COMMITTEE STATEMENT AND VIEWS
PURPOSE AND SUMMARY

The current acquisition system, improved though it may be through the reforms of the 80s and 90s is simply inadequate to leverage the best and most innovative services and products our vigorous private-sector economy has to offer. It has not kept up with the dynamics of an economy that has, over the last few years, become increasingly service and technology oriented.

H.R 1837 is targeted overall at the root causes of our current dilemma. The legislation will allow us to put the tools needed to access the commercial service and technology market in the hands of a trained workforce. The legislation also grants that workforce the discretion necessary to choose the best value for the government and holds them accountable for their choices.

Specifically, the legislation consists of a carefully crafted set of balanced and interrelated proposals that will address the multiple deficiencies plaguing government acquisition today; (1) the lack of up-to-date comprehensive training for our acquisition professionals, (2) the inability of the current government structure to reflect business-like practices by integrating the acquisition function into the overall agency mission and facilitating cross-agency acquisitions and information sharing, and (3) the lack of effective tools and incentives to encourage the participation of the best commercial firms in the government market.
H.R. 1837 at title I amends federal procurement law to remedy one of the most glaring difficulties facing today's acquisition system; our inability to have the right people with the right skills to manage the acquisition of the services and technology the government needs. It will establish a sorely needed workforce training fund within the General Services Administration (GSA), financed by depositing 5 percent of the fees collected by various agencies under their government-wide contracts, including the GSA Schedules. This will stabilize training funding and allow our hard-working acquisition professionals to get the training they need to transition to the new service oriented and technology driven federal market.

It will also create an acquisition professional exchange program to permit the exchange of high-performing acquisition professionals between the federal government and participating private-sector concerns. The program will provide both public and private sector employees with invaluable first-hand experience and insight to bring back to their respective organizations. The program will contain extensive ethics protections. It is modeled after the Digital Tech Corps Act for technology professionals that is included in the recently enacted E-Government Act of 2002 Pub. L. 107–347.

Title I makes a number of other changes to help the government recruit a skilled acquisition workforce and to ensure that the government maintains an adequate workforce to acquire the architectural and engineering services it needs.

TITLE II

Title II of the legislation includes a number of provisions aimed at reforming the government's antiquated acquisition management structure and provides other improvements to the process. The legislation provides for the appointment of a Chief Acquisition Officer (CAO) (the provision is modeled on the Chief Human Capitol Officer position created in the Homeland Security Act of 2002, Pub. L. 107–296) for each agency to eliminate stovepipes and serve as a focal point for acquisition in day-to-day operations, as well as in agency-wide strategic planning and performance evaluation processes. It also establishes a CAO Council modeled after the Chief Information Officers Council established in the E-Government Act of 2002, Pub. L. 107–347 to monitor and improve the federal acquisition system. In a further effort to unlock the current stove-piped structure, the legislation will provide for the creation of an advisory panel of acquisition experts with diverse experience to review current government-wide acquisition laws and regulations. The panel will make recommendations for change with a view towards ensuring the effective and appropriate use of commercial practices and encouraging the most innovative firms to compete in the government market while retaining the integrity of the acquisition process and ensuring that the government's best interests are protected.

The legislation also contains a provision that will prohibit government agencies from disqualifying from the award of a government contract a business that permits its workers to telecommute in the performance of the contract. The provision is based upon the Freedom to Telecommute Act that passed the House last Congress by a vote of 412–0. H.R 1837 also contains provisions that (1) provide statutory authority for agency level bid protests and clarify the relationship between agency-level and the General Accounting Office protest process, (2) extend the current authority to carry out the government’s franchise fund programs, (3) provide for a number of needed improvements in the government’s contracting for architectural and engineering services and (4) add procedural requirements for civilian agencies relating to the acquisition of products of Federal Prison Industries.

TITLE III

H.R 1837 at title III adds tools to enable our acquisition workforce to tap into our dynamic commercial marketplace. The legislation provides for the increased authorization of the use of innovative share-in-savings contracts beyond information technology. A limited number of share-in—savings contracts are authorized for information technology in the recently passed E-Government Act. Share-in-savings contracts represent an innovative approach to encourage industry to share creative technology and management solutions so that agencies can lower costs and improve service delivery without large up-front investments. The legislation also authorizes agencies to exercise options for additional performance periods in service contracts based upon exceptional performance.

TITLE IV

H.R 1837 updates the improvements in the acquisition of commercial items made during the reforms of the 90s. It establishes a government-wide preference for the use of performance-based service contracts by treating them in most respects as contracts for commercial items. This will authorize the use of simplified procedures for the award of performance-based service contracts and apply to those contracts, within certain limits, the current waivers of requirements and certifications. The legislation authorizes the use of time and material and labor-hour type contracts for commercial services that are commonly sold to the public through such contracts. The legislation provides a clarification of the existing statutory definition of commercial items to better reflect the commercial market for services and to include goods and services provided by a firm’s commercial entity.

TITLE V

This title of H.R 1837 provides for various improvements to the acquisition system. It contains a provision allowing all federal agencies to use approaches other than contracts to buy research and development and prototypes for new technologies to fight terror. The Department of Defense has long had such authority. The new Department of Homeland Security has recently been granted the authority. The legislation also makes permanent the Federal Emergency Procurement Flexibility Act that was included as part of the Homeland Security Act of 2002. The Flexibility Act provides agencies with greater authority to buy the most high-tech and sophisticated products and services to support anti-terror efforts and to defend against biological, chemical, or radiological attacks.
government agencies need this authority to respond to possible terror threats. The title also provides authority to make inflation adjustments to the existing acquisition threshold for simplified acquisition procedures and makes technical corrections to the information security provisions of the Homeland Security Act. The title further removes domestic source restrictions for commercial information technology products, prohibits the use of numerical goals, targets, or quotas for competitive sourcing unless they are based on sound research and analysis, provides for publication of information on certain contract awards for Iraq reconstruction efforts and places a $15,000,000 ceiling on the applicability of the waiver of certification and accounting requirements for services or goods deemed commercial pursuant to the title IV provisions of H.R. 1837 encouraging the use of performance-based contracts and clarifying the definition of commercial item to include services and products of a commercial entity.

BACKGROUND AND NEED FOR THE LEGISLATION

Each year our government spends well over $200 billion buying services and goods ranging from sophisticated information technology and management services, to grass cutting and window washing, from paper clips to advanced weapon systems. More than half that $200 billion, over $135 billion is now spent on services—an increase of about 24 percent since 1990—establishing services as the Nation’s largest single spending category.

The acquisition process that is tasked with this daunting job is grounded on two basic, and largely mirror-image statutes. The Armed Services Procurement Act of 1947 for the Department of Defense, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, and the Coast Guard and the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949 for most civilian agencies. Additionally, the Office of Federal Procurement Policy Act provides a tie between the defense and civilian sectors through the establishment of government-wide acquisition policies and procedures; particularly the government-wide Federal Acquisition Regulation. Finally, an array of other statutes such as the Small Business Act, Buy American Act and other government-wide and agency-specific laws impact the acquisition process. These governing provisions are the culmination of a haphazard succession of reforms, reactions to perceived abuses, socio-economic programs and management initiatives stretching back to the 1700s.

The good news is that despite the lack of a long-term coherent vision for the acquisition system, recent reforms throughout the 90s have revolutionized the way the government does business with the private sector.

