The House met at 2 p.m. and was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. PEARCE).

DESIGNATION OF THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following communication from the Speaker:

WASHINGTON, DC, July 11, 2005.

I hereby appoint the Honorable STEVAN PEARCE to act as Speaker pro tempore on this day.

J. DENNIS HASTERT,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, the Reverend Daniel P. Coughlin, offered the following prayer:

"Lord God, Your holy scripture asserts "that everyone who exalts himself will be humbled and the one who humbles himself will be exalted." Show the Members of the House of Representatives today, as they gather to do the work of the people, the wisdom found in the ladder of humility.

The ladder represents our life in this world which You, O Lord, erect to lead us in the ladder of humility. The sides of the ladder represent our soul and body between which You have placed several rungs of humility and discipline whereby we are to ascend, if we answer Your call.

Life itself has taught us that all exaltation leads only to illusion and, left to ourselves, we can easily slip and fall. Yet as leaders in government, Members must have high aspirations and at the same time be grounded in the people they serve.

Therefore, ascent and descent on the ladder of humility means that we go downward when we exalt ourselves and rise when we are humbled.

We beg You, O Lord, with all humility, that we may see ourselves in this light now and forever. Amen.

THE JOURNAL

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair has examined the Journal of the last day’s proceedings and announces to the House his approval thereof. Pursuant to clause 1, rule 1, the Journal stands approved.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the gentleman from New York (Mr. CROWLEY) come forward and lead the House in the Pledge of Allegiance.

Mr. CROWLEY led the Pledge of Allegiance as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

The SPEAKER pro tempore before the House the following communication from the Clerk of the House of Representatives:

WASHINGTON, DC, July 1, 2005.

Hon. J. Dennis Hastert,
Chairman of the Clerk of the House of Representatives.

Dear Mr. Speaker: Pursuant to the permission granted in Clause 2(h) of Rule II of the Rules of the U.S. House of Representatives, the Clerk received the following message from the Secretary of the Senate on July 1, 2005 at 9:23 a.m.:

FIGHT POVERTY, NOT COLOMBIA

(Mr. KIRK asked and was given permission to use his time for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. KIRK. Mr. Speaker, this weekend Venezuela’s defense minister proudly announced the impending arrival of a large shipment of Russian arms. For what? Who is Venezuela planning to fight?

General Garcia announced his purchase of 40 MI-26, MI-28, and MI-35 military helicopters, including the MI-28, the world’s largest helicopter which comes heavily armed and is intended, in General Garcia’s words, “to be deployed on Venezuela’s border with Colombia.” On top of this, Venezuela is expecting the arrival of over 100.000 new Kalashnikov AK-103 assault rifles. To shoot whom?

Without an insurgency and no neighbor threatening her border, who are these weapons to be aimed at? Venezuela has millions of poor people; and they believe Venezuela’s oil should be used to fight poverty, not Colombia.

Our allies and the Organization of American States have the lead in diplomacy to keep peace in our hemisphere. It sounds like they should call an urgent meeting of the OAS to discuss whom Venezuela plans to shoot at.

MONTGOMERY GI BILL BENEFITS

(Mr. MATHESON asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. MATHESON. Mr. Speaker, I want to bring to the Congress’ attention that I have determined to be a loophole in the Montgomery GI bill education benefits.

I have a local Marine reserve unit in Utah. Fox Company. They have served two different tours of active duty since September 11. One member was killed in Iraq, several sustained injuries. And yet when they returned after their second tour of duty and applied for Montgomery GI bill education benefits, they were denied because they did not put in 24 consecutive months.

This is clearly not what was anticipated when the bill was first written; and yet now with our reliance on Guard and Reserve, this circumstance is going to repeat itself more and more.

The gentleman from New Mexico (Mrs. WILSON) and I earlier this year introduced H.R. 772, which will close this loophole. It will allow our soldiers who put in 24 months of consecutive duty within a 5-year period to qualify for full Montgomery GI bill education benefits. This is the right thing to do. It is not a partisan issue. I urge all of my colleagues to join me in cosponsoring H.R. 722.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX, the Chair will postpone further proceedings today on motions to suspend the rules on which a recorded vote or the yeas and nays are ordered, or on which the vote is objected to under clause 6 of rule XX.

Record votes on postponed questions will be taken after 6:30 p.m. today.

CONDEMNING DEMOCRATIC PEOPLE’S REPUBLIC OF KOREA FOR ABDUCTION AND CONTINUED CAPTIVITY OF CITIZENS OF THE REPUBLIC OF KOREA AND JAPAN

Mr. SMITH. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and agree to the concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 168) condemning the Democratic People’s Republic of Korea for the abductions and continued captivity of citizens of the Republic of Korea and Japan; terrorism and gross violations of human rights, as amended.

The Clerk read as follows:

H. CON. RES. 168

Whereas since the end of the Korean War, the Government of the Democratic People’s Republic of Korea has kidnapped thousands of South Korean citizens and as many as a hundred Japanese citizens, including Rumiko Masumoto, Megumi Yokota, and Reverend Kim Dong-shik:

Whereas the forced detention and frequent murder of those individuals abducted by North Korea have caused untold grief and suffering to their families;

Whereas on September 17, 2002, after considerable pressure from the United States, North Korean leader Kim Jong-il admitted that agents of his government had abducted thirteen Japanese citizens in the 1970s and 1980s and assured Japanese Prime Minister Junichiro Koizumi that this would never happen again;

Whereas despite assurances to the contrary, North Korea continues to order and carry out abductions, and, as recently as August 8, 2004, North Korean agents operating along the Chinese border kidnapped Ms. Jin Kyung-sook, a former North Korean refugee and South Korean passport-holder;

Whereas the abduction policy of North Korea has been integral to its espionage and terrorist activities, and abductees have been kidnapped to work as spies, to train North Korean agents in language, accents, and culture, and to steal identities, as in the case of May Sato Hara;

Whereas Pyongyang regime used abductee Ms. Yaeko Taguchi as the Japanese language instructor for North Korean terrorist Kim Hyon-hee, who was carrying a Japanese passport after planting a bomb on Korean Air Lines flight 858 that killed 115 people in 1987;

Whereas many victims of North Korean abductions have been seized during terrorist attacks, as in the hijacking of South Korean planes in 1958 and 1969, and, decades later, Pyongyang continues to order twelve passengers of a hijacked Korean Air flight, including passenger Mr. Chang Ji-young and flight attendant Ms. Song Kyong-hi, who has since been allowed a brief visit by her South Korean family;

Whereas North Korean agents have hijacked numerous South Korean ships and kidnapped the seamen and fishermen aboard the vessels, such as Choi Jong-suk, Kim Soon-keun, and ten other crewmen of the Dongjin 27, a ship that was seized in 1987, and estimates are that hundreds of these abductees are still alive in North Korea;

Whereas boat hijackings and the kidnapping of fishermen have devastated South Korean fishing communities, such as the congo village on the southern island of Geoje, a community of 210 people that lost 14 sons, husbands, and fathers when North Korea seized three ships in 1991;

Whereas the North Korean authorities conspired with members of the Japanese Red Army, a group designated as a terrorist organization by the United States Department of State, to kidnap Keiko Arimoto, a young Japanese woman studying abroad.

Whereas the Government of the Republic of Korea has confirmed that 486 abduction cases involving South Korean citizens remain unresolved, and that these cases include not only merchants, airline attendants, and fishermen, but also teachers, students, and pastors, many of whom are still alive and being held in North Korea;

Whereas North Korean agents have abducted children, causing unimaginable anguish to parents who live decades with the uncertainty of what has happened to their child, as in the cases of Takehiko Terakoshi, a thirteen-year-old boy kidnapped from a fishing boat with his two uncles, and Lee Min-gyo and Choi Seong-min, two seventeen-year-old friends abducted off a beach in South Korea;

Whereas North Korean agents kidnapped thirteen-year-old Megumi Yokota, as she was walking home from school, and subsequently reported that she married and had a daughter in North Korea before committing suicide, as in the case of Megumi Yokota's daughter; and

Whereas North Koreans, including Megumi Yokota, who were kidnapped separately in Europe and Asia, and Rumiko Masumoto and Mr. Shuichi Min-gyo and Choi Seong-min, two seventeen-year-old friends abducted off a beach in South Korea;

Whereas the Government of North Korea continues to deny any knowledge of the abductions of Mr. Yutaka Kume, Mr. Minoru Tanaka, and Ms. Miyoshi Soga, the mother of another acknowledged abductee, despite overwhelming evidence of North Korean collusion in their disappearances;

Whereas there have been credible reports from a beach in Japan on August 12, 1978, and that Megumi Yokota to Japanese officials, both remains appear not to be authentic, and, according to Pyongyang, the bodies of the six remaining Japanese abductees have conveniently been washed away during flooding and cannot be recovered to verify the causes of their untimely deaths;

Whereas despite the efforts of the Japanese Government, the North Korean regime continues to pose serious questions regarding its ongoing abductions and continued captivity of citizens from a number of countries in addition to South Korea and Japan, including persons from China, Europe, and the Middle East;

Whereas North Korea routinely engages in the kidnapping of South Korean citizens during the Korean War from 1950 to 1953, and, according to a 1956 survey conducted by the Korean National Red Cross, 7,034 South Korean civilians were abducted during the conflict;

Whereas North Korea has refused to allow the release of a single wartime abductee despite a provision allowing civilian abductees to return home in Article III of the Korean War Armistice Agreement, a document signed by representatives from the United States, North Korea, and China, and

Whereas more than fifty years, North Korea has held South Korean prisoners-of-war captured during the Korean War, in clear violation of the Korean War Armistice Agreement signed on July 27, 1953, and the Korean South Korean Ministry of National Defense estimates that 542 captives are still alive in North Korea, according to testimony given before the National Assembly in February 2005;

Whereas according to the testimony of prisoners-of-war who have successfully escaped from North Korea, South Korean prisoners-of-war have been forced to perform hard labor for decades, often in mines, and have been forcibly repatriated to North Korea earlier this year by the North Korean regime;

Whereas after being forcibly held in North Korea for fifty-one years, South Korean prisoner-of-war Han Man-taek, age 72, escaped to China, was detained by Chinese police and forcibly repatriated to North Korea earlier this year by the North Korean regime;

Whereas the Government of North Korea has never convincedingly accounted for Ms. Rumiko Masumoto and Mr. Shuichi Ichikawa, kidnapped by Pyongyang agents from a beach in Japan on August 12, 1978, and claims that Mr. Ichikawa drowned in the sea, despite his desire of swimming, and that the formerly healthy Ms. Masumoto died of a heart attack at the age of 27;

Whereas North Korean agents kidnapped Mr. Toru Ishioka and Ms. Keiko Arimoto, who were kidnapped separately in Europe and later married, supposedly died together with their child, as in the cases of Takehiko Terakoshi, a thirteen-year-old boy kidnapped from a fishing boat with his two uncles, and Lee Min-gyo and Choi Seong-min, two seventeen-year-old friends abducted off a beach in South Korea; and

Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate concurs), That Congress—

(1) condemns the Government of the Democratic People’s Republic of Korea for the abduction and continued captivity of citizens of the Republic of Korea and Japan as acts of terrorism and gross violations of human rights;

(2) calls upon the North Korean Government to immediately cease and desist from carrying out abductions, release all victims of kidnappings and illegal detentions still alive in North Korea, and provide a full and verifiable accounting of all other cases; and

(3) recognizes that resolution of the nuclear issue with North Korea is of critical importance, however, this should not preclude United States Government officials from investigating abduction cases and other critical human rights concerns in any future negotiations with the North Korean regime;

(4) calls upon the United States Government to remove the Democratic People’s Republic of Korea from the Department of State’s list of State Sponsors of Terrorism until such time that North Korea renounces all abductions and provides a full accounting of all abduction cases; and

(5) denounces the Government of the People’s Republic of China for the forced repatriation of the South Korean prisoner-of-war Kim Dong-shik, a South Korean prisoner-of-war and comrade-in-arms of the United States, and for its failure to exercise sovereign control over teams of North Korean agents operating freely within its borders.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. SMITH) and the gentleman from New York (Mr. CROWLEY) yield control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. SMITH).

Mr. SMITH of New Jersey. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of this resolution authored by the gentleman from Illinois (Chairman HYDE) which brings the largely untold story to the attention of the American people, as well as to the international community, of the continued involvement of the North Korean regime in the kidnapping of thousands of innocent people. These kidnappings began less than half a century ago according to a survey of the Korean National Red Cross, which documented the kidnappings of over 7,000 South Koreans during the Korean War.

Those abducted represent a wide cross-section of society from both South Korea and Japan: film producers and fishermen, housewives and ministers, airline attendants and university students, mothers and even children. North Korean agents did not discriminate in their selection of potential victims. Cases through the years include the 1977 abduction of a 13-year-old Japanese girl by North Korean frogmen who came ashore in her country.

As recently as August of 2004, a former North Korean, now a South Korean, passport holder, was reported by her husband as having been kidnapped in China by agents of North Korea.

Those kidnappings provide a horrific record of how abduction represents horrifying behavior, and it raises the question as to whether abduction should be cited as terrorist activity. Should Pyongyang remain on the State Department’s list of state sponsors of terrorism not to remove the Democratic People’s Republic of Korea for the abduction and continued captivity of citizens of the Republic of Korea and Japan as acts of terrorism and gross violations of human rights?
Pyongyang has conspired with the Japanese Red Army, a designated terrorist organization, is a clear indication of its own connection to terrorist activities.

The United States and other allies who fought together in the Korean War under the United Nations have a direct interest in the forced detention of certain individuals by the North Korean regime. Those detained include, according to a South Korean Ministry of National Defense estimate, over 500 South Korean prisoners of war held for more than 50 years in horrific conditions that include forced labor is of deep concern to both Congress and the people of the United States.

Those kidnapped also include a South Korean citizen who was then a student at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, as well as a South Korean missionary who was abducted in 1961 by North Korean agents from beaches in Jersey. Mr. Speaker, I yield the balance of my time.

Mr. SMITH of New Jersey. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and agree to the resolution (H. Res. 333) supporting the goals and ideals of a National Weekday of Prayer and Reflection for Darfur, Sudan.

Mr. SMITH of New Jersey. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that proceedings on this motion will be considered under the provisions of clause 8 of rule XX and the unanimous consent of those present be in order to dispense with a desk and nays.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. In the opinion of the Chair, two-thirds of the Members present have voted in the affirmative. The question was taken.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. Speaker, the United States has a direct interest in the forced detention of certain individuals by the North Korean regime, and certainly they are not the only countries, are absolutely deplorable and will only bring additional dishonor to the North Korean regime, and certainly they are not means for winning the respect and acceptance by the international community.

Pyongyang should immediately cease and desist from carrying out abductions, release all victims of kidnappings and prisoners of war still alive in North Korea, and provide a full and verifiable accounting of all other cases. Only then can a reform-minded North Korea take its place as a full member in the community of nations.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. CROWLEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of this resolution, and I thank the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. SMITH) for overseeing this important resolution which was offered by the gentleman from Illinois (Chairman BRODY).

Mr. Speaker, over the past 50 years, the North Korea Government has systematically kidnapped hundreds of innocent citizens of foreign countries. Young men and women from Japan and South Korea have been kidnapped by North Korean agents from beaches in Japan, fishing boats off the South Korean coast, and the border region of China near North Korea. Let us hope this leads to concrete progress.

North Korea has asked for signs of respect from the United States in connection with its decision to return to the negotiating table in Beijing. However, the North Korean regime must recognize that in order to win the respect that it craves from the United States and the international community, it must begin to behave in acceptable ways. Continued gross human rights violations, including the abductions of persons from South Korea, Japan, and other countries, are absolutely deplorable and will only bring additional dishonor to the North Korean regime, and certainly they are not means for winning the respect and acceptance by the international community.

in their activities and to observe the National Weekend of Prayer and Reflection with appropriate activities and services.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. SMITH) and the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. CROWLEY) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. SMITH).

Mr. SMITH of New Jersey. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in very strong support of H. Res. 333 which supports the goals and the ideals of a national weekend of prayer and reflection for Darfur, Sudan. It is fort that this resolution also come to the floor today when we mark the tenth anniversary of another genocide, that which took place in the Balkans and, in particular, 10 years ago to the day; July 11, 1995 when the killing fields were very much covered and murdered in and murdered in Srebreniza. This body a few weeks ago passed my resolution to remember that horrific event, and sadly, today we are on the floor again bringing much needed attention and priority and hopefully an awareness and fasting on behalf of those we have suffered and are suffering in Darfur, Sudan.

It was almost a year ago, Mr. Speaker, on July 21 that the House passed H. Con. Res. 467 that finally, at long last, called what is occurring in Darfur, a genocide. Since that time, the United States Government has provided over $600 million in humanitarian relief to help ease the suffering of the most affected by this terrible conflict and over $150 million to support the African Union in their mission in Darfur. President Bush, the Congress, Democrats, Republicans, House and Senate, countless numbers of churches, nongovernmental organizations, think tanks and activists around the world have de voted their time to fighting for a weekend of prayer and reflection for Darfur. The UN Security Council adopted resolution 1593 calling for the international community to be present in Darfur. The U.N. Security Council adopted resolution 1593 calling for the international community to be present in Darfur.

For its part, the U.N. Security Council has passed no less than six resolutions addressing the situation in Darfur. Still, the crisis, the genocide, continues. Out of a pre-conflict population of 6.5 million, anywhere between 300,000 and 400,000 Darfurians have perished from disease and other preventable causes. In spite of growing international pressures, the government of Sudan has denied humanitarian assistance to starving civilians, harshed aid workers and thwarted attempts to bring international monitors to the situation.

Mr. Speaker, because of our persistence in March, the United Nations Security Council adopted resolution 1593 calling for the international community to be present in Darfur. After conducting a worldwide investigation, the ICC says it has credible information about grave crimes against humanity committed in Darfur. Janjaweed militia groups, directed and supported by the old regime in Khartoum, have systematically tortured, raped and murdered innocent civilians, driven over 250,000 from their homes into neighboring Chad, and internally displaced more than 2 million people. According to the United Nations, an average of 1,000 people have died each month over the past year and a half from disease and other preventable causes. In spite of growing international pressures, the government of Sudan has denied humanitarian assistance to starving civilians, harshed aid workers and thwarted attempts to bring international monitors to the situation.

Mr. Speaker, 1 year ago this month, the House and Senate passed a concurrent resolution that declared atrocities in Darfur a genocide. Janjaweed militia groups, directed and supported by the old regime in Khartoum, have systematically tortured, raped and murdered innocent civilians, driven over 250,000 from their homes into neighboring Chad, and internally displaced more than 2 million people. watch our step on each rung, and no more does that reflection need to take place than in Darfur today. Prayer, inner reflection, a moment to look at ourselves, especially in places of conflict, I think, is a good thing to do, and this resolution is a good resolution calling attention to that effort.

Mr. Speaker, I support this resolution, and I thank the sponsor again.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to join my colleagues today in support of H. Res. 333, which encourages the National Weekend of Prayer and Reflection for Darfur. The people of that troubled region have experienced almost unimaginable suffering. As many as 400,000 have already lost their lives to genocide, hunger, and disease. Two million more have been forced from their homes.

Almost one year ago, Congress recognized that the atrocities being committed in Darfur were genocide. Since then, we have begun to provide humanitarian assistance and funding for peacekeeping missions. I was pleased to vote for the Supplemental Appropriations Act, which included $400 million for emergency food relief and other humanitarian assistance in Darfur and elsewhere in Africa. Also included was $680 million for peacekeeping operations, much of which will be used for Darfur.

This is a start, but the Bush administration and Congress must do more to break the cycle of violence and hunger that grips Darfur.

Another step in the right direction is the commitment made at the G8 Summit in Gleneagles to double aid to Africa by 2010. A stronger Africa will be better prepared to respond to situations like Darfur, and hopefully to prevent them. We must now make sure that the United States leads the effort to reach this goal as soon as possible, rather than waiting until the last moment, or worse, not reaching it at all.

The National Weekend of Prayer and Reflection is an important effort to raise awareness of this terrible human tragedy. My hope is that it will also strengthen our resolve to end the atrocities being committed in Darfur.

Mr. CROWLEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. SMITH of New Jersey. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. SMITH) that the House suspend the rules and agree to the resolution, H. Res. 333 requiring the Speaker to request the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New Jersey?

There was no objection.

COMMENDING THE STATE OF KUWAIT FOR GRANTING WOMEN CERTAIN IMPORTANT POLITICAL RIGHTS

Mr. SMITH of New Jersey. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and agree to the resolution (H. Res. 334) commending the State of Kuwait for granting women certain important political rights.

The Clerk reads as follows:

H. RES. 334
Resolved, that the House of Representatives—
(1) commends the Government and Parliament of Kuwait in its enfranchising of women in Kuwait, granting women certain important political rights and shows its support for the American policy of actively advancing women’s rights all over the world. This resolution recognizes America’s view that this important step by the Kuwaiti Parliament is an important step for the women of Kuwait and for the nation as a whole. The resolution formally commends the government and the Parliament of Kuwait for this important action and urges full participation of Kuwaiti women in the political life of their country.

I urge support of this resolution, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. CROWLEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. SMITH of New Jersey. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of this resolution. I thank, again, the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. SMITH) for his kind words of support for this resolution as well.

Mr. Speaker, on May 16, 2005, after many years of opposition, the Kuwaiti Parliament finally granted women the right to vote and to run for public office. If you and I, Mr. Speaker, had drafted this bill in the Kuwaiti legislature, I know it would have read somewhat differently. As worded, it states that “a Kuwaiti woman, voting and running for political office, should do so while fully adhering to the dictates of Islamic Sharia.”

That suggests the possibility of limiting the application of this law. However, my Kuwaiti friends assure me that the law indeed will be applied universally to all of Kuwait’s women citizens, and it is my hope that that will indeed be the case. In any case, the Kuwaiti parliament’s action marks an important step on the path towards full democratization. It should also be noted that, with the enfranchisement of women in Kuwait, women in every nation that holds elections now have the right to vote, except in Saudi Arabia. Unfortunately, there still remain nations where neither men nor women have the right to vote, a peculiar and regrettable form of gender equity.

Mr. Speaker, I support this resolution. I urge my colleagues to support it as well.

Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. SMITH of New Jersey. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.
The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. PEARCE). The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. SMITH) that the House suspend the rules and agree to the resolution, H. Res. 343.

The question was taken.

Mr. CROWLEY. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New Jersey? There was no objection.

RECESS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 12(a) of rule I, the Chair declares the House in recess until approximately 6:30 p.m.

Accordingly (at 2 o'clock and 32 minutes p.m.), the House stood in recess until approximately 6:30 p.m.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Utah?

There was no objection.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mrs. BIGGERT) (during the vote). Members are advised there are 2 minutes remaining in this vote.
Mr. BROWN of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. DELAY), majority leader and the most powerful Republican Member of Congress, promised last year that we would vote on the Central America Free Trade Agreement. December 31 came and went. He promised we would vote on it by Memorial Day; we did not. He promised we would vote on it by July 4; we did not. Now the gentleman from Texas (Mr. DELAY) promises that CAPTA will come before us by the end of the month. Meanwhile, no action and no vote.

The reason we have not voted on the Central America Free Trade Agreement, the reason it has been 13 months since the President signed it, six times longer than any trade agreement in years, is that Republicans and Democrats, business and labor, food safety advocates, environmentalists, and religious leaders think the Central America Free Trade Agreement is a bad idea.

Defeat this CAFTA. Let us renegotiate a CAFTA that works for small farmers and ranchers and small business and workers and environmentalists and religious leaders in all seven CAFTA countries including ours.

STANDING STRONG IN THE WAR ON TERROR
(Mr. PRICE of Georgia asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. PRICE of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, the tragic and reprehensible bombings in London last Thursday show the world once again just how vigilant we must be in protecting our citizens and continuously to fight terrorism wherever it leads.

This is a war unlike any we have ever seen, and victory will require greater resolve than we have ever mustered. The lack of human decency shown by the terrorists proves that they will stop at nothing to kill innocent people in an attempt to strike fear in the hearts of us all.

However, terrorists are mistaken if they think cowardly actions will shake the resolve of those nations fighting the war on terror, and they are mistaken if they think people will see them for anything other than the evil terrorists they are.

As our friends in England begin the healing process, rest assured that we in America will stand by them. We will fight, side-by-side, together, as we have done before, in this war on terror, and, as the President has said, we will not falter and we will not fail.

May God bless England and continue to bless the United States of America.

PROGRESS BEING MADE AT BLOWING ROCK ART & HISTORY MUSEUM
(Ms. FOXX. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize the progress being made at the Blowing Rock Art & History Museum in Blowing Rock, North Carolina, and to pay my respects to a prominent artist who resided in my district. For over 6 years, a small group of art and history lovers have been working diligently to plan for a new museum in Blowing Rock. The idea for the museum was inspired by a generous gift of outstanding oils, pastels, water colors and line drawings created by one of North Carolina’s most famous artists, Elliott Daingerfield.

Daingerfield moved from North Carolina to New York City following the Civil War. However, western North Carolina remained a special place to him. He continually spent his summers painting and teaching art classes in Blowing Rock.

Daingerfield went on to become a highly successful artist. His work is displayed in museums in New York, Washington, St. Louis, Augusta, Raleigh, Savannah and Charleston. I am pleased that his work will soon be on display in the Fifth District once the Blowing Rock Art and History Museum opens in a few years.)

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. DEFAZIO) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Mr. DeFAZIO addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

SUPPORT NO FLY, NO BUY LEGISLATION

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. McCARTHY) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mrs. McCARTHY. Mr. Speaker, last week’s tragic events in London reminded us that terrorists can strike anywhere, at any time. We must prepare to prevent any kind of scenario that will allow attacks. Terrorists have proven to be innovative in their methods to kill innocent people. We must work to shut down as many avenues of terror as possible or at least make it more difficult for them to carry out their acts.

But since 9/11, the U.S. has dedicated 90 percent of its domestic preparedness resources to preventing an attack involving commercial air travel. While safe air travel is important, we do not pay attention to other possible scenarios, and it is irresponsible of us to do that. It is time for all of us to be proactive instead of reactive in our homeland security strategy.

One area of homeland security that needs to be reviewed is our pre-9/11 gun laws. Mr. Speaker, we are at war, and our gun laws currently allow our enemies to arm themselves in our country.

At least 44 times in a 4-month period, people whom the FBI suspected of being members of terrorist groups tried to buy guns. In all but nine instances, the purchases were allowed to go through. Affiliation with a terrorist group does not appear on any Federal background check that would disqualify someone from buying a gun.

There certainly have been many more instances of suspected members of terrorist groups trying to buy guns since then, but since the Justice Department stopped background check records after only 24 hours, we will never know. So not only are we allowing suspected terrorists to arm themselves, we are destroying the records indicating how many guns they actually own. We are destroying critical intelligence in this war on terror.

The question my constituents ask me is, why are these people allowed to buy guns in the first place? It defies common sense. We saw what these terrorists are capable of doing just armed with a box cutter purchased at a hardware store. Then why do we make it so easy for them to be able to buy guns at stores and at gun shows?

The very same people we spend 90 percent of our homeland security funds on to prevent boarding planes can walk into any gun store and purchase an Uzi, AK-47 or a 50 caliber rifle that can shoot down an airplane, whether it is taking off or landing. This is absolutely ridiculous.

Let me set the record straight: I am not trying to take away the right from anyone of being able to buy a gun. These are law-abiding citizens. They have a right to buy a gun. But we do need commonsense gun safety regulations to protect law-abiding gun owners while making it tougher for criminals and certainly terrorists to be able to obtain a gun.

That is why I introduced the No Fly, No Buy bill. Right now, if you are on a terrorist watch list and you cannot board a plane, you are allowed to go into any gun store or go to a gun show and be able to buy a gun. That is ludicrous.

What my bill would do, if you are on a terrorist no fly list, you would not be able to also buy a gun. I understand that mistakes can be made, and on those lists, what I have chosen that the FBI has, if you are innocent, you will be able to come off that list.

We have to start having a different dialogue on gun violence in this country. But certainly what we learned from London last week, and we do not know if we have terrorists in this country or not, they always wait until we are least expecting them, we need to do what we can to make sure guns do not get into the wrong hands.

This is not going to take away anyone’s right to own a gun, to go hunting, to protect their families. But we can do a better job, especially working in the times that we are working in today.

BENEFITS OF ETHANOL USE TO AMERICA

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Nebraska (Mr. OSBORNE) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. OSBORNE. Mr. Speaker, as many Americans are aware, the Senate has passed a version of the energy bill, the House has passed their version of the energy bill, and, as often happens, the two versions are not the same. So, at the present time, the energy bill is in conference.

One major difference between the House version and the Senate version is in the renewable fuels section. In the House, we mandate 5 billion gallons of ethanol be produced in this country by 2012. The Senate version requires 8 billion gallons rather than 5 billion. So there is a substantial difference.

In 2004, the United States produced 3.6 billion gallons; this year, 4.5 billion gallons of ethanol. And we should reach the 5 billion gallon standard by 2006. So the House version is relatively meaningless, because by saying that we want 5 billion gallons in 2012, we will have already reached that by 2006.

So we are obviously very supportive, many of us, of the 8 billion gallon standard, and I rise tonight to encourage that that be what is included in the conference report.

Currently, ethanol is produced in 20 States including California and Kentucky. At one time we presumed that ethanol was something that was only produced in five or six midwestern states. Ethanol could be made from almost any type of biomass, and I think eventually we will see ethanol production in all 50 States.

The ethanol industry benefits all Americans, not just those in the corn-producing States of the Midwest. Currently, ethanol reduces the price of an average gallon of gasoline by roughly 20 cents, so if we are paying $2.20 a gallon at the pump today, if it were not for the ethanol industry, it would be $2.50, $2.51, something in that rage. E-85, with 85 percent ethanol, at the present time is roughly 60 cents cheaper than regular gasoline. So in many areas of the country, E-85 is selling for $1.60 a gallon as opposed to $2.20 or $2.25.

Ethanol creates more energy than it consumes. This is something lots of people are not aware of.

For instance, for every one Btu of energy, ethanol produces 1.389 Btu of energy. So by the time you have planted the crop, you have harvested it, you have processed it, you have refined it, you gain almost four-tenths of a Btu. The reason for that is that we are harnessing the energy of the sun in making ethanol.

Conversely, gasoline, for every 1 Btu of energy used, produces eight-tenths of a Btu of energy once it is refined. MTBE produces 6.675 Btus. So there is a considerable energy loss in these areas. Again, this is a misconception that many people have that ethanol uses more energy than it really produces. This is not true.

As MTBE is phased out due to groundwater contamination, ethanol is the primary remaining eliminator of greenhouse gas emissions. In 2004, ethanol reduced greenhouse gas emissions by 7 million tons in the United States, which was a huge environmental benefit.

The ethanol industry added $25 billion to the U.S. economy in 2004. The ethanol industry has added 243,000 jobs to the U.S. economy, and above all, it has moved us away from dependence on foreign oil.

There are just a couple of other things I would like to mention that we have on the following conference report. You will notice that, currently, ethanol adds $51 billion to farm income over 10 years. The reason for this is that ethanol increases the price of a bushel of corn by 25 to 50 cents a bushel. It reduces government farm payments by $2.0 billion over 10 years. The reason for this is that it raises the price of a bushel of corn. Therefore, there are fewer farm bill payments that drain money from the taxpayers, so this is a good thing. for the average taxpayer in the country.

It also reduces the U.S. trade deficit by roughly $34 billion, and this is huge, because what is eating our economy alive is a huge trade deficit at the present time. As we remove ourselves from foreign oil, and our oil, which is the main cause of the trade deficit, we begin to see things turn around because of ethanol.

And as I mentioned earlier, it does significantly reduce air pollution. So we think this is a win-win for the American economy, for the American people; and I urge my colleagues to support the higher level of 8 billion gallons of ethanol that is currently in the Senate version of the energy bill.

REMEMBERING GAYLORD NELSON

The SPEAKER pro tempore ( Mr. Kuhl of New York). Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Wisconsin ( Mr. Kind) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. KIND. Mr. Speaker, it is with great sadness that I rise today to say goodbye to our former Governor and former Senator, Gaylord Nelson, who passed away at the age of 89 last week. Wisconsin will miss the man from Clear Lake, who embodied the best of our great State and its proud, progressive tradition, as well as the best our country can offer.

Throughout his many years of public service, Senator Nelson worked tirelessly on behalf of the people of Wisconsin, our state, and the environment. He was one of the first to recognize that economic development and the protection of our natural resources are not mutually exclusive.

He was also keenly aware that public opinion was fast becoming a public policy in this area and that policymakers needed to catch up to where the American people were. Most importantly, he recognized the value in doing a better job of protecting the land, the water, the air we breathe, and the environment of which we are mere stewards for our children and grandchildren.

In addition, Senator Nelson rightly believed that we have an obligation to work together, all of us as citizens of this planet, to better preserve and protect our natural resources so that we leave the world for our children better off than we found it.

It was his vision that led to the creation of Earth Day in 1970 and a new compact between government and its citizens to balance the protection and quality of our precious natural resources. Earth Day was then followed by the creation of the Environmental Protection Agency and then the passage of the Clean Air and the Clean Water acts.

Thirty-five years later we have taken great strides to improve the environmental stewardship across the entire globe. Earth Day today is celebrated annually by hundreds of millions of people in more than 180 countries. How many other individuals can claim they created a global movement of such magnitude?

Senator Nelson was also someone who recognized that even with all of the progress and work that was far from finished. Until recently, he remained active in the environmental field and provided guidance to others, including myself, on some of the unfinished work still left to do.

There is no individual that has had a greater impact on shaping the respect and appreciation we have for our environment today. His contributions are invaluable. We owe him a debt of gratitude that we can repay by continuing his work.

Senator, Governor, Father of Earth Day, a veteran of World War II, friend, these are among the many ways Gaylord Nelson will be remembered. He leaves behind a legacy and a lesson that one person with a vision of change and a mountain of determination can have a profound effect on the direction of our country and of the world.

Our thoughts and prayers are with Carrie Lee and the entire Nelson family. I will never forget during our first campaign, when my wife, Tawni, and I were with Senator Nelson and Carrie Lee up in Clear Lake, Wisconsin. They wowed us with their elegance, their grace, their dignity, and they became our role models of what public service should be all about.

Services this week will be held in Madison and in Clear Lake, Wisconsin. We loved him. We will miss him. And we all can honor him by continuing his unfinished work. May the Good Lord bless and keep the great American patriot Gaylord Nelson.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Minnesota ( Mr. Gutknecht) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Mr. GUTKNECHT addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

WOMEN’S ACTION PUBLIC AFFAIRS TEAM

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from Florida ( Ms. Ros-Lehtinen) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Mr. Speaker, I would like to take this opportunity tonight to address the positive effects which American foreign policy has had on the rights of women throughout the world.

As vice-Chair of the Congressional Women’s Caucus and as Chair of the House International Relations Subcommittee on Middle East and Central Asia, I have witnessed U.S. efforts to support women across the globe, especially in post-conflict situations.

The progress is historic. Just ask the survivors of Saddam Hussein’s regime and the Taliban. The Saddam Hussein regime in Iraq indiscriminately slaughtered all Iraqis, but the women were among the most vulnerable.

The notorious Fedayeen beheaded women in public and dumped their severed heads at their families’ doorsteps. The regime used widespread rape to extract confessions from detainees. Saddam Hussein’s legacy of terror knew no boundaries.

In assessing U.S. contributions to Iraqi women, I look to leaders such as Dr. Khuzai, who served as a member of the Iraqi Governing Council and National Council of Women. After being prisoners in their own country for 35 years, she said, for the Iraqi women, the morale is so high that you cannot understand it unless you go and see. We will be grateful forever.

I was fortunate to have the opportunity to visit Iraq as part of a historic all-female congressional delegation. We met with women from all sectors and all educational backgrounds, and the message we heard from all of these women was very clear: They want a say, they want a role, they want to participate, and they want the U.S. help them in getting there.

To achieve this end, the United States is helping Iraqi women re-integrate themselves into Iraqi society and to the outside world. The administration embarked on the Iraqi Women’s Democracy Initiative to train Iraqi women in the skills and practices of democratic public life.

It also established the U.S. Iraq Women’s Network, with a focus to mobilize the private sector in the United States and to link important resources here to critical needs on the ground. Recently, we saw the fruits of our efforts as countless Iraqi women went to the polls.

U.S. efforts have contributed to a significant positive change in the lives of women in Afghanistan. In Afghanistan, the Taliban’s brutality and blatant disregard for the lives and well being of the Afghan people was perhaps most clearly evident among half of its population, the women of Afghanistan. Made widows and orphans by the will of the Taliban, they were banned from receiving any education past the age of 8, for which the curriculum was limited to the Taliban’s corrupted version of the Koran.

In the year 2000, the United Nation’s Educational Scientific and Cultural Organization estimated that up to 3 percent of Afghan girls were receiving primary education. Today, it is thrilling to note that thanks to our U.S. efforts, Afghan women are active participants in their political future. More than 1 million Afghan women, and the majority of them, are now voting for the first time. The women of Afghanistan are active participants in their country’s first-ever presidential election, and 41 percent of them were women.

Hamid Karzai was announced as the official winner; and in his joint appointments, he named three women as ministers. We as a Nation provided political and advocacy training for Afghan women and provided the funds to support voter registration and the election process.

One Afghan woman casting her ballot said, when you see women here lined up to vote, this is something profound. I never dreamed that this day would come.

And through the Middle East Partnership Initiative, the United States is also helping to create campaign schools that provide leadership and organizational training for women seeking political office. With MEPI support, the International Republican Institute and the National Democratic Institute conducted the first of these political skills training courses for women from Bahrain, Kuwait, Oman, Qatar, the United Arab Emirates and Yemen.

MEPI and the Government of Jordan hosted a workshop in Oman on Women in the Law in February of this year. Nearly 90 women from 16 countries in the Middle East and North Africa regions gathered to support the key issues affecting women in the legal profession and to develop plans for future cooperation.

At the end of the conference, MEPI announced that it would support two follow-up activities: The establishment of a regional association for women in the legal profession and a public legal education campaign on women’s rights and equality. We must continue to strive forward in the pursuit of equality for women and develop on our own success.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Kansas (Mr. MORAN) is recognized for 5 minutes.

ORDER OF BUSINESS

Ms. WOOLSEY. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to speak out of order.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentlewoman from California?

There was no objection.

SMART SECURITY AND THE LONDON BOMBINGS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from California (Ms. WOOLSEY) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. WOOLSEY. Mr. Speaker, so much for President Bush’s claim that we are fighting the terrorists in Iraq so that we do not have to fight them at home.

The recent tragic terrorist attacks in London disproved that flawed theory. On its very face, the notion that we are fighting the terrorists in Iraq so we do not have to fight them at home is absolutely absurd. For one thing, anyone who thinks the threat of terrorism is not a multi-pronged threat is kidding himself or herself. That is why it is called global terrorism in the first place. Because the terrorists have the capacity and the will to strike anywhere anytime.

As we strive to prevent terrorism in the Middle East, we must not forget the terrorism that takes the lives of innocent Iraqis on a daily basis. And we must not forget the terrorism in Iraq is, for the most part, of our very own creation. Despite claims from the White House, there is simply no evidence that the Iraq insurgency had ties to international terrorist organizations like al Qaeda before the United States invaded.

Sure, al Qaeda is doing its best to align the Iraq insurgents now, but would that have happened if the U.S. had not invaded Iraq in 2003? It is clear that the President’s notion of taking the fight to the terrorists instead of letting them take the fight to the U.S. is yet another example of the Bush administration’s perception of the war in Iraq as linked to 9/11.

