The House met at 9 a.m. and was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. MARCHANT).

DESIGNATION OF SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following communication from the Speaker:

WASHINGTON, DC, July 26, 2005.

I hereby appoint the Honorable Kenny MARCHANT to act as Speaker pro tempore on this day.

J. DENNIS HASTERT, Speaker of the House of Representatives.

MORNING HOUR DEBATES

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the order of the House of January 4, 2005, the Chair will now recognize Members from lists submitted by the majority and minority leaders for morning hour debates. The Chair will alternate recognition between the parties, with each party limited to not to exceed 25 minutes, and each Member, except the majority leader, the minority leader, or the minority whip, limited to not to exceed 5 minutes, but in no event shall debate extend beyond 9:50 a.m.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Colorado (Mr. BEAUPREZ) for 5 minutes.

REASONS TO SUPPORT THE CENTRAL AMERICAN FREE TRADE AGREEMENT

Mr. BEAUPREZ. Mr. Speaker, I would like to highlight just a few of the reasons why I am in favor of the Central American Free Trade Agreement, known as CAFTA.

CAFTA is going to level the playing field for U.S. workers and farmers. Right now, the CAFTA countries have virtually open access to our U.S. market. This agreement will give Americans the same free and fair access to their markets. The day CAFTA is signed, nearly $1 billion a year in tariffs on U.S. goods goes away, making us immediately more competitive. Somewhere in this world, farmers will be producing the food and workers will be making the goods to meet the growing demand of the CAFTA nations. I want this demand to be met by American workers.

CAFTA will protect existing American jobs, allow us to compete fairly for more international business and strengthen our relationships with these six developing democracies.

Mr. Speaker, neighbors help each other, and CAFTA is a good neighbor treaty. I urge its adoption.

HEALTH SAVINGS ACCOUNTS: A SOLUTION TO THE HIGH COST OF AMERICA’S HEALTH CARE SYSTEM

Mr. Speaker, I rise today to say that the ownership society can also change health care as we know it today through the use of Health Savings Accounts. Designed as part of the Medicare Modernization Act of 2003, Health Savings Accounts are tax-free accounts that empower consumers to take control over their own health care expenses.

Everyone in this Chamber and across the Nation knows that our Nation is in the midst of a health care crisis. This crisis not only affects patients, but our health care professionals as well. Rising health care costs have left nearly 45 million Americans without health insurance and thousands of small businesses struggling to cover their employees. In my home State of Pennsylvania, over 50 percent of Pennsylvanians surveyed said their family has had difficulty paying the cost of health care or obtaining insurance for their dependents.

Since 2001, the cost of health insurance has risen 59 percent. In 2004, employers who offered health insurance benefits were paying an average of 11 percent more for health insurance premiums, making that year the fourth year of double-digit increases in premiums.

Last year, President Bush spoke of the need to create an ownership society in America. His idea was simple: Pass laws to enable our families to take greater ownership in their investments, their financial security and their future. The idea of an ownership society has already resulted in a booming housing market, impressive job growth and historic economic productivity.

I come to the floor today to say that the ownership society can also change health care as we know it today through the use of Health Savings Accounts. Designed as part of the Medicare Modernization Act of 2003, Health Savings Accounts are tax-free accounts that empower consumers to take control over their own health care expenses.

The principle is simple: If a person has a health insurance plan with a high deductible of at least $1,000 for an individual or $2,000 for family coverage, that person can make pre-tax contributions to a savings account specifically designed to handle health insurance.

Health Savings Accounts are portable, interest-bearing financial instruments. Like a 401(k), contributions to HSAs are made with pre-tax income. Like an IRA, the account grows tax-free and can also be moved from job to job. There is no penalty for the removal of money from an HSA, and if an individual does not use any money from an HSA over the course of a year,... the money is not lost. Instead, it is rolled over into the next year and without penalty.

Due to the ability of account holders to contribute 100 percent of their deductible in pre-tax income into an HSA, it can pay an additional benefit by having health insurance plans with higher deductibles. The higher the deductible, the more they are able to invest without a tax penalty.

For business owners, especially small businesses, HSAs allow employers to lower health care spending and simultaneously reap a tax benefit. These incentives will motivate more businesses to take advantage of Health Savings Accounts.

I can relate to you a first-hand account of the success of HSA for small businesses. Last week, I hosted a Small Business Forum back in my State of Pennsylvania that brought together small business owners and employees from across my district to discuss the issue of the cost of rising health care premiums.

The gentleman from Illinois (Chairman MANZULLO) and I heard from Mr. ANZULLO) and I heard from the money is not lost. Instead, it is

If you do not spend in your HSA, it makes sense to purchase the best care at the lowest possible price. Therefore, the widespread use of HSAs will create an educated class of consumers that will cut administrative costs, lower overhead and reduce the cost of health care for the majority of Americans.

Mr. Speaker, my colleagues and I have undertaken to support Health Savings Accounts and legislation that will expand and support their use. The best way to lower the cost of health care is to make the consumer an active participart in choosing how to spend their health insurance he pays accounts for nearly 50 percent of his total insurance costs. Three years ago, his firm's health insurance premium was $120,000 per year. By switching to an HSA, he was able to cut that amount by half, to just $60,000, in his first year.

Like many employers, George Donovan does not believe in employing individuals without health insurance. He found through staff interviews that health insurance is the number one criteria for accepting a job or for staying with his firm. By all measures, his adoption of HSAs has helped his bottom line, as well as allowed him to retain trained and talented staff.

Health Savings Accounts empower Americans across the country to make informed choices. Instead of being tied into a traditional plan that limits choice and keeps the consumer at arm's length from the health care market, Health Savings Accounts allow individuals and businesses to take an active role in choosing how to spend their money.

According to Andy Laperriere in a Wall Street Journal article of January 24 of this year, “health care is the only sector in the economy where there is almost no price transparency and no price competition.”

Laperriere's article is correct. How many of us actually understand the cost of a medical test or procedure? Most of the information in a medical or hospital bill is too complicated to understand, and most health insurance plans compound that confusion.

HSAs create an economic incentive for consumers to shop for care competitively and become involved in the market and save more money with HSAs. Since you are able to keep that money that you do not spend in your HSA, it

RECOGNIZING THE 15TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE AMERICANS WITH DISABILITIES ACT

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the order of the House of January 4, 2005, the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. HOLT) is recognized during morning hour debates for 5 minutes.

Mr. HOLT. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize the 15th anniversary of the Americans with Disabilities Act, enacted on July 26, 1990.

The ADA occupies a unique place in our political and social history, providing sweeping protections against discrimination for a group that had suffered legal inequities and indignities from time immemorial. The accommodations that ADA afforded to persons with disabilities in employment, public and private services, transportation and telecommunications, demonstrated that all Americans are entitled to legal protection from discrimination.

Just as the Civil Rights Act of 1964 was essential to eliminating legal justifications for denying equal rights to African Americans and others, the Americans with Disabilities Act constituted a step forward by prohibiting discrimination against persons with disabilities; and just as passage of the Civil Rights Act was a necessary precursor to the elimination of racism in practice, we still have some distance to go in order to eliminate popular prejudice and stigmatization of persons with disabilities.

In Congress, I have worked with the disability community to ensure that all Americans are afforded the full protection of the law. I have introduced legislation to require that staff working with developmentally disabled persons call emergency services in the event of a life-threatening situation. Danielle's law would extend the New Jersey law to the rest of the country.

I have introduced the Voter Confidence and Increased Accessibility Act, legislation to amend the Help America Vote Act, to require a voter-verified paper audit trail and to ensure that any system of verification be fully accessible to all voters.

In the Committee on Education and Workforce, I successfully amended H.R. 4278, the Improving Access to Assistive Technology For Individuals With Disabilities Act of 2004, in order to allow protection and advocacy agencies to carry over program income, funds generated by program activities, that is, for 2 additional years. This change will enable these programs to reinvest the earned funds into additional services.

I have opposed the Department of Education's efforts to gut the Rehabilitation Services Administration, a program that has literally changed people's lives, providing the tools for disabled persons to live and work independently and with dignity. I fought for a full 40 percent funding for Individuals With Disability Education Act, the IDEA, which the Federal Government neglects. We are underfunding it by at least a factor of two.

The Americans with Disabilities Act has allowed great gains in the past 15 years, but there is much yet to be done. We must continue to ensure that jobs are open to people with disabilities and that these valuable employees have the necessary accommodations. We must continue to make accessible transportation and housing options and grant access to community-based supports and services that promote independence and integration. We must also commit to continued education and job training for all Americans.

Since the passage of the ADA, I have been concerned with the interpretation of the law by Federal courts regard to protections offered and individuals protected. The Federal courts' narrow interpretation of ADA has prevented it from achieving all that it was designed to do. As the Senate considers the nomination of a new Supreme Court justice, I hope the Senate will fully inquire as to his views on the application of the ADA.

Again, I would like to recognize the 15th anniversary of the Americans with Disabilities Act. I value the advances that our country has achieved because of legal protections it extends, and I look forward to continuing to work on behalf of Americans with disabilities.

PATRIOT ACT PROTECTS RIGHTS OF AMERICANS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the order of the House of January 4, 2005, the gentlewoman from Virginia (Mrs. DRAKE) is recognized during morning hour debates for 5 minutes.

Mrs. DRAKE. Mr. Speaker, I think it is important to point out that last week we had a very important thing on Thursday night, and that is that we reauthorized the PATRIOT Act. I think it is important to remember that in 2001, when this act was first put into place, that there were no ‘no’ votes. But now, 4 years later, Mr. Speaker, there was a very deal of concern among the American people that our freedoms be protected, and we often hear the expression that if we give up a little bit of freedom for a little bit of security, that we would have neither.

As Americans, we value our freedoms. We value the freedom of speech, we value our freedom of privacy, we value the protections that we have against unnecessary search and seizure. But as Americans we also know that things have changed.

I do not think there is a parent or grandparent in America today that would tell you that their lives today are what they were when they were children. I can assure you, Mr. Speaker, when I have my grandchildren with me, they have very little freedom, and that is the law. I never took my eye off of them because we do live in a different day and a different time, and the securities that we felt as children just do not exist today.

As I went home last week and I was stuck in traffic, which we all know is certainly a reoccurring thing in our society, but I was listening to a radio program about the PATRIOT Act. What really concerned me about what Americans are being told is that Americans are being told that somehow this is onerous, that we have done the PATRIOT Act, and that our freedoms are being impacted in this act.

What Americans are not being told is that the provisions that exist in this act have been in place for many years in regards to criminal cases, in regards to child pornography, in regards to drug offenses, in regards to mob bosses.

The PATRIOT Act did add foreign terrorism into the same types of provisions that already exist. The PATRIOT Act also broke down walls to allow law enforcement officials to interact together and to make sure that information is being shared and that we as Americans are as safe as we can possibly be. I think that is an important element of the PATRIOT Act, is that it is not new. It is existing law enforcement that has been extended over.

But, Mr. Speaker, it is only fair to remind people that there are additional requirements that are placed in the PATRIOT Act on the provision of foreign terrorism. What some of those provisions are is that under the criminal code, law enforcement gets grand jury permission in order to do what they are doing. Under the PATRIOT Act, that required the permission of a Federal judge.

With the amendments that we did Thursday night in regards to the one the American people talked about the most called the "library provision," or what we referred to as section 215, which would allow them to check books, records, now it will require that the Director of the FBI make that request to a Federal judge. So to imply to the American people that someone is checking what books we check out is just unfair, and it is unfair to the American people who do expect a little bit of safety and some security back into our lives and to the lives of our children.

Mr. Speaker, there is nothing else we can do except to really explain what is the PATRIOT Act, how does it keep us safer and how does it interact with our other criminal codes.

I would like to also point out that the library provision has been used many times in regards to the criminal code, but it has not once been used in regards to foreign terrorism. Is it something we should take away? No, absolutely not, because why should we tie the hands of our law enforcement professionals in this area so that we are not critical to us when this exists in other provisions of the law?

Mr. Speaker, I applaud the House of Representatives for authorizing the PATRIOT Act. I was a little distressed that we put additional requirements in place, but if that is what it takes for people to feel safe and secure, all right. But the most important thing is I think the public should know the truth. They should know how the PATRIOT Act is protecting them and defending them and not impacting their freedoms.

FINDING GOOD NEWS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the order of the House of January 4, 2005, the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. PRICE) is recognized during morning hour debates for 5 minutes.

Mr. PRICE of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, sometimes I get tired of all the bad news. You come here and you listen to the speeches that go before the House and you think, my goodness gracious, there must be all sorts of bad news out there.

When I go home and I talk to constituents at home about any issue, I often lead off with saying, "I am going to have to tell you some things that you haven’t seen on television and that you haven’t read in the newspaper."

Because I have good news that is happening here, oftentimes gets smothered with all the bad news and all the political sniping that goes on.

I was pleased to hear the gentlewoman from Virginia (Mrs. DRAKE) just now get up and demonstrate her passion, her passion, for principles that we hold dear here in the United States. I was also wonderfully pleased to hear the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. FITZPATRICK) earlier talk about the importance of health care and Health Savings Accounts, an exciting proposal, an exciting policy that we have here, that we have adopted in the Congress, that will allow individuals greater choice in health care. That is good news. That is good news.

When I read my local paper, I have got to get way down in that paper before I see good news. In terms of politics, all you see is who is fighting whom and what will not happen. It is remarkable.

So, I am going to come here to talk about a little bit of good news today, because we have good news that we need to spread across this Nation.

There has been a remarkable turn-around in this Nation’s economy. The policies that this Congress have adopted have helped our Nation recover from attacks at home, recover from corporate scandals, recover from the bursting of the tech bubble and the incredible demands that we have facing us as a Nation in the War on Terror. These are real challenges, incredible challenges, but we are a strong and a vibrant and a resourceful Nation, and we can overcome these challenges, and, frankly, any other that folks throw in our way.

But what are the principles that are guiding us? Strong, common sense, conservative principles that foster entrepreneurship and almost guarantee success. These are the true engines, entrepreneurship, of job growth and strength in our economy.

From tax relief, to a responsible decrease in areas of our Federal budget, this Republican major is leading the way with a return to fiscal discipline and economic growth as our guideline. And what are the results? There used to be somebody on television that said, “Let’s go to the videotape.” Here we say, “Let’s go to the chart.”

Look at this chart. This is May 2003 and these are the number of jobs that have been created in this Nation. May 2003. And look where we are in June 2005. It is a steady increase in growth in the number of jobs. That is exciting news. That is good news. Have you seen it in your newspaper? Have you heard about it on television or on the radio? Probably not. But that is good news, and it is good news that is happening because of the policies that this Congress has adopted.

More Americans are working now than ever before. More Americans are working now than ever before in our Nation’s history. Nearly 4 million jobs have been created over the past 2 years. The economy has had job growth, more job growth, 24 straight months. Look at that, 24 straight months. That is good news.

Unemployment is at 5 percent. Say, what is that? Well, it is lower than the averages for the 1970s, the 1980s and the 1990s. Unemployment is at an all-time low, given the averages over the last three decades. Unemployment is down for all levels of education, all races and all ages. This is great news.

So I ask my colleagues and I ask folks back home when they pick up their newspaper, do not look at the front page; go to page 7 or 8 or 9 or further, and you may find some good news there. Those are the kinds of stories that need to be on the front page.

Mr. Speaker, we in Congress here are going to continue to work in a positive and a confident way, one that is thoughtful and one that is forward-thinking. I look forward to being joined by my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to further these common sense principles.
The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 12(a) of rule I, the Chair declares the House in recess until 10 a.m. Accordingly (at 9 o’clock and 23 minutes p.m.), the House stood in recess until 10 a.m.

Mr. WHITFIELD. Mr. Speaker, I want to thank Pastor Don Young of the Heartland Worship Center in Paducah, Kentucky, for leading today’s opening prayer.

Pastor Young was born and raised in Childress, Texas, and following his graduation from Baptist Bible College in Springfield, Missouri, he became the founding pastor of the Bible Baptist Church in Paducah, Kentucky, where he ministered to the needs of the founding 29 members of that church. Pastor Young has been there now for 45 years, and the church has 3,000 members and is now known as the Heartland Worship Center. Average Sunday attendance is 1,700, largely because of Pastor Young’s unique preaching style and the programs he has initiated to meet the spiritual needs of people from all walks of life.

Heartland’s vision statement is: Influencing people to come, instructing people to grow, inspiring people to go. Under Pastor Young’s leadership, the center supports 29 missionaries in foreign countries and the United States, assists the members of the congregation with counseling needs, supports the mission projects endorsed by the Southern Baptist Convention, helps with the spiritual and moral development of our youth, and honors our men and women in uniform as they prepare for deployment overseas.

Heartland Worship Center is blessed to have such a dedicated servant whose compassion and faith have guided him throughout his entire life.

Mr. Speaker, I hope you will join me in welcoming Pastor Young and thanking him for today’s prayer.

Mr. Speaker, patient choice is about being able to choose the doctor that is right for you. If bright young people are not going into medicine, we all lose. Let us work to improve our system so patients will be able to have the right to choose the doctor that is best for them.

CAFTA IS BAD FOR AMERICA

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, the North American Free Trade Agreement caused 5.6 million well-paying jobs to leave the United States. If they were replaced at all, they were replaced by insecure, low-wage employment paying 77 percent less.

CAFTA, modeled after the North American Free Trade Agreement, will hurt workers in the United States and Central America. Under CAFTA, workers are much more likely to lose their jobs than find better ones, especially if they work in U.S. manufacturing or Central American agriculture, small business or government.

U.S. workers will have to compete in a race to the bottom with sweatshop wages and low standards in Central America reinforced by the weak labor provisions in CAFTA. Provisions that will stay in effect are those like those in El Salvador where they fail to provide for reinstatement of workers fired because of antiunion discrimination; as in Guatemala, where the labor code mandates that unions obtain permission from the labor unions to strike; as in Honduras, where the law prohibits permission from the labor unions to strike; as in El Salvador where they fail to provide for reinstatement of workers fired because of antiunion discrimination; and as in Honduras, where the law prohibits the formation of more than one trade union in a single enterprise.

CAFTA will result in lower wages for the people in this country. It will result in the loss of jobs in this country, and it should be defeated.

REEXAMINE THE BRAC PROCESS

Mr. POE. Mr. Speaker, I have some concerns with the base closure process currently taking place. Under the recommendations, Ellington Field in Houston, Texas, is scheduled to lose all F-16s and the F-15C Fighting Eagles. This would endanger the ability to protect southeast Texas.

The base closure criteria is based upon military and strategic importance, but it also needs to factor in homeland security risk assessments as well. The F-16s at Ellington Field protect Houston, the fourth largest city in the United States.

The city has two major airports. It has the largest medical center in the United States. It is home of NASA. It has the Port of Houston, the second largest port in the United States, and two additional ports, Port Arthur and the Port of Beaumont where one-third of the military cargo goes to Iraq, not to mention the petrochemical area and the energy capital of the world.

So, Mr. Speaker, I plan on introducing a resolution in Congress this week that will call on the President to factor in homeland security in the base closure process and disapprove of any recommendation unless the President is convinced that the recommendations will not adversely affect homeland security in the United States. We need to keep the F-16s flying over Houston.

POSTAL MODERNIZATION

(Mr. BLUMENAUER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. BLUMENAUER. Mr. Speaker, today we will be considering important legislation dealing with the modernization of the Postal Service. It contains some important provisions I have been working on since I came to Congress to make sure that the postal facilities, which are the cornerstone of a livable community, are, in fact, playing by the same rules as the rest of America.

Too often the Postal Service has not played by those rules, with bad results in site location, building and remodeling. While the Postal Service has made some improvements in recent years managing these facilities, this legislation makes clear that the Postal Service is playing by the same rules as the rest of America.

It will hasten the day when the U.S. Government itself as the largest landlord, landowner and employer, will lead by example, and behave the way we expect the rest of Americans to behave. It will not cost any extra, but it will help make American families safer, healthier and more economically secure.

IMMIGRATION REFORM

(Mr. FLAKE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. FLAKE. Mr. Speaker, today the Senate will hold hearings to start the process for comprehensive immigration reform. We will soon start those same hearings in the House.

As we begin this, I simply want to remind everyone here that we believe in the rule of law. We need to enforce the rule of law. We need to enforce our Nation’s laws, but in order to do so, we have to have laws that we can enforce. Those who say let us enforce the law, the current law, and then have a temporary worker program have yet to offer a proposal to actually enforce the current law, which would require that the 10-15 million illegals who are now, many of them, working in jobs would actually be deported to their country of origin and subject to a 10-year bar from reentry.

If that is what people mean by enforcing the current law, then please offer a proposal to do so. But, if not, then let us work together on a comprehensive plan for comprehensive immigration reform that has a guest worker plan and also a provision to enforce the current law. That is what we need to do in this country.

NEED FOR ACCOUNTABILITY ON THE CIA OPERATIVE LEAK

(Mr. INSLEE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. INSLEE. Mr. Speaker, as the sordid tale is unfolding about the Bush administration’s outing of one of our covert intelligence agents, as that unfolds, there is an aspect that I just learned about, I wanted to share with my colleagues, last week.

Last week with some Senators, we had a hearing where we listened to former CIA agents about the impact of this event on our national security system, and these four agents spoke as one. And what they said was interesting to me, because what they said was the outing was bad enough where they destroyed the covert status of one of our spies, but what is almost as bad or worse is that the President has refused to take action to deal with who ever is responsible for that wrongful act.

And to them that was a message that the President just did not honor the trust we have to keep the secrecy of our spies secret. That makes it more difficult to recruit. We are trying to recruit people for cells in London right now. How are we going to recruit them when we out, the administration outs, a spy and does not take action to deal with that?

That is as disturbing as the outing originally. The President needs to act. We need to pass House Resolution 363 to get to the bottom of this.

SUPPORT CAFTA

(Mr. PENCE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. PENCE. Mr. Speaker, I have always believed that trade means jobs, and that is especially true on the Indiana farm. As we consider the Central America Free Trade Agreement, think of this.

Today U.S. agricultural goods exported to that region of the world face tariffs and barriers of 15 to 35 percent. By ending the one-way street, CAFTA will essentially result in my State seeing up to $41 million a year in additional agricultural exports.

Trade means jobs. Not that this is a new idea. Adam Smith wrote in A Wealth of Nations in 1776, “All for ourselves and nothing for others seems, in every age of the world, to have been the vile maxim of the masters of mankind.”

Even Benjamin Franklin said, “No nation was ever ruined by trade.” And Ralph Waldo Emerson wrote in his personal journal, We rail at trade, but the historian of the world will see that it was the principle of liberty; that it settled America, destroyed feudalism, made peace and keeps peace, and abolished slavery.

All of those great American Founders and thinkers were right. Trade means jobs. I urge my colleagues to support CAFTA in that spirit.

OPPOSITION TO CAFTA

(Mr. CARNAHAN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. CARNAHAN. Mr. Speaker, I rise this morning to address my strong opposition to the Central American Free Trade Agreement. I oppose CAFTA not because I oppose trade, but because I oppose unfair trade agreements that fail to stand up for our national economic interests and protect American jobs.

There are a number of problems with this agreement that make it impossible for me and many of my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to support it. The blatant deficiencies regarding environmental standards, labor standards, and our agriculture interests are the most glaring.

Now, this Congress can consider the CAFTA proposal only on an up-or-down vote with no amendments allowed. Entering into an agreement that does not require the Central American countries to strengthen their environmental laws does a disservice to the workers and citizens of all countries involved.

Our choice is clear, Mr. Speaker. I urge each of my colleagues to reject this unfair trade agreement and send our representatives back to renegotiate a better deal for the American people.

HONORING SERGEANT SHAMUS GOARE

(Mr. NEY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. NEY. Mr. Speaker, today I rise to reflect on the remarkable life of Staff Sergeant Shamus O. Goare, who died June 28 in service to his country. A native of Danville, Ohio, Sergeant Goare was killed when his Chinook transport helicopter came under attack by a rocket propelled grenade in the mountains of eastern Afghanistan. He was 28 years old.

Sergeant Goare gave the ultimate sacrifice to his country. By celebrating his life, we will ensure that in death he will not be forgotten.

Sergeant Goare joined the Army in 1994. As a member of the elite Night Stalkers, Sergeant Goare willingly took on some of the most dangerous missions presented. He was posthumously awarded the Bronze Star, the Purple Heart, the Meritorious Service Medal, and an Air Medal with Valor and the Combat Action Badge. It is clear that Sergeant Goare was an excellent soldier and a remarkable citizen. His devotion to his country is an inspiration to us all.

His sacrifice is a testament to his devotion to our great land, and his heroic efforts must never be forgotten. I extend my deepest condolences to his parents and other family members. It is an honor to pay tribute to Sergeant Goare's life, contributions, and dedication as an American. May God rest his soul.

AUCTIONING OFF THE PEOPLE'S HOUSE

(Mr. MANUEL asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. MANUEL. Mr. Speaker, the New York Times reports that during the Vioxx trial in Texas, a cardiologist testified that the pain killer likely led to the needless death of Robert Ernst. Mr. Ernst's case was a produce manager at Wal-Mart who also ran marathons and worked as a personal trainer.

He took Vioxx for 8 months before he died of an irregular heartbeat, making him one of the 55,000 people who needlessly died as a result of taking Vioxx.

As we debate medical malpractice legislation tomorrow, I hope my colleagues will keep Mr. Ernst's tragedy in mind. Only in this Congress would we consider legislation that specifically protects the drug manufacturers like Merck from any form of liability while a trial is presently ongoing that directly affects that legislation. I am not aware of any other industry that gets this type of liability protection just going through a governmental approval process.

While families such as Mr. Ernst's fight for fairness in court, this body, the people's House, is fighting to protect the drug companies. I plan to introduce the Vioxx amendment that would put liability protection on the drug companies.

Mr. Speaker, when your gavel opens up the people's House, it should open up the people's House and their voices should be heard, not the auction house.

SMALL BUSINESS HEALTH FAIRNESS ACT

(Mrs. KELLY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Mrs. KELLY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to urge my colleagues to support the Small Business Health Fairness Act. We will vote on it later today.

We need to increase access and lower the cost of health insurance for small business owners, their employees, and their families.

I represent New York's Hudson Valley where small business owners and self-employed workers tell me time and time again that the toughest challenge they face is finding affordable health care coverage.

Seven out of 10 small businesses do not offer health insurance because they cannot afford the overwhelming costs on their own in the marketplace. The Small Business Fairness Act would provide them with the lower costs they need by giving them the same group health insurance purchasing power already being enjoyed by unions and large corporations.

Small businesses on Main Street in towns like Warwick, Goshen, Wappinger, or Mount Kisco deserve the same health insurance advantages that the large firms have on Wall Street. Let us give our small businesses the option by passing this bill.

Studies show it will give 8 million currently uninsured small business workers the affordable access to health insurance they need. Please support America's small businesses and join me in voting for the Small Business Health Fairness Act.

CAPTA HURTS CANDY MAKERS

(Mr. DAVIS of Illinois asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. DAVIS of Illinois. Mr. Speaker, Chicago used to be known as the Candy Capital of the World. Unfortunately, sugar makers, food processors, and other sugar users have been driven out of the city by high prices.

Despite all of my other misgivings, I had hoped that CAPTA would provide us with some relief. But, unfortunately, to let in only 151,000 metric tons of sugar from CAPTA countries over a 15-year period will not put a dent in sugar prices. It will not help the candy makers and food processors in Chicago. Therefore, I shall vote against CAPTA and urge all of my colleagues to vote likewise.

HONORING THE CREW, SCIENTISTS, AND TECHNICIANS OF THE "DISCOVERY"

(Mr. BURGESS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BURGESS. Mr. Speaker, in just a few moments the Space Shuttle Discovery is due to lift off from its pad in Florida. Last year, Mr. Speaker, I was a member of the House Committee on Science; and in that role I want to acknowledge the wonderful work of the scientists and technicians and the crew of the Discovery who uphold the great tradition of our space program.

Barely 1 month into my first term in the 108th Congress, we lost the Space Shuttle Columbia over Texas. We felt the concussion from that blast in my north Texas district.

Mr. Speaker, the return to flight was pursued in a careful, methodical fashion with a mission of strict adherence to safety. On momentous occasions like today, we remember those who sacrificed their lives, and we honor them by continuing America's quest to observe and learn from our galaxy and universe. May God guard those members while they lift off from Florida and see them safely home.

NO STRAIGHT ANSWERS FROM BUSH WHITE HOUSE

(Mr. PALLONE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. PALLONE. Mr. Speaker, for 2 years now the Bush White House has covered up its involvement in the leaking of a CIA agent's identity. Now it appears members of the administration are also misleading a grand jury investigating whether or not any laws were broken when Karl Rove, Scooter Libby, and possibly others helped Valerie Plame's identity to reporters.

According to reports over the weekend, CHENEY's chief of staff, Scooter Libby, told the grand jury that he first heard about Valerie Plame's identity from NBC's Tim Russert, but Russert claims that that was impossible since he did not even know Plame was a CIA agent.

In the meantime, Karl Rove told the grand jury that his conversation with Time magazine's Matt Cooper was mostly about welfare reform until Rove leaked Valerie Plame's identity at the end of the conversation. But Cooper says he and Rove never discussed welfare reform. Instead, he says, the entire conversation was about Plame.

Now, despite these alarming discrepancies, Bush continues to support both men. Mr. Speaker, our covert CIA agents need President Bush to stand firm against these actions now.

CAFTA BENEFITS AMERICAN BUSINESSES

(Mr. SHAW asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SHAW. Mr. Speaker, today I rise in support of the United States-Dominican Republic-Central American Free Trade Agreement.

The United States and our neighbors in Central America and the Dominican Republic enjoy a healthy trading relationship with over $32.6 billion worth of goods traded between the United States and the six DR–CAFTA countries just last year. The agreement will not only increase exports and income for United States farmers, manufacturers, and business, but it also will provide the United States with an opportunity to enhance the well-being of millions in Central America.

The DR–CAFTA countries are among the poorest in the world. According to the World Bank, the average person in Nicaragua makes a mere $710 a year. The average person in Costa Rica does a bit better, but still only makes $4,070 a year.

Rather than handouts or loans, the United States can quickly improve the well-being of millions of our neighbors by signing the DR–CAFTA countries improved access to our vast markets. New business opportunities create new jobs, not handouts. In turn, a virtuous circle can be created as wealth and income rises along with the demands for United States products and services.

I urge all of my colleagues to vote “yes” on CAFTA. It is good for America’s business.

HEALTH CARE ACCESS FOR LATINOS

(Ms. SOLIS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. SOLIS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to address the Republican leadership’s failure to bring up legislation that actually addresses the health care problems of American families.

Currently, 45 million Americans are uninsured. Un insured numbers are even worse for the Latino communities which have the highest uninsured rate of any racial and ethnic group; 13 million Latinos are uninsured. That is more than one-third of the Nation’s Latino population.

Latinos make up 14 percent of the U.S. population, nearly 42 million people. Yet the administration’s leadership continues to ignore the significant population. This week’s legislation on association health plans and medical malpractice demonstrates the Republican leadership’s inability to acknowledge the devastating impact these proposals will have on my community.

These proposals will facilitate rampant fraud, raise premiums, and reduce benefits to Latino families. If the current Republican leadership really wants to reduce the number of uninsured and reduce health care costs, then it needs to bring up legislation to the floor that addresses health care problems for all American families, including the 9.1 million Latino families in the U.S.

CAFTA GOOD FOR WORKERS AND CONSUMERS

(Mr. PITTS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. PITTS. Mr. Speaker, this week we will debate CAFTA. All of the Nation’s major newspaper editorial boards support CAFTA. Listen to these quotes.

The Washington Post cites a study that finds the products would increase by $17 billion under CAFTA. The Wall Street Journal says CAFTA would expand the market for U.S. goods with the 44 million consumers of six Central American countries. The Journal goes on to say that American farmers would be among the biggest winners under CAFTA.

USA Today says CAFTA would slash tariffs on agriculture products coming from the U.S. The L.A. Times says the benefits will spread across society, citing rapid growth and higher income of free trading nations.

Even the New York Times claims that this free trade agreement “deserves to approved.”

In addition to these editorial boards, Central American workers and leaders overwhelmingly support this agreement. Mr. Speaker, they cannot all be wrong. I, therefore, urge my colleagues to vote in favor of CAFTA. More trade means more jobs.

MEDICAL MALPRACTICE RELIEF HURTS THE COUNTRY

(Mr. BERRY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BERRY. Mr. Speaker, we are going to be back here this week and try to convince the American people that we are trying to help them with their health care costs by passing yet again a medical malpractice insurance relief act.

The really sad thing about this is it does not help the cost of health care in this country. It does improve the bottom line considerably for the insurance companies. But the most egregious parts of this is the way it protects the irresponsible drug companies. We are going to provide tort protection. We are going to provide protection from lawsuits to Merck who knowingly put a product on the market that caused 139,000 Americans to have hearts attacks unnecessarily. And they knew it would do that when they put it on the market.

We are going to provide protection to an industry that cares nothing about the health of the people. It cares nothing about anything but making a few million more dollars.

I urge this House to defeat that measure.

INSPIRING DISABLED VETERANS

(Mr. WILSON of South Carolina asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. WILSON of South Carolina. Mr. Speaker, after returning to the United States, many disabled veterans devote themselves to their community with the same dedication they displayed on the battlefields and bases around the world. Specifically, thousands of veterans put their skills and talents to use by operating successful small businesses.

Today, I am proud to announce an event that will pay special attention and tribute to service-disabled business owners. On August 19, Mr. Bernard Smith will host a charity golf tournament at Andrews Air Force Base to raise money for three disabled veterans groups. Twelve disabled veterans who served in Operation Iraqi Freedom have enthusiastically volunteered to participate in the golf tournament. These American heroes are determined to lead full and successful lives and are an inspiration to all Americans.

Mr. Smith’s leadership on this event is truly honorable. As a service-disabled business owner, I understand the importance of supporting those who have already given so much to our country.

In conclusion, God bless our troops; and we will never forget September 11 and the attacks on Egypt.

PRIVATIZING SOCIAL SECURITY

(Mr. CARDOZA asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. CARDOZA. Mr. Speaker, when are Washington Republicans going to listen to the American people? At the beginning of this year, President Bush unveiled a general plan that would lead to the privatization of Social Security. When his plan was met with a lukewarm response, President Bush decided that he would travel around the Nation for 60 days trying to sell the American people on the concept of privatizing Social Security.

The American people listened, and they gave President Bush a resounding no. Our constituents paid into Social Security, and they want it paid back to them when they retire. Cutting Social Security benefits that Americans have earned should always be a last resort.

And yet recently there was legislation introduced by the Republicans that would divert payroll contributions from Americans to create private accounts. By taking money away from Social Security, the Republican plan would explode the deficit or force deep cuts in guaranteed benefits our Nation’s citizens have already been promised.

It is time to listen to our constituents and realize Americans are not going to back Social Security privatization. Let us strengthen Social Security rather than destroy it.

IN SUPPORT OF FREE TRADE AND CAFTA

(Mr. HENSARLING asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HENSARLING. Mr. Speaker, this week Congress will consider the Central American Free Trade Agreement, the largest free trade agreement in a decade. I am very proud to support this agreement that will create opportunities for the unemployed, increase wages and improve the standard of living for American workers.
According to a study of only 12 States by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, CAFTA would create over 25,000 new jobs in these States in the first year alone. According to the American Farm Bureau, CAFTA will provide a substantial competitive advantage to U.S. farmers and ranchers, boosting agricultural exports by $1.5 billion annually.

Mr. Speaker, this historic agreement will also help consumers by delivering a greater choice of goods at lower prices. Under CAFTA, American families will be able to buy more, using less of their paychecks. We have over 200 years of history to prove it.

Mr. Speaker, I urge all my colleagues to reject protectionism and instead support jobs, support U.S. farmers, support consumers, and support freedom by supporting CAFTA.

WHY ARE REPUBLICANS NOT INVESTIGATING PLAME OUTING BY WHITE HOUSE OFFICIALS?

(Ms. WATSON asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. WATSON. Mr. Speaker, today, a grand jury continues to investigate into the leaking of an undercover agent’s identity. Thank goodness a grand jury is taking this case seriously, since it does not appear that either the White House or House Republicans are interested in finding out who is responsible for leaking Valerie Plame’s identity.

Back in the 1990s, House Republicans loved “Roving” around in the White House’s business. House Republicans took 140 hours of testimony to investigate whether the Clinton White House misused its holiday card database. They also once asked President Clinton to explain how the White House responded to letters sent to the President’s cat, Socks.

But now that we have an issue that is clearly begging for congressional oversight, House Republicans have been silent. They have not held congressional hearings to investigate the impact such a leak could have on our ability to gather intelligence.

The leaking of a CIA agent’s identity is a serious breach of our national security, and something must be done about it.

DOMINICAN REPUBLIC-CENTRAL AMERICAN FREE TRADE AGREEMENT

(Mrs. BIGGERT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Mrs. BIGGERT. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong support of DR–CAFTA. It is not often I agree with the editorial page of The Washington Post, but I want to commend the editorial staff for its outstanding piece today entitled “The Stakes in CAFTA.” The stakes in CAFTA are indeed high and go far beyond issues of tariffs and trade barriers. As the Post put it, “While the U.S. has been focusing on terrorism, a new challenge has been brewing in its own hemisphere. House Members should consider this challenge before voting to slam the door on Central America’s pro-American leaders.”

The Post concludes that CAFTA will help the poor of Latin America, creating 300,000 new jobs and a new mechanism for enforcing labor rights. I quote, “The defeat of CAFTA would help not antipoverty movements but anti-American demagogues, starting with Mr. Chavez of Venezuela. For them, the retreat of the U.S. from partnership with Central America would be a major victory.”

Mr. Speaker, I urge support of DR–CAFTA.

SOCIAL SECURITY

(Mrs. DAVIS of California asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Mrs. DAVIS of California. Mr. Speaker, my colleagues have been saying all along that the recently introduced Social Security GROW Act does not address the future solvency of Social Security, that it will cut guaranteed Social Security benefits, and that it continues the raid on the Social Security Trust Fund, despite what its sponsors say.

Well, you do not have to take our word for it. Even my friends on the other side of the aisle have begun to publicly question their party’s position. The gentleman from Arizona (Mr. KOLBE) said in USA Today that “you must eat your spinach before having dessert, and this plan only offers dessert: the personal retirement account.” Senator CHUCK GRASSLEY of Iowa said in the L.A. Times that he was “disappointed that the new House Republican bill did not address Social Security’s impending insolvency.” And the gentleman from Connecticut (Mr. SIMMONS) said to Bloomberg News, “I do not support legislation that takes tax dollars and diverts them to private accounts.”

This legislation is not the way to preserve Social Security. As we prepare to celebrate the 70th anniversary of Social Security, we should be straightening it rather than jeopardizing our citizens’ hard-earned retirement savings.

H.R. 2049. FEDERAL CONTRACTORS SECURITY ACT

(Mrs. BLACKBURN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Mrs. BLACKBURN. Mr. Speaker, the Washington Post carries an editorial this morning on illegal immigration, and it talks about the Senate beginning to take up that issue today. I look forward to our discussion and continued work on that issue here in the House. It is an issue that is of tremendous importance to my home State of Tennessee.

I would like to call the body’s attention to a bill that I filed that deals with immigration reform, H.R. 2049, the Federal Contractors Security Act. What this does is to require those companies contracting with the Federal Government to use the basic worker verification program to ensure us, the taxpayers, that the individuals working for them are in the country legally and that they are who they claim to be.

Mr. Speaker, this is a national security issue. It is a homeland security issue. It is an issue of tremendous importance. I encourage the body to look at H.R. 2049, and I encourage our leadership to take aggressive action to fight illegal immigration.

UNITED STATES TRADE RIGHTS ENFORCEMENT ACT

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 3283) to enhance resources to enforce United States trade rights, as amended.

The Clerk read as follows:

H.R. 3283
Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE. This Act may be cited as the “United States Trade Rights Enforcement Act”.

SEC. 2. SENSE OF CONGRESS. It is the sense of Congress that—
(1) United States producers that believe they are injured by subsidized imports from nonmarket economy countries have not been able to obtain relief through countervailing duty actions because the Department of Commerce has declined to make countervailing duty determinations for nonmarket economy countries, partly because it lacks explicit legal authority to do so;
(2) explicitly making the countervailing duty law under subtitle A of title VII of the Tariff Act of 1930 (19 U.S.C. 1671 et seq.) applicable to actions by nonmarket economy countries would give United States producers access to import relief measures that directly target government subsidies; and
(3) the Bureau of Customs and Border Protection of the Department of Homeland Security has encountered particular problems in collecting countervailing and anti-dumping duties from new shippers who default on their bonding obligations;
(4) this behavior may detract from the ability of United States companies to recover from competition found to be unfair under international trade laws;

(5) it is appropriate, for a test period, to suspend the availability of bonds for new shippers and instead require cash deposits;

(6) more analysis and assessment is needed to determine the appropriate policy to respond to this and other problems experienced in the collection of duties and the impact that proposed administrative measures have on legitimate United States trade and United States trade obligations;

(7) problems in the developments in the ongoing World Trade Organization (WTO) negotiations relating to trade remedies, Congress reiterated its resolve as expressed in House Concurrent Resolution 296 (105th Cong., 1st sess.), which was overwhelmingly approved by the House of Representatives on November 7, 2001, by a vote of 419 to 4;

(8) the United States Trade Representative should monitor compliance by United States trading partners with their trade obligations and systematically identify areas of non-compliance;

(9) the United States Trade Representative should then aggressively resolve noncompliance through consultations with United States trading partners;

(10) however, should efforts to resolve disputes through consultation fail, the United States Trade Representative should vigorously pursue United States rights through administra- tive measures that avoid dispute settlement in every available forum;

(11) given the huge trade with the People’s Republic of China, its impact on the United States economy, and the complaints voiced by many United States interests that China is not complying with its international obligations, the United States Trade Representative should place particular emphasis on identifying and resolving disputes with China that limit United States exports, particularly concerning compliance with obligations relating to intellectual property rights and enforcement, tariff and nontariff barriers, subsidies, technical barriers to trade, sanitary and phytosanitary issues, nonmarket-based industrial policies, distribution rights, and regulatory transparency;

(12) in addition, the United States Trade Representative should place particular emphasis on trade barriers imposed by Japan, specified United States trade in Chinese-made United States beef without scientific justi- fication, the Japanese sanitary and phytosanitary restrictions on United States agricultural and processed Chinese-made pharmaceutical and medical device reference pricing, insurance cross-subscription, and privatization in a variety of sectors that discernibly discriminate against United States companies;

(13) the fixed exchange rate that the People’s Republic of China has maintained until recently has been a substantial distortion to world trade and the pricing of many United States products, impeding adjustment of international imbalances, and serving as a source of large and increasing risk to the Chinese economy;

(14) such behavior has effectively prevented market forces from operating efficiently in the People’s Republic of China, distorting world trade;

(15) in a welcome move, the People’s Republic of China has now begun to move to a more flexible exchange rate, and it should continue to so move to a market-based ex- change rate as quickly as possible;

(16) in light of this recent positive development, the Secretary of Treasury should pro- vide to Congress a periodic assessment of the mechanism through which the Chinese government intends to regulate its currency to a basket of foreign currencies and the degree to which the application of this mechanism moves the currency closer to a market-based representation of its value;

(17) in addition, Japan’s policy of inter- vening in the exchange rates of its currency and its prolific barriers to trade create dis- tortions that disadvantage United States ex- porters;

(18) this adverse impact is magnified by Ja- pan’s role in the global marketplace, com- bined with its chronic surplus, weak econ- omy, deflationary economy, low growth rate, and lack of consumer spending; and

(19) accordingly, the United States Trade Representative should have additional re- sources in the Office of the General Counsel, the Office of Japan, Korea, and APEC Affairs to address a variety of needs that will best enable United States companies, farmers, and workers to benefit from the trade agreements to which the United States has around the world.

SEC. 3. APPLICATION OF COUNTERTWISTING DUTIES TO NONMARKET ECONOMY COUNTRIES.

(a) AMENDMENTS.—

(1) COUNTER TWISTING DUTIES IMPOSED.—Sec- tion 701(a)(1) of the Tariff Act of 1930 (19 U.S.C. 1671a(a)(1)) is amended by inserting ‘‘(including a nonmarket economy country)’’ after ‘‘country’’ each place it appears.

(2) DEFINITIONS.—Section 771(5)(E) of such Act (19 U.S.C. 1677(5)(E)) is amended by adding at the end the following new sentence: ‘‘With respect to the People’s Republic of China, if the admin- istering authority encounters special dif- ficulties in calculating the amount of a ben- efit under clause (I), (II), (III), or (IV) of this subparagraph, the administering authority may use methodologies for identifying and measuring the subsidy benefit which take into account the possibility that prevailing terms and conditions may not always be available as appropriate bench- marks. When applying such methodologies, where practicable, the administering author- ity should adjust such prevailing terms and conditions before considering the use of terms and conditions prevailing outside China.’’

(b) PROHIBITION ON DOUBLE COUNTING.—In applying section 701(a)(1) of the Tariff Act of 1930, as amended by subsection (a), to a class or kind of merchandise of a nonmarket economy country, the administering authority shall ensure that—

(1) any countervailable subsidy is not dou- ble counted in an antidumping order under section 751(a)(2) of the Tariff Act of 1930 on the same class or kind of merchandise of the country; and

(2) the application of section 701(a)(1) of such Act is consistent with the international obligations of the United States.

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by subsection (a) apply to any petition filed under section 702 of the Tariff Act of 1930 (19 U.S.C. 1671a) on or after 30 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, and the provisions of subsection (b) apply to any subsequent determination made under section 735, 735, or 751 of such Act (19 U.S.C. 1673b, 1673d, or 1675).

SEC. 4. NEW SHIPPER REVIEW AMENDMENT.

(a) SUSPENSION OF THE AVAILABILITY OF BONDS TO NEW SHIPPERS.—Clause (ii) of sec- tion 751(a)(2)(B) of the Tariff Act of 1930 (19 U.S.C. 1675(a)(2)(B)(iii)) shall not be effective during the 3-year period beginning on the date of the enactment of this Act.

(b) REPORT ON THE IMPACT OF THE SUSPENSION.—Not later than 2 years after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of the Treasury, in consultation with the Secretary of Commerce, the United States Trade Representative, and the Secretary of Homeland Security, shall submit to the Committee on Finance of the Senate and the Committee on Ways and Means of the House of Representatives a report on the extent to which the suspension of the availability of bonds to new shippers should be extended beyond the date provided in subsection (a) of this section; and

(2) assessments of the effectiveness of any administrative measures that have been im- plimented to address the difficulties giving rise to the suspension under subsection (a) of this section, including problems in ensuring the collection of antidumping duties on imports from new shippers; and

(B) burdens imposed on legitimate trade and commerce by the unavailability of bonds to new shippers by reason of the suspension under subsection (a).

(c) REPORT ON COLLECTION PROBLEMS AND ANALYSIS OF PROPOSED SOLUTIONS.—

(1) REPORT.—Not later than 90 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of the Treasury, in consultation with the Commissioner of Customs and Border Protection and the Sec- retary of Commerce, shall submit to the Committee on Ways and Means of the House of Representa- tives, a report describing the major problems experienced in the collection of duties, including fraudulent activities in- tended to avoid payment, with an estimate of the total amount of uncollected duties for the previous fiscal year and a breakdown across product lines describing the reasons duties were uncollected.

(2) RECOMMENDATIONS.—The report shall make recommendations on additional ac- tions the remaining problems related to duty collection; the Commission’s recom- mendation, provide an analysis of how the recommendation would address the specific problem or problems cited and the impact that implementing the recommendation would have on international trade and com- merce (including any additional costs im- posed on United States businesses and whether the implementation of the revision is likely to violate any international trade obligations).

SEC. 5. COMPREHENSIVE MONITORING OF COM- PLIANCE BY THE PEOPLE’S REPUBLIC OF CHINA WITH ITS INTERNATIONAL TRADE OBLIGATIONS.

(a) INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY RIGHTS COM- PLIANCE.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—In accordance with the terms of the Agreement of WTO Accession of the People’s Republic of China, subsequent agreements by Chinese authorities through the U.S.-China Joint Commission on Commerce and Trade (J CCT), and other obli- gations by Chinese officials related to its trade obligations, the United States Trade Representative and the Secretary of Com- merce shall, under the direction of the Commis- sioner of Customs and Border Protection and the Secretary of Homeland Security, shall submit to the Committee on Finance of the Senate and the Committee on Ways and Means of the House of Representa- tives a report on the extent to which the Government of the People’s Republic of China has taken the following steps:

(A) The Chinese Government has increased the number of civil and criminal prosecu- tions of intellectual property rights viola- tors by the end of 2005 to a level that signifi- cantly decreases the current amount of infringing products for sale within China.

(B) China’s Supreme People’s Court, Su- preme People’s Procuratorate, and Ministry of Public Security have issued draft guide- lines for public complaints; and

(c) time- ly referral of intellectual property rights violations from administrative bodies to criminal prosecution.

(2) IN GENERAL.—The United States Com- missioner of Public Security and the General Administration of Customs have issued regulations to ensure the timely transfer of intellectual property rights cases for criminal investigation.

(D) The Chinese Ministry of Public Security has established a leading group responsible for the coordinated nationwide enforcement effort.

(E) The Chinese Government has established a bilateral intellectual property rights law enforcement working group in cooperation with the United States, whose members will cooperate on enforcement activities to reduce cross-border infringing activities.

(F) The Chinese Government has aggressively countered movie piracy by dedicating enforcement efforts to actions against pirates and has regularly instructed enforcement authorities nationwide that copies of films and audio-visual products still in copyright or import review or otherwise not yet authorized for distribution are deemed pirated and subject to enhanced enforcement.

(G) By the end of 2005, the Chinese Government has completed its legalization program to ensure that all central, provincial, and local government offices are using only licensed software. The government has extended the program to enterprises (including state-owned enterprises).

(H) The Chinese Government, having declared that software end-user piracy is considered to constitute “harm to the public interest” and as such will be subject to administrative penalties nationwide, has initiated civil and criminal prosecutions of software end-user violators.

(I) The Chinese Government has appointed an Intellectual Property Rights Ombudsman at the Chinese Embassy in Washington, D.C., to serve as the point of contact for United States companies, particularly small- and medium-sized businesses, seeking to secure and enforce their intellectual property rights in China or experiencing intellectual property rights problems in China.

(J) The relevant Chinese agencies, including the Ministry of Commerce, the China Trademark Office, the State Intellectual Property Office, and the National Copyright Administration, have significantly improved intellectual property rights enforcement at trade shows and issued new regulations to achieve this goal.

(K) On June 30, 2006, the Chinese State Council has submitted to the National People’s Congress the legislative package needed for China to accede to the World Intellectual Property Organization (WIPO) Internet treaties.

(N) The Chinese Government has initiated civil and criminal prosecutions against exporters of infringing recordings.

(2) DISPUTE SettleMENT PROCEDURES IN WTO—If the President determines that the People’s Republic of China has not met each of the obligations described in subparagraphs (A) through (N) of paragraph (1) or taken steps that are significant in the enforcement of protections in protection of intellectual property rights in accordance with its trade obligations, then the President shall assign such resources as are necessary to collect evidence of a failure of such trade agreement violations for use in dispute settlement proceedings against China in the World Trade Organization.

(1) China has completed the regulatory approval process for a United States-produced corn biotech variety.

(c) REPORT ON ACTIONS BY CHINA.—In accordance with the terms of the Agreement of WTO Accession for the People’s Republic of China, subsequent agreements by Chinese authorities through the U.S.-China Joint Commission on Commerce and Trade (JCCT), and other obligations by Chinese officials related to its trade obligations, the United States Trade Representative and the Secretary of Commerce shall undertake to ensure that the Government of the People’s Republic of China has provided a detailed accounting of its subsidies to the World Trade Organization by the end of 2005.

(f) REPORTS.—

(ii) MONTHLY REPORT.—Not later than 30 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, and every 30 days thereafter, the President shall submit to the appropriate congressional committees a report that—

(1) defines currency manipulation;

(2) assesses the foreign countries that will be considered to be currency manipulation; and

(3) describes how statutory provisions adding a currency manipulation designation to the WTO agreements of the United States contained in, and relating to, sections 40 of the Bretton Woods Agreements Act (22 U.S.C. 286y) and sections 3004 and 3005 of the Exchange Rates and International Economic Policy Coordination Act of 1988 (22 U.S.C. 5304 and 5305) can be better clarified administratively to improve the improved and more predictable evaluation.

(b) REPORT ON ACTIONS BY CHINA.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—In light of the recent positive enforcement by the Government of the People’s Republic of China with respect to increased exchange rate flexibility, the Secretary of the Treasury shall submit to the appropriate congressional committees a report that examines the mechanism adopted by the Chinese Government to relate its currency to the SDR basket of currencies and the degree to which the application of this mechanism moves the currency closer to a market-based representation of its value.

SEC. 7. AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS FOR OFFICE OF THE UNITED STATES TRADE REPRESENTATIVE.

(a) Authorization of Appropriations.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Section 141(g)(1)(A) of the Trade Act of 1974 (19 U.S.C. 2171(g)(1)(A)) is amended by striking clauses (i) and (ii) and inserting the following:

''(i) $62,752,000 for fiscal year 2006.

''(ii) $65,890,000 for fiscal year 2007.

(2) RULE OF CONSTRUCTION.—The amendment made by paragraph (1) shall not be construed to affect the availability of funds appropriated pursuant to section 330(e)(2)(A) of the Tariff Act of 1930 before the enactment of this Act.

(b) Authorization of Appropriations for the Office of the General Counsel and Certain Other Offices.—There are authorized to be appropriated to the Office of the United States Trade Representative for the appointment of additional staff in or enhanced activities by the Office of the General Counsel, the Office of Monitoring and Enforcement, the Office of China Affairs, and the Office of Japan, Korea, and APEC Affairs—

(1) $4,000,000 for fiscal year 2006; and

(2) $8,522,000 for fiscal year 2007.

(c) Sense of Congress.—It is the sense of the Congress that enforcement of United States rights and of obligations of United States trading partners under trade agreements has gained such significance that the United States Trade Representative should determine which of its current positions is most responsible for carrying out these important enforcement duties and should assign that position, in addition to any other title, the title of Chief Enforcement Officer.

SEC. 8. AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS FOR THE UNITED STATES INTERNATIONAL TRADE COMMISSION.

(a) Authorization of Appropriations.—Section 330(e)(2)(A) of the Tariff Act of 1930 (19 U.S.C. 1330(e)(2)(A)) is amended by striking clauses (i) and (ii) and inserting the following:

''(i) $62,752,000 for fiscal year 2006.

''(ii) $65,890,000 for fiscal year 2007.

(b) Rule of Construction.—The amendment made by subsection (a) shall not be construed to affect the availability of funds appropriated pursuant to section 330(e)(2)(A) of the Tariff Act of 1930 before the enactment of this Act.

(c) Study and Report on Trade and Economic Relations With China.—

(1) STUDY.—The United States International Trade Commission shall carry out a comprehensive study on trade and economic relations between the United States and the People’s Republic of China which addresses China’s economic policies, including its exchange rate policy, the competitiveness of China’s manufacturing sector, the nature of China’s trade practices, trade patterns, and other elements impacting the United States trade account, industry, competitiveness, and employment.

(2) Agreement on Government Procurement (GPA) of the World Trade Organization (WTO) provides a multilateral framework of rights and obligations founded on such principles.

(3) The United States is a member of the GPA along with 45 WTO member countries, including its 25 member States: Austria, Belgium, Cyprus, the Czech Republic, Denmark, Estonia, Finland, France, Germany, Greece, Hungary, Iceland, Ireland, Italy, Japan, Korea, Liechtenstein, the Netherlands with respect to Aruba, Norway, Singapore, and Switzerland.

(4) Albania, Bulgaria, Georgia, Jordan, the Kyrgyz Republic, Moldova, Oman, Panama, and Tajikistan are currently negotiating to accede to the GPA.

(5) The People’s Republic of China joined the WTO in December 2001, signifying to the international community its commitment to greater openness.

(6) When China joined the WTO, it committed, in its protocol of accession, to negotiate entry into the GPA “as soon as possible.”

(7) More than 3 years after its entry into the WTO, China has not commenced negotiations to join the GPA.

(8) Significant developments in China illustrate the importance and urgency of expanding membership in the GPA.

(9) In 2002, China enacted a law on government procurement that contradicts its accession preferences for domestic goods and services.

(10) The first sector for which the Chinese Government has sought to implement the new government procurement law is computer software.

(11) In March 2005 the Chinese Government released a draft regulations governing the procurement of computer software.

(12) The draft regulations require that non-Chinese software companies meet conditions relating to outsourcing of software development work to China, technology transfer, and similar requirements, in order to be eligible to participate in the Chinese Government market.

(13) As a result of the proposed regulations, it appears likely that a very substantial amount of American software will be excluded from the Chinese procurement process in China. The draft software regulations threatened to close off a market with a potential value of more than $8 billion to United States firms.

(14) United States software companies have made a substantial commitment to the Chinese market and have made a substantial contribution to the development of China’s software industry.

(15) The outright exclusion of substantial amounts of software not of Chinese origin that is apparently contemplated in the regulations is out of step with domestic preferences that exist in the procurement laws and practices of other WTO member countries, including the United States.

(16) The draft regulations do not adhere to the principles of nondiscriminatory, pro-competitive, merit-based, and technology-neutral procurement embodied in the GPA.

(17) The software piracy rate in China has never fallen below 90 percent over the past 10 years.

(18) Chinese Government entities represent a very significant portion of the software market in China that is not dominated by piracy.

(19) The combined effect of rampant software piracy and the proposed discriminatory government procurement regulations will be to inhibit penetration of the market and access for the United States software industry in China.
The United States trade deficit with China in 2004 was $162,000,000,000, the highest with any economy in the world, and a 12.4 percent increase over 2003.

China’s Premier, Wen Jiabao, has committed to rectify this serious imbalance by increasing China’s imports of goods and services from the United States.

Software procurement regulations that were described by the Chinese Government in November 2004 incorporate policies that are fully at odds with Promontory’s commitment to increase China’s imports from the United States, and will add significantly to the trade imbalance between the United States and China.

Implemented, the discriminatory aspects of China’s government procurement law will apply to all goods and services that the government procures.

Other developing countries may follow the lead of China.

In July 2005, senior officials of the Chinese Government announced at the U.S.-China Joint Committee on Commerce and Trade that China would accelerate its efforts to join the GPA and toward this end will initiate technical consultations with other WTO members.

The delay issuing draft regulations on software procurement, as it further considers public comments and makes revisions in light of WTO comments.

China’s Premier, Wen Jiabao, has committed to increase China’s imports from the United States, and accordingly, China assigned itself the date of the end of calendar year 2005. This merely creates a monitoring process to determine how it can be achieved.

The bill is very timely because it includes another monitoring process just recently announced by the Government of China dealing with its currency, its desire to unpeg its currency to the U.S. dollar, and its commitment to be on a basket of world currencies. That also, in this legislation, would be monitored.

I am pleased to say that the gentleman from New York (Mr.angel) and the gentlewoman from Connecticut (Mrs. Johnson) have examined and offered a resolution on the government procurement agreement of the World Trade Organization urging China to fully participate. That is included as well.

This bill is designed to meet a number of Members’ particular concerns focused on world trade, not just China. For example, additional money is being provided to the United States Trade Representative for enforcement purposes. Yes, it includes the Office of China Affairs, but I do want Members to know it also includes the Office of Japan, Korea, and Asian Pacific Affairs because there are several provisions in here monitoring, frankly, the Government of Japan based upon its unfair trade practices, most focused on the use of so-called sanitary and phytosanitary measures as, in fact, nontariff trade barriers.

So this is a compendium of concerns presented at a time that the trade issues will be in front of us this week, and leadership felt, and I agree as well, that this measure allows us to focus beyond this hemisphere, in fact, at major trading partners and behavior that we have seen not just in terms of providing tools to enforce U.S. trade rights, but to monitor personal individual and voluntary commitments made by governments as well.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. Rangel. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

The United States Trade Rights Enforcement Act, as amended, is a compendium of concerns that have been expressed in a bipartisan way by Members of this House in regard to some of our trading partners.

This bill has been identified as an “anti-China” bill. That simply is not the case. The provisions to assist us in determining how you examine a non-market economy and determine whether or not it is carrying out practices that are in violation of the WTO is applied to any country with a nonmarket economy.

It is true that there are monitoring provisions dealing with agreements that China has voluntarily lain on the table; for example, moving away from the Government of China using counterfeit software and, therefore, protecting intellectual property rights, and China assigned itself the date of the end of calendar year 2005. This merely creates a monitoring process to determine how it can be achieved.

The bill is very timely because it includes another monitoring process just recently announced by the Government of China dealing with its currency, its desire to unpeg its currency to the U.S. dollar, and its commitment to be on a basket of world currencies. That also, in this legislation, would be monitored.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. Rangel. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, we object to the suspension calendar being used for political purposes. As most of us know, this calendar is supposed to be used to expedite legislation that is not controversial and has no substantial opposition. One would hardly believe that this bill is on the calendar today for purposes of improving our trade relationship with the People’s Republic of China.

Clearly, for those who are following the Central American Free Trade Agreement with the Dominican Republic, we know that to use an effort to solicit votes or to be done in a partisan way to see who won and who lost.

The chairman of the committee is right that the Democrat side as well as working with the gentlewoman from Connecticut (Mrs. Johnson) is very anxious to clear up the complexities that put the United States at a disadvantage as relates to dealing with the Chinese Government. But at the same time, we truly believe that these bills should not be the Rangel bill with Democrats or the English bill with Republicans, but rather a bill that we can say as members of the Committee on Ways and Means and as Member of Congress that we have had hearings, and we have come out with a position that you do not have to check the party to know whether it is right or whether it is wrong.

There is a substantial difference between the bills that the Democrats put in, which certainly deals with the provisions that are in the bill before us today, but also it prevents the loopholes that are in that bill and provides for other considerations that would make this a better bill and improve our relationship with China.

Again, Mr. Speaker, this bill has nothing to do with China and has everything to do with an attempt to get votes. DR–CAFTA, we know what this is all about. A vote against this bill will send a message to Democrats and Republicans not to use the procedures of the House for political purposes; to not put controversial bills on the suspension calendar and to take them to the committee of jurisdiction where they belong so that they can be discussed, debated, and then brought to the floor in a bipartisan way so that we can look at it.

Mr. Speaker, I hope this bill is pulled so that we do not have to take a vote on it.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.
hearings that the Committee on Ways and Means has had over China and other trade concerns, this bill is backed by hearings notwithstanding what the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL) said. But most of the other pieces of legislation in fact violate our WTO rules. Every WTO rule is a rule that we desire China and other nations to follow.

This bill does not do that. It is a responsible bill responding in ways that are appropriate. Inappropriate responses that actually violate the WTO rules to make our subsidies in France, Japan, Brazil, or Taiwan, we can use countervailing duties to strip the benefits of those subsidies, but we cannot do so if we find the same subsidies in China or Vietnam.

This bill would establish a strong and external system to audit China’s compliance with trade obligations on intellectual property rights, market access, and transparency; and it would place Congress strongly on the record as opposing attempts to use the WTO to water down domestic trade law protections.

It would require the Treasury Department to define currency manipulation and clarify legal protections against China and other countries that manipulate their currency. It would increase funding for the United States trade representative to create more trade cops to improve enforcement of existing trade laws.

By replacing current bonds that are used by new shipper in antidumping cases with cash deposits, we are dealing with one of the biggest loopholes.

Finally, it would authorize funding for the International Trade Commission. Mr. Speaker, passage of this legislation is essential for the economic future of the next generation, for the future of good-paying jobs in places like northwestern Pennsylvania where we make things for a living. We need this legislation passed by a Congress willing to come together, to put aside its political differences, and certainly not vote down this legislation merely for political positioning on another trade agreement.

Mr. Speaker, I urge passage of this key legislation. This is the top trade vote of this year, and everyone will be counted on it.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CARDIN), the distinguished ranking member of the Subcommittee on Trade.

Mr. CARDIN. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from New York (Mr. Rangel) for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, normally the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. English) may control the remainder of my time to the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Gingrey). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

Mr. ENGLISH of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 3 1/2 minutes.

Mr. Speaker, this bill is a strong, responsible bill responding in ways that are appropriate. Inappropriate responses that actually violate the WTO rules to make our subsidies in France, Japan, Brazil, or Taiwan, we can use countervailing duties to strip the benefits of those subsidies, but we cannot do so if we find the same subsidies in China or Vietnam.

Mr. ENGLISH of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 3 1/2 minutes.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CARDIN), the distinguished ranking member of the Subcommittee on Trade.

Mr. CARDIN. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from New York (Mr. Rangel) for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, normally the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. English) and I are on the same side when it comes to countervailing duties. Both of us have a strong desire to make sure that our antidumping laws and countervailing duty laws are enforced, particularly as it relates to our manufacturing industries. We differ on this bill.

This bill purports to move forward and clarify the use of countervailing duty remedies against nonmarket economies, but it establishes two new loopholes that will make it difficult for industry to get relief. It is already difficult for industry to get relief. This bill will make it more difficult.

I find it difficult how people can understand our debate here today. These are very complicated issues. We cannot be talking about double counting. I would like to have a debate with the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. English) in regards to problems of double counting. These are complex issues. This bill is on the suspension calendar. We cannot even offer any amendments or substitutes. We are limited to 40 minutes of debate. That is not the way we should be talking about a major issue concerning our relationships with nonmarket economies and our trading rules.

This bill does address some specific issues, but does not address the problems. As it deals with countervailing duties, it creates two new problems for cases to be filed.

In regard to currency manipulation by China, an issue that many of us have talked about on this floor, the content of this bill, it sets up another study by the Treasury Department. We already know what they are going to do. They have already reported back to us. We need action.

In regard to the use of safeguards, no action in this bill.

International property violations, no action in this bill.

In regards to the loophole Chinese exporters have to avoid paying duties, it provides a temporary 3-year provision rather than permanently fixing the action.

Despite what the gentleman from Pennsylvania said, there is no new money in this bill in order to enforce our laws. We have already gone through the appropriation process, what this bill purports to do through the suspension calendar.

Mr. Speaker, we should be able to consider H.R. 3006 introduced by the gentleman from New York (Mr. Rangel). That bill would not modify the access agreement. That bill would not modify the access agreement. It would provide permanent relief in regards to the loophole that Chinese exporters are currently using. Mr. Speaker, it would provide permanent relief in regards to the loophole that Chinese exporters are currently using.

That is the legislation we should be able to consider, at least through amendment, but we cannot because of the process that is being used here. The bottom line is this legislation actually creates more problems in industry being able to bring antidumping or countervailing duty actions, and we should not be making it more difficult. It is already too difficult for industries to get the type of relief that they desire. We should have a full and open debate on the floor of this House. We should have a full and open debate on the floor of this House.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 1/2 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. Gingrey), the distinguished ranking member of the Subcommittee on Trade.

Mr. Speaker, normally the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. English) said, there is no new money in this bill in order to enforce our laws. We have already gone through the appropriation process, what this bill purports to do through the suspension calendar.
Mr. ENGLISH of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. SHAW), the distinguished chairman of the Subcommittee on Trade.

Mr. SHAW. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. ENGLISH) for yielding me this time. I rise today in strong support of this legislation.

I first want to recognize the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. ENGLISH), the chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means Subcommittee on Trade, for his persistence in bringing this bill to the House floor.

Today, China continues its emergence as a major global market. As a member of the World Trade Organization, China has developed competitive domestic industries. However, as a World Trade Organization member, China must comply with international standards which promote fairness and respect for the rule of law.

Madam Speaker, including myself, feel that Beijing can do a much better job in demonstrating to the world that its markets are transparent and fair both to consumers and exporters to China. At the same time, we have to be focused and pragmatic in determining how we can be most effective in establishing checks. This is not and should not continue to be an opportunity for political rhetoric that I have heard here this morning.

The legislation before us allows for a number of these checks. In this bill we create an extensive monitoring of the Chinese market and its compliance on a range of issues, such as intellectual property enforcement, whether the currency mechanism is being implemented properly, market access to the United States goods, and its accountability of Chinese subsidies. I am pleased to hear the news out of Beijing and the Chinese Government that the government has decided to float its currency against a basket of currencies and has appreciated the currency to a certain degree after 10 years. This first step is a positive one, but it must not be met without oversight. We must continue engaging the Chinese Government on the importance of a complete movement toward a managed float of its currency.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. LEVIN), a former ranking member of the Subcommittee on Trade of the Committee on Ways and Means. (Mr. LEVIN asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. Speaker, this bill before us, in a word, is a smoke screen; and it has so little smoke, let alone any fire, that Members can see straight through it.

At its very best, it is feeble; at its worse, it disguises what the real problem is.

The gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL) raised the issue why this is on suspension. The gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL), I, and others introduced legislation, H.R. 3306. And I want to ask the chairman of the subcommittee, the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. ENGLISH), and the gentleman from California (Chairman THOMAS), why not put this bill not on suspension but regular order? Why not sit down with Democrats, including the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL) and others, the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CARDIN) and myself, and try to come up with a truly bipartisan bill? The other side of the aisle has not done that.

They say they are adding provisions adding countervailing duties, but then they add other provisions which make it essentially impossible to work. They talk about currency. I say to the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. ENGLISH), it is more reports. The Rangel bill talks about more than reports.

The Rangel bill has a definition of currency manipulation and the ability under 301 to do something about it. The Rangel bill also recreates super-301 so we will indeed be able to take action and ensures that this administration will take action when China does not meet its commitments.

This bill should be voted down so that we can have an honest discussion and debate on this floor about the way to handle this problem. The gentleman from California (Mr. THOMAS) said something about WTO violation. The bill that the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL) introduced is completely consistent with our WTO obligations. So bringing that up is a total dodge.

This is an effort, I guess, to give some people some cover to vote for another bill. We should not be handling our relationships with China in that manipulative a way. I urge everybody to vote "no" on this bill and give this Congress, this House that is supposed to be the people's House, a chance to discuss this amendment.

This is another example of the abuse of power by this majority, stifling debate, trying to stuff things through on suspension, 40 minutes, no amendment.

What is going to happen is, I think, that this bill will be voted down so that we can take an honest, serious look at this problem on a bipartisan basis.

Mr. ENGLISH of Pennsylvania. Madam Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. THOMAS), a distinguished member of the Committee on Ways and Means. (Mr. HAYWORTH asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HAYWORTH. Madam Speaker, perhaps it is the eternal lament of a minority within a legislative body to focus constantly on process and to share their frustrations with process. But perhaps it is better to focus on policy and work on this legislation, which I support, will do.

The 40th President of the United States, the late Ronald Wilson Reagan, enshrined these three words as part of American policy: trust but verify. The legislation on the floor today deals with verification. I say as one who opposed a trading agreement with China that this legislation brings the monitoring capacity necessary to understand what happens in international trade. Simply stated, Madam Speaker, if you want to get in the game, play by the rules.

While we have seen all sorts of counterfeiting and theft of American intellectual property, this legislation takes steps to put that to a stop and to monitor the behavior. Trust but verify. Vote "yes" on this legislation.

Mr. RANGEL. Madam Speaker, I am pleased to yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. RYAN).

Mr. RYAN of Ohio. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentleman from New York for yielding me this time. As always, the devil is in the details. Ladies and gentlemen, this law guts the countervailing duties provisions that we have been living by.

Check this out: traditionally, the data that we use to determine whether or not a subsidy takes place is used by basing that data on comparable market economies. So we want to trust, but we want to verify. This bill requires the administration to use data from China. We are going to be basing our decisions on data that is gathered by the People's Republic of China. If China's data says there is no subsidy, well, then, there is no subsidy, regardless of what the other comparable economies might say. We are going to trust an administration that has brought one WTO case since 2001, and we want to try to compete with the Chinese?

Last week in the Education Committee, we cut $11 billion from Pell grants. No Child Left Behind is underfunded. We have millions of kids living in poverty. Meanwhile, the Chinese graduated 700,000 engineers last year. We graduated 35,000. Healthy, educated children and enforce international law, that is how you compete with the Chinese.

Mr. ENGLISH of Pennsylvania. Madam Speaker, I yield myself 30 seconds.

First of all, the last speaker appears to have read the other party's bill, not ours. The Democrats' bill is actually worse than our bill and ignores a recommendation by the GAO to authorize the Commerce Department to use third-country information in countervailing duty cases against China consistent with China's WTO accession commitment. Without this provision, the countervailing duty provision would be difficult to use and could be subject to endless court challenges. They have simply misread this legislation and done it in an egregious way.

Madam Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Connecticut (Mrs. JOHNSON), a distinguished member of the Committee on Ways and Means.
Mrs. JOHNSON of Connecticut. Madam Speaker, I rise in strong support of H.R. 3283. As one who advocated China’s entry into the WTO, I am concerned and disappointed with China’s passage of a law on government procurement that incorporates strong preference for domestic goods and services, fostering discrimination against, for example, software companies that have made a substantial commitment to the development of the Chinese software industry. The combined effect of rampant software piracy and the proposed discriminatory government procurement regulations will create a nearly impenetrable barrier to U.S. software. This at a time when the trade deficit with China is at an all-time high.

Madam Speaker, I call on the Chinese Government to immediately enter into negotiations to accede to the agreement on government procurement of the WTO as they committed to 3 years ago and to suspend the implementation of its law on government procurement.

I urge my colleagues to vote overwhelmingly for this bill to send a very strong message to China on all the fronts the bill covers, not the least of which is government procurement. We have the chance to send a strong message and take strong action, and this bill will do it.

Mr. RANGEL. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I think this discussion, especially the opposition to the Rangel bill by the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. ENGLISH), just shows the complexity as well as sincerity of those people that would like to put some checks on the conduct of the Chinese trade people and I think emphasizes why this bill should not be on the suspension calendar.

Madam Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. KUCINICH).

Mr. KUCINICH. I thank the gentleman from New York for yielding me this time.

Madam Speaker, we have been here before. Congress has often resorted to bills and memoranda of understanding concerning China. But the U.S. trade deficit with China has continued to increase. So I am not going to stand here and argue process. We can look at the history and the fact of the whole architecture of agreements that we have had with China, memoranda of understanding, concerns that Members of Congress from both sides of the aisle brought to this floor in order to try to manage United States trade with China.

Remember we were told that a memorandum of understanding on prison labor with China would remove their competitive advantage and re-store balance trade. But the U.S. trade deficit with China worsened.

Remember the agreement to reaffirm the 1992 market access memorandum of understanding. We passed that, but the U.S. trade deficit with China grew worse.

Remember China’s agreement to lower tariffs on imports. They cut the tariffs from 42 percent to 23 percent, then to 17 percent, then to 12 percent. But the U.S. trade deficit with China got worse.

Remember China stopped arbitrary limits on maintaining agricultural imports. That was supposed to be a boon for the United States. But the U.S. trade deficit with China got worse.

China kept getting worse because labor costs in China are so much cheaper.

Hello? Wake up, America. We are giving away our jobs here, and the central issue is the cheap labor in China. You can pass all of these agreements you want. They are not going to amount to a hill of beans, because the fact of the matter is that the U.S. trade deficit in China will continue to grow. It will approach $200 billion, as long as the labor costs are cheaper. That is why we are losing jobs. That is why the trade deficit is growing. That is why we are losing market share. With all due respect to my good friend from Pennsylvania, I do not see this bill amounting to anything. Vote against it.

Mr. ENGLISH of Pennsylvania. Madam Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. CHOCOLA), a distinguished member of the Committee on Ways and Means and an authentic advocate of fair trade.

Mr. CHOCOLA. I thank the gentleman for yielding time.

Madam Speaker, before being elected to Congress, I was manufacturing business that did a significant percentage of our sales outside the United States. I have seen the opportunities of free trade and the global marketplace, and I have seen how those opportunities can lead to jobs right here at home. We did business in over 100 countries, including countries like China. I am convinced that China needs to be a strong trading partner with the United States long term. But for China to succeed and fairly participate in the global marketplace, they must live up to their trade obligations. They must respect and enforce intellectual property rights. They must open market access for U.S. goods, services, and agriculture. They must not manipulate their currency to distort trade.

The Trade Rights Enforcement Act offers a wide range of measures to ensure China abides by its international commitments. Madam Speaker, with a level playing field, U.S. businesses can compete with anybody anywhere at any time. With 96 percent of the world’s consumers outside the United States, the global marketplace holds great promise. This bill is a strong tool to make sure China abides by the rules of free trade and puts U.S. businesses in a competitive position to take advantage of those opportunities. I encourage all of my colleagues to support this Trade Rights Enforcement Act.

Mr. RANGEL. Madam Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. NEAL), a member of the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. NEAL of Massachusetts. Madam Speaker, let me thank the gentleman from New York for yielding me this time.

Madam Speaker, this legislation in front of us today as it relates to China is about one thing and one thing only: providing political cover for those who are reluctant to embrace CAFTA. That test will the other. It is one in a serious bill.

Currency manipulation in this legislation, no action. Dealing with Chinese trade barriers in this legislation, no action. We are going to monitor and study. I think that if they put a study in front of this House, we all ought to take a test on it in 2 years. Sit down and we will all pay attention to the test that they offer. I see in a serious issue like this, we are going to ask for studies.

Safeguards, no action. Subsidies, they create more loopholes than they address. On customs duties, they have a 3-year, but listen to this, temporary measure to deal with the issue. This is a sloppy bill. It is going to do more harm than good. When it is over, the professors will have their jobs, the trade lawyers will have their jobs, the editorial writers across the country will have their jobs; but the men and women of organized labor who call this for what it is, they know that their jobs are at risk and they are opposed to this legislation. It is legislation, and it gives more power to WTO. It purports to help solve problems with customs enforcement. It makes them worse. It does not require China to make meaningful changes to its policy of currency manipulation. Much more emphasis can we put on that issue in this institution? We need to recalibrate our trading relationship with China. This will not do it, and everybody knows it. An emphasis on that takes to recalibrate our trading relationship with China.

When we get done with this legislation today, and there is some question as to whether or not they can pass it. I am just going to close on this note. We have a highly regarded regular order in this institution of the responsibilities of the Committee on Ways and Means, the committee that many members of this institution desire to be on. You do not go around the committee the way this is being done. You go through the committee. You have hearings with a respected tradition in this House of Representatives for the Committee on Ways and Means. You do not do this through the back door.

Mr. ENGLISH of Pennsylvania. Madam Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from New York (Mr. REYNOLDS), a distinguished advocate of fair trade and a member of the Subcommittee on Trade.

(Mr. REYNOLDS asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.) □ 1115

Mr. REYNOLDS. Madam Speaker, I recently hosted roundtables with manufacturers in my district. Whether it is currency manipulation or unfair subsidies, it is clear that our local employers have long had enough of the way China cheats on trade. As John Hoskins of Curtis Screw in Buffalo told me, they have “never been afraid to compete globally.” But this century-old manufacturer can only compete globally if they can compete fairly, and they note that some of their Chinese competitors have much of the cost subsidized by the government. “To put this in perspective,” he said, “the only way * * * U.S. manufacturers can compete * * * is if the US government begins to pay for our building * * * our labor, our employee benefits and * * * other costs of doing business.” This is exactly what the Chinese are doing today.

I have always maintained that our products and our workers can compete anywhere, with anyone in the world, as long as that competition is fair. This bill will help combat illegal subsidies, provide additional funding for enforcement of trade laws, and make certain that our products and services have fair access to Chinese markets—all critical aspects of our fight to ensure fair trade.

I commend Congressman ENGLISH and Chairman THOMAS for their hard work on this issue; and I urge my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to support this bill.

Mr. RANGEL. Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. ENGLISH of Pennsylvania. Madam Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from California (Chairman THOMAS) for their hard work on this issue, and I urge my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to support this bill.

I commend the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. ENGLISH) and the gentleman from California (Chairman THOMAS) for their hard work on this issue, and I urge my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to support this legislation.

As a long-time champion of fair trade and a lead cosponsor of this legislation, I rise in strong support of the U.S. Trade Rights Enforcement Act.

When China was permitted to join the World Trade Organization in 2001, there was an implicit promise from the American businesses, workers, and consumers—that we would get a fair deal in our trade relations with the Chinese. Yet, in so many areas—intellectual property rights, currency valuation, subsidies, trade barriers, you name it—we see China failing to live up to that bargain by ignoring international trade norms.

The bill includes a variety of measures that will help bring an end to unfair trade practices abroad, and level the playing field for American companies and workers. The countervailing duties provision is especially important for local manufacturers.

It’s an important instrument for U.S. businesses trying to successfully combat illegal subsidies; and why the National Association of Manufacturers (NAM) has expressed its strong support for this measure.

I recently hosted roundtables with manufacturers in my district; and whether it’s currency manipulation or unfair subsidies, it’s clear that the Chinese government is through the roof. I believe that we need to support this legislation, reject the Democrat bill, which does not address these issues.

Mr. ENGLISH of Pennsylvania. Madam Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the distinguished gentleman from Michigan (Mr. ROGERS), one of the key players in developing this legislation.

Mr. ROGERS of Michigan. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. ENGLISH) for yielding me this time, and I thank the chairman for working on this bill.

Quickly, one of the things that my mother used to tell me is self-pity never solves one problem. We know how to fix this bill. I should feel sorry for them; they should not feel sorry for me. We should vote on the bill that will make a difference.

These are counterfeit parts made in China. They are robbing and stealing from the American economy. We have the opportunity today to put a law enforcement trade officer in charge so that when they get up in the morning, the first thing they do is work on how to stop China from doing exactly this and stealing jobs from our economy.

There is a town in China, 80 percent of the parts, over 30 outlets, were counterfeit. If we do not step up to the plate with this bill, we are going to lose and continue to lose $12 billion a year just in automobile part counterfeiting.

This is our chance. I plead with those on the other side, if they truly care about labor, if they care about the individual that gets up in the morning, plays by the rules, and is trying to compete in a world market, they will vote for this bill. They will send a message to China that American jobs are worth fighting for. Give us a fair, level playing field, and we will compete; we will win.

Mr. ENGLISH of Pennsylvania. Madam Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the distinguished gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. BARRY), another strong advocate of fair trade for American workers and American farmers.

Mr. BARRY of South Carolina. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

I rise in strong support of H.R. 3283, the United States Trade Rights Enforcement Act.

Madam Speaker, this bill goes to the heart of what we know is true in South Carolina: China cheats. I thank President Bush and the administration for stepping up their trade enforcements this year, and I especially commend them for expediting the implementation of the Chinese textile safeguards to combat recent surges in exports to our market, but when it comes to China, more must be done.
Mr. ENGLISH of Pennsylvania. Madam Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. MURPHY), a very distinguished advocate of fair trade.

Mr. MURPHY. Madam Speaker, this is one of many bills we need to pass that deal with China and its continued policy of government support, pegging of its currency, not complying with trade laws. They have significantly lower wages, sometimes slave wages, in their plants. Over 90 percent of their steel production comes from government-owned steel mills. Their steel enjoys millions of dollars in government subsidies. China limits foreign participation in the wireless market by imposing severe regulatory requirements on telecommunications imports. The lack of intellectual property rights enforcement in China results in widespread levels of counterfeiting and piracy, causing serious harm to U.S. businesses. The implementation of questionable health standards affects what they will import from our agriculture. Their policies mandate the purchase of Chinese-owned software. They have a value-added tax on all non-Chinese semiconductors, which also hampers American manufacturers' ability to export to them.

These unfair Chinese policies are hurting all American businesses, not just a few, and impact workers here.

Only a strong American commitment to hold China accountable will bring about the changes necessary. Consideration of this bill is an important part of what we need to be doing in an extensive selection of things to hit back on China.

Mr. ENGLISH of Pennsylvania. Madam Speaker, is my understanding correct that the gentleman has only himself as the remaining speaker with 4 minutes?

Mr. RANGEL. The gentleman from Pennsylvania is correct.

Mr. ENGLISH of Pennsylvania. Madam Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. SOUDER), a very distinguished member of the Steel Caucus, an advocate of the cause of fair trade.

(Mr. SOUDER asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SOUDER. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Pennsylvania for his leadership.

It has been alleged here on the House floor that this is a trade for CAFTA, to get some of our votes. Let me be real blunt. It was for me. I took it to the President, the Vice President, our trade ambassador, the Secretary of State, because we have had no action on the China, a Democratic President or a Republican President, we have had no action on China. Whether it was a Democratic Congress or a Republican Congress, we had no action on China. Every single time we came up with this bill, we have to hold China accountable. This is not perfect, but a vote against this bill is a vote for China, not for the United States. It is a small step, but a critical step. Without the data, if they do not let their currency float, how in the world do we measure how much they are manipulating the currency? And those critics of those of us who have been putting pressure on China in the last few weeks said we could never get them to reevaluate their currency. It was a little, piddly step, but 2 percent is 2 percent. It is a big admission that they have been manipulating their currency.

So rather than declare victory and rush home saying we finally, it looks like, are going to pass a bill on China, the other side wants to take it down, or at least a few Members.

We had better pass this bill, or this is yet another victory for China, and we do not get anything done except at critical moments when they need our votes.

I rise in support of H.R. 3283, the United States Trade Rights Enforcement Act.

The outcry from American manufacturers has never been louder. China is destroying many American businesses. For too long, warnings of these businesses have been ignored. The American government has negotiated with China. They think it is cool, but has declined to act decisively and with concrete measures to combat China's policies and help American manufacturers. I applaud those at the United State Trade Representative office who have the daunting task of dealing with the Chinese government, but unless talk is backed-up with action, it really doesn't matter.

Congress has also been reluctant to help where China is concerned. Although we have seen several resolutions condemning Chinese trade practices, they are meaningless, and do nothing to actually help businesses. Often it seems that the piracy of music and movies is worth administration and congressional action, but the piracy of manufactured goods or China's deliberate undercutting of manufacturing through suspect trade policies does not warrant action.

The hollowing out of American manufacturing does warrant action. Although for a vote, we get rolled toward the free market, China remains an avowed communist country. The Communist government and the army own countless businesses, including the Chinese National Overseas Oil Company, which recently made a bid for Unocal. They prop up many businesses with free or reduced-cost energy, low cost or no-cost loans and financing, and sometimes forced labor. Because of the trade laws and manipulation in the economy, Chinese businesses are not subject to the same market forces as American businesses.

American businesses have also been forced to set-up shop in China. In addition, cheaper imports from China do not have to worry about clean air, clean water, OSHA, or compliance with a crushing regulatory burden.

Although these things put American businesses, particularly manufacturers, at a disadvantage, the biggest distortion of the market is China's currency manipulation. Until last week, China pegged its currency at 8.28 yuan to the dollar. Despite huge growth in the Chinese economy and explosive international trading, the Chinese government refused to revalue its currency. Estimates of China's currency manipulation were anywhere from 20-80 percent. This meant that Chinese goods were 20-80 percent cheaper than they should have been. And American goods were 20-80 percent more expensive.

Last week, the Chinese government raised the yuan by slightly over 2 percent. While I applaud this movement on the part of the Chinese, there is much more that needs to be done. I realize that the Chinese cannot adjust their currency overnight but I expect this latest devaluation to be the first of many. I also expect the Bush administration and future administrations to keep pressuring China to restructure their financial sectors and currency schemes so that they better match those of the market-oriented world.

Their currency needs to flock and let markets determine the value, not the government.

As American manufacturers have been severely damaged by unfair Chinese policies, the necessary tools to fight this unfair competition have not been available to them. One important tool is the countervailing duty, CVD. Countervailing duties are taxes assessed to counter the effects of subsidies provided by foreign governments to their companies or industries. Subsidies cause the price of such merchandise to become artificially low, which may cause economic "injury" to U.S. manufacturers.

One thing is sure, the artificially low price of Chinese merchandise has caused injury to American manufacturers. Unfortunately, the most recent interpretation of American trade laws does not allow CVDs to be applied to non-market economies. H.R. 3283 will explicitly allow them to impose CVDs on goods from non-market economies. It will allow investigators to compare China with comparable market economies, most likely India, in order to see just how much the Chinese government is unfairly aiding its businesses. This will not save American manufacturing overnight but it will help to level the playing field, and allow fair competition in the global marketplace.

This legislation comes to the Floor at the right time and legislation to implement the Central American Free Trade Agreement, CAFTA. I am one of many Members that withheld support for CAFTA in exchange for concrete actions on China. Some have criticized the efforts to link China and CAFTA. They argue that they are two different issues. I disagree. CAFTA has been sold with the promise that it will open up new and bigger markets for American manufacturers. That may be, but if manufacturers in my district are put out of business because of unfair competition from China, whether or not they have access to markets in Central America will be irrelevant because they will be out business.

I urge all of my colleagues in the House and the Senate to vote for this necessary tool against unfair trade practices.

Mr. RANGEL. Madam Speaker, I yield myself the balance of my time.

One reason why we are opposing this bill is because of the process. Clearly a bill is supposed to be brought to this floor when it has overwhelming support, when it is a simple bill, naming a post office, having a stamp, and the publicans and Democrats can look up at the scoreboard and see that we have 435 Members or close to it supporting it.

How can anyone perceive, as one of the Members on the other side said, the most important trade legislation that we ever had will be put on just for 40 minutes debate? The qualities that exist in the English bill, we have been able to close those loopholes. He would want to work together to close those loopholes. All the members of the Committee on Ways and Means feels the same way about trying to do something to contain the overreach of China. What makes the other side believe that we Democrats are not entitled to participate in the substantive nature of sensitive, complex legislation?

Putting this on the suspension calendar, in my opinion, is an insult to Members on both sides of the aisle and is an insult to those people who oversee what we do, because the suspension calendar means that we never thought that they would ever have a problem with it, and that is why we did not say anything in this bill.

I also think that it is really unfair to have the Members of Congress to believe that this bill comes to the floor because of its importance and therefore has to be passed on the suspension calendar. We have plenty of time to work in the Committee on Ways and Means in dealing with this so that we can be proud that we do not have a Rangel bill or an English bill or a Republican bill or a Democratic bill. The pride should come when we have a congressional bill which we can say both sides have an opportunity to hear witnesses; to see what the impact is going to be, whether it is going to work or not work; to see where we thought to put checks on China feel satisfied that we have done it; and to be able to say to foreigners that we may have differences among ourselves, political differences, but when it comes to trade policy, we speak with one voice. The flag is up, and we speak for the United States of America.

So I recognize how important it is to pass the DR–CAFTA bill. I recognize that there is a problem because Democrats were not involved and Republicans cannot get the votes. But I do not know how many suspension bills they are going to bring in as an excuse to get Members to say, I got them to talk about China, and therefore I am going to vote for CAFTA.

It is not enough to talk about China and the problems that we face. What we should be doing is bringing these issues up in the committee that has jurisdiction, and we are so proud of it, and to make certain that the best we can is to have this as a bipartisan effort on both sides.

So this is not the first time that the committees of jurisdiction have had to have Members bypassed in terms of their input, bypassed in terms of the ability to have amendments, and bypassed in terms of saying that we have to find some way to find some bill that we can get bipartisan support on it. The vehicle to do this normally, from the record of the Congress, are the suspension bills. But trade bills should not be on the suspension calendar.

Mr. ENGLISH of Pennsylvania. Madam Speaker, I yield myself the balance of my time.

Madam Speaker, I would like, in this closing remarks, to go through the fog of process arguments and weird Alice in Wonderland illusions to linkage to other trade agreements. This is important legislation, and it is important in itself, and it deals directly with key problems that we are having in our trade relations, particularly with China.

This legislation closes loopholes, not creates loopholes. It allows us, for the first time, to apply countervailing duties to nonmarket economies. That is a good thing. I realize our friends on the other side of the aisle never engaged on the ability to have amendments, and by bypassed in terms of saying that we have to find some way to find some bill that we can get bipartisan support on it. The vehicle to do this normally, from the record of the Congress, are the suspension bills. But trade bills should not be on the suspension calendar.

Madam Speaker, this proposed change would put China into a special category distinct from all other countries. As the words of the Commerce Department: "The proposed change would raise complex methodological questions, and make no provision with respect to countervailing duties. Commerce has called this change "wholly inappropriate." These are the words of the Commerce Department: "The proposed change would put China into a special category distinct from all other countries when subject to concurrent anti-dumping and countervailing duty investigations." According to the Department of Commerce, this restriction "would raise complex methodological questions, the costs of which may far outweigh any purported equity gains of any such amendment."

Secondly, this bill gives the WTO Dispute Settlement Body special influence over U.S. law. WTO decisions are not self-executing. The Congress decides how, when, and whether to implement a WTO decision. This bill ensures that our application of countervailing duty law to non-market economies is consistent with our international obligations. is no guarantee how the WTO would rule if this aspect of this law were brought before it. This provision could place WTO dispute settlement tribunals on a special footing when dealing with U.S. laws.

If this bill were brought up as a regular bill, it would not influence the outcome of disputes, and these troubling provisions could be changed or deleted.

Mr. GENE GREEN of Texas. Madam Speaker, I rise in opposition to H.R. 3283 on both process and policy grounds. This legislation is on the floor this week simply to provide political cover for members who vote for the flawed Central American Free Trade Agreement. The consideration of this bill is not a real attempt to react to Chinese currency manipulation, trade barriers and state-sponsored subsidies. It is merely an empty, rhetorical response to our valid concerns about China's ability to utilize CAFTA to circumvent U.S. trade laws.

The bill's title—the U.S. Trade Rights Enforcement Act—is, at best, a misnomer, because it actually prevents our country from enforcing its trade rights. While the bill purports to address anti-dumping and countervailing duty cases, it contains three glaring loopholes that strip us from any ability to enforce that law. First, the bill limits our use of third-party data when investigating Chinese subsidies in anti-dumping cases. The effect of this provision is to force us to rely on the raw duty data in these cases, even though we've learned time and again that China does not play fair in the global trade market.

The bill also exempts Chinese domestic subsidies when industries file both anti-dumping and countervailing duty cases. This provision essentially applies a more lenient standard to non-market economies than to market economies under U.S. anti-dumping and CVD law. Let me remind my colleagues that our goal here is to get tough on China, not give them a free pass while holding our friends with market economies to a tougher standard.

The bill also imposes extra burdens on the U.S. that raises serious issues with regard to both sovereignty and separation of powers. The bill would direct the Commerce Department to implement new, very clear the application of U.S. law to ensure consistency with the WTO. While every other U.S. law is deemed WTO-compliant unless and until the WTO rules otherwise, this bill makes our actions toward China jump through extra international hoops before it can ever be applied.

Even worse—for the first time ever—the bill would give the Commerce Department the power to align U.S. law with the WTO, without action from Congress. Article I, Section 8 of the U.S. Constitution gives the Congress—not the executive branch—the sole responsibility for the regulation of foreign commerce. This provision is a serious infringement on the power of the legislative branch and strips the Congress of much, if not all, authority to deal with our country's trade concerns with China.

I urge my colleagues not to fall for the majority's empty rhetoric. This bill will do nothing to help our trade problems with China and is a thinly-veiled diversionary tactic to shore up votes for the flawed CAFTA agreement. Look beyond the majority's smoke and mirrors, and vote against this ill-timed and ill-conceived legislation.

Mr. HOLT. Madam Speaker, I rise today in opposition to H.R. 3283. The so-called United States Trade Rights Enforcement Act would provide little to no remedy for those in my district who are deeply concerned about the ever growing trade deficit with the Peoples Republic of China due to its longstanding illegal policy of currency manipulation.

This is a major issue. Congress should be considering this matter for more than forty minutes and with the opportunity to offer amendments. However, this will not be the case today because of the procedures under which this bill was brought to the floor. We should be debating this issue in great depth, not the rather cursory discussion we are having today. We are talking seriously about complex issues like "Super 301," "double counting," and what exactly we should do with our countervailing duties. We should be talking about why our trade deficit with China is now at $162 billion and continues to grow with no end in sight. We should be talking about the fact that China doubled its holding of U.S. debt between 2001 and 2004. And we should be talking about how jobs in our home states have been affected and what we can do to help American businesses who are struggling to export their goods to China. But that defeat unfortunately will not happen today.

Rather, today the House is considering H.R. 3283 because of an agreement reached, I presume to secure votes in favor of the seriously flawed Central American Free Trade Agreement, (DR–CAFTA). The majority has chosen to play politics on the floor today rather than seriously address the issues resulting from China's currency manipulation and the resulting trade imbalance that has ballooned between the United States and China.

I have heard from a number of constituents in my district who are deeply concerned about these issues. And yet today, we are not addressing their concerns with action, we are requesting studies. Today we are not ordering countervailing duties to correct for unfair trade practices, we are creating additional loopholes for China to evade the very paltry countervailing duties that do exist.

Madam Speaker, today I stand with the people in my district who are affected by China's currency manipulation and our soaring trade deficit. That is why I have cosponsored a number of other bills, such as the bipartisan The Chinese Currency Act, H.R. 1498, that will actually address China's currency manipulation. However, I will vote against H.R. 3283, and it is my hope that the Congress will reevaluate this serious issue in a detailed fashion to actually address these important issues that have bipartisan support.

