellis Johnston.

IN HONOR OF ST. AUGUSTINE ACADEMY'S SEVENTY-FIFTH ANNIVERSARY

HON. DENNIS J. KUCINICH

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 6, 2000

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to celebrate the seventy-fifth anniversary of St. Augustine Academy, an institute devoted to excellence in education. The Academy is a private, non-profit all-girls high school that presents its students with a challenging array of options. The students of St. Augustine are on a business, college preparatory or general academic track. Throughout the past seventy-five years, this curriculum, by educating thousands of young women, has provided an educational program that is personal, academically stimulating and responsible to society's needs.

The school was founded in 1925 by the Sisters of Charity of Saint Augustine. While the Academy is a Christ-centered and family oriented community that reflects a Catholic tradition, students of all races and creeds are accepted and welcomed by the Academy. In this atmosphere, a strong emphasis is placed on responsibility, expectations, and initiative. St. Augustine has stressed the importance of individual attention in education, for the personal concern shown these young ladies is exceptional. The advanced faculty fosters graduating classes of ''lifelong learners'' who will be fully prepared for their next path in life.

In addition to St. Augustine's reputation for academics, the institution is also known for its service. Educating women in an atmosphere of ''In Omnibus Caritas'' (In All Things Charity) each student is challenged to grow both mentally and spiritually through the virtue of service. Students of all faiths are encouraged to find their unique gifts and use them to help the community they live in. In doing so, St. Augustine's has been aiding the communities of Greater Cleveland for seventy-five years, and the students, staff, and administrators deserve to be thanked.

Mr. Speaker, I ask you and our colleagues to join me in thanking the Saint Augustine Academy. The school has produced girls who are ready to fulfill their responsibilities to their family, community, and the global society. Celebrate with me these contributions the Academy has been providing as the Academy itself celebrates its seventy-fifth anniversary.

EGYPT'S EFFORTS ON BEHALF OF THE CAMP DAVID MIDDLE EAST NEGOTIATIONS

HON. NICK J. RAHALL II

OF WEST VIRGINIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 6, 2000

Mr. RAHALL. Mr. Speaker, I submit into the RECORD a letter from His Excellency Nabil Fahmy, Ambassador to the United States, representing the Arab Republic of Egypt.

Mr. Speaker, when the Camp David Summit ended without an agreement between the leaders of Israel and Palestine, a vigorous campaign was activated to paint an arbitrary picture of what supposedly went wrong—to the effect that Mr. Arafat was intransigent, had rejected all proposals put before him, and was supported in this intransigence by Egypt and Saudi Arabia.

I firmly believe that Egypt's response to those arbitrary and much publicized charges will go far to put a better light upon what, in truth, occurred. I submit for the RECORD the August 17, 2000 letter I have received from Ambassador Nabil Fahmy on this subject, and commend it to my colleagues for their close consideration.

EMBASSY OF THE ARAB REPUBLIC OF EGYPT,
Washington, DC, August 17, 2000.

Hon. NICK RAHALL,
Rayburn House Office Building,
Washington, DC.

DEAR CONGRESSMAN RAHALL: To follow upon the latest summit negotiations at Camp David, I would like to share with you some of my thoughts.

As soon as the Camp David summit ended without an agreement, a vigorous campaign painted a subjective picture of what went wrong in the 14 days of closed negotiations. In short, the story was that Arafat had been intransigent, had rejected all proposals, and was encouraged by Egypt and Saudi Arabia.

These accounts overlook how far the Palestinian position had moved over the last few years. By accepting the 1967 borders, Palestinians had already compromised on about 80% of what many in the region believe to be the land of historic Palestine. Also, at Camp David it was reported that they further agreed to an exchange of land leaving some settlements under Israeli sovereignty. They have accepted intrusive security measures to satisfy Israeli concerns. No one underscored that Arafat compromised on many issues. While many issues remain outstanding, progress has been witnessed in numerous areas. The issue of sovereignty of East Jerusalem, particularly El Aqsa Mosque, was among the outstanding issues. It is especially sensitive to Palestinians. We have to recognize that the Palestinians were flexible, however, they also have legitimate concerns that are dear to them.

The issue of Jerusalem remains outstanding, not only for the Palestinians. To this day, the international community has not recognized the Israeli occupation of Jerusalem. Numerous United Nations Security Council resolutions considered that all legislative and administrative measures taken by Israel, to change the legal status of Jerusalem, are invalid and cannot change Jerusalem's status. They urgently called upon Israel to rescind all such measures, and to desist form further actions changing the status of Jerusalem. Almost every country in the world, including the United States, respected those resolutions and have not established diplomatic Missions to Israel in the Holy City.

On the eve of the Madrid Peace Conference (1991), the basis of the current negotiations, the United States reassured the Palestinians that ''The U.S. is opposed to Israeli annexation of East Jerusalem and extension of Israeli law on it and the extension of Jerusalem's municipal boundaries.'' This remains the pronounced U.S. official position today.

We must not forget that the negotiations at the Egyptian-Israeli Camp David summit were also about to collapse on how to deal with the issue of Jerusalem. Each side stated its position in a letter to President Carter who would provide, for the record, an affirmation of the United States stance on Jerusalem. In his letter, dated September 22, 1978, President Carter asserted: ''The position of the United States on Jerusalem remains as stated by Ambassador Goldberg in the United Nations General Assembly on July 14, 1967, and subsequently by Ambassador Yost in the United Nations Security Council on July 1, 1969.'' The two statements unequivocally declared that:

''The United States considers that the part of Jerusalem that came under the control of Israel in the June (1967) War, like other areas occupied by Israel, is occupied territory . . .

The actions of Israel in the occupied portion of Jerusalem . . . give rise to understandable concerns that the eventual disposition of East Jerusalem may be prejudiced and the rights and activities of the population are already being affected and altered.

(The United States) government regrets and deplores this pattern of activity, and it has so informed the government of Israel on numerous occasions since June 1967.

(The United States) has consistently refused to recognize these measures as having anything but a provisional character and do not accept them as affecting the ultimate status of Jerusalem.''

Forcing a compromise on the Palestinians would ultimately mean the postponement of the end of the conflict and would plant the seeds for a bloodier confrontation between future generations. We have learned, the hard way, that military superiority and ''qualitative edges'' have never prevented wars nor provided security, and will never do. We have no alternative but to reach a comprehensive Palestinian-Israeli peace accord, including Jerusalem, and to reach it now, to bring to a final close the Palestinian-Israel conflict.

In a NY Times Op-Ed article on August 6, 2000, President Carter wrote: ''Accolades for one side and condemnation of the other is always a political temptation after an unsuccessful effort, but this makes it very difficult to orchestrate future negotiation sessions where mutual confidence in the mediator is required. Such statements made since Camp David discussions have aroused concern in the Arab community, and the possible movement of the American Embassy from Tel Aviv to Jerusalem would create an even greater impediment to further progress.''

Let us look for solutions rather than waste our time and energy trying to find excuses.

As for Egypt's role, when asked on Israeli television about this issue, President Clinton answered ''I think that the truth is that because this had never been discussed before between the two parties—and because when we went into the negotiations, they were usually secret or sacrosanct—that I'm not sure, number one, that they thought they knew enough to know what to ask for''.

President Clinton also spoke about Egypt's role in the peace process in an interview with Al-Hayat Newspaper published Friday the 11th of August. He said: ''The fact is that all that has happened since the original Camp David in September '78, including Madrid and Oslo, is an indication of the courageous and visionary policy of Egypt. Egypt was a pioneer for peace and continues to be a key partner for the United States. We agree on the fundamentals of the peace process and we will not be able to reach an Israeli-Palestinian agreement on these core issues without close consultations with Egypt. We are engaged in such a process today.''

What more can be said to dispel rumors that Egypt and other Arab countries were not helpful to the negotiations in Camp David. Egypt has been a key player in brokering almost all Palestinian-Israeli agreements, and has taken an active role in the pursuit of a just, lasting and comprehensive peace settlement. When faced with a crisis or a stalemate in any Arab-Israeli negotiations, the parties and the United States always turn to Egypt for fair and objective advice. One recent example was the Sharm el Sheikh Summit in September 1999.

It is noteworthy that Prime Minister Barak sent an envoy to Cairo even before leaving the U.S. and then proceeded himself to Cairo to meet President Mubarak after his return to the region, as did President Arafat. In the meantime, contacts between Egyptian and American officials continued in search of ways to overcome this impasse; Ambassador Walker, the Assistant Secretary of State for Near Eastern Affairs went to Cairo where he met with President Mubarak and conferred with Foreign Minister Moussa to coordinate both countries' efforts. President Clinton has recently corresponded with President Mubarak and Secretary Albright has since then called Foreign Minister Moussa. As always, we are now examining avenues of working with Palestinians and Israelis to give a creative boost to the negotiating process.