The truth is that no such link exists. Logic such as this damages our credibility with other nations and hampers our ability to attract and hold the support of their own country, will be a great first step in preventing future terrorism.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from New Mexico (Mrs. WILSON) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mrs. WILSON of New Mexico addressed the House. Her remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.

HONORING SERGEANT JAMES ‘TRE’ PONDER

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from Tennessee (Mrs. BLACKBURN) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mrs. BLACKBURN. Mr. Speaker, I fully believe that Americans do understand why we are fighting this war on terrorism, and I think that most men and women are like me, and they stand with our men and women in uniform, who know this Nation faces a terrible, evil, evil enemy. All of us realize that to lose is not an option in this war.

This is a war that we must win.

While we understand intellectually, while we know in our hearts the reason for this war, our hearts cannot help but ask, “Why,” each and every time that we lose a soldier. With each death, a family, a community and a country mourns, and there is nothing we can say or do to make our hearts understand why this has happened. We can only remember the reason that we fight and honor the cause these men and women fought and died for.

Mr. Speaker, we fight for freedom.

As the beneficiaries of these heroes’ sacrifices, we have an awesome obligation. We have a responsibility to be sure that this country does not forget our military men and women, our veterans, or forget the cause that they have chosen to champion. That is why I come here tonight to take a few moments and ask America not to forget our heroes and not to forget the heroes in this war on terror.

On June 28, my community in Tennessee lost a son when Sergeant James "Tre" Ponder's MH-47D helicopter was shot down by enemy fire in eastern Afghanistan. Tre, his wife Leslie and their two daughters, Samantha and Elizabeth, live in Clarksville, near Fort Campbell. Tre served in the 160th Special Operations Aviation Regiment, airborne. His remarks will appear in the Extensions of Remarks.

CAPTA

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker’s announced policy of January 4, 2005, the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. BROWN) is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the minority leader.

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, last year, during the 2004 election season, the Republican leader, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. DELAY), the most powerful Republican in the Congress, in the House or Senate, promised that this Congress would vote up or down on the Central American Free Trade Agreement. December 31 rolled around, and there was no vote.

Majority Leader DELAY again promised earlier this year there would be a vote on the Central American Free Trade Agreement by Memorial Day. Memorial Day came and went, and there was no vote.

Majority Leader DELAY, again the most powerful Republican member of this body or the other body, again promised there would be a vote on CAPTA, the Central American Free Trade Agreement, and he promised it prior to the July 4th break. Again, July 4th came and went, and there was no vote on the Central American Free Trade Agreement.

Now, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. DELAY) says there will be a vote before the end of July up or down on the Central American Free Trade Agreement.

There is a reason that Congress did not vote on it by December 31, did not vote on it by Memorial Day, did not vote on it by July 4th, and still has not scheduled it for a vote even this month. That is because there is strong bipartisan opposition to the Central American Free Trade Agreement. It is Democrats on this side and Republicans on that side. It is business leaders, small business leaders especially, and labor unions. It is religious leaders. The Catholic bishops in Central America and other religious leaders, Lutherans, all kinds of Protestants, Catholics and Jewish groups, all kinds of religious groups in America that oppose this.

Environmentalists, food safety advocates and people who think the Central American Free Trade Agreement is not working and does not work for the United States of America and does not work for the five Central American countries and the Dominican Republic; they understand we do not want this CAPTA. We want a new CAPTA. We want to renegotiate CAPTA so it will work for small farmers and ranchers, for small manufacturers in my State of Ohio, in Cincinnati and Dayton and Portsmouth and Chillicothe. They understand that this was a trade agreement negotiated by a select few, not for small manufacturers in Akron, Ohio; not for small manufacturers in Steubenville, Ohio; but for large corporations that can move their production overseas and exploit cheap labor.

When you think about it, the major reason that Americans are opposed to the Central American Free Trade Agreement in every poll you look at and that a majority Members of Congress are against CAPTA is, look what has happened with our trade policy in the last 15 years.

Mr. Speaker, I am joined by my colleague, the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. PASCRELL), who understands this so very well, and my colleague, the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Kaptur) will be here.

The largest corporations in the country, many of them like CAPTA because it was negotiated by a select few, not for small manufacturers in Akron, Ohio; not for small manufacturers in Steubenville, Ohio; but for large corporations that can move their production overseas and exploit cheap labor.

Let’s look back for a moment at NAFTA. The country was promised to its citizens that NAFTA would be here in a moment. If you look at NAFTA, it was crafted by a select few, not for small manufacturers in Akron, Ohio; not for small manufacturers in Steubenville, Ohio; but for large corporations that can move their production overseas and exploit cheap labor.

Let’s look back for a moment at NAFTA to see what has happened. Thirteen months ago, the President signed the Central American Free Trade Agreement with the other six countries, five in Central America and the Dominican Republic. Every other trade agreement the President signed was voted on, Morocco, Chile, Australia, Chile, and Singapore, was voted on within 60 days of the President’s signature. CAPTA was signed in May of 2004. It has been more than 13 months, six times plus, six times longer than average for these agreements. Again, because Americans and their congressional representatives, and that is why we are called representatives.
we are supposed to represent what our people want us to do, the American people and this Congress understand that CAFTA is an extension of NAFTA. It is more of the same bad trade agreements, and it is simply not working for our country.

Now, these are just numbers. These are trade deficit numbers. Who cares about these kind of numbers? Well, here is what they mean, Mr. Speaker. If you look at this chart, the States in red are the States which have lost 20 percent of their manufacturing jobs in the last 5 years. The State of New Jersey, my colleague’s State, 104,000. More than 20 percent of the manufacturing jobs in that State. The gentilewoman from Ohio (Ms. KAPNIT) and my State, 217,000 jobs lost in 6.5 years. Michigan, over 200,000. Illinois, 224,000. Pennsylvania, 200,000. New York, 222,000. The Carolinas, hit by textile job losses, combined 315,000 jobs lost. California, the blue States, have had 15 to 20 percent manufacturing jobs which have lost in the last 6.5 years. California, 354,000 manufacturing jobs. Texas, 201,000. Florida, 72,000. And Georgia, 110,000.

State after State after State are losing their manufacturing jobs not only because of the policies but certainly principally because of bad trade policies. These trade policies simply not working.

Now, Mr. Speaker, in the face of this overwhelming opposition, the administration and Republican leadership have tried every trick in the book to pass this CAFTA. They have tried linking CAFTA to help democracy in the developing world. Defense Secretary Rumsfeld and Deputy Secretary of State Zoellick have said that CAFTA will help in the war on terror. I am not sure how, and they do not explain how, but I do know that 10 years of NAFTA has done nothing to improve border security between the United States and Mexico. So that argument simply does not sell.

Then, in May, the U.S. Chamber of Commerce flew on a nice little junket around the country the six Dominican and Central American presidents, around our Nation hoping they might be able to sell CAFTA to newspapers, to the public and ultimately to the Congress. They went to Albuquerque. They went to Los Angeles. They went to Cincinnati in my State. They went to New York. Miami, and that is where they failed. In fact, the Costa Rican president at the end of the trip said, I am not going to sign this, I am not part of this until I really see what CAFTA is going to do for working people in my country.

Now, as the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. PASCARELL) and I have talked, the administration is opening up the taxpayers’ bank. Desperate, after failing to gin up support for the agreement based on its merits, because they know they cannot pass it, with this kind of bad trade policy failure for a dozen years, they know they cannot pass it on the merits, so what they are doing is the President of the United States is promising fundraising for Members of Congress. He is promising bridges and highways, more pork than you can imagine in district after district after district. He is promising all kinds of people where people that might be laid off in Congress, who know the kinds of promises he is making.

They have made these promises before to pass other trade agreements, and they are making them again. But certainly, if you read the newspapers, Republicans and Democrats, business and labor groups, farmers, ranchers, religious leaders, environmental, and human rights organizations are all saying: Vote no on CAFTA. Renegotiate and get a better CAFTA.

Before turning to my colleague from New Jersey, I want to point out one other argument that those supporting CAFTA like to put out there. Every time there is a trade agreement, the President makes three major promises: There will be more jobs in the U.S., the U.S. will send more manufactured goods, export them out of the U.S. to other countries; and the standard of living in the poorer countries in the developing world will go up. Every time he makes those promises, they fall flat on their face. It never happens.

Benjamin Franklin once said the definition of insanity is doing the same thing over and over and over again and expecting it to come out differently. They make the same promises, and they never work. And here is why. The President says the Central American countries are going to buy American products, they are going to buy American manufactured goods, and they are going to buy American farm produce. Let’s look at this chart. The United States average income is $38,000.

The average income in El Salvador is $4,800; Guatemala, $4,100; Honduras, $2,600; Nicaragua, $2,300. The average worker in Nicaragua who earns $2,300 a year is simply not making enough money to buy any kind of goods that we export. A worker in Honduras cannot afford to buy a car made in Dayton, Ohio. A worker in Guatemala cannot afford to buy software made in Seattle or Northern California.

A Nicaraguan worker cannot afford to buy textiles or apparel from North Carolina or South Carolina. An El Salvadoran worker making $4,800 a year is not going to buy prime cut beef grown in Nebraska. The combined economic output of these CAFTA countries is equivalent to that of Columbus, Ohio, or Orlando, Florida. The combined economic output of these six countries is equivalent to that of Columbus, Ohio, or Orlando, Florida.

In other words, Mr. Speaker, they simply cannot buy our products. So what is CAFTA all about? It is not about them buying our products that we export. This agreement is about U.S. companies moving plants to Honduras, outsourcing jobs to El Salvador and exploiting cheap labor in Guatemala. That is what this agreement and every other agreement has led to. It has led to U.S. companies moving to China, moving to Mexico, moving to Guatemala, moving to Pakistan, moving to China, exploiting cheap labor, doing nothing to raise the standard of living in those countries, and depressing the standard of living in our country.

Mr. Speaker, we want a new CAFTA, a renegotiated CAFTA. When the world’s poorest people can buy American products, not just make them, when the world’s poorest people can buy American products, then we will know that our trade policies are working. That is why we must renegotiate the Central American Free Trade Agreement and this time do it right.

Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. PASCARELL) who has, ever since his initial term in Congress, been the leader on trade policies of the former President, a member of my own party, President Clinton; and I oppose this President’s trade policies, President Bush, and I do so not through perceptions but through facts. What has happened to these trade policies as was promised when they were passed and signed?

The folks in my district did not send me to Washington to surrender my rights under the Constitution. article I, section 8 is very clear. It is the Congress that will declare war; it is the Congress that will deal with matters of commerce. We have surrendered that. This legislative body has surrendered that right to both Clinton and Bush. When we voted no, the majority voted, not the President of the United States is solely responsible for the so-called free trade deals and that the Congress can either vote them up or down.

Now this is what we have done. In diminishing the power of the legislative body, we have inflated the power under the Constitution, and this is not what our forefathers intended. If Members read what went into article I, section 8, it is very, very clear, very succinct. And that the Congress can either vote them up or down.

So when one looks at the facts, the trade deals have not been fair, and they certainly have not been free. We want to help other countries grow, but not at the detriment and expense of the American worker. We are not opposed to trade. The gentleman from Ohio (Mr. BROWN) is not opposed to trade. The Members of the other side of the aisle, the Republicans who oppose NAFTA like I oppose it and like many of us who oppose it on our side, are not against trade. Trade is a necessity. We live in a global village, but we want that trade to be fair. We want that trade to be a two-way street and not a one-way street.

I give just two basic examples: the only trade deal that I voted in favor of was the trade deal with the country of Jordan. I did not vote for the Australian free trade agreement. Many of us opposed it. The Australian free trade agreement provided for countries enforcing their own labor laws. There is a history here. If you are going to enforce your own labor laws, you are not going to be able to deal in a free trade agreement. It means nothing, in other words. This is unacceptable.

In section 18.2 of the deal we made with Australia, very specifically it says: The parties recognize that each party retains the right to exercise discretion with respect to investigations, prosecutorial, regulatory, compliance matters, and to make decisions regarding the allocation of resources to enforcement. In other words, in the Australian so-called free trade agreement we signed, the President of the United States signed, signed on the dotted line and blinked and winked at the Australians as to how that deal would be enforced. It means absolutely nothing, and it will not be enforced because of the language.

Yet in the Jordanian trade deal, very specifically article 6, The parties reaffirm their obligations as members of the International Labor Organization, the ILO, and their commitments under the ILO Declaration of Fundamental Principles and Rights at Work and its follow-up. The parties shall strive to ensure that such labor principles and the internationally recognized labor rights set forth in paragraph 6 are recognized and protected by domestic law. There is the teeth. That is the basic difference between the Australian deal and the Jordanian free trade agreements. Standards. We need standards in any trade agreement not only to protect the workers in the other country, but to protect the workers in the United States of America.

We should not give up that sovereignty. We should not give up that ability to protect our own workers, and that is not what is happening. We become a Wal-Mart economy. These people are underemployed, regardless of what we hear on the plethora of TV and radio commercials. These people are underemployed with very few benefits.

And the fact of the matter is that it is a rotating system. People leave in a very short period of time.

The Catholic bishops got it right. The Catholic bishops got it right on CAFTA. They said they believe that in an increasingly interdependent world, it is essential that economic globalization be made more human by globalizing solidarity among people everywhere, and they quoted Pope John Paul II, the poorest appear to have little hope. If globalization is ruled merely by the laws of the market, applied to suit the powerful, the consequences cannot but be negative.

"We are concerned," the bishops wrote, "about the ability of CAFTA to increase opportunities for the poorest and most vulnerable and to enhance the prospect that they will genuinely benefit from increased trade."

Mr. Speaker, I intend in the coming days to show pictorially and narratively one example of what is happening in Nicaragua. This is an absolute disgrace. These countries have not paid with their citizens what Pinckney, is in the CAFTA agreement. In fact, the bishops point this out. Folks need to be educated before any two countries sign any kind of agreement. Do not keep folks in the dark. This is the way the trade agreements are enforced. This is not an agreement that is going to help the folks in that country or this country.

And how many folks have come across the Rio Grande River from Mexico in the last few years that NAFTA went into effect? The promise of NAFTA on this floor in 1993 was that it would stop the flow of illegal immigration that come across the Rio Grande into this country. We have doubled the amount of people because the companies that went to Mexico have now gone to China. We have participated in this vicious circle. I am glad the gentleman brought up that famous quote regarding the definition of insanity: doing something over and over and over again and expecting different results.

Mr. Speaker, our policies are insane. They do not help the workers of this Nation. It is sad. But listen to what the bishops have had to say. They have had a lot to say.

This is the time to stop these unfair agreements. We need a trade policy in this Nation that is fair before it is free. There are no free lunches here. We told the folks in the other country who wish to participate in the trade agreements that had been developed with the United States that the Congress of the United States are going to be able to vote upon and discuss and amend. I want my rights back under the Constitution. I demand them back or else we might as well go home and let us have a monarchy.

The Forefathers fought this. They argued and debated one another. They said we should have three branches of government as a checks and balance. What checks and balances do we have in the trade agreements that both President Clinton and President Bush have put before the Congress with very little debate and we have given the store away? That is a fact of life. That is the truth. I ask anybody to come to this floor to deny it.

Our current trade policy is not working, President Bush. It has not been functional for some time. I say to the past two Presidents, The Bush administration have only continued and increased its support for multinational imports over domestic industry. No wonder the containers come into this country filled, and they stay on the docks empty. They have no strength to help improve the living conditions of those living in our partner nations and not just wink when we say it.

This Congress must defeat unfair trade agreements until we start forming trade policy rationally and fairly. You look at what happened to the Mexicans who came across the Rio Grande, our brothers and sisters who came across that river. The promise that was given to them in 1993 was that you would not have to do that anymore. You will have a job. You will have a job that pays. You will have a job that gives you benefits. Your family will be able to live. How do they have come here? Because the jobs are not there.

Who made money? Not those people. The multinational corporations made the money. CAFTA as drafted is not an agreement to accomplish these goals. It needs to be renegotiated. We do not want to bury it. We want to renegotiate so that it is fair, so that it does have teeth, so that it protects the sovereignty of the United States and every other country who wishes to participate. I intend to show pictorially, and I will keep my word, on what has happened in Nicaragua, that poorest of all poor nations; $2,200 a year they make. They are going to buy American products? Is this reality TV or is this reality? Is it the truth? I ask anybody to come to this floor to deny it.

I see my other friend from Ohio (Ms. KAPTUR), and I want to yield to her so that perhaps, when she finishes, we will have a triumvirate here.

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Ohio.

Ms. KAPTUR. I thank my dear colleague the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. BROWN) who has brought us together this evening to discuss the pending vote on CAFTA, godchild of NAFTA, and my dear friend the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. Pascrell) who has been such a leader on all economic concerns that face our country, and indeed they are daunting, this one among them.

As I listened to the gentleman from New Jersey and the gentleman from Ohio discuss this pending CAFTA vote, I could not help but think NAFTA. In a blink, 1 million lost jobs for our country, of jobs all over this country, Ohio, New Jersey, California, Oregon. The list goes on and on. I think Ross Perot talked about the great sucking sound 10 years ago, and we certainly have seen that. This is going to be the last few inches left in the tub, are going to go down to Central America now on this continent.

I usually talk about the economic dimension of NAFTA and CAFTA, but tonight for just a brief moment I wanted to talk about the political issues involved, most importantly free trade agreements, goes way beyond the rights granted to U.S. companies in the law. Under NAFTA’s rules, indirect expropriation and loss of future profits constitute grounds for a NAFTA case. These rules have been reproduced in CAFTA, and they threaten a wide array of legitimate public health and environmental protections.

Under NAFTA’s investor provisions, several dozen cases have already been made on our democratically passed laws. For example, and I will just go through two of these, a Canadian gold mining company under NAFTA recently sued the United States to escape the cleanup and reclamation of a mine site in the United States, claiming this would have interfered with the Canadian company’s profits. Well, too bad. They would have been held in jail, or any other way. Another example, a Canadian company challenged California’s right to ban the gasoline additive MTBE. California banned that ingredient because it leaks into ground water systems. What is wrong with that?

In closing my opening remarks today, I guess I would have to say, what is next? What will be left of our democracy here at home? What more trade agreements like CAFTA? What kind of model are we exporting, where freedom is shortchanged, where profits are greater than the green light? We should only have free trade among free people. We should use trade as a lever to raise living standards, and we should place freedom first. It is truly a joy to be with my colleagues here this evening and to try to fight in freedom’s cause.

Mr. Brown of Ohio. I thank the gentleman from Toledo, Ohio, who has been consistent this floor for more than 20 years arguing for fighting for American workers and fighting to lift up standards, everything from food safety to environment to workers’ standards and standards of living in the poorest countries in the world and trying to get trade agreements that work for everybody.

One thing that I particularly liked that the gentleman from Ohio said is that it is pretty clear that the opposition to these trade agreements is not just a few Democratic Members of Congress or Republican Members of Congress, it is also a wide swath of Americans who are against this. It is labor. It is working people and small manufacturers. It is environmentalists. It is religious leaders, but also, as the gentlewoman from Ohio points out, it is religious leaders in all of the CAFTA countries. It is workers in all of the CAFTA countries. It is poor people in all of the CAFTA countries. It is workers in Central America.
We hear the people for CAFTA saying. Well, the people of Central America need this. It will make them more prosperous. It will help them. It will help keep them from being so poor. It will help raise their standard of living. But any evidence that we people in Central America want this agreement except for the wealthiest in those countries. And as we all have said in our opening remarks, this agreement is negotiated by a select few for a select few. It is negotiated by the largest corporations for the largest corporations. It is negotiated by the drug industry, the insurance industry, the banks, the financial institutions because they, in fact, will benefit. The wealthy corporate interests in Guatemala will benefit as they do in the United States. But workers in both countries will not benefit. Religious leaders in both countries think this is a bad idea, environmentalists, all kinds of people.

Mr. PASCRELL. Trade agreements, as I learned about them through school and reading on my own, used to be about tariff levels and quotas. That was the basis of trade agreements. But the modern trade agreement is about much more than just importing and exporting goods. I agree that foreign policy and trade go together. This is very critical. These agreements, and specifically the one we are talking about now, include entire chapters on foreign investor protections.

If I may, I want to talk about that just for a few moments, the ownership in domestic regulation of services and even how tax dollars can be spent on procurement, buying things. We have had debates on the floor of the House in the last 2 months which have centered upon the sovereignty, the independence of our country in the world. Just last month, we saw a comprehensive United Nations reform measure pass through that defending these hearings about how the U.N., the International Criminal Court, and other global bodies can undermine policies set by this Congress and this Federal Government. How any of those same critics can support CAFTA is beyond me. These agreements include, as I said, whole chapters on foreign investor rights. Over the past 10 years, NAFTA, which is the model for this piece of legislation, has been a disaster for American sovereignty and has undermined the intent of our Constitution.

The much-reviled NAFTA chapter 11 was designed to grant special legal protection and new rights to corporations from one NAFTA country that invests in another NAFTA country. Again, we see multinational corporations winning out over the little guy. We have surrendered our independence as a nation. Extraordinarily, NAFTA chapter 11 provided for the private enforcement of these agreements by the investors themselves outside of the nation’s domestic court system and in a closed-door trade tribunal. How can you be so concerned about what the U.N. is imposing upon the United States and not look at what CAFTA is doing to the sovereignty of this greatest of all democracies? Secret tribunals have the ability to override our Federal courts. These tribunals are funded from the United States Treasury. They have the ability to make new Federal policies outside the congressional process.

In the 2002 Fast Track law, we attempted to add some assurances that trade agreements could no longer replicate this dangerous chapter 11 precedent outlined in NAFTA. We did not succeed. The language enacted in the final Fast Track bill was weak at best. The act did state that foreign investors should have no “greater substantive rights with respect to investment protection than provisions in the United States.” This is unbelievable. The investment provisions of CAFTA failed to satisfy even the modest congressional requirement. And I must say on this point, this CAFTA agreement provides greater foreign investor rights and businesses than provided to the United States citizens and the United States businesses. Read it. Do not take my word for it. Go to the document.

How anybody could stand on this floor, and I know those that did, and beg us to make sure the United Nations does not undermine the sovereignty of the United States and not have the same standard in looking at the CAFTA agreement, that is chapter 11 in the NAFTA agreement and not say we have surrendered. The United States has surrendered under this agreement. Ms. KAPTUR. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. I yield to the gentlewoman from Ohio.

Ms. KAPTUR. Mr. Speaker, I want to compliment the gentleman for his passion and for placing the net result of the architecture of NAFTA and all succeeding agreements that follow in its path like this proposed CAFTA because what we see is a system, an economic system, that is really very cruel, foisted upon societies that do not have the legal system nor the financial system to really allow the voices of the people to be heard in their chambers of government.

In Mexico, after people’s wages were cut by 40 percent, the value of their buying power down by 40 percent post-NAFTA, nearly 2 million people in the countryside thrown off their land, what happened there, they got so angry, there have been protests in Mexico over this CAFTA, over this treaty with the United States. People, that is three times as many people as live in the major city that I represent. They could not have their voices heard any other way. There was a group of farmers that got on their horses from the different states in Mexico, from the north to the south. They literally rode into the parliament to try to say stop it, this is hurting us too much.

That is about all they can do to make their voices heard unless they can change over their government. They come here and say to us, America, do you not realize what you are doing to us, whom you are in partnership with? They are begging us to help them improve their societies. Do we have the great responsibility as a Nation that believes in freedom and the liberty for all people that we would use our powers, political, economic, or moral, whatever they might be, to help these people? What is the answer? We have been hurt ourselves greatly by our jobs moving to Mexico and other places. We know how tough it is.

Mr. PASCRELL. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. I yield to the gentleman from New Jersey.

Mr. PASCRELL. Mr. Speaker, may I suggest to the gentlewoman from Ohio that it is not the Congress that is making the trade agreements. I have pointed out before that we have surrendered that right, that power. I do not even think it is the President. What do my colleagues know about that? We have surrendered to many multinational corporations. They are making trade deals on our behalf.

Ms. KAPTUR. Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman from Ohio would continue to yield, I think what the gentleman from New Jersey said is absolutely accurate, and they expect that through their institutions that have these NAFTA tribunals or CAFTA tribunals or WTO or they meet in places that most people had never heard of. Right? Davos, who can get there? Do people want to go to a meeting somewhere on the west coast of Mexico around Cancun or whatever that was? The roads are blocked off.

They tried to pass something here on GATT. When did they do it? In a lame duck session after midnight. In these countries, by special session, early in the morning, late at night, and the people in those societies even have less opportunity to try to impact the legislative process, as I have spoken about this evening. So we have surrendered, we have surrendered to the largest, most powerful private corporations on the face of the Earth: oil companies, automotive companies, electrical companies, and agricultural companies, people that need cheap labor whether it is to make clothing or whether it is to produce sugar beets, who can do what. What we have done is we have let that big bulldozer ride over all of us.

And here we stand in the citadel of freedom this evening and we say to ourselves, is this the best we can do? Is this the best we can do, a Nation that rebuilt Europe after the Second World War, a Nation that worked for 50 years to see the collapse of the Soviet regime? Is this the best we can do in the modern age in the 21st century?

Mr. PASCRELL. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. I yield to the gentleman from New Jersey.
Mr. FASCRULL. Mr. Speaker, would it not be great if we put an end to it in this Congress on both sides of the aisle? The gentleman from Ohio knows better than anybody there are a number of people, I cannot count the ones and I am not taking them for granted, I never do. And I have a feeling of people on the other side who see through this fantasy and are willing to stand up for it. We know that pressure is going to be put on them. Two administrations past, pressure was put on folks right here, right here. And I supported President Clinton on most of what he ever wanted.

But on trade, I think the administration and the executive branch of government are selling our intellect short, and our responsibilities back. I believe that Congress should be part of a negotiating team to negotiate these agreements and then bring them to the floor, we debate them, and we pass it. We need to do something to make these agreements fair. Up until now we have not.

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, reclaiming my time, both the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. FASCRULL) and the gentleman from Ohio (Ms. KAPTUR) have pointed out how these agreements are not fair. They are written by a select few for a select few, and the gentlewoman from Ohio (Ms. KAPTUR) writes about how especially working people in Central America and the Dominican Republic simply cannot figure out how to get their voices heard. They ride their horses from the far end of the capital and try to tell their legislators this agreement is not working for them.

But what we are seeing this week is there are a handful of Central American legislators that have come here to say this is a bad idea for our country and various different countries in Central America. We are seeing Central American Roman Catholic cardinal join with American Catholic leaders and Lutheran and Presbyterian leaders in our country saying this is bad for the poor in all seven countries. It is bad for the poor in the United States. It is bad for the poor in Costa Rica and the Dominican Republic, in El Salvador and Guatemala, in Honduras and Nicaragua.

This agreement, if we want to talk about social justice and economic justice, as all of us, and I know faith is important to the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. FASCRULL) and the gentlewoman from Ohio (Ms. KAPTUR) as it is to me, if we want to talk about what faith is all about, any religious faith to which one ascribes, it is clear that faith is about social and economic justice.

That is why the cardinal is here talking to Members of Congress about how this hurts his flock in Central America. That is why I am here, and I support leaders and activists in our country are here talking to their Members of Congress, saying this is not fair to our communities, it does not work for our families, it does not work for our workers, it does not work for the environment, it does not work for anybody but those large companies that the gentlewoman from Ohio (Ms. KAPTUR) talked about, the large oil companies, the banks, the insurance companies, the drug companies, the big multinational, that will use this agreement to not lift standards up in any country but to outsource jobs, to ship jobs overseas.

Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from New Jersey.

Mr. FASCRULL. Mr. Speaker, I ask whether one of my colleagues what are the circumstances that allow us to vote for a bill where foreign investors and foreign firms are granted greater rights than U.S. citizens and United States firms? What is the rationale? I will listen very carefully.

I have read the document. To those who are going to vote for it and do not want to be found wanting, I do not know what is there, please read the document. How can they vote for a surrender of sovereignty? They took the oath of office to uphold the Constitution of the United States. How can they surrender sovereignty? Do any of my colleagues think folks understand that in this Chamber?

Ms. KAPTUR. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. I yield to the gentlewoman from Ohio.

Ms. KAPTUR. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman so effectively raises the issues of sovereignty and of protecting our legal system based on a rule of law with individual rights embedded in those very deeply, and I wanted to thank him for his constant leadership, as well as the gentleman from Ohio’s (Mr. BROWN) leadership in this whole debate and CAFTA effort, and say in addition to the sovereignty issue, following on something the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. BROWN) said, I think one also has to look at the morality of what is being done here, and his reference to the religious leaders that are coming here from Central America this week, certainly I think of the Roman Catholic Guatemalan cardinal and his tremendous letter that he wrote. According to that, if this is teaching, we remember the words: “As you do unto them, the least of my brethren, so will it be done unto me.” And we, as the most powerful Nation in the world, have to think about the impact of what we are doing as a country on the least among us not just at home but abroad.

Without question, as the gentleman from Ohio has stated, the net income and the earning power of those in these Central American countries, in El Salvador and Guatemala, is small. And all together, they are so poor. They are so low income. Our predilection should be to have a preference for the poor, that, in fact, we should make it no worse than they already have it.

And we have workers who are working in those banana packing houses who earn pennies a day, bitten by spiders, and they are told to pack 40 boxes; no, pack 50 boxes; no, pack 100; no, pack 200, until they wear out, and then there is another person lined up. They have no rights.

And how about in the places that sew clothing? Those are largely women workers. They have no voice. They earn pennies. It takes them 2 weeks of work to even afford one pair of the trousers they make that are sold in this country for $39. What is right about that?

What about those people? Are we not to think about them as well? Yes, those jobs were lost in South Carolina or Mississippi, or they moved somewhere from this country, and we fought that with these unfair trade advantages that some of these multinationals have.

Now, what this is doing is it is putting a Good Housekeeping Seal of Approval on a system that we know is so exploitative. It is bad for our people and horrendous for those doing the work in these packing sheds and these hot, dusty textile companies that no one will ever see.

I remember hearing a letter written by one woman working in a company that was headed by a South Korean who was making the women work faster and faster and faster with no rights. That is where our country was 70 years ago and we got rid of that kind of sweatshop condition, or at least we got the laws on the books to allow people to have some dignity in their work.

We should not be giving any Good Housekeeping’s Seal of Approval to a system which will approve that kind of sweatshop labor that is going down in Central America, which this will exacerbate.

We should listen to the people, listen to those who are demonstrating, listen to those traveling here, listen to their religious leaders and using our power, which is our marketplace. They all want to take their stuff in here. So let us lift standards elsewhere as a condition of market entry, and let us make sure, by lifting standards, we do not keep washing out jobs in this country more and more.

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, claiming my time, I thank the gentlewoman from Toledo, Ohio (Ms. KAPTUR).

As we wrap up in the last 60 or 90 seconds, what I again point out, what the gentlewoman from Ohio (Ms. KAPTUR) said, working conditions and the standard of living in all of these CAFTA countries and Nicaragua, people are making $2,300 a year; Honduras, $2,600 a year. This agreement does nothing to lift up living standards in those countries.

It means, one, they cannot buy American products as the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. PASCRELL) has said, but it also means they continue to live in abject poverty. And this agreement does nothing to lift them up. That is why the opposition to CAFTA is so broad. That is why the card will be here this week. That is why Central American legislators have come up here and paid their own way to get here, I believe. That is why religious leaders in our country who see this issue, this agreement, as a moral question, what we do to the least among us, and so many people, religious leaders, advocates for the poor, advocates for working people, unions, small businesses that care about their communities, Republicans and Democrats all have joined against this agreement.

That is why if this vote on CAFTA were held tonight, if it were held right now, this agreement would go down by 20 or 25 votes. I will make a prediction, and I have heard the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. PASCRELL) and the gentlewoman from Ohio (Ms. KAPTUR) say the same sort of thing, we know that in the next 2 weeks, if this comes up to a vote, that the majority leader, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. DELAY), the most prominent and most powerful Member of this body, will put immense pressure on Republican Members to change their votes, to vote yes, and he will be doing that to change their vote and vote for this agreement. And the prediction I would make is if this comes to a vote, if in fact they think it is close enough for a vote, they will bring it up in the middle of the night; the roll call will stay open not the regular 15 minutes, but for an hour, 2 hours or 3 hours, as they have done before; and if it in fact passes, it will pass by no more than two or three votes.

That is the way business is all too often done here. And when this agreement so clearly runs counter to what most Americans want, it runs counter to what most Central Americans and Latin Americans want, it runs counter to what is good for business and what is good for workers in our country, the only way that they can possibly pass it is to twist arms, exert all kinds of pressures, open up the taxpayer bank and give out all kinds of pork projects to Members so they can get this agreement through. If it passes, it will pass by no more than two or three votes, we can count on that.

But if this Congress, this House of Representatives, follows what the word “representative” means and really represents the people whom we are supposed to represent, this agreement will be defeated and Members of this body will look for a new, renegotiated CAFTA that will lift living standards up in the six Latin American countries and in the United States and will actually be a win for everyone involved.

Mr. Speaker, I particularly thank my friend, the gentlewoman from Ohio (Ms. KAPTUR), who has been so stalwart in this for so many years, and the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. PASCRELL), who speaks so eloquently about our constitutional rights and sovereignty and where we should go as a Nation.

ANSWERING THE CALL FOR FREEDOM

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. PRICE of Georgia). Under the Speaker’s announced policy of January 4, 2005, the gentlewoman from Florida (Ms. GINNY BROWN-WAITE) is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the majority leader.

Ms. GINNY BROWN-WAITE of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I rise this evening to highlight one of the most under-reported and freedom-affirming policies that the world has seen since the end of World War II.

For centuries, the world has heard the oppressed, the downtrodden and the vulnerable cry out for their freedoms, for their rights and for a chance to emerge from the shadows of the tyranny and bloodshed that they had lived with. Those yearning for basic liberties and for basic rights have occasionally been led by vocal and dedicated women of the world. Their’s has been too often a silent battle, however, with no clear voice, no champion and no opportunity to cry out for their freedom.

I am proud to say tonight that this Congress and this President have heard those cries. We have recognized the unmistakable voice of freedom rumbling across the ocean and into these hallowed chambers, and we have answered that call.

Too often, this House has dealt with the aftermath of turning a blind eye to the horrors of present regimes and of past despots. This Republican-led Congress has said, “no more,” to those policies. No longer should women be denied the right to vote, no longer should women be treated as second class citizens, no longer should women not be allowed to be a citizen at all.

The world today is changing rapidly, and we are helping to make it better for our children’s future. Since President Bush took office in 2001, this Congress has supported an agenda of democracy, freedom and expansion of rights for all peoples throughout the world. The list of non-democratic regimes that have seen significant reforms since 2001 is long and significant. Iraq, Afghanistan, Libya, Egypt, Lebanon, Kuwait, Georgia, the Ukraine and others have all held elections, increased minority rights or have committed to democratic reforms.

We have before us a picture of an Iraqi woman who was so proud that she was able to vote. We see the ink-stained finger that told everyone that at last she had the opportunity to vote.

While all of these are important and significant events, the United States’ foreign policy that furthers the advancement of freedoms and rights for women that is the most striking for me. The world watched October 19 as 19-year-old Mokadasa Sidek cast the first vote in Afghanistan’s landmark presidential elections. Some more women participating in the Iraqi elections proudly holding up their ballots.
We also have the picture of the thousands of women lined up in Afghanistan to go to vote. They value that privilege. They value that ability that they now have to vote. Today, women comprise 41 percent of the 8.2 million Afghan voters. With our support, these women will rise to the challenge of leading to fan the flame of democracy and give them hope for a brighter future.

Tonight, you will hear personal stories from Members who have traveled to countries like Jordan, Iraq and Afghanistan to tell us the tales of women who voted for the first time in their family’s history to the meetings with newly elected female representatives of Iraq, these stories are truly inspiring.

Now I would like to yield to the distinguished gentleman from Texas (Mr. POE).

Mr. POE. Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the gentlewoman from Florida for allowing me this time and for doing this very important event to recognize the freedoms that women have obtained because of the United States and the United States’ policy with the world and the sacrifice of American troops.

History will record the devil deeds of Saddam Hussein, the tyrant of the desert, those crimes against his own people, the women of Iraq. They cry out from their unmarked graves across the wastelands created by Saddam Hussein in the desert sands. Those women were raped and tortured. Some were found in the presence of their own families, and after they were murdered, their bodies were abused.

But on January 30, 2005, the women of Iraq spoke out for the living and for the dead. It was their chance to be a part of something that never before ever happened in that part of the world, a free election.

The world, civilization, began between the Tigris and Euphrates Rivers. Those civilizations have always had a mind to be free, that they will not be enslaved and abused or neglected any more, that they have made up their minds to be free.

Yet they did not care, because freedom was more important to them.

I talked to many Iraqis that day through an interpreter, and I remember one senior citizen, she was a senior citizen, an Iraqi lady, and she told me through an interpreter that she had lost her son to the murderous Saddam Hussein, and she wanted to thank me for the sacrifice of our sons and daughters, American sons and daughters, that they had made it that she and her other Iraqi friends could vote that day.

American troops are spreading liberty and freedom. They are liberating enslaved peoples. The best ambassadors for freedom that we have in the United States are our young men and women in Iraq and Afghanistan liberating those enslaved people.

You know, the critics that say we should cut and run from Iraq now should remember that freedom has always cost. It has always cost all people who want to be free. And people in Iraq are free and are fighting continuously for this liberty because of Americans.

I hope we all appreciate the sacrifice our troops are making and understand that they have done more for freedom and dignity, the freedom and dignity especially of women, than any sign-carrying protestor. We should just ask those noble and brave Iraq women that held their fingers high.

My grandmother used to say, who was really the most influential person in my life, that there is nothing more important than that has made up her mind. And I think we have seen in the Iraqi women, and I saw personally, that they have made up their mind to be free, that they will not be enslaved and abused or neglected any longer. And it is all because the United States believes in freedom for all people.

Ms. GINNY BROWN-WAITE of Florida, Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. POE) made so many excellent points about the bravery of the Iraqi people in going to the polls.

You know, we will go to the polls, we may have to wait a little while to get in. It is nowhere near the long lines that they experienced in Iraq, and we have to remember that we are free to go to the polls. We do not face the kind of intimidation that the Iraqi women faced.

Mr. Speaker, I am very pleased to have been joined by the gentlewoman from Illinois (Mrs. BIGGERT), who actually has traveled and can tell us some information about the women that she met, and we look forward to hearing from you.

Mrs. BIGGERT. Mr. Speaker, I really appreciate all that the gentlewoman from Florida (Ms. GINNY BROWN-WAITE) is doing with the Women’s Caucus, and she has done a great job bringing these women issues out and how important they are to all of us.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to talk a little bit first about the Afghan women, because I had an opportunity to talk with them. It was before some of our women Members were even here, it was in 2002, when there were a group of women, first of all starting out with women lawyers from Afghanistan, came over to meet with the Women’s Caucus and have a discussion.

Later on, Habiba Sorabi, Afghanistan’s minister for women’s affairs, came over to meet with us and discuss what the mission was all about. And she talked about that the mission for women was to restore and improve the rights of Afghan women and to strengthen their legal, their economic, political, and social status throughout the country.

At that time the Members of the Women’s Caucus here came away convinced that the work of their women’s ministry was absolutely critical to the rebuilding of a peaceful and democratic Afghanistan in which the women and girls would have full rights.

