The House met at 10 a.m. and was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore, Mrs. MILLER of Michigan.

PRAYER

The Reverend Mac Hammond, Living Word Christian Center, Brooklyn Park, MN, offered the following prayer:

Heavenly Father, as we gather together in this historic place, we ask You to give them wisdom and understanding in every decision they face, so that Your truth will continue to be reflected in our laws. During this session, may they be responsive to Your direction, aware of Your grace, and guided by Your precepts.

We also ask You to protect, strengthen and encourage our troops in Iraq, Afghanistan, and the myriad of other places around the world where they are courageously protecting and promoting our liberty. Lead each Member in Your ways, and bless their families as You do.

May Your grace abound to all and continually remind each citizen of this great country that we are loved by You. This we pray in the name which is above all names. Amen.

THE JOURNAL

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair has examined the Journal of the last day's proceedings and announces to the House her approval thereof. Pursuant to clause 1, rule I, the Journal stands approved.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the gentleman from Tennessee (Mrs. BLACKBURN) come forward and lead the House in the Pledge of Allegiance.

Mrs. BLACKBURN led the Pledge of Allegiance as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

WELCOMING PASTOR MAC HAMMOND

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. RAMSTAD) is recognized for 1 minute.

There was no objection.

Mr. RAMSTAD. Madam Speaker, it is my honor to welcome this morning's guest chaplain, Pastor Mac Hammond. Pastor Hammond and his wife, Pastor Lynne, who is with us in the gallery, are pastors of the Living Word Christian Center, a vibrant church in the Third Congressional District located in Brooklyn Park, MN.

This is an incredible story. On November 12, 1980, Mac and Lynne Hammond stood before a gathering of 12 people in a small meeting room at a hotel in Plymouth, Minnesota. On that day, Living Word Christian Center was born. Today, 25 years later, Living Word has grown to an active congregation of more than 10,000 members.

Pastor Mac Hammond's inspiring life has spanned several careers, from Air Force captain, where he served as a pilot, to owner of an air cargo business, to gifted minister of the gospel. The people of our area, of our State are so grateful for Pastor Mac Hammond and his ministry to the community.

Mr. RAMSTAD. Madam Speaker, it is my honor to welcome this morning's guest chaplain, Pastor Mac Hammond. Pastor Hammond and his wife, Pastor Lynne, who is with us in the gallery, are pastors of the Living Word Christian Center, a vibrant church in the Third Congressional District located in Brooklyn Park, MN.

This is an incredible story. On November 12, 1980, Mac and Lynne Hammond stood before a gathering of 12 people in a small meeting room at a hotel in Plymouth, Minnesota. On that day, Living Word Christian Center was born. Today, 25 years later, Living Word has grown to an active congregation of more than 10,000 members.

Pastor Mac Hammond's inspiring life has spanned several careers, from Air Force captain, where he served as a pilot, to owner of an air cargo business, to gifted minister of the gospel. The people of our area, of our State are so grateful for Pastor Mac Hammond and his ministry to the community.

The Living Word Christian Center is home to a number of important ministries that are truly doing the Lord's work here on Earth. Close to my heart, the Living Free Recovery Services program provides treatment to families struggling with the ravages of drug and alcohol addiction. Living Word also operates Maranatha Christian Academy and Maranatha College, two highly respected, God-centered academic institutions in our area.

The church's Compassion Center ministers to inner-city residents, and CFAITH provides online missionary outreach.

We are all very grateful, Madam Speaker, for these wonderful ministries and for the faith, hope, and love brought to so many by Pastors Mac and Lynne Hammond. As you heard in his moving prayer, Pastor Hammond is a tremendously gifted speaker and a true man of God.

I knew Mac would offer a truly inspirational prayer this morning, and God knows we needed it. Many thanks, Pastor Hammond, for your moving and thoughtful prayer and for serving the House of Representatives as our guest chaplain.

FISCAL MISMANAGEMENT

(Mr. BLUMENAUER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. BLUMENAUER. Madam Speaker, the Republican fiscal mismanagement is so bad, and their budget proposals so dreadful, that even the Republican Caucus is having difficulty swallowing it. Mainstream Republicans do not agreed with K Street Republicans, who do not agree with Wall Street Republicans; but they are hopelessly out of touch with the street where most Americans live.

The Republican Congress seeks to mask their fiscal irresponsibility with cuts for not only the poor, the sick, for students and their families, literally taking food from the mouths of poor children to pay for more tax cuts for people who need them the least.