Mr. STARK. Madam Speaker, I rise today in opposition to H.R. 3283, the so-called United States Trade Rights Enforcement Act. This bill purports to address China's law enforcement of its international trade obligations. In fact, this bill does little to address serious trade issues with China, and it is on the House floor for one reason: to garner votes for CAFTA later this week.

There is no question that Congress should do everything in its power to enforce trade rights worldwide. However, giving lip service to an issue that deserves our careful consideration and strong action is a grave disservice to American people. What we should be talking about today is the Bush Administration's continued failure to decrease our trade deficits and promote labor rights, environmental standards and public health protections with our trading partners.

Let's look at the facts: In 2004, the U.S. trade deficit with China grew to a record $162 billion. This despite the fact that China joined the World Trade Organization, WTO, in 2001 and should have been very effective in reducing trade barriers and opening up their markets to U.S. goods and services. Even the United States Trade Representative has said that China's WTO compliance efforts are "far from complete and have not always been satisfactory."

Given these facts, I support strong trade enforcement against China. I am a cosponsor of H.R. 1498, the Chinese Currency Act, which would allow the administration to impose countervailing duties due to China's continued currency manipulation. The bill has 110 bipartisan cosponsors and provides real enforcement mechanisms, instead of the studies and redefinitions offered by H.R. 3283. If the leadership were serious about China we would be voting on this meaningful legislation today. But that is not the case.

Madam Speaker, we have known about trade enforcement issues in China for years. But China legislation magically appears only now that CAFTA is in trouble. I urge my colleagues to vote against H.R. 3283.

Mr. UDALL of Colorado. Madam Speaker, I rise in opposition to H.R. 3283, the United States Trade Rights Enforcement Act.

I do have real concerns about the spiraling trade deficit with China and China's unfair trade practices, and I think Congress should consider possible legislative responses. However, the bill offered today does little to provide assistance to U.S. workers, farmers, and businesses. In fact, it could create additional problems for them. In particular, I am concerned that the legislation could make it more difficult to apply countervailing duties to China and other nonmarket economies while making it easier for them to hide subsidies.

Further, by placing this legislation on the suspension calendar, which is reserved for non-controversial legislation, the Republican leadership has refused to offer a full debate to Members to consider alternative plans to strengthen enforcement of our trade policies and hold countries accountable for their trade practices.

This procedure makes it clear that real intent here is not so much to address our trade problems—it is more about politics and winning extra votes for passage of CAFTA later this week.

It is unfortunate that the Republican leadership has taken this opportunity to bring about stronger trade policies and instead used it to consider a bill that is largely symbolic at best, and could even be harmful.

It is for these reasons I will vote against this bill.

Mr. BACA. Madam Speaker, I rise in opposition to H.R. 3283, concerning trade with China.

I join with millions of American workers in saying no to this ill-conceived Republican gift to the Chinese government.

This bill does nothing to address the growing unfair trade gap between China and the United States—an imbalance purchased with China's exploitation of political prisoners, oppressive jail-like working conditions, child labor, and suppression of basic freedoms.

Products made in China are cheap through the exploitation of the workforce. Every time we shop, we are driving the nail further into the coffin of American manufacturing jobs.

This bill does nothing to address artificially low prices. It does nothing to stop manipulation of currency to drive the United States further into a trade imbalance. It does nothing to save honest American workers from losing their jobs.

This bill weakens the ability of the United States to apply sanctions against China for unfair trade practices. Democrats have offered several much stronger proposals to deal with this issue, and the Republicans have refused to let them come to the floor. Not a single one has been considered.

To help U.S. workers, farmers and businesses, and America’s long-term economic security, Congress should take decisive action to bring about fair trade with China, instead of squandering this opportunity on a weak Republican bill.

If Congress wants to take real action, it should pass comprehensive legislation to end currency manipulation; allow U.S. companies to challenge subsidized imports from China; and fix China safeguard statute and other import remedies to protect U.S. manufacturers against surges and other unfair imports from China.

I support American workers in saying, let’s combat unfair trade practices by providing us with the tools to save American jobs.

It is an insult to American workers that, in the same week that Congress is considering CAFTA, it is bringing forth a weak China trade compromise bill. This demonstrates the majority’s anti-worker agenda, that gives priority to Chinese workers instead of American jobs.

Mr. PAUL. Madam Speaker, I rise in strong opposition to this legislation. Isn’t it ironic that the proponents of “free trade agreements” like CAFTA are lining up squarely behind a bill that threatens a trade war with China, and at the least calls for the United States to initiate protectionist measures such as punitive tariffs against “subsidized” sectors of the Chinese economy? In reality, this bill, which appeared out of the blue on the House floor as a suspension bill, is part of a deal made with several Members in return for a few votes on CAFTA. That is why it is ironic: to get “free trade” with Central America we first need to pass protectionist legislation regarding China.

Madam Speaker, in addition to the irony of the protectionist flavor of this bill, let me say that we should be careful what we demand of the Chinese Government. Take the demand that the Government “revalue” its currency, for example. First, there is sufficient precedent to suggest that doing this would have very little effect on China’s trade surplus with the United States. America’s trade deficit with China recently, “the Japanese yen’s value has more than tripled since the breakdown of the Bretton Woods system, yet Japan’s trade surplus remains huge. Why should the unpegging of the Chinese yuan have any greater impact? As was pointed out in the Wall Street Journal recently, with the yuan tied to several foreign currencies and the value of the dollar dropping, China could be less inclined to purchase dollars as a way of keeping the yuan down. Foreign workers bond purchases by China, if a turn, would drive bond prices down and boost yields—which, subsequently, would cause borrowing costs for residential and some corporate customers to increase. Does anyone want to guess what a sudden burst of the real estate bubble might mean for the shaky U.S. economy? This is not an argument for the status quo, however, but rather an observation that there are often unforeseen consequences when we demand that foreign governments manipulate their currency to U.S. advantage.

At the very least, American consumers will feel the strengthening of the yuan in the form of higher U.S. retail prices. This will disproportionately affect Americans of lower incomes and, as a consequence, slow the economy and increase the hardship of those struggling to get by. Is this why our constituents have sent us here?

In conclusion, I strongly oppose this ill-considered and potentially destructive bill, and I hope my colleagues will join me in rejecting it.

Mr. ENGLISH of Pennsylvania, Madam Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mrs. CAPITO). The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from California (Mr. THOMAS) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 3283, as amended.

The question was taken.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. In the opinion of the Chair, two-thirds of those present have voted in the affirmative.

Mr. RANGEL. Madam Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. ENGLISH of Pennsylvania. The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XIX and the Chair’s prior announcement, further proceedings on this motion will be postponed.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. ENGLISH of Pennsylvania. Madam Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material on the Senate bill under consideration.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from North Carolina?

There was no objection.

Ms. FOXX. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, the global war on terror is being fought at home and abroad by the bravest of Americans. Lance Corporal Brian Parrello, a 19-year-old serving with the Second Marine Division from Passaic County, New Jersey, was one of the most heroic of our fellow citizens.

Lance Corporal Parrello was killed in the city of Haditha in Iraq on New Year’s Day of this year. I know I speak for all American citizens when I say that we have boundless appreciation for Lance Corporal Parrello’s service to our Nation. There are many ways we can remember his immeasurable efforts to rid the world of the scourge of international terrorism. One small, but meaningful, way we can memorialize Brian’s selfless courage and his priceless life is through this legislation.

To get a sense of Brian’s patriotism, I want to impart some words that his older brother Matthew Parrello shared with the local newspaper following Brian’s passing in January. Matthew told The Bergen Record newspaper that Brian “wanted to serve his country, and he loved what he was doing. He was proud to be a Marine, and he loved the guys he was serving with.”

Matthew said Brian had considered joining the military during high school and knew his purpose; he was proud to be a Marine, and he loved what he was doing. He was proud to be a Marine, and he loved the guys he was serving with.”

Madam Speaker, America owes the greatest of debts to heroes like Brian Parrello. Indeed, despite our debt to this Nation.

Lance Corporal Parrello gave his excellent life to this Nation.

Ms. FOXX. Madam Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material on the Senate bill under consideration.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from North Carolina?

There was no objection.
New Jersey's efforts to remember Brian's life through this legislation that would name a post office after him in his hometown of West Milford, New Jersey.

Madam Speaker, I strongly support Senator 904, New Jersey, after the late Brian P. Parrello. This measure, which was introduced by Senator FRANK LAUTENBERG, a Democrat from New Jersey, on April 26, 2005, was unanimously passed by the Senate on June 29, 2005.

Lance Corporal Brian P. Parrello, 19, was killed on September 11, 2001, as a result of hostile action in Haditha, a city along the Euphrates River. Brian Parrello is remembered by friends and family as being a “good guy,” a young person who had dreams of one day becoming a teacher.

Lance Corporal Brian P. Parrello had an avid interest in history. His high school principal, Michael McCormick, recalled that Brian “took every elective history course that we have in our school.”

Madam Speaker, I commend my colleague for seeking to honor the memory of the late Brian Parrello in this manner. Brian is to be remembered for his sacrifice and that he lost his life in furtherance of our freedom. We should not forget that he died in combat, and we would hope that we could end this conflict so that it would not be necessary that we take to the floor to help secure those freedoms. The war on terror is global in nature, and Brian fought in Iraq so that we may end the scourge of radical Islam and keep terrorism from attacking our homeland and freedom-loving people around the entire world.

Now, we can never fully express our gratitude for his sacrifice, for the freedom and the security to our Nation; but I am proud that we can leave a lasting memorial so that his heroic actions can be remembered in this country for now and future generations as well.

Today, we also remember his family, and we send them our prayers and our comfort as well.

Ms. FOXX. Madam Speaker, I urge all Members to support S. 904.

Madam Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

(b) Effective Date.—The amendment made by subsection (a) shall take effect on September 27, 2005.

SEC. 6. AUTHORITY TO ELECT NEW TRAUMATIC INJURY PROTECTION.

"(2) If a member eligible for insurance under this section is not insured by reason of an election made under subparagraph (A), the member may thereafter elect to be insured under this section upon written application by the member, proof of good health, and compliance with such other terms and conditions prescribed by the Secretary. Insurance under this section upon such an election is effective upon the date of the receipt by the Secretary of such application and shall apply only with respect to injuries incurred after that date.

"(C) The Secretary shall prescribe regulations concerning election conditions as to how and when elections under subparagraph (B) shall be made. Such regulations may include limiting the time for such elections to an annual open season, for a duration each year prescribed by the Secretary.

(b) Effective Date.—The amendment made by subsection (a) shall take effect immediately after section 1980A of title 38, United States Code, is effectuated by the Secretary under section 1032(d)(1) of division A of the Emergency Supplemental Appropriations Act for Defense, the Global War on Terror, and Tsunami Relief, 2005 (Public Law 109–13; 119 Stat. 290).

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. BUYER) and the gentlewoman from Nevada (Ms. BERKLEY) each will control 20 minutes.

Mr. BUYER. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, on July 14, 2005, the Committee on Veterans’ Affairs reported H.R. 3200, the Servicemembers’ Group Life Insurance Enhancement Act of 2005. Among other things, this bill would provide a permanent authorization for increases in maximum life insurance coverage under the Servicemembers’ Group Life Insurance, referred to as the SGLI program, and the Veterans’ Group Life Insurance, referred to as the VGLI program from $250,000 to $400,000.

Public Law 109–13, the Emergency Supplemental Appropriations Act For Defense, the Global War on Terror, and Tsunami Relief of 2005, increased the maximum coverage to $400,000 under these programs. However, the authorization expires on September 30, 2005.

It is my understanding that the Senate Committee on Veterans’ Affairs, which was approved in the conference report, to afford the legislative committees the jurisdiction and opportunity to hold public hearings and further consider the specifics of the emergency authorization before it could be made permanent.

The increased level of coverage was requested by the President because of concerns over debt benefits for the survivors of servicemembers being inadequate as our Nation fights the global war on terrorism. H.R. 3200 would also repeal the provision of Public Law 109–13 which prevents a married servicemember from declining SGLI coverage, for an amount less than the maximum, without the written consent of the spouse. Public Law 109–13 mandates spousal consent, even in cases where the couple is estranged, as long as they are legally married.

The committee does not believe providing a spouse such veto authority over life insurance elections is good public policy. The spousal consent requirement could also result, for example, in a servicemember’s spouse excluding stepchildren as beneficiaries. The government should not interfere legally in a servicemember’s highly personal choices about such family matters.

H.R. 3200 would instead require the military service Secretary concerned to provide written notification to the spouse or the next of kin of an uninsured servicemember. The VA is already hearing from servicemembers who are upset that they must seek to obtain the consent of an estranged spouse before selecting less than the maximum amount of life insurance. We on the subcommittee have worked together in a bipartisan way on this matter.

I support the provision to eliminate the spousal consent requirement contained in Public Law 109–13. I also support the provision to eliminate the requirement that notice be sent to a current spouse if a servicemember elects to name a child or children as beneficiaries of their SGLI.

I believe we need to allow servicemembers to make decisions on the beneficiaries of their life insurance without any pressure to ignore their financial responsibility to their children, particularly from a prior marriage.

This bill is urgently needed to provide continuous coverage to our servicemen and women. I know that the men and women from Nevada who are currently serving will benefit from this bill. I urge all Members to support H.R. 3200.

Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. BUYER. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I would like to acknowledge the contributions of the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. RENZI) for his hard work on this legislation. On April 16, 2005, Mr. RENZI introduced H.R. 1618, which would create a traumatic injury protection program similar to what was enacted in Public Law 109–13.

On June 16, the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. RENZI) testified before the Subcommittee on Disability Assistance and Memorial Affairs, and his comments helped shape the bill which we are currently considering today. The Committee on Veterans’ Affairs (Chairman MILLER’s) cooperation with Members of the subcommittee on Disability Assistance and Memorial Affairs, and his committee on Disability Assistance and Memorial Affairs, and his chairman is a strong supporter of our Nation’s servicemen and women, and I appreciate his input.
I would also note that I have had continuous dialogue with the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. RENZI), and I deeply appreciate his passion. In having grown up in a military family, he has great understanding of the sacrifices of the men and women who wear the uniform.

Madam Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. RENZI).

Mr. RENZI. Madam Speaker, I want to thank the Chairman very much for the opportunity to speak on this legislation, for his leadership, and for the time that he has spent in mentoring me, particularly on this piece of legislation.

The bill that we are considering today, the Servicemembers' Group Life Enhancement Act of 2005, makes permanent and improves a significant change which passed a few months ago. In May, as part of the Emergency War-time Supplemental Act, Congress passed the provision that allows the armed services and members of the armed services to purchase insurance coverage to protect against traumatic disabling injuries. This new traumatic injury protection program went into effect on December 1 and will provide, and I will number, and I will protect our servicemen and women against the economic consequences of severe disabilities while suffered on Active Duty. It will greatly assist our Armed Forces and their families during a servicemember's hospitalization time and their rehabilitation period, as well as their transition back to full employment.

At a time injured servicemembers and their family need to concentrate on physical recovery and emotional well-being, they are too often burdened with mounting financial debt, and this program goes a long way to help them.

Hospitalization following a traumatic injury often requires the servicemember's family members to leave work for an extended period of time to be with their loved ones, thus potentially losing a source of income. They incur tremendous costs, such as travel and living expenses, at a very stressful time. Travel, housing, food and child care costs can often amount to tens of thousands of dollars, and this insurance program will provide up to $100,000 to these servicemembers to help pay for these indirect costs.

$100,000 to these servicemembers to help pay for travel, housing, food and child care costs can often amount to tens of thousands of dollars, and this insurance program will provide up to $100,000 to these servicemembers to help pay for these indirect costs.

The Independent Budget, that document prepared and endorsed by many veterans service organizations, has recommended that the mortality table be updated. I have introduced a bill, H.R. 2747, the Disabled Veterans Life Insurance Enhancement Act, that would make this important change and decrease this premium payment for disabled veterans.

A second part of my bill affects the mortgage life insurance for severely disabled veterans. Currently this insurance covers only about 55 percent of outstanding mortgage balances. We know how the cost of housing has skyrocketed in most areas of our Nation. In May of 2001, an evaluation by the Department of Veterans Affairs recommended increased coverage. And my bill, H.R. 2747, implements these recommendations by increasing the maximum which would be expected to cover 94 percent of mortgage balances.

Finally, military families are currently provided with $10,000 of life insurance for each child when the servicemember is covered by the program. The Servicemember's Group Life Insurance Enhancement Act, which was stillborn. My bill, H.R. 2747, would extend the $10,000 benefit to those families to help pay for funeral and burial expenses. I note that the Senate Veterans Affairs Committee has taken this issue in their June 3rd hearing.

Let us begin to update and fix the insurance for our servicemembers and our veterans by passing the bill before us, H.R. 3200. But I also encourage my colleagues to cosponsor and support my insurance bill, H.R. 2747, which expands what we are doing here today to additional insurance provisions and programs to support all of our Nation's veterans.

Ms. BERKLEY. Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. BUYER. Madam Speaker, at this time I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from New Hampshire (Mr. BRADLEY), a member of the committee.

Mr. BRADLEY. Madam Speaker, I rise to support and congratulate the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. BUYER) for the leadership that he has shown on this issue as well as the gentlewoman from Nevada (Ms. BERKLEY), the gentleman from California (Mr. FILNER), the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. EVANS) and others.

It is not often that we have the opportunity to come together to do the right thing, to do it in a bipartisan fashion. It is a tribute to the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. BUYER) leadership and to our friends on the other side of the aisle, and all of the leadership of the committee deserve great credit for doing this.

The details of this bill have been discussed by the chairman and others. I do not need to go through the details. What I want my colleagues to understand is the importance of this bill and why we are doing this bill, why we are increasing the SGLI benefit, the death benefit, and instituting an insurance benefit for injuries.

Most of us have had the opportunity to visit our troops in Iraq, in Afghanistan, and in many other countries around the world, as we are fighting against the enemy in this war on terrorism. And what we have seen when we have visited our troops is the dedication, the sacrifice, the American grit and courage to get the job done to win this battle against terrorism.

And when things happen, when people pay the ultimate sacrifice, when they return with disabling injuries, our country has to make sure that we match their commitment so that they are able to, if they paid the ultimate sacrifice, know that their families will have this guarantee of credit; or if they have traumatic injuries, realize that there is help for their recovery and for their family.
This bill does it. It is a major step in the right direction. It is one that has been done in a bipartisan fashion. And I salute the leadership on both sides of the aisle of the committee for getting the job done.

Mr. BUYER. Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. BERKLEY. Madam Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. EDWARDS).

Mr. EDWARDS. Madam Speaker, there is no way our Nation can fully repay the military women and their children who have lost their loved ones in service to our country. However, at the very least we should see that the burden that these families bear is not made heavier by financial difficulties in the wake of their deep personal losses.

That is what this legislation is all about. And I want to congratulate the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. RENZI) and the gentlewoman from Nevada (Ms. BERKLEY) for their authorship and leadership on this bill. I want to salute my colleague and leader on the Committee on Armed Services, the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. BUYER), for his work in bringing this together on a bipartisan basis. I salute my Democratic colleague, the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. EVANS), for the work on things, important legislation, together on a bipartisan basis, the press galleries are always empty. But that is not a reflection on the importance this legislation, because it will make a true difference in the lives of great American citizens and families who have sacrificed so much for all of us.

Congress with this bill has taken the first step in the right direction by increasing the death gratuity from $250,000 to $400,000 for servicemembers' families, we take an important step forward in helping our military families and loved ones who have paid such a dear price and sacrifice to our Nation. If fully enacted, the increase in death gratuity to $400,000, that provision is scheduled to expire as of September 30, 2005.

We need to make this increase permanent. The costs for this increase would be borne by the men and women who are covered under the SGLI program. SGLI is an insurance program paid by the men and women who are insured. Only in times of war when there is a marked increase in servicemember deaths does the government contribute payments for extra hazards.

H.R. 3200 will receive my full support, and it deserves the support of all Members of this House.

Madam Speaker, I rise in strong support of H.R. 3200, the Servicemembers’ Group Life Insurance Enhancement Act of 2005.

Earlier this year, in Public Law 109–13, Congress increased the amount of Servicemembers’ Group Life Insurance, SGLI, available to servicemembers. That provision is scheduled to expire as of September 30, 2005. This bill would make the $400,000 of coverage provided on a temporary basis in Public Law 109–13, permanent.

The costs for this increased amount of insurance would be borne by the men and women who are covered under the SGLI program. We must never forget that SGLI is an insurance program, paid for by the men and women who are insured.

Only in times of war when there is a marked increase in servicemember deaths, is the government charged for the “extra hazards” of this insurance. No government payments were made between the end of the Vietnam era and 2003. During the last 3 years, the military services have contributed to the cost payments for “excess deaths”, the number of deaths which exceed the expected death rate by more than 8 percent, resulting primarily from military operations in Afghanistan and Iraq.

H.R. 3200 also establishes criteria for notification to the spouse or next of kin when a servicemember elects less than the maximum amount of SGLI and notification to a spouse when a servicemember names a beneficiary who is neither the spouse nor child.

Generally, I would expect that a servicemember would discuss his or her financial decisions with persons who may be beneficiaries of a life insurance policy. The notice provisions may be helpful in those situations where a servicemember inadvertently fails to inform their next of kin or spouse of these decisions.

I am strongly opposed to the provision included in Public Law 109–13 which would require a married servicemember to obtain the consent of their spouse, even in situations where the spouses are estranged, if less than the maximum amount of coverage is selected. I am pleased that that provision would be repealed by this bill.

I also believe that no notice should be provided when a servicemember names a child or children rather than their current spouse as the beneficiary of a SGLI policy.

Servicemembers are in the best position to determine whether a spouse or child, or some combination of spouse and child should receive the proceeds of their SGLI in the event of the servicemember’s death.

Finally, the bill would allow a servicemember to decline coverage under the traumatic injury protection of Public Law 109–13. This insurance, like SGLI, is paid for by the servicemembers with extra hazards coverage for excess traumatic injuries in wartime paid by the military services.

I urge all members to support this bill, so that enhanced coverage currently provided under SGLI will not lapse on September 30, 2005.

H.R. 3200 will receive my full support and it deserves the support of all Members of this House.

Mr. BUYER. Madam Speaker, I yield myself the balance of my time.

Madam Speaker, I urge all of my colleagues to support H.R. 3200. I am absolutely delighted we were able to do this prior to the August recess so that we can assure continuity for our veterans.

Ms. BERKLEY. Madam Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. BUYER. Madam Speaker, I yield myself the balance of my time.

Madam Speaker, I would like to commend the gentleman from New York (Mr. WALSH) and the ranking member, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. EDWARDS), of the Subcommittee on Military Quality of Life and Veterans Affairs, and Related Agencies of the Committee on Appropriations when they took up this matter at the request of the President.

I also would like to commend the hard work of the gentleman from Florida (Mr. MILLER), the chairman of the Subcommittee on Disability Assistance and Memorial Affairs of the Committee on Veterans’ Affairs, in the consideration of this bill in a timely fashion and ensuring that the Servicemember Group Life Insurance Enhancement Act of 2005 was quickly passed.

I also want to note that the gentleman has been actively involved in these insurance provisions since we first made them available. Following the submission of the supplemental, he convened a roundtable with the administration officials, and he has taken a lead on the drafting of this bill; and I want to thank him for his efforts.

I also want to commend the gentlewoman from Nevada (Ms. BERKLEY), the ranking member, for working with the gentleman from Florida (Mr. MILLER) on this legislation. Her input was valuable, and we appreciate her efforts on behalf of men and women who wear the uniform and our veterans.

I also again want to commend the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. RENZI)
Mr. EVANS], the ranking member of which passed the House on May 23: Clarify than the spouse or child is designated as the concerned to notify a spouse if someone other chooses an amount less than the maximum, concerned to notify a servicemember's spouse or coverage from $10,000 to $50,000; and members' Group and Veterans' Group Life In- $250,000 to $400,000 in maximum Service- in effect for one month before the law expires; and the Department of Defense who are cur- 3200. This will reduce the administrative bur- changes, and replace it with the text of H.R. dents, and providing a safety net for milili- forces, and they should feel comfortable knowing that their loved ones will be provided for in the event of debilitating in- jury or death. I am pleased that we are ex- panding current benefits to adequately care for military families.

The Servicemembers' Group Life Insurance Act was passed to provide peace of mind for active duty personnel. However, since the cre- ation of life insurance for those in the armed forces, benefits have not kept up with need, and it is now appropriate that we increase the maximum payments to the families from $250,000 to $400,000.

Mr. Speaker, I am pleased that we are working to correct this problem by offering this bill, and by expanding benefits to our active duty forces and providing a safely net for military families who suffer the unthinkable loss of a loved one.

Mr. MILLER of Florida. Mr. Speaker, Public Law 109–13, the Emergency Supplemental, included provisions which made changes to VA's insurance program for active duty servicemembers. However, these changes ex- pire on September 30, 2005.

H.R. 3200 would:

Repeal section 1012 of the Supplemental, the section dealing with the insurance changes, and replace it with the text of H.R. 3200. This will reduce the administrative bur- den on the Department of Veterans Affairs and the Department of Defense who are cur- rently promulgating regulations that are to be in effect for one month before the law expires; Make the permanent increase from $250,000 to $400,000 in maximum Service- members' Group and Veterans' Group Life In- surance coverage;

Make permanent the increments of SGLI coverage from $10,000 to $50,000; and Require the military service Secretary con- cerned to notify a servicemember's spouse or unmarried servicemember's next-of-kin, in writ- ing, if the servicemember declines SGLI or chooses an amount less than the maximum, and also require the military service Secretary concerned to notify a spouse if someone other than the spouse or child is designated as the policyholders' beneficiary.

This language was included in H.R. 2046, which passed the House on May 23: Clearly that spousal notification requirement does not apply to Veterans' Group Life Insurance; and Permit a servicemember to decline Traumatic Injury Protection coverage established by sec- tion 1032 of Public Law 109–13. There were no public hearings regarding the servicemembers' insurance changes prior to House and Senate passage of the defense emergency supplemental. How- ever, on March 6, 2005, the Veterans' Affairs Subcommittee on Disability Assistance and Memorial Affairs held a roundtable briefing on these provisions from the Department of Veterans Affairs, the Department of Defense, and private sector insurance re- presentatives. Last month, the Subcommittee held a hearing on these proposals and this bill is a response to issues and concerns I and others had with the insurance provisions con- tained in the Supplemental.

In addition to the provisions noted above, the Supplemental also provided for a new Traumatic Injury Protection program. As Chairman BUYER indicated in his opening statement, this program—which goes into ef- fect on December 1 of this year but is retro- active to October 7, 2001—will provide finan- cial assistance from $25,000 to $100,000 to servicemembers who suffer certain traumatic injuries.

Under current law, participation in the new program is mandatory and those covered must pay premiums. Although the Department of Veterans Affairs estimate the premium to be as low as $1 a month, I do not believe Con- gress should be making financial decisions for the men and women who serve in our armed forces, Coast Guard, National Oceanic and At- mospheric Administration and the Public Health Service—all of whom are covered under this new program.

Therefore, section 6 of H.R. 3200 would allow a servicemember to decline traumatic in- jury coverage. I view our role as ensuring that our servicemembers have a variety of options to assist them in planning for the future. If a later date someone wants to participate, they would be able to elect coverage upon written application, and coverage would apply with respect to injuries occurring after the sub- sequent election.

Mr. Speaker, I applaud Ms. BERKLEY, the ranking member of the Subcommittee on Dis- ability Assistance and Memorial Affairs, for her active participation in crafting this bill, as well as the subcommittee vice chairman, JEB BRADLEY, and a former member of the Com- mittee, RICK RENZI. This has indeed been a team effort.

I also want to thank the subcommittee staffs on both sides of the aisle, and the Office of Legislative Counsel for their technical assist- ance.

Finally, I commend Chairman BUYER and Ranking Member EVANS for their continuing leadership.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to sup- port the Servicemembers' Group Life Insur- ance Enhancement Act.

Mr. REYLL. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong support of H.R. 3200, the Servicemem- bers Group Life Insurance (SGLI) Enhance- ment Act of 2005.

Since 1965, the SGLI program has been providing insurance and death benefits to American servicemen and women in uniform. While the SGLI initially cov- ered only active duty servicemembers, today it extends coverage to our nation's guard and reserve forces as well.

This legislation would increase the minimum SGLI coverage from $10,000 to $50,000 and make permanent the increase in maximum coverage from $250,000 to $400,000. This in- creased insurance coverage would become available for any servicemember wanting to participate.

The war on terror has placed greater de- mands on all of our active duty and reserve forces at home and abroad. These brave men and women have made tremendous sacrifices for our freedom and it is our responsibility as Members of Congress to do everything possible to assist them both during and after their service to our country.

Mr. Speaker, my colleagues and I on the House Veterans Affairs Committee favorably passed H.R. 3200 and as a co-sponsor I would urge all my colleagues to do the same on the House floor. Thank you.

Ms. BORDALLO. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H.R. 3200 because of the impor- tance of making permanent the provisions in- cluded in P.L. 109–13, the War Supplemental, related to the Servicemembers' Group Life Insur- ance (SGLI) Program.

SGLI is an important benefit offered to America's servicemembers particularly during this time of war. Prior to passage of P.L. 109– 13, SGLI provided inadequate life insurance coverage to American servicemen and women. This inadequacy became intolerable when juxtaposed with the sacrifices of servicemembers in the War on Terror. With the former maximum coverage level set at $250,000, a servicemember could not ensure that his or her family would have sufficient re- sources to endure a catastrophic loss. In the 2005 War Supplemental, Congress increased coverage to $400,000, and, importantly, ap- plied the provision retroactively in order to pro- vide relief to the many families that had al- ready lost a loved one in combat. However, the provisions included in the supplemental will expire in September 2005. H.R. 3200 is important because it makes permanent the supplemental's provisions on SGLI including increasing life insurance coverage to $400,000.

Ms. BERKLEY asks her sons and daughters in the Armed Services to make extreme sacrifices to protect our liberties, our freedom and our way of life. Tragically, in the prosecution of the War on Terror many of our Soldiers have made the ultimate sacrifice. We have an obligation to those fallen heroes to protect the families they left behind. By providing for SGLI coverage that reflects the degree of our Soldiers' sacri- fices and the needs of families when faced with the loss of a breadwinner, we are moving a step closer to fully and properly caring for America's heroes. This is not an option, but an obligation.

I am pleased that the over one hundred thousand troops now deployed into combat zones in support of the War on Terror can rest easier knowing they will permanently have ac- cess to affordable and sufficient life insurance. While they protect all of us from catastrophe, we, today are helping protect them here at home.

Mr. BUYER. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.
The question was taken. The SPEAKER pro tempore. In the opinion of the Chair, two-thirds of those present have voted in the affirmative.

Mr. BUYER. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered. The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX and the Chair’s prior announcement, further proceedings on this motion will be postponed.

There was no objection.

APPOINTMENT OF CONFEREES ON H.R. 2361, DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR, ENVIRONMENT, AND RELATED AGENCIES APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 2006

Mr. TAYLOR of North Carolina. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker’s table the bill (H.R. 2361) making appropriations for the Department of the Interior, environment, and related agencies for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2006, and for other purposes, with a Senate amendment thereto, disagree to the Senate amendment, and agree to the conference asked by the Senate.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Illinois?

There was no objection.

MOTION TO INSTRUCT CONFEREES ON H.R. 2361, DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR, ENVIRONMENT, AND RELATED AGENCIES APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 2006

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion to instruct.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Obey moves that the managers on the part of the House at the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the Senate amendment to the bill H.R. 2361 be instructed to agree to section 439 of the Senate amendment adding $1,200,000,000 for fiscal year 2005 for the Department of Veterans Affairs for medical services provided by the Veterans Health Administration and designating that amount as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 402 of H. Con. Res. 96 (109th Congress).

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 7 of rule XIII, the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY) and the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. TAYLOR) each will control 30 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY).

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 5 minutes.

Mr. Speaker, for the past 3 years, a number of us on this side of the aisle, including the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Edwards), myself and several others, have tried to bring the administration to the realization that we needed many more dollars in the veterans health care funds than, in fact, they requested each year. And each year we have been able to drag them a little bit towards that goal, but we have not been able to drag them far enough.

As a result, we have heard many, many horror stories. We have heard that thousands of patients have had to wait more than 3 months for appointments. We have heard that in States like Arkansas and Oklahoma and Mississippi and Louisiana, the VA has stopped scheduling appointments for many veterans who are eligible for care. We have heard of 6-month delays in emergency surgery in Oregon. We have heard that facilities have had to erect scaffolding to protect patients and staff from falling bricks in Maine. We have heard that a medical center in Vermont has major shortfalls in their prosthetics budget. We have been told that doctors have had to pilfer supplies from neighboring hospitals to carry out routine procedures in Illinois. And we have been told that life safety improvements like replacing fire alarm systems have been postponed as the funds are used to pay operating expenses in States like California.

Yet, in the face of stories like that, in April VA Secretary Nicholson told the Congress that no additional funds would be needed for fiscal year 2005. But by the end of June he had to admit that there was a big problem, and he then testified that an additional $975 million was needed. Two weeks later, the problem in their eyes got even bigger. OMB asked for yet another $300 million, and in June they were admitting a $1.3 billion shortfall right now; and the numbers look worse for the coming fiscal year.

The VA has already amended their $20 billion medical care budget request for an additional $1.7 billion, and that does not count the additional $500 million they are going to need, because I doubt that many Members want to go along with the administration’s proposal to raise the veterans health care fees and co-op pays as has been suggested by the President. I would hope that by now every Member realizes that we have a VA health care crisis and we have to deal with it right now. The other body did the right thing in the interior bill. They provided $1.5 billion of emergency money for the VA. That would cover the immediate $975 million shortfall and provide an additional $325 million that would be needed in other VA regions to take care of the source of problems that each of us has been hearing about.

I would point out also that in my view some Members of this House have paid a very high price by staying out on behalf of our veterans. We saw earlier this year news stories which reported the fact that the majority caucus not only removed from his chairmanship but removed from the committee itself the Member on the other side of the aisle who chaired the committee in charge of veterans funding because he had been too insistent in agreeing with those of us on this side of the aisle who kept insisting that we should have more funding for veterans health care.

I would hope that it would be recognized that he was right, that we were right, not just about yesterday’s problems but about today’s and tomorrow’s as well.

So I would simply urge each and every Member of this House to vote for this motion. This money is going to be provided. It is just a question of how many times we have to hit the House along side the head before, like a stubborn donkey, they finally recognize that something needs to be done.

Reality is here. It would be nice if we faced up to it. I would hope this would receive the unanimous support of the Members of the House.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. TAYLOR of North Carolina. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, we will soon, I think, hear from our chairman of the Subcommittee on Military Quality of Life and Veterans Affairs, and Related Agencies, who will be speaking on this. I know that the error that was made is being taken care of in this legislation, in 2005 with $1.5 billion, and in 2006 with another $1.5 billion to make the entire $3 billion.

Every year, Mr. Speaker, we have raised benefits for American veterans, and rightly so. Seventy percent of our veterans are from World War II and Korea, and we know when we go out on the plaza and see the monument to the World War II veterans the sacrifices paid. We all have relatives who served in World War II, and we know they saved this world with their dedication.

We know also how much our other veterans gave to this country, those who fought in subsequent wars right up through the current time with our own children fighting in Iraq.

So all of us want to provide the materials and the health care benefits for our veterans, and this amendment will be one of the steps in providing that.
Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the distinguished ranking member of the subcommittee, the gentleman from Washington (Mr. DICKS).

Mr. DICKS. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time, and I want to compliment the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY), the gentleman from Texas (Mr. EDWARDS), and all the Members who deeply care about our veterans in this body.

I am always surprised that this issue takes on a partisan tone, because I really believe each Member cares about veterans. It is just that there seems to be a lack on the part of this administration to face up to the reality of how much money is needed to take care of the veterans. And with the war raging in Iraq, and with the seriousness of the injuries, any of us who have been out to Iraq—Mr. Smith would be part of the Interior appropriations bill. This is not within our jurisdiction. This is just something that happened—we were the first bill moving through, and it became a convenient vehicle in the other body to put this $1.5 billion onto.

Mr. Speaker, I want to say that I believe the other body was correct in adding this money, but this is not something that the President should have been doing on the part of the Interior appropriations bill. This is not within our jurisdiction. This is just something that happened—we were the first bill moving through, and it became a convenient vehicle in the other body to put this $1.5 billion on.

There was an effort here to put some money, I think it was, $975 million—or thereabouts, which the House adopted, I believe, overwhelmingly, maybe unanimously, but it is simply not enough. I think Mr. Nicholson has not been as forthright as he should have been in telling the various committees on the Hill what was needed. But in my mind there is absolutely no excuse for not approving this $1.5 billion.

I hope that it will be unanimous that every Member of the House will vote for this because I think we should do as much as we can to take care of the legitimate needs of these people. As I said, this should not be a partisan issue. I just regret that the administration continues to underfund this important priority.

Mr. TAYLOR of North Carolina. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Texas (Mr. EDWARDS), who has been a key leader on this issue as the ranking member of the subcommittee on Military Quality of Life and Veterans Affairs, and Related Agencies.

Mr. EDWARDS. Mr. Speaker, for 2 years, our Nation’s respected veterans’ organizations, along with Democrats in Congress, have been predicting cuts in veterans’ health care services due to inadequate VA health care budgets. In February, in December of last year, and a half ago, Republican chairman of the House Committee on Veterans’ Affairs, the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. SMITH), and his Democratic ranking member, the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. EVANS), in a bipartisan letter predicted the administration request for VA health care for this year would be $2.5 billion short.

Now, Mr. Speaker, what was the reaction of the House Republican leadership? Did they stand up for veterans’ health care services? No. They fired the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. SMITH) from his job as chairman of the House Committee on Veterans’ Affairs and even took him completely off the committee. That may be hard to believe, but it is true. The House Republican leadership punished a member of Congress, a member of its own party, for putting loyalty to veterans above loyalty to the House leadership during a time of war. It is not only true, it is sad.

To make matters worse, the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. SMITH), House Democrats, and veterans’ organizations were right in saying veterans’ health care services were underfunded and the House leadership was wrong. At every step of the way over the past 2 years, in the Committee on the Budget, in amendments there; in the Committee on Appropriations, in amendments there; in the 302(b) allocations, the $1 million-plus shortfall, the $1 billion-plus shortfall this year, even after that, the House leadership dragged its feet. They are still dragging their feet in trying to adequately fund veterans’ health care needs.

Even after it became public that the VA has a $1 billion shortfall, a $1 billion-plus shortfall this year, even after that, the House leadership dragged its feet. They are still dragging their feet in trying to adequately fund veterans’ health care needs.

It is time for Republicans and Democrats alike, today, to do the right thing and to instruct the conference on the Interior appropriations bill to support the same $1.5 billion emergency veterans’ health care funding that was approved by a bipartisan vote of 96 to 0 weeks ago in the Senate.

It is morally wrong for our Nation to ask young troops to go into combat and then shortchange their health care when they return home as veterans. Supporting veterans’ health care may be costly, but it is the right thing to do. Standing up for veterans may have cost the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. SMITH) his job as chairman of the House Committee on Veterans’ Affairs, but it was the right thing to do.

The right thing to do now is to send a message to this Administration that has opposed adequate funding for veterans’ health care for 2 years now, that supporting veterans is more important than misplaced partisan loyalty.

Mr. TAYLOR of North Carolina. Mr. Speaker, I continue to reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, how much time do we have remaining on each side?

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. ISSA). The gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY) has 19 minutes remaining, and the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. TAYLOR) has 28 1/2 minutes remaining.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from California (Mr. FILNER).

Mr. FILNER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Wisconsin for yielding me this time and for his leadership on behalf of our Nation’s veterans, leadership which has sorely been lacking in this House.

This administration and this Congress has insulted our veterans community repeatedly in the last few months, including which I hope we will remedy with today’s motion. The head of the Office of Management and Budget actually had the nerve to testify before the Committee on the Budget that over the last 3 years the Veterans Administration had received $5 billion more than it actually needed, more than it actually needed, when we have waiting lists which the gentleman outlined, when we have nursing and medical vacancies, when we have maintenance backlogs, when we have people waiting a year for an appointment for a dentist, and months and months for surgeries that are needed. OMB told the veterans that we have more than what was needed!

Then the Secretary of our Veterans Administration testified before committees of this Congress that we got it wrong because we had a bad mathematical model. We had a mathematical model that did not take into account the fact that there was a war going on and thousands of troops were coming back with significant injuries and with post-traumatic stress disorder. We did not know a war was going on, so we underfunded the VA. That is an insult to our Nation’s veterans, that we did not know a war was going on, and we did not provide the money. Many are suffering today as a result of that decision.

And, Mr. Speaker, when we had a chance to help the veterans before our last recess, the chairman of the Committee on Veterans Affairs said, we can only give $975 million. That was the right number, while the Senate did $1.5 billion, which we are now instructing our House to accept today.
We could have had this money flowing to our veterans' centers weeks ago. This could have been signed by the President several weeks ago, yet in my hometown of San Diego, we have 1,000 people on a waiting list just to have their first appointment. We have waiting lists and funding shortages, and we cannot get them the money because we did not have the right numbers, said the veterans' chairman.

Well, we had the right number all along, my colleagues. The Independent Budget, a professional document prepared by our veterans' service organizations, had the numbers exactly right. The mathematical model could have been tested against this, and we could have had the proper support for our nation's veterans. So everybody who talked about our Nation's veterans when we had Memorial Day, when we had our July 4th celebrations, and we will hear it on November 11th as we have always done, that we all support our veterans. Well, let us show it by the proper votes!

The Democrats in this Congress have tried at every level, on the Committee on the Budget, on the Committee on Appropriations, the Senate, the House, and we tried on the floor of this House to give the Independent Budget numbers the force of law, but we were voted down on pure party-line votes. So I hear that everybody supports our veterans, but when the votes come, the majority party is not supporting our Nation's veterans.

Let us pass this instruction motion. Let us honor our veterans and give the veterans the support they need, especially when they come home from war.

Mr. TAYLOR of North Carolina. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from New York (Mr. WALSH), chairman of the Subcommittee on Military Quality of Life and Veterans' Affairs, and Related Agencies, a member of the party which, as we all know, has supported our veterans with increases every year.

Mr. WALSH. Mr. Speaker, I thank the chairman of the Subcommittee on Interior, Environment, and Related Agencies of the Committee on Appropriations for calling for this motion to instruct conferees, and I rise in support of that motion, and I thank him for his hard work and support on this issue.

Mr. Speaker, I have come to this point through a fairly long circuitous route this year. There has been a number of different estimates as to what the actual needs of the Veterans' Health Administration are. We conducted lengthy, extensive hearings, as did the authorizing committees, the Committee on Veterans' Affairs, and we have been receiving different information all the way along.

It is our best determination that the $1.5 billion figure will provide us the funds we need to complete this fiscal year, the 2005 fiscal year, and the funds that are not utilized in 2005 will be available in 2006. We are also working with our Senate counterparts to make sure that the 2006 figure is correct.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Tennessee (Mr. WAMP). Mr. WAMP. Mr. Speaker, I just wanted to let our colleagues from the gentleman from Washington be correct; all Members of this body that I know, Republicans and Democrats, totally stand behind our veterans in giving them resources; and that is the spirit with which we should approach this debate.

But I have to tell Members, one thing we forget around here, money is one piece of it, and accountability is another. I have to tell Members that now that this is added to the Interior bill, it is where I serve, this is when the community-based outpatient clinics needed to meet veterans' needs to be done.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from Florida (Ms. CORRINE BROWN).

Ms. CORRINE BROWN of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to express my support for the Senate-passed amendment to include $1.5 billion to the veterans budget. After the budget shortfall was announced, both sides of the aisle in the Senate came together to take immediate action to address the issue. They passed a $1.5 billion emergency funding amendment to immediately get the funds to the people who need it, our veterans.

The Republican leadership of the House decided to sit on their hands and wait for President Bush to pull out of the air a number. That number was $975 million. This House passed that funding level and left for the July 4 recess. However, it turned out that the Bush level was $300 million short of funding veterans health. We know that budget is underfunded by more than $3 billion, that is B, billion. All Members of this body should do is react to this independent budget. Every year they mislead their constituents, and every year the VA is short of funding to complete its mission.

While we were sitting on our hands, the three surgical operating rooms at the White River Junction in VAMC was closed on June 27 because the heating and air conditioning system was broken.

The community-based outpatient clinics needed to meet veterans' increased demand for care in the North Florida and South Georgia VA health care system was delayed due to fiscal restraint. As of April in Gainesville, Florida, there were nearly 700 service-connected veterans waiting for more than 90 days for an appointment.

Let us get past the $1.5 billion for veterans health care; let us just stop all of the talking and put our talk into action. Pass this motion to instruct and get veterans the health care that they need and deserve to give to us.

Mr. TAYLOR of North Carolina. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from Tennessee (Mr. WAMP).

Mr. TAYLOR of North Carolina. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from Washington (Ms. CORRINE BROWN).
money that they need when they need it for the purpose they need it and hold them accountable for better management. This body does not exert enough oversight on how the money is being spent. That is the truth, and it is especially true with the Veterans Affairs operation nationwide.

So, yes, let us give them the money; but let us not just throw them the money and say, There, that is more money. Let us follow through with a much more scrutinized process of accounting that money for the VA.

The VA should have been moving money around 10 years ago to reform, to close the facilities they do not need, open new facilities, even contract so people can go to the best health care provider in their community to receive health care.

We have got to reform the VA and give them more money, and I come to the floor today to say that the appropriations process can do that. The chairman of the Senate Veterans Affairs (Mr. BUYER), has done an outstanding job here, but surely the general public knows that Members of Congress support our veterans. All Members of Congress that I know support our veterans with the necessary funds.

Mr. TAYLOR of North Carolina. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. OBEY).

Mr. BUYER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of the motion to instruct conferees on H.R. 2361, Department of Interior, Environment and Related Agencies Appropriations Act for Fiscal Year 2006. This bill will provide the Department of Veterans Affairs with supplemental funding of approximately $1.5 billion for fiscal year 2005. Several weeks ago, the House of Representatives unaniously passed H.R. 3310 which provided $975 million in health care funding for the fiscal year. We did that in response to revelations at the time to a line of questioning that I had with Dr. Perlin of VHA at a full committee hearing on health care modeling and forecasting.

We learned that since the spring of this year VA hospitals and clinics were shifting significant amounts of funds into medical services from maintenance and capital equipment accounts. This shifting was driven by underestimates in care requirements and increased use of VA facilities by returning Operations Enduring Freedom and Operation Iraqi Freedom veterans to also include a surge of veterans in categories 1 through 6 and category 7 for health care.

I directed Secretary Nicholson to tell us what additional funds he needed for 2005. I also then immediately informed the Speaker of the House and the majority leader of this issue.

The Speaker retired from meetings with his staff on June 30, bringing to us a number of $975 million. This House acted the very same day in which the Secretary made his request through the President of the United States approving to the penny the VA’s request. Yet the number was not even dry on the paper when, in fact, days later we were then informed that number was really $1.275 billion, and they needed an additional $300 million.

The $300 million is for a carryover account which we in Congress permit the VA to utilize. So you will hear this number. What is really important is the $975 million number; and as a matter of fact, just last week the VA said they spent the number. The additional $300 million is for the carryover account.

The Republican Senate leadership offered a number of $1.5 billion. Now the challenge we have is they have passed a number on the Senate interior appropriations bill of emergency supplemental. The House passed a $975 million number that was paid for out of the 2005 budget. As Members go to the interior conference, we have a challenge out there which we have paid for, the Senate asks for emergency. Now I suppose we are asking for an instruction that is saying make it an emergency supplemental.

So what we are doing is rolling one on top of another. This year VA hospitals and clinics were given $975 million which was paid for out of the 2006 budget. Now we are going to vote for an instruction to the conference $1.5 billion on emergency supplemental. So these are issues that conferees are going to have to work out at conference.

But when we look at VHA’s forecasting performance which has been the focus at some of our animated hearings in the House, 3 over the last several weeks, in April they provide notice to the Committee on Appropriations that they are going to reprogram $600 million. Then in the latter part of June when we hold our hearing, they testify they are short $975 million, but they have work-around solutions.

Then a few days later while we are on our July break, we learn that the number was short $300 million. They are going to spend down the $975, and the $300 million is the carryover account. We either take care of that in 2005, or we have to include it in the 2006 budget amendment.

If Members watch this, we go from $600 million to $975 million to $1.275 billion. What is it going to be in August? I think that is what the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBSEY) and the gentleman from New York (Mr. WALSH) are indicating. So that is why I am going to support the motion to instruct, because there is a loss of confidence here in the House with regard to the number that has been given to us. Patience with the VHA bureaucracy has run out.

Mr. DICKS. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BUYER. I yield to the gentleman from Washington.

Mr. DICKS. Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the gentleman’s efforts and he is sincere in everything he says.

Has the committee held any hearings on why they are having all of these financial difficulties? What is driving this increase?

Mr. BUYER. We have. We have held three hearings. Part of the reason dealt with their modeling and forecasting. For the 2005 budget, they used 2002 data, and they also had false assumptions. So we have informed them that they have every opportunity to get right the 2007 budget because now they will tell us about the use or not data and poor measuring criteria. So they have every reason now to get it right. So what are they changing with regard to their assumptions and how are they improving the data with regard to the 2007, because that is what they are doing right now.

So what has occurred is we get the 2005 right. They come with a 2006 budget amendment. We just held a hearing on the 2006 budget amendment, which included $2 billion. When we told them that we are going to do some handholding as they prepare the 2007 budget. Mr. DICKS. Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman will continue to yield, are you able to get OMB to cooperate, because sometimes the agencies try their best to do the right thing, but then they are told by OMB they cannot do that because we are trying to fight the deficit. In other words, OMB is not being helpful here or not?

Mr. BUYER. Mr. Speaker, I would say everyone wants the modeling to be correct and for us to reestablish trust and confidence on our predictability of a budget number. When we do that, we bring purity to the process and OMB also brings trust and confidence. I think there is lack of trust and confidence under the budget number, and OMB has proven they are not as good at the job because we are trying to fight the deficit. In other words, OMB is not being helpful here or not.

Mr. DICKS. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for that explanation.

Mr. BUYER. Mr. Speaker, the issue is accountability. The gentleman from New York (Mr. WALSH) touched on it and so did the gentleman from Tennessee (Mr. WAMP). The credibility must be rebuilt, and OMB is integral to that process.

I have asked Secretary Nicholson to review the leadership of the VHA bureaucracy to ensure that the right people are running it, and also its finances are running within the health network.

In particular, I am greatly disappointed and have lost confidence in the leadership and management of the Deputy Under Secretary for Health, for Operations and for Management. In the meantime, Congress will ensure that veterans health care is funded. We will hold VA accountable for its use of these dollars in the performance of its mission.

Concerning the recess, other Committee on Veterans’ Affairs members, staff, and I will personally visit VA health care facilities because there is no substitute for boots-on-the-ground examination.
I will specifically visit a polytrauma center in Minneapolis.

One of the harshest realities of combat in Iraq and Afghanistan is the number of servicemembers returning from Iraq and Afghanistan with loss of limbs and other severe and lasting injuries. With the body armor which we are providing to our soldiers, they can turn that up, and what is happening is it protects the torso, and they are having now loss of limbs and traumatic brain injuries.

VA has four regional traumatic brain injury rehabilitation centers. One of them is in Minneapolis, one is in Palo Alto, another one is in Richmond, and one is in Tampa. These are very important regional referral centers for individuals who have sustained these serious disabling conditions due to combat. VISOs and others are saying that these individual veterans are not being seen because the VA. I find that challenging. I want to make sure these allegations are correct, so I am going to go on the ground to see if it is true. I have also asked the GAO to review the VA's budget process, and I think that will be very important for some other eyes on this issue.

Mr. Speaker, America’s veterans will receive the health care they have earned. $1.5 billion is a significant number for an important constituency, and I anticipate that we will act quickly to provide it. We can all see that only 2 months remain in the fiscal year. Unspent funds from this appropriation will be available for their use as defined in payments under the 2006 budget supplemental so that all funds will be put to good use.

I would like to thank the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Evans) for his work. I would like to thank the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. Ose) for this motion. I also commend my colleagues in the Senate for their willingness to act quickly to Secretary Nicholson's request and to resolve this matter. I also want to thank the President, because when this was alerted to everyone's attention, the President acted and sent over a number. He also did the 2006 budget amendment.

In the end, those of us who exercise great care to raise and support the military know that our obligation does not end upon one's discharge. We care for the wounds and the injuries. We care for those who are left behind. We care for them to make as whole as possible and to create a climate so that one may take advantage of economic opportunities to live beyond a disability paycheck so that the defenders of liberty may also enjoy the bounties of the liberty for which they fight. I urge you to support this motion to instruct conferees in order to ensure that the veterans' funding can be done as quickly as possible.

Mr. TAYLOR of North Carolina. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. OBÉY. Mr. Speaker, let me conclude on this side by making four simple points. First of all, one of the previous speakers tried to suggest that, in fact, the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. SMITH) had not been fired by the majority party caucus because he had been too willing to speak his own mind about veterans' health care. I would simply say that I am perfectly happy to believe that if the House is ready to believe that my grandmother is an astronaut and that the Cubs are going to win the pennant this year. The fact is that we all know what the facts are, or were, I should say, with respect to the removal of the gentleman from New Jersey from office. He simply did not follow the party line and paid a price. So did the veterans. And now this bill is trying to help meet those costs.

Secondly, the gentleman from New York indicated that there had been a variety of estimates about what would be needed for veterans health care funding this year. The fact is that the Democratic estimates that we offered were consistent, and the bipartisan estimates that were offered by the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. SMITH) and the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Evans) were consistently that we needed $2.5 billion in VA funding over the budget request. The House earlier enacted a $1 billion increase. This $1.5 billion in this motion now brings us to the $2.5 billion that we have been saying all along was needed and that the gentleman from New Jersey and the gentleman from Illinois were saying all along was needed.

Thirdly, I would simply say that the administration's denial of the truth on this matter follows a pattern. We saw earlier over the past year and a half when the Veterans' Administration was discouraging outreach, because if veterans knew what they were entitled to, it would cost more money, and that would impact the budget. So we have had evidence not fully explain to the American veterans what they were entitled to. In that sense, it is very similar to the action of the administration in threatening to fire the government official who tried to tell Congress what the true cost of the prescription drugs under Medicare proposal was that the administration proposed last year.

Lastly, I would simply say one of the previous speakers raised the question as to why we were providing this money as an emergency. It is very simple: because it is an emergency for each and every veteran who otherwise will not be adequately served. We have a war going on. It would be nice if during that war we had a sense of shared sacrifice that was conveyed to each and every citizen of this country. But we really do not. We have a narrow band of people, those in the uniformed services of the United States, who are being asked need that sacrifice. Fully 90 percent of American society is making no sacrifice about the war. They are getting tax cuts. They are able to be comfortable in their homes. It is only a precious few military families who are bearing the entire burden of that war.

It is human nature, I guess, for Americans, when our soldiers go off to war, to cheer and to have the bands playing, but it would be nice if we had that same enthusiasm for veterans when Johnny comes marching home again. Unfortunately, we have not demonstrated that because of the shortfall that we have seen in the veterans' health care budget.

I would hope that we would adopt an understanding that if we ask someone to put his very life at risk, to put his family's future at risk and go to war to defend an action of the President of the United States, I would hope that we would recognize that we have a concurrent and permanent obligation to each and every one of those soldiers to meet the full cost of meeting their health care needs and their economic readjustment needs when they return to this country. That is the very least that we ought to do. This amendment tries to measure up to that standard. I would urge a unanimous vote.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of the Motion to Instruct Conferees to accept the Senate position to provide an additional $1.5 billion for Veteran's Medical Care under H.R. 2361 the Interior Appropriations Bill. This motion to instruct will remedy the shortfall in veterans' health care for this year. Clearly, we have an obligation to our veterans that is not being met and can not go another day allowing this deficiency in Veteran's Medical care to continue.

The sad fact is that it has been 33 days since the Bush Administration acknowledged a $1 billion shortfall in Veteran's Medical care for FY 2005. Every day we see more and more veterans turned away and health care rationed across the country because the VA lacks the resources it needs to care for veterans. Every day we don’t act, is another day that a veteran who bravely served our Nation is shortchanged.

To remedy this situation more than three weeks ago, the Senate unanimously passed a $1.5 billion bill. But the amount offered by House Republicans did not match that passed in the Senate, meaning money has not gotten to VA medical facilities and veterans will continue to wait in lines for health care. It has been nearly one month since this shortfall was first acknowledged, and yet Republicans continue to fail our veterans. Veterans and this Nation as a whole can not wait another day for this shortfall to be addressed; waiting any longer would be a travesty.

The truly sad facts demonstrate that the shortfall in veterans health care funding has resulted in some VA medical facilities no longer scheduling appointments for veterans, others not filling vacancies of medical and nursing staff, and other hospitals not being able to operate because of lack of operating room funding. This means that veterans can not get the care they need and the resources they so desperately need.
This spring, Democrats attempted to add $1.2 billion for veterans' health care on the $82 billion Iraqi supplemental. And last September, Democrats sought to provide a $2.5 billion increase over the Bush budget for veterans' health care. Over the last month, House Republicans have five times to block consideration of amendments offered by Democrats to add the needed funds for VA health care. It is time that we as a body unite to defend those brave Americans who risked their lives to defend our great nation. I urge all Members of the Motion to Instruct.

Ms. BORDALLO. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of the gentleman from Wisconsin’s (Mr. Obey’s) Motion to Instruct Conferences on Veterans Health Care on H.R. 2361, the Interior Appropriations Bill. Our servicemen and women are making daily sacrifices for our Nation in far off lands. Many will return home scarred by combat wounds, many others scarred by the face of war. Having completed their service to our Nation overseas, these men and women have earned more than a debt of gratitude from their Nation but a debt of care. In order to do this, we must properly fund the organization dedicated to their care, the Veterans Administration.

I am pleased that the gentleman from Wisconsin, Mr. Obey, has offered a motion to highlight the inadequacy of the House passed appropriations measures for our Veterans. This motion instructs conferences to accept the Senate position on Veterans’ medical care by adding a desperately needed $1.5 billion to the Veterans Administration budget.

Guardian Appointed Home. A company of the Guam Army National Guard following the unit’s combat tour in Djibouti, Africa. Many other sons and daughters of Guam have served on active duty in units across the Armed Services. I have an obligation to do everything possible for these heroes in ensuring that Congress has made a commitment to their care equivalent to the commitment they made to the care of our Nation.

It is time for the rhetoric of supporting our Soldiers and our Veterans to be met by our actions. I urge my colleagues to support the motion to instruct.

Mr. OBNEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. Lin- der). Without objection, the previous question is ordered on the motion to instruct.

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion to instruct offered by the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. Obey).

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. OBNEY. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX and the Chair’s prior announcement, further proceedings on this question will be postponed.

APPOINTMENT OF CONFEREES ON H.R. 2985, LEGISLATIVE BRANCH APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 2006

Mr. TAYLOR of North Carolina. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker’s table the bill (H.R. 2985) making appropriations for the Legislative Branch for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2006, and for other purposes, with Senate amendments thereto, disagree to the Senate amendments, and agree to the conference report.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from North Carolina?

Mr. OBNEY. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the right to object.

Mr. Speaker, I express this reservation in order to take a couple of moments to again express my disquiet about this legislative appropriation bill. I had originally intended to offer a motion to instruct conferences, but in the interest of time and comity, I will not do that. But I, under my reservation, want to make a number of points about funding contained in this bill.

This bill contains another large amount of taxpayers’ dollars to pay for what is euphemistically referred to as the Capitol Visitors Center now being constructed on this end of the Capitol. In my view, that project has become a story of spectacular mismanagement and colossal government waste, and I believe that I have the opportunity, to object to the way this project has been handled and to object to what it is going to produce.

The cost of the Capitol Visitors Center, which was first estimated at $95 million, has now ballooned to well over $500 million, and there is no end in sight to the escalation in cost.

My second objection is that, for this money, we are getting a pitiful allocation of space to the major needs of the Congress and an outrageous, wasteful allocation of space to areas that I think represent far lower-grade needs. The current design of that Capitol Visitors Center, the House space under that project, provides for approximately 161,000 square feet of space, of which only 3,200 square feet is for hearing rooms where public business can be conducted. The major need of this Congress, if we are going to expand the size of this building, is to have rooms that are sufficiently large so that we can have conferences with the Senate and do our legislative business. Instead, the primary usable space in the House portion of this project is for, in essence, a media center or a propaganda center. It is to make our legislative business more, more entertaining, and more useful to produce legislative products rather than propaganda press releases out of a media center.

Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my reservation of objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. LINDEER). Is there objection the request of the gentleman from North Carolina?

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, the Chair appoints the following conferees: Mr. LEWIS of California, Mr. KINGSTON, Mr. GRANGER, and Mr. DOOLITTLE; Mr. LAHOD; Mr. OBNEY; Mr. HOYER, and Mr. MORAN of Virginia.

There was no objection.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore (during the vote). There are 2 minutes remaining in this vote.

☐ 1342

So the motion to instruct was agreed to.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

Mr. WELDON of Florida, Mr. Speaker, due to the launch of the Space Shuttle Discovery earlier today, I was unable to be present for several votes. Had I been present, I would ask that the official RECORD reflect that I would have voted in favor of the following bills: H.R. 2977—Paul Kasten Post Office Building Designation Act; H.R. 3200—Servicemembers' Group Life Insurance Enhancement Act of 1974 to improve access and choice for entrepreneurs with small businesses with respect to medical care for their employees. And H.R. 3263—United States Trade Rights Enforcement Act.

Also, I would have voted in favor of the Obey Motion to Instruct Conferees on H.R. 2361—Department of the Interior, Environment, and Related Agencies Appropriations Act for FY 2006.
considered as read, and shall be separately debatable for one hour equally divided and controlled by the proponent and an opponent; and (3) one motion to recommit with or without instructions.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Utah (Mr. BISHOP) is recognized for 1 hour.

Mr. BISHOP of Utah. Mr. Speaker, for the purpose of debate only, I yield the customary 30 minutes to the gentleman from California (Ms. MATSUI), pending which I yield myself such time as I may consume. During consideration of this resolution, all time yielded is for the purpose of debate only.

This resolution provides for a structured rule and provides for 1 hour of debate equally divided between the chairman and ranking minority member of Committee on Education and the Workforce, waives all points of order against consideration of the bill, and makes in order an amendment in the nature of a substitute offered by the minority. This is a good and a fair rule. It allows the House to focus the debate and the vote upon two different approaches aimed at helping America’s small businesses to offer health coverage to their employees, and to debate and examine the proper role of the Federal Government in the health care arena.

Amendments not made in order were offered and discussed by the committee, so it is appropriate, I think, not to duplicate that committee action here on the floor.

H.R. 525 is the Small Business Health Fairness Act of 2005, sponsored by the distinguished gentleman from Texas (Mr. SAM JOHNSON), and is virtually identical to legislation passed in the 108th Congress, then H.R. 660, which passed this House by a 90-vote margin of 252 to 162. So I commend the subcommittee chairman, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. SAM JOHNSON); the committee chairman, the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. BOEHNER), for once again moving this bill through the committee process.

Mr. Speaker, H.R. 525 is a modest bill. It does not seek to address every aspect of health care in America. It does not seek to mandate Federal control into every aspect of medical treatments. To the chagrin of some of my friends on both sides of the aisle, it does not seek to tell every country in the direction of government control and taxpayer-funded universal health care.

What it does do, and this is really the bottom line, is make health insurance more affordable to small business and thereby increase the total number of Americans and families that are insured.

H.R. 525, if enacted, will result in more Americans and more American families being covered by private health insurance, and that is a worthy goal that we should all be working to achieve.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to point out that large corporations and unions already enjoy, many through ERISA, the same insurance-risk pooling features and already enjoy the cost efficiencies built into this health coverage package for their workers and their members. This bill, therefore, is about achieving a measure of fairness to small businesses to add to the momentum and help small businesses and industries to be treated the same way as giant corporations and union organizations.

The small guy will have nothing the large guy does not already have, with betterspecified language in the bill to ensure against unfair pooling practices. It has bipartisan support from a wide range of groups, from the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, the National Federation of American Business, the American Farming Bureau, Associated Builders and Contractors, the Latino Coalition, the National Black Chamber of Commerce, the National Association of Women Business Owners and the National Restaurant Association, as well as many others.

In the course of this debate, Mr. Speaker, there will be many who will be giving facts and figures. I do not wish to go into those right now. But I wish to make sure that this is part of a larger picture.

As politicians, we oftentimes talk about the Nation or issues being at a crossroads. We do that a lot because it is a very dramatic phrase, and it makes us seem more important because we are in the middle of it. But I care about the people who are in the middle of it, who believe in the issue of health care and insurance we are as a Nation in the crossroads. We can take one direction which would be to have greater government control, especially on the Federal level which ultimately would lead to a single-payer Federal program where decisions, right or wrong, would be made here.

Indeed, I think the substitute that will be ordered is illustrative not in the total package, where there is greater government control, greater regulations being put in there so that one wonders if the issue is really health insurance or if the issue is control.

The other approach that we are in the crossroads of and could take would be an approach to try to add market forces into the system to try and move some type of reforms along the way. This bill is not a panacea for all of our health care issues; but it is a step for certain groups who are currently excluded, often by well-intended decisions of the government.

I clearly understand both sides of these particular issues. I was a State legislator who did both while I was down there. There were requirements in health care which I thought were good at the time, which I also knew were costly at the time; and I also realize in hindsight, in helping one group of very vulnerable people, we actually hurt a different group of very vulnerable people.

For example, in my State, family health care is covered for everyone until the age of 25. When I joined this august body, all of the sudden the limitation was now at age 22, not 25; and I immediately realized I had three sons who had no health insurance whatsoever. I still have two sons who are out there in that risky group with no health insurance whatsoever.

I clearly realized from personal experience that all the mandates of coverage of health care systems are useless to those who cannot get or cannot afford insurance in the first place.

My oldest son finally got a job with a large corporation. I was very relieved that now he has insurance until a couple of weeks ago when he came and talked to me about being a friend in an entrepreneurial enterprise, in which case they would start their own business. I should have been excited about his attitude; but the first question out of my mouth was, Well, what about your insurance?

We make decisions here that have far-reaching effects in creating a society of limitations instead of visions as they should be. With all sorts of good intentions, government also has helped create people who have to go to court with them when all they want really is hope and the freedom to choose some kind of options. Sometimes it is a matter of control of those options, which is frightening for any government level tory and give up.

This bill does not try to create mandatory efforts. It tries to create options. It tries to create options from which people can choose. People who are not now covered have a chance to be covered in some way with insurance. Regardless of how one votes on this issue in the past or in the future, this is a fair rule. With that, I urge my colleagues to support this rule.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. MATSUI. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Utah (Mr. BISHOP) for yielding me this time, and I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Ms. MATSUI asked and was given permission to revise and extend her remarks.

Ms. MATSUI. Mr. Speaker, today I rise in opposition to this rule and the underlying measure of H.R. 525. This country leads in medicine and technology. When combined with increased awareness and awareness, we have made diseases more preventable and treatable. We have made huge strides, for example, diagnosing and treating breast cancer. Women are now going in for annual mammograms. In and of itself, mammograms do not prevent breast cancer, but they can save lives by finding breast cancer as early as possible.

For example, mammograms have been shown to lower the chance of dying from breast cancer by 35 percent in women over the age of 50. And studies suggest for women between 40 and 50, they may lower the chance of dying of breast cancer by 25 to 35 percent.
Having worked on educational campaigns for over a decade, I know that it has not been easy to convince women that they should be asking their doctor for a mammogram, nor, I might add, has it been easy to ensure that health insurance companies cover that diagnosis and certainly not a treatment. But through the tireless efforts of doctors, survivors, and advocates, the insurance companies relented.

Today we are increasingly catching breast cancer in the early stages, yet the legislation we are debating here on the floor today would effectively roll back these advances, and, even worse, doctors would now have to tell the 28-year-old woman who thinks she has found a lump in her breast that her health care insurance does not cover a mammogram to better see the abnormality; that her health care coverage is no longer subject to minimum standards established by her State because she is covered by an association health plan, an AHP, which is located in a different State with far more relaxed laws on health care coverage.

Too many Americans are already without sufficient health care coverage fighting off being forced to accept health care that does not provide what they need when they fall ill, whether it is breast cancer exams, diabetes medication, or childhood vaccinations. Why would we increase the number of these individuals without adequate health care coverage?

Some may claim that these standards for health care treatments, like those that require insurance companies to cover mammograms, are nothing but burdensome regulations, but these safeguards go to the heart of what responsible health care is all about: providing necessary care to those in need. And AHPs would not even reduce the cost of the premiums. Under the legislation today, AHPs could skim off a small minority of small businesses, those with younger and healthier workforces. As a direct result, 80 percent of small businesses would see an increase in their health care premiums.

Mr. Speaker, I truly question what we are doing today. Why would we create a situation that increases the already skyrocketing health care costs for four out of five small businesses? Sadly, we are forcing people to make an unacceptable choice between health care and their ability to provide health insurance as large corporations. The creation of association health plans will permit small business owners to band together through a trade association or other method to purchase health insurance for them and their employees. The ability to provide health insurance is critical for our small businesses to remain competitive.

Mr. Speaker, workers are frustrated with paying the high cost of health care. Congress needs to finish this job and pass association health plans into law. I urge my colleagues to support the rule and the underlying legislation.

Ms. MATSUI. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 1/2 minutes to the gentleman from California (Ms. LEE).

Ms. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I want to thank a gentlewoman for yielding me this time and for her leadership and consistent work on behalf of the American people regardless of what issue and what bills we are dealing with today. I want to say that I join her today in opposition to this rule and to the underlying bill. It is fundamentally flawed not only for what it does, but for what it fails to do.

Mr. Speaker, if this bill were made law, it would still have well over 44 million people in our country uninsured. Something is wrong. Something is fundamentally wrong where in the wealthiest Nation in the world we have 44 million uninsured. Where, quite frankly, is the morality in that? Under this bill, of the 45 million uninsured Americans in this country, only 600,000 people would move into coverage, while 10,000 workers with coverage would be pushed off of their current plans.

Not only does this bill fail to provide any significant coverage for the uninsured, it also puts women and girls at risk by preempting very strong State laws. Specifically, the bill overrides contraceptive protections in 21 States that cover contraceptives and treatments for sexually transmitted diseases. Clearly, Mr. Speaker, this bill puts women and girls at risk and makes empty promises to millions of uninsured Americans in desperate need of health care.

Instead of considering this bill, we should be debating the real question: How do we begin to put people before profits in our own health care system? Millions of Americans are calling on Congress to address this question by debating and voting on meaningful proposals, like universal health care, re-importation of prescription drugs, and allowing HHS to negotiate drug prices for Medicare recipients. It is time for Congress to wake up and take a hard look at our broken health care system. It is time for us to make a real effort at reform.

Mr. Speaker, H.R. 525 does nothing to expand health care to those who need it most, and it eliminates vital protections for women and girls. As a former small business owner, I know from years of experience the difficulties small businesses face due to a lack of consistent cash flow to afford these payments. Profitability for small businesses to afford health care contributions should really be addressed, and that is what we should be talking about today.

What this bill should do is assist small employers to employ in affordable premium payments. I am sure that is why 69 local Chambers of Commerce, the National Governors Association, 41 attorneys general, Blue Cross/Blue Shield, and over 1,300 business, labor and community organizations oppose H.R. 525. This bill is bad for the health of our country.

Mr. BISHOP of Utah. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 3 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Ohio (Mr. BOEHNER), the chairman of the Committee on Education and the Workforce.

Mr. BOEHNER. Mr. Speaker, uninsured working families are looking to...
Congress for answers to help give them access to quality health care, and before us today is a bipartisan bill that should give them hope.

The economic picture remains bright, and more Americans are finding work every day. Earlier this month, the Department of Labor reported that 3.7 million new jobs have been created since May of 2003, marking 25 consecutive months of positive job growth for the U.S. economy. Unfortunately, there are still millions of working families who cannot afford to purchase quality health insurance benefits for their workers. That is the crux of the problem. More Americans are finding new jobs, but many small businesses cannot afford to offer health insurance because of rising premium costs.

Our primary goal here in Congress, Mr. Speaker, should be creating affordable options to help the uninsured. With health care costs continuing to rise across the country, more employers and their employees are sharing the burden of increased premiums. Employer-based health insurance premiums rose by 11 percent last year, following a 15 percent increase in 2003. As costs escalate, the ranks of the uninsured could continue to increase as well.

The Small Business Health Fairness Act before us represents a bipartisan solution to this problem. By creating association health plans, the bill gives small businesses the opportunity to band together through bona fide trade associations and purchase quality health insurance for their workers at a lower cost. In the last year, we have seen how large corporations are now starting to band together to provide health care to their part-time workers. Small businesses and their workers deserve the same opportunities.

This bipartisan bill would increase small businesses' bargaining power with health care providers, giving them freedom from costly State-mandated benefit packages and lowering their overhead costs by as much as 30 percent, which are benefits many large corporations and unions already enjoy. By pooling their resources and increasing their bargaining power, association health plans will reduce the cost of health insurance for employers and allow more small businesses to provide health care to their workers.

Last year the House passed this measure on a bipartisan basis with the support of 37 of my colleagues on the other side of the aisle. Unfortunately, the other body has yet to act on this bill. But there remains hope. Senator Enzi, who chairs the Senate Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions, has expressed a strong interest in working on this proposal, and I am more optimistic than ever that the Senate will act.

This measure is supported by President Bush, the Labor Department, Republicans and Democrats, and, moreover, a poll conducted last year reveals that 95 percent of Americans support association health plans as an affordable health care option for American workers.

Small businesses deserve the chance to obtain high-quality health insurance at an affordable price for their workers, and AHPs are a prescription for helping the uninsured.

Mr. Speaker, I think the rule before us today is a fair rule, and I urge my colleagues to support it.

Ms. MATSU. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume to speak upon the provision that only 1 out of every 14 people enrolled in an AHP will be newly insured. Overwhelmingly, this is a bill that shifts the already insured into plans with lower coverage.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. McCARTHY).

Mrs. McCARTHY. Mr. Speaker, I oppose this rule and the underlying bill because it will result in preempting State laws and in a reduction in health care. AHPs would be exempt from having to provide medical services, preempting State laws which require coverage.

Mr. Speaker, this Nation spends millions and millions of dollars on cancer treatments. We also spend millions of dollars just on research and development. This bill would take away a tool that is used to save lives.

Preventing the coverage of mammograms and cervical screenings will help the lives of our sons, fathers, granddaughters, and daughters, and also keep down the cost of health care in this country. I know many of my colleagues on both sides of the aisle have supported similar measures while in their home States.

Preserving the coverage of mammograms and cervical screenings will help save the lives of our wives, mothers, and grandmothers. They have shown their commitment to their home State, and now it is time to show commitment to the Nation. As a nurse, I know first hand the importance of early detection. I have seen the hardships cancer patients endure. Since I have been here, I have done outreach within my district to get women in for their cervical exams and women over 40 in to get their mammograms. This is very important, and we cannot miss this opportunity to save lives. For this reason, I oppose the rule and the underlying bill.

Mr. BISHOP of Utah. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1½ minutes to the gentleman from Nebraska (Mr. OSBORNE).

Mr. OSBORNE. Mr. Speaker, I appreciate this opportunity to speak on behalf of the rule and the underlying legislation.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to just mention a personal story. I have a son-in-law who manages 150 stores. They are part of a franchise and are spread across 40 different States. If they have to purchase health care store by store, it is prohibitively expensive. Their costs are going up 10 to 20 percent a year. One of the previous speakers said it may not add a whole lot of people, but what is happening is we are losing more and more people out of health care plans each year because small businesses simply cannot afford it.

If they can band together, those 150 stores, and pool their resources and have 500 employees in a pool, they have a chance to keep their health care. I think it is critical.
Mr. Speaker, 60 percent of all Americans work for small businesses, and this is key to this legislation. Small businesses are particularly important to rural areas like Nebraska. The measure would do three things: one, increase small business bargaining power with health care providers; number two, give them freedom from costly state-mandated benefit packages. In many cases, the State regulations simply stifle the health care packages. And, number three, lower their overhead costs by as much as 30 percent.

Republicans and Democrats alike have joined together in each of the last two Congresses to pass this legislation. I urge support of the underlying rule and the bill.

Ms. MATSUI. Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. KIND).

Mr. KIND. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to the rule even though it has made in order a substitute that the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. Andrews) and I will be offering.

The reason I rise in opposition is because this is such an important issue that we really should have an open and fair and reasonable debate on the floor of the House. The representative of the Democratic amendments offered last night were effectively blocked. Instead, we have a closed rule that will allow some time for general debate on the AHP underlying bill, an hour on the substitute, and that is it.

I think we can all stipulate that when we go home, this is clearly the overriding issue we hear from our constituents: the rising cost of health care and the inability, especially in small businesses, to be able to afford and access quality health care which is crucial to a growing and vibrant economy.

There is a reason why we are here year after year debating the same issue, and that is because the underlying bill is bad policy. It is recognized as bad policy by over 1,400 organizations nationwide that have come out and publicly opposed it, including the National Governors Association, both the Democratic and the Republican Governors associations; including 41 of the States attorneys general; the National Association of Insurance Commissioners; the National Conference of State Legislatures, all of whom recognize this does not make sense, it is bad policy and we should offer something more. And, I will be offering a substitute that puts it back to the people from where it came from: the States where it has traditionally resided with oversight powers and audit responsibilities, put it in the Department of Labor with insufficient resources and no accountability and no oversight at all. Because of that, the State attorneys general in a letter stated: “The elimination of the State role and replacement with weak Federal oversight is a bad deal for small businesses and consumers.”

Finally, as the gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. McCarthy) has indicated, it does preempt consumer protection which has been traditionally guaranteed by the States if they found that necessary.

So there are a lot of reasons why the underlying bill before us today is bad policy. That is one of the reasons it has had a difficult time moving through the Senate. We are going to have a substitute offered that the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. Andrews) and I and others who support think is a viable and reasonable approach to deal with the growing health care crisis that so many of our small businesses and their employees are facing. It is a bill that does allow the purchasing pool to go forward, but it is modeled after what Federal employees currently have under their health care plan. And it also does not preempt State law.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to support that and vote “no” on the underlying bill.

Mr. BISHOP of Utah. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from Tennessee (Mrs. Blackburn).

Mrs. BLACKBURN. Mr. Speaker, increasingly, one of the things I hear from small business owners back in Tennessee is they want Congress to open the way, just to open the way and set the stage for more affordable health care choices.

Over 90 percent of the jobs in Tennessee are small business jobs. It is the largest employer in my district.

Small businesses today are being told that they need to do the best they can for their employees. They feel like they are a part of their family. The gentleman from Texas (Mr. Sam Johnson) really should be considered a co-sponsor of the Small Business Health Fairness Act of 2005. It is one of those things that will help small businesses, as we have heard from so many of the speakers, to pool together and to purchase association health plans through their national trade groups.

I have joined him as a co-sponsor of the legislation, and I believe we do have that opportunity to extend affordable, quality health care to millions of Americans. Every small business owner knows that providing quality health care is one of the most costly items in running a business. It is a very difficult part, mountains of paperwork and finding the right policies. We have the power to help by passing this commonsense legislation. I ask my colleagues to support the rule and to sup-port the underlying legislation.

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — HOUSE

Ms. MATSUI. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. BISHOP of Utah. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. HENSARLING).

Mr. HENSARLING. Mr. Speaker, today I rise in strong support of the rule for H.R. 525, the Small Business Health Fairness Act of 2005, offered by the gentleman from Texas (Mr. SAM JOHNSON).

Mr. Speaker, if we do not act soon, America will face a health care crisis. Health care costs are skyrocketing. We all know it; and, unfortunately, so do the nation’s uninsured. As usual, government is part of the problem. More freedom and more competition is part of the solution.

With nearly half of the 45 million uninsured Americans employed by small businesses, or dependent upon someone who is, H.R. 525 will help more Americans get access to the affordable health insurance they need.

H.R. 525 would allow the creation of association health plans to help alleviate the enormous health care burden on America’s small businesses. They will empower small businesses to join together to bargain with insurance carriers to get health care coverage for their workers at an affordable cost. No affordable cost, no insurance. Under current law, large employers that self-insure are exempt from State mandates while small businesses are not. This increases the cost of health insurance up to 13 percent and bars up to one-quarter of the uninsured from acquiring health care.

Mr. Speaker, that is not right. Small businesses and their employees should have the same right to quality health care insurance that large corporations and unions already enjoy. The Congressional Budget Office estimates that association health plans could actually reduce premiums for small businesses up to 25 percent. That could mean an average savings of $1,000 to $2,000 for the average family’s uninsured. As usual, government is part of the problem.

Mr. BISHOP of Utah. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I must admit that much of the oppogon gloom-and-doom predictions are based on assumptions of what people and companies will choose to do and, therefore, the government should make those mandates. I am pleased that these particular piece of legislation is based on the assumption that people have the ability to make good choices for themselves without the assistance of the heavy hand of government.

Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. SAM JOHNSON), the sponsor of this bill.

Mr. SAM JOHNSON of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to be here today to support the rule to govern H.R. 525, the Small Business Health Fairness Act of 2005. As costs continue to escalate annually at unprecedented rates, our employers are being forced to drop health care coverage, or not be able to afford it at all. Our small businesses share a large part of that burden because they pay for health care insurance in the costly small group market. Large employers bring bargaining clout to the table when they work with insurance companies. Small businesses have fewer employees and thus have no bargaining power. Not only that, but large employers and unions are exempt from burdensome State mandates. These mandates dictate what health plans must cover and which vary from State to State. Small employers do not have that luxury.

We know that more than 60 percent of the over-$40 million uninsured Americans either work for a small business or are dependent upon someone who does. The clear course of action here is to help our small businesses afford health care coverage by giving them the same opportunity.

Association health plans, or AHPs, do just that. Small businesses would be able to group together in bona fide trade associations. AHPs would then be able to use economies of scale to their advantage and provide more affordable health care for working families while avoiding the administrative cost of State mandates. AHPs are expected to save small business owners and their employees as much as 30 percent on their health insurance.

This bipartisan bill makes sense. The time to act is now. I urge a “yes” vote on this bill.

Ms. MATSUI. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. ANDREWS).

(MR. ANDREWS asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, I thank my friend from California for yielding me this time.

I hear the phrase “burdensome State mandates.” A woman has a C section and gets to stay in the hospital for at least 48 hours. A man has the right under a health insurance policy to get a mammogram paid for by the insurance company every year. A diabetic has the right to get insulin provided and other blood care paid for by their insurance company. These are the burdensome mandates that we hear talked about on the floor. One of my other friends talked about the heavy hand of government. That heavy hand of government is not only shared by Republican Governors around the country, because the National Governors Association opposes this bill. Republican and Democratic Governors have looked at this bill and say that they think that many of our friends on the majority side voted for in State legislatures around the country, laws that protect C sections, mammograms, diabetic care, substance abuse care, mental health care, these laws should not be repealed and thrown aside by the heavy hand of government at the Federal level. That is what this is really about.

Amendments that would have addressed these issues, that would have let us discuss these issues on this floor, were prohibited by the rule that we are debating right now. I would suspect that maybe one of the reasons they were prohibited is because Republican attorneys general and Republican Governors around the country would have supported such amendments because they are not the good work that is undone by this bill. Members should oppose this rule and eventually, after debate, oppose the underlying bill.

Mr. BISHOP of Utah. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. GINGREY).

Mr. GINGREY. I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong support of H. Res. 379 and the underlying bill, H.R. 525, the Small Business Health Fairness Act of 2005. My good friend, the gentleman from New Jersey, just spoke about some mandates regarding OB care and, of course, there are mandates that have been passed in the several States, all 50, in fact, that are very compassionate sounding. The gentleman from New Jersey is right. Many of us have, as former members of State legislatures, voted for mandates.

I am one of them. In fact, in the State of Georgia, there was a mandate, because of managed care intrusion and the requirement that everybody go through a gatekeeper and not to a specialist, that was written. If any health insurance policy in the State of Georgia, if any health insurance policy was written, they would have direct access to their OB–GYN. Certainly, as an OB–GYN specialist, I liked that mandate. In fact, I think I voted for that one. But shortly after that along came the dermatologists and they wanted direct access to everybody who had an itch, to have to be able to go, demand to be seen by a specialist, a dermatologist, rather than their family practitioner.

I want to tell you about a couple of other mandates in the State of Geor-tia. There was one to require that every woman would have the right to have a blood test to be screened for ovarian cancer. It is called CEA–125. Any cancer specialist would tell you that screening test for ovarian cancer is absolutely worthless. A better mandate would have been to say that every boy born under age 30, any woman, could buy an annual policy for a price two to three dollars each month, that would be astronomically expensive. Another mandate in the State of Georgia says that every baby born in a hospital in the State of Georgia has to be screened for sickle cell anemia, even when they are a part of an ethnic group where the percentage of sickle cell anemia is zero. Nada. These mandates just go on and on, and you have got them in all 50 States.

Clearly, we need to do something about that because they are driving up the cost of health care. We need to give people the opportunity to join their other employees in trade associations. This is a good bill. It will reduce the costs paid by 8 million people. I commend it to my colleagues on both sides of the aisle. I urge you to support this rule and pass the Sam Johnson legislation. It is a good bill. It will get people the protection they need and provide health care for so many who do not have it.

Ms. MATSUI. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the balance of my time.

Earlier this month, the Los Angeles Times ran a story that I think cuts to the heart of this discussion. It is the story of a husband and wife living in Southern California. After successfully battling bone cancer 7 years earlier, Doug did what so many Americans would like to do. He started a small business making boat parts. Soon, he was approached by an AHP offering a $400-a-month health insurance policy which even included special cancer coverage.

Tragically, a few months after he purchased the policy, his cancer returned and it became quite clear that the quality of that association plan was not what Doug or his wife, Dana, expected. It turned out that this particular plan covered less than 18 percent of Doug’s $550,000 treatment cost. Doug and Dana rapidly found themselves buried under hundreds of thousands of dollars in bills. And as his wife recounted to the Los Angeles Times, at several points before the cancer ultimately claimed his life, Doug begged her to stop so that she would not be responsible for his debt.

I cannot believe this is the solution we are offering to small business owners like Doug and Dana. The American people deserve better.

Mr. Speaker, this bill offers no health care solutions for small business owners. It raises premiums on 80 percent of small businesses; will increase the number of uninsured by 1 million people; and reduce coverage for another 7 million, who are most in need of care. My friends on the other side might find these facts inconvenient, but that does not make them less true. And it will accomplish all of this by loosening or removing consumer protections and by walking away from State mandates that guarantee treatment for diabetes and screenings for breast cancer.

We can do much, much better than this for America, Mr. Speaker. I urge Members to oppose the rule, oppose the underlying bill, and support the Kind-Andrews substitute.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. BISHOP of Utah. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the balance of my time.

I appreciate those who have spoken on the bill today. I appreciate the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. GINGREY), a member of the medical profession, who so eloquently talked about some of the realities of this particular bill and what we are looking at. And I appreciate the gentlewoman from California and her wonderful and kind way in which she handled the rule on the minority side.

Just as a means of criteria of what we are going through as far as the rule itself, every amendment that was proposed for this particular rule was discussed thoroughly and voted upon in the committee; the rejection of obviously the motion to recommit. With the debate we have had in previous years, every element of this bill has been thoroughly debated both on the floor and in committee, this year as well as in years past.

I have to admit, Mr. Speaker, my favorite Senator, even though I am not supposed to have one, is the junior Senator from Kentucky who is the only one to have won 100 games in both the American and the National League. Because of that, I have his baseball cards. I hope he does very well over there because if they continue to rise in value, that may be the only way I pay for my health care in the future.

I was recently flying on the airplane coming back yesterday of a story of Senator Bunning when he was a pitcher for the Detroit Tigers and he was facing the Yankees. The Yankees sent out Bob Turley to be the first base coach because he was great at picking off signals. Sure enough, he knew what the signals were. His signal would be every time a fastball was coming, he would whistle at the batter. Hank Bauer was the first batter up there. Fastball, he whistled, Bauer dived in a screamer into left field. The second batter is Tony Kubek. Fastball, whistle, he hit what would have been extra bases into right field except the second baseman caught the ball in self-defense.

The third hitter up is Mickey Mantle. By this time the pitcher is upset with what is going on and takes a couple of steps to Turley and says, “Next time you whistle, I’m going to drill the batter.” He takes a couple of steps to the batter and tells him the same thing. Suddenly, fastball, the whistler, Mantle does not swing. The next pitch is a slider which hits Mantle right in the legs. He is upset, takes a couple of steps towards the mound, but the catcher and the umpire direct him to first base.

The next batter up is Yogi Berra. Once again, fastball, the whistle comes. Yogi does not take it, but then remembering what happened, he steps out of the box, puts his hands on his hips, and yells back at Senator Bunning who is the pitcher at this time and says, “He may be whistling, but I ain’t listening.”

Mr. Speaker, there are a lot of people who have been whistling at us on this particular issue. Every time I go to a town hall meeting, I face people who want some kind of relief in the ability of getting insurance. I get letters from them all the time. When small businesspeople come to my office, they are talking repeatedly about this particular issue. They are all whistling, asking for some kind of relief.

I realize I talked about my three sons who did not have insurance. My two that still do not will not have under this bill because the provisions do not allow them to participate. But my next-door neighbor who is trying to make a living in a shop down on Main Street that does not have insurance would under the provisions of this bill. Those are real-life people who need this kind of assistance and help, and they cannot get it any other way. The status quo does not offer this kind of assistance. This is one of those few rays of hope that they will have. These people are truly whistling at us. Our job as Congress is to finally listen.

Mr. Speaker, I urge support of the rule on the underlying bill, H.R. 525.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time, and I move the previous question on the resolution.

The previous question was ordered. The resolution was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

Providing for Consideration of H.R. 22, Postal Accountability and Enhancement Act

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 380 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

Resolved, That at any time after the adoption of this resolution the Speaker may, pursuant to clause 2(b) of rule XVIII, declare the House resolved into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for consideration of the bill (H.R. 22) to reform the postal laws of the United States. The first reading of the bill shall be dispensed with. All points of order against consideration of the bill are waived. General debate shall be confined to the bill and shall not exceed one hour equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on Reform. After general debate the bill shall be considered for amendment under the five-
Finally, the rule waives all points of order against the amendments printed in the report and provides one motion to recommit with or without instructions.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of H.R. 22, the Postal Accountability and Enhancement Act, and its underlying rule. When I was first elected to Congress in 1996, I served on the Committee on Government Reform and Oversight’s Postal Service Subcommittee, with special responsibility to reform the Postal Service. Today, I am pleased to lead the task of reforming our Nation’s postal operations to make them more efficient, cost-effective, and responsive. And although I no longer serve on the committee, I am pleased that the Committee on Government Reform has invested in this legislation. Since President Nixon signed the Postal Reorganization Act in 1970, the United States Postal Service has not been significantly reformed. Even small operations. While this legislation helped to update the Postal Service and to move it from a bureaucracy subsidized by tax revenue to self-sufficiency, a market-based entity, the way that people communicate has changed dramatically over the last three decades, and the Postal Service must now evolve to meet the changing demands of consumers.

The Postal Service is a very large organization that is at the center of a $900 billion industry, representing about 9 percent of America’s GDP, that employs more than 9 million workers nationwide. It processes more than 200 billion pieces of mail to 130 million households and businesses every year, and it directly employs 700,000 people, making it the second largest employer in the country. If the Postal Service were a private company, it would rank 11th on the Fortune 500 in terms of revenue.

However, 21st century realities, including decreasing volume; insufficient revenue; mounting debts; and the rapid growth of electronic communications for advertising, bill payments, and information transfer present an enormous challenge to the Postal Service in fulfilling its mission to “provide postal services that bind the Nation together through the correspondence of the people, to provide access in all communities, and to offer prompt, reliable postal services at uniform prices.”

H.R. 22 maps out a responsible and accountable future for the United States Postal Service that will provide increased oversight for its operations, renew its focus on its core mission of delivering the mail, and save as many as 1.5 million jobs in the private sector that rely on the Postal, and accomplishing all of this without imposing a significant new tax burden on every American household.

This bill would transform today’s Postal Rate Commission into the Postal Regulatory Commission and give it to the authority to ensure that the Postal Service is a dynamic, responsible operation in the 21st Century environment exists. It would require the Postal Service to account for all of its costs in SCC-like financial disclosure statements and give the Regulatory Commission the authority to punish the Postal Service for any non-compliance. It would also subject the Postal Service to antitrust laws, require the Regulatory Commission to account for the advantages that its government status confers, and build a market-based, nonpostal product that helps to raise the level playing field with private business.

As our economy continues to expand with 25 consecutive months of job gains adding over 3.7 million new jobs to payrolls, increasing wages, and improving productivity and investment, it is time that we reduce the pressure on the Postal Service. According to estimates, if mail decreased by 10 percent, over 780,000 mail-processing industry jobs would also be at risk; and if decreased by 20 percent, over 1.5 million jobs would also be at risk.

As our economy continues to expand with 25 consecutive months of job gains adding over 3.7 million new jobs to payrolls, increasing wages, and improving productivity and investment, it is time that we reduce the pressure on the Postal Service. According to estimates, if mail decreased by 10 percent, over 780,000 mail-processing industry jobs would also be at risk; and if decreased by 20 percent, over 1.5 million jobs would also be at risk.

I am very proud of the hard work that so many Members have put into reforming the United States Postal Service to ensure that it is a dynamic, market-based entity that provides uniform and universal service to America while preventing it from becoming a government entity from subsidizing its competition for providing goods and services already being provided efficiently by the private sector. It would also prevent a 2-cent postage rate increase this year with another 1-cent increase anticipated next year that would act as a significant drain and backdoor tax on our growing economy.

According to estimates, if mail decreased by 10 percent, over 780,000 mail-processing industry jobs would also be at risk; and if decreased by 20 percent, over 1.5 million jobs would also be at risk.

I would personally like to thank the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. TOM DAVIS), wonderful chairman, for their tireless efforts to improve the United States Postal Office.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Sessions) for yielding me the customary 30 minutes, and I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today with disappointment that the House is again considering a rule that blocks all but a select few from offering amendments. Let me make it clear I do not oppose the underlying bill, and I intend to vote for it, but the closed manner by which the majority is bringing the underlying bill to the floor is just plain wrong.

Yesterday in the Committee on Rules, the gentleman from Tennessee (Mr. Ford) offered an amendment that would permit military personnel on Active Duty in the Department of Defense-designated combat zones to receive packages on a postage-free basis. Under this rule, however, the gentleman from Tennessee (Mr. Ford) is not permitted to offer his amendment. I am disappointed and displeased that the majority has once again failed to provide the House with an opportunity to extend the most meager of benefits to those men and women who risk their lives so that all of us can be free. We really should be ashamed of ourselves.

As the gentleman from Texas has noted, Mr. Speaker, the Postal Accountability and Enhancement Act represents the first major restructuring of the United States Postal Service in over 30 years. This bill provides the Postal Service with greater flexibility to set its rates and manage its costs. It also creates a new regulatory system for overseeing the Postal Service's operations and levels the playing field for the Postal Service to finally compete against the megacommercial delivery services of the world.

Mr. Speaker, this legislation is long overdue. On July 26, 1775, Benjamin Franklin to that prestigious post. As many of my colleagues and students of American history are well aware, the Congress of 1775 had many great issues to deal with at that particular time, such as the Revolutionary War, disputes over taxes, and the issue of private landownership, just to name a few. Yet with all the great events that were taking place at the time, the Continental Congress still managed to name a Postmaster General in just 1 day. Ironically, it took President Bush 5 years to finally support the Postal Accountability and Enhancement Act.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. Davis).

Mr. TOM DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I thank my friend, an alumnus of the Committee on Government Reform, a very active former committee member, for yielding me this time.

I rise today in support of House Resolution 380, the rule to provide for the consideration of the Postal Accountability and Enhancement Act.

"Neither snow nor rain nor heat nor gloom of night stays these couriers from the swift completion of their appointed rounds." This is the unofficial motto of the Postal Service, engraved outside the headquarters of the Farley Post Office in New York City.

But today, the Postal Service faces a threat far greater than snow or rain or heat or gloom of night. The threat is the outdated and unsustainable structural framework within which the Postal Service operates. It threatens to bring it to the brink of catastrophe unless Congress acts immediately. I think that H.R. 22, the Postal Accountability and Enhancement Act, is the solution.

This legislation reforms and sustains a vital sector of our overall economy. Standing alone, the Postal Service currently has more than 800,000 employees. But more than 9 million American jobs, $900 billion in commerce, and nearly 9 percent of the Nation's gross domestic product depend on mail and package delivery.

Each year the Postal Service processes and delivers 238 billion pieces of mail more than any other company in the United States. That is 238 billion magazines, catalogs, thank-you notes, birthday cards, wedding invitations, Social Security checks, IRS refunds, letters to our Congressmen, movie rentals, all delivered in fulfillment of the Postal Service's promise of universal service.

