PROCEEDINGS AND DEBATES OF THE 106th CONGRESS, SECOND SESSION

Vol. 146 WASHINGTON, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 19, 2000 No. 132

House of Representatives

The House met at 10 a.m. and was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. OSE).

DESIGNATION OF THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following communication from the Speaker:

WASHINGTON, DC,
October 19, 2000.

I hereby appoint the Honorable DOUG OSE to act as Speaker pro tempore on this day.

J. DENNIS HASTERT,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, the Reverend Daniel P. Coughlin, offered the following prayer:

Lord, students do not like testing; the sick dread examination; all of us try to avoid chastisement and criticism. Lord, be our strength in times of trial.

You teach us, Lord, to look upon all suffering with the eyes of faith. Isaiah's suffering servant speaks to the Jew. Jesus' cross interprets life for the Christian. All religions hold up champions who persevere in the name of wisdom, love, or justice.

Be with the Members of the House of Representatives as they strive to bring finality to their work as the 106th Congress. Prepare them as the people of this Nation move closer to the day of election. May all of us, as believing people, seek first and foremost Your judgment and Your judgment alone. For You live and reign now and forever. Amen.

THE JOURNAL

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair has examined the Journal of the last day's proceedings and announces to the House his approval thereof.

Pursuant to clause 1, rule I, the Journal stands approved.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the gentleman from New York (Mr. MCNULTY) come forward and lead the House in the Pledge of Allegiance.

Mr. MCNULTY led the Pledge of Allegiance as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE

A message from the Senate by Mr. Lundregan, one of its clerks, announced that the Senate has passed without amendment a bill and a concurrent resolution of the House of the following titles:

The message also announced that the Senate has passed with an amendment in which the concurrence of the House is requested, a bill of the House of the following title:

H.R. 1550. An act to authorize appropriations for the United States Fire Administration for fiscal years 2000 and 2001, and for other purposes.

The message also announced that the Senate has passed a bill and a concurrent resolution of the following titles in which the concurrence of the House is requested:

S. 1639. An act to authorize appropriations for carrying out the Earthquake Hazards Reduction Act of 1977, for the National Weather Service Related Agencies, and for the United States Fire Administration for fiscal years 2000, 2001, and 2002.

PROVIDING FOR CONSIDERATION OF S. 2796, WATER RESOURCES DEVELOPMENT ACT OF 2000

Mr. GOSS. Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 639 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. RES. 639

Resolved, That upon the adoption of this resolution it shall be in order without intervention of any point of order to consider in the House the bill (S. 2796) to provide for the conservation and development of water and related resources, to authorize the Secretary of the Army to construct various projects for improvements to rivers and harbors of the United States, and for other purposes. The bill shall be considered as read for amendment. The amendment in the nature of a substitute printed in the Congressional Record and numbered 2 pursuant to clause 8 of rule XVIII shall be considered as adopted. The previous question shall be considered as ordered on the bill, as amended, to final passage without intervening motion except: (1) one hour of debate on the bill, as amended, equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure; and (2) one motion to recommit with or without instructions.

SEC. 2. If the Senate bill, as amended, is passed, then it shall be in order to move that the House insist on its amendment to S. 2796 and request a conference with the Senate thereon.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Florida (Mr. GOSS) is recognized for 1 hour.

Mr. GOSS. Mr. Speaker, for the purpose of debate only, I yield the customary 30 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Texas (Mr. FROST) pending which I yield myself such time as I may consume. During consideration of this resolution, all time yielded is for the purpose of debate only.

H. Res. 639 provides for consideration of S. 2796, better known as the Water Resources Development Act of 2000. This closed rule waives all points of order against consideration of the bill. It provides for 1 hour of debate equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking member of the Committee on Transportation.

Further, the rule provides that the amendment in the nature of a substitute printed in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD and numbered 2 shall be considered as adopted. The rule provides for one motion to recommit with or without instructions.

Finally, the rule provides that, should the Senate bill, as amended, pass the House, it then shall be in order to move that the House insist on its amendment to S. 2796 and request a conference with the Senate.

I believe it is a very fair rule under the circumstances.

Mr. Speaker, as we know, the clock on the 106th Congress is running out, and we do need to move quickly. In view of the strong bipartisan support this bill enjoys and the constraints associated with the calendar, I believe this is a very sensible way to proceed today and, as I have said, extremely fair under the circumstances. I definitely encourage my colleagues to support this rule so we can get on with this very important legislation.

The WRDA bill is a critically important piece of environmental legislation. Of particular note is that this year's WRDA bill contains an initial authorization for a plan to restore the Florida Everglades, unquestionably a unique national treasure of which we are very proud. The Everglades Restoration Project represents the largest, most comprehensive environmental restoration ever attempted.

Florida Governor Jeb Bush recently termed the Everglades restoration effort ''perhaps the defining environmental issue of this new century.'' Governor Bush is absolutely correct.

It should be noted that the State of Florida has already set aside funds from its budget to meet its entire cost share of the restoration effort for the next 10 years, an unprecedented step and an unmistakable display of commitment. I am proud of the State of Florida for taking that step.

The Everglades has always been a nonpartisan effort. Every Member of the Florida delegation has been united in support of this treasure. Our delegation has been especially well led on the Everglades issue by the gentleman from Florida (Mr. SHAW), the chairman of the Florida delegation and the extremely capable man who has kept us in an effective fighting team from Florida to bring attention to this.

The Clinton administration has also done quite an excellent job here and deserves praise. I said this was a bipartisan effort. Even so, I must say now that I have been somewhat disturbed at recent efforts to drag the Everglades into presidential politics. It does not belong there. I hope Vice President GORE will reverse course and recognize what all of us do, that the Everglades is far too important to be manipulated for short-term political gain.

Mr. Speaker, earlier this year, after months of negotiations, the Senate crafted an initial authorization plan embodied in their version of the WRDA bill. The Senate's plan was widely supported by all stakeholders involved, quite a feat.

When the House began its work on its version of the WRDA bill, we were cautioned not to tamper with the delicate balance of the Senate Everglades proposal. While in the end, the Senate Transportation Committee did make a number of changes to the Senate bill, changes everyone enthusiastically supports and acknowledges improve on the Senate product. So I am extremely grateful for the hard work and the very responsible stewardship of the Everglades authorization by the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Chairman SHUSTER) and his Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

Mr. Speaker, the challenge we have always faced is to put together a restoration plan that will get it right, undoing years of neglect and misunderstanding that have brought the Florida Everglades to the brink of disaster. In my view, the Everglades provisions in the WRDA bill will do just that, putting us now on solid footing for the next 10 years.

The Everglades is a national treasure, and the House action today to implement a comprehensive plan to restore it is, indeed, historic, as Governor Bush has said.

I hope all of my colleagues will support the water resources bill and the restoration of the Everglades. Furthermore, I strongly urge support of this rule so we can get on with this important debate.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. FROST. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, this rule expedites moving the Senate bill S. 2796 to conference and thus one step closer to being passed by the Congress and sent to the President before the adjournment of the 106th Congress. While this is a closed rule, it is supported by the majority of the Democratic Members of the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure; and for that reason, I will support it.

The rule provides that the text of an amendment in the nature of a substitute to S. 2796, which was developed by the chairman and ranking member of the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure, shall be considered as adopted. The substitute contains authorizations for important water resources projects. It provides Army Corps of Engineers policy and procedure reforms and the first increment of the important comprehensive restoration of the Everglades plan, which I know is of special importance to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. GOSS).

The rule also provides for 1 hour of general debate and for one motion to recommit with or without instructions.

I should note, Mr. Speaker, this rule is not without controversy. The Committee on Rules did not make in order several amendments offered by other Members, including two offered by the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SANFORD) and one by the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. KIND) and one by the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. BLUMENAUER). While all of these amendments may be worthy of consideration, I believe, given the late hour of this Congress, these issues might best be left to the next Congress so as to expedite the consideration of the important projects contained in the substitute.

Mr. Speaker, I urge support for the rule and the bill.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. GOSS. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 3 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Florida (Mr. FOLEY), who has participated in every way in this arrangement for a number of years and is, indeed, one of the leaders and champions of the Everglades.

Mr. FOLEY. Mr. Speaker, I appreciate certainly the leadership of the gentleman from Florida (Mr. GOSS), serving our west coast and working so consistently on protecting our great natural treasure and national treasure, the Everglades.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong support of this bipartisan legislation and urge all of my colleagues to support it. The Everglades, as I just said, is a national treasure of benefit to the entire country, and I applaud the leadership for scheduling this important bill for consideration.

The legislation before us today represents a historic partnership reached between all stakeholders in this debate. Agricultural interests, the administration, utilities, environmentalists, the State of Florida, our Native American Indian tribes came together in an unprecedented show of cooperation to work out the agreement before us today. It truly represents a balanced approach reached with equal input from all these stakeholders in the public and one that we can all support.

The Everglades ecosystem has been in steady decline over the past 50 years. In fact, back in the 1930s people ran for public office saying, if you elect me governor, we will drain that swamp and make room for development. How wrong they were, and how right we are to start anew to correct the problems.

The population in south Florida has grown rapidly, and with the growth come problems of water supply, flood control, and species and habitat protection. This agreement will allow the Army Corps to help provide for water needs of this population while protecting and preserving the needs of the ecosystem.

Congress must pass this legislation this year. The Senate has acted. It is now our turn in the House to send this bill speedily to the President for signature.

The Water Resource Development Acts of 1992 and 1996 gave the Army Corps of Engineers the authority to review the problems within the Everglades and to recommend solutions from which evolve the Comprehensive Everglades Restoration Plan, or CERP. Those recommendations form the basis for this legislation and will incorporate a number of restoration projects already under way.

The legislation before us today calls for a series of water system improvements over 30 years, the cost of which will be shared equally between the Federal Government and the State of Florida.

We have today a great opportunity to save a national treasure, protect the environment, and ensure water quality and safety for the residents of Florida. I urge my colleagues to join together in this historic opportunity and thank the gentleman from Florida (Mr. SHAW), thank former Governor Chiles, Governor Jeb Bush, Senator CONNIE MACK, Senator BOB GRAHAM, and all the Members of the Florida delegation who have put aside partisanship at this rare and unique opportunity to join together to commit the Federal Government in a partnership with the State government in restoring the Everglades to the pristine wilderness and wonderment that it is and hope at the end of the week that we will all, again, join together at the White House for signature of this very, very important environmental restoration effort.

Again, I want to single out the gentleman from Florida (Mr. SHAW), as was mentioned by the gentleman from Florida (Mr. GOSS). He, as chairman from the delegation, has remained persistent, vigilant to see that this is accomplished.

Mr. FROST. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. BLUMENAUER).

Mr. BLUMENAUER. Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the gentleman's yielding me this time. While I am prepared to support the rule and the underlying bill, I am disappointed that our proposed amendments were not ruled in order. While more progress is possible on this bill, at this late date in this session it may well be unrealistic, and there is, in fact, much to celebrate.

The inclusion in the legislation of almost $8 billion to save the Florida Everglades is symbolic of our changing attitudes towards water resource management. It is also important to remember that we are simply paying to undo our own bad decisions. This Congress told the Corps of Engineers to drain the swamp in 1948, and drain it they did, all too well, without comprehensive planning and environmental assessment of its impact. We must do what we can to make sure that we do not repeat those mistakes of the past.

Akin to the Everglades, the Columbia Slough, in my district, was cut off from the Columbia River by a Corps project decades ago and today it is stagnant and heavily polluted. This legislation directs the Corps to work with the City of Portland to fix the problems associated with the old Corps project. I am pleased that the bill incorporates my proposal for $40 million in funding to protect and restore the lower Columbia River and Tillamook estuaries, critical nurseries for endangered salmon.

While there are some reform measures included in the bill, I would hope that we can continue going further. I have enjoyed working with the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. KIND) on legislation which would increase the Corps' transparency and accountability that would guaranty more citizen participation and lead to a better balance between economic and environmental considerations. This is an effort that I will continue to pursue.

One particular area of Corps reform that I think we in this body need to look at very carefully is the contentious beach nourishment program. In too many cases, the program is washing taxpayer dollars out to sea while actually hurting the environment. One simple change that we tried to make in order would require communities with beaches to at least pay full costs for any prospective Corps beach nourishment project if there is no public access.

But the major reform of the Corps of Engineers is to be found on the floor of this Congress. We need to be more careful of what we authorize, what we require, and how all the complex pieces of our waterways fit together. This bill can help start the process. I support the rule and the underlying bill.

Mr. GOSS. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. SHAW), the chairman of the Florida delegation; and I would simply say that the gentleman from Florida (Mr. SHAW) has a very long history of careful and persistent work in dealing with all parties interested in the Everglades, both as a Florida resident, at the local government level, as a businessman and interested citizen, in every way, shape, and form. For people who care about the Everglades, it would be useful for them to give thanks to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. SHAW).

Mr. SHAW. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time and for his kind remarks.

Mr. Speaker, this is an extraordinary time, and I think this is an extraordinary moment. We are in now what is sometimes called the ''goofy season,'' the period of time when I think partisan politics reaches its peak, and sometimes in not very constructive ways. But today is an extraordinary day. And today we have bipartisan and true leadership on display here in the House regarding this bill that we are able to consider, a Water Resources Development Act containing historic provisions to restore America's Everglades, which has always been referred to as Florida's Everglades, but it is America's Everglades. We all recognize the importance of this legacy, not only on the lands and water but for the people who live in Florida and visit this national treasure, and we want to make sure that it is there for all future generations.

How we got to this point is what is so remarkable, and it is the reason that we are bringing up a closed rule for debate as time grows short in the waning days of this 106th Congress. Normally, the minority party abhors closed rules. I know that, because I did in the 14 years that I served in the Republican minority. But today we have a bipartisan agreement on a bill and a process that helps us streamline the consideration of this important landmark legislation.

Another passion of mine, besides the number of the intricacies of tax and budget policy, has been the environment. In fact, I served on the Committee on Public Works earlier in my House career. I have authored several bills on the environment, but none makes me more proud to have my name on it than the comprehensive Everglades restoration bill. And working with my colleagues in the Florida delegation, such as the gentleman from Florida (Mr. GOSS) and I see the gentlewoman from Florida (Mrs. MEEK) on the other side of the aisle, who has been a great crusader for the Everglades, we have seen all of the Florida delegation gather together in support of this landmark legislation.

But our work is not over. We have little time left, but we have much left to do. The tremendous effort that got us to this point of near unanimous consensus is threatened by the clock. We must pass water resources development legislation containing Everglades restoration today. We need time to work out project differences with the Senate, not only on the Everglades portion but on other portions of this bill.

In that regard, Mr. Speaker, I would like to compliment both of Florida's Senators, Senator BOB GRAHAM and Senator CONNIE MACK, as well as Senator BOB SMITH, the chairman of the committee, for the wonderful work that they have done in bringing this together; and I might also say the administration, which was extraordinarily cooperative with all in structuring this bill.

Organizations, from the environmental community, agricultural, business, Native American tribes, both the Miccosukee and the Seminoles, recreational users, the State, local and Federal governments, all have had a hand in crafting the Everglades legislation. And the delicate balance achieved in the other Chamber has been enhanced by the work done here in this House. I must compliment the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. OBERSTAR) and our chairman, the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. SHUSTER), for seeing that this comes through and that this is done. As we know, there were some differences early on; but they worked to get them straightened out and that has brought us to where we are today.

This bill is the product of constant and consistent hours of negotiation between the interested parties to reach a consensus on the key points of this legislation. I am honored that those serving in the other Chamber allowed me this rare opportunity to be a part of the crafting of their bill prior to my introducing the companion bill in this House, H.R. 5121. This helped us save precious time in arriving at a compatible bill in the House and the Senate, and avoiding major divisions in the few remaining days of this session. Now the House must put this legislation to a vote so that we can resolve the remaining differences in the other parts of the WRDA bill that the Senate has already passed.

I also want to recognize the tremendous efforts of our previous governor, Governor Childs, and of course our existing governor, Jeb Bush, who has been so active in bringing this about. I was with him in Fort Lauderdale yesterday, and that is all he wanted to talk about was the status of this bill and where we are going.

So we are seeing a rare moment in the closing days of this Congress; both great political parties coming together and doing the right thing. I urge passage of this resolution and passage of the bill.

Mr. FROST. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Washington (Mr. MCDERMOTT).

Mr. MCDERMOTT. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of this bill, but I think that it is important for people to understand what is going on here.

The leadership in the Republican Party has got us in a slow dance here. The gentleman from Texas (Mr. DELAY) has gone out and said that he does not intend to negotiate with the President of the United States about education or anything else. So today, a little later, we will work on a continuing resolution. This continuing resolution takes us until next Wednesday. That is 13 days before the election. Now, we slowly waltz out of here with Everglades in our arms and everybody goes home tonight sometime and goes to campaigning. And we will show up next Wednesday, and we will have another continuing resolution for another week so that we are here 6 days before the election.

Because the leadership of the Republican Party does not want to negotiate with the President, these bills are going to be vetoed. We are never going to see the Health and Human Services budget out here because it has education at the center of it and the Republican Party does not want to do anything about education. They do not want to deal with the President because they know his proposal is right, and so we are softly being slow danced out of here.

Now, some people may like that. They may think that they can go home and, if they have got the Everglades in their arms they can get reelected. They can say, well, I did this. But if we do not deal with issues like the balanced budget amendments give-backs, that issue is still there. Our hospitals are out there waiting to figure out what is going to happen.

The President has said the bill that is on the table is going to be vetoed because it is wrong and it is bad public policy. But the Republican leadership does not care. If they did, they would bring it out here, get the veto, then sit down and start negotiating. But they do not want to do that. They want it as a campaign issue. The same is true with education. They want to wait and sort of slow dance education out of here and then say that they would have given us all this for education, but the President would not do it.

So I would say that people today ought to vote ''no'' on the continuing resolution.

Mr. GOSS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume just to relieve any confusion there might be. This is actually the rule on the WRDA bill. There will be an opportunity to talk about the continuing resolution later. It is the normal routine business in the House. And we will be doing 1-minutes later in the day for matters of appropriate discussion under 1-minutes as well.

Mr. FROST. Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. GOSS. Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, I yield back the balance of my time, and I move the previous question on the resolution.

The previous question was ordered.

The resolution was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

Mr. SHUSTER. Mr. Speaker, pursuant to the rule, I call up the Senate bill (S. 2796) to provide for the conservation and development of water and related resources, to authorize the Secretary of the Army to construct various projects for improvements to rivers and harbors of the United States, and for other purposes, and ask for its unanimous consideration in the House.

The Clerk read the title of the Senate bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to House Resolution 639, the Senate bill is considered as having been read for amendment.

The text of S. 2796 is as follows:

(1) remove the wildlife mitigation purpose designation from up to 3,000 acres of land as necessary over the life of the project from lands originally acquired for water resource development projects included in the Mitigation Project in accordance with the Report of the Chief of Engineers dated August 31, 1985;

(2) sell or exchange such lands in accordance with subsection (c)(1) and under such conditions as the Secretary determines to be necessary to protect the interests of the United States, utilize such lands as the Secretary determines to be appropriate in connection with development, operation, maintenance, or modification of the water resource development projects, or grant such other interests as the Secretary may determine to be reasonable in the public interest; and

(3) acquire, in accordance with subsections (c) and (d), lands from willing sellers to offset the removal of any lands from the Mitigation Project for the purposes listed in subsection (a)(2) of this section.

(b) REMOVAL PROCESS.—From the date of enactment of this Act, the locations of these lands to be removed will be determined at appropriate time intervals at the discretion of the Secretary, in consultation with appropriate Federal and State fish and wildlife agencies, to facilitate the operation of the water resource development projects and to respond to regional needs related to the project. Removals under this subsection shall be restricted to Project Lands designated for mitigation and shall not include lands purchased exclusively for mitigation purposes (known as Separable Mitigation Lands). Parcel identification, removal, and sale may occur assuming acreage acquisitions pursuant to subsection (d) are at least equal to the total acreage of the lands removed.

(c) LANDS TO BE SOLD.—

(1) Lands to be sold or exchanged pursuant to subsection (a)(2) shall be made available for related uses consistent with other uses of the water resource development project lands (including port, industry, transportation, recreation, and other regional needs for the project).

(2) Any valuation of land sold or exchanged pursuant to this section shall be at fair market value as determined by the Secretary.

(3) The Secretary is authorized to accept monetary consideration and to use such funds without further appropriation to carry out subsection (a)(3). All monetary considerations made available to the Secretary under subsection (a)(2) from the sale of lands shall be used for and in support of acquisitions pursuant to subsection (d). The Secretary is further authorized for purposes of this section to purchase up to 1,000 acres from funds otherwise available.

The lands shall be adjacent to lands already in the Mitigation Project unless otherwise agreed to by the Secretary and the fish and wildlife agencies.

(e) DREDGED MATERIAL DISPOSAL SITES.—The Secretary shall utilize dredge material disposal areas in such a manner as to maximize their reuse by disposal and removal of dredged materials, in order to conserve undisturbed disposal areas for wildlife habitat to the maximum extent practicable. Where the habitat value loss due to reuse of disposal areas cannot be offset by the reduced need for other unused disposal sites, the Secretary shall determine, in consultation with Federal and State fish and wildlife agencies, and ensure full mitigation for any habitat value lost as a result of such reuse.

(f) OTHER MITIGATION LANDS.—The Secretary is also authorized to outgrant by lease, easement, license, or permit lands acquired for the Wildlife Mitigation Project pursuant to section 601(a) of Public Law 99–662, in consultation with Federal and State fish and wildlife agencies, when such outgrants are necessary to address transportation, utility, and related activities. The Secretary shall insure full mitigation for any wildlife habitat value lost as a result of such sale or outgrant. Habitat value replacement requirements shall be determined by the Secretary in consultation with the appropriate fish and wildlife agencies.

SEC. 313. MISSOURI RIVER VALLEY, MISSOURI.

(a) SHORT TITLE.—This section may be cited as the ''Missouri River Valley Improvement Act''.

(b) FINDINGS AND PURPOSES.—

(1) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that—

(A) Lewis and Clark were pioneering naturalists that recorded dozens of species previously unknown to science while ascending the Missouri River in 1804;

(B) the Missouri River, which is 2,321 miles long, drains ⅙ of the United States, is home to approximately 10,000,000 people in 10 States and 28 Native American tribes, and is a resource of incalculable value to the United States;

(C) the construction of dams, levees, and river training structures in the past 150 years has aided navigation, flood control, and water supply along the Missouri River, but has reduced habitat for native river fish and wildlife;

(D) river organizations, including the Missouri River Basin Association, support habitat restoration, riverfront revitalization, and improved operational flexibility so long as those efforts do not significantly interfere with uses of the Missouri River; and

(E) restoring a string of natural places by the year 2004 would aid native river fish and wildlife, reduce flood losses, enhance recreation and tourism, and celebrate the bicentennial of Lewis and Clark's voyage.

(2) PURPOSES.—The purposes of this section are—

(A) to protect, restore, and enhance the fish, wildlife, and plants, and the associated habitats on which they depend, of the Missouri River;

(B) to restore a string of natural places that aid native river fish and wildlife, reduce flood losses, and enhance recreation and tourism;

(C) to revitalize historic riverfronts to improve quality of life in riverside communities and attract recreation and tourism;

(D) to monitor the health of the Missouri River and measure biological, chemical, geological, and hydrological responses to changes in Missouri River management;

(E) to allow the Corps of Engineers increased authority to restore and protect fish and wildlife habitat on the Missouri River;

(F) to protect and replenish cottonwoods, and their associated riparian woodland communities, along the upper Missouri River; and

(G) to educate the public about the economic, environmental, and cultural importance of the Missouri River and the scientific and cultural discoveries of Lewis and Clark.

(c) DEFINITION OF MISSOURI RIVER.—In this section, the term ''Missouri River'' means the Missouri River and the adjacent floodplain that extends from the mouth of the Missouri River (RM 0) to the confluence of the Jefferson, Madison, and Gallatin Rivers (RM 2341) in the State of Montana.

(d) AUTHORITY TO PROTECT, ENHANCE, AND RESTORE FISH AND WILDLIFE HABITAT.—Section 9(b) of the Act of December 22, 1944 (58 Stat. 891, chapter 665), is amended—

(1) by striking ''(b) The general'' and inserting the following:

''(b) COMPREHENSIVE PLAN.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—The general'';

(2) by striking ''paragraph'' and inserting ''subsection''; and

(3) by adding at the end the following:

(e) INTEGRATION OF ACTIVITIES.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—In carrying out this section and in accordance with paragraph (2), the Secretary shall provide for such activities as are necessary to protect and enhance fish and wildlife habitat without adversely affecting—

(A) the water-related needs of the Missouri River basin, including flood control, navigation, hydropower, water supply, and recreation; and

(B) private property rights.

(2) NEW AUTHORITY.—Nothing in this section confers any new regulatory authority on any Federal or non-Federal entity that carries out any activity under this section.

(f) MISSOURI RIVER MITIGATION PROJECT.—The matter under the heading ''MISSOURI RIVER MITIGATION, MISSOURI, KANSAS, IOWA, AND NEBRASKA'' of section 601(a) of the Water Resources Development Act of 1986 (100 Stat. 4143) is amended by adding at the end the following: ''There is authorized to be appropriated to carry out this paragraph $20,000,000 for each of fiscal years 2001 through 2010, contingent on the completion by December 31, 2000, of the study under this heading.''.

(g) UPPER MISSOURI RIVER AQUATIC AND RIPARIAN HABITAT MITIGATION PROGRAM.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—

(A) STUDY.—Not later than 2 years after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary, through an interagency agreement with the Director of the United States Fish and Wildlife Service and in accordance with the Fish and Wildlife Conservation Act of 1980 (16 U.S.C. 2901 et seq.), shall complete a study that—

(i) analyzes any adverse effects on aquatic and riparian-dependent fish and wildlife resulting from the operation of the Missouri River Mainstem Reservoir Project in the States of Nebraska, South Dakota, North Dakota, and Montana;

(ii) recommends measures appropriate to mitigate the adverse effects described in clause (i); and

(iii) develops baseline geologic and hydrologic data relating to aquatic and riparian habitat.

(B) involves the monitoring of the response of fish to and the effectiveness of the preservation of native fish and wildlife habitat of the releases described in subparagraph (A); and

(C) shall not adversely impact a use of the reservoir existing on the date on which the pilot program is implemented.

(3) RESERVOIR FISH LOSS STUDY.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 2 years after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary, in consultation with the North Dakota Game and Fish Department and the South Dakota Department of Game, Fish and Parks, shall complete a study to analyze and recommend measures to avoid or reduce the loss of fish, including rainbow smelt, through Garrison Dam in North Dakota and Oahe Dam in South Dakota.

SEC. 317. FORT PECK FISH HATCHERY, MONTANA.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that—

(1) Fort Peck Lake, Montana, is in need of a multispecies fish hatchery;

(2) the burden of carrying out efforts to raise and stock fish species in Fort Peck Lake has been disproportionately borne by the State of Montana despite the existence of a Federal project at Fort Peck Lake;

(3)(A) as of the date of enactment of this Act, eastern Montana has only 1 warm water fish hatchery, which is inadequate to meet the demands of the region; and

(B) a disease or infrastructure failure at that hatchery could imperil fish populations throughout the region;

(4) although the multipurpose project at Fort Peck, Montana, authorized by the first section of the Act of August 30, 1935 (49 Stat. 1034, chapter 831), was intended to include irrigation projects and other activities designed to promote economic growth, many of those projects were never completed, to the detriment of the local communities flooded by the Fort Peck Dam;

(5) the process of developing an environmental impact statement for the update of the Corps of Engineers Master Manual for the operation of the Missouri River recognized the need for greater support of recreation activities and other authorized purposes of the Fort Peck project;

(6)(A) although fish stocking is included among the authorized purposes of the Fort Peck project, the State of Montana has funded the stocking of Fort Peck Lake since 1947; and

(B) the obligation to fund the stocking constitutes an undue burden on the State; and

(7) a viable multispecies fishery would spur economic development in the region.

(b) PURPOSES.—The purposes of this section are—

(1) to authorize and provide funding for the design and construction of a multispecies fish hatchery at Fort Peck Lake, Montana; and

(2) to ensure stable operation and maintenance of the fish hatchery.

(c) DEFINITIONS.—In this section:

(1) FORT PECK LAKE.—The term ''Fort Peck Lake'' means the reservoir created by the damming of the upper Missouri River in northeastern Montana.

(2) HATCHERY PROJECT.—The term ''hatchery project'' means the project authorized by subsection (d).

(e) COST SHARING.—

(A) FEDERAL SHARE.—The Federal share of the costs of design and construction of the hatchery project shall be 75 percent.

(B) FORM OF NON-FEDERAL SHARE.—

(i) IN GENERAL.—The non-Federal share of the costs of the hatchery project may be provided in the form of cash or in the form of land, easements, rights-of-way, services, roads, or any other form of in-kind contribution determined by the Secretary to be appropriate.

(ii) REQUIRED CREDITING.—The Secretary shall credit toward the non-Federal share of the costs of the hatchery project—

(I) the costs to the State of Montana of stocking Fort Peck Lake during the period beginning January 1, 1947; and

(II) the costs to the State of Montana and the counties having jurisdiction over land surrounding Fort Peck Lake of construction of local access roads to the lake.

(2) OPERATION, MAINTENANCE, REPAIR, AND REPLACEMENT.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in subparagraphs (B) and (C), the operation, maintenance, repair, and replacement of the hatchery project shall be a non-Federal responsibility.

(B) COSTS ASSOCIATED WITH THREATENED AND ENDANGERED SPECIES.—The costs of operation and maintenance associated with raising threatened or endangered species shall be a Federal responsibility.

(C) POWER.—The Secretary shall offer to the hatchery project low-cost project power for all hatchery operations.

(1) IN GENERAL.—There are authorized to be appropriated to carry out this section—

(A) $20,000,000; and

(B) such sums as are necessary to carry out subsection (e)(2)(B).

(2) AVAILABILITY OF FUNDS.—Sums made available under paragraph (1) shall remain available until expended.

(d) PRESERVATION OF NATURAL STORAGE AREAS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall reevaluate the acquisition, from willing sellers, for flood protection purposes, of wetlands in the Central Passaic River Basin to supplement the wetland acquisition authorized by section 101(a)(18)(C)(vi) of the Water Resources Development Act of 1990 (104 Stat. 4609).

(2) PURCHASE.—If the Secretary determines that the acquisition of wetlands evaluated under paragraph (1) is economically justified, the Secretary shall purchase the wetlands, with the goal of purchasing not more than 8,200 acres.

(e) STREAMBANK EROSION CONTROL STUDY.—The Secretary shall review relevant reports and conduct a study to determine the feasibility of carrying out a project for environmental restoration, erosion control, and streambank restoration along the Passaic River, from Dundee Dam to Kearny Point, New Jersey.

Such reports shall be completed not less often than every 5 years. Such reports shall include a description of planning, design, and construction work completed, the amount of funds expended during the period covered by the report (including a detailed analysis of the funds expended for adaptive assessment under subsection (b)(2)(C)(xi)), and the work anticipated over the next 5-year period. In addition, each report shall include—

SEC. 602. SENSE OF CONGRESS CONCERNING HOMESTEAD AIR FORCE BASE.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that—

(1) the Everglades is an American treasure and includes uniquely-important and diverse wildlife resources and recreational opportunities;

(2) the preservation of the pristine and natural character of the South Florida ecosystem is critical to the regional economy;

(3) as this legislation demonstrates, Congress believes it to be a vital national mission to restore and preserve this ecosystem and accordingly is authorizing a significant Federal investment to do so;

(4) Congress seeks to have the remaining property at the former Homestead Air Base conveyed and reused as expeditiously as possible, and several options for base reuse are being considered, including as a commercial airport; and

(5) Congress is aware that the Homestead site is located in a sensitive environmental location, and that Biscayne National Park is only approximately 1.5 miles to the east, Everglades National Park approximately 8 miles to the west, and the Florida Keys National Marine Sanctuary approximately 10 miles to the south.

(b) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress that—

(1) development at the Homestead site could potentially cause significant air, water, and noise pollution and result in the degradation of adjacent national parks and other protected Federal resources;

(2) in their decisionmaking, the Federal agencies charged with determining the reuse of the remaining property at the Homestead base should carefully consider and weigh all available information concerning potential environmental impacts of various reuse options;

(3) the redevelopment of the former base should be consistent with restoration goals, provide desirable numbers of jobs and economic redevelopment for the community, and be consistent with other applicable laws;

(4) consistent with applicable laws, the Secretary of the Air Force should proceed as quickly as practicable to issue a final SEIS and Record of Decision so that reuse of the former air base can proceed expeditiously;

(5) following conveyance of the remaining surplus property, the Secretary, as part of his oversight for Everglades restoration, should cooperate with the entities to which the various parcels of surplus property were conveyed so that the planned use of those properties is implemented in such a manner as to remain consistent with the goals of the Everglades restoration plan; and

(6) by August 1, 2002, the Secretary should submit a report to the appropriate committees of Congress on actions taken and make any recommendations for consideration by Congress.

SEC. 705. AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.

There is authorized to be appropriated to the Secretary to carry out this title $4,000,000 for each of fiscal years 2001 through 2005, $5,000,000 for each of fiscal years 2006 through 2009, and $10,000,000 in fiscal year 2010. Such funds shall remain available until expended.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to House Resolution 639, the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. SHUSTER) and the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. OBERSTAR) each will control 30 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. SHUSTER).

Mr. SHUSTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

The Water Resources Development Act of 2000, as amended, addresses the civil works program of the United States Army Corps of Engineers, providing water-related engineering services to the Nation. It authorizes new water resource projects that are receiving favorable review by the Army Corps of Engineers. It modifies existing water resources projects to reflect changed conditions. It directs that new studies be conducted to determine the feasibility and the Federal interest in addressing water-related issues at various locations.

WRDA 2000 approves and authorizes the first increment of the comprehensive Everglades restoration plan. The text is based on the Senate-passed Everglades provision, with minor amendments which have been made and which are acceptable to the Senate, to the Florida Members of Congress, to the State of Florida, and to the administration.

The bill modifies authorities and directives of the Army Corps of Engineers to reform existing policies and procedures enhancing public participation in feasibility studies, monitoring of completed projects, and mitigation of environmental impacts.

The bill authorizes and modifies environmental restoration and environmental infrastructure projects and programs that address national needs at several locations, including the lower Columbia River Estuary, Puget Sound, San Gabriel Basin, as well as the Illinois, Missouri, Mississippi and Ohio Rivers. The estimated Federal cost of these provisions is $5 billion.

Mr. Speaker, this is a fair, balanced, bipartisan bill. It addresses the water resources needs across the Nation. I certainly want to thank my colleague, the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. OBERSTAR), for his cooperation and leadership in developing this amendment. I also want to thank the subcommittee chairman, the gentleman from New York (Mr. BOEHLERT), and the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. BORSKI), the ranking member of the Subcommittee on Water Resources and Environment, for their leadership in this legislation.

I urge my colleagues to support this important bill, which invests in America's environmental future.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. OBERSTAR. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, at the outset I want to express my great appreciation to the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Chairman SHUSTER) for the cooperation that we have had and the close working relationship again on this legislation, as on all the other bills that we have moved through this body. It again shows that at a time when there is dispute and rancor in the body politic in the broad public that in this body, where there is respect and mutual understanding and openness, the Congress can work and do the work of the public.

This committee has demonstrated time and again that we can do the work of the public because of the mutual respect, the understanding, cooperation and the consensus that the work that we do is for the greater good of the country. And that is what this Water Resources Development Act is all about.

It is among the best things we do in our committee and in this Congress: invest in the well-being of our fellow citizens and future growth and development of this country.

Since the landmark Water Resources Development Act of 1986, the former Committee on Public Works and Transportation, now renamed the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure, has worked to maintain a 2-year authorization schedule for the Corps. In fact, that has been the history since the reorganization of the Congress in 1946, to maintain a 2-year cycle, to provide continuity for the program and certainty to the non-Federal and local sponsors for these Corps projects.

It also gives us in the Congress the opportunity to conduct oversight over the Corps programs, to make fine-tuning adjustments as necessary on individual projects, and to revisit major issues in a periodic fashion.

This bill authorizes projects for the entirety of the Corps' civil works program: navigation, flood control, shoreline protection, environmental restoration and protection, and authorizations to restore the Nation's environmental infrastructure, especially for smaller and, in many cases, economically disadvantaged communities.

It builds and rebuilds the Nation's infrastructure. It allows us to expand international trade through projects to improve our coastal ports and our inland river navigation system. Through flood control and hurricane and storm damage reduction measures, this legislation and the general work of the Corps will again help to meet critical needs to protect lives and property.

Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the able gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. BORSKI), the ranking member of the Subcommittee on Water Resources and Environment, who has my great admiration for the splendid, scholarly way in which he approaches these issues, thorough grasp of the subject matter, and painstaking work to bring us to this point.

Mr. BORSKI. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me the time.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of this bill. This bill represents what we do best in the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure. We invest in America's future by providing critical infrastructure while working to restore and enhance and protect the environment.

Mr. Speaker, I am particularly honored that we are considering this bill today under the leadership of the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Chairman SHUSTER) and the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. OBERSTAR), the ranking member. This may be the last opportunity that many of us have to pay tribute to the strong bipartisan leadership that the chairman and ranking member have demonstrated over the past 6 years.

As a committee colleague and a fellow Pennsylvanian, I have often sought the chairman's advice and counsel. Even on those few occasions when we have disagreed, I have always been treated fair and with a mutual respect for doing what each of us believes is right.

Even though the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Chairman SHUSTER) must step down as chairman, I know that he will continue to be a leader on the issues related to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure, and I look forward to continuing to work closely with him doing what is best for the Nation and for our great Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

I would also like to acknowledge my close relationship with our subcommittee chairman, the gentleman from New York (Mr. BOEHLERT). We have worked closely together for the past 6 years in the great tradition of this committee. We have had a few tough disputes, but we always managed to retain the proper decorum and respect for each other. I have greatly enjoyed working with the gentleman from New York (Mr. BOEHLERT).

Many of the speakers today will describe the various projects that are at the heart of this bill. I represent one of the Nation's great seaports on the East Coast. The Corps is currently working to allow the Port of Philadelphia to compete in the 21st century. Other Members benefit from the efficient transportation system that allows barges to move on the inland waters.

These projects form the water-based infrastructure that is such a key component of the Nation's transportation system. The projects in this and previous water resources bills protect lives and property from floods and hurricanes, and they provide drinking water and electricity to our cities and factories.

These projects are the more visible aspect of the bill, but there are more important provisions of this bill that will improve the way in which the Corps implements its program.

The bill will require the Corps to be more aware earlier in the study process of whether adverse environmental effects can be successfully and cost-effectively mitigated. Too often we can see the caution signs before us, but we fail to heed their warning. While the Corps is generally successful at mitigating potential environmental harm, it cannot always be successful. And we can be aware of this early in the study process.

This is why I support language in the bill that will require the Corps to determine whether mitigation is likely to be successful and, if it cannot be successful, to stop the Corps from recommending a project for further study or authorization.

Additional areas of the bill that I would like to emphasize are two pilot programs addressing independent review of proposed projects and monitoring of completed projects.

On independent review, the bill requires the Secretary of the Army to establish a 3-year program of independent peer review of up to five projects. This review would apply to projects over $25 million and projects with a substantial degree of public controversy. While some have argued for a permanent peer review program, I believe that this pilot program will allow the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure and the House to evaluate its effectiveness and to make it permanent if it is warranted.

I also strongly support the requirement to monitor the performance of up to five projects for 12 years. This will allow for the economic and environmental results of projects to be evaluated following their completion. Today, we authorize and construct projects, but we do not adequately follow up on whether the expected benefits are ever realized. The monitoring will be an important tool in helping the Corps and the Congress produce a more effective civil works program.

Finally, Mr. Speaker, I want to mention that this bill requires the Corps to establish procedures to enhance public participation in the development of feasibility studies. While the Corps already engages in public meetings and public notice concerning its proposed projects, I believe there is always room for improvement. By examining its current procedures and making improvements where possible, the role of the public will be enhanced; and I believe the Corps will recommend better, more acceptable projects to the Congress.

Without a doubt, the program to restore the Everglades is the centerpiece of this year's legislation. Responding to severe flooding that devastated Florida, Congress in 1948 authorized the Corps to carry out the Central and Southern Florida Project, with the aim of controlling floods and providing water supply for urban and agricultural uses. The project was a spectacular success in achieving its purpose.

Along the way, however, the fragile ecosystem of the historic Everglades was seriously damaged.

During the 1990's, the State of Florida and the Federal Government have undertaken a number of projects designed to mitigate some of the adverse environmental impacts. The Water Resources Development Act of 1996 directed development of a comprehensive Everglades restoration plan. It is an ambitious plan supported by an unlikely coalition of stakeholders that includes Federal, State, regional and local agencies, sugar and agricultural interests, Indian tribes, environment groups, utilities, developers, and homeowners, and, I may add, from the entire bipartisan Florida delegation.

The plan approved by the Chief of Engineers would cost at least $7.8 billion and take 36 years to construct.

The bill will approve the Comprehensive Everglades Restoration Plan as a framework for modification and operational changes to the Central and South Florida Project to restore, reserve, and protect the Everglades ecosystem. It would also authorize the first installment of the plan.

Since 1986, Congress has tried to maintain a 2-year cycle to enact water resources legislation. Such a cycle is important to providing certainty and stability to the programs. This bill is a continuation of that process and should receive strong bipartisan support today in the House.

I ask my colleagues to join me in support of the bill.

Mr. SHUSTER. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 5½ minutes to the distinguished gentleman from New York (Mr. BOEHLERT), the chairman of our Subcommittee on Water Resources and Environment.

Mr. BOEHLERT. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me the time.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of the amendment to S. 2796, the Water Resources Development Act of 2000.

This comprehensive, bipartisan legislation will help save the Everglades, restore rivers and watersheds throughout the country, keep communities safe from floods and hurricanes, and repair and improve America's water transportation infrastructure, the lifeblood of our domestic and global economy.

First let me commend the chairman of the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure, the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. SHUSTER); the ranking Democrat, the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. OBERSTAR); and the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. BORSKI), the ranking Democrat on the Subcommittee on Water Resources and Environment. Through their leadership, and I might say inspired leadership and cooperation, we are able to bring this broadly supported package to the House floor today.

As chairman of the subcommittee, I can tell my colleagues this legislation has been long in the making. The subcommittee held hearings throughout the year, as well as last year, on this bill's key issues and provisions. We have, on a bipartisan basis, reviewed hundreds of project requests and scores of important and timely water policies.

While no one is ever perfectly happy with every provision, I think the committee leadership has done a good job balancing competing interests and treating Members and their constituents fairly.

Mr. Speaker, this is truly landmark legislation. It is our best hope to save the Everglades, to protect the egrets and alligators, and to restore the balance between the human environment and the natural system in south Florida.

The world is watching, and I am proud of what this institution has produced at this critical moment.

Senator BOB SMITH and his colleagues on and off the Committee on Environment and Public Works on the other side and the gentleman from Florida (Mr. SHAW) and his colleagues in the House are to be congratulated. They have provided leadership where leadership has been needed. Through their efforts, we are able to move forward with a consensus package that gives overall approval to the 36-year, $7.8 billion plan and specifically authorizes $1.4 billion in projects to get the water right. That is very important.

I want to emphasize, as the bill itself does, that the primary purpose of this landmark, unprecedented activity in the Everglades is to restore the natural system.

We are going to have to monitor this project closely and continue to review the science to ensure that it accomplishes this fundamental goal. Indeed, as the project moves forward, more legislative safeguards may be necessary to ensure that the intent of this bill is met, safeguards such as requiring explicitly that 50 percent of the restoration benefits are achieved by the time that 50 percent of the funds are spent.

For now, this bill sets us on the right path, sets clear goals, gives needed authority to the Department of Interior and allows for continuing scientific review. It is our best chance of reversing the havoc which was inadvertently wreaked on the Everglades without damaging the prosperity of Florida.

Mr. Speaker, this bill is about more than saving the Everglades. It authorizes and directs the Army Corps of Engineers to restore and protect scores of rivers throughout the country from the Upper Susquehanna and the Ohio to the Mississippi and the Missouri and the Columbia. The bill also restores watersheds and wetlands, cleans up acid mine drainage, and remediates contaminated settlement in the Great Lakes and groundwater in California. In short, it is environmentally friendly, as it should be.

This bill is also about saving lives, protecting property, and opening the gateways of commerce. New flood control and navigation projects are authorized and existing projects are modified and improved. For example, this legislation authorizes a critically important project for the Ports of New York and New Jersey.

Mr. Speaker, this bill also takes the first important steps toward reforming the Corps of Engineers. Our committee, particularly my subcommittee, has looked into the various allegations leveled at the Corps over the last year. These are serious allegations with serious repercussions for the Nation's largest water resources program. This legislation takes an important step in responding to those concerns.

For example, the bill authorizes an important pilot program for independent peer review of proposed projects. I strongly support this concept. The Corps needs to take this process seriously and to submit to peer review of significant controversial projects that will truly test this concept. I look forward to reviewing the results and working with my colleagues to further improve the procedures and methodologies for project development and selection.

This is a good bill put together by a good bipartisan team, and I thank the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. BORSKI) for his great work for these past 6 years. I thank the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. OBERSTAR) and the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. SHUSTER). This is an effective team that produces for America.

Mr. OBERSTAR. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I want to extend my great appreciation to the very diligent, thoughtful, hard-working, energetic, forward, progressive Member, chairman of the Subcommittee on Water Resources and Environment, who has led that subcommittee through some very, very difficult issues in the past several years, especially in the past 2 years, in Superfund and now on the Water Resources Development Act. The gentleman has been very cooperative. We really appreciate the bipartisanship that he has always demonstrated.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. DEUTSCH).

Mr. DEUTSCH. Mr. Speaker, I too want to just thank the chairman of the committee and the ranking member and the chairman of the subcommittee and the ranking member. This is a great day, not just for the Everglades in South Florida but really for Florida and America and truly the entire country. This is Congress at its best, really doing the work of the American people in creating legislation that really is protecting our future for ourselves, our children, and our grandchildren.

I am going to focus on what this bill does for the Florida Everglades. This bill is truly historic. This is one of the historic days over the 200-year history of this country and of this Congress. We are about to pass the largest ecosystem restoration project in the history of the world, in the history of the world. It is a $7.8 billion restoration project for the Florida Everglades. It is doing what needs to be done.

There is only one Everglades in the world. It happens to be in South Florida. It is the Everglades; it is the River of Grass. It is a 100-mile wide river that is only about a foot deep that flows, that is just absolutely spectacular. I urge all of my colleagues to try to spend not just an hour, not just a day but maybe a week traveling through the Everglades to really appreciate the unique place on the planet Earth that it is.

Unfortunately, sometimes people make mistakes, and the truth is the United States, through Corps projects, made mistakes, and other projects. The State of Florida made mistakes in terms of doing things that have done damage to the Everglades over a long period of time. We have shifted that around over the last couple of years, but this is the bill that is putting into paper literally about a 30-year restoration project and it is being done smart, it is being done right; it is bipartisan without exception.

I also want to thank my colleague, who is in the chair now, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. SHAW), in a neighboring district of mine. He and I have worked very closely in terms of this, and both Republican and governors of the State of Florida have worked very closely. Governor Bush, Governor Graham before him, Governor Chiles, Governor Martinez as well.

Again, I urge my colleagues to support it. I look forward to working with them every year into the future to make sure the implementation is done correctly.

Mr. SHUSTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Maryland (Mr. GILCHREST).

Mr. GILCHREST. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. SHUSTER) for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the chairman engaging me in a colloquy with an issue in my district that has been ongoing for a number of years, and many of us that live in the First Congressional District of Maryland, which is the main stem of the Chesapeake watershed, for discussing this issue. The previous speaker talked about the Corps of Engineers restoring a rather unique body of water on the planet called the Everglades, and the effort that our committee and this Congress has done to restore the waters and the ecosystem for that magnificent place.

What we are trying to do in the Chesapeake Bay is very similar. The Chesapeake Bay has had a program to restore this estuary for about 20 years now, and we continue to make pretty good progress.

The Corps of Engineers, to a large extent, has been very helpful in that effort. One of the problems in our area is, however, that there are bits and pieces of human activity that continues to degrade our watershed, our estuary, that marine ecosystem. One of those pieces that will have an adverse effect on the Chesapeake Bay is the deepening activity by the Corps of Engineers to an area called the Chesapeake and Delaware Canal, or the northern approach to the Port of Baltimore. The Corps of Engineers has conducted a feasibility study on whether or not this will benefit the taxpayers, or even the port, since 1988.

From 1996 to this point, the Corps of Engineers has, through its own numbers, recognized that the benefit to cost ratio or the benefit to the taxpayers is not there; the financial justification for deepening this canal has not met the Federal criteria, which means that there will be no increase in commerce due to the deepening of the C&D Canal.

So, in my judgment, since there is some adverse environmental degradation because of the deepening, there is no increase in commerce based on the Corps' own numbers, we should not spend $100 million, and that is the actual cost of this project to go forward. If we are going to spend $100 million, it should have some justification or we should have some value to that amount of money.

So I appreciate the chairman's concern over this issue, and we will continue to work on this.

Mr. SHUSTER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. GILCHREST. I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. SHUSTER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. GILCHREST) for yielding.

Mr. Speaker, I would say he has indeed shed some light on these issues, and while I have concerns with some of the legislative proposals that have been offered, I do, I believe, appreciate the underlying concerns; and I look forward to working with the gentleman to deal with this issue.

Mr. OBERSTAR. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3½ minutes to the very distinguished gentlewoman from Florida (Mrs. MEEK).

(Mrs. MEEK of Florida asked and was given permission to revise and extend her remarks.)

Mrs. MEEK of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I am very grateful and privileged to rise in strong support of the Water Resources Development Act, in particular the section on the Everglades. Those of us in Florida, and those of us throughout this country who cherish what we have in natural resources, we owe a debt of gratitude to the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. SHUSTER) and the ranking member, the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. OBERSTAR), for their hard and diligent work in bringing this important legislation to the floor and their strong support for Everglades restoration.

The gentleman from Florida (Mr. SHAW), my chairman, has inspired each member of the delegation to see the worth of this project and we are very happy that the Congress has seen fit to include the Everglades in their plans.

Mr. Speaker, the Everglades are dying and all of us know that we must act now. We lose what is left of the Everglades within a year. We have a lot of people to be thankful for it that worked on this, that we have heard about this morning, including the administration, the State of Florida administration, Senators GRAHAM and SMITH and others, and all of the environmental community throughout this country.

We owe a great deal to the late Marjorie Stoneham Douglas as she mentioned the Everglades as a ''river of grass,'' and now we have sought to have it the way Marjorie would have liked it to be with water.

No one disputes that the Federal Government was pretty much responsible for what has happened in the Everglades. Fifty years ago, the government decided it would establish the Everglades National Park, but simultaneously they also set up a series of canals. I used to run around those canals over in South Bay and Belle Glade and Immokalee and all of those counties over there that they call on the muck, but as a series of these levees and other flood control methods were put in, it kind of disrupted the lifeblood of the Everglades.

So as a result of these 50 years of neglect, we now have to look at the State of Florida that we have lost 46 percent of its wetlands and 50 percent of its historic Everglades ecosystem. If we look at this chart here, we will see the Federal Government has a very clear interest in restoring the ecosystem. Since a large part of the portions of the lands are owned or managed by the Federal Government, they will receive the benefits of the restoration. There are four national parks, as we see here, belonging to the Federal Government; 16 national wildlife refuges, which make up half of the remaining Everglades. So this is an Everglades system that is pretty much in Florida, but the interest of the Nation is here on the restoration of the Everglades. The need for action is very clear. The legislation before us today, thanks to this excellent committee, they present an unprecedented compromise supported by the administration, State of Florida, environmental groups and, thanks to the Congress, a bipartisan Congress. They represent every major constituency, and here we will see the departments of the agencies in Florida that are responsible. The State of Florida has committed $2 billion to the restoration plan. Now it is our turn to respond.

We need this bill, Mr. Speaker, and I know that they are monitoring very closely what we do here. It is extremely important, and I urge all of my colleagues to join me to preserve America's Everglades and ensure that one of the world's most endangered ecosystems is not lost. We do not need to lose the Everglades, because it is stability for the people of Florida and for the Nation.

Mr. SHUSTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. MICA).

Mr. MICA. Mr. Speaker, this morning we are really going to pass what I consider the most significant environmental legislation of a generation. This is really a historic occasion because we have replaced talk with action. We have replaced rhetoric with hard cash. In 1976, I was elected to the Florida legislature and they talked about restoring the Everglades; and I heard talk for more than 2 decades but finally we are taking action to restore the Everglades.

I want to thank personally a gentleman who is not in Congress, a former majority leader, Bob Dole, who just down the hall from here helped to make a decision that launched this effort. I want to thank the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. SHUSTER) and also the gentleman from Florida (Mr. SHAW), the gentleman who is presiding now, who helped make this legislation possible; and also Governor Bush, who made a State commitment, replaced talk with action.

I was raised in south Florida, and I saw what they did to the Everglades. This is my district. It is to the north of the Everglades, north of Orlando.

Just for the record, I am pleased that we have a balance, that areas like the St. John's River, like north Florida, central Florida and the Keys will also be protected and preserved, and also restored, so we do not make the same mistakes we made in south Florida.

This bill has a balance. It is a great piece of legislation. I thank those involved again for this historic occasion and also for listening to our concerns in the north part of Florida, the central part of Florida, the south part of Florida and the rest of the country; and I urge passage of this historic measure.

Mr. OBERSTAR. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 3 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. KIND).

(Mr. KIND asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. KIND. I want to thank my ranking member for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of S. 2796, WRDA 2000. I especially want to commend the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Chairman SHUSTER), the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. OBERSTAR), the gentleman from New York (Mr. BOEHLERT), and the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. BORSKI) and their entire staffs for taking a step to address the serious issue of reforming the Corps of Engineers in this legislation.

Despite its historic reputation for professionalism and integrity, the Corps of Engineers is at present an embattled agency. Frequent litigation and investigations into claims that Corps projects lack sound economic justification or contain inadequate environmental provisions point to deficiencies in the Corps process for planning and approving water resources projects.

I am particularly pleased that this legislation takes the first step in providing for an independent review of large or controversial water development projects.

The language in the House version of WRDA 2000 is modeled after legislation that I introduced earlier this year, H.R. 4879. The central provision of that legislation was to create an independent panel of water resource experts to review projects that would cost in excess of $25 million or are subject to a substantial degree of public controversy.

The House-worded bill creates a 3-year pilot program of the independent review process. It was my hope that stronger provisions than the pilot program would have been included in the bill before the House today. However, due to the closed rule, an amendment that was offered by the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. BLUMENAUER) and myself obviously was not made in order.

But the central purpose of the independent review is to lift the cloud currently hanging over the Corps and to enable the Corps to get on with its important work on our Nation's rivers, lakes, coastlines, and harbors. The best way to achieve this goal is to increase the level of transparency and accountability in the Corps planning process and to establish guidelines that strike a genuine balance between economic development and other social and environmental priorities. I cannot help but think if this pilot project or my legislation had been included in the Corps' authorizing language 50 years ago, we may not be here today talking about a big Florida Everglades restoration project.

I also want to thank Members and the committee staff for working with me to include in this legislation a scientific modeling program for the Upper Mississippi River Basin, so we can do a better job of protecting and preserving one of America's greatest natural resources, the Mississippi River. It is a small provision, but it is a very important provision if we are to maintain the multiple uses of the Mississippi River, recreation, tourism and commercial.

So, again, I want to thank the ranking members on the committee, the staff for the assistance we received; and I would urge my colleagues to support the House version of WRDA, given the important language and the important pilot project that is included to reform the Corps of Engineers.

Mr. SHUSTER. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 1 minute to the distinguished gentleman from Nebraska (Mr. BEREUTER).

Mr. BEREUTER. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of this legislation.

I want to thank the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Chairman SHUSTER); the gentleman from New York (Chairman BOEHLERT); the ranking member, the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. OBERSTAR); and the ranking member, the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. BORSKI), for their excellent work.

Mr. Speaker, as a first term Member of this committee, I am impressed with the efficiency and the bipartisan cooperation and the outstanding staff.

I want to thank the members for considering and authorizing on a contingent basis the Antelope Creek Project, for the four-state Missouri River Mitigation Project, and particularly for helping the taxpayer by the coordination of flood control and highway construction related to the Sand Creek Reservoir. It is an outstanding opportunity to coordinate this. It was time-urgent, and, therefore, very much appreciated that this legislation was moved forward.

I urge my colleagues to strongly support this legislation.

This Member is especially appreciative that he has had the opportunity in the 106th Congress to serve on the Transportation Committee and the Water Resources and Environment Subcommittee. Clearly, it has been one of the highlights of the 106th Congress for this Member.

This important legislation presents a tremendous opportunity to improve flood control, navigation, shore protection and environmental protection. This Member is pleased that the bill we are considering today includes contingent approval for the Sand Creek watershed project in Saunders County, Nebraska. This proposed project, which is a result of the Lower Platte River and Tributaries Flood Control Study, is designed to meet Federal environmental restoration goals, help provide state recreation needs, solve local flooding problems and preserve water quality. It is sponsored jointly by the Lower Platte North NRD, the City of Wahoo and Saunders County.

The plans for the project include a nearly 640-acre reservoir, known as Lake Wanahoo, wetlands restoration and seven upstream sediment nutrient traps. The Sand Creek watershed project would result in important environmental and recreational benefits for the area and has attracted widespread support. It is especially crucial that the Sand Creek project is included in WRDA this year as the Nebraska Department of Roads is ready to begin design of a freeway in that area that will be routed across the top of a dam if the project is approved. If the Sand Creek project is not included in WRDA, a new bridge will have to be planned and built, which would make the project not economically feasible. With this authorization, contingent because of facts yet to be checked and planning study elements yet to be resolved, the way is clear to save the taxpayers funds, secure mutual project benefits in highway construction and flood control.

This Member is also very pleased that contingent authorization of the Antelope Creek project is included in WRDA 2000. Antelope Creek runs through the heart of Nebraska's capital city of Lincoln. The purpose of the project is to solve multi-faceted problems involving the flood control and drainage problems in Antelope Creek as well as existing transportation and safety problems all within the context of broad land use issues. This Member continues to have a strong interest in this project since he was responsible for stimulating the city of Lincoln, the Lower Platte South Natural Resources District, and the University of Nebraska-Lincoln to work jointly and cooperatively with the Army Corps of Engineers to identify an effective flood control system for Antelope Creek in the downtown area of Lincoln.

Antelope Creek, which was originally a small meandering stream, became a straightened urban drainage channel as Lincoln grew and urbanized. Resulting erosion has deepened and widened the channel and created an unstable situation. A ten-foot-by-twenty-foot (height and width) closed underground conduit that was constructed between 1911 and 1916 now requires significant maintenance and major rehabilitation. A dangerous flood threat to adjacent public and private facilities exists.

The goals of the project are to construct a flood overflow conveyance channel which would narrow the flood plain from up to seven blocks wide to the 150-foot wide channel. The project will include trails and bridges and improve bikeway and pedestrian systems.

Another Nebraska project was included on the contingent authorization list is for Western Sarpy and Clear Creek for flood damage reduction. Frankly, this Member must say he has substantial reservations about the Clear Creek project in light of concerns expressed by constituents in adjacent Saunders County and the lack of enthusiasm by relevant State officials. This Member reserves judgment whether the benefits outweigh costs and dislocation of property owners in the area.

This Member is pleased that at least part of the language regarding the Missouri River Valley Improvement Act that he originally prepared to be offered as an amendment during Subcommittee consideration of WRDA is included in today's bill. Last year's WRDA legislation included a provision this Member promoted which helps to ensure that the Missouri River Mitigation Project can be implemented as envisioned. In 1986, Congress authorized over $50 million (more than $79 million in today's dollars if adjusted for inflation) to fund the Missouri River Mitigation Project to restore fish and wildlife habitat that were lost due to the construction of structures to implement the Pick-Sloan plan. At that time the Corps did not choose to include funding requests for implementing that Act in their budgeting process. That is why this Member, with assistance from other Members who represent the four states bordering the channelized Missouri River (Nebraska, Iowa, Kansas and Missouri), has taken the lead in providing funding to implement the Missouri River Mitigation Project which has just begun to become a reality during the last few years.

This project is specifically needed to restore fish and wildlife habitat lost due to the Federally sponsored channelization and stabilization projects of the Pick-Sloan era. The islands, wetlands, and flat floodplains that are needed to support the wildlife and waterfowl that once lived along the river are dramatically reduced. An estimated 475,000 acres of habitat in Iowa, Nebraska, Missouri and Kansas have been lost because of Federal action in creating the flood control projects and channelization of the Missouri River. Today's fishery resources are estimated to be only one-fifth of those which existed in pre-development days.

The success of the project has resulted in a concern related to the original study that outlined habitat needs. Under this study, acreage goals for each state were listed and these goals are generally considered to be an acreage limitation for each state. Nebraska and Kansas have already reached their acreage limits and Missouri is fast approaching its ceiling. Before long, Iowa will also reach its acreage limit.

To correct this problem, the WRDA legislation enacted last year authorized provisions initiated by this Member to increase mitigation lands in the four states of 25% of the lands lost, or 118,650 acres. In addition, the Corps of Engineers—in conjunction with the four states—was directed to study the amount of funds that would need to be authorized to achieve that acreage goal.

The study has been completed and it appears that cost estimates for restoring the acreage authorized in last year's WRDA will amount to more than $700 million over the next 30–35 years. This Member greatly appreciates the inclusion of an increased authorization level of funding for the Missouri River Mitigation Project of $20,000,000 for each fiscal year from FY2001 through FY2010.

This increase would allow the project to better balance the needs of nature, recreation and navigation. It will also benefit communities preparing for the bicentennial of the Lewis and Clark Expedition beginning in 2003. Until funding authorization is increased, the Corps and the states cannot finalize plans to add habitat restoration, identify and prioritize sites for restoration, respond to willing sellers, or engage in construction or maintenance activities. It is important to note that many frequently flooded landowners along the Missouri River have asked the Corps to buy their land to avoid annual flood losses. However, in most years, the Corps has had insufficient funds to meet the needs of these struggling landowners.

Finally, the WRDA bill also includes legislative language initiated by this Member to authorize a pilot program to test the design-build method of project delivery on a maximum of five civil engineering projects. Such a program will provide significant benefits and yield useful information.

In closing, Mr. Speaker, this Member urges his colleagues to support this important bill. In the short time left in the 106th Congress, we must work to ensure WRDA becomes law this year.

Mr. SHUSTER. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. DREIER), distinguished chairman of the Committee on Rules.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, I thank my friend for yielding. I should state for the record that he was willing to offer me 1 minute during this debate, until I told him I was going to extend compliments to him, and that is how I got the 2 minutes of time here.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to say how much I appreciate the great work of the chairman of the committee, the chairman of the subcommittee and, of course, the ranking members of both the full committee and the subcommittee on this issue. As we look at the wide range of issues that have been discussed over the last few minutes, reform of the Corps, this important work in the Everglades, I am even more enthusiastic in my support of this legislation.

But I rise to again extend compliments for the fact that this committee chose to take and include the authorization on a very important piece of legislation that is impacting not just the area which I am privileged to represent in Los Angeles, but in fact the entire country. In the middle part of the last decade, the discovery of perchlorate in the groundwater was something that came to the forefront in Southern California. Mr. Speaker, this came from the fact that during the 1950s and 1960s, during the Cold War buildup, that companies were in fact disposing of spent rocket fuel, legally, I should underscore.

Well, since that time, some of the companies that were involved in that buildup during the Cold War are still in existence, but many of them are not in existence. I believe that those companies that are responsible, obviously, should shoulder the burden of this. But we obviously have potential legal problems, and this could be drawn out in the courts for many, many years. During that period of time, perchlorate will continues to seep into the groundwater.

That is why this legislation is so important to move forward, because cleaning up the groundwater that has the potential of impacting 7 million people in Southern California, but also trying to figure out how we will effectively address this in the future and for other parts of country, is an important part of this measure.

So I again compliment my colleagues for their vision and for including this very important measure, and I urge all to vote in favor of this very important legislation.

Mr. SHUSTER. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SANFORD).

Mr. SANFORD. Mr. Speaker, I thank the chairman for yielding me time.

Mr. Speaker, I would simply say that no bill is all good or all bad, and we have certainly heard about the attributes of this bill. But I come down on the side of this being a bad bill, for the simple reason that if you care about Corps reform, or if you care about reform to the agencies basically underlying this bill, this bill is a very bad bill.

I say that, first of all, if you look at the bill itself, we have in place a somewhat bizarre process, and that is for weeks now we have been sort of in the military mode of ''hurry up and wait'' and ''hurry up and wait'' as we have been waiting for conference reports. Yet, when this bill comes along, it basically speeds through the process with a closed rule, despite the fact it has not been marked up in committee, and the question is why? Why does this speed through this way? Why do we not deal with reform right now? I think the answer, very clearly, is in the way that this bill has spiralled out of control. It spiralled from basically being a $2 billion bill to a $6 billion bill.

To me, this bill is similarly nothing more than a feeding frenzy. Sharks are supposedly the ones that feed; but this is a piggy feeding frenzy, when I think about this bill.

I will give an example of that. There is a long list of projects that I have here on several sheets. But an example of one would be a $15 million navigation project in False Pass Harbor, Alaska, that would serve a grand total of 86 boats; $15 million for 86 boats.

The other thing that I think is wrong with this bill from the standpoint of reform is that it is dessert before dinner. Consistently in the legislative process what we try and do is couple good with bad; and if we can get enough of that together, we send the bill forward, because reform is hard. Passing appropriations, passing $6 billion worth of spending in terms of authorization, is very easy; but we need to couple that with reform. That is not done in this bill.

There have been a number of very interesting articles within the Washington Post talking about how the Corps of Engineers desperately needs to be reformed, and we basically skip that, talking about how there is, for lack of a better term, waste, fraud and abuse in the Corps, and how the Corps has become something akin to or nothing more than a ''water boy'' for the U.S. Congress.

This bill had in it the chance to deal with the Corps, and, unfortunately, it does not. I would give an example of this. Right now if you look at the benefit-to-cost ratio with Corps projects, it is simply one-to-one. If you pass that threshold, it is something that can be authorized. To me, that does not make sense, because what that means fundamentally is if you put $10 into a project, you will get $10 back out. You may get more. That is the minimum threshold. That is the minimum threshold, one-to-one.

What that means to the United States taxpayer is he gets no return on his investment on a one-to-one ratio. It may be good, if it is in South Carolina, if it is in Alaska, if it is in California, for the Congressman or the Senator in that local district or in that local State; but it is not at all good for the United States taxpayer as a whole.

If you look on the back of any penny, what you see are the words ''E Pluribus Unum,'' from the many, one. This bill, unfortunately, does not incorporate that.

Mr. OBERSTAR. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes 40 seconds to the very distinguished gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. MINGE).

Mr. MINGE. Mr. Speaker, I would like to thank the ranking member for yielding me time. I would also like to expression my appreciation to the members of the committee and the chairman and the ranking member for their work on this and other legislation.

I would like to associate myself with the remarks of the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. KIND) with respect to the scientific modeling that is necessary with respect to the Upper Mississippi. We certainly need to better understand our rivers and ensure that as we proceed with projects and initiatives that affect these rivers, we implement policies and the Corps implements legislation in a way that is beneficial in the long term. We do have major proposals that are facing us here in Congress with respect to the Upper Mississippi lock and dam system.

The topic that I would like to address for the balance of my time has to do with the Corps' administration of section 404 of the Clean Water Act. I recognize that it is not in this bill, but I hope that before long we are able to take this up and modernize the work of our Federal agencies.

One of the most embarrassing experiences that I have had as a Member of Congress occurred last summer when I hosted a meeting between the Natural Resources and Conservation Service and the Army Corps of Engineers at a location within my congressional district to explore ways that we could better cooperate so that we could administer Federal programs in a coordinated way, rather than having an adversarial relationship between two Federal agencies.

I found, to my amazement and my embarrassment, that the Army Corps of Engineers in particular was cavalier and was hostile to the concept of trying to work with another agency. This, in my opinion, is unacceptable; and it is unbecoming to the Federal Government, to have a clash of agencies and a lack of interest in trying to identify a way to work this clash out.

Mr. Speaker, whether this problem occurs at the national level or at the St. Paul office of the Army Corps of Engineers, I do not know; but I believe it is absolutely critical that we get to the bottom of it, and that we end this type of bickering between Federal agencies.

We have hundreds of farmers that are being told, ''Our agency has decided this. We have another agency, and we do not know what they will do or when they will do it.'' This is what leads to cries for an abolition, whether it is of the Corps or a variety of other programs.

I would like to simply ask my colleagues, the Chair of the committee and the ranking member, if we could work together in the next year to try to identify a way to solve this type of problem.

Mr. OBERSTAR. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 10 seconds to say it is a matter of concern to me that the gentleman brings this matter to the floor. Certainly that should not have occurred, and we will work with the gentleman in the future to address that matter and bring about comity between the Corps and sister Federal agencies.

Yes, we did have a memorandum of agreement earlier between these agencies. I thought this had been worked out and, unfortunately, that memorandum of agreement is now treated as if it is irrelevant.

Mr. SHUSTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I want to tell the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. MINGE) that I certainly want to work with him as well.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from California (Mr. OSE).

Mr. OSE. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Chairman SHUSTER) for yielding me the time.

Mr. Speaker, I rise to thank the gentleman from Pennsylvania for his leadership in bringing this bill to the floor and the hard work put in by the gentleman and his staff to include the many projects needed to provide critical flood control for so many.

Mr. Speaker, the Sacramento Area Flood Control Agency has been working with the Army Corps of Engineers to implement the historic flood control project for the Sacramento region known as the Common Elements. The Common Elements Project was authorized in the Water Resources Development Act of 1999, and I thank the gentleman for his work on that bill as well.

Unfortunately, recent analysis of the geology along the East Levee of the Sacramento River has shown an extremely porous condition exists. This condition can lead to seepage under the levee which will degrade the levee foundation and weaken the levee's structural integrity.

In order to compensate for this serious problem, the Corps of Engineers will need to significantly alter the design and construction along this portion of the East Levee than was originally anticipated, thus leading to significantly higher costs than authorized in WRDA in 1999.

I understand the reluctance of the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Chairman SHUSTER) to increase the authorized spending levels by $80 million. This is a significant cost increase, and Congress is entitled to have specific information that justifies such a large additional expenditure. While this additional cost may very well be justified, the information given to date by both the Sacramento Area Flood Control Agency and the Corps of Engineers to Congress is very minimal, and it did not come until the committee was almost ready to bring the bill to the floor.

In fact, the Corps of Engineers Sacramento District did not release the increased cost estimate until August 16 of this year. The report makes no mention of how the money would be spent, nor does it give any specifics on the necessary changes. I look forward to working with the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Chairman SHUSTER) on getting more specific information and accountability from the Sacramento Area Flood Control Agency and the Corps of Engineers Sacramento Division office on how this money will be spent before Congress approves the increased costs. I thank the gentleman for his consideration and cooperation.

Mr. SHUSTER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. OSE. I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. SHUSTER. Mr. Speaker, I would say to the gentleman he certainly is correct that we have had little time to review this proposal. Indeed, we still do not have enough information to make a sound judgment on it; and hopefully over the coming days, the local sponsor and the Corps will provide additional information which will be helpful in evaluating the proposal.

I certainly agree that we should take every reasonable action to assure that the water resources needs of the area are addressed.

Mr. OBERSTAR. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. OSE. I yield to the gentleman from Minnesota.

Mr. OBERSTAR. Mr. Speaker, I concur in the gentleman's concern. I make many visits to the Sacramento area to see my family there, my son and daughter-in-law.

Mr. OSE. The gentleman is always welcome.

Mr. OBERSTAR. Mr. Speaker, I have bicycled over those levies and talked to the orchardmen on the other side, who can testify to the seepage under those levies, and that is a matter that we need to address and the Corps should be working on. And I concur in the gentleman's concern and look forward to working with him on this matter.

Mr. OSE. Mr. Speaker, reclaiming my time, I would tell the gentleman from Minnesota he is always welcome in Sacramento.

Mr. OBERSTAR. There is great bicycling out there.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from Florida (Ms. BROWN), our distinguished colleague on the Committee on Transportation.

Ms. BROWN of Florida. Mr. Speaker, first of all, I want to thank very much the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. SHUSTER) and the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. OBERSTAR) for bringing this bill to the floor.

The Everglades project is very important to the State of Florida and, in fact, to the entire country. But I do have a concern, and I thank the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. OBERSTAR) for working with me on my concerns.

This is the largest project in the history of the United States, and it is important that this project is one of inclusion and that there is minority and female participation, not only in contracting, but in employment and in training. So I am very concerned that we have a policy statement, the same kind of policy statement that we had when we did the transportation TEA21.

Florida does not have a great history of inclusion and, in fact, with our Governor Jeb Bush and his one Florida plan, we have gotten rid of affirmative action, so there will not be opportunities to participate in this project with taxpayers' dollars unless the policy is stated from the Federal Government status.

This is very important. This is taxpayers' money. This project is over 20 years, and we must have a public policy statement in this bill as to how these taxpayers' dollars are going to be used.

Mr. OBERSTAR. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Arkansas (Mr. BERRY).

Mr. BERRY. Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. OBERSTAR), our distinguished ranking member, and the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. SHUSTER), our distinguished chairman, not only for their leadership in this matter but all other matters that come before the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure and the great job that they do.

Mr. Speaker, I rise to engage the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. SHUSTER), as well as the gentlewoman from Missouri (Mrs. EMERSON) for the purpose of a colloquy. I also rise to ask for the gentleman's consideration in including the authorization language in this legislation to benefit the lower Mississippi valley region.

As the gentleman may know, I have introduced bipartisan legislation, H.R. 2911, that would create the Delta Regional Authority, an economic development tool similar to the Appalachian Regional Authority.

Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to call the Arkansas portion of the Delta my home, but the Delta region consistently ranks as one of the poorest and most underdeveloped areas in the country.

This legislation would provide funds and resources specifically to this region.

Due to the efforts of the representatives of this region, we have been fortunate to receive $20 million in energy and water development appropriations.

We simply wish to include the necessary authorization language in this bill so we may begin to provide substantial assistance to the Delta region.

As the bill before the House today, WRDA 2000, continues through the legislative process, I hope the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. SHUSTER) will consider including the authorizing language for the Delta Regional Authority in this bill.

Mrs. EMERSON. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BERRY. I yield to the gentlewoman from Missouri.

Mrs. EMERSON. Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the gentleman from Arkansas for his yielding to me.

Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Chairman SHUSTER) for the hard work and leadership the gentleman has provided on this important piece of legislation and ask, along with the gentleman from Arkansas (Mr. BERRY), for the gentleman's consideration of including authorizing language for the Delta Regional Authority as WRDA 2000 moves towards a conference committee with the Senate.

As the gentleman knows, the Mississippi Delta is home to remarkable history, culture and natural resources, and I am sure proud to represent the wonderful people of this region; however, our Delta communities have not shared in America's prospering economy of the last few years and have historically faced unique economic challenges.

Mr. SHUSTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from Missouri (Mrs. EMERSON).

Mrs. EMERSON. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Arkansas (Mr. BERRY) has led a bipartisan effort to establish the Delta Regional Authority and refocus our efforts on promoting jobs and economic development in the region. His bipartisan proposal is contained in H.R. 2911 and is supported by 21 Republicans and Democrats in the region, including our colleagues, the gentleman from Arkansas (Mr. DICKEY) and the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. GEPHARDT), among others.

As WRDA 2000 continues through the legislative process, I hope the gentleman will consider including the urgently needed authorizing language for the Delta Regional Authority.

Mr. OBERSTAR. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I, of course, have greatly sympathized with the concerns of the Mississippi Delta Region counties and the area's Members of Congress who are working on ways to address the economic distress this area has experienced far beyond that of Appalachia.

President Clinton, while he was Governor of Arkansas, served as chair of the Lower Mississippi Development Commission to study the needs of the economically distressed area. There are some ways that we can help establish the Mississippi Delta Commission in the course of further work on this WRDA legislation as it moves through conference.

I know that the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Chairman SHUSTER) is sympathetic and I certainly am and we will see what we can do.

Mr. SHUSTER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. OBERSTAR. I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. SHUSTER. Mr. Speaker, I would say to the gentlewoman from Missouri (Mrs. EMERSON) that representing part of Appalachia myself in Pennsylvania, I sometimes feel as if I know more about the need for economic development and the problems with lack of economic development than I wish I knew. It is a terrible problem, and so I want to be very helpful as we move forward. I hope we can do something.

Mr. OBERSTAR. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, we have no further speakers, but I will close for our side.

Mr. Speaker, it has been widely reported that the issue or one of the issues certainly that delayed this bill from floor consideration was the applicability of the Davis-Bacon Act to the non-Federal contributions to Corps projects. It has always been my belief and experience that Davis-Bacon applies to all aspects of Federal public works projects, regardless of whether the Corps is doing the work, or a non-Federal sponsor is contributing to the work. These are Federal public works projects. Davis-Bacon should apply.

The Corps was not consistently applying Davis-Bacon wage protections to the non-Federal contribution for Corps projects, and I was prepared to offer legislative language to remedy the situation. Such action is not necessary now that the Corps, the Department of the Army, the Department of Labor and the White House itself got together, reviewed the matter in a meeting in my office and have come to an agreement that Davis-Bacon does apply.

The wage provisions apply to non-Federal contributions to Corps of Engineer projects and an appropriate statement of policy on this matter is being formulated to make this matter very clear.

Mr. Speaker, the Corps of Engineers even in some debate here on the floor, but also in news accounts widely distributed across the country has come under assault. I would like to pay tribute to the Corps of Engineers as they celebrate their 225th anniversary. During that 2¼ centuries, it has established itself as the Nation's oldest, largest, most experienced government organization in water and related land engineering matters, extraordinary, competent, life-saving, economic-development enhancing service has been provided to this country and its people by the Corps of Engineers during these 2¼ centuries.

Few people know that the Corps of Engineers once had jurisdiction over Yellowstone Park and over Yosemite and Sequoia National Parks, until the National Park Service was established in 1916. Lieutenant Dan Kingman of the Corps in 1883, and later Kingman would become the Chief of Engineers, wrote of the corps' work on Yellowstone, quote, ''The plan of development which I have submitted is given upon the supposition and in the earnest hope that it will preserve as nearly as may be as the hand of nature left it, a source of pleasure to all who visit and a source of wealth to none.''

A few years later, John Muir, the founder of the Sierra Club said, quote, ''The best service in forest protection, almost the only efficient service, is that rendered by the military. For many years, they have guarded the great Yellowstone Park, and now they are guarding Yosemite. They found it a desert, as far as underbrush, grass and flowers are concerned. But in 2 years, the skin of the mountains is healthy again; blessings on Uncle Sam's soldiers, as they have done the job well, and every pine tree is waving its arms for joy.''

Another great American said, ''The military engineers are taking upon their shoulders the job of making the Mississippi River over again, a job transcended in size only by the original job of creating it.'' That was Mark Twain.

Together, those statements say a lot about the Corps of Engineers and pay tribute to its work, to its legacy for all Americans: protecting people, protecting cities against flood, enhancing river navigation, America's most efficient means of transportation of goods; and, for me, protection of the Great Lakes, one-fifth of all the fresh water on the entire face of the Earth.

The Corps of Engineers deserves recognition, which it does not sufficiently receive, for all of these works and the great contribution it makes to the economic well-being, to the environmental enhancement of this country.

Finally, Mr. Speaker, I would like to mention that there is a provision in here that names a unit of the Boundary Waters Canoe Area Wilderness in my district as the Bruce F. Vento Unit of the Boundary Waters Canoe Area Wilderness.

Bruce Vento understood the great oration of Chief Seattle at the signing of the treaty of 1854 when he said, ''The Earth does not belong to man, man belongs to the Earth.'' Bruce Vento dedicated his career to man's responsibility to the earth, to environmental protection. Cicero, the great Roman orator and Senator said, ''Gratitude is not only the greatest virtue, it is the parent of all others.'' In gratitude for Bruce Vento's service to the enhancement of our environment, I am very pleased that we are able to include this provision in this legislation.

Mr. SHUSTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, this indeed is historic environmental legislation, not only because it provides for water resource protection and development throughout these United States, but most particularly because this is the largest ecosystem restoration project in the history of the world.

Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield the balance of my time to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. SHAW), who deserves so much credit for that, along with so many others around the country.

(Mr. SHAW asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SHAW. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding time to me, and I thank the chairman for giving me this privilege of being able to close debate.

Mr. Speaker, we here in this Chamber are only the voices speaking out for the millions of Americans who do care about the environment, and leading that in this House, of course, we have our great chairman, the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. SHUSTER).

I had the privilege of working with the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. OBERSTAR) both in the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure and the Committee on Public Works; and the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. BORSKI), the gentleman from New York (Mr. BOEHLERT), who I think thinks he is representing Florida for the great work he has done for the restoration of the Everglades. Of course, we have many of the gentleman's New Yorkers in Florida, so I am sure that has been a great effort of his.

Also, thanks to the gentlemen from Florida (Chairman YOUNG) and the ranking member, the gentleman from California (Mr. MILLER), for the work they have done in their committees with regard to the Everglades.

Secretary Babbitt, whose name has been missing from this debate, he I think has given us an extraordinary amount of attention in the Everglades, and his name should certainly be referenced in our discussion.

And in the other body we have our two great Senators from Florida, Senator CONNIE MACK, who we are going to miss after this year, and Senator BOB GRAHAM, who has really gotten deeply involved in matters pertaining to the Everglades.

This has truly been a great moment of great bipartisan effort. I think the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. OBERSTAR) may have stated it best in his closing remarks when he said that the Earth does not belong to man, that man belongs to the Earth. This is certainly a recognition.

Many roads are paved with great intentions that go in the wrong direction. This certainly is the case and has been the case with regard to the ecosystem of south Florida. Starting from just south of Orlando and going south to Lake Okeechobee, many years ago it was thought to be a great idea to get rid of the flooding, straighten the Kissimmee River, and have it dump directly into Lake Okeechobee.

It worked, but it worked too well, because it brought all of the agricultural runoff down into the bottom, which has really changed the very nature of Lake Okeechobee. Some of the oldtimers down there will tell us that in the old days we could read the date off of a dime that was laying on the bottom of Lake Okeechobee. Now we cannot find the dime. It has changed considerably.

But we are addressing that issue, and thanks to this great committee that this bill is coming out of, that restoration project is underway.

Now it is time to change the nature of the rest of the sheet flow, the runoff that runs south over that great river of grass. It was once thought that this ecosystem was indestructible, that we could do anything and get away with it. Mother Nature had different ideas.

We cannot. The very water that now shoots down in by ways of canals into the Florida Bay has greatly changed the salinity of the Florida Bay itself. The natural grasses that grew on the floor of Florida Bay have been damaged because of the salinity and how it varies.

There are many other things that need to be studied, but we have a great blueprint. That blueprint is the Everglades to be restored before man changed it. We need to go back as close as we can.

But when we see the great cooperation that we have received not only from this body, but we have to go to my own State of Florida and talk about my Florida legislature that has stood up, stepped up to the plate and has put the money up, the matching funds required in order to make this happen; and all of the interests involved, the agricultural interests that wanted to go one way, the environmental interests that wanted to go the other way, the developers, the Miccosukee and Seminole Indian tribes, we had a coming together that was absolutely incredible. It was almost a magic moment.

It is very important on this bill that we not only vote it in today by the great bipartisan vote that I am confident of, but that we conference it promptly and get it passed into law and get it to the President's desk for signature. This is tremendously important because of that fragile balance that we have, the fragile balance of State and all of the interests that I have mentioned.

I can tell the Members, this is really a wonderful, wonderful moment in this institution and in the history of the country. It is not just a Florida issue. I would like to say, and I would want to absolutely recognize the greatness of our Florida delegation in working together, with interest in north Florida as well as south Florida, in bringing together what is going to happen here in just a minute or so; that is, the passage of this great bill.

Mr. Speaker, this Congress, this 106th Congress, it can look back and say that we put forth the greatest, largest environmental restoration project in the history of this globe. It is a wonderful moment for this institution. It is a wonderful moment for our country. I urge a yes vote.

Mr. Speaker, it is remarkable to have this broad a cross-section of Americans supporting legislation on any single issue. But protection of the Everglades is a national priority, because most Americans speak of this national treasure in the same breath as the Redwood Forests, the Mississippi River, Old Faithful, the Appalachian Trail, or the Grand Canyon.

Most Americans also understand the basic concepts of clean water and the delicate balance that nature requires. Everglades restoration is about restoring the balance that was disturbed by man-made structures as we pursued the noble goal of flood protection in decades past.

That is why so many diverse interests have come together, in historic fashion, to support enactment of a Comprehensive Everglades Restoration Plan, as outlined by the Comprehensive Review Study undertaken by the Central & Southern Florida Project, led by the U.S. Corps of Engineers and the South Florida Water Management District. (A list of participating organizations is submitted herein for the RECORD, with much applause for their work.)

That is why our underlying Everglades restoration bill, H.R. 5121 and S. 2796/2797, as modified by today's manager's amendment and the stellar work undertaken in the other Chamber, has been endorsed by numerous organizations, from environmental groups to agricultural groups to home builders and other businesses, to utility districts and other local governmental bodies, to recreational users and Native American Indian tribes. (A list of organizations supporting the legislation is also submitted for the RECORD.)

This legislation is as much about a process to make future decisions affecting the ecology of South Florida as it is about specific projects authorized by this bill. I am pleased that Members from other parts of the country have respected our State's right to determine what is correct within the context of our own State water laws. While recognizing that Florida has come to the table as a full and equal partner in this restoration effort, for the good of all Americans.

The State of Florida has already taken the extraordinary step of putting up 50 percent of the up-front construction costs, which Governor Jeb Bush has shepherded through the State legislature as a commitment in anticipation of the federal response. We at the federal level can no longer delay answering the call.

I thank Chairmen BUD SHUSTER, DON YOUNG, and SHERRY BOEHLERT, along with the Ranking Members OBERSTAR, MILLER, and BORSKI, my Florida colleagues and co-sponsors from other states for their leadership and support of doing the right thing.

Citizens from all over the country understand that this is not a local issue affecting only South Florida—although not simply because our state boasts tourists and future residents from all 50 states and many foreign countries.

What is good for the environment is good for us all, and with a vote to pass Everglades restoration in the House, we can truly lay claim to a legacy for the 106th Congress:

We will have worked in bipartisan, bicameral fashion to deliver a huge victory for the American people and a huge victory for the environment, with the largest and most significant environmental restoration project in the history of the United States, if not the history of the world.

Let me discuss a little about the Everglades. There is no other ecosystem like it anywhere in the world. It is home to 68 individual endangered or threatened species of plants and animals, which are threatened with extinction unless we act. The Everglades has also been shown to play a significant role in global weather patterns.

Several years of research by state and federal scientists, private environmental and agricultural experts and the Corps of Engineers produced the Comprehensive Everglades Restoration Plan (CERP), which includes 68 individual projects to be completed by the Corps of Engineers over the next 36 years. The total cost of the plan is $7.8 billion, to be shared 50/50 with the state of Florida.

The CERP will restore more than 1.7 billion gallons of freshwater per day to the natural system, which is currently lost to sea via the St. John and Caloosahatchee rivers. Flood control projects constructed by the Corps of Engineers in the 1940s destroyed the original freshwater sheet flow through the natural system, and more than 50% of the original ecosystem has been lost. This plan will restore the Everglades to almost 80% of its original condition.

In its natural state, the Everglades covered over 18,000 square miles and was connected by the flow of water from the Lake Okeechobee through the vast freshwater marshes to Florida Bay and on to the coral reefs of the Florida Keys.

The Everglades is the largest remaining tropical and subtropical wilderness remaining in the United States. Its wonders include unique habitats of sawgrass prairies, tree islands, estuaries and the vast waters of Florida Bay.

The lands owned and managed by the Federal government—4 national parks and 16 national wildlife refugees and 1 national marine sanctuary which comprise half of the remaining Everglades—will receive the benefits of the restoration.

But this legislation is designed to restore the entire ecosystem of the Everglades, not just the national parks and federally owned lands. This should be of comfort to those who enjoy the recreational benefits of such wilderness areas, as well as those living in communities on the periphery of the Everglades who are affected by the water flows of the system. I have heard from local property owners, sportsmen's chapters, airboat associations and Safari Club chapters and understand how important this is to to them.

The compelling Federal interest has been matched by the State of Florida, which has already stepped up and committed $2 billion to the effort. Florida's Fish & Wildlife Agency will maintain its strong role. Congress needs to respond to that pledge.

Finally, there are additional opportunities for community involvement contemplated or even called for by this legislation. One area is in the scientific verification procedures. Our Everglades legislation includes a provision for independent scientific review, contemplating that the National Academy of Sciences or some other qualified body or bodies will convene a panel to review the Plan's progress towards achieving the stated natural restoration goals. I believe it is appropriate to point out that, in South Florida, we have a number of institutions that could contribute significantly to such scientific research because of their demonstrated competency in such areas.

For example, Florida international University, one of the leading research universities in my State, has done a remarkable job in fostering an ecosystem approach to meeting the challenges created by population growth in one of the most environmentally sensitive regions on Earth—the greater Everglades ecosystem. Spearheading this effort is the Southeast Environmental Research Center (FIU–SERC) with its experienced scientific staff and established network of collaboration with university, federal, state, local, and private organizations. FIU–SERC has extensive expertise in conducting monitoring assessments for the Everglades that can contribute to the Adaptive Monitoring and Assessment Program in WRDA. The Corps of Engineers can greatly benefit from utilizing FIU–SERC's existing resources to conduct future monitoring activities in the Everglades.

In addition, the Museum of Discovery and Science in Fort Lauderdale, Florida, is uniquely situated to provide an interpretive site to carry out public outreach and educational opportunities pertaining to the restoration of the Everglades. In August, 1999, the Museum signed an agreement with the South Florida Ecosystem Restoration Task Force to provide public education outreach in conjunction with the restoration effort. The Museum has a 25-year history of providing environmental science education to the public in innovative ways. It currently hosts more than 500,000 visitors annually and plans to build a dynamic, interactive facility called the Florida Environmental Education Center, as well as expanding its Florida Ecoscapes Exhibition. I hope that such activity would be looked upon favorably by the Corps of Engineers in developing an interpretive site partnership initiative for community outreach and assistance.

Mr. Speaker, I include the following material on this legislation:

Mr. Speaker, I would like to thank and praise the leadership and hard work of the following people, on behalf of those they represented in creating a consensus product, legislation to restore the American Everglades, as embodied in this bill:

Governor Jeb Bush and his staff, especially Nina Oviedo and Clarke Cooper of the Governor's Washington office, Secretary David Struhs and Leslie Palmer of the Department of Environmental Protection, and Kathy Copeland of the South Florida Water Management District;

Senator BOB GRAHAM and Catharine Cyr-Randsom of his staff;

Senator CONNIE MACK and C.K. Lee of his staff;

Mike Strachn and Ben Grumbles of the Transportation & Infrastructure Committee;

Deputy Assistant Secretary of the Army for Civil Works Michael Davis;

Acting Assistant Secretary Mary Doyle and Peter Umhofer of the Department of the Interior;

Tom Adams of the Audubon Society;

Bob Dawson, representing the coalition of agriculture, home builders, and utility districts;

Mary Barley, Bill Riley, and Fowler West of the Everglades Trust;

Col. Terry Rice of Florida International University;

Dexter Lehtinen, The Honorable Jimmy Hayes, and Lee Forsgren, representing the Miccosukee Tribe of Indians; and finally, my own staff, especially Donna Boyer, Mike Sewell, and Bob Castro.

Mr. REGULA. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of S. 2796, the Water Resources Development Act of 2000 and would like to emphasize my support specifically for the Everglades language contained in it.

As many of my colleagues have already stated during this debate, the Everglades provisions represent a major step toward restoration of this unique ecosystem. As Chairman of the Interior Appropriations Subcommittee, I have become involved in this restoration effort, as it directly impacts the natural areas in federal ownership including Everglades National Park, Big Cypress Natural Preserve and several national wildlife refuges. Their future and that of the numerous species who make the Everglades their home, depend upon the success of this effort. Only if the Corps of Engineers carried out the restoration initiative properly will they survive.

I commend the Chairman of the House Transportation and Infrastructure Committee for recognizing that the environment must be the primary beneficiary of the water made available through the Comprehensive Plan for the restoration. The object of the plan is to restore, preserve and protect the natural system while also meeting the water supply, flood protection and agricultural needs of the region.

As we make our way through this massive ecosystem restoration, I intend to work with my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to ensure that we remain focused on the restoration of the natural areas. I commend the Members on their bipartisan work in bringing this legislation to the floor today and urge the support of the House in passing it.

Mr. WELLER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to express my strong support for S. 2796, the Water Resources development act of 2000. This historic legislation will provide funding for valuable projects across our nation and the 11th Congressional District of Illinois.

Mr. Speaker, I am very pleased that three projects that are very important to my constituents were included in the Water Resources Development Act of 2000 (WRDA). Legislative language was included in the bill which will ensure the continuation of valuable work by the Army Corps of Engineers at Ballard's Island in the Illinois River; the Ottawa YMCA will have land transferred to it from the Army Corps of Engineers for expansion of its facilities; and the Joliet Park district will have land transferred to it for use as their regional headquarters.

Ballard's Island is a natural and historic treasure located in the Illinois River. However, the side channel around Ballard's Island has become severely clogged with sand and silt due to the Army Corps of Engineers erection of a closure structure at the end of the side channel of Ballard's Island in the 1940s. This side channel has since become increasingly clogged with sand and silt, the problem becoming severe over the past three decades. The original depth of the side channel was 19 feet but today it has been reduced to two feet, making the channel completely unusable. This channel was once a thriving and vibrant aquatic ecosystem, but it is now so choked with mud and sediment that it no longer supports the plants and animals it used to and it is no longer productive for local citizens.

To solve these problems, the Army Corps is prepared to begin a Section 1135 Preliminary Restoration Plan for solving the river's woes. The Illinois Department of Natural Resources will be the 25% non-federal sponsor for this project. However, the Illinois Department of Natural Resources has already begun work on removing sediment from the channel through a $250,000 state appropriation. The legislative language included in this bill will ensure that the valuable work already begun on the river will continue and its habitat and ecosystem restored. This is a victory for the people who live on and love this river who have watched it slowly die—their river will be returned to them.

Two other projects in this bill will help the people of Ottawa and Joliet, Illinois. The Ottawa YMCA is an outstanding community organization which already provides health and recreational services to hundreds of Illinois Valley families. In fact, because of the growing demand for these services, the Ottawa YMCA has launched a capital campaign to raise funds to expand its current facilities.

Earlier this year, with construction about to begin on the $1.3 million expansion project, YMCA officials learned that the U.S. Government was granted an easement in 1933 on the very piece of property intended as the site for the YMCA's expansion project. This easement, although never utilized, was intended for use in conjunction with the Army Corps of Engineers Illinois Waterway Project. On September 19, 2000 with legislative language provided to me by the Rock Island Army Corps district, I introduced H.R. 5216, a bill to convey the Army Corps easement back to the YMCA, ensuring that there will be no further questions about the land used by the YMCA for its expansion. I am pleased that H.R. 5216 was included in the Water Resources Development Act and that the good work of the Ottawa YMCA will be able to continue.

WRDA also provides a new home for the Joliet Park District. The Army Corps of Engineers currently owns property located at 622 Railroad Street in Joliet, Illinois. The property has served several functions in its official use but has recently been vacated. This property is no longer used or needed by the Army Corps of Engineers and is in the process of being deemed ''excess.''

The Joliet Park District has requested use of the land and buildings for its new location for its headquarters. The Park District currently has its headquarters and maintenance facilities in two separate, small locations on opposite sides of the City of Joliet. The approval of this property transfer will allow the Park District to increase its efficiency and save time and funds which can be much better used to the improvement of parks and recreation facilities. I am pleased that the Water Resources Development Act included H.R. 5389, legislation I introduced that conveys the land from the Army Corps of Engineers to the Joliet Park District.

Mr. Speaker, this is good legislation and I commend Chairmen BOEHLERT and SHUSTER for their work and efforts on this legislation. I urge passage of the Water Resources Development Act of 2000 by my colleagues.

Mrs. FOWLER. Mr. Speaker, today we take an historic step to restoring one of our nation's natural treasures, the Everglades. This will be the largest environmental project the Corps of Engineers has ever undertaken and Democrats and Republicans have come together to accomplish this great task.

My friend and colleague CLAY SHAW, the dean of our delegation, successfully guided this legislation through the House. Also, our Governor, Jeb Bush, has not wavered on his commitment to the Everglades. His tireless efforts guarantee state funding for the project over the next ten years.

This bipartisan plan will restore, preserve and protect the South Florida ecosystem while saving generations from inheriting an environmental nightmare. Over a million Americans visit the Everglades system each year—enjoying the natural wonders of this remarkable spot. Though we should be alarmed that this important ecosystem is now half its original size. But today, we start to reverse that dangerous trend and begin undoing the mistakes of the past. I know our children and grandchildren will benefit from a stronger Everglades.

Mr. DIAZ-BALART. Mr. Speaker, I wish to echo the sentiments of the gentleman from Florida, Mr. SHAW, about the FIU Southeast Environmental Research Center and reinforce the important contributions that the Center has made in the area of monitoring assessments in the Everglades. I would encourage the Corps of Engineers to explore ways to collaborate with FIU–SERC and utilize the Center's expertise in monitoring assessments. SERC has extensive expertise in Everglades restoration and can provide research and monitoring, technical assistance and infrastructure to support the Corps. FIU–SERC can also serve to coordinate technology transfer and apply the techniques and methodologies learned from CERP to other sustainable ecosystems.

Mr. TANCREDO. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to S. 2796, the Water Resources Development Act. The communities in my district have learned first hand that the Army Corps of Engineers has become a large, bloated and intransigent bureaucracy. Now is the time for reform, and while I commend the Transportation Committee for their efforts to bring about some reform in the area of peer-review for projects in S. 2796, I believe more work must be done, and more efforts to shrink the size and power of the Corps of Engineers should be made.

To illustrate the point, I am enclosing for the RECORD the following Op-Ed I recently submitted to the Aurora Sentinel regarding the need for reform in the Army Corps of Engineers.

On a related topic, I believe that the public image and reputation of the Corps of Engineers might be improved tremendously if it would adopt some of the recommended policy changes suggested by the 1999 National Recreation Lakes Study Commission.

Specifically, I believe it is time for the Corps to reverse its long-standing opposition to cost-share proposals that would rehabilitate facilities on the recreational properties it leases to non-federal entities such as the State of Colorado.

Over the last year and a half, I have worked with the interested parties to encourage the Corps to enter into a cost-share agreement with the state of Colorado to improve the recreational facilities of Cherry Creek Reservoir, Chatfield Reservoir, and Trinidad Reservoir State Parks.

Cherry Creek, Chatfield, and Trinidad Reservoirs are each operated and maintained by the Corps, while the State manages all parks and recreation facilities on the surrounding federally-owned land. These reservoir-parks are the most valued sources of water recreation in Colorado, a state where virtually no natural large body of water exists. The three parks combined host almost 3.5 million visitors annually.

Most recreational facilities in these parks were constructed over 25 years ago. Entrance gates, trails, campsites, and outhouses are near states of disrepair. Worse, public safety is at risk if water, sewer, and Americans with Disabilities Act compliance improvements are not addressed. The State is not financially capable of meeting the repair and renovation needs without matching federal assistance.

In a recent meeting with Assistant Secretary of the Army for Civil Works, Dr. Joseph Westphal, I was assured by Secretary Westphal that the Corps is committed to beginning this cost share agreement as a pilot project. Governor Bill Owens has also committed the State of Colorado to meeting its financial obligation for the cost share program. Unfortunately, the project has not progressed as planned.

As was demonstrated by previous recreational facility cost share agreements with the Bureau of Reclamation, these agreements are a tremendously efficient way to leverage federal dollars and to help preserve Colorado's quality of life. In addition, the facilities provided through the cost shares enable the Corps to meet their legal obligation to provide recreation on these three reservoirs.

Because of the lack of an agreement, I proposed a policy reform in the form of an amendment to S. 2796 that instructed the Corps of Engineers to submit a plan in no less than one year on how it could implement cost-share programs with non federal entities for recreational purposes. While the amendment was not made in order, I intend to craft legislation that will seek to reform and improve the operations of the Corps of Engineers, and introduce the legislation when the 107th Congress convenes.

A BRIGHT LIGHT SHED ON THE ARMY CORPS OF ENGINEERS

(By Congressman Tom Tancredo)

The evidence is in, and it is conclusive. The Army Corps of Engineers has tried to throw a blanket over the heads of American taxpayers in order to advance their own projects and agenda, and the citizens around the Cherry Creek Dam and Reservoir have been a top target.

The Washington Post released an article on February 24th entitled ''Generals Push Huge Growth for Engineers,'' which details an internal push to expand the budget, size, and scope of the Army Corps of Engineers.

At the surface, the Corps has internally planned for growth of their budget to $6.5 billion by 2005, more than $2 billion greater than their 2000 budget, which breaks down more specifically within the agency.

The information obtained by the Washington Post also shows that Corps officials had been pressured by superiors to ''get creative with cost-benefit analysis in order to greenlight major projects.''

The Cherry Creek Dam controversy that has developed between the Corps, the local community and local public officials over the expansion of flood controls around the dam is even more alarming with the information contained in the Corps report proposing a ''program with targeted studies that should lead to target construction activities with continuation of historical success rates.''

This answers a few questions I had surrounding the proposed addition of flood controls to the Cherry Creek Dam. Why the conflicting facts and figures from the Corps? And why have they suppressed the concerns of local citizens and elected officials, myself included? The answer to those questions is evident in the report, the growth of the Corps is first and foremost.

Like many, I was skeptical of the need to add more flood control onto the Cherry Creek Dam when the Corps had admitted that the chances of a flood capable of breaking the dam, 24.7 inches in 72 hours, is approximately one in a billion. With Metro Denver averaging around fourteen inches of moisture a year, this would be a flood of biblical proportions.

What the Corps has turned into is a major public works department with over 37,000 workers attempting to capitalize on the expansion of the American economy and proposed government surpluses.

Let me be the first to inform the Army Corps of Engineers that the days of reckless government and fraud is over.

America has more pressing needs—saving Social Security and keeping our commitment to our nation's veterans—than to needlessly expand the budget of an agency whose motto is, ''growth.''

I am just sorry that the citizens of this community have had to endure what has become a stressful issue that has scared many families and individuals and affected property values in the proposed area.

As this process moves forward, and both Congressman Joel Hefley and I are discussing legislation that would require the Corps to use criteria for similar projects more in line with what the State of Colorado uses, I will keep the communities best interests, and not the Corps, at the forefront of the debate.

Mr. JONES of North Carolina. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong support of the manager's amendment to the Water Resources Development Act of 2000. This bipartisan piece of legislation is a tribute to the outgoing Chairman BUD SHUSTER and Ranking Member JIM OBERSTAR. I want to touch on two components of the legislation that I wholeheartedly support.

Representing a district that sits within a 100-year floodplain along Hurricane Alley is often a daunting but fulfilling task. Hurricane Floyd ripped through Eastern North Carolina more than one year ago, causing billions of dollars of damage and displacing thousands of families.

While recovery is progressing and people's lives are slowing returning to normal, our rivers and streams remain clogged with debris from that horrific storm. If these streams are not immediately cleared after major disasters, flooding problems will be exacerbated and North Carolina will continue to remain vulnerable to extreme weather conditions. For instance, one country in my district, Onslow County, has almost 600 miles of rivers and streams that remain clogged, a continuing threat to life, property and economic development.

Included in the legislation is a demonstration project authorizing the Army Corps of Engineers to remove accumulated snags and debris in Eastern North Carolina rivers and tributaries immediately following major disasters. The accumulated debris in our rivers and streams are a contributing factor in the disastrous floods experienced by eastern North Carolina in the last few years.

Without this provision, flood control problems will worsen as urban centers are now being impacted by floodwaters. This emergency authority for the Army Corps of Engineers will help alleviate continued flooding within Eastern North Carolina and supplement other flood control programs.

The proposed program will not only aid navigation and safety, but it will also help the flow of the rivers themselves. With this provision, Eastern North Carolina will be better prepared to deal with extreme weather events like Hurricanes Bertha, Fran, Dennis, Floyd and Irene in the future.

The second provision I support is an authorization for hurricane and storm damage reduction for Dare County, North Carolina. The authorization affects the towns of Nags Head, Kill Devil Hills, and Kitty Hawk. I am a strong supporter of beach nourishment, not just for the 3 million tourists who visit our shores every year, but also for storm protection for our homes and infrastructure.

It is not well remembered, but it is nevertheless a fact, that these communities—indeed most of North Carolina's Outer Banks—have been protected for well over a half a century by a line of dunes constructed by the federal government under the Works Progress Administration. These dunes have been a wise investment of resources. Now, however, these dunes and berms have deteriorated and must be repaired.

Erosion along North Carolina's shoreline threatens the future existence of these beaches and shore protection is truly the only option available to ensure coastal areas will be here tomorrow. Nourishment of these beaches will provide the best protection against the devastating effects of storm surges on the dune system, private property, roads and other critical public infrastructure guaranteeing a healthy and fortified coastline.

Without beach nourishment these reinforcement measures cannot take place. Unfortunately it takes years for the Army Corps of Engineers and the local communities to actually place sand on the affected beaches. Shore protection projects have become entangled with numerous state and federal environmental regulations.

In addition, the projects are even further delayed by the Clinton-Gore Administration's opposition to beach nourishment, under which there have been no new startups of beach nourishment programs. I am hopeful that a new Administration will support such a sound program to protect both our communities and precious natural resources. Rest assured that I will continue to support shore protection and other initiatives along the North Carolina coast. It is essential that we protect the entire coast for the inhabitants and visitors today as well for future generations.

I commend the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure for bringing this important legislation to the House floor. I hope it will be possible for us to improve this bill today and for the House and the other body to agree on a final version of this critical legislation prior to adjournment. This bill is a victory for Eastern North Carolina, a victory for Congress, and a victory for America.

Mr. MCCOLLUM. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of the Water Resources Development Act and I urge my colleagues to give it their full support as well. Specifically, Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of one provision of this bill that will begin the long over due effort to preserve the Everglades and restore them to their natural beauty.

Mr. Speaker, with this legislation, we will begin to correct the mistakes we made over 40 years ago when we began development in and around the Everglades area. In those years, we did not have the scientific understanding of the ramifications of our actions, and the result was enormous damage to this vital ecosystem. Yet since that time, clear and compelling scientific data has shown the perilous state of the Everglades.

Under the bill before us, 18,000 square miles of subtropical uplands, coral reefs and wetlands will be preserved, in addition to the habitat of 68 federally listed threatened and endangered species. Once implemented, 2 million acres of Everglades will be restored with a 50/50 cost share between the state of Florida and the federal government, providing $100 million per year for 10 years.

While I am pleased with this, it is only a first step in the preservation of the environment in Florida. As the state's population increases, Florida will experience increasing demands on its water resources. Mr. Speaker, I am committed to maintaining the federal-state partnership we have built for the Everglades, and I am pleased to be able to say that the legislation before this body has the support of a broad spectrum of groups and individuals, ranging from environmentalists, to agricultural and industry groups, to the Seminole Indians and the state of Florida. That broad array of support demonstrates just what we in this body can accomplish when we put partisan differences aside.

Mr. Speaker, I was proud to work with my Republican and Democratic colleagues from Florida on this measure, and I will continue to work in the forefront of the effort to protect our state's unique environment. This is prudent, scientifically sound legislation that will preserve a valuable national asset for generations to come, and I urge my colleagues to vote in favor of this investment in our nation's future.

Mr. UDALL of Colorado. Mr. Speaker, I have some serious reservations about this bill, especially those parts dealing with oceanfront development, dredging, and other projects to be carried out by the Corps of Engineers. I think the House should have had the chance to consider amendments that would have improved the bill. I regret that the rule adopted earlier does not permit that. However, I will vote the bill because I strongly support authorizing the important program of environmental restoration for the Everglades. The bill will now go to conference with the Senate. I hope that will result in improvements in the measure to make it one that everyone can support without reservations.

Mr. HOLT. Mr. Speaker, Marjory Stoneman Douglass, grand matron of the Everglades immortalized the sprawling South Florida wetlands in her classic book, Everglades: River of Grass. ''Nothing anywhere else is like them,'' she wrote. ''They are, they have always been, one of the unique regions of the earth, remote, never wholly known.''

I am not sure that there is any better way to describe what is one of our nation's greatest natural wonders. But, I can tell you that even though we will never fully know or understand the Everglades, we do know a few things. The Everglades is home to a wide and rich bird population, particularly large wading birds, such as the roseate spoonbill, wood stork, great blue heron and a variety of egrets. It contains both temperate and tropical plant communities, including sawgrass prairies, mangrove and cypress swamps, pinelands and hardwood hammocks, as well as marine and estuarine environments. It is the only place in the world where alligators and crocodiles exist side by side. However, man has also lived in and around the Everglades for the past 2,000 years, sometimes with disastrous consequences. Starting in the 1880's, man began diverting water from the Everglades to make it more a hospitable place for people. Over the last century canals were dug and impoundments were created to provide drinking water, protection from floods and land for houses.

As a result of man's habitation and engineering, the Everglades are dying. Many portions are drying out and many species are threatened with extinction. We need to take immediate and long term steps to save this massive ecosystem. The Water Resources Development Act includes a $7.8 billion, 35-year federal-state plan to restore the Florida Everglades that is a major step towards saving that goal. This restoration plan will reverse the effects of the dams and waterways that drain 1.7 billion gallons of water a day from the Everglades into the Atlantic Ocean. This plan has 68 project components and will restore the natural water flow while continuing to supply water to South Florida. This legislation also requires that an ongoing, independent scientific review be established to ensure that the plan is progressing toward restoration.

I strongly urge all of my colleagues to support this plan to save this truly unique natural resource.

Mr. STUPAK. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in reluctant opposition to the Water Resources Development Act. I do not oppose this bill for its content. Rather, I oppose the measure because the rule did not provide an opportunity to offer amendments. This bill does not include language about preventing the withdrawal and diversion of water from the Great Lakes. In 1998, a Canadian company planned to ship 3 billion liters of water from Lake Superior over five years and sell it to Asia. I authored legislation that passed the House of Representatives that called on the United States government to oppose this action. The permit was subsequently withdrawn. We must strengthen existing laws to protect the possibility of other countries making similar requests in the future. We owe it to the estimated 35 million people who reside in the Great Lakes Basin.

I want to thank Chairman SHUSTER and Ranking Member OBERSTAR for their commitment to protecting our Great Lakes and I hope that similar language will be inserted in the WRDA conference report. Another point of concern for me in this bill concerns the transfer of a lighthouse in Ontonagon, Michigan, from the Secretary of the Army to the Ontonagon County Historical Society. This facility was built in 1866 and guided ships through the seas of Lake Superior for more than 100 years.

Thanks to the Ontonagon County Historical Society's efforts, this facility has been preserved for the public's enjoyment. To continue its work, the non-profit organization is seeking to have the lighthouse and the adjacent land of 1.8 acres transferred. Unfortunately, the Army Corps of Engineers, which owns and uses the property, has witnessed contamination of the property. Lead-based paint coats the interior walls and the exterior gallery of the lighthouse. A 5,000-gallon fuel tank, which may have leaked oil into the soil, sits idle near the lighthouse. Finally, for 14 years coal has been stored onsite by a company subletting the property; an action which has contaminated the soil.

This bill, however, does not include language absolving the organization of responsibility. And in no way should the Ontonagon County Historical Society be held liable for environmental damage of the property when it occurred during the ownership of the Army Corps of Engineers. Such an omission forces me to oppose this bill. The Senate version of WRDA would hold the Secretary of the Army responsible for the removal of onsite contaminated soil and lead-based paint. I hope that its language is retained in the bill's conference report.

Again, I reluctantly oppose this bill but wish to thank Mr. SHUSTER and Mr. OBERSTAR for bringing this legislation to the floor, especially given the session's time constraints. Their leadership in crafting a bipartisan bill should be commended.

Mr. WATTS of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, today the House is considering S. 2796, the Water Resources and Development Act of 2000. I would like to thank Chairman SHUSTER for his leadership in drafting this legislation and I rise in strong support of its passage.

This legislation takes the necessary steps to address the many water resources needs across the country. It does so by authorizing important water programs such as those sponsored and constructed by the Army Corps of Engineers. These projects provide important water resources to the areas they serve. These water resources are crucial to the economic development of many of these areas.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to thank Chairman SHUSTER again for his leadership on this legislation and I urge my colleagues in the House to join me by casting their vote in favor of S. 2796.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. OSE). All time for debate has expired.

Pursuant to House Resolution 639, the previous question is ordered on the Senate bill, as amended.

MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT

A message in writing from the President of the United States was communicated to the House by Ms. Evans, one of his secretaries.

PROVIDING FOR CONSIDERATION OF H.R. 4635, DEPARTMENTS OF VETERANS AFFAIRS AND HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT, AND INDEPENDENT AGENCIES APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 2001

Ms. PRYCE of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 638 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. RES. 638

Resolved, That upon adoption of this resolution it shall be in order to consider the conference report to accompany the bill (H.R. 4635) making appropriations for the Departments of Veterans Affairs and Housing and Urban Development and for sundry independent agencies, boards, commissions, corporations, and offices for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2001, and for other purposes. All points of order against the conference report and against its consideration are waived. The conference report shall be considered as read.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. LATOURETTE). The gentlewoman from Ohio (Ms. PRYCE) is recognized for 1 hour.

Ms. PRYCE of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, for purposes of debate only I yield the customary 30 minutes to my friend and colleague the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. MOAKLEY) pending which I yield myself such time as I may consume. During consideration of this resolution, all time yielded is for the purpose of debate only.

Mr. Speaker, House Resolution 638 is a rule waiving all points of order against the conference report and against its consideration to accompany H.R. 4635, the fiscal year 2001 appropriations bill for the Departments of Veterans Affairs, Housing and Urban Development, and Independent Agencies.

Mr. Speaker, this conference report provides another example of a carefully crafted bill that strikes a balance between the fiscal discipline and social responsibility Americans expect of this Congress. I would like to once again commend the chairman of the subcommittee, the gentleman from New York (Mr. WALSH) and the ranking member, the gentleman from West Virginia (Mr. MOLLOHAN), and all the members of the Committee on Appropriations for making the tough decisions required to produce a very thoughtful bill that meets our most important priorities.

I would also like to express a personal note of gratitude for the assistance to help increase affordable housing opportunities in my district of Columbus, Ohio. This conference report provides a small amount of needed funding which will, in turn, become the foundation to give more people in Columbus the opportunity to fulfill the dream of home ownership.

The VA–HUD appropriation bill funds a variety of important programs to take care of our veterans, address the Nation's critical housing needs, preserve and protect our environment, invest in scientific research, and continue our exploration into space.

The conference report maintains our commitment to our Nation's veterans, who selflessly place themselves in harm's way so that we may enjoy the very freedoms which we so much cherish. This year, it provides an additional $1.36 billion over last year's historic increase for veterans' medical health care. It increases veterans' medical and prosthetic research by $30 million, and provides an extra $73 million over last year's funding level for the Veterans Benefits Administration to expedite claims that need processed for our veterans.

Finally, this conference report provides $100 million for Veterans State Extended Facilities, an increase of $40 million above the President's request.

Mr. Speaker, along with providing for the needs of our veterans, this conference report makes available important resources to help the most vulnerable in our society and place roofs over their heads.

Low-income families will benefit through this bill's investment in the Housing Certificate Program, which provides funding for section 8 renewals and tenant protection.

A $2.5 billion increase over last year's funding level will allow for the renewal of all expiring section 8 contracts and provide needed relocation assistance at the level requested by the President. A total of $14 billion is provided for this important program in fiscal year 2001.

Other needed housing programs that help our elderly, people with AIDS, and Native Americans will also receive increases above last year's funding levels in this conference report.

H.R. 4365 also looks toward the future by preserving and protecting our environment for the next generation to enjoy.

It is my understanding that the conference report before us today resolves a number of outstanding environmental concerns which were previously expressed and are no longer considered controversial. The bill targets funding and places an emphasis on State grants to protect the water that we drink and the air that we breathe.

The State Revolving Fund for Safe Drinking Water is increased by more than $5 million from last year's level, and the Clean Water State Resolving Fund is increased by $550 million over the President's request. And finally, State Air grants are increased $6 million.

Finally, Mr. Speaker, this conference report provides important funding which maintains our commitment to the exploration of space and the improvement of science.

Total funding of $4.4 billion for NSF is the largest budget in its history and will help this important agency continue its mission of developing a national policy on science and promoting basic research as well as increasing scientific education.

NASA also receives an increase that will bring total funding to more than $14.3 billion.

Mr. Speaker, it is also important to note that this conference report includes two other important provisions.

First, like other appropriation conference reports considered and passed this year, the VA–HUD Conference Report maintains our commitment to debt reduction by providing yet another $5 billion to pay down the public debt.

Second, it contains a new version of the previously passed fiscal year 2001 Energy and Water appropriations bill, which now has the support of the administration.

Mr. Speaker, it is a good conference report and deserves our support. It takes a responsible path toward responding to our Nation's most pressing needs and priorities.

I urge all of my colleagues to support the straightforward, noncontroversial rule as well as this must-do piece of legislation.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MOAKLEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume. I thank my colleague and dear friend, the gentlewoman from Ohio (Ms. PRYCE), for yielding me the customary half hour.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of this rule providing for the consideration of VA–HUD and Energy and Water appropriations bills.

I would like to congratulate my colleagues, the gentleman from New York (Chairman WALSH) and the gentleman from West Virginia (Mr. MOLLOHAN), the ranking member, for their excellent work on this very, very difficult subject matter and the excellent work on this conference report.

When this bill came to the floor the first time in June, it really needed a lot of help. But lucky for the American veterans and the American families, it did get that help.

This conference report, Mr. Speaker, is a welcomed and radical departure from the first VA–HUD appropriations bill. This bill provides more money for veterans medical research and State veterans homes. It also does a better job of funding housing programs, which people in my home State of Massachusetts will be very, very happy to hear.

Mr. Speaker, I believe that veterans and housing programs are very, very important. They give people hope. They save lives. And they should be adequately funded, especially given today's strong economy. And lucky for us and thanks to the gentleman from New York (Chairman WALSH) and the gentleman from West Virginia (Mr. MOLLOHAN) this conference report does just that.

It also includes the Energy and Water Appropriations Conference Report, which now has been attached to the VA–HUD Appropriations Conference Report. Thanks to the hard work of the gentleman from California

(Mr. PACKARD) and the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. VISCLOSKY), the Energy and Water Conference Report contains funding for some very, very good water resource infrastructure projects.

Mr. Speaker, I am very pleased that they were able to come to an agreement with the White House on the language that caused the President to veto the bill the first time around.

It funds the Army Corps of Engineers' water projects and the Bureau of Reclamation, in addition to the Department of Energy's science programs. And thanks to the very excellent work on the part of the appropriations conferees, these two conference reports represent bipartisan agreements on a number of very important issues.

So I urge my colleagues to support the conference reports.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. PRYCE of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 2 minutes to my distinguished colleague, the gentleman from the State of Georgia (Mr. LINDER), a member of the Committee on Rules.

Mr. LINDER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman for yielding me the time.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the rule providing for consideration of the conference report on H.R. 4635, VA-HUD appropriations for fiscal year 2001. This compromise bill is a result of many hours of hard work by Members of the House and the Senate, and it is a bipartisan agreement that deserves the support of this body.

I would like to express my appreciation for the conference committee's inclusion of an amendment offered by myself and my colleague, the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. COLLINS), when the House first considered the bill. The language in our amendment ensures that Federal, State, and local governments do not waste precious taxpayer dollars on air quality standards that have been rendered unenforceable by the Federal Appeals Court.

Common sense dictates that until the Supreme Court has the opportunity to rule on these air quality standards, the Federal Government should not enforce them.

Our amendment passed the House in a strong bipartisan vote. I am pleased that Members of the conference committee recognized that hundreds of communities across the country could be tainted by designations made under these legally unenforceable standards without the inclusion of our amendment language. Our communities will be grateful for our actions.

Finally, Mr. Speaker, I would like to express my appreciation to the gentleman from New York (Mr. WALSH), the chairman of the Subcommittee on VA, HUD and Independent Agencies; and the gentleman from West Virginia (Mr. MOLLOHAN), the ranking member on the subcommittee, for their hard work in crafting a fine bipartisan bill. I thank them.

I urge all Members to support the rule and the underlying bill.

Mr. MOAKLEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE).

(Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas asked and was given permission to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I thank the ranking member for yielding me the time.

Mr. Speaker, let me acknowledge the very hard work that has been done by this entire committee, the Committee on Appropriations. The work is still being done.

I wish that we could move forward on some of the many important issues, as the gentleman from New York (Mr. WALSH), the chairman of the Subcommittee on VA, HUD and Independent Agencies, and the gentleman from West Virginia (Mr. MOLLOHAN), the ranking member, have done today.

I rise to support the rule as well as the legislation, and I agree with the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. MOAKLEY) that this is a much better bill. I am very gratified that we have in this bill $575 million for distressed housing; 10 million of that can be used for technical assistance.

A few sessions ago, I passed legislation that would obligate or require or encourage the residents of various distressed public housing to be able to work in efforts of rehabilitation. I hope that, with this funding, more of that initiative will be in place.

In addition, however, I would like to say to the public housing authorities that, as we render to them Federal funds, I think it is important that they look to utilize minority-owned, women-owned, and small-owned businesses.

In my own Houston Harris County Housing Authority, that has not been the case. And I hope that they can be impressed by the large Federal dollars to help both the tenants and the community, as well as rebuild housing.

I am very pleased to see $90 million in second-round empowerment zones, some of the most important tools to reinvest and rebuild our communities. Veterans have been funded, and we are appreciative for what this legislation has done to fund the necessary needs of our veterans.

NASA is funded at $14.3 billion. But, as well, we have $6 billion for aeronautics, science and technology.

I am very delighted, as well, that there are dollars in this bill that will help provide supportive assistance for those seeking housing, affordable housing. And, as well, I am very grateful for the EDI grants to several of the nonprofits in my area, a multiculture center that encourages Hispanic culture and, as well, a million-dollar grant that I am very pleased to have support that is initiated by Senator HUTCHINSON for the Freedmans Town African American Museum.

This is a bill that responds to America's needs both in housing and as well as in economic development. As it relates to homeless individuals, of which I worked on as a member of the Houston City Council and continue to work on, I am very delighted that the homeless dollars now include assistance that will be coordinated with mainstream health, social services, employment programs which the homeless populations may be eligible for, including Medicaid, State children's health insurance, temporary assistance for needy families.

This bill, Mr. Speaker, is a bill that answers to the needs of the American people. It certainly is a bill that all of us have worked on with the chairman and the ranking member. I thank them again for their very hard work. I look forward to our community doing better because this legislation passes.

Ms. PRYCE of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I am very pleased to yield such time as he may consume to my distinguished colleague, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. GOSS), the vice-chairman of the Committee on Rules.

(Mr. GOSS asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GOSS. Mr. Speaker, I thank my good friend, the gentlewoman from Ohio (Ms. PRYCE), for yielding me the time. She brings credit and strength to our leadership and to our Committee on Rules.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of this rule, which provides for orderly consideration of the VA–HUD Appropriations Conference Report. It is a standard rule for an appropriations conference report, and it deserves the support of every Member of the House.

In the wake of the tragic attack on the U.S.S. Cole, which we sadly all know about, Americans are painfully and necessarily reminded again of the great sacrifices our servicemen and servicewomen make to protect our interests and the interests of all Americans at home and abroad.

Presently we are living in what I call ''blue sky times,'' an era of peace and prosperity. But, tragically, it is only relative peace. The recent tragedy is a sharp reminder of the sacrifices and risks our soldiers and sailors and airmen are confronted with day in and day out as they go about their business.

We must remember and emphasize that veterans made a selfless promise to defend and protect our country too. Now it is time that we deliver to them on the promises made about the security and comfort of adequate health care and benefits.

H.R. 4635 is a vehicle to help us accomplish that goal. This bill provides $20.3 billion to fully fund medical health care for veterans. That is a $1.36 billion increase over last year, and I am proud of that.

My home State of Florida has the second largest population of veterans in the country. I can tell my colleagues from firsthand experience talking with many of them and visiting clinics that these funds are greatly needed in our clinics and hospitals.

In addition, H.R. 4635 increases veterans medical and prosthetic research by $30 million, more than the President's request.

For veterans wounded in the line of duty, new technology resulting from these funds may mean the difference between being wheelchair bound and being able to walk. What a wonderful thought.

Finally, the conference report provides an extra $73 million to the Veterans Benefits Administration to expedite claims processing. This money would help alleviate some of the red tape associated with benefits claims. Moving vets out of the long lines and into programs for services will be provided timely.

Congress has made meaningful progress this year on providing for our veterans. Most notably, of course, is this year's defense authorization bill that keeps the promise of lifetime health care to military retirees. We build on those achievements by providing veterans expanded care and benefits as well today in this legislation.

I urge my colleagues to illustrate and underscore their dedication to our veterans by supporting passage of this bill and supporting this rule.

Ms. PRYCE of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 4 minutes to my distinguished colleague, the gentleman from the State of California (Mr. CUNNINGHAM).

Mr. CUNNINGHAM. Mr. Speaker, I thank my friends, the gentleman from New York (Chairman WALSH) and the gentleman from West Virginia (Mr. MOLLOHAN), for their efforts on this bill, and also the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. STUMP), the subcommittee chairman. And what a good job that they have done.

Veterans health care, when we add $1.7 billion last year and add $1.36 billion this year over last year's, it is a slight commitment to show that the veterans are important. The medical research in this bill, one may say, why do we have medical research in a veterans bill? Well, all the way back from World War II, veterans that had nuclear reactions from the bombs where we put our people in harm's way, from the Desert Storm Syndrome to Agent Orange to anthrax shots, and for example, how does anthrax shots, with more and more women in our military, affect a woman who may have a child? That medical research is very, very important within the military.

I would specifically like to thank the gentleman from Illinois (Speaker HASTERT), the gentleman from Texas (Mr. ARMEY), and the gentleman from Texas (Mr. DELAY). There is an issue that I have been working on since 1991, and quite often when there has been a promise given by someone like General MacArthur and the President of the United States almost 60 years ago, it is difficult to get that priority in a bill. We have been able to do that with our leadership's help.

The issue is this provides help for thousands of Filipino American veterans across the Nation. The language in the bill provides full dependency and indemnity compensation benefits so long denied for those who fought alongside our troops in World War II. Despite the fact that many of these valiant soldiers suffered the same casualties and wounds fighting with U.S. forces that our own troops did, they have until now received only 50 percent of the disability benefits. This bill changes that to 100 percent.

In addition, the bill insures full VA medical coverage for those Filipino-American World War II veterans who are already being treated in VA facilities for their service-connected disability. Currently Filipino-American veterans may not receive care for any condition except specific to their service-connected disability. This bill changes that as well.

While seemingly limited extensions of benefits, they are extremely significant to over 1,200 qualifying veterans who are living on fixed incomes. Many of these veterans are in their 70s and 80s, at a time in their lives where health care access is as critical as ever. With so few Filipino-American veterans surviving, numbers decreasing annually, the time to ensure those benefits is now. That is why I thank our leadership and the gentleman from New York (Mr. WALSH) and the gentleman from West Virginia (Mr. MOLLOHAN) for adding this into this important bill.

As one who championed the cause for Filipino Americans working with President Ramos in the Philippines first and then working with President Estrada, and the hundreds of both Filipino Americans and Filipino nationals that came all the way from the Philippines to work this initiative, let it be known that their efforts have carried through and helped this.

This action has the full support of the larger veterans community and it has been endorsed by every single one.

There are a couple of things that I would like to see in the next veterans bill, though, that I would like to work with colleagues on that side. I have hundreds of veterans that come up every year and say they have lost their medical records. Either they were burned in a fire or they were lost because of the old filing system. We need to duplicate those records.

We also need to increase the amount again of veterans' benefits, and I want to thank the chairman. I specifically want to thank the gentleman from California (Mr. BILBRAY), who championed this bill, worked with our leadership, caused it to be effective. Without his support, we would not have this Filipino veterans' initiative.

Ms. PRYCE of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to my distinguished colleague, the gentleman from Montana (Mr. HILL).

Mr. HILL of Montana. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman from Ohio (Ms. PRYCE) for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, I reluctantly rise in opposition to this rule. There are many provisions of this bill that I support. I have been a strong advocate for veterans' health care and for energy and water projects. However, the original energy and water bill as passed by the House of Representatives included a very important provision for my State and other Upper Missouri River States. It would have allowed us to preserve the spring water runoff that occurs in our States.

Now, the Clinton-Gore administration wants to force these Upper Missouri River States to increase the spring discharges from our reservoirs. My State is a very arid State and it happens to be also the home of the headwaters of the Missouri River. We get 50 percent of our rainfall in a 2-month period of time, which happens to be the period of time when the administration wants us to increase our discharges. We also get all of our spring snow runoff during that very short period of time.

The administration's plan, incidentally, is opposed by both the Upper Missouri and the Lower Missouri States, because it would have an adverse impact on our wildlife and have an adverse impact on our economy.

Now, retaining the water in these reservoirs is very important for us to maintain our fisheries. It is very important for us to have that water for irrigation purposes. It is very important for us to have that water for recreation purposes and for power generation at our peak-need period of time.

The original energy and water bill had a provision to bar the administration from forcing us to discharge this water, and that is why the President vetoed the bill. Now, the House, by two-thirds, voted to override the President's veto. We believe that this provision should be part of this combined VA–HUD bill or these bills should be brought separately so that we can cast our vote in opposition to this provision.

For that reason, I intend to vote against the rule and would urge others to do the same.

It is very important to my State. It is very important to the other Upper Missouri States. It is very important to the Lower Missouri States. I am going to ask for a recorded vote on the rule so that we can make clear our position on this.

Mr. MOAKLEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Ms. PRYCE of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I sympathize with my colleague, the gentleman from Montana (Mr. HILL), but it is very important for the Members of this body to realize that we must get our work done. The President vetoed the bill with that important language in it, and so we must proceed without it. In light of that, this is a good conference report, irrespective. It responds to the needs of our veterans, protects our environment and keeps the U.S. at the forefront of space exploration, addresses our Nation's critical housing needs and helps more Americans realize the dream of owning their own home. Adopting this rule will allow us to consider all of those important initiatives.

I urge a yes vote on the rule and the conference report.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. LATOURETTE). Without objection, the previous question is ordered on the resolution.

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the resolution.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. HILL of Montana. Mr. Speaker, I object to the vote on the ground that a quorum is not present and make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Evidently a quorum is not present.

The Sergeant at Arms will notify absent Members.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. WALSH. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on H.R. 4635, and that I may include tabular and extraneous material.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

There was no objection.

CONFERENCE REPORT ON H.R. 4635, DEPARTMENTS OF VETERANS AFFAIRS AND HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT, AND INDEPENDENT AGENCIES APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 2001

Mr. WALSH. Mr. Speaker, pursuant to the rule just adopted, I call up the conference report on the bill (H.R. 4635) making appropriations for the Departments of Veterans Affairs and Housing and Urban Development, and for sundry independent agencies, boards, commissions, corporations, and offices for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2001, and for other purposes.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. LATOURETTE). Pursuant to House Resolution 638, the conference report is considered as having been read.

(For conference report and statement, see proceedings of the House of October 18, 2000, at page H10083.)

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from New York (Mr. WALSH) and the gentleman from West Virginia (Mr. MOLLOHAN) each will control 30 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New York (Mr. WALSH).

Mr. WALSH. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, it is my pleasure to bring before the full House of Representatives the conference report on H.R. 4635, making fiscal year 2001 appropriations for the Departments of Veterans Affairs and Housing and Urban Development, and Independent Agencies. So that we can move as quickly as possible, I will keep my comments brief.

This conference report was developed after difficult and somewhat prolonged discussions with our counterparts in the Senate as well as representatives of the administration.

While there are some parts of this bill that I frankly would like to have done differently, it is in the aggregate, a very good bipartisan bill that will serve the American people well.

Let me mention just a few highlights that illustrate this point. The bill fully funds veterans' medical care, with a $1.355 billion increase over last year's record level and provides increased funding for medical research, major construction, and cemetery administration operations.

Just as important, we have begun an effort to conduct better oversight of how much medical care funding goes for medical care per se and how much goes to maintaining buildings and facilities.

All veterans, no matter where they are located, deserve the best facilities we can provide. Expiring section 8 contracts at HUD are fully funded, and we have included language to push the Department to do a better, faster job getting these funds out of Washington to the people who need them the most.

In addition, funds have been added to provide an additional 79,000 new housing vouchers.

Mr. Speaker, we have fully funded the Community Development Block Grant entitlement programs and have fully funded all other HUD programs.

AmeriCorps has been funded at $453.5 million, less than the budget request, but a slight increase over the fiscal year 2000 funding level.

EPA's core operating programs have been fully funded while the various State grant programs, which assist States in implementing the Federal laws, have been more than fully funded.

The Clean Water State Revolving Program, gutted in the budget request, has been restored to $1.35 billion, while State and local air grants and section 319 non-point source pollution grants have been increased significantly.

Perhaps most important, we have proposed over $172 million, an increase of $57 million over last year's, for section 106 pollution control grants. These grants offer the States the maximum flexibility to deal with the difficult TMDL issues facing the States.

CDFI, one of the President's new programs, has been provided $118 million dollars, an increase over last year's funding level because, after a rocky start, this program is working very well and deserves our support.

Mr. Speaker, likewise, the Neighborhood Reinvestment Corporation, perhaps the most productive and most efficient Federal organization dealing with housing, has been provided their full funding level of $90 million. Again, they have earned and deserve our support.

National Science Foundation has received an increase of nearly $530 million over last year, putting them well over $4.4 billion, their largest budget ever. There is proud bipartisan support for fully funding the NSF.

Similarly, NASA received an increase over last year of nearly $683 million. Their first substantial increase in several years.

Before I complete my comments, Mr. Speaker, I think it is important to set the record straight with regard to language contained in the Statement of Managers concerning the dredging issue. The Statement contains a direction to EPA to take no action to initiate or order the use of dredging, capping, or other invasive remedial technologies for contaminated sediments until the report from the National Academy of Sciences is completed and its findings properly considered by the Agency.

The conferees have encouraged the National Academy of Sciences to issue a final report by the end of this year, and the Agency should promptly review that report and determine how to appropriately incorporate its recommendations into their remedy selection process.

Mr. Speaker, this direction is similar to language that was contained in the Statement of Managers for fiscal year 1999 and 2000 bills. I am frankly disappointed that the EPA has apparently chosen to ignore this direction in several cases during the past year.

The Agency appears to be relying on a misinterpretation of this direction, one that allows any business-as-usual EPA decision that dredging or capping is an appropriate remedy to qualify as an exception.

In each year, starting with the 1999 bill, the conferees have provided specific exceptions to this direction, primarily limited to cases where a significant threat to public health requires urgent, time-critical response. None of the dredging or capping projects undertaken during this fiscal year meets this test, yet each poses substantial risks to the environment of the kind under study by the NAS. EPA is expected to correct this misinterpretation as it complies with the direction in this bill's Statement of Managers.

The direction in this year's Statement of Managers does not apply to cases where a final plan selecting dredging or other invasive remedial technology has been adopted prior to October 1 of this year or, in cases not requiring adoption of a final plan, where authorized activities involving dredging or invasive remedial technologies are now occurring.

In any such case, such as a pilot or a demonstration, review of the NAS report and consideration of its findings would be required before adoption of a final plan involving dredging, capping or other invasive remedial activity.

Turning briefly to another issue. The conferees included language in last year's Statement of Managers accompanying the conference report regarding a proposed rule to implement new, affordable housing goals for the housing government-sponsored entities, the GSEs: Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac.

These goals are currently being finalized. I would like to reiterate the direction of the fiscal year 2000 Statement of Managers which encouraged HUD to craft a final rule that ensures regulatory parity for all of the GSEs, including the present composition of their overall portfolio and relative size of multifamily portfolio.

Finally, Mr. Speaker, a question has been raised regarding direction of EPA in the Statement of Managers regarding the Agency's issuing of new guidelines with respect to the TMDL program. This direction to the Agency is simply intended to prevent EPA regions or headquarters from issuing new rules or guidelines which are based on the new TMDL rule which cannot by law be implemented before October 1, 2001. Other rules or guidelines relative to the TMDL program which are not based on the rule may still be issued by the Agency.

Mr. Speaker, I have to say that it would have been very difficult to get this bill this far without the support and assistance of the gentleman from West Virginia (Mr. MOLLOHAN), my ranking member friend, who brings a great deal of knowledge and foresight to this bill, and the rest of this very hard-working subcommittee.

I truly appreciate all of these Members. I also wish to thank our counterparts in the Senate, specifically, Senator BOND and Senator MIKULSKI. They are both very tough negotiators but are also able to come to fair and equitable agreements.

I would be remiss if I did not mention the forthright and I think good-faith negotiations we had with the White House. There has been a lot of skepticism between the legislative and executive branch over the past number of years; but in my experience, I think they have always been fair, tough, but willing to compromise on all of these issues. And we would not have resolved these issues especially on the environment, had they not given some ground. We had to give ground; they gave some ground. But I think the conclusion is that this is a good, fair bill that everybody can say they took something home.

Mr. Speaker, while we do not always agree on issues, every effort has been made on both sides to continue this subcommittee's strong history of bipartisan cooperation in crafting this bill. I truly appreciate the help of each of these individuals and our close working relationship.

I would also be remiss if I did not mention the hard work of our staffs, both personal staffs and appropriation committee staff; these are professionals. Their goal is to provide us with the information and the resources we need to craft a good bill to make sure that throughout the negotiation that everybody is kept abreast of the changes, and that, to the best of our ability, to the best of their ability, they get the bill done on time, which requires mountains and mountains of paperwork. So I sincerely thank them all again.

Mr. Speaker, that in a nutshell is the fiscal year 2001 VA, HUD and Independent Agencies bill, which, as my colleagues know, has also been joined in this process with the Energy and Water bill; and I expect we will hear from the gentleman from California (Mr. PACKARD) and his ranking member.

This is a good bill. It is a fair bill, with solid policy direction while remaining fiscally responsible. We are still $2.4 billion under the President's request, which I think in the environment that we have negotiated in is remarkable. We are informed that it will be supported by the President when it arrives on his desk, and I strongly encourage the support of this body in moving this measure forward to its completion.

Mr. Speaker, I include the following for the RECORD:

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MOLLOHAN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of the conference report. I am pleased to report that the report before us today represents a major improvement over the bill that left the House with far better funding levels. It was worked out through a lengthy and constructive process involving both sides of the aisle and both sides of the Capitol. I believe that the resulting conference report is worthy of the support of this House, and we have been advised that the President will sign it.

Let me briefly describe some of the highlights. Mr. Speaker. First, the conference report provides the full $1.3 billion increase proposed in the President's budget for veterans' health care. It also includes a $30 million increase for VA medical and prosthetic research and a $10 million increase for grants for construction of State extended care facilities.

Finally, Mr. Speaker, in the veterans area, I am also very glad to report that we were able to remedy a long-standing injustice affecting former residents of the Philippines who served with the U.S. Armed Forces during World War II. Under current law, these Filipino veterans receive just half the benefits paid to American veterans even if they live in the United States as U.S. citizens or permanent residents.

Under this conference report, these Filipino veterans living in this country will receive the same benefits as other World War II veterans.

Science funding is strongly supported with a 14 percent increase for the National Science Foundation.

For NASA, the conference report includes a 5 percent funding increase, providing $250 million above the President's budget request.

Within the HUD budget, we provide the full amount needed to renew all expiring section 8 housing contracts so that no one loses their housing assistance under this program, and the agreement also provides increases for several other high priority housing programs, including a 13 percent increase for home grants to States and local governments for affordable housing development, a 4 percent increase in CDBG formula grants and a 9 percent increase for housing for the elderly and disabled and a 10 percent increase for homeless assistance grants.

While on the subject of assistance for those in acute need, I should also mention the $30 million increase in funding provided for FEMA's emergency food and shelter program, a very efficient program that relies on private, charitable organizations to get help to where it is most needed.

The conference report also funds another 79,000 new Section 8 housing assistance vouchers to help make a reduction in unmet needs for housing assistance. This is 41,000 fewer new vouchers than sought by President Clinton, but 19,000 more than were added last year. We look forward to working with HUD to ensure full utilization of Section 8 vouchers.

The impressive commitment to housing programs in this bill, Mr. Speaker, is a testament to the strong advocacy of HUD Secretary Andrew Cuomo, who has worked tirelessly for those who benefit from these housing programs.

The bill also includes generous funding for activities for the Environmental Protection Agency. The $7.8 billion provided in the final agreement represents a $664 million increase over the amount requested by the President, and $395 million over last year. A total of $3.6 billion is provided for important clean water and sewer projects under the State and territorial assistance grants program.

In addition to the funding provided, the conference report has eliminated or significantly modified a number of environmental riders. All of these changes have been accepted by the White House. As Members know, the House bill did not provide any money for the Corporation for National and Community Service, including the President's signature AmeriCorps program. The final package which we present today provides $464 million for the Corporation, $70 million below the budget request, but an increase of $25 million over fiscal year 2000.

I should also note that this conference report is being used as a vehicle to send back to the President the energy and water appropriations bill, this time without the provision that led to the veto. We are pleased to be able to be of assistance in bringing that part of the appropriations process to a successful conclusion, and I will defer to the leaders of that subcommittee for an explanation of the details of the package being presented here today.

In closing, Mr. Speaker, I would like to extend my sincere appreciation to the gentleman from New York (Chairman WALSH) for his leadership and cooperation in fashioning this conference report. He has done a tremendous job. He has been a good friend throughout this process, and very responsive to minority concerns. We appreciate that, and thank him for his commitment to trying to do the right thing by all of the important programs and agencies under our jurisdiction. It has been a pleasure working with him and his hard-working staff, including Frank Cushing, Tim Peterson, Valerie Baldwin, Dena Baron, and Jennifer Whitson, from the professional staff; and from the chairman's personal staff, John Simmons and Ron Anderson.

Mr. Speaker, I especially want to thank the talented staff on this side of the aisle, David Reich and Mike Stephens from the minority appropriations office, and Lee Alman and Gavin Clingham from my personal staff.

I want to thank, Mr. Speaker, especially the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY), our ranking member on the full committee, for all of his outstanding assistance and support throughout this process. He is a tireless leader of the Committee on Appropriations on our side of the aisle, and he has been extremely active in marking up this bill and throughout the process.

Finally, in closing, Mr. Speaker, we have four very capable, hard-working Democratic Members on this subcommittee: the gentlewoman from Ohio (Ms. KAPTUR), the gentlewoman from Florida (Mrs. MEEK), the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. PRICE), and the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. CRAMER).

Each of these Members have spent many hours working on this bill. It bears their input in so many places, and I am extremely appreciative for the contribution that each has made, and for their support throughout the process.

In summary, Mr. Speaker, this is an excellent conference report.

Mr. WALSH. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from California (Mr. PACKARD), chairman of the Subcommittee on Energy and Water Development with whom, in this venture, we are partners.

(Mr. PACKARD asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. PACKARD. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding time to me.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of this conference report and the conference agreement on H.R. 4635, and as my colleagues, both the chairman and the ranking member, have mentioned, this conference agreement will also enact the provisions of H.R. 5483, which I introduced yesterday, and is a modified version of the fiscal year 2001 energy and water development appropriations act that was vetoed by the President on October 7.

Members will recall that the President vetoed the bill over a provision regarding the management of the Missouri River that he had signed into law on four previous occasions. On October 11, the House voted to override the President's veto, and I want to thank my colleagues who supported on a bipartisan basis that override vote.

Unfortunately, the Senate did not believe it could override the votes. Either they did not have the vote or they elected not to take it up. Therefore, in order to move the process forward and to get this conference report passed, we have removed the provision that the President objected to regarding the Missouri River.

In cooperation with the Senate, we made a few other modest and minor changes in the bill, but I wish to assure my colleagues that we did not reduce or delete funding for any programs or projects that were included in the conference agreement that was previously agreed to and passed on the floor of the House.

Mr. Speaker, I include for the RECORD this table, which outlines the various provisions of the energy and water development bill.

The table referred to is as follows:

Mr. PACKARD. Mr. Speaker, I want to again thank the ranking member, the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. VISCLOSKY), for his help in putting these changes together.

I express my appreciation to the leadership of the House, and particularly of the Committee on Appropriations that has crafted this joint effort to join these two conference reports together, so we can move the process forward. I will ask all of my colleagues to support this conference report.

Mr. MOLLOHAN. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the distinguished gentleman from Indiana (Mr. VISCLOSKY), the ranking member on the Subcommittee on Energy and Water Development.

Mr. VISCLOSKY. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding time to me.

Mr. Speaker, I rise for two purposes. The first is to add my voice to that of the gentleman from California (Chairman PACKARD) and to acknowledge to my colleagues that there is an agreement as far as the changes that were made on energy and water. It obviously is now included in part of the underlying legislation. I would ask for their support.

The second point I would make is that I believe that the bill relative to the Veterans Administration, Housing, Urban Development, and Related Agencies also deserves our support, and will congratulate the gentleman from New York (Mr. WALSH), as well as the gentleman from West Virginia (Mr. MOLLOHAN), for their work.

Again, I do urge my colleagues to support this legislation.

Mr. WALSH. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as she may consume to the distinguished gentlewoman from Florida (Mrs. FOWLER).

Mrs. FOWLER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding time to me.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to engage in a colloquy on a provision in the conference agreement relating to the definition of ''urban county'' under Federal housing law.

As the chairman knows, the community development block grant, CDBG, program's statutory provisions relating to the urban county classification do not contemplate the form of consolidated city-county government found in Duval County, Florida, which encompasses my city of Jacksonville, where there is no unincorporated area.

A recent decision by the Bureau of the Census and subsequently by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development has questioned the status of Jacksonville/Duval County as an entitlement area.

Mr. WALSH. Mr. Speaker, will the gentlewoman yield?

Mrs. FOWLER. I yield to the gentleman from New York.

Mr. WALSH. Mr. Speaker, I am aware of this problem facing the city of Jacksonville.

Mrs. FOWLER. My purpose for entering into this colloquy is to seek clarification from the chairman about the effect of the provision adopted by the Conference Committee to amend the definition of ''urban county'' to address this problem facing Jacksonville.

Is it the chairman's understanding that section 217 of the conference report addresses the concerns of the town of Baldwin, Jacksonville, and the Beaches communities, by amending current law to classify Jacksonville as an urban county, and that the language would preserve the area's longstanding status as an entitlement area for CDBG grants, while also allowing the town of Baldwin to elect to have its population excluded from the entitlement area?

Mr. WALSH. Yes. I believe the language clarifies that Jacksonville/Duval County meets the definition of an urban county under the statute, as amended. HUD also agrees with this interpretation.

Mrs. FOWLER. I thank the chairman for his comments.

Mr. WALSH. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MOLLOHAN. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the distinguished gentlewoman from Florida (Mrs. MEEK), a hard-working member of the subcommittee.

Mrs. MEEK of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I thank the ranking member for yielding time to me.

Mr. Speaker, this is a great opportunity for me to express my feelings about our subcommittee, our chairman, and our ranking member and the staff, as well as the full committee.

This has been an exercise in good bipartisanship of working together to reach a goal that will benefit the people of this country and improve the quality of their lives, so this is an experience.

The conference report should be voted on positively by every Member of this body. A great deal of work has gone into it, quite a bit of negotiating, and that is what it should be in this body. I am happy to see that the community development block grant program is funded at $5.1 million, $157 million above the President's request, and $257 million more than last year.

This is a signal that this committee has looked at low-income and moderate-income people to certainly help them to improve the quality of their lives.

EPA also had an increase, $529 million for NSF, and $683 million for NASA. I will not go into all of these details, Mr. Speaker, but the Congress needs to realize I think that this is one of the few times that the committee funded everything. All of the agencies and all of the programs that merited their funding they did fund. We will not find programs in this particular conference report for people who need it and did not get it.

We could have more money in the conference report for Section 8 housing, but they did a good job of that under the circumstances.

One thing about the chairman and the ranking member, they are very fair people, very fair. Once they promise us something in terms of one's districts, in terms of the people, they come through with it. So I am happy to see they put 79,000 new Section 8 vouchers. They did the best they could, and I thank them for that.

I am particularly proud, Mr. Speaker, of what the committee did for housing and seniors. That program represents a very dire need for better housing. This conference report took this into consideration and provided considerable new support for housing.

The conference agreement appropriated $996 million to develop housing for the elderly and the disabled, $85 million more than last year. That is a considerable rise or increase in this program. Capital grants for construction, for rehab and acquisition for the elderly under the section 202 program, the measure provides $779 million more than last year.

I guess what I am saying, Mr. Speaker, this conference report reflects a unanimous effort to aid people in this country, and I think we should thank the committee.

Mr. WALSH. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. TAYLOR), the chairman of the Subcommittee on Legislative of the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. TAYLOR of North Carolina. Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the chairman for the tremendous work that he and the members of the subcommittee have done this year in preparing the conference report for the House consideration.

As many of our colleagues may know, the subcommittee's initial allocation made the gentleman's task especially difficult this year, but the conference report we are considering today is truly an affirmation of the gentleman's commitment and this House's commitment to our Nation's veterans, and I thank the gentleman for his work.

As my colleagues know, the 11th District of North Carolina, which I have the privilege to represent, has one of the largest numbers of senior veterans in the country. My constituents have served the United States in every war, and especially World War II to the Persian Gulf. Many of them now are needing assistance from our veterans hospital. They get their good assistance from the VA Medical Center at Oteen, but we are experiencing a growing health problem among the veterans of the Western North Carolina region. Alzheimer's disease is certainly impacting our area.

The Asheville Center has proposed the creation of a unit devoted to the diagnosis and treatment of dementia-related illness as part of the fiscal year 2001 budget. This project has been included as a priority by the network in its most recent planning submission to the Department of Veterans Affairs. I will be working with the Department to secure funds for the staffing needs for the dementia unit in the upcoming year.

I want to bring the project to the attention of the gentleman from New York (Mr. WALSH) and ask for the support of the subcommittee and the House in making the much-needed project a reality for the senior veterans of western North Carolina.

Mr. WALSH. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. TAYLOR) for bringing the project to the subcommittee's attention. I know that improving and expanding the Asheville VA Medical Center has been the highest priority for him and the veterans of his district for many, many years.

I am also aware that Alzheimer's disease and other dementia-related illnesses are a growing problem for veterans in western North Carolina and throughout the Nation. I would be happy to work with the gentleman from North Carolina in bringing the important project to the Department's attention and in helping the Asheville VA Medical Center as it moves forward with it.

Mr. TAYLOR of North Carolina. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from New York (Chairman WALSH) for his assistance.

Mr. MOLLOHAN. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. BENTSEN).

(Mr. BENTSEN asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BENTSEN. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of the conference report on H.R. 4635, the Fiscal Year 2001 Departments of Veterans Affairs, Housing and Urban Development and Independent Agencies Appropriations bill.

In particular, I want to commend the chairman and the ranking member for the work they did on fully funding the NASA budget as it relates to the International Space Station and the Space Shuttle program, and particularly with reference to the fact that the conference report includes $3 million for the planning and design of the Bioastronautics Project.

The bill will provide the initial funding for the construction of a research facility located at the Johnson Space Center to examine the health effects of microgravity on long-term space flight. It will be undertaken with the Human Space Flight Program along with the National Space and Biomedical Research Institute located at Baylor College of Medicine in my district.

I appreciate the gentleman from New York (Chairman WALSH) and the gentleman from West Virginia (Mr. MOLLOHAN), ranking member, for putting this in, as well as the distinguished gentleman from Texas (Mr. DELAY), the majority whip.

Mr. WALSH. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN), vice-chairman of the subcommittee.

(Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of the VA–HUD appropriations conference report. I want to thank the gentleman from New York (Chairman WALSH) for his leadership, the gentleman from West Virginia (Mr. MOLLOHAN) for his leadership, and the great work of the staff in meeting the many priorities that we all want included in the bill.

Most importantly, Mr. Speaker, the bill increases funding for veterans' medical care, as has been said earlier, by $1.35 billion over last year's level for a total 2-year increase of $3 billion. This is absolutely critical funding that will be used to provide our veterans with nursing home care, treatment for serious mental illnesses, prescription drugs, routine medical care, and other badly needed services.

One way the money can be used next year will be to provide each of the 22 Veterans Integrated Service Networks, or VISNs, with a higher rate of reimbursement for treating veterans with the hepatitis C virus. This may not be on everybody's radar screen, but the disabling disease of the liver affects a large number of veterans, especially those of the Vietnam era. The treatment for the disease is costing an average of $15,000 a year for medications alone. Yet the VA only reimburses VISNs at the low, basic-care rate of $3,200.

As a result of language contained in the conference report, this will now change. At the Chair's insistence and my assistance and the committee members, we are now directing the VA to reimburse the VISNs for hepatitis C at the higher, complex-care rate of $42,000 per patient being treated for the disease.

I particularly would like, Mr. Speaker, to thank the Vietnam Veterans of America for their strong advocacy on the matter.

Lastly, Mr. Speaker, I am especially pleased that the conference report provides additional funding for affordable housing for all Americans, especially older Americans and disabled individuals under section 202 and section 811.

Mr. MOLLOHAN. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the distinguished gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY), our ranking minority member.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, I am going to vote for the conference report. I think that, after being lost in wonderland territory for over 8 months, that the committee has finally been allowed to be realistic in terms of what our housing needs are, what our scientific research needs are, and what some other basic needs are that are funded by the bill.

I also want to congratulate the members on the other subcommittee in the Subcommittee on Energy and Water Development for the work that they have done. I must confess some disquiet in supporting that portion of the conference report, not because I object to the work done by the subcommittee, but because we are proceeding in a very strange way. Because of that fact, we are in a situation where we are going to be voting almost $900 million more than the President requested for that bill without having any knowledge of how much we are going to be allowed to provide for what I consider to be even more critical programs such as education and health care.

We have been stymied here for months, frankly, over the resistance of the majority party leadership to provide the same kind of financial largesse for education that we are providing in the Energy and Water bill for the Army Corps of Engineers or in some of the other bills that have gone through the place.

I would simply say I congratulate everyone for the work they have done on these bills. It is not their fault that the bills are being considered in the context. I want to make that clear. But I do object to having to vote for the kind of package without knowing what the plans are in the end to meet what ought to be the number one priority in the country, education.

Mr. WALSH. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from New York (Mr. GILMAN), the distinguished chairman of the Committee on International Relations.

Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today to engage in a colloquy with the gentleman from New York (Mr. WALSH), chairman of the Subcommittee on VA, HUD and Independent Agencies of the Committee on Appropriations.

As the gentleman is aware, our New York State Department of Health recently released its findings from its Cancer Surveillance Improvement Initiative. That report disclosed that Rockland County in my area of New York State and the East Side of Manhattan are among the highest breast cancer incidence in the States.

Specifically, the report shows that a majority of these two areas are characterized by elevated incidence and are 15 to 50 percent higher than the State average for breast cancer incidence.

In response to this alarming finding, I have been working with the gentlewoman from Manhattan, New York (Mrs. MALONEY), to secure funding from the EPA for the NYU School of Medicine to conduct an assessment to determine if the observed excess incidence of breast cancer in Rockland County and on the East Side of Manhattan are associated with air pollution and electromagnetic radiation generated from local power plants.

Mr. WALSH. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. GILMAN. I am pleased to yield to the gentleman from New York.

Mr. WALSH. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from New York (Mr. GILMAN) for the work that he has done on this important issue and bringing it to the subcommittee's attention. I share his concern for the findings in the New York State Department of Health's report, which show the high incidence of breast cancer in Rockland County and also on the East Side of Manhattan Island.

I want to assure the gentleman from New York (Mr. GILMAN) that I will work with him and with the gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. MALONEY) to find the best source of funding for the important research project in next year's appropriations bill.

Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the gentleman from New York (Chairman WALSH) for his support.

Mrs. MALONEY of New York. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. GILMAN. I am pleased to yield to the gentlewoman from New York.

Mrs. MALONEY of New York. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from New York (Mr. GILMAN) for his efforts in working with me to secure the funding for the project. I also want to thank the gentleman from New York (Mr. WALSH), chairman of the Subcommittee on VA, HUD and Independent Agencies, and the gentleman from West Virginia (Mr. MOLLOHAN), ranking member, for their commitment to work with us to secure funding for this important project next year.

Mr. WALSH. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Michigan (Mr. KNOLLENBERG), a hard-working member of the subcommittee.

Mr. KNOLLENBERG. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from New York (Chairman WALSH) for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in full support of the conference report. I want to thank the gentleman from New York (Chairman WALSH) and certainly the gentleman from West Virginia (Mr. MOLLOHAN), the ranking member, Frank Cushing, the staff, all of the staff for their great work in bringing about an outstanding conference report. None of this would have happened without extraordinary work, a lot of hours. I know there have been many long hours, so I salute all of them for that great amount of effort and great contribution.

This conference report responsibly provides a $1.3 billion increase for Veterans' Medical Health Care, a critical $30 million increase for Veterans' Medical and Prosthetics Research and responsible increases in the research-intensive agencies NASA and NSF. I am pleased that these and other funding priorities are in this bill and will be signed into law when this conference report lands on the President's desk.

The 2001 VA–HUD bill is a fair bill produced under most difficult circumstances. In fact, this 2001 Energy and Water spending bill, under the stewardship of the gentleman from California (Mr. PACKARD) and the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. VISCLOSKY), has been attached to this conference report. I am pleased that it, too, will be signed into law. This package holds the line on spending in a prudent manner and allows us to pay down the debt.

The gentleman from New York (Chairman WALSH) is to be saluted for crafting this piece of legislation under those very difficult circumstances, and I think he and the gentleman from West Virginia (Mr. MOLLOHAN) have worked with our colleagues and certainly the colleagues in the other body to forge a fiscally responsible bill in a bipartisan spirit.

This has been an unusual process this year because the other body did not consider the VA–HUD bill on the floor. Yet, it was negotiated in a bipartisan way with the White House fully engaged, and I am aware of no objections to this conference report.

Mr. Speaker, the conference report is the fruit of all their labors, and I urge its adoption.

Mr. WALSH. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from New York (Mr. SWEENEY).

Mr. SWEENEY. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from New York (Mr. WALSH) for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to thank the gentleman from New York (Mr. WALSH) for his thorough and responsible work, and let him know that I appreciate his assistance over the past months to address an important and divisive issue in my congressional district; that is, our national policy on contaminated sediments and specifically EPA's policies on contaminated sediments in the Hudson River.

At this point, EPA is poised to propose a massive environmental dredging project that would drastically affect both the ecology of the Upper Hudson River and the economies of those communities along its banks. This is a decision that has many of those communities rightly concerned about the long-term impacts of any such project and the scientific basis for it.

I recognize, Mr. Speaker, there are strong feelings on both sides of this issue and that the common interest is to see that remediation of the environmental damage to this river is accomplished. What we need at this point is to mitigate the contention and let sound science direct the decision making, and I believe the statement of the managers at this time will do that because it expressly directs the EPA to take no action to initiate or order the use of dredging until the National Academy of Science report has been completed and its findings have been properly considered by the agency. These instructions and the statement of managers are clear, and I expect the EPA to abide by the language.

Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the chairman's earlier statements to clarify the intent of the language in the Statement of Managers, which is similar to language included in this year's spending bill, and also for the past 2 years. As in past years, exceptions have been made for voluntary agreements and urgent cases.

The NAS will soon deliver a comprehensive report on the risks associated with various methods of addressing contaminated sediments, including: dredging, capping, source control, natural recovery, and disposal of contaminated sediments. I want to point out that this information by the NAS will be really the first time that other alternatives to dredging have been seriously considered.