It is a difficult task before us, let us focus our efforts on finding a truly historic compromise to finally bring peace between Palestinians and Israelis. I look forward to working with you toward this objective.

Sincerely,

NABIL FAHMY,
Ambassador.

HONORING DONNIE SPARKS

HON. SCOTT McINNIS

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 6, 2000

Mr. MCINNIS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to congratulate Donnie Sparks, of Canon City,

Colorado, for his outstanding career in the Bureau of Land Management. Mr. Sparks served diligently as field office manager for nearly two decades. His efforts have been instrumental in designing State and Federal partnerships that have become eminently successful within the Bureau.

Before his distinguished career with the BLM in Colorado, Donnie worked as assistant manager for the Bureau in Alaska where he helped to manage the entire northwest corner of the state. After moving to Colorado, Donnie's hard work paid off in contributions that will live on in Colorado for many decades to come. Along with the Colorado Department of Corrections, Mr. Sparks helped to develop the very successful wild horse program that has been in place for nearly 15 years. Donnie also worked to form yet another State and Federal partnership with the Colorado Department of Parks and Outdoor Recreation creating the Arkansas Headwaters Recreation Area, which has become the most rafted river in the country.

It is with this, Mr. Speaker, that I say thank you to Donnie for his hard work and service over the years. Donnie's distinguished career has been quite remarkable and has had a positive impact on Colorado that will not soon be forgotten. He has worked hard to improve our great state and for that I thank him.

I wish him the best in all his future endeavors.

Dr. McCoy has served as a role model for his students for nearly forty years. He has always upheld the position of the scholar athlete coaching 9 All-American and 17 All-State football players. IN HONOR OF PUERTO RICO ON ITS CONSTITUTION DAY

HON. DENNIS J. KUCINICH

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 6, 2000

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, I rise to honor the citizens of Puerto Rico on Constitution Day, July 25, 1999. The people of Puerto Rico established Constitution of the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico for the very same reasons our forefathers wrote the Constitution of the United States of America, to establish themselves as a democracy.

The Puerto Rican Constitution ensures basic welfare and human rights for the people, ensconces the idea of a government which reflects the will of the people, and pays tribute and loyalty to the Constitution of the United States of America.

The Puerto Rican culture is a distinctly unique culture. By pledging allegiance to the Constitution of the United States of America, the people of Puerto Rico celebrate shared beliefs and the coexistence of both cultures. By ratifying their own Constitution, the people of Puerto Rico retain and honor their original heritage while expressing the desire to pursue democracy and happiness for themselves.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to recognize the following individuals for their contributions to the Greater Cleveland: Rev. Tomas Acevedo, Dr. Barbara Bird-Bennet, Lcdo. Jose Feliciano, Ray Galindo, Barbara Gill, Magda Gomez, Chris Hernandez, Vivian Riccio, Aurea Rivera, Diana Del Rosario, Ramon Torres. I hope that my fellow colleagues will join me in honoring these individuals and praising the Puerto Rican people as they celebrate Constitution Day.

TRIBUTE TO LOUISE STEFANELLI SIMMONS

HON. NICK J. RAHALL II

OF WEST VIRGINIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 6, 2000

Mr. RAHALL. Mr. Speaker, I rise in tribute to Louise Stefanelli Simmons who retired from the Corps of Engineers in Huntington, West Virginia on August 1, 2000 after dedicating 39 years, 11 months and four days to the Corps.

I salute Louise Stefanelli Simmons for her lifelong dedication to her husband and son Alan, as well as her devotion to duty throughout her service with the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. Her professionalism as well as her commitment to family and community are an outstanding example of family values and good citizenship.

Louise was born in Newark, New Jersey of Italian immigrant parents, one of four children. After graduating from Newark Prep with an associate degree in business, Louise worked as a civilian for the U.S. Army Corps in Newark during World War II, where she met her future husband Howard ''Red'' Simmons. Upon her marriage, she left family and friends in New Jersey to marry ''Simmy'' as she called him, moving with him to Huntington, West Virginia. Louise remembers the ''culture shock'' when she first visited downtown Huntington—the girl from the ''big city''—there was no comparison.

Early on in her marriage to ''Simmy'', she helped him run their restaurant, the Corral Drive-Inn near Marshall University, then got her real estate license so she could help him in his real estate development business.

In addition to helping out with the restaurant business and her husband's real estate interests, Louise worked several years for an insurance company before coming to the Corps of Engineers in 1963, Beginning in the typing pool before becoming secretary to the Chief of Engineering, she later became the secretary to the Colonel in charge of the Huntington Corps, where she remained for nearly four decades.

Louise will spend much of her retirement time as a long-time booster of Marshall University's sports activities, especially the football team, and attending the sporting events involving her two grandchildren, Mark 14 and Elizabeth 12.

Louise loves to travel, back to New Jersey with family and friends. Early this summer she took a 2-week vacation to Italy, to revisit the history of her parentage, and to steep herself in the culture and traditions of her parents' homeland.

Other retirement activities will include her dedication to walking (twice around Ritter Park at least 5 days a week), watching old movies, and perfecting her Italian cooking. Louise is an active member of Johnson Memorial United Methodist Church, the Women's Club of Huntington, and participates in the Professional Secretaries Association.

I wish all the best for Louise, her husband, son Alan and her grandchildren as she embarks upon her Golden Years giving all her uninterrupted energy and love to her family, to her church, and to the community to which she has already contributed so abundantly throughout her remarkable life in her adopted State of West Virginia.

HONORING BASIL T. KNIGHT

HON. SCOTT McINNIS

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 6, 2000

Mr. McINNIS. Mr. Speaker, it is with great sadness that I now honor an extraordinary human being and great American, Basil T. Knight. Mr. Knight was an educator that changed the lives of literally thousands of young men and women over his more than seven decades as an educator in western Colorado. As family, friends, former students and colleagues mourn this profound loss, I would like to honor this truly great American.

Mr. Knight was an individual that reached out to help every human being that he came in contact with. As an educator, countless students in District 51 have been affected by this remarkable man and each are better off because of his service. Basil began his legendary educational career as a substitute teacher at Mount Lincoln School near Palisade, Colorado, in 1923. He went on to become Principal only a year later. In 1925, Basil became a math teacher at Grand Junction High School where he remained for over three decades. As remarkable as his teaching career was, his immense impact upon the community continued long after he left the classroom.

Mr. Knight was elected County Supervisor of Schools in 1965, which placed him in charge of over 40 schools within the county. As supervisor, he continued to work to ensure that the children in his community would receive the best education possible. His commitment to education earned him not only the Educator of the Year award in 1974 from the Colorado Education Association, but also the District 51 staff development center now bears his name. Employees and visitors alike are reminded of his unmatched commitment to education every time they set foot in the Basil T. Knight Center.

Mr. Knight's passion for serving children extended well into his golden years. In fact, he played an instrumental role in the passage of a recent school bond initiative that helped improve a number of existing schools in the Grand Junction area and build two new ones. The passing of this bond was the answer to a wish he made on his 100th birthday. Beyond his brick and mortar contributions to School District 51, Mr. Knight's legacy will also endure in his five A's philosophy (attendance, attitude, attention, achievement and ABC's), a philosophy still used by the district today.

Former State Senator Tilman Bishop, in a recent article in the Grand Junction Daily Sentinel, helps to sum up the impact Basil had on his community: ''Many generations have and will benefit from Basil T. Knight, to say he was a unique person is an understatement. Thank you Basil for all you stood for and believed in.''

Mr. Speaker and fellow colleagues, as you can see, this extraordinary human being truly deserves our gratitude and our thanks. It is individuals like Basil who are committed to bettering the lives of America's youth through both education and public service that make our great country what it is today. Basil T. Knight may be gone, but his proud and distinguished legacy will long endure.

America is most assuredly a better place for having known Basil T. Knight.

PROPOSED TRIBUTE TO LIEUTENANT COLONEL DOUGLAS E. WADE, UNITED STATES AIR FORCE, ON THE OCCASION OF HIS RETIREMENT

HON. JOHN JOSEPH MOAKLEY

OF MASSACHUSETTS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 6, 2000

Mr. MOAKLEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to Lieutenant Colonel Douglas E. Wade as he prepares to culminate his active duty career in the United States Air Force. Doug is the epitome of an outstanding officer and leader.

Lieutenant Colonel Wade began his career more than 20 years ago as an enlisted soldier in the Army. He then received his direct commission as a second lieutenant in the Air Force. A law graduate of Ohio State University, as well as the Air Command and Staff College, Doug Wade has met the many challenges of military service as an Air Force Officer, and has faithfully served his country in a variety of command and staff assignments.