The last time that the Congress passed legislation to overhaul the Postal Service was 1970 when President Nixon signed the Postal Reorganization Act. Before e-mails, before faxes, the world has changed.

It is now time to bring the Postal Service into the 21st century, to rescue it from the structural, legal, and financial constraints that have brought it to the brink of utter breakdown.

Now, our time to act is short. This past April, the Postal Service began the process of requesting a 5.4 percent rate hike for all categories of mail. These rate hikes, think of them as a tax on every package, every postcard, every letter, this year, next year, which, of course, is practically everybody in the United States, will take effect next year unless Congress acts. For direct marketers, financial service companies, businesses relying heavily on the Postal Service, these rate hikes will be devastating.

Some observers have likened the Postal Service's current situation to a death spiral, where declining business leads to higher rates which, in turn, leads to further declines in business until it is too late to change course.

Unfortunately, under current law, the Postal Service's only recourse to remain competitive in today's markets is to raise its rates.

Moreover, the Postal Service's more recent request for a rate increase was spurred in part by an existing requirement that the Postal Service contribute $3.1 billion to a Federal pension escrow account, even though this account now houses more than $73 billion in civil service retirement savings that rightfully belongs to the USPS. This is but one of the outdated requirements that H.R. 22 seeks to reform.

Is this bill perfect? No, but there is no magic legislative fix that will cure the Postal Service of its ills. But I think that all of the stakeholders, the postal employees, the financial service companies, major marketers and, most importantly, all Americans who use stamps, are better off with this legislation than they would be without this long overdue package of reform.

More than 35 years after the last reform of the Postal Service, with millions of jobs at stake, and particularly in the face of the pending rate increases, the time has come for Congress to act. I want to thank the gentleman from California (Chairman Dreier) and the Committee on Rules.
for crafting this rule. I urge Members to support it. I thank my good friend, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Sessions), who has forgotten more about the Postal Service than I will ever know, who struggled with this for 10 years and has been very critical in crafting this legislation; and on the other side of the aisle, my ranking member, the gentleman from California (Mr. Issa), and the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Davis) who have put innumerable hours into crafting the bipartisan bill.

I think this is a good rule, it is a good bill, and I urge my colleagues to support it.

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I am very pleased to yield 4 minutes to my friend, the distinguished gentleman from Oregon (Mr. Blumenauer).

Mr. BLUMENAUER. Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the gentleman's courtesy in permitting me to speak on this rule. I rise in support of the approach that has been taken. I add my praise for the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. Tom Davis), for the gentleman from New York (Mr. McHugh), for the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Davis), for the gentleman from California (Mr. Waxman), for people who have labored long and hard dealing with the first post office update in over a third of a century. But there are also a lot of people who are concerned about it, but the fact is the post office handles one-half of the mail in the entire world. They collect only one-quarter of the revenue; they have less than a fifth of the workforce; they are more than three times as productive as postal services around the world, and their rates are lower than any other of the developed countries. It is also important that we are ready to get online with the Internet; that is not just in bringing up the physical facilities of 38,000 postal offices around the country, but to be active in terms of the change that is taking place.

The United States Postal Service occasionally comes into criticism by people who are concerned about it, but the fact is the post office handles one-half of the mail in the entire world. They collect only one-quarter of the revenue; they have less than a fifth of the workforce; they are more than three times as productive as postal services around the world, and their rates are lower than any other of the developed countries. It is also important that we are ready to get online with the Internet; that is not just in bringing up the physical facilities of 38,000 postal offices around the country, but to be active in terms of the change that is taking place.

The status quo is not tenable. This legislation recognizes that.

I strongly urge, however, that as we come forward with a range of amendments that they be rejected. I appreciate that they are well-intended. Some of them in other contexts I may be interested in, but this is part of this carefully crafted balance. It is important that we not upset the apple cart. We can protect that. It requires the post office that to obey environmental regulations, local needs. We set about to fix that with legislation that basically would have required the post office to play by the same rules as the rest of America. I will say over the course of the 10 years, working with some of the colleagues that I mentioned, working with the Board of Governors of the Postal Service, working with three Postmasters General and others who are active in this effort, that we have come a long way. In fact, in many areas of the United States it is examples where the post office has taken seriously its responsibilities and has been a model player providing that essential cornerstone.

It is important that this not be idiosyncratic. It is important that this approach, this way of doing business, must be codified into law so everybody can be protected. One of the reasons I support H.R. 22 is because it does just that. It requires the post that a to obey zoning, planning, environmental regulations. It will be better for the post office; it is better for our communities.

But I want to go a little beyond that, because as I have been involved, I have had the privilege of being part of the effort to do that. We had a series of efforts where we had a series of efforts where the post office unfortunately ignored environmental regulations, local needs and desires. We set about to fix that with legislation that basically would have required the post office to play by the same rules as the rest of America. I will say over the course of the 10 years, working with some of the colleagues that I mentioned, working with the Board of Governors of the Postal Service, working with three Postmasters General and others who are active in this effort, that we have come a long way. I want to also thank my colleague, the gentleman from New York (Mr. McHugh), who has forgotten more about the Postal Service than I will ever know, who struggled with this for 10 years and has been very critical in crafting this legislation; and on the other side of the aisle, my ranking member, the gentleman from California (Mr. Issa), and the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Davis) who have put innumerable hours into crafting the bipartisan bill.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentlewoman from Michigan (Mrs. Miller).

Mrs. MILLER of Michigan. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, I rise to support this rule, and I am very proud to be a co-sponsor of this legislation. I did serve on the postal panel and the Committee on Government Reform as well. This is really the first real reform of the United States Postal Service since the 1970s.

Mr. Speaker, America succeeds and America prospers because America evolves. Our Nation evolves. We are always striving to leverage our economic, our technological, and our political advancements to improve our entire Nation. Much of what might have been good in the 1970s is clearly not good enough for the 21st century, especially when it comes to communications; and the United States Postal Service, with a uniquely critical means of communicating in our Nation, unfortunately, is laboring under a business model that was built in an era that predates e-mail, and even fax machines.

Any private sector business would have been put out of business. But the United States Postal Service today, and these are some staggering numbers actually delivers 200 billion pieces of mail each and every year, it delivers to 130 million households, and it is the center of a nearly $1 trillion industry.

But the competition is growing. Of course, revenues are at risk; its workforce is geographically isolated; and so is its equipment. Yet these are all the same kinds of challenges that so many businesses today face.

I was very proud to co-sponsor and to update and to upgrade this legislation, which does all of that, for our Postal Service. The Postal Accountability and Enhancement Act modifies the Postal Service's infrastructure and its financial framework; and at the same time, it also maintains its traditional benefits to the best of my knowledge, and that, of course, is 6-day, universal service.

H.R. 22 provides the postal office with firmer financial ground, and it mitigates the needs to constantly raise postal rates. It ensures those that live in America’s rural communities that they still have very close access to a full-service postal center. What is more, equally as important, I think, is it preserves the right for collective bargaining for our postal workers.
Mr. DAVIS of Illinois. Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the gentleman from Florida (Mr. HASTINGS) for yielding me this time. I also want to thank him and the gentleman from Texas (Mr. SESSIONS) for the presentation of this rule. I want to commend the chairman of the Committee on Government Reform, the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. DAVIS), and the ranking member, the gentleman from California (Mr. WAXMAN), for the tremendous leadership that they have displayed in shaping this bipartisan legislation.

I also want to commend the gentleman from New York (Mr. MCCLUSKY), who is known as “Postal Reform” in our committee, because he has worked on this issue for such a long period of time.

Many of us recognize that postal issues are not considered to be the most exotic business that will come before this House, but if you are waiting for an important document that does not come, or you are waiting for a letter to arrive, and it does not arrive, then you begin to realize the importance of the Postal Service.

I want to commend the thousands of men and women who work every day to make sure that these channels of communication are still open. Imagine being able to get a letter from anywhere, first class, in the United States of America for 37 cents. That is no easy feat.

And so I commend all of those who have made sure that these channels of communication have been kept open. I commend all of those members of the committee who have labored, and all of the stakeholders. Shaping this legislation was not the easiest thing in the world to do, but I have been told that when men and women of goodwill come together with a basic recognition of the need to be in sync, that you can work out solutions to any problems that have existed.

That is what has taken place in the Committee on Government Reform. Again, I commend the tremendous leadership that we have gotten from the chairman and the ranking member. I know that there are amendments that are desirable, but I am going to resist them, and urge passage of this landmark legislation that seeks to reform the postal system and postal operations.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Boehner).

Mr. BOEHNER. Mr. Speaker, let me thank the gentleman from Texas (Mr. SESSIONS) for yielding me time.

Let me stand today and thank those who have put together this postal reform bill. It is not an issue that I work on. I deal with Education and Workforce issues. But I have watched this issue over the last 10 years be hit from one side of the ballpark to the other, kicked from one end of the field to the other, and yet we never could quite get it over the line.

Mr. Speaker, I really want to stand today and thank the gentleman (Chairman DAVIS), the ranking member, the gentleman from California (Mr. WAXMAN), the other members of the committee who were involved in this, for bringing together all of these different moving pieces in order to create a successful legislative package.

Let me stand today and thank our colleague and my friend, the gentleman from New York (Mr. MCCLUSKY), for over 10 years has put in time, effort, blood, tears, to try to hold these pieces together, bring the necessary agreements to bring other parties together, and I think that he has done a fabulous job and deserves a lot of recognition from all of the Members for bringing this package along, staying with it. He could have walked away countless times because it was too hard, it was very difficult, and too many people just never wanted to come to the table, but because of his efforts and the efforts of many others, we are here today with a bipartisan package that deserves the support of all of our colleagues.

I support the bill and certainly support the rule that will bring it to the floor.

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from the District of Columbia (Ms. NORTON).

Ms. NORTON. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me time and for his work in bringing this bill and this rule to the floor.

The reason that my colleagues are hearing such kudos for the chairman, the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. DAVIS), subcommittee chairman, the gentleman from New York (Mr. MCCLUSKY), the ranking member, the gentleman from California (Mr. WAXMAN), and the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. DAVIS) will be understood, I think, if you understand that it has taken us 11 years to get here. So great tenacity and skill could have brought us this far.

I have been in Congress for 15 years. It seems to me that this has been before us forever, but never on the floor before, and there is a good reason for it. It is not because there were special interests or cantankerous Members; it is we are trying to do almost the impossible. We are trying to make an agency meant to be only partially competitive stand alongside one of the most competitive parts of our economy.

So what was necessary was to somehow bring the likes of UPS and FedEx on board at the same time that all of the unions could be brought with us, UPS and the entire industry. That is why it has taken so long and why in reverence we have to be thankful for those who have accomplished this mission. Understand we are dealing with an industry that is 9 percent of our GDP, nothing to be taken lightly.

Yet what you have before you is something of a miracle. It is a unanimous and bipartisan bill where Members have put aside their selfish concerns and said, for the greater good of the Postal Service, because one thing we have to come to grips with is not a single Member that can go home and say, well, it was not good enough for me, so I put your Postal Service in jeopardy. Just try that out on your constituents.

At the same time, the Postal Service had to wake up to the 21st century, had to modernize in ways that 9/11 had nothing to do with, had to modernize because the world has come forward with technology that challenges them, the way UPS and FedEx will never challenge them. How do you do that?

They are still trying to do that. But one of the things you do is give the Postal Service some of the flexibility that an industry has, and let them manage the private sector, as much of it as you can, consistent with the fact that this is a controlled section of the economy, because there are some things that the Postal Service must do and nobody else can do; for example, some of the far reaches of your rural districts where they better get their mail on time the way I do mine nine blocks from the Capitol.

Even those who had serious problems with this bill, the mail handlers, for example, have a real problem and one that has to be taken seriously with the way in which the bill deals with single pieces of parcels, single parcels, where we have allowed the Postal Service to transfer revenue in order to keep this part of the service lower, and we are getting rid of that to make them more competitive with the private sector.

They say, watch out because you are going to raise the costs, and that is not good. I know how what they have said and agreed to? Perhaps we can solve it in conference. So they say, Steed the bill. I say as well, because we need to modernize the Postal Service. And we have even gotten around for ourselves the part that says that we might contribute to the deficit by giving back to the Treasury what they put on to the Postal Service, which is the cost of military pensions.

We say you have held billions of dollars from the Postal Service. Tell you one thing we did not do that, what it means is that the Postal Service, which has already filled for a rate increase, would be forced to go ahead. I, for one, do not want to go home in 2006 and say, I voted for a mail increase. That is what you will vote for if you vote against this bill.

My thanks to the sponsors once again for this historic work.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. Speaker, as you know, this bill is about the taxpayer. It is also about high-tech areas that depend upon a Postal Service that works properly. And our next speaker is from one of those areas, a high-tech area that is important to this country in not only manufacturing, but also delivery of goods and products.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentlewoman from West Virginia (Mrs. CAPITO).

Mrs. CAPITO. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong support of this rule and underlying postal reform legislation. I commend the gentleman from Virginia (Chairman DAVIS) and the ranking member, the gentleman from California (Mr. WAXMAN), along with the many others who have authored this bill, the gentleman from New York (Mr. McHugh), for working in a bipartisan manner that has twice allowed this bill to be reported from committee by a unanimous vote.

Now, I have only been here 5 years, and like my colleague from Washington, DC, says, she feels like every year it is painstakingly making its way through the process. And even in the 5 years since I have been here, I know how important this bill is, and I am so pleased that we are at the point we are today.

I am pleased to be a cosponsor of H.R. 22 because of its importance to businesses, postal employees, and all of us who have mail delivered to our homes or our businesses. This legislation has provisions that will allow the Postal Service to operate more efficiently and would require that it focus primarily on its main focus, which is delivering the mail.

H.R. 22 will help small mailers to partner with the Postal Service to reduce the cost of mailings, providing an efficiency to the Postal Service, and helping businesses to save money that can be invested in jobs and job growth.

The bill is a good idea for postal employees for a lot of different reasons, one of which is because it returns the responsibility for the military service portion of postal retiree benefits back to the government and corrects overpayment by the Postal Service to the Civil Service Retirement System.

In short, the bill provides the changes necessary to keep the Postal Service operating. It is so important to all of us every day. I mean, I know at certain times in my life I felt like if I did not see my friendly mailman or mailwoman at my door, I felt like I did not have a friend in the world. So let us keep the Postal Service operating without the hefty rate increases that would inevitably come with the status quo.

This bill means a great deal to very many people, to many of my friends in the world. I congratulate all of those intimately involved. I urge my colleagues to join me in support of the rule and the underlying bill.

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, we come to the close offering praise to those who brought us this far. I add my congratulations to the distinguished leadership of this committee on both sides of the aisle for fashioning a piece of legislation that I believe will pass the House overwhelmingly and that I certainly intend to support, and I ask all of our colleagues to do likewise.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Today, we have had an opportunity to bring forth this postal bill with not only the bipartisanship that has pats on the back to a lot of people who have been engaged in this issue for a long time, and perhaps none more diligent about this than the gentleman from New York (Mr. McHugh), our wonderful colleague. I think the way he has gone about this. Mr. Speaker, has been good, not only for this House but a credit to the men and women who have also been engaged in this.

I remember some 9 years ago as I went with a rural letter carrier down in Jeuitt, Texas, Stan Waltrip, I had a chance to go and deliver the mail with Stan and to see firsthand the kinds of, not only the people he came in contact with but the importance of doing this. So this bill is important that we have done this.

There are other people who have contributed to the success, rural letter carriers, certainly the postal carriers, letter carriers, those people who represent the Post Masters, the Financial Services Roundtable and many others. I would also like to thank the White House for their involvement. Three people in particular from the Leg Affairs office, Brian Conklin, Elan Liang, and Chris Frech, have been very diligent in making sure that this House and its Members are updated about the position of the White House.

Mr. Speaker, I would say this is a good piece of legislation. It is one that comes at a great time for this country. It is one that will spur the economy and make sure we are prepared for the future.

I ask my colleagues to please make sure they support this rule and also the underlying legislation.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time, and I move the previous question on the resolution.

The previous question was ordered. The resolution was agreed to. A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

SMALL BUSINESS HEALTH FAIRNESS ACT OF 2005

Mr. BOEHNER. Mr. Speaker, pursuant to H. Res. 379, I call up the bill (H.R. 525) to amend title I of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 to improve access and choice for entrepreneurs with small businesses, but really care for their employees, and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.
The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. GILLMOR). Pursuant to House Resolution 379, the bill is considered read for amendment.

who provide health benefits to their employees are not forced to drop their coverage because of rising premiums and high administrative costs.

The Small Business Health Fairness Act responds to this problem and can help reduce the high cost of health insurance for all businesses by improving quality health care at a lower cost.

President Bush addressed this point directly last year during his speech at the United States Chamber of Commerce where he said, “AHPs would provide small businesses the same opportunity that big businesses get, and that is the economies of scale, the economies of purchase, the abilities to share risk which drives down the costs of health care for small businesses.”

The President is right, and we should help level the playing field so small businesses can offer quality coverage to their workers.

Americans overwhelmingly agree with President Bush that association health plans are the right plan to help the uninsured. A poll conducted last year showed that 90 percent of Americans support association health plans as a way of providing access to affordable care for American workers who lack coverage. Over the last year, we have seen how large corporations are now starting to band together to provide health care to their part-time workers. Do small businesses and their workers not deserve the same opportunity?

Important, the bill gives AHPs the freedom from costly State mandates because small businesses deserve to be treated in the same fashion as large corporations and unions who receive the same exemptions today. Clearly, these mandates are useless to families who have no health coverage in the first place. If you do not have health care coverage, State mandates requiring health plans to offer specific benefits do you and your family no good at all. This measure includes strong safeguards to protect American workers.

Decisive American nature of this bill, I would like to correct some of the misinformation that I have heard. The measure protects against cherry-picking because we make clear that AHPs must comply with the 1996 Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act, which prohibits group health plans from excluding or charging a higher rate to high-risk individuals with a high claims experience.

Under our bill, sick or high-risk groups or individuals cannot be denied coverage. In addition, AHPs cannot charge higher rates for employers with sicker individuals within the plan except to the extent already allowed by State law where the employer is located. The bill also includes strict requirements under which only bona fide professional and trade associations can sponsor an association health plan, and, therefore, does not allow sham association plans set up by health insurers. Organizations must be established for purposes other than providing health insurance for at least 3 years.

We in Congress have a responsibility to deal with a problem of small businesses that cannot afford to provide health insurance because of skyrocketing health care costs. The U.S. economy is getting stronger by the day, and more and more employers are hiring workers each month. Earlier this month the unemployment rate dropped to its lowest level since September of 2001 and the Labor Department reported that 3.7 million new jobs have been created since March of 2003. That is 25 consecutive months of sustained economic growth.

We want to make sure that these workers have the opportunity to receive quality health insurance through their employer, and this bill can help make that happen.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to the bill and I yield myself 4 minutes.

(Mr. ANDREWS asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, today there is a point of agreements and a strong point of disagreement. There is a point of agreement that health care costs are rising too fast for too many people. There is a point of agreement that the consequences of that price increase is a tremendous burden on small business and a high likelihood that more people will be uninsured.

I do not think there is a Member of this body that does not favor finding an intelligent and effective way to reduce health care costs for small business so they can continue to insure the people they do insure and expand and insure more people in the future.

Where we disagree is over whether this underlying bill is the right way to do it, and we emphatically believe that it is not.

There are four reasons to oppose this bill. The first is that there is a better idea. There is a better way to solve this problem, and the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. Kind) will address that issue when our substitute is brought to the floor in a little while.

The second reason is that this bill will not result in a reduction of the number of uninsured. To the contrary, it will result in an increase in the number of uninsured people, and here is how. It is estimated by the experts in this field that 8 million people will be shifted from conventional health care policies and plans to association health plans. These 8 million people will, in fact, probably have a lower premium than they do right now for a little while. But when those 8 million people are shifted out of conventional health care plans and they will tend to be younger and healthier people, the people remaining in the conventional health care plans will have to bear the costs, and premiums will go up by an estimate of 23 percent. When the premiums go up on the rest of those in the pool, fewer of them will be insured.

The experts estimate that while 8 million people will be shifted from regular plans to AHPs, 9 million people approximately will lose their coverage altogether, and the results will be a net loss in the number of insured of 1 million people.

So supporting this bill will increase the number of uninsured, not decrease it; and it will increase premiums by 23 percent.

The second reason to oppose this bill is that it fails to provide the protection to patients, providers and consumers.

We have seen this happen before in multiemployer welfare associations. We will be submitting at the appropriate time a list for the RECORD of MEWAs that have failed.

This is the reason that the National Governors Association, that attorneys general, that commissioners of insurance both Republican and Democrat oppose this bill because the regulation that would protect patients and providers and consumers is not there.

The third reason that we should oppose this bill, the final reason, is that the coverage that people have fought for over the years, so that women have a minimum stay in the hospital after they have a C section, so that people struggling with mental health problems or with substance abuse have the right to insulin or diabetic care, so that people struggling with mental health problems or with substance abuse have the right to have those services covered, those protections which have been supported by Republicans and Democrats in State legislatures around this country are effectively repealed by the underlying bill, a judgment being made in Washington that contravenes the good judgment of Republicans and Democrats around the country.

This bill should be opposed. There is a better way that the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. Kind) will be putting forward with my assistance. This is a bill that will increase the number of uninsured and increase health insurance premiums for small businesses.

This is a bill that will leave patients and providers and consumers unprotected if and when insurance companies go bankrupt. Finally, this is a bill that effectively repeals protections for breast cancer screening, colon cancer screening, diabetes care, substance abuse care, and mental health care. It is a bill that should be defeated.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. BOEHNER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. SAM JOHNSON), chairman of the Subcommittee on Employer-Employee Relations.

Mr. SAM JOHNSON of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Ohio for yielding me this time.

As you know, Mr. Speaker, the cost of providing health care for employees has become the number one issue for small businesses around this country. It is especially important to me, because in my home State of Texas, one in four workers are uninsured. Small businesses have it especially tough because there is an inherent problem in a small business about. You need to be able to pool risk to make insurance work. To make matters worse, there is a lack of competition in the small group health insurance market, allowing a few insurers to charge whatever they want. That is why we need associations.

These AHPs would allow small businesses to pool together to purchase health insurance. So instead of one individual company shopping for health care insurance, they would bring an entire trade association together and go to the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, to the table with much better bargaining power.

However, pool risk and buying in bulk is not enough. If your association had members all across the United States, you would have to abide by 50 different mandates. AHPs could create the right direction for our hard-working families who need health insurance now.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. KIND), who has come up with a very constructive and progressive alternative.

Mr. KIND. Mr. Speaker, I want to commend my friend and colleague, the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. ANDREWS), for the leadership he has shown on this issue.

Here we are again, Mr. Speaker. Year after year after year it seems we continue to rise in this Chamber to debate the same issue. One of the reasons we have to do this year after year is because bad policy is tough to sell, and especially tough to sell in the Senate right now, which has refused to take this up and move forward because it has been bad policy.

The chairman of the full committee, the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. BOEHNER), had a chart showing us a 93 percent approval of AHPs. That is not surprising, Mr. Speaker. There is such a craving throughout America for any type of legislative proposal that would bring price relief to the rising cost of health care, that I am afraid people are realizing that despite the bumper sticker pitch in its favor, AHPs are, simply put, bad public policy.

They go on to cite the Mercer study, saying that "premiums for those outside the AHP market would increase an average of 33 percent in the first year, and an additional 1 million people would become uninsured as this policy plays out." They go on to state that "the minimal price savings realized by some businesses through AHPs would come from attracting healthier participants and depleting benefits that are currently required by States. AHPs could create plans that manipulate benefits and are extremely unattractive to sicker, less healthy participants; 1 in 14 would be newly insured. Only 1 in 14 would be newly insured. AHPs do nothing to solve the problem in rising health care costs to small businesses and their employees." And they conclude by saying, "They simply shift the cost from the overall market to a more concentrated group of people. This is hardly a long-term solution.

There is a better proposal, one that will talk about in more detail when our substitute is offered. There is a way for us, I believe, to come together in a bipartisan fashion to address one of the most pressing issues of the day, and that is affordability and access to quality health care.

Businesses large and small, family farmers, individual employees are all suffering alike, and that is why it is important for us to come together and do something meaningful to relieve the health care pressures in this economy.

Mr. BOEHNER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. NORWOOD), the chairman of the Subcommittee on Workforce Protections.

Mr. NORWOOD. Mr. Speaker, I thank the chairman very much for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, it is my understanding that H.R. 525 is supposed to decrease the cost of health insurance for small businesses that cannot afford it today. Well, I support that. That is a good goal. All of us support that. Yet, unfortunately, I believe that in this bill that has been undermined a little bit, and my logic is fairly simple.

As I read it, in section 805 of the bill, it allows an AHP to preempt State-level patient protection laws that prevent cherry-picking against small businesses with sick employees. Now, that troubles me a great deal. Look at the bill. Line 8 through 14 gives us the right, and line 21 through 22 takes it away. Sure, everybody can buy an AHP. It is just if you have anybody sick, you are in serious trouble, because it is going to be so high you cannot afford it.

After all, H.R. 525 is supposed to allow small businesses to come together to form large pools and purchase affordable health care through an association. That is a good idea. This makes sense, since large employers use this concept under ERISA to provide employees good rates, regardless of preexisting conditions. But in my opinion we, somewhere along the way, have very good ideas been corrupted by a very bad provision, a sort of fly in the buttermilk of health care reform, in the form of section 805.

Mr. Speaker, 49 out of 50 States have instituted at least some patient protections. Employers select employees using health status to discriminate against patients. Yet in plain English it appears to me that section 805 allows an AHP to preempt those rating laws. This simply makes no sense.

This is the line: A small business owner in remission from cancer likely cannot get health insurance for himself, his family, or his employees if he lives in a State that allows for rating based on health status. Will that small business owner be able to afford high-quality health insurance from an AHP if H.R. 525 becomes law? Based on the language as I understand it, as I believe it to be true, he will not be able to get that insurance. Now, I believe that if H.R. 525 becomes law, it is even be much harder for that employer to get insurance. Why is that? Because all other employers with healthy employees will be in the AHPs.

I do not believe that is the intention of this bill. I hope I am wrong. I am going to vote for this bill. I am going to vote for it to move it forward, and I dearly hope I am wrong, and I hope that my chairman is right. But if time proves my position correct, I want these comments on the record so we will all be where to go to fix this when the milk turns sour.

Mr. BOEHNTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 30 seconds.

Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Georgia and I have had a disagreement over this particular provision for several years. It is very clear in the bill, as I read it, not the way the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. NORWOOD) reads it, and this is where the source of the disagreement comes in terms of how plans can cover groups of employees.

Under current ERISA law, you are allowed to have different rates for different groups of employees as long as there is a reason other than the health status of that group to have a separate group. Maybe you have a plant located in one part of the State, another plant in another part of the State. You could have two different rates at those two different plants, just like you can under most ERISA laws and what you can under ERISA.

So I look forward to continuing to work with my friend from Georgia to resolve our misunderstanding of this issue.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 3 minutes to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. WOOLSEY), a person who is a strong voice for the rights of patients and families.

Ms. WOOLSEY. Mr. Speaker, there currently are 45 million Americans who do not have health insurance and are looking for real solutions for their lack of health care coverage. Unfortunately, H.R. 525, the so-called Small Business Health Fairness Act, is not their answer.

Health insurance companies to trump State law, making possible a race to the bottom by associated health plans as companies, because of this bill, can offer the cheapest insurance with the least coverage. The AHP language allows the insurance companies to preempt State law is really outrageous. Laws to protect those with diabetes, those with cancer, and a host of other ailments are at risk under this plan. That is why I offered an amendment in the Committee on Education and Labor, the gentleman from New York (Mrs. MCCARTHY), that would protect mammograms and cervical cancer screenings from being preempted by association health plans. Unfortunately, the Republican majority does not see the value in protecting women from breast and/or cervical cancer, because they would not allow our amendment to come to the floor to be debated before we voted on this bill.

Mr. BOUSTANY. Mr. Speaker, 45 million Americans lack health insurance today, and the number is rapidly growing. Twenty-six percent of all adults in Louisiana lack health insurance, and 22.6 percent of all working adults in Louisiana lack insurance.

It has been said over here that we need the insurance mandates to protect the patient. Insurance mandates are meaningless without insurance. We need a free market health care system that allows doctors to do their jobs and not insurance companies. Fifty-two percent of Louisiana’s small businesses offer health insurance, and the number is constantly declining. We must act to ensure that Americans can afford the health insurance that they need, and we can do so by passing H.R. 525, the Small Business Health Fairness Act.

This bill will create association health plans that will allow small business owners to band together to become larger, allowing small businesses to join health plans such as companies, thus giving small businesses the same benefits that Fortune 500 companies now enjoy.

The Congressional Budget Office has estimated that small businesses obtaining insurance through AHPs would average premium reductions of 13 percent and some as high as 25 percent reductions. Overhead costs alone would decrease by as much as 30 percent under these plans. What is wrong with this? This is offering affordable coverage to workers.

There is additional research that also shows that up to 8.5 million Americans who are currently uninsured would become insured under AHPs. And this bill offers very many protections, consumers protections and protections with regard to solvency, as outlined.

If we are going to lower costs and increase accessibility to health care, we need to create choices and enhance competition. This bill is an important first step, and I urge its passage.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. HOLT), a Member who does not want to see a 23-percent increase in premiums for his constituents.

Mr. HOLT. Mr. Speaker, today Member after Member has been talking about the 45 million Americans who lack health insurance. In my view of our problem, we are the only major country where your health care coverage depends on who you work for. But that is not to be debated today.

We are talking about the small businesses in New Jersey and across the country to face the high cost of health insurance. We all know about it from our small businesses and their employees. Unfortunately, what has been brought to the floor here is a bill that creates more problems than it solves.

The concept of companies working together to control costs has worked in
Mr. PRICE of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. TIERNEY), a Member of the committee.

Mr. TIERNEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of this legislation. I ask my colleagues to do the same. Just as important, I call on the Senate to act on this legislation and the administration to put its full backing behind this bill. This Nation’s employers deserve it.

Mr. SAM JOHNSON of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. TIERNEY), a Member who understands that this bill will increase the number of uninsured by at least 1 million people.

Mr. TIERNEY. Mr. Speaker, this so-called Small Business Health Fairness Act is nothing more than a few elements of affordability and competition in these markets? I think so.

By some estimates, this bill is estimated to provide as many as 8 million Americans with insurance, no small sum. One of the best indicators as to whether AHPs will increase competition is the strong opposition from insurance companies. They are worried that they will lose their stranglehold on the small-group market. These insurance companies with highly paid lobbyists from Blue Cross/Blue Shield, for example, that hold monopolies on State markets are worried that they will have to start negotiating premiums rather than dictating them.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. PRICE), a member of the committee.

Mr. PRICE of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time and for his work on this issue and so many other important issues.

When I go home, and especially as a physician in Congress, when I go home and talk with small businesses, I find that the one concern is rising health care costs. Even as we sit here, the cost of health care continues to rise.

Today’s legislation will help address this problem. Association health plans will provide an employer-based solution to help the sector of the economy that is being hit the hardest: small businesses. Critics of the bill will come forward today and tell you how association health plans are going to lead to a devastating impact on small business and our economy. Well, from where I stand, it is hard to imagine that it could get any worse.

We have 45 million Americans without health insurance and over half are small businesses and their employees. This includes up to 7 million children that have family members working for small firms. And for the last 5 years, small businesses have seen insurance costs increase by over 60 percent. These statistics that are so often stated are quite clear the real impact is. When an employer has to spend an additional $3,000 a year for coverage per employee year after year, it is easy to understand why some are dropping coverage all together.

We have a modest solution before us today that no one can claim will address all of the problems, but it can provide some help in a market that needs it. I think it is important to talk about what association health plans are and what they are not. These plans must be in strong rules that apply to corporate and union plans. In fact, the requirements for association health plans are even more strict. It will require that an association health plan have sufficient reserves to pay all claims. It includes protections against cherry-picking to prevent adverse selection. It provides a structure to ensure that the DOL can monitor these plans.

Critics will cite an outdated CBO study that does not even examine the legislation before us today. Will association health plans cure all of the problems when it comes to health insurance in the small group market? Of course not. But will it bring some elements of affordability and competition in these markets? I think so.

By some estimates, this bill is estimated to provide as many as 8 million Americans with insurance, no small sum. One of the best indicators as to whether AHPs will increase competition is the strong opposition from insurance companies. They are worried that they will lose their stranglehold on the small-group market. These insurance companies with highly paid lobbyists from Blue Cross/Blue Shield, for example, that hold monopolies on State markets are worried that they will have to start negotiating premiums rather than dictating them.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. PRICE), a member of the committee.
Mr. SAM JOHNSON of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. WYNN).

Mr. WYNN. I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of H.R. 525, the Health Fairness Act, designed to allow small businesses to create large insurance pools in order to give them market power which will allow them to purchase quality health insurance at affordable prices through association health plans.

In truth, our biggest bipartisan failure in this Congress has been our inability to help 45 million, now pushing 50 million, Americans who do not have health insurance. Sixty percent of these people work in small businesses or are self-employed. Unfortunately, small business employers either cannot afford to offer health insurance or offer it at premium costs that employees cannot afford. Small businesses and their employees need our help. AHPs are not a panacea, but they are a step in the right direction.

AHPs, association health plans, will be subject to Federal consumer protections, unlike what you may have heard, such as continuation of coverage; Federal claims procedures for benefit denials and appeals; guaranteed portability and renewability of health coverage for those with preexisting conditions; the Mental Health Parity Act, the Women’s Health and Cancer Rights Act, and the Health Parity Act, the Women’s Health and Cancer Rights Act, and the Newborns’ and Mothers’ Health Protection Act.

We have also heard that AHPs will allow for cherry-picking, that only the healthiest will be signed up. That is not true due to the antidiscrimination language in the bill. Really and centrally, opponents claim that AHPs are bad because they do not provide mandated State benefits. This misanalysis reflects some of the backward thinking in our health care system, that people would put mandated benefits ahead of prevention. That does not make sense.

Consider a State’s mandated coverage for diabetes supplies. But what good is mandated benefits for diabetes supplies if you cannot afford to go to the doctor, and therefore do not know you have diabetes? Under AHPs you have an affordable, basic policy which covers doctors’ visits. Therefore, you can catch and control diabetes before it becomes uncontrolled. That is called progress. If the plans are so inadequate, don’t worry, the people won’t buy them.

Most professional men and women have health insurance. Members of Congress have a great health insurance plan. Members of Congress have health insurance. Why do they not want the mechanics and the waitresses and the waiters to have health insurance? The attitude of our opponents seems to be, “I drive a Cadillac. If you can’t afford to drive a Cadillac, you don’t get to drive at all.” That does not make sense.

Today 45 million Americans cannot afford a Cadillac health insurance policy with all the mandated benefits. However, they might be able to afford a more modest vehicle and get them to their doctor’s office where they could at least get a diagnosis, advice and recommendations in order to improve their quality of life.

A broad and diverse coalition of more than 180 groups support this bill, including the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, the National Federation of Independent Business, the American Farm Bureau, the Associated Builders and Contractors, the Latino Coalition, and the National Black Chamber of Commerce. People want health insurance. Opponents of AHPs say, “If you can’t do everything for everyone, do nothing.” We say this bill will help some people get health insurance, and we think that is a good thing.

Please, support AHPs. Let us quit talking about health insurance and actually deliver it to the American people who work in small businesses and who are self-employed, because they really need it.

Mr. ANDREWS, Mr. Speaker, among those who know the difference between a Cadillac and a lemon are the insurance commissioners of our States who oppose this bill.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from North Dakota (Mr. POMEROY), one of their former members.

Mr. POMEROY. I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, let us understand something fundamental here. People do not just want the appearance of health insurance. They want a program that they can trust and that will pay when they incur the claim, and that is the critical problem with the bill being put before us. There are no meaningful consumer safeguards. This can manifest itself in three critical ways. First, as to affordability. We all know the insurance loopholes, the fine print that says, oh, we will pay your claim unless you file a claim, in which case we...
Secretary Ann Combs testified to this and solvency requirements. Assistant including prompt pay, external review, and solvency requirements. Assistant Secretary Ann Combs testified to this at a March 2003 Subcommittee on Employer-Employee Relations hearing. At that hearing she noted that, quote, “fully insured AHPs would purchase insurance products with solvency standards and consumer protections regulated by the States.”

Further specifying which State laws are not preempted is unnecessary. All State laws will apply except those that prevent a uniform benefit design or prevent an AHP from existing. Congress’s intent that States see fit to pass will apply to fully insured AHPs. No further change in the legislation is necessary. Benefit mandates, as we have discussed, will be preempted as is the case for unions and large employers.

Mr. Andrews. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. Van Hollen), a Member who understands that this bill will raise premiums. We said let us look at six million people their coverage.

Mr. Van Hollen. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from New Jersey for his leadership on this.

This is a bad bill, Mr. Speaker, for many reasons. I want to focus on one of them, which is that this bill will strip away the consumer protections and the patient protections that exist under State law for our constituents today. I understand that we have 50 States, and in those 50 States many of them have different mandates for what has to be covered and what does not have to be covered, and there is some sense when you are talking about organizations operating across States that you would streamline that effort.

That is exactly what the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Tierney) and I tried to do when we took an amendment the other day to the Rules Committee. I understand that we have 50 States, and in those 50 States many of them have different mandates for what has to be covered and what does not have to be covered, and there is some sense when you are talking about organizations operating across States that you would streamline that effort.

What happened to that amendment? We did not even get to hear it or vote on it in this House. What are we afraid of? What were those six provisions that we wanted to make sure all our constituents, all our consumers, were protected by? They were an independent, external review of coverage decisions. Forty-three States have this rule already. It says if you disagree with your insurance company as to whether or not you are covered, let us not ask the insurance company who is right and who is wrong, let us have an independent individual who can make that decision. Does that make sense? Most of our constituents think they will have that right. If you pass this legislation and if you are in an AHP, you are not going to get it.

Second, direct access to obstetric, gynecological, or pediatric services. You do not have to wait in line before you take your child to see the pediatrician.

Third, imposition of prudent layperson decision-making standards. If you show up at the hospital, and you have a good faith reason for thinking there is an emergency, and you used your judgment, you did not have a heart attack, but you went thinking you had one and you had good reason to think so, your insurance company cannot deny you coverage for that visit. You do not have to be the doctor. That is why we have those exceptions.

Use of drug formularies, access to hospital emergency room treatment, 42 States have this requirement; and making sure that we do not restrict the ability of our doctors to give us their opinions, to make sure that those States where they say you cannot have a gag rule, where your physician can tell you, the patient, what he or she thinks is in your best medical interest, they cannot be punished by the insurance company for telling you the truth.

These are common-sense provisions, six common-sense provisions. That is what our amendment would have done.

It would have made this piece of legislation stronger and protected our constituents. What happened? We did not even allow a vote on that.

I would just like to quote from 42 State attorneys general, Republicans and Democrats, who say, “Consumers rightfully expect their States to protect them from fraud and abuse Elimination of the State role and replacement with weak Federal oversight is a bad deal for small businesses and for consumers.” Those are State attorneys general, Republican and Democrat, who, like us, are trying to look out for the consumer interest.

Do not pass this bill. If you do, you are going to have a lot of explaining to do to your constituents when they are denied by their insurance companies coverage that they thought they rightfully had.

Mr. Boehner. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. Andrews. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. George Miller), the ranking member of the full committee and a fighter for working families throughout his career here.

(Mr. George Miller of California asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)
health benefits that millions of Americans currently have but will lose if this legislation is passed. And later this week they are going to bring an energy to the bill to the floor of the Congress that The Wall Street Journal says will raise gasoline prices.

What is it that the middle class did to them to make them so angry at them? They raise the cost of their education, they take away their health care benefits, and now they are going to increase the price of gasoline. Do the Members know what the price of gasoline is in California? It is $2.67, $2.77, $2.87 a gallon. Do the Members know how hard people have struggled in these States to have minimum health care benefits so that they can have a mammogram, so they can have diabetes testing, and now they are going to take that away. And now they raise the cost of college education. It just does not make any sense.

The problem is that Congress should be trying to extend meaningful health care coverage to families and to making sure that they have benefits that, in fact, are there when they need them. But that is not what this legislation does. This legislation overrides all of the health care reform done in 45 States to make sure that people would have access to well baby care, to make sure that they would have access to maternity benefits, to make sure that they would have access to mammograms, crucial services that families need. This legislation says not necessarily so, they do not get that, on the theory that we have heard argued here that some plan is better than no plan.

But a plan without benefits is not worth much at all. And why would one keep paying premiums even if they are low premiums if they do not get the coverage that their family needs?

The point is for the people running that plan, that can turn out to be very profitable, why they do not want the insurance commissioners involved, because at some point the insurance commissioners would do what they have done in the past. They would blow the whistle on people running plans where they take premiums from middle-class workers, but they do not give the benefit that they want. The record is replete with that, replete with that in State after State after State. But that is stripped out of this legislation.

The legislation should be rejected because it just is not the benefits that people need. What we ought to be doing is extending that kind of universal access to plans that provide people the benefits.

The Congressional Budget Office in its most recent report, April of this year, analyzed the legislation two other times and concluded that 8½ million workers would end up in AHPs under this bill, and over 90 percent of them would come from existing health care plans where in all likelihood their benefits are better. The CBO looked at it once, it looked at it twice, it looked at it three times, and it said that is their conclusion.

This means that millions of Americans, working Americans today with health insurance, under this plan would get stripped of the health care coverage they need and that they need, they are talking about trying to cover a couple hundred thousand people. That is their argument, but they are going to strip the health care benefits away from almost everyone. And, most importantly, they have made this kind of coverage. It is unacceptable.

We ought to reject this. Later this week we ought to reject the energy bill, and maybe we can do something to keep people in decent health care plans, lower their energy costs, and, when the higher ed bill comes, reject that, and we can save them some money on a college education.

Mr. BOEHNER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. SAM JOHNSON), the chairman of the Employer-Employee Relations Subcommittee.

Mr. SAM JOHNSON of Texas. Mr. Speaker, we will have this bill over and over again today on the floor. Too many working Americans have a job, but are uninsured because their employers cannot afford to purchase quality health insurance benefits for their workers.

This bill addresses the two most important issues in the health care reform debate: cost and access. H.R. 525 would, one, increase small businesses' bargaining power with health care providers; two, give them much-needed freedom from costly State-mandated benefit packages; and, three, lower their overhead costs by as much as 30 percent.

Our small businesses are denied the ability to purchase health coverage with the benefits large multistate companies and unions have enjoyed for decades. This bill fixes that problem.

By pooling their resources, increasing their bargaining, AHPs will help small businesses reduce their health insurance costs. As the Members have heard me say before, if it is good enough for Wall Street, it is good enough for Main Street. Small businesses in most States are stuck with disproportionately higher costs because they have to choose from fewer than five providers. So AHPs offer them a new option to choose from.

Most importantly, AHPs will expand health insurance work for small businesses of some sort. But what happens to those small employers in most of these State risk pools? They are in the small group coverage area, and guess what happens? There may be a provider or two that will offer them insurance. They are stuck in a small pool, and they pay the highest rates of any group that is out there, unless, unless, one happens to be self-employed.

Let us say that they were a realtor, and as a realtor they are self-employed, they are not an employee of a company, and they try to say health insurance for themselves out in the open market again in these small State risk pools. Here it comes. $1,500 a month, to be covered in each of those 50 States.

I have no doubt that the policies that will be offered by these association health plans will, in fact, be high-quality policies at very competitive prices. As a result, the House has passed the Small Business Health Fairness Act, and I expect that will occur again today. So I would ask my colleagues to stand up and vote. We hope that the other body will amend this bill up and move it and to help reduce the number of uninsured Americans that we have.

Mrs. CHRISTENSEN. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong opposition to the Small Business Fairness Act, which is not fair any place, but in its name, and in strong support for the Kind-Andrews substitute.

As a 5-term member of the Small Business Committee, I know and am very concerned that 60 percent of the uninsured are employees of small businesses.

We all want to make sure they are covered, but H.R. 525 will not do that, it is an empty promise. Worse, it would more likely increase the number of uninsured instead of reduce them. Even for those who might be covered. This bill is designed to provide great coverage if you don’t want to go out and buy low-cost coverage that does not cover anything. That does not accomplish anything.

So when we look at the opportunity for small businesses to go out and be able to purchase health insurance for their employees, just like a big company or just like a union under the same set of rules, the same set of rules for small companies that big companies have today, we should not let the perfect become the enemy of the good. This will not solve the problem of all 45 million of the uninsured, but it will help millions of Americans who work for small businesses have a better opportunity at getting good health coverage at low-cost prices.

We have heard an awful lot of talk about it does not have this mandate, that mandate, that mandate. And why do big companies who do not have to have any mandated coverages under ERISA, why do they provide those? Why do they have breast cancer screening? Why? Because it makes sense to screen for this to detect it early and to deal with it. Why do they have these benefits that are not mandated? Why? Because they make sense to find out early in the illness.

These small companies are going to have the same types of high-quality plans that big companies have today without State mandates, because what happens is every State has a mandate. Some of them have as many as 30 mandated benefits that drive up the cost of health insurance and drive the number of uninsured up as well. But companies that offer a lot of these benefits, they do so with, as an example, a breast cancer benefit. Now the whole benefit tries, one size, not 50 different States done in 50 different ways that they have to find out exactly how it is going health care benefits and coverage. In fact, the Congressional Budget Office estimates that only 600,000 of the 45 million uninsured would receive coverage as a result of this bill. The CBO also found that almost 75 percent of workers would actually see their premiums rise. These numbers are evidence that this legislation will not address the problem.

The bill raises numerous other concerns as well. It would create an uneven playing field where Federal law would provide one set of favorable rules for employers who join association plans and a different, less favorable set of rules for those who do not. Association health plans would be exempt from most State benefit requirements, including those that ensure access to emergency services, mental health services and cancer screening. They would be free to choose healthier individuals who are cheaper to insure and leave behind those most in need of health care coverage. Finally, association health plans under this bill would be allowed to license themselves in a State with looser consumer protection provisions than the State in which they have operations. These loopholes will not address the problem.

However, today we will offer a real solution to this problem. The substitute amendment offered by the gentleman from Wisconsin, Mr. Knauss, and myself, Mr. ANDREWS, would address the needs of small businesses by providing them with the same access to health benefits as Federal employees through a Small Employer Health Benefits Plan. This plan would provide coverage to all small businesses and their employees, ensuring that every worker gets the coverage they need regardless of age, sex, race or any other factor. Additionally, it would commit Federal funds to aid small businesses in offering health insurance to employees. Finally, it would work within existing State laws and not preempt State regulations regarding health care coverage. This substitute will help small businesses more, cover more of the uninsured, and protect the rights of States.

Unfortunately, without the Kind/Andrews amendment to support the Small Business Health Fairness Act, this is the fourth time the House has voted on association health plans and the fourth time it has been the wrong answer for small businesses and the uninsured. This is just another example of the Majority bringing the same legislation to the floor year after year knowing that it will go nowhere because it is the wrong answer for Americans. I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting the Kind/Andrews amendment, which would provide real solutions to help our Nation’s small businesses and cover the 45 million uninsured Americans.

Mr. MANZULLO. Mr. Speaker, as the chairman of the Small Business Committee, our Nation’s small business men and women tell me over and over that finding accessible and affordable quality health care is their number one priority for themselves and their employees.

I have heard from thousands of small employers in America who have been pleading for options to help them manage their surging health care costs. Small business owners tell me regularly how they struggle to provide their workers health insurance, but each year they face double digit increases. "Mom and Pop" businesses tell me how they want to provide healthcare for their employees, but every single year it gets more difficult. Many are giving up. Our Nation’s entrepreneurs, whose ingenuity and hard work ethic have driven the American economy, have run out of options to battle this crisis. They need our help.

And today, we bring forward a great option—Association Health Plans—to help them control these outrageous costs and continue offering vital health insurance to their employees and their families.

In March of this year, I held a hearing on AHPs. The Coca Cola Bottlers Association testified they have long offered AHPs. However, in 1990, they had to stop offering AHPs to members with under 100 employees because of the disparity of law from State to State. Those small employers have incurred increased premiums of between 20–25 percent per year.

For those bottlers employing over 100 workers and who still were able to maintain an AHP, they only had an average increase of 9 percent a year.

The proof is irrefutable. AHPs work. I urge all of my colleagues to support H.R. 525. Give hope to America’s entrepreneurs. Vote for H.R. 525.

Mr. ENGEL. Mr. Speaker, the so-called Small Business Health Fairness Act is anything but fair. Congruous should not be in the business of promoting the reduction of healthcare benefits and coverage and that is exactly what this bill does.

Proponents of H.R. 525 argue that health insurance will be cheaper under this bill, but the devil is in the details. People in the middle class will enjoy low premiums under association health plans because the plans are exempt from State consumer protections and minimum quality requirements, and therefore meaningless coverage. Without consumer safeguards, associations health plans would be largely unregulated and unlikely to cover such benefits as mammography screening, cervical cancer screening, well-child visits, mental health services and diabetic supplies. While this might appeal to healthy people, it will be devastating to those who actually need medical care. Those who are sicker would remain in non-association health plans and would have to pay higher premiums to compensate for those individuals who are siphoned off into the association health plans.

It is also troublesome that this legislation exempts association health plans from State solvency standards. Many States have strict solvency laws that protect workers from insurance fraud and abuse. Any meaningful insurance company should have to adhere to adequate standards of protection. We should reject this anti-consumer proposal in favor of the Kind/Andrews substitute. This measure would create a Small Employer Health Benefits Plan, SEHB, similar to the Federal Employee Health Benefit Plan and would offer coverage to all small businesses with fewer than 100 workers. Significantly, this legislation works with existing State laws and does not preempt State mandates regarding health care coverage. This substitute very clearly commits Federal funds to aid small businesses in offering insurance to employers.

True health insurance coverage offers meaningful benefits with appropriate solvency safeguards. Our constituents deserve no less. I urge my colleagues to reject H.R. 525 and pass the Kind/Andrews substitute today.

Mr. MORAN of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the Small Business Health Fairness Act, H.R. 525, which will allow small businesses and associations to band together to purchase health insurance coverage for their workers and their families.

The Small Business Health Fairness Act can directly benefit the over 2,300 small businesses and associations in my congressional district and their employees. H.R. 525 would allow AHPs and small business to be certified under one Federal law, instead of 50 different State regulations.

Like large employers and labor unions that offer health insurance to their employees and members, AHPs would be regulated by the U.S. Department of Labor.

Many opponents of the Small Business Health Fairness Act claim that AHPs will "cherry pick" and therefore only benefit healthy people. This is not true.

AHPs must comply with the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act, which prohibits group plans from excluding high-risk individuals that have required repeated health insurance claims.

H.R. 525 also guarantees that only bona fide professional and trade associations can sponsor an AHP. This measure ensures that AHPs will undergo a strict, new certification process before they will be allowed to offer health benefits to employers. This new certification process includes stronger solvency standards, including stop-loss and indemnification insurance.

Studies have shown that AHPs would save the typical small business owner between 15 percent and 30 percent on health insurance.

Currently, there are 45 million Americans who are uninsured. Even more troubling is the fact that 60 percent of uninsured Americans work for small businesses that lack the resources to provide health care benefits to their workers.

In fact, 65 percent of small-business owners indicate high cost as the main reason why they do not offer health insurance.

Small employers are facing 50 percent premium hikes, even as many insurers are leaving the small group market because it is not profitable enough.

The time to offer small businesses and associations the ability to band together to offer health insurance to their employees is now.

The Small Business Health Fairness Act represents a first step in helping to lower the number of uninsured Americans, many of whom work for small businesses. H.R. 525 would introduce more competition into the market, reduce unnecessary regulation and administrative costs and make health coverage more affordable for small employers and their employees.

I urge support of H.R. 525.

Mr. BLUMENAUER. Mr. Speaker, it is unfortunate that while we are in the midst of a healthcare crisis for the uninsured, for small businesses, and for practitioners, Congress is recycling the same flawed legislation. The proposal would allow association health plans to bypass the State solvency framework requirements, leaving the consumers at a significant risk.

The reason that over 1,350 business, labor, and community organizations oppose H.R.
525—including organizations such as the National Governors Association, 41 Attorneys General, the National Association of Insurance Commissioners, Blue Cross/Blue Shield, National Small Business United and 69 local Chambers of Commerce—is because it not only misses the point, it will make things worse.

The bill would undermine our efforts to provide essential services to everyone by providing incentives to insure only the healthiest and wealthiest, leaving the vast majority of over ½ million uninsured Oregonians and 25 million other Americans behind. Even worse, the adverse selection process will mean that the insurance pool will be narrower and sicker, resulting in more expensive insurance for most families. Furthermore, the Congressional Budget Office estimates that 6 million individuals who currently have health coverage will be switched to a lower benefit plan. Consumers may be denied the proper screening, procedures and treatment they deserve.

These are critical issues for taxpayers and businesses alike. I will continue to work with the health care community to produce the type of process, discussion and legislation Americans critically deserve.

Mr. STARK. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong opposition to H.R. 525, the regurgitated association health plan, AHP, bill. This is the fourth time in the same legislation in as many years. So, if my statement sounds familiar, that’s because it has all been said before.

While they’ve titled the bill the Small Business Health Fairness Act, its impact would be the opposite. This bill would have the perverse effect of increasing the cost of health insurance for many people and increase the number of people without health insurance altogether.

This bill would allow new entities, called association health plans, AHPs, to bypass State regulation and offer bare-bones health insurance policies. Small businesses that don’t choose to offer these inadequate policies would see their premiums increase by 23 percent on average. This premium hike would occur because AHPs, which would offer only bare-bones health insurance plans, would attract the healthiest individuals, leaving traditional health insurance plans with the sickest and most expensive patients. This shift would penalize businesses with sicker employees, and make health insurance for those who need it the most even more unaffordable.

Further, this legislation would swell the ranks of the uninsured by over 1 million more individuals. As traditional health insurance becomes increasingly expensive, more and more businesses would have no choice but to drop health insurance for their employees, leaving these individuals with little or no opportunity to purchase health coverage.

Contrary to what proponents of this bill claim, AHPs would not truly help small businesses purchase health insurance for their employees. Although proponents claim that AHPs would increase small employer bargaining power to purchase affordable health insurance, most States already have laws in place that allow for group purchasing arrangements. This bill would only harm existing laws while usurping the traditional role of States to regulate insurance premiums.

In fact, this bill would override key State laws and regulations that protect millions of Americans. For example, many States regulate insurance premiums to prevent insurers from discriminating against the ill. But under this bill those laws wouldn’t apply. AHPs would be allowed to offer extremely low, “teaser” rates, and then rapidly increase the premium if the enrollee becomes sick. Furthermore, nearly all States have enacted external review requirements that patients are entitled to if they retire from their plans. AHPs could denies these patients their day in court and make them face the music themselves. Without the protection of these laws, insurers can charge more to those who enter the system later.

This bill would allow AHPs to avoid all the same standards and regulations that apply to Blue Cross Blue Shield, managed care plans, and labor union plans under current law. The Department of Labor found that many of these plans were frauds and left their enrollees holding the bag for more than $123 million in unpaid health expenses. Congress had to come back and clean up the law and how to avoid this problem. We should learn from that mistake, not repeat it.

This bill is bad for patients, bad for small business, and bad for States. It is opposed by more than 1,300 organizations, including the National Governors Association, the National Association of Insurance Commissioners, the American Academy of Actuaries, multiple employer welfare plans, MEWAs, that Congress created in the 1970s. MEWAs were also exempt from State insurance regulation. The Department of Labor found that many of these plans were frauds and left their enrollees holding the bag for more than $123 million in unpaid health expenses. Congress had to come back and clean up the law and how to avoid this problem. We should learn from that mistake, not repeat it.

The Senate has no intention of taking up this legislation. It’s bad policy, and our colleagues on the other side of the Capitol know it. Taking yet another vote on AHPs is an enormous waste of time and taxpayer resources, and has nothing to do with providing affordable healthcare options to our citizens. Health care reform shouldn’t raise premiums, increase the number of uninsured, lead to massive fraud, and remove key State patient protections. I urge colleagues to reject this legislation once and for all.

Mr. SHUSTER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of the Small Business Health Fairness Act, H.R. 525. This legislation is a prescription to provide quality, affordable health care to the Americans who need it most. 45 million people from working families across the country.

By lowering costs and strengthening bargaining power, Association Health Plans, AHPs, would allow small businesses to band together through associations and purchase quality health care for workers and their families at a lower cost. Small businesses currently have little buying power and few affordable options—five or fewer insurers control at least three-quarters of the small group market in most States, according to a GAO report in 2002. By banding together through bona fide trade associations, AHPs would level the playing field and give participating small employers the exact same advantages Fortune 500 companies and unions currently enjoy.

It is important to note that this legislation does not make AHPs a mandatory program for employers. AHPs are about choice and healthy, competitive options for those seeking quality coverage. Each business would have the option of remaining with their current insurance provider, if they have one, or joining up with a legitimate, certified, and regulated association that is able to pool risk and offer small businesses a seat at the table when it comes to really being serious about providing health care.

Contrary to opponents’ claims, H.R. 525 provides safeguards against fraud and abuse with a strict, new certification process that must be adhered to before any association can offer health benefits to employers. Inclusion is strong evidence that the bill goes beyond what is required of single employer and labor union plans under current law. The bill requires self-insured AHPs to maintain reserves that are sufficient for unexpected administrative costs, and many other obligations. With the reserve levels required to be recommended by a certified actuary who is a member of the American Academy of Actuaries, AHPs are designed to protect the employer from fraudulent abuse and those who would seek to take advantage of the system.

Under this bill, regulated by the Department of Labor and current ERISA and HIPPA laws, AHPs would be prohibited from excluding high-risk individuals from their plans and AHPs would not be barred from charging higher rates for sicker individuals or groups within the plan.

The lack of current competition in the health care market contributes to double-digit rate increases for many small businesses and a resulting rise in the number of small business employees who are uninsured. Too many small business owners and employers are forced to choose between offering health care benefits to their employees and hiring, expanding, or even maintaining their business. With the adoption of AHPs, the door of opportunity is opened to millions who do not currently have access to the kind of quality, affordable health care America’s working families deserve.

Mr. Speaker, I would strongly encourage my colleagues in joining me and voting in favor of H.R. 525.

Mr. AKIN. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H.R. 525, the Small Business Health Fairness Act of 2005.

In 2003, there were an estimated 45 million Americans without health insurance. Small businesses employ over 60 percent of those currently uninsured.

Without question, cost is often the biggest barrier to affordable health insurance for small businesses. Too often, I hear from small businesses owners back in my district in Missouri that the affordability of health insurance is their number one concern. This problem has been deepened in recent years as the overall cost of health care has risen. While large employer-sponsored health plans have seen an average 12-percent increase in health insurance premiums, small businesses have been faced with annual premium increases of up to 50 percent, forcing many firms to drop coverage altogether.

By allowing small firms to join an association health plan as H.R. 525 would do, small employers would enjoy greater bargaining power and would become a larger bargaining force, enabling them to offer their employees the same advantages and benefits that are currently available to larger companies.

I doubt that many of my colleagues here would question the fact that small businesses are leaders in innovation. They pay the majority of our Nation’s taxes and employ the majority of our Nation’s workforce. Yet we have burdened them with excessive regulations to the point that they cannot afford to provide health insurance to their employees. We must not deny quality, affordable health care to these hard-working Americans who want to safeguard their own health and provide their families access to such protections.

I urge my colleagues to support the Small Business Health Fairness Act.

Mr. WELDON of Florida. Mr. Speaker, an issue I often hear from about my constituents is concern about the high cost of health insurance and the need for affordable insurance coverage. We all know health insurance premiums continue to increase substantially each year. As small businesses are unable to afford health insurance for their employees. Furthermore, for those who can afford insurance for their employees, rising costs make U.S. products more expensive, harming U.S. competitiveness and costing American jobs.

Small businesses are the backbone of our economy, but the financial viability of many small businesses is being hurt by the escalating costs of health insurance. This hurts job creation and economic growth. The U.S. Small Business Administration’s Office of Advocacy found that administrative expenses for small health plans make up about 35 percent of total costs. This is not good for small business owners, their employees, or the American economy. Congress must address this problem. By supporting H.R. 525, the Small Business Health Fairness Act.

By passing H.R. 525 Congress will be leveling the playing field between small businesses, the self-employed, and large corporations. This allows organizations of individuals and businesses to enter into Association Health Plans, AHPs. Under AHPs, small businesses can pool their resources and purchase group health care similar to the way large corporations do today. They can get better bargaining power in terms of costs and benefits for their employees. It gives workers, who do not have health insurance today, the opportunity to obtain health insurance coverage.

Whether it is a small business a trade association, a farm bureau, or a local community organization that is seeking to purchase more affordable health insurance, this legislation will help them. They can join together with other groups and purchase health insurance at much more affordable rates and have better negotiating power with insurance providers.

It is generally reported that there are over 40 million people in America without health insurance at any given time. According to the Congressional Budget Office, a more accurate estimate of the number of people who were uninsured for all of an entire year is 21 million to 31 million. Regardless, almost 60 percent of those individuals are employed by a small business. As health care costs increase, fewer employers and working families will be able to afford coverage, and more Americans will be without health insurance. Those who work for businesses that do not offer health insurance are the smallest type of access to health insurance that their counterparts in large corporations already enjoy.

I urge Congress to pass H.R. 525. Congress must pass this bipartisan legislation to give much needed relief to American small businesses, farmers, and hard working families.

Mr. SHAYS. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 525, the Small Business Health Fairness Act. This legislation would allow small businesses to pool their resources into what are known as Association Health Plans, AHPs, to purchase health insurance.

Pooled alliances, including AHPs, help control health care costs by permitting individuals to use their collective bargaining power to win cost concessions from insurance companies.

These alliances also achieve economies of scale for administrative functions—substantially cutting overhead costs, which currently amount to between 30 and 40 cents of every premium dollar paid by small businesses to insurers.

Purchasing alliances have been a popular response in many States to the problems many self-employed and small business owners have had securing affordable health insurance for themselves or their employees.

While I sensitive to the concerns many disability advocacy groups have about this legislation, the fact is this legislation provides the same exemption from State benefit mandates for small businesses already enjoyed by large employers.

The cost savings from avoiding benefit mandates has been estimated to be between 4 and 13 percent. This could make a huge difference for small businesses looking to offer their employees health insurance. Because small businesses are extremely cost-sensitive, studies indicate that even a 5 percent reduction in costs will result in a 10 to 15-percent increase in small businesses offering health insurance.

The legislation also protects against these plans “cherry-picking” the healthiest employ- ees by restricting the ability of self-insured health plans to be qualified as an AHP. Unless a self-insured plan is in existence before the date of enactment, it would be required to offer membership to a broad cross-section of trades or to employers representing at least one higher-risk occupation.

Additionally, AHPs must comply with the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act, which prohibits group health plans from excluding high-risk individuals with high claims experience.

The bottom line is this legislation will help small businesses, which are the engine in our economy, provide health insurance to their employees. We must support this bill.

Mr. HONDA. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong opposition to the Small Business Health Fairness Act, H.R. 525. This bill would not only fail to expand health coverage for the uninsured, but would actually reduce health care benefits and coverage for the 8 million individuals and small businesses who currently qualify under AHP health plans. Only 1 percent—600,000 people—of the 55 million uninsured Americans would be provided new coverage by AHPs.

Instead of providing broader access to comprehensive health insurance for the millions of uninsured Americans, H.R. 525 will undermine access to quality, affordable health insurance and may actually increase the ranks of the uninsured. Under current law, the majority of health insurance plans are regulated at the State level. States have a number of protections to ensure the fairness of health insurance coverage for patients. Most States now require insurers to allow direct access to emergency services, independent external appeal of health care claims denials, and access to a State-run grievance process.

AHPs would be exempt from these requirements, leaving those with AHP coverage with inadequate protection.

Insurers naturally have incentives to select the healthiest individuals or groups that are seeking coverage. State regulations counter this incentive by mandating that certain benefits be covered, and by limiting and defining how policies are to be priced. By exempting AHPs from these State regulations, AHPs would offer less-generous policies that would not be attractive to healthier individuals and groups. By permitting coverage to specific types of employers, the bill allows them to hand pick populations that are better risks and therefore less costly to insure. Under H.R. 525, AHPs would offer different premiums to each member employer, charging lower rates for healthier risks and charging much higher rates for higher risk persons.

The only restriction on premiums is that differences could not be based on health status. This provision is essentially meaningless because it permits AHPs to accomplish the same goal by varying premiums based on age, sex, race, national origin, or any other factor in the employers’ workforce, including claims experience. As a Nation, we have recognized and are committed to eliminating health disparities based on race, ethnicity, and national origin. Why then would we create laws that perpetuate and encourage further health disparities?

Small businesses could be a third of the private sector workforce, and are much less likely than large firms to provide health coverage for their employees. Although this is a serious concern, AHPs are not the answer. The Kind/Andrews substitute offers provisions that would address the real health insurance needs of small employers and their employees. It would provide small employers the same access to health benefits as Federal employees by establishing a Small Employer Health Benefits Plan, SEHB, similar to the Federal Employees Health Benefits Plan. It offers coverage to all small employers and their employees to apply for coverage under SEHB. Those working less than full-time would be eligible for pro rata coverage. It would also minimize adverse selection, use State-licensed insurers without preexisting conditions, and provide premium assistance to make employees and employer premiums affordable.

I urge my colleagues to support the Kind/ Andrews substitute and oppose the Republican leadership’s flawed approach to AHPs.

Ms. SCHAKOWSKY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of the Kind/Andrews substitute and oppose the Republican leadership’s flawed approach to AHPs.
access to affordable and comprehensive coverage by adopting the Kind/Andrews substitute. Or, by passing H.R. 525, we can give access to cheap, flimsy insurance policies that will not provide meaningful protection and leave those who need better coverage far worse off.

All of us are concerned about the high cost of health insurance, particularly for small businesses. We all agree that we need to allow small businesses to band together to achieve economies of scale in purchasing coverage. The Kind/Andrews substitute would give small businesses the ability to pool together through a Small Employer Health Benefits Plan. It would provide premium assistance to make coverage affordable for small business employers and employees. The Kind/Andrews substitute will guarantee that insurance policies are not worthless paper but provide meaningful access to benefits.

What the Kind/Andrews substitute will not do is preempt State consumer protection laws—laws that have been enacted by State legislatures to provide insurance policies in response to real-life problems in the insurance market. The Kind/Andrews approach would benefit employers and consumers. The so-called Small Business Health Fairness Act of 2005 would not. In fact, this ill-conceived bill would make the current situation worse—adding to the reluctance of many insurance companies to write policies and leaving small business workers with insurance policies that do not provide the care that they and their families need.

There are three fundamental problems with this bill. First, it derives its strength from the decision to preempt State laws and leave no other protections in their place. First, the bill will not significantly reduce the number of uninsured and may actually make this crisis worse. It would preempt State insurance regulation—allowing association health plans to cherry pick healthy small businesses. Small businesses with older workers, persons with disabilities or chronic conditions, and women of child-bearing age would face higher premiums. The nonpartisan Congressional Budget Office estimates that only 620,000 uninsured workers would buy these bare-bones policies but that 75 percent of currently insured small business employees—20 million—would see their premiums increase. National Small Business United—a group whose reason for being is to promote the interests of small businesses—opposes the bill because it would increase health "insurance premiums for small employers by up to 23 percent and cause some to drop coverage altogether. A Mercer Consultant study in 2003 found that it would actually increase the number of uninsured by 1 million. The Kind/Andrews bill will add 100,000 uninsured. The bill will not be based on the real needs of the medically needy workers—those with chronic, ongoing conditions or disabilities—would be among those losing coverage.

Second, the bill would take away protections from consumers victimized by fraud and abuse. All 50 States and the District of Columbia have passed tough laws to stop abuses in the small group health insurance market. Again, these laws would be preempted. The U.S. Department of Labor is not going to have the will or the resources to respond when consumers are injured by benefit denials. AHPs could go bankrupt. AHP policyholders and health consumers would be left in a regulatory blackhole—with no place to turn if they are defrauded, cheated, or denied benefits. That's why the National Association of Insurance Commissioners and 41 attorneys general oppose this bill.

Third, the bill would preempt basic benefit requirements and patient protections, allowing AHPs to drop coverage for preventive services, screening, and other critical services. CBO estimates that 8 million workers with health coverage today would lose benefits under H.R. 525.

In Illinois, we have enacted benefits that include mammograms, pap tests, minimum mastectomy days, colorectal screening, diabetes education and supplies, pre- and postnatal care, mental health parity that goes beyond inadequate federal requirements, and access to cancer drugs. We have a prudent layperson rule to ensure access to emergency services, direct access to OB-GYNs, and a ban on HMOs "gagging" doctors in their communications with patients. We have prompt payment rules for providers and fair marketing requirements. We require that insurance companies cover newborns. Those protections would be preempted under H.R. 525.

Many of what we successfully served in State legislatures fought for those benefits because private insurance policies refused to cover items like mammograms, maternity care, diabetes education, prosthetics, or chemotherapy. We had constituents whose insurance companies refused to cover newborns. Babies, arguing that conditions developed in the mother's womb were "preexisting." Dropping those critical benefits will not make health care more affordable; it will simply shift costs to employees and their families. And, despite having some new, so-called insurance products that allow one to pay those costs on their own, they might as well be uninsured. That is why groups from Consumers Union to the American Diabetes Association, from the National Mental Health Association to the NAACP oppose this bill.

I also want to point out that women have a tremendous stake in this debate. Nearly all women-owned firms are small firms, most with fewer than five employees. Women are half of all workers at very small firms. And women are the beneficiaries of many of the State mandates that have been enacted as FEHB. Under the substitute, the Department of Labor will establish a Small Employer Health Benefits Plan, SEHB. Employers must offer coverage to all employees during the previous calendar year and thereafter an annual enrollment period.

While I support all of these positive aspects of the bill, I do have concerns with other areas. Due to this fact, I also stand today to support the Kind/Andrews substitute. This substitute would strengthen the larger goal of the legislation which is to lower health care cost for workers. The substitute does this by providing smaller employers the same access to mandated benefit packages, and lower their insurance costs. The substitute does this by providing smaller employers the same access to mandated benefit packages, and lower their insurance costs.

In addition, the substitute offers coverage to all small employers and their employees. In essence, all employers with fewer than 100 employees during the previous calendar year shall be eligible to apply for coverage under SEHB. Employers must offer coverage to all employees, who have completed 2 months of service. Employees working less than full-time are eligible for pro rata coverage.

Furthermore, the substitute also minimizes adverse selection. This is done by requiring the Secretary to establish an initial open enrollment period and thereafter an annual enrollment period.

One of the most important things achieved by the substitute is the fact that is uses State licensed insurers without preempting State laws. It also provides a minimum benefit package similar to Federal employees, i.e., all participants must offer benefits similar to the benefits offered under the four largest FEHB health plans.
As I close, I would hope that the differences I have mentioned are reconciled as this bill moves to conference.

Mr. GENE GREEN of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to H.R. 525, the Small Business Health Fairness Act.

The sponsors of this legislation have a laudable intent: To make health insurance more affordable for small businesses by allowing them to band together to increase their purchasing power and negotiate lower health insurance rates.

With health in the private health insurance growing 12.8 percent each year, no one would disagree that our small businesses are struggling to provide coverage for their employees.

But this legislation is not the answer to the rising cost of health insurance in this country.

Mr. Speaker, the regulation of health insurance has long rested with the States.

For decades, State legislatures in each of our States have enacted State coverage mandates and consumer protections to ensure that residents of those States purchase a quality health insurance policy.

While some policies cost more than others, thanks to State regulations, consumers can be assured that all policies offer a minimum level of coverage.

In my State of Texas, health plans must provide access to emergency services, immunizations for children, direct access to OB/GYNs, and coverage of diabetes supplies and education—just to name a few guaranteed benefits.

The State has also enacted important consumer protection laws that afford consumers external review and limit how much insurers can charge sicker groups of people.

Under H.R. 525, however, the State would have the right to regulate the health association health plans and charge other consumers more. Studies show that these higher healthcare costs could cause up to 10,000 Americans to become uninsured.

There is a better way to help small businesses and the uninsured.

H.R. 525 will not help small businesses or their employees. This is a shortsighted plan that does nothing to cover the 44 million uninsured Americans who cannot afford to get sick.

Mr. BOEHNER. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. RECREMOD). All time for debate on the bill has expired.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to House Resolution 379, the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. KIND) and a Member opposed each will control 30 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. KIND).

Mr. KIND. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 5 minutes.

Mr. Speaker, this morning we fortunately witnessed the successful takeoff of the latest space shuttle mission into space, and I, and I know all my colleagues, our thoughts and prayers go that that crew and their families. We wish them a successful mission and a safe return here to Earth at the conclusion of that mission.
But, Mr. Speaker, “Houston, we have got a problem” right here on Earth today, and that problem we all can agree to is the rising cost of health care, the impact that it is having on businesses large and small, family farmers, individual employees. It is a crisis that has been building through a number of years, and there is nothing more heart-wrenching or gut-wrenching than to speak to young parents who have a young child in desperate need of emergency medical attention, having to talk to the parents knowing that they do not have adequate health care coverage to provide for their sick child.

Today, one of the major factors for individual and personal bankruptcies is health care-related costs. There is also nothing more disheartening than speaking to the multitude of small business owners throughout this country who have nothing better than to be able to extend affordable health care coverage to their employees; but they cannot because it is too expensive.

I think we can all agree to the fact that this is something that we have to have focused attention to alleviate the high costs of health care and the growing ranks of the uninsured, which is roughly 45 million to 46 million today. When you think about who comprises these 45 million to 46 million uninsured, the vast majority of them are working Americans, working in small businesses who cannot afford to provide coverage. Again, it is something we all recognize, because we hear about it daily when we are back home traveling in our congressional districts. So, yes, action is needed; but there is a right way and a wrong way in taking action.

A wrong way would be doing more harm than good in passing legislation and, for the previous hour, we have had a discussion in regard to the deficiencies and the shortfalls of the underlying associated health plans bill. That is why over 1,400 organizations around the country have come out in opposition to it.

But today, the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. ANDREWS) and I are offering the right way, an alternative way, another approach to dealing with the health care core, an approach that our small businesses are facing, one that we believe would extend health care coverage to millions of Americans, while keeping a lid on the rising premium costs.

What it does, in essence, Mr. Speaker, is builds upon the successes of the Federal Employees Health Benefits Program to offer a minimum guarantee of coverage, one that the Federal Employee Health Plan currently does. It does not preempt the currently existing Federal employee health benefits plan. And the States that have been passed and the reason those State laws have been passed throughout the years is because the States that they cover the dependents of the employees who are insured, something that the underlying associated health plans bill is silent on.

And that is why the State legislatures, in working with the Governors, had to pass legislation requiring certain minimal safeguards of health care coverage. So if a State legislature, so in the past that it is necessary to require pre-natal care, for instance, or to prohibit drive-through deliveries, or to require screening for diabetes, autism, cancer, they have chosen to do so; and it has made sense for those States that have.

But, instead, this one-size-fits-all approach comes in and tries to preempt what the States have been doing for many, many years.

But what is also different with our substitute is it actually offers premium support payments to make it more affordable to small businesses to offer health care coverage to their employees, something that the underlying associated health plans bill is silent on. AHP analysis of our bill would show that it would actually increase the coverage of the uninsured, help premium prices come down by building on this purchasing-pool concept, but also maintaining important and safe consumer protections.

There is a reason why the National Governors Association and the States attorneys general have opposed the underlying bill. It is for all of these reasons, and we would respectfully submit the right approach is the substitute that we are offering today.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. SAM JOHNSON of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to the amendment in the nature of a substitute.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. REHBERG). The gentleman from Texas (Mr. SAM JOHNSON) is recognized for 30 minutes.

Mr. SAM JOHNSON of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, as the number of uninsured Americans continues to increase and health insurance costs continue to rise by double digits annually, it is clear that something must be done. I commend our friends across the aisle for their ongoing effort to think works. While I have great respect for the gentleman from New Jersey (Ranking Member ANDREWS) and the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. KIND), I have to disagree with them. Their substitute would have the consequence of raising, not lowering, costs for small businesses trying to offer health insurance. It will impose new mandates on employers and add the American public with yet another government entitlement to fees. The proponents of the plan claim that the new “small employer health benefits plan” is modeled after ours here in the Federal Government. Unfortunately, unlike the Federal Employee Health Benefits Program, health insurance provided under the Democrat substitute would be subject to more than 1,500 State mandates that make up 15 percent of the rising costs of health insurance. That increased cost could likely be funded by small businesses and adding another burden to small businesses. And on top of that, the substitute would force small businesses to deal with a host of new mandates.

AHPs utilize the strengths of the employer-based system, the private market, competition, economy of scale enjoyed by large union and employer plans, and ERISA’s preemption of State mandates, to lower costs. Mr. Speaker, AHPs are supported by our Nation’s small businesses. The NFIB, the National Retail Federation; the National Association of Wholesalers and Distributors; the National Restaurant Association; Associated Builders and Contractors; the National Association of Home Builders; the United States Chamber of Commerce, and others are strongly supportive of this legislation.

I hope my colleagues will join me in offering assistance to our Nation’s small businesses and their workers by supporting AHPs and opposing the Democrat substitute.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. DEGETTE. Mr. Speaker, at this time I yield 4 minutes to the gentlewoman from Colorado (Ms. DEGETTE), a person who certainly appreciates the role of States and consumer protection in this health care debate.

Ms. DEGETTE. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to urge a “no” vote on H.R. 525 and a “yes” vote on the Kind-Andrews substitute.
The debate is, frankly, misdirected. The question is not who recognizes that there is a health care crisis in this country and who does not. This is not a contest to see who among us truly understands that small businesses are finding themselves in an increasingly difficult position when it comes to providing health care insurance for their employees.

We all care about this issue, and we all have constituents who need help affording health care insurance. Small businesses, which do face unique challenges across the board compared to large corporations, are the backbone of our economy; and we should be doing more to help them. And providing better and more health care coverage is one of the biggest problems they face today.

So I ask our friends on the other side of the aisle, why do we have before us a bill that does nothing to really address the problem for small businesses and would in fact make it more difficult for the people who we say we are trying to help? There is a reason why the National Governors Association and 41 attorneys general are against this bill. There is a reason why numerous advocacy groups and others oppose this misguided legislation.

This bill has been hailed as the answer to covering many of the 45 million Americans who are currently uninsured. In truth, a very small percentage of the population would be helped in any way. This is because association health plans would help a relatively small number of the youngest and healthiest among us who will gain access to cheap minimalist plans. But that would come at the expense of the vast majority of workers whose premiums would actually increase. It would also make it nearly impossible for those with previous health challenges or chronic diseases to obtain any coverage at all.

Let me give an example. I am the co-chair of the bipartisan Diabetes Caucus in Congress. Forty-six States have mandated that insurance plans must cover diabetic supplies? Why? One little vial of strips, test strips costs $50, and insurance companies simply were not giving that benefit in the past. That is why 46 of the 50 States said, you have to pay for this. Now, if diabetic complications such as heart disease, kidney failure, end-stage renal disease, all of those are eliminated; but they have to have insurance coverage for these supplies. This legislation wipes out that requirement. It says, you do not have to pay for that; you do not have to follow that State law. That is not only wrong for those beneficiaries who are diabetic; it is shortsighted in the long run for the cost of our health care system.

We need to address the real access and affordability issues that affect employees of small businesses, and the only way we can do that is by passing the Kind-Andrews substitute. This substitute will give small employers the ability to provide the same access to health benefits as Federal employees. It will also allow States to establish small employer health pools. It would also minimize adverse selection and use of State-mandated insurers without preempting State laws. Sounds like a good substitute to me.

If we pass the substitute, we can make a true impact on the status of millions of uninsured workers across this country and for that, I urge a "no" vote on H.R. 525 and a "yes" vote on the substitute.

Mr. SAM JOHNSON of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. ROBESON), the chairman of the committee.

Mr. BOEHNER. Mr. Speaker, I thank my colleague for yielding me this time to speak on the substitute that has been offered.

Now, if we think that having States regulate insurance in a small group market is a problem with state-mandated benefits, this is the mother of all complicated programs to offer health insurance, because what are we going to do? Are we going to have the Federal Government do it. Now, none of us really believes that the Federal Government ought to be in the business of running big-risk pools and offering plans to small businesses. Secondly, the bill is estimated, and it has changed from last year; last year there was a $50 billion authorization, but it is still going to cost an awful lot of money to do this bill.

One of the most damaging parts, though, is that each employer who would take part in this plan that is being offered would still be subjected to the State mandates on health insurance in their particular State. There are 1,500 State-mandated health benefits around the country. It also requires that the employer must pay at least 50 percent of the premium. In most cases, I would imagine the employer would pay far more than that of the premium; but maybe it is a small company, maybe it is five or six employees, and maybe together they decide, we want to qualify for this, but we will each pick up our own share of the cost. Why would we want to prohibit them from including themselves in this by this type of a requirement? It also says every employer must offer this to every employee who has worked at the company for 3 months. That seems like a very short period of time, especially in some industries where you have an awful lot of turnover where they would typically require that you wait 6 months before you would qualify. All this would do would be to drive up the cost.

But one of the most amazing parts of this substitute could subsidize this from the Federal Government and, for employers with 25 or fewer employees, we would give them a subsidy to help entice them into this program. And, if you qualified, you qualify for a 10-year period. Now, some small company with less than 25 employees may qualify, may get the subsidy and may, over a course of several years, become highly successful. But under this particular substitute, they would still qualify for the subsidy.

I do not think any of us believe that the Federal Government ought to be operating a health insurance company. There are a lot of mechanisms in the private market for this association health plan program to work. And, again, why do we want to make the perfect the enemy of the good?

The underlying bill that we have will, in fact, work. It will allow millions of Americans to get better-quality coverage at much more competitive price than what they get now.

So let us amend this underlying bill to go forward. Let us defeat the substitute.

Mr. KIND. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 1 minute to respond quickly, just to clarify a couple of facts.

Mr. Speaker, I have all of the respect and admiration for the chair of our committee, but a closer reading of the substitute bill would not, in fact, require a Federal-run program; rather, the Department of Labor would contract out the State-licensed health insurance plans in order to administer these programs.

But we do feel that there is a requirement or necessity to offer greater incentive to smaller businesses to offer this coverage. That is why we are offering a premium support program with it.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the co-author and co-drafter of this substitute, Mr. ANDREWS.

Mr. ANDREWS asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, I thank my friend, the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. KIND), for yielding me the time.

I think the best way to understand the difference between the plan that the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. KIND) and I are putting forward and the majority plan is to look at it from the point of view of one of the small business people that we keep hearing referred to over and over again here today.

My friend, the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY), often refers to speeches on the floor as posing for holy pictures, and I think that is what is going on here today, where everyone is making the small businessman or small businesswoman and saying how much we love them and care about them, and I am sure everyone does. But I think what matters is the impact of these various proposals, what the proposal would have on the small business person.

In my State the cost of insuring a family is about $14,000 a year. So let us take a small business person that has 10 employees and is looking at a situation where he or she would have to spend $140,000 to insure each of those employees and their families if the employer was going to bear the whole cost. That is a huge amount of money, but is probably well beyond the ability of that employer to pay for.

Under the majority’s bill, if we give the majority every benefit of the doubt, if we assume that the majority’s bill will work exactly as they say that it will, the most optimistic forecast is the majority’s bill will save 13 percent in premiums for that employer. And let us round it up a little bit and give them the benefit of the doubt further and say it will save $2,000 per employee off that $14,000.

So what would happen? We would save $20,000, and the employer would be looking at spending $120,000 to insure the families instead of $140,000. That is not going to do it. That is still far more than the person running a machine shop or a small retail store or landscaping business or a deli is ever going to be able to afford. This just is not going to happen. It is not going to happen.

Our proposal is very different. It says that in a case of a small business like the one I am hypothesizing here, where you have about 10 employees, and where those employees make less than $200 per year, any of them in my State for a family of four would be about $40,000, so just about anybody making less than $20 an hour or so would be eligible for this kind of subsidy, that is most people. That is most people. Under our plan that employer, if the employer chose to do this, my friend a minute ago said that the employers were mandated to do this, that is not so. No one is required to insure their employees under this plan, but if the employer chooses to do that, that employer chooses to do it. They would get a credit of $7,000 per employee toward the cost of this health insurance, a 50 percent credit. So the price of the coverage would drop from $140,000 down to $70,000. That is still an awful lot of money. It is an awful lot of money for a person running a small business, but it puts the person in reach of maybe covering that family, particularly if they ask the family to share with copays and deductibles of their own cost.

Now, my friend, the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. BOEHNER), the chairman of the full committee, said, my goodness, the Government will be subsidizing small employers if we do this. It is big government. Well, government already subsidizes health care for large employers, because they permit the large employers to deduct every premium dollar. And that employer is paying at the 36 or 37 percent corporate tax rate, which means they get back 36 or 37 percent subsidy. So General Motors is getting a nearly 40 percent subsidy, but the person running the delicatessen or the machine shop is not. This evens the playing field.

Now, how do we pay for this? Now, the chairman knows that under the rules of the House that it would not be appropriate or germane for us to identify the specific paying for this, because it would take us outside of the committee’s jurisdiction. There are different views as to how we could pay for this. I speak only for myself when I say this, but I would note that the report of tax breaks to companies that outsource their jobs outside of the United States is $100 billion over the next 10 years. So if that machine shop, if its competitor takes all of the jobs and moves them to Malaysia or Mexico, gets a tax break for doing that, which I think is a foolish policy, if we were to repeal that tax break for companies that are outsourcing their jobs out of this country, that would go a long way toward paying for the plan that we are talking about.

That to me is a pretty good trade-off. Companies that are sending their jobs overseas would lose a tax break; companies here in America would gain health insurance.

So vote yes on the Kind-Andrews substitute.

Mr. BOUSTANY. Mr. Speaker, you know what we are trying to do here is to make health care more affordable, available and accessible to all Americans. It seems to me that if we are going to achieve this goal, we have to adhere to some principles, and I can think of three right off the bat that are very important. One is to provide information to the consumer; second, choices to the consumer; and, thirdly, thirdly, control to the consumer.

Now, no one is saying that the proposal seems to me that it is going to limit choice rather than create choice. And I find it odd that there is no mention of what its cost is going to be to the Federal Government in putting forth these subsidies. I think we need to know that information. I think it is very important information.

And it also seems to me that this program is going to add to the cost of health care, and not lower the cost. What we need to do is foster competition in health care, and right now 45 percent of all of the health care dollars are within governmental systems, Medicare and Medicaid and so forth. The other 55 percent is in the insurance market, and there is no competition. There is no competition in this arena. And so if we stick to these three principles I mentioned earlier, we can create competition.

It seems to me that if we are going to give subsidies to the drug companies to individuals to buy health savings accounts which provide those choices which will allow for an information flow to the patient, to the consumer?

And so I urge colleagues on both sides of the aisle to not support this amendment and to vote for H.R. 525, which offers a good starting point to creating competition in the health care market.

Mrs. JONES of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I just recommend to the previous speaker that he should talk to any Federal employee with regard to the choices that they are offered under the Federal Employee Health Plan.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from Ohio (Mrs. JONES), a person who would rather take millions of people off the ranks of the uninsured rather than add a million people into the uninsured.

Mrs. JONES of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, first of all, I want to thank my colleagues, the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. KIND) and the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. ANDREWS), for offering this substitute.

I think it is very important that we have a great organization representing many of our smaller enterprises called COSE, and COSE has come together in an attempt to provide health care coverage to small businesses.

I wanted to vote for a piece of legislation that would allow small business to have insurance policies for their people, but I did not want to vote for a plan that did not provide the same kind of coverage that everybody else has, meaning that it did not have to be responsible for State insurance regulations as did other policies.

So by presenting this amendment, the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. KIND) and the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. ANDREWS) have offered me an opportunity to say to the small businesses in my community, I support you, and I want to make sure you can provide health care coverage to your employees.

What is also of particular concern to me is not offering something that does not provide the same safeguards is like offering nothing. All we have to do is go back and look at the MEWAs, the Multiple Employer Welfare Arrangements, I guess that is what they call them. The Multiple Employer Welfare Arrangements, which have been used by employers as vehicles to provide benefits. The public record is filled with instances where they have failed, left employees and employers alike without medical coverage.

Mr. Speaker, the other thing that we have to look at is, and the prior speaker said something about subsidies, and you give them to people, and they do not get anything in return. We gave subsidies to the drug companies in the Medicare prescription drug bill, and they got money that they did not even have to use towards a prescription benefit. So do not talk to me about subsidizing anything.

Let us make sure that the people of America and the small businesses have an opportunity to have health care. If we do preventive health care, we would not have so many people coming into
Mr. SAM JOHNSON of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. KIND. Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from Tennessee (Mr. COOPER).

Mr. COOPER. Mr. Speaker, I think the Rules Committee has made a terrible mistake here, and not the usual Rules Committee sort of mistake, because they have actually allowed to come to the floor a substitute that is so clearly superior to the AHP bill it is amazing.

Now, let my friends on the other side understand, I am not against AHPs. I am an original cosponsor of the gentlemans (Mr. JOHNSON) legislation. AHPs would be an improvement over current market conditions, which are appalling. But this plan put out by the gentleman from Tennessee (Mr. BOUSTANY) mentioned choice ear-marking, some of the ways.

The tax credit approach that my friend has mentioned has had to be adjusted for purposes of this substitute, but we need to acknowledge, as my friend from New Jersey (Mr. ANDREWS) mentioned, health care is already seriously subsidized in this country. All we are trying to do is make that subsidy fairer.

I think also the substitute approach would make the system higher quality. First of all, under AHPs, there would be minimal solvency requirements. By completely altering the regulations, as AHPs would do, that is a truly radical approach, and while my friends on the other side may be radicals in this regard, I think they are going further than they realize. These insurance plans need to be thoroughly solvent. You have adequate capital requirements so that you know the insurance is going to be there when you need it.

I think you would have better benefits under this plan, too, because you would have more proven traditional insurance policies that I think more folks who work for small businesses are accustomed to.

Mr. COOPER. Mr. Speaker, in closing, our approach is less famous. Why? Because we do not have every PAC and trade association in Washington, D.C. favoring this because they stand to personally benefit from promoting AHPs to their members. They are desperate for non-dues revenue for those associations.

For any tourist who comes to Washington, if you do not think these PACs and trade associations are rich enough, come visit again. You will see skyscrapers full of these folks all over town, and they would love to make money as insurance salesmen to all the small businesses in America. That is not doing justice for our folks back home.

As I say, AHPs are an improvement, but they are not as good as the Kind-Andrews approach. Please vote for Kind-Andrews.

Mr. KIND. Mr. Speaker, how much time remains?

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. REIBERG). The gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. KIND) has 9½ minutes remaining. The gentleman from Texas (Mr. SAM JOHNSON) has 22 minutes remaining.

Mr. SAM JOHNSON of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.
have an obligation to those who have needs that need that health insurance.

Why? Because it could be any one of us that is the person that is in great need. And I do not think any one of us would be denied health care coverage simply because as a human being we have greater health needs. And that is why I believe people ought to support the Kind substitute. We ought to support people's access to the same coverage all of us as Federal Members of Congress receive.

Thank you to my good friends, Mr. KIND and Mr. ANDREWS, for yielding me this time to speak in support of this substitute, the Small Employer Health Benefits Program, which will provide a real solution for many of the forty-five million Americans without health insurance.

Mr. Speaker, our health care system is broken.

To live in a country as great and as wealthy as ours, and to have millions of hard working, employed Americans who cannot afford quality health care is inexcusable.

My friends from across the aisle would like the American people to believe that Association Health Plans are the only available option to relieve the burden of increased health care costs on small business owners.

However, the facts remains that Association Health Plans not only ignore the unique needs of small businesses, but will actually undermine our insurance system by allowing healthy individuals to opt out.

We shouldn't be making policy only for the fortunate. We should be making policy for everybody.

The proposed substitute, the Small Employers Health Benefits Program, would provide the same access to health benefits as the Federal Employees Health Benefits Program, FEHB.

If we are not ready to provide an overall solution to the Nation's health care crisis, then why don't we at least extend small businesses the courtesy of providing a plan that meets the same requirements that Members of Congress and their families currently enjoy.

My colleagues on the other side of the aisle are right about one thing, small business owners are facing a crisis. Now let's provide them with a solution.

Mr. KIND. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CARDIN), a person who has built up considerable health care expertise from his position on the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. CARDIN asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. CARDIN. Mr. Speaker, I oppose the underlying bill for many reasons. Fundamentally, it violates the concept of federalism that is embodied in our Constitution, respect for our States, and the ability of our States to be able to regulate public safety issues and health issues for the people of our States.

This legislation would preempt the ability of my State and your State to protect the fact remains of our own citizens through regulation. That is wrong. That is the wrong usurpation of power by the Federal Government.

This underlying legislation would adversely affect the people of Maryland, and let me tell you why. Our legislature has passed small market reform. People who work for companies that are between two and 50 employees have the opportunity to purchase insurance, afforded Maryland as a result of our small market reform. The passage of this legislation will mean the end of the small market reform and the opportunity to purchase insurance by small employers in my State.

We are going to be moving in the wrong direction with making affordable health insurance available for the people of this Nation.

Mr. Speaker, I want you to understand the Insurance Commissioner of Maryland is a Republican. The Governor of Maryland, who opposes this bill, is a Republican. This should not be a partisan issue. This should be a matter about the appropriate use of the Federal authority and it is being used wrong here.

I congratulate the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. KIND) for his substitute which is sensitive to the rights of our States. I hope Members will support the substitute and reject the underlying bill.

Mr. Speaker, as a member who is dedicated to protecting the rights of Americans who have health insurance and to ensuring that opportunities to secure affordable health insurance can be expanded, I rise in opposition to H.R. 525. Since coming to Congress, I have heard frequently from individuals who work in small business. They have spoken to me about the difficulties that result from a lack of health insurance coverage, skyrocketing premiums, and reductions in benefits. I remain committed to developing solutions that will alleviate the hardships faced by many Maryland families and small businesses.

However, the Association Health Plan (AHP) legislation we are considering on the House floor today is not a viable solution. H.R. 525 would exempt AHPs from State laws and State regulatory oversight. Through this special exemption, AHPs would be able to severely undermine the goal of greater health care access and affordability for Maryland residents. Although some supporters of this legislation claim it will benefit small employers, the reality is that H.R. 525 will only hurt the small business community.

H.R. 525 would leave the Maryland insurance commissioner powerless to protect our citizens. Under this misguided bill, unregulated out-of-state insurance could operate in Maryland without being required to comply with health care safeguards enacted by our state legislature, such as:

Appropriate access to emergency care. The right to independent appeal of denied claims. Fair premium caps on small groups. Consumer marketing protections. Prevention of health plan failures due to insolvency.

Under this legislation, my constituents would not only lose their ability to demand an independent review of denied claims, but they would lose access to important benefits such as emergency medical treatment and mammography screenings. Workers who purchase association health plan coverage—believing that they are getting comprehensive insurance—may very well find that they would still have to shoulder the costs of these essential services.

Not only would this bill be harmful to potential subscribers, it would destroy the small group market reform we have achieved in Maryland. Twelve years ago, my home state of Maryland took a major step toward helping small businesses afford health insurance for their workers. Our reforms guarantee the quality of reasonably comprehensive health insurance for all small employers. Specifically, Maryland requires all health insurers to sell a comprehensive standard benefit package designed by an independent commission to all employers with between 2 and 50 employees. The plans must have benefits that are actuarially equivalent to those required to be offered by federally qualified HMOs, and the average cost cannot exceed 12 percent of Maryland's average annual wage. Insurers have the option of offering additional benefits, but may not be priced at a separate rate. The consumers must use adjusted community rating to price their plans, and they cannot impose pre-existing condition limitations. The Maryland plan not only guarantees the availability of reasonably comprehensive insurance, it also makes it easier for small employers to make "apples to apples" comparisons of health costs throughout the state.

Due to these reforms, more Maryland small businesses offer health care coverage to their employees than in any surrounding states or in the nation as a whole. Maryland's system is one in which healthy subscribers subsidize those who are less healthy. These reforms work because insurers are not allowed to "cherry pick" the businesses that have the healthiest workers. The plans must have benefits that have been outlawed in our state. The association health plan legislation before us would undermine our system by using the lure of lower premiums to attract firms whose workers have fewer health problems, firms whose employers are willing to pay for separate insurance. The consumer protections offered under Maryland law.

Businesses with older, sicker employees would remain in the state system, driving up premiums. H.R. 525 would, in effect, lead to the collapse of Maryland's system. I want to emphasize that this is not a partisan issue—AHP's are opposed by my own governor, our former colleague Robert Ehrlich, and by the National Governors' Association, and the National Association of Insurance Commissioners. I will submit for the RECORD an April 19 letter from Alfred Reardon, Jr., the State's Insurance Commissioner, expressing his opposition to H.R. 525.

This bill would be devastating on a national level, as well. The non-partisan Congressional Budget Office found that premiums would increase for 20 million employees and their dependents who are covered through small firms, and that 100,000 of the sickest workers who would lose coverage altogether if this AHP legislation were enacted.