On behalf of the constituents of the 22nd Congressional District, I want to thank the gentleman from New York (Mr. WALSH) for persevering and staying with us on this, because we need to ensure public confidence, and I want to thank him again for his earlier comments which do clarify.

Mr. WALSH. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. UPTON).

Mr. UPTON. Mr. Speaker, I wish to engage in a brief colloquy with the fine chairman of the subcommittee, the gentleman from New York (Mr. WALSH).

I note in the conference report there are two line items through EPA which will help improve the environmental quality of the Kalamazoo River Watershed in southwestern Michigan. One such provision is directed to Western Michigan University's Environmental Research Institute; the other is directed to Calhoun County, Michigan.

I would like to clarify that the line item with respect to Calhoun County would be solely administered through Western Michigan University's Environmental Research Institute, provided that such funds are used to provide environmental quality for that portion of the Kalamazoo Watershed which is in Calhoun County, Michigan. By doing this, we will help ensure that there is no unnecessary duplication of effort in this regard.

Mr. WALSH. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. UPTON. I yield to the gentleman from New York.

Mr. WALSH. Mr. Speaker, I would simply advise the gentleman that I agree with him.

Mr. UPTON. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for his agreement.

Mr. WALSH. Mr. Speaker, can you advise us as to how much time is remaining on each side?

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. LATOURETTE). The gentleman from New York (Mr. WALSH) has 3 minutes remaining, and the gentleman from West Virginia (Mr. MOLLOHAN) has 15½ minutes remaining.

Mr. WALSH. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. COLLINS).

Mr. COLLINS. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time, and I rise in support of the VA-HUD appropriation bill.

Mr. Speaker, I recognize that this has been a challenging task to assemble this comprehensive legislation; and it is a testament to the tireless efforts of the chairman, the gentleman from New York (Mr. WALSH), and the gentleman from West Virginia (Mr. MOLLOHAN), as well as the staff of the Subcommittee on VA, HUD and Independent Agencies.

I am pleased that there is a provision in this bill that was authored by our colleague from Georgia and myself which will help and assist our communities across this country by delaying the designation of nonattainment by EPA until such time as the Supreme Court rules or until June 15 of 2001, whichever comes first.

In the interim, though, Mr. Speaker, the EPA and State environmental divisions will also continue to monitor our air, the air quality for communities, so that they can be assured that they know what is in their air. But this legislation, too, will ensure that reason and common sense is adhered to as we all work towards the common goal of improving our Nation's air quality.

I appreciate the fact that the White House did give us a consensus on this and worked with us too, and I look forward to further working with these gentlemen in subcommittee in their efforts.

Mr. MOLLOHAN. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from New York (Mr. GILMAN), the distinguished chairman of the Committee on International Relations.

(Mr. GILMAN asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to rise in strong support of this VA–HUD conference report, and I want to commend our colleague and friend, the gentleman from New York (Mr. WALSH), and the gentleman from West Virginia (Mr. MOLLOHAN) for their diligence. Their leadership has produced a conference report that is not only fiscally sound but one that provides for our Nation's veterans, for housing, and for environmental programs with the funding and tools needed to meet our important needs.

Specifically, this conference report provides over $107 billion in new budget authority for our veterans' benefits, for housing programs, and for those agencies dealing with science, space and the environment. While the bill is higher than the House-approved bill, it is nevertheless $2.3 billion less than the President's request. More importantly, though, this report includes $5.2 billion for debt reduction.

In addition, this conference report includes the provisions of H.R. 1594, the Filipino Veterans Benefits Improvement Act, which will permit the payment of full service-connected disability compensation to our Filipino veterans residing in the United States who are citizens, or who have been lawfully admitted for permanent residence; provides comprehensive health care services at VA health centers; and permits the VA outpatient clinic in the Philippines to provide Filipino veterans of the U.S. Armed Forces with comprehensive health care.

It is gratifying that the fiscal year 2001 energy and water conference report, which the House previously approved, has been included in this measure and which includes several important flood control projects in my district, including the Ramapo/Mahwah and the Saw Mill River projects at Elmsford.

Accordingly, I urge all our colleagues to fully support this important conference report.

Mr. MOLLOHAN. Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. WALSH. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume to thank the leadership for giving us the opportunity to present this bill before the House today. I think, as we have said, it is a good bill and it is a bipartisan bill. I think we have worked well together all the way along. I think the House really did a great job.

That is not to denigrate the Senate, but I think we clearly knew what our challenge was and we set out to do it. We worked together, and I think we can all be proud of this product.

Mr. UNDERWOOD. Mr. Speaker, I support H.R. 4635, particularly title V dealing with Filipino veterans benefits improvements. I commend Mr. FILNER and Mr. GILMAN for their tireless efforts on this issue and their leadership in this long struggle for Filipino veterans equity.

H.R. 4635 will correct some of the injustices inflicted on the Filipino soldiers who fought courageously under U.S. command during World War II. It will provide full compensation for service related disabilities for Filipino veterans who are living permanently and legally in the United States. These veterans would receive the full dollar amount in benefits, rather than the ''peso-rate standard'' of 50 cents to the dollar. Filipino veterans deserve full compensation like all other U.S. veterans. Today, there are about 17,000 Filipino veterans who are U.S. citizens, and about 1,250 of these currently receive Veterans Affairs compensation for service-connected disabilities. Full compensation would be a long awaited victory for them.

In addition, H.R. 4635 will expand health services to those already receiving compensation for service connected disabilities in the U.S. so that they can be seen for all medical care. To the fullest extent possible, veterans residing in the Philippines who enlisted in the U.S. Armed Forces would be able benefit from this expansion of health services as well.

The remedy of full compensation is long overdue. Filipino veterans have been waiting over 50 years to receive such benefits, after the Rescission Act of 1946 denied them promised benefits. Now they are in their late 70s and 80s and continue to fight for the equity that they rightfully deserve.

In 1941, President Franklin D. Roosevelt called and ordered all organized military forces of the Philippine government into the service of the U.S. Armed Forces under the United States Army Forces in the Far East. Under U.S. command, the Philippine Commonwealth Army and the Special Philippine Scouts fought valiantly alongside American soldiers. They participated in some of the toughest battles of World War II and helped to achieve peace in the Pacific.

Unfortunately, after the war's end, these efforts were not justly recognized. The Recission Act of 1946 deemed Filipino military service as non-active, thereby denying them the rights, privileges and benefits which every U.S. military serviceman is entitled to. H.R. 4635, by providing full compensation for service related disabilities in the full dollar amount, will bring these veterans one step closer to equity.

Filipino veterans have been fighting many years for equity. In 1990, they were allowed eligibility for citizenship in the U.S., and in 1999, Public Law 106–69 enabled Filipino American veterans of WWII to return to the Philippines and maintain 75 percent of their benefits, including Supplemental Security Income. President Clinton issued a memorandum this past July that directed the Secretary of Veterans Affairs to complete a study by October 31, 2000, of Filipino veterans and to identify options available for addressing those needs.

Therefore, I urge your support for the advancement of Filipino veterans equity. Filipino veterans fought fearlessly to achieve peace more than 50 years ago amidst the turnoil of World War II. Filipino soldiers also fought valiantly alongside American soldiers, under the command of the United States of America. They were crucial to our nation's war efforts in the Pacific. For this they deserve benefits equal to every other veteran who fought under the United States flag. I urge my colleagues to continue this fight for equity and support H.R. 4635 so that Filipino veterans will receive some of the benefits that are long overdue.

Mr. EVANS. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the conference report on the VA/HUD/Energy and Water Appropriations Act. During the 106th Congress, the Administration and Congress have significantly increased appropriations for veterans' health care. For fiscal year 2000, the administration requested a $1 billion increase in appropriations for veterans' health care and Congress eventually approved a $1.7 billion increase. This increase recognized the adverse consequences of four consecutive years of flat-line budgets for the Department of Veterans Affairs medical care system. The only increase in funding had come from a stream of non-appropriated revenues including veterans' health insurance and copayments, sharing agreements and other funds—the increase in appropriations also signaled the failure to provide adequate funding for veterans' health care from non-appropriated sources. For a number of reasons—some beyond its control—VA has not been successful obtaining the full amount of these projected revenues. For fiscal year 2001, the administration requested a $1.35 billion increase in appropriations for veterans' health care—a record administration increase in VA health care appropriations. While we have made some real progress in funding our veterans' health care, we must continue this progress in the future as VA health care is not immune to rising costs of providing health care, particularly pharmaceutical costs.

I do want to address one concern about a modification made to the House bill in the conference agreement. In this regard, I want to thank the gentleman from New York, Mr. WALSH, and the gentleman from West Virginia, Mr. MOLLOHAN for addressing concerns which the chairman of the Committee on Veterans Affairs, BOB STUMP, and I noted in our views and estimates submitted to the Budget Committee and which I later shared with them in testimony to the subcommittee. In particular, we expressed concern about a legislative proposal to return to the U.S. Treasury revenues anticipated from new resources collected using authorities in the Veterans Millennium Health and Benefits Act. I appreciate the subcommittee's rejection of that legislative proposal. When this Congress passed the millennium bill, it was clearly understood that its promise lay in allowing new funding streams, primarily from veterans' increased cost sharing, to augment VA's long-term care program. This proposal would, thus, compromise VA's funding for new long-term care programs.

The House initially rejected a proposal by the administration to return to the U.S. Treasury revenues anticipated from these new resource collection authorities. As veterans age, finding acceptable long-term care alternatives grows increasingly important to ensuring their health. Without expanding these options, VA will be forced to reduce others services it offers veterans. In conference, however, these funds were made subject to appropriation—I am hopeful that this will not mean that any additional revenues collected will be used to offset any program growth these funds might have allowed. This would constitute a real breech in the compact Congress has made with our veterans to use additional funds from their increased copayments for VA programs.

On the floor, the House added $30 million to VA's Grants for Construction of State Extended Care Facilities, bringing the total House request to $90 million. I am pleased the Senate has also seen fit to add funds to the Grants for Construction of State Extended Care account. Additional funds will ensure a smooth transition from VA's current funding methodology to an improved formula that will allow more renovation projects to be considered and ensure that veterans' needs are addressed. It will allow all of the ''grandfathered'' projects to be addressed and, thus, allow VA to determine its new priorities with a clean slate.

VA Research was also in need of additional resources. While other federal research programs have recognized significant gains in recent years, VA research has been frozen in the last four budgets. The ranking member of the VA Committee's Health Subcommittee, Mr. Gutierrez, recommended an additional $30 million for VA Research for FY 2001 in an amendment that was accepted on the House floor. These funds would allow the program to accommodate inflation and fund additional areas of interest. I understand the Senate's bill also supports this level of funding for medical research and I'm pleased that this level of funding was approved by the Conferees.

I am extremely pleased to note both House's strong support for new centers of excellence in the treatment and research of motor-neuron diseases, such as Parkinson's Disease. In fact, VA has recently shared with me an excellent proposal for six new Parkinson's centers. I had an opportunity to visit the VA Centers' prototype in San Francisco. VA is accomplishing great things there and I am pleased that this experience may soon be duplicated to the benefit of veterans in five additional sites around the country. I also believe VA would be well served by developing centers of excellence in Multiple Sclerosis as referenced in both of the VA–HUD Appropriations Subcommittee reports.

I am pleased that the resources, as outlined by the Conference Agreement, will allow funds for the successful operation of all VA programs. VA must continue to allow for responsible growth in each year's budget. Just like other health care providers, VA has inflationary costs beyond this control. In recent years, as VA has shifted to outpatient care that increasingly relies upon pharmaceuticals to manage health care conditions, VA's prescription drug costs have increased at rates from 15–25% annually. Likewise, the cost of medical supplies and capital equipment continue to increase at rates above general inflation. Employee payraises must be accommodated. VA nurses, some of whom have gone without any payraise for several years, were long overdue for increases in pay. Fortunately, Congress has just approved a bill that will correct this problem, but we must also give VA the ability to use the new pay rates we have authorized by providing needed resources to recruit and retain highly qualified health care providers in an era of fierce competition for their skills.

Just like other health care providers, VA also has significantly transformed the way it does business in the past few years. It has closed many beds, even while adding significantly to its patient workload. I am convinced the organization is committed to reforms that will bring about greater efficiencies. Even with these changes, however, it is impossible for VA to meet all of its challenges without a healthy annual increase in its budget.

The VA health care system must also contend with the significant challenge of Hepatitis C that is disproportionately affecting its users. The San Francisco VA Medical Center estimated that, including the costs of screening for veterans with negative tests and candidates who are not well-suited to treatment, it costs up to $100,000 for each ''cure'' (or each case in which viral counts are reduced to untraceable amounts). Last fall, the Inspector General indicated that in each of the eight facilities it visited, employees believed addressing Hepatitis C would require between two and seven dedicated employees. This constitutes an enormous new challenge for VA. In addition to this new epidemic, VA must continue to effectively manage the many other chronic conditions, such as hypertension, diabetes, AIDS, and pulmonary disorders that its veteran patients have in higher proportions than the general population. VA health care must also restore some of the capacity it has reduced under financial duress for seriously mentally ill veterans.

Congress and veterans have grown increasingly concerned with waiting times—the time that it takes VA to offer veterans its next-available appointment. Long waiting times have been a clear indication to many Members of Congress that there has been significant stress on the system. In addition to requesting additional funding for VA health care for this fiscal year, the Administration now has many initiatives underway to address the problems. I have requested that the General Accounting Office study the issue and report to me about the problems with data that hamper VA's ability to understand waiting times and initiatives, including ''best practices'', underway to address waiting times.

We also know that certain services and regions have been drastically affected by VA's Veterans Equitable Resource Allocation model. A few of the 22 Veterans Integrated Service Networks have had to request budget supplements—even with the significant increase we provided last year—and even with optimistic future funding scenarios, expect significant funding shortfalls in the future. The network that serves many veterans in my district in Western Illinois, is one example. I know the belt-tightening that has occurred throughout Nebraska, Iowa, and the rest of the areas that comprise that network. They have actually closed some inpatient facilities and now contract for care from local community facilities. This is a practice that as few as 10 years ago would have been considered untenable. Even if it closes most of the remaining medical centers in the network, the network will continue to have fiscal obligations that outstrip its projected budgets. I recently requested the General Accounting Office to look at allocations to determine if some regions are more adversely impacted than others under the new methodology.

I have also been concerned that the new funding methodology has adversely impacted mental health and other programs that address chronic disease or disability. In moving toward a community and outpatient-focused approach, VA has closed literally thousands of psychiatric inpatient beds—about 40% of the beds it operated five years ago. I remain concerned that VA has not replaced the beds with meaningful programs in the community designed to help the veterans that have been displaced from inpatient programs.

I understand that, as a result of its commitment to moving forward on VA's Capital Assets Restructuring for Enhanced Services (CARES) initiative, there is a de facto moratorium on major construction for VA's health care system. It is important to realize, however, that even as VA considers changing the mission of its facilities or even closing some of its buildings, there is still an aging health care infrastructure to maintain. On top of the needs for modification to ensure the safety of the patients and staff who use its buildings, a moratorium could impede VA's ability to perform its missions. Many of the buildings from which VA operates are aging and need significant renovations. There are also needs for significant modifications in order to address new missions and to accommodate new technology. I am concerned that any moratorium will compromise VA's ability to make adjustments to its instrastructure to accomplish its goals in an evolving health care environment. VA cannot stand still and also have the modern facilities that are critical to higher quality, more timely patient care and more efficient use of limited resources.

These continuing concerns set the stage for the debates we will soon have about the fiscal year 2002 budget. Still, it is clear from the fiscal year 2001 budget submission that communication between Congress and the Administration has greatly improved and that this has translated into a strong budget request for this year—the strongest an Administration has ever made. I am also appreciative that Congress has seen fit to address shortfalls that could have undermined VA's ability to be the type of health care provider we want for our veterans.

Mr. KNOLLENBERG. I rise today to discuss the Energy and Water Development Appropriations Act of 2001. As the distinguished Chairman knows, I authored report language to accompany H.R. 4733 that recommended the Department of Energy process Uranium-233 stored in Building 3019 at the Oak Ridge National Laboratory, in Tennessee, in a manner that would retain and make available alpha-emitting isotopes for the development of a promising and innovative cancer therapy known as Alpha Particle Immunotherapy.

Researchers at the Memorial Sloan Kettering Cancer Center in New York view this therapy as a potential breakthrough treatment for numerous types of cancer, including acute myelogenous leukemia, non-Hodgkin's lymphoma, breast, prostate, ovarian and lung cancer. This innovative approach to treat cancer is highly valuable because of its ability to target cancer cells and its unique potency in killing them. In addition, API treats the cancer without causing some of the negative side effects associated with treatment, such as nausea, hair loss and general malaise.

I am concerned by reports that the Oak Ridge National Laboratory is unable to produce the medical isotopes needed to support the development of this extremely promising cancer therapy. We simply must execute this project for its potential to save lives and save money for the U.S. taxpayer.

Mr. Speaker, I'd now like to take a moment to emphasize my intent in offering this language. Briefly, the intent of this language is to permit the Department of Energy to use the $15 million it has projected are needed for Building 3019 surveillance and maintenance costs to stabilize, dispose and deactivate all of the excess Uranium-233 in Building 3019 to enable the beneficial use of Uranium-233 for this breakthrough cancer treatment. In doing so, it is my intent that the Department of Energy would spend the $15 million to conduct routine surveillance and maintenance to control the stored material safely while at the same time blending-down the Uranium-233 to a radioactivity that eliminates safety and safeguards concerns, and extracting the radioactive isotope for cancer treatments. This approach would enable the Department of Energy to not only eliminate the nuclear criticality and vulnerability concerns at the Oak Ridge site, but would also provide the Department with the opportunity to take a leadership role in the worldwide effort to cure cancer. Again, I would like to point out that all of this could be accomplished within the existing DOE Building 3019 budget projections and potentially could provide life-cycle cost savings to the DOE and the American taxpayers of over $200 million.

Mr. Chairman, as you know, the Highly Enriched Uranium Vulnerability Assessment Report identified Building 3019 as one of the ten most hazardous facilities within the DOE complex. This risk increases as long as no action is taken to place the Uranium-233 in stabilized form.

The language that I drafted attempts to correct this situation by enabling the Department of Energy through private sector stabilization, disposition and deactivation to expeditiously eliminate the concerns at the Oak Ridge site, while enhancing the accessibility of the Lab.

This entire opportunity holds the potential to turn ''swords in plowshares'' by reindustrializing this nuclear liability into a humanitarian use. In addition, it offers significant national benefits, not only the primary ones to cancer patients and their families, but also benefits to the DOE and the Oak Ridge area as it would: Accelerate the disposition of this special nuclear material, reducing the long-term costs associated with its surveillance and maintenance; Begin addressing the State of Tennessee's concerns regarding the current U-233 storage facility, which has been classified as one of the ten most hazardous facilities within the DOE complex; and Broaden the scope of reindustrialization initiatives in Oak Ridge, potentially creating manufacturing and research jobs.

Mr. Speaker, we owe it to the people of America and the world, particularly those suffering from cancer, to do whatever we can do to enable this breakthrough cancer treatment to move forward as quickly as possible. This concludes my remarks. I thank you again for allowing me to clarify the intent of this very important provision.

Mr. NETHERCUTT. Mr. Speaker, while I support the hard work of House conferees in crafting this conference report I want to express concern that an amendment I had offered to H.R. 4465 was dropped in conference.

The amendment expressed concern about the state of NASA's research and analysis programs (R&A). Through peer reviewed grants to individual scientists, R&A provides the basic research which is the seed corn for space exploration missions. While these activities often are not glamorous, and do not make for pretty images on CNN, they are essential for increasing the return to taxpayers from more visible and expensive flight programs. Unfortunately, NASA been underfunding this activity. Despite projected overall increases in the NASA budget in the outyears, R&A is expected to be flat funded at best, and may in fact suffer further funding reductions.

In 1998, the National Research Council Report ''Supporting Research and Data Analysis in NASA's Science Programs'' offered significant new findings and important recommendations for strengthening this activity as well as Data Analysis (DA) programs. Six explicit recommendations were offered, but despite their clear potential for improving the effectiveness of flight programs, NASA has implemented few if any changes. My amendment simply required a review of the status in implementing the recommendations in the report, barriers to implementation and specific guidance on optimal funding levels. The provision was considered non-controversial by the full Appropriations Committee and was adopted by voice vote.

While Members of Congress regarded this as a common sense, good government amendment, NASA objected most strenuously to being held to the basic recommendations of the Space Studies Board. In an effort to preempt my language, NASA requested an interim assessment of Research and Data Analysis in the Office of Space Science. This September 22, 2000 letter report from the Space Studies Board (SSB), which I am including for the record, hardly notes enthusiastic support for the 1998 recommendations. It suggests that while NASA has been effective in talking about change in this area, little action has been seen to date.

As the letter report notes: ''While the board supports the steps noted above, there are still two concerns to be addressed. First, many of the OSS responses to the 1998 report's recommendations are planned rather than ongoing activities, and so any assessment of their effectiveness must await their implementation. Second, there are areas where the plans appear to be incomplete or where the attention being given may be inadequate.'' The board concludes by noting that ''it cannot, however, be confident that these recommendations will be met until an explicit implementation plan is available.''

I note that this was an ''interim'' report for only one of NASA's three science offices, and that more comprehensive analysis is required. I expect that NASA will continue to work with interested Members of Congress and the SSB to ensure that these sound recommendations are actually implemented. The fact that this amendment was dropped from the final conference report should in no way be seen as a diminution of Congressional interest in this issue. I can assure the agency that unless concrete steps to towards implementation are undertaken, further Congressional action is likely. Research and analysis activities are critically important and the SSB has made sound recommendations for improvement which should be heeded.

I would also like to use this opportunity to bring to Members' attention, and that of VA policy, program and budget officials, the legislative history and background surrounding the inclusion of $5,000,000 for the Joslin Vision Network (JVN), developed by the Joslin Diabetes Center. The Conference Agreement of $5,000,000 for this effort is based on the following components.

Dr. Sven Bursell of Joslin Diabetes Center presented Outside Witness testimoney to the VA/HUD Subcommittee describing a $5 million plan for the JVN to be deployed within the VA beyond the FY 2000 level, and for the refinement of the JVN system toward a Windows NT platform and a seamless interface with VA Medical Care software. Dr. Bursell outlined the two major elements of the $5,000,000 plan as follows: $3 million would be used by the VA and Joslin to expand to additional sites with the most need for portable advanced detection and begin to train personnel and equip additional VA facilities to utilize the JVN technology; and $2 million would be provided to the Joslin Diabetes Center to complete the refinement of the original, prototype system (equipment and software) to the point that the VA can purchase and utilize advanced detection equipment and reading center technology.

Mr. Speaker, Congressman SAM GEJDENSON and I testified together before the VA/HUD Subcommittee on April 11, 2000, in support of the Joslin Diabetes Center plan. Our bipartisan request for approval and funding of the $5,000,000 Joslin Diabetes Center request was approved in the Conference Agreement on H.R. 4635. Congressional intent underlying this item is clear. The VA should endeavor to implement this plan as expeditiously as possible in order to bring improved care to VA patients suffering from diabetes.

INTERIM ASSESSMENT OF RESEARCH AND DATA ANALYSIS IN NASA'S OFFICE OF SPACE SCIENCE

On September 22, 2000, Space Studies Board Chair John H. McElroy sent the following letter to Dr. Edward J. Weiler, associate administrator for NASA's Office of Space Science.

As you requested in your letter of June 16, 2000 (Appendix A), the Space Studies Board (the Board, Appendix B) has conducted a brief review of actions taken by the Office of Space Science (OSS) that are relevant to recommendations in the board's 1998 report Supporting Research and Data Analysis in NASA's Science Programs: Engines for Innovation and Synthesis. The statement of task for this review is provided in Appendix C.

The Board conducted this assessment on a ambitious schedule in accordance with your request for feedback by September 2000. The Board was provided with relatively little written documentation of NASA's plans for improving the OSS R&DA program.

The review was based, in part, on inputs received from relevant standing committees of the Board—the Committee on Solar and Space Physics, the Committee on Planetary and Lunar Exploration, and the Committee on Astronomy and Astrophysics. A major source of information for the review was a pair of short papers provided to the Board on July 25, 2000, by Dr. Guenter Riegler, director of the OSS Research Program Management Division (Appendixes D and E). Dr. Riegler then briefed the board's executive committee and standing committee chairs at a meeting on August 16 at the National Academies' study center in Woods Hole, Massachusetts. At that meeting, members of the Board reviewed and discussed the information from NASA and the Board's discipline committees' responses and assembled this consensus assessment. The board concluded that the proposals that Dr. Riegler described for responding to the 1998 report are appropriate; however, a final assessment awaits action guided by a concrete implementation plan.

GENERAL OBSERVATIONS

The 1998 Space Studies board report analyzed the roles and contributions of R&DA grants in the research programs of NASA's three science offices, and it presented a set of strategic and programmatic recommendations to enhance the R&DA programs. The Board reaffirms the conclusions of the 1998 report: research and data analysis activities are critical elements of a viable space science program. The Board is aware of a number of actions within OSS that are under way or planned that will strengthen the R&DA programs and that will be entirely consistent with the recommendations of the 1998 report. For example, Dr. Riegler described plans to reallocate current budgets and to seek funds for new projects that will provide selected increases in data analysis funding at an overall rate of 8% per year. He also reported on the OSS intent to provide explicitly for data analysis funding in all new projects when they are initially proposed. Further, Dr. Reigler described a regular process of ''senior reviews'' of the research grants program that would complement the senior reviews of operating spacecraft mission programs and provide a mechanism to accomplish a number of actions recommended by the Board in the 1998 report.

While the Board supports the steps noted above, there are still two concerns to be addressed. First, many of the OSS responses to the 1998 report's recommendations are planned rather than ongoing activities, and so any assessment of their effectiveness must await their implementation. Second, there are areas where the plans appear to be incomplete or where the attention being given may be inadequate. In the remainder of this report, the Board provides additional comments on those areas by addressing each of the six major recommendations in the 1998 report in order.

ASSESSMENT OF THE OSS RESPONSE TO THE 1998 SSB RECOMMENDATIONS

1. Principles for Strategic Planning

The first recommendation of the 1998 report addressed a number of aspects of managing R&DA programs strategically. To be able to do so requires, of course, a strategic plan for the program as a whole and an approach that integrates attention to R&DA into that plan. In its May 2000 review of the OSS draft 2000 strategic plan, the Board indicated that while many aspects of the draft were solidly grounded, the document still lacked several important aspects of a strategic plan, as follows:

Although the draft document is called ''The Space Science Enterprise Strategic Plan,'' it lacks, in fact, some key characteristics of a strategic plan. For example, the document does not explicitly discuss how choices were or are made in setting priorities, and it does not identify priorities for missions or other program elements that are presented in the plan. . . .

Regarding the integration of R&DA into that strategic plan, the Board's May 2000 report said:

The OSS draft plan should reflect a clearer sense of the priorities for R&DA, the linkages between R&DA and other parts of the OSS program, and the overall importance of R&DA in the space science enterprise. Finally, also needed is a more explicit discussion of the OSS strategy for achieving balance between flight mission development, supporting ground and suborbital research, theory and modeling, and data analysis. . . .

The Board is aware of OSS's plans to institute a new senior review process for evaluating the research grants program (Appendix D), probably on a triennial basis, to complement the senior reviews for operating satellites. Together these two reviews will go a long way toward responding to regular evaluations of balance as recommended in the 1998 report. What is apparently missing, however, is a process to integrate these decisions and to look across the whole program strategically. This integrating function is particularly important for handling cases in which senior reviews of operating missions and of the grants program might arrive at different conclusions. The NASA Space Science Advisory Committee may be a possible venue for integrating the senior reviews and evaluating balance across OSS.

2. Innovation and Infrastructure

The second recommendation addressed the need to examine stragically the requirements, priorities, and health of research infrastructures at universities and NASA field centers. This issue was also addressed in the Board's review of the OSS draft strategic plan:

The OSS draft document says little about what responsibility OSS assumes for universities. It notes the intention to ''maintain essential technical capabilities at the NASA centers,'' and although it recognizes the role of scientists at universities in research and planning, and in developing the next generation of space research professionals, it is silent about intentions of OSS to maintain essential capabilities at universities. . . . Furthermore, a long-standing question within NASA has concerned the extent to which universities should be considered to be vendors, sources of members of the technical workforce, integral partners, or some mix of those roles. The OSS plan could be strengthened by more clearly recognizing that the universities are elements of the fabric of space science and that their capabilities also need to be nurtured.

Dr. Riegler called the Board's attention to plans within the executive branch to strengthen government-university partnerships, based on the ''Principles of the Federal Partnership with Universities in Research'' laid out in the National Science and Technology Council's report Renewing the Federal Government-University Research Partnership for the 21st Century. He cited several proposed NASA initiatives to increase university involvement in developing space hardware and infrastructure. These plans, if implemented, will enhance the research infrastructure in some areas. However, based on the information provided by OSS, the Board concluded that a more systematic assessment of research infrastructure along the lines recommended in the 1998 report is still needed.

3. Management of the Research and Data Analysis Programs

The third recommendation focused on the need to assess the distribution of grant sizes in each of NASA's science program areas. NASA presented data regarding grant sizes in different areas of the OSS research program as well as a description of the logic and history of the differences in sizes among those research areas. However, there does not appear to have been any systematic assessment across the program. In addition, the Board recognizes that a response to Recommendation 6 of the 1998 report is required in order to conduct such an assessment. Finally, the planned senior review of the research grants program described by NASA could be an appropriate vehicle for carrying out this systematic review.

4. Participation in the Research and Data Analysis Programs

The fourth recommendation emphasized the value in preserving a mix of university and non-university participation in technology, instrument, and facility development. OSS did not provide the Board with any information indicating that OSS has conducted or plans to conduct a systematic evaluation of the mix of university principal investigator awards and non-university funding for technology, instrument, and facility development. The Board notes that in assessing the mix of institutions involved in technology development, NASA should also promote university-industry-field center partnerships.

5. Creation of Intellectual Capital

The fifth recommendation addressed the use of training grants as a way to ensure breadth in graduate education. NASA indicated an intent to increase the number of (or introduce a new element into) training grants in the university program; however, no actions had been undertaken at the time of this review. The Board is interested in seeing an implementation plan for this initiative.

6. Accounting as a Management Tool in the Research and Data Analysis Programs

The sixth recommendation addressed the need to establish a uniform procedure for collecting data on R&DA funding and funding trends for use as a management tool. This issue was also raised in the Board's reports on technology development in OSS and in the report Federal Funding of Astronomical Research. NASA presented plans for acquiring the types of data recommended in the 1998 report, and the Board views this plan as a positive response. These plans would involve using a single contractor to administer the proposal review process as a means for collecting the data. If appropriate data are collected (e.g., on trends with respect to discipline, class of activity, and type of performing institution), they will provide a useful management tool for assessing the balance among elements and participants in the R&DA program. However, these data on R&DA funding will be incomplete until NASA implements full-cost accounting at the NASA field centers. In addition, these data will be required before OSS can respond appropriately to Recommendation 3 of the 1998 report.

CONCLUDING REMARKS

The Board believes that OSS's proposals for responding to the recommendations of the 1998 report are moving in the right direction. It cannot, however, be confident that these recommendations will be met until an explicit implementation plan is available. The Board is prepared to assist OSS in any way it can.

Mr. GEJDENSON. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of funding provided for the Joslin Vision Network in H.R. 4635, the Fiscal Year 2001 VA/HUD Appropriations Act.

I would like to express my appreciation to Chairman WALSH, Ranking Member Mr. MOLLOHAN, and the House Conferees for the inclusion of several items in the VA Medical Care account that will provide improved detection and care for those in the VA patient population that suffer from diabetes and the complications of diabetes.

Specifically, I would like to highlight the legislative history and background surrounding the inclusion of $5,000,000 for the Joslin Vision Network (JVN), developed by the Joslin Diabetes Center. The Conference Agreement of $5,000,000 for this effort is based on the following components.

Dr. Sven Bursell of Joslin Diabetes Center presented Outside Witness testimony to the VA/HUD Subcommittee describing a $5 million plan for the JVN to be deployed within the VA beyond the FY 2000 level, and for the refinement of the JVN system toward a Windows NT platform and a seamless interface with VA Medical Care software. Dr. Bursell outlined the two major elements of the $5,000,000 plan as follows:

$3 million would be used by the VA and Joslin to expand to additional sites with the most need for portable advanced detection and begin to train personnel and equip additional VA facilities to utilize the JVN technology; and

$2 million would be provided to the Joslin Diabetes Center to complete the refinement of the original, prototype system (equipment and software) to the point that the VA can purchase and utilize advanced detection equipment and reading center technology.

Mr. Speaker, Congressman GEORGE NETHERCUTT and I testified before the VA/HUD Subcommittee on April 11, 2000 in support of the Joslin Diabetes Center plan. The VA should endeavor to implement this plan as expeditiously as possible in order to bring improved care to VA patients suffering from diabetes.

Mr. BEREUTER. Mr. Speaker, this Member rises today to express his support for the conference report for H.R. 4635, the VA, HUD and Independent Agencies Appropriations Act for fiscal year 2001. First, this Member would like to thank the distinguished chairman of the Appropriations Subcommittee on VA, HUD and Independent Agencies from New York (Mr. WALSH), the distinguished Ranking Member from West Virginia (Mr. MOLLOHAN), and all members of the Subcommittee for their work in bringing this measure to the House Floor.

This Member would like to focus his remarks on the following five areas: veterans, the Community Development Fund—Community Development Block Grant (CDBG), the HOME program, the American Indian Loan Guarantee Program, and the issue of arsenic in drinking water.

1. VETERANS

First, this Member rises in strong support of the $47 billion in the conference report that will be made available to the Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) for improvements in health care, housing, education and compensatory benefits to veterans and their dependents. The 106th Congress has continued to make dramatic improvements in the amount of funding available for veterans' services. Recent events in the Middle East remind us of the sacrifices that are made by those who have served our country and that we should remain true to our promise of providing equal and accessible health care as well as other services to all of our veterans throughout the United States no matter where they live.

2. COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT FUND (CDF)

Second, this Member commends the $5.1 billion appropriations in the conference report for grants to state and local governments to fund selected community development programs, such as the highly successful CDBG program. This appropriation is $257.6 million more than the President's request. The CDBG program not only is valuable to the larger entitlement cities, but it also gives assistance to those communities under 50,000 through state administering agencies. It is a government program with minimal overhead and bureaucracy.

In addition to this, this Member applauds the following set-asides within the CDF account: the Whitcomb Conservatory at Doane College in Crete, Nebraska; the downtown redevelopment of South Sioux City, Nebraska; and the Cedar Youth Services in Lincoln, Nebraska.

A. Whitcomb Conservatory at Doane College

First, $430,000 is appropriated in the conference report for Doane College in Crete, Nebraska, for the rehabilitation of the historic Whitcomb Conservatory for joint use by the college and the community as a performing arts center. This unique, five-sided structure built on the ''Prairie'' or ''Frank L. Wright'' architectural style was completed in 1907 and is a component of the Doane College Historic District National Register listing. It has many unusual architectural and construction features which make the building very important to preserve. The funding is needed for major structural repair of its roof, installation of a new mechanical system (including a new heating and cooling plant), new wiring, and a complete cosmetic refurbishing.

The Conservatory has been vacant for more than 30 years. However, the Crete community—as well as the student population of Doane is growing—and necessitates refurbishing the building. Doane College and the Crete community have a close and long-standing working relationship and would have a formal joint-use agreement for the future use of Whitcomb Conservatory. The restoration of the Conservatory would create a community resource and provide a setting for musicals, summer community theater, special concerts and lectures.

B. South Sioux City, Nebraska

Second, $430,000 is appropriated in the conference report for the South Sioux City, Nebraska, Downtown Redevelopment Area—for the redevelopment and rehabilitation of a civic building site. South Sioux City, Nebraska, as part of the South City Standard Metropolitan Statistical Area (SMSA), which also includes Sioux City, Iowa, and North Sioux City, South Dakota, has the lowest per capita income of any SMSA in the surrounding states. Moreover, South Sioux City, which borders the Missouri River, has experienced a decline in employment and tax base and was declared blighted in 1998 by local elected officials in accordance with state law. This funding will be used for the much-needed downtown redevelopment of South Sioux City.

C. Cedar Youth Services in Lincoln, Nebraska

Third, $1.25 million is appropriated in the conference report for Cedar Youth Services' in Lincoln, Nebraska. Cedars Youth Services, a leading social service provider in the City of Lincoln, would use this funding to complete construction of a community center on the corner of 27th and Holdrege Streets to serve as the focal point for a variety of services and support to strengthen and revitalize the surrounding neighborhood. Social services, such a Head Start preschool classes, as well as neighborhood-strengthening activities, such as preventative health care and recreational opportunities, would be provided at the North 27th Street Community Center. This appropriation builds on the $550,000 which was appropriated in FY2000 for this project.

3. HOME PROGRAM

Third, this Member supports the $1.8 billion appropriation for the HOME Investment Partnerships program in the conference report, which is $215 million more than the President's request. This program provides funds to states, units of local government, Indian tribes and others for acquisition, rehabilitation, and new construction to expand the supply and quality of affordable housing.

4. AMERICAN INDIAN LOAN GUARANTEE PROGRAM

Fourth, this Member commends the inclusion of $6 million in loan subsidy in the conference report for the HUD Section 184 Housing loan guarantee program, which this Member created in consultation with a range of Indian Housing specialists. A very conservative estimate would suggest that this $6 million appropriation should facilitate over $72 million in guaranteed loans for privately financed homes for Indian families who are otherwise unable to secure conventional financing due to the trust status of Indian reservation land.

5. ARSENIC IN DRINKING WATER

Lastly, this Member is pleased that the conference report includes language providing up to an additional six months for the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) to issue a final regulation for arsenic in drinking water. This Member shares the conferees concerns and has in fact written a letter to EPA Administrator Browner asking hard and specific questions about the necessity for this regulation. Over the past month, this Member has received many letters from utilities superintendents, city administrators, village boards, mayors and other local officials who are understandably concerned about the effects this proposed rule would have on their communities. The EPA has a responsibility to really listen to these individuals' comments and to address their concerns. The additional time provided in the H.R. 4635 conference report certainly will help.

Local officials in the 1st Congressional District of Nebraska have not been convinced of the need to lower the maximum contaminant level for arsenic from the current 50 parts per billion (ppb) to possibly as low as 5 ppb. Such a change could cost every water system customer hundreds of dollars per year, if not more. The costs would fall disproportionately on the smallest systems. It is also important to keep in mind that forcing communities to treat water often results in a series of other problems which must be addressed. Everyone certainly recognizes the importance of providing safe drinking water and this Member obviously does not support taking any action that would cause drinking water to become unsafe. However the EPA has a clear responsibility to demonstrate the need for such a drastic change which would have far-reaching consequences. If there is inadequate science to support this rule, communities should not be forced to divert scarce resources to come into compliance.

Mr. Speaker, for these aforementioned reasons and others, this Member would encourage his colleagues to support the conference report of H.R. 4635, the VA, HUD and Independent Agencies Appropriations Act.

Mr. HALL of Texas. Mr. Speaker, as the Ranking Member on the Science Committee, I rise in strong support of the VA–HUD Conference Report, which is a much more satisfying bill than the one which passed the House in June. I am especially pleased to see that the Conferees were able to find funds for important programs at NASA and NSF that this body didn't seem to have access to four months ago.

In June, the President's request for NASA was slashed by $377 million. One of the most troubling cuts in that bill was the elimination of funding for the Space Launch Initiative, a program that directed at developing advanced, reusable launch vehicles that will dramatically reduce the cost of launching government and commercial payloads. The high cost of access to space is the single largest impediment to our ability to reach our full potential in space. Fortunately, the bill we are considering today fully funds the Space Launch Initiative.

In funding NASA at $14.285 billion, this Conference Report provides the resources needed to ensure the successful development and assembly of the International Space Station and the continued safe operation of the Space Shuttle. H.R. 4635 also provides a healthy level of funding for NASA's important Science, Aeronautics, and Technology activities. Finally, I am pleased that H.R. 4635 requires NASA to provide for annual life and micro-gravity sciences research missions on the Space Shuttle.

I have long supported a vigorous program of life and micro-gravity sciences flight research, and believe that such flights ultimately will deliver significant scientific returns. At the same time, we will need to ensure that such flights do not adversely disrupt the assembly of the Space Station, which will be the ultimate venue for path-breaking biomedical research in orbit.

As for the National Science Foundation appropriations, again, this conference report is a great improvement over the House-passed bill, which cut the Administration's request by $500 million. I know that in June the Committee did the best that it could with the hand it was dealt. But, had the cuts prevailed, NSF—an agency with a critically important role in sustaining the nation's research and education capabilities in all fields of science and engineering—would have been severely damaged.

These cuts would have been short-sighted because basic research discoveries launch new industries that bring returns to the economy far exceeding the public investment. The Internet, which emerged from research projects funded by the DOD and NSF, strikingly illustrates the true investment nature of such research expenditures. In fact, over the past 50 years, half of U.S. economic productivity can be attributed to technological innovation and the science that has supported it.

I am pleased that the conference report recognizes NSF's important role by providing an historic increase of $539 million, or nearly 14 percent, above the previous year's budget level. This increase will enable the Foundation to expand its investments in exciting, cutting-edge research initiatives, including information technology, nanoscale science and engineering, and environmental research.

Moreover, this new funding will enable NSF to increase average grant size and duration, as well as increase the number of new awards. Last year alone, NSF could not fund 3800 proposals that received very good or excellent ratings by peer reviewers.

Finally, the increases provided by the conference report will begin to address a growing imbalance in federal support for fundamental research in the physical sciences and engineering relative to the biomedical fields. This is a serious matter because for any field of science progress is dependent on advances made in other fields.

This point was recently made by the past director of the National Institutes of Health, Nobel Laureate Harold Varmus: ''Most of the revolutionary changes that have occurred in biology and medicine are rooted in new methods. Those, in turn, are usually rooted in fundamental discoveries in many different fields.''

For the past half-decade, we have been very free in our support of biomedical research. I consider that to be a very good thing for all of our people. However, investing too narrowly in medical fields without investing in all the other sciences—sciences that contribute to the base of knowledge necessary for medical breakthroughs—will lead to a slowdown in medical progress in the long-run.

I want to congratulate the Conferees on their work in this bill and to particularly thank them for finding the resources necessary to keep our Nation at the forefront of progress in space and science.

Mr. HOBSON. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to commend the Chairman and our Subcommittee for crafting such a fine bill which meets the needs of our veterans, addresses our critical housing needs, protects our environment and at the same time pays down our national debt.

As a member of the Appropriations Committee and the VA–HUD Subcommittee, I support the common-sense approach the Committee has already taken to address the problem of contaminated sediments in our rivers.

Three years ago, Congress directed the EPA not to issue dredging or capping regulations until the National Academy of Sciences completes a study on the risks of such actions. Qualified scientists are working to finish this report to determine the best way to clean up rivers with nominal impact to the surrounding environment. This has been an open process, allowing input from the public, environmental organizations, and from the EPA itself.

I want to reiterate that in the final decision making process, the EPA must ensure that remedies will protect human health and environment, and be cost effective. The National Academy of Science study will be extremely useful in guiding the EPA to develop the most appropriate methods of mediation. My colleagues on the Committee and I will be closely watching to ensure that EPA considers the recommendations of the study and fully integrates them into the final rule.

Additionally, the report language which accompanies this bill also allows for the immediate sediment clean up in specific, urgent cases where the contaminated sediment poses a significant threat to public health. However, I would like to clarify that this exception is only for new and immediate risks.

Mr. Speaker, I agree that this is an environmentally sensitive issue, and it is important that most qualified, independent scientists weight in on this regulation. This is why I support the existing language, which directs the EPA not to act prematurely and to wait until the NAS study is complete.

Mr. Speaker, I thank Chairman WALSH for the excellent work he has done on crafting this find bill. it has been a pleasure to work with him this year.

Mr. LAFALCE. Mr. Speaker, following the pattern of recent years, the conference report for VA–HUD Appropriations ignores the funding cuts for housing programs that the majority party paused through the House earlier this year. The result is a product with very modest funding boosts for affordable housing and economic development.

There are some positive provisions in the bill worth nothing. Following the lead of the Administration and Congressional Democrats, the conference report funds 79,000 incremental Section 8 vouchers, the third year in a row that we have expanded the supply of rental housing assistance.

Building on the efforts this year of many of us who successfully fought to restore funding for expired, unrenewed Shelter Plus Care homeless assistance grants, the conference report for the first time creates a separate account for renewals, entitled ''Shelter Plus Care Renewals.'' This account provides $100 million, enough to renew all Shelter Plus Care grants expiring during fiscal years 2001 and 2002.

Unlike last year's approach, in which renewals were subject to competing with all other projects under the broad McKinney-Vento Act continuum of care competition, this separate funding source makes renewals contingent only on meeting minimal, but reasonable requirements that the ''project is determined to be needed under the applicable continuum of care'' and that it ''meets appropriate program requirements and financial standards, as determined by the Secretary.''

I am also pleased to see that the conference report continues for another year the provision which allows non-insured Section 236 affordable housing projects to retain their ''excess income.'' This is especially critical for non-profits which own affordable housing units that are aging and in need of capital repair, since non-profits typically lack access to capital or financing to make such needed repairs.

Another positive development is that the conference report, like the House-passed language, expands the range of eligible applicants for the $50 million in grants to convert elderly affordable housing units to assisted living. Last year's bill limited grant eligibility to only Section 202 elderly housing units. this year's bill refers specifically to Section 202b (Section 2 from H.R. 1624, my ''Elderly Housing Quality Improvement Act'' of last year). This section, enacted last year, authorizes conversion grants, and generally makes all federal elderly housing projects eligible.

Finally, I am pleased to see that the conference report extends the nationwide application of FHA down payment simplification for another twenty-seven months, through December 31, 2002. While there is overwhelming bi-partisan House support for making down simplification permanent, this provision at least guarantees that we will have all of the next Congress to further extend its application or make it permanent.

However, notwithstanding these few provisions and the modest funding increases, the real story of this bill is one of missed opportunities. For example, the House earlier this year passed, as part of H.R. 1776, a bill that I authorized to provide one percent down FHA mortgage loans for teachers, policemen, and firemen buying a home in the school district or local jurisdiction of employment. This same provision was included in the Senate version of this year's VA–HUD appropriations bill. Yet, in conference this provision was inexplicably stripped out. This is doubly unfortunate, because the provisions would have actually raised funds, which could have been reinvested in housing, veterans, or other worthy programs.

The conference report is also notable for its lack of any new affordable housing production initiative. This is in spite of the fact that the Senate bill had included a new capital grant housing production bill, and the House version had included incremental voucher linked to new affordable housing production.

Moreover, unlike last year's bill, the conference report does not include any additional provisions from H.R. 202, the elderly housing bill which passed the House last year. This raises the prospect that we will adjourn without acting on the Vento matching grant program for housing preservation, a number of related provisions to encourage mixed income elderly housing, greater flexibility in the use of elderly and disabled service coordinators, and a provision to make it easier for sponsors of Section 202 elderly housing projects to use savings from refinancing for the benefit of their projects or tenants.

So, with respect to housing, this is a modest bill which undoes the harm of the House-passed bill, but which is notably lacking in making any dramatic progress to address the growing affordable housing challenges facing our low- and moderate-income seniors, disabled, and families. Hopefully, we will redouble our efforts in this area next year.

Mr. MALONEY of Connecticut. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of the Fiscal Year 2001, VA/HUD appropriations bill. The Appropriations Committee has put together a bill that is truly bipartisan. I am proud to rise in strong support of this measure which funds such important priorities as veterans health care and benefits, section 8 family housing, housing for persons with AIDS, and key environmental programs. This measure also provides much needed resources to assist state and local governments with infrastructure improvement and economic development needs.

The Central Naugatuck Valley, in my district, has been undergoing a major water infrastructure upgrade. I am pleased that under the State and Territorial Assistance Grant Program, $1,000,000 has been appropriated for these much needed improvements.

The City of Waterbury, which operates the hub of the region's sewer system, has been burdened by the majority of the cost for these improvements. Therefore, $750,000 (of the total $1,000,000) will go to the City of Waterbury for wastewater infrastructure improvements including the cost of the new sewage treatment facility in the City.

The Town of Wolcott, Connecticut is partially served by the water system of the City of Waterbury. However, the Clinton Hill Road neighborhood of Wolcott relies on well water and septic systems for their water needs. Recently, this area of the town has been experiencing well failures and contamination. Under this legislation, the Town of Wolcott will receive $250,000 (of the total $1,000,000) toward the extension of the water distribution system to the Clinton Hill Road neighborhood.

Finally, I would like to also point out that $100,000 has been appropriated for the Town of Beacon Falls toward the purchase of the currently nearly vacant Pinebridge Industrial Park. The purchase of this property will enable Beacon Falls to develop an economically vital and viable industrial park. To Beacon Falls, the failure to fill the existing park with tenants over the years represents many missed opportunities for economic development and an expanded tax base. This funding will allow the Town to at last address this issue in an effective way.

Mr. Speaker, I am pleased today to support this measure not only because of what it means to my District, but also for what it means to America's veterans, our environment and those who receive the vital housing assistance they need in order to partake in the American Dream. Thank you.

Mrs. MINK of Hawaii. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H.R. 4635.

H.R. 4635 includes provisions which address benefits for our World War II Filipino Veterans. These provisions add only a small incremental benefit to these veterans who fought side-by-side to our soldiers in World War II.

I have long argued that Congress must act to establish parity for these Filipino Veterans. Those of us familiar with this injustice recall President Roosevelt's promise of U.S. citizenship and veterans benefits to Filipinos who fought alongside our soldiers in World War II. Prior to the war the Philippines had been a United States possession for 42 years.

On June 26, 1941, when President Roosevelt issued his Executive Order nearly 200,000 Filipinos responded. They responded without hesitation to defend their homeland, and because they felt part of the United States Government.

During four years, Filipino soldiers fought alongside American Soldiers. They bravely fought in every major battle, and endured years of captivity.

In 1946 Congress broke its promise to these Filipino Veterans when it denied full benefits to them.

The issue today is not should we correct this injustice, but when will we fulfill our obligation?

H.R. 4635 increases the disability benefit compensation for Filipino Veterans who currently live in the United States. Currently, they receive only 50% of the disability compensation paid to other veterans with service-connected disabilities. H.R. 4635 also allows Filipino Veterans who currently receive medical care in VA facilities for service-connected disabilities to receive care for illnesses and injuries that are not service-connected.

H.R. 4635 also benefits Filipino Veterans living in the Philippines. Filipino Veterans currently receiving medical care at a VA facility for service-connected conditions will now receive full medical care at VA outpatient facilities in the Philippines.

The $3 million appropriated by H.R. 4635 to fund these two provisions represent an improvement in the status of Filipino Veterans. I want to stress this is not a new benefit for Filipino Veterans. It supplements what they already receive.

Those Filipino Veterans who receive no benefit now, will not benefit from this bill.

Mr. Speaker, I support H.R. 4635 because it recognizes our obligation to Filipino Veterans by increasing disability compensation and medical care for Filipino Veterans with service-connected disabilities.

However, Congress must fulfill its obligation and enact legislation that establishes parity between Filipino Veterans and their American counterparts. There is no excuse for this continuing injustice.

Ms. PELOSI. Mr. Speaker, I rise to support the VA–HUDS–IA Conference Report that would significantly increase funding above the earlier House and Senate passed levels for vital housing programs. I commend HUD Secretary Cuomo, President Clinton, and Representative ALAN MOLLOHAN, Ranking Member of the HUD–VA House Subcommittee, for their tremendous leadership on housing issues and their success in increasing America's investment in affordable housing for impoverished Americans.

In June, I joined with most Democrats in voting to oppose the Republican led House bill that was severely underfunded. Thanks to the success of our Democratic leadership, today, I intend to vote for this improved agreement. Although I am glad this agreement increases funding levels, we must recognize that it still does not meet America's housing needs. Despite America's continuing economic growth, an estimated 5.4 million Americans pay more than half their income for rent and millions more live at risk of homelessness. We must continue to do more to develop new quality affordable housing, preserve existing affordable units, and provide needed housing and services to homeless Americans and those with special needs to ensure they have an adequate foundation to participate in our growing economy.

This bill is so important because it assists low income Americans. HUD residents of Section 8 housing and public housing have an average annual income of $7,800. This bill also assists seniors on fixed incomes and people with disabilities and special needs. Without this housing assistance, working men and women would be forced to choose between housing, health care, food, and other basic needs.

This agreement provides funding increases to important programs; $258 million for the Housing Opportunities for Persons with AIDS programs [HOPWA]; $452 million for 79,000 new Section 8 housing vouchers for low-income Americans; $100 million for a new Shelter Plus Care account to renew expiring homeless projects; $3 billion to modernize and make capital improvements to public housing and $3.242 billion to operate public housing for the 1.4 million American families who live there; and $1.8 billion for the HOME program to produce affordable housing for poor Americans.

Of particular importance to San Francisco, this agreement provides $258 million for the Housing Opportunities for Persons with AIDS program [HOPWA] to assist low-income persons with AIDS and their families with short-term rental assistance and mortgage assistance, and provides assistance to acquire, construct, modernize, or operate facilities and deliver supportive services. HOPWA provides vital resources to ensure that people living with HIV and AIDS have access to the stable housing that is necessary for their medical care. More than 200,000 people with HIV/AIDS are currently in need of housing assistance, and 50% of those living with this disease will need housing assistance at some point during their illness. Increase in housing demand and the number of people living with HIV/AIDS mean that San Francisco's HOPWA needs are greater than ever. This increase will greatly benefit those living with HIV/AIDS.

I urge my colleagues to support this Conference Report and increase housing assistance to low-income Americans.

Mr. DINGELL. Mr. Speaker, the statement accompanying this conference report contains language which directs the Environmental Protection agency (EPA) to take no action to initiate or order the use of dredging or invasive remedial technologies where a final plan has not been adopted prior to October 1, 2000, or where such activities are not now occurring until the National Academy of Sciences (NAS) report, which Congress required, has been completed and its findings have been properly considered by the agency. The language further provides that remediation plans which include dredging or invasive technologies are not to be finalized until June 30, 2001, or until the agency has properly considered the NAS report, whichever comes first. It is important to note that the language provides for exceptions to this limitation on the initiation of dredging or invasive remedies, and these exceptions include instances in which a party may voluntarily agree to the remedy, or ''urgent'' cases where ''contaminated sediment poses a significant threat to public health.''

As in years past, this language speaks to the importance of obtaining information on the various technologies for addressing contaminated sediments. I hope that the NAS will complete this study as soon as practicable, and sooner than the date by which the conferees encourage its completion.

However, I wish to clarify, as my colleagues in the Senate have noted, that this language is not an amendment to the Superfund statute. This language is not a product of the regular order of legislative business that may result in an amendment to our laws, after full and fair consideration by the authorizing Committees. The statutory criteria by which the EPA selects remedies, the regulatory criteria promulgated under the statutory authority, and applicable guidance are not changed by this language. When the NAS study becomes available, the language directs EPA to ''properly consider'' the study. The language does not direct the agency to confer deference to the study, nor to adopt its recommendations in remedial decisions. I note that the Chairman of the Subcommittee in the Senate has concurred with this interpretation of this language.

My colleagues in the Senate also have clarified that the terms ''urgent'' and ''significant threat to public health'' as used in this language should be defined within the discretion of the EPA. I note that the EPA has specific authority governing its ability to issue orders under the Superfund statute, and I reiterate that this language is not an amendment to a statute. In keeping with the spirit and intent of the statute, the EPA should not interpret this language to limit the scope of its authorities to address threats posed to human health and the environment.

Mr. Speaker, my colleagues Messrs. TOWNS, OBERSTAR, and BORSKI request that I state their concurrence with this statement.

Mr. WALSH. Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, the previous question is ordered on the conference report.

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the conference report.

Pursuant to clause 10 of rule XX, the yeas and nays are ordered.

☐ 1413

Mr. RYAN of Wisconsin changed his vote from ''no'' to ''aye.''

So the conference report was agreed to.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

FURTHER CONTINUING APPROPRIATIONS, FISCAL YEAR 2001

Mr. LINDER. Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 637 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. RES. 637

Resolved, That upon the adoption of this resolution it shall be in order without intervention of any point of order to consider in the House the joint resolution (H.J. Res. 114) making further continuing appropriations for the fiscal year 2001, and for other purposes. The joint resolution shall be considered as read for amendment. The previous question shall be considered as ordered on the joint resolution to final passage without intervening motion except: (1) one hour of debate equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on Appropriations; and (2) one motion to recommit.

☐ 1415

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. PEASE). The gentleman from Georgia (Mr. LINDER) is recognized for 1 hour.

Mr. LINDER. Mr. Speaker, for the purposes of debate only, I yield the customary 30 minutes to the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. MOAKLEY), pending which I yield myself such time as I may consume. During consideration of this resolution, all time yielded is for the purpose of debate only.

Mr. Speaker, House Resolution 637 is a closed rule providing for the consideration of H.J. Res. 114, a resolution making further continuing appropriations for fiscal year 2001. H.J. Res. 637 provides for 1 hour of debate equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on Appropriations.

The rule waives all points of order against consideration of the joint resolution. Finally, the rule provides for one motion to recommit as is the right of the minority.

Mr. Speaker, the current continuing resolution expires at the end of the day and a further continuing resolution is necessary to keep the government operating while Congress completes consideration of the remaining appropriations bills.

H.J. Res. 114 is a clean continuing resolution that simply extends the provisions included in H.J. Res. 109 through October 25.

Mr. Speaker, as my colleagues know, it takes a lot of hard work and tough decision-making to fund the Federal Government. While I share the regret of many of my colleagues that the negotiations have stretched on this long, we are now very close to completing the appropriations process. We have successfully resolved many of the hurdles in our path with hours of hard work. As we enter the final stretch, we remain dedicated to passing sensible and fiscally responsible appropriations bills. I am confident that this fair, clean and continuing resolution will give us the time we need to fulfill our obligations to the American people and complete the appropriations process in an even-handed and conscientious manner.

This rule was unanimously approved by the Committee on Rules on yesterday. I urge my colleagues to support it so we may proceed with the general debate and consideration of this bill.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MOAKLEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume; and I thank my colleague and my dear friend, the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. LINDER), for yielding me the customary half-hour.

Mr. Speaker, here we go again. This is the fourth continuing resolution to come before the House this year. Apparently number three was not the lucky charm. This is the fourth time that we have had to extend the appropriations deadline and this time through October 25, because my Republican colleagues just have not finished their work; and I do not think it is going to be the last time.

Despite the promises to finish all 13 appropriation bills on time, my Republican colleagues are still very far behind.

Mr. Speaker, from where I sit, the end is not even in sight. Each time we pass another continuing resolution, we grant another reprieve. Congress goes back in a recess. We all go back to our districts and nothing gets done here in Washington. So I think enough is enough. I think we should do shorter continuing resolutions. We should get the appropriation bills finished. These week-long continuing resolutions are not working. Congress should stay here and work.

Mr. Speaker, at this moment only 3 of the 13 appropriation bills have been signed into law. The rest are awaiting action either by the House or the Senate or by both. My Republican colleagues could have finished the appropriations bills by now. They could have approved education. They could have done a lot more but they just did not.

Despite the pressing needs for more classrooms, more teachers, repairs to our schools, my Republican colleagues continue to put education on the back burner.

So I think it is time for my Republican colleagues to get down to work. I think it is time our Republican colleagues make education a priority and put American children before the powerful special interests. Democrats want to stay in Washington and strengthen the American public school system. Democrats want to fund school modernization and construction, and we also want to hire new teachers and reduce class size. So, Mr. Speaker, I do not think Congress should head back home when so much important work is left undone. If we have time to move the appropriations deadline again, we really have time for America's children. So I urge my colleagues to oppose the previous question in order to get the work done.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. LINDER. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MOAKLEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. PALLONE).

Mr. PALLONE. Mr. Speaker, as my colleague, the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. MOAKLEY), the ranking member of the Committee on Rules, said, here we go again. For the fourth time this month, the Congress is considering a resolution to temporarily fund the government. Now, Republicans claim that they are working very hard to get these appropriations bills passed, but the American people should know that today is our only full day of work in the Congress this week. The Republicans will send us home tonight, and we will not be back again until next Tuesday night. And I think the Republicans should be embarrassed. They simply cannot govern. Keep in mind that between today and next Tuesday, the Republicans are deploying their members to go out and campaign. They are not hunkered down in some room trying to figure out the appropriations bills. No, they are going out to fund-raisers and political events rather than doing the work that they were elected and paid to do.

Bowing to the will of special interests, Republicans have stopped their work on HMO reform, on prescription drugs, on gun safety, on education. They simply cannot get the job done.

Mr. Speaker, I wanted to mention the education issue in particular today, because that is one of the ones that is supposedly going to be addressed in an appropriations bill next week; but so far the Republicans have been unwilling to bring up the Democratic initiative, which says two things. One, that we want to send more money back to the local school districts around the country so that they can hire more teachers and reduce class size. We know that smaller class sizes are great for discipline, great for a learning experience. But, no, the Republicans do not want to do that. They do not want to provide the money.

The second education initiative the Democrats have stressed is that they want to provide some funding back to the local school districts to help defray the costs of school modernization. We know that many schools are falling apart. They need renovation. Some need to be upgraded for computers, for the Internet. Many times there is overcrowding, and new schools need to be built. Well, the Democrats have been saying and the President and Vice President GORE have been saying let us provide some money back to the towns, back to the local school districts to accomplish that goal but, no, the Republicans do not want to do that.

Basically, they are saying that these are not important. We should not provide money to reduce class size, to hire more teachers, to provide for school modernization. Democrats are saying, let us stay here and get the job done. We are not going to leave until the job is done and those two education initiatives are passed.

Let me mention some of the other issues. Prescription drugs, Governor Bush, the Republican candidate for President, said the other day that he was very concerned and wanted to provide some sort of benefit of prescription drugs, but I do not see it happening here. The Democrats have been saying they want a Medicare prescription drug benefit. Put it up. Let us vote on it. Same thing with HMO reform. We passed a good HMO reform bill here, the Norwood-Dingell bill, the Patients' Bill of Rights. It went over to the Senate and it died there. It died in conference. The conference has not even met. I am a member. I am one of the conferees. The conference has not met in several months. These are the kinds of things that the American people want done. They want HMO reform. They want the Patients' Bill of Rights. They want a Medicare prescription drug benefit. They want to do something about education.

What is more important to this country than good public schools? But we do not see any action on these things. We do not see any action. We say, go home. Come here one day. We will pass another continuing resolution, keep the government going for another 5 days or so. I have said before and I will say again, I am not going to support these long-term continuing resolutions for 5 days or a week. We should not allow continuing resolutions for more than one day at a time because we need to force the Republican leadership to get the job done. That is what they came down here for. We should insist and all should insist on staying here through the weekend every day until these appropriation bills are passed.

There are 13 appropriation bills that make up the budget effectively, and only three have been signed. The rest are still languishing here. Some of them are moving now but not enough, certainly not enough for us to go home for the weekend until next Tuesday.

Mr. Speaker, let me say the Republican majority seems to be good at doing only one thing, and that is going home. Well, then the American people should send them home for good this November.

Mr. MOAKLEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. GEORGE MILLER).

(Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. Mr. Speaker, this continuing resolution really should not be approved, and it should not be approved because it is not going to allow us to get the work of this country done in this Congress because it simply postpones the date at which we are going to be held responsible for getting that work done.

I would hope the President does not grant this continuing resolution because a continuing resolution should only be granted so we can get our work done. This continuing resolution is being granted and then everybody is going to go home. Everybody is going to leave here tonight and come back Wednesday, and the continuing resolution runs until Wednesday.

Now we have heard weekend after weekend how the Republicans are going to stay here and work, but nothing happens. No meetings take place. Nobody works. No progress is made, and I think it is time to say enough is enough. The President ought to give us a continuing resolution until Monday and we ought to stay here tomorrow and Saturday and Sunday and get the people's business done.

There is a great deal at stake here. There is a great deal of concern in this country; and we have expressed it on both sides of the aisle, about our education system, about the resources that are necessary for our education system. We strongly believe certainly on this side of the aisle that we ought to increase the expenditures for special education. We ought to increase the expenditures for school construction, for modernization; and we ought to get on with it. We ought to get it done because this is what the people want for their children.

We ought to make sure that clearly the funds are in place for teacher quality, to lower class size, and supposedly both sides of the aisle are for that, except it just is not being done. The President has asked us now, point blank, to get it done and yet we find out that the meetings are not taking place; that the Republican leadership in the Senate and in the House are not coming together to present that plan and that proposal.

So what do we see? We drag on day after day, week after week, and the continuing resolution now, instead of forcing us to get things done, becomes an excuse for which we do not get things done, and meetings do not take place.

So I think we would be much more honest to the people we represent and to the people who are concerned with these issues in the country if we would shorten this continuing resolution; if in fact we would require people to stay here and work. Maybe we ought to go back to open conference committees where people are held accountable for the work product of those committees. I know that this extends in other areas, but I have worked very hard on some of these education bills. We have talked about the help that we can give to many districts that need additional financial assistance for special education, and yet we see that that is bogged down. That cannot be that difficult to resolve, these education issues and to resolve them on behalf of America's families, on behalf of America's children and our local schools.

They need these resources to do the job. They should be given these resources to do the job, and we should do it now.

I would hope that later on when we are asked to vote on the continuing resolutions that people would reject this, and we would get on with a continuing resolution that puts some pressure on the Congress to get done with the people's business and to resolve these issues on health care.

I do not know if we have run out of time, but I would also hope that we could address the problems of prescription drug benefits, that we could address the problems of a Patients' Bill of Rights, that we could address the problems of the minimum wage for millions of workers who need additional financial resources to hold their families together, to provide, hopefully, themselves with the wherewithal to buy some kind of health care policy.

But these are people who are going to work every day, they are working hard, and, at the end of the year, they end up poor. They end up without health care, they end up without decent housing, they end up without decent educational opportunities for their children, and we ought to raise the minimum wage. But we ought to do it now, and we should not continue to provide excuses another 4 days, another 5 days, another 6 days, when everybody just goes home, they hold fund-raising events, they go campaign, they go to golf tournaments, they do all the rest of it. They just forget to do the people's business. And that ought to stop, and we ought to stop that now by defeating this continuing resolution, and maybe give us the continuing resolution to finish this weekend and get the people's work done and go home.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. PEASE). Members are reminded that the use of personal electronic equipment in the Chamber of the House is prohibited under the rules of the House, and Members are to disable wireless telephones on the floor of the House.

Mr. LINDER. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. KINGSTON), a member of the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. KINGSTON. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me time.

Mr. Speaker, I want to address why this CR, this continuing resolution, is necessary. What it does is it allows our government to keep functioning. Now, there are those who do not want one. That would mean the government shuts down. I do not know if they have quite thought that through, but we do not want the government to shut down.

Now, why is the budget not signed? There are a couple of reasons that we think this is necessary to do today. Number one, we are at the point in the budget where the leadership on the Committee on Appropriations is working directly with the White House.

Now, the President has been out of town. The President has been in the Middle East. I think it is important for the President to be in the Middle East. I think it is important for America to be doing what America has been doing in the Middle East, to try to get Chairman Arafat and Prime Minister Barak together, because what is going on in the Middle East is not just about the Middle East, it is about the whole globe; and I respect the President for dedicating the time that he has to try to resolve that. But obviously the President cannot negotiate the budget and the appropriations bills when he is out of town, so we are having to wait.

Now, the President is in town today, but then again tomorrow, Mr. Speaker, he will be at the funeral of his friend, the Governor of Missouri. Many of our Members, Republican and Democrat, including the distinguished Democrat leader, will be there for that important funeral of a very important, well-respected national figure. So there are a lot of Members of Congress who are going to be in Missouri tomorrow. We respect that. That is a bipartisan thing.

But during that period of time, there will still be a crew here negotiating on the budget, a crew here talking. There will be people working through the weekend, and that is what the leaders on the Committee on Appropriations and the leadership in the House have been doing and will continue to do.

So all of this finger pointing, that we are in this situation because somebody has done something wrong, I guess that is what George Bush was talking about the other day when he said it is time to get some people together who have a can-do attitude in Washington, who want to solve problems, who will reach out to the other side, reaching out to the Senate and the White House.

I do not think the American people want to hear all this partisan sniping today. The Members on the other side know that we passed the majority of the Committee on Appropriations bills, I think 12 out of 13, before we left town for the August work period, and we feel good that those were passed.

But this is a bicameral process, there are three branches of government; and just because the House passes the bill does not mean it ends there. It goes to the Senate, and the Senate has different visions and different ideas. Then we know also in order to have the White House sign it, they have their own visions and ideas. So we are in this very complicated process of resolving a $1.8 trillion budget for a country of 275 million people, and it should not surprise anybody that it takes a long time.

What is it that the House Republicans are trying to do? What is our vision? Well, our vision is simple. We want to pay our obligations first for Social Security. It was the House Committee on Appropriations that said we are going to quit using the Social Security trust fund for general operating expenses. After all, no business in America can mix its pension plan with its operating expenses. Who would do that? Who, but the U.S. Congress? Four years ago we stopped that process, and that has been one of our highest priorities.

Our second priority, of course, has been to protect and preserve the insurance policy for our seniors, the Medicare program, and we have done that. You will remember that 3 or 4 years ago the bipartisan Medicare trustees appointed by the President said it is going bankrupt if we do not act to preserve and protect it. We did, and now Medicare is on more solid footing.

This year our budget called for a prescription drug benefit for American seniors; not one that would insure Ross Perot and Bill Gates and other people who do not need the benefit, but targeting those who are in the most economic need of a prescription drug benefit. We have done that. We had a program that gave our seniors choices, not a universal required mandatory plan, and yet that was not passed by the Senate.

Well, again, that is what bicameral legislation is about. We are going to continue working on that.

I am happy to say that this House Committee on Appropriations in the agriculture bill did do something very significant to bring down the cost of prescription drugs, and that is the Drug Reimportation Act. The Drug Reimportation Act allows our seniors to buy lower-cost American manufactured drugs in other countries, such as Canada and Mexico, and take advantage of savings that they can get in those countries that they are not able to get right now, because, if they do, the Clinton-Gore FDA says no, you cannot go to Canada and buy your Zocor.

But I will tell you the case of a woman in our office, Myrlene Free. Her sister is on Zocor. If she buys it in Texas, it is $97; but if she goes to Mexico, it is $29. Now, this Republican Congress reached out to people like her and said we want you to be able to do that, and we put some language in the agriculture appropriation bill to allow that.

But, better than that, we said this is great news for people in boarder States, but what about the interior States? We are going to let them do it through the Internet, and also let their neighborhood pharmacist reimport drugs. Keep in mind, Mr. Speaker, these are American-made and American-manufactured drugs, the same dosage as they are already taking, and at as much as a 40 to 50 percent savings. That not only helps millions of American seniors, but millions and millions of young mothers raising kids.

I have four children. I know how expensive it is to keep a family in good health, and prescription drugs is part of our budget. This bill will bring down the cost of it. Now, we did get an agreement with the Senate on this, we do have an agreement with the President on this, and I think that has been worth fighting for. I think it has been worth the negotiating process.

There are other issues out there, such as trade opportunities for our farmers with Cuba. That is still out there.

Then we are going to be debating what to do about funding international abortion agencies. Mr. Speaker, that is always a controversial issue, and it is a bipartisan issue. You have pro-lifers and pro-choicers on both sides of the aisle. But this takes time.

We have another amendment out there that deals with the situation in Yugoslavia. Should we withhold funds from Serbia? Should we withhold funds from Montenegro because they are having elections out there that have turned out on a positive note right at this point? We want to support Mr. Kostunica; but, on the same hand, what do you do with Mr. Milosevic? That is pending in front of the Committee on International Relations right now.

There is another piece of legislation introduced by many Members from the Democrat side, with some bipartisan support from the Republican side, that takes a similar approach in Palestine and says do we want to give Palestinians foreign aid money in the face of what appears is going on in the peace process, or should we use that money as a tool to get both parties back at the table with maybe a more cooperative attitude?

These, Mr. Speaker, are important issues. These are bipartisan issues. These are not things that, well, we are going to haggle over and see who can claim victory on this or that, but things that sincere Members of Congress with serious legislative proposals have come to the floor and said, you know what, the appropriation bills are somewhat the last train leaving town, can you put these amendments on the bills? We are narrowed down to the home stretch, and that is what takes so long.

But this is America. This is a Republic, where everybody has opinions. That is why it has taken so long for us to adjourn.

Mr. Speaker, I urge Members to reconsider their positions and support this continuing resolution, so that we can keep the government operating, not have a shutdown, and finalize these very, very important issues.

Mr. MOAKLEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 8 minutes to the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY), the ranking member on the Committee on Appropriations.

(Mr. OBEY asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks and include extraneous material.)

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me time.

Mr. Speaker, we are now 6 weeks beyond the deadline for completing our work on the budget. The main reason we are that far behind is not because of what is happening now; it is because for 8 months this Congress proceeded under false pretenses, and the majority party pretended that there was enough room in the budget to pass their gigantic tax package, most of which favored the most well-off and the most privileged among us.

Now, one by one, the appropriation subcommittees are finally being allowed to produce bills that reflect in real terms what both parties recognize needs to be provided for science, for transportation, for housing. We finished a bill just a few minutes ago that finally recognized reality.

But for 8 months, because of the political pretense that the surpluses were going to be large enough that you could make all of these wild tax promises to everybody, we have proceeded on the assumption that this Congress is going to spend about $40 billion to $50 billion less than it will wind up spending. Now, in fact, ironically, some of the appropriation bills are coming back in excess of the President's request; and some of that is justified, in my view, and some of that is not.

But now we have a real problem, because we are down to the last few issues. And, yes, there is an issue remaining on family planning; and, yes, there are a couple of other issues remaining in other bills, but essentially there are very few differences remaining between the majority party and us.

The main issue that remains is education, and, to a secondary extent, what we are going to spend on health programs and on worker protection and worker training programs.

Mr. Speaker, we have seen a lot of talk in the press about the legislative chaos that has produced the requirement for a series of continuing resolutions. I do not believe that that is the case. I am coming increasingly to believe that these delays are purposeful, and I would like to explain why.

This calendar shows in red seven days a week, a normal weekly schedule. This calendar shows in red the times that we have been in session since Labor Day. I want to walk you through it.

The week after Labor Day we were in for less than 24 hours. We came in after 6 o'clock on Wednesday and left before 6 o'clock on Thursday.

The next week we were in about 48 hours. We came in at 6 o'clock on Tuesday and were gone by that time on Thursday.

The next week we were here, as you can see, parts of 4 days, but, actually, in terms of real time spent, about 3 days of work.

If you get down to the week of October 2, that is the only week since Labor Day that we have put in a 5-day week here.

Do you see what happened last week? We came in late on Tuesday; the week was foreshortened by the unfortunate death of our colleague, Mr. Vento.

This week we were in session for a couple of hours yesterday, starting very late in the afternoon, around 5 o'clock, and we will be out of session by sometime between 6 and 7 o'clock tonight.

It is a little over a day today, and then people will be at another funeral Friday. I think what this schedule does is to make it easier and easier for the majority party to avoid ever having to face up and actually vote on the issues that divide us on the issue of education.

Mr. Speaker, that is what I think is going on, and so now what is going to happen is when this CR is passed to keep the government open another week, what will happen is we will have a brief meeting around 4:00 or 5:00 today in the Subcommittee on Labor, Health and Human Services and Education. There may be another meeting after that; but I will tell you something, I have been stuck here, I feel like a fugitive on a chain gang, because as the ranking Democrat on the Committee on Appropriations, I have been here 3 weekends out of the last 4 weekends through the weekend, so has Mr. Lew from the White House.

The President has always been a phone call away, and yet while we have been waiting for something to happen, nothing has happened. Why? Because the leadership of both Houses refused to delegate the decision-making power fully to the committee with the responsibility to get the work done, that is the Committee on Appropriations. That is the problem. Well, I will tell you something, I have got some things I want to do in my district, too.

I see the leadership going all over the country campaigning for marginal Members. In my view, if I have to stay here, they ought to stay here. So if you want me to stay in town this weekend, I want to know that the Speaker, the floor leader, the deputy floor leader and all of the people making the real decisions are going to stay here, too, but they are not going to. They will be out of town while the appropriators will be stuck here pretending that something real is going on.

Now, to me, if you want to get a decision made, delegate it to the people who know how to work it out. If you do not trust their judgment, then stay in town yourselves and sit down with your opposite Members and our leadership and get the job done, but do not ask the appropriators to stay in town to give the rest of the leadership cover while they go off to campaign around the country.

If we pass resolutions like this, we are going to be here until next Saturday and probably the following Saturday, and that will get us so close to the election that, in the end, what you will have been able to do is to avoid voting on the issues on education that divide us. That is what I believe the game plan is. That may suit your partisan purposes, but it does not suit the needs of the country or this institution.

Mr. Speaker, I am going to vote against this continuing resolution because we ought to have one that makes us be back here Sunday or Monday for everybody to get the work done.

Mr. LINDER. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG) chairman of the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I really had not intended to speak on the rule, but my friend from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY) has excited my imagination here. When I saw his chart, I decided to bring out a larger chart that, more or less, reinforces what the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY) has said, but I am going to take a little different spin on it.

My spin is the Committee on Appropriations has done its job in the House. The House appropriators have done their job. I hope that we can focus on this fiscal year calendar, which is a little easier to understand than the one that the gentleman had. If you look at all of the red colored days in October, November, December, January, February, March and part of April, that is how much time all of the fiscal year that is gone before the Committee on Appropriations ever gets a budget resolution, which is when we can begin our work appropriating, which is what the Constitution tells us to do.

The blue colored days are the days that the House has not been in session. And in order to get 13 bills through 13 sets of hearings, meaning 200 to 300 hearings and 13 subcommittee markups and 13 full committee markups and 13 bills on the Floor, we have only the green colored days available to do that. That is part of the problem.

The budget resolution does not get adopted until after these red days are all gone leaving only the green days, that is a problem with the budget process.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. I yield to the gentleman from Wisconsin.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, I would simply say to the gentleman the only difference between his chart and mine is that his chart in the green gives credit for the entire day even if we have only been allowed to be in session for a couple of hours. So the charts are essentially in agreement.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Reclaiming my time, Mr. Speaker, I do admit that the gentleman's chart did go down to the hour. I was tempted to make mine go down to the minute to compete with his, but I thought just days would be good enough.

But the point is that despite this problem of time, the House did its job. We got our bills out of here, and the 13th bill, which was for the District of Columbia, was on this floor in July before we went to the August recess. Now, that bill was not completed at that time. It was pulled off the floor, and we did not get back to it until August.

The gentleman is correct that there is a problem of time here, but other things needed to be done. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. KINGSTON), I thought, made a good point. Once we did our job, that was only part of the process, and the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY) has told us so many times there is no use getting to first base if you cannot get home.

The truth of the matter is you cannot get home if you do not get to first base. And so getting through our committee work was first base; going through the House floor that was second base; then you have to go through the other body. We have a bicameral legislature. The other body, the United States Senate, has to do the same thing that we do, they have to pass all the bills too.

Well, this year they did not pass all their bills. This year they still have not passed all of their bills, and so we have to come up with creative ways to pass a bill through the system that has not passed in the other body. And so far we have done that.

We did a bill today that, more or less, went through that creative process. The VA, HUD bill went through that process. But now then where does that leave us? Even after the other body passes the bills, their priorities may be different than ours, and most of the time they are. So we have to sit down together and reason together to figure out what is a responsible way to present this package to both the House and the Senate, so that we can get it passed in both the House and Senate. That takes a little bit of time.

We have been spending a lot of time, as the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY) said. Appropriators have been here day after day after day, whether they were colored red, blue or green on my calendar. Appropriators have been here dealing with these differences. But then there is another factor before you get to home base, that is the President of the United States. When a bill gets to his desk, he has a power that is the same as two-thirds of the House and the Senate, because if that one person, the President of the United States, does not approve of the bill and he vetoes it, it takes a two-thirds vote in both the House and Senate to override the veto.

Well, we have a small majority in this Congress. We do not have a two-thirds vote; although, we did override the President's veto on the Energy and Water bill in the House just a few days ago, but, nevertheless, because we have a small majority, we have to work with the President and with his staff to try to send bills out of here that he will sign, so that we do not have to be here week after week waiting for those vetoes.

Mr. Speaker, the gentleman mentioned the education bill. We have been meeting with the White House on the education bill now for weeks, and we still have not come to a conclusion with the President on what is going to be in that bill. What will he sign? Earlier there was a strategy to send him a bill and let him veto it and send it back.

We rejected that strategy. We thought we should work with the President, work with the minority party, and that is what we have been trying to do. The minority staff has been involved in every meeting with the majority staff, but those things take time.

And I am as frustrated as my colleague from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY), the ranking member on the Committee on Appropriations. I wish this work would have been done in July when the House finished passing the bills but we only control one-third of the process. And that is one reason that it is taking more time.

I want to say to my friend, the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY), in as friendly a way as I can say it that we have spent many days on appropriations bills in this House that were unnecessary. The majority party allowed the minority party hour upon hour of debate on amendments that we all knew were not in order; that were not protected by the rule; that were subject to a point of order, but yet we allowed the minority party all of that extra time because they wanted to make their arguments.

We believe in freedom of speech. This is a debating society in this House. So we allowed many, many days of debate on appropriations bills that really were not necessary, except for the political debate that was going on. Had we not done that, had we just decided to jam the minority party, we would not have allowed those amendments to even be discussed. We would have raised a point of order against them immediately, but we allowed them to go on for hour upon hour upon hour before finally raising the point of order or before they were withdrawn by the sponsor.

Mr. Speaker, when we get right down to it, time is a problem. But I would suggest that the majority party is not any more guilty of absorbing and using the time than the minority party or the President of the United States. You see it seems in this process everybody has to have it their way or no way, but when we are dealing with a bicameral legislature and a President of the United States, we have to come together.

It is amazing. On the bill that we just passed, we passed it with a large vote. It was a good bill, because we finally came together, and we made it happen. We had the Agriculture appropriations bills a few days ago. We came together. We worked together. And we produced a good product.

We do not need to have political rhetoric. We do not need that. The political points ought to be made back home on the campaign trail. In here, we should do the people's business. In here, people should come before politics. Back home is where we do our politics. Here we do the people's business.

We should expedite this business the best we can, and we should be thorough, and we should be responsible.

Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me as much time as he did.

Mr. MOAKLEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY), the ranking member of the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me the time.

The gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG) says that the majority gave us a lot of time to talk about issues that concerned us. They gave us a lot of time, but they did not allow us to get any votes on the issues that demonstrated where we wanted to take this country on education, on health care and a whole range of other issues.

The gentleman used the Committee on Rules and you used the budget resolution to prevent us from ever having votes on our alternatives while you were free to put yours on the floor. If you want me to change time for votes any time, I would be happy to do that. We would have had much the better deal.

Secondly, I would point out, that is consistent with what you have done across the board. You did not give us an opportunity to have a vote on our version of a prescription drug bill under Medicare, so we wound up with your bill of goods rather than our bill being on the floor.

On the tax bill, we were not allowed to have a vote on our alternative, so we had to reshape our alternative to fit it into your rules.

The fact remains, in the last 6 years they have tried to cut education $13 billion below the President's budgets, and they have tried to cut education below previous year's spending levels by $5.7 billion over that time period, and it has been only because of the fights that we and the White House have waged that we were able to add $15 billion over that period of time to the various appropriation bills for education.

Mr. Speaker, I include for the RECORD an insert on Republican attacks relating to education and a number of charts illustrating education numbers:

The material referred to is as follows:

EFFORTS TO ATTACK EDUCATION—1994 THROUGH 2000

Across the nation Republican Congressional Candidates are giving speeches and running ads pretending to be friends of education. Those speeches and ads fly in the face of the historical record of the past six years. That record demonstrates that education has been one of the central targets of House Republican efforts to cut federal investments in programs essential for building America's future in order to provide large tax cuts they have been promising their constituents.

Six years ago in their drive to take control of the House of Representatives, the Republican Leaders led by Newt Gingrich produced a so-called ''Contract with America'' which they claimed would balance the budget while at the same time making room for huge tax cuts. They indicated that one of the ways they would do so was by abolishing four departments of the federal government. Eliminating the U.S. Department of Education was their number one goal. They also wanted they said to eliminate the Departments of Energy, Commerce and HUD.

Immediately upon taking over the Congress in 1995 they proposed cuts below existing appropriations in a rescission bill, HR 1158. That bill passed the House on March 16, 1995 reducing federal expenditures by nearly $12 billion. Education programs accounted for $1.7 billion of the total. While the budget of the Department of Education totaled only 1.6% of federal expenditures in fiscal 1995, it contributed 14% to the spending reductions in the House Republican package. The package was adopted with all but six House Republicans voting in favor. (See Roll Call #251 for the 104th Congress, 1st session—CONGRESSIONAL RECORD, March 16, 1995, page H3302)

Next, legislation (HR 1883) was introduced which called for ''eliminating the Department of Education and redefining the federal role in education.'' The legislation was cosponsored by more than half of all House Republicans including as original cosponsors, current Speaker Dennis Hastert, Majority Leader Dick Armey, and Majority Whip Tom Delay.

The desire to eliminate the Department of Education was stated explicitly in both the Report that accompanied the Republican Budget Resolution passed by the House and in the Conference Report on the Budget that accompanied the final product agreed to by both House and Senate Republicans. The Conference Report for H. Con. Res. 76 (the FY 1996 Budget Resolution) states flatly, ''In the area of education, the House assumes the termination of the Department of Education.''

That FY96 Budget Resolution not only proposed the adoption of legislation to terminate the Department organizationally, but put in place a spending plan to eliminate funding for a major portion of the Department's activities and programs in hopes of partially achieving the goal of elimination even if the President refused to sign a formal termination for the Department. The Conference Agreement adopted on June 29, 1995 proposed cuts in funding for Function 500, the area of the budget containing all federal education programs, or $17.6 billion or 34 percent below the amount needed to keep even with inflation over the six-year period starting in Fiscal 1996. The House passed Resolution had proposed even larger cuts. Every House Republican except one voted for both the House Resolution and the Conference Report.

That Budget Resolution established a framework for passage of the 13 appropriation bills. The Labor-HHS-Education appropriations bill, which contains the vast majority of funds that go to local school districts, was the hardest hit by that resolution. The Fiscal 1996 appropriations bill for labor, health, and education was adopted by the House on August 4th 1995. It slashed funding from the $25 billion level that had been originally approved for the Department in fiscal 1995 to $20.8 billion for the coming year. This $4.2 billion or 17 percent cut below prior year levels was even larger when inflation was considered and was passed in the face of information indicating that total school enrollment in the United States was increasing by about three quarters of a million students a year. The programs affected by these cuts included Title I for disadvantaged children (reduced by $1.1 billion below the prior year), teacher training (reduced by $251 million), vocational education (reduced by $273 million), Safe and Drug Free Schools (reduced by $241 million), and Goals 2000 to raise student performance (reduced by $361 million). Republicans voted in favor of the bill, 213 to 18. (See Roll Call #626 for the 104th Congress, 1st session—CONGRESSIONAL RECORD, August 4, 1995, page H8420) The bill was opposed by virtually every national organization representing parents, teachers, school administrators, and local school boards.

The Republican Leadership of the House was so determined to force the President to sign that legislation and other similar appropriations that they were willing to see the government shut down twice to, in the words of one Republican Leader, ''force the President to his knees.'' Speaker Gingrich said, ''On October 1, if we don't appropriate, there is no money * * * You can veto whatever you want to. But as of October 1, there is no government * * * We're going to go over the liberal Democratic part of the government and then say to them: 'We could last 60 days, 90 days, 120 days, five years, a century.' There's a lot of stuff we don't care if it's ever funded. (Rocky Mountain News, June 3, 1995) It is clear that the Labor-HHS-Education bill, and education funding in particular, was at the heart of the controversy that resulted in those government shutdowns. Cutting education was an issue that Republicans felt so strongly about that they literally were willing to see the government shut down in an attempt to achieve this goal. Speaker Gingrich said, ''I don't care what the price is. I don't care if we have no executive offices, and no bonds for 60 days—not this time.'' (Washington Post, September 22, 1995) House Republican Whip Tom DeLay said, ''We are going to fund only those programs we want to fund * * * We're in charge. We don't have to negotiate with the Senate; we don't have to negotiate with the Democrats.'' (Baltimore Sun, January 8, 1996)

When the government shut down, the public reacted strongly against Republican House Leadership hard-headedness and that led to the eventual signing of the Conference Agreement on Labor HHS-Education funding as part of an omnibus appropriations package on April 26, 1996, more than halfway through the fiscal year. That action came after 9 continuing resolutions and those two government shutdowns. That agreement restored about half of the cuts below prior year funding that had been pushed through by the Republican Majority, raising the original House Republican figure of $20.8 billion for education to $22.8 billion.

Later in 1996 the Republican House Caucus organized another attempt to cut education funding below prior year levels in the fiscal 1997 Labor-HHS-Education bill. Only July 12, 1996 the House adopted the bill with Republicans voting 209 to 22 in favor of passage (See Roll Call #313, CONGRESSIONAL RECORD, July 11, 1996, page H7373.) The bill cut Education by $54 million below the levels agreed to for fiscal 1996 and $2.8 billion below the President's request. During the debate on that bill Republicans also voted (227–2) to kill an amendment specifically aimed at restoring $1.2 billion in education funding. (See Roll Call #303, CONGRESSIONAL RECORD, July 11, 1996, page H7330).

As the fall and election of 1996 began to approach, the Republican commitment to cut education began to be overshadowed by their desire to adjourn Congress and go home to campaign. As a result, the President and Democrats in Congress forced them to accept an education package that was more $3.6 billion above House passed levels.

1997 brought a one-year respite from Republican efforts to squeeze education. For one year, a welcome bipartisan approach was followed and the appropriation that passed the House and the final conference agreement were extremely close to the amounts requested by the President and the Department of Education.

Conflict between the two parties over education funding erupted again in 1998 when the President requested $31.2 billion for the Department for fiscal 1999. In July, the House Appropriations Committee reported on a party line vote a Labor-HHS-Education bill that cut the President's education budget by more than $660 million. But the bill remained in legislative limbo until after the beginning of the next fiscal year. Then on October 2, 1998 Republicans voted with only six dissenting votes to bring the bill to the floor. (See Roll Call #476, CONGRESSIONAL RECORD, October 2, 1998, page H9314). The leadership then reversed itself on its desire to call up the bill and refused to bring it to the floor. The House Republican Leadership finally grudgingly agreed to negotiate higher levels for education so they could return home and campaign. The White House and Democrats in Congress were able to force them to accept a funding level for education that was $2.6 billion above the House bill.

Last year, in 1999, House Republican Leaders again directed their Appropriators to report a Labor-HHS-Education Appropriation bill that cut education spending below the President's request and below the level of the prior year. The FY2000 bill reported by the Appropriations Committee on a straight party line vote funded education programs at nearly $200 million below the FY1999 level. The bill was almost $1.4 billion below the President's request. Included in the cuts below requested levels were reductions in Title I grants to local school districts for education of disadvantaged students ($264 million), after school programs ($300 million), education reform and accountability efforts ($491 million), and improvement of educational technology resources ($301 million). Because inadequate funding threatened their ability to pass the bill, House Republican Leaders never brought it to the House floor. After weeks of pressure from House Democrats they ordered a separate bill that had been agreed to with Senate Republican Leaders to be brought to the House floor. The bill contained significantly more education funding than the original House bill but still cut the President's request for class size reduction by $200 million, after-school programs by $300 million, Title I by almost $200 million and teacher quality programs by $353 million. The bill was opposed by the Committee for Education Funding which represents 97 national organizations interested in education including parent and teacher groups, school boards, and school administrators. It was adopted by a vote of 218 to 211 with House Republicans voting 214 to 7 in favor. (See Roll Call #549, CONGRESSIONAL RECORD, October 28, 1999, page H11120) It was also promptly vetoed by the President. After further negotiations, they agreed on November 18th to add nearly $700 million more, which we were requesting to education programs.

This year the President proposed a $4.5 billion increase for education programs in the FY2001 budget. The bill reported by House Republicans cut the President's request by $2.9 billion. Cuts below the request included $400 million from Title I, $400 million from after school programs, $1 billion for improving teacher quality and $1.3 billion for repair of dilapidated school buildings. It was adopted by a vote of 217–214 with House Republicans voting 213 to 7 in favor. (See Roll Call #273, CONGRESSIONAL RECORD, June 14, 2000, page H4436).

When the FY2001 Labor-HHS-Education bill was sent to conference a motion to instruct Conferees to go to the higher Senate levels for education and other programs was offered. It also instructed conferees to permit language insuring that funds provided for reducing class size and repairing school buildings was used for those purposes. It was defeated 207 to 212 with Republicans voting 208 to 4 in opposition. (See Roll Call #415, CONGRESSIONAL RECORD, July 19, 2000, page H6563).

In summary, the record clearly shows that over the past six years House Republicans set the elimination of the Department of Education as a primary goal. Failing that, they attempted to reduce education funding to the maximum extent possible. In every year since they have had control of the House of Representatives they have attempted to cut the President's request for education funding. Appropriations bills passed by House Republicans would have cut a total of $14.6 billion from presidential requests for education funding. In three of the six years that they have controlled the House, they have actually attempted to cut education funding below prior year levels despite steady increases in school enrollment and the annual increase in costs to local school districts of providing quality classroom instruction.

The education budget cuts have not been directed at Washington bureaucrats as some Republicans have tried to argue but mainly at programs that send money directly to local school districts to hire teachers and improve curriculum. Programs such as Title I, After School, Safe and Drug Free Schools, Class Size Reduction, and Educational Technology Assistance all send well over 95% of their funds directly to local school districts. While zealots in the Republican Conference drove much of this agenda it is clear that they could not have succeeded without the repeated assistance from dozens of Republican moderates who attempt to portray themselves as friends of education.

The one redeeming aspect of the Republican record on education over the last six years is that in most years they failed to achieve the cuts that they spent most of each year fighting to impose. When a coalition between the Democrats in Congress and the President made it clear that the bills containing these cuts would be vetoed and that the Republicans by themselves could not override the vetoes, legislation that was far more favorable to education was finally adopted. For Republican members to attempt to take credit for that fact is in effect bragging on their own political ineptitude. The question concerned Americans must ask is: What will happen if the Republicans find a future opportunity to deliver on their six-year agenda? They may eventually become more skillful in their efforts. They may at some point have a larger majority in one or both Houses or they may serve under a President that will be more amenable to their agenda. All of these prospects should be very troubling to those who feel that local school districts cannot do the job that the country needs without great assistance from the federal government.

This is not an issue of local versus federal control. Almost 93% of the money spent for elementary and secondary education at the local level is spent in accordance with the wishes of state and local governments. But there are national implications to failing schools in any part of the country. The federal government has an obligation to try to help disseminate information about what does and does not work in educating children, and it has an obligation to respond to critical needs by defining and focusing on national priorities. And that is what the other 7% of educational funding in this country does. Education is indeed primarily a local responsibility, but it must be a top priority at all levels—federal, state, and local—or we will not get the job done.

The House Republican candidates now shout loudly that they can be trusted to support education, but their record over the last six years speaks louder than their words. Their record shows that in three of the last six years, House Republicans tried to cut education $5.5 billion below previous levels and $14.6 billion below presidential requests. It shows that the more than $15.6 billion that has been restored came only after Democrats in Congress and in the White House demanded restoration. That is the record that must be understood by those concerned about education's future.

Mr. LINDER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I would point out to the gentleman from Wisconsin what the Committee on Rules did on the appropriation bills was to use the standing rules of the House. Those who were offering amendments germane to the subject matter were allowed votes, those who did not were not allowed votes.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MOAKLEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3½ minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. STARK).

Mr. STARK. Mr. Speaker, I thank the ranking member for yielding me the time.

I have enjoyed this collegial debate between the Chair and the ranking member of the Committee on Appropriations. I only wish the rest of the House worked as well.

The gentleman from Georgia stated that the government functions. The government functions just fine. The Republican leadership is what is dysfunctional in this town.

For example, there is no one in this room, there is no one in this country, particularly the seniors, who do not know that it is time to have a prescription drug benefit for the seniors. We who legislate in other committees and have the responsibility for a prescription drug benefit have not been allowed to participate in any of that discussion.

For example, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. SHAW) who serves on the Committee on Ways and Means with me has voted two or three times, along with every other Republican on the Committee on Ways and Means, to deny the seniors in this country a discount on their prescription drugs. Just think, being from Florida, as the gentleman from Florida (Mr. SHAW) is with lots of seniors, how could the gentleman vote two or three times to deny even bringing to the floor for discussion a discount for seniors for their prescription drugs? Those are the kinds of things that are being held up.

This House passed a Patients' Bill of Rights, a bipartisan Patients' Bill of Rights to bring under control the managed care plans, the HMOs that provide service to our citizens. That bill is tied up. It is dead in the water because the Republicans refuse to move it along.

What have they done instead? In a balanced budget give-back bill, as it is called, a bill that helped our health care providers and to some extent our beneficiaries, they are rewarding the managed care plans with somewhere between $6 and $30 billion.

Why do I not know why? Because no one will tell the Democrats what is in the bill. The bill is in the Speaker's office. Lobbyists are parading in and out of the Speaker's office working on the Republican bill, and not telling the rest of the Members.

At any rate, as near as we can determine, there is somewhere between $6 and $30 billion going as a reward to the managed care plans, regardless of whether they provide a prescription drug benefit or maintain the effort of keeping their plans open in rural areas; no strings attached, take the money and run. They give a reward of that magnitude to the very people that we voted to regulate.

What would we do if we did not give that money to the managed care plans? We would give 2 extra years of update to the hospitals, we would help home health care, and we would provide more benefits for our beneficiaries. That is what is going on under all of this as the Republicans stall the work of this Congress.

Mr. LINDER. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MOAKLEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. PELOSI).

Ms. PELOSI. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding time to me, the distinguished ranking member.

Mr. Speaker, I rise to oppose the continuing resolution because I think it is time we got about the people's business. The decisions that we will be making in the next few days and next week are about our national budget, the appropriation of funds to meet the needs of the American people.

I believe that our national budget should be a statement of our national values. What we think is important is what we should put our resources to. So we are coming down to the last few or several appropriations bills. One of them is Labor, Health, and Human Services, which is the lion's share of our domestic budget. In that budget we fund the Department of Education and the Federal role in education. In that bill we also fund the National Institutes of Health.

All of the studies that we receive from the National Institutes of Health and other research organizations that are funded by the Federal government tell us that children learn better in smaller classes. Indeed, we are even learning that some children do better in smaller schools.

We pay for this research. We have the best scientists in the world applying their intellects to it. They give us their conclusions. Then this body chooses to ignore those conclusions about smaller classes and smaller schools.

President Clinton has an initiative on the table which has been rejected by the Republican majority. The President's proposal would provide interest-free loans for localities to have bond measures for school modernization, for smaller classes, and rewiring schools.

If we are going to have smaller classes, we need more classrooms and we need more teachers. If we are going to have our children prepared for the future, we need to have these schools modernized, wired for the future.

It is really very, very difficult to understand how the Republican majority can reject such a reasonable proposal, a proposal based on science and for the well-being of America's children. That by and large is the main argument that is keeping us here.

At the same time, the Republican majority has chosen to take four- or five-day weekends, instead of attending to a prescription drug benefit for our seniors, a real prescription drug benefit for our seniors; instead of a subsidized premium for insurance companies, which they may or may not even decide to offer; and to attend to a real Patients' Bill of Rights.

But it is about the children that we are here. The Republican majority is asking us to vote for a continuing resolution, not so that we can continue our work until we are finished, but so that we can go home for 4 or 5 days, come back with work unfinished, and ask for another continuing resolution. I urge my colleagues to vote no on the CR.

Mr. LINDER. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MOAKLEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. ANDREWS).

(Mr. ANDREWS asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, I thank my friend, the gentleman from Massachusetts, for yielding time to me.

Mr. Speaker, we are having an argument that is worth having. The argument is predicated on this, as the gentlewoman from California (Ms. PELOSI) just said.

In the springtime, the majority passed a budget that was predicated on the proposition that we should pass sweeping tax cuts in this year's budget. We disagree with that. That is an argument worth having. We believe that the principal fiscal focus of this country should be on reducing the national debt.

Beyond that, we are having another argument that is worth having about whether we should invest in education more or less, yes or no. We believe, and I think a majority of this House believes, Mr. Speaker, that investment in education should happen.

The reason we are having this argument, the reason we have overshot our deadline by 2 weeks, is that we will stand on principle.

We believe that assistance for school districts around this country in modernizing their schools and building new ones is worth fighting for.

We believe that putting a qualified teacher in every classroom in America, so that particularly in the primary grades children get more one-on-one attention, is worth staying and fighting for.

And we believe that programs like after-school programs, drug and alcohol education, are worth funding to their highest and most practical level. It is an argument worth having.

I commend the Committee on Appropriations for their diligence in moving the process forward, but we will stick to our principles and invest in debt reduction and education improvement for the benefit of the people of this country.

Mr. LINDER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman wishes to stick to his principles with respect to debt reduction, he can support these bills, because each of these appropriation bills has a special line item for debt reduction.

Mr. MOAKLEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I urge a no vote on the previous question. If the previous question is defeated, I will offer an amendment to move the end of the continuing resolution up 2 days from Wednesday, October 25, to Monday, October 23. If we do not move the deadline, there will be no pressure to work, and American families will continue to get short shrift from this Republican Congress.

We need to rebuild our schools. We need to hire new teachers. We need to stay in session until we get the work done.

The text of the amendment, if offered, is as follows:

On page 2, line 4, strike ''and (2)'' and add after the semicolon, ''(2) the amendment printed in section 2 of this resolution which shall be considered as adopted; and (3) ''

At the end of the resolution, add ''Section 2. The amendment to H. J. Res 114 Strike ''October 25, 2000'' and insert ''October 23, 2000''

Mr. LINDER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to support the previous question so we can move on with the vote on the rule and get the continuing resolution on the floor to keep the government open, running, and responsible until we finish our work, our very difficult work this year.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time, and I move the previous question on the resolution.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on ordering the previous question.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. MOAKLEY. Mr. Speaker, I object to the vote on the ground that a quorum is not present and make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Evidently a quorum is not present.

The Sergeant at Arms will notify absent Members.

Pursuant to clause 9 of rule XX, the Chair will reduce to 5 minutes the minimum time for electronic voting, if ordered, on the question of agreeing to the resolution.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 212, nays 193, not voting 27, as follows:

☐ 1538

Mr. DIXON and Mr. CONDIT changed their vote from ''aye'' to ''no.''

So the resolution was agreed to.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

REMOVAL OF NAME OF MEMBER AS COSPONSOR OF HOUSE RESOLUTION 398

Mr. PASCRELL. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that my name be withdrawn as a cosponsor of H. Res. 398.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New Jersey?

There was no objection.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on the joint resolution (H.J. Res. 114) making further continuing appropriations for fiscal year 2001, and for other purposes, and that I may include tabular and extraneous material.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Florida?

There was no objection.

FURTHER CONTINUING APPROPRIATIONS, FISCAL YEAR 2001

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Speaker, pursuant to House Resolution 637, I call up the joint resolution (H.J. Res. 114) making further continuing appropriations for fiscal year 2001, and for other purposes, and ask for its immediate consideration in the House.

The Clerk read the title of the joint resolution.

H.J. RES. 114

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled. That Public Law 106–275, if further amended by striking ''October 20, 2000'' in section 106(c) and inserting in lieu thereof ''October 25, 2000''. Notwithstanding section 106 of Public Law 106–275, funds shall be available and obligations for mandatory payments due on or about November 1, 2000, may continue to be made.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to House Resolution 637, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG) and the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER) each will control 30 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG).

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

(Mr. YOUNG of Florida asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Speaker, the CR before us now should not require much debate, since we did have a very lively debate on the rule on the very same subject, but I am sure the same subjects will be discussed again. But this does extend the funding for the fiscal year until next Wednesday.

It is essential to pass this CR because, although the House has completed its part of the appropriations process quite a long time ago, the part of the process requiring the other body and the administration has not been completed yet, although we are getting very close. We moved out two more bills today, as my colleagues will remember.

This CR does two things: One, it extends the date from midnight tomorrow night until midnight Wednesday night of next week. In addition, because we are reaching the end of the month, it is necessary that we make provision for funding authority for checks that go out automatically every month to those who are in entitlement programs. The agencies involved need to have the authority to go ahead and print the checks, mail the checks, and have them in the mail so that they arrive by the first of the month. Those are the two things this continuing resolution does.

Hopefully, this is the last one we will have to do. One of the outstanding bills is the bill from Labor, Health and Human Services, and Education. We are having another meeting this afternoon on this bill with the White House and with the Republican and Democratic Members representing the House and the Senate, and we hope to finalize those agreements today.

The District of Columbia bill, as most Members know, is ready to file, however, it is being held because it may be needed as a vehicle for another appropriations bill that our colleagues in the other body have not passed yet. So there is somewhat of a delay there. It is not a delay of the making of the House of Representatives or the House appropriators.

And I want to repeat, Mr. Speaker, as I have said so many times, that the House Committee on Appropriations completed its work very early in the year. We had all 13 of our appropriation bills through the House, with the last one on the floor in July before the August recess. That bill was then withdrawn from consideration and put off, but the appropriators were ready to move.

Anyway, we are near the end. It was theoretically possible that we could have done what the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. MOAKLEY) wanted and made this CR go to midnight on Monday night. Because it runs until Wednesday, he opposed the previous question so that he could offer an amendment to take us to midnight Monday. But, Mr. Speaker, tomorrow the House will not be in session out of respect for the Governor of Missouri who was, along with his son, unfortunately killed in a tragic airplane crash. We respect that and the fact that many of our Members will be traveling to Missouri for that funeral tomorrow.

So there will be no business here tomorrow. Saturday and Sunday the House will not meet for recorded votes. Monday the House will not be in for recorded votes. And so, if we go to the policy of having CR's one day at a time, that is a big mistake, Mr. Speaker. If we do that, I can guarantee we will be here until Christmas because it will take all day long to do each CR, and we will not get any other work done.

So we need to get this CR passed and then the appropriators will continue the meetings with the White House. And if we can reach the agreements that we think we will in the next few days, we will have this business completed by midnight Wednesday next.

Mr. Speaker, I ask for support of the CR.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. PEASE). Members are reminded that the use of personal electronic communication devices is prohibited in the Chamber of the House, and they are to disable wireless telephones while they are in the Chamber of the House.

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to this CR.

Mr. Speaker, I have supported the previous CR's. I rise, representing the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY), the ranking member who, unfortunately, has been called off the floor.

Mr. Speaker, the Members of the majority are fortunate. They have been fortunate in September; and they have been fortunate in October. Let me tell my colleagues why. The Olympics were on in September and people were focused on the Olympics. The World Series is just about to start. The playoffs have just completed, and the people have been focused on those. And we have a presidential race. It is a tight race, as everybody knows, and the people have been focused on them. All of those events have captured the public's attention and diverted it from what is not going on in this House.

What is going on here is that one of the greatest deliberative bodies in the world is doing practically nothing. We are at a standstill, Mr. Speaker, and the American people are suffering because of it. No meaningful Patients' Bill of Rights, despite the fact that it enjoys wide bipartisan support. No Medicare prescription drug benefit, despite the fact that our seniors need relief from skyrocketing drug prices. No reasonable gun safety legislation. No Hate Crimes bill. No targeted tax relief for hard-working American families.

Let me say, we could have passed inheritance tax or estate tax or death tax, call it what you will, relief for 98 percent of the estates in this country and the President said he would have signed it. We could pass legislation to relieve married couples from the penalty that they might incur. But because we could not give all of a loaf, we have passed none of the loaf.

As Roll Call stated recently, ''If they paid attention,'' and as I said, they have been distracted because of the Olympics, the World Series, the playoffs, the presidential debate, they, the public, ''surely would be appalled,'' said Roll Call.

We are now considering our fourth continuing resolution because the Republican leadership has not had us doing anything this week, the previous week, the week before that, the week before that and, yes, the week before that. Look at the RECORD. We have hardly met since Labor Day.

My distinguished chairman references the fact that we got our work done in July. With all due respect to the chairman, we passed 13 bills by July which all of us on this side said were not going anywhere and, very frankly, we were absolutely correct and, very frankly in my opinion, the majority knew they were not going anywhere.

How do I know that? Because they said, well, this is the first inning or the second inning or the third inning, we know this is not the real deal; but at some point in time we will get real. We have not done it yet. We are not there yet. There is still no end in sight.

While negotiations have continued behind closed doors, the fact of the matter is the President has still signed only three of the 13 spending bills that fund the basic operations of our government.

I ask my colleagues, is this any way to run a railroad? Well, I do not know about that, but it is certainly no way to run the people's House. Even many of our Republican friends are hard pressed to say it is.

Last week our colleague, the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SANFORD), commented, and I quote Mr. SANFORD, not a Democrat, but Mr. SANFORD, ''Anarchy reigns at the moment. Nobody is quite sure what comes next.''

Clearly we are not, because we are not told. But the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SANFORD) from the majority side says, ''Nobody is quite sure what comes next.''

Let me tell my friends on the Republican side of the aisle one thing they can count on. Democrats will never, never, never sell out America's children. Our kids need and they deserve smaller class sizes, which improves their learning and achievement. The Democrats' class size reduction initiative to hire 100,000 new teachers does just that.

Our kids need, Mr. Speaker, and they deserve safe schools, a great number of which now require repair and renovation. The Democrats' and the President's school modernization initiative does just that. Our kids need and they deserve highly trained and highly qualified teachers. The Democrats' teacher quality initiative does just that. Our kids need and they deserve safe and drug-free schools. The Democrats' safe and drug-free school program does just that.

These, however, Mr. Speaker, are not just Democratic priorities. They are the priorities of the American people. If we fail to enact them by passing a Labor-HHS-Education conference report that looks anything like the bill that passed the House in June, of which my chairman spoke, then we have failed future generations.

Mr. Speaker, I will vote against this resolution. I expect, however, it will pass. I do not want to see the government shut down. Nobody on this floor does. But I do want to see us do our work.

The gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY), who has stayed here the last two weekends, has told me that no meetings have been scheduled to work on any of the bills. So that when we go home tonight at some point in time, apparently no work will be done on Friday, no work done on Saturday, no work done on Sunday, no work done on Monday; and we will come back Tuesday at some point in time.

As I said, I will vote against this resolution. But I also want to urge the majority party, the party that wanted to eliminate the Department of Education to take education off the chopping block, we can do better, we should do better, we must do better, and the American people and our children deserve better.

Let us do, I say to my colleagues of this House, what the voters sent us here to do and pass the bills that meet their needs and address their concerns.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. KOLBE) will manage the time previously allocated to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG).

There was no objection.

Mr. KOLBE. Mr. Speaker, I yield 6 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Texas (Mr. DELAY), a member of the committee and, of course, also the majority whip.

Mr. DELAY. Mr. Speaker, this is an election year. Unfortunately, most of the time, the real loser in an election year is the truth.

Mr. Speaker, I have seen the Democrat presidential nominee and the vice presidential nominee travel all over this country taking credit for balancing the budget, taking credit for paying down the debt, taking credit for welfare reform, taking credit for locking up the Social Security surplus and the Medicare surplus.

Yet, the truth of the matter is, when Bill Clinton had a Democrat Congress, they passed budgets that had deficits as far as the eye could see. In fact, their budget they passed, the last one they passed in 1994, said that last year we would have over a $200 billion deficit. Yet now we have surpluses.

In fact, they would lead us to believe that the shutdown of the Government in 1995 was because the Republican Congress was intransigent. If we really look at the record, the shutdown in 1995 came when the President shut down the Government because he did not want a balanced budget. That is what that fight was all about.

On welfare reform, the President of the United States and most of his people in the House and the Senate voted against welfare reform. We had speeches down here in the well of the House accusing us of starving children and putting children in the grates outside and throwing them out of their homes. Yet it was a huge success, so now they want to take credit for it.

The President vetoed welfare reform twice before he finally signed it a couple of months before his reelection campaign.

Last year, when we decided to stop the 40-year-old Democrat practice of taking the Social Security surplus and spending it on Big Government programs, they fought us every step of the way. Yet we did it for the first time in 40 years and, hopefully, forever more.

This last spring, we said that we were going to do the same with the Medicare surplus, we were going to stop the Government from spending the surplus on Big Government programs. And we did it. Now we are saying that we want to lock up 90 percent of the on-budget surplus and use it to pay down the debt.

In the last 2 years, we have paid over $354 billion down on the public debt. We are proposing that next year we pay another, in 1 year, $240 billion down on the public debt that is on the backs of our children and our grandchildren. That is responsible.

The minority and this President have fought us every step of the way while they have taken credit for everything that we have done, and now they say that we are a ''do nothing'' Congress. ''Do nothing'' Congress? The 106th Congress is one of the most productive Congresses in recent history.

This is a single-space list of all the wonderful bills that we have gotten signed by this President dealing with reducing the national debt, with Social Security and Medicare, strengthening retirement security, excellence in education, health care, tax fairness, enhancing the national security of our Nation, protecting families from crimes and drugs, ending lawsuit abuse, advancing the high-tech agenda. And it goes on and on and on. That is what we have done.

Now we have reached the end, and we have had to face for 6 years this event every year. The President submits his budget at the first of the year, and then we do not hear another word from him until the very end, and then he wants all this spending.

He has never vetoed a bill because it had too much spending. He has vetoed bills because they did not have enough spending; and he has drug it on and on and on, especially this year worse than ever.

Mr. Speaker, we remain here today because some people simply will not support the principles of fiscal discipline. The House did its job, and it completed its business. The minority chose not to participate. Some of the 13 bills we passed in this House we had to pass with only Republican votes, and we only have a six-vote margin.

Let us remember what happened earlier this year. The leadership of the other party acknowledged that they had no genuine interest in working together to advance any sort of bipartisan agenda. Instead, they resolved to slow down proceedings, drag out the negotiations, and stall progress. That was their strategy that they started out with this year.

Why in the world would they adopt such a strategy? Well, in some unguarded remarks, they admitted that their drive to become the majority party was predicated on a ''do nothing'' strategy that was designed to stop anything from happening.

It was designed to stop anything from happening, and the indictments that we hear today are indictments on themselves, because they are the ones that have slowed this process down; will not negotiate. We have asked the President for the last 2 months to negotiate these bills with us, and he has chosen not to.

At this point in time, they are holding the bills hostage for issues that have never passed either body, the House or the Senate, because they want their way or they will take their ball and go home. If the President was serious about reaching a reasonable consensus on the budget, he could rapidly conclude the negotiations by finally answering a few simple questions. How much spending is enough? How much money should go for debt reduction? How much money should go for tax relief? He often claims to support tax relief and debt relief but his actions do not reflect these goals. Rather, every effort of this administration, through this budget process, has been to advance his actual agenda and that is spend the surplus.

Support this continuing resolution and let us get our work done.

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 1 minute and 10 seconds.

Mr. Speaker, the majority whip says the truth has not been told on this side of the aisle. I beg to differ with my friend, and I certainly beg to differ with his recitation of history. He relates that the President has vetoed every one of the bills where they tried to cut spending. Now, if that is the case then the fact is that nothing they did on their side has brought us this surplus.

The CBO says that, in fact, the Republican Congresses have added to the deficit, not cut it. Now I will remind the public that in 1993, the majority whip stood on this floor and said if we pass the President's economic program, the deficit is going to soar, unemployment is going to soar, inflation is going to soar, and the economy will go in the Dumpster. He was 180 degrees wrong.

In fact, we now have the best economy in the lifetimes of anybody in this Chamber because of the leadership of this President and the courage of Members to vote for tough programs, tough spending cuts and tough revenues.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 6 minutes to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. BONIOR), the distinguished minority whip.

Mr. BONIOR. Mr. Speaker, we heard from the majority whip, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. DELAY). We heard from my distinguished colleague, the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER). Some of you may be confused who is correct. Let me just quote, if I can, three editorials that have been written recently about this Congress. The Washington Post, October 10, ''The normal role of congressional leadership is to help pass legislation. The principal role in this Congress has been instead to block it.''

They go on to say, the Republicans say they have engaged in no more than normal self-defense. They have lost control of their agenda. They have tried mainly to give the impression of dealing with issues that it has systematically finessed. The finessing of them and the blame are part of what this election is now about.

Roll Call, a newspaper which follows the goings on of the Congress, had an editorial recently that said, what a mess.

The Baltimore Sun had similar comments about the ineptitude of this Congress.

Mr. Speaker, one of the great moments in American history was the successful effort to decrease the work week to 40 hours. At the time it was done, it was considered a radical thing to do, but that is nothing compared to the work week the majority has given this House: A 16-hour work week and a 5-day weekend. That is what this is about, and I would like to take those sheets that the gentleman from Texas (Mr. DELAY) demonstrated just a second ago, and I would imagine that about half of that are filled with the naming of post offices all over this country.

This is the fourth CR, continuing resolution, to keep the government going. We just heard from the gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG) before he yielded the time to the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. KOLBE), that they will not be meeting on Saturday and Sunday. We are 19 days past the date that the fiscal year began and we have not done our work. They have only had 3 of the 13 bills that make the government work signed into law by the President. The rest have not reached him, Mr. Speaker.

So I would say to my colleagues on the other side of the aisle, do your work. Let me remind you, let me remind you of something, that no one elected us to work 2- and 3-day weeks. Let me remind you of something else; that if a policeman or a fireman or an auto worker or a nurse or any other American can put in a full week's work on the job, we can as well.

There is not a working man or woman in this country who has a right to walk away from their job and say, well, I will come back and finish it maybe next week, Tuesday or next week Wednesday, but that is exactly what the majority is telling us. Mr. Speaker, it is high time that we stop that kind of schedule, and that kind of nonsense. Instead of passing one stop gap measure after another to keep the government from shutting down, it is time for all of us to roll up our sleeves, to lock the doors, to stay here and to do the work of the country.

It is not as if we do not have work to do. The main issues that this election is being fought on, the issues that the people are responding to, have not been addressed. Instead of leaving town, we could be putting together a bipartisan bill on prescription drug care. You are campaigning on it. You are running ads on it. Let us do something about it. You are in the leadership. You control what goes on in this body and in the other body. Bring something forward. Instead of complaining, going home, putting a sign on the door saying gone fishing or maybe gone out to the golf tournament there in Manassas, we could be staying here this weekend and dealing with things like the HMO reform bill. You are running ads on it. Let us get it done. Or hate crimes, or the minimum wage. We can find money for the top 1 percent in a tax bill. The top 1 percent making $319,000 a year under your bill would get about $46,000 a year. All we are asking is that the 10 million Americans who go to work every day, who take care of our children, who take care of our aging parents and who make $5.15 to $6.15 an hour, all we want is a minimum wage for them and that has gone nowhere.

How about Latino fairness, to give fairness and justice for those who are here who are doing those jobs I have just described? And what about, of course, education? We will not leave this floor, we will not leave this body, until we get what we want in education; and that means lower class sizes for our children so they can get a better disciplined education. That means school construction so we do not have faucets leaking and roofs falling on top of children in schools, and children learning in mobile units outside the main building. That means as well, Mr. Speaker, after-school programs so our children have a place to go so they do not go home to an empty home where temptation leads them to drugs and alcohol and teen pregnancies and all the other maladies that flow when there are not people there loving them, teaching them, mentoring them; an after-school program that we think, when we fund, can put an additional 1.6 million kids into an after-school program where they can get that attention.

We are not leaving here until those things are done. These are tough issues. They deserve our attention. They deserve our time, and I urge my colleagues to vote no. This is a 5-day CR. We ought to be doing it one day at a time forcing us to stay in this building.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. ISAKSON). Without objection, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG) will manage the time for the majority.

There was no objection.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, if we did one CR every day that is all we would get done. We would not have time to do anything else except the CR one day after another. We would be here until Christmas.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from California (Mr. THOMAS).

(Mr. THOMAS asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. Speaker, it is interesting the way people deal with history around here. For more than 40 years this party was the majority. As recently as 1993 they owned the government. They had the House; they had the Senate. They had the Presidency and yet they have the gall to stand up and say what we should be doing about children in schools. They owned the place. What did they do when they were here? I will tell you. In 1992 and in 1993, this House was in scandal and when the Republican majority took over we said we want a third party audit. It took us 5 years, no question about it. This House now gets a clean audit from the third party private sector. Do you know why we have a surplus? It is very simple.

In 1993, they held the House, they held the Senate and they held the Presidency. They passed the largest tax increase in history, and then the American people in November of 1994 voted Republicans for the first time in half a century a majority in the House. And guess what? We did not spend it.

Now, if you want to know where the surplus came from, they raised taxes; and we did not spend it. That is how we got the surplus. So if you listen to these people telling you all of the things that need to be corrected, with our small majority we passed a prescription drug provision; we are moving forward on Medicare reforms. And we are making changes while they are complaining about things they never ever did when they were in the majority.

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 10 seconds.

Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from California (Mr. THOMAS) makes an impassioned statement, but the fact of the matter is almost every independent analyst agrees that the reason we have the surplus is the 1990 bill for which most of his colleagues did not vote and excoriated their own President, President Bush, for proposing; the 1993 bill and then the 1997 bipartisan agreement. So that the gentleman's reading of history is sorely wrong.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. MENENDEZ).

(Mr. MENENDEZ asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. MENENDEZ. Mr. Speaker, we heard a few minutes ago that truth has been a victim in this election. I would submit that it has been a victim today on this floor. The fact of the matter is it was Democrats and Democrats alone that passed the votes for the President's deficit reduction program that brought us the first balanced budget in a generation and now the Federal surpluses that we argue about on this floor.

That is a good argument to have, but let us not forget that the truth of the matter is not one Republican in this House, not one Republican in the Senate, was willing to make the difficult decisions on the deficit reduction program that President Clinton put forth. I have never seen how the majority that runs both this House and the other body can claim that it is the responsibility of the minority to be able to achieve that for which they control the entire legislative process of this House and the other body. I do not know where in America the majority does not run and rule, and the majority in this House is a Republican majority.

Now we have had the whole year to finish our budgetary work, and we have not. We Democrats want to stay here and work until we complete the important business of the people. The real purpose of this continuing resolution, which by the way is a one-page resolution for which the date is changed so it is not that complicated to have it on a daily basis to keep the pressure to make us complete the people's business, is not to help America's working families; it is to allow Republican Members to go home and avoid a battle of public opinion they know they will lose.

Now Governor Bush keeps talking about bipartisanship. Well, I hope he makes some phone calls here to the House and to the other body where his party rules, because we want bipartisanship, too; but that does not mean abdicating our principles and letting one do simply what they want.

We believe that we will have bipartisanship, but not at the expense of reducing class size for our children or giving children the modern schools they deserve or hiring 100,000 qualified teachers. There are some battles we are fighting, some principles worth going to the mat to defend. For me, for Democrats, educating our children and giving our seniors a secure and decent retirement, are just those kinds of principles, the right principles for America.

Governor Bush keeps talking about bipartisanship. But look at what Republicans cannot accomplish when they control both Houses of Congress. They cannot pass a strong Patients' Bill of Rights; they cannot pass a Medicare prescription drug benefit for all seniors; they cannot provide class size reduction legislation for our children; they cannot pass campaign finance reform to preserve our very democracy; and that is the failed record, in part, of this Republican Congress. And they want the presidency too.

If the Republican majority cannot get a budget done at the height of prosperity, how can you govern when tough decisions have to be made?

To my colleagues on the other side, I say it is time to stop the delaying and get the work done. Working families need our help now, and if Republicans cannot provide the leadership to do so, we Democrats are more than ready to take the reins and get the job done: pass a strong Patients' Bill of Rights; pass a prescription drug program under Medicare; pass an education process that raises standards, but helps reduce class size; modernize our schools and provide for technology connections; ensure that we pay down this debt over the next 12 years; and have tax cuts for working families. That is an agenda. If we had been working together, we could get it done. That is an agenda that your Members are campaigning upon. That is an agenda we have been fighting for.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from California (Mr. CUNNINGHAM).

Mr. CUNNINGHAM. Mr. Speaker, my colleagues on the other side of the aisle speak as if they know the facts. I would say that the gentleman is factually challenged. Let me be specific.

When the Democrats controlled the White House, the House and the Senate, they said not a single Republican voted for their tax increase, $265 billion in tax increase, $320 billion in new spending. How did they get the new spending with the tax increase? They stole every dime out of the Social Security trust fund. AL GORE was the deciding vote on that, to take the money out of the Social Security trust fund.

Why did we not vote for it? First of all, it increased the tax on Social Security. That is a fact. It took every dime out of the Social Security trust fund and put it up here with new taxes for increased spending. That is a fact. They talked for a year about a targeted middle class tax cut. The leadership over here demagogued for a year. ''What we want is a targeted middle class tax cut.'' They could not help themselves, because money in the Federal Government is power to the Democrats, their ability to rain down money and spend it on their constituents. And yet they increased the tax on the middle class, that is a fact, when they had the House, the White House, and the Senate.

Another one of their priorities, they cut the veterans' COLAs. They cut the military COLAs in 1993. And they ask why we did not vote for it? I would not vote for it today.

They talk about the minimum wage. Did they pass a minimum wage increase in 1993 when they had control of the White House, House, and Senate? Absolutely not. Alan Greenspan said there are three issues which have stimulated the economy the most: one is the balanced budget, the other is welfare reform, and the other was capital gains.

Balanced budget, my liberal Democrat leadership fought tooth, hook and nail against a balanced budget, every single time. Even when we passed it and the President signed it, the liberal leadership on that side still fought against it.

Welfare reform, that was vetoed twice, and after the President signed welfare reform, my liberal friends on that side of the aisle still fought against welfare reform.

Capital gains, they said, oh, that is a tax break for the rich. Alan Greenspan says that is what stimulated the economy, along with a balanced budget, that lowered interest rates and allowed jobs. But yet my colleagues on that side of the aisle fought against it.

Why did not we vote for the 1993 bill? Because it was anti-economic progress. It was anti-economic progress, 100 percent.

They talk about school construction. I went to 18 districts 3 weeks ago. Every district had at least $1 million from their unions put against our candidates. Why would not they vote for school construction with Davis-Bacon taken out? Why would not they vote for school construction and waive Davis-Bacon? I will vote for it if you do. It saves 35 percent, and we can allow those schools to keep the money that it takes, the extra, for the union to do it.

Mr. Speaker, I would tell you, they said we need a living wage. Ninety-five percent of all construction in this country is done without the union, and they earn a good wage. But my colleagues get all of their campaign funds from the liberal trial lawyers, from the unions, and do you think that they would do that in the name of education? Absolutely not.

You did not talk about quality of education for 40 years; you just put more money into it. It was the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. GOODLING), the chairman of the committee, that talked of quality education. Your 100,000 teachers from the last time, half of them were not even qualified. We had to say if you are going to put those teachers in, they have to be qualified and the school has got the flexibility to use the money. If they want technology, if they want teacher training, if they want class size reduction, we will do that. But yet my colleagues on that side want government to tell everything.

Those are the facts, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 40 seconds.

Mr. Speaker, unfortunately, I do not have time to correct all the misstatements of the gentleman from California. Suffice it to say, however, as he leaves the floor, that from 1981 through 1992, not a penny was spent in the United States from Social Security, from anyplace else, that was not approved by Ronald Reagan and George Bush. Not a penny. Why? Because we never overrode a veto of a spending bill that asked for more spending of Ronald Reagan. Never.

So the fact of the matter is that it is Presidents who make policy. We make the laws, I understand that. But in your lament that Bill Clinton will not sign the bills you want signed, your tax bill of 1998 would have wiped out that surplus that you now so proudly say you want to pay down the debt with. It has been Bill Clinton and the Democrats in Congress that have brought us this surplus.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from New York (Mr. HINCHEY).

Mr. HINCHEY. Mr. Speaker, a few moments ago the distinguished majority leader, the gentleman from Texas, made the assertion at that podium that often in an election year the first casualty is truth; and then, over the course of the next several minutes, he went on to prove that, at least in some cases, that assertion can be true.

He asserted that a couple of years after President Clinton and Vice President GORE took office, the budget deficit was still $200 billion. You can hurt the truth and kill the truth by acts of omission as well as commission, and that is what happened in that particular case.

What he failed to observe was that when President Clinton and Vice President GORE came to the White House, the annual budget deficit that year was almost $300 billion; and so, yes, a couple of years later it was already reduced by $100 billion, and it was continuing to go down.

He used the phrase ''budget deficits as far as the eye could see.'' That is a phrase that was coined by the Office of Management and Budget, the Budget Director, of the outgoing Bush Administration, and the outgoing Bush Administration predicted that under the policies of former President Bush, that the deficit today would be $445 or $450 billion. That is ''deficits as far as the eye can see.''

Yes, unquestionably, it was in fact the budget resolution of 1993, added on to the previous one in the Bush Administration, that has brought this Nation back to fiscal sanity and brought the budget back into balance, and in fact brought the budget this year into a $211 billion surplus; a $500 billion turnaround in the 8 years that President Clinton and Vice President GORE have been in the White House. Those are the facts.

Mr. Speaker, the facts today are these: we are fighting now over a budget here, and the issues are these. You want a tax cut for the richest people in the country; we want services for the American people. We want a Patients' Bill of Rights; you do not. We want a prescription drug program for people who have to pay for their prescription drugs out of their pocket; you do not. We want an increase in the minimum wage; you do not. We want a reasonable and modest middle class tax cut, which will provide the majority of the benefits to the working people of this country; you want to give $1 trillion to the richest people in the country.

Those are the issues upon which we differ, and those are the issues that need to be decided, and they will not be decided by passing a continuing resolution. They will only be decided by staying here and debating these issues, and bringing the bills out on the floor so that they can get honest and fair votes, and so far you have refused to do that.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from California (Mr. CUNNINGHAM), a real fighter. He was a fighter pilot in Vietnam, and the first ace, having shot down a lot of the enemy's aircraft. I would like to yield to him to respond, because he is a fighter; and I think I see a fight developing here.

Mr. CUNNINGHAM. Mr. Speaker, no fights, just facts. In 1993, I mentioned that the Democrats raised Social Security taxes. We did away with that. They took every dime out of the Social Security trust fund. Republicans put it into a lockbox. AL GORE was the deciding vote to take the money. Every budget that Clinton-GORE sent us stole the money out of the Social Security trust fund. Now he is saying, oh, I want a Social Security trust fund.

The middle class tax that they increased, we gave it back in a $500 deduction. We gave IRAs for school education. That was a ''tax break for the rich,'' and the liberals fought against it, tooth, hook and nail; but we gave it. We gave middle class tax relief.

If you take a look at the veterans' COLAs that they cut, we rescinded that. We gave back the veterans' COLAs. The military active duty COLAs, we gave back. Not a single one of the White House budgets or economic policies have passed either the House or Senate.

So when they claim credit for the economy, the 1993 bill, we rescinded it, and none of their bills passed since. Those are the facts.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Arizona (Mr. KOLBE), chairman of one of our important appropriation subcommittees.

(Mr. KOLBE asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. KOLBE. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me time.

Mr. Speaker, I have been sitting here listening to this debate, and there are a couple of things that I thought we might want to correct just for the record here.

There have been speakers on the other side that have talked about how they are concerned about class size reduction, how they are concerned about the infrastructure of our schools and making sure that we have money for that. And we are too. But perhaps the public does not know that in the conference that has been worked out on the Labor-HHS bill, there is every single dollar that the President has requested for classroom size reduction, $1.4 billion, and for new school construction, $1.3 billion. Every one of those dollars is in there. The difference, of course, is that in the conference report, it is in a block grant to the schools.

Because as we know, in one school district, there may not be a problem with new school construction. It may be teacher development, and in another school district, there may not be a problem with class sizes, it may be a community where the population is shrinking. They may need to have new computers and renovation.

What we suggest is give the money back to the school districts, to the local districts, to the teachers, to the parents, to the administrators to make the decisions about how the dollars will be spent; but the other side says no, we, here in Washington, the bureaucracy in Washington, we, in Congress, we will dictate exactly how you are going to spend those dollars. We know best.

That is the fundamental philosophical difference between the minority and the majority. We believe that the dollars should go back to the schools, back to the parents, back to the teachers, back to those who need it, get into the classrooms.

They believe it should go to the bureaucracy to determine how it will be spent, and we will direct exactly how those dollars will be spent.

One other point, Mr. Speaker, it was mentioned here earlier that the only thing different about this CR is the date is changed. Well, there is another difference, the previous CR did not give the authority to the administration to write the checks beginning for November 1 for Social Security benefits and for veterans' benefits and all other entitlements, but mainly for Social Security and for veterans' benefits. This continuing resolution does give them that.

Mr. Speaker, a vote against this continuing resolution, make no mistake about it, a vote against this continuing resolution is a vote against writing the Social Security checks for the beginning of the month. It is a vote against the benefits for veterans. It is a vote to say no, we will not make the payments for veterans or for Social Security beneficiaries. That is what the vote against this continuing resolution would do, because it is not the same as the previous continuing resolution.

So I think those points need to be kept in mind here as we move forward with this debate.

Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the gentleman from Florida for yielding me the additional time.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 2 minutes.

Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. KOLBE) for making that point on the entitlement checks, because in my opening comments, I did refer to the entitlement checks that are prepared in advance. I did not specify that they were Social Security checks. And I did not specify that they were veterans' checks, but that is, in fact, what they are. If my colleagues watched television last night, there was a big program about that. These checks are printed in advance of the time that they are mailed out, and if we do not give the administration, the Social Security Administration, ample time to prepare and print those checks, they will not get delivered on time.

I thank the gentleman for making that point. I think it is essential that we include, and we did include, in this CR the provision that the affected agencies could go ahead and prepare those checks and mail them out so they get in the hands of the Social Security recipients and the veterans and anyone else entitled to an entitlement check at the appropriate time, at the beginning of the month.

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. I yield to the gentleman from Maryland.

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Speaker, is it the proposition of the gentleman from Florida (Chairman YOUNG) if we did not pass this CR and we still continue another 24 hours, because the CR expires, as the gentleman said 24 hours from now or 36 hours from now, that the agencies, both Social Security and the Veterans Administration, would not go ahead over the next 24 hours or 36 hours and prepare to send out these checks?

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Speaker, reclaiming my time, I would respond to the gentleman that that is the reason we put that language in this continuing resolution. It is there so that there would be no question they had the authority to do just that.

If the gentleman would like to discuss the 24-hour period CR, we are not going to be here tomorrow. Many Members of this House are going to show their respect to the former Governor of Missouri and go to his funeral tomorrow. So we are not going to be here tomorrow.

Last week we paid tribute to and honored one of our own Members who had passed way, and we were not here that day either. So we lost those legislative days, but it was proper and appropriate that we honor the memory of Congressman Vento. It is certainly proper that we honor the memory and the service of the Governor of Missouri. The 24 hour CR just does not work.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2½ minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. ROHRABACHER).

Mr. ROHRABACHER. Mr. Speaker, I appreciate that the gentleman from Florida (Chairman YOUNG) has refocused and the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. KOLBE) has refocused this debate on exactly what we are debating about here right now on the floor.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the measure before us, which is H.J. Res. 114, which is designed to keep the government open till Wednesday. I would prefer to keep it open, even if we cannot come to an understanding among Republicans and Democrats and people on both sides of the aisle on appropriation bills. Unfortunately, the Gekas amendment, to keep the government open under these circumstances, was defeated in this House earlier this year. Perhaps some of my colleagues, even on my side of the aisle, might have second thoughts on the Gekas amendment now that we find ourselves in this predicament.

But notwithstanding that, what we have before us is a measure to keep the government open through next Wednesday. Now, who could oppose that? Yes, that is right. What we have here is a situation where people are opposing that. In order to accomplish what? People are opposing that in order to accomplish, and I have heard the debate, I hope my colleagues listened very closely, spending proposal after spending proposal after spending proposal.

What we have are people who are willing to hold the American people hostage, even hold Social Security checks and veterans' checks hostage in order to get more government spending on specific ideas that people on that side of the aisle support, particular government spending.

All right. We have may have a difference on agreement on priorities. Republicans may want to spend a little bit less than. Democrats may want to spend a little bit more. It is not right to hold the American people hostage under this circumstance.

Let me say one of the issues at hand that the President is demanding that we put into the Commerce, State and Justice appropriations bill, he is threatening to veto that bill and close down the government, what is that issue the President is demanding? It is for us to have an amnesty for millions of illegal aliens, which would again push up spending in the United States and the spending requirements that we have.

This is not right. It is not right, number one, to hold us hostage and to demand things. It is not right to hold the American people hostage under these circumstances.

We can have honest disagreements here. But the fact is that we have turned this into a political debate. We have gotten way off course, because, I am sorry, my friends on the other side of the aisle made this into a political debate. This is about whether or not we should keep the government open until Wednesday and not shut it down and not put our veterans and our Social Security recipients in jeopardy, and not to hold those things in hostage in order to force us to spend more money on illegal immigration and all these other spending proposals.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 1 minute.

Mr. Speaker, I responded to the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER) about the need to have the authority for the entitlement checks, and I did double-check and it was the President's Office of Management and Budget who advised us that this had to be done, and that is why it is here

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3½ minutes to the gentlewoman from Connecticut (Ms. DELAURO), a member of the Committee on Appropriations.

Ms. DELAURO. Mr. Speaker, one or two points I might make here is that, quite frankly, the continuing resolution is enough time for us to try to do our business here if we have not accomplished it. But the fact of the matter is that this is going through next Wednesday. We will not be here. They are letting us out of here. There will be no work done on the issues that we have to focus on until we get back next Wednesday. So it is really a little bit disingenuous about the amount of time that we need in order to get business done, when no business will be done on prescription drugs, on Social Security, on any other issue that is important to the people in this country.

Secondly, to my good friends across the aisle, quite frankly, the only people, the only people who have shut this government down, not once, but twice, have been my colleagues on the Republican side of the aisle. So that if any one wants to talk about jeopardizing Social Security or veterans' benefits, take heed my friends, because my colleagues did it not once, but twice.

But I will just say that here we go again, another week comes, another weeks goes, and this Republican Congress continues inaction on a specific issue, I might add, in my view, which is a critical priority for this country, and that is education.

Mr. Speaker, instead of trying to fashion a bipartisan agenda, where we invest in our schools and our teachers, reduce class size, increase accountability and standards, the Republican leadership today is going to push through another stopgap measure that only preserves the status quo, the fourth, fourth stopgap measure that the House will consider. Quite frankly, it ought to be the last.

Instead of working only 2 days a week naming post offices, this Congress ought to stay here every single day until the work of the American people is done. My friends, that is what we are paid to do. That is what we get elected to do in this body, and we should do it, it is what our obligations are.

Mr. Speaker, the final budget for this year is now 2½ weeks late. It did not have to be this way. We could have moved forward by crafting a bipartisan budget that reflects the values of this great country, which paid attention to America's number one priority, the education of our children.

The Republican leadership rejected bipartisan progress. They drafted a budget that puts tax cuts for the wealthy at the very head of the line, and they pushed education to the bottom of the list. We are left with their misplaced priorities. This House has passed $750 billion in tax cuts for the wealthiest Americans. They have spent not one dime to modernize America's crumbling schools, not one dime to hire 100,000 new teachers to reduce class size, increase discipline and to hold schools accountable for the results.

The analysis on their tax cut is as follows: 43 percent of their tax cut goes to the richest 1 percent of the people in this country, that is folks making an average of about $915,000 a year, and for those folks, they are going to get $46,000 a year in a tax cut. And by his own admission, Governor Bush, 2 nights ago, said yes, in fact, that the tax cut was going to the richest 1 percent of the people in this country. Yes, in fact, a trillion dollars was coming out of this Social Security.

Let me just say, it is, in fact, in their own words, we need to do the people's work in this House; that is what it is about, and we need to look at what we are doing about education, what we are doing for retirement security. These folks need to really understand what the priorities are.

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the balance of my time.

Mr. Speaker, there has been back and forth about who is responsible for this and who is responsible for that. Unfortunately, we do not have the time to fully develop those issues. We ought to in the long run. This is about passing a CR.

Everybody on my side of the aisle has voted for the last three CRs. They passed overwhelmingly. Keep the government functioning. We ought to keep the government functioning, but we ought to also, as the gentlewoman from Connecticut (Ms. DELAURO) said, do the people's business.

What this debate is about, Mr. Speaker, is about the fact that we do not think we are doing the people's business. With all due respect to the gentleman from Florida (Chairman YOUNG), the issue is not the funeral on Friday of my good and close friend and a great leader of this country who was tragically lost to us in an airplane crash, Governor Mel Carnahan, Saturday is available to us, Sunday is available to us, Monday is available to us, Tuesday is available to us. But we are not coming back until Tuesday at 6 p.m.

Mr. Speaker, essentially what our side of the aisle is saying, through the debate on this continuing resolution, is we ought to address some of the critical issues that had been pending in this House for 8 months and pending in the Senate, pending in the Congress for 8 months. Yes, my colleagues have heard us talk about prescription drugs. Everybody says they are for prescription drugs, because we know the costs of drugs is driving seniors to Draconian choices in their lives.

But we are not passing a prescription drug bill, we are having a CR on going home for 5 days. We do not think that is right, Mr. Speaker. That is what this debate is about.

We talk about a Patients' Bill of Rights, so that HMOs are not telling doctors and patients what kind of medical care they ought to get, and that they have access to emergency care and they can make choices.

The gentleman from Arizona says our educational debate is about who makes the choices, ''bureaucrats,'' used as an epithet, or the people at home. The fact of the matter is on the school construction program, guess what, who makes the choices? The people at home. If they do not build schools, that is their choice. If they do not want to put on more classrooms, that is their choice. We do not force them to do anything. If they do not need teachers and do not hire teachers, we do not force them to.

Get off my back with this rhetoric that is phony on choices. None of these programs we are talking about force locals to do anything, and the gentleman knows it, but he thinks it is good political rhetoric. I understand that.

This CR is about whether we are going to do the people's business. That is what this debate is about. I think, as I said, that this CR may pass. If it does not pass, then we ought to pass a second CR until Monday night and come back Saturday, after we observe the funeral for Mel Carnahan, and do our work on Saturday; and yes, go to church Sunday morning, come here in the afternoon, and do the people's business.

Mr. Speaker, that is what this debate is about, not about a CR which says we have not done our business, and therefore we are going to continue government in operation until Tuesday night or Wednesday night. We all agree on that. It is about whether we are going to go away from here 2½ weeks after we said we were going to adjourn without doing the critical business on the public's agenda.

That is what this debate has been about, that is what this discussion is about; not to look at the past, at what has been done and who is responsible or who is not. It is about, Mr. Speaker, whether we are going to pass these critical programs: prescription drugs, campaign finance reform, education, more teachers, more classrooms, smaller sizes, particularly for young children, which all the experts say need specific attention.

If they get it, we will lift them up and make them better students in the upper grades. We will therefore have a better America and a more competitive America. That is what this discussion on this CR is about.

I would hope we would defeat this CR, Mr. Speaker. I would hope we would defeat this CR. Then, Mr. Speaker, because I know the gentleman is a man of such good will and purpose and responsibility, I would ask the chairman that we come back on the floor, pass the CR until Monday night, as the gentleman from Massachusetts wanted to do, come back here Saturday, do our work, come back here Sunday afternoon, do our work, come back here Monday, and perhaps be able to leave.

If the gentleman does not agree with the President, fine, send him a bill. Let him veto it, and criticize him. I do not know why Members do not send the bills. I have a hunch that they are afraid that the American public will say he is right and they are wrong, so they do not send the bills down. I hope this CR is defeated, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the balance of my time.

Mr. Speaker, one of our speakers spoke in favor of an automatic CR. One of the reasons that I have opposed the automatic CR is because it would deny my friends on the minority side the opportunity to take 2 hours today for their political platform.

I was really happy last week when I heard the minority leader, the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. GEPHARDT), stand in the well and say, we really ought to cut out all of this partisanship, and we ought to work together.

Mr. Speaker, it is amazing what we can do when we work together. I will have to admit that it is tempting to rejoin the political argument here. But this is not the place for campaign politics. The place for campaign politics is back home in our districts, not on the floor of the people's House, where we are supposed to put the people's business above politics.

We have talked about appropriators being here or not being here. When the House leaves, I think everybody ought to know the appropriators do not necessarily leave. The appropriators in the House on both parties work really hard. Whether the House is in session or not, the appropriators that have business before them are here, whether it is a weekend, whether it is late at night.

I know sometimes our colleagues will say, this was done or that was done in the dark of night. That is a fact. We do a lot of work in the dark of night, because if we start here in the morning at 9 o'clock, and we are still going at midnight or 1 or 2 o'clock in the morning to get our business done, we are working in the dark of night. If we did not do that, we would be here until next spring.

We would need a 2-year budget cycle, which I think is probably a good idea anyway. As the gentleman from Maryland knows, I have supported that strongly.

But appropriators do not leave Washington just because everyone else does. There will be appropriators here this weekend working on finalizing decisions, making decisions, writing the bills, reading the bills, getting them ready to file.

As I pointed out earlier in my comments on the rule, we only are one-third of the process here. If we were the entire process, we would have been done back in July, but we are only one-third of the process. Our colleagues and friends at the other end of the Capitol are one-third, and the President of the United States is one-third.

Mr. Speaker, we have a great prosperity in this country today. There are a lot of people who want to take credit for it. I think that the confidence that we have created in the industrial community by balancing the budget is one reason we have a strong prosperity. Investors are willing to invest because they think that government might not be on their back as much as it has been in the past, so they are willing to invest. It creates prosperity. It creates movement in the economy.

There is another reason. One of my colleagues on the minority side mentioned it and one of my colleagues on the majority side mentioned it: welfare reform. I do not think Congress has gotten nearly as much credit for what welfare reform has contributed to our economy as it should.

For years, there were families who had been on welfare for generations. We changed that. We changed it, and we reformed welfare to the point that we encouraged people to go to work. Mr. Speaker, many Americans who had been on welfare for all of their lives went to work. They started to earn money. They were able to buy homes, buy automobiles. They actually felt good about the fact that they were working. They were making an income. They were doing something for their wives and children.

Besides that good feeling, those people for years had been taking money out of the system. Once they went back to work, they were putting money back into the system. They paid taxes, like everyone else. They paid payroll taxes, social security taxes, income taxes. They paid into the system, so we are getting two for one benefits. They are no longer taking out, they are putting in, so there is a tremendous economic advantage to that.

Now, if I might allow myself something that might sound a little political, I listened to the speeches of both candidates for president. I was impressed. I watched the Vice President when he made his acceptance speech at his convention, and on two occasions he mentioned how he fought for this welfare reform that I think is a major contributor to our strong economy.

I sat there and scratched my head, because I remember being here in the House when we passed the welfare reform bill the first time. We sent it to their administration. They vetoed it.

Then I remember we came back and fought again to pass welfare reform legislation. We sent it to the administration, the President and the Vice President. They vetoed it again.

So we went back to work and wrote it the third time. We sent it to the administration, the President and the Vice President, and this time they finally said, we will sign it. We do not like it. They told their friends who opposed it, we do not really like it, but we are going to sign it. They did. They signed it.

Then I heard the Vice President in that speech say how he had fought for welfare reform after his administration had effectively killed it twice after Congress fought to make it happen, and the third time it happened.

There are other things that have been mentioned in this debate that have nothing to do with the CR, that are political issues that are out there in the presidential debates. I would say to those who make those arguments, why do they not make them where they belong? They do not belong on this CR. This CR has nothing to do with what they were talking about.

Then I would repeat words that I have said and many of my colleagues have said: Where were they for the last 8 years? They have owned the administration for 8 years. Where were they? Why did they not do it? Why did they not get it done during that 8-year period?

That comment has nothing to do with the CR, just like most of the comments from the minority side have nothing to do with the CR. Mr. Speaker, let us pass this CR and then get about finishing the few appropriations matters that still lay out there to be completed.

Mr. GEPHARDT. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to this Continuing Resolution, the fourth resolution in as many weeks to keep the government open. I call on Republicans to stop the delays, stop the obfuscation, and keep Congress in session so we can finish our work. We must do the people's agenda, and we must do it now.

We are now three weeks beyond the start of the fiscal year, and the light at the end of the tunnel is still not shining brightly. We do not meet. We take off days at a time. We spend our time on the floor naming courthouses, voting on suspension bills.

And the American people are not seeing any results.

Education is America's number one priority. But this Congress has failed to meet the challenge. Republicans have refused to dedicate funding to reduce class size and for school construction. They are unwilling to fund critical priorities so communities can hire more teachers, improve teacher quality, and provide more after-school programs. Instead, they support block grants with no accountability that a single teacher will be hired or a single classroom fixed. They also let the Elementary and Secondary Education Act expire for the first time in 35 years because of their extremism.

The time has come to stop the delays, stop the foot-dragging, and act on the education priorities of the American people. We should not neglect the people's agenda for personal politics. This Congress should stay in session and finish our spending work. We should take a first step to make every public school a great public school.

Democrats want funding dedicated to emergency school repairs; the bipartisan Johnson-Rangel tax credit to help schools districts on school construction bonds; funding to hire 100,000 highly-qualified teachers to reduce class size, and for teacher training and recruitment and after-school programs that are an essential part of any school reform.

We are in an Information Age. Every child needs to know how to read and write. Parents are working more and they are commuting more, and they have less time for children. And our public schools are not equipped to fill the breach. What we are asking for is a sensible, first step toward filling the holes in our education system. And I believe there is still time to work together, in a bipartisan way, to meet this challenge.

Let's stop neglecting our work, stop passing these stopgap measures, and do what any sensible legislative body would do: finish our spending bills, fund the priorities of our people, and get away from the special interests.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. ISAKSON). All time for debate has expired.

Pursuant to House Resolution 637, the joint resolution is considered read for amendment and the previous question is ordered.

The question is on the engrossment and third reading of the joint resolution.

The joint resolution was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, and was read the third time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the passage of the joint resolution.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Speaker, I object to the vote on the ground that a quorum is not present and make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Evidently a quorum is not present.

The Sergeant at Arms will notify absent Members.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 262, nays 136, not voting 34, as follows:

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. RES. 640

Resolved, That it shall be in order at any time on the legislative day of Thursday, October 19, 2000, for the Speaker to entertain motions to suspend the rules and pass, or adopt, the following measures:

(1) the bill (H.R. 2780) to authorize the Attorney General to provide grants for organizations to find missing adults;

(2) the resolution (H. Res. 605) expressing the sense of the House of Representatives that communities should implement the Amber Plan to expedite the recovery of abducted children;

(3) the bill (H.R. 4541) to reauthorize and amend the Commodity Exchange Act to promote legal certainty, enhance competition, and reduce systemic risk in markets for futures and over-the-counter derivatives, and for other purposes;

(4) the concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 271) expressing the support of Congress for activities to increase public awareness of multiple sclerosis; and

(5) the bill (H.R. 2592) to amend the Consumer Products Safety Act to provide that low-speed electric bicycles are consumer products subject to such Act.

SEC. 2. House Resolutions 615 and 633 are laid on the table.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. ISAKSON). The gentlewoman from North Carolina (Mrs. MYRICK) is recognized for 1 hour.

Mrs. MYRICK. Mr. Speaker, for purposes of debate only, I yield the customary 30 minutes to the gentlewoman from New York (Ms. SLAUGHTER), pending which I yield myself such time as I may consume. During consideration of this resolution, all time yielded is for the purpose of debate only.

Mr. Speaker, yesterday, the Committee on Rules met and passed this resolution, providing that it shall be in order at any time on the legislative day of Thursday, October 19, for the Speaker to entertain motions to suspend the rules and pass or adopt the following measures:

The bill H.R. 2780, to authorize the Attorney General to provide grants for organizations to find missing adults; the resolution, House Resolution 605, expressing the sense of the House that communities should implement the Amber Plan to expedite the recovery of abducted children; the bill H.R. 4541, to reauthorize and amend the Commodity Exchange Act to promote legal certainty, enhance competition, and reduce systemic risk in markets for futures and over-the-counter derivatives, and for other purposes; the concurrent resolution, H. Con. Res. 271, expressing the support of Congress for activities to increase public awareness of multiple sclerosis; and, five, the bill H.R. 2592, to amend the Consumer Products Safety Act to provide that low-speed electric bicycles are consumer products subject to such an Act.

Finally, the rule provides that House Resolutions 615 and 623 are laid upon the table.

Mr. Speaker, as we all know, we are coming to the end of the congressional session and floor time is at a premium. This resolution allows us to consider several bills today under the expedited suspension procedure. I must stress that we have had all day to examine these bills, four of which are totally noncontroversial. These suspensions are not a surprise.

In addition, this resolution is within the spirit of the House rules. Under clause 1 of rule XV of the rules of the House, the Speaker may only entertain motions to suspend the rules on Mondays and Tuesdays and during the last 6 days of the session.

The House has not yet passed an adjournment resolution, but I think all of us hope and expect that we are in the last 6 days of this session. This resolution simply abides by the spirit of the standing rules of the House.

One of these bills is a bill I introduced in honor of Kristen Modafferi, a college student from Charlotte, North Carolina, who disappeared after her 18th birthday. When Kristen's parents called the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children to ask for help, they were told, ''No, we can't help you because Kristen is 18 years old.'' If we pass Kristen's Act, that will never happen again.

The National Center for Missing Children has been an incredibly effective resource for the recovery of minors. Kristen's Act would create the same type of center for missing adults. It is just common sense. We should build upon the success of the National Center for Missing Children.

H. Res. 640 also allows the House to consider H.R. 4541, the reauthorization of the Commodity Exchange Act under suspension of the rules. H.R. 4541 will lift a portion of the regulatory burden from our commodity and futures exchanges, allowing them to compete within the world's modern financial markets.

I must state, though, that I am disappointed with one aspect of the measure. While the intent of H.R. 4541 is to deregulate U.S. markets, it actually places retroactive regulation on some of our newest and most innovative electronic markets.

Foreign countries are taking advantage of electronic technology at a more rapid pace and with less red tape than our domestic market. With this in mind, the House Committee on Banking and Financial Services placed language in its version of the bill that would have ensured freedom from regulation for U.S. companies that are developing and implementing new electronic technology within the swaps market.

I was extremely disappointed to see the Committee on Banking and Financial Services language stripped from the bill we are considering today. We should encourage business innovation and not stifle new companies with regulatory uncertainty. If we fail to restore the Committee on Banking and Financial Services's language, we will place our domestic electronic exchanges at a relative disadvantage to their foreign competitors.

I am confident our colleagues in the Senate will take care of the problem. If not, our homegrown companies will have to move overseas.

Now, Mr. Speaker, despite my disappointment with part of H.R. 4541, I strongly support this rule and urge my colleagues to do the same. With this resolution, we will consider five bills before we adjourn for the year.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman from North Carolina for yielding me the customary 30 minutes, and I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I will not actively oppose the rule. The underlying suspension bills that the rule make in order are important for many of our constituents. But it is astonishing that the Committee on Rules must generate resolutions such as these to create the illusion that Congress is diligently performing its obligation.

This body is floating in a Never-Never Land 2 weeks into the fiscal year, considering suspension bills at a time when only 7 of the 13 spending bills are on their way to the President. I wish I could justify unqualified support for this measure with the excuse that Congress was hard at work and needed this flexibility to complete its commitments, but my constituents know better.

Instead of working to ensure affordable prescription drugs for seniors or working to secure funds for school construction, this body routinely adjourns in the early afternoon to ponder what post office we will name on the following legislative day. The long stretches of idleness in this body surely can be replaced with meaningful deliberation on important measures.

Instead, my colleagues and I are left at the mercy of the leadership's scheduling whims. If the majority is going to abuse the power of suspensions, I implore them to put them to good use and make a real difference in the lives of the American people.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mrs. MYRICK. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from California (Mr. DREIER).

(Mr. DREIER asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of this rule and want to congratulate my colleague the gentlewoman from North Carolina (Mrs. MYRICK) for her very, very able management of it.

This rule addresses the legitimate concern of Members who very much want an opportunity to review in advance any legislation that will be considered under the suspension of the rules procedure. The rule provides suspension authority only to those measures that are listed in the rule, so there will be no surprises whatsoever.

One of the measures listed in the rule, Mr. Speaker, is a bill authored by the manager of this rule, the gentlewoman from North Carolina (Mrs. MYRICK), which would establish a national center to collect and disseminate information on missing adult cases. I want to commend my friend from Charlotte for her work on behalf of the millions of Americans who are searching for their loved ones, and I strongly support her legislation.

Mr. Speaker, the rule also allows under suspension of the rules the consideration of H.R. 4541, critically important legislation to modernize the financial futures market. It is a collaborative effort between the Committee on Agriculture, the Committee on Banking and Financial Services and the Committee on Commerce, and I want to commend the chairmen of those committees, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. COMBEST), the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. LEACH), and the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. BLILEY); as well as the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. EWING), the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. BAKER), and the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. OXLEY) for their hard work and dedication in bringing this legislation to the floor.

Similar to the Graham-Leach-Bliley Financial Services Modernization Act, H.R. 4541 will remove actually the impediments to financial innovation and will be competitive by bringing the antiquated regulatory framework for financial futures and derivatives into the 21st century. While I strongly support the bill, it is not perfect.

As my friend from Charlotte, North Carolina (Mrs. MYRICK), so clearly noted, the bill does not remove all of the necessary regulatory impediments to electronic systems that are used in trading financial futures and derivatives. It is important that this legislation not only promote competition and innovation within traditional markets but that it promote competition and innovation for emerging technologies.

Otherwise, these innovative companies, which are the key to the continued growth of our economy, will simply take their operations overseas where the regulatory climate today is much more favorable toward competition from electronic trading systems.

Mr. Speaker, passing H.R. 4541 will allow the process to move forward. It is my hope that this bill can be further improved when it is considered by the other body. But before we can consider it, we need to pass this rule, and we need to debate and pass that legislation.

So I want to urge my colleagues to move just as expeditiously as possible to pass this measure again so that all can have an opportunity to look at the different pieces of legislation that we will be considering.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to my colleague, the gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. MALONEY).

Mrs. MALONEY of New York. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman for yielding me the time and for her leadership.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the rule and in support of the underlying legislation, which is among one of the most important bills that this Congress will consider this session.

The notional value of the derivatives market is fast approaching $100 trillion. By comparison, the entire Federal budget is closer to $1.7 trillion. This legislation increases the legal certainty of these instruments and makes sure that market participants are held responsible for their losses or gains.

In the Committee on Banking, I offered an amendment that was supported by the CFTC to limit the trading of energy derivatives when conducted off exchange and out of public view. Energy derivatives are based on underlying commodities, such as oil and gas, that are critically important to consumers. While my amendment was narrowly defeated, I continued to work on this issue after the markup.

I am pleased to report that my concern has now been addressed at least in part. This legislation now gives additional authority to the CFTC to monitor day-to-day prices and to issue regulations to police fraud and manipulation in off-exchange energy derivatives trades. These powers will increase public confidence in the markets and reduce the potential of manipulation by big players operating off-exchanges.

This provision could be further improved by deleting language that favors electronic trading facilities over traditional exchanges. Monitoring derivatives markets will be a major focus of the Committee on Banking for years to come. When properly used, large companies and financial institutions decrease economic risks and benefit consumers through the use of derivatives.

Large financial institutions use derivatives to hedge interest rate risk and decrease potential market disruptions.

I just want to close very briefly by thanking the chairman of the Committee on Banking, the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. LEACH), for his 6 years of leadership and the ranking member, the gentleman from New York (Mr. LAFALCE). This will probably be the last bill from the Committee on Banking while he is chair of the committee.

Mrs. MYRICK. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. COMBEST).

Mr. COMBEST. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman for yielding me the time.

Mr. Speaker, I did not intend to comment on the rule, but I want to let my colleagues know that I rise in strong support and appreciate the work that the Committee on Rules did giving us an opportunity to bring the Commodities Exchange Act in front of the Congress today under a suspension. And since we are establishing a record here, I wanted to take the opportunity to make a couple of comments in response to the gentlewoman from North Carolina (Mrs. MYRICK) in regards to one area that she specifically singled out as having had some concern.