There is much talk of scandal here in Washington, but to have a proposal offered up that would actually increase the deficit more than if they just gave up and went home is a scandal. It is a scandal how tragically out of touch my Republican colleagues are from the needs and desires of the average American.

HONORING VETERANS

(Mrs. KELLY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mrs. KELLY. Madam Speaker, I urge my colleagues to honor the sacrifices of their local veterans by cosponsoring H.R. 1951, which would mint a coin for America’s disabled veterans. The proceeds would be used for a Disabled Veterans Memorial on the National Mall.

This Congress needs to remember the sacrifices of veterans not only on Veterans Day, but throughout the year. For that purpose, we also must pass the SAVE U.S. VETS Act to restore VA funds to veterans health care facilities in the Northeast.

The Paralyzed Veterans of America, the Disabled American Veterans, and the Military Order of the Purple Heart all support our bill for a first-of-its-kind tribute to America’s disabled veterans.

This Congress needs to remember the sacrifices of veterans not only on Veterans Day, but throughout the year.

Mr. ROSS. Madam Speaker, for the first time in about 50 years, the Republicans control the White House, the House, and the Senate. So let us look at the real state of the union and what they have given us:

$8 trillion in debt. In fact, this Nation is borrowing $907 million a day, $188 million a day going to Iraq, $33 million a day going to Afghanistan. In fact, this President and this Republican Congress have borrowed more money from foreigners in the past 5 years than the previous 42 Presidents combined. And all this before the hurricane season. Now they are imposing in tomorrow’s budget reconciliation cutting Medicaid $12 billion, cutting food stamps and farm programs $3.7 billion, cutting student loans $14.3 billion. And for what? To pay for another $70 billion in tax cuts for those earning over $100,000 a year.

Madam Speaker, these are not my priorities. These are not America’s priorities. These are not the kinds of conservative, small-town values that I was raised on and still believe in.

RENEWABLE DOMESTIC FUELS

(Mr. SHIMKUS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SHIMKUS. Madam Speaker, in July of this year, the President signed into law the Energy Policy Act of 2005, which enacted the first-ever renewable fuel standard in order for a portion of our Nation’s fuel supply to be provided by renewable domestic fuels like ethanol from corn and biodiesel made from soybeans. This provision is an example of public policy that is moving in the right direction. For example, E-85, a blend of 85 percent ethanol fuel, is becoming more common and widely in the Midwest and it costs less at the pump. Just this week in my southern Illinois district, E-85 was on average 22 cents cheaper than regular gasoline at the pump. In some cases, E-85 stayed below $2 per gallon.

The expanded use of renewable fuels like E-85 helps stretch domestic oil supply and decrease our reliance on foreign imports of oil. As we all know, no crude oil refineries have been built in the United States since 1976. During that time, close to 100 ethanol refineries have been built. It is my hope that this growth continues to happen. Renewable fuels are an environmentally friendly, domestic alternative fuel source that we can utilize to increase U.S. supply and decrease our reliance on foreign imports of oil.

CUTS TO STUDENT AID

(Ms. LINDA T. SÁNCHEZ of California asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Ms. LINDA T. SÁNCHEZ. Madam Speaker, when I was elected to Congress, I never thought I would be asked to participate in crushing the dreams of American children. But that is exactly what the House majority is asking me to do. The House budget reconciliation bill includes $14.3 billion in overall cuts to Federal student aid programs over the next 5 years. This cut will be the single largest cut in the entire history of the student aid program. I thought the majority did not want to leave any child behind. But obviously what this cut means is they do not want to leave you behind, until you want to go to college. I know firsthand the importance of student aid. I would not be standing on the floor of this House if it were not for student aid programs. These loans made my education dreams a reality. I am the only member of the California congressional delegation still paying off her student loans. Each month I proudly write that check because I know the best investment I and my seven brothers and sisters could have made was our investment in our own education.

Can you imagine where we will be in 20 years when we lack the professionals that we need in this country? Make no mistake, these proposed cuts to student aid programs will negatively impact the future of our workforce and our economy.

THE MAINSTREAM

(Mr. PITTS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. PITTS. Madam Speaker, some liberals opposed to the nomination of Judge Samuel Alito to the Supreme Court claim that Judge Alito is “outside the mainstream” because he supported the spousal notice provision of the Pennsylvania Abortion Control Act. Madam Speaker, this was not paternal notice; it was spousal notice. This was not spousal consent. It was spousal notice. This was not paternal, this was spousal notice. Polling showed nearly 75 percent of the Americans support this provision.