The bad news is the reforms were not nearly sufficient to match the best practices of industry particularly regarding the acquisition of cutting edge information technology and management services. The reforms were rooted in the late 80s and early 90s context products and major systems. The current system, improved though it may be, is simply inadequate to leverage the best and most innovative services and products our vigorous private-sector economy has to offer. It has not kept up with the dynamics of an economy that has over the last few years become increasingly service and technology oriented. We do not have the right people with the right
The General Accounting Office, along with several civilian oversight agencies, have found prevailing weaknesses in service contracting; acquisitions are not competed sufficiently, are poorly planned, or not well managed. These enduring failures cause GAO to, year after year, place management of large procurement operations on its High Risk list. This diminishes the government’s ability to be effective and efficient in managing federal programs and spending, communicating with and providing services to citizens, and protecting our homeland. Without change, the current system cannot support the President’s vision, expressed in his Management Agenda, of a government that is well run, results oriented, citizen centered, and market based.

The proposals in H.R 1837 are grounded on the Services Acquisition Reform Act of 2002 (SARA), H.R. 3832 from the last Congress and the acquisition hearings held last year by the Technology and Procurement Policy Subcommittee of the Committee on Government Reform. We have made progress since then. The Congress has passed the Homeland Security Act, Pub. L 107–296 and the E-Government Act, Pub. L. 107–347. The Homeland Security Act contains some important procurement flexibilities, while the E-Government Act contains limited share-in-savings authority and cooperative purchasing authority to expand the General Services Administration schedule contracts to state and local governments. H.R. 1837 has benefited from the comments received from a variety of sources on the original version of SARA during last Congress’s acquisition hearings and from the debates surrounding the passage of the Homeland Security and E-Government Acts.

SARA will provide our acquisition workforce with the necessary tools to succeed through a carefully crafted set of provisions along with training and insightful management based on results and accountability. SARA is targeted towards the goal of a modern, responsive, flexible, market-based acquisition system that will result in the government leveraging the best the private sector has to offer at fair and reasonable prices. SARA will address training of our acquisition workforce to meet the challenges of the new service-oriented economy, it will provide for the adoption of business-like acquisition practices within the government, facilitate the acquisition of commercial services by building on the prior reforms in the acquisition of commercial items and enable our government to access cutting-edge technology within today’s commercial environment.

The federal government faces historic challenges. At the same time, it sits at the brink of unprecedented opportunity. We can and must develop new methods to harness the magic of our dynamic private market to meet the critical needs of the American people.

LEGISLATIVE HISTORY

The Services Acquisition Reform Act of 2003 (SARA), H.R. 1837 is targeted at the root causes of the dilemma facing the government’s acquisition system today: (1) The lack of up-to-date comprehensive training for our acquisition professionals; (2) the inability of the current government structure to reflect business-like practices by integrating the acquisition function into the overall agency mission and facilitating cross-agency acquisitions and information sharing; and (3) the lack of good tools and incentives to encourage the participation of the best commercial firms in the government market.

The legislation is the product of a rich hearing and comment process that has stretched over two Congresses. The provisions in the current legislation are grounded on the Services Acquisition Reform Act of 2002, H.R. 3832, introduced last Congress and the multiple hearings and debates that surrounded its consideration, as well as the debates held in connection with the passage of the Homeland Security Act and the E-Government Act. The Homeland Security Act contains some important procurement flexibilities, while the E-Government Act contains limited share-in-savings authority and cooperative purchasing authority. Consequently, the Committee has had the benefit of wealth of comments and suggestions from a variety of sources on the best reforms for the acquisition process.

On April 29, 2003, Chairman Tom Davis of the Committee on Government Reform and Representative Duncan Hunter introduced H.R. 1837 to give the government’s acquisition workforce the tools needed to access the commercial service and technology markets and the discretion necessary to choose the best value for the government and be held accountable for those choices.

The bill was referred to the House Committee on Government Reform that met pursuant to notice on April 30, 2003 to hear testimony on reforms that will promote best practices in services acquisitions.

At the hearing, the Committee received testimony from William Woods, Director, Acquisition and Sourcing Management, United States General Accounting Office (GAO); Stephen Perry, Administrator of General Services; Angela Styles, Administrator of Federal Procurement Policy, Office of Management and Budget. Also testifying were Charles Tiefer, professor of law, University of Baltimore; Bruce Leinster, of IBM on behalf of the Information Technology Association of America; Edward Legasey, Executive Vice President and Chief Operating Officer of SRA International on behalf of the Professional Services Counsel and Mark Wagner, Vice President of Government Affairs, Johnson Controls Corp. on behalf of the Contract Services Association.

The government witnesses testified about the current status of government contracting for services. All praised the training provisions of the bill and spoke about the need to address the explosive growth in the federal government’s services acquisitions. Administrator Styles stated that the provisions dealing with time materials and labor hour contracting were an improvement over the earlier version of the bill but added that there was need for appropriate oversight and safeguards in time material labor hour contracts. Mr. Woods of the GAO noted that SARA addressed a number of long-standing issues in service contracting and should enable agencies to improve their performance. He did however raise concern about a provision for more timely payment under service contracts, since removed in the Chairman’s amendment in the nature of a substitute.

Professor Tiefer raised some concerns about the bill. He viewed the bill as removing useful regulation and creating opportunities for possible abuse. The witnesses representing various industry groups praised the bill by pointing out that it will increase competition by making it easier for commercial firms to participate in the federal market.

This most recent hearing was the culmination of a fact gathering and comment process that began last Congress. The process featured two hearings targeted at services acquisition reform. The first hearing was held on May 22, 2001, by the Subcommittee on Technology and Procurement Policy. The Subcommittee met on that day pursuant to notice to hear testimony on services acquisition and future reforms to the federal acquisition system.

The hearing addressed and examined the progress of the acquisition reform initiatives of the early to mid-nineties. This hearing focused on the next steps in services acquisition reform. The recent reforms had to some extent streamlined the process that resulted in some cost savings, increased access to technological advancements, and reduced procurement cycles. The reforms have also improved the quality of products and services purchased by the federal government. The subcommittee reviewed the implementation of the reform efforts government-wide and examined future legislative proposals to further streamline the procurement system and to better use commercial best practices.

Testimony was received from David E. Cooper, Director, Acquisition and Sourcing Management, General Accounting Office (GAO); David R. Oliver, Jr., principal Deputy Under Secretary of Defense, Acquisition, Technology and Logistics; David A. Drabkin, Deputy Associate Administrator, Office of Acquisition Policy, Office of Government-wide Policy, General Services Administration; Dr. Steven Kelman, Albert Weatherhead professor of public management, John F. Kennedy School of Government, Harvard University; Michael W. Mutek, Senior Vice President, General Counsel, and Secretary, Raytheon Technical Services Co., representing the Professional Services Counsel; and Mark Wagner, Director of Federal Government Affairs, Johnson Controls, representing the Contact Services Association.

Generally, the comments of the witnesses were as follows: the government witnesses informed the subcommittee of their services acquisition reform efforts and their attempts to equip federal employees to take advantage of the opportunities afforded by these reforms; the testimony offered by the GAO and non-federal witnesses expressed the need to consider new reforms. GAO pointed out that, as a percentage of federal spending, services acquisition is growing and that increasing needs in information technology services and professional, administrative and management services drives this growth. Private-sector witnesses stated that the system still contained too many non-value-added requirements and processes.