This has been a long going process, and the process has been with the intention and the goal of trying to relieve to the extent possible the regulatory burden on the exchange activity and commodities in the United States, giving them much more of a level playing field in regards to some of their foreign competitors. And at the same time while the interest and endeavor has been to relieve some of the regulatory burdens, we wanted to make sure that there was still a great amount of public confidence by the fact that there would be an oversight regulatory body that would be in fact monitoring these trades.

The specific new businesses that the gentlewoman from North Carolina (Mrs. MYRICK) referred to we generally call electronic billboards. I just wanted to make mention that I had met with a number of them over a long period of time; and certainly as an endeavor not to increase regulations on various types of trading associations and groups, we wanted to make for certain, as they requested, that we did not in fact increase regulatory burdens on them.

We have not done that, Mr. Speaker. In fact, there are a number of sections of the bill that specifically indicate that the type of trading that is done by electronic billboards would be totally excluded as a part of CEA, would not come under the regulatory burden; and the President's working group that also had a great deal of input agreed to the fact that there should be exclusion from the CEA.

A question remains. I have visited with the gentlewoman about it. We will continue to look at it into the future. Actually, the problem seems to arise from a request of certain of these new electronic billboards to have a specific carve-out that in fact would give them additional authority that other type exchanges would not have, and it is strongly opposed by other exchanges giving them a specific advantage. That is the reason that there were not the changes. But in terms of the regulatory authority, not only did we not include them, we excluded them in some areas in some parts of the bill.

In regards to liability, we in fact created a number of things that electronic billboards, I think, would find very pleasing.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from New York (Mr. LAFALCE), the ranking member of the Committee on Banking and Financial Services.

(Mr. LAFALCE asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. LAFALCE. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman for yielding me the time.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of one of the bills that would be permitted to be taken up today under the suspension calendar, H.R. 4541, the Commodities Futures Modernization Act of 2000.

I do this for one overriding reason. If we do not pass this bill, our huge and vibrant exchanges and swap markets will decline while those in the rest of the world will flourish.

Given the alterations taking place in global finance, the need to modernize our futures and swaps markets is clear. At every turn, we are seeing active innovation in our global environment. Indeed, there is a major international merger movement in progress off shore.

OM is bidding to buy the London Stock Exchange. We now have Euronext, the creation of the merger of the Paris, Brussels, and Amsterdam bourses. There is Eurex, which now has an interest in merging with some United States exchanges. All of these are capable of more flexibility than what is permitted in our current market structures.

Moreover, the financial markets are creating increasingly specialized instruments and transactions. The most prominent of these are swaps, contractual arrangements which are so diverse in detail that they cannot be readily categorized. Their notional value has swollen to nearly $100 trillion. Moreover, there are other novelties, such as flex options, which are beginning to emerge.

American law and American regulations have been unable to keep up with these innovations except through makeshift and questionable legal inventions and contortions, the foundations of which are unclear and uncertain.

H.R. 4541 is merely a first step in this modernization. It opens up a new category of future which has heretofore been forbidden, the future on single stocks or small groups of stocks. It provides legal certainty to swaps innovations, a certainty which has been sorely missing until this bill. Moreover, it recognizes that, in most cases, the normal consumer is not the proper participant in these markets or that their participation is guarded by regulations such as the ''know your customer rule.''

These alterations will assist in streamlining the United States so that it can mirror the practices which are emerging in the competitive markets of Europe and Asia and prevent those markets from obtaining legal advantages. Further, it will keep these burgeoning businesses in the United States and not force them to migrate overseas.

I do not say this is a perfect bill. Indeed, I do not approve of using the suspension calendar to consider this sort of legislation. There should be opportunity for more than the managers amendment. There also should be opportunity for more extensive education and fuller debates.

I am not pleased with some of the bill's provisions, which fail to establish an optimal regulatory scheme and might be open to loopholes that would undermine the vital transparency and trustworthiness of American markets. Consequently, while I do not join others who oppose this legislation, I do have considerable sympathy for some of their arguments.

However, I believe the legislative process must be moved along at this time. It is doubtful we can come to agreement with the other Chamber and the administration in the short period remaining in the 106th Congress. Indeed, I caution that attempts in the other Chamber to push through vast deregulatory schemes, which will prevent the SEC, CFTC, and banking authorities from assuring the investing public that the markets are not subject to manipulation and fraud, will certainly meet with my opposition.

It is dubious whether Congress can produce a public law this session. And if we cannot, passage of today's bill will at least set down a marker for us to take up next year. In any case, this is not a subject area which is going to go away with one new law. The rapidity and breadth of change to which I have alluded assure that. Yet, for today, I support the administration's Statement of Policy on this bill and, therefore, urge an aye vote.

Mrs. MYRICK. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. SHIMKUS).

(Mr. SHIMKUS asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SHIMKUS. Mr. Speaker, I am going to be brief because I know there is a lot of activity going on.

Some of the great exchanges of our Nation are in Chicago, Illinois. We have been fighting to preserve and protect those.

As many of my colleagues know, this bill modernizes the regulation of the exchange trade and futures. It establishes legal certainly for over-the-counter derivative products, and it reforms Shad-Johnson.

To the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. EWING), who is my friend, my counselor, and part author of this legislation, I just want to say, job well done.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H.R. 4541, the Commodity Futures Modernization Act of 2000. Being from Illinois, with all the Chicago interests involved, you should know that it has been my intent to develop a level and fair playing field for all involved.

When this bill was in the Commerce Committee, I offered an amendment in the nature of a substitute that eventually resulted in the version the Commerce Committee reported. We knew when we reported the bill that there was still a lot of work to be done. For that reason, I am pleased to see a final product on the House floor today. I want to thank my good friend from Illinois, Mr. EWING, for the leadership he and his staff have taken on this issue. In your retirement, you will be missed by the Illinois delegation, as well as this entire body. I also want to thank Chairman BLILEY, Subcommittee Chairman OXLEY, the ranking Members, Mr. RUSH of Illinois, and their staffs; as well as the Members and staff of the Banking Committee. They need to be recognized for their tireless efforts, persistence and cooperation to bring this compromise to the House floor.

Finally, I want to thank the Chicago Board Options Exchange, the Chicago Mercantile Exchange and the Chicago Board of Trade for their efforts to compromise and for their patience with us as we worked through the legislative process. As you know, this legislation will do three things: It modernizes the regulation of exchange-traded futures; establishes legal certainty for over-the-counter derivatives products; and reforms the Shad-Johnson Accord.

The Shad-Johnson portion of this legislation has been the most controversial, but yet the most exciting section of this bill. If this bill becomes law, we will lift an 18-year ''temporary'' ban on single stock futures and allow U.S. investors access to these products. In our global economy, we need to stay competitive, and I believe that lifting this ban will help us achieve that goal.

This is historic legislation and a vote for U.S. investors and markets. Please join me in voting in favor of H.R. 4541.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. BENTSEN).

(Mr. BENTSEN asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BENTSEN. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of the rule and in strong support of one of the bills that will be considered under the rule, the Commodities Futures Modernization Act of 2000, H.R. 4541.

I want to associate myself with the remarks of the previous speaker, the gentleman from New York (Mr. LAFALCE), the ranking Democrat on the House Committee on Banking.

As a member of that committee, I worked with both the chairman, the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. LEACH), and the gentleman from New York (Mr. LAFALCE) in helping to craft this legislation. I think that it is a very good forward approach to moving the United States' regulatory scheme over-the-counter derivatives markets in the right direction. And I think all three committees which had jurisdiction over this, the Committee on Banking, the Committee on Agriculture, and the Committee on Commerce did very good work.

This otherwise complicated measure will repeal the Shad-Johnson Accord and bring legal certainty to the over-the-counter derivatives and swaps market. That is something that, as that market has grown and developed in the United States, needs to be done. We need to codify a regulatory regime, as opposed to having an understanding between two Federal agencies. And it is done in a way which brings the regulatory expertise of both the Commodities Future Trading Commission and the Securities and Exchange Commission together. I think that is why we have found this legislation is also being supported by the Treasury Department.

I also want to say that I think this bill is correct in its exemption or exclusion of the energy derivatives market. This is a new market. A lot of it is being conducted out of my area of the country, and I think it is fair to say that the energy market in the United States is among the most transparent in the world. I think it would be premature for the Congress or the regulatory authorities to engage in some new form of regulation in those markets, particularly in the derivatives market, absent some form of national or global energy deregulation which obviously this Congress is not going to take up and it will not be taken up until the next Congress at the earliest date. So I think this is a very good bill that moves us forward.

Finally, let me say one other item. In the Committee on Banking and Financial Services, we considered the issue of whether or not to expand the ability to market swaps and derivatives over the counter to the retail public, and I think the committee very wisely chose not to follow that path. I do not think we have the regulatory regime in place to safely allow such products to be sold to the retail public, and if that were in this bill I would have a very hard time supporting it. So I think that Members need to understand that this is not a retail instrument.

I think the Members need to understand that we have ensured that there is no retail component in this bill. I think that is something that is subject to a great deal more study before we move in that direction, and so I would encourage the Members to support this bill. I would also hope that the other body across the rotunda will adopt this bill as well. It would be a shame if this Congress were to adjourn without enacting this compromise legislation and providing legal certainty to the markets.

I want to again reiterate what the gentleman from New York (Mr. LAFALCE) said. Without this legislation, it is very likely we could be pushing certain sectors of the U.S. financial markets abroad, and I think that would be to our detriment.

I rise in strong support of the rule and the bill.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong support of the Commodity Futures Modernization Act of 2000 (H.R. 4541). This legislation will provide the legal certainty for Over The Counter (OTC) derivatives. Derivatives are sophisticated financial instruments which help companies to manage risk.

As a member of the House Banking Committee, I believe that providing this legal certainty is necessary. First, legal certainty will ensure that these instruments continue to be available and sold in the United States. We have an economic interest in keeping these instruments here in the United States. There is growing concern that some trading operations will move overseas without this clarification. Second, the President's Working Group on Financial Markets has also recommended that approving legislation is the only practical way to provide this legal certainty.

This legislation would also exclude certain hybrid instruments for the Commodity Exchange Act. As a result, these hybrid instruments can be sold on non-CEA regulated markets. As the representatives for one of the largest energy-related trading markets, I am particularly pleased that this legislation includes a provision that would ensure that energy-based OTC derivatives will be exempt from the CEA.

This legislation would also ensure that single stock futures and narrow-based stock index futures can be sold. As a result, the Shad-Johnson Accord would be repealed. This language was developed in cooperation with the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) and the Commodity Futures Trading Commission (CFTC) who helped to negotiate this language. Under this bill, these products could be sold on existing or yet to be established commodities and securities exchanges. Trading of securities futures would be delayed for one year from enactment. Options on futures would be permitted three years after enactment after the SEC and CFTC have jointly determined whether to permit such trading and jointly studied the framework needed for such options. By requiring joint rulemaking for the CFTC and SEC, we are ensuring that both the securities and commodities regulators will be working together to set up a framework for the sale of these products. I am also pleased that these provisions would ensure that the retail public cannot purchase these products. I am not yet convinced that selling stock futures to the retail public is appropriate and requires more study.

This bill also reauthorizes the Commodity and Exchange Act. On October 1, 2000, the CEA expired and the CFTC is currently working without its authorization. Reauthorization is necessary to ensure that our commodity markets are being reviewed and overseen by a federal regulator.

Mrs. MYRICK. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5½ minutes to the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. WATT).

Mr. WATT of North Carolina. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman from New York (Ms. SLAUGHTER) for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, I am going to rise in reluctant opposition to the rule under which these bills are being considered, because the rule provides that these bills will come here under suspension, which means that the bills cannot be amended in any way. It deprives us of the opportunity to offer an amendment to one of these bills, H.R. 4541, which a number of us have worked on throughout this process.

Now I want to say at the outset that I am not going to vote against H.R. 4541, because I think it is a marginal improvement in the law. It is important to pass this bill, but we passed a bill out of the Committee on Banking and Financial Services, a version of this bill which was substantially better than the bill that is coming to the floor, in one important respect.

We have heard a lot of discussion here about driving U.S. commercial ventures offshore. There is one provision that has been dropped from the bill from the Committee on Banking and Financial Services that I believe will have the effect quite possibly of driving a commercial venture that is currently located in my congressional district offshore. I represent a small company called D&I Holdings, which has a system, a proprietary communications and information system, over which the world's largest financial institutions negotiate and agree on certain types of swap transactions on an electronic basis. This company was founded in 1996 and is headquartered in my congressional district in Charlotte, North Carolina, and it has offices in London, New York and Tokyo.

At the present time, there are 40 commercial and investment banks that use their system to effectuate swaps agreements which total over hundreds of millions of dollars per day. Their system, this small business' system, is the first and at the present time the only operational inter-dealer electronic system for this segment of the swap market. It has a number of patents, but it is essentially an electronic information system.

The problem is that this bill, in the haste to deal with trading facilities, has defined trading facilities in such a way that it brings this electronic system and information system that does no negotiating at all, the parties on each end of the system are doing the negotiating but now we have bought into the definition of trading facility an electronic system that should not be included in the Federal regulations. Now, my colleagues quite often are talking about how terrible it is to have Federal regulations regulating things that should not be regulated. I am here this time talking about one of those instances where we are regulating something that really should not be regulated.

The parties on both ends of the transaction, I concede, should be regulated; and that is what this legislation should be about, but the electronic system in between the two negotiating parties should not be regulated. In the process of going through the conference and basically carving out language that the Committee on Banking and Financial Services had carefully considered that would have protected this small venture in my congressional district, they have overzealously, probably unintentionally, included an operation here that really should not be. And I think ultimately what is going to happen is we are running the risk that this small operation could be driven offshore because it can be done, this electronic operation can be done, in England or Tokyo or anywhere else in the world; but we want this business located here in the United States as we want every business located here.

It is a clean, good, upstanding business, and there is no reason that we ought to be regulating it. If this bill were not on suspension, we would have the opportunity to offer an amendment to get back to the language of the Committee on Banking and Financial Services, and therefore I am going to vote against the rule, even though I will probably end up voting for the bill.

Mrs. MYRICK. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. EWING).

Mr. EWING. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman from North Carolina (Mrs. MYRICK) for yielding me this time.

To the gentlewoman's colleague, the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. WATT), who just spoke, I would like to respond to him. I think the issue the gentleman brings up is a very important issue and as the sponsor of the bill I want to let the gentleman know where we are with this legislation. Number one, the Blackbird Institution is not regulated by this bill. It is not regulated now. We believe that this bill exempts them from any regulation so long as they are trading in the manner in which they have indicated they are. The issue here is so long as they do not act as an organized exchange and do not do retail trades, they will be exempt under this bill and exempt from regulation. The idea, of course, is that if they decide to do otherwise then, of course, they will come under regulation like every other exchange, every other trader with retail interests.

Mr. WATT of North Carolina. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. EWING. I yield to the gentleman from North Carolina.

Mr. WATT of North Carolina. Mr. Speaker, what I would like to do with the gentleman's permission is perhaps come back during the debate on the main bill and actually have a colloquy so that at least we can create a legislative record that specifically indicates that the gentleman's interpretation is that this bill does not cover this Blackbird system, because their interpretation is entirely different than the gentleman's, and I think it would be helpful at least to have that legislative record developed. I am not sure we can do it as a part of the rule. So if the gentleman would be so kind.

Mr. EWING. Reclaiming my time, I would be more than happy to engage in that colloquy.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from New York (Mr. ENGEL).

Mr. ENGEL. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman from New York (Ms. SLAUGHTER) for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, I want to comment on one of the bills that everyone else seems to be commenting on, that is H.R. 4541, the Commodities Futures Modernization Act. I support the bill. The legislation reauthorizes the Commodities Futures Trading Commission, streamlines regulation of the futures markets and provides legal certainty to over-the-counter derivatives.

As we know, the President's Working Group on Financial Markets has testified that securing legal certainty for financial derivatives is imperative to reducing risk within America's financial system. This legislation, while a compromise on many points, is not only an important step toward achieving the legal certainty our financial markets need but it will foster continued American innovation in the increasingly important realm of derivative financial products.

Moreover, it will help prevent the flight of our domestic financial derivatives business abroad. This makes H.R. 4541 particularly important to my State, Mr. Speaker, New York, where much of our Nation's financial trading takes place. The legislation has broad-based backing. It is supported by the Department of the Treasury, the SEC, the CFTC, as well as the major financial institutions. I would, however, like to raise one note of concern, Mr. Speaker.

The process through which H.R. 4541 was developed was not completely fair or open. At times Democrats were not sufficiently included in the negotiations, and the ranking member on the Committee on Commerce, on which I serve, the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. DINGELL), has expressed concerns which I share about the process, the fact that the Committee on Commerce was not sufficiently involved in the process, and that is wrong and things were put into this bill at the last minute just the other day, and there really has been no time to discuss it or deliberate on it; and I think that is wrong as well.

I would hope that some of these issues can be resolved when the bill finally comes back.

While the process was not satisfactory, overall the final bill moves forward and is worthy of passage by the House. Once again, I express my support for the Commodity Futures Modernization Act and I urge my colleagues to support the bill.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mrs. MYRICK. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time, and I move the previous question on the resolution.

The previous question was ordered.

The resolution was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

FURTHER MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE

A further message from the Senate by Mr. Lundregan, one of its clerks, announced that the Senate has passed without amendment a joint resolution of the House of the following title:

H.J. Res. 114. Joint resolution making further continuing appropriations for the fiscal year 2001, and for other purposes.

The message also announced that the Senate agrees to the report of the committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 4635) ''An Act making appropriations for the Departments of Veterans Affairs and Housing and Urban Development, and for sundry independent agencies, boards, commissions, corporations, and offices for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2001, and for other purposes.''.

Such proposed rule change shall be accompanied by a concise general statement of the basis and purpose of such proposed rule change. The Commission shall, upon the filing of any proposed rule change, promptly publish notice thereof together with the terms of substance of the proposed rule change or a description of the subjects and issues involved. At any time within 60 days of the date of the filing of a written certification with the Commodity Futures Trading Commission under section 5c(c) of the Commodity Exchange Act, the date the Commodity Futures Trading Commission determines that review of such proposed rule change is not necessary, or the date the Commodity Futures Trading Commission approves such proposed rule change, the Commission, after consultation with the Commodity Futures Trading Commission, summarily may abrogate the proposed rule change and require that the proposed rule change be refiled in accordance with the provisions of paragraph (1), if it appears to the Commission that such proposed rule change unduly burdens competition or efficiency, conflicts with the securities laws, or is inconsistent with the public interest and the protection of investors. Commission action pursuant to the preceding sentence shall not affect the validity or force of the rule change during the period it was in effect and shall not be reviewable under section 25 nor deemed to be a final agency action for purposes of section 704 of title 5, United States Code.

''(D) REVIEW OF RESUBMITTED ABROGATED RULES.—

At the conclusion of such proceedings, the Commission, by order, shall approve or disapprove such proposed rule change. The Commission may extend the time for conclusion of such proceedings for up to 60 days if the Commission finds good cause for such extension and publishes its reasons for so finding or for such longer period as to which the self-regulatory organization consents.

''(ii) GROUNDS FOR APPROVAL.—The Commission shall approve a proposed rule change of a self-regulatory organization under this subparagraph if the Commission finds that such proposed rule change does not unduly burden competition or efficiency, does not conflict with the securities laws, and is not inconsistent with the public interest or the protection of investors. The Commission shall disapprove such a proposed rule change of a self-regulatory organization if it does not make such finding. The Commission shall not approve any proposed rule change prior to the 30th day after the date of publication of notice of the filing thereof, unless the Commission finds good cause for so doing and publishes its reasons for so finding.''.

''(ii) impose any burden on competition not necessary or appropriate in furtherance of the purposes of this section, the Commission shall, prior to approving or disapproving the proposed rule, find that such rule is necessary and appropriate in furtherance of the purposes of this section notwithstanding the Commodity Futures Trading Commission's determination.''.

''(3) The Commission shall provide the Securities and Exchange Commission with notice of the commencement of any proceeding and a copy of any order entered by the Commission against any futures commission merchant or introducing broker registered pursuant to section 4f(a)(2), any floor broker or floor trader exempt from registration pursuant to section 4f(a)(3), any associated person exempt from registration pursuant to section 4k(6), or any board of trade designated as a contract market pursuant to section 5f.''.

(b) Section 6 of the Commodity Exchange Act (7 U.S.C. 8, 9, 9a, 9b, 13b, 15) is amended by adding at the end the following:

''(g) The Commission shall provide the Securities and Exchange Commission with notice of the commencement of any proceeding and a copy of any order entered by the Commission pursuant to subsections (c) and (d) of this section against any futures commission merchant or introducing broker registered pursuant to section 4f(a)(2), any floor broker or floor trader exempt from registration pursuant to section 4f(a)(3), any associated person exempt from registration pursuant to section 4k(6), or any board of trade designated as a contract market pursuant to section 5f.''.

(c) Section 6c of the Commodity Exchange Act (7 U.S.C. 13a–1) is amended by adding at the end the following:

''(h) The Commission shall provide the Securities and Exchange Commission with notice of the commencement of any proceeding and a copy of any order entered by the Commission against any futures commission merchant or introducing broker registered pursuant to section 4f(a)(2), any floor broker or floor trader exempt from registration pursuant to section 4f(a)(3), any associated person exempt from registration pursuant to section 4k(6), or any board of trade designated as a contract market pursuant to section 5f.''.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. LAHOOD). Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. COMBEST) and the gentleman from Texas (Mr. STENHOLM) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas (Mr. COMBEST).

Mr. COMBEST. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. LEACH) from the Committee on Banking and Financial Services have control of 5 minutes of my time and that he be permitted to yield blocks of time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

Mr. COMBEST. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, today the House considers a bill that addresses another of the contentious areas where capital and investment needs of American business intersect with the needs of managing economic risk in a global market.

Although the issues in this bill do not have the long history associated with Glass-Steagall reforms, the process that we hope to be culminating this afternoon actually began in 1989. Then it took the Congress 3 years to broker a solution on how to deal with over-the-counter financial instruments that had many of the economic characteristics of agricultural futures. While the Futures Trading Practices Act of 1992 proved temporary, we hope that today's legislation will be more lasting.

Let me emphasize at the outset of this bill it aligns itself closely with the recommendations of the President's Working Group on Financial Services. The Department of the Treasury, the Federal Reserve, the Securities and Exchange Commission and the Commodity Futures Trading Commission compromise the President's Working Group.

The PWG urged the Congress to steer clear of allowing over-the-counter financial instruments to be offered to unsuspecting individuals who could lose their life's savings by picking an unsuitable investment. These are the so-called ''retail customers,'' and in all instances this bill has followed the PWG's advice.

Indeed, the three committees of jurisdiction here in the House have taken a cautious approach, while making the three remain reforms the centerpiece of this legislation.

First, we provide legal certainty to the vast multi-trillion dollar derivative markets, but we make certain that only highly sophisticated, deep-pocketed companies and individuals may participate in these markets.

Second, we provide the U.S. derivatives industry the ability to trade single stock futures, but only under the watchful eyes of Federal securities and futures regulators.

Third, we allow U.S. futures exchanges to set their own course in operating their derivatives markets under CFTC oversight, but without the burdens of a regulatory regime designed for the mid-20th century.

These accomplishments were realized even though three committees shared legislative jurisdiction over these matters. The Committee on Agriculture, whose jurisdiction grew from the 150-year-old agricultural futures markets, understands the urgency of giving legal certainty to a $90 trillion swaps market. The Committee on Commerce, with jurisdiction over the securities laws, knows that if U.S. financial firms are to compete in global markets, single stock futures must be allowed to trade here in this country. And the Committee on Banking and Financial Services accepts the nexus between traditional banking activities and the tools of risk management that are not of their making.

In conclusion, Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to adopt this sound legislation. It rounds out many of the historic financial reforms passed by the 106th Congress. To fail to pass this legislation this year will put our financial services industry at a severe competitive disadvantage in the world market. That is why it is so important that the House get this bill to the other body now, where it may be considered and sent on to the President.

Finally, Mr. Speaker, I would simply say in recognition, the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. EWING), the chairman of the subcommittee with this jurisdiction, has not spent simply days, weeks or months on this bill, he has spent years on drafting this. We all regrettably know that the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. EWING) is finalizing his congressional career at the end of this term. This, I think, could be his legacy. There have been countless hours that he has put in on this work. I commend the gentleman very much for what it is that he has done.

I also want to thank the staff on all of the committees for the countless numbers of hours that they have put in over the past several weeks to try to get us to this point today.

Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. EWING) control the balance of the time that is allotted to the Committee on Agriculture.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

Mr. STENHOLM. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 4541. It is an important piece of legislation and has a number of components that will improve the business environment for the derivatives portion of our Nation's financial services industry. While I support the bill, I do have some reservations.

Mr. Speaker, in its early stages, this bill was built from agreements developed between regulators and the President's Working Group on Financial Markets; between the over-the-counter derivatives industry and our futures exchanges; between the Securities and Exchange Commission and the Commodity Futures Trading Commission; and between the three committees of jurisdiction.

Mr. Speaker, for a time, the bill's development was the focus of a bipartisan group of members from the three committees that conducted the committee markups; but in a bizarre twist, the leadership intervened and decided to substitute partisan negotiations in place of the bipartisan discussions that were already under way and that were yielding productive results.

Mr. Speaker, the leadership's partisan diversion in this matter was clearly unnecessary. In my view, it slowed the process of developing a consensus bill, and consequently it nearly cost us our opportunity to move this legislation forward. The process has also had the effect of detracting from confidence in the final product.

Nevertheless, Mr. Speaker, the bill tackles and accomplishes the three main tasks that the Committee on Agriculture set for itself at the beginning of this process: modernizing our Commodity Exchange Act regulatory system, providing legal certainty for our over-the-counter derivatives market, and repealing the outdated prohibition on the trading of single stock futures in the United States.

Mr. Speaker, I want to compliment the CFTC for their help. The commission deserves special credit for the design of the new futures market regulatory scheme.

The bill reforms futures trading regulation by freeing the CFTC from the task of prescribing the rules and procedures that exchanges must follow. With the bill's enactment, the CFTC's primary role will be to examine and enforce trading entities' compliance with core principles of self-regulatory responsibility. Exchanges will be able to design their businesses the best they can, by adopting practices that are in compliance with these principles.

The enforcement provisions of H.R. 4541, as reported by the Committee on Agriculture, caused the CFTC to be concerned that it would lack sufficient authority to bring enforcement action against a registered entity that fails to abide by core principles. I am pleased to say that since that time, the bill's provisions have been modified to meet the concerns of the CFTC. At the same time, provisions have been added to clarify that registered entities will have some flexibility in meeting core principles.

Mr. Speaker, the bill before the House repeals the outdated ban on single stock futures. We have never had a better opportunity to eliminate this barrier to progress. With all the things we do trade in this country today, not just corn, cotton, wheat, soybeans, interest rates, currencies, sugar, crude oil and milk futures, but futures on heating degree days, on catastrophic insurance and Iowa crop yields and many other commodities, the ban is particularly absurd.

Our Nation is the capital of financial innovation; but we ban futures trading on two things, just two things: onions and single stock futures. The agreements in this bill that will allow trading in single stock futures are an important development, and I am grateful for the work of the SEC and the CFTC in developing their agreement.

Mr. Speaker, sections 102 through 106 of the bill provide the legal certainty for over-the-counter derivatives recommended by the President's Working Group and sought by the over-the-counter industry. Section 107 is intended to further bolster that certainty with regard to swap transactions. The application of section 107 is limited to bilateral, individually negotiated transactions, not entered into on a transaction facility.

Mr. Speaker, as the Treasury Department said for the Committee on Agriculture's record earlier this year, ''The changes resulting from technology, globalization and financial innovation have made it increasingly important that our regulatory and legal framework keeps pace with rapid progress in the marketplace.''

Mr. Speaker, the place of our financial industry in worldwide competition depends on us. We should move this bill forward.

I would, however, be much more comfortable if we had been given the opportunity to analyze the bill and expose it to greater public scrutiny. Our work product would benefit, since the issues involved are complicated and very technical in nature. However, I have decided after listening to the regulators and the industry representatives involved that expediency is more important than a careful analytical process. I can easily understand how another decision could be reached on this legislation.

Mr. Speaker, despite my reservations, I do want to especially commend the leaders of the House committees who worked on this bill, and particularly recognize the gentleman from Texas (Chairman COMBEST) for his leadership. Special recognition must be reserved for our subcommittee chairman, the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. EWING). His leadership over a number of years has been key to laying the groundwork for and designing the architecture of the delicate agreements that hold H.R. 4541 together. He is a true consensus builder, and the bill before us is a tribute to his service.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to pass this bill, and at this time I ask the gentleman from Illinois (Chairman EWING) if he will join me in a colloquy.

Mr. Speaker, the bill before us seeks to modernize regulation of futures markets by replacing rigid governmentally imposed restrictions with flexible, but comprehensive, core principles that registered entities must comply with in the conduct of administering trading.

Does the chairman of the subcommittee agree that the bill is meant to provide this flexibility while also maintaining the ability of the CFTC to compel compliance with their provisions?

Mr. EWING. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. STENHOLM. I yield to the gentleman from Illinois.

Mr. EWING. Mr. Speaker, as included in the bill before us, the core principles will be, by their nature, flexible standards. Accordingly, a regulated entity would have reasonable discretion in making determinations as to how it will meet these requirements. Regulated entities will be able to exercise reasonable discretion in interpreting the language of a core principle to the extent such language includes discretionary language. However, the commission retains its clear authority to issue interpretations by rule, regulation, or order.

Mr. STENHOLM. Mr. Speaker, reclaiming my time, I thank the chairman for his answer, and for his work on the bill. I again encourage the support of this legislation.

Mr. Speaker, I include for the RECORD the statement of administration policy in support of the legislation before us.

STATEMENT OF ADMINISTRATION POLICY

H.R. 4541—Commodity Futures Modernization Act of 2000

(Rep Ewing (R) Illinois and 3 cosponsors)

The Administration strongly supports the version of H.R. 4541, the Commodity Futures Modernization Act of 2000, that the Administration understands will be considered on the House floor. This legislation would reauthorize the Commodity Futures Trading Commission (CFTC) and modernize the Nation's legal and regulatory framework regarding over-the-counter (OTC) derivatives transactions and markets. In so doing, H.R. 4541 also would implement many of the unanimous recommendations regarding the treatment of OTC derivatives made by the President's Working Group on Financial Markets, which includes the Secretary of the Treasury and the Chairmen of the Federal Reserve Board of Governors, the Securities and Exchange Commission, and the Commodity Futures Trading Commission.

It is important that this legislation be enacted this year because of the meaningful steps it would take in helping to: promote innovation; enhance the transparency and efficiency of derivative markets; maintain the competitiveness of U.S. businesses and markets; and, potentially, reduce systemic risk. H.R. 4541 would accomplish these goals while assuring adequate customer protection for small investors and protecting the integrity of the underlying securities and futures markets. A failure to modernize the Nation's framework for OTC derivatives during this legislative session would deprive American markets and businesses of these important benefits that could result in the movement of these markets to overseas locations with more updated regulatory regimes. The Administration looks forward to working with members of Congress to improve certain aspects of the bill as it continues through the legislative process.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. EWING. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I truly appreciate all of the hard work from majority and minority members and staff of my committee, the Committee on Banking and Financial Services and the Committee on Commerce. I also must say that the Treasury Department, the Commodity Futures Trading Commission, the Securities and Exchange Commission, and the Federal Reserve have cooperated greatly in working through this process.

Mr. Speaker, the President's Working Group report on OTC derivatives was requested by the House and Senate Committee on Agriculture chairmen in September of 1998 and presented to the committee in November of 1999. This report laid the groundwork for many of the legal certainty provisions and other provisions included in H.R. 4541.

The President's Working Group report pointed out two issues apart from the legal certainty that also deserve congressional close attention. Regulatory relief for the domestic futures exchanges was of great importance to ensure the U.S. futures exchanges can compete globally.

Chairman Greenspan said it most clearly in past testimony, ''Already the largest futures exchange in the world is no longer in America's heartland; instead, it is now in the heart of Europe. To be sure, no U.S. exchange has yet to lose a major contract to a foreign competitor. But it would be a serious mistake for us to wait for such unmistakable evidence of a loss of international competitiveness before acting.''

While the President's working group report did not give details on regulatory relief for futures exchanges, it did conclude that the Commodities Future Trading Commission should provide appropriate regulatory relief for the exchange-traded financial futures.

The CFTC took the initiative to develop a far-reaching staff proposal to provide regulatory relief for domestic futures exchanges. I am extremely impressed with the CFTC's commitment to work with the industry and with others and the President's working group members in creating its proposal. I particularly pay tribute to the chairman, Mr. Rainer, for his work.

H.R. 4541 incorporates much of the framework put forward by the CFTC.

The final aspect of the CEA modernization that I would like to address is the Shad/Johnson Accord. The President's working group members believed that the current prohibition on single stock futures could be repealed if issues about integrity of the underlying securities market and regulatory arbitrage are resolved.

The gentleman from Texas (Chairman COMBEST); the gentleman from Texas (Mr. STENHOLM), the ranking member; the gentleman from Virginia (Chairman BLILEY); and I all sent a letter to Chairman Levitt of the SEC and Chairman Rainer of the CFTC asking them to create and present a plan regarding the Shad/Johnson.

The agencies agreed that they would share jurisdiction on regulating these products; that dual trading would be banned; that margins would be set equivalent to the levels on option markets; and that the SEC would enforce the insider trading laws on these products.

The CFTC and the SEC's language is the basis for the current reform of the Shad/Johnson; however, a tax provision was added to ensure parity between the single stock futures and options trading and a section 31 fee currently assessed on securities will also be assessed on single stock futures.

Banking modernization was enacted last year. It is time for the financial industry to move onto CEA modernization.

I made it clear that I was interested in a comprehensive bill, and I believe this bill displays a substantial cooperative effort among the House Committee on Agriculture, the Committee on Banking and Financial Services, the Committee on Commerce to substantially address the most important reforms for the U.S. financial industry. For the first time, members of the President's working group, many of the futures exchanges and many over-the-counter parties have agreed on a majority of the bill.

America's financial industry is involved in a global battle. If the U.S. futures exchange, the OTC industry are to compete with new electronic exchanges and other foreign competition, such as the EUREX, we need to send a clear message that the United States will have a fair and competitive regulatory system.

Finally, I would like to thank the gentleman from Texas (Chairman ARCHER) and the joint tax staff for all of their hard work in crafting the legislative language to address the tax treatment for security future products.

Mr. Speaker, I submit the following explanation from the gentleman from Texas (Mr. ARCHER) that describes the tax language that is contained in this bill for the RECORD:

COMMITTEE ON WAYS AND MEANS,
HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
October 19, 2000.

Hon. LARRY COMBEST,
Chairman, Committee on Agriculture, Washington, DC.

DEAR LARRY: I understand that H.R. 4541, the ''Commodities Futures Modernization Act of 2000,'' is scheduled for consideration by the House today. One of the issues raised by the bill has been the tax treatment of transactions involving security futures contracts. Time constrains have prevented the Committee on Ways and Means from formally considering this legislation. Nonetheless, I have been asked to provide you with statutory language that addresses the tax treatment of security futures contracts, and I understand that the language I provided has been included in the bill.

To provide assistance in interpreting the statutory language, I am attaching a technical explanation prepared by the staff of the Joint Committee on Taxation. I would appreciate your introducing this letter and explanation into the record during consideration of H.R. 4541. Thank you very much for your assistance in this regard.

With Best Personal Regards,
Sincerely,

BIL ARCHER,
Chairman.

TECHNICAL EXPLANATION OF THE TAX PROVISIONS OF H.R. 4541, THE ''COMMODITY FUTURES MODERNIZATION ACT OF 2000''

PREPARED BY THE STAFF OF THE JOINT COMMITTEE ON TAXATION

I. INTRODUCTION

This document[1] prepared by the staff of the Joint Committee on Taxation provides a technical explanation of the tax provisions of H.R. 4541, the ''Commodity Futures Modernization Act of 2000.'' The bill is scheduled for consideration by the House of Representatives on October 19, 2000. The non-tax portions of the bill provides for exchange trading a ''securities futures contract'', which will be a contract for future delivery of a single security or a narrow-based security index. The bill provides for the tax treatment of these instruments in a manner generally consistent with the present-law treatment of transactions in stock and stock options.

II. EXPLANATION OF THE TAX PROVISIONS OF THE BILL

TAX TREATMENT OF SECURITIES FUTURES CONTRACTS (SEC. 124(C) AND (D) OF H.R. 4541 AND SECS. 1234B AND 1256 OF THE CODE)

Present Law

In general

Generally, gain or loss from the sale of property, including stock, is recognized at the time of sale or other disposition of the property, unless there is a specific statutory provision for nonrecognition (sec. 1001).

Gains and losses from the sale or exchange of capital assets are subject to special rules. In the case of individuals, net capital gain is generally subject to a maximum tax rate of 20 percent (sec. 1(h)). Net capital gain is the excess of net long-term capital gains over net short-term capital losses. Also, capital losses are allowed only to the extent of capital gains plus, in the case of individuals, $3,000 (sec. 1211). Capital losses of individuals may be carried forward indefinitely and capital losses of corporations may be carried back three years and forward five years (sec. 1212).

Generally, in order for gains or losses on a sale or exchange of a capital asset to be long-term capital gains or losses, the asset must be held for more than one year (sec. 1222).[2] A capital asset generally includes all property held by the taxpayer except certain enumerated types of property such as inventory (sec. 1221).

Section 1256 contracts

Special rules apply to ''section 1256 contracts,'' which include regulated futures contracts, certain foreign currency contracts, nonequity options, and dealer equity options. Each section 1256 contract is treated as if it were sold (and repurchased) for its fair market value on the last business day of the year (i.e., ''marked to market''). Any gain or loss with respect to a section 1256 contract which is subject to the mark-market rule is treated as if 40 percent of capital gain or loss. This results in a maximum rate of 27.84 percent on such gain for taxpayers other than corporations. The mark-to-market rule (and the special 60/40 capital treatment) is inapplicable to hedging transactions.

A ''regulated futures contract'' is a contract (1) which is traded on or subject to the rules of a national securities exchange registered with the Securities Exchange Commission, a domestic board of trade designated a contract market by the Commodities Futures Trading Commission, or similar exchange, board of trade, or market, and (2) with respect to which the amount required to be deposited and which may be withdrawn depends on a system of marking to market.

A ''dealer equity option'' means, with respect to an options dealer, an equity option purchased in the normal course of the activity of dealing in options and listed on the qualified board or exchange on which the options dealer is registered. An equity option is an option to buy or sell stock or an option the value of which is determined by reference to any stock, group or stocks, or stock index, other than an option on certain broad-based groups of stock or stock index.[3]

[2] The holding period for futures transactions in a commodity is 6 months. The 6-month holding period does not apply to futures which are subject to the mark-to-market rules of section 1256, discussed below.

[3] Rev. Rul. 94–63, 1994–2 C.B. 188, provides that the determination made by the Securities and Exchange Commission will determine whether or not an option is ''broad based''.

An options dealer is any person who is registered with an appropriate national securities exchange as a market maker or specialist in listed options, or who the Secretary of the Treasury determines performs functions similar to market makers and specialists.[4]

Mark to market accounting for dealers in securities

Under present law, a dealer in securities must compute its income from dealing in securities pursuant to the mark-to-market method of accounting (sec. 475). Gains and losses are treated as ordinary income and loss. Traders in securities, and dealers and traders in commodities may elect to use this method of accounting, including the ordinary income treatment. Section 1256 contracts are not treated as securities for purposes of section 475.[5]

Short sales

In case of a ''short sale'' (i.e., where the taxpayer sells borrowed property and later closes the sale by repaying the lender with substantially identical property), any gain or loss on the closing transaction is considered gain or loss from the sale or exchange of a capital asset if the property used to close the short sale is a capital asset in the hands of the taxpayer, but the gain is ordinarily treated as short-term gain (sec. 1233(a)).

The Internal Revenue Code (the ''Code'') also contains several rules intended to prevent the transformation of short-term capital gain into the long-term capital gain or long-term capital loss into short-term capital loss by simultaneously holding property and selling short substantially identical property (sec. 1233(b) and (d)). Under these rules, if a taxpayer holds property for less than the long-term holding period and sells short substantially identical property, any gain or loss upon the closing of the short sale is considered short-term capital gain, and the holding period of the substantially identical property is generally considered to begin on the date of the closing of the short-term sale. Also, if a taxpayer has held property for more than the long-term holding period and sells short substantially identical property, any loss on the closing of the short sale is considered a long-term capital loss.

For purposes of these short sale rules, property includes stock, securities, and commodity futures, but commodity futures are not considered substantially identical if they call for delivery in different months.

For purposes of the short-sale rules relating to short-term gains, the acquisition of an option to sell at a fixed price is treated as a short sale, and the exercise or failure to exercise the option is considered a closing of the short sale.[6]

The Code also treats a taxpayer as recognizing gain where the taxpayer holds appreciated property and enters into a short sale of the same or substantially identical property, or enters into a contract to sell the same or substantially identical property (sec. 1259).

Wash sales

The wash-sale rule (sec. 1091) disallows certain losses from the disposition of stock or securities if substantially identical stock or securities (or an option or contract to acquire such property) are acquired by the taxpayer during the period beginning 30 days before the date of sale and ending 30 days after such date of sale. Commodity futures are not treated as stock or securities for purposes of this rule. The basis of the substantially identical stock or securities is adjusted to include the disallowed loss.

Similar rules apply to disallow any loss realized on the closing of a short sale of stock or securities where substantially identical stock or securities are sold (or a short sale, option or contract to sell is entered into) during the applicable period before and after the closing of the short sale.

Straddle rules

If a taxpayer realizes a loss with respect to a position in a straddle, the taxpayer may recognize that loss for the taxable year only to the extent that the loss exceeds the unrecognized gain (if any) with respect to offsetting positions in the straddle (sec. 1092). Disallowed losses are carried forward to the succeeding taxable year and are subject to the same limitation in that taxable year.

A ''straddle'' generally refers to offsetting positions with respect to actively traded personal property. Positions are offsetting if there is a substantial diminution of risk of loss from holding one position by reason of holding one or more other positions in personal property. A ''position'' in personal property is an interest (including a futures or forward contract or option) in personal property.

The straddle rules provide that the Secretary of the Treasury may issue regulations applying the short sale holding period rules to positions in a straddle. Temporary regulations have been issued setting forth the holding period rules applicable to positions in a straddle.[7] To the extent these rules apply to a position, the rules in section 1233(b) and (d) do not apply.

The straddle rules generally do not apply to positions in stock. However the straddle rules apply if one of the positions is stock and at least one of the offsetting positions is either (1) an option with respect to stock or (2) a position with respect to substantially similar or related property (other than stock) as defined in Treasury regulations. Under property Treasury regulations, a position with respect to substantially similar or related property does not include stock or a short sale of stock, but includes any other position with respect to substantially similar or related property.[8]

If a straddle consists of both positions that are section 1256 contracts and positions that are not such contracts, the taxpayer may designate the positions as a mixed straddle. Positions in a mixed straddle are not subject to the mark-to-mark rule of section 1256, but instead are subject to rules written under regulations to prevent the deferral of tax or the conversion of short-term capital gain to long-term capital gain or long-term capital loss into short-term capital loss.

Transactions by a corporation in its own stock

A corporation does not recognize gain or loss on the receipt of money or other property in exchange for its own stock. Likewise, a corporation does not recognize gain or loss when it redeems its stock with cash, for less or more than it received when the stock was issued. In addition, a corporation does not recognize gain or loss on any lapse or acquisition of an option to buy or sell its stock (sec. 1032).

Explanation of the Tax Provisions of the Bill

In general

Except in the case of dealer securities futures contracts described below, securities futures contracts are not treated as section 1256 contracts. Thus, holders of these contracts are not subject to the mark-to-market rules of section 1256 and are not eligible for 60-percent long-term capital gain treatment under section 1256. Instead, gain or loss on these contracts will be recognized under the general rules relating to the disposition of property.[9]

A securities futures contract is defined in section 3(a)(55)(A) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as added by the bill. In general, that definition provides that a securities futures contract means a contract of sale for future delivery of a single security or a narrow-based security index. A securities future contract will not be treated as a commodities futures contract for purposes of the Code.

Treatment of gains and losses

The bill provides that any gain or loss from the sale or exchange of a securities futures contract (other than a dealer securities futures contract) will be considered as gain or loss from the sale or exchange of property which has the same character as the property to which the contract relates has (or would have) in the hands of the taxpayer. Thus, if the underlying security would be a capital asset in the taxpayer's hands, then gain or loss from the sale or exchange of the securities futures contract would be capital gain or loss. The bill also provides that the termination of a securities futures which is a capital asset will be treated as a sale or exchange of the contract.

Capital gain treatment will not apply to contracts which themselves are not capital assets because of the exceptions of the definition of a capital asset relating to inventory (sec. 1221(a)(1)) or hedging (sec. 1221(a)(7)), or to any income derived in connection with a contract which would otherwise be treated as ordinary income.

Except as otherwise provided in regulations under section 1092(b) (which treats certain losses from a straddle as long-term capital losses) and section 1234B, as added by the bill, any capital gain or loss from the sale or exchange of a securities futures contract to sell property (i.e., the short side of a securities futures contract) will be short-term capital gain or loss. In other words, a securities futures contract to sell property is treated as equivalent to a short sale of the underlying property.

Wash sale rules

The bill clarifies that, under the wash sale rules, a contract or option to acquire or sell stock or securities shall include options and contracts that are (or may be) settled in cash or property other than the stock or securities to which the contract relates. Thus, for example, the acquisition, within the period set forth in section 1091, of a securities futures contract to acquire stock of a corporation could cause the taxpayer's loss on the sale of stock in that corporation to be disallowed, notwithstanding that the contract may be settled in cash.

Short sale rules

In applying the short sale rules, a securities futures contract to acquire property will be treated in manner similar to the property itself. Thus, for example, the holding of a securities futures contract to acquire property

[4] A special rule provides that any gain or loss with respect to dealer equity options which are allocable to limited partners or limited entrepreneurs are treated as short-term capital gain or loss and do not qualify for the 60 percent long-term, 40 percent short-term capital gain or loss treatment of section 1256(a)(3).

[5] As discussed above, dealers in equity options are subject to mark-to-market accounting and the special capital gain rules of section 1256.

[6] An exception applies to an option to sell acquired on the same day as the property identified as intended to be used (and is so used) in exercising the option is acquired (sec. 1233(c)).

[9] Any securities futures contract which is not a section 1256 contract will be treated a ''security'' for purposes of section 475. Thus, for example, traders in securities future contracts which are not section 1256 contracts could elect to have section 475 apply.

and the short sale of property which is substantially identical to the property under the contract will result in the application of the rules of section 1233(b).[10] In addition, as stated above, a securities futures contract to sell is treated in a manner similar to a short sale of the property.

Stock which is part of a straddle at least one of the offsetting positions of which is a securities futures contract with respect to the stock or substantially identical stock will be subject to the straddle rules of section 1092. Treasury regulations under section 1092 applying the principles of the section 1233(b) and (d) short sale rules to positions in a straddle will also apply.

For example, assume a taxpayer holds a long-term position in actively traded stock (which is a capital asset in the taxpayer's hands) and enters into a securities futures contract to sell substantially identical stock (at a time when the position in the stock has not appreciated in value so that the constructive sale rules of section 1259 do not apply). The taxpayer has a straddle. Treasury regulations prescribed under section 1092(b) applying the principles of section 1233(d) will apply, so that any loss on closing the securities futures contract will be a long-term capital loss.

A corporation will not recognize gain or loss on transactions in securities futures contracts with respect to its own stock.

Holding period

If property is delivered in a satisfaction of a securities futures contract to acquire property (other than a contract to which section 1256 applies), the holding period for the property will include the period the taxpayer held the contract, provided that the contract was a capital asset in the hands of the taxpayer.

Regulations

The Secretary of the Treasury or his delegate has the authority to prescribe regulations to provide for the proper treatment of securities futures contracts under provisions of the Internal Revenue Code.

Dealers in securities futures contracts

In general, the bill provides that securities futures contracts and options on such contracts are not section 1256 contracts. The bill provides, however, that ''dealer securities futures contracts'' will be treated as section 1256 contracts.

The term ''dealer securities futures contract'' means a securities futures contract which is entered into by a dealer in the normal course of his or her trade or business activity of dealing in such contracts, and is traded on a qualified board of trade or exchange. The term also includes any option to enter into securities futures contracts purchased or granted by a dealer in the normal course of his or her trade or business activity of dealing in such options. The determination of who is to be treated as a dealer in securities futures contracts is to be made by the Secretary of the Treasury or his delegate not later than July 1, 2001. Accordingly, the bill authorizes the Secretary to treat a person as a dealer in securities futures contracts or options on such contracts if the Secretary determines that the person performs, with respect to such contracts or options, functions similar to an equity options dealer, as defined under present law.

[10] Because securities futures contracts are not treated as futures contracts with respect to commodities, the rule providing that commodity futures are not substantially identical if they call for delivery in different months does not apply.

The determination of who is a dealer in securities futures contracts is to be made in a manner that is appropriate to carry out the purpose of the provision, which generally is to provide comparable tax treatment between dealers in securities futures contracts, on the one hand, and dealers in equity options, on the other. Although traders in securities futures contracts (and options on such contracts) may not have the same market-making obligations as market makers or specialists in equity options, many traders are expected to perform analogous functions to such market makers or specialists by providing market liquidity for securities futures contracts (and options) even in the absence of a legal obligation to do so. Accordingly, the absence of market-making obligations is not inconsistent with a determination that a class of traders are dealers in securities futures contracts (and options), if the relevant factors, including providing market liquidity for such contracts (and options), indicate that the market functions of the traders is comparable to that of equity options dealers.

As in the case of dealer equity options, gains and losses allocated to any limited partner or limited entrepreneur with respect to a dealer securities futures contract will be treated as short-term capital gain or loss.

Treatment of options under section 1256

The bill modifies the definition of ''equity option'' for purposes of section 1256 to take into account changes made by the non-tax provisions of the bill. Only options dealers are eligible for section 1256 with respect to equity options. The term ''equity option'' is modified to include an option to buy or sell stock, or an option the value of which is determined, directly or indirectly, by reference to any stock, or any ''narrow-based security index,'' as defined in section 3(a)(55) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (as modified by the bill). An equity option includes an option with respect to a group of stocks only if the group meets the requirements for a narrow-based security index.

As under present law, listed options that are not ''equity options'' are considered ''nonequity options'' to which section 1256 applies for all taxpayers. For example, options relating to broad-based groups of stocks and broad based stock indexes will continue to be treated as nonequity options under section 1256.

Definition of contract markets

The non-tax provisions of the bill designate certain new contract markets. The new contract markets will be contract markets for purposes of the Code, except to the extent provided in Treasury regulations.

Effective date

These provisions will take effect on the date of enactment of the bill.

Mr. EWING. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. LEACH. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

(Mr. LEACH asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks and include extraneous material.)

Mr. LEACH. Last year, after nearly 2 decades of work, the United States Congress passed the Financial Modernization Act to bring our Nation's banking and securities laws in line with the realities of the marketplace. In the few days left for legislation in this Congress, an analogous opportunity presents itself to modernize the Commodity Exchange Act that governs the trading of futures and options.

At issue is the question of whether an appropriate regulatory framework can be established to deal not only with certain problems that confront today's risk management markets, but new dilemmas that appear on the horizon.

Legislation of this nature involves different committees with different concerns and sometimes competitive jurisdictional interests. From the perspective of the Committee on Banking and Financial Services, I would like to express my respect for the initial Committee on Agriculture product. That Committee's product, led by the gentleman from Texas (Chairman COMBEST) and the gentleman from Texas (Mr. EWING), reflected a credible way of dealing with a number of concerns that have developed during much of the last of the decade as derivatives-related products have grown. Nonetheless, the Committee on Banking and Financial Services believes that some modifications to H.R. 4541 were in order; and in July, a number of clarifying approaches were adopted on a bipartisan manner.

The fact is that the CEA, or Commodity Exchange Act, is an awkward legislative vehicle designed in an era in which financial products have of a nature now in place were neither in existence nor much contemplated. Indeed, the Commodities Future Trading Commission was fundamentally designed to supervise agriculture and commodities markets, not financial institutions.

Because of anachronistic constraints established under the Commodity Exchange Act, legal uncertainty exists for trillions of dollars of existing contractual obligations. This bill resolves this uncertainty for the benefit of customers of many of these products, but it does not fully resolve the certain issue for some kinds of future activities.

While I would have wished that more could have been achieved, it should be clear that no additional legal uncertainty is created under the bill and progressive strides have been made on the fundamental aspects of the legal certainty issue.

Mr. Speaker, at this point let me just conclude by thanking the staff of the committees of jurisdiction, the staffs frankly of the professional parts of the United States Government, the Treasury, the Fed, the SEC, that have put forth a great deal of effort and input into this legislative vehicle. Most of all, I think it has to be stressed that one Member of this body has contributed significantly to the embellishment of this institution, this legislative vehicle and I personally want to thank the gentleman from Texas (Mr. EWING) for everything he has done to bring this forth in such a responsible, decent and credible way.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. STENHOLM. Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. MARKEY).

Mr. MARKEY. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Texas for yielding me the time, and I thank him for the excellent work that he has contributed to this product, along with the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. LEACH), the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. BLILEY) and all across the spectrum of the House and the Senate.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in reluctant support for this bill today, because of the fact that I still have some very serious concerns about both the process that has brought this bill to the floor and some of its provisions.

Mr. Speaker, to the extent to which the bill has been made minimally acceptable to those of us on the Committee on Commerce who work for it, the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. DINGELL) and I, the gentleman from New York (Mr. TOWNS) who has spent a lot of time on this bill, I want to thank especially Consuela Washington for her excellent work and Jeff Duncan, from my staff, and the staff of the gentleman from New York (Mr. TOWNS) for their excellent work in trying to improve this piece of legislation, as best as it could have been improved and still pass the House floor.

What we are doing in this bill is saying, okay, we are going to take OTC swaps between eligible contract participants out of the CEA. They are excluded from the act. Now, I do not have any problem with that. If the swap dealers feel more comfortable with a statutory exclusion for sophisticated counterparties instead of the CFTC exemptive authority and the Committee on Agriculture is willing to agree to an exclusion that makes sense, that is fine with me. However, I am not willing to allow legal certainty to become a guise for sweeping exemptions from the antifraud or market manipulation provisions of the securities laws. I do not think that is wise.

Mr. Speaker, while some earlier drafts of this bill would have done precisely that, the bill we are considering today does not, and that is a good thing. That is why I am willing to support the legal certainty language today. However, I do have some concern about how we have defined eligible contract participants, that is, the sophisticated institutions that will be allowed to play in the swaps market with little or no regulation, I might add.

The bill before us today lowers the threshold for who will be an eligible contract participant far below what the Committee on Commerce had allowed. By the way, we agreed upon that, Democrat and Republican, from the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. BLILEY) to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. DINGELL), that was our standard. I feel that this will now create a regulatory gap for retail swap participants that ultimately must be addressed.

For example, under one part of this definition, an individual with total assets in excess of only $5 million who uses a swap to manage certain risks is an eligible contract participant for that swap. I think that threshold is simply too low.

I believe that the original Committee on Commerce investor protection provisions should have been fully restored. Moreover, the bill should clarify explicitly that counterparties who may enter into transactions with retail-eligible contract participants are subject for such transactions to the antifraud authority of their primary regulators.

Mr. Speaker, let me turn to the provisions of this bill that would allow the trading of stock futures. These new products that would trade on exchanges and compete directly with stocks and stock options.

Now, I have serious reservations about the impact of single stock futures on our securities markets, and in all likelihood these products are going to be used principally by day traders and other speculators. There is nothing inherently wrong with speculation. It can be an important source of liquidity in the financial markets, but one of the purposes of the Federal securities laws has traditionally been to control excessive speculation and excessive and artificial volatility in the markets and to limit the potential for markets to be manipulated or used to carry out insider trading or other fraudulent schemes.

Mr. Speaker, I support this bill. I hope it receives its support of the full House. It is much better than it had been, but there could have been greater consumer protections built in.

Mr. EWING. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. BLILEY), the distinguished chairman of the Committee on Commerce.

Mr. BLILEY. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me the time.

Mr. Speaker, as we considered H.R. 4541 in the Committee on Commerce, I had two priorities. First, that security-future products be traded in decimals with no government-mandated minimal increments. We have recently witnessed the beginning of decimal trading in the securities markets. When securities are priced in free market increments, spreads narrow and investors win. These efficiencies should accrue to the security futures market as well.

Second, electronic communications networks, ECNs, should have the ability to trade security future products. ECNs have provided increased competition and liquidity in the securities marketplace. Competition brings investors enhanced services and cheaper transactions. These benefits should certainly be extended to the market for security future products.

I am pleased these two provisions are in the bill we are considering today.

I thank my colleagues, the gentleman from Texas (Chairman COMBEST) and the gentleman from Texas (Mr. EWING), the chairman of the Subcommittee on Risk Management, Research and Specialty Crops; the gentleman from Iowa (Chairman LEACH); and the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. BAKER), chairman of the Subcommittee on Capital Markets, Securities and Government Sponsored Enterprises; as well as the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. OXLEY), my good friend, chairman of the Subcommittee on Finance and Hazardous Materials, for their fine work and constructive participation in this developing this legislation.

I support this bill, and I urge my colleagues to do the same.

Mr. STENHOLM. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. DINGELL).

(Mr. DINGELL asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. DINGELL. Mr. Speaker, I thank my good friend for yielding me the time.

Mr. Speaker, I rise to hold my nose at and to support this legislation. It just barely meets the standards in which legislation may be considered acceptable.

□ 1830

It does so only because the matter is going to go to the Senate, where I hope that the very visible and very obvious remaining defects are corrected.

There are a number of problems.

First of all, the bill almost died because of flawed procedure. Subject to action by the committees after just one bipartisan meeting, which from all counts was constructive, Democratic staff were booted out of the negotiations on this bill, at the direction of the Republican leadership.

This is not a surprise to me because it has happened on many other occasions. However, 2 weeks ago, the Committee on Agriculture majority staff started circulating drafts of legislation for Democratic review and comment. I salute them and thank them for that.

The development of these events and the willingness of the Committee on Agriculture to make significant changes in the bill in response to our comments have made it possible for me to support the bill at this point in the process. I want to commend and thank both the majority and the minority on the Committee on Agriculture for the remarkable consideration and courtesy which was shown.

This has gone from being an extraordinarily bad piece of legislation to being a bill which is worth moving to the next stage. It does not provide necessary investor protections, and it does not assure in the fullest that we will not have excessive speculation which will put the markets at risk in this country.

For reasons not adequately explained, greedy brokers and banks are arguably relieved of selected statutory and regulatory restraints on their behavior. These must be addressed before the bill becomes law. But I support passage of this bill at this time as a step forward, and as part of moving the process forward, as it should be.

But I want to make it very clear, I am still holding my nose. It will not be possible to support this bill if it is not significantly improved at the next stage of the process.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to address my principal concerns with this bill.

First, I support legal certainty under the Commodity Exchange Act (CEA) for swaps entered into between professional traders and similar sophisticated parties who have the means to protect themselves. However, the Republican negotiations have produced a bill that also excludes retail swaps from the CEA. Brokers can sell swaps to retail investors (in this market that means investors with $5 million in assets) without the antimanipulation and antifraud protections that otherwise would apply under that Act. The bill does not provide any substitute protections. This needs more work. I would like to clarify for the record that it is the intent of Congress in passing this legislation that counterparties who may enter into transactions with retail ''eligible contract participants'' are subject for such transactions to the antifraud authority of their primary regulator. This bill should not be interpreted as declaring open season on investors.

Second, Section 107 provides a redundant exclusion for a broad range of swap transactions. I would have preferred that this section be deleted and that we defer instead to the bill's carefully crafted exclusions for specific groups of products. However, as amended by the agreement we reached last night, I will support its inclusion. I want it clearly understood that the limitations on this exclusion are strict. To qualify for the Section 107 exclusion, each of the material economic terms of the swap must be individually negotiated, not passively accepted, by the parties. In contrast to the products for which the Section 107 exclusion is designed, exchange-traded products may have some terms that are standardized and some that can be negotiated on behalf of the purchaser or seller by an agent. Section 107 clarifies that exchange-traded products, such as security futures products, do not fall within the exclusion. Moreover, the Section 107 exclusion would not apply to an electronic system where a user passively could accept contract terms as opposed to actively negotiating every material economic term. Section 107 should not be construed to affect the applicability of other exclusions in the bill, such as the one found in Section 103 conditionally excluding certain transactions on electronic trading facilities from the CEA. Finally, Section 107 should not be construed to narrow or broaden the conditions that apply to such exclusions.

Third, H.R. 4541 establishes a comprehensive regulatory system for the regulation of security futures products. It rests on a system of joint regulation by the CFTC and SEC, both of whom are assigned specific tasks designed to maintain fair and orderly markets for single stock futures and futures or groups or indexes of securities. Under this system, it is clear that intermediaries that trade securities futures products must register with the SEC as broker-dealers, although it allows futures market intermediaries that are regulated by the CFTC to register with the SEC on a streamlined basis as notice registrants.

In the middle of the night, language was stripped from the bill with the result that banks would now be exempted from the rules that apply to everyone else. As a result a bank selling securities futures could register with the CFTC as a futures commission merchant but, unlike other entities, not have to notice register with the SEC. Effectively, half of the regulatory framework that we have negotiated over many months would disappear. There is no public interest to be served in eliminating SEC oversight over issues such as insider trading frauds, market manipulation, and customer sales practice rules just because a bank traded the security.

I want to make the following observations about this seeming travesty:

1. There are not many bank FCM's left.

2. I do not believe any responsible financial services lawyer will recommend that the bank FCM not file a broker-dealer notice registration with the SEC.

3. Given the clear findings of the Congress, which has expressly concluded that a security future is a security, the SEC would be on solid legal standing should it proceed by rule to require bank FCM's to register as broker-dealers through the streamlined notice process.

4. Similarly, the CFTC would be on solid legal standing should it bar bank FCM's from selling security futures unless they have notice registered with the SEC.

Fourth, also last night, language was added on page 227 of the bill that has the effect of creating a major competitive advantage for foreign futures exchanges trading single stock futures based on U.S. securities. That provision, a new Section 2(a)(1)(F)(ii) of the Commodity Exchange Act, permits any retail customer in the U.S. to purchase single stock futures on U.S. stocks sold by a foreign board of trade without regard to any of the regulatory constraints imposed on U.S. exchanges. Because of this change, U.S. exchanges will not face direct electronic competition on U.S. trading terminals from foreign exchanges that can cut margins, fees, and regulatory costs. This provision, for which no one will now claim responsibility, undoes much of the good work in this legislation to ensure fair competition and consistent market integrity and investor protections. This provision should be deleted from the bill.

With these serious reservations, I support passage of this legislation.

Mr. LEACH. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the distinguished gentlewoman from New Jersey (Mrs. ROUKEMA), the subcommittee chairman.

(Mrs. ROUKEMA asked and was given permission to revise and extend her remarks.)

Mrs. ROUKEMA. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding time to me.

Mr. Speaker, I want to associate myself with the remarks of the chairman of the Committee on Banking and Financial Services, with which I agree.

I do want to make a couple of statements here. What we are doing here today is very essential in terms of improving and clarifying the legal uncertainty under the Commodity Exchange Act. That has been pointed out.

We are also talking about a modernized economy, not only here in the United States but in the global economy. As has been mentioned, the derivatives and the swap agreements are growing throughout, and we need this clarification of legal certainty.

But as a member of the Committee on Banking and Financial Services, I also want to say that this legislation would ensure that derivatives engaged in by financial institutions would continue to be regulated by the appropriate bank regulatory agencies. I must stress that this law would in no way reduce the appropriate oversight of these products.

Mr. Speaker, I will work in the next Congress to revisit these issues as the market continues to grow, but this is an essential first step.

Mr. Speaker. I rise as a Member of the Banking Committee in support of H.R. 4541, the Commodity Futures Modernization Act of 2000. This is an important piece of legislation that addresses a host of issues relating to products and transactions that form a critical part of our nation's economy. Today I want to focus on the regulatory treatment of one type of product: over-the-counter derivatives contracts that are currently traded among large financial institutions throughout the world. These derivatives, which include swap agreements, various options, and hybrid instruments, are used by large financial institutions to manage and control various risks—particularly interest rate risk. These instruments help maintain a safe and sound banking system.

However, there have been questions about the legal certainty of these derivatives because their status under the commodity Exchange Act is unclear. This uncertainty is a result of the law not keeping up with the marketplace. This bill would go a long way to address the question of legal certainty of these instruments traded among large institutions in the wholesale market by exempting these products from the Commodity Exchange Act. This legislation would ensure that these derivatives engaged in by financial institutions would continue to be regulated by the appropriate bank regulatory agencies. I must stress that this law would in no way reduce appropriate oversight of these products, but would ensure that our financial institutions would not be subject to a burdensome additional layer of regulation solely as a result of participating in this derivatives activity.

I want to note that I support the additional provisions that were passed out of the Banking Committee earlier this year that would have provided clarification for a broader market of products identified as ''banking products.'' I will work in the next Congress to revisit these issues as the market continues to grow. This is an essential first step. But I want to thank the chairmen of the Agriculture Committee, the Commerce Committee, and the Banking Committee for working together to bring this bill to the floor and addressing the most critical component of the ''legal certainty'' issue. This bill would ensure the continued ability of large financial institutions to manage risks with derivatives, and I support its passage.

Mr. EWING. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1½ minutes to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. BOEHNER).

Mr. BOEHNER. Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the gentleman from Illinois for yielding time to me.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H.R. 4541, the Commodity Futures Modernization Act, which provides for the deregulation and modernization of the U.S. futures industry.

It also reforms the antiquated Shad-Johnson accord to allow U.S. futures exchanges to trade single stock futures.

Finally, the bill provides legal certainty for the $90 trillion financial derivatives industry that really has become critical to the operation of American finance and industry.

This important legislation was negotiated between the Committee on Agriculture, the Committee on Banking and Financial Services, and the Committee on Commerce to provide real reform. It places our financial industry on solid ground for the highly competitive future. Without it, many of these important financial products will move overseas, threatening the growth of the American economy.

I especially want to compliment my good friend, the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. EWING), who worked tirelessly on this bill. The gentleman from Illinois is retiring this year, and his leadership on this issue will be sorely missed. I think this landmark legislation is a compliment to his years of service as a legislator.

I also want to congratulate all of the chairmen of the relevant committees, the three committees and subcommittees, and their ranking members for their efforts in bringing this bill together so it can be on the floor today.

The Commodity Futures Modernization Act is right for our economy and it is right for our financial industry. I am proud to lend my support to this important bill.

Mr. STENHOLM. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Maine (Mr. BALDACCI).

Mr. BALDACCI. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding time to me, and also for his leadership on the Committee on Agriculture, and for working to fashion the bipartisan measure that is before us today.

Also, I commend the gentleman from Illinois (Chairman EWING) for his leadership and support on the committee. Having been a member of the committee, to end up working on a bill like this, I am very proud of the part that I have played in that effort.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the Commodity Futures Modernization Act. The legislation has been a product of a lot of hard work over several years, and the reforms are a long time in coming. But between now and when the committee dealt with it, it has been undergoing some changes, which is not really surprising. However, some of what I supported has been taken out. I hope we can continue working on this when we revisit one of those issues.

With respect to the definition of eligible contract participants, the CFTC has the broad authority to determine that other persons are eligible beyond those specifically listed. It is my understanding that the commodity trading advisors, with over $25 million in client assets under management, are among those other persons which the CFTC should determine to meet the requirements.

Mr. LEACH. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to my distinguished colleague, the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. TOOMEY).

Mr. TOOMEY. Mr. Speaker, I thank the chairman for yielding time to me.

Mr. Speaker, over the last 20 years, American and international financial markets have changed dramatically. Opportunities for investors have expanded tremendously. New access to capital has empowered entrepreneurs. The ability to hedge financial and commodity price risk has stabilized earnings and encouraged investment.

This democratization of the capital markets has been driven largely by the development and application of derivative transactions, especially over-the-counter derivatives.

I worked in the derivative sector of the financial services industry for 7 years in the 1980s and 1990s. I marvel now at how widespread, sophisticated, and indispensable these products have become since then.

Today we are going to pass a Commodity Exchange Act that will eliminate most of the cloud of legal and regulatory uncertainty that has shadowed these products since their invention. For that reason, I urge my colleagues to vote yes on this bill.

It is not, however, a perfect bill. I hope the other body will eliminate the remaining legal uncertainty that will still shadow the use of these transactions by retail customers. I hope that they will allow greater flexibility in the electronic trading of the over-the-counter derivatives.

Today we do have a good bill. It will strengthen the ability of American financial institutions to compete in a vital sector of finance. I urge its passage.

Mr. STENHOLM. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the balance of my time.

Mr. Speaker, I would just close by encouraging all of my colleagues to support this bill, and again commend the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. EWING) for his tireless work in putting together a package that has brought three different committees together under a most strange situation, but one in which we do have the opportunity to pass legislation of some extreme importance.

Mr. EWING. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, in closing, let me say that this has been a great experience. I have had wonderful cooperation from both sides of the aisle, from chairmen and subcommittee chairmen and ranking members on those committees.

I think it is important today to recognize that we are here at a time and a place when this legislation, so badly needed by our financial industry, can pass through this House and be considered in the other body.

When we realize how long it takes us sometimes to move complicated pieces of legislation, such as the Banking Reform Act of last year, we should recognize that now is the time to move this legislation before we have a new administration, before we have new chairmen, before we have whoever may be in control of this Congress after the next election.

We have come together. We have grappled with the issues. We have reached a good conclusion and devised a good bill for our financial industry. I thank everyone again, and I ask for a positive vote on this bill.

Mr. OXLEY. Mr. Speaker, during this Congress, we have made historic progress in enacting legislation to modernize and improve our financial markets. We enacted Gramm-Leach-Bliley, and finally repealed the outdated restrictions against affiliations among banks, securities firms, and insurance firms, paving the way for new efficiencies and innovations in our marketplace.

We enacted E-SIGN, facilitating the growth of electronic commerce in not only the financial marketplace, but indeed the entire U.S. marketplace.

And today we are taking a step toward further improving the competitiveness of U.S. markets in the financial arena. H.R. 4541 serves three important functions. It promotes regulatory efficiency, enhances legal certainly in the derivatives market, and stimulates competition.

This bill enhances regulatory efficiency in the futures market by streamlining the regulations of the CFTC. I support this prudent approach to deregulation.

It enhances legal certainty in the derivatives market by explicitly carving out derivatives transactions from CFTC regulation. I welcome the resulting legal certainty, which is vital to the continued growth of an industry that is so fundamentally important to the financial health of U.S. companies, and, indeed, the global financial marketplace.

The legislation also promotes competition both domestically and internationally by lifting a ban on a type of financial product that could serve important functions in our markets and abroad. While current law bans the trading of futures on individual securities and on narrow-based indices in the U.S. overseas markets for these security futures products are rapidly developing. It is important for our markets to be able to compete for this business, because I strongly believe that in a fair competitive environment, our markets will always win.

This legislation authorizes the trading of securities futures products on futures exchanges, options exchanges, equity exchanges and, importantly, Alternative Trading Systems. The broad spectrum of competition that this legislation will foster will serve the market well.

I would like to thank my colleagues for their good work on this legislation. In particular I thank Chairman BLILEY, CHAIRMAN COMBEST, Chairman LEACH, Chairman EWING and Chairman BAKER for the leadership they have displayed in moving this bill forward. The bill certainly reflects the hard work these gentlemen have put into it. This is good policy and I urge each of you to support it.

Mr. BAKER. Mr. Speaker, Commodity Exchange Act reform is long overdue.

The CEA has become an obstacle to the competitiveness of the US futures industry. It prohibits US futures exchanges from offering single stock futures while the same products are being created in London for international investors. It burdens futures exchanges with regulation that amounts to micromanagement, and that increases the cost of managing risk for American companies and financial institutions.

Even worse, some at the CFTC have tried to apply CFTC regulations—which don't even work well for the futures business—to banking activities, including bank deposits and swaps. Banks don't need a second regulator, not for their deposits and not for their swap business. CFTC regulation for swaps is so inappropriate that, if swaps were ever found to be futures contracts regulated by the CFTC, many of them would be illegal and unenforceable under CFTC rules. Swaps aren't futures and swaps aren't securities, and we must make that clear in federal law.

The House Banking Committee, under the able leadership of Chairman LEACH at our July 27 mark-up of this bill, added provisions to the House Agriculture Committee version that dealt with many of these problems. Our approach wasn't the most clear and straightforward, and I'll be the first to admit it. I would have preferred—and I still prefer—to simply add a definition of futures contracts to the Commodity Exchange Act so the questions of legal certainty for swaps would be completely resolved. But the Banking Committee approach was still effective, and it was included in the compromise version of this bill that was agreed to by Committee Chairmen from the House and Senate last week.

In the bill going to the floor today, those protections for swaps are gone. This bill does not create legal certainty for all swap participants. It does not protect banks from duplicate regulation by the CFTC and SEC. It is not good enough to become law.

Furthermore, the CFTC, an agency in search of a mission, will become an unwanted and unneeded regulator of e-commerce, particularly in the realm of financial services. The Bill contains a definition of electronic trading facility, and while it rules out CFTC regulation of some electronic trading, it opens the door to CFTC regulation of other electronic facilities. I wonder whether the e-commerce community is even aware of how this legislation might constrain the growth of electronic finance. We should not build a regulatory structure before it even exists, especially whether other countries are promoting unrestricted growth of such financial e-commerce platforms. We should not build a regulatory structure for e-commerce before we even know what it looks like.

It is evident that these problems will not be solved on the House side. They must be tackled by the House working together with the Senate, and in particular with Senate Banking Committee Chairman PHIL GRAMM. I look forward to productive discussions with the Senator that will enable the Congress to adopt responsible guidelines for financial products.

Mr. DAVIS of Illinois. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong support of H.R. 4541, the Commodity Futures Modernization Act of 2000. I represent the 7th Congressional District of Illinois, which is home to the Chicago Mercantile Exchange and the Chicago Board of Trade—two of this country's premier derivatives exchanges. While I have the honor of representing them in Congress, they and the rest of the U.S. markets represent us all over the world. I believe that it is in this nation's best economic interests for U.S. financial markets to grow and prosper and once again lead the world.

This legislation helps us to do that. This much-needed legislation would provide regulatory reform to U.S. futures exchanges, provide legal certainty to the U.S. derivatives market, and finally lift the 19-year ban on single stock futures, allowing U.S. investors access to these products and expanding our markets.

The threat to U.S. markets has increased in just the last month. The London International Financial Futures Exchange announced that it would begin trading single stock futures on U.S. based company stocks in January 2001. In just three months, futures on the stock of AT&T, Citigroup, Cisco, Systems, Exxon Mobil, and Merck will be traded in London. If H.R. 4541 does not pass, U.S. markets will continue to be prohibited from offering these products—handcuffed from competing with foreign exchanges for a U.S. market that should be traded here at home.

Let me be clear, this is not just an Illinois issue. Futures exchanges are a huge part of what makes the entire U.S. economy robust and vibrant. If we fail to lift the ban on single stock futures, if we fail to provide regulatory reform, and if we fail to provide legal certainty to U.S. derivatives markets, then the consequences could be devastating. For example, U.S. exchanges will be rendered completely unable to compete. Without this legislation, single stock futures, which are based on assets developed and produced in the United States, may never be traded in this country.

We all need to ensure that the U.S. financial services industry remain competitive in the global marketplace. Therefore, I urge you to join with me in passing this important legislation.

Mr. BARRETT of Nebraska. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H.R. 4541, the Commodity Futures Modernization Act of 2000. I commend Chairman EWING and his staff for their hard work and leadership as we debate this legislation.

The House Agriculture Committee has worked together with the Banking and Financial Services and Commerce Committees to draft a bill that will discourage fraud and manipulation, but encourage technology, competition and a sound business environment. Our farmers and ranchers are now more dependent on a sound futures market than ever before. I am pleased that this legislation will allow our agriculture producers access to a risk management tool as we move into the 21st century.

Mr. Speaker, this legislation will provide our financial institutions with the tools needed to conduct trading practices in a friendly manner. This bill also brings our U.S. exchanges onto a level playing field with foreign exchanges. American agriculture producers are becoming more involved in futures markets. It is important that we establish regulations that are fair and will allow our farmers to use the futures market as intended.

In my home state of Nebraska, I try to encourage the use of the futures market to provide procedures with yet another valuable risk tool. When Congress approves this legislation, the Commodity Exchange Act reauthorization will be complete. I then fully expect the Commodity Futures Trading Commission (CFTC) to regulate the U.S. futures and related markets and protect the interests of those who use the markets.

The Commodity Futures Modernization Act of 2000 accomplishes three main goals. First, this bill establishes legal certainty for over-the-counter derivatives. Second, this legislation provides regulatory relief to futures exchanges and their customers. This relief will transform the CFTC from a frontline regulatory role to more of an oversight role. Third, this act will reform the Shad-Johnson Jurisdictional Accord to make clear rules of regulation between agencies.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to support the Commodity Futures Modernization Act and allow our American farmers and ranchers to make use of the commodity futures market.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. LAHOOD). The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. EWING) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 4541, as amended.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. EWING. Mr. Speaker, I object to the vote on the ground that a quorum is not present and make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Evidently a quorum is not present.

The Sergeant at Arms will notify absent Members.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 377, nays 4, not voting 51, as follows:

□ 1902

So (two-thirds having voted in favor thereof) the rules were suspended and the bill, as amended, was passed.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

Stated for:

Mr. DIAZ-BALART. Mr. Speaker, on rollcall vote 540, H.R. 4541, the Commodity Futures Modernization Act of 2000, I was in my district on official business. Had I been present, I would have voted "yea."

Mr. FILNER. Mr. Speaker, on rollcall No. 540, I had to return to my Congressional District on official business and missed this vote. Had I been present, I would have voted "yea."

Ms. SANCHEZ. Mr. Speaker, during rollcall vote No. 540 on H.R. 4541 I was unavoidably detained. Had I been present, I would have voted "yea."

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. EWING. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks and to include extraneous material on H.R. 4541, the bill just considered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. LAHOOD). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Illinois?

There was no objection.

APPOINTMENT OF CONFEREES ON H.R. 4811, FOREIGN OPERATIONS, EXPORT FINANCING AND RELATED PROGRAMS APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 2001

Mr. CALLAHAN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the bill (H.R. 4811), making appropriations for foreign operations, export financing, and related programs for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2001, and for other purposes, with a Senate amendment thereto, disagree to the Senate amendment, and agree to the conference asked by the Senate.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Alabama?

There was no objection.

MOTION TO INSTRUCT OFFERED BY MS. PELOSI

Ms. PELOSI. Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion to instruct conferees.

The Clerk read as follows:

Ms. PELOSI moves that the managers on the part of the House at the Conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the bill H.R. 4811, making appropriations for Foreign Operations, Export Financing, and related programs for the year ending September 30, 2001 be instructed to insist on the highest possible funding level for Debt Restructuring, and on provisions authorizing a United States contribution to the Highly Indebted Poor Countries Trust Fund without unnecessary legislative restrictions.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentlewoman from California (Ms. PELOSI) will be recognized for 30 minutes and the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. CALLAHAN) will be recognized for 30 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentlewoman from California (Ms. PELOSI).

Ms. PELOSI. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I offer this motion to emphasize that it is imperative that the conference agreement on the fiscal year 2001 Foreign Operations bill provide both the highest possible funding level for debt restructuring, and for the authorization for a United States contribution to the Highly Indebted Poor Countries Trust Fund, HIPC, without unnecessary legislative restrictions.

Just a few weeks ago, Mr. Speaker, this House had a passionate debate about debt relief and a historic vote in favor of funding this much-needed relief. As a result, the House bill now contains full funding for the amount requested in fiscal year 2001 for a U.S. contribution to the HIPC Trust Fund. However, the bill is still short of the full pending request for debt restructuring by some $238 million. The Senate bill contains even less than the House bill.

In addition, both the House and Senate appropriations bills contain unnecessary legislative restrictions on U.S. participation in the HIPC Trust Fund, such as a moratorium on new lending and other eligibility restrictions. Just yesterday, the chairman of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, Senator HELMS, and the chairman of the Senate Committee on Banking, Senator GRAMM, sent a letter to Secretary Summers outlining 17 specific conditions for debt relief that must be met prior to U.S. participation in the Trust Fund. The conditions outlined in their letter would require the IMF to completely revamp their lending procedures, and would also eliminate 36 of the 41 of the countries currently eligible for debt relief.

The House sent a strong signal of support for debt relief earlier this year. If we are serious about providing real debt relief, it is essential that the conference agreement on the bill fully fund debt relief and authorize a U.S. contribution to the HIPC Trust Fund without unnecessary restrictions. My motion instructs conferees to insist on these items.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. CALLAHAN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I think, Mr. Speaker, that the authorizing committee, the Committee on Banking and Financial Services, has some minor objections to a provision contained therein, but I do not have, and I think that we can certainly work with that committee to work out the differences and, therefore, I will accept the motion.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Ms. PELOSI. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. WATERS), a leader on this issue from the authorizing committee.

Ms. WATERS. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman for yielding me this time, and again I rise to commend the gentlewoman from California (Ms. PELOSI) for the wonderful work that she has done on this very important issue.

It is extremely important for our conferees to be instructed to do everything that can be done to honor the full request of the President. This has been described as one of those issues that has brought us all together, and I am very pleased and proud that I have received many calls of compliments from other countries, and of course a lot of religious organizations under Jubilee 2000, as well as nongovernment organizations, commending us all for the debate that we had on this issue, commending us all for rising above petty differences and coming together around one of the most important issues of our time.

Because of the work that we are doing, we are going to be able to get some of these countries out from under this debt that is drowning them, and I am very appreciative for the opportunity to support this motion to instruct our conferees.

Ms. PELOSI. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

In closing, I just want to commend the gentlewoman from California (Ms. WATERS) for her leadership. It was her amendment which increased the funding in the original bill when it was on the floor. I also want to thank the chairman of the committee for accepting this motion.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. GUTKNECHT). Without objection, the previous question is ordered on the motion.

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion to instruct offered by the gentlewoman from California (Ms. PELOSI).

The motion was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, the Chair appoints the following conferees: Messrs. CALLAHAN, PORTER, WOLF, PACKARD, KNOLLENBERG, KINGSTON, LEWIS of California, WICKER, YOUNG of Florida, Ms. PELOSI, Mrs. LOWEY, Mr. JACKSON of Illinois, Ms. KILPATRICK, Mr. SABO, and Mr. OBEY.

There was no objection.

LEGISLATIVE PROGRAM

(Mr. BONIOR asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BONIOR. Mr. Speaker, I would like to inquire of the distinguished gentleman from Texas (Mr. BONILLA) of the schedule for the rest of today and the remainder of the week.

Mr. BONILLA. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BONIOR. I yield to the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. BONILLA. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding, and, Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to announce that the House has completed its legislative business for the week. The House will not be in session tomorrow. The House will next meet on Monday, October 23, at 12:30 p.m. for morning hour and 2 p.m. for legislative business.

The House will consider a number of measures under suspension of the rules, a list of which will be distributed to Members' offices tomorrow. On Monday, there will be no votes in the House. Any requests for recorded votes on Monday will be rolled until Tuesday after 2 p.m.

On Tuesday and the balance of the week the House will consider the following measures:

H.R. 4656, the Lake Tahoe Basin School Site Land Conveyance Act;

H.R. 4577, the Departments of Labor, Health and Human Services, and Education Appropriations Conference Report;

H.R. 4942, the District of Columbia Appropriations Conference Report;

H.R. 2614, the Certified Development Company Program Improvements Act of 2000 Conference Report;

And the Foreign Operations Appropriations Conference Report.

Mr. Speaker, the House will also consider any other conference reports that may become available throughout the week.

Mr. BONIOR. Mr. Speaker, reclaiming my time, if I could inquire of the gentleman from Texas, are there any other bills on next Tuesday that the gentleman expects to bring to the floor other than the suspension bills?

Mr. BONILLA. If the gentleman will continue to yield, the Foreign Ops bill is expected to be filed Monday evening. In terms of additional suspensions, is that specifically what the gentleman is inquiring about?

Mr. BONIOR. Other bills besides the suspension bills.

Mr. BONILLA. The Committee on Rules is meeting on Monday night, and we hope to have the Foreign Ops bill ready for Tuesday.

Mr. BONIOR. So we expect to have the Foreign Ops bill on the floor on Tuesday?

Mr. BONILLA. That is correct.

Mr. BONIOR. Are there any votes besides the suspensions that are going to occur before 6 p.m.?

Mr. BONILLA. Yes, we do expect votes at 2 p.m. on Tuesday.

Mr. BONIOR. But beyond suspension bills, does the gentleman expect votes on other bills before 6?

Mr. BONILLA. It is possible that nonsuspension bills will be held as of 2 p.m. on Tuesday.

□ 1915

Mr. BONIOR. Mr. Speaker, could the gentleman tell me when we expect to adjourn sine die?

Mr. BONILLA. I wish I could. At this point, the remainder of the schedule has not been determined.

Mr. BONIOR. May I ask the distinguished gentleman from Texas when we expect to vote on the minimum wage bill?

Mr. BONILLA. At this point that has not been determined.

Mr. BONIOR. How about the prescription drug bill?

Mr. BONILLA. At this point that has not been determined.

Mr. BONIOR. How about the HMO bill?

Mr. BONILLA. Same answer.

Mr. BONIOR. How about the education program that we talked about in the debate a little earlier this afternoon?

Mr. BONILLA. Same answer.

Mr. BONIOR. Well, Mr. Speaker, I just want to say, and I will end with this comment, we are here 19 days into the fiscal year, the President has received and signed three appropriations bills out of 13, and the work of the country is not done. The work on key issues like minimum wage, HMO reform, prescription drugs, hate crimes, and the list goes on, is not done. We are taking a 5-day period before we vote. We will not come back until next Tuesday.

I just want to make it very clear this evening so no one misunderstands that these CR's will not be tolerated by us or by the President of the United States beyond Wednesday. We are going to do them in 24-hour increments, and we are going to get the work of the country done.

I just want to tell my friend from Texas and his colleagues and my colleagues here on this side of the aisle, we will not yield and we will not leave here until we get some of these major issues done.

We want the minimum wage done. I am not going to limit myself to what we want done, but I will tell you we will not leave here certainly if the educational pieces are not done; and that includes 100,000 teachers, the construction for modernization of our schools, as well as the after-school program and teacher certification. Those are key pieces to what we think we should be able to accomplish as a Congress.

And so, anyway, my colleagues are forewarned of our concern, and we hope that we can do this in an expeditious manner to take care of the needs of the country and so we can get back to our home districts and do not expect a CR to run beyond 24 hours if in fact the business of the House is not done.

Mr. Speaker, I yield to my friend, the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY).

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding.

I would like to take this opportunity to give the House a status report on what is probably the major bill that still remains before we get out of here on the appropriations front. We had yet another meeting of the Labor-HHS conference, the seventh meeting we have had, I believe. And at the beginning of the meeting, we were told by the Senate Chair of the conference that he would not sign a conference report one dime above the level contained in the conference report for Labor, Health, and Education.

At that point, frankly, I asked if I could be pointed in the direction of whatever room or whatever person would be in a position to negotiate so that we could reach an agreement on that bill. And at that point the White House and those of us on our side of the aisle, myself and the Senator representing the Senate caucus, laid a compromise on the table which was in essence a 20 percent reduction in the amount of funding that we have been asking but insisting that we still meet the needs on school construction, on class size reduction, on teacher training, on after-school programs, on Pell, and on IDEA.

We presented the offer, which is a 20 percent movement on our part, and we asked him to please be prepared to sit down at 10 o'clock Monday morning to deal with this issue so that we can get some movement. And it is my earnest hope that we do not have to wait until Wednesday or Thursday or Friday to begin serious negotiations on this. We have moved. And as far as I am concerned, we need to see movement on the other side.

Mr. BONIOR. Mr. Speaker, I thank my colleagues for their comments.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BONIOR. I yield to the gentleman from Florida.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. I did not have a chance to listen to all of the discussion on the schedule, but I just have a question either for you or Mr. OBEY. We are trying our darnedest to have the Labor-HHS bill filed by Monday night. That would require the presence of the principals here tomorrow and possibly Saturday.

I wonder if that would be possible for the minority principals to be here?

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BONIOR. I yield to the gentleman from Wisconsin.

Mr. OBEY. As the gentleman well knows, we have stayed here for three weekends waiting to find someone to negotiate with. And as the gentleman also well knows, no one with the power to make decisions on the issues has been here.

I do not have any intention of sitting around for another weekend waiting for the persons who have the authority to make the decisions to come around.

It is obvious that the chairman from the other body is not prepared to make any movement whatsoever in negotiations. It is also obvious that it is the leadership of both caucuses that is making the decision about what the contents are in these bills.

And so far as I know, they are going to be roaming around the country again, which is their right, performing their duties on behalf of candidates running for reelection. But I am not about to again not go to my own district waiting for meetings that will not happen.

We asked that people be prepared to meet at 10 o'clock Monday morning. We laid an offer on the table. We are giving their side and both the Senate and the House Chambers an opportunity to respond to it, and we have asked and Senator STEVENS has indicated that he would like to meet on Monday to discuss this.

My question would be, when will the Speaker and the majority leader and the majority whip in this House and the majority leader on the Senate side and the majority whip on the Senate side be available next week so that we can in fact get these decisions made?

You and I know that if we could work out a deal between the two of us we would have it done in an hour. We know that. But every time we try to get a decision out of the Committee on Appropriations, we get vetoed by somebody on your side.

The House made an offer to us of several billion dollars earlier in the week. That was taken off the table tonight by the Senate chairman of the subcommittee. That is not a way to negotiate. I do not think the gentleman from Florida would negotiate that way, and we did not appreciate being stiffed on it this evening.

So we will be prepared to meet anytime that your leadership is in town in both Chambers so that when we get stiffed again, we can go to someone else who has the authority to provide some movement. I hope it is by Monday, but I frankly would be surprised if even then we get movement from them.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. If the gentleman would yield further, the principals that are necessary to conclude this agreement on the Labor, Health and Human Services bill will be available tomorrow or Saturday.

Mr. OBEY. Would you name them, please.

Mr. YOUNG Of Florida. I'm sorry, I didn't hear you. Could you say that again?

Mr. OBEY. Would you name who would be available tomorrow?

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. The gentleman knows who the principals are that need to be here.

Mr. OBEY. We just met with the principals and got stiffed. We were just told by the principal from your party on the Senate side I would not move one dollar. And we were asked by the Senate chairman of the Committee on Appropriations to sit down and meet Monday. I expect and I hope that we will find him more reasonable than we have found the principals that we have been dealing with.

We had seven meetings with the principals and we have gotten the same thing out of them every time, no movement. That is not the way we are going to end this session.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman would yield further, I want to respond to my friend from Wisconsin that he knows who the principals are. He also knows who the one big principal is at the White House. And I think he also knows that we finally, just this evening, got the offer from the White House that we have been waiting for for quite some time.

It is essential, if we are going to negotiate, we need an offer and a response.

Mr. OBEY. You got the offer. We are waiting for your response. We were told that we would get it on Monday. And I am relying on Senator STEVENS, he is a man of good faith, and I am relying on you to be ready Monday to deal with it. But I have been here for a month.

The Speaker has gone to his district; he has gone all over the country campaigning for people. The majority leader has. The majority whip has. I have been stuck here like a fugitive on a chain gang waiting for somebody in the leadership on your side of the aisle with the power to negotiate to actually engage in negotiations. And, as you know, all we get is no, no, no.

We have moved 20 percent off our position. But we are not going to leave here, as the distinguished minority whip says, until we get a Labor-HHS bill that provides an additional ability to reduce class size, to train more teachers in a better fashion, to provide for after-school centers, to provide for the same level of Pell Grant funding that you yourself said you wanted in May, and to provide additional funding for the disabled.

That is what we are asking for, along with the school construction. And we moved 20 percent from our position today. The only answer we got from your side is no movement. And so there is no point in meeting with the same four people all around because we get no new results.

So what we are hoping is that we will get different results by moving it to a different level, and that is what we have been told would take place on Monday.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman would further yield, after sifting through everything that I have heard from my dear friend from Wisconsin, I think the answer to my question is, no. He would not be available tomorrow or Saturday or Sunday, but he would be available Monday. And if that is the best we can do, that is the best we can do.

Mr. OBEY. The gentleman knows that I said on this floor and I said to you that I would be prepared to be here any day, Saturday, Sunday or Monday, if your leadership was prepared to be here. Because it is obvious they are the people making the decisions and they have stripped you of all ability to make decisions without checking with them and then they vetoed virtually every decision that you made.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. We are in a position now that we are dealing with the White House. And we finally, just a few minutes ago, got an offer from the White House. The gentleman can stand there and raise his voice all he wants.

We just got the offer from the White House.

Now, we would like to have an hour or two to look at it. We would like to meet tomorrow to try to give a response. Hopefully, we can agree to it.

Mr. OBEY. Are we supposed to meet with Senator SPECTER again who says there is no give? We were told we should meet with people at a higher level on Monday. That is what we are doing.

As you well know, your leadership has kept you on a tight leash, and every time we try to negotiate something with the Committee on Appropriations, we are told it is vetoed by your leadership.

If the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. HASTERT) will be in town, if the gentleman from Texas (Mr. ARMEY) will be in town, if the gentleman from Texas (Mr. DELAY) will be in town so the people with the real power over there can make some decisions, you bet I will be in town. But absent their participation in that room, I am not going to waste my time again waiting for a call that has not come. I have waited for three weeks, and I am tired of it.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Well, as the gentleman knows, the names that he mentioned are not members of the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. OBEY. But they do make the choices, do they not? Do you deny that?

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. They are leaders. They have the right, and they have the power to make certain decisions, of course, the same as your leadership does. It is a two-sided coin.

Mr. OBEY. The difference is our leadership has given us the power to negotiate.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. The gentleman is not available. That is the answer. The gentleman is not available.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. GUTKNECHT). The gentleman from Michigan (Mr. BONIOR) controls the time.

Mr. BONIOR. Since you mentioned our leadership, I would like to, if I could, register a polite complaint, as well.

Since I am the author of the minimum wage bill, I have not been asked to participate in any meetings on this bill that has been languishing now for months and months and months. I am waiting for an opportunity to participate in trying to resolve that. And in waiting for that, we are denying the people who are working so hard in our country for $5.15 an hour, there is about 10 million of them out there that have been denied about $2,000, which is a huge percent of their disposable income while we wait and we wait.

We think that there ought to be some movement here. We are willing to be here and meet on that. I have been willing to meet on that for months now. We have not had a meeting on the minimum wage. We have not had a meeting on prescription drugs. We have not had a meeting on some of these other issues that are important to us, like hate crimes and other things. And we certainly have not been able to do the things we need to do on education.

So we are ready to go, and we have been ready to go. I hope we made our point very clear today that this is unacceptable, that three out of 13 bills is unacceptable 3 weeks into the new fiscal year and these other major issues that you guys and you women are campaigning on all over the country with ads you refuse to take up. They are basic issues of justice and equity for poor people, whether they are an HMO bill or a prescription drug bill or a minimum wage bill or basic education issues. We want to do them.

We hope that you do, too.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BONIOR. I yield to the gentleman from Wisconsin.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, I just want to make it clear I will be happy to cancel my plane in 5 minutes if the Republican leadership of this House will be here tomorrow so that every time we get a, well-we-have-to-check-with-upstairs response from the gentleman, we can get that response from the boys upstairs. We keep being told those issues are being kicked upstairs into different rooms, but we cannot find who is in those rooms.

KRISTEN'S ACT

Mr. CANADY of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 2780) to authorize the Attorney General to provide grants for organizations to find missing adults.

The Clerk read as follows:

H.R. 2780

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

(1) to assist law enforcement and families in locating missing adults;

There are authorized to be appropriated to carry out this Act $1,000,000 each year for fiscal years 2001 through 2004.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. CANADY) and the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. SCOTT) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Florida (Mr. CANADY).

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. CANADY of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material on H.R. 2780, the bill now under consideration.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Florida?

There was no objection.

Mr. CANADY of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 2780, Kristen's Act, which was introduced by the gentlewoman from North Carolina (Mrs. MYRICK). Each year about 1 million people are reported missing in the United States and about 42 percent of those are adults. The many Federal, State and local law enforcement agencies across the country dutifully enter these missing person reports in the FBI's national missing persons database and most of them are quickly found within a day or two. Still, many children and adults are not found right away and that is one reason Congress acted to create the Center for Missing and Exploited Children.

The Center acts as a clearinghouse for missing child cases and provides much needed support to families whose children are missing. The Center has helped locate thousands of missing children and reunited them with their families. Unfortunately, there is no such clearinghouse for missing adults. Once the names of these missing adults are entered into the FBI's National Crime Information Center computer, there is little else the families can do but wait and hope that their loved ones will be found.

Kristen's Act would establish the first national clearinghouse for missing adults. It would authorize grants to States to, one, assist law enforcement and families in locating missing adults; two, create a national database for the purpose of tracking missing adults who are determined by law enforcement to be in danger due to age, mental capacity or the circumstances of their disappearance; three, maintain statistics on missing adults; four, provide informational resources and referrals to families of missing adults; and five, assist in public notification and victim advocacy on this issue.

Congress can and should do more to help families locate their missing adult relatives. Kristen's Act would provide an infrastructure that will supplement the existing FBI missing persons database and help State and local law enforcement agencies work with families to help to locate their loved ones.

Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the gentlewoman from North Carolina (Mrs. MYRICK) for her outstanding leadership on this issue and I urge all of my colleagues to support this important legislation.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. SCOTT. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 2780, also known as Kristen's Act. H.R. 2780 authorizes the Attorney General to make grants to public agencies or nonprofit private organizations to maintain a national database for tracking missing adults determined to be in danger due to age, diminished mental capacity, when foul play may be involved or when the circumstances of the disappearance are unknown.

It also authorizes grants to assist law enforcement and families in locating missing adults; provide informational resources to families of missing adults and for other related purposes. The bill authorizes $1 million each year for fiscal years 2001 through 2004 to carry out the purposes of this legislation. The bill is named after Kristen Moderfferi of Charlotte, North Carolina, who at age 18 disappeared after leaving her job one day. Sadly, because she was just 18 her family could not benefit from the great work of the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children.

H.R. 2780 is designed to assist law enforcement and families of missing persons for those over the age of 17 in a manner similar to that provided by the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children. Although we have not had hearings on this bill and I generally do not support consideration of legislation without hearings, I am familiar with the valuable services provided by the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children for which we have had hearings and support similar efforts for missing adults who are in danger due to age, diminished capacity or foul play. Accordingly, I urge my colleagues to vote for the bill.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. CANADY of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as she may consume to the gentlewoman from North Carolina (Mrs. MYRICK), the sponsor of this legislation.

Mrs. MYRICK. Mr. Speaker, I would like to thank the chairman, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. CANADY), for bringing this bill forward as well.

Mr. Speaker, I too rise in support of Kristen's Act. I introduced it because Kristen Moderfferi, who was a constituent of ours in Charlotte, North Carolina, disappeared in 1997. She was a very bright, hard-working young lady and attended North Carolina State University. She had just finished her freshman year; and like so many other college students, she decided she wanted to go to another city to spend the summer and work and have a new experience. So she moved to San Francisco. She enrolled in photography class at Berkeley and got a job at a local coffee shop. She began settling in and making new friends.

However, on Monday, June 23, which was just a mere 3 weeks after her 18th birthday, she left her job at the coffee shop and headed to the beach for the afternoon. She has not been seen since.

When her panicked parents called the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children, they heard the unbelievable words, I am sorry we cannot help you. They were shocked to discover that because Kristen was 18 the Center could not place her picture and story into its national database, or offer any assistance whatsoever. In fact, there is no national agency in the United States to help locate missing adults.

Unfortunately, the Moderfferis are not alone. The families of thousands of missing adults have found that law enforcement and other agencies respond very differently when the person who has disappeared is not a child. So that is why I introduced Kristen's Act. It will provide funding to establish a national clearinghouse for missing adults whose disappearance is determined by law enforcement to be foul play. As with the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children, this bill will provide assistance to law enforcement and families in missing persons cases of those over the age of 17. It is simply unfair that people must cope with a missing family member, which is so traumatic, and I know personally what the Moderfferis have gone through, and have to conduct the search on their own without skills or resources.

I will say that the Moderfferis literally went to the ends of the Earth to just exhaust every opportunity they could to try and find their daughter, and were completely frustrated at most every turn.

Kristen's Act does send a message to these families that they deserve help to locate endangered and involuntarily missing loved ones.

Endangered missing adults, regardless of their age, should receive not only the benefit of a search effort by the local law enforcement but also the help of an experienced national organization.

By passing this bill today, families will never again have to hear they cannot be assisted because their loved one is too old.

Mr. SCOTT. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. LAMPSON), who is the chairman and founder of the Congressional Caucus for Missing and Exploited Children and a leading supporter of the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children.

Mr. LAMPSON. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. SCOTT), for yielding me this time, and I also want to thank the gentlewoman from North Carolina (Mrs. MYRICK) for all the good work she has done on this bill, and others as well.

Mr. Speaker, as a cosponsor of this bill, I rise in support of Kristen's Act, a bill to authorize the Attorney General to make grants to public agencies or nonprofit private organizations to assist law enforcement and families in locating missing adults and to maintain a national interconnected database tracking missing adults who are determined by law enforcement to be in danger due to age, diminished mental capacity or the circumstances of disappearance when foul play might be suspected. This bill will also maintain statistical information of adults reported as missing; assist in public notification and victim advocacy related to missing adults, and establish and maintain a national clearinghouse for missing adults.

As the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. SCOTT) said, I am the chairman and founder of the Congressional Caucus on Missing and Exploited Children and I work very closely with the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children. I do realize, however, that specialized services to locate and recover missing adults are few and far between. While adults have a legal right to disappear without notifying friends and family, this does not lessen the frustration others face when determining whether foul play is involved.

I met with Kristen Moderfferi's parents in 1999, and what they have lived through is tragic. Their daughter disappeared 3 weeks after her 18th birthday and while the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children was able to refer them to other assisting organizations, the center was unable to work directly on the case as its mandate is for children under the age of 18. A congressionally authorized clearinghouse for missing adults is necessary to assist people like Kristen's parents. I do not want to look into the faces of any more parents whose grown-up children are missing or some place where they should not be. The tragedy is too difficult to live with.

Mr. Speaker, I strongly encourage all of my colleagues to support Kristen's Act.

Mr. SCOTT. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the gentlewoman from North Carolina (Mrs. MYRICK) for her leadership on this issue and also the gentleman from Texas (Mr. LAMPSON) for his leadership.

I would also like to take the opportunity to say a word about the gentleman from Florida (Mr. CANADY), with whom I served as ranking member of the Subcommittee on the Constitution for 2 years. We considered a lot of very contentious and controversial issues. And we did not agree very often, but as we disagreed we were able to do that, I think, in a constructive and conscientious way of being able to disagree without being disagreeable.

I know the gentleman from Florida (Mr. CANADY) is not seeking reelection, and I wanted to wish him well in the future.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. CANADY of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. SCOTT) for his very gracious remarks and express to him my gratitude for the good working relationship we have had as members of the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. HYDE. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 2780—"Kristen's Act"—which was introduced by the Gentlelady from North Carolina, SUE MYRICK. Today, there are approximately 100,000 people who have been reported as missing to the FBI's National Crime Information Center. About 42,000 of them are adults. The families of missing children can—and often do—turn to the Center for Missing and Exploited Children, the very successful national clearinghouse for missing child cases. The Center has helped locate thousands of missing children and provides much needed support to the bereaved families who are searching for them.

Kristen's Act would establish the first national clearinghouse for missing adults. It would authorize grants to states to (1) assist law enforcement and families in locating missing adults; (2) create a national database for the purpose of tracking missing adults who are determined by law enforcement to be endangered due to age, mental capacity, or the circumstances of their disappearance; (3) maintain statistics on missing adults; (4) provide informational resources and referrals to families of missing adults; and (5) assist in public notification and victim advocacy of this issue.

The need for this legislation was brought home to me by the case of Brian Welzien, a 21-year-old student at Northern Illinois University, who disappeared without a trace after celebrating at a restaurant in Chicago last New year's Eve. His disappearance was inexplicable. He was a good student and good son. He was immediately reported missing by his family, but they had nowhere to turn for help and support beyond reporting that he was missing. Tragically, his body washed ashore three-and-half months later on a Lake Michigan beach near Gary, Ind. Had there been a national center for missing adults, perhaps more could have been done to find him before he died.

Congress can and should do more to help families locate their missing husbands, wives, brothers and sisters. Kristen's Act will go a long way in providing the infrastructure to help locate them before tragedy happens.

Mr. Speaker, I thank Mrs. MYRICK for her leadership on this issue, and I urge all my colleagues to support this legislation.

Mr. CANADY of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Florida (Mr. CANADY) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 2780.

The question was taken; and (two-thirds having voted in favor thereof) the rules were suspended and the bill was passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

EXPRESSING SUPPORT OF CONGRESS FOR ACTIVITIES REGARDING MULTIPLE SCLEROSIS

Mr. TAUZIN. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and agree to the concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 271) expressing the support of Congress for activities to increase public awareness of multiple sclerosis.

The Clerk read as follows:

H. CON. RES. 271

Whereas multiple sclerosis is a chronic and often disabling disease of the central nervous system which often first appears in people between the ages of 20 and 40, with lifelong physical and emotional effects;

Whereas multiple sclerosis is twice as common in women as in men;

Whereas an estimated 250,000 to 350,000 individuals suffer from multiple sclerosis nationally;

Whereas symptoms of multiple sclerosis can be mild, such as numbness in the limbs, or severe, such as paralysis or loss of vision;

Whereas the progress, severity, and specific symptoms of multiple sclerosis in any one person cannot yet be predicted;

Whereas the annual cost to each affected individual averages $34,000, and the total cost can exceed $2 million over an individual's lifetime;

Whereas the annual cost of treating all people who suffer from multiple sclerosis in the United States is nearly $9 billion;

Whereas the cause of multiple sclerosis remains unknown, but genetic factors are believed to play a role in determining a person's risk for developing multiple sclerosis;

Whereas many of the symptoms of multiple sclerosis can be treated with medications and rehabilitative therapy;

Whereas new treatments exist that can slow the course of the disease, and reduce its severity;

Whereas medical experts recommend that all people newly diagnosed with relapse-remitting multiple sclerosis begin disease-modifying therapy;

Whereas finding the genes responsible for susceptibility to multiple sclerosis may lead to the development of new and more effective ways to treat the disease;

Whereas increased funding for the National Institutes of Health would provide the opportunity for research and the creation of programs to increase awareness, prevention, and education; and

Whereas Congress as an institution, and Members of Congress as individuals, are in unique positions to help raise public awareness about the detection and treatment of multiple sclerosis and to support the fight against multiple sclerosis: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate concurring), That it is the sense of Congress that—

(1) all Americans should take an active role in the fight to end the devastating effects of multiple sclerosis on individuals, their families, and the economy;

(2) the role played by national and community organizations and health care professionals in promoting the importance of continued funding for research, and in providing information about and access to the best medical treatment and support services for people with multiple sclerosis should be recognized and applauded;

(3) the Federal Government has a responsibility to—

(A) continue to fund research so that the causes of, and improved treatment for, multiple sclerosis may be discovered;

(B) continue to consider ways to improve access to, and the quality of, health care services for people with multiple sclerosis;

(C) endeavor to raise public awareness about the symptoms of multiple sclerosis; and

(D) endeavor to raise health professional's awareness about diagnosis of multiple sclerosis and the best course of treatment for people with the disease.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. GUTKNECHT). Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. TAUZIN) and the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. BROWN) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. TAUZIN).

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. TAUZIN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material on House Concurrent Resolution 271.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Louisiana?

There was no objection.

Mr. TAUZIN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 5 minutes.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H.Con.Res. 271, which expresses the support of Congress for activities to increase public awareness of multiple sclerosis. I salute the gentleman from Rhode Island (Mr. WEYGAND), the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. SHIMKUS), the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. MORELLA), and the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. SMITH) for their work in bringing this resolution to the floor today.

Multiple sclerosis is a chronic, often disabling, disease of the central nervous system. Symptoms may be mild, such as numbness in the limbs, or they can be terribly severe, like paralysis or loss of vision.

Most people with MS are diagnosed between the ages of 20 and 40, but the unpredictable physical and emotional threats can be lifelong. The progress, severity, and specific symptoms of MS for any person cannot yet be predicted; but advances in research and treatment are giving hope to those who have been afflicted by the disease.

Thanks to the dedication of Congress over the last 6 years in doubling the budget of the NIH, many advances have been made in the war against MS. Over the last decade, for instance, our knowledge of the immune system has grown at an amazing rate. Major gains have been made in recognizing and defining the role of the system in the development of MS lesions, giving scientists the ability to devise ways to alter the immune response.

New imaging tools, such as Magnetic Resonance Imaging, have redefined the natural history and are proving invaluable in monitoring the disease activity. Scientists are now able, for example, to visualize and follow the development of MS lesions in the brain and spinal cord using MRIs, and this ability is a tremendous aid in the assessment of new therapies and can speed the process of evaluating new treatments.

With all the important contributions made by bioimaging and bioengineering in the field of MS diagnostics, we would be remiss at this time if we did not make reference to the House-passed National Institute of Biomedical Imaging and Engineering Establishment Act, H.R. 1795, which was sponsored by my colleague on the Committee on Commerce, the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. BURR). Magnetic resonance imaging and computed tomography have revolutionized the practice of medicine in the past quarter century; yet there is still not a center at NIH that brings imaging and engineering into focus.

Mr. Speaker, I encourage Members to communicate with those in the other body concerning the importance of enacting H.R. 1795, and ask that we all join together in voting for this concurrent resolution, H. Con. Res. 271, to express our strong support for increasing public awareness of multiple sclerosis and hopefully an end to the dreaded disease through proper treatment, diagnosis, and, eventually one day, prevention.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to support the resolution introduced by the gentleman from Rhode Island (Mr. WEYGAND), which focuses our attention on a serious chronic illness that currently affects as many as one-third of a million individuals in this country, mostly women.

Multiple sclerosis is an autoimmune disorder that alters the lives of those afflicted by it in profound and tragically unpredictable ways. It is notoriously difficult to diagnose because its constellation of symptoms vary from patient to patient and often mimic other illnesses.

Once it is diagnosed, it is impossible to predict the severity or the course of the illness. The range of symptoms patients may experience is broad: extreme fatigue, impaired vision, loss of balance and muscle coordination, slurred speech, tremors, stiffness, difficulty walking, short-term memory loss, mood swings, and, in severe cases, partial or complete paralysis.

Again, Mr. Speaker, individuals have no way of knowing whether or when they may experience these symptoms. The uncertainty around MS obviously heightens the trauma for patients and their families, and it creates unique challenges for providers and researchers alike.

There is no cure for MS, yet; but there have been significant advances in treating and understanding this illness. The Nation owes a debt of gratitude to the National Multiple Sclerosis Society, which not only funds groundbreaking research into the causes and treatment of MS, but raises public awareness and advocates for more public sector involvement to combat this disease.

The resolution offered by the gentleman from Rhode Island (Mr. WEYGAND) affirms that we are listening to the MS Society, to women and men with MS and their families, and to the researchers, including researchers at the National Institutes of Health funded by taxpayers working hard to beat this illness.

While I believe, Mr. Speaker, that the Weygand resolution is important, we should be doing so much more on health care in this Chamber. We should be passing a prescription drug benefit for Medicare beneficiaries and do something about high prescription drug prices. That is the best thing we could do for people that are victims of multiple sclerosis. We should be passing a Patients' Bill of Rights. That is the second best thing we should do for people afflicted with multiple sclerosis.

This resolution helps, but this Congress should get back to town, get back to work, pass the Patients' Bill of Rights, pass the prescription drug legislation, and pass this concurrent resolution, H.Con.Res. 271.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. TAUZIN. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 3 minutes to my friend, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. THORNBERRY).

Mr. THORNBERRY. Mr. Speaker, I thank my friend from Louisiana for yielding me time.

Mr. Speaker, as a cosponsor of this resolution, I rise in support of it and of the goals that it puts before Congress and the country. MS affects my family, and over the last few years, I have learned a lot about the disease and about the efforts under way to fight it.

I would like to make just three brief points on this resolution.

First, there are some truly heroic efforts going on every day all around the country to battle this disease. MS Societies in community after community help raise funds for research, help increase awareness, and help MS patients and their families to deal with the challenges that this disease brings.

At the National Institutes of Health and other institutions, some of the country's best minds and most caring people are working hard every day to find answers to the many questions which remain about this disease. I think it is appropriate for us to recognize and honor those efforts.

Secondly, this Congress is on track to double over 5 years' medical research funding at NIH. Much of the medical research is conducted by private companies and researchers; but the Federal Government has an important role to play, and we have got to pull our weight if we are to find answers to diseases such as MS. I am proud this Congress has set doubling the funding for NIH as a goal, and we are on our way at achieving it.

Third, there are some unnecessary impediments to providing MS patients with the best possible treatments, and we have to commit to removing those impediments as soon as possible. There are drugs, for example, that have shown very promising results in Canada and Europe, but are unavailable to patients in the United States because of FDA's interpretation of the Orphan Drug Act, which, in my view, is misguided and certainly contrary to the intentions of Congress when it originally passed the Orphan Drug Act.

I have introduced legislation on this matter and the Committee on Commerce has begun to look into it, but for those of us concerned about fighting MS and a host of other diseases, correcting this problem with the Orphan Drug Act must be a priority in the next Congress.

I certainly look forward to working with my friend from Louisiana and all of my colleagues to making sure that very soon MS is a disease of the past.

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. MILLENDER-MCDONALD), who strongly supports the Patients' Bill of Rights and prescription drug legislation and worked on this issue also.

Ms. MILLENDER-MCDONALD. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman in charge of this resolution on the other side, as well as the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. BROWN) on this side.

Mr. Speaker, I do rise in support of this concurrent resolution. I had several friends who were stricken by this disease in their early to late twenties, so it has become second nature to me in trying to fight to ensure that we get the type of support and the type of funding for such a disease.

Mr. Speaker, we recognize that multiple sclerosis is twice as common in women as in men, and while we tend to recognize the importance of fighting this disease for everyone, it is clearly one that poses a problem with women who have been stricken with this disease. My friend, who had three children, once she received word that she had this, her husband left her and she was there with this disease with the three children. So it is very devastating to know that I speak from a personal standpoint, in a sense, that young women who had finished school with me were stricken with this.

We also recognize, Mr. Speaker, that an estimated 250,000 to 350,000 individuals suffer with multiple sclerosis nationwide, and this is why there is a critical need for the Patients' Bill of Rights and for prescription drugs, because it is tremendously expensive to have the medicine to treat this type of disease. Oft times death comes.

So I come today to just simply say I too support this resolution, and suggest that we must do everything we can to provide the funding and the support for those who have been stricken with this very deadly disease.

Mr. TAUZIN. Mr. Speaker, I am now very pleased to yield 5 minutes to the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. MORELLA), whose district includes the National Institutes of Health, whose husband serves on the board of the Children's Inn at NIH with my own wife Cecile, and who does such a great job in representing and promoting the interests of our great National Institutes of Health in Maryland.

Mrs. MORELLA. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me time and for his very laudatory introduction. I appreciate that very much, and appreciate his handling this bill on the floor and his support of it. I also want to thank the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. BROWN) for his work on health, which has been extraordinary.

As a cosponsor of H. Con. Res. 271, I am delighted to be here to express my very strong support of it. It expresses the support of Congress for activities to increase public awareness of multiple sclerosis, and it calls on Congress to increase funding for the National Institutes of Health. In fact, we have been doing that, and I must commend this House of Representatives for embarking on that 5-year plan to double the budget by 2003 for the National Institutes of Health.

I represent the National Institutes of Health, as the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. TAUZIN) has mentioned, and have been a lead in getting a letter out to our colleagues, which over 100 have signed, to the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. PORTER), who chairs an appropriations subcommittee, asking for continuation of that plan.

As I mentioned, we have been on the right road to success, and I urge our conference committee on the appropriations of the Labor-HHS bill to continue the commitment and fund NIH $20.5 billion, which is a full 15 percent increase, an increase of $2.7 billion.

I am pleased to note that the National Institute of Neurological Disorders and Stroke, which funds the research on MS, has seen corresponding increases of 15.1 percent, bringing the fiscal year 2000 budget to $1.35 billion.

But let us look at the real cost of neurological disorders, which number more than 600. They strike an estimated 50 million Americans each year. They exact an incalculable personal toll and an annual economic cost of hundreds of billions of dollars in medical expenses and lost productivity. In fact, MS costs an individual an average of $34,000 annually for therapy and treatment, and impacts as many as 350,000 Americans.

With passage of this resolution, we will speed up the race to find a cure for MS. Passage of this resolution is vital because we also need to increase public awareness of MS.

MS is an autoimmune disease in which the symptoms are believed to occur when the immune system turns against itself. MS is a life-long, unpredictable disease that randomly attacks the central nervous system, brain and spinal cord, and more than twice as many women as men have MS.

Passage of H. Con. Res. 271 will leverage H.R. 4665, the Children's Health Act of 2000, which was recently passed by this House.

Title XIX of this bill, NIH Initiative on Autoimmune Diseases, requires the director of NIH to expand, intensify and coordinate the activities of NIH with respect to autoimmune diseases. This includes forming an Autoimmune Diseases Coordinating Committee and Advisory Council that will develop a plan for NIH activities related to autoimmune diseases and to require different institutes within NIH to provide a detailed report to Congress specifying how funds were spent on autoimmune diseases.

Mr. Speaker, H. Con. Res. 271 is a good bill. We must not forget that virtually every hour someone is newly diagnosed with MS.

I would also like to take a moment and salute the National Multiple Sclerosis Society for the work they have done over the past 50 years to find a cure for MS and to improve the quality of life for people with MS and their families.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to support H. Con. Res. 271 to support the health of our Nation's citizens, and I particularly want to thank the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. TAUZIN) for affording me this time at this hour for this important resolution.

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I ask the House to support H. Con. Res. 271, a resolution sponsored by the gentleman from Rhode Island (Mr. WEYGAND). This resolution brings attention to a very particularly serious disease, multiple sclerosis, that hits one third of a million Americans, especially women.

It is important that this body encourage more research from whether it is a Multiple Sclerosis Society or the National Institutes of Health. It is also important, Mr. Speaker, that this Congress complete its work before it goes home, before it adjourns sine die, that it complete its work on prescription drug legislation and complete its work on a patients' bill of rights.

Those two pieces of legislation will do more for patients suffering from multiple sclerosis than anything else we can do. It will do more for patients suffering from a whole host of very serious diseases. This Congress has passed resolutions addressing in the last month, but the Congress has failed to do the real work that we are here for, and that is to provide prescription drugs for, and under Medicare for, senior citizens to deal with the high costs of prescription drugs and to pass a patients' bill of rights, which will turn the authority of medical decisions to doctors and nurses and to patients and to take that authority and take the decision-making away from insurance company bureaucrats.

While I ask Congress to pass H. Con. Res. 271, I also ask this body to pass a prescription drug bill and the patients' bill of rights.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. TAUZIN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, in closing, let me first commend my friend, the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. BROWN) for his attention to this resolution and for his help in supporting and getting this adopted by the House tonight. This is indeed an important statement by the House of Representatives about our interests and the Nation's interests in finding better cures, therapies and, hopefully, preventive techniques for this awful disease.

I also want to say that it is our extreme hope that we could agree on a prescription drug proposal this year before we leave, too. I know those negotiations are going on. I would hope we could complete them before we leave, and I certainly hope, as we all do, we could agree on HMO reform before we leave.

I can assure the gentleman that if, for obvious reasons, we are incapable of reaching final accord with the White House and the Members of the other body on these two important issues, they are going to rank high on our committee's agenda next year, and we are going to address those concerns as rapidly as we can next year.

But I want to again commend the gentleman and my friends on both sides of the aisle tonight for their support of this important concurrent resolution. I particularly again want to congratulate Tony Morella and his wife, the gentlewoman from Maryland, (Mrs. MORELLA) who represents NIH for their extraordinary dedication to that facility. That facility daily finds cures and therapies and saves lives, and it is incredible for its work, particularly with children stricken with awful diseases. I want to again thank that incredible couple, CONNIE and TONY MORELLA, for their excellent representation of that facility here in this Chamber.

Mr. Speaker, NIH always enjoys great bipartisan support, and it will continue to do so as we struggle to find answers to these terrible diseases that ravage our population. Mr. Speaker, I urge adoption of the resolution.

Mr. WEYGAND. Mr. Speaker, there are many individuals to thank today who have fought for the arrival of this Resolution on the House floor this evening.

On this side of the Capitol, the Democratic Whip DAVID BONIOR and his staff helped move this bill to the floor today. Also, my friend and colleague, Chief Deputy Whip for the Majority, ROY BLUNT, and his staff—Trevor Blackann in particular, also helped us immensely.

Many other members of congress and their staff have played a crucial role here, and I especially want to thank Ranking Member SHERROD BROWN and Chairman BILIRAKIS for moving this bill from the Commerce Committee's Subcommittee on health and Environment.

Karl Moeller of my staff deserves a great deal of recognition for all of his efforts as well.

In the other body, Senator JACK REED introduced our Resolution and worked to pass this measure with bipartisan support. I would like to praise his work on behalf of MS patients everywhere.

Most importantly, however, is the effort put forward by the Rhode Island chapter of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society and their members in Rhode Island.

This Resolution is the culmination of a grass-roots effort, and a clear example of bipartisanship and democracy at work.

While I was passing through the metal detectors in the Rhode Island Airport, I met a security guard, Walter Shepherd, whose daughter lived with MS and whose very close friend still suffers from this illness. Mr. Shepherd asked me and JACK REED what we were doing to help.

For Walter, and the hundreds of thousands of others who are impacted by this illness, this resolution is on the floor today as a sign that Congress knows of the battle they fight and win each day.

There is a great deal of uncertainty for someone facing the early stages of a chronic illness.

MS patients may first call their doctor because of some difficulty with their coordination.

Or perhaps they see an eye doctor because of a problem with their vision—only to learn that these are signs of a much more serious disease.

350,000 Americans have felt that uncertainty first hand, and now live every day of their life with MS.

In Rhode Island, 3,000 people fight this illness. And for each, there are friends and family who fight by their side.

As MS patients know, the nerve fibers in the body's central nervous system are coated with a fatty sheath that protects our nerves from damage. Multiple Sclerosis attacks the protective sheath around the nervous system, and this results in endless complications for MS patients.

Muscles, vital organs, and normal body functions are the primary targets of this illness. But just as harmful are the by-products of its progressive attack—pain, paralysis, blindness, an inability to walk, and even the loss of independence.

Health insurance costs, medical bills, the need for physical therapy and costly medications—all of these concerns come into play when a patient is faced with a disease that has an annual cost per patient of some $34,000.

But there is hope. Our federal commitment to finding treatments for such illnesses should remain paramount as we finalize legislation in these final days of this session of Congress.

The good news is that with each day that passes, MS is brought closer to extinction.

This illness, once treated with herbs and X-rays, is now able to be stabilized by modern medications.

Because of modern medical treatments and therapies, patients with MS are able to live full and productive lives, and have seen their life expectancy increase with each new technology.

And while there isn't a cure today, I believe that day is coming quickly.

To reach this goal, I have joined with many others in Congress to double the budget of the National Institutes of Health.

Many members and I, in both the House and in the other body, see this increase as an investment against human suffering.

NIH researchers, working primarily in hospitals, research laboratories and teaching facilities across the nation, are looking for cures to thousands upon thousands of illnesses.

While research on MS at the NIH is ongoing, I want to commend the National Multiple Sclerosis Society and its members for realizing that NIH research on any number of neurological illnesses might find the cure for MS.

Our federal commitment to all medical research at the NIH must be supported. We have seen time and again that it is far less costly, in terms of dollars and suffering, to research and prevent an illness than to treat the symptoms.

And finally, as the House sponsor of this legislation, I encourage medical professionals in our communities to learn more about this illness, and to support efforts that will bring an end to this disease.

Mr. SHIMKUS. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of this resolution which draws attention to the chronic and often crippling disease of multiple sclerosis.

This issue is very personal to me, as I have known two people who suffered from this illness. The sister of one of my staffers, Mary Uram, ailed with MS for over a decade before she passed away. Another friend of mine died at an early age due to this debilitating disease.

Generally, people are diagnosed with MS between the ages of 20 and 40, but the physical and emotional effects can be lifelong. MS is devastating—not only to their medical well-being but also to the personal and financial stability of the individual and those caring for them. Often, this ailment can result in loss of employment and isolation from a community.

It is fortunate that advances in research and treatment are giving hope to those affected by the disease. This resolution will help to increase awareness and demonstrate Congressional support for research into the causes and possible treatments for MS. It will also recognize the significant contributions of national and community organizations in this effort.

I would like to end by commending Representative BOB WEYGAND and his staffer, Karl, on their hard work in brining this bipartisan bill to the floor.

Mr. DINGELL. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H. Con. Res. 271: ''Expressing the Sense of the Congress for Activities to Increase Public Awareness of Multiple Sclerosis.'' This resolution, introduced by Mr. WEYGAND, addresses a disease that can strike any American.

Multiple sclerosis is an often debilitating, chronic disease of the central nervous system, which strikes individuals in their third, fourth and fifth decades of life. Its onset can be elusive, and the course of the disease unpredictable; symptoms come and go, and can range in severity from mild numbness in the limbs to paralysis. However, the toll of multiple sclerosis on America's public health is real.

H. Con. Res. 271 identifies the need for varied approaches to fighting this still somewhat mysterious disease. It highlights the need for an increase in Federally-funded research into causes and treatments of multiple sclerosis, including identification of genetic factors and development of more effective therapies. The bill also recognizes the importance of getting the most up-to-date medical information to health professionals and the American public. These initiatives may enhance the quality of patient care, which is the third part of the equation. H. Con. Res. 271 promotes increased and equal access to quality health care for all individuals diagnosed with multiple sclerosis. This is something I endorse for our entire nation, and setting up model programs around diseases as ravaging as multiple sclerosis is an excellent place to start.

I support this resolution, and hope my colleagues will do so as well.

Mr. TAUZIN. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. GIBBONS). The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. TAUZIN) that the House suspend the rules and agree to the concurrent resolution, H. Con. Res. 271.

The question was taken; and (two-thirds having voted in favor thereof) the rules were suspended and the concurrent resolution was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

AMENDING CONSUMER PRODUCTS SAFETY ACT TO INCLUDE REGULATION OF LOW-SPEED ELECTRIC BICYCLES

Mr. TAUZIN. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 2592) to amend the Consumer Products Safety Act to provide that low-speed electric bicycles are consumer products subject to such Act, as amended.

The Clerk read as follows:

H.R. 2593

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. CONSUMER PRODUCT SAFETY ACT.

The Consumer Product Safety Act (15 U.S.C. 2051 et seq.) is amended by adding at the end the following:

''LOW-SPEED ELECTRIC BICYCLES

''SEC. 38. (a) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, low-speed electric bicycles are consumer products within the meaning of section 3(a)(1) and shall be subject to the Commission regulations published at section 1500.18(a)(12) and part 1512 of 16 C.F.R.

''(b) For the purpose of this section, the term 'low-speed electric bicycle' means a two- or three-wheeled vehicle with fully operable pedals and an electric motor of less than 750 watts (1 h.p.), whose maximum speed on a paved level surface, when powered solely by such a motor while ridden by an operator who weighs 170 pounds, is less than 20 mph.

''(c) To further protect the safety of consumers who ride low-speed electric bicycles, the Commission may promulgate new or amended requirements applicable to such vehicles as necessary and appropriate.

''(d) This section shall supersede any State law or requirement with respect to low-speed electric bicycles to the extent that such State law or requirement is more stringent than the Federal law or requirements referred to in subsection (a).''.

SEC. 2. MOTOR VEHICLE SAFETY STANDARDS.

For purposes of motor vehicle safety standards issued and enforced pursuant to chapter 301 of title 49, United States Code, a low-speed electric bicycle (as defined in section 38(b) of the Consumer Product Safety Act) shall not be considered a motor vehicle as defined by section 30102(6) of title 49, United States Code.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. TAUZIN) and the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. BROWN) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. TAUZIN).

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. TAUZIN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks and to insert extraneous material on H.R. 2592, as amended.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Louisiana?

There was no objection.

Mr. TAUZIN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 5 minutes.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 2592, a bill introduced by the gentleman from California (Mr. ROGAN), to remove unnecessary regulation of electric bicycles. The bill has benefitted from a full dose of regular order and enjoys a support of my colleagues on both sides of the aisle.

Electric bicycles are a great means of transportation and recreation. In particular, older and disabled riders who do not have the physical strength to ride a bicycle uphills without motorized assistance will benefit from these low-speed electric bicycles. These bikes are also used by law enforcement agencies to increase their patrol range while doing community policing.

Electric bikes help commuters who cannot afford automobile transportation or who work in traffic congested areas. Electric bikes are good for the environment. They are good for reducing traffic and they are good for recreation.

Unfortunately, low-speed electric-powered bicycles are currently regulated by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration as motor vehicles instead of as bicycles. NHTSA does not want to focus on this. In fact, NHTSA does agree it does not make any sense to regulate these bicycles as motor vehicles, but it is required to by current law.

If NHTSA were to strictly enforce its regulations for electric bicycles, the bikes would be required to meet all sorts of standards that are designed for cars, but do not make sense for bicycles.

Since low-powered electric bicycles are used in the same manner as human-powered bicycles and travel at the same maximum speed, it is just plain common sense they should be regulated like human-powered bicycles.

In our committee hearings, there was bipartisan consensus that regulation of electric bikes should be transferred from NHTSA to the Consumer Products Safety Commission. The CPSC can then regulate them in the same way it regulates regular bicycles, or they can develop any regulations in addition that they might find necessary.

Mr. Speaker, it is a short bill. It is simple, but it is effective. It will make it easier for people to own and to use these electric bicycles.

Mr. Speaker, I want to add that I tried one of these out. Now, I am not, thankfully, yet so old or so out of shape that I think I should have one like this, but let me tell my colleagues, it is an excellent piece of equipment. With just a switch, a little switch that bicycle will add a little extra power to the peddles going up a hill. It feels like you are on a regular flat surface.

It will literally help a great many people in our society who need that little extra help in using a bicycle as recreation or use them to get around town or to work or, indeed, in some cases for the kinds of exercise they need to keep themselves healthy.

I am telling my colleagues when I am ready for it, I am going to get one. It is a really neat little device.

The gentleman from California (Mr. ROGAN) has done a good job in bringing this bill forward so that we can properly put this bicycle under the Consumer Products Safety Commission where it belongs, where it can be regulated as a human-powered bicycle. We urge support for this legislation.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise as the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. TAUZIN), my friend, did in support of H.R. 2592. This legislation transfers responsibility for regulating low-speed electric bicycles to the Consumer Products Safety Commission. Currently, the National Highway Safety Administration, NHTSA, has jurisdiction over these bicycles, which are designed to operate at speeds of less than 20 miles per hour, approximately the same speed as human-powered bicycles.

The CPSC, the Consumer Products Safety Commission, and NHTSA support this common sense proposal. NHTSA has never attempted to issue a safety standard for these bikes and, I would say, for good reason. If NHTSA were to establish an electric bicycle standard, they would be subject to motor vehicle requirements that would significantly drive up the costs of these bicycles.

Mr. Speaker, the CPSC, which currently regulates human-powered bicycles, is the appropriate agency to regulate electric bikes that operate at comparable speeds. These are bicycles not motor vehicles and, therefore, they should be regulated by the agency with responsibility for bicycles.

Mr. Speaker, this legislation has bipartisan support. Our colleague, the gentlewoman from California (Mrs. CAPPS) who is on the Committee on Commerce, has worked hard for this bill. It is also cosponsored by the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. DINGELL); the gentleman from Texas (Mr. HALL), also on our committee; the gentlewoman from California (Ms. WOOLSEY); the gentleman from Connecticut (Mr. MALONEY); the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. OBERSTAR); and the gentleman from California (Mr. BERMAN).

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to support H.R. 2592.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. TAUZIN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I just briefly want to say this is not obviously the most important bill that will come before Congress, but it is a good example of how the law is just wrong and common sense requires the law to be changed. So we change it tonight, and hopefully with the small change, we will make a consumer product that is going to be extremely helpful to many citizens of this country available to them and affordable for them. And just this small act by Congress, I think, is going to mean an awful lot to a lot of people, and I urge adoption of the bill.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. TAUZIN) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 2592, as amended.

The question was taken; and (two-thirds having voted in favor thereof) the rules were suspended and the bill, as amended, was passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. HORN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on S. 3062.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA PERFORMANCE ACCOUNTABILITY PLAN AMENDMENTS ACT OF 2000

Mr. HORN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on Government Reform be discharged from further consideration of Senate bill (S. 3062) to modify the date on which the Mayor of the District of Columbia submits a performance accountability plan to Congress, and for other purposes, and ask for its immediate consideration in the House.

The Clerk read the title of the Senate bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

Ms. MILLENDER-MCDONALD. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, but I do not plan to object. I take this time to engage the gentleman from California (Mr. HORN) in a colloquy for a brief explanation of his unanimous consent request.

Mr. HORN. Mr. Speaker, will the gentlewoman yield?

Ms. MILLENDER-MCDONALD. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. HORN. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of S. 3062, the District of Columbia Performance Accountability Plan Amendments Act of 2000. This bill contains technical amendments to the District of Columbia's performance plan requirements, which will allow the city to reform its management system more effectively.

Mr. Speaker, just as the Government Performance and Results Act of 1993 redesigned the management practices and accountability at Federal agencies, the District of Columbia Financial Responsibility and Management Assistance Act of 1995 requires that the city submit performance accountability plans to Congress preceding each fiscal year.

These plans set objective and measurable goals for the District's agencies and the departments, and establish a system of accountability in the city's daily operations.

Mr. Speaker, it also requires that after each fiscal year, the city must submit to Congress a performance accountability report evaluating its ability to meet the performance goals of the prior fiscal year.

This act has provided the city with the means to establish a system of performance budgeting. However, the Mayor of the District of Columbia requested that Congress make some minor changes to the law to improve the efficiency of this process. Therefore, S. 3062 changes the submission deadline for the annual performance accountability plan from March 1 of each year to be concurrent with the submission of the District's budget to Congress.

This change will tie the District of Columbia's budget to its performance accountability measures. This bill also streamlines the performance goal submission requirements set out in the act so that there is one set of measurable and ambitious goals.

This is critical to ensuring that the managers of the District of Columbia government have a clear understanding of the goals which they are expected to meet.

Furthermore, this bill will impose no additional regulatory burdens on the District, and will eventually reduce the paperwork burden by creating a single integrated document as a result of the performance budgeting process.

I urge all of my colleagues to join me in voting in support of this legislation to help the District of Columbia move closer to an effective budgeting process.

Ms. MILLENDER-MCDONALD. Mr. Speaker, further reserving the right to object, S. 3062 was introduced on September 18, 2000, by Senators VOINIVICH and DURBIN. Together, these two Senators worked with the Mayor's Office to draft the technical changes to the performance plan submission requirements, and bipartisan support appears to exist in both houses for this legislation.

The legislative changes include, one, changing the deadline for submission from March 1 of each year to be concurrent with the submission of the D.C. budget to Congress each year; and two, getting rid of the multiple performance goals for each measure in exchange for one ambitious goal per performance measure.

With this, Mr. Speaker, I do urge the House to adopt this legislation.

Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my reservation of objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. GIBBONS). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the Senate bill, as follows:

S. 3062

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA PERFORMANCE ACCOUNTABILITY PLAN.

Section 456 of the District of Columbia Home Rule Act (section 47–231 et seq. of the District of Columbia Code) is amended—

(1) in subsection (a)—

(A) in paragraph (1) by striking ''Not later than March 1 of each year (beginning with 1998)'' and inserting ''Concurrent with the submission of the District of Columbia budget to Congress each year (beginning with 2001)''; and

(B) in paragraph (2)(A) by striking ''that describe an acceptable level of performance by the government and a superior level of performance by the government''; and

(2) in subsection (b)—

(A) in paragraph (1) by striking ''1999'' and inserting ''2001''; and

(B) in paragraph (2)(A) by striking ''for an acceptable level of performance by the government and a superior level of performance by the government''.

The Senate bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

FREEDMEN'S BUREAU RECORDS PRESERVATION ACT OF 2000

Mr. HORN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on Government Reform be discharged from further consideration of the bill (H.R. 5157) to amend title 44, United States Code, to ensure preservation of the records of the Freedmen's Bureau, and ask for its immediate consideration in the House.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

Ms. MILLENDER-MCDONALD. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, I do not by any means plan to object, but I yield to the gentleman from California (Mr. HORN) for a brief explanation of the bill.

Mr. HORN. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman for yielding to me.

Mr. Speaker, H.R. 5157, the Freedmen's Bureau Records Preservation Act of 2000, represents a bipartisan effort to safeguard important links to the past. These records document how the 38th Congress responded to the enormous social and economic upheaval in the aftermath of the Civil War.

The Subcommittee on Government Management, Information and Technology, which I chair, held a hearing on this bill on October 18, 2000. The subcommittee heard testimony from a number of very distinguished scholars and witnesses, including the President of Howard University, H. Patrick Swygert.

President Swygert testified about the importance of safeguarding these uniquely valuable records, which are deteriorating due to the passage of time.

From 1865 to 1872, the Freedmen's Bureau helped better the lives of former slaves and others who had been impoverished by the war. These Bureau records are in many instances the only link many Americans have with their past and our past, especially those who are descended from former slaves.

H.R. 5157 would require the Archivist of the United States to preserve these irreplaceable documents. The bill would also require the Archivist of the United States to develop partnerships with educational institutions such as Howard University and others to index the records so they may be more readily accessible to anyone who is interested in this important period of the Nation's history.

I congratulate the authors of this legislation, my colleague, the gentlewoman from California (Ms. MILLENDER-MCDONALD), and the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. WATTS), chairman of the House Republican Conference, for bringing this important issue to the forefront.

I urge my colleagues to support this bill. It is an important first step toward ensuring that a momentous part of America's history will be protected, preserved, and never forgotten.

Ms. MILLENDER-MCDONALD. Mr. Speaker, further reserving the right to object, I would like to simply thank the gentleman from California (Mr. HORN), and tonight I introduce H.R. 5157, introduced along with my dear friend and colleague, the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. WATTS).

This bill is known as the Freedmen's Bureau Preservation Act of 2000. The Bureau of Refugees, Freedmen, and Abandoned Lands, properly called the Freedmen's Bureau, was established in the War Department by an act of this government on March 3, 1865.

This act was the culmination of several years of efforts as the U.S. Government, embroiled in Civil War, sought to settle ''the slave problem'' for the United States.

From 1619 to 1800, more than 660,000 African men, women, and children were torn from their homelands in West Africa, herded onto ships, and brought to North America as slaves. While the southern economy was flourishing from slave labor, the country simultaneously was building a new democracy based on the principles of liberty and individual freedom.

As the democracy debate clarified issues of government and citizenship, grave contradictions were drawn between slavery and our Nation's first principle of individual freedom. As President Lincoln said, the government could not endure permanently half slave and half free.

On July 4 of 1861, President Lincoln, in a speech to Congress, said that the war was ''* * * a people's contest * * * a struggle for maintaining in the world, that form and substance of government, whose leading object is to elevate the condition of men. * * *'' And this war between the States was, among other things, a war about the condition of the slaves.

This very body was engaged in the overwhelming challenge of moving millions of slaves from bondage to freedom. In March of 1864, the House passed a bill by a slender majority of two that established a Bureau of Freedmen in the War Department.

The Senate reported a substitute bill to the House too late for action attaching the Bureau to the Treasury Department. After the 1864 elections, the House and Senate conferred and proposed a bureau independent of either War or Treasury.

In the political machinations between these elected representatives, the Senate could not agree with the House. A new conference committee was appointed which finally in 1865 established in the War Department a Bureau of Refugees, Freedmen, and Abandoned Lands. Thus, the War Department set about the enormous task of documenting, supervising, and managing the transition of slaves from bondage to freedom.

The Bureau deployed field offices in Alabama, Arkansas, the District of Columbia, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Delaware, Mississippi, Missouri, North and South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, and Virginia.

These offices were responsible for all relief and educational activities relating to refugees and freedmen, including issuing rations, clothing, and medicine. The Bureau also assumed custody of confiscated lands or property in the former Confederate States, border States, the District of Columbia, and Indian territory.

The Bureau records that were created and maintained became the documented history of the greatest social undertaking in this country's history. During this tumultuous period of transformation between 1865 and 1872, the Freedmen's Bureau recorded the movements of slaves from community to community and States to States. For historians and genealogists, these records provided the critical link between the Civil War and the 1870 census, the first one to list African-Americans by name.

Former slaves, recognized formally in government records only by sex, age, and color, were named in the Bureau records as individuals in marriage, government ration lists, lists of colored persons, labor contracts, indentured contracts for minors, medical records, and as victims of violence.

Many historical and genealogical associations like the African-American Historical and Genealogical Society, the African-American Research Project, the Association for the Study of African-American Life and History, the Internet-based Afrigeneas, and annual gatherings like the family reunions have popularized African-American genealogy and historical research.

African-Americans, like many other Americans, look to official records for their ancestors. As ship manifests are the vital link between European-Americans and their European ancestors, the Freedmen's Bureau records are the link for African-Americans to their slave and African ancestors.

The original Freedmen's Bureau records presently are preserved at the National Archives and Records Administration here in Washington. Greater access to these records is a high priority for millions of Americans interested in Civil War and post-Civil War history, and millions of African-Americans interested in their family genealogy. There are many historians, genealogists, and family researchers interested in exploring the vast contents of these records.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, H.R. 5157 calls on the Archivist to microfilm the Freedmen's Bureau records, create a surname index, and put the index online. Innovative imaging and indexing technologies can make these records easily accessible to the public, including historians, genealogists, novice genealogy enthusiasts, and students.

With that, Mr. Speaker, as a Member of the House of Representatives, a descendent of slaves, and a genealogy enthusiast, I urge the passage of this legislation so that the period in our history can become known even further to American citizens interested in our past.

Let me thank the gentleman from California (Mr. HORN), my colleague and friend, for his sensitivity and support of this legislation.

Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my reservation of objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

H.R. 5157

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the ''Freedmen's Bureau Records Preservation Act of 2000''.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

The Congress finds the following:

(1) From 1619 to 1800 more than 660,000 African men, women, and children were torn from their homelands in west Africa and herded onto ships for transport to North America as slaves.

(2) Between 10 and 15 percent of these Africans died during the journey across the Atlantic Ocean.

(3) The institution of slavery robbed Africans of their natural rights and divided this Nation over the meaning of freedom, the principle upon which this Nation was founded.

(4) Paraphrasing President Abraham Lincoln, the Government could not endure permanently half slave and half free.

(5) The United States waged the Civil War to free the Nation's slaves, preserve the Nation, and embrace all people as citizens regardless of race in a system of inclusive freedom for all.

(6) On January 1, 1863, President Abraham Lincoln issued the Emancipation Proclamation, which declared that individuals held as slaves within the rebellious States ''are, and henceforward shall be free''.

(7) On April 9, 1865, General Robert E. Lee surrendered the Confederate Army to General Ulysses S. Grant, thereby ending the Civil War.

(8) In 1865, the Congress established in the War Department the Bureau of Refugees, Freedmen, and Abandoned Lands, commonly referred to as the ''Freedmen's Bureau'', to supervise and manage all matters relating to refugees and freedmen, and to supervise abandoned and confiscated property.

(9) The records of the Freedmen's Bureau are a vital source of information for historians and genealogists.

(10) These records contain a wide range of data about the African-American experience during slavery and freedom, including in marriage records, labor contracts, Government rations and back pay records, and indentured contracts for minors.

(11) These records are maintained in Alabama, Arkansas, the District of Columbia, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Delaware, Mississippi, Missouri, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, and Virginia.

(12) All of these records are originals and, because they are deteriorating, require immediate attention.

(13) These records are an important link for African-Americans to their slave and African ancestors.

(14) Preserving the records of the Freedmen's Bureau is a high priority for millions of Americans interested in Civil War and post-Civil War era history.

CONTINUATION OF EMERGENCY WITH RESPECT TO SIGNIFICANT NARCOTICS TRAFFICKERS CENTERED IN COLOMBIA—MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES (H. DOC. NO. 106-303)

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following message from the President of the United States; which was read and, together with the accompanying papers, without objection, referred to the Committee on International Relations and ordered to be printed:

To the Congress of the Untied States:

Section 202(d) of the National Emergencies Act, 50 U.S.C. 1622(d) provides for the automatic termination of a national emergency unless, prior to the anniversary date of its declaration, the President publishes in the Federal Register and transmits to the Congress a notice stating that the emergency is to continue in effect beyond the anniversary date. In accordance with this provision, I have sent the enclosed notice to the Federal Register for publication, stating that the emergency declared with respect to significant narcotics traffickers centered in Colombia is to continue in effect for 1 year beyond October 21, 2000.

The circumstances that led to the declaration on October 21, 1995, of a national emergency have not been resolved. The actions of significant narcotics traffickers centered in Colombia continue to pose an unusual and extraordinary threat to the national security, foreign policy, and economy of the United States and to cause unparalleled violence, corruption, and harm in the United States and abroad. For these reasons, I have determined that it is necessary to maintain economic pressures on significant narcotics traffickers centered in Colombia by blocking their property subject to the jurisdiction of the United States and by depriving them of access to the United States market and financial system.

To the Congress of the United States:

I transmit herewith the Department of Transportation's Calendar Year 1998 reports on Activities Under the National Traffic and Motor Vehicle Safety Act of 1966, the Highway Safety Act of 1966, and the Motor Vehicle Information and Cost Savings Act of 1972, as amended.

VICE PRESIDENT JEOPARDIZES NATIONAL SECURITY

(Mr. GIBBONS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GIBBONS. Mr. Speaker, I am deeply troubled today to learn that Vice President GORE may have broken the law and jeopardized United States national security.

Mr. Speaker, U.S. weapons proliferation law requires that the Congress be notified of the terms of the letter of agreement which Mr. GORE signed with Russian Prime Minister Chernomyrdin regarding Russia's nuclear cooperation with Iran, a known terrorist nation.

What is worse is that, as a direct result of the secret agreement between Mr. GORE and the Prime Minister of Russia, Russia evaded U.S. sanctions against weapons proliferation.

Even the Secretary of State admitted that without this signed agreement, ''Russia's conventional arms sales to Iran would have been subject to sanctions based on various provisions of our laws.''

Mr. Speaker, it is appalling to me and to the American people that this type of deception and deceit has become so commonplace in this administration.

The flagrant deceit and illegal agreement made by the Vice President may have put our national security in deep jeopardy.

SPECIAL ORDERS

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. PEASE). Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 6, 1999, and under a previous order of the House, the following Members will be recognized for 5 minutes each.

ARMENIAN GENOCIDE RESOLUTION

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. PALLONE) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. PALLONE. Mr. Speaker, I want to express my intense disappointment with the decision by the Republican leadership today to pull the Armenian genocide resolution from consideration by the House of Representatives for the remainder of this session of Congress.

The Speaker promised to bring this resolution to the floor. His stated reason for not doing so is a request by President Clinton that it not be considered. Mr. Speaker, the State Department and President Clinton have opposed recognition of the Armenian genocide from day one. We all know that the State Department repeatedly uses national security as the reason to oppose most things Armenian.

What is really going on here is that the Speaker and the President and, therefore, the government of these United States, both Executive and Legislative, have succumbed to the threat of the Turkish government, threats by that government against American soldiers and American lives.

Mr. Speaker, this is shameful. Turkey is a bully. We have America, the most powerful country in the world, being told by the Republic of Turkey what we can talk about and what we can think, not only with regard to human rights violations, but with regard to the most heinous crime against humanity, genocide.

I would like to know what kind of ally threatens American lives if it does not get its way. With friends like that, as the saying goes, who needs enemies. It is not as if Turkey's membership in NATO and assistance as part of the NATO alliance only helps the United States. Turkey allows NATO to use its bases against Iraq because of Iraq's threats to Turkey, not Iraq's threats to the United States. Turkey allows NATO to use its bases out of its own self-interest.

If Turkey is going to abrogate all of its bilateral and multilateral agreements over the Armenian genocide resolution, well I do not think that is going to happen. I think not. These agreements exist because they are in Turkey's self-interest.

Mr. Speaker, what happened today on the House floor I think sets a terrible precedent. It means that Turkey can threaten us in other areas. For example, they can threaten not to negotiate a settlement on Cyprus and continue to occupy that nation. They can threaten the European Union if that organization does not allow them to become a member despite continued human rights violations against the Kurds and other minorities.

Mr. Speaker, we have heard these same Turkish threats before. In 1996, for example, this body voted overwhelmingly, 268 to 153, to adopt an amendment to reduce U.S. assistance to Turkey until it recognized the Armenian genocide.

The doomsday scenarios that the opponents of the resolution predicted in 1996 did not occur. I do not believe they would have occurred today if we had passed the Armenian genocide resolution.

The relationship between the United States and Turkey is mutually beneficial. It is simply not in Turkey's national interest to sever relations with the United States over a House Resolution.

This brings me back, Mr. Speaker, to the Armenian genocide resolution and the importance I believe it plays in our overall foreign policy. If America is going to live up to the standards we set for ourselves and continue to lead the world in affirming human rights everywhere, we need to stand up and recognize the Armenian catastrophe for what it was, the systemic elimination of a people.

The fact of the Armenian genocide is not in dispute. The fact that the American record on the U.S. response to the Armenian genocide is not in dispute and House Resolution 596 affirms these facts. The only step left is to reject the deniers of the genocide.

As Members of Congress, we should not ignore our Nation's history at the insistence of an ally out of geopolitical convenience. Congress should not be forced by a foreign government to deny or ignore the U.S. record and response to the events that took place in the Ottoman Empire from 1915 to 1923.

If the House of Representatives cannot speak to our historical experience because of threats from a foreign government, then what message do we send to our friends and our enemies alike?

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I urge the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. HASTERT), Speaker of the House, to basically reconsider his decision and to allow House Resolution 596 to come to the floor. I assure the Speaker that it will pass overwhelmingly. The votes were there today if the Speaker had only let the resolution come to the floor.

To do anything else would establish a dangerous precedent for how history will be recorded with regard to current and future actions of Congress and the administration in response to man's inhumanity to man.

The bottom line, Mr. Speaker, is, if we do not recognize the Armenia genocide, other genocides will occur. The fact of the matter is that those who forget history are condemned to repeat it.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. CANADY) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Mr. CANADY of Florida addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from Michigan (Ms. STABENOW) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Ms. STABENOW addressed the House. Her remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from Ohio (Ms. PRYCE) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Ms. PRYCE of Ohio addressed the House. Her remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

CONGRATULATING CALIFORNIA STATE UNIVERSITY DOMINGUEZ HILLS ON 40TH ANNIVERSARY

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from California (Ms. MILLENDER-MCDONALD) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. MILLENDER-MCDONALD. Mr. Speaker, today I rise to congratulate one of the premier universities within the California State University system, Cal State Dominguez Hills, located in my district, on 40 years of exemplary higher learning.

In its 40th-year celebration, we reflect back on the many who have passed through her doors. California State University has produced over 29,000 graduates with baccalaureate degrees, 12,000 graduates with master's degrees, and 12,000 elementary and secondary school credentialed teachers.

Cal State Dominguez Hills is known throughout the State of California as the highest producer of credentialed teachers of any university in the State of California.

The student body of Cal State Dominguez Hills is the most diverse in the State and possibly in the country, reflecting the richness of a multicultural society.

The University is celebrating its 40th anniversary under the leadership of a newly appointed president, Dr. James E. Lyons, Sr. Dr. Lyons brings 16 years of presidential experience to the campus. He has served as president of Jackson State University in Mississippi and Bowie State University in Maryland.

An integral part of Dr. Lyon's vision for Dominguez Hills is building a model communiversity. The communiversity places emphasis on building partnerships that benefit the community and its people, focusing not only on their educational and cultural needs, but also serving as a major research institution for community and economic development.

In an effort to extend its services and resources into the community it serves, Cal State Dominguez Hills was the first in the Nation to develop a distance learning program. Forbes Magazine named Cal State Dominguez Hills one of the top 20 ''cyber'' universities in the country.

The distance learning program offers timely degree and certificate programs and individual courses via cutting-edge technologies to working professionals, busy adults, and high school students.

Over the past 5 years, approximately 7,500 students have enrolled in the Dominguez Hills distance learning program. More than 3,000 of these students come from outside of California, and more than 400 of these students come from outside the United States.

The university's Young Scholars Program enables high school students who have limited access to advanced placement courses to earn college and advanced placement credits through the university.

In addition, Mr. Speaker, we have the California Math and Science Academy, a premier program where they take the top 10 percent of the students in the middle school and enroll them to complete their secondary education with 90 percent of them going on to the top Ivy League and other universities.

I, again, congratulate Cal State University Dominguez Hills on its 40th anniversary, the appointment of a new impressive president, Dr. Lyons, and the outstanding accomplishments of the Distance Learning Program and CAMS, California Academy of Math and Science.

These milestones add significantly to the university and the surrounding communities as they forge ahead with a mission to be a communiversity dedicated to preparing students for the opportunities to be successful in a world of unprecedented challenges and change.

IN MEMORY OF RONALD SCOTT OWENS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. WELDON) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. WELDON of Florida. Mr. Speaker, today I rise to salute Petty Officer Third Class Ronald Scott Owens, one of the 17 crewmen who gave his life last week in the defense of our Nation. Petty officer Owens' life was lost when terrorists attacked the U.S.S. Cole. On August 8 of this year Petty Officer Owens left for a 6-month tour of duty aboard the U.S.S. Cole, serving on board as an electronics warfare technician.

We as a Nation honor the life of this young Vero Beach resident and all those who were lost.

Scott was born on October 31, 1975, and died serving and defending his fellow countrymen on October 11.

This tragic event makes this the worst terrorist attack on the American military since the terrorist attack on a U.S. Air Force housing complex near Dhahran, Saudi Arabia in 1996. That event killed 19 troops, including several airmen from Florida.

Scott is remembered by his crew mates as an inspiration and one that was always there to help support his fellow crewmen.

He was known as a happy-go-lucky guy who knew how to make everyone feel special. He is also remembered for his volunteer work with the fire and rescue squad. He served his community both in uniform and out of uniform.

I cannot begin to state how profoundly saddened I was to learn of Scott's untimely death. My prayers and condolences go out to his wife, Jaime, his 4-year-old daughter, Isabella, his entire family and the community of Vero Beach that is dealing with the shock of this tragic news.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from North Carolina (Mrs. CLAYTON) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Mrs. CLAYTON addressed the House. Her remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from New Mexico (Mrs. WILSON) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Mrs. WILSON addressed the House. Her remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Montana (Mr. HILL) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Mr. HILL of Montana addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

FUTURE JUSTICES OF THE SUPREME COURT

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 6, 1999, the gentlewoman from California (Ms. PELOSI) is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the minority leader.

Ms. PELOSI. Mr. Speaker, in just a few short weeks, we will be electing a new President of the United States on Tuesday, November 7. This is the centerpiece of our democracy, the election of a President.

The President has his own powers according to the Constitution, but also the power of appointment of the third branch of government, the Supreme Court. So a great deal is at stake in this election: the presidency and the President's appointments to the court.

If the next President appoints just one or two more justices to the court, and they do not support some of our basic fundamental rights, fundamental rights could be abolished or curtailed. The Supreme Court's decisions affect all aspect of our lives including basic civil rights and day-to-day pursuit of life, liberty, and happiness.

It is significant to note, I think, that no Supreme Court justice has retired in 6 years, the longest interval without a new appointment in 177 years. In the last 50 years, every President except one has appointed at least one justice, and 8 of the last 10 Presidents have appointed 2 justices. Court watchers expect several justices to retire soon, and, thus, the next President is likely to appoint several justices to fill these vacancies.

I mention this, Mr. Speaker, because many have asked, well, how do these elections affect young people in our country? Well, the election of the President affects them very directly in the decisions that that President will make but also very directly in terms of his power of appointment of the court, the Supreme Court, and indeed many, many scores of Federal Court justices.

As I have said, the Supreme Court makes many decisions that fundamentally affect and change our lives, and so young people should be very interested in these judges, this President, and the decisions that this court will make because it will have an impact for generations to come.

Soon the court will be deciding cases governing civil rights, workers' rights, reproductive freedom, voting rights, and campaign finance reform. The court will decide Congress' authority to apply Federal laws protecting individuals and our environment to the States, including the Americans with Disabilities Act. The court will address electoral redistricting and minority voting rights, free speech, criminal cases involving unreasonable search and seizure, and the scope of Federal regulations, really protections and safeguards, for all Americans.

How do the courts' decisions on these issues affect our lives? For women, the court has an impact on reproductive freedom. For workers, the court affects the ability to sue employers who violate employees' civil rights. Again, for women, the court affects access to family planning clinics and access to safe and appropriate medical care. For gay and lesbian Americans, the court affects civil rights protections and equal opportunity. For people with disabilities, the court affects protections in the Americans with Disabilities Act.

I asked one volunteer in a political campaign why she was volunteering, and she said I have looked around, studied the issues, and I realize that people in politics make decisions about the air I breathe and the water I drink. The same applies to the Supreme Court, Mr. Speaker. The court affects the air we breathe and the water we drink by determining the legality of the Clean Air and Clean Water Act. This volunteer went on to say, so I guess I should be interested in politics, at least for as long as I drink water and I breathe air.

Young people should be, and we should all be interested in the court and the person who will name justices to that court for at least as long as we breathe air and drink water.

The two issues that I would like to just focus on, in the interest of time, because I know the hour is late, are a woman's right to choose and the issue of the protection of our environment and how those issues will be affected by the court. The next President will likely appoint two, perhaps three Supreme Court justices, enough to overturn Roe v. Wade and allow States to enact severe and sweeping restrictions on women's reproductive rights. If the anti-choice majority maintains its control over the Senate, the Supreme Court nominations of an anti-choice President are likely to be quickly confirmed.

Governor George Bush is an anti-choice governor with a record to prove it. In 1999 alone, Governor Bush, along with Michigan's Governor Engler signed more anti-choice provisions into law than any other governor in the U.S. Governor Bush has said he believes Roe v. Wade went too far and has characterized the 1973 ruling as a reach. Governor Bush has also said that Justice Antonin Scalia, arguably the most ardent opponent of abortion on the Supreme Court, would be his model justice.

Governor Bush wants to end legal reproductive freedom in the U.S. AL GORE would protect a woman's right to choose. The choice is clear: Pro-choice Americans must understand that Governor Bush will use the power of the Presidency to end legal reproductive choice and take away a woman's right to choose.

In terms of the environment, moving on to that because I know that is an issue that young people are interested in as well, I mentioned that Governor Bush has said that his model justice was Justice Scalia. Sadly, Justice Scalia's environmental philosophy is just as dismal as some of the other issues that I mentioned here. Legal scholars who have studied the Supreme Court have found that Justice Scalia sided against the environment more than any other person in the history of the court.

How bad is his record? Eighty-seven percent of the time an environmental case came before the Supreme Court Justice Scalia decided against the environment. In Justice Scalia's world, citizens would not be allowed to stop pollution just because a company is poisoning their backyards. In a case decided earlier this year, a factory had dumped toxic mercury into a nearby river 489 times. How would you like that, Mr. Speaker, in your backyard? But even though the factory poisoned the river nearly 500 times, the Justice felt that the court was making it far too easy to halt an environmental crime.