This crucial consumer protections that our General Assembly has enacted. For these reasons, I urge my colleagues to vote against this bill.
Mr. Speaker, the following is a letter from our insurance commissioner who is opposed to H.R. 525:

MARYLAND INSURANCE ADMINISTRATION,
Baltimore, MD, April 19, 2005.
Hon. Benjamin L. Cardin,
House Representatives,
Washington, DC.

DEAR CONGRESSMAN CARDIN: As Commissioner of the Maryland Insurance Administration, I am writing to express my strong opposition to federal legislation that would create Association Health Plans, AHPs. I understand such legislation, H.R. 525, has been passed by the House Education and Workforce Committee and may soon come to the floor of the House for a vote. H.R. 525 would allow AHPs to form and operate in states outside the authority of my office and beyond the reach of proven State consumer safeguards and solvency laws. If enacted into law, this could do irreparable harm to our small group market and strip our citizens of critical protections.

Although I share the sponsor's concern for the growing number of small business employees who need to afford adequate coverage, the fact is this legislation would do little, if anything, to address this problem. H.R. 525 ignores the root cause of the current crisis—skyrocketing healthcare spending. Unless spending is brought under control no attempt to increase competition or enhance options for small business will truly make insurance affordable and, thus, promote coverage.

Even more troubling is the harm the legislation would do to consumers. H.R. 525 would: (1) permit risk selection thereby creating opportunities for "cherry-picking" among healthier groups; (2) allow inadequate capital and solvency requirements; (3) allow inadequate consumer protection laws, including those designed to allow consumer appeals of adverse plan decisions and those aimed at preventing and fighting fraud; and (4) allow AHPs to ignore State benefits requirements. To add insult to injury, while longstanding State oversight and consumer protections would be eliminated, H.R. 525 provides no additional resources to the Department of Labor to regulate the plan or protect consumers.

I remain committed to improving access to affordable insurance for small business owners and workers in Maryland. Together, we can find a way that will be effective and do not lead to greater problems in the future. H.R. 525 is clearly not the answer and I urge you to oppose it.

Sincerely,

AL REdMier, Jr.,
Insurance Commissioner.

Mr. SAM JOHNSON of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield 30 seconds to the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. BOUSTANY).

Mr. BOUSTANY. Mr. Speaker, I would like to engage the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. KIND) in a colloquy.

My question is, I think we need to know this information, what is the cost of your amendment to the Federal Government?

Mr. KIND. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BOUSTANY. I yield to the gentleman from Wisconsin.

Mr. KIND. We are waiting to get a cost estimate back, but based on two previous debates on this issue, it was comparable to the amount of money set aside for the health savings account that has been a part of this bill in the past, but is not this year.

Mr. BOUSTANY. I think we need to have that information. I am all for choices and the gentleman's plan is intriguing; it is interesting; but I think it may be premature.

Mr. SAM JOHNSON of Texas. Mr. Speaker, do I have the right to close? The SPEAKER pro tempore. Yes.

Mr. SAM JOHNSON of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. KIND. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the balance of my time.

Mr. Speaker, I think there is wide agreement, bipartisan agreement that we have got a serious issue on our hands, a huge challenge that is facing our Nation, that is, rising health care costs and the impact it is having on economic growth, the opportunities for businesses large and small to grow and hire employees and compete.

I think it is one of the main reasons why we have experienced such anemic job growth in this country in recent years, because of the hesitancy of so many businesses, especially small businesses to hire additional workers because of the associated health insurance costs. It is something that we must address in order to deal with an expanding economy at a rate that we would all like to see, but also to get a grip on the stagnant wages right now that are holding so many of our citizens back.

I think there is a direct cause and effect whereas the typical worker's wages have been frozen in effect in recent years because of the additional costs coming out of their pockets to afford health care. That is why, again, we have had an important debate today, but it is one we should be working on in a bipartisan fashion to address the underlying causes.

Volumes have been written about the underlying underlying associated health plan that is before us today. And, unfortunately, the verdict is in and that verdict is this is just bad public policy. That is why so many of the Governors and so many of the attorneys general, and the commissioners of insurance, the Association of State Legislatures in a bipartisan fashion have roundly criticized and condemned the underlying associated health plan, because they feel as we do on this side that it will do more harm than good.

I understand and appreciate the motivation on the other side to try to move forward on this issue. But we are stuck. The wheels are stuck in the mud, and it is just spinning because it is not getting any traction. And that is because the Senate in their analysis of the underlying bill has found that it, too, is bad public policy. And I am afraid we are going to have this debate today, it is going to expire and it is going to get stuck with no progress being made.

Perhaps there may be some deficiencies in what we are offering in our substitute, just as we believe there are deficiencies in theirs. But now is the time for us to come together to try to find some common ground so we can make progress and deal with this issue that is affecting more and more Americans every year.

One of the issues that really has not received that much attention, and I would just like to close on and highlight it, is again the fact of the Federal preemption and taking away from States the ability to conduct proper oversight and accountability with these insurance plans.

Both the GAO in a study and a recent Georgetown University study that came out this summer indicated that the underlying AHP bill, as it is written with the weak provisions that would go to the Department of Labor, would lead to an explosion of fraud and abuse with these types of plans throughout the country. And there is a history of fraud and abuse.

Currently, there are over 141 plans that are set up fraudulently that are not paying the claims that are affecting well over 200,000 workers. But for the effective oversight and the policing that is taking place at the State level, even these would probably go unnoticed and would impact more and more Americans. It is another reason why the underlying bill does not make sense, why the Federal preemption over State jurisdiction, which has been the history of health care regulation in this country, is another bad idea.

Our substitute that by not preempts State law by allowing the State jurisdiction and oversight to continue. It does build upon the concept of a purchasing pool modeled after the Federal employee health plan which, as was stated earlier, has worked marvelously over the years. No one is recommending dismantling that.

I would encourage a "yes" on the substitute and a "no" on the underlying bill.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. SAM JOHNSON of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the balance of my time.

Mr. Speaker, we do not know the cost. It is going to be out of reason, I believe. And while AHP legislation will be implemented quickly, this Demo- crat substitute might take years to get up and running.

In addition, the funds are subject to appropriations. And if an appropriation did not go through or did not provide enough funds, small employers and their workers would be left hanging.

Let me make myself clear. I believe our Nation's employer-sponsored health care system is a success story. Employers provide coverage for the vast majority of our Nation's population; 131 million Americans obtain their coverage from private employers.

The Committee on Education and the Workforce and the Department of Labor through our oversight of ERISA have jurisdiction over employer-sponsored health care. So I support using the employer-based system to address the problems of the uninsured.

However, the way it has to be done is to build on the success of the current system by utilizing the strengths that enable large employers and unions to offer Cadillac health plans. AHPs are the way to do that. Vote down this amendment. Vote for AHPs.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. REHBERG). Pursuant to House Resolution 379, the previous question is ordered on the bill and on the amendment 379, the previous question is ordered on the bill and on the amendment 379, the previous question is ordered on the amendment in the nature of a substitute offered by the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. KIND).

The yeas and nays were ordered.

MOTION TO RECOMMEND OFFERED BY MR. GEORGE MILLER OF CALIFORNIA

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion to recommit. The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is the gentleman opposed to the bill? Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. I am, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the motion to recommit. The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Speaker, I move to recommit the bill H.R. 525 to the Committee on Education and the Workforce with instructions to report the same back to the House forthwith with the following amendments:

This House spends money constantly on cancer research, and here we are using a tool that we can prevent cancer and make sure that women are treated earlier. With this bill, the mainline bill is taking that away. I ask my colleagues, please stand up for your State. Stand up for the health care of your constituents. That is what our job is.

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentlewoman from Minnesota (Ms. McCOLLUM).

Ms. McCOLLUM of Minnesota. Mr. Speaker, I rise to support the motion to recommit because AHPS are awful health plans. AHPs roll back State benefit standards that protect women and children. They are awful for women; they are awful for children.

Our motion protects Americans who have access to mental health benefits. It protects families’ access to maternity care and well-baby checks.

Maternity coverage is critical for women. It should not be optional. Fortunately, many States require health plans to cover care and well-baby checks for their children. The bottom line is healthy moms equal healthy children. Healthy children, valuing children’s lives, should be a goal we all share.

Children deserve a healthy start in life with regular visits to the doctor and necessary immunizations. Preventive care makes economic sense. It can prevent avoidable illness and reduce future health care costs.

I encourage all Members to reject awful health plans and to support the motion to recommit.

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. WOOLSEY).

Ms. WOOLSEY. Mr. Speaker, the previous question is ordered. There was no objection.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. Mr. Speaker, we have already done, mainly because in the beginning the insurance companies would not give health care to women and women who happened to have a mammogram or to have a pap smear to make sure they do not have cervical cancer.

I am sure that all of the men and women in this House, who today have health care coverage that is good coverage, they will be stripped of that coverage and put into these AHPS. In fact, they expect that 90 percent of the new enrollees will be people who come out of better plans who will lose that coverage that people have fought hard for in almost every State in this Union, to have those kinds of health care protections that our three colleagues just spoke about in support of this motion to recommit.

I would urge the House to support the motion to recommit and reject this legislation that is harmful to the health care coverage of millions of Americans and their families.

Mr. BOEHNER. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to the gentleman’s motion.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. HAYES). The gentleman is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. BOEHNER. Mr. Speaker, the most coveted health insurance available to Americans is offered by big companies and unions. All we are trying to do in the underlying bill is to give small employers the same opportunity to provide high-quality health insurance to their employees at competitive prices.

The motion to recommit would require every AHP to cover every mandate known to man, driving up the cost of insurance policies and making sure that no new employees would ever be covered by an AHP. There are 45 million Americans with no health insurance. While this will not cover all 45 million Americans, it will help some Americans who have no access to health insurance today have access to high-quality, competitively priced health insurance. You can have all the mandates in the world; but if you do not have health insurance, you get no coverage at all. No doctors’ visits. No nothing. It is a bad motion. Support the underlying bill.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, the previous question is ordered on the motion to recommit.

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion to recommit.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the yeas had a majority and declared the motion to recommit.

MEDICAL DEVICE USER FEE STABILIZATION ACT OF 2005
Mr. DEAL of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on Energy and Commerce be discharged from further consideration of the bill (H.R. 3423) to amend the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act with respect to medical device user fees, and ask for its immediate consideration in the House.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Georgia?

Ms. ESHOO. Further reserving the right to object, Mr. Speaker, I would like to make a few comments about H.R. 3423, the Medical Device User Fee Stabilization Act, which is being considered today. I am the lead Democrat, along with my colleague, on the committee, the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. PITTS), who is also my neighbor across the hall from me in the Cannon House Office Building.

In 2002, former Representative Greenwood and myself introduced the Medical Devices User Fee Modernization Act. It passed the House unanimously and was signed into law by the President. The goal of the bill was to eliminate FDA’s backlog in approving new medical devices so that doctors and patients could more quickly benefit from them.

While the law required device manufacturers to contribute toward FDA’s cost in evaluating and approving new devices, the program was contingent on the Federal Government paying its fair share. If Federal funding did not reach the trigger level, the program would be eliminated. The legislation fixes the trigger so that the user fee program can continue.

Specifically the bill will reduce the rate of user fee increases to the single-digit range for the remaining 2 years of the program. It will help small medical device companies, which is very important, because the small companies operate differently under different circumstances than the larger ones. The small device companies, it helps them to afford the cost to submit new medical device applications for FDA approval. And finally, the bill will enhance labeling and tracking of reprocessed single-use devices. So this legislation before us only authorizes the program for 2 more years.

It really is a significant accomplishment, and it allows us to now concentrate on making the device approval process even better in 2007. And I know that both of my colleagues, both the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. DEAL), the subcommittee chairman, as well as my colleague, the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. PITTS), are committed to that.

I want to thank Ryan Long with Chairman BARTON’s staff; John Ford, who is seated here to my left, with Ranking Member DINGELL’s staff; and for Vanessa Kramer of my staff who has worked so hard on this. And it is because of all of them and their hard work that this bill has successfully reached the floor today.

Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my reservation of objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. HAYES). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Georgia?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. DEAL of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks, and include extraneous material on H.R. 22.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Virginia?

There was no objection.

POSTAL ACCOUNTABILITY AND ENHANCEMENT ACT

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to House Resolution 380 and rule XVIII, the Chair declares the House in the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the bill, H.R. 22.

Accordingly, the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the bill (H.R. 22) to reform the postal laws of the United States, with Mr. Simpson in the chair.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to the rule, the bill is considered as having been read the first time.

Under the rule, the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. TOM DAVIS) and the gentleman from California (Mr. WAXMAN) each will control 30 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. TOM DAVIS).

Mr. TOM DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. BURTON), the former chairman of the Government Reform and Oversight Committee, who has played a lead role in moving this bill to where it is today, and spent 6 long years in the vineyards laboring on this when he was chairman of the committee.

Mr. BURTON of Indiana. Mr. Chairman, first of all, I want to congratulate the gentleman from New York (Mr. MCGUIRE), who has done yeoman's service to the committee and to this government in fighting for a postal reform measure. He has just done a great job. I want to congratulate him on all of the hard work in bringing this thing to the floor.

I want to congratulate our chairman, the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. TOM DAVIS), We fought for, I think, 6 years when I was chairman to bring this bill to the floor and pass it, and, Mr. Chairman, I want to congratulate you on being able to get this thing to the floor.

I hope that we are successful in getting it not only through here, but through the Senate. I want to congratulate the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. DAVIS), my good buddy, who has one of the best voices in the Congress. If I could talk like him, I would be President. He has got that deep, resonant voice.

I want to thank you and the gentleman from California (Mr. Waxman) for all of the hard work that you have put in on this bill. I want to congratulate you and all of the staffs for their hard work.

Let me just say that we have been working on this thing now for, gosh, I guess at least 10 years, but 6 years when I was chairman and now 4 years that you have been chairman. We have finally brought it back to the floor. I do not think it is perfect, but it sure is a giant step in the right direction.

If we do not do something about postal reform, what is going to happen is that we are going to have a lot of problems with revenues than they have had in the past. And it is absolutely essential, if we are going to have a viable Postal Service in this country, that we pass this legislation.

So I think this is a very good bill. I believe that it is a model for tonight, and I hope that all of my colleagues will vote for it. Once again, I want to thank all of those responsible, especially the gentleman from New York (Mr. McHugh), the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. Tom Davis) and the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Davis) for working so hard on this.

Mr. Davis of Illinois. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that I control the time of the gentleman from California (Mr. Waxman).

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Illinois?

There was no objection.

Mr. Davis of Illinois. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I might consume.

Mr. Chairman, Members of the House have worked over a decade to reform this important part of our national culture and economy. I am truly pleased to serve in this Congress which is moving this historic reform forward.

I also want to commend the gentleman from New York (Mr. McHugh), the gentleman from Virginia (Chairman Davis), and the gentleman from California (Mr. Waxman) and their dedicated staffs for their commitment to postal reform and for the bipartisan cooperation to work for its passage.

The gentleman from New York (Mr. McHugh) deserves particular recognition for his leadership and perseverance with regard to postal reform.

Postal reform is a significant issue for my congressional district as it is for much of America. I represent one of the primary postal hubs in the Midwest, the great city of Chicago. In addition to the 12,000 postal employees who deliver mail daily to 1.2 million homes and businesses in the Chicago area, we have many respected companies like R.R. Donnelley, the largest printing company in North America, that are clients of the Postal Service.

The Postal Accountability and Enhancement Act of 2005 modernizes the postal system, helping it remain relevant into the 21st century. This bill is a delicate compromise that has gone through a series of processes of hearings, meetings and negotiations. We have worked extensively and effectively with administration representatives to address their concerns.

There is something in this bill for everyone. It may not be everything that interest groups desire; however, as the gentleman from Virginia (Chairman Tom Davis) has said, it is our best chance at solving the structural, legal and financial constraints that put the Postal Service at risk of catastrophe.

As the Comptroller General recognizes, the past decades of comprehensive postal reform is urgently needed. The Postal Service historically has accumulated billions of dollars in debt and currently has massive unfunded liabilities.

Declining first class mail volumes, high infrastructure-related costs and rigid statutes necessitate reform. It has been 35 years since comprehensive postal reform occurred. It is our responsibility to protect our treasured national asset before it is in crisis. The time for reform is now.

H.R. 22 has many highlights for the Postal Service. It provides the rate-making flexibility and incentives needed to operate as an efficient business. For businesses it provides rate stability, fair competition rules, financial transparency, and procurement protections needed to predict costs and operate on a level playing field. For consumers it provides an improved service, maintains high-quality standards, and eliminates unfair mailing costs so that they have an affordable and reliable means of communication. For workers it protects collective bargaining and offers protections that are needed to ensure safe employment. For taxpayers it ensures the viability of a national asset and removes the threat of a taxpayer bail-out of the Postal Service due to financial insolvency. These are just some of the provisions that will go a long way to helping the Postal Service better serve its customers, compete fairly with the mailing industry and contribute to our Nation.

In addition, I am pleased that the bill requires a study of the number of contracts with women, minorities and small businesses, and that it protects our domestic airlines from outsourcing of jobs to foreign carriers. I represent many members from each of these groups, and it is important that our reforms treat them all fairly, I reiterate that this bill is the best option to protect our treasured national asset before it is in crisis.

I know that the issue of classifying single-piece parcels as competitive or market-dominant has caused a good deal of anxiety for many parties affected by postal reform. I look forward to addressing this issue in conference.

And at this time, Mr. Chairman, I would like to enter into a colloquy with the distinguished chairman of the Government Reform Committee, the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. Tom Davis).

Mr. Chairman, section 404 of the Postal Accountability and Enhancement Act alters paragraph 2 of section 401 of title 39 of the U.S. Code. This section pertains to the rulemaking authority of the United States Postal Service. Obviously the issue of fairness in rulemaking by the Postal Service affects a number of businesses in my district.

I would like to ask the distinguished chairman to clarify how rulemaking by the Postal Service should consider the circumstances within the postal sector. Mr. DAVIS of Illinois. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. DAVIS of Illinois. I yield to the gentleman from Virginia.

Mr. TOM DAVIS of Virginia. I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Mr. Chairman, the committee intends that the Postal Service will exercise the more clearly delineated rule-making powers provided under this section in a way that is rationally related to the policy objectives set out in the revised statute, and it is predicated upon an understanding of the effect the regulations will have on the conditions in the postal sector.

Mr. DAVIS of Illinois. Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. DAVIS of Illinois. Reclaiming my time, I would like to ask the distinguished chairman of the Committee on Government Reform to further clarify the meaning of the language related to the role of the Postal Regulatory Commission in entering complaints related to rule-making.

I yield to the chairman to find out his understanding.

Mr. TOM DAVIS of Virginia. I thank the gentleman for yielding. Mr. Chairman, the committee further expects that the Postal Regulatory Commission will distinguish carefully between abuses of the Regulatory Authority set out in section 404 and the legitimate exercise of managerial discretion by the Postal Service in its implementation of the complaint provisions contained in section 206 of the bill.

Mr. DAVIS of Illinois. Reclaiming my time, I would like to thank the distinguished chairman for his answers and for his cooperation. Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. TOM DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, most of us are familiar with the engraved saying outside the General Services Administration Post Office in New York City: "Neither rain nor sleet, nor wind, nor heat, nor gloom of night might stay these couriers from the swift completion of their appointed rounds."
This is an unofficial motto depicting some of the circumstances our Nation’s letter carriers face in fulfillment of the universal service obligation of the United States Postal Service.

Mr. Chairman, I rise today in support of H.R. 22, the Postal Accountability and Enhancement Act, which addresses a problem plaguing our Postal Service today that is far greater than the snow or rain or heat or gloom of night. That problem is the outdated and unsustainable structural framework of the Postal Service which threatens to bring it to the brink of catastrophe unless Congress acts immediately.

This legislation is about more than reforming the Postal Service itself. It is about reforming and sustaining a vital sector of our overall economy. After all, the Postal Service currently has about 707,000 career and 98,000 noncareer employees. In addition, more than 9 million American jobs, $900 billion in commerce, 9 percent of the Nation’s R&D production and 9 percent of GDP depend on mail and package delivery. Thus, the Postal Service is not only vital to our national communication network but also to our national economy.

Each year the Postal Service processes and delivers 208 billion pieces of mail to more than 130 million addresssees in the United States. That is 208 billion magazines, catalogs, thank-you notes, birthday cards, wedding invitations, special security checks, bank funds, letters to Congressmen, movie rentals, all delivered in fulfillment of the Postal Service’s promise of universal service.

The last time Congress successfully passed legislation to overhaul the post office was 1970 when President Nixon signed the Postal Reorganization Act, before e-mails, before fax machines. It is time to bring the service into the 21st century.

The legislation we are considering today, the Postal Accountability and Enhancement Act, is the culmination of a decade of hard work and study, not to mention a great deal of bipartisan negotiation and cooperation amongst various groups. Consequently, H.R. 22 now represents our best chance at solving the structural, legal, and financial constraints that have brought the Postal Service to the brink of utter breakdown.

This April, the Postal Service filed paperwork with the Postal Rate Commission to request a 5.4 percent rate increase for most categories of mail. These rate hikes, which are scheduled to take effect early next year unless Congress acts to prevent them, will incur a significant cost burden, let us call it what it is, a tax on the postal consumer.

For direct marketers, financial service companies and businesses relying heavily on shipping and mailing, these rate hikes are devastating. To make matters worse, increasing postal rates could send the postal office into what many observers call a death spiral, where declining business leads to higher rates which in turn leads to decline in business until it is too late to change course.

Unfortunately, under current law, the Postal Service’s only recourse to remain competitive is to raise rates. That is no way to run an operation. In addition, the Postal Service’s most recent request for a rate increase was spurred in part by an existing requirement that the Postal Service contribute $3.1 billion to a Federal Employee Retirement System which now houses more than $73 billion in civil service retirement savings that rightfully belongs to the United States Postal Service.

This is just one of many instances in which the USPS is hampered by the current legal framework. And it is one of many outdated requirements that H.R. 22 seeks to reform.

Quite simply, the laws that the Postal Service has today are outdated and unsuited for today’s competitive environment. Let me take just a minute to highlight a few of the reform components included in this comprehensive bill that will enable the service to move into the 21st century.

For example, our bill establishes a universal service, first and foremost, the bill preserves the Postal Service’s commitment to universal service, the guaranteed delivery 6 days a week to each and every address in the United States.

Next, it imposes pension responsibility. It returns responsibility for funding the military cost of postal retirees’ pension to the Treasury Department where it belongs. It is recommended by the President’s commission. This liability was shifted to the Postal Service in the last Congress. That shift was little more than an accounting gimmick, but it is one that must be reversed if we are to be serious about fixing the Postal Service’s long-term balance sheet.

The legislation also requires the Postal Service to set aside 73 billion in civil service retirement savings that has been held in escrow, allowing the Postal Service to use this money to defray rate increases, among other options.

Modern rate regulation. This legislation shifts the basis of the Postal Rate Commission from a costly, complex scheme of rates to a modern system designed to ensure that rate increases generally do not exceed the annual change in the consumer price index. This applies only to market-dominated products, such as letters, periodicals, and advertising mail, because the Postal Service has provided different pricing freedom for its competitive products, like express mail and priority mail.

Strengthening the commission. This act will rename the Postal Rate Commission the Postal Regulatory Commission and give it teeth by granting it subpoena power and a broader scope for regulation and oversight.

Finally, the act sets the stage for future reforms by mandating several studies including a comprehensive assessment of the scope of standards for universal service.

Today, the White House released its statement of administration policy, its SAP, regarding this legislation. While supporting the goal of effectively reforming the Postal Service, some issues still lack consensus between the Congress and the White House. The administration has established some general, overarching principles to guide the framing of the comprehensive reform, the reorganization of the U.S. Postal Service. These include best practices of corporate governance, transparency, flexibility, accountability, and self-financing.

Our bill shares these goals, but recognizes these principles are often times at odds with one another and may require some give and take. For example, the administration has proposed segment reporting for each and every class of mail, a practice which would unforest the Postal Service at a competitive disadvantage with some of its toughest competitors. Thus, this requirement would be contrary to the administration’s first stated proposal of best practices of corporate governance.

Our bill also includes one example in which compromise is needed if we are to enact meaningful, comprehensive reform.

This bill, the refined product of nearly 10 years of careful negotiation and compromise, strikes an ideal balance among the guiding principles on which both the House and administration are in agreement. I just want to assure the administration we will continue to work closely with them as H.R. 22 heads toward a conference.

Before I conclude, I want to take this opportunity to thank the gentleman from New York (Mr. McHugh), who chaired our special panel on postal reform and was the original bill’s chief sponsor. He was, without doubt, the right leader to undertake this daunting task.

I also want to thank the former chairman of the Committee on Government Reform, the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. Burton), who played an integral role in moving the ball forward on postal reform that allowed us to be where we are today.

Finally, I want to thank the Committee on Government Reform’s ranking member, the gentleman from California (Mr. Waxman), and the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Davis), the ranking member on the special panel, for their dedication to this subject and their willingness to operate in a bipartisan manner and work through this, through the most difficult issues that have been presented.

Bipartisan cooperation is the primary reason why this bill has finally reached the House floor and why we have been able to keep such diverse stakeholders around the table in productive discussions.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.
Mr. DAVIS of Illinois. Mr. Chairman, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. CLAY), a member of the Committee on Government Reform whose father preceded him, and his father preceded him not only in office but in having a great interest in postal matters.

Mr. CLAY. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. DAVIS) for yielding me time. I too want to join my colleagues in congratulating and thanking the gentleman from New York (Mr. McHugh), the gentleman from Virginia (Chairman TOM DAVIS), and the ranking members, the gentleman from California (Mr. Waxman) and the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Davis), for the hard work they put into advancing this bill to this point.

I rise in support of the Postal Accountability and Enhancement Act. I am committed to protecting the interests of the U.S. Postal Service. I have the confidence given over 3,000 Postal Service employees. Together they earn over $167 million in annual payroll and pay almost $20 million dollars in income taxes.

Postal employees represent an important part of our community's economic base. Several months ago, I hosted a postal roundtable with groups representing postal-reliant businesses that depend on the postal system to deliver their products and collect their revenues. Some postmasters, letter carriers, direct mailers, and representatives of trucking companies participated in this roundtable.

While overwhelming support was expressed for this legislation, many concerns were raised about single-piece parcels, single-piece parcel post, or single letters, whether they should continue to be classified as market dominant so that the Postal Service can continue to offer fair rates for items mailed anywhere, including rural and remote areas. The U.S. Postal Service paid $20 million dollars in income taxes.

Universal service at a uniform price, no questions asked. No one in this country, Mr. Chairman, goes to his or her mailbox or his local post office wondering if the bill will be there. It is always there. There has been one question, the question that this bill seeks to answer with a resounding yes, I might add; will the mail always be there?

I am concerned that truly without this legislation the answer might well be far different. Resounding yes. Postal service of today is far removed from that of 30 years ago when reform was last enacted. Unlike then, the mail stream of today has diminished by such things as e-mails and faxes and cell phones and text messages, largely electronic means of communication that replace mail. They replace stamps. And thus they replace the revenues necessary to operate our key mail delivery system.

Some people are choosing to communicate in different ways, why do we need to change things at all? Some even go so far as to suggest that the time of the Postal Service has passed, that we ought to let the private sector take over.

But the fact is, Mr. Chairman, for all the challenges the Postal Service of the 21st century faces, it still retains its traditional place as a key cog in how American businesses conduct their affairs and how Americans all across this land communicate.

The postal business sector of this nation, and I urge my colleagues to put single-piece parcels back in the market dominant category and support the Postal Accountability and Enhancement Act.

Mr. DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Chairman, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from New York (Mr. McHugh), the chief author of this, someone who has championed this cause since I came to Congress.

Mr. McHugh. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding me time.

Mr. Chairman, today, obviously, represents a critical step in what has to this point been a journey of more than 10 years, a decade and a half of hearings and meeting, of negotiations followed by more hearings, more meetings, more negotiations, to rewrite and rewrite again and again a piece of legislation that will serve as the first true reformation of the Postal Service known as the United States Postal Service, that since 1970.

In that length of effort, Mr. Chairman, that incredible commitment to the issue speaks directly to the critical importance of the Postal Service to this Nation and the complexity of this system that each and every day and each and every year delivers some 206 billion pieces of mail going through 38,000 postal facilities to 143 million addresses in virtually every community in every State in this Nation, 6 days a week, day in, day out, week in and week out.

So since 1775 this is the service that American people and American businesses have come to know and expect. Universal service at a uniform price, no questions asked. No one in this country, Mr. Chairman, goes to his or her mailbox or his local post office wondering if the mail will be there. It is always there. There has been one question, the question that this bill seeks to answer with a resounding yes, I might add, will the mail always be there?

I am concerned that truly without this legislation the answer might well be far different. Resounding yes. Postal service of today is far removed from that of 30 years ago when reform was last enacted. Unlike then, the mail stream of today has diminished by such things as e-mails and faxes and cell phones and text messages, largely electronic means of communication that replace mail. They replace stamps. And thus they replace the revenues necessary to operate our key mail delivery system.

Postal service of today is far different than that resounding yes, I might add, is there. It is always there. It has always been there. But the true question, the question that this bill seeks to answer with a resounding yes, I might add, will the mail always be there?

But the fact is, Mr. Chairman, for all the challenges the Postal Service of the 21st century faces, it still retains its traditional place as a key cog in how American businesses conduct their affairs and how Americans all across this land communicate.

The postal business sector of this nation, and I urge my colleagues to put single-piece parcels back in the market dominant category and support the Postal Accountability and Enhancement Act.

Mr. Chairman, speaking honestly, as some one who has been involved from day one for more than 10 years, probably some, if not all, of these critics may be right. But what I would urge my colleagues to resist this day is the understandable temptation to make the perfect the enemy of the good.

Mr. Chairman, at the risk of sounding immodest, I am very, very proud of this legislation. I am proud of its vision. I am proud of its construct and its provisions, but I am truly prouder still of those organizations and those people, those individual(s) involved in those organizations and in this reform effort that have been there from the start.

They say a year in government and politics is a lifetime, and that is true, 10 years has to approach infinity. But through it all, we have had special people devoted to extraordinary efforts in a singularly vital cause. And our thanks, and clearly my thanks, are owed to so many to even begin to list them all. Many of them are listed on the page before me. I will fill up all those more than 200 interests who strongly support this.

Many, if it were appropriate under the House rules, I would note are in the gallery today. But seeing as how it is not appropriate to say that under the House rules, I will resist the temptation. But without naming them specifically, I owe them thanks.

At perhaps the risk of offending many, I have to acknowledge a particularly special few. The gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Davis) and the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Fattah), the two ranking members who first began Chairman, the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. DAVIS) has been a stalwart, a ranking member who lost focus at no time and never lost faith.

The gentleman from California (Mr. WAXMAN) has been another stalwart, a ranking member, who kept aside partisanship, not an easy thing to do in Washington these days, for the simple reason he understood and deeply cared about the conclusion of this challenge.

Bill Clinger, followed by the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. BURTON), the first and second chairman of the Committee on Government Reform, who continued to bring our attention to it and keep us focused.

And our current chairman, the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. TOM DAVIS), who might have, who might have, but thankfully did not, let this effort die; who urged us forward; whose political skills, intellectual depth, and administrative acumen have really advanced us to this point of success.

These are all important folks, but I want to say, as much as I deeply indebted for those efforts, in my opinion the success of today’s consideration is predicated largely upon the efforts of one very, very dedicated man: Robert Taub. Through it all, Robert has been the intellectual and spiritual glue that has held this effort together. He was always willing, even anxious, to help us move this issue forward. Mr. DAVIS, our chairman; the ranking member from New York (Mr. MCHugh); the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. DAVIS); and their hard and dedicated working staffs.

This is very strongly supported legislation. It is a balance that we have achieved. We urge everyone to vote for it and to vote against the amendments that are predicated largely upon the efforts of many of the unions, APWU, the Letter Carriers, the Postmasters, and the postal-reliant businesses, some of whom are located in my district, the Magazine Publishers of America, the direct marketing industry—key economic sector that employs 9 million workers adding $900 billion annually to the U.S. Gross Domestic Product. In fact, 9 percent of the nation’s GDP can be directly attributed to the mailing industry.

H.R. 22 will bring increased efficiencies to the USPS, and would allow for more predictability, and affordability in future postal rate increases. Without postal reform, American jobs will be placed at risk as companies are forced to compensate for capricious and excessive rate hikes to the detriment of our country.

The companies and organizations listed below consider passing postal reform legislation this year an urgent priority, and urge your votes on H.R. 22 when it is considered on the House floor. Thank you for your consideration.

many people do not realize the economic power this industry has. The postal industry accounts for over 8 percent of the gross national product, and it is the backbone of a $900 billion mailing industry that drives the U.S. economy. To maintain the current level of high-quality service, we must reform our postal system for the new information age.

The United States Postal Service is the world’s most efficient postal system. While America is adding almost 2 million addresses per year, the number of postal employees have held steady, meaning that the same number of letter carriers are walking further, while delivering more mail.

This bill must be passed because it addresses many pressing issues, such as rate changes, the Postal Service Retirement System, escrow accounts, and military pension issues. This is the only Federal agency where funds in the civil retirement system have to be used to fulfill military obligations within the Department.

The bill also addresses the issue of the United States Postal Service overpayment of over $78 billion in civil service retirement benefits. The Congressional Budget Office estimates that the escrow requirements will cost the United States Postal Service nearly $3 billion in 2006 and over $36 billion over the next 8 years. If the postal system is not fixed, our constituents will bear the cost.

This Nation is very fortunate to have a Postal Service system that handles such a large volume of mail while operating at affordable costs to our citizens.

Mr. TOM DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. MURPHY).

Mr. MURPHY. Mr. Chairman, although we may be living in the age of technology and more than a few of us cannot live without our e-mail, the United States Postal Service continues to serve a key role for both personal and business communications. With 9 million postal jobs and nearly all commerce dependent on services provided by USPS, consideration of this reform package could not come soon enough.

In recent years, the U.S. Postal Service has struggled to perform its core mission of providing affordable mail service 6 days a week to every American. Today, the Postal Service operates under the same set of rules established in 1970; yet the service now delivers nearly 2½ times more mail to almost twice as many homes.

Rising costs and financial losses, coupled with rate increases meant to remedy a declining fiscal situation, have left the Postal Service in a position that threatens the long-term viability of mail as an affordable, effective business communications channel.

I am pleased H.R. 22 protects universal service while taking steps to alleviate the seemingly constant threat of rate increases by modernizing rate regulation and by freeing up $73 billion in civil service retirement savings that have been held in escrow.
Accountability and transparency are of particular interest to me as there continues to be unresolved questions surrounding the unfair and inconsistent application of a postal regulation more than 5 years ago.

This particular issue is one I have championed for some time, and while I am disappointed that we were unable to reach a resolution before the bill reached the House floor, I look forward to working with the committee and the Pennsylvania Senators on the issue of postal reform legislation moves into conference.

Comprehensive legislation is 10 years in the making; and without the passage of this bill, we are putting in jeopardy millions of American jobs and the future availability of affordable mail service, the repercussions of which will be felt well beyond the mailing industry.

In the last session of Congress when I was a member of the Subcommittee on Postal Service and the Committee on Government Reform, we worked on this bill. I am pleased it has come before us, and I urge my colleagues to support H.R. 22.

Mr. DAVIS of Illinois. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. BLUMENAUR). Mr. BLUMENAUR. Mr. Chairman, I came to Congress to help the Federal Government be a better partner and make communities more livable. One of the important ways to achieve that objective does not require new rules or regulations. It simply requires that the Federal Government follow the same rules as others.

Well, H.R. 22 contains language from the Community Postal Partnership Act which I first introduced in the 105th Congress. It requires the Postal Service to abide by the same zoning and land use laws as everybody else and requires that the Postal Service garner input from communities on proposed changes for facilities.

We have had tremendous support for this concept, from homeowners, the National Association of Postmasters, the Trust for Historic Preservation, Realtors, landscape architects, planners, and from within the postal community itself.

Good government organizations across the country have joined with mayors and local officials who understand that 37,000 postal facilities are not just remote outposts of Federal activity. They can, often are, and always should be centers of community activity.

This legislation has had bipartisan support from the majority of the House of Representatives, and has passed the Senate, only to become victim of the politics of postal reform which I am pleased the committee has been able to sort out.

It is true, however, to make this relationship something that every community can count on. It should not be the exception, nor should it require extraordinary political action. There should be no variation in the commitment to provide the finest facilities that are part of each and every community. I am happy that the committee has chosen to include this language in the comprehensive postal reform bill.

It is important that we recognize the valuable service provided by the Postal Service. It delivers more items in one day than FedEx does in a year; it manages half the world's mail with one-fourth of the revenue and a fifth of the workforce. It is important that we not just applaud these accomplishments, but give the Postal Service the tools it needs to continue to deliver its valuable service.

This bill accomplishes that goal. It is a delicately balanced compromise which I hope the House will support, respecting amendments that would upset that balance, and build on this for a better Postal Service in the future.

Mr. TOM DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. DAVIS of Illinois. Mr. Chairman, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER).

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time and rise in support of H.R. 22. It is a good bill that should be enacted this year.

I applaud the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. DAVIS) and the ranking member, the gentleman from California (Mr. WAXMAN), and the gentleman from New York (Mr. MCHugh). The gentleman from New York (Mr. MCHugh) has made a career of this bill, and we are thankful for that. He is not on the floor, but I want to congratulate him on his efforts.

Just a few months ago, the Committee on Government Reform marked up and passed this bill 39-0. Given the current political environment, that is amazing. An extraordinary achievement. Such bipartisanship on Capitol Hill is too rare. When it happens, we should take note. The fact that every Democrat and Republican on the committee embraced H.R. 22 testifies to the need for postal reform that puts politics aside and focuses on pressing issues.

It is also a tribute to the hard work and energy that postal employees, business groups, and postal customers brought to bear educating lawmakers about the merits of reform.

Let me say something as an aside. The United States Postal Service is the most efficient and productive postal service in the world. It may surprise some to learn that some years ago when I testified in the Treasury Postal Subcommittee as chairman, the United States Postal Service was 40 percent more efficient than the number two postal service in the world which was Japan. I observed if we had that kind of productivity efficiency with respect to VCRs, when 99 percent of people buying VCRs, we would be buying RCAs made in America or Emerson or some other manufacturer.

Why has H.R. 22 earned my support and the support of a bipartisan group? Simply put, because it satisfies four areas. First, it protects universal service. That is absolutely essential. Secondly, it protects collective bargaining. Since the Postal Reorganization Act of 1970 made collective bargaining a fundamental right, there has not been a single work stoppage or significant disruption in service as a result of labor-management discord. It is appropriate to protect it and continue it.

I noticed the gentleman from New York (Mr. MCHugh) is back on the floor. I congratulate the gentleman. I said how steadfast you have been in the face of coming right up to the brink of passage and then having to withdraw. We all owe you a debt of gratitude and appreciation for the work you have done on this particular piece of legislation.

H.R. 22 ensures the Postal Service is treated exactly the same way every other Federal agency is, in the area of military pensions. Our postal workers who served in the military served America, not the Postal Service, America. It is the U.S. Government that ought to compensate those military veterans. H.R. 22 mandates that the proportion of their retirement that comes from military service will be paid for by the Treasury, as it should be.

Lastly, H.R. 22 provides the Postal Service the flexibility it needs to set postal rates in a competitive manner. This is a difficult area. I know the committee has grappled with it, but I think the committee has come out with a solution that ought to be supported. There is no legislative reason why postal reform should not be enacted before the end of the year.

Unfortunately, however, I understand the administration has signaled its opposition to key provisions of H.R. 22 and its Senate counterpart S. 662. It is my hope and, yes, my expectation, that the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. Tom Davis), the gentleman from New York (Mr. MCHugh), and the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. DAVIS) will be successful in resisting efforts by the administration to weaken or repeal provisions that are the product of years of hard bipartisan work.

I urge support of this product. I again congratulate the gentleman from New York (Mr. MCHugh) on the work he has so ably led for so long.

Mr. DAVIS of Illinois. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. LYNCH). Mr. LYNCH. Mr. Chairman. I rise in support of H.R. 22. This will be the first major postal reform bill to receive our consideration in 35 years. I would like to, obviously, credit the gentleman from Virginia (Chairman TOM DAVIS) and the gentleman from New York (Mr. MCHugh), the subcommittee chairman, for their great work as well as the ranking member, the gentleman from California (Mr. WAXMAN), and the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. DAVIS) for all of the great work they have done.

But I would be remiss if I did not mention the number of other people who have worked so hard on this, namely, the postal employees themselves. They have been very active in this whole process, including the leadership of the American Postal Workers Union, the National Letter Carriers Union, and the National Mail Handlers Union who have been active and committed to this bill.

All of us will remember in the days and weeks following September 11, we had a series of anthrax attacks conducted through the U.S. mail system. Tragically, among the victims of these attacks were included the lives of two of our postal workers, Joseph Curseen, Jr., and Thomas Morris, Jr., at the Brentwood facility in the D.C. area.

At that time, all of our postal workers, every clerk, every mail handler, was faced with a difficult choice, and that choice was to continue to come to work every day in a very difficult environment caused by anthrax exposure, and perhaps even endangering their families; or staying away from work and their own economy and upsetting the flow of commerce and shaking the confidence of the American people.

The American postal workers, every clerk, every carrier, every mail handler chose to come to work under those conditions. They came here because they chose to come to work under those conditions.

Mr. SCHIFF. I yield to the gentleman from Illinois.

Mr. DAVIS of Illinois. Mr. Chairman, I appreciate the gentleman’s desire to see that the Postal Service takes into account the individual impact on local communities. I share his desire for a comprehensive evaluation of all issues regarding the realignment and consolidation of postal facilities, including individual impact on our local communities.

Mr. TOM DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SCHIFF. I yield to the gentleman from Virginia.

Mr. TOM DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman from California for his support of this legislation and his efforts. I think it is important that all of these different impacts are taken into account when the Postal Service undertakes the realignment and consolidation of postal facilities. I look forward to working with him and the Postal Service.

Mr. DAVIS of Illinois. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

We have heard a great deal of discussion, all good, and again I think it is important that we realize that it took the coming together not only of dedicated Members of the House, but also tremendous staff work. I know that the gentleman from California (Mr. WAXMAN) is not here at the moment, but I want to take the time to commend not only him, but his staff, Phil Schilliro, Phil Barnett, Naomi Seiler, Althea Gregory, as well as the members of my staff, Robert Boykin, Jill Hunter-Williams, and, of course, Denise Wilson, who have worked tirelessly and tirelessly for months and some of them even into years of trying to make sure that we shaped a comprehensive bill, one that all of the stakeholders and shareholders could, in fact, agree with and be proud of, one that did, in fact, continue to protect, universal service, but also, keep in mind that people can get their mail no matter where they live, whether it is on a remote countryside, up the mountain, across the way, across the river, knowing that the mail is going to come.

Again, I want to commend, as we have done so often, and not without reason, the hard work and continuous dedication of the gentleman from New York (Mr. McHugh), who almost single-handedly and sometimes people would say single-handedly has kept this train rolling, has kept this ship going, and has prevented it from veering off course. I am very pleased to have been a part of the process and I commend all of those for making it happen.

Mr. Chairman, I urge strong support for the passage of this important piece of legislation.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. TOM DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 1/2 minutes to the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE).

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Chairman, I want to acknowledge the gentleman from New York (Mr. McHugh) and the authors of this very, very strong legislation that has taken us more than a decade. To the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. Tom Davis), to the gentleman from California (Mr. WAXMAN), to the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. DAVIS), who have worked extremely hard on this issue, might I add my applause and congratulations.

Might I, Mr. Chairman, to the distinguished chairman of the full committee just say one thing. Might I thank the many, many postal workers around America who have been there when you needed them and who have managed to do a major industry with the management of it and the dedication of the gentleman from New York (Mr. McHugh), who almost single-mindedly and sometimes people would say single-handedly has kept this train rolling, has kept this ship going, and has prevented it from veering off course.

I want the supporters of that amendment, those who have advocated for the No Fear Act that was passed by this body, legislation authored by myself and the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. SENSENBRENNER) and signed by the President, that my amendment would have tracked the No Fear Act, which would have established a Civil Rights and Civil Liberties Board pilot program within the Postal Service to monitor and enforce claims of abuse that would call for congressional review after 3 years. There is a grave need for such a body not only within the Postal Service, but in any Federal agency given the poor implementation of the No Fear Act. The public law known as Title 5, Section 74. I understand that the legislation as currently drafted contains, as I said, several new provisions that would protect Federal employees and minorities such as the antikickback provisions, increase oversight functions for the inspector general, and a study of the Board of Governors of the number of contracts awarded to women and minority contractors. I applaud the gentleman from New York (Mr. MCHUGH) for what he has done for over 10 years in this battle. His effort is awesome. This legislation is needed. We believe in universal coverage for mail, but know cost savings need to be made. Congratulations to all of you for doing such a great job in bringing this legislation before us.

Mr. TOM DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself the balance of my time.

It has been said that victory has 1,000 fathers, and defeat an orphan. As we approach a victory on this bill tonight, at least on the House side, let me mention some of the Members who have talked about some of the Members being involved, but thanks also go out to the National Association of Manufacturers, the National Federation of Independent Business, the Small Business Legislative Council; a group of financial service companies like Ameri can Express, Bank of America, Capital One, Chase, Citigroup, Financial Services Roundtable, J.P. Morgan; groups in the newspaper and publisher business like Magazine Publishers of America, National Newspaper Association, Printing Industries of America, Time, Inc.; labor unions like the American Postal Workers Union, National Association of Letter Carriers, National Rural Letter Carriers and the National Postal Mail Handlers Association; postal management organizations like the National Association of Postmasters, National League of Postmasters, National Association of Postal Supervisors; postal competitors like United Parcel Express, UPS and FedEx; and other organizations like the Alliance of Nonprofit Mailers, the Mailers Council, the Parcel Shippers Association, Pitney-Bowes and others.

And on the staff side, Melissa West, my deputy; Jack Callender, who has made his career on the committee the Postal Service; Robert Taub, who the gentleman from New York (Mr. MCHUGH) rightly, I think, gives the credit for being the father of this behind the scenes; Ellen Brown, Mason Aasgreen of our staff, Rob Bor den, Kristina Sherry, Michael Layman, Phil Barnett, Michelle Ash, Denise Wil derson, Naomi Seller, Jill Hunter-Will iams and Richard Boykin from the committee as well. All of these made major contributions.

What does this tell us if we pass this legislation? The cost of stamps is going up, but if we pass this legislation, it will be nowhere near the increases that we will get without this important legislation.

The need for postal reform is obvious in this case. Failure to act is a job-killer. Inaction will jeopardize at least 1.5 million jobs. If we do not seize this moment, we effectively impose a significant new tax and a new tax burden on every American who uses stamps. If we do not act, the Postal Service will be forced to begin increasing postal rates, starting with 2 cents at the beginning of next year. A small business that spends $5,000 annually on postage will lose almost $300 a year. An industry like financial services would get slammed with over $600 million in increases annually with no increase in productivity. And the American public will waste over $20 billion in unnecessary postage over the next decade. That is why this legislation needs to be passed.

What is wrong with the current Postal Service? We have got some of the best and most dedicated workers in the world, as the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER) and the gentleman from California (Mr. WAXMAN) and others have pointed out, but they are operating under a 30-year-old system that has completely missed the information technology revolution. It is a service that is saddled with $7 billion in workers’ comp claims, $5 billion in retirement payments and $57 billion in health care costs. The statutes governing USPS are some of the most rigid and restrictive in the U.S. Code.

Finally, this means jobs. We can talk about trade and everything else, but failure to enact this will cost jobs in every State.

Let me conclude by saying and echoing what the gentleman from California (Mr. WAXMAN) noted, and that is, this bill is not a perfect bill. It is not a perfect bill today. It will not be perfect probably when it comes out of conference. But as we look at this, this is a finely balanced piece of legislation that today has almost unanimous agreement in the industries that are affected, among the workers that are affected and among the consumers that are affected.

We want to keep this balance as this comes to the floor. There are some very attractive amendments, well-meaning amendments that are going to be offered, but they upset this balance and jeopardize this bill. We have in front of us jobs, we have productivity, and we have almost 9 percent of the gross domestic product of this country at stake if we fail to pass this bill. I urge my colleagues to support it.

Mr. BACA. Mr. Chairman, I rise today in support of H.R. 22, the Postal Accountability and Enhancement Act. This bill will allow for the Postal Service to better serve the American People by significantly modernizing its outdated policies.

The last postal reform bill was signed by President Nixon in 1971 and at that time no one could have anticipated all of the technological advances our society would create. At that time we all sent letters to keep in contact with each other and email was something that we never could have imagined. Unfortunately, while we have advanced with the times, the Postal Service has been slow to keep up with our advancing technology. H.R. 22 will allow the Postal Service to continue providing comprehensive universal service, but at a much lower cost.

This bill is the product of hard work between the labor unions, the Postal Service, and the Government Reform Committee. It is a good piece of legislation that will give the Postal Service the rate modernization it needs and it will create a level playing field for the Postal Service to compete with other companies.

I strongly support this bill not only because my late father brought in as a letter carrier, but because the Postal Service has provided a vital service to the public for many years. It’s time that we allow them to modernize so that we may continue to enjoy all of the benefits that they have afforded us.

Mr. EDDIE BROYHILL of North Carolina. Mr. Chairman, I rise today to speak in support of The Postal Accountability and Enhancement Act of 2005.

As we move into a new phase of technological advancements, now is the time for significant reform of our postal system. With over 600-thousand postal workers, the U.S. Postal Service is an essential part of today’s national economic infrastructure. In my home town of Dallas, TX, the role of postal workers are vividly seen in homes, businesses, and even churches. We must have a firm commitment to ensuring that these vital public servants have guaranteed healthcare and retirement benefits, collective bargaining rights, and a decent pay. H.R. 22 will lower costs, strengthen the efficiency of the United States Postal Service, and strengthen the long-term viability of universal postal services. We must act now to ensure that 6-day a week delivery is maintained for all Americans.

I hope my colleagues will join me in supporting this key piece of legislation. Mr. BACA. Mr. Chairman, since the days of the pony express, the USPS has become a part of the American family.

Consider the special place of the Postal Service in our society and its importance to Americans: to the teenagers waiting by the mailbox for the college acceptance letters, to families waiting for letters from loved ones serving abroad, to businesses reaching out to new customers and to so many others.

The Postal Service delivers mail six days a week to nearly 140 million addresses. Every year this number increases by 2 million.

The Postal Service’s unmatched ability to reach every household and business in America six days a week is a vital part of the nation’s infrastructure. The Postal Service needs tools to modernize and compete. That is why today I am a cosponsor of H.R. 22, the Postal Accountability and Enhancement Act.

This legislation will not only ensure survival of the Postal Service but also help preserve universal service at affordable rates for American mailing consumers.

We need to ensure the long-term viability of this $900 billion industry and its nine million employees.

I only wish that we could also pass H.R. 147, the Social Security Fairness Act.

We need to correct the Windfall Elimination Provision, which lowers Social Security benefits for retirees who receive a Civil Service Retirement System annuity and Social Security benefits from other jobs.

Too many Postal Service employees have seen their Social Security benefits reduced by as much as 55 percent because of the Windfall Elimination Provision.

We also need to fix the Government Pension Offset, so that spouses and survivors do not have their benefits reduced.

Mr. Chairman, H.R. 22 is a good first step and I encourage my colleagues to support the bill.

Mr. TOM DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Chairman, please include the attached exchange of letters between Chairman DON YOUNG of the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure, Mr. F. JAMES SENSENBRENNER, Jr., of the Committee on the Judiciary, Chairman BILL THOMAS of the Committee on Ways and Means and myself.

HONORABLE REPRESENTATIVES, COMMITTEE ON TRANSPORTATION AND INFRASTRUCTURE Washington, DC, April 25, 2005.

Hon. Tom Davis, Chairman, Committee on Government Reform, Rayburn Building, Washington, DC.

Dear Mr. Chairman: I am writing to you concerning the jurisdictional interest of the Transportation and Infrastructure Committee on matters being considered in H.R. 22, the Postal Accountability and Enhancement Act.

Our Committee recognizes the importance of H.R. 22 and the need for the legislation to move expeditiously. Therefore, while we have a valid claim to jurisdiction over certain provisions of the bill, I will agree not to request a sequential referral. This, of course, is conditional on our mutual understanding that nothing in this legislation or my decision to forego a sequential referral waives, rescinds or otherwise affects the jurisdiction of the Transportation and Infrastructure Committee, and that a copy of this letter and your responses to our valid jurisdictional interest will be included in the Committee report and in the Congressional Record when the bill considered on the House Floor.

The Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure also asks that you support our request to be conferenced on the provisions over which we have jurisdiction during any House Senate conference.

Thank you for your cooperation in this matter.

Sincerely,

Hon. Don Young, Chairman.
I agree that the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure has a valid jurisdictional interest in H.R. 22 and that the committee's jurisdiction will not be adversely affected by your decision to not request a sequential referral of H.R. 22. In addition, I will support your request for the appointment of outside conferees from the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure to a House-Senate conference committee on this or similar legislation should such a conference be convened.

As you have requested, I will include a copy of your letter and this response in the Congressional Record during consideration of H.R. 22, the Postal Accountability and Enhancement Act, and your willingness to forego consideration of H.R. 22 by your committee. As you noted, the Committee on the Judiciary considered a similar bill last Congress, H.R. 4341; and the amendments agreed to by your committee last Congress were significantly different. I am not incorporating in H.R. 22 this Congress by Congressman McHugh and myself.

I agree that the Committee on the Judiciary has a valid jurisdictional interest in H.R. 22 and that the committee's jurisdiction will not be adversely affected by your decision to not call a business meeting to consider H.R. 22. In addition, I will support your request for the appointment of outside conferees from the Committee on the Judiciary to a House-Senate conference committee on this or similar legislation should such a conference be convened.

As you have requested, I will include a copy of your letter and this response in the Congressional Record during consideration of H.R. 22 on the House floor. Thank you for your assistance as I work towards the enactment of H.R. 22.

Sincerely,

TOM DAVIS, Chairman, Committee on Government Reform, House of Representatives, Washington, DC, May 12, 2005.

Thank you for your willingness to address an important competitive and viable in the 21st century. As a co-sponsor of H.R. 22, I would urge all my colleagues to support the passage of this important legislation.

Ms. DeLAURO. Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong support of H.R. 22, the Postal Accountability and Enhancement Act. This legislation, which is long overdue, will improve commerce in this country, better the lives of the nation's postal workers, and guarantee that the mail will be delivered each day to the 140 million American households that look forward to a daily visit from their letter carrier.

In a time of declining revenues and increased costs, it is no secret that the Postal Service faces financial challenges. Competition in the package-delivery business and from Internet-based communication has intensified. And, as a result, each year, the dedicated letter carriers of the Postal Service are asked to carry less mail to more households and businesses nationwide. In part, that is because the Postal Service is operating under laws written 35 years ago—long before anyone had ever heard of the Internet.

This legislation will modernize the Postal Service, giving it the resources and flexibility it needs to manage its operations and set fair prices. The bill will help the Postal Service cut through the bureaucratic red tape and allow it to act more like the businesses it must compete against.

In addition to providing a more streamlined rate-setting process that will allow the Postal Service to make business decisions quickly, the bill also will allow the Postal Service to enter into partnerships with second- and third-class letter carriers, while preserving the benefits of those at postal sorting and processing centers. I welcome these improvements, although I anticipate more will need to be done to balance... the mailing industry’s need for price certainty with unanticipated or extraordinary fiscal needs of the Postal Service.

The bill will alleviate a $27 billion burden by limiting the Postal Service’s responsibility to pay the benefits of veterans who also worked in the Postal Service. To be clear, this provision does not limit the benefits of our brave veterans who, after military service, went on to work for the Postal Service. This bill simply says that the U.S. Treasury must pay veterans benefits, and the Postal Service must pay postal benefits.

Mr. Chairman, this legislation is also good for one of the Postal Service’s best assets—its human capital. I am particularly pleased that this bill preserves the right of more than 500,000 postal workers and letter carriers to bargain collectively. These dedicated men and women work in processing centers, they work in local post offices, and they work in our neighborhoods delivering the mail to our doorsteps each day. They are the reason that the postal service has a 96 percent on-time delivery record for first-class mail.

Mr. Chairman, this is a good bill. It will make the Postal Service leaner and more efficient, while preserving the collective bargaining rights of its workers. And it will continue the legacy of universal service. Since the birth of this nation, the United States Postal Service has been committed to delivering the mail to every single household in the country—142 million in all today. The daily mail delivery is something that many Americans look forward to, and this bill will ensure that the Postal Service has the resources it needs to maintain that commitment well into the future. I urge my colleagues to support this important legislation.

Mr. BACA. Mr. Chairman, since the days of the pony express, the USPS has become a part of the American family. Consider the special place of the Postal Service in our society and its importance to Americans: to the teenagers waiting by the mailbox for the college acceptance letters, to families waiting for letters from loved ones serving abroad, to businesses reaching out to new customers and to so many others.

The Postal Service delivers mail six days a week to nearly 140 million addresses. Every year this number increases by 2 million. The Postal Service’s unmatched ability to reach every household and business in America six days a week is a vital part of the nation’s infrastructure.

The Postal Service needs tools to modernize and compete. That is why today I am a cosponsor of H.R. 22, the Postal Accountability and Enhancement Act. This legislation will not only ensure the survival of the Postal Service but also help preserve universal service at affordable rates for American mailing consumers. We need to ensure the long-term viability of this $900 billion industry and its nine million employees. I only wish that we could also pass H.R. 147, the Social Security Fairness Act.

We need to correct the Windfall Elimination Provision, which lowers Social Security benefits for retirees who receive a Civil Service Retirement System annuity and Social Security benefits from other jobs. Too many Postal Service employees have seen their Social Security benefits reduced by as much as 55% because of the Windfall Elimination Provision. We also need to fix the Government Pension Offset, so that spouses and survivors do not have their benefits reduced.

Mr. Chairman, H.R. 22 is a good first step and I encourage my colleagues to support the bill.

Mr. LEACH. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the legislation before us: the most important postal reform of our generation.

The specific reforms contained in the bill have been well described in the preceding comments of various members, but I would simply like to underscore the importance of the United States Postal Service to the country, past, present, and future. And I emphasize the immense respect that citizens have for their mail carriers.

The United States Postal Service began with the founding of the Republic; it grew as the nation grew. It has continuously transformed itself with entrepreneurial enterprise and technological innovation.

Before Henry Ford developed mass assembly techniques in the automobile industry, mail carriers on horseback—the pony express—used analogous methods of passing along packages to so many others as rail cars added speed, labor- and horse-saving capabilities to mail delivery in the latter half of the 19th century, the airplane has provided the means to bring greater speed and service efficiency in the last century. Likewise, at the various decentralized post offices and more centralized postal hubs, innovative machinery to help sort and distribute the mail has been developed. But the unique aspect of mail delivery is that it remains a people-centric service. Good people make a difference and the Postal Service has a heritage of decency and quality of service. I urge my colleagues to support this important legislation.

Mr. TOM DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The CHAIRMAN. All time for general debate has expired.

Pursuant to the rule, the committee amendment in the nature of a substitute printed in the bill shall be considered as an original bill for the purpose of amendment under the 5-minute rule and shall be considered read.

TITLE II—MODERN RATE REGULATION

SEC. 201. PROVISIONS RELATING TO MARKET-DOMINANT PRODUCTS.

(a) In General—The Postal Regulatory Commission shall, within 24 months after the date of the enactment of this section, by regulation establish and (may from time to time thereafter by regulation revise) a modern system for regulating rates and classes for market-dominant products.

(b) OBJECTIVES.—Such system shall be designed to achieve the following objectives:

“(1) To establish and maintain a fair and equitable schedule for rates and classification.

“(2) To maximize incentives to reduce costs and increase efficiency.

“(3) To create predictability and stability in rates.

“(4) To maintain high quality service standards.

“(5) To allow the Postal Service pricing flexibility.

“(6) To assure adequate revenues, including retained earnings, to maintain financial stability.

“(7) To reduce the administrative burden of the ratemaking process.

“(8) To facilitate establishing or revising such system, the Postal Regulatory Commission shall take into account—

“(1) the value of the mail service actually provided each class or type of mail service to both the sender and the recipient, including but not limited to the collection, mode of transportation, and priority of delivery;

“(2) the direct and indirect postal costs attributable to each class or type of mail service plus that portion of all other costs of the Postal Service reasonably assignable to such class or type;

“(3) the effect of rate increases upon the general public, business mail users, and enterprises in the private sector of the economy engaged in the delivery of mail matter other than letters;

“(4) the available alternative means of sending and receiving letters and other mail matter at reasonable costs;

“(5) the degree of preparation of mail for delivery into the postal system, performed by the matter and its effect upon reducing costs to the Postal Service;

“(6) simplicity of structure for the entire schedule, including all rates, and relationships among the rates or fees charged various classes of mail for postal services;

“(7) the relative value to the people of the kinds of mail matter entered into the postal system and the desirability and justification for special classifications and services of mail;

“(8) the importance of providing classifications with extremely high degrees of reliability and speed of delivery and of providing those that do not require high degrees of reliability and speed of delivery;

“(9) the desirability of special classifications from the point of view of both the user and of the Postal Service;

“(10) the educational, cultural, scientific, and informational value to the recipient of mail matter; and “(11) the policies of this title as well as such factors as the Commission deems appropriate.

(c) RULE OF CONSTRUCTION.—Mail matter referred to in subsection (a) shall, for purposes of this subchapter, be considered to have the meaning given to such mail matter under the mail classification schedule.

SEC. 202. PROVISIONS RELATING TO COMPETITIVE PRODUCTS.

Chapter 36 of title 39, United States Code, is amended by inserting after section 3629 the following:

“(b) DEFINITION.—For purposes of this subchapter, the term ‘costs attributable’, as used with respect to a product, means the direct and indirect postal costs attributable to such product.

(c) RULE OF CONSTRUCTION.—Mail matter referred to in subsection (a) shall, for purposes of this subchapter, be considered to have the meaning given to such mail matter under the mail classification schedule.

§ 3632. Action of the Governors and classes for products in the competitive category of mail in accordance with the requirements of this subchapter and regulations promulgated under section 3631.

(1) In general.—Rates and classes shall be established in writing, complete with a statement of explanation and justification, and the date as of which each such rate or class takes effect.

(2) Rates or Classes of General Applicability.—In the case of rates or classes of general applicability in the Nation as a whole or any substantial region of the Nation, the Governors shall cause each rate and class decision under this section and the record of the Governors’ commission on the decision to be published in the Federal Register at least 30 days before the effective date of any new rates or classes.

(2) Rates or Classes not of General Applicability.—In the case of rates or classes not of general applicability in the Nation as a whole or any substantial region of the Nation, the Governors shall cause each rate and class decision under this section and the record of the proceedings in connection with such decision to be filed with the Postal Regulatory Commission by such date as the Governors determine, but in no case less than 15 days. If any part of such rates or classes is not of general applicability in the Nation as a whole or in any substantial region of the Nation, the Governors shall cause each rate and class decision under this section and the record of the proceedings in connection with such decision to be published in the Federal Register at least 30 days before the effective date of the enactment of the section.

§3631. Market tests of experimental products—(a) Authority.—(1) In general.—The Postal Service may conduct market tests of experimental products in accordance with this section.

(b) Provisions waived.—A product shall not, while it is being tested under this section, be subject to the requirements of sections 3622, 3632, 3633, or 3642, or regulations promulgated under those sections.

(c) Conditions.—A product may not be tested under this section unless it satisfies each of the following:

(1) Significantly different product.—The product is, from the viewpoint of the mail users, significantly different from all products offered by market-dominant products; and

(2) Marketing disruption.—The introduction or continuation of tests of the product will not create an unfair or otherwise inappropriate competitive advantage for the Postal Service or any mailer, particularly in regard to small business concerns (as defined under subsection (h)).

(2) Correct categorization.—The Postal Service identifies the product, for the purpose of a test under this section, as market dominant or competitive, consistent with the criteria under section 3642(b)(1). Costs and revenues attributable to a product identified as competitive shall be included in subsection 3633(3) (relating to provisions applicable to competitive products collectively).

(3) Notice.—(1) In general.—At least 30 days before initiating a market test under this section, the Postal Service shall file with the Postal Regulatory Commission and publish in the Federal Register a notice.

(5) Transition rule.—Until regulations are adopted under this section (b)(2).

(6) Exemption authority.—The Postal Regulatory Commission may exempt the market test involved on the appropriateness of the proposed rates or classes from the provisions of this section (b).

(7) Additional considerations.—In making any decision under this section, due regard shall be given to—

(1) The availability and nature of enterprises in the private sector engaged in the delivery of the product involved;

(2) The views of those who use the product involved as to the appropriateness of the proposed action; and

(3) The likely impact of the proposed action on small business concerns (within the meaning of section 3641(h)).

(8) Transfers of Subclasses and Other Subordinate Units Allowable.—Nothing in this title shall be considered to prevent transfers under this section from being made by reason of the fact that they would involve only some (but not all) of the subclasses or other subordinate units of the class of mail or type of postal service involved (without modification of minimum quantity requirements standing alone).

(9) Notification and publication requirements.—(1) Notification requirement.—The Postal Service shall, whenever it requests to add a new product to the lists, removing products from the lists, or transferring products between the lists.

(2) Exclusion of products covered by Postal monopoly.—A product covered by the postal monopoly shall not be subject to transfer under this section from the market-dominant category of mail. For purposes of the preceding sentence, the term ‘‘product covered by the postal monopoly’’ means any product the conveyance of which the Postal Service exercises sufficient financial stability of the Postal Service; and

(3) the product is not likely to result in unfair or otherwise inappropriate competition.

(1) In general.—A product may be tested under this section only if the total revenues that are anticipated, or in fact received, by the Postal Service from such product do not exceed $50,000,000 nationwide in any year, subject to paragraph (2).

(2) Determination authority.—If necessary in order to determine the feasibility or desirability of a product being tested under this section, the Postal Regulatory Commission may, upon written application from the Postal Service, extend the testing of such product without regard to the deadlines for the Postal Service’s first report to the Postal Regulatory Commission under section 3652(a).

(3) Additional considerations.—In making any decision under this section, due regard shall be given to—

(1) The market-dominant category of products shall consist of each product in the sale of which the Postal Service exercises sufficient market power that it can effectively set the price of such product substantially above costs, raise prices significantly, decrease quality, or decrease output, without repercussions to other firms offering similar products.

(2) The criteria used in defining small business concerns as small business concerns shall, for purposes of each year following the year in which occurs the deadline for the Postal Service’s first report to the Postal Regulatory Commission under section 3652(a).
(c) Information from Postal Service.—The Postal Service shall provide the Postal Regulatory Commission with such information as may, in the judgment of the Commission, be necessary for the Commission to prepare its reports under this section.

§3652. Annual reports to the Commission

(a) Costs, Revenues, and Rates.—Except as provided in subsection (c), the Postal Service shall, no later than the end of each year, prepare and submit to the Postal Regulatory Commission a report (together with such nonpublic annex thereto as the Commission may require) that shall—

(1) which shall analyze costs, revenues, and rates, using such methodologies as the Commission shall by regulation prescribe, and in sufficient detail to allow the Inspector General to assess the accuracy and completeness of the costs identified in each report under this section.

(b) Workshare Discount Defined.—For purposes of this section, the term ‘workshare discount’ has the meaning given such term under section 3687.

(c) Market Tests.—In carrying out subsections (a) and (b) with respect to experimental products offered through market tests under section 3641 in a year, the Postal Service—

(1) may report summary data on the costs, revenues, and quality of service by market test; and

(2) shall report such data as the Postal Regulatory Commission requires.

(d) Support.—The Postal Regulatory Commission shall have access, in accordance with such regulations as the Commission shall prescribe, to the working papers and any other supporting matter of the Postal Service and the Inspector General in connection with any information submitted under this section.

§3653. Annual determination of compliance

(a) Opportunity for Public Comment.—After receiving the reports required under section 3652 for any year, the Postal Regulatory Commission shall promptly provide an opportunity for comment on such reports by users of the mails, affected parties, and an officer of the Commission who shall be required to represent the interests of the general public.

(b) Determination of Compliance or Noncompliance.—Not later than 90 days after receiving the submissions required under section 3652 with respect to a year, the Postal Regulatory Commission shall make a written determination as to—

(1) whether any rates or fees in effect during such year for products individually or collectively were not in compliance with applicable provisions of this chapter (or regulations promulgated thereunder); and

(2) whether any performance goals established under sections 2003 or 2004 for such year were not met; and

(c) If Any Noncompliance Is Found.—If, for a year, a timely written determination of noncompliance is made under subsection (b), the Postal Regulatory Commission shall take appropriate action in accordance with subsections (c)–(e) of section 3632 (as if a complaint alleging such noncompliance had been duly filed and found under such section to be justified).

(d) REPUTABLE PRESUMPTION.—A timely written determination described in the last sentence of paragraph (b), for purposes of any proceeding under section 3662, create a rebuttable presumption of compliance by the Postal Service (with regard to the matters described in paragraph (d)(1) of subsection (b)) during the year to which such determination relates.

§3654. Additional financial reporting

(a) ADDITIONAL FINANCIAL REPORTING.—

(1) The Postal Service shall file with the Postal Regulatory Commission beginning with the first full fiscal year following the effective date of this section—

(B) within 90 days after the end of each fiscal year, an annual report containing the information required by the Securities and Exchange Commission to be included in annual reports under section 15(d) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (as amended) in such Form (or any successor form) may be revised from time to time; and

(C) periodic reports within the time frame and containing the information prescribed in Form 8-K of the Securities and Exchange Commission, as such Form (or any successor form) may be revised from time to time.

(c) TREATMENT.—For purposes of the reports required by subsection (a)(1)(B), the Postal Service shall determine the appropriate reporting under subparagraph (A) after consultation with the Postal Regulatory Commission.

(d) TREATMENT.—For purposes of the reports required by subdivision (a)(3) of subsection (b), the Postal Service shall obtain an opinion from an independent auditor whether the information included in subsection (b) is fairly stated in all material respects in accordance with the basic financial statements as a whole or on a stand-alone basis.

(e) SUPPORTING MATTER.—The Postal Regulatory Commission shall have access to the audit documentation and any other supporting matter of the Postal Service and its independent auditor in connection with any information submitted under this section.

(f) REVISIONS.—Any revisions made, in the opinion of the Commission, otherwise necessitated by the public interest.

(g) CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION.—

(1) In general.—The Postal Service determines that any document or portion of a document, or other matter, which it provides to the Postal Regulatory Commission in a nonpublic manner under subsection (c) of section 3662, is potentially exempt from disclosure in such manner under subsection (d) contains information which is described in section 401(c) of this title, or exempt from public disclosure under section 552(b) of title 5, or is at the time providing such matter to the Commission, notify the Commission of its determination, in writing, and describe with particularity the documents (or portions of documents) or other matter for which confidentiality is sought and the reasons therefor.

(2) Treatment.—Any information or other matter described in paragraph (1) to which the Commission gains access under this section shall be subject to paragraphs (2) and (3) of section 504(g) in the same way as if the Commission had received notices to expect to such matter under section 504(g)(1).

SEC. 205. COMPLAINTS, APPELATE REVIEW AND ENFORCEMENT.

(b) Prompt response required.—

(1) In general.—The Postal Regulatory Commission shall, within 90 days after receiving a complaint described in paragraph (a), either accept the complaint and provide a hearing thereon in such form and manner as the Commission shall prescribe, or dismiss the complaint without prejudice.

(c) Treatment of complaints not timely acted on.—For purposes of section 3663, any complaint described in paragraph (a) that has not been accepted for a hearing or dismissed without prejudice required by paragraph (1) shall be treated in the same way as if it had been dismissed pursuant to an order issued by the Commission on the last day allowable for the issuance of such order under paragraph (1).

(d) Action required if complaint found to be justified.—If the Postal Regulatory Commission finds the complaint to be justified, it shall order that the Postal Service take such action as the Commission considers appropriate in order to achieve compliance with the applicable requirements and to remedy the effects of any noncompliance (such as ordering unlawful discounts that ensure that such discounts do not exceed the cost that the Postal Service would suffer substantial injury, loss, or damage under a suspension, (3) whether the Postal Service would suffer substantial injury, loss, or damage under a suspension, and (4) the public interest.

(a) In general.—Title 39, United States Code, is amended by adding after section 3686 (as added by section 406) the following:

postal Workshare discounts

(a) In general.—As part of the regulations established under section 3622(a), the Postal Regulatory Commission shall establish rules for workshare discounts that ensure that such discounts do not exceed the cost that the Postal Service avoids as the result of workshare activity, unless—

(1) the discount is—

(A) associated with a new postal service, a change to an existing postal service, or a new workshare initiative related to an existing postal service.

(B) necessary to induce mailer behavior that furthers the economically efficient operation of the Postal Service and the portion of the discount in excess of the cost that the Postal Service avoids as a result of the workshare activity will be phased out over a limited period of time;

(2) the discount would—

(A) lead to a loss of volume in the affected category or subclass of mail and reduce the aggregate contribution to the institutional costs of the Postal Service from the category or subclass subject to the discount below what it otherwise would have been if the discount had not been reduced to costs avoided;

(B) result in a slower increase in the rates paid by mailers not able to take advantage of the discount; or

(C) impede the efficient operation of the Postal Service;

(3) the amount of the discount above costs avoided—

(A) is necessary to mitigate rate shock; and

(B) will be phased out over time; or

(4) the discount is provided in connection with subclasses of mail consisting exclusively of mail matter of educational, cultural, scientific, or informational value.

(b) REPORT.—Whenever the Postal Service establishes or maintains a workshare discount, the Postal Service shall, at the time it publishes the workshare discount rate, submit to the Postal Regulatory Commission a detailed report that—

(1) explains the Postal Service’s reasons for establishing or maintaining the rate;

(2) sets forth the data, economic analyses, and other information relied on by the Postal Service to justify the rate; and

(3) certifies that the discount will not adversely affect rates or services provided to users of postal services who do not take advantage of the discount rate.

(c) DEFINITION.—For purposes of this section, the term ‘workshare discount’ refers to rate discounts provided to mailers for the presorting, prebarcoding, handling, or transportation of mail, as further defined by the Postal Regulatory Commission under section 3622(a).”.

AMENDMENT NO. 1 OFFERED BY MR. PENCE

Mr. PENCE, Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment to House Resolution 380, the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. PENCE) and the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. TOM DAVIS) each will control 10 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. PENCE).

Mr. PENCE. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I rise today to offer the Pence amendment to the Postal Accountability and Enhancement Act, and, along with several of my colleagues, will endeavor to bring real reform and real enhancement to a bill however well conceived and well intentioned by my colleagues. In fact, I rise today to begin by thanking the gentleman from Virginia (Chairman TOM DAVIS) and the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. Tom Davis) and, Mr. McGurk, the author of this legislation, for their leadership on this measure and their sincerity in attempting to ensure the ongoing vitality of the U.S. Postal Service and the tradition that it has enjoyed in this Nation, an invaluable part of our economy since before our Nation was formed.

But before I get to the substance of the Pence amendment, Mr. Chairman, I yield to begin to address the reasons why the Bush administration did today issue a Statement of Administration Policy opposing significant portions of this legislation and, in fact, suggesting that if this legislation did not achieve the objective of budget restraint and fiscal reform, that the President’s advisors would encourage him to veto this legislation that will come before the House today.

A few observations from the report on the President’s Commission of the United States Postal Service are in order. The Commission found that the national facet of the United States Postal Service is its complete inability to control costs, and rate-payers have been paying the freight as a result of that along with taxpayers, who recently financed nearly $7 billion in a Postal Service bailout just a few short years ago. Of that uncontrollable cost, 80 percent of the United States Postal Service costs are constituted in labor, this in a competitive marketplace. UPS and FedEx spend only 56 percent and 42 percent of their cost on labor. Clearly the United States Postal Service is, as the President’s Commission found, desperately in need of flexibility to achieve workforce reform.

The USPS is currently providing its workers roughly $870 million more in benefits than Federal workers receive as a result of lucrative health and life insurance benefits, and that is just the beginning.

H.R. 22 that we will consider today contains none of the main collective bargaining proposals offered by the President’s Commission. It contains none of the reforms offered by the Commission to establish a BRAC-style process to consolidate and shut down facilities that use money. And while H.R. 22 does laudably contain a cap on postal rate increases, many are highly skeptical about how that will work. The Congressional Budget Office states that the USPS will “increase rates . . . more frequently than under current law, but by smaller increments.” In addition, the cap could be blown if such an increase were “reasonable and equitable for the continuation of services. Such a cap hardly equips the U.S. Postal Service with the tools to control costs and renegotiate its labor costs.

So we come today, a series of us, with the kind of reforms that we believe will give the Postal Service the opportunity and the flexibility to achieve reforms necessary to live within its means. That is why I submitted an amendment to enact the Commission’s recommendation to reform the workers’ compensation reforms to align more closely with the private sector. Unfortunately, these amendments were made not in the form of amendments but in the form of the bill itself.

In fact, today the Pence amendment will deal with a provision of this legislation that, believe it or not, would set aside a seat on the Board of Governors specifically for an individual unanimously approved by all labor unions. More on that in a moment. I say this with deep respect, Mr. Chairman. I understand why the Democratic minority whip just said on this floor that this was “a good bill that should be passed this year.” Just do not understand why a Republican majority in Congress, with the firm and clear opposition of a Republican President, would do likewise.

Let me get to the substance of the Pence amendment, if I may. The Pence amendment essentially removes a provision of H.R. 22 that requires that the first vacant slot on the Board of Governors literally be filled by an individual with the unanimous backing of “all labor organizations.” The headlines today would attest that it might be difficult, depending on the definition of “all labor organizations,” to get all labor organizations to agree on anything these days.

The current Board of Governors consists of nine members with no more than five from the same party. This bill would ensure that one of these seats would be set aside to represent the interests of one special interest group to the exclusion of other interests like mailers or, dare I say it, taxpayers. It is this type of provision that we must confront in this legislation, and the Pence amendment humbly seeks to strike that.

And workforce is the issue. Mr. Chairman, the U.S. Postal Service is the second largest employer in the United States, second only to Wal-Mart. And according to the President’s Commission report, 3 out of every 4 earnings by the Postal Service went to pay wages and benefits of its employees in fiscal year 2002. The unions have been extraordinarily effective over the last 25 years, as has been said over and over again, preventing layoffs and recently announcing having inked the second largest increase in the unions’ history. I believe that is why the Statement of Administration Policy that was issued today simply read, and I quote, “Should the final bill have an adverse impact on the federal budget, the President’s senior advisors would recommend that he veto the bill.”

The Pence amendment is all about bringing the kind of reforms in this bill that will allow the U.S. Postal Service to maintain and its fiscal integrity for years to come. The Pence amendment in its effort to strike section 401 is a modest effort to achieve that goal.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. TOM DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Florida (Ms. GINNY BROWN-WAITE).

Ms. GINNY BROWN-WAITE of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

This amendment that is proposed would remove a provision from a very carefully crafted piece of legislation that would require the first vacant slot on the Postal Service Governors to be filled by an individual with unanimous backing by labor unions. Currently there are 11 members. This bill would provide that one of those seats become a labor seat, certainly not documented by any other amendment that would undermine the consensus behind the legislation. And then let us move forward. We will have to be talking to the other body. We will have to be talking to the President and people in his administration in order to get a law, but we have a consensus for a bill that we hope will become law.

Mr. TOM DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from Florida (Ms. GINNY BROWN-WAITE).

Ms. GINNY BROWN-WAITE of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

This amendment, when we get right to what the amendment is all about, is to take the one out of nine seats on the Board of Governors away from a union representative. The Postal Service has 700,000 career employees. They are the ones who make the system work. Are they the ones for which this legislation is intended? This idea of giving them representation is backed by labor, management, business. We have all worked cooperatively together on postal reform legislation. They have been part of the process.

That is why this legislation is so broadly supported.

This amendment would undermine the consensus behind the legislation. It singles out one group and says they lose, they lose their seat on the Board. That may be good politics for people who want to say they are antiunions, but it is not good for this legislation or for the Postal Service.

So I would urge my colleagues to oppose the Pence amendment and to support this bill, not to add this or any other amendment that would undermine the consensus behind the legislation. And then let us move forward. We will have to be talking to the other body. We will have to be talking to the President and people in his administration in order to get a law, but we have a consensus for a bill that we hope will become law.

Mr. TOM DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from Florida (Ms. GINNY BROWN-WAITE).

Ms. GINNY BROWN-WAITE of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

This amendment that is proposed would remove a provision from a very carefully crafted piece of legislation that would require the first vacant slot on the Postal Service Governors to be filled by an individual with unanimous backing by labor unions. Currently there are 11 members. This bill would provide that one of those seats become a labor seat, certainly not documented by any other amendment. One seat would be a labor seat.

The provision requiring the seat to become a labor seat has been in the Postal Accountability and Enhancement Act for 11 years. No group on either side of the issue has ever expressed an opposition to the change in statute, and I am unclear why this issue has actually risen today. Simply requiring one of a nine-member Board speak on behalf of thousands of employees in everyone’s district here hardly seems to be unreasonable or undoable.

H.R. 22 is a bill that we have heard many people on the floor say how many years it has been worked on, well over decades. I urge my colleagues to vote against this and other amendments that do not provide for any real improvements in the underlying text of the bill that we have before us tonight.
Mr. TOM DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Chairman, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from New York (Mr. McHUGH).

Mr. MCHUGH. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

I want to be very quick here, and I certainly appreciate our distinguished colleague’s comments and deeply appreciate his concern.

Just a couple of points. As the gentleman from California (Mr. Waxman) said, I have to disagree with the gentleman’s comments that somehow the President’s Commission is at odds with what this bill entails. In fact, I think it is fair to say the President’s Commission adopted at least, at least, 80 percent of H.R. 22 as it was originally drafted and continues to be contained therein.

He also spoke about the Statement of Administration Policy, the SAP, and talked about labor representation as though the President has opposed this. That is not true. The President’s SAP does not address this issue, and, in fact, the United States Postal Service has not taken a position on this particular provision as well, which is the context of the gentleman’s amendment. With all due respect, I think that clarification is vital.

It also talked about Republican-Democrat. I do not think this is a novel concept. Many major corporations from Daimler-Chrysler, TWA, and on and on have labor union representation on their boards. We would also note that many organizations that are generally not considered liberal, perhaps Democrat, not just support H.R. 22, but oppose the gentleman’s amendment. I will name just a few: American Express, Bank of America, Capital One, JP Morgan Chase, the Citigroup, Financial Services Roundtable. As I said, pretty conservative organizations that oppose this amendment.

The fact of the matter is, this is well accepted in the industry sector. There will be one out of nine members of the Board of Governors, and I do not think it is unreasonable to have such a labor-intensive organization have a labor vote on that. While I do respect the gentleman’s intent, I think, as has been suggested, these are issues that are much better dealt with in the context of the committee.

Mr. PENCE. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. Flake).

Mr. FLAKE. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the Pence amendment. It is to remove this language in H.R. 22 that reserves one seat on the Postal Board of Governors for a representative of labor unions.

The U.S. Postal Service is a government-owned corporation and, as such, is technically owned by the U.S. taxpayer. The space positively for labor representatives confers preferential status and, in my view, undue influence to one interest group at the expense of all other stakeholders in postal operations, particularly first-class mail users.

I think it is a good amendment. I think it is something that I believe this kind of set-aside may not be in the Senate version of the bill. It is certainly a topic that needs to be debated and taken up in conference, and I would encourage my colleagues to accept it.

Mr. TOM DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Davis).

Mr. DAVIS of Illinois. Mr. Chairman, one of the great accomplishments of this legislation is the fact that it was able to bring labor and management together, to bring both sides to the table and have them agree. The gentleman from Indiana’s amendment did not mention the fact that four of the slots were designated for management. So certainly, if management would have at least four slots pretty much designated, then certainly labor ought to have one.

The other point is that throughout the deliberations, very seldom did we hear management. I think that there’s a split between Democrats and Republicans. We really talked about moving a postal system and a postal service forward. So I would oppose the gentleman’s amendment.

Mr. PENCE. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Hensarling).

Mr. HENSARLING. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time and I rise in support of his amendment.

As I understand it, if there are nine members of this board, no more than five can be from the party of the President. Inasmuch as the President is presently a Republican, that would mean that at least four seats would be allocated to those who are members of the Democrat party. The last time I looked, although perhaps some labor unions are falling out amongst themselves, there has not been a falling out between the labor union movement and the Democrat Party, so I would think they would be well represented.

I think perhaps somebody that might be terribly underrepresented tonight would be the poor beleaguered taxpayer. Given that there are over 140 million of them, perhaps we should consider reserving at least one seat for them. To make sure that their interests are represented since, too often, so many of the aspects of this legislation that we are discussing tonight ultimately could fall upon them. If there is anybody who deserves special recognition on these matters, I think that their interests are represented since, too often, so many of the aspects of this legislation that we are discussing tonight ultimately could fall upon them. If there is anybody who deserves special recognition on these matters, I think that their interests are represented since, too often, so many of the aspects of this legislation that we are discussing tonight ultimately could fall upon them. If there is anybody who deserves special recognition on these matters, I think that their interests are represented since, too often, so many of the aspects of this legislation that we are discussing tonight ultimately could fall upon them.

Mr. PENCE. Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. TOM DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. Jackson-Lee).

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Chairman, I thank the distinguished gentleman for yielding me this time.

First of all, I cannot think the ranking member and the chairman of the full committee, and the ranking member of the subcommittee and chairman of the subcommittee enough for such a thoughtful piece of legislation. But with respect to this amendment, might I say the composition of this board and the representation of one union member is what you call consensus and what you call cooperation.

Just listening to the leadership of my local union, the letter carriers, with the President, President Prissy Grace, and the American Postal Workers Union, as well as the Postmaster General in my congressional district, Ms. Green, they don’t think the wording of this amendment. This is a reform and reformation of the postal system for the better, to make them efficient, to make them productive, and to serve the American people.

Having their work represented on this board serves the purpose of the American people, and I ask my colleagues to support the amendment.

Mr. PENCE. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I thank the members of the committee, especially the sponsor of this bill, for their sincerity of purpose and civility in this debate. I also thank my colleagues who have risen in support of the Pence amendment, which, again, simply removes the provision of H.R. 22 that requires that the first vacant slot on the Board of Governors be filled by an individual with unanimous backing by all labor organizations.

The Pence amendment is supported by National Right to Work, by Americans For Tax Reform. We already have fairness on the board, Mr. Chairman: five members of one political party, the party in power in the White House, and four members appointed by the other political party. We do not need a tie-breaker member that is selected by the unanimous consent of all the labor unions.

If we are going to achieve the labor and workforce reforms necessary to restore this critical service and ensure its vitality in the 21st century, we must ensure that those reforms are not stymied by a reserved seat for labor unions on the postal board.

Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. TOM DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume. I thank my friend for offering his amendment. I am unable to support it, but I understand the spirit in which he is giving it to try to make this a better bill.

This is a carefully crafted bill in which Republicans and Democrats have come to agree to try to work through a lot of issues, and moving one part out really jeopardizes the total package.

The gentleman quoted the minority leader, or the minority whip, as saying, This Amendment, and such Amendment, should be passed this year; and he understood that, but why would a Republican Congress do it.

A Republican Congress would pass this bill because we do not want a 2-cent rate increase next January. The only way we can forestall that rate increase is by passing this legislation; and to pass this legislation, we need to work together with Republicans and Democrats. That means we give on some issues and we take on others. Those are the purposes of this Amendment.

I ought to have a taxpayer on the board. I think everybody who is on the board is a taxpayer. The fact of the matter is, there are four members of the board who are management, but they are not postal management. There are two postal management members of the board, and this would reserve one for the unions to pick; and by the way, there are diversity among the postal unions. That is a tough job to pick some who are because of competing interests over mail handlers versus letter carriers and the like.

But this is good legislation, and I am afraid that this amendment, in my judgment, despite I think the best intentions of its author, will upset that delicate balance that we have created to this point. It is not something that is new to corporate America to have a member of labor sitting on corporate boards. It is actually done quite frequently, particularly in the airline industry, but also in other industries where this is fairly common at this point. And since the postal workers have a lot to gain or lose by this as well, we think their voice can be very constructive at the end of the day.

So for those reasons and the fact that this particular provision has been in the bill since its introduction 11 years ago, and until this amendment was filed, I do not think any objections have been raised. I understand where the gentleman is coming from; but for those reasons, I would ask my colleagues to reject the Pence amendment and to support the final passage.

Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. Pence).

The question was taken; and the Chairman announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Mr. PENCE. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. Pence) will be postponed.

It is now in order to consider amendment No. 2, printed in House Report 109-184.

AMENDMENT NO. 2 OFFERED BY MR. FLAKE

Mr. FLAKE, Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 2 offered by Mr. Flake: Page 120, after line 8, insert the following (and make such technical and conforming changes as may be appropriate):

SEC. 712. PILOT PROGRAM TO TEST ALTERNATIVE METHODS FOR THE DELIVERY OF POSTAL SERVICES.

(a) PILOT PROGRAM.—The United States Postal Service may conduct a pilot program to test the feasibility and desirability of alternative methods for the delivery of postal services. Subject to the provisions of this section, the pilot program shall not be limited by any lack of specific authority under title 39, United States Code, to take any action contemplated in a waiver granted by the Postal Service in accordance with regulations under subsection (f), by any provision of law, rule, or regulation inconsistent with any action contemplated (such any waiver to be granted or denied in consultation with the Attorney General, to the extent any provision of title 18, United States Code, is involved).

(b) REQUIREMENTS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Under the pilot program, alternative methods for the delivery of postal services may be tested only in those communities that submit an appropriate application (together with a written plan) in such form, time, and manner as the Postal Service by regulation requires, and whose application has been duly approved. Any such application shall include—

(A) a description of the postal services that would be affected;

(B) the alternative providers selected and the postal services each would furnish (or the manner in which those decisions would be made);

(C) the anticipated costs and benefits to the Postal Service and users of the mail;

(D) the estimated duration of the community's participation;

(E) a description of any actions contemplated for which there is a lack of specific authority or for which a waiver (as described in subsection (a)) would be necessary; and

(F) such other information as the Postal Service may require.

(2) REVIEW BOARDS.—Under the pilot program, the postmaster or postmasters within a community may, in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Postal Service, establish a postal performance review board (hereinafter in this section referred to as a “review board”). It shall be the function of the review board to examine, at least and if applicable, reliability of mail delivery (including the rate of misdeliveries), timeliness of mail delivery (including the time of day that mail is delivered), the time and place of the marking and delivery to the public; and any such savings or additional costs to the Postal Service attributable to the use of alternative providers. Data included in any such evaluation shall be analyzed—

(1) by community characteristics, time of year, and type of postal service.

(2) by residential, business, and any other type of mail user; and

(3) on such other bases as the Postal Service may determine.

Each such evaluation and an overall evaluation of the pilot program shall be transmitted by the Postal Service to the President and each House of Congress by not later than 90 days after the date on which the program terminates.

(f) REGULATIONS.—The Postal Service may prescribe any regulations necessary to carry out this section.

(g) RULE OF CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in this section shall be considered to affect the obligation of the Postal Service to continue providing universal service, in accordance with the provisions of law, as in all aspects not otherwise provided for pursuant to this section.
The CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to House Resolution 380, the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. FLAKE) and a Member opposed each will control 10 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. FLAKE).

Mr. FLAKE. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

My amendment is quite simple. It establishes a pilot program in at least 20 test communities, which would sunset in 5 years, to allow the U.S. Postal Service and the Congress to simply gather information. This pilot program would test the feasibility and desirability of alternative methods for the delivery of postal services.

The pilot program would test the current following assumptions about the Postal Service: Are consumers better off if the Postal Service remains a monopoly? Does the current postal infrastructure allow for as many delivery offerings as possible? Is the total value of the universal service model for postal delivery expense? Now, universal service by the Postal Service would continue to be provided, but participating postmasters would not be limited by the current monopoly statutes on first-class delivery and the use of databases. If a postmaster so chooses, alternative providers, such as commercial enterprise, nonprofit organization, or a labor organization that satisfies a strict set of criteria could serve as an alternative provider of first-class mail services. They would also be able to use the equipment and facilities of the USPS at the discretion of the postmaster for fair market value.

Mr. Chairman, with the dramatic reduction in first-class mail volume, coupled with the inability of the Postal Service to control costs, the Postal Service and Congress must have many well-tested alternatives for the future of mail delivery in the U.S. Many countries are well ahead of the U.S. on some new innovative ideas for structuring their respective postal delivery services. The pilot program is simply a test program to provide the Postal Service and Congress with useful information to make future changes to postal services, if needed.

I might add, Mr. Chairman, we know that some changes are needed. We are running into deficits; and every 4 years, we bail out the USPS. I do not want to be here 4 years from now doing the same thing. So let us test some alternatives. Let us see what else works. Let us see what other countries are doing that we might adopt to control costs and improve quality.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. TOM DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Chairman, I rise to claim the time in opposition, and I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. WAXMAN).

Mr. WAXMAN. Mr. Chairman, I understand this amendment is to do something on a pilot project basis with the idea that we are going to promote innovation in the delivery of the mail. Well, I support that goal.

H.R. 22 has many provisions to promote flexibility and innovation; but this amendment, maybe it was not intended in this way that is an open invitation to abuse. It allows a local postmaster to contract out the delivery of the mail to private companies; and in the course of that amendment, it provides that any provision of Federal law that might otherwise apply to these contracts and the delivery of mail can be waived.

Well, that is incredibly far-reaching. It would mean a local postal official could set up his own company. He can ask his brother-in-law to set up another company and then contract with that company to do the job of delivering the mail. It is certainly a blatantly conflict of interest.

But even criminal laws could be waived under this amendment. There would be no prohibition against under-the-table kickbacks. The provision could allow the waiver of the privacy of first-class mail. This could lead to a lot of unforeseen problems.

That is why the postmasters of this country, the National League of Postmasters, has said that the postmasters very strongly oppose the amendment: "The Congressman’s approach would be harmful to universal service.

So it is not just that this amendment goes against the compromise that has brought this whole bill together, but I do not think it has been thought through. And I do not think we ought to adopt something that has so many possible ramifications to it that we would certainly regret.

Mr. FLAKE. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 1 minute.

I should point out to the gentleman that postmasters would have full authority under this legislation, under this amendment to actually contract out or not. They can disband the alternative at any time.

Now, under this amendment, only the government can do it right, and we ought to take over the entire economy. If we do not trust the private sector to deliver services more effectively and more efficiently than the government can, shoot, why do we not get in every business.

We know that that is not the case. We know the private sector typically can do it better, faster, cheaper, smarter than government.

Every 4 years, we are back in again to bail out the USPS. This simply says, why do we not try something, try some alternatives that are working in other countries; try some things that might work, that might lower the cost, that might be more taxpayer-friendly than this. That is what this amendment is all about.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. TOM DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

We are not bailing out the post office every 4 years; it is like every 35 years, since the last act. We did come out with some additional money because of anthrax and because of the added burdens that we put on the post office at that time, but the post office has to operate under its own budget; and right now, the only thing they can rely on is rate increases, and rate increases drive mail away into other areas, which is why we are working this bill tonight.

Every 4 years, we are back in again because the Postal Service has relied on private contractors for the transportation and delivery of mail. Star route carriers today continue to operate, transporting mail efficiently and effectively nationwide, even delivering the mail to over 2 million homes 6 days a week. In many rural communities, those served by both contract postal units and star route carriers, the Postal Service’s entire relationship with their customers is already handled by contractors, not employees.

For these longstanding and successful postal contract arrangements, this amendment is at best unnecessary. At worst it adds a new layer of bureaucracy that will place burdens on expanding these programs into newer areas. One puzzling aspect is its provision allowing the Postal Service to waive laws, rules and regulations, including sections of the criminal code, which I am not sure I understand. Maybe the gentleman on his time will explain.

But the Service does not need this waiver to contract the provisions. In fact, it only serves to remove needed protections safeguarding the sanctity, privacy and security of the mail. Do customers really want their mail delivered by contractors to whom no laws apply?

In short, the Postal Service has been conducting pilot tests of these ideas since the 19th century. I would say the evaluation phase is over; the results are in, they work. Let us not mess them up with a new, unnecessary, convoluted regulation. Both postmaster organizations oppose this.

And so I would urge that we defeat this amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.
Mr. FLAKE. Mr. Chairman, before yielding 2 minutes to the gentleman from Indiana, let me just say that asking the Postal Service to give up what might lead to giving up their monopoly or a portion of their monopoly is unreasonable. We needed to prime the pump a little. No private business would in their self-interest do that either. That is why this amendment is important.

Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. Pence).

Mr. PENCE. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong support of the Flake amendment. There are 38,000 post offices, stations and branches in the U.S. Postal Service. The Flake amendment contemplates a pilot program that would affect 20 communities.