So what is the mainstream in America today? In 2004, 13 States included on their ballot a constitutional amendment defining marriage as the union between a man and a woman. All 13 States passed the measure by wide margins. Today, it is up to 19 States. The polls overwhelmingly support this definition.

A Zogby poll showed 77 percent of Americans support a law requiring a pregnant woman be given information about fetal pain prior to an abortion. Other polls show nearly 90 percent support including the phrase “under God” in the Pledge of Allegiance. A 2005 Gallup poll shows 75 percent of Americans think that State government entities should be allowed to display the 10 Commandments.

Let us not allow liberal interest groups to arbitrarily define the mainstream for us.

BUDGET RECONCILIATION

(Mr. HINOJOSA asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. HINOJOSA. Madam Speaker, tomorrow the leadership of this House will bring up a budget reconciliation bill which makes cuts to Medicaid, food stamp programs for children, student loan aid programs that will force thousands of college students to leave school and prevent thousands more from even beginning higher education at the community college or university of their choice.

At a time when we are importing scientists, engineers, doctors, nurses and other highly trained workers to keep our economy running, this House is going to siphon off student aid dollars to provide $70 billion in tax cuts for the rich. According to the Congressional Budget Office, there will be nearly $8 billion in new charges to students and families that will raise the cost of their college loans at a time when the cost of higher education is rising much faster than the rate of inflation.

This reconciliation bill is not about controlling runaway Federal spending. It is about destroying our future for the short-term benefit of a privileged few. I urge my colleagues to oppose this shortsighted budget reconciliation bill.

MEDIACID

(Mrs. BLACKBURN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Mrs. BLACKBURN. Madam Speaker, in the midst of all of our efforts to rein in Federal spending, you have Members of this body and special interest groups telling the American people that we are slashing Medicaid. They are saying that our Deficit Reduction Act will actually cut Medicaid.

Madam Speaker, our plan does not cut. Since when does slowing the growth, and tremendous growth at that, from 7.3 percent to 7 percent a year constitute a cut? The left needs to stop playing games. If they want us to keep spending and spending until there is nothing left, until we cannot spend any more, then they need to be honest about it and they need to say that. But don’t call a 0.3 percent reduction in growth a cut. It is dishonest and our constituents deserve better.

BUDGET RECONCILIATION

(Mr. SALAZAR asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. SALAZAR. Madam Speaker, I stand united with my fellow Blue Dogs in protest of this reckless budget vote that we will be taking this week. I have said time and time again that our budget is a moral document and it is about our priorities and values as a nation.

Let us be clear about this budget reconciliation and what it will do for America. It will pay for tax cuts for the rich on the backs of our Nation’s poorest, including low-income seniors who receive help from Medicaid.

It abandons rural America by proposing $1 billion in cuts to ag commodity programs.

It takes aim at valuable research and conservation programs that will help farmers to stay on the land.

And in a time when everyone is concerned about rising energy prices, this bill cuts funds for renewable energy programs. Yet none of these savings will go towards balancing our budget.

Together we can do better. We need to return to responsible budget principles that include pay-as-you-go spending. We need a balanced budget amendment. And we need a Federal system that is honest with the American people.

I urge my colleagues to vote “no” on this budget reconciliation.

PRESEVRING OUR SYSTEM OF JUSTICE

(Mr. PRICE of Georgia asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. PRICE of Georgia. Madam Speaker, last March Atlanta experienced one of the worst instances of courthouse violence on record. A defendant overpowered a courthouse security guard, grabbed her weapon and shot a judge dead in his own courtroom. The defendant then escaped, setting off a massive manhunt until he was captured a short while later.

Incidents of courthouse violence are spreading. Chicago, Illinois, and Tyler, Texas, have also experienced vicious crimes against our judicial system. Many States are working to prevent this from happening again by improving courthouse security. This is a step in the right direction. But we must do more to protect judges, attorneys, jurors, and other courthouse employees from ever having to confront this kind of danger. We must not allow criminals to compromise our judicial system.

Today we have an opportunity to act to strengthen penalties against those who commit courthouse violence and protect Federal judiciary employees from falling prey to criminals attacking their personal finances.

Madam Speaker, the Secure Access to Justice and Court Protection Act is before us today, and I urge my colleagues to support this important initiative to preserve and protect our system of justice.