So when we come to issues that young people are interested in, such as protecting the environment, this environment that we have only on loan because it belongs to them, it is their future, we must protect it in every way that we can. We can do that by our own personal behavior; through conservation; by the people we elect to office to make decisions about the environment; by the President of the United States, who leads the country in protecting our environment and the justices that he will appoint to the court who will make decisions about the air we breathe and the water we drink. For as long as we breathe air and drink water, Mr. Speaker, we should be very interested in those decisions.

Again, on the issue of a woman's right to choose, which I think is a matter that is at risk, we are at a crossroads and one that will be very much affected by the outcome of the election on November 7.

In the interest of time, I will not go into all the other issues, Mr. Speaker, except to say that November 7 is an important day, a day when we will be choosing not only a President but that President's appointees. There is a great deal at stake for young people. I hope they will pay attention to the election and its ramifications.

SOCIAL SECURITY

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. PEASE). Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 6, 1999, the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. SMITH) is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the majority leader.

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. Mr. Speaker, we are having an election, and the election is important for many reasons. Regarding the discussion of appointing Supreme Court Justices, I would hope that whatever President we elect does not have a litmus test for those judges; that they should be some of the smartest, some of the most well-read literary law judges that we can find in the country. We have tried to help assure that by having the advice and consent of the Senate. What they do is interpret the Constitution, and I hope that is the kind of judges that we will have.

I rise tonight, Mr. Speaker, to talk about another issue that is sort of in this campaign and is being talked about by the Vice President and Governor Bush, and that is Social Security. Social Security is an issue that I have been studying since I came to Congress in 1993.

I introduced my first bill in 1993 on Social Security and my second bill in 1995. It is a 2-year session, so every session I have introduced a bill. The last four bills have been scored by the Social Security Administration to keep Social Security solvent, and we have done that without any tax increases, without any reduction in benefits for retirees or near-term retirees.

I was appointed chairman of a bipartisan Social Security task force where we studied for many months and had witnesses, expert witnesses from all around this country and, in fact, all around the world, talking about this situation with Social Security. I suspect it is sort of like an automobile mechanic. The more he understands how an internal combustion engine works, for example, the more he is concerned about keeping it lubricated and reducing the friction. So probably mechanics are pretty diligent in terms of greasing and lubrication. So, too, I have become sort of a mechanic with Social Security, knowing its internal operations, how it works, and some of the friction points that can develop. So I guess my colleagues can consider my presentation tonight sort of like they might consider the mechanic: they should take out what they think is pertinent but get a second opinion.

Social Security is probably America's most important program. We have almost a third of our retirees that depend on the Social Security check for 90 percent or more of their total retirement income.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to introduce Erika Ball. Erika is a page, and she is from Arizona. Sarah, come up in the limelight. You might as well, too, as long as you ladies are helping me. A little closer so we get you right in the picture. How many pages do we have?

Sarah Schleck is from the great State of Minnesota. Ladies, thank you for helping me with the charts tonight.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman will suspend.

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. That is not proper; is that right?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Members are to address their remarks to the Chair and are reminded that only Members are allowed to address the Chamber.

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. Mr. Speaker, I considered myself an interpreter. I apologize for any infraction.

Let me start out with these charts. Social Security Benefit Guaranty Act. When Franklin Delano Roosevelt created the Social Security program over 6 decades ago, he wanted it to feature a personal investment component to build retirement income. Social Security was supposed to be one leg of a three-legged stool to support retirees. It was supposed to go hand-in-hand with personal savings and private pension plans.

In fact, researching the archives, it is interesting that in the debate in 1935 in the Senate, the Senate on two occasions voted to have it optional to have a personal retirement savings account. So individuals owned accounts. Even in that case they could only be used for retirement, but there would be some individual ownership. When they went to conference, the House and the Senate ended up having government do the whole thing.

It was made from the very beginning as a pay-as-you-go program, where existing workers paid in their Social Security tax and almost immediately those dollars were sent out to beneficiaries. So it was a pay-as-you-go program with existing workers paying in their taxes to pay for existing current retirees.

The system is really stretched to its limits, and the actuaries are concerned. They say that Social Security is insolvent. We just changed it in 1983, reduced benefits and increased taxes. Yet already they are predicting that it is going to run out of money if we continue the same structure. So we have to make changes. We have to do it without reducing any benefits to existing or near-term retirees. We have to do it by making sure that we do not increase taxes on workers, and that means we have to get a better return on some of those tax dollars coming in.

Seventy-eight million baby boomers begin retiring in 2008. That means these high-income workers go out of the paying-in mode. In a sense what they pay in is related to how much they are making. They are at the top of the scale in terms of how much they are paying in taxes. Then they retire, and because the benefits are directly related to what they paid in in taxes, how much they were earning, so there is a relationship to benefits, they draw out more than maybe the average is drawing out. So a huge predicament, demographic problem.

Social Security trust funds go broke in 2037, although the crisis is going to arrive when there is less tax revenues coming in than for retirement purposes.

I will go through these slides rather quickly, but I just urge everybody, Mr. Speaker, to look and do a little studying and a little learning of the Social Security problem because it is probably one of the most significant financial challenges that Washington, that this House and the Senate and the President face.

Insolvency is certain. It is not some kind of a far-flung estimate. It is an absolute. We know how many people there are, and we know when they are going to retire. We know that people will live longer in retirement, and we know how much they will pay in and how much they are going to take out.

Payroll taxes will not cover benefits starting in 2015. And the shortfalls will add up to $120 trillion over the next 75 years, or actually when we run out of tax dollars covering benefits. So starting in 2015 to 2075, $120 trillion is going to be needed over and above what we are going to take in in Social Security taxes. And just to put that in some kind of perspective, since most of us do not know what a trillion dollars is, our annual budget is about $1.9 trillion for all expenditures of the Federal Government.

The coming Social Security crisis, our pay-as-you-go retirement system, will not meet the challenge of demographic change. I started talking about that. This is the number of workers per retiree. And since the number of workers contribute their taxes and it is combined to pay retirement benefits, it makes a difference. This represents what is happening as we reduce the number of workers for each retiree they are supporting.

In 1940, there were 38 retirees paying in their taxes to support each retiree. There were 34 workers supporting each retiree. So they could divide that retiree's benefits by 38 and that is what they were paying in. Today, there are three workers. So whatever a retiree gets on the average, you divide it by three and that is what the workers are paying in. By 2025 there are going to be two workers.

So together, if the retirement benefit is $1,200 a month, they are each one going to have to tribute $600 out of their paycheck to pay that retirement benefit. So the demographics are the serious problem, what is giving us a big bleak future that is represented on this chart by the red. And in 1983, we substantially increased the Social Security tax. So we went up to 12.4 percent and the 12.4 percent is now on most of the income you get. I have got a chart on that.

But that high tax increase in 1983 has resulted to more coming in in Social Security taxes that are needed for benefits, a surplus if you will. But the blue area up here, that surplus, only lasts until 2015. And then the bleak future is demonstrated in the red part of the graph. And this is where we are going to be $120 trillion short of what is needed to pay benefits over and above what is coming in in the Social Security tax, a huge challenge, a huge problem.

As I have studied this over the last 6 or 7 years, one of the things that has become very clear is we have got to get a better return on investment.

Economic growth will not fix Social Security. And so many people now are saying, well, look at this great economic growth. That is going to take care of Social Security. Since benefits are directly related to how much money you are making and if you have a job and start paying Social Security taxes, in the early years, the Social Security Administration is going to bring in more money, but since there is the direct relationship, when you retire, you are going to take out more money.

So, in the long-run, economic growth is not going to fix Social Security. Again, Social Security benefits are indexed to wage growth. When the economy grows, workers pay more in taxes but also will earn more in benefits when they retire.

Growth makes the numbers look better now but leaves a larger hole to fill later. And what concerns me is the administration has used these short-term advantages as an excuse to do nothing. I would suggest to you that we have missed a real opportunity in the last 8 years to fix Social Security.

When I introduced my first Social Security bill, that was scored to keep Social Security solvent until 1995, you did not have to be as aggressive in making changes to keep Social Security solvent for the next 100 years but you had to make a few more changes. And in fact, I ended up borrowing some money from the general fund in this last bill to keep Social Security solvent in a way to pay for the transition of some of those investments as we start getting real return on some of those investments.

My point is that the longer we wait, the more drastic the changes are going to have to be. And if you just review what this country has done, every time we have run into problems we have reduced benefits and increased taxes, one or the other, or both.

In 1978, that is what we did. In 1983, under the Greenspan Commission, that is what we did. In fact, this is when we reduced benefits by saying, look, we are going to add 2 years to the retirement, so, starting next year, we are gradually going raise it to making the maximum retirement eligibility age 67 rather than 66. But at the same time, that is when they jumped these taxes to account for the surpluses that we are having now.

There is no Social Security account with your name on it. These trust fund balances are available to finance future benefit payments and other trust fund expenditures but only in a bookkeeping sense. They are claims on the Treasury that when redeemed will have to be financed by raising taxes, borrowing from the public, or reducing benefits or reducing some other expenditures. And the source is President Clinton's Office of Management and Budget.

So we have a trust fund. They say, well, if somehow the Government pays back the trust fund, then we really will not run out of money until 2035. The argument is maybe complicated to make. But maybe think of it this way maybe: What would we do if we had no trust fund and then versus we have a trust fund? If we had no trust fund but wanted to meet our obligations of Social Security, which I think this House is going to do, we are either going to have to reduce benefits or increase taxes, like we did in 1983 and 1977, or we are going to have to reduce other expenditures. And that is the exact same three steps you take if you have a trust fund.

So the challenge for us is how do we come up with the money when we need the money.

Now getting a little bit into politics and the election trying to analyze Governor Bush's proposal and analyze Vice President GORE'S proposal. The Vice President says our current debt that we owe the public is $3.4 trillion. That is the Treasury debt. It does not include what we owe Social Security trust fund or the other trust fund. It is the debt that is owed to the public.

The Vice President is suggesting that by paying off this $3.4 trillion debt we can somehow accommodate the $46.6 trillion that is unfunded that is going to be what we are going to need over and before taxes up until the year 2057. So somehow this public debt at $3.4 trillion is going to somehow accommodate paying off what we need in extra money the $46.6 trillion.

I did another graph to sort of try to depict these same statistics trying to show that it is not going to work. But adding mother giant IOU to the trust fund does not help.

The actuaries and Alan Greenspan estimate that the unfunded liability of Social Security right now is $9 trillion.

In other words, to come up with $120 trillion over the next 75 years, you would need $9 trillion today with interest income on top of it earning something like 6½ to 7 percent real return to come up with $120 trillion you need over the next 75 years.

The bottom blue represents the $260 billion a year that we are paying in interest right now on the debt held by the public. So you have got $260 billion a year that we would save. And so maybe there is some rationale to say, well, let us use Social Security trust fund surpluses and use those Social Security trust fund dollars, write Social Security an IOU, use those dollars to pay down the public debt and then we will add an additional bonus to help cover Social Security by saying that we are going to use that savings every year for the next 57 years to help pay the Social Security bill.

But again, as you see, it does not do it. The $260 billion a year still leaves a $35 trillion shortfall just until 1957. And this is up until 1957 is when the Vice President says that his plan will keep Social Security solvent. The key, the challenge is coming up when you need the money, not writing giant IOUs to the trust fund.

The biggest risk I really think is doing nothing at all. Social Security, as I mentioned, has a total unfunded liability of over $9 trillion. The Social Security trust funds contain nothing but IOUs. There is a box down in Maryland where every time there is more money coming in than what is needed to pay out benefits, the Government writes an IOU and puts it in this steel box. And here again their IOUs, their bills, their notes from the U.S. Treasury I think they are going to be covered somehow. But the question is how do you cover them?

The economists say that if we were to borrow that $120 trillion from the public over the next 75 years, it would almost totally disrupt this economy with Government borrowing that much money. Some have suggested, well, we could cut down on some of the other spending.

I am sure, Mr. Speaker, people that have observed how spending is going up and the propensity of Congress to spend doubt whether we are going to take the whole Federal budget and do nothing with it except use it for Social Security.

That is why we have got to start investing this money and that is why the magic of compound interest can help us get out of the problem we are in. To keep paying promised Social Security benefits, the payroll tax will have to be increased by nearly 50 percent or benefits will have to be cut by 30 percent. And I say that is a no. We cannot do that. We are already increasing the taxes way too much on the American workers.

We have heard a lot of talk about the Social Security lockbox. It may be a little gimmicky, but it has accomplished a lot for us. When Republicans took the majority in 1995, we got together and here was a group of Republicans that had not been in the majority for almost 40 years in the House and we decided one thing we were going to do is work to balance the budget and part of that was not using the Social Security trust fund surplus for other Government spending.

The problem with this chamber, of course, once you start spending more money, if you spend it on a particular program for maybe 2 years, those recipients start hiring lobbyists to say, boy, this program is really important. We have got to continue this spending. So even the emergency spending has become routine spending and we continue to expand spending.

So one of the important things that it seems to me that we have got to do is have the discipline, have the intestinal fortitude to hold back on the growth of Government because it leaves that much more obligation to our kids and to our grandkids on top of the Social Security problem.

Vice President GORE has talked about the lockbox, but I would simply say that this chamber has passed the lockbox legislation. It is over in the Senate and right now there is, as I understand it, a problem, a filibuster. If Vice President GORE would urge his Senate colleagues on his side of the aisle to pass the lockbox, there is no question in my mind that it would pass through the Senate and we would send it to the President and I think the President would sign it.

Let me talk about the diminishing returns of your Social Security investment. On average, the average retiree today receives back a real return of 1.9 percent on the taxes that they and their employer put in, or if they are self-employed, all their taxes that they have put in.

This is what the middle light purple shows is the average of 1.9 percent. You see, some do not even break even. Some have a negative return. That is minorities. A young black worker, for example, on average is going to live 62½ years. That means they can work all their life but they die before they are eligible for benefits and they get nothing but a burial expense of something like $250.

So it is especially unfair to those particular groups that have a shorter lifespan right now.

The market for the last 100 years has been almost a return of 7 percent real return, and we will get into those figures a little bit. My grandson, well, I will wait until I get to the picture of my grandson, but it is the future generation at risk.

If we do not do something, I can see a generational warfare where the young workers of this country, if they are asked to pay 47 percent payroll tax without any changes, without adding prescription drugs or any extra benefits to Social Security, and the vice president also adds increased benefits on Social Security, but with doing no more adding of benefits the prediction is that to cover Medicare, medicaid and Social Security within the next 35 years we are going to have to have a payroll tax that is about 47 percent of what you make. Right now the payroll tax is 15 percent.

Under the current Social Security program, this is how many years you are going to have to live after retirement to break even with what you and your employer put into Social Security taxes, and this does not include that part of the Social Security tax that goes for insurance, goes for disability insurance. So that is taken out of the calculation. Nobody is touching that. Nobody is suggesting we do anything with that portion, that you are really buying insurance in case you become disabled or something. That stays in place and that is never touched as far as anything but an absolute insurance policy for disability.

If you were lucky enough to retire in 1940, it took 2 months to get everything back that you and your employer put in. Two years, 1960; 4 years 1980. If you retired in 1995, you are going to have to live 16 years after you retire to get everything back. If you retire in 2005, you are going to have to live 23 years. If you retire in 2015, 26 years.

Now our medical technology is doing great things. We have the nano technology. We have the new gene cataloging. Maybe it is possible to develop the kind of medical techniques that is going to allow you to live long enough after you retire to break even and get back everything you and your employer put in, but I will guarantee everybody, Mr. Speaker, that they also better do some extra saving now to account for the other two legs of that three-legged stool if they want to live in any kind of decent conditions if they are going to live that long.

Anyway, my point here is that it is a bad investment. It is a bad investment on Social Security and we are going to get into that.

These are my grandkids getting ready for Halloween. Bonnie and I have nine grandkids now so there are a few missing here, and I blew this picture up. I have the picture on my wall as I go out my door to make votes. Let me sort of, I think, brag a little bit. I have never taken any special interest PAC money because I sort of always have wanted the independence. So I make my decision looking at this picture and deciding what is going to be best for these kids and your kids, your grandkids 20, 30, 40 years from now. Sometimes you cannot tell for sure but at least you put that as sort of a criteria and you try to say, look, is this decision going to make America stronger; is it going to keep our economy going?

Well, that is Selena and James and Henry and George, he is a tiger, Emily, Clair, Francis and my grandson Nick Smith. My name is NICK SMITH so it is sort of maybe that is my immortality, but even Nick at 13 years old is going to have to live that 26, 28 years after retirement to break even. That is under the existing program and that is assuming that somehow we are going to come up with the money, but if we do not get a better return on the investment of some of the money going in, then he may very well be asked to go up to 47 percent of what he makes on a payroll tax to cover medicaid and Social Security and Medicare. If he does that, then he is probably going to have to live 60 years after he retires.

Anyway, I put the picture up just to make every grandparent think that as they look at the possibility of somebody that might promise them more benefits, every grandparent has to also think, what is going to be the implication on their grandkids, and it is going to be huge if we continue to increase benefits, and that starts, of course, when the baby-boomers start retiring in 2008, 2009. This is what we have done on tax increases.

Just look at this a minute, Mr. Speaker. In 1940, we had a 2 percent rate. The employee paid 1 percent. The employer paid 1 percent. The base was on the first $3,000 so $30 for the employee, $30 for the employer for not more than $60 a year. 1960 upped it to 6 percent, the base was $4,800. The base was also raised. That meant $288 a year combined employer/employee; 1980, 10.16 percent, raised the base again to $25,900. That means employee/employer together paid $2,631 and today, of course, it is 12.4 percent of the first $76,200. That is a total of $9,449. A huge challenge of what I think happens down here at the bottom of this chart, if we continue to go like we have been, with politicians seeking rewards and getting on the front pages of the papers, they take home pork barrel projects and make promises of more benefits, but it all comes from somebody and the somebody is the American people that are paying taxes. So, again, I just urge our presidential candidates to move ahead.

Vice President GORE was at several meetings I was at at the White House and I thought we were close a couple of years ago to moving ahead with the Social Security problem, but you can understand that it is easy to demagog. With all the seniors that get Social Security and so many that are so dependent on Social Security, it is easy to scare people. The tendency somehow in this political bickering is to try to put the other person down somewhat.

This pie chart, back to how high taxes have gone, right now 78 percent of families pay more in payroll taxes than they pay in income taxes. Seventy-eight percent of American workers pay more in the Social Security tax than they do in the income tax, and I think that is a huge problem that should reinforce our determination not to yet again increase taxes.

Here are Governor Bush's six principles. They also happen to be my six principles. They also happen to be the principles of the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. KOLBE) and the gentleman from Texas (Mr. STENHOLM). They also happen to be Senator ROD GRAMS' principles from Minnesota. I borrowed some of the Senator's charts here. Protect the current and future beneficiaries; allow freedom of choice; preserve the safety net; make Americans better off, not worse off. Let me stop here a minute. On the personal investments, several suggestions. One suggestion, the way it worked out was that for every $3 you made in your private investments and they have to be safe investments, most of the bills, and my bill, call for indexed investments, and it is arranged that for every $3 you make on the stock market you would lose $2 of fixed Social Security benefits but still everybody would have a choice whether to go into the personal savings retirement program, where they own that particular retirement fund. It would become optional. But the point is, is that whether you lose $4 of Social Security benefits for every $5 you make in your investments or, in my case, you would lose Social Security with an assumption that you could make at least 4-point-some percent return on your investments. So almost in every case of every projection, individuals are better off and we will get to that with actual figures on some of the counties in America that had the option of going in to personal retirement accounts rather than going into the government's Social Security. No tax increases is pretty much an absolute what we have developed into all of these programs.

Personal retirement accounts, they do not come out of Social Security. So I have heard the vice president say, well, Governor Bush is taking the money out of Social Security but it sort of substitutes for Social Security. It stays within the Social Security system. It can only be used for retirement and it is limited to safe investments. Most of those, what I do is index stocks, index bonds and index global funds and other safe investments as determined by the Secretary of the Treasury would be the option, sort of like a 401(k), sort of like if you work in government the thrift savings accounts.

They become part of your Social Security retirement benefits. You own them. I think it is good to mention here that the Supreme Court on two occasions now has ruled that there is no entitlement, there is no connection between the Social Security taxes you pay in and your right to have any benefits. One is strictly a tax and the other is a benefit that is determined by Congress and the President. Likewise, if you happen to die before you reach retirement age, if it is money in your own account it goes into your estate, to your kids and your grandkids. It is limited to safe investments that will earn more than the 1.9 percent paid by Social Security.

I made this big because on my stump it has been used against me in my campaigns; well, the Congressman just wants to take away benefits or he wants to increase taxes, but all of these plans, no tax increases, no benefit cuts for retirees or near-term retirees. So it would be the younger worker that would have the option of the personal retirement investment accounts.

Personal retirement accounts offer more retirement security. If John Doe makes an average of $36,000 a year, he can expect monthly payments in a PRSA, a personal retirement account, of $6,514 from his personal retirement account as opposed to $1,280 from Social Security. This is just trying to demonstrate the magic of compound interest.

Choosing personal accounts, Galveston County, Texas, when we did the program in 1935 counties had the option of whether or not they wanted to put it into their personal retirement accounts or whether they wanted to put it into Social Security. Listen to this. Death benefits in Galveston, $75,000 death benefits under their personal investment accounts; Social Security $253. Disability benefits per month, Social Security $1,280; the Galveston plan, $2,749. Social Security $1,280, the same as the disability; but the retirement is $4,790 a month.

This is a statement by a young lady whose husband died, and she said thank God that some wise men privatized Social Security here. If I had regular Social Security, I would be broke. And after her husband died, Wendy Colehill used her death benefit check of $126,000 to pay for his funeral and enter college. Under Social Security she would have received a mere $255.

San Diego has the personal retirement accounts as opposed to Social Security and a 30-year-old employee who earns a salary of $30,000 for 35 years, $30,000 for 35 years and contributes 6 percent to his PRA would receive $3,000 per month in retirement and that compares to $1,077 in Social Security. The difference between San Diego's system of PRAs and Social Security is more than the difference in a check. It is also the difference between ownership and dependence on a bunch of politicians sometime to maybe make a decision like they did in 1977 and 1983 to cut benefits again.

I got this from Senator ROD GRAMS. This is a letter from Senator BOXER, BARBARA BOXER, Senator FEINSTEIN and Senator TED KENNEDY to President Clinton on April 22, 1999, in support of allowing San Diego to keep with their PRA system rather than go into Social Security.

They said in this letter, ''Millions of our constituents will receive higher retirement benefits from their current public pensions than they would under Social Security.'' They are going to do better. So even these people have said, look, that private investment is better. Let San Diego keep their system.

The United States trails many other countries in the world in terms of making this change. In the 18 years since Chile offered PRAs, 95 percent of the Chilean workers have created accounts. Their average rate of return has been 11.3 percent per year.

Among others, I visited Australia, Britain and Switzerland. They offer workers PRAs. I represented the United States in an international meeting where we all talked about our public pension retirement systems, and I was so impressed with what these other countries had done. Europe, for example, ended up with a 10 percent return on their second tier investments, and two out of three British workers enrolled in the second tier social security system chose to enroll in PRAs.

Here we have a socialist country, but they are saying, look, allow us at least in part to invest some of our money in our own accounts, in personal retirement accounts. British workers have enjoyed a 10 percent return on their pension investment over the past few years. The pool of PRAs in Britain exceeds nearly $1.4 trillion, and it is larger than their entire economy and larger than the private pensions of all other European countries combined. Very successful.

I sort of stuck this little chart on, and I do not know, Mr. Speaker, if the camera picks this up, but based on the family income of $58,475, the return on a PRA is even better. So without looking at this for a minute, if it is in there, the light blue is 2 percent of your income, and I will call it a pinkish-purple is if you invested 6 percent, and the dark purple is if you invested 10 percent of your income.

If you leave it in for 40 years, then 10 percent of the $58,000 a year would end up in 40 years worth $1,389,000. That means with 5 percent interest on that, you would not even have to touch the principal; you could get almost $70,000 a year just from interest at 5 percent.

Okay, if we can look at this little chart, and I will sort of explain it as we finish off here, the question is, what about a downturn in the stock market? You can invest in the stock market, but what if you have a crash? What if you have a crash like we did in 1917 or 1929 or 1978? What if the stock market really goes down?

This shows what has happened over the last 100 years in stock investments in the United States. You see a few dips, but it has never gone down below 3 percent. So at the very worse, over any 30-year average, any 30 years on average, it has never gone down to what the 1.9 percent return is on Social Security right now.

The average, if you take any 30-year period, and likewise, a 20-year period, you have never lost money, even putting that 20 years around the worst times in this country. If you put the 20 years or the 30 years any place around the Great Depression, you still have a positive return on that investment. The average return for any 30-year period for the last 120 years has been a return of 6.7 percent.

So, sometimes we get nervous and take our money out of the stock market, but the key to these kind of PRAs is it only can be used for retirement, so it tends to be long range.

Individuals would have the choice. So Governor Bush is saying, look, leave some choice for individuals, such as our thrift savings account. Do you want it a little more in stocks and a little less in bonds, or vice versa, and where do you want to put some of that money as an individual? So some people will end up better off than others.

I will finish up on my last chart by putting up a bunch of kids getting ready for Halloween. Their future is in our hands, Mr. Speaker, and I would hope that all of us would give some conviction.

We have done a fairly good job the last several years reducing spending. In 1993 we saw the largest tax increase in history. We decided 2 years later when the Republicans took the majority not to spend that tax increase and to hold government spending down. That has ended up in a surplus, along with just this tremendous system that we have got in this country, where those that work and save and try and invest end up better off than those that do not.

Like I say, we have used maybe some suggestions like the lockbox that kept us from spending the Social Security surplus. What we did last month as a Republican Conference is we decided, look, our line in the sand this year is going to take 90 percent of the surplus and use that to pay down the debt held by the public, and take the other 10 percent, and that is what we have been arguing about for the last month, what to do with that other 10 percent. But I think we have the President convinced now, because the public supports it, is using 90 percent of the surplus to pay down the public debt, and we have come a long ways.

That is what we are doing. But for my grandkids, for your kids and your grandkids and your great grandkids, please help us move ahead in dealing with Social Security and not continuing to put it off.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. PEASE). The Chair reminds Members that it is not in order in debate to characterize the legislative positions of the Senate or of individual Senators.

CONCERNING THE ARMENIAN GENOCIDE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. MORELLA) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mrs. MORELLA. Mr. Speaker, I want to applaud the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. SMITH) for his presentation, his visual aids, and the opportunity to see his grandchildren and to recognize that is why we are all here. We are here for the future.

This evening, Mr. Speaker, my special order is on a different matter. The House was scheduled to consider House Resolution 596 this evening, and I regret that it will not do so. That resolution calls upon the President to ensure that the foreign policy of the United States reflects understanding and sensitivity concerning issues related to human rights, ethnic cleansing and genocide documented in the United States record relating to the Armenian genocide.

More than 80 years ago the rulers of the Ottoman Empire made a decision to attempt to eliminate the Armenian people living under their rule. Between 1915 and 1923, nearly 1.5 million Armenian people died and another 500,000 were deported.

The resolution that we are not considering, that we would have, serves a dual purpose. First and foremost, it is to show respect and remembrance to those Armenian people and their families who suffered during those 8 years at the beginning of that century.

Secondly, it exemplifies that if we are ever to witness a universal respect for human rights, we have to begin by acknowledging the truth, and the truth is that governments still continue to commit atrocities against their own citizens while escaping the consequences of their actions, internally by means of repression, and externally, for reasons of political expediency.

The events that took place under the rule of the Ottoman Empire were real. Real people died, and the results were and still are shocking. If we in the Congress continue to react with silence regarding these events and are unwilling to stand up and publicly condemn these horrible occurrences, we effectively give our approval to abuses of power such as the Armenian genocide. We must let the truth about these events be known and continue to speak out against all instances of man's and woman's inhumanity to man- and womankind.

I regret that rather than deal honestly and objectively with the truth, the government of Turkey continues to deny the genocide for which its predecessor state bears responsibility. I regret that it is not politically convenient to affirm the genocide. I regret that this administration prefers political expediency to principle.

Today, nearly 1 million Armenian people live in the United States. They are a proud people, who spent 70 years fighting Stalinist domination, and, finally in the last decade, they have achieved freedom. But even that freedom will never allow them to forget the hardships suffered by their friends and family nearly a century ago, nor will they ever stop forcing us to recognize that these, and similar acts, must continue to be condemned by nations and people who hold the highest respect for human rights. The United States should do so.

A concurrent resolution of the Senate of the following title was taken from the Speaker's table and, under the rule, referred as follows:

S. Con. Res. 146. Concurrent Resolution condemning the assassination of Father John Kaiser and others in Kenya, and calling for a thorough investigation to be conducted in those cases, a report on the progress made in such an investigation to be submitted to Congress by December 15, 2000, and a final report on such an investigation to be made public, and for other purposes; to the Committee on International Relations.

ENROLLED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTION SIGNED

Mr. THOMAS, from the Committee on House Administration, reported that that committee had examined and found truly enrolled bills and a joint resolution of the House of the following titles, which were thereupon signed by the Speaker:

PROCEEDINGS AND DEBATES OF THE 106th CONGRESS, SECOND SESSION

Vol. 146 WASHINGTON, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 19, 2000 No. 132

Senate

(Legislative day of Friday, September 22, 2000)

The Senate met at 10:30 a.m., on the expiration of the recess, and was called to order by the President pro tempore [Mr. THURMOND].

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Dr. Lloyd John Ogilvie, offered the following prayer:

Holy, holy, holy, Lord God Almighty. Heaven and Earth are filled with Your glory. Praise and thanksgiving be to You, Lord most high. Ruler of the universe, reign in us. Creator of all, recreate our hearts to love You above all else. Provider of limitless blessings, may we never forget that we have been blessed to be a blessing. Sovereign of our Nation, we commit our lives to You. We surrender the false idols of our hearts: Pride, position, power, past accomplishments. Without You, we could not breathe a breath, think a thought, or devise a plan. May our only source of security be that we have been called to be both Your friends and Your servants. You are the reason for living, the only one we must please, and the one to whom we are ultimately accountable. With united minds and hearts, we dedicate the work of this Senate to You. Through our Lord and Saviour. Amen.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The Honorable JIM BUNNING, a Senator from the State of Kentucky, led the Pledge of Allegiance, as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

Mr. ASHCROFT. Mr. President, for the information of all Senators, the Senate will be in a period of morning business until 12:30 p.m. today. At 12:30, the Senate will recess for a party caucus meeting until 2:15 p.m. It is hoped that the Senate will receive the HUD-VA appropriations conference report and/or the continuing resolution from the House by early afternoon. The Senate may also have a procedural vote with respect to the bankruptcy reform bill during today's session. Therefore, Senators can expect up to three votes this afternoon. As usual, Senators will be notified as votes are scheduled.

I thank my colleagues for their attention.

Under the previous order, there will now be a period for the transaction of morning business not to extend beyond the hour of 12:30 p.m., with Senators permitted to speak therein for up to 5 minutes each and with the time to be equally divided between the two leaders or their designees.

Under the previous order, the Senator from Missouri, Mr. ASHCROFT, is recognized to speak for 15 minutes.

The Senator from Missouri.

REMEMBERING GOVERNOR MEL CARNAHAN

Mr. ASHCROFT. Mr. President, today I rise with a deep sense of sadness. As you all are aware, on Monday night Missouri's Governor, Mel Carnahan, was killed in a tragic plane crash. Also killed in the crash were the Governor's son, Randy Carnahan, and the Governor's long-time aide, Chris Sifford. My wife Janet and I join with all Missourians in mourning these deaths. We express our deepest sympathies to the Carnahan and Sifford families. We will continue to pray that God will grant these families comfort, healing, and strength in this time of great sorrow. This is a time when the Carnahan and Sifford families must bear the burden of a tragedy so unexpected and so profound that each of us feels their loss. That our Senate campaign could have ended so tragically is shocking.

● This "bullet" symbol identifies statements or insertions which are not spoken by a Member of the Senate on the floor.

As the collective heart of Missouri mourns the loss of a leader, this is a time for unity and common purpose in Missouri. We, as both a State and Nation, join together to mourn the loss of Governor Carnahan—a committed public servant. Although we were competing for the same office, Governor Carnahan and I had a unique relationship united by the common bonds of public service and respect for the people of Missouri. We both were honored to be sons of educators. We both loved time spent with our families on our farms.

Governor Carnahan and I also shared a commitment to the greatest promise for our Nation's future: the education of our children. We committed to the commonsense idea that to continue our prosperity, we should invest part of the Federal surplus in educating America's children. That is a theme which I will pursue with intensity here in the Senate. Governor Carnahan has always been present and accounted for when duty called. He served as a member of the United States Air Force. He was a municipal judge. As a member of the State House of Representatives, he served as majority flood leader. He was elected State Treasurer in 1980, Lieutenant Governor in 1988, and Governor in 1992. He was highly respected and the State prospered during his time as Governor.

As we absorb the blow of this tragedy, we should be reminded of what truly is important in life—commitment to God, to family, and to our fellow citizens. These were the commitments of Mel Carnahan. He served the people of Missouri with dignity and honor for more than four decades. I will remember him, and all of Missouri will remember him, for his dedication to his family—as a husband, a father, and a grandfather. We are all grateful that Mel Carnahan was willing to spend his life serving the people and the State of Missouri. I again extend my deepest sympathies to Governor Carnahan's wife, Jean, and to his family. Our prayers are with them in this time of great loss.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Washington.

Mrs. MURRAY. Mr. President, I join my colleague from Missouri in telling the family of Mel Carnahan how deeply sorry we all are.

It must be a terribly difficult time for the citizens of his State, for his family, and for everyone who knew him. I hope we can carry on his tradition, one about which he talked so much in the last four decades, of making sure all of our children get a good education and the people of this great country have the opportunities about which he cared so deeply.

I thank the Senator from Missouri.

EDUCATION

Mrs. MURRAY. Mr. President, I have come to the floor today to talk about education.

In the past month, students across our country have gone back to school. They have entered schools where there are health and safety hazards, and they are trying to learn in classrooms that are overcrowded. They are competing for the time and attention of a teacher, and they are looking to us for support.

I am frustrated to say this, but as this session of Congress draws to a close, this Congress has done very little to support those children across this country. This Congress, for the first time in 30 years, has failed to reauthorize the Elementary and Secondary Education Act. That is a disservice to students who are trying to learn in overcrowded classrooms, to students who are stuck in crumbling schools, and to students who do not feel safe at school.

We can't pass ESEA reauthorization; it is too late. But we do have one place to make it up: in the final funding plan for the upcoming fiscal year.

There are kids out there counting on us to do the right thing, and we need to pass a budget that addresses their needs. That is why I have come to the floor today, to urge my colleagues to do just that.

As I look back on this session of Congress, I am frustrated by the way this process has broken down. We have been updating our national education policy for about 30 years. It has always been a bipartisan and productive process—but not this year. This year, the ESEA reauthorization was stalled by sharp partisanship. We had a chance to make a lot of progress, but this Congress failed.

We weren't able to update our Nation's education policy to meet the needs of today's classrooms. As a parent, as a former educator and a former school board member, that is discouraging. What is even more discouraging is some of the talk that we have heard on the campaign trail this year. Not long ago, Governor Bush said that our country is experiencing a ''recession in education.'' I have thought a lot about that statement. To the teachers who are working harder than ever, it certainly doesn't feel like a recession. In fact, I think Governor Bush has it exactly backward. A recession is where there is a slowdown in economic activity, when production and employment decline, when there isn't much demand, when workers are idle and factories are slow. That is a recession.

But that is not what is happening in education today at all. Our schools are not slowing down; they are working harder than ever. Our classrooms aren't empty; they are overcrowded. Our teachers aren't being idle because they are not needed; they are needed more now than ever. It is not that demand has slowed. The demands on our schools are higher than ever. The problem is our investment has not kept up. Any enterprise or business that wants to stay in business invests in its people, invests in the latest equipment, invests in capital projects, so that the capacity will keep up with the demand. That is what we have to do. But for some reason, when it comes to our schools, we have not made those investments. We have let schools that were built 40 or 50 years ago simply decline. We have let great educators leave the classroom because they are frustrated by a system that doesn't give them the support or respect they deserve.

Governor Bush, we are not in an education recession; we are in a period of explosive growth and growing demand in the classroom, and we need to make the investment to meet that growing demand. Governor Bush has the problem backward and that is why he has come up with the wrong solution. As a parent of two students who went to public school, I can tell you I don't want our next President to close down my school; I want him to make my school better. You don't do that by bashing public schools. You do it by investing in the things that we know work in the classroom.

I have said it before and I will say it again: Our schools are facing overwhelming challenges with inadequate resources. Our public schools are not failing, but by failing to invest in them this Congress is failing our public schools. We need to give our schools the resources, the tools, and the support to meet today's challenges.

There are important needs in my home State in classrooms. Sitting here in the Chamber, it is easy to forget the challenges that schools face across the country. If this Chamber is about to go into recess without making an investment in education, it needs to hear directly from people on the front line. So I decided to read a few letters I have received from students and teachers in my home State of Washington.

Kristen Jensen Story is a parent and a teacher at White Center Heights Elementary School in the Highline School District. At her school, the majority of the students live in public housing and come from homes where English is not the first language.

She tells me:

> We have been working hard to make sure these children succeed and become contributing citizens to our great Nation. The need for Federal public education funding is greater now than ever before.
> We have the money. The Federal budget is forecasted to have a $1.9 trillion surplus over the next decade. Make the funding of public education a national priority.

Let me read another letter. This one is from Becky Scheiderer, a teacher from the Bethel School District in Washington State.

She writes:

> Children cannot wait another session.

She goes on to explain some of the challenges her school is facing:

> Our students need to continue the successful programs, such as Title I, special education, and smaller class sizes to work with these students inclusively.

Our district is growing, and we need schools constructed soon.

Our teachers, students and staff need safe schools to work in for 7.5 hours a day.

The need for Federal funding is even greater now than ever before.

Those are some of the real challenges facing our schools, and you don't fix them by bashing educators; you fix them by making an investment in the things that we know work.

I want to turn to a few investments that we should be making in our final budget plan. It is our last chance this year to do the right thing for America's students. Let me start with making classrooms less crowded. We know our classrooms are overcrowded and we know that students can learn the basics, with fewer discipline problems, in less crowded classrooms.

Parents know it, students know it, teachers know it, and studies show it.

Two years ago, we made an investment in making classrooms less crowded. I am pleased to report that the investment is paying off for America's students. It is making a positive difference in their education. We gave local school districts the money to go out and hire more than 29,000 new qualified teachers for the early grades. And today, 1.7 million students are learning in less crowded classrooms.

Our goal is to hire 100,000 new teachers. You would think that with the success we have had so far, there would be no question that we would keep our commitment to reducing class size. But that is not the case in this Congress. Right now, there is no guarantee that schools across the country will have funding guaranteed to reduce classroom overcrowding. Some of my colleagues on the Republican side say we don't need to commit money for class size reduction. They say if schools want to hire teachers, let them take the money out of title VI funding.

Reducing overcrowding should not be done at the expense of something else. That money should be there—guaranteed to make a positive difference for students.

In this debate, two things have been forgotten. First, part of the Federal role is to help disadvantaged students. The class size program is set up to target funding to low-income schools. If you dump that program into a block grant, there is no guarantee that it will be focused toward disadvantaged students. Title I, homeless and migrant education programs are all targeted to ensure that disadvantaged students get the help they need. A block grant offers no guarantees.

The second point overlooked in this debate is the importance of accountability. Under a block grant, there is no guarantee this money will go to hire new teachers.

Block grants mean less accountability. Right now, we can show that money was spent and how it is making a difference. If the money is block granted, we have no idea if it is making classrooms less crowded. Today, everybody is talking about accountability, and the best way to ensure accountability is to show that Federal dollars are being spent in a specific, targeted way to reach a specific goal. If we put Federal education funding into a block grant, there is no way to keep that money accountable. Class size is just one of the areas in which we need to invest.

Let me mention another: school construction and modernization. Today, too many students enter school buildings that are crumbling or that have major safety hazards. In fact, 7 million students attend schools with safety code violations, including the presence of asbestos, lead paint, or radon in ceilings or walls. Almost 16 million students in this country attend schools without proper heating, ventilation, or air-conditioning. And too many of our schools don't have the technological infrastructure to meet our students' needs. For example, in our poorest schools, only 39 percent of classrooms have Internet access. We need to pass legislation that will give local school districts the financial help they need to build new schools and to modernize old ones.

I want to turn to teacher quality. We can help ensure that every teacher in America is fully qualified and has the tools and the support to help our children reach their full potential. Today, there are thousands of world-class, high-quality teachers in our schools. They are professionals. They care deeply about the quality of our children's education, and any of us would be lucky to have our children learn from them. But the current system makes it harder and harder for teachers to really do their best. Instead of offering them the support they need to make a difference, the current system puts roadblocks in front of too many teachers.

Teachers and parents have told me that the main challenges are the three R's: recruiting great teachers, retaining great teachers, and rewarding great teachers.

We need to recruit young people into the teaching profession. We need effective, ongoing, professional development programs that are aligned with local standards and curricula. We need efforts to boost pay for great teachers and to raise respect for educators. In the closing weeks of the 106th session, we should be supporting efforts to improve teacher quality.

Finally, the subject of accountability. We should not accept defeat or give up on our Nation's schools. We need to identify schools that need extra help and turn those schools around.

It is late in the legislative process, and we are in a rush to end this year's session. Let's remember one thing. America's students didn't create this rush. I am standing here today and I will be fighting to make sure that our students are not penalized because this Senate failed to do its work. I know my colleagues are eager to go home, but we still have time to do the right thing. We still have time to support the work that local educators, students, and parents are doing. The way to do it isn't to bash public schools but to put Federal dollars where they will help the most and to keep those dollars accountable. The way to do that is to invest in things that we know work, such as smaller classes, modern facilities, fully qualified teachers, and accountability. It is not too late to do the right thing.

Parents, teachers, and students across this country are counting on us to do our part as a responsible Federal partner. Let's not let them down.

Thank you, Mr. President.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. ALLARD). Without objection, it is so ordered.

106TH CONGRESS

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. President, I think the focus today, as we move toward the appropriations bills, is education. It has been a focus during this whole Congress. I saw some figures that we spent a total, in the 106th Congress, of 5 weeks talking about education. That is indicative, I believe, of the importance all citizens place on education. I don't think anyone would say education isn't a very high priority for everyone.

The question is, How is the role of the Federal Government best created? In my view, one of the important things is to have some assistance from the Federal Government, to have some financial assistance. We also are in a system where people move about and are educated in one place and work in another place. There has to be some continuity or accountability that each of us is educated enough to be able to be successful.

One of the most important issues is who makes the decisions with regard to individual school systems. I think the Republicans, working on this side of the aisle, have had a very strong agenda for education, returning control to the parents for sending dollars to the classroom, dollars to States and local school boards so they can make the decisions that are necessary to be made in that particular school, give families greater educational choice, support exceptional teachers, and focus on basic academics, stressing accountability.

I have always thought, as a member of the Wyoming legislature, we cannot have a good school system without the dollars. Dollars alone do not necessarily result in a good school system. There has to be some accountability as well.

Of course, on the Federal level, the needs in Chugwater, WY, are quite different from those in Pittsburgh. Many things are that way. There needs to be flexibility; in one particular school, perhaps what is most needed is to build a new school or replace the old school; in another school, what is needed is computers, teacher training, or more academic materials. ''One size fits all'' does not work. Frankly, that has been the underlying difficulty in this entire debate.

The President of the United States will be here this afternoon pushing for his plan so bureaucrats in Washington can decide and dictate what the Federal dollars are spent for. On the other side of that argument, we have given more dollars to the budget than even the President asked for. We are saying those ought to offer flexibility so local people can decide the best use for the dollars, yet with accountability for the taxpayers' dollars.

The Democratic approach has been a series of mandates: 100,000 federally funded teachers, federally funded school construction, federally funded afterschool. All those are fine if that is the priority in your particular school district. However, we are not in the business of having a bureaucracy in Washington make those decisions.

There have been difficulties moving forward:

The Taxpayer Relief Act, vetoed by the President, over $500 million in family tax relief—families could have used that money at any level to have supported schools;

Passing the Ed-Flex bill, with Federal requirements being waived if they are interfering with what they seek to do.

These are the items we are debating with regard to education.

We are, hopefully, near the end of this session. We will wind up next week. We have accomplished quite a number of things. Some people talk about a do-nothing Congress, which absolutely is not the case. The Republicans have balanced the budget, pushed forward and obtained the balanced budget in 1998, the first time since 1969 we have had a balanced budget. We saw that because of some restraints on spending, because of the flourishing economy bringing in more dollars. Nevertheless, it is the first time we have had enough dollars to balance the budget outside of Social Security dollars. We have changed the deficits to surpluses and lowered interest rates, paid down the debt $360 billion over the past 3 years.

In addition to that, of course, at the same time, Republicans have lowered the tax burden over the next 5 years. The tax cuts will provide the average household with almost $2,000 in tax relief. We enacted the $500 child tax credit that keeps $70 billion in the checking accounts for 25 million families. These are important things. We created the individual retirement accounts with IRAs to help families save more money, help people prepare for their own retirement, so that Social Security is a supplement, as it was designed to be.

The Republicans have stopped the raid on the Social Security trust fund and set aside Social Security funds so that they will be spent on Social Security and not borrowed and spent for other programs. We need to ensure that continues to be the case.

Welfare has been reformed and has helped Americans go back to work. In 1995, there were 13 million Americans on welfare. In 1996, there was reform, helping more than 6 million of those, nearly half, to be now employed—to be able to sustain themselves. That is really the purpose of Government programs. It is not to have a continuing source of relief but to provide an opportunity to help people help themselves, which not only is a good issue governmentally but, of course, individually it is something that is so important.

We strengthened the military. More needs to be done. We find ourselves in the situation where we have had more military deployments out of this country over the past 6 or 8 years than we have ever had in the past. We find ourselves, of course, in sort of a semipeaceful time but with a voluntary military, so we have to be able to compete somewhat with the private sector in pay so people will join. It is not only in the recruiting, of course, but the maintenance of people who have been trained so they will stay in the military. We have done that. We need to do more, of course.

We need to change the military. Our needs are different than they were 20 years ago. We are not going to see ourselves having to send 12 divisions with tanks somewhere. We are going to see ourselves with smaller, more flexible combat units moved quickly to a place with enough support to stay there for some time.

These are some of the things that continue to be important. I hope we continue to focus on them. Our job now, of course, is to get out about three or five more appropriations bills and fund those programs. I am a little discouraged at the amount of spending we have had this time. Much of that has come from pressure from that side of the aisle and the White House. They will not agree to appropriations bills unless they have all the things in them the President wants. He is entitled to do that. But this is one of the three units of Government, a separate unit. We ought to do those things we think are right and the President can do what he thinks is right. But I hope we do not get ourselves into a position where the President is deciding what we in the Congress do. That is not the system. We ought not be doing it that way.

I look forward to us moving forward, completing our work, and coming back with a new Congress, able to take a look at where we are going. I hope each of us, as Americans, gives some thought to where we would like to be, where we would like to see these various programs go—regardless of which you are looking at; whether you are looking at education; whether you are looking at reregulation of electricity; whether you are looking at the military. One of the difficulties is we move forward many times and make decisions that impact those issues without having a very clear-cut image of where we want to go. It is a little like Alice in Wonderland where she was wandering around and no one was able to tell her anything. She finally saw the Cheshire cat. There was a fork in the road and she said, ''Which one should I take?'' The cat said, ''Where are you going?'' ''I don't know,'' Alice replied. The cat said, ''Then it doesn't make any difference which road you take.''

That is true. So we need to come with an idea of what our goal or mission is, where we want to end up over a period of time in education, and what are the steps we can best take to ensure that happens. Regarding Social Security, where do we want to be in 20 years or 30 years? These people who are paying in 12.5 percent of their salaries into Social Security, are they going to have benefits 40 years from now when they are entitled to them? Not unless we make some changes.

The choices are fairly clear. You can raise taxes; people are not excited about that. You can cut benefits; that is probably not a good idea. One of the alternatives we are pursuing, and there may be others, is to take a portion of the Social Security dollars that have been paid in over time by younger people to make that decision for themselves—take a portion of that and have it invested on their behalf in their accounts in the private sector so the return, instead of being 2.5 percent, could be 5 percent or 6 percent.

People say: Well, look at the market now. Look at the market over time. The market over each 10-year period has grown fairly substantially.

So these are some of the things I hope we consider. I hope we consider them promptly so we are out next week.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, are we in morning business?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. We are in morning business.

Mr. KENNEDY. Is there a time limitation?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator has 31 minutes.

Mr. KENNEDY. I thank the Chair.

FOCUSING ON PRIORITIES

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, as we are coming into the final hours, the final days of the Senate session, there are still a number of measures which need focus and attention and priority. I welcome the leadership that is being provided now by the President and a number of our colleagues to try to make sure that before we leave town we try to remedy a situation that has developed since we passed the Balanced Budget Act in 1997. Included in that balanced budget effort were cuts that were directed to the health care providers. It was estimated at that particular time that the cuts would be about $100 billion. What we have found out over the last several years is that the projected cuts have been well over $200 billion. As a result, there have been unintended consequences that have developed.

It seems only fair that when we look at the steps that were taken in the past that resulted, and continue to result today, in some very dramatic adverse impacts to a number of different providers in our health care industry, that we remedy that situation. It is particularly important to remedy their situation when we have the fortuitous economic situation in terms of the surplus that we are faced with.

I doubt very much—in fact, I am quite sure—that if we had known in 1997 the actual impact the projected cuts were going to have on health care providers, that those particular provisions of the Balanced Budget Act would have been successful. I am sure they would not have been successful. I certainly would not have voted for those provisions.

But I welcome the opportunity to join with a number of our colleagues to try to remedy the situation. It is the responsible thing to do. It is absolutely necessary. It is not only affecting many of our excellent health care providers in our urban areas, but it also reaches out to many rural communities.

We have had an excellent presentation from our friends as to what these cuts have meant for rural health care and rural health care providers. Let me mention, for a few moments, what is happening to some of the different health care providers now.

We are very fortunate in Massachusetts to have some of the best teaching hospitals in the world. These teaching hospitals are the backbone of our quality health care system in America and the world.

We are facing many challenges in our health care system. The most obvious one today is a Medicare prescription drug benefit. That is the challenge that comes first to the minds of people when we talk about health care needs and needed changes in our Medicare system. That is a very legitimate challenge. We think of our Patients' Bill of Rights. Many of us deplore the fact that we have not addressed these issues in the Senate.

It is irresponsible that we have not taken action on a Patients' Bill of Rights. Although we have a majority of the Members of the House and a majority of the Members of the Senate in favor of a strong Patients' Bill of Rights, still we are denied the opportunity of addressing the issue. We know that every day we fail to do so, there are tens of thousands of Americans who are suffering as a result.

We are unable to free ourselves from the power of the HMO industry to successfully pass legislation that would allow doctors to make health care decisions, unfettered by the decisions of bean counters from the HMOs who are more interested in profits than in the health of individuals. That is certainly one very important issue. I think we fail in this Congress by the fact that we have not addressed it.

I am constantly amazed as I travel around my State, and the States of Pennsylvania and New York and a few other places where there are candidates running for Congress. One of the first pieces of legislation they say they support is a Patients' Bill of Rights, which obviously has nothing to do with the strong Patients' Bill of Rights that has been supported by more than 300 health providers representing women and children and the disabled, cancer research groups, the doctors, the nurses, the medical professionals. That is one issue. The second, as I mentioned, is a prescription drug benefit.

We also are now focusing on teaching hospitals. These are the hospitals that provide the training and teaching for our future medical professionals including doctors, some of the applied health professionals, and advanced practice nurses. We have the best teaching hospitals in the world. We ought to keep them healthy, not endanger them. By not providing a healthy and robust provision in legislation in these final 2 days, we risk endangering our teaching hospitals.

What do these teaching hospitals do? No. 1, they provide the best teaching. Secondly, they provide about 30 percent of the indigent care in our country, primarily—obviously—in the communities in which they serve. They play a very important role in providing health care to those who have no health insurance. Third, they are also the places that are developing the new technologies and techniques used in treating some of the most complicated cases. From there the research disseminates; other hospitals and other health care delivery centers benefit from the research done at teaching hospitals.

These teaching hospitals are really the jewels of our health care system, and we cannot put them at risk. And they are at risk. The proposal that is being advanced by the Republicans is basically a nice blank check to the HMOs, the industry that is leading the fight against the Patients' Bill of Rights. Yet there is no guarantee that they will continue to provide health care to people in our society or to Medicare recipients. More than 900,000 Medicare recipients will be dropped from HMOs next year. Yet we find the Republicans shoveling billions of dollars into HMO coffers without any assurance that they will use those resources to look after the elderly. The Republicans are shoveling the funds into HMOs rather than investing in a prescription drug program for our seniors.

We know we have the teaching hospitals on the one hand. Next we have the community hospitals. The community hospitals are the backbone of health care delivery in our communities. They are the primary health delivery provider in communities all across this country. They have an irreplaceable position. They are exceedingly hard pressed and stressed in being able to perform this function. They need some relief. Any legislation ought to have provisions in it to help provide needed assistance to community hospitals.

Then there is the home health care system—the visiting nurses, home health care agencies. We have seen a significant decline in home health care agencies and home health care services generally. At a time when our senior population is going to double over the next 20–25 years, we are seeing a significant decline in home health care services, which makes absolutely no sense. We end up finding out that if patients aren't going to be able to receive home health care services, they will have to go into the more costly hospitals and nursing homes. It makes no sense from a health standpoint, and it certainly makes no sense from a humane standpoint.

Our nursing homes are facing bankruptcy in increasing numbers. We have seen scores of bankruptcies of nursing homes in my own State of Massachusetts. The number of nursing homes going bankrupt is increasing every single day. They are in desperate straits. Not only are they in desperate straits, but other health care providers, such as the hospice program that provides such important help and assistance to those who have terminal illnesses, are in desperate straits as well.

It isn't just those of us who have these facilities in our States. We have heard eloquent statements from those who come from rural areas. We want to work with them as well. We are not trying to rob Peter to pay Paul. We ought to have something that is going to address the needs of rural areas, and we welcome the opportunity to work with our colleagues.

Under the leadership of Senator DASCHLE and Senator REID, Senator MOYNIHAN on the Finance Committee, Senator BAUCUS, and others, an excellent program has been developed from our side. We want to try to make sure that that is going to be considered. We don't want to be shut out of the process, as we are shut out of a lot of issues here.

We have heard a good deal of debate about desiring bipartisanship. Well, for a good part of the time I have been in the Senate, when we had these kinds of matters that needed to be discussed or debated, we had Republican and Democratic leaders working these matters out with the Administration. But we are finding out that this apparently is a solo flight by our Republican friends, to the great disadvantage of our health care system. That makes no sense.

The President has indicated he would veto this early proposal that has been put forward by the Republicans as a nonstarter. I certainly would defend that position and welcome the opportunity to discuss it or debate it, whatever will be necessary, because their proposal just does not do the job. It is one of the key remaining issues we have as we come to the end of this session.

Finally, I do hope we will be able to have included in the final wrap-up in our balanced budget refinement the Grassley-Kennedy bill that helps parents of children who have disabilities. Last year, in a bipartisan effort, we developed legislation that permitted those individuals who were disabled to go into the labor market and not lose their health insurance. We had a good debate on it. We passed it. Now we find people saying, Why did it take you so long? What is happening is these individuals are moving towards greater independence and self-reliance. They are becoming taxpayers and paying into the public system rather than just drawing from it. It has taken a good deal of time to achieve, but it has been enormously important.

What we are saying now, Senator GRASSLEY and I—and I pay tribute to Senator GRASSLEY for the hard work he has done on this in the Finance Committee—is help parents who have children with severe disabilities. So many parents have children who have severe disabilities. The parents are unable to take any increase or any enhancement of their own pay because if they do, they will no longer qualify for Medicaid. And if they no longer qualify for Medicaid, they lose the health care they get for their children under Medicaid, and they can't afford the health care bills. These parents have to refuse pay increases and advancement to remain below the income levels for Medicaid coverage. Of course, this not only does an enormous disservice to that individual but also to the other members of the family.

Many of these children with severe disabilities have brothers and sisters, yet the parent still has to work at a wage below the Medicaid level in order to qualify for health coverage of their children. It makes no sense. It is wrong. We have legislation that will address it, and we hope that will be considered.

We say once again that the proposal our Republican friends are putting forth is a nonstarter, because we know what they are trying to do; that is, to give a great bundle of cash—so to speak a blank check—to the HMOs that have been resisting our ability to take actions to protect American patients. It makes no sense. It is unfair, and it is fundamentally wrong.

We are going to do everything we can to try to fashion a proposal that is balanced, fair, and that really meets the health care needs of our people.

EDUCATION AND HEALTH CARE

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, on Tuesday night the American people witnessed the third and final Presidential debate between Vice President AL GORE and Governor Bush.

We are now less than 3 weeks away from the election. As the debate demonstrated, the choices for the American people could not be clearer.

Are we going to continue the economic prosperity of the past 8 years? Or are we going to waste it on excessive tax breaks for the wealthiest one percent of Americans?

I remember in 1981 when the economic program of then President Reagan came to the Congress. It had the same kind of rhetoric around it. We are going to cut all of the taxes and increase defense spending and balance the budget, all at the same time. During that period of time, only a handful of us voted against it. It was so clear and obvious at that time that we were going to move into large deficits, which we eventually did—deficits in the hundreds of billions of dollars.

I am always amused to hear from others who say it really wasn't the establishment of economic policies; it was just the American energy. If it had been the American energy, why wasn't it the American energy when we were running up deficits? It is quite clear that you had two entirely different economic policies that were being followed. One was a disaster.

I am always interested in the fact that it was President Bush who called Ronald Reagan's proposal ''voodoo economics.''

Now we are coming right on back again to that similar kind of proposal of excessive tax breaks for wealthy individuals. That is the heart and soul of the Bush proposal, although it was difficult to quite understand what it was following the debate the other evening.

Are we going to continue to have balanced Federal budgets? Or are we going to return to the bad old days of trickle-down economics that created the biggest deficits in our history?

And perhaps most importantly—are we going to stand with working families to make the critical investments in education and health care that are needed to help children, help parents, help working men and women, and help senior citizens in their retirement years?

These issues are critical not only for the Presidential race but in Congress as well.

Governor Bush and the Republicans like to talk education and health care. But look what has happened in this Congress. For the first time in 35 years, they have not reauthorized the Elementary and Secondary Education Act. They are 3 weeks late in providing the needed funds for the Nation's public schools.

The time has expired. The new fiscal year is here. Yet we haven't done our business. We always leave the appropriations bill which funds the schools in this country for last.

It is always interesting to me to hear and watch these promises that are made by the Republican leadership on education.

On January 6, 1999, Senator LOTT said:

> Education is going to be the central issue this year. . . . For starters, we must reauthorize the Elementary and Secondary Education Act.

On January 29, 1999, he said:

> But education is going to have a lot of attention, and it's not going to just be words.

On June 22, 1999 the Majority Leader stated:

> Education is Number one on the agenda for Republicans in the Congress.

On February 1, 2000 he said:

> We're going to work very hard on education. I have emphasized that every year I've been majority leader. . . . And Republicans are committed to doing that.

On February 3, 2000:

> We must reauthorize the Elementary and Secondary Education Act. . . Education will be a high priority in this Congress.

On May 1,2000:

> This is very important legislation. I hope we can debate it seriously and have amendments in the education area. Let's talk education.

Why don't you bring up the appropriations to fund education? Why is it 3 weeks late? Why is it the last appropriations bill? Why is it that we didn't reauthorize it? Don't come and tell American families that education is number one in your priorities when for the first time in 35 years we don't have a reauthorization.

What is the Republican leadership going to do? They are calling the bankruptcy bill back up—the bankruptcy bill. We had 14 days and 55 amendments on that bill. But that isn't enough. They are going to call that up later on for a vote this afternoon. They are going to try to jam that bill, which benefits a small group of credit card companies, rather than deal with the education of American families. That is their priority. Any American family can understand that.

We are here. We are prepared to deal with the education program. Oh, no. We can't do that. We are going to go back to bankruptcy which is so important. Important for whom? Important for the credit card companies. Just as in their patients' bill of rights, they have not been able to quote a single health organization in the country that supports them because it is fraudulent. Every health group in the country supports the proposal that was passed by a bipartisan majority in the House of Representatives, and that was supported by the Democrats and a few Republicans in the Senate. Every health organization—over 300 of them.

Now we have the industry itself saying no, no—the HMOs saying don't pass the good bill, because we don't want it. Now what happens? The credit card industry says they want this bill. And what happens? The Republican leadership is trying to jam that right down here. What has happened to education in between? Not only are we not reauthorizing it, but we are not funding it. It is 3 weeks late already.

What happened to children in this country? If they hand their homework in 3 weeks late, they would be in the principal's office. They would be getting some kind of discipline in any school in the country. But, nonetheless, we are 3 weeks late. We haven't reauthorized it, and the appropriations have not been finished.

I hope our friends on the other side are going to ease off when they talk about how committed their party is on education. I hope they are going to at least have the decency not to try to say: Oh, yes. We are really interested in education—we really do care about it.

I was here when one of the first things the Republican leadership did in 1995 was to rescind some $1.7 billion that had been appropriated—the greatest rescission on any single bill that I can remember in my service in 38 years. On what subject? Education. Who offered it? Republicans. How many supported it? Virtually the whole Republican Party.

I was here a few years later after we were able to dull some of those rescissions when they came back and tried to abolish the Department of Education. Who offered it? Republicans. Who supported it? The Republican Party. Who opposed it? We did. Not just because it is an agency, but because many of us believe that any President ought to have in the Cabinet office someone talking about education every time that Cabinet meets.

That is why we need a Department of Education. We have a department for housing. We have a department for the interior lands of this country. Many believe we ought to have a department for education. Not the Republicans. No, they wanted to abolish it.

We have the rescinding of education funding. We have proposals to abolish the Department of Education. We have the refusal to authorize the Elementary and Secondary Education Act, and we have the denying of funding of the existing law—3 weeks late. That happens to be the record.

Now, we watched the other night the Republican candidate for office talking about how concerned they were. I wish he had called up our majority leader and said: Look, I am interested in education; why don't you take that up?

Let's take up our proposals. We know what they are. We are prepared to vote on them. We are prepared to take those to the American people. Why isn't the other side prepared to do it? What are they so frightened of? What are they so scared of?

All we have is silence. We have this empty Chamber where all of these other deals are going on—All these other deals that are not on education. They are on how we can try and get bankruptcy that will basically undermine families who in many instances are hard pressed, mothers who have not been able to get their alimony or child support and are going into bankruptcy. Half the bankruptcies are a result of health care costs for older workers. We cannot wait in order to draw out the last few dollars from those individuals for the credit card companies and shuffle aside education. That is what is happening. The American people ought to begin to understand it.

The Republican leadership keeps on saying how important education is. On July 10, 2000 the majority leader said:

> I, too, would very much like to see us complete the Elementary and Secondary Education Act. . . . I feel strongly about getting it done. . . . We can work day and night for the next 3 weeks.

On July 25, 2000 he said:

> We will keep trying to find a way to go back to this legislation this year and get it completed.

Mr. President, SAT scores are the highest in 30 years. They have not moved up greatly, but they are going in the right direction for males and females. Of course, it isn't going in the right direction in the State of Texas. Texas falls below the national average on SAT scores between 1997–2000. The national scores are going up a little bit in the right direction. Texas is going along in the wrong direction for SAT scores.

We have heard a great deal about what happened to the children in the State of Texas, being 48th of 50 for the number of children that are covered by health insurance. The other night, Governor Bush was talking about what a high priority they put on education and what they have done on education.

This tells the story. These are the SAT scores, standard scores. This reflects the national average moving up over the last 3 years, while Texas has been moving down the last 3 years. We don't have any explanation. I know the Vice President didn't want to appear negative, but the fact is, I don't think drawing out what the records are should be considered negative. These are the facts. The American people ought to be able to understand them. The national average has gone up; in Texas the scores have gone down.

I was here 30 years before we ever had a vote on education. We had Democratic chairs and Republican chairs. We had Senator Stafford, the education chairman of our committee; Senator Pell was the chairman. During that period of time, education was never a partisan issue. The American people don't want it to be partisan. But it is now. It is when you refuse to let us debate it and abide by the outcome. That is wrong. We ought to fund the education for the children in this country. The Republican leadership has not done it. We ought to be dealing with the education reauthorization prior to bankruptcy and other priorities, and the Republican leadership refuses to do it.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Utah.

EDUCATION

Mr. BENNETT. Mr. President, I listened with interest to my colleague from Massachusetts. I am always interested as he holds forth on these issues about which he feels passionately, and I congratulate him on his passion.

I have a similar commitment to education but a rather different view of things. Let me review again, as I have in this Chamber before, my own experience with respect to education that causes me to come to a different opinion and a different position than that of the senior Senator from Massachusetts.

As I have related to the Senate before, I was happy in a business career when I received a phone call that asked me to serve as chairman of the Strategic Planning Commission of the Utah State Board of Education. That got me into educational issues and actually started me down the road out of corporate life and into public life, ultimately leading me here to the Senate.

Apropos of the things that the Senator from Massachusetts has said, I share an experience I had that resonated with the comment that Governor Bush made the other night. The Senator from Massachusetts has already referred to the debate between the two Presidential candidates, so I think it is appropriate I should go there, as well.

We started, in my education about what happens in education by talking about the money. That is always a good place to start. Start with the numbers, start with the dollars. The dollars pretty much drive everything else.

I looked at the various things that were being done in the State of Utah, some of which struck me, as a businessman, as being maybe a lesser priority than some other areas. I asked the question: Who sets the priorities? Who determines that we spend more money on topic A than topic C? I was told, that is the Federal Government. The Federal Government puts up matching funds and requires that the States come up with their match, and the Federal Government determines that topic A will be topic A, topic B will be topic B, and so on.

I looked at some of the programs. I said, we would be better off in Utah if we spent that money on something else. Our needs in Utah are different than the needs in other States. Maybe it is nice to have the Federal dollars, but why don't we tell the Feds, sorry, we won't take your dollars for topic A, because for us topic C or topic D should be topic A, so we will forego the Federal dollars, and we will take the money that we have been forced to put up as matching dollars and spend it on our priorities.

The fellow who was briefing me on this kind of smiled at how naive I was, how foolish a notion that was. He said:

You can't do that. The Federal Government will sue you and will win. They have already sued States that tried to do that and won.

So if the Federal Government says this is what you have to spend your money on, then you have no choice but to do that, even if it is not in the best interests of the schoolchildren in your State.

That was a disappointing thing for me to realize, but I thought: OK, we are dealing with 50-cent dollars here, at least. We are putting up matching funds. So the Feds put up 50 cents and we put up 50 cents, so it is not hurting us quite as badly to be spending 50-cent dollars on a project we would not have chosen.

Once again, smiles of indulgence on the part of the fellow who was briefing me. He said:

No, no, you don't understand, BOB. The State doesn't put up 50 cents. The State puts up 80 cents, the State puts up 90 cents. When we say matching dollars, we don't mean matching dollar for dollar; we mean the Feds put up 5 percent or 10 percent or, if they are feeling really generous, 15 percent or 20 percent. But the States are required to put up the rest of it.

I thought: That is really not fair. That is not a good deal. That is controlling the direction of education everywhere with a small amount of money. I thought: There is something wrong with that. I looked into it. I found that the only program where the Federal Government puts up half or more of the money in so-called matching funds is school lunch—which is not an educational program; it is a welfare program. I have nothing against school lunch. Indeed, I recognize that there is a great need for school lunch. I am a supporter of school lunch. But let us not stand here and say that, because the Feds put up more money for school lunch percentagewise than anything else, they are making a major contribution to education.

When Governor Bush was speaking about this the other night, he made this point that went by many people but that I would like to focus on here. He said the Federal Government puts up about 6 percent of the money but they control—if my memory is correct from what the Governor said—60 percent of the strings.

I don't know whether that 60 percent is exactly right, but it is in the ball park, and I will use that figure because that is what my memory says. Six percent of the money, but they control 60 percent of the strings that are attached to that money. So the people in Utah, Colorado, or Arizona or, yes, Massachusetts, have to jump through the Federal hoops with the 96 cents that they put into every dollar spent on education, jumping through at the dictate of the people who put up the 6 cents.

Here is the fundamental difference we need to confront when we have this debate on education, the fundamental difference between the Republicans and the Democrats, between those who are demanding we put more money into the present system, as does the Senator from Massachusetts, and those who are saying let's experiment a little bit. The fundamental difference is, Who should be allowed to call the shots? The people closest to the problem, the people facing the children day by day, the people administering the schools on a regular basis in their home communities? Or the people in Washington, DC? Who should make the ultimate decisions about education?

Let me make it clear, I am not calling for the abolition of the Department of Education. The senior Senator from Massachusetts would seem to be very upset that somebody suggested we abolish the Department of Education. I have never made that suggestion, so I am on his side on that one. I agree there should be a voice at the Cabinet level talking about education. But I do not think the voice at the Cabinet level that is talking to the President about education should be the voice at the school board level, talking to the principal of the school where my grandchildren go about education.

I have to talk about my grandchildren now because all of my children have graduated. All of them are out of school, out of college, raising families, pursuing careers. But there was a time with six children—seven, actually, because we had a foster child in our home for 4 years—when I spent a lot of time at school board meetings. I went to school board meetings and listened to them discuss the budgets. I recognized that there were differences within the school district, between schools. I heard them debate about how they were going to take care of problems in this middle school that were different from problems in that middle school. I recognize that is where the rubber meets the road. That is where the decisions have to be made. That is where the problems really arise.

I do not think there is anybody in Washington who can differentiate between the problems in this middle school in the Las Virgenes School District in California, where my children went, and that middle school in Las Virgenes School District in California where my children went. I don't think there are very many people in Washington who have ever heard of the Las Virgenes School District in California where my children went. That is the issue. That is what we are talking about.

The Senator from Massachusetts says the Republicans don't care about Massachusetts because all they do is block all of our efforts to go forward with a massive Federal program in education. Yes, we do try to block some of those efforts. Not because we are saying the Federal Government should have no role in education, but we are saying the Federal Government should begin to trust people at the local level to make their own decisions. It is a fundamental difference. We saw it in the debates the other night. We are saying it on the floor now.

Whom do you trust? Do you trust the Federal Government and the Federal bureaucracy and the Federal Department of Education as the ultimate authority as to what should be done or do you trust the people who are closest to the problem to decide what should be done? It should be a partnership, not a dictatorship. It seems to me someone who puts up 6 percent of the money, who then controls 60 percent of the decisions, is getting close to dictatorship and not partnership.

At the State level, I found myself resenting it. Now that I have come to the Federal level, I bring that bias with me. I continue to resent it. I continue to think we would be better off if we said those who are putting up 6 percent of the money have an opinion, have a role to play, they have a function they can perform that no one else can perform, but when it comes to the nitty-gritty of the daily decisions, those who are putting up 6 percent of the money should yield to the decisionmaking power of those who are putting up 94 percent of the money and doing virtually 100 percent of the work.

Let's look at this Congress. The Senator from Massachusetts attacked the record of this Congress on education and said we have not done anything. We have. For example, we passed the education savings accounts which would have put more power in the hands of individuals and parents. Once again, the fundamental difference: Whom do you trust?

The education savings account bill, which was cosponsored by the chairman of the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee, the Senator from New Jersey, Mr. TORRICELLI, would have put more power in the hands of individuals, and the President vetoed it. The President vetoed an education bill on the grounds that it would have taken power away from the Washington establishment and put power in the hands of the parents.

It is not fair to stand here on this floor and say, regardless of the decibel level at which you say it, that this Congress has done nothing about education, because we have passed education bills that the President has vetoed and he has vetoed it on this basic issue.

Straight A's: This is a bill, we call it the Academic Achievements for All Act—Straight A's Act. It was supported by the Senator from Georgia who used to occupy this place on the Senate floor, Mr. Coverdell.

The Democrats blocked it. The Democrats said the President will veto it. The Democrats said: No, we cannot allow this kind of flexibility at the local level. We must continue to dictate to the local people what will happen with respect to education.

Once again, those who put up 6 percent of the money control 60 percent of the strings, and they are using their 6 percent of the money to dictate to the people at the local level how things should be.

I remember the debate on the Elementary and Secondary Education Act. We have had that debate. I regret that it did not result in the passing of the act, but one of the reasons it did not result in the passing of the act was because of blocking efforts on the part of the Democrats to a Republican proposal that would have given States, on an experimental basis, the opportunity to try something new. There was no dictating in the position of the Senator from Washington, Mr. GORTON, that said States have to try this. His amendment said if a State thinks the present system is wonderful, the State can continue to receive money with the present system. They can continue to accept those 60 percent of the strings. They can continue to do exactly what they are doing.

What if a State does not want to do it quite that way? What if a State wants to experiment in a very tentative fashion with something new? Let's give them the opportunity to try it. The senior Senator from Massachusetts was one of the first to take the floor and roar that we must not allow that kind of experimentation. We must not allow anyone to try anything different.

Look at the States that are making progress. And, yes, look at the State of Texas. Look at the progress that has been made among Hispanic students, the progress that has been made among black students—the progress that has been made among minorities generally in the State of Texas. It leads the national average. It is a record of extremely beneficial accomplishment, and it is taking place in the early grades where it needs to take place because if you wait until the time they get to the SAT scores, it is too late.

If you want to look at SAT scores, you are looking at high school students, and the high school students in Texas were cheated by the administrations in Texas that were there prior to the time Governor Bush took over. It is in the lower grades where they are seeing the fruits of the activities in Texas where they are trusting people, trusting the locals, giving the opportunities that need to be given to those who need education the most.

The white middle-class suburban kids do pretty well in this country in almost every State in which they live. The real educational crisis is among the minorities. The real educational crisis is among those people who live in the inner cities and do not have the opportunities that come to the white middle-class suburban kids. Let's be honest and straightforward about that.

It is very interesting. Who has led the fight, which seems to upset the senior Senator from Massachusetts more than any other, for experimentation with vouchers? It has been Polly Williams, an inner-city representative of a minority, a black member of the State legislature. She comes from Milwaukee, and she has led the fight not for the rich, not for the upper 1 percent, not for the other groups that have been demonized in this political campaign. She has led the fight for poor inner-city kids. She has won the fight, and the fight in Milwaukee is over. If you run for an educational position in Milwaukee now, you better be for vouchers because the public has seen it and has embraced it, and it is now the strong majority position.

It comes down to this fundamental question when we talk about money: Do you want to fund the individual or do you want to fund the system? We say let's fund the individual and let the individual take the money wherever he wants to go. They say: Oh, no; that's terrible. He might take it to a—dare we say it?—religious school. He might take the money in such a way that violates the separation of church and State. We can't have that.

In what is considered the most successful social program since the Second World War, we did exactly that. We gave the money to individuals, and we said to them: We don't care what you do with it; just use it to get an education. I am talking, of course, about the GI bill. When we said to the GIs who came home from World War II, ''We are going to give you money to go to school,'' we did not say, ''We are going to pick the institutions that will receive this money and then you go petition for it.'' We just said if they served in the Armed Forces, they have the money under the GI bill of rights. And if they wanted to go to Notre Dame and study to be a Catholic priest, they could do that and nobody was going to claim that was somehow a violation of the separation of church and State.

We said if they want to take the money and go to Oral Roberts University, they could do that. It may well be Oral Roberts University did not exist under the GI bill—I am not sure—but the principle still holds. If they wanted to go to Harvard, if they wanted to go to Wellesley, if they wanted to go to Ohio State University, or if they wanted to go to Baylor or Southern Methodist—they pick the school and the money follows the individual, giving the individual power, and America is the better for it. That is what we are talking about here. The money should go where it will do the individual the most good and not be controlled out of Washington that puts up 6 cents out of every educational dollar and then wants to make 60 percent of every educational decision.

Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. BENNETT. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

CONCLUSION OF MORNING BUSINESS

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Morning business is closed.

RECESS

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the hour of 12:30 p.m. having arrived, the Senate will now stand in recess until the hour of 2:15 p.m.

Thereupon, at 12:29 p.m., the Senate recessed until 2:17 p.m.; whereupon, the Senate reassembled when called to order by the Presiding Officer (Mr. VOINOVICH).

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Missouri.

DEPARTMENTS OF VETERANS AFFAIRS AND HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 2001—CONFERENCE REPORT

Mr. BOND. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate now begin consideration of the conference report to accompany H.R. 4635, the VA–HUD appropriations bill, notwithstanding the receipt of the papers, and it be considered as having been read and the conference report be considered under the following agreement: 30 minutes under the control of Senator GRAHAM of Florida, 10 minutes equally divided between Senators BOND and MIKULSKI, 20 minutes equally divided between Senators DOMENICI and REID, and 10 minutes equally divided between Senators STEVENS and BYRD. I further ask consent that at the conclusion or yielding back of time, the Senate proceed to vote on adoption of the conference report without any intervening action, motion, or debate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senate proceeded to consider the conference report.

(The report was printed in the House proceedings of the RECORD of October 18, 2000.)

Mr. BOND. Mr. President, for the information of all Members, let me point out that at the request of the leadership on both sides of the aisle, we are moving forward and hope to have a vote, certainly no later than 3:30 this afternoon, because we do need to get this measure passed, as well as several others.

I will take just a few minutes of my time now. I am pleased to present to the Senate the conference report to H.R. 4635, the VA–HUD appropriations bill for fiscal year 2001. As I indicated previously, this has been a very unusual year. The conference report represents the compromise agreement reached with Senator MIKULSKI, Congressman WALSH, Congressman MOLLOHAN, and myself, in consultation with the administration.

Certainly it is not a perfect situation. It is not the way I would like to do the bill. I would prefer to proceed with passage of the VA–HUD appropriations bill in a more customary manner. Nevertheless, with the assistance of the leaders of the committee, and the leadership, we have brought the bill to the floor. I think it is a good and balanced compromise that I believe addresses the concerns of our colleagues, both in the House and the Senate, while striking the right balance in funding programs under the jurisdiction of the VA-HUD appropriations subcommittee.

The conference report totals approximately $105.8 billion, including $24.6 billion in mandatory veterans benefits, some $1 billion over the Senate committee-reported bill and almost $1 billion less than the President's budget request. Outlays are funded at roughly $110.8 billion for the current fiscal year, $540 million over the Senate committee-reported bill.

We did our best to satisfy priorities of Senators who made special requests for high-priority items, such as economic development grants, water infrastructure improvements, and the like. Such requests numbered several thousand, demonstrating the high level of interest and demand for assistance provided in this bill.

We also attempted to address the administration's top concerns, including funding for 79,000 new housing vouchers, as well as record funding for EPA at roughly $7.8 billion.

I am not going to summarize the bill today. We have done that before when the Senate passed the identical bill on October 12. The conference between the House and Senate has now confirmed that legislation.

I think everyone has had an opportunity to review the bill.

I offer my sincerest thanks to my ranking member, Senator MIKULSKI, and her staff for their cooperation and support throughout the process. Particularly, I thank Paul Carliner, Sean Smith, and Alexa Mitrakos from Senator MIKULSKI's staff. I obviously could not have done it without the good leadership and hard work of my team: John Kamarch, Carrie Apostolou, Cheh Kim, and Joe Norrell.

Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum and ask unanimous consent that the time be charged equally to all those allocated time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The time will be charged to all sides. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. BOND. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. BOND. Mr. President, I now wish to use time allotted to Senator STEVENS under the agreement just reached. He has agreed to delegate that time to me.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

IMPROVING EDUCATION

Mr. BOND. Mr. President, I rise to speak on another very important appropriations bill that has been addressed on this floor and is being considered. That is the debate on education in the Labor-HHS bill. We want to see that important bill moved forward, get passed and signed by the President.

It is clear that the two sides of the aisle have very differing views on how we ought to go about improving education. Let us all agree that improving education should be our national priority. We on this side happen to think it is a local and State responsibility, but it is a national priority, the top national priority.

Now, one side of the aisle trusts the Federal Government to make the decisions. The other side of the aisle, our side, trusts the parents and teachers, the school districts, the school board members, to make those decisions. This side of the aisle seems to base its decision on whether we are successful in education on the total dollars spent. Our side would judge success on academic achievement of students. This side of the aisle believes accountability comes in successfully filling out paperwork, jumping through the hoops that Washington lays out for school boards and teachers. Our side believes accountability is based on academic achievement.

Our friends on the other side of the aisle believe that the Olympians on the Hill—Capitol Hill, that is—know what is best for the folks down in the valley. Our side believes that the great ideas, accomplishments, and actions occur on the local level and that the Olympians on the Hill should watch and learn.

My colleagues on the other side of the aisle and the Vice President talk a good game. Let me give you my view on what is going on. First, they have talked about the 100,000 teachers program, the school construction program. They have proposed to set aside billions of dollars for these programs alone and not allow flexibility that we strongly believe should be rested in the hands of the local schools, the parents who are served by them, and their children, and the people who run them.

I support reduced class size. I campaigned for Governor on that basis. I know there are many school districts around the country that need new school buildings. However, as one of my colleagues on the other side of the aisle said, I want to do the right thing. I agree with that. I know our children and parents and schools are counting on us, in my view, to get out of the way and let them do the job they are not only hired to do but they are dedicated to do.

We saw in the first debate what happens when Washington tries to make decisions for what is best in local schools. Vice President GORE told a terrible tale about this young girl who had to stand up in class. After the debate, we found out that she had to stand up or she had to have a chair brought in for 1 day because they had $100,000 worth of new computers. The school superintendent said that getting a place for her to sit was not really the problem. I understand he mentioned something about school lunches in another school district, and very quickly some of the folks from that school district said that is not the problem at all. That is not to say—and I am not saying here—that the Vice President didn't hear real concerns, that he made them up.

I am just saying: How are we here in Washington, how is the Federal bureaucracy, how is the Department of Education, and how are those of us who are sitting here in this room trying to make decisions for local schools all across the country supposed to know what the problems are in the Sarasota School or the Callaway County R–6 school in Missouri or a school district in California or a school district in Washington or a school district in Maine?

There is a lot of talk about 100,000 new teachers. That proposal sounds good. It is a great slogan to use when you are trying to gain national headlines. But when you look at the formula, trying to find out whether it works, it doesn't work.

I traveled around to school districts and talked to school boards and teachers and administrators. Let me tell you how that formula works in Missouri. The Gilliam C–4 School District would get $384; the Holliday C–2 School District would get $608; the Pleasant View R-VI School District would get $846.

I first heard about this problem from a small school district when someone in that room said: We would get enough money for 11 percent of a teacher. One other person in the room said: We would get enough money for 17 percent of a teacher. They haven't quite figured out how to use 11 percent of a teacher or 17 percent of a teacher or how to spend $846 on a teacher.

Over 175 school districts in the State of Missouri would receive less than $10,000 under this program. Surely you don't think they are going to be able to hire a teacher to reach that 100,000 new teacher goal for less than $10,000.

Many of the schools have already addressed classroom size at the expense of other things.

Yet my colleagues on the other side of the aisle oppose giving them the flexibility to utilize these resources in another manner which may suit their needs but which doesn't fall into the dictates of the one-size-fits-all solution that Washington is being pushed to propose by the administration and by my colleagues on the other side of the aisle.

They are saying that we are not providing the school the resources to do what they need to do because Washington is trying to tell them what their priorities should be without knowing why that girl had to stand up or sit on a stool brought in for that one classroom.

Our colleagues on the other side of the aisle and Vice President GORE advocate taking billions of dollars off the table for thousands of schools across the country. To me, the issue is simple. We must give our States and localities the flexibility to use the resources to improve our public education system and to make decisions at the local level.

UNANIMOUS CONSENT AGREEMENT

Mr. BOND. Mr. President, on behalf of the leader, I ask unanimous consent that following the debate on the HUD-VA conference report, notwithstanding the receipt of the papers, the Senate proceed to the continuing resolution and that it be considered under the following agreement, with no amendments or motions in order: 20 minutes under the control of Senator DORGAN; 10 minutes equally divided between Senators STEVENS and BYRD.

I further ask unanimous consent that at the conclusion or yielding back of time the Senate proceed to vote on adoption of the joint resolution, without any intervening action, motion, or debate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. BOND. Mr. President, in light of this agreement, two back-to-back votes can be expected to occur sometime between 3:30 and 4 o'clock this afternoon.

I yield floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. KERREY. Mr. President, what is the order of business?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The time is reserved.

Mr. KERREY. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to speak as if in morning business for 10 minutes.

Mr. BOND. Mr. President, I must object to speaking in morning business. We reached an agreement to utilize this time. Perhaps my colleague could gain time.

All right. I am advised by the staff that Senator DORGAN might be willing to yield some of his 20 minutes to the Senator. If that is agreeable with my colleague from Nebraska, I would be happy to give up Senator DORGAN's time.

Mr. KERREY. I thank the Senator.

Mr. President, I revise my unanimous consent to ask unanimous consent to speak for up to 10 minutes under Senator DORGAN's time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

IRAQ

Mr. KERREY. Mr. President, at Pier 12 in the Norfolk Navy Base, along with the Presiding Officer in Norfolk, VA, I joined 10,000 others to mourn and to pay our respects to the families of 17 U.S. Navy sailors who were killed or who are missing following the explosion that ripped into the portside of U.S.S. Cole as she was preparing to set anchor in the Yemen Port of Aden.

It was one week ago today at fifteen past midnight that a routine port call became a violent killing of 17 Americans, the wounding of 34 more, and the disabling of a billion dollar destroyer.

In attendance at the ceremony to honor those lost on the Cole were many Members of Congress, Attorney General Janet Reno, National Security Adviser Sandy Berger, the Secretaries of Defense and the Navy, and the uniformed commanders of the Navy and the Marine Corps. In a gesture of Yemen's cooperation, their Ambassador to the United States, Abdulwahab A. al-Hajjri, was also present.

As I sat and listened to the powerful words of President Clinton, Secretary of Defense Cohen, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs Shelton, and others, I looked at the solemn faces of the Naval officers and enlisted men who stood on the decks of the aircraft carrier U.S.S. Dwight D. Eisenhower and two of the Cole's sister ships, the destroyers Ross and McFaul and wondered how long the unity we felt would last? How long would the moving stories of the lives of these 17 young Americans bind us together?

Their stories define what makes America such a unique place. President Clinton captured it perfectly:

> In the names and faces of those we lost and mourn, the world sees our nation's greatest strength. People in uniform rooted in every race, creed and region on the face of the earth, yet bound together by a common commitment to freedom and a common pride in being American.

They were bound together by other common characteristics. Sixteen were enlisted men and women; the lone officer was an ensign who had served more than a decade in the enlisted ranks. None were college graduates, though many saw the Navy as a means to that end. They were from small towns and Navy towns, the places where patriotism burns bright and crowds still form to remember on Memorial Day and Veterans Day.

I watched young widows and brothers and fathers cry without restraint or shame when President Clinton read the rollcall of the fallen heros. Sadness gripped me as once more I thought of lives that ended too soon knowing their dreams would not now come true.

Chief of Naval Operations Admiral Clark appropriately reminded us that risk is a part of all sailors' lives. When going out to sea, there is never certainty of a joyous homecoming. Death is a frequent visitor in Navy households. Loss is never a complete surprise.

However, in this instance it was not the unpredictable ways of the ocean or the violence of a storm that ended these American lives. No, in this instance the killer was a highly sophisticated, high-explosive device set and detonated by as yet unknown villains.

There were words from our leaders that addressed the anger we feel in the aftermath of this tragedy. From President Clinton: ''To those who attacked them we say: you will not find a safe harbor. We will find you, and justice will prevail.'' From Secretary of Defense Cohen: ''This is an act of pure evil.'' And from General Shelton: ''They should never forget that America's memory is long and our reach longer.''

Yet, this desire for vengeance is as misplaced as it is understandable. Vengeance is one of the things a terrorist hopes to provoke. Such acts of vengeance—especially when carried out by the United States of America—are bound to provoke sympathy for our enemies. If we are to give meaning to the sacrifice of these men and women, we must take care not to allow the bitter feelings to govern our action.

While we await the results of a combined U.S.-Yemeni effort to find out who was responsible for this attack, let me challenge the idea that the attack on the Cole was a pure act of terrorism or criminal action. In my opinion it is not. In my opinion, it is a part of a military strategy designed to defeat the United States as we attempt to accomplish a serious and vital mission.

This is the third in a series of violent attacks on the United States dating back to the car bombing of Khobar Towers in Saudi Arabia at 10 pm, on Tuesday, June 25, 1996, that killed 19 United States Air Force Airmen and wounded hundreds more. The second attack occurred on August 7, 1998, when U.S. Embassies in Dar es-Salam, Tanzania, and Nairobi, Kenya were bombed. These attacks wounded more than 5,000 and killed 224, including twelve Americans who were killed in the Nairobi blast.

I believe all three of these incidents should be considered as connected to our containment policy against Saddam Hussein's Iraq. The Cole was heading for the Persian Gulf to enforce an embargo that was authorized by the United Nations Security Council following the end of the Gulf War in 1991.

In order to evaluate this incident and put it in its larger context, I had to relearn the details of the action of Gulf War and its aftermath. The Gulf War began on August 8, 1990, when United States aircraft, their pilots, and their crews arrived in Saudi Arabia. Two days earlier the Saudi King Fahd had asked Secretary of Defense Cheney for help. Saudi Arabia was afraid that Iraq's August 2 invasion of Kuwait would continue south. Without our help they could not defend themselves. Desert Shield—a military operation planned to protect Saudi Arabia—began.

At that time, General Norman Schwarzkopf was Commander-in-Chief of Southern Command. On September 8, 1990, he ordered Army planners to begin designing a ground offensive to liberate Kuwait. His instructions from President Bush were to plan for success. We were not going to repeat the mistakes of the Vietnam War. On November 8th, President Bush announced that a decision had been made to double the size of our forces in Saudi Arabia. On November 29, the UN Security Council voted to authorize the use of ''all means necessary'' to drive Iraq from occupied Kuwait. On January 12, 1991, Congress authorized the President to use American forces in the Desert Storm campaign.

The campaign began at 2:38 AM on January 17 with Apache helicopters equipped with anti-tank ordnance. The next day Iraq launched Scud missiles against Israel. The first U.S. air attacks, flown out of Turkey, were launched and were continued until February 24 when the ground war began. The ground war was executed with swift precision and was ended at 8 AM on February 28 when a cease fire was declared.

The purpose of the Gulf War—to liberate the people of Kuwait—had been accomplished in an impressive and exhilarating display of U.S. power and ability to assemble an alliance of like-minded nations. Afterwards, Iraq was weakened but still led by Saddam Hussein. In their weakened state, they agreed to allow unprecedented inspections of their country to ensure they did not possess the capability of producing weapons of mass destruction. The United Nations Security Council voted unanimously to impose an economic embargo on Iraq until the inspections verified that Iraq's chemical, biological, and nuclear programs were destroyed.

Contrary to popular belief, the military strategy to deal with Iraq did not end with the February 28, 1991, cease fire. It has continued ever since with considerable cost and risk to U.S. forces. In addition to the embargo, the United States and British pilots have maintained no-fly zones in northern and southern Iraq designed to protect the Kurds and Shia from becoming victims of Saddam Hussein's wrath. The purpose of both the embargo and the no-fly zones is to ''contain'' Iraq so that Saddam Hussein does not become a threat in the region again.

Unfortunately, this containment object was doomed from the beginning. And while we have begun to change our policy from containment to replacement of the dictator, change has been too slow. The slowness and uncertainty of change has increased the risk for every military person who receives orders to carry out some part of the containment mission.

There are three reasons to abandon the containment policy and aggressively pursue the replacement of Saddam Hussein with a democratically elected government. First, it has not worked; Saddam Hussein has violated the spirit and intent of UN Security Council Resolutions. Second, he is a growing threat to our allies in the region. Third, he is a growing threat to the liberty and freedom of 20 million people living in Iraq.

As to the first reason, under the terms of paragraph Eight (8) of United Nations Security Council Resolution 687 which passed on April 3, 1991, Iraq accepted the destruction, removal, or rendering harmless of its chemical, biological, and nuclear weapons program. Under the terms of paragraph Nine (9), Iraq was to submit to the Secretary-General ''within fifteen days of the adoption of the present resolution, a declaration of the locations, amounts and types of all items specified in paragraph 8 and agree to urgent, on-site inspection'' as specified in the resolution.

From the get-go, Saddam Hussein began to violate this resolution. Over the past decade, he has slowly but surely moved to a point where today no weapons inspectors are allowed inside his country. As a consequence, he has been able to re-build much of his previous capability and is once again able to harass his neighbors. All knowledgeable observers view Iraq's threat to the region as becoming larger not smaller.

As to the third reason—his treatment of his own people—there is no worse violator of human rights than Saddam Hussein. The people of Iraq are terrorized almost constantly into compliance with his policies. His jails are among the worst in the world. His appeal for ending sanctions on account of the damage the embargo is doing to his people rings hollow as the food and medicine purchased under the Oil-for-Food Program goes undistributed. Desperately needed supplies sitting in Iraqi warehouses while construction continues on lavish new palaces demonstrates that Saddam Hussein has no real interest in the welfare of his people. Rather, he maintains their misery as means to make political points.

If these reasons do not persuade, consider what happened in the other two cases when the United States was attacked. In 1996 we sent an FBI team to Saudia Arabia to investigate Khobar Towers. The investigation led to improving security on other embassies but no other action was taken. In time we have forgotten Khobar. In 1998 following the attack on our embassies in East Africa we sent Tomahawk missiles to bomb a chemical factory in Khartoum, Sudan, and Osama Bin Laden's training compound in Afghanistan. Neither had the decisive impact we sought and may—in the case of Sudan—have been counterproductive.

For all these reasons, I hope we will direct the anger and desire for vengeance we feel away from Yemen and towards Saddam Hussein. I hope we will begin to plan a military strategy with our allies that will lead to his removal and replacement with a democratically elected government. This would allow us to end our northern and southern no-fly zone operations, remove our forces from Saudi Arabia, and cease the naval patrols of the Persian Gulf. I can think of no more fitting tribute to the 17 sailors lost on-board the Cole than completing our mission and helping the Iraqi people achieve freedom and democracy.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Mexico.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I understand I have with Senator REID 20 minutes equally divided.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is correct.

Mr. DOMENICI. Senator REID is not here, but I understand he might want some time. I yield myself 8 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DOMENICI. First, I say to the distinguished Senator from Nebraska, I don't know if I will have an opportunity again to be on the floor when the Senator makes a speech on the Senate floor because I don't know where the next 5 or 6 or 8 days will bring us. But I want to tell the Senator thanks for all he has done while he has been here. You have been, as you were in the military, a hero; you have taken some tough stands.

While not a budgeteer, as I am, you have chosen to express yourself many times in terms of the great concern you have for the outyear, the long-term effect of some of our entitlement programs, and actually you have expressed yourself that maybe appropriations are not getting enough money. That is perception, with reference to the Federal Government, of a very, very right kind.

Mr. KERREY. If I could respond to say the Senator from New Mexico and any of my colleagues who are uncomfortable and wish I would not do this, if I had not done this the last 6 or 7 years, it is the fault of the Senator from New Mexico. You and Senator Nunn came repeatedly to the floor, I think, in 1990, 1991, 1992, and 1993. I think in 1990, 1991, and 1992 I voted against you, but in 1993 the light bulb came on. It takes me a while to learn, I say to my friend from New Mexico, but I appreciate very much your leadership on these issues.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I rise today to discuss the Energy and Water Development Appropriations Act which is included in this conference report along with the VA-HUD appropriations bill.

The energy and water bill is a very good bill that has unfortunately had a difficult path toward enactment. The bill originally passed the Senate by a vote of 93–1 on September 7. The Senate then approved the original energy and water conference report by a vote of 57–37 on October 2. However, the President vetoed that bill because of a provision intended to prevent increased springtime flood risk on the lower Missouri River—a provision the President had signed the previous 3 years.

Whatever the reason, it was vetoed, it came back to us, and now it is in a conference form. I regret it has taken so much of our time and taken so long to get done but it is a very good bill.

Earlier today, the House passed the conference report by a vote of 386–24, and I hope the Senate will also overwhelmingly support the conference report.

Senator REID and I, along with Chairman STEVENS and Senator BYRD, have worked hard to prepare an outstanding bill that meets the needs of the country and addresses many of the Senators' top priorities.

The Senate and House full committee chairmen were very supportive and have provided the additional resources at conference that were necessary to address many priority issues for Members. They have allowed the House to come up $630 million to the Senate number on the defense allocation ($13.484 billion), and the Senate nondefense allocation to be increased by $925 million.

I would now like to highlight some of the great things we have been able to do in this bill.

The conference report provides $5.0 billion for nuclear weapons activities within the National Nuclear Security Administration, an increase of $370 million over the request and $580 million over current year.

The additional funds are required to meet additional requirements within the aging nuclear weapons complex, and reflects the conferees' concern about the state of the science-based Stockpile Stewardship Program. As it is now, the program is not on schedule, given the current budget, to develop the tools, technologies and skill-base to refurbish our weapons and certify them for the stockpile. For example, we are behind schedule and over cost on the production of both pits and secondaries for our nuclear weapons. The committee has provided significant increases to these areas.

When we use the term ''Stockpile Stewardship Program,'' we are talking about a program that the United States has put in place to make sure that our weapons systems are indeed safe, reliable, and that we do not have to do underground testing to confirm that. In fact, we have not been doing testing because the Congress of the United States said we should not. To supply the information necessary to keep the stockpile strong, reliable, and safe, this science-based Stockpile Stewardship Program was put in place. It has a few more years before we will have it proved up and then we will look at it carefully and make sure that it does the job.

This does not mean we are making nuclear weapons, for we are not. It will come as a surprise to some who are listening that the United States makes no nuclear weapons and we have not for some time. Nonetheless, we must keep in place the infrastructure and the things that are necessary in the event we have to do that, because of a failure of our program called science-based stockpile stewardship or some other untoward event that might occur in the world.

Furthermore, DOE has failed to keep good modern facilities and our production complex is in a terrible state of disrepair. To address these problems, the mark provides an increase of over $100 million for the production plants in Texas, Missouri, Tennessee, and South Carolina.

But it is not just the physical infrastructure that is deteriorating within the weapons complex, morale among the scientists at the three weapons laboratories is at an all-time low. For example, the last 2 years at Los Alamos have witnessed security problems that greatly damaged the trust relationship between the Government and its scientists. Additionally, research funds have been cut and punitive restrictions on travel imposed. None of this seems to move in the right direction, in fact, they probably did not help.

As a result, the labs are having great difficulty recruiting and retaining America's greatest scientists. To help address this problem, the conference agreement has increased the travel cap from $150 million to $185 million, and increased laboratory directed research and development to 6 percent.

The travel restrictions which have become so burdensome were put in because, somehow, we thought if we didn't let scientists travel they wouldn't go to meetings in Taiwan and China and someplace like that and exchange secret information. Clearly, travel restriction has become a very onerous burden, for good scientists working for universities or otherwise do travel. That is part of their growing up, maturing, and once they are mature and great scientists, they go there to show their fellow scientist what the past has put into their minds.

The conference agreement also includes a compromise proposal that allows work on the National Ignition Facility, a major laser complex to be used for nuclear weapons stewardship work, to continue. That project is funded at $199 million, $10 million below the request of $209 million. Of that amount, $70 million is fenced pending the project meeting a number of milestones by March 3, 2001.

The conference agreement also includes several provisions to strengthen and clarify the operation of the National Nuclear Security Administration. The conference report includes provisions to give the Administrator a 3-year term of office, prohibit the ''dual-hatting'' of NNSA and DOE employees, and limit the authority of the Secretary of Energy to reorganize the statutory structure of the NNSA.

I tell the Senate they have to do some very difficult things by March 15 or they do not get the fenced funding that is in this bill.

For defense nuclear nonproliferation activities within the NNSA, the conference report provides $874 million, which is $8 million above the request and $145 million over current year. This amount of funding again shows the Congress' strong support of a broad variety of efforts to stem the proliferation of nuclear materials and expertise from the former Soviet Union.

For other programs within the Department of Energy, the conference agreement provides $422 million for solar and renewables, which is $33 million below the request but $60 million over current year.

For nuclear energy, the conference report provides $260 million, $28 million below the request. The decrease is due to a transfer of cleanup obligations to the Office of Environmental Management. Nuclear power R&D actually increased significantly over current year.

The conference report provides $6.8 billion for environmental cleanup at DOE sites across the country. That is $56 million over the request and $496 million over current year.

For the Office of Science, the conference report provides $3.19 billion, $24 million over the request and $400 over current year. The conference added over $300 million in order to address significant shortfalls that existed in both the Senate and House bills. The conference agreement includes full funding of $278 million for the Spallation Neutron Source in Tennessee.

On the water side of the bill, the conference report provides $4.5 billion for water resource development activities of the Army Corps of Engineers, including $1.7 billion for construction activities, and $1.9 billion for ongoing operation and maintenance activities. The total Corps number is $461 million over the budget request and $415 million over the enacted level for fiscal year 2000.

The conference agreement includes funding for approximately 40 high priority new construction starts across the country. While the recommendation is a significant increase over both the budget request and fiscal year 2000 level, it should be pointed out that there is a $40 to $50 billion backlog of authorized projects awaiting construction.

Regarding the construction account of $1.7 billion, although it is $350 million above the request, it is within the range of the current year construction level of $1.6 billion.

The conference agreement provides $776 million for activities of the Bureau of Reclamation. That is $25 million below the budget request and $23 million over the funding level for fiscal year 2000. No funding is included for the California Bay-Delta restoration due to the lack of program authorization for fiscal year 2001 and future years.

The conference agreement includes funding to initiate a small number of new water conservation and water recycling and reuse projects. Finally, the conference agreement provides funding for a number of independent agencies.

For the Appalachian Regional Commission, the conference report provides $66.4 million, $5 million below the request but slightly above the current year. For the Denali Commission, the conference report provides $30 million, compared to $20 million provided in the current year. For the Delta Regional Authority, the conference report provides $20 million for the initial year of funding, a reduction from the request of $30 million. For the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, the conference report provides $482 million, the amount of budget request. The conferees have also included a provision extending and revising NRC's fee recovery authority. The revised fee structure will reduce fees gradually over 5 years to address fairness and equity issues raised by licensees.

Overall, this is an outstanding energy and water conference report. We have made a good faith effort to address the concerns raised in the President's veto message and I believe we have a bill that the President will sign.

Suffice it to say, we have been able in this bill to keep the Corps of Engineers moving ahead, to have projects in the States that many Senators requested that we believe feel are very solid projects. Without the extra money given to us in the allocation, we would have been unable to do that.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Florida.

Mr. GRAHAM. Mr. President, the Senate is now considering the combined VA/HUD and Energy and Water appropriations bills. This combined bill follows the pattern established by previous appropriations bills considered by the Senate. Looking first to the VA/HUD appropriations bill, in the fiscal year 2000 that ended September 30 of this year, the appropriation for these accounts was $99.2 billion.

We had committed ourselves to a standard of previous year appropriations plus inflation. The Consumer Price Index has risen 3.5 percent over the past year. Making that adjustment, we would have set as a target for the VA–HUD bill an appropriation this year of $102.7 billion. In fact, the bill we are about to vote on has an appropriation of $105.5 billion, or approximately $2.8 billion over the standard that has been set. This budget represents an increase from fiscal year 2000 to fiscal year 2001, not of the 3.5-percent inflation but, rather, of 6.4 percent.

Looking at the second bill which has been added to the VA–HUD bill, which is the energy and water appropriations bill, again in fiscal year 2000, the appropriation for this budget was $21.2 billion. Adjusting it for the 3.5-percent inflation increase, we would have had a target of $21.9 billion for energy and water. In this conference report, we are being asked to authorize spending of $23.3 billion, or approximately $1.4 billion over the scheduled maximum increase. The increase in the energy and water appropriations bill represents a 9.9-percent growth from fiscal year 2000 to fiscal year 2001.

What is the significance of this? The significance is we started with a budget plan, and the plan was that we would attempt to restrain the growth in spending to the rate of inflation. If we did that, according to the Congressional Budget Office, we would have at the end of 10 years substantial surpluses not only in the Social Security trust fund but also surpluses in general government.

There are many important events which are taking place in the world today: The tragedy of the U.S.S. Cole, the crisis in the Middle East and, of course, the heat of fall Presidential and congressional elections. All of these things are fighting for the attention of the American people. In that context, it is easy to understand why most Americans have not focused their attention on what is happening under this dome, but I suggest that in the autumn of 2000, some of the most important decisions for our individual and our national futures are being made in these changes.

The House and the Senate are slowly closing the curtain on the 106th Congress. As the curtain draws to a close, we are in the midst of an orgy of spending and tax cuts, an orgy which threatens the fiscal discipline that many Members of this Congress and the administration have worked so hard to achieve. Worse than the decisions that are being made, however, is the process that is being used to make those decisions.

Long gone is the normal legislative process where we had hearings on ideas in the committees with jurisdiction. We developed legislation on a bipartisan basis with amendments being offered and votes taken; Presidential consideration of individual bills; and, should the President exercise his or her veto power, further debate and congressional action to potentially override the veto; finally, the give and take of negotiation that results in bills which will secure a Presidential signature.

In the place of this normal legislative process, we now have a process—if it deserves that word—where a handful of individuals make far-reaching decisions on legislation. Those decisions are then rushed to the House and Senate floors for final votes, often without the actual language of the measure being considered available to the Members of the House and the Senate.

Lest we be overly critical of October 2000, I say sadly that, with some tactical variations, we were in exactly the same position in the fall of 1999. At that time, I wrote an article for the Orlando Sentinel which outlined my distress with what was occurring a year ago. I ask unanimous consent that this article be printed in the RECORD immediately following my remarks.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

(See Exhibit 1.)

Mr. GRAHAM. Mr. President, what we are now doing in the fall of 2000 is characterized by some representative examples of our excess. The Transportation appropriations conference report was not available for Members to review the night before the final vote, but at least there had been some debate on the Senate floor on the Transportation appropriations bill when it originally passed the Senate.

In the remaining days, we are going to be asked to approve measures for which there has never been Senate debate. As an example, we are going to be asked to make some significant paybacks to the providers of services through the Medicare program. This add-back legislation was never considered in the Senate Finance Committee, nor has it been considered on the Senate floor, but mark my word, we will soon be asked to vote on this substantial legislation.

The Commerce-State-Justice appropriations bill will also likely come to this body attached to an unrelated conference report without ever having been separately considered by the Senate.

I suggest we all need to grab hold of our aspirin bottles because we are likely to need plenty of those pills when we find out what is in these measures, a disclosure that is likely to occur several weeks after we have adjourned.

I ask unanimous consent to print in the RECORD immediately following my remarks a column which appeared in the October 18 Washington Post by David Broder under the headline ''So Long, Surplus.''

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. L. CHAFEE). Without objection, it is so ordered.

(See Exhibit 2.)

Mr. GRAHAM. Mr. President, it is hard to determine why we have fallen into this legislative abyss. It appears there is a strong desire to avoid the traditional legislative process in order to protect against having to take any votes at all, particularly any votes on controversial issues. In order to achieve that desire to avoid public commitment as to how we stand on various issues, we have abandoned all semblance of fiscal responsibility. Let me provide some large numbers.

In 1997, we passed the Balanced Budget Act which was a key step toward achieving first the elimination of the annual deficits that had become so much a part of our Nation's fiscal life and ushered in this era of surpluses.

In that 1997 Balanced Budget Act, we set a spending target for each of the future years. For the fiscal year 2001, our spending target for domestic discretionary accounts—these are the subject of the 13 appropriations bills, not taking into account expenditure for items such as Social Security, Medicare, interest on the national debt. But focusing on those things for which we in Congress have a responsibility to annually appropriate, we decided in 1997 that the spending limit for this year should be $564 billion. When the Senate passed its budget resolution in the spring of this year, we set a target, a constraint on ourselves, not of $564 billion, not even of $564 billion adjusted for some inflation, but rather $627 billion was the number to which we committed ourselves in the budget resolution.

As of today, with one appropriations bill that is an amalgamation of two bills before us and three more appropriations bills yet to be considered, we have already committed ourselves to appropriations of $638 billion. It is estimated that when those final three bills are voted on, we will likely raise the final tally of total appropriations to as much as $650 billion, or some $85 billion more than the 1997 Balanced Budget Act indicated we should be spending this year.

There has been an attempt to lay the blame for this orgy of spending at the White House step. In the Washington Post of October 13, there was an article under the headline, ''DeLay Urges GOP Showdown With Clinton Over Spending Bill,'' where the majority whip in the House made this statement:

[He] argued that Clinton is ''addicted to spending'' and that Republicans must draw the line if they hope to conclude budget negotiations next week.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that that article be printed in the RECORD immediately after my remarks.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

(See Exhibit 3.)

Mr. GRAHAM. Mr. President, I would say this is not the case; that we have both Republicans and Democrats alike entered into an enthusiastic, willing, and self-confessed role as coconspirators to the raiding of the surplus.

Our colleague from Arizona, Senator MCCAIN, stated it clearly last week when he chided his fellow Republican colleagues. ''We didn't come to the President with clean hands—we came with dirty hands,'' said Senator MCCAIN.

In another example of the lack of fiscal discipline—and it is part of the bill that we are going to be asked to vote upon this afternoon—the President vetoed the appropriations bill covering energy and water projects because there had been added to the appropriations bill a provision prohibiting, under certain circumstances, the use of funds to revise the Corps of Engineers' Missouri River Master Water Control Manual. This was not an issue of spending; it was an issue of the management of the Missouri River and who should have ultimate responsibility for that management.

Nevertheless, when this bill came back from the President's office with his veto, the response was to revise the bill by excising the provision which had led to the veto and then adding $26 million in additional water projects. This spending spree is not limited to the appropriators. Others have eagerly joined in the party.

Other spending and tax cuts which are being considered in the final hours include increases in spending for Medicare providers. I mentioned that earlier as an example of a provision that we are likely to get with no opportunity for debate or amendment. News reports indicate that this may total $28 billion over the next 5 years and perhaps as much as $80 billion over the next 10 years. We are about to be asked to do that without any debate, without any opportunity to amend or give the thoughtful consideration for which this institution is supposedly empowered.

We passed a military retiree health benefit that will add $60 billion over the next 10 years—again, with no open debate or opportunity to amend.

We repealed the Federal telephone tax, a provision that was tucked away in the Treasury-Postal appropriations bill. That will reduce revenues by $55 billion over 10 years.

I understand that there may be further proposed tax cuts that could have a cost of $200 to $250 billion over the next 10 years.

These are just examples of the almost total absence of any sense of fiscal discipline. It is possible to support many of these proposals, but I am concerned that we are operating without a blueprint. Congress is flying blind, and our plane has no global positioning system. In fact, we do not even have a hand compass to give us general direction as to where we should be going.

You might ask, What difference does it make? Why should Americans care this fall in the year 2000 as to what we are doing? Don't we have an enormous surplus? Can't we afford to do all of these things?

Americans can and do care because Congress is frittering away the hard-won surplus without a real plan for utilizing those surpluses and without addressing the big long-term problems facing our Nation.

Americans should care because by sleepwalking through the surplus, we are denying ourselves the chance to face these major national challenges.

A few days ago, the Congressional Budget Office released its long-term budget outlook. The Congressional Budget Office findings are not encouraging, but they are not surprising. That may explain why that report garnered such little attention by the media and by Members of Congress.

What were those Congressional Budget Office findings? The Federal Government spending on health and retirement programs—Medicare, Medicaid, Social Security—dominates the long-term budget outlook. Why? The retirement of the baby-boom generation will drastically increase the number of Americans receiving retirement and health care benefits. The cost of providing health care is growing faster than the overall economy. The number of Americans working to support that much larger retirement segment of our population will be essentially stabilized.

Saving most or all of the budget surplus that CBO projects over the next 10 years—using those savings to pay down the debt—according to the Congressional Budget Office, would have a positive impact on those projections of future obligations and substantially delay the emergence of a serious fiscal imbalance.

Despite the clear delineation of the long-term problems, and the even clearer outline of the short-term steps Congress can take to begin to address those problems—primarily, saving the surplus and paying down the debt—Congress seems content on frittering away the surplus.

We have an obligation to not let this happen. In fact, it is not necessary. There are some basic principles to which we could recommit ourselves which would avoid the path that I fear is about to take us over the canyon cliff.

First, we should return to that admonition that guided us so effectively just 2 years ago, and that was: Save Social Security first. The surplus should be used to pay down the debt. The kind of direction which the Republican leadership in the House of Representatives has suggested to us—that we should use 90 percent of the fiscal year 2001 surplus for debt reduction—is not only a good idea for the fiscal year 2001 but should be a guiding principle into the future until we have met that first obligation of saving Social Security first. We also need to establish some priorities.

In those ugly days of deficits, we were taught some valuable lessons. One of those lessons was the need to prioritize. The tool that forced us to do that was a requirement that for each additional dollar of spending enacted, a dollar of spending had to be reduced or a dollar of taxes had to be raised. That was a firm discipline.

The surplus has eroded that discipline. Many of the proposals being enacted in these waning days are desirable. Perhaps they are even more desirable than commitments that are already on our law books.

We are failing the American public by not having an honest, open debate about the tradeoffs that are necessary to enact these programs. If we are going to add a substantial new benefit—whether it be to Medicare providers or whether it be to military veterans—we should be prepared to answer the question, Where are we going to pay for that new commitment, either in terms of reducing spending elsewhere or raising taxes to pay for it?

We should not be eating away at the surplus which is going to be the basis upon which we can meet some of the long-term significant challenges that face our Nation.

There are few Congresses in the history of this Nation which have had such a wonderful opportunity to face and respond to important challenges to our Nation's future. Few Congresses will be judged so harshly for avoiding, trivializing, and ultimately failing to seize that opportunity.

I urge my colleagues in Congress, as well as those in the White House, to stop acting as the proverbial children in the candy store and start acting as statesmen and stateswomen. At the very least, let us follow the admonition given to all healers, which is: First, do no harm.

I regretfully announce that I will have to vote against this appropriations bill because it fails to comply with the fiscal discipline we established for ourselves, first in 1997 as part of the Balanced Budget Act and then this year in the development of our own budget resolution. I hope there will be a sufficient number of my colleagues who will join me in expressing our outrage as to what we are doing in terms of our Nation's future, what we are doing in terms of asking our children and grandchildren to have to deal with some of the issues that will be much more difficult for them than they are for us today.

Now is the time to face the issue of dealing with these long-term commitments that we as a society have undertaken. We have the capacity to do so. The question is, Do we have the will to do so?

I thank the Chair.

EXHIBIT 1

[From the Orlando Sentinel, Thurs., September 23, 1999]

CONGRESS' SPENDING IMPERILS ECONOMIC GROWTH

In early 1993, a new U.S. Congress and a new presidential administration took office under the cloud of the largest deficit in our nation's history: $290 billion. In the past year, we have learned that five years of fiscal austerity and economic growth have transformed that record deficit into the first budget surplus in more than a generation—and paved the way for annual surpluses far into the future.

This historic reconstruction of our nation's fiscal house was no small accomplishment. Both Congress and the president made tough choices—a combination of revenue increases, spending reductions and long-term budget restraints—in stemming the tidal wave of red ink that had threatened to drown our children and grandchildren's economic future.

That fiscal life-preserver worked better than anyone could have imagined. In addition to eliminating the deficit, it powered one of the strongest economic expansions in our nation's history:

—Nineteen million jobs have been created since 1992, including more than a million in Florida.

—In the past six years, long-term interest rates have been reduced by nearly 20 percent while our national savings rate—personal savings plus governmental savings—has doubled.

—We enjoy the lowest national unemployment rate in 29 years and the highest homeownership rate in history.

But these successes do not give lawmakers license to return to the fiscally irresponsible days of the past. If anything, we face an even more difficult test in preserving the discipline that has brought us to this enviable economic position. It is a test that requires us to forego instant gratification in favor of policies that will reap benefits for future generations. Thus far, it is a test that Congress is failing miserably.

The current surplus is the result of surpluses in the Social Security Trust Fund and the federal government's annual operating budget. Congress has mishandled both. Earlier this summer, the U.S. House of Representatives passed a plan to protect Social Security by holding its surpluses in a so-called lockbox. One political pundit even asserted that this action removed Social Security as an issue for debate.

Wrong. While a lockbox seems responsible, it does nothing to extend Social Security's solvency beyond its currently projected expiration date of 2034. In fact, it numbs us to the structural changes that will be needed to preserve Social Security until 2075, a lifespan that will ensure that this important program is there for three generations of Americans.

Worse yet, Congress seems determined to exhaust the surpluses before they can even enter the lockbox. Wisely, the president has said he will veto a risky tax scheme that would deplete nearly $800 billion from the federal government's operating surplus during the next 10 years—leaving no resources whatsoever to enhance Social Security's solvency further or to strengthen Medicare.

The story gets worse when it comes to federal spending, where Congress' appetite is as voracious as ever. The historic deficit-reduction legislation enacted in 1993 and 1997 included strict discretionary-spending limits. Not surprisingly, it has been difficult to maintain these limits. But rather than dealing with this challenge in an honest manner that salutes fiscal austerity, Congress has reverted to using an escape clause that allows ''emergency'' spending to fall outside the budget limits and further deplete the surplus.

When this emergency-spending provision was originally passed, many assumed that it would be reserved for natural disasters such as hurricanes or floods, urgent threats to national security and other sudden, urgent or unforeseen needs. For the past year, however, Congress has misused its emergency-spending powers in a manner befitting the little boy who cried wolf.

In October of 1998, it stretched the emergency definition to direct $3.35 billion to the long-foreseen Year 2000 (Y2K) computer problem and $100 million for a new visitors center at the U.S. Capitol. In June of 1999, Congress added non-emergency spending items to an ''emergency'' bill for the Balkans conflict. And this fall, Congress is expected to consider an ''emergency'' bill to pay for the cost of the 2000 Census, which was ordered by our Founding Fathers in Article I of the U.S. Constitution.

It took the federal government 30 years to turn its federal budget deficit into a surplus. Yet it has taken us less than 12 months to revert to the same irresponsible behavior that produced record deficits in the first place. For the sake of our economy and our children and grandchildren's futures, I hope that the American people will demand that the 106th Congress establish a new record of fiscal prudence.

SO LONG, SURPLUS

(By David S. Broder)

Between the turbulent world scene and the close presidential contest, few people are paying attention to the final gasps of the 106th Congress—a lucky break for the lawmakers, who are busy spending away the promised budget surplus.

President Clinton is wielding his veto pen to force the funding of some of his favorite projects, and the response from legislators of both parties is that if he's going to get his, we're damn sure going to get ours.

As a result, said Congressional Quarterly, the nonpartisan, private news service, spending for fiscal 2001, which began on Oct. 1, is likely to be $100 billion more than allowed by the supposedly ironclad budget agreement of 1997.

More important, the accelerated pace of spending is such that the Concord Coalition, a bipartisan budget-watching group, estimates that the $2.2 trillion non-Social Security surplus projected for the next decade is likely to shrink by two-thirds to about $712 billion.

As those of you who have been listening to Vice President Al Gore and Texas Gov. George W. Bush know, they have all kinds of plans on how to use that theoretical $2.2 trillion to finance better schools, improved health care benefits and generous tax breaks. They haven't acknowledge that, even if good times continue to roll, the money they are counting on may already be gone.

To grasp what is happening—those now in office grabbing the goodies before those seeking office have a chance—you have to examine the last-minute rush of bills moving through Congress as it tries to wrap up its work and get out of town.

A few conscientious people are trying to blow the whistle, but they are being overwhelmed by the combination of Clinton's desire to secure his own legacy in his final 100 days, the artful lobbying of various interest groups and the skill of individual incumbents in taking what they want.

Here's one example. The defense bill included a provision allowing military retirees to remain in the Pentagon's own health care program past the age of 65, instead of being transferred to the same Medicare program in which most other older Americans are enrolled. The military program is a great one; it has no deductibles or copayments and it includes a prescription drug benefit.

Retiring Democratic Sen. Bob Kerrey of Nebraska, himself a wounded Congressional Medal of Honor winner, wondered why—in the midst of a raging national debate on prescription drugs and Medicare reform—these particular Americans should be given preferential treatment. Especially when the measure will bust the supposed budget ceiling by $60 billion over the next 10 years.

''We are going to commit ourselves to dramatic increases in discretionary and mandatory spending without any unifying motivation beyond the desire to satisfy short-term political considerations,'' Kerrey declared on the Senate floor. ''I do not believe most of these considerations are bad or unseemly. Most can be justified. But we need a larger purpose than just trying to get out of town.''

The Republican chairman of the Senate Budget Committee, Pete Domenici of New Mexico, joined Kerrey in objecting to the folly of deciding, late in the session, without ''any detailed hearings . . . [on] a little item that over a decade will cost $60 billion.'' Guess how many of the 100 senators heeded these arguments? Nine.

Sen. Phil Gramm, a Texas Republican, may have been right in calling this the worst example of fiscal irresponsibility, but there were many others. Sen. John McCain of Arizona, who made his condemnation of pork-barrel projects part of his campaign for the Republican presidential nominations, complained that spending bill after spending bill is being railroaded through Congress by questionable procedures.

''The budget process,'' McCain said, ''can be summed up simply: no debate, no deliberation and very few votes.'' When the transportation money bill came to the Senate, he said, ''the appropriators did not even provide a copy of the [conference] report for others to read and examine before voting on the nearly $60 billion bill. The transportation bill itself was only two pages long, with the barest of detail, with actual text of the report to come later.''

Hidden in these unexamined measures are dozens of local-interest projects that cannot stand the light of day. Among the hundreds of projects uncovered by McCain and others are subsidies for a money-losing waterfront exposition in Alaska, a failing college in New Mexico and a park in West Virginia that has never been authorized by Congress. And going out the window is the ''surplus'' that is supposed to pay for all the promises Gore and Bush are making.

DELAY URGES GOP SHOWDOWN WITH CLINTON OVER SPENDING BILL

(By Eric Pianin and Dan Morgan)

After weeks of trying to accommodate the White House on key budget issues, House Republican leaders are pushing for a more confrontational strategy over a giant health and education spending bill, the largest piece of unfinished business in the final days of the session.

Unable to resolve their differences over spending for new school construction and for hiring more teachers to reduce class sizes, GOP leaders are prepared to challenge President Clinton to sign or veto a GOP-crafted labor, health and education bill rather than making further concessions.

House Majority Whip Tom DeLay (R-Tex.), the chief architect of the strategy, has argued that Clinton is ''addicted to spending'' and that Republicans must draw the line of they hope to conclude budget negotiations next week. House Speaker J. Dennis Hastert (R–Ill.) agrees that Republicans already have made ample concessions, according to an aide.

''If it's considered confrontational to reject the idea we should just write the White House a blank check, I guess we're being confrontational,'' Jonathan Baron, a spokesman for DeLay, said yesterday.

But Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott (R-Miss.), House Appropriations Committee Chairman C.W. Bill Young (R-Fla.) and others have argued in private meetings that it would be politically risky to confront Clinton over education spending policy only weeks before the election.

Those Republicans are worried about appearing to be resisting new spending for education when Vice President Gore and Gov. George W. Bush have made education a top priority in the presidential campaign.

''I've never been an advocate of a veto strategy,'' Lott said yesterday. ''I don't understand the wisdom of running a bill down to be vetoed and then bringing it back and doing it over. For one thing, it usually grows.''

GOP leaders have put off a decision on how to proceed until next week, when they determine whether they have the votes in the House and Senate to pass the bill without Democratic and administration support. A White House budget office spokeswoman said that Clinton would not back down on his demands for increased spending for education.

The threatened showdown comes just when it appeared that the two sides were making substantial headway in completing work on the 13 must-pass spending bills for the fiscal year that began Oct. 1.

The Senate approved two packages that each carried two compromise spending bills. One combined a $107 billion measure financing veterans, housing, environment and science programs with a $23.6 billion energy and water bill. The other contains the $30.3 billion Treasury Department bill, a $2.5 billion measure to fund the legislative branch and another repealing a 3 percent federal excise tax on telephones.

The Treasury measure also would pave the way for members of Congress to receive a $3,800 pay raise in January, to $145,100.

The spending bill for veterans, housing, space and environmental programs provides much of what Clinton had sought. That includes increased funds for AmeriCorps, the president's signature national service program; the Environmental Protection Agency; veterans' health care and housing vouchers; and other subsidies for low-income families.

The energy and water bill to which it was attached was retooled after Clinton vetoed it in a dispute over water management along the Missouri River.

The pairing of unrelated appropriations bills for final passage is part of the leadership's efforts to finish work on the spending bills as soon as possible, so lawmakers can return to campaigning. Congress yesterday approved its third short-term continuing resolution that will keep the government operating through next Friday.

The festering dispute over the labor, health and education appropriations bill for the coming year has as much to do with how money will be spent as how much will be made available.

Although the $108.5 billion bill worked out by House and Senate Republicans exceeds the president's original request, Democrats say it largely reflects Republican priorities, such as health research and special education. The White House and congressional Democrats want an additional $6 billion for their priorities.

About half that amount would go to summer job programs, the training of dislocated workers, health care for the uninsured and the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, along with smaller programs.

But the largest differences are over education, where Republicans fall about $3.1 billion short of Democratic targets.

The White House is pressing for another $1.8 billion to pay for initiatives to train high-quality teachers, renovate schools and fund after-school programs. At the same time, House Democrats want an additional $1.3 billion for special education and for Pell Grants for needy college students.

In addition to the money difference, Republicans are insisting that more than $3 billion sought by Clinton for school construction and reducing class sizes be rolled instead into a block grant to the states.

GOP officials contend the argument over this issue is more political than substantive, because federal funds going to states and school districts invariably are mixed with local money. But Democratic officials say that the Clinton plan would be far more effective in targeting the money to the neediest school districts.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Maryland.

Ms. MIKULSKI. Mr. President, I rise in support of the VA–HUD conference report and I urge my colleagues to do the same.

I want my colleagues to know that this conference report is the exact same bill that was passed in the Senate last week.

It has come back to the Senate in the form of a conference report, which includes report language in the statement of the managers.

I urge my colleagues to vote for this measure to give our veterans the health care and benefits they deserve, to provide housing for families of modest income, and to protect our environment.

First, I am especially pleased that we were able to provide a significant increase in funding for veterans health care. We met the President's request of $20.2 billion and are $1.4 billion above last year's level.

We were also able to provide $351 million for medical and prosthetic research. This is $30 million above the budget request and last year's level.

The VA plays a major role in medical research for the special needs of our veterans, such as geriatrics, Alzheimer's, Parkinson's, and orthopedic research.

We are also providing $100 million in funding for State veterans homes. This is $40 million above the budget request and $10 million above last year's level.

I am also very pleased that we were able to include a new title in our bill that will provide medical care and veterans benefits to Filipino veterans who fought alongside Americans in World War II and who live in the United States.

Finally, our Filipino-American veterans will receive equal benefits for equal valor.

Our bill provides almost $13 billion to renew all expiring section 8 housing vouchers. We have included $453 million in funding to issue 79,000 new vouchers to help working families find affordable housing.

Unfortunately, we were forced to drop Senator BOND's housing production bill due to objections from the authorizing committee, but I hope we will revisit the issue next year.

We were also able to maintain level funding for other critical core HUD programs.

We provided $779 million for housing for the elderly, which meets the President's request and is $69 million more than last year. This includes funds for assisted living and service coordinators.

We also provided $217 million in funding for housing for disabled Americans, which is $7 million above the President's request and $23 million over last year's level.

We were able to provide both the Community Development Block Grant Program and the HOME Program with $150 million increases over the President's request. CDBG is funded at more than $5 billion, and HOME is funded at $1.8 billion. The CDBG program is one of the most important programs for rebuilding our cities and neighborhoods.

We also provided increased funding to help our neighborhoods and communities through the Hope VI Program. This year, we provided $575 million for Hope VI, the same as last year's level.

I am pleased that we were able to provide funding for other programs that help America's communities. We increased funding for empowerment zones by providing $90 million in this bill for urban and rural empowerment.

We also help homeowners by extending the FHA downpayment simplification program for 25 months.

I am extremely pleased that our bill fully funds NASA at $14.3 billion, an increase of $250 million above the President's request.

All of NASA's core programs are fully funded and all NASA centers are fully funded, including the Goddard Space Flight Center in my home State of Maryland.

The VA–HUD bill includes $1.5 billion for Earth science and more than $2.5 billion for space science.

It includes $20 million to start an exciting new program called ''living with a star,'' which will study the relationship between the Sun and the Earth and its impact on our environment and our climate. I am especially proud that this program will be headquartered at the Goddard Space Flight Center.

And, of course, we fully fund the space shuttle upgrades, space station construction, and the new ''space launch initiative'' to find new, low-cost launch vehicles that will reduce the cost of getting to space.

The VA–HUD manager's amendment also increases funding for the Corporation for National Service. The corporation is funded at $458 million, a $25 million increase over last year's level. The Corporation for National Service has enrolled over 100,000 members and participants across the country.

As many of my colleagues know, I have been very concerned about the digital divide in this country. I introduced legislation called the Digital Empowerment Act to provide a one-stop shop and increased funds to local communities trying to cross the digital divide. I am pleased that this bill contains $25 million within the national service budget to create an ''e-corps'' of volunteers by training and mentoring children, teachers, and non-profit and community center staff on how to use computers and information technology.

With regard to the EPA, our bill provides $7.8 billion in funding. All together, this is an increase of $400 million over last year's level and $686 million more than the President's request.

We increased funding by $246 million for EPA's core environmental programs.

We also provided an additional $550 million for the clean water state revolving fund.

Taking care of the infrastructure needs of local communities has always been a priority for the VA–HUD Subcommittee.

A number of my colleagues have raised concerns about some environmental provisions in the bill.

I will address these topics in more detail later. But let me say that the administration helped negotiate these provisions and the administration supports them. They do not threaten the environment and they maintain EPA's authority and flexibility.

A am a strong supporter of FEMA and am proud that we have provided $937 million in funding for FEMA, plus an additional $1.3 billion in emergency disaster relief funding.

The National Science Foundation is funded at $4.43 billion, a $529 million increase over last year's enacted level and one of the largest increases in NSF's history. This is a downpayment toward our goal of doubling the NSF budget over the next five years.

I am especially pleased that we were able to provide $150 million for the new nanotechnology initiative.

Mr. President, I once again appreciate the cooperation of my colleagues throughout this process. While I regret that this year's process was highly irregular, I am pleased that we worked together to bring a conference agreement to the Senate floor. I believe this year's VA–HUD bill is good for our country, our veterans, and our communities.

To reiterate, Mr. President, I rise in support of the VA-HUD conference report and urge my colleagues to do the same. As I said, this conference report is the exact same bill we passed last week. It has come back to the Senate in the form of a conference report and includes the report language contained in the Statement of Managers.

That is kind of inside baseball, but what I want people to know is, this is the same bill we voted on, so there does not need to be extensive debate. What is not inside baseball, and it is how we played the game, is that we played it very fairly. We tried to both exercise a great deal of fiscal prudence while looking out for the day-to-day needs of our constituents and the long-range needs of our country.

Our appropriation—the VA-HUD, EPA, National Federal Emergency Management, space program, National Science Foundation, and 22 other agencies—had the least increase, the least gross increase, of any other subcommittee to come before the Senate. I tell my colleagues who believe in fiscal discipline, have worked for fiscal discipline, and have voted for fiscal discipline, that they need not fear voting for the VA-HUD-other agencies appropriations.

Throughout our entire deliberation on moving this bill, we wanted to have legislation that could both meet the responsibilities of fiscal stewardship as well as meet the needs. I believe we did do it. Sure, there are increases, but it costs more to do what we do. One of the major areas where it costs us more to do what we do is in veterans health care.

Health care is on the rise everywhere. It costs money to have the best nurses in America working for our veterans. It costs money to be able to have primary care facilities. It costs money to provide a prescription drug benefit. The cost our veterans gave in their service to America is far greater than any monetary spending we can do to ensure they get the health care they need.

That is why we do have increases. We have increased veterans health care. We have ensured the benefits that they deserve. At the same time, we have worked very hard to provide housing for people of modest income. We have an increase in section 8 vouchers.

What does that mean? It means there are Federal funds to enable the working poor to be able to have a subsidy for housing. If you have gotten off welfare, we make work worth it by making sure that if you are working and you can't afford to live and pay for the housing that you need, there will be this modest subsidy.

We are also doing housing for the elderly. Like it or not, America is getting older. Like it or not, we need housing for the elderly, and we also bring some innovations to it. Those need to be project based.

My esteemed Republican colleague and I don't believe vouchers work for the elderly. We don't believe if you have a wheelchair or a walker, we should give you a little voucher while you forage for housing in your neighborhood. We met those needs.

We have also protected the environment. We have encouraged voluntarism, and we have also made major public investments in science and technology. Why did we do that? Because we want to be sure America is working in this century.

These major investments in science and technology are to generate the new ideas that are going to give us the new jobs for the new economy.

We believe we bring to the Senate a bill that really does represent what America wants—yes, fiscal stewardship, but promises made, promises kept to those who served the country in the U.S. military through its benefits, to make work worth it, and make sure we have a helping hand for those who are out there working every day and have moved from welfare to work, to protect our environment, encourage voluntarism, and come up with the science and technology for the new ideas, for the new jobs.

I encourage my colleagues to vote for this bill.

I again thank my colleague. There has been much made about bipartisan cooperation. We saw it in the debates. We see it in the ads, and so on. I can tell my colleagues, I saw it in the Subcommittee on VA, HUD, and Independent Agencies. I thank my colleague, Senator BOND, for his cordial and collegial support. I thank the members of the subcommittee on both sides of the aisle. It really worked for us. Quite frankly, I believe if the rest of the Senate is working in the cooperative way we work, when all is said and done, more will get done.

I yield the floor.

SEDIMENT REMEDIATION TECHNOLOGIES

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, I know the Senator from Missouri has addressed similar questions before the conference on this legislation was convened, but now that we have the actual text of the statement of managers before us, I would like to clarify a section in the statement of managers. The language directs EPA to take no action to initiate or order the use of certain technologies such as dredging or capping until specific steps have been taken with respect to the National Academy of Science report on sediment remediation technologies, with limited exceptions. It is my understanding that in directing that the report's findings be properly considered by the Agency, the conferees are not directing any change in remediation standards. However, the conferees are directing EPA to consider the findings and recommendations of the forthcoming report, in addition to the existing guidance provided by the Agency's Contaminated Sediments Management Strategy, when making remedy selection decisions at contaminated sediment sites, and as the Agency develops guidance on remediating contaminated sediments.

Mr. BOND. The Senator is correct. I have addressed similar questions, but to remove any confusion, I clarify the statement of managers now before the Senate. In directing that the NAS report by properly considered by the Agency, the language in the statement of managers directs the Agency to consider the findings of the report when making site-specific remedial decisions and in developing remediation guidance for contaminated aquatic sediments. In both cases, EPA should consider the findings of the report so that the best science available will be taken into account before going forward. In implementing this direction, EPA should seek to ensure that Congress can evaluate how the findings of the report have been considered.

Mr. INHOFE. It is also my understanding that in providing for an exception for urgent cases, we anticipate that the EPA will use the four part test set forth in previous committee reports, namely that (1) EPA has found on the record that the contaminated sediment poses a significant threat to the public health to which an urgent or time critical response is necessary, (2) remedial and/or removal alternatives to dredging have been fully evaluated, (3) an appropriate site for disposal of the contaminated material has been selected, and (4) the potential impacts of dredging, associated disposal, and alternatives have been explained to the affected community.

Mr. BOND. The Senator is correct.

Mr. INHOFE. Finally, it is my understanding that the references to ''urgent cases,'' ''significant threat,'' ''properly considered'' and other key terms should be interpreted consistent with ordinary dictionary definitions and in light of previous years' statements of managers.

Mr. BOND. Again, the Senator is correct.

RELICENSING NON-FEDERAL HYDROELECTRIC PROJECTS

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, one of my top priorities this Congress has been to improve the process by which our Nation's non-federal hydroelectric projects are relicensed by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission. Over the next 15 years, over half of all non-federal hydroelectric capacity (nearly 29,000 MW of power) must go through a relicensing process that takes too long and results in a significant loss of domestic hydropower generation. Oversight and legislative hearings before the Energy and Natural Resources Committee this Congress have established a solid record of the problem and the need for a legislative solution. I want to commend the Chairman of the Water and Power Subcommittee, Senator SMITH, for his dedication to this issue and for working with me to seek a bipartisan, legislative solution to the licensing problem. I look forward to working with all my colleagues to pass this legislation in the next Congress.

Mr. BINGAMAN. I thank the Senator for addressing this issue. We are clearly looking, in the next 15 years, at a substantial relicensing workload for hydropower facilities. No one can be against wanting to conduct that process in an efficient and informed manner. But, these projects have multiple impacts and benefits that cut across a wide range of issues that are important to the citizens who live in the vicinity of those projects and to the country at large. Any changes to the current system should deal with these multiple impacts in a sensible way. I fully expect that the hydropower relicensing issue will remain as a topic of concern on our Committee agenda in the next Congress, and I am ready to engage in discussions on how to move forward on this issue in a bipartisan fashion.

ABATEMENT PROGRAM FUNDING

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, I note that the bill allocates approximately $100 million to HUD to fund its lead abatement program. In a number of areas around the country some of our children are still at increased risk of exposure to high levels of lead, which can lead to development problems.

The bill further provides that from this account, HUD will provide financial assistance to the Clear Corps lead abatement and education network administered by the University of Maryland at Baltimore. This assistance is set at $1 million.

Clear Corps is a public-private partnership which organizes and manages cleanup and education affiliates around the country in close cooperation with local organizations and government. Significant resources are provided to this program by various companies in the paint industry, and by the National Paint and Coatings Association.

Based on reports I have seen, it has proven highly efficient and cost effective. At my invitation, Clear Corps representatives visited Northern Idaho to meet with officials of several private and public organizations, including U.S. EPA, to determine if an affiliate arrangement might prove helpful in addressing the lead exposure issue in that area. While significant progress has been made, there remain pockets where further testing, cleanup (particularly inside some older houses), and focused education could reap large rewards in the near future. It appears that with its growing national network and in-depth experience in providing cost effective solutions, my state and its children would benefit from such a project. Clear Corps is currently evaluating the resources which might be required to establish a new site in Idaho. It is my hope, Mr. Chairman, that we are able to at least begin to establish this program this year in Northern Idaho. Next year, I hope to work with the Chairman and the other members of the VA–HUD Subcommittee to review the Clear Corps approach with a view towards increasing the federal share of its resources. We need to see more of creative and cost effective approaches to issues such as reducing lead exposure of children. Public-private ventures to address such issues make a lot of sense.

Mr. BOND. I thank the Senator from Idaho for his thoughtful remarks on the lead exposure issue and the Clear Corps program. I might point out that in my home state, St. Louis now has a Clear Corps affiliate. I might also point out that Senator MIKULSKI has a Clear Corps affiliate in Baltimore. I concur that the public-private approach as one avenue of a larger program should be encouraged. I would be happy to work with Senator CRAIG and other members to determine an appropriate level of higher funding for Clear Corps.

DEFINITION OF AN ''URBAN COUNTY'' UNDER FEDERAL HOUSING LAW

Mr. MACK. Mr. President, I would like to engage my colleague, Senator BOND, and Chairman of the Senate VA–HUD Appropriations Subcommittee in a brief colloquy concerning a provision in the conference agreement relating to the definition of ''urban county'' under federal housing law.

Mr. BOND. I would be pleased to engage my colleague in such a colloquy.

Mr. MACK. Mr. President, as the Chairman knows, the Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) Program statutory provisions relating to the ''urban county'' classification do not contemplate the form of consolidated city/county government found in Duval County, Florida (Jacksonville) where there is no unincorporated area. A recent decision by the Bureau of the Census, and subsequently by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), has questioned the status of Jacksonville/Duval County as an entitlement area.

Mr. BOND. I am aware of this problem facing the city of Jacksonville.

Mr. MACK. Mr. President, my purpose for entering into this colloquy is to seek clarification from the Chairman about the effect of the provision adopted by the Conference Committee to amend the definition of ''urban county'' to address this problem facing Jacksonville.

Is it the Chairman's understanding that section 217 of the VA–HUD Conference Report addresses the concerns of the Town of Baldwin, Jacksonville and the Beaches communities, by amending current law to classify Jacksonville as an ''urban county''. Is it further his understanding that the language would preserve the area's long-standing status as an entitlement area for CDBG grants, while also allowing the Town of Baldwin to elect to have its population excluded from the entitlement area?

Mr. BOND. Yes. I believe the language clarifies that Jacksonville/Duval County meets the definition of an urban county under the statute, as amended. HUD also agrees with this interpretation.

Mr. MACK. I thank the Chairman for his comments.

• Mr. MCCAIN. Mr. President, I want to thank both Senator BOND and Senator MIKULSKI for their hard work on this important legislation which provides federal funding for the Departments of Veterans Affairs, VA, and

Housing and Urban Development (HUD), and Independent Agencies. Unfortunately, Mr. President, this year-end process to rush spending measures through Congress at the last minute again leaves very little time for members to review in full detail the finalized conference reports, which are all too often bottled up until just before they arrive on the Senate floor. The VA-HUD conference report, regrettably, is no exception.

The House of Representatives just passed this report, despite the fact that most of the voting members did not have adequate time to fully review its contents. And now, the Senate is being asked to do the same. How can we make sound policy and budget decisions with this type of budget steamrolling?

This conference report provides $22.4 billion in discretionary funding for the Department of Veterans Affairs. That amount is $17.2 million more than the budget request and $1.5 billion above the fiscal year 2000 budget level. It does appear that some progress has been made to reduce the overall amount of earmarks in this spending bill. The conferees have earmarked approximately $40 million this year; last year, earmarks exceeded $31 million.

Certain provisions in the Veterans Affairs section of the bill also illustrate that Congress still does not have its priorities in order. Let me review some examples of items included in the bill.

The conferees direct that $250,000 be used by the Department of Veterans Affairs to host The Sixth International Scientific Congress on ''Sport and Human Performance Beyond Disability.'' The conference report continues to express the view that the conferees believe this sporting event is within the mission of the VA.

Neither budgeted for nor requested by the Administration over the past nine years is a provision that directs the Department of Veterans Affairs to continue the nine-year-old demonstration project involving the Clarksburg, West Virginia, Veterans Affairs Medical Center, VAMC, and the Ruby Memorial Hospital at West Virginia University. Several years ago, the VA-HUD appropriations bill contained a plus-up of $2 million to the Clarksburg VAMC that ended up on the Administration's line-item veto list. The committee has also added $1 million for the design of a nursing home care unit at the Beckley, West Virginia, VAMC.

The VA-HUD funding bill also includes construction projects not originally included in the President's budget request.

For example, the VA-HUD appropriations report adds $12 million not previously included in the President's budget for the construction of the Oklahoma National Cemetery. Obviously, the VA-HUD Appropriations Subcommittee felt compelled to include this money since the VA and the Administration chose to ignore the Committee's report language last year. Last year the VA-HUD Senate report directed the VA to award a contract for design, architectural, and engineering services in October 1999 for a new National Cemetery in Lawton (Oklahoma City/Fort Sill), Oklahoma, and also directed the President's fiscal year 2001 budget to include construction funds for a new Oklahoma National Cemetery.

Most questionable are several special interest projects not previously included in the House or Senate version of the fiscal year 2001 VA-HUD appropriations bill. Some examples are: $15 million for land acquisition for a national cemetery in South Florida, $5 million for the Joslin Vision Network for telemedicine in Hawaii, and continued funding for the National Technology Transfer Center, NTTC, at Wheeling Jesuit College in Wheeling, West Virginia. None of these programs were in the President's budget request, nor in either House or Senate veterans funding bills.

In addition, the bill adds $1 million not previously included in the President's budget for planning and design activities for a new national cemetery in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, and $2.5 million for advanced planning and design development for a national cemetery in Atlanta, Georgia. Last year, the Senate provided an additional $500,000 for design efforts for Atlanta, as well as other congressionally-directed locations.

Although these areas are likely deserving of veterans cemeteries, I wonder how many other national cemetery projects in other states were bypassed to ensure that these states received the VA's highest priority.

This bill also contains the funding for the Department of Housing and Urban Development. The programs administered by HUD help our nation's families purchase their homes, helps many low-income families obtain affordable housing, combats discrimination in the housing market, assists in rehabilitating neighborhoods and helps our nation's most vulnerable—the elderly, disabled and disadvantaged—have access to safe and affordable housing.

Unfortunately, this bill shifts money away from many critical housing and community programs by bypassing the appropriate competitive process and inserting earmarks and set-asides for special projects that received the attention of the Appropriations Committee. This is unfair to the many communities and families who do not have the fortune of residing in a region of the country represented by a member of the Appropriations Committee.

And once again, Utah has managed to receive additional funds set aside for the 2002 winter Olympic games.

This bill includes $2 million for the Utah Housing Finance Agency to provide temporary housing during the Olympics. It is certainly a considerate gesture that the housing facilities are expected to be used after the 2002 games for low-income housing needs in Utah. However, I am confident that the many families in Utah and around the country who are facing this winter and next without affordable and safe housing would much rather have this $2 million used for helping them now rather than in two or three years when the Olympics are over.

Some of the earmarks for special projects in this bill include:

$500,000 for the restoration of a carousel in Cleveland, Ohio;

$500,000 for the Chambers County Courthouse Restoration Project in the City of LaFayette, Alabama;

$2.6 million for the rehabilitation of the opera house in the City of Meridian, Mississippi;

$3 million for restoration of an historic property in Anchorage, Alaska;

$2 million for renovation on the Northwest corner of 63rd Street and Prospect Avenue in Kansas City;

$500,000 for infrastructure improvements to the W.H. Lyons Fairgrounds in Sioux Falls, South Dakota; and $400,000 for Bethany College in Bethany, West Virginia for continued work on a health and wellness center.

This bill also funds the Environmental Protection Agency, EPA, which provides resources to help state, local and tribal communities enhance capacity and infrastructure to better address their environmental needs. I support directing more resources to communities that are most in need and facing serious public health and safety threats from environmental problems. Unfortunately, after a cursory review of this year's conference report for EPA programs, I find it difficult to believe that we are responding to the most urgent environmental issues.

There are many environmental needs in communities back in my home state of Arizona, but these communities will be denied funding as long as we continue to tolerate earmarking that circumvents a regular merit-review process.

For example, some of the earmarks include:

$300,000 for the Coalition for Utah's Future;

$1 million for the Animal Waste Management Consortium in Missouri;

$2 million for the University of Missouri-Rolla for research and development of technologies to mitigate the impacts of livestock operations on the environment;

$200,000 to complete the soy smoke initiative through the University of Missouri-Rolla; and $500,000 for the Economic Development Alliance of Hawaii.

While these projects may be important, why do they rank higher than other environmental priorities?

For independent agencies such as the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, this bill also includes earmarks of money for locality-specific projects such as:

$3.5 million for a center on life in external thermal environments at Montana State University in Bozeman; and

$15 million for infrastructure needs of the Life Sciences building at the University of Missouri-Columbia.

Let me also read two paragraphs from an article by David Rodgers, to be included for the RECORD, in today's Wall Street Journal:

''Never before has the appropriations process been such a clearinghouse for literally thousands of individual grants and construction projects coveted as favors for voters. Budget negotiators gave their blessing last night to more than 700 ''earmarks''—listed on 46 double-spaced pages—in a single account for the Department of Housing and Urban Development. The Environmental Protection Agency budget bulges with about 235 clean-water projects. Hundreds of ''member initiatives'' totaling nearly $1 billion are expected to be spread among the departments of Labor, Education and Health and Human Services.

Perhaps the most striking example of earmarks is the so-called economic-development initiative in the HUD budget, for which about $292 million is spread among an estimated 701 projects. The precise language has been closely guarded by the committee, and the clerks deliberately compiled the list in no particular order to make it more difficult to decipher.

In closing, I urge my colleagues to develop a better standard to curb our habit of directing hard-earned taxpayer dollars to locality-specific special interests so that, in the future, we can better serve the national interest.

Mr. President, I ask that the full text of the attached Wall Street Journal article be printed in the RECORD immediately following the conclusion of my remarks on the Fiscal Year 2001 VA–HUD Appropriations bill.

The article follows.

SPENDING BILL IS FULL OF PROJECTS COVETED AS FAVORS FOR ELECTORATE

(By David Rogers)

WASHINGTON.—As Congress dithers over spending bills, committee clerks are putting the final touches on what may be the most important political business at hand: an unprecedented number of home-state projects attached to the budget this election year.

Never before has the appropriations process been such a clearinghouse for literally thousands of individual grants and construction projects coveted as favors for voters. Budget negotiators gave their blessing last night to more than 700 ''earmarks''—listed on 46 doubled-spaced pages—in a single account for the Department of Housing and Urban Development. The Environmental Protection Agency budget bulges with about 235 clean-water projects. Hundreds of ''member initiatives'' totaling nearly $1 billion are expected to be spread among the departments of Labor, Education and Health and Human Services.

Pork-barrel politics are nothing new. The annual $78 billion agriculture budget bill, which cleared Congress last night, has always been a haven for dozens of research projects favored by lawmakers. But this year's surplus-inspired spending breaks new ground. it permeates the labor, health and education accounts, once considered sacrosanct. Moreover, as the number of items has exploded, both parties are openly steering funds to districts to help win seats in November.

The tone was set in the free-for-all negotiations on a $58 billion transportation budget. Dozens of highway and bridge projects totaling more than $1.9 billion were added. When Republicans insisted on $102 million to help a hard-pressed Arkansas incumbent, Democrats got an almost equal sum to spread among candidates in tight races in Mississippi, Connecticut, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Kansas.

Running for Congress from Utah, Republican Derek Smith isn't even a member of the House yet. But thanks to the intervention of House Majority Leader Dick Armey of Texas, he can already lay claim to two budget earmarks worth $5 million to fund water and lands-related projects in his district.

Sen. John McCain, the Arizona maverick and former presidential candidate, took to the Senate floor again yesterday to chastise fellow Republicans. But one of his greatest allies in the House, Rep. Brian Bilbray (R., Calif.), hasn't been shy about claiming credit for Washington money that could help his chances in a tough reelection campaign. ''Bilbray Applauds San Diego Funding'' a press release for the congressman said last Thursday, trumpeting millions of dollars in earmarks attached to a housing, veterans and environmental budget bill pending in the House.

''I will condemn it in his district,'' said Mr. McCain, who is scheduled to campaign for his friend in California next week. ''It is one of those gentleman's disagreements,'' said an aide to Mr. Bilbray.

Perhaps the most striking example of earmarks is the so-called economic-development initiative in the HUD budget, for which about $292 million is spread among an estimated 701 projects. The precise language has been closely guarded by the committee, and the clerks deliberately compiled the list in no particular order to make it more difficult to decipher.

Most of the grants appear to be less than $2 million, some as small as $21,500. Thanks to the New York delegation, Buffalo would lay claim to two grants of $250,000; one to help renovate a Frank Lloyd Wright-designed home, the other to build a new city boathouse—based on Mr. Wright's blueprints—for the West Side Rowing Club.

Meanwhile, in related action:

The Senate approved the agriculture budget 86–8. The measure provides increased spending for food safety and rural development while relaxing trade sanctions against Cuba. For the first time in decades, commercially financed, direct U.S. shipments of food to Havana would be permitted. Shipments of medical supplies, which are already sold on a modest basis, may also be increased.

Trying to free up a $14.9 billion foreign-aid bill, Republicans are proposing compromise language on the divisive issue of U.S. assistance to population-planning programs overseas. The proposal would continue current restrictions, favored by antiabortion forces, only through March 1, as a transition to the next administration. The initial reaction from Democrats was skeptical, but if the transition period is shortened—and funding increased—it could yet be the framework for a deal.

Top House Republicans are pressing for big increases in aid to children's hospitals under a fledgling program to help train pediatric medical residents. Last year, spending was $40 million, but it could grow to $280 million under the proposal, three times the administration's request.

Mr. JEFFORDS. Mr. President, today the Senate will pass the final version of fiscal year 2001 Energy and Water Appropriations bill. Included in the legislation is a provision that requires the Department of Energy to spend not less than $2 million on the Small Wind Turbine Project. This effort is vitally important to our Nation's continued development of American wind technology for consumer use. It was added as a program at the Department of Energy in 1995, to develop cost-effective, highly reliable Small Wind Turbine systems for both domestic and international markets. In fact, due to the Small Wind Turbine Program, U.S. companies have been able to advance the performance and cost-effectiveness of small wind turbine systems. The participants in the Small Wind Turbine Project are Windlite Corp, a subsidiary of Atlantic Orient Corp, Bergey Windpower Co., and World Power Technology. Through the Small Wind Turbine Project, these three companies are advancing the technology of wind energy for homes, small businesses, rural development and export. To end the effort that these three companies are undertaking at this time would be a giant setback and for this reason the Congress has included funding to continue the project under their guidance.

I worked closely with Senators DOMENICI and REID and Assistant Secretary of Energy Dan Reicher in developing the language in this legislation related to small wind. The language is clear, that the department should spend no less than $2 million on the Small Wind Turbine Project. We must continue to develop, test and certify the wind turbines being developed under this program to date.

Mr. WELLSTONE. Mr. President, I rise today to offer a few remarks on the fiscal year 2001 VA–HUD Appropriations bill.

First, I would like to commend my colleagues on the Appropriations Committee for doing some excellent work on this bill. Many important housing initiatives—including housing assistance for the elderly and disabled, the HOME Investment Partnership Program, the Community Development Block Grant, Housing for People With AIDS, and the Lead-Based Paint Hazard Reduction Program—will all receive funding increases under this bill in fiscal year 2001. Furthermore, an additional 79,000 Section 8 vouchers will be funded under this bill. These are all critical programs, program that help low-income working families find safe and affordable housing, and the authors of this bill should be commended for recognizing the need to continue to fund these programs at the appropriate levels.

Having said this, though, I would also like to take a few minutes to express my disappointment that this bill does not include funding for a housing production incentives program, despite the fact that the need to produce more affordable housing in this country is critical. Unfortunately, a Senate provision which would have used $1 billion in excess Section 8 funds to pay for the production and preservation of affordable housing failed to make it into the final conference report. Yet many of the programs that are funded in this bill, including Section 8 housing assistance, only work when affordable housing units are available. It does low-income working families no good whatsoever to be given a rent voucher when they can't find an apartment on which to spend it.

As it is written, this bill fails to address one of the most important problems underlying the current affordable housing crisis: the rapid erosion of this country's affordable housing stock. Every year, in fact, every day, we see the demolition of old affordable housing units without seeing the creation of an equivalent number of new affordable housing units. And while there can be no question that some of our existing affordable housing units should be demolished, we have yet to meet our responsibility to replace the old units that are lost with new, better, affordable units. We must do a better job of this, for our current policy simply results in too many displaced families, families who are forced to sometimes double-up or even become homeless in worst-case scenarios, overburdening otherwise already fragile communities.

The National Low Income Housing Coalition reports that right now there are a record 5.4 million households, 12.5 million people, that pay more than one half of their income in rent or live in seriously substandard housing. Who are these people? One and a half million are elderly, 4.3 million are children, and between 1.1 and 1.4 million are adults with disabilities. Waiting lists for housing assistance are longer than ever, and there are still far too many people who simply lack shelter altogether—an estimated 600,000 people are homeless in this country on any given night.

The fact is that incomes for our poorest citizens are simply not keeping pace with the increase in housing costs. A July 1998 study by the Family Housing Fund found that in Minneapolis-St. Paul rents increased 13 percent from 1974 to 1993 while real incomes declined by 8 percent. They found that there were 68,900 renters with incomes below $10,000 in the Twin-Cities and only 31,200 housing units with rents affordable for these families. That means that there were more than two families for every affordable unit available, and the situation has only gotten worse since then, as the vacancy rate has plummeted to below two percent.

Housing is usually considered to be affordable if it costs no more than 30 percent of a household's income. In the Twin Cities area, however, 185,000 households with annual incomes below $30,000 pay more than this amount for their housing. Knowing this, it isn't hard to understand why the number of families entering emergency shelters and using emergency food pantries is on the rise.

This situation certainly isn't unique to Minneapolis-St. Paul. Out of Reach 2000, a recent publication by the National Low Income Housing Coalition, finds that the cost of housing is exceeding the reach of low-income families across the country. This study estimates that the national ''housing wage''—a measure that represents what a full-time worker must earn to afford fair market rent, paying no more than 30 percent of their income—for a 2 bedroom apartment is $12.47 an hour, more than twice the minimum wage. The report notes that in no county, metro area, or state is the minimum wage as high as the corresponding housing wage for a 1, 2, or 3 bedroom home at the fair market rent; in more than half of metropolitan areas, the housing wage is at least twice the federal minimum wage.

Such high rents are, of course, fueled at least in part by the shortage of housing. Demand for housing exceeds the supply, so rents spiral upwards, far beyond the reach of the poor and often well-beyond the reach of the middle class who find themselves priced out of the very communities in which they grew up. The shortage of affordable housing is so drastic that in Minneapolis-St. Paul, like many other cities, even those families fortunate enough to receive housing vouchers cannot find rental units. Landlords are becoming increasingly selective given the demand for housing and are requiring three months security deposit, hefty application fees, and credit checks that price the poor and young new renters out of the market.

In my own State of Minnesota, a family must earn $11.56 an hour, 40 hours a week, 52 weeks out of the year to afford the fair market rent for a two-bedroom apartment, more than double the minimum wage. That's more than double the minimum wage. This means that a person earning the minimum wage in Minnesota would need to work 90 hours a week in order to afford a two bedroom apartment at the fair market rent. Here's the real secret of why so many single parents are in poverty, because it has become impossible for one parent, one worker, to support a family on the bottom rung of the economic ladder.

So what happens to those families who are unable to earn $11.56 an hour? Families with a single worker at minimum wage who cannot work 90 hours? The answer is no secret, and is unfortunately too common in all parts of our country. These families quite simply can't afford adequate housing. Instead, families crowd into smaller units, a one bedroom, an efficiency. Sometimes these families double up, two or more families in a home, with multiple generations crowded under one roof. When the stress of multiple families becomes unbearable, they are left with no other option than homeless shelters. Families rent seriously substandard housing, exposing their children to lead poisoning and asthma, in neighborhoods where they don't feel safe allowing their children to play outdoors. They rent housing with leaky roofs, bad plumbing, rodents, roaches, and crumbling walls.

And even for such substandard housing, many families find themselves forced to pay more than the recommended 30 percent of their income in rent, sometimes spending more than half of their income on housing costs. Families in this situation must then ''cut corners'' in other ways, sometimes doing without what others might consider necessities. Not luxuries like cable television, but necessities: gas, heat, electricity, food, or medical care. This is simply unacceptable. In an era of such tremendous economic prosperity, no family should have to choose between food and shelter, or heat and medical care.

In a recent study of homelessness in Minneapolis-St. Paul, the Family Housing Fund reported that more and more children are experiencing homelessness. On one night in 1987, 244 children in the Twin Cities were in a shelter or other temporary housing. By 1999, 1,770 children were housed in shelter or temporary housing. Let me repeat that: 1,770 children in the Minneapolis-St. Paul area on one night alone spent the night in a homeless shelter or temporary housing. That's seven times as many homeless children in 1999 than in 1987. And families are spending longer periods of time homeless. If they had a family crisis, if they lost their housing due to an eviction, if they have poor credit histories, if they can't save up enough for a two or three month security deposit, they will have longer stretches, longer periods of time in emergency shelters before they transition into homes.

Let me provide a stark and disturbing example of the desperate need for affordable housing in this country: for six days in February of this year, the Minneapolis Public Housing Authority distributed applications for families interested in public housing. They distributed applications for only six days, and then stopped entirely. This was the first time since 1996 applications were accepted for public housing and it is likely to be the last time for several years to come. Mr. President, 6,000 families sought applications for public housing in those six days—an average of 1,000 families each day requesting public housing in one metropolitan area. This is not free housing. Residents would be required to pay one-third of their income in rent. This is not luxury housing. Many families seem to look upon public housing with disdain, though I know those communities are rich with the talents and contributions of their tenants. This is not even immediate housing. Many of those families will wait years to get into public housing.