There was a consensus that additional reforms were needed. Some witnesses suggested aggressive implementation of performance based contracting. Others advocated share-in-savings contracting. Almost all witnesses cited training of the acquisition workforce as critical to enhancing the effect of any reforms.

Subsequently, on November 1, 2001 the Subcommittee on Technology and Procurement Policy pursuant to notice met to review proposed legislative initiatives designed to provide the federal government greater access to the commercial marketplace and lower the barriers agencies faced in acquiring goods and services necessary to meet their mission objectives.

The hearing reviewed proposed legislative initiatives designed to provide the federal government greater access to the commercial marketplace. The subcommittee found that such initiatives were critical as the government was not utilizing best commercial practices and many of the best commercial firms were reluctant to participate in the government market.

At the hearing, testimony was received from Stan Z. Soloway, President, Professional Services Council; Mark Wagner, Vice President, Federal Government affairs, Johnson Controls, Inc.; Renato DiPentima, President, SRA Consulting and Systems Integration, SRA International, Inc.; Charles Mather, Chief Executive Officer, Acquisition Solutions, Inc.; and Charles Tiefer, professor of law, University of Baltimore Law School. Also testifying were William T. Woods, Acting Director, Acquisition and Sourcing Management; Stephen A. Perry, Administrator of General Services; Angela B. Styles, Administrator for Federal Procurement Policy, Office of Management and Budget; Deidre A. Lee, Director, Defense Procurement, Office of the Under Secretary of Defense for Acquisition, Technology and Logistics, Department of Defense.

The witnesses testifying on behalf of the government generally stated that there was interest in particular initiatives contained within the draft legislation. Some witnesses cautioned that there was also a need to maintain other governmental interests such as the benefits of competition and transparency. They also reported on successes and challenges in implementing earlier acquisition reforms.

The private-sector witnesses were enthusiastic in their support for the draft legislation. They lauded, in particular, the importance of an aggressive training program for the acquisition workforce contained in the draft. Several witnesses stated that a lack of adequate training led to the hampered implementation of earlier reforms. They also encouraged the increased emphasis on share-in-savings and performance based contracting and the revision of standard payment terms.

The final witness, Professor Tiefer, cautioned the subcommittee on three issues. He warned that any perceived partial repeal of the Davis-Bacon Act or the Service Contracting Act might be viewed as polarizing. He stated that allowing government contractors to create more flexible commercial business segments might lead to new instances of defective pricing. Finally, he advised that share-in-savings programs harbor some potential risks.

The information and knowledge developed in these two hearings led to the development of the Services Acquisition Reform Act (SARA) which was introduced as H.R. 3832 on March 4, 2002 by Chairman Davis. Following the introduction of H.R. 3832, the Subcommittee on Technology and Procurement Policy held a third hearing on March 7, 2002 to gather views and data on H.R. 3832 as introduced.

In his opening statement, Chairman Davis stated that over the last year he continued to find that federal agencies were failing to achieve contract management goals and efficiency in service contracting. In addition, the GAO, along with several civilian oversight agencies, had found that prevailing weaknesses exist in service contracting. These weaknesses include acquisitions that were not competed sufficiently, were poorly planned, or were not well managed. According to the Chairman, one of SARA’s goals is to streamline procurement cycles and integrate agency mission goals with acquisition goals in order to help agencies meet the challenges presented by the war on terrorism.

At the hearing, testimony was received from Dr. Steven Kelman, professor of public management, Harvard University; Steven Schooner, associate professor of law, the George Washington University Law School; Scott Dever, Vice President of Global Procurement, Hasbro, Inc.; Richard Roberts, Senior Vice President and Managing Director, Federal Services, KPMG Consulting, Inc.; Roberta StandsBlack-Carver, President and CEO, Four Winds Services, Inc.; Jerry S. Howe, Senior Vice President and General Counsel, Veridian. Also testifying were William T. Woods, Director, Acquisition and Sourcing Management, U.S. General Accounting Office (GAO); Angela B. Styles, Administrator of Federal Procurement Policy, Office of Management and Budget; Stephen Perry, Administrator of General Services; and Deidre Lee, Director of Procurement, U.S. Department of Defense.

The GAO witness expanded on its recent report on industry best practices in services acquisition. He noted that various provisions of the bill addressed aspects of the approaches followed by leading companies, particularly the provisions regarding performance-based contracting and the establishment of an agency Chief Acquisition Officer. Commissioner Perry of the General Services Administration spoke highly of SARA’s commitment to training acquisition professionals as well as the concept of each agency having a Chief Acquisition Officer.

The witnesses from academia were generally supportive of the reforms laid out in H.R. 3832. Dr. Kelman stated that SARA “continues the effort to create a modern, businesslike procurement system that began a decade ago, in an exercise in bipartisanship and good government that is all-too-rare these days.” Professor Schooner did comment that he would like to see even more emphasis on Congressional oversight in the procurement process.

Witnesses testifying on behalf of the private sector supported the provisions of H.R. 3832. Mr. Roberts of KPMG stated that as the nation refocused its efforts toward new challenges the federal government needed to have fast, efficient access to the best information technology solutions. He added that these solutions reside primarily in the private sector but that SARA could help the federal government benefit from them. Ms. StandsBlack Carver, CEO of a Native American-owned small business was enthusiastic in her support of the legislation. She noted that SARA would allow the federal government to take advantage of innovations offered in the services area to the benefit of the U.S. taxpayer.

The Committee relied on the testimony, reports and statements collected in the development and drafting of H.R. 3832 of the 107th Congress while crafting and reintroducing H.R 1837 in this the 108th Congress.
SECTION-BY-SECTION

Section 1—Short title; table of contents

Section 2—Executive agency defined

The section would define the term “executive agency” as that term is defined in section 4(1) of the Office of Federal Procurement Policy Act (41 U.S.C. 403(1)), unless stated otherwise.

TITLE I—ACQUISITION WORKFORCE AND TRAINING

Section 101—Definition of acquisition

The section would amend section 4 of the Office of Federal Procurement Policy Act (41 U.S.C. 403) to provide a comprehensive government-wide definition of the term “acquisition.” The new definition would encompass the entire spectrum of acquisition starting with the development of an agency’s requirements through management and measurement of contract performance.

Section 102—Acquisition workforce training fund

The section would amend section 37 of the Office of Federal Procurement Policy Act (41 U.S.C. 433) to establish within the General Services Administration an acquisition workforce-training fund to be managed by the Federal Acquisition Institute (FAI). The fund is to be financed by depositing 5% of the fees collected by various executive agencies under their government-wide contracts. This will provide the stabilized funding needed by FAI to develop training resources needed to enable our acquisition professionals to transition to the new service oriented and technology driven federal market. The fund can only be used for sorely needed acquisition workforce training across the civilian government agencies.