CRUEL REPUBLICAN MEDICAID CUTS AND MISGUIDED PRIORITIES—AMERICA CAN DO BETTER

(Mr. STUPAK asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. STUPAK. Madam Speaker, tomorrow House Republicans will show
America their misguided priorities. In order to once again provide the wealthiest few in our Nation with tax breaks adding up to $70 billion, House Republicans will cut $54 billion from needed programs, including $12 billion to Medicaid.

America can do better than slashing health care for low-income children, seniors, and people with disabilities to pay for additional tax breaks for millionaires.

America can do better than slashing a program that provides insurance to one of every seven Americans, at a time when the number of the uninsured has risen by 6 million under this President.

America can do better than increasing costs for essential health care services for the poorest Americans, including for the first time ever the poorest children, which will reduce their access to needed health care.

America can do better than a budget package where $3 out every $4 in Medicaid cuts are borne directly by individuals who are poor or disabled.

When are the House Republicans going to realize a stronger America is one where we all work together? Together, America can do better.

IRAQI SPECIAL TRIBUNAL HOUSE RESOLUTION

(Mr. BURGESS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BURGESS. Madam Speaker, the path to a free and democratic Iraq has been dangerous and protracted. Yet, after years of oppression, the Iraqis are closer than ever to having a nation ruled by their people instead of a tyrant.

For the safety of our Nation, I believe we must continue to support the sovereign actions of this developing nation.

Current news headlines are showcasing the trial of Saddam Hussein and what danger accompanies that activity. His trial is important, but a principle, especially in a land that has been dangerous and protracted. Yet, after years of oppression, the Iraqis are closer than ever to having a nation ruled by their people instead of a tyrant.

As Members of Congress, we have an obligation to uphold and support this principle, especially in a land that has been so tormented. The Iraqi Special Tribunal has been impaneled to bring swift and impartial justice to both the victims and the nation of Iraq. I urge Members to support H.R. 534, recognizing the importance and credibility of an independent Iraqi judiciary.

NATIONAL DEBT SURPASSES $8 TRILLION

(Mr. CARDOZA asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. CARDOZA. Madam Speaker, just 2 weeks ago, the national debt passed the $8 trillion mark.

This unfortunate milestone was the direct result of policies put in place by the leadership of this Congress and the Bush White House. Now our friends on the other side of the aisle want the Members of the Blue Dog Coalition to endorse their latest push to run the debt even higher.

This budget package should be called the “Deficit Expansion Act.” It would continue drowning America in red ink in order to finance new tax cuts for the wealthy and privileged. It is time for a real strategy for fiscal responsibility, not more of the same.

The Blue Dog Coalition has put forward a comprehensive, 12-step plan that would dig America out of this fiscal mess. Our proposal includes commonsense reforms such as reinstating PAYGO rules and discretionary spending caps.

I strongly urge my colleagues in Congress to take immediate action on the debt by embracing real bipartisan reform.

A SALUTE TO VETERANS

(Mr. STEARNS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. STEARNS, Madam Speaker, this Friday Americans will observe Veterans Day, a special day of national observance that we have set aside to remember our veterans and their sacrifices.

The 50 million Americans who have served our country since the American Revolution have done more than just protect our national security. They fought for our freedom, and in doing so, our veterans have provided a shining example for the millions of Americans who followed in their footsteps.

In my own family, my father served in the Navy during World War II in the Pacific theater. He was in the Iwo Jima campaign and was awarded the Bronze Star.

Nearly 2 million veterans live in my home State of Florida. Thousands of my fellow Floridians have served or are on active duty in Afghanistan and Iraq. Some of these soldiers have made the ultimate sacrifice and many have suffered grievous wounds. I salute these brave men and women.

Madam Speaker, may God bless our veterans, their families, and this great Nation.

REPUBLICAN CUTS TO FOOD STAMP AND OTHER AGRICULTURAL PROGRAMS

(Ms. WATSON asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Ms. WATSON. Madam Speaker, this week, Republicans will bring a budget reconciliation bill up that cuts critical Federal programs that directly affect the lives of everyday Americans, all so they can turn around and cut taxes that primarily benefit America’s millionaires.

Among the proposals they will bring and will try to force through are dramatic cuts in food assistance programs to our most vulnerable. According to the CBO, the Republican food stamp cuts would knock nearly 300,000 Americans off nutritional assistance programs. Included in that number are 40,000 children who would no longer receive either free or reduced-price school lunches.