Doug concludes his career as the Director for House Affairs in the Office of the Assistant Secretary of Defense for Legislative Affairs; he was instrumental in advising the Defense Department leadership on a broad range of national security issues of immediate interest to Congress. Doug's personal rapport with the House leadership and Members of Congress was vital in ensuring Department of Defense programs were clearly presented and soundly defended on Capitol Hill.

Mr. Speaker, service and dedication to duty have been the hallmarks of Lieutenant Colonel Wade's career. He has served our nation and the Air Force well during his years of service, and we are indebted for his many contributions and sacrifices in the defense of the United States. I am sure that everyone who has worked with Doug joins me in wishing him and his family health, happiness, and success in the years to come.

HONORING DONELDA WARHURST AND LIZ STUMPF OF YORBA LINDA, CALIFORNIA

HON. GARY G. MILLER

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 6, 2000

Mr. GARY MILLER of California. Mr. Speaker, it is with great pleasure that I honor Donelda Warhurst and Liz Stumpf, teachers at Bryant Ranch School, in Yorba Linda, California. Ms. Warhurst and Mrs. Stumpf are more than just educators; they are passionate, inspiring leaders who encourage their students to reach beyond the walls of the classroom in their pursuit of knowledge.

Ms. Warhurst and Mrs. Stumpf spearheaded the award-winning ''Once Upon a River'' curriculum. ''Once Upon a River'' is an integrated, cross curriculum approach that allows students to learn more about the Santa Ana River while simultaneously mastering grade-level skills in language arts, math, science, social studies, and the arts.

In addition to studying the chemistry and biology of the water, the historical importance of the Santa Ana River, and data collection skills, the students also have a public property access permit to carry-out mitigation of Arundo Donax, Castor Bean, and Tamarisk. Students have applied their knowledge to effectively clear the area of Arundo Donax, an introduced species of bamboo that was threatening native plants, build and install bluebird boxes, and educate others about the Santa Ana River.

Ms. Warhurst and Mrs. Stumpf have showcased and furthered the work of their students through various community partnerships. The Orange County Park Service and the Orange County Flood Control District have served as advisors. Students have also worked with officials at the City of Yorba Linda and a local bat biologist.

''Once Upon a River'' has been a success. After five years and 10,080 volunteer hours provided by 280 students, an acre of the highly invasive ''Arundo Donax'' has been completely removed along the Santa Ana River.

Ms. Warhurst and Mrs. Stumpf have been recognized by the Orange County Board of Supervisors, the Placentia Yorba Linda Unified School Board, and the Points of Light Foundation.

Mr. Speaker, I ask that this House please join me in recognizing, honoring and commending Ms. Warhurst and Mrs. Stumpf for their creativity, leadership, and commitment to their students.

A TRIBUTE TO NICK ROMANO

HON. GERALD D. KLECZKA

OF WISCONSIN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 6, 2000

Mr. KLECZKA. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in tribute to my good friend and a life-long supporter of working men and women, Nick Romano, who retired July 1, 2000 after 42 years of dedicated service to and membership in the United Auto Workers (UAW).

Nicholas Romano was hired in 1958 at the Milwaukee manufacturing plant of American Motors. Throughout his years at the American Motors Body Plant, Chrysler and the UAW, Nick has been a progressive advocate for his union brothers and sisters, his neighbors and community. A selfless leader, Nick seized every opportunity available to express the opinions of organized labor to his elected officials locally, on the state level and nationally. Nick organized and participated in many grass-roots lobbying efforts to bring labor-related issues and concerns into the limelight.

The union membership granted Nick many official duties, including group steward, head steward, benefits representative, chair of the bargaining committee, member of the Local 75 Executive Board (culminating in the last 15 years as Local President), member of the national UAW negotiating team for the DaimlerChrysler national contract negotiations and a seat on the Wisconsin State UAW CAP Executive Board until his retirement last month.

It will be literally impossible to replace Nick Romano and forget all that he has done and meant to the UAW in southeastern Wisconsin, the Midwest and our nation. But let each and every one of us learn from Nick's four decades' worth of leadership to step up and do the best we can to live by his example. May God bless you Nick, Judy and your family.

Nick will be honored by UAW International Representatives, Region 4 and Local Representatives, his family and many friends at a retirement dinner Saturday, September 9 in Milwaukee. I personally extend my thanks and well wishes to Nick for all that he's done.

HONORING ROBERT STANTON

HON. SCOTT McINNIS

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 6, 2000

Mr. MCINNIS. Mr. Speaker, it is with great sadness that I wish to take this moment to recognize the remarkable life and achievements of one of Colorado's leading public servants, Robert Stanton, who recently passed away. As family, friends, and neighbors mourn his passing, I would like to honor this great Coloradan.

For the better half of a decade, Mr. Stanton served faithfully as the president of the Bonfils-Stanton foundation. This foundation was established in 1962 by Charles Edwin Stanton following the death of his wife, Mary Madeline Bonfils, and is devoted to the advancement of philanthropic causes. Robert has made numerous contributions to many organizations, including the University of Colorado Health and Sciences Center and the University of Denver Biological Sciences Department where he created an endowment. in honor of Ira E. Cutler.

Robert had an extremely distinguished professional career working for the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, the Board of Examiners for Engineers and Land Surveyors, the National Society of Professional Surveyors Inc., the American Institute of Chemical Engineers, as well as supervising fieldwork for oil companies in Colorado, Oklahoma and Texas. Mr. Stanton's life was one of distinction both professionally and in the realm of public service.

In addition to his distinguished professional career, Mr. Stanton still found time to serve his community and state and that is why his memory will live on in the minds of many. I am confident, Mr. Speaker, that in the face of this loss, family and friends can take comfort in the knowledge that each is a better person for having known him.

He will be greatly missed.

INTRODUCTION OF THE ''WORK MADE FOR HIRE AND COPYRIGHT CORRECTIONS ACT OF 2000''

HON. JOHN CONYERS, JR.

OF MICHIGAN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 6, 2000

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to join with subcommittee ranking Member HOWARD BERMAN and subcommittee chairman HOWARD COBLE to introduce the ''Work Made for Hire and Copyright Corrections Act of 2000,'' which strikes ''sound recordings'' from the definition of ''work made for hire'' in section 101 of the Copyright Act.

This bill undoes an amendment to the Copyright Act made last November, an amendment that changed the Act to treat ''sound recordings'' as ''works made for hire.'' Without the benefit of Committee hearings or other debate, that change effectively terminated any future interest that artists might have in their sound recordings and turned them over permanently to the record companies.

Fortunately, all of the interested parties—the Members, the recording artists, and the recording industry—after hearing testimony at a Subcommittee hearing now agree that the provision must be struck, that we must return the law to where it was on November 28, 1999, the day before the amendment passed into law, so that artists' authorship rights are preserved.

I am pleased that the recording industry has worked diligently with the recording artists to reach agreement on how to do just that. Arrived at after several months of negotiations, this bill ensures that we return to status quo ante on ''sound recordings'' with respect to whether and under what circumstances they are considered ''works made for hire.'' The bill is retroactive to the date section 1011(d) was enacted. As such, this bill will function as if section 1011(d) never existed; the artists and industry have the same rights now that they did on November 28, 1999.

I ask my colleagues to support this compromise legislation. Vote ''Yes'' when it comes before the full House.

A TRIBUTE TO KIRKLAND TEEN CENTER

HON. JAY INSLEE

OF WASHINGTON

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 6, 2000

Mr. INSLEE. Mr. Speaker, we hear so much these days about the problems plaguing today's young people that sometimes the positives are drowned out. Therefore, I rise today to publicly recognize the Kirkland Teen Center. I will be attending the center's groundbreaking ceremony this Saturday, and I want to take a moment to make my colleagues aware of this extraordinary center, created by our youth for our youth.

The center's operating partner, Friends of Youth, is a local non-profit agency with nineteen locations throughout King and Snohomish Counties. The Friends of Youth's mission is to: develop, provide and advocate services for children, youth, their families and communities that encourage individual growth and promote constructive relationships.

Mr. Speaker, that mission will be the guiding force behind this drug-free and alcohol-free youth center. The center will include a coffee shop with a teen manager, provide poetry classes, as well as provide a state of the art recording studio, a modem photography lab, and a graphic art/animation technology station. Moreover, the center is being built from the ground up and will connect with the Kirkland Senior Center, allowing for intergenerational programs and events. The center allows teens to develop positive relationships with peers and adults, and parents to have the security in knowing their child is spending time at a safe place.

I hosted three informative town meetings in my district last year about the need for afterschool programs. I strongly believe that afterschool programs are an excellent, well-proven way to keep teens from engaging in criminal activities. The time between school bells and dinner bells presents the most risk to our young people, and in an age when most parents are unable to stay home with their children, we must provide safe and productive activities for our youth. The Kirkland Teen Center is a perfect example of a safe, after-school center, and I believe Congress would do well to promote more centers like this one around the country.