Surely this should tell us there is a huge housing crisis. One thousand families a day sought to pay one-third of their income in rent to live in public housing in one metropolitan area. Surely, if this tells us anything, it tells us we must do more.

Mr. President, I know this Nation is prosperous. I know we can afford to solve this problem. We can afford to take this step today. We must make a commitment to address the shortage of affordable housing. Although we were not able to include funding for housing production initiatives in this appropriations bill, it is my hope that each of my colleagues will join me next year in assuring that this critical need is met.

Mrs. BOXER. Mr. President, the Senate considered the VA–HUD conference report a week ago today. During consideration of the bill, the Senate extensively debated report language included in the conference report that dealt with the cleanup of river and ocean sediment contaminated with DDT, PCBs, metals and other toxic chemicals.

Upon passing the conference report today, it is critically important to reiterate that it was understood by the managers of the bill in the House and the Senate that our resolution of the contaminated sediments issue in the VA–HUD conference report on October 12, 2000 was final, and that modifications to the report language or bill language relating to this issue would not be permitted this legislative session on any legislative vehicle.

It is also important to reiterate and to underscore the clarifications the Senate made to that report language.

One of the most important clarifications was a statement of the managers that the report language would not apply presently or prospectively to any site in California.

Another important clarification included a colloquy between Senators BOND, MIKULSKI and LEVIN stating that EPA had full discretion to define the operative terms of the report language.

Yet another critical clarification was a colloquy between Senators BOND, MIKULSKI and LAUTENBERG that stated that the National Academy of Sciences study referred to in the report language was not to be afforded any type of extraordinary or special standing in the Environmental Protection Agency's established process for selecting remedies under Superfund.

Finally, a colloquy between Senators BOND and L. CHAFEE clarified that report language would not affect the cleanup of the Centredale Manor Restoration Project in Rhode Island.

Make no mistake about it, Mr. President, I would have preferred that the proponents of this report language not be given even one bite at the apple in an appropriations bill on the important issue of cleaning up heavily contaminated river and ocean waters. I was concerned that the report language they advanced would slow cleanups in California and around the nation.

I am satisfied that our debate on the report language will ensure that it does not have that effect.

Under no circumstances, however, should the proponents of this report language be permitted a second bite at the apple to undo the work of this chamber and the commitments of the House and Senate managers not to revisit the issue of contaminated sediments—in bill or report language—in this legislative session on any legislative vehicle.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I truly enjoy working with the chairman and his staff in putting together the Energy and Water appropriations bill each year.

The third time's the charm.

This time, I think we really have completed work on the FY 2001 Energy and Water Appropriations bill.

I am a little surprised to be talking about final passage of the Energy and Water Appropriations bill in late October. Ours is usually one of the earliest to be passed and signed by the President.

Ours is also a bill that is very rarely vetoed. However, this has been an unusual year.

We have modified our bill to meet the Administration's needs on the Missouri River and I am confident that the President will now sign this bill promptly.

For the information of Senators: the Energy and Water portion of this Conference Report has not changed since all of our colleagues joined us in voting on this matter last week.

Our counterparts in the House insisted upon having a Conference, but no changes have been made since we completed work on the package that came before the Senate last week. In fact, it has not changed much at all since it originally passed both Houses earlier this month.

For the third, and, I hope, final time this year, I encourage all of my colleagues to support final passage of this Conference Report which includes both the final energy and Water and VA–HUD Conference Reports.

This is a very important appropriations bill, one where we are asked to pay for a broad array of programs critical to our nation's future. We fund the guardians of our Nation's nuclear weapons stockpile our nation's flood control and navigation systems, infrastructure that contributes to human safety and economic growth

Long-term research, development, and deployment of solar and renewable technologies, programs critical to our nation's long-term energy security and environmental future and

Science programs that are unlocking the human genome and other breakthroughs that help to keep the U.S. at the scientific forefront of the world.

By and large I think this is a fine Conference Report.

The Conference Report we lay before the Senate totals just over $23.5 billion. Of that, $13.7 billion is set aside for defense activities and just under $9.9 billion will be spent on nondefense activities at the Department of Energy, Army Corps of Engineers, Bureau of Reclamation, and several other independent agencies.

It addresses the needs of our Nation's nuclear stockpile and the crumbling infrastructure at the weapons labs and plants.

Enhanced funding in the water accounts allows us to move forward on a handful of important new construction starts while maintaining our emphasis on clearing out the $40 billion backlog in work already authorized and ready to go.

We have also been able to provide much needed additional funding to both the Science and Solar and Renewable accounts at DOE.

I am particularly pleased to report that funding for the solar and renewable programs is $60 million higher than last year. This year's numbers are the highest these programs have seen in quite some time.

At a time when our Nation is once again questioning our utter and singular dependence on fossil fuels, I am delighted that we are going to be able to move forward aggressively on renewable programs.

Obviously, I have some disappointments about things we were not able to do this year.

However, as all of us know, an appropriations bill is a one year funding bill. We are never able to do all that we want and there is always next year.

The twin notions of one-year funding and re-visiting issues next year brings me to my final point this evening.

Today we are providing $199 million for the National Ignition Facility at the Lawrence Livermore National Lab in California. This is about $15 million below the oft-revised DOE request for this project. They are lucky to get that much.

The final funding figure represents a compromise between the Administration and Congressman PACKARD, both supportive of NIF, and Senator DOMENICI and I who both would have preferred a substantially smaller dollar amount.

For reasons I have discussed at length in other venues, I believe the Department and laboratory sold the Congress a bill of goods on NIF, and I do not feel that they can be trusted to get it right now.

Chairman PACKARD feels strongly that the lab and Department have gotten their House in order and should be given the opportunity to proceed for another year in order to prove it.

I have great respect for the chairman of the conference. We both came to the House of Representatives together in 1982 and I consider him a friend. I do, however, disagree with him on this matter.

His work on this subcommittee has been excellent and I will miss both his good nature and his fine judgement after he retires this Fall.

He has prevailed upon Chairman DOMENICI and me to allow NIF to go forward for one year, albeit with substantial reporting and milestone requirements.

It is my hope and expectation that DOE will go out of their way to find credible, external reviewers to add some element of objectivity to the new project reviews we are imposing on the Department.

I am going to watch this program like a hawk for the next year.

If the Department and lab fall a day behind schedule or go a dollar over budget, I will not hesitate to zero NIF right out of the Senate bill next year and I suspect that Senator DOMENICI will help me do it.

We have given them all but a couple of percent of what the Administration requested for this project. Now is the time for performance, not excuses.

After nearly a year of listening to DOE and Livermore discuss the problems with this project, I am still not sure what bothers me more: The notion that DOE woke up one morning and discovered that their estimate was off by a billion dollars; or that they simply expected us to give them the money without much of a fuss.

A billion dollars is a tremendous amount of money.

I am done sitting by while DOE and the three weapons labs continue to sweet talk us into beginning projects and then revealing the real price tag to us later.

Livermore is on the hot seat now, deservedly so, but this is a complex-wide problem.

It is going to stop.

The chairman and I have worked together on this bill and so many other issues for many years. Despite the hard work and late nights that completing this bill requires, it is always a pleasure to work with him and his staff to get the job done.

Both of us had staff changes at the clerk position this year and we just kept humming along. The bill has worked as well as it ever has.

I thank the entire staff for all their hard work. Clay Sell, David Gwaltney, and LaShawnda Smith of Senator DOMENICI's staff have worked very well with Drew Willison, Roger Cockrell, and Liz Blevins of my staff.

Every year the associate subcommittee staff provides valuable advice, input, and recommendations to our staff and I am grateful for their help, too.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator's time has expired.

The Senator from Nevada.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, under the unanimous consent agreement before the Senate, it is my understanding I have 10 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is correct.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, as I did at the conference committee we had last night, I express my appreciation to Senator MIKULSKI for the great leadership she has shown in working this bill through this very difficult process.

As she has indicated, it takes two to do that. It is important we recognize that there are matters, when we are able to work together, where both Democrats and Republicans can work toward a common goal. That goal has been, for many months now, getting this very difficult VA-HUD bill to a point where we are now going to approve it. The Senator from Missouri is also to be commended for working so closely with the Senator from Maryland in coming up with this great piece of legislation. They are both a couple of experts in this field, not only experts in the field that covers the legislative matters before us but experts in moving the matters through the legislative process. Both sides of the aisle recognize their expertise.

After this conference report is approved, we will next move to a vote on a continuing resolution. What is a continuing resolution? It is when we have failed here to do our work to extend the operation of Government so it doesn't shut down.

So we are going to have another continuing resolution approved this afternoon. I am disappointed that we are now to a point where this is the fourth continuing resolution, I believe, that we will approve. This is for 6 days—until next Wednesday. We just completed work on a long continuing resolution. We basically completed very little during that period of time.

The new fiscal year is now nearly 3 weeks old, and Congress has still failed to have signed into law 9 of the 13 appropriations bills.

To compensate for the failure to do our work, we pass these continuing resolutions that I have talked about to stop the Government from shutting down. We have been through a Government shutdown. We know it can happen. We will now consider in a few minutes another continuing resolution. That is too bad. I find it disturbing that the continuing resolution didn't go for 24 hours at a time.

I have not been in the Congress as long as some people, but I have been here a long time. I can remember when a congressional session was winding down and we worked day and night. We worked Mondays. We worked Fridays, Saturdays, and on occasion we worked Sundays to complete our work. No, not here. We have had leisure time. We have not had any hard lifting. We just took a 5-day break.

I understand the importance of the upcoming elections as well as anyone else. The elections represent a crucial choice regarding the future of this great Republic. However, no election is more important than the election that takes place here in this Congress every day when we, in effect, vote on legislation. This election represents something just as important. That is why we were sent here—to do the work of the people. We are not doing it. The majority isn't allowing us to do it.

We will never finish these appropriations bills until it is clear to everyone that we must do our work and do it every day of the week. We have been used to 3-day weeks around here where we worked Tuesdays starting about 2:30, and Wednesday and Thursday. But we finished early on Thursday. I have never seen a congressional session such as this. We don't work on Mondays. We don't work on Fridays. And now we have a new deal: We are working 2-day weeks. We are now going to a 2-day week schedule. Of course, on the first day we will work late. So it will only be about a day and a half. I don't think when we have work to do that we should be working 2-day weeks.

I bet the hard-working American people who work for these massive corporations and small businesses would like a 2-day workweek. That is what we are having here.

It is no secret that this exceptionally slow work schedule is responsible for the fact that Congress has completed only a few appropriations bills. We passed one in July, one in August, none in September, and two so far this month. I think we should pick up the pace a little. I think the American people would agree.

Until we finish the 106th Congress, I think every continuing resolution we pass in the future should be for 24 hours. I am not going to vote for any more continuing resolutions that are for more than 24 hours. I don't know if I am going to vote for this continuing resolution. I think it is a shame that we are not going to be here literally doing work on this floor until probably next Tuesday with probably no votes until next Wednesday.

Not everyone would like this approach—because we have more certainty with a longer continuing resolution. I hope the President will support our efforts to have a 24-hour continuing resolution. I want to give everyone a hint here. The President just told us that is what he is going to do—that he will no longer approve a multiday continuing resolution—24 hours only.

When we get here Wednesday and that expires, remember that we are not going to get one for more than 24 hours. We have to complete our work. It is important that we do that.

Let's set aside for the moment the disappointing record on the appropriations bills and focus instead on the laundry list of missed opportunities that litter Capitol Hill this fall.

The lack of action on the appropriations bills is rivaled only by the chronic inaction by this Republican Congress on the many other important issues that face our country. While the Republicans blame the Democrats for lack of action, how they can do that with a straight face is a little hard for me to comprehend. The problem is the Republican majority doesn't seem to work with each other.

We all recognize that one of the highest priorities for America at the beginning of this century is education. We have spent in this Congress parts of 6 days working on education. That is it. It couldn't be a very high priority. We don't set the agenda here. I wish we could. But instead of parts of 6 days, we would spend weeks working on education. For the first time in 35 years we haven't approved the Elementary and Secondary Education Act. That is too bad.

Another issue before the Congress is that we have failed to address any meaningful way raising the minimum wage. Sixty percent of the people who draw minimum wage are women. For many of these women it is the only money they earn for their families.

I think it is important that women who get only 74 percent of what men make for the same job should at least be recognized by getting an increase in the minimum wage.

This long list of missed opportunities which will be compounded by a 2-day workweek that we are now going to have demonstrates the irony that the majority is more interested in plowing down the campaign trail than helping plow down the field to help us pass some legislation that helps working Americans.

What legislation am I talking about? Am I making this up? The long list of missed opportunities of this Republican-controlled Congress is:

The minimum wage we talked about;

The failure to enact anything dealing with health care; Prescription drug benefits, no; Prescription bill of rights, no; Helping make college education affordable, no; Doing something about education and lower class sizes, no; Having money for school construction, no.

In the State of Nevada—the most rapidly growing State in the Nation—we have to build a school every month in Las Vegas to keep up with the growth. We need some help.

The average school in America is over 40 years old. We have crumbling schools. We must build some new schools. In one school in Ohio, the ceiling collapsed and kids were hurt.

Then there is the failure to pass a meaningful targeted tax cut for middle-class working Americans.

It is important.

One issue that we should talk about a little bit is campaign finance reform. We are awash in money. People are out raising money. Why? Because one has to be competitive. JOHN MCCAIN has been very courageous. He is one of the few Republicans to join with every Democrat over here to do something about campaign finance reform.

Get rid of corporate money; let's at least do that.

Two years ago, in the small State of Nevada, over $20 million was spent on the election for the Senate. Neither one of us spent more money. We spent the same amount of money. Can you imagine that in a small State of Nevada with over $10 million each? It is shameful. We have to change it. But, no, we are not able to even vote on it.

This continuing resolution is going to be coming up, and I am not happy with it. I am certainly supportive of making sure that we complete our work. But we don't need to take off from Thursday until next Wednesday. That is, in effect, what we are doing. That is too bad.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Missouri.

Mr. BOND. Mr. President, I believe there is some time left for Senator STEVENS under this agreement. We are interested in yielding back time, to the extent that the other side will yield back time.

Mr. President, there are lots of statements that could be made to answer the political charges of my colleague from Nevada. Let's just say we disagree with them. We will debate those later.

We have been delayed in this process because we had to file cloture because of filibusters this summer on the measures.

I ask the distinguished chairman of the committee if he would like time. I would be happy to yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator's time has expired.

Mr. STEVENS. Has my time expired?

Mr. BOND. On the continuing resolution?

Mr. DOMENICI. He had 5 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. On the pending conference report.

Mr. STEVENS. Whatever it is, I am happy to yield back my time so we can vote.

Mr. REID. Senator BYRD has time. He is not here. I am confident that we can yield back his time.

MAKING CONTINUING APPROPRIATIONS FOR THE FISCAL YEAR 2001

The PRESIDING OFFICER. If the Senator wishes, he may use his time on the continuing resolution.

Mr. REID. I reserve Senator BYRD's time.

It is my understanding now the time goes to the CR, and Senator DORGAN has 10 minutes; is that right?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is correct.

Ms. MIKULSKI. Are we going to vote on VA-HUD now or have stacked votes?

Mr. REID. It is my understanding we are to use the time on the CR and on the VA-HUD conference report and have two back-to-back votes.

Mr. BOND. That is our understanding. So the sooner we use up or yield back the time on the continuing resolution, the sooner we can vote, and perhaps colleagues who wish to use time can talk quickly.

Ms. MIKULSKI. Are we now done with VA-HUD?

Mr. BOND. It is my understanding the time for VA-HUD has expired. Some of the time has been used off the CR. I believe there is a willingness to yield back on our side.

Mr. REID. I used time I had reserved for me under the continuing resolution. Senator BYRD has 5 minutes. He is not here. I am sure he would be willing to yield that back. The only time remaining, as I understand it, is time on the CR. Is that right, Mr. President?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. That is correct.

Mr. REID. Who has time reserved under the CR?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Senator DORGAN has 10 minutes and Senator STEVENS and Senator BYRD have 5 minutes each.

Mr. STEVENS. I have yielded back my time, if I had any.

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, it is my understanding Senator STEVENS yielded back his time on the continuing resolution?

Mr. STEVENS. Yes.

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, I may not take all of the 10 minutes, but I want to speak on the continuing resolution for a moment.

It is now Thursday, October 19. We have a continuing resolution, which in English means continuing the funding for the Government for appropriations bills that have not yet been completed, until next Wednesday. This is one more in a series of continuing resolutions required by this Congress because we do not have the appropriations bills completed and sent to the President to be signed into law.

Now we have to do this. I understand that. We have to pass a continuing resolution. But this is not the way for the Senate to do its business. I came from a meeting we had with the President. The President indicated this is the last continuing resolution of this sort that he will sign. He indicated the next continuing resolution will be for 24 hours, no more than 24 hours. That is what he told a large group of people a bit ago. This continuing resolution takes us until next Wednesday, after which, apparently, continuing resolutions will be for no more than——

Mr. STEVENS. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. DORGAN. Of course.

Mr. STEVENS. Mr. President, I ask the Senator, if the President said we can only have 24 hours, does that mean within 24 hours we will have the full scope of his demands under the Appropriations Committee?

We have not seen the full scope of the President's demands, and until we do we will continue to have continuing resolutions.

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, let the record show there is a search for scope around here.

The President's number is 456–1414. Certainly, the Senator can consult with the President on that issue.

It is now October 19. We are keeping the Senate in session and preventing the Senate from doing business in many ways. We have something pending. As soon as we finish these votes, do you know what is pending on the floor of the Senate? The motion to proceed to S. 2557. Do you know when the motion to proceed was filed in the Senate? A month ago; a motion to proceed to an energy bill. Does anybody think there was ever an intent to proceed to a bill? No.

Why is this motion to proceed pending? To block every other amendment that would be offered by anybody else in the Senate. So the purpose is, keep us here for the desires of those who need to do the appropriations bills but don't let anybody do anything else with respect to other issues.

That is the purpose of this block motion. It has been in place a month. Some of us chafe a little by being told, you stay in session for our purposes; that is, the purposes of those who control the agenda. But in terms of what you are here for, in terms of your desires and your passions on a range of issues, forget it because we will block it with this motion to proceed.

Now, this continuing resolution takes us until next Wednesday. We apparently will have at least two votes stacked, two sequential votes, following this discussion. Then I guess the question is—this is Thursday—what happens tomorrow, on Friday or Saturday or Sunday, Monday, Tuesday, or Wednesday? Who is doing what? When are we going to get these issues resolved?

I think the import of the question from my colleague was that this is somebody else's fault. Maybe so. Maybe someone hasn't provided a list of scope here or there. All I can say is it is now October 19. This is, I think, the third CR, perhaps the fourth, and more will be required, I suspect. But if we are going to be in session, if we are going to be in session for some while, some days, then I ask the question, why aren't we working on other issues? Why should we be prevented—those on this side of the aisle—from offering amendments on a range of issues?

I think it is not the way to run this Senate, to put up a blocking motion. I believe it was put up September 22. It is now October 19. The import of that blocking motion to proceed was to say we are only going to allow the Senate to work on the following issues, and we will do it by blocking all other amendments to be offered.

I don't know what next week will bring. I will say the President indicated he is not going to sign long-term continuing resolutions. I don't know how you could. A week from now, next Wednesday, is October 25. I don't know how much further you can take this session of Congress.

At some point we have to do the appropriations bills and resolve the funding issues. I don't think anybody has had an easy job doing this. The difficulty of this job started with the passage of the budget. That budget never added up. It was not realistic. We all knew we would have to spend more money than called for in the budgets on discretionary spending.

Mr. STEVENS. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. DORGAN. Of course I yield.

Mr. STEVENS. Yesterday, this Senator completed 5 days of negotiations and finally got an agreement with the House and with everyone on how to lift the caps of the 1997 act. That did not take place because the Senator's side of the aisle objected at the last minute. We don't have a provision in this bill lifting the 1997 caps; we can't go forward until we do.

We don't have the ability to go forward yet this afternoon and tomorrow and the next day. We have to lift those caps.

It is enough to take abuse once in a while, but this Senator doesn't take it when it is undeserved. To accuse this side of the aisle for delay now is absolutely wrong. The President of the United States just came here and demanded 100 percent of what he asked for, but we don't know what it is.

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, let me reclaim my time. If the Senator from Alaska heard anything that represented ''abuse,'' that was not my intent. If there were discussions yesterday about lifting the cap, yesterday was October 18, 18 days past the October 1st deadline.

I happen to think the chairman of the Appropriations Committee is someone for whom I have had great respect. I don't think he has caused these problems. But I do think if you go back to the spring of this year with respect to the budget that was passed, there was not enough money in it, and we knew it then. There wasn't enough money in it for domestic discretionary programs, and we knew we would come to the end of the process with gridlock. Now we have this gridlock, and then we have these CRs that say: By the way, we will keep you in session until Wednesday but only on our issue. If you have issues—prescription drugs, minimum wage, the Patients' Bill of Rights—you ought not offer them, and we will block you. So they block it for a month.

I say to my colleagues, if you were in this circumstance, I don't think you would be as quiet as we have been. The fact is, we have been blocked for a month from offering amendments dealing with the central issues that we came to Congress to deal with and resolve and deal with. People talk about not leaving people behind. There are a whole lot of folks left behind with the agenda this Congress hasn't dealt with.

I am going to relinquish the floor, and we will vote on a CR. I assume this is not the last CR. I assume we will have more. I don't think any of us ought to be white eyed with surprise when we find ourselves in October trying to get out of a budget that was passed this spring. Incidentally, that is a budget I did not vote for because, in my judgment, it did not add up in the first place.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Pennsylvania.

Mr. SPECTER. I ask unanimous consent I might be permitted to speak for 5 minutes since all the time has expired.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. SPECTER. I think the arguments by the Senator from North Dakota require some response. If I could have the attention of the Senator from North Dakota? I know the number of the White House. I called it last night in an effort to try to resolve the outstanding differences on the appropriations bill for the Departments of Labor, Health and Human Services, and Education, the subcommittee of appropriations which I chair.

When the Senator from North Dakota talks about insufficient money for discretionary spending, that is not necessarily true. In our subcommittee, on those three Departments we met the President's figure, $106.2 billion. We have structured our priorities somewhat differently. He wanted $2.7 billion for school construction and for more teachers. We gave that to him. But we added a very appropriate proviso, and that is, if the local boards decide they have sufficient of those items, they can use it for something else.

The grave difficulty here has been, since the Government was closed, there has been a radical shift in power between the Congress and the President. Now the President expects everything on the threat of a veto. If he is going to veto something, that means the Congress has to cave to him and knuckle to him. We are proceeding in a nonconstitutional way. We have the executive branch in our legislative discussions before we arrive at our bills, and then we have a situation where the President has to have his way. There is no such thing as compromise. We are discussing language——

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, will the Senator from Pennsylvania yield?

Mr. SPECTER. No.

We are discussing the issue of schoolteachers. Last year, in the middle of the night, there was a compromise which went around this Senator, the chairman of the subcommittee, and I am not prepared to take that unacceptable language. But it is a high-handed demand. We are not going to retreat from last year's language on a program the President thinks is important.

We need to go back on track, and that is to follow the Constitution and submit our bills to the President. The Congress has the primary authority and responsibility for assessing priorities. We have the purse strings, it says in the Constitution. But that is not the way it is functioning today.

When the President comes to Capitol Hill and issues a dictatorial statement that he is not going to sign continuing resolutions for longer than a day, fine, let him stay in town. It will be quite a change for the President's schedule if he stays in town to sign these continuing resolutions day in and day out.

It is time the Congress stopped being blamed for everything.

If the American people understood where we stand on my bill, that the President got the full sum he asked for, there is a difference in priorities—I ask unanimous consent for 2 more minutes, Mr. President.

Mr. DORGAN. Reserving the right to object—and I shall not object—I would like to observe, I have yielded to requests on that side and I hope the Senator will yield at the end of his time.

Mr. SPECTER. I will be glad to yield at the end of my time, limited as it is.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. SPECTER. If the American people knew we met the President's figure of $106.2 billion but we think the National Institutes of Health ought to have a priority—we have raised them $1.7 billion more than the President, we have given more money to special education—I think if the American people knew that, they would say those are more important priorities.

If the American people knew that we want to retain local control so school boards can spend the money the way they see fit on the local level if they do not think the President's priorities are preferable, that they prefer local control to a Washington, DC, bureaucratic straitjacket, then we could have that decision.

But this Senator is not at all concerned about 1-day continuing resolutions. I am prepared to stay here a lot longer than is the President.

I yield for a question.

Mr. DORGAN. I thank the Senator for yielding for a brief question. If the Senator's contention is there was enough money in the budget this spring for domestic discretionary, why, then, are people on his side discussing the need to increase the budget caps, the spending caps?

Mr. STEVENS. If I may answer that, with regard to the bill on which we are about ready to vote, I, as chairman, delegated some of the 302(b) allowance to Health and Human Services to VA–HUD and to the other bill, energy and water. It is because of the limits that were set in the 1997 act, not just the budget resolution. We have not lifted them to the point to have enough money to pass this bill.

Mr. BOND. Mr. President, might I ask if everybody will yield back the time so we can get on with the votes?

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, I make a point of order a quorum is not present.

Mr. BOND. Mr. President, there are other pressing matters. It is an interesting discussion that might go on after the vote.

Mr. DOMENICI. Regular order.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Time has expired.

The Senator from Nevada.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, it is my understanding now we are going to vote on VA–HUD. After that, because of one of the senior Members, and others, we are going to have to wait until the papers get here before we vote on the CR. I understand they should be here momentarily. I am sure by the time the vote is closed they will be here, so I hope we can go to the vote now on VA–HUD.

Mr. STEVENS. Mr. President, parliamentary inquiry: Isn't there an order to vote back to back on these bills?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There is an understanding that will occur. That will be the case.

Mr. STEVENS. Is it the order, the unanimous consent agreement?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Time has expired on both measures, and votes will occur on both measures back to back.

Mr. STEVENS. Let's run the first one here.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

VOTE ON H.R. 4635 CONFERENCE REPORT

Mr. BOND. Mr. President, have the yeas and nays been ordered on the VA–HUD conference report?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. They have not.

Mr. BOND. Mr. President, I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There is a sufficient second.

The question is on agreeing to the conference report. The clerk will call the roll.

BANKRUPTCY REFORM ACT OF 2000—CONFERENCE REPORT

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Committee of Conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the Senate on the bill H.R. 2415, an Act to enhance security of United States missions and personnel overseas, to authorize appropriations for the Department of State for fiscal year 2000, and for other purposes, having met, have agreed that the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate, and agree to the same with an amendment, and the Senate agree to the same, signed by a majority of the conferees on the part of both Houses.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senate will proceed to the consideration of the conference report.

(The report was printed in the House proceedings of the RECORD of October 11, 2000.)

NATIONAL ENERGY SECURITY ACT OF 2000—MOTION TO PROCEED

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The majority leader.

Mr. LOTT. I now move to proceed to S. 2557, regarding America's dependence on oil.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The motion is debatable.

UNANIMOUS CONSENT AGREEMENT—H.J. RES. 114

Mr. LOTT. I ask unanimous consent when the Senate receives from the House the continuing resolution, the resolution be immediately considered, advanced to third reading and passed, and the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table, all without intervening action, motion, or debate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

PROGRAM

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, for the information of all Senators, then, the Senate will have conducted its last vote for the day. We will adjourn shortly, although I understand there is one bill that is going to be taken up with some brief debate, and also there will be some debate on the bankruptcy issue. The Senate will not be in session on Friday, but the appropriations negotiators and others who are negotiating some policy decisions will be meeting tomorrow and throughout the weekend, if necessary.

The Senate will be in session on Monday, and I expect that there will be a period for morning business. Unless some procedural step is necessary regarding the bankruptcy bill, I do not expect any further announcements with regard to the schedule.

The Senate will next be in session after that on Tuesday. Therefore, votes could occur on Tuesday in an effort to wrap up the session of Congress. We do have four appropriations bills that need to be completed, and, one way or another, we also are looking at a tax package and, of course, bankruptcy, with a vote on cloture if necessary.

Later on, either tomorrow or Monday, we will notify Members jointly as to exactly when votes could be expected, but it will depend on when agreements are reached, when the conference reports are filed, and when the House acts because I think in each of these four instances the House would have to act first. We will move on the bankruptcy, depending on what is happening on these appropriations bills and the tax package.

MORNING BUSINESS

I now ask unanimous consent the Senate proceed to a period for morning business with Senators permitted to speak up to 10 minutes each.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. WELLSTONE. I object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Objection is heard.

Mr. WELLSTONE. Mr. President, my understanding is we are on the bankruptcy bill, is that correct?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. No. We are on a motion to proceed to S. 2557.

Mr. WELLSTONE. Mr. President, I withdraw my objection.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Several Senators addressed the Chair.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, if the Senator from Minnesota will withhold for a moment?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The assistant minority leader.

Mr. REID. I wanted to ask the majority leader a couple of questions. I say to my friend, as he knows, there is some angst over here as to whether or not the people, especially from the West, have to travel back here on Tuesday.

We will have to know Monday night; otherwise, Senators have to catch planes early Tuesday morning to get back on time.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I say to Senator REID, we had to make a decision last Monday. Unfortunately, we did not immediately communicate with both sides of the aisle because it was late in the afternoon. We need to be in close touch. I will be here Monday. I know the Senator from Nevada will be. Once we see when the reports are filed and when these votes will be ready, we will be prepared to notify everybody as to when they can expect a vote.

It appears to me it is possible we could have one or more of these conference reports ready late Tuesday, but if it becomes apparent the House is not going to get it until late Tuesday or even late in the afternoon, we may want to make a conscious decision to go ahead and announce Monday those votes may not occur until Wednesday.

I think we need another day or perhaps the weekend to see if these agreements can be worked out between the House and Senate Republicans and Democrats and the White House and get the reports filed. It is impossible to say right now. I assume all Senators would like to get this work completed as soon as possible. If we can do it Tuesday and Wednesday, I presume that is preferable, but if it is going to be Wednesday or Wednesday/Thursday, then obviously Senators want to know that. I will stay in close touch with Senator REID, and we will make those decisions and those announcements jointly, not later than Monday afternoon.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I say to my friend, if we knew sometime late Monday afternoon, 4, 5, even 6 o'clock, we could——

Mr. LOTT. I will be out here. I will see the Senator from Nevada on the floor. We will make those calls at that time and notify everybody so they at least have 24 hours' notice.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Minnesota.

BANKRUPTCY REFORM

Mr. WELLSTONE. Mr. President, I am going to take a few moments. I know Senator KENNEDY is here on the floor, and I believe Senator FEINGOLD may be coming down as well. In any case, I want colleagues to know next week when we do get back to the bankruptcy bill, whenever it is, there are a number of Senators who are ready to speak on this bill and go into its substance.

I think the 100–0 vote is an indication that we do not mind going forward with the bill, but we do intend to speak about this legislation because the more people know about this legislation, the more likely Senators will vote against it. We certainly intend to have the debate, and if there is a cloture vote next week—there may or may not be—we intend to do everything we can to defeat this legislation. We have time to debate this legislation next week. If it goes to beyond cloture, we will have more hours then to debate this legislation. Let's take one step at a time.

I will point out to Senators the process first, and then we will go to substance. I do not know whether or not this is an argument that wins with the public. The argument about this bankruptcy bill on substance wins with the public. We have had some discussion about the scope of the conference and rule XXVIII.

This was a State Department authorization bill. We had an ''invasion of the body snatchers'' where all of the content dealing with State Department reauthorization has been taken out and bankruptcy has been put in. It is a clear abuse of the legislative process. I doubt whether any Senator who views himself as a legislator can be comfortable with the way we are proceeding.

I believe there are many Senators who are going to want to speak about this outrageous process. I do not know if I have ever seen anything like this where we have a State Department reauthorization bill conference report that is hollowed out, gutted completely, and replaced by the bankruptcy reform bill conference report. It is unbelievable. It is beyond anything I ever imagined could go wrong in the Senate. It is a way to jam something through, but in one way I can understand why the majority leader and others would try to jam this through because the content, the actual legislation itself, is so egregious.

I simply point out to Senators that there is not one word, not one aspect of this legislation—next week I will have a chance to talk a lot about it; we will talk a lot about this legislation—there is not one word, not one provision, not one sentence, not one section which holds credit card companies or large banks accountable for their predatory practices. There is no accountability whatsoever.

We have nothing in this legislation that holds them accountable, but what we do have is legislation that, first of all, rests on a faulty premise. The bill addresses a crisis that does not exist. We keep hearing these scare statistics, which, by the way, do not jibe with the empirical evidence that there has been all these increased bankruptcy filings. In fact, bankruptcy filings have fallen dramatically over the last 2 years.

We have heard about the abuse. The American Bankruptcy Institute points out that, at best, we are talking about 3 percent of the people who file chapter 7 who actually could pay back their debts; 3-percent abuse, and for 3-percent abuse, what we are doing is tearing up a safety net for middle-income people, for working-income people, for low-income people who are trying to rebuild their lives.

Do we do anything about health care costs? No. Is the No. 1 cause of bankruptcy medical bills? Yes. Do we do anything about raising the minimum wage? No. Do we do anything about affordable housing? No. Do we do anything about affordable prescription drugs for elderly people? No. But the banking industry and the credit card industry get a free ride, and we pass a piece of legislation which is so harsh that it will make it difficult for middle-income people, much less low-income people, to rebuild their lives.

Hardly anybody abuses this. No one wants to go through bankruptcy. People are doing it because there is a major illness in their family. They are doing it because somebody lost their job. They are doing it because of some financial catastrophe. When people today try to rebuild their lives, we come to the floor of the Senate with a piece of legislation basically written by the credit card industry, written by the big financial institutions. They are the ones with all the clout. They are the ones with all the say.

I say to my colleagues, it is not coincidental that every civil rights organization opposes this; that every labor organization opposes this; that almost every single women's and children's organization opposes this; that the vast majority of the religious communities and organizations oppose this.

Today we had a vote to proceed, but next week there will be an all-out debate and we will focus on the harshness of this legislation, the one-sidedness of this legislation. By the way, this legislation in this hollowed out sham conference report is worse than the legislation that passed the Senate.

Now we have a bill that says to women, single women, children, low- and moderate-income families: You are not going to be able to rebuild your lives; we are going to pass a piece of legislation that is going to make it impossible for you to rebuild your lives even when you have been put under because of a huge medical bill, no fault of your own. At the same time, for those folks who have lots of money, if they want to go to one of the five States where they can put all their money into a $1 million or $2 million home, they are exempt; they are OK.

This is what the majority party brings before the Senate. It is unbelievable. No wonder they have to do it through this ''invasion of the body snatchers'' conference report. They take a State Department conference report, gut it, take out every provision that deals with the State Department reauthorization, and put in a bankruptcy bill that is even more harsh than the one that passed the Senate that is anticonsumer, antiwomen, antichildren, antiworking people and I think anti some basic values about fairness and justice.

I hope next week—I do not hope, I know—there will be a sharp debate, and we are prepared to debate this; we are prepared to use every single privilege we have as Senators to fight this tooth and nail.

And next week there will be a long, spirited discussion about this piece of legislation.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. SMITH of Oregon). The Senator from Massachusetts.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, I want to, first of all, thank my friend and colleague, the Senator from Minnesota, for his very eloquent statement, and most of all for all of his good work in protecting working families in this country on this extremely important piece of legislation.

I, too, am troubled, as I mentioned earlier today, by the fact that with all the unfinished business we have in the Senate that now with the final hours coming up next week, we are being asked to have an abbreviated debate and discussion on the whole issue of bankruptcy without the opportunity for amendments. Effectively, we are being asked to take it or leave it on legislation which is going to affect millions of our fellow citizens.

I had wished that we had scheduled other legislation, as I mentioned earlier today. I wish we were willing to come on back to the Elementary and Secondary Education Act or in terms of a Patients' Bill of Rights or a prescription drug program for our seniors in our country.

As someone who has been traveling around my own State, this is what I hear from families all over Massachusetts: Why isn't the Senate doing its business? Why didn't it do its business reauthorizing the Elementary and Secondary Education Act? This is the first time in 34 years that it has not done so. Why is it 3 weeks late in terms of appropriating funding for education, of which we hear a great deal in the Presidential debates? And in the Congress, aren't we somehow sensitive to what our leaders are saying in the Republican and Democratic parties about the importance of education? Here we are now 3 weeks late, and the last appropriation, evidently, is going to be the education one. That is not the way that we think we ought to be doing business.

So we find ourselves coming back to this issue—or will next week—on the question of whether we are going to accept bankruptcy legislation.

I want to make a few points at the outset of my remarks: some proponents of this legislation argue that all the outstanding concerns about the bill have been resolved and that the problems have been fixed. That is simply untrue. It is a myth that women and children are protected under the provisions of this bill.

Over 30 organizations that advocate for women and children wrote us and said that by increasing the rights of many creditors—including credit card companies, finance companies, auto lenders, and others—the bill would set up a competition for scarce resources between parents and children owed child support, and commercial creditors, both during and after bankruptcy. Contrary to the claims of some, the domestic support provisions included in the bill would not solve these problems.

I have here a list of advocates for women and children who are opposed to this bill. I listened recently, a few hours ago, to a very impassioned statement by one of my colleagues about how the women and children were being protected. Here is a list—and I will include the list in the Record—of groups that, for the life of their years, have been advocates for children and women. These groups say that provisions in the conference committee report are going to put children and women at serious risk and that the proposed bankruptcy law will do a significant disservice to their rights. This is not only what these various groups have said, but this is also the conclusion of the 82 bankruptcy scholars I have listed that I will include in the RECORD.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the letter written by 82 bankruptcy scholars to our colleagues outlining the provisions of the conference report that put women and children at risk be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the letter was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

SEPTEMBER 7, 1999.

Re The Bankruptcy Reform Act of 1999 (S. 625)

Hon. ORRIN HATCH,
Chairman, Committee on the Judiciary, U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

Hon. PATRICK LEAHY,
Ranking Member, Committee on the Judiciary, U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATORS: We understand that the United States Senate is scheduled to consider S. 625, the Bankruptcy Reform Act of 1999, in the near future. This letter offers the views of the eighty-two (82) undersigned professors of bankruptcy and commercial law on important consumer bankruptcy aspects of this legislation.

We recognize the concern that some individuals and families are filing for chapter 7 bankruptcy to be relieved of financial obligations when they otherwise could repay some or all of their debts. Fostering increased personal responsibility is a worthwhile aim. However, we believe that S. 625 as currently drafted will not achieve the goals of bankruptcy reform in an equitable and effective manner, and we fear that some provisions of the bill have the potential to do more harm than good.

Specifically, we urge consideration of two principal points:

The ''means test'' in S. 625 may not identify those individuals with the ability to repay a substantial portion of their debts, while at the same time it may work considerable hardship on financially strapped individuals and families filing bankruptcy petitions that are not abusive.

This bill contains much more than a means test. Dozens of provisions in S. 625 substantially enhance the rights of a variety of creditor interests and increase the cost and complexity of the system. Taken as a whole, these provisions may adversely affect women and children—both as debtors and creditors—as well as other financially vulnerable individuals and families.

MEANS TEST

The cornerstone of consumer bankruptcy reform is the ''means test.'' Why have a means test? The perception is that some debtors with a meaningful ability to repay their debts are filing chapter 7 to discharge those debts, and instead should repay their debts in chapter 13. A means test is supposed to find and exclude those ''can-pay'' debtors from chapter 7. The trick is identifying the real abusers at an acceptable cost, without unfairly burdening those ''honest but unfortunate'' debtors who legitimately need chapter 7 bankruptcy relief.

In thinking about the proper design of a means test, it first is essential to understand the extent to which individuals and families are actually abusing the bankruptcy system. Since last year's debates on bankruptcy reform, a study funded by the independent and nonpartisan American Bankruptcy Institute found that less than 4% of consumer debtors could repay even 25% of their unsecured nonpriority debts if they could dedicate every penny of income to a repayment plan for a full 5 years. In short, for about 96% of consumer debtors, chapter 7 bankruptcy is an urgent necessity. Of course, the fact that most debtors cannot pay does not mean that the S. 625 means test will not affect them.

Last year, the Senate worked hard on a bankruptcy reform bill that went through substantial revision and ultimately passed by a vote of 97 to 1 (S. 1301). S. 1301 was reintroduced this year (now S. 945, known as the Durbin-Leahy bill), but was not the starting point for this year's bankruptcy reform debate, and many key provisions of S. 625 differ substantially from those in S. 1301, including many details of the means test:

S. 625 uses a rigid, arbitrary, nondiscretionary mathematical test to define ''abuse''; whether a debtor could repay 25% of $15,000 of unsecured nonpriority debts over 5 years versus S. 945, which considers whether a debtor could repay 30% of such debts over 3 years in a chapter 13 plan under the standards used in chapter 13 today. In an effort to impose a standardized and objective means test, S. 625 contains loopholes that permit high income debtors to escape the means test by incurring extra secured debt or reducing income. Individualized discretion vested in the hands of those closest to the front—the able bankruptcy judges—will be more effective in identifying abusive cases.

S. 625 uses rigid IRS collection standards, which have been criticized by Congress in other debates, to determine the allowable expenses of families versus S. 945, which analyzes actual expenses and whether those expenses are reasonable. The IRS collection standards are used by the IRS on a case-by-case basis and are not well suited to form the basis of an objective bankruptcy means test, particularly because they do not automatically cover critical expenses such as health insurance and child care. As noted by House Judiciary Committee Chairman Henry Hyde, using the IRS collection standards as part of a bankruptcy means test may produce substantial hardship for financially troubled families. That hardship is unnecessary when there are other more effective ways to determine whether a debtor has the ability to repay debts.

S. 625 measures debtors' ability to pay over 5 years versus S. 945, which measures ability to pay over 3 years, which is currently the standard duration of chapter 13 repayment plans. Already, two-thirds of individuals who file under chapter 13 do not make it to the end of a 3-year plan. It is unrealistic, and perhaps even a bit misleading, to gauge an individual's ability to pay over 5 years when the likelihood of that happening is not very high.

ADVERSE EFFECT OF CONSUMER BANKRUPTCY OVERHAUL ON FINANCIALLY VULNERABLE FAMILIES, SUCH AS SINGLE PARENT HOUSEHOLDS

Spanning approximately 350 pages, S. 625 clearly is much more than a means test. Many of the provisions in this reform effort, particularly those that enhance creditors' rights and complicate bankruptcy procedures, substantially alter the relief available in both chapter 7 and chapter 13 repayment plans. These changes may or may not do much to prevent abuse of the system, but for the most part they apply to all bankruptcy cases and may produce unintended consequences.

Last year, numerous Senators, Administration officials, and bankruptcy experts expressed concern that certain elements of bankruptcy reform may increase the hurdles for financially troubled women and children to collect support payments and gain financial stability. Since then, a set of domestic support provisions has been added to the bill. Those provisions may be helpful to state support enforcement agencies and, in some instances, to women and children trying to collect support. However, those provisions are not at all responsive to the concerns originally identified. A close look suggests that these concerns persist:

First: Women and children as creditors will have to compete with powerful creditors to collect their claims after bankruptcy.

Current bankruptcy law provides that deadbeat debtor husbands and fathers cannot be relieved of liability for alimony, maintenance, and support, which means that those women and children as creditors are still entitled to collect domestic support from the debtor after he emerges from bankruptcy. Importantly, relatively few other debts are usually excluded from discharge, increasing the likelihood that the support recipients will be able to collect both past-due and ongoing support payments. S. 625 substantially alters that situation and increases the number of large and powerful creditors who can continue to collect their debts after bankruptcy, competing with women and children to collect their debts after bankruptcy. Women and children are likely to lose that competition.

Following are just a few examples of how S. 625 increases the competition women and children will face:

Debtors will remain liable for more credit card debts after the bankruptcy process is over. This will be true even for debtors who dedicate every penny to a 5-year chapter 13 repayment plan.

Debtors will be pressured to retain legal liability for more consumer debts by signing reaffirmation agreements, particularly in connection with debts incurred with the charge cards of large retail stores.

More of the debtor's limited resources will be siphoned off to pay creditors claiming that their debts are secured by the debtor's property, even if that property is nearly worthless.

Second: Giving ''first priority'' to domestic support obligations does not address the problem.

Arguing that the bill now favors the claims of women and children, proponents of this reform effort emphasize that the bill gives ''first priority'' to domestic support obligations. In practice, this change in priority is not responsive to the major problems for women and children in this bill. Why is this so?

Changing the priority in distribution during bankruptcy will make a difference to women and children in less than 1% of the cases, and could actually result in reduced payments in some instances.

The priority provision does not affect priority or collection rights after the bankruptcy case is over. Collecting after bankruptcy—not during bankruptcy—is often the significant issue for support recipients.

Third: Substantial enhancements of creditors' rights, without sufficient protections to keep those powers in check, undercut the opportunity for financial rehabilitation for women and children who file for bankruptcy themselves.

It is estimated that 540,000 women will file bankruptcy alone in 1999. Many of the provisions that harm the interests of women as creditors will hurt women who use the system as debtors, some of whom file after being unable to collect support. S. 625 is replete with provisions that tighten the screws on families who legitimately need debt relief through bankruptcy, and also contains many new roadblocks and cumbersome informational requirements that will substantially increase the cost of accessing the system for the families who are most in need of debt relief and financial rehabilitation.

As professors of commercial and bankruptcy law, we urge the distinguished members of the United States Senate to enact bankruptcy reform that restores an appropriate balance to the legitimate interests of all debtors and creditors. Bankruptcy law is a very complex system. Great care must be taken when revising that system not to make things worse. We have faith that you can bring about positive change.

Thank you for your consideration.

Mr. KENNEDY. I will just read at this time this particular paragraph of the letter:

Last year, numerous Senators, Administration officials, and bankruptcy experts expressed concern that certain elements of bankruptcy reform may increase the hurdles for financially troubled women and children to collect support payments and gain financial stability. Since then, a set of domestic support provisions has been added to the bill. Those provisions may be helpful to state support enforcement agencies and, in some instances, to women and children trying to collect support. However, those provisions are not at all responsive to the concerns originally identified. A close look suggests that these concerns persist:

Women and children as creditors will have to compete with powerful creditors to collect their claims after bankruptcy.

There it is: ''Women and children as creditors will have to compete with powerful creditors to collect their claims after bankruptcy''—period.

Who do you think is going to win? The powerful creditors or the women and the children? The women who might be out there trying to collect alimony, or the mothers who, as a result of a separation or divorce, are trying to get child support, or the creditors who are represented by powerful financial interests and a whole battery of lawyers? Who do we think is going to win?

Those who have studied the bankruptcy laws—without being Republican or Democrat—have all stated their belief that creditors are going to win. As a result, the women and children are going to be put at risk. So we are going to hear a great deal about how this legislation protects women and children. It does not. It does not. And we will welcome the opportunity to engage in that debate as this process moves along.

A second point that is mentioned in this letter—I will again just read a portion of it:

Giving ''first priority'' to domestic support obligations does not address the problem.

Arguing that the bill now favors the claims—

This is an additional reference to the point about women and children—

Arguing that the bill now favors the claims of women and children, proponents of this reform effort emphasize that the bill gives ''first priority'' to domestic support obligations. In practice, this change in priority is not responsive to the major problems for women and children in the bill. Why is this so?

Changing the priority in distribution during bankruptcy will make a difference to women and children in less than 1 percent of the cases, and could actually result in reduced payments in some instances.

Second:

The priority provision does not affect priority or collection rights after the bankruptcy case is over. Collecting after bankruptcy—not during bankruptcy—is often the significant issue for support recipients.

Here it is. They know how to work the language. The credit card companies know how to work the language to give the facade that they are protecting the women and children, but they are not. They are putting them at greater risk.

Why, with all the things that need to be done in this country at this time, we are trying to stampede the Senate into legislation that is going to put women and children at greater risk when they are facing hardships in their lives, is beyond my comprehension in one respect, but it is very understandable in another respect; and that is because of the same reasons that we are not getting a Patients' Bill of Rights up before us, because of the power of the HMOs and the HMO industry that are daily putting at risk the well-being and the health of American patients all across this country.

Even though there is a bipartisan majority in the House and in the Senate, the Republican leadership is refusing to bring that bill up for a vote. At the same time, they are developing what they are calling balanced budget legislation to try to give allegedly a restoration of some funding to assist some providers because of the cuts that were made at the time of the balanced budget amendment a few years ago, which took a great deal more out of those providers than ever was intended. It is generally agreed that we would restore some of those funds. Who has the priority under the Republicans? The HMOs. They want to give them the money whether they agree to continue to provide the health care or not to our Medicare beneficiaries. They just dropped close to a million of them last year, and they are here with their hands out to get another payoff.

Well, we should ask, why have we gotten this legislation? It is quite clearly because of the credit card companies that have been willing to make those contributions as well. Let the contributions fall where they may, whether they include the Democrats or the Republicans. There is no question the Republican leadership has put us in the position of bringing this proposal up in the final hours of the Congress.

Proponents also argue that the bill provides relief to small businesses which are filing for bankruptcy, but the legislation in many ways makes it more difficult for small businesses to reorganize. The effect is, more and more small businesses will fail and thousands of American workers will lose their jobs. That is the reason the various organizations that represent workers are strongly opposed to it. We heard from one of our colleagues that this is going to make it a great deal easier for small businesses. Why then are organizations that are representing these workers coming out so strongly in opposition? They understand that the provisions of the small business proposal impose more onerous and costly requirements on small businesses than they do on big businesses.

The bill requires that small business debtors comply with a host of new bureaucratic filing requirements and periodic reports. Large businesses are not subject to these requirements. Senior management of small business debtors must attend a variety of meetings at the U.S. trustee's discretion. Senior management of large businesses do not. Under this bill, small business debtors are subject to an extra layer of scrutiny by the U.S. trustee who must assess whether the debtor lacks business viability and should be dismissed out of bankruptcy. Large business debtors are not. Small business debtors are subject to repeated filing restrictions. Large business debtors are not.

I am not suggesting that large businesses should be subject to all of these provisions. I am suggesting, however, that these provisions should be reconsidered.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator's time has expired.

Mr. KENNEDY. Are we under a time constraint?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Ten minutes.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent for 3 more minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, I will have more to say about this. I think it is very important to understand that traditionally when we get legislation, we ask who are the beneficiaries and who will pay the price for the legislation. We balance those various factors.

Quite frankly, when we look at this legislation, the people who will bear the hardship for the fact that there is some abuse in the bankruptcy laws—that we could all agree need attention and need to be addressed—are the most vulnerable in our society and are paying an extremely unfair price. That is absolutely wrong. We are going to have a good opportunity to address that in the debate to come.

I thank the Chair and yield the floor.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. President, I am compelled to respond to some of the outlandish allegations that have been made against the bipartisan bankruptcy bill that passed this Senate twice with over 90 votes, I believe, both times. It is a bill that has been under discussion for well over 2 years. I personally negotiated not long ago with the White House and Senator REID the last problem we had with the bill. We worked that out to the satisfaction of those who were negotiating it. I thought we were well on the way to finally passing this bill.

What we have in this body is a group of Senators who vote for it but, when the chips are down, don't help us get it up for the final vote.

The suggestion that there has been no opportunity for debate is certainly wrong. We debated it in committee, extensively in the Judiciary Committee, where I am a member. We debated it on the floor two separate years and earlier this year in great detail. We received a whole host of amendments, and we debated those amendments in detail. We voted on those amendments. It has gone to conference. Now we have a bill on the floor, and Senators are complaining that they can't now offer more amendments. You don't amend a conference report after it has been to conference. That is true of every bill that ever goes through this body.

It is shocking to me to hear some of the things that have been said about this bill. What this legislation does is say we have to do something about this incredible increase in the filing of bankruptcies in America. Over a million—it has doubled in 10 or 12 years—is the number of people who have been filing bankruptcy. Why is that so? Because you can go to your bankruptcy lawyer and if you owe $30,000 and you make $30,000 a year, you can file bankruptcy, not pay your debts, not pay one dime that you owe—not a dime—and walk away scot-free by filing under chapter 7. That is happening every day in this country, and it is an absolute abuse. It is wrong.

The family that does its best every day to pay its debts and tries to do right, are they chumps? Are they dumb because they don't run up a bunch of debts and not pay their debts and then go down to the bankruptcy lawyer and just file bankruptcy, even though they could have paid those debts if they tried to do so?

This bill addresses at its fundamental core the bankruptcy machine that is out there being driven by advertising you see on your TVs virtually every night all over America until 11 or 12 o'clock. There are these ads: Got debt problems? Call old Joe, the bankruptcy lawyer. He will take care of you.

Do you know what they tell them when they get there? They say: First of all, Mr. Client, you need to pay me $1,000, $2,000.

I really don't have that, Mr. Lawyer.

Don't pay any more debts. Get all your paychecks. Collect all your paychecks. Bring the money to me. Keep paying on your credit card. Run up your debt, and then we will file bankruptcy for you, and we will wipe out all the debts; you won't have to pay them.

The lawyer gets his money. There are lawyers of whom I am aware personally who get paid $1,000 or more and have done 1,000 or more in 1 year. That is $1 million a year, just routine, running this money through the system, basically ripping off people who need to be paid.

Make no mistake about it, when an individual does not pay what he owes and what he could pay, we all pay. Who pays? The one who is honest and pays his debts. He ultimately gets stuck with higher interest rates. The businesses lose money and can't afford to operate. That is what is happening.

They say: Well, it is health care. If you have severe medical problems and you are not able to pay your debts, you ought not to have to pay your debts.

But why should you be able to not pay the hospital, if you can? That is the question. If you can pay the bill, shouldn't you pay it? That is the question.

The fundamental part of this bill is, if you are making above median income in America, that is adjusted by how many children you have. If you have more children, your income level goes up for median income—the factors included in that. So if you can't pay your debt, you get to wipe out all your debts just like today under chapter 7. If your income is $100,000 a year and you owe $50,000 and you can easily pay at least some of that $50,000, under this law—and you make above median income—you can ask the creditors whom who you are not paying to ask the judge to put you into chapter 13. The judge may say: Mr. Debtor, you owe $50,000. We don't believe you can pay all the debt. You need to pay $10,000 of that back, and you will pay it so much a month over 3 years in chapter 13.

Chapter 13 is not a disaster. It is not a horrible thing. As a matter of fact, in my State, chapter 13 is exceedingly popular. I believe more than half of the bankruptcy filings in Alabama are filed under chapter 13 instead of chapter 7, which just wipes out your debt. With chapter 13, you go to the judge and say: I have more debts than I can pay. The creditors are calling me, and I can't pay all of them at once. The judge says: OK, stop. Pay all of your money to the court, and we will pay it out to each one of these creditors so much a month. You get to have so much to live on for you and your family.

It works pretty well. We need to do more of this. That is what this legislation will do. That is the fundamental principle.

They say: Well, it doesn't do anything about credit card solicitations.

This isn't a credit card bill. This is a debt bill. This is a bankruptcy bill. We have a banking committee that deals with credit card legislation. We had votes on credit card legislation on the floor, and people have had their say. Some passed, and some didn't. This is not a credit card bill. This is a bill to reform a legal system in America, the bankruptcy court system, which is a Federal court system that I believe is in a disastrous condition.

We have had this surge of bankruptcy filings. It has become a common thing to just up and file for bankruptcy. People used to have a severe aversion to ever filing for bankruptcy. Now that is being eroded by the advertisements and so forth that they see. There is an abuse going on.

They say it does not do anything for women and children. I am astounded at that. Under this law, alimony and child support will be moved up to the No. 1 priority in bankruptcy—even above the lawyers. That is probably why we got such an objection. The bankruptcy lawyers are the ones stirring this up, in my view.

That means if a deadbeat dad wants to file bankruptcy and doesn't pay his debt, comes in and has a low or moderate salary and doesn't want to pay anybody, under the old law his child support was way down behind the lawyer fees, bankruptcy fees, and some other things. We moved it up to No. 1. The first money that comes into the bankruptcy pot, if there is any, comes in there. Normally, that money goes to pay child support, which is, I believe, a historic move in favor of children.

This bill has broad support. It was suggested earlier that small business is being hurt by it. Small business favors it. They all favor this.

We are not stampeding this bill. This bill has been delayed unconscionably. It should have passed 2 years ago. It should have passed last year. It ought to pass this year. We have a veto-proof majority in the House and a veto-proof majority in the Senate.

It helps this economy. It helps bring integrity back into the system. It allows individuals to go down there to bankruptcy and represent themselves. They don't even have to have a lawyer. It has a lot of different things in it that are good. It eliminates a lot of loopholes and abuses that everybody agrees need to be fixed.

I can't understand this. It seems to me there is some sort of effort to yell, scream, and just say how horrible it is, and perhaps provide some figleaf to encourage the President to veto this bill. I hope he does not.

They say: Well, it has a protection in there for millionaires to have money in their houses in Florida and Texas and States that have an unlimited homestead exemption.

That is a problem. I have fought to eliminate that. We were not able to do that. The States that have the historic State procedures on this fought us tooth and claw. But this bill makes substantial progress toward eliminating that view. There is no doubt that the problem with homestead is far better in this legislation today than it is under current law if we don't do anything about it. A vote against this bill is a vote to keep the ineffective, bad current law, and not make the improvement this bill makes.

I believe it is good legislation. Senator GRASSLEY has worked on it tenaciously. We have been very cooperative with others who have problems. Time and again, it has been fixed to accommodate concerns that others would have. I believe it is a fair bill. I believe it is a good bill. I believe it is time for this country to improve what is going on in bankruptcy all over America today. And most bankrupts are entitled to it and need it.

But there are substantial numbers with high incomes who could pay large portions of that debt, if they wanted to. But once they talked to those lawyers who tell them they don't have to, they file under chapter 7 and wipe out much of their debts, and they go on leaving someone else to carry the burden.

I thank the Chair for the time. I yield the floor.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, I'm glad we're getting around to the bankruptcy bill. I think we've got a good product. This conference report is basically the Senate-passed bankruptcy bill with certain minimal changes made to accommodate the House of Representatives. The means-test retains the essential flexibility that we passed in the Senate. The new consumer protections sponsored by Senator REED of Rhode Island relating to reaffirmations is in this report. The credit card disclosures sponsored by Senator TORRICELLI are also in this final conference report. We also maintained Senator LEAHY's special protections for victims of domestic violence and Senator FEINGOLD's special protections for expenses associated with caring for non-dependent family members.

So, Mr. President, on the consumer bankruptcy side, we maintained the Senate's position.

On the business side of things, we kept Senator KENNEDY's changes to the small business provisions. We have kept the international trade section intact. The financial netting provisions were updated to reflect technical changes suggested by the House. The new netting provisions, however, have universal support.

Finally, Mr. President, I want to make one point crystal clear. Because of objections from the other side of the aisle, we have been delayed in getting this conference report up. Because of this delay and these kind of underhanded tactics, Congress has allowed chapter 12 to just expire. Chapter 12 gives family farmers a real chance to reorganize their affairs. But that's gone now. This bill restores chapter 12. This conference report also expands the eligibility for chapter 12 so more farmers will have access to these special protections. Also, Mr. President, this conference report gives farmers in chapter 12 much-needed capital gains tax relief.

We hear a lot about helping farmers around here. This bill gives us a chance to do a lot of good. We should get on with passing this bill right away and stop playing political games with our farmers.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Jersey is recognized.

BROWNFIELDS REVITALIZATION

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Mr. President, I want to raise an issue that I believe is critical for the Congress to address before we adjourn this year. It is an issue on which environmentalists, the business community, and the labor community strongly agree. It is called the Brownfields Revitalization Act. I say it is called that. I have to explain exactly what we are talking about here.

It is an issue upon which Republicans and Democrats agree. The Brownfields Revitalization Act of 2000 is a bill I introduced with Senator CHAFEE. It now has 67 cosponsors. Two-thirds of the Senate say this is a good piece of legislation and we ought to pass it. That includes, obviously, a majority of both sides of the political aisle—a rare example of overwhelming bipartisan support.

Some accuse us of being a ''do-nothing Congress,'' that we are stuck in partisan disagreement. That can be said. But I can tell you, it cannot be said about this brownfields bill. We ought to pass it here and now as a way to show that we can still move bipartisan legislation in the Senate.

We have strong support. Dozens of environmental organizations, business, labor, and State and local governments support the bill, including the U.S. Conference of Mayors, the Real Estate Round Table, and the National Association of Realtors. It is a mix of people and interests, including the Institute of Scrap Recycling Industries and the Natural Resources Council. The list is a very long one, including various communities throughout the country as well as the organizations I mentioned.

Many don't know what we are talking about when we say brownfields. We will explain it. These are contaminated sites. They are abandoned properties that blight our communities. But also, they lie there waiting to be developed because they offer great promise for the future.

According to the Conference of Mayors, there are over 450,000 brownfield sites in the United States. They are, of course, in every State of the Union. There are brownfields in rural and urban areas and large and small communities. Citizens everywhere would benefit from this bill.

There are economic and environmental benefits from cleaning up brownfields. That is why the business community and labor so strongly support the bipartisan brownfields bill.

The Conference of Mayors has estimated that redeveloping these sites would create almost 600,000 jobs, would increase tax revenues, by their estimate, from somewhere between $900 million to $2.4 billion. What a benefit that would be to communities.

In a city in my State, Elizabeth, NJ, a town I lived in when I was growing up, we turned an abandoned site, that lay fallow for years, into an enormous shopping mall, with more than a million square feet of retail space and 5,000 permanent jobs. Elizabeth is one of the oldest industrial cities in the State of New Jersey. It is actively trying to build for the future. They are looking at hotels and a convention center thanks to brownfield revitalization. The successes in Elizabeth established proof that brownfields create jobs, hope, and opportunity for communities.

In Trenton, NJ, we have a very famous company that builds steel for bridges and structures all across this country, formally called Roebling & Sons. We have a picture of what happened to this site as it sat for years. I know my State so well; I remember the dump site. It was almost a lagoon of toxins. It was broken down. Anyone could see in the picture the terrible deteriorating condition.

Then we have a brownfield restoration program and this is what happened: It became a full-service supermarket, the first market in the city in many years. This is our capital city, with an office building and senior housing. It is almost a miraculous rebirth.

There is a risk in letting these brownfield sites sit there. The risks are substantial. They pose threats to human health and the environment, they create blighted downtown areas often leading to crime and loss of jobs. It forces development of farmland and open spaces. It causes sprawl. The result is increased driving time for those who have cars living in these cities, with traffic congestion and air pollution.

The bipartisan brownfields bill will make major strides in revitalizing sites across the country. They are small sites, typically for $200,000 and less. They can be turned into productive urban centers or rural centers where commerce can take place and jobs exist.

The bill provides critically needed funds to assess and clean up abandoned and underutilized brownfield sites. They can use them for parks and greenways. They encourage cleanup and redevelopment of the properties by providing another important element: legal protection for innocent parties such as contiguous property owners and prospective purchasers, innocent land owners. They need to know that their liabilities are limited. Otherwise they are not going to take the risk in putting money into the sites.

It helps, also, to encourage other cleanups of State and local sites creating a certainty for those who would invest there, and ensures protection for public health. When the sites are revitalized, the results are obvious: jobs, a stronger local tax base, curbing sprawl, preserving open space, and protecting the health of our citizens.

Some suggest there are other ways to solve this problem by revitalizing or reforming or reauthorizing our Superfund Program. That is a nice idea, but unfortunately, we have been working 8 years to get the parties together to get the Superfund Program reauthorized. The Superfund handles the enormous sites that dot our landscape, without success.

I, personally, since I have been so involved in the environmental committee and in environmental issues, wanted to get to work on Superfund and get it done before I left the Senate, which is effectively in the next few days. I will have lost my opportunity to talk on this floor and get some of the things done that we still have ahead. The value of this legislation is real and it is current.

While the sites, by their very definition, are not the size of Superfund sites, the overwhelming majority of brownfields are not Federal cleanup problems but are being cleaned up by States and local governments.

This bill will give incentives and protection at those hundreds of thousands of State sites. We owe this relief to our communities. They can take the money and get an investor to develop the site. We should not hold this bill hostage. There are 67 Members, two-thirds of the Senate, bipartisan, who do not want to see this bill lying around here and not getting passed. Mr. President, 67 Senators have spoken. Business groups support this, as do environmentalists, and State and local governments. The legislation ought to pass.

It is a very simple task. The time for this bill to pass is now. I hope my colleagues will act to move this legislation as quickly as possible. They have cosponsored the bill. If we can just put it in the line of things, it need not take a long time to debate or discuss. I hope we can pass this legislation soon.

I yield the floor.

MAKING FURTHER CONTINUING APPROPRIATIONS FOR FISCAL YEAR 2001

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, H.J. Res. 114 is read the third time and passed.

The motion to reconsider is laid upon the table.

COLORADO UTE SETTLEMENT ACT AMENDMENTS OF 2000

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Colorado.

Mr. CAMPBELL. I ask unanimous consent that the Senate now proceed to the consideration of Calendar No. 723, S. 2508, as under a previous order. I further ask consent that any votes ordered with respect to that legislation be stacked to occur at a time to be determined by the majority leader with the concurrence of the minority leader.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The clerk will report the bill by title.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (S. 2508) to amend the Colorado Ute Indian Water Rights Settlement Act of 1988 to provide for a final settlement of the claims of the Colorado Ute Indian Tribes, and for other purposes.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the bill.

AMENDMENT NO. 4303

Mr. CAMPBELL. Mr. President, I call up my amendment No. 4303.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Colorado [Mr. CAMPBELL], for himself, Mr. ALLARD, Mr. BINGAMAN, and Mr. DOMENICI, proposes an amendment numbered 4303.

Mr. CAMPBELL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

(The text of the amendment is printed in today's RECORD under ''Amendments Submitted.'')

Mr. CAMPBELL. I ask unanimous consent that 30 minutes of debate on the bill be under my control, and that 30 minutes of debate on Senator FEINGOLD's amendment be divided, 20 minutes under Senator FEINGOLD's control and 10 minutes under my control.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. CAMPBELL. Mr. President, I am pleased to be joined in offering the proposed amendment by three of my distinguished colleagues: Senator ALLARD, who is with me on the floor tonight; Senator BINGAMAN; and Senator DOMENICI from New Mexico. This is a bipartisan effort. I thank each of them for their support. All four of us representing the States of Colorado and New Mexico have actively supported this project since its inception. And, hopefully, S. 2508 will be the last time we need to deal with this long overdue project.

In 1956 and 1968, decades ago—in fact, before I was ever elected to any public office—the United States promised the residents of southwestern Colorado they could count on the Government to assist them in developing the region by ensuring an adequate and reliable water supply for the benefit of the tribes and the non-Indian community. In fact, in 1968, this project was authorized at the same time as the central Arizona project and the central Utah project, both of which have been completed.

Even before that, nearly 100 years before in 1868, the United States made a treaty that guaranteed the southern Ute and Ute Mountain Indian tribes of California a permanent homeland. No one could suggest this did not include the right to an adequate water supply.

In 1987, as a freshman Member of the House of Representatives, I introduced legislation to settle the Ute water rights claims. This settlement act was signed by President Ronald Reagan in November of 1988. For the next two Congresses, I worked to obtain the funding needed to implement this agreement, as did my colleagues from New Mexico and Colorado. The 1988 settlement act is currently the law of the land.

Unfortunately, that law has never been complied with. When I came to the Senate, I worked to secure the funding for the massive environmental studies needed on the proposed projects. I have also worked to prevent misguided attempts to deauthorize or defund this necessary project. The Federal Government's responsibility to build this project is even more urgent because the Colorado Ute tribes have claims to much of the water that is already being used and has been used for generations by their non-Indian neighbors.

The urgency of this bill has increased too because under the 1988 Agreement the Tribes can go back to court to sue the Federal Government if the project was not completed by the year 2000. That is obviously not going to happen.

The four of us I have fought for the fulfillment of these promises because I know what will happen if the Government is allowed to forget its promise to this region and walk away from its commitment to provide a firm water supply. Most important, the united States, the State of Colorado, the two Ute Tribes, and the non-Indian residents will spend the next few decades and millions of dollars in the Federal courts fighting for the limited water supply that exists in this region. There will only be losers in this fight because the non-Indians will lose the legal right to use the water, and the indians may never have the ability to put the water to use. The ironic part is that if this issue ends up in the courts—it will pit one Federal agency against another with your tax money paying for attorneys on both sides.

As the author of the Colorado Ute Indian Water Rights Settlement Act of 1988 and now as the chairman of the Senate Indian Affairs Committee, I have an additional responsibility to make the United States fulfill its promise to this region.

The Ute Water Rights Settlement Act of 1988 is a commitment to the Ute Tribes. This commitment is very similar to the 472 treaties previously approved by the United States Senate. In those treaties, each tribe agreed to give up a great deal in return for a guarantee that the United States would recognize and protect the tribes' rights to the reservation land guaranteed to them by the treaty. Also, as with other treaties, the opponents did not even wait until the ink was dry before they began trying to convince the United States to break its terms. Even though the States of Colorado and New Mexico have spent over $40 million to implement their part of the agreement. and Congress has already appropriated over $50 million which went to pay the Tribes to drop their lawsuits.

All of the 472 other treaties have been violated by the United States. But in this case, if the government does not fulfill the treaty terms, it is not only the Indians who will suffer, but all of the non-Indians in the region.

As many of my colleagues are aware, the United States has two choices when it comes to the Ute water rights: we can build the facilities needed to store water for the tribes or we can reallocate the water from those who are presently using it. Estimates are that between ¼ and ½ of all non-Indian irrigators would lose their water rights if we forcibly reallocate it.

Throughout a negotiation process sponsored by the state of Colorado, the tribes and local water users tried to convince the project opponents that reallocating the limited water supply is an unrealistic, risky, and disruptive way to resolve the tribal water rights claims; because it deprives hundreds of non-Indian water users of their rights to life giving water.

Clearly, the ALP opponents will continue to oppose any project that provides any water storage. Compromise—and this bill is the 4th one—is not in their vocabulary. When the opponents tried to use environmental laws to delay and frustrate the project, the coalition of Indian tribes and local water users responded in two ways. First, they agreed to reduce the size of the project, so it could be built in a manner consistent with numerous existing environmental studies and reports, and would cost ⅓ of the cost of the original project. They also insisted that any reduction in the project size should require the government to make use of its existing studies when analyzing the project's environmental impact; rather than restart the whole process all over again.

It was difficult to convince me that we should follow this strategy and agree to build only a small part of the ALP that was passed in 1988. When I introduced this proposal in the last Congress, I knew that even a substantially reduced project would not satisfy the project's opponents. They don't want a smaller project: they want a dead project. I also knew that these opponents would work to mischaracterize any attempt to make use of the existing environmental documents. We did not have to wait very long for everyone to see that each of these concerns was correct. During the 105th Congress, the last time we reached a compromise and a bill was introduced, an administration official appeared before my committee and opposed a bill that offered to downsize the project in order to settle the tribal water rights claims.

But this left the administration with no feasible way to resolve the tribal claims. In fact, as the Department of Interior began to produce a new supplemental environmental impact statement, it compared the smaller project with the idea of just buying water rights. Even the present management of the Department of Interior could not deny that the only realistic, feasible alternative available to the government is to store some of the waters of the Animas River.

The Record of Decision signed by the Interior Secretary on September 25, 2000 explicitly and implicitly recognize all of these facts. It can be found at http://indian.senate.gov.

In fact Mr. President, the lateness of having this Record of Decision on file is the reason we could not move this bill sooner. For the first time, this administration is strongly on record in favor of settling tribal water claims by building an off-stream storage facility at Ridges Basin. The Record of Decision also rejects the any alternative to settling the tribal water claims, especially the unrealistic, risky, and disruptive schemes that have been proposed by the opponents of the ALP.

Although I have agreed to sponsor this amendment, which implements the Record of Decision, I am still very concerned that the non-Indian beneficiaries of the project have been asked to give up too much. I am sure that there are those who will ask these people to give up even more. But I think that they have given up more than enough.

Under my amendment, the Animas-La Plata Project will consist of the facilities needed to divert and impound water in an off-stream reservoir. This provision will only take effect if these features are actually constructed. By taking this step, a number of potential project beneficiaries agree to forgo a substantial number of benefits that were promised to them by their own government in 1968.

In my view, the Federal Government is not fulfilling all of its obligation to these people, but they seem to have no alternative. They will receive substantially fewer benefits than they were promised. In addition, they will bear an even greater share of the cost for the benefits than those using Federal reclamation projects in other states, especially in the States of Arizona, California, and Utah which were originally authorized at the same time in 1968.

Many people now regret the subsidy of western water development, so they are taking it out on the ALP. However, in this case, they cannot do this without injuring the Ute Tribes. Some people will argue that they are only opposed to the part of the project that provides water to non-Indians. But the Ute Tribes refuse to allow the Federal Government to break all of its promises to the non-Indian project beneficiaries. Why? Because the Ute tribes know that they will be next. The tribes and their non-Indian neighbors have held together in a unique and strong coalition of Indians and their non-Indian neighbors that from my perspective is quite rare.

This project has been an 18 year effort for myself, for Senator BINGAMAN, Senator ALLARD and Senator DOMENICI. We worked together on it. The tribes have worked in good faith with the non-Indian project users to produce an agreement that allows the project to be built in a manner consistent with every existing environmental study and standard. We are consistent in the writing of this bill. As I understand the Record of Decision, the Department of Interior has also concluded that the time for studying the project has come to an end. And the time for actually fulfilling the government's promises to Indians and non-Indians is finally at hand.

For these reasons, I ask my colleagues to support S. 2508 as presented in amendment No. 4303. This is the last best chance for the United States to live up to the obligations freely embraced in 1956, 1968, and 1988, not to mention the 1868 treaty with the Ute Tribe.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent the following letters of support of the bipartisan version of S. 2508 be printed in the RECORD, opposed to the Feingold amendment: From the State of Colorado, the Governor of Colorado, the Attorney General of Colorado, elected tribal governments of Ute Mountain and Southern Ute Indian Tribe, and the Native American Rights Fund.

There being no objection, the letters were ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

STATE OF COLORADO,
Denver, CO, October 17, 2000.

DEAR REPRESENTATIVE: Before you decide whether to support the scaled-down Animas La Plata Project as described in H.R. 3112 and S. 2508 (as now proposed by Senator Campbell), the people of the State of Colorado urge you to consider the following facts:

The Clinton Administration has completed NEPA review of the scaled-down ALP as proposed by Secretary Babbitt in August of 1998.

The Department of Interior's Final EIS, and the accompanying Record of Decision signed by Secretary Babbitt, both determined that the scaled-down project ''is the environmentally preferred alternative, to implement the 1988 Settlement Act'' with the Colorado Ute Tribes.

The proposed amendments by Senators Campbell and Allard ensure repayment of all non-Indian water supply costs. There are no ''caps'' on the non-Indian repayment obligation. In fact, the bill calls for an up-front payment and a final cost allocation after the project is completed. The Record of Decision and the Campbell/Allard amendment both require repayment to comply with federal law—it is the opponents who want to change federal law with respect to project repayment.

The legislation allows for only the construction of the scaled-down project—it prevents construction of any part of the ALP that is not explicitly referenced in the bill. This preserves the complex balance of interstate issues on the Colorado River while preventing the construction of components not referenced in the legislation.

The amendments proposed by Senators Campbell and Allard remove any language from the bill that could remotely be construed as ''sufficiency language'' that would preclude future environmental review. Through the Record of Decision, the Department of the Interior, the Environmental Protection Agency and the Council on Environmental Quality call on Congress to amend the 1988 Act to provide for the construction of the scaled-back project.

In light of the federal government's trust obligation to the Colorado Ute Indian Tribes, Congress has a responsibility to know the facts about the project. Once you know the facts, I'm sure you will join us in supporting legislation to resolve this 100 year Indian water rights controversy. Thank you.

Sincerely,

BILL OWENS,
Governor.

ATTORNEY GENERAL OF COLORADO,
Denver, CO, June 16, 2000.

Re: Animas-La Plata project

Wesley Warren,

Associate Director for Natural Resources, the Environment and Science, Office of Management and Budget, Old Executive Office Building, Washington, DC.

DEAR WESLEY: Thank you for meeting with me by telephone yesterday. I think our discussion was very productive. I want to follow up with a more detailed explanation of why it is important to the State of Colorado that Ute Tribes settlement legislation not deauthorize those features of the Animas-La Plata Project that are not currently contemplated.

In 1956, Congress enacted the Colorado River Storage Project Act to enable the states of the Upper Colorado River Basin to use their compact allocations. CRSP is composed of four initial storage units—Aspinall, Flaming Gorge, Navajo, and Glen Canyon—and 25 additional authorized participating projects in Colorado, New Mexico, Utah, and Wyoming—eight of which (including Animas-La Plata) have not been built.

The CRSP Act authorized a separate fund in the United States Treasury, the Upper Colorado River Basin Fund. Revenues in the Basin Fund collected in connection with operation of the initial units are used first to repay the operating costs of the initial units and second to repay the United States Treasury investment costs previously spent on those units. Any excess revenues from the initial units are then used to help repay the Treasury for participating project irrigation costs within each upper basin state that exceed the irrigators' ability to repay. These excess revenues are apportioned among Colorado (46%), Utah (21.5%), Wyoming (15.5%), and New Mexico (17%).

This allocation of Basin Fund revenues was the result of hard bargaining among the upper basin states. Colorado anticipated that a large part of its allocation would be used to repay the irrigation costs of the Animas-La Plata Project, and those costs are still included in the apportioned revenue repayment schedule. Although H.R. 3112 and S. 2508 authorize a much smaller project than originally contemplated and completely eliminate irrigation uses, the authorized participating project still serves as a ''placeholder'' for Colorado's share of the Basin Fund. Colorado could in the future seek legislation that would allow it to use those revenues for other purposes, such as the endangered species recovery programs on the Colorado River, San Juan River, and Platte River.

Environmental and ''green scissors'' organizations have raised the concern that, unless the remainder of Animas-La Plata is deauthorized, the reduced project will be a foot in the door for a larger project. H.R. 3112 and S. 2508 address that concern by explicitly requiring express Congressional authorization before any other facilities could be added. Moreover, any additional facilities would be subject to all the requirements of NEPA, the Clean Water Act, and the Endangered Species Act. In short, any attempt to build additional project facilities would encounter all the obstacles that have blocked construction in the past.

Although I believe that the ''delinking'' language of H.R. 3112 and S. 2508 is adequate to ensure that the smaller project is not the opening wedge for a larger project, Colorado and its water users are willing to work with the Administration to satisfy its concerns. We ask that you meet us halfway, however, and to insist on language that could deprive Colorado of the benefit of hard-fought negotiations and a carefully crafted agreement with the other upper basin states and the United States. This narrow Indian water rights settlement legislation is not the place to try to resolve broader ''law of the river'' issues.

Another issue that is important to Colorado and its water users is the repayment provision. We agree that the non-Indian project partners should pay their full share of project costs. However, it is important that Colorado water users have the option of paying their share as a lump sum prior to construction. In agreeing to a smaller project, the State of Colorado and its water users are giving up substantial benefits negotiated as part of the original settlement and Phase I of the project. In return, we should receive reasonable certainty as to project costs. I also urge the Administration to deal fairly with water users in determining reimbursable costs. For instance, they should not be held responsible for sunk costs associated with water that will not be provided to them by the reduced project.

I appreciate the Administration's support for this legislation. I am committed to working with the Administration to achieve final settlement this session. Please feel free to call me if I can be of any assistance.

Sincerely,

KEN SALAZAR.

UTE MOUNTAIN UTE TRIBE,
SOUTHERN UTE INDIAN TRIBE,
October 18, 2000.

DEAR SENATOR: We are writing as the elected leaders of the Southern Ute and Ute Mountain Ute Indian Tribes to ask that you support the bipartisan version of S. 2508 introduced by Senators Campbell, Bingaman, Domenici and Allard on October 6, 2000, and oppose the amendment offered by Senator Feingold of Wisconsin.

The bipartisan version of S. 2508 is the product of years of hard work by our Tribes, the States of Colorado and New Mexico and local water users. Just like any other settlement, S. 2508 is the result of many compromises that were required to make it acceptable to all of the affected parties. Our settlement has the full support of the Clinton Administration.

Senator Feingold's proposed amendment upsets this delicate balance. First, it singles out the non-Indian parties to our settlement to pay the costs for recreation and fishery uses which benefit the general public. Such costs have never before been imposed on those who use water from federal reclamation projects. Second, the amendment demands that Colorado, alone among the Colorado River Basin States, surrender significant revenues from the power generated on the Colorado River in order to settle the pending tribal claims to water. These belated and punitive changes impose an unfair burden on our settlement partners.

Please help us to complete the settlement of our tribal water rights by opposing Senator Feingold's amendment which undermines the equitable agreement which the Tribes and our non-Indian neighbors have negotiated.

Sincerely,

JOHN BAKER, Jr.,
Chairman, Southern Ute Indian Tribe.
ERNEST HEUSE, Sr.,
Chairman, Ute Mountain Ute Tribe.

NEW MEXICO
INTERESTATE STREAM COMMISSION,
Santa Fe, NM, October 19, 2000.

Senator BEN NIGHTHORSE CAMPBELL,
Chairman, Senate Indian Affairs Committee, Washington, DC

DEAR SENATOR CAMPBELL: As chairman of the New Mexico Interstate Stream Commission, I urge you to defeat Sen. Russell Feinglold's proposed amendments to S. 2508 because they are unfair and contrary to current law. Your substitute bill, which is the product of compromise and sacrifice by New Mexico, should be passed without amendment.

The substitute bill we have is fair to the parties, and it should not be changed at this late date. The proposal to make fish and wildlife mitigation expenses reimbursable is patently unfair to the people of New Mexico. The recreation facility is in Colorado, and making New Mexicans pay for the mitigation is unreasonable. More importantly, the provision is contrary to the 1956 Colorado River Storage Project Act, Section 620g of the Act specifically says that fish and wildlife mitigation activities will be non-reimbursable.

The irony is that if the project proponents had not reached a compromise to settle the Indian water claims and built the Animas-La Plata Project, the mitigation costs would not be reimbursable. But this amendment punishes new Mexico and the Colorado non-Indians for compromising by taking away that protection and making the costs reimbursable. Likewise, the amendment to remove the protection of the Colorado River Storage Project Act on payment issues is unjust. It is an issue of simple fairness. Additionally, this is not the proper vehicle for changing Reclamation law. The amendments should be defeated.

The amendment to change the deauthorization provision of the bill also should be defeated. Under the current bill, once the ALP is constructed, any further facilities would require Congressional action. This in effect is deauthorization. Under Feingold's amendment, the deauthorization is included in the bill, but there is no guarantee of construction of the project.

We've seen the federal government back out of building this project many, many times, and we don't trust them. We want the project to be built, then we'll accept the provision that additional facilities must obtain separate Congressional authorization. Reversing the order, as provided in the amendment, is not acceptable.

Both versions have equivalent results in terms of making sure additional facilities obtain new Congressional approval, but Feingold's version does not give us the necessary guarantee that the project will be built before the provision takes effect. It should be defeated along with the rest of his amendments.

Senator Campbell, I appreciate your hard work on this important legislation, and I urge you to pass it without the amendments offered at the 11th hour.

Sincerely,

RICHARD P. CHENEY,
Chairman.

SAN JUAN WATER COMMISSION,
Farmington, NM, October 19, 2000.

Senator BEN NIGHTHORSE CAMPBELL,
Chairman, Senate Indian Affairs Committee, Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR CAMPBELL: As Executive Director of the San Juan Water Commission, I urge you to defeat Sen. Russell Feingold's proposed amendments to your S. 2508 as amended because they are unfair and contrary to current law. Your substitute bill, which is the product of hard compromise and sacrifice by New Mexico, should be passed without further amendment.

The substitute bill treats all parties fairly, and it should not be changed now. The proposal to make fish and wildlife mitigation expenses reimbursable is grossly unfair to New Mexico. The recreation facility is in Colorado, and making New Mexicans pay for the mitigation is unreasonable. More importantly, the provision is contrary to the 1956 Colorado River Storage Project Act. Section 620 g of the Act specifically says that fish and wildlife mitigation activities will be non-reimbursable.

If the project proponents had not reached a compromise to settle the Indian water claims and built the Animas-La Plata Project, the mitigation costs would not be reimbursable. But this amendment punishes New Mexico and the Colorado non-Indians for compromising by taking away that protection and making the costs reimbursable. Likewise, the amendment to remove the protection of the Colorado River Storage Project Act on payment issues is unjust. Additionally, this is not the proper vehicle for changing Reclamation law. The amendments should be defeated.

The amendment to change the deauthorization provision of the bill also should be defeated. Both versions have equivalent results in terms of making sure additional facilities obtain new Congressional approval, but Feingold's version does not give us the necessary guarantee that the project will be built before the provision takes effect. It should be defeated along with the rest of his amendments.

If the Feingold amendments are passed, the San Juan Water Commission will be forced to reconsider its support for S. 2508 as you reported it in the Congressional Record. Senator Campbell, we appreciate your hard work on this important legislation, and I urge you to pass it without the amendments.

Sincerely,

L. RANDY KIRKPATRICK.

UTE MOUNTAIN UTE TRIBE
SOUTHERN UTE INDIAN TRIBE,
September 13, 2000.

TAKE NOTE: IT'S NOT YOUR FATHER'S ALP
(H.R. 3112 AND S. 2508)

No matter how things change, they remain the same.

Opponents of the Colorado Ute Indian Water Rights Settlement Act and proposed amendments which would drastically reduce the size and cost of the Animas-La Plata Project continue to distort the truth about our Tribes, the project's impacts and its costs.

The Southern Ute and Ute Mountain Ute Indian Tribes, and our sister Tribes the Navajo Nation and the Jicarilla Apache Tribe, strongly support legislation which would amend the original Settlement Act of 1988 to provide for the construction of a downsized reservoir.

Opponents still believe they know better than the Tribes themselves how best to settle our water rights claims. In a September 5 letter from the Green Scissors Campaign, they say there is a less costly and less environmentally destructive way to achieve that goal. They offer you no explanation of what that alternative is. They also don't tell you that the recently completed analysis under NEPA finds that the least costly and least environmentally destructive solution to resolving our water rights is to build the reduced-size project. The nonstructural alternative favored by the opponents of the Indian settlement will cost more than the down-sized ALP and that its impact on wetlands in particular is more destructive than ALP. And, they won't tell you that our Tribes have emphatically rejected the nonstructural alternative.

Still, the opponents of our Indian water rights settlement say the project as proposed is a foot in the door for the project authorized in 1968. Read carefully, H.R. 3112 and S. 2508 clearly cut the tie between this project and any other facilities for purposes of our settlement, and the bills explicitly state that any additional facilities separate from this project would require new authorization from Congress.

The local rafting industry, devastated this year by drought says the project will forever affect their livelihood and dewater the river. In fact, the current NEPA analysis finds that, on average, only six of 112 rafting days with flow of 300 cfs or higher would be lost.

Opponents of our settlement continue to claim that our non-Indian neighbors will get subsidized water for development and that they are the true beneficiaries of H.R. 3112 and S. 2508. The bills provide for small amounts of water for the two non-Indian water districts for rural and domestic use purposes, and storage of water already allocated to New Mexico communities. Current law does not require that ''other project costs'' be paid by water users as suggested by our opponents, and the non-Indians will be required to pay an amount determined by agreement with the Administration for their portion of the water.

Finally, to suggest that ''a water project of this size should not be constructed without full and fair environmental review'' is ludicrous. The settlement was approved in 1988. Repeated environmental and public review have taken place before that and since then. An entirely new NEPA analysis has just been completed and we are awaiting the issuance of a Record of Decision. The pending NEPA document indicates this proposal to be the best way, economically and environmentally, to provide full settlement of our legitimate claims. It also concludes it is the best alternative for the other Tribes—Navajo and Jicarilla—in the basin.

Let's get to the bottom line. No project, regardless of its size or the amount of water provided to our people, will ever get the support of our opponents. Storage of our water is our ''foot in the door'' for a long-term, firm supply of water for present and future generations of Utes.

When the House Resources Committee marked up H.R. 3112, only one member voted no and one voted present. In the Senate Indian Affairs Committee, no opposing votes were cast. Clearly there is recognition of sacrifices made in the name of fulfilling our settlement.

Those who have fought the Animas-Las Plata Project and our settlement as a symbol of the past (Jurassic Park) should declare victory and move on. Costs are cut by two-thirds, the lion's share of the water goes to our Tribes and irrigation facilities have been eliminated. Everyone has compromised except the opponents.

We hope that you will look at today's Animas-La Plata Project, and how much has been foregone by our non-Indian neighbors in order to fulfill the promise of the 1988 Act and the government's word of more than a century ago.

Thank you in advance for keeping faith and supporting amendments to the Colorado Ute Indian Water Rights Settlement Act.

Chairman JOHN E. BAKER, Jr.,
Southern Ute Indian Tribe.
Chairman ERNEST HOUSE, Sr.,
Southern Ute Indian Tribe.

NATIVE AMERICAN RIGHTS FUND,
Boulder, CO, October 18, 2000.

DEAR SENATOR: I am distressed by continued opposition to the Colorado Ute Indian Water Rights Settlement and construction of a much-downsized Animas-La Plata Project to implement the settlement passed in 1988. The Native American Rights Fund also opposes the Feingold amendments to the pending Senate bill S. 2508.

During the last 12 years, I have watched the Southern Ute and Ute Mountain Ute Indian Tribes struggle to achieve their goal of a firm water supply for present and future generations, without taking water away from their neighbors. In the course of that struggle, many sacrifices have been made in an effort to address concerns opponents raised about project cost, environmental impacts, even the allocation of water between Indians and non-Indians.

Now, those who have sacrificed nothing—made no compromises at all—continued to urge Congress to reject the amendments which would downsize the project. It seems nothing will satisfy project opponents except no project at all.

I urge you to support the Campbell amendment to the Colorado Ute Indian Water Rights Settlement Act. Those amendments implement the Record of Decision signed by the Secretary of the Interior Bruce Babbitt on September 26 of this year. NARF also urges a no vote on the proposed amendments by Senator Feingold. Further delay in satisfying the Utes' legitimate claims is further injustice to the Ute people.

Sincerely,

JOHN E. ECHOHAWK.

Mr. CAMPBELL. Mr. President, before I yield the floor, I would like to yield a few minutes to Senator ALLARD, my colleague, who has also worked on this bill for so long.

Mr. ALLARD addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Colorado.

Mr. ALLARD. Mr. President, I thank my colleague from Colorado for yielding me some time here. This is an important piece of legislation that my colleague has been working for. I rise in support of S. 2508, called the Colorado Ute Settlement Act Amendments of 2000. It has been worked on for some 18 years by my colleague, Senator BEN NIGHTHORSE CAMPBELL. I wish to take a few moments to commend everyone who has worked on behalf of this piece of legislation, and for their efforts to resolve this issue.

In Colorado, earlier this year—maybe it was last year—there was a group of us who did get together, Congressman MCINNIS, myself, we had Senator CAMPBELL, and Secretary of Interior Babbitt.

We got together what we called the great sand dunes conference. All four of us walked up on those great majestic sand dunes. We talked about the future of the great sand dunes, and we had a discussion about the Animas project. At that point, we had our staffs standing off on the far side. All of our supporters were wondering what the four of us were talking about. We were talking about common ground and how we could come to an agreement to get the Animas-La Plata project passed. It was a great opportunity my colleague took at that time to talk to the Secretary of Interior while he was breathing some of that fresh mountain air of Colorado and clearing his thinking a little bit, and that got things off to a good start.

This new legislation is a product of that meeting, and it reflects significant compromises and challenges we all faced in getting to this historical moment.

Growing up in rural Colorado and throughout my tenure as a public servant, it seems the Animas-La Plata conflict has endured. Every time water and water projects were discussed, the promises and unsettled claims to the Colorado Ute Indian tribes always persisted.

Now the time has come for the Federal Government to fulfill its obligations to the Ute Indian tribes and satisfy the water treaty.

The project was originally authorized in 1968 with the help of then-Congressman Wayne Aspinall, a good friend of the Allard family and former chairman of the House Interior Committee. I knew Mr. Aspinall. He served Colorado honorably. Over the past 32 years, since authorization, we have tried to get this project completed with bipartisan efforts by former Congressmen Ray Kogovsek and Mike Strang. Now, with the outstanding leadership of Senator CAMPBELL, who for 14 years has championed this project, I believe the end is near. After 132 years, the time has come for the United States to finally do the right thing and meet its treaty obligations.

I commend Senator CAMPBELL for his tireless efforts, from his days in the House of Representatives, to his current time in the Senate and through three different Presidential administrations, to fulfill our Nation's treaty obligations.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. BENNETT). The Senator from Colorado.

Mr. CAMPBELL. Mr. President, I yield to my friend from New Mexico, Senator BINGAMAN, who has worked long and hard on this issue.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Mexico.

Mr. BINGAMAN. Mr. President, I thank my colleague from Colorado. Senator CAMPBELL has worked very hard on this. This has been a major project of his. I do not know how many conversations he and I have had on this subject in the last 2 years, but I can tell you it has been many. There have been many of those conversations.

In 1988, Congress passed legislation endorsing a settlement of Indian water rights for the southern Ute and Ute Mountain Indian Tribe which had been agreed to by the Departments of Justice and Interior, the two tribes, and the State of Colorado and the State of New Mexico. But that 1988 legislation envisioned an Animas-La Plata River Project that would meet a number of regional water needs, including the water for the Navajo Nation and the non-Indian communities.

The project envisioned by that legislation has proven infeasible to implement in terms of the cost and also in terms of the environmental consequences, but the need to settle these water rights and live up to the national commitment to these two tribes remains. The two Ute tribes and their neighbors within the San Juan basin have developed a revamped water allocation for a downsized Animas project which the Ute tribes will agree to as a settlement of their water rights. The allocation also supplies a much needed water supply to the Shiprock community of the Navajo Nation and continues the concept that tribes in non-Indian communities must work together collaboratively on a regional basis to solve their water needs.

The downsized project is in accordance with the final environmental impact statement issued by the Department of the Interior. In the judgment of the Secretary of Interior, it would comply with Federal environmental laws. He has made that very clear. The Secretary has determined that the project authorized in this legislation also will meet the trust responsibilities of the United States with regard to the settlement of the water rights of these two tribes.

This is a project and an issue that has been a concern of people in the northwest part of New Mexico for many years. I have seen various versions of this project discussed and considered over this period of time. I am persuaded that this final so-called ''Animas Lite,'' which is what is generally discussed, or the name that has come to be attached to what is now being considered by the Senate, is a good resolution of many conflicting and competing concerns.

I hope very much that we can pass this bill, that we can do so without amendment, and that we can send it to the President for his action.

Again, I commend Senator CAMPBELL for his hard work in getting us to this point. I hope very much we can follow his lead and send this legislation to the President for his signature.

Mr. President, I yield the floor and yield back my time.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I am very pleased today, Mr. President, that Senator CAMPBELL introduced this critical legislation, and am proud to have supported and cosponsored his efforts from the beginning. He and I have faced many a battle regarding this issue over the years. I believe, however, that this legislation reflects the cooperative efforts among the parties to secure needed water supplies in Colorado and New Mexico, and I am pleased it may finally become law.

While we are running out of time in this Congress, the Secretary of Interior signed a Record of Decision on September 25 supporting these amendments, and his staff helped to negotiate them. The time is ripe for action. After years of hard work by the proponents, everyone is ready to move forward.

The Southern Utes and the Ute Mountain Utes have a 5-year window before they have to sue to enforce their water rights. Passage of this legislation will settle negotiated claims by the Colorado Ute Tribes on the Animas and La Plata Rivers, while protecting other water users.

For years now, the San Juan Water Commission, together with non-Indian water users in New Mexico, Colorado, and the Ute Mountain Ute and Southern Ute tribes have been negotiating with the Department of the Interior, the Environmental Protection Agency and other to resolve the complex problems surrounding the Animas-La Plata project and water usage in the four corners area. The bill has Administration support, which has been long-fought and hard-won. Finally, the administration has shown their interest in settling the Colorado Ute Indian water rights claims by accepting the tribes' own suggestions and water needs of the Four Corners non-Indian community.

In New Mexico, this legislation will provide needed water for the Navajo Community of Shiprock and protect San Juan-Chama project water, on which tribes, towns and cities along the Rio Grande rely. The New Mexico portion of the project will be used by the San Juan Water Commission to provide water to the residents of North Western New Mexico and by the Navajos for their use in the Northern Navajo Nation. This legislation is not intended to quantify or otherwise adversely affect the water rights of the Navajos, and they support this legislation.

In anticipation of development of the Animas-La Plata project, the state of

New Mexico set aside 49,200 acre feet of water in 1956. Importantly, this legislation allows the State Engineer from the State of New Mexico to return all or any portion of the New Mexico water right permit to the Interstate Stream Commission or the Animas-La Plata beneficiaries.

I am pleased the proponents of the Animas-La Plata project have participated in the long process to search for compromise. I support the direction of the participants in this process to reduce costs, provide environmental benefits, and provide water for the Colorado Ute tribes under the 1988 Settlement Act.

Mr. President, the administration has a duty to protect the federal trust relationship with the Ute tribes, as well as a duty to the state of New Mexico to make good on the promises of 40 years ago. S. 2508 represents a compromise for which all parties affected have labored long and hard to achieve. It is the long-overdue vehicle for implementing the United States' promise of water to New Mexico, Colorado and the Colorado Ute tribes while still addressing the needs of endangered species and the American taxpayer. Water scarcity continues to be a critical issue in the arid West and no one would benefit from litigation of water rights if we do not press forward.

According to recent scientific predictions, rationing may be required within the next two years. Successful development of additional water in the San Juan Basin, with its endangered fish, will give the rest of New Mexico good arguments why other endangered fish, such as the silvery minnow, can co-exist with additional water development. Additionally, successful settlement of the two tribes' claims will remove the threat of disrupting the water supply vital to the economic and industrial base for Northwest New Mexico, which contributes to the rest of New Mexico. The citizens of Northwest New Mexico have waited more than 40 years for this water—that's long enough.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Colorado.

Mr. CAMPBELL. Mr. President, I thank my friend and colleague from New Mexico. We are neighbors. Certainly his northern New Mexico area and the southwest Colorado area have histories which are very similar, our present is similar, and our futures are literally tied together. I thank him for the years of service and hard work he has done on this issue.

Mr. President, I have no further comments. I ask unanimous consent, as under the agreement, Senator FEINGOLD be recognized to offer his amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered. The Senator from Wisconsin.

AMENDMENT NO. 4326 TO AMENDMENT NO. 4303

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, I thank the Senator from Colorado. Pursuant to the previous order, I send an amendment to the desk and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Wisconsin [Mr. FEINGOLD] proposes an amendment numbered 4326 to amendment No. 4303.

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

On page 10 of the amendment, line 11, insert '', to restrict the availability or scope of judicial review, or to in any way affect the outcome of judicial review of any decision based on such analysis'' before the period.

On page 10 of the amendment, strike lines 12 through 23 and insert the following:

''(C) LIMITATION.—No facilities of the Animas-La Plata Project, as authorized under the Act of April 11, 1956 (43 U.S.C. 620)(commonly referred to as the 'Colorado River Storage Act'), other than those specifically authorized in subparagraph (A), are authorized after the date of enactment of this Act.

On page 11 of the amendment, beginning on line 21, strike ''Such repayment'' and all that follows through ''.).'' on line 24.

On page 12 of the amendment, line 9, insert after the period the following: ''Fish and wildlife mitigation costs associated with the facilities described in paragraph (1)(A)(i) shall be reimbursable joint costs of the Animas-La Plata Project. Recreation costs shall be 100 percent reimbursable by non-tribal users.''.

On page 13 of the amendment, beginning on line 2, strike ''Additional'' and all that follows through line 6.

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, I rise to offer an amendment to the substitute offered by my colleague from Colorado, Mr. CAMPBELL. I do so fully acknowledging that the Animas-La Plata project, as outlined by the Senator from Colorado's substitute amendment, has undergone a significant modification from its original configuration. What was a more than $750 million dam, reservoir, pumping plant, and associated pipelines and irrigation components, is now proposed to be a much smaller and less costly reservoir project to satisfy the Ute and Navajo claims and provide water delivery to the Navajo Reservation. The scaled-down project is now a $278 million project to build a reservoir and pipeline according to the administration's Record of Decision released on September 25, 2000.

The Senator from Colorado and I have shared an interest in settling the Utes' claims for many years. We agree that those claims must be settled and that construction of a reservoir is an acceptable way to achieve that goal. Moreover, he has worked to accomplish that objective. In passing his substitute, Congress will be seeking to downsize the project to effectuate a settlement that satisfies the tribes water needs at 100 percent Federal cost, which is appropriate. However, and I want to make this clear to colleagues, the sized-down project also provides a significant new water supply for non-tribal municipal and industrial use. The Senator from Colorado's substitute amendment guarantees that about 35 percent of the water held in the reservoir would be stored for use by non-tribal interests: 10,400 acre feet for the San Juan Water Commission; 2,600 acre feet for the Animas-La Plata Conservancy District; 5,230 acre feet for the State of Colorado; and 780 acre feet to the La Plata Conservancy District of New Mexico.

So this legislation is not solely an Indian water rights settlement. The Senator from Colorado and I differ in our opinions as to how the nontribal entities should be treated in this legislation, and that is why I am offering my amendment today. I want to make sure that the outcome Congress is ''seeking'' to implement through this legislation is one that it actually finds. I have three reasons for offering this amendment, which I will describe in a little bit of detail.

First, I remain concerned that the substitute only does half the job with respect to making sure that the taxpayers are off the hook for the original full-scale project. Those who support the construction of the Animas-La Plata project now want to proceed with an alternative which they believe to be a cheaper and scaled-down version of the original project. They want to do so, however, without expressly deauthorizing the original project. It appear to me that proponents won't give up the authorization for the original project because it provides them with the ultimate insurance. Should this alternative be infeasible, retaining the original authorization would allow a fallback position for proceeding with the old project. My amendment makes it absolutely clear that Congress is granting its approval only for the scaled-back year 2000 version of the project and not the original 1956 version of the project.

By deauthorizing all additional features of the old project, Congress would ensure that no such project features or components could be built without a demonstration by the project proponents that such features meet specific economic and engineering standards designed to protect the Federal Treasury, public safety and welfare. The Reclamation Project Act of 1939 requires engineering feasibility reports, cost estimates and economic analyses for a ''new project, new division of a project, or new supplemental works on a project * * *'' A project which is not authorized would be considered a ''new project, new division of a project, or new supplemental works on a project'' and be subject to the planning and reporting requirements. The substitute of the Senator from Colorado allows a future Congress to give its approval for a project or part of a project which has previously been authorized as part of the Animas-La Plata project as described in the Colorado River Storage Project Act of 1956.

So, what it comes down to without my amendment, it is not clear that the additional construction would be subject to any feasibility requirements. I think taxpayers have a right to know that information.

Moreover, newly authorized projects are also subject to the Economic and Environmental Principles and Guidelines for Water and Land Resources Implementation Studies—known as ''Principles and Guidelines''—promulgated pursuant to the Water Resources Planning Act of 1965. The Principles and Guidelines are the seminal policy statement requiring Bureau projects to integrate full economic cost recovery, financial and economic feasibility principles, and protection of the environment into planning for water resource projects. The Principles and Guidelines are the bridge between the old era of costly and economically ruinous Bureau projects and a new era of careful, resource protective planning. Many Members of this body fought hard to ensure these reforms would move forward. The old full-size Animas-La Plata project has not been analyzed under the Principles and Guidelines. One of the key criticisms of the old project has been the Bureau of Reclamation's failure to utilize the current discount rate, the cost of any electric power revenues produced by the project, and other economic variables in its studies. So if my amendment becomes law, any future features would be subject to the planning requirements of the Principles and Guidelines.

The second point of my amendment is that it requires that nontribal water users actually pay recreation and fish and wildlife costs. The nontribal project proponents have argued that because section 8 of the Colorado River Storage Project Act of 1956 makes recreational and fish and wildlife costs nonreimbursable for the projects it authorized, they should not have to repay such costs. ALP in its original, 1956, design, with no Indian water rights purposes or beneficiaries, was authorized by CRSP. I believe that the nontribal water users should pay these costs for a couple of reasons.

First, the administration's Final Supplemental Environmental Impact Statement for ALP takes the position that the version of the ALP project now being proposed for construction is so significantly different in size, features and purposes that the limitation in section 8 of CRSP does not apply. Page 5, Section 1.8 of that appendix states:

> A contemporary determination of reimbursable and non-reimbursable project costs is justifiable based on the significant re-defining of the current project's purpose and limitation of water use as well as current Administration policies.

Second, as the just-quoted language implies, the policy of the current administration, as well as the policy of preceding administrations throughout the 1980s and 1990s, has been to seek reimbursement of recreation and fish and wildlife mitigation costs of Federal water projects. There are numerous examples, such as the Garrison project, Central Utah Project, and the Central Valley Project Improvement Act. Many Members of this body worked hard to enact these reforms. In fact, obtaining reimbursement for recreation and fish and wildlife mitigation costs has been an element of Federal policy dating back to the Fish and Wildlife Coordination Act of 1946, Federal Water Project Recreation Acts of 1965 and 1974, and various Water Resource Development Acts, most notably WRDA 1986.

Obtaining reimbursement for fish and wildlife and recreation costs is far from unprecedented, and, in fact, is consistent both with contemporary policy and with the actual practice of recent years. We are authorizing a smaller project today, and that smaller project should be held to year 2000 reimbursement standards.

In addition to making clear the intent of Congress to require the repayment of fish and wildlife costs, my amendment further clarifies the amount of construction costs that the nontribal water users have to repay to the Federal Government. The substitute of the Senator from Colorado gives the nontribal water users the right to prepay for construction. At the end of the construction they are given the choice of electing whether to make a second payment to settle their account with the Federal Government. If they choose to enter into a new contract, under the terms of the substitute, they are required to only repay construction costs that are ''reasonable and unforeseen.'' I think that allowing a second bite at the apple by giving water users the option of not making the second payment is a big enough gift from the taxpayers. I have repeatedly opposed prepayment because I believe and feel that the taxpayers often get stuck for contract delays and cost overruns. I am concerned that the substitute opens the door to allowing the definition of ''reasonable and unforseen'' to be argued in court. My amendment makes it clear that, when the final tally is levied, even though that is a practice I find questionable, it should include all of the costs—all the costs—the Federal Government has incurred.

Third, and finally, I remain concerned that the findings in section 1(b) of the substitute may have the unintended effect of influencing a court's review of the sufficiency of agency compliance with Federal environmental laws applicable to the Animas-La Plata project. My amendment adds language to the bill to make sure that tampering with court review does not occur.

Colleagues may say, well, these are only findings in the bill. What effect could they possibly have on a court? I would ask my colleagues to first ask themselves what other purpose these findings could possible have in this bill that is not to have influence on a court.

Second, these finds are a compromise from the prior version of S. 2508, which included explicit determinations by Congress entitled ''compliance with the National Environmental Policy Act'' and ''compliance with the Endangered Species Act of 1973'' and which relied in part upon the findings. These sections have been deleted from the substitute, but the findings remain as determinations by Congress that could be used to attempt to influence judicial review of compliance with environmental laws.

For example, the finding in section 1(b)(5) states in effect that the passage of S. 2508 is ''in order to meet the requirements of the Endangered Species Act.'' The finding that Congress has reviewed all of the environmental studies—section 1(b)(8)—in combination with the finding that Congress has decided to enact S. 2508 to implement the Record of Decision that resulted from those environmental studies—section 1(b)(10)—would have the effect, I am afraid, of influencing a court's review of a challenge to the adequacy of the studies or the soundness of the decision contained in the Record of Decision.

Indications of Congress's substantive views about a proposed project, as expressed in the legislation authorizing the project, have been used by the federal courts in evaluating whether the project complies with applicable federal environmental laws. Because the findings in S. 2508 appear to be designed to influence judicial review, as explained above, and because the precise intent of the findings is open to interpretation, a reviewing court could ascribe little weight, extreme weight, or no weight at all to these findings during the course of ruling upon a citizen suit.

To neutralize this potential impact upon a reviewing court in a subsequent citizen challenge to environmental compliance, I propose to add language, so that section 2(a)(1)(B) will read:

> Nothing in this Act shall be construed to predetermine or otherwise affect the outcome of any analysis conducted by the Secretary or any other federal official under applicable laws, to restrict the availability or scope of judicial review, or to in any way affect the outcome of judicial review of any decision based on such analysis.

I believe overall that this amendment in all its parts will make this bill better. It commits the Federal Government solely to the construction of a reservoir and protects the taxpayer. It preserves the right of courts to review the project's environmental compliance and it ensures that the nontribal water recipients pay their fair share. So, Mr. President, I urge my colleagues to support this amendment.

Mr. President, I ask for the yeas and nays on my amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There appears to be.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, how much time do I have remaining?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There are 8½ minutes.

Mr. FEINGOLD. I reserve the remainder of my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Colorado.

Mr. CAMPBELL. Pursuant to the unanimous consent agreement, I will, at the end of my statement, move to table Senator FEINGOLD's amendment. Also pursuant to that agreement, I request 10 minutes of the 30 that has been agreed to under the unanimous consent.

Each of the changes proposed by Senator FEINGOLD is either unnecessary or would have the opposite effect to what he intends. I will tell the Senator, who I consider a good friend, that I was in his State just last week with his very fine Governor, Tommy Thompson, traveling across the State doing several things. It was raining the whole time I was there. I rather marveled about how green and nice it was and how much water it had. I was somewhat envious coming from a State that has to store roughly 85 percent of its water needs a year. And as I looked around, I saw many roads and bridges and more than one or two lakes that I think had been paid for with the taxpayers' money in one form or another.

I would tell him that if he lived in a State such as mine or any of the Western States, as the Presiding Officer lives, he would understand how desperately we need water and how in a fast growing State it puts more and more strains and stresses on existing water.

I will talk about the Senator's amendment a little bit. Senator FEINGOLD's amendment proposes that we make existing Federal reclamation law inapplicable to non-Indian project beneficiaries. The Senator asks the Senate to amend S. 2508 to eliminate all references to the Colorado River Storage Project Act of 1956. I don't know the age of the Senator, but I have a hunch it was about the time he was born. I assume Senator FEINGOLD believes that his amendment will make the repayment obligations more fair. In fact, it would be completely unfair to require these individuals to bear a greater repayment burden than all the other projects constructed under the authority of the 1956 and 1968 act. It would, in fact, in my view, be somewhat discriminatory against non-Indians.

If the Senate makes any of the changes proposed by Senator FEINGOLD, we will be saying that existing Federal law should not control the repayment obligation of the non-Indian water users of the project. Other water users up and down the Colorado River—and there are many in our States, as the Presiding Officer knows—will have their repayment obligation set by existing Federal law, but those getting water from this part of the Colorado River system and at this late hour will be told that a new law controls their repayment obligation.

I have to ask my colleagues, why should these project users be singled out in this manner? The most unfair part of this amendment is that it would be part of an Indian water rights settlement act. These non-Indian people are only being treated differently because they agreed to accept the smaller project as part of their agreement with the Ute Indian tribes. As the chairman of the Indian Affairs Committee, I can't think of a worse precedent or message to send. In my view, we ought to be rewarding the non-Indian neighbors who have worked cooperatively with their Indian neighbors, not making them pay more money for their cooperation.

If any of the repayment provisions proposed by Senator FEINGOLD were to pass, I would have to advise my non-Indian constituents that it is actually in their best interest to break their agreement with the tribes, because the price they must pay for fulfilling their commitment to the tribes is to give up all the rights they already have under existing law. I am sure that isn't what the Senator intends, but that will be the result of the proposed amendment.

Senator FEINGOLD's proposed change concerning project deauthorization has the same effect. Under my bill, the only parts of the project that are to be constructed are the components that are explicitly included in S. 2508. Every other part of the project cannot be built unless and until they are authorized by Congress. That is the compromise on deauthorizing the project. The administration agrees with this compromise. It was even accepted in the House Resources Committee on a bipartisan vote.

This compromise is fair because it only becomes effective if the small part of the project is actually constructed. The Senator from Wisconsin asks the non-Indian project beneficiaries, including the State of Colorado, to accept project deauthorization now and accept the Government's promise that a smaller project will be built someday. I can tell you, with the history of promises made by the Federal Government to Indians, in fact to many people in the West, I am somewhat skeptical. I know the Republican Governor of the State of Colorado and the Democratic Attorney General also reject this idea. I ask the Senate to reject it as well. It is simply not fair.

Senator FEINGOLD also proposes a provision concerning judicial review. I assume this is intended to preserve judicial review. At best, however, this will have no effect because there is nothing in the bill that constricts judicial review. There is nothing to preserve. Since the provision has no obvious application, we should be concerned that a court will be encouraged to make some kind of a provision that doesn't exist now. Maybe a court will decide to interpret the provision as an invitation to ignore all the work Congress and the administration have done to analyze the project and its alternative. There is simply no reason to take that risk.

The administration has had its say in its record of decision. Congress will have its say by enacting S. 2508. There is nothing in the bill that prevents the court from doing what courts do or what they are supposed to do. They can have their say on whether the other two branches have followed the law. There is no reason to supplement or enhance the authority of the Federal courts with respect to this bill or the project.

The most unfair change suggested by the Senator is his desire to require nontribal recreation costs be made nonreimbursable. First, this is directly contrary to existing law. Ever since Congress enacted the Colorado River Storage Project Act in 1956, all recreation and fish and wildlife enhancement costs are nonreimbursable. Senator FEINGOLD proposes we do away with that part of the law. This would require water users in New Mexico to pay for recreation facilities or benefits in Colorado. Again, this provision would be included in an Indian water rights settlement. I think it is completely unfair to have New Mexico bear additional unwarranted expenses solely because they agreed to be part of this historic agreement.

I am sure the Senator from Wisconsin means well, but meaning well is not a test of whether we should amend S. 2508. Upon inspection, none of the proposed changes is necessary and most will be harmful. Each of them would wreck years of good faith negotiations among the parties. Also, they would mean breaking explicit promises made decades ago by the Federal Government.

For those reasons, I urge my colleagues to vote to table the proposed amendment, and I move to table the amendment and ask for the yeas and nays as outlined under the unanimous consent agreement.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The motion to table is not in order until all time has been used or yielded back.

Mr. CAMPBELL. I will withhold.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Wisconsin.

Mr. FEINGOLD. I thank the Chair. As I understand, I have 8 minutes remaining.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. That is correct.

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, let me briefly respond to my colleague's remarks. Let me, first, indicate not only am I not insensitive to the needs of Colorado, my mother is a native of Colorado, who did not come to Wisconsin until she came to college. I have great affection for the State and certainly respect the water needs that are so central to the State and to Western States.

Let me respond to the specific points because I think we have worked together well to try to narrow our differences and to come up with this agreement in a way to try to have these matters discussed on the Senate floor in an expeditious way and to have a vote and to have the matter go forward as appropriate.

The first point the Senator seemed to put his greatest emphasis on was whether or not the non-Native American users of the water should somehow be put in the same position of others who were the beneficiaries of the previous projects that were based in 1956. He suggested that somehow it would be discriminatory for these individuals and families to have to pay certain costs that the others did not have to pay in the past. I suppose that is one way to look at it, but I really look at it a different way.

I don't see the people who have benefited from some of these water projects in the past as really the relevant group. The relevant people now are those of us here today, both those who need the help of the water, the Native Americans and others, but also the taxpayers today. To not alter the repayment system for this is to ignore the reforms that have occurred since 1956.

There has been an effort and success in legislating a different way to handle this, to make sure that some of these expenses are reimbursed. I understand there may be those in this situation who may believe it is unfair that they are not put in the same position as those in the past, but I don't really understand how that is as important or relevant as making sure the taxpayers of today are not unfairly being discriminated against by having to pay more than they should for this project.

The Senator from Colorado even alluded in his initial remarks to the fact that he could at least understand the criticism of some of the past water projects. I think that same argument holds for some of the failure to reimburse on some of the past water projects.

This is not just my idea. I want to assure you that the OMB in this matter in their report on the Animas La-Plata project indicated this kind of reimbursement is entirely appropriate.

I will ask to have printed in the RECORD a statement of administration policy in support of my amendment. It reads in part:

The administration understands that Senator FEINGOLD is proposing to offer a floor amendment to S. 2508. The amendment would provide additional safeguards concerning existing environmental laws, a more explicit deauthorization of unplanned project features, additional safeguarding of proposed taxpayer investment in this project, and would update the project's cost-sharing—

I emphasize ''cost sharing''— to reflect current Administration policy for fish and wildlife mitigation and recreation costs.

I ask unanimous consent that it be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

STATEMENT OF ADMINISTRATION POLICY

S. 2508—TO AMEND THE COLORADO UTE INDIAN WATER RIGHTS SETTLEMENT ACT OF 1988

The Administration supports S. 2508 as proposed to be modified by the manager's amendment. The bill, as amended, would accomplish the important goal of providing for a final settlement of the water rights claims of the Colorado Ute Indian Tribes that complies with our environmental laws by authorizing a scaled-down Animas-La Plata project in conjunction with a water acquisition fund.

The Administration had noted concerns with S. 2508, as introduced, because it: (1) contained objectionable language relating to compliance with the nation's environmental laws, (2) did not adequately eliminate the extensive number of Animas project features previously authorized but not currently contemplated, and (3) shifted the risk of unforeseen construction cost increases to federal taxpayers. The latest version of the bill as modified by the manager's amendment satisfactorily addresses these concerns.

In addition, the Administration understands that Senator Feingold is proposing to offer a floor amendment to S. 2508. The amendment would provide additional safeguards concerning existing environmental laws, a more explicit deauthorization of unplanned project features, additional safeguarding of the proposed taxpayer investment in this project, and would update the project's cost-sharing to reflect current Administration policy for fish and wildlife mitigation and recreation costs.

The Administration would support the Feingold amendment, which is consistent with the Administration's Animas proposal as outlined in the Interior Department's July 2000 Final Supplemental Environmental Impact Statement and subsequent Record of Decision. However, if the Feingold amendment does not pass, the Administration supports S. 2508 as modified by the manager's amendment.

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, I am not talking about something that is actually discriminatory. It is simply inconsistent with the law and the policy with regard to how these projects should be handled today to protect taxpayers—not in 1956.

Second, the Senator from Colorado talked about the fact that, yes, our bill does try to make sure that this project, since it has been scaled down—and I give the Senator credit for that—in fact, that is what we authorized. We don't leave the door open for sort of behind-the-scenes reauthorization of this.

He does point out clearly that in certain contexts it would be necessary to actually formally reauthorize the project for additional aspects of the project.

But my understanding is—and the reason we offered this is—if this current scaled-down project is not built, there would not be a requirement of a new authorization; that the situation would revert back without the need for more authorization for the much larger project. I believe it was something like $750 million.

It is not that the Senator is wrong about the fact that there are some situations where there might be the requirement for an authorization in the future. But if it isn't built—the Senator has alluded to the possibility it wouldn't happen—if, in fact, his central complaint is that it hasn't happened, and if it doesn't happen, we don't go back to an open process to figure out what this ought to be. It automatically gets reauthorized.

That is what troubles me. That is what I want to nail down. I want to make sure this project actually fits the size it needs to be and the people who need the help will get the help they deserve.

Finally, the Senator spoke about the third part of our amendment. In fact, in our amendment we want to make sure there is the opportunity for the full judicial review that is appropriate in situations such as this.

The Senator says the bill does nothing to undo the possibility of additional review. But I have raised the concern about some of the findings that are placed in the bill and why those findings would be there if they were not in some way to influence the court.

I accept his statement. That is not his intent.

All we are trying to do is have some language, which I read into the Record. It is very simple. It states clearly that the information and findings should not be used in a way that would preclude the court from using the current laws that apply to this situation.

That is all. It certainly does no harm to the Senator's position—unless, in fact, there is something in the bill that is intended to prevent the courts from having the full opportunity to review that they now are required to do under current law.

Mr. President, I reserve the remainder of my time.

Mr. CAMPBELL. Mr. President, I guess we could talk about everything, put it on spreadsheets, and talk about the dollars spent. But the Senator from Wisconsin mentioned something that I think is very important. He talked about the relevancy.

It seems to me that relevancy is part of the big picture and whether we ought to keep our promises. After 474 broken treaties by this Nation towards Indians, isn't it time we kept one?

We made a promise in 1935 to senior citizens called Social Security. If we can break our promise to one class of people in America, why can't we break it to another? Why can't we break our promise made to senior citizens? I will tell you why. We can't and won't because it is called stepping on a third rail called the AARP. Some thirty-million seniors belong to it—or more, for all I know—and they would absolutely come down the throat of everybody that is a Member of this body. So we don't fool around with them. We don't break our promises to people with high-powered lobbyists and full-time lawyers and lots of members that can write letters and oust us out of office.

Indians can't do that. There are not many of them. They don't have much money. They lost almost everything. So they have very little voice here. It is easy to take away the promise that we made to them. I think it is wrong. We talk about relevancy. This Nation ought to be greater than that, and keep our promises.

The statement of administration policy in the last paragraph basically says they would support this bill with or without the Feingold amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Wisconsin.

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, I will be very brief. I respect the Senator's time, and I want to keep my promise.

I want to be absolutely clear in the Record. There is absolutely nothing in the amendment I am proposing that in any way breaks the promise to the Utes and others who will certainly benefit from this project. We are very careful about that.

But it talks about the size of the project. It is a project that the Senator from Colorado has agreed to as a scaled-down project. But surely he is not suggesting that he is breaking a promise to anybody with that proposal; therefore, neither am I by suggesting it be that size.

I just want to be sure that somehow we do not end up with a wholly larger project later on, which the Senator from Colorado has agreed to leave aside, and certainly make sure that various reimbursements become, under law, a standard practice in these kinds of situations. Certainly, that is not a breach of a promise.

This is the law of the land and the way we do these things at this point to protect our taxpayers. Surely, it is not a breach of a promise to suggest that there ought to be a chance for the kind of judicial review that should occur in situations such as this.

In fact, I would suggest to the Senator—because I think we work together well on this—that I promised months ago that my goal here was not to put a hold on the bill so it could never come up. All I said was I would like an opportunity to offer some amendment. We worked together. I agreed to a time limit, which is exactly what is happening here. The promise was kept in that regard as well.

I am trying to be constructive and improve this bill. And the administration agrees. Even though they agreed fundamentally with the legislation, they also agree that my amendment is not harmful, but is, in fact, beneficial in making the bill better in the context of keeping our promises.

I yield the remainder of my time.

Mr. CAMPBELL. Mr. President, I yield any remaining time. I move to table the Feingold amendment, and I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There is a sufficient second.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Alabama.

ALABAMA'S DISTINGUISHED PRINCIPAL OF THE YEAR, TERRY BEASLEY

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. President, this Capital and in the world too seldom do people of real achievement, people who have given of themselves sacrificially for others, receive proper recognition. As Leo Durocher once said, ''Nice guys finish last.'' But, today there is good news. I want to celebrate the fact that good things do happen to those who serve in America. Often, it takes time, often it comes only after long years of service, but our country still remains capable of recognizing excellence.

Today I want to describe for you the magnificent contributions to children, to teachers, to community and to the highest ideals of education and enrichment that have been made by Alabama's Distinguished Principal of the Year, Mr. Terry Beasley. The Greeks once said that the purpose of education is more than technical learning, it was to make a person ''good''. In those days, people apparently didn't have the difficulty distinguishing between good and the bad that we seem to have today. In addition to academic excellence, in abundance, Terry Beasley exemplifies ''the good.''

Although I did not know he was being considered for this award and had absolutely nothing to do with his selection, the name ''Mr. Beasley'' has always held the highest position in our family. You see, he taught our children at Mary B. Austin elementary School, a part of the public school system in Mobile County, AL, my home. He taught math and his name was mentioned with the greatest respect, even awe, by my children.

You could tell just the way they said ''Mr. Beasley'' and how often the name ''Mr. Beasley'' was repeated, that they knew he was special.

My wife, Mary, a former elementary school teacher herself, was a regular volunteer parent in the classroom at Mary B. Austin. She knew Mr. Beasley then and the fire reputation he had with teachers, principal, parents and students. People still talk about the famous school playday when Mr. Beasley would not only play ball with the children but would race the bases and slide into home. Our friends, also, with children in the school, frequently discussed his remarkable skill as a teacher and his dedication to teaching.

Before he became a teacher. Terry Beasley was a minister and youth director at a Mobile church. He considered that perhaps teaching could be a calling too, and decided to give it a try. In fact, the scripture lists ''teacher'' as a person who can be called. So he decided to give it a try. It was a divine inspiration, indeed. As he told me recently, it soon became clear to him that ''I had found my calling in teaching''. His first job was at Mary B. Austin. Certainly, his later skills as a principal benefitted from the fact that he was able to work under and observe the great leadership skills of Glenys Mason, who was principal at Austin at the time, and to work with excellent teachers.

Later, he moved across Mobile Bay to the Baldwin County school system and became principal at Fairhope Elementary School. They have 370 students and 36 teachers in the second and third grade school. Under Mr. Beasley's leadership the school has flourished.

Last year the school was recognized as having the best physical fitness program in Alabama, and was also recognized for its Kindness and Justice Program which teaches kindness and consideration to others with reference to the teachings of Dr. Martin Luther King.—We need to be intentional about these character programs. Finally, the school was also recognized as having the best elementary environmental science program in Alabama. In fact, the third graders drafted a statute which became Alabama law to name the Red Hill Salamander as the state amphibian. As a result of this work, and the efforts of the teachers, the student scores on the Stanford Achievement Test showed a significant increase.

Fairhope Elementary is a wonderful school with a diverse student population. 23 percent of the students are on free or reduced lunch and 18 percent are minority students. Mr. Beasley has created a learning environment that is dedicated to helping each child reach his/her fullest potential. He is in the classroom constantly, assisting teachers, training teachers, and insisting on excellence. His leadership is extraordinary. Being a good teacher has certainly helped him be a great principal.

As he told me, ''Math is my love, I don't claim to be an expert, but I love it. If we can't make math real then kids won't learn.'' These are not just words for Mr. Beasley. His intense interest in helping children led him to study how they learn. His experience caused him to write a paper on ''writing math''. Ohio State University wants to publish it. In this technique, Mr. Beasley encourages students to write out in their own words exactly the processes they are going through when they do their math calculations. From this experience, the student comes to understand what they do not know and the teacher is able to help them. It helps them to relieve their anxiety about math and makes them more comfortable with it. Mr. Beasley quotes John Updike as saying, ''Writing helps me clear up my fuzzy thoughts''. He adds, ''Write about math and it becomes clear.'' A principal is a valuable thing indeed, as is an exceptional teacher. This nation needs to venerate them, to lift them up and to celebrate their accomplishments. Hundreds of thousand of them strive daily to help each child learn too often with little recognition.

As Mr. Beasley notes, the scripture lists teaching as a ''calling.'' It is good for us to praise and give thanks to those who touched us with their work and those who daily work to prepare the next generation for service.

Terry Beasley is a great American with a powerful determination to fulfill his calling—to help make young people better and to help them learn. He is a native of Waynesboro, Mississippi, and his wife, Charlotte, also an educator at Spanish Fort Middle School in Baldwin County, Alabama, is a native of Millry, AL. Together they represent the best in education in America.

I have been honored to know them. I am pleased and honored that Mr. Beasley has been able to teach my children. There are so many others like him. I have been in 20 different schools in Alabama this year and there are a lot of problems. Teachers have shared with me from their heart their frustrations. But we have some great teachers all over America and some great principals. Sometimes I think we don't realize how important a good principal is because without a good principal a school just can't reach its best.

In my visit to those 20 schools, they didn't ask for a bunch more Federal programs. We have 700 Federal programs right now. What they have told me, time and again, was that Federal regulations are micromanaging the work they have to do, requiring them to fill out much more paperwork than even their whole school system requires and, in fact, undermining their ability to maintain discipline in the classroom. I hear that time and time again. That is another matter.

I simply want to say again how much I appreciate the distinguished group that had the wisdom and insight to select Terry Beasley as the principal of the year because he is indeed special.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Wisconsin.

TRAFFIC STOPS STATISTICS STUDY ACT

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, I rise to speak for a few moments about the subject of race in America. I want to speak today about how sometimes it seems that whites and African-Americans are living in different Americas. And I want to speak about how we still need to do more to see that we become one America.

There is a movie playing now in the theaters called Remember the Titans. That movie depicts how there were two Americas, not that far from here, not that long ago. It depicts the great civil rights struggle of school integration, through the lens of a high school football team in 1971, at T.C. Williams High School, just across the river from here in Alexandria, Virginia.

The film stars Denzel Washington as Herman Boom, who became head football coach at all-white T.C. Williams High School, when it was just beginning to integrate. Although some in the white community in Alexandria did not welcome integration, in the film, Coach Boom steps into this tempest, and teaches the players and coaches to overcome racial prejudice. He teaches the players to respect each other and to work together as a team, regardless of the color of their skin. In the end, the team conquers racial barriers and goes on to win the state championship. Titans teaches us that we must be willing to confront our prejudices, so that we can build a better America, together.

Since 1971, we have made significant progress in public education. But we still have a long way to go. And we are still failing in other areas, like the treatment of African Americans and Latino Americans by law enforcement agencies. They have become the targets of racial profiling. It is time for us to confront our prejudices, to address racial profiling.

White Americans have not had similar experiences. We live in a different America. We won't be stopped on the side of the road, at the airport, or while walking through our neighborhoods, based on the color of our skin. We live in an America where we are free to move about. But African Americans, Latino Americans and Americans of other racial or ethnic groups do not live in this same America. They live in an America where they do not have freedom of movement. When it comes to the enforcement of our laws, they surely live in a completely different America.

Mr. President, racial profiling is a terrible practice. It's unfair, unjust and un-American. It should be thoroughly reviewed, so that we can determine how to end it.

Mr. President, racial profiling casts its net so far and wide that its victims include Americans regardless of their education, wealth, or status. Just last month, that net caught Bob Nash and his wife Janis Kearney, both very high-level officials at the White House. Montgomery County police in suburban Washington pulled over Mr. Nash and his wife, who are both African American. The officers drew their guns. The officers asked them to step out of their car. And the officers handcuffed them.

Why? Well, as far as I can see, the only thing that they were guilty of doing was ''Driving While Black.'' They were stopped, questioned and handcuffed for no apparent reason other than the color of their skin. This is an outrage for Mr. Nash, Ms. Kearney, and all Americans who live in a nation that guarantees liberty and justice for all.

At the end of last month, the San Diego police department released a study of traffic stops that found its officers are more likely to stop and search African and Hispanic Americans than whites and Asian Americans. And earlier this month, according to a story that appeared on the front page of the New York Times, a Federal investigation of the New York Police Department's Street Crime Unit determined that its officers engaged in racial profiling in recent years as they conducted their aggressive campaign of street searches in New York. More and more the evidence mounts.

African Americans and other minority Americans have been on the receiving end again and again, of this horrendous practice. It is intolerable. And it screams out for action by the Federal Government. The Senate should take the first step toward ending this terrible practice by passing S. 821, the Traffic Stops Statistics Study Act.

This bill was introduced in the House by Representative JOHN CONYERS and in the Senate by my distinguished colleague and friend from New Jersey, Senator LAUTENBERG. I commend them for their leadership on this issue, and I am proud to have been able to join them in this effort.

The Traffic Stops Statistics Study Act would require the Attorney General to conduct an initial analysis of existing data on racial profiling and then design a study to gather data from a nationwide sampling of jurisdictions. This is a reasonable bill. It simply requires the Attorney General to conduct a study. It doesn't tell police officers how to do their jobs. And it doesn't mandate data collection by police departments. The Attorney General's sampling study would be based on data collected from police departments that voluntarily agree to participate in the Justice Department study.

In fact, since our traffic stops study bill was introduced in April 1999, we have already seen significant, increased recognition in the law enforcement community of the need for and value of collecting traffic stops data. Over 100 law enforcement agencies nationwide—including state police agencies like the Michigan State Police—have now decided to collect data voluntarily. Eleven state legislatures have passed data collection bills in the last year or so. So this is tremendous progress from where we were when the bill was introduced. I applaud those states and law enforcement agencies that are collecting data on their own.

But more can be done. And more should be done. Indeed, the state and local efforts in this area underscore the need for Federal action. Not all states and law enforcement agencies have undertake data collection efforts. A Federal role is critical for Congress and the American people to understand the extent of problem nationwide. This effort can lay the groundwork for national solutions to end this horrendous practice.

Mr. President, I certainly believe this is not a Republican or Democratic issue. Governor George W. Bush supports data collection. During the second presidential debate, he said, ''we ought to do everything we can to end racial profiling.'' He also said, ''we need to find out where racial profiling occurs.'' His own Department of Public Safety in Texas has begun collecting data. And Vice President GORE, as well, has been a forceful leader on the issue. All Americans can agree that racial profiling is unfair and unjust and that we need to better understand the scope of the problem.

Our Nation has come a long way in the struggle to live up to its highest ideals of liberty, justice, and equality for all. Congress, historically, has played a critical role in addressing racial discrimination, through legislation that grappled with civil rights issues like voting rights and employment discrimination. Americans are once again calling on the Congress to combat racial discrimination. With this legislation, we can take a step in the right direction, a step closer to becoming truly one America.

I urge my colleagues to support the Traffic Stops Statistics Study Act, and to back its enactment this session.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Alabama.

Mr. SESSIONS. I thank Senator FEINGOLD for his concerns about civil liberties in America. It is important for us to give great attention to these issues. Police need to be constantly reminded of their responsibilities.

I was a prosecutor for nearly 18 years full time. I have dealt with police. I remember clearly the policies for years against racial profiling. The law is against that. One of the most famous cases was 25 or 30 years ago, when an immigration officer stopped some individual in a car and arrested him for being an illegal alien. When he asked why he stopped him, he said he had a ''psychic feeling'' that there was something wrong there.

The court said no. A psychic feeling is not good enough. A racial profile is not good enough. You have to have an articulable basis to make a stop.

But we do not want to suggest, in my view, that this is a routine thing in America. Police officers I know, and the Federal agents I know, are very sensitive about these issues. They have been trained about them. They know precisely what they have to do. It almost takes a law degree to know what to do, but they know precisely how and when they can make stops and when they cannot. I believe consistently they follow those rules.

I know Vice Presidential candidate Senator LIEBERMAN, in one of his debates, said that he knew someone who had been stopped, an African American, a Government employee. He described that he was offended by it. But the local police said, when they were asked about it—the local police said he was stopped because the car matched perfectly the description of a stolen car. When they stopped it, they did not even know whether the driver was white or black. They were just doing their job. It was not a racial profiling.

So we need not to go too far, suggesting this is too common. I do not believe it is. I think it may happen and it should not happen. It is against the law. It is not proper, and arrests and matters rising from it should not be justified.

I appreciate Senator FEINGOLD's interest in making sure the law is properly followed.

NOMINATION OF MS. LOIS EPSTEIN TO BE A BOARD MEMBER OF THE CHEMICAL SAFETY AND HAZARD INVESTIGATION BOARD

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Mr. President, the President of the United States today nominated Ms. Lois Epstein to be a Board Member of the Chemical Safety and Hazard Investigation Board.

Ms. Epstein is a licensed professional engineer with over 16 years of technical and regulatory experience involving toxic and hazardous chemicals, with a significant focus on accident and pollution prevention. She currently is a Senior Engineer with Environmental Defense. In that capacity, she has served on three federal advisory committees, two for the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and one for the Department of Transportation (DOT). She has also served as a consultant to the Science Advisory Board of EPA. Prior to coming to Environmental Defense, Ms. Epstein worked in the private sector and for the federal government in the EPA Region 9 office.

Ms. Epstein has demonstrated integrity, technical and analytical expertise, industrial plant knowledge, and a stong understanding of environmental laws and regulations. She has the ability to work with a diverse array of interests, and a commitment to resolving environmental and worker safety problems. These qualities, in combination with Ms. Epstein's expertise in engineering, petroleum refining, and her familiarity with the National Transportation Safety Board—the model for the Chemical Safety Board—make her a strong candidate.

Although she is being nominated without enough time remaining in the 106th Congress for confirmation, I hope that the next Administration and Congress will look favorably upon this qualified candidate.

DISTURBING DOD POLICY

Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, I rise today to speak on a disturbing Department of Defense (DOD) policy that prohibits the adoption of retired military working dogs (MWD).

The bill that I am speaking in support of today, H.R. 5314, will amend the law to allow a handler to adopt a retired military working dog. This legislation was constructed with the guidance and input of all the parties involved. While the Senate version provides more flexibility for the DOD than I would prefer, in the future the Congress will have the opportunity to evaluate the DOD's work when they report back to Congress on their progress in facilitating military dog adoptions.

In discussions with the Managers, my understanding is that this change is only intended to protect the Department of Defense's flexibility to retain animals it determines to be unsuitable for release. In no way is this intended to allow the Defense Department to retain animals that are suitable for release and are no longer needed. I believe it is important to clarify this point, but with that understanding, I am pleased to support this legislation.

The DOD's policy callously discards these highly trained and devoted animals after completion of their service to their country after 8–10 years of age, even if their handlers wish to adopt them.

Under the current law there is no happy retirement for these loyal canines. After their body is no longer able to sustain the workload of their mission, the future becomes bleak for these dogs. In a best case scenario, the dogs are sent back to Lackland Air Force Base, their original training school, where they are used to instruct their human counterparts to become handlers.

After they have served this final duty, they are kenneled for an undertermined amount of time and then put down. In some instances, military working dogs are caged as long as a year until they meet their final outcome. If no kennel space is available, the less fortunate are terminated directly upon their arrival to Lackland.

Without the loyal service of Military Working Dogs and their devotion to their handlers, countless American soldiers would have died or become casualties of war.

These dogs have abilities that our most advanced technology cannot match, rendering them priceless to the men and women serving in our military.

Of the 10,000 men who served with K–9 units during the Vietnam War more than 265 were Killed in Action. Of the 4,000 dogs that served, 281 were ''Officially'' listed as ''Killed in Action,'' but only 190 were returned home at the end of the war.

More than 500 dogs died on the battlefields of Vietnam.

Military Working Dogs not only helped win battles and save lives, but had an enormous impact upon the mental well-being of those humans that surrounded them in the severest of battle conditions.

It is clear that the DOD's policy does not work in the best interests of the dog handlers and the dogs. There is a distinctly strong bond between dog handlers and their dogs, who work, live and play together on a daily basis.

I believe that the military's policy unnecessarily severs a bond that has taken years to cultivate which can easily be alleviated by allowing dog handlers or other qualified people to care for these highly intelligent dogs after they can no longer serve their country.

The 1949 Federal Property and Administrative Services Act, enacted after World War II, reclassified military working dogs as equipment. According to the military mentality, any piece of equipment no longer operable, becomes a hardship to the unit and must be disposed.

In 1997, the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act was amended. The law was altered to permit federal dog handlers, such as those in the Drug Enforcement Administration, to adopt their aging K–9 partners after their service in law enforcement was completed.

The DOD's K–9 partners were the only federal canine group not included in the modification. Are these worthy canines any less deserving of peacefully living out the remainder of their days than another federal working dogs? These dogs can be detrained of their aggressive responses and we have no reason to assume that they will not continue to obey their handlers.

The bill that I am speaking in support of today, H.R. 5315, will amend the law to allow a handler to adopt a retired military working dog. I believe that legislation was constructed with the best interest for all parties involved.

The decision to allow a handler to adopt their canine partner rests on the shoulders of those who know the dog best: the dog's last unit commander an the last unit veterinarian. Made on a case-by-case basis, the commander and veterinarian are obligated to give their consent before the adoption process can move forward.

Furthermore, H.R. 5314 provides an additional safeguard at the federal level. Upon receipt of the dog, the adopting handler waives all liability against the federal government.

H.R. 5314 will effectively accomplish two goals: it offers the DOD a solution to their dilemma of maintaining aging canines and lifts the restriction that prohibits the adoption of military working dogs. Former dog handlers, individuals with comparable experience, or law enforcement agencies will be able to provide a loving home for such deserving animals.

Through the passage of this legislation, not only will the military working dog be taken from a permanently caged status, but the dog will also be given the opportunity for a positive home environment. I know you will agree that after a lifetime of service, there can be no better reward for both handler and dog.

In closing, H.R. 5314 has been endorsed by the Humane Society of the United States, the American Veterinary Medical Association, the Society for Animal Protective Legislation, the Doris Day Animal Rights League, and The American Society for the prevention of Cruelty to Animals. This is a positive measure which is a win-win solution for dog, handler and the Department of Defense.

I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD a letter to Senator WARNER from William W. Putney, DVM. He was a C.O. of the War Dog Training School at Camp Lejeune, NC, was awarded the Silver Star for his bravery during his command of a ''war dog'' platoon in the 3rd Marine Division during World War II.

There being no objection, the letter was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

WOODLAND HILLS, CA,
October 18, 2000.

Senator JOHN WARNER,
Chairman, Committee on Armed Forces, Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR WARNER: I was born in Prince Edward County Virginia. Attended Virginia Tech (VPI then) then graduated from Auburn University in 1943. I immediately went into the Marine Corps and served throughout the war as a line officer in the war dog program and later as the Chief Veterinarian, USMC. Although I am not a constituent of yours, I have many relatives, living in Virginia, that are. I was the platoon leader of the 2nd and 3rd Marine War Dog Platoons that served with the 3rd Marine Division on Guadalcanal, Guam and Iwo Jima and the 2nd Marine Division on Saipan, Okinawa and Japan.

After the cessation of hostilities, I was C.O. of the War Dog Training School at Camp Lejeune, NC when we detrained and returned to civilian life our dogs that we used in WWII on places like Guadalcanal, Bougainville, Kuajalien, Enewetok, Guam, Pelelieu, Saipan, Okinawa and Japan. Our dogs saved a lot of Marines' lives including mine.

Of the 550 Marine war dogs that we had on duty at the end of the war, only four were destroyed due to our inability to detrain them sufficiently to be returned safely to civilian life. Never to my knowledge was there a recorded an instance where any one of those dogs ever attacked or bit anyone. It is not true that once a dog has had attack training, it can never be released safely into the civilian population. All of our dogs were attack trained.

I strongly support Senator Smith in his efforts to change present DoD policy that once a dog has received attack training, it will always be destroyed when he can no longer perform his military duties.

To use animals for our own use and then destroy them arbitrarily when they can no longer be of use to us is the worst kind of animal abuse.

WILLIAM W. PUTNEY, DVM,
Captain, USMC, WWII.

Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. He offers his strong support for a change in the law that will allow the adoption of military working dogs. Former Marine Lt. Putney led a successful effort to build a cemetery and monument for the 25 dogs who died in the liberation of Guam in 1944, and I applaud his work to memorialize their contribution to preventing more loss of life during WWII. I also want to have printed for the RECORD an article that provides some details of his military life and his accomplishments in recognizing the special canine contribution to our wartime successes.

There being no objection, the article was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

[From the Los Angeles Times, Sept. 3, 1995]

MARINE, NOW 75, HONORED FOR HIS WARTIME COURAGE

(By Doyle McManus)

Marine Lt. William W. Putney was awarded the Silver Star for bravery on Saturday—at the age of 75, half a century after the end of his war.

Putney, a Woodland Hills veterinarian, commanded a ''war dog'' platoon in the 3rd Marine Division during World War II—a little-known specialty that used trained dogs both to guard American positions and sniff out enemy troops hidden in tunnels or caves.

On July 26, 1944, Putney's unit was defending 3rd Marine headquarters on Guam when the lieutenant, then 24, spotted a Japanese platoon heading toward the division hospital.

''Putney ordered the war dog handlers to tie their dogs to bushes and take up a firing line in the path of the enemy.'' His citation reads, ''An enemy machine gun emplacement savagely opened fire. . . . Disregarding his own safety, (Putney) unhesitatingly arose from his position of cover, and standing exposed to the hail of bullets aimed at him, began firing.

''He succeeded in silencing the machine gun and killing the two enemy machine gunners. Although wounded, he exhorted the platoon to press the attack, resulting in the killing of all enemy soldiers, including the Japanese officer leading the attack.''

Officials said Putney had been recommended for a decoration during the war but unaccountability did not receive one. His former commanding officer resubmitted the recommendation a few years ago, and Navy Secretary John H. Dalton approved it in time for Putney to formally receive the award at the Punchbowl military cemetery here as part of Saturday's commemoration of the end of World War II.

After the war, Putney served as chief veterinarian and commander of the U.S. Army War Dog Training School. He retired from the Marines and practiced as a veterinarian in Woodland Hills.

In recent years, he led a successful effort to build a cemetery and monument for the 25 Doberman pinschers and German shepherds who died in the liberation of Guam in 1944.

The memorial, which includes the names of the dogs and a life-size bronze statue of a Doberman, was dedicated in a military ceremony last year.

TESTING NORTH KOREA'S COMMITMENT TO PEACE

Mr. BIDEN. Mr. President, today I rise to discuss the momentous changes underway on the Korean Peninsula and to take note of the contributions of one extraordinary American public servant to the cause of peace there. Former Secretary of Defense Bill Perry stepped down this month as special adviser to the President on Korea policy, a role he assumed when our relations with North Korea were in crisis and when congressional faith in our approach to the Korean challenge was at a nadir.

It was a job no one coveted. North Korea ranks as one of the most difficult foreign policy challenges we face.

It was a job fraught with risk. Err too far towards confrontation, and you might send North Korea over the brink and start another war. Err too far towards conciliation, and your initiative might be mistaken for appeasement, emboldening the North and undermining political support at home.

Under Bill Perry's leadership, the U.S. launched a hard-headed initiative designed to test North Korea's willingness to abandon the path of confrontation in favor of the road to peace. From its inception, the Perry initiative was predicated on maintenance of a strong military deterrent. But Dr. Perry recognized that deterrence alone was not likely to lure North Korea out of its shell and reduce the threat of war.

The Perry initiative was designed and implemented in concert with our South Korean and Japanese allies, and it continues to enjoy their full support.

The results of this comprehensive and integrated engagement strategy have stunned even the most optimistic observers.

The year began with a mysterious and unprecedented visit by Kim Jong-il to the Chinese Embassy in Pyongyang. Over the course of a four-hour dinner, Kim made it plain that the year 2000 would see a shift in the North's approach to reviving its moribund economy and ending its diplomatic isolation.

In quick succession, Kim hosted Russian President Putin and then South Korean President Kim Dae-jung. The historic Korean summit meeting in Pyongyang was a tremendous victory for South Korean President Kim Dae-jung's ''Sunshine Policy'' and a validation of Perry's engagement strategy. It is fitting that President Kim Dae-jung was just awarded the Nobel Peace prize for his life-long efforts on behalf of peace and democracy on the Korean peninsula.

With the rapid emergence of Kim Jong-il from what he admitted was a ''hermit's'' existence in North Korea, the prospects for a lasting peace on the peninsula are better today than at any time since the Korean War began more than 50 years ago. Time will tell.

If fully implemented, the agreement reached in Pyongyang by President Kim Dae-jung and Kim Jong-il promises to reduce tensions in this former war zone and enhance economic, cultural, environmental, and humanitarian cooperation.

There are encouraging signs that the summit meeting was not a fluke:

Family reunification visits are proceeding, albeit at a pace that is slower than the families divided for 50 years desire or deserve.

Ground will be broken soon to restore rail connections across the DMZ, restoring trade and communication links severed for 50 years.

A follow-on meeting of the North and South Korean Defense Ministers in September led to an agreement to resume military contacts and to explore confidence building measures along the DMZ, including notification of exercises and creation of a North-South hot-line.

Planning is proceeding smoothly for next year's North-South summit meeting in Seoul.

There has also been progress in U.S.-North Korean relations. An historic meeting between President Clinton and senior North Korean military officer Cho Myong-nok occurred this month in Washington, setting the stage for next week's first ever visit to the North by an American Secretary of State.

Mr. President, this flurry of diplomatic activity has been dismissed by some critics as all form, and no substance. They marvel at our willingness—and that of our South Korean ally—to provide food aid to a despotic regime that continues to spend precious resources on weapons and military training rather than tractors and agricultural production.

No one condones the North Korean Government's callous disregard for the suffering of its own people. And obviously, much work remains to be done—especially in the security realm—to realize the hope generated by the summits. The North has not withdrawn any of its heavy artillery poised along the Demilitarized Zone.

It has not halted provocative military exercises. It has not yet ended all of its support for terrorist organizations.

And, although the North did reaffirm its moratorium on long-range missile testing this month in Washington, it has not stopped its development or export of long-range ballistic missile technology. North Korea's missile program continues to pose a serious threat not only to our allies South Korea and Japan, but also to other nations confronting the odious clients of North Korea's arms merchants.

All of these issues must be addressed if we are to forge a lasting peace on the Korean peninsula.

Our efforts to engage North Korea must ultimately be matched by reciprocal steps by the North. Engagement is not a one-way street.

But the question is not whether North Korea is a desirable partner for peace. Kim Jong-il has all the appeal of Saddam Hussein. The question is how we manage the North Korean threat.

I can't imagine how the situation would be improved if we did not offer North Korea a chance to choose peace over truculence. I can't imagine how the situation would be improved in any way if North Korean children were dying in droves from malnutrition and disease as they were prior to the launch of the U.S.-funded World Food Program relief efforts.

Mr. President, we should not discount the importance of the recent diplomatic developments on the peninsula. How soon we forget that it was a process called glasnost—openness—combined with maintenance of a strong NATO alliance, which ultimately brought about the demise of the Soviet Union and the reunification of East and West Germany.

Information about the outside world is hard to come by in North Korea, just as it was hard to get in the Soviet Union before detente opened the window and let the Soviet people catch the scent of the fresh air of freedom.

Perhaps dialog with North Korea and greater openness there will bring about a similar result. If so, we will have Secretary Perry to thank for his role in getting that dialog jump-started after it had stalled amidst mutual suspicions and acrimony during the mid-1990s.

Mr. President, in closing I would like to extend my profound thanks to Bill Perry for the way he carried out his responsibilities. He answered the call to public service two years ago, trading the comfort of northern California for the landmine-strewn terrain of Washington and North Korea. He has conducted himself with honor and a strong sense of duty. He will be missed.

The stakes on the peninsula are high. Events there will not only shape the security environment of Northeast Asia, but also affect our decision whether to deploy a limited national missile defense, and if so, what kind of defense. From my perspective, it would be a great accomplishment if we could neutralize the North Korean missile threat through diplomacy rather than spend billions of dollars to construct a missile defense system which might do more harm to our national security than good.

I wish Secretary Albright and her new Korea policy adviser Wendy Sherman well as they strive to build on the momentum generated over the past few months. It is a tough job, but it is incumbent on us to test North Korea's commitment to peace.

DEMOCRACY DENIED IN BELARUS

Mr. CAMPBELL. Mr. President, I am pleased to join as an original cosponsor of this resolution introduced by my colleague from Illinois, Senator DURBIN, to address the continuing constitutional crisis in Belarus.

As Co-Chairman of the Helsinki Commission, during the 106th Congress I have worked on a bipartisan basis to promote the core values of democracy, human rights and the rule of law in Belarus in keeping with that country's commitments as a participating State in the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe (OSCE). Back in April the OSCE set four criteria for international observation of parliamentary elections held this past weekend: respect for human rights and an end to the climate of fear; opposition access to the state media; a democratic electoral code; and the granting of real power to the new parliament.

Regrettably, the Lukashenka regime responded with at best half-hearted measures aimed at giving the appearance of progress while keeping democracy in check. Instead of using the elections process to return Belarus to the path of democracy and end that country's self-isolation, Mr. Lukashenka tightened his grip on power launching an intensified campaign of harassment against the democratic opposition and fledgling independent media. Accordingly, a technical assessment team dispatched by the OSCE concluded that the elections ''fell short of meeting minimum commitments for free, fair, equal accountable, and transparent elections.'' The President of the Parliamentary Assembly of the OSCE confirmed the flawed nature of the campaign period.

We recently saw how Slobodan Milosevic was swept from power by a wave of popular discontent following years of repression. After his ouster, Belarus now has the dubious distinction of being the sole remaining dictatorship in Europe. Misguided steps toward recognition of the results of Belarus' flawed parliamentary elections would only serve to bolster Mr. Lukashenka in the lead up to presidential elections slated for next year.

This situation was addressed today in an editorial in the Washington Times. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that a copy of this editorial be printed in the RECORD following my remarks.

I commend Senator DURBIN for his leadership on this issue and will continue to work with my colleagues to support the people of Belarus in their quest to move beyond dictatorship to genuine democracy.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

BATTLE FOR BELARUS

In Belarus last weekend, the opposition leaders did not light their parliament on fire as their Yugoslavian counterparts had the week before. They did not crush the walls of the state media outlet with bulldozers or leave key sites in their capital in shambles. No, the people living under the last dictator of Europe met this weekend's parliamentary elections with silence. Opposition parties rallied the people to boycott, and what they didn't say at the polls, the international community said for them.

The U.S. State Department declared the results ''not free, fair, or transparent'' and replete with ''gross abuses'' by President Alexander Lukashenko's regime. The Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe (OSCE), the Council of Europe, the European parliament and the European Union said the same. The dictator's allies got most of the 43 seats in districts where the winner received a majority of the vote. Where no candidate received a majority of the vote, run-offs will occur Oct. 26, another opportunity for the dictator to demonstrate his unique election methods. However, a record-low turnout in many towns, claimed as a victory by the opposition, will force new elections in three months.

What will it take for the people to push Mr. Lukashenko to follow Yugoslav leader Slobodan Milosevic into political oblivion in next year's presidential election? Nothing short of war, if one asks the international coordinator for Charter '97, Andrei Sannikov. ''I don't know how the country survives. [Approximately] 48.5 percent live below the poverty level,'' Mr. Sannikov told reporters and editors of The Washington Times. ''That increases to 60 percent in rural areas. It would provoke an extreme reaction anywhere else. Here, they won't act as long as there is no war''.

But the people of Belarus are getting restless. Out of the 50 percent of the people who don't know who they support, 90 percent are not satisfied with Mr. Lukashenko and with their lives in Belarus, Mr. Sannikov said. The dictator's behavior before last weekend's elections didn't help any. In his statement three days before the elections, Rep. Chris Smith, chairman of the OSCE, listed just a few reasons why the people should take to the streets: ''Since August 30, the Lukashenko regime has denied registration to many opposition candidates on highly questionable grounds, detained, fined or beaten over 100 individuals advocating a boycott of the elections, burglarized the headquarters of an opposition party, and confiscated 100,000 copies of an independent newspaper.''

Mr. Sannikov, a former deputy foreign minister, was himself a victim last year when he was beaten unconscious, and three ribs and his nose were broken, in what he said was a government-planned attack. He and the rest of the opposition don't want to be victims in next year's elections. If the opposition can rally behind one formidable leader, war won't have to precede change—nor will Mr. Lukashenko once again make democracy a fatality.

CONTINUING PROBLEMS FOR FEDERAL LAW ENFORCEMENT DUE TO THE McDADE LAW

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, I have spoken several times this year about the so-called McDade law, which was slipped into the omnibus appropriations bill at the end of the last Congress, without the benefit of any hearings or debate in the Senate. I have described the devastating effects that this ill-considered law is having on Federal law enforcement efforts across the country. Recent articles in the Washington Post, the Washington Times and U.S. News & World Report also describe how the McDade law has impeded Federal criminal investigations.

For over a year, I have been proposing legislation to address the problems caused by the McDade law. My corrective legislation would preserve the traditional role of the State courts in regulating the conduct of attorneys licensed to practice before them, while ensuring that Federal prosecutors and law enforcement agents will be able to use traditional Federal investigative techniques. Although the bill does not go as far as the Justice Department would like—it does not establish a Federal code of ethics for government attorneys, nor does it authorize the Justice Department to write its own ethics rules—nevertheless, the Justice Department has supported the bill as a reasonable, measured alternative to the McDade law.

Congress's failure to act on this or any other corrective legislation this year means more confusion and uncertainty, more stalled investigations, and less effective enforcement of the Federal criminal laws. I regret that we have not made more progress, and hope that we can work together in the next Congress, on a bipartisan and bicameral basis, to resolve the situation.

I ask unanimous consent that these articles be included in the RECORD.

REPEAL THE MCDADE LAW

Two years ago, Congress approved a seemingly innocuous requirement that federal prosecutors observe the ethical standards of the state bars that gave them their law licenses. Members probably didn't think that, in supporting the proposal, they would be harming important federal investigations. They thought rather to stand against prosecutorial excess and show support for retiring Rep. Joseph McDade, who had once been prosecuted unsuccessfully by the Justice Department. Yet even as Congress was moving ahead with the bill, many people—including in the Justice Department and on the Senate Judiciary Committee—warned of unintended consequences. Now the warnings are coming true. The so-called McDade law has compromised Justice Department investigations on matters ranging from airline safety to child pornography.

State bar rules are generally not written with investigative concerns in mind—and are sometimes written to hamper prosecutors. Lawyers, for example, are generally forbidden from contacting directly people whom they know to be represented by counsel. The rule makes sense as a general matter, but figuring out how it should apply to investigative work is exceptionally difficult. A prosecutor investigating a corporation who wants to talk with company employees could be read to violate this ethical stricture if the corporation's lawyers are not present. Such a rule would make federal investigations of corporations dependent on the corporation's consent. According to a Justice Department report, this precise issue hampered an investigation of an airline—which press reports identify as Alaska Airlines—for allegedly falsifying maintenance reports. Unable to have agents interview key witnesses, the department had to bring them before a grand jury—a process that involved lengthy delays. ''When the witnesses finally appeared before the grand jury, they had trouble remembering anything significant to the investigation,'' the report notes. ''After about a year of investigation, one of the airline's planes crashed.''

In Oregon, the U.S. Attorney's Office recently notified the FBI that it would not participate further in an undercover program that targets child pornography. The Oregon Supreme Court has interpreted state ethics rule to prohibit dishonesty or deceit in investigations—with no exception for law enforcement. That makes undercover work of any kind the stuff of potential bar discipline for lawyers who get involved. In a letter to the FBI field office, Portland's U.S. attorney announced that, under the rule, ''the attorneys in our Criminal Division cannot approve or authorize any undercover operations or consensual monitoring'' at all. Such an outcome has nothing to do with prosecutorial ethics but will harm law enforcement.

The McDade problem needs to be fixed, and Sen. Patrick Leahy is pushing a bill that would do that. Federal prosecutions and investigations cannot be held hostage to whatever rules 50 state bars choose to pass.

FEDERAL PROSECUTORS HOSTAGE TO STATE CODES

(By Bruce Fein)

If you think United States Secret Service protection of the president should be held hostage to state law, then you should love the 1-year-old ''McDade'' statute. Ditto if you think FBI attempts to thwart or investigate presidential assassinations or corruption of Members of Congress also should be held hostage. But you might think the McDade law reflects federalism run riot, and thus champion its overhaul, like Sen. Patrick J. Leahy, Vermont Democrat, and Sen. Orrin G. Hatch, Utah Republican and chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Without hearings, the law was tucked into an appropriations bill in a fit of congressional disenchantment with aggressive investigative tactics symbolized (rightly or wrongly) by Independent Counsel Kenneth Starr. It subjects all federal government attorneys in conducting federal criminal or civil investigations to state professional disciplinary rules in the state in which they operate. On its face, the McDade law seems unalarming. Why shouldn't federal attorneys conform to the same ethical standards required of their professional colleagues whether in private practice of state government?

The answer is that the parochial perspectives of states may discount or overlook broader and compelling federal law enforcement interests. The state of Oregon sports a typical disciplinary rule prohibiting attorney dishonesty, deceit or misrepresentation. It has been interpreted to prohibit federal prosecutors from either authorizing or supervising undercover operations of the FBI or consensual monitoring of conversations by informants. Under the McDade law, for instance, suppose the United States Attorney in Oregon and the FBI suspect an attempted assassination of President Clinton during a fund-raising visit to Portland by extremists. A plan is devised to infiltrate an informant into the suspected circle of conspirators with an electronic recording device to forestall the villainy. it would be frustrated by Oregon's disciplinary code coupled with the McDade law.