By my bad math, that is about 1⁄20 of 1 percent of the communities that are served by 38,000 post offices, stations and branches. But that is an unacceptable reform.

I rise with great respect to the gentleman from California (Mr. Waxman), who has been a champion of postal reform for longer than I have been in Congress. I do respect the gentleman and have great respect for the chairman. It is lost on me why we cannot say, in the name of reform, in the greatest free-market economy in the history of the world, we will allow for competition in 20 pilot programs to run out inefficiencies and to bring innovation and new ideas to the delivery of postal services.

The Flake amendment is just simply that; 38,000 post offices, stations and branches. The Flake amendment asks humbly that we identify 20 communities to test the feasibility and desirability of alternative methods of delivery of postal services, and this reform bill and its reformers oppose that pilot program.

Let us bring real reform to reform. If we cannot, let us introduce a pilot program where reform and the ideas of reform might be able to take hold to create a truly diverse 21st century postal delivery system for America.

Mr. TOM DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from New York (Mr. McHugh).

Mr. McHugh. Mr. Chairman, a couple of the gentlemand from Arizona (Mr. Flake) said you cannot expect the Postal Service to give back any of its monopoly powers. With all due respect, the Postal Service has agreed to this bill. In this bill there is a substantial reduction in the monopoly scope of first-class mail.

Right now first-class mail and monopoly is whatever the Postal Service says it is. Under this bill there is a bright line determination; it is six times the rate of the first-class stamp, which is a substantial give-back.

I also have to underscore the distinguished chairman's concerns about the suspension of title 18. You can argue about the needs for reform in pilot tests and such, but maybe it was an inadvertent step, but the fact still remains the amendment before the committee today will be a suspension of the criminal code, which would empower rich guys, privately. Those who would be entrusted with the mail of the United States Postal Service to be totally absolved under criminal responsibility.

Now, I can leave it to the imagination of the Members what that could potentially mean for identity theft and on and on and on. I doubt that the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. Flake) meant it, but regardless, that is what this reform calls for.

The last thing I would say is I think that a concern is about a new model for the Postal Service, and I would agree, and this bill understands that as well. We specifically negotiated with the administration a study to be conducted under the auspices of GAO. They will hire a contract specialty firm that will look at establishing a future business model that, in part, and I will quote from the bill, “seeks to study the maintenance of the Postal Service in its current form as an independent establishment in the executive branch; and, two, transforming the Postal Service into an ordinary corporation, wholly owned by the government or wholly owned shareholders or partly by the government and partially by private shareholders.”

This bill admits we have to take a careful look at the future of the business model of the Postal Service. That is why this amendment should be rejected.

Mr. FLAKE. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Hensarling).

Mr. Hensarling. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding me time.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of this amendment. I do want to add my voice to the chairman, the gentleman from Virginia (Chairman Tom Davis) for his good work, and I know that the job has been very tough to try to reconcile all of the differing interests and opinions that are brought to bear. But I find it very difficult to believe that we have something to fear from a pilot program in 20 communities out of 38,000. It appears that something is not working, or we would not be here this evening.

Many, many years ago when I was in high school, I played both football and tennis, and I was equally poor at both, but I remember something a tennis coach once told me: There are many ways to lose at tennis. Try them all.

Well, we are contemplating rate increases and imposing $6 billion on the taxpayers. Maybe we should try something new. Maybe we should try some pilot programs. Maybe we should get some more experimentation, some more innovation, some more competition into the system, and maybe we can find ways to start winning at this.

And because of that, I do rise in strong support of the gentleman’s amendment.

Mr. TOM DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 30 seconds.

Mr. Chairman, let me just say this: On the $6 billion figure floating around, it is important to note that and that the reason the Congressional Budget Office scores this as an increase is because they have contemplated and put into their figuring that there will be rate increases. Our legislation takes away these rate increases, not coming into the Treasury. So if you do not have a rate increase, it scores.

When you sit here and say it is going to cost the taxpayers, that means they do not have to go with a rate increase. We are being penalized because we are not doing rate increases, and it scores against us. We need to understand that. And that is why this legislation is being passed.

Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 1⁄2 minutes to the gentleman from Connecticut (Mr. Shays).

Mr. SHAYS. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding me the time.

The Postal Service delivers to 140 million sites, and there is about a million new sites every year. It provides universal service.

When I hear my colleagues talk about fine-tuning this bill, that is what we have been doing for the last 30 years. This is a bill that has been fine-tuned, and it has been fine-tuned in a way that has gotten support from disparate parts.

The employees who work at the postal system know that more than 200,000 jobs are going to be lost. That is why we opposed the first amendment by the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. Pence) because we need employee buy-in.

The reason why we opposed this amendment, it seems to fail to understand that there is competition with FedEx, with UPS, with DHL and many more things. They are also competing with the newspapers.

We are trying to provide flexibility to the postal system. So I understand the concept of fine-tuning, but I would dispute significantly the failure to recognize that the bill has been fine-tuned. And when I am hearing my colleagues offer their amendments, I feel like they have not read the bill, because the bill allows for competition, it allows for flexibility, and it has buy-in in all of these disparate parts.

This amendment needs to be defeated if we are going to pass this bill.

Mr. FLAKE. Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. TOM DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Chairman, I will reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. FLAKE. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself the balance of the time. I will go ahead and wrap up.

UPS and FedEx spend only 56 and 42 percent of their revenues on labor. I know there are differences. It is a little different animal when we are talking about first class mail delivery, and what FedEx and UPS do, but 80 percent versus 56 and 42 percent respectively.

I think we ought to be questioning ourselves, and are they doing that we are not? What are we doing so we will not have either more money out of the general fund or a rate increase? Whether it is paid by the consumer with monopoly service or the taxpayer is the same. It is both money coming out of the taxpayers' or consumers' pockets.

And I do not want to be here, like I said, 4 years from now talking about another rate increase or talking about more money from the general fund because we simply have not done anything about making sure that competition drives improvement in service and it controls cost. We know that from everything we know about the economy. We know that from education reform. We know that in other areas as well. Competition controls costs and improve quality. This is what we are trying to jump-start here. That is the purpose of this amendment.

As the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. FENCE) mentioned, this is hardly revolution, a fraction of 1 percent would be allowed to actually test this proposition, that maybe competition would help control cost and improve quality, a fraction of 1 percent of all of the sites out there, all of the systems running.

So this is a very modest amendment. I think it is important.

Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. TOM DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Chairman, I would just note that the universal service obligation of the post office gives it a burden in requirements that some of the other facts and figures alluded to do not have to meet.

Mr. Chairman, I would yield the remainder of the time to the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. DAVIS).

Mr. DAVIS of Illinois. Mr. Chairman, where I come from, there is an old saying: If it looks like a duck, acts like a duck, quacks like a duck, looks like a duck, then it is a duck. And it seems to me that the bottom line is this is an attempt to privatize the Postal Service, which would decimate the concept of universal service. There could be no universal service if this amendment is passed.

The CHAIRMAN. The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. FLAKE).

The question was taken; and the Chairman announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Mr. FLAKE. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. FLAKE) will be postponed.

The CHAIRMAN. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 3 printed in House Report 109–184

The CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to House Resolution 380, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. HENSARLING) and a Member opposed each will control 10 minutes.

The CHAIRMAN. Mr. Chairman from Texas (Mr. HENSARLING), Mr. HENSARLING. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, earlier this evening some Members rose in support of postal workers. Other rose in support of large postal customers. This is good, and this is well, and I respect that;

But tonight I wish to rise in support of the taxpayer. Today our Nation is riding a wave, an impending fiscal tsunami, that threatens to drown our children and grandchildren in a sea of red ink.

Since 2000, the amount that government spends annually per household has risen from $18,000 to over $20,000 in 2004. This is only the fourth time in our Nation's history that spending exceeded $20,000 per household. It also represents the largest expansion of the Federal Government since the Vietnam era.

The Federal debt now stands at a staggering $7.8 trillion, or roughly $26,600 for every man, woman and child in America. And the Nation's financial challenges are about to get markedly worse over the next decade.

With these reforms we know that Medicare will grow at a rate of 9 percent, Medicaid 7.8 percent and Social Security at 5.5 percent a year, far outstripping our country's economic growth or our ability to pay for them. Where will it all end?

According to the GAO, if we ignore the runaway growth of government spending, we will have to double taxes, double taxes on our children and grandchildren just to balance the budget by the year 2040. If this occurs, we stand to become the first generation of Americans to leave our children with a lower standard of living, not to mention a legacy of hyperinflation and unlimited government.

Now, a day after day, Member after Member comes to this floor to decry the Federal deficit and the legacy of debt that we are leaving our children. We have so many reasons so passionately against the Federal deficit and yet done so little about it.

Today, I wish to provide us with an opportunity to change that. In 1970, the fundamental principle of postal reform was established, that the Postal Service would become a self-financed entity. According to title 39 of the U.S. Code: "Postal rates shall be established to apportion the costs of all postal operations to all users of the mail."

Simply put, the U.S. Postal Service is supposed to pay its own freight; but according to the Congressional Budget Office, and I understand that the chairman of the full committee respectfully disagrees with their score, the CBO says H.R. 22 will actually place us further in debt by almost $6 billion over 10 years. And who should pay for that $6 billion?

It either must be paid by those who use the Postal Service or the taxpayers. I vote for those who actually use the service. Now, some of my colleagues have argued that the Postal Service faces unique responsibilities and thus taxpayers must subsidize them. It is true. The Postal Service does have some unique responsibilities, but also enjoy unique benefits that private businesses do not. The Postal Service pays no Federal, States, or local taxes. They are immune from most regulations such as zoning, motor vehicle registration, and even parking tickets.

The Postal Service can borrow from the Treasury at below-market rates and is immune from anti-trust laws despite the fact that it can compete against private companies.

The number one problem facing the U.S. Postal Service is not the lack of a taxpayer subsidy. It is their seeming inability to control costs. Labor costs consume 80 percent of the Postal Service's revenue, whereas UPS and FedEx spend only 56 percent and 42 percent of their revenues on labor.

The Postal Service has been unable to close existing facilities or consolidate new operations. In fact, Mr. Chairman, slightly more than half of its 38,000 facilities do not generate enough revenue to cover their costs.

Mr. Chairman, again, I want to state that I respect the hard work that the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. Tom Davis) from the White House has done on this bill. And I do understand that many different opinions had to be reconciled to get a postal reform bill to the floor. But I believe that we need to stand with President Bush, we need to stand with the American taxpayer and make this a budget-neutral bill. Instead, if we want to make the Postal Service more cost competitive, what we really need to do is enact all of the Presidential commission's workforce reforms.

In 2003, Congress decided that the Postal Service was on a course to possibly overpay its civil service retirement system costs. Rather than let the Postal Service spend the money, it retained how escrow account was created within the U.S. Treasury.

H.R. 22 releases that escrow account to pre-fund Postal Service health care liabilities. I agree this is a sound use of funds, but it is unfortunately incomplete. Under H.R. 22, only two-thirds of the funds would be used to fund the health care liabilities letting 2 to $3 billion a year slip back to the Postal Service for other expenditures.

With the Postal Service currently facing an unfunded health care liability of roughly $75 billion, I believe every dollar in the escrow account should be used to offset this growing concern. If not, taxpayers will surely be called upon to make up this tremendous shortfall.

Mr. Chairman, my amendment would reduce the cost of H.R. 22 substantially by ensuring that 100 percent of the civil service retirement system savings will be directed to the Postal Service's unfunded health care liability. In addition, this amendment would maintain the Postal Service's financial responsibility for paying the civil service retirement system costs associated with military service credits, instead of passing the cost on to the Treasury and the American taxpayer.

Again, the question is not whether but who will pay, the customers that use the Postal Service or the American taxpayers.

Mr. Chairman, I want the Postal Service to become more efficient, and I believe we can do so by enacting more of the President's initiatives. Let us not pass the buck to American taxpayers yet again. Let us not pile further debt upon our grandchildren. Let us work with the United States Postal Service continues to pay its own freight. I do appreciate the good work of the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. Tom Davis), but let us make H.R. 22 budget neutral. I urge all of my colleagues to vote for this amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. Chairman, I claim the time in opposition to the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, I appreciate where the gentleman is trying to go with this, but even the White House does not want to have this scored neutrally under CBO numbers. They have asked for the Office of Management and Budget numbers because the Congressional Budget Office ends up counting rate increases that have not taken effect as already being part of revenue. And to the extent that we can stave off stamp tax rate increases, what the gentleman's amendment would do, not stave it off but it includes it, to the extent we do that, then it counts against the budget.

The other problem in terms of budget neutrality...comes from the President's own commission on the Postal Service which recommended that the military years of service for postal employees under the CSRS retirement program, that those years be paid for by the military like they are for every other agency of government instead of having postal patrons for that. This was the President's commission which recommended that.

What I have talked about, we save money, not take money away. But the question is why should rate payers have to pay for military service in an agency where you have veterans hiring preference? It is not fair to rate payers. It is driving up rates.

Finally, let me say, it is not two-thirds of the escrow funds that is funding health care. Ninety percent of the escrow funds over the next 5 years are going to fund health care. That is more than any other agency in government. Not enough for some Members, I am sure; but this is the appropriate way in my opinion for the Postal Service to operate...

We have committed to the White House. We are going to work to try to get this as budget neutral as we can as we move forward to the conference working with OMB, but the Congressional Budget Office's arcane scoring rules make it virtually impossible to get here in this particular case.

Once again, let me remind everyone, what is the alternative? The alternative to this legislation is rate increases, postal rate increases, a stamp act tax, and airmail.

Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. Waxman).

Mr. Chairman, I join my chairman in opposing this amendment. It sounds like the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Hensarling) has some vision of postal reform. Well, I just think that is great, except we cannot pass it.

The alternative to this, as the chairman has pointed out, is going to be the existing system and undesirable increases on rates.

So what is the amendment before us? It is not a different version of reform of the Postal Service. It would micro-manage the Postal Service. It would usurp the role of money that is now in an escrow and will tell them they have to use most of that money to fund health benefits.

Well, we say they must use some of that money for that, but if they shift some over for their financial responsibilities, they have to run the Postal Service they are going to have to ask for an increase in rates. That is why in amendment would certainly be opposed by all the people who use the Postal Service, the mailers, the enterprises, the businesses in this country that rely on the Postal Service for their success.

Now, the amendment does something else, and I just have to underscore it. As the chairman of the Committee on Government Reform mentioned, it would require the Postal Service to pay for the pensions for those who served in the military before they went to work for the Postal Service. If you were in the military and you get a job for the Postal Service, the veterans pensions. That is why this amendment is one that I think it to be a poison pill for the legislation.

You could imagine the groups that oppose this legislation like the National Association of Manufacturers and NFIB and others opposing this because they do not want higher rates. I urge opposition to the amendment.

Mr. Hensarling, Mr. Chairman, how much time do I have remaining?

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Texas (Mr. Hensarling) has 3½ minutes remaining.

Mr. Hensarling. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1½ minutes to the gentleman from Tennessee (Mrs. Blackburn).

Mrs. Blackburn. Mr. Chairman, I want to thank the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Hensarling) for his work on this amendment and, of course, our chairman of the Committee on Government Reform worked diligently on this bill and for years has worked to be able to move it to the body.
Mr. Chairman, you know, we are hearing a lot about the military benefits. From my service on the Committee on Government Reform, I think I remember that there was in 2003 $103 billion overpayment in pension benefits that was refunded to the Postal Service. I want to mention that after that amendment they were made responsible for the military pension costs of the employees. And this bill would reverse those provisions.

I think it is also worthy to notice that the gentleman from Texas (Mr. HENSARLING) has pointed out in 1971 the reform efforts put in place at the Postal Service, it would be a self-financing agency, and with that mandate they were given certain exemptions and advantages such as tax and anti-trust. And they are obliged and obligated to manage their finances in a manner that covers its full costs.

We must continue to encourage the Postal Service to be self-sufficient and not to rely on the taxpayers. And this bill would reverse those provisions.

Let me just note for the record that the gentleman from New York (Mr. GARRETT) was right. The gentleman from Texas (Mr. HENSARLING), that would encourage tax payments, and I believe, by themselves, to adapt and create a smoothly functioning postal system that can really be a very disinterested public service.

I support the Postal Service and the valuable contribution that it provides to our economy, and the common-sense rate increase for next year. In fact, it would trigger large increases in those internal rates. These rate increases would be caused by denying the Postal Service access to billions of dollars which are set aside in their escrow accounts, because the Postal Service will be forced actually to completely finance the escrow requirement as well as the annual health benefit premium for all of their retirees. This will not stop what we are all trying to stop, and that is a postal rate increase, which is really a tax. I guess you can call it a tax, if you want, on the American people.

This amendment is not fiscally conservative. In fact, if you are an individual who just mails a couple of letters a year, I suppose it does not matter if you have a tax increase, a stamp tax increase, of 1 or 2 cents a letter. However, think if you are a catalogue mailing company or a large user of the Postal Service.

This amendment would also require the Postal Service to spend all of their savings released under H.R. 22 on paying the Postal Service’s unfunded health care liability rather than giving the Postal Service some much-needed flexibility to use on other pressing issues.

This underlying bill is based on the premise of making the Postal Service more cost-effective, more cost-efficient, making it run in a more businesslike, user-friendly type of way, and this amendment would not do that. I urge my colleagues to support the gentleman from Texas in his amendment.
Certainly will pay for everything that we get.

As the Comptroller General has pointed out, respected accounting principles indicate that the burden for payment for service belongs to the beneficiary. The U.S. Government benefited from the military service, and it should cover the cost.

To ensure predictable rate increases, H.R. 22 employs strict rate caps at the subclass level, prohibiting rate increases at a rate greater than CPI. These rate restrictions, however, make it important that the Service have access to the one-third of its own money to help cover operational costs if need be. Otherwise there is no alternative but to accumulate debt.

Mr. Chairman, the Hensarling amendment would have us embedded in debt. I oppose it.

Mr. HENSARLING. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself the balance of my time.

Mr. Chairman, 2 years ago the Postal Service was asking for $7 billion from the taxpayer. They come here tonight asking for $6 billion from the taxpayers. Again, I ask the question: Where will it all end?

If we do not change the way we do business in Washington, we will have to double taxes on future generations just to balance the budget. Somehow, somewhere, some way, someday we must stop the madness of the spending.

I agree with many of my colleagues that there are only two choices: Either ratepayers or taxpayers are going to pick up this tab. I vote for ratepayers.

Mr. TOM DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Chairman, I urge opposition to this.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. BASS). Without objection, the next vote will be a 5-minute vote.

There was no objection.
Mr. PUTNAM, from the Committee on Rules, submitted a privileged report (Rept. No. 109–186) on the resolution (H. Res. 386) providing for consideration of the bill (H.R. 3045) to implement the Dominican Republic-Central America-United States Free Trade Agreement, which was referred to the House Calendar and ordered to be printed.

REPORT ON RESOLUTION PROVIDING FOR CONSIDERATION OF H.R. 3045, DOMINICAN REPUBLIC-CENTRAL AMERICA-UNITED STATES FREE TRADE AGREEMENT IMPLEMENTATION ACT

Mr. PUTNAM, from the Committee on Rules, submitted a privileged report (Rept. No. 109–187) on the resolution (H. Res. 385) providing for consideration of the bill (H.R. 5) to improve patient access to health care services and provide improved medical care by reducing the excessive burden the liability system imposes, which was referred to the House Calendar and ordered to be printed.

REPORT ON RESOLUTION PROVIDING FOR CONSIDERATION OF H.R. 3283, UNITED STATES TRADE RIGHTS ENFORCEMENT ACT

Mr. PUTNAM, from the Committee on Rules, submitted a privileged report (Rept. No. 109–189) on the resolution (H. Res. 387) providing for consideration of the bill (H.R. 3283) to enhance resources to enforce United States trade rights, which was referred to the House Calendar and ordered to be printed.

STONGLY SUPPORTING CAFTA

(Mrs. JOHNSON of Connecticut asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Ms. HART asked, "Why would anybody vote against goods that come in duty free."

Mr. BROWN of Ohio, Mr. Speaker, the Congressional Budget Office, the nonpartisan arm of Congress that provides economic projections, just released a report on the Central American Free Trade Agreement. The report shows the cost of its sugar provisions would be over $500 million over the next 10 years. They also found the loss in revenue to the U.S. Treasury would be $4.1 billion over the next 10 years, more than $400 million every year.

So not only does CAFTA jam up a trade deficit that has grown from $38 billion 12 years ago to $618 billion last year, but CAFTA continues this erosion, the hemorrhaging of manufacturing jobs: 3 million lost manufacturing jobs in the last five years. And it is also going to blow an even bigger hole in the Federal budget: one more good, big reason to defeat the Central American Free Trade Agreement.

CAFTA IS GOOD FOR AMERICAN BUSINESS

(Ms. HART asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Our colleagues have discussed a lot of issues regarding CAFTA: whether it is important to our national security and whether it will help the Central American nations grow and become more secure and prevent some illegal immigration into the United States. But one of the most important things about this agreement is that it is good for American business.

So two-thirds of the House voted in favor of the agreement. The results of the vote were announced as above recorded. A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — HOUSE

- July 26, 2005
- H6550
- Page 2204

So (two-thirds of the House voted in favor thereof) the rules were suspended and the bill was passed.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded. A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

REPORT ON RESOLUTION PROVIDING FOR CONSIDERATION OF H.R. 5, HELP EFFICIENT, ACCESSIBLE, LOW-COST, TIMELY HEALTHCARE (HEALTH) ACT OF 2005

Mr. PUTNAM, from the Committee on Rules, submitted a privileged report (Rept. No. 109–185) on the resolution (H. Res. 385) providing for consideration of the bill (H.R. 5) to improve patient access to health care services and provide improved medical care by reducing the excessive burden the liability system imposes, which was referred to the House Calendar and ordered to be printed.

GOOD, BIG REASONS TO DEFEAT CAFTA

(Mr. BROWN of Ohio asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

The fight by persons with disabilities for non-discrimination in matters of employment, transportation and building access and accommodation was landmark.

Through the enactment of the ADA our country proclaimed that 43 million Americans were real people, deserving of amenities every other person takes for granted. Through the enactment of the ADA our country removed the cloak of secrecy wrapped around our disabled citizens and announced to the world that persons with disabilities were valued members of our society.

The successes of ADA continue to astonish us, even 15 years later: the disabled child who now can play Little League ball; disabled veterans who can now use special equipment to play golf at military golf courses; disabled patrons who can now go to movie theaters, restaurants, and museums who before found the trip daunting, or were blocked entirely. Now we have buses that kneel for our disabled riders, earphones for opera lovers who just don’t hear well enough, and talking elevators that tell blind passengers their floor stop.

All of this has been mandated by the ADA but just as consequential is that it was American ingenuity that developed it. We figured it out. We set a goal to integrate persons with disabilities into mainstream America, and by gosh, we did.

Unfortunately, even with the ADA in place, the road to full accommodation has been pitted with potholes and rough spots. As it was with civil rights, or women’s rights, the full recognition of disability rights falls short in many regards. As a Nation we need to recommit ourselves to this mission. It is the right thing to do. There are still too many instances of persons with disabilities being excluded from public venue because they are different. That is just wrong and it is un-American.

In the land of freedom, established so every man and woman could pursue their dreams, these incidents are blots against our national value of equality.

So today while we celebrate the 15th anniversary of the Americans With Disabilities Act, I rise to honor every person—disabled and not—who worked so hard to see this law enacted. These persons and their effort are testament to the spirit of fairness, the spirit of perseverance and the spirit of hope that inspires us all.

Expressing Sympathy to the Boy Scouts of America Family

(Ms. Jackson-Lee of Texas asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas, Mr. Speaker, a day or two ago, I rose on the floor of the House to welcome the Boy Scouts of America to their jamboree that they hold every 4 years.

As a member of the Board of Directors of the Sam Houston Area Boy Scouts in my hometown of Houston, Texas, Houston-Galveston Council, I rise today to offer my deepest sympathy to the Boy Scouts of America family due to the loss of four scout leaders in a tragic electrical accident in Virginia during the course of putting up some of the equipment for the young men who were about to participate in the jamboree right after their noontime service.

I know that the Boy Scouts are, in fact, a family. This is an enormous tragedy. Just as their scout oath reminds them of their commitment to their country and their God and their fellow scouts, they have a duty to draw together as a family and be united in their empathy and sympathy with the family members of their lost scout leaders.

I wish for them the very best as they continue their jamboree, and my greatest sympathy to those who lost their lives. As well, I know that the Boy Scouts will continue to serve in their communities around the Nation and continue to serve America, for they are young outstanding leaders that have come here to the United States Capital to begin to learn and recommitted themselves to their values and to service.

On the Retirement of George Crawford

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the following Members will be recognized for 5 minutes each.

Ms. Pelosi. Mr. Speaker, I rise this evening to pay tribute to really a great person, a great leader, a truly decent man, and a dear friend on his retirement after nearly a quarter century of service to the House of Representatives, Mr. George Crawford.

George is a master of policy, politics and procedures of this institution, and he must be one of the kindest people working on Capitol Hill. George has been invaluable to my office as the chief of staff of the leader’s office and of this Congress.

George began his distinguished career on the staff of the then Senator Howell Heflin of Alabama. He soon moved to the staff of the great Claude Pepper of Florida, who was chair of the Rules Committee at the time. Mr. Speaker, in those days we still called him Senator Pepper.

And George worked with him and quickly revealed his remarkable talents. Again he went with Senator Pepper to the Rules Committee while Mr. Pepper was chairman and worked his way up to staff director under the magnificent chairman, Joe Moakley of Massachusetts, who was a colleague to many of us who serve here today.

Today, having traveled a long and important journey, he is now the chief of staff of the Democratic leader’s office. I was privileged that George came to work for me nearly 4 years ago, shortly before I was elected House Democratic whip. George helped to take our staff to the next level, shaping and leading our office.

George loves sports analogies, so let me say that first in the whip's office and the Speaker's office George recruited the best talent, ran creative plays and always knew how to put points on the board.

In the Democratic leader's office, George has been an innovative leader. He established a structure for reach to go beyond the Beltway; he built the strongest, most innovative Internet operation on the Hill; he has rolled up his sleeves with the policy staff; and he has helped shape our message to the American people. He is a gifted leader who gives staff guidance, but also room to grow. Young people in particular enjoyed working with him. He is both father figure and friend.

Throughout his career, George has largely worked behind the scenes. He is interested in accomplishments, not credit. He is strictly a shirt-and-tie kind of man, except when he is caught escaping to the golf course. And George has a comprehensive understanding of the rules of the House, and a keen sense of the Members. He has tutored so many Members, including me, on the intricacies of parliamentary procedure. He has earned the respect of Members and staff on both sides of the aisle.

For someone who seems to know everything about the House of Representatives, George is a remarkably well-rounded person. He has a wonderful family. He is a loyal Dodgers fan. He loves golf, and he is a maestro with orphans. He is a connoisseur of wines and an expert on vineyards.

Before his career on Capitol Hill, George held an assortment of jobs that reflect his unique spirit, including working as a baker, a short-order cook and a television weatherman.

Above all, though, George was and is a Californian at heart. That is why this goodbye is bittersweet for me; bitter because I will miss his unparalleled knowledge as well as his warmth and good humor, sweet because I know he will relish his return to the great Golden State of California. As a Californian for more than 36 years, I completely understand and share his desire to live in this country's most beautiful and most invigorating State.

Geographically, his wife Mel and his two sons, will be moving to the area of Santa Barbara not far from where the movie Sideways, a love letter to wine, was filmed, where he can enjoy the reds and whites and get back to his golf game that I understand has suffered in recent years due to lack of attention.

He will always spend well-deserved time with his family. Again, I want to take the opportunity to thank George's wonderful family, his wife Mel and his fine two sons, Curt and Casey, for sharing their father with us. It is hard to balance family life with work on Capitol Hill.

We all appreciate the sacrifices that the Crawford family has made.

I know that so many colleagues on both sides of the aisle join me in wishing George luck in the next phase of his career, and many happy years with his beloved family in California.

With deep affection, and affection, thank you, George. George Crawford, for your 24 years of service to the House of Representatives.

CAPTA IS NOT GOOD FOR THE UNITED STATES

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. Jones) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. JONES of North Carolina. Mr. Speaker, I am back on the floor tonight to speak in opposition to CAFTA.

First I want to talk about my State of North Carolina. Of course I was not here in the Congress when the Congress passed NAFTA about 1992, and it was in effect in 1993. But let me tell you briefly what happened to North Carolina. First of all, we lost approximately 200,000 jobs in a 10- to 12-year period of time, as a Nation lost about 2.5 million jobs.

CAFTA is the ugly cousin of NAFTA. That is all you can say about it. NAFTA and CAFTA are cousins, and actually CAFTA is about 85 percent of what NAFTA was. I hate to say it, but CAFTA is the ugly cousin.

Let me also say that during that period of time, that prior to NAFTA, we had a surplus with Mexico, and now we have a deficit with Mexico. So now let me also share with you, Mr. Speaker, that prior to NAFTA, and then since NAFTA, we have had a 350 percent increase of illegal aliens coming to America since NAFTA became the law of the land. It did nothing to keep the Mexican workers down in Mexico.

Mr. Speaker, I want to take just a few minutes of my time, I know it is very limited, to tell you that last night on the floor of the House, I submitted completely for the RECORD, from the countries of Nicaragua, El Salvador, Honduras and Guatemala, elected officials of those countries asked me last week at the interfaith conference of Protestants, Catholics, and a Jewish rabbi who are opposed to CAFTA to submit this, and they have written every Member of Congress; not just me, but everyone else.

Two or three other points very quickly. These seven elected officials as legislative representatives of the region, who represent a diverse perspective of political views, we respectfully ask you to vote no on CAFTA. In addition, they say that the opposition keeps growing throughout the region, because this treaty threatens to weaken the already vulnerable democratic institutions that were created during the long conflicts of the 1980s.

In addition, Mr. Speaker, and then I will close. CAPTA is a bad trade deal because it puts the interests of international corporations ahead of the welfare of the working poor and the poor in Central America. If CAFTA is approved, this social instability that CAFTA supporters like to use as a reason for approving this agreement will come not from the outside forces, but from the pressures created by the millions of displaced workers who will fall further into poverty.

Mr. Speaker, I must say tonight in closing that we in this Congress should do what is right for the American people, and that is to defeat CAFTA and go back to the negotiating table and do what is right for the American workers and do what is right for the people in Central America, and then we will do what the Bible says, and that is to help each and every one that needs to be helped.

God bless America. Thank you.

CAPTA IS BAD FOR AMERICA

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. DeFazio) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. DeFAZIO. Mr. Speaker, if one was to look at this chart, and the black bars represent the extraordinary growth in the United States trade deficit over the last 14 years, and you see you are digging a grave for the American people, for the future of the American economy, of over $200 billion in 1 year. This year we are going to eclipse that. We are headed toward $2 billion a day of foreign borrowing.

Now, most people say, well, Alan Greenspan says that we are willing to lend us money. Shows how strong our economy is. But what Alan Greenspan and the other pointy-headed... hack economists around here forget is that those are real dollars which can come back to bite us, and they are coming back to bite us when you have a Chinese Communist-controlled oil company trying to buy a major American energy company that sustains us around the world. For a country that is importing 20 million barrels a day of energy, we want to be selling off our oil assets, our reserves around the world to the Chinese Communist Government. I think that, but they think this is just working great.

The point is we have a failed and failing trade policy here in the United States of America. We lost 3 million manufacturing jobs, good high-wage, high-skill people. It is bad for the workers. It is bad for the majority of the American people. It is bad for the workers. It is bad for our oil assets, our reserves around the world. It is very, very bad for the American people. It is bad for the majority of the American people because of selling off our country.

And the trend is accelerating. We are losing our manufacturing base. And the question becomes with NAFTA before the United States House of Representatives, do we think that these big black lines, these huge deficits, this borrowing away America and the US stock in and in hock is a good trend? Yeah, it is a good trend for a few people, a lot of friends of the President. They are making a bunch of money. They own the stock. They run the multinational corporations. They are getting tens of millions of dollars, hundreds of millions of dollars sometimes, in stock options because of selling off our country. Yeah, it is good for a few people, but it is bad for the majority of the American people. It is bad for the workers. It is bad for our future. It is bad for our economic security, our military security, if you look at some of the recent trends dealing with China.

And the question that should stand out to the President, the United States House of Representatives, should those who are undecided now, particularly on the other side of the aisle, get pressured by the President to do something that they know is wrong? Is that in the interests of the people they represent? This is not a partisan issue. You know, Bill Clinton was a disaster on trade policy. The problem is you cannot find much difference between Ronald Reagan, Bush the first, Bill Clinton and Bush the second on trade policy. They are a bipartisan disaster, selling out the American people, selling out our industrial infrastructure.

And the way, well, NAFTA is really not that big, so why are you so concerned about it? Well, you are right. It is not very big. If you combine the buying power of all of the people of the NAFTA nations and say somehow this is going to create jobs in general, well, whew, you need to have your head examined, because if all of those people living in those countries applied every cent they earned, whatever currency it is, to purchasing American goods, it would not be a tiny blip on the radar screen of the American economy.

This is the same people who sold us NAFTA, and they said it was going to produce 400,000 jobs. Instead it lost 800,000 jobs. They were only off by 1.2 million jobs in their estimates.

Now the President goes on television this week and says, oh, this will be good for the American people. This is going to create exports. What he forgot to tell the other side of the aisle, exporters tell us that it will create more imports from Central America than exports. It is going to be yet another loser for the American people. They will see their jobs go south.

American workers should not be asked to compete with people earning 80 cents an hour, and guess what, people who earn 80 cents an hour are not going to be buying a lot of manufactured American goods.

So now CAFTA is the same disaster that was NAFTA, that is the WTO, and MFN for China. It is just saying, we have dug ourselves a deep hole. Here is a shovel; keep digging. Pretty soon you may come out in the other end in China, but by then they will own us.

So it is time for this Congress to stand up to this President, the same President that our leaders in the United States mentioned today were taken to task by the President. We have a trade policy that benefits the American people, our national security, our economic security and brings and keeps jobs that pay decent wages and benefits home here.

Vote “no” on CAFTA.

CAFTA—PROPERTY RIGHTS

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. PRICE of Georgia). Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Idaho (Mr. OTTER) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. OTTER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to discuss perhaps the most fundamental of the reasons for my opposition to the Central American Free Trade Agreement or CAFTA—PROPERTY RIGHTS.

CAFTA contains 1,000 pages of international law establishing, among other things, property rights for foreign investors that may impose restrictions on U.S. land-use policy. Chapter 10 of CAFTA outlines a system under which foreign investors operating in the United States are granted greater property rights than U.S. law provides for our own citizens.

Mr. Speaker, I'd like to draw your attention to the fact that CAFTA exceeds U.S. law by empowering foreign investors to go to international tribunals in an effort to be compensated in U.S. taxpayer dollars for regulatory takings.

Furthermore, new language in CAFTA almost unbelievably extends the outrageous benefits of this foreign investor-state dispute resolution system to corporations that have a “written agreement” with the federal government regarding “natural resources or other assets that a national authority controls.” For example, foreign investors could circumvent the U.S. court system entirely by bringing arbitrary challenges over oil and gas, mining, and water contracts to an international tribunal. If a foreign investor is granted a land concession for logging and, as a condition of the contract, is told that the trees must be replanted, the foreign investor can challenge the requirement to replant as an infringement on their “foreign investor rights” and “minimum standard of treatment” through UN and World Bank tribunals.

The U.S. logging company down the street can only go through U.S. courts and has no such special rights.

The very notion that international tribunals should get a say in how we manage U.S. property rights and grant concessions on U.S. land is simply unacceptable. Opening new markets between Central America and the United States is one thing. Asking me to cede decisions over U.S. natural resources and property rights to international tribunals while giving foreigners greater rights to our land than our own citizens have is something else entirely. I won’t accept it, and neither should you.

EXCHANGE OF SPECIAL ORDER TIME

Mr. POE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to claim the time of the gentleman from Idaho (Mr. OTTER).

The SPEAKER pro tempore announced there was objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas.

There was no objection.
SANCTUARY HIDEOUTS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Poe) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. Poe. Mr. Speaker, in the early morning hours of May 14, 2005, two Denver police officers were working an assay operation when Raúl García Gomez cowardly shot them both in the back and fled into the darkness of the night. Detective Donald Young was killed. Detective John Bishop was also shot in the back, but he survived. Gomez had been stopped previously three times by local police for traffic offenses. Each time he presented a Mexican driver's license. Each time he had no proof of insurance, and each time he was released even though he was here illegally.

Had he been an American citizen, the fact that he had no insurance for the third time would have resulted in him being arrested and hauled off to jail. We seem to discriminate against American citizens to benefit illegal aliens. Anyway, the reason Gomez was released instead of deported: sanctuary laws.

They are laws that stop police from arresting and detaining illegals that are here in the United States. Therefore, law enforcement officials cannot do anything to a person they discover is illegally here in the country other than let them loose back in society.

In fact, some cities prohibit police from stopping and going into a person's legal status in the United States. So-called sanctuary laws prohibit officers from "initiating police action where the objective is to discover the alien status of the person."

It would seem to me, and common sense would dictate, that police should know who is in the United States illegally. Have these cities not heard of the war on terror?

The order was created in Los Angeles and has been adopted in the major cities in the United States. In these cities, if an illegal immigrant is caught for a minor violation, police cannot detain this individual for immigration violations despite the fact these people are committing a Federal offense by their presence in our country. This hands-off policy is absurd and these cities protect people who are illegally in the United States.

Unfortunately, because of lack of enforcement of immigration laws, these sanctuaries and safe havens in the United States are growing. Some U.S. cities have actually implemented policies that provide and require these safe havens for illegal people. Mr. Speaker, in these selected hideouts, immigration laws are not enforced. These cities do not require and even some prohibit employers from reporting illegal aliens to Federal officials. Creating these secret hideouts encourages illegal immigration, and Americans pay the price. Americans always pay.

Officials in Houston, Texas, recently have implemented policies restricting coordination with local police and Federal authorities regarding immigration laws. And even recently the Governor of Maine has announced an executive order forbidding the State from enforcing Federal immigration laws.

Mr. Speaker, this is a serious problem and the cities that have adopted these sanctuary hideouts undermine the security of this Nation, encourage keeping our communities safe from lawlessness. All of this at the expense of Americans.

However, some cities faced with the cost of free social services to illegals have a different approach. The latest is Police Chief Garrett Chamberlain of New Ipswich, New Hampshire. He is charging illegals with criminal trespassing and arresting them. After all, they are trespassing on American soil. Part of the problem is there are too few Immigration and Custom Enforcement agents within the interior of the United States. There are less than 2,000 people enforcing the immigration laws of people who are illegally in the United States and in the interior.

Mr. Speaker, there are more than 800,000 law enforcement officials in the United States. They take a pledge to protect and serve every day, and they are tasked with the important job of keeping our communities safe from those outlaws who terrorize the streets. They watch out for our country, our kids, our families, and our great land. Novel idea, let these 800,000 protect our country. These sanctuary hideouts are not the answer. There should be no sanctuary for those who violate the law.

By the way, Detective Donald Young when he was murdered was shot three times in the head. He was married with two young daughters. He was 44 years of age. Detective John Bishop, shot in the back as well, only survived because of his bullet-proof vest. If the defendant had been deported upon his arrest and not given sanctuary, these officers would not have been shot. Mr. Speaker, this ought not to be. The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. Wynn) is recognized for 5 minutes. (Mr. Wynn addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

EXCHANGE OF SPECIAL ORDER TIME

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to claim the time of the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. Wynn).

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Ohio? There was no objection.

RENegotiate CAFTA

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Brown) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. Brown of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, this is a serious problem in the United States and sought safety in his country of Mexico to prevent being prosecuted for first degree murder and attempted murder.

Without dealing with the issue of Mexico's reluctance to extradite their citizens who have committed murder in the United States, Gomez had already been given a get-out-of-jail-free card in Denver because of absurd policies called "sanctuary laws." In Denver, Gomez had been stopped previously three times by local police for traffic offenses. Each time he presented a Mexican driver's license. Each time he had no proof of insurance, and each time he was released even though he was here illegally.

United States are growing. Some U.S. cities have actually implemented policies that provide and require these safe havens for illegal people. Detective John Bishop, shot in the back as well, only survived because of his bullet-proof vest. If the defendant had been deported upon his arrest and not given sanctuary, these officers would not have been shot. Mr. Speaker, this ought not to be.
Since April 21, more than 1,000 people have attended Capitol Hill news conferences asking the President to renegotiate this failed agreement. Democrats and Republicans, legislators from Central America, along with grassroots organizations representing workers and families, are calling on the Bush administration to renegotiate this Central American Free Trade Agreement.

Why do they oppose this? The gentleman from Oregon (Mr. DeFazio) showed this chart earlier. One of the reasons we oppose this agreement is our trade policy is not working. A dozen years ago I first ran in Congress in 1992, 13 years ago. We had a trade deficit in this country of $38 billion. Last year, just a dozen years later, that $38 billion had exploded into $618 billion. Clearly our trade policy is not working.

But make no mistake. Those of us opposed to this CAFTA do want trade with Central America, but we want an agreement that represents us, not a select few. We want an agreement that deserves to pass Congress based on its merits, not based on arm twisting, not based on middle-of-the-night votes, not based on sleazy deals, not based on, as some cases we have seen on this floor, out and out bribery.

We want an agreement that promotes small business, family farmers, that promotes ranchers and workers, that promotes food safety and the environment and people of faith in all six CAFTA countries and in our country.

We want an agreement that stands in line with our faith and our values and promotes the principles of social and economic justice. This CAFTA will not do that.

The people supporting CAFTA, they love to make promises that with CAFTA jobs in the U.S. will increase. We will export more to the developing world and the standard of living in these poor countries will go up. They promised that every time there is a trade agreement. They never come true.

Here, really, is fundamentally the reason that we know, that American manufacturers know, that American small farmers know, that American farmers know that we will not be exporting products to Central American countries. The average wage in the United States is $38,000. The average wage in El Salvador annually is $4,800; $2,600, Honduras; $2,500, Nicaragua.

The combined economic output of these Central American countries is about the same as that of Columbus, Ohio. They simply cannot afford to buy our products. This agreement will not allow workers in Central America to buy out of their father's or mother's pockets in Cincinnati or Toledo or Cleveland, Ohio. This agreement will not allow workers in Honduras to buy prime beef from Nebraska. It will not allow workers from Guatemala to buy software made in Seattle.

Mr. Speaker, this agreement is about U.S. companies moving plants to Honduras, outsourcing jobs to El Salvador, and exploiting, cheap labor or. Renegotiate this CAFTA and produce a better Central American Free Trade Agreement.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from Florida (Ms. Ros-Lehtinen) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentlewoman from North Carolina?

There was no objection.

OUT-OF-TOUCH DEMOCRATS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from North Carolina (Ms. Foxx) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. FOXX. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to claim the time of the gentlewoman from Florida (Ms. Ros-Lehtinen) who is excused.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The exchange of special order time concludes.

Mr. Speaker, I want to take a minute to read a quote from the minority leader, the gentlewoman from California (Ms. Pelosi), from a recent press conference she held: ‘‘It is important for us to take down their numbers, to take down their numbers on Social Security, to take down their numbers on credibility. That was very important. If you are the challenger, you are not going to go up against the leader in full strength. You have to take them down first and then you move out in a positive way.’’

This quote has troubled me greatly over the past week. I strongly disagree with this type of leadership.

While Republicans remain committed to moving forward with a positive, commonsense agenda, Democrats continue to rely on obstruction and partisan rhetoric. Republicans are concentrating on progress, and our results are hard to argue with. New jobs figures show that 146,000 new jobs were created in the month of June. The economy has created over 3.7 million jobs since May 2003, and we have seen steady job gains for each of the last 25 months.

There are more Americans working than ever before. The unemployment rate fell to 5 percent in June, the lowest rate in 42 years. The economy has been robust since September 2001. The energy bill passed by Congress will create nearly half a million new jobs in the manufacturing, construction, agriculture and technology sectors by reducing our dependence on foreign oil while exploring different sources of renewable fuels and nuclear energy.

This legislation will also help eventually lower the cost of gasoline, a drag on profits that is hitting small businesses hard. Republicans have been working diligently on behalf of small businesses. According to a business survey, over 80 percent of small businesses spend an average of $25,000 annually on attorney consultant fees and life insurance premiums in an attempt to avoid the crushing blow of the death tax. We are working to repeal the death tax because we feel this money could do more if it remains in the hands of business owners and not in the hands of the government.

In addition, the Bankruptcy Abuse Prevention and Consumer Protection Act of 2005 that President Bush signed into law will reduce the number of abusive and frivolous bankruptcy filings that have hurt the economy and small businesses by raising the cost of credit.

Republicans are improving our Nation’s transportation and infrastructure. House Republicans passed the highway bill which will fund our Federal highways and help increase the quality of our transportation and infrastructure. This legislation will help businesses to move products more efficiently and economists estimate that for every $1 billion spent to improve our highways, 40,000 new jobs will be created.

House Republicans are working to facilitate job training for American workers. Hundreds of thousands of new jobs are being created under our watch, and we are dedicated to providing adequate job training for all Americans who seek it. The Job Training Improvement Act of 2005, which the President signed last year, will help millions of job seekers by streamlining bureaucracy and making sure more time is spent training for the jobs of the 21st century.

In addition, the Vocational and Technical Education for the Future Act will strengthen and improve the framework of current vocational and technical education programs, add new accountability measures, focus on academic achievement, and streamline Federal... funding to help States and local communities make the most of Federal resources.

Republicans are also dedicated to national security and the war on terror. We are promoting responsible government spending and are committed to upholding American programs like Social Security. Democrats are committed to rhetoric that does nothing to keep America safe or grow our economy.

It has even come so far that the minority leadership is willing to contradict itself in order to block growth. On March 6, the House minority leader stated on Fox News Sunday that “we must stop robbing the Social Security Trust Fund of its money to pay for other things.” Yet in the June 24 edition of Congress Daily she stated, “There is nothing wrong with Social Security lending money with the prospect of returning it.”

This week, I sat down in my office to do some reading and came across a series of editorials from leading Republican Members. It was the sharp contrast in our ideologies that I saw when reading these articles that made me want to come to the floor tonight.

One of the Democrat’s editorials claimed that the first 6 months of the 109th Congress will be remembered as legislatively unproductive. This is not only untrue, but it demonstrates the complete unwillingness of the House minority to acknowledge and join in the effort for progress in America.

Republicans are proud of our vast accomplishments in the first half of the 109th Congress and we hope we can work with our friends on the other side of the aisle to bring forth ideas for the betterment of the Nation. I am proud of our accomplishments not just because they represent good policy but also because we have attracted bipartisan support. More than 40 rank-and-file Democrats voted with us to enact some of the most important measures of this Congress—despite opposition from their leadership. I want to thank those on the other side of the aisle who acted this Nation’s best interest and put politics aside.

We are working towards solutions that will create a stronger America that we can hand down to future generations with pride. We want to preserve vital programs like Social Security, continue to create jobs, lower taxes for hardworking Americans, and address the security issues facing our country. I look forward to the day that the minority joins us in a bipartisan effort to strengthen our Nation and stops attempting to block progress for the sake of partisan politics.

In the meantime, I hope the American people will examine the record so that they can see which party truly is out of the mainstream. When they do, they will come to one and only one conclusion—that the Republican principles of progress and solutions are benefiting the entire Nation, while the Democrat tactics of obstructionism, stonewalling, and contribute nothing. It is the Washington Democrats, Mr. Speaker, that are truly out of the mainstream—not the Republicans.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. PRICE of Georgia). Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CUMMINGS) is recognized for 5 minutes.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from California (Ms. WOOLSEY) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. WOOLSEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise to register my continued sadness and frustration with the Nation’s Iraq policy. As much of Washington now focuses on a Supreme Court nomination, and as many Americans prepare for August vacations, I hope none of us forget the sacrifice of our men and women in uniform and the disastrous decisions that put them in harm’s way in the very first place.

We are fast approaching 1,800 deaths in Iraq, Mr. Speaker, and for what? Are we any safer from terrorism? The recent attacks in London would seem to indicate that we are not. If the Iraq war has not enhanced American Security, why did we have to expand the PATRIOT Act last week and clamp down even further on our civil liberties?

The truth is our military presence in Iraq is contributing to the chaos there, not alleviating it. The occupation has sparked more intense feelings of anti-Americanism and breathed new life into the insurgency. A recent government report even voices concerns that terrorists and insurgents are succeeding at infiltrating the Iraqi police force.

Like all of my friends in Congress, I believe nothing is more important than supporting our troops, but I believe the best way to support them is to bring them home to their families as soon as possible. Ending the war should be the very first step in a complete overhaul in our approach to a national security policy. We must redirect our priorities and our resources so that peace and diplomacy, not aggression and chest-beating, become the guiding lights of our foreign policy.

I have come up with a plan that I have labeled SMART Security, with the “SMART” standing for Sensible, Multilateral American Response to Terrorism. There are five components to SMART.

First, stop future acts of terrorism, not by arbitrarily invading sovereign nations, but by collaborating with NATO and the U.N., by strengthening our intelligence capabilities, and by enhancing efforts to cut off financing of terrorist organizations.

Second, stop the spread of weapons of mass destruction, not by deposing regimes that have them, but with diplomacy, enhanced inspection regimes, and regional security arrangements. The United States should also work more closely with the states of the Soviet Union to secure loose nuclear material, and we should set an example for the world by living up to our own international nonproliferation commitments.

Third, address root causes of terrorism like instability, despair and hopelessness. So SMART includes an ambitious international development program, debt relief, democracy building, sustainable development education, especially for women and for girls, and more foreign aid.

Fourth, shift U.S. budget priorities. Does it make any sense at all, Mr. Speaker, that we continue to invest billions of dollars in a missile defense shield? The Cold War is over, and our defense priorities should reflect the new threats of a new era. Among other things, we ought to be investing in renewable energy sources that will help wean the Nation from Middle Eastern oil. It is unbelievable to me that the Congress may soon pass an energy bill that costs us billions of dollars, but barely addresses the problem of dependence on oil imports.

Fifth, pursue alternatives to war. At its core, SMART is about choosing peace over war and resorting to force only in the most extreme circumstances. So it includes an emphasis on effective conflict assessment, early warning systems, multilateral response mechanisms, and other tools that will help avoid military action.

Mr. Speaker, our current national security posture is not only morally questionable, it is functionally flawed. My objection is not just a philosophical one, but a practical one. What we are doing now is not making America safer.

It is time to get smart about national security. It is time for a new strategy that protects America by relying on the very best of American values—love of peace, advocacy for global leadership, our belief in freedom and opportunity, and our compassionate fellowship with the people of the world.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Nebraska (Mr. OSBORNE) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. OSBORNE. Mr. Speaker, I rise tonight in strong support of the Central American Free Trade Agreement, known as CAFTA. This trade agreement, Mr. Speaker, will help fuel economic growth, and, perhaps more importantly, help preserve... the economic liberties of the common American citizen.

Now, those favoring protectionism tonight have cited several fallacious arguments for rejecting CAFTA and other free trade efforts. Some argue CAFTA is a vote against American jobs. The opposite is true. Even more than previous free trade agreements, U.S. producers have so much to gain under CAFTA. You see, our U.S. markets are already open to Central America. Eighty percent of imports from the six CAFTA countries already enter duty free. Since our markets are already open to goods from these countries, CAFTA will level the playing field like never before for American exports.

CAFTA could expand U.S. farm exports by $1.5 billion a year as prices of U.S. wheat and other crops are free from tariffs. Manufacturing and information technology could see exports increase by $1 billion annually when duties are removed. And the list goes on and on. A vote against CAFTA is a vote against new American jobs.

Another argument used by those who oppose trade is concern for the trade deficit, but as I just pointed out, our markets are already 90 percent open to the CAFTA countries. It is their markets that are mostly closed to us. Therefore, CAFTA can only help ease the trade deficit.

Now, other people argue that CAFTA will somehow increase illegal immigration. The opposite is, of course, true. Most illegal aliens do not come to America because they love hot dogs, baseball, and apple pie. They come quite simply because they are poor, and they need to feed their families. Trade with these Central American countries will help make the Central American countries more prosperous. Greater Central American prosperity will lead to fewer desperate workers, which in turn will lead to fewer illegal immigrants than would otherwise come over.

The CAFTA understanding on immigration measures explicitly states that it does not impose on the parties any obligations with respect to foreigners seeking employment or residency. Simply put: A vote against CAFTA is actually a vote for more illegal immigration.

Another argument which just simply does not stand up to scrutiny, Mr. Speaker, somehow, somewhere, the U.S. loses sovereignty. CAFTA is a voluntary agreement with our neighbors to lower tariffs according to a mutually agreed-upon schedule. If any country violates their commitments, other countries, of course, are free to retaliate as they wish. But no international body can make or change U.S. law. Again, no international body can change or make U.S. law. We all do agree to a nonbinding dispute resolution that we are free to ignore at our will.

Mr. Speaker, we must pass CAFTA and the free trade it represents. Free trade delivers greater choice of goods and services to our consumers at lower prices. That means American families can buy better products using less of their paychecks. It is all about competition, and competition has always helped the consumer. We have over 200 years of history to prove it. And it does not matter if that competition comes from Nashville, Nicaragua, El Paso, or El Salvador.

Over the past few years, prices have dropped for a wide array of goods and services that are produced around the world, such as video equipment and toys, yet we pay a whole lot more for products that do not compete with foreign countries; for example, prescription drugs and cable TV. Competition works. Trade works. No one should come to this floor claiming to speak for low-income Americans and oppose CAFTA.

Mr. Speaker, beyond all the obvious economic benefits of free trade, we must recognize that this is fundamentally an issue of personal freedom. Nations do not trade with nations. People trade with people. With the exception of national security considerations, every American citizen should have the right to determine the origin of the goods and services that they want to purchase. Is this not the land of the free? Have not generations fought and sacrificed to secure the blessings of liberty?

Now, maybe we in Congress have the power, but do we have the right, do we have the moral authority to tell a waitress in Topeka, Kansas, she cannot buy a can of beans to help feed her family because it comes from El Salvador? Do we have the right, do we have the moral authority to tell a construction worker in New York that he cannot buy a pretty blue dress for his 3-year-old daughter because it comes from Honduras? Shame on us if we claim we do have that right.

Mr. Speaker, for over 200 years America has benefited from more trade and greater competition. I urge my colleagues to once again reject raw protectionism, reject bitter partisanship, and stand for freedom, stand for prosperity, stand for free trade and vote for the Central American Free Trade Agreement.

STATE OF U.S. ECONOMY

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker’s announced policy of January 4, 2005, the gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. MALONEY) is recognized for 30 minutes as the designee of the minority leader.

Mrs. MALONEY. Mr. Speaker, there has been a great deal of happy talk lately from the Bush administration and its supporters about the state of the American economy. To hear them tell it, you would think that some kind of supply-side miracle has taken place in the past few months and that the economy is now performing so well that jobs are plentiful, workers are well paid, that the budget deficit is being slashed in half, and that the trade deficit, which happens to be the largest in history, is nothing to worry about.

Of course nothing could be further from the truth, and all we have to do is go out and talk to our constituents to know that. Tonight my colleagues and I want to set the record straight on the economic policies of the Bush administration.

We want to look at the real record of job creation, the continued presence of unemployment, the failure of wages to keep up with inflation, and the widening disparity between the haves and the have-nots which is tremen-dously troubling. We will document how ordinary workers have been shortchanged in this economy, which has gone through the most protracted job slump since the Great Depression.

This chart summarizes the point well. The Bush administration has the worst job creation record of any administration back to Herbert Hoover. This chart shows the average rate of job creation by this administration. For most of his term, President Bush was the only President since President Hoover to actually lose jobs. Now he is at least in positive territory, but with a very anemic job growth of just 0.2 percent per year. Compare that with the 2.4 percent annual job growth under President Clinton, which is more than 10 times greater. Compare this from the Clinton administration back to the Hoover administration.

The Bush administration and its supporters will not take responsibility for the failure of their policies. Instead they keep saying the same thing over and over again: tax cuts. But the Bush administration’s economic program has not created an economy that works for America’s ordinary citizens, and they have mortgaged our future.

Responsible analysts have shown that the Bush tax cuts were poorly designed for generating jobs and putting people back to work in the wake of the 2001 recession. They had very low "bang for the buck" in terms of job stimulus in the short run, but they were so massive, they created a legacy of large budget deficits and mounting debt that will be a drag on the economy in the long run.

President Bush has squandered the hard-won fiscal discipline achieved in the 1990s. He inherited a 10-year budget surplus of $5.6 trillion and turned it into a stream of deficits. This chart shows what has happened so far. This chart shows that when President Bush took office, the National Budget Office was projecting that the budget surplus of $236 billion in 2000 would grow to over $433 billion in 2005. In fact, the latest projection from the administration is that the budget will have a deficit of $333 billion this year.

In their mid-session review, the administration proclaimed this a major improvement because they had projected an even larger deficit in their January budget. But $333 billion is still the third largest deficit in the history of our country and a far cry from the $435 billion surplus that was being projected at the start of the Bush administration.

The administration is portraying a future of declining deficits over the next few years, but that is not what responsible analysts say. They observe instead that special factors were probably the reason for the jump in revenue this year, and they point out how much is left out of deficit projections, including the ongoing cost of the war in Iraq and Afghanistan and a fix for the alternative minimum tax.

We have become a Nation of debtors, relying on the rest of the world to finance our budget deficits and the rest of our excessive spending.

Last year we had to finance a record current account deficit of $668 billion, and that deficit was even larger at an annual rate in the first quarter reaching 6.4 percent of our gross national product.

Foreign governments are holding large quantities of our public debt, putting us at risk of a major international financial crisis if they should decide that the benefits of holding dollars are no longer worth the risk.

Mr. Speaker, our future prosperity depends on increasing our national savings and making wise investments. It depends on being ready for the retirement of the men and women who have made the pressure we know that will be put on the budget. But how is the Bush administration preparing us for this future? With more deficits and more debt. They want to make the tax cuts that have gotten us into this mess permanent, and they have a plan for privatizing Social Security that would cut benefits substantially and add even more to our debt. We need a better plan.

Mr. Speaker, in the remainder of our time we will look more closely at the realities of this economy and the failures of the current economic policies, including the weak labor market that continues to be a major characteristic of the Bush administration economy.

Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. LORETTA SANCHEZ), an economist by training.

Ms. LORETTA SANCHEZ of California. Mr. Speaker, it is my pleasure to yield to the gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. MALONEY) for putting together this Special Order.

I think the chart that was just up is a very important chart to talk about. A lot of people ask me what is the most important thing you are worried about when you go to sleep at night. They know that I sit on the Committee on Armed Services and the Committee on Homeland Security. I tell them the problem is the debt and the deficits that we are creating in Washington, D.C. because they will come back to haunt each and every family in this United States.

The chart here shows that when President Bush took office we were running a surplus, a surplus in the annual budget that we had, in other words, our annual spending plan. President Clinton had structured our taxes in such a way that he brought down the deficit from earlier years, and we were in a surplus. We are running more taxes than we were spending in a year, which allowed us to take those additional taxes and bring down the debt, the actual debt that this country carries.

But what happened when President Bush came into office? He began to change that around because spending went up and we collected fewer taxes. We have given three large packages of tax cuts in the time that President Bush has been in office. His own controller has said that the reason we are running deficits, 70 percent of that is due to the fact that we just do not collect taxes. We do not collect enough taxes to pay for the programs that we are spending on a national basis. So 70 percent is due to the fact of those tax cuts. And those tax cuts, quite frankly, were not even very good; they are haphazard. They were used to buy votes and to make everybody think they had gotten a tax cut, but when you look at the tax packages and what has happened to us as a Nation in order to invest in our future, they were very poorly written and really do not do very much for our overall economy.

But this deficit problem is the one that we see on this chart, every year we are spending more than the moneys we are taking in in Washington, D.C. That is a problem because it adds to our debt. It is a problem because this just keeps growing and growing. Our debt is now over $7 trillion, and that is something that we need to mind here in Washington, D.C.

We can give you tax cuts, we can spend $1.5 billion a week on a war in Iraq, and everything will be fine. When will this happen? Who will pay this debt? Well, sooner rather than later we will, my generation. And then when we cannot get to it, our children. After our children, our grandchildren. This is a major problem for us. The reason it is a problem is because unless you invest in your country for the future, you are going to become disadvantaged economically compared to the rest of the world. What do I mean by that?

Every week that we spend $1.5 billion in Iraq, we get nothing back in return, not one little dime on that investment. Meanwhile, we do not invest in education, we do not invest in a health care system, we do not invest in telecommunications, we cannot even pass a transportation bill in this town, we do not invest in new technology. When you do not invest in those things that make you more productive, sooner or later the Chinese and people from India and other places will be smarter, will be better equipped, and will be better able to take over the global economy.

We are not investing in our children. We are not investing in ourselves. We are not retraining those people who have lost jobs. We are not helping them. We are not building the next new thing. We are not putting enough money into research because we are not trying to make money at the Federal level because of those tax cuts and because we are spending it on a war that is bringing nothing, no rate of return back to us.

Mrs. MALONEY. I thank the gentlewoman for her comments. The great American jobs machine, which created over 20 million net new jobs under President Clinton, has been sputtering under President Bush. We are only just emerging from the worst job slump since the 1930s. Job creation is still sluggish. There continues to be substantial hidden unemployment. Wages are not keeping up with inflation, and there is a widening gulf between the haves and the have-nots. The benefits of the economic recovery have not been fairly distributed. In the bottom line of companies, but not in the paychecks of American workers.

Let us look at job creation. Last month there were 1.1 million more new jobs on nonfarm payrolls than there were when President Bush took office in January of 2001. That is a paltry pace of job creation of just 20,000 jobs per month, 210 of 1 percent per year. That is the slowest pace of job creation under any President in over 70 years.

Leaving aside job creation in the government sector, there were just 161,000 more private sector jobs on U.S. payrolls last month than there were when President Bush took office. Within the private sector, manufacturing was particularly hard hit, with payrolls declining by 2.8 million manufacturing jobs between 2001 and 2005. That is 2.8 million manufacturing jobs lost. The job slump associated with the recession that began in March 2001 has been the most protracted job slump since at least the end of World War II. We do not have consistent data back that far. But, in fact, one would have to go back to the 1930s to find a worse job slump.

As you can see in this chart, which focuses on the period after the end of World War II and shows the percentage change in employment after the start of a recession, job losses typically stop about a year after the onset of a recession, and job gains begin to increase after about 15 months. Within 2 years, employment surpasses its pre-recession level and is expanding at a healthy pace.

The most recent job slump has been dramatically different from that pattern and even more protracted than the so-called “jobless recovery” following the 1990–1991 recession. In the latest recession, which began in March 2001, job losses continued until May 2003, more than 2 years after the start of the recession. It was not until January 2005, nearly 4 years later, that payroll employment finally climbed out of the hole created by the recession. The reason the job creation is bringing nothing, no rate of return is because of the severe recession we have experienced since 2001.

Compare this experience with the 1990s losses. In the latest recession pales in comparison with the 1990s under President Clinton, it was common to see job gains of 200,000 to 300,000 and, in some cases, 400,000 jobs per month. But months with job gains of 200,000 or more have been few and far between in this business cycle. In May, 104,000 jobs were added and in June, 146,000 were added. These are not strong numbers because, as I said, we have to create between 125,000 to 150,000 new jobs created to just keep pace with the number of workers going into the labor force.

The expansion of the 1990s started slowly, but the jobless recovery following the 1990–1991 recession pales in comparison with the prolonged job slump we experienced after the 2001 recession. At this point in the recovery from the 1990–1991 recession, the economy had created over 4 million more jobs than we have seen in this recovery.

Contrary to administration claims about the success of their policies in stimulating the economy and producing jobs, the facts tell a very different story about the Bush economic record. Under President Bush, the worst job creation record of any President since Herbert Hoover, and the economy under President Bush has struggled to escape from what has been by far the most prolonged job slump in the postwar period.

I yield to the distinguished gentlewoman from California for further comments on this issue.

Ms. LORETTA SANCHEZ of California. In fact, the Bush administration does try to paint things rosily, but we have to admit, you can feel it out there. You can feel it in towns. You know it. You can feel it within your heart and soul. Everybody was making money. People had jobs. They had good jobs. We could see the economy expanding.

As an economist, I will tell you that in business school we learned that there are ups and downs in the economy. They are called cycles. A typical business cycle lasts 12 to 14 months. With Clinton in office, it lasted 8 years. There was a reason. He took the hard steps to bring in the money to pay down the debt of the United States. People realized that financially our house was in order, and it was sound, and it was getting sounder. But with Bush, it is completely the opposite. That is one of the reasons why we have an anemic job creation going on.

And other figures that they throw out, oh, unemployment is down. Let me tell you why unemployment would be down. We kind of see the total number of jobs, but that is not finding a job and you stop looking for a job because there is just not a job to be had in town, you come off the unemployment rolls, you are not considered unemployed anymore. You are just left with nothing. You are not using to have a job that paid $25 an hour and had vacation time and had a pension, had health care paid, and you look and you look and you look for that job, but there is not a job to be had like that, and you are losing your home because you cannot pay your mortgage, and your kids need to be fed, and the only job you can get is to go down to McDonald’s or something and get a minimum wage job, that happens, you are not considered unemployed. You are not unemployed. That is why when they say unemployment is going down, what they mean is people are underemployed. They are taking whatever job they can find, and without proper medical health care for their families. These are not the same jobs that they used to have, that we used to have.

That is why we feel it. We feel it in America. We know. Our gut tells us that things are not as good today as they were back then under the Democrats.

Mrs. MALONEY. Mr. Speaker, reclaiming my time, I thank my colleague for her comments. And one of the things that we have talked about is that is very troubling to her and me, the third most disturbing thing about this administration is that is very troubling to her and me, the third most disturbing thing that is very troubling to her and me, the third most disturbing thing is that Bush administration continues to paint things rosy. But we have to admit, you can feel it out there. You can feel it in towns. You know it. You can feel it within your heart and soul. Everybody was making money. People had jobs. They had good jobs. data.

growing faster than inflation
the fourth quarter of 2000 to the fourth quarter of 2004. That contrasts with the healthy 1.7 percent per year in the previous 4 years under President Clinton.

In other words, the typical worker, whose earnings grew substantially faster than inflation in the late 1990s, has seen the earnings growth grind to a halt during the first 4 years of the Bush administration. The typical worker's earnings barely kept up with inflation.

Worse than the overall stagnation in earnings is the widening disparity of earnings between high earners and low earners. If we look at those same data on usual weekly earnings of full-time workers, but instead of just looking at the middle, we look at the top and bottom, we see a distorted disparity pattern. In this chart, the blue bars show growth in the Clinton years. Yes. There was very good growth at the very top of the distribution, but there was likewise substantial growth in the middle and at the bottom as well.

Compare that with the red bars showing the changes during the first 4 years of the Bush administration. Real earnings at the bottom of the distribution, the 10th percentile, actually fell at an average annual rate of 3 percent per year in President Bush's first term, while those at the top, the 90th percentile, rose the most, almost 1 percent per year. In other words, the earnings that lagged farthest behind for inflation during the Bush years, the earnings for people with the lowest earnings to begin with, while the earnings that grew the fastest, faster even than inflation, were those for people at the highest earnings to begin with.

Finally, we come to the most disturbing trend of all. Things have been getting worse, not better, recently.
During the period when the economy has finally started creating jobs, earnings have not been keeping up with inflation. In other words, the only earnings that grew faster than inflation were those of people at the very top.
Everyone else saw their cost of living grow faster than their earnings. And when we look at the facts of what is happening to most workers, it is hard to accept the President's argument that his tax cuts have worked to create better jobs and higher wages. That is not what we see when we look at this data.

It is very troubling to the people, and it is very troubling, I would say, to the future of this country. It is not good for anyone, whether they are at the top or bottom, to have this wage gap growing and this disparity growing in our Nation. It is an extremely troubling trend.

Yield to the gentlewoman from California.

Ms. LINDA T. SÁNCHEZ of Caliifornia. Mr. Speaker, I believe that this chart really tells a great picture. We look at these blue bars. We start on one side and we see people who make the least amount of money, and we go across the way to people who are very rich and making lots of money. And the blue bars are during Clinton's time, and what they say about "a high tide raises all boats," we can see that. See the blue. They all grow up.

The red represents the Bush years.
The one under, the negative growth, are the poor people, the people who make the least amount of money. And the big red bar on the other end, those are the people who make the most money on an annual basis. Look at that. That is what Bush has done. He has rewarded those who make the most money by increasing what they are making, and those households that make less money actually are losing ground.

But we do not have to look at a chart like that. We can see it every day.
What is the biggest disparity that we have between those who have great jobs and those who have minimum-工资 jobs? One of the major things is education, for example. Those who have a better education there are probably, probably, going to make more money.

So what has Bush done during these years? If we look at this budget that he proposed this year, cutting moneys to community colleges, a place where people who have lost their jobs can go and get new skills, get retrained, the money is not there anymore. Places for immigrants who want to learn English at night, for example, cannot get into these classes anymore. The Republicans are trying to cut the student loan program, a way in which people, people who do not have money, are able to go and finance an education. I know because I had student loans. Pell Grants. Those are the out, and scholarships that we give to people who want to go get a higher education, he managed to raise it by only $100. Think about that. Tuition going crazy at colleges and universities. Anybody who have a bunch of kids and is looking at this can see the trend: $100, that is the increase that the President says is going to fix everything.

But the biggest disparity that has happened from this President is the fact that he put in a signature package called No Child Left Behind where he was going to look and measure how our kids were doing in our kindergarten through 12th-grade system, and if they were not doing well, if they were below the level where they should be, they were going to try to get more people in to help them, take extra care of these kids so we can bring them up to the average where they were supposed to be.

but in a weak labor market, there can be considerable hidden unemployment and underemployment if people who want to work have been discouraged from looking for work, and if people who want to work full-time can only find a part-time job. In a typical business cycle, people come back into the labor force as the prospects of finding a job improve, but, this time, the labor force participation rate has remained depressed, compared with what it was in the start of the recession.

Last month, 5.2 million people who were not in the labor force said they wanted a job. About 1.6 million of these are considered “marginally attached” to the labor force because they have searched for work in the past year and are available for work, but they are not counted in the official unemployment rate, because they did not search for work recently enough. In addition to people who are not in the labor force but say that they want a job, 4.5 million people were working part-time in June because of the weak economy. They wanted full-time work, but they were not able to find it.

The official unemployment rate was 5 percent in June, and the Bureau of Labor Statistics estimates that if marginally attached workers were included, the unemployment rate would have been 6 percent, and if those working part-time for economic reasons were also included, it would have been 9 percent. A new study by Katherine Bradbury of the Federal Reserve of Boston reaches similar conclusions: labor force participation has not rebounded in this recovery the way it usually does, and the unemployment rate would be 1 to 3 percentage points higher if those missing participants were in the labor force.

Mr. Speaker, the President and his supporters seem to think that a 5 percent unemployment rate shows the success of their economic policies in creating jobs, but the facts tell a very different story. Employers are not hiring as though they believe the economy is strong, and potential workers are staying out of the labor force. The unemployment rate is still almost a percentage point higher than it was when President Bush took office, and there is considerable hidden unemployment. Employers are not hiring as though they believe the economy is strong, and potential workers are staying out of the labor force.

So these numbers are not strong, and I ask my colleagues if she would like to elaborate.

Ms. LORETTA SANCHEZ of California, I was almost everywhere you look in the economy. If you really understand what is going on, the numbers are not strong; the numbers just are not strong. Again, one of the things we need to do as a country is to invest in our people and invest in our country, make them more productive, so they do not spend as much time in traffic, for example, and those are good-paying jobs. Those are good-paying jobs that spin off other jobs, but we are not doing it from here.

Why? Because we are sending the money out. Meanwhile, we are talking about building schools in Iraq and building transportation systems in Iraq, and building water systems in Iraq, but we are really not doing it here in the United States. We are not putting the money where we need to have it put. And, let me also add that we have another major problem, and that is called the trade deficit. The trade deficit.

Just earlier this year, when the tariffs came off of textiles with respect to China, our trade deficit went crazy because we did not have autoworkers in auto plants that can continue so until we figure out how to invest in ourselves, how to invest in our country, how to collect the taxes and pay down our debt, bring down the deficit every year, so that people will begin to believe us again, that we understand how to run a financially sound household here.

I am sure that the gentleman from New York is probably going to talk a little bit about the statistics with respect to trade and what that is doing to us.

Mrs. MALONEY. Mr. Speaker, I really want to point out that the President and his supporters are trying to make the case that the economy is thriving and that their policies are responsible. But when we look at the facts that we have pointed out tonight, we see instead that American workers are still waiting to see the benefits of the economic recovery in their paychecks, and that we have large and unsustainable budget deficits.

In fact, this administration has set a number of records, only the problem is, they are the wrong records. They have raised the debt ceiling 3 times so that now, we have a staggering debt of over $7.6 trillion. This is the largest debt in the history of our country, and that breaks down to each American’s share being over $20,000. That is what we are giving to our children and our grandchildren.

And, as was said earlier, the trade deficit is again another record, only the wrong kind of record; another record of over $619 billion, the largest in the history of the United States, and growing. And, we have a staggering deficit of over $333 billion.

I remember when I ran for office back in 1992, the country had a deficit of $250 billion, and everybody said it was the worst they have ever seen. If I had told them, “vote for me, I am going to go to Congress, I am going to work with the Democratic Congress to pay off that deficit, and in a number of years you are going to see a huge surplus,” they would have said, we have a nice little girl, but she does not know what she is talking about.

But that is exactly what we did. We came to Congress with President Clinton, we paid down, and he left office with a surplus, a huge surplus. That is what the Bush administration inherited. And what have they given us? They have given us a staggering deficit, a staggering trade deficit, and the largest debt in the history of our Nation. What kind of legacy is that?

Mr. Speaker, I say to my colleagues that on top of this burden that they are putting on our children and our grandchildren, they now plan to privatize part of Social Security that would also add to the debt without increasing our national savings. And, according to Chairman Greenspan, this privatization that they proposed for Social Security would not do anything to help to solve the Social Security plan. It does not help the solvency; it just adds to the staggering debt.

And on top of this, they proposed cuts to traditional Social Security benefits that would undermine the economic security of future retirees. And I say to my colleagues, this is not the legacy that I want to leave to my children or to my grandchildren. It is a burden that will have a huge impact on their quality of life.

Mr. Speaker, I conclude my remarks.

Ms. LORETTA SANCHEZ of California. I will just say that the whole issues of Social Security, by the way, pension plans that many of our retirees are on or believe that they are going to be on in a few years, are really due to be underfunded, and the administration is not doing anything about it.

Some of the policies that they have and some of the ideas that they have of really the security, the financial security, of people is really up for grabs with this administration with some of the ideas that they have, but, that is another night. We can talk about what they plan to do to the American people on another night.
Although many of my colleagues or some of my colleagues may not agree with all of his policies, the facts speak for themselves. He inherited a deficit; he left office with a surplus. And while he was putting our economic house in order, we balanced our budget, and we invested in all, in child, in health care, in education and helped the people in our country.

During the Clinton years there was a very important economic factor, that the distance between the haves and the have-nots has closed. In other words, everyone prospered, which is good for the Nation. It is not good for only one segment to prosper and others to fall behind. That really could destroy the social fabric of this country. It is very disturbing to me.

So I wish that we would return to really the financial policies that we had under President Clinton where we balanced our budget, we invested in our people, in education, and health care, and we had a surplus. Yet under this administration, we have a deficit, and we have a staggering debt, the largest in our history. This is not the legacy that I want to leave to my children.

Mrs. MALONEY. Well, I thank the gentlewoman for her comments. And I would just like to conclude by noting that this Monday was President Clinton’s birthday. And I authored a resolution congratulating him on his birthday, which emphasized his strong economic program for this country.

I want to finish off by saying, you know, again, we feel it. You feel it. We feel the difference between what we experienced under President Clinton and what we are experiencing under President Bush.

President Bush would have you believe it is because 9/11 happened, and because the terrorists are after us, and because we are now having to spend money in the war. And he is trying to tell you that that is why we have this malaise going on in our economy. I have got news for you. That has very little to do with it. It has to do with the priorities of where you put your money. The priorities should be in investment in America. The priorities should be in trade because we are in a global economy, but in fair trade, not free trade, in fair trade with countries who will not have slave labor competing against us, the American workers.

It is about people who hold to promises, if we have trademarks, if we have copyrights, if we have intellectual property. If we spend the money to make a software system, it should not be pilfered and the next day in China and then back in our markets to compete against us. But other countries do that, and we sit here as an administration and they do nothing. They do nothing.

So we have forgotten to fund education; they are cutting it back, in fact. We have not even begun to get into the whole idea of health care. If you are not a healthy country, you are not going to be a productive economy. We have not talked about investing in technology and transportation and in telecommunication. Those are all issues that are important for us. But these issues of not understanding and not standing up to other countries who are mistreating us when we trade is another reason why this trade deficit is against us, and that in return hurts us economically and builds this debt and this deficit.

But one of the biggest reasons why we have deficits and why we are adding to the debt is because again this President has told us that we can go to war, that we can do everything, that we should continue to spend, that we do not need to save as a country, and that somehow or another everything is going to work out, oh, and by the way, we do not have to pay taxes. That is his message. Well, we are smart people. Americans, we are smart people. We understand the situation.

The answer is we need to begin to change this, and we need to get our financial house in order. And I thank the gentlewoman for having taken the time tonight to discuss some of these issues.

Mr. TAYLOR of North Carolina subordinated the following conference report to the bill (H.R. 2361) ‘making appropriations for the Department of the Interior, environment, and related agencies for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2006, and for other purposes’, as reported by the committee of conference on the disagreementing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 2361) ‘making appropriations for the Department of the Interior, environment, and related agencies for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2006, and for other purposes’, as reported by said amendment, insert:

That the following sums are appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, for the Department of the Interior, environment, and related agencies for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2006, and for other purposes, namely:

These increases are offset by a decrease of $1,000,000 for waterfowl research. The managers note that $5,000,000 is provided in the construction account for visitor contact facilities.

In migratory bird management, there are increases in conservation and monitoring of $375,000 for focal species management, $100,000 for survey and monitoring, and $100,000 for population and habitat assessment. In the joint ventures program, there is an increase of $100,000 in national administration for a program assessment of existing joint ventures and an increase of $400,000 to initiate the Central Hardwoods and the Northern Great Plains joint ventures.

In law enforcement operations, there is a decrease of $250,000 for vehicle replacement.

General Administration.—In general operations, increases include $250,000 for National Conservation Training Center operations and $397,000 for Federal Aviation Administration. The managers also are concerned about the unreimbursed costs associated with the airfield in fiscal year 2006. The Federal Aviation Administration. The managers agree to the following distribution of funds:

1. The funds provided for wolf recovery include $350,000 for the Nez Perce Tribe, $730,000 for the Idaho Office of Species Conservation, $100,000 for the Service’s Snake River Basin Office pursuant to a memorandum of agreement between the Nez Perce Tribe and the State of Idaho, and $280,000 for wolf monitoring and related activities by the State of Montana.

2. The $1,000,000 provided in the ESA recovery program for the Penobscot River restoration project reflects the squeeze on time funding that has been provided in the Service’s budget. Funds were provided for the project by the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration for 1 year and anticipated through the Army Corps of Engineers and NOAA in fiscal year 2006; and the State of Maine along with private groups are also expected to provide funds for removing dams on the Penobscot River. The managers will carefully analyze any future requests for funding from the Fish and Wildlife Service budget for this project. Managers note the expectation that the aforementioned entities will be the primary contributors to the project.

3. The Peregrine Fund is funded at $550,000 in fiscal year 2006, which includes $150,000 for Northern aplomado falcon recovery activities.

4. The funding provided in the partners for fish and wildlife program for a study of declining wildlife populations on Lake Umbagog NWR in cooperation with the New Hampshire Audubon Society, will complete this project.

5. The managers are concerned that for the past two years the white pelican population at Chase Lake NWR, ND, has experienced unexplained disturbances. In 2004, nearly 30,000 pelicans abandoned the colony and in 2005, inspections revealed only 50 live chicks out of a potential hatch batch of 9,000.

6. The managers are aware that the Service is working to determine the scope of these problems and expects the Service to report to the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations no later than October 1, 2005, on the status of the cause of the 2004 abandonment and the 2005 deaths and what steps it believes are necessary to reverse this trend.

7. The managers are aware that the Service is currently working on the Comprehensive Conservation Plan for Vuegos NWR in Puerto Rico. In an effort to keep the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations informed on the progress and scope of the CCP, the Service should report to the Committees by January 1, 2006, on plan development and efforts currently being conducted on Vuegos NWR, the expected cost of the cleanup, if known, and the methods being used to dispose of ordnance.

8. No additional funding is provided for existing joint ventures in fiscal year 2006. The managers believe the Service should consider decreased funding for those projects in future budget requests.

9. The $1,400,000 provided for whirling disease research includes $1,000,000 for the National Partnership on the Management of Wild and Native Coldwater Fisheries and $400,000 for the Whirling Disease Foundation.

10. Funding for whirling disease research includes $1,000,000 for the National Partnership on the Management of Wild and Native Coldwater Fisheries and $400,000 for the Whirling Disease Foundation.

11. An increase of $1,000,000 is provided for continued development of the National Fish Habitat Initiative. Distribution of funds would not follow the direction in House Report 109-80.

12. The fishery program should continue to keep the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations informed on the indirect costs to address base budget erosion and inequities in field station funding, including consideration of reimbursable funding.

13. The funds provided for the Caddo Lake Ramsar Center in Texas are for conservation and education programs, and the Service should share in those activities in hatchery operations and budget for these activities in hatchery operations in future budget requests.

The conference agreement provides $45,891,000 for construction instead of $12,206,000 as proposed by the House and $31,811,000 as proposed by the Senate. The managers agree to the following distribution of funds:
Bill Language.—The conference agreement includes language proposed by the Senate transferring funds appropriated in fiscal year 2005 for the Chase Lake and Arrowwood NWRs, ND, to North Dakota State University to complete planning and design for a joint interpretive center. The House had no similar provision.

The managers agree to the following:

1. The $700,000 in funding for Hakalau Forest NWR, HI, ungulate control fencing is provided with the understanding that an additional $400,000 will need to be provided in fiscal year 2007 to complete the project.

2. The funding provided for the Hanford Reach, WA visitor center completes the Federal commitment to this project.

3. The $5,000,000 in funding for Kodiak NWR, AK, visitor center is sufficient to complete construction. The managers agree that an additional $800,000 will need to be provided in fiscal year 2007 to complete the acquisition of furnishings and equipment for the center.

4. The Service should reprogram $350,000 from the completed Orangeburg dam project at Orangeburg NFH, SC, to complete the waterline construction project at the National Conservation Training Center.

5. The funding provided for laboratory construction at Sevilleta NWR, NM completes this project.

6. The $525,000 provided for White Sulphur Springs NFH, WV, includes $400,000 for maintenance and grounds improvements and $125,000 for quarters rehabilitation. An additional $25,000 will need to be provided in fiscal year 2007 to complete the quarters renovation.

LAND ACQUISITION

The conference agreement provides $20,000,000 for land acquisition instead of $14,937,000 as proposed by the House and $80,000,000 as proposed by the Senate.

the sale, by concessioners or via lease agreements (in accordance with real property leasing authority, 36 CFR Part 17), of authentic American made souvenirs, which reflect, celebrate, and celebrate unique history, spirit, culture, and natural treasures of the designated region and individual park, either through existing concessioner retail operation or through other agreements. The managers expect a written report detailing progress made by December 1, 2006.

The managers encourage the Secretary to give priority consideration for funding in the next round of Southern Nevada Public Lands Management Act project approvals to the water and wastewater system improvements that were proposed in the fiscal year 2006 budget request for Lake Mead National Recreation Area. The managers are aware that nearly $1 billion in revenues will be available in fiscal year 2006. Of that amount, the Secretary of the Interior controls 85 percent. Projects such as these should be funded from this source and not requested in the budget.

The managers understand that private funds already raised toward replacement visitor facilities at the U.S.S. Arizona Memorial are available for planning and design at the new facility. The National Park Service is nearing completion of its review of this partnership construction project, and is encouraged to complete the advising and advance the project to the next stage as expeditiously as possible. Before final approval, the Director of the National Park Service should forward to the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations the details of the financing of this project. The managers understand that the present facility is undersized for the visitation to this park site, and that a new facility is needed to address functional and structural requirements.

The conference agreement also includes language proposed by the Senate, for the Mark Twain Boyhood Home NHL to be derived from the Historic Preservation Fund. The agreement also includes language proposed by the Senate permitting a solicitation that includes the full scope of the contract for the Jackson Visitor Center replacement and rehabilitation of the Paradise Inn and Annex at Mount Rainier NP.

The managers have included $25,000,000 for the purpose of implementing the Modified Large Water Project, which will allow the Army Corps of Engineers to continue this important restoration project so as to restore more natural water flows to the park. The conference agreement provides $49,800,000 for the construction of this project. The managers understand that the availability of the funds is contingent upon the appropriation of funds and the adequacy of fund provisions under the Natural Resources and National Parks Appropriations Act, 1997.

The conference agreement also rescinds $9,915,000 in prior year funds from the Cat Island project at Gulf Islands National Seashore, as proposed by the House.

The fund for FLNMA is $1,500,000, and the managers agree that the heroic efforts by the passengers of Flight 93 should be remembered with a lasting memorial. Although no funds are provided for land acquisition, $1,000,000 is included in the construction account for planning activities.

The managers have revised the reprogramming guidelines to specify that the reprogramming requirement for the Secretary's reprogramming guidelines to specify that the reprogramming requirement for the Secretaries of the Departments of the Interior and Agriculture, the Department of the Army, and the National Park Service to provide funds to cover the costs of acquisition of lands and interests in lands (including easements for roads, access, and utilities) for the purpose of the agreement. The conference agreement provides $9,421,000 as proposed by the Senate and $9,421,000 as proposed by the Senate.

The conference agreement rescinds $2,000,000 provided for the Lake Mead project that was proposed in the fiscal year 2006 budget requests.

The conference agreement rescinds $9,421,000 as proposed by the Senate, and $9,421,000 as proposed by the Senate.

The conference agreement resumes the contract authority provided for fiscal year 2006 by 18 U.S.C. 460–1a as proposed by both the House and the Senate.

The managers agree to the following distribution of funds:
and decreases of $64,800 for Florida shelf research, $412,000 for Puget Sound and $1,134,000 for Alaska mineral assessments.

The managers strongly disagree with the Administration's request to terminate the acid mine reclamation program and believe it is irresponsible for the Administration to decrease or eliminate funding for what is clearly an inherent responsibility. The conference agreement restores funding for this vital program to the enacted level.

Wildlife Service to conduct aerial and ground surveys for ivory-billed woodpecker in Arkansas. The funding should be used in coordination with the ivory-billed woodpecker survey efforts in Arkansas to establish a wetland ecology center. The decrease of $200,000 for fixed costs.

- 6. General administration includes fixed cost decreases of $250,000 for administrative operations and $150,000 for general support services.

The Department is undertaking a study of the impacts of the merger of the GovWorks program into the National Business Center. This study will also include an assessment of the impact that this organizational realignment will have on MMS's ability to carry out its mission. The managers understand that an initial organizational transfer will commence at the beginning of the fiscal year, but before the final commencement of the restructuring, the managers expect to receive a report on the impacts of this transfer.

Oil Spill Research

The conference agreement provides $7,006,000 for oil spill research as proposed by both the House and the Senate.

The managers understand funding provided to the University of Missouri-Columbia for the establishment of a wetland ecology center of excellence should be used for one-time start-up costs and will not be included in future appropriations.

The managers remain concerned about the National Biological Information Infrastructure which is a critical component of the Administration’s budgetary and programmatic plan has emerged for its expansion, and the managers remain concerned about the reason an Internet-based program that hosts biological information must be geographically distributed.

The managers understand that the multi-disciplinary water study at Leetown Science Center is critical to the Survey, and that the Survey should provide a brief report to the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations by December 31, 2005, evaluating the research that is being conducted. The decrease of $250,000 for fixed costs.

The managers agree that within the water management and planning program, $200,000 is for maintenance, repair, and protection of the Fort Peck Reservation tributary water system.

Bill Language.—The conference agreement includes language proposed by the Senate that continues to allow the use of contract support funds for indirect contract support costs. The House included language that allowed for any contract support funds for both direct and indirect costs.

The managers believe that any change to the allocation of contract support costs must be done formally with tribal consultation and any funding for direct contract support costs should be above the current levels provided for indirect contract support costs.

CONSTRUCTION

The conference agreement provides $275,837,000 for construction instead of $284,137,000 as proposed by the House and $267,137,000 as proposed by the Senate. Changes to the Senate level include an increase of $7,500,000 for irrigation projects and decreases of $10,000,000 for replacement school construction, $1,000,000 for employee housing, and $5,500,000 for facilities improvement and repair.

The addition of $7,500,000 in non-reimbursable construction funds for Indian irrigation rehabilitation is separate from the Native American Irrigation Project, which retains its own construction budget of $12,773,000. Within the funds provided for Indian irrigation rehabilitation, the number of Bureau projects is in desperate need of immediate attention to continue delivering water to users. The Bureau is expected to consult with the Appropriations Committee on Appropriations, in the form of a detailed proposal, prior to obligating funds. The Bureau is expected to administer these funds from the central office program level to address projects with the greatest need of rehabilitation. Construction of new projects or expansion of existing projects is secondary to the rehabilitation, modernization, and necessary upgrade of current irrigation projects and systems. Specific projects to be addressed under these guidelines, and to be addressed in the Appropriations process, include projects for the obligation of funds for the Blackfeet Irrigation Project, the Crow Irrigation Project, the Fort Belknap Irrigation Project, the Fort Peck Irrigation Project, and the Wind River Irrigation Project.

Indian Water and Water Claim Settlements and Miscellaneous Payments to Indians

The conference agreement provides $31,754,000 for Indian land and water claim settlements as proposed by the Senate instead of $24,754,000 as proposed by the Senate.

The managers have agreed to $10,000,000 for the Quinault Indian Nation settlement and retained bill language included in the House that authorized the payment. The managers understand that this is the final payment for this settlement.

Indian Guaranteed Loan Program Account

The conference agreement provides $6,348,000 for the Indian guaranteed loan program as proposed by both the House and the Senate.

DEPARTMENTAL OFFICES

ASSISTANCE TO TERRITORIES

The conference agreement provides $76,883,000 for assistance to territories instead of $76,563,000 as proposed by the House and $76,883,000 as proposed by the Senate. Changes in funding levels from the House recommendation include the Senate recommendation for an additional $520,000 for the land management and planning program, $200,000 for the Forest Service IT certification and accreditation, $200,000 to continue judicial, court education, and court administration.

COMPACT OF FREE ASSOCIATION

The conference agreement provides $5,362,000 for the compact of free association instead of $4,862,000 as proposed by the Senate. The conference agreement follows the funding recommendations made by the House.

SALARIES AND EXPENSES

The conference agreement provides $127,183,000 for departmental management instead of $97,755,000 as proposed by the House and $104,627,000 as proposed by the Senate. The changes described below are to the House recommended funding level.

Central Services.—IT certification and accreditation is reduced by $322,000.

Financial and Business Management System.—The conference agreement reduces the Financial and Business Management System by $1,000,000.

Bill Language.—The conference agreement retains language proposed by the Senate directing $7,441,000 from the Land and Water Conservation Fund for consolidated land acquisition, and amending the use of funds in this Act or previous appropriations to establish reserves in the Working Capital Fund other than for accrued annual leave and depreciation of equipment without prior House and Senate Committee approval.

PAYMENTS IN LIEU OF TAXES

The conference agreement provides $236,000,000 for payments in lieu of taxes instead of $242,000,000 as proposed by the House and $235,000,000 as proposed by the Senate.

CENTRAL HAZARDOUS MATERIALS FUND

The conference agreement provides $8,855,000 for the hazardous materials fund as proposed by the House and the Senate.

The conference agreement includes language included in the Senate bill that makes provisions for this account permanent. The House did not include permanent language.

OFFICE OF THE SOLICITOR

OFFICE OF SPECIAL TRUSTEE FOR AMERICAN INDIANS

FEDERAL TRUST PROGRAMS

The conference agreement provides $191,593,000 for Federal trust programs as proposed by both the House and the Senate. The managers have agreed to $50,000 for a provision that contained in the House bill that caps the total amount of funding that can be used for historical accounting activities at $58,000,000.

The managers are closely following efforts to settle the long-standing Cobell v. Norton case and reiterate their position that any settlement to the case must be implemented in a way that the programs in this bill are not adversely affected. The House and Senate Committees on Appropriations will not consider any settlement that decreases available funding for programs in Indian country fund in this bill. Further, the managers disagree with the continued insistence by the court that the Department of the Interior, to fulfill the intent of Congress, must perform a full historical accounting. This results in the Department of the Interior being forced to divert resources and negatively impacts programs in Indian country.

INDIAN LAND CONSOLIDATION

The conference agreement provides $34,514,000 for Indian land consolidation programs as proposed by both the House and the Senate.

NATURAL RESOURCE DAMAGE ASSESSMENT AND RESTORATION

NATURAL RESOURCE DAMAGE ASSESSMENT FUND

The conference agreement provides $6,106,000 for the natural resource damage assessment fund as proposed by both the House and the Senate.

Section 201 modifies language, proposed by the Senate in sections 201 and 202 and by the House in section 439, dealing with human dosing studies. The managers note the many concerning issues that have been addressed by both the House and Senate relative to the human toxicity studies for pesticides until EPA issues a final rulemaking addressing such studies. The language also requires EPA to provide for at least a 90-day public comment period on its proposed rule and to issue the final rule no later than 180 days after enactment of this Act. Such rule shall not permit the use of pregnant women, infants or children as subjects; shall be consistent with the principles proposed in the 2001 report of the National Academy of Sciences on Institutional Review Board and the principles of the Nuremberg Code with respect to human experimentation; and shall establish an independent Human Subjects Review Board.

Section 202 includes the text of Senate section 435 prohibiting the use of funds in contravention of Executive Order 12898 dealing with environmental justice. The House had a similar provision in section 432 of the House bill. The Senate provision that is included in the conference agreement includes a reference to the date of the Executive Order and to the Federal Register notice in which it was published.

Section 203 includes the text of House section 433 prohibiting the use of funds to finalize, issue, implement, or enforce the existing EPA wastewater blending policy.

Section 204 includes the text of Senate section 436 prohibiting the use of funds in contravention of 15 U.S.C. 2682(c)(3), dealing with lead-based paint, or to delay implementation of that provision of law.

Section 205 includes language, as proposed by the Senate under Administrative Provisions for the EPA, prohibiting the use of funds to publish proposed or final regulations relating to certain small engines required by section 428(b) of division G of Public Law 199-199 until the Administrator has completed and published a technical study of safety issues, including the risk of fire and burn to consumers.

The conference agreement provides $1,779,395,000 for wildland fire management instead of $1,790,506,000 as proposed by the House and $1,745,531,000 as proposed by the Senate.

Wildfire Preparedness.—The conference agreement includes $676,014,000 for preparedness as proposed by the Senate instead of $691,014,000 as proposed by the House. The managers reiterate the direction contained in the House and Senate report language regarding the need to maintain the level of fire readiness established in fiscal year 2006.

Wildfire Operations.—The conference agreement includes $700,492,000 for suppression operations as proposed by both the House and the Senate. The managers have provided the full amount of the ten-year average cost of wildfire suppression increased for inflation, an increase of $51,633,000 above the fiscal year 2005 funding level.

The managers have modified bill language recommended by the House concerning assessing the suppression activity for indirect costs in a manner the same as all other Forest Service accounts and programs. The managers direct that all programs be treated alike and that each should contribute its fair share to the costs of administering and running the Service. The managers do not agree with the House recommendation concerning the second bullet in the budget argument.

The conference agreement does not include bill language recommended by the Senate dealing with the transfer of unobligated balances of the national forest system account. The managers agree with the House recommendation that the Forest Service should not automatically allocate 50% of the wildland fire suppression recommended by the Senate and the regions at the beginning of the year, and there should not be a transfer of any unobligated suppression funds for non-suppression activities. If the Service has a low-cost wildfire season, the unobligated funds should be carried over to pay for future seasons when it is likely that catastrophic wildfires will occur again.

The managers encourage the Forest Service to establish a suitable memorial for the two firefighters who died on July 22, 2003, at the Cramer fire near Salmont, ID.

The managers direct the Forest Service to make available for transfer any other unobligated funds and the results of any feasibility study conducted for the purpose of determining whether to acquire specific models of aircraft for use as tankers.

Other Wildfire Operations.—The conference agreement includes $402,889,000 for other fire operation activities instead of $398,000,000 as proposed by the House and $395,025,000 as proposed by the Senate. The allocation of this funding is as follows:

Hazardous fuels.—The conference agreement includes $286,000,000 for hazardous fuels treatments as proposed by the House, an increase of $23,461,000 over the fiscal year 2005 level. This allocation includes the House provision of $5,000,000 for the San Bernardino NF, CA, and the Senate provision of $1,500,000 for the Santa Fe watershed, NM, and $5,000,000 as requested by the Senate for biomass utilization grants. The House had recommended the biomass grants funding within the State and private forestry account.