All of the youth that volunteered their time to plan, or serve on this center's Board of Directors and Advisory Board, deserve our praise for their hard work and selfless dedication to their community as a whole. I ask all of my colleagues to join me in congratulating everyone involved in the Kirkland Teen Center for a job well done.

IN HONOR OF JIMMY SIMS, ROBERTSON COUNTY, KY FIREFIGHTER

HON. KEN LUCAS

OF KENTUCKY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 6, 2000

Mr. LUCAS of Kentucky. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in recognition of Mr. Jimmy Sims, who recently retired as Fire Chief of the Robertson County, KY Fire Department.

Mr. Sims' retirement wraps up nearly a half-century of dedicated service to his community. He is the only surviving founding member of the volunteer department, which was started in 1951. Mr. Sims served as chief from 1975–1999. Another example of his extraordinary level of dedication—his home served as the county fire dispatch center for 24 years. From 1969–1993, he took emergency calls and dispatched crews from his home.

Mr. Sims helped his neighbors countless times over the years, responding to round-the-clock calls for help, saving lives and protecting property.

I rise today to commend Chief Sims for his commitment to helping his neighbors in Robertson County. I ask all my fellow Members of Congress to join me in commending this fine public servant, and wishing him well in his retirement.

HONORING JOHNNETTE PHILLIPS

HON. SCOTT McINNIS

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 06, 2000

Mr. MCINNIS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to take this moment to honor the distinguished service of the Honorable Johnnette Phillips of Eagle County, Colorado. Johnnette is retiring as Eagle County Commissioner after serving admirably for nearly a decade. Her outstanding commitment is unparalleled and her contributions immeasurable.

For Johnnette, serving her community comes naturally. Before serving as commissioner, she used her natural leadership ability as Eagle County Clerk and Recorder, serving for nearly 15 years. Beyond her efforts as Clerk and Recorder and Commissioner, Johnnette has helped advance the cause of a number of worthy organizations, serving as President and Second Vice President of Colorado Counties, Inc., Northwest Colorado Council of Governments Executive Board and President of both the American Legion Auxiliary and the Colorado State Association of County Clerks and Recorders.

Johnnette's drive and determination has not only improved her local community, but also earned her national recognition. Ms. Phillips received the well-deserved honor of being named among Who's Who in U.S. Executives in 1995 and Who's Who in Women Executives in 1996. What' more, her service has won her the admiration of an entire community.

On behalf of the State of Colorado and the United States Congress, Johnnette, I thank you for your service and wish you the very best in your future endeavors. Your immense contributions to Eagle County will not be soon forgotten.

TRIBUTE TO ROBERT ANGUIANO

HON. SOLOMON P. ORTIZ

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 6, 2000

Mr. ORTIZ. Mr. Speaker, I rise to pay tribute to Robert Anguiano of Corpus Christi's Tuloso-Midway High School, for winning the Hispanic Heritage Awards Foundation National Youth Award for Sports. This young man has an enormous amount of discipline and endurance.

Robert has accomplished a great deal in the field of sports and academics, and I am proud that he was chosen for this honor. Robert is in the top 20% of his class, an athlete-scholar with a litany of associations including honors clubs, leadership awards and community service. He is precisely the sort of young person that the Hispanic Heritage Awards Foundation seeks to reward.

Robert has an unusual determination. This became particularly evident when he badly hurt his knee while playing tennis. He went through two and one half months on crutches and hours of physical therapy. His doctors told him he could play tennis again, but would not be competitive due to the seriousness of the injury. He did not let their admonitions deter him from his game.

Robert won this award, not because he had a particularly good year, but because he has been a steady, reliable athlete and has always been in it for the long haul. His coach credits him with holding his tennis team together during a transition and leading them to the regional level.

This young man is more than an athlete; he is a scholar, a young leader in his school and community, and he volunteers his time to teach tennis to younger people in the community. He is a National Honor Society member, captain of his tennis team, and has a grade point average of 3.74.

The Hispanic Heritage Awards celebrates the achievements of outstanding Hispanic Americans in the arts, literature, leadership, education and sports. The awards program provides an important service to the community and youth by profiling Hispanic American role models. The awards, which are endorsed by 34 national Hispanic organizations who serve as the nominating committee, is the only program co-hosted by all of these organizations.

I ask my colleagues to join me today in commending Robert Anguiano for his accomplishments and his quiet leadership in the classroom and on the tennis court, and in commending the Hispanic Heritage Awards for their efforts in rewarding the excellence among our young people.

A TRIBUTE TO A VETERAN, HERB KING

HON. BOB FILNER

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 6, 2000

Mr. FILNER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize Mr. Herb King who is being honored on September 8th at the California Gay Veterans Memorial Dinner as the winner of the Sheila Kuehl Leadership Award.

Herb is a long-time friend. He was born in September, 1918 and graduated from the Boston Latin School, the oldest public school in the United States. He attended the University of Massachusetts in Amherst and graduated from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in June, 1940 with a Bachelor of Science Degree in Biology and Public Health.

He went on active duty as a reserve Army Second Lieutenant in October of 1940. When Pearl Harbor was attacked the following December, he volunteered for field duty, served in the North African and Italian campaigns, and reached the rank of Major and a Battalion Commander.

At the Quartermaster Subsistence Research Laboratory in Chicago, Herb developed the formula for a concentrated ration that was designated as the ''K'' Ration, based on his last name. After World War II, he became an industrial engineer in the food industry, designing food processing plants. He retired over 20 years ago.

Herb has been on the executive board of the California Democratic Party, twice a delegate to the Democratic. National Convention, a member of the Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual Veterans of America since it was founded in 1990, and a founding member and participant of the Federation of Gay Games. He was one of four gay and lesbian veterans who participated in a nation-wide bus tour in 1993, promoting equal rights for gays and lesbians in military service. Herb currently writes a regular column for the San Diego Gay and Lesbian Times and is a member of the San Diego Gay and Lesbian Band.

The Sheila Kuehl Leadership Award that Herb is receiving is named for California State Assemblymember Sheila Kuehl. The proceeds from this Memorial Dinner will be dedicated to building California's first Lesbian Gay and Bisexual Veterans Memorial in Palm Springs.

As a Member of the House Veterans' Affairs Committee, I am pleased to recognize Herb King for his military service to our nation and for his friendship and support.

THE FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH OF SAGINAW

HON. JAMES A. BARCIA

OF MICHIGAN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 6, 2000

Mr. BARCIA. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to praise and give thanks to the First Congregational Church of Saginaw for the devotion its members have shown to the community, serving as a beacon of hope to those mistakenly sounding the death knell for a vibrant city on the cusp of a renaissance.

The church's story is one of survival and perseverance through many struggles, toils and tears. Members first gathered together in 1857, constructing the present church building in Romanesque Revival style in 1868 with plans by Detroit architect Gordon W. Lloyd. A fellowship hall, school wing, the Bethlehem Chapel and the former Mary E. Dow House designed by Alden B. Dow were added later.

Visitors to First Congregational cannot help but cast an awestruck eye on its elegant beauty and the inspiration its sanctuary gives to all who stand in it. The original sanctuary windows were replaced with magnificent stained glass, adding a special touch to the stately 1913 Louis Comfort Tiffany window in the north transept. The church, a bulwark ever-changing, did more building and restoration in 1973 following a fire that destroyed the sanctuary roof.

Churches, however, are more than bricks and mortar. First Congregational members have included names familiar to Saginaw's history, such as Morley, Wickes and Frank Andersen. Today's members continue to take a lead-by-example approach by participating in PRIDE, the East Side Soup Kitchen, Hidden Harvest, Habitat for Humanity, the Saginaw Community Foundation, the Saginaw Choral Society and many other groups. With an annual Musical Arts Concert, they also offer an ear-pleasing addition to the city's cultural bounty.

Recently, the church agreed to provide college scholarships to all incoming Central Intermediate School sixth-grade students who graduate from high school and go on to college.

Mr. Speaker, this clearly is a church that has taken its Christian mission to heart by not abandoning Saginaw, but instead acting as a good neighbor in finding ways to improve the lives of its residents.

HONORING THE 75TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE JACKSON COUNTY LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS

HON. JERRY F. COSTELLO

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 6, 2000

Mr. COSTELLO. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to ask my colleagues to join me in honoring the 75th anniversary of the Jackson County League of Women Voters.

The League of Women Voters of the United States was formed in 1920 by suffragettes who wanted to ensure that the newly enfranchised women would be informed about the voting process and about how to vote. Five years later, a group of women in Jackson County began a league locally.

For 75 years the Jackson County League of Women Voters has helped all voters, men and women, to prepare for elections. The League has held demonstrations on how to vote, sponsored forums for candidates to explain their views and published election guides. For several decades, League members have served in Jackson County as deputy registrars, registering voters at local events and stores.