No other group has benefited more from 5 years of Republican domination in Washington than those who are the wealthiest in our Nation, and now Republicans want to take school lunches away from 40,000 children so they can provide America’s millionaires another tax break.

These children desperately need the nutrition provided in school lunches. It is cruel, and this bill must be defeated.

HONORING OUR VETERANS

(Mr. GINGREY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. GINGREY. Madam Speaker, I also rise today to pay tribute to America’s veterans, whose brave efforts have safeguarded those values we hold dear: freedom, liberty, democracy, and the American way of life.

This week, as we celebrate Veterans Day, I hope all Americans will take the time to thank a veteran for his or her service to our country.

From our Nation’s founding days, we have appreciated and recognized the sacrifices and valor of our veterans. General George Washington noted in 1776 that American soldiers “have done all I have asked you to do, and more than can be reasonably expected.” Our veterans today rise to this same challenge.

America’s veterans fought to preserve our great Nation, to liberate the oppressed, and to hold fast to the idea that freedom and liberty are universal rights worth fighting and, yes, sometimes dying for.

I want to thank all of our veterans for their selfless service. From Omaha Beach and the Pacific seas, to the jungles of Vietnam and the sands of the Middle East, we live every day with the gift of liberty because you secured our freedom and the freedom of generations to come.

BLUE DOGS STAND FIRM AGAINST REPUBLICAN BUDGET CUTS

(Ms. HERSETH asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Ms. HERSETH. Madam Speaker, I too stand united today with my fellow Blue Dog Democrats in opposition to the majority’s budget reconciliation decisions. Blue Dogs have consistently stood for fiscal responsibility, balanced budgets, and an honest, open, and accountable budget process.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to reject the Republican proposal that would in effect increase the deficit, not lower it? Why would we be in support of a budget reconciliation package that is part of a broken budget process in need of serious reform? And why would we support a budget reconciliation process that is part of an overtly partisan failed strategy, a strategy that will fail the House majority leadership? I would fail the American people if Blue Dogs did not stand firmly against it.

I encourage my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to stand firmly against it as well and vote “no” on the budget reconciliation bill.

DEFICIT REDUCTION ACT A GOOD FIRST STEP FOR AMERICA

(Mr. PENCE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. PENCE. Madam Speaker, earlier today, my good friend RAHIM EMANUEL, a Democrat from Illinois, said, “Tomorrow the House will vote on America’s $8 trillion national debt and with a Congress that spent $60 billion in 6 days without a thought as to how we were going to pay for it.” I could not agree more.

The gentleman from Illinois went on to say, “Where else could we cut food stamps and Medicaid?” and he answered, “With a Republican Congress” and a lament.

And I would ask, where else but in Washington, DC could a deficit reduction package actually increase entitlements by 6.5 percent, instead of the planned 6.4 percent, be called a cut? The budget cuts we will pass tomorrow, let me say again, will still increase spending in Medicaid student loans and aid to dependent families. As a conservative, as some of my Blue Dog colleagues have said, I do not think this deficit reduction act goes nearly far enough to do right by those children and grandchildren that we raise. But it is a good first step. It is a modest start in the direction of putting our fiscal house in order. I urge my Republican and Democrat colleagues of goodwill to support it.

Mr. CROWLEY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Ms. WOOLSEY. Madam Speaker, the Federal budget is about priorities. And with this budget, Republicans have their priorities all wrong. As an example, The Washington Post reports that young people from rural America are shouldering a disproportionate burden of the war in Iraq. Why? Rural Americans are increasingly willing to risk dying in this Iraqi quagmire to prove their chances of paying for college and getting a decent paying job.

More than 44 percent of military recruits now come from rural areas. Only 14 percent come from American cities. Also, many military recruits are financially strapped. Nearly 50 percent of them come from lower-middle-class to poor households. In 2004, nearly two-thirds of Army recruits came from counties in which median household income is below the national average.

Why do I tell you this? Because the response of this Republican-led Congress is to impose $14.5 billion in deeper budget cuts in student aid. How does that add up?

REPUBLICAN PRIORITIES DEMAND SACRIFICE OF THE MANY, PRO-VIDE ENRICHMENT OF THE FEW

(Mr. PALLONE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. PALLONE. Madam Speaker, the Republican budget bill is not a document of our Nation’s priorities. The Republicans are not listening to the needs of average Americans who want a fair budget and lower deficits.