Other Wildfire Operations.—The conference agreement includes the Senate provision for bill language concerning the use of $5,000,000 for the Community Forest Resource Act and allowing a transfer for the biomass grants.

The managers direct the Secretary of Agriculture to report to the House and Senate Committees on Agriculture, the Senate Agriculture and Resources Committees, and the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee on the percentage of fuels reduction and restoration activities that provide small diameter material to micro businesses, large commercial sawmills, or biomass facilities.

Rehabilitation.—The conference agreement includes $6,281,000 for rehabilitation and restoration activities. The managers direct as...
$2,000,000 be made available to the native plant materials program to be used in conjunction with the similar effort at the Department of the Interior under the joint guidance of the interagency plant conservation alliance.

Fire plan research and development.—The conference agreement includes $25,219,000 for research and development activities. Changes from the House proposal include an increase of $1,150,000 for the University of Minnesota’s landscape fire analysis center and $350,000 for the University of Idaho FRAMES project.

Federal and cooperative forest health management.—The conference agreement includes $15,000,000 for Federal forest health activities and $10,000,000 for cooperative forest health activities as proposed by the Senate. This is a reduction of $73,523,000 below the fiscal year 2005 non-emergency funding level. The conference agreement provides an emergency funding level. The conference agreement includes $46,500,000 for State and community fire assistance. Changes from the House recommendation include increases of $2,100,000 for the Alaska Kenai Peninsula Borough, $1,200,000 to the Municipality of Anchorage, $800,000 for Fairbanks North Star borough, AK, $1,100,000 for the Matanuska-Susitna Borough, AK, and $300,000 for the Alaska, Cook Inlet tribal council. Senate instructions on distribution of these funds should be followed by the Service.

The managers direct the Forest Service, working with the State foresters, to review the current approach to State fire assistance methodology for the funding provided under the wildland fire management appropriation and recommend appropriate changes. The State fire assistance under this heading should not be considered the same as the traditional funding in the State and private forestry account. Funding under this heading is intended to support the national fire plan. The managers encourage the Service and the States to focus this funding to those States and activities that the National fire plan suggests are most critically needed to reduce the danger of catastrophic wildfires, rewarding those States with demonstrated performance and cost share. Community wildfire protection planning and cooperative hazardous fuels reduction activities should be highlighted. The Forest Service shall prepare a report to the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations before implementing any new allocation methodology.

The volunteer fire assistance allocation is $7,889,000 as proposed by the Senate.

CAPITAL IMPROVEMENT AND MAINTENANCE

The conference agreement provides $411,178,000 for capital improvement and maintenance instead of $486,360,000 as proposed by the Senate. This is a reduction of $73,523,000 below the fiscal year 2005 non-emergency funding level. The conference agreement provides for the following distribution of funds:

The managers agree with the overall program direction for this account provided by both the House and the Senate except project prioritization levels and project descriptions are indicated in the table above. The conference agreement includes the bill language recommending that the managers determine the feasibility of this project after the House proposal. In tandem, instead of $15,000,000 as proposed by the Senate and $44,925,000 as proposed by the Senate.

LAND ACQUISITION

The conference agreement provides for $2,500,000 for land acquisition instead of $5,000,000 as proposed by the Senate. The funds provided for the Allegheny NF include $1,000,000 for the Kiasutha campground, $500,000 for Kinzua Wolf Run Marina, $1,000,000 for the Bradford administrative site, and $500,000 for forest-wide signage improvements. The Cherokee NF funding is for the Ocoe White Water Center interpretive and facility upgrades, Nolichucky work center property acquisition, the Cherokee hot shot complex, and the Cleveland office relocation project.

The managers have provided $1,000,000 for environmental studies for a proposed recreational lake in Smith County, Mississippi. The managers note, however, that a feasibility study of this project is currently underway in cooperation with the Forest Service and Mississippi State University. The managers note that conclusion of the ongoing studies regarding issues such as mineral rights and the need for condemnation of these rights is necessary to determine the feasibility of this project. If the study concludes that this project is not feasible, the managers expect that the funds provided for environmental studies will be reprogrammed for other high priority construction needs in Mississippi.

ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS, FOREST SERVICE

The managers agree to the following changes to the House recommendations:

1. The Senate language is included which does not prohibit transfers for reimbursable improvements for the USDA National Information Technology center.

2. The Senate bill language allowing up to $2,500,000 for the Youth Conservation Corps project is included.

3. The conference agreement allows up to $300,000 to be used by the National Forest Foundation for administrative expenses. The managers expect the Forest Service to use funds so this allocation can be reduced in the future.

4. The Senate language is included allowing certain authorized payments to the counties within the Columbia River Gorge National Scenic Area, WA & OR.

5. The Senate language is included allowing the Forest Service to reimburse the USDA Office of the General Counsel for certain travel expenses.

6. The Senate language is included which transfers certain land on Kodiak Island, AK, from the Forest Service to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

7. The conference agreement includes bill language not included by either the House or the Senate which allows the Forest Service to assess available funds to support the agency’s needs for facilities maintenance for administrative and other buildings, but not recreation facilities. This replaces the Senate proposal within Title V which recommended establishing a working capital fund for all agency structures. The new provision allows the Forest Service to transfer up to $35,000,000 from various agency accounts, based on the needs of facilities maintenance needs. The managers expect that initially, the Forest Service will use the square foot of building space and the various programs use of this space as the index to establish the transfer levels. The Forest Service should devise a performance-based system and a process to develop and maintain a process to allocate assessed funds to the field. Before executing these transfers, the Forest Service shall report to the House and Senate Committees on appropriations on the details of the proposed transfers and the methodology being used for both the assessment, and the field allocation. In addition, the Forest Service shall, at least annually, develop a performance justification, report on the anticipated transfers required in future fiscal years, and report on the previous year’s transfers and proposed improvements. There should also be a display which indicates, by national forest, research stations, and area the funding being allocated for facilities maintenance. The budget justification displays shall indicate, for every budget line item, the funding amount being assessed for facilities maintenance. This information should be readily visible along with each program description. The tables should also summarize the budget line item contribution to the other assessments.

PAYMENTS TO INDIAN HEALTH SERVICE

The conference agreement provides $358,485,000 for Indian health facilities in Title VI of the House and the Senate bills concerning the provision of better health care to Native Americans and, therefore, expect that future budget submissions by the Service will include a more aggregative schedule to fund these projects.

Within this amount, $9,100,000 is provided for the Asia II Trail exhibit at the National Zoological Park as proposed by the House. While supportive of this project, the managers are concerned by the high initial cost estimates and encourage the Smithsonian to look at how the exhibit might be reduced in scope or in some way phased to achieve savings. The managers also understand that an aggressive fundraising effort will be required by the Smithsonian to secure private financing, without which this project cannot be successful. The conference agreement also includes an additional $9,100,000 for the POD 5 museum support center storage facility as recommended by the Senate.

The conference agreement continues administrative provisions included in the House bill that place restrictions on the use of funds for the following: (1) unapproved changes to science programs; (2) the design of new or expanded facilities; (3) Holt House; and (4) the purchase of buildings. This provision requires the Secretary of Agriculture to develop a fire management plan and enter into a cooperative fire management agreement for the Valles Caldera National Preserve. The Forest Service shall also provide wildfire suppression and non-emergency reclamation and restoration services to the Trust, which manages the Preserve, on a reimbursable basis. The House had no similar provision.

Sec. 433. The conference agreement retains the Senate recommended language, which was in Senate section 433, prohibiting the use of funds to demolish certain structures on the Zephyr Shoals property, Lake Tahoe, NV. The House had no similar provision.

Sec. 434. The conference agreement modifies the Senate recommended language, which was in Senate section 434, extending the Forest Service authority to conduct certain work on non-Forest Service land. The authority now extends for five years. The House had no similar provision.

Sec. 435. The conference agreement retains the Senate recommended language, which was in Senate section 435, setting certain conditions for the grant of a zoning variance for the Biscuit Fire Recovery Project, as described in Senate section 431. The House had no similar provision.

Sec. 436. The conference agreement includes a new provision authorizing the acquisition of lands for the Chequamegon-Nicolet National Forest, WI, and directing the Secretary of Agriculture to maintain fire suppression and emergency management practices on those lands.

Sec. 437. The conference agreement includes a new provision authorizing a $5,000,000 grant to Kendall County, Illinois.

Sec. 438. Modifies section 434 of the Department of the Interior and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 2006 regarding lands to be acquired for the Kenai Fjords inter- agency visitor center and the use of funds not required for land acquisition.

Sec. 439. The conference agreement includes an across the board rescission of 0.476 percent. This reduction should be applied to each program, project, and activity, except those relating to Indian tribes, which has a similar language in the statutory language.

The conference agreement does not include a provision in section 405 of the House bill providing for restrictions on departmental assessments unless approved by the Committees on Appropriations.

The conference agreement does not include a provision in section 410 of the House bill specifying reforms and limitations dealing with the National Endowment for the Arts.

The conference agreement does not include a provision in section 411 of the House bill providing direction to the National Endowment for the Arts on funding distribution.

The conference agreement does not include a provision in section 412 of the House bill extending the Forest Service Conveyance Pilot Program.

The conference agreement does not include a provision in section 429 of the House bill requiring a report of the expenditure of funds pursuant to the Southern Nevada Public Land Management Act.

The conference agreement does not include a provision in section 431 of the House bill prohibiting the Fish and Wildlife Service from using land acquisition funds for the purchase of water rights in the Klamath Basin, CA.

The conference agreement does not include a provision in section 432 of the House bill limiting the number of federal employees that can be sent to international conferences.

The conference agreement does not include a provision in section 433 of the House bill prohibiting the use of funds for the sale or slaughter of wild free roaming horses and burros.

The managers have not included language proposed by the Senate in section 434 dealing with the Biscuit fire project. The managers would like to have a report from the Forest Service on this issue. Accordingly, by March 1, 2006 the Forest Service should submit a report to the House and Senate Com- mittees on Appropriations (and make this report publicly available on the agency web site) which discusses the following issues concerning the Biscuit Fire in southern Or- egon:

1. The change in reforestation capabilities and costs between the date of the contain- ment of the Biscuit Fire and the completion of the Biscuit Fire Recovery Project, as de- tailed in the Record of Decision.

2. The commercial value lost, as well as re- cuperation estimates of fire-killed timber within the Biscuit Fire area.

3. All actions included in the Record of De- cision for the Biscuit Fire Recovery Project, some because of delay or funding shortfall.

4. The Forest Service original estimate of the acres that should be reforested and the cost of that reforestation, including plant- ing stock and overhead and a summary of the original schedule to do the work.
5. A summary of the initial Forest Service plan to salvage timber; including a discussion of the acres which would have been harvested and the estimated volume and value of that salvage, as well as the cost to the Federal government to develop and administer the sale and the anticipated cost to the purchasers.

6. A similar summary for the final Forest Service salvage plan.

7. A presentation and list of all of the timber sales offered and planned, including the volume, and appraised value. The presentation should indicate sales offered but not sold, and sales not yet underway. It should also separate out sales by land management regime.

The conference agreement does not include a provision in section 37 of the Senate bill expressing the sense of the Senate with regard to the national debt and funding for the global war on terror.

TITLE V—FOREST SERVICE FACILITY REALIGNMENT AND ENHANCEMENT ACT

The conference report modifies legislation recommended by the Senate in Title V. This provision allows the Forest Service to dispose of administrative facilities that are no longer needed and use all of the revenue to reduce the administrative-site deferred maintenance backlog. This improves the Service’s ability to realign facilities to meet the needs of the workforce and the Nation. The legislation authorizes the Secretary of Agriculture to sell, lease, exchange or combine a sale and exchange of certain administrative sites the Secretary determines are no longer needed for National Forest System purposes. The legislation incorporates new authorities for streamlining regulations to facilitate the timely disposal of administrative sites and to improve the marketability of the sites. All receipts derived from the conveyance of administrative sites and facilities shall be deposited in the Sisk Act fund and remain available to the Secretary until expended, without further appropriations. These funds will be used for the administrative costs incurred in conveying sites; the acquisition of land for administrative sites; and for the decommissioning, construction, maintenance, rehabilitation, and improvement of administrative sites.

The managers make the following recommendations:

1. The Service is allowed to dispose of up to 10 isolated, undeveloped sites per year which were acquired or used for administrative purposes, with certain limitations.

2. Certain lands are explicitly excluded, including any land within the national wilderness system, in the wild and scenic river system, lands specifically designated for national area or recreation purposes, or in a national monument. In addition, it is the intent of the managers that the exclusions apply to undeveloped lands on historic trails and sites, national preserves, national recreation areas, national scenic areas, national conservation areas, national botanical areas, national forest primitive areas, research natural areas, national game refuges and wildlife preserve areas, and officially designated special interest areas.

3. The managers direct that the service should not dispose of lands needed for natural resource management, or lands which are important to provide public access to other lands or waters, such as recreational river corridors or sites with special recreational values.

4. The managers intend that disposal of lands will not create new non-Federal inholdings within larger areas of contiguous Federal or other publicly owned lands available for recreational activities.

5. The provision requires the Service to include detailed displays in the annual budget justification of the anticipated program under this authority and provide other details so the Congress and the public can evaluate the program and its impact. The Service should notify the Congress if changes to this plan are later necessary. The managers are concerned that future appropriation decisions concerning facility construction, reconstruction and maintenance being made will be fully informed by knowledge of the anticipated revenues derived from this new authority. The managers also understand that the revenue stream will be temporary, and that all areas of the Nation do not have a similar amount of excess facilities or ability to generate revenue.

6. The authorities provided by this Title expire on September 30, 2008. However, the managers will closely monitor the implementation of this provision. The managers encourage the Congress to extend the authority if steady progress is demonstrated. As with the pilot conveyance authority, the Service is more likely to successfully plan and implement project planning if there continues to be no less than two or three years remaining on the authority.

7. The conference agreement repeals the previous pilot conveyance authority, which was established in the Department of the Interior and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 2002. The repeal is effective as of September 30, 2006, and any project initiated under the pilot authority may be completed under that authority.

8. The agreement continues the Senate-recommended language concerning lead-based and asbestos abatement, but limits the exclusion only to laws affecting these matters.

9. The agreement clarifies that the Forest Service should follow the National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA) with the exception that the Service must analyze only the most reasonably foreseeable use of the site, and determine whether or not to reserve any right, title or interest in the sites. The managers expect that, consistent with the NEPA, the Service will evaluate the alternative of not disposing of the sites.

10. The agreement requires that the Forest Service consult with local governmental officials of the community in which the administrative site is located and provide public notice of the proposed conveyance.

11. The conference agreement does not include the Senate proposal concerning the working capital fund. However, the conference agreement includes, within the Administrative provisions section of the Forest Service, bill language which allows the Forest Service to assess all funds available to the agency to support maintenance of facilities other than recreation facilities. The managers expect that this assessment approach will provide field managers an incentive to carefully evaluate their space needs and help reduce the total amount of building space maintained. This should save money and reduce the tremendous backlog in deferred maintenance that has accumulated within the Forest Service.

TITLE VI—VETERANS HEALTH CARE

Sec. 601. Appropriated $1,500,000,000 to the Department of Veterans Affairs for Medical services for fiscal year 2005. The conferees agree that the amount provided will be available until September 30, 2006. The conferees note that the fiscal year 2006 budget amendment submitted to the Congress on July 14, 2005 included additional fiscal year 2005 requirements for Medical Services. The conferees agree, that prior to completion of the fiscal year 2006 appropriations Act for the Department of Veterans Affairs, the House and Senate subcommittees of jurisdiction will continue to evaluate and adjust the funding level required for fiscal year 2006 based upon most current information available.

CAPITOL POLICE

In fiscal year (FY) 2001, in response to pervasive management issues at the United States Capitol Police (USCP), the conferees directed the USCP to establish a Chief Administrative Officer (CAO) position with the overall responsibility for improving administrative operations of the USCP, including human resources, information technology, financial management and budgeting. In FY 2001 and subsequent years, the conferees also required the Government Accountability Office (GAO) to periodically conduct an assessment of the progress of the USCP in improving operations.

The conferees are disappointed with the slow pace of improvements and the broad range of management issues that continue to surface, including problems in procurements, project management, budget execution, and payroll and compensation issues. The conferees believe that there has not been adequate management emphasis on improving administrative operations. The tone set by management influences the actions of staff throughout the organization in helping to ensure good management practices and effective order of operations.

The conferees direct the Chief, the Assistant Chief, and the CAO to place a renewed emphasis on implementing basic internal control throughout their operations, with an emphasis on instilling accountability for good internal control procedures and practices throughout the organization, while leading by example in this area and setting an appropriate tone at the top. Internal control represents the series of actions and activities that are put in place throughout an entity to ensure an ongoing basis, as should be designed to provide reasonable assurance over (1) the effectiveness and efficiency of operations, (2) compliance with laws and regulations, (3) the reliability of financial reporting and other types of reporting, and lack of asset accountability within the Capitol Police. The conferees direct the GAO to report on this issue in their next semi-annual report. In addition, the conferees note that the report required under GAO’s Standards for Internal Control in the Federal Government. The conferees require the Chief to provide a written plan describing the strategy of the USCP Office of Solicitor required to address these objectives including how the USCP’s new financial management system will improve the reliability of financial reporting and accounting for the USCP. The written plan is due on October 1, 2006, with quarterly reports on progress thereafter.

The conferees also direct the Comptroller General to undertake a review of USCOP overuse of time. Specifically, the Comptroller General shall ensure that there is an objective to determine the need for USCOP overtime, (2) how USCOP is managing and accounting for overtime use, and (3) the extent to which the deployment of technology might help defer the need for some USCOP overtime.

Reprogramming Guidelines—The conferees direct that the United States Capitol Police may not carry out any reprogramming, transfer, or use of funds unless: (1) the Chief of the Capitol Police submits a request for the reprogramming or use of funds to the Committees on Appropriations of the House and Senate on or before August 1 of the respective year, unless both such committees agree to accept the request at a later date because of extraordinary and emergency circumstances cited by the Chief; (2) the request contains clearly stated and detailed documentation presenting justifications for the reprogramming, transfer, or use of funds; (3) the request contains a declaration that, as of the date of the request, none of the funds included in the request have been obligate and, none will be obligated until both committees have approved the request; and (4) both committees approve the request.

A reprogramming, transfer, or use of unobligated balances request is required if (1) the amount to be shifted to or from any object class, approved budget, or program involved under the request, or the aggregate amount to be shifted to or from any object class, approved budget, or program involved during the fiscal year taking into account the amount required to carry out the activity, is in excess of $250,000 or 10 percent, whichever is less, of the object class, approved budget, or program; (2) the reprogramming, transfer, or use of funds will result in a change to the program or activity which is different than that presented to and approved by the Committees on Appropriations of the House and Senate; or (3) the funds involved were earmarked by either of the committees for a specific activity which is different than that presented to and approved by the Committees on Appropriations of the House and Senate.

The conferees include an administrative provision (Section 1004) that establishes an Office of Inspector General. The conferees further direct the Inspector General to report on this issue in their next semi-annual report.

The conference agreement includes $217,456,000 for salaries of officers, members, and employees of the Capitol Police instead of $219,350,000 as proposed by the House and $222,500,000 as proposed by the Senate. This level of funding will also support 414 civilians as proposed by the House.

The conference agreement includes $32,000,000 for general expenses of the Capitol Police instead of $29,345,000 as proposed by the House and $32,000,000 for general expenses of the Capitol Police instead of $29,345,000 as proposed by the House. This level will support the current staffing level of 1,382 officers and an additional 43 officers for the Library of Congress. Funding is provided for an additional 8 officers for the United States Capitol Visitor Center, as of August 2006. The conferees direct that these positions not be advertised until approved by the House Committee on Appropriations, the Senate Committee on Rules and Administration, and the Library of Congress.

The conference agreement includes $3,000,000 for a general expenses of the Capitol Police instead of $2,545,000 as proposed by the House and $2,545,000 as proposed by the Senate. The conference agreement includes $4,276,000 as proposed by the House and the Senate.

The House, and in practice under which each body determines its own housekeeping requirements and the other Congress without intervention of the House, have receded to the amendments of the House.

waives the repayment of certain overtime compensation pair incorrectly, to minimize the impact of flawed management controls on Capitol Police officers. The conferees are aware that the Capitol Police Board to provide overtime pay and compensatory leave to non statutory civilian employees and FLISA-exempt members of the USCP. The conferees encourage the Capitol Police Board to work closely with the Committee on House Administration and the Senate Committee on Rules and Administration to address any further issues which may arise from GAO’s second opinion.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Dr. Barry C. Black, offered the following prayer:

Let us pray.

Lord of life, high above all, yet in all, the challenges of our world are great and our hands are small. The mystery of life is deep, and our faith falters. The temptations of life are intense, and our wills are feeble.

Lord, guide our steps. Shower Your Senators with enduring blessings. As they deal with the swirling winds of change, be their ever present help. Give them patience to trust the unfolding of change, be their ever present help. Give each of us the wisdom to refuse to deviate from the path of integrity.

Lord, today we ask for You to comfort the grieving families of the Alaskan Boy Scouts.

We pray in Your holy Name. Amen.

No children were seriously injured, but about 30 Alaska Scouts saw the accident happen some time between 12:30 p.m. and 1 p.m. Alaska time at Fort A.P. Hill, an Army installation about an hour south of the nation's capital.

Karl Holfeld, an Anchorage father, said his 15-year-old son, Taylor, witnessed the accident. He had been watching his son helping his mother in Anchorage when the accident occurred.

"They started screaming," Holfeld said. "He said, 'Oh my God, oh my God, the tent is on fire, they're being burned!' And she told him to stay away, to not touch anything, because there could be a live wire." Paula Call said. She didn't know what it was for.

"As they got it up, this pole started to lean and it touched a utility live wire," Paula Call said.

She hadn't heard about the fire but said her husband suffered electrocution burns on his hands, hips and feet. His condition improved during the day and he will recover, she said.

The Calls' son Kendall, 15, said the accident was too upsetting to talk about in detail, Paula Call said. A second son was also there. Witnesses told Kendall reacted quickly to help his father.

Her husband "was just concerned about the boys. It was the most horrific thing he knows they were," she said.

The Scouts were taken from their camp to meet with grief counselors and a chaplain, said Renee Fairrer, director of National News and Media for the Jamboree. Seventy-one boys and nine adults were reportedly holding on to those, Paula Call said. The tent has a large metal pole as its central pole hit the power line, electrocuted them, set the tent on fire, the tent fell on them, and they were trapped underneath," with Scouts watching.

Boy Scout leaders are "the cream of the crop," he said. "They were the best we had." Of the men who died, Shibe had two sons at the Jamboree, and Lacroix, who runs an Anchorage vending machine company, had one son in attendance, Haines said.

Holfeld had known both Bitter and Shibe for years. Shibe and Holfeld earned their Eagle ranks together.

"We crossed paths at Scout things all the time," Holfeld said. "They were just phenomenally effusive and so dedicated to the Scout mission. It's just something that totally believed in the Boy Scouts and showed that through their efforts and commitment." Bitzer and his wife, Karen, had recently sold their Anchorage home, and Haines said he believes they were preparing to move to Reno. He worked a couple of years as a Scout executive. Haines was a retired administrative law judge and an assistant scoutmaster of Troop 129 in Anchorage, said family spokesman Ken Schoolcraft, the troop's scoutmaster.

Fairrer said Boy Scouts of America is leading the investigation and working with the BSA. Counselors and chaplains are at the jamboree and available to any Scout or leader. A thorough investigation into this accident is under way.

Fairrer said Boy Scouts of America is leading the investigation and working with the military.

People have died or been seriously injured before at Jamboree, Fairrer said. But she could not recall a catastrophe of this magnitude.

"And any time there's a death, it hurts all of us," Fairrer said. "Within scouting, we are family. . . . We've lost friends in this family, military."
FOUR SCOUT LEADERS DIE IN VA. ACCIDENT

By (Karlin Bruliard and Martin Weil)

FORT A.P. HILL, VA.—Four adult Scout leaders from Alaska were killed Monday afternoon at an event marking the 40th anniversary of the Boy Scout jamboree, according to officials.

The cause of the accident was an electrical accident that apparently occurred when a pole from a tent they were setting up struck an overhead power line, officials said. Three more, a Scout leader and two contract workers, were injured in the accident, which happened a few hours after the official noontime opening of the jamboree.

The gathering of Scouts every four years from across the United States and many foreign countries.

No Boy Scouts were injured.

The leaders were from the Anchorage area and represented the Scouts' Western Alaska Council, an official of that council said. Bill Haines said two of those killed and the injured leader had children with them at the jamboree, about 75 miles south of the District.

"It's a very tragic loss for all of us," Haines said.

The children, he said, were coping. "They are all being taken care of," he said.

Sheriff A.A. "Tony" Lippa Jr. of Caroline County said a preliminary investigation indicated the pole had struck the power line, but that authorities had not determined how it happened.

"We're not sure if the poles shifted," he said.

Scout officials gave no details of how the accident occurred, other than to say that it was between 4:30 and 5 p.m. while the camp for the Alaskans was being set up.

One person with knowledge of jamboree operations, who spoke on condition of anonymity because an investigation is underway, confirmed that a tent-support pole touched an electric line.

After the accident, witnesses saw a slender pole that protruded through the apex of a pyramid-shaped tent and appeared to be touching one or more overhead lines. The tent was one of two at the Alaskans' site that appeared to be intended for use as a group gathering place rather than for sleeping.

One of the two light-colored tents apparently had been fully erected. The other tent, where the accident apparently occurred, was cordoned off with yellow tape. The Scouts who might have stayed in that area had been moved.

Haines, in a telephone interview from Alaska, said the four men who died "were leaders in the Scouting community, longtime Alaskans. They were very instrumental in the Scouting community, which is why we were really surprised," he said.

Fairrer said the accident was being investigated by the Rappahannock Electric Cooperative, Fairrer said. The utility last night said it was assisting in the investigation.

Over the past weekend, some of the scouts were in Washington, snowing over the Mall and through the monuments, a blur of thousands. Officials said they came from 50 states and 20 foreign countries. At least 400 Scouts from the Washington region were scheduled to be on hand.

The jamboree has been held at the military base since the 1980s.

Mr. STEVENS. Again, I thank the Senate and the leaders for their courtesy.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, Members heard the colloquy between the distinguished majority leader and this Senator. I ask unanimous consent that the time I use not apply to any of the order now before the Senate with regard to the four votes that are pending.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. REID. I was in Chicago over the weekend at a military gathering and I had been to a well-dressed, very articulate man. I didn't realize he was as old as he was, but I learned later he was 83 years old. His name is Green. He had served in the South Pacific for 3 years during World War II. All we said was that we are so much about, he was on all of them, carrying a rifle, fighting for our country.

This morning I thought about Mr. Green. In World War II, do you think the Senate would have spent a matter of hours on defense, a four-hour defense bill? I don't think it did. During World War II, Senator Truman, among others, debated very vociferously whether there should be an investigation into how money was being spent by the military and the government generally. It was controversial, but it was debated. Senator Truman's actions carried.

What are we doing here today? What are we doing here today? A bill involving 1.4 million active-duty men and women serving in uniform for our country and a million Guard and Reserve, approximately 25 million men and women serving this country in Iraq, Afghanistan, Korea, Germany, all over the world, a bill that is costing the American taxpayer during this year approximately $450 billion—that doesn't even count the emergency supplements that are not part of this process involving tens of billions of dollars—we are going to spend on this bill a few hours. To this point we have not had a single vote on a Democratic amendment. It is unconscionable to do this, to end debate on these amendments that help our country.

Just a few of them. Concurrent receipt is something I have worked on with the two managers of this bill for 4 years. What is concurrent receipt? Is it not to change the law so that it absolutely is. Prior to the 4 years this Senate worked on it, a person who retired from the U.S. military who was disabled could not draw his disability benefits and his retirement benefits. If you are retired from the military with a disability and you work 2 years, you could draw both, or if you worked at the Department of Interior, you could draw both. But not from the military. We have changed it. We have not changed it enough, but we have changed it a lot and it is helpful. But we need to continue to work with these disabled American veterans to get them the money they have earned and they deserve and which this country is obligated, in my opinion, morally to provide.

We won't have the opportunity to do that on this bill because in an hour or so cloture will be invoked.

Senator NELSON from Florida wants to offer an amendment authorizing surviving spouses to receive both survivor benefit plan annuity benefits and indemnity compensation, and they should be able to get both.

Senator KERRY wants to make permanent the temporary authority, including the emergency supplemental for dependents of service members who die on active duty to remain in military housing for 1 year after the person has been killed in the line of duty. That is not asking too much. We would like that amendment to be offered. We want to improve this bill. We are not trying to tear the bill apart. We want to improve it.

Senator LIEBERMAN and others want to increase the size of the military by 100,000 a year for the next year. I believe in this amendment, but we very likely will not have the opportunity to have that voted on.

Senator MURRAY has a childcare amendment that would help members of the U.S. military have their children taken care of while they are on active duty.

Senator DURBIN has an amendment to require Federal agencies to pay the difference between military and civilian costs for National Guard and Reserve. This is something we very likely will not have the chance to vote on.

Senator LEVIN has an amendment that would provide $50 million to cooperatively begin to move the new opportunity to provide security upgrades to 15 key nuclear weapons sites.

Last week a report was issued by former Secretary Bill Perry that said the No. 1 problem the world faces is loose nukes. That is what this is all about.

This is a bill that is so vitally important. It is important in dealing with veterans health care benefits. It is important in dealing with Guard and Reserve, base closure, our war on terror, impact of sustained military operations to our troops and their families, detainee abuse.

Republicans have joined with Democrats in saying let’s take a look at what has gone on with how we treat prisoners of war—a bipartisan amendment. We can read in any paper in the United States that last week the Vice President of our country had been calling people at the White House. Members of the Senate tell them what to do. Why? What are we afraid of? This is an open society. This is the United States. We won’t be able to offer that amendment. Is that why this bill is being taken away from us? Because the administration has said we don’t want you to look at what has gone on in Guantanamo, Abu Ghraib, and other such places? This majority leader, apparently under pressure from this administration, decided we were not going to deal with these important issues this year. Rather than putting our troops and our Nation’s security first by letting the Senate work its will on these important issues, the majority leader and this administration decided we were not going to deal with these issues.

It is unheard of to do what is being done here. The hue and cry will go forth from this majority we have here saying these awful Democrats are trying to hold up the Defense bill. Hold up the Defense bill for a couple of days?

We believe we have an obligation, we Democrats believe we have an obligation to face difficult issues and not run from them, including the embarrassment of what went on in our prisons at Guantanamo and Abu Ghraib. We believe it is important to deal with weapons of mass destruction in this bill. Unfortunately, that is precisely the choice the majority leader is forcing this body to make today. If we do not invoke cloture on this bill and forego our right to offer these important amendments, the bill is gone. We are not going to be able to take these things up.

This work period is ending. We are going to go home. We are going to come back in September. The fiscal year is on top of us. We have the Robert nomination that will take a little time on the Senate floor after the Senate Judiciary Committee completes its important work. What are the Republicans afraid of?

There is more to this than the administration simply wanting to cut off debate because of embarrassment to them on these issues. The Republican leadership is also engaged in a very cynical ploy here today. They have pitted the interest of a very powerful special interest group against this Nation’s security needs. Rather than spending the time needed to carefully consider critical national security issues—and I think that is something that again we need to focus on, national security issues—the Republican leadership has decided it is more important that the Senate in the next 48 hours or 24 hours support the legislation, but let’s be realistic about this. Legislation that would support the legislation, but let’s be realistic about this. Legislation that would support the implementation of what went on in our prisons at Guantanamo and Abu Ghraib. We believe it is important to deal with weapons of mass destruction in this bill. Unfortunately, that is precisely the choice the majority leader is forcing this body to make today. If we do not invoke cloture on this bill and forego our right to offer these important amendments, the bill is gone. We are not going to be able to take these things up.

This is an embarrassment to this body. It should be an embarrassment to the majority. This is something that is going to be around for a long time. What is going to be around for a long time is how we have been treated on this legislation. Who is we? The American people.

I have only mentioned a few. I don’t know how many amendments we have pending—probably 30 amendments already that have been laid down. We have had several others. The last time cloture was invoked on this bill we had already acted on 80 amendments, after days and days of debate. That is what it is supposed to be. And we are not asking for days and days. We are saying this will finish the bill by Thursday. Today is Tuesday.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, will the Senator yield for a question?

Mr. REID. I am happy to yield to the Senator from Nevada.

Mr. DURBIN. I would like to clarify what we face at this moment. If I understand what the minority leader has said to the Senate, we have pending amendments before the Senate on the Department of Defense authorization bill which will not survive, are not likely to survive, cannot even be considered because of this procedural decision by the majority leader, by Senator Frist.

And if I understand what the Senator from Nevada has said, he has said something about this week being a time to consider which will fall, will not be considered this week, would be an amendment he wants to offer to help totally disabled veterans, an amendment by Senator Nelson of Florida to provide funds for the families of those who die in combat, an amendment by Senator Kerry to provide for housing for 1 year for the family of a soldier who dies in combat, the amendment by Senator Murray to provide childcare for Reserve members who are activated, and my amendment which will fall, will not be considered this week, would be an amendment he wants to offer to help totally disabled veterans, an amendment by Senator Frist. And if I understand what the Senator from Nevada has said, he has said we don’t have time to deal with the totally disabled veterans, the widows and orphans of those who fall in combat, and those Guard and Reserve members who are activated, and my amendment to make up the pay difference for National Guard and Reserve who are activated and lose money from their civilian pay. And if I understand the Senator from Nevada, he is saying these amendments, these five or six I have read, we have been told we won’t have time to consider this week.

If I understand the Senator from Nevada, he has said we don’t have time to deal with the totally disabled veterans, the widows and orphans of those who fall in combat, and those Guard and Reserve members who are activated, we don’t have time for that because we have to move to a bill for the gun lobby, for the National Rifle Association.

If I understand what the Senator from Nevada says, it is more important for us to do our best for the gun lobbyists in their three-piece suits than for the men and women in uniform who are fighting and dying for our country.

That seems to me to be the agenda and the priority of the majority leader who has come to the floor today.

Is that my understanding of what the Senator from Nevada has said?

Mr. REID. I say through the Chair to the distinguished Senator from Illinois, yes, we have been reasonable. I believe there is no jury you could have in the world that would think we are doing other than the right thing, asking for a few days to introduce amendments that will give benefits to 2 million Americans serving in uniform and a bill that is going to cost the taxpayers $450 billion in 1 year. We want to spend a couple days on this bill and we are not being allowed to because the administration is pushing them and the gun lobby is pushing them.

Look, I am not opposed to everything the administration does. I am not opposed to everything the gun lobby does. But I am opposed to what the administration is doing in this instance and the gun lobby in this instance because it is wrong for the people of our country.

Mr. DURBIN. I ask further if I could ask a question of the Senator from Nevada through the Chair. Is it my understanding that the Senator from Nevada came to the floor and gave the Republican leader his assurance that these amendments would be considered in a timely fashion and that we would agree that this bill, the Department of Defense authorization bill, would be passed from the Senate this week, no later than Thursday evening, in a timely fashion so that it will be there for the administration and for the committee to consider, so there would be no delay, so we could take up in a timely fashion amendments to help the totally disabled veterans, amendments to help local governments like those of those who have fallen in combat, amendments to help the Guard and Reserve when they are activated, so their families can stay together? Did the Senator from Nevada give that assurance to the Republican leader, Senator Frist, that we are not trying to delay amendments to help the Guard and Reserve when they are activated so their families can stay together? Did the Senator from Nevada give that assurance to the Republican leader, Senator Frist?

Ms. STABENOW. Mr. President, will the Senator yield for a question?

Mr. REID. Yes, I yield for a question.

Ms. STABENOW. Mr. President, let me raise an issue and ask a question. We have spent time in this Chamber trying to address an immediate shortfall in veterans health care funding. Senator Murray has brought this to our attention. We have yet to see this resolved. We have gone back and forth about whether we are going to provide adequate funding for veterans.

Is it not true that one of the amendments—and I know this is true because I offered an amendment that would address this situation long term—where instead of coming back and forth constantly trying to figure out whether we are going to have the veterans funding year to year so our veterans do not stand in lines, wait months to see a doctor, and not receive what they need, isn’t it also the understanding of the Democratic leader that my amendment that would address permanently the issue of veterans funding, therefore guaranteeing that when our brave men and women come home from the wars, end their service, and become veterans, that they would be assured we will keep our promise to them as it relates to full funding of veterans health care, is it the Senator’s understanding that this amendment would also fail, we would not have the opportunity to address this in this bill and that the administration would fight this?

Mr. REID. Mr. President, we have been told that this amendment would fall. This amendment, which has already been filed, would fall postcloture. People would not have an opportunity to vote on this amendment.

I will also say, one of the points I mentioned during my statement is the Interior bill is coming up. We promised that when energy is available, we will leave because there is $1.5 trillion in that bill for veterans’ benefits for this fiscal year because they have been so short-changed.

I yield for a question from my distinguished chairman of the Armed Services Committee.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Virginia.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I thank my distinguished friend and Democratic leader. I ask a very narrow question. He has pointedly raised three or four amendments that address the benefits that could go to veterans or active service.

The Senator from Nevada has been a leader every year that this bill has been brought up on a variety of issues, and no one takes the place to his fervor in trying to provide particularly for the concurrent receipt legislation. But I have to say to my good friend, and my question is, am I not correct that this bill came up Wednesday night, and Senator Levin and I were on the Senate floor into the evening, this bill was on the floor Thursday night up until early morning and again Friday morning. Every one of these bills—concurrenct receipts, I remember specifically asking Senator Nelson of Florida: Could you not bring up that bill early? He said: No, I am going to wait until Tuesday. That is all he said.

I want to say, Mr. President, I am not sure I am correct that all of those pieces of legislation that were mentioned could have been brought up Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, and addressed by the Senate.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I say to my distinguished friend, I have sat side by side with him in the Environment and Public Works Committee for many years now and have the greatest respect for him. In this instance, he is just absolutely wrong.

On Wednesday, this bill was taken up late in the afternoon, with time for opening statements. On Thursday, there were no votes after 6 o’clock in the evening. Friday, no votes. Monday, no votes. As has been mentioned here—every one of those bills—concurrent receipts, I remember specifically asking Senator Nelson of Florida: Could you not bring up that bill early? He said: No, I am going to wait until Tuesday. That is all he said.

I want to say, Mr. President, I am not sure I am correct that all of those pieces of legislation that were mentioned could have been brought up Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, and addressed by the Senate.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I ask further if I could yield to the Senator from Michigan.

Ms. STABENOW. Mr. President, let me raise an issue and ask a question. We have spent time in this Chamber trying to address an immediate shortfall in veterans health care funding. Senator Murray has brought this to our attention. We have yet to see this resolved. We have gone back and forth about whether we are going to provide adequate funding for veterans.

Is it not true that one of the amendments—and I know this is true because I offered an amendment that would address this situation long term—where instead of coming back and forth constantly trying to figure out whether we are going to have the veterans funding year to year so our veterans do not stand in lines, wait months to see a doctor, and not receive what they need, is it not true that one of the amendments—and I know this is true because I offered an amendment that would address permanently the issue of veterans funding, therefore guaranteeing that when our brave men and women come home from the wars, end their service, and become veterans, that they would be assured we will keep our promise to them as it relates to full funding of veterans health care, is it the Senator’s understanding that this amendment would also fail, we would not have the opportunity to address this in this bill and that the administration would fight this?

Mr. REID. Mr. President, we have been told that this amendment would fall. This amendment, which has already been filed, would fall postcloture. People would not have an opportunity to vote on this amendment.

I yield for a question from my distinguished chairman of the Armed Services Committee.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I will be happy to yield.

Mr. LEVIN. Will the Senator yield for a question?

Mr. REID. I will be happy to yield.

Mr. LEVIN. Is it not also true that these amendments, plus many others, have been offered, and people would have been perfectly happy to have votes on them if they were permitted, but votes were not permitted, so they had to be temporaril y laid aside so others could be offered? But the idea that those people who offered those amendments would not have been happy to have votes on those amendments is not right.

Mr. REID. I say to my friend through the Chair, not only is it true that those amendments have been filed, they were required by the rules of the Senate to have been filed because there was a 2 o’clock cutoff for the amendments to be filed.

Mr. LEVIN. And are pending; is that correct?

Mr. REID. Yes. I don’t know how many.

Mr. LEVIN. Over 40.

Mr. REID. In addition to that, I think there are a couple hundred amendments filed by both sides. As happens here with the cooperation of these two fine managers, we work down the number of these amendments and only go to the most important ones. That is what we said we would do. I think it is a shame that we are going to be behind bill in an hour. It is not good for this body, it is certainly not good for this country, and it is certainly not good for the 2.5 million people we respect so much who serve our military.

AMENDMENT NO. 1377, AS MODIFIED

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, there will be 20 minutes equally divided between the Senator from Maine, Ms. COLLINS, and the Senator from New Jersey, Mr. LAUTENBERG.

The Senator from Maine.

Ms. COLLINS. Mr. President, the Senator from New Jersey has shed much needed light on a disturbing problem, and that is the improper use of foreign subsidiaries by U.S. firms to conduct business in certain rogue nations where they might otherwise be barred from doing business by U.S. sanctions laws.

Like the Senator from New Jersey who has been a real leader on this issue, I have been very disturbed to read of allegations that foreign subsidiaries of some of the best known American corporations have been conducting operations in countries such as Iran and Syria, even though U.S. sanctions laws specifically prohibit U.S. parents from doing so directly. There are allegations that some of the subsidiaries in question are not even real companies but, rather, they are shell corporations that were created just for the purpose of evading the law.

These reports highlight that our sanctions laws are not as tough and as effective as they should be. In seeking a solution to this problem during the past year, I have consulted extensively with the Treasury Department, the State Department, and other experts. It turns out to be very complicated and presents a technical set of legal and foreign policy issues to accomplish the goals that both the Senator from New Jersey and I share.

Let me try to frame the choice that is now before our colleagues. We have before the Senate two proposals designed to extend the reach of U.S. law specifically the International Emergency Economic Powers Act, or IEEPA, to cover companies doing business with countries covered by U.S. sanctions laws.

Let me explain what my proposal would accomplish. It has four things. First, it would extend IEEPA to prevent U.S. companies from trying to evade the law by moving operations overseas.

Second, my amendment would prohibit U.S. companies from approving, facilitating, or financing actions that are illegal under IEEPA.

Third, it ratchets up the penalties for violations of the law from $10,000 per civil violation and $50,000 per criminal violation to $250,000 and $500,000 respectively.

And fourth, it ensures that the Treasury Department has the subpoena power it needs to enforce the new sanctions.

Let me explain what it would not do. Most important, my proposal would not jeopardize our working relationships with key allies by attempting to assert U.S. jurisdiction on companies that operate and are incorporated elsewhere.

Second, it will not provide yet another incentive for American companies to move their jobs overseas through corporate inversions. These are the main problems with the approach of my colleague from New Jersey. Again, I emphasize that I share the same goal as my colleague from New Jersey, and I salute him for focusing much needed attention on a very real problem.

Let me explain further. My colleague’s amendment attempts to impose sanctions on businesses operating and incorporated in foreign countries. So, for example, if a U.S. firm has a subsidiary in Great Britain, my colleague’s amendment proposes to extend U.S. law to that subsidiary, even if U.S. law is inconsistent with British law.

This is a dangerous and imperious approach to foreign policy. If other countries tried to impose similar rules on us, imagine how we would respond. For example, imagine if Saudi Arabia tried to impose criminal and civil penalties on a Saudi firm’s U.S. subsidiary operated and incorporated under the laws of our country because that firm was doing business in Israel, or imagine if Germany attempted to impose sanctions on a German firm’s American subsidiary, again operating here under our laws and regulations, for not meeting German labor laws that are inconsistent with our laws.

Moreover, my colleague’s amendment would create the perverse incentive for American firms to invert or move overseas in order to avoid the onerous and extraterritorial application of our sanctions laws. We must not choose that path.

There is a very real problem here with some American companies exploiting an exception that is in the current law, but I believe that the proposal I have advanced would greatly strengthen our laws, would provide new tools for enforcement, and would enormously increase penalties for violations.

It would make crystal clear that a U.S. company is prohibited from in any way approving, facilitating, or financing actions of a subsidiary that would be illegal under the sanctions law.

I reserve the remainder of my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Jersey is recognized.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Mr. President, I extend my thanks to the Senator from New Jersey but, unfortunately, in terms of describing an effort we are both very much interested in, in solving a problem that exists before us. Very soon, the Senate is going to vote on the two amendments, both of them aimed at foreign subsidiaries doing business with terrorist nations. But only one of these amendments—and it may not come as a surprise, mine—gets the job completely done.

I have great respect for the Senator from Maine. She works very hard to chair a committee on which I sit, the Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs Committee, and accomplishes a lot. But unfortunately, in this case, the amendment she offered will not close the loophole we are concerned about, nor will it stop American businesses from doing business with terrorist nations such as Iran.

It recognizes the seriousness of the problem but, unfortunately, in terms of what we have presented, does not solve the problem. Iran is one of the world’s largest state sponsors of terrorism. Nobody doubts that. Every year, the Iranian Government funnels tens of millions of dollars to Hamas and Hezbollah and the Islamic Jihad, to name a few. These organizations turn around and use that money to murder Americans and others who are trying to live their lives. No American company should be permitted to help them in any way, either directly or with a sham corporation.

Iran also uses its oil revenues to fund its nuclear weapons program. Once again, through sham corporations, American companies are helping them develop those oil revenues, for what purpose? The purpose is to attack our people and other innocents across the world. That is why we do subject Iran to one of the strongest sanction regimes that we have. But some American companies exploit a loophole in our sanctions laws. They go offshore, open a sham foreign subsidiary and use that foreign subsidiary to do business with the Iranian regime with impunity and help create profits for them to be used for any purpose they choose.

This has to stop. In the past, I believe the Senator from Maine agreed with me that this has to stop. In fact, last year she supported my amendment. So I am hopeful that she will once again vote for my amendment. I am going to vote for hers.

I want to be clear. I have no objection to the amendment. I am going to vote for it, as I said, as a signal that we must do something to stop supporting these avowed enemies of America. The Collins amendment is not a bad amendment, but it only codifies existing regulations that, frankly, are not enough. It confirms what we have now and permits companies to escape sanctions.

In the case of Cuba, we do not allow, any American company to use a sham to do business there. We ought not permit Iran to do the same things.

If we want to close this loophole, my amendment is the only one that accomplishes it. Under the Collins amendment, the scenario on this placcard is still possible. Here is a U.S. corporation. Here is a foreign subsidiyary of the U.S. corporation. They can do business with Iran, who then sends funds to Hezbollah, Hamas, and other terrorist organizations. They have their subsidiaries operating in other places. But they should not have subsidiaries that are allowed to do business in this way.

We want to strengthen existing law. The way we do it is to explicitly say that any foreign subsidiary, controlled by an American company, must obey our sanctions.

The senior Senator from Michigan pointed out last week that the stan-ard we have, the sanctions standard, already applies to foreign subsidiaries that do business in Cuba. I repeat what I said before. My amendment simply applies the same rules to terrorist states such as Iran.

I ask my colleagues, is fighting al-Qaeda really less important than fighting Cuba? If you vote no on this amendment, that is what you are saying.

My amendment is simple and straightforward. It makes clear we will not allow foreign subsidiaries of U.S. companies to provide funds to Iran. It is common sense. That is why a conservative group, the Center for Security Policy, supports my amendment. Frank Gaffney, who is president of the Center for Security Policy, said in the Washington Times today:

If the Senate is serious about truly closing this loophole, it must adopt the Lautenberg amendment.

That is from Frank Gaffney, president of the organization.

We have to stop U.S. companies from doing business with terrorists when they intend to murder innocent Americans. I ask my colleagues, please support my amendment. Families across this country do what they can to protect their loved ones and we can do no less. We need to close this loophole, more and more money flows into the hands of terrorists. For the sake of our troops, for the sake of our citizens, we have to shut down this source of terrorist funding.

I again restate my intent. My intent is to support the Collins amendment because it does open our eyes a little bit further to the problem. But I hope, if we get through this problem, the Lautenberg amendment is the one that will finally be voted for.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Maine is recognized.

Ms. COLLINS. Mr. President, again I commend the Senator from New Jersey for focusing attention on what is a very real problem, and that is that the current law is not tough enough and there are reports that subsidiaries of some very well-known American corporations are doing business in states where U.S. sanctions laws apply. But I think when you deal with this area, you need to be very careful to not craft a proposal that has unintended consequences.

Moreover, my colleague’s amend-dment does not do what the Treasury Department’s Office of Foreign Asset Control, OFAC, has specifically named as the legislative step that would be of most benefit to them, and that is substantially increasing the penalties in the current law.

My proposal would do that. Senator Lautenberg’s amendment does not include increases in the penalties.

In addition, my proposal explicitly grants the Treasury statutory subpoena power to ensure that it has all of the enforcement tools it needs.

But let me go back to the underlying issue. The Collins amendment would be very specific in barring any action by a U.S. firm in approving, facilitating or providing financing for any action by its foreign subsidiary that would be unlawful for the parent company to engage in.

It would also prevent U.S. companies from evading the law by setting up a subsidiary overseas, a shell corporation. So I propose that I have set forth greatly strengthens the current law.

We do not, however, want to create a perverse incentive that would encourge American companies to invert and reincorporate overseas, and I fear that could well be the result of the amendment of Senator Lautenberg.

I am concerned about something else, and I have given these examples. We don’t want to open the door to foreign governments that want to evade our laws to do business in America. That is what we are.

I hope my colleagues will support my amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. All time has expired on the amendment.

Ms. COLLINS. Mr. President, I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second? There is a sufficient second.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The first question is on the amendment of the Senator from Maine.

The clerk will call the roll.

AMENDMENT NO. 1351

The PRESIDING OFFICER. At this time, there will be 2 minutes equally divided on the Lautenberg amendment, amendment No. 1351, on which the yeas and nays have been ordered.

The Senator from New Jersey. Mr. LAUTENBERG. Mr. President, we have just had a vote on the Collins amendment that confirms we have a problem. There is no denying there is a problem out there, but there is only one way to solve it; and that is to say that any American company cannot form a sham corporation and do business with Iran as is presently being done. We do not permit it in Cuba, and we should not permit it in any other place in the world. So I hope now I will get the same kind of support we have just seen because we want to cure the problem. This is the best way to do it.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who seeks time in opposition?

The Senator from Maine. Ms. COLLINS. Mr. President, I respect the intentions of my colleague from New York, but his proposal is overbroad. It is strongly opposed by the administration. I urge opposition to the Lautenberg amendment.

Mr. President, I yield back the remainder of my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. All time having been yielded back, the question is on agreeing to the amendment. The yeas and nays have been ordered. The clerk will call the roll.

The amendment (No. 1351) was rejected.

Ms. COLLINS. I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. WARNER. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Virginia.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, will the Chair advise the Senate as to the pending business.

The amendment (No. 1342, as modified)

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, a vote will now occur on the Frist amendment No. 1342. There will now be 2 minutes equally divided for debate. This will be a 10-minute vote. The subsequent cloture vote that has been scheduled will also be a 10-minute vote.

Who seeks time?

The Senator from Virginia.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, on behalf of the majority leader, who is participating in a ceremony in the Rotunda, the Support Our Scouts Act of 2005—and I am a cosponsor—is a very important piece of legislation, particularly in the wake of the tragic events that occurred last night. It will help ensure that the Defense Department continues to provide the Scouts the type of support it has lawfully provided in the past, to include supporting the Scouts at their jamborees.

In this context, I thank Senator DURBIN for helping to refine the amendment's language to provide flexibility to the agencies that provide like support.

This amendment also ensures the Scouts have equal access to public facilities, forums, and programs that are available to other youth organizations, nonprofit organizations, and the like. As such, the amendment makes clear that Congress believes the Boy Scouts should be treated the same as other national youth organizations.

I hope that all of my colleagues will join the 50-plus cosponsors of this legislation and vote with me and other supporters of Scouting.

Yesterday, July 25, tens of thousands of Scouts from around the country began arriving at Fort A.P. Hill in Virginia. Tennesseans, such as Bill and Diane Goins from Soddy Daisy, TN, have traveled great distances to participate. Vote for this amendment and let them know that the Pentagon’s support to the Scouts at their jamborees to continue.

Let’s also let them know that not only is Defense Department participation helpful to the Scouts, it is also beneficial to the training of our armed forces.

Mr. President, I urge all of my Senate colleagues to vote for the young boys and girls who are following in the worthy Scouting tradition. A vote for this amendment is a vote for them.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, as I noted earlier when the majority leader offered this amendment, I support the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, and other youth organizations. The Frist amendment seeks to ensure that government resources are not arbitrarily denied to youth organizations, while at the same time, not limiting judicial review of the constitutionality of government actions.

I want to thank the distinguished majority leader for working with me to address my concerns regarding section 2, in which his amendment had provided a guarantee of funding level for youth organizations.

Together, we now have added flexibility to address cases where youth organizations no longer deserve the funding level they had previously received. For example, if a youth organization is convicted of a criminal offense or a senior officer of a youth organization is convicted of a criminal offense relating to his or her official duties, under this modification, the head of a Federal agency would be able to waive the guaranteed funding level. Federal agencies also would have the ability to waive this funding level if the youth organization subject to the investigation relating to fraudulent use or waste of Federal funds. It is my expectation that Federal agencies will use this discretion wisely.

Our modification also clarifies that the support that a Federal agency is required to provide youth organizations is subject to the availability of appropriations, which Congress can revisit each year.

I also want to take this opportunity to reaffirm the importance of our Nation’s strong tradition of religious liberty, our tolerance of the religious beliefs of all people, and our respect for those who do not believe in God or a higher authority. This amendment respects the significance of religious liberty under the jurisdiction of Federal courts in determining the constitutionality of government support for youth organizations.

Therefore, I support this amendment, as modified.

Mr. Frist. Mr. President, yesterday, tens of thousands of Scouts began arriving at Fort A.P. Hill in Virginia to attend the National Scout Jamboree.

Held every 4 years at the Army base, the jamboree draws Scouts, leaders, and volunteers from around the world. The Scouts will spend the next 10 days participating in outdoor activities like archery; fishing; and geocaching, a GPS-based scavenger hunt.

One Scout told the Washington Post: ‘It’s just a lot fun. There’s so much to do here. You get to see so many people from all around and they have all sorts of activities.

For the local community, the jamboree has been a great financial boost. Just this year alone, the event has pumped $26 million into the community. The Scouts have spent $20 million on base improvements, including road paving and plumbing upgrades.

Unfortunately, this great summer Scouting tradition may come to an end. The reason? Because the Scouting oath includes an oath of duty to a higher power. Despite decades of public support for Scouting, one Federal judge has ruled that the Pentagon can no longer provide its facilities as a matter of church-state.

Use of this lawsuit by the ACLU, 40,000 Scouts are in danger of being denied permission to hold their jamboree at Fort A.P. Hill, or any other publicly supported venue.

That is why I am offering the Support Our Scouts Act of 2005. These young people need our help and our voices to protect a great tradition.

Since 1910, Scouting has taught and enriched millions of boys and girls, and drawn generations of Americans together.

Boy Scout membership has totaled more than 110 million young Americans—including myself, my three boys, and over 40 current Members of the Senate.

Today, more than 3.2 million youths and 1.2 million adults are members of the Boy Scouts and Scout organizations such as the Tiger Cubs and Cub Scouts.

These Americans are all dedicated to fulfilling the Boy Scouts’ mission of instilling in our young people solid values such as honesty, integrity, patriotism, and character.

The Support Our Scouts Act of 2005 will help ensure that the Defense Department continues to support the Scouts, as it has lawfully done for years, including the summer National Scout Jamboree.

This amendment also ensures the Boy Scouts have equal access to public facilities, forums, and programs that are open to a variety of other youth or community organizations.

Boy Scouts, like other nonprofit youth organizations, depend on the ability to use public facilities and participate in these programs and forums. My amendment ensures the Scouts have fair and equal access to these facilities.

My amendment also makes clear that the Congress regards the Boy Scouts to be a youth organization and that the Boy Scouts—and the Girl Scouts—should be treated the same as other national youth organizations.

I hope that all of my colleagues will join the 50-plus cosponsors of this legislation and vote with me and other supporters of Scouting.

I want to thank Senator Durbin for helping to refine the amendment’s language. The Durbin modification will allow agencies to waive the “mandatory floor of support” included in my proposal—but not necessarily the support itself—if some senior officer of a youth organization or the organization itself is convicted of a serious criminal offense.

We would expect agency heads to use this waiver sparingly and judiciously, and only for the most serious of offenses that are connected to their official duties.

And once an organization has remedied the problem, we expect the baseline of support to be fully restored by the federal agency to its previous level. The Scouts are committed to developing the best qualities in our Nation’s young people—qualities such as patriotism, integrity, honesty, and compassion. This long-honored organization helps prepare our young people to be leaders in the communities, and leaders of the future.

A vote for the Support Our Scouts Act will let them know that Congress continues to support this worthy endeavor.

Mr. President, I urge all of my Senate colleagues to vote for the young boys and girls who are following in the great Scouting tradition. A vote for this amendment is a vote for them.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who seeks time in opposition?

Without objection, the Senator from Michigan is recognized.

Mr. Levin. Mr. President, we support this amendment, as modified. It has been modified to address a problem it had which did not relate to the Boy Scouts but which had to do with the wording which made it overly broad. The language clearly depends upon an appropriate agency making either a grant or an appropriation. We support the amendment. We thank Senator Durbin, particularly, for his modifications.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, all time is yielded back.

Mr. Warner. Mr. President, I ask for the yeas and nays. Is there a sufficient second? There appears to be a sufficient second.

All time having been yielded back, the question is on agreeing to amendment No. 1342, as modified. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk called the roll.

Mr. Mcconnell. The following Senator was necessarily absent: the Senator from Idaho (Mr. Craig).

Mr. Durbin. I announce that the Senator from West Virginia (Mr. Rockefeller) is necessarily absent.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. Burr). Are there any other Senators in the Chamber desiring to vote?

The amendment (No. 1342), as modified, was agreed to.

Mr. Reid. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. Reid. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.
The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? Without objection, it is so ordered.

CLOTURE MOTION

Under the previous order and pursuant to rule XXII, the clerk lays before the Senate the pending cloture motion, which the clerk reads as follows.

The legislative clerk read as follows.

We, the undersigned Senators, in accordance with the provisions of rule XXII of the Standing Rules of the Senate, do hereby move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the fiscal year 2006 Defense authorization bill. We, the undersigned Senators, urge the passage of this bill in about 30 hours. We both feel the importance of the Defense authorization bill in about 30 hours. So we will vote on cloture.

We, the undersigned Senators, in accordance with the provisions of rule XXII of the Standing Rules of the Senate, do hereby move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the fiscal year 2006 Defense authorization bill. We, the undersigned Senators, urge the passage of this bill in about 30 hours. So we will vote on cloture.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I would just like to state that we have offered everything. We, the undersigned Senators, in accordance with the provisions of rule XXII of the Standing Rules of the Senate, do hereby move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the fiscal year 2006 Defense authorization bill. We, the undersigned Senators, urge the passage of this bill in about 30 hours. So we will vote on cloture.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, there is 2 minutes equally divided for debate before the vote on cloture.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I would just like to state that we have offered everything.

Mr. Frist. Mr. President, very briefly, both sides have talked about the importance of the Defense authorization bill. We both feel the importance of that bill. Cloture being invoked here shorty, which I believe it will, will allow us to have a Defense authorization bill in about 30 hours. So we will complete our objective of having a bill if cloture is invoked, and I encourage people to vote for cloture.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I would just say briefly we would finish the bill at the same time if we entered into the agreement that I submitted to Senator Warner and the Republicans. Time is of no difference.

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, it is vital that we have a complete action on the National Defense Authorization Act. It is an important piece of legislation that we must pass with all due haste to meet the needs of the men and women of the U.S. military.

Defense bills are always serious matters—but this year Congress works against a background of prolonged combat in Iraq and Afghanistan, worrying increases in force and strain, and with obligations to care for a new generation of combat veterans and their families.

By virtually any measure, the American military is a force under strain. It is a simple statement of fact—and a fact every one of us must acknowledge and address so that this most magnificent military is not irreparably harmed. Just 2 months ago, General Richard Myers, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, reported to Congress that the American military is not as ready as it could be to meet new contingencies beyond Iraq and Afghanistan. Units and personnel are facing repeated deployments to Iraq and Afghanistan. So-called "low-density-high-demand" units and personnel are maxed-out. The Army has a dwindling number of Army Reserve and National Guard personnel available to perform combat support roles such as military police and civil affairs.

In recent weeks, two reports—one by the GAO, the other by RAND—highlighted shortages in the Army Reserve. It is becoming increasingly difficult for the Army Reserve to continue to provide units and personnel to perform due to worsening personnel and equipment shortages. There are three primary causes for these shortages: the practice of not maintaining Army Reserve units with all of the personnel and equipment they need to deploy, personnel policies that limit the number of reservists and the length of time they may be deployed, and a shortage of full-time staff to develop and maintain unit readiness. As of March 2005, the number of Army Reserve eligible for mobilization may not have the skills and ranks needed to support ongoing operations. We must all be concerned that the Army Reserve be able to provide forces that are ready and relevant to ongoing operations. But these issues—as serious as they are—will be addressed by simply rubber-stamping an important piece of legislation. I will vote against cloture because there are too many important amendments that would improve this legislation and help the men and women of the American military and their families. If we do invoke cloture, dozens of amendments that deserve a vote—up or down—would fall away, including amendments to protect the pay of mobilized reservists employed by the Federal Government and to create mandatory health care for veterans healthcare. My own amendments to extend survivor housing benefits beyond the end of the fiscal year, to increase funding for a vital weapons system sought by commanders in Iraq, and to begin the process of improving the GI Bill of Rights would never have received a vote.

I urge my colleagues to complete the defense authorization bill as quickly as possible and to consider the amendments which Members have offered.

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, I want to express my disappointment that the majority leader has decided to postpone further action on this year's Defense authorization bill. This is an extremely important piece of legislation that deserves the Senate's full and careful consideration right away. I have several worthy amendments to the bill, as do many of my colleagues from both sides of the aisle. We have an obligation to our men and women in uniform and to the American people to thoroughly debate these important amendments and come up with the best legislation possible for our Nation's security. If cloture is invoked on this bill prematurely, the Senate will not have been able to take up many of the essential amendments on which the Senate should be spending time, addressing such issues as pay and benefits for military personnel, nonproliferation, and our detention policies. I am therefore hopeful that the Senate will reject attempts to cut off debate on this bill prematurely. Unfortunately, rather than allowing debate and action on the Defense authorization bill to continue, the majority leader has decided to move to a special interest bill instead. I am hopeful, however, that the Senate will soon be able to go back to working on a bill that is so important to our national security.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. By unanimous consent, the mandatory quorum has been waived. This motion is, Is it the sense of the Senate that debate on S. 1042, the Defense authorization bill for fiscal year 2006, shall be brought to a close? The yeas and nays are mandatory under the rule. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk called the roll.

The following Senator was necessarily absent: the Senator from Idaho (Mr. CRAIG).

Mr. DURBIN. I announce that the Senator from West Virginia (Mr. ROCKEFELLER) is necessarily absent.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there any Senator in the Chamber who desires to vote? The yeas and nays resulted—yeas 50, nays 48, as follows:

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, reserving our time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. On this vote, the yeas are 50, the nays are 48. Three-fifths of the Senators duly chosen and sworn having voted in the affirmative, the motion is rejected.

The Democratic leader.

Mr. REID. I have a parliamentary inquiry. I would be happy to yield to my friend from Virginia.

Mr. WARNER. I was just going to ask the Presiding Officer the regular order.

Mr. REID. That is what I was going to do. I have a parliamentary inquiry.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator will state it.

Mr. WARNER. Now that the Senate has defeated cloture on the Defense bill, will the Senate remain on this bill, which is the bill that is to pay for our troops and protect our troops and our country, the Defense bill?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator would be informed that under the previous order—under the regular order, the Senate is to proceed to a motion to invoke cloture on the motion to proceed to S. 397.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, then I have a unanimous consent request. That request is that the cloture vote on the motion to proceed to the gun liability bill be vitiated and that the Senate remain on the Defense bill and complete the Defense bill this week and the Senate begin the very minute it gets back on September 6 with the gun liability bill, on cloture on the motion to proceed.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the unanimous consent?

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, reserving the right to object. I made it clear about 3 weeks ago to this body that we had a number of issues we were going to address before leaving for recess. We listed a number of them this morning. One of them was the gun liability bill. There are lots of roadblocks right now, barriers being thrown up to prevent us from addressing a very important bill that I believe we will show here shortly we have over 60 votes for. Thus, I will say one more time that I intend to complete the gun liability bill before we leave, complete addressing it. I am very disappointed in the last vote, the fact that we are not going to proceed with the Department of Defense authorization bill. I do look forward to coming back and looking at that bill and passing that bill. It is a very important bill, and that is why we filed cloture to complete that. In all likelihood, what will happen, we will proceed to the bill on gun liability, and the objective will be to complete that this week, and thus I do object.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, another parliamentary inquiry.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator will state it.

Mr. REID. When we finish the gun legislation, do we automatically come back to the Defense bill?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator should know that if the motion to proceed is passed, it displaces the Defense authorization bill.

Mr. REID. But that does not respond to my question. It is put back on the calendar, is that right?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. If the Senate proceeds to the gun liability bill motion, then it would displace the DOD bill and place it back on the calendar.

Mr. FRIST addressed the chair. Mr. DODD. Reserving the right to object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The majority leader.

Mr. FRIST. I would ask unanimous consent that at any time determined by the majority leader, the Senate resume the Department of Defense bill at that time.

Mr. REID addressed the chair. The PRESIDING OFFICER. Will the Senator restate it.

Mr. FRIST. I ask unanimous consent that at the time determined by the majority leader, we will return to the Department of Defense authorization bill. Mr. KENNEDY. Reserving the right to object.

Mrs. BOXER. Reserving the right to object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from California. Mrs. BOXER. I thank you. The majority leader said something here today that really surprised me. He said he is going to prove that the gun liability bill was one of the most important things we were going to do, and I want to know from the majority leader, does he think that bill is more important than the Defense authorization bill?

Mr. SANTORUM. Regular order.

Mrs. BOXER. Does he think that the Defense authorization bill is not as important as gun liability?

Mr. BUNNING. Regular order, Mr. President.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The majority leader has the floor.

Is there objection to the unanimous consent request?

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I would suggest and ask if the distinguished leader would modify his request to say that when we finish the gun legislation, we would return to the Defense bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the majority leader—

Mr. FRIST. I object and I once again state my request that at a time determined by the majority leader, we return to the Department of Defense authorization bill.

Mr. KENNEDY. Parliamentary inquiry.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the majority leader’s request?

Mr. KENNEDY. Reserving the right to object, Mr. President, if we go to cloture and cloture is invoked, do we not displace the authorization bill for consideration in this Chamber this afternoon and for the next days, if we pass it? Is that not the case?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. If cloture is invoked on the motion to proceed, we will remain on the motion to proceed until time is used or yielded back.

Mr. KENNEDY. So the answer is affirmative, that we are displacing the Defense authorization bill by voting on cloture on the motion to proceed. Am I not correct?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. If the motion were to pass, the Senate would continue on that motion.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I hope the distinguished majority leader will bring this bill back at the earliest possible time. This is such an important piece of legislation. It should not be added to the tail end of things we do around here.

Mr. KENNEDY. I object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The objection is heard.

PROTECTION OF LAWFUL COMMERCE IN ARMS ACT—MOTION TO PROCEED

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order and pursuant to rule XXII, the Chair lays before the Senate the pending cloture motion, which the clerk will state.

The assistant legislative clerk reads as follows:

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, 2 minutes are equally divided on each side.

Mr. FRIST. We yield back our time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The motion to proceed failed on its face, and the bill was not reported from committee.
for cloture. Whatever Members feel about gun liability, and there are many divided opinions here, nothing could be more important than returning to the DOD bill, supporting our troops, supporting our veterans. It is a $410 billion bill. The fact that we cannot debate it for more than a few hours says something is wrong with this Senate. We can do both. We should not leave the DOD bill until we finish. I urge a "no" vote on cloture, whatever your view is on the gun liability provision.

Mr. FRIST. Parliamentary inquiry, Mr. President: Under the rules of the Senate, would it not be possible to debate the Defense authorization bill for 30 hours if we had voted for cloture or if we do vote for cloture?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There would have been up to 30 hours if approved.

Mr. KYL. So we would have the opportunity if we were to invoke cloture to debate the Defense authorization bill for 30 hours.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is correct.

Mr. DODD. Parliamentary inquiry: Is it not also true in a postcloture environment, had cloture been invoked, many of the amendments dealing with veteran benefits and other issues would have been denied consideration?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. It would be difficult for the Chair to determine that at this point.

Mr. FRIST. Regular order.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Regular order.

Mr. LEVIN. Parliamentary inquiry: Following up on that, is it not true that even though amendments are relevant in a postcloture situation, if they are not technically germane, they fall?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is correct.

Ms. LANDRIEU. Mr. President, parliamentary inquiry: The PRESIDING OFFICER. By unanimous consent, the mandatory quorum call is waived.

The question is, Is it the sense of the Senate that debate on the Motion to Proceed to S. 397, Protection of Lawful Commerce in Arms Act, be brought to the floor?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair would inform the Senator that there are several Thune amendments that relate to BRAC.

Ms. LANDRIEU. I will ask specifically by number if the clerk will give me the Thune amendment on the postponement of BRAC. We had several, but there was one on postponement. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

Mr. FRIST. Regular order.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator does not have the floor.

Mr. FRIST. Regular order.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Regular order has been called for.

Mr. DURBAN. Parliamentary inquiry.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk called the roll.

Mr. MCCONNELL. The following Senator was necessarily absent: the Senator from West Virginia (Mr. ROCKEFELLER) is necessarily absent.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. On this vote, the yeas are 66, the nays are 32.

Three-fifths of the Senators duly chosen and sworn having voted in the affirmative, the motion is agreed to. The majority leader.

Mr. FRIST. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. ISAKSON). Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. President, we are now proceeding to S. 397 after a very strong cloture vote with 66 Senators voting to move forward on this legislation. It is something we have had taken up quite a number of times. It has broad support in terms of business groups, gun owners, law enforcement, labor unions, and sportsmen. There is nothing in it that is harmful or damaging to our legal system. There is nothing in it that provides any special individual protection for gun manufacturers. But it is a legitimate response to a growing concern that our legal system is being abused in such a way that could actually take legitimate businesses and put them out of business. I think it is of great concern to us, and this Senate has a majority that is ready to move forward with it. In the great spirit of our Senate, we will have a lot of debate. There are those who don't approve. I know Senator REED of Rhode Island is a strong opponent of this legislation and he will certainly have a great opportunity to express his concerns on it. That is part of what we do.

I note, however, this is not the first time the words will have been spoken on this issue. This issue has been up for some years now and has come close to becoming law on several occasions, but has not yet done so.

It is important that we note that this legislation has the potential to impact our economy adversely, and that is something that is of great concern to us. We will have a lot of debate. We need to look at how these proposed novel legal theories adversely affect our economy. Someone will be making firearms in the world. People are not going to stop buying firearms. They have a constitutional right to do so. It would be the height of stupidity if we were to create laws and a legal system that put our firearm manufacturers out of business so that we have to buy imported firearms. That would not make good sense.

Our ultimate obligation is to the public. This body should take no steps that would provide improper immunity for defective practices or defective firearms that could be sold. That absolutely must not be done. With that said, it is essential that we refrain from developing a legal system, however, where lawyers are able to create causes of action and steer public policy through litigation—a public policy they have not been able to win at the ballot box, and not been able to win through their State legislatures and the Congress. So since they have not been able to win in the legislative branches, what we have had is a group of activist anti-gun people trying to accomplish the same goal through litigation.

We also need to remember in all we do regarding litigation that personal responsibility is an important American characteristic. Individual responsibility must not be stripped from all our expectations, where plaintiffs are suing third parties on an almost strict liability theory. Many trial lawyers are attempting to invent new causes of action, with hopes of striking a litigation oil well. As a result, industries such as the firearm manufacturing industry are facing enormous insur-}

ities. These industries have great reason to be insecure. Everyone knows how detrimental runaway verdicts can be and one major verdict can bankrupt an industry. Huge costs arise from simply defending an unjust lawsuit. Indeed, such lawsuits, even if lacking any merit and ultimately unsuccessful, can deplete an industry's resources and depress prices and production.

Defendant industries must hire expensive attorneys and have their employees spending countless hours responding to the lawyers, providing them information and so forth, and meetings with them. Industries, in addition, must purchase liability insurance which takes away from funds necessary for expanding their new jobs, safety, research and development that they might otherwise be able to spend on it, which is important. No other nation must compete in the world marketplace carrying such a huge litigation cost as American businesses do and particularly gun manufacturers. Eventually, these costs are passed on to the consumer. Product prices increase and availability of the products becomes scarce.

In 1998, individuals and municipalities began filing dozens of novel lawsuits against members of the firearms industry. These suits are intended to drive the gun industry out of business by holding manufacturers and dealers liable for the intentional and criminal acts of third parties over whom they have absolutely no control. The firearms industry is particularly vulnerable to these lawsuits.

In his testimony before a House subcommittee in 2003, the general counsel of the National Shooting Sports Federation stated:

"Industry-wide cost of defense to date against these lawsuits now exceed $100 million. This is a huge sum of money for a small industry like ours. The firearms industry taken together would not equal a Fortune 500 company. The National Shooting Sports Foundation now believes litigation expenses have exceeded $150 million, Mr. President.

The danger of these lawsuits can destroy the gun industry is especially ominous because our national security and liberties are at stake. First, the gun industry manufactures firearms for American military forces and law enforcement agencies. Unlike many foreign countries, the United States does not have a government army, but relies on private industry to make our firearms. Due in part to Federal purchasing rules, these guns are made in the United States by American workers. Successful lawsuits can leave the U.S. at the mercy of foreign small arms manufacturers. Additionally, if the arms industry must continue to hash out massive federal fees or eventually goes under, thousands of workers will lose their jobs. Moreover, laying off workers to pay the legal bills, secondary suppliers to gun makers have also suffered. This is why it is not surprising that the labor unions representing workers at major firearms plants, such as the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers of East Alton, IL, support this bill. This union's business representatives stated the jobs of their 2,850 union members "would disappear if the trial lawyers and opportunistic politicians get their way." Insurance rates for firearms manufacturers have skyrocketed since these suits began. I am going to talk about these suits and why they are fundamentally wrong in a minute. These suits have an impact on going concern to go up and some manufacturers are being denied insurance and seeing their policies cancelled, leaving them unprotected and vulnerable to bankruptcy.

Thirty-three State legislatures have acted to try to get either manufacturers or gun dealers to step up and meet with them. Industries, in addition, must purchase liability insurance which takes away from funds necessary for expanding their new jobs, safety, research and development. That is why it is essential that we pass this law.

The lawsuits we are talking about—the kind of lawsuits we will be discussing today are the kind of lawsuits that do not have merit. They are not the kind of suits we have to go through. They are not suits that are going to go very far into court. Many of them eventually get dismissed by judges. Most of them do eventually. But the costs are huge and, who knows, some day an activist court may start allowing these lawsuits to be brought.

The anti-gun activists, at their base philosophy, want to blame violent acts of criminals—on manufacturers of guns, because they manufactured the gun, and dealers who sold the gun simply for selling them. This doesn't make sense. Should a car dealer be sued if someone intentionally runs down a pedestrian because the car dealer sold the car that was used by a third party to commit a crime? And similarly, what about the car manufacturer? What an absurd thought. But that is the equivalent of what these plaintiffs are arguing to recover from gun manufacturers and sellers.

Guns can be dangerous in the wrong hands, but so can cars. Why would the manufacturer or seller of a gun who is not negligent, who obeys all of the applicable laws—we have a host of them—be held accountable for the unforeseeable action of some criminal third party? They should not, and this bill would simply prohibit that.

If you buy a gun and someone comes into your house and attacks you or your family and you pull out that gun and attempt to use it and it fails to work because it was defective, and that criminal harms you or your family, you should be able to sue the gun manufacturer for a defective product. But if it fires as it is supposed to, as it was designed to, it operates like whatever widget is made in this manufacturing world we are in, and it does what it is supposed to do and it is a lawful product, you should not be able to be sued.

I don't understand how these lawsuits are being maintained. But we have major cities in this country that have taken it as a policy to sue the manufacturers for creating a product that works precisely as it is supposed to work, that is designed according to the law of the United States, and it is sold according to the laws of the United States, and they still want to sue them for an intervening criminal act. That is contrary to our classical law of lawsuits and plaintiff lawsuits. It is something that I sense is being eroded, these classical principles of litigation today. I think that is one reason we are beginning to have movement on the courts to do the law reform, around the country because courts have allowed things to go beyond what traditionally they were ever allowed to do.

So it sort of makes these gun manufacturers a guarantor, a person who would pay for all damages that might occur for a gun they manufactured. That cannot be the law and must not be the law. These plaintiffs are demanding colossal monetary damages and even more than that, a panoply of injunctive relief; that is, orders from the court concerning this. These injunctions would relate to the design, manufacture, distribution, marketing, and the sale of firearms. We already have laws that cover all of that.

By the way, we have had laws about all of that. We have debated other laws the Congress and State legislatures have chosen not to pass. So the attempt, in a very real sense, is to put pressure on the court system. This is contrary to our classical law of lawsuits and plaintiff lawsuits. It is something that I sense is being eroded, these classical principles of litigation today. I think that is one reason we are beginning to have movement on the courts to do the law reform, around the country because courts have allowed things to go beyond what traditionally they were ever allowed to do.

Some of the demands that are being made are the kinds of demands that legislatures, not courts, should be deciding: one-gun-a-month purchase restrictions not required by the State law, requiring manufacturers and distributors "to participate in a court-ordered study of demand for firearms and to report the results in excess of lawful demand," prohibition on sales to dealers who are not stockholders with at least $250,000 in inventory, a permanent injunction requiring the addition of a
The power to legislate belongs not to the judicial branch of Government, but to the legislative branch.

Hallelujah. Judge. I am glad you get it. Judges ought to be neutral umpires, not activists. They should not be set up to make the law. They must not allow their courts to be used as a tool to further a political agenda, an agenda that has been rejected in the State legislature or Congress.

However, all it will take is one activist judge or activist court to destroy an entire industry in reality. So that is why the legislation is important.

Let me mention what this bill does and does not do. The bill is incredibly narrow. It only forbids lawsuits brought against lawful manufacturers and sellers of firearms or ammunition if the suits are based on criminal or unlawful misuse of the product by a third party.

I know it is hard to believe, but that is the theory of these lawsuits. That theory is you sold a gun lawfully. OK. You followed the complex Federal regulations that have a huge host of requirements. You followed the State legislature’s requirements, often very specific about how it comes in the hand of a criminal, and they use it for a crime. Now the manufacturer and the seller are liable. What kind of law is that? We do not need that. These lawsuits are happening, and so all this would say was if you are involved in any kinds of lawsuits cannot be brought.

Manufacturers and sellers are still responsible for their own negligent or criminal conduct and must operate entirely within the complex State and Federal laws. Therefore, plaintiffs are not prevented from having a day in court. Plaintiffs can go to court if the gun dealer do not follow the law, if they negligently sell the gun, if they produce a product that is improper or if they sell to someone they know should not be sold. That does not follow steps to determine whether the individual was properly subject to buying a gun.

The plaintiff can still argue that actions such as negligent entrustment, breach of contract, or warranty, or normal product liability involving actual industries caused by an improperly functioning firearm can be legitimately brought as a lawsuit and should be able to be brought. Furthermore, any allegation that the bill burdens lawful gun use is completely false. Gun manufacturers and sellers are already heavily regulated by hundreds of pages of statutes and regulations. The Government requires that all gun manufacturers, importers, and dealers receive licenses. They have to have those licenses. And they must keep all their records by serial number, and each gun has to have a distinct, separate serial number recorded before entering or leaving their inventory. That is, if they are manufactured in Massachusetts or sold to someone, and you go to Alabama, they ship it by each one's serial number and it is recorded. If it is received by a distribution center in Alabama, it is recorded there, and if it is moved off to a gun store or a Wal-Mart where they sell guns, it is entered there. When it is sold, it is entered. That serial number is recorded against the name of the person who bought it. That person who bought it must produce identification, must sign a sworn statement that they have not been convicted of a crime, that they are not under the influence of drugs, and a number of other things. They have to be a Federal officer if they lie about it. And they do a background check.

So there are a lot of regulations set forth. The records have to be open for inspection by the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms without a warrant and at any time. They don’t have a warrant. They can go into these licensed dealers any time, any day, and examine their records. That is the burgeoning gun movement.

They can also do annual inspections without a specific investigation or obtain a warrant as any other law enforcement agency can.

Mr. President, I think I overstated it. The ATF can without a warrant any time do an inspection if it is related to an investigation of a gun that has been traced there, and they have an opportunity to do annual inspections at any time through the year as part of their enforcement dealings, and they do that. That guns are not heavily regulated is a complete myth. Gun dealers are carefully managed.

As a former U.S. attorney, I participated in the prosecution of a gun dealer for bad recordkeeping. He was most offended. Over a number of years we have created even more regulation. He really felt put upon, but he wasn’t filling out the forms. He wasn’t making people. He was telling people not to put down that they lived out of State because that affected whether the gun could be sold. He would tell them, don’t fill that out, and things of that nature. He was not complying, and we prosecuted him. He went to jail and lost his ability to sell guns.

Licensed dealers have to conduct a Federal criminal background check on their retail sales either directly through the FBI through its National Instant Criminal Background Check, NICS, or through State systems that also use NICS. All retail gun buyers are screened to the best of the Government’s ability.

Additionally, the industry has voluntary programs to promote safe gun storage and to help dealers avoid selling to potential illegal traffickers in guns. Manufacturers also have a time-honored tradition of acting responsibly when recalls are necessary. They call them for repairs if they become aware of defects. Law-abiding manufacturers and dealers of firearms are not threats to our society. They have not committed crimes by supplying our citizens with lawfully acquired firearms. It is essential that the people who are guilty, people who commit the crime, who deserve punishment, receive the punishment. More importantly, this legislation is needed so that people who have suffered a real injury from a real cause of action can be heard and taken seriously while those who are trying to improperly spread the blame will not.

Mr. President, it is the responsibility of Congress to review our civil litigation system, our court system, and see how it is working. If over a period of years tactics and techniques are developed that exploit weaknesses or loopholes in the system so the system can be abused, then I think everybody would recognize that we ought to take action to fix it. Every day, attorneys file lawsuits under laws that we pass and the court’s interpretation of those laws. Congress has every right to monitor this, and we have a duty once we determine a type of litigation is so legally unsound and detrimental to lawful commerce that it should be constrained to enact meaningful legislation to constrain it and to stop abuses.

In the past, Congress has found it necessary to protect the light aircraft industry, community health centers, aviation industry, medical implant makers, Amtrak, computer industry members affected by Y2K problems, and good Samaritans.

Senator McConnell offered a bill to protect a person who tried to save another person, who was the victim of an accident, from dying. He believed that a person trying to do the best they can to protect someone else should not be sued, if they are somehow found to be guilty in a good Samaritan act.

Congress may enact litigation reforms when lawsuits are affecting interstate commerce, and many of these lawsuits are trying to use State courts to restrict the conduct of the firearms nationally. They are trying to create legal holdings by the courts that would impact the entire industry nationally. This is the stated purpose of many of these groups. And a single verdict, even a single verdict, large verdict of an anti-gun plaintiff, could bankrupt or in effect regulate an entire segment of our economy and of America’s national defense and put it out of business.

I do not know when there has been a better example of when this type of legislation is needed. We must pass this bill. It is long overdue. It has 60 co-sponsored for us to move forward and get it done.

It is simply wrong when we as a Congress have approved the sale of firearms in America and, through the Constitution, allowed the manufacture and sale of firearms, to allow those manufacturers who comply with the many rules we have set forth—they comply with those rules, to be sued for intervening criminal acts. They sell a gun and it ends up in the hands of a criminal, unknownto them. If they knew of any reason to believe they were negligent in going through the requirements of the law or failed to do the requirements of the law, they can be sued. But if they do it right and it goes into the hands of someone who uses it for a criminal purpose, the manufacturer of that gun absolutely should not be subject to a lawsuit. It is a political thing that is going on there, the filing of these lawsuits all over the country. It is an industry that this Congress and our Constitution have stated to be a legitimate industry.

I know Senator Reed has many wise comments on this, able Senator that he is. We will disagree, but I certainly respect his views.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. COLEMAN). The Senator from Rhode Island.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I rise in strong opposition to S. 397, the so-called Protection of Lawful Commerce in Arms Act. Like its predecessor which the Senate soundly rejected last year, this bill is clearly designed to thwart our most blatanst special interest giveaways that I have seen during my time in the Senate. At a time when more than 7.5 million Americans are unemployed and our Nation faces a deficit of $333 billion, war in Iraq and Afghanistan, inadequate homeland security funding, and now a Supreme Court vacancy, to me the Republican leadership choosing to devote our precious time to a bill that would deny victims of gun violence their day in court and protect the gun industry.

The gun lobby argues that this legislation would put an end to frivolous lawsuits that claim gun companies should be liable simply because their guns are used in crimes. In fact, the bill would bar virtually all negligence and product liability cases in State and Federal courts while throwing out pending cases as well as preventing future cases. The bill would provide this sweeping immunity to gun dealers, gun manufacturers, and even trade associations. Interestingly, the NRA modified the bill so that this year they don’t appear to be granting themselves legal immunity as they did the last time around.

The track record for this bill in the last two Congresses has, thankfully, been one of failure. We can only assume that the gun lobby is hoping that the third time will be the charm. The gun lobby and its allies in Congress had to abandon a similar legislation in the 107th Congress, after the Washington area sniper attacks terrorized an entire region. Then last year, in one of the more bizarre twists in recent Senate history, the National Rifle Association instructed the Republican leadership to kill the bill after a majority of Senators voted to add reasonable gun safety measures—to require background checks at gun shows, renew the assault weapons ban, and require child safety locks to be sold with handguns.

It is a good thing that the Senate defeated this bill because it would have thrown out the civil lawsuits filed by the families of the victims of the sniper attacks, even though the Washington State gun dealer who had the Bushmaster sniper rifle in his inventory could not account for that weapon or more than 230 others. Instead, the families of the victims won a $2.5 million settlement from Bull’s Eye Shooter Supply and Bushmaster, the assault weapons maker who negligently supplied Bull’s Eye despite its abysmal record of missing guns and regulatory violations.

At the heart here is not activist courts making law. The heart of this is people who have been harmed by weapons, innocent people, people such as the victims of the Washington sniper—someone walking to their car from the Home Depot and being shot and killed; a bus driver waiting to take his rounds in the morning, having a cup of coffee, reading the paper, with a wife and children. Which did they get those weapons? They got them through the neglience of a licensed gun dealer. This legislation would effectively prevent those families from recovering compensation for the loss of a husband and father, the loss of a wife. This is not about activist judges making law. This is about shutting the doors to the courts of America, mostly State courts, to prevent those who have been harmed by the negligence of others to be made whole. That is what this is about. That is why it is so wrong.

With respect to the sort of activism of public policymaking, we all recognize in this body the size of a law is one aspect, but State law is also important. In fact, most tort law is based upon State law. State assemblies make up State laws. They decide causes of action. They decide defenses. They do a lot of other things, so the conjuration, why did they get those weapons? They got them through the negligence of others to be made whole. That is what this is about. That is why it is so wrong.

In addition to the monetary settlement for the victims of the families that were the victims of the snipers, in the settlement, Bushmaster agreed to inform its dealers of safer sales practices that should prevent other crimes. An examination of the Bushmaster had never done before. What you have is a situation of negligence, and this negligence can extend not only from the dealer but to the manufacturer. This legislation not only would deny the victim’s ability to come forward and ask for compensation, but also to reform the system.

We have to recognize, too, that there are elaborate rules for the governance of weapons and firearms and tobacco, and regulations that are virtually not subject to any product liability, any consumer product safety rules, any other type of regulation. This legislation would undercut ways in which a court could do justice. Because the Senate rejected this legislation last year, these victims and their families had their day in court, and at least one manufacturer’s commercial practices were improved in ways that benefit all Americans. What could be more helpful to all of us if a manufacturer takes the time and the effort, appropriately, to inform his dealers about appropriate practices in selling weapons, about avoiding selling weapons to those people who might be trafficking in weapons, avoiding selling weapons to those people who might be irresponsible and reckless in the use of those weapons? That can only benefit all of us.

But despite all of these things, we find ourselves again in a familiar situation, one in which the NRA’s pet project is again being granted a virtual direct, nonstop ticket to the Senate floor. The Senate Judiciary Committee has held no hearings on this legislation, and no committee markup, and no scheduled floor vote. The bill’s supporters knew it would be difficult to withstand the kind of scrutiny that might result in careful, deliberate, and thorough committee hearings, so they brought it straight to the Senate floor today. Now it is up to us to make sure that there is a full and vigorous debate, including not only amendments to deal directly with aspects of this legislation but also to address other issues with respect to violence and gun safety.

If we are going to grant blanket legal immunity to the firearms industry, it is imperative that we address inadequacies in other areas with respect to gun safety legislation. Mothers and fathers across America go out of their way every day to protect themselves and their children from harm. How unsettling it must be for these families to think that the gun industry, which is already exempt from Federal product safety regulations that apply to children’s toys, pharmaceuticals, and virtually every other product in this country, may now receive legal protection that no other industry enjoys. I listened closely to the Senator from Alabama talking about this as if a car manufacturer was being held responsible for the actions of others. Well, they could be in certain situations. If a car dealer leaves his cars unlocked, and their children from harm. How unsettling it must be for these families to think that the gun industry, which is already exempt from Federal product safety regulations that apply to children’s toys, pharmaceuticals, and virtually every other product in this country, may now receive legal protection that no other industry enjoys.

This bill would prevent such a similar case from the gun manufacturers and the gun dealers, but there is no attempt, at least today, to limit those types of liability to other manufacturers. I believe that shows how narrow this is and how it is focused to a very special interest. That is unfortunate.

As with any other business, there are good actors and bad actors with respect to the gun industry. There are those who carefully follow the law and those who ignore it. But granting unprecedented legal immunity to the entire industry without requiring any additional regulation is the wrong thing. The only holdup to gun dealers, but there is no attempt, at least today, to limit those types of liability to other manufacturers. I believe that shows how narrow this is and how it is focused to a very special interest. That is unfortunate.

With all of this, again, begins not with someone going out to stage a lawsuit by being shot. That is the last thing that happens. The victims of this gun violence, who are the subject of these suits, didn’t want to be victims. They didn’t want to be in court. The bus driver waiting there to start his run was not thinking, Oh, boy, someone is going to shoot me so we can start a trial. It was a tragic, horrid policy. He was shot by a sniper who obtained a gun through the negligence of others. Yet that family would have been denied their relief in court if this bill had passed last year.

There was discussion about personal responsibility. There is personal responsibility. It is important. It is fundamental to everything we do. What about the responsibility of the gun dealer to know how many weapons he has on his lot, to inform his dealers about appropriate practices in selling weapons, avoiding selling weapons to those people who might be irresponsible and reckless in the use of those weapons? That can only benefit all of us.

But despite all of these things, we find ourselves again in a familiar situation, one in which the NRA’s pet project is again being granted a virtual direct, nonstop ticket to the Senate floor. will have a material adverse effect on the financial position of the Company.

Essentially, what these two publicly reporting companies have said, despite all of the discussion by others that they are on the verge of bankruptcy, is: There will adverse effect on our financials based on this type of litigation. There is no crisis.

So at the same time the gun makers are reporting to the SEC that litigation costs are not likely to have a material effect on the business, their trade associations have been rapidly inflating the unsubstantiated estimates of litigation costs. Gun lobby claims of alleged litigation costs have risen in $25 million increments, with no data of any kind to support these claims because most of these companies in the industry are privately held. But I would suggest if the publicly held companies are offering their truthful admissions to the SEC—unless the privately held companies are woefully undervalued, unusually involved in this type of litigation—then these estimates have to be widely suspect.

Here are the claims of increased costs: April of 2003, estimated litigation has cost the industry $100 million in the last 5 years; July of 2004, estimated litigation costs of $150 million; November of 2004, estimated litigation costs of $175 million; February of 2005, some estimates talk about $200 million.

Now, it does not seem to track when you have major companies saying they have no material impact, paying out of pocket $4,500, and then you have these wildly inflated estimates.

Number of lawsuits faced by the gun industry is, if anything, far less than many other industries. From 1992 to 2003, 57 suits were filed against gun industry defendants, out of an estimated 10 million tort suits, according to the National Center for State Courts—57 out of 10 million, that is not a record of litigants out of control.

The actual monetary awards faced by the gun lobby are even less. The gun lobby’s record in court is far worse than the tobacco industry’s, which for decades won every case brought against it. But the gun lobby has not lost them all either. In fact, many of the cases my colleague from Alabama was citing were some appeals court levels. The results of these cases are what one would expect as suits against any industry: Some cases are dismissed, some cases are won by plaintiffs, some are on appeal, others are the result of a settlement between the parties.

Now, the fact is, most of the legal defense costs faced by gun industry participants have been covered by product liability insurance, with very little funding coming out of pocket. Again, every industry in the country has to insure itself against these risks. It seems to me there is nothing to indicate the insurance claims against these gun lobbies and gun manufacturers are out of line with those. In this respect, the gun lobby is no different than any other industry. Moreover, the power of the gun lobby to protect itself from litigation and promote its views is illustrated by the war chest it has put together over the specific purpose over the past several years.

In 1999, the National Shooting Sports Foundation and others in the gun lobby created what is known as the Hunting and Shooting Sports Heritage Fund by setting aside a small percentage of industry revenues. The fund supports lobbying activities as well as industry public relations initiatives emphasizing the positive aspects of firearms, and it helps cover the cost of retaining internal memos and other sensitive documents with a law firm in California so the gun lobby can avoid the kind of unwanted leaks and exposure that plagued the tobacco industry for many years. Some reports indicate that the fund has raised as much as $100 million.

We are going to be talking about a lot of victims of gun violence over the next few days, and I can tell you that none of them has access to a $100 million war chest to protect their legal interests or promote their point of view.

In any case, the purpose of lawsuits filed on behalf of victims is not to bankrupt the industry. In fact, some of the cases filed have sought only injunctive relief, including reforms of industry trade practices that would make the public safer. This is not always about money. In some cases it is about safety for the general public.

It is telling that the new Senate version of the gun industry immunity bill has been changed specifically to ban suits seeking injunctive relief. The argument, of course, is there is a crisis, and the crisis is the financial crisis of the gun manufacturers and the gun dealers. This legislation was altered this year to have injunctive relief, which has very little direct impact in terms of awards, punitive or otherwise.

Even when plaintiffs seek common sense reforms in the industry that could save lives, rather than have money damages, the gun lobby and its allies in Congress seek to shut the courthouse door in the face of these victims.

The findings section of the bill states: [The possibility of imposing liability on an entire industry for harm that is solely caused by others is an abuse of the legal system.]

That sounds reasonable until you consider that the very essence of the cases the bill seeks to eliminate is that the harm suffered by victims of gun violence is often not solely caused by others, but that specific negligent conduct by defendants in the industry contributed to that harm. That is a key point here. This is not a situation as to anyone in the industry—a manufacturer or dealer—who has followed all the rules and has done everything correctly, and then someone else did something wrong. In order to bring a suit for negligence, you have to point out, allege at least negligent activities on behalf of the defendant, be he or she a manufacturer or dealer, and that core element is missing—those people this legislation seeks to immunize—did something wrong. Liability attaches if a court finds they did something wrong.

Moreover, the bill would exclude many cases that set out to hold the entire industry liable but instead focuses on specific dealers or manufacturers based on their negligent contribution to specific instances of harm to victims of gun violence. This is not just a situation where the whole industry is sued. This is a situation where anybody in the industry who is sued gets the benefit of these protections.

Unfortunately, this bill would overturn longstanding, widely accepted principles of civil liability generally holds that persons and companies may be liable for the foreseeable consequences of their wrongful acts. By throwing out common law standards established throughout our Nation’s history, the bill would undermine State courts and substituting new standards for negligence and product liability actions conceived by attorneys of the gun lobby, this bill would deprive Americans of their legal rights in cases involving a wide range of gun-related injuries.

Even if we concede, for the sake of argument, that some cases against the industry might be frivolous, this bill applies the legislative equivalent of a weapon of mass destruction where a surgical strike would be sufficient. The bill proposes a sweeping Federal intrusion into traditional State responsibilities for defining and administering State tort law, yet there is no evidence that the State courts are not handling their responsibilities competently in the area of law. The rash of questionable jury awards, and not a single decision or final judgment of any court that justifies this unprecedented legislation.