And one of the things that we did was to establish and to find funding for women’s centers over in Afghanistan. As you see the picture there with the Afghan elections, wearing the burkas and the veils, and still how they go around covered. So they needed a place where women could go where they could have health care, where they could take their children for education, and where they could have job opportunities to work. And once they were allowed to have the creations of rugs or chickens or whatever they were going to do to establish an economic basis.

And with that, we were able to get from the Appropriations Committee, and then after that, we were also able to not really to go into Afghanistan, but to go over early in the morning to the State Department, 7 a.m., and talk to women that were involved in writing the Constitution for Afghanistan, to make sure that they were included.

And we had to do it so early in the morning because they could not be out after a certain time of day. And they, at the very beginning of our day, we were at the sunrise services.

And we were really able to talk to them and give them encouragement and a chance to speak. And they also came over here to spend some time with us really as going out on our day-to-day business to see how a democracy operates, how the House of Representatives works. We wore them out, I must say. But they were able to spend some time with us.

And then in January I traveled to Amman, Jordan, to meet with women who were on the list in Iraq, who were running for office to be elected to the national assembly. And it is a little bit different from what we were doing here.

We have our precincts and our designation, our States, but there this was a national list. There were four of us that went: the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. TUSCHEL), the gentlewoman from California (Mrs. TAUSCHER), and the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. SHIMkus) and myself.

We were over there to train them in the election process. Now it is a little bit different because here were a group of women running for office who could not have their names on a list, known, who could not have their pictures on a brochure, who could not pass out any literature that they were running, because of the fear of assassination.

And as a matter of fact, many of these women were intimidated. One of them lost her 17-year-old son to an assassination. Another one was kidnapped and held for ransom. Another one lost five members of her family.

But these women were willing to stand by themselves and talk to women that were involved in the literature that they were running, because they were able to spend some time with us.

And then in April there were three of us that went back to Jordan: the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. GRANGER), the gentlewoman from California (Mrs. TAUSCHER), and myself. And we met back to meet with 150 Iraqi women who were chosen because of the leaders in their provinces, leaders like mayors, and were developing into the leaders in their country.

And that was to train them in democracy. And just think, suddenly you have a democracy and you have come from a dictatorship. What do you do? So we had a lot of role-playing with them and instant translation so that we could talk to them. And I have to tell you that some of them talk very loud. I think it is a cultural thing when they want to make their points.

So we would say, cannot hear you through the earphones. But we learned that this is just a cultural difference in how we differ. But one thing that they said was that they did not really want to have a quota system. They wanted to be like us where they ran as women, and they were elected. And we said, well, now you have got 33 percent. Just take it easy for a while, because we only have 14 percent in the Congress. You are way ahead of us. So keep up the good work and make sure that you stay that way, and one day you will have the same.

One day you will have the brochures that you pass out. One day you will have the sponges and the combs and the pencils that you are giving out to get elected. But what they have done, I think, has been fascinating, and they have just been able to move ahead and to be able to find out how to run a democracy. I think they are way ahead of us.

As each group, during the 2½ days that we were there, came up and did some of this role-playing, they got better and better. But they loved doing it, and we loved having them.

But again they came to us at great risk. They had to drive through Iraq, they were shot at, a group of them was held at the Jordanian border for 13 hours, and you know what they have gone through for the freedoms that we believe in, that we sometimes do not, you know, take the great care and go and vote, that do not do the things that they think is, you know, they are willing to give their lives for.

I think that we have to honor them and all of the other women that we see throughout these countries that are running for elections and making sure that they are included and their children are going to be included. I think that we honor them. I am very delighted to have the opportunity to be here tonight.

Ms. GINNY BROWN-WAITE of Florida. I appreciate the gentlewoman from Illinois (Mrs. BIGGERT) telling us first hand your mentoring project with some female candidates, and also some of the others who just want to make sure that women are playing an active role in both the Jordanian Government and the Iraqi Government.

Mrs. BIGGERT. Let me just say one more thing too. The message from them was, do not leave us until we have a stable government, because they want to have the freedom and the democracy that we have.

Ms. GINNY BROWN-WAITE of Florida. I found that also when I traveled to Iraq. I do not leave us until we have a stable government, because they want to have the freedom and the democracy that we have.

Ms. GINNY BROWN-WAITE of Florida. I found that also when I traveled to Iraq. I do not leave us until we have a stable government, because they want to have the freedom and the democracy that we have.
And I thank the gentlewoman for her work in that effort. And I also thank you for organizing this tonight and taking the leadership role in drawing our attention to Afghanistan and Iraq and the importance of women in those issues.

I had the opportunity to be a part of the CODEL in October of 2003 that was led by the gentlewoman from Ohio (Ms. PRYCE). It was an all-female CODEL. It was a bipartisan CODEL. And how exiting we were to go and be a part of what we all. And what a wonderful lesson is someone that will walk with you and stand with you and go through all that. And what a wonderful lesson is that, one that we realized how important it is for us to realize how uniquely American it is for us to put our arms around mentoring and pulling up along with us those that we would seek to help and work with.

We have, as the gentlewoman from Illinois (Mrs. BIGGERT) was mentioning, brought some of the women with us here to be a part of what was going on in our Nation's great capital so that they could experience and live and have an idea of how we work in freedom and how democracy works and how we apply it each and every day in our lives. I have also had the opportunity to have some of them in Tennessee with me. We had them in Nashville at Vanderbilt University at the Freedom Forum First Amendment Center. And there they had the opportunity to meet with and talk with some of the members of our military, female officers and members who had been in Iraq, who had fought for their freedom. How wonderful to watch them say thank you.

This past March, I returned to Iraq, and I would like to share with you just a little bit of an update on a couple of the women that we have mentored and have worked with over there. One has three children who are currently in school in the northern part of Iraq. They are in a village school there that has been put in place by a school in the United States, a private school. They are working with the local officials. The children are happy. They are excited, and they are learning. Each and every day, they learn a little bit more, not only about reading, writing and arithmetic as we like to say, but also about freedom, about democracy, and how to live and prosper and work in a free society. The elections were great for them. It was a lesson, a living lesson.

Another, in Tikrit, I had the opportunity to visit with when I returned there and visited with the troops, she came on post. What a wonderful reunion we had, and we congratulated the success that she and her colleagues had enjoyed during the election.

Mr. Speaker, it was wonderful to watch her reach out to the troops to thank you for opening new doors, thank you for helping give a new life to me and my people.

Mr. Speaker, I had an e-mail from this young lady the other day. She said, I request your help, I am applying for a Fulbright scholarship. And she wanted the recommendation. How exciting for me to take out a pen and paper and sit down and draft a letter talking about the tenacious spirit, the love of freedom that this young woman has displayed. How wonderful to know that once she, who could not speak, who could not walk, who could not look forward without fear of what may lie beyond that door with Saddam Hussein and his henchmen, she who helped carry out the elections in her province, that she now says, You know what, freedom brings hope and opportunity and encouraging progress. It is progress of providing hope and opportunity and encouraging the human soul. How wonderful that that exists for these folks.

Just a couple of thoughts on the elections. Mr. Speaker, that I do want to touch on. I mentioned my friend there in Tikrit, and not only did I hear from her stories about the elections and some of the things that they did there, it was also my colleague from Illinois was saying and also my colleague from Florida was saying, it was the women in Iraq who led the way to the voting booth, and how exciting that was for us. There were stories of how they hid people in ambulances and police cars, and they made their way along with first, then, and then 100. And then as the posters have shown, lines and lines of women who were coming to exercise that freedom. Some of the stories of our Iraqi friends were so inspiring. A few little tidbits of those: We are voting with courage. We showed bravery and great strength. We showed brave hearts and blue fingers. We achieved our identity in front of a watching world, and there and visited with the troops, I can only say thank you. Thank you to the best friend Iraq has ever had, the United States of America.

Mr. Speaker, they mean every word of that. They mean every single word. And I was thrilled on July 3rd and 4th when I opened my e-mail, as I went about my district celebrating this Nation's independence and freedom, that I had notes from these individuals, so many of these, congratulating me on living in America and congratulating America on having another independence day.

Mr. Speaker, I thank my colleague for the opportunity to speak and to share, and I thank the gentlewoman from Florida for her time and effort in this.

Ms. GINNY BROWN-WAITTE of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman from Tennessee. I think anyone who has had any exposure to the Iraqi women know how very, very brave they are.

Just this afternoon, Mr. Speaker, in this House of Representatives, we debated a resolution honoring Kuwait on the recent efforts to give women the right to vote. As is the case with many Middle Eastern nations, women are nowhere near equal to men when it comes to basic freedoms and rights that we take for granted every day. However, Kuwait’s leaders have recognized that denying half of the world the right to vote and participating in the business of the nation is wrong. As Secretary of State Condoleesa Rice has said, half a democracy is not a democracy.

While Kuwait is not a democracy, giving only half the population a voice in their government is not a policy this Congress should support and one that I am glad that Kuwait’s leaders are changing. I certainly applaud the Kuwaiti leaders for recognizing the importance of women in their country. As the gentlewoman from Florida was saying, it is not a question of women’s rights in the Middle East. If women are not allowed to participate in the decision-making process, if women are denied the right to run for and seek elective office, if women are barred from determining their own future, then those women will suffer oppression and human rights’ violations.

When given the chance, women have proven they will participate in the electoral process. In Iraq, during the first free and fair elections in several decades, it was the women of many towns who led the surge to the polling booths. Women showed that they were not afraid to take their fate in their own hands and show the world what it truly means to be free.

Now, I would like to recognize my colleague, the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. GINGREY). I appreciate his joining us this evening to celebrate the rights that Iraqi and Afghan women have recently received, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. GINGREY. Well, I am very, very honored to have the opportunity to join my colleague, the gentlewoman from Florida (Ms. GINNY BROWN-WAITTE). Mr. Speaker, and I commend her for putting this hour together to talk about the rights of women.

Mr. Speaker, we all know that the gentlewoman from Florida, with others in this body, have recently put together a bipartisan effort with Members from both sides of the aisle coming together on women’s issues, and I really commend them for that, I commend her, and I commend the bipartisan spirit, Mr. Speaker, in speaking out on women’s issues.

We Members of this body who happen to be physicians, and I think there are now ten of us, Mr. Speaker, including yourself, and the something coming together in a bipartisan fashion on issues of health care. I think what we are showing tonight as we discuss women’s issues is we can do that as a Congress, and our citizens in every district, all across this great body, they want us to do this. They realize we have differences of opinions on certain things, and maybe sometimes it seems like it is virtually impossible to come together, but I know that we can. I know we can on health care issues, and I know we can on women’s issues.

And so, Mr. Speaker, I commend the gentlewoman from Florida (Ms. GINNY BROWN-WAITE) for putting this together, and especially tonight, talking about Afghanistan and Iraq; maybe, in some ways comparing and contrasting their situation, the women in these two countries, compared to what we enjoy today. Mr. Speaker, in this country, women have equal rights, and I think it was mentioned earlier, maybe by the gentleman from Illinois (Mrs. BIGGERT), about the fact that in this body, in the combined bodies of the House and Senate, 14 percent of 535 Members are women. Yet in these elections that just took place on January 30 of this year in Iraq, some 21 percent of the 275 seats in the transitional national assembly went to these brave women who, before that, under Saddam Hussein and that brutal dictatorship, they were not even given the opportunity to vote.

Through our efforts and trying to bring some democracy, Mr. Speaker, to that part of the world, we have given them the opportunity, as we turn the country back over to the Iraqi people, for them to make their own elections. And not only did women vote, they voted in force. Thirty-one percent in their very first election are now members of the transitional national assembly. I think it is a wonderful thing that they have that opportunity.

And as I said, Mr. Speaker, so much of these things, these freedoms that we just take for granted, for instance, there is no longer a glass ceiling in this country. I know in my own medical practice, doctors, there are men and three women, and in that specialty of obstetrics and gynecology, probably 60 percent nationwide of the specialists are women.

When my wife, Mr. Speaker, graduated from college, and I will not say how many years ago because she will get mad at me if I do that, but with a degree in psychology and a minor in religion, there were not really great opportunities for her in the job market. She did not have a teacher’s degree, she did not have nursing school or an either secretarial or flight attendant status, and that was really just a few short years ago.

I am so proud, being the father of three daughters and the grandfather of two granddaughters, two grandsons as well, Mr. Speaker, to see that those little girls have an opportunity to, yes, be a mom and a homemaker if they want to, or be an entrepreneur or be the highest level of corporate America, the highest level of this body political that we enjoy so much here in Washington. These are things that we just kind of take for granted. But thanks to the gentlewoman from Florida (Ms. GINNY BROWN-WAITE) and her leadership on this issue, to come tonight and to spend this time and this special hour talking about these brave women who stood in line, we all are filled with such admiration.

Mr. Speaker, I remembered the picture, I guess this one right here, and I want to show it again, because I will never forget this one, with that peace sign and that purple indelible ink to prove that there was no vote of fraud; someone had just voted and on that day. Maybe this took a week or more, by the way, Mr. Speaker, as you know, to wear off.

These women were putting themselves in grave danger of being killed because they had the courage to go and vote when the minority was determined to see that they did not, that they returned to the same old same old.

My colleagues mentioned that one of the recurring themes that they heard when they were visiting, the Women’s Caucus actually went to Iraq and Afghanistan. And what those women were saying, the new leaders who are struggling to get their feet under them, please do not leave us. Please do not leave us. We need your help. They were crying out, we need mentoring. We are now at this, and we want to succeed. When the Taliban ruled Afghanistan, girls were legally prohibited from going to school. That is right, girls were prohibited from going to school. This Congress heard the sad stories of education being denied to women, of keeping them from making better futures for themselves and their families.

Well, now that the United States has liberated the Afghan women, that oppression is no more. As President Bush has said many times, girls go to school. And we want to succeed. This Congress actually went to Iraq and Afghanistan, and we are saying, the new leaders who are struggling. We are asking that the president and vice president, this new transitional National Assembly is saying to us today in regard to this question of Mr. President of the United States, when are you going to bring our troops home. As the President said in North Carolina just last week, if the Iraqi people wanted us to bring the troops home tomorrow we would; but clearly they do not. What a terrible message it would be to set a date certain and say in a year or year and a half we are coming home, whether we have succeeded or not. No. These men and women in Iraq are absolutely right when they say do not leave us, and we will not leave them. It is times like this when we bring this home to our colleagues and remind them of what we have accomplished.

I have been to Iraq twice. I went the first time in December of 2003, 5 days after the capture of Saddam Hussein. We went to Fallujah, and that was before the current business was appropriated in that part of Iraq. I went with a small bipartisan group. Each Member brought something from his or her district. I brought school books donated by the great men and women of the Rome Rotary Club, 3,000 pounds of school books and equipment. Yet when we went into schools, they were all closed. There were no little kids in those elementary schools. There were not any. But schools are open. There are teachers to instruct those little kids in elementary school. And yes, Mr. Speaker, a good portion of those students are female.

And when we gave these wonderful people an opportunity for freedom and equal rights, little girls were not given an opportunity to get an education. It is unbelievable to us. We take so much for granted.

Again, the opportunity to share with the gentlewoman from Florida (Ms. GINNY BROWN-WAITE), the gentleman from Texas (Mr. POE), the gentlewoman from Illinois (Mrs. BIGGERT), and the gentlewoman from Tennessee (Mrs. BLACKBURN) to talk about this afternoon, the history, the history that we have helped construct countless schools throughout the country. Overall, the United States has given Afghanistan $4 billion in 3 years since the fall of the Taliban. For Afghanistan education alone, USAID has allocated nearly $218 million in aid. According to the State Department, approximately $90 million has been earmarked for primary education. This is more than the amount given for education to Egypt, which is the third largest recipient of foreign aid from the United States.

One of the most important roles that Congress can play in the future development of Middle Eastern democracies is for Members to act as individual mentors to future women leaders. We talked to children and doctors. Almost all of them requested that we please do not leave. At first I thought it was because they liked me, they did not want me to leave. They said they did not want to leave until the cow and on its return trip of Iraqi women a little more than 2 weeks from today. As I hope is clear to all, Members will continue their efforts at outreach and mentorship to future women leaders in the Middle East and throughout the world.

When I brought the Iraqi women to my district on several occasions, I brought them to a crowd of a combination of chambers of commerce and some wonderful service groups in my district, Rotary and Kiwanis. Their story was so poignant. As I explained to my constituents, most of them will never have the opportunity to go to Iraq, but I can bring a face, I can put a face on an Iraq person who is very grateful for our involvement and very, very grateful for our troops serving in Iraq to help their country become stabilized.

When we hear the stories that the women had to tell, such as one of them, her sister was killed because they thought it was her. Her sister was not involved politically, she was not against Saddam Hussein, she was very complacent, but the one young lady was very, very active in a group that was opposing Saddam Hussein. She lost her sister due to Saddam Hussein’s brutality. Her father was also brutalized by Saddam Hussein; and yet she continued to be a brave leader in her country, someone who wanted to ensure that future generations had the freedom she fought for and that she wants to make sure that Iraq never goes back to taking those freedoms away from the Iraqi citizens, and women in particular.

Democracy continues to spread throughout the world, and this Congress will continue to support the policies and projects that promote the freedoms that she wanted for so long and that she fought for and that she wants to make sure that Iraq never goes back to taking those freedoms away from the Iraqi citizens, and women in particular.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the gentleman from Missouri?

Mr. CLEAVER. Madam Speaker, I have introduced H. Res. 347, a resolution that condemns Mexico for printing and distributing blatantly racist postage stamps; and I am, along with many others, as Pickney小游戏 and President Vicente Fox to immediately cease printing and distributing the postage stamps and recall from circulation those postage stamps currently on the market.

Madam Speaker, Mexican-Americans and African-Americans have fought for decades to eliminate and erase racial stereotypes and depictions that dominated all forms of media in the early 20th century. On June 29, 2005, the government of Mexico issued a series of five postage stamps commemorating and celebrating Memin Pinguin, a racist comic book character created in the 1940s who was depicted as a dark-skinned Jim Crow era cartoon. And while this character is depicted as a black child with dark skin and greatly exaggerated lips, similar Jim Crow memorabilia referred to when I was a boy and was for his appearance, his speech and mannerisms. The Mexican postal service has authorized the issuance of 750,000 of the stamps which may be used in the Mexican domestic market and the international market. Civil rights organizations such as the National Council of La Raza, I am proud to say; the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, the NAACP, I am proud to say; the National Urban League; and the Rainbow/PUSH Coalition have denounced the racist postage stamp series.

I would also say, Madam Speaker, that the Hispanic Caucus of our Congress has also condemned these stamps. The resolution comes of Mexico President Vicente Fox’s quote last month as saying the Mexican citizens in this country will work on jobs that even blacks don’t want. Ultimately, he apologized for making that statement, but Madam Speaker, he is still being by the stamps, even though the President of the United States of America, George Bush, has also condemned the stamps.

This resolution is aimed at getting the people of Mexico to demand that this kind of thing be stopped. Ancestors of Mexican blacks entered that country centuries ago through the Caribbean port city of...
Veracruz, and they were slave laborers. They worked in the sugar fields of Mexico. Today, the population of blacks living in Mexico is about 1 million; that is 1 million out of 105 million people. And so they have a small population of color. This character is presented as some stupid half-animal, half-human person out of the jungles, and it is very difficult for me to find this amusing in any way. It is this kind of cultural terrorism that has done damage to the psyche of little children of color for decades and decades. There is not a single parent who should feel good about their child growing up looking at this kind of image of themselves, because this damages their sense of worth.

Madam Speaker, there are five stamps in this series, and each one, if you look at them as they have been released, becomes progressively more insulting, until the last stamp has Memin standing in front of his mother. And so they have a small population of color. But I did not realize that it was insulting to some degree until the last stamp has Memin standing in front of his mother. And so they have a small population of color.

President Fox stated that the stamp is an image in a comic book, and he said that he has watched this character since infancy, and he said, and I quote, It is an image of what Mexico feels, or the pugnacious, racist and an insult to people everywhere, and we call on President Vicente Fox to recall the stamps immediately and to issue an apology to all people of African descent. The stamps are derogatory, the negative stereotype of people of Africa. Again, we call on President Fox to repudiate the issuance of these stamps and to announce his commitment to address the problem of racism, yes, even in Mexico.

Madam Speaker, growing up, I had to deal with this on a daily basis. Bug-eyed, big-lipped, half-human, half-chimpanzee hybrids were portrayed all around us, and there was nothing we could do except to be insulted. I was an insult to me to grow up having a teacher read Little Black Sambo. The only book with people who looked like me when I was growing up was Little Black Sambo, and the only thing he did was to eat a lot of pancakes. I hope people understand that they are hurting other human creatures. This should not take place in the 21st century.

As President Fox is justifying what has been done, I would like to remind him that, not long ago, in fact, it was in 1969, there was a Frito Bandito cartoon character that hit the airwaves here in the United States. And he was used to advertise some corn chips. But Frito Bandito was pulled off the air when Mexicans protested, when they came to the conclusion that this was an insult portraying all of them as some little Shady Mexican character who was actually Sambo. But the good news is that the Frito Lay corn chip company did pull the ad. And so there is at least a precedent for pulling back when people find out they are hurting other people.

Madam Speaker, my request again is for all the Members of this great body to join in being a sponsor of this resolution to help denounce something that is wrong, to show that all the people of this nation, black, white and brown, are united in their attempt to eliminate stereotypes. It would be a powerful, powerful move by this Congress if all of us joined forces to condemn this.

I am also pleased to say, Madam Speaker, that there are a number of Republicans who have also come in along with a number of Democrats and, as I have said earlier, the President of the United States has condemned this, the minority leader and the majority leader as well. If they consider something to be something that is degrading and demeaning, not just to people of color but to the people of the world.

Madam Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. PAYNE). Mr. PAYNE. Let me commend the gentleman, the Honorable Reverend Dr. Cleaver, for calling this very important special order tonight. He is a person that speaks the word of God, a man of the cloth, and deals with people who are anguished daily. They come before him to seek guidance and advice. I feel the same way as my colleague who has joined us recently in the United States Congress and is a tremendous addition to the leadership of this Black Caucus and, as I have said earlier, the President of Mexico feels, is just an all right thing to do.

Madam Speaker, I rise today with my fellow members of the Congressional Black Caucus to strongly condemn the racist stamps issued by the Mexican government, Memin Pinguin. Unfortunately, the myth is still perpetuated in Latin America that race is not an issue, that racism does not exist in the Latin American, Central and South American countries.

We have seen with the recent anti-discrimination moves of Afro descendents from countries such as Brazil, which has the largest population of people with African ancestry outside of Africa, many more than the United States of America; Colombia, where Afro descendents represent between 25 and 40 percent of that country's population; Honduras, Panama, and others, the issue of race has been deceptively misrepresented as a nonissue. In Latin America they say it is class, not race; however, we tend to see at the bottom of the economic strata people of African descent and primarily those at the top those who came from Europe and stole the land from the native Latin and South Americans and brought over slaves to help build the countries. Meanwhile, those of African descent in Latin America still find themselves stuck in the lower economic social strata, suffering from debilitating discrimination or disproportionately affected by conflict and strife; and, perhaps the worst of all, their very existence is unknown to the world and sometimes even to their own communities and, most importantly, they are often subjected to acts of terrorism.

Most people assume that there are few or no black Mexicans. This assumption is false. The region known as Costa Chica, southwest of Acapulco, is one of the two regions with a sizable black population. Veracruz, on the Gulf Coast, is another area where the black population of Mexico is significant. As a matter of fact, recently, a year or so ago, two prominent Mexicans wanted to be considered as Afro-Mexicans. The Afro-Mexican population is said to be about 1 million out of 105 million, but this is far from an accurate number because the census does not include a category on race; so people cannot even identify themselves as black even if they wanted to.

With the Mexican post office issuing the offensive stamp depicting a Mexican character with dark brown skin, exaggerated features, monkey-like body language, Mexican President Vicente Fox has once again shown his insensitivity to racial offenses and his lack of concern over perpetuating dangerous stereotypes of an entire people. This scandal comes right on the heels of Fox’s stance on Mexican immigrants in the United States who take jobs, as he said, even blacks will not take. We were all very offended. We were offended, and some of our religious leaders went and met with President Fox and said that we should try to have an understanding. And we as Members of the Congressional Black Caucus work daily in our congressional districts to ask our constituents to understand immigrant people coming to this country who have been here in waves and waves. Of course, African Americans were brought here in chains. We had no choice. However, other Americans came to Ellis Island, and the Irish came and the Germans came and the Italians came.

So we say this country is large enough for us and for people to continue to immigrate in that we should try to work on tensions between new people coming into the community, and this is why the Congressional Black Caucus has stood up and said that people have a right to have a better way of life. As a matter of fact, in a community outside of my congressional district in New Jersey, I have had some discussions with some Mexicans who have talked to me about the fact that they are being harassed when they wait in the mornings to be picked up for the work van that takes them to the work projects they are working on and that the local town officials are harassing them to say they cannot wait here for the van, and I said that I will try to assist them if they need it to try to get that community to understand that it is unfair to harass people like that.

And then I turn around and the president of Mexico says that he is not ashamed and that this is a proud character, that they love him in Mexico? This is outrageous. It should not be. We see that Memin, known by Mexicans as basically a silly, funny, and simple boy who is a prankster and a troublemaker, has been a popular comic book character for 60 years in Mexico. Those who see no offense in this character’s image have been fooled into thinking that is a representation of black people and that black people are dumb and amusing and that has no relationship to racial discrimination.

These are the same people who would desexualize a woman or a man, as we heard from the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. Cleaver), as simply cute and funny. As a matter of fact, as he was, I went to a school where I was one of two black children in the kindergarten. My brother experienced the same thing 2 years before I did, and the only book read was “Little Black Sambo.” I was offended. I felt ashamed. I felt there was something wrong with me. The teachers would read it in the kindergarten and in the first grade. It was about 60 years ago, the same time that this same character emerged in Mexico. And I thought there was something wrong with me. I thought, why was everyone laughing at us? And this character, Little Black Sambo, is exactly the same as this character here. And I told a representative that I met with last week, a week or so ago, when he came to meet with members of the Congressional Black Caucus that I was offended because it brought back those memories.

I heard of no other blacks in my time of coming up. The only other people of color that I saw up in the lower or fifth grade were the enslaved people that they called slaves who were shiftless and happy and had no initiative and no incentive and that Abraham Lincoln had to free them and white soldiers went to war to free them; but they never talked about Harriet Tubman and Crispus Attucks. They never talked about Frederick Douglass. They never talked about the 501 Brigade from Massachusetts that fought for the Union and were never mentioned. The only person that I heard about during my entire elementary school who was black was Little Black Sambo.

President Fox should know better. He himself has talked about the opportunities he had growing up that others did not have and the poverty that he saw others suffer from. He went on to study business at the Ibero-American University in Mexico City; got a diploma in an upper management course taught by two white business school professors; later became an executive of Coca-Cola, becoming the youngest president of the corporation’s Latin America division before he got into politics and went to their congress. This is not an uneducated man. This is a man who knows better, and I do not subscribe to the fact that he knows no better.

It is especially surprising that President Fox would fail to understand the offensive nature of the stereotype portrayed on these stamps in view of the outcry in the recent past over negative images of Hispanics. As we heard earlier, strong protests were voiced, and rightly so, over characters created by corporate advertisers, which the Hispanic community viewed as demeaning to their heritage.

In the 1960s there was an advertisement aired on television featuring a cartoon character called Chiquita Banana, who wore a hat filled with fruit and sang with a pronounced Spanish accent. This was considered by many to be offensive and portrayed an offensive portrayal of a Hispanic woman, and it was taken off.

In 1967 an ad created by Frito-Lay Corporation, as was mentioned earlier, portrayed a Mexican male cartoon character with a thick accent who wore a sombrero and who was called “Frito Bandito.” The Mexican-American Anti-Defamation League Committee called for the commercials to be pulled, condemning them as racist and accusing the company of portraying African Americans as “cute and funny.” As a result of this pressure, the ads were taken off the air in 1960, and even though they had been successful from a commercial point of view, they were taken off. And rightly so, because they were offensive to a whole group of people. Both of them were and both of them were taken off.

More recently, Taco Bell came under fire for their ads featuring a dog named Dinky. Some viewers were insulted by the idea of an animal scampering for food and speaking Spanish. Those ads have now been discontinued.

And let me emphasize that these were commercial entities; and although they were successful, they were taken off. These stamps are an official act of the Government of Mexico.

A few years ago, a very high official of Japan on two occasions made an inappropriate remark which offended African Americans. As was mentioned earlier, the Congressional Black Caucus protested, on both of those occasions, the Prime Minister of Japan apologized. They set up a committee. They came to the House Black Caucus. They implemented programs to enhance understanding between our two cultures. They started to have some financial agreements with some of their products because they said we need to understand each other better. So the Prime Minister of Japan apologized, and rightly so. And our neighbor to the south saying that he is not going to apologize is an insult, and President Fox is totally wrong. And I am often asked as I wave the flag of which I am a member, why would we do this? The answer is many of the other policies that we have in this country is going to stand up and tell 43 members of the Congressional Black Caucus that he is proud of this character, that he is a very popular character in his country, he refuses to apologize. That is wrong.

Let me just say, sort of in conclusion, that in his inaugural address,
Other Latin American countries are focusing on racial discrimination and trying to combat it. President Luiz Inacio da Silva in Brazil has set up a commission to start affirmative action in higher education. The government of Colombia has started to look at the racial discrimination of Afro-Colombians. And here we have a government who is saying ‘we are proud of what we are doing’ to affirm affirmative action.

In April 2005, and I want everyone to listen carefully, the Department of Homeland Security announced new regulations that require Americans returning home via air and sea from counsels in the Caribbean, Central and South America to have passports. Starting December 31, 2005, to get back into our country you will need a passport.

Most countries that you need passports to go to, you would have them when you go. Therefore, you have them when you come back. However, this new Homeland Security law says that by December 31, 2005, countries that require no passport before for Americans to go there, now Americans will have to have passports in order to get back into America.

However, however, Mexico got a pass. Mexico has until December 31, 2006, until this requirement goes into effect. So as a person who is very interested in the Caribbean, I cochair the Caribbean Caucus, I wanted to find out what impact this will have on some of those poor countries in the Caribbean who depend almost totally, now that the poor countries in the Caribbean who are saying ‘we are proud of what we are doing’ to affirm affirmative action.

So as a person who is very interested in the Caribbean, I cochair the Caribbean Caucus, I wanted to find out what impact this will have on some of those poor countries in the Caribbean who depend almost totally, now that the poor countries in the Caribbean who have a President who respects the citizens of the entire world. But, sadly, Madam Speaker, today is not that day.

Mr. CLEAVER. Madam Speaker, I would like to express appreciation to the gentleman from New Jersey for his very eloquent and passionate words concerning something that I am angry about.

Madam Speaker, I have grandsons who are growing up now in this country who do not want to be negatively impressed by these kinds of stereotypes. I do not want my children or my children’s children or anyone’s children to be subjected to this kind of insult. This is outrageous.

Madam Speaker, this is not just a one-time thing. For many people around the world it is a belief, and those of us who are sensitive and those of us who are impacted would like to erase this as a belief.

Some day, caricatures like this will not matter. We will have dealt finally with this boogeyman race. But this is not that day.

Some day, Little Black Sambo will not matter. We will look back and laugh at it. But today is not that day.

A recent appointee to the D.C. Circuit has said that using the ‘N’ word, even in a workplace when discrimination is also an issue, is protected speech. I think that is very dangerous.

Some day, some day, using the ‘N’ word will not matter. But today is not that day.

Some day, the president of Mexico will be outraged that something like this ever took place. But this is not that day.

Some day, a call for racial sensitivity in this body will not be needed. But today is not that day.

Some day, the country of Mexico will have a President who respects the citizens of the entire world. But, sadly, Madam Speaker, today is not that day.

Mr. CLEAVER. Madam Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE
By unanimous consent, leave of absence was granted to:

Mr. BECERRA (at the request of Ms. PELOSI) for today.

Ms. ESHOO (at the request of Ms. PELOSI) for today on account of travel delays.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas (at the request of Ms. PELOSI) for today on account of official business.

Ms. KILPATRICK of Michigan (at the request of Ms. PELOSI) for today.

President Fox mentioned his desire for a new, different, successful and triumphant Mexico. The issuing of Memin Pinguin does just the opposite and highlights the serious race issues that exist in Mexico today. The Congressional Black Caucus Working Group on Afro-Lатиноamerica will take a look at the issues facing Afro-Mexican communities, and we will call for a census in Mexico that includes a category on race so that people can properly identify themselves and so that the black community’s voice is no longer invisible. When one is invisible, they do not have to deal with them. So we would like to know what is the story in Mexico.

Mexico will benefit from an extra year. A family who may just find out late in the day, a month or weeks earlier, if they do not get back into the country, they will decide that they may go to Mexico because you do not need a passport coming back to the country from Mexico.

Why does Mexico get an extra year? American tourists who do realize they need to go to Mexico with a passport, will likely choose that country over Caribbean nations where they need a passport, those countries that I mentioned. The island nations were drastically hit hard by Hurricane Ivan last year and last week Hurricane Dennis wreaked havoc in the Caribbean. If any country needs the tourism dollars right now, the Caribbean nations most certainly do.

As a person who is very interested in the Caribbean, I will personally request that Homeland Security equalize the passport requirement so that Caribbean nations will be on the same level playing field with Mexico. If Mexico gets until December 31, 2006, a year-and-a-half from now, I am going to request that, if the Caribbean countries get the same December 31, 2006; or if Homeland Security feels that they must remain at December of 2005, then they should make Mexico also have the same requirements in December 31, 2005, then poor Caribbean countries have.

I know one thing: If these are the stamps on letters that people are going to send from Cancun, African Americans sending a postcard back to Norton, New Jersey, where I live, saying “having a great time,” and this is the stamp, this is going to cause havoc in our Post Office. That is going to cause havoc.

I think that until the president of Mexico understands the damage that he is doing, then perhaps the Caribbean has always been a great place for me, and maybe that is where we need to spend our dollar, where African Americans are not taken for as a joke. Evidently a dollar in Mexico spent by an African American is not the same as a dollar from anyone else. If this stamp goes out, then our dollars should stay in our pockets.

Who does he think he is, saying that this makes him proud? I will spend not another dollar down there until these things are removed.

So my demand is that the president of Mexico voids these stamps before they are issued and do not allow a single one to be printed. If they are already printed, they should not to be distributed, and they should be destroyed. We should not see one single stamp go anywhere in Mexico, or, even worse, have it find its way here to the United States.

Once again, let me thank the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. CLEAVER) for bringing this issue to the front, as has the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON), who called a meeting several weeks ago, and the Congressional Black Caucus in general. I know that we will keep the pressure on. If the government of Mexico feels that there is respect for African Americans, like I said, then I think we need to look at where the dollar is being spent, and I think we need to look at a level playing field so that Caribbean countries will be able to have the same kind of passport requirement. If they do not see where they deserve any special treatment so far as I am concerned.

Mr. CLEAVER. Madam Speaker, I would like to express appreciation to the gentleman from New Jersey for his very eloquent and passionate words concerning something that I am angry about.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Dr. Barry C. Black, offered the following prayer:

Let us pray.

Eternal Spirit, healer of the wounds of sorrow, we pray today for those who mourn. Bless and sustain those in Great Britain, who recover from the insanity of senseless violence. Give the sunshine of hope to all who have endured the night of losing a loved one. Comfort military families who know the pain of the sound of silence and the empty chair.

Bring solace to those who weep because of lost opportunities and seasons of despair. Transform their sorrow into song, their darkness into light, and their sadness into joy.

Today, use our Senators to begin the process of creating a world where peace will reign. Hasten the day when tears will be no more, and the kingdoms of this world will become Your kingdom, as You rule forever and ever. We pray this in Your sovereign Name. Amen.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The President pro tempore led the Pledge of Allegiance, as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

RESERVATION OF LEADER TIME

The President pro tempore. Under the previous order, the leadership time is reserved.

MORNING BUSINESS

The President pro tempore. Under the previous order, there will be a period for the transaction of morning business until 2 p.m., with Senators permitted to speak therein for up to 10 minutes each.

RECOGNITION OF THE ACTING MAJORITY LEADER

The President pro tempore. The acting majority leader is recognized.

SCHEDULE

Mr. McConnell. Mr. President, today we will begin consideration of the Homeland Security appropriations bill. We have an agreement that all first-degree amendments to that bill will be filed by 4 p.m. this afternoon. That will allow both managers of the legislation to get a better understanding of how many issues and amendments are expected in relation to the Homeland Security measure.

As the majority leader announced prior to the recess, there will be a roll-call vote this afternoon at approximately 5:30. That vote is expected to be in relation to a resolution regarding the recent bombing in London.

We will have a busy stretch of activity over the next 3 weeks with many pressing legislative and executive items that must be completed prior to the August recess. I encourage Senators to make themselves available on the floor as the majority leader will be using all available time to make progress on appropriations bills and other priorities.

I will have a statement in a few moments, but I yield the floor so the Democratic leader can make whatever observations he would like to make.

RECOGNITION OF THE MINORITY LEADER

The President pro tempore. The Democratic leader is recognized.

PRESSING ISSUES

Mr. Reid. Mr. President, I express my appreciation to the distinguished majority whip, the assistant leader. I acknowledge we have a lot of work to do during this work period. I hope we can accomplish a great deal. We had a great couple of weeks right before we left. I hope the week off, the Fourth of July, was good for everyone. I know it was for me to get away from Washington and breathe some of that good desert air.

Sandra Day O’Connor retired just over a week ago. As the first woman to serve as a Supreme Court Justice, she blazed a trail which I hope many will follow. She decided cases the old-fashioned way, based on law, not politics.

As a westerner, she brought to the Court a love of the land and an appreciation for individual rights. I salute the people of Arizona for giving us such a dedicated public servant, someone who served in the State of Arizona as a State legislator, a member of an intermediate court of appeals and, of course, an inspiring career as a Supreme Court Justice.

Now we have begun the process of finding her replacement. The Constitution gives the President and the Senate shared responsibility to fill this vacancy because a President may only act with the advice and consent of the Senate. I appreciate very much President Bush beginning this process of consultation the way he has. I will always be grateful for the private meeting he and I had prior to her retiring and the phone call he placed to me the day of her retirement.

It speaks volumes that his chief of staff, Andy Card, was calling various members of the Senate from Scotland. Harriet Myers called various members of the Senate. That is important. I appreciate it very much. In the days and weeks ahead, it is important that meaningful consultation continues. Together we can find someone who will bring the country together.
The President has asked the majority leader, the ranking member and the chairman of the Judiciary Committee meet with him early tomorrow morning. I look forward to that meeting.

This is what President Reagan did when he nominated Sandra Day O’Connor: He brought the country together. Both parties cheered her nomination. That can happen again if President Bush nominates us a Justice we can all be proud of, a mainstream Justice committed to protecting the rights of all Americans. We have large numbers of conservative jurists and lawyers who fit that description perfectly.

Events in London last Thursday reminded us that the freedoms and rights Supreme Court Justices protect are a threat to those with a very different view of the world. My heart and my prayers go out to the victims of the London attacks and the people of Great Britain. The bombings were the acts of cowards. We must redouble our effort to track the murderous thugs who committed those terrible acts. We must continue our effort to track down the murderous thugs who would do us harm.

I have great affection and admiration for the people of Great Britain. Their proud tradition of resiliency and determination was on display last week in the face of this latest attack on their people and the great city of London.