Federal terrorism investigations or prosecutions are likewise jeopardized in Oregon. Suppose a terrorist suspect pleads guilty to a federal conspiracy offense and agrees to cooperate in the apprehension and trial of coconspirators in exchange for a lenient sentence. The United States Attorney contemplates the terrorist-informant's use of an electronic recording or transmitting device to prove the guilt of the conspirators from their own words. The U.S. Supreme Court held in United States vs. White (1971) that such investigatory deceit is no affront to the Constitution, and added: ''An electronic recording will many times produce a more reliable rendition of what a defendant has said than will the unaided memory of a police agent. It may also be that with the recording in existence it is less likely that the informant will change his mind, less chance that threat or injury will suppress unfavorable evidence, and less chance that cross-examination will confound the testimony.''

Under the McDade law in Oregon, however, the United States Attorney would be required to forgo his impeccable plan for electronic monitoring to ensnare a nest of terrorists.

Its mischief is not confined to these troublesome hypotheticals, but handcuffs the investigation of every federal crime and has thrown a spanner in real cases. The FBI initiated an ''Innocent Images'' investigation in Portland spurred the burgeoning problem of child pornography and exploitation in Oregon. The United States Attorney shut down the operation because fearful that the involvement of undercover agents and the monitoring of telephone calls with the consent of but one party could be deemed deceitful by the State Bar.

During a recent Oregon drug trafficking investigation, the FBI located a cooperating witness willing to use an electronic monitoring device to record the conversations of drug trafficking suspects. The United States Attorney nixed the idea because of the McDade law.

In 1980, the FBI's Abscam investigation employed undercover agents to implicate six House members and one senator in corruption. One videotape captured Rep. John W. Jenrette Jr., South Carolina Democrat, confessing to an agent, ''I've got larceny in my blood.'' Abscam would have been problematic if the McDade law had then been in effect.

A recurring impediment in all states are codes that prohibit federal attorneys and their agents from contacting and interviewing corporate employees without the consent and presence of corporate counsel. In California, the FBI's investigation of Alaska Airlines maintenance records through separate interviews of employees was thwarted by a company attorney's claiming to represent all. After a Jan. 31, 2000, crash of an Alaska Airlines jet killing everyone on board, FBI agents were blocked from questioning ground mechanics for the same reason. Sen. Leahy, a former seasoned prosecutor, lamented: ''[T]hose interviews that are most successful simultaneous interviews of numerous employees could not be conducted simply because fear that a [state] ethical rule . . . might result in proceedings against the prosecutor.''

The Supremacy Clause of Article VI of the Constitution that when legitimate federal interests are at stake, state law should bow. It was underscored by the Supreme Court's ruling in In re Neagle (1890), which denied California authority to prosecute a federal deputy marshal for killing an attacker in the course of defending Supreme Court Justice Stephen J. Field.

An ethics code to ensure that federal government attorneys turn square corners is admittedly necessary. But shouldn't it be drafted by federal authorities sensitive to federal needs rather than consigned to the whims of 50 different states?

FEDERALLY SPEAKING, A FINE KETTLE OF FISH

(By Chitra Ragavan)

Two Octobers ago, Congress passed a funny little law. It was named after its sponsor, Pennsylvania Republican Joseph McDade, but for the congressman, there was nothing funny about it. The Justice Department had spent eight years investigating McDade on racketeering charges. He was finally acquitted by a jury in 1996, but by then McDade's health and spirits were broken. The McDade bill was his payback to Justice. It simply requires federal prosecutors to comply with state ethics laws.

No big deal? Not quite. In August, the Oregon Supreme Court forbade all lawyers in the state to lie, or encourage others to lie, cheat, or misrepresent themselves. Under McDade, the ruling now applies to Oregon's federal prosecutors. ''We've handcuffed the agents,'' says senior FBI official David Knowlton, ''not the criminals.'' The U.S. attorney for the Oregon district, Kristine Olson, has informed the FBI and other federal investigative agencies that she cannot OK agents or informants to assume false identities, wear body wires, or engage in undercover activities. ''In effect,'' says David Szady, special agent in charge of the FBI's Portland office, ''we now have to go to a drug dealer and say, 'FBI! Would you sell us some drugs, please?' '' The FBI, Szady says, has had to suspend 50 investigations, including probes of Internet child pornographers, A Russian organized-crime group, and a massive check-fraud ring.

Federal prosecutors despise the McDade law. David Margolis, a senior Justice Department official and a veteran organized-crime prosecutor, says McDade has had a major chilling effect. ''Even I wouldn't go out on a limb,'' he says. Justice officials are trying to gut the law before Congress goes out of session this week. The department warned lawmakers in 1998 that prosecutors would be lost in a morass of quirky state ethics laws—especially during complicated multistate investigations. But defense lawyers won the day. ''Why should prosecutors be exempt from rules that apply to all other lawyers in that state?'' says Mark Holscher, lawyer for former Los Alamos scientist Wen Ho Lee. So far, no court has dismissed a case or excluded evidence on the basis of McDade. ''These are crocodile tears,'' says veteran defense lawyer Irv Nathan.

Major headache. The biggest headache for prosecutors is the American Bar Association's controversial Model Rule 4.2, adopted by many states. It prohibits prosecutors from contacting people represented by lawyers without first talking to the attorneys. Remember when Kenneth Starr's prosecutors ignored Monica Lewinsky's tearful entreaties to call her lawyer? They got away with it because, since 1989, Justice had defied Rule 4.2.

No more. Prosecutors now say adhering to 4.2 has hurt white-collar probes, where securing the cooperation of informers in often vital. In an investigation of Alaska Airlines last year, company lawyers barred federal agents from questioning employees. Sen. Patrick Leahy of Vermont says, ''The pendulum has swung too far in the other direction.'' But House Judiciary Committee Chairman Henry Hyde of Illinois says he's not inclined to repeal McDade. ''That doesn't mean I'm for crooks,'' Hyde says. ''I'm for ethical behavior both by law enforcement and by defense counsel.'' Watching the fight from the sidelines in Joe McDade, now 69. ''I didn't read about it. I lived it,'' he says, of prosecutorial zealotry. ''The effort is not justice. The effort is to break a citizen.''

STUDENT PLEDGE AGAINST GUN VIOLENCE

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, on Tuesday, thousands of young people observed the Fifth Annual Day of National Concern About Young People and Gun Violence. Students across the country who participated in the day's activities were given the chance to make a strong statement renouncing the violent use of guns by signing a voluntary pledge.

In my own State of Michigan, high school senior Vince Villegas of Lansing worked to ensure that the anti-gun violence pledges were distributed to students in his own school district. Vince is the co-founder and current president of Students Against Firearm Endangerment, SAFE, USA, an organization whose mission is to reduce the number of gun casualties by increasing gun education in America's schools. With help from students like Vince, more than one million young people have signed the Student Pledge Against Gun Violence during this year alone.

Here is what that pledge says: ''I will never bring a gun to school; I will never use a gun to settle a dispute; I will use my influence with my friends to keep them from using guns to settle disputes. My individual choices and actions, when multiplied by those of young people throughout the country, will make a difference. Together, by honoring this pledge, we can reverse the violence and grow up in safety.''

Vince and students like him around the country have pledged to do what they can to reduce the toll of gun violence in their lives. Now it's up to Congress to learn from our young people and pledge to combat the gun violence that plagues the Nation's schools and communities.

VICTIMS OF GUN VIOLENCE

Ms. MIKULSKI. Mr. President, it has been more than a year since the Columbine tragedy, but still this Republican Congress refuses to act on sensible gun legislation.

Since Columbine, thousands of Americans have been killed by gunfire. Until we act, Democrats in the Senate will read the names of some of those who have lost their lives to gun violence in the past year, and we will continue to do so every day that the Senate is in session.

In the name of those who died, we will continue this fight. Following are the names of some of the people who were killed by gunfire one year ago today.

October 19, 1999:

Jerry G. Bowens, 25, Memphis, TN;
Nathaniel Bryan, 20, Washington, DC;
Wayne Butts, 43, Atlanta, GA;
Arnold Handy, 19, Baltimore, MD;
Paul Johnson, 31, New Orleans, LA;
Russell Manning, 52, Dallas, TX;
Rebecca Rando, 25, Houston, TX;
Mark Smith, 31, Dallas, TX;
Kirk Tucker, 32, Chicago, IL;
Jermaine Wallace, 22, Baltimore, MD; and
George Williams, 19, Pittsburgh, PA.

We cannot sit back and allow such senseless gun violence to continue. The deaths of these people are a reminder to all of us that we need to enact sensible gun legislation now.

VOICE OF AMERICA EDITORIAL

Mr. BIDEN. Mr. President, on October 18 the Voice of America broadcast an editorial entitled ''Terrorism Will Fail,'' strongly condemning the terrorist bomb attack on the U.S.S. Cole in Aden harbor, which took the lives of 17 U.S. sailors. The editorial concluded: ''U.S. policy remains unchanged. The U.S. will make no concessions to terrorists. The U.S. will bring to justice those who attack its citizens and interests. The U.S. will hold state sponsors of terrorism fully accountable.''

This is unambiguous language, which reflects not only United States government policy but also the feelings of all Americans. Unfortunately, however, the bureaucratic road from writing, to approval, to broadcasting this editorial was anything but unambiguous. In fact, it revealed both initial bad judgment by the State Department, and the need for better vetting procedures of VOA editorials by the appropriate authorities.

VOA editorials are statements of American policy, so they are rightly cleared by the State Department for consistency with official U.S. Government policy. Regrettably, in this case the State Department initially vetoed the editorial's language. The reason for stopping the editorial was totally unjustified. It was dead wrong to stop the editorial because of fighting and casualties that were occurring elsewhere in the Middle East. American service men and women were tragically killed in this terrorist attack and a clear statement by Voice of America condemning the action should have gone out immediately.

Subsequently, the State Department fortunately disavowed the earlier veto of the editorial memo, saying that the initial veto memorandum ''in no way reflects the views of the Secretary of State, the Department or the Bureau of Near Eastern Affairs.'' Moreover, it stated that the initial veto memorandum had not been vetted or approved through appropriate channels.

It is inconceivable to me how anyone could advocate deleting an editorial condemning the cruel, cowardly, terrorist murder of American service men and women.

I hope and trust this occurred because of the understandable stress officials at the Department of State were under due to the tragic deaths from this dastardly act of terrorism in Yemen occurring at the same time the crises in the Middle East was also absorbing the attention of the Department.

Fortunately, as I mentioned earlier, the Voice of America did broadcast the editorial in its entirety.

AGRICULTURE APPROPRIATIONS BILL

Mr. BINGAMAN. Mr President, I rise today to clarify my position on the vote we are about to take on the Agriculture Appropriations bill. I voted for the bill because it contains funding for a broad range of programs that are very important to farmers in New Mexico and the rest of the United States. But that said, I would like to express my opposition and disappointment at this time to the way this bill frames our national policy toward Cuba.

First, let me say that this bill is remarkable in that it represents a dramatic step forward in how the United States deals with restrictions on sales of food and medicine to designated terrorist states. After considerable debate among my colleagues on this issue, relative consensus has been attained that suggests that unilateral sanctions against countries like North Korea, Sudan, Iran, and Libya are not effective, and that any future economic policy in this regard must include the multi-lateral cooperation of other like-minded governments. Even more importantly, many of my colleagues have come to the conclusion that official sanctions on food and medicine is an inappropriate way to achieve our foreign policy goals. The logic here is straightforward: not only do these sanctions hurt those individuals most in need in these countries—the innocent civilians who are being oppressed by oftentimes ruthless regimes—but they also hurt American businesses that would directly gain from such exports. American farmers in particular suffer under these constraints, and I am convinced those constraints should be removed immediately.

I should emphasize here that the elimination of sanctions does not imply that we as a deliberative body agree with the policy pronouncements or activities of terrorist countries. Quite the contrary, they are reprehensible and, as such, we will continue to register our opposition to them at every opportunity. But as a practical matter the elimination of the sanctions does suggest that we finally recognize that we cannot effectively punish dictators or despots through their own people. Perhaps more significantly in this regard, the United States should not be placed in the difficult position of defending such policies as, in my view, they run against some of our most basic values and traditions.

It is for this reason that the Agricultural Appropriations bill as it relates to Cuba is seriously flawed. What we have done in this bill is permitted the sale of food and medicine to most of these countries and, moreover, authorized U.S. public and private financing that would allow this to occur. But we have refused to apply these exact same provisions to Cuba. In the case of Cuba, we have permitted the sale of food and medicine, but we have prohibited U.S. financial institutions from assisting in this process. Of course, Cuba can still purchase food or medicine from the United States, but it must do so with its own capital, or with assistance from third-party financial institutions. In short, Cuba must somehow convince a foreign bank to lend it money to purchase food or medicine, an obvious liability given its current situation. Clearly this limitation placed on Cuba defeats the basic rationale underlying the bill, and makes the exercise of sanctions reform almost entirely symbolic in nature. The bottom line is that our farmers will gain little or nothing in terms of increased sales to Cuba, and that is just plain wrong.

This bill is also flawed in that it further restricts travel to Cuba, this after several years of moving forward in areas related to increased scientific, academic, social, and cultural exchange. I find this to be an ill-advised provision in that it runs counter to everything we have experienced in Eastern Europe, East Asia, and Latin America in terms of the dynamics of freedom and democratization. For a number of years now I have supported the right of Americans to travel to Cuba, and I continue to do so at this time. I have also suggested that we allow non-governmental organizations to operate in Cuba and to provide information and emergency relief when needed. Furthermore, I believe that Cuban-Americans with relatives still in Cuba should be permitted to visit Cuba to tend to family emergencies.

Let me state clearly that I personally deplore the Castro regime and its heavy-handed tactics toward its people. The lack of freedom and opportunity in that country stands in direct contrast to the United States, as well as most countries in the Western Hemisphere. Cuba now stands alone in the West in its inability to allow the growth of democracy and the protection of individual rights.

In my view, Cuba is ripe for change, and the best way to achieve positive change is to allow Americans to communicate and associate with the Cuban people on an intensive and ongoing basis, to re-establish cultural activities, and to rebuild economic relations. To allow the Cuban system to remain closed does little to assert United States influence over policy in that country and it does absolutely nothing in terms of creating the foundation for much-needed political economic transformation. The spread of democracy comes from interaction, not isolation.

So for all the positive attributes contained within this bill, I see the provisions as they relate to Cuba to represent a serious step backward that will ultimately harm, not help, the U.S. national interest. This is an anachronistic policy that does no one any good. It is my hope that what some of my colleagues are saying today on the floor is true, that this is merely an initial compromise that lays the foundation for more significant change through legislation in the future. If this is correct, I look forward to working with them to ensure that more constructive policy is indeed enacted. I am convinced it is long overdue.

THE INNOCENCE PROTECTION ACT

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, I have come to the floor several times this year to focus attention on the national crisis in the administration of the death penalty. I rise today, in what I hope are the closing days of the 106th Congress, to report on how far we have come on this issue in Congress and across the country, and to discuss the important work that is yet to be done.

In recent years, many grave flaws in the capital punishment system nationwide have come to light. Time and again, across the nation, we have heard about racial disparities, incompetent counsel who make a mockery of our adversarial process, testimony and scientific evidence that is hidden from the court, and the ultimate injustice, the conviction and sentencing to death of innocent people.

In the last quarter century, some 88 people have been released from death row, not on technicalities, but because they were innocent. Those people were the ''lucky'' ones; we simply do not know how many innocent people remain on death row, and how many have been executed.

Earlier this year, after it came to light that his State had sent more innocent people to death row than it had executed guilty people, Governor Ryan announced a moratorium on executions in Illinois and launched a systematic inquiry into the crisis and to consider possible reforms.

At around the same time, along with colleagues from both sides of the aisle, from the Senate and from the House, I introduced the Innocence Protection Act as a first step to stimulate a national debate and inquiry and begin work on national reforms on what is a nationwide problem.

Almost a year later, our informal national public inquiry has yielded a wealth of evidence. The American people have reached some compelling findings. And our reform effort has gained the endorsement, and—more important—the wisdom and insight, of Republicans and Democrats, of judges, law enforcers and defense attorneys, and of scholars and ordinary people who have experienced the system first hand.

The evidence has shown that the system is broken, and the American people are demanding that it be fixed or scrapped. We have meaningful, carefully considered reforms ready to be put into place. It is now time for Congress to act.

Let me first review just a few highlights of the evidence that has mounted since we first introduced the bill.

On June 12, Professor James Liebman of the Columbia Law School released the most comprehensive statistical study ever undertaken of modern American capital appeals. This rigorous study, which was nine years in the making, revealed a death penalty system fraught with error reaching crisis proportions. It revealed a system that routinely makes grave errors, and then hopes haphazardly and belatedly to correct them years later by a mixture of state court review, federal court review and a large dose of luck.

During the 23-year study period, courts across the country threw out nearly seven out of every ten capital sentences because of serious errors that undermined the reliability of the outcome. The single most common error, the study showed, was egregiously incompetent defense lawyering.

Before the Columbia study came out, there was speculation that the problems in the administration of the death penalty were confined to a few atypical States with lax procedures. That is clearly not the case. The study documented high error rates across the country, in nearly every death penalty State. It left no room for doubt: This is not a local problem, this is a national problem, and it requires a national response.

Shortly after the Columbia study issued, the Senate and House Judiciary Committees held hearings to consider some of the issues raised by the Innocence Protection Act. I had hoped that these hearings would be the first in a series of hearings that would help focus the Congress' attention on steps we can take to help restore public confidence in our death penalty system.

The Committees heard from judges, prosecutors, and defense attorneys about when and how post-conviction DNA testing should be required by law, and about the overwhelming importance of providing the accused with qualified and adequately funded defense counsel.

We also heard from two men who between them spent over 20 years in prison for crimes they did not commit before being cleared by DNA evidence and freed. One of these men, Dennis Fritz, was represented at trial by a civil liability lawyer who had never handled any type of criminal case, much less a capital murder case. When Mr. Fritz finally got access to the crime scene evidence for DNA testing, the results not only cleared him, they also cleared his codefendant, who had come within five days of being executed. The tests also established the identity of the real killer.

Now, hardly a month goes by that we do not hear about more wrongfully convicted people who owe their freedom to DNA testing.

Most recently, on October 2, 2000, the Governor of Virginia finally pardoned Earl Washington, after new DNA tests confirmed what earlier DNA tests had shown: He was the wrong guy. Earl Washington's case only goes to show that we cannot sit back and assume that prosecutors and courts will do the right thing when it comes to DNA. It took Earl Washington years to convince prosecutors to do the very simple tests that would prove his innocence, and more time still to win a pardon. And he is still in prison today.

Several other recent reports have provided additional evidence of a system in crisis. The Justice Department released a report in September concerning the administration of the Federal death penalty. The report revealed dramatic racial and geographic disparities in the Federal death penalty system. Of the 682 cases submitted to the Justice Department in the last five years for approval to seek the death penalty, 80 percent involved defendants who were black, Hispanic, or another racial minority, and five jurisdictions accounted for about 40 percent of the submissions.

Also in September, the Charlotte Observer published a study of capital cases in the Carolinas, which found that those who are on trial for their lives are often represented by the legal profession's worst attorneys. The high stress and low pay of capital trials limits the pool of lawyers willing to take them on. Some lawyers abuse drugs and alcohol, some fail to investigate evidence that could clear their client. Judges in the Carolinas have overturned at least 15 death verdicts because of serious errors made by defense lawyers, and another 16 death row inmates were represented at trial by lawyers who were later disbarred or disciplined for unethical conduct.

Much has been written about the appalling state of affairs in the State of Texas. The Dallas Morning News reported on September 10 that more than 100 prisoners awaiting execution in Texas as of May 1—about one in four convicts on Texas's death row—has been defended by court-appointed lawyers who have been reprimanded, placed on probation, suspended, or banned from practicing law by the State Bar of Texas.

The infractions that triggered the extraordinary step of bar discipline included failing to appear in court, falsifying documents, failing to present key witnesses, and allowing clients to lie. In about half of these instances, the misconduct occurred before the attorney was appointed to handle the capital case.

Just this week, a comprehensive new report by the Texas Defender Service described that State's death penalty system as thoroughly flawed and in dire need of change because of problems like racial bias, prosecutorial misconduct and incompetent defense counsel. The report, which reviews hundreds of cases and appeals, confirmed that indigent defendants in Texas are routinely represented in trials and during appeals by underpaid court-appointed lawyers who are inexperienced, inept, or uninterested.

These lawyers spend little time on the cases and present inadequate arguments and flawed defenses. In several notorious cases, defense lawyers slept in court, drank heavily, or used illegal drugs during a death penalty case.

Time and again, we hear defenders of the status quo say that as long as an accused person has access to the courts, the system is working properly. Statements of this sort reflect either ignorance or worse. The question we must ask is whether the promise of access to the courts is real, or just a cruel joke. Does access mean meaningful access, with qualified defense counsel who know what they are doing and have the resources to do the job properly, or does it mean merely token access. The evidence shows that it is too often the latter.

The evidence is overwhelming that the capital punishment system is broken—not just in Illinois, where the high error rate has prompted a moratorium on executions—not just in Texas, with its sleeping lawyers and racial biases—but across the Nation.

The people have heard this evidence, and they know this. A recent poll conducted by Peter D. Hart Research, a Democratic research firm, and American Viewpoint, a Republican research firm, shows that the public discourse on the death penalty has matured from a debate over whether the death penalty system is broken into a constructive dialogue on how broken it is, and about how much reform we need to fix it—if indeed it can be fixed at all.

New developments in DNA technology have helped expose some of the flaws in the system, and they have been invaluable in freeing innocent Americans like Dennis Fritz. But the public knows that the injustices revealed by DNA testing are just the tip of the iceberg. The central theme running through the vast majority of the tragedies we have seen has been incompetent, under-funded trial counsel making a mockery of our adversarial system.

Any reform that does not deal with the counsel issue is inadequate. The American people understand this. When it comes to matters of life and death, most Americans—55 percent of those surveyed—believe that it is not enough to ensure access to DNA testing without also ensuring access to competent and experienced defense counsel.

There is one more key lesson to be learned from listening to the American people. We are a nation founded on tolerance, but not tolerance of incompetence and failure. When there's a broken product out there endangering innocent lives, Americans rightly demand that it be fixed or recalled. Some irresponsible corporations are currently learning what comes of those who continue to put more and more broken, dangerous products into circulation.

As conservatives like George Will have pointed out, there is a parallel American tradition that we here in Washington know well of demanding that incompetent officials and broken government programs shape up or face the scrap heap.

Now that they have heard the evidence, Americans are ready to apply that same common sense to the government program known as the death penalty. Americans may be divided on whether the capital punishment system needs to be recalled, but there is a clear and growing consensus that the system needs to be reformed. An overwhelming majority—some 80 percent of those surveyed—want to see concrete measures to ensure competent and adequately funded counsel.

An even larger majority—nearly 90 percent of those surveyed—want to ensure that death row inmates can obtain DNA testing.

When a government program has a record of incompetence, failure, and harming innocent lives, ordinary Americans say fix it or scrap it; do not under any circumstances expand it. In the past few years, as the defects of our capital punishment system have become more and more obvious, the States have largely ignored the problem, while they have expanded the program, executing more and more people. Neither history, nor the American people, will be kind to a Congress that stands by and does nothing while this trend continues.

The evidence has shown that the death penalty is broken; the American people know the death penalty is broken; and they are calling upon us, their elected representatives, to fix it or scrap it.

The bipartisan Innocence Protection Act is a real, practical response to that demand. Of critical importance, it meaningfully addresses not just the tip of the iceberg—DNA testing—but also the bulk of the problem—ineffective and under-funded defense counsel.

Our bill does not go as far as some Americans would like. It does not scrap the death penalty; it does not place a moratorium on executions; and it does not tackle all the injustices inflicted upon racial minorities and the mentally retarded by the present capital punishment system. Rather, it embodies a consensus approach, informed by the wisdom of Democrats and Republicans in the Senate and House, the Department of Justice and experts and ordinary Americans on all sides of our criminal justice system.

Because of this, it has been gaining ground. We now have 14 cosponsors in the Senate, and about 80 in the House. We have Democratic and Republican cosponsors, supporters of the death penalty and opponents. President Clinton, Vice-President GORE, and Attorney General Reno have all expressed support for the bill.

I had hoped that my colleagues would heed the American people's call for practical, bipartisan reform and expedite passage of this important legislation. Unfortunately, every opportunity for progress has been squandered. Even with respect to post-conviction DNA testing, where there is strong bipartisan consensus that federal legislation is appropriate and necessary, we could not even manage to report a bill out of committee.

While our lack of progress on Federal legislation is regrettable, there have been some positive developments that may facilitate broader access to post-conviction DNA testing. On September 29, a federal district judge in Virginia held that State prisoners may file federal civil rights suits seeking DNA testing, reasoning that the denial of possibly exculpatory evidence states a claim of denial of due process. If this decision is upheld, it could go a long way toward persuading State prosecutors and courts to stop stonewalling on requests for postconviction DNA testing.

I was also greatly heartened this week to read that the Virginia Supreme Court has moved to eliminate that State's shortest-in-the-nation deadline for death row inmates to introduce new evidence of their innocence. Currently, inmates in Virginia have only 21 days after their sentencing to ask for a new trial based on new information. The proposed rule change would re-open Virginia's courts to inmates like Earl Washington, who had to wait six years for a Governor to order additional DNA tests and grant a pardon.

Outside of Virginia, some State legislatures have begun considering the need for criminal justice reforms. Since the initial introduction of the Innocence Protection Act early this year, Arizona, California, Oklahoma, Tennessee, and Washington have passed laws providing prisoners greater access to post-conviction DNA testing, and other States are considering similar measures. I am especially pleased that California's legislators saw fit to model their law in part on the Innocence Protection Act.

By contrast, Tennessee's statute allows post-conviction DNA testing only to prisoners under sentence of death, leaving the vast majority of prisoners without access to what could be the only means of demonstrating their innocence. And neither of these laws addresses the larger and more urgent problem of ensuring that capital defendants receive competent legal representation. There is still much to do.

There can no longer be any doubt that our nation's capital punishment system is in crisis. I urge my colleagues on both sides of the aisle, those who support the death penalty, and those who oppose it, let us work together to find solutions.

TRIBUTE TO COMMEMORATE THE 65TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE CHINA CLIPPER'S FIRST FLIGHT

• Mr. INOUYE. Mr. President, this month marks the 65th anniversary of the world's first commercial trans-Pacific flight. I wish to pay tribute to those who possessed the vision and tenacity to achieve this historic milestone, which significantly altered the travel industry, mail service, and cargo service, and forever change my home state of Hawaii.

On November 22, 1935, Pan American World Airways' China Clipper traveled from San Francisco to Manila. This feat was remarkable for many reasons, including the following:

This inaugural fight was the longest ocean-spanning flight in history. The China Clipper traveled 8,746 miles and completed the one-way route in six days. Prior to this flight, the longest over-water flight was a 1,865-mile journey from Dakar in French West Africa to Natal, Brazil, in South America.

This aircraft delivered the first airmail across the Pacific ocean. It carried 110,865 letters weighing a total of 1,837 pounds.

This China Clipper, an M–130 aircraft built by G. L. Martin Company specifically to meet the demands of this trans-oceanic flight, was the largest flying boat ever.

About 125,000 people cheered as the four-engine China Clipper taxied out of a harbor in San Francisco Bay and headed for the Philippines. They watched from vantage points along the shore and the still-under-construction Golden Gate Bridge, and aboard recreational boats and small private planes. Postmaster General James A. Farley traveled from Washington, D.C. to witness this inaugural event and President Franklin D. Roosevelt sent a special message conveying his heartfelt congratulations.

The China Clipper made stops at several Pacific Islands. On November 23, 1935, its arrival in Oahu's Pearl Harbor was watched by about 3,000 people. Then the aircraft continued on, making stops at Pan American bases at Midway Island, Wake Island, and Guam. The China Clipper brought the staffs at these bases 12 crates of turkeys, and cartons of cranberries, sweet potatoes, and mincemeat. The meals represented these islands' first Thanksgiving celebrations.

The China Clipper's brave crew of seven were: Captain Edwin C. Musick, First Officer R. O. D. Sullivan, Second Officer George King, First Engineering Officer Chan Wright, Engineering Officer Victor Wright, Navigation Officer Fred Noonan, and Radio Officer W. T. Jarboe, Jr.

Captain Musick's own description of the landing at Wake Island, a barren atoll, offers a glimpse of what it was like to be aboard the China Clipper's inaugural trans-Pacific flight. According to Captain Musick, the landing was the ''most difficult'' on the trip and ''called for the most exacting feats of navigation on record.'' It was like striking a point that was ''smaller than a pinhead'' in the ''vast map of the Pacific Ocean.''

On November 29, 1935, the China Clipper landed in Manila and on December 6, it arrived in San Francisco to complete the round trip. Although the aircraft did not carry any paying passengers, its journey marked the beginning of trans-oceanic passenger commercial aviation.

Eleven months later, on October 21, 1936, Pan American inaugurated a passenger service route with stops in San Francisco, Honolulu, and Manila. The four-engine China Clippers cruised at 150 miles per hour. Passengers, who sat in broad armchairs and ate their meals with fine china and silverware, paid $1,438 for a round trip from San Francisco to Manila. The airlines purchased six Boeing B–314 aircraft to add to its Pacific-route fleet.

Thirty years later, the advent of the jet age brought Hawaii—located approximately 2,400 miles from the nearest major port—closer to the rest of the world. In 1967, visitor arrivals jumped 34.6 percent to 1.1 million tourists from the previous year when the first jets arrived in Hawaii. By 1968, Continental Airlines, Western Air, Braniff International, American Airlines, Trans World Airlines, Inc., and United Airlines had joined Pan Am in flying Hawaii-Mainland routes. Today, Honolulu International Airport is home to about 40 carriers. In recent years, the state's annual visitor count has approached 7 million tourists.

The China Clipper also paved the way for the export of Hawaii's agricultural products, such as pineapples and flowers. The Hawaii floriculture industry's out-of-state sales each year are about $40 million. The timely export of these perishable goods is made possible by aviation.

Today, agriculture and tourism are mainstays of Hawaii's economy. The China Clipper's crew and Juan Trippe, who was president of Pan American at the time of the inaugural flight, would marvel at the economic and social ramifications of that historic journey more than six decades ago.

I salute the people of Pan American World Airways, G. L. Martin Company, and Boeing who pursued what others thought was impossible. It is my hope that today's aviation industry will follow the example of its forebears by continually striving to achieve new milestones in safety, efficiency, and customer service.●

THE 100TH ANNIVERSARY OF PAUL ARPIN VAN LINES INC.

● Mr. L. CHAFEE. Mr. President, I rise today to congratulate Paul Arpin Van Lines Inc., a moving company based in West Warwick, Rhode Island, on its 100th anniversary.

The business community of the State of Rhode Island is comprised primarily of small, family businesses. Indeed, 98 percent of Rhode Island businesses are small businesses. These businesses have played an extremely important role in the growth and strength of the Rhode Island economy. One of these businesses is a moving company, Paul Arpin Van Lines Inc., of West Warwick, Rhode Island.

One hundred years ago this month, the company was founded by Paul G. Arpin, who left it to his son, Paul Arpin. Paul Arpin is still very active in the daily affairs of the business as Chief Financial Officer. Paul's son, David, is now the company's President.

Paul Arpin Van Lines Inc., has grown considerably since its founding. It now employs 400 Rhode Islanders and has 160 agents throughout the country. It has survived the Great Depression, a number of recessions and various other financial downturns that challenged far larger businesses in the state. Its sound business practices and active community involvement through the years have been a constant source of pride, not only to the Arpin family, but to many generations of Rhode Island families employed by them.

It is with great pleasure that I salute the entire Arpin family for its many accomplishments over this past century and wish them many, many more years of success.●

TRIBUTE TO JOE DEAN BOBO

● Mrs. BOXER. Mr. President, I rise today to recognize the record and accomplishments of one of my constituents who has devoted his career to serving working men and women in California. On the occasion of his retirement from the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers, I salute Joe Dean Bobo for his tireless efforts over the last three decades, and applaud his lifetime of accomplishments.

Joe Bobo was born in rural Arkansas to a family of fifteen. He moved to Oakland, California as a teenager, and served three years in the United States Army before beginning work in his family's scrap metal business. Joe's involvement with the IAMAW began in 1969, when he began work as an apprentice mechanic. He quickly advanced to become a shop steward, and was appointed a full-time union official with the IAMAW Northern California District Lodge 190 in 1979.

Since that time, Joe has worked tirelessly in advocating for fair wages and benefits on behalf of the men and women he represents. He has gained the respect of both labor union members and employers through his dedicated service.

In addition to his full-time position with the IAMAW, Joe's experience and passion for labor issues have resulted in him being called on to participate in a variety of leadership positions. He is currently the Secretary/Treasurer of the Automotive Machinists Coordinating Committee of Northern California and a Trustee of the Automotive Industries Health, Welfare and Pension Fund. Joe's labor leadership has also included a term as President of the California Conference of Machinists, representing 150,000 members employed in the aerospace, airlines, automotive, electronics and manufacturing industries.

His community service is also commendable, including service as an advisory member of the Transition Committee for Waste Management and on the New Oakland Committee. Joe is an exceptional person who has earned the gratitude and respect of the scores of people who have worked with him and come to know him.

I am pleased to join Joe's friends, family and colleagues in recognizing his outstanding service to his fellow workers and to the community and wish him well as he moves on to new challenges in his retirement.●

HONORING MINNESOTA TEACHER OF THE YEAR, KATIE KOCH-LAVEEN

● Mr. GRAMS. Mr. President, I appreciate the opportunity to be here today to honor Ms. Katherine Koch-Laveen as Minnesota's Teacher of the Year for the year 2000. This is certainly a high honor, as I note that 98 Minnesota educators were nominated for this award, and their accomplishments were reviewed by 18 judges. It is all the more impressive considering Minnesota's public schools reputation for academic excellence. I also commend the 98 nominees for this honor, 28 of whom were chosen as ''teachers of excellence,'' and 10 of whom were further chosen for an ''honor roll'' of teachers. School teachers that excel at their craft are critically important to the intellectual development of their students, and help shape the student's vision for what they can accomplish in their lives.

I still can vividly remember the excellent educators that taught me at Zion Lutheran Christian Day School in Crown. Excellent teachers motivate, show enthusiasm for inquiry, and instill in their students a passion for learning that often continues for a lifetime. A great educator gives the student a core foundation of knowledge about a subject, and a curiosity about the topic that drives a student to study and research more extensively long after they have left that particular class.

Great teachers also make sacrifices for their students. It's no secret that in today's high-tech, knowledge-based economy, Ms. Koch-Laveen could probably find a more financially rewarding profession, especially with her science background. And our great teachers need to be rewarded financially, so that we do not lose too many to industry. But ultimately, I have to believe that what keeps them in the classroom is the intangible reward of seeing their students excel, and having a group of students come in to a class with little knowledge about a topic and have them leave with a firm grasp of core concepts, a desire to learn much more, and an excitement to apply what they have learned in ''real world'' situations. And I hesitate to use the term ''real world,'' because these days there is probably nothing more real world than a high school classroom.

So congratulations and thank you, Ms. Koch-Laveen, for your commitment to excellence and dedicated service to your students, your community, and to Minnesota. Thanks also to the other hardworking Apple Valley teachers here today that strive for excellence in the classroom and shoulder so much responsibility for Minnesota's future. It has been a pleasure to be here.●

HONORING LINCOLN McILRAVY

● Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. President, I rise to publicly commend Lincoln McIlravy, a native of Phillip, SD, on earning a bronze medal for his remarkable display of athleticism in the freestyle wrestling event at the 2000 Summer Olympics in Sydney, Australia.

Lincoln McIlravy's wrestling talent combined with years of practice, and an extraordinary dedication to physical excellence attribute to his athletic success. On October 1, 2000, Lincoln became one of America's best wrestlers on the global Olympiad stage where he scored a solid 3–1 victory over Sergei Demtchenko of Belarus, thus victoriously claiming the bronze medal in the 69kg freestyle event.

Success has been abundant in Lincoln's wrestling career, as his honors include being a three-time NCAA champion for the University of Iowa, as well as four U.S. National titles, 1997–2000. Yet, Lincoln's prominence as an international contender began when he was a member of the 1997 World team. McIlravy then became a two-time world medalist having won a silver medal at the 1999 World Championships and a bronze medal in the 1998 World Championships. He not only was a 1999 Pan American Games champion, but also a 1998 Goodwill Games champion, in addition to the three-time World Cup champion, 1998–2000.

Lincoln McIlravy is an exemplary athlete who richly deserves this distinguished recognition. Therefore, it is with great honor that I share Lincoln's impressive Olympic accomplishments with my colleagues.●

TRIBUTE TO BOAZ SIEGEL

● Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, I am delighted to rise today to acknowledge a lawyer, from my home State of Michigan, of great intellectual capacity and a passion for justice, Boaz Siegel, who dedicated his life to fighting for working men and women. On October 20th of this year, hundreds of people will gather for the dedication of the new headquarters for the Pipefitters, Refrigeration & Air Conditioning Service Local 636. This dedication will also serve as a tribute to Mr. Siegel, and will culminate in his being made an honorary member of Local 636.

Boaz Siegel has dedicated his academic and professional life to studying, teaching and practicing the laws that affect the well-being of all workers. Believing that the law could be a noble profession dedicated to the public good, he enrolled in the Wayne State University Law School. While in law school he balanced the responsibilities of family, work and pursuing numerous social causes. He excelled in his law studies at Wayne State University, and received his Juris Doctorate in 1941.

Upon graduating law school, Boaz's plans to enter private practice were delayed as he was asked to work in the Wayne State Law Library. This quickly led to a teaching position at the law school where he taught from 1941 through 1972. During this time, he briefly left to join Samuel Schwartz and Rolland O'Hare in a private practice that my brother, Sander Levin, joined shortly after its inception. After a year in practice, Boaz returned to teaching and was made assistant to the provost and a full professor at Wayne State University Law School.

Although passionate about teaching, Boaz Siegel's first love remained labor law. While teaching at Wayne State in the 1950s, he served as legal counsel to the trustees of fringe benefit, pension and health funds. One such fund, the Detroit and Vicinity Construction Workers Health and Welfare Fund, possessed 45,000 participants. In 1962, he was appointed by the United States Secretary of Labor to a position on the first U.S. Council on Employee Welfare and Pension Plans.

Two years later, his considerable talents as an arbitrator were acknowledged when he became a member of the National Academy of Arbitrators. However, it was his fund work that consumed most of his time, and led him to leave teaching and enter law practice full-time in 1972. His work with many unions, including Local 636, has ensured a better future for thousands of workers and their families.

Boaz Siegel can take pride in his long and honorable service to the working people of Michigan. I am honored to call this man a mentor, colleague and friend. I hope my Senate colleagues will join me in saluting Boaz Siegel for his commitment to working men and women, the labor movement and teaching and practicing law.●

TRIBUTE TO FRAMATOME CONNECTORS USA, INCORPORATED

● Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, I rise today to pay tribute to and congratulate Framatome Connectors USA, of Manchester, on their nomination for this year's Secretary of Defense Employer Support Freedom Award. Their dedication to their employees who serve our country as part of the National Guard and Reserve is admirable and an example for other businesses.

Framatome, which manufactures electrical connectors, serves the needs of its five employees who serve in the National Guard and Reserve in several very important ways. First, their compensation package for all employees includes differential pay between civilian and military salaries. The package also includes medical, dental, and life insurance and 401(k) coverage for the duration of the employee's duty commitment.

Framatome has also established a policy that allows the employee on active duty to maintain his or her position with the company for as long as they required to remain on active duty. They believe the service of their employees to their country is important to our nation's defense, and anything they can do to make this service easier for their employees and their families is worth the effort.

Framatome put this generous plan into action recently when one of their employees was mobilized and sent to Bosnia during a Presidential call up. The company believed that when an employee is activated and pulled away from his or her family, a financial cushion should be available to help bridge the gap during the salary transition from civilian to military pay. They wanted to be sure the family of the reservist or guardsman or woman would have the financial resources they needed to continue as close to normal a life as possible while their loved one was away.

I applaud Framatome's effort to make Reserve or National Guard service easier for their employees, and the company's national recognition is certainly well-deserved. I know the employees who sacrifice so much to serve their country are extremely grateful for the chance to serve their country and work for such a compassionate, understanding company. It is an honor to serve all the people of Framatome, USA in the U.S. Senate.●

TRIBUTE TO CAPTAIN JOHN O'GRADY

● Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, I rise today to pay tribute to Captain John O'Grady, who recently completed a charity bicycle ride from Dayton, Ohio to Albuquerque, New Mexico to raise awareness and money for epilepsy charities. I am particularly proud of John because I had the pleasure of coaching this amazing young man during the 1973–74 baseball season at Kingswood Regional High School.

John's desire to make his ride is deeply personal. Just this year, after 23 years as a pilot with United Parcel Service and Airborne Express, John suffered a grand mal seizure while dining at an airport restaurant after a flight. A few weeks later, John was stricken again and diagnosed with epilepsy. This was a shocking blow for a man who flew planes and hot air balloons for so many years.

With his flying and driving privileges permanently taken away from him, John was forced to ride his bicycle everywhere he went. In fact, it was on a bike that he suffered the seizure that led to his epilepsy diagnosis, but John did not give up. Instead, he decided to try to use his experience to help others facing epilepsy and the charities that do such important work as we research and try to find a cure for this terrible disease.

Since John enjoys hot-air ballooning so much and could not bear to miss the annual International Balloon Fiesta, he decided to ride his bike the 1,600 miles from Dayton, Ohio to the event in Albuquerque. Along the way, John has raised more than $11,000 for several epilepsy charities and inspired others battling epilepsy. John's ride has given people with epilepsy a platform on which they can finally talk about their disease and the discrimination they face on a daily basis. That is perhaps the most important legacy of this magnificent achievement.

I want to congratulate John and wish him well in all he does. I am so proud of his courage and determination, and I am honored to have known him. It is an honor to serve him in the U.S. Senate.●

TRIBUTE TO ERIC KINGSLEY

● Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, I rise today to pay tribute to Eric Kingsley as he leaves his position as Executive Director of the New Hampshire Timberland Owners Association, NHTOA.

Eric's five year tenure at NHTOA has been marked by progress and success. The organization's programs and services have grown to meet the needs and concerns of its members, and have established a strong, stable foundation for the association's future.

Through the years, I have grown to value Eric's input on the many issues that significantly impact New Hampshire's timberlands. Eric has done an outstanding job of keeping me, and other policy makers, informed on the issues and has been a true leader in making sure the voice of NHTOA was heard throughout the country.

Of all of Eric's achievements at NHTOA, perhaps his most important success came this past spring. Eric helped lead the charge to defeat the Environmental Protection Agency's ill-considered proposal to treat some forestry activities as ''point source pollution'' under the Clean Water Act. These rules, known as Total Maximum Daily Loads—TMDL—would have required landowners, foresters, and homeowners to obtain federal permits before conducting a timber harvest and could have exposed them to lengthy bureaucratic delays and costly citizen lawsuits.

This past May, I held a field hearing in Whitefield, New Hampshire, on the TMDL issue, and not only did Eric successfully testify, but he organized hundreds of foresters to ensure their message was heard loud and clear in Washington. Thanks in large part to Eric's leadership on this issue, the EPA withdrew the section of the TMDL rules that adversely affected forestry.

My staff and I have also worked closely with Eric on issues of importance to the White Mountain National Forest. When the President issued his ''roadless'' initiative stripping the people of New Hampshire and New England with the opportunity to have a voice in the management of their public lands, Eric was there to ensure we took this measure to task. This time we were not successful, but we were very close to creating an exemption for the White Mountain National Forest from this heavy-handed proposal.

Eric also rose to the occasion in the face of destruction from Mother Nature's wrath. The Ice Storm in January 1998 brought unprecedented challenges to New Hampshire's forest lands. Hundreds of thousands of acres were significantly damaged. Eric worked closely with me and my colleagues to help us turn this tragedy into an opportunity. Today, not only has the federal government provided resources to help recover from the storm, but we have a record number of acres under forest stewardship plans.

My staff and I have worked with Eric on a wide variety of other issues during his time at NHTOA, and have always been impressed with his dedication and the depth of knowledge he displayed on issues ranging from estate tax reform to rural economic development. He has always been an effective and honest advocate for the causes he holds close to his heart, and I know he will be greatly missed by me and NHTOA's 1,500 members.

I wish Eric well in all his future endeavors, and am confident he will succeed in whatever pursuits he chooses. It is an honor to represent him in the U.S. Senate.●

TRIBUTE TO BARBARA BEDFORD

● Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, I rise today to pay tribute to Barbara Bedford of Etna, New Hampshire, on her fine performance at the Sydney Olympic Games. Her hard work, dedication and perseverance in making her Olympic dream a reality are an example for us all, and the people of New Hampshire are so very proud of her excellent performance.

Barbara, along with Jenny Thompson, was part of the gold-medal winning 4x100 medley relay that shattered the world record. It was so great to see Barbara fly through the water during the backstroke leg of the relay with her extremely patriotic red, white and blue-dyed hair. Her Olympic moment was years in the making, as she finally made her first Olympic team at the age of 27 after disappointments at the 1988, 1992 and 1996 Olympic Trials. After those heartbreaking defeats, Barbara could have easily given up her dream of making an Olympic team. However, with the help of her family and coach, Barbara did not retreat. Instead, she worked tirelessly toward her dream and was rewarded at this year's Olympic trials, where she placed first in the 50-meter backstroke. Barbara was able to keep her focus squarely on making the team this year and reach her goal, and this is an inspiration to all of us and proves once again that if we work hard, we can do just about anything. Her positive attitude and passion for her sport is so refreshing in an age when far too many athletes seem more interested in endorsements than their sport.

Once again, I want to congratulate Barbara on her accomplishments, and I wish her all the best in her future endeavors. It is an honor to represent her in the U.S. Senate.●

TRIBUTE TO JENNY THOMPSON

● Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, I rise today to congratulate Jenny Thompson of Dover, New Hampshire on her magnificent performance in the Sydney Olympic games. Her hard work and dedication through three Olympics is an example for all of us, and the people of New Hampshire are extremely proud of her success.

Jenny has done so much throughout her career to make the people of Dover and New Hampshire proud during her distinguished career. Whether it was breaking records at Stanford University or winning numerous competitions, Jenny has set the standard for women's swimming in the United States over the past decade. Jenny's Olympic teammates often cite her achievements as their inspiration for striving for excellence in the pool.

During the Sydney games, American swimmers brought home an impressive 33 of a possible 96 swimming medals, more than any other nation, and Jenny played a key role in that amazing success. She anchored two gold medal-winning relays and brought home her first individual Olympic medal, a bronze in the 100-meter freestyle. These blistering performances brought Jenny's individual Olympic medal count to nine, breaking Bonnie Blair's record for Olympic medals won by an American woman. Jenny performed beautifully under amazing pressure and against tough competition, and she will always be a champion in the eyes of the people of New Hampshire.

As Jenny ends her Olympic swimming career, I wish her all the best as she heads to medical school. I am confident her amazing work ethic and dedication to excellence will serve her well in her career in medicine and any other endeavor she pursues. It is truly an honor to represent Jenny in the U.S. Senate.●

TRIBUTE TO KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS OF MERRIMACK

● Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, I rise today to pay tribute to the Knights of Columbus Number 6725 of Merrimack, New Hampshire as they gather to celebrate their 25th anniversary. This is a milestone of which they and the community of Merrimack should be extremely proud.

Throughout its quarter-century of existence, the Knights of Columbus has been a major presence in the Greater Merrimack Area. They have donated their time and energy to making their entire community a better place through public service. Whether it is manning a soup kitchen in Nashua, making annual donations to the New Hampshire Kidney Fund or recognizing Families of the Year, K of C 6725 has shown their dedication to their core values of family, Church, council, and community.

Furthermore, the K of C 6725 has worked to help those who do not have a voice, including the needy, the handicapped, and the unborn. They have donated countless items of clothing to people in need, worked tirelessly to help WMUR–TV with its annual presentation of the Jerry Lewis Telethon and purchased and maintained concession trailers to help generate donations for many charitable organizations. Furthermore, they have sponsored an annual folk music night for Birthright, a group dedicated to protecting the unborn.

The K of C 6725 has shown dedication not only to its community and those in need but to the Catholic Church as well. They are a constant presence, holding an annual Palm Sunday Breakfast, an Easter celebration known as ''Birthday Party for Jesus,'' and setting up an Memorial Mass at Last Rest Cemetery in Merrimack.

In a world where far too few people take the time and opportunity to get involved in their churches and communities, the K of C No. 6725 is an example of the good things we can accomplish when we work together to help others. I congratulate them on this wonderful anniversary, and I wish them all the best as they continue their fantastic work. It is an honor to represent all of K of C 6725's members in the U.S. Senate.●

Messages from the President of the United States were communicated to the Senate by Ms. Evans, one of his secretaries.

(The nominations received today are printed at the end of the Senate proceedings.)

REPORT ON THE CONTINUATION OF EMERGENCY WITH RESPECT TO SIGNIFICANT NARCOTICS TRAFFICKERS CENTERED IN COLOMBIA—MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT—PM 134

The Presiding Officer laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States, together with an accompanying report; which was referred to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs.

To the Congress of the United States:

Section 202(d) of the National Emergencies Act, 50 U.S.C., 1622(d) provides for the automatic termination of a national emergency unless, prior to the anniversary date of its declaration, the President publishes in the Federal Register and transmits to the Congress a notice stating that the emergency is to continue in effect beyond the anniversary date. In accordance with this provision, I have sent the enclosed notice to the Federal Register for publication, stating that the emergency declared with respect to significant narcotics traffickers centered in Colombia is to continue in effect for 1 year beyond October 21, 2000.

The circumstances that led to the declaration on October 21, 1995, of a national emergency have not been resolved. The actions of significant narcotics traffickers centered in Colombia continue to pose an unusual and extraordinary threat to the national security, foreign policy, and economy of the United States and to cause unparalleled violence, corruption, and harm in the United States and abroad. For these reasons, I have determined that it is necessary to maintain economic pressures on significant narcotics traffickers centered in Colombia by blocking their property subject to the jurisdiction of the United States and by depriving them of access to the United States market and financial system.

WILLIAM J. CLINTON.
THE WHITE HOUSE, October 19, 2000.

CONTINUATION OF EMERGENCY WITH RESPECT TO SIGNIFICANT NARCOTICS TRAFFICKERS CENTERED IN COLOMBIA

On October 21, 1995, by Executive Order 12978, I declared a national emergency to deal with the unusual and extraordinary threat to the national security, foreign policy, and economy of the United States constituted by the actions of significant narcotics traffickers centered in Colombia, and the unparalleled violence, corruption, and harm they cause in the United States and abroad. The order blocks all property and interests in property of foreign persons listed in an Annex to the order, as well as persons determined to play a significant role in international narcotics trafficking centered in Colombia, to materially assist in, or provide financial or technological support for or goods or services in support of, narcotics trafficking activities of persons designated in or pursuant to the order, or to be owned or controlled by, or to act for or on behalf of, persons designated in or pursuant to the order. The order also prohibits any transaction or dealing by United States persons or within the United States in such property or interests in property. Because the activities of significant narcotics traffickers centered in Colombia continue to threaten the national security, foreign policy, and economy of the United States and to cause unparalleled violence, corruption, and harm in the United States and abroad, the national emergency declared on October 21, 1995, and the measures adopted pursuant thereto to deal with that emergency, must continue in effect beyond October 21, 2000. Therefore, in accordance with section 202(d) of the National Emergencies Act (50 U.S.C. 1622(d)), I am continuing the national emergency for 1 year with respect to significant narcotics traffickers centered in Colombia. This notice shall be published in the Federal Register and transmitted to the Congress.

WILLIAM J. CLINTON.

STATEMENTS ON INTRODUCED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS

Mr. DEWINE:

S. 3220. A bill to amend sections 3 and 5 of the National Child Protection Act of 1993, relating to national criminal history background checks of providers of care to children, elderly persons, and persons with disabilities; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

NATIONAL CHILD PROTECTION IMPROVEMENT ACT OF 2000

Mr. DEWINE. Mr. President, today I am introducing the National Child Protection Act Improvement Act of 2000. This bill would amend the National Child Protection act, as amended by the Volunteers for Children Act. It is designed to facilitate the gathering of criminal history record information from both state and federal repositories for background checks of employees and volunteers for organizations providing services to children, the elderly, and the disabled.

Despite the best efforts of the law enforcement community and the volunteer and child services community, many of the individuals who volunteer and are employed in these critical positions still are not subject to criminal history background checks. The bill that I am introducing today modified the National Child Protection Act to facilitate these background checks. Under my bill, with the consent of the individual, the organization with which the individual is applying would receive a copy of the full criminal history record, including relevant arrest information. Further, the bill includes an authorization to provide assistance to these volunteer and service organizations in offsetting the cost of these background checks. To help protect the privacy of individuals who volunteer and are employed in these positions, the bill also would provide a number of important privacy protections.

we need to be sure that we do everything possible to facilitate these important background checks, while assuring that these background checks are not so costly that volunteer organizations and their volunteers are deterred from initiating these vital safety checks.

In shaping this bill, I have worked closely with law enforcement, state officials, and other interested parties. Because of that, the legislation that I am introducing today would help accomplish the laudable goals of the national Child Protection Act and the Volunteers for Children Act—which are to facilitate national background checks initiated in states which have not adopted authorizing language, and, at the same time, assure that those checks are processed effectively and quickly. We need to give states the flexibility they need to accomplish those goals.

Mr. EDWARDS:

S. 3221. A bill to provide grants to law enforcement agencies that ensure that law enforcement officers employed by such agencies are afforded due process when involved in a case that may lead to dismissal, demotion, suspension, or transfer; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

THE LAW ENFORCEMENT OFFICERS DUE PROCESS ACT OF 2000

Mr. EDWARDS. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce the Law Enforcement Officers Due Process Act of 2000. Every day our Nation's police officers put their lives on the line in the fight against crime. Every time they patrol a beat they put their own safety at risk to protect our children and make our country a better place to live and work. We all owe a great deal to these brave men and women.

Working police officers spend their lives among the public safeguarding the innocent and apprehending those who have committed crimes. Much of this contact can be stressful for everyone involved. Perhaps an individual has been stopped by an officer for the suspected violation of a law. Or maybe the officer is assisting someone who is the victim of a crime. Due to the circumstances, these are often unpleasant situations. And unfortunately, in some instances, contact with the police officer may become adversarial and generate complaints about the officer's actions.

These complaints range from accusations that an officer took too long to arrive at a crime scene, used too much force, or was not forceful enough, to claims that the officer was rude or didn't show proper respect. Some complaints against officers are legitimate. However, some complaints are generated to intimidate an officer who is simply doing his or her job, into dropping charges. Any one of these complaints can get an officer fired, suspended, or otherwise punished without the benefit of due process.

A patchwork of state and local laws currently governs the rights of officers when they are involved in a case that may lead to dismissal, demotion, suspension or transfer. Thirty-five states have state and/or local laws in place that govern the administrative due process rights of law enforcement officers. However, 15 states do not have any of these much-deserved due process protections for their law enforcement officers.

The Law Enforcement Officers Due Process Act is a common-sense measure designed to replace arbitrary and ad hoc investigatory procedures with consistent standards. The legislation will provide additional funding to law enforcement agencies that either have in place, or currently do not have but certify they will implement, administrative due process for their law enforcement officers. An agency will be eligible for grant money if its administrative procedures include the right of a law enforcement officer under investigation to: (1) a hearing before a fair and impartial board or hearing officer; (2) be represented by an attorney or other officer at the expense of the officer under investigation; (3) confront any witness testifying against him or her; and (4) record all meetings he or she attends. In many instances, an employer with direct control over an officer is also the investigator. That is why providing basic, explicitly stated rights to officers under investigation is crucial to maintaining impartial investigations. These rights will not interfere with the management of state and local internal investigations. They will merely ensure that officers receive the benefit of fair and objective investigations, whether a complaint against them is legitimate or not.

Some individuals may be concerned that providing these rights would delay removal of an officer who is ultimately found to have deserved disciplinary action taken against them. However, I'd like to emphasize that my legislation would not prevent the immediate suspension of an officer whose continued presence on the job is considered to be a substantial and immediate threat to the welfare of the law enforcement agency or the public; who refuses to obey a direct order issued in conformance with the agency's rules and regulations; or who is accused of committing an illegal act.

The Law Enforcement Officers Due Process Act does not force a law enforcement agency to implement due process rights for its officers. Rather, it encourages agencies to do the right thing by offering them additional funds if they establish written procedures for determining if a complaint is valid or merely designed to cause trouble for the officer.

I urge my colleagues who represent states that do not have law enforcement officers' due process rights laws to cosponsor my bill and give their police officers the protections they deserve. I also urge my colleagues who represent states that have various local laws in place to cosponsor my bill. By doing so they will help eliminate the disparity that exists among local jurisdictions, and guarantee that every single officer in their state will have a minimum baseline of rights to help guarantee fair and impartial investigations.

Crime rates are down across the Nation. We owe a tremendous debt of gratitude to our Nation's police officers for helping make this happen. Our communities, our schools, and our places of business would not enjoy the level of security they have today without the efforts of law enforcement. Enacting the Law Enforcement Officers Due Process Act is the least we can do to show officers that we will fight for all of them just like they fight for all of us every day.

I ask unanimous consent that the Law Enforcement Officers Due Process Act be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Mr. CRAIG (for himself, Mr. DASCHLE, Mr. BAUCUS, Mr. BURNS, Mr. CRAPO, Mr. JOHNSON, and Mr. SMITH of Oregon):

S. 3222. A bill to require the Secretary of the Interior to establish a program to provide assistance through States to eligible weed management entities to control or eradicate harmful, nonnative weeds on public and private land; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

HARMFUL NON-NATIVE WEED CONTROL ACT OF 2000

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, I rise today with Senator DASCHLE to introduce the Harmful Non-native Weed Control Act of 2000—to provide assistance to eligible weed management entities to control or eradicate harmful, non-native weeds on public and private land. I am pleased that Senators BAUCUS, BURNS, CRAPO, JOHNSON, and GORDON SMITH, are joining us as original cosponsors.

Currently, noxious weeds are a dangerous threat to the viability of both public and private lands across the country. Over a century ago, a wave of noxious weeds entered North America from Europe and Asia. Unlike native species, which have natural predators and control mechanisms, these weeds lack native insects, fungi, or diseases to control their growth and takeover of native plants.

Noxious weeds are estimated to spread at the rate of 4,600 acres per day on federal lands alone in the Western United States. Idaho's own rush skeltonweed has increased from a few plants in 1954 to roughly 4 million acres today. Hundreds of millions of dollars are spent each year by Western states to prevent and stop the growth of noxious weeds.

These nonnative weeds threaten fully two-thirds of all endangered species and are now considered by some experts to be the second most important threat to biodiversity. In some areas, spotted knapweed grows so thick that big game like deer will move out of the area to find edible plants. Noxious weeds also increase soil erosion, and prevent recreationists from accessing land that is infested with poisonous plants. Bikers are often met with a formidable foe when 2-inch-long thorns pop their tires on bike paths overrun with puncture vine that can pierce all but the most rugged materials.

In response to this environmental crisis, I have worked with the National Cattlemen's Beef Association, Public Lands Council, and the Nature Conservancy to develop the Harmful Non-Native Weed Control Act of 2000. This legislature will provide a mechanism to get funding to the local level where weeds can be fought in a collaborative way. Working together is what this entire initiative is about.

Specifically, this bill establishes, in the Office of the Secretary of the Interior, a program to provide assistance through States to eligible weed management entities. The Secretary of the Interior appoints an Advisory Committee of ten individuals to make recommendations to the Secretary regarding the annual allocation of funds. The Secretary, in consultation with the Advisory Committee, will allocate funds to States to provide funding to eligible weed management entities to carry out projects approved by States to control or eradicate harmful, non-native weeds on public and private lands. Funds will be allocated based on several factors, including but not limited to: the seriousness of the problem in the State; the extent to which the Federal funds will be used to leverage non-Federal funds to address the problem; and the extent to which the State has already made progress in addressing the problems.

The bill directs that the States use 25 percent of their allocation to make base payments and 75 percent for financial awards to eligible weed management entities for carrying out projects relating to the control or eradication of harmful, non-native weeds on public or private lands. To be eligible to obtain a base payment a weed management entity must be established by local stakeholders for weed management or public education purposes, provide the State a description of their purpose and proposed projects, and fulfill any other requirements set by the State. Weed management entities are also eligible for financial awards which are funds awarded by the State on a competitive basis to carry out projects which cannot be funded within the base payment. Projects will be evaluated, giving equal consideration to economic and natural values, and selected for funding based on factors such as the seriousness of the problem, the likelihood that the project will address the problem, and how comprehensive the project's approach is to the harmful, non-native weed problem within the State. A 50 percent non-Federal match is required to receive the funds.

The Department of Agriculture in Idaho (ISDA) has developed a Strategic Plan for Managing Noxious Weeds through a collaborative effort involving private landowners, State and Federal land managers, State and local governmental entities, and other interested parties. Cooperative Weed Management Areas (CWMAs) are the centerpiece of the strategic plan. CWMAs cross jurisdictional boundaries to bring together all landowners, land managers, and interested parties to identify and prioritize noxious weed strategies within the CWMA in a collaborative manner. The primary responsibilities of the ISDA are to provide coordination, administrative support, facilitation, and project cost-share funding for this collaborative effort. Idaho already has a record of working in a collaborative way on this issue—my legislation will heighten the progress we've had, and establish the same formula for success in other States.

We are introducing this legislation today to get the discussion started. We hope to refine the bill over the winter and introduce an improved bill next year. Constructive suggestions are welcome and we look forward to working with other Members of Congress to get this bill passed next year. Noxious weeds are not only a problem for farmers and ranchers, but a hazard to our environment, economy, and communities in Idaho and the West. The Harmful Nonnative Weeds Act of 2000 is an important step to ensure we are diligent in stopping the spread of these weeds. I am confident that if we work together at all levels of government and throughout our communities, we can protect our land, livelihood, and environment.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that a copy of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 3222

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the ''Harmful Nonnative Weed Control Act of 2000''.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS AND PURPOSES.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that—

(1) public and private land in the United States faces unprecedented and severe stress from harmful, nonnative weeds;

(2) the economic and resource value of the land is being destroyed as harmful nonnative weeds overtake native vegetation, making the land unusable for forage and for diverse plant and animal communities;

(3) damage caused by harmful nonnative weeds has been estimated to run in the hundreds of millions of dollars annually;

(4) successfully fighting this scourge will require coordinated action by all affected stakeholders, including Federal, State, and local governments, private landowners, and nongovernmental organizations;

(5) the fight must begin at the local level, since it is at the local level that persons feel the loss caused by harmful nonnative weeds and will therefore have the greatest motivation to take effective action; and

(6) to date, effective action has been hampered by inadequate funding at all levels of government and by inadequate coordination.

(b) PURPOSES.—The purposes of this Act are—

(1) to provide assistance to eligible weed management entities in carrying out projects to control or eradicate harmful, nonnative weeds on public and private land;

(2) to coordinate the projects with existing weed management areas and districts;

(3) in locations in which no weed management entity, area, or district exists, to stimulate the formation of additional local or regional cooperative weed management entities, such as entities for weed management areas or districts, that organize locally affected stakeholders to control or eradicate weeds;

(4) to leverage additional funds from a variety of public and private sources to control or eradicate weeds through local stakeholders; and

(5) to promote healthy, diverse, and desirable plant communities by abating through a variety of measures the threat posed by harmful, nonnative weeds.

(e) FEDERAL ADVISORY COMMITTEE ACT.—The Federal Advisory Committee Act (5 U.S.C. App.) shall not apply to the Advisory Committee.

SEC. 6. ALLOCATION OF FUNDS TO STATES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—In consultation with the Advisory Committee, the Secretary shall allocate funds made available for each fiscal year under section 8 to States to provide funding in accordance with section 7 to eligible weed management entities to carry out projects approved by States to control or eradicate harmful, nonnative weeds on public and private land.

(b) AMOUNT.—The Secretary shall determine the amount of funds allocated to a State for a fiscal year under this section on the basis of—

(1) the seriousness of the harmful, nonnative weed problem or potential problem in the State, or a portion of the State;

(2) the extent to which the Federal funds will be used to leverage non-Federal funds to address the harmful, nonnative weed problems in the State;

(3) the extent to which the State has made progress in addressing harmful, nonnative weed problems in the State;

SEC. 8. AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.

There are authorized to be appropriated such sums as are necessary to carry out this Act.

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, today I am introducing with Senator LARRY CRAIG the Harmful Non-native Weed Control Act of 2000. This legislation will provide critically needed resources to local agencies to reduce the spread of harmful weeds that are destroying the productivity of farmland and reducing ecological diversity.

In the last few years, public and private lands in the west have seen a startling increase in the spread of harmful, non-native weeds. In South Dakota, these weeds choke out native species, destroy good grazing land, and cost farmers and ranchers thousands of dollars a year to control. On public lands in South Dakota and throughout the West, the spread of the weeds has outpaced the ability of land managers to control them, threatening species diversity and, at times, spreading on to private land.

This problem has become so severe that the White House has created an Invasive Species Council to address it. As Secretary Bruce Babbitt noted, ''The blending of the natural world into one great monoculture of the most aggressive species is, I think, a blow to the spirit and beauty of the natural world.''

Despite these efforts, the scale of this problem is vast. Some estimate that it could cost well into the hundreds of millions of dollars to control effectively the spread of these weeds. This legislation will help to meet that need by putting funding directly into the hands of the local weed boards and managers who already are working to control this problem and whose lands are directly affected.

Specifically, this legislation authorizes new weed control funding and establishes an Advisory Board in the Department of Interior to identify the areas of greatest need for the distribution of those funds. States, in turn, will transfer up to 25 percent of it directly to local weed control boards in order to support ongoing activities and spur the creation of new weed control boards, where necessary. The remaining 75 percent of funds will be made available to weed control boards on a competitive basis to fund weed control projects.

I would like to thank Senator CRAIG for his work on this issue, and to thank the National Cattlemen's Association and the Nature Conservancy, who have been instrumental to the development of this bill. Now that this legislation has been introduced, it is my hope that we can work with all interested stakeholders to enact it as soon as possible. I look forward to working with my colleagues during this process.

By Mr. HARKIN:

S. 3223. A bill to amend the Food Security Act of 1985 to establish the conservation security program; to the Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry.

THE CONSERVATION SECURITY ACT OF 2000

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, today, I am reintroducing the Conservation Security Act of 2000, a bill which represents a fresh new approach to the future of farm policy.

America's farmers and ranchers hold the key for production of a bountiful, safe, and nourishing food supply for Americans and for the population around the globe, as well as for the future for our environment. Farmers and ranchers have a long history to build on.

Specifically on the issue of conservation, it became a national priority in the days of the Dust Bowl, leading to the creation in the 1930s of the Soil Conservation Service at the Department of Agriculture, which is now the Natural Resources Conservation Service. With the very foundation of our food supply at risk, the Government stepped forward with billions of dollars in assistance to help farmers preserve their precious soils.

Since that time, Federal spending on conservation has steadily declined in inflation adjusted dollars. Yet today agriculture faces a wide range of environmental challenges, from overgrazing and manure management to cropland runoff and water quality impairment. Urban and rural citizens alike are increasingly concerned about the environmental impacts of agriculture.

Farmers and ranchers pride themselves on being good stewards of the land, and there are farm-based solutions to these problems being implemented all over the country. But every dollar spent on constructing a filter strip or developing a nutrient management plan is a dollar that farmers don't have for other purposes in hard times like these. And even in better times, there is a lot of competition for that dollar.

So who benefits from conservation on farm lands? As much or more than the farmer, it is all of us, who depend on the careful stewardship of our air, water, soil and our other natural resources. Farmers and ranchers tend not only to their crops and animals, but also to our nation's natural resources. They are the real stewards for future generations.

Since we all share in these benefits, it is only right that we share in conserving them. It is time to enter into a true conservation partnership with our farmers and ranchers to help ensure that conservation is an integral and permanent part of agricultural production nationwide.

In the 1985 farm bill, we required that farmers who wanted to participate in USDA farm programs develop soil conservation plans for their highly erodible land. This provision helped put new conservation plans in place for our most fragile farmlands. In the most recent farm bill, we streamlined conservation programs and established new cost-share and incentive payments for certain practices.

The Conservation Security Act of 2000, which establishes the Conservation Security Program, builds on our past successes and takes a bold step forward in farm and conservation policy.

My bill would establish a universal and voluntary incentive payment program to support and encourage conservation activities by farmers and ranchers. Under this program, farmers and ranchers could receive up to $50,000 per year in conservation payments through entering into 5 to 10-year contracts with USDA and choose from one of three tiers of conservation practices. Payments are based on the number and types of practices they maintain or adopt on their working lands. It is not a set-aside or easement program.

For implementing a basic set of practices, farmers would receive an annual payment of up to $20,000, as well as an advance payment of the greater of $1,000 or 20% of the annual payment. This basic category, Tier I, would include such practices as nutrient management, soil conservation, and wildlife habitat management.

To receive up to $35,000 and an advance payment of the greater of $2,000 or 20% of the annual payment, farmers would add to their Class I practices by choosing a minimum number of Class II practices—including such practices as controlled rotational grazing, partial field practices like buffers strips and windbreaks, wetland restoration and wildlife habitat enhancement.

Farmers who adopt comprehensive Tier III conservation practices on their whole farm—under a plan that addresses all aspects of air, land, water and wildlife—would receive up to $50,000 plus an advance payment of the greater of $3,000 or 20% of the annual payment.

Again, I emphasize, the Conservation Security Program would be totally voluntary. It would be up to the farmer or rancher to decide if they want to do it. If they do, then they would get additional payments. A lot of these practices farmers are already doing now, for which they receive little or no support. My legislation changes that by rewarding those farmers and ranchers who have already implemented these practices through payments to maintain them.

Again, these practices don't just benefit the farmer or rancher. The beneficiaries are all of us. We all will benefit from cleaner air, cleaner streams and rivers, saving soil, protecting our groundwater, and wildlife habitats.

Our private lands are a national resource, and conservation on farm and ranchlands provides environmental benefits that are just as important as the production of abundant and safe food. I am introducing the Conservation Security Act because I believe it will help secure both the economic future of our farmers by helping them obtain better income and as a cornerstone of our national farm policy and the environmental future of agriculture.

NATIONAL PARK AREA STUDIES

Mr. BINGAMAN. Mr. President, I am introducing legislation today to authorize the Secretary of the Interior to undertake studies of several areas to determine whether these areas merit potential designation as units of the National Park System. I am introducing this legislation at the request of the Administration. I ask unanimous consent that a letter from Donald J. Barry, Assistant Secretary of the Interior for Fish and Wildlife and Parks, transmitting the proposed legislation, be printed in the RECORD. I also ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of the Interior (hereinafter referred to as the ''Secretary'') shall conduct studies of the geographical areas and historic and cultural themes listed in subsection (c) to determine the appropriateness of including such areas or themes in the National Park System.

(b) CRITERIA.—In conducting the studies authorized by this Act, the Secretary shall use the criteria for the study of areas for potential inclusion in the National Park System in accordance with section 8 of Public Law 91–383, as amended by section 303 of the National Park System New Areas Study Act (Public Law 105–391; 112 Stat. 3501).

(c) STUDY AREAS.—The Secretary shall conduct studies of the following:

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY,
Washington, DC, March 22, 2000.

Hon. AL GORE Jr.,
President of the Senate, Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. PRESIDENT: Enclosed is a draft of a bill, ''To authorize the Secretary of the Interior to conduct studies of specific areas for potential inclusion in the National Park System, and for other purposes.''

We recommend that the bill be introduced, referred to the appropriate committee, and enacted.

The bill authorizes studies of six specific areas and cultural themes for potential inclusion in the National Park System. The legislation provides for the Secretary to follow criteria for such studies in existing law, and to submit reports on each study to the appropriate congressional committees within three years after funds for the study are made available. The areas and themes that are the subject of these special resource studies (also called new area studies) are described on the attached page.

A letter listing these six studies has been transmitted to the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee and the House Resources Committee, pursuant to the requirement of the National Parks Omnibus Management Act of 1998 (P.L. 105–391) that the Secretary submit a list of areas recommended for study for potential inclusion in the National Park System to those committees at the beginning of each calendar year with the President's budget.

The Office of Management and Budget has advised that, from the standpoint of the Administration's program, there is no objection to the submission of the enclosed draft legislation to the Congress.

Sincerely,

DONALD J. BARRY,
Assistant Secretary for Fish and Wildlife and Parks.

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION 153—EXPRESSING THE SENSE OF CONGRESS WITH RESPECT TO THE PARLIAMENTARY ELECTIONS HELD IN BELARUS ON OCTOBER 15, 2000, AND FOR OTHER PURPOSES

Mr. DURBIN (for himself, Mr. CAMPBELL, and Mr. HELMS) submitted the following concurrent resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations:

S. CON. RES. 153

Whereas on October 15, 2000, Aleksandr Lukashenko and his authoritarian regime conducted an illegitimate and undemocratic parliamentary election in an effort to further strengthen the power and control his authoritarian regime exercises over the people of the Republic of Belarus;

Whereas during the time preceding this election the regime of Aleksandr Lukashenko attempted to intimidate the democratic opposition by beating, harassing, arresting, and sentencing its members for supporting a boycott of the October 15 election even though Belarus does not contain a legal ban on efforts to boycott elections;

Whereas the democratic opposition in Belarus was denied fair and equal access to state-controlled television and radio and was instead slandered by the state-controlled media;

Whereas on September 13, 2000, Belarusian police seized 100,000 copies of a special edition of the Belarusian Free Trade Union newspaper, Rabochy, dedicated to the democratic opposition's efforts to promote a boycott of the October 15 election;

Whereas Aleksandr Lukashenko and his regime denied the democratic opposition in Belarus seats on the Central Election Commission, thereby violating his own pledge to provide the democratic opposition a role in this Commission;

Whereas Aleksandr Lukashenko and his regime denied the vast majority of independent candidates opposed to his regime the right to register as candidates in this election;

Whereas Aleksandr Lukashenko and his regime dismissed recommendations presented by the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe (OSCE) for making the election law in Belarus consistent with OSCE standards;

Whereas in Grodno, police loyal to Aleksandr Lukashenko summoned voters to participate in this illegitimate election for parliament;

Whereas the last genuinely free and fair parliamentary election in Belarus took place in 1995 and from it emerged the 13th Supreme Soviet whose democratically and constitutionally derived authorities and powers have been undercut by the authoritarian regime of Aleksandr Lukashenko; and

Whereas on October 11, the Lukashenko regime froze the bank accounts and seized the equipment of the independent publishing company, Magic, where most of the independent newspapers in Minsk are published: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring),

SECTION 1. SENSE OF CONGRESS ON BELARUS PARLIAMENTARY ELECTIONS.

Congress hereby—

(1) declares that—

(A) the period preceding the elections held in Belarus held on October 15, 2000, was plagued by continued human rights abuses and a climate of fear for which the regime of Aleksandr Lukashenko is responsible;

(B) these elections were conducted in the absence of a democratic electoral law;

(C) the Lukashenko regime purposely denied the democratic opposition access to state-controlled media; and

(D) these elections were for seats in a parliament that lacks real constitutional power and democratic legitimacy;

(2) declares its support for the Belarus' democratic opposition, commends the efforts of the opposition to boycott these illegitimate parliamentary elections, and expresses the hopes of Congress that the citizens of Belarus will soon benefit from true freedom and democracy;

(3) reaffirms its recognition of the 13th Supreme Soviet as the sole and democratically and constitutionally legitimate legislative body of Belarus; and

(4) notes that, as the legitimate parliament of Belarus, the 13th Supreme Soviet should continue to represent Belarus in the Parliamentary Assembly of the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe.

SEC. 2. SENSE OF CONGRESS ON DISAPPEARANCES OF INDIVIDUALS AND POLITICAL DETENTIONS IN BELARUS.

It is the sense of Congress that the President should call upon Aleksandr Lukashenko and his regime to—

(1) provide a full accounting of the disappearances of individuals in that country, including the disappearance of Viktor Gonchar, Anatoly Krasovsky, Yuri Zakharenka, and Dmitry Zavadsky; and

(2) release Vladimir Kudinov, Andrei Klimov, and all others imprisoned in Belarus for their political views.

SEC. 3. TRANSMITTAL OF RESOLUTION.

The Secretary of the Senate shall transmit a copy of this resolution to the President.

SENATE RESOLUTION 380—APPROVING THE PLACEMENT OF TWO PAINTINGS IN THE SENATE RECEPTION ROOM

Mr. LOTT (for himself, and Mr. DASCHLE) submitted the following resolution; which was considered and agreed to:

S. RES. 380

Whereas Senate Resolution 241, 106th Congress, directed the Senate Commission on Art to select 2 outstanding individuals whose paintings shall be placed in 2 of the remaining unfilled spaces in the Senate reception room, upon approval by the Senate; and

Whereas, in accordance with the provisions of Senate Resolution 241, the Commission has selected Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg and Senator Robert F. Wagner, and recommends such names to the Senate: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate Commission on Art (referred to in this resolution as the ''Commission'') shall procure appropriate paintings of Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg and Senator Robert F. Wagner and place such paintings in the 2 unfilled spaces on the south wall of the Senate reception room.

SEC. 2. (a) The paintings shall be rendered in oil on canvas and shall be consistent in style and manner with the paintings of Senators Clay, Calhoun, Webster, LaFollette, and Taft now displayed in the Senate reception room.

(b) The paintings may be procured through purchase, acceptance as a gift of appropriate existing paintings, or through the execution of appropriate paintings by a qualified artist or artists to be selected and contracted by the Commission.

SEC. 3. The expenses of the Commission in carrying out this resolution shall be paid out of the contingent fund of the Senate on vouchers signed by the Secretary of the Senate and approved by the Committee on Rules and Administration.

(1) redesignating part D as part E;

(2) redesignating section 181 as section 191; and

(3) inserting after part C the following new part D:

"PART D—NORTHEAST HOME HEATING OIL RESERVE

''ESTABLISHMENT

''SEC. 181. (a) Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, the Secretary may establish, maintain, and operate in the Northeast a Northeast Home Heating Oil Reserve. A Reserve established under this part is not a component of the Strategic Petroleum Reserve established under part B of this title. A Reserve established under this part shall contain no more than 2 million barrels of petroleum distillate.

''(b) For the purposes of this part—

''(1) the term 'Northeast' means the States of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, New York, Pennsylvania, and New Jersey;

''(2) the term 'petroleum distillate' includes heating oil and diesel fuel; and

''(3) the term 'Reserve' means the Northeast Home Heating Oil Reserve established under this part.

''AUTHORITY

''SEC. 182. To the extent necessary or appropriate to carry out this part, the Secretary may——

''(1) purchase, contract for, lease, or otherwise acquire, in whole or in part, storage and related facilities, and storage services;

''(2) use, lease, maintain, sell, or otherwise dispose of storage and related facilities acquired under this part;

''(3) acquire by purchase, exchange (including exchange of petroleum product from the Strategic Petroleum Reserve or received as royalty from Federal lands), lease, or otherwise, petroleum distillate for storage in the Northeast Home Heating Oil Reserve;

''(4) store petroleum distillate in facilities not owned by the United States; and

''(5) sell, exchange, or otherwise dispose of petroleum distillate from the Reserve established under this part, including to maintain the quality or quantity of the petroleum distillate in the Reserve or to maintain the operational capability of the Reserve.

''CONDITIONS FOR RELEASE; PLAN

''SEC. 183. (a) FINDING.—The Secretary may sell product from the Reserve only upon a finding by the President that there is a severe energy supply interruption. Such a finding may be made only if he determines that—

''(1) a dislocation in the heating oil market has resulted from such interruption; or

''(2) a circumstance, other than that described in paragraph (1), exists that constitutes a regional supply shortage of significant scope and duration and that action taken under this section would assist directly and significantly in reducing the adverse impact of such shortage.

''(b) DEFINITION.—For purposes of this section a 'dislocation in the heating oil market' shall be deemed to occur only when—

''(1) The price differential between crude oil, as reflected in an industry daily publication such as 'Platt's Oilgram Price Report' or 'Oil Daily' and No. 2 heating oil, as reported in the Energy Information Administration's retail price data for the Northeast, increases by more tan 60% over its five year rolling average for the months of mid-October through March, and continues for 7 consecutive days; and

''(2) The price differential continues to increase during the most recent week for which price information is available.

''(c) The Secretary shall conduct a continuing evaluation of the residential price data supplied by the Energy Information Administration for the Northeast and data on crude oil prices from published sources.

''(d) After consultation with the heating oil industry, the Secretary shall determine procedures governing the release of petroleum distillate from the Reserve. The procedures shall provide that:

''(1) The Secretary may—

''(A) sell petroleum distillate from the Reserve through a competitive process, or

''(B) enter into exchange agreements for the petroleum distillate that results in the Secretary receiving a greater volume of petroleum distillate as repayment than the volume provided to the acquirer;

''(2) In such sales or exchanges, the Secretary shall receive revenue or its equivalent in petroleum distillate that provides the Department with fair market value. At no time may the oil be sold or exchanged resulting in a loss of revenue or value to the United States; and

''(3) The Secretary shall only sell or dispose of the oil in the Reserve to entities customarily engaged in the sale and distribution of petroleum distillate.

''(e) Within 45 days of the date of the enactment of this section, the Secretary shall transmit to the President and, if the President approves, to the Congress a plan describing—

''(1) the acquisition of storage and related facilities or storage services for the Reserve, including the potential use of storage facilities not currently in use;

''(2) the acquisition of petroleum distillate for storage in the Reserve;

''(3) the anticipated methods of disposition of petroleum distillate from the Reserve;

''(4) the estimated costs of establishment, maintenance, and operation of the Reserve;

''(5) efforts the Department will take to minimize any potential need for future drawdowns and ensure that distributors and importers are not discouraged from maintaining and increasing supplies to the Northeast; and

''(6) actions to ensure quality of the petroleum distillate in the Reserve.

''NORTHEAST HOME HEATING OIL RESERVE ACCOUNT

''SEC. 184. (a) Upon a decision of the Secretary of Energy to establish a Reserve under this part, the Secretary of the Treasury shall establish in the Treasury of the United States an account known as the 'Northeast Home Heating Oil Reserve Account' (referred to in this section as the 'Account').

''(b) the Secretary of the Treasury shall deposit in the Account any amounts appropriated to the Account and any receipts from the sale, exchange, or other disposition of petroleum distillate from the Reserve.

''(c) The Secretary of Energy may obligate amounts in the Account to carry out activities under this part without the need for further appropriation, and amounts available to the Secretary of Energy for obligation under this section shall remain available without fiscal year limitation.

''EXEMPTIONS

''SEC. 185. An action taken under this part is not subject to the rulemaking requirements of section 523 of this Act, section 501 of the Department of Energy Organization Act, or section 553 of title 5, United States Code.

''AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS

''SEC. 186. There are authorized to be appropriated for fiscal years 2001, 2002, and 2003 such sums as may be necessary to implement this part.''.

SEC. 202. USE OF ENERGY FUTURES FOR FUEL PURCHASES.

(a) HEATING OIL STUDY.—The Secretary shall conduct a study on—

(1) the use of energy futures and options contracts to provide cost-effective protection from sudden surges in the price of heating oil (including number two fuel oil, propane, and kerosine) for state and local government agencies, consumer cooperatives, and other organizations that purchase heating oil in bulk to market to end use consumers in the Northeast (as defined in section 201); and

(2) how to most effectively inform organizations identified in paragraph (1) about the benefits and risks of using energy futures and options contracts.

(b) REPORT.—The Secretary shall transmit the study required in this section to the Committee on Commerce of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources of the Senate not later than 180 days after the enactment of this section. This title may be cited as the ''Peopling of America Theme Study Act''.

SEC. 602. FINDINGS AND PURPOSES.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that—

(1) an important facet of the history of the United States is the story of how the United States was populated;

(2) the migration, immigration, and settlement of the population of the United States—

(A) is broadly termed the ''peopling of America''; and

(B) is characterized by—

(i) the movement of groups of people across external and internal boundaries of the United States and territories of the United States; and

(ii) the interactions of those groups with each other and with other populations;

(3) each of those groups has made unique, important contributions to American history, culture, art, and life;

(4) the spiritual, intellectual, cultural, political, and economic vitality of the United States is a result of the pluralism and diversity of the American population;

(5) the success of the United States in embracing and accommodating diversity has strengthened the national fabric and unified the United States in its values, institutions, experiences, goals, and accomplishments;

(6)(A) the National Park Service's official thematic framework, revised in 1996, responds to the requirement of section 1209 of the Civil War Sites Study Act of 1990 (16 U.S.C. 1a–5 note; Public Law 101–628), that ''the Secretary shall ensure that the full diversity of American history and prehistory are represented'' in the identification and interpretation of historic properties by the National Park Service; and

(B) the thematic framework recognizes that ''people are the primary agents of change'' and establishes the theme of human population movement and change—or ''peopling places''—as a primary thematic category for interpretation and preservation; and

(7) although there are approximately 70,000 listings on the National Register of Historic Places, sites associated with the exploration and settlement of the United States by a broad range of cultures are not well represented.

(b) PURPOSES.—The purposes of this Act are—

(1) to foster a much-needed understanding of the diversity and contribution of the breadth of groups who have peopled the United States; and

TITLE VII—BIG HORN AND WASHAKIE COUNTIES, WYOMING LAND CONVEYANCE.

SECTION 701. CONVEYANCE.

(a) IN GENERAL.—On completion of an environmental analysis under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (42 U.S.C. 4321 et seq.), the Secretary of the Interior, acting through the Director of the Bureau of Land Management (referred to in this Act as the ''Secretary''), shall convey to the Westside Irrigation District, Wyoming (referred to in this Act as ''Westside''), all right, title, and interest (excluding the mineral interest of the United States in and to such portions of the Federal land in Big Horn County and Washakie County, Wyoming, described in subsection (c), as the district enters into an agreement with the Secretary to purchase.

(b) PRICE.—The price of the land conveyed under subsection (a) shall be equal to the appraised value of the land, as determined by the Secretary.

(c) LAND DESCRIPTION.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The land referred to in subsection (a) is the approximately 16,500 acres of land in Big Horn County and Washakie County, Wyoming, as depicted on the map entitled ''Westside Project'' and dated May 9, 2000.

(2) ADJUSTMENT.—On agreement of the Secretary and Westside, acreage may be added to or subtracted from the land to be conveyed as necessary to satisfy any mitigation requirements under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (42 U.S.C. 4321 et seq.).

TITLE VIII—COAL ACREAGE LIMITATIONS

SECTION 801. SHORT TITLE.

This title may be cited as the ''Coal Market Competition Act of 2000''.

SEC. 802. FINDINGS.

Congress finds that—

(1) Federal land contains commercial deposits of coal, the Nation's largest deposits of coal being located on Federal land in Utah, Colorado, Montana, and the Powder River Basin of Wyoming;

(2) coal is mined on Federal land through Federal coal leases under the Act of February 25, 1920 (commonly known as the ''Mineral Leasing Act'') (30 U.S.C. 181 et seq.);

(3) the sub-bituminous coal from these mines is low in sulfur, making it the cleanest burning coal for energy production;

(4) the Mineral Leasing Act sets for each leasable mineral a limitation on the amount of acreage of Federal leases any one producer may hold in any one State or nationally;

(5)(A) the present acreage limitation for Federal coal leases has been in place since 1976;

(B) currently the coal lease acreage limit of 46,080 acres per State is less than the per-State Federal lease acreage limit for potash (96,000 acres) and oil and gas (246,080 acres);

(6) coal producers in Wyoming and Utah are operating mines on Federal leaseholds that contain total acreage close to the coal lease acreage ceiling;

(7) the same reasons that Congress cited in enacting increases for State lease acreage caps applicable in the case of other minerals—the advent of modern mine technology, changes in industry economics, greater global competition, and the need to conserve Federal resources—apply to coal;

(8) existing coal mines require additional lease acreage to avoid premature closure, but those mines cannot relinquish mined-out areas to lease new acreage because those areas are subject to 10-year reclamation plans, and the reclaimed acreage is counted against the State and national acreage limits;

(9) to enable them to make long-term business decisions affecting the type and amount of additional infrastructure investments, coal producers need certainty that sufficient acreage of leasable coal will be available for mining in the future; and

(10) to maintain the vitality of the domestic coal industry and ensure the continued flow of valuable revenues to the Federal and State governments and of energy to the American public from coal production on Federal land, the Mineral Leasing Act should be amended to increase the acreage limitation for Federal coal leases.

SEC. 803. COAL MINING ON FEDERAL LAND.

Section 27(a) of the Act of February 25, 1920 (30 U.S.C. 184(a)), is amended—

(1) by striking ''(a)'' and all that follows through ''No person'' and inserting ''(a) COAL LEASES.—No person'';

(2) by striking ''forty-six thousand and eighty acres'' and inserting ''75,000 acres''; and

(3) by striking ''one hundred thousand acres'' each place it appears and inserting ''150,000 acres''.

TITLE IX—KENAI MOUNTAINS—TURNAGAIN ARM NATIONAL HERITAGE AREA.

SEC. 902. FINDINGS AND PURPOSES.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that—

(1) the Kenai Mountains-Turnagain Arm transportation corridor is a major gateway to Alaska and includes a range of transportation routes used first by indigenous people who were followed by pioneers who settled the Nation's last frontier;

(2) the natural history and scenic splendor of the region are equally outstanding; vistas of nature's power include evidence of earthquake subsidence, recent avalanches, retreating glaciers, and tidal action along Turnagain Arm, which has the world's second greatest tidal range;

(3) the cultural landscape formed by indigenous people and then by settlement, transportation, and modern resource development in this rugged and often treacherous natural setting stands as powerful testimony to the human fortitude, perseverance, and resourcefulness that is America's proudest heritage from the people who settled the frontier;

(4) there is a national interest in recognizing, preserving, promoting, and interpreting these resources;

(5) the Kenai Mountains-Turnagain Arm region is geographically and culturally cohesive because it is defined by a corridor of historical routes—trail, water, railroad, and roadways through a distinct landscape of mountains, lakes, and fjords;

(6) national significance of separate elements of the region include, but are not limited to, the Iditarod National Historic Trail, the Seward Highway National Scenic Byway, and the Alaska Railroad National Scenic Railroad;

(7) national heritage area designation provides for the interpretation of these routes, as well as the national historic districts and numerous historic routes in the region as part of the whole picture of human history in the wider transportation corridor including early Native trade routes, connections by waterway, mining trail, and other routes;

(8) national heritage area designation also provides communities within the region with the motivation and means for ''grassroots'' regional coordination and partnerships with each other and with borough, State, and Federal agencies; and

(9) national heritage area designation is supported by the Kenai Peninsula Historical Association, the Seward Historical Commission, the Seward City Council, the Hope and Sunrise Historical Society, the Hope Chamber of Commerce, the Alaska Association for Historic Preservation, the Cooper Landing Community Club, the Alaska Wilderness Recreation and Tourism Association, Anchorage Historic Properties, the Anchorage Convention and Visitors Bureau, the Cook Inlet Historical Society, the Moose Pass Sportsman's Club, the Alaska Historical Commission, the Gridwood Board of Supervisors, the Kenai River Special Management Area Advisory Board, the Bird/Indian Community Council, the Kenai Peninsula Borough Trails Commission, the Alaska Division of Parks and Recreation, the Kenai Peninsula Borough, the Kenai Peninsula Tourism Marketing Council, and the Anchorage Municipal Assembly.

(b) PURPOSES.—The purposes of this title are—

(1) to recognize, preserve, and interpret the historic and modern resource development and cultural landscapes of the Kenai Mountains-Turnagain Arm historic transportation corridor, and to promote and facilitate the public enjoyment of these resources; and

(2) to foster, through financial and technical assistance, the development of cooperative planning and partnerships among the communities and borough, State, and Federal Government entities.

TITLE III—BLACK ROCK DESERT-HIGH ROCK CANYON EMIGRANT TRAILS NATIONAL CONSERVATION AREA

SEC. 301. SHORT TITLE.

This title may be cited as the ''Black Rock Desert-High Rock Canyon Emigrant Trails National Conservation Area Act of 2000''.

SEC. 302. FINDINGS.

The Congress finds the following:

(1) The areas of northwestern Nevada known as the Black Rock Desert and High Rock Canyon contain and surround the last nationally significant, untouched segments of the historic California emigrant Trails, including wagon ruts, historic inscriptions, and a wilderness landscape largely unchanged since the days of the pioneers.

(2) The relative absence of development in the Black Rock Desert and high Rock Canyon areas from emigrant times to the present day offers a unique opportunity to capture the terrain, sights, and conditions of the overland trails as they were experienced by the emigrants and to make available to both present and future generations of Americans the opportunity of experiencing emigrant conditions in an unaltered setting.

(3) The Black Rock Desert and High Rock Canyon areas are unique segments of the Northern Great Basin and contain broad representation of the Great Basin's land forms and plant and animal species, including golden eagles and other birds of prey, sage grouse, mule deer, pronghorn antelope, bighorn sheep, free roaming horses and burros, threatened fish and sensitive plants.

(4) The Black Rock-High Rock region contains a number of cultural and natural resources that have been declared eligible for National Historic Landmark and Natural Landmark status, including a portion of the 1843–44 John Charles Fremont exploration route, the site of the death of Peter Lassen, early military facilities, and examples of early homesteading and mining.

(5) The archeological, paleontological, and geographical resources of the Black Rock-High Rock region include numerous prehistoric and historic Native American sites, wooly mammoth sites, some of the largest natural potholes of North America, and a remnant dry Pleistocene lakebed (playa) where the curvature of the Earth may be observed.

(6) The two large wilderness mosaics that frame the conservation area offer exceptional opportunities for solitude and serve to protect the integrity of the viewshed of the historic emigrant trails.

(7) Public lands in the conservation area have been used for domestic livestock grazing for over a century, with resultant benefits to community stability and contributions to the local and State economies. It has not been demonstrated that continuation of this use would be incompatible with appropriate protection and sound management of the resource values of these lands; therefore, it is expected that such grazing will continue in accordance with the management plan for the conservation area and other applicable laws and regulations.

(8) The Black Rock Desert playa is a unique natural resource that serves as the primary destination for the majority of visitors to the conservation area, including visitors associated with large-scale permitted events. It is expected that such permitted events will continue to be administered in accordance with the management plan for the conservation area and other applicable laws and regulations.

SEC. 303. DEFINITIONS.

As used in this title:

(1) The term ''Secretary'' means the Secretary of the Interior.

(2) The term ''public lands'' has the meaning stated in section 103(e) of the Federal Land Policy and Management Act of 1976 (43 U.S.C. 1702(e)).

(b) AREAS INCLUDED.—The conservation area shall consist of approximately 797,100 acres of public lands as generally depicted on the map entitled ''Black Rock Desert Emigrant Trail National Conservation Area'' and dated July 19, 2000.

(d) HUNTING, TRAPPING, AND FISHING.—Nothing in this title shall be deemed to diminish the jurisdiction of the State of Nevada with respect to fish and wildlife management, including regulation of hunting and fishing, on public lands within the conservation area.

(e) MANAGEMENT PLAN.—Within three years following the date of enactment of this title, the Secretary shall develop a comprehensive resource management plan for the long-term protection and management of the conservation area. The plan shall be developed with full public participation and shall describe the appropriate uses and management of the conservation area consistent with the provisions of this title. The plan may incorporate appropriate decisions contained in any current management or activity plan for the area and may use information developed in previous studies of the lands within or adjacent to the conservation area.

SEC. 307. NO BUFFER ZONES.

The Congress does not intend for the establishment of the conservation area to lead to the creation of protective perimeters or buffer zones around the conservation area. The fact that there may be activities or uses on lands outside the conservation area that would not be permitted in the conservation area shall not preclude such activities or uses on such lands up to the boundary of the conservation area consistent with other applicable laws.

S. 2943

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the ''International Malaria Control Act of 2000''.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

Congress makes the following findings:

(1) The World Health Organization estimates that there are 300,000,000 to 500,000,000 cases of malaria each year.

(2) According to the World Health Organization, more than 1,000,000 persons are estimated to die due to malaria each year.

(3) According to the National Institutes of Health, about 40 percent of the world's population is at risk of becoming infected.

(4) About half of those who die each year from malaria are children under 9 years of age.

(5) Malaria kills one child each 30 seconds.

(6) Although malaria is a public health problem in more than 90 countries, more than 90 percent of all malaria cases are in sub-Saharan Africa.

(7) In addition to Africa, large areas of Central and South America, Haiti and the Dominican Republic, the Indian subcontinent, Southeast Asia, and the Middle East are high risk malaria areas.

(8) These high risk areas represent many of the world's poorest nations.

(9) Malaria is particularly dangerous during pregnancy. The disease causes severe anemia and is a major factor contributing to maternal deaths in malaria endemic regions.

(10) Pregnant mothers who are HIV-positive and have malaria are more likely to pass on HIV to their children.

(11) ''Airport malaria'', the importing of malaria by international travelers, is becoming more common, and the United Kingdom reported 2,364 cases of malaria in 1997, all of them imported by travelers.

(12) In the United States, of the 1,400 cases of malaria reported to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention in 1998, the vast majority were imported.

(13) Between 1970 and 1997, the malaria infection rate in the United States increased by about 40 percent.

(14) Malaria is caused by a single-cell parasite that is spread to humans by mosquitoes.

(15) No vaccine is available and treatment is hampered by development of drug-resistant parasites and insecticide-resistant mosquitoes.

SEC. 3. ASSISTANCE FOR MALARIA PREVENTION, TREATMENT, CONTROL, AND ELIMINATION.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress recognizes the growing international problem of malaria and the impact of this epidemic on many nations, particularly in the nations of sub-Saharan Africa. Congress further recognizes the negative interaction among the epidemics of malaria, HIV and tuberculosis in many nations, particularly in the nations of sub-Saharan Africa. Congress directs the Administrator of the United States Agency for International Development to undertake activities designed to control malaria in recipient countries by—

(1) coordinating with the appropriate Federal officials and organizations to develop and implement, in partnership with recipient nations, a comprehensive malaria prevention and control program; and

(2) coordinating, consistent with clause (i), malaria prevention and control activities with efforts by recipient nations to prevent and control HIV and tuberculosis.

(b) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There is authorized to be appropriated to the President $50,000,000 for each of the fiscal years 2001 and 2002 to carry out this paragraph.

SEC. 4. COORDINATION AND CONSULTATION.

(a) IN GENERAL.—In providing the assistance and carrying out the activities provided for under this Act, the Administrator of the United States Agency for International Development should work in coordination with appropriate Federal officials.

(b) PURPOSE.—The purpose of such interagency coordination and consultation is to help ensure that the financial assistance provided by the United States is utilized in a manner that advances, to the greatest extent possible, the public health of recipient countries.

(c) PROVISION OF INFORMATION TO RECIPIENT COUNTRIES.—The Administrator of the United States Agency for International Development shall take appropriate steps to provide recipient countries with information concerning the development of vaccines and therapeutic agents for, HIV, malaria, and tuberculosis.

(d) INFORMATION SPECIFIED.—The Administrator of the United States Agency for International Development should provide to appropriate officials in recipient countries information concerning participation in, and the results of, clinical trials conducted by United States Government agencies for vaccines and therapeutic agents for HIV, malaria, and tuberculosis.

(e) CONSIDERATION OF INTERACTION AMONG EPIDEMICS.—The Administrator of the United States Agency for International Development should consider the interaction among the epidemics of HIV, malaria, and tuberculosis as the United States provides financial and technical assistance to recipient countries under this Act.

The preamble was agreed to.

The resolution, with its preamble, reads as follows:

S. RES. 375

Whereas the stability of democracy in Latin America and the eradication of illegal narcotics from the Andean nations are vital national security interests of the United States;

Whereas the democratically elected Government of Bolivia has taken dramatic steps to eradicate illegal narcotics under the Dignity Plan, resulting in the elimination of 80 percent of the illegal coca crop in just two years, a record of achievement unmatched worldwide;

Whereas the Government of Bolivia is now approaching the completion of coca eradication in the Chapare and will begin eradication operations in the Yungas regions in 2002;

Whereas there are indications that narcotics traffickers from outside Bolivia are stepping up efforts to keep a foothold in Bolivia by agitating among the rural poor and indigenous populations, creating civil disturbances, blockading roads, organizing strikes and protests, and taking actions designed to force the Government of Bolivia to abandon its aggressive counter narcotics campaign; and

Whereas the government of Bolivian President Hugo Banzer Suarez has shown remarkable restraint in dealing with the protesters through dialogue and openness while respecting human rights: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That (a) the Senate calls upon the Government of Bolivia to continue its successful program of coca eradication and looks forward to the Government of Bolivia achieving its commitment to the total eradication of illegal coca in Bolivia by the end of 2002.

(b) It is the sense of the Senate that—

(1) the United States, as a full partner in Bolivia's efforts to build democracy, to eradicate illegal narcotics, and to reduce poverty through development and economic growth, should fully support the democratically elected Government of Bolivia;

(2) the release of emergency supplemental assistance already approved by the United States for sustainable development activities in Bolivia should be accelerated;

(3) on a priority basis, the President should look for additional ways to provide increased tangible support to the people and Government of Bolivia;

(4) the Government of Bolivia should continue to respect the human rights of all of its citizens and continue to discuss legitimate concerns of Bolivia's rural population; and

(5) indigenous leaders should enter into discussions with the government on issues of concern and cease provocative acts that could lead to escalating violence.

SEC. 2. The Secretary of the Senate shall transmit a copy of this resolution to the President.

AMENDING THE IMMIGRATION AND NATIONALITY ACT

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate now proceed to the consideration of H.R. 4068, which is at the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the bill by title.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (H.R. 4068) to amend the Immigration and Nationality Act to extend for an additional 3 years the special immigrant religious worker program.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the bill.

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, I rise today to call on the Senate to support H.R. 4068, which will extend the religious worker visa for an additional three years. I am a cosponsor and strong supporter of Senate legislation that would make permanent the provisions of our immigration law that provide for special immigrant visas for religious workers sponsored by religious organizations in the United States. These visas allow religious denominations or organizations in the United States to bring in foreign nationals to perform religious work here. This modest program—which provides for up to 5,000 religious immigrant visas a year—was created in the Immigration Act of 1990, and has been extended ever since. Although I believe the program should be made permanent, I am willing to support a three-year extension given the lateness of the session and the fact that the program expired upon last week's end of the fiscal year.

The importance of this program to America's religious community has been demonstrated by the fact that leaders from a variety of faiths have come to Congress both this year and in past years to testify on its behalf. It is also important to note, however, that these religious workers contribute significantly not just to their religious communities, but to the community as a whole. They work in hospitals, nursing homes, and homeless shelters. They help immigrants and refugees adjust to the United States. In other words, they perform vital tasks that too often go undone.

I have worked on this issue consistently over the years. Most recently, I cosponsored a bill in 1997 that would have made this program permanent. We were forced in that year as well to settle for a 3-year extension of the program. It is my hope and expectation that this will be the last short-term extension of this program, and that the substantial benefit that our country has derived from this program will lead us to make the program permanent 3 years from now.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the bill be read a third time and passed, the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table, and that any statements relating to the bill be printed in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The bill (H.R. 4068) was read the third time and passed.

WARTIME VIOLATION OF ITALIAN AMERICAN CIVIL LIBERTIES ACT

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate now proceed to the consideration of Calendar No. 862, H.R. 2442.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the bill by title.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (H.R. 2442) to provide for the preparation of a Government report detailing injustices suffered by Italian Americans during World War II, and a formal acknowledgment of such injustices by the President.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the bill, which had been reported from the Committee on the Judiciary, with amendments, as follows:

[Omit the parts in boldface brackets and insert the part printed in italic.]

H.R. 2442

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the ''Wartime Violation of Italian American Civil Liberties Act''.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

The Congress makes the following findings:

(1) The freedom of more than 600,000 Italian-born immigrants in the United States and their families was restricted during World War II by Government measures that branded them ''enemy aliens'' and included carrying identification cards, travel restrictions, and seizure of personal property.

(2) During World War II more than 10,000 Italian Americans living on the West Coast were forced to leave their homes and prohibited from entering coastal zones. More than 50,000 were subjected to curfews.

(3) During World War II thousands of Italian American immigrants were arrested, and hundreds were interned in military camps.

(4) Hundreds of thousands of Italian Americans performed exemplary service and thousands sacrificed their lives in defense of the United States.

(5) At the time, Italians were the largest foreign-born group in the United States, and today are the fifth largest immigrant group in the United States, numbering approximately 15 million.

(6) The impact of the wartime experience was devastating to Italian American communities in the United States, and its effects are still being felt.

(7) A deliberate policy kept these measures from the public during the war. Even 50 years later much information is still classified, the full story remains unknown to the public, and it has never been acknowledged in any official capacity by the United States Government.

SEC. 3. REPORT.

The [Inspector] Attorney General [of the Department of Justice] shall conduct a comprehensive review of the treatment by the United States Government of Italian Americans during World War II, and not later than one year after the date of the enactment of this Act shall submit to the Congress a report that documents the findings of such review. The report shall cover the period between September 1, 1939, and December 31, 1945, and shall include the following:

(1) The names of all Italian Americans who were taken into custody in the initial roundup following the attack on Pearl Harbor, and prior to the United States declaration of war against Italy.

(2) The names of all Italian Americans who were taken into custody.

(3) The names of all Italian Americans who were interned and the location where they were interned.

(4) The names of all Italian Americans who were ordered to move out of designated areas under the United States Army's ''Individual Exclusion Program''.

(5) The names of all Italian Americans who were arrested for curfew, contraband, or other violations under the authority of Executive Order No. 9066.

(6) Documentation of Federal Bureau of Investigation raids on the homes of Italian Americans.

(7) A list of ports from which Italian American fishermen were restricted.

(8) The names of Italian American fishermen who were prevented from fishing in prohibited zones and therefore unable to pursue their livelihoods.

(9) The names of Italian Americans whose boats were confiscated.

(10) The names of Italian American railroad workers who were prevented from working in prohibited zones.

(11) A list of all civil liberties infringements suffered by Italian Americans during World War II, as a result of Executive Order No. 9066, including internment, hearings without benefit of counsel, illegal searches and seizures, travel restrictions, enemy alien registration requirements, employment restrictions, confiscation of property, and forced evacuation from homes.

(12) An explanation of [why some] whether Italian Americans were subjected to civil liberties infringements, as a result of Executive Order No. 9066, [while] and if so, why other Italian Americans were not.

(13) A review of the wartime restrictions on Italian Americans to determine how civil liberties can be better protected during national emergencies.

SEC. 4. SENSE OF THE CONGRESS.

It is the sense of the Congress that—

(1) the story of the treatment of Italian Americans during World War II needs to be told in order to acknowledge that these events happened, to remember those whose lives were unjustly disrupted and whose freedoms were violated, to help repair the damage to the Italian American community, and to discourage the occurrence of similar injustices and violations of civil liberties in the future;

(2) Federal agencies, including the Department of Education and the National Endowment for the Humanities, should support projects such as—

(A) conferences, seminars, and lectures to heighten awareness of this unfortunate chapter in our Nation's history;

(B) the refurbishment of and payment of all expenses associated with the traveling exhibit ''Una Storia Segreta'', exhibited at major cultural and educational institutions throughout the United States; and

(C) documentaries to allow this issue to be presented to the American public to raise its awareness;

(3) an independent, volunteer advisory committee should be established comprised of representatives of Italian American organizations, historians, and other interested individuals to assist in the compilation, research, and dissemination of information concerning the treatment of Italian Americans; and

(4) after completion of the report required by this Act, financial support should be provided for the education of the American public through the production of a documentary film suited for public broadcast.

[SEC. 5. FORMAL ACKNOWLEDGEMENT.]

(5) The President [shall] should, on behalf of the United States Government, formally acknowledge that these events during World War II represented a fundamental injustice against Italian Americans.

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, I rise today to speak on the Wartime Violation of Italian American Civil Liberties Act. While the American people generally know about the internment of Japanese Americans during World War II, they are largely unaware of the U.S. government's mistreatment of people of other ethnic backgrounds during this difficult time in our nation's history. I believe we need a complete and thorough review of our government's mistreatment of Americans during World War II.

Mr. President, S. 2442 is a worthy bill. I had some reservations about this bill because it is not as inclusive as it might have been. The U.S. should fully assess its treatment of all Americans of European descent during World War II, including Italian and German Americans, as well as European refugees fleeing persecution, to acknowledge those whose lives were unjustly disrupted and whose freedoms were violated and to discourage the future occurrence of similar injustices.

I recognize, however, that time is short in this session of Congress. So, I will not object to H.R. 2442 going forward at this time. But I want my colleagues to know that by withholding an objection at this time, I am not abandoning my effort to make sure that the mistreatment of other Americans during World War II, including German Americans, and European refugees are also properly recognized and reviewed. I look forward to working with Senator HATCH and my colleagues on this issue next year.

Mr. HATCH. I thank the Senator from Wisconsin for his comments. I appreciate the Senator's comments and plan to work with him next year to examine the experiences of others whose liberties may not have been respected by our government during World War II.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the committee amendments be agreed to, the bill be read a third time and passed, as amended, the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table, and that any statements relating to the bill be printed in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The committee amendments were agreed to.

The bill (H.R. 2442), as amended, was read the third time and passed.

AMENDING THE HMONG VETERANS' NATURALIZATION ACT OF 2000

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the immediate consideration of H.R. 5234, received from the House.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the bill by title.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (H.R. 5234) to amend the Hmong Veterans' Naturalization Act of 2000 to extend the applicability of that Act to certain former spouses of deceased Hmong veterans.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the bill.

Mr. WELLSTONE. Mr. President, I want to thank my colleagues for their support for H.R. 5234, which I introduced in the Senate as S. 3060. I am so pleased that the Senate will pass this critical legislation. It will ensure that widows and widowers of Hmong veterans who died in Laos, Thailand and Vietnam are also covered by the Hmong Veterans Naturalization Act. This critical change applies fairness to the law so that widows, like spouses of surviving veterans, will be able to take the United States citizenship test with a translator.

The United States owes a great debt to the widows of Hmong veterans. During the Vietnam War, in the covert operations in Laos, they sacrificed everything they had in service to this country. It is almost impossible to imagine the impact of the Vietnam War on the Hmong Community in South East Asia. Hmong soldiers died at ten times the rate of American soldiers in the Vietnam War. As many as 20,000 Hmong were killed serving our country. When adults were killed, children as young as twelve and thirteen rose up to take their place. When Hmong soldiers died, they left behind families with no means of support. They left their loved ones to fend for themselves in a hostile country.

Because of the covert nature of the United States Operations in Laos, the heroics and sacrifice of this community long went unrecognized. By facilitating the naturalization of Hmong widows, we offer small compensation, but tremendous thanks and honor to people who gave us their lives and livelihoods. Twenty five years later, we cannot give them back their loved ones, though their loved ones gave their lives for us. All we can do is we honor their service in a way that is long overdue and give them the tools to become citizens in the nation for which they heroically fought, and died.

No one in Congress understood better what we owe to the Hmong community than my old and dear friend, Congressman Bruce Vento. No one here did more for the Hmong people. He dedicated himself to ensure that Hmong and Lao veterans and their families received the honor and respect that was so long deserved and too long delayed. One of the many great legacies of his life will indeed be his work with the Hmong community in Minnesota. I wish to honor him today for that dedication and for that deep respect and compassion. But there is no tribute I can deliver that would bring him more greater pride than when 45,000 Hmong veterans, widows and spouses whom he was one of the first to recognize as American heroes, become American citizens.

I thank my colleagues again for their support.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the bill be read a third time and passed, the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table, and that any statements relating to the bill be printed in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The bill (H.R. 5234) was read the third time and passed.

MOTHER TERESA RELIGIOUS WORKERS ACT

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate now proceed to the consideration of Calendar No. 587, S. 2406.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the bill by title.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (S. 2406) to amend the Immigration and Nationality Act to provide permanent authority for entry into the United States of certain religious workers.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the bill.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the bill be read a third time and passed, the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table, and that any statements relating to the bill be printed in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The bill (S. 2406) was read the third time and passed, as follows:

S. 2406

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the ''Mother Teresa Religious Workers Act''.

SEC. 2. PERMANENT AUTHORITY FOR ENTRY INTO UNITED STATES OF CERTAIN RELIGIOUS WORKERS.

Section 101(a)(27)(C)(ii) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1101(a)(27)(C)(ii)) is amended by striking ''before October 1, 2000,'' each place it appears.

EDUCATION LAND GRANT ACT

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent the Chair lay before the Senate a message from the House of Representatives on the bill (S. 2812).

There being no objection, the Presiding Officer laid before the Senate the following message from the House of Representatives:

Resolved, That the bill from the Senate (S. 2812) entitled ''An Act to amend the Immigration and Nationality Act to provide a waiver of the oath of renunciation and allegiance for naturalization of aliens having certain disabilities'', do pass with the following amendment:

Strike out all after the enacting clause and insert:

SECTION 1. WAIVER OF OATH OF RENUNCIATION AND ALLEGIANCE FOR NATURALIZATION OF ALIENS HAVING CERTAIN DISABILITIES.

Section 337(a) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1448(a)) is amended by adding at the end the following:

''The Attorney General may waive the taking of the oath by a person if in the opinion of the Attorney General the person is unable to understand, or to communicate an understanding of, its meaning because of a physical or developmental disability or mental impairment. If the Attorney General waives the taking of the oath by a person under the preceding sentence, the person shall be considered to have met the requirements of section 316(a)(3) with respect to attachment to the principles of the Constitution and well disposition to the good order and happiness of the United States.''.

SEC. 2. EFFECTIVE DATE.

The amendment made by section 1 shall apply to persons applying for naturalization before, on, or after the date of the enactment of this Act.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I rise to thank my colleagues for unanimously agreeing to pass S. 2812, a bill introduced earlier this year by Senator HATCH and myself to amend the Immigration and nationality Act to eliminate a barrier that has prevented persons with certain mental disabilities from becoming United States citizens. By passing this bill today, Congress will make our immigration policy more fair and more humane.

The bill we will pass today will not dramatically change or improve our immigration policies—that work remains to be done—but this bill will make a big difference in the lives of a few American families—families like the Dowds, the Costas, the Wickers, and the Teixlers of Connecticut. Back in July, I explained why we need to pass this legislation. I told a story about a young man named Mathieu. Mathieu's family—his mother, his father, and his sister—have all become naturalized U.S. citizens. But Mathieu has not been allowed to become a citizen because he's a 23-year-old autistic man who cannot swear an oath of loyalty to the United States, which is required as part of the naturalization process. His naturalization request has been in limbo since November of 1996 because Mathieu could not understand some of the questions he was asked by the INS agent processing his application for citizenship. For years Mathieu's mother has lived in fear that her most vulnerable child could be removed from the country and sent to a nation that he hardly knows, and where he has no family or friends.

As I explained in July, Mathieu's mother—again, a United States citizen—wants what every American in her position would want. She wants to know that all of her children, including her most vulnerable child, will have the protections of citizenship. Mathieu's life is here. His friends and caregivers are here. His family is here. Mathieu's place is here, and now, with the passage of this bill, Mathieu's mother can rest easy because Mathieu can join the rest of his family as a U.S. citizen.

This legislation has not been the subject of great debate, but it is an important correction for us to make. I thank Catherine Cushman, and attorney who works for the Connecticut Office of Protection and Advocacy for Persons with Disabilities, for bringing this issue to my attention. I also thank Catholic Charities, USA for their guidance and expertise on this matter. Finally, I thank Senator HATCH, Senator DEWINE, Senator FEINGOLD, Senator FEINSTEIN, Senator KENNEDY, and Senator KOHL for their support of this bill.

AMENDMENT NO. 4332

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Alabama [Mr. SESSIONS], for Mr. HATCH, proposes an amendment numbered 4332.

(The text of the amendment is printed in today's RECORD under ''Amendments Submitted.'')

Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, this amendment in the nature of a substitute is the product of negotiations between myself and Senator LEAHY, the ranking member of the Judiciary Committee, and Senators GRASSLEY and TORRICELLI, the chairman and ranking member of the Administrative Oversight and the Courts Subcommittee. It is my hope that the Senate will act speedily to pass S. 2915, with this amendment, and return it to the House for that body's approval.

As chairman of the Judiciary Committee, I have the responsibility to review the operation of federal court process and procedures. In doing so, I have strived to ensure that our federal judicial system is administered in an efficient and cost-effective manner, while maintaining a high level of quality in the administration of justice. The substitute amendment I am offering today includes numerous changes to our laws that the Judicial Conference, the governing body of the federal courts, believes are necessary to improve the functions of our courts. They are changes that I believe will help increase the efficiency of the federal judiciary, while ensuring that justice is served.

The amendment contains provisions that reduce unnecessary expenses and improve the efficiency of the judicial system. Specifically, it extends civil and criminal contempt authority to magistrate judges so that they can perform more effectively their existing statutory duties for the district court. It also authorizes magistrate judges (1) to try misdemeanor cases involving juveniles (cases that currently are tried in district court) and (2) to try all petty offense cases without first having to obtain the consent of the defendant. Making these changes will reduce caseload burdens on district judges, thereby permitting district judges more time to handle more serious crimes and more serious offenders.

The amendment also contains provisions that decrease the amount of time judges must devote to non-judicial matters. For example, one such provision raises the maximum compensation level paid to federal or community defenders representing defendants appearing before magistrate or district judges before they must seek a waiver for payment in excess of the prescribed maximum. Currently, payment in excess of the maximum requires the approval of both the judge who presided over the case and the chief judge of the court. Because the last increase in the maximum compensation level was enacted 14 years ago, federal and community defenders are forced to seek payment waivers in a significant number of cases. As a consequence, judges are forced to spend more time acting as an administrator (attending to ministerial matters) and less time acting as a judge (attending to their civil and criminal dockets). The amendment remedies this problem.

In addition, the amendment contains a provision designed to address the growing trend of Criminal Justice Act (''CJA'') panel attorneys being subject to unfounded suits by the defendants they formerly represented. Under current law, CJA panel attorneys must pay their own legal expenses in defending malpractice suits brought by former clients. The result is a chilling effect on the willingness of attorneys to participate as CJA panel attorneys—a chilling effect that serves only to make the obtaining of adequate representation for defendants more difficult. Under current law, the Director of the Administrative Office of the United States Courts is authorized to provide representation for and indemnity to federal and community defender organizations for malpractice claims that arise as a result or furnishing representational services. No such provision, however, is made for CJA panel attorneys. The amendment rectifies this situation and provides CJA panel attorneys with the same protection afforded other federal defenders.

Importantly, the amendment contains provisions designed to assist handicapped employees working for the federal judiciary. These provisions bring the federal judiciary into alignment with the Executive Branch and other government bodies.

The amendment also contains a provision extending for four years the authority of the U.S. Supreme Court Police to provide security beyond the Supreme Court building and grounds for Justices, Court employees, and official visitors. Under current law, this authority will terminate automatically on December 29, 2000. Because security concerns of the Justices and employees of the Supreme Court have not diminished, it is essential that the offgrounds authority of the Supreme Court Police be continued without interruption.

I have touched on only a few of the provisions contained in this amendment. This amendment sets forth a number of other provisions designed to improve judicial financial and personnel administration, judicial process, and other court-related matters. Each of these provisions is intended to enhance the operation of the federal judiciary. It is my hope that my colleagues in the Senate will agree to this amendment quickly, that the House will do likewise, and that this legislation will be signed by the President in short order.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the amendment be agreed to, the committee amendment, as amended, be agreed to, the bill be read the third time and passed, the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table, and that any statements relating to the bill be printed in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment (No. 4332) was agreed to.

The committee amendment in the nature of a substitute, as amended, was agreed to.

The bill (S. 2915), as amended, was read the third time and passed.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate now proceed to the consideration of Calendar No. 576, S. 1854.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (S. 1854) to reform the Hart-Scott-Rodino Antitrust Improvements Act of 1976.

EXTENSIONS OF REMARKS

TRIBUTE TO BO SHAFER

HON. JOHN J. DUNCAN, JR.

OF TENNESSEE

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, October 18, 2000

Mr. DUNCAN. Mr. Speaker, today I want to recognize Mr. Bo Shafer, who recently became the International President of the Kiwanis Club.

He is one of the finest men I know.

All who know Bo Shafer agree that he is a compassionate leader who serves our Country well. His dedication and commitment to community service and involvement are an example to everyone.

He has served for 33 years on the Salvation Army Board, raised millions of dollars for the Center of Hope and other organizations, and served as an elder and Sunday school teacher at the Second Presbyterian Church, just to name a few.

In 1995 he was named Community Leader of the Year by the Religious Heritage of America. Bo Shafer also served as United Way chairman in 1983 and co-chairman with his wife, Mary, in 1994.

Bo's devotion to community service can only be outdone by his commitment to family. Bo and Mary have been married for 33 years. They have a beautiful family, including the recent addition of their first grandchild, Christopher.

This Country would be a better place if we had more men like Bo Shafer.

I want to say thank you to a great Tennessean, a great American, my friend, Bo Shafer. I have included a copy of an article written in Kiwanis Magazine honoring Bo Shafer that I would like to call to the attention of my colleagues and other readers of the RECORD.

[From Kiwanis Magazine, Oct. 2000]

AT THE HEART OF BO SHAFER

(By Chuck Jonak)

At Cain Seed Hollow, Bo and Mary Shafer's family finds a Tennessean slice of paradise. Norris Lake laps lightly at its banks some 100 feet below the cottage's second-story deck. Leaves rustle, Hummingbirds flit about in zigzag flight. Vixen lazes away her dog's life, napping between the two rocking chairs where Bo and Mary watch the sun set over the river lake's distant horizon. The quite's so loud, you can hear yourself think.

Soaking up the serenity, Bo reflects on the countless good times centered on this rustic retreat he carved into a plot of sloping woods: a fireplace crackling on a winter's night with his beloved wife snuggling close; churning up homemade ice cream while his young daughter, Heidi, stands wide-eyed by his side; the scent of the forest as he cuts fallen trees with his teenage son, Andy; the inner-tube train filled with his kids' friends bouncing and laughing behind a slow-moving speedboat's wake. Soon, a grandchild (or two or three) will create new memories, gleefully playing below on his kids' swings—now still.

Bo counts his blessings. A life rich with love and joy, he's always strived to share it with as many people as possible, and he will be afforded a global opportunity to expand upon a lifelong devotion to community service as Kiwanis' 2000–01 International President—while spreading his homespun ''Boverbs'':

''JOY COMES FROM GIVING; PLEASURE COMES FROM TAKING''

''I don't think people are born with a servant heart; I think we're born selfish,'' Bo theorizes. ''And if you don't have spiritual help, you really don't have the right heart to do things for other people and expect nothing in return. When I ask people why they help others, the answer I usually get is that it makes them feel good. That's fine, but if you do it for that reason, that's not altruistic service.''

Bo knows. His civic involvement, particularly in the fund-raising arena, in which he's raised millions of dollars, is as deep as his roots to his hometown of Knoxville, Tennessee. He always has devoted about 50 percent of his waking hours to community service of some form.

Consider a sampling: 33 years on the Salvation Army Board, including $5 million raised for the Center of Hope as campaign co-chairman (with good friend and Knoxville Rotarian Dale Keasling); United Way chairman in 1983 and co-chairman (with Mary) in 1994, including $1.6 million raised for McNabb Children and Youth Center as campaign co-chairman (again with Keasling); Second Presbyterian Church elder and Sunday school teacher for 31 years; and 1995 Community Leader of the Year by the Religious Heritage of America.

''WE ARE BLESSED TO BE A BLESSING TO OTHERS''

''With United Way, I'd visit agencies and learn more and more about how many people need help,'' President Bo says, ''I really learned how blessed I am, which I've talked about a thousand times. We all are, you know, because I've seen some real, real problems that just break your heart. And those types of things change your life. That's one of the reasons I love Kiwanis, because we're the people on the other end. We're so lucky to be able to help others.''

Bo's servant heart was nurtured by his parents. His mother, Evelyn, age 93, with whom he lunches nearly every Wednesday, has a master's degree in child development. She taught school for a while but then stayed home to raise Bo, his twin sister, and his brother and other sister.

His father, Alex, who died in 1967, was the son of a West Virginia railroad machinist, an insurance agent, and a Knoxville Kiwanian. In 1965 alone, he was the Kentucky-Tennessee Kiwanis District governor, the Knoxville Elk Club exalted leader, and a local school board member. Still, Bo's dad—and his mother—always were involved in their children's activities.

''DON'T WORRY THAT YOUR CHILDREN AREN'T LISTENING TO YOU; WORRY THAT THEY'RE WATCHING YOU''

''I had a very supportive family. My parents were the biggest influence on me by far, and my daddy influenced me most on community service,'' Bo recalls. ''He had a good heart; he always was helping people.''

Born February 1, 1937, Bo had an active childhood, especially in sports. He was on the high school basketball and track teams, and he excelled at football, earning all-state honors and a scholarship to the University of Tennessee (UT) in Knoxville.

Notably, he was a charter member of the West High School Key Club, and then he became a charter member of the UT Circle K club. Years later when Bo was the Circle K club's Kiwanis sponsor, he helped it form a Big Brothers chapter.

In college, football—which is taken very seriously at UT—occupied much of his time. A six-foot-two-inch, 220-pound ''average'' tackle who played iron-man football (offense and defense) for the Volunteers, he saw a lot of action as a junior and was a first-stringer his senior year. (The Vols went to the 1956 Sugar Bowl with tailback Johnny Majors and to the 1957 Gator Bowl.)

Bo was more than just a jock, though: His senior year, he was elected student government president. He graduated in 1959 with a bachelor's degree in business.

Then it was off to the United States Army for 18 months with his Reserve Officers' Training Corps commission. He was a first lieutenant in the military police with a logistical command unit stationed in Metz, France, for more than a year. He credits that experience (as well as seven years in the US Army Reserve) for enhancing his leadership skills.

Returning home, Bo began the pursuit of his career aspirations and soon opened the Shafer Insurance Agency with his father in 1963. (Today, the agency has 17 employees, including his son, who also is a UT business grad.)

''NOTHING WORTHWHILE IS EASY''

''I wrote a paper in the ninth grade about being an insurance agent; that's what I wanted to be,'' Bo says. ''My daddy never came home and complained about the business; he just talked about it positively. I never had another thing that I ever wanted to do except to follow in his footsteps.''

Well, almost nothing. By 1966, Bo was active in the Kiwanis Club of Knoxville (having joined in 1962 with his father's gentle persuasion) as the club's sponsor for the UT Circle K'ers, and, in Mary's words, was ''the most eligible bachelor in town.'' Now, it seems that Mary, who was a UT education major, a former Miss Knoxville contestant (who won Miss Congeniality), and the Sweetheart of Circle K, had been spotted on campus by Bo.

''THE REASON GUYS DON'T ASK OUT GIRLS IS BECAUSE WE'RE HUGE CHICKENS''

In September 1966, Mary was helping to organize a benefit fashion show. Knowing that Bo was in the military, she phoned him to ask if he would model in his uniform. He declined but said, ''You sure sound pretty; I'm going to come downtown and see you,'' which he did. (What a line!)

Though Mary had a boyfriend at the time, Bo was persistent, and they eventually began dating. She recalls that on their first date, they went to his office, and some little boys stopped by with their report cards. He had a practice of rewarding these disadvantaged kids with a dollar for good grades, which he did, and then he sent the boys on their way, reminding them to brush their teeth.

''I just thought he was the nicest, most others-centered person I had ever met,'' Mary recalls. ''He has a real heart for other people. He never gets mad. He doesn't talk about others. He doesn't get upset with people, always giving them the benefit of the doubt. I mean, He's just a good person.''

Bo had an equally positive impression of Mary: ''I had dated lots of girls, but I never had the inclination to ask one of them to marry me,'' he says. ''I knew within three weeks that Mary was the one. She is such a good-hearted person. I was ready to marry her right away.''

They waited until the following September. ''We've had as near a perfect marriage as possible; never had an argument in 33 years,'' Bo says. ''I'm a lucky man.''

So are their daughter and son. Mary worked as a substitute teacher briefly, but then she stayed home, because she and Bo believe children need a devoted mother's care and comfort.

''MOTHERS ARE THE MOST IMPORTANT PEOPLE IN THE WORLD, AREN'T THEY? YOU EVER SEE AN ATHLETE SAY 'HI, DADDY,' ON TELEVISION?''

''When you think about it, mothers are critical to society, because they're raising the next generation,'' Mary says. ''We put our futures in mothers' hands.''

Responsible fatherhood counts a lot too, of course, and Bo always stressed the importance of good character and trust. ''It takes 20 years to build a reputation, but it only takes one minute to ruin it,'' he says. ''I told my kids there's a difference between reputation and character: Reputation is what people think about you, and character is what you really are. Your character is determined by what you do when nobody's looking.''

Mary and Bo clearly succeeded at parenting. Heidi, 29, taught third grade before giving birth to Christopher this past March and deciding to stay home with her newborn. ''You hear about families whose parents never spent any time with them and never told them they love them, and that's just the opposite of ours,'' says Heidi, who fondly remembers her weekly before-school breakfasts with her dad. ''You never doubted that they were there for you, and that they loved you.''

'''I LOVE YOU' IS THE HARDEST THING IN THE WORLD TO GET OUT. HOW DUMB IS THAT?''

Andy, 27, continues in his father's footsteps in Kiwanis and other civic groups. ''We always have been a family of example,'' he notes. ''Heidi and I both saw how much our parents helped other people, so it was natural for me to become a Kiwanian.''

Though it's not a ''Boverb,'' it is true that into every life some rain must fall. The past year has rained two traumatic events on the Shafer family: Mary's recurrence of cancer (which now is in remission) and an automobile accident that killed Bo's 28-year-old nephew. Still, they keep a positive attitude.

''PROBLEMS CAN MAKE YOU BETTER OR BITTER''

''You realize how important it is to do what you need to do now, instead of waiting to get to it later, because later may not be here,'' Bo says ''(The cancer) really has made us a better couple, love each other better, and love life more. It can make you a better person.''

Mary echoes his sentiments: ''When you are threatened with a terminal illness, it makes you realize how precious life is. You look at leaves and see that they're absolutely gorgeous. And it helps you realize what's really important.''

''QUIT COMPLAINING, AND START APPRECIATING LIFE''

Bo claims he altered his perspective on life and quit complaining in 1983 when he was the United Way chairman: ''I held a crack baby in my arms, and I looked at this little girl and said, 'What did she do to deserve this?' The answer was 'nothing.' And I asked, 'What did I do to deserve not to be there?' And the answer was 'nothing.'

''We're blessed beyond most of the world's wildest dreams. We don't even know what a problem is; we have to make them up. The problems we complain about, most people would love to have: 'The transmission is out in my third car. My steak wasn't tender enough. The ride's too long in the airplane.' I tell them to look out the window and think about crossing the ocean on the Nina, Pinta, and Santa Maria and shut your mouth!'' he concludes with a laugh.

Bo is well aware of the real problems in the world. He recounts an experience in the Philippines where he saw 4,000 families squashed together in houses the size of a car—with no water, no sewers, no electricity, ''When I was leaving,'' he notes, ''I noticed five little girls practicing Kiwanis' second Object (the Golden Rule)—picking lice out of each other's hair.''

Not surprisingly, Bo has a theory about humankind's woes. He calls it ''10–80–10'': 10 percent of people do something about problems; 80 percent of people don't notice problems; and 10 percent of people cause problems.

''HAVE YOU GOT 'A ROUND TUIT' ''

Bo recalls another apropos anecdote: ''I went to a funeral years ago, and I asked a guy who was a friend of the guy who died, 'Who's going to take his place?' He looked down at the ground, kicked a rock, and said, 'He didn't leave a vacancy.' And that's what happens when somebody doesn't do anything for anybody but themselves. If you don't love other people, who's going to miss you? Most people don't ever get around to helping others. You need something that helps you get around to it, and Kiwanis is a catalyst.''

It certainly has been for Bo. He is the epitome of an active Kiwanian: 38 years in the Knoxville club with 32 years of perfect attendance; 1975–76 club president; chairman of numerous club committees; 10 years as Key Club sponsor, and another five as Circle K sponsor; 1982–83 lieutenant governor; chairman of numerous district committees; 1988–89 Kentucky-Tennessee District governor (distinguished); a member of the International Board since 1994; and so on and so on.

''A FISH GETS CAUGHT BECAUSE IT DOESN'T KEEP ITS MOUTH SHUT''

By his own admission, though, Bo never had a driving ambition to reach district and International leadership positions. He had to be talked into running for district governor and International Trustee. Lexington, Kentucky, Kiwanian John Gorrell, the district's 1989–90 governor, was one of the individuals encouraging Bo, and Past International President Aubrey Irby was another.

''I was a lieutenant governor when Aubrey made his official visit to our district,'' Bo explains, ''and he told me: 'Bo, you ought to go further, but don't run for any job. If the door opens, just go through it. If that one doesn't open, another one will.' Well, the doors opened, I went through them, and here I am.

''Now, it's an unbelievable honor and privilege to be President—to be able to say I represent Kiwanians. I'm always amazed when I visit Kiwanians at the dedication they have. There are so many people who are really dedicated Kiwanians.''

Count President Bo among them, and watch for him to be a true motivator, building enthusiasm wherever he goes. And foremost among his goals is growth—but as a way to a means. ''Growth isn't my real goal; helping more people is,'' he clarifies.

When it comes to enthusiasm about Kiwanis and the need for more service through growth—stand back and listen to Bo go:

''People aren't joining Kiwanis because we're not asking. We've talked ourselves into thinking that nobody wants to join Kiwanis, and that is not right. Surveys show that young adults want to do more (service work), but no one asks them. That's exactly what we need to start doing. As soon as we start asking, our organization is going to grow.''

''IDEAS ARE EASY: EXECUTION IS WHAT'S HARD''

''What you have to do is when you're around someone, you should be a Kiwanian and start talking about Kiwanis. And you don't say, 'Do you want to join the Kiwanis club?' What I always say is how lucky we are to be able to help other people and talk about a Kiwanis project. Tell people what Kiwanis does, and ask, 'Would you be interested in helping us help other people, especially children?'

''I talk about what a privilege it is to be able to help others. It's not a duty; it's a privilege. I think in everybody's heart they want to help people, and we need to appeal to that side of it. Hardly anybody can say no when you talk in that context. And the people who say no, well, we don't want them in Kiwanis anyway.

''We need to show people what it's like to be a good Kiwanian. If we show them—be happy, have the right attitude, have a smile on your face—they'll be more inclined to join. It's important to be positive, not negative. People just have to look at the pluses instead of the minuses.

''In my opinion, if a club is not willing to grow, we need to form another one in the same town with young people. I was up at the lake a few years ago, and I saw this great big, strong-looking oak tree. I looked at it and said, 'Man, that thing's been there a long time.' I came back the next week, and that oak tree was down. But I looked around and noticed all these little oak saplings growing around it. And I said, 'The woods are OK,' and then I thought of Kiwanis.''

''NOTHING GOOD HAPPENS UNLESS YOU MAKE IT HAPPEN''

''All we need to do is get a passion to grow. There is about one Kiwanian per 20,000 people in the world, and about 50 percent of the world needs help. We have so much to do, and that's why we need to grow. Getting other people to help us help others is an easy project, if we make that a passion.

''If we can get the leadership—starting from the very top—to start talking positively about how lucky we are and change that attitude, shoot, we can grow like gangbusters. If we talk about Kiwanis in a positive manner, then people will want to join.''

''The more people we ask, the more new members we'll have and more people will stay who are going to be the right kind of members—active members.''

Get the message? You will. President Bo plans on making it crystal-clear during his time in Kiwanis' highest office. And while he's at it, he'll be stressing a few other points as well.

Among them will be Kiwanis' sponsored programs—from K–Kids to Circle K. He believes Kiwanians need to pay more attention to these young volunteers.

''Our biggest problem is Kiwanians not going to their meetings and not being personally involved,'' Bo says. ''We need to teach youngster about giving. Teaching them that is one of the most important things we can do, because they're in their formative years, and if they learn to help others, well, that changes the world.''

Which leads to another focal point for Bo: the Worldwide Service Project and its successful completion. ''I used to say, 'We can't change the world, but each one of us can change a life,' '' he says. ''But now I realize we literally are changing the world by virtually eliminating IDD (iodine deficiency disorders).''

You also can expect Bo to dig into his pockets and pass out an endless supply of his trademark Super Bubble gum. (For the record, he buys about 20,000 pieces annually from Hackney Cash and Carry on Dale Avenue in Knoxville.) He began the tradition with a United Way fund-raising campaign slogan in 1982: ''Don't gum up the works by not doing your part.''

When he's completed his year as Kiwanis' impassioned ambassador, Bo will return to his hometown and his home club with more stories and more sayings. If you go looking for him, though, you might need to drive over to Cain Seed Hollow, because that's where he and Mary love to be.

You'll probably find him cutting wood, building, and adding touches to the 28-foot by 70-foot ''cabin'' he's constructed over the past 25 years with its rough-cut-oak exterior and wall-to-wall wooden interior. (''I didn't plan for it to be this big when I first had it in mind,'' Bo says. ''I just love to build.'')

You might arrive as he's sawing two-by-fours for another new deck while listening to a UT football game on the radio (''I guarantee I won't be sitting around watching television,'' he says), whistling away, happy as can be.

Or maybe you'll catch Mary and Bo on those rocking chairs, waiting for another gorgeous sunset, quietly thanking God for another beautiful day.

AUTHORIZING AN INTERPRETIVE CENTER NEAR DIAMOND VALLEY LAKE, CALIFORNIA

SPEECH OF

HON. MARY BONO

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, October 17, 2000

Mrs. BONO. Madam Speaker, I join my colleagues, Representatives KEN CALVERT, JERRY LEWIS, DUNCAN HUNTER, GRACE NAPOLITANO, RON PACKARD, GARRY MILLER, and JOE BACA in support of H.R. 4187, which provides funding and other assistance for the creation of the Western Archeology and Paleontology Center in southern California's Riverside County, in close proximity to the Diamond Valley Lake Reservoir.

This facility will serve as both an interpretive center and museum to ensure the protection and preservation of the many prehistoric archaeological and paleontological findings uncovering during the lake's construction. These discoveries included rock paintings and carvings, bone and stone tools, pottery, a partial mammoth skeleton, mastodon tusks, and much more. A system of trails will be designed around the perimeter of the lake for use by pedestrians and non-motorized vehicles.

From the initial stages of discussion, this center has benefited from the guidance provided by the University of California at Riverside and a consortium of local individuals and organizations. The House report language directs the Secretary of the Interior to work with the University, the Metropolitan Water District (MWD), and local stakeholders in establishing and operating the center.

The State of California has already contributed $6 million dollars to the establishment of the Western Center, and more than $10 million dollars has been included in this year's state budget for the construction and maintenance of the center.

Diamond Valley Lade is the largest man-made lake in southern California. It was constructed at a cost of $2.1 billion dollars, over a period of ten years. This project, located near the communities of Hemet, San Jacinto and Temecula in California's 44th congressional district, will provide an essential emergency water supply for the residents of the Los Angeles basin and the surrounding communities.

While Diamond Valley Lake will fulfill a critical water need for southern California, the unexpected benefit of this project was the discovery of a significant scientific treasure trove—the largest repository of prehistoric fossils in southern California. The establishment of a center and museum that will preserve these unique resources for future generations will benefit not only the people of California, but, the entire nation.

Mr. Speaker, I want to also extend my appreciation to Chairman YOUNG and HANSEN for their efforts on behalf of this bill, and urge my colleagues to pass this important legislation.

IN TRIBUTE TO WALTER BRENNAN AND JOEL MCCREA

HON. ELTON GALLEGLY

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, October 18, 2000

Mr. GALLEGLY. Mr. Speaker, I rise to pay tribute to two stars from my home in Ventura County, California, who made their mark on the world as screen legends and in Ventura County as good neighbors.

The duo will be honored this weekend with a statue in Old Town in Camarillo.

My best screen memories of Walter Brennan are probably the same as many—that of the shuffling, wizened and crotchety patriarch Grandpa Amos in The Real McCoys. The Real McCoys was ''a moral show . . . about the love of a family,'' in the words of Kathleen ''Kate McCoy'' Nolan. We could use more of that fare on television today.

No brag, just fact.

Walter Brennan became Amos McCoy after a successful career on the big screen. Walter Brennan died in Oxnard, California, in 1974 at the age of 80, but his film career—which began in 1927—didn't end until a year later when his last film, Smoke in the Wind, was released.

In all, Walter Brennan acted in 186 films and three television series, not to count the singular TV shows in which he appeared. Mr. Brennan was the first actor to win the Best Supporting Oscar and the first to win three Oscars.

But to his neighbors in Moorpark, where he lived for some 20 years, the film and television star was just Mr. Brennan. It's fitting that a statute to Walter Brennan will grace Old Town Camarillo. Walter Brennan twice served as the city's grand marshal and his son lives in the city. A daughter still makes Moorpark her home.

Joel McCrea made his home in Moorpark Road at the foot of the Norwegian Grade, where his grandson still lives.

Joel McCrea began his career as a movie stuntman and landed his first starring role in The Silver Horde. He starred in dozens of more films throughout the 1930s and '40s. In the '50s, he starred as Ranger Jase Pearson in the television series Tales of the Texas Rangers.

Cry Blood, Apache, which was released in 1970, was a family affair. Joel McCrea and his son, Jody, starred in the film, and Jody McCrea also produced it.

Much of the McCrea Ranch now serves the public as parkland.

Mr. Speaker, Walter Brennan and Joel McCrea enriched our lives in many ways. I know my colleagues will join me in paying tribute to their memories.

TRIBUTE TO MS. LAURA J. CLARK OF DOTHAN, AL

HON. ROBERT E. (BUD) CRAMER, JR.

OF ALABAMA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, October 18, 2000

Mr. CRAMER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to thank Ms. Laura J. Clark and her mother for sharing their extraordinary talent with the Children's Advocacy Centers. These ladies have gone to great lengths to fight child abuse. They have turned the misery and shame of child abuse into a beautiful song. Through music, they are reaching out to abused children and adults who were abused as children.

Ms. Clark and her mother are donating the profits of the compact disc and tape sales to the Southeast Alabama Child Advocacy Center.

Mr. Speaker, I enter into the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD the lyrics to ''For the Children'' so that others might have the opportunity read these words and find comfort in the song's message.

FOR THE CHILDREN (MUSIC AND LYRICS BY JO JOHNSON, ARRANGED BY BUDDY SKIPPER)

I need a safety blanket, I need a secret place to hide
I need someone to listen to me when I tell them I hurt inside
I have nightmares in the daytime then I cry myself to sleep
Where's an angle to watch over me when I pray ''my soul to keep''?
I know you can't believe it, our stories break your heart in two
I know you can never see it but it's happening yes it's happening believe us it's true
We've got to make it right for the children
Got to give them hope and heal their broken hearts
We've got to make it right for the children
Let them learn of love instead of hate and ask them to forgive us because we're so late
We've got to take despair from the children
Got to let them know how much we care
We've got to make it right for the children
And with God's help we'll do the right thing we'll open up our arms
Yes with God's help we'll do the right thing and make sure that the children will come to no more harm
We've got to make it right for the children
Got to give them hope and heal their broken hearts
We've got to make it right for the children
For the children
We will make it right.

IN HONOR OF MARCUS STEELE

HON. DENNIS J. KUCINICH

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, October 18, 2000

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, today I honor the memory of Mr. Marcus Steele, a sophomore at Cleveland Central Catholic High School who died tragically on October 13, 2000 during a football game against Trinity.

It is always devastating to hear stories about the untimely deaths of young people, but it is even more difficult when the tragedy strikes close to home. There is a void in the hearts of many in the city of Cleveland today, as we say good-bye to this loved and respected young man. Marcus didn't knowingly put himself into harms way; he was simply playing the game that he loved. We cannot explain why he was taken from us at such a young age, but we must do our best to reflect upon the positive ways in which Marcus touched our lives.

Marcus was a warm, caring individual who was genuinely admired by all those around him. His classmates and teammates describe him as open, motivated, jovial and popular. Marcus will be remembered most for his catching smile and his dedication to and appreciation for his family and friends. Also, as a linebacker and running back on the football team and as a key member of the basketball team, Marcus's wealth of athletic talent will certainly be missed on the playing fields at Cleveland Central Catholic. In characterizing him as an athlete, football coach Paul Cunningham said, ''Marcus never held anything back in practice, and he played the game that way too. He was a hard-nosed kid with a real future in this sport. You don't replace him. Marcus was one of a kind.''

Mr. Speaker, it is with a heavy heart that I ask my fellow colleagues in the House of Representatives to join me today in remembering Marcus Steele. He was a fine young man who will surely be missed by all who knew him. I also wish to take this opportunity to extend my sincere condolences and sympathy to his family and friends and the staff, classmates, coaches and teammates of Marcus Steele at Cleveland Central Catholic High School. May you find the faith and strength to carry you through this difficult time.

TRIBUTE TO FORMER CONGRESSMAN ROMAN PUCINSKI

HON. HENRY J. HYDE

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, October 18, 2000

Mr. HYDE. Mr. Speaker, despite the Vice President's claim to have invented the Internet, a strong case can be made that former Congressman Roman Pucinski (D-Chicago) had a lot to do with this development. A Chicago Sun-Times article from the Casual Friday Column of Friday, October 29, 1999, referred to this interesting fact, and I am pleased to share it with my colleagues.

''POOCH'' MAY BE THE FATHER OF NET

On October 20, 1969, history was made when the first e-mail was sent on ARPANET, the predecessor of today's Internet.

So if you think presidential hopeful Al Gore ''invented'' the Internet, you're sadly mistaken.

Another pol can lay claim to inventing the Net. None other than Chicago's own Roman C. Pucinski, 80, the retired Democratic congressman, one-time Chicago alderman and longtime Chicago Sun-Times reporter.

Roman's daughter, Aurelia, Cook County Circuit Court clerk, let us know the other day that the elder Pucinski was the real father of the Internet. She shared old press releases and speeches on the subject with Casual Friday. We even saw ''Pooch's'' original notes.

On Jan. 17, 1963, Pucinski proposed a national scientific computer network. He chaired the House Education and Labor Committee, which voted a sum ''not to exceed $7,000'' to begin studies on the computer network. Proud daughter Aurelia suggests that Roman proposed National Information System ultimately evolved into today's Internet. Maybe it did.

In a speech in 1965, Pucinski said he foresaw scientists having pocket-size TVs that tied in with the world. Shades of Palm Pilots.

''In a matter of seconds, a scientist will be able to communicate and interrogate the world's storehouse of information and reproduce instantly any article or portion he may need,'' Pucinski said.

Sounds like Yahoo! And other Web directories and search engines!

Back in the days when computer punch cards were symbols of high tech, Pucinski predicted that the computer industry someday would ''stand beside steel, transportation, auto production and building construction as one of this nation's basic industries—holding out great hope for employment not only among the young but also among the old.'' What a master of understatement.

Footnote: Chicago booster Pucinski wanted the university-based data center to be based here. If it has unfolded that way, maybe Silicon Prairie would have put the Silicon Valley in its shadow, maybe it still will. Let's win one for the Pooch.

HONORING THE 119TH AIR CONTROL SQUADRON

HON. JOHN J. DUNCAN, JR.

OF TENNESSEE

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, October 18, 2000

Mr. DUNCAN. Mr. Speaker, after 50 years as a mobile, tactical radar unit, the 119th Air Control Squadron, commanded by Lt. Col. John F. White at McGhee Tyson Air Base in the Second District of Tennessee, is observing its half-century of service this month.

This is also a unique and interesting time for the squadron, as it will be the oldest Air National Guard unit in East Tennessee to move to the United States Space Command.

The Space Command was looking for a unit that had a depth of experience in command and control, running an operations center for a general office, controlling forces, movement of forces, the operations of forces, and responding to other tasks. The 119th Air Control Squadron matched these qualifications and demands perfectly.

The unit was federally recognized 50 years ago on October 6, 1950, while located on Sutherland Avenue at the former site of McGhee Tyson Airport in west Knoxville. It was called to active duty in 1952 to Otis Air Force Base in Massachusetts. It has been at its present location at McGhee Tyson Air Base since 1956.

Over the past decade, the unit has completed seven major Air Force command inspections. The last one was in 1996 at White Sands Missile Range in New Mexico when the unit received the highest rating ever given an air squadron during an Operational Readiness Inspection.

The 119th Squadron has been awarded six Air Force Outstanding Unit Awards, two Joint Meritorious Service Awards, two National Guard Meritorious Service Awards, and two Air Guard Outstanding Mission Support Squadron Awards.

Mr. Speaker, I know that I join with the citizens of the 2nd District in congratulating Lt. Col. John F. White and the 119th Squadron for their service and devotion to the people of East Tennessee and the world. I want to wish them all the luck in the future on their new missions and endeavors. I ask my fellow colleagues and other readers of the RECORD to join me in thanking the 119th Squadron for their many years of service and contributions to East Tennessee and the United States. Our Nation is certainly a better place because of people like those who serve in the beloved 119th Air Control Squadron.

RECOGNIZING JOSEPH PHELPS

HON. MIKE THOMPSON

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, October 18, 2000

Mr. THOMPSON of California. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize and honor Joseph Phelps for his outstanding leadership role in making health care accessible to all members of our community. Mr. Phelps will be honored by the St. Helena Hospital Foundation for being a key supporter of many important health, cultural and educational organizations in Napa Valley.

Upon graduation from college, where he studied engineering and construction management, Joseph Phelps spent three years as a naval officer in the Pacific during the Korean War. After returning from duty, he presided over the expansion of a small local firm into a nationally prominent construction organization.

In 1972, Mr. Phelps developed the Joseph Phelps Vineyards, located in Spring Valley near St. Helena, CA. The vineyards stretch across a 600-acre ranch that is characterized by rolling hills, California native oaks, and 160 acres of tended vines.

Over the years, Mr. Phelps has not only established one of the most respected benchmarks of California wine quality, but has contributed to numerous health care benefits in the community, including the establishment of the health resource library at The Women's Center of St. Helena Hospital.

Additionally, Mr. Phelps is a major supporter of the annual Napa Valley Wine Auction, which has become the nation's largest and most successful charity wine auction. The auction has raised over $20 million for such critical programs as Napa Women's Emergency Services, Hospice of Napa Valley, Planned Parenthood, and Healthy Moms and Babies.

Mr. Phelps will be honored for these and many other contributions at the St. Helena Hospital Foundation's annual gala in November, of which the proceeds will support seminars, support groups, community outreach and diagnostic testing at The Women's Center of St. Helena Hospital.

Mr. Speaker, it is appropriate at this time that we acknowledge and honor Mr. Joseph Phelps for his continued support and tremendous contributions to the communities of Napa Valley.

PHYSICAL SECURITY OF NATIONAL DEFENSE INFORMATION

HON. BOB RILEY

OF ALABAMA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, October 18, 2000

Mr. RILEY. Mr. Speaker, I enter into the RECORD the following letter associated with my remarks of October 17 contained on page E1808 of the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.

ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF DEFENSE FOR COMMAND, CONTROL, COMMUNICATIONS, AND INTELLIGENCE,
Washington, DC, September 29, 2000.

Hon. BOB RILEY,
House of Representatives,
Washington, DC.

DEAR REPRESENTATIVE RILEY: This is in response to your letter to Secretary Cohen concerning the $10 million that Congress appropriated in the Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 2000 (Public Law 106–79) to be available only for retrofitting security containers that are under the control of, or that are accessible by, defense contractors. Secretary Cohen has asked me to respond since this is a matter under my direct purview. Thank you for your letter.

As you may be aware, the Joint Security Commission II, led by retired General Welch, addressed this issue in the Commission's report dated August 24, 1999. The Commission found that a program calling for industry to convert to the electronic lock would be potentially expensive with little commensurate benefit in terms of improved security. The Commission estimated that the cost of such a program for only 5 of the many Defense Contractors would exceed $100 million. The Commission further recommended that these funds would be better spent to augment the Defense Security Service's National Industrial Security Program and to provide at least some of the wherewithal for expediting the personnel security process for industry. The threats we face are not from people breaking into locked containers, but rather from computer network attacks, signal intercepts, and security cleared insiders who compromise national security.

After careful consideration, Secretary Cohen earlier this year concluded that ''retrofitting industry locks would impose a large expense on taxpayers without a commensurate security benefit,'' and so advised Congress in his letter of January 18, 2000.

We understand and share your desire to improve the physical security of national defense information and will continue to work toward that goal.

Sincerely,

———.

WEST PAPUA, INDONESIA; THE NEXT EAST TIMOR TRAGEDY

HON. ENI F.H. FALEOMAVAEGA

OF AMERICAN SAMOA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, October 18, 2000

Mr. FALEOMAVAEGA. Mr. Speaker, I come before our colleagues and our great Nation tonight to discuss a disturbing matter I have raised before—the bloody struggle for freedom and democracy that is being waged halfway around the world in the Pacific by the courageous people of West Papua, a province subjugated by Indonesia and renamed Irian Jaya.

Although many of our colleagues are familiar with Indonesia's atrocious and despicable record of human rights violations in East Timor and West Timor—the world has neglected to address the parallel tragedy that is being played out as we speak in West Papua.

Indonesian President Abdurrahman Wahid, to his credit, has attempted to engage the people of West Papua, in a national dialogue to defuse the incredible tensions arising from four decades of military repression and violence perpetrated against the Papuan people. As part of his peace initiative, President Wahid expressly authorized Papuans to raise their Morning Star flags, a deeply emotional symbol of the Papuan people's desire for justice and self-determination.

In recent weeks, however, armed Indonesian security forces have violated President Wahid's order, perhaps based upon a conflicting directive from Vice President Megawati Sukarnoputri, and forcibly taken down Morning Star flags in the mountainside town of Wamena. This touched off a massive riot resulting in upwards of 58 deaths and dozens of injured citizens.

On Monday (October 9, 2000), Amnesty International reported that, ''Indonesian security forces opened fire during attempts to forcibly remove Papuan flags flying in several locations in Wamena town.'' With hundreds of people taken into custody, Amnesty International stated that, ''some of those released told local human rights monitors that they witnessed other detainees being tortured by the police. The police reportedly beat, kicked and used razor blades to torture those who refused to renounce support for Papuan independence.'' Amnesty International, in particular, took note that 15 individuals have been denied total access to their attorneys and families, raising fears that these Papuans are being tortured or subject to extrajudicial execution.

Mr. Speaker, these recent developments in Indonesia's campaign of violence against the Papuan people are shocking and reprehensible. However, I am not surprised by this ugly show of brutality, for it is nothing new. It is part and parcel of a long history of Jakarta's oppression of the native people of West Papua.

The first chapter in this tragic story began in 1961, when the people of West Papua, with the assistance of the Netherlands and Australia, prepared to declare independence from the Dutch, their former colonial master. This enraged Indonesia, which invaded West Papua and urged war against Holland. Skillfully playing the Communist card against the United States, Indonesia simultaneously threatened to become a Soviet ally, prompting the United States to take Jakarta's side in the West Papua issue. Once the Dutch were advised by President Kennedy's administration that they could not count on United States backing in a conflict with Indonesia, the Netherlands ceased support for West Papua's independence and deserted the Papuan people. Indonesia was thus given a green light to ravage West Papua in 1963, destroying the Papuan people's dreams of freedom and self-determination.

In 1969, the second chapter unfolded, when the United Nations supervised a fraudulent referendum called the ''Act of Free Choice'', which, upon review, was clearly designed to give cover and official sanctioning of Indonesia's forced occupation of West Papua. West Papuans derisively refer to it as the ''Act of No Choice'', since only 1,025 delegates hand-picked by Jakarta were allowed to vote, with bribery and death threats used to coerce them. The rest of the 800,000 citizens of West Papua had absolutely no say in the rigged plebiscite. Despite calling for a ''one person-one vote'' referendum, the United Nations shamefully acquiesced and recognized the defective vote—a vote which, not surprisingly, was unanimous for West Papua to remain with Indonesia.

Since Indonesia and its military subjugated West Papua, the Papuan people have suffered under one of the most repressive and violent systems of colonial occupation in the twentieth century. Incredible as it may seem, Mr. Speaker, as the world witnessed in East Timor, the estimate of West Papuans who have been killed or who have simply vanished from the fact of the earth during the Indonesian occupation numbers in the hundreds of thousands. Papuans project that between 200,000 to 300,000 of their people have disappeared at the hands of the Indonesians.

Mr. Speaker, in recent years our Nation has rightfully intervened to stop ethnic cleansing and genocide, such as in Kosovo, yet for decades in West Papua the Indonesians have been allowed to commit outrageous human rights abuses of the highest magnitude.

Mr. Speaker, the depth and intensity of this conflict spanning four decades underscores the fact that the people of West Papua do not desire and will never accept being part of Indonesia. In all ways, manner and fashion, they are a people and culture dramatically distinct and apart from the rest of Indonesia.

In an attempt to overwhelm the Papuan people, the Indonesian Government has chosen a policy of mass transmigration, not unlike what China is doing in Tibet. The West Papuan people have been inundated with an annual influx of over 10,000 families from the rest of Indonesia. Already, the migrants threaten to outnumber the West Papuans, reducing the indigenous natives to a minority in their own homeland.

Mr. Speaker, the tragic situation in West Papua greatly concerns me. With Jakarta's renewed thirst for blood, I would ask that all of our colleagues join in urging the Indonesian Government to exercise restraint and immediately stop the killings and human rights violations in West Papua.

To that effect, Mr. Speaker, earlier this year, our colleagues—Representatives JOHN LEWIS, CYNTHIA MCKINNEY, LANE EVANS, DONALD PAYNE, ROBERT WEXLER, ALCEE HASTINGS and GREGORY MEEKS—joined me in a letter to President Clinton strongly expressing our deep concerns with Indonesia's repression in West Papua and requesting that the ''U.S. ensure that the Indonesian military and police refrain from any violent response'' to the Papuan people's advocacy for independence. Our letter further requested the Administration to work with United Nations Secretary General Kofi Annan in undertaking a thorough and complete review of the 1969 U.N. ''Act of Free Choice''.

I commend President Clinton for his forthright response and gracious letter, in which the President stated, ''The U.S. response to events in West Papua is aimed at minimizing the likelihood of violence and promoting reconciliation between Papua and the Indonesian government.'' The President further stated ''* * * we have strongly urged Indonesia to uphold justice, human rights, and the rule of law in Papua and to refrain from using tactics of repression similar to those that were condemned by the world community in East Timor. We will continue to impress on Indonesia's leaders the high costs associated with any attempt to use military-backed militias to incite violence or to intimidate the people of Papua.''

I thank the President for his stated commitment to stop Indonesia's practices of brutality in West Papua and look forward to concrete, timely action from the Administration in response to the recent troubling developments in West Papua.

Mr. Speaker, as the leader of the free world and protector of the oppressed, our great Nation cannot in good conscience continue to look away as another nightmare like East Timor raises its ugly head. I ask our colleagues to hear the urgent pleas for help of the people of West Papua and take steps now with the Administration to prevent another East Timor massacre from taking place.

Thank you, Mr. Speaker, and I submit the aforementioned letters regarding West Papua from our colleagues and President Clinton for the RECORD.

CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES,
HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
Washington, DC, June 30, 2000.

Hon. WILLIAM J. CLINTON,
President, The White House, Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. PRESIDENT: We are deeply concerned with recent developments in Papua, also known as West Papua or Irian Jaya, the eastern-most part of Indonesia. The Second Papuan People's Congress ended the first week of June with a declaration of independence from Indonesia, to which the Indonesian government responded by declaring it would take all action necessary to maintain the state's territorial integrity.

This independence declaration—dated retroactively to December 1, 1961, when Papuan leaders first declared Papua a sovereign nation separate from its Dutch colonial rulers—follows years of economic exploitation and human rights violations by the Indonesian government and military regime. The decisions of the Papuan Congress, attended by five hundred delegated representatives, more than two thousand others inside the hall and some twenty thousand supporters outside, reflect views held widely throughout the territory. While it is premature for the U.S. government to take a stand in favor or against the declaration adopted by the Papuan Congress, we feel that the State Department should at least demonstrate an understanding of the underlying reasons for the decision taken by the Papuan representatives.