Section 103—Government-Industry Exchange Program

The section would amend Subpart B of part III of title 5, United States Code by adding a new Chapter 38 establishing an acquisition professional exchange program to permit the temporary exchange of high-performing acquisition professionals between the federal government and participating private-sector concerns. Under the program, which is modeled after the Information Technology Exchange Program included in section 209 of the recently passed E-Government Act, Pub. L. 107–347, a participating federal employee would retain his/her federal benefits and would be deemed during the period of the assignment (for a period of between 6 months and a year, with possible extensions of up an additional year for both public and private-sector employees) to be detailed to regular work within the agency. Under the section an agency head would take necessary actions to ensure that 20 percent of those federal employees assigned to private sector firms are assigned to small businesses. Private-sector employees could be assigned to a federal agency. An assigned employee could still be paid by the private-sector employer and would be deemed a federal employee for most purposes. The section would amend a number of current government employee ethics provisions to apply to private sector employees assigned to federal agencies under the program. The Office of Personnel Management (OPM) would submit semi-annual reports to the Committees on Government Reform and Governmental Affairs summarizing the operation of the program including the number of individuals assigned, the positions involved and the durations of the assignments. Assignments of federal employees to non-federal employers would only be made pursuant to a program developed by the Office of Federal Procurement Policy and OPM. No assignments under the section could be made after the end of a 5-year period beginning on the date of enactment. The General Accounting Office would, 4 years after enactment, report on the effectiveness of the program and whether it should be continued. Finally, the section would provide conforming amendments to title 5 and title 18, United States Code and other law in connection with the new professional exchange program.

Section 104—Acquisition Workforce Recruitment Program

The section would permit the head of an agency to determine, for purposes of sections 3304, 5333, and 5753 of title 5, United States Code, that certain Federal acquisition positions are “shortage category” positions in order to recruit and directly hire such employees with high qualifications. The actions under this section would be subject to Office of Personnel Management policies. The Administrator for Federal Procurement Policy would be required to submit a report to Congress prior to the authority’s September 2007 expiration date concerning the efficacy of the program and recommending whether the authority should be extended.

Section 105—Architectural and engineering acquisition workforce

The section would provide that the Administrator for Federal Procurement Policy in consultation with the Secretary of Defense, the Administrator of General Services and the Director of the Office of Personnel Management develop and implement a plan to assure that the federal government maintains a core in-house architectural and engineering capability to ensure that it has the capability to effectively contract for the performance of architectural and engineering services.

TITLE II—ADAPTATION OF BUSINESS ACQUISITION PRACTICES

Subtitle A—Adaptation of Business Management Practices

Section 201—Chief Acquisition Officers

The section would amend section 16 of the Office of Federal Procurement Policy Act (41 U.S.C. 414) to provide for the appointment of a non-career employee as the Chief Acquisition Officer for each executive agency other than the Department of Defense. The Department of Defense currently has a comparable position established pursuant to section 133 of title 10, United States Code. The Chief Acquisition Officer would have acquisition as the official’s primary duty and advise and assist the agency head and other senior officials to ensure that the agency mission is achieved through the management of the agency’s acquisition activities. The functions of the Chief Acquisition Officer would include monitoring the agency’s acquisition activities, evaluating them based on applicable performance measurements, increasing the use of full and open competition in agency acquisitions, making acquisition decisions consistent with applicable laws, and establishing clear lines of authority, accountability, and responsibility for acquisition decision-making and developing and maintaining a acquisition career management program. The Chief Acquisition Officer would, as a part of the statutorily required annual strategic planning and performance evaluation process, assess agency requirements for agency personnel knowledge and skills in acquisition resources management and, if necessary, develop strategies and plan for hiring, training and professional development.

Section 202—Chief Acquisition Officers Council

The section would add a new section 16A to the Office of Federal Procurement Policy (OFPP) Act (41 U.S.C. 403 et seq.) to authorize the establishment of a Chief Acquisition Officers Council to monitor and improve the federal acquisition system. The Council is to be chaired by the Deputy Director for Management (DDM) of the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) and comprised of the Administrator for Federal Procurement Policy (Administrator), the Chief Acquisition Officers created under section 16 of the OFPP Act, and any other federal officer or employee designated by the chair. The Administrator is to lead the activities of the Council on behalf of the DDM. The General Services Administration is to provide administrative and other support to the Council. The Council will, among other things, develop recommendations for OMB on acquisition policies and requirements, assist the Administrator in the identification, development, and coordination of multi-agency and other innovative acquisition initiatives, promote effective business practices to ensure timely delivery of best value products and services to the government. The Council will also work with the Office of Personnel Management to assess and address hiring, training, and professional development needs related to acquisition.

Section 203—Statutory and regulatory review

The section would provide that the Administrator for Federal Procurement Policy establish an advisory panel of at least nine experts in acquisition law and policy who represent diverse public and private sector experiences. The panel would review acquisition laws and regulations with a view toward ensuring effective and appropriate use of commercial practices and performance-based contracting and enhancing the performance of acquisition functions across agency lines, and the use of government-wide contracts. The panel would make recommendations for the repeal or amendment of laws or regulations that are unnecessary for the effective, efficient and fair award and administration of government contracts while retaining the financial and ethical integrity of the acquisition programs and ensuring that the government’s best interest is protected. The report is to be completed within one year after the establishment of the panel and contain the findings and conclusions of the panel.
Subtitle B—Other Acquisition Improvements

Section 211—Extension of authority to carry out franchise fund programs

The section would amend section 403(f) of the Federal Financial Management Act of 1994 (31 U.S.C. 501 note) to reauthorize the government’s franchise funds until October 1, 2006. These six franchise fund programs were authorized in the Departments of the Interior, Commerce, Health and Human Services, Treasury, and Veterans Affairs and in the Environmental Protection Agency to provide common administrative support services.

Section 212—Agency acquisition protests

The section would amend Chapter 137 of title 10, United States Code and the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949 to provide statutory authority for an agency-level acquisition protest process. It would provide for a “stay” of the award or of contract performance during the 20 working day period an agency is given to decide the protest. The “stay” could be lifted by the head of the agency procuring activity upon a written finding that urgent and compelling circumstances do not permit waiting for the decision. The section would provide that filing an agency-level protest under this section would not affect the right of an interested party to file a protest with the Comptroller General or in the United States Court of Federal Claims. The section would also amend section 3553(d)(4) of title 31, United States Code to provide that an interested party filing a protest on the same matter with the Comptroller General within 5 days of the issuance of the agency protest decision would qualify for a stay of performance in connection with such protest.

Section 213—Improvements in contracting for architectural and engineering services

The section would amend section 1102 of title 40 of the United States Code to clarify the terms “surveying and mapping” as used in the definition of architectural and engineering services to ensure that the quality-based selection process in chapter 11 of title 40 of the United States Code is used for the full spectrum of surveying and mapping services. The Federal Acquisition Regulation would also be amended to include the new clarified definition. Further, the section would amend section 2855(b) of title 10, United States Code to raise from $85,000 to $300,000 the threshold for a participation incentive for small business concerns in acquisitions for architectural and engineering services and to conform section 2855 to the title 40 amendments. Finally, the section would require that architectural and engineering services offered under multiple-award schedule contracts awarded by the General Services Administration or under government-wide task and delivery order contracts be performed under the supervision of a licensed professional engineer and be awarded pursuant to the quality-based selection procedures in chapter 11 of title 40 of the United States Code.
Section 214—Authorization of telecommuting for Federal contractors

The section would amend the Federal Acquisition Regulation (FAR) to provide that solicitations for federal contracts should not contain any requirement or evaluation criteria that would render an offeror ineligible for award or would reduce the scoring of the offeror’s proposal based upon the offeror’s inclusion of a plan to allow its employees to telecommute unless the contracting officer first determines in writing that the needs of the agency, including security needs, could not be meet without the requirement. The General Accounting Office would report to Congress on the implementation one year after the FAR amendment is published.