Unfortunately, the British people have considerable experience with attacks of terrorists on their homeland, including repeated terrorist attacks from supporters of the Irish Republican Army. There are important lessons that can be drawn from the British response to these attacks. First, Britain remains determined not to change its way of life and its principles while at the same time vigorously pursuing those responsible for the criminal acts.

It is important to note the people of Great Britain did not go about the work of those people, just as we do. I have been to that wonderful emerald isle. I love the country. I love the island. The fact that a few people perpetrated those acts of violence does not take away from our admiration for those people.

The same applies in Britain with the acts of Islamic terrorists. That does not take away from the fact that the people who follow the Islamic religion are good people who follow a very important religion. The morality code of that religion is significantly important. They are good people. I have gotten so close to them.

My wife’s two physicians, a surgeon and an internist, are Pakistanis. They are among our closest friends. We visit each other’s homes often. We celebrate different holidays together. We exchange presents. They are wonderful people. These are two devoutly religious men whose religion we have learned to respect greatly. The people of Great Britain understand that. They did not sever relations with an entire people because of the actions of a very few who are part of that people.

There was great concern in the wake of these attacks about a backlash against the Arab community. What we saw was just the opposite: a couple of broken windows by a few troublemakers, but basically nothing. The people of Great Britain have come together. They are not afraid of all walks of life, all religions. That is an example for us. I am hopeful Great Britain and we in the United States will continue to heed both of these lessons in the wake of last week’s bombings.

As the distinguished assistant leader mentioned, there is a third lesson we can draw from the London attacks and it is relevant to matters in the Senate. I say what my distinguished colleague mentioned, the senior Senator from Kentucky. We are going to take up the Homeland Security bill. The lesson we need to learn is simple: Fighting terrorism overseas is not enough to ensure that terrorists will not strike where we are most vulnerable begins consideration of the Homeland Security appropriations bill. That will occur in less than an hour. We spend more in Iraq in a single month than we spend on first responders all year. Failure in Iraq is not an option, and we will continue to support our troops, but we must do more to support the war on terror here at home.

The minority, the Democrats, are committed to doing everything possible to keep us safe. Unfortunately, the administration has never grasped this reality. We have offered amendment after amendment and they have been defeated on party line votes.

We supported establishment of the Homeland Security Department before September 11. And as we recall, this administration established the Homeland Security Department even after September 11. Once the administration realized and a homeland security agency was established, Democrats repeatedly sought to ensure that this agency received the resources it needed to make Americans and America more secure. Democrats sought to beef up our security on rail and transit systems, our chemical plants, our nuclear power generating facilities, and this administration and the Republican Senators in this Senate blinked and backtracked.

Democrats sought to increase security on chemical and nuclear facilities, as I have indicated, and other critical infrastructure. It was no accident. Democrats attempted to improve security at this Nation’s ports and the Bush administration, Republicans, said no. Finally, we sought to ensure that this Nation’s first responders obtain the resources they need to deter terrorists from attacking, and again Republicans said no.

The bill before the Senate presents another opportunity for all Members. We will have amendments to address each of these areas this week. I am hopeful, with everything we know, the majority will at long last agree with Democrats that we should be doing much more to protect the Nation from terrorist attacks at home.

LONDON TERRORIST ATTACKS

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, let me close with a few words about our Nation’s veterans. After months of denial—in fact, more than a year—that a problem even existed, Senate Republicans late last month agreed with Democrats—reluctantly—that our veterans were not getting the care and resources they earned and deserved. Remember, we brought this up before committee on at least two occasions, as well as on the Senate floor, and every time it was voted down by a strict party line vote and we did not get the veterans what they wanted.

With great fanfare, Senate Republicans announced they were wrong for opposing Democratic efforts to provide additional efforts to the veterans health care system and would not support providing an additional $1.5 billion.

We appeared to be on the road to getting something done for our veterans. Unfortunately, rather than quickly passing the Senate figure and ensuring our veterans immediately got the resources they need, House Republicans decided to play games and give our veterans significantly less in the process, more than half a billion.

Unfortunately, that is what the Republicans in the House did, rather than standing up for a vote they had cast a day or so earlier, Senate Republicans blinked and backtracked. Senate Republicans objected to a unanimous consent request to make the House-passed bill consistent with the level they had supported just a few hours earlier.

Our first amendment, then, on this bill will be to give the Senate majority another opportunity to show our veterans and the American public where they stand. We will offer an amendment to give the veterans an additional $1.5 billion. Probably that is not enough because from some of the statistics we hear it is now closer to $2 billion. But what if we are wrong? What if we are giving the veterans a little more? Is there anything wrong with that? I do not think we are giving them a little more. We are giving them less. But would there be anything wrong with that? I hope the resounding answer is no.

So I hope that the majority will join us in supporting this amendment. And, just as importantly, let’s not play politics with America’s veterans.

I again thank my friend, the distinguished Senator from Kentucky, for allowing me to speak now because he did have the floor.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Kentucky. to the victims and their families after last Thursday's depraved and savage terrorist attacks in London. I also rise to pledge my, and I am sure the entire U.S. Senate's, steadfast support for the people of London and the United Kingdom as they stand resolute—as they always have—in the face of terror.

On July 7 of last week, bombs exploded in three subway trains of the London Underground. A fourth ripped open a city bus. At least 52 are dead, and hundreds are wounded.

Just a note, I have a daughter living in the London area. Just a month ago, I put her on the subway right near where one of the bombs went off. So I was among the many Americans who were frantically interested in getting word on our own relatives after the attacks, which is another indication of just how closely tied the United States and the United Kingdom are.

These killers, whoever they are, have an utterly disregard for human life. They indiscriminately kill innocent people. The explosions were timed to go off during the morning rush hour, to kill the maximum number of people.

But we should not be surprised by the barbarity of July 7. We have seen it before. On September 11, 2001, the same impulse of evil that touched London stretched over the ocean to the United States and murdered 3,000 of our own.

Ever since the terrorist attacks of September 11, America has waged a global war on terror. We resolved that day to pursue the terrorists and bring them to justice before they could strike American soil again. This latest attack has changed nothing. We are still defiant in the face of terror. We are still committed to following terror wherever it may go, waging war on terror in the face of terrorism.

The United Kingdom has been a strong and steadfast ally throughout the war on terror. Her resolve is only strengthened by this latest attack. Our British cousins will fight the terrorists with the same heroic mettle their forefathers used to face down Hitler during World War II. Sixty years ago, Americans tuned their radios to hear of British courage during the German bombing of London. Today, we see that same British courage on television. Many Londoners returned to ride the Underground and bus the very next day, undeterred by the terrorists.

Prime Minister Tony Blair has led his country magnificently in the war on terror. He follows in the footsteps of previous Prime Ministers who have steered their country's ship in times of challenge: Margaret Thatcher and Winston Churchill. I have no doubt Prime Minister Blair will respond to these attacks with the same courage and resolve as his predecessors, and he obviously has all of our full and unqualified support.

America and Great Britain united will never yield to the terrorists. We will defeat them, and at the same time, we will spread justice and liberty to combat their call to oppression and death. Our cause, which speaks to the noblest parts of the human soul, will win, just as it has throughout our shared and glorious history.

May God bless America and the United Kingdom.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Iowa is recognized.

TRIBUTE TO ALLY MILDEN

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, just 2 weeks ago a former staffer and long-time friend, Ally Milder, and a business associate of hers came to spend the weekend at the Grasley farm in New Hartford, IA. I tried to get Ally to step out of her fancy shoes for a couple of days and learn a little about farming. I never did persuade her to feed pigs, but we had a lot of laughs.

Today I stand before the Senate with great sadness because Ally Milder—my former chief counsel and a good friend to Barbara and me—died suddenly last Thursday at the age of 50. Ally is gone suddenly and too young. I extend my deep sympathy to her parents, brothers, and sisters Julie and Kelly, and pay tribute to Ally Milder with much regard.

I met Ally in 1981. She was one of my first counsels on the Senate Judiciary Committee. I was a freshman Senator. She was fresh out of law school and stayed on my staff until 1987, becoming chief counsel during that time. Ally and I shared a great interest in religious freedom. Her leadership helped me to be very active in Soviet Jewry issues as a Senator, including a 1983 trip to the Soviet Union where we met with Russian Jews, the refuseniks, in Moscow. Ally was instrumental in forming the InterParliamentary Group for Human Rights in the Soviet Union, an important weapon in the fight against abuses and for freedom for Soviet Jews. Her tremendous enthusiasm and commitment to this important cause was also proved when she staffed passage of legislation to change the address of the Soviet Embassy in Washington to One Sakharov Plaza. We had to fight the State Department and all kinds of other powerful interests to prevent and provide the daily reminder that America would not overlook the plight of the Jews. Ally personally made a difference in the course of history with her work in this area of human rights.

Ally worked on many issues during those years, including the nomination of Justice Sandra Day O'Connor to the Supreme Court and extension of the Voting Rights Act. Under her leadership of my Judiciary staff, the False Claims Act was passed and signed into law. This landmark legislation updated a Civil War-era law to empower individuals to sue wrongdoers to fight fraud against the taxpayers. In the nearly two decades this law has been on the books, it has returned more than $12 billion to the U.S. Treasury that would otherwise have been lost to fraud. In addition, Ally oversaw renewal of Chapter 12 of the Federal Bankruptcy Code, which was a lifeline for family farmers needing to reorganize debt and stay in farming during the terrible farm crisis of the 1980s.

Whatever she was working on, Ally brought energy, a let's-make-it-happen attitude, and characteristic good nature to the task. Her skill and style made her a respected and well-liked colleague on the staff.

Ally left Washington to return home and run for Congress herself, making two good attempts for the Second District seat in Nebraska. I campaigned with her several times. She was tireless about reaching the voters, and we spent one of those days going to all the small towns and rural areas in the district. From what I know about Ally Milder, both before and after she ran for the House of Representatives, I am convinced she would have made a very good Congresswoman. Ally went on to serve on the State board of education starting in 1992, and launched a successful consulting and lobbying practice.

Ally always kept in close touch, and she loved politics. I appreciate the support she gave me. She was generous and shared her commitment to making things better in a lot of ways, including mentoring economically disadvantaged young people.

It is hard to believe that Ally won't be walking around the corner somewhere, sometime next week, with her big smile and warm embrace. Knowing Ally, she might want us to take comfort today in an old Jewish saying that "the only truly dead are those who have been forgotten.” There is no doubt that Ally Milder will be remembered. She was full of life, bright, hard-working, and someone focused on the good things in life and making life good for those around her. She will be greatly missed.

Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The clerk will call the roll. The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. Voinovich). Without objection, it is so ordered.

their cause is or what their presumed cause may be.

Of course, we were, unfortunately, focused on this fact by 9/11, but maybe over the last 2 or 3 years the success of our Nation in resisting attacks has caused a touch of complacency in this area. However, London has to clearly remind us that complacency cannot be tolerated when it comes to fighting these people who call themselves Islamic fundamentalists and who are essentially killers, terrorists, murderers without any moral creed or cause, and whose actions are totally unjustified in any form of civilized society.

The Department of Homeland Security was set up in the post-9/11 world in order to try as a nation to get our arms around the issue of how we can best protect us in the United States of America. It was set up in the context of other agencies that have responsibility for other areas of protecting us relative to terrorism.

Of course, we have our Defense Department which is, through its extraordinary men and women, pursuing the fight against terrorism in Afghanistan and in Iraq. We also have agencies, such as the Central Intelligence Agency, the FBI, and Justice Department, that are committed to making sure they obtain the intelligence necessary to protect us. But within this umbrella of agencies which are trying to pursue this war on terrorism, there is included, apparently, the Department of Homeland Security.

The Department of Homeland Security was put together as an amalgamation of different agencies. I think there were 22 initially that were thrown together. Some of those agencies, when they were put into the Department of Homeland Security, were already functioning extraordinarily well and had a track record of success. Some of the other agencies had a spotty track record, so some of the agencies did not have a very good track record at all. But they were brought together for the purposes of trying to involve a coordinated effort in the area of fighting terrorism.

I believe we have to recognize, as we pursue this fight on terrorism, that the people we are fighting are driven by a philosophy which we as a rational society, especially as a Western society, find hard to fathom. The concept that you would want to see an innocent civilization simplify for the purpose of making a point is something which we find repugnant and almost incomprehensible. But that is the nature of the people we fight. We have to understand their purpose is not necessarily to win a global war in the sense it has historically been perceived, such as World War I or World War II, or even the Cold War. Their purpose essentially is to assert their culture in a way that destroys any culture which they perceive as alien to it, to assert a region in a way in which they perceive destroys any religion which they see as alien to it, or any group of states which they see as alien to it.

They are willing to pursue this with fanaticism which allows them to develop individuals and attitudes where people will strap bombs to themselves and attack us or where they attack innocent individuals, as they did in London. That is a threat of immense proportion, and it is a threat which we have to pursue in a different way than we have pursued other threats that have confronted our Nation.

We all understand this, but executing it has become difficult. I believe we have not yet grasped as a nation how we execute in defending ourselves from this type of threat. What we know is this, and our approach must be tempered by it: We know we can order the priority of the threats as they reflect relative to us. We know, for example, if these individuals get their hands on a weapon of mass destruction—chemical, biological or, God forbid, a nuclear-capable weapon—that they will use that weapon. They will use it in a way which kills tens of thousands, essentially hundreds of thousands of innocent individuals. So we know that is the No. 1 threat now.

We know also that as a nation, because we are a democracy and because we are an open nation and because we seek to participate in the world in an open and vibrant way, our borders are porous and that access into this country is easy, and that represents, regrettably now, a threat to us.

We know also that because we are such an open society and because we are a society, and the concept of individual responsibility and people being able to go out in the world and participate in activities, that we have innumerable areas of infrastructure, areas of individual participation and activity which are open to attack, such as occurred in London. And that is an issue of threat.

What we have attempted to do in this bill is take the resources we have and focus them on a threat-based approach so that we have the most resources on the area where we see the greatest threat. The way we structured this bill is that we are focusing most of the energy of this bill, most of dollars in this bill, in two primary areas, as far as new dollars are concerned. We are still spending a lot of dollars in a lot of different places, but the new initiatives in this bill are focused on trying to better get a handle on defending ourselves from an attack by a weapon of mass destruction as well as making our borders, which are inordinately porous, less porous and having better accountability as to who is coming into this country and what their purposes are.

The movement of money in this bill to try to accomplish those two basic philosophical goals of addressing those two items of threat. That does not mean we underfunded anything in this bill that was already on the board. But it does mean we tried to focus this bill a little bit better.

Within this legislation there are a lot of different agencies. As I mentioned earlier, some of them are functioning extraordinarily well, some are functioning in between, and some simply are not doing as good a job as we hoped they could do. Regrettably, this agency, even though it has only been in existence for 2 years, has produced reports written about it by either the inspector general, the CRS, or the GAO. I brought them with me because I think they are so staggering in their proportions it is worth looking at in physical proportions the number of reports. There are three piles. If we take one pile, which I probably cannot pick up, and put it on top of another pile—it will all fall over, unfortunately—we end up with almost 3 feet 9 inches of reports about things not going that well at the Homeland Security Department. Each one of these reports is substantive. Each one of these reports is worth review and requires action. They reflect the fact that almost 3 years after this Department was put together, the Department has some very serious problems, and they need to be addressed.

I congratulate the new Secretary, Mr. Chertoff, for his approach to trying to get a handle on some of these problems. He is going to report to us Wednesday or Thursday on what his second stage review is. He put a lot of time into this, but I think his approach will probably be based on the concept that we have to have, first, a policy-driven approach and, second, it has to be systemwide. Today, there is too much anecdotal reaction in the Department, there is too much haphazard reaction, there is too much reaction to the crisis of the day. I think his approach is going to be to put in place a much more systematized approach. But that is not going to immediately solve the problem. Hopefully, it will begin the process of resolving the problems of this Department, which are many and acute.

This bill does put in place a large number of what, for lack of a better word, we in the Congress call fences, where we essentially say to the Department: Before you get this money, you have to show us you are going to do this effectively. It is not something I like to do. I am a legislator; I am not a manager. I used to be a manager, I used to be a Governor of a State. That is a management position. But when a department has as many functions as this Department and it is not functioning correctly, regrettably, I do think it is the responsibility of the Congress and especially the Appropriations Committee, which has a unique oversight role, to step in and say before we give you more money to do this, we want to make sure that money is not going to be wasted, mismanaged, misplaced, or misappropriated, so we are going to require you to do something else. So this bill has in it a lot of what I would call fences as well.

The purpose of the bill, as I mentioned, is to fund more aggressively those areas which we see as threats.
Obviously, after London, many people are going to feel that a threat which needs to receive more attention is the question of how we handle mass transit. I could not agree more. There is no question but in light of the London attack, the comments before this with the Madrid attack and before that with the Israeli situation—this is a clear area where terrorists, who have no regard for human life, tend to focus their heinous activity. We know mass transit is an issue, but the question becomes how do we best protect mass transit.

We have put in this bill over the last few years literally tens of millions, now hundreds of millions of dollars which is available for upgrading security, for upgrading electronic surveillance, for upgrading bomb dog activity, for upgrading the number of police officers on mass transit. There is pending, in fact, within the Federal Treasury about $115 million to $150 million that has not been spent. There has been so much money put into this so quickly, it simply has not been spent, and it is still available.

On top of that, there is the $7 billion which we have put into first responder monies which want to create some of that toward mass transit protection, they can. That has not been spent. So there is a lot of money sitting there for the purpose of helping mass transit.

If you talk with people who run mass transit, they say it is not enough. But as a practical matter, it has not been spent yet. So whether it is enough is clearly irrelevant because until it gets spent, it is clearly enough.

Independent of that, however—the fact that there is still significant dollars in the stream of things—we have the issue of how to effectively defend mass transit. We all know mass transit is such a huge enterprise where millions a day have to move there. This is if millions if you take all the transit systems in this country—are moving in and out of different transit modes, whether it is trains, buses, or ferries, and are moving in and out of these on a constantly changing basis. The opportunities to attack this type of a system are almost endless.

A professional terrorist—and clearly these people are professional. They train for the purpose of killing people, using large doses of explosives. The professional terrorist is always almost always going to be able to find, in a nation our size, with a transportation system of this size, going to be able to find a point of attack that is not secure unless—I doubt that we could spend anywhere near enough money. We have enough money to spend to fully secure mass transit, and if we did we would probably make mass transit nonfunctional.

Yes, we can raise the visibility by putting more officers on trains, more bomb dogs and surveillance agents, and we should do that, but as a practical matter the way you protect your mass transit system is the same way you protect your other infrastructure systems. It is through aggressive and robust intelligence. You have to know who these people are before they attack you. That is the key to this exercise—your capability. And there is some irony because to accomplish robust intelligence capability you have to go where the people come from. Where do they come from? They come from the Middle East. We are fighting them in the Middle East. Yet you have people who are concerned about this want to put dramatically new dollars into the mass transit system.

Well, the best place to get intelligence, quite honestly, is the breeding ground of these terrorists: Iraq, Afghanistan. And so that war in Iraq and Afghanistan is, as the President has pointed out a number of times, taking the war to them to find them before they can find us. Then, once you capture the people, you have to get the intelligence. This is why Guantanamo Bay is such an important part of intelligence of our country and why people come down to the floor and compare it to a Nazi concentration camp is such a gross misstatement of fact. The facts have done their work there. It is totally irresponsible to make statements such as that. No one has ever lost their life at Guantanamo Bay, and the interrogations which occur there occur under strict regimes. They are constantly monitored and have to know what they are doing, and meet all the necessary responsibilities of legal and humane rights.

But we get vast amounts of information as a result of moving very bad people from the Iraq and Afghanistan arena over to Guantanamo Bay. We get a vast amount of information from those individuals which gives us the intelligence we need.

Then, of course, you have the issue of profiling. Clearly, if you are going to stop these people, you are going to have to profile. That is being resisted. And then, of course, you have the issue of the PATRIOT Act. Clearly, if you are going to stop these people, you have to know what they are doing, and the way to do it is through electronic interdiction of their activities to a large degree. Yet you have people resisting.

Intelligence is the key to defending mass transit. Yet within this body, reconstruction efforts give a very strong indication to those elements of our efforts which are necessary in order to effectively pursue strong intelligence. But that is not an issue for this bill. The homeland security intelligence role is not at the margin, but it is certainly not at the center of the effort to gather intelligence. That is done by other agencies—the Defense Department, CIA, and FBI. However, I certainly am willing to entertain moving more money into mass transit. We could probably do another $100 million which would not affect this bill substantially. But once you get beyond that, you are going to have to take it out of the deficit or someplace like that. But will you buy more security with those dollars? Not a great deal. I don’t think, because the people you are dealing with know how to get around those types of security initiatives however well you may create a better sense of security.

We will suspect, over the next few days come under amendment in the area of how better to protect our borders. Maybe we will get better border security. The other part of the equation is how you leverage people in this country, who legitimately want to come to work and are not seeking to do us harm but seeking to improve their livelihood. The Guest Worker Program, maybe we will get into that program, and certainly how best to address mass transit protection in light of London. I am open to all of that. I am flexible. Our purpose here is to make this agency work better.

In that context, I congratulate the Senator from West Virginia, my rank and file member, who has been a partner in putting this effort together. He is totally committed to trying to make sure we have a much safer country and a stronger Department of Homeland Security. He has been a partner in putting forward his ideas, many of which I totally agree with, some of which I may not agree with, but most of which I do agree with. I respect immensely his years of service to this Nation, the work he has done, and his service, which is exceptional. I thank him and his staff for the generous and extraordinary way they approach everything, but especially this bill. As we move forward, I am sure he will have some additional ideas of how we can improve it on the floor, and I look forward to hearing those thoughts and ideas and I continue to look forward as we move this bill down the road to passage sooner rather than later because the Nation does need a Homeland Security bill.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from West Virginia?

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I have listened intently to the remarks of the very distinguished Senator as the chairman of this appropriations subcommittee, and I have been very impressed by his remarks. But prior to that, over a long period of time I have been increasingly impressed by the dedication of the service of the people he represents here and his dedication to the Nation. He is an extremely able chairman. He has experience in the executive field, as he has alluded to, and he has experience in the committee system. He is preeminently fair in his work on the subcommittee, very fair, always willing to listen, and most charitable, may I say, toward me.

I am the ranking member on the subcommittee, and on the full committee. But I should never wish for anything to be more fair, more knowledgeable, or any one whom I would respect more than this man from the mountains of his great State, and I have a tremendous admiration for him and a great deal of fondness for him. He is a chairman sui generis and a gentleman along with it. I like that part, too, especially.

Now, Mr. President, the distinguished chairman of the subcommittee has outlined the threat, and he has done so very well. I can't tell you how much I have admired the way he has striven to put together this bill and utilized the limited amount of moneys that are given to us and do it in a way that will reach those areas that are in most need of funding. I am immensely pleased with the work he has done. His work is the foremost work, of course. As the ranking member, I try to help. I do have a very able staff that works with the staff of the distinguished chairman, and it is through this staff that I am able to keep abreast of things and also to make my feelings known as well.

Mr. President, the Senate, then, has before it the fiscal year 2006 Homeland Security appropriations. I cannot commend too much the distinguished chairman, as I have already indicated, and his staff, for their work on this legislation. I also commend the thousands of men and women who work on the front lines of America's homeland security. They serve the Nation every hour of every day.

I welcome Chairman Gregg to his new duties as chairman of the Homeland Security Committee. I am grateful to him, needless to say, very well prepared. He has a wealth of experience, a wealth of expertise. The chairman targets limited resources—and I emphasize the word "limited"—on future threats, not simply the threats posed by the attacks of September 11. For the most part, the chairman has attempted to allocate resources to those threats that represent the greatest risk to the American people. In doing so he has, with my support, included a number of improvements to the President's budget particularly with regard to border security, air cargo security, funds for States to implement the driver's license provisions of the REAL ID Act, as well as funding to protect the "all-hazards" Emergency Management Performance Grant Program.

The committee bill builds on the bipartisan border security initiative that I offered along with Senator Craig to the 2005 emergency supplemental. Between the emergency supplemental enacted in May and this bill Congress will have increased the number of Border Patrol agents by 1,500, provided funds to train and house these agents, increased the number of immigration investigators, the number of agents and detention officers by 817, and increased the number of detention beds by 4,190.

The chairman has to be commended for this, and I am profuse in my admiration and my support for what he has done.

In addition, the bill contains an important protection for the privacy rights of Americans. We need always to keep these rights in mind. I thank Chairman Gregg for his support of language that I recommended concerning secure flight, the Department's proposed new airline passenger profiling system. The language would prohibit the use of commercial databases for confirming the identity of airline passengers. Such commercial databases are unreliable and potentially invade people's privacy.

The bill before the Senate provides $30.8 billion for discretionary programs, an increase of 4.6 percent. This is a very lean bill. The committee was put in a difficult position as a result of the administration's proposal to have the Appropriations Committee increase the fees paid by airline passengers, a proposal that would have raised $1.68 billion. The Appropriations Committee does not have jurisdiction over airline fees and therefore could not approve the proposal. As a result, the committee was forced to reduce spending below the President's request by $389 million.

So the low subcommittee allocation and the Senate needs protection in cuts in firefighter grants, first responder grants, rail and mass transit security grants, Coast Guard operations, and in the number of Transportation Security Administration screeners. These cuts are very unfortunate with regard to the administration's apparent lack of understanding of the legislative process. The administration's apparent lack of understanding of the legislative process will have such a direct impact on programs that are so important, that are important elements of our homeland security strategy.

As the Senate considers this bill, I hope the Senators will look favorably on amendments to restore the cuts in firefighter grants, first responder grants, and mass transit and rail security grants. The utterly tragic events in London last week remind all of us of the imminent threat—the imminent threat, may I say—to the American people that is posed by terrorist attacks here at home. We have heard it said it is better to fight these terrorists in Iraq than it is to fight them in New York City or in Washington. Of course that is true. Nobody doubts that. But don't let anybody be fooled. Don't let anybody be fooled. Fighting them in Iraq is not going to make us secure from having to fight them here at home in Washington, New York, Tampa, FL—wherever. Don't fall for that malarkey. What we need to do is figure out what is all about. But it has happened in London. It happened before that in Madrid, and before that in Japan, and it can happen here. No amount of argument, debate, or plain old fact can change anyone's mind that it can't happen here. In my judgment, it will. It is coming. These people take their time. They are patient. They are not in a big hurry. And it is coming here. It is coming here. It is coming here. The American people know what that is all about. I think they know that it can't happen here. In my judgment, it will. It is coming. These people take their time. They are patient. They are not in a big hurry. And it is coming here. It is coming here. It is coming here. The American people know what that is all about. I think they know when and where and how the attack will be made. We do not. So they have the advantages. were 181 terrorist attacks on rail systems could have used to prepare for or to prevent a future attack.

Time and time again, the administration has talked a good game on homeland security. I, man, I will tell you, you just don't know in the game they talk and you feel. I can asleep better tonight. I will go home now. I will watch the information about who is ahead in this game or that game—I will just forget about all this other stuff.” But it has not felt that through. The administration has not followed through on promises, sustained commitment of resources and ideas. So I fear the administration believes that it fulfills its commitment to securing the homeland by creating the Department of Homeland Security.

I voted against that, to start with, because I foresaw this. I don’t claim to have great powers along these lines. But with all my experience—and I have had some, I have been around here quite a while, longer than anybody else on this body. Anybody sitting in the gallery, anybody out there in the offices, anybody downtown, or anybody else, I have been around here longer in this Government, yes, indeed. So much, for that. But that is some experience. I had time to see some things and to lament some things. And I have been critical of both parties, both administrations, Democratic and Republican, over the years. So I think I have some basis for saying the things I am saying.

Mr. President, America is not made land security efforts have come from—where? Guess where. From Congress, the people’s branch.

In December of 2004, Congress authorized the hiring of 2,000 new Border Patrol agents per year for 5 years; the hiring of 2,000 Immigration and Customs Enforcement investigators per year for 5 years to enforce our immigration laws, and the funding of 8,000 new detention beds for the holding of illegal aliens. But despite statements by Secretary of State Rice and statements by former Homeland Security Deputy Secretary Lay that al-Qaida is a threat on our porous borders, there was virtually nothing in the President’s budget to provide these additional resources for border security—vastly nothing.

The bill that is before the Senate today commits real resources to securing our border with regard to transit and rail security.

When terrorists blew up trains last year in Madrid, Spain, the administration had no plan for securing transit and rail systems. The horrific bombings last week in London have raised the same questions that we raised last year. Could it happen here? Could it happen here?

Remember Robert Bruce? He was lying up there in the loft of that barn and he had lost six times. He was about to give up until he saw that spider try to swing his web from this corner to that corner. He watched it six times and it failed. On the seventh time, lo and behold, that spider made it. So Robert Bruce decided he would try it one more time; seven times he tried it, he made it.

That number reminds me of that number seven again. Jacob liked Rachel and he spoke to the old man—I refer to her father as the old man—about that beautiful daughter, The old man decided he would drive a bargain. he says, I love you, but you must work 7 years for her. So Jacob worked 7 years. At the end of the seventh year he went to say to the prospective father-in-law. How about it? Now I have worked my 7 years, I have carried out the bargain, how about this nice girl you have? I have come to get her.

The old man said, No, not yet. You work 7 more. I will give you Leah, Rachel’s sister. You can’t have Rachel. The Bible says that Leah was weak eyed. So all to his disgust, consternation, and sorrow, old Jacob had to work 7 more years for Rachel.

Here we are talking about seven times. Since 2001 I have offered seven different amendments to fund rail and transit security and all seven, all of them, were opposed by the administration and defeated. Despite opposition from the administration, it was the Congress that created the Rail and Transit Security Grant Program that was first funded in fiscal year 2005, and that is funded in this bill today.

I call on the administration to explain to the American people why the $150 million that Congress appropriated last year has not been given to rail and transit agencies to invest in more cameras, more locks, more canine teams, more training. I ask the Senate to approve additional funding for such grants for fiscal year 2006. The $100 million included in the bill is $50 million below last year. It is $1.6 billion below the level authorized for 2006 in bills that passed the Senate last year.

While this administration has been focusing on the last attack carried out by hijackers, not one of whom was from those very little attention has been given to other vulnerabilities in aviation security. While the Transportation Security Administration examined 100 percent of checked baggage, most of the cargo that is stored in the same passenger aircraft and on cargo planes is not inspected. The threat of a bomb on an aircraft is not new. In 1988, 259 passengers aboard a Pan Am flight over Lockerbie, Scotland, perished while the aircraft was 31,000 feet in the sky. Three and a half years ago, Richard Reid, the so-called shoe bomber, tried to blow up an aircraft in flight over the ocean with explosives he carried that the President’s request to hire air cargo inspectors and to advance research of innovative technologies to detect explosives in cargo.

What has the administration done with that $106 million sit in the Treasury. Six months after this fiscal year began, less than 12 percent of the funding appropriated for air cargo has been spent. I said this to the Secretary this morning. He will do it. He says he will do it. It is time to get his arms around this. I believe he will do better. Six months after this fiscal year began, less than 12 percent of the funding appropriated for air cargo has been spent. To make matters worse, the President requested funds for air cargo research and development in fiscal year 2006 was slashed in half.

The bill before the Senate continues the commitment to increasing the inspection of air cargo. I commend Chairman GREGG for that decision. Let me say it again. The bill before the Senate today, in this year of our Lord, this bill continues the commitment to increasing the inspection of air cargo. I commend Chairman GREGG for that decision.

When it comes to securing the Nation’s chemical plant's—and I have lots of them down in the Kanawha Valley and Kanawha County, southern West Virginia when it comes to securing the Nation’s chemical plants—I imagine we probably have maybe the second largest, if not the largest, concentration of chemical plants in the Northern Hemisphere right in Kanawha County or in West Virginia. When it comes to securing the Nation’s chemical plants, the administration has been stuck in quicksand. We know the threat is real. The FBI has warned us about the threat. We know an attack at a chemical plant could cost millions of lives. The Environmental Protection Agency has reported that 125 chemical facilities, if attacked, could threaten the lives of millions of people. My staff person says it would threaten the lives of over 1 million people. That is a lot of people.

For years, the administration has dragged its feet on securing our chemical facilities. For years, many in the Senate have pressed the administration... to do more, to show leadership. In response to my request, the Government Accountability Office, the GAO—I don’t much like that second most recent name, the Government Accountability Office—the old GAO recently released a report concluding that of the 15,000 chemical facilities in the Department, only 1,100 have complied with voluntary security standards. It has been more than 2 years since the GAO urged the EPA and DHS to develop a comprehensive strategy for the protection of our chemical plants.

Last month, the administration finally changed direction on the need to provide security standards to the chemical industry. However, the administration has not yet proposed a specific plan or identified resources to implement such standards.

This bill before the Senate includes two important directives related to the protection of our chemical facilities. First, it requires the Department to provide the estimate of the resources needed to implement mandatory security requirements for the Nation’s chemical sector. Second, it directs the Department to begin vulnerability assessments of the Nation’s highest risk chemical facilities. I look forward to the administration following through with a specific plan.

The bill before the Senate today includes $200 million for port security grants, $30 million above the amount provided in fiscal year 2005. As I pointed out last year, the administration’s request was woefully inadequate. It is the Congress that has taken the lead, the people’s branch.

With the $200 million included in this bill, Congress will have funded $583 million for port security grants since September 11. How much has the administration requested over that time? Hear me, hear me now. How much money has the administration requested for port security grants? I mean, little little $6 million. Can you believe it? With the $200 million included in this bill, Congress will have funded $583 million for port security grants since September 11. How much has the administration requested over that time, I ask again? A measly little $6 million.

To make matters worse, the fiscal year 2006 request by the White House only included a proposal to have ports compete against other nonaviation modes to capture the funds. More than 9 million cargo containers enter U.S. ports annually but only 18 percent are inspected. All it takes is a dirty bomb stuffed into one of those 9 million containers to cripple our economy. The $150 million requested by Congress approved last October is still sitting in the Treasury. Why this administration continues to ignore the threat facing our seaports is mind-boggling. We cannot afford to wait for the next attack.

For each of these threats I have raised and discussed today, the bill that is before the Senate continues congressional initiatives to secure our homeland.

Again and again, and I don’t get tired of saying it. I commend Senator Cochran, the first chairman of the Subcommittee on Homeland Security, for his leadership in 2003 and 2004. I again commend our new committee chairman, Senator Gregg, for giving clear direction to the Department in the bill before the Senate. With the resources that have been made available to the committee, Chairman Gregg has produced a good bill. Regrettably, as a result of the President’s proposal to increase airline passenger fees which the Appropriations Committee lacks the authority to approve, this bill does not have all of the resources it needs to meet known vulnerabilities. It is essential that the Department of Homeland Security be responsive, not bureaucratic, while the threat we face is massive, and it is clear our response to dealing with it is tepid and unfocused. It will take a commitment of energy, time, and people, and funding, to use the Department to better secure our homeland. Again, I thank my chairman and the members of the staff on both sides for their excellent work and long hours, weekends, they have spent.

Mr. President, I referred to a letter which I had written to the Honorable Michael Chertoff, Secretary of the Department of Homeland Security, on June 13 of this year. I ask unanimous consent that letter be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

U. S. Senate, Committee on Appropriations, Washington, DC, June 13, 2005.

Hon. Michael Chertoff, Secretary, Department of Homeland Security, Washington, DC.

Dear Mr. Secretary: You are to be commended for ordering a review of the Department of Homeland Security’s (DHS) organizational structure. As you assess how to improve agency operations, I encourage you to focus on a matter that has been a continuing frustration since the Department was created in November 2002: Federal dollars sit in the Treasury in Washington, DC, do not make America safer. There is no excuse for the appallingly slow pace of making Department of Homeland Security funds available to Federal, State, regional, and local agencies that are responsible for actually making America safer.

Americans are made safer when our State and local police, firefighters, and other security agencies hire, train, and equip first responders, and when funds are made available for border security and other enforcement personnel. Yet, all too often, the Department is slow to announce how State and local agencies can apply for funds; and, all too often, DHS agencies are slow to spend money. Congress approved funding for Fiscal Year 2005 on October 11, 2004. Yet, most application kits were not prepared by the Department until April 2005, six months later. By the time applications are prepared and reviewed and the money is awarded, it will be the end of the fiscal year. This time wasted could have been spent investing in our security.

Regrettably, there has been a consistent pattern of delays at DHS.

Since October 2004, $56 million has been available under the SAFER Act to hire local firefighters. Seven months later, on May 30, 2005, the Department finally announced how our local fire departments can apply for these funds. Funds are not expected to be available for departments until the end of the fiscal year. Every day, our 1 million firefighters are prepared to put their lives on the line. I do not understand why the Department waited so long to issue a grant announcement.

Since October 2004, $150 million has been available to meet the $6 billion estimated cost of securing our mass transit systems. Over 9.6 billion transit trips are taken annually on the various modes of transit service by Americans. Just a little over a year ago, terrorists struck in Madrid and injuring 1,800 after setting off explosives on commuter trains at rush hour. As the Madrid bombing proved, the threat to transit systems is real. It is simply unacceptable that the Department waited until April 5, 2005, to announce how transit agencies could apply for the funds.

In October 2004, Congress approved $150 million for port security to protect not only citizens’ lives but also our economy. The Coast Guard has designated 10 major port closure for one month due to a maritime terrorist act could cost up to $60 billion in economic loss to the United States. I do not understand why the Department waited until May 11, 2005, to announce how our ports could apply for those funds. As a result, it will be the end of the fiscal year before taxpayers’ dollars will be used to make our ports safer.

In October 2004, bus security funds were approved by Congress to put preventative measures in place on our buses. It took six months for the Department to put out a notice of how to apply for the funds.

The last Congress has approved $400 million for the Pre-disaster Mitigation Program to reduce risks and mitigate damage before disasters occur. According to the most recent DHS expenditure plan, 95.5 percent of those funds have not yet been spent, including $31 million approved by the Congress in Fiscal Year 2003 and $130 million approved in Fiscal Year 2004. Those funds could have been spent to prevent loss of property and life; but, instead, the money sits in the Treasury in Washington, DC, to the tune of 3 years. We need a faster, more expedited application form and bureaucratic procedures. Natural disasters do not wait for the government to get it right.

The Flood Map Modernization Program was funded by Congress to provide resources to update maps across the nation. Flood-prone areas, particularly, those need the maps to prevent damage to property and to protect citizens’ lives. Of the over $205 million available in the current fiscal year, only $3 million has been obligated, slowing down this important work.

In July 2002, Congress approved an emergency supplemental appropriation for PortSTEP, a port security table-top exercise component. Congress took two years for the Transportation Security Administration to launch the $20 million program.

In April 2003, Congress enacted $38 million through an emergency appropriation for the Coast Guard to complete port security assessments at tier-one strategic ports, our busiest ports. Two years later, only $1 of the $38 million is currently unobligated.

Congress included funding in Fiscal Years 2002 and 2003 to hire air cargo inspectors, addressing glaring security vulnerabilities in the shipping of explosives on passenger and cargo aircraft. As of March 31, 2005, less than 32 percent of the funding for these inspectors was apportioned for additional air cargo security measures has been obligated.
In 2003, Congress approved $21.6 million for the Customs Service for improving security on the Northern border. In 2003, $14.4 million was added. Despite the fact that we have 117 fewer border patrol agents than we had just seven months ago, this money continues to sit in the Treasury in Washington, DC.

As we peal away the layers of agency operations, I encourage you to expend the expenditure of homeland security dollars. There is no reason for these funds to sit in the Treasury. There is no evidence that the delay will result in the funds being better spent when they are finally made available to Federal, state, regional, and local agencies. We need to try to do that, working with Homeland Security, to tighten security at the borders. If we do that, it will create the opportunity for terrorists to strike.