The independence declaration of the Second Papuan People's Conference reflects over thirty years of grievance resulting from a fraudulent Act of Free Choice held in 1969. A brutally repressive military regime organized the Act, refusing universal suffrage and convening an assembly of only 1,025 hand-picked men. They met under extreme duress and at gunpoint, resulting in an ''unanimous'' decision to remain with Indonesia. To its detriment, the United Nations, which was supposed to supervise the Act but was marginalized throughout the process, endorsed the results and has done virtually nothing to protect the rights and freedoms of the Papuan people since then.

The U.S. government must take responsibility for the diplomatic moves leading to the U.N.'s betrayal of the Papuans. U.S. administrations were instrumental in negotiating talks between Indonesia and the Netherlands about Paupua, resulting in the New York Agreement in 1962 and the eventual Act of Free Choice. The talks, over which a U.S. diplomat preside, took place without any Papuan representation and were followed by six years of extreme repression capped by the denial of the right to a genuine act of self-determination. Having brokered an agreement providing for the Act of Free Choice, the U.S. government had a responsibility to ensure its fair implementation. Yet despite egregious human rights violations perpetrated against the Papuan people, the U.S. voted in favor of U.N. General Assembly Resolution 2504 of December 19 in 1969, recognizing the official inclusion of Papua in the Indonesian state.

Given the involvement of the U.S. in the aforementioned agreements, we request that the Administration call upon the U.N. Secretary General to undertake a thorough review of the 1969 Act of Free Choice. We remain deeply concerned about escalating activities in Papua of pro-Indonesia militia groups, similar to those that operated in East Timor, many of whom are linked to the Indonesian Armed Forces. We further request that the U.S. ensure that the Indonesian military and police refrain from any violent response to the declaration of independence, as has already been suggested by some in the Indonesian security forces and government. We will continue to diligently monitor the situation in Papua, particularly in the context of severe military repression throughout the Indonesian archipelago.

We thank you for your serious consideration of our requests and look forward to your response.

Sincerely.

Eni F.H. Faleomavaega, Donald M. Payne, Robert Wexler, Alcee L. Hastings, Cynthia A. McKinney, Lane Evans, John Lewis, Gregory W. Meeks.

THE WHITE HOUSE,
Washington, DC, July 9, 2000.

Hon. ENI F.H. FALEOMAVAEGA,
House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

DEAR ENI: Thank you for your letter regarding recent developments in West Papua, Indonesia.

The U.S. response to events in West Papua is aimed at minimizing the likelihood of violence and promoting reconciliation between Papua and the Indonesian government. Our policy is based on three principles.

First, we have reiterated our support for the territorial integrity of Indonesia. We continue to believe that a stable, democratic and united Indonesia is the key to continued stability in the region.

Second, we have publicly called for the Government of Indonesia to address the legitimate concerns of the residents of Papua within the context of a unified Indonesia. We strongly support a meaningful dialogue between the Government of Indonesia and Papuan political representatives as the best and most appropriate means to address the underlying problems that have led to calls for independence. Such a dialogue is the appropriate form to discuss any potential review of the UN-sanctioned process that resulted in West Papua's inclusion into Indonesia.

Third, we have strongly urged Indonesia to uphold justice, human rights, and the rule of law in Papua and to refrain from using tactics of repression similar to those that were condemned by the world community in East Timor. We will continue to impress on Indonesia's leaders the high costs associated with any attempt to use military-backed militias to incite violence or to intimidate the people of Papua.

I appreciate your interest in Papua and look forward to continuing to work with you to ensure the peaceful resolution of the situation.

Sincerely,

BILL.

AIR FORCE SCIENCE AND TECHNOLOGY FOR THE 21ST CENTURY ACT

HON. TONY P. HALL

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, October 18, 2000

Mr. HALL of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, today I am introducing the Air Force Science and Technology for the 21st Century Act, a bill to strengthen the Science and Technology (S&T) program of the U.S. Air Force.

Today, the Air Force S&T program is a shadow of what it once was. Spending has been slashed from its high water mark a decade ago. Research focus has shifted from long-term topics with the potential for revolutionary advances to projects that have only short-term, incremental payoff. Morale among scientists in the Air Force Research Laboratory is down as a result of layoffs, budget cuts, and an uncertain future for the S&T program. In recent years, we've seen a pattern where research programs are funded, then cut by the Air Force, then restored by Congress. This roller coaster trend results in inefficiency and loss of continuity.

The decline has begun to set off alarm bells outside the Air Force. Earlier this year, the Air Force Association—one of the Air Force's strongest allies—issued a blistering report, concluding that by not treating research and development as a high priority, the Air Force has ''shortchanged the nation's future military-technological edge'' which ''could cost the nation dearly on future battlefields.'' Last month, a coalition representing one million scientists and engineers warned that the ''chronic decline in Federal funding going to aeronautics research,'' including Pentagon spending, could result in a ''catastrophic loss.''

Prodding by Congress apparently has failed to move scientific research to a higher Air Force priority. In 1998, Congress passed a resolution urging an increase in the science and technology budget of the Defense Department by 2 percent (adjusted for inflation). When the Air Force refused to comply, I offered legislation the following year repeating the request, singling out the Air Force for jeopardizing the stability of the defense science and technology base. Though the legislation was enacted into law, the Air Force still failed to meet the standard in this year's budget request (using last year's appropriated level for S&T funding as the baseline).

Even guidance within the Defense Department hasn't shaken the Air Force's determination to siphon off scientific research funds for other purposes. The Director of Defense Research and Engineering (DDR&E) issued guidelines for supporting S&T funding which the Air Force did not follow. The Air Force also ignored Defense Science Board recommendations to maintain a viable science and technology program by halting cuts and stabilizing the annual budgets.

What this means is that in a world of increasingly uncertain threats, the Air Force weapons systems of the future may not give us the technological edge that the tomorrow's warfighter will need. Many of the Air Force technologies that have played starring roles in recent conflicts are the result of science and technology investments made 20 or more years ago. A few of these technologies include stealth aircraft, the Global Positioning System (GPS), night vision devices, and guided munitions (smart bombs). If the Air Force of the 1960s and 1970s had followed the same direction as today's Air Force, some of these technologies would not be available today.

The Air Force was established by leaders who recognized that a long-term commitment to science and technology was the key to maintaining air supremacy in warfare. While technology is important to all the services, it is uniquely critical to the Air Force's mission. The Army and the Navy strategies for winning a war rely on mass and troop numbers. The Air Force strategy, as shown in recent conflicts, relies on massing warfighting effects by exploiting technological advantage. However, beginning in the late 1980s, organizational changes within the Department of Defense and the Air Force had the inadvertent effect of reducing the influence of scientists and their advocates in shaping Air Force policy.

In 1986, Congress passed the Goldwater-Nichols Department of Defense Reorganization Act, which mandated sweeping and impressive improvements in the planning, organization and responsiveness of the military services. In response to the requirements of the Act, the Air Force—unlike the other services—relegated key science positions to lower levels within the organization.

Prior to Goldwater-Nichols, the top advocate for science under the Secretary of the Air Force was the Assistant Secretary for Research, Development, and Logistics. Subsequently, the equivalent slot became the Deputy Assistant Secretary for Science, Technology, and Engineering, buried deeper in the bureaucracy. Prior to Goldwater-Nichols, a Deputy Chief of Staff for Development, Research, and Acquisition—with the rank of Lieutenant General (3-star)—reported to the Chief of Staff. That position was eliminated after Goldwater-Nichols.

Another major organizational change occurred when Air Force Systems Command (AFSC) was abolished in 1992 and its functions were merged with Air Force Logistics Command (AFLC). AFSC, headed by a general officer (4-star), had been responsible for supporting science, technology, research, and development. The new merged organization, Air Force Materiel Command (AFMC), had far more duties. Since then, the AFMC commanders have not been as forceful advocates for science and acquisition issues as the AFSC commanders had been.

As a result of these changes, when high level Air Force decisions are made there is no one at the table who has an intimate knowledge of scientific research and whose principal mission includes defending science and technology. As the Air Force Association reported, ''The focus of the major commands, and that of Air Force headquarters, is apparently now on near-term payoff and relevance to the existing mission. There is no countervailing Air Force entity arguing for long-term investment and long-term payoff.''

The most observable consequence of these organizational changes is plummeting science and technology funding as the advocates of other Air Force needs divide up the budget pie first. In 1989, the Air Force spent almost $2.7 billion on science and technology (in fiscal year 2000 constant dollars). In fiscal year 2001, the Air Force proposed spending under $1.3 billion, a drop of 55 percent. Though some decline in science and technology might be expected due to the defense draw down of recent years, this does not justify the dramatic drop in Air force S&T funding. During that same period, the Army cut its science and technology budget by only 20 percent, and the Navy actually made a substantial increase.

These numbers do not tell the full story of the Air Force's efforts to divert S&T dollars for higher priorities. In the late 1990s, internal Air Force budget planning documents proposed much deeper reductions. However, DDR&E forced the Air Force to submit higher numbers and Congress increased the funding levels even more.

There are other more subtle effects of a reduced Air Force priority on science and technology that do not show up in the S&T budget figures. More and more, the Air Force Research Laboratory devotes resources to short-term engineering projects tied to enhancing current weapons systems instead of long-term science topics with the potential for dramatic results. For example, last year the Air Force tried to eliminate the hypersonics (high-speed aircraft) program because it had no direct weapon system application even though it had significant military application in the future. Congress overruled the Air Force and restored the funding.

Other signs of a lower priority for science and technology include fewer advanced technical degrees among officers and civilians, layoffs in the Air Force Research Laboratory, and reduced support for the Air Force's graduate school of engineering, the Air Force Institute of Technology (which the Air Force tried to abolish a few years ago). A 1999 Air Force report titled ''Science and Technology Workforce for the 21st Century'' noted, ''There is a problem with the [Air Force Research Laboratory] being underappreciated in what it accomplishes and has provided to the force'' and that this is ''particularly true at the highest levels of Air Force leadership.''

The consequence of a lower priority on science and technology will not show up for many years, but it will certainly have a devastating effect on the future capabilities of the Air Force. With an ever smaller force and a desire by Americans to keep their military personnel out of direct danger, a reliance on technological superiority is a requirement that will only grow in importance.

Merely restoring a robust funding level to science and technology is not enough without a commitment by the Air Force to maintain stable support for the programs. In the last two years, Congress restored many of the Air Force's S&T cuts. However, the action was completed late in the budget process after already disrupting programs, delaying contracts, and reducing morale. Also, by that time, the Air Force was well into the process for the following budget year with new damaging cuts, and the cycle was repeated.

Further, accounting gimmicks can be used to mask real cuts while maintaining the fiction of stable funding. For example, in the fiscal year 2000 budget request, the Air Force cut about $90 million in applied research. Because of a controversial budget scoring decision the overall top line of the S&T account showed only a slight decline.

Institutional support for S&T is required to deal with the hiring and retention issues that are particularly challenging to the technical workforce within the laboratory. An understanding of the need for long-term science is critical to targeting research areas that will ultimately result in the strongest national defense. For all of these reasons, maintaining or even increasing the S&T top line without increasing the commitment to the S&T program from the Air Force leadership would be a hollow victory.

As a result of outside pressure, the Air Force submitted an S&T budget for fiscal year 2001 that reflected a modest gain over the slim proposal it submitted the year before (though significantly below the level appropriated by Congress the year before). Still, the projected budget for the next five years shows a continued downward drift in funding levels (adjusted for inflation).

Congress, unfortunately, cannot mandate a change in the corporate culture of the Air Force. As I have explained, we cannot fix the basic problem through the annual funding process. Since the problem has its roots in legislative and administrative organizational action, I am proposing a series of organizational changes to correct it.

The bill I am introducing, the Air Force Science and Technology for the 21st Century Act, establishes an Office of Air Force Research within the office of the Secretary of the Air Force. This will give a clear line of responsibility for the development and implementation of Air Force science policy and ensure that the S&T program has visibility at the level of the Secretary of the Air Force. Also, it requires that the program be managed by a major general (2-star). The current head of the Air Force Research Laboratory is a brigadier general (1-star).

The bill also establishes the Air Force Science and Technology Policy Council chaired by the Vice Chief of Staff of the Air Force. The purpose of the Council is to aid the Air Force in prioritizing research needs against operational and acquisition needs and provide the senior level endorsement of the Science and Technology program that is so desperately needed to maintain the program as an Air Force priority. By adding scientific duties to the job of the Vice Chief of Staff, who is a general officer (4-star), the Air Force will be guaranteed a powerful science and technology advocate.

Finally, the bill provides statutory authority to the Air Force Scientific Advisory Board, a panel of 15 civilians. This provision is intended to strengthen the board's independence and tie it directly to the Air Force Secretary and the Director of Air Force Research.

My proposal is intended to create an organizational structure that will permit excellence and not stifle it. The legislation is based on the best ideas and thoughtful recommendations of current and former Air Force and Department of Defense military and civilian technologies and industry specialists. All three of the recommended changes are similar to the successful model instituted by the Navy for science and technology.

We cannot go back to the days before the Goldwater-Nichols Act and the era of AFSC. However, the modest changes I am proposing might re-create some of the earlier features of Air Force organization that made the Air Force the technological powerhouse that it once was.

Near the close of World War II, General Henry H. ''Hap'' Arnold, the ''father'' of the Air Force, remarked, ''For twenty years the Air Force was built around pilots and more pilots. The next Air Force will be built around scientists.'' The vision of General Arnold and the founders of the modern Air Force has been proven in battle time and time again. Unless we can restore that vision to the Air Force of the future, we will lose the technological magic that so much sets our fighting forces above all others. That is a vision we cannot afford to lose.

H.R. —

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

CONTINUED PARTICIPATION OF RUSSIA IN THE GROUP OF EIGHT (G 8) MUST BE CONDITIONED ON RUSSIA'S ADHERENCE TO THE NORMS AND STANDARDS OF DEMOCRACY—H. CON. RES. 425

HON. TOM LANTOS

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, October 18, 2000

Mr. LANTOS. Mr. Speaker, last Thursday with some of our distinguished Republican and Democratic colleagues, I introduced House Concurrent Resolution 425 which expresses the sense of the Congress that continued participation by the Russian Federation in the Group of Eight (G 8) must be conditioned on Russia's own voluntary acceptance of and adherence to the norms and standards of democracy. Let me give some background on this resolution, indicate the need for it, and discuss our hope about what it will achieve.

In 1991, Mr. Speaker, after the collapse of the Soviet Union, the Group of Seven (G 7)—the key democratic industrialized nations of this world, which are the United States, the United Kingdom, Germany, France, Italy, Canada and Japan—invited the president of the new Russia, Boris Yeltsin, to attend meetings with the leaders of the G 7, the President of the United States and his counterparts. This invitation for President Yeltsin to meet with the G 7 following the formal conclusion of the meeting, was a down payment on our expectation that Russia would develop in a democratic way.

After several years of informal Russian participation at meetings following the formal meetings of the G 7, in 1998 Russia was officially invited to become a member of the expanded G 7, which was renamed the G 8. So for the last few years, the seven leading industrial democracies of the world opened up their very exclusive club to Russia in anticipation that democratic tendencies and developments will grow in Russia, and that Russia will take what we hope will be its rightful place as one of the great industrial democracies of the world.

We realized, of course Mr. Speaker, that economically it will take a long time for Russia to become a significant power. At present Russian gross domestic product (GDP) is about the same as that of Belgium. It certainly cannot be argued that the economic state of Russia qualifies it for membership in the G 8, but our hope for democratic developments in Russia gave us the justification for continued membership by Russia in the G 8.

Mr. Speaker, recent very disturbing trends in Russia with respect to press freedom and a number of other issues, such as the war in Chechnya, have raised very severe doubts concerning democratic development in that country. The handling of the submarine tragedy, where the Russian Government reverted to the worst practices of the former Soviet Union, and the handling of the fire at the television tower, where, incredibly, it took President Putin's approval to cut power to the television tower as the fire was raging, raised some very serious questions with respect to the democratic direction that the new Russian Government is taking.

Our resolution—which is cosponsored by the Chairman of the Helsinki Commission, our Republican colleague Mr. CHRIS SMITH of New Jersey; the Chairman of the House International Relations Committee, Mr. GILMAN of New York; a senior Democratic member of the International Relations Committee, Mr. BERMAN of California—is designed to hoist the flag of caution to Mr. Putin's government. Our resolution indicates that while we are anxious and eager to build good and cooperative relations with Russia along the full spectrum of issues, we simply cannot countenance continued Russian participation as a member of the G 8 as long as there are blatant attacks on press freedom and other actions that undermine democracy.

Mr. Speaker, it will take a long time to build democracy in Russia, but one of the very few encouraging signs of the last decade in Russia was the presence of a free press. Political leaders clearly do not like to be criticized and Mr. Putin does not like to be criticized, but if the Russian President wishes to be the head of a democratic country, not a newly totalitarian Russia, he will have to get accustomed to the fact that criticism is part and parcel of political leadership in democratic societies.

Mr. Speaker, we are hoping that Mr. Putin's regime will put an end to the persecution and harassment of whatever is left of the free media in Russia. If that happens, we will be pleased to see continued Russian participation in the G 8. But if the Russian government's onslaught on the free media continues, I am certain that the vast majority of my colleagues, will join us in saying that Russia should no longer belong to the G 8.

It is my understanding that some of the leaders on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee are contemplating the introduction of parallel legislation. We are very pleased to see this because the Congress of the United States will speak with a unified voice on this issue.

Mr. Speaker, I ask that the full text of House Concurrent Resolution 425 be placed in The RECORD, and I urge my colleagues to join as cosponsors of this legislation.

H. Con. Res. 425

Expressing the sense of the Congress that the continued participation of the Russian Federation in the Group of Eight must be conditioned on Russia's own voluntary acceptance of and adherence to the norms and standards of democracy.

Whereas in 1991 and subsequent years the leaders of the Group of Seven (''G 7''), the forum of the heads of state or heads of government of the major free-market economies of the world which meet annually in a summit meeting, invited Russia to a post-summit dialogue, and in 1998 the leaders of the Group of Seven formally invited Russia to participate in an annual gathering that thereafter became known as the Group of Eight ('G 8'), although the Group of Seven have continued to hold informal summit meetings and ministerial meetings that do not include Russia;

Whereas the invitation to President Yeltsin of Russia to participate in these annual summits was in recognition of his commitment to democratization and economic liberalization, despite the fact that the Russian economy has been weak and its commitment to democratic principles has been uncertain;

Whereas those countries which are members of the Group of Seven are pluralistic democratic societies with democratic political institutions and practices, and they have committed themselves to the observance of universally recognized standards of human rights, respect for individual liberties and democratic political practices;

Whereas a free news media and freedom of speech are fundamental to the functioning of a democratic society and essential for the protection of individual liberties, and such freedoms can exist only in an environment that is free of state control of the news media, that is free of any form of state censorship or official coercion of any kind, and that is protected and guaranteed by the rule of law;

Whereas the Russian Federation has engaged in a series of government actions that are hostile and threatening to privately-owned, independently operated media enterprises, particularly those new outlets that have been critical of government policies and government actions; and

Whereas the continued participation of the Russian Federation in the Group of Eight must be conditioned on Russia's own voluntary acceptance of and adherence to the norms and standards of democracy;

Now, therefore, be it Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate concurring), That it is the sense of the Congress that the participation of the Russian Federation in the Group of Eight must be linked to the Russian Federation's adherence to the norms and standards of democracy, including:

(1) the existence of a free, unfettered press that fosters the development of an independent media and the free exchange of ideas and views, including opportunities for private ownership of media enterprises, the right of people to receive news without government interference and harassment, and the freedom of journalists to publish opinions and news reports without fear of censorship or punishment;

(2) the freedom of all religious groups freely to practice their faith in Russia, without undue government interference on the rights and the peaceful activities of such religious organizations;

(3) equal treatment and respect for the human rights and the right to own private property of all citizens of the Russian Federation;

(4) initiation of genuine negotiations for a just and peaceful resolution of the conflict in Chechnya, including a full investigation of the conflict and bringing to justice those individuals, civilian or military, who in a court of law are found to be guilty of violating human rights;

(5) respect for the rule of law and improvement of civil and legal institutions to implement and defend these rights; and

(6) reform of the judicial system to prevent the arbitrary detention of citizens and provide for a speedy trial and equal access to the judicial system.

The President and the Secretary of State are requested to convey to appropriate officials of the Government of the Russian Federation, including the President, the Prime Minister, and the Minister of Foreign Affairs, this expression of the views of the Congress.

HONORING BROWARD COUNTY FIRE RESCUE

HON. PETER DEUTSCH

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, October 18, 2000

Mr. DEUTSCH. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize the efforts of Broward County Fire Rescue, of Broward County, Florida. The State of Florida Department of Health, Bureau of Emergency Medical Services (EMS) recently selected Broward County Fire Rescue as the 2000 State of Florida EMS Injury Prevention Agency of the Year. Indeed, Broward County Fire Rescue exemplifies the Emergency Medical Service's injury prevention efforts throughout the State of Florida.

Each year, the State of Florida Department of Health's Bureau of Emergency Medical Services names one of the state's 250 EMS providers as the best injury prevention unit in the state. The award encourages EMS providers throughout the state to become more active in injury prevention efforts.

Broward County fire rescue had many great accomplishments this year. It was the first agency in the county to give a heart attack clotting drug, Retavase, to patients en route to the hospital. The agency received a $100,000 grant to enhance their heart attack prevention plan by placing automatic external defibrillators in public buildings. These defibrillators have proved life-saving in cases of dire heart attack emergencies. Prioritizing quality of care for patients, Broward County Fire Rescuers make an extra effort to transport heart attack victims to the county hospitals best equipped to care for victims rather than the nearest hospital. Also, the agency has increased fire prevention awareness by airing fire-safety announcements before films at local movie theaters.

Mr. Speaker, I extend a hearty congratulations to Broward County Fire Rescue for their leadership in medical and rescue excellence. They go above and beyond what is demanded of them and perform their heroic services with professionalism and success.

HONORING GARY MCPHERSON

HON. SCOTT McINNIS

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, October 18, 2000

Mr. MCINNIS. Mr. Speaker, it is with immense sadness that I take this moment to celebrate the life of Colorado State Representative Gary McPherson. Gary tragically passed away at age 37. For the past six years, Gary served the State of Colorado with great distinction as a Member of the Colorado State House of Representatives. As family, friends, and colleagues mourn this sudden and terrible loss, I would like to pay tribute to this statesman and friend.

Gary was born in Auburn, Washington, but attended school at Platte Valley Academy in Nebraska, graduating in 1981. He went on to Union College where his thirst for knowledge earned him a degree in business administration, as well as minors in history, psychology, social science and sociology. Gary then went on to earn his law degree at the University of Nebraska in 1988.

After law school, Gary moved on to what would become a highly successful career. His time as a lawyer saw him practicing for a number of different law firms, including Hall & Evans, Elrod, Katz, Preco & Look P.C., Fortune & Lawritson P.C., and most recently Kissinger & Fellman P.C.

In addition to his many accomplishments as a lawyer, Gary also served in the Colorado Legislature with great distinction. As a legislator, Representative McPherson fought hard on a range of issues important to Colorado's future. During his tenure in the legislature, Gary served as member of the Appropriations and Judicial committees as well as Chairman of the House Finance Committee.

Before serving in the Colorado State Legislature, Representative McPherson was a member of numerous organizations promoting the health and vitality of his community and all of Colorado. He served as president and board member of Jackson Farms Homeowners Association, director of the Attorney/Physician Suspension Alternative Project, chairman of the ABA Prelaw Couseling Committee, board member and legislative liaison for the Colorado Bar Association Military Law Commission, and vice chairman and board member of Arapahoe County Park and Recreation District.

Giving back to his community was a priority for Representative McPherson and his hard work and determination earned him a number of awards. His honors include Colorado Bar Association's Outstanding Young Lawyer, Aurora Public Schools Superintendent's Award, International Academy of Trial Lawyer's Award, and CACI Legislator of the Year 1995.

Gary was an incredible human being, a loving and devoted father, husband, and friend. His compassion for others and commitment to his community will not soon be forgotten. Gary served his community, State, and Nation admirably. This statesman, family man, and friend will be greatly missed.

PUTIN'S POTEMKIN DEMOCRACY IN RUSSIA

HON. TOM LANTOS

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, October 18, 2000

Mr. LANTOS. Mr. Speaker, recent very disturbing trends in Russia with respect to press freedom have raised serious doubts about democratic development in that country. The current effort by Russian President Vladimir Putin to eliminate the independent news media in Russia is a serious threat to Russia's democratic future.

It will take a long time to build democracy in Russia, Mr. Speaker, but one of the very few encouraging signs of the last decade in Russia was the presence of a free press. Unfortunately, Mr. Speaker, I am using the past tense—it was an encouraging sign.

I sincerely hope that Mr. Putin's administration puts an end to the persecution and harassment of whatever is left of the free media in Russia. But the attack against the independent media is serious and systematic, and it is deadly earnest.

Mr. Speaker, the Washington Post (October 2, 2000) published an excellent editorial expressing serious concern about freedom of the press in Russia. I ask that the text of this editorial be placed in the RECORD. I urge my colleagues to read this important editorial.

IMAGE AND REALITY IN RUSSIA

[The Washington Post, Oct. 2, 2000]

Russian President Vladimir Putin tends to his international image with skill. He dines with American media heavyweights in new York City and professes his commitment to a free press. He lunches with former dissident Nathan Sharansky in the Kremlin and insists on his love of human rights. For a pathetically small price—a bit of attention—he co-opts Mikhail Gorbachev, who in turn says nice things about the young Russian president to foreign media. All this impresses Western leaders. Meanwhile, Mr. Putin is in the process of destroying the independent media in Russia. If he succeeds, democratization will be severely set back.

On a small scale, you can see Mr. Putin at work in the case of Andrei Babitsky, who is scheduled to go on trial in southern Russia today. Mr. Babistsky is a reporter for Radio Free Europe/Radio Liberty who reported honestly on brutal Russian behavior in Chechnya. Russian security forces arrested him for this affront and then arranged for him to be kidnapped by Chechen criminals. President Putin pretended to know nothing about this until international pressure became a liability, at which point Mr. Babitsky was freed. But the bullying did not stop. Mr. Putin's administration is prosecuting the reporter for carrying false documents—documents forced on him by his kidnappers.

Mr. Putin's assault on Media-Most is potentially more serious. The company owns NTV, the only Russian television network not controlled by the government. It also owns a radio station and publishes a daily newspaper and, in partnership with The Washington Post Co.'s Newsweek, a weekly magazine. Its survival now is threatened by a commercial dispute with the giant natural gas company, Gazprom, that lent it money.

As in the Babitsky case, Mr. Putin pretends not to be involved in this dispute. But the Kremlin owns a large piece of Gazprom and effectively controls the firm. Mr. Putin's administration set the stage for the dispute by throwing Media-Most's owner into prison for three days. After this KGB-style intimidation, the owner, Vladimir Gusinsky, was pressured—by a member of Mr. Putin's cabinet acting in close consultation with the Kremlin—to sign an unfavorable contract. Mr. Gusinsky was promised in return his freedom, which President Putin apparently feels is a commodity to be bargained, not a fundamental right. Now, despite Mr. Putin's protest of noninvolvement in a commercial dispute, his prosecutor-general has opened a criminal fraud case against Mr. Gusinsky.

The West has little leverage over Russia. Oil prices are high, meaning that Russia, an oil-producing country, no longer needs Western loans. But as his image campaign suggests, Mr. Putin does crave acceptance in the West. Western leaders should welcome him as long as he respects democracy at home. If he does not—if he persists in undermining Russia's independent media—the G-8 group of leading industrialized nations should return to being a G 7. A Potempkin democrat does not belong in the club of democracies.

RESOLUTION HONORING NOBEL LAUREATES DR. ERIC R. KANDEL AND DR. PAUL GREENGARD

HON. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, October 18, 2000

Ms. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to introduce a resolution to honor the American winners of the Nobel Prize in Physiology or Medicine for 2000, Drs. Eric R. Kandel and Paul Greengard. These two distinguished scientists will share this year's award with a third winner, Dr. Arvid Carlsson of Sweden.

The scientists were recognized by the Nobel Assembly at Karolinska Institute for their important contributions to understanding how brain cells interact with each other at the molecular level to create moods and memories in individuals. Their separate but related pursuits, which began in the 1950s, have provided the basis for today's understanding of mental illness and neurological disorders, including schizophrenia, depression, bipolar disorder, Alzheimer's disease, and Parkinson's disease. This understanding has been essential for the drugs and treatments that have been already developed for these afflictions and provide the foundation for even more promising research in these areas.

Last year, the Office of the Surgeon General published Mental Health: A Report of the Surgeon General, which noted that although the United States leads the world in understanding the importance of mental health to the overall health of its people, the nation still has many challenges to meet. Today, one in five people in the United States are afflicted with some form of mental disorder. Furthermore, mental disorder is one of the key contributors to a leading cause of preventable deaths-—suicide. The federal government, particularly the National Institutes of Health (NIH) has provided strong support toward research efforts in the mental health area. Indeed, NIH contributed to the discoveries made by Drs. Kandel and Greengard through grants and research support for over 30 years. As we celebrate the honor bestowed by the Nobel Assembly upon Drs. Kandel and Greengard, we should also look forward to the challenges ahead, which include not only continued scientific research but also improving the delivery of mental health services and helping society to overcome ingrained fears and misconceptions concerning mental illness.

GEORGE E. BROWN, JR. UNITED STATES COURTHOUSE

SPEECH OF

HON. MARK UDALL

OF COLORADO

Tuesday, October 17, 2000

Mr. UDALL of Colorado. Mr. Speaker, I want to take this opportunity to add a few words to those of my colleagues in support of this bill to designate the U.S. Courthouse on 12th Street in Riverside, California, as the ''George E. Brown, Jr., United States Courthouse.'' I think this is a worthy honor for a man who brought so much to his constituents in California, to colleagues in Congress, and to the citizens of this country.

The death of George Brown, Jr. last year deprived this Congress and this country of a great champion of science and technology. While I worked with him for only a brief time, I felt as though I had known him for years because he had been a colleague and friend of my father and because his reputation was so well known.

George Brown was a man of courage and vision and ideological consistency. In his 34 years of distinguished service in the House, he worked to advance energy and resource conservation, sustainable agriculture, advanced technology development, space exploration, international scientific cooperation, and the integration of technology in education.

With or without a Courthouse in his name, George Brown will be remembered. But I'm sure if he were with us here today, George would appreciate this gesture on the part of his colleagues and the country to ensure his legacy lasts beyond our own lifetimes.

HONORING ABDUL CONTEH

HON. TONY P. HALL

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, October 18, 2000

Mr. HALL of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, on Sunday Major League Soccer honored Abdul Conteh, a star of the San Jose Earthquakes, by presenting the inaugural New York Life Humanitarian of the Year Award to him.

I want to add my voice to those honoring Mr. Conteh, and I want to commend Major League Soccer and New York Life for drawing attention to the world's humanitarian crises and to those working to do something to ease suffering.

Abdul Conteh was born in Freetown, the capital of Sierra Leone. His family moved to the United States when he was a teenager, but he has not forgotten his people and his country and he is using his hard-won fame to champion their needs. In conjunction with the Santa Clara Valley chapter of the American Red Cross, Mr. Conteh recently launched an initiative to raise funds to alleviate the suffering of a people who have experienced gruesome atrocities, death, and destruction during nine years of war.

His hope is to fund a school and other projects that can help his people reclaim their lives. As he works toward this goal he is doing something else too: he is raising the awareness of soccer fans and others who otherwise wouldn't think about Sierra Leone—Americans who can do something to help the people of a nation founded by former slaves, people who have been trapped by fighting over the lucrative diamond trade for nine long years.

Rebel forces—funded by stealing Sierra Leone's diamonds and assisted by Liberia's president, Charles Taylor—have brutalized innocent men, women and children throughout Sierra Leone. They have driven hundreds of thousands from their homes and killed tens of thousands more. Some 20,000 of these suffered forced amputations of their hands, ears, or legs by machete; most of these victims died. Untold numbers of girls and women have been raped, many of them left infected with AIDS as a result. The country, which should be one of the richest in Africa, consistently ranks as the poorest in the world and the most miserable by every measure.

I have been to Sierra Leone and I have seen first-hand the results of these rebels. Last December, Congressman FRANK WOLF and I visited camps for the survivors of the rebels' attacks. We met thousands of people who are lucky to be alive, who did not bleed to death as they struggled to flee the rebels who had just cut off their arms, legs, or ears. Few were spared rebels' grotesque and evil acts. Infants' arms and legs were cut off. Young men in the prime of their life suddenly had half of a leg, or no hands. Women were raped by rebels and then had their arms amputated—only to give birth several months later as a result of the rape they suffered.

Mr. Conteh knows first-hand what I have just described; more than 20 of his family members have been killed in the bloodshed. The horrible images we all have seen and the stories we have heard about the atrocities in Sierra Leone touch Mr. Conteh and others personally. It is the survivors who are left with the empty beds, the missing generations, and the questions from the children as to why their friends, uncles, cousins, siblings, or parents are no longer here.

Through his initiative, Mr. Conteh will make a difference in people's lives in Sierra Leone. I commend Mr. Conteh for his efforts on behalf of the people of Sierra Leone, I congratulate him for receiving this prestigious humanitarian award, and I wish him and others doing lifesaving work in Sierra Leone all the best.

BLASTING STERLING PRIVATE FEE-FOR-SERVICE M+C PLAN FOR RISK AVOIDANCE

HON. FORTNEY PETE STARK

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, October 18, 2000

Mr. STARK. Mr. Speaker, I am outraged that the Sterling Life Insurance Company, which operates the only approved private fee-for-service Medicare+Choice (M+C) plan, has established a benefit package for 2001 that is designed to enroll healthier patients and avoid sicker patients. For 2001, Sterling will require 50 percent copayments for home health services and durable medical equipment.

What Sterling is doing is an unconscionable rip-off of sicker beneficiaries and the Medicare program itself. Home health and DME are services that are associated with sicker patients, who are also more costly, so Sterling is deliberately avoiding sicker, more costly patients.

Under the Medicare law, M+C plans must provide all standard Medicare benefits, but are permitted to modify the cost sharing amounts for those services as long as the total actuarial value of the cost sharing does not exceed the total actuarial amount of the cost sharing in the traditional Medicare program. The Health Care Financing Administration (HCFA) must approve the actuarial value of the cost sharing, but has no authority under the statute to prevent M+C plans from tailoring their cost sharing amounts as they choose.

I will introduce legislation to require HCFA to approve all cost sharing amounts of M+C plans and prohibit M+C plans from manipulating cost sharing amounts to avoid sicker patients. Sterling is saying that they are trying to avoid fraud, but clearly, they are deliberately seeking to enroll only healthier, more profitable patients, while avoiding sicker, more costly patients. Since the Republicans have slowed the implementation of risk-adjustment of payments to M+C plans, Sterling will be overpaid for the patients that it enrolls. This practice is an obscene rip off of Medicare and the taxpayers, and I will try to stop it. When the new Congress convenes in January, I will introduce legislation to give HCFA authority to approve all cost sharing amounts to prevent such blatant risk avoidance.

REGARDING H.R. 4838

HON. LORETTA SANCHEZ

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, October 18, 2000

Ms. SANCHEZ. Mr. Speaker, I'd like to take this opportunity to commend the House of Representatives for the successful passage of H.R. 4838, which waives the oath of allegiance requirement for people with disabilities that seek citizenship in our great nation.

The need for such a bill is best exemplified in the case of Vijai Rajan of Anaheim, California. Twenty-five-year-old Vijai was born in India and has been residing in the U.S. since she was four months old. Ms. Rajan has several disabilities including cerebral palsy, muscular dystrophy, and Crohn's disease which prevents her from raising her hand or memorizing and understanding the oath. Doctors say her comprehension is that of a baby or toddler.

This piece of legislation is significant in expressing our nation's view of acceptance and welcoming of new citizens. These people cannot be denied citizenship when they have played by all the rules and have waited for so long.

Her parents' four year battle with the INS is nearly over and Vijai as well as the other 1,100 disabilities waiver applicants are closer to becoming citizens of the United States. I am certain that these family members enjoy peace of mind and inner satisfaction knowing that their loved ones are part of America.

AUTHORIZING FUNDS FOR ILLINOIS/MICHIGAN CANAL COMMISSION

SPEECH OF

HON. JERRY WELLER

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, October 17, 2000

Mr. WELLER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to support H.R. 3926, bipartisan legislation I introduced with Representatives LIPINSKI, BIGGERT, and GUTIERREZ. H.R. 3926 will increase the authorization cap of the Illinois and Michigan Canal Heritage Corridor from $250,000 to $1,000,000.

The Illinois and Michigan Canal Heritage Corridor was the first park of its kind, established by Congress in 1984. Created for the historical and cultural importance of the Illinois and Michigan Canal, it was a ''partnership park'' which involved local decision making and input combined with federal designation and support. The corridor is special for many reasons; it includes valuable natural resources, state and local parks, transportation networks, cities and towns, rural and industrial uses, wildlife preserves and nature activities such as hiking, fishing, canoeing and camping. The heritage corridor has been critical to preserving historic sites that played a critical role in the history of Illinois and the nation.

The I&M Canal was the first of the manmade waterways that established the corridor as a nationally significant transportation network. Much of the canal still exists along with the towns and cities and farms surrounding it. In fact, the canal encompasses five counties stretching from Chicago to LaSalle-Peru.

Among the first visionaries of the Canal was Louis Joliet who conceptualized a system for bringing together the Great Lakes and the Mississippi as early as 1673. Plans and funding were developed in 1827 and the route of the canal was settled upon. Twenty-one years later, the canal was opened for traffic for the first time—but this was only a beginning. The canal would grow substantially over the coming decades as it was influenced by enormous economic growth. In turn, the canal spurred its own economic growth and became the economic center of the region. The 97-mile canal was dug by hand, largely from immigrant Irish labor out of rock and was a minimum of 6 feet deep and 60 feet wide.

The Canal helped to build Chicago and was the center of not only industrial growth but also agricultural growth. Mining industries grew along the canal and plants to process farm products were built. The canal also fostered the growth of the wallpaper and watch industry. Towns developed around the rapidly growing canal area and tolls on products shipped on the canal generated $1 million for the state.

Shipping on the Canal peaked in 1882 then began a gradual decline due to rail and other forms of traffic. The I&M Canal closed in 1933 after the development of the Illinois Waterway, but in that same year the Civilian Conservation Corps began work that created many of the parks and trails that line the canal today. In 1974, the 60 mile section from Joliet to LaSalle was designated the Illinois & Michigan Canal State Trial under the stewardship of the Illinois Department of Conservation.

Now as the Illinois and Michigan Canal National Heritage Corridor, the canal continues to provide unparalleled cultural and recreational opportunities for residents and visitors. A partnership exists between The Illinois and Michigan Canal National Heritage Corridor Commission, the Canal Corridor Association, the Heritage Corridor Convention and Visitors Bureau and the Illinois Department of Natural Resources which ensures the continuing development of the canal and its resources.

The I&M Canal needs to be able to access additional funds for many worthwhile projects including heritage tourism projects, heritage education, and preservation and conservation. An increase in the authorization cap will allow the possibility of increased funding, providing the development and improvement of parks and museums across the canal. Teachers will be able to be trained and student resources will be developed and enhanced. Vital historic resources such as the I&M Canal, architecture, landscapes and Native American archaeological sites will be preserved and revitalized.

Mr. Speaker, 16 heritage corridors have been created since the Illinois and Michigan Canal Heritage Corridor, and all but three have received $1,000,000 authorization caps. It is time to bring the Illinois and Michigan Canal in line with these other heritage areas and provide it the opportunity for additional funding. I thank Chairmen YOUNG and HANSEN for allowing this bill to come to the floor today and I thank all cosponsors of this legislation and urge its passage.

LAKE BARCROFT: PAYING TRIBUTE TO A COMMUNITY CELEBRATING 50 YEARS

HON. THOMAS M. DAVIS

OF VIRGINIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, October 18, 2000

Mr. DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, today I rise to pay honor to the community of Lake Barcroft, in Falls Church, Virginia, which will be celebrating its 50th anniversary this coming Wednesday, October 18, 2000, Driving or walking through the community, the natural beauty of Lake Barcroft may be taken for granted. It is easy to overlook the obvious and never think to question why or how the present evolved. Trees and bushes planted 35 years ago turned mud flats into gardens. Street signs unique to Lake Barcroft grace the landscape. Curbs and gutters prevent flooding and erosion, and the lake itself is a glittering gem.

The Barcroft community was named in memory of Dr. John Barcroft, who built both a home and a mill on a tract of land that came to be known as Barcroft Hill. The surrounding land, known as Munson Hill Farm, was a large tract of land between what is now Bailey's Crossroads and Seven Corners. During the Civil War, both Munson Hill Farm and Bailey's Crossroads were scenes of military action. Dr. Barcroft's home and mill were overrun by the retreating Union Army after the Battle of Bull Run. Bailey's Crossroads became a Union encampment while the Confederates occupied positions in both Annandale and Fairfax County. Later, the Federals constructed Fort Buffalo at the present site of Seven Corners. Fort Buffalo become one of the ring of forts protecting the District of Columbia during the war.

Almost 90 years later, on February 23, 1954, the residents of Lake Barcroft officially launched the Lake Barcroft Community Association (LABARCA). The residents had come together informally over the prior 18 months to build a new life in a new community and, most importantly, to save the lake. Like most Washingtonians, they came from other places. This created a common bond and a reliance on each other. Their varied backgrounds and individual talents resolved numerous problems from water sedimentation to litigation. Much was accomplished by the few people who first formed the community association.

In the summer of 1952, almost two years after the start of development, 15 families had completed homes in Lake Barcroft. Of these, eleven families present at the first meeting of the homeowners association formed the Executive Committee. The Committee took a strong stand against mass, speculative housing development in the area. Other civic actions provided voter information concerning registration and local elections. The association coordinated mail delivery to roadside mailboxes with the U.S. Post Office. Unique, wooden road signs were designed and installed. Landscaping and a sign with lighting enhanced ''Entrance One.'' Beautification and the installation of storm drains at the beach commenced.

Lake Barcroft achieved up-scale status at the beginning of the sixties. Over just a few years, the number of families living at Lake Barcroft increased substantially: from 368 in 1956, to 650 in 1958, 783 in 1960. By mid-1960, Lake Barcroft Community Association membership reached a record high; of the 783 families in Lake Barcroft, 78 percent were members.

The first competitive race for president in LABARCA history took place in late 1959. The election featured two candidates, each highly qualified and dedicated to the community. Ralph Spencer, an official at the Department of Agriculture, had been asked to run in recognition of his work as Chairman of the Planning Committee. Ralph promoted the community center despite pessimistic arguments against a ''dance hall'' on the lake.

A faction in favor of dredging the lake convinced Stuart Finley to enter the election based on his knowledge of sediment and erosion; he had produced a fifty-part television series, Our Beautiful Potomac. Funding for slit removal had been approved by Fairfax County, so association pressure mounted to resolve a festering sore, the gradual decay of the lake. Stuart won the low-key and friendly election. Ralph Spencer pitched right in and volunteered to take on the task of procuring and maintaining street signs, a responsibility he has held to this day.

Mr. Speaker, today Lake Barcroft is a thriving community of approximately 1,025 homes. The families of Lake Barcroft have formed a tight-knit community featuring annual civic affairs meetings, beach parties, Easter egg hunts, annual Labor Day games, and golf outings. I am proud to represent this tremendous group of citizens, and I am honored today to recognize their rich and storied history.

IN HONOR OF KENNETH DEACON JONES

HON. BOB ETHERIDGE

OF NORTH CAROLINA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, October 18, 2000

Mr. ETHERIDGE. Mr. Speaker, today I celebrate and honor the life of Mr. Kenneth ''Deacon'' Jones of Smithfield, NC. Mr. Jones is a talented business leader, a respected community figure, and a dedicated family man. As a member of the Johnston County Board of Education, Mr. Jones is known for placing a strong emphasis on the value of education and for his extensive service and leadership in the community. Through his commitment to goodness and generosity, Mr. Jones is truly a driving force for excellence in education in the Johnston County School System.

Bobby Kenneth Jones was born to the late Reverend Clyde W. Jones and Mrs. Mary Brooks Jones. He graduated from Princeton High School in 1958, after having played on the baseball and basketball teams, including the basketball team that achieved a 32–1 record and was runner up in the Eastern North Carolina Championship in 1958. It was during his high school years that ''Deacon'' became his nickname. The other kids, in fun, called him ''Deacon'' because his father was a minister. The name has remained with him to this day.

Mr. Jones married Faye Woodall in 1961, and today they are the proud parents of three children and three grandchildren. In 1970, Mr. Jones ventured out into the business world and became co-owner of D&D Motor Company, selling used cars. Only 3 years later, he established Princeton Auto Sales, and today he owns several dealerships, employing more than 150 people. A fair and compassionate employer, his favorite slogan for business, as well as for life is, ''Treat people the way you want to be treated.''

Mr. Jones' generosity and fairness may also be seen through his unfaltering dedication to service and leadership throughout the community. He has served as a member on countless boards, including the Board of Directors at Lee and Mount Olive Colleges, the North Carolina Economic Development Board, and the Johnston County Board of Education. He is a member and past president of the Princeton Lions Club, the Princeton PTO, and the Princeton Boosters Club. He has financially sponsored many school projects, including the Academic Super Bowl, the Battle of the Books, the Special Olympics, and more. His Alma Mater, Princeton High, has greatly benefited from his support of the Future Farmers of America, the Band and Chorus, athletic groups, and other school organizations.

Mr. Kenneth ''Deacon'' Jones has served as a role model and an inspiration for all those around him. He has exemplified the principles of service and generosity through his numerous contributions and strong commitment to the community. Deacon Jones embodies the North Carolina values my constituents hold dear, and I want to take this opportunity to share with my colleagues in the U.S. House of Representatives the outstanding contributions of this fine American.

DEDICATION OF NEW SANCTUARY FOR THE POTTER'S HOUSE

HON. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, October 18, 2000

Ms. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I rise to congratulate Bishop and Mrs. Thomas D. Jakes, Sr., and the 26,000 registered members of the Potter's House in Dallas. Already one of the largest churches in the United States, the parishioners are preparing to officially dedicate their new sanctuary on October 22, 2000. More than 8,000 church leaders and pastors from all over the world are expected to attend this momentous event.

The Potter's House is now officially Texas' largest church and has over 48 separate programs focused on service to the community and the congregation. With outreach efforts all over the globe, the church is an incubator for ideas and activities that have changed countless lives for the better. I am proud of the significant impact the church and its multi-cultural membership continue to make in Dallas-Fort Worth and around the world.

Bishop T.D. Jakes and his wife Serita Ann lead the Potter's House. Bishop Jakes was named as ''one of the five most often mentioned successors to Rev. Billy Graham's position as national evangelist'' by The New York Times and was declared by The Economist to have the ''potential impact of a Martin Luther King.'' With a studied message, an acute business acumen, and tireless devotion, he has helped focus his followers on personal responsibility and community cooperation.

Mr. Speaker, on the occasion of this milestone for the Potter's House, I am proud to recognize this congregation as a national testament to the power of empowerment.

TECHNOLOGY TRANSFER COMMERCIALIZATION ACT

SPEECH OF

HON. MARK UDALL

OF COLORADO

Tuesday, October 17, 2000

Mr. UDALL of Colorado. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 209, the Technology Transfer Commercialization Act conference report. This report is the product of over 2 years of hard work on the part of the Committee on Science, the Senate Commerce Committee, the Senate Judiciary Committee, and the Administration.

Developing a version of the legislation that is acceptable to all these parties has been no small feat in the realm of patent policy, and I want to thank Chairman SENSENBRENNER, Ranking Democratic Member GEORGE BROWN, Subcommittee Chairwoman MORELLA, and Subcommittee Ranking Democrat BARCIA for their hard work.

H.R. 209 is the result of the first comprehensive review of federal patent policy in 15 years. The 1980 Bayh-Dole Act, which it amends, has made a major difference in the commercialization of federal inventions. Before Bayh-Dole passed, it was relatively rare for inventions resulting from federal research to reach their market potential. As many as 20,000 federal inventions were patented but not licensed. Only two or three inventions at that point had achieved royalties as high as $1,000,000, and the total royalty stream for the entire Federal Government at that time was less than the royalties received by a midsized research university today.

Bayh-Dole has opened major opportunities to research universities like the University of Colorado. It has been a major contributor to the outreach activities of contractor-operated laboratories like the National Renewable Energy Laboratory. It has led to benefits for federally employed inventors and their laboratories at the Department of Commerce and throughout the government.

Over the nearly 20 years since enactment of the Bayh-Dole Act, we've learned of the need for some improvements. The bill before us takes advantage of the lessons learned and is intended to make the law more user-friendly. It also updates the act to reflect the new ways that industry now gets and shares information.

I am also pleased that the bill includes an amendment promoted by some of my Democratic colleagues on the Science Committee that requires each DOE laboratory to have an ombudsman and to report quarterly on its operations to DOE. This provision addresses problems that citizens around the country have experienced in getting their issues with DOE weapons laboratories addressed in a timely fashion. Small businesses now will have a place to turn within the laboratories to have their concerns addressed, and there will be quarterly reporting of the progress being made by the ombudsmen to all of the pertinent officials within the Department of Energy.

I urge passage of the bill.

RANGEMASTER JOSEPH BOYD

HON. LORETTA SANCHEZ

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, October 18, 2000

Ms. SANCHEZ. Ms. Speaker, today I have the opportunity to remember and pay tribute to a great man from my community. Joseph Samuel Boyd, the Santa Ana Police Department's Rangemaster, played an integral role in helping to make the streets of Santa Ana safer for all its citizens.

Rangemaster Boyd was dedicated to a life of public service. After serving 24 years in the Marine Corps, including time in Vietnam, and rising in rank from boot recruit to the Officer rank of ''Major'', Rangemaster Boyd entered a life of law enforcement. After his retirement from the Marine Corps, Rangemaster Boyd became the firearms instructor for the Orange County Sheriff's Department until he was hired by the Santa Ana Police Department in 1993.

During his tenure with the Santa Ana Police Department, Rangemaster Boyd developed a comprehensive training curriculum in firearm proficiency and safety for the Department's 400 officers. The system he developed, ''Advanced Firearms Simulator Training'' is a state-of-the-art system which simulates real life situations police officers encounter daily. It puts them in real-life situations and requires them to rapidly evaluate and assess a ''shoot/don't shoot'' scenario. This is now a widely-used training method at law enforcement agencies throughout the country.

In 1995, Rangemaster Boyd played a pivotal role in obtaining a Bureau of Justice Assistance grant for the Santa Ana Police Department's Firearms Trafficking Program. This program allies the Department's Weapons Interdiction Team with the FBI and ATF in combating illegal firearms trafficking.

The program proved to be an unqualified success and Rangemaster Boyd was an integral part of the team effectiveness, as he examined and tested firearms for ballistics evidence.

It was, however, in this capacity that Rangemaster Boyd lost his life. On January 28, 1998, Officer Boyd was testing an outlawed, nine millimeter ''MAC 11'' machine pistol for ballistics evidence. During the testing, the gun jammed. In an attempt to un-jam the gun, it tragically misfired, killing Rangemaster Boyd.

A devoted family man, Rangemaster Boyd is survived by his wife of 34 years, Marion, two adult children, and two grandchildren.

The loss of Rangemaster Boyd left a void that still resonates today. Unfortunately, this is just the beginning of this tragic story.

Since Rangemaster Boyd was not a ''sworn'' law enforcement officer, his family was not entitled to the Department of Justice's Public Safety Officers Benefits. Rangemaster Boyd was a ''civilian'' working in a law enforcement capacity.

These Department of Justice's Public Safety Officers Benefits provide financial relief to family members of law enforcement officers who've lost their lives in the line of duty. Rangemaster Boyd gave his life in the line of duty, in a law enforcement capacity, and his family deserved these benefits.

For the past three years, I have worked to correct this wrong. I introduced legislation, H.R. 513 in the House of Representatives which would have clarified that Rangemaster Boyd was a public safety officer who died as a direct result of an injury sustained in the line of duty. I worked with the Department of Justice to clarify this situation, and get Rangemaster Boyd's widow and family the benefits they deserved.

I am pleased that on July 21, 2000 the work of myself, and so many others in the community, paid off when the Department of Justice decided to release the funding to Rangemaster Boyd's family.

The benefit package is just a small expense to the Justice Department, only $100,000, but it has been a large relief to the Boyd family. I am glad the Federal Government looked beyond this ''technicality'' and realized what impact these benefits would make.

INTRODUCTION OF THE NATIONAL DEFENSE FEATURES IMPROVEMENT BILL

HON. RODNEY P. FRELINGHUYSEN

OF NEW JERSEY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, October 18, 2000

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Mr. Speaker, as my colleagues know, Congress created the national defense features program in response to a report by the Department of Defense describing a shortage of sealift capacity during military contingencies. This shortage of shipping space for heavy military vehicles and other cargo was best cured by a program such as the NDF program that would be the most cost-effective way to augment the substantial investment that was being made in new sealift ships by the Navy.

Within the last several years, Congress has authorized and appropriated funds to install special defense features in new commercial vessels to be built in the shipyards of the United States. Most recently, at my request and as a result of the leadership of our colleague from Pennsylvania, Mr. WELDON, Congress included in the National Defense Authorization Act for FY 2001 a provision that would expand the Secretary of Defense's ability to fund militarily useful projects under the NDF program.

Since the NDF program was launched, Congress expected that our allies, particularly Japan, would find mutual defense benefits in promoting the program on their trade routes with the United States. Under one project that has received attention, ten commercial vessels would be built in the United States based on a design funded and approved by DARPA's Maritime Technology Program. These vessels would normally operate in the Japan-United States vehicle trade, which is at present entirely dominated by Japanese carriers.

Notwithstanding expressions of support by very senior officials in our government, this expectation has not been realized. The Government of Japan continues to take the position that the decision to employ NDF ships is strictly a matter for the commercial judgment of Japanese vehicle manufacturing and shipping companies. The vehicle manufacturers, which operate under closely inter-locking relationships with the Japanese vehicle carriers, continue to insist that the NDF program is a matter between the two respective governments since it addresses defense.

In view of the US role in providing security for our Far East allies, it hardly seems appropriate that defense concerns expressed by our government should not have been met with a more positive response. Our government's repeated representations to the Japanese government have fallen on deaf ears as if the NDF program was without military value, a position that is contradicted by two US Navy reports on the NDF program. Taking note of the extensive military collaboration of our two governments, which it is safe to say has conferred material benefits on Japan, this is not the position that Congress should have expected.

The position that this matter is purely commercial in nature rather than governmental in character is not defensible. Japan, like other nations, supports its merchant marine with financial assistance, including direct construction loans at artificially low rates of interest. This is not the mark of a purely private industry operating under purely commercial conditions.

The real reason our carriers are effectively being excluded from this market is the Japanese kereitsu system of doing business. It is not price, but rather the interwoven industrial and financial structure that closes this market like so many other sectors of the Japanese economy against international competition. The situation, then, is that a fleet of US built and operated ships, commercially competitive and having significant defense value to both nations, has apparently no chance to break through the economic fence encircling the Japanese vehicle trade.

Notwithstanding this state of affairs, I continue to hope that the Government of Japan and the vehicle manufacturers will ultimately see the merit of supporting the NDF program, especially given the longstanding support of the Department of Defense. Recently, the Secretary of Defense and the Director General of the Japanese Self-Defense Agency agreed to establish a regular consultative mechanism to ensure closer cooperation in improving our mutual defense capabilities. I understand the Secretary of Defense suggested that this might be an appropriate mechanism to move the NDF program forward. I agree.

Given past experience, however, we may nonetheless not see the type of action that is by now long overdue. Therefore, along with my colleague from Pennsylvania, I am introducing a bill today that we intend to push later next year if we do not see any movement on the part of the Government of Japan. The bill is very straightforward. It says: If the Federal Maritime Commission finds that vessels built under the NDF program are unable to obtain employment in a particular trade route in the foreign commerce of the United States for which they are designed to operate, and if that sector of the trade route has been dominated historically by citizens of an allied nation, then the Commission shall take action to counteract the restrictive trade practices that have led to this situation.

I trust it will not be necessary to enact legislation to encourage support for a program so self-evidently in the mutual security interests of our two nations and that as a result of the new consultative mechanism the NDF program can begin the much needed recapitalization of our aging Ready Reserve Force.

ATROCITIES IN SIERRA LEONE

HON. MARTIN T. MEEHAN

OF MASSACHUSETTS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, October 18, 2000

Mr. MEEHAN. Mr. Speaker, I rise to join many of my colleagues in expressing our outrage with the continuing atrocities in Sierra Leone.

Two weeks ago, seven Sierra Leoneans testified before the House International Relations Committee's Subcommittee on Africa. They told chilling and horrifying tales that I will not soon forget.

Thousands of Sierra Leoneans—men, women, children, and even infants—have had their limbs amputated as part of a campaign of terror by rebels. As the democratically elected government and the rebels battle over control of the nation's lucrative diamond mines, the citizens of Sierra Leone live lives of fear and tragedy. Meanwhile, the international diamond industry continues to purchase enormous quantities of diamonds from Sierra Leone. It does not matter who controls the mines, the rebels or the government, as long as the industry continues to receive its precious commodity.

I want to commend brave Sierra Leoneans who have risked their lives to tell the world about the atrocities in their country. I also want to commend organizations such as the Friends of Sierra Leone. The Friends of Sierra Leone is a non-profit organization made up of Sierra Leone emigres, former Peace Corps volunteers, and other human rights activists. Without the hard work of the Friends of Sierra Leone and similar organizations, these atrocities would not be receiving the attention of the media and Congress.

One volunteer in particular who educated me on this issue is Massachusetts State Senator David Magnani of Framingham. Senator Magnani spent two years in Sierra Leone and another year in Kenya as a Peace Corps volunteer in the late 1960's. Since then, he has closely followed events both in Sierra Leone and throughout Africa. I appreciate his efforts on this important issue.

Consequently, I am a cosponsor of H.R. 5147, The Carat Act, introduced by Representative TONY HALL. This bill imposes an embargo on diamonds from Sierra Leone and Angola that have not been certified by their governments. Furthermore, it prohibits the shipment of diamonds from known smuggling centers. This legislation would assure that diamonds imported from unknown sources, like those that come from the mines controlled by Sierra Leone's rebels, would be embargoed from importation into the United States.

Legislation like this lets the diamond industry and Sierra Leone's rebels know that we are very serious about not importing diamonds that have come at the cost of innocent lives. It is the responsibility of Congress to take this stand, and I urge your support for this bill.

TRIBUTE TO MRS. NORINE S. GILSTRAP

HON. KAREN L. THURMAN

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, October 18, 2000

Mrs. THURMAN. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to an extraordinary woman and a dear friend—The Honorable Norine S. Gilstrap, Tax Collector from Citrus County, Flonida. Mrs. Gilstrap is a very revered and respected tax collector who I'm sorry to say is retiring this year after 26 years of dedicated service to the people of Citrus County.

Mrs. Gilstrap is well known for being a compassionate and dynamic leader.

Even while growing up in Dunnellon during her high school years, Mrs. Gilstrap was an athlete, an artist, an enthusiast and a devoted church goer. She was active in such activities as the girls' basketball team, the theater department, in the girls' cheerleading team and in the Methodist Church Community in Dunnellon.

Ms. Gilstrap maintained high grades while holding a part time job throughout high school. She valued a college degree so much that she worked every day after school and on Saturdays as a cashier at a local food store in order to save for her education. Her work and determination to get an education certainly shows a tremendous commitment and determination.

On October 8, 1950, Norine married Robert N. Gilstrap. It wasn't long before the couple decided to start a family. As a devoted wife and mother of three children, she chose in the early years to focus much of her time to raising her family and community service. But she still longed to further her education by attending college. In 1964, she pursued her goal and enrolled at Central Florida Community College where she studied business. There she received the training that would soon prove extremely valuable to the people of Citrus County.

On December 11, 1974, her beloved husband who was then the Citrus County Tax Collector passed away. Governor Ruben Askew appointed Mrs. Gilstrap to fulfill the final two years of her husband's term. Since then, the people of Citrus County have elected her to serve more than 25 years of service as tax collector of Citrus County.

Mrs. Gilstrap has always worked toward the betterment of our community. Throughout her life, she has participated in and held leadership roles in Altrusa, Beta Sigma Phi, Citrus County Chamber of Commerce, Leadership Citrus and the Heart Ball Committee.

Her service has been rewarded with such prestigious honors as the First Annual Ten Most Admired Women in Citrus County. She was also one of the first five women inducted into Rotary. Her commitment to our community is well illustrated by her impressive list of prestigious accomplishments.

Sharon Tenbroeck, Mrs. Gilstrap's assistant of 23 years at the Citrus County Tax Collector's office noted Ms. Gilstrap's perseverance and willingness to go the extra mile. ''Her high ethics and morals will be hard to replace. Because of her compassion to serving the public in the many capacities which she does, she is considered a treasure to all that are fortunate enough to meet her,'' Ms. Tenbroeck said. ''Her kindness and compassion have caused all of her employees to consider her family and she will be missed terribly.''

Mrs. Gilstrap has touched so many lives during her lifetime of service. One such person is Alida Langley, who views Mrs. Gilstrap as a role model. ''From the time the Governor appointed Ms. Gilstrap to office, she has been professional, respected and appreciated by all,'' Mrs. Langley said. ''She is the ideal woman.'' Norine Gilstrap is the epitome of grace and goodness.

Mr. Speaker, please join me in paying tribute to Norine S. Gilstrap, a woman who stands for excellence, integrity and honor. We are all so grateful for her devoted service to Citrus County.

REMEMBERING BROTHER JAMES L. ROMOND

HON. JOHN E. SWEENEY

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, October 18, 2000

Mr. SWEENEY. Mr. Speaker, I wish to remember Brother James L. Romond, who passed away at the age of 56 on October 9, 2000. Brother James dedicated his entire life to educating and guiding America's youth. He served as Principal at La Salle Institute in Upstate New York since 1982.

Brother James was born on September 9, 1944 in Queens, New York and graduated from St. Joseph's Juniorate High School in Barrytown, New York in 1962. He entered the Brothers of the Christian Schools in 1963 and began a life long career of helping others. Brother James earned a bachelors degree in education from Catholic University of America in Washington, D.C. in 1967. He received his masters degree from Manhattan College in Riverdale, New York in 1971 and Certification in School Administration and Supervision from Fordham University in 1973.

Brother James believed that every child could achieve and provided the spark required to ignite their creativity, imagination and interest. He was known for teaching his students the value of community service, especially for the poor and needy. Annually from 1991–98, under the leadership of Brother James, La Salle's students contributed more food to an Upstate New York food drive than any other local school. Additionally, he brought the La Salle students together during Christmas for the annual Toy Drive in which they donated over 500 toys each year for the past 15 years. Brother James cared deeply for the disadvantaged and took steps to help them whenever he could.

Brother James was a friend and role model to thousands of youngsters. His presence will be missed in the halls, at the bus stop, and at the school's sporting events. You see, Mr. Speaker, Brother James made it a point to go out to the buses at the end of each school day to give students a few encouraging words and ensure they were safely on their way home. He cheered his students' accomplishments at every sporting event held at the campus. He arrived in his office by 6:00 am each day—ready to guide students through the days activities. Most importantly, he always made himself available to his students—twenty-four hours a day, seven days a week. He created a friendly, kind, and compassionate atmosphere in which students could learn and grow.

La Salle Institute in Troy, New York was twice selected as a National School of Excellence by the United States Department of Education during his tenure as principal for grades 6 through 12. Brother James previously served in several capacities at the Good Shepherd School in New York City. He taught grades 6 through 8, served as assistant principal, and fulfilled the role of principal for grades 5 through 8. He was an extraordinary educator who touched his student's hearts and minds and allowed them to believe in themselves.

Brother James was also a major force in the planning and development of several major construction projects at La Salle. His innovative planning made it possible for the school to add on a new wing of classrooms, a state-of-the-art library and fully equipped computer room. He also laid the groundwork for construction of a new gymnasium, cafeteria, and modem kitchen facility. Brother James was particularly excited about the plans for the kitchen. He enjoyed cooking very much, and prepared meals at all the senior picnics and faculty and staff occasions. I am sure his students will fondly remember his skills in the kitchen whenever they dine in the new facility.

Mr. Speaker, please join me in remembering the significant contributions of Brother James L. Romond. Brother James' dedication to religion and education were admirable, as was his desire to see his students succeed. He was a confidante to many young people and will be remembered as an educational icon whose life mission was to instill moral values and a sense of faith in students.

HONORING THE LATE DR. ALICE SMOTHERS

HON. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, October 18, 2000

Ms. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I rise to pay tribute to a daughter of Texas, Dr. Alice Smothers. She passed away on Saturday, October 14, 2000, at the age of 104.

The state of Texas, the nation and the world have lost not only a good friend for those in need, but also an outstanding educator and leader. Dr. Smothers, a well-known pioneer to many, provided a place in this world for orphaned Black children. Alongside her husband, the late J.W. Smothers, she founded St. Paul Industrial Training School. Like Dr. Smothers, the school served countless young Texans in providing training in the agricultural, industrial and technical arts for over 60 years throughout the Henderson County community. Dr. Smothers' vision and leadership allowed the St. Paul Industrial Training School to become an entity that awarded educational scholarships to needy college-bound students. To this day, the scholarship program of the St. Paul Industrial Training School has assisted over 530 students to help them realize their dreams of pursuing a college education.

I am deeply saddened that Texas, the nation and the world have lost such an exceptional and tireless trailblazer of the educational community like Dr. Smothers. I ask the House to join me in remembrance of Dr. Alice Smothers—a true champion for men, women and children everywhere.

FISH AND WILDLIFE PROGRAMS IMPROVEMENT AND NATIONAL WILDLIFE REFUGE SYSTEM CENTENNIAL ACT OF 2000

SPEECH OF

HON. MARK UDALL

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, October 17, 2000

Mr. UDALL of Colorado. Mr. Speaker, I supported this bill when the House first considered it, but I did have some concerns about it.

Now, as it comes back to us from the Senate, it is considerably improved and I will support it without the same reservations.

The bill was prompted by the Resources Committee's oversight of the implementation of several important programs under which the federal government assists the state wildlife agencies.

As a result of our committee's review, it became clear that we should revisit the underlying statutes. At the same time, though, it's clear that some of the charges about the actions of the current Administration were exaggerated and that some of the people making those charges failed to point out similar actions that occurred during prior Administrations.

The programs of assistance to state wildlife agencies addressed by this bill are very valuable for Colorado and many other states. And I certainly agree with the bill's sponsors that it would be good to tighten the current law that allows the Interior Department an unusually large degree of discretion in the administration of these programs. However, as originally passed by the House, I was concerned that the bill went overboard in responding to the ways the Interior Department has used that discretion.

I certainly understand the purpose of limiting the amount of money that can be spent on administration, because obviously what's spent that way won't be available for the substantive purposes of the programs. But we need to recognize that administration is necessary, and adequate administration is essential to avoid the risk of misuse of taxpayer funds, either by the Department of the Interior or by other parties.

The Senate amendments would authorize more realistic funding levels for administration, and would allow some additional flexibility for unexpected administrative costs. I think those are definite improvements, and so are some other changes that reduce the extent to which the bill imposes micro-management requirements. Accountability is essential, but excessive paperwork for its own sake can eat up resources that could be put to more productive purposes.

Also, as it comes before us today the bill includes a reauthorization for the National Fish and Wildlife Foundation, so that it can continue its very important work in support of conservation and sound management. And it also includes legislation to commemorate the centennial of the National Wildlife Refuge System that is similar to H.R. 4442, a bill that I cosponsored and that the House passed earlier this year.

So, Mr. Speaker, I urge the House to concur in the Senate amendments and send the bill to the President for signing into law.

SENSE OF CONGRESS ON NEED FOR WORLD WAR II MEMORIAL ON THE MALL

SPEECH OF

HON. MARCY KAPTUR

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, October 17, 2000

Ms. KAPTUR. Madam Speaker, I rise to express my strong support for this legislation, S. Con. Res. 145, that expresses the sense of Congress that the construction of the National World War II Memorial should be constructed expeditiously and that the appropriate site for the Memorial is on our National Mall at the Rainbow Pool. I want to thank Senator WARNER, Chairman STUMP, and all the other Members of Congress who worked to bring this legislation before us today.

As we enter the new century, it is appropriate that we reflect on the turning point of the past century. The World War II Memorial will commemorate that period between 1939 and 1945 that so profoundly reconfigured the modern world. So long as there is an America, this hallowed ground will pay homage to the superlative devotion that elevated duty, honor, and country to sacred proportion.

The location of the World War II memorial between the Washington Monument and the Lincoln Memorial is not only appropriate, but also historically coherent. Those two memorials commemorate the defining national events of the 18th and 19th centuries: our Nation's founding in the Revolutionary War and our unification during the Civil War. It is only fitting that the event that reshaped the modern world in the 20th century and marked our Nation's emergence from the chrysalis of isolationism as the leader of the free world be commemorated on this site.

As we all know, the site and the form of the memorial have been the subject of ongoing qualification and even some controversy. This is how public dialogue should ensue in our country. I believe that the site and respectful style of the memorial are most appropriate. The refined design is a beautiful tribute to a generation of Americans who sacrificed their lives in service to our country with unparalleled valor and distinction. This design enhances the Mall's representation of American history. It retains open vistas—north and south as well as east and west. And it adds trees, plantings, and waterfalls while also capturing for visitors and all Americans the significance of this most historic event of the 20th Century.

More importantly, we must acknowledge that the open, expansive process by which decisions have been made about this site and this design. The democratic process these brave Americans fought to defend has been pursued. The congressional deliberations—extensive hearings, floor action, and two separate bills—that led to the authorization of the memorial were long, frustratingly long, but they were thorough. As one sage commented, ''It has taken longer to build the memorial than it did to fight the war.'' I can now say it has taken us twice as long to build the Memorial as to fight the war—over 13 years.

Our first bill authorizing the memorial was filed in 1987, and the final bill was passed in 1993. The Administrations of two presidents, five Congresses, and a decade of administrative reviews have elapsed.

After authorization, the procedures of the American Battle Monuments Commission and the other bodies responsible for approving the memorial have been open and fair. There have been 17 open, public meetings held on the proposed Memorial since 1993. Questions have been raised and suggestions offered by Members of Congress, the general public, and interest groups about the site and style of the memorial. With that deliberative process, the concept has been refined and become more elegant and appropriate for this hallowed site.

The concept of a World War II Memorial in Washington sprang from a dogged Army veteran, my constituent, Roger Durbin of Berkey, Ohio, who fought with the 101st Armored Division in the Battle of the Bulge. It was Roger's question to me about why there was no memorial to World War II in Washington to which he could take his grandchildren that inspired the historic project that is before us today.

The thought of Roger reminds me of that auspicious day, Veterans Day, 1995, when the memorial site was consecrated with soil from American battlefield cemeteries around the world. Roger Durbin participated in that dedication, accompanied by his wife Marian. He wrote about it as follows:

I stood on the site of the Memorial, November 10, 1995, watching the activity thereon. Touch football, stickball, Frisbee, picnicking, etc. as people enjoyed a sunny day as they would have in an ordinary public park. The next day I stood with President Clinton at the end of the glorious site dedication ceremony and scattered sacred soil gathered from 16 military cemeteries from around the world and Arlington upon the sparse and worn grass. That is when it became the most sacred, revered, beautiful spot in America.

Sadly, Roger passed away earlier this year. Roger was deeply wounded that he would not be able to see his idea come to fruition. The architectural rendition of the Memorial was framed above his fireplace, and he has assembled a copious note and scrapbook about the legislation and administrative proceedings for the record.

For thousands of other veterans, the same is true. Since the site dedication in 1995, perhaps a third of the World War II veterans then living have left us. There are fewer than 6 million World War II veterans living today, and we are losing them at a rate of 1,000 a day! I feel a great urgency to complete this project on schedule. As many as possible of the brave Americans who served during that conflict, abroad and on the home front, should bear witness to this memorial in its final form. Is this too much to ask?

Of course, all veterans' organizations and students of history recognize what this generation achieved in the triumph of freedom over tyranny. As Americans in future generations visit our Nation's Capital, they will have an opportunity to stop along the Mall to reflect on a time when America went to war to defend our fundamental political values. Millions of visitors every year traverse this site already as they wend their way between the various memorials, parks, roads, and special events that give our National Mall its public character. They will be able to reflect on the level of commitment that engaged millions of Americans and our allies in combat during World War II.

The World War II memorial will thus serve as a symbol of our legacy to the future centuries: a determination to defend democracy at any cost. The world's political landscape was reshaped for all time as a result of the Allied victory. I urge the Commission to approve the architectural and landscape design as presented today. Let us move expeditiously toward the groundbreaking this coming Veterans Day in the first year of a new century and the advent of the new millennium.

Again, Madam Speaker, I fully support S. Con. Res. 145 and urge its passage.

IN RECOGNITION OF PALADIN DATA SYSTEMS

HON. JAY INSLEE

OF WASHINGTON

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, October 18, 2000

Mr. INSLEE. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in order to publicly praise a tremendous high-tech company in my district, Paladin Data Systems. Paladin, based in Poulsbo, Washington, was recently ranked number 59 among the 500 fastest growing private companies in the nation by Inc. Magazine.

Paladin specializes in implementing both Oracle and Microsoft based solutions, Oracle database development, consulting and remote administration, technology training. Founded in 1994, Paladin was voted one of the ''Best Places to Work'' by Washington CEO Magazine in 1998, 1999, and 2000. The Puget Sound Business Journal placed Paladin at number 69 on their list of the 100 fastest growing private companies in Washington. It is clear that Paladin, now with over 70 employees, is indeed fueling the engine of our new economy.

Paladin also recognizes that the students of today must receive a comprehensive high-tech education so that they are able to secure jobs in the high-tech corridors of Puget Sound. To that end, Paladin has partnered with the Bremerton, Central Kitsap, North Kitsap, South Kitsap, North Mason, and Peninsula School Districts to form the West Sound School-to-Career consortium to train faculty members to teach the most recent information technology to our young people. Moreover, Paladin received a $100,000 Information Technology Education Grant from Washington State and contributed $50,000 of its own funds for this exciting partnership.

Paladin is just one of the many high-tech, bio-tech, and information technology businesses that are stimulating economic growth and creating new jobs in our country. Like many other Members of Congress, I value the contributions of our dynamic high-tech industry and want to make sure that the government continues to take appropriate action to help stimulate and develop this industry. I invite other Members of Congress to join me in congratulating Paladin Data Systems for their amazing success and wishing them nothing but the best in years to come.

TRIBUTE TO THOMAS J. SWEENEY

HON. ANNA G. ESHOO

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, October 18, 2000

Ms. ESHOO. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor a patriotic American and a distinguished leader in the labor movement, Thomas J. Sweeney.

A native and lifelong resident of Oakland, California, Tom Sweeney was the devoted husband of Ann-Marie Sweeney for 51 years, the father of Susan Eldridge and the proud grandfather of four, including Teo and Michelle Eldridge. He served ably as Local 595's Business Manager, as an officer of IBEW's International Executive Council, as a Commissioner of the Port of Oakland and as President of the Building Trades Council.

When Tom Sweeney's life ended on August 11, 2000, at the age of 78, he had raised his family, served his community, succeeded at providing countless opportunities for generations of working Americans and made his beloved nation a much better place.

It is an honor for me to pay tribute to this good man and I ask Mr. Speaker, that my colleagues join me in offering our condolences to the family of Tom Sweeney and pay tribute to a life lived so well.

IN CELEBRATION OF THE DEDICATION OF THE RONALD V. DELLUMS FEDERAL BUILDING, OAKLAND, CA

HON. IKE SKELTON

OF MISSOURI

HON. BARBARA LEE

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, October 18, 2000

Mr. SKELTON. Mr. Speaker, it is with great honor that my colleague, Ms. LEE and I rise in recognition of one of our greatest statesmen, Congressman Ronald V. Dellums, and in celebration of the dedication of the Ronald V. Dellums Federal Building in Oakland, California.

The Dellums Federal Building is considered the ''Gateway to the East Bay'' and has enhanced the Oakland city skyline. The distinct twin towers of this $200 million project has played a pivotal role in the revitalization of the downtown area. Additionally, this building was built by a local and diverse workforce.

Mr. Dellums was first elected to the U.S. House of Representatives in 1970, serving until his retirement in 1998, Mr. Dellums was a distinguished and respected leader in the Congress and throughout the world and remains a tireless leader on behalf of peace and justice.

His diverse accomplishments include his leadership and vision as the Chair of the Congressional Black Caucus, Chair of the House Armed Services and District of Columbia Committees; his challenge against the Vietnam War; his belief and advocacy of ''Coalition Politics'' as a way to truly evoke change in the political arena; his leadership and vision laid to the foundation for base conversion and ultimately the job creation and business development of these former military installations; his legislation to expand the Port of Oakland and estuary dredging; his tireless commitment to youth; and his National Heath Service Act, which has long been considered the most comprehensive and progressive health care proposal since it was first introduced in 1977.

The true leadership of Mr. Dellums, and quite possibly the most rewarding moment in his career, was his vision to have the U.S. end its support of the racist apartheid regime of South Africa. Mr. Dellums was among the first in Congress to lead the international Anti-Apartheid movement. For years, until Nelson Mandela was released from prison, he faithfully introduced a bill and lobbied his colleagues for support of having Congress impose sanctions against the South African government.

Since his retirement from Congress, Mr. Dellums has served as the President of Healthcare International Management Company focusing on global health issues, most notably the AIDS pandemic. He serves as the Chair of President Clinton's Advisory Committee on HIV/AIDS. He has also recently written his memoirs, ''Lying Down with the Lions: A Public Life from the Streets of Oakland to the Halls of Power.''

It is with great pride that we offer recognition of some of the monumental contributions made by Ron Dellums to better our community, country and world. There is no other leader more deserving of having a Federal building named in his or her honor. Thank you Ron.

RECOGNIZING THAT GREATER SPENDING DOES NOT GUARANTEE QUALITY HEALTH CARE

HON. FORTNEY PETE STARK

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, October 18, 2000

Mr. STARK. Mr. Speaker, in these waning days of the 106th Congress, we are considering a bill that will give back nearly $30 billion to managed care organizations, hospitals, and health care providers. These groups argue that without spending increases, quality of health care will suffer. The assumption: more money means better care. Of course adequate funding is necessary to effectively run hospitals, health plans, and clinics—but is that all it takes to ensure quality?

In fact, greater spending does not always guarantee better quality.

I would like to call my colleagues' attention to a recent report published in the Journal of the American Medical Association (JAMA) entitled, ''Quality of Medical Care Delivered to Medicare Beneficiaries: A Profile at State and National Levels.'' This report, compiled by researchers at the Health Care Financing Administration, ranks states according to percentage of Medicare Free-for-Service beneficiaries receiving appropriate care. The researchers looked at a range of health problems, including strokes, heart failure, diabetes, pneumonia, heart attacks, and breast cancer. There is remarkable consensus in the medical community about what constitute appropriate care for these conditions. For example, health professionals agree that conducting mammograms at least every 2 years can save countless lives in the fight against breast cancer. They also agree that heart attack victims should be given aspirin within 24 hours of being admitted to a hospital.

If the claims of the managed care, hospital, and provider groups are accurate, states receiving the most Medicare spending should implement more of these scientifically validated practices. So I compared state performance rankings with Medicare payment estimates (per beneficiary). The results do not support this view. In fact, the 10 best performing states received 17 percent less in Medicare payments per enrollee than the 10 worst performers. Clearly, more money does not automatically translate into better health care nor does less money mean poor health care.

Furthermore, according to this JAMA report, all states could do a better job of implementing quality care. On average, only 69 percent of patients received appropriate care in the typical state. This figure dropped as low as 11 percent for certain practices, such as immunization screenings for pneumonia patients prior to discharge. A clear trend also emerged—less populous states and those in the Northeast performed better than more populous states and those in the Southeast.

What accounts for these differences in performance? JAMA authors suggested that, ''system changes are more effective than either provider or patient education in improving provision of services.'' Perhaps this is why states that have instituted health care reform, such as Vermont and Oregon, demonstrated relatively high levels of performance at lower cost.

Authors of the JAMA article further suggested that it is necessary to hold all stakeholders accountable, not just health care providers and health plans. This includes, ''purchasers, whether Medicare or Medicaid, . . . because they are making continual and important decisions that potentially balance quality against expenditures.''

I call upon my colleagues to recognize that we too are accountable. Medical experts agree on best practices. So we must do more than just authorize spending, we must recognize what constitutes quality care and expect providers, hospitals, and health plans to deliver. Medicare beneficiaries across the United States deserve the best care available and this cannot be achieved through greater spending alone. We are fooling ourselves if we believe that more money will automatically translate to better care.

COMMENDING WOODROW WILSON ELEMENTARY SCHOOL

HON. KEN CALVERT

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, October 18, 2000

Mr. CALVERT. Mr. Speaker, today I highlight the Woodrow Wilson Elementary School, in my hometown of Corona, as a model of cooperation between local governments and private home builders—a partnership which will become more important as California will need more than 2,000 new schools in the next 20 years.

As a former active realtor, I was pleased to dedicate, on September 29, this first permanent, developer-built school in California. Thanks go to: Lt. Governor Cruz Bustamante; President Jose Lakas and the Corona-Norco School Board Members; Mayor Jeff Bennett and the City Council; and, finally, my good friend, Jim Previti for helping to make this school possible.

The Census Bureau reports that state and local governments spent $40 billion in 1999 on construction, modernization, and renovation of public education facilities in the United States—up 54 percent from 1995. In addition, elementary schools typically take 30 to 48 months to complete. However, Turn Key Schools of America and Forecast Homes, who designed and constructed this school, along with the Corona-Norco Unified School District, raised the bar. They were able to complete this school in just 13 months and well below the average construction cost of an elementary school thereby saving taxpayers millions of dollars. This partnership demonstrates what local communities and private businesses can accomplish when they work together.

Our 28th President, Woodrow Wilson was a lawyer, author, educator, administrator, Governor, and President. Education played an important role in his life. Prior to the Presidency, Woodrow Wilson's progressive programs and innovations were fostered as President of Princeton University. Finding new and better ways to meet the educational needs of our children, which is what was accomplished with the construction of this school, is an idea that would have fit nicely with Woodrow Wilson's school of thought.

Mr. Speaker, I am committed to making sure that every education dollar is well spent. This means allowing local school districts, principals and teachers to decide where and how education dollars can best be used, which includes ensuring that schools are built in a timely and cost-effective manner. I am also committed to allowing greater flexibility for the states and local governments to enter into such partnerships which allow the design of child-centered facilities and programs run by caring teachers and principals who know the names of each child.

I want every child to have the opportunity to fulfill their dreams—that could mean becoming a nurse, a teacher, an Olympic athlete, or becoming the President of the United States. All of those dreams can start becoming a reality sooner at Woodrow Wilson Elementary School because of the innovative thinking behind its construction.

Woodrow Wilson once stated, ''This is the country which has lifted, to the admiration of the world, its ideals of absolutely free opportunity—where no man is supposed to be under any limitation except the limitations of his character and of his mind; where there is supposed to be no distinction of class, no distinction of blood, no distinction of social status, but where men win or lose on their merits.'' Our goal is to ensure that all schools afford all children the opportunity to pursue their dreams. For the students at Woodrow Wilson Elementary School, those dreams take shape in the halls and classroom.

The partnership which made this school a reality is a win-win situation for everybody—it cuts the bureaucratic redtape for the local school district, it relieves the over-crowded schools in the area, and it saves taxpayers million of dollars. However, the most important winners at Woodrow Wilson Elementary are the students who now have a brandnew, state-of-the-art school where they can begin their educational journey and realize their hopes and dreams.

I applaud all of those who had a hand in this innovation. Our community is proud of you and grateful for your vision.

DIGITAL POSTPRODUCTION TAX CREDIT

HON. JERRY WELLER

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, October 18, 2000

Mr. WELLER. Mr. Speaker, today, I am introducing legislation, along with my colleagues Representatives FOLEY, BECERRA, MATSUI, RAMSTAD, ROGAN, SENSENBRENNER, ENGLISH, JOHN LEWIS, COYNE, CONDIT, BERMAN, WAXMAN, SESSIONS, MALONEY, and TUBBS-JONES, to provide for a small business tax credit for digital postproduction. These small businesses standardize film, television, music and technology products for mass consumption by electronically enhancing the master copy. Postproduction companies need help dealing with a government mandate which, without our assistance, may put many of these small, technology related businesses out of business.

On December 24, 1996, the FCC mandated a new terrestrial Digital Television standard, replacing the one that existed for 50 years. While adopting an Advanced Television Systems Committee (ATSC) standard, the FCC did not designate a single transmission format.

As a result, the postproduction industry has already invested in millions of dollars worth of equipment to be used in creating High Definition (HD) Broadcasting. Without HD broadcasting, the U.S. will be surrendering the advanced research and technological position which has sustained the preeminence of the American entertainment and information industry.

The FCC specifically chose not to mandate a single digital display format. I agree that diversity in formats is a logical way to proceed by allowing the marketplace to decide on the best format(s). However, for the postproduction process the complexities created by the requirement to support these new standards has exponentially increased the cost and complexity of their transition to digital television in the short run.

The legislation will help to keep the domestic digital postproduction industry strong. The proposed tax credit would provide for a 20 percent credit for current capital expenses incurred for digital postproduction machinery and equipment less a floor equal to their average annual gross receipts from digital postproduction services for the prior four years. The taxpayer would reduce the depreciable basis of the equipment by the credit claimed. Additionally, the credit would sunset at the effective date of the FCC mandate.

Mr. Speaker, I ask my colleagues to join me in cosponsoring this important legislation.

PRESERVING OUR HERITAGE

HON. SAM FARR

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, October 18, 2000

Mr. FARR of California. Mr. Speaker, today, I would like to commend and congratulate the Porter family from my district for preserving the California heritage that is threatened daily by the pressures of urban sprawl.

According to the California Department of Conservation nearly 70,000 acres of open space was devoured by development in my state between 1996 and 1998.

Soaring land values and the incessant demand for new homes and stores often make it hard for rural families to say no when developers want to buy their land.

But the Porters already have their minds made up. Bernice H. Porter's estate recently bequeathed the family's 684-acre Circle P Ranch in the Pajaro Valley to the Land Trust of Santa Cruz County. The family's perpetual agricultural conservation easement is a major coup for the land trust, a small local non-profit group. It is the land trust's largest easement of this kind, ever.

Under the terms of the easement, the ranch can only be used for grazing and irrigated agriculture. It cannot be subdivided or developed now or by any future owner.

The parcel stretches for miles east of the city of Watsonville, with farming and ranching operations side by side. The rolling hills at the base of the Santa Cruz Mountains are green or gold depending on the season.

Bernice's daughter Diane Porter Cooley said recently that the hills help to define the local climate and ''form the scenic and historic backdrop for the valley.'' They should be preserved, she added, not only for the sake of agriculture, not only for the rare habitats they contain, but also because they are simply beautiful to behold.

There are deer, coyotes, bobcats and a wide variety of birds. For decades, the Porter family has invited school and church groups, history buffs and birding enthusiasts to tour the ranch.

The Porters and others who bequeath their land in a conservation easement often receive some tax incentives. With today's soaring land values in California, estate taxes can often be a real burden, and conservation easements can provide some relief.

But the Porters' decision went far beyond good business sense. Increasingly in California, we are dependent upon farmers and ranchers to act as stewards for our rapidly vanishing farm land and open space.

And the Porters have clearly risen to the occasion. This family embodies what is best about our California heritage—deep reverence for our shared past and great concern for our destiny.

These actions should serve as a model for land owners in California. Land assets should be used to preserve the heritage of our great state and our families, for the benefit of all who ever live among us. I encourage others to follow the Porters' example.

IN RECOGNITION OF MR. PAUL H. KRALMAN

HON. DAVID D. PHELPS

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, October 18, 2000

Mr. PHELPS. Mr. Speaker, today I rise to recognize one of my district's leaders in veterans affairs, Mr. Paul H. Kralman. A lifelong resident of Effingham, IL, Mr. Kralman first served his country in World War II. Since that time he has been a member of the Effingham American Legion Post No. 120, and he has held many offices within the post including Department Vice-Commander of the Fifth Division of Illinois. Mr. Kralman also served as the Veterans Service Officer with the state of Illinois for many years. His most recent efforts have been with the Effingham County Veterans Assistance Commission where he resides as superintendent. At the end of this year Mr. Kralman will retire at the age of 82.

Mr. Kralman has helped numerous veterans in my district receive their benefits. He was awarded the site for a Veterans Affairs Outpatient Clinic which has helped numerous veterans receive medical help close to home. Through his dedication and hard work, the Veterans Affairs Outpatient Clinic is a great success.

It is with this, Mr. Speaker, that I say congratulations to Mr. Paul Kralman on his excellent accomplishment. Due to his dedication to his fellow veterans, it is clear that Mr. Kralman is an asset to our country and the people who fought for it.

EMMANUEL EPISCOPAL CHURCH ACHIEVES NATIONAL HISTORIC LANDMARK STATUS

HON. WILLIAM J. COYNE

OF PENNSYLVANIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, October 18, 2000

Mr. COYNE. Mr. Speaker, today I inform my colleagues that Emmanuel Episcopal Church in Pittsburgh, PA, was recently designated a National Historic Landmark.

In order to be designated at National Historic Landmark, a structure must be determined to be ''historically, architecturally, or technologically important to the nation as a whole.'' Emmanuel Episcopal Church certainly meets this standard.

Emmanuel Episcopal Church is the last church designated by the famous American architect, Richard Henry Hobson Richardson. It is an enduring example of his widely acclaimed ''Richardson Romanesque'' style. Emmanuel Episcopal Church is the only Richardson-designed church in Pennsylvania, and it is one of three striking buildings in Pittsburgh that Mr. Richardson designed. Emmanuel Episcopal Church is often referred to as Richardson's ''small masterpiece'' because it was built on a lot measuring only 50 feet by 100 feet in size. Since Emmanuel Episcopal Church was the last church that Mr. Richardson designed, it can legitimately claim to be one of the most advanced examples of this distinguished architect's singular vision. Mr. Richardson himself claimed that his Pittsburgh buildings—Emmanuel Episcopal Church, the Allegheny Courthouse, and the Allegheny County Jail—were his best work.

The church was dedicated in 1886 and cost only $12,000 to build, but it is characterized by intricate brickwork, a steep slate roof, well-proportioned windows and doors, and a plain rounded apse. All of the buildings' original features—with the exception of its wrought iron gas chandeliers, which have been replaced with electric lights—have been faithfully preserved.

I should note that this important accomplishment was primarily the result of the efforts of one long-term Pittsburgh resident, Mary Ellen Leigh, with the support of Emmanuel's Vicar, the Reverend Don C. Youse, Jr., and the church's congregation. I commend her for all of her hard work and her dedication to this important project.

I am pleased that Emmanuel Episcopal Church has been designated a National Historic Landmark. It is my hope that this designation will help in efforts to preserve this important architectural treasure and help to promote the cause of historic preservation in Allegheny County and across the country.

HONORING THE ATHLETES OF SANTA CLARITA VALLEY AND THE SAN FERNANDO VALLEY

HON. HOWARD P. "BUCK" McKEON

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, October 18, 2000

Mr. McKEON. Mr. Speaker, I want to commend the athletes from the Santa Clarita Valley and the greater San Fernando Valley for their outstanding performance in the games of the XXVIIth Olympiad, which began on September 15, 2000 in Sydney Australia. The majority of the San Fernando Valley lies within the 25th Congressional District. If the Greater San Fernando Valley was its own country, it would rank 14th in the gold medal count, just behind Hungary.

The Olympians exemplify all that is right with America. To become a member of the United States Olympic Team, the athletes needed tremendous discipline to maintain grueling training schedules. They made personal sacrifices in order to reach their goals and have continually displayed outstanding sportsmanship. They are truly a credit to our country.

Olympians who call the 25th Congressional District home include Adam Setliff, who placed fifth in the men's discus throw; Crystl Bustos, member of the women's softball team which won the gold medal; Anthony Ervin, winner of a gold medal in the men's 50-meter freestyle and a silver medalist in the men's freestyle relay; Mark Crear, winner of a bronze medal in the men's 110-meter hurdles; and Maurice Greene, who won a gold medal in the men's 100-meter race as well as a gold medal in the men's 100-meter relay.

The efforts of these athletes are reflected not only in their collective medals but in the respect of every American. I would like to thank the Olympians for their tireless effort, dedication and contribution to America.

THE GRAND OPENING OF THE MICHAEL A. GRANT BOYS AND GIRLS CLUB IN AUSTELL, GEORGIA

HON. BOB BARR

OF GEORGIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, October 18, 2000

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, today I recognize the Boys and Girls Club of Cobb County, Georgia for its hard work, and congratulate this organization, and the many men and women who constitute its work force, on the grand opening of the Michael A. Grant Boys and Girls Club located in Austell, Georgia.

The Boys and Girls Clubs of America is an outstanding organization which provides children, particularly disadvantaged children, with programs and services that promote and enhance the development of boys and girls by installing a sense of competence, usefulness, belonging and influence.

In 1956, the Boys Clubs of America celebrated it 50th anniversary and received a U.S. Congressional Charter. In 1990, the national organization's name was changed to the Boys and Girls Clubs of America. Accordingly, Congress amended and renewed the charter.

I commend the Boys and Girls Club for its dedication and commitment too positively influencing the lives of boys and girls every day, and for its outstanding leadership throughout our community and the country.

NATIONAL CHEMISTRY WEEK

HON. ROBERT A. BORSKI

OF PENNSYLVANIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, October 18, 2000

Mr. BORSKI. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor the week of November 5th to November 11th in Pennsylvania as ''National Chemistry Week''. During this week the American Chemical Society volunteers should be commemorated for their efforts to increase public awareness about the crucial role chemistry plays in everyday life. It is vital to recognize that this science gives us the power to understand and to use the elemental building blocks of all material things.

The American Chemical Society is the largest organization of its type in the United States. The Philadelphia branch of the organization is not only the largest section in Pennsylvania, but also one of the most active in the entire nation. This is quite an accomplishment for our state, as there are nearly 200 sections across the United States.

During National Chemistry Week, many local companies and universities in the Philadelphia area will be involved and volunteer their time to celebrate and make an impact among the community about the benefits and necessity of chemistry. Their commitment to spreading the values of chemistry is of great importance, as the science of chemistry provides the fundamental understanding required to deal with many of society's needs, including several that determine our quality of life and economic strength.

People involved in the chemistry field use the science and their knowledge to help feed the world's population, tap new energy sources, clothe and house humanity, provide renewable substitutes for dwindling or scarce materials, improve health, conquer disease, strengthen our national security, and monitor and protect our environment.

Mr. Speaker, National Chemistry Week should be honored for directing our attention to the myriad contributions of their science to the service of all humanity. I congratulate all who participate in this field and who dedicate themselves to creating a week for the entire nation to learn from and enjoy.

CENTRAL NEW JERSEY RECOGNIZES THE NEW JERSEY SHADE TREE FEDERATION FOR 75 YEARS OF SERVICE

HON. RUSH D. HOLT

OF NEW JERSEY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, October 18, 2000

Mr. HOLT. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in recognition of the New Jersey Shade-Tree Federation and its on-going dedication to preserving our communities. I applaud the work of the Federation in striving towards a delicate balance between our community's desires to expand, and our environment's need for smart, sustainable growth.

The roots of the Shade Tree Federation can be traced back to September 27, 1910. For it was on this date that the State Forester, with the approval of the Forest Commission, called on the executives of 124 municipalities. Some 30 delegates from 24 cities, towns and boroughs gathered to discuss ways to advance and protect the interests of shade trees throughout New Jersey. At the conclusion of this conference, the attendees unanimously voted to form a permanent association to protect and foster the interests of Shade Trees.

In 1924 the State promoted future growth of the Federation by passing the County Shade-Tree Act. Then, in 1925, the Department initiated the movement for closer collaboration among the shade-tree commissions in the State and organized the ''New Jersey Federation of Shade-Tree Commissions.''

Since its inception, the Federation has gathered to discuss the important issues of the times, ranging from the advent of chainsaws and bucket trucks to the devastation of Dutch Elm disease and Gypsy Moth outbreaks. One common thread has remained evident throughout the Federation's existence: trees are an important part of people's lives.

Once again, I applaud the efforts of the New Jersey Shade-Tree Federation and ask all my colleagues to join me in recognizing their steadfast commitment to preserving true assets of our communities for future generations.

TRIBUTE TO MARY RAINWATER

HON. HENRY A. WAXMAN

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, October 18, 2000

Mr. WAXMAN. Mr. Speaker, it's a great pleasure for me to pay tribute to Mary Rainwater, the executive director of the Los Angeles Free Clinic, for her tireless service to the Los Angeles community. Mary oversees the delivery of vital health services, including free medical and dental care, HIV education, counseling and testing, and prenatal care to tens of thousands of people each year. Her agency also provides job placement and training, low-cost legal assistance, and psychological counseling to support some of the most vulnerable members of our community.

Before coming to the LA Free Clinic, Mary served as an adult literacy tutor, a guidance counselor for inner city youth, and a psychiatric social worker for homeless mentally ill individuals.

In nearly eleven years as executive director, Mary's guidance has helped the LA Free Clinic double its budget and increase fourfold the number of patient visits its professionals provide. Without the LA Free Clinic, many of these patients would not have access to the cancer screening, family planning, and mental health services they need. The U.S. Department of Health and Human services has recognized the Hollywood Center, which opened under Mary's watch, as a ''Model That Works'' to provide comprehensive services to at-risk youth.

In addition to her work with the LA Free Clinic, Mary serves the community through her memberships of the Hollywood Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors, the Board of Directors of the Community Clinic Association of Los Angeles County, Free Clinics of the Western Region, and the California Primary Care Association's Executive Committee.

The people of Los Angeles and our entire nation owe Mary a debt of gratitude for her tireless work and tremendous record of achievement.

RECOGNIZING INTERCONTINENTAL TERMINALS COMPANY AS THE DEER PARK CHAMBER OF COMMERCE 2000 INDUSTRY OF THE YEAR

HON. KEN BENTSEN

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, October 18, 2000

Mr. BENTSEN. Mr. Speaker, I rise to congratulate International Terminals Company for being honored as the Deer Park Chamber of Commerce 2000 Industry of the Year. The Intercontinental Terminals Company's commitment to building a better future for the Deer Park community has made it an example that all industry can follow.

Since 1974, the Intercontinental Terminals Company (ITC) and its employees have been responsible members of the Deer Park area, in my district. Originally formed as a grassroots chemical and petrochemical storage and distribution terminal, ITC has grown to a capacity of over 7 million barrels. Today, ITC owns and operates on a world-scale, for-hire bulk liquid terminal. The company will store and distribute approximately seventy different chemicals, petrochemical, and petroleum products for over 100 customers including Deer Park manufacturers such as Rohm and Haas, Dow, Shell, all connected to the ITC via pipeline.

ITC is responsible for transporting over 2 billion gallons of various products safety, efficiency, and in an environmentally sound manner. Last year, they successfully loaded and unloaded over 600 deep water tankers, 2900 barge tows, 8900 rail cars, and 14,000 tank trucks.

Employing over 140 people, ITC is dedicated to worker safety and environmental performance. As a member of the East Harris County Manufacturers Association, ITC supports its initiatives to foster and maintain a productive relationship between industry and the community. They participate in the Responsible Care Programs and the Local Emergency Planning Committee, and the Deer Park Fire Department annual Toys for Tots campaign. In addition, ITC actively participates in the Deer Park Independent School District Annual Industry Awards Banquet and has financially supported several Deer Park baseball and soccer leagues.

Mr. Speaker, I congratulate Intercontinental Terminals Company, on being named the Deer Park 2000 Industry of the Year. This is a well-deserved honor for their hard work and dedication in expanding business, instituting initiatives to protect the environment, and a commitment to strengthening the community.

STATEMENT OF U.S. REPRESENTATIVE JERRY COSTELLO HONORING THE 100TH ANNIVERSARY OF CARPENTERS LOCAL 480

HON. JERRY F. COSTELLO

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, October 18, 2000

Mr. COSTELLO. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to ask my colleagues to join me in honoring the 100th anniversary of Carpenters Local 480.

Carpenters Local 480 had its charter issued to them on February 13, 1900. That year they listed John Dippel, John Hexter, Joseph Hester, Harry Merrick, Carl Ross, William Schaeffer, Jacob Scheid, Louis Scheid, William Scheid, Edward Schiek, Henry Schiek and Henry Wilhelm as their first charter officers. The first elected officer of Local No. 480 was H. Geiger who was elected the Financial Secretary and was charged with the responsibility of collecting dues and assessments.

By 1907, Local 480's rolls increased to 16 members, which held until 1940. At that time, Local 480-Freeburg merged with Local 1559-New Athens, bringing the membership an additional 25 members. Dues at that time were set at $1.25 a month for all inactive and pensioned members. Arthur Och was named the Business Representative for Freeburg, Illinois and Ed Knopp was named the Representative for New Athens.

In 1947, membership increased to 35 members. In 1966, with membership hovering around 38 members, the International Union had pressed all locals to hire full-time representatives to ensure jurisdictional issues were considered. Louis Geiger was named as the first full-time Business Representative. At that time, there were only 14 local unions in the Tri-Counties Illinois District Council of Carpenters, with only two that were large enough to hire full-time representatives. Remaining smaller locals were then merged into four. Local 480-Freeburg, Local 1361-Chester, Local 1997-Columbia and Local 1675-Breese.

Further consolidations of the locals occurred in the 70's. Many changes occurred after the consolidations, bringing with it new challenges and new opportunities. A full-time Financial Secretary position was created at this time to handle the growth in the membership and to handle the responsibilities of caring for the members well-being. Further growth in membership and an expansion of Local 480's area, necessitated the need for the creation of Field Stewart positions in each of the communities in the local.

With the phenomenal growth of the local and the expansion of their responsibilities, in 1975 the local opened their headquarters building in Freeburg. Since then, the members of Local 480 have contributed to the growth and development of the metro-east. Evidence of their handiwork is everywhere, from new schools, shopping and commercial centers, public buildings and fine residential homes.

I am proud of the history and accomplishments of Local 480 and I look forward to the future with the confidence that the facilities we work, visit and live in are the direct results of hard work of the members of Local 480.

Mr. Speaker, I ask my colleagues to join me in honoring Carpenters Local 480 on the 100th anniversary of their founding and to recognize the members of the local, both past and present, for the quality service that they have been providing to the people of our area for the past 100 years.

NATIONAL CHILDREN'S MEMORIAL DAY

SPEECH OF

HON. JOE KNOLLENBERG

OF MICHIGAN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, October 17, 2000

Mr. KNOLLENBERG. Madam Speaker, I rise today to voice my strong support for the families, friends and loved ones of the many, many children who pass away every year. Regardless of the cause of death, regardless of the location, regardless of the age, a horrendous void is created in the lives of those left behind. When a child dies, the effect is simply devastating to the family. For those of us who have not suffered this pain, it is incomprehensible and different for each person—a pain that may dampen in time, but which never fully goes away.

However, there is one thing that the families and loved one of the departed have to help them in their time of need—the support of others who have suffered a similar loss. Those in the healing process report that one of the most effective measures is simply to have a strong network of support and encouragement. And this is why I have sponsored, along with Mr. OSE of California and Mr. MCINTOSH of Indiana, this resolution recognizing the purposes and goals of a National Children's Memorial Day.

Such is the goal of the Compassionate Friends Organization—a national non-profit group that offers friendship and understanding to families grieving the death of a child at any stage of development and from any cause. As one example, Compassionate Friends offers comfort and assistance to families who suffer from the tragedy of stillbirth, miscarriage, and Sudden Infant Death Syndrome (S.I.D.S.). Their web site identifies symptoms of grief, notes impacts on marriage, discusses subsequent pregnancy, and has remarks about coping with family and friends and lays out some helpful suggestions.

Compassionate Friends originated in England in 1969. Their first U.S. chapter was founded in 1972. They now have chapters in 24 countries and in every state in the nation—nearly 600 altogether. Their mission is simply to provide a supportive environment with no religious affiliation, no membership dues or fees, and services open to all bereaved family members. Compassionate Friends is the impetus for this resolution.

I would like to salute in particular their Executive Director, Mrs. Pat Loder, a resident of Michigan's Eleventh Congressional District, my district. She has been a driving force behind National Children's Memorial Day, this year and in years past. I encourage you to visit the Compassionate Friends website at www.compassionatefriends.org and learn more about their organization.

On December 10, Compassionate Friends will hold their fourth annual worldwide candle lighting event. Starting in New Zealand, candles will be lit for one hour beginning at 7 pm local time, creating a 24-hour observance around the globe. This simple act goes a long way to offer peace of mind and soul and goes a long way to help those who have lost a child, a grandchild, a sibling or a friend, particularly during the December holiday season, when the loss is often the most difficult to bear.

For the past two years, the Senate has recognized the second Sunday in December as National Children's Memorial Day. And last year the House passed a resolution similar to what we are considering here today. This concurrent resolution expresses the sense of Congress that a National Children's Memorial Day should be established and asks the President to issue a proclamation calling on Americans everywhere to observe ceremonies and activities which serve to remember these dearly departed souls and the grieving families and friends.

I can assure you, to those families who have lost loved ones, the support that we show here, this simple and easy resolution will go a long way in helping them cope with their loss. It is important for families who have suffered such a loss to know that they are not alone. Please help me in passing this joint resolution and express your support for this worthy and noble cause.

We carry the responsibility to honor and remember those who have died before their time. And as compassionate, concerned citizens, one of the best actions we can take is to honor the souls of the dearly departed and to support those who are left behind.

I encourage all of my colleagues to join me in passing this measure. Please show your support to bereaved parents across America.

A SPECIAL TRIBUTE TO LTC THOMAS J. LEE, ARMY NATIONAL GUARD, FOR HIS DEDICATED SERVICE

HON. PAUL E. GILLMOR

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, October 18, 2000

Mr. GILLMOR. Mr. Speaker, it is with great pride that I rise today to pay special tribute to an outstanding officer in the Army National Guard. Lieutenant Colonel Thomas J. Lee recently transferred from his position as the Plans and Action Support Officer in the National Guard Bureau's Counterdrug Program.

Tom Lee began his service to country when he enlisted in the United States Air Force in 1968 as a weather observer. After tours at Anderson Air Force Base, Guam, and Offutt Air Force Base, Nebraska, he entered Officer Candidate School in the New York Army National Guard as a field artillery officer in 1982.

Tom Lee first became active in the counterdrug effort when he left his assignment as Chief of the National Guard Protocol Branch to become the National Guard Counter Narcotics Liaison with the Headquarters of the Sixth Army at the Presidio in San Francisco, California in May, 1994. He then served as the Operations Officer for the Southwest Region, and as Chief of the Southeast Region Branch in the National Guard Bureau's Counterdrug Program before assuming his position as Plans, Action Officer in October, 1997.

Mr. Speaker, in each of these counterdrug positions, Lieutenant Colonel Lee has made a personal impact in an ongoing struggle that, as a nation, we have yet to win. He has labored passionately to educate Members of Congress and their staff members on the unique abilities of the Army and Air National Guard in stemming the plague of illegal drugs from our neighborhoods. Our nation is stronger today because his sound counsel, his practical knowledge and his tireless pursuit of the possible.

Lieutenant Colonel Lee has received numerous, well-deserved, military awards and decorations for his service to the nation. No award is more appropriate, nor more fulfilling for him, than the knowledge that his efforts give America's youth a better chance at a drug-free future.

Mr. Speaker, I am confident that Lieutenant Colonel Thomas J. Lee will demonstrate the same dedication and high competence in his new instructional position at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas that has been his trademark with the National Guard Bureau. I would ask my colleagues of the 106th Congress to join me in paying special tribute to this citizen-soldier and patriot. We thank him, and wish him the very best in his continued service as an officer in the Army National Guard.

INTRODUCTION OF THE NATIONAL DEFENSE FEATURES PROGRAM ENHANCEMENT ACT OF 2000

HON. CURT WELDON

OF PENNSYLVANIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, October 18, 2000

Mr. WELDON of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to join my colleague from New Jersey, Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN, in introducing the National Defense Features Program Enhancement Act of 2000, a bill we intend to push to enactment next year if the Government of Japan, the Japanese vehicle manufactures, and the Japanese carriers continue to undermine our efforts to breathe life into the National Defense Features program.

We created the NDF program because we believed it would be the most cost-effective way to augment the substantial investment that is being made in new ships by the Navy. Having seen one very attractive proposal by which vessels would be built to carry cars from Japan to the United States and refrigerated products on the return leg, we authorized and appropriated funds in the mid-1990s to jump start the program. Since then, we have continued to look for ways to make the program as attractive as possible to companies to build ships in the United States for operation in the United States-Japan and other trades. In just the past week, for example, Congress approved as part of the National Defense Authorization Bill for FY 2001 a provision that would expand the Secretary of Defense's authority to finance appropriate projects under the NDF program.

In authorizing this program, we had hoped that the Government of Japan in particular would find mutual defense benefits in promoting it. We have written the Prime Minister, we have met with the Ambassador, we have received expressions of support from the Vice President of the United States and our Secretary of Defense, and yet nothing seems to have come of our efforts so far.

Unfortunately, we have regularly heard the same response. The Government of Japan insists that the decision to employ NDF tonnage is strictly a matter for the vehicle manufacturers and shipping companies to make since it involves a commercial matter. They in turn have argued that, since the program focuses on mutual defense, the Government should take the lead. As so often happens, no one has been willing to step forward to take the initiative.

As our colleagues can no doubt appreciate, our patience is beginning to wear thin. I understand our able Secretary of Defense has recently indicated the importance of the NDF program in discussions with his Japanese counterpart. Perhaps we will finally see some movement. If not, the time to legislate will have arrived.

Our bill is designed to create the necessary incentives for the Government of Japan and the vehicle and shipping interests to promote the NDF program. If the Federal Maritime Commission finds that vessels that would be built in the United States under the NDF program are not employed in the particular sector of a trade route in the foreign commerce of the United States for which they are designed to operate and if that sector of the trade route has been dominated historically by citizens of an allied nation, then the Commission shall take action to counteract the restrictive trade practices that have led to this situation.

We trust all concerned appreciate our determination to bring the NDF program to life.

COMMENDING THE RIVERSIDE NATIONAL CEMETERY SUPPORT COMMITTEE

HON. KEN CALVERT

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, October 18, 2000

Mr. CALVERT. Mr. Speaker, today I commend the ''all volunteer'' Riverside National Cemetery Support Committee. President Dwight D. Eisenhower once remarked that, ''Whatever America hopes to bring to pass in the world must first come to pass in the heart of America.'' The volunteerism shown by the Cemetery Support Committee, for the past 22 years, is a prime model of President Eisenhower's belief.

The Cemetery Support Committee was established in 1978 with a simple mission, but one with heart behind it, to preserve and enhance the Riverside National Cemetery as a National Shrine. What has come to pass is no less than amazing.

The Riverside National Cemetery is currently the second largest resting place in our national cemetery system, with 125,000 men and women of our armed forces standing silent vigil with us today. Ten short years into the new millennium, it is expected to be the largest cemetery in the national system. And in six decades it will have more than 1.4 million honored veterans. That will make Riverside National Cemetery larger than the Arlington National Cemetery—the most widely recognized, which is already at capacity with a quarter of a million veterans.

The Cemetery Support Committee's work has made Riverside National Cemetery much more than the facts stated above—they have created a solemn historical place where Americans today and tomorrow can go to reflect upon the memory and sacrifices of past and present generations who fought for America, democracy and freedom. Four to five thousand people each Memorial Day and Veterans Day attend ceremonies organized by the Committee and held at the Riverside National Cemetery. They have raised private funds to purchase numerous items for the beautification of the cemetery, such as flower cones used at the Veterans' grave-sites by family and loved ones. Fund-raising has also been undertaken for the procurement and site construction of memorials to be placed in the cemetery—the most recent being the Veterans Memorial dedicated on May 27, 2000; and future ones being POW/MIA, Chapliancy Corp. and Medics & Corpsmen memorials.

Those who have worked so selflessly to create a place that is, as the Cemetery Support Committee likes to say, ''inspiring and stimulating our youth to become worthy citizens of this great country,'' have devoted their hearts to making the Riverside National Cemetery the National Shrine that it is today and well into tomorrow. I would like to take a moment to specifically recognize the current Board Members of the Cemetery Support Committee. They are: Jewel Beck, 1995; Paul Adkins, Chairman, 1998; Tom Hohmann, Secretary, 1992; Alta Marlin, Vice Chairwoman, 1989; Gery Porter, Treasurer, 1995; Walt Schiller, 1978; Judith Stemberg, 1989; Mike Warren, 1992; John Campbell, 1982; Guenther Griebau, 1999; Carolyn Jaeggli, 1986; Audrey Peterson, 1994; Elsie Porter, 1985; Pat Smith, 1998; and James Valdez, 1978.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I will close by asking that each American awake each day dedicated to giving back to our families, friends, communities and nation as the Riverside National Cemetery Support Committee has done. As a people we must ''never forget'' those who have died and fought to make America great. God bless you and God bless America.

SOCIAL SECURITY NUMBER CONFIDENTIALITY ACT OF 1999

SPEECH OF

HON. RON PAUL

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, October 17, 2000

Mr. PAUL. Madam Speaker, I am pleased to support HR 3218, the Social Security Number Confidentiality Act. This bill takes a step toward protecting the integrity and security of the Social Security number by ensuring that window envelopes used by the Federal Government do not display an individual's Social Security number. HR 3218 will help protect millions of Americans from the devastating crime of identity theft, which is a growing problem in my district and throughout the country.

This bill will be partially helpful to senior citizens who rely on Social Security. These seniors could lose a lifetime's worth of savings if a criminal obtained their Social Security number. We owe it to America's senior citizens to make sure that they are not exposed to the risk of identity theft as a price of receiving their Social Security benefits.

While this bill does represent a good step toward protecting privacy, I would remind my colleagues that much more needs to be done to ensure the Social Security number is not used as means of facilitating identity crimes. The increasing prevalence of identity theft is directly related to the use of the Social Security number as a uniform identifier.

For all intents and purposes, the Social Security number is already a national identification number. Today, in the majority of states, no American can get a job, open a bank account, get a drivers' license, or receive a birth certificate for one's child without presenting their Social Security number. So widespread has the use of the Social Security number become that a member of my staff had to produce a Social Security number in order to get a fishing license!

Unscrupulous people have found ways to exploit this system and steal another's identity—the ubiquity of the Social Security number paved the way for these very predictable abuses and crimes. Congress must undo the tremendous injury done to the people's privacy and security by the federal government's various mandates which transformed the Social Security number into a universal identifier.

In order to stop the disturbing trend toward the use of the Social Security number as a uniform ID I have introduced the Freedom and Privacy Restoration Act (HR 220), which forbids the use of the Social Security number for purposes not related to Social Security. The Freedom and Privacy Restoration Act also contains a blanket prohibition on the use of identifiers to ''investigate, monitor, oversee, or otherwise regulate'' American citizens. Mr. Speaker, prohibiting the Federal Government from using standard identifiers will help protect Americans from both private and public sector criminals.

While much of the discussion of identity theft and related threats to privacy has concerned private sector criminals, the major threat to privacy lies in the power uniform identifiers give to government officials. I am sure I need not remind my colleagues of the sad history of government officials of both parties using personal information contained in IRS or FBI files against their political enemies, or of the cases of government officials rummaging through the confidential files of celebrities and/or their personal acquaintances, or of the Medicare clerk who sold confidential data about Medicare patients to a Health Maintenance Organization. After considering these cases, one cannot help but shudder at the potential for abuse if an unscrupulous government official is able to access one's complete medical, credit, and employment history by simply typing the citizens' ''uniform identifier'' into a database.

In conclusion, Madam Speaker, I enthusiastically join in supporting HR 3218 which will help protect millions of senior citizens and other Americans from identity theft by strengthening the confidentiality of the Social Security number. I also urge my colleagues to protect all Americans from the threat of national identifiers by supporting my Freedom and Privacy Restoration Act.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

HON. THOMAS M. BARRETT

OF WISCONSIN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, October 18, 2000

Mr. BARRETT of Wisconsin. Mr. Speaker, I was unable to vote earlier this evening on measures before the House because I was in transit to Washington from Wisconsin. Had I been present, I would have voted ''aye'' on rollcall No. 531, concerning a resolution (H. Res. 631) honoring the members of the crew of the guided missile destroyer U.S.S. Cole. I would have voted ''aye'' on Rollcall No. 532, concerning a resolution (H. Con. Res. 415) expressing the sense of the Congress that there should be established a National Children's Memorial Day. I would have voted ''aye'' on rollcall No. 533, concerning the Social Security Number Confidentiality Act (H.R. 3218).

HONORING MS. RHONDA GERSON, EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR OF AID TO VICTIMS OF DOMESTIC ABUSE

HON. SHEILA JACKSON-LEE

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, October 18, 2000

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, today I recognize and pay tribute to Rhonda Gerson, Executive Director of Aid to Victims of Domestic Abuse, for her service on behalf of domestic violence victims.

A 1998 report by the U.S. Department of Justice indicates that the rate of domestic violence in many categories has been declining over the past decade. I believe the downward trend is directly attributable to the outreach efforts by such individuals as Rhonda Gerson.

Ms. Gerson has been the Executive Director of Aid to Victims of Domestic Abuse since 1981. For the first five years, she served in this capacity without ever receiving a paycheck. During her time with the agency, Ms. Gerson has advocated for the safety of battered women on a local, state and national level.

In the early 1980s, Ms. Gerson served on a Houston Police Department (HPD) task force to review its domestic violence policy, and, in the late 1980s, she served on a second task force, which resulted in the creation of the HPD Family Violence Unit. In 1984, Ms. Gerson co-chaired a pilot project at the Harris County District Attorney's Office that ultimately developed into the Family Criminal Law Division. In 1987, the National Council of Jewish Women—Greater Houston Section awarded her the Hannah G. Solomon Award as a result of her leadership and action for social change in the area of domestic violence victims/survivors.

Ms. Gerson was actively involved with the Texas Council on Family Violence (TCFV), and from 1989 to 1994, she was the chair of the Board of Directors. Under her leadership, TCFV grew to be the largest state coalition in the country due to it stepping up to the plate and re-opening the National Domestic Violence Hotline when its closure stunned the domestic violence community.

According to Deborah Tucker, current Executive Director of the National Training Center on Domestic and Sexual Violence and former Executive Director of TCFV, Ms. Gerson was an integral part of the Public Policy Committee for TCFV and made an incredible contribution to the laws and policies designed to better protect battered women and to hold offenders accountable. When asked to describe Ms. Gerson's accomplishments, Ms. Tucker said, ''I think she is a person who is capable of both seeing the big picture and of noticing the impact that public policy initiatives and programs might have on one individual. Her sensitivity and native intelligence are among the most developed of any persons I have known. She stands out in a quiet and deliberate way, through hard work and thoughtful consideration of the complexities involved in human behavior.''

In 1993, Ms. Gerson was appointed by Supreme Court Justice Tom Phillips as a member of the Texas team to attend the National Council of Juvenile and Family Court Judges Conference on confronting violence in the family. She was a leader in the effort to create the Harris County Domestic Violence Coordinating Council, for which she has served as Treasurer of the Board since 1997.

In 1998, Ms. Gerson helped found the National Training Center on Domestic Violence and Sexual Violence, and she currently serves as the Chair of the Board of Directors. In only two years, she has helped the agency to grow to six staff members and an operating budget of over $600,000.

Mr. Speaker, many victims of domestic violence have been touched by Rhonda Gerson's compassionate spirit. I ask my colleagues to join with me in commending Ms. Gerson for a lifetime of dedication and commitment to the Houston community and to all victims of domestic violence.

SOCIAL SECURITY NUMBER CONFIDENTIALITY ACT OF 1999

SPEECH OF

HON. DAN BURTON

OF INDIANA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, October 17, 2000

Mr. BURTON of Indiana. Madam Speaker, I submit the following exchange of letters between myself and Chairman ARCHER regarding H.R. 3218:

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
COMMITTEE ON WAYS AND MEANS,
Washington, DC, October 17, 2000.

Hon. DAN BURTON,
Rayburn House Office Building,
Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: I understand that you have requested that H.R. 3218, the ''Social Security Number Confidentiality Act of 1999,'' be scheduled for consideration on the House floor under suspension of the Rules. H.R. 3218 would ensure that Social Security numbers (SSNs) do not appear on or through the unopened mailings of Treasury checks. The bill as introduced was referred to the Committee on Government Reform.

As you know, the Committee on Ways and Means has jurisdiction over ''National Social Security.'' The use of the SSN within the government sector falls within that subject matter jurisdiction, and the Committee has legislated in the past on the issue of the use of the SSN and its display. In fact a provision related to H.R. 3218 is found in section 101 of H.R. 4857, the Social Security Privacy and Identity Protection Act of 2000, which was ordered favorably reported by the Committee on Ways and Means on September 29, 2000. Accordingly, I have confirmed the Committee on Ways and Means has a valid claim on H.R. 3218.

Notwithstanding this determination, and in order to expedite consideration of this important time-sensitive legislation, I have no objection to its consideration by the House at this time. This is being done with the understanding that the Committee on Ways and Means will be treated without prejudice with respect to its jurisdictional rights during future consideration of this or similar legislation in the future.

I would further request that you include a copy of this letter in the RECORD, as well as your written response. With warm personal regards, I am

Sincerely,

BILL ARCHER,
CHAIRMAN.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
COMMITTEE ON GOVERNMENT REFORM,
Washington, DC, October 17, 2000.

Hon. BILL ARCHER,
Chairman, Committee on Ways and Means,
House of Representatives,
Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: Thank you for your letter of October 17, in which you stated that your Committee would not be asserting jurisdiction over H.R. 3218, the Social Security Number Confidentiality Act.

As you know, your decision not to assert jurisdiction over this matter will help expedite consideration of this important legislation. I look forward to working with you on this and other issues throughout the remainder of the 106th Congress.

Sincerely,

DAN BURTON,
CHAIRMAN.

INDIAN GOVERNMENT SHOULD STOP ITS STATE TERRORISM

HON. EDOLPHUS TOWNS

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, October 18, 2000

Mr. TOWNS. Mr. Speaker, on September 27, a letter from the Council of Khalistan was published in the Washington Times. It details the propaganda spread by the Indian government to discredit its opponents.

That propaganda is necessary for the Indian government to cover up the atrocities and state terrorism against Christians, Sikhs, and other minorities. Former Indian cabinet minister R.L. Bhatia admitted in 1995 that the Indian government is spending ''large sums of money'' to spread this propaganda and influence affairs in the United States.

Earlier this month, militant Hindu fundamentalists attacked the home of a priest. They beat him and his neighbor. The neighbor was beaten so badly that he died. Unfortunately, this kind of thing is not unusual. It is just the latest in a series of atrocities carried out by organizations under the umbrella of the Rashtriya Swayamsewak Sangh (RSS), the parent organization of the ruling BJP. While Prime Minister Vajpayee was in New York during his recent visit to the U.S., he said, ''I will always be a Swayamsewak.''

Last week, former Prime Minister Chandra Shekhar said that there is no difference between the ruling BJP and the supposedly secular Congress Party. Unfortunately, from the point of view of the minorities in India, it is true. There is no difference. Whoever is in power, the repression continues. India has murdered over 250,000 Sikhs since 1984, over 200,000 Christians in Nagaland since 1947, over 70,000 Kashmiri Muslims since 1988, and tens of thousands of Dalit ''untouchables'' and other minorities. Thousands of Sikhs and other minorities are in illegal detention without charge or trial simply because they are opposed to the government, or because they are members of a minority.

Mr. Speaker, it is time for India to stop its state terrorism against the minorities within its borders. We must stop American aid to India and declare our support for self-determination for the people of Khalistan, Kashmir, Nagalim, and the other nations seeking their freedom, in the form of a free and fair democratic plebiscite. These measures are the only ones we can take that will help to bring real freedom and democracy to the people of South Asia.

I would like to submit the Council of Khalistan's letter into the RECORD for the information of my colleagues.

[From The Washington Times, Wed. Sept. 27, 2000]

NO MILITANTS IN THE COUNCIL OF KHALISTAN

Manpreet Singh Nibber's Sept. 16 letter, ''India human rights criticism from unreliable source?'' is so full of disinformation that he must be fronting for the Indian Embassy in its effort to confuse the American people.

Mr. Nibber, who is a member of the Punjab Welfare Council of the USA, does not address any of the facts we brought up in our last letter. Instead, he spreads Indian disinformation about the Council of Khalistan and its origins. He knows there are no ''militants'' involved in the council. We consistently support the liberation of Khalistan, the Sikh homeland that declared its independence from India on Oct. 7, 1987, by democratic, nonviolent means through the Sikh tradition of ''Shantmai morcha,'' or peaceful agitation.

The Indian Embassy has interfered in American elections, calling for the re-election of former Sen. Larry Pressler and attempting to damage the re-election campaign of Sen. Robert Torricelli. A few years ago, the Indian Embassy was caught giving illegal campaign donations to members of Congress through an immigration lawyer named Lalit Gadhia, who pleaded guilty to the scheme in federal court.

There are many other Gadhias throughout this country. Former Indian cabinet minister R.L. Bhatia admitted in a 1995 news conference that the Indian government is spending ''large sums of money'' through the embassy to influence American politics. But what is that money defending?

On Sept. 8, militant Hindus attacked the home of a priest and beat the priest and his servant. The servant was so severely beaten that he died of the injuries. On Aug. 25, news stories reported that militant Hindu nationalists kidnapped and tortured a priest in Gujarat, then paraded him naked through town. This attack was part of a wave of terror against Christians since Christmas 1998.

Incidents have included the murder of priests, the rape of nuns and the burning to death of a missionary and his two sons in their van by members of the Rashtriya Swayamsevak Sangh (RSS), the parent organization of the ruling Bharatiya Janata Party. Schools and prayer halls have been attacked and destroyed. The individuals who raped the nuns were described by the Vishwa Hindu Parishad, a militant organization within the RSS, as ''patriotic youth.'' The RSS was founded in support of fascism.

In March, 35 Sikhs were murdered in the village of Chithi Singhpora in Kashmir. Two extensive independent investigations, one conducted by the Movement Against State Repression and the Punjab Human Rights Organization and another conducted by the Ludhiana-based International Human Rights Organization, proved that the Indian government was responsible for this massacre.

The Indian government has murdered more than 250,000 Sikhs since 1984, according to figures published in Inderjit Signh Jaijee's

''The Politics of Genocide.'' India also has killed more than 200,000 Christians in Nagaland since 1947, more than 70,000 Kashmiri Muslims since 1988 and tens of thousands of other minorities. Amnesty International reports that thousands of political prisoners are being held without charge or trial in ''the world's largest democracy.''

India is hostile to the United States. It votes against America at the United Nations more often than any country except Cuba.

In May 1999, the Indian Express reported that Indian Defense Minister George Fernandes led a meeting with Cuba, China, Iraq, Serbia, Russia and Libya to construct a security alliance ''to stop the U.S.''

India openly supported the Soviet Union's invasion of Afghanistan. Its nuclear weapons test started the nuclear arms race in South Asia. It refuses to allow the Sikhs, Kashmiris, Christians and other minority nations seeking their freedom to decide their political future in a free and fair vote, the democratic way.

America must not accept this kind of brutality and tyranny from a government that claims to be democratic. We must cut off aid and trade to India and support a free and fair plebiscite to ensure human rights and self-determination for Khalistan, Christian Nagalim, Kashmir and all the minority nations and peoples living under Indian rule.

TRIBUTE TO DOCTOR JACK KILBY

HON. RICHARD K. ARMEY

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, October 18, 2000

Mr. ARMEY. Mr. Speaker, today I rise to honor a distinguished American and someone who I am proud to say resides in the 26th District of the great state of Texas, Dr. Jack Kilby. Just a few days ago Dr. Kilby was awarded the Nobel Prize in Physics for his part in the invention and development of the integrated circuit.

Dr. Kilby's invention of the monolithic integrated circuit—the microchip—some 30 years ago laid the conceptual and technical foundation for the entire field of modern microelectronics. It was this breakthrough that made possible the sophisticated high-speed computers and large-capacity semiconductor memories of today's information age.

Dr. Kilby grew up in Great Bend, Kansas. In 1958, he joined Texas Instruments in Dallas. During the summer of that year working with borrowed and improvised equipment, he conceived and built the first electronic circuit in which all of the components were fabricated in a single piece of semiconductor material half the size of a paper clip. The successful laboratory demonstration of that first simple microchip on September 12, 1958, made history.

Jack Kilby went on to pioneer military, industrial, and commercial applications of microchip technology. He is the recipient of two of the nation's most prestigious honors in science and engineering; in 1970 he received the National Medal of Science, and in 1982 he was inducted into the National Inventors Hall of Fame, taking his place alongside Henry Ford, Thomas Edison, and the Wright Brothers in the annals of American innovation.

Mr. Speaker, the microchip is one of the most important inventions of the Information Age—indeed, it's one of the most important inventions in mankind's long history. Jack Kilby deserves our recognition and our thanks.

WINGS OF KINDNESS

HON. RALPH M. HALL

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mr. HALL of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I have waited almost a year to place this story in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD. Let's call it an early Christmas story—about the simple but powerful gift of kindness, in this case bestowed by two pilots on a young boy on Christmas Eve. Art Hendon of Terrell, TX, shared this with me in December of last year, and I am honored to share it with my colleagues today.

Sometimes the most important gifts are given unwittingly. I set about checking the instruments in preparation for my last flight of the day, a short hop from Atlanta to Macon, GA. It was 7:30 P.M. Christmas Eve, but instead of forking into Mom's turkey dinner, I was busy getting other people home to their families.

Above the low buzz of talking passengers, I heard a rustle behind me. I looked over my shoulder. Just outside the cockpit doorway was a fresh-faced boy of about nine gazing intently at the flight deck. At my glance he started to turn away.

''Hold up,'' I called. ''Come on in here.'' I had been about his age when I first saw a flight panel lit up like a Christmas tree and I could hardly wait to get my pilot's wings. But now that I was 24 and first officer at a commuter airline, I wondered if I'd made the right choice. Here I was spending my first Christmas Eve away from home, and what was I accomplishing? How was I making my mark in the world, let alone doing God's work, just hauling people from city to city?

The boy stepped cautiously into the cockpit. ''My name's Chad,'' I said, sticking out my hand. With a shy smile he put his hand in mine. ''I'm Sam.'' He turned to the empty seat beside me. ''Is that for the captain?''

''It sure is and that's where Captain Jim sits.'' I patted the worn fabric. ''Would you like to try it out?''

Sam blinked at me from under this ball cap. ''I don't know . . . I mean . . . well, sure if it's okay.'' I lowered the seat so he could slide into it.

The captain loved to give demonstrations of the plane's gadgets to kids, but what would he think about one sitting in his seat? Well, it's Christmas, I thought.

I glanced out at the luggage carts being wheeled toward the plane, thinking of the gifts I wouldn't be able to give in person to my parents and friends the next day. Sam told me he and his family had flown in from Memphis.

I checked my watch. The captain would be in any minute, but Sam looked so thrilled, I didn't want to cut short his fun. I gave the instrument panel another once-over, telling Sam what each button and lever did.

Finally Captain Jim clambered aboard, ''Howdy, partner.'' He gave Sam a broad grin. ''You know, son,'' he drawled, ''I don't mind you staying with us for a while if you'll switch with me.'' Sam let the captain take his place and I made introductions.

We began previewing the startup checklist. I kept thinking the captain would send Sam away, but the boy was still peering over my shoulder when the ramp agent radioed to ask if we were ready to turn on the first engine in start sequence, number four. I relayed the question to the captain, who was studying the weather reports.

''I'm still going over these,'' he said. ''You guys go ahead and start it.''

''Okay, starting . . .'' I said, positioning the switches. Then I did a double take. 'Did you say you guys'?''

''Yeah, go ahead.''

I looked over at the captain, and back at the fight panel. ''Right.'' I flicked on the plane's flashing red beacon to signal the start. Then I turned to my new assistant.

''You ever start an airplane before, Sam?''

Eyes wide, he shook his head. Following my instructions, Sam carefully turned a knob on the overhead console that switched on the igniters. then he pressed a button as big as his hand to start the engine. Finally, with both hands he slid forward a lever to introduce the fuel. The engine hummed to life.

Sam slowly let go of the lever and stepped back, awestruck. He'd gotten to start an airplane, an honest-to-goodness airliner. I'm not sure if I'd have believed it myself at his age. I thanked Sam for helping us out.

''No, thank you, sir,'' Sam said. ''This was really great!''

As he backed out of the doorway into the cabin, the plane resonated with the sound of the engine he'd started. ''You have a merry Christmas, son, you hear?'' the captain said.

Sam looked like he was about to cry with happiness. ''I will, sir, I will. Thank you!'' With one last look at the flight deck he turned and walked down the aisle. We started up the other engines, took off, and arrived in Macon about 40 minutes later. Early Christmas morning, as we settled into the cockpit for the trip back to Atlanta, one of the gate agents ducked in. ''Hey, guys, some kid's mother came by this morning. She wanted to make sure I thanked you for showing her son around last night. Said he couldn't stop talking about the cockpit. She left this for you.''

The gate agent set a red tin on the center console.

''Well, I'll be,'' the captain said. He bit into one of the chocolate chip cookies from the tin. Then he unfolded the note taped to its cover and read it silently. He sighed deeply and turned to me, ''Boy's got cancer,'' he said, and read the note aloud:

Dear Sirs, Thank you for allowing Sam to watch you work on Christmas Eve night. Sam has cancer and has been undergoing chemotherapy in Memphis. This is the first time he has been home since the treatment began. We drove Sam up to the hospital, but since he loves airplanes, we decided to fly him back home. I am not sure if he will ever get to fly again. His doctor has said that Sam may have only a few months left. Sam has always dreamed of becoming an airline pilot. The flight we took from Memphis to Atlanta was exhilarating for him. He wasn't sure flying on one of your ''little'' airplanes would be as much fun, but you two gentlemen gave him the greatest Christmas gift imaginable. For a few short minutes his dream came true, thanks to you.

I looked out at the runway gleaming before us in the sun. When I turned back to Jim, he was still staring at the note. A flight attendant came in and said the passengers were ready for departure. She stowed the cookies away and we went through the checklist. Then Captain Jim cleared his throat and called out, ''Starting number four.''

I'd wanted to be home with my loved ones, exchanging gifts for the holidays. But that little boy showed me that sometimes the most important gifts we give are given unwittingly and the most precious ones we get come from strangers. I can serve God's purpose no matter where I am, as long as I let the spirit that moved me that night guide me always.

MIAMI RACES FOR THE CURE

HON. ILEANA ROS-LEHTINEN

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Mr. Speaker, last Saturday, members of the South Florida community came together in an effort to eradicate breast cancer. Nearly 5,000 people participated in the Komen Miami/Ft. Lauderdale Race for the Cure.

Before the race, Nancy Brinker, founder of the Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation, delighted the crowd with her compassionate words and Soraya, the well-known Latin American singer, who underwent a mastectomy several weeks ago, translated Nancy's message of hope and inspiration into Spanish before walking the course. This year's race was dedicated to Patti Walsh, a Race for the Cure volunteer who lost her battle with breast cancer in August. Today I salute the family and friends who supported her. Twenty-five percent of the dollars raised at last Saturdays event will benefit the National Grants Program for breast cancer research. And, 70% will be used to award grants within the South Florida community by promoting breast cancer research, education, screening and treatment.

I would especially like to congratulate Helen Duncan, my congressional constituent, and Race for the Cure volunteer who organized this magnificent South Florida event.

I commend Jane Torres, President of the Breast Cancer Coalition and a yearly participant in this event who devotes herself daily to eradicating breast cancer.

And I thank the hundreds of South Florida families whose lives may have been touched by breast cancer, and who helped make this event possible.

IN HONOR OF TIM GAUNA

HON. MARTIN FROST

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mr. FROST. Mr. Speaker, I rise in sadness today to honor the memory of Information Systems Technician Seaman Timothy Gauna, a constituent of mine from Rice, Texas, who is among the missing sailors from the attack on the U.S.S. Cole.

Tim Gauna was 21 years old and a 1997 graduate of Ennis High School. He was one of five children in a close family. Teachers said he was a quiet student who excelled in baseball and art. He joined the Navy 18 months ago with a dream shared by many recruits, to earn financial assistance to attend college. He wanted to learn about computers, then use the knowledge while attending the University of Texas at Austin. He would have been the first in his family to go to college.

Before sailing into harm's way, Tim let his mom know that he was headed into dangerous waters, but that he would be okay. Like all the sailors aboard the U.S.S. Cole, Tim Gauna was serving his country bravely and honorably when this vicious attack took place. I join the Gauna family, and all the families of the missing sailors, in hoping that they will soon be accounted for.

After the attack, I flew down to North Texas to visit Seaman Gauna's family. There, I spoke with a mother who is proud of her son's courage and patriotism. She described her son as having an open and friendly nature, and sharing the family's strong belief in their faith. And I talked to various family members who admire Tim's dedication to America.

I do not know all the sailors on the U.S.S. Cole, Mr. Speaker, but I know the family of Seaman Gauna. They—like all of the U.S.S. Cole's sailors and their families—have America's gratitude, and our prayers.

IN TRIBUTE TO ELIE DULAY

HON. ELTON GALLEGLY

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mr. GALLEGLY. Mr. Speaker, I rise to pay tribute to Elie Dulay, who will retire next week after 28 years of service to the City of Simi Valley, California, my hometown.

Elie was a clerk with the city when I was elected to the City Council. I can think of few people who were more helpful, energetic or pleasurable to work with than Elie during my entire tenure as a Councilman and Mayor.

It is of no surprise to me that Elie rose through ranks and will retire as an administrative secretary. Aside from being a exceptionally competent employee, she is the personification of a people person. Elie approaches life and her work with a smile. Problems disappear in her capable hands, and her positive attitude is contagious among her coworkers.

Elie's husband, Art, is also retiring, but they will remain busy. The two are accomplished dancers. Elie is also a wonderful cook, with a specialty in Asian food. They have three grown children, two of which work for the Simi Valley Police Department—one as an officer and one as a records technician. Elie and Art also have six grandchildren, ranging in age from 1 year to 16 years old, and look forward to spending even more time as doting grandparents.

Mr. Speaker, if there is an ideal government employee, Elie is it. I know my colleagues will join me in thanking her for her years of service and wish her all the best in her retirement.

WHISTLEBLOWER PROTECTIONS

HON. CONSTANCE A. MORELLA

OF MARYLAND

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mrs. MORELLA. Mr. Speaker, today, I introduced legislation in Congress amending the Whistleblower Protection Act (WPA) to restore protections for federal employees who risk their jobs by disclosing waste, fraud, abuse or violations of law they witness on the job. This legislation is critical to restore the flow of information to Congress and the public about wrongdoing within the government. It is necessary because the original congressional intent has been partially nullified by certain judicial decisions.

In 1989, Congress unanimously passed the Whistleblower Protection Act (WPA) and strengthened it in 1994. The new bill closes judicially created loopholes that have made the law useless in most circumstances. Recent decisions by the Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit have denied protection for disclosures made as part of an employee's job duties or within the chain of command. The bill restores coverage in over 90 percent of the situations where it counts most for federal workers to have free speech rights—when they defend the public on the job.

The bill also makes permanent a free speech shield known as the ''anti-gag statute'' that Congress has passed annually for the last 13 years. It outlaws nondisclosure rules, agreements and other forms of gag orders that would cancel rights in the Whistleblower Protection Act and other good government statutes. In particular, it upholds the supremacy of a long-established law that workers have a right to notice that information is classified as secret for national security interests, before they can be held liable for releasing it. The necessity for the bill was increased last week by passage of a little noticed provision in the Intelligence Authorization Act for 2001. That provision functionally could make whistleblowers liable for criminal prosecution, based on speculation that unmarked information were classified.

We must reaffirm our support for whistleblowers. We made a serious commitment to federal workers in 1989 and Congress must ensure those protections stay in place. Congress must demonstrate once again its support for federal workers who risk everything to defend the public against fraud, waste, and abuse.

TRIBUTE TO STEPHEN E. PETERSEN

HON. JAMES E. CLYBURN

OF SOUTH CAROLINA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mr. CLYBURN. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to Stephen E. Petersen, founder of the Annual Petersen Invitational Golf Tournament. The tournaments have been held on some of the finest and challenging golf courses along the Atlantic Coast from Myrtle Beach to Charleston, South Carolina.

The purpose of the tournaments are to promote comradery, good food, fellowship, and hospitality among friends. The tournaments also provide an opportunity for participants to engage in the finer points of competitive golf. Throughout the years, more than six hundred friends and colleagues have participated in this event.

Stephen has unselfishly invested his inspiration, time, sweat, and funds in order to make these events successful. His love for people and passion for the game of golf together, distinguish him. They explain his sense of kinship with all those who know him. Stephen's efforts have been highly successful in enriching lives and providing enjoyment to all who have participated in his tournaments.

Many have fond memories which will remain with them for the rest of their lives. Many more gained insight and appreciation for what great golf tournaments are really all about.

I, and the many friends, colleagues, and participants of these golfing events wish to extend our sincere appreciation, admiration, and due recognition to Stephen E. Petersen, in honor of the Petersen Invitational Golf Tournament's 25th anniversary, held September 10–14, 2000, in North Myrtle Beach, South Carolina.

Mr. Speaker, we seldom meet people who give so tirelessly of their time and resources as Stephen E. Petersen. Please join me in paying tribute to this outstanding South Carolinian, military veteran, devoted Christian, and friend.

IN MEMORY OF DR. GROFF

HON. RALPH M. HALL

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mr. HALL of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I rise to pay tribute to an outstanding citizen of the Fourth District of Texas, the late Mayor Marion Allen Groff III of Pilot Point, who died on August 22. Dr. Groff was an active and beloved member of his community—and he will be dearly missed.

At the time of his death, Dr. Groff was serving as mayor of Pilot Point, president of the Chamber of Commerce and member of the Kiwanis. He was a board member and president of DENCO 911 for 8 years. In all these civic endeavors, he gave his time and energy to helping make Pilot Point a better place in which to live.

Allen was devoted to his family, his profession, and to his community, and he leaves a legacy of service that will be remembered by his many friends in Pilot Point. His legacy not only covers his medical service—though it was above and beyond—it goes to the throngs of friends and to many people that he never met. Allen reached out to anyone in need, gave advice, service, and warm friendship. He was a lobby for those who had no lobby. And he was capable of friendship to those in all walks of life—with equal love and dignity for all.

He was born in Shattuck, OK, on August 27, 1949. He served in the U.S. Army from June 1971 to June 1974. He was a graduate of Southeastern Oklahoma University, the University of North Texas and the Texas College of Osteopathic Medicine. He leaves behind his wife, Karen; has parents, Dr. M.A. and Betty Groff; a daughter, Kristen Groff; four sons, Marion Allen Groff IV, Bryant Adam Groff, John Robert Groff and Cole Kelly Schmitz; and a sister, Janet Sims.

Allen was devoted to his family. Kristen will miss him every day of her life—as will his four sons. Karen was the love of his life, and I had the pleasure of visiting with Karen and Allen during the last days at the hospital. She waited, she served, she encouraged, and she loved and lived within his reach day and night for many desperate days at Zale Lipsey Hospital. She held her head up—and was reassuring to family and a throng of friends who came to Midway Baptist Church to say goodbye to Allen.

Mr. Speaker, Allen was one of a kind—and we will miss him. As we adjourn today, let us do so in memory of Mayor Marian Allen Groff.

HONORING RUBY S. SWEZY OF MIAMI, FLORIDA

HON. ILEANA ROS-LEHTINEN

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Mr. Speaker, I am proud to recognize a wonderful woman and a dear friend, Ruby S. Swezy of Miami, Florida, who will be celebrating her 77th birthday on October 21, 2000.

Ruby was born on October 18, 1923 in Miami-Dade County. She is a descendant of Mr. Charles Lee Greene, of Georgia, and the daughter of John and Estelle Stripling, her loving parents. Her father died when she was a teenager but her mother was blessed to live to the age of 97. Ruby remembers with pride many important life lessons imparted by her mother, who was a strong willed, determined, caring and compassionate woman, traits that she now demonstrates.

Living most of her life in Miami-Dade County, where she grew up and was educated, she married the late Lewis Swezy, Sr. and raised her two beloved children, Laura and Lewis, with unwavering faith and love. The pride and joy of Ruby's life is her family. She beams and her eyes sparkle when she shares stories of their lives.

Abandoning the security of the education arena in the prime of her teaching career, she decided to break into real estate, which proved to be the business that was meant for Ruby. It was a bold and courageous step for a young mother. Over the past 50 years, Ruby has become a respected force having made noticeable contributions to the housing industry around our area.

In addition to real estate and political circles, today Ruby is a giant in local, national, and international housing. She was successful in her first political bid, diligently serving as a Councilwoman on the Hialeah City Council. She also has met with and served as an advisor to various administrations and other heads of government.

Ruby maintains a human and in-touch demeanor with all the people of her community. She is admired and respected not only for her compassion and generosity to anyone who is fortunate to meet her, but for her noteworthy contributions. It is my sincere pleasure and great honor to join Ruby's family and friends in wishing her a wonderful celebration and many more happy and healthy birthdays.

IN HONOR OF THE MASJID HASSAN OF AL-ISLAM FORT WORTH, TEXAS

HON. MARTIN FROST

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mr. FROST. Mr. Speaker, this weekend in Fort Worth, Texas, it will be my honor and privilege to attend and participate in events which promote racial and religious unity and peace. On October 21, 2000, the Masjid Hassan of Al-Islam in Fort Worth, under the leadership of Imam Nasir Ahmed, will host a Southwest Regional Pioneer Banquet honoring those it considers to be pioneers in the causes of diversity, religious interaction, Islam, economic development, political awareness and education.

I am humbled to be among a group of honorees which includes religious radio broadcaster and journalist, Robert Ashley; American Jewish Congress Southwest Region executive director, Joel Brooks; community relations consultant, writer and member of the Thanks-Giving Square Interfaith Council, Rose Marie Stromberg; 97-year old founder of the Tarrant County Black Historical and Genealogical Society, Lenora Rolla; long-time Muslim, 95 year old Dave Hassan; and the organizer of Brooks of Baaziga, a Muslim girls' group, Ruby b. Muhammad.

The work of the Masjid Hassan of Al-Islam is, by itself, noteworthy. Yet, the Masjid's efforts are heightened and broadened by the fact that this celebration will include the personage and the teachings of The Honorable Imam Warith Deen Mohammed, leader of the Muslim American Society. Throughout this country and around the world Imam Mohammed is known, respected and admired for his work towards peace, religious freedom and diversity, and liberty for all people. On October 22, 2000, the Fort Worth-Dallas area will have the pleasure of receiving his message on ''Dealing With Racism From Religion''. It is my great pleasure, therefore, to join with the Masjid Hassan of Al-Islam, my longtime friend Marzuq Jaami and his brothers and sisters in the Dallas Masjid of Al-Islam, and the larger Fort Worth-Dallas community in heartily welcoming Imam Mohammed to our community.

TRIBUTE TO REV. DR. JORDAN D. SMITH

HON. JAMES E. CLYBURN

OF SOUTH CAROLINA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mr. CLYBURN. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to Rev. Dr. Jordan D. Smith on the upcoming thirtieth anniversary of his pastorship at Clement Road Church of God in Columbia, South Carolina.

Rev. Smith was born in Orville, Alabama on April 15, 1939 to the late Fred and Clara Hamer Smith. He was the fourth of six children. In 1961, he was married to Eunice D. Pickett. To this union were born three lovely children—Veronica, Matthew and Donna.

Rev. Smith has been serving his church both locally and nationally since 1967. For three years he served the Tompkins Avenue Church of God in Brooklyn, New York as associate pastor and was ordained into the ministry there by the late Rev. John Cordes. In 1970 he became pastor of his current church.

Pursuant to his commitment to service, Rev. Smith has, in addition to his pastoral and state duties, served his National Church as a member of various committees, commissions and boards. For ten years he served as the elected State Chairman of the South Carolina Presbytery. In 1991, for his faith and commitment to his calling, he was awarded an Honorary Doctor of Divinity degree.

Rev. Smith is a faithful husband, loving father, admired grandfather, and caring father-in-law. As a spiritual leader, he personified faith, love, service and dedication.

Mr. Speaker, please join me in paying tribute to Rev. Dr. Jordan D. Smith, a devoted Christian and a wonderful South Carolinian, on the thirtieth anniversary of his pastorship.

HONORING A FIGHTING FOURTH MARINE

HON. RALPH M. HALL

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mr. HALL of Texas. Mr. Speaker, it is an honor today to recognize a life member of the Fourth Marine Division and the Marine Corps League, Milton Saxon, a resident of Longview, Texas, in the Fourth Congressional District. Milton was a member of K Company, 3rd Battalion, 25th Regiment, Fourth Marine Division from March 1944–May 1946 and fought on Iwo Jima.

Milton has put into writing many of his thoughts and memories about his service in World War II, and I am pleased to share some of those with my colleagues today. Milton recalls joining the Marines in March of 1944, at the age of 18, and being trained in San Diego before being shipped out to the Marine Transit Center at Oahu. Here he was attached to the Fourth Marine Division on Maui, where he boarded the L.S.T. #684 to begin their trip toward Japan. Private Saxon and the Fourth Division landed on Iwo Jima on February 19, 1945. Milton was part of the fifth wave of Marines that hit the beach, where ''hell was breaking loose.'' ''Without exception, every friend that was within touching distance of me was either killed or wounded,'' he writes.

Milton's vivid descriptions of what happened that day and during the ensuing days reveal the confusion, the terror, the courage and the heroism among those young soldiers and officers. On Iwo Jima they encountered situations that they could never have been adequately trained for—yet situations where time and again they rose to the challenge and prevailed in the line of fire. By nightfall of that first day, K Company was down to 150 men. ''It is impossible to describe the exact emotions, smells and sounds of this battle,'' Milton said. ''I don't have nightmares any more, but my memory will never die. I will always honor those less fortunate than I was.''

Milton describes the ensuing battle over the next 27 days that led to victory at Iwo Jima. Private First Class Milton Saxon was a survivor. The friends he made in the Marines who also survived have remained life-long friends. ''There are not many advantages of war, but one advantage is finding someone that is closer than most brothers can ever be,'' he writes.

Milton now belongs to a Marine Corps Detachment composed of Marines from Desert Storm, Korea, Vietnam and World War II—and even some who are presently serving in the Marines. ''Nothing has been lost between the generations of service . . . All of the history, the lore and the tradition of the Marine Corps lives on through each member.''

Mr. Speaker, as we adjourn today, I want to thank Milton Saxon for taking the time to record his memories of his war experiences and to tell his story with honesty, conviction—and even some humor where appropriate. His first-person account will be handed down through his family for many generations and will provide a powerful legacy of that most important time in world history—and one of the defining times in American history.

He is retired now, having served his country for 37 years in Texas public education as a school administrator, teacher and coach. Milton Saxon is one of those from ''the Greatest Generation''—a selfless young man who heeded the call of duty, risked his life for his country, and forever will be an American hero. As we adjourn today, let us do so in honor of my friend and an outstanding American—Milton Saxon.

IN TRIBUTE TO HOMEGROWN VALUES

HON. ELTON GALLEGLY

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mr. GALLEGLY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize 27 years of homegrown values and community service by people who grew a local financial institution into a success enterprise and shepherded its continued investment in Ventura County, California.

When American Commercial Bank opened its doors on September 18, 1973, its founders pledged not only to provide top-quality banking services, but also to use the bank's assets and standing to provide community support to Ventura County's citizens.

It was well-suited to follow through on that promise. Its first chairman, Emilio Lagomarsino, was born in Ventura County around the turn of the century. Emilio Lagomarsino was successful in a variety of pursuits, including farming, wholesale beverage distribution and oil.

Edward T. Martin followed Mr. Lagomarsino to the chairman's chair. He was active in Ojai civic, church and community affairs and founder of a successful outdoor advertising company. His son Tom currently serves on the board.

Allen W. Jue, who succeeded Martin as chairman, also is a native of Ventura County. His father, Walton Jue, opened National Market across from the San Buenaventura Mission in 1928.

Earlier this year, Mr. Jue turned the chairmanship over to Emilio's son, Robert J. Lagomarsino, who many in this chamber remember as a valued colleague. Community service is in his blood. He served in the U.S. Navy, was an Ojai city councilman and mayor, a California state senator, and a congressman from 1974 to 1993.

Chief Executive Officer Gerald J. Lukiewski is not a native California, but he has sunk his roots deep here. He graduated from California Lutheran University in Thousand Oaks and married a California girl, Nancy. He has been lured by major financial corporations, but prefers community banking so he can spend as much time as possible with Nancy and their eight children.

The sense of family and community to which these men aspire is reflected in the bank's community record. The bank has been actively involved in and contributed to: Community Memorial Hospital; Ventura Chamber Music Festival; Ventura Rotary International; Oxnard Downtowners; Ventura County Museum of History & Art; Casa Latina; Ventura Country Community Foundation; Multiple Sclerosis; United Cerebral Palsy; Working To Eliminate Child Abuse and Neglect; Ventura County Fair; National Park Trust; the Oxnard, Ventura and Camarillo Boyes & Girls Clubs; and the Chamber of Commerce of Ventura, Oxnard and Camarillo. Educational support has also been provided to Oxnard College, Saint Thomas Aquinas College and to the CSU-Northridge Channel Island University Advisory Board.

Only a successful enterprise could provide such strong community support. The bank has completed its most successful year with record growth in capital, loans, deposits and net profit and has paid 67 consecutive quarterly cash dividends to its shareholders. The bank operates six Ventura County offices and, as of June 30, 2000, assets exceeded one-quarter billion dollars.

American Commercial Bank has received numerous national and community recognitions for its accomplishments. The American Bankers Association awarded a community service award to the bank and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation categorized the bank as ''well-capitalized,'' its highest rating of capital adequacy. The prestigious Bauer Financial Group has awarded its highest star rating of ''Superior'' and ''five stars'' to the bank for its outstanding financial performance.

Mr. Speaker, distinguished colleagues, please join me in recognizing the people who led American Commercial Bank through 27 years of accomplishment and service and wish them and the community they serve continued success.

CELEBRATING A DECADE OF A COMMUNITY APPROACH TO ELDERLY CARE

HON. CONSTANCE A. MORELLA

OF MARYLAND

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mrs. MORELLA. Mr. Speaker, I rise to recognize the 10th anniversary of the founding of the Chinese American Retirement Enterprises (CAREN). This Saturday, more than a thousand CAREN members will celebrate this milestone occasion with its founders and friends at the CAREN Co-op House in Adelphi, Maryland, near the College Park campus of the University of Maryland.

It is hard to believe that it was just a decade ago that a group of concerned and committed citizens from the Washington, DC area founded CAREN to aid senior and disabled Chinese Americans by providing programs and opportunities for affordable housing and elder care. CAREN is dedicated to five service goals: (1) housing and transportation, (2) learning and recreational activities, (3) assisted living and bilingual care, (4) security and a sense of belonging, and (5) happiness through voluntary contribution and labor. Additionally, CAREN promotes lifelong learning and the preservation of Chinese culture to be passed on to future generations.

As a strong supporter of CAREN's mission, I am very pleased to have been involved with the organization since its inception. Since its founding 10 years ago, CAREN has founded six outstanding services and facilities. In 1992, the CAREN Senior Self-Help Center was created to sponsor a Saturday activity program for more than a hundred seniors and volunteers. Realizing the vital need for better elderly housing, the CAREN Development Company was developed in 1994. This company provides housing specifically designed to fit the needs of elderly and disabled persons.

Its first project, the CAREN Co-op House, was completed in 1997 and holds 89 apartment units designed for independent living. In 1998, in order to increase opportunities for lifelong learning the Charles B. Wang Senior Center, established through a $3 million grant from the Charles B. Wang Foundation, was added to the facilities at the Co-op House. As a part of the senior center, CAREN College was created to provide daily activities and learning. The latest project for this motivated group is the CAREN Bilingual Care Home. This project, begun in 1999, will turn four floors of the Co-op House into an assisted living facility with bilingual staff to allow its residents to ''age-in-place.''

Since having hatched from merely just an idea to its present reality, CAREN has attracted more than three hundred volunteers from the community who have contributed to this unique project. It continues to enlist new volunteers under the leadership of Dr. Jeffrey T. Fong, Founding Chairman and Chairman of the CAREN Development Co., Mr. David J. Lee, CAREN Chairman, Dr. Ho-I Wu, CAREN Vice-Chairman, Mr. James Wang, CAREN President, Mr. Wayne Chang, CAREN Co-op Chairman and President, and Mr. Han H. Tuan, CAREN Co-op Vice Chairman. I would also like to recognize the recipients of the CAREN 10th Anniversary Awards who will be honored on Saturday. They include: Mr. Charles B. Wang, Mr. Ching-Ho Fung, Ms. Pauline W. Tsui, Ms. Rosa Hum, Dr. Guan-Hong Zhou, Ms. Charlotte Shen, Ms. Elizabeth Fong, Mr. Jack K.C. Chiang, Ms. Jean P. Li, Ms. Lee N.K. Mark, Mr. Ku-Hua Shih, Rev. Elen Mu-The Sun, Dr. Joseph Yu-Hsu Wang, Ms. Yi-Hwa Shieh Lu, Mr. Shao-Sun Lu, and Mr. Chia-Ming Phua.

Mr. Speaker, CAREN is a true model for community participation and involvement that has enhanced the quality of life of the senior members of our Asian American community. I applaud CAREN for its dedication, its commitment, and its prosperity since 1990. Each day, CAREN's success is reflected in the happy smiles of each of its residents. I congratulate CAREN on a job well done in the past decade and I wish the organization continued success in the years to come.

HONORING RETIRED WARRANT OFFICER JAMES BLACKSTONE

HON. RALPH M. HALL

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mr. HALL of Texas. Mr. Speaker, next month we will again pay tribute to our nation's veterans, and today I have the privilege of honoring one in particular—James Blackstone of Terrell, TX, a retired Warrant Officer of the United States Navy. James enlisted in the Navy in June, 1934, and retired in 1954. His experiences span the globe—and form part of the fabric of our nation's history.

James volunteered for service in China in 1934 and was granted assignment to the USS Sacramento, a seagoing gunboat. His boat rotated coastal patrol duty along the China coast from the Gulf of Chihli to the South China Sea. In 1938 he was assigned duty on the USS Jacob Jones, stationed in Villa Franc, France, and in 1939 he was assigned to a new class Destroyer, which was ordered to search and destroy German submarines and their bases on our side of the Atlantic. The next two years his ship was assigned convoy duty, where James served until shortly before the declaration of war in 1941.

In 1942 James was chosen to spend four months in diesel engine school—to train for a new class of diesel-powered ships that represented a great departure from traditional steam propulsion. James graduated at the top of his class and emerged as a leader. He was assigned to the Navy Yard in Vallejo, CA, where a new ship, the USS Clamp ARS–33 was under construction. It was a diesel-electric powered Auxiliary Rescue and Salvage Vessel. As Chief Motor Machinist Mate, Warrant Officer, James sketched in detail every part of the ship's engineering plant and oversaw its construction.

The Clamp at long last went to sea, its destination the Ellice Islands. The ship was the flagship of the salvage fleet. James participated in the invasion of Tarawa. He remembers being at Midway, Kwajalein, Eniwetock, Majuro, Ulithi and the Philippines. His ship arrived at Saipan on July 4, 1943, where James and the crew inspected and cleared a number of Japanese ships that were sunk during the invasion.

On February 19, 1945, the Clamp was part of the fleet that invaded Iwo Jima. ''Even for the battle hardened veterans that thought they had seen it all, the battle for the island of Iwo Jima was the most gut wrenching of all that had gone before,'' James recalls. ''The sight of our flag being raised on that mountain top was the most overwhelming, emotional feeling that I have ever experienced in my lifetime.''