Nevertheless, the bill’s proponents seek to preempt the law of 50 States to create a special, higher standard for negligence and product liability actions against gun manufacturers, gun dealers, and trade associations.

The pending ask why we do this for an industry that already enjoys an exemption from the Federal health and safety regulations that apply to virtually every other product made in this country. There is no crisis. There is no showing that the gun lobby is in danger of extinction as a result of lawsuits.

We must look at the facts and not the rhetoric. Again, as to a company that spends out of pocket $4,500 a year, when their sales are increasing by about 11 percent, that is not a crisis.

There is nothing, I think, substantiated to suggest otherwise.

Now, Mr. President, we are going to engage in a series of discussions over the next several days here. But I think we have to be very clear, this legislation would undercut State laws and State court practices that have existed for as long as the country has existed. It would do so for the benefit of a very special interest group. It would deny access to courts for people who have been harmed, really harmed.

Let's take some of these cases. Take the case of Denise Johnson, the wife of the late Conrad Johnson. Conrad Johnson was the bus driver who was the final sniper victim of the Washington area snipers. The snipers’ Bushmaster assault rifle was one of more than 230 guns that disappeared from the Bull’s Eye Shooter Supply gun store in Washington State. The gun store’s careless oversight of firearms in its inventory raised serious questions of negligence that fully deserved to be explored by the civil courts.

Two hundred thirty misplaced weapons—if that is not at least a suggestion of some negligence, I do not know what is. This legislation, had it been enacted last year, would have denied the Johnson family their rights in court, their rights to go to that alleged negligent dealer and say: Without your action, without your negligence, my husband, our father, would be alive today.

But in addition to that, the manufacturer’s actions also were questionable. Despite questionable control activities in relation to their inventory at Bull’s Eye—the serious and well-known problems at the gun store—they were still able to acquire weapons from the manufacturer. As I indicated before, the Johnsons were able to settle their claim in court. But if this legislation had passed last year, they would have been thrown out.

Now, there are other examples that are prevalent that also would have been dismissed by this legislation had it been passed, and future cases if, in fact, it passes, it will happen.

There is the case of David Lemongello and Ken McGuire, former police officers of Orange, NJ. On January 12, 2001. Mr. Lemongello and Mr. McGuire were shot several times by a violent criminal who should never have had a gun. Because of the injuries he suffered, Mr. Lemongello will never be a police officer again. The gun used in the shooting was one of 12 guns purchased by 2 individuals on a single day from a gun dealer and say: Without your action, without your negligence, my husband, the son, my son family their rights in court, their future cases if, in fact, it passes, it will happen.

Now, every industry has good actors and bad actors and the firearms industry is no exception. There are manufacturers that produce high-quality products that feature necessary devices to make the firearms as safe as possible. But there are other manufacturers that create poorly designed, poorly constructed firearms that are favored by criminals, that have no place in the home, at the shooting range, or on hunting grounds. Likewise, there are licensed dealers who comply with both the letter and the spirit of our gun laws and do everything in their power to ensure firearms are sold only to lawful buyers. There are other dealers who routinely sell guns regardless of the age or criminal background of the buyer. They know they are breaking the law, and they wink and look the other way.

This small minority of bad apple dealers has a significant impact on gun violence on our streets throughout the country. According to the Federal data from 2000, 1.2 percent of dealers account for 57 percent of all guns recovered in all criminal investigations; 57 percent of the guns recovered in criminal investigations pass through their hands. Does the question arise, are there some gun dealers who are negligent, who are not following the letter or the spirit of the law? And the gun manufacturers know who the problem dealers are because when guns are recovered, they may have been involved in gun trace reports that show which dealers sell disproportionately to criminals. But in too many cases, the gun industry refuses to police itself.

If this legislation passes, there will be less incentive to take precautions, to take steps to prevent guns from getting in the hands of those people who would use them irresponsibly.

The national crime gun trace data from 1989 through 1996 gathered by the U.S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives indicates the following gun dealers sold the highest number of crime guns in America and exhibited crime gun tracing patterns indicative of drug trafficking. Whereas most dealers have been able to report with zero gun traces, guns sold by these suspect gun dealers turn up in the wrong hands over and over again.

For example, in Badger Outdoors, Inc., of West Milwaukee, WI, the dealer sold 554 guns traced to a crime, and 475 of those guns had a "short time to crime" as defined by ATF. The guns were involved in at least 27 homicides, 101 assaults, 9 robberies, and 417 additional gun crimes. The dealer also sold at least 1,563 handguns in multiple sales. From 1994 to 1996, straw purchaser Lawrence Shikes bought 10 guns from Badger. In one case, he immediately sold the gun to an undercover Federal agent who told Shikes he was a felon. Those guns purchased have been recovered from a killer, a rapist, a convicted armed robber, a man who shot a police officer, and three juvenile shooting suspects.

So, again, a very small percentage, but still we are immunizing these people also. This legislation doesn't make any distinction between competent, conscientious gun dealers. It is every one. And we know everybody is not following the rules as scrupulously as one. And we know everybody is not following the rules as scrupulously as one. And we know everybody is not following the rules as scrupulously as one. And we know everybody is not following the rules as scrupulously as one. And we know everybody is not following the rules as scrupulously as one.

To get back on the behavior, if you are harmed and injured by this negligence, go to court and say, I have been harmed, this defendant contributed to my injury and I seek compensation, this legislation will tell that victim, go away; the courts are closed to you.

There are other cases. Realco Guns of Forestville, MD; Southern Police Equipment, Richmond, Va; Atlantic Gun & Tackle, Bedford Heights, OH; Colorado Guns & Galleries in Philadelphia, PA; Parry Guns & Galleries in Indianapolis, IN. Throughout the country, the exception to the rule, and the rule is generally conscientious individuals follow the laws. But this legislation protects these individuals as well as the conscientious dealers. Again, it is inappropriate, unfair, unexpected.

Where is the crisis? All the public records are reported that gun manufacturers say there is no material impact on the financial well-being. Those are reports submitted to the SEC, not press releases from lobbying groups. We are going to upset the traditions of tort law throughout this country for a situation where there is no crime.

Again, we have moved from consideration of one of the most significant pieces of legislation we consider every year, the Armed Forces authorization, to deal with this issue—no crisis, no substance, but an industry-political motivation by the NRA and the gun lobby to protect their members from bona fide allegations of negligence in certain cases.

There is no explosion of suits. These are minimal, a fraction of the tort suits in this country. Yet we are here today to devote a huge amount of time after moving away from the Defense bill to consider this legislation. Procedurally, it is terrible. We should be talking about this now, as we all hoped we would, about further benefits for our military personnel, about improving their quality of life, improving their equipment, giving them the resources to defend us. Yet we are now staked out, literally, to try to provide benefits for the negligence of a few people in an industry that has no financial crisis and is in no danger of going away.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Alabama.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. President, there still remains a very serious problem and a very serious threat to gun manufacturers in the United States. Sure, a lot of these cases have not been successful. But there is a theoretical concern.

It is the principle of the thing we are discussing. You have a law in the United States where, under certain circumstances, but there is no financial crisis or a crisis where no crisis exists. Where there is only a theoretical concern.

I will add, when I was a U.S. attorney, an individual walked off a veteran hospital grounds and was murdered. They sued the VA hospital for wrongful death. I defended on the theory that the hospital could be liable under certain circumstances, but there was a legal law which I excused that an intervening criminal act is not foreseeable. You are not expected to foresee that someone will take a lawful product and use it to commit a crime or that they would commit a crime. This is a settled legal principle.

We are eroding these things and we end up with all kinds of problems. That is one of the things disrupting our legal system, particularly if there is a political cause here, a group of people who absolutely oppose firearms in any fashion. Mayors in major cities are encouraging these lawsuits and pushing them. We end up with some real problems.
according to justice or fairness. But we are in that mood now of using the courts to effect a political agenda that goes beyond what the Congress and elected representatives are prepared to vote. In effect, it would bankrupt these companies and may be able to prohibit people from buying guns. Now, I certainly denying them a place to go buy a new firearm and ultimately denying them the right to purchase firearms.

So that is what we are concerned about. We are not trying to overreach here. We are trying to eliminate this political abuse of the legal system to effect a policy decision not subject to being won in the legislative branch.

Under this bill, I think it is very important to note that you can sue gun sellers and manufacturers who violate the law. It is crystal clear in the statute that this is so. To start off, one of the first things it says is an action can be brought against a transferee—that is, a person by any person directly harmed by the product of which the transferee is so convicted for violating the law. It also says this in paragraph 2:

These are actions that are allowed to be brought against a manufacturer or seller of a qualified product, or gun, who knowingly violated a State or Federal statute applicable to the sale or marketing of the product when that was the proximate cause of the injury, such as the 12 guns being sold and mentioned by Senator REED earlier. I suspect that violated a law. It is certainly a violation of the law for a person to knowingly or negligently violate a State or Federal statute and that they somehow become an insurer of everything that raises questions in my mind about the effectiveness of a lot of litigation today is it is argued that it is going to punish this person who did something wrong. But in truth, the insurance company pays the cost of defending the lawsuit. It is not the wrongdoer. So the juries are told they are punitive of misconduct, probably—maybe all of it, maybe a small deductible is paid by the wrongdoer, and insurance company pays the cost of defending the lawsuit. It is not the wrongdoer. So the juries are told they are punitive of misconduct, probably—but really the insurance company pays it. What happens? They raise the rates on everybody. So if one gun dealer has messed up and he gets sued, as he should be, and he has to pay a verdict, the weird way our system is working today is the insurance company pays the verdict, and everybody's rates go up—every gun dealer who complies with the law, their rates go up too. It is something that has been bothering me as time goes by. They are stating, as legal theories, broad powers and requesting broad relief, similar to some of the things I mentioned here in the District of Columbia in the Beretta letter. Sometimes the plaintiffs have argued that the very sale of a large number of guns and pistols, when a manufacturer knows that some of those "might" end up in the hands of criminals, means that they become liable. What kind of a law that is? If a manufacturer knew they could somehow avoid detection, would file off the serial number or somebody filed it off for somebody and delivered it to them, and both of them have committed a crime at that point. What is the law? Is it this? I am very concerned about this theory. We have moved so far from our principle of liability. That is why it is quite appropriate here. And there may be other instances with other businesses around the country that are being unfairly held liable for actions that should not be their responsibility.

I will make a point about the serial number. I raised an issue I am personally aware of. The manufacturers have a serial number on a gun, which has to be recorded every step of the way as it moves from the manufacturer, to the distributor, to the subdistributor, to the retail store, to the customer. They are recorded and kept up with. A statement is filed including the serial number, manufacturer's license, and a number of other things that are required by State and Federal law before it can ever be sold. It is now, and has been for many years, a crime to produce a gun that does not have that information on it. And we are saying it is a crime to erase it. It is a crime to sell a gun that doesn’t have a serial number on it or has a number that has been erased. When I was a Federal prosecutor, I prosecuted many cases—30, 40, or 50 cases—in which criminals, thinking they could somehow avoid detection, would file off the serial number or somebody filed it off for somebody and delivered it to them, and both of them have committed a crime at that point. That is how the law is this? I am very worried about this theory. We have moved so far from our principle of liability. That is our principle of liability. What is the law? Is it this? I am very concerned about this theory. We have moved so far from our principle of liability. That is why it is quite appropriate here. And there may be other instances with other businesses around the country that are being unfairly held liable for actions that should not be their responsibility.

I would just say, there are a lot of laws that we pass in our legal system to clamp down on the sale of guns because they are, indeed, a dangerous instrumentality. But our Constitution provides the right of citizens to keep and bear arms. Our State and local laws provide that protection to our country and we set many restrictions on it. The problem we are dealing with is that the courts will create legal liability on a manufacturer of a lawful product, a lawful product that has been sold according to the strict requirements of Federal and State law, and that they somehow become an insurer of everything wrong that occurs as a result of the utilization of that lawful product.

All we are trying to do is bring some balance. I think the statute has been gone over for many years now. People on both sides of the aisle understand; there are probably 60-plus votes of people who are prepared to vote for this legislation. One reason it has that kind of broad support is that the bugs have been worked out of it. Things that would have gone too far have been eliminated. People have had many months to review it, I think we have a good piece of legislation.

I respect my colleagues who differ, but I strongly think it would be in the interest of good public policy to pass this legislation, and that is why I support it.

I offer the letter from the Beretta Corporation and ask unanimous consent it be printed in the RECORD. There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

BERETTA U.S.A. CORP.,

Accokeek, MD, May 11, 2005.

Hon. RICHARD B. CHENey,

Vice President of the United States, Eisenhower Executive Office Building, Washington, DC.

Dear Mr. Vice President: A few weeks ago, the Washington, D.C. Court of Appeals issued a decision supporting a D.C. statute that holds the manufacturers of semiautomatic firearms strictly liable for any crime committed in the District with such a firearm.

Passed in 1963, the D.C. statute had not been used until the District of Columbia recently filed a lawsuit against the firearm industry in an attempt to hold firearm makers, importers and distributors liable for the cost of criminal gun misuse in the District. Although the Court of Appeals (sitting en banc in the case D.C. v. Beretta U.S.A. et al.) dismissed many of the case, it affirmed the D.C. statute's constitutionality and, moreover, ruled that victims of gun violence can sue firearm manufacturers simply to determine whether that company's firearm was used in the victim's shooting.

It is unlawful to possess most firearms in the District (including semiautomatic pistols) and it is unlawful to assault someone using a firearm. Notwithstanding these two criminal acts, neither of which are within the control of or can be prevented by firearm makers, importers and distributors, the D.C. Court of Appeals decision supporting it will make firearm manufacturers liable for all costs attributed to such shootings, if the firearm involved was originally sold in a state far from the District to a lawful customer.

Beretta U.S.A. Corp. makes the standard sidearm for the U.S. Armed Forces (the Beretta M9 9mm pistol). We have long-term contracts right now to supply this pistol to our fighting forces in Iraq and these pistols have been extensively in combat during the current campaign, just as they have seen over, ruled that victims of gun violence can sue firearm manufacturers simply to determine whether that company's firearm was used in the victim's shooting.

I urge you to support this legislation. Without it, companies like Beretta U.S.A., Colt, Smith & Wesson, Ruger and dozens of others could be wiped out by a flood of lawsuits emanating from the District.

This is not a theoretical concern. The instrument to deprive U.S. citizens of the tools they enjoy their 2nd Amendment freedoms now rests in the hands of private citizens through-out the U.S. also rests in the hands of these attorneys.

We will seek Supreme Court review of this decision, but the result of a Supreme Court review is also not guaranteed. Your help in supporting S. 397 and H.R. 800 might provide our only other chance at survival.

Sincerely and respectful,

JEFFREY K. REI,
General Counsel, and Vice-General Manager.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Michigan.

Ms. STABENOW. Mr. President, this is an important debate and discussion, but I ask unanimous consent to speak on a different topic and have it count against the time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

GUARANTEED VETERANS HEALTHCARE

Ms. STABENOW. Mr. President, I had hoped at this time to come to the floor to vote on an amendment that I introduced, along with Senator Boxer and other colleagues, to make sure that veterans health care funding is, in fact, secured and stable for the future through an amendment which was supported by the American Legion—by many different veterans organizations, including American Veteran's, Blind Veterans of America, Jewish War Veterans of the USA, AMVETS, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Paralyzed Veterans, Military Order of the Purple Heart, Vietnam Veterans—of all of whom want us to pass the Stabenow Amendment. This Amendment would make veterans health care funding mandatory, reliable, rather than having the situation we are in with the VA coming to us with a shortfall right now and asking for emergency funding, then a debate on what we are going to do for next year.

This is a very important amendment. It was pending prior to the vote on cloture and I am trying to bring one level of debate to a close. If cloture had been invoked, this amendment would not be in order to be voted on. It would not have been in order, which is why, among other reasons, I voted not to proceed to invoking cloture. There are a number of very important amendments that address the needs of our troops and their families, and other important issues about keeping us safe, securing nuclear materials, and other critical issues that were brought forward by colleagues on both sides of the aisle. These are amendments that need to be debated and included, in many instances, I would say, in the Defense reauthorization bill.

I am deeply disappointed that instead of proceeding with the bill at hand, we’re getting it done in the next day or two, which we on this side of the aisle committed to do—our leader indicated we would commit to stay here and get that work done—instead of doing that, we are proceeding on the inside track and go to another issue that is of concern, I know, to the gun industry.

But we are at war. We are at war. We have men and women who need our best efforts, both those who are our taxpayers serving us, as well as those who have a veteran’s cap on right now who have served us in other wars or come home from Iraq and Afghanistan.

I want to speak to the Defense Authorization bill which I strongly support, as well as the amendment that I hope we will return to when we come back to the Defense bill. I hope it will be very quickly because our men and women in the armed services are counting on us to get the work done. If we are going to make it the best product we can, we need to do that work and get it the best product we can possibly make it in terms of our national defense and the Defense reau-thorization.

I do support the 2006 Defense authorization bill. I believe providing the equipment and resources our service men and women need to do their jobs is one of our most important responsibilities, which is why I wish we were debating that right now. This duty is especially important, as I said before, in a time of war. As everyone knows, our men and women in uniform are under tremendous stress as they either prepare to deploy or are currently serving their country in Iraq and Afghanistan.

I am pleased the Defense reauthorization bill will authorize a 3.1-percent pay raise for military personnel and provide $70 million in additional funds for childcare and family assistance services for our military families.

I know Senator MURRAY has an additional amendment that relates to supporting our families, as well as our families, and provide $70 million in additional funds for childcare and family assistance services for our military families.

Foremost in the minds of the men and women in uniform with whom I
The task force released its report in May of 2003, well before we understood the impact of our men and women fighting in Iraq and Afghanistan, and what that would mean to our veterans' health care system. If this mismatch between demand and resources was bad in May of 2003, it is today. That is why we see this gap. That is why we need to address—and the Senate has now passed, twice—$1.5 billion for emergency spending for veterans health care.

There are an additional 740,000 military personnel who served in Iraq and Afghanistan. They are still in the service. This next generation of veterans will be eligible for VA health care and will place additional demands on a system that is already strained. In addition, each reservist and National Guardsman who has served in Iraq is eligible for 2 years of free health care at the VA. I support that. The administration has in its own way admitted that they do not have sufficient resources to cover the costs of care for America’s veterans. While they would not until recently admit that there was a shortfall, they have for years attempted to ration care and cut services at the expense of our Nation’s veterans. This is not just necessary for the VA; it is inexcusable, and it needs to be fixed.

The President created a task force to look at the VA health care system, as it does with other Federal programs that are funded directly from the U.S. Treasury. In fact, this amendment would bring funding for veterans health care into line with almost 90 percent of the health care programs the Federal Government. Almost 90 percent of federally funded health care programs are in the mandatory category, not discretionary. Why in the world would we say to our veterans that they don’t have some kind of treatment in terms of the Federal budget for mandatory spending that other programs receive, such as Medicare and Medicaid?

The amendment also requires a review of veterans health care costs to determine whether adequate funding is being provided to our veterans. I think that is absolutely inexcusable, and it needs to be fixed permanently. The amendment that we have offered creates a funding mechanism that will ensure that the VA has the resources to provide a steady and reliable stream of funds to care for America’s veterans, and it will also ensure that Congress will continue to be responsible for the oversight of the VA health care system, as it does with other Federal programs that are funded directly from the U.S. Treasury.

In 2003, the VA, the Department of Veterans Affairs, and the President committed to a national goal of improving access to health care for veterans. The problem we face today is that resources for veterans health care are falling behind demand. In other words, we are creating more veterans than we are covering under our health care system. Shortly after coming into office, the President created a task force to improve health care delivery for our Nation’s veterans. The task force found that hospitals here and overseas are not prepared to meet the demand for VA care and the resources to meet the need. The task force also found that:

- The current mismatch is far greater . . . and its impact potentially far more detrimental, with the VA’s inability to furnish high-quality care and to support the system to serve those in need.

Today’s soldiers are tomorrow’s veterans. America has made a promise to these brave men and women to provide them with the care they need and deserve. They deserve the respect and support of a grateful nation when they return home. We also owe it to the men and women who have fought America’s prior conflicts to maintain a place for them in the VA system so they can receive the care they need. We need to keep our promises to our veterans, young and old.

Today, I was privileged to participate in a press conference before the question time came up about closing debate on these kinds of amendments. I was pleased that the current National Commander, Tom Cadmus, who is from Michigan, was there representing the American Legion. There were numerous other veterans organizations represented, as I listed earlier in my comments. All of them were saying to us: Let’s stop this taking from one pocket to put in the other, taking from Peter to pay Paul, with our veterans. Let’s keep the promise of veterans health care, not put veterans health care into a category that will allow that to happen on an ongoing basis.

I believe we must consider the ongoing costs of medical care for America’s veterans as part of the continuing costs of national defense. The long-term legacy of the wars we fight today is the care for the men and women who have worn the uniform and been willing to pay the ultimate price for their Nation.

Senator JOHNSON and I and other colleagues are offering this amendment, which is currently still pending on the Department of Defense reauthorizations, to provide full funding for VA health care to ensure that the VA has the resources necessary to provide quality health care in a timely manner to our Nation’s sick and disabled veterans. The Stabenow-Johnson amendment provides guaranteed funding for America’s veterans from two sources.

First, the legislation provides an annual discretionary amount that would be locked in future years at the 2005 funding level. Second, in the future—and importantly—the VA would receive a sum of mandatory funding that would be adjusted year to year based on changes in demand from the VA health care system and the rate of health care inflation. In other words, it health care funding that is provided by veterans rather than this arbitrary debate now on inflationary increases.

We know the current formulation has not worked because the VA tells us that they are over $1 billion short now in funding for health care services for our veterans. I think that is absolutely inexcusable, and it needs to be fixed permanently. The amendment that we have offered creates a funding mechanism that will ensure that the VA has the resources to provide a steady and reliable stream of funds to care for America’s veterans, and it will also ensure that Congress will continue to be responsible for the oversight of the VA health care system, as it does with other Federal programs that are funded directly from the U.S. Treasury.

still not enough to meet the immediate needs.

In April of this year, I supported an amendment by Senator MURRAY to the fiscal year 2005 supplemental to Iraq and Afghanistan to provide $1.9 billion for veterans medical care, specifically for those veterans returning from Iraq and Afghanistan.

During the debate on the amendment, we were again told that the President’s budget was sufficient. In fact, on April 5, Secretary of Veterans Affairs Jim Nicholson sent a letter to the Senate that said:

I can assure you that the VA does not need emergency supplemental funds in the 2005 budget to continue to provide timely quality service. That is always our goal.

Mr. President, since April the story has changed, and we now know the truth.

On June 23, 2005, the VA testified before Congress that they forecasted a 2.5 percent growth in demand—in other words, more veterans, as we have all been saying, more veterans coming into the system—when in fact the increased demand this year is 5 percent. They said 2.5 percent; it actually was 5 percent. This has left the VA with a $1 billion shortfall. It is proud to support an amendment the following week to the Senate’s Interior appropriations bill that provided an additional $1.5 billion for veterans health care. The following day, on June 30, the House passed a supplemental that would cut this by $375 million, in line with the President’s request.

At the time, our friends in the House suggested that the Senate was making up numbers. In fact, we wanted to be sure that the VA had enough funds to cover the shortfall and to cover any potential shortfall of next year. As it turned out, we received more bad news from the administration a couple weeks ago, on July 14, when the administration requested another $300 million for this year and a whopping $1.7 billion for next year. The total shortfall for this year and next now stands at nearly $3 billion.

The Interior appropriations bill is currently in conference. I am hopeful that the bill will include $1.5 billion for this year, as the Senate has twice unanimously supported. Further, last week the Senate Appropriations Military and Veterans Affairs Subcommittee, under the able leadership of Senator HUTCHISON and Senator FEINSTEIN, included extra funding to cover the 2006 shortfall in VA health care.

Mr. President, I recall all of these events to make two points. First, it is clear that the demand for VA health care is increasing, and a good portion of this increase can be attributed to men and women seeking care after they have returned from Iraq and Afghanistan. Second is to show that despite the best intentions of the VA and Congress, the VA does not have a reliable, and dependable stream of funding to provide for veterans health care needs. We should not have to pass an emergency funding bill to give our veterans the health care they have earned. Imagine that. It is not acceptable. It has been over a month and Congress still has not filled the $1.1 billion shortfall in VA medical services for this year. We owe our service men and women more than that.

In 1993, there were about 2½ million veterans in the VA system, and there are now nearly 10 million veterans enrolled in the system, over half of which receive care on a regular basis today. Despite the increase in patients, the VA has received an average of a 5-percent increase in appropriations over the last 8 years. At last count, at least 86,000 men and women who have returned from Iraq have sought health care from the VA, and we can safely assume this number will reach hundreds of thousands. This bill gives the resources our troops need to prepare and defend our country in Iraq. We must not forget them when they come home. We have an obligation to keep our promises to our veterans.

Mr. President, I am very hopeful that we will quickly return to the Defense reauthorization bill and have the opportunity to show our veterans across America that we will permanently keep our commitment to them by passing the Stabenow-Johnson amendment. There are other important amendments that remain in front of us now because we have discontinued the opportunity for us to improve on this bill, a bill I support, but a bill that needs to be the very best that we can do for our men and women serving us today and for our veterans. I hope we will quickly return to it and that we will get about the business of continuing to work on these critical amendments and quickly bring this to a close. And we can do it this week if there is the will to do it so that we provide the very best to our men and women in service and those who have come home and put on the veterans cap.

Mr. President, I yield the remainder of my time under the 30 hours to Senator Reed.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Rhode Island.

Mr. REED. First, let me thank the Senator for yielding the time. I appreciate the discussion. I want to make some brief comments.

My colleague and friend from Alabama made reference to the Beretta Company and apparently their concern about legislation in the District of Columbia. I want to make a few points to clarify what I believe the context of this letter from Beretta is. First, the District of Columbia Council apparently passed strict liability legislation which is an example of an elected body, not a judge, making up laws. We might disagree with them, but the point is that this is an elected body doing this; this is not judge-made law. As I understand it, the Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia simply upheld the statute. They acted appropriately, procedurally correct, and the statute is in force. I do not know if this is the intent of the suggestion, but a lot of the debate today has been about letting legislators and legislatures do their jobs without definition. This is the situation of Beretta, that is exactly what happened. The DC Council acted, the court of appeals said we have no reason to disagree substantively with what you have done and the law stands. But I think there are much more important points to be made in the context of this legislation. The proposed legislation is not simply attempting to eliminate claims of strict liability against gun manufacturers, gun dealers, and trade associations. It goes all the way to wiping out a broad array of negligence claims. And the essence of negligence is that the defendant, or the one who is being accused of negligence, must fail to perform a duty, the duty to the injured party.

There has to be some personal action, not simply doing something that has been legislatively ruled to be wrong. In that context, one can look at the concerns of the Beretta Company about strict liability much differently than in this legislation, and I think it would be wrong to assume and argue that because they are concerned about strict liability applied entirely to the legislation before us.

Now I assume they oppose the legislation. But the issue is much broader than strict liability; it is negligence. It is not a situation where a manufacturer or an individual will be held liable for something they never did. The essence of negligence is you have to fail to perform a duty, and that is at the heart of the legislation before us, providing broad exemptions and immunities for gun dealers, gun manufacturers, and trade associations whose own conduct would at least lead to allegations in court of negligent behavior.

I wanted to make those two points, and I yield the floor.

Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

MRS. MURAY. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

MRS. MURAY. Mr. President, I ask to speak on a nongermane topic for approximately 10 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

MR. SESSIONS. Mr. President, reserving the right to object, the time would be counted against the 30 hours; is that correct?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is correct.

MR. SESSIONS. No objection.

MRS. MURAY. I thank the Chair.
Most people diagnosed with mesothelioma who do not receive treatment die within 8 months. Those who do receive treatment increase their life expectancy to an average of only 18 months. Overall, a person's chance of surviving 5 years is 1 in 20. Brian lived 6 years after being diagnosed. He was truly one in a million.

Brian Harvey was lucky in many ways. He was diagnosed early. He got experimental treatment at the University of Washington, which had skilled doctors and a medical facility, and he had the support of his entire family and many friends. Many asbestos victims are not that lucky. Brian recognized that, and he used the time he was given to speak up for others whose lives and families have been torn apart by asbestos.

Brian Harvey is my hero because he did not despair about his own personal challenges. Instead, he shared those challenges with all of us, helping us to understand the threat and to inspire change in our public policy. And he did it with an actor's presence and a deeply human personal touch. Brian used to say to me that the left side of his body was made of Gore-Tex. And it was. But that didn't explain Brian's toughness or his determination.

That came solely from his heart. Brian Harvey is my hero because he made a difference. He pushed Congress to treat victims fairly and to ban asbestos. While that work is still in progress, Brian's voice and passion echo as loudly today as they did that day 3 years ago when he stood beside me as we introduced the bill for the first time. Brian Harvey is my hero because in the face of so many challenges that could have drained his energy, he found the strength inside to fight the good fight.

Every time I stood up for asbestos victims, Brian Harvey was at my side. He spoke on June 24, 2003, when I first introduced my bill. He was by my side in June of 2003 when we stood together to call for fairness for asbestos victims. On March 5, 2003, Brian testified before the Senate Judiciary Committee, and with his passion and power he called for increased detection and fair compensation for asbestos victims. Three months later, on June 24, 2003, the Judiciary Committee included my ban in its reform bill. On March 25, 2004, at a press conference to call for passage of my bill, Brian Harvey was there as well.

It is very hard for me to picture the next hearing or press conference without Brian standing by my side. But I will continue the fight. When Brian and I met 3 years ago, the odds were against both of us. The medical odds were against Brian. Every day for him was a triumph. And the legislative odds, the chance we could pass a bill, were against both of us. We have made progress, but not there yet. I know it will be harder without Brian's advocacy, but I also know he has done so much to bring that goal now within reach. I know eventually we will ban asbestos, we will ensure victims are treated fairly, we will find new treatments for asbestos disease, and we will protect future generations from this epidemic. When that day comes, all of us will have Brian Harvey to thank.
tragic, and I think they hit all of us in a place in our heart we are always going to remember.

Mr. President, the four gentlemen who were killed last evening were:

Ron Bitzer of Anchorage. Ron and his wife, Barbara, recently made the decision to move out of State. They were selling their home, and they were going to be moving out of State.

Michael LaCroix, who I had the privilege of working with on the Boys & Girls Clubs in Alaska. Mike was a very successful businessman and owned a very successful business in Anchorage. He was with his son here in the jambooree.

Michael Shibe of Anchorage was also here with two of his sons, twin boys.

The fourth individual was Scott Powell. Scott moved from Alaska, as I understand, just last year. He had served for more than 20 years as the program director of Camp Gorsuch, which is the Boy Scout camp in Alaska.

In my office today, we were talking about Scott Powell and the recognition that just about every Boy Scout in Alaska and the moms and dads who go either to help out at the camp or go there as part of the off-camp ceremonies knew, recognized, and loved Scott Powell. He touched the lives of countless Alaskan youth.

All of these gentlemen are going to be terribly, terribly missed.

Another Alaskan volunteer, Larry Call, of Anchorage, was injured in the incident. We understand he is hospitalized. Of course, we are praying for his speedy recovery.

I do not intend to dwell this afternoon on the tragic details of what has happened. The fact is, these men are heroes and should not be remembered for the way they lost their lives but for how they lived their lives. This is a phrase that was coined by Vivian Eney, the widow of a U.S. Capitol Police officer, who lost her husband in a sudden and unexpected training accident.

The four Scout leaders who we pause to think about today will be remembered for how they lived their lives. They will be remembered as heroes for the service they gave to the young people of Alaska.

At this time, Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate observe a moment of silence so we may reflect upon the events that occurred last evening and so we may also express our love and our support for the Scouts and their family members.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

(Moment of silence.)

Ms. MURKOWSKI. Mr. President, my message to the families of these five outstanding leaders and to all of the Boy Scouts in Alaska and around the world is simple: Please know that the Senate and, indeed, the Nation grieves with you on this very difficult day.

I thank you, Mr. President. I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Alabama.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. President, I thank Senator MURKOWSKI for her eloquent remarks and for taking this opportunity to reflect on the contribution of these Boy Scout leaders to the moral and spiritual and emotional and psychological maturation of young boys.

The truth is, young boys today are having a harder time than girls in relation to their graduation rate from college, their crime rate, their imprisonment rate. There are other problems occurring in boys. Boys are struggling in our society today.

I am a strong believer in the Boy Scouts. I thank so much the Senator from Alaska for her kind remarks. I had the honor to be an Eagle Scout. Every Thursday night, a group of us from Hybart, AL, met in Camden, AL, which was 15 miles north of Hybart. Hybart was just a little crossroads community. My father had a country store. There were a couple little stores. People were farmers and carpenters and worked at the railroad or whatever.

There were nine boys there. Of those nine boys, eight became Eagle Scouts. I don't think a single one had a parent who graduated completely from college. One became a Life Scout, he almost became an Eagle Scout, and as I think of those kids with whom I grew up, they did well. One is a Ph.D. now, teaching at the University of South Carolina. One is a dentist in Charleston. One is a medical doctor, Johnny Hybart, who went to M.I.T. and has a Ph.D. now, working at the hospital there. Bob Vick is a CPA. Pete Miles is an engineering graduate and a former plant manager at a major corporation. And Andy and Greg Johnson both graduated from college, one in engineering and one in business, and are very successful. Mike Hybart graduated with a horticulture degree from Auburn and is in the real estate business now.

It was a great pleasure for me to participate as a member of Troop 91 in Camden. As the Senator from Alaska read the names of Michael Shibe and Michael LaCroix and Ron Bitzer and Scott Edward Powell, who were killed serving their boys, I thought of people who meant so much to me: John Gates and Peyton Burford and Billy Malone and Dean Tait, and quite a number of others, and Rev. Frank Scott, my Methodist preacher who traveled with others, and Rev. Frank Scott, my Methodist preacher who traveled with them on trips, and how much that meant to me and us as a community and how it shaped our lives in so many positive ways that would not have happened otherwise.

When you go to your Scout meeting—every Thursday night, as we did—you say that oath: On my honor, I will do my best to do my duty to God and my country, to obey the Scout laws, to help other people at all times, to keep myself physically strong, mentally awake, and morally straight.

Some find that offensive. I can’t imagine why. Whatever the objection could have ideals such as that. Every week you also recite the Scout laws. A Scout is trustworthy, loyal, helpful, friendly, courteous, kind, obedient, cheerful, thrifty—you don’t hear that word much anymore—brave, clean and reverent. Those are good qualities. I don’t see anything in those qualities that violates the Constitution or should in any way cause them to not be able to be supported by our military on their bases.

I am thankful that the majority leader, BILL FRIST, offered legislation to make crystal clear that Scouts will be able to participate actively on our military facilities as they have for so many years. Along with Senator REED—a graduate of West Point he is—I serve on the board of West Point with him. Senator REED chairs that board. I remember one of the briefings we had about the young people who graduate from West Point and go on to a military career. The groups of graduates that had the highest reenlistment rate, the two groups that made the Army a career in the highest percentage, were children of former military parents and Eagle Scouts.

There is some connection there, a connection in terms of duty and honor and commitment to country and to our creator in a way that is special. The Scouts and our military do share some ideals.

I thank the Chair for allowing me to share these remarks. I appreciate the Senator from Alaska so much for her tribute to these fine leaders who gave their lives in service to the young men under their supervision.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

IMMIGRATION REFORM

Mr. CORKY. Mr. President, earlier today, Chairman SPECTER of the Senate Judiciary Committee convened a very important hearing addressing one of the most urgent matters confronting our Nation; that is, the need to fix our broken immigration system. I want to speak a few minutes about a proposal that I have made, along with my colleagues, Senator KYL, together representing two border States, ones that perhaps have the most experience with this issue because of our proximity to the border with Mexico. In summary, this bill strengthens our border enforcement while it comprehensively reforms our immigration system. Unfortunately, the ongoing immigration debate has too often divided Americans of goodwill into two camps—those who are angry and frustrated by those who refuse to enforce the law, and those who are angry and frustrated that our immigration laws do not reflect reality. I have learned that those two groups, both of whom deeply care about America and are committed to building a system that works, share more in common than they or many other people actually realize. The only groups who benefit from the current system are human smugglers, unscrupulous employers, and others who profit at the expense of people who are trying to come to this country to find work and are turned away by the expensive and legal process, to live within the law. In recent visits in McAllen, TX, and Laredo, TX, I learned from people who have been long familiar with the movement of people back and forths across our borders that the nature of illegal immigration has changed dramatically. The number of aliens from noncontiguous countries, called OTMs—in other words, people from countries other than Mexico—has doubled in the last year alone. Already this year the Department of Homeland Security has apprehended about 100,000 aliens across the border, mostly from countries who are from noncontiguous countries.

While many of these individuals are coming from countries that you would expect, countries in Central and South America, many come from countries that have direct connections with terrorism. For example, we know that the Border Patrol has apprehended at least 400 aliens from countries with direct ties to terrorism.

For former Deputy Secretary of the Department of Homeland Security, Admiral James Loy, stated that “en-trenched human smuggling networks and corruption in areas beyond our boarders can be exploited by terrorist organizations.” He went on to state that “several al-Qaeda believe operatives can pay their way into the country through Mexico and also believe illegal entry is more advantageous than legal entry for operational security reasons.”

Indeed, the majority of the people who come to this country, even those who come outside of our laws, come here for understandable reasons. That is, people who have no hope and no opportunity where they live see this tremendous beacon of opportunity that America represents, and they want to come here to work and provide for their families.

At the same time, we have to acknowledge that our porous borders represent a danger to our nation’s security which can also be exploited by international terrorists. We know the current system benefits smugglers and all too frequently leads to the deaths of immigrants whose only crime was trying to find a better life for themselves and their families. Indeed, the greatest hazard to people who come to this country to find work is the fact that they have to, under current law, resort too often to an illegal entry into the United States. The people who turn to Pay the flow of illegal immigrants, including smugglers, are aware of the holes in our system. They may be—and I am confident that they are—looking at ways to exploit these weaknesses.
Ultimately, after they have completed their time of work in this country, most will return home to their countries and to their families and to contribute to their societies in their homeland. And those who decide to live permanently must enter through the legal process.

When people who come to this country live outside of the law, they are vulnerable to exploitation and violence. They risk their lives, sometimes just to visit their families. I believe we must break this black market trade with smugglers and others who exploit these vulnerable immigrants by addressing deficiencies in our current system.

Identifying problems, of course, is not the most difficult part of our jobs. If this were easy, someone would have already done it. It is not easy, but it merits our best efforts. The challenge that Senator KYL and I have assumed is to find a solution, to find workable results.

Last Wednesday, we introduced the Comprehensive Enforcement and Immigration Reform Act of 2005, a bill that we believe will restore America's faith in lawful immigration and will meet the needs of the country, both from a security perspective and from the standpoint of our growing economy which needs the work provided by many immigrants.

The bill is based upon certain principles. First, we have to reestablish the rule of law. Second, we have to enact laws that are capable of strong enforcement. That means they have to be realistic. Third, and most importantly, the law must be fair. If we address deficiencies in the current immigration process, then we must require that everyone who is here, even those who have come here just to provide for their families, must go through normal legal channels.

The good news is that our bill provides them a direction and a way to do that in a way that is not overly disruptive of their employment or of their family life. We believe it provides a path so that they can regain their status as legal temporary workers or, if eligible, as legal permanent residents.

The men and women who secure our borders at the ports of entry, and frequently at remote locations, should be commended for the job they do every day. But we have not provided them with the resources they need to be able to give them any reasonable chance of success.

Last week, the Senate approved the Department of Homeland Security appropriations bill, which, to the credit of the Senate, we have New Hampshire. Senator GREGG, included increases for border security and immigration enforcement.

Senator KYL and I have introduced a bill that we believe builds upon that foundation. First of all, it authorizes 1,250 new Customs and border protection officers over the next 5 years. It calls on the Department of Homeland Security to hire 10,000 new Border Patrol agents over that same 5-year period. That same amount was authorized by Congress in the Intelligence Reform Act of 2004. It calls for the expansion of a process called expedited removal, which is a fair and effective system for those who are ineligible to enter our country. Right now, we only use expedited removal in a few locations along the border. But our bill calls for the Department of Homeland Security to expand that process to all ports of entry. The bill also provides for additional safeguards for aliens by requiring a supervisory official with the Government sign off on any removal.

Let me say a quick word about expedited removal. Right now, because of a lack of detention facilities, we have what is commonly called a "catch and release" program. For those we catch coming across the border illegally, a criminal background check is done to determine whether they are a threat to the American people; but if they don't appear on one of these watch lists or criminal background databases, they are released into the U.S. and asked to return for a hearing. It should not surprise any of us that this "catch and release" program results in most people not showing up than do show up, and those who show up for their hearing and are ordered removed then do not show up later when they are asked to report for their deportation process. So that is something we simply have to remedy. And I believe that expansion of the expanded removal process will deal with it in a way that is consistent with our laws and our values and our need for an effective border security program.

Our bill also addresses the release of aliens who come into the country from countries other than Mexico. It raises the minimum bond amounts for these aliens from $1,250 to $5,000. That means that fewer people from countries other than Mexico will be released, and those who are released will have a greater incentive to appear for their hearings.

Another important component of immigration reform is interior enforcement. We also need to deal with those who make it past the border and into the interior of our Nation. Tackling illegal immigration cannot be done in a piecemeal fashion. If we increase our ability to apprehend illegal aliens at the border, it can only play a part in putting them. Once detained, lawyers and judges are necessary to ensure that these people receive timely and fair hearings. Reform, therefore, must evaluate the whole enforcement process, and we must remove obstacles that appear anywhere in the process.

The goal is simple: If we apprehend someone who has no legal right to be in this country and is not entitled to any claim of asylum, then we must have an effective and efficient means to remove them from the U.S.

The bill Senator KYL and I have introduced will restore confidence in the system. First, it authorizes an additional 10,000 detention beds. Currently, there are only 23,000 detention beds. You will recall that a moment ago I said last year alone immigration control authorities apprehended 1.1 million people coming across our border illegally. Yet we only have 23,000 detention beds. That leads to what I described earlier as the "catch and release" program, which has proven to be completely unworkable.

The intelligence reform bill called for an additional 40,000 beds over the next few years. The bill that we have introduced increases the total amount to 50,000 detention beds. Still, that is not enough to detain everyone who comes across the border illegally. That is where expedited removal comes into play—a process to remove aliens quickly so that we reduce the need for bed space.

Our bill also increases penalties for alien smuggling, document fraud, and gang violence by aliens. We know, as I said a moment ago, that the people coming across our border, through our porous southern border, has changed. We are seeing many people who are violent gang members coming from places in Central America. We know that people are coming from Asia and from Europe, all around the world, and they are transiting through Mexico.

Alien smugglers are the people that make that happen. We have learned that they consider human beings to be just another commodity. They are just as likely to smuggle arms, drugs or anything else that will make them money. We need to make sure that we crack down on these alien smugglers that facilitate this intrusion into our country illegally and show that we are committed to tough punishment. Our bill accomplishes that.

We provide greater tools for the Department of Homeland Security and the Department of State to require that countries accept their own citizens back if they violate our immigration laws and they come into our country illegally.

Our bill also clarifies the authority of State and local officials to enforce immigration laws and authorizes the reimbursement of local and State officials for costs they incur in enforcing Federal immigration law.

Recently, I traveled to Victoria, TX, and met with a group of sheriffs down there. It so happened that the Minute men, the first Arizona were organizing in Gonzales, TX, and local law enforcement officials were concerned about having these citizen volunteers engage in what essentially is a law enforcement process. They said to me:

If the Federal Government would provide us additional resources, we would be glad to help. We need some training, but we would be glad to be cross-designated, if that is necessary to enforce immigration laws as well as State and local laws. We would be glad to detain them in our local jail.
facilities pending their hearings, if necessary, but it is going to take a little help from the Federal Government.

I told them that I welcomed their offer to assist because I believe interior enforcement performed by many of these enforcement officials is an important part of this puzzle.

Our bill also creates a new senior-level position at the Department of Justice committed to immigration enforcement.

The third piece of the enforcement puzzle deals with the employment of undocumented immigrants. The Congressional Research Service estimates that out of the roughly 10 million people who have come into our country in violation of our laws, about 6 million are currently in the workforce. I believe that a vast majority of employers simply want an effective, user-friendly way to comply with the law. In other words, they want a way to determine whether the person who shows up in their place of business saying “I would like to work for you” is in fact legally authorized to work in the United States. We must ensure that we provide them an efficient, easy-to-use system that is worthwhile at a sufficiently low cost.

I can only think about roofers working with hot asphalt in south Texas during the summer. I can only think about agricultural products, there are a lot of jobs, unfortunately, that Americans simply are reluctant to fill. We know we have a need for the work provided by many immigrants.

What we provide for in our bill is a temporary worker program. That is something I believe can best be characterized as a work-and-return program, not a work-and-stay program.

Some have said that is unrealistic, that you will never get people who come to the United States to agree to return. I guess we can all have opinions, but I have something even better than my opinion. The Pew Hispanic Center, a nonpartisan, impartial think-tank that looks at some of these matters, has done a survey of almost 5,000 Mexican immigrants who applied for matricula consular card, a Mexican identity card, at Mexican consulates in the United States. They asked immigrants to fill out a 12-page survey, and one of the questions they asked was this: Would you agree to work in a temporary worker program in the United States if it was legally authorized, even though at the end of that temporary period you would agree to return home to your country of origin?

By a ratio of 4 to 1, 71 percent to 17 percent, these immigrants said they would. I think that is solid evidence that people who are currently working in the black market of illegal labor, without the protection of our labor laws, without the protection of our criminal laws, and all too frequently they view law enforcement with suspicion rather than as an ally. They are looking for an opportunity to come out into the sunshine and to secure the protection our laws provide.

Our bill does create a new temporary worker category that allows workers who have a job offer to come to the United States to enter the country for a period of up to 2 years to work in the United States. Before the employer can hire the worker, the employer must advertise a position, offer it to any qualified American worker, and agree to pay them at least minimum wage. The worker will go through background screening, will be issued secure biometric documentation, that they are who they say they are and are coming here to work and not for some other nefarious purpose.

We also create some financial incentives so that the worker, after the period of their temporary visa expires, will return home with the savings and skills they have acquired while working in the United States.

Lastly, let me cover the temporary worker program. I mentioned a moment ago that out of the 10 million or so people who have come to this country in violation of our immigration laws, 6 million are in the workforce. I believe the fact is many of these immigrants have come here to provide for their families, something all of us as human beings can empathize with and understand. Who among us would not do anything in our power, risk life itself, to provide for our families, even if it happened to be outside of our laws?

We know many jobs being performed by immigrants in this country are jobs American citizens are reluctant to fill. I can only think about agricultural products, there are a lot of jobs, unfortunately, that Americans simply are reluctant to fill. We know we have a need for the work provided by many immigrants.

They are looking for an opportunity to come out into the sunshine and to secure the protection our laws provide.
Finally, let me address what perhaps is the hardest issue: the people who are here now who have come here outside of our laws.

According to the Pew Hispanic Center again, about a third of these individuals have been here for more than 10 years. So we do know that some have established roots in the United States, but we also know we have to find some way to transition this population into legal status. It must not, however, create a path that leaves for people who have come here outside our laws. Our bill allows them to get back in line so they can return to the United States in a temporary worker program or, should they choose, as legal permanent residents.

But we do it in a way that is premised upon fundamental fairness. I believe there are many people in America who would be deeply offended if we said: if you come to this country through legal channels, that is nice, but we are going to allow people who have come here illegally to have a preference, and we are going to let them jump ahead of you in line.

Our bill provides a path for people to return to their country of origin and then, on an expedited basis, return to the United States. It will not be disruptive. To secure their participation, it may be necessary for them to know by the thousands the people who will be eligible to come back immediately once they secure the proper documentation. And we need to address processing delays so that they can obtain that proper documentation in a matter of days. If disruption is the only concern, then I see no reason why the model cannot minimize or eliminate that disruption.

This bill is a comprehensive bill, and I know my colleagues are as concerned as I am by a workable solution to this problem. I speak today to share with all of our colleagues, not just the people who sit on the Judiciary Committee and who participated in the hearing this morning, an overview of our principles. I believe that some real promise in achieving results.

I believe our constituents sent us here to represent them to solve problems, not to engage in partisan or otherwise divisive rhetoric designed to pick a fight. Our proposal is one idea about how we can find our way through this thicket, how we can thread the needle in a way that does not provide amnesty. I think our colleagues across the Rotunda in the House of Representatives will be open to discussing our proposal, for it is consistent with their principles of reform.

I thank the Chair. I thank the indulgence of my colleagues. I yield the remainder of my hour to the Senator from Alabama.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator has that right.

Mr. CORNYN. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The senior assistant bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. ALEXANDER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. CONROY). Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. ALEXANDER. Mr. President, I am glad I had an opportunity to be present this afternoon and to hear Senator CORNYN speak. I appreciate his assuming the Chair for a moment so I could step down here and compliment him and Senator Kyl for their work on this legislation.

They have introduced a comprehensive bill to improve our immigration system, focusing, as the Presiding Officer said in his remarks, on border security, on interior security, on employment accountability, and on a legal status for temporary workers.

I am glad they have taken the time to work on this program. We have talked about it many times over the last several months, and I know the hours they spent on this. I have not had an opportunity yet to see all the specifics of the bill, but I know the principles they are working on and I believe that is what they are trying to do, and I think it is terribly important that we as an entire Senate take this issue up and begin to deal with it.

We need to stop thumbing our nose at the rule of law and decide which persons from other countries should be allowed to work and study and live in our country and create a legal status for them, and then enforce the law. We must do that. It is hypocritical for us to go around the world preaching about the rule of law to other countries when 10 million people or so are living illegally in this country.

Our failure to solve the problem also unloads huge health and education costs on State and local governments and puts the immigrant population at risk.

So the Cornyn-Kyl bill stands for the rule of law by enforcing our borders and creating a solid temporary worker program so that we know who is here, and that they are here within a clear legal framework.

The people of this country expect us to deal with this issue. This is a difficult issue, but it is what we are sent here to do. We are dealing with the major issues facing our country, and I can think of no more important issue for us to deal with than upholding the rule of law by securing our borders, protecting our interior, and making sure that people we welcome to live here and work here are here legally, and that we then enforce the law.

But, as important as the Cornyn-Kyl bill is, we can do more. This bill enforces the borders and welcomes temporary workers. But we also need to do a couple of other things. One of the other things we need to do is to welcome foreign students, not just foreign workers. A second thing we need to do, with a half million to a million prospective citizens who come to our country legally every year, is to help them become Americans. We need to help them to become a part of this country whose most important accomplishment is admitting and welcoming from all over every background and helping those new citizens become something new—Americans who are proud of where they came from but proud to say they are all Americans.

Foreign students who come to the United States to study at our colleges and universities are a boon not only to our educational system, but also to our economy and to our foreign policy. But after September 11, an effort to increase our security—which is appropriate—we have been making it harder for international students to come to the United States. Earlier this year, the administration removed one important hurdle by extending the Visa Map program for foreign students and researchers who are studying advanced sciences.

The Presiding Officer, Senator Lugar, Senator COLEMAN, and I, and others have spent some time over the last year working on the immigration question on the question of foreign students coming to the United States. There were 570,000 foreign students who attended classes in the United States last year. Sixty percent of the postdoctoral students in the United States last year were foreign students. One-half of the students in our graduate programs in computer sciences and in engineering are foreign students. Many of these students are here working to help increase our standard of living. Many will return to their home countries after 4 years with a fresh perspective on our country and on what their own country could become.

When I visited the country of Georgia last March, which has become a pro-Western democracy, I was reminded that most of the top officials there had been students in the United States of America. They were doing things there we could have never encouraged them to do. They were doing them because they came here and learned what it meant to be an American and were using those principles in their own country of Georgia.

Many other foreign students will study here and, when they return home, they will invent new products or start new businesses, and that creates jobs here at home. So we need to welcome these students when they are legally here in the United States.

Finally, we also need to do more to welcome and support legal residents who are working to become American citizens. Each year we welcome about 1 million new permanent legal residents, many of whom go on to become citizens of the United States. To become American is a significant accomplishment. First, you must live in the United States for 5 years. Next, you must speak some English. Next, you must learn about our history and government. Next, you must be of good character. Next, you must swear an oath to renounce the old government from where you came and swear allegence to the United States of America and its Constitution. That is no small thing.

Between 500,000 and 1 million new citizens each year come in and complete that process and take that oath. Earlier this year, Senator SCHUMER and I introduced a bill to codify the oath of allegiance that new citizens swear to when they become citizens. It is hard to believe that while the Pledge of Allegiance, the National Anthem, and the American Flag are all prescribed by law, we have been allowing the oath of allegiance, a binding pledge for new citizens, to be determined merely by Federal regulators. We can do more to welcome these new citizens.

In the near future, in September, I hope to introduce legislation that perhaps could become part of a comprehensive immigration bill. This legislation would provide new incentives and support for legal immigrants to learn English, our common language, and to learn about our Nation’s history and government values. I hope that effort to welcome new legal immigants and to help them become a part of our American community will become a part of the Senate’s overall approach to immigration reform.

Our country is unique in the world. We are not defined by common ethnic background or origin. We and our ancestors came from every corner of the world to be a part of this country because it was founded on something much bigger, much grander than ethnic background or origin. We and our an-cessors wrote:

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with unalinetable rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.

This is what binds us together as Americans: a belief in our common values, values such as equal opportunity, the rule of law, and liberty. That is why we welcome immigrants who swear allegiance to our country and to those values as new citizens. That is why our Nation of immigrants has always succeeded and can succeed in the future.

If we are to continue to succeed, we must pass along these values that comprise our American identity—pass them on to posterity—both to our children and to those new citizens who come to our shores from distant lands.

In the coming months, this Senate will have a chance to reform our Nation’s immigration policy. The Cornyn-Kyl legislation is a tremendously important first step toward a comprehensive immigration bill. It is one who-principle. I look forward to working with its authors as it moves through the Senate. I hope as we write this comprehensive immigration legisation, though, we also remember to welcome foreign students who add so much to our economy and spread our values to the world, and that we remember to welcome legal immigrants who wish to join the American family and help them learn our common language, learn our values, and become American citizens.

I hope the legislation that I will offer in September can help us along that track.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. AT-IAKER). The Senator from Alabama is recognized.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. President, I join with Senator ALEXANDER in complimenting you and Senator Kyl for the legislation that you have just described for us. The Senator from Texas, as I know, has taken the lead on this very important and complex subject. I salute you for it.

Some would say it is a thankless task, it can’t be done, and will make nobody happy. But I believe you have the right principles. If the right principles are applied with the right prescriptive language, we can make great progress in this area, and I salute you for it.

Frequently have I quoted Senator ALEXANDER in the phrase he has used: No child should grow up in America who doesn’t know what it means to be an American.

I think that is good for immigrants, too, as the Senator just said so elo-quently. I salute him.

I also thank the Senator from Texas for considering a critical component of this legislation he has proposed, and that is the part that deals with State and local law enforcement. I have just written a Law Review article for Stanford University to deal with that area of the law. Sufice it to say, local law enforcement does have complete authority to detain people who are violating the criminal laws of the United States. But that has been confused. Clearing that up is a mechanism so that they can participate if they choose, would be helpful to enforcing the law. That is so because we have 700,000 State and local law enforcement officers at every street corner and town in America. We have only 2,000 INS immigration officers inside the border—not those on the Border Patrol and on the border, but those inside the border. So obviously we are not very serious about ultimately reaching a lawful system if we exclude them.

I thank the Senator from Texas.

Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. THUNE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

Mr. THUNE. Mr. President, last week I offered an amendment to suspend the 45-day congressional review of the president’s final BRAC recommendations pending completion of several vital studies pertaining to long-range security needs in the implementation of BRAC and redeployment of many units presently deployed in Iraq and Afghanistan back to bases in the United States.

I also introduced a similar amendment yesterday that would allow Congression discretion to remove individual bases from the closure list based upon the findings of the many of the studies and results of the redeployments.

There are two separate options, one of which I hope comes to this Senate for a vote. I underscore the assertions I made last week. The underlying purpose of the Base Realignment and Closure Commission, or BRAC, is not only good for our Armed Forces, it is good for American taxpayers. We all want to eliminate waste and reduce redundancy in the Government, but when Congress modified the BRAC law last year, the number of bases to be closed was reduced. As a consequence, we failed to envision this country involved in a protracted war involving stretched manpower resources and the burden of large overseas rotational deployments of troops and equipment. This is not the time to begin a new round of domestic base clos-sures and massive relocations of manpower and equipment.

I am aware, hearing that coming from a Member of Congress with a major base on the chopping block, that assertion may sound like another pitch to defend a home State parochial interest. Regardless of the outcome for my base, I am very concerned about how this BRAC round will affect our Nation’s overall military posture, not only in South Dakota but around the country and around the world. This

BRAC, in particular, has serious implications both in the short term, because we are engaged in a war, and in the long term because we need to preserve critical infrastructure as we enter a very uncertain future.

In essence, we cannot lose sight of the imperative of, in addition to saving money, perhaps the most critical goal of BRAC would be to maximize our Nation’s overall military capability. If we fail to follow that fundamental principle, the BRAC process will fail us and ultimately put this country at risk.

This BRAC, in particular, not only has serious implications, it raises serious questions, especially in terms of its timing. In the short term, our war in Iraq and Afghanistan has put great logistical strain on our Active military and Reserve Forces in terms of both manpower and resources. The rotational deployment of personnel and assets to overseas areas of operation has disrupted normal training and maintenance cycles and left military families with uncertainty.

The drain of resources also raised questions as to our ability to respond to additional flashpoints if a crisis should arise elsewhere in the world. Yes, the military is performing its ongoing missions remarkably well under the circumstances, but is this the time to add to those commitments by initiating a massive reshuffle of personnel, equipment, and missions between bases all over the country?

In the long term, these recommendations may pose an even more serious risk to our security. As the DOD itself points out in the National Defense Strategy, published earlier this year:

- Particularly troublesome is the nexus of transitional terrorists, proliferation and problem states that possess or seek WMD, increasing the risk of WMD attack against the United States.
- We simply do not know what dangers may emerge from military powers such as North Korea, China, Iran, or various rogue states in the next 20 years or more. The threat of terrorism directed against targets in this country should be indiscernible after September 11.
- There have been four prior BRAC rounds in the last 20 years. I believe it is readily apparent that the Pentagon's 2005 BRAC recommendations go beyond reducing excess infrastructure and would not reduce critical infrastructure needed to fight the wars of the 21st century.
- Prior rounds have been successful in pulling much of the low-hanging fruit and in reducing waste.
- This round begins to cut into the muscle. I want to show you a chart from 1958, for example. You see there was a large number of Air Force bases in the northern region of this country. Air Bases were dotted all across the northern tier of the United States: Up in the Northeast, North Central Plains, areas such as that—1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10—a dozen Air Force bases or more in the northern tier of this country.
- Today, take a look at how that has changed. One can plainly see how dramatically that number has been reduced and will be further reduced in the 2005 BRAC round.
- You see the previous chart from 1958. All those bases have been wiped out. There are three left in the northern tier of the country. This BRAC round would eliminate Ellsworth Air Force Base in South Dakota and make Grand Forks Air Force Base essentially a "warm" base, hopeful of an emerging mission but for all intents and purposes removes the principal mission that has been housed there for some time and leaves literally only one major Air Force base in the northern tier of this country.
- Of course, one of the flaws I see in this BRAC is not only the stripping of our air and naval bases in the northern tier, but I seriously question what I believe to be one of the Pentagon's most apparent errors in judgment; and that is to consolidate high-value assets in fewer locations.

- In light of the potential threats we face, I wonder whether we really want to discard a tenet of military doctrine that we have lived by for the past 60 years. It is called "strategic redundancy." Put simply, it is the doctrine of dispersing high-value assets at different locations to prevent their complete destruction in a single attack.
- If you look at the chart here, this is from the Air Force doctrine document, dated November 9, of 2004. It says:

  ... it is easier and more effective to destroy the enemy's aerial power by destroying his nests and eggs on the ground than to hunt his flying birds in the air.

- If you look at what the potential threats are we face going forward, and what it means to this Nation to have strategic redundancy, to have those assets dispersed in several locations around the country, and if you look at how that fits in with the Defense Department's own military strategy, you have to ask a question about some of the decisions that have been made in this particular BRAC round.

- Let's look at what it says right here. Again, this is the Department of Defense, in its 2005 National Defense Strategy, when it stated its goal of "developing greater flexibility to contend with uncertainty by emphasizing agility and by not overly concentrating military forces in a few locations."

- I want to put up another chart. It has to do with principles and imperatives. Even in the Pentagon's deliberative briefing materials that outline those "principles and imperatives" of this BRAC round, it stated that the Department needed secure installations optimally located, that support power projection, sustain the capability to mobilize and "that ensure strategic redundancy."

- Now, unfortunately, Secretary Rumsfeld's recent BRAC recommendations to consolidate some of the Nation's most valuable U.S. air and naval platforms at single installations would apparently abandon that basic tenet in favor of cost-cutting.

- Hopefully, we have not forgotten the shortsightedness we once had as a Nation before Pearl Harbor. Now, folks might dismiss such lapses as distant events from another time and another place that are not applicable to today's threats. See on this chart a scene from Pearl Harbor that took place 60-some years ago. Even in the DOD's Strategy for Homeland Defense and Civil Support, released a few weeks ago—and, incidentally, this is a partial completion of one of its conditions—it notes that "a significant element of mission assurance is continuity of operations—maintaining the ability to carry out DOD mission essential functions in the event of a national emergency or terrorist attack."

- It also goes on to state that "an attack on DOD facilities could directly affect the Department's ability to recover over operations. A disposed position of a runway back in 1991 could destroy the entire fleet of this Nation's B-1 bombers during an emergency, if they are all stationed at one location. It should always come down on an intuitive logic possessed by most Americans, and that is that we simply cannot allow analytical cost models to trump sound and proven security precautions.

- Strategic redundancy, obviously, still has a place in our planning, as demonstrated in the Pentagon's own planning documents. Why was it not reflected in its BRAC recommendations?

- Additionally, the risk of natural disasters is a constant reminder that we should not put all our assets in a single location. This chart shows a tornado that passed within 1,000 feet of the F-16s and B-1s bombers stationed at McChord Air Force Base back in 1991. Tornadoes have wreaked havoc on Air Force bases in the past. The one I am going to show you in a moment is Carswell Air Force Base in Texas. We simply cannot afford to risk our Nation's security on the whims of a single deadly tornado that could destroy or damage an entire fleet of aircraft.

- Finally, the GAO has also questioned the potential for cost savings estimated by the DOD, calling into question whether we can afford to reduce critical infrastructure for questionable cost savings. Want to read to you what it says from the GAO study:

  There are clear limitations associated with DOD's projection of nearly $50 billion in savings over a 20-year period. Much of the projected net annual recurring savings (47 percent) is associated with eliminating jobs currently held by military civilians; however, rather than reducing end-strength levels, DOD indicates the positions are expected to be reassigned to other areas.

- As this implies, much of these cost savings are apparently illusory. To quote the distinguished chairman of the Armed Services Committee, Senator WARNER, during his testimony before the BRAC Commission, he said:

  Since 32 percent of BRAC savings come from personnel reductions. . . . One well into question the entire savings estimate—particularly since we are not reducing any meaningful force structure.

- Want to show another GAO chart. The GAO questioned one, the lengthy payback periods; inconsistencies in how DOD estimated costs for BRAC actions involving military construction projects; and uncertainties in estimating the total costs to the Government to implement.

- GAO estimates upfront costs of an estimated $24 billion to implement this round of BRAC. To again quote the distinguished chairman of the Armed Services Committee before the BRAC Commission, he said this:

  My observations are consistent with the testimony of witnesses and Congressional delegations around the country to date who have presented the Commission firm evidence supporting similar observations of questionable data and an internal collapse of the overall analytical foundation in lieu of other guidance provided by senior defense officials. These observations are also consistent with issues raised by the Government Accountability Office in its report to the Commission and to Congress.

Last week, when I was offering my amendment, the distinguished chairman, Senator Warner, made what I believe to be an express statement that by suspending the 45-day review period until these conditions are met would cause anxiety among some communities by not knowing their ultimate fate or delaying the process of redeveloping the base to civilian use.

Now, this may be the case for some communities, but I believe most communities desperately want to retain their bases because they are the lifeblood of their local economy. They would rather have the risk of being closed instead of closed, so I worked to amend the bill to have these bases remain open. If anything, knowing that this Congress has done all it could to have all the answers before making such a decision, I think is tremendously important to these communities.

I also challenge the perception made by many that these communities will have many opportunities to develop these closed bases and quickly restore their economy. This will probably not be the case in rural areas around bases like Ellsworth Air Force Base and Cannon Air Force Base.

Some communities may actually prosper from a base closing, where land for business or home development comes at a high premium and sells for thousands of dollars per square foot. Bases like Oceana, in Virginia, will have no difficulty putting the land to profitable use.

As you can see in this picture, Oceana is surrounded by a sea of development and prosperity. The base is up here. The entire area around it is completely developed. The land is worth lots of money.

But other bases, like Ellsworth, in my State, as you can see in this aerial photograph, are surrounded by miles and miles and miles of empty range land and have scant hopes of a booming development taking hold of the former base. There is little doubt that the nearby community of Rapid City would have been better off with the delay if it means ensuring the right decision has truly been made.

There are too many unanswered questions regarding our Nation’s long-term security needs and the circumstances in which our military may have to operate in the future to make irreversible decisions for which we could pay a terrible price later. We will not be able to easily replace or position these installations and units once this BRAC is fully implemented and we discover we have made a colossal mistake.

Let’s take a breath and slow down. My two amendments, offered as options, merely allow this Nation to have the full benefit of all the information we need before moving ahead to implement BRAC. The risk is too great.

Mr. President, I yield back the remainder of my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Utah.

Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, if you could tell me the parliamentary state of affairs.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senate is post cloture on the motion to proceed to S. 397.

Mr. HATCH. Thank you, Mr. President. I rise in strong support of S. 397, the gun liability bill.

Now, this legislation is a necessary response to the growing problem of junk lawsuits filed, no doubt, in part with the intention of driving the firearms industry out of business.

These ill-advised suits attempt to hold manufacturers and dealers liable for the criminal acts of third parties, actions totally beyond the control of the manufacturer. These types of lawsuits continue to be filed in multiple States, seeking a vast array of remedies concerning the marketing of guns and alleged design flaws. And they continue to be flawed.

The White House, in its Statement of Administration Policy, summarized the current problem well. This is what they said:

The possibility of imposing liability on an entire industry for harm that is solely caused by others is an abuse of the legal system, erodes public confidence in our Nation’s laws, threatens the dimension of a basic constitutional right and civil liberty, sets a poor precedent for other lawful industries, will cause a loss of jobs, and burdens interstate and foreign commerce.

That is a heck of a good statement because that is exactly what will happen if we allow these types of suits to continue.

This bill does nothing more than prohibit—with five exceptions—lawsuits against manufacturers or sellers of guns and ammunition for damages resulting from the criminal or unlawful misuse of nondefective guns and ammunition. That is a heck of a good statement because that is exactly what will happen if we allow these types of suits to continue. This bill does nothing more than prohibit—with five exceptions—lawsuits against manufacturers or sellers of guns and ammunition for damages resulting from the criminal or unlawful misuse of nondefective guns and ammunition.

Now, let me repeat that: “resulting from the criminal or unlawful misuse” of nondefective guns and ammunition.

This bill is not a license for the gun industry to act irresponsibly. If a manufacturer or seller does not operate entirely within Federal or State law, it is not entitled to the protection of this legislation.

Listen to a few comments from one judge who dismissed some of these suits. In Ohio, a judge dismissed a gun liability lawsuit, and the court of appeals affirmed this decision saying:

You would allow a change in the Constitution by some to put gun controls on all kinds of guns, even though the second amendment gives us the freedom to keep and carry arms. To be honest with you, it is an explicit provision of the Constitution. We should not allow any misuse of guns, but we should not allow a change in the Constitution by mere statute that takes away our right to keep and bear arms.

Now, there is no reason the gunmakers should have to continue to defend these types of meritless lawsuits. We must protect against the potential harm to interstate commerce here. The gun industry has already had to bear over $200 million in defense costs thus far. That is ridiculous. It is immoral. It is wrong.

This legislation is not without precedent. In the 106th Congress, legislation was introduced to address the possibility of junk lawsuits related to the Y2K computer problems. This bill sought to “lessen the burdens on interstate commerce by discouraging insubstantial lawsuits.” It sought to do so by preempting State law to provide a uniform standard for such suits. This bill merely seeks the same type of remedy using the same reasoning.

In the past, some have thrown out red herrings arguing against this bill and suggesting that negligent entrustment will be immunized. This is pure bunk. It is untrue. That argument doesn’t deserve to see the light of day. Those who make it ought to be ashamed of themselves. The bill protects everyone who supplies a gun to someone they reasonably should have known was likely to use that gun in a way that would injure another person.

Let me state that again. The bill protects an explicit exception for anyone who supplies a gun to someone they reasonably should have known was likely to use the gun in a way that would injure another person. The bottom line is that this is a reasonable way to prevent greed on the part of our civil justice system. We have had far too many abuses of that system. This is a chance for Members of this body to stand up and do something about it.

If we allow these kinds of suits to go forward with guns, then what is next? Holding manufacturers of knives responsible for stabbings? Holding manufacturers of baseball bats liable for beatings? We simply should not force a lawful manufacturer or seller to be responsible for criminal and unlawful misuse of its products by others.

Individuals who misuse lawful products should be held responsible, but not those who make lawful products.

We have had through the years a desire by some to put gun controls on all kinds of guns, even though the second amendment gives us the freedom to keep and carry arms. To be honest with you, it is an explicit provision of the Constitution. We should not allow any misuse of guns, but we should not allow a change in the Constitution by mere statute that takes away our right to keep and bear arms. That is a Godgiven right, in my book, especially in some of the areas of the country where we have to defend ourselves in tremendous ways throughout the whole history of the West.

To make a long story short, we should not be abusing honest, decent, law-abiding people who want to collect, shoot, target practice, hunt, and own guns. We have been through it before.
It is time to stand up and realize that the people who misuse guns are criminals. Those criminals should be prosecuted. But to make gun manufacturers responsible for the irresponsible acts of others, over which the gun manufacturers had no control, is just plain wrong and unreasonable.

I hope we can pass this bill. It would set a good standard to stop the frivolous and abusive lawsuits that are occurring in this country in so many ways, but especially in this particular way.

I yield the floor and suggest the absence of a quorum.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, I ask to be recognized to speak on the pending business.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is recognized.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, it is amazing how we have reached this point in Senate business today. We started this day debating the Department of Defense authorization bill. It is hard to imagine a more important bill for this Senate to consider and conclude this week. We are going to be gone for 4 or 5 weeks. The idea was, we would take the important amendments and decisions to be made about our military, our men and women in uniform, their benefits, their equipment, and make the decision this week before we went home. Then a decision was made by the Republican leadership to interrupt the debate on the Department of Defense authorization bill and move to the pending bill.

What is this bill? It is a bill that is characterized as “the gun industry immunity bill.” What does it mean? It means that those who are pushing for this bill want to carve out one industry in America and say that the people who run the businesses that make the firearms and sell the firearms cannot be held personally responsible for the wrongdoing. That’s right. If you and I get in an automobile going home from work, are negligent in our driving the car itself, and there is an accident, we are held personally responsible. If the business down the street from where you live sells a product that is defective or dangerous, the person who owns the business, the person who made the product cannot be held personally responsible. It is really part of life that we are responsible for our wrongdoing.

The legal system of America says even people who are powerless have their day in court to hold accountable the business and people who make the product, who are responsible for wrongdoing.

Now comes to the floor the proposal by the Republican leadership that we take one industry in America and say that it cannot be held personally responsible for its wrongdoing. Why in the world would we be doing this? How powerful must the group be that pushes through the legislation that says they will be treated as an exception in the whole American body of law? You know who it is. It is the gun lobby, the National Rifle Association. They are so powerful that they pushed the Senate away from the Department of Defense authorization bill in the middle of a war. Think about that. Could you move the Senate from considering a bill to help the men and women in uniform in the middle of a war? The only way you can do it is if you are a powerful lobby that snaps and Senators jump. That is what this is all about.

Before we adjourn at the end of the week, the Republican leadership wants to make certain that if we can’t keep our word to our troops in the field, we keep our word to the lobbyists downtown for the gun lobby. We carve out a piece of American law and say they cannot be held personally responsible. Their businesses can’t be held responsible for wrongdoing.

Is it because there is some huge problem in the gun industry? Are there companies that are about to go bankrupt because of all the lawsuits that are being filed against them? Not at all. Listen to this. On June 29, 2005, the huge American gunmaker Smith & Wesson said in a press release: We expect net product sales for fiscal year 2005 to be $371 million, a 5 percent increase over the $351.3 million reported for the last fiscal year. Firearms sales for the next fiscal year are expected to increase by approximately 11 percent over the last year.

Then March of 2005, Smith & Wesson also said: In the nine months ended January 31, 2005, we incurred $4.535 in legal defense costs, net of amounts received from insurance carriers relative to product liability and municipal litigation.

Four thousand five hundred thirty-five dollars. Does that sound like a crisis in the gun industry that would cause us to move away from considering the Department of Defense authorization bill?

Listen to this from another gunmaker. This is a filing with the Securities and Exchange Commission, March 11, 2005, from the gunmaker Sturm, Ruger: It is not probable and is unlikely that litigation, including punitive damage claims, will have a material adverse effect on the financial position of the company.

These companies are doing very well. They are making a lot of money. They are selling a lot of guns. They aren’t being sued. It isn’t costing them a heck of a lot of money when they are sued. Why are we doing it? Why would we give this unprecedented sweeping immunity to any industry in America, let alone an industry that makes firearms? This bill closes the courthouse doors to victims with legitimate lawsuits. It says: If you are a victim of a gun dealer or a gun manufacturer who sold a gun in commerce, where they might have known or should have known that it was going to be used for bad purposes, you can’t go to the courthouse. The door is closed. Sorry. That is the way it is. You are going to be treated like royalty. They are above the law.

During the debate on this bill during the last Congress, the supporters said a lot of cases about victims of frivolous. We were told all these companies were on the verge of bankruptcy. None of that turned out to be true. Two high-profile cases settled. These settlements would not have occurred had this bill been enacted last year. One of them, Bull’s Eye Shooter Supply, was the dealer and Bushmaster was the assault weapon maker in the DC sniper case. I remember that case. These crazy snipers ran around town, killing people willy-nilly, innocent victims. We were told all over that the gun lobby, the National Rifle Association. They are so powerful that they were going to be used for bad purposes, and the Senate instead of working to help the men and women in uniform who are engaged in a war across the ocean, rich their lives, going to be treated like royalty. They are above the law.

Is that justice, fairness, or is that what we should be doing on the floor of the Senate instead of working to help the men and women in uniform who are fighting our war in Iraq, the lives of the men and women in uniform who are fighting our war across the ocean.

Listen to this case. Will’s Jewelry and Loan, a West Virginia pawn shop, settled with Police Officers McGuire and Lemongello in June 2004 for $1 million and agreed to change its practices to prevent sales to underground traffickers, which includes instituting a policy of avoiding large-volume sales. Will’s had sold the gun used to shoot the two police officers to a straw purchaser. It was not only the innocent victims filing who were shot in DC who would be stopped from suiting. This bill will stop policemen and their families from suing those who were selling guns, putting them into commerce and endangering the lives of the men and women in uniform who get up every morning and try to protect us in our communities.

Not surprisingly, law enforcement officials in our Nation oppose this bill, such as the International Brotherhood of Police Officers and the Major Cities Chiefs Association, as well as police officers from around the country have signed a letter begging Congress: Don’t pass this bill. It will make America more dangerous. It will endanger the lives of policemen.

Newspapers in 19 different States have editorialized against this bill. What is troubling to me is that we could have used the money to help protect America by helping our men and women in uniform to a bill that makes America less safe, a bill that allows companies to make guns, which are junk, Saturday-night specials, designed to be used in a holdup or a killing by some crazed drug addict. We can protect those companies, but we cannot protect our men and women in uniform, whether they are serving in our military or serving as our policemen. What a dramatic distortion of priorities.

The Senate should be embarrassed that we have done this. This is a week that the Republican leadership will never be able to explain—that they would allow that bill in the midst of a war in order to do this grand favor for the gun lobby, the National Rifle Association. It is not fair. It is not fair that all we do around here is carve out special treatment and special exceptions for a group of people who, frankly, don’t need them. We started off with the bankruptcy bill so credit card companies could make sure that those who end up in bankruptcy carry the credit card debt to the grave. We passed the class action bill so individuals filing environmental actions would have a difficult time going to court. We have a bill waiting in the wings that says to 10,000 asbestos victims a year, you victims who never dreamed you would be dying from exposure to asbestos are going to be limited when you go to court too. There are bills pending dealing with the victims of medical malpractice.

And now comes this bill—the absolute icing on the cake—that we would give to the gun lobby the power to immunize themselves from their own wrongdoing, that when they make guns that end up killing people, that should not have been made, without the appropriate warnings, the appropriate safety devices, when they sell guns by the carload to people who were clearly destined to sell them on the street, to be used by drug gangs, they cannot be held accountable.

There is no personal responsibility under this law. That is not American. That is not the system of justice is all about. It certainly doesn’t speak to the fairness that we believe is essential to the American system of justice. When you think of all the things we could be doing, instead of finding another special interest group to give their lobbyists such good news that we passed their big bill—we could be passing a bill that says we are going to stop giving tax credit to companies that run jobs overseas. We could have done that this week. No, we didn’t have time. We had to deal with the NRA. They could have been changing the Medicare drug prescription bill so they would be able to bargain for lower prices for seniors. No, that is not on the priority list of the Republican leadership. We could have been making certain that we don’t privatize Social Security, and instead make it last. That is not a high priority for the Republican leadership. The gun lobby is the biggest priority. The energy availability, it could have been dealing with portability of health insurance and the availability of health insurance for small businesses. No, we have to deal with helping the NRA. We could have been helping people with college loans, figuring out new ways that families can finance the education of their children. Sorry, if you don’t have a big lobby with a lot of power such as the gun lobby, we cannot do that. We could have been talking about the outsourcing of medical and financial records, destroying the privacy of individuals and families. No way. We could have talked about credit card companies, giving more disclosures on credit cards such as when they increase your interest rate. No, we don’t have the time. We have to protect the gun makers and gun sellers from being held personally responsible in court. We could have increased our energy availability, it could have been part of our energy bill. You can hardly find it.

The list goes on. When you talk about the values of the Republican leadership in the Senate, you know the values today. To think that the Republican leadership would move away from the Department of Defense bill for our troops to a special interest bill for the gun lobby, so that they are not held accountable for selling Saturday-night specials that kill policemen and innocent people. That is the priority of the Republican leadership, not the priority of the American people.

I look forward to voting against this bill. I hope a majority of my colleagues will join me in that effort.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Alabama is recognized.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. President, a majority of the Senate is going to vote for this bill. We have 61 cosponsors. It ought to have already been passed many, many long time ago. We will be pleased to get this bill done. It is something that is needed.

Mr. President, there will be more opportunity tomorrow. What happened today is not a vote on the Defense bill so we can complete the Defense bill, and that was not passed by the votes on the other side. So when cloture was not invoked, we went to this bill, which has strong bipartisan support and which will be passed. And there were others. We all lived in fear of a filibuster of the bill and we will have cloture, which I believe will be invoked. Certainly the votes appear to be there for it. I think we will get this bill done. There are other things we need to do this week that can still be done.

Mr. President, does Senator REED have any comments?

Mr. REED. Yes. Mr. President, we have had a long discussion today about the legislation. In this series of the points the Senator from Illinois made are very pertinent.

First, there is the erroneous presumption that people who would be sued would be sued because of the actions of others, when in fact the negligent suits lie in showing that first an individual had a duty to someone else—a victim—and that duty was not fulfilled. Essentially, that is the essence of negligence. If you cannot show that, you cannot get into court. This is not about somebody being punished or imposed upon for the actions of others. It goes right to the actions of the individuals—the seller, manufacturer or, in this case, trade associations.

There is a perception, a perception that is a perception, that is a perception that I think, that has been given that the legislation as drafted actually provides exceptions that will cover the meritorious suits, the ones that should be before the court and eliminate the frivolous suits. But that is not the case. As Senator DURBIN pointed out in the situation respect to the Washington, DC snipers, there a gun dealer in Washington State was grossly negligent. He had 230 unaccounted for weapons and they should have been accounted for. He allowed a teenage boy to walk in and pick up a sniper rifle off the counter and walk out and didn’t know it was missing until it was discovered to be the weapon of the assassins here in Washington, DC. That suit would have been barred by this act before it had passed. The two police officers—Lemongello and his partner—responded to a call and they were in a shootout. They were seriously hurt, both of them. It turns out that the criminal that fired that gun got it from a gun trafficker who walked into a store, a gun dealership, with another woman as a straw purchaser and acquired 12 weapons for cash and walked out the door. In fact, they were so obvious that the dealer called the police. He couldn’t find them and they found them, which is negligent to me. Both cases were settled. Those cases would be thrown out.

The lives of all of the families in Washington, DC, have already been totally changed because of the loss of their loved ones. Conrad Johnson was a bus driver, waiting to go on his bus run, and he was shot, leaving a wife and children. They would have been out of luck because they could not have been there for it. And there were others. We all lived in fear of ourselves. We drove around here looking over our shoulders wondering whether the assassins were out here in Washington, DC. One woman who was an employee of the FBI and was walking in the parking lot of Home Depot in suburban Virginia was shot. Those families, those victims, could not have come to the court of justice if this bill passed.

There are other suits that are pending today. There is a case in Massachusetts, where a young man, Danny Guzman, an innocent bystander, was shot, killed in front of a nightclub in Worcester. Six days later, police recovered a 9 mm Kahr Arms handgun without a serial number behind an apartment building, near where Mr. Guzman was shot. In fact, I am told a 4-year-old child discovered the weapon first. Ballistic tests determined that the gun was the one used to kill Danny Guzman.

This gun was one of about 50 guns that disappeared from Kahr Arms' manufacturing plant. Some of the guns were removed from the plant by employees that Kahr Arms hired despite criminal records and histories of drug addiction. The case is being pursued now. The issue is not what Mr. Guzman did. It is what this company failed to do. They failed to have background checks on employees who handled weapons. They failed to have security devices that would monitor if these weapons would be taken out of Kahr Arms. I am told, interestingly enough, Kahr Arms is owned by a holding company for the benefit of the Reverend Sun Myung Moon's Unification Church. So one of the beneficiaries of this bill, if it passes, will be Reverend Moon's financial enterprises because they will be protected from allegations of recklessness, not just negligence.

Now, the first exception to the bill is title 18 United States Code section 924(h). This simply permits cases against sellers who sell guns they know will be used to commit a violent or drug trafficking crime. First, in the Kahr case, the guns were not sold; they were taken surreptitiously out of the factory. This exception would not apply.

Second, you have to show they knew that the guns would be used to commit a violent or drug trafficking crime—not that they were negligent in allowing guns in circulation, but that they had to know they would be used in a violent or drug trafficking crime.

The next exception is negligent entrustment. This applies where a gun dealer knows, or should know, that a purchaser will shoot someone with the gun, and that individual shoots a person. An exception only applies to a gun "seller." Once again, Kahr Arms was not, in this situation, a seller. Moreover, Kahr Arms did not entrust its guns to its employees. Rather, Kahr's employees removed the guns from the plant because of Kahr's negligence. I have written about this, and hiring of employees with histories of criminal conduct and drug addiction. So that exception doesn't apply.

There is another exception, negligence per se. Under this provision, gun sellers whose negligence causes injury could not be liable unless, at a minimum, they also violated a law or regulation which the court found an "appropriate basis" for a negligence per se. The exception only applies to a gun seller, and the bill defines sellers to include only importers or dealers, not manufacturers.

Moreover, in many States—and Massachusetts—negligence per se claims are not allowed under their practice and, therefore, the exception would not apply.

Knowing violation of the law exception: This exception applies where a gun seller or manufacturer knowingly violates a State or Federal statute when it makes a sale that leads to an injury. Here, Kahr Arms did not violate statutes related to the sale or manufacturing of a gun. Rather, Kahr's employees surreptitiously took the guns out.

Breach of contract or warranty exceptions once again do not apply. It merely allows gun purchasers to sue if the seller or manufacturer did not provide the product or service it promised. This applies to a gun seller in its sales contract. This exception clearly does not apply.

Defective design is a narrow exception for actions for some defective design or manufacturing cases. But that exception is not available in this case.

Rather than being legislation that allows the good suits through and the frivolous ones out, this legislation effectively denies people, such as the family of Danny Guzman, their day in court, and many others. It would have denied the two police officers from New Jersey their day in court. It would have denied the victims of the snipers their day in court.

For these reasons and many others, I am opposed to the legislation and join others who are and look forward to continuing our discussions in the hours and days ahead.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. President, I thank my able colleague and will say, it is such a state we are in America that a company whose employees steal the guns and go out and shoot somebody with them gets sued for it. That is a fact of what my friend is saying, that these companies ought to be sued for the result of the theft of a gun by their employees.

If the law required them to do a background check and they failed to do so, they clearly would be liable under this act. The fact of filing of a serial number is, in fact, a criminal offense for which we have prosecuted quite a number of criminals. In addition, it would trigger, of course, a civil liability.

Gosh, we can talk about it a lot, and I will be glad to continue to discuss it, but the basic fact is a lot of these lawsuits are claiming that if they know, if manufacturers or distributors or sellers either know or should know that some guns will be used illegally, they should be responsible for it. That is not good law. This is against what we are about in this country.

All this legislation does is say if you sell the firearm according to law, if you manufacture it according to law and somebody commits a intervening criminal act with it and shoots somebody, you should not be sued. But we have this anti-gun crowd which doesn't care about general principles of law that have stood us in good stead for hundreds of years. They have learned to manipulate the matter as effectively as they can to maintain lawsuits. The letter from Beretta I read earlier indicates that in the District of Columbia, the gun manufacturers who sold a gun in Minnesota and it was transported some way to Washington, DC, and was used in a crime and somebody was shot, the gun manufacturer is liable for that. And, in fact, that one jurisdiction that allows that kind of lawsuit can be tough enough to take down every gun manufacturing company in the United States. They have had some tough years and a lot of litigation going on.

Mr. President, I have spoken again, and unless my colleague would like to reply, we will close. It has been a good debate, and I have enjoyed it.

MORNING BUSINESS

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. President, on behalf of the leader, I ask unanimous consent that there now be a period for the transaction of morning business, with Senators permitted to speak for up to 10 minutes each.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

TRIBUTE TO MAJOR GENERAL JOHN W. HOLLY

Mr. STEVENS. Mr. President, I come to the floor today to recognize the service of an outstanding leader and public servant. After more than 32 years in uniform, MG John W. Holly will soon retire and move into private life.

Four years ago, Major General Holly was appointed Program Director of the Joint Program Office of Ground-Based Midcourse Defense. For the past year he has also served as the Deputy Director of the Missile Defense Agency, overseeing the direction of all other ballistic missile defense programs in the agency.

The Ground-Based Midcourse Defense System is not your run-of-the-mill weapons program. It is virtually global in scope, spanning 12 time zones, from the United Kingdom to the outer reaches of the Aleutian Islands. It has required upgrades to early warning radars from the Cold War era and the development of the most advanced sea-going X-band radar ever built; this hundreds by hundreds of vehicles linked with communication centers throughout the United States and firing sites in Alasaka and California. This effort has also involved the development, testing, and deployment of an interceptor-and-kill vehicle that closes in on its target at speeds of up to 18,000 miles an hour and hits within centimeters of its aim point.

Many of the major systems involved in this effort and many of their component parts were built under different contracts, often by different manufacturers, at different times, and with different technologies. The entire system is being developed and acquired by non-traditional methods, which ensure we deploy effective defensive capabilities to our troops as fast as possible. And, of course, all of these pieces must work together as one, flawlessly, every time and on very short notice.

Since the 1980s, Americans have dreamed of having this type of capability, and in the past 3 years we have made remarkable progress. None of this would have been possible if President Bush had not withdrawn the United States from the Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty in June 2002. And much of our success can be attributed to the dedication and leadership of Major General Holly.

Major General Holly was ideally prepared for his responsibilities at the Missile Defense Agency. His experiences at the platoon through corps levels gave him an understanding of what it means to support our men and women in uniform. His management experience in research, development, and acquisition—especially in rocket propulsion and guidance—honed his ability to integrate complex systems and move all of the essential parts through development at the same time.

In short, Major General Holly was the right man, in the right place, at the right time for our missile defense needs. Americans are deeply indebted to him for answering the call to serve.

Let me close by saying that the Senate continues to follow events in Ethiopia. I ask that a copy of the op-ed be printed in the Record following my remarks.

(From the Taipei Times, July 22, 2005) Ethiopia Is Struggling For Democracy

When we in Ethiopia's political opposition agreed to participate in the election that the government called in June, we were under no illusions that that agreement would be faultless. After all, Ethiopia has never known democracy. The dictatorship of Mengistu Haile Mariam was Africa's most blood-curdling one-party state. We embarked today regarding the ruling EPRDF, whose “Revolutionary Democracy” is but a more subtle variation on the same theme.

So we knew that there would be problems with the election, that voting would not be clean in the way Western countries take for granted. Yet we believed that the opposition, led by the Coalition for Unity and Democracy (CUD), would have room to maneuver and campaign, owing to the government's partial international legitimacy. So we decided to test the waters and push for a real political opening and a genuinely competitive vote. Many Ethiopians appear to have agreed with this strategy.

The government did make some media available and engaged in more than 10 live televised debates. So, at least at first, there seemed to have been some intention on the government's part to open up the process—if not completely, then somewhat.

Now, however, it appears that the authorities wanted only a small, managed opening, on the assumption that they could control the outcome.

About a month before the election, the government began to shut down the political space it had opened. Its election campaign took on a vilifying tone, charging that the opposition was bent on destroying ethnic groups through genocide. Indeed, it called the opposition “interahamwe,” invoking the memory of the Hutu militia that slaughtered 800,000 Rwandan Tutsis in 1994. The government also began to harass opposition parties, especially in rural areas.

This was unpleasant but tolerable. So we continued campaigning. But things became nastier a week before the vote. Attendance at an official pro-government rally in the capital of Addis Ababa was dwarfed by a rival rally the following day, when millions of demonstrators peacefully demanded change were shot to death. At that point, the government realized that its democratic opening was slipping out of its control.

Two days before the vote, our poll watchers and supporters were searched, arrested, and given one-day trials, with most sentenced to one or two months in jail. We feared that the election would take place without the presence of our poll watchers. So we gathered a press conference—all the opposition parties together—the day before the vote, demanding the government release our party workers and allow people to vote freely.

Although the government met neither of these demands, the early results clearly showed that the opposition was gaining a large number of seats. It became obvious that we were winning a majority in constituencies and that we had won in Addis Ababa, as well as in most of the major cities and the rural areas.

What was surprising was the magnitude of the victory. In Addis Ababa, top government officials, including the ministers of education and capacity building, lost, as did all of the House of Representatives. In rural constituencies, opposition candidates defeated such EPRDF heavyweight as the ministers of defense, information, and infrastructure, along with the presidents of the two largest regions, Oromia and Amhara.

The government wasted little time in responding: the next day, it declared itself the winner, with not even half of the constituencies reporting their results.

No surprise, then, that the public erupted in anger. When university students protested, the police moved in, killing one. In demonstrations the following day, 36 more people were killed. Soon after, our office workers were detained, and Hallu Shavel, Chairman of the CUD, and senior CUD officials Lidetu Ayalew were put under house arrest. One hundred staff members were taken from our head office and held for several weeks in solitary confinement, and many more from regional offices. Up to 6,000 people were jailed—CUD members and even ordinary citizens.

My fear is that the will of Ethiopia's people will be stifled by government hard-liners. Doubts about the authenticity of the final results will create a danger of instability. Everyone—the government, the opposition, and the public—must commit themselves to a peaceful resolution.

To restore calm before a recount can be held, confidence-building measures are needed. The military must be taken off the streets. The ban on public demonstrations must be lifted. Those in jail must be released or given a fair trial. Those held simply because they do not support the government must be freed and allowed to participate in the democratic process. The government-controlled media must be open to diverse opinions; in particular, opposition access must be guaranteed.

Equally important, the international community must send observers—and thus a clear signal to the government that any attempt to maintain power by force or intimidation is unacceptable. The world must keep watching, just as it watched in Georgia, Ukraine, Lebanon, and Palestine.

For the first time in our ancient history, we Ethiopians have voted our conscience. Our people have played their part with courage and discipline. They deserve the opportunity to build a genuine democratic political system. That is their only guarantee to live in peace and to achieve prosperity.
This deferral serves as evidence that the illegitimate military junta does indeed respond to international pressure, particularly from its neighbors. In the wake of this news, I renew my calls for countries in the region to pressure the junta to immediately and unconditionally release Aung San Suu Kyi and all prisoners of conscience in Burma and to continue their calls for political reform in that country; the United Nations Security Council to discuss and debate the threat the junta poses to its own people and the entire region; and the community of democracies to continue to keep freedom in Burma a top priority.

The assertion by the SPDC that the deferral will allow the generals to focus on the “democratization process” in Burma is as hollow as it is false.

The international community—especially the United States and the United Kingdom—must be clear that the junta will be judged not by what it says but by what it does. So long as Suu Kyi and other innocent Burmese remain imprisoned and without a voice in the political deliberations in Burma, there simply can be no credible democratization process in Rangoon.

(Vote Explanation)

ADA’S 15TH ANNIVERSARY

Mr. ROCKEFELLER. Mr. President, I was not able to make the roll call vote on the ADA’s 15th anniversary. That being the case, I would like to support the resolution from Senator KENNEDY, the ADA’s 15th anniversary resolution, and the anniversary of the Americans with Disabilities Act.

In 1970, we held a debate on what was then a new term for many of us: disability. Senator MILLIKEN had a question about the definition of disability. Senator MILLIKEN, the distinguished Senator from Michigan, said, “The definition of ‘disability’ is so vague as to be impossible to enforce.” And he was right. The definition of disability was impossible to enforce, and it was used to exclude more people than it included.

The 1970s convinced us that greater opportunities for fuller participation in public life and culture. Over the years, I am proud of the progress our country has made in including people with disabilities in public places and events. This sweeping legislation is perhaps one of the most significant pieces of legislation since the 1964 Civil Rights Act. Under this bold law, people with disabilities were ensured nondiscrimination in employment and public accommodations, including transportation and telecommunications. Implementation has not been easy, and it is still ongoing. While meaningful progress has been made, there is still a great deal of work to do to achieve the bold goal of the Americans with Disability Act.

We must continue to push hard to end discrimination and fully embrace inclusion, but today we should also celebrate the strides made since 1990 on behalf of people with disabilities.

15TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE AMERICANS WITH DISABILITIES ACT

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, today we celebrate the enactment of the Americans with Disabilities Act in 1990—one of the greatest civil rights laws in our history. Fifteen years ago, the Nation adopted the fundamental principle that people should be measured by what they can do, not what they can’t. The Americans with Disabilities Act began a new era of opportunity for millions of disabled citizens who had been denied full and fair participation in society.

For generations, people with disabilities were pitted as people who needed charity, not opportunity. Out of ignorance, the prejudice of his times and hid his disabilities Act in 1990. In 1992, the United States elected a disabled person to the highest office in the land. He became one of the greatest Presidents in our history. And even Franklin Roosevelt felt compelled by the prejudice of his times and hid his disability as much as possible. The World War II generation began to change all that.

The 1940s and the 1950s introduced the Nation to a new class of Americans with disabilities—wounded and disabled veterans returning from war to an inaccessible society. Even the war ended, rehabilitation medicine had been born. Disability advocacy organizations began to rise. Disability benefits were added to Social Security. Each decade since then has brought significant new progress and more change.

In the 1960s, Congress responded with new architectural standards, so we could have a society everyone could be a part of. No one would have to wait outside a new building because they were disabled.

The 1970s convinced us that greater opportunities for fuller participation in society were possible for the disabled. Congress responded with a range of steps to improve the lives of people with disabilities. It was the right thing to do to support the right of children with disabilities to attend public schools, to guarantee the right of people with disabilities to vote in elections, and to insist on greater access to cultural and recreational programs in their communities.

The 1980s brought a new realization, however, that when we talk about helping people with disabilities, we can’t just rely on government programs. We need to involve private industry as well. Congress guaranteed fair housing opportunities for people with disabilities, required fair access to air travel, and made telecommunications accessible and available for people hard of hearing or deaf.

The crowning achievement in these decades of progress was passage of the Americans with Disabilities Act in 1990 and its promise of a new and better life for every disabled citizen, in which their disabilities would no longer put an end to their dreams.