Please let me know why it is taking so long to get money out the door, and what specific systems will be put in place to make sure that this irresponsible bureaucratic delay does not continue.

With kind regards, I am

Sincerely yours,

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Mr. REID.

The Senator from New Hampshire.

Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, I thank the Senator from West Virginia. He always deals with substance and thought to whatever issue he decides to pursue on the Senate floor. Once again, in the opening statement, he reflected that. He does outline many of the issues which need to be addressed. He outlines them well and makes very strong points. It is a result of a cooperative effort between his staff, my staff, himself, and myself that we have gotten this bill to this point. As he said, the purpose of this bill is to address the threats. That is our goal.

Obviously, there is going to need to be, in light of the London event, some adjustment in the accounts relative to mass transit, and there may be other areas where the Senate wishes to work its will.

The basic goal of this bill, as the Senator from West Virginia has said, and in which he played a major part, is to address some of the problems, the real threats that face this Nation. I continue to try to do that, working with the Senator from West Virginia. I appreciate all his cooperation and his effort.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Democratic leader.

Mr. REID. What is the matter now before the Senate?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. H.R. 2360.

Mr. REID. I first express my admiration for the two managers of this bill. Of course, Senator Byrd is a legend, having held every leadership position, sometimes more than once. I enjoyed very much serving in the House with my friend from New Hampshire, and I recognize his stellar career as a Governor of his State and now as chairman of the Committee on the Budget and also the chairman of his subcommittee.

AMENDMENT NO. 1229

I send to the desk an amendment on behalf of Senator Patty Murray, Senator Akaka, and Senator Byrd.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Nevada [Mr. Reid], for himself, Mrs. Murray, Mr. Byrd, and Mr. Akaka, proposes an amendment numbered 1129.

Mr. REID. I ask unanimous consent to dispense with the reading of the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

SECTION 1. VETERANS HEALTH ADMINISTRATION.

(a) In general.—From any money in the Treasury not otherwise obligated or appropriated, there are appropriated to the Department of Veterans Affairs $1,500,000,000 for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2006, for medical care expenses paid by the Veterans Health Administration, which shall remain available until expended.

(b) Emergency designation.—The amount appropriated under subsection (a) is designated as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 402 of H. Con. Res. 95 (109th Congress).

(c) This section shall take effect on the date of enactment of this Act.

Mr. REID. I appreciate the managers of the bill allowing me to offer this amendment at this time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Oregon.

Mr. WYDEN. Mr. President, the tragic bombings in London are a sober reminder of how vulnerable America and our allies remain to terrorism. What happened in London last week is likely to be tragically replicated if our country does not act boldly to reduce what ought to be called a terror tax now imposed on the American people.

I call it a terror tax because when we pull up to the corner gas station and pay $2.40 a gallon or so for gas, the reality is a portion of that money is then turned over to foreign governments that “back door” it over to Islamist extremists who use that money to perpetuate terrorism.

What I call the terror tax is not posted as a price on our gas pump. We do not see it in our pay stub. It is not calculated in our balance of payments to foreign governments. It is a tax measured not in dollars and cents but in risk and insecurity to the American people. It is as real as everything else the American people put their money toward each week.

Of the 26 million barrels of oil Americans consume each day, almost 12 million barrels of it is imported. That percentage, now near 60 percent, is growing. It was only about 33 percent at the time of the Arab oil embargo seven years ago. Our addiction to foreign oil has nearly doubled in what amounts to just a few years.

In the next few weeks, the House and Senate will be sitting down as part of an effort to write an Energy bill that must take as its priority helping to shake us free of this addiction to foreign oil.

I voted against the Energy bill in the Senate because I felt it did not do enough to reduce our dependence on foreign oil, but I hope, especially at this critical time, on a bipartisan basis during this conference it will be possible to make this legislation better.

I believe it is important to do as much as possible to impose a terror tax that comes with our dependence on foreign oil. It is not good enough to accept business as usual when our citizens pay record prices at the gas pump, only to see foreign governments wink and nod while terrorist groups make use of the money and use those funds to target the United States. In my view, there is an indisputable link not only between the American dependence on foreign oil and the price our citizens pay at the pump, but between our oil addiction and our vulnerability to attack here at home.

For this reason, as the House and Senate get together to look at a strategy to reduce our dependence on foreign oil, I intend to propose four concrete steps to reduce the terror tax.

First, I want the State Department to publish each year for the next 10 years a report on the flow of money paid by Americans at the gas pump to foreign governments, and in the hands of Islamic extremists who target America with acts of terror.

Second, since most foreign oil goes to the transportation sector, I want the American automobile industry to be required to increase auto efficiency by just 1 mile per gallon each year for the next 10 years. Think about what a modest step that is—just 1 mile per gallon. Otherwise, the auto industry ought to explain to the American people why they cannot meet this objective that I am calling for that is so important to the national security of our people.

Third, for each of the next 10 years, the Energy Department should publish a list of the most energy-efficient cars and hybrid vehicles on the market so the auto industry would have to compete on the basis of the most fuel-efficient automobiles.

Fourth, to increase the responsible production of oil in America, not overseas, companies that increase oil production at existing wells shall receive a 2-percent annual increase in their tax writeoffs for this production for each of the next 10 years that the company increases production from existing wells in the United States.

Finally, this bill must promote new alternatives to oil. I have proposed a no-risk way to kick-start efforts to get hydrogen fuel cell vehicles on the road within the decade. By creating incentives for selling hydrogen vehicles and fuel, we can increase sales only for performance. Only actions that put hydrogen vehicles on the road or provide stations to fuel up would qualify for the incentives.

In the nearer term, other alternatives would become readily available. They include cellulosic ethanol made from plant materials grown by American farmers as well as electricity produced by flexible fuel hybrid electric vehicles that can be plugged in as well as refueled at the pump.

Getting a fair energy bill that reduces our dependence on foreign oil is just about the most red, white, and blue thinking we could think of—absolutely critical. If we are to do everything possible to ensure our national security. Experts from a range of political stripes agree that the single most important step Congress can take to make America more secure is to reduce our dangerous dependence on foreign oil.

As a member of the conference committee on the energy bill, I look forward to working with my colleagues to secure these commonsense steps to end the terror tax brought about as a result of our addiction to foreign oil. Doing so is simply a matter of life and death for the citizens we respect so much here at home.

We also have the unaccompanied vehicle program. This program, which is an important element of the surveillance of our borders, has fallen on hard times. In fact, the vehicles were basically stopped about a year and a half ago. They just stopped running because they were not working. They started again, and this bill attempts to get the unaccompanied vehicle program running at a much more aggressive level. This is a tremendous opportunity for us to get this border using fewer personnel more efficiently.

In addition, we have technology on the borders, the video and the other types of sensor capability. Again, we have run into major technology problems. Contracts were let that should not have been or were let ineffectually. One more time we got a bunch of reports on this one. While the program has been restarted, this bill tries to make sure the program goes forward effectively. This is a fencing issue here. We are our going to give you a lot more funds, but we want to make sure the funds are spent effectively.

Also in the area of people coming into the country legitimately who actually are going through our immigration system, we have very significant issues of being able to track who they are and when they come in and when they leave. In order to address that, we are trying to set something up called US–VISIT which is a major new technology initiative of extreme complexity. Therefore, I recognize it is not going to come on line in a perfect way.

What we are concerned about, speaking for the Senate and for the subcommittee, is that the US–VISIT Program, which is going to purchase massive amounts of software and hardware capability to go into the immigration system, that that program not end up like the programs we have had in other major Federal agencies which have initiated major complex IT initiatives, such as the Trilogy Program at the FBI, that we not end up being halfway down the road, hundreds of millions of dollars having been spent, and we realize we have a program that doesn’t work. This bill attempts to make sure that the US–VISIT Program is being brought on line in a way that if we have benchmarks and we know the software is meeting the criteria and the tests that are appropriate to that type of software and that the hardware can interface with it effectively.

This bill makes a major initiative in the area of basically putting emphasis on the borders, both with the feet-on-the-ground issue, with the technology issue, and with the capital infrastructure issue in the area of border facilities and detention facilities. Therefore, I think it is the right approach. Is it going to get our borders secure ultimately by this effort? Obviously not. But it is a step in the right direction and part of the formula that should lead us to borders which are more secure.

The simple fact is, as a nation, we are not going to be able to protect ourselves from the significant threat of these individuals who will come here for the purposes of killing Americans, and for other purposes until we get effective control over the borders and know who is coming in and why they are coming and make sure we do not allow or are able to stop people who are coming into this country whose purpose is to commit acts which will harm Americans. This bill is an attempt to step down that road in a much more aggressive way.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, I understand my colleague from New Hampshire that we will be voting on a resolution at 5:30 this evening, expressing our condolences to our allies and friends who had to bear the brunt of a terrorist attack, an aggressive terrorist attack in London. It is heart-breaking to see the results of these horrible attacks against innocent people committed by terrorists who apparently are determined to kill innocent people, as many as is possible, to make their point.

This attack reminds all of us again of how vulnerable we are and how important homeland security is, and I think it underscores the importance of this appropriations bill. Homeland security is critically important. It means we have to have reasonable border security. It means we have to have port security and a range of other issues. I want to mention two things.

We have spent a lot of money and a lot of time dealing with security of air travel, particularly in commercial airlines. Now when you go through the lines at the airports, they are searching for tweezers and all those items that might be used as weapons. Sometimes there are long lines. I know it is frustrating. We have devoted a lot of time and effort in this country dealing with the last terrorist attack in which 15 of the 19 terrorists were Saudi citizens. Nineteen terrorists drove jet airplanes loaded with fuel into buildings to be used as weapons, and we are dealing with that a lot. We are spending a lot of money dealing with this issue of airport security and aviation security.

My colleagues, and particularly one of my colleagues who departed the Senate, Senator Hollings, have talked a lot about port security. We have about 9 million containers coming in on container ships in this country in a container ship, it could obliterate an American city. Yet we have not spent nearly as much time dealing with port security or, for that matter, rail security as we have dealing with the issue of security at airports and security in commercial air travel. I have done a much better job with respect to ports.

When we have that many containers coming into our ports with so few being inspected, it leaves our country vulnerable. The other day I was visiting a port one day. I came from a State without ports. We do not have a water boundary. I was interested so I toured a port in a major city. I asked: What is it that container on that ship? That is frozen broccoli, they said.

Is it full of bags of frozen broccoli? Yes, it is full of 100-pound bags of frozen broccoli.

How do you know that? Do you know what is in the middle of that big old container?

No, we just know that is what it says on the bill of lading, frozen broccoli.

What if, God forbid, somehow terrorists acquire a nuclear weapon and put that in a refrigerated container on a container ship? We have many container ships on a container ship destined for one of our country’s major port cities and detonate that nuclear weapon at the docks in the middle of one of America’s port cities?

We must find ways to address those issues, and we have not spent nearly the resources necessary to give us adequate security at America’s ports. We have not spent nearly the resources necessary to provide the security with this country’s rail system.

We haul every day, all across this country, toxic material, dangerous material all across America. If terrorists were to find a way to deal with that and manipulate a terrorist attack in our rail system with the kinds of materials that move on our rail system, we would be in a very difficult situation.

As we review this legislation today and tomorrow, we need to continue to rethink how do we improve, how do we make the adjustments necessary to devote more resources for port security, especially port security and rail security.

I did indicate we do need to control our borders. There is no question we need to do that. But I think even the President expressed surprise at the suggestion of the Department of Homeland Security that with regard to the 4,000-plus-mile common border with Canada, we are going to require every person moving back and forth through that common border to have a passport.

In my judgment, that is an impractical way to provide security at America’s borders. As the President suggested, I hope the Homeland Security Agency will rethink that. In our part of the country we have a long and common border with Canada. Every day there is a substantial amount of commerce coming back and forth. People farm on both sides. People work on both sides, do business on both sides. To require a passport in both directions would make no sense at all.

When I began talking about this before 9/11/2001, we had ports of entry at both of our border ports that when they closed in the evening security consisted only of an orange rubber cone put in the middle of the road. The police ones actually stopped and removed the cone before they came across the border. Who on the border would run over it at 60 miles an hour?

So we have made improvements in those areas but much remains to be done. I hope as we construct, talk about, and consider amendments to this bill, we will finally understand that security means security in every area, not just in aviation or commercial airports. The tragic attack in London tells us once again how vulnerable some of these areas are and I mention: two today: our rail system, No. 1, and especially No. 2, our port system, which renders much of our major and largest port cities in this country very vulnerable to a devastating terrorist attack. We must and we can and we will do better.

I yield the floor and I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The amendment No. 1142 proposes an amendment numbered 1142.

Ms. COLLINS. I ask unanimous consent that the reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDENT OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

(The amendment is printed in today’s Record under “Text of Amendments.”)
LIEBERMAN has done on this issue. He and I have worked together with members of the Homeland Security Subcommittee for the past 3 years on this authorization to develop an improved homeland security funding approach based on extensive hearings we have held, much consultation, and hard work by our committee.

We are pleased to be joined by several cosponsors, including Senators CARPER, COLEMAN, AKAKA, VOINOVICH, DEWINE, BINGAMAN, and SALAZAR.

The amendment we offer would for the first time authorize a framework for the billions of dollars the Department of Homeland Security allocates each year to assist first responders and State and local officials in helping to prevent terrorism and to prepare for an attack. That important point bears repeating. The more than $3 billion that Congress has appropriated for grants to States and localities for terrorism prevention and response since 9/11 has never been definitively authorized.

This is not a matter of an authorization having expired, which happens quite frequently around here, but rather of a multibillion-dollar program that has never been authorized. This is highly unusual. In fact, my staff checked with CRS, which went back a decade and could not find a single other grant program over $1 billion that has never been authorized. Sure the way these things happen, they have borrowed a funding formula from the PATRIOT Act, although the bill before us does not use that formula, but in truth the appropriators have had to legislate the details of the Homeland Security Grant Program year after year. So, for example, the House-passed version of this year’s Homeland Security appropriations bill determines the minimum allocation that each State is to receive, establishes a strict timeframe for applications to be submitted and for the Department of Homeland Security to act on them, requires that 60 percent of the grants to be passed on by States to local governments within 60 days, determines for what funds can and cannot be used, and requires grantees to submit reports on their use of funds. That is a lot of legislative language on the House-passed appropriations bills, and indeed the Senate version before us contains similar legislative provisions.

These are the kinds of programmatic decisions Congress is supposed to determine through authorization bills, not each year anew on an appropriations bill. What Senator LIEBERMAN and I are offering today is the specific, detailed authorization bill that this program has never had. Frankly, we would prefer not to do this, not to offer it to the appropriations bill. We believe our legislation, S. 21, which is the product of numerous legislative hearings, two markups, and input from countless interested parties and many homeland security officials, would be considered by the full Senate on its own. The House recently passed a companion measure. S. 21 is on the Senate calendar, having been reported by the Homeland Security Subcommittee without dissent on April 13. But there are no assurances that it will be brought to the Senate floor. So we are offering our authorization bill as an amendment to this appropriations measure.

Although Senate rule XVI generally prohibits authorizing on an appropriations bill, ironically there is an exception when the House has, in essence, already authorized the same matter in its own bill. That is what has happened here, so we believe that rule XVI is not implicated.

Mr. President, you may be saying, Why does this really matter? What is important about this bill that it should be brought up rather than allowing the situation to continue with slight tweaks and variations and new legislative language on the appropriations bill, year after year? Let me put into the amendment, which is the text of S. 21 as reported, with a few changes.

The amendment establishes a new formula for distributing homeland security grant funds. It determines how funds are to be allocated, sets criteria to ensure that the funds are spent in ways that help States and communities develop essential capabilities to prevent and respond to terrorism, and it holds grantees responsible for achieving results.

Perhaps the amendment’s most important provisions are those that inject needed accountability measures into the grants process. We have all heard the horror stories about inappropriate spending of homeland security funds. This waste is intolerable, but particularly so when there are so many unmet needs that are scrambling for funds—needs where the funding simply is not available. Our amendment is built into place tough new standards to ensure that homeland security funds are spent wisely and in ways that will help us better prepare for, or respond to, or prevent a terrorist attack.

Let me refer to this chart which summarizes the accountability measures that are included in the Collins-Lieberman provisions. The first is tying spending to standards. This amendment requires that States distribute and spend homeland security funds only in ways that measurably help them meet preparedness standards and achieve essential capabilities to be determined by the Department of Homeland Security. It authorizes no more spending homeland security dollars on leather jackets in the District of Columbia or air-conditioned garbage trucks in New Jersey. For that matter, even purchases of perfectly appropriate items such as hazmat suits must be tied to achieving essential capabilities to be determined by the Department. This safeguard is designed to prevent a community from purchasing equipment that it has no reasonable expectation of needing. I know, because I’ve had the chairmanship of the subcommittee, Senator GREGG, has been particularly concerned.

The second accountability measure is a thorough annual audit by the General Accounting Office to ensure that funds are not being wasted and that the program is working as intended.

Third is greater coordination among the many grant programs that fund prevention and response efforts. Our amendment would create a Federal Interagency committee to promote coordination of homeland security grants throughout the Federal Government. In particular, this committee would focus on eliminating redundant application, planning, and reporting requirements faced by States, local governments, and first responders in applying for and executing different Federal homeland security-related grants.

Fourth are robust reporting requirements. These are the means by which accountability can be enforced. The amendment requires grant recipients to distribute funds based on threat, risk, specific uses of grant funds and their progress in achieving essential capabilities. These reports would be submitted to the Secretary. The Secretary, in turn, would be required to submit the annual report to Congress, providing an accounting of how grants to States and communities are spent and an evaluation of their progress.

Fifth are the remedies for noncompliance, what I call the enforcement mechanisms. The amendment empowers the Secretary to terminate or reduce grant payments if a State or locality fails to comply with all the requirements of the grant.

In addition to these tough new accountability measures, our amendment authorizes a funding amount that is adequate and a distribution formula that is fair. This legislation dramatically increases the funds that would be distributed based on threat, risk, and consequences. It also maintains a meaningful level of funding for each State. Much of the frontline responsibility for homeland security has fallen squarely on the shoulders of our State and local officials. Nation’s more than 9 million first responders. Communities across America have risen to this challenge and developed scores of innovative homeland security strategies. For these strategies to be implemented, however, all States must achieve a baseline level of essential capabilities. At the same time, we must direct resources toward locations and facilities that are at higher levels of risk and vulnerability.

Both of these goals—helping each and every State come up to a minimum level of preparedness and targeting funds to those areas and facilities at greatest risk—require an adequate, strategic, and predictable level of Federal funding. Absent that stream, we find ourselves in an escalating argument over whether these resources are being allocated and spent properly.

Unfortunately, this argument increasingly pits our urban centers against our rural regions. We believe the bill that we have carefully crafted strikes the right balance.
Let me acknowledge the hard work of Senators GREGG and BYRD in putting together this appropriations bill. We share with them the goal of a fair formula for allocating funds to States while increasing the proportion of funds that would be distributed based on risk. That is why in supporting our legislation, S 21, the National Governors Association underscored the need for the predictability that our amendment would provide.

On the chart behind me is a quotation from the Governor's letter. It reads as follows:

To effectively protect our states and territories from potential terrorists events, all sectors of government must be part of an integrated effort to prevent, detect, respond to and recover from a terrorist act. For the plan to work, it is essential that it be funded through a predictable and sustainable mechanism during its development and in its implementation. A minimum allocation to each state and multijurisdictional authorization levels of funding will provide the predictability States need to protect.
In our national efforts to develop the capability to respond and recover from a terrorist attack we have failed to focus on the importance of building our capacity to prevent an attack in the first place.

We are never going to be able to protect every single target in this country. That is why we have to pay attention to the prevention, the detection, the law enforcement side, as well as the response side.

Because of our bill’s emphasis on terrorism prevention, it has been endorsed by the National Association of Police Organizations, the International Association of Chiefs Of Police, the National Fire Protection Association, the National Troopers Coalition, the United Federation of Police Officers, the International Brotherhood of Police Officers, the Fraternal Order of Police, and the National Organization of Black Law Enforcement Executives, among others.

NAPO is the strongest voice supporting law enforcement officers in the United States, representing more than 236,000 sworn and 200,000 support law enforcement officers as well as retired officers, and 100,000 citizens who share a common dedication to fair and effective crime control and law enforcement. They, too, have pointed out in a letter to Senator LIEBERMAN and me that we need to be sure State and local law enforcement are properly supported, trained, and equipped to prevent terrorism before it occurs.

Let me not believe we can allocate Homeland Security dollars effectively and efficiently unless we listen to and learn from the advice of our law enforcement officers and other first responders. Guided by a task force of first responders, the Secretary would establish the essential capabilities I referred to earlier to ensure that first responders have the support they need.

Preventing and responding to terrorism is a national challenge, but prevention, sworn and support officials agree, must start with specific actions against terrorism in the urgency of the moment is a regional challenge. We saw this after the September 11 attack on the Pentagon and in New York City when first responders from outlying communities rushed in to make invaluable and heroic contributions to the rescue operation.

We saw it again in simulation at the TOPOFF 3 exercise I observed earlier this year with Senator LIEBERMAN. This was a simulated explosion and chemical attack at a waterfront festival in New London, CT. The contributions by first responders from the outlying smaller communities were enormous, but their efforts were hampered by a lack of interoperable communications equipment.

Senator LIEBERMAN and I saw some first responders who were carrying as many as three emergency radios, which slowed the evacuation of those who were playing the injured parties to hospitals from the region. In a real attack, these delays—that incompatibility of equipment—would have had devastating consequences.

Regional planning and coordination are essential, and our amendment would shift the focus of local funding from individual cities to metropolitan regions. Unlike the current Urban Area Security Initiative under which DHS simply announces a list of cities it has solicited for support, our amendment would establish an application process for metropolitan region funding.

In applying for funding, communities would be given considerable flexibility by formulating plans that make the most sense locally. Our amendment provides that the regions within the 100 largest metropolitan statistical areas would automatically be eligible to apply, with additional regions eligible under certain circumstances.

Our amendment would also allow for regional coalitions—even those spanning multiple States—to apply for grant funding together to address common needs. I think this would lead to real breakthroughs in strategy. Let me give you a couple of examples. Several Midwestern States are joining together to take steps to prevent and, if necessary, respond to acts of agroterrorism. That is exactly the kind of project that our amendment would provide for. Under current law, these States could not seek funds as a group despite the common threats they face and the common solutions they seek. Our amendment breaks out of this rigid mold to allow States, counties, tribes, and other governmental units to think regionally and creatively as they seek to prevent and prepare for terrorist attacks.

Our amendment would also put the State and local homeland security planning process where it belongs, on the front end. This legislation requires State and local jurisdictions to plan for how funds will be spent before the funds arrive. Currently, much of the deliberative planning on how funds will be spent is pushed back end, only after DHS has allocated grants to States and urban areas.

Moreover—and this actually is another safeguard—our bill would require States to spend money according to State plans approved by the Department of Homeland Security. More advanced funding means funds will be spent more quickly and according to a coherent strategy.

Whenever I meet with first responders, whether in my home State of Maine or elsewhere, I am always struck by the fact that very few of these brave, dedicated men and women first went into law enforcement, firefighting, or emergency medical services ever thinking they would end up on the front lines of a war against terrorism. They have been handed an unprecedented and unimaginable challenge, and they have accepted it bravely and willingly. They deserve the equipment, training, planning, input, and funding that our amendment would provide. They deserve to have this critical program that is so essential to the security of our Nation properly authorized, funded, and designed.

Thank you, Mr. President.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Connecticut.

Mr. LIEBERMAN. Mr. President, I am proud to be a cosponsor with Chairman COLLINS of this amendment. I want to speak on its behalf.

THANKING SENATE COLLEAGUES

Mr. President, I do want to say on a personal matter, very briefly, this is the first day I have returned to the Senate since my mother, Marcia Manger Lieberman, left this Earth on June 26. The following week I was observing a period of mourning.

We were blessed to have Mom live to the age of 90. She taught us a lot of lessons throughout life: how faith and family and community matter most. We are going to miss her, of course. But I want to take this moment to thank all my colleagues who reached out to me and my family during the time of our grief. I want to thank Senator Wyden, the occupant of the chair, the Senator from North Carolina, Mr. BURR, and my friend and colleague from Maine, Senator COLLINS.

I thank you and everyone else for your calls and your letters and flowers and baskets of food, all of which were a source of great strength and comfort to my family, my sisters and me, and honor the memory of the great lady I was blessed to have as my mom. So I thank you all for that.

AMENDMENT NO. 1142

Mr. President, Mom, most of all, would say: Life goes on. Every day get up and make the most of it. So I am very honored to have the opportunity on this day to join with Senator COLLINS in offering this amendment.

This amendment tracks S. 21, the Homeland Security Grants Enhance- ment Act, which was reported out of the Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs Committee in April. Senator Burr, the original sponsor, and Senator COLLINS and I believe that the ideas the committee endorsed represent the most balanced, constructive approach to supporting those all across America whom we ask to protect the rest of us from harm.

This amendment accomplishes many things, including the doubling of the amount of money that will be delivered to States and localities most at risk. It reduces the potential for waste. It authorizes adequate funding for our Nation’s first responders whom the Senator from Maine has spoken of so eloquently. It establishes, for the first time, a comprehensive framework for supporting homeland security efforts by fully authorizing the essential grants programs that each year have, unfortunately, been left to the whims of the appropriations process and have left people all across America uncertain.

These are essential reforms to our grants process, made even more compelling by the knowledge—underscored by last week’s bombing in London—that terrorists are out there, that they will strike, and that we are involved in a world war. It is not like any world war before. But this enemy has a mission. It is to destroy as many of us as they can. And they will choose the battlefields, where they will choose them.

This amendment responds to that threat in a most direct and sensible way. We direct more money to the places that are at greatest risk of terrorist attack, that are most vulnerable, and where the consequences of an attack would be obviously, disruptive, to the people, to our economic well-being, and to our very way of life. In other words, the terrorists obviously strike without regard to the loss of life, innocent life, but they also want to disrupt our society and create fear.

This amendment responds to that threat in two ways: First, by guaranteeing a higher baseline level of funding to the largest and most densely populated States, States that are likely to be at most risk of attack and to suffer consequences if they are attacked and, second, by substantially increasing the funds we entrust to the Homeland Security Secretary's discretion to allocate based on an assessment of risk.

A key part of this amendment is also a desire to balance support for those cities and States at high risk without sacrificing the security of locations that may not be on the top of a target list today but could very well be in the future, because this amendment recognizes what I said a moment ago, that the terrorists aim to break our confidence, to create panic, to take advantage of the openness of our society. This is a big country. And as a result, no matter how good our intelligence is, we cannot be certain that in every case—maybe even in most cases—we will be on notice about where the terrorists might strike next.

This amendment recognizes the fact that in their methods of destruction, of murder, that one day they may strike fortified targets such as military facilities, as they have in Iraq and in Lebanon, and the next day they may strike soft targets, as they have and did when they blew up a discotheque in Indonesia or took hostages and brought an end to life at a school in Beslan, Russia.

Common sense, therefore, requires us to continue to build basic capacity to prevent and to contain attacks, however they may occur in this country. And that means everywhere in this country. To build that capacity over time, State and local officials need some predictability of funding. They need to know when and how much assistance they are likely to receive from year to year if they are to do what their citizens expect them to do: to plan and carry out the best possible homeland security throughout America. This is a difficult balance to reach. But I feel confident that the Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs Committee has achieved that balance in this amendment.

First, we double the amount of dollars over current levels for grants based on risk. I want to emphasize that because some have criticized the committee action, saying we do not pay attention to the experts' predictions of risk. The fact is, we set aside over 60 percent of the funds authorized in this measure to distribute to States and cities considered to be most vulnerable to a terrorist attack.

The rest of the money would be used to guarantee a minimum level of preparedness in States, although more highly or densely populated States would get more money. So each State would be guaranteed a minimum of 0.55 percent of the total amount appropriated. The high- and dense-population States get a little bit more.

Beyond these formula changes, the amendment would streamline the State homeland security grant process, require better planning and therefore better spending, and add a dose of rationality to the process. Unlike the Department's current opaque and changeable approach for distributing the so-called Urban Area Security Initiative grants, this amendment, the Collins-Lieberman amendment, would establish a clear formula for regions to apply for funding. The 100 largest metropolitan areas could apply. They enter automatically this pool of eligibles. And others could submit applications with the consent of their Governors and the Homeland Security Secretary.

Each applicant would have an opportunity to make its own case based on its specific risks, vulnerabilities, and needs. The Department of Homeland Security would award the grants based on merit. There would be no arbitrary limits on funding to areas that demonstrate they are at risk, such as the population cutoff the Department instituted this past year, saying that if you are not larger than a certain number of people you cannot qualify for the Urban Area Security Initiative, even if you have uniquely vulnerable assets, facilities in that area that in the normal course of exercise of due diligence would require extra support.

Our amendment would encourage cooperative planning and execution across jurisdictional lines by allowing at least two contiguous jurisdictions to submit a regional application. In addition, we would put in place a requirement that the Department issue annual GAO audits and new, more robust reporting requirements for grant recipients and for the Department of Homeland Security. This amendment would also give the Secretary the authority to terminate or revoke grants if a recipient doesn't comply with the accompanying requirements.

We honor the old proverb that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. That is why, in the very contemplate context of the threat of terrorism, our amendment dedicates 25 percent of authorized funds to strengthen law enforcement efforts that are made to prevent attacks before they occur. We have 700,000 pairs of eyes and ears on the ground in every community across this Nation. What am I speaking about? Local law enforcement officers. They are our foot soldiers, our boots on the ground in the war on terrorism. But too often, up to this day, they are on the sidelines. The brake that stops that next attack on New York, Washington, Los Angeles or any small or mid-size community across America may well come from the alert work of a police officer many thousands of miles away.

Senator COLLINS mentioned some of the small communities across America that tragically played critical roles, inadvertently, in all the activity that led up to the September 11 attacks against our country. And we want to find a way to waste the talents of any law enforcement officer in America. So we have to do what we can to facilitate, encourage, and support their vigilance on our behalf.

Finally, our amendment authorizes $2.9 billion in funding for fiscal years 2006 and 2007. That is the same level—not higher—as provided in fiscal year 2004. Unfortunately, the trend for homeland security funding is pointing in the wrong direction. And we want to see that the threat remains at least as great as it has been up until now, perhaps even greater. But at least a $2.9 billion authorization will send a strong message that we will provide reliable and consistent funding to get the job done at the local and the State level, that we will not begin to chip away at the funds that our allies at the State and local level can expect from the Federal Government.

Our amendment improves upon the current approach and upon the approach spelled out—I say with respect—in the underlying appropriations bill. That is why the Collins-
Lieberman amendment has received support, for which the Senator from Maine and I are grateful and honored, from the National Association of Police Organizations, the International Association of Chiefs of Police, the International Association of Professional Police Organizations, the National Troopers Coalition, the National Fire Protection Association, the National Association of Development Organizations, and many others—all support this amendment. This is an expression of support. Indeed, it should be taken as a plea for support by these organizations that represent a broad swath of law enforcement officers at the State and local level across America.

This amendment is a considered approach to the administration and distribution of homeland security grants. We believe it strikes the right balance between not only risk and population, high-risk areas, according to the experts, and other areas that may well be at risk, yet also balances the need between providing flexibility and ensuring accountability. Most importantly, it provides our Nation’s first responders, who are also first preventers in our war against terrorism, with a solid, long-term platform of support.

It has been a great pleasure to work with my friend and colleague, Senator COLLINS of Maine, chairman of our committee. We were grateful for the overwhelming bipartisan support of the committee for this measure when it came out of committee as S. 21. We thank our colleagues for that.

I thank the Chair and yield the floor.

MRS. COLLINS. Mr. President, I thank my friend and colleague from Connecticut for his excellent statement. We have worked very hard on this issue for the past 3 years. It is my hope that our colleagues will recognize the work that has gone into this measure, whether it is coming up with a fair and balanced—I guess that phrase maybe has weight toward it—carefully crafted formula or whether it is the accountability measures that are in the bill that I also believe are so important. Another member of our committee who has been a stalwart supporter of the bill and has worked very hard in shaping many of its provisions from his perspective as a former mayor of a major city, Senator LEIBERMAN from Maine. Senator COLEMAN, I am very pleased he is here to speak on behalf of the bill.

THE PRESIDENT. The Senator from Maine.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, I thank my colleagues, the chairman from Maine and the ranking member from Connecticut, for the hard work they have done in working in a bipartisan way and coming up with important, practical, commonsense ways to deal with the threats to homeland security that deal with the threats to major urban centers, that deal with the opportunity—I want to talk about this a little bit today—and the importance of working on a regional basis.

As a Senator from Minnesota, I represent the Twin Cities. I will talk a little bit about the Twin Cities, Minneapolis and St. Paul, the experience they have with homeland security initiatives under the present system. The system needs improvement.

I rise today to offer my support for the bipartisan amendment offered by Senator COLLINS and Senator LEIBERMAN that will streamline and rationalize the State homeland security grant process. My State has a wide range of homeland security interests. We share an international border with Canada. We have two major cities in Minneapolis and St. Paul. We have two nuclear reactors in Red Wing and Monticello. We have a major port in the Twin Cities. Minneapolis-St. Paul is connected through the Great Lakes system to the St. Lawrence Seaway and the Atlantic Ocean.

Unfortunately, Minnesota witnessed an average 48-percent reduction in the level of homeland security dollars for this year. In addition, when the urban security initiative grants were first announced, Minneapolis’s funding was cut from $12.2 million to $5.7 million, and St. Paul’s funding was completely eliminated. I am not here to complain about cuts in funding. I am here to raise concerns about the present system, as my colleague from Connecticut discussed, how opaque and changeable it is, and the difficulties of regional centers in planning to meet homeland security needs.

As my colleague from Maine indicated, I am a former mayor. I had hands-on involvement in this process. You need a greater measure of certainty. When you talk about communities such as Minneapolis-St. Paul, it is important to understand that you are dealing with regional concerns, that you cannot cut out one city because it is statistically less than the other city. I grew up on the east coast. I moved to the Midwest 31 years ago. When I moved to the Midwest, when I moved to St. Paul 1976, my mom, who was still in Brooklyn, thought the Twin Cities were Minneapolis and Indianapolis. She didn’t realize it was Minneapolis and St. Paul. I excuse my mom. She didn’t spend a lot of time out of Brooklyn in those days. But I expect more from the Department of Homeland Security.

And in 2004 and 2005, anyone who looks at a map knows the Twin Cities and understands they work hand in hand. They are regional centers. They are divided by the Mississippi River, but they are connected essentially. They share a bus system, an airport, a land grant university. They both have significant major fire departments that coordinate with each other, particularly in dealing with issues of hazardous materials. The two cities work hand in hand. They are dealing with regional concerns, that you cannot cut out one city because it is statistically less than the other city. This will double the funds that would be distributed to States and cities of the 71-percent reduction the Twin Cities face this year. So the Collins—Lieberman amendment makes common sense, practical changes to the homeland security grant process to ensure continuity and accountability in terms of money distributed to States and cities.

Again, you can’t do homeland security well if you are involved in a process that is opaque, that is changeable, that is prone to the wild fluctuations. This amendment wisely encourages regional cooperation by moving the focus of local funding from individual cities to metropolitan regions. Again, the Twin Cities are an ideal example of the reality is that we faced a major terrorist attack in the Twin Cities or in one of the surrounding suburban areas, the Mall of America, one of the largest tourist attractions in the United States, 35 million people a year. I served in the Twin Cities, if that were ever subject to a terrorist attack, clearly the departments of Minneapolis and St. Paul would be responding to those concerns. That is the world in which we live. We cannot isolate ourselves and live in little bubbles anymore. So the importance of focusing on the regional level reflects the reality of the world in which we live and the geographical reality, and it simply makes sense.

Under the new formula, communities are given considerable flexibility in forming regions that make the most sense locally. I would encourage other areas such as Minneapolis-St. Paul to do that, to understand that it is important to be able to focus on resources to maximize resources to deal with common threats to the region. Within the amendment, a region must be made up of two or more neighboring municipalities, counties, parishes or Indian tribes and must include the largest city in the metropolitan area. This will enable cities such as Minneapolis and St. Paul to be considered as one region rather than separate entities and benefit from the same funding stream. This makes sense.

Unfortunately, the Department of Homeland Security, after much concern was raised by the process this year, granted St. Paul eligibility to share in Minneapolis’s funding for this year. I don’t think you can have effective homeland security unless you endure wild fluctuations in funding such as the 71-percent reduction the Twin Cities face this year. So the Collins—Lieberman amendment makes common sense, practical changes to the homeland security grant process to ensure continuity and accountability in terms of money distributed to States and cities.

As a Senator from Minnesota, I represent the Twin Cities, Minneapolis and St. Paul, the experience they have with homeland security initiatives under the present system. The system needs improvement.
preparedness and to encourage cities and municipalities, counties, parishes, and Indian tribes to work together to meet the threats that are out there. While we currently require States to submit 3-year plans to the Department of Homeland Security, and it is unrealistic to expect States to effectively plan ahead without providing some certainty on the funding they should expect to receive.

This amendment also creates new audit provisions, requires mandatory reporting, coordination among grant programs at different Federal agencies, and that individual expenditures be tied to achieving nationally established essential capabilities. So we are tying funding to meeting needs that are out there, tying funding to maximizing coordination, tying funding to achieving certain levels of preparedness. Tying spending to achieving national preparedness goals and holding States accountable to how funds are spent is also important to prevent wasteful expenditures on other items that are not needed.

Homeland security funding is not simply about getting more equipment in a Federal agency; it is not a Christmas tree; it is meeting needs. What we have to do is to be very sure and make sure spending is tied to meeting the levels of preparedness and effectiveness. Requiring coordination among different Federal grant programs for first responders will prevent recipients from purchasing duplicative or incompatible equipment or training.

The bottom line is that homeland security dollars will be spent more wisely and effectively, and that is what we should be doing.

This amendment is a great step forward in terms of contributing funds on a regional basis and ensuring that communities have the tools they need to work together to provide greater security for their residents. I look forward to supporting this amendment today and urge my colleagues to support it as well.

I yield the floor.

Mr. AKAKA. Mr. President, I rise today in support of the amendment offered by Senators COLLINS and LIEBERMAN that would provide for homeland security grant coordination and simplification. I wish to thank them both for working with me and the other Members of the Senate Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs Committee favorably and of which I am an original cosponsor. S. 21 recognizes that no State is immune to terrorist attack by requiring that each State receive at minimum 0.55 percent of appropriated funding. This is important to States like Hawaii that are smaller in population, but still have critical assets that need to be protected.

The Collins-Lieberman amendment also ensures that Indian tribes have access to homeland security funding. With more than 50 million acres of land comprising Indian Country, which includes dams, hydroelectric facilities, nuclear power generating plants, oil and gas pipelines, transportation corridors of railroad and highway systems, and communications towers, tribal governments need to have funds to protect and respond to threats of terrorism. Although the Homeland Security Act of Tribal governments in the definition of "local governments," this distinction has not guaranteed that tribal governments are consulted or involved in the protection of the United States. Nor does the act ensure that Indian Country will receive critical information regarding potential terrorist threats, and more importantly, the act does not give tribal governments the authority to detain potential terrorists who are found in Indian Country.

While the amendment does not fully address the homeland security problems that some tribal governments are experiencing, it is a bipartisan compromise that at the very least will ensure that Indian tribes with critical homeland security needs will be able to apply directly to the Department of Homeland Security for risk-based homeland security grants.