The Clamp departed Iwo Jima some days after the flag raising and arrived at Kerama Retto, about 15 miles from Okinawa in preparation for the invasion. The following days and nights were the longest in his memory, he recalls. Attacks from suicide bombers and suicide boats were a constant threat. The memories of specific episodes James would rather not dwell on.

Okinawa and the Atolls of Kerama Retto were virtually secure when the Clamp received orders to return to Pearl Harbor in preparation for the invasion of Japan. On arrival, they were directed to proceed to a shipyard in Portland, Oregon—where James would meet up again with the ''love of his life,'' Virginia, who was working in a defense plant in Seattle.

James and Virginia quickly married and enjoyed a ''fifty-year love life, short of 3 months,'' James says. Virginia died in 1995, and it is evident that James misses her greatly. James resigned his commission for two months following the War—but was not happy. He reenlisted as a chief petty officer and handled responsibilities of an officer until his retirement in 1954. In 1956 he applied for work with the General Services Administration, Design and Construction Division, Public Buildings Service. He started work as a mechanical-electrical engineer and retired in 1973.

James is now in his 80's and has taken the time to record his enlisted experiences and to share those with me. He has lived a life of integrity and has fought the good fight. He is a man of honor who was devoted to his country, to his fellow citizens, and to his wife. In short, Mr. Speaker, James Blackstone is a great American and a real American hero—and I am proud to call him my friend and to honor him today.

HONORING JAMES RIZZUTO

HON. SCOTT McINNIS

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mr. McINNIS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to take this moment to pay tribute to a remarkable public servant, the Honorable James T. Rizzuto. Jim is stepping down as the Executive Director of the Colorado Department of Health Care Policy and Financing, a position he was appointed to in January of 1999. He has served the State of Colorado well and I would at this time like to honor his service.

Jim began his career in public service by first serving as a First Lieutenant Infantry Commander from 1969 to 1971. His experience in the military as well as his educational background helped to prepare him for the leadership responsibilities he would later take on in public office. After graduating with a degree in economics from the University of Colorado at Boulder, Jim went on to the American Graduate School of International Management, where he received his MBA in economics and finance.

In 1982, Jim ran and was elected to the Colorado State Senate where he served for 18 years. During his tenure in the State Senate, he served as a member of the Joint Budget Committee for 12 years. His work in the Colorado legislature earned him the LaJunta Community Service Award in 1994 and Colorado Business Journal also named him one of the top 10 effective legislators.

Jim has served his community, State, and Nation admirably. On behalf of the State of Colorado and the U.S. Congress, I would like to thank Jim for his outstanding commitment to public service and wish him the very best in all of his future endeavors.

CELEBRATING ''A WEEKEND OF GIVING CARE, A LIFETIME OF COMMITMENT''

HON. JOHN E. SWEENEY

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mr. SWEENEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to celebrate ''A Weekend of Giving Care, A Lifetime of Commitment,'' which will take place around our great nation on December 2–3, 2000. I would also like to recognize one of my constituents, Mr. Martin K. Bayne, of Clinton Park, in Upstate New York, who first advocated establishment of this wonderful celebration. Martin is a 50 year old publisher and long-time advocate for our nation's elders. Mr. Bayne has worked closely on long term care issues with several of my House colleagues in the recent past. His work has been instrumental in beginning the slow, long process of re-establishing our ties with the generation who brought us up, fed us and protected us.

A century ago, the average life expectancy was 46 years. Today, improvements in diet and medical practices are keeping us alive to average age of 78. Death, however, is often slow and preceded by years of chronic pain and disability. In 1900, we were usually surrounded by family when we died. Today, we often die alone, surrounded only by the sounds of compressors, ventilators, and electronic displays.

In 1900, aging was a normal part of our life, and an important intergenerational bond within the family. It signaled the natural cycle of birth and death, like the changing of the seasons. Today, aging is an aberration in a culture that is fixated—some say obsessed—on eternal youthfulness. Unfortunately, the old are sometimes even shunned, ignored, abused, and neglected.

As a show of commitment to our elder citizens, Martin Bayne proposed setting aside the first week in December as ''A Weekend of Giving Care, A Lifetime of Commitment.'' On that weekend, Mr. Bayne, who himself lives with the daily challenges of advanced Parkinson's Disease, will join other members of his community to volunteer in an elder care facility as a demonstration of their genuine commitment to the nation's oldest citizens—a generation too often forgotten and too seldom embraced.

''A Weekend of Giving Care, A Lifetime of Commitment'' will be an opportunity for many elder Americans to see beyond the health challenges of aging. This event also honors a sacred covenant and repays a debt. Our elders were responsible for our care and safety as infants. Now, the wheel of life comes full circle, and we must be mindful and ever vigilant of the well-being of our parents' generation.

Mr. Speaker, please join me in celebrating ''A Weekend of Giving Care, A Lifetime of Commitment.'' This celebration is an important step in showing our care and concern for elders in this nation. I salute Mr. Martin K. Bayne's efforts to establish this vital celebration, as well as all those volunteers who will participate in the event. I hope our nation pays close attention to the celebration on December 2–3, 2000 and carries the ''Lifetime of Commitment'' message forward in an attempt to provide respectable treatment and care to all our aging Americans.

PROPOSED SEC RULE COMMENT PERIOD

HON. MARK UDALL

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mr. UDALL of Colorado. Mr. Speaker, I rise to address a rule proposed by the Securities and Exchange Commission, SEC, that would affect the consulting affiliates of auditing firms.

In response to concerns voiced by some of my constituents, I joined many of my Small Business Committee colleagues in writing to SEC Chairman Arthur Levitt. We asked that the comment period on the proposed rule be extended past its September 25 deadline and that the rule be modified to address the concerns raised by members of the accounting industry.

It was not my intention to delay the final decision to next year. I strongly oppose any attempts to delay the final rulemaking process through legislative means.

As the SEC moves forward with this rule, it is my hope that all interested parties will have adequate time to voice their concerns. That being said, I have no doubt that SEC Chairman Levitt will conduct a thoughtful, inclusive comment period.

Ms. ESHOO. Mr. Speaker, due to a family emergency, I was not able to vote during consideration of rollcall votes 500–530.

SOCIAL SECURITY NUMBER CONFIDENTIALITY ACT OF 1999

SPEECH OF

HON. J.C. WATTS, JR.

OF OKLAHOMA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, October 17, 2000

Mr. WATTS of Oklahoma. Madam Speaker, as the information age continues forward, crimes resulting from the use of stolen personal information have occurred with greater frequency. Time and time again, a person's identity is taken from them unknowingly and used to someone else's advantage. Information such as Social Security Numbers, financial records, or medical documents are often easily found and easily abused.

The problem is wide spread. Unfortunately, our own Federal Government, in the form of the Social Security Administration, helps to allow for identity theft to more easily occur. In an alarming practice, the Social Security Administration has the Department of Treasury print a Social Security recipient's name, address, and Social Security Number on their benefits check. This information is then openly displayed in the window of the envelope. These envelopes are placed in the public mail system when any individual could potentially, and relatively easily, gain access to this information. This practice is irresponsible and must be changed. We cannot allow senior citizens to be the victims of government irresponsibility.

H.R. 3218, ''The Social Security Number Confidentiality Act,'' addresses the practice of printing Social Security Numbers in a place where the number can easily be seen or accessed. This forward thinking legislation directs the Treasury Secretary to take the necessary steps to end the practice of printing a recipients Social Security Number in an open and visible location.

Current law ensures that information obtained by the Social Security Administration is confidential. This legislation will make sure that the Federal Government obeys the law, and that it does not act irresponsibly in its job of keeping personal information confidential.

I urge further action by the Congress to explore where further privacy protection is needed and where the Federal Government is not protecting that privacy. In the same way, it is important that citizens take steps to protect themselves. One should always be careful to guard personal information.

This legislation is a positive step in protecting the privacy of our Nation's senior citizens. I urge my colleagues to help pass this legislation and help keep our nation's citizens' private lives just that—private.

HONORING MEMBERS OF THE CREW OF THE GUIDED MISSILE DESTROYER U.S.S. ''COLE''

SPEECH OF

HON. JOHN E. SWEENEY

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, October 18, 2000

Mr. SWEENEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to commmend the valiant sailors of the U.S.S. Cole and to express my deepest condolences to the families and loved ones who suffered losses due to an act of terrorism.

On October 12, 2000, the Navy family suffered a tremendous loss, when the U.S.S. Cole fell victim to terrorism while attempting to refuel at the Port of Aden in Yemen. My heart continues to go out to the families and friends of the American sailors who were killed, injured or are still missing. I commend our valiant sailors who responded quickly to this tragedy, minimizing casualties and damage to their ship.

It was a honor to assist three families from my District as they waited to hear news on their loved ones. Fortunately, the families and friends of Petty Officer Kevin Benoit of Cairo, NY, Ensign & Deck Division Commander Gregory McDearmon of Ballston Lake, NY, and Chief Petty Officer Charles Sweet of Broadalbin, NY, after hours of waiting, received word that their loved ones were safe.

It is important that we always remember that these brave men and women are serving our Nation and we should pay tribute to them. These sailors have made the ultimate sacrifice in service to their country. This is a loss felt by the entire nation.

This tragedy highlights the constant dangers faced by our armed forces around the world.

Our country must remain vigilant in protecting them from future terrorist or other attacks. Our government must work diligently to protect and provide aid to those who are injured and work with the families who are going through a period of grieving.

Again, Mr. Speaker, our prayers go out to the sailors, their families and friends.

IN MEMORY OF BETTY BANKS

HON. RALPH M. HALL

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mr. HALL of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in memory of a beloved citizen of the Fourth Congressional District and a dear friend, the late Betty Jean Henderson Banks of Ivanhoe, Texas, who passed away earlier this year. Betty was a wonderful woman whose kindness and dedication to her family, friends, and community will be long remembered.

Born in Louisiana to the late Lafayette Victor Henderson and Ida Butler Starke Henderson, Betty married James Walter Banks in 1938 in Bonham, Texas. Throughout her years in Bonham, Betty raised a family and worked tirelessly on behalf of her community. Betty was known by many for her work at the Sam Rayburn Memorial Veterans Center in Bonham, where she worked in food service. She also was known throughout Bonham for her volunteer efforts on numerous causes, from making uniforms for the Missionettes (Girls Club) to helping find and fight for a liver transplant for a baby in need. Betty was an integral part of a women's prayer group that met monthly for a prayer breakfast at the First National Bank in Bonham, and she was a member of the First Pentecostal Church of God in Bonham.

In the local paper, this was written about Betty by Mrs. Paul Keahey: ''Over the years she stood up for truth and honesty at all levels of society and government and what she believed to be right.'' These sentiments were echoed by her many friends and fellow citizens who knew her and loved her.

Betty is survived by her son and daughter-in-law, James V. ''Butch'' Banks and Carol of Baytown; two daughters and sons-in-law, Kathy and Mike Stockton of Ravenna and Becky and Victor Santiago of West Haven, Conn.; and a brother, Robert H. Henderson of Colville, Wash. She is also survived by seven grandchildren and three great-grandchildren. She was preceded in death by her loving husband, James Walter Banks, who passed away in 1996; a granddaughter, Amanda Stockton; brother, L. Victor Henderson, and a sister, Yvonne Henderson.

Betty was an honest and loyal friend to many and a role model in her community. We will miss her—but her legacy will live on in the lives of all those whom she touched with her generosity and kindness. Mr. Speaker, as we adjourn today, may we do so in memory of this beloved citizen of Fannin County, Betty Banks.

100TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH OF HUNTINGDON VALLEY

HON. JOSEPH M. HOEFFEL

OF PENNSYLVANIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mr. HOEFFEL. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to celebrate the 100th Anniversary of the First Baptist Church of Huntingdon Valley in Montgomery County, Pennsylvania.

The First Baptist Church of Huntingdon Valley was established in 1900. The first two decades of the century were years of intense recruitment as new Christians were being sought, baptized, and organized into a church body. The founder and first pastor, the Reverend Price David Chandler, united two small groups, a home-based weekly prayer meeting and a home-based Sunday School class, to form the nucleus of the church.

Through World War I, the church remained intact and served as a place of worship for the community suffering from national unrest and disrupted family lives. During this time, the building experienced a series of remodelings and renovations including the installation of electric lighting, stained glass windows, a metal ceiling, pews to replace chairs, and central heating.

The 1930s brought the Great Depression and First Baptist established a system of dues whereby members were considered in good standing if they paid 25 cents each month on Communion Sunday. In 1937 after 37 years of faithful service, Reverend Chandler passed away.

The spirit of First Baptist Church was tested in the 1940s as a result of World War II. Attendance was unstable because young men were drafted into the military and other members, both men and women, worked in defense plants with irregular and demanding hours. Despite the hard times, First Baptist remained in business.

The 1960s were a time of renewal for the church. A Vacation Bible School was initiated and the First Baptist Church installed its fourth pastor, the Reverend Howard Cartwright, Jr., whose intense interest was missionary work. The congregation became acquainted with missionaries from far and near, serving in both foreign and domestic areas.

In 1997, the First Baptist Church of Huntingdon Valley installed its current pastor, the Reverend Bruce Wayne Petty, Sr., whose very vigorous, enthusiastic teaching and preaching ministry increase spiritual insights necessary to meet the challenges of the 21st Century.

As one of the oldest churches in Montgomery County, First Baptist demonstrates how commitment and dedication can lead to a prosperous and successful church. The history that surrounds the First Baptist Church of Huntingdon Valley is unparalleled and it is a privilege to recognize this extraordinary parish on the occasion of its 100th Anniversary.

MEETING THE NEEDS OF OUR CHILDREN IN THE 21ST CENTURY

HON. LORETTA SANCHEZ

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Ms. SANCHEZ. Mr. Speaker, today I have the opportunity to voice my strong concern over the lack of legislation being passed to improve the deterioration of our nation's schools.

During the 106th Congress, I authored H.R. 415 and I co-sponsored H.R. 1660, H.R. 1960, H.R. 3874, and H.R. 4094. Each of these bills, if the majority party permitted them to be considered, would have facilitated school construction—an issue that can no longer be overlooked by the federal government.

H.R. 415, my Expand and Rebuild America's Schools Act, will encourage new school and classroom construction through the creation of a new class of tax-exempt bonds. These bonds are similar to the Qualified Zone Academy bonds created in the Taxpayer Relief Act of 1997 for the purpose of school renovation. My bill focuses on using these new bonds specifically for the construction of new classrooms and schools, and to assist overcrowded, high growth rate schools that are struggling to adequately house their students.

H.R. 415 will assist Local Education Agencies (LEAs) with limited financial resources to combat major overcrowding problems due to increasing enrollment. The program provides interest-free capital to LEAs by giving a tax credit to the financial institution in the amount equal to the interest that would otherwise be paid. The local school district is then required to repay only the principal amount borrowed. The Secretary of Education will be responsible for direct distribution of the bond program to the LEAs, avoiding any state bureaucracy in funding decisions or program administration.

Let's examine the facts about the conditions of our schools. Between 2000 and 2010, the average national increase of public high school students is 10%, with an expected increase of 15% in my home state of California. This year, 53 million children will enter public and private elementary and secondary schools in the United States. By 2020, the Department of Education estimates that about 55 million children will be enrolled in our nation's schools, with this number increasing to 60 million by 2030.

In California alone, the Department of Education projects that elementary and secondary school enrollment will increase by 4.6% over the next 10 years. This ranks 12th among states with the largest expected increases. On a more local level, Orange County has already experienced a 30.9% increase in the enrollment of elementary and secondary school students from 1990–1998.

The bottom line here is that we have a growing population of students, and we do not have the infrastructure in place to properly accommodate all of them. These are frightening statistics for the future of our nation. It is our responsibility to our children to take action on this matter immediately. We wouldn't think of sending our men and women in the armed services into a battle without the best training they can be supplied. Why are we sending our children into this global economy and competitive world with less than the best preparation? This is indeed an issue of national security for the United States.

Let's forget about the future for a moment and focus on where we are putting our children now. In a study issued by the National Center for Education Statistics (NCES) on the conditions of public schools, three-quarters of all schools reported the need to spend money on repairs, renovations, and modernization to bring their school buildings into good overall condition. Approximately one-fifth of schools indicated less than adequate conditions for life safety features, roofs, and electric power. They also reported that 43% of the schools reported that at least one of six environmental factors was in unsatisfactory condition. Moreover, about 36% of schools indicated that they used portable classrooms.

But wait, it gets worse. NCES also reports that 78% of all schools in rural America need to be repaired and modernized. Nearly one-half (47%) of all schools in rural America have unsatisfactory environmental conditions. Over 30% report inadequate heating, ventilation, and air conditioning.

How do we expect our students to improve their performance if we are not meeting their basic needs? The National Education Association estimates that the total funding need for public school modernization is $321.9 billion. Of that total, $268.2 billion is needed for school infrastructures and $53.7 billion is needed for education technologies.

We must take action now to enable us to provide the best education possible for our current and future students. We must pass legislation that will facilitate the construction and repair of our nations public schools. We must strongly consider passing legislation like H.R. 415. The majority party in the Congress should make this a priority—not put it on a back burner.

We can't afford to waste any more time. While we fight about the cost and the most effective ways to improve our schools, there is a student in California who can't go out to play because her playground is now filled with portable classrooms. While we struggle to realize that this is an issue of the highest priority, a student in New York is walking around a trash can in the middle of the hall that is catching the rain water falling from a leaky roof. Let's not wait any longer.

My fellow colleagues, let's pass legislation that will allow our students to learn and our teachers to teach in a safe, clean, uncrowded environment. I truly believe that the future economic health and security of our nation depends upon it.

TRIBUTE TO J.R. CURTIS

HON. RALPH M. HALL

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mr. HALL of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in memory of an exceptional man, an outstanding community leader and beloved citizen of Longview, Texas, the late J.R. Curtis, whose life was cut short at the age of 55 following a motorcycle accident on September 2 in Durango, Colorado. J.R. lived life with enthusiasm—and with a tremendous devotion to his family, his community, his friends and his faith. He leaves a remarkable legacy of professional and civic accomplishments—as well as a legacy of loving relationships with his family and many friends.

J.R. was born on August 18, 1945, to James R. Curtis, Sr., and Sarah DeRue Armstrong Curtis of Longview. RECOGNIZING MS. KARIN M. ORBON PARTICIPANT IN THE 2000 AWARDS FOR EXCELLENCE IN TEACHING EXCHANGE PROGRAM

HON. RICHARD E. NEAL

OF MASSACHUSETTS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mr. NEAL of Massachusetts. Mr. Speaker, I would like to take this opportunity to recognize the efforts of Ms. Karin M. Orbon. Ms. Orbon has been selected to participate in the 2000 Awards for Excellence in Teaching exchange program between the United States and six countries in the former Soviet Union. Ms. Orbon will be visiting Russia as a member of the 23 teacher U.S. delegation.

The teachers chosen for this assignment were selected from a pool of educators who had previously been honored for their excellence in teaching through such programs as the annual U.S. Teacher of the Year Award and the Miliken Educator Awards. Ms. Orbon, a computer, business and accounting teacher at North Brookfield High School is a recipient of the Miliken award.

The Milken Family Foundation was established in 1982 to support education and health care nationwide. The Milken Educator Awards were established in 1985 to celebrate and reward educators who are making great strides in improving the nation's education system. The Milken national conference annually recognizes outstanding national educators who receive the Milken Family Foundation National Educator Awards, carrying with it a $25,000 check to each educator.

The 70 teachers from the former Soviet Union participating in this exchange have already visited the United States as part of their program. Ms. Orbon will participate in the reciprocal portion of the program through discussions on English and American studies programs and what effect the introduction of American studies into the foreign language curricula has on teaching in Russia. She may even be invited to teach a class.

The American Councils for International Education, the group sponsoring this teacher exchange, has made a great choice in the selection of Ms. Orbon for their program. She is a leader among the educators of Massachusetts and an invaluable emissary for the United States. The school system of North Brookfield, Massachusetts is blessed to have Ms. Orbon in their classroom, and I am honored to count her among my constituents.

THE FIRST ANNUAL PARKER-O'QUINN TROPHY

HON. JAY DICKEY

OF ARKANSAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mr. DICKEY. Mr. Speaker, on Friday, October 13, 2000, 1 had the honor of participating in the presentation of the first annual ''Parker-O'Quinn Trophy'' to the Fordyce Redbug Football Team. Today, I want to honor the great football rivalry between two great South Arkansas communities, Fordyce and Warren.

Out of this rivalry has come people such as Paul ''Bear'' Bryant, Larry Lacewell, and other notable leaders and football stars. Out of this came the rivalry between two great coaches, Coach Mickey O'Quinn and Coach Jimmy ''Red'' Parker.

The Fordyce/Warren football rivalry has always been a major event in South Arkansas. It was never more heated and fierce than during the O'Quinn and Parker era. These two coaches were known for their competitive and innovative approaches to the great game of football.

Both Coach Parker and Coach O'Quinn went on to become legends in their own fields and in their own time. I can attest personally to the feelings of love and affection from those students that played for and learned with them. The lessons learned playing for these two great coaches last a lifetime: determination, dedication, a willingness to work, a strong desire to win, and a spirit of sportsmanship in defeat. All of these lessons make for better citizens and better communities. South Arkansas is blessed to have had two coaches of this caliber pass our way in our time.

There is an uncommon bond of friendship and respect among the players, fans and coaches from the O'Quinn and Parker time; one that goes beyond mere competition. Instead it is a bond that symbolizes the spirit of the people of South Arkansas.

Warren and Fordyce are natural rivals but also natural friends. Never was this more apparent than in the relationship between two coaches that are the most spirited of rivals and the greatest of friends.

Now, we come to a new era and a renewal of the competitive spirit between the two rivals, symbolized by the ''Parker-O'Quinn Trophy''.

HONORING PASTOR CHARLES SIMS, JR.

HON. PETER J. VISCLOSKY

OF INDIANA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mr. VISCLOSKY. Mr. Speaker, it is with great pleasure and admiration that I congratulate Pastor Charles Sims, Jr. for his ten years of dedicated service to Saint Philip Lutheran Church in Gary, Indiana. One of the longest tenured Lutheran pastors to serve in the city of Gary, the members of St. Philip deeply appreciate Pastor Sims unfailing dedication to strengthening the parish community. To recognize his commitment to St. Philip Church, his parishioners are hosting a celebration dinner in his honor, entitled ''Staying the Course, Answering the Call,'' on November 11, 2000.

From modest beginnings, St. Philip has grown into an integral part of the area and neighborhood. The community activism and social awareness displayed by the congregation has made a lasting difference to the citizens of Gary. The parishioners' outreach and concern for their fellow man can be attributed in large part to the efforts of Pastor Sims. He has consistently shown the courage and leadership necessary to effect change in his community.

Originally named Tarrytown Lutheran Church, St. Philip was constructed in 1956 to serve the spiritual needs of African-American Lutherans living on the far west side of Gary. During its dedication service on January 20, 1957, the congregation renamed the Church. On October 22, 1967 the members of the parish dedicated a new educational wing to the church. Located at 3545 West 20th Place in Gary, the church has been a foundation of the community for many years.

Many ministers sustained St. Philip during its first 34 years of existence. Some of the preachers held permanent assignments, while others worked on a part-time basis. On October 21, 1990 the loyal congregation of St. Philip was blessed to have Pastor Sims, a graduate of Chicago University's Lutheran Seminary, accepted the call to lead the St. Philip parish.

Mr. Speaker, I ask you and my other distinguished colleagues to join me in congratulating Pastor Charles Sims, Jr. for his decade of tireless service to the members of St. Philip Lutheran Church and the Gary community. We are fortunate to have such an outstanding leader in our community, and I hope the people of St. Philip enjoy many more decades under Pastor Sims' spiritual guidance. His vision and spiritual mission have made Northwest Indiana a better place to live and work.

RETIRED MARINE COLONEL BRIAN QUIRK SEEKS PROPER BURIAL FOR WWII WAR HERO REMAINS

HON. WILLIAM O. LIPINSKI

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mr. LIPINSKI. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize a dear friend of mine, retired Marine Colonel Brian Quirk, on his endless desire to preserve the lives of our fallen war heroes.

At the annual convention of the Marine Corps League in New Orleans, Louisiana, Colonel Quirk proposed a resolution that the United States Congress demands an apology from the Japanese government. This proposal arose because of unanswered questions regarding incidents on the small Pacific island called Makin Island between August and October of 1942.

In August of 1942, Colonel Quirk was on the submarine with Donnie Roberton of Franklin, Louisiana, a Marine who is thought to have been beheaded by the Japanese on Makin Island. Colonel Quirk and Private Roberton were comrades during WWII en route to Makin Island. They were both privates and members of the Carlson's Raiders, a group of 220 Marines headed by a celebrated fighter who had done a tour with the Chinese Army against the Japanese in the 1930s. They were under the command of James Roosevelt, the son of President Franklin Roosevelt. The mission of the Carlson's Raiders in August of 1942 was to attack the Japanese on Makin Island. It was believed that there were only 100 Japanese on the island. The battled lasted one morning and all the Japanese were believed to be dead.

About 140 wounded American Marines left the island by boat, which left behind about 60 Marines on Makin Island. Private Roberton and four other Marines volunteered to leave the submarine to rescue the remaining men on the island. The five men journeyed in a rubber boat back to the island, but were spotted by Japanese aircraft and bombed in the water. The five men were presumed dead.

From this point on in the story little more is known. However, there is record that nine or ten Marines had surrendered to the Japanese on Makin Island at the end of September. There is also record that nine Marines were beheaded in October of 1942. This leaves many unanswered questions for the family and friends of our fallen war heroes who may have been involved in this attack.

Colonel Quirk is now actively seeking answers, more importantly, an apology from the Japanese government for their inhumane treatment of our Marines. This is a 58-year-old mystery that Colonel Quirk is determined to discover the truth. I commend Colonel Quirk on his quest for the truth.

WELCOMING AANA ''FALL ASSEMBLY OF STATES'' TO SAN ANTONIO, TEXAS

HON. HENRY BONILLA

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mr. BONILLA. Mr. Speaker, on behalf of the people of the largest city in my Texas congressional district, I want to welcome the American Association of Nurse Anesthetists Fall Assembly of States to the City of San Antonio, for their November 9–12, 2000 meeting.

The 28,000 member AANA will bring to downtown San Antonio Certified Registered Nurse Anesthetists (CRNAs) from every State and the District of Columbia to review issues in anesthesia and health care. These include improving patient safety, expanding educational opportunities to meet workforce shortages, and examining health care policy in Washington, DC, and the States. As a member of the House Appropriations Subcommittee on Labor, HHS and Education, I know that the taxpayers are making major investments in health research, in health professions education, and in providing quality health care to seniors and to people who are disadvantaged. The value of each of these depends on individual health professionals like CRNAs to carry out this important work through continuing professional development.

In addition, this meeting will mark the final association gathering for AANA's longtime executive director, John Garde, and the debut of the association's new executive director, Jeff Beutler. Mr. Garde, of Park Ridge, Illinois, has enjoyed a distinguished career as a CRNA, an educator, an officer and past president of the AANA, and for the past 17 years he has served as the association's executive director. His successor, Mr. Beutler, is a past AANA

Deputy Executive Director, a distinguished leader in health care and anesthesia care in his own right, and for the past decade has run a successful anesthesia care practice in Grand Rapids, Michigan.

Mr. Speaker, the people of San Antonio are happy to welcome the AANA Fall Assembly of States during this time of change and growth in this important health professionals' association. I congratulate Mr. Garde on his life's work, and Mr. Beutler on his task ahead, and wish them and their fellow CRNAs from around the country a successful and enjoyable assembly in the shadow of our historic Alamo.

INTRODUCTION OF THE CONSERVATION SECURITY ACT

HON. DAVID MINGE

OF MINNESOTA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mr. MINGE. Mr. Speaker, today, I along with twenty four House Members, introduced the Conservation Security Act. We believe now is the time for Congress to make conservation a cornerstone of the next Farm Bill. And promoting fiscally sound, environmentally friendly conservation farm policy will result in win-win-win situations for farmers, for the environment and for the American taxpayer.

This legislation will allow for conservation to become an integral part of agriculture by providing opportunities for all interested farmers, ranchers, and other agricultural producers to participate in a voluntary, incentive-based federal conservation program. Landowners and operators would enter into Conservation Security Contracts and Plans and receive payments based on the type of conservation practices they are willing to undertake, plan, implement and maintain. For instance, conservation practices can, range from soil and residue management, contour farming, and cover cropping to comprehensive farm plans that take into account all the resource concerns of the agricultural operation.

The Conservation Security Act will establish three tiers of voluntary conservation practices, plans and payment levels while allowing for continued participation in other agriculture conservation programs. A participant may also receive payments based on established practices and for adopting innovative practices and systems, pilot testing, new technologies, and new conservation techniques. Participation would be voluntary and would enable farmers to implement plans they believe in without sacrificing income that they might go broke, while helping to preserve diversified, low-input, family size farming and ranching operations.

The Conservation Security Act will benefit the environment and augment on-farm income. And I think a majority would agree that the issues of conservation, land stewardship and farm and ranch income are highly important to the public.

A TRIBUTE TO DR. BARRY HARDING

HON. MIKE McINTYRE

OF NORTH CAROLINA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mr. McINTYRE. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to Superintendent Barry Harding of Robeson County in the great state of North Carolina. Dr. Harding was recently named National Indian Educator of the Year by the National Indian Education Association. Dr. Harding, a former teacher, coach, principal, associate superintendent, and special assistant to the superintendent, is the second Lumbee Indian in the association's history to receive this award. This high honor was bestowed upon him in recognition of his major contributions to improving educational opportunity and quality for the children of Robeson County.

When I think of Dr. Harding's commitment to education, the words ''spirit, sacrifice, and service'' come to mind. Dr. Harding's positive spirit has always been to do the task at hand—a spirit that inspires students to achieve. His sacrifice in time and commitment has been to make Robeson County a better place for children to learn and live.

Pearl S. Buck once said, ''To serve is beautiful, but only if it is done with joy and a whole heart and free mind.'' There is no question that Dr. Harding's twenty-six years of service have been the epitome of this statement. Service to our children, the citizens of tomorrow, has been the embodiment of his life.

Nearly half of the 24,000 students in the Robeson County school district are American Indian, and Dr. Harding represents one of the voices that have spoken out to help improve the education of Native Americans—an education that recognizes, not denies, heritage and culture. Like Dr. Dean Chavers, the Lumbee educator born and reared in Pembroke, North Carolina, who went on to receive his Ph.D. from Stanford University and raise money for Native American scholarship funds, Dr. Harding has fought to make Indian education part of the national education agenda.

John F. Kennedy once said, ''Let us think of education as the means of developing our greatest abilities, because in each of us there is a private hope and dream which, fulfilled, can be translated into benefit for everyone and greater strength for our nation.''

Dr. Harding has chosen to dedicate his life to inspiring and educating America's children. He has helped our children and our youth develop their greatest abilities, and in doing so, he serves as a reservoir of strength for our community, state, and nation. Dr. Harding, may God's strength, joy, and peace be with you and your family as you continue your service and commitment to our children.

IN RECOGNITION OF RALPH RAYMOND

HON. JAMES P. McGOVERN

OF MASSACHUSETTS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mr. McGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to Ralph Raymond, the coach of the gold-winning U.S. Women's softball team. Coach Raymond is from my hometown of Worcester, Massachusetts, and I know that our entire community is proud of his wonderful accomplishments.

All of us watched with pride last month as our softball team overcame tremendous odds in Sydney to take the gold medal. And they didn't just win—they won with class, style and pure enjoyment of the game. They showed great team spirit and a commendable commitment to hard work. All of those attributes speak volumes about Coach Raymond.

As Coach Raymond has noted, nearly I million women are playing fast-pitch softball in high schools and colleges across the country. Softball has provided great opportunities for girls to stay physically fit and enjoy the benefits of sports at an early age—benefits like teamwork, camaraderie, and accepting both victory and defeat with humility and grace.

Again, Mr. Speaker, I want to congratulate Coach Ralph Raymond for a job very well done, and I hope we can convince him to coach our softball team in Athens in 2004. I hope all my colleagues will join me in paying tribute to one of Worcester's finest sportsmen.

REVEREND CHARLES J. BEIRNE, S.J., APPOINTED PRESIDENT OF LE MOYNE COLLEGE

HON. JAMES T. WALSH

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mr. WALSH. Mr. Speaker, on July 1, 2000, the Reverend Charles J. Beirne was named the 11th President of Le Moyne College in Syracuse, New York. Le Moyne College, a private four-year Jesuit college, has an enrollment of approximately 2,000 full-time undergraduate students in programs of liberal arts, the sciences and pre-professional studies. Le Moyne also offers a physician assistant program and graduate programs in education and business administration. Founded in 1946, Le Moyne is the second youngest of the 28 Jesuit colleges in the nation.

Today I would like to recognize Fr. Beirne as his first academic year as President of Le Moyne College commences. Fr. Beirne brings impeccable academic credentials, remarkable life experiences and an enthusiastic attitude to an institution just reaching its stride of academic excellence.

Previously, Fr. Beirne served in San Salvador as the academic Vice President at the Universidad Centroamericana. There he bravely replaced his comrade, Rev. Ignacio Martin Baro, S.J., who was murdered by the Salvadoran government forces. In addition, Fr. Beirne was academic Vice President at Santa Clara University, an Associate Dean at Georgetown University Business School in Washington, DC, and Principal at Regis High School in New York City and Colegio San Ignacio in Puerto Rico.

Most recently, Le Moyne College has experienced great strides in its pursuit of academic excellence, receiving national recognition. This past year the US World and News Report ranked Le Moyne College sixth among all liberal arts colleges and universities in the North.

I am pleased to commend Rev. Charles J. Beirne for his years of service to all people and to congratulate him on his appointment as President of Le Moyne College.

KEEP DEMOCRATIC REFORMS IN SRPSKA ON TRACK

HON. BENJAMIN A. GILMAN

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Speaker, elections in the Serbian majority entity of Bosnia and Herzegovina, the Republic of Srpska, next month will put to the test the efforts of the international community and the people of Bosnia to create lasting and stable reforms and democratic institutions. Prime Minister Milorad Dodik, leader of the Party of Independent Social Democrats will stand for reelection. Dodik has demonstrated a willingness to work for responsible change in Srpska and throughout Bosnia and Herzegovina.

Dodik's main opponent, Mirko Sarovic is a member of the party that led the brutal war against the people of Bosnia in the earlier part of this decade. Victory for the nationalist forces in next month's election would be a stark reversal of the changes we have seen throughout the former Yugoslavia. Dodik has strongly endorsed the new President of Serbia, Vojislav Kostunica, while his opponent, has decried the free expression of his fellow Serbs.

Dodik has worked in cooperation with the international community to foster economic reforms, and to instill a new spirit of tolerance in Srpska that has led to an unprecedented number of minority refugee returns to the Republic during the past year. Our U.S. Ambassador, Tom Miller, has made it clear that if the opposition to Dodik wins, further cooperation by our government will be impossible.

The people of Srpska have a clear choice as they cast their ballots next month: to continue the progress they have made to date through their hard work and diligence, or to return to the past with its legacy of hardship, repression, and impoverishment. I hope that they consider their choices carefully, and make the decision to continue progress and hope for a better life for them and their children.

HONORING MICHAEL F. RODGERS FOR HIS SERVICE TO OLDER AMERICANS

HON. THOMAS M. DAVIS

OF VIRGINIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mr. DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I would like to take this opportunity to recognize to a constituent of mine, Michael F. Rodgers, for his many years of service to older Americans, particularly those in need of housing or various forms of long-term care. For the last fourteen years, Mr. Rodgers has served as the Senior Vice President of the American Association of Homes and Services for the Aging (AAHSA). AAHSA is a national nonprofit organization representing 6,000 nursing homes, continuing care retirement communities, senior housing, assisted living facilities, and community service organizations for seniors. AAHSA is a leader in the development of an integrated continuum of care for frail elderly people and individuals with disabilities. I am familiar with AAHSA through the membership of three excellent retirement communities within my district, Goodwin House West in Falls Church, The Virginian in Fairfax, and Westminister at Lake Ridge.

Throughout his tenure at AAHSA, Mr. Rodgers has devoted talent, skill, dedication and commitment to advocating for mission-driven, non-profit senior services across the spectrum of need. He has developed and implemented a public policy and advocacy program whose goal is a more rational and integrated system of long-term care that will serve seniors in the most appropriate and least restrictive environment possible. He has fought for effective solutions to issues raised by increasing longevity and the emergence of a growing ''old old'' population whose needs no longer can be met by the informal care network of the past.

In addition to his work at AAHSA, Mr. Rodgers is a member of the Board of Directors of the American Society on Aging and also belongs to the Gerontological Society of America. He teaches at John Hopkins University as a member of the adjunct faculty in the Center on Aging Programs and Studies. Mr. Rodgers was chosen as a delegate to the most recent White House Conference on Aging in 1995.

Prior to joining AAHSA, Mr. Rodgers worked on Capitol Hill for several years. For two years, he was the staff director of the House Select Committee on Aging's Subcommittee on Housing and Consumer Interests. Previously, he spent six years on the senior professional staff of the Senate Special Committee on Aging under the chairmanship of the late Pennsylvania Senator John Heinz. His work with these committees focused on health, long-term care, assisted housing and other aging-related legislation. Before coming to the Hill, Mr. Rodgers was the Director of the Bureau of Policy, Planning and Evaluation at the Pennsylvania Department of Aging. Previously, he served as the Executive Director of the Lackawanna County Area on Aging in Scranton, Pennsylvania, Mr. Rodgers received a master's degree in rehabilitation counseling and psychology from the University of Scranton, where he subsequently was on the adjunct faculty as a professional lecturer.

Mr. Speaker, in conclusion, I would like to wish Mr. Rodgers the very best as he prepares to depart from the AAHSA to join the Catholic Health Association, where he will become the new Director of Government Relations. In this capacity, he will have the opportunity to continue to work on behalf of faith-based, mission driven providers of high-quality health and long-term care. I know his colleagues join me in recognizing his many years of service to America's seniors and in wishing him continued success in his new role.

IN HONOR OF DR. CLAUDE W. CUMMINGS' 39 YEARS OF PASTORAL SERVICE TO THE EBENEZER ASSEMBLY OF CHRIST IN CLEVELAND, OHIO

HON. DENNIS J. KUCINICH

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, today I honor of the pastor of Ebenezer Assembly of Christ, Dr. Claude Cummings. A man who has devoted his adult life as an ordained minister of God, Dr. Cummings is an example of selfless leadership and service to those who share his spiritual faith.

Dr. Claude Cummings, son of the late Bishop Claude and Mattie Cummings, knew he was called into ministerial service when he began preaching at the age of 18. He was ordained at the age of 26, and has since worked tirelessly as a servant of God. Dr. Cummings made his first move to Cleveland, Ohio in 1956, only to leave two years later due to the call of the Army. He went on to serve in Texas, both in San Antonio and then as a pastor of a small church in Sequin, until allowed to return home to Cleveland in 1961. There, he was sent to minister to a small group of Saints in Miles Heights, Ohio, who were attempting to build a church. As an example of the dedication and devotion Dr. Claude Cummings has shown throughout his years of service, he and first wife, Faith Cummings, shared their resources to complete the church-building project which had since haulted progress. They worked untiringly to get the edifice completed, only to see it destroyed in a tornado shortly after its dedication. Despite the disaster, Dr. Cummings assumed the role of general contractor, and worked even harder to build the edifice which now stands.

Dr. Cummings has always endeavored to further his education, particularly within his own faith. Because of this love of the Word, he attended many colleges, including Aenon Bible College, Fenn (Cleveland State), and Grace Bible College. An obvious advocate of life-long learning, he currently continues his studies at Ashland Bible College and the Moody Bible Institute. Dr. Cummings is known not only for his breadth and depth of knowledge of the scriptures, but also for his gift of sharing the Bible through his commanding preaching and his extraordinary way of bringing the Bible to life during Bible Classes.

Dr. Claude Cummings is affiliated with the Pentecostal Assemblies of the World, an organization in which he holds several offices; and the Apostolic Fellowship Conference. He was also one of the originators of the Cleveland Apostolic Ministerial Fellowship known as CAMF. A man of faith, Dr. Cummings is also a man of family. A loving father of five and grandfather to eight, he takes pride in both his personal and spiritual families.

Let us honor Dr. Claude Cummings for his tremendous dedication to the many people he has led, and let us recognize his tireless service to faith.

HONORING THE AMERICAN DENTAL HYGIENISTS ASSOCIATION OF ILLINOIS

HON. ROD R. BLAGOJEVICH

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mr. BLAGOJEVICH. Mr. Speaker, as another session of Congress comes to a conclusion, we are reminded of the many important and difficult issues which are dealt with on a daily basis in the Congress of the United States.

As we consider the responsibility with which we are entrusted to represent the people who send us here, it is important that we recognize the essential role of citizen participation in our form of government, Just one example of the practical application of this concept which I am honored to bring to the attention of my colleagues is the work done by the American Dental Hygienists' Association, the members of that organization from across Illinois and especially those in the 5th Congressional District of Illinois which I am honored to represent.

I want to recognize the tremendous work performed by these dedicated professionals who promote total health through quality oral care. Every year, they take time from their busy schedules to come to Washington and make sure that their voice is heard in the national debate over health care and other important issues of the day. In addition to taking continuing education courses, these leaders of the profession set policy for the association and strategize as to how to best fulfill the association's mission to improve the oral health of the public.

In 1923, the American Dental Hygienists' Association was established to enhance communication and mutual cooperation among dental hygienists. Today, ADHA is the largest national organization representing the professional interests of the more than 100,000 registered dental hygienists (RDHs) in the United States.

ADHA members work to improve the public's total health and to advance the art and science of their profession. In doing so, they play a critical role in meeting the needs of so many people in this country.

I appreciate their commitment and commend to my colleagues their example of civic participation and professional dedication.

HONORING BARBARA CASEY OF WASHINGTON STATE

HON. JAY INSLEE

OF WASHINGTON

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mr. INSLEE. Mr. Speaker, it is with great pleasure that I honor Ms. Barbara Casey for a long and dedicated career in improving the educational system in Washington State.

Ms. Casey, in her professional career and voluntary activities, has shown a commitment to improving the lives of students at home and in school. She began her work in education as a technical operator for a weekly public radio talk show on education issues. Then she moved her volunteer work into the school. She has served as a health room volunteer, classroom volunteer, library aide, reading aide, phoneathon volunteer, C2B2 Committee member and lobbyist. Barbara has also been the Legislation Chair for the Issaquah PTSA Council and Sunset PTA Board of Directors.

Her presence in the Parent Teacher Association (PTA) is especially notable. She has served as the Sunset PTA Board President and received the Golden Acorn Award twice from the Sunset PTA and Issaquah PTSA Council. In addition, Barbara has volunteered on an impressive list of education organizations. Her work is well known on the Sunset Elementary Shared Management Team, Big Idea Grant Committee, State PTA Legislation Committee and Issaquah Family Service Network Task Force. Her outstanding contributions to the Community Health and Safety Network brought gubernatorial recognition.

Since 1994, Barbara has served as the first Government Relations Director of the Washington State PTA. Though an unusual position on a state PTA, it reflects the progressive nature of her work for education. Instead of merely reacting to the decisions of other education administrators, she has been proactive in her advocacy of children's education needs. Barbara has been a model of the PTA mission to speak on behalf of children in schools and the community, assist parents in developing skills to raise their children and encouraging parent and public involvement in public schools.

Mr. Speaker, I want to voice my appreciation and commendation for Barbara Casey. She reflects the best of what parents and other education advocates bring to our schools.

OF MISSOURI

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mr. SKELTON. Mr. Speaker, it is with deep sadness that I inform the House of the death of my good friend Governor Mel Carnahan, of Rolla, Missouri.

Governor Carnahan, 66, the fifty-first Governor of the State of Missouri, his son Roger Andrew ''Randy'' Carnahan, and a long-time advisor, Chris Sifford, died in an airplane crash on October 16, 2000, in rural Jefferson County.

Born in the small Ozark town of Birch Tree, Missouri, in 1934, Governor Carnahan lived his early years in Shannon and Carter Counties. He was the son of rural schoolteachers, and he carried on a longstanding family commitment to education during his distinguished career of public service. His father, the late A.S.J. Carnahan, a contemporary of President Harry Truman, served in the United States Congress for 14 years before being named by President Kennedy as the first U.S. Ambassador to Sierra Leone. His mother, the late Mary Carnahan, was an inspiration to hundreds of school children during her many years as a high school English teacher.

Governor Carnahan began his lifelong commitment to public service at the young age of 26, when he was elected municipal judge in his hometown of Rolla in 1961. Two years later, he won a seat in the Missouri House of Representatives and was elected Majority Floor Leader in his second term. Following his four years in the Missouri House, he returned to his hometown of Rolla where he built a successful law practice. In 1980, he was overwhelmingly elected State Treasurer and served in this position for four years. The Governor returned to public office in 1988, becoming Missouri's 42nd Lieutenant Governor. In a landslide victory in 1992, he won the Governor's office and Missouri voters returned him to office for a second term in 1996.

Governor Carnahan was running for the United States Senate, after two remarkably successful four-year terms as Governor. Among the major accomplishments of his administration were the Outstanding Schools Act, a comprehensive package of reforms, new resources and accountability measures to improve Missouri's public schools; major tax relief for working families; welfare reform; some of the toughest anti-crime laws in the nation; and primary health care services for thousands of previously uninsured Missouri children. Governor Carnahan will forever be remembered as an advocate for children and working families.

Governor Carnahan held a Bachelor's Degree in business administration from George Washington University and graduated from the University of Missouri-Columbia Law School in 1959 with the highest scholastic honors—Law Review and Order of the Coif. He was a United States Air Force veteran, a 33rd degree Mason, and a longtime member of the First Baptist Church in Rolla. He served as Chairman of both the Southern and Democratic Governors' Association.

Mr. Speaker, Mel Carnahan was a good friend and a truly great American. I know the Members of the House will join me in extending heartfelt condolences to his family: his wife of 46 years, Jean Carnahan; two sons, Russ and Tom Carnahan; one daughter, Robin Carnahan, of St. Louis; one daughter-in-law, Debra Carnahan; one brother and sister-in-law, Bob and Oma Carnahan, and two grandsons, Austin and Andrew.

AMENDING PERISHABLE AGRICULTURAL COMMODITIES ACT

SPEECH OF

HON. GARY A. CONDIT

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, October 17, 2000

Mr. CONDIT. Mr. Speaker, Thank you, Speaker HASTERT and Mr. GEPHARDT for scheduling this bill on today's suspension calendar and bringing this important matter to the floor.

The Hunt's Point incident represents a serious threat to the entire produce industry. The acceptance of bribes by USDA inspectors erodes public trust in an inspection system meant to provide security and consistency to the produce industry as well as consumers. This legislation is the fruit of a continuous and effective dialog between the USDA and Congress to address the serious problems raised by this scandal.

On October 27, 1999, eight USDA fruit and vegetable inspectors were convicted of accepting bribes for downgrading loads of produce so that receivers could negotiate lower prices with shippers. Inspection certificates originally issued by USDA were held by the U.S. Attorney General and USDA OIG as key evidence in the criminal investigation. These same certificates are also necessary to establishing a PACA claim. As a result of the investigation, some growers and shippers did not recover those vital inspection certificates until as recently as June 23. Since the deadline for filing claims was July 27, this did not allow for sufficient time to review and process those claims.

For these reasons, I introduce along with Chairman POMBO this legislation to extend the filing deadline for PACA claims related to Hunt's Point to January 1, 2001.

This legislation will enable those growers and shippers to establish their losses, file a claim and recover.

TRIBUTE TO GENE MARTIN

HON. RALPH M. HALL

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mr. HALL of Texas. Mr. Speaker, Eugene Eaves Martin was born and raised in Rockwall, TX, my hometown in the Fourth District, and died on August 17 at the age of 78. He was a journeyman printer and production manager and a lifelong member of the International Typographical Union. Gene was also my best friend in high school.

Gene was everybody's favorite. He was on our track team and a great football player. His family was affluent—and Gene had access to cars and other advantages that many of us didn't have in those years of the great Depression. He shared everything he had with other students—including me and my family. He was by far the most popular and best-liked guy in school.

Gene maintained many of his boyhood friendships throughout his life. He never forget Rockwall High School—and returned to lead each high school reunion. Following high school graduation, Gene attended Texas Christian University in Forth Worth, then served in the U.S. Coast Guard during World War II. He served in the Philippines and in the horse patrol along Florida's eastern coast.

Gene worked as journeyman printer, foreman and production manger for several major newspapers, including the Houston Chronicle, Chicago Tribune, San Francisco Chronicle and Dallas Morning News until his retirement in 1986. He and his wife, Lucille, moved to Llano Grande Lake Park in 1994, where he made many new friends.

He is survived by his wife, Lucille; sons, Eugene, Jr., Mark, Larry and Todd; daughter, Len Lea Noack; step-daughter, Denise Kaplan; nine grandchildren; and several nieces, nephews and cousins. Gene was devoted to his profession, to his family, and to his friends—and I join all those who knew and loved him in remembering this wonderful man and outstanding citizen—Gene Martin.

HONORING POLICE CHIEF ROBERT F. NOLAN FOR OUTSTANDING SERVICE TO THE COMMUNITY

HON. ROSA L. DeLAURO

OF CONNECTICUT

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Ms. DELAURO. Mr. Speaker, it is with great pleasure that I rise today to join Notre Dame High School Alumni in paying tribute to an outstanding member of the Hamden, Connecticut community, Police Chief Robert Nolan. In a career that has spanned three decades, Bob has served the Hamden Police Department with dignity and integrity—exemplifying the qualities we expect of law enforcement officials. His unparalleled level of commitment and dedication to the Hamden community throughout his career has been incredible. He has been a driving force in community awareness and public safety, striving to give our families better neighborhoods in which to raise our children. His work has had an invaluable impact on our community and we are all grateful.

Rising through the ranks of the Hamden Police Department, Bob has served the community in several different capacities—the myriad of awards and citations that adorn his walls are testimony to his unwavering dedication. I have had the distinct pleasure of working with him on several projects throughout his tenure. Nearly five years ago, as an Inspector in the Department's Youth Division, Bob participated in one of the first Law Enforcement Forums sponsored by the Anti-Crime Youth Council, a program which I created to help high school students address the increasing occurrence of youth crime and violence. He was an integral part of re-opening the doors of communication between law enforcement officials and teenagers in Hamden. With so many serious challenges facing our young people, his efforts on this issue have been inspiring. I am also proud of the work we have done to bring necessary funding to the Hamden Police Department. As the grants administrator for the Department, Bob has been responsible for ensuring that the Department has access to available state and federal funding—providing the Department with the ability to continue improving in its mission to serve and protect the residents of Hamden.

In addition to his professional contributions, Bob made time to volunteer for a variety of service and civic organizations. Honored by the Knights of Saint Patrick, the Civitan Club, the Marine Cadets of America and the Notre Dame Scholarship Fund, Bob has demonstrated an incredible and unique dedication to the community on a personal level as well. His volunteer efforts to raise funds on behalf of these organizations have been invaluable. With his outstanding record of good work, he has demonstrated a unique commitment to public service, leaving an indelible mark on the Hamden community.

Bob's dedication and generosity has truly enriched the Hamden community. His diligence and extraordinary hard work have gone a long way to improving the neighborhoods of Hamden and fostering a strong relationship between the community and the Department. I would like to extend my personal thanks to him for all the assistance he has given to myself and my staff. For his many contributions, professional and volunteer, I stand today to join his wife, Shirley, daughters, Dawn and Robyn, family friends and colleagues in congratulating Chief Robert Nolan for his innumerable efforts on behalf of our community and extend my best wishes for continued success.

ONE DAY IN PEACE

HON. JOHN CONYERS, JR.

OF MICHIGAN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Speaker, I rise this morning in solidarity with the world, and call on all other Members of the House to stand as well, and join over 100 nations, 25 United States governors, hundreds of mayors and over 1,000 organizations in nearly 140 countries in supporting One Day in Peace. The bill, House Concurrent Resolution 363, which I cosponsored with Representative DENNIS KUCINICH and many other Representatives, calls for January 1, in accordance with the United Nations General Assembly, to be a 24-hour period designated as One Day in Peace when the people of this Nation and the world act for the most part with unprecedented cooperation and good will. The Chairman and the Ranking Member of the House International Relations Committee have indicated that they will not oppose this resolution being brought to the floor now, and I urge all my fellow Congressmen to support this effort. Let us fulfill the dream by marking 01/01/01 as the first One Day in Peace worldwide. The bill urges people around the world to gather with family, friends, neighbors, and members of their community to pledge nonviolence in the new year and to share in a celebratory New Year meal. It also encourages Americans who are able to match their new year meal with a timely gift to the hungry at home or abroad. This Resolution is important because it acknowledges, the need to work for those goals that appeal to the greatest positive attributes of our humanity. My friends no better time exists to lift up a new standard of peace and goodwill in this world. Can you imagine, Mr. Speaker, if at the beginning of every year, all of America, and indeed all of the world proclaim aloud and at once, in unison and strength, that these are our goals: brotherhood, charity, understanding, and peace. Such a declaration has never before been made, but it can. I urge support of H. Con. Res. 363 and support its overwhelming passage.

INTRODUCTION OF THE SEAFOOD SAFETY AND MERCURY SCREENING ACT OF 2000

HON. FRANK PALLONE, JR.

OF NEW JERSEY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mr. PALLONE. Mr. Speaker, earlier this year the Mercury Policy Project and the California Communities Against Toxics found the Food and Drug Administration was not testing enough seafood for toxic mercury. Their findings were published in a report that was also cosponsored by the Sierra Club and Clean Water Action. In addition to contending the FDA's recommended level for methyl mercury exposure was inadequate, the report noted that the FDA does not check any domestic tuna, shark or swordfish for toxic mercury even though they tend to have the highest levels of the toxin.

The lack of a system to screen seafood for mercury is a serious gap in the nation's food safety system. Individuals who consume too much mercury can suffer serious health problems. That is why today I am introducing the Seafood Safety and Mercury Screening Act of 2000. This legislation will require the FDA to develop a system for testing seafood for methyl mercury. It will also require the FDA to develop a statutory threshold level for methyl mercury content in seafood and consider the findings of the National Academy of Sciences (NAS), which published a report on mercury exposure in July, when developing that threshold. The NAS report found that the Environmental Protection Agency's recommended level for methyl mercury exposure, which is stronger than the FDA's, is the more appropriate standard.

We know that if people ingest too much mercury they will get sick and we know exactly where to look for it. Domestic tuna, shark, and swordfish have very high levels of toxic mercury. If we have the means to detect this poison and know exactly where it comes from, common sense suggests that we take the time to look for it and take the necessary steps to inform the public. Typically we do not know about the source of an outbreak of food poisoning until the FDA or other government agencies works backwards to find its origin after people have already gotten sick. When it comes to mercury, we have the opportunity to be proactive and prevent illness instead of being reactive after its too late.

The establishment of a strong, enforceable standard that prohibits seafood that contains mercury above the recommended level from reaching the consumer will stop episodes of food poisoning before they have a chance to occur. Another important component of protecting the public from the contaminated seafood is by providing citizens with the information they need to make informed decisions about what they are eating. To that end, the Seafood Safety and Mercury Screening Act of 2000 will also establish a nation wide education program to educate consumers about the dangers of mercury contamination, with a particular emphasis on protecting the most vulnerable populations, pregnant women and children.

I urge all of my colleagues to join me in the effort to strengthen our nation's food safety system by lending their full support to the Seafood Safety and Mercury Screening Act of 2000.

HONORING YALE UNIVERSITY ON THEIR 300TH ANNIVERSARY

HON. ROSA L. DeLAURO

OF CONNECTICUT

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Ms. DELAURO. Mr. Speaker, it is with great pride that I rise today to pay tribute to one of the finest institutions for higher education in our nation. It is an honor and privilege to join with the New Haven Colony Historical Society in congratulating Yale University on its 300th anniversary.

On October 24, faculty, students, alumni and community members will gather as Yale University is honored with the 2000 Seal of the City Award. For the past eight years, the New Haven Colony Historical Society has bestowed this honor on an individual or institution whose activities or ideas have significantly added to the quality of life, the prosperity, or the general improvement of greater New Haven. For three centuries, Yale University has been a cornerstone of support for the New Haven community and has made significant contributions in all of these areas.

Nearly three centuries ago, a group of Congregational ministers created a ''Collegiate School'' where youths could be instructed in the arts and sciences and prepared for public service in both the Church and the Civil State. That commitment has been reflected in Yale's mission and role as an educator of leaders and a center for scholarship and research. Over the past several years, Yale University has played an instrumental role in the city of New Haven's efforts to revitalize Greater New Haven. Yale has forged a strong relationship with the city of New Haven, working with city administrators to ensure that the needs of our children and families are given every opportunity to build strong communities of which we can all be proud.

Yale University has had a profound impact on our community and our nation, not only as a leading academic institution, but as a center for public policy, the arts and sciences, and medicine. Since its inception in 1701, Yale has been home to some of our country's most infamous characters who have helped to shape the course of our society and our nation. Yale's alumni have been government leaders—Presidents Taft, Ford, Bush, and Clinton; they have made major advances in medicine and science—Eli Whitney, Samuel Morse, Dr. Benjamin Spock, Murray Gell-Mann; and they have contributed to the arts—Sinclair Lewis, Charles Ives, Cole Porter, Paul Newman, and Meryl Streep. Over the last three hundred years, Yale University has educated many of our most invigorating leaders and inspiring figureheads, bringing our nation ever forward into the future.

As we look ahead into the new millennium, we can be assured that Yale University, its administrators, faculty, and alumni will be there to help greater New Haven and our country continue to grow and flourish. It is an honor for me to stand today to congratulate Yale on its tercentennial and to extend my deepest thanks and appreciation for their innumerable efforts on behalf of our community.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

HON. XAVIER BECERRA

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mr. BECERRA. Mr. Speaker, on October 18, 2000, I was unavoidably detained and therefore unable to cast my vote on rollcall No. 531, H.J. Res. 631, on Agreeing to the Resolution Honoring the Members of the Crew of the Guided Missile Destroyer U.S.S. Cole Who Were Killed or Wounded in the Terrorist Attack on that Vessel in Aden, Yemen, on October 12, 2000. Had I been present for the vote, I would have voted ''yea.''

Mr. Speaker, I join my colleagues in honoring the members of the crew of the U.S.S. Cole who died on October 12th as a result of a cowardly act of terrorism, and I send my heartfelt condolences to their families, friends, and loved ones. I also rise to honor those serving on the U.S.S. Cole who were wounded in the attack, and wish them a speedy recovery. Finally, I salute those members of the crew who fought valiantly to save their ship and rescue their wounded shipmates. Indeed, I wish to express my deep gratitude to all of the men and women of our Armed Forces who routinely put their lives on the line.

ACTION TO PROMOTE GREATER RETIREMENT SECURITY SHOULD BE A PRIORITY

HON. MARK UDALL

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mr. UDALL of Colorado. Mr. Speaker, we are nearing the end of this 106th Congress—but we have not finished all the work that needs to be done. When the new Congress meets next year, it will find a long list of unfinished business. An important thing on that list will be action to support and improve the ability of all Americans to look forward to fiscal security in their years of retirement. I want to take this opportunity to outline my thinking about the steps that Congress should take toward that goal, in several areas.

SOCIAL SECURITY

Social Security is our most important and most successful program dealing with retirement security. Today its guaranteed benefits provide the primary source of income for 66 percent of Americans over age 65, and are especially important for the 42 percent of the elderly for whom Social Security is all that keeps them above the poverty line. It is also an important compact between generations and across divisions based on income levels.

I strongly support maintaining adequate and appropriate guaranteed defined benefits for current Social Security recipients, and for people who will retire in the future—but that does not mean that I oppose any changes in Social Security.

Earlier this year, I supported the successful effort to remove the earnings limit that could reduce Social Security payments to people retiring at age 65. And there are some other additional steps to revise Social Security that we should take right away. For example, we should limit the so-called ''windfall elimination'' offset so that it will not apply to individuals whose combined monthly income is under $2,000. And we should again allow blind individuals to earn up to the social security excess earnings threshold without losing benefits.

Further, as we look ahead, we must recognize that Social Security faces future demographic problems because retirement of the ''baby boom'' generation will greatly increase the number of beneficiaries in comparison with the number of people paying into the system.

Congress will have to address this problem, and should do so sooner rather than later—but, obviously, that will take time. In the meantime, our first priority should be to avoid making the problem harder. That means—Social Security's current surplus revenues should not be spent for any other purpose. That way, the Treasury Department will use these revenues to reduce the publicly-held debt. By paying down the debt, we will reduce the amount of interest the government otherwise would have to pay, freeing valuable resources and increasing our options to bolster Social Security for the future.

Congress also must avoid excessive and ill-targeted tax cuts that would endanger our ability to protect Social Security and Medicare and strengthen them for the future.

SAVING FOR RETIREMENT

Social Security is indispensable, but people will be better off if they can also have other sources of retirement income. So, we should make it easier for them to save and invest and accumulate assets. Previous action has led the way in several areas, and we can build on those foundations in some important ways, including—Increasing the amount that individuals can put into Individual Retirement Accounts (IRAs) and benefit from favorable treatment under the tax laws.

Enabling people to make additional contributions to 401(k) or similar retirement accounts, and making it easier to take full advantage of such retirement plans.

Making it easier for people to maintain their retirement accounts when they change jobs.

Making it more feasible for employers—especially small businesses—to establish and maintain retirement plans for their employees.

OTHER PROPOSALS

As we all know, both Vice President GORE and Governor George W. Bush, have proposed additional new initiatives. Under each, the federal government would assist people to set up, maintain, and benefit from individual investment accounts. But there is a big difference.

Under Governor Bush's plan, the federal assistance would come from allowing people to decide to divert part of their Social Security taxes into these accounts. In contrast, under the Vice President's plan general federal revenues—not Social Security revenues—would be used to add to the money people choose to put into tax-free individual savings accounts.

I am concerned about the effects of the Bush proposal on Social Security. Diverting revenues out of Social Security now will make it harder to maintain adequate guaranteed benefits in the future. And that effect is compounded because the diverted amounts cannot be used to pay down the debt, so it will be necessary to pay hundreds of billions of dollars in additional interest.

Those who support privatizing a portion of Social Security (the plan proposed by Governor Bush and by my Republican opponent, Ms. Carolyn Cox) claim that differences in benefits will be made up from the higher returns that can be earned by investing a portion of individual account balances in stocks and equities. But many economic forecasters have suggested that for this claim to be true, stock returns for the next 75 years will have to equal those of the last 75 years—a rate that seems unlikely to be sustained. It seems to me that to rely on that scenario would require a dramatic leap in faith that our national economic growth will continue the record pace of the last decade.

Moreover, the costs of administering individual retirement accounts have to be taken into account, and even conservative estimates suggest that these costs would be high enough to cut accumulations in individual retirement accounts by 20 percent over a worker's lifetime.

Diverting funds away from the Social Security Trust Fund strikes me as an unnecessary and potentially dangerous step in ''reforming'' Social Security. It has an element of risk in some ways similar to those involved in having the government invest the Trust Fund directly in the securities markets—which was one of the reasons I declined to support President Clinton's earlier proposal for such investments, even though the President at least tried to address the questions of stock market volatility.

In short, both the Bush plan and a similar one supported by my opponent, Ms. Cox, strike me as not the right way to proceed as we work for the long-term stability of Social Security.

I also have some questions about the Vice President's plan, but the fact it would not mean that kind of diversion—it is ''Social Security plus,'' not ''Social Security minus''—means that it would not start out by making it harder to assure that Social Security will continue to remain as the indispensable safety net for future retirees.

MEMORIAL TRIBUTE TO MARK HALLER

HON. GRACE F. NAPOLITANO

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mrs. NAPOLITANO. Mr. Speaker, I pay tribute to Mr. Mark Haller, an outstanding individual who passed away on October 10, 2000 at the age of 87.

Mr. Haller was born on June 27, 1913, of a Serbo-croation immigrant mother newly arrived in Steelton, Pennsylvania. Orphaned at the age of five when his mother passed away, Mr. Haller found himself surrounded with politically aware immigrant men from Central Europe while being raised by a foster mother in a boarding house. Mr. Haller left his foster home as a teenager and hitch-hiked to Seattle, Washington, where he became active in grassroots politics.

Mr. Haller was an active participant in the union movement, and the peace, civil rights and feminist movements of the 1960's. In 1961, Mr. Haller and his wife, Frankie, a very dear friend of mine, co-founded the Midway Democratic Club to function as an issues oriented Democratic Party Club. Since that time, the Midway Club has met every month, and until recently, the Midway Newsletter has featured Mr. Haller's monthly columns. For the last six years of his working life, he was union representative for the members of the Association of Western Pulp and Paper Workers at the Longview Fibre Company in Bell, California.

In addition to his passion for political activism, Mr. Haller was also well known for his dedication to his family. He is survived by Frankie, his wife of 52 years, his sons, Michael and Marko, granddaughter, Regina Allen, grandsons Michael and Kenneth, his dog, Buddha and cat, Snoopy.

Mr. Speaker, I ask my colleagues today to join me and Mark Haller's family and friends in paying tribute to an outstanding American whose lifelong dedication and zeal exemplified the highest ideals of citizenship.

SCIENTIFIC OPPORTUNITIES FOR YOUNG WOMEN

HON. SUE W. KELLY

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mrs. KELLY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize the need to attract young women towards scientific studies and to honor a program which encourages girls to pursue careers in this area.

Science and technology have taken on a large role in our society. The need for people skilled in these fields is critical to our future success, yet there is a disturbing trend—young women are shying away from science studies. Just 29 percent of high school girls say that they wish to become a scientist, half of the percentage of boys.

This dichotomy is what makes programs such as the IBM Technology Camp for Young Women so critical. Designed to show the importance of math, science and technology, the camps provide a positive image of these careers. There are currently five camps in three states encouraging the scientific talents of young women.

Schools now report that more girls are signing up for math and science courses. Parents and educators have noticed increased self-esteem among female students. Finally, this bond between employees and students continues through an e-mentoring program, allowing the interest to grow.

As a time when science plays an important role in our lives, I urge parents, teachers and businesses to help us foster the role of young women in science and commend IBM for its novel and innovative idea.

CONGRATULATIONS TO THE OLYMPIC ATHLETES OF SOUTH ORANGE/MAPLEWOOD

HON. DONALD M. PAYNE

OF NEW JERSEY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Speaker, I would like my colleagues here in the U.S. House of Representatives to join me in honoring a group of hometown heroes as they are honored at a ceremony on October 20, 2000. We in New Jersey are so proud of the outstanding athletes in the South Orange/Maplewood community who competed in the Olympics in Australia. The OlympicFest 2000 Committee, an organization formed by members of the local community, are celebrating the unique contributions of the athletes of South Orange and Maplewood to the 2000 U.S. Olympic Team.

History was made in Australia when three members of a family presented the United States at the Olympics. South Orange/maplewood is home to Joetta Clark Diggs, Jearl Miles-Clark and Hazel Clark, who all competed in the 800-meter run. Jearle Miles-Clark won a gold medal in the 4 by 400 relay. Coaching the girls was J.J. Clark, brother of Hazel and Joetta, and husband of Jearles Miles Clark.

Also being honored at the ceremony is an outstanding athlete, Tom Auth of Maplewood who competed in lightweight 4 man sculls. Coach John Moon of Seton Hall whose team won 5 gold medals, I silver and I bronze, will be recognized for his achievements. Shana Williams of Seton Hall will be honored as the winner of a bronze medal in 1996 and a participant in the 2000 Olympics.

Mr. Speaker, I know my colleagues join me in sending our congratulations and best wishes to all of these fine athletes who exemplify the positive spirit of competition and striving for excellence in behalf of our country. As residents gather to honor them at ''Olympic Square South Orange,'' we wish them continued success.

RECOGNIZING ROBERTA ROWE FOR A LIFETIME OF COMMUNITY SERVICE

HON. JO ANN EMERSON

OF MISSOURI

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mrs. EMERSON. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize one of my constituents who passed away several years ago after a long, rich life. The community is still impacted by her wonderful example of patience and kindness. I salute Mrs. Roberta Rowe who, 26 years after her passing, will have a park in Sikeston, MO, rededicated to her for her inspirational life.

Originally from Georgia, Mrs. Roberta Rowe came to Southeast Missouri with her five children, Mable, Alma, Eloise, Kathryn, and Carlton.

She soon became involved in her community as the leader of the Rainbow 4–H Club where she held meetings, arranged educational projects for the members and accompanied the club to Lincoln University every year for the annual state conference.

Mrs. Rowe was also an active member in Smith Chapel United Methodist Church throughout her life. She was a kindergarten teacher for the church, and often worked with the children in various activities. You could always find her cheerful spirit at a church function.

Always involved with the Bootheel community, Mrs. Rowe traveled with the Community Choir for monthly choir concerts in the African American Churches of the region. Monthly she would go to Benton along with her Smith Chapel friends, Mrs. Rosie Johnson, Mrs. Flora Holt, and Ms. Edna to learn about effective homemaking techniques through the University of Missouri Extension Club. She served as a teen supervisor during the summer, teaching them about lawncare and lawnscaping.

Although she did not complete high school herself, she pushed her children to pursue a strong education. Her twins, Carlton and Kathryn, completed college at Lincoln University, and the rest of her children spent time in college as well.

Mrs. Rowe's dedication to her family, her church, her community and education should be an inspiration to us all. Those who followed her example learned that ''greatness comes from service.'' It is her greatness that is remembered in Sikeston, and by her family.

RABBI ISRAEL ZOBERMAN

HON. OWEN B. PICKETT

OF VIRGINIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mr. PICKETT. Mr. Speaker, Rabbi Israel Zoberman, spiritual leader of Congregation Beth Chaverim located in my congressional district in Virginia Beach, made the following statement upon the occasion of the historic visit by Cardinal William Keeler, Archbishop of Baltimore, to the congregation on October 8, 2000. His words, at this time of upheaval in the Middle East, are an important call for rapprochement and reconciliation between the religions and peoples of the world.

What a job and what a blessing to welcome into our grateful midst His Eminence Cardinal William Keeler, Archbishop of Baltimore, accompanied by our long-time friend, Bishop Walter Sullivan of Richmond. Particularly significant is the Cardinal's gracious presence on the eve of Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement, the holiest day on the Jewish calendar, when we view our historical experience through a veil of tears, and our vulnerability and loneliness are so poignantly evident.

The Cardinal's heartfelt acceptance to join us, at a time Of mounting tension in the Middle East and his prayer for the peace of Jerusalem, are testimony to the great vision of the Roman Catholic Church which he so eminently represents, to offer God's essential gifts of healing and reconciliation to two world faith groups so intimately linked, yet so painfully separated for so long, too long. His friendly, thoughtful and reassuring words will long echo.

We recall with reverence the revolutionary strides made by the remarkable Pope John XXIII and the Second Vatican Council, along with the historic acts of the much beloved Pope John Paul II. New hope has been breathed among those holding Abraham to be their common father, respecting the Jewish covenant with the Divine while honoring its adherents whose suffering on its behalf extended for two millennia, culminating in the Shoah's immense tragedy. The Pope's recent visit to Jerusalem's Yad Vashern Holocaust Memorial and his profound message of compassion and consolation, along with the Holy Father's prayer at the Western Wall, the holiest Jewish shrine, are powerful symbols deeply appreciated and never to be forgotten, following upon the Vatican establishing diplomatic relations with the state of Israel in 1994.

Even as we pray for the well being of the aging and ailing Pope, loving and courageous witness to Poland's vineyard of the Jewish people turned into its graveyard during the Nazi onslaught, so do we appeal for fortifying and safeguarding his vast legacy of embrace with its boundless promise to finally transform the human family. Too much is at stake.

All religions have a golden opportunity to join forces for infusing a secular world and a materialistic environment, through moral persuasion, and never again through physical coercion, with an aspiring sacred call of the indivisible dignity of all God's children; affirming that indeed each one of us has been created in the Divine's own sacred image, which is the greatest human rights statement we share through the Hebrew Scriptures' eternal gift. Let us faithfully assert together that true freedom is born of spiritual responsibility.

TRIBUTE TO THE EXPERIMENT IN INTERNATIONAL LIVING PROGRAM

HON. EARL POMEROY

OF NORTH DAKOTA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mr. POMEROY. Mr. Speaker, last weekend more than 450 alumni of the Experiment in International Living, a global student exchange program, gathered for their first-ever annual reunion in Brattleboro, VT. The reunion commemorated the Experiment's 68 year history of helping young Americans break down national and cultural barriers and forge relationships that have sustained them over years and across thousands of miles.

Founded in 1932, the Experiment in International Living is now a program of World Learning, a widely respected international educational services organization. Every year, Experiment students travel to countries in Africa, Asia, the Americas, Europe, and Oceania as part of a summer abroad program. Through this exchange, Experimenters are immersed in the daily culture of a single place and its people as they embark on journey of cultural and personal discovery.

Mr. Speaker, I am personally invested in the success of the Experiment in International Living in part the program made a personal investment in me over 25 years ago. In 1973, I traveled to Yugoslavia and spent ten weeks with a host family through the Experiment in International Living program. Even as a 19-year-old college student, I recognized the life-changing effect this experience would have. Today, as a member of the House International Relations Committee, I can trace my strong interest in the Balkans in particular and international affairs more generally to those wonderful ten weeks. It is my great hope that I, along with my colleagues in the House, can help make it possible for thousands more young Americans to join the Experiment and participate in the life-changing journey that it embodies.

Finally, Mr. Speaker, I would like to congratulate World Learning, the Experiment in International Living and its alumni for their remarkable success in forging international connections. As attendees of last weekend's reunion can attest, the Experiment in International Living teaches young people to understand the differences that sometimes divide us while recognizing the common bonds that make us all part of the human family.

TRIBUTE TO THE HONORABLE JOHN E. PORTER, MEMBER OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

SPEECH OF

HON. J. DENNIS HASTERT

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, October 18, 2000

Mr. HASTERT. Mr. Speaker, I would like to thank the gentlewoman from Illinois (Mrs. BIGGERT) for arranging a special order to honor an outstanding colleague of mine, Congressman JOHN EDWARD PORTER, for his twenty years of service in the U.S. House of Representatives. It has been an honor and a privilege to serve alongside him for 14 of those years.

In my time working with JOHN, one thing became perfectly clear and that's his dedication to improving medical research. Serving as Chairman of the Labor-HHS Subcommittee on Appropriations he has been the greatest champion of this cause. JOHN knows the important role the NIH plays in saving lives and conquering diseases such as diabetes, cancer, AIDS and alzheimers, and has made it a top priority to ensure the NIH has all the necessary resources to achieve these goals.

JOHN has also been one of the most fiscally responsible members of this House. In fact, when I was a new Member, there was a three-year period when JOHN offered budget plans to try and impose a sense of fiscal responsibility on Congress. I am pleased to say that as JOHN leaves us, the fiscal outlook of the federal government has never looked better.

Although it is often overshadowed by his dedication to medical research, JOHN has been an important leader of the "Green Republicans" in the House. He has been a staunch supporter of the Clean Air and Clean Water Acts, and has helped to enact important legislation to halt the unregulated export of waste and the destruction of tropical rainforests, as well as helped to set new standards for recycling and energy efficiency. He has also been an advocate for his district residents suffering from flood damage. For his leadership on these issues, John has received numerous awards from environmental organizations all over the world.

Speaking of world issues, I have had the opportunity to serve as a member of the Congressional Human Rights Caucus, which JOHN co-founded and currently chairs. This is an important association of Congressmen that work together to monitor and end human rights violations around the world.

While it is true that JOHN has been a strong advocate for each of these causes, more importantly, he has been the people's champion in his service of the 10th District of Illinois. He has addressed countless infrastructure needs, most recently bringing Metra rail service from Chicago out to Lake County. He has been a great supporter of the Palwaukee and Waukegan Airports by securing FAA improvement grants to provide better service for his constituents. And he has obtained funding to clean up and restore Waukegan harbor and the Skokie Lagoons.

JOHN EDWARD PORTER has served this House with the utmost distinction and will be forever remembered for his work on behalf of biomedical research, environmental and human rights, and fiscal responsibility. He will be deeply missed by his constituents in Illinois, the Illinois delegation, and everyone who's known and worked with him over the last twenty-plus years. I wish him and his family the very best in the upcoming years.

RECOGNIZING JOSEPH EMERSON OF ROME, GEORGIA

HON. BOB BARR

OF GEORGIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to recognize Joseph Emerson, who has recently been appointed Postmaster of Rome, Georgia.

Postmaster Emerson began his postal career in Rome, Georgia as a PTF carrier in 1961. He was promoted to Assistant Carrier Station Superintendent, and since his promotion he has served as a supervisor in mail processing and delivery, Superintendent of Postal Operations, and Officer-in-Charge assignments.

Mr. Emerson's dedication to excellence makes him a role model for his family and coworkers, and I am pleased to honor his impressive accomplishments and wish him well as he begins his service as United States Postmaster in Rome, Georgia.

INTRODUCTION OF THE NATIVE AMERICAN EQUAL RIGHTS ACT OF 2000

HON. CURT WELDON

OF PENNSYLVANIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mr. WELDON of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to introduce the ''Native American Equal Rights Act of 2000.''

Most Americans believe that ours should be a color-blind society in which an individual's merit, not his or her race, is the determining factor in whether that individual climbs the ladder of success to achieve the American dream. Most Americans, therefore, oppose any racial preferences in our Nation's laws. Most Americans would be surprised, therefore, to learn that non-Indians may be lawfully discriminated against under what are known as ''Indian preference laws.''

The Federal Indian preference laws do three things. First, Federal law allows discrimination against all non-Indians with respect to employment at the Bureau of Indian Affairs and the Indian Health Service. Second, Federal law allows discrimination against all non-Indians with regard to certain Federal contracts. Third and finally, Federal law provides an exception to the civil rights laws that allows discrimination against all non-Indians in employment at the two Federal agencies and with respect to contracts.

Mr. President/Mr. Speaker, African-Americans, Asian-Americans, and white Americans should have the same rights to compete for jobs at the Bureau of Indian Affairs and the Indian Health Service that Indians do. Likewise, all Americans should have equal rights, regardless of race, to compete for Federal contracts. Finally, the civil rights laws should protect all Americans equally from the scourge of discrimination. That is why I believe that the Indian preference laws are wrong.

A recent decision by the Supreme Court of the United States has called the constitutionality of Indian preference laws into serious question. On February 23, 2000, the Supreme Court handed down its decision in Rice v. Cayetano. The case involved a challenge to a law of Hawaii that limits the right to vote for trustees of the Office of Hawaiian Affairs to persons who are defined under the law as either ''Hawaiian'' or ''native Hawaiian'' by ancestry. Harold Rice, who was the plaintiff in the case, is a citizen of Hawaii who nevertheless does not qualify, under the Hawaii law, as ''Hawaiian'' or ''native Hawaiian.'' Mr. Rice sued Hawaii because he believed that this law deprives him of his constitutional right to vote because of his race.

The U.S. District Court for Hawaii rejected Mr. Rice's claim. In doing so, the District Court argued that the Congress and native Hawaiians have a guardian-ward relationship that is analogous to that which exists between the U.S. government and Indian tribes. Based on this analogy, the District Court determined that the Hawaii is entitled to the same constitutional deference that the Supreme Court has shown towards the Congress when it enacts laws under its authority over Indian affairs.

The U.S. Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit affirmed the District Court's decision. Mr. Rice asked the Supreme Court review his case. The Court agreed to do so.

By a vote of 7–2, the Supreme Court reversed the decision of the Court of Appeals and ruled in Mr. Rice's favor. In his opinion for the Court, Justice Kennedy rejected the lower courts' use of the analogy of the Hawaii law limiting voting rights to the Federal laws granting preferences to Indians.

Under the Federal Indian preference laws, individuals who have ''one-fourth or more degree Indian blood and. . . [are] members of a Federally-recognized tribe'' are given preferences with respect to hiring and promotions at the Bureau of Indian Affairs of the U.S. Department of the Interior, as well as with regard to employment and subcontracting under certain Federal contracts. The Supreme Court upheld the Indian preference laws in its 1974 decision in a case called Morton v. Mancari. Even though the Indian preference laws clearly have the effect of giving one race an advantage over others, the Mancari Court held that they are ''political rather than racial in nature'' because they are not ''directed towards a 'racial' group consisting of 'Indians,' but rather only to members of 'federally recognized' tribes.''

In his opinion for the Supreme Court in Rice, Justice Kennedy said that Hawaii had tried to take the Mancari precedent too far. ''It does not follow from Mancari,'' Justice Kennedy wrote, ''that Congress may authorize a State to establish a voting scheme that limits the electorate for its public officials to a class of tribal Indians, to the exclusion of all non-Indian citizens.''

In a technical legal sense, in the Rice case the Supreme Court did not reconsider its ruling in the Mancari case that the Indian preference laws are constitutional. Instead, the Court avoided the issue by attempting to draw a distinction between the Indian preference law from the Hawaii voting rights law.

In a broader philosophical sense, though, the Rice decision seriously calls into question the constitutionality of the Indian preference laws. The racial preference for voters in Hawaii that the Court held to be unconstitutional clearly was politically and not racially motivated. The Court found, however, that a well-meaning political motivation behind a law that has the effect of favoring one race over another does not make it constitutional. Likewise, it is clear that what motivated the Congress to pass the Indian preference laws was not racism, but rather political favoritism. The effect of the Indian preference laws, though, is no less to favor one race over all others than was the case with the Hawaii voting rights law. Under Rice, this political motivation should not save the Indian preference law from being found to be unconstitutional for the same reason as was the Hawaii law.

In an insightful opinion article in The Washington Times on May 5, 2000, Thomas Jipping, Director of the Free Congress Foundation's Center for Law and Democracy, recognized the inconsistency between the Supreme Court's decisions with respect to the Indian preference laws and the Hawaii voting rights law. ''Either it is legitimate to avoid the Constitution,'' Mr. Jipping wrote, ''by relabeling a racial preference [as a political one] or it is not.'' ''Gimmicks such as relabeling or declaring the context in which a case arises as 'unique' [are] simply not sufficient to overcome a constitutional principle so fundamental and absolute.'' ''Both the U.S. District Court and the U.S. Court of Appeals in this case believed that Hawaii's relationship with Hawaiians is similar to the United States['s] relationship with Indian tribes,'' Mr. Jipping noted. ''They were right and the U.S. Constitution applies to both of them,'' he asserted. ''Rather than preserve a precedent through verbal sleight-of-hand,'' Mr. Jipping concluded, ''the Supreme Court should have said the fundamental constitutional principle that decided Rice also calls its precedent in Mancari into question.''

Mr. Speaker, it is absolutely clear to me that statutory provisions that grant special rights to Indians with respect to employment, contracting, or any other official interaction with an agency of the United States are racial preference laws. Racial preference laws are fundamentally incompatible with the equal protection of the laws that is provided to all Americans by the Constitution. The Constitution simply does not tolerate racial preferences of any kind, for any reason.

The Congress, no less than the Supreme Court, has a duty to uphold the Constitution of the United States. We should not wait for the Supreme Court to recognize the very serious constitutional mistake it made when it upheld the constitutionality of the Indian preference laws. Congress should repeal the Indian preference laws now.

The legislation that I am introducing today, the ''Indian Racial Preferences Repeal Act of 2000,'' does just that. I ask unanimous consent for the full text of my bill, as well as a section-by-section analysis, to be printed in the RECORD immediately following the conclusion of my remarks.

IN HONOR OF THE CYPRIOT PARTICIPANTS IN THE WORLD MARCH OF WOMEN 2000

HON. CAROLYN B. MALONEY

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mrs. MALONEY of New York. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to the 75 Cypriot women participating in this week's World March of Women 2000. The World March of Women is an annual event that occurs in my district that focuses on ending worldwide poverty and violence against women. Women from around the world participated in the march and a great number of them were from Cyprus, representing twenty-four Cypriot Women's Associations and Labor Syndicates. The march took place in front of the United Nations Building where the participants met with U.N. Secretary General Kofi Annan. On October 17, 2000, the official International Day for the Eradication of Poverty, was a time to acknowledge the grave disparities in economic prosperity throughout the world as well as the disturbing issue of violence against women.

The Cypriot participants, hoping to bring attention to the twenty-six year conflict on their Mediterranean island, urged the U.N. and its member states to take concrete measures toward finding a just and peaceful resolution to Cyprus.

Twenty-six years ago, Turkey invaded the northern section of Cyprus. Today, there is still a barb-wire fence, known as the Green Line, that cuts across the island separating thousands of Greek Cypriots from the towns and communities in which they and their families had previously lived for generations. The Cypriot women came to New York to raise their voices against the years of injustice and seek action toward a final resolution to the divided island.

The Cypriot women also raised the question on many families' minds, ''Where are the missing Greek Cypriots?'' More than 1600 Cypriots and five Americans have been missing since 1974. They have never been seen or heard from since their capture 26 years ago. Families have waited long enough to hear the truth.

Throughout my years in Congress, I have ardently supported democratic rule of Cyprus. The United Nations has also passed several resolutions calling for democracy in Cyprus. However, even after the passage of resolutions and international meetings between Cyprus and the Turkish-Cypriots, peace is still elusive.

Mr. Speaker, I not only salute these courageous Cypriot women, but I also would like to pay tribute to each one of the participants of the World March of Women 2000. These brave women recognize the plight of women throughout the world. The women participating in the World March encourage international solidarity among women and the development of unique ideas and real solutions to end the troubling state of women in every nation of the globe.

These women deserve our respect for their courage in bringing their concerns before the United Nations and the international community. I sincerely hope that the concerns of the Cypriot women, as well as the concerns of all the women participating in this important event, are addressed by the international community. With a little determination and hope, we will all one day live in a world of peace and one where poverty and violence against women are creatures of the past.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

HON. CONSTANCE A. MORELLA

OF MARYLAND

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mrs. MORELLA. Mr. Speaker, on rollcall No. 534, had I been present, I would have voted ''yea.''

GROSSMAN HONORED AFTER 29 YEARS OF SERVICE

HON. PAUL E. KANJORSKI

OF PENNSYLVANIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mr. KANJORSKI. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to Howard J. Grossman, executive director of the Economic Development Council of Northeastern Pennsylvania, who is retiring on Oct. 31 after more than 29 years of serving in that capacity.

The Council serves Carbon, Lackawanna, Luzerne, Monroe, Pike, Schuylkill, and Wayne counties. Howard came to the region on June 21, 1971, after serving as Deputy Director of the Montgomery County Planning Commission in Norristown. He has served Northeastern Pennsylvania well, with much significant progress having been made under his tenure.

Howard's accomplishments and achievements are too numerous to mention, but I would like to highlight just a few examples of how his leadership has helped the region through his work at EDCNP.

Following the devastation wrought by Hurricane Agnes in 1972, EDCNP was one of the leading organizations to plan our area's long-range flood recovery.

Under his leadership, the council has also participated in the creation of the Montage development in Lackawanna County, which has been termed the most extensive and best development of its kind in the region and perhaps the East Coast. The council also established the Regional Enterprise Development Program, which assists many companies in the region with low-interest loans, technical assistance in procurement, exporting and international trade, and has used community development banking to assist small businesses.

I have known Howard Grossman since he first came to the area and have worked closely with him on many projects over the years. In recent years, he may be best known for his leadership of the community effort to keep the Tobyhanna Army Depot open when it was threatened by the base closing commission.

He helped to organize thousands of volunteers to demonstrate their appreciation for this vitally important community asset, and I will never forget the sight of hundreds of people holding signs and blue ribbons as Congressman Joseph McDade and I traveled with the commission members to Tobyhanna. I am especially grateful for the assistance that Howard provided in preparing the winning application for the Upper Susquehanna-Lackawanna watershed, which led to its designation as an American Heritage River.

Mr. Speaker, like his accomplishments and achievements, Howard's awards and positions of leadership in the community are too numerous to list them all, but please allow me to mention a few as examples of his long and distinguished service.

He has received the J. Roy Fogle Award from the National Association of Development Organizations as the Outstanding Executive Director of a Multi-County Planning and Development Organization, the Professional Planner of the Year award from the Pennsylvania Planning Association and the Distinguished Leadership Award for a Professional Planner from the American Planning Association. Howard also served as a member of the Ben Franklin Partnership Board for 11 years under Pennsylvania Governors Dick Thornburgh and Robert P. Casey.

Howard has been President of many nonprofit organizations in the region and state, was a founder of the Pennsylvania Association of Non-Profit Organizations, and was President of the Eastern Pennsylvania BAHIA Brazil Partners of the Americas, a national partnership that took over the Kennedy Alliance for Progress Initiative in 1965. This partnership continues today. He has also served in many other national, state, regional and local capacities, and plans to stay active with many of the organizations with which he has been associated in the region.

As David Donlin, president of EDCNP, said in announcing Howard's retirement, speaking for many in the region, ''We will miss his leadership and guidance as the Council moves into the 21st Century with a strong view toward continuing its goals and mission: to be the regional advocate, catalyst, innovator, and promoter of economic growth and the highest quality of life in Northeastern Pennsylvania.''

Mr. Speaker, I send my best wishes to Howard Grossman on the occasion of his retirement as executive director of the EDCNP.

PROTECTING OUR CHILDREN FROM DRUGS ACT OF 2000

SPEECH OF

HON. JUANITA MILLENDER-McDONALD

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, October 17, 2000

Ms. MILLENDER-McDONALD. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the Protecting Our Children From Drugs Act. This bill increases the mandatory minimum sentences for using minors to distribute illicit drugs, distributing illicit drugs to minors and drug trafficking in or near a school. In addition, this bill increases the mandatory minimum sentence for individuals convicted of using minors to distribute illicit drugs. Perhaps, more importantly, this bill cracks down on those who distribute illicit drugs near schools.

Our children cannot learn in an environment that is infested with drug use. To use children to sell drugs is not only disturbing and outrageous, but cruel. Such illicit distribution in our schools deprives our youth of the safe, healthy, and growth-inducing environment they need to learn and become valuable and productive members of our national labor force. Worst of all, this activity strips our children of their innocence and hope.

Among eighth graders alone, the rate of marijuana use tripled in 1996, and the marijuana of today is 15 times more potent than the marijuana used in the 1970s. But even more lethal, cocaine, heroin and methamphetamines are the drugs that are tearing apart families and ruining communities throughout the country and in my state.

California has the worst methamphetamine problem in the country. Over the past few years, there has been a significant increase in methamphetamine use, especially in Los Angeles. From 1990 to 1994, the admissions of Los Angeles residents to addiction treatment centers jumped from 700 to 2,250. That is more than a 30% increase, and this number only includes those who have received treatment. At any given time during the month, some 13,100 Californians who have sought treatment cannot get it because they are placed on waiting lists, which can last from three to sixty days.

The Protecting Our Children From Drugs Act can help change these numbers by enacting tougher laws to stop drug traffickers from reaching our children. Ensuring that law enforcement resources, parents, teachers, and churches come together to prevent the distribution of drugs to youth is critical to lowering the rate of drug use in the entire community.

The possibility of a child who reaches adulthood without using drugs, who then tries drugs as an adult is statistically zero. That is why cracking down on drug criminals reaching out to children is vital to winning the war on drugs. In our effort to maintain and improve the social fabric of all of our communities throughout the country, I encourage my colleagues to join me in voting for the Protecting Our Children From Drugs Act.

AMERICANS NEED A BIPARTISAN PRESCRIPTION DRUG COVERAGE PLAN

HON. CONSTANCE A. MORELLA

OF MARYLAND

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mrs. MORELLA. Mr. Speaker, data from a poll conducted by the Kaiser Family Foundation and Harvard University showing that health care is one of the top concerns among voters this election year. In the survey more than 50% identified health care or Medicare as the ''important issue in deciding their presidential vote,'' surpassing their concerns about the economy, crime, jobs, the budget and education. Among the issues cited as most pressing, prescription drug costs and the need for a benefit within Medicare were mentioned most frequently. Unfortunately at this time, there is little bipartisan consensus on the best way to achieve this solution in Congress. Both Republicans and Democrats have offered prescription drug proposals neither is the solution to the expanding Medicare prescription drug problem.

Recently, two hastily conceived prescription drug plans came before the House for a vote. The Republican plan depended on private insurers to offer coverage to beneficiaries. Unfortunately, many private insurers were hesitant to offer a drug only benefit. In fact, the President of the Health Insurance Association of America testified in front of Congress that ''they would not sell insurance exclusively for drug costs.'' His assessment proved well-founded as only one plan initially expressed interest when the Republican plan was proposed.

In the Democratic proposal, a catastrophic drug benefit would not have been available until 2006. In addition, it forced implementation of a new Medicare prescription drug benefit upon the already overburdened Health Care Financing Administration (which oversees Medicare) without giving them the necessary resources and flexibility to oversee Medicare fee for service, Medicare+Choice, and a new prescription drug plan.

In our haste to show that we would construct prescription drug legislation, we sacrificed bipartisan deliberations for ''partisan one-upmanship.'' It is abundantly clear that people want a prescription drug bill but passing flawed legislation to deflect criticism will only exacerbate the situation and erode confidence in government. I echo the sentiments of the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP), which also has concerns about both of the proposed prescription drug benefit plans, when they wrote. ''A solution that can stand the test of time will require true bipartisanship.''

Now while we consider how to best devise a comprehensive Medicare prescription drug plan, we can at least pass legislation which takes a first valuable step towards that goal.

H.R. 1796, the ''Medicare Chronic Disease Prescription Drug Benefit Act,'' of which I am a sponsor with Congressman CARDIN, would supply Medicare prescription drug coverage to over 30 million seniors. By initially focusing on the most common chronic diseases which can be controlled with medication—heart disease, diabetes, high blood pressure, clinical depression, and rheumatoid arthritis—its objective is to reduce complications and unnecessary hospitalizations, making it possible for seniors with these ailments to take their medication regularly, and to mitigate high costs for the seniors who spend the most on medication.

In addition, I supported the amendments to the Agriculture Appropriations bill which would allow for the bulk re-importation of FDA approved prescription drugs from FDA approved facilities in Canada and Mexico. These amendments, which had the overwhelming support of both the House and Senate, are a free market solution that increases choices and lowers the costs of prescription drugs for all Americans. Enactment of these bipartisan measures would enable more seniors to have access to safe and effective prescription drugs.

Neither H.R. 1796 nor the re-importation amendments are the final solution to the prescription drug crisis but they are critically important first steps.

CHEYENNE RIVER SIOUX TRIBE EQUITABLE COMPENSATION ACT

SPEECH OF

HON. DON YOUNG

OF ALASKA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, October 17, 2000

Mr. YOUNG of Alaska. Mr. Speaker, I submit for the benefit of the Members, copies of letters between the Committee on Resources, and TOM BLILEY, Chairman, Committee on Commerce, regarding the jurisdiction of S. 964.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
COMMITTEE ON COMMERCE,
Washington, DC, October 17, 2000.

Hon. DON YOUNG,
Chairman, Committee on Resources,
Washington, DC.

DEAR DON: I am writing with regard to S. 964, the Cheyenne River Sioux Tribe Equitable Compensation Act. I understand that this legislation, as considered by the House, includes the text of S. 2439, a bill to authorize the appropriation of funds for the construction of the Southeastern Alaska Intertie system, and for other purposes. As you know, S. 2439 falls within the exclusive jurisdiction of the Committee on Commerce pursuant to Rule X of the Rules of the House of Representatives.

Because of the importance of this legislation, I recognize your desire to bring it before the House in an expeditious manner. By agreeing to waive its consideration of the bill, however, the Committee on Commerce does not waive its jurisdiction over S. 964. In addition, the Commerce Committee reserves its authority to seek conferees on any provisions of the bill that are within its jurisdiction during any House-Senate conference that may be convened on this legislation. I ask for your commitment to support any request by the Commerce Committee for conferees on S. 964 or similar legislation.

I request that you include this letter and your response as part of the Record during consideration of the legislation on the House floor.

Thank you for your attention to these matters.

Sincerely,

TOM BLILEY,
Chairman.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
COMMITTEE ON RESOURCES,
Washington, DC, October 18, 2000.

Hon. TOM BLILEY,
Chairman, Committee on Commerce,
Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: Thank you for your letter regarding the amendments to S. 964, the Cheyenne River Sioux Tribe Equitable Compensation Act. You are correct that the amendment to that bill includes the text of S. 2439, a bill to authorize the appropriation of funds for the construction of the Southeastern Alaska Intertie system, and for other purposes. S. 2439 was referred to the Committee on Commerce.

The Alaska Intertie system is critically important to my constituents, so I appreciate your willingness not to insist on a referral of S. 964 so that it can be voted on by the House of Representatives today. I agree that your forbearance does not affect any jurisdictional interest that you would have in S. 964 as amended, and if a conference on the bill becomes necessary, I would support your request to have the Committee on Commerce be represented on the conference committee.

Thank you again for your cooperation on this matter and on many others during my service as Chairman of the Committee on Resources. It has been a privilege and a pleasure working with you and your staff these last six years.

Sincerely,

DON YOUNG,
Chairman.

TRIBUTE TO THE HONORABLE JOHN E. PORTER, MEMBER OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

SPEECH OF

HON. HENRY J. HYDE

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, October 18, 2000

Mr. HYDE. Mr. Speaker, it is with a deep feeling of gratitude mixed with a profound sense of loss that we bid farewell to our most valued colleague, JOHN EDWARD PORTER. His retirement from this Congress is well earned, but because he is a unique person he is literally irreplaceable.

He has brought his rare gifts of intelligence and compassion together with a prodigious work ethic to bear on some of the most consequential problems faced by a free people. His leadership, over the many years, of the Subcommittee on Labor, Health and Human Services has been unmatched in the history of the Appropriations Committee. Justice and humanity have animated all his work, and JOHN is one Congressman who has added credibility and idealism and generosity of spirit to this Congress.

A gentleman in the fullest sense of the term, a deeply thoughtful person possessed of the largest heart and soul of anyone I have ever met, I wish him a tranquil sea and that he might know in what high esteem he is held by all fortunate enough to call him friend.

INTRODUCTION OF THE NOTIFICATION AND FEDERAL EMPLOYEE ANTI-DISCRIMINATION AND RETALIATION ACT

HON. F. JAMES SENSENBRENNER, JR.

OF WISCONSIN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mr. SENSENBRENNER. Mr. Speaker, as the Chairman of the Committee on Science, I believe open discourse at federal agencies is necessary for sound science. Intolerance inhibits, if not prevents, thorough scientific investigation.

Accordingly, I was very disturbed by allegations that EPA practices intolerance and discrimination against its scientists and employees. For the past year, the Committee on Science has investigated numerous charges of retaliation and discrimination at EPA, and unfortunately they were found to have merit.

The Committee held a hearing in March 2000, over allegations that agency officials were intimidating EPA scientists and even harassing private citizens who publicly voiced concerns about agency policies and science. While investigating the complaints of several scientists, a number of African-American and disabled employees came to the Committee expressing similar concerns. One of those employees, Dr. Marsha Coleman-Adebayo, won a $600,000 jury decision against EPA for discrimination.

It further appears EPA has gone so far as to retaliate against some of the employees and scientists that assisted the Science Committee during our investigation. In one case, the Department of Labor found EPA retaliated against a female scientists for, among other things, her assistance with the Science Committee's work. The EPA reassigned this scientist from her position as lab director at the Athens, Georgia regional office effective November 5, 2000—a position she held for 16 years—to a position handling grants at EPA headquarters. In the October 3 decision, the Department of Labor directed EPA to cancel the transfer because it was based on retaliation.

EPA's response to these problems has been to claim that they have a great diversity program. Apparently, EPA believes that if it hires the right makeup of people, it does not matter if its managers discriminate and harass those individuals.

Diversity is great, but in and of itself, it is not the answer. Enforcing the laws protecting employees from harassment, discrimination and retaliation is the answer. EPA, however, does not appear to do this. EPA managers have not been held accountable when charges of intolerance and discrimination are found to be true. Such unresponsiveness by Administrator Browner and the Agency legitimizes this indefensible behavior.

To assure accountability, I have introduced the Notification and Federal Employee Antidiscrimination and Retaliation Act (No FEAR Act) of 2000, H.R. . Federal employees with diverse backgrounds and ideas should have no fear of being harassed because of their ideas or the color of their skin. This bill would ensure accountability throughout the entire Federal Government—not just EPA. Under current law, agencies are held harmless when they lose judgments, awards or compromise settlements in whistleblower and discrimination cases.

The Federal Government pays such awards out of a government wide fund. The No FEAR Act would require agencies to pay for their misdeeds and mismanagement out of their own budgets. The bill would also require Federal agencies to notify employees about any applicable discrimination and whistleblower protection laws and report to Congress on the number of discrimination and whistleblower cases within each agency. Additionally, each agency would have to report on the total cost of all whistleblower and discrimination judgments or settlements involving the agency.

Federal employees and Federal scientists should have no fear that they will be discriminated against because of their diverse views and backgrounds. H.R. is a significant step towards achieving this goal.

INTRODUCTION OF THE 'CELLULAR TELECOMMUNICATIONS DEPRECIATION CLARIFICATION ACT'

HON. PHILIP M. CRANE

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mr. CRANE. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to join with Rep. NEAL and Ms. JOHNSON, Ms. DUNN, and Mr. JOHNSON of the Committee on Ways and Means in introducing the ''Cellular Telecommunications Depreciation Clarification Act.'' This legislation will amend the Internal Revenue Code to clarify that cellular telecommunications equipment is ''qualified technological equipment'' as defined in section 168(i)(2).

When an asset used in a trade or business or for the production of income has a useful life that extends beyond the taxable year, the costs of acquiring or producing the asset generally must be capitalized and recovered through depreciation or amortization deductions over the expected useful life of the property. The cost of most tangible depreciable property placed in service after 1986 is recovered on an accelerated basis using the modified accelerated cost recovery system, or MACRS. Under MACRS, assets are grouped into classes of personal property and real property, and each class is assigned a recovery period and depreciation method.

For MACRS property, the class lives and recovery periods for various assets are prescribed by a table published by the Internal Revenue Service found in Rev. Proc. 87–56, 1987–2 C.B. 674. This table lists various Asset Classes, along with their respective class lives and recovery periods. Rev. Proc. 87–56 does not specifically address the treatment of cellular assets, but rather addresses assets used in traditional wireline telephone communications.

These wireline class lives were created in 1977 and have remained basically unchanged since that time. In 1986, Congress added a category for computer-based telephone switching equipment, but there are no asset classes specifically for cellular communications equipment in Rev. Proc. 87–56. This is largely due to the fact that the commercial cellular industry was in its infancy in 1986 and 1987. Since the cellular industry was not specifically addressed in Rev. Proc. 87–56, the cellular industry has no clear, definitive guidance regarding the class lives and recovery periods of cellular assets. Therefore, the Internal Revenue Service and cellular companies have been left to resolve depreciation treatment on an ad hoc basis for these assets as the industry has rapidly progressed.

The result is that both cellular telecommunications companies and the Internal Revenue Service are expending significant resources in auditing and settling disputes involving the depreciation of cellular telecommunications equipment. This process is obviously costly and inefficient for taxpayers and the Service, but it also leaves affected companies with a great deal of uncertainty as to the tax treatment, and therefore expected after-tax return, they can expect on their telecommunications investments. A standardized depreciation system for cellular telecommunications equipment would eliminate the excessive costs incurred by both industry and government through the audit and appeals process, and would eliminate an unnecessary degree of uncertainty that is slowing the expansion of our national telecommunications systems.

The Treasury Department's recently released ''Report to the Congress on Depreciation Recovery Periods and Methods'' tacitly acknowledges this point. In its discussion about how to treat assets used in newly-emerging industries, such as the cellular telecommunications industry, the report states:

> [t]he IRS normally will attempt to identify those characteristics of the new activity that most nearly match the characteristics of existing asset classes. However, this practice may eventually become questionable in a system where asset classes are seldom, if ever, reviewed and revised. The cellular phone industry, which did not exist when the current asset classes were defined, is a case in point. This industry's assets differ in many respects from those used by wired telephone service, and may not fit well into the existing definitions for telephony-related classes.

Rather than force cellular telecommunications equipment into wireline telephony ''transmission'' or ''distribution'' classes, a better solution would clarify that cellular telecommunications equipment is ''qualified technological equipment.'' The Internal Revenue

Code currently defines qualified technological equipment as any computer or peripheral equipment and any high technology telephone station equipment installed on a customer's premises.

The cellular telecommunications industry has been one of the fastest growing industries in the United States since the mid-1980s, as evidenced by the following statistics:

The domestic subscriber population has grown from less than 350,000 in 1985 to 86 million by 1999, and is projected to grow to 175 million by 2007.

The industry directly provided 4,334 jobs in 1986, which grew to over 155,000 directly provided jobs and one million indirectly created jobs by 1999.

Capital expenditures on cellular assets exceeded $15 billion in 1999.

The rapid technological progress exhibited by the cellular telecommunications industry illustrates how the tax code needs to be flexible to adapt to future technologies and technological changes. Continued rapid advancement is on the horizon, including wireless fax, high-speed data, video capability, and a multitude of wireless Internet services. It is impossible in 2000 to anticipate properly the new equipment that will support this growth even two years hence.

For further information on this I refer my colleagues to the testimony of Ms. Molly Feldman, Vice-President-Tax of Verizon Wireless before the House Committee on Ways and Means, Subcommittee on Oversight. Ms. Feldman's testimony provides an excellent overview of the industry, its history, and the reasons why this bill is so important. I urge my colleagues to support this important clarification to the tax law.

H.R. ____

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. WIRELESS TELECOMMUNICATIONS EQUIPMENT.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Subparagraph (A) of section 168(i)(2) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (defining qualified technological equipment) is amended by striking ''and'' at the end of clause (ii), by striking the period at the end of clause (iii) and inserting '', and'', and by inserting after clause (iii) the following new clause:

For this purpose, ''wireless telecommunications service'' includes any commercial mobile radio service as defined in Title 47 of the Code of Federal Regulations.

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to property placed in service on or after the date of the enactment of this Act.

THREATS TO FINANCIAL FREEDOM

HON. RON PAUL

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mr. PAUL. Mr. Speaker, I recently had the pleasure of hearing remarks made by our former House colleague, Bob Bauman of Maryland, at a meeting of the Eris Society in Colorado. Since his talk centered on banking, financial and related privacy issues pending before the Congress, I want to share his view with the House as an informed statement of the threats to financial freedom posed by the Clinton administration's policies.

Mr. Bauman, the author of several books on offshore financial topics, serves as legal counsel to The Sovereign Society (http://www.sovereignsaociety.com), an international group of citizens concerned with the government encroachment on financial freedom.

Remarks of Robert E. Bauman, Eris Conference, Durango, Colorado, August 12, 2000.

THE NEW IMPERIALISM: THE ATTACK ON WORLD TAX HAVENS

I take as my theme two quotations, one from the Gospel of St. Matthew, 20:15—''Do not I have the right to do what I want with my own money?''

The second is from Mayer Amschel Rothchild (1743–1812), founder of the famous banking dynasty, the House of Rothchild, who said: ''Give me control over a nation's currency and I care not who makes its laws.'' Both quotes have relevance to what I have to say.

WEALTH IS SUSPECT

If you are fortunate enough to fall into the estimated group of six million millionaires worldwide now in existence, a number noted in a study by Merrill Lynch last year, you automatically may be a criminal suspect.

I say ''suspect'' because Citibank views these wealthy people, who control approximately 21 trillion-six hundred billion dollars, as potential financial criminals simply because of their wealth. Citibank announced last year that their 40,000 private banking clients, each of whom had to prove a personal net worth of $3 million in order to qualify for the bank's services, are watched every minute of every day to see if they may be engaged in money laundering or other financial crimes. I am certain other banks do as well.

The constant surveillance is accomplished, as is most privacy invasion these days, by a special banking computer software program called ''America's Software'' which allows every transaction in any account to be watched constantly. It produces a daily record for bank officials, who now have certain obligations imposed by US law that require the reporting of ''suspicious activities'' to federal agents. Transfers of large amounts of cash or other unusual account activity rings alarm bells and results in an investigation not revealed to the ''suspect'' banking client under penalty of law.

We can conclude from this Draconian arrangement, for one thing, that a person of great wealth who establishes a private banking relationship with a major bank now is presumed to be a possible criminal; that accumulated wealth is not treated as potential evidence of crime; that in this instance, the traditional American constitutional presumption of innocence has been reversed; that the American banking system is no longer safe for even for honest people of wealth who simply value their privacy.

IT'S OFFICIAL: OFFSHORE MEANS CRIME

I was at a conference on April 22, 1999 in Miami sponsored by the respected publication, Money Laundering Alert. Lester Joseph, Assistant Chief of Asset Forfeiture and Money Laundering for the Criminal Division of the U.S. Department of Justice, said that the U.S. Government officially views any offshore financial activity by US persons—any offshore financial activity—especially the use of tax havens, as potential criminal money laundering activity.

Now, it's quite obvious that financial activities in which a person engages when wealth is moved offshore for asset protection, for broader investment potential, for any number of legitimate reasons, for possible tax savings, any of these moves, are innocent in themselves. Former Secretary of the US Treasury, Robert Rubin, admitted in congressional testimony last year, it is the intention behind these innocent financial moves that government agents want to police for possible criminal investigation and prosecution.

So now we have the government money police targeting normal financial activities that until recently have been perfectly legal, simply because a person decides in his own best interests, to go offshore. We all know that in the US, African-American, Latino, Asian-American and other racial minorities have been unfairly subject to police ''profiling.'' Add to that list of ''presumed guilty,'' Americans who engaged in offshore financial activity.

I'm not a defender of wealth per se. I wish I had wealth to defend, but I am a defender of freedom. There can be no freedom, personal or otherwise, without wealth, without the right to own and use one's own property as one see fit. Remove property rights and you have no means to sustain life for yourself or your family. But now the acquisition and accumulation of productive wealth has become officially suspect in America.

WAR OF DRUGS=WAR ON WEALTH

For the last 20 years the policies adopted by the United States and allied governments have constituted a stealth war against wealth and against financial privacy. While the free flow of capital is extolled as appropriate and essential, the governments of major nations have turned upside down the traditional role of banks and banking. As a child I was made to believe that the people you dealt with at your bank and other financial institutions were fiduciaries to whom you could entrust your money.

Now we have what I call the ''Nazification'' of the financial system, not only in America but worldwide. I don't use that term lightly. As a matter of historic fact, the civil forfeiture laws in this country mirror in many major respects the Nazi forfeiture laws that were used to confiscate the property of the Jews. I am a member of the board of directors of Forfeiture Endangers American Rights, (www.fear.org on the Internet) and you can find out more information.

The genesis of this ''wealth=crime'' policy can be found in that infamous political and moral failure, the so-called ''war on drugs.'' One of the primary weapons of this ill-begotten war has been civil forfeiture, where police seize cash and property based on rumor or hearsay. In 80% of the cases, the owner is never charged with any crime, but usually the police keep the loot. Many police have long since turned their attention away from drugs, and instead pursue the cash and property they use to lard their budgets. Thankfully, my former colleague, Henry Hyde of Illinois, led the successful legislative battle for some much needed civil forfeiture reform which recently became law.

AN ALL-PURPOSES NEW ''CRIME''

As part of the drug war that progressed and expanded (but is never victorious), the catch all crime of ''money laundering'' was invented: an all purpose federal prosecutors' dream. The anti-money laundering statutes that have grown like a malignancy. Charges of money laundering now routinely are shown in with almost every possible criminal indictment, often as a bargaining chip and/or a means to confiscate the wealth of the accused even before trial. Try hiring a good defense attorney when your bank account has been frozen.

Laws enacted under the banner of the war on drugs intentionally have forced bankers to become spies for the federal financial police. The bankers' primary allegiance now is not to customers or clients, but to the government.

At the Miami conference, scores of bank officials were instructed how to question clients, watch account activity, and report any ''suspicious activity''. Suspicious activity reports (SARs) are filed by the tens of thousands every month, produce voluminous computer records, encourage potential criminal investigations, allow prosecutors to bully citizens, but in the end very few SARs put criminals in jail. What this success process has produced is the mushrooming of federal prosecutorial staffs, US attorneys budgets, the power and costs of the US Department of Justice and the welfare of the bureaucrats and lawyers who feast at the taxpayers' trough.

OFFSHORE AS SCAPE GOAT

That great economist, Wilhelm Roepke, once wrote: ''It is very easy to awaken resentment against people who not only have money, but also the boldness to send that money abroad in order to protect it against all manner of domestic insecurity. It's vital that people in their means of existence, that is, capital, still have the chance to move about internationally, and when absolutely necessary, to escape the arbitrariness of government policy by means of secret back doors.''

Consider that expressed view in the context of what is known as ''expatriation,'' the human right to acquire a new nationality and renounce one's old citizenship. We, as a nation of immigrants, should cherish that right.

In November 1994 Forbes magazine published an infamous article which identified a handful of wealthy ex-Americans who had formally renounced their U.S. citizenship and saved themselves and their families hundreds of millions of dollars in U.S. income, capital gains and estate taxes and produced a sudden frenzy in Congress, willingly aided and abetted by one Larry Summers, then Assistant Secretary of the Treasury. (There had been a federal law that claimed U.S. tax jurisdiction over tax expatriates if it could be proven they left the country with the express intent to avoid U.S. taxes, but it was never enforced.) A supposedly ''conservative'' Congress passed legislation in 1995 penalizing heavily those who renounced U.S. citizenship for the purpose of avoiding taxes. A 1996 change provided that any ex-American who left to avoid taxes could be forever stopped from returning to the U.S. Immigration officials were empowered to stop these culprits at the border. This drastic sort of exclusion previously had been confined only to people suffering from communicable diseases, Communists and certain terrorists. Needless to say, this inane provision, has never been enforced although it's still on the statute books.

NEEDED OFFSHORE ASSET PROTECTION

In truth, there are very legitimate financial reasons for an American citizen to ''go offshore''. These include avoiding exposure to costly domestic litigation and excessive court damage judgements and jury awards, protection of assets, unreasonable SEC restrictions on foreign investments, the availability of more attractive and private offshore bank accounts, life insurance policies and annuities, avoidance of probate and reduction of estate taxes.

But Americans who have followed this prudent course now find themselves lumped together with drug lords, tax cheats, dirty money launderers, disease carriers and assorted criminals. What is legal and legitimate is made to look sinister and evil.

OECD—FATF WORLD INTIMIDATION CAMPAIGN

There is a decided international dimension to this domestic U.S. campaign against wealth. Beginning last June, the news media took belated notice of offshore tax havens and their thriving financial centers as a newly discovered international threat. A frenzy of publicity surrounded the serial publication of spurious ''blacklists'' by previously unnoticed international organizations. None of these self-appointed, self-important groups enjoy any legal standing, but they proceeded to announce exactly how the international financial world should conduct its affairs. Those nations in disagreement with the OECD world view were threatened with financial boycotts and unexplained ''sanctions'' to be imposed by June 2001.

These organizations include the Paris-based organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD), which loudly denounces what it calls ''harmful tax competition'' is composed of representatives from major high tax nations. An OECD subsidiary is the Financial Action Task Force (FATF), a sort of financial Gestapo that pronounces who is legal and who is not legal in terms of money laundering activity.

Yet a third group without no basis in international law calls itself the ''Financial Stability Forum.'' This is a subgroup of the G–7 nations and has taken it upon itself to decide which nations are good or bad in cooperation for capital flows.

All of these organizations are self-anointed and don't have any more standing than the International Tennis Association as far as legal capacity to impose their decisions. They are little more than public relations mouthpieces of an international cartel of rich nations trying to suppress tax havens and other nations that have profited from fully legal tax competition.

In an obviously co-ordinated effort starting last May, these organizations each issued its own ''blacklist'' of nations it found deficient in various ways. The FSF attached those it claimed were disruptive to international financial activity. FATF issued a list of countries allegedly lax on money laundering. The OECD came out with list of nations engaged in ''unfair tax competition''. It was no coincidence that most of the world's no-tax financial haven nations were on all these phony lists. A small coterie of statist bureaucrats in the financial ministries of the major nations had coordinated their propaganda work well: an uneducated, gullible global news media swallowed this phony story whole.

Every one of the wealthy nations that are pushing this attack on tax havens are controlled by high-tax, socialist governments who see a tax and wealth hemorrhage occurring among their citizens. Yes, millions, billions of dollars, pounds and francs are pouring out of high tax nations flowing to offshore tax havens—and for very good reasons. Why would anyone in his right mind continue to pay confiscatory taxes when you can move your financial activity to another nation where you pay no personal or corporate income tax, no estate tax, no capital gains tax?

Ignored in this concerted attack on small tax haven nations is the simple fact that under current U.S. and UK tax laws the biggest tax savings for foreigners can be found in Britain and in the United States. The United States is one of the biggest tax havens in the world—but only for non-U.S. persons. And in spite of the known fact that most of the dirty money laundering in the world takes place in London and New York, neither nation is on the FATF money laundering blacklist.

All this is really a smoke screen for increased tax collection. Feeling the tax drain, the rich nations want an end to all those factors that make tax haven attractive: They demand that taxes be imposed where there are none, want an end to financial and banking privacy and ''free exchange'' of information, want complete ''transparency'', and want these small nations to become tax collectors for the rich, welfare state nations. In other words, they want tax havens to become just like the profligate major nations.

This new cartel of high-tax nations, limping along with their huge, unsustainable welfare state budgets, are engaged in a grotesque rebirth of colonialism and imperialism of a financial nature. They are willing to trample the sovereignty of small nations. In fact, the United Nations last year said national sovereignty must be compromised in order to impose a world financial order of high taxes and no financial privacy. Such a radical demand mocks international law. It makes vassal states out of sovereign nations.

This wrong headed approach flies in the face of every development that is producing the new prosperity: the Internet, e-commerce, globalization, cross border investment worldwide. For that reason alone, this effort will fail. Just as the legendary King Canute could not hold back the ocean tides, the rich nations will be swept away in their effort to impose their will on the world.

CONGRESSIONAL INTERNET CAUCUS E-GOVERNMENT EVENT

HON. RICK BOUCHER

OF VIRGINIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mr. BOUCHER. Mr. Speaker, as Co-Chair of the Congressional Internet Caucus, I have long had a keen interest in how the Internet revolution is affecting the relationship between citizens and their government. In my own district, we have held an annual conference at which we discuss what government can do better to improve the way it delivers services and information to the public via the Internet.

As we seek to find ways to better connect with our increasingly Internet-savvy constituents, I think our colleagues may learn much by looking at how state and local governments are using electronic means to deliver services to the public. For this reason, I thought my colleagues would be interested in the results of a study entitled, ''Benchmarking the eGovernment Revolution: Year 2000 Report on Citizen and Business Demand.'' I understand this to have been the first national survey that asked citizens and businesses what state and local government services they want to access online.

The survey found that citizens rank renewing their driver's license and voting online highest among the electronic government services they wish to perform. Businesses are most interested in searching court records and obtaining or renewing professional licenses online. Perhaps surprisingly, both citizens and businesses expressed a high degree of willingness to pay modest transaction fees in return for the convenience of being able to access government services via the Internet 24 hours a day, 7 days a week.

The survey also confirmed that trust is the most critical issue facing government in providing online services to constituents. The survey found, for example, that only one-third of current Internet users trust the government to keep their records confidential. Clearly, government agencies are going to have to work harder to develop the level of trust necessary for citizens to increase their use of the Internet for accessing electronic government services.

As part of the work of the Congressional Internet Caucus next year, we will undertake an effort to educate Members about how this ''eGovernment'' revolution is proceeding at the state level, as well as how they can better connect with their constituents through electronic means. As part of this effort, we need to assess ways to bridge the digital divide so that all of our constituents can participate in the Internet Century. I anticipate that we also will continue to offer a series of sessions on the most pressing Intellectual Property issues of the day, such as the award of business method patents and ways to update the Copyright Act so that it continues to reflect evolutions in technology.

We will of course welcome the participation of all Members in the Caucus and their suggestions on developing new means of connecting with our constituents.

HONORING MEMBERS OF THE CREW OF THE GUIDED MISSILE DESTROYER U.S.S. 'COLE'

SPEECH OF

HON. SANFORD D. BISHOP, JR.

OF GEORGIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, October 18, 2000

Mr. BISHOP. Mr. Speaker, for a number of us, the terrorist attack on the U.S.S. Cole struck close to home.

Craig Freeman, a 12-year Navy veteran who suffered multiple injuries, is from Moultrie in my area of southwest Georgia. Thankfully, he will soon be well enough to visit his family on leave. But some of his shipmates remain hospitalized, and 17 of them will never see their loved ones again. These brave young Americans willingly went into harm's way, and, like others who have paid the price for our freedom, they shall forever remain in our hearts.

We extend our sympathy to the families. We also express our rage. But that is not enough, Mr. Speaker.

We must resolve to fight back against these insane acts by committing the country's full resources in an aggressive effort to determine who is responsible, to see that justice is done, and to do everything possible to deter such acts in the future. As Navy Secretary Richard Danzig pointed out, our memory is long and our reach is longer. As a member of the House Select Committee on Intelligence, I will continue working to ensure that the country is fully prepared to strike back against these forces of evil.

TRIBUTE TO DOUGLAS SIMMONS

HON. JOHN T. DOOLITTLE

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mr. DOOLITTLE. Mr. Speaker, today I recognize and honor the contributions my good friend, R. Douglas Simmons, has made to one of America's most respected service institutions, the Boy Scouts of America (BSA). On October 27 of this year, Doug will mark 50 years of continuous registration in the Boy Scouts organization. This lengthy record of service both as a youth participant and as an adult leader merits the recognition and commendation of this distinguished body.

First of all, I wish to say a few words about the Boy Scouts of America itself. Few other organizations have as admirable a record of doing good as does the BSA. For ninety years, Boy Scouts have been symbols of everything that is right with America's youth. In fact, in the eyes of many, the faithful Boy Scout has come to embody the virtues of personal integrity and community service.

Scouting is a program that educates young men in countless fields of study, trains them to master practical skills, instills in them a sense of civic duty, encourages them to develop commitment to their faith and country, and teaches them to lead a life of service to others. Boy Scouts learn and practice the principles of cooperation and teamwork. They take an active role in setting goals, making decisions, and executing plans for themselves and for the group. Whether it be in today's businesses, government institutions, schools, or families, these leadership skills are clearly in demand.

Perhaps the BSA's most valuable role in today's society is that it provides boys with positive male role models. In our increasingly fatherless society, it is now more important than ever for young men to have honorable mentors that they can look to for example, instruction, counsel, and companionship.

Mr. Speaker, I am glad to say that my friend, Doug Simmons, has been a part of BSA's sterling legacy for the past 50 years. His scouting career began when he registered as an eight-year-old Cub Scout on October 27, 1950. He remained active in Scouting throughout his youth, eventually advancing to the rank of Eagle Scout and participating in the Order of the Arrow. In each of his Scout troops and Explorer posts, Doug held leadership positions. Perhaps the culmination of his experience as a Boy Scout was when he attended the National Scout Jamboree.

To his credit, Doug has continued his involvement in Scouting as an adult leader. His ongoing leadership training includes Bear Paw and Wood Badge courses and time at Philmont Scout Ranch. He has held numerous positions at almost every level of Scouting. Among the troop level positions he has filled are scoutmaster, troop committee chairman, unit commissioner, and institutional representative. At the district level, Doug Simmons has been Camporee chairman, and he has served on the camping committee. At the council level, he has been a member of the Explorer Advisory Council and the Bear Paw training staff. Furthermore, he has served in Order of the Arrow leadership and as a merit badge counselor.

For his dedication to Scouting, Doug Simmons has received numerous awards, including the Scouters Key, the Scouters Training Award, the Silver Bear, and the Silver Beaver.

In addition to his direct involvement in Scouting, Doug has worked with the young men in his church while serving in various ecclesiastical offices. Among these positions have been bishop, bishop's counselor and deacon quorum advisor.

Mr. Speaker, our nation needs more citizens who are willing to stand up for the values that have made America great. We need more individuals who are dedicated to improving the lives and circumstances of the people around them. We need more of our young people to participate in character-building and community-building activities. We need more responsible adults to take an active role in caring for and guiding the youth of this country. In short, we need more people like Doug Simmons.

I salute both Doug and the institution he loves so dearly, The Boy Scouts of America. As he now commemorates his 50 years of involvement with the Boy Scouts of America, let us honor all Doug Simmons' contributions to advancing the ideals of that great organization.

IN RECOGNITION OF SADIE M. CURRY

HON. BOB RILEY

OF ALABAMA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mr. RILEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to Ms. Sadie M. Curry, who is being recognized this weekend for her lifetime achievement. Ms. Curry retired in 1999 after 41 years as a science teacher in Talladega, Alabama.

From the beginning of her teaching career, Ms. Curry received commendations for her teaching. She was named Teacher of the Year for Talladega County even as early as 1960; first designated as Outstanding Elementary Teacher of the year in 1972; and named Teacher of the Year for Talladega Middle School in 1984. She continued to receive the honor of Teacher of the Year for Dixon Middle School, the school from which she retired, throughout the 1990's. She was named as a Finalist in the Jacksonville State University Hall of Fame Teacher of the Year competition in 1985 and again in 1995 and 1996. Further, she was nominated as Alabama State Teacher of the Year three times.

Sadie Curry was deeply involved in teaching science to her students. She became the Coordinator of the Local Science Fair in 1972 and continued in this position through 1994. She also served as Director of the Northeast Alabama International Science and Engineering Fair from 1982–1985. She was honored by the Environmental Protection Agency for her teaching unit on ''Learning to Love Trees,'' and received the Talladega Scientist of the Year Award in 1985. She was honored by the American Society of Microbiology for Aspiring American Youth in 1984 and in that same year received a $500 mini-grant from the Alabama Department of Economic and Community Affairs to assist teachers in the teaching and promotions of science, technology and energy in the classroom. In 1994, she won the Catalyst Award for Excellence in Science Teaching by the National Chemical Manufacturers Association. In 1995, she and three of her students traveled to Washington, D.C. for the 15th Annual National Recognition Ceremonies for the Youth Awards Program Energy Education.

Her instruction in science included conservation. For this, she was nominated as Conservation Teacher of the Year in 1984 and was named as Conservation Teacher of the Year in 1997. Dixon Middle School was the winner of the Alabama State Campus Cleanup Program in 1996, the 3rd place winner in 1998 and the winner of the Alabama People Against a Littered State Cleanup Campus Award in 1997.

However, Ms. Curry's quality as a teacher has gone far beyond her instruction in science. She cares deeply about her students. Her energy and enthusiasm are contagious, and she has challenged her students to be the best that they can be. They have learned to respect their environment and one another. It is said that the measure of a person's worth is in the effect he has on others. Ms. Curry's worth can be seen in the effect she has had on the many students she has taught and the very fact that many are returning for her tribute this weekend. In her honor there is now a Sadie M. Curry Outstanding Science Award at Dixon Middle School. For the next twenty years, an outstanding science student will have his name engraved on a plaque displayed at the school.

A TRIBUTE TO SIGNAL HILL POLICE OFFICER LARRY MORRIS

HON. STEPHEN HORN

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mr. HORN. Mr. Speaker, today the City of Signal Hill pays tribute to senior police officer Larry Morris, an outstanding police officer who selflessly dedicated himself to protecting children from the dangers of gangs and drugs.

The list of Larry's contributions to the community is a long and distinguished one. He was the father of Signal Hill's D.A.R.E. (Drug Abuse Resistance Education) and G.R.E.A.T. (Gang Resistance Education, and Training) programs. Larry was a remarkable teacher of these programs in all the local elementary schools. Children were naturally drawn to his sincere, caring ways. When he walked through a school, the children would surround him, just to give him a hug. Larry deeply cared about these young people, and truly made a difference in so many of their lives.

Among his many contributions to our community, Larry served in the Signal Hill Police Department from 1972 to 1998. He worked in patrol, investigations, K–9, and field training. For the last ten years of his career Larry dedicated himself to the youth of the community. He was an originating member of the Operation Jumpstart Mentoring program and the Signal Hill juvenile crime stoppers. He also created the Signal Hill Juvenile Diversion program, was an advisor to the Signal Hill Police Department Explorer Post, and a selector for the R.M. Pyles Boys Camp program.

On October 10, 1999, Larry lost his battle with cancer. As a fitting tribute, on October 14, 2000, the City of Signal Hill and the Signal Hill Police Department dedicated the city's community youth center as the ''Larry Morris Community Youth Center.''

Mr. Speaker, we struggle to express feelings of grief, sorrow and appreciation for this fine officer who gave so much to his community and was taken from us far too early in life. The youth center bearing Larry's name will allow his legacy to live on in the minds and hearts of our children, and our community, for many generations to come. I shall always remember Larry with a smile and a twinkle in his eyes. He cared and he served and saved many of the youth of Signal Hill.

ON THE DEATH OF REV. JESSE TAYLOR

HON. DANNY K. DAVIS

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mr. DAVIS of Illinois. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor a man who was devoted not only to serving the Lord, but to the people around him as well. The Reverend Jesse Taylor of Chicago, died on April 22, 2000. The passing of Reverend Taylor may have indeed been a sad moment for those who shared his life; but the subsequent celebration of the life he lived was a joyous occasion for all. In fact, when I was asked to speak at the home-going services of Reverend Taylor there were not enough words for me to begin to describe the full and virtuous life that he lived. This man lived and breathed all that life had to offer him.

To describe Reverend Taylor is to describe a man who was after God's own heart. He was called into the ministry at the early age of nineteen and from there served as the Assistant Pastor of the Metropolitan Missionary Baptist Church in Chicago, Illinois where he served for over twenty-eight years.

By 1969, he was named Pastor of that same church where he faithfully served for seventeen years. In 1986, Rev. Taylor became the pastor, counselor, teacher, and friend of Greater Love M.B. Church where he served the Lord and his community until his last breath. Rev. Taylor was the Financial Secretary to both the North Woodriver District and the Illinois State Convention. He also was a member of the National Baptist Sunday School and Training Union Congress along with the National Missionary Baptist Convention of America. In addition to being a pastor, Rev. Taylor was a loyal husband of sixty-five years; and to his eight children, a loving father.

I stand before you honoring this wonderful man who represents what we should all strive to be—loving, dedicated, and steadfast not only to oneself, but to all of humankind. The Reverend Jesse Taylor, ''Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends (John 15:13).'' Thank you for your life of service. Reverend Taylor lived until the ripe old age of ninety-two and preached his last sermon just a few months before this death.

RECOGNITION OF CORPORATE RESPONSIBILITY

HON. WALTER B. JONES

OF NORTH CAROLINA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mr. JONES of North Carolina. Mr. Speaker, just over a year ago, Hurricane Floyd struck the 3rd District of North Carolina, causing billions of dollars of damage and displacing thousands of families. Eastern North Carolina is no stranger to extreme weather conditions and my district always seems to rise to the challenge posed by these natural disasters.

But there is something that goes unnoticed by many, goes unreported by the newspapers and broadcast media, goes unappreciated by many who call themselves environmentalists and goes unrecognized by many in Congress.

Corporate America and businesses in general are an integral component of our neighborhoods and communities devastated by Hurricane Floyd. Weyerhaueser, one of the world's leading forest products companies, is one company I'd like to recognize as a good neighbor during the worse natural disaster in state's history.

I'd like to place in the RECORD this letter commending Weyerhauesuer and their efforts during this national calamity. Without responsible companies like Weyerhaueser, recovery in Eastern North Carolina would have been impossible. On behalf of Eastern North Carolina, I rise today to thank Weyerhaueser and their heartfelt actions after Hurricane Floyd.

NORTH CAROLINA FLOOD PUTS WEYERHAEUSER'S EMPLOYEE SUPPORT TO THE TEST

By Elizabeth Crossman, vice president of the Weyerhaeuser Company Foundation

NEW BERN, NC—In September, 1999, rising floodwaters in the wake of Hurricane Floyd made thousands of eastern North Carolinians homeless, and caused billions of dollars in damage to property, commerce and infrastructure. It was the worst natural disaster in the state's history. For Weyerhaeuser, one of the world's leading forest products companies, the floods posed the ultimate challenge to the company's commitment to its employees.

Weyerhaeuser operates 16 facilities or offices across North Carolina—primarily sawmills and pulp and paper manufacturing plants located near its substantial timber holdings in the coastal plain. About two-thirds of Weyerhaeuser's North Carolina workforce of about 3,000 make their homes in that section of North Carolina that bore the brunt of the storm.

Of course Weyerhaeuser faced immediate challenges in the aftermath of the floods. Several mills were either flooded themselves, or cut off from employees and raw materials by impassable roads. Communities in which the company operates were in turmoil, with schools closed, utilities disrupted and relief organizations rushing to the area to set up temporary services. While dealing with these concerns, the company's unit managers had to take inventory of who among their employees was affected and to what extent. It took several weeks to get an accurate count, with human resource and corporate affairs managers comparing notes. The impact was substantial. Over ninety active employees or retirees were harmed by the storm, most of them significantly. In fact 35 suffered total losses.

Meanwhile, at corporate headquarters in Federal Way, Washington, executives were already understanding the seriousness of the situation in North Carolina, and crafting their first response. The Weyerhaeuser Company Foundation maintains an emergency budget to respond quickly when disasters strike communities where the company operates. This fund, for example, was tapped to support Oklahoma City after the bombing of the federal building in 1996. And, in response to the devastating flooding in eastern North Carolina, the Foundation promptly appropriated $100,000 to support four local American Red Cross chapters who were providing immediate assistance to impacted communities.

Within weeks, Weyerhaeuser Chairman and CEO Steve Rogel was on the ground in North Carolina assessing the damage first hand and meeting with impacted employees. He heard the same message repeatedly. ''Our employees told me they needed immediate funds in order to get into temporary housing, and they needed advice and help to deal with the relief agencies and insurance companies. That's where we aimed our support,'' said Rogel.

Rogel and his team of corporate and North Carolina advisors crafted an action plan that they put into place within days.

Dedicated fund for employees: Working with the United Way chapter of Pitt County in Greenville, NC, the company set up a dedicated account to collect funds for employee flood victims. A corporate gift of $100,000 was eventually more than doubled by individual employee donations from throughout the company.

Dedicated advocate: A full-time manager was assigned to set up individual case files for all 93 impacted employees and assist each of them in their dealings with relief agencies, insurance companies, state and county governments, lawyers and others.

Counseling for victims: The company offered crisis counseling to its employees and their family members through its Employee and Family Assistance Program (EFAP).

Adopt-A-Family program: The Weyerhaeuser Company Foundation organized a program by which facilities and staff groups throughout the company could ''adopt'' a family affected by the floods. The Adopt-A-Family benefactors continue to provide monetary or in-kind contributions as their circumstances allow, and offer personal solace and encouragement for their colleagues in need. All 51 employees or retirees with total or significant losses have been adopted.

Coordination of recovery efforts: The corporate-assigned flood victim advocate, working with a team of North Carolina human resource managers, coordinates recovery activities, including distribution of money from the United Way fund to employees, soliciting donations of building materials from Weyerhaeuser manufacturing facilities and scheduling volunteers for clean-up or rebuilding projects.

As a result of Weyerhaeuser's prompt and unique approach, employee flood victims have realized many tangible benefits. Over $257,000 has been distributed to employees in need from the dedicated fund administered by Pitt County United Way. All employees or retirees with total or significant losses were placed with facilities or staff groups through Adopt-A-Family. All have received substantial support, including in some cases automobiles, appliances, furniture, personal items and cash. All but four employees made homeless by the flood are in new or rebuilt housing, with everyone expected to be back home by year-end.

Katy Taylor, appointed by Weyerhaeuser to fill the advocate's role, has chronicled the events of the flood and the recovery in the year since. She has been moved both by the plight of the affected employees and by the generosity of those responding. ''For someone who has lost just about everything they worked all their lives for, knowing there are people supporting you in your time of need is so important. Weyerhaeuser's corporate support and the Adopt-A-Family program gave our impacted employees somewhere to turn when they thought there was none,'' Taylor said. Her experience has led Weyerhaeuser to conclude some key benefits that other companies could gain by following a similar approach.

Taylor defines four key benefits: productivity; pride; citizenship and partnership. Weyerhaeuser's businesses recover productivity more quickly and enjoy a closer working relationship between management and labor. Employee pride in the company is enhanced, both among those receiving support and giving it. The relationship between Weyerhaeuser and its operating communities is strengthened. Partnerships are formed among the company and public and private relief agencies that will remain long after the last employees are back in their homes. ''We will carry forward many positive results that we should not have had reason to expect from such a tragedy,'' Taylor added.

No company wants to experience the anguish of employees and turmoil to business operations caused by events like North Carolina's flooding. However, when faced with the situation, Weyerhaeuser listened to its people on the ground, acted decisively and came up with unique approaches to difficult problems. The end result is that employees fared better than they would have otherwise, and Weyerhaeuser has a program it can deploy should disaster strike again.

IN HONOR OF WORLD POPULATION AWARENESS WEEK 2000—SAVING WOMEN'S LIVES

HON. CAROLYN B. MALONEY

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mrs. MALONEY of New York. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize the Population Institute's 16th annual ''World Population Awareness Week (WPAW).'' The theme of this event, ''Saving Women's Lives,'' is an appropriate reminder of the hundreds of thousands of women who die each year due to reproductive health complications. Every minute of every day a woman somewhere in the world dies from pregnancy related complications, a total of 600,000 women each year.

According to Population Institute President Warner Fornos more than 350 million married women in developing countries still lack access to information, education, and the means to obtain a range of modern family planning methods. This problem is further exacerbated by the fact that a disproportionately large share of the poorest of the poor and malnourished in the world are women and girls.

In addition to focusing on the status of women around the world, World Population Awareness Week strives to develop awareness to the environmental and social complications caused by rapid population growth across the globe. Two hundred thirty organizations from 62 countries around the world cosponsored World Population Awareness Week, including the Family Planning Association of India, the National Association of Family Welfare of Cameroon, and the Educational Foundation for Reproductive Health of Cambodia. Over 200 mayors across the United States have also proclaimed the event, along with the following 34 Governors:

Governor Tony Knowles of Alaska, Gray Davis of California, Bill Owens of Colorado, John G. Rowland of Connecticut, Thomas Carper of Delaware, Roy Barnes of Georgia, Benjamin Cayetano of Hawaii, Thomas Vilsack of Iowa, Dirk Kempthorne of Idaho, Bill Graves of Kansas, Paul Patton of Kentucky, Angus King, Jr. of Maine, Parris Glendening of Maryland, Argeo Paul Cellucci of Massachusetts, Jesse Ventura of Minnesota, Kirk Fordice of Mississippi, Mel Carnahan of Missouri, Mike Johanns of Nebraska, Kenny Guinn of Nevada, Jeanne Shaheen of New Hampshire, Christie Todd Whitman of New Jersey, Gary Johnson of New Mexico, James B. Hunt, Jr. of North Carolina, Edward Schafer of North Dakota, Rob Taft of Ohio, Frank Keating of Oklahoma, John Kitzhaber of Oregon, Tom Ridge of Pennsylvania, Lincoln Almond of Rhode Island, Jim Hodges of South Carolina, Don Sundquist of Tennessee, Howard Dean of Vermont, Gary Locke of Washington, Cecil Underwood of West Virginia.

Mr. Speaker, next week during World Population Awareness Week, we have the perfect opportunity to show the world our commitment to international family planning without the anti-democratic restrictions by supporting full FY 1995 funding levels for international family planning and once and for all remove the onerous Gag Rule from law. Women's lives around the world are depending on it.

IN HONOR OF PASTOR FRED L. CROUTHER

HON. THOMAS M. BARRETT

OF WISCONSIN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mr. BARRETT of Wisconsin. Mr. Speaker, today I would like to honor an outstanding citizen in Milwaukee, Reverend Fred L. Crouther. Pastor Crouther not only provides spiritual guidance to this congregation at New Covenant Missionary Baptist Church, he is a source of inspiration and courage to our whole community.

Everyday, Pastor Crouther reaches out to the poor, disadvantaged, disabled and downtrodden to not only better their circumstances, but to uplift the human spirit. He provides countless hours of counseling and support of families and people from all walks of life.

With his New Covenant Congregation, Pastor Crouther has helped provide a hot meal program, a food pantry and a clothing bank, as well as an alternative school, scholarships and tutorial programs. He also oversees and coordinates the New Covenant Corporation, the New Covenant Church Credit Union, the New Covenant Housing Corporation and the New Covenant Development Corporation, organizations intended to extend the church's reach further into the community.

Reverend Crouther came to Milwaukee in 1964, and married his wife, Mary Louise Minor of Fort Wayne, Indiana on June 11, 1966. He studied theology at the American Baptist Theological Seminary in Nashville, and began his graduate studies at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee from 1967–1969. He was licensed to preach the gospel on July 5, 1959 and ordained a minister of the gospel on December 30, 1962. He has two children, Tamara and David.

Pastor Crouther has been an integral part of Milwaukee's spiritual life, and I would like to personally thank him for all he has done to better our community, our families and our hearts.

INTRODUCTION OF SCHOOL BASED HEALTH CENTERS TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE ACT

HON. CAROLYN C. KILPATRICK

OF MICHIGAN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Ms. KILPATRICK. Mr. Speaker, Today I am introducing legislation designed to assist school-based health centers face the challenge of meeting their long-term financing needs and developing data gathering systems. This legislation recognizes that school based health care centers (SBHCs) are a fixture in the child health care delivery network and are effective in reaching out to a target under- and uninsured population.

There are more than 1,100 SBHCs in the United States, more than 40 of which are located in my home state of Michigan. These clinics bring a wide array of health care services to children in a place where they spend a good amount of time—their school. Schools are a logical place to establish health services for children, and SBHCs should be assigned a greater role and responsibility in the child health care delivery system. As we search for solutions to improve access to health care for children, SBHCs can play an important part in the overall equation. They can provide health care when children want it and where they need it. SBHCs complement the community health system, and they screen to prevent and treat diseases and other health threats.

SBHCs, like many community-based health programs, have to piece together funding for services from a multiple number of sources. The largest source of funding comes from states' Maternal and Child Health Care block grants and the Healthy Schools/Healthy Communities program. According to the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation, the growth of state governments that have established Medicaid managed care plans has complicated reimbursement procedures and health care financing. SBHCs do not have the sophisticated mechanisms to deal effectively and efficiently with the new array of health care plans to ensure that the services they provide will be reimbursed. This bill is an attempt to address this issue.

The legislation proposed under this bill would authorize funding of a demonstration program to promote the development of comprehensive, computerized management information systems designed for the following information purposes:

Assess the performance of SBHCs;

Obtain data on client characteristics;

Denote service utilization and outcomes;

Support financial functions (appropriate billing procedures);

Identify reimbursable categories of service by major funding source;

Handle patient tracking functions.

This bill should be regarded as a first draft only. I introduced it with the hope that stakeholders like the National Assembly of School Based Health Care, health care providers and plans, the Health Resources and Services Administration, and other entities will work with me to improve the proposal. Our ultimate goal is to provide our children with the health care services they need to remain healthy, lead constructive lives and stay in school. I look forward to working with them and my colleagues to improve on this work.

A SALUTE TO CREATIVE POPULAR CULTURE

HON. MAJOR R. OWENS

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mr. OWENS. Mr. Speaker, some seemingly trivial items of urban popular culture are now on display at the Brooklyn Museum of Art in an exhibit titled ''Hip-Hop Nation: Roots, Rhymes and Rage.'' When I visited the exposition I was most impressed by the large numbers of youth from diverse backgrounds who were viewing the multi-media displays. Their immediate excitement combined with the symbols, clothing, photographs, memorabilia, poetry, music and clippings of urban grassroots aspiration and expressions were fresh stimulants for the mind—and also inspirational. While human interaction and experience often generate fragments of culture, the phenomenon that grabs one's attention in the case of the Hip-Hop artists is the manner in which the components aggregate, mushroom, and continually spread across ethnic, class, and nationality lines. Beyond its image as a violent movement, perpetuated by a few highly publicized celebrities, is the fact that the majority of the participants are ordinary youth. Hip-Hop appears to be on a course to leap over the limits of neighborhoods and fads. In some cases its content moves beyond the frivolous and the trivial toward profundity. The concept of traditional culture relies heavily on the elements of universal appeal and endurance. Hip-Hop may generate a significant impact on conventional culture; it continues to spread and to last. Consider the implications; urban America has a generation that is making culture. These creators may evolve into a new set of heroes that posterity comes to respect and revere. These are heroes who are making culture, not war. We salute the foresight and the boldness of the Brooklyn Museum of Art and its Director, Arnold Lehman. This initiative has provided us with a small window through which we may watch culture being made. The following Rap poem was inspired by my visit to this unusual exhibit.

MAKE CULTURE NOT WAR

Make culture not war!

Be loud about our love,
Put passion in your dove;
Shoot your best shot!

Trivial sparks make profound fires,
Teenage crazes light
Big social blazes;
Tiny innovations shape
The spirit of sluggish nations;
The greatest generation
Still waits to take the stage;
Against pain and greed
Wage a new breed of rage.

Combat sneaker boots,
T-shirt uniforms—
The battlefield is everyday;
Go for the ultimate victory
Fighting the Hip-Hop way!
Be loud about your love!

Draft your hottest hormones,
Recruit ancient instincts,
Mobilize mistreated manhood,
Make rivers of sweat
But let it always be sweet.

Shoot your best shot!
Ejaculate your joy,
Pour powerful blessings
Into the womb
Of a wailing world.

Generals in heaven command:
Make culture not war!
Hitler was an artist
Painted by the past;
Graffiti hieroglyphics
Is a language that will last.

Pledge allegiance
To life abundant;
Permit simple pleasures
To be redundant.

Fly a flag of flowers;
On Babies confer new powers;
The positive pursuit
Must never pause—
Happiness is our greatest cause.

Storm beaches of despair,
Fight poison convention everywhere,
Scale cliffs rock hard
With cynical soils;
Victors bring your own spoils.

The greatest generation
Still waits to take the stage.
Refuse to just sit
On crumbling stoops and wait;
Liberating geniuses
May show up too late.

Make culture not war!
Rapping poets are warriors
Drafted by anxious angels
To conquer with their songs;
Music makes no massacres.

The battlefield is everyday;
Go for the ultimate victory
Fighting the Hip-Hop way!
Shoot your best shot!

Be loud about your love,
Put passion in your dove;
The greatest generation
Take orders only from above.
Make culture not war!

HON. ROBERT MENENDEZ

OF NEW JERSEY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mr. MENENDEZ. Mr. Speaker, today I honor the Statewide Hispanic Chamber of Commerce of New Jersey (SHCC).

SHCC has had a tremendous impact on the development and growth of the Hispanic community across the state of New Jersey, and I commend SHCC's many invaluable contributions.

Because of the hard work of SHCC, as well as that of other organizations, the Hispanic market is the fastest growing sector in the United States. In New Jersey, the Hispanic market has experienced 87 percent growth over the past decade. Currently, there are over 30,000 Hispanic-owned businesses, supporting 128,000 jobs, and generating 7.5 billion dollars in sales.

At the dawn of the new millennium, the Hispanic community is experiencing economic and political empowerment. The new economy and the political landscape would not be complete without the contributions of Hispanic Americans.

HONORING OLYMPIC SILVER MEDALIST

HON. RALPH M. HALL

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 19, 2000

Mr. HALL of Texas. Mr. Speaker, my colleague, Mr. SAM JOHNSON of Texas, and I have the privilege today to pay tribute to Paul Foerster of Rockwall, Texas, who won the silver medal in the Men's 470 sailing event at the 2000 Olympics in Sydney, Australia.

Paul was the skipper of the United States' entry in the Men's 470 sailing event. His teammate on the two-man vessel was Bob Merrick of Rhode Island. Paul and Bob finished first in four of the eleven races, more than any competitor. Australia won the gold with a better aggregate score.

Paul previously competed in the 1988 and 1992 Olympic Games in the Flying Dutchman sailing class, winning the silver medal in Barcelona, Spain in 1992. He has sailed in more than 500 yachting competitions in the last decade. He learned to sail as a young man growing up in Corpus Christi, Texas and was a three-time All American sailer at the University of Texas, where he earned a degree in aerospace engineering.

Paul works at the Raytheon Company's Garland facility in the Third Congressional District, where his co-workers hosted a recognition ceremony for him this week. He is a new resident of Rockwall in the Fourth Congressional District. Mr. Speaker, we join his coworkers, family and friends in commending him for his dedication, determination, and commitment to excellence. Paul brings honor both to himself—and to the United States of America. As we adjourn today, let us do so in recognition of the superior achievement of Paul Foerster in the 2000 Olympics.

HON. JIM GIBBONS

Mr. GIBBONS. Mr. Speaker, last year on November 13th, the Subcommittee on Forests and Forest Health held a hearing in Elko, Nevada to study the events surrounding the closure of the South Canyon Road by the Forest Service. After a thunderstorm washed out parts of the road in the Spring of 1995, the agency prohibited the community of Jarbidge from repairing it—going so far as to initiate criminal action against the county. At this hearing, we learned that it wasn't just parts of the road that washed away in that storm but also the Federal Government's failure to use common sense. The South Canyon Road has been used by local residents since the late 1800s—to now keep the citizens of Elko County from maintaining and using what is clearly theirs is a violation of the statute commonly referred to as RS 2477. This is an issue of national significance, demonstrating ongoing attempts by the Federal Government, particularly under this Administration, to usurp the legal rights of States and Counties. So for this reason, the subcommittee had done extensive research into the fundamental questions concerning the South Canyon Road, specifically: who has ownership of the road and who has jurisdiction over the road? Subcommittee Chairman CHENOWETH-HAGE has compiled her research into this, her final report on the November 13th hearing. I would now respectfully ask that it be submitted into the RECORD of this 106th Congress.

CHAIRMAN'S FINAL REPORT, HEARING ON THE JARBIDGE ROAD, ELKO COUNTY, NEVADA, SUBCOMMITTEE ON FORESTS AND FOREST HEALTH

Preface

By invitation of Congressman Jim Gibbons of Nevada, the Subcommittee on Forests and Forest Health held an oversight hearing in Elko, Nevada on November 13th, 1999, on a dispute between Elko County and the United States Forest Service (USFS). The County of Elko claimed ownership of a road known as the Jarbidge South Canyon Road by virtue of their assertion of rights under a statute commonly referred to as RS 2477. The USFS asserted they do not recognize the county's ownership rights and claimed jurisdiction over the road under the Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo, the proclamation creating the Humboldt National Forest, the Wilderness Act, the Federal Land Policy and Management Act (FLPMA), the Endangered Species Act, and the Clean Water Act. This issue came to a head when the USFS directed its contractor to destroy approximately a one-fourth mile section of the Road, thus preventing its use by parties claiming private rights of use which could be accessed only by the Road. Also, access to the Jarbidge Wilderness Area was closed off by the action of the USFS.

Chairman Chenoweth-Hage submits this final report to members based on the testimony given and records available to the Subcommittee. Representatives of the USFS failed to defend their position from a legal standpoint, submitting no legal analysis that justified their position. Instead, they simply ''ruled'' that they did not recognize the validity of the County's assertion to the road.

The investment of time in the historic perspective leading up to the County's assertion was fruitful, yielding numerous clearly worded acts of Congress, backed up in a plethora of case law. I have attempted to bring that historic perspective to this report, because the Congressional and legal background cannot be ignored if we are to view the western lands issues in the framework Congress and the courts have intended.

I therefore submit my final report on the hearing on the Jarbidge Road.

Summary: The Basic Questions of Ownership and Jurisdiction

The dispute over the Jarbidge South Canyon Road (Road) between Elko County, Nevada and the United States Forest Service (USFS) involves two basic questions:

1. Who has ownership of the road?
2. Who has jurisdiction over the road?

Ownership is defined as control of property rights.

Jurisdiction is defined as the right to exercise civil and criminal process.

The UNITED STATES argues that when the Humboldt National Forest was created in 1909, the road in question became part of the Humboldt National Forest. The UNITED STATES argues that the Humboldt National Forest is public land owned by the UNITED STATES and the USFS, as agent for the UNITED STATES, has both ownership and jurisdiction. The UNITED STATES has responded to the RS 2477 issue (Section 8, Act of July 26, 1866) by arguing that no RS 2477 road which was established in a national forest after the creation of the national forests, was valid, and all roads within the national forest fall under USFS jurisdiction after passage of the Federal Land Policy and Management Act of October 21, 1976 (FLPMA).

Evidence was presented by Elko County in an effort to establish proof of ownership of the Jarbidge South Canyon Road. This evidence includes documents and oral testimony, showing that the road was established in the late 1800s on what had been a pre-existing Indian trail used by the native Shoshone for an unknown period of time prior to any white settlement in the area.

Elko County claims jurisdiction over the Jarbidge South Canyon Road by virtue of evidence that the road was created to serve the private property interests of the settlers in the area. Elko County cites various private right claims to water, minerals, and grazing which the road was constructed to serve.

The crucial factor in determining which argument is correct is to determine whether the federal land upon which the Road exists is ''public land'' subject to federal ownership and jurisdiction or whether the federal land upon which the Road exists is encumbered with private property rights over which the state of Nevada and private citizens exercise ownership and jurisdiction.

In any dispute of this kind, it is essential to review, not only prior history, but also the public policy of the United States as expressed in acts of Congress and relevant court decisions.

I. Breaking Down the Principles of Ownership

A. The law prior to Nevada Statehood.

1. The Mexican cession and ''Kearney's Code.''

Nevada became a state on October 30, 1864. Prior to that time the area in question was part of the territory of Nevada. The territory of Nevada had been created out of the western portion of the territory of Utah. Utah Territory had been a portion of the Mexican cession resulting from the Mexican War of 1945–46. U.S. Brigadeer General of the Army of the West, Stephen Watts Kearney, instituted an interim rule, commonly referred to as ''Kearney's Code,'' over the ceded area pending formal treaty arrangement between the U.S. and Mexico. The Mexican cession was formalized two years later with the Treaty of Guadalupe Hildago, February 2, 1848.

Mexico recognized title of the peaceful/Pueblo (or ''civilized'') Indians (either tribally or as individuals) to the lands actually occupied or possessed by them, unless abandoned or extinguished by legal process (i.e. treaty agreements). The Mexican policy of inducing Indians to give up their wandering ''nomadic, uncivilized'' life in favor of a settled ''pastoral, civilized'' life, was continued by Congress after the 1846 session and was the very basis of the government's Indian allotment and reservation policy. Mexico and Spain retained the mineral estate under both private grants and public lands as a sovereign asset obtainable only by express language in the grant or under the provisions of the Mining Ordinance.

2. The acquisition by the U.S.

When the area was ceded to the U.S., the U.S. acquired all ownership rights in the lands which had been previously held by the Mexican government. This included the mineral estate and the then unappropriated surface rights. Indian title, where it existed, remained with the respective Indian tribes. All other private property existing at the time of the cession, was also recognized and protected. Kearney's Code also recognized all existing Mexican property law and continued, in force, the laws, ''concerning water courses, stock marks and brands horses, enclosures, commons and arbitrations'', except where such laws would be repugnant to the Constitution of the United States. The Supreme Court of the United States, has upheld the validity of Kearney's Code, stating that Congress alone could have repealed it, and this it has never done.

In 1846, the areas where the Jarbidge South Canyon Road presently exists was acquired by the United States. The United States, like Mexico, retained the mineral estate, while the surface estate was open to settlement. Settlement of the surface estate continued under United States jurisdiction in much the same way it had proceeded under Mexican jurisdiction. Towns, cities and communities grew up around agricultural and mining areas.

3. The characteristics of the land and custom of settlement under Mexican law.

The Mexican cession, which is today the southwestern portion of the United States, consisted primarily of arid lands, interspersed with rugged mountain ranges. These mountain ranges were the primary source of water supply for the arid region. The water courses were part of the surface estate. Control or development of the land by settlers for either agricultural uses or mining depended on control of the water courses.

The most expansive (and most common) method of settlement under the Mexican ''colonization'' law was for the individual settler to establish a cattle and horse (ganado de mejor) or sheep and goat (ganado de menor) farm, known as a ''rancho'' or ranch. These ranches were large, eleven square leagues or ''sitios'' (approximately one-hundred square miles). The individual settler (under local authorization) would acquire a portion of irrigable crop land and an additional allotment of nearby seasonal/arid (temporal or agostadero) land and mountainous land containing water sources (canadas or abrevaderos) as a ''cattle range'' or ''range for pasturage.'' Four years of actual possession gave the ranchero a vested property right that could be sold (even before final federal confirmation or approval of the survey map (diseno). Control of livestock ranges depended on lawful control of the various springs, seeps and other water sources for livestock pasturage and watering purposes. Arbitration of disputes over water rights and range boundaries (rodeo or ''round-up'' boundaries) were adjudicated by local authorities (jueces del campo or ''judges of the plains'').

4. Mexican customs of settlement were maintained under U.S. rule.

This same settlement pattern of appropriating servitudes or rights (servidumbres) for pasturage adjacent to water courses, continued after the area was ceded to the United States in 1846. One of the first acts of the California legislature after the Mexican cession was to re-enact, as state law, the previous Mexican ''jueces del campo'' or ''rodeo'' laws governing the acquisition and adjudication of range (or pasturage) rights on the lands within the state.

The new settlers on lands in the Mexican cession after 1846, were not trespassers on the lands of the U.S., since Kearney's Code had continued in effect all the previous laws pertaining to water courses, livestock, enclosures and commons (stock ranges). Under Mexican law, water rights, possessory pasturage rights, and right-of-ways were easement rights. Mexican land law was based on a split-estate system (surface/mineral titles and easements) which the United States Courts were unfamiliar with and for which no federal equivalent law existed. Problems in sorting agricultural (rancho) titles/rights from mining titles/rights quickly became apparent when the courts began the adjudication of Spanish and Mexican land claims. Congress (like Spain and Mexico) had previously followed a policy of retaining mineral lands and valuable mines as a national asset.

5. Congress further defines and codifies settlement customs through the Act of 1866 with the establishment of mineral and surface estate rights.

There was no law passed by Congress to define the settlement process for the western mineral lands until Congress addressed this problem by a series of acts beginning in the 1860's. Key among the split-estate mining/settlement laws was the Act of July 26, 1866. Congress established a lawful procedure whereby the mineral estate of the United States could pass into the possession of private miners. Private mining operations could then turn the dormant resource wealth of these lands into active resource wealth for the benefit of a growing nation.

The 1866 Act also dealt with the surface estate of mineral lands. The act clearly recognized local law and custom and decisions of the court, which had been operating relative to these lands and extended these existing laws and customs into the future. The 1866 Act created a general right-of-way for settlers to cross these lands at will. It also allowed for the establishment of easements.

At this point, it is important to note the definitions of these key terms:

A right-of-way is defined as the right to cross the lands of another.

An easement is defined as the rights to use the lands of another.

Section 8 and 9 of the 1866 Act are the seminal U.S. law defining the rights of ownership in the Jarbidge South Canyon Road. Section 8, which was later codified as Revised Statute 2477, deals with the establishment of ''highways'' across the land. The term highways as used in the 1866 Act refers to any road or trail used for travel. The right-of-way portion of this act was an absolute grant for the establishment of general crossing routes over these lands at any point and by whatever means was recognized under local rules and customs.

Section 9 of the Act of July 1866, ''acknowledged and confirmed'' the right-of-way for the construction of ditches, canals, pipelines, reservoirs and other water conveyance/storage easements. Section 9 also guaranteed that water rights and associated rights of ''possession'' for the purpose of mining and agriculture (farming or stock grazing) would be maintained and protected.

B. The Law After Nevada Statehood.

1. The states adopt Mexican settlement customs, as affirmed by Kearney's Code and 1866 Act.

Once settlers in an area had exercised the general right-of-way provisions of the 1866 Act to establish permanent roads or trails, those roads or trails then, by operation of law, became easement (which is the right to use the lands of another). The general right-of-way provisions of the 1866 Act gave Congressional sanction and approval to the authorization of Kearney's Code respecting water courses, livestock enclosures and commons, and local arbitrations respecting possessory rights. All of the states and territories, west of the 98th meridian ultimately adopted water right-of-way related range/trail property laws similar to the former Mexican laws in California, New Mexico, and Arizona. These range rights were ''property'' recognized by the Supreme Court.