Section 215—Procedural requirements for civilian agencies relating to products of Federal Prison Industries

The section would amend the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949 (41 U.S.C. 251 et seq.) to add a new section 318 to provide that before purchasing a product from the Federal Prison Industries (FPI) an agency head must conduct market research to determine whether the FPI product is comparable in terms of price, quality and time of delivery to products available from the private sector. If the agency determines that the FPI product is not comparable, the agency shall use competitive procedures or a multiple award contract to acquire the product. The agency is to consider a timely offer from FPI under such an acquisition. The section also provides that a firm contracting with an agency may not be required by that agency to use FPI as a subcontractor or supplier. Finally, the section prohibits an agency from entering into a contract with FPI under which an inmate worker would have access to classified or other sensitive data.

TITLE III—CONTRACT INCENTIVES

Section 301—Share-in-Savings Initiatives

The section would amend section 2332 title 10, United States Code and section 317 of the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act (Property Act) to authorize government-wide the use of share-in-savings contracts. These contracts represent an innovative approach to encourage industry to share creative solutions with the government. Through these contracts, agencies can lower their costs and improve service delivery without large “up front” investments as the contractor provides the technology and is compensated by receiving a portion of savings achieved. The section would amend and clarify the provisions in title 10 and the Property Act that were added to the United States Code by section 210 of the E-Government Act of 2002, Pub. L. 107–347. The new section would expand the authorization beyond information technology and provide for the use of such contracts whenever the proper approvals are granted.

The section would authorize agencies to enter into share-in-savings contracts for a term of 5 years, and with the appropriate approval, for up to 10 years, to pay contractors from the savings realized, and to retain those savings that exceed the amount paid to the contractor. The section would permit agencies to use various options for funding cancellation or termination costs and would permit the cancellation or termination amount to be negotiated by the parties. The section would require that share-in-savings contracts include a provision containing a quantifiable baseline for savings that is approved by the agency’s chief acquisition officer. The section would not permit the award of such contracts where funding for the full cost of cancellation or termination is not available unless the amount of unfunded contingent liability does not exceed the lesser of 50% of the estimated cancellation or termination costs or $10,000,000. Any unfunded contingent liability in excess of $5,000,000 would require approval by the Director of the Office of Management and Budget (OMB). Further, the section would require that the Federal Acquisition Regulation (FAR) be revised to implement this section and to provide for such matters as the use of competitive procedures and innovative provisions for technology refreshment, appropriate regulatory flexibility to facilitate the use of such contracts and assurance that the contractor’s share of the savings reflects the risk involved and the market conditions. The Director of OMB is to provide incentives to agencies in identifying additional opportunities for the use of these contracts and guidance for determining baselines and savings share ratios. Finally, the section would require the Director of OMB to report to Congress two years after the FAR revisions are issued describing the number of share-in savings contracts entered into, the total payments made and savings achieved, agency efforts to determine baseline costs and making recommendations for changes in law needed to encourage the effective use of share-in-savings contracts.

Section 302—Incentives for contract efficiency

The section would amend the Office of Federal Procurement Policy Act (41 U.S.C. 403 et seq.) to add a new section 41 authorizing an agency to exercise an option to extend a contract for services by one or more performance periods based on exceptional performance as measured by standards set forth in the contract. The option is only to be exercised within the applicable provisions of law or regulation that set forth limitations on the duration of the contract containing the option. The contract is, to the maximum extent practicable, to be performance based.

TITLE IV—ACQUISITIONS OF COMMERCIAL ITEMS

Section 401—Additional incentive for use of performance-based contracting for services

The section would amend section 41 of the Office of Federal Procurement Policy Act (41 U.S.C. 41), as added by section 302 above, to add a new subsection that would provide that a performance-based service contract or task order may be treated as a contract for a commercial item if it defines tasks to be performed in measurable, mission related terms, identifies specific products or outputs and the source provides similar services to the public under similar terms to those offered the government. This would authorize the use of special simplified procedures provided in the Federal Acquisition Regulation for commercial items if the performance-based contract or task order is valued at $5,000,000 or less and apply to those contracts the current waivers of requirements and certifications applicable to contracts for commercial items. Section 508 below provides that the application of the exemptions from cost accounting standards and cost or pricing data for a contract for a service treated as a commercial item under this section applies to contracts valued at up to $15,000,000. The section further provides for agencies to collect and maintain data to identify the contracts and orders for services considered commercial items under this section and for a report to congressional committees by the Office of Management and Budget on the use of these authorities government-wide and by agency. The provision would sunset after 10 years. Finally, the section would require the Administrator for Federal Procurement Policy to establish a Center of Excellence for Service Contracting to assist the acquisition community in identifying best practices in service contracting.

Section 402—Authorization of additional commercial contract types

The section would provide that section 8002(d) of the Federal Acquisition Streamlining Act of 1994 (Public Law 103–355; 41 U.S.C. 264 note) be amended to provide that the Federal Acquisition Regulation (FAR) include a provision that would provide that time and material and labor-hour contracts could be used for commercial services that are commonly sold to the general public through such contracts. Time and material and labor-hour contracts are treated in the current Part 16 of the FAR as a separate contract type, as are fixed-price contracts and cost-reimbursement contracts. While section 8002(d) provides that the FAR is to prohibit the use of cost-type contracts for commercial items, there is no comparable prohibition applicable to time and material and labor-hour contracts. Section 402 would make clear that, under the appropriate circumstances, time and material and labor-hour contracts should be specifically authorized by the FAR for commercial services.

Section 403—Clarification of commercial services definition

The section would amend section 4 of the Office of Federal Procurement Policy Act, 41 U.S.C. 403 to add to the definition of commercial item services or goods provided or produced by a commercial entity that over the past 3 business years made 90% of its sales to private-sector entities. Section 508 below provides that the application of the exemptions from cost accounting standards and cost or pricing data for a contract for goods or services treated as a commercial item under this section apply to contracts valued at up to $15,000,000. The section would further provide for a report by the Office of Management and Budget on the use of the authority in this section, by agency and government-wide, and for a Comptroller General review of the implementation of the new section to determine its effectiveness in increasing the availability of goods and services to the federal government at fair and reasonable prices.

TITLE V—OTHER MATTERS

Section 501—Authority to enter into certain procurement-related transactions and to carry out certain prototype projects

The section would amend title III of the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949 (Property Act) (41 U.S.C. 251 et seq.) to authorize the head of a civilian executive agency, if authorized by the Director of the Office of Management and Budget (OMB), to enter into transactions (other than contracts, cooperative agreements, and grants) to carry out basic, applied and advanced research, and development projects that are otherwise authorized and necessary to the responsibilities of the agency that may facilitate defense against, or recovery from, terrorism or nuclear, biological, chemical, or radiological, attack. This authority would be similar to that exercised by the Secretary of Defense under section 2317 of title 10, United States Code with certain exceptions.

The section would further amend the Property Act to provide that the head of an executive agency, designated by the Director of OMB to enter into transactions (other than contracts, cooperative agreements, and grants) may, with the approval of the Director of OMB, carry out prototype projects in accordance with the same requirements and conditions for prototype projects as are provided under section 845 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1994 (Public Law 103–160; 10 U.S.C. 2371 note).