I am pleased that my colleagues recognize that tribes should have the same access to homeland security funding as the rest of the country. This is an important first step for Indian Country to address homeland security issues.

Again, I thank Senator COLLINS and Senator LIEBERMAN for their work on this amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Maine is recognized.

Ms. COLLINS. Mr. President, I suggest the amendment of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

EXPRESSIONS OF SYMPATHY FOR THE PEOPLE OF THE UNITED KINGDOM

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, last Thursday, a series of four explosions struck the heart of London during the morning rush hour. At least 49 innocent and hardworking Londoners were injured. A previously unknown group called the "secret group of al-Qaida’s jihads" in Europe claimed responsibility in the name of al-Qaida for the attacks.

On behalf of the U.S. Senate and the American people, we express our heartfelt condolences to the victims, their families, and to the British people, our cousins across the Atlantic. We share in your grief and in your determination to hunt down the criminals who carried out this despicable act. We consider the attack last week on British soil an attack on the civilized world. We stand with the people of London and with the United Kingdom.

For nearly two centuries, the United States and the United Kingdom have enjoyed a special relationship. We speak the same language. We share a heritage of freedom and our economies are inexorably intertwined. Our military, intelligence services, our great corporations, and our distinguished universities share deep relationships. Today, our forces fight side by side in Iraq and Afghanistan, sharing the sacrifices and the victories.

As we learned on 9/11, our enemies are coldblooded killers who deliberately target innocent victims—women and men on their way to work, schoolchildren starting the new school year, and vacationers at the beach.

Our enemies pervert religion. They despise freedom. They seek to overthrow regimes and dominate the world. But as they learned on 9/11, America, the United Kingdom, and the free people of the world will not stand by. We are taking the fight to their soil, to their caves, to their hideouts. We are disrupting their terror cells and financing operations. We are strengthening our homeland defenses and sharing information among intelligence agencies and nations.

Brave men and women are working every day to thwart the enemy, to find him and bring him to justice. But as President Bush observed today, the terrorists need to be right only once. Free nations tend to be right 100 percent of the time. They need to be. And the best way to defeat the enemy is to stay on the offense.

We will call upon the international community to renew and strengthen its efforts to defeat the enemy, dismantle their networks, and to drain the swamps of injustice, oppression, poverty, and extremism that feed their hateful ideology.

In the war on terror, we will not stop. We will not waver. We will stand united against the enemies of freedom. And whatever it takes, wherever it takes us, we will win.

Mr. President, under the previous agreement, we will now have a moment of silence in memory of those whose lives were lost.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senate will recognize 1 minute of silence.

(The Senate observed a moment of silence.)

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Senate will now consider S. Res. 193. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

A resolution (S. Res. 193) expressing sympathy for the people of the United Kingdom and the aftermath of the al-Qaida terrorist attacks on London on July 7, 2005.

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I ask for the yeas and nays on the adoption of the resolution.
The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second? There appears to be a sufficient second.

The question is on agreeing to the resolution. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk called the roll.

Mr. MCCONNELL. The following Senators were necessarily absent: the Senator from Tennessee (Mr. ALEXANDER), the Senator from Georgia (Mr. CHAMBILISS), the Senator from Mississippi (Mr. LOTT), the Senator from Oklahoma (Mr. INHOFE), the Senator from Florida (Mr. MARTINEZ), the Senator from Arizona (Mr. MCCAIN), the Senator from Alaska (Ms. MURKOWSKI), the Senator from Alabama (Mr. Sessions), the Senator from Oklahoma (Mr. INHOFE), the Senator from Florida (Mr. MARCELO), the Senator from Montana (Mr. BAUCUS), the Senator from Mississippi (Mr. C OCHRAN), the Senator from Louisiana (Mr. Landrieu), the Senator from Nevada (Ms. MCCAIN), the Senator from Alaska (Ms. MURKOWSKI), the Senator from Alabama (Mr. SESSIONS), and the Senator from South Dakota (Mr. THUNE).

Further, if present and voting, the Senator from Tennessee (Mr. ALEXANDER), the Senator from Alabama (Mr. Sessions), and the Senator from Tennessee (Mr. ALEXANDER), and the Senator from Alabama (Mr. SESSIONS) would have voted "yea."

Mr. DURBIN. I announce that the Senator from Montana (Mr. BAUCUS), the Senator from Indiana (Mr. BAYH), the Senator from California (Mrs. BOXER), the Senator from Minnesota (Mr. ALLEN), and the Senator from Georgia (Mr. D AYTON), the Senator from Louisiana (Mr. LANDRIEU), the Senator from New Mexico (Ms. MARTINEZ), the Senator from Texas (Mr. HUTCHISON), the Senator from Missouri (Mr. MCCAIN), the Senator from Florida (Mr. MARTINEZ), the Senator from Nevada (Ms. MCCAIN), and the Senator from Nevada (Ms. MCCAIN) are absent.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The following statement was ordered to be printed in the RECORD.

Whereas world leaders attending the G-8 Summit in Gleneagles, Scotland expressed condolences to the people of the United States and the victims and their families for the heinous terrorist attacks that occurred in London on July 7, 2005;

(2) condemns these barbaric and unwanted attacks on the innocent people of London;

(3) expresses strong and continued solidarity with the people of the United Kingdom and pledges to remain shoulder-to-shoulder with the people of the United Kingdom to bring the terrorists responsible for these brutal attacks to justice; and

(4) calls upon the international community to renew and strengthen efforts to—

(A) defeat terrorists by dismantling terror networks and exposing the violent and nihilistic ideology of terrorism;

(B) increase international cooperation to advance personal and religious freedoms, ethnic and racial harmony, political liberty and pluralism, and economic prosperity; and

(C) combat the social injustice, oppression, poverty, and extremism that breeds terrorism.

At the request of Mr. DURBIN, the following statement was ordered to be printed in the RECORD.

Mrs. BOXER. Mr. President, on the way from California to Washington this morning, my plane had engine trouble, and I had to return to California. As a result, I was not able to make the vote on the resolution condemning the terrorist bombings in London last week and expressing sympathy for the people of the United Kingdom.

Had I been present, I would certainly have voted for the resolution. I hope that it serves to strengthen our resolve to go after the terrorists and to do everything we can to protect the people of the United States, particularly by doing more to secure our rail and transit systems.

(At the request of Mr. REID, the following statement was ordered to be printed in the RECORD.)

Mrs. LINCOLN. Mr. President, on Monday, July 11, 2005, I testified before the Base Closure and Realignment Commission regional hearing in San Antonio, TX, regarding Department of Defense recommended changes to military installations in Arkansas and Texas. Therefore, I was absent during vote No. 173 on the Senate Resolution concurring in the findings and the resolutions in London on July 7 and expressing sympathy for the victims, their families and the people of the United Kingdom.
The legislative clerk read as follows: The Senator from Georgia [Mr. ISAKSON] proposes an amendment numbered 1070.

Mr. ISAKSON. I ask unanimous consent the reading of the amendment be dispensed.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows: (Purpose: Expressing the sense of the Senate that inadequacies in border protection and alien and drug smugglers' methods, routes, and modes of transportation are potential vulnerabilities that can be exploited by terrorists to illegally smuggle terrorists and their weapons into the United States, surveillance of the border between the United States and Mexico is essential to protect the United States, and the Mexican Government must commit to addressing its own domestic border security policies, which contribute to the present inadequacies in our Nation's homeland security.) At the appropriate place, insert the following:

SEC. 2. SENSE OF THE SENATE REGARDING BORDER SECURITY.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds the following:

(1) The illegal alien population has risen from 3,200,000 in 1986 to 10,300,000 in 2004.

(2) In fiscal year 2001, United States Border Patrol agents apprehended 1,200,000 aliens for illegally entering the United States.

(3) Senate Report 109–983 states, "there are an estimated 11,000,000 illegal aliens in the United States, including more than 400,000 individuals who have absconded, walking away with impunity from Orders of Deportation and Removal.

(4) Between 1,000 and 3,000 special interest aliens from countries with an active terrorist presence enter the United States each year.

(5) Of the 1,200,000 illegal aliens apprehended on the border between the United States and Mexico, 643 were from countries with known terrorist ties, including Syria, Iran, and Libya.

(b) SENSE OF THE SENATE.—It is the sense of the Senate that—

(1) This Nation cannot truthfully address the security of the United States without recognizing the reality of terrorists taking advantage of inadequacies in border security along the border between the United States and Mexico;

(2) every effort should be made to increase the technology and efficiency in preventing these individuals from entering the United States across the Mexican border;

(3) The Mexican Government has an obligation to secure its side of the border between the United States and Mexico; and

(4) The Mexican Government must commit to addressing inadequacies in its own domestic and border security policies, which are contributing to the present dilemma in border security.

Mr. ISAKSON. I express my appreciation to the subcommittee chairman, Senator GREGG of New Hampshire. It is my understanding from the chairman that it has been agreed to accept the amendment.

Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, I believe the Senator can ask unanimous consent for approval.

Mr. ISAKSON. I ask unanimous consent the amendment be agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the amendment is agreed to.

The amendment (No. 1070) was agreed to.

Mr. ISAKSON. Mr. President, the amendment is a sense-of-the-Senate amendment to the Homeland Security Appropriations bill dealing with border security. I commend the subcommittee chairman on the tremendous investment this bill makes in homeland security and in border security to the United States of America.

A few months ago when I made one of the first speeches in the Senate with regard to the floor supplemental, I talked a little bit about REAL ID and what is the largest single domestic issue in the United States today, illegal immigration.

In that particular speech I made a note that I love our system of immigration, love the fact you can come to this country and become a citizen—I am a second-generation American myself—but we have been flooded as a nation over the past decade by a tremendous influx of those who have come illegally, many over the border of the south, although obviously to the north as well.

This goes a long way toward providing the funding to Customs and Immigration to begin enforcing laws on the books, making it tougher to come into the United States the wrong way and hopefully making it easier to come to the United States the right way, the legal way.

We need a partner on our southern border. The sense-of-the-Senate amendment is very simple. It simply asks the Government of Mexico to assist in helping to secure the border between the United States and Mexico to ensure that those who immigrate into this country are coming in consistent with the laws of the United States of America.

We have a great trading partner to the south. We have a great neighbor to the south. We have a country that shares so many common interests. We have a country that we enjoy being our neighbor. We also would like for them to be our partner in seeing to it that the border we share is secure so that those who are crossing are crossing legally and consistent with the laws of that nation.

I thank the subcommittee chairman for his cooperation. I thank the Senate for agreeing to this amendment. I am pleased we can express this sense of the Senate that the common interest of both countries is in the best interests of America when it comes to the border security between ourselves and the country of Mexico.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New York is recognized.

Ms. COLLINS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent the following Senators be added as cosponsors of the Collins-Lieberman amendment No. 1142: Senator REED of Rhode Island, Senator BINGAMAN, and Senator HARKIN.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Ms. COLLINS. This is in addition to the cosponsors previously cited.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New York is recognized.

Mrs. CLINTON. Mr. President, I rise today to discuss the fiscal year 2006 Homeland Security appropriations bill.

Protecting the security of our people and our homeland is the most important responsibility that any Member of this body possesses. It is, therefore, our solemn obligation to review this bill carefully and make certain it adequately addresses our Nation's vulnerabilities.

The question should be, Have we done all that we can do to make America safe? Now, obviously, none of us can look into the minds, the perverted minds of the terrorists and know everything they might do to harm us or people around the world, as we saw again in London last week. But I think we do have an obligation to do all we can. Does that mean even after we do it there will never be an attack? Of course not. But we have to try, to the best of our human ability, to protect our citizens and make our Nation safe by deterring, detecting, and preventing terrorist attacks.

I believe—and I am sure many of my colleagues would agree—that to make America truly safe we need to carefully allocate homeland security resources. We need to make sure the money we appropriate in Congress gets to where it is most needed; that the American cities, States and places that are under the greatest threat, that are most vulnerable, receive the funding they need to be protected.

I have advocated for threat-based allocation of homeland security funds for several years now. Last year, the 9/11 Commission made a very specific recommendation to the President to base Federal funding for emergency preparedness solely—solely—on risks and vulnerabilities.

Over the last 4 years, the Department of Homeland Security and its agencies have provided $11.3 billion to State and local governments to prevent, prepare for, and respond to acts of terrorism. Additionally, $3.2 billion in grants and other assistance provided by other Federal agencies has also gone to State and local responders to take on the terrorist threat.

Unfortunately, nearly half of this $14.5 billion has been allocated according to congressional mandated formulas that bear little relation to need, risk, vulnerability, or threat.

Last September, when the Senate took up consideration of the Intelligence Reform and Terrorism Prevention Act of 2004, I offered an amendment to the Department of Homeland Security to allocate formula-based grants to State and local governments based on an assessment of threats and vulnerabilities, in accordance with the recommendations of the 9/11 Commission.

Although the amendment was tabled, I am thankful, as are I am sure members of my fellow Americans who live in high-threat communities, that the President recognized these vulnerabilities. He proposed, in the fiscal year 2006 budget, a restructuring of $2.6 billion in grants for States, urban areas, and infrastructure protection. Under the President's proposal, DHS, the Department of Homeland Security, will focus on and make State and local terrorism prevention and preparedness capabilities, taking into consideration threats and vulnerabilities.

While I was not completely satisfied with the formula—of course I could not be, representing New York, which remains, by all the intelligence we are privy to, the No. 1 target of the terrorists in our country—I am pleased by the recognition of the President and Secretary Chertoff that we are now called upon to look at threat-based funding. That is indeed welcome news.

While this bill we are considering makes considerable progress securing our homeland, there are certainly some deficiencies that we cannot afford to ignore. Last week's tragic events in London highlighted one of our Nation's most glaring homeland security deficiencies—the vulnerability of our rail and transit systems.

We have seen these senseless, evil terrorist attacks in Japan, Russia, Spain, and now England. These attacks, like the one that struck our own country the day after Christmas, were not merely attacks on individuals but an attack on a way of life. These attacks on the subway and transit systems around the world are a clear signal to this Congress that we have to fill this glaring hole in our national security budget.

Now, our resolve to stand against these acts of terror must never waver. But courage and determination is not enough. We must also commit, with equal force, to developing a comprehensive plan and allocating adequate resources to guard against similar attacks in our own cities and States.

I know there are some who argue against increasing the funding for homeland security because they say: Well, we can't possibly guard against every risk and vulnerability. I read a comment by one think tank pundit who said: We can't childproof our Nation.

Well, childproofing a home when a new baby arrives is something I take very seriously. I think most parents do as well. We go out and we buy those little plugs to put into outlets. We move to a higher shelf household cleaners and poisons. We go out and maybe buy one of those little gates to put at the top and bottom of stairs. We obviously take steps to childproof our homes.

Starting in the 1970s, responsible parents have taken some important federal steps toward our communities that their children would face.

Does that mean every risk facing every child was eliminated? Of course not. But we saved a lot of lives. We protected a lot of children. We provided a lot of peace of mind to many mothers and fathers.

So when somebody in a kind of offhand, critical way says, 'What do these people expect when they call for more money for rail and transit security or for border security or for chemical plant security? They are trying to childproof the Nation.' I view that as an ignorant insult. Of course we are trying to protect our Nation. That is our highest obligation. No, we cannot protect against everything, but we have to do all we can to make sure every community is as protected as we can make it.

We know from every expert who has looked at rail and transit security that we are woefully underfunding it. In fact, based on the research and analysis I have seen, it would take approximately $7 billion to protect across this country the tens of millions of people who use our mass transit systems—our subways, our buses, our trains, our ferries—every single day to get back and forth to work, to go about their daily lives.

We know millions of Americans use this because they have to. It is convenient. It is inexpensive. It fills their needs. In New York, we have millions and millions of New Yorkers who ride the bus and the subway and the ferries every single day. So when the tragedy struck in London, it was again a tragic wakeup call for our own country.

I know we cannot provide all the funding that many of us believe is needed to take the steps required to protect our transit systems. But we certainly must do more than the $100 million currently in the Senate bill.

I am grateful the Senate majority leader has recognized the bill's reduction from last year's $500 million to $100 million was a step in the wrong direction and that at a minimum we need to restore the $50 million that was cut.
If we look at how much money has been spent on airline security, we find it totals $18 billion. We all know that following the attacks of 9/11, spending that money on airline security was absolutely necessary. Some of it went a little further and people who have no profile of fitting any kind of terrorist identity being strip-searched or being stopped or people going through all the security—but we spent that money because we knew we had to deter those people who might wish us ill by using our airplanes.

We simply cannot continue to short-change rail and transit security. More people are riding our transit systems than ride our airplanes and commercial aviation.

Last October, the Senate passed the Rail Security Act of 2004. The bill was introduced by Senator McCain, and I was proud to be an original cosponsor. That bill would have authorized Amtrak and New York to receive over $570 million. We would have put the six tunnels for better ventilation, electrical and fire safety technology upgrades, emergency communications and lighting systems, and emergency access and egress for passengers.

A couple of years ago I stood right in this spot with pictures of what the tunnels in New York look like. We now know one of the explosions in London took place in Kings Cross. The rescue workers have not even been able to get there yet. They are not even sure they have recovered all of the bodies.

We will learn from this horrible tragedy, and we will be able to do an even better job in what we need to do to protect tunnels and bridges and other essential infrastructure for our rail and transit systems. But I am bewildered because the $150 million we appropriated last year for rail security has not yet been fully distributed by the Department of Homeland Security to the cities and the States that need it. Instead of being put to work on behalf of improved safety in our rail and transit systems, it is sitting on the ledgers of the Department of Homeland Security.

We need to spend that money, and we need to be smart about how we spend it. But the plans that city and State transit systems have developed can’t be implemented if the Federal Government doesn’t do its part.

I have introduced the Homeland Security appropriations bill this week, we will support the amendments that increase funding for securing our Nation’s rail and transit systems. I hope we will do so because it is the right things to do and because the bombings last Thursday in London were just such a tragic reminder of what we still need to do to protect our own homeland from senseless and barbaric actions of extremists.

I am proud to join Senators Shelby, Sanders, Inouye, Reed, and other colleagues in an amendment to add over $1.3 billion in additional rail and transit security grants. I am absolutely confident that our Nation is up to the task of securing our mass transit systems. I am absolutely confident that this body is capable of dedicating the resources necessary to get this essential job done. I hope this week proves that we are ready, we are willing, and able to do everything possible to protect our Nation.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Delaware.

Mr. CARPER. Mr. President, I want to add a comment or two to our colleague from New York. I believe in the fiscal year 2005 appropriations bill, which is currently in effect, there was about $150 million that could be used for improving transit and rail security. I believe, as of last week, none of that money had been allocated. I hope that is not true, but that is what I have been briefed by my staff. None of that $150 million has been allocated. One has to wonder what it takes. I fear that no amount of money is actually going to get our attention, the attention of the executive branch to begin allocating the money and putting it where it can do the most good most promptly.

As I understand it, the administration has a strong appropriation in their budget proposal for fiscal 2006 for rail security and transit security. The committee has put in $100 million for that purpose, and I believe the committee has agreed to raise it to the current level of appropriation of $150 million. But if the administration is not going to spend the money, what good does it do for us to allocate. It is very disappointing. I hope it is not true, but I am afraid it probably is.

I thank my colleague for bringing this to our attention and join her in saying we can do a lot better and we have to.

Some time tomorrow, we are going to have the opportunity to vote on several options for allocating aid to first responders in our 50 States, firefighters, police, paramedics, and others who are first on the scene. When tragedy strikes and that tragedy happens to be a strike launched by terrorists, they will be the first to be there, whether it is Delaware, Missouri, New York, or any other State.

I rise to express my strong support for an amendment that is going to be offered tomorrow by Senators Collins and Lieberman. It seeks to streamline the system for distributing first responder aid to States, tries to make the system more fair, and seeks to ensure that every State, large or small, receives the funding that may be needed to respond to terrorist attacks and other disasters.

Senator Collins and I have been working with Senator Lieberman and other members of the Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs Committee on this issue for some time. In fact, Senator Collins and I first introduced legislation on this topic more than 2 years ago. That original bill came after a series of hearings we held in our committee, highlighting the fact that the way we help States prepare for disasters simply makes little sense. The application process is lengthy and confusing. More importantly, the funding formula simply isn’t getting money to those who need it most.

States, counties, cities, and first responders all told us in one voice that we need to do something about it. Much of what Senator Collins and I and our colleagues did in that initial legislation a couple years ago to respond to the concerns is reflected in the amendment that will be offered tomorrow by Senators Collins and Lieberman.

That amendment mirrors in many respects the bill that Senator Collins and I introduced 2 years ago. For example, the amendment streamlines the grant application process. It creates a one-stop shop within the Department of Homeland Security where State officials and others can seek grant information. It also ensures that funds are distributed as quickly as possible and requires States to go through a planning process that would include both localities and first responders.

In addition, we are working on an amendment to give States more flexibility in spending their first responder aid. Not every State is the same. Missouri’s needs may be different than Delaware’s. This amendment, as with our earlier bill, gives States the ability to ask for a waiver from the Department. If they want to use a little more money for training or equipment or exercises or planning, they can go to the Department and ask for a waiver to do so. One size does not fit all. This amendment, such as our earlier bill, acknowledges that.

Funding formulas are akin to what they used to say about beauty. Beauty is in the eye of the beholder. The beauty of a funding formula is oftentimes in the eye of the particular State that is eyeing the formula. I believe we have gone a long way toward addressing the concerns that some of our colleagues from more populous States have raised over the years. There were concerns among a number of Senators, both on and off the Homeland Security Committee, that the current program in our original legislation directed too much aid to smaller States, to less populated States, at the expense of larger States, at the expense of more populous States, and at the expense of high-threat urban areas. I believe we have addressed those concerns.

A version of this amendment that was added by an unanimous vote to the intelligence reform bill last yearprovided additional allocations to the dozen or so largest States in the country. It also allowed the Secretary of Homeland Security to distribute a portion of the funding made available for State grants directly to the most at-risk urban areas. We go even further this year. We and our other supporters of our original legislation might like to have gone. In an effort to shift even more funding to those parts that they need without arbitrarily shortchanging smaller States like Delaware that may be small in size but the risk profile belies the modest size in population.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Hawaii.

AMENDMENT NO. 1129

Mr. AKAKA. Mr. President, I rise today to address the VA health care system's funding crisis. I thank my colleagues, the Democratic leaders, Senator Reid, for his determination to ensure that $1.5 billion is provided as soon as possible. At this point, it is widely known that VA is facing a tremendous funding shortfall this year.

What we need to do now is ensure that VA gets these funds as expeditiously as possible.

I am glad the administration has admitted that there is a shortfall. But I point out that VA officials have proven themselves to be an unreliable source of information. And obvious by the supplemental sent forward by the President, they are less than generous, and frankly, less, than accurate. The $375 million now proposed by the administration—and carried forward by the House—grossly shortchanges the vast majority of States.

You need only look at the administration's own estimate for new costs associated with returning service members. VA now believes that 103,000 more veterans will be treated this year. The cost of treating this kind of patient is $5,437, as documented by VA data. Yet, the administration wants to now convince us that, in fact, the cost of treating a patient is less than half of this amount. Again, using VA data, the cost of caring for an additional 103,000 veterans is $560 million and not the $273 million suggested by the administration. Other key programs such as readjustment counseling and dental care were also not sufficiently covered by the House in the VA supplemental.

It is imperative that we make sure the funds we provide now are truly sufficient, so we do not face this situation again. It is simply not right to use out-of-date equipment to treat veterans or force them to wait months for care.

The Senate has already spoken in a very bipartisan manner on this issue. We are all very proud of our efforts to work that Senators Craig and Hutchison and our other colleagues are doing to tackle this problem. I believe we can find a solution, together.

I yield the floor.

Mr. President, I yield the floor and suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, this is a poster that shows what I discovered on the Internet in North Dakota. I discovered this in the month of April. I was going to have a meeting in Fargo and, just out of curiosity, I called up the North Dakota registry of sex offenders, to find out who was living within 2 miles of where I was having the meeting, at city hall in Fargo, ND. In the briefing book I had, I described this fellow to the people who came. His name is Joseph Duncan. The entire country knows of Joseph Duncan now. When I described Mr. Duncan, many people in the area didn’t know him.
This sheet from the North Dakota Attorney General’s Office, Bureau of Criminal Investigation, shows that Joseph Duncan was living in Fargo, ND. He was a sexual predator, and he had served a 20-year prison sentence for a first-degree rape. In 1980, he raped a 14-year-old gunpoint, buried her, and made the victim believe he was going to be killed by firing the gun twice on empty chambers. And he went to prison.

In 2006, he was released from prison. He completed his full sentence, and was released without probation or parole. He went to live in North Dakota.

Again, I mentioned him in April of this year at a meeting simply because his name came up on an inquiry I did about who was living in Fargo, ND.

What I didn’t know in April, when I mentioned Mr. Duncan, was that 1 month earlier he had been charged with molesting a 6-year-old boy at a playground in Detroit Lakes, MN. He appeared in court April 5 on those charges, a county judge set the bail at $15,000, and Joseph Duncan was released, promising to stay in touch. Of course, he didn’t. He promptly disappeared.

As we know from substantial media coverage in recent weeks, Joseph Duncan was subsequently arrested in Idaho for kidnapping 8-year-old Shasta Groene. Her brother, 9-year-old Dylan, was missing. Their family was murdered. She is the daughter of these two young children. The remains of Dylan have now been located. Duncan has been charged with abducting and molesting both children and is also under investigation for the murder of Dylan and the parents.

It is so frustrating to be here talking about this. It is a breakdown in common sense. Martha Stewart was let out of a minimum security prison and was required to wear an electronic bracelet and, as I still wear one at her home under the disposition of the court. But we have known violent sexual predators walking around this country with no such level of supervision.

I have been on the Senate floor many times talking about a bill I introduced called Dru’s law. I have shown colleagues a picture of a young woman named Dru Sjodin, who was brutally murdered and whose alleged assailant is a man who had been released, promising to stay in touch. Of course, he didn’t. He promptly disappeared.

Mr. Rodriguez was in prison for 23 years. He is a violent sexual predator. He was let out, even when he was judged to be a high risk for reoffending. We know that 70 percent of the time high-risk sexual predators are going to reoffend. In most cases, their next offense will be more violent. Mr. Rodriguez allegedly murdered Dru Sjodin. The evidence is very substantial. He was walking around with not much more than a “see you later” at the prison, much like Joseph Duncan. Mr. Duncan had been convicted previously of violent sexual offenses, and then he was accused in April of molesting a 6-year-old boy. What happens to him? He goes through a revolving door in the criminal justice system to be let out at $15,000 bail. Martha Stewart is wearing that bracelet and this fellow is turned back out on $15,000. Then this young girl named Dru Sjodin, who was murdered, her brother Dylan and they were sexually molested. People are dead.

Dru’s law, which I introduced well over a year ago, has been passed by the Senate once and didn’t get through the House. Senator Specter and I and others have introduced it again, and my hope is very much that in the month of July we can get it through this Chamber and through the House and get it to the President for signature. It has three simple provisions: One, there should be a national registry of sex offenders, a national registry of sexual predators. This isn’t rocket science. Somebody like this who rapes a 16-year-old gunpoint needs to go on the sex offender registry, and no matter where this person showed up in the criminal justice system, regardless of state lines, the public should be able to know that he is out there. We need a national registry of sexual predators.

Two, before a high-risk sexual predator is about to be released from prison, the local State’s attorney must be notified in the event that they believe this person is so dangerous that they need to seek additional civil commitment. That must be the case.

And three, if, in fact, a high-risk sexual predator is released at the end of his term, there must be intensive monitoring by local governments. Once again, electronic monitoring bracelets are not just meant for Martha Stewart. They ought to be meant for very violent offenders like this who abduct and brutalize young children at gunpoint.

We can do much better. It is not only about Dylan and Shasta and Dru Sjodin; it’s month after month, we read these stories. Jessica Lunsford, 9 years old, Mark Lunsford’s daughter, was abducted in February from her bedroom in her Florida home, and they found her body a month later. The crime was committed by a 46-year-old convicted sex offender with a 30-year history.

We know who these people are. They have been in the system before. Sarah Michelle Lunde disappeared April 5 in Ruskin. She was abducted, and David Onstott, a convicted sex offender who once had a relationship with the girl’s mother, has confessed to killing her.

Jetseta Gage, of Cedar Rapids, IA, was found a month later in her car. She was murdered. Roger Paul Bentley has been arrested for that crime. He is a convicted sex offender on Iowa’s sex offender registry.

This has to stop. We know who these people are. We absolutely tell us that over 70 percent of the violent sexual predators, when let out of prison, are going to reoffend. I am talking about type 3 sex offenders, judged to be at highest risk, as Mr. Rodriguez was when he was let out of prison and then within 6 months allegedly murdered Dru Sjodin.

When psychologists and psychiatrists evaluate sexual predators to be the highest risk, we cannot any longer say goodbye, so long, good luck at the prison. It is much more than a “see you later” at the prison, much like Joseph Duncan. Mr. Duncan had been convicted previously of violent sexual offenses, and then he was accused in April of...
REMARKS OF DR. WANGARI MAATHAI

Mr. LUGAR. Mr. President, I recently had the honor of meeting with Nobel Peace Prize Winner, Dr. Wangari Maathai of Kenya.

Dr. Maathai began a program of planted fields that transformed a grassroots organization that emphasized tree planting by women and children in order to conserve the environment and improve their quality of life. This program, which became known as the Green Belt Movement, has assisted women in planting more than 20 million trees throughout the world.

Dr. Maathai is internationally recognized for a lifetime dedication to democracy, human rights and environmental conservation. She has addressed the U.N. on several occasions and spoken on behalf of women at special sessions of the General Assembly for the 5-year review of the earth summit.

Earlier this year, Dr. Maathai gave an address inaugurating the World Food Law Institute’s “Distinguished Lecture Series.” I ask unanimous consent of the Senate of her remarks be printed in the RECORD for the benefit of my colleagues.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

INAUGURAL WORLD FOOD LAW Distinguished Lecture Series—Honorary University World Food Law Lunch, Cosmos Club, Washington, DC

May 10, 2005.—Thank you very much. Professor Marsha Echols, Excellencies, ladies and gentlemen, it is a unique pleasure and privilege and indeed honor to be here and to be received so warmly by you here in Washington, DC.

I think that one of the most humbling experiences I have is that when you do these things you don’t do them thinking that other people are going to see you do them but that one day you may be a Nobel Peace Prize winner. So, it is always very humbling to know that there were people who worked with them and were appreciative of what we were doing. But we all now acknowledge that what the Norwegian Nobel Committee did on the day they decided that they wanted to focus on the environment for the very first time was both historic and visionary. It was a way of urging us to make a mind-shift in the way we think about security, in the way we think about peace, and to understand that you cannot achieve peace without looking at the environment as well.

The one thing that we have been working on for a long time is the idea that development must be sustainable. The environment is part of development. The environment is part of our core security. The environment is part of our core development and it is part of our core peace.

I think that one of the most humbling experiences I have is that when you do these things you don’t do them thinking that other people are going to see you do them but that one day you may be a Nobel Peace Prize winner. that about three million people in Kenya would need food aid because the rainfall had declined so badly that farmers would not have adequate yield.

Of course, the immediate response to the crisis is the rainfall has not come. “The rains did not come.” But very few of us ask, “Why didn’t the rains come?” This is the challenge. We need to ask ourselves, and that’s why we’re being challenged to think holistically. For if we only want the rains to come without adequately managing the environment, then the rains may not come, then of course we’re going to fail. I could have told the Minister that because of the damage that we have done to the environment, to the five mountains in Kenya, because of the illegal logging that has been going on for years, charcoal burning that has been going on for years, because of the commercial plantation that has been expanded in the mountains and allowing literally thousands of people to go into the forests and cultivate in order to support this commercial plantation of timber, rainfall patterns sooner or later would be affected.

Now some people say it is climate change and they say, “Oh yes, we know, even on Mount Kenya the glaciers are receding.” That’s also quite possible. It’s possible that it is part of climate change. But climate change is not happening at a global level. It’s happening at some level. Climate change starts at a local level. It is impacted by what we have done on these two mountains. Multiply that several million times what is happening in Kenya. It’s happening in Europe, it’s happening elsewhere. And sooner or later, all these multiplied several million times will impact in certain areas will become extremely harsh, especially for people who don’t have alternatives, such as the people in our region.

In trying to solve the problem, the Minister will probably say, “We must go out and do two things: One, we must buy food from those who have it, or we must seek food aid in the world.” I’m glad that United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) is represented here, because they are the ones who are usually giving us food aid. That’s a short-term solution.

The long-term solution is for us to go back to the basics. Go back to the basics and listen to the Nobel Committee. They have said: The environment is in an intricate way, related, intertwined in our lives on an everyday basis. It is not something we think about or learn about sometimes. The air we breathe, the water we drink, the food we eat: Everything we do has to do with the environment. We need to take this concept and make it holistic, so that we can think in a holistic manner, and learn to protect the base on which everything else depends. Learn that if we destroy the mountains, the mountains play a price at a price when they take the soil, they take away the soil in which the farmer plants his seeds.

If you ask an ordinary Kenyan woman why the rains do not come, the farmer will probably say, “God has not yet brought the rain.” We must pray so that God brings the rain. “Why didn’t the rains come?” That is the message that I’m trying to share with you. I believe that’s the message that the Nobel Committee was delivering to the world. It is the challenge that we have been given, so that we can rethink what we’re doing in the world. It’s not creating justice for this farmer, and as a result, because he doesn’t get enough for his labor, he continues to scrape, to scratch this land and get very little out of it. So we call him poor, and we begin to say that it is partly because of his poverty that the environment is being destroyed.

Well, it is not true. The farmer is doing his best. He needs to be assisted to learn that he has to protect his environment. But those of us at this level also need to protect his interests. So when he brings his produce to the market he gets a fair price. That is why we are saying that perhaps many of these poor countries need so that they may protect the environment is fair trade, support for aid that they don’t have for their farmer, and they can protect that forest, and they can encourage the rehabilitation of these forests and these mountains so that the rivers can continue to flow and the rains will come back.

The only way we can do that is if we have governments that operate in a free, democratic space, so that they can encourage those people, and governments that are promoting cultures of peace, so that people can find a peaceful environment in which to do these activities.

town-site and railroad station, naming the town Kindred after William S. Kindred, a Fargo real-estate pioneer. Kindred was incorporated in 1920 and became a city in 1949. Today, Kindred is a rapidly growing community bolstered by a variety of thriving businesses including Cass County Electric Cooperative, Dakota Ag Cooperative and Odegaard Aviation.

I ask the U.S. Senate to join me in congratulating Kindred, ND, and its residents on their first 125 years and in wishing them well through the next century. By honoring Kindred and all the other historic small towns of North Dakota, we keep the pioneering frontier spirit alive for future generations. It is places such as Kindred that have helped to shape this country into what it is today, which is why the fine community of Kindred is deserving of our recognition.

Kindred has a proud past and a bright future.

125TH ANNIVERSARY OF DAWSON, NORTH DAKOTA

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I rise today to honor a community in North Dakota that is celebrating its 125th anniversary. On July 2, the residents of Dawson, ND, gathered to celebrate their community’s history and founding.

Dawson is a small town in south central North Dakota with a population of approximately 75. Despite its small size, Dawson holds an important place in North Dakota’s history. The Sibley Expedition helped begin the settlement of this area, but it was the railroad’s expansion that was responsible for Dawson’s birth. J. Dawson Thompson, along with Frederick D. Hager and Robert E. Wallace established the city of Dawson in 1880. This town started with a windmill and a water tower and later developed into an important city. As a railroad center, it was responsible for welcoming early settlers.

As the first established city of Kidder County, Dawson has experienced many changes over the years. Today, Mayor Rand Loveness leads this great city. Known for its excellent hunting and fishing, Dawson attracts a wide variety of sportsmen. Although small in size, Dawson has found ways to touch the lives of many people. Dawson has served thousands of children and adults through Camp Grassick. This camp specializes in giving people with disabilities and special needs a wonderful summer camp experience. The Veterans Memorial Wall in Dawson is another example of how this town has given back to its community. This wall honors 1,010 veterans serving from the Crimean War to the gulf war.

I ask the U.S. Senate to join me in congratulating Dawson, ND, and its residents on their first 125 years and in wishing them well through the next century. By honoring Dawson and all the other historic small towns of North Dakota, we keep the pioneering frontier spirit alive for future generations. It is places such as Dawson that have helped to shape this country into what it is today, which is why this fine community is deserving of our recognition.

Dawson has a proud past and a bright future.

100TH ANNIVERSARY OF LANKIN, NORTH DAKOTA

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I rise today to honor a community in North Dakota that is celebrating its 100th anniversary. On July 2, the residents of Lankin, ND, celebrated their community’s history and founding.

Lankin is a small town in the northwestern part of North Dakota. Despite its small size, Lankin holds an important place in North Dakota’s history. The site was originally named “Young” for G.W. Young, a Park River lawyer and former teacher. He established the post office in 1898 and John Matajeck became the first postmaster. The name was changed to Lankin on July 27, 1905, when John Lankin became postmaster and the townsite was established on the Soo Line Railroad. Lankin was officially incorporated as a city in 1937. Lankin’s residents were Jack McDonald, a trumpet player with Philip Sousa’s famous band and Herman Wittasek, a member of Lankin’s 1930 State Class C High School basketball champions, who is considered to be North Dakota’s first professional player of the sport.

Today Lankin is a delightful community in which to live and work. Lankin is home to a number of businesses, including a grain elevator, post office, bank, restaurant and an American Legion Club. There is also an active volunteer fire department and EMS squad.

The community hosted a variety of festivities during its centennial celebration. On Friday, it held an all-school reunion, banquet and dance. Saturday kicked off with a parade and that will be followed by a day of entertainment featuring games, music, a three-on-three basketball tournament and a fireworks display that evening. The weekend will close with a church service and picnic on Sunday.

I ask the U.S. Senate to join me in congratulating Lankin, ND, and its residents on their first 100 years. By honoring Lankin, ND, we keep the pioneering frontier spirit alive for future generations. It is places such as Lankin that have helped to shape this country into what it is today, which is why this fine community is worthy of our recognition.

Lankin possesses a proud past and a bright future.

100TH ANNIVERSARY OF MCCUSKY, NORTH DAKOTA

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I rise today to honor a community in North Dakota that is celebrating its 100th anniversary. On July 8–10, 2005, the residents of McClusky, ND, celebrated their community’s history and founding.

The community of McClusky is located at the geographic center of North Dakota, approximately 65 miles northeast of the State’s capital, Bismarck, and 50 miles east of beautiful Lake Sakakawea, a manmade lake formed by the Garrison Dam on the Missouri River. Within 45 miles of 18 lakes, McClusky is home to some of the world’s premier hunting and fishing.

Founded in 1905 as the result of railroad expansion into the area, McClusky became a bustling farming community. Farming was, and continues to be, the mainstay of McClusky. In fact, the community received its name from William Henderson McClusky, a local farmer responsible for the town’s establishment. In addition to farming, however, at this time McClusky’s 500 residents are also vital to the continued existence of numerous organizations and businesses, including 6 churches and a bed and breakfast.

I ask the U.S. Senate to join me in congratulating McClusky, ND, and its residents on their first 100 years. By honoring McClusky and all of the other historic small towns of North Dakota, we keep the pioneering frontier spirit alive for future generations. It is places such as McClusky that have helped to shape this country into what it is today, which is why this fine community is worthy of our recognition.

