1ST SESSION

H. CON. RES. 249

Expressing the sense of Congress that the United States should remain engaged in Iraq in order to ensure a peaceful, stable, unified Iraq with a representative government, and for other purposes.

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

JULY 22, 2003

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida submitted the following concurrent resolution; which was referred to the Committee on International Relations

CONCURRENT RESOLUTION

Expressing the sense of Congress that the United States should remain engaged in Iraq in order to ensure a peaceful, stable, unified Iraq with a representative government, and for other purposes.

Whereas the United States, with the support of Great Britain and other countries, historically and courageously toppled the regime of Saddam Hussein and the Baath party;

Whereas conditions on the ground in parts of Iraq continue to pose a grave threat to United States troops, thereby complicating efforts to restore law and order and essential public services for Iraqis, and these efforts are further complicated by the absence of effective communications with the Iraqi people;

Whereas ultimately, maintaining law and order in Iraq and preserving its territorial integrity will require the creation of a professionally-trained Iraqi police force and a reformed Iraqi military, but that will take a significant amount of time and in the meantime international armed forces and police must assume these responsibilities;

Whereas approximately 145,000 United States troops are currently deployed in Iraq, meaning that United States Armed Forces comprise approximately 90 percent of Coalition forces, and even if, as the Department of Defense has stated, an additional 10,000 international troops join the Coalition effort in Iraq by September 2003, United States Armed Forces will still comprise approximately 85 percent of Coalition forces;

Whereas maintaining the existing force level in Iraq currently requires at least $3,900,000,000 each month;

Whereas the Department of Defense has stated that it will require one year to train a new Iraqi Army of 12,000 soldiers and three years to train 40,000 soldiers;

Whereas the Coalition Provisional Authority has stated that it will require at least one year to recruit and train a police force of 40,000 officers capable of assuming minimal police functions in Iraq, that it will require five years to recruit and train a full force of 75,000 officers, and that at least 5,500 additional international police are needed to train, assist, and jointly patrol with the existing Iraqi police force;

Whereas President Bush has noted that “[t]he rise of Iraq, as an example of moderation and democracy and prosperity, is a massive and long-term undertaking”, and it is clear that increasing the number of troops and police from countries other than the United States will reduce risks to American soldiers and the financial cost to the United States;

Whereas Secretary of Defense Rumsfeld testified that “[w]e certainly want assistance from NATO and from NATO countries” and it is clear that involving the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, as is being done in Afghanistan and has been done in Kosovo and Bosnia, allows the Coalition to maintain a robust military presence while decreasing the exposure and risk to United States troops; and

Whereas rebuilding Iraq’s neglected infrastructure and economy and administering Iraq, including providing basic services and paying public sector salaries, is likely to require tens of billions of dollars over several years and projected Iraqi oil revenues will be insufficient to meet these costs: Now, therefore, be it