The League believes in open and accountable government. Locally, it promoted the City Manager form of government for the City of Carbondale and has studied the professionalization of and the various forms of both city and county government. For many years before the advent of the Open Meetings Act which requires that public bodies post agendas and hold open meetings, the League sent observers to many public meetings as a reminder to public officials about the citizens whom they serve.

The Jackson County League of Women Voters has also helped to desegregate the schools, integrate the neighborhoods, develop recycling and other environmental programs, create standards for large scale livestock farms and ensure the safety of the drinking water. The League has also published a guide to mental health services in the County and a booklet about county offices. Nationally, the League has studied issues as wide-ranging as national security, urban transportation and health care.

Currently, the League of Jackson County is working to break the cycle of violence in children by ending aggressive behavior in schools, a project through the local health department. It is examining the forms of election of Illinois State legislators and promoting campaign finance reform. The League sponsors a series of talks by local county officials on local issues. It is studying the need for a new County Courthouse and other facilities. The League is also encouraging voters to take a friend to vote, as a means to encourage citizens to vote. The League of Women Voters adheres to the belief that democracy is not a spectator sport.

The League of Women Voters is open to men and women, at least 18 years of age. The League is non-partisan, but involved in many efforts in our communities. Always, the focus of the League is encouraging active citizen involvement and participation in the community and in the government.

Mr. Speaker, I ask my colleagues to join me in honoring the men and women of Jackson County on the occasion of the 75th anniversary of the Jackson County League of Women Voters.

IN SUPPORT OF VAWA REAUTHORIZATION

HON. PATSY T. MINK

OF HAWAII

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 6, 2000

Mrs. MINK of Hawaii. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to urge the leadership of the House of Representatives to schedule floor action on the reauthorization of the Violence Against Women Act (VAWA), which expires this year.

The Violence Against Women Act, H.R. 1248, was reported out of the House Judiciary Committee on June 27, 2000. With 216 cosponsors, H.R. 1248 enjoys strong bipartisan support. It reauthorizes current VAWA grant programs for 5 years, makes targeted improvements, and adds important new programs.

The passage of the Violence Against Women Act in 1994 was one of the greatest accomplishments of the 103rd Congress and the Clinton Administration. Since 1995, VAWA grants have provided a major source of funding for national and local programs to reduce rape, stalking, and domestic violence. The 1994 Act bolstered the prosecution of child abuse, sexual assault, and domestic violence cases; provided services for victims by funding shelters and sexual assault crisis centers; increased resources for law enforcement and prosecutors; and created a National Domestic Violence Hotline.

VAWA has made a difference in the lives of millions of women, but we need to do more. We must ensure that we adequately address the needs of all victims of domestic violence and sexual assault including immigrant women, older women, women with disabilities, and women of color. We must help women who are trying to escape domestic violence by providing transitional housing and legal assistance services.

H.R. 1248 vastly improves VAWA by strengthening the existing provisions and by adding new provisions to address dating violence, reach underserved populations, facilitate enforcement of state and tribal protective orders nationwide, provide transitional housing, create programs for supervised visitation and exchange for children, develop training programs on elder abuse for law enforcement personnel and prosecutors, provide civil legal assistance funds, strengthen the National Instant Criminal Background Check System, and more.

Passage of the Violence Against Women Act has been identified as the top priority of the Congressional Women's Caucus. It is certainly one of my top priorities.

I urge the leadership to schedule a vote on this vital legislation within the next ten days. The Senate is ready to vote on its VAWA bill. We must be ready to go to conference and to send this bill to the president before the 106th Congress adjourns.

We cannot in good conscience go home to our districts without acting on this critical legislation, which so strongly impacts the safety and well being of women and children throughout our nation.

TRIBUTE TO ST. ANDREW'S AFRICAN METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH

HON. ROBERT T. MATSUI

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 6, 2000

Mr. MATSUI. Mr. Speaker, I rise in tribute to St. Andrew's African Methodist Episcopal Church of Sacramento. On October 1, 2000, St. Andrew's will be celebrating its 150th anniversary. It is the oldest church of its kind on the Pacific Coast. As the Congregation members gather to celebrate, I ask all of my colleagues to join with me in saluting this monumental achievement.

St. Andrew's was founded in 1850, three months before California was admitted as the 31st state to the Union. It is the first African Methodist Episcopal Church and the first African-American religious congregation established on the Pacific Coast of the United States.

In the beginning, a small group of worshipers gathered in Sacramento at the home of Daniel Blue. Under the leadership of Barney Fletcher, this group would form the church that would later be known as St. Andrew's A.M.E. Church. In the fall of 1850, Reverend Isaac Owen, pastor of the Seventh Street Methodist Episcopal Church, participated in the formal organizing of the church.

The first trustees, James R. Brown, John Barton, George Fletcher, John L. Wilson, and Chesterfield Jackson purchased part of the lot in the square between G and H Streets. At this site, the first church was erected and named the Methodist Church of Colored People of Sacramento. In 1851, the members of the church petitioned the Indiana Conference for admission to the African Methodist Episcopal Church and officially became the Bethel African Methodist Church. Later in the 19th century, the church acquired its current name, St. Andrew's African Methodist Episcopal Church.

St. Andrew's has been a pioneer in organizing an educational and religious haven for people of color. In 1854, the first A.M.E. Sunday School in the far west was organized. This also became the site of the first public school organized for children of African, Asian, and Native American descent. In 1855, the church was the site of the first statewide convention of the colored citizens of California. This was the first organized political activity by people of African descent in California aimed at securing citizenship rights.

During the following years of westward expansion in the United States, St. Andrew's became a pivotal point in the far west for African Methodism, and it hosted numerous political, secular, educational, and cultural activities for African Americans. The church helped to develop educated and trained leaders of the African American community, even before the end of slavery.

Today, St. Andrew's continues to shine as a pillar for the community. In 1995, the church was recognized as a California Registered Landmark for being the oldest African-American Church on the Pacific Coast. For 150 years, the church has admirably served the ethnically diverse Sacramento community.

Mr. Speaker, as the exceptional people of St. Andrew's African Methodist Episcopal Church gather to celebrate their 150th anniversary, I am honored to pay tribute to one of Sacramento's most outstanding institutions. Throughout their proud history, the people of St. Andrew's have maintained an impressive tradition of service to the African-American community and other minority communities in greater Sacramento. I ask all my colleagues to join with me in wishing the people of St. Andrew's continued success in all their future endeavors.

Mr. DIXON. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to salute my constituent and my friend, Beverly Ann King, who is being singled out for her enormous contributions to minority entrepreneurs with the National Minority Enterprise Development (MED) Week Award, which will be presented to her in Washington, DC, on Wednesday, September 27, 2000. Each year, the President of the United States designates one week as Minority Enterprise Development (MED) Week to honor outstanding members of the business sector. I am proud to note that in addition to being a recipient of the national Award, Beverly also received the Region IX MEDWeek Award at a luncheon in her honor on Thursday, August 31, 2000, and on Wednesday, October 18, 2000, will be honored with the local Los Angeles MED Week Award, at a luncheon in her honor at the Los Angeles Convention Center.

President and Chief Executive Officer of BAK Management, Beverly King is recognized nationally for her expertise in the conceptualization and implementation of programs benefitting minority, women, and disadvantaged business (MBE/WBE/DBE) owners. She has been a much sought after advocate for minority entrepreneurs for nearly two decades, as she has worked to ensure participation and parity for MBE/WBE/DBE enterprises in government and business contracting opportunities. As an expert in the field of MBE/WBE/DBE programs, she is a frequent lecturer and conducts seminars and training programs into the concepts and skills necessary for a successful minority business program.

Ms. King founded Beverly A. King (BAK) Management Consulting in July 1986. Her numerous clients have included the City of Los Angeles, Bunker Hill Tower, the Southern California Gas Company (now SEMPRA Energy), and Turner Construction. She continues to represent Turner Construction, serving as the company's Community Affairs Director and MBE/WBE/EEO Administrator.

Prior to establishing BAK Management Consulting, Beverly served six years as Equal Opportunity Manager for the Federal Highway Administration (FHA) in Los Angeles. Her duties included overseeing all civil rights/EEO activities associated with the construction of Los Angeles' Century Freeway project, and serving as the FHA's representative on the Century Freeway Affirmative Action Committee.

During the early years of her career, Beverly worked in our nation's capital for Senator Ralph Yarborough of Texas and Congresswoman Yvonne Brathwaite Burke of Los Angeles. She attended Prairie View A&M College in Texas, Howard University in Washington, DC, and earned undergraduate and graduate degrees from Pepperdine University in Los Angeles.