McClusky possesses a proud past and a bright future.

RETIREE OF LIEUTENANT COLONEL VERNON SIMMONS

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I would like to extend my best wishes to LTC Vernon Simmons who recently retired as deputy to the Director of Budget and Appropriations Liaison in the Office of the Assistant Secretary of the Air Force for Financial Management and Comptroller. Vern’s career as an Air Force officer defines service to one’s country, and I know that Vern’s dedication and leadership will be sorely missed by me and my staff, as well as his colleagues at the Air Force and the Department of Defense.

Lieutenant Colonel Simmons’ career exemplifies hard work and commitment to excellence. In 1983, he graduated with honors from Northeastern University in Boston with a bachelor of science degree in business administration. It was there that he also completed his 4-year ROTC program, prior to entering active duty. He also earned a master of arts degree in economics from the University of Oklahoma in 1994.

Vern’s first assignment was in Air Force Systems Command at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, OH. He was assigned to the program control office as a program control integrator on the F-15E aircraft. It was there that he also met his wonderful wife the former Celeste Aida Adams of Dayton, OH.

Next up for Vern was an assignment at Misawa Air Base Japan where he worked in the 432nd Tactical Fighter Wing. Vern’s leadership abilities shined through as he performed a wide variety of combat management analyses while also serving as the wing’s budget officer. For his efforts he was named Best Base Level Cost Officer of 1986 and in 1988 was the Pacific Air Force’s nominee to Ten Outstanding Young Men of America.

Upon completing 4 years in Japan, Vern once again answered the call to duty and moved to Hickam Air Force Base, HI, in June of 1990. There he joined the Pacific Air Force Headquarters staff as lead analyst for the command’s flying hours, ranges and training programs. He also served there as Chief of the mission support section, overseeing civilian pay, civil engineering, and communications and base support programs.

Following subsequent assignments at the Pentagon, Seymour Johnson AFB and Headquarters AFMC, Lieutenant Colonel Simmons returned to Washington, DC, where he assumed the duties of Assistant to the Deputy Director of Legislative Liaison Division for congressional matters. It was during this assignment that my staff and I came to know and rely on Vern. As a Senator from a State with three diverse Air Force bases, I was impressed with the most current and reliable information about policies affecting the airmen and women from my State. Vern always came through for me and my staff. Whether sacrificing his own time to travel with us to Cannon, Holloman or Kirtland Air Force Base, or providing us with important answers to questions concerning the Air Force budget, Vern was always extremely professional, courteous and responsive. Indeed, LTC Vern Simmons has been a friend to my office and a credit to the uniform of the U.S. Air Force.

Now, as Vern moves on to a new career, I wish the best for him, Celeste and their two children, Alessandra and Chad. It is with great pleasure that I recognize and pay tribute to Vern’s military service. LTC Vernon Simmons, I thank you for a job well done.

Mr. LIEBERMAN. In over 5 years on Capitol Hill, Lon Pribble has become a valued friend of the U.S. Senate and the Congress. Serving as one the Army’s primary points of contact for Senators and their staff he has assisted the Congress in understanding Army policies, actions and requirements. As a result he and the Army Senate Liaison staff have been extremely successful in providing prompt, coordinated and factual replies to all inquiries and matters involving Army issues. In addition he has provided invaluable advice to Members and their staff while planning, coordinating and accompanying Senate delegations on official travel to numerous countries worldwide. Statements on Introduced Bills and Joint Resolutions

By Mr. McCain (for himself and Mr. Dorgan):

S. 1374. A bill to amend the Homeland Security Act of 2002 to provide for a border preparedness pilot program on Indian land; read the first time.

Mr. McCain. I am pleased to introduce a bill that authorizes the Secretary or Homeland Security to establish a pilot program to enhance an Indian tribe’s response to border crimes. It was presented to me by the vice chairman of the Indian Affairs Committee, Senator Byron Dorgan, and my good friend and colleague from Arizona, Senator Jon Kyl, as original cosponsors of this bill.

This bill establishes a pilot program to enhance tribal first responder capabilities, provide assistance for surveillance technologies and communication capabilities and to facilitate coordination and cooperation with Federal, State, local, and tribal governments along the international border. The criteria for participation in the pilot program is to be prescribed by the Secretary taking into consideration the tribes’ proximity to the border and the extent to which border crossing activity impacts existing tribal resources.

This bill is substantially similar to Section 132 of S. 536, the Native American Omnibus Act of 2005, which was unanimously passed out of the Committee on Indian Affairs earlier this year. It has been modified to address several concerns including to clarify that it does not alter the original jurisdiction or traditional role of the Federal agencies responding to border crimes or any Indian tribe.

Several Indian tribes inhabit land or easily accessible to the United States and Canada and Mexico. This bill recognizes that these tribes are exceptionally vulnerable to border crimes. And, although enforcement of our immigration laws and border security is a Federal responsibility, these tribes continue to bear extraordinary costs in responding to border crimes and almost always divert funds intended for local police and welfare services to do so. For example, a tribal police officer may see suspicious drug or immigrant smuggling activity occurring within the Indian tribes’ boundaries or come upon an accident scene or deal with illegal immigrants or drug smugglers. The tribal officer is required to notify Federal officials and render aid to the injured. The Federal official may be hours away and the tribal police are usually asked to detain the suspects or possibly transport them to medical aid. Meanwhile, the tribal police agency is unable to respond to community calls for service.

Additionally, tribal police are intimately familiar with their territory and are able to provide Federal agencies with information that is useful in fulfilling their responsibilities. I recognize that Federal and State agencies play the primary role in these efforts. However, in specific areas of this Nation, tribal government police, fire and emergency services often provide the first and often only response because of their access to the border. A tribe’s proximity to the border and its responsibility for public safety and the welfare of their members requires that they respond. Simply put, Indian tribes situated close to the international border are vulnerable and greatly impacted and we must acknowledge their daily role in responding to border crimes. This bill gives them added tools to do so.

I ask unanimous consent that my remarks and the full text of the bill be included in the Record.

S. 1374

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

Subtitle D of title IV of the Homeland Security Act of 2002 (6 U.S.C. 251 et seq.) is amended by adding at the end the following:

"(a) Definitions.—In this section:

"(1) Indian Land.—The term 'Indian land' means—

"(A) any illegal entry by a person into the United States or near the border of the United States with Canada or Mexico in order to—

"(i) hold in trust by the United States for the benefit of an Indian tribe or individual; or

"(ii) held in trust by any Indian tribe or individual—

"(I) subject to a restriction by the United States against alienation; and

"(II) over which an Indian tribe exercises governmental authority.

"(2) Indian Tribe.—The term 'Indian tribe' means any Indian tribe, band, nation, or other organized group or community that is recognized by the Secretary as—

"(A) eligible for the special programs and services provided by the United States to Indians because of their status as Indians; and

"(B) possessing powers of self-government.

"(3) Tribal Government.—The term 'tribal government' means the governing body of an Indian tribe.

"(b) Purpose.—The purpose of this section is to require the Secretary, acting through the Office of Domestic Preparedness, to establish a pilot program for not fewer than 6 tribal governments on Indian land located on or near the border of the United States with Canada or Mexico in order to—

"(1) facilitate the coordination of the response of an Indian tribe to a threat to the security of an international border of the United States with the responses of Federal, State, and local governments; and

"(2) enhance the capability of an Indian tribe as a first responder to an illegal crossing of an immigrant over an international border of the United States;

"(3) provide training and technical assistance to Indian tribes in the use by the tribes of effective surveillance technologies, integrated communication systems and equipment, and personnel training; and

"(4) provide technical advice and assistance to Indian tribes to plan and implement strategies to detect and deter border crimes.

"(A) any illegal entry by a person into the land of the tribes; and

"(B) the transportation of any illegal substance within or near the boundaries of the land of the tribes.

"(c) Grant Program.—
S. 1375. A bill to amend the Indian Arts and Crafts Act of 1990 to modify provisions relating to criminal proceedings and civil actions, and for other purposes; read the first time.

Mr. MCCAIN (for himself, Mr. DORGAN, and Mr. KYL):

This bill expands the existing Federal investigative authority by authorizing other Federal investigative bodies, such as the Department of Justice, to participate in the criminal enforcement of Federal law; in addition to the FBI, to investigate cases of misrepresentation of Indian arts and crafts. This bill is substantially the same as Section 115 of the Native American Omnibus Act, S. 536, which passed out of the Committee on Indian Affairs earlier this year. This bill also addresses concerns that were raised by the administration.

A major source of tribal and individual Indian income is derived from the sale of Indian arts and crafts. Yet, today, millions of dollars are diverted each year from these original artists and Indian tribes by those who reproduce and sell counterfeited Indian goods. However, it is my understanding that, if any, criminal prosecutions have been brought in Federal court for such violations. It is understood that enforcing the criminal law that prohibits the sale of Indian arts and crafts misrepresented as an Indian product is often stalled by the other responsibilities of the FBI including investigating terrorism activity and violent crimes in Indian country. Therefore, expanding the investigatory authority to include other Federal agencies is intended to promote the active investigation of alleged misconduct. It is my hope that with this much needed change will deter those who dare to violate the act. I ask unanimous consent that text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

(A) recommend to the Attorney General that the civil proceeding be initiated under section 115 of that title; and

(B) provide such support to the Attorney General relating to the criminal proceedings as the Attorney General determines appropriate.

(d) CIVIL ACTIONS.—In lieu of, or in addition to, any criminal proceeding under subsection (a), the Board may recommend that the Attorney General initiate a civil action pursuant to section 6.

Section 6 of the Act entitled “An Act to promote the development of Indian arts and crafts and to create a board to assist therein, and for other purposes” (25 U.S.C. 3056) is amended—

(1) by striking subsection (d); and

(2) by redesignating subsections (a) through (c) as subsections (a) through (d), respectively;

(3) by inserting before subsection (b) (as redesignated by paragraph (2)) the following:

“(a) DEFINITIONS.—In this section—

(1) INDIAN.—The term ‘Indian’ means an individual that—

(A) is a member of an Indian tribe; or

(B) is certified as an Indian artisan by an Indian tribe.

(2) INDIVIDUAL Indian.—The term ‘individual Indian’ means an individual Indian income derived from the sale of Indian arts and crafts.”
The Indian Arts and Crafts Act of 1990, which I coauthored with now retired Senator Ben Nighthorse Campbell of Colorado, was enacted in response to growing sales of arts and crafts products misrepresented as being produced by Indians. It is a truth-in-advertising law, with civil and criminal provisions that prohibits the marketing of products as ‘‘Indian made’’ when such products are not made by Indians as defined by the act. It is intended to protect Indian artists and craftspeople, businesses, tribes, consumers and our cultural heritage.

Since the passage of the 1990 Act, we have had an opportunity to assess its effectiveness and make changes as necessary through the legislative process.

Last year, now retired Senator Campbell and I, on the recommendation of the Indian Arts and Crafts Board, agreed to consider amending the act to strengthen its investigative authority and enforcement provisions. The Board was concerned that the Federal Bureau of Investigation, charged with investigating violations of the act, needed some help. Fewer complaints that had been referred for investigation were being received. The law enforcement officers as defined in 18 U.S.C. Section 115 c(1). Expanding the investigative authority to include other Federal law enforcement beyond the Federal Bureau of Investigation will permit agencies with expertise in Indian issues and cultural resources, such as the Bureau of Indian Affairs law enforcement and the Department of Interior Cultural Resources, to thoroughly investigate complaints and work with Department of Justice attorneys to enforce these cases. The FBI will still have the ability to conduct such investigations should it choose to do so. I hope it will.

These amendments also recognize the importance of the Attorney General in enforcing these crimes and provide that the amendments require the transmission of all investigation reports from Federal investigators to the Attorney General. The Attorney General can work directly with the investigators, and prosecute cases that warrant prosecution, without waiting for the report to be referred by the Indian Arts and Crafts Board. This is an efficiency measure and is not designed to take away any authority the Board has to refer cases to the Attorney General. The Board will continue to receive investigative reports and make referrals.

I believe these amendments to the act will strengthen the investigative and enforcement authority under the act and increase the number of complaints that are investigated and prosecuted. These violations are serious, and we need to provide the necessary federal resources to put an end to these crimes and preserve the cultural heritage of our Native people. I look forward to swift passage of these amendments.

By Mr. COCHRAN (for himself, Mr. STEVENS, Mr. WARNER, Mr. DODD, Mr. AKAKA, and Mr. BURNS):

S. 1376. A bill to improve and expand geographic literacy among kindergarten through grade 12 students in the United States by improving professional development programs for kindergarten through grade 12 teachers offered through institutions of higher education; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

Mr. COCHRAN. Mr. President, today, I am introducing the Teaching Geography is Fundamental Act. I am pleased to be joined by Senators STEVENS, WARNER, DODD, AKAKA and BURNS. The Act’s purpose is to improve geographic literacy among K-12 students in the United States by improving professional development programs for K-12 teachers offered through institutions of higher education. The bill will assist States in measuring the impact of education in geography.

To begin to understand other people, we need to understand ourselves. Eudora Welty said that understanding begins with a sense of place. When we understand our own environment, we can better understand the differences in other places, and the people who live in them. The diversity of cultures, land, and distances between states within our nation is the first evidence we have that a good understanding of geography is necessary. According to the National Geographic Society, home is where the knowledge of geography begins.

The 2005 publication, What Works in Geography, reported that elementary school geography instruction significantly improves student achievement. And, the 2000 National Geographic Roper Global Geographic Literacy Survey shows that more than half of American adults best able to read a map had taken a high school geography course. That's the good news. Unfortunately, other recent studies show us that nearly one third of our elementary schools have reduced the number of geography courses in the last few years, and only 7 percent of our Nation's fourth graders are taught by teachers with specific undergraduate or graduate experience in geography. Geography is taught by less than 9 percent of K–12 social studies teachers and not even one quarter of high school students graduate with a geography class.

To expect that Americans will be able to work economically and diplomatically with the other people in this world, we need to be able to communicate and understand each other. It is a fact that we have a global marketplace and our citizens will continue to be part of that case. We need to be preparing our younger generations for global competition and ensuring that they have a strong base to be able to participate in future industry. Geography knowledge improves those job opportunities.

Approximately 20 percent of the U.S. GDP, that's $2.3 trillion annually, results from international trade. According to the CIA World Factbook of 2005, many U.S. workers need geographic knowledge, because global economic geography knowledge is increasingly needed for U.S. businesses in international markets. For example, the inadvertent placing of Kashmir outside of Indian territory on a time zone map had taken a high school geography course. That's the good news. Geography is taught by less than 9 percent of K–12 social studies teachers and not even one quarter of high school students graduate with a geography class.

A comprehensive geography education provides training in geospatial technologies, such as remote sensing and geographic information systems. This high-growth industry is expected to reach $30 billion in annual revenues by the end of 2005, up from $5 billion in 2002. Geospatial technologies are one of the three biggest emerging fields identified by the Department of Labor, and they are creating 75,000 new jobs annually. A strong geographic education system is a necessity for this industry's continuing advancement.

Geography literacy is essential to a well prepared citizenry in the 21st Century. Last year, then Secretary of State Colin Powell said, "To solve most of the major problems facing our county today—from wiping out terro—, to minimizing global environmental problems, to eliminating the scourge of AIDS—will require every young person to learn more about other regions, cultures, and languages."

We need to do more to ensure that the teachers responsible for the education of our students, from kindergarten through high school graduation, are prepared to participate constructively in solving those problems. Over the last 15 years, the National Geographic Society has awarded more than $100 million in grants to educators, universities, geography alliances, and others for the purposes of advancing and improving the teaching of geography. Their models are successful and research shows that students who have benefitted from this teaching out perform other students. State geography alliances exist in 19 States, including Mississippi, endowed by grants from the society. It is clear that their efforts recommend a bill establishing a Federal commitment to enhance the education of our teachers, focus on geography education research, and develop reliable, advanced technology based classroom materials.

I write this with the seriousness of the need to invest in geography and I invite other Senators to cosponsor the Teaching Geography is Fundamental Act.

By Mr. McCaIN:
S. 1379. A bill to provide increased rail transportation security to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.
Mr. McCaIN. Mr. President, we are all deeply saddened by the tragic loss of life caused by the terrorist attacks in London last week. Those incidents are a painful reminder of the cruel nature of our enemies in this war, and of what we must do to fight and win against those who wish to eradicate our way of life. I have said on many occasions that we cannot just play defense in this war, that instead we must take the fight to the enemy. Still, we must do what is possible to protect Americans at home. To that end, the Senate passed by unanimous consent last year the Rail Security Act of 2004, rail security legislation that, unfortunately, was not approved by the House of Representatives. The London bombings and the attacks on Madrid’s commuter rail system last year demonstrate all too vividly the continuing need for this legislation.

Our Nation’s transit system, Amtrak, and the freight railroads, I am sad to say, remain vulnerable to terrorist attacks. Though we have increased dramatically our security capabilities since 9/11, we have more to do. For example, since 9/11, only modest resources have been dedicated to rail security, and any effort to address rail security remain fragmented despite the constant and tragic reminders abroad that we are in desperate need of delib—erate action. In fact, the Department of Homeland Security has not yet completed a vulnerability assessment for the rail system, nor is there an integrated security plan that reflects the unique characteristics of passenger and freight rail operations. The legislation I am introducing today, which is nearly identical to the Rail Security Act of 2004, would authorize resources to ensure rail transportation security receives a high priority in our efforts to have a country safe from terrorism. The legislation directs DHS to complete a vulnerability assessment for the rail system and make recommendations for addressing security weaknesses within 180 days of enactment. It would also authorize funding to address long-standing fire and life-safety needs for several tunnels along the Northeast Corridor, and would authorize appropriations to meet immediate security needs for intercity and freight rail transportation. Furthermore, in recognition of the critical importance of air and rail integration, this legislation calls for a study of the rail industry to determine the best way to integrate rail and airport security systems.

I trust that the Senate will move quickly to once again pass this essential legislation. We owe at least that much to the American people as we continue our struggle against an enemy that wants nothing less than to destroy everything we stand for and believe in.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

S. 1379

SEC. 502. BILATERAL EFFORTS WITH MEXICO TO REDUCE MIGRATION PRESSURES AND COSTS.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress makes the following findings:
(1) Migration from Mexico to the United States is directly linked to the degree of economic opportunity and the standard of living in Mexico.

(2) Mexico comprises a prime source of migration to the United States.

(3) Remittances from Mexican citizens working in the United States reached a record high of $14 billion in 2004.

(4) Migration patterns may be reduced from Mexico to the United States by addressing the degree of economic opportunity available to Mexican citizens.

(5) Many Mexican assets are held extra-legally and cannot be readily used as collateral for loans.

(6) A majority of Mexican businesses are small or medium size with limited access to financial capital.

(7) These factors constitute a major impediment to broad-based economic growth in Mexico.

(8) Approximately 20 percent of Mexico’s population works in agriculture, with the majority of this population working on small farms and few on large commercial enterprises.

(9) The Partnership for Prosperity is a bilateral initiative launched jointly by the President of the United States and the President of Mexico in 2001, which aims to boost the social and economic conditions of Mexican citizens, particularly in regions where economic growth has lagged and emigration has increased.

(10) The Presidents of Mexico and the United States and the Prime Minister of Canada, at their trilateral summit on March 29, 2005, agreed to promote economic growth, competitiveness, and quality of life in the agreement on Security and Prosperity Partnership of North America.

(b) SENSE OF CONGRESS REGARDING PARTNERSHIP FOR PROSPERITY.—It is the sense of Congress that the United States and Mexico should accelerate the implementation of the Partnership for Prosperity to help generate economic growth and improve the standard of living in Mexico, which will lead to reduced migration between the United States and Mexico.

(2) assisting Mexico to formalize its extra-legal sector, including the issuance of formal land titles, to enable Mexican citizens to use their assets to procure capital;

(3) facilitating Mexican efforts to establish an effective rural lending system for small- and medium-sized farmers that will—
(A) provide long term credit to borrowers;
(B) develop a viable network of regional and local intermediary lending institutions; and
(C) extend financing for alternative rural economic activities beyond direct agricultural production;

(4) expanding efforts to reduce the transaction costs of remittance flows in order to increase the pool of savings available to help finance domestic investment in Mexico;

(5) encouraging Mexican corporations to adopt internationally recognized corporate governance practices, anti-corruption and transparency principles;

(6) enhancing Mexican efforts to strengthen government at all levels, including efforts to ensure transparency, honesty and to eliminate corruption, which is the single biggest obstacle to development;

(7) assisting the Government of Mexico in implementing all provisions of the Inter-American Convention Against Corruption (ratified by Mexico on May 27, 1997) and urging the Government of Mexico to participate fully in the Convention’s formal implementation monitoring mechanism;

(8) helping the Government of Mexico to strengthen education and training opportunities for its citizens, with particular emphasis on improving rural education; and

Homeland Security for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2006, and for other purposes; which was ordered to lie on the table; as follows:

TITLE VI—HAZARDOUS MATERIALS

SEC. 601. SHORT TITLE; FINDINGS.

(a) SHORT TITLE.—This title may be cited as the “HAZARDOUS MATERIALS Vulnerability Reduction Act of 2005”.

(b) FINDINGS.—Congress makes the following findings:

(1) Congress has specifically given the Department of Homeland Security, working in conjunction with the Department of Transportation and other Federal agencies, the primary authority for the security of the United States transportation sector, including passenger and freight rail.

(2) This authority also includes the responsibility to protect American citizens from terrorist incidents related to the transport by rail of extremely hazardous materials.

(3) Other Federal agencies have determined that hazardous materials can be used as tools of destruction and terror and that extremely hazardous materials are particularly vulnerable to attack during transport.

(4) The Federal Bureau of Investigation and the Central Intelligence Agency have found that shipping hazardous materials to the United States and storing them in the United States is an attractive target for domestic terrorists.

(5) Rail shipments of extremely hazardous materials are often routed through highly attractive targets and densely populated areas, including within a few miles of the White House and United States Capitol.

(6) According to security experts, certain extremely hazardous materials present a mass casualty terrorist potential rivaled only by nuclear devices, certain acts of bioterrorism, and the collapse of large occupied buildings.

(7) A report by the Chlorine Institute found that a 90-ton rail tanker, if successfully targeted by an explosive device, could cause a catastrophic release of an extremely hazardous material, creating a toxic cloud 40 miles long and 10 miles wide.

(8) The Environmental Protection Agency estimates that in an urban area a toxic cloud could extend for 14 miles.

(9) The United States Naval Research Laboratories concluded that a toxic plume of this type, created while there was a public event on the National Mall, could kill or injure up to 100,000 people in less than 30 minutes.

(10) According to security experts, rail shipments of extremely hazardous materials are particularly vulnerable and dangerous, however the Federal Government has made no material reduction in the inherent vulnerability of hazardous chemical targets inside the United States.

(11) While the safety record related to rail shipments of hazardous materials is very good, recent accidental releases of extremely hazardous materials in rural South Carolina and San Antonio, Texas, demonstrate the fatal danger posed by extremely hazardous materials.

(12) Security experts have determined that re-routing these rail shipments is the only way to immediately eliminate this danger in high threat areas, which currently puts hundreds of thousands of people at risk.

(13) Security experts have determined that the primary benefit of re-routing the shipment of extremely hazardous materials is a reduction in the number of people that would be exposed to the deadly impact of the release due to an attack, and the principal cost would be the additional operating expense associated with possible increase in-haul for the shipment of extremely hazardous materials.

(14) Less than 5 percent of all hazardous materials shipped by rail will meet the definition of extremely hazardous materials under this title.

SEC. 602. DEFINITIONS.

In this title, the following definitions apply:

(1) EXTREMELY HAZARDOUS MATERIAL.—The term “extremely hazardous material” means any chemical, toxin, or other material being shipped or stored in sufficient quantities to represent an attack threat that creates a high likelihood of causing injuries, casualties, or economic damage if successfully targeted by a terrorist attack, including materials that are—

SEC. 519. QUADRENNIAL HOMELAND DEFENSE REVIEW.

(a) IN GENERAL.—

(1) FREQUENCY AND SCOPE.—Beginning in fiscal year 2006, and every 4 years thereafter, the Secretary of Homeland Security shall conduct every 4 years, during a year following a year evenly divisible by 4, a comprehensive examination of the national homeland defense strategy, inter-agency cooperation, preparedness of Federal response assets, infrastructure, budget plan, and other elements of the homeland defense program and policies of the United States with a view toward determining and expressing the homeland defense strategy of the United States and establishing a homeland defense program for the next 20 years. Each review under this paragraph shall be known as the “quadrennial homeland defense review”.

(2) CONSULTATION.—Each quadrennial homeland defense review under paragraph (1) shall be conducted in consultation with the Attorney General of the United States and the Secretaries of State, Defense, Health and Human Services, and the Treasury.

(b) CONTENTS OF REVIEW.—Each quadrennial homeland defense review shall—

(1) determine a national homeland defense strategy consistent with the most recent National Response Plan prepared under Homeland Security Presidential Directive 5 or any directive meant to replace or augment that directive;

(2) describe the inter-agency cooperation, preparedness of Federal response assets, infrastructure, budget elements of the homeland defense program and policies of the United States associated with the EP A testified that “[o]nly a fraction of U.S. hazardous chemical facilities are currently subject to Federal security requirements and that “we cannot be sure that every high-risk chemical facility has taken voluntary action to secure itself against terrorism.”

(7) On June 15, 2005, Robert Stephan, Acting Director, Center for Information Analysis and Infrastructure Protection and Assistant Secretary for Infrastructure Protection at the Department of Homeland Security testified that the Department has concluded that from the regulatory perspective, the existing patchwork of authorities does not permit us to regulate the industry effectively. Stephen further testified “[i]t has become clear that the entirely voluntary efforts of [chemical facility] companies alone will not sufficiently address security for the entire sector” and that “The Department should develop enforceable performance standards . . . ”

(8) The Senate Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs, through a series of valuable and wide-ranging hearings, has demonstrated bipartisan commitment to effective Congressional action to protect Americans against possible terrorist attack against chemical facilities.

(b) SENSE OF THE SENATE.—It is the Sense of the Senate that the Congress should pass legislation establishing enforceable federal standards to protect against a terrorist attack on chemical facilities within the United States. that national homeland defense strategy required to execute successfully the full range of missions called for in the national homeland defense strategy delineated under paragraph (A) is one of the Nation’s largest and most advanced rail safety research centers in the Nation; and

(B) offers full-scale testing, dynamic modeling, performance monitoring, technical analyses, feasibility and economic studies as well as training classes to prepare first responders and test new safety technologies.

SEC. 519. RAIL TUNNEL SECURITY RESEARCH.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Senate finds that—

(1) the Department of Homeland Security is urged to invest in research to promote rail tunnel safety as well as training to ensure first responders are prepared to respond to rail tunnel emergencies; and

(2) employing existing Federal facilities in the effort can result in efficiencies and permit this important research to proceed at decreased cost to the taxpayer and with minimal interference with ongoing passenger and freight rail traffic.

SEC. 519. RAIL TUNNEL SECURITY RESEARCH.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Senate finds that—

(1) railroad tunnels, and underground stations have been identified as particularly high risk terrorist targets because of the potential for large passenger volumes, confined spaces, relatively unrestricted access, and the potential for network disruptions and significant economic, political and social impact;

(2) many rail tunnels have safety problems including structural deficiencies, ventilation problems, lack of communications equipment and insufficient emergency access and exits;

(3) there are more than 808 miles of railroad tunnels in transit systems across the country;

PRIVILEGE OF THE FLOOR

Mr. BYRD. I ask unanimous consent that Senator Gaylord Nelson be given floor privileges during consideration of H.R. 2360.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

RELATIVE TO THE DEATH OF FORMER SENATOR GAYLORD A. NELSON

Mr. McCONNEL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the consideration of S. Res. 194, which was submitted earlier today.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will state the resolution by title.

A resolution (S. Res. 194) relative to the death of Senator Gaylord Nelson, a former United States Senator from the State of Wisconsin.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the resolution.

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, I rise to speak on a resolution submitted by Senator Fritz and Senator Reed to commemorate the life work of Senator Gaylord Nelson. It is with mixed emotions that I make this statement honoring Senator Nelson.

I am proud—to have known Gaylord Nelson, proud to be from the same State as him, and proud to occupy his Senate seat. I am also deeply saddened—saddened by the loss to his family, especially to his wife of 58 years, Carrie Lee; saddened by the loss to our Nation; and saddened that a personal hero and dear friend of mine is gone. I am also thankful—for Senator Nelson’s long life, thankful for the example he set of how to make a difference in this world, and thankful to his family for sharing this good and decent man with the Nation. We mourn his death, but we also celebrate his remarkable legacy.

Gaylord Anton Nelson was born on June 4, 1916, in Clear Lake, WI. Gaylord’s parents were always interested in politics, and in true Wisconsin tradition, they were La Follette Progressive Republicans at the State level and Democrats at the national level. Their Wisconsin-style progressive politics rubbed off on young Gaylord.

When he was 10, Gaylord traveled with his dad to hear a campaign speech by Senator Bob La Follette, Jr., who succeeded his father in the Senate in 1925. Gaylord recalls in his biography:

On the way back home to Clear Lake, my dad asked if I wanted to be a senator. I said yes, but I am afraid to be a senator. Dad said that Bob La Follette will solve all of our problems before I get a chance to serve.

Thirty-three years later, Gaylord was nominated to be the Democrat candidate for Governor of Wisconsin. At the 1958 Democrat convention in La Crosse, Gaylord’s father had a heart attack. When Gaylord went to see him in the hospital, the elder Nelson smiled and then said to his son, “Do you think Bob La Follette left enough problems behind for me to solve?” Gaylord’s father died 10 days later.

Unfortunately, Gaylord’s father did not get to see his son’s rise to the national political level. If he had, he would have seen Gaylord attack those “remaining problems left to solve” with La Follette-like dogged determination and commitment to Progressive politics. From consumer protection to employee rights, Senator Nelson took on the toughest problems affecting countless Americans.

Gaylord Nelson was also willing to take a tough stand. When President Johnson requested money to escalate the war in Vietnam, for example, Nelson was one of three senators to vote against the proposal. In a speech on this floor, he said:

At a time in history when the Senate should be vindicating its historic reputation as the greatest deliberative body in the world, we are stumbling over each other to see who can say “yes” the quickest and the loudest. I regret it, and I think some day we shall all regret it... Reluctantly, I express my opposition... here by voting ‘nay.’ The support in the Congress for this measure is clearly overwhelming. Obviously, you need my vote less than I need my conscience.

Whether it was issues of war and foreign affairs, worker safety and health, or access to affordable healthcare, Gaylord Nelson was guided by his consciences and by the Wisconsin conscience. Out of his impressive record, however, one issue stands out as central to his legacy—Gaylord Nelson’s passion and commitment to protecting our environment.

Not many people who have served in this distinguished body can lay claim to a day, but Gaylord Nelson can. On April 22, 1970, Gaylord Nelson created a day to celebrate the glory of the Earth. Where did Nelson get his lifelong interest and dedication to the environment? By osmosis. Nelson would say, “while growing up in Clear Lake, WI.”

It’s true that Wisconsin has a tradition of great conservationists—Aldo Leopold, author of A Sand County Almanac; Sigurd Olson, one of the founders of the Wilderness Society; and John Muir, founder of the Sierra Club. The people of Wisconsin, living in such a beautiful land and ecologically diverse State, feel a special connection to our natural resources. We share a long tradition of our State government achieving excellence in its conservation policies. Many Wisconsinites would agree with Senator Nelson that our conservation ethic comes “by osmosis” from the intense natural beauty of our State. Every year I hold a town hall meeting in each one of Wisconsin’s 72 counties, and protecting the environment is always one of the top issues raised at these forums.

Senator Nelson’s vision and determination helped crystallize this Wisconsin conservation ethic into an international phenomenon. Thanks to Gaylord Nelson, Wisconsin can lay claim to the genesis of Earth Day, a day that reflects national and international reflection on the importance of our natural resources and a clean environment. Thanks to him, for the past 35 years, people around the world have taken time out of our lives to think about, learn about and dedicate themselves to conservation. An astonishing 20 million Americans—10 percent of the U.S. population at the time—participated in the first observance of Earth Day on April 22, 1970. American Heritage magazine described the event as "one of the most remarkable happenings in the history of democracy." The day was marked by marches, rallies, teach-ins, and concerts. Fifth Avenue was closed for two hours and over 100,000 people celebrated Earth Day on Union Square in New York City.

Earth Day has become an important part of who we are. From Milwaukee, WI to Mumbai, India, millions of people across the world have taken Senator Nelson's legacy to heart. People have dedicated thousands of hours to volunteer to conserve the environment—whether it's in their backyard, local river, or park.

During his years of service in the Senate, Gaylord Nelson brought about significant changes for the "greener" in both our Nation's laws and the institution of the Senate itself. He was the co-author of the Environmental Education Act, which he sponsored with the senior Senator from Massachusetts, Mr. Kennedy, and the Wild and Scenic Rivers Act, and he sponsored the amendment to give the St. Croix and the Namekagon Rivers scenic protections.

In the wake of Rachel Carson's book Silent Spring, Gaylord Nelson, along with Senator Philip Hart of Michigan, directed national attention to the documented persistent bioaccumulative effects of organochlorine pesticides used in the Great Lakes by authoring the ban on DDT in 1972. He was the primary sponsor of the Apostle Islands National Lakeshore Act, protecting one of Northern Wisconsin's most beautiful areas.

It is Gaylord's lasting credit that he was able to fight tenaciously for environmental and other causes without alienating or antagonizing a soul. His decency, modesty and charm won over even those who didn't share his goals. By all accounts, he was one of the most beloved members this body has seen. And though Gaylord is gone, he lives as the founder of Earth Day and the inspiration for millions of others—200 million people in 170 countries participate.

Earth Day publicized in an unprecedented manner the dangers of poisons in our water and air, pesticides in our drinking water, and chemicals in our soil. Armed with information and a spirit of activism, Americans turned their Earth Day celebrations into a movement pressuring Congress and the President to pass the Clean Air Act, the Clean Water Act, the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act, and Superfund legislation. These are the foundation of our environmental law today, and they would not have been possible without the work and vision of Senator Gaylord Nelson.

Senator Gaylord Nelson left the Senate in 1981, he never stopped working for the Earth and environment, going on to lead the Wilderness Society's important work on environmental conservation. In 1990, he received the Adventure and Heritage Conservation Award, given to a Federal official who has shown tireless commitment to the cause of conservation and the fostering of an American land ethic. In 1992, the United Nations Environment Programme presented Gaylord Nelson with the Only One World Award. And in 1995, Senator Nelson received the Nation's highest civilian award: the Presidential Medal of Freedom. On that day, President Clinton proclaimed: "As the Father of Earth Day, he is the grandparent of all that spring out of that event: the Environmental Protection Act, the Clean Air Act, the Clean Water Act, the Safe Drinking Water Act..."

Senator Gaylord Nelson worked not just for our State, or even just our country. His gift was to the Earth and his legacy, a cleaner, healthier world. And though Gaylord is gone, he lives on—for us and into the future—in every clear stream, breath of fresh air and virgin trail. We honor him by thinking as he did, globally and responsibly. We honor him by—on every day, not just Earth day—taking seriously our responsibility to the air, land and water that sustain us.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the resolution be agreed to, the preamble be agreed to, and the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The resolution (S. Res. 194) was agreed to.

The preamble was agreed to.

THE HON. JUDGE KMIOTEK OF THE CHEEKTOWAGA TOWN COURT
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, July 11, 2005

Mr. Higgins, Mr. Speaker, I stand here before you and this body to recognize the Honorable Judge Ronald E. Kmiotek, a man who has dedicated 38 years of devoted service protecting the public.

Judge Kmiotek began his life of public service nearly four decades ago by taking a civil service test. He scored high enough to be offered positions with the New York State Police as well as the Border Patrol Service. However, the love he had for his home town of Cheektowaga, New York was too great to accept those positions. As a result he chose to serve with the Cheektowaga Police Department.

For 25 years Judge Kmiotek valiantly served the Town of Cheektowaga as a guardian of the peace; while doing so he ascended to the rank of detective. Following his 25th year of service, he retired from the force or 5 years he expanded his services to the entire County of Erie while working as a Confidential Criminal Investigator for the Erie County District Attorney’s Office.

In 1994, Judge Kmiotek truly transcendened the boundaries of political parties, when without a single party endorsement he was elected to the town Court of Cheektowaga by an overwhelming majority. The people he so carefully served displayed their gratitude toward the Judge that day. He not only won, but carried the five most prolific party lines in the area.

Putting away DWI offenders was not the only thing the Judge has accomplished during his tenure. In 1997, Judge Kmiotek instituted a drug court. At the time it was only the second in the entire country. His court achieved a near 60 percent success rate, as well as seeing 98 percent of the people who successfully completed the program continuing to be sober to this day.

The Drug Court not only helped rehabilitate the narcotics offenders to reemerge into society as productive citizens, but also saved the County nearly $3 million a year in healthcare costs.

When the Judge wasn’t taking time out of his day to meet with the participants in the Drug Court program, or making the streets of Cheektowaga safer to drive on, he was spending time with his adoring family. He and his wife Irene have raised three wonderful children who have given them five equally remarkable grandchildren.

Mr. Speaker, on behalf of the residents of the Town of Cheektowaga and all of New York’s 27th Congressional District, I extend my sincerest gratitude to the Honorable Ronald Kmiotek for his enduring commitment to making Western New York a safer place to live.

IN RECOGNITION OF AMERICA’S ORCHESTRAS

HON. DENNIS J. KUCINICH
OF OHIO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, July 11, 2005

Mr. KUCINICH, Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize the important artistic contributions and community value of America’s 1,800 orchestras.

This country’s symphony, chamber, youth, and collegiate orchestras are among our Nation’s most important cultural resources, which provide inspiration and enjoyment to more than 30 million individuals annually in cities, towns, and rural areas throughout the United States. They have shown a commitment to reaching all segments of their communities through education and community engagement programs.

In particular, I would like to honor and recognize the Cleveland Youth Orchestra. This orchestra, comprised of musically gifted middle and high school students, provides young people with a rare opportunity to work directly with musicians of the Cleveland Orchestra and conductors to further develop their musical skills. Each year, members of the orchestra perform various concerts throughout the northern Ohio region, helping to enrich our community’s artistic experiences. The youth and diversity of the musicians in these programs provide a compelling model of what young musicians of all backgrounds can achieve when they are given such a wonderful opportunity. I can personally attest to the amazing talents of these gifted young musicians. I have several CDs of the orchestra's music, which I enjoy very much.

I am pleased to join with a bipartisan coalition of members in co-sponsoring House Concurrent Resolution 157, which recognizes the invaluable contributions orchestras have made to our communities.

I urge my colleagues to join me in recognizing the wonderful talents brought forth by this country's orchestras, including the amazing young musicians of the Cleveland Youth Orchestra.

Ms. Alexandra Brady of Palm Beach Gardens has dedicated her time fundraising for two different cancer groups. One is her local cancer organization, while the other is the "Comfort Bag Project," a program that brings goody bags to young victims of cancer at St. Mary's Children's Hospital. In addition to these notable achievements, Alexandra has spent the last 4 years teaching in a local children's camp.

Ms. Carolyn Cox of Palm Beach Gardens volunteers at the Jupiter Medical Center where she assists the hospital staff. Regen has also put in over 300 hours as a starter for her school's JV basketball team.