Section 502—Amendments relating to federal emergency procurement flexibility

The section would amend section 852, and various other sections of subtitle F of The Homeland Security Act of 2002, Pub. L. 107–296 to make permanent and clarify the authorities applicable to agencies other than the Department of Homeland Security for procurements for defense against terror. The procurement flexibilities in subtitle F of the Homeland Security Act, sections 851–858, provide for special streamlined procedures for the procurement of property or services when the head of the agency determines the property or services are to facilitate defense against or recovery from terrorism or nuclear, biological, chemical, or radiological attack.

The section would maintain the current expanded thresholds in subtitle F, but would more closely align the accompanying provisions with those in section 833 of the Homeland Security Act that provide special streamlined acquisition authorities for the Department of Homeland Security. Specifically, section 502 would provide for the application of the expanded simplified acquisition threshold to acquisitions other than those in support of humanitarian or peacekeeping or contingency operations and eliminate notice and reservation restrictions. The section would also provide for the application of the attributes of a commercial item to an impacted acquisition, as is the case in section 833 of the Homeland Security Act. This provision would be applied in conjunction with section 508 below which provides that the application of the exemptions from cost accounting standards and cost or pricing data for a contract for a good or service treated as a commercial item under this section applies to contracts valued at up to $15,000,000.

Section 503—Authority to make inflation adjustments to simplified acquisition threshold

The section would provide that the Administrator for Federal Procurement Policy may adjust the simplified acquisition threshold as defined in section 4(11) of the Office of Federal Procurement Policy Act (41 U.S.C. 403 (11)) every five years to an amount equal to $100,000 in constant fiscal year 2003 dollars.

Section 504—Technical corrections related to duplicative amendments

Section 505—Exemption from limitations on procurement of foreign information technology that is a commercial item

The section would provide that, in order to promote government access to commercial information technology, the Buy American Act (41 U.S.C.10a) restriction on the acquisition of nondomestic products and the Trade Agreements Act of 1979 (Public Law 96–39; 19 U.S.C. 2512 (a)(1)) prohibition on noneligible foreign products would not apply to the acquisition of commercial information technology as defined in section 11101(6) of title 40 of the United States Code. The section would also amend section 11101(6) by including in the definition of information technology, equipment, interconnected system, or subsystem of equipment used in the analysis and evaluation of data or information and adding imaging peripherals and certain devices necessary for security and surveillance.

Section 506—Prohibition on the use of quotas

The section would provide that the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) may not use a numerical goal, target, or quota for the use of public-private competitions under OMB Circular A–76 or any other related policy unless the goal, target or quota is based on considered research and sound analysis of past activities and is consistent with the agency’s mission. The section further provides that it shall not affect the implementation or enforcement of the Government Performance and Results Act of 1993 (107 Stat.285) or prevent any agency from subjecting work performed by federal employees or contractors to public-private competitions or conversions.
Section 507—Public disclosure of noncompetitive contracting for the reconstruction of infrastructure in Iraq

The section would require an agency to publish, within 30 days of award, information regarding a contract for repair, maintenance, or construction of infrastructure in Iraq that was awarded by the agency without full and open competition.

Section 508—Applicability of certain provisions to sole source contracts for goods and services treated as commercial items

The section provides a ceiling of $15,000,000 per contract for the applicability of an exemption from cost accounting standards and cost or pricing data requirements (1) to a contract for a service that is treated as a commercial item under section 401 above because it is the subject of a performance-based contract, (2) to a service or good that is treated as a commercial item because it is provided or produced by a commercial entity in accordance with section 404 above, or (3) considered to be a commercial item under the emergency procurement flexibilities in section 502 above.

EXPLANATION OF AMENDMENTS

The provisions of the substitute are explained in this report.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO THE LEGISLATIVE BRANCH

Section 102(b)(3) of Public Law 104–1 requires a description of the application of this bill to the legislative branch. The bill does not prevent legislative branch employees from receiving the benefits of this legislation.

STATEMENT OF OVERSIGHT FINDINGS AND RECOMMENDATIONS OF THE COMMITTEE

In compliance with clause 3(c)(2) of rule XIII and clause (2)(b)(1) of rule X of the Rules of the House of Representatives, the Committee’s oversight findings and recommendations are reflected in the descriptive portions of this report.

STATEMENT OF GENERAL PERFORMANCE GOALS AND OBJECTIVES

Clause 3(c)(4) of rule XIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives requires a statement of the Committee’s general performance goals and objectives for reported measures that authorize funding. This bill does not authorize funding.

CONSTITUTIONAL AUTHORITY STATEMENT

Under clause 3(d)(1) of rule XIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives, the Committee must include a statement citing the specific powers granted to Congress to enact the law proposed by H.R. 1837. The constitutional authority to regulate the civil service of the Federal government lies within the Necessary and Proper clause of Article I, Section Eight of the United States Constitution.

UNFUNDED MANDATE STATEMENT

Section 423 of the Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act (as amended by Section 101(a)(2) of the Unfunded Mandate Reform Act, P.L. 104–4) requires a statement whether the provisions of the reported include unfunded mandates. In compliance with this requirement the Committee has received a letter from the Congressional Budget Office included herein.

COMMITTEE ESTIMATE

Clause 3(d)(2) of rule XIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives requires an estimate and a comparison by the Committee of the costs that would be incurred in carrying out H.R. 1837. However, clause 3(d)(3)(B) of that rule provides that this requirement does not apply when the Committee has included in its report a timely submitted cost estimate of the bill prepared by the Director of the Congressional Budget Office under section 402 of the Congressional Budget Act.

BUDGET AUTHORITY AND CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE COST ESTIMATE

With respect to the requirements of clause 3(c)(2) of rule XIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives and section 308(a) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 and with respect to requirements of clause (3)(c)(3) of rule XIII of the Rules of the House of Rep-representatives and section 402 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, the Committee has received the following cost estimate for H.R. 1837 from the Director of Congressional Budget Office:

H.R. 1837—Services Acquisition Reform Act of 2003

Summary: H.R. 1837 would amend the laws governing how the federal government procures goods and services. The provisions of the bill with the largest budgetary effects would expand the authorized uses of share-in-savings (SIS) contracts by government agencies to procure products and services and establish a fund to train federal personnel in acquisition and contracting positions.

CBO estimates that expanding the use of SIS contracts would increase direct spending outlays by about $80 million over the 2004–2008 period and by a total of about $450 million over the 2004–2013 period. In addition, CBO estimates that implementing H.R. 1837 would cost about $28 million in appropriated funds over the 2004–2008 period, assuming appropriation of the necessary amounts.

H.R. 1837 contains no intergovernmental or private-sector mandates as defined in the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act (UMRA) and would not affect the budgets of state, local, or tribal governments.

Estimated cost to the Federal Government: The estimated budgetary impact of H.R. 1837 is shown in the following table. The costs of this legislation fall within budget function 800 (general government).

Basis of estimate

For this estimate, CBO assumes H.R. 1837 will be enacted by the end of fiscal year 2003. We assume that the necessary amounts will be appropriated for each year and that outlays will occur at historical rates for similar programs.

Share-in-savings contracts

Section 301 would expand the authorization for the government’s use of SIS contracts to acquire goods and services. Currently, the use of these contracts is limited to purchasing information technology. The bill would allow contracts to be awarded for up to 10 years.
A SIS contract is a special contracting and funding strategy whereby a service or product required by an agency is provided by a private firm without full up-front funding. Instead, payment for this service or product is made by spending some of the estimated annual savings generated by the goods or services provided. Under H.R. 1837, agencies would be authorized to enter into SIS contracts without funds available for the termination cost of the contract provided that appropriated funds are available for the first year's payment under the contract. The bill would limit the amount of such unfunded termination liability to $10 million per contract (or 50 percent of the termination costs, whichever is less).