The recipient of numerous awards and honors, including the President's Award presented by the Black Business Association of Los Angeles, in August 1992 she was named by Speaker Thomas Foley to a four year term as a member of the United States Glass Ceiling Commission.

She is on the Corporate Advisory Board and a member of the Black Business Association; the Asian Business Association; the National Association of Minority Contractors of Southern California; and Women Construction Executives of Los Angeles. In addition, she has served on the Advisory Board of the UCLA Graduate School of Business. Furthermore, she is chair of the Legislative Task Force of Black Women's Forum and serves on the Board of Black Women of Achievement.

Mr. Speaker, Beverly A. King is indeed a woman of achievement. The fruits of her labors bear witness through the growth of the many successful MBE/WBE/DBE's engaged today in businesses throughout the Los Angeles community. It is a pleasure to publicly commend her, and to extend heartfelt congratulations to her on the high honors she is so deservedly receiving at this time. On behalf of the residents of the 32nd Congressional District of Los Angeles, I thank her and wish her continued success in the future.

TRIBUTE TO THE LATE RICHARD D. ROMERO

HON. JOE BACA

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 6, 2000

Mr. BACA. Mr. Speaker, it is with regret and deep sadness that I announce the passing of Inland Empire businessman, philanthropist, and community leader Richard Romero, at the age of 64.

Richard demonstrated vision and entrepreneurial spirit in the Inland Empire for over 30 years, opening his first dealership, Pomona Valley Datsun, in 1970. Today his business interests include 8 automobile franchises, a wholesale auto auction and a real estate company.

Throughout the years, Richard had a large presence in the Inland Empire, both as a businessman and community leader. He believed that what makes this country great is our individual commitments to philanthropies.

Richard and his wife of 38 years, Val, sponsored and supported many service organizations and programs for children including: an annual Christmas Choral Competition which awards monetary grants to 5 area high schools, a Christmas Program which provides gifts for over 300 foster children, Assistance League of Pomona Valley, Kiwanis, Ontario Chamber of Commerce and National Charity League.

Richard was born in rural Socorro, New Mexico, September 4, 1935, son of Clara and James Romero. He began working at age 9 washing cars and working in a service station. He earned a bachelor's degree in Business Administration, and for 6 years served our country in the Army Reserve Tank Corps. He then worked as assistant auditor for the state of New Mexico.

He moved to Los Angeles to work as an auditor for 20th Century Fox, at which time he also began his career in the retail auto business when he bought a small gas station from which he began refurbishing and selling used cars.

Richard was Chairman of the Board of Empire Nissan, Romero Motors Corporation, Jeep/Chrysler/Plymouth of Ontario, Toyota of Glendale and J. McCullough Corporation. He had served as a board member of the California Motor Car Dealers Association and the Chairman of the Board and CEO of Acquirecorp's Norwalk Auto Auction, Oremor Management & Investment Company and Oremor Development L.L.C.

Richard received several awards within the industry, including Chrysler Corporation's ''Five Star Award for Excellence'' and Nissan's President Inner Circle Award. In 1987, he was honored as the only Californian to receive the Import Car Dealer of Distinction Award. He was also the winner of the Time Magazine's Quality Dealer Award and named Mr. Hispanic Business Man of the Year, 1985.

In addition to being listed in ''Who's Who in California'', he was also named 1987 Humanitarian of the Year by the Alliance of Latino Business Association. He served with the Deukmejian administration as a California Transportation Commissioner. He also served on the Board of Governors of Opportunity Funding Corporation, a nonprofit, Washington, D.C. based organization, which helps minority members start and/or expand small businesses. Additionally, he worked closely with King Juan Carlos of Spain when he served on the Board of Governors for Expo '92 in Seville.

Richard was the founder and former chairman of the board of directors of Empire Bank and also served for over 20 years on the Board of Trustees for the University of La Verne, which chose him for their 1998 President's Award. Additionally, he served on the Board of Governors for the Rose Institute of Claremont McKenna College. The Romeros had the honor of meeting and hosting several dignitaries and celebrities in their home including Chief of Staff Howard Baker under President Ronald Reagan, Former Governor Pete Wilson, Lord Roger Keyes, Sir Julien and Lady Ridsdale, and heavy weight champion George Foreman. He had also met and conferred with Presidents Reagan, Bush, Ford and Carter.

Richard is survived by his wife Val; son R.J.; two daughters Valerie and Christina; and four grandchildren with one on the way.

Richard will be missed by family and friends alike. He touched us all with his kind deeds and leadership in our community.

U.S. SHOULD SHOW SOLIDARITY WITH IRANIAN RESISTANCE

HON. JAMES A. TRAFICANT, JR.

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 6, 2000

Mr. TRAFICANT. Mr. Speaker, Mohammad Khatami, the president of Iran, is scheduled to speak at the United Nations' Millennium Summit in New York today. More than 10,000 Iranian-Americans protested yesterday in front of the United Nations saying that Khatami does not represent the Iranian people, and should not be speaking at this summit.

Unfortunately I was not able to join U.S. Senator ROBERT TORRICELLI, and my colleagues in the House, CAROLYN MALONEY, GARY ACKERMAN, and GREGORY MEEKS at this impressive rally. But, Mr. Speaker, I want to voice my strong support for the 10,000 Iranian-Americans who were in front of the UN yesterday rallying for freedom and democracy in Iran. The crowd was chanting yesterday that the true representative of the Iranian people is the National Council of Resistance of Iran, and its president-elect, Maryam Rajavi. I couldn't agree more.

The United States should not be supporting Khatami. He is not the reformer the press has made him out to be. The fact is, under Khatami, Iran's human rights record has gotten worse. Under Khatami, Iran continues to be an aggressive supporter of international terrorism. The fact is, the Khatami presidency has brought more misery and despair to the Iranian people.

I would like to send this message to all the world leaders attending, the summit: support the Resistance's call for democracy in Iran and ban tyrants like Khatami from the UN.

TRIBUTE TO MARY MIYASHITA

HON. HOWARD L. BERMAN

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 6, 2000

Mr. BERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to Mary Miyashita, who will be recognized as the Special Honoree for Lifetime Achievement at a reception held by Asian Week on August 13, 2000. This event will honor the Asian and Pacific Islander American Delegates to the Democratic National Convention 2000.

Mary and I have been friends for 25 years and I am delighted to join her many admirers in honoring her lifetime of selfless and energetic service to the Asian-American community and to the Democratic party. I know of no one who has been more generous with her time, energy, money and even her home, than Mary has been in the pursuit of justice and equal opportunity for every individual.

Mary has served on a plethora of civic organizations. She has been a board member of the ACLU, the League of Women Voters, Women for Peace, the PTA and the Whittier Area Fair Housing Committee. She was a founding member of the Advisory Board of Meals on Wheels and of the Woman and Children's Crisis Shelter.

The Democratic Party has no more stalwart member than Mary Miyashita. Since Adlai Stevenson's 1948 gubernatorial campaign, no major election has passed without Mary's active participation. She is a true believer in representative democracy, working tirelessly on behalf of numerous local, state and federal candidates and helping tip the electoral scales on more than one occasion.

Mary has been either a delegate or an alternate to every Democratic National Convention since 1972. She served on the Los Angeles County Democratic Party's Central Committee for 20 years. Among the many awards showered upon her by grateful party organizations are Key Woman of the Democratic Woman's Forum, Democratic Woman of the Year in 1975 and ''Superstar of '78.'' Mary is definitely a Superstar every year as far as I'm concerned.

In 1976, Mary helped found the first Asian Pacific Caucus, which has grown into a prestigious and highly effective advocacy organization. Her service to the Asian-American community is virtually without peer. She has been my confidant and advisor on issues of importance to her for decades.

In short, Mary is one of my favorite people and I am delighted to ask my colleagues to join me in saluting her—for her outstanding achievements, for her dedicated work, and for her charm and her delightful personality. I am very proud to have Mary as my friend.

IN HONOR OF MARION'S CONTINENTAL RESTAURANT

HON. JERROLD NADLER

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 6, 2000

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize the 50th anniversary of the opening of Marion's Continental Restaurant. Since 1950, Marion's has been a culinary delight for all New Yorkers. The savory continental cuisine served at Marion's is some of the city's finest. I am thrilled that Marion Nagy came to this country to live the American dream and, in doing so, has endeared Marion's to the hearts of New Yorkers. Restaurants come and go in New York City, but Marion's has endured for half a century. This is a true testament to the superb quality and hospitality available at Marion's.

Mr. Speaker, I salute Marion's Continental Restaurant and I urge my colleagues to join me today in honoring and celebrating the anniversary of their 50 years serving the people of New York City.

TRIBUTE TO JOHNNY GILL

HON. SAM FARR

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 6, 2000

Mr. FARR of California. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor a man who spent his life advocating for agriculture and farming, and for the future of many of the people in the Salinas Valley of California. Johnny Gill passed away last month at his Lockwood, California home at the age of 47. The cause of his death was amyotrophic lateral sclerosis, commonly known as Lou Gehrig's disease.