Ms. Elizabeth Folmar of Palm Beach Gardens has been involved with the Safe Harbor Rescue League, a shelter for mistreated dogs and cats, for the last 5 years. Additionally, Elizabeth volunteers at her local youth court serving as a lawyer. During her free time, Elizabeth has developed her nautical skills, navigating and skippering sailboats. This personal development activity has led her to plan a trip to the Outer Abaco islands of the Bahamas on her family sailboat.

Ms. Courtney Kneip of Palm Beach Gardens spends her time after school volunteering for a local kindergarten teacher. Courtney has participated in several community fundraisers for medical research. Pursuing her love of music, Courtney achieved a superior rating at Solo and Ensemble for her flute performance of Sonata Number 5. Courtney has spent time in French Canada where she immersed herself in the language and culture.

Mr. Kyle Lambrecht of Jupiter volunteers at his local Center for Information and Crisis Services and participates in a program that performs community outreach to the elderly. In addition, Kyle has auditioned for the All-State and Jazz Bands, performing both percussion and piano. Kyle is on both the varsity golf and tennis teams at his high school and he hopes to improve his skills in order to become one of the highest rated players.

Ms. Robin Lucas of Palm Beach Gardens serves as a mentor for the Big Brother/Big Sister Program. Robin has spent her free time organizing and participating on a fundraising committee benefiting the Headstart Preschool. Robin has studied piano and taken weekly tennis lessons in order to advance to the upper intermediate level. Furthermore, Robin spent part of her time abroad, living with a local family in Mexico, learning Spanish and gaining an understanding of Mexican history and culture.

Ms. Perry O'Neil of Jupiter volunteered for her high school's Academy of Finance, tutoring her fellow students in mathematics and finance. Perry also spends her time working in the school yearbook office. REMEMBERING THE LIFE OF GERALD R. PIGEON

HON. BRIAN HIGGINS
OF NEW YORK

Monday, July 11, 2005

Mr. HIGGINS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to the life and memory of Mr. Gerald R. Pigeon, a resident of Western New York who dedicated his life to his country, his community and his family—a life cut short by a tragic accident on July 9, 2005.

Mr. Higgins is the representative of Buffalo, New York. Mr. Pigeon was born on July 18, 1936 and as a young man attended South Park High School, where he graduated in 1954.
In 1956, Mr. Pigeon left Western New York on a mission to serve this great Nation. For the next 6 years he was trained as an air traffic controller in the United States Air Force. Following an honorable discharge, Mr. Pigeon used the skills he learned in the military to earn a living in St. Louis and Chicago.

After starting a family with his wife, Barbara, in 1972 Mr. Pigeon decided to come back to his hometown and raise his children in the Town of West Seneca, a suburb of Buffalo.

Upon returning Mr. Pigeon earned a bachelor's degree in psychology from the State University of New York at Buffalo, after which he devoted his energy as a public servant in the Town of West Seneca Department of Building and Grounds, where he worked for the next 24 years.

In addition to his commitment to his job, Mr. Pigeon was enthusiastically involved in his community as a coach and referee for the West Seneca Youth Hockey Organization, a member of the Father Baker Council, Knights of Columbus, a fourth-degree member of Father John Schaus Council 4652 Knights of Columbus and a parishioner of Queen of Heaven Catholic Church.

Mr. Pigeon passed down his love for public service to his children including his son Steven who earned a law degree, was elected by the residents of Erie County's 9th District to serve in the Erie County Legislature and lead the County's Democratic Party as Chairman of the Erie County Democratic Committee.

In addition to leaving behind a legacy of service to this community, Mr. Pigeon leaves behind a loving family including his wife of 48 years, two daughters, one son, four siblings, eleven grandchildren and step-grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Thank you Mr. Speaker, for allowing me to recognize Mr. Gerald R. Pigeon, a man whose spirit and involvement has made a lasting mark on the Western New York Community.

IN HONOR OF THE 100TH ANNIVERSARY OF ST. BARBARA ROMAN CATHOLIC CHURCH

HON. DENNIS J. KUCINICH
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, July 11, 2005

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in honor and recognition of the parish community of St. Barbara Roman Catholic Church, as members and leaders celebrate 100 years of faith and hope throughout Cleveland's south-west side. Throughout the past century, St. Barbara’s Parish has served as a spiritual refuge, opening its doors to individuals and families in search of guidance and peace.

The ministry of St. Barbara’s began in 1905, serving Polish immigrant families who settled near Henninger and Denison Roads. Father Albert Migdalski was appointed as the first pastor. Pastor Migdalski and a small yet dedicated group of parishioners led the effort to construct St. Barbara’s first permanent home. On Christmas Day in 1907, Pastor Migdalski celebrated the first mass at the new church building, constructed on the corner of Valley Road and Elston Avenue. A church hall and pastoral residence were also built on the grounds.

Since that time, a number of pastors and parishioners have served as critical guides in the journey of the faithful at St. Barbara's Church. Over the years, the parish community of St. Barbara’s has evolved and grown, and has also survived numerous struggles and hardships. Tragedy struck St. Barbara's in 1916, when a fire completely destroyed the church. Eventually, because of its committed members and leaders, St. Barbara’s Church and School were built near West 15th and Denison Avenue. The school operated for more than 40 years, until financial struggles forced its closure in 1969.

Mr. Speaker and Colleagues, please join me in honor and recognition of every past and current member and spiritual leader of St. Barbara's Church. Despite hardship and adversity, St. Barbara’s parish continues to provide a haven of faith, guidance, renewal and support for more than 350 families, along Cleveland’s southwest side and far beyond.

HONORING RAYMOND DUNNING, JR.

HON. MICHAEL C. BURGESS
OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, July 11, 2005

Mr. BURGESS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor the service and commitment of Raymond Dunning Jr. Mr. Dunning has served his community in a variety of capacities his entire life, and I would like to take the opportunity to recognize this man’s life on the eve of his retirement.

Throughout his life, Mr. Dunning has been selfless, starting with his commitment to excellence in the Reserve Officers' Training Corps (ROTC) program during his college years at Denison University. In 1956, he rose to the rank of Captain, was awarded the Bronze Star, and then was selected from thousands of applicants to receive a Regular Army Commission of Second Lieutenant upon graduation in 1956. While serving in Vietnam, he rose to the rank of Captain, was awarded the Bronze Star with "V" Device in May of 68, and then in August of 68 he received a Bronze Star with First Oak Leaf Cluster.

Since his discharge from the army, Mr. Dunning has worked tirelessly to improve the lives of those around him, both through his professional career and in his spare time. He worked with a hospital management company which helped troubled hospitals get back on their feet. Since moving to Lewisville, in his capacity as President and CEO of the hospital system, Mr. Dunning has worked hard to improve the local health care system by helping to expand the hospital system and also by improving the standard of care. The hospital has more than doubled its bed capacity and added a new ICU and a cardiovascular line.

Many men would be happy with those professional accomplishments, but it is what Mr. Dunning has done in his spare time that resulted in him being named Lewisville’s Citizen of the year in 1994. He has served on the Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors, helped to grow the local golf tournament, participated in committees dedicated to improving the local police and school systems, and volunteered to be the director of the local United Way. This is just a short list of the many hats he has worn to help the Lewisville area grow and flourish.

It is with great honor I stand here today to recognize a man who has touched so many people on a personal level and asked nothing in return.

MAKING SUPPLEMENTAL APPROPRIATIONS FOR VETERANS MEDICAL SERVICES

SPEECH OF

HON. E. CLAY SHAW, JR.
OF FLORIDA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, June 20, 2005

Mr. SHAW. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H.R. 3130 because it provides much needed medical care funding for our Nation’s veterans.

As we approach our Nation’s 229th birthday, we reflect upon what has kept the United States as a free and sovereign Nation—it is our veterans, who have fought to protect the freedoms we cherish every day.

The passage of H.R. 3130 is critical, as it provides nearly $1 billion in emergency funding for the Department of Veterans Affairs to continue treating veterans’ health care needs. We made a promise to our veterans to provide them with health care when they made a promise to our Nation to defend us from evils around the world.

Since 1995, Congress has doubled the spending for each veteran. In just the last five years, Congress has increased spending on veterans health care by $10 billion—and this is not counting the additional funding, nearly $1 billion, in H.R. 3130.

H.R. 3130 solidifies the fact that the House of Representatives stands committed to ensuring that the needs of our Nation’s veterans are met.

I urge all my colleagues to vote in favor of this very important legislation. I continue to hold all armed forces veterans in the highest regard and pray for the safety of those currently serving in the armed forces around the world.
SMITHFIELD HAS LONG BEEN KNOWN THROUGHOUT THE UNITED STATES AS THE LEADING PRODUCER OF PORK AND OTHER OUTSTANDING MEAT PRODUCTS. THIS SPRING, SMITHFIELD FOODS EARNED ANOTHER IMPORTANT DISTINCTION. IT WAS CERTIFIED BY THE INTERNATIONAL STANDARDS ORGANIZATION (ISO) IN GENEVA, SWITZERLAND AS HAVING MET OR EXCEEDED THE ISO'S HIGH STANDARDS FOR ENVIRONMENTAL MANAGEMENT. IT HAS ACHIEVED ITS AGGRESSIVE GOAL OF ISO 14001 CERTIFICATION FOR ALL ENVIRONMENTAL MANAGEMENT SYSTEMS, EMSs, IN ITS U.S.-BASED HOG PRODUCTION, AND ALL ITS U.S. PORK AND BEEF PROCESSING FACILITIES, EXCEPT RECENT ACQUISITIONS.

SMITHFIELD IS THE FIRST DOMESTIC PROCESSOR OF MEAT TO EARN CERTIFICATION UNDER THE ISO 14001 STANDARD—that is the gold standard for environmental stewardship not just in the United States but across the globe. TO OBTAIN ISO CERTIFICATION FOR ITS ENVIRONMENTAL PRACTICES, A COMPANY MUST MEET A RIGOROUS AND COMPREHENSIVE SET OF STANDARDS DEVELOPED BY MORE THAN 2,000 EXPERTS WORLDWIDE. IT IS A DISTINCTION THAT IS A CREDIT TO SMITHFIELD'S LEADERSHIP, AND TO ITS ENTIRE WORKFORCE.

THIS WAS NOT THE FIRST MILESTONE THAT SMITHFIELD HAS ACHIEVED FOR ITS STEWARDSHIP OF OUR NATURAL RESOURCES. LAST MONTH, OUR COMMONWEALTH'S DEPARTMENT OF ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY, DEQ, AWARDED EIGHT SMITHFIELD FOODS FACILITIES WITH ITS VIRGINIA ENVIRONMENTAL EXCELLENCE PROGRAM DESIGNATIONS. SIX SMITHFIELD FACILITIES RECEIVED EXEMPLARY ENVIRONMENTAL ENTERPRISE, E3, STATUS, AND TWO OTHERS ACHIEVED ENVIRONMENTAL ENTERPRISE, E2, STATUS.

AS OUR STATE'S SECRETARY OF NATURAL RESOURCES, I MADE THESE ACHIEVEMENTS IN ENVIRONMENTAL PERFORMANCE AND MANAGEMENT PRIORITY. THIS E3 DESIGNATION SHOWS THAT THE COMPANY HAS MADE SIGNIFICANT IMPROVEMENTS IN THE MANAGEMENT OF ITS FACILITIES IN ORDER TO PROTECT VIRGINIA'S ENVIRONMENT. SMITHFIELD HAS RECEIVED OTHER AWARDS FROM STATES AND COMMUNITIES ACROSS OUR GREAT COUNTRY.

MR. SPEAKER, WHAT IS PARTICULARLY SIGNIFICANT ABOUT THESE MILESTONES IS THAT THEY HAVE BEEN ACHIEVED LESS THAN 10 YEARS AFTER SMITHFIELD FOODS RECEIVED A LARGE CIVIL FINE UNDER THE CLEAN WATER ACT FOR DISCHARGES INTO THE PAGAN RIVER IN VIRGINIA.

SO WHAT DID SMITHFIELD DO? IN RESPONSE TO THOSE EVENTS AND OTHERS, SMITHFIELD EMBRACED WHAT ONE EXECUTIVE RECENTLY DESCRIBED AS A "CULTURE SHIFT" IN ITS APPROACH TO ENVIRONMENTAL ISSUES. SMITHFIELD HAS EMBRACED THE SIMPLE IDEA THAT PROTECTING THE ENVIRONMENT IS NOT JUST THE RIGHT THING TO DO, BUT SMART BUSINESS AS WELL. AND BECAUSE SMITHFIELD FOODS HAS EMBRACED ENVIRONMENTAL STEWARDSHIP THROUGHOUT THE COMPANY, IN MANY CASES GOING BEYOND WHAT IS REQUIRED BY OUR LAWS, MY DISTRICT AND MANY OTHER PARTS OF THE UNITED STATES ARE BETTER PLACES TO LIVE AND WORK.

MR. SPEAKER, I COMMEND SMITHFIELD FOODS ON ITS ENVIRONMENTAL TURMOIL AND THE RECENT RECOGNITION IT HAS RECEIVED FOR THAT PROGRESS IN MY DISTRICT AND ACROSS THE COUNTRY. I AM CONFIDENT THAT SMITHFIELD WILL STAY ON THIS COURSE IN THE YEARS AHEAD.

REMEMBERING BOUNCER SENA

HON. TOM UDALL
OF NEW MEXICO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, July 11, 2005

Mr. UDALL of New Mexico. Mr. Speaker, it is with a heavy heart that I arise today to pay homage to John "Bouncer" Sena who passed away on June 26, 2005 at the age of 77. A mentor, friend and family man, he leaves behind relatives who loved him, friends who admired him, students who respected him and a city that mourns him. At age eleven, John was told that he looked like a "bouncer" and the nickname stuck with him the rest of his life. As a sophomore, Bouncer Sena was a tackle on the Santa Fe
Mr. Maziarski earned his Master of Science (MS) degree and his Bachelors of Science degree in nursing (BSN) from the University of Nebraska at Omaha. He was educated in the art and science of Nurse Anesthesia at the Albany Medical Center, School of Nurse Anesthesia, Albany, NY. He spent 21 years as an officer in the U.S. Army Nurse Corps, first as an anesthesia provider and then as an educator in the Academy of Health Sciences Schools of Nurse Anesthesia and was a Director of the Phase I (clinical) and also a Director of Phase II (academic) portions of the Nurse Anesthesia programs. He retired as a Lieutenant Colonel at Beaumont Army Medical Center, El Paso, Texas. He also spent one year as Chief Nurse Anesthetist of the 93rd Evac Hospital, in Long Binh, Viet Nam during July, 1968–July, 1969. He is currently a practicing nurse anesthetist and owner of Allied Anesthesia Associates, which provides anesthesia services in and around the Shoreline, Washington area, in my congressional district.

Mr. Maziarski has held various leadership positions in the AANA as President-Elect, Vice-President, and Regional Director before becoming the National President of the AANA in 2004. In addition, Frank has served as President, President-Elect, Vice-president, Treasurer, and Member of the Board of Directors for the Washington Association of Nurse Anesthetists (WANA). He was also appointed by Governor Gary Locke to the Washington State Nursing Care Quality Assurance Commission from 1997–2004 and was elected as its chair twice during his tenure.

Adding to his professional accomplishments, Mr. Maziarski has been recognized for both publishing and speaking on anesthesia-related topics over the years. He has taken his experience and knowledge from the workplace and AANA leadership roles to lecture on political and academic anesthesia related topics before different professional groups. During his AANA Presidency, Mr. Maziarski has played important roles in advocating for the practice of nurse anesthesia and its patients before Medicare and other Federal agencies, promoted anesthesia patient safety through vigorous participation in the interdisciplinary National Guidelines for the Prevention of Prone of wellness among practitioners in this high-stress profession. In addition, Mr. Maziarski directed that the AANA be represented before three key subcommittees of this Congress, in which members of this organization testified about the importance of nurse anesthesia education, the need to maintain the role of CRNAs in the Veterans’ Affairs health system, and the dedication with which CRNAs have provided safe anesthesia care to members of the U.S. Armed Forces at home and abroad.

It is my understanding that under Mr. Maziarski’s leadership, the AANA continued to foster an important line of communication with the American Society of Anesthesiologists (ASA). While these organizations of anesthesiology professionals have not always seen eye-to-eye, both the AANA and ASA are working to ensure the safe administration of powerful anesthesia drugs, and have shared interest in developing new paradigms of anesthesia care with respect to Medicare regulations governing locked anesthesia carts. These two societies’ professional working relationship may not have been possible without the continued initiati of AANA President Maziarski and his ASA counterpart.

Mr. Speaker, I ask my colleagues to join me today in recognizing Mr. Frank Maziarski, CRNA, MS, CLNC, for his notable career and outstanding achievements.

SPREAD OF
HON. EARL POMEROY
OF NORTH DAKOTA

Friday, June 24, 2005

The House in Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union had under consideration the bill, (H.R. 3010) making appropriations for the Departments of Labor, Health and Human Services, and Education, and Related Agencies for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2006, and for other purposes:

Mr. POMEROY. Mr. Chairman, I rise today to say that I will be voting for H.R. 3010, the fiscal year 2006 Labor, Health and Human Services, Education Appropriations bill with the hope that funding levels in the bill will be increased during conference negotiations with the Senate. While I support many of the funding provisions in this legislation, I also believe that this bill shortchanges important needs in education and health care.

I am deeply alarmed that this funding plan not only continues to break the funding promise of the No Child Left Behind Act, NCLB, but it actually takes a step backwards. Under this bill, NCLB funding would fall $13.2 billion short of what was promised when the law was passed, translating to a 33.3 percent decrease from 2005. I am convinced that this law’s success will depend in part on the investment made in this effort.

Not only does this bill fall short on critical funding for education, it also makes damaging cuts to rural health assistance. As co-chair of the Rural Health Care Coalition, I am disturbed by two damaging cuts that would compromise access to quality care in rural areas. The legislation eliminates funding for Rural Health Research Center grant programs that analyze how federal policies impact rural providers, in addition to drastic cuts funding for Rural Health Outreach grants by over 70 percent. Outreach grants are used to develop innovative approaches to health problems that are specific to rural communities. If these cuts are retained in conference, 146 rural communities will lose $13 million dollars in outreach projects. I urge the Senate to provide full funding to these critical rural programs, and I intend to actively support the restoration of these funds in conference.

This bill does include many provisions that I applaud. I was pleased that the Rural Education Achievement Program once again received funding to help rural districts manage the No Child Left Behind Act’s new accountability requirements, but I strongly believe this program merits an increase in funding. I was also pleased that this bill maintains funding for rural hospital flexibility grants and small hospital improvement grants.

Ultimately, I cast my vote in favor of this legislation in order to ensure that the appropriations process could move forward. I remain hopeful that the Senate will include higher funding levels for these programs and that we can work on a bipartisan basis to develop a fiscally responsible funding plan that provides adequate resources to strengthen our schools, address our public health needs, and support our Nation’s workers.

MILITARY PERSONNEL FINANCIAL SERVICES PROTECTION ACT

SPREAD OF
HON. GEOFF DAVIS OF KENTUCKY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, June 27, 2005

Mr. DAVIS of Kentucky. Mr. Speaker, today, I rise in support of Title II in my legislation, H.R. 458. Title II regulates so-called “military lenders,” and provides significant safeguards to protect our armed services personnel from abusive consumer credit lending and collection practices.

A number of lenders target military personnel. While most lenders treat their customers fairly, some of these creditors engage in deceptive sales and marketing practices and employ coercive debt collection practices. I know about companies like Pioneer Financial that engage in predatory lending with high rates and hidden fees and frequently refinance loans to generate more fees for the lender while providing little or no benefit to the servicemember.

Like many others, I myself, Mr. Speaker, while a young officer in the military, was misled into thinking that the military was endorsing these types of lenders and loan products. I also know that in some instances, lenders go as far to garnish military personnel’s wages or impound their government deposits. This violates the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act and the Uniform Services +/-50 Bill. I have strong concerns about lenders that forcefully demand that military personnel do not understand or appreciate their borrowing options or rights or what can happen if they do not carefully manage their finances after taking out a loan to pay off or consolidate old debts. Accordingly, under Title II, prior to the consummation of a loan transaction, military lenders also would be required to provide detailed disclosures.

Mr. Speaker, in the last Congress, each of the Members who serve on both the House Armed Services and Financial Services Committees expressed concerns about these types of lenders, including predatory lenders and some payday lenders, taking advantage of members of our armed forces.

As the newest Member to serve on both committees, I endorsed my colleagues’ views by adding these special protections for military borrowers in Title II of H.R. 458, to ensure that all high interest lenders comply with essential safeguards that protect our men and women in the armed forces.

TRIBUTE TO COLONEL JOHN C. GOECHTUIS

HON. IVE SKELETON OF MISSOURI
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, July 11, 2005

Mr. SKELETON. Mr. Speaker, let me take this means to recognize the outstanding service of Colonel John C. Goechtius, who will retire this October after 29 years service while working for the United States Army and the Secretary of the Army Legislative Liaison. Colonel John Goechtius is a decorated and distinguished soldier.

Colonel Goechtius began his career as a United States Military Academy graduate. Class of 1976, and was immediately selected to lead our Nation's sons and daughters. During his career, he has endured the hardships of deployments and separation. As one of many testaments to his professionalism and accomplishments in defense of our Nation, in 2002 he was awarded the Defense Superior Service Award for his leadership as the Command of the United States Military Group, El Salvador.

Most recently, Colonel Goechtius served the soldiers and civilians of the Office of the Chief of Legislative Liaison (OCLL) in the capacity of the Executive Officer to the Chief of Legislative Liaison. Colonel Goechtius's last assignment was a capstone of nearly 30 years of service to the United States Army. As the Executive Officer Colonel Goechtius was the principal assistant to the Chief of Legislative Liaison, responsible for the formulation, coordination, and execution of policies governing the Army's relationship with Congress. He personally coordinated the efforts of the seven Division 100 person OCLL Organization with wide ranging responsibilities to manage all U.S. Army Congressional contacts. Colonel Goechtius played an active role in communicating Army requirements, programs and policies to the U.S. Congress during a period of historic defense transformation and extremely high operational tempo.

Mr. Speaker, as the Army's relationship with Congress. He personally coordinated the efforts of the seven Division 100 person OCLL Organization with wide ranging responsibilities to manage all

INTRODUCING H.R. 3141
HON. MARK STEVEN KIRK OF ILLINOIS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, July 11, 2005

Mr. KIRK. Mr. Speaker, today I introduced H.R. 3141 to terminate general system preferences for imports from Brazil. I take this action because of extreme action now threatened by the current government of Brazil. Last week, that government delivered a clear threat to seize patents held by the United States. That threat was extreme, unwarranted, and will meet with certain retaliation by the United States government. Given that our economy is far larger than Brazil's, action of this type will hurt Brazil far more than the U.S. and will cause unemployment and loss of income directly due to Brazil's reckless trade policy.

In specific, Brazil threatened Abbott Laboratories, Illinois's largest employer. The doctors and scientists at Abbott helped to invent the test for HIV and invented the most powerful treatment for HIV. Scientists now are on their way to a cure for AIDS but all of this work will end if we let extreme policies seize the patents of scientists that represent the only hope for a cure.

In Brazil, anti-HIV drugs already sell for only half the price of the same drugs in the U.S. In my judgment, this proposed action to seize U.S. patents is only a subterfuge to not only produce the drug in Brazil but also to export it to other countries on the black market—all in direct violation of Brazil's solemn obligations to the WTO.

The bill I introduced today will cancel $2 billion in Brazilian exports. If Brazil takes this action, further actions will follow to the detriment of Brazil.

Mr. Speaker, I have reviewed this matter with the Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee and Speaker HASTERT. They share my concerns and would strongly urge Brazil to reconsider extreme threats that will—in the long run—hurt Brazil far more than the U.S.

STANDING IN SOLIDARITY WITH THE PEOPLE OF GREAT BRITAIN

HON. PETER T. KING OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, July 11, 2005

Mr. KING of New York. Mr. Speaker, the American people proudly stand in solidarity with the people of Great Britain in the wake of last Thursday's murderous attacks in the city of London.

It is tragic whenever anyone, anywhere is brutally and senselessly murdered. The carnage and bloodshed in London last week, however, were particularly poignant and moving to Americans because we have had no more resolute ally or steadfast friend in the war against terrorism than the British people and their leader, Prime Minister Tony Blair.

Prime Minister Blair has been there from the start, visiting Ground Zero just days after the tragic attacks of September 11, 2001 and then sitting in the gallery of the House of Representatives when President Bush addressed a joint session of Congress on September 20, 2001. That was America's darkest hour and Tony Blair stood by us. For that and more America will always be in his debt.

Today's world is brutal and treacherous, We are engaged in a struggle which could well determine our survival as a civilization. British troops fight beside American troops in every theatre of that struggle and British police, law enforcement and intelligence agencies work in full concert with their American counterparts. Just as Franklin Roosevelt and Winston Churchill stood as one to lead the world through the ravages of war and as one to fight fascism, George Bush and Tony Blair stand shoulder to shoulder in the war against terrorism. And just as the British people mourned with us on September 11, we assure them that our thoughts and prayers go out to all those good people in London who were murdered in the same way as those who were injured and all of their families. They will always be remembered.
TRIBUTE TO THE ALAMO SCOUTS

HON. IVE SKELTON
OF MISSOURI
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, July 11, 2005

Mr. SKELTON. Mr. Speaker, let me take this means to recognize the fine accomplishments and storied history of the Alamo Scouts. The Alamo Scouts were the forerunners of the Army Special Forces “Green Berets.” Without their determined efforts, the United States Army’s path to victory in the Pacific would have been much harder.

I mention the Alamo Scouts today not only because they were the soldiers who had the skill and tenacity to accomplish the most top secret missions of World War II, but because as the years go their numbers are dwindling. I feel that it is important that all here today recognize the accomplishments of The Alamo Scouts and that we all pay tribute to them before they are lost to us forever.

The Alamo Scouts’ role in history has remained obscure for many years, though their role in defeating the Japanese was crucial. Their training was rigorous and their missions were top secret. Of the thousands of soldiers who the military selected, only 138 men completed their training and became Alamo Scouts. Men like Glenn L. Shirkey, Zekhle McConnell, and Conrad Vineyard completed their training and went on to participate in missions that saved the war. It was an Alamo Scout, Galen C. Kittleston, who discovered the Cabanatuan prison camp that led to the release of hundreds of prisoners of war who had been mysteriously missing. It was another Alamo Scout, Robert Shirkey, who discovered that General Tomoyuki Yamashita, The Tiger of Malaya, had returned to Northern Luzon. This gave General MacArthur the information he needed to recapture the Philippines.

Most remarkable, Mr. Speaker, is the fact that despite the Alamo Scouts’ daring and dangerous missions and despite the weeks and months spent behind enemy lines, not one Alamo Scout was ever killed in action. Even though they had the ability to defy death on the field of combat, many of the Alamo Scouts are no longer with us. Of the 138 original Alamo Scouts, only about 20 are still with us today.

Mr. Speaker, I know that you, along with the other members of Congress, will join me in honoring the Alamo Scouts and recognizing their invaluable contribution to America’s success in World War II.

H. RES. 10, FLAG DESECRATION RESOLUTION

HON. BETTY MCCOLLUM
Monday, July 11, 2005

Ms. MCCOLLUM of Minnesota. Mr. Speaker, I believe burning the flag is an offensive and disrespectful act. However, I oppose H.J. Res. 10, a resolution proposing an amendment to the Constitution authorizing the Congress to prohibit the desecration of the flag. Rather, I rise in support of the amendment offered in the form of a substitute, H. Amdt. 337, which would ensure that the First Amendment right to free speech is protected and that any statute enacted by Congress attempting to prohibit the physical desecration of the flag would remain consistent with the First Amendment.

I have confidence my colleagues on both sides of the aisle can agree that the liberty and freedom guaranteed by our Constitution, and symbolized by our grand old flag, is our Nation’s greatest strength. Everyday, the freedoms that surround us in our homes, schools and places of work here in this chamber, are a constant reminder of what our nation, and what has been sacrificed to ensure its lasting stability and continuity in our Nation. Every day Congress is in session, we pledge allegiance to this flag, “to the republic for which it stands.”

The willful destruction of our Nation’s flag is, indeed, deeply offensive. The flag is a symbol of our national unity and a source of national pride, and our flag deserves to be treated with respect at all times. Yet, despite my love for my Nation and the flag, and my deep appreciation for the men and women who yesterday and today fight and live their lives defending our Nation, I cannot support this resolution.

We must take heed of the constitutional parameters that will be reduced as a result of this amendment. One of our most cherished liberties is our freedom of expression. Every individual in America is truly free to express his or her opinions, without threat of hindrance or persecution. From time to time we undoubtedly may disagree with another’s opinion. However, this does not mean that their views should be constricted by the Constitution. If we place any limits on free expression, we are opening the possibility that further limitation can be placed on our freedom of expression at a later time. This resolution, H.J. Res. 10, will indeed serve to reduce that freedom which is so crucial and essential to the maintenance of a strong, vibrant democracy.

IN SUPPORT OF H. RES. 256, IN REMEMBRANCE OF THE BRAVE SERVICEMEN WHO PERISHED IN THE APRIL 24, 1980, RESCUE ATTEMPT OF AMERICAN HOSTAGES IN IRAN

HON. ALCEE L. HASTINGS
OF FLORIDA
Monday, July 11, 2005

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to commemorate the lives and endeavors of eight brave soldiers who perished in the April 24, 1980 rescue attempt of American hostages in Iran. Their courageous, and ultimately fatal, effort was an extraordinary example of bravery and sacrifice. They risked their lives for the sake of the freedom of others. It is important that we remember them and commemorate their effort, not only for the sake of their memory, but for ours as well. These American heroes provide us all with examples of sacrifice and commitment to country, with models of bravery and strength whose legacies we may attempt to emulate.

On November 4, 1979, a mob of Iranian students, calling themselves Imam’s Disciples, seized the United States embassy in Tehran. Out of 90 embassy employees, 66 were taken...

Ms. NORTON. Mr. Speaker, because of my personal admiration and friendship, I am particularly pleased to rise today to introduce a resolution that gives me personal pleasure even beyond the pleasure I would normally have in commemorating the service of District of Columbia Court of Appeals Chief Judge Annice Wagner. Judge Wagner's distinguished service for almost 30 years to the courts and to the people of the District of Columbia is documented in this resolution, also introduced in the Senate by Governmental Affairs Chair, Susan Collins, I am pleased to ask the House as well to express its gratitude to Chief Judge Wagner.

Unfortunately, the rescue was not meant to be. Two helicopters broke down and one was damaged upon landing at the rendezvous point, and the mission was forced to abort. As if the hostages not being saved on that night was not disappointing enough, the real tragedy followed immediately thereafter. One of the helicopters clipped a C–130 transport as it took off. Tragically, the helicopter crashed, killing eight United States servicemen and injuring four others.

Mr. Speaker, these servicemen embarked upon their mission with one objective: to leave no man behind. It is imperative that today we do the same. We must honor the fallen soldiers and their families. We must learn from their bravery and their determination. We must preserve the memory of each and every one of the courageous men who lost their lives in this vaunted effort. In short, Mr. Speaker, we must never forget the sacrifice they made for their fellow soldiers. I urge my colleagues to support this resolution.

Mr. Speaker, Congress shares in the pride and gratitude of the city and the profession for Chief Judge Wagner's service. I ask the House to join me in endorsing this resolution of appreciation and commendation for the service of Chief Judge Annice Wagner.

Mr. MEEK of Florida. Mr. Speaker, today, I join the North Miami Avenue Church of God and its members in giving thanks to Almighty God on the wonderful occasion of the rededication of their expanded sanctuary.

The church had its beginning at a prayer meeting in November 1977 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hitchman. The church obviously
HENRY LAMB EXPOSES THE DANGERS OF CODEX

HON. RON PAUL
Monday, July 11, 2005

Mr. PAUL. Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to read “Your dietary supplements: Under attack again” by Henry Lamb, which I want to extend my congratulations and best wishes to Bishop Smith and his congregation on this joyous occasion. May this new sanctuary help inspire those who gather together in His name.

HENRY LAMB EXPOSES THE DANGERS OF CODEX

YOUR DIETARY SUPPLEMENTS: UNDER ATTACK

AGAIN

(By Henry Lamb)

The Codex Alimentarius Commission sounds like one of those shadowy, sinister organizations conjured up by one-world-gov- ernment nuts to scare people.

Truth: It is!

The Food and Agriculture Organization and the World Health Organization created this commission in the early 1960s to set standards for food safety and to “harmonize” the laws of member nations. The commission was endorsed by U.N. Resolution 39/248, which says:

“When formulating national policies and plans with regard to food, governments should take into account the need of all consumers for food security and should support and, as far as possible, adopt standards from the . . . Codex Alimentarius.”

The Codex Alimentarius Commission consists of delegates from 163 member nations representing 97 percent of the world’s popula- tion. It meets every two years, either in Rome or Geneva. Between the meetings, the commission is governed by an executive committee that directs the activities of its many committees.

Of immediate concern is the ongoing effort to bring dietary supplements in America under the control of standards set by this commission. Dietary supplements generate a $17 billion industry in the United States, which affects millions of consumers, according to Congressional findings (H.R. 2485). Proposed procedures and stand-
IN HONOR OF CHARLES W. BAUER
HON. PETE SESSIONS
Monday, July 11, 2005

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor a Chief of Staff for Texas Operations, Charles “Chuck” W. Bauer, who recently left my office. Chuck has been at my side for the last 11 years, starting with grass-roots outreach, then on to handle legislative issues in my Washington, DC office before returning to Texas to run my Dallas district office. Chuck has provided experienced judgment and advice to his fellow staff members and me for years, and his tireless work ethic will be greatly missed. I have come to appreciate and value his keen ability to lead by example and facilitate smooth flowing district operations for so many years.

Chuck graduated with a bachelor of science degree in political science from Texas Christian University in Fort Worth, Texas and he received his masters of business administration from the McCombs School of Business at the University of Texas earlier this year.

Chuck and his wonderful wife have two chil-dren, Abby (3) and Hayden (6 months), and I wish the best to them all the best for Chuck’s next endeavor. I thank him for his great service to the people of the 32nd Con-gressional District of Texas.

Even though he will no longer be employed by the Congress, I will always be able to call him my dear friend. I am sure that the great Chuck Bauer will continue to impress those around him in his new line of work.

IN RECOGNITION OF MARY WEST
HON. JOHN T. SALAZAR
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, July 11, 2005

Mr. SALAZAR. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in recognition of Mary West, the 2005 recipient of the Disney Teacher award. Ms. West is a special needs high school teacher in Montrose, Colorado. In this capacity, she teaches students what they need to know to function in their community. Working with stu-dents as old as 21, she is often times the last teacher these students will have before they enter the adult world.

It is an honor and a privilege to have a teacher of Mary West’s caliber in my district. Ms. West’s dedication exemplifies the kind of steadfast determination and drive I grew up with in Colorado. As one of only 45 winners selected out of more than 50,000 nominees, Ms. West, and her school, will receive upwards of $15,000 from the Walt Disney Company for use in maintaining this high quality of education at Montrose High School.

Education about the future, about making our dreams for a better tomorrow a reality. Family values, a good education, these are the foundation on which that future ought to rest. What more could we possibly want for our children than the opportunity to see their dreams, large or small, come true. More than simply watching our children succeed though, this foundation allows us to take pride in knowing that their success is not due to luck, but rather to their own ability to make something of themselves.

We therefore have a responsibility to ensure our children enter that future with the best education possible. Teachers, like Mary West, are putting these seemingly incredible dreams within reach. So, it is my hope that you will join with me in congratulating Ms. West on her accomplishments. With the help of Ms. West and other dedicated teachers throughout Colorado, I feel confident that today’s youth will be prepared to accept the challenges and the possibilities of tomorrow.

HON. KEN CALVERT
Monday, July 11, 2005

Mr. CALVERT. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor and pay tribute to Linda Graham Ward, who retired on June 17, 2005 after thirty three years as a teacher in the Ocean View School District of Huntington Beach, California.

Linda G. Ward is a fantastic teacher who truly cares for her students. She has dedi-cated her 33 years of teaching to improving the quality of life of her students by teaching them Fitness for Life. Her greatest career achievements include not only saving the lives of several students, but teaching students how to live healthier lives through physical fitness. She inspired her students to go on to become Olympians, professional athletes, and teachers.

Linda was born and raised in El Centro, California. Her love of learning lead her to the University of Southern California where she earned her teaching credential in 1972. That fall she began her long career with the Ocean View School District teaching Physical Education and Science. Her. campus assignments took her to the Rancho View School, the Vista View Middle School and the Spring View Middle School. She kept learning as well and earned a master’s degree in kinesiology in 1973.

At each campus she served as a teacher, coach and mentor to her students. She coached volleyball, basketball, track, cross country, softball and soccer. She was the Mentor Teacher for Ocean View School Dis-trict Physical Education Program and Devel-oped and implemented the Ocean View School District’s Physical Fitness Program for Grades 6, 7 and 8. Linda went above and be-yond the normal teaching role to inspire her students to live a fit and healthy lifestyle. She created the Ocean View School District’s Physical Fitness Awards Program based on Olympic Games model to recognize students’ achievements. Her students took their Fitness Test in Grades 5, 6, 7 and 8 and had the opportunity to show their Fitness Testing Program in Ocean View School District.

She made remarkable strides in improving the health of her students by becoming a CPR Instructor for the Ocean View School District and teaching students and employees how to save lives. Linda also served as Physical Edu-cation expert and advisor to Orange County Grand Jury investigation regarding childhood obesity. She also wrote, obtained and executed a PEP grant funds in the amount of $472,000 to implement the SPARK Program for physical fitness in her district. For her ef-forts Linda was named the Most Inspirational Teacher in the Ocean View School District, an award she certainly deserves.

HONORING U.S. ARMY CORPORAL PHILLIP C. EDMUNDSON
HON. G. K. BUTTERFIELD
OF NORTH CAROLINA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, July 11, 2005

Mr. BUTTERFIELD. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to remember U.S. Army CPL Phillip Charles Edmundson, of my hometown of Wil-son, NC, for serving our country during Oper-ation Iraqi Freedom. Corporal Edmundson made the ultimate sacrifice for our country when he died on June 1, 2005 when an im-provised explosive device detonated near his Bradley Fighting Vehicle during combat oper-ations. He was assigned to the 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry Regiment, 2nd Infantry Division, Fort Carson, CO. He was just 22 years old.

Corporal Edmundson was the first person from my community to die in combat since Vietnam. While we are saddened at this great loss, we are so honored to claim Corporal Edmundson as the product of our community. Corporal Edmundson had re-enlisted while in Iraq and was scheduled to be promoted to sergeant. During his funeral service, Corporal Edmundson was awarded a Bronze Star and Purple Heart posthumously for his bravery and dedicated service.

It was my honor to represent U.S. Army CPL Phillip Charles Edmundson and to have a friendship with his parents, Robert Edmundson and Anne Edmundson. I extend my deepest sympathies to his family and friends. He will be deeply missed and his serv-ice was greatly appreciated.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to submit for the Record a poem by CPL Phillip Charles Edmundson.

A SOLDIER’S REFLECTIONS

I was that which others did not want to be.
I went where others feared to go
I asked nothing from those who gave nothing
Felt the stinging cold of fear;
I went where others feared to go
I asked nothing from those who gave nothing
Should I fall, I have seen the face of terror;
And enjoyed the sweet taste of a moment’s love,
I have cried, pained, and hoped . . .
... but most of all, I have lived times others would say
were best forgotten. At least someday
I will be able to say that I was proud of what I was . . .