As one eloquent citizen with a disability has said, “I do not wish to be a kept citizen, humbled and dulled by having the State look after me. I want to take the calculated risk, to dream and to build, to fail and to succeed. I want to enjoy the benefits of my creations and face the world boldly, and say, this is what I have done.”

Our families, our friends, and our neighbors have taught us in ways no books can teach. The inclusion of people with disabilities enriches all our lives. My son Teddy continues to teach me every day the greatest lesson of all that disabled does not mean unable.

Today in this country we see the signs of the progress that mean so much in our ongoing efforts to include persons with disabilities in every aspect of life—the ramps beside the steps, the sidewalks with curb-cuts to accommodate wheelchairs, the lifts for helping disabled people to take buses to work or the store or to a movie.

Disabled students are no longer barred from schools and denied an education. They are learning and achieving at levels once thought impossible. They are graduating from high schools, enrolling in universities, joining the workforce, achieving their goals, enriching their communities and their country.

They have greater access than ever to the rehabilitation and training they need to be successfully employed and become productive, contributing members of their communities.

With the Ticket to Work and Work Incentives Improvement Act, we finally linked civil rights closely to health care. It isn’t civil and it isn’t right to send a disabled person to work without the health care they need and deserve.

These milestones show us that we are well on the way to fulfilling the promise of a new, better, and more inclusive life for citizens with disabilities—but we still have a way to go. Today, as we rightly look back with pride, we also need to look ahead.

We still face many challenges, especially in areas such as health care and in home-based and community-based services. Many people with disabilities still do not have the health care they need.

A strong Medicare prescription drug benefit is essential for all people with disabilities. Today, about one in six Medicare beneficiaries—over six million people—are people with disabilities under age 65. Over the next 10 years that number is expected to increase to 8 million.

These persons are much less likely to be able to obtain or afford private insurance coverage. Many of them are forced to choose between buying groceries, paying their mortgage, or paying for their medication.

Families raising children with significant health care needs deserve health care for their children. No family should be forced to go bankrupt, stay in poverty, or give up custody of their child in order to get needed health care for their disabled child. They deserve the right to buy in to Medicaid, so that their family can stay together and stay employed.

People with disabilities and older Americans need community-based assistance as well, so they can live at home with their families and in their communities. We need to find a way to ensure this support is available, without forcing families into poverty. This is today's challenge to the Nation, and we need to work together to meet it.

The Americans with Disabilities Act was an extraordinary milestone in the pursuit of the American dream. Many disability and civil rights leaders in communities throughout the country worked long and hard and well to achieve this goal.

To each of you, I say thank you. It is all of you who are the true heroes of this achievement, and who will lead us in the fight to keep the ADA strong in the years ahead.

Sadly, the Supreme Court is not on our side. In the past 15 years, it has restricted the intended scope of the ADA. Imagine you are a person with epilepsy in a job you love and you get excellent health care they need.

Passed by overwhelming majorities in both the House and the Senate, Republicans and Democrats alike took rightful pride in the goals of the law and its many accomplishments.

I know that the first President Bush, Senator Bob Dole, and many Members of Congress from both sides of the aisle consider their work on the ADA to be among their finest accomplishments in public service. It is widely regarded today as one of the true giant steps in our ongoing two-centuries-old civil rights revolts.

The need for that kind of bipartisan cooperation is especially critical today, as the Senate considers the nomination of John Roberts to fill Justice O'Connor's vacancy on the Supreme Court. Many people are generally aware of Justice O'Connor's role in a number of landmark decisions on reproductive and civil rights. Few know, though, that she cast the deciding vote in Lane v. Tennessee in 2004, the central case that supports the constitutionality of the ADA and whether Congress has the power to prohibit the exclusion of people with disabilities from public facilities in communities across the country.

The four dissenting Justices, in the name of States' rights, believed that Congress had no authority to do so. The case was brought by a paraplegic who complained that he was forced to crawl up the steps of the local courthouse. The 15-year-old landmark case of Justice O'Connor's swing vote upheld the ADA and the right of Congress under the Constitution to pass this landmark law to protect persons with such disabilities and guarantee their access to courts and other public facilities.

The Senate's decision on the confirmation of Judge Roberts to the Supreme Court may very well determine whether the ADA will survive as we know it. I or the rights of those with disabilities, and Senators have a clear responsibility in the coming hearings to determine his views on these basic issues.

Hopefully, the new Supreme Court will continue to support the rights of Congress to act in this important area, so that the extraordinary progress of the past 15 years will be sustained, not undermined. I intend to do all I can to see that it is.

Today, more than ever, disability need no longer mean the end of the American dream. Our goal is to banish this senseless and tragic loss.

In the 15 years since the passage of the ADA, we have witnessed dramatic changes throughout the Nation—from greater public accommodation at places of business and commercial establishments to the expansion of government services for disabled citizens and the stunning advances in transportation and telecommunications technologies. Citizens with disabilities fully participate in their communities are now able to go to the park, visit a movie theater, or attend a ballgame. In my home State of New Jersey, beach communities from Sandy Hook to Cape May have installed wheelchair access ramps and other devices that make it safe and fun for disabled individuals, ensuring that all citizens can join family and friends for a relaxing day at the beach. These steps have enabled many citizens to contribute to their communities, make the most of their abilities, and live their lives to the fullest.

Yet we must not be content to stop here. There is still much work to be done.
done to ensure that all Americans, especially those who were discriminated against until 15 years ago, are given an equal chance at using all of America’s tools for success. This is why I, along with my colleague Senator HARKIN and so many others, have worked to improve the Ticket to Work, Workforce Investment Act, and Vocational Rehabilitation programs. These programs provide unparalleled opportunity to Americans with disabilities by equipping them with the skill sets necessary to work in education, science, business, government, and other fields that weren’t previously accessible. In addition, I plan to continue my efforts to defend and strengthen the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act because equal opportunity does not exist without equal access to education.

The ADA is about ensuring that every American can participate fully in all of the daily activities that many of us take for granted. Whether it is using the phone, going out to dinner, or commuting to work on public transportation, the ADA ensures that all citizens have the ability to carry on their personal affairs. Fifteen years ago, we marched to inclusion, independence, and yes to integration into every aspect of society for people with disabilities. We have made a lot of progress since that day. Let us make sure we continue down this path by providing equal opportunity and ensuring that the benefits from the unique abilities of all Americans.

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, today marks the 15th anniversary of the Americans with Disabilities Act, a truly momentous occasion that the Senate marked yesterday by voting 87–0 in support of a resolution recognizing and honoring this anniversary. On this anniversary, we celebrate one of the great, landmark civil rights laws of the 20th century—a long overdue emancipation proclamation for people with disabilities.

We also celebrate the men and women, from all across America, whose daily acts of protest, persistence and courage moved this law forward to passage 15 years ago. We have made great progress in America in the last 15 years, and evidence of that progress can be found all around us. It has changed lives—and changed our Nation. It has made the American dream possible for tens of millions of people with disabilities.

But, our work is not yet complete in fulfilling the four great goals of the Americans with Disabilities Act: equal opportunity, full participation, independent living, and economic self-sufficiency for persons with disabilities. I cannot think of a better way to celebrate the anniversary of the ADA than by reeducating ourselves to these goals. I look forward to working with my fellow Senators and the disability community to building on the progress that we have made over the past 15 years. Toward that end, I ask unanimous consent to print in the RECORD a “Statement of Solidarity” from over 700 disability rights and civil rights organizations, led by the American Association of Persons with Disabilities and the National Council on Independent Living, that highlights the many challenges we continue to face in the path that leads to liberty and justice for all. I hope that my fellow Senators will review this document carefully, as I believe it raises a number of important issues we should consider as we once again re dedicate ourselves to realizing the full promise of the ADA.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

STATEMENT OF SOLIDARITY ON 15TH ANNIVERSARY OF AMERICANS WITH DISABILITIES ACT JULY 26, 2005

Fifteen years ago today, with bipartisan support in Congress and broad endorsements from the civil rights coalition, President George H. W. Bush signed into law the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA), calling for the creation of a comprehensive legal framework for ending exclusion. As we mark this significant anniversary, we celebrate improvements in access to polling places and the secret ballot, government programs and transportation, public places, communication and information technology, parents pushing strollers, workers delivering packages, and travelers pulling roller bags have grown accustomed to curb cuts, ramps, and other accessibility features less common in 1990. Our country is more accessible today thanks to the ADA, and we can build even better off.

Although substantial progress has been made, we are reminded every day of the significant remnants of the "shameful wall of exclusion" that continue to prevent this great country from realizing the full promise of the ADA. The majority of Americans with disabilities continue to live in poverty and unnecessary isolation. Most adults with disabilities are either not working or not working to their full potential, robbing the economy of the contributions of tens of millions of would-be workers. Children and special education continue to drop out of school in alarming numbers before obtaining a regular high school diploma. The promise of higher education, accessible and affordable housing and transportation, quality affordable healthcare, and a living wage continue to elude many adults with disabilities and their families.

The ADA is slowly driving policy changes that have enabled more people with significant mental and physical disabilities to live independently in the community, but the ongoing institutional bias in the Medicaid program keeps too many people trapped in nursings homes and institutions. Americans have grown accustomed to enjoy the freedoms and personal choices about where and how to live that other Americans take for granted.

New technologies are increasing the independence and productivity of many Americans. Yet, advances in technology alone are not guaranteed to improve the lives of people with disabilities. As we develop applications like Voice-over-Internet-Protocol (VOIP) telephony, wireless telecommunications, widespread broadband internet connectivity, new medical devices and other applications, and a plethora of new genetic tests, it is critical that these technologies be designed and used in a way that increases the inclusion, independence, and employment of Americans with disabilities as well as America’s growing senior population.

Widespread social change cannot simply be legislated, and it will not occur without bold leadership from all sectors of American society.

Public and private employers, in particular, must make a serious, concerted effort to recruit and accommodate workers with disabilities within their labor force. Election officials must take the necessary actions to ensure that every adult is able to enter his or her polling place and cast a secret and independent vote.

School administrators and university presidents must embrace their responsibility to deliver a world-class education to all their students.

It is time for leaders across America—businesses, little leagues, churches and synagogues, sheriffs and clergy—to reject exclusion, paternalism, and segregation and to take personal responsibility for removing barriers to full participation that still exist in every community in this country.

With the aim of making America work better for everyone, the undersigned organizations pledge to build on the progress of the last 15 years and join together to promote the full participation and self-determination of the more than 50 million U.S. children and adults with disabilities. We believe that disability is a natural part of the human experience that in no way should limit the right of all people to make choices, pursue meaningful work, live independently, and participate fully in all aspects of society. We encourage every American to join us in this cause, so that our country may continue on the path that leads to liberty and justice for all.

Signed by 743 organizations.

Mr. BROWNBACK. Mr. President, I rise today to remember an important occasion that represents 15 years in our Nation’s history and welcome the opportunity to speak to a group of Americans who are near and dear to my heart. On July 26, 1990, President George H.W. Bush signed into law the Americans with Disabilities Act, ADA, with bipartisan support in Congress under the leadership of then-Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole, my predecessor from Kansas, and thanks in large part to the dedication and hard work of my current colleague, the good Senator from Iowa, Tom Harkin, as well as current Senators Charles Grassley of Iowa and Daniel Inouye of Hawaii.

Today we must continue to dismantle, brick by brick, the “shameful wall” that existed in the United States previous to the existence of the ADA. And, building on our 15 years of experiences in tearing down the wall of exclusion, we must continue to bring to realization the full promise of the ideas entailed in the ADA. To carry on this significant legacy, we must recognize that, today, we face new challenges and new policy considerations.

It is estimated that there are now in America 50 million citizens with some sort of disability. An amazing individual from Kansas who visited D.C. last week to tell his story is 7-year-old Matthew Whaley. Matthew was denied access to the local recreation department’s baseball league because he happened to have a physical disability. However, because of the Americans with Disabilities Act, he is now showing off his All-Star baseball skills as an outfielder.

When I think about what Congress needs to accomplish for people with disabilities over the next few years, to continue to achieve the dream that should have been, and that the ADA began to make possible, I consider what policies we need to change to ensure that Matthew, and others with disabilities, can continue to make a positive difference in this world.

We must consider America’s aging population. According to the U.S. Census, by the year 2050, 21 percent of America’s total population will be age 65 and over. It is understood that the probability of having a disability increases with age. This means that America’s population with disabilities will continue to grow.

It is imperative that we look for ways to meet the needs of this population and ensure that they can continue to live independent, fulfilling lives. Just recently, I spent time with a constituent of mine who embodies this idea—a man named Rick Davidson from Olathe, KS. Rick is a motor vehicle accident victim who was left quadriplegic for almost 18 years—doc-tors initially estimated that Rick had just 16 years to live.

Another way we can make a positive impact for the future is through supporting efforts such as the New Freedom Initiative—a comprehensive program to promote the full participation of people with disabilities in all areas of society by increasing access to assistive technologies, expanding educational and employment opportunities, and promoting increased access to daily community life.

In the context of changing public policy, we must also examine how effectively programs such as Medicare and Medicaid, are serving the needs of individuals with disabilities. For example, the Medicare Program’s benefit for mobility devices has an “in the home” which limits coverage to only those mobility devices that are necessary within a patient’s home. Unfortunately, this does not address the needs of a patient who would use this device to obtain access to his or her community, work, school, physician’s office, pharmacy, or place of worship. In view of this, I recently signed on a letter requesting that Medicare’s mobility device “in the home” restriction be modified to improve coverage to only those Medicare recipients with disabilities. I am also a cosponsor of legislation that would offer lower income families who have children with disabilities the opportunity to acquire health care coverage through the Medicare program.

Along these lines, Congress must address the issue of accessibility to long-term care for the elderly and those with disabilities. Currently, we have a Medicaid system that spends approximately two-thirds of its dollars on institutional care and approximately one-third on community services. This antiquated policy effectively removes disabled and elderly individuals from the community and isolates them in institutions. Even from a cost perspective, this system does not make sense. According to the National Association of Insurance Commissioners, the cost of nursing home care ranges from $30,000 to $80,000 per year while the annual cost of home and community care is much lower.

The bottom line is that Congress must work to align the Medicare and Medicaid Programs with goals of the Americans with Disabilities Act. After all, we live in and in this country we celebrate independence, self-determination, uniqueness, and a sense of community. We must maintain these ideals for our children as well. This year, I introduced the Prenatally Diagnosed Conditions Awareness Act. For some conditions that can be detected in the womb, we are aborting 80 percent or more of the babies who test positive. The effect of this type of “weeding out” is the creation of a sort of new eugenics, a form of systematic, disability-based discrimination. The latter process is to the detriment of our society.

In addition to the many abilities that persons with disabilities have, these individuals so often have a perspective the rest of us don’t have. We learn compassion, heroism, humility, courage, and self-sacrifice from these special individuals—and their gift to us is to inspire us, by their example, to achieve these virtues ourselves.

In our discussion of fostering independence, we must keep in mind the importance of guaranteeing all individuals their right to vote. Our citizens with disabilities deserve equal access and an equal voice in our democratic process. Initiatives such as the Help America Vote Act, enacted in 2002, created vital grant programs ensuring that persons with disabilities and making polling places accessible to persons with disabilities. Congress must continue to look for ways to expand access to our electoral system for persons with disabilities.

While we can change public policy to reflect the ideas embodied in the ADA, it is just as important to seek change at the individual level. Every human being has the ability to change their own ideas and actions in their daily life as they meet an elderly person or a person with disabilities. As Americans, we have a God-given duty to love each and every person, and treat them, not as a means to an end, but as an end in and of themselves. As a Nation, we are blessed with the individuals who are different than us, and who have the ability to teach us; to teach us about love, about compassion, and about what it means to have strength and courage from within.

My vision for America is to continue to build on the monumental legacy of the ADA, where we as citizens continue to celebrate the breadth of experience and life lessons that persons with disabilities offer us.

Over 137,000 individuals with disabilities reside in my State of Kansas. My hope for them is the same as my hope for all Americans who have disabilities: that we as a society and as a government do everything in our power to foster their independence, to nurture their soul and to embrace their contributions to society.

NATIONAL DEFENSE AUTHORIZATION ACT

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. President, I rise today in support of Senate amendment No. 1389 to postpone the current round of domestic military base closures.

The threats confronting the United States today are vastly different from those during the Cold War, and we must shift our defense posture to address new and emerging enemies. I do not dispute that closing and realigning excess military capacity is critical to the endeavor. However, we are rushing to conclude this process before having all pertinent national security information to make a well-informed decision. In short, I believe we have put the cart before the horse.

While I support delaying this base closure round, I do not dismiss the important work of the Base Realignment and Closure Commission. The Commissioners and their staff should be commended for their diligent efforts to carefully review and evaluate each recommendation we receive from the Pentagon.

Having said that, I believe closing military installations without thoughtful consideration is short-sighted. Before implementing this round of base closures critical issues should be resolved to ensure we have not irrevocably damaged our ability to confront threats at home and abroad. The amendment requires specific benchmarks before the current round of domestic base closures is completed. I believe these requirements are logical and necessary in light of the threats facing the United States.

The continuing conflicts in Iraq and Afghanistan are our most urgent national security concern, but the United States must be prepared to address other potential enemies. According to a recent Defense Department report, China has expanded its military reach enabling them to threaten Taiwan, Japan, and the U.S. military in the Pacific. Furthermore, China continues to both improve and expand its nuclear arsenal and has the capacity to field advanced missiles able to strike the United States.

China is not our only national security concern, as both Iran and North Korea have refused to relinquish their nuclear weapons programs. U.S. intelligence experts agree North Korea has developed nuclear weapons, while Iran, an active state sponsor of terrorism, continues to pursue chemical and biological weapons.

Before completing this round of base closures, it is prudent and sound policy to analyze all pertinent information that may impact our national security. For instance, the Department of Defense is undertaking a monumental shift in overseas deployments, which is long overdue. However, the Commission on Overseas Military Facility Structure of the United States, commonly referred to as the Overseas Basing Commission, has indicated the Pentagon’s plan to rotate soldiers back to the United States from overseas installations may be flawed. The Overseas Basing Commission argues if a crisis arises abroad, the military does not have enough sea and air transportation to rotate forces rapidly enough to respond. Furthermore, the Commission believes the Pentagon has understated the costs to redeploy troops to American soil. Finally, and most troubling, the Commission argues the plan could result in extended and more frequent rotations, which could strain U.S. military personnel and their families to the point where the United States is incapable of maintaining an all-volunteer force.

In addition, currently tens of thousands of brave men and women are serving in Iraq and Afghanistan, and like all Americans, it is my sincere hope that these soldiers return home as soon as possible. Having said that, I recognize immediately withdrawing American troops from Iraq could result in chaos and undermine the tremendous efforts by all our military members. However, I question the timing of this round of base closures given that our Nation is at war and so many of our soldiers are supporting this effort. Until these troops have finished their important mission, and have returned home safely, it does not make sense to close military installations at home.

Finally, we should not move forward with this round of base closures until the Defense Department completes the Quadrennial Defense Review and presents its findings to the President and Congress. The QDR is integral to U.S. military strategy as it assesses our future national security and identifies emerging threats. It makes little sense to restructure our defenses until Congress has access to this vital piece of information.

I believe that these questions must be answered before we proceed with closing domestic military installations. We must reorganize our military force in order to respond to the threats of the 21st century. The challenge is to do so in a manner that is not detrimental to our national security and the men and women who proudly serve our country.

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. Mr. President, I rise today in support of an amendment to the fiscal year 06 National Defense Authorization Act that authorizes the Navy to convey approximately 230 acres of open space land along the eastern boundary of Marine Corps Air Station Miramar to the county of San Diego in order to provide access to the historic Stowe Trail.

The Stowe Trail at one time functioned as the primary road leading to the historic town of Stowe, and now links the Goodan Ranch and Sycamore Canyon Preserves in the north with the Mission Trails Regional Park and SanTEE Lakes Regional Recreation Area further south.

According to county records, up until the 1930s when access to this portion became restricted for military use, the Stowe Trail had served for some 80 years as the principle thoroughfare between the towns of Santee and Poway. The 230 acres of land that would be conveyed by the Navy under this provision include diverse plant and animal life and environmentally-sensitive habitats and would provide a natural wildlife corridor between the two preserves, as well as with the SanTEE Lakes Recreation Area.

Under the control of the County of San Diego, and will become part of an extensive open space trail system that will not only increase recreational opportunities in the region, but will also provide a buffer zone that will mitigate against potential encroachment that could impact the essential military missions at Marine Corps Air Station Miramar.

It is important to point out that this proposed land conveyance is the fruition of a process set in motion jointly by the San Diego County Board of Supervisors and Marine Corps Air Station Miramar in 2002.

Both sides have worked together closely since that time to ensure that the result will be a win-win situation for both county and the Marines.

For example, as part of the land conveyance process, the County of San Diego has fully committed to compensate the Navy by paying the full fair market value for the acreage.

I would therefore ask unanimous consent that it be in order for the Senate to consider this amendment, and that the amendment be agreed to.

I would also ask that this statement and the relevant amendment be placed together in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.

AMENDMENT NO. 1406

Mr. LUGAR. Mr. President, I rise in support of amendment No. 1406 that authorizes the Secretary of Defense, in the event of an overseas emergency, to transfer $200 million in defense articles, services, training and other support to the State Department to address the crisis. The funding would be used by the Office of Stabilization and Reconstruction at the State Department, a new office that has been created to organize the civilian side of the military/civilian response in post-conflict situations.

The Secretary of Defense requested the authority contained in this amendment in his submission of legislation to be considered by the Congress. The Department of Defense needs a capable civilian partner that is prepared to go into hostile environments to assist the military in stabilizing a post-conflict situation. It also needs to be able to hand off a stabilized situation to civilian leadership. Without such a capacity, the military ends up performing tasks that civilians could and should be carrying out. As a consequence, the resources of the Armed Services are stretched thin and deployments of military personnel have to be extended beyond expectations.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee has for some time been deeply involved in building the capacity of the State Department to play a leadership role in this area. Through legislation, hearings, and meetings of a policy advisory group of experts, we have called for the organization of a corps of civilians who are willing and able to undertake difficult missions in postwar countries. The Office of Stabilization and Reconstruction Coordinator, Ambassador Carlos Pascual, is now up and running and doing an excellent job.

My amendment reflects continued Senate Foreign Relations Committee attention to the issue. On June 16, we held a hearing on stabilization and reconstruction entitled “Building Peace in a Hostile Environment.” Ambassador Pascual participated as did two witnesses from the Defense Department, Ryan Henry, Principal Deputy in the Office of the Under Secretary of Defense for Policy and LTG Walter Sharp, Director of Strategic Plans and Policy at the Joint Staff. James Kunder, Assistant Administrator for Asia and the Near East, testified on behalf of USAID. Both Defense Department witnesses urged the committee to support the transfer authority contained in my amendment No. 1401. This is in the Defense Department’s interest to help the Stabilization and Reconstruction office “fill the gap in its ability to deploy in a crisis.” General Sharp said that General Myers, the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs, supports such a request because it would “greatly improve Ambassador Pascual’s ability to rapidly deploy in a crisis.”

As most Members know, the foreign affairs budget is under considerable pressure. The Senate has just finished debating H.R. 3057, the State-Foreign Operations Appropriations bill. The 302(b) allocations for this bill were some $1 billion below the President’s request. On the House side, the corresponding amount is some $3 billion below its request. Chairman Daschle and I conferred, and the appropriated funding levels for foreign affairs will once again fall short of the amount that the President of the United States says he needs to conduct a strong foreign policy at a time of great complexity and danger.

Tight budgets yield painful compromises. During consideration of H.R. 3057, Senators Corzine and DeWine offered an amendment to appropriate $50 million to support African Union peacekeeping efforts in Sudan. They took the funding from the Conflict Response Fund that is to be used in emergencies by the new Office of Stabilization and Reconstruction. The amendment was accepted.

That development has made the passage of this amendment to the Department of Defense bill even more crucial. The amendment does not make the transfer of services and other support automatic. The Secretary of Defense is authorized to transfer the support only if he determines that an emergency exists that requires the immediate provision of such assistance. He must also determine that such assistance is in the national security interests of the United States. The Department of Defense has asked for the authority. It recognizes that coordination between the State Department and USAID during international emergencies can actually save money and lives. It reflects a new kind of cooperation between the military and the civilian component of our Government that a number of Members have spent much time and effort trying to promote. I urge my colleagues to vote in favor of the amendment.

Amendment No. 1407

Mr. President, I rise in support of amendment 1407 that strikes section 1006 from the bill under consideration.

The purpose of this amendment is to allow the Defense Department to pay its fair share of the costs of building safer embassies. Section 1008 allows Defense Department participation in the program only to the extent that unreimbursed services provided by State to DOD exceed unreimbursed services provided by DOD to State. It is a complicated formula that, in the end, will probably result in no contributions from the Department of Defense. There is no other agency that has similar legislation.

More than 61,000 American Government employees from 30 agencies work at our embassies and consulates. The initiative of the State Department, Defense Department, Commerce, Treasury, Health & Human Services, Agriculture, and every other agency that has personnel overseas are contributing to the cost-sharing program. After an interagency negotiation, all executive branch departments, including the Defense Department, agreed to contribute to the cost-sharing program. But section 1008 would essentially vitiate that agreement on the part of the Department of Defense.

The Senate has a deep interest in the safety and well-being of our citizens working overseas. Defense Department employees are second in number only to the State Department in many of our embassies. We all know that U.S. facilities are not constructed to meet security standards. The 1998 bombings of two American embassies in Africa made it clear that the threat can erupt in unexpected places.

The United States has some 251 embassies and consulates overseas. Many of them do not meet security standards. They are not set far enough back from busily traveled streets, and they are not constructed to minimize damage if attacked. The capital construction program focuses on replacing 150 embassies, prioritized according to a formula that encompasses the threat they face. New embassy compounds are being built on a construction schedule that can be cut almost in half if the cost-sharing program is fully implemented.

The cost-sharing program allocates construction expenses among agencies on the basis of future occupancy and the need for space specially designed for security purposes. After the State Department, the military ranks among the top contributors expected to participate in the program. Defense Department nonparticipation would stretch the embassy construction timetable by several years, prolonging the risks to embassy workers from all agencies.

President Bush has designed an interagency cost-sharing program with a rapid construction timetable. He understands the risks and is working to address them. The cost-sharing program has been embraced by all Cabinet officers, including Secretary Rumsfeld. We in the Congress should not agree to a measure that will disrupt this timetable. We should not sow a process that will exacerbate the threat of terrorism toward embassies, which are the most visible and accessible U.S. targets overseas.

Mr. President, our military is first in the world, because of the quality and training of our personnel and because of the technological sophistication of our equipment and weaponry. A large portion of the best civilian scientific minds in the Defense Department are nearing retirement age—yet the legislation before us cuts funding for the military’s basic research in math and science. Amendment No. 1401 that I am offering with the Senator from Maine and others will ensure that the Department maintains its support for scientific research and development. It includes $10 million, to double the funding for the Department’s current “SMART Scholars” program, which is essentially an ROTC program for the agency’s civilian scientists. It increases by $40 million the Department’s funding of basic research in science and technology, to assure that its investment in this field is maintained and our military technology remains the best in the world. The $50 million total cost of the amendment is offset by a $50 million reduction in Department-wide administrative funding.

Our amendment provides sufficient funding for the full cost of college scholarships and graduate fellowships for approximately 100 science, technology, engineering, and math students. It increases by 4 percent over the last decade. Many doctoral level each year has declined in the past decade. Many of those who do graduate are ineligible to work on sensitive defense matters, since more than a third of all science and engineering doctorate degrees awarded at American universities go to foreign students. It is unlikely that retiring DOD scientists will be replaced by current private industry employees. According to
ASSOCIATION HEALTH PLANS
Mr. KENNEDY. An important new study issued last week finds that exempting association health plans from State oversight will lead to increased health insurance fraud against small businesses and their workers.

The author of the study, Assistant Professor Mila Kofman, at Georgetown University, is one of the nation’s leading experts on private health insurance fraud, and the report provides evidence of the potential harm that the pending association health plan legislation will have on our families.

It finds that exempting association health plans from State oversight will “create a regulatory vacuum” and have the “unintended consequence of widespread fraud threatening the coverage and financial security of millions of Americans.”

The report notes the 30-year history of health insurance scams involving associations and multiemployer arrangements exempted from such arrangements from State oversight in 1974. Widespread fraud resulted from the exemption, and Congress acted to restore State authority and oversight in 1982. In the years when the Federal Government was responsible for oversight of the plans, widespread fraud took place and large numbers of businesses and workers victimized.

Insurance fraud involving such plans continues, but without State oversight and enforcement, the numbers would have been much worse. States have shut down many illegal arrangements, and saved millions of dollars for consumers in recent years. We can’t afford to take away State authority now, and give plans broad exemptions from oversight.

According to a study by the Government Accountability Office, the most common way for insurance scams to proliferate is by selling coverage through associations—many of which are the same professional and business associations that would be shielded from oversight under this legislation.

The pending bill would create large loopholes and shield plans from oversight. It relies largely on self-reporting and self-regulation, and makes it far more difficult for regulators to shut down fraudulent plans.

The bill’s convoluted regulatory structure would also create confusion about who actually regulates association plans—the Federal Government or States, and this confusion will invite scams to proliferate.

We need to make affordable health insurance for working families a top priority, but this study shows the serious consequences of exempting association health plans from State and oversight and enforcement. The result is predictable: mounting medical bills, greater bankruptcy, medical care delayed or lost. It is wrong for Congress to turn back the clock to the days of widespread fraud against small businesses and their employees by exempting association plans from appropriate oversight and enforcement, and I urge my colleagues not to take this damaging step.

MEDICAL DEVICE USER FEE STABILIZATION ACT OF 2005
Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, I strongly support the Medical Device User Fee Stabilization Act of 2005.

The bill makes needed corrections in the Device User Fee Act we passed in 2002. Most important, it extends this worthwhile program beyond September 30. It ensures stable growth for individual user fees by limiting increases to 8.5 percent a year in 2006 and 2007, and it raises the threshold for businesses to be eligible for the reduced small business fees from $30 million to $100 million.

The user fee program has provided much-needed support for the Food and Drug Administration over the past 3 years to expedite its review of medical devices. The FDA has improved its ability to review devices more quickly, and laid the groundwork for further progress as well. Unfortunately, however, fees on individual applications have climbed rapidly the past 3 years—much faster than anticipated.

Our bill maintains this valuable program and limits the rate of growth in fees. It strikes a fair balance between the competing interests of FDA and the various industries. The agency is not guaranteed the growth in fees that it received under the original legislation to meet the need to expedite its reviews. It makes sense to limit fee increases in response to the concern that the fees have climbed too quickly and are discouraging innovation in these valuable devices. That is why we call the bill the User Fee Stabilization Act.

The bill also clarifies the provision in current law on the identification of the makers of single-use medical devices. Adverse event reports should not be inaccurately attributed to the wrong company, and doctors should not be misled about the source of the device.

Since many so-called single-use devices are often reprocessed and used again, the legislation requires reprocessors of single-use devices to identify their role in preparing the device. When the manufacturer of the original device is identified on the device, the reprocessor must also provide a written notice of the identity of the manufacturer of the original device. If the manufacturer of the original device has not done so, the bill permits the use of detachable labels on the package of the reprocessed device, so that the label can be placed in the patient’s medical chart.

These provisions will become effective 12 months after the date of enactment, and they are a reasonable compromise of the interests of the FDA, the original manufacturers, and the reprocessors.

I commend Chairman ENZI for his leadership in producing this much-needed legislation, and I welcome the strong, bipartisan support for the bill.
in our Health Committee. I urge all my colleagues to support this important legislation, so that this valuable medical device program can continue effectively beyond September 30.

CHANGING LIVES: THE IMPACT OF SPECIAL OLYMPICS

Ms. LANDRIEU. Mr. President, I rise today to say a few words on the impact of Special Olympics. As many of you know, individuals with intellectual disability face an array of challenges in their efforts to secure opportunities to lead quality lives. These challenges affect every aspect of their lives, including their ability to participate in a meaningful way in their communities and society at large.

The Special Olympics were created to address the use of sports as a vehicle for demonstrating the dignity and capability individuals with intellectual disability can achieve. Over the 37 years of Special Olympics history, there is extensive documentation of competition waged, medals won, and barriers overcome around the world. Athletes, families, coaches, volunteers, and sponsors have witnessed many small and large miracles through Special Olympics.

One such miracle is Rose Marie Garrett of Baton Rouge, a three-time participant in Special Olympics World Games, who was named Louisiana’s Special Olympian of the Year. At age 49, Rose Marie was diagnosed with Dandy-Walker syndrome, a congenital brain malformation that impairs motor development due to a blockage of spinal fluid to the brain. Despite her lifetime of struggle with the physical problems caused by Dandy-Walker syndrome, Rose Marie was able to rise above this barrier and take charge of her life. Not only did she successfully participate in the Special Olympics, but she continued a job at the YMCA. However, Rose Marie did not stop her lifetime of hard work with her achievements in the Special Olympics. She has become a strong advocate for this valuable program, and teaches bowling to children, disabled and non-disabled alike. Her message to those working to overcome difficult hurdles is “Work hard and go for your goal. If at first you don’t succeed, try, try again. Never give up. I didn’t.”

Rose Marie is just one of the many success stories in the Special Olympics. In 2004, they commissioned a study of the impact of Special Olympics programs on the lives of its athletes in the United States. This study included survey research of current and former athletes, coaches, and family members from a representative sample of U.S. athletes and coaches. It is the most comprehensive assessment to date of the impact of the Special Olympics experience on the lives of people with intellectual disabilities. The Special Olympics Impact Study and the Special Olympics Athlete Participation Survey, we see that Special Olympics has enabled athletes to not only train for sporting events, but also train for life. Through their voices, U.S. Special Olympics athletes have provided Special Olympics with a very positive report card on the impact that Special Olympics has on their lives.

The study also shows that people faced with intellectual disabilities will have the opportunity some time in their life to participate in the Special Olympics. As exemplified by Rose Marie’s experience, overcoming athletic challenges can lead to a successful life. Special Olympics is a program that supports an inclusive and productive society and I look forward to watching what all these individuals will accomplish in the future.

RETIREMENT OF J.J. HAMILTON

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, I would like to take this opportunity to publically congratulate J.J. Hamilton on his honorable retirement as Director of Aviation at the Burlington International Airport.

J.J. and I have been friends since our days together at St. Michael’s College, and it has been a great pleasure working with him over the years on aviation, expansion, development, and other issues at the airport in Burlington.

J.J. has been with the airport for 21 years, serving for the past 15 as its top manager. Under his direction, the Burlington International Airport has been transformed from a sleepy, one-gate operation into an award-winning, 10-gate facility that is a wonderful gateway to our great State of Vermont. The airport has grown to become an important engine in our State’s economy.

Perhaps the best words to describe J.J.’s leadership in Burlington are “measured and responsible.” As head of Vermont’s largest airport, and one that is municipally owned, he has had to delicately balance the urgent need for large-scale expansion with his financial responsibility to the citizens of Burlington. When opportunities have arisen to attract new air service, J.J. has been careful to make sure that it is sustainable and that the airport grows appropriately to meet the new demand. And when the airport has sought to expand its business offerings, he has worked cooperatively with the neighbors, the National Guard, and the business community to ensure that any plan or project that relies on the airport to outline the significance of the development.

I am proud to have worked with J.J. and others to bring the innovative, low-cost air service to Burlington that has fueled record passenger growth at the airport. From JetBlue and Independence Air to the parking expansions to the dining, J.J. has helped make this airport a high-volume and low-cost operator for passengers. And when J.J. announced his retirement, I wanted to take this opportunity to publicly congratulate him on his service to Burlington International Airport.

Unfortunately, this is not an unusual problem in Vermont, where salaries tend to lag behind those of more urban areas. More often than not, people accept the lower salary in exchange for a higher position. In some cases, out-of-state applicants argue—successfully—for more money.

The city ought to be somewhat flexible in the incoming director’s salary, but cautionary. A high wage doesn’t guarantee competence.

Hamilton, 64, has agreed to stay on until his retirement, and perhaps longer. But Vermonters wish him well as he moves on.

Mr. LEAHY. Again, Mr. President, I want to thank J.J. for his many years of dedicated service to the City of Burlington and its airport, Marcelle and I wish him and Janet all the best in retirement.

PRESIDENTIAL SCHOLARS

Mr. OBAMA. Mr. President, on May 3, 2005, Secretary of Education Margaret Spellings announced the selection of 141 outstanding American high school seniors as the 2005 Presidential Scholars. The Presidential Scholars Program honors to outstanding students for their accomplishments in academics or the arts, as well as for their leadership, character and civic contributions to their schools and communities.

The United States Presidential Scholars Program was established in 1964 by Executive order of President Lyndon B. Johnson. The Presidential Scholars Program annually selects one male and one female student from each of the 50 States, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, American students living abroad, 15 at-large students, and up to 20 students in the arts. The students are selected on the basis of outstanding scholarship, service, leadership, and creativity through a rigorous selection and review process administered by the Department of Education. Over 5,000 of the Nation’s top students have been honored as Presidential Scholars since this prestigious program’s founding.

Of 141 exceptional students recognized from across the United States for 2005, I would especially like to recognize three students from the great State of Illinois for their accomplishments.

I send my congratulations to the following students for their accomplishments in academics: Kelly A. Murtland from Marion Township High School in Marion, IL, and her teacher John Zalocusky from Belleville High School in Belleville, IL; Kelly A. Spellings from New Trier High School in Winnetka, IL, and her teacher Ramzi R. Bazzi from John Hersey High School in Arlington Heights, IL; and Erin A. Schumacher from Park High School in Park Ridge, IL, and her teacher Ramzi R. Bazzi from데중. I wish them all the best in their future endeavors. I wish them all the best in their future endeavors.

The government relations division of the AVMA is diligently working to convince Congress to provide federal funding for the National Veterinary Medical Service Act. If fully funded, this would go a long way toward encouraging recent graduates to practice food animal medicine in under-served areas and provide veterinary services to the federal emergency response team.

Just last month, the Senate Agriculture Appropriations Subcommittee approved $750,000 for a pilot program. We applaud the efforts of Representatives Bono, Begich, and Senators Cochran and Harkin . . . all of whom sponsored the original bill. And I want to thank the Appropriations Subcommittees, especially Representatives Pickering and Turner, for your hard work and commitment to veterinary medicine.

AVMA is also lobbying our federal legislators to pass the Veterinary Workforce Expansion Act . . . an important piece of legislation that will provide us with sorely needed public health and public practice veterinarians. Today’s public health practitioners play an invaluable role in U.S. agriculture, food safety, zoonotic disease control, animal welfare, public health, and international standards and trade. Without an adequate number of public health veterinarians, the wellbeing of our nation—yes, even the world—will be dire. Senator Allard has been an invaluable and unwavering in his dedication to moving this act forward through the complicated legislative process. I intend to do everything in my power to provide support to Senator Allard’s effort to pass the veterinary workforce expansion act.

On the international education level, AVMA is working closely with the international colleges and contributors that provide students outside the United States the opportunity to participate in veterinary education. We’re extremely proud of those schools. As more inquiries come forward, it’s self-evident that the world looks to us as the gold standard in educational goals and expectations.

At the same time, I will be supporting the efforts of our specialty organizations to attract and train the new practitioners they need. Currently, there are 20 veterinary specialty organizations comprising 233 distinct areas of expertise under the AVMA umbrella. The AVMA economic report on veterinarians and veterinary practices has revealed a substantial shortage between the number of specialists and non-specialists practicing in similar disciplines. I will, as president, encourage the development of additional in-depth financial surveys that, hopefully, will motivate our undergraduates to further their education and achieve specialty status . . . thus helping ensure that public demand for advanced veterinary medical services are being met while, at the same time, increasing our economic base.

Hopefully, these additional specialists will serve as role models and inspiration for our veterinary college students who are becoming increasingly understaffed. In the past fifteen years, we’ve seen a shift in the demographics of our profession. I’ll bet there were plenty of raised eyebrows when McKillips College, in 1903, and the Chicago Veterinary College, in 1910, graduated our country’s first female veterinarians. It’s hard to believe that as recently as 1963 the profession included only 277 female veterinarians.

We’re proud of the fact that an increasing number of our graduates are women. Their contributions and leadership have strengthened our profession. However, the AVMA-Pfizer study confirmed lower mean female incomes within the profession. Now is the time to explore solutions to that problem, and I will do everything in my power to ensure that this issue is thoroughly investigated and addressed.

To achieve this goal, I firmly believe that we must be inclusive, not exclusive. The public has always been well served by the diversity in our practice areas. Now, we must diversify our profession more. With more than 72,000 members representing 68 constituent organizations in the House of Delegates . . . must now seek to represent every race, religion, age, and gender within the profession, we must reflect the public, and they us. We must become a profession more reflective of the population we serve.

Dr. Debra Keiko, Dr. H.J. Magrane, then president of the AVMA, spoke often and passionately about the need for inclusion and equality within the profession. As a profession, we have still not made the advances in diversity that are necessary.

As the great social scientist Margaret Mead said: “in diversity . . . we will add to our strength.”

In order to achieve our diversity goals, we must initiate both practical and creative ideas and action plans. It’s up to us . . . all of us . . . to reach out to young people and to nurture their interests and talents so that we become the shining stairway to success. We need to be involved in youth groups, in churches, and in our public schools . . . and united in our quest, so that others say, “we must empower our youth.”

Once in veterinary school, our students . . . all our students . . . need to know that we, as a profession, are there to mentor and to help them through the special challenges they face. None of us got to where we are today without at least one special person . . . one tremendous mentor . . . who took us under his or her wing and proved to be our own, personal cornerstone. We can do no less for those who are striving today to become members of our profession.

In what programs is the AVMA currently involved concerning diversity? First, at its April 2005 meeting, the Board approved the establishment of a Task Force on Diversity. That task force will recommend steps that we must take to meet our goals in diversity.

But here’s something you can do in the immediate future. Tomorrow, our convention will offer a full day diversity symposium, including an appearance by Doctor Debbye Turner, veterinarian, former Miss America and body builder, who will show how I hope many of you will plan on spending part of your day attending these important meetings, if time permits.

Diversity will also be an integral part of the 2006 Veterinary Leadership Conference. Each of these opportunities is designed to help us achieve the diversity we’ve talked about for so long.

So what’s on our want list for 2005? As I’ve mentioned, critical shortages exist in food animal and production veterinarians. But we also are desperately in need of teachers and researchers. We need policy experts and homeland security professionals. We need legislative leaders, and we need veterinarians who are visionaries and who can lead us in this era of globalization. There exists such critical shortages in so many areas that some days I wonder if our small numbers can, in fact, make a difference.

But then I am asked to speak somewhere. And I look at the enthusiastic faces in my audience . . . established veterinarians who are deeply involved in their state and local associations, students who live and breathe only to count off the days until they can touch their dreams, and enriched students with straight A’s who are anxious to know what else they have to do to make it into veterinary school, third graders with a commitment to animals that rivals the grit and determination of a Jack Russell terrier . . . and I know that we will not only survive . . . but thrive.

As I’ve said, my presidency will be dedicated to re-energizing the unity that has always been our strength and foundation. As former President from the northeast, John F. Kennedy, once said, “Let us not be blind to our differences—but let us also direct attention to our common interests.”

Ladies and gentlemen, our common interests are so much greater than our differences. Like the society and world around us, we are changing. And change is never easy. But we have combined dedication and attention to preserving and protecting our unity of purpose, we will thrive and remain one of the most admired and respected professions in the world.

During the coming year, I will be looking to you for help. I will listen . . . and I will participate. I will follow your lead . . . and I will lead to enlighten. I implore each of you to participate in this great organization and make it your own. For you are the teachers . . . you are the visionaries . . you are veterinary medicine.

Thank you.

NATIONAL HERITAGE FELLOWSHIP

Mr. OBAMA. Mr. President, today I rise to congratulate an Illinois resident who has received national recognition for her contributions to the American artistic community. Ms. Alberta Walker of Chicago, the Queen of Gospel Music, has been selected to receive a National Heritage Fellowship by the National Endowment for the Arts, NEA.

The highest honor in the field of folk and traditional arts, these fellowships are awarded to 12 outstanding artists each year to recognize their contributions to their fields. They are selected based on their artistic excellence and cultural authenticity.

National Heritage Fellowships are not open to application but are based on nominations from members of the public. Begun in 1982, these fellowships consist of a $20,000 grant and are part of the NEA’s mission of supporting excellence in the arts, both new and traditional. Previous National Heritage Fellowship recipients have included such artists as B.B. King and John Lee Hooker.

The Grammy-award winning Ms. Walker is a native of Chicago and has been involved in gospel music for over 70 years. She has recorded over 60 albums and is an active member of West Point Missionary Baptist Church.

I thank the National Endowment for the Arts for its recognition of Ms. Walker’s outstanding work and once again applaud Ms. Walker for her achievement.

ADDITIONAL STATEMENTS

25TH ANNIVERSARY OF BUFFALO, NORTH DAKOTA

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I rise today to recognize a community in North Dakota that will be celebrating its 125th anniversary. On July 14-17, the residents of Buffalo gathered to celebrate their community’s history and founding.

Buffalo is a vibrant and active community with a population of more than 500 people. Despite its small size, Buffalo holds an important place in North Dakota’s history. Buffalo, like most small towns in North Dakota, got its start when the railroad stretched throughout the State. In 1883, the postmaster, Charles A. Wilder, named the community Buffalo in honor of the secretary of the Northern Pacific Railway, who was born in Buffalo, NY.

Buffalo has a very active historical society that has worked to restore two unique properties, the Old Stone Church and the 1916 High School, both of which are listed on the National Register of Historic Places. The restoration of the Old Stone Church, in particular, has received national attention. In 1999, it was awarded a National Trust for Historic Preservation Honor Award. Buffalo is the only community in North Dakota to ever receive the award, and it is the smallest community in the Nation to ever receive the award. The restoration of this prairie church united the community and preserved an important piece of our State’s history. The residents of Buffalo can be extremely proud of their efforts to preserve these historic places.

For those who call Buffalo home, it is a comfortable place to live, work, and play. Today, Buffalo is home to a café, gas station and repair shop, bank, day care, heritage museum and much more. The community had a wonderful celebration that included an all school reunion, parade, car show, street dance, fireworks, and games.

I ask the Senate to join in my congratulations to Buffalo, ND, and its residents on their first 125 years and in wishing Buffalo well through the next century. By honoring Buffalo and all the other historic small towns of North Dakota, we keep the great pioneering frontier spirit alive for future generations. It is places such as Buffalo that have helped to shape this country into what it is today, which is why this fine community is deserving of our recognition.

Buffalo has a proud past and a bright future.

TRIBUTE TO THE TOWNS OF MOORESTOWN AND CHATHAM, NEW JERSEY

Mr. CORZINE. Mr. President, I rise today to pay tribute to Moores town and Chatham, NJ, on being named two of the best places in the country to live. It is only fitting that an acclaimed national magazine recognized what I have always known—New Jersey is a great State in which to live.

Moores town and Chatham received these top honors based upon the following criteria: business climate, economic well being, quality of life, and a positive environment in which to work and raise a family. New Jersey’s tourism industry, scenic beauty, low crime rate, high-quality education, community spirit, parks and recreation, make my State attractive for many families and businesses.

Moores town, a 15-square-mile, tree-lined, suburban town, was named the No. 1 place to live in America. This lovely little hamlet, located in Burlington County, is known for its historic buildings, charming downtown, and high quality of life. One of its nicest traditions is its “Random Act of Kindness Week,” a time when its citizens are encouraged to practice the virtue of good deeds, not only for the neediest, but for its next-door neighbors as well. Only moments away from Philadelphia, it has a booming economy with numerous manufacturing facilities, high-tech firms, and defense contractors.

Chatham is also home to many cultural arts venues and recreational facilities. As many of the families that have lived there for generations will tell you, this town is truly the perfect place to raise a family and call home.

One of our other great towns, Chatham, NJ, was ranked the ninth most desirable place to live in the country. This small wonder of Morris County, sits on the banks of the Passaic River, and is home to many of the historic manufacturing plants of the late 1800s and early 1900s. Today, Chatham relies on many major technology and communications firms to help boost this small metropolis to the forefront of the Nation. Chatham is a great place to raise a family as well, with its many fine schools and close proximity to New York City. It is also home to a national wildlife refuge, which residents fought to protect from developers.

It is no surprise that my home State of New Jersey is the only place with two towns on top 10 list. Moores town and Chatham both deserve these high honors. I applaud the local officials, enterprise business men and women, and the committed citizens of these great towns. I am proud to represent them in the U.S. Senate, and wish them all the best in the future.

A TRIBUTE TO THE AFRICAN METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH

Mr. BROWNBACK. Mr. President, it gives me great pleasure to rise today and to honor the work of the Women’s Missionary Society of the African Methodist Episcopal Church, whose annual conference will be held in my home state of Kansas. As you may know, the African Methodist Episcopal Church has a magnificent and marvelous history in this country. The A.M.E. Church was the first African American Church founded in this Nation. Borne out of the struggle to work through the challenges of their time without persecution, the A.M.E. Church was founded in order that African Americans could worship freely. And unlike the churches of their time, the co-founder, Bishop Richard Allen, ensured that any person regardless of race, creed, or color could worship in church.

It is with that spirit and the spirit of benevolence toward one another that the Women’s Missionary Society was formed. Through the vision of Mrs. Sarah Allen, the wife of Bishop Richard Allen, there was formed the Women’s Missionary Society of the African Methodist Episcopal Church in an effort to mobilize and encourage women in the area of missions. Today the mission society is still committed to spreading the principles of Christian love and hope. The A.M.E. Church boasts a membership of over 800,000 worldwide. It is their charge and duty to serve God in all they do and to assist in the progression of serving all people worldwide.

Indeed, the Women’s Missionary Society has a wonderful 130 year history within the A.M.E. Church. In early 1900s the Kansas/Nebraska Conference Branch Women’s Missionary Society was formed. At this time, Kansas/Nebraska conference began to serve and meet the needs of the church and the community. During their 130 year history, the Missionary Society encountered many social challenges. And holding true to their legacy, they learned to adjust, adapt, and be of service to the A.M.E. Church and the African American community. As a conference, they sponsor and hold workshops and seminars to educate the A.M.E. Church and the community on social issues that affect the Black community daily.

The Kansas/Nebraska Missionary Society has had several Episcopal supervisors who met the challenges of mission with the A.M.E. Church and the African American community in general. Today, the missionary society has opened a new chapter of missions with a Supervisor who has a global mission to serve abroad as well as at home. Reverend Dr. Cecelia Williams Bryant, who is affectionately known as “Rev. C.”

Holding true to the A.M.E. Church legacy, Rev. “C.” is a true visionary. Under the direction of Rev. “C.”, the missionary society will adjust, adapt and make a difference. At the evening of September 6, 2005, at St. John African Methodist Episcopal Church, Topeka, KS, the Kansas/Nebraska Conference Branch Women’s Missionary Society of the African Methodist Episcopal Church will proclaim “The Healing of the Nations” as the theme of the conference.

Under the direction of Rev. “C.”, the missionary society will create opportunities for those in need, obtain resources for the changing needs and work to address the concerns of people throughout the world. They will also offer aid and assistance to women’s organizations throughout the world as well. They also plan to pray and enthusiastically send the message throughout the Nation and the world that prayer will and can make a difference. Today, the conference began to serve and meet the needs of the church and the community. During their 130 year history, the Missionary Society encountered many social challenges. Mr. President, it is quite evident that the Kansas/Nebraska Women’s Missionary Society is ready to accept the challenges to move forward and continue to serve this Nation and the world in the areas of missions.

HONORING THE COMMUNITY OF COLMAN, SOUTH DAKOTA

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. President, I rise today to honor and publicly recognize the 125th anniversary of Colman, the founding of the town of Colman, South Dakota. On August 13, 2005, Colman citizens celebrate their community’s proud past as well as their hope for a promising future.

Located in Moody County, Colman is a small community nestled amongst the fertile farmland of eastern South Dakota. The town got its start with the help of the railroad, specifically the Milwaukee line, as it made its way into the western United States. Platted in 1880, Colman was originally named Allenson in honor of the Allen family who donated the town site in 1880. Not long thereafter, however, it was renamed Colman, honoring the town’s prosperous Colman Lumber Company.

Colman has also enjoyed a great deal of economic prosperity in the early 20th century. Although only a fraction of the businesses Main Street once boasted are still in operation, it is clear Colman, since its identity as a self-sufficient city with a variety of goods and services to offer. The bustling community included a grain elevator, a flourishing mill, both a dairy and dairy delivery service, a trucking service, a doctor, a weekly newspaper, and a theater that showed movies every night of the week. One of Colman’s oldest businesses is the Farmers Cooperative Elevator, which is still in use today. Although it was established in 1888, the structure was destroyed and had to be rebuilt in 1941. Colman’s first school was a one-room building near the western outskirts of the town.

On January 28, 1901, the first issue of The Colman Argus was published by Bert H. Berry. In April of that year, Berry sold the weekly paper to F.P. French, who owned and edited it until his death in 1931. French’s son, F. Philo French, continued to publish The Colman Argus until 1954, when it was sold to Lulu Berry. It was sold again in 1957 to Ms. Brandon, one of its reading clerks, who owned and operated the newspaper for the next 26 years, and then again to Ms. Brandon, one of its reading clerks, who donated the paper to the town in 1980.

In the last three decades, Colman has evolved into a peaceful and quiet community that is great for retirees, those who desire to make a home on the plains of the Dakotas as inspiration to all those who believe in the honest pursuit of their dreams. Colman’s proud 560 residents celebrate their city’s vibrant 125 year history and the legacy of the pioneer spirit on August 13th, 2005.

MESSAGES FROM THE HOUSE

At 12:18 p.m., a message from the House of Representatives, delivered by Ms. Brandon, one of its reading clerks, announced that the House has passed the following bill and joint resolution, in which it requests the concurrence of the Senate:

H.R. 1797. An act to provide for equitable compensation to the Spokane Tribe of Indians of the Spokane Reservation for the use of tribal land for the production of hydro-power by the Grand Coulee Dam, and for other purposes.

H.J. Res. 59. Joint resolution expressing the sense of Congress with respect to the women suffragists who fought for and won the right of women to vote in the United States.

The message also announced that the House has agreed to the following concurrent resolution, in which it requests the concurrence of the Senate:

Mr. SARBAZES. Mr. President, today I am introducing a package of five measures to sustain and indeed renew the Federal commitment to restoring the water quality and living resources of the Chesapeake Bay watershed. Joining me in sponsoring one or more of these measures are my colleagues from Virginia, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Senators WARNER, ALLEN, MIKULSKI, and SANTORUM.

In his 1984 State of the Union message, President Ronald Reagan called the Chesapeake Bay a “special national resource” and pledged $10 million a year for 4 years to “begin the long, necessary effort to save the Bay.”

Today, despite more than 2 decades of effort and the investment of hundreds of millions of dollars on the part of Federal, State, and local governments and the private sector, the goal of a clean, restored Bay appears elusive. For the past 3 years, the Chesapeake Bay Foundation has given the Chesapeake Bay a failing grade of 27 out of 100 on its annual report card—for short of the “70” level believed necessary for the Bay to be declared saved.” The continued flood of sediments and nutrient pollution from sewage treatment plants, farms, urban runoff, and air deposition, combined with continued rapid growth in population and development in the watershed, is offsetting the progress that has been made in restoring the Bay. The Bay remains an “impaired water body” under the Clean Water Act, and Chesapeake Bay Program scientists are forecasting another summer of very low oxygen levels in the deep waters of the Bay, further stressing the fish and other living resources. As author and naturalist Tom Horton points out in a recent National Geographic article,
No one had illusions that the work of the Chesapeake Bay Program, a massive Federal-State restoration effort, begun in 1983 and unmatched anywhere in the world, would be quick or easy. But no one anticipated that 22 years later, significant efforts would have redoubled our efforts. Nitrogen pollution from all sources will have to be substantially reduced, thousands of acres of watershed property must be preserved, significant efforts must be made to restore living resources, and buffer zones to protect rivers and streams need to be created. Likewise, assistance to community organizations, local governments, and educational institutions at all levels must be expanded dramatically to help foster local stewardship and entice more of the 16 million residents who live in the watershed to play active roles in the efforts to restore the Bay.

The five measures that we are introducing are an important part of, but by no means the entire, solution for addressing the Bay’s problems. Earlier in this Congress, Members from the Bay-area States, from both parties, joined with me in a letter to President Bush urging him to make restoration of the Chesapeake Bay a top environmental priority and to commit $1 billion in his budget as a down-payment towards restoring the Bay’s water quality. We called on him to provide the Army of Corps of Engineers to store $100 million provided under the 2002 Farm Bill for farmers to test new, innovative techniques for reducing agricultural nutrient pollution in the Chesapeake Bay watershed. Under Senator WARNER’s leadership, we succeeded in getting a provision in the Senate-passed SAFETEA legislation, which would provide more than $70 million for the Bay area States and local governments to mitigate the impacts of storm-water runoff from highways and urban development and to have fought to prevent a significant cut in funding for the Clean Water State Revolving Fund. And we have continued to press the Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency to ensure that the Clean Water Act is fully enforced. All these are critical components of a more comprehensive effort on the part of the Federal, State and local governments and the private sector that will be needed over the course of the next few years to restore the health of the Chesapeake Bay.

The first measure, the Chesapeake Bay Program Reauthorization and Environmental Accountability Act of 2005, would reauthorize and enhance EPA’s Chesapeake Bay Program and would increase the program’s accountability for improving the health of the Bay. The Chesapeake Bay Program, which has guided the clean-up effort for the past two decades, expires this year and must be reauthorized. Originally the Water Quality Act of 1987 and reauthorized in the Es- tuaries and Clean Water Act of 2000, the Chesapeake Bay Program provides support and coordination for Federal, State, and local efforts in developing strategies and action plans, conducting system-wide monitoring and assessment, implementing projects to restore and protect the Bay and its living resources, and communicating with the public about the Bay and efforts to restore and protect it.

Last year, Senator MIKULSKI, Senator WARNER, and I asked the Government Accountability Office to conduct a review of the Bay restoration program that would assess the overall restoration progress reported for the Bay; determine how progress is measured in the Bay watershed; and evaluate the effectiveness of Chesapeake Bay Program efforts to ensure that proper measures are being used. That study is nearing completion. Its preliminary findings recommend a number of improvements to the Program, which we have incorporated in this measure. The Chesapeake Bay Program was established to achieve specific goals for the Bay, but the GAO found that EPA has not developed a plan to achieve these goals. Bay restoration has also been hampered by a lack of interim goals and time frames against which program can be measured. The legislation we are introducing today requires the EPA Administrator to develop an implementation plan for reaching the goals of the Chesapeake 2000 Agreement, including a timeline with specific annual goals for nutrient and sediment reduction, associated costs, and measures for assessing progress, and to prepare an annual report for Congress that describes the accomplishments of the previous year and the reductions likely to occur in the future. The legislation also directs the Administrator to publish and widely circulate annual “tributary report cards” that describe the progress made in achieving the nutrient and sediment reduction goals for each major tribu- tary of the Bay and of the Bay watershed. These “report cards” will provide the public with a clear and accurate picture of the progress toward restoring the Bay, which is currently lacking. In addition, the Director of the Office of Management and Budget is to submit an annual report on Chesapeake Bay Program funding.

The second measure, the Chesapeake Bay Watershed Nutrient Removal Assistance Act, would establish a grants program to be administered by the Environmental Protection Agency to support the installation of nutrient reduction technologies at major wastewater treatment facilities in the Chesapeake Bay watershed. I first introduced this measure during the 107th Congress, and provisions of the bill were incorporated in the Water Resources Development Act of 2000, reported favorably by the Senate Environment and Public Works Committee. Unfortunately, no further action was taken on that legislation. The Bay’s water quality improvements over the past decade, the overabundance of the nutrients nitrogen and phosphorus continues to rob the Bay of life-sustaining oxygen. Recent modeling of EPA’s Bay Program has found that total nutrient discharges must be reduced by more than 40 percent from current levels to restore the Chesapeake Bay and its most tributaries to health. To do so, nitrogen discharges from all sources must be reduced drastically below current levels. Annual nitrogen discharges into the Bay will need to be cut by at least 100 million pounds from the current 375 million to less than 175 million pounds. Municipal wastewater treatment plants, in particular, will have to reduce nitrogen discharges by nearly 75 percent.

In December 2004, the Chesapeake Bay Commission issued a report entitled “Cost-Effective Strategies for the Bay”; of the six most cost-effective strategies listed in that report, upgrading wastewater treatment plants is Number One. There are more than 300 significant municipal wastewater treatment plants in the Chesapeake Bay watershed. These plants contribute almost 60 million pounds of nitrogen per year—one-fifth of the total load of nitrogen to the Bay. Upgrading these plants with nutrient removal technologies to achieve nitrogen levels of 3 mg/liter would remove as much as 30 million pounds of nitrogen in the Bay each year, or 30 percent of the total nitrogen reductions needed. Nutrient reduction technologies capable of achieving nitrogen levels of 3 mg/liter would remove as much as 30 million pounds of nitrogen in the Bay each year, or 30 percent of the total nitrogen reductions needed. Nitrogen removal technologies have other benefits, as well. They provide significant savings in energy usage, 20–30 percent, in chemical usage, more than 50 percent, and in the amount of sludge produced, 5–15 percent. Furthermore, the benefits from upgrading sewage treatment plants have an immediate result on the Bay’s water quality, unlike other methods that primarily affect nutrients in ground water and may take years to produce results. This legislation would provide grants for 55 significant municipal wastewater treatment plants with the plants with state-of-the-art nutrient removal technologies capable of achieving nitrogen levels of 3 mg/liter. Any publicly owned wastewater treatment plant which has a permitted design capacity to treat an annual average of 0.5 million gallons per day within the Chesapeake Bay watershed portion of New York, Pennsylvania, Maryland, West Virginia, Delaware, Virginia, and the District of Columbia is eligible for these grants. As a signatory to the Chesapeake Bay Agreement, the EPA has an important responsibility to assist the states with financing these water infra-structure needs.

The third measure, the Chesapeake Bay Environmental Education Pilot Program Act, would establish a new environmental education program in the U.S. Department of Education for elementary and secondary school students and teachers within the Chesapeake Bay watershed. The legislation would encourage a growing consensus that a major commitment to education to promoting an ethic of responsible stewardship and citizenship among the 16 million people who live in the watershed is necessary if all of the other efforts to save the Bay are to succeed. Expanding environmental education and training opportunities will lead not only to a healthier Chesapeake Bay ecosystem but also to a more educated and informed citizenry, with a deeper understanding of and appreciation for the environment, their community, and their role in society as responsible citizens.

One of the principal commitments of the Chesapeake 2000 Agreement is to “provide a meaningful Bay or stream outdoor experience for every school student in the watershed before graduation from high school” beginning with the class of 2005. There are more than 3.3 million K-12 students in the watershed, and despite important efforts by Bay area states and not-for-profit organizations, only a very small percentage of these students have had the opportunity to engage in meaningful outdoor experiences or receive classroom environmental instruction. Many of the school systems in the Bay watershed are only at the beginning stages in developing and implementing environmental education into their curriculum. Let’s take advantage of opening these students to outdoor watershed experiences. What’s lacking is not the desire or will, but the resources and training to undertake more comprehensive environmental education programs.

This legislation would authorize $6 million a year over the next four years in Federal grant assistance to help close the resource and training gap for students in the elementary and secondary levels in the Chesapeake Bay watershed. It would require a 50 percent non-Federal match, thus leveraging $12 million in assistance. The funding could be used to help design, demonstrate or disseminate environmental curricula and field practices, engage students and educational personnel, and support on-the-ground activities or Chesapeake Bay or stream outdoor educational experiences involving students and teachers, among other things. The program would complement the NOAA Bay Watershed Education and Training Program that we established several years ago.

The fourth measure, the Chesapeake Bay Watershed Forestry Act, would expand the USDA Forest Service’s role in the restoration of the Chesapeake Bay watershed. Forest loss and fragmentation are occurring rapidly in the Chesapeake Bay region and are among the most important issues facing the Bay and forest management today. According to the National Resources Inventory, the States closest to the Bay lost 350,000 acres of forest between 1987 and 1997—almost 100 acres per day. More and more rural areas are being converted to suburban development, shrinking the area in all categories of forest tracts. These trends are leading to a regional forest land base that is more vulnerable to conversion, is less likely to be economically viable in the future, and is losing its capacity to protect watershed health and other ecological benefits, such as controlling stormwater runoff, erosion and air pollution. Restoring and conserving forests is essential to sustaining the Bay ecosystem.

Since 1990, the USDA Forest Service has been an important part of the Chesapeake Bay Program. The Service has worked closely with Federal, State, and local partners in the six-state Chesapeake Bay region to demonstrate how forest protection, restoration, and stewardship activities can contribute to achieving the Bay restoration goals. With the signing of the Chesapeake 2000 Agreement, the role of the USDA Forest Service has become more important than ever. Among other provisions, this Agreement requires the signatories to conserve existing forests along all streams and shoreline; to promote the expansion and connection of contiguous forests; to assess the Bay’s forest lands; and to provide technical and financial assistance to local governments to plan for or revise plans, ordinances, and subdivision regulations to provide for the conservation and sustainable use of the forest and agricultural lands.

This legislation codifies the role and responsibilities of the USDA Forest Service to the Bay restoration effort. It strengthens existing coordination of the relationship between urban, suburban and rural forests in the watershed. It strengthens existing coordination, technical assistance, forest resource assessment, and planning efforts for urban, suburban and rural areas of the Chesapeake Bay watershed. It authorizes a small grants program to support local agencies, watershed associations, and citizen groups in conducting on-the-ground conservation projects. It establishes a regional applied forestry research and training program to enhance the conservation of urban and rural forests in the watershed. Finally it authorizes $3.5 million for each of fiscal years 2004 through 2010, a modest increase in view of the six-state, 64,000-square-mile watershed.

The fifth measure, the NOAA Chesapeake Bay Watershed Monitoring, Education, Training, and Restoration Act, would enhance the authorities of the Chesapeake Bay Office of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration to establish nutrient and sediment reduction goals; and to enhance urban, suburban and rural forest and agriculture stewardship programs. These measures would provide an important boost to our efforts to restore the Chesapeake Bay. They are strongly supported by the Chesapeake Bay Commission and the Chesapeake Bay Foundation.

The Chesapeake Bay Watershed Forestry Program Act of 2005. A bill to require the Secretary of Agriculture to establish a program to expand and strengthen cooperative efforts to restore and protect forests in the Chesapeake Bay watershed, and for other purposes.

Forests provide habitat for wildlife, filter polluted runoff, and help moderate stream water temperature. Because of their importance in improving water quality, the Bay states have committed to restoring thousands of acres of forested buffers in the watershed. In addition, they are one of the most cost-effective ways to reduce nitrogen and phosphorus pollutants. Yet, the Chesapeake Bay watershed is continuing to lose forests, in both urban and rural areas, at alarming rates. Preservation and restoration of forests, as encouraged by this legislation, are critical elements in Bay restoration efforts.

This package of legislative initiatives will do much to strengthen and revitalize our efforts to Save the Bay. CBF is grateful to you, Senator, for your constant and unwavering commitment to the restoration of our nation’s largest and most productive estuary. We hope that the 109th Congress will join us in our efforts developing strategies and actions plans, assessing progress throughout the watershed, implementing projects to protect the Bay and its living resources, and communicating with the public.

The Chesapeake Bay Watershed Forestry Act will help to control pollution by establishing grants that can filter and absorb sediment and nutrient runoff while providing valuable habitat for animals and birds and food and shelter for fish. The Chesapeake Bay Watershed Forestry Act also provides strong support and coordination for Federal, State, and local efforts to upgrade sewage treatment plants. This bill provides grants to upgrade wastewater treatment plants is Number One. The Act provides grants to upgrade the major wastewater treatment plants in the Bay’s six-state watershed with modern water quality technologies. It will allow the region to demonstrate that state-of-the-art nutrient removal is possible on a large scale and that the removal of as much as 30 million pounds of nitrogen each year, or 30 percent of the reduction that is needed. Furthermore, the benefits from upgrading sewage treatment plants have an immediate impact on water quality.

The Chesapeake Bay Watershed Forestry Act will provide interstate coordination, technical assistance, and forest assessment and planning services that are otherwise limited or unavailable in our region.

Finally, let us emphasize the important support for education that this package provides. Sustaining our hard-won progress in the restoration of the Bay will ultimately rest in the hands of citizens and communities throughout the watershed. Expanding environmental education and training opportunities for a variety of ages, from kindergarteen to adult community education and professional development, will help ensure that the Bay and to a more educated and informed citizenry, yet these kinds of activities are woefully underfunded. The monies provided by the Chesapeake Bay Environmental Education Pilot Program Act and the NOAA Chesapeake Bay Watershed Monitoring, Education, Training, and Restoration Act will substantially improve our education performance of the C2K goals.

The federal government has been a strong partner in efforts to restore the Bay, and we laud the commitment and enhance the federal commitment to the Bay. The Commission commends your dedication now and over the past two decades to the health of the Chesapeake Bay. Please instruct us as to how we can further support these measures.

Sincerely,

Senator Mike Waugh, Chairman.

By Mr. McCAIN (for himself and Mr. COBURN):

S. 1495. A bill to prohibit Federal agencies from obligating funds for appropriations earmarks included only in congressional reports, and for other purposes; to require Federal agencies from obligating funds for appropriations earmarks included only in congressional reports. This legislation is designed to help reign in unauthorized, unrequested, and wasteful pork barrel projects.

As my colleagues may know, report language does not have the force of law. That fact has been lost when it comes to appropriations bills and reports. In 2004, the United States Congress authorized $68 billion in appropriations bills has simply lurched out of control. At a conference in February, 2005, David Walker, the Comptroller General of the United States, warned us that "if we continue on our present path, we’ll see pressure for deep spending cuts or dramatic tax increases. GAO’s long-term budget simulations paint a chilling picture. If we do nothing, by 2040 we may have to cut federal spending by more than half or raise federal taxes by more than two and a half times to balance the budget. Clearly, the status quo is unsustainable and difficult choices are unavoidable. And the longer we wait, the more onerous our options will become and the less transition time we will have."

Is that really the kind of legacy we should leave to future generations of Americans?

Referring to our economic outlook, Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan testified before Congress that: "(T)he dimension of the challenge is enormous. The one certainty is that the resolution of this situation will require difficult choices and that the future performance of the economy will depend on those choices. No changes will be easy, as they all will involve lowering claims on resources or raising financial obligations. It falls on the Congress to determine how best to address the competing claims."

It falls on the Congress my friends. The head of the U.S. Government’s chief watchdog agency and the Nation’s chief economist agree—we are in real trouble.

We simply must start making some very tough decisions around here if we are serious about improving our fiscal future. We need to be thinking about the future of America and the future generations who are going to be paying the tab for our continued spending. It is simply not fiscally responsible for us to continue to load up appropriations bills with wasteful and unnecessary spending, and good deals for special interests and their lobbyists. We have had ample opportunities to tighten our belts in this town in recent years, and we have taken a pass each and every time. We can’t put off the inevitable any longer.

Here is the stark reality of our fiscal situation. According to the Government Accountability Office, the unfunded federal financial burden, such as public debt, future Social Security, Medicare, and Medicaid payments alone, will total $40 trillion—or $140,000 per man, woman and child. To put this in perspective, the average mortgage, which is often a family’s largest liability, is $124,000—and that is often borne by the family breadwinner, not the children. But, instead of fixing the problem, and fixing it will not be easy, we only succeeded in making it bigger, much more unstable, more complicated, and much, much more expensive.

The Committee for Economic Development, the Concord Coalition, and the Center on Budget and Policy Priorities jointly stated that, "without a change in current (fiscal) policies, the federal government can expect to run a cumulative deficit of $3 trillion over the next decade."

I also stated that, "after the baby boom generation starts to retire in 2008, the combination of demographic pressures and rising health care costs will result in the costs of Medicare, Medicaid and Social Security growing faster than the economy. We project that by the time today’s newborns reach 40 years of age, the cost of these three programs as a percentage of the economy will more than double—from 8.5 percent of the GDP to over 17 percent."

Additionally, the Congressional Budget Office has issued warnings about the dangers that lie ahead if we continue to spend in this manner. In a report issued at the beginning of the year, CBO stated that, because of rising health care costs and an aging population, "spending on entitlement programs—especially Medicare, Medicaid and Social Security—will claim a sharply increasing share of the nation’s economic output over the coming decades."

Therefore, it is time to say that, "unless taxation reaches levels that are unprecedented in the United States, current spending policies will probably be financially unsustainable over the next 50 years. An ever-growing burden of federal debt held by the public would have a corrosive... effect on the economy."

Where is it going to end? We have to face the facts, and the fact is that we can’t continue to spend taxpayer’s dollars on wasteful, unnecessary pork barrel projects or cater to wealthy corporate special interests any longer. The American people won’t stand for it, and they shouldn’t—they deserve better treatment. I urge my colleagues to support this important legislation.

By Mr. ALLARD (for himself and Mr. SALAZAR):
S. 1498. A bill to direct the Secretary of the Interior to convey certain water distribution facilities to the Northern Colorado Water Conservancy District; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

Mr. ALLARD. Mr. President, the Northern Colorado Water Conservancy District has contacted me, along with other members of the Colorado Congressional Delegation, seeking the introduction and passage of Federal legislation authorizing the title transfer of specific features of the Colorado-Big Thompson Project from the United States to Northern. This title transfer will be similar to a bill that I carried during the 109th Congress, which transferred other Bureau of Reclamation facilities to Northern. The projects involved in the proposed title transfer are those single-purpose water conveyance facilities used for the distribution of water released from Carter Lake Reservoir: the St. Vrain Supply Canal; the Boulder Feed Canal; the Boulder Creek Supply Canal; and the South Platte Supply Canal.

The entire project, called the Colorado-Big Thompson Project, was built from 1938 to 1957, and provides supplemental water to more than 30 cities and towns. The water is used to irrigate over 600,000 acres of north-eastern Colorado farmland.

The proposed legislation will divest Reclamation of all present and future responsibility for and cost associated with the management, operation, maintenance, repair, rehabilitation and replacement of, and liability for the transferred facilities. This responsibility will become that of the Northern Colorado Water Conservancy District.

The legislation will eliminate the duplication of efforts between the District and Reclamation in issuing and administering crossing licenses and other forms of permission to utilize the land on which the facilities are located. Finally, the legislation will provide for enhanced local control over water facilities that are not of national importance, and allow these facilities to be used for efficient and effective water management. Local control, especially in the case of matters in relation to water, has always been a major component of my philosophy. I am proud to introduce this bill which will serve to further that intent.

By Mr. BUNNING (for himself and Mr. MCCONNELL):
S. 1499. A bill to amend the Federal Power Act to provide for competitive and reliable electricity transmission in the Commonwealth of Kentucky; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

Mr. BUNNING. Mr. President, I rise to introduce the Kentucky Competitive Access Program (KCAP) bill that would allow Kentucky electric distribution companies to purchase cheaper power. This means lower rates for many Kentucky consumers served by the Tennessee Valley Authority (TVA). I am pleased Senator McConnell has joined me in introducing this bill.

Kentucky has some of the cheapest electric power available in the Nation. Some Kentucky consumers in TVA are paying higher electricity rates than Kentucky consumers outside of TVA.

Kentucky electric distribution companies served by the TVA can not provide their customers with access to Kentucky’s inexpensive energy. This is because under existing federal law the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) has limited authority over TVA and can not require it to transmit the cheaper power to most, if not all, of the TVA’s customers. The legislation removes this restriction and provides the FERC with the authority to require TVA to transmit power to all Kentucky distributors.

In addition to allowing Kentucky customers to access less expensive power, the legislation would not harm TVA or result in higher rates to TVA’s remaining customers. The Kentucky distributors, in total, constitute only about 6 percent of TVA’s revenues and load. Furthermore, TVA is experiencing load growth of about 3 percent per year which should quickly result in the replacement of any load lost in Kentucky. Thus, the departure of some portion of the Kentucky distributors should not result in any significant cost shift to remaining TVA system customers.

All Kentuckians deserve to choose where they receive their power. This bill will not only give them that choice, but it will also create a more competitive environment among Kentucky distributors and allow our businesses and residential consumers to keep more money in their pockets.

By Mr. CORZINE:
S. 1502. A bill to clarify the applicability of State law to national banks and Federal savings associations, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs.

Mr. CORZINE. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce legislation, the Preservation of Federalism in Banking Act, to clarify the relationship between State consumer protection laws and national banks. This legislation responds to a sweeping new rule issued by the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency, the agency that regulates national banks. The OCC gives the agency unprecedented authority to pre-empt state laws, thereby shielding national banks and their non-bank and state-chartered bank affiliates from many important consumer protections. It also potentially limits the ability of state officials to enforce many related laws. The most important immediate consequence of the OCC rule has been the preemption of state anti-predatory lending laws.

I feel strongly about the need to address predatory lending, which can trap people in endless cycles of debt and escalating fees. Many States, such as my own state of New Jersey, have enacted tough laws to deal with the problem. Unfortunately, the OCC’s ruling substantially undermines these important regulatory efforts. That will leave many consumers unprotected, and it shifts too many responsibilities to a single agency here in Washington that is not equipped to handle them. After all, according to the OCC’s website, the OCC “does not have the mandate to engage in consumer advocacy”.

Although the OCC has a long and successful record of regulating for safety and soundness, it has little experience dealing with abusive local practices, such as predatory lending. Believe it or not, the OCC actually is proposing to handle all consumer complaints through a single, lightly staffed call center in Houston. This is totally unrealistic. Each year, State officials receive thousands of related complaints, which usually are very local in nature. These officials are at the forefront of the enforcement effort, identifying and combating new practices as they arise. The OCC’s system simply could not fill this vital role without major changes.

The OCC rule also raises concerns about regulatory charter competition, the viability of a broad range of State laws, and the ability of consumers and State officials to seek remedies in court. This concern is only reinforced by two other developments.

First is a general counsel opinion by the Office of Thrift Supervision that attempts to extend federal preemption beyond a thrift’s corporate family. That effort would nullify the application of state consumer protection laws over independent, third-party agents of federal thrifts, and is particularly threatening to state insurance and securities authority. A second is the FDIC’s consideration of a rule that would allow State-chartered banks the same preemptive privileges for out-of-State branches as those of national banks. These two recent developments only reinforce concerns about a “race to the bottom” scenario.

The OCC rule has provoked strong opposition from governors, attorneys general, banking supervisors, and many consumer advocacy groups, not to mention the public. The OCC received over 2,600 letters in response to its rules, and more than 90 percent opposed them.

The Preservation of Federalism in Banking Act is a reasonable response to the OCC rule. The bill will clarify that national banks must comply with certain state consumer protection laws, such as anti-predatory lending laws and privacy acts. While the OCC has long had the statutory responsibility to regulate the activities of national banks, it has never denied the ability of States to protect their citizens. The OCC historically has used its authority under the National Bank Act in a reasonable way to shield national banks from State banking laws that intrude on the OCC’s congressionally-granted powers. While we should continue to support the appropriate use of the agency’s authority, it is important that we immediately intervene to reverse the OCC’s regulatory overreach and prevent the agency from preemption all state consumer protection laws and State authority to enforce related laws.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of the legislation be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

By Mr. Frist (for himself, Mr. McConnell, Mr. Gregg, Mr. Enzi, Ms. Murkowski, and Mr. DeMint):

S. 1503. A bill to reduce healthcare costs, expand access to affordable healthcare coverage, and improve healthcare and strengthen the health care safety net, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. Frist. Mr. President, wherever I travel, America tells me the same things about our health care system: it costs too much, leaves too many without insurance, and does too little to help those in need.

America has the world’s best hospitals, doctors, nurses, and medical research labs. But we do not always provide the best care. And we certainly do not provide it at an affordable price. We face real problems. And we need to act.

Two years ago, I appointed a task force to investigate what Congress could do. Under the leadership of Senator Judd Gregg, the task force reported back with a series of comprehensive recommendations. The President has also proposed some very constructive policy initiatives. We took all of these proposals into account when we wrote this bill.

The legislation we propose today will build upon our record of accomplishment on health care. The Republican Congress has created a Medicare drug benefit for seniors, made tax-free, portable Health Savings Accounts available to all Americans, and has begun the process of moving our medical system into the information age.

This week, we will pass and send to the President a long-overdue measure to encourage doctors and hospitals to report medical errors voluntarily. The measure will save lives, and it will improve health care quality.

But we still have more to do.

The legislation we are proposing today needs to address four broad areas: reducing costs, expanding health coverage, and improving the quality of care. In this bill—"The Healthy America Act of 2005"—we provide comprehensive solutions that will improve health care for every American.

We begin by speaking about cost. Every year, Americans see their health care costs soar. Just 15 years ago, less than 1 out of every 10 dollars Americans spent went for health care. In 10 years, almost one out of every five dollars you spend will go towards health care.

Rising life expectancy and the cost of new technologies, treatments, and medical procedures all drive up costs. But we can do more to hold them in check. And we must.

Rapidly rising health costs threaten our Nation’s small business owners, and our largest corporate areas. They can harm our economy; cost jobs, and hurt Americans from all walks of life. During the past few years, for example, health care costs have grown three to four times more quickly than wages.

First, we need to reform our broken medical liability system. Under our current medical system, doctors face enormous incentives to order unnecessary tests and procedures simply to avoid the risk of lawsuits.

It’s expensive, it’s wasteful, and unnecessary, and, most of all, it’s dangerous. It needs to change and, under this bill, it will.

Hospitals, doctors, patients, and insurers all shoulder some responsibility for rising costs. To keep costs down, we need to put the patient at the heart of health care. That’s why we propose reforms to let patients own and control privacy-protected electronic medical records, cut down on fraud in our Medicare and Medicaid programs, reduce medical errors, and reduce unnecessary regulations and mandates.

Lower costs alone will help many Americans get the care they need and deserve. But we also have to look at ways to cover more Americans who would still find themselves left behind.
Through changes to tax laws, we can make it easier for lower-income individuals and small businesses to purchase affordable, high quality health insurance.

And we can also provide more options for those who take care of their own health care by making flexible spending accounts more flexible and health savings accounts even more affordable for individuals and small businesses.

Finally, the Federal Government can help support State high-risk pools that help provide health coverage to individuals who couldn’t otherwise afford care.

America is a caring Nation and we must recognize that not everyone has equal ability to take care of his or her own health. That’s why we need to expand our safety net for the truly needy.

Many of those without health insurance—particularly children—qualify for benefits under existing programs but do not receive them. By providing grants to faith-based and community organizations, we can help more families sign up their children for available health coverage.

We also need to expand the availability of health care services to individuals in need by expanding Community Health Centers and Rural Health Clinics to more rural areas and poor counties.

We should also act to make prescription drugs more affordable for low-income Americans and provide legal protections and loan forbearance that will make it easier for health care practitioners who volunteer their time and services to provide needed care in community health centers and free clinics.

Every American should have health care that’s available, affordable, and always there.

And we must hold fast to this principle: patients should sit at the center of the health care system, not the government, not insurance companies, and certainly not predatory trial lawyers.

The system should free providers to focus on caring for their patients: not maximizing patient recovery.

We should also act to make prescription drugs more affordable for low-income Americans and provide legal protections and loan forbearance that will make it easier for health care practitioners who volunteer their time and services to provide needed care in community health centers and free clinics.

Every American should have health care that’s available, affordable, and always there.

Today, we’ve put forward a plan that will take a major step towards centering America’s health care system on the patient.

Our vision for what all Americans should look like. Now we only need the courage to make it happen.

I want to thank Senator GREGG, and all of the members of the Task Force who worked so diligently on this legislation. I also want to recognize the contributions of the other cosponsors of this legislation: Senators MIRCH McCONNELL, MIKE ENZI, LISA MURKOWSKI, and JIM DEMINT. I urge all of my colleagues to join us in supporting this bill. I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Subtitle A—Medical Liability Reform

SEC. 101. SHORT TITLE. This title may be cited as the “Patients First Act of 2005”.

SEC. 102. FINDINGS AND PURPOSE.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that our current civil justice system is adversely affecting patient access to health care services, better patient care, and cost-efficient health care, that in the current health care liability system is a costly and ineffective mechanism for resolving claims of health care liability and compensation, and is a deterrent to the sharing of information among health care professionals which impedes efforts to improve patient safety and quality of care.

(b) PURPOSE.—Congress finds that the health care and insurance industries are industries affecting interstate commerce and the health care liability litigation systems existing throughout the United States are activities that affect interstate commerce by contributing to the high costs of health care and premiums for health care insurance purchased by health care system providers.

(c) EFFECT ON FEDERAL SPENDING.—Congress finds that the health care liability litigation systems existing throughout the United States have a significant effect on federal spending and that reducing the liability costs associated with health care lawsuits would result in a reduction of federal spending.

(d) EFFECT ON HEALTH CARE ACCESS AND COSTS.—Congress finds that our current civil justice system is adversely affecting patient access to health care services, better patient care, and cost-efficient health care, that in the current health care liability system is a costly and ineffective mechanism for resolving claims of health care liability and compensation, and is a deterrent to the sharing of information among health care professionals which impedes efforts to improve patient safety and quality of care.

SEC. 103. ENCOURAGING SPEEDY RESOLUTION OF CLAIMS.

The time for the commencement of a health care lawsuit shall be 3 years after the effective date of this section, unless the claim is for health care provided under Federal or State law, subsection (a) shall not apply.

SEC. 104. COMPENSATING PATIENT INJURY.

(a) UNLIMITED AMOUNT OF DAMAGES FOR ACTUAL ECONOMIC LOSSES WITHIN HEALTH CARE LAWSUITS.—In any health care lawsuit, the full amount of a claimant's economic loss may be fully recovered without limitation.

(b) ADDITIONAL noneconomic Damages.—In any health care lawsuit, the amount of non-economic damages recovered may be as much as $250,000, regardless of the number of parties in action brought or the number of separate claims or actions brought.

(c) EXPERT WITNESSES.—(1) E FFECT ON HEALTH CARE ACCESS AND COSTS.—Congress finds that our current civil justice system is adversely affecting patient access to health care services, better patient care, and cost-efficient health care, that in the current health care liability system is a costly and ineffective mechanism for resolving claims of health care liability and compensation, and is a deterrent to the sharing of information among health care professionals which impedes efforts to improve patient safety and quality of care.

SEC. 105. MAXIMIZING PATIENT RECOVERY.

(a) COURT SUPERVISION OF SHARE OF DAMAGES ACTUALLY PAID TO CLAIMANTS.—In any health care lawsuit, the court shall supervise the arrangements for payment of damages to protect against conflicts of interest that may have the effect of reducing the amount of damages actually paid to claimants. In particular, in any health care lawsuit in which the attorney for a party claims a financial stake in the outcome by virtue of the premium note issued by the defendant, the court shall have the power to restrict the payment of a claimant’s damage recovery to such attorney, and to redirect such damages to the claimant based upon the interests of justice and principles of equity. In no event shall the total of all contingent fees for representing claimants in a health care lawsuit exceed the following limits:

SEC. 107. PUNITIVE DAMAGES.

(a) In GENERAL.—Punitive damages may, if otherwise permitted by any applicable State or Federal law, be awarded against any person in a health care lawsuit only if it is proven by clear and convincing evidence that such person acted with malicious intent to injure the claimant, or that such person deliberately failed to avoid unnecessary injury that such person knew the claimant was substantially certain to suffer. S.J. Res. 21. A joint resolution recognizing Commodore John Barry as the first flag officer of the United States Navy, to the Committee on Armed Services.

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the joint resolution be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the joint resolution was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S.J. Res. 21

Whereas John Barry, American merchant mariner and Revolutionary War privateer of County Wexford, Ireland, volunteered his services to the Continental Navy during the American War for Independence and was assigned by the Continental Congress as captain of the Lexington, taking command of that vessel on March 14, 1776, and later participating in the victorious Trenton campaign;

Whereas the quality and effectiveness of Captain John Barry’s service to the American war effort was recognized not only by George Washington but also by the enemies of their new Nation;

Whereas Captain John Barry rejected British General Lord Howe’s flattering offer to desert Washington and the patriot cause, stating he would remain and command of the whole British fleet can lure me from the cause of my country;”;

Whereas Captain John Barry, while in command of the frigate Alliance, successfully transported French gold to America to help finance the American War for Independence and also won numerous victories at sea;

Whereas when the First Congress, acting under the new Constitution of the United States, authorized the raising and construction of a Navy, it was to Commodore John Barry that President George Washington turned to build and lead the new Nation’s infant Navy, the successor to the Continental Navy of the War for Independence;

Whereas Captain John Barry supervised the building of his flagship, the U.S.S. United States Navy;

Whereas on February 22, 1797, President Washington personally conferred upon Captain John Barry, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, the rank of Captain, with “Commission No. 1”, United States Navy, dated June 7, 1794;

Whereas John Barry served as the senior officer of the United States Navy, with the title of “Commodore” (in official correspondence), under Presidents Washington, John Adams, and Jefferson;

Whereas as commander of the first United States naval squadron under the Constitution of the United States, which included the U.S.S. Constitution (“Old Ironsides”), John Barry was a Commodore, with the right to fly a broad pennant, which made him a flag officer; and

Whereas in this sense it can be said that Commodore John Barry was the first flag officer of the United States Navy: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That Commodore John Barry is recognized, and is hereby honored, as the first flag officer of the United States Navy

SENATE RESOLUTION 211—DESIGNATING AUGUST 19, 2005, AS “NATIONAL DYSPRAXIA AWARENESS DAY” AND EXPRESSING THE SENSE OF THE SENATE THAT ALL AMERICANS SHOULD BE MORE INFORMED OF DYSPRAXIA

Ms. LANDRIEU submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary:

S. Res. 211

Whereas an estimated 1 in 20 children suffers from the developmental disorder dyspraxia;

Whereas 70 percent of those affected by dyspraxia are male; and

Whereas dyspraxia may be of average or above average intelligence but are often behaviorally immature;

Whereas symptoms of dyspraxia consist of clumsiness, poor body awareness, reading and writing difficulties, speech problems, and learning disabilities, though not all of these will apply to every dyspraxic;

Whereas there is no cure for dyspraxia, but the earlier a child is treated the greater the chance of developmental maturation;

Whereas dyspraxics may be shunned within their own peer group because they do not fit in;

Whereas most dyspraxic children are dismissed as “slow” or “clumsy” and are therefore not properly diagnosed;

Whereas when the First Congress, acting under the new Constitution of the United States, authorized the raising and construction of a Navy, it was to Commodore John Barry that President George Washington turned to build and lead the new Nation’s infant Navy, the successor to the Continental Navy of the War for Independence;

Whereas Captain John Barry supervised the building of his flagship, the U.S.S. United States Navy;

Whereas when the First Congress, acting under the new Constitution of the United States, authorized the raising and construction of a Navy, it was to Commodore John Barry that President George Washington turned to build and lead the new Nation’s infant Navy, the successor to the Continental Navy of the War for Independence;

Whereas Senator Charles B. Mathias, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, the rank of Captain, with “Commission No. 1”, United States Navy, dated June 7, 1794;

Whereas John Barry served as the senior officer of the United States Navy, with the title of “Commodore” (in official correspondence), under Presidents Washington, John Adams, and Jefferson;

WHEREAS the Senate, as an institution, and Members of the Senate, as individuals, are in unique positions to help raise the public awareness about dyspraxia; Now, therefore, be it

Resolved. That—

(1) the Senate designates August 19, 2005, as “National Dyspraxia Awareness Day”; and

(2) it is the sense of the Senate that—

(A) all Americans should be more informed of dyspraxia, its easily recognizable symptoms, and its proper treatment;

(B) the Secretary of Education should enact policies to promote awareness for prekindergarten and secondary schools across the Nation to encourage the social acceptance of dyspraxic children; and

(C) the Federal Government has a responsibility to—

(i) endeavor to raise awareness about dyspraxia;

(ii) consider ways to increase the knowledge of possible therapy and access to health care services for people with dyspraxia; and

(iii) endeavor to inform educators on how to recognize dyspraxics and to appropriately handle this disorder.

Ms. LANDRIEU. Mr. President, I rise today to say just a few words on the resolution I have submitted concerning dyspraxia, a developmental disorder that affects 1 in 20 American children each year. My intent is to increase the public’s awareness of this disability and to encourage each of my colleagues to do the same.

Let me share a few facts with you. Dyspraxia is caused by the malformation of the neurons of the brain, resulting in the inability of one’s senses to respond efficiently to outside stimuli. It may manifest itself in various areas, such as movement, language, perception, and thought, causing difficulty in both work and play. One in twenty children suffers from this disorder. Seventy percent of those affected are male, and in children suffering from extreme emotional and behavioral difficulties, the incidence is believed to be more than 50 percent. Dyspraxic children fail to achieve the expected levels of development. Due to difficulties, these kids are often shunned from their peer groups because they do not fit in. There is no cure for dyspraxia, but the earlier a child is diagnosed the greater the chance of developmental maturation. However, many times these children are dismissed as “clumsy” and “slow” and are never given a chance to improve, finding it hard to succeed under such harsh specifications. The public’s unawareness of dyspraxia is the chief reason that children and young adults go undiagnosed, unable to recognize a cause for their struggles. More than 50 percent of our educators are unaware that this disability even exists. With such alarming statistics, the number of children recognized cannot be expected to increase.

One of my former interns has a younger brother that suffers from this disease. Borden Wilson is actually a success story. At age 4, Borden’s parents noted that he was not able to perform tasks appropriate for his age. His

(B) the Board of Public Utilities of the city; and

(C) any agency, public utility, or enterprise associated with the growth of the city.

(b) OBJECTIVE.—The term “Kendrick Project” means the Bureau of Reclamation project on the North Platte
River that was authorized by a finding of feasibility approved by the President on August 30, 1935, and constructed for irrigation and electric power generation, the major features of which include
(A) Seminole Dam, Reservoir, and Powerplant; and
(B) Alcova Dam and Powerplant.

(c) SECRETARY.—The term "Secretary" means the Secretary of the Interior, acting through the Commissioner of Reclamation.

(4) STATE.—The term "State" means the State of Wyoming.

(b) CONTRACTS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary may enter into 1 or more contracts with the city for annual storage of the city's water for municipal and industrial use in Seminole Dam and Reservoir of the Kendrick Project.

(2) CONDITIONS.—

(A) TERM; RENEWAL.—A contract under paragraph (1) shall—

(i) have a term of not more than 40 years; and

(ii) may be renewed on terms agreeable to the Secretary and the city, for successive terms of not more than 40 years per term.

(B) REVENSES.—Notwithstanding the Act of May 9, 1938 (52 Stat. 322, chapter 187; 43 U.S.C. 392a)

(i) any operation and maintenance charges received under a contract executed under paragraph (1) shall be credited against applicable operation and maintenance costs of the Kendrick Project; and

(ii) any other revenues received under a contract executed under paragraph (1) shall be credited to the Reclamation Fund as a credit to the construction costs of the Kendrick Project.

(C) EFFECT ON EXISTING CONTRACTORS.—A contract under paragraph (1) shall not adversely affect the Kendrick Project, any existing model of collaborative science-based water resource planning and management entity for the Kendrick Project, or any exchange of lands located within the Verde River Basin watershed by limiting water usage on certain exchanged lands and by supporting the development of a collaborative science-based water resource planning and management entity for the Verde River Basin watershed.

The Arizona delegation and a broad array of local area officials are strongly supportive of the legislation because it will offer significant benefits for all parties. Benefits will accrue to the U.S. Forest Service and the public with the consolidation of checkerboard lands and the protection and enhanced management of extensive forest and grasslands. The communities of Flagstaff, Williams, and Camp Verde will also benefit in terms of economic development opportunities, water supply, and other important purposes.

While facilitating the exchange of public and private lands is a very important objective of this legislation, and indeed, was the original purpose when we began working on it several years ago, the provisions concerning water management are perhaps even more important. Since introducing the original legislation over 2 years ago, I have heard from hundreds of Arizonans and learned first-hand of the significant water issues raised by the transfer of Federal land into private ownership. We have modified the bill to take into account many of the concerns raised during meetings held throughout northern Arizona, including removing certain lands entirely from the exchange.

There is growing recognition of the need to develop and promote the wise management of Arizona’s limited water supplies, particularly with the extended drought coupled with rapid population growth. As such, the bill passed by the Senate would not only limit water usage on the exchanged lands, but also provide an opportunity to encourage sound water management in northern Arizona through the creation of a collaborative, science-based decision-making body to advance essential planning and management at the State and local level in Northern Arizona.

To be successful, this effort will require the involvement of all the stakeholders with water supply responsibilities and interests. It will also require a solid foundation of knowledge about available resources and existing demands. We are fortunate to have an existing model of collaborative science-based water resource planning and management with the Upper San Pedro Partnership in the Sierra Vista subwatershed of Arizona. In my view, the establishment of a similar, cooperative body in the Verde Basin will be a vital step in assuring the wise use of our limited water resources.

Again, I want to thank all of the parties involved with this legislation.