Mr. Gill operated the John Gill Ranch in Monterey County, California, and was a pillar of agricultural life in that area. 25 years ago he started the King City Young Farmers organization and served actively as its first president to see its success. He was also active in many other local agricultural and community based organizations, including the 4-H, Little League, and the Sober Graduation program. Mr. Gill was also a Premier Sponsor and active member of the King City Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture. And, in a tribute befitting a figure such as Mr. Gill, last February, more than 900 people came together to honor him as King City's ''Citizen of the Year'' for 1999. This event, besides celebrating the accomplishments of Mr. Gill, also raised $375,000 to fight ALS and included a speech of tribute by actor Clint Eastwood, another Monterey County resident.

John Gill was a man of much accomplishment, even tending to all of his farming duties up until the end of his life. He was a role model for so many of our nation's farmers and citizens in general, and he will be sorely missed by his wife Pam Gill; his parents Jack and Augusta Gill of Paso Robles; his sons Francis Gill of King City, Jared Gill of Hollister and Bret Davis of Salinas; and his sisters Melinda Stewart of Paso Robles and Jeannine Mansfield of Burke, Washington.

IN HONOR OF JULIAN ''RICH'' RICHARDSON

HON. BARBARA LEE

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 6, 2000

Ms. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay homage and tribute to a great community leader and mentor. Julian ''Rich'' Richardson, an honorable member of the Oakland/San Francisco Bay Area community, and a great distributor of knowledge to the human family, passed away Monday, August 21, 2000.

It was an honor and privilege to have known this incredible man, whom I called my friend. One of eight children, Rich put himself through school at the Tuskegee Institute, founded by Booker T. Washington, working nights and weekends at a print shop. He studied under the famous scientist George Washington Carver, and earned a degree in Lithography.

While at Tuskegee Institute he married his beautiful and brilliant wife, Raye, and they settled in San Francisco in the 1940's, a time when Black people were still denied access to many hotels, restaurants, and jobs that paid a livable wage. During the Korean conflict he served his country in the Army as a map printer, and in 1960 launched Success Printing, a printing and publishing company.

Julian Richardson then opened Success Books, later renamed Marcus Books, after Marcus Garvey, the Jamaican and Harlem-based Black Nationalist who urged Blacks to foster a connection to their African homeland and learn a history commonly ignored in American textbooks.

Marcus Books is not only one of the oldest Black-owned bookstores in the country, it is a venue for new and vintage novels, a place for the community to meet with the numerous Black intellectuals, poets, and legends who frequent the store on book tours. Rich not only sold books that bettered the lives and intellects of countless members of the community, he cultivated an audience for the books and nurtured authors, even publishing a number of them.

Rich, with his family by his side, introduced a world of literature and an appreciation of books to thousands of people who would not have had such an opportunity without his landmark bookstores. At Marcus Bookstores, I personally spent many hours among my heroes; the intellectuals, artists, musicians, poets, and authors that spoke through the enormous collection of works contained within the shelves. Many times I came across authors with whom I was unfamiliar, and this remarkable community institution allowed me to expand my intellect and world view by discovering their work.

Rich was a giant among men, a champion for Black people and a true leader in every sense of the word. His great insight and wisdom allowed him to be a mentor, educator, and even a surrogate to young men in the community who did not know their fathers and looked to him for advice, support, and criticism that was given with compassion. On a personal level, Rich always encouraged me no matter what I was doing—as a student, an aide to Congressman Ron Dellums, and throughout my career of public service—Rich uplifted my spirits and told me to carry on.

I know I speak for the thousands of individuals whose lives have been bettered in saying that Julian ''Rich'' Richardson will be greatly missed, and that his contribution to the Black community and the entire world is immeasurable.

SOCIAL SECURITY TAX RELIEF ACT

SPEECH OF

HON. RON PAUL

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. PAUL. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to rise in support of the Social Security Tax Relief Act (H.R. 4865). By repealing the 1993 tax increase on Social Security benefits, Congress will take a good first step toward eliminating one of the most unfair taxes imposed on seniors: the tax on Social Security benefits.

Eliminating the 1993 tax on Social Security benefits has long been one of my goals in Congress. In fact, I introduced legislation to repeal this tax increase in 1997, and I am pleased to see Congress acting on this issue. I would remind my colleagues that the justification for increasing this tax in 1993 was to reduce the budget deficit. Now, President Clinton, who first proposed the tax increase, and most members of Congress say the deficit is gone. So, by the President's own reasoning, there is no need to keep this tax hike in place.

Because Social Security benefits are financed with tax dollars, taxing these benefits is yet another incidence of ''double taxation.'' Furthermore, ''taxing'' benefits paid by the government is merely an accounting trick, a ''shell game'' which allows members of Congress to reduce benefits by subterfuge. This allows Congress to continue using the Social Security trust fund as a means of financing other government programs and mask the true size of the federal deficit.

Mr. Speaker, the Social Security Tax Relief Act, combined with our action earlier this year to repeal the earnings limitation, goes a long way toward reducing the burden imposed by the Federal Government on senior citizens. However, I hope my colleagues will not stop at repealing the 1993 tax increase, but will work to repeal all taxes on Social Security benefits. I am cosponsoring legislation to achieve this goal, H.R. 761.

Congress should also act on my Social Security Preservation Act (H.R. 219), which ensures that all money in the Social Security Trust Fund is spent solely on Social Security. When the government takes money for the Social Security Trust Fund, it promises the American people that the money will be there for them when they retire. Congress has a moral obligation to keep that promise.

In conclusion, Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to help free senior citizens from oppressive taxation by supporting the Social Security Benefits Tax Relief Act (H.R. 4865). I also urge my colleagues to join me in working to repeal all taxes on Social Security benefits and ensuring that moneys from the Social Security trust fund are used solely for Social Security and not wasted on frivolous government programs.

CLARIFYING THE HOMEBOUND DEFINITION

HON. EDWARD J. MARKEY

OF MASSACHUSETTS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 6, 2000

Mr. MARKEY. Mr. Speaker, on July 27 I along with 21 bipartisan Members introduced the Homebound Clarification Act of 2000, H.R. 5067 the companion bill to the Senate bill sponsored by Senator James Jeffords (R–VT) and Senator Jack Reed (D–RI).

This bill solves a problem in the current Medicare Home Health benefit that has created serious problems for Alzheimer's patients and our most frail, elderly and vulnerable Medicare beneficiaries.

Under current law, in order for Medicare beneficiaries to receive coverage for home health services they must be ''confined to home''. Current policy interpretations by the Health Care Financing Administration and followed by fiscal intermediaries are causing substantial harm to Medicare beneficiaries by effectively forcing home health users to be unnecessarily restricted to their own homes.

These restrictions impose harsh and irrational restrictions on patients and their caregivers. For instance, Alzheimer's patients are denied access to adult day services, which complement home health benefits, relieve caregiver burdens and delay nursing home placement, at no cost to the Medicare program. In another instance, home health services to a quadriplegic beneficiary who is lifted into a wheelchair and uses specially adapted transportation and is therefore not considered to be homebound.

The introduction of the Homebound Clarification Act follows the introduction of similar legislation Representative Chris Smith and I introduced in March of 2000, H.R. 4028. This bill was a more narrowly crafted version of the Homebound Clarification Act bill and targets patients with Alzheimer's Disease and related dementia disorders only.

The Homebound Clarification Act is endorsed by over 40 health and advocacy groups.

This bipartisan legislation will help to improve the lives of millions of our most frail and vulnerable Americans. I look forward to continuing to work with my colleagues to pass this important measure.

A SALUTE TO HENRY F. MOZELL ON HIS RETIREMENT

HON. BARBARA LEE

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 6, 2000

Ms. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I rise in honor today to salute Henry F. Mozell for his years of invaluable service in Oakland's fight to alleviate hunger and homelessness. His retirement marks the end of an extensive and distinguished career as a champion for the less fortunate.

Born in Dover, North Carolina, Mr. Mozell began serving the Oakland community upon the completion of his service in the U.S. Navy. His studies at the University of California in Urban Studies advanced his interests in community welfare.

Since his initial community projects, Mr. Mozell has been an active supporter of programs developed to combat hunger and homelessness in Oakland. His commitment to providing innovative programs such as the Mayor's Hunger and Relief Program has earned him national recognition.

Among the many awards Mr. Mozell has received during his career are the Mayor's World Food Day Award, the East Oakland Hope Award for the establishment of a hot meal site, and a Project Volunteer Award for bringing farm foods to Oakland. Most recently, he has been awarded with the Global Peace Award from Oaktown.