Under current law agencies are authorized to use a limited pilot program to enter into SIS contracts to obtain data and information-processing equipment and services. To date, use of the pilot program has been very limited. Because H.R. 1837 would broaden the potential use of this contracting mechanism, CBO expects that its use would become more widespread as agencies became familiar with it. In the mid-1980's, a similar contracting mechanism, energy savings performance contracts (ESPCs), was authorized by the Congress. Use of ESPCs has accelerated overtime, and today federal agencies enter into around $100 million worth of such contracts a year. Based on the experience with ESPCs, CBO expects that agencies would need a few years to become familiar with SIS contracts before use of that type of contract would become common. We estimate that agencies would agree to acquire about $115 million in goods and services through SIS contracts over the next five years and that obligations for such acquisitions would grow to $425 million over the following five years.

Because both ESPC and SIS contracts authorized agencies to commit federal funds in advance of appropriations, CBO considers the execution of such contracts to be a form of direct spending that should be reflected in the budget when such contracts are entered into and a new government obligation is made. CBO's estimate assumes that outlays would be recorded when the services or equipment are provided (similar to the treatment of lease-purchases).

Spending subject to appropriation

Funding for Acquisition Workforce Training Fund. The bill would authorize the establishment of an Acquisition Workforce Training Fund. Under the bill, 5 percent of the fees collected by the General Services Administration (GSA) from other, nondefense agencies that procure goods and services through GSA's governmentwide contracts would be deposited in the new fund. GSA generates most of those fees by charging other federal agencies approximately 1 percent of the cost of purchases made through GSA's supply schedule services and data processing contracts. That fee is designed to recover administrative costs incurred by GSA. In 2002, GSA collected $88 million in fees from agencies other than the Department of Defense. Thus, CBO estimates that the bill would authorize GSA to charge agencies a fee sufficient to establish a $5 million Acquisition Workforce Training Fund each year, as well as continuing to cover the administrative costs of GSA's governmentwide contracting programs.

Government-Industry Exchange Program. H.R. 1837 would establish an exchange program for certain types of employees between the federal government and private-sector employers to promote acquisition management skills. The bill would allow the exchange of employees for between six months and two years. Private-sector employers could be reimbursed for all or part of their employees’ assignment with the federal government. Alternatively, H.R. 1837 would allow federal agencies to accept voluntary employment services from private-sector employees.

Based on information from GSA and the experience of similar exchange programs, CBO expects that few private-sector employers would be willing to part with such employees for extended periods of time. Thus, we estimate that this provision would not result in significant additional costs to the government. Any costs for reimbursing private-sector employers would be subject to the availability of appropriated funds.

Other Costs. H.R. 1837 also would establish a new advisory panel to review procurement policies, a Chief Acquisition Officers Council, and a center of excellence in the Office of Federal Procurement Policy. The bill would require implementing regulations to be issued by GSA, the Office of Personnel Management, and the Office of Management and Budget. In addition, the bill would require the General Accounting Office to prepare certain studies on procurement issues. In total, CBO estimates that implementing these provisions would cost $1 million annually over the 2004–2008 period.

Intergovernmental and Private-sector impact: H.R. 1837 contains no intergovernmental or private-sector mandates as defined in UMRA and would not affect the budgets of state, local, or tribal governments.

Estimate prepared by: Federal costs: Matthew Pickford, Lisa Driskell, and Matthew Schmit; impact on state, local, and tribal governments: Victoria Heid Hall; and impact on the private sector: Paige Piper/Bach.

Estimate approved by: Robert A. Sunshine, Assistant Director for Budget Analysis.

(2)(A) Except as provided in subparagraph (B), a share-in-savings contract shall be awarded for a period of not more than five years.

(B) A share-in-savings contract may be awarded for a period greater than five years, but not more than 10 years, if the head of the agency determines in writing prior to award of the contract that—

(ii) the performance to be acquired is likely to continue for a period of time sufficient to generate reasonable benefit for the government.

(3) Contracts awarded pursuant to the authority of this section shall, to the maximum extent practicable, be performance-based contracts that identify objective outcomes and contain performance standards that will be used to measure achievement and milestones that must be met before payment is made.

(4) Contracts awarded pursuant to the authority of this section shall include a provision containing a quantifiable baseline that is to be the basis upon which a savings share ratio is established that

(5)(A) The head of the agency may retain savings realized through the use of a share-in-savings contract under this section that are in excess of the total amount of savings paid to the contractor under the contract. Except as provided in subparagraph (B), savings shall be credited to the appropriation or fund against which charges were made to carry out the contract.

(B) Amounts retained by the agency under this subsection shall—
   (i) without further appropriation, remain available until expended; and
   (ii) be applied first to fund any contingent liabilities associated with share-in-savings procurements that are not fully funded.

(b) CANCELLATION AND TERMINATION.—(1) If funds are not made available for the continuation of a share-in-savings contract entered into under this section in a subsequent fiscal year, the contract shall be canceled or terminated. The costs of cancellation or termination may be paid out of—

   (B) appropriations available for acquisition of the type of property or services procured under the contract, and not otherwise obligated; or
   (C) funds subsequently appropriated for payments of costs of cancellation or termination, subject to the limitations in paragraph (3).

(2) The amount payable in the event of cancellation or termination of a share-in-savings contract shall be negotiated with the contractor at the time the contract is entered into.

(3) The head of an agency may enter into share-in-savings contracts under this section in any given fiscal year even if funds are not made specifically available for the full costs of cancellation or termination of the contract if funds are available and sufficient to make payments with respect to the first fiscal year of the contract and the following conditions are met regarding the funding of cancellation and termination liability:

   (A) The amount of unfunded contingent liability for the contract does not exceed the lesser of—
      (i) 50 percent of the estimated costs of a cancellation or termination; or
      (ii) $10,000,000.

   (B) Unfunded contingent liability in excess of $5,000,000 has been approved by the Director of the Office of Management and Budget or the Director’s designee.

MINORITY VIEWS

The Services Acquisition Reform Act (SARA), as reported by the Government Reform Committee on May 7, 2003, affects how the federal government procures federal goods and services worth billions of dollars. The aim of the legislation is to “streamline” the procurement process. But in key areas, its effect will be to impede the government’s ability to protect against waste, fraud, and abuse in federal contracting.

On the plus side, the legislation creates a chief acquisition officer and establishes a training fund for acquisition personnel. These steps will help promote a professional, well-trained federal acquisition workforce.

There are, however, significant problems with the legislation:

• Contractor Involvement in Federal Acquisition Decisions. The government-industry exchange program for acquisition personnel created by the bill could give private contractors undue influence over the federal contracting process.

• “Share in Savings” Contracts. The bill permanently authorizes a complicated and largely untested contract type called share-in-savings. These contracts are difficult to administer and are designed to escape congressional oversight.

• Inadequate Protections Against Waste, Fraud, and Abuse. The bill would weaken current law by allowing the government to enter into sole-source contracts for up to $15 million without verifying that the prices charged are fair and reasonable.

• “Other Transaction” Authority. SARA greatly expands “other transaction” authority, which allows agencies to enter into contracts without regard to most federal procurement laws.

Moreover, key amendments on important acquisition issues offered by Democratic members were rejected during the Committee consideration.