His active role in the political arena includes his service as the President of the East Oakland Democratic Club, the Vice President of the Alameda County Democratic Central Committee and his service on the State of California's Affirmative Action Committee. These positions are a testament to his continued involvement and concern for our community.

I proudly join friends, colleagues and family in honoring Henry Mozell's work, achievement and forthcoming retirement from a rewarding career.

IN HONOR OF JANE CAMPBELL

HON. DENNIS J. KUCINICH

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 6, 2000

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor Jane Campbell, a Cuyahoga County Commissioner who is being honored at the Jewish National Fund's Tree of Life Dinner of September 13, 2000.

Jane Campbell is one of three Cuyahoga County Commissioners, representing 1.5 million constituents in the Greater Cleveland area. She manages human services, economics, and infrastructure development and redevelopment for the most populous county in Ohio. 20TH ANNIVERSARY OF MOTHERS AGAINST DRUNK DRIVING

HON. BENJAMIN A. GILMAN

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 6, 2000

Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to congratulate and express my deepest gratitude to the thousands of individuals and victims throughout our nation, who have worked diligently to build and to extend the mission of Mothers Against Drunk Driving (MADD).

Mothers Against Drunk Driving, MADD, is a non-profit grass roots organization with more than 600 chapters nationwide and a presence around the world. Today, this worthy organization celebrates and remembers its 20th anniversary. Founded by a small group of California women in 1980 after a 13-year-old-girl was killed by a hit-and-run, repeat offender, MADD continues to work to find effective solutions to the drunk driving and underage drinking problems, while supporting those who have already experienced the pain of these senseless crimes.

Thanks to the support of Mothers Against Drunk Driving, our roads and highways are today much safer. Due to their efforts, alcohol related traffic deaths have dropped, victim assistance institutes have been created to train volunteers on how to support victims of drunk driving and how to serve as their advocates in the criminal justice system, and in advocating important legislation, such as the Omnibus Anti-Drug Abuse Act, which has been enacted.

Mr. Speaker, drunk driving is not an accident. Along with my friends in MADD, I will continue to work to pass .08 BAC legislation and to reduce the number of alcohol related deaths throughout our Nation. I thank the Mothers Against Drunk Driving. I support them, and I urge all of our colleagues to applaud their efforts over the past 20 years and in all of their future endeavors.

IN HONOR OF JOSEPH A. BARTOSZEK

HON. DENNIS J. KUCINICH

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 6, 2000

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, today I rise to remember Joseph Bartoszek, a man who dedicated over forty years of his life serving as a mentor and inspiring youth.

Mr. Bartoszek, a native of Cleveland, was a toolmaker for Cleveland Pneumatic Tool Co. until his retirement eighteen years ago. A veteran who proudly served our nation during World War II, with a tour in France and Germany, he was an active member of Catholic War Veterans Post 1812 and VFW Post 108.

Mr. Bartoszek found his true passion when he was thirteen, when he joined the Boy Scouts of America. Mr. Bartoszek spent forty years as a Scoutmaster and Explorer adviser. During his long and distinguished career with the Scouts he received many awards, including the Silver Beaver, Scouting's highest honor for volunteers. Mr. Bartoszek spent over ten summers working with youth at Tinnerman Canoe Base as a counselor of the Ad Altare Dei program, Pope Pius XII retreats, and Scout development sessions.

Mr. Bartoszek touched countless lives with his endless devotion to helping young men, and his steadfast commitment to creating a better society. Mr. Bartoszek is a friend to all, a man who tirelessly dedicated his life to the betterment of others, and a man who has served the larger community a greater deed than we will ever be able to thank him enough for.

I ask that my fellow colleagues join me in celebrating the life and tremendous accomplishments of this truly remarkable man.

HONORING THE LIFE OF MR. JERRY RAYMOND

HON. DEBBIE STABENOW

OF MICHIGAN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 6, 2000

Ms. STABENOW. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize the lifetime achievements of Mr. Jerry Raymond who passed away in January 1999 and offer my sincere condolences to his family.

Jerry Raymond was a remarkable man whose many contributions to Wayne county, the labor movement and the City of Livonia will be long remembered. He was a 49 year resident of Livonia and served on the City Council from 1966 to 1980. Always cognizant of the needs of others, his favorite saying was ''People come first.'' He advocated for housing for seniors before it was the popular thing to do. His sensitivity to others is undoubtedly why he was re-elected to office so many times.

There are many other fascinating things that are important to know about this special man. He quit high school after his mother died and his father lost his job. As he moved around the country looking for a job, he started getting involved in strikes and joined the cause of working men and women. He became a union activist and his leadership in the labor movement brought him national recognition. Despite his many achievements, Jerry felt something was missing as he watched other family members pursue a higher education. Although he did not have a high school diploma, he enrolled in law school. He graduated Cum Laude and was honored by being elected President of his class. He opened a law practice called Jerry Raymond and Associates in Livonia and practiced law until shortly before his death.

Jerry was a special friend, role-model and mentor to many including myself. He was very involved in his community and in democratic politics. He is missed by everyone whose life he touched, but his spirit lives on in our memories and in the legacy he left behind.

IN HONOR OF JOSEPH TAKACS

HON. DENNIS J. KUCINICH

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 6, 2000

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, today I remember Joseph Takacs, a man who devoted his life to the betterment of mankind, and the struggles of those who needed help the most.

Mr. Takacs led the autoworkers at General Motor's Fisher Body plant in Cleveland for more than 10 nonconsecutive years in the 1960's and 1970's. A courageous fighter for the working man, Mr. Takacs was one of 250 workers who staged a sit-in at General Motor's Cleveland planet that lasted from December 1936 into February 1937. Through the dedication and determination of Mr. Takacs and his striking colleagues a nationwide strike began. The strike forced the company to recognize the union as a bargaining agent for its hourly employees, even today, considered one of the greatest union victories.

Mr. Speaker, Mr. Takacs was a dedicated man who committed his life to union reform, helping the poor, and fighting for the working men and women of this nation. Mr. Takacs was an inspirational leader and a mentor for generations to come. A champion of the causes of working people, Mr. Takacs never turned his back on anyone. A leader dedicated to his fellow colleagues, during strikes, Mr. Takacs would beg for food to make sure that there was always food at the union hall.

Mr. Takacs, a past president of United Auto Workers Local 45, has served on the front lines of the battle for working families since the 1930's. I ask my distinguished colleagues to join me in celebrating the life of this truly remarkable man, who has dedicated his life to serving others.

PASSAGE OF THE SOCIAL SECURITY BENEFITS TAX RELIEF ACT

HON. DOUG BEREUTER

OF NEBRASKA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 6, 2000

Mr. BEREUTER. Mr. Speaker, because the House passed H.R. 4865, the Social Security Benefits Tax Relief Act, by a vote of 265–159, this Member encourages his colleagues to read the following editorial, from the August 5, 2000, edition of the Norfolk Daily News. This editorial highlights why the House of Representatives passed H.R. 4865. In particular, this editorial correctly states that the taxation of Social Security benefits was not within the original intent of those who created this system.

[From the Daily News, Aug. 5, 2000]

''CONTRACT'' NOT NOW MENTIONED

TAX REDUCTION FOR SOCIAL SECURITY BENEFITS WOULD AID ELDERLY PAYERS

A modest tax cut proposal that would benefit some 9 million Social Security recipients is apparently going nowhere because of a threatened presidential veto.

Under the plan, which won a 265–159 vote in the House, with 52 Democrats joining the Republican majority, the amount of benefits subject to taxation could drop from 85 percent to 50 percent. That change would restore a tax level in effect until the 1993 increase urged by President Clinton and for which Vice President Gore cast the deciding vote.

Given current surplus levels, the change is easily affordable from Uncle Sam's standpoint. More than that, however, the change is in keeping with the original philosophy of the program. That is, to provide an old-age benefit to workers from earnings on which taxes had already been paid. It was much later that these benefits became an important new source of tax revenue for the U.S. Treasury.

It is of special interest that the same partisans who now protest a reduction in this tax, since it might help individual elderly people now earning as much as $34,000 annually or married couples at a $44,000 level, are the ones who have long berated opponents as ''breaking a contract'' on Social Security with any proposed alteration of benefits. They were silent when the benefits were effectively reduced with higher taxation.

Taxing those benefits was not the original intent of those who devised the system. Whatever implied contract existed was long ago violated by the decision to lump the benefits with other income and make it subject to regular taxation.

The system long discriminated against Social Security beneficiaries who worked for income rather than acquiring their extra money from interest payments or dividends. The imposition of the greater tax load—argued as necessary in 1993 in order to overcome deficits—did nothing to restore equity.

Much can and must be done to simplify the tax system, including that applicable to the Social Security beneficiaries, but such action must not preclude a simple reduction in rates to reflect the fact that excessive federal surpluses amount to a government taking of private wealth.