I. MAJOR ISSUES

A. Contractor Involvement in Federal Acquisition Decisions

Section 103 of SARA establishes a government-industry exchange program for acquisition personnel. This legislation is patterned on an exchange program for information technology managers enacted as part of the E-Government Act of 2003 (P.L. 107–347).

In the case of information technology managers, an exchange program may make sense. But acquisition personnel have a unique oversight role in ensuring that contractors are not overpaid and that the work performed meets federal standards. Turning these functions over to private sector employees puts the proverbial fox in charge of the henhouse. Even if private sector contractors follow conflict of interest laws and do not work on projects involving their private employers, their involvement is still inappropriate. Only persons who work for the government or are being paid by the government should be involved in making decisions about how much specific contractors are paid.

During the markup, Rep. Waxman offered an amendment to strike this provision, which was defeated.

B. “Share in Savings” Contracts

Section 301 of the bill authorizes a contract type called “share-in-savings.” Under these contracts, the contractor agrees to bear the initial project costs, including capital outlays, until the client agency begins to achieve specified “savings” or “enhanced revenues” from the work. Payment is based on a percentage of the savings or revenues realized by the agency.

These contracts are largely untested, both in the public and private sector. For this reason, after extensive negotiations, the E-Government Act of 2003 (P.L. 107–347) authorized 15 share-in-savings contracts in military departments and 15 in civilian agencies over a three-year period. The idea was that these 30 contracts would serve as “pilot projects.”

SARA eliminates these carefully negotiated limits and gives all agencies permanent authority to enter into an unlimited number of share-in-savings contracts before any of the pilots have even begun. Moreover, SARA eliminates other safeguards in the E-Government Act, such as the requirement that “share in savings” contracts could not be used in revenue enhancement. Revenue enhancing contracts raise a host of complicated issues, such as ensuring that share-in-savings contracts for debt collection activities do not create rogue bounty hunters.

One of the major concerns about these contracts is that they are a form of “back-door” appropriating. For other contracts, agencies must come to Congress for budget authority for the contracts. But section 301 specifically waives this requirement if the government’s potential liability under the contract is $10 million or less. This removes an important element of oversight and accountability.

The Administration stated in testimony before the Government Committee last year that there is no reason to expand authority for share-in-saving beyond a pilot project “until there are demonstrable benefits. To date, we have not seen results.”

Rep. Waxman offered an amendment to delete this section, which was defeated.

C. Waiver of Safeguards against Waste, Fraud, and Abuse

Sections 401, 404, and 502 of the bill allow the use of commercial acquisition procedures for goods and services that the bill defines as commercial in nature, but which in reality are not. Specifically:

- Section 401 treats any service contract that contains “performance-based” terms as a “commercial item,” even if the contract is a sole-source contract for a unique government service.
- Section 404 treats any contract with a contractor that does 90 percent of its business with the private sector as a “commercial item,” even if the contract is a sole-source contract for a unique government product or service.

• Section 502 treats any contract for goods or services needed to defined or respond to a terrorist attack as a commercial item.

Some of the major safeguards at the government’s disposal to ensure the efficient and effective use of taxpayer dollars are waived by these provisions. This waiver occurs because the safeguards are not available to the government when using commercial procedures. Among the most important of these safeguards are the Truth in Negotiations Act (TINA) and Cost Accounting Standards (CAS). TINA requires contractors to provide the government with accurate, timely, and complete pricing data for sole-source contracts over $550,000. CAS requires that contractors consistently and accurately account for their costs. These standards are essential for ensuring that the federal taxpayer is not overcharged for costs such as overhead or executive pensions.

An amendment to the bill was offered by Rep. Waxman that would have ensured that no sole-source contract would be exempt from TINA and CAS. Rep. Davis, however, offered a second degree amendment, which passed over Rep. Waxman’s objections, which limits the applicability of the Waxman amendment to contracts over $15 million.

D. “Other Transaction” Authority

Section 501 of SARA would extend to all civilian agencies “other transaction” authority for research and development projects related to defense against terrorism. This authority permits agencies to enter into contracts without regard to almost all federal statutes and regulations, including the Federal Acquisition Regulation, the Federal Property Act, the Competition in Contracting Act, the Federal Acquisition Streamlining Act, and the Federal Grant and Cooperative Agreement Act, as well as the Truth in Negotiations Act and Cost Accounting Standards.

In the recently passed Homeland Security Act, the new Department of Homeland Security was given this authority for five years. The effect of the SARA provision is to repeal this time limit and to extend use of the authority to all agencies.

“Other transaction” authority was originally granted to the Department of Defense to attract nontraditional contractors. The DOD IG has found, however, that this authority has not attracted a significant number of nontraditional defense contractors; to the contrary, traditional contractors have received 94.5 percent of “other transaction” contracts awarded by the Defense Department.2

Moreover, the DOD IG has reported that these arrangements are subject to waste, fraud, and abuse. According to the IG, these special contracts “do not provide the government a number of significant protections, ensure the prudent expenditure of taxpayer dollars, or prevent fraud.”3

Rep. Maloney offered an amendment to reapply certain basic procurement statutes if other transaction authority is used. The amendment was defeated.

II. ACCEPTED DEMOCRATIC AMENDMENTS

In a few important areas, Democratic amendments were adopted by the Committee:

• Definition of Commercial Services. An amendment to section 403 by Rep. Waxman was adopted. Section 403 amends the Office of Federal Procurement Policy Act to replace the current definition of “commercial services.” As amended by the Waxman amendment, the new definition is “services offered and sold competitively, in substantial quantities, in the commercial marketplace based on established market prices for specific tasks performed or specific outcomes to be achieved and under standard commercial terms and conditions.” The revised definition changes existing law by eliminating the requirement that commercial services be based on a catalogue price and permitting them to be sold based on specific outcomes to be achieved.

• Disclosure of Iraqi Contracts. An amendment by Rep. Maloney to require public disclosure of information regarding contracts for Iraqi reconstruction activities, if such contracts are not entered into using full and open competition, was offered and adopted.

III. REJECTED DEMOCRATIC AMENDMENTS

Several key Democratic amendments were defeated on a party-line vote:

• Contract Tracking. Rep. Kucinich offered an amendment to create a comprehensive, governmentwide system to track the cost and quality of agency contracting efforts, focusing on contracts entered into as the result of a public-private competition.

• Competition Requirement. Rep. Van Hollen offered an amendment to require any decision by an agency to transfer the performance of a function from federal employees to a contractor to be based on the results of a public-private competition process.

• Standing. Rep. Kucinich offered an amendment to give federal employees or their representatives standing to appeal the results of an A–76 decision transferring federal jobs to private contractors.

• Corporate Expatriate. Rep. Sanchez offered an amendment to prohibit agencies from entering into any contract with a subsidiary of a publicly traded corporation if the corporation is incorporated in a tax haven country but the United States is the principal market for the public trading of the corporation’s stock.

• Debarment. Rep. Maloney offered an amendment to allow debarment officials across agencies to share information regarding contractors’ activities.

• Chief Acquisition Officer. Rep. Maloney offered an amendment to ensure the bill’s position of Chief Acquisition Officer is held by a career professional.

IV. CONCLUSION

While we support the goal of streamlining federal procurement laws, we cannot support SARA in its current form. Unfortunately, as reported by the Committee, the bill exposes the taxpayer to new forms of waste, fraud, and abuse in federal contracting.