Here are 10 quick reasons why this mean-spirited bill should be defeated this week. First, it takes from the poor and middle class to make the rich richer. Second, it imposes the largest cuts in student loans in history. Third, it provides a $24 billion windfall to delinquent duds. Fourth, it destroys the pristine Arctic refuge and endangers our coastline. Fifth, it worsens America’s health status by cutting Medicaid by $12 billion. Sixth, it cuts safety-net funding for our most vulnerable children. Seventh, it takes school lunches away from 40,000 kids who desperately need the nutritional content that those lunches provide. Eighth, it fails to adequately fund vital support services for workers. Ninth, it adds insult to injury for farmers in the form of commodity cuts. And tenth, despite all these cuts, it still increases the deficit. And I stress, it still swells the deficit.

FISCAL FANTASY

(Mr. KINGSTON asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. KINGSTON. Madam Speaker, I was listening to some of this hysteria and rhetoric from the Democrat Party, and I wonder sometimes if they actually believe what their speech writers apparently give them. Obviously, they do not read it before they start giving the speech because they know food stamps are going up $230 million. It is not a cut. Medicaid is going up $66 billion. That is not a cut. Medicaid goes up 7 percent instead of 7.3 percent. That is what you need to be saying; we think it should be going up more than you guys, but admit, as we all know, Medicaid is going up 7 percent, $66 billion.

Yet in Washington, D.C., just like Disney World, there is a lot of fantasy around us. And the fantasy is that if you do not get the increase that you want, you can go out and have the New York Times and Washington Post say, yes, he is right, that is a cut because they are not going up 7.3 percent, they are going up 7 percent. We have a plan to create a $14 billion savings and then we cut the $10 billion savings. Yesterday, the Democrat Party announced they would have no agenda for 2005. Well, surprise, surprise. It is only November. But when is the Demo- crat Party going to announce its alter- native? I will ask that question. I hope somebody will answer.

A ROSE BY ANY OTHER NAME

(Mr. BISHOP of Georgia asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. BISHOP. Madam Speaker, a rose by any other name smells just as sweet. And dungen by any other name stinks just as much. A stinking bill that cuts spending for Medicaid, food stamps, student loans, foster care, child support, school lunches, and senior care by $54 billion and then cuts revenue taxes for folks earning $200,000 or more by $70 billion still leaves a stinking deficit of $16 billion.

Add $7.1 billion for the cost of the President’s flu initiative and $200 billion for gulf coast reconstruction and that grows to $223 billion.

This Republican reconciliation package is misnamed. It is actually a sham. Republicans have rejected the Blue Dog 12-point plan to cut deficit spending and now want to fool the American people. Madam Speaker, you can dress up a pig and call it a lady, but it is still a stinking pig. You can dress up a sham and call it deficit reduction; but it still says oink, oink, still stinks and is still a lie.

REPUBLICAN CUTS TO FOOD STAMPS

(Mr. CROWLEY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. CROWLEY. Madam Speaker, I rise in opposition to the Republican cuts to food stamps under this reconciliation budget, an incredible total loss of $844 million, $844 million that comes directly from people in this country who are struggling to feed themselves and their families; $844 million from people who can least afford such a drastic cut. Such an im- migrant families are being treated par- ticularly inhumanely by this Repub- lican plan.

And let me be clear. We are talking about denying assistance to legal permanent residents, immigrants who by the rules, support our communities, and serve in our military; immi- grants who sacrifice so much to come here; immigrants who are frequently among the most vocal supporters of America and the American Dream. Under the Republican plan, 70,000 legal immigrant households will be denied food stamps for an extra 5 years.
But if the argument for supporting humane treatment of our immigrant population does not sway you, consider that many of these legal immigrant families include children, kids who are American citizens, kids who will be denied food stamps for an extra 5 years. If you do not see this as unconscionable, I do not know what you see as unconscionable. If you do not think this is un-American, I do not believe there is anything that is un-American more than this.

WHAT RECONCILIATION MEANS
(Mr. BOYD asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. BOYD. Madam Speaker, the Republican leadership has announced earlier that tomorrow we will vote on budget reconciliation. I wanted to understand better what reconciliation meant, so I went to Webster. Let me read to you what it means to reconcile: to restore to friendship or harmony; secondly, to make consistent or congruous; thirdly, to check a financial account against another for accuracy. That is Webster. The Republican budget reconciliation certainly does not restore friendship and harmony since they have been unwilling to include any Democrats, including our Blue Dog Coalition, in the discussion of this huge deficit problem. And it certainly does not make our financial accounts balance since it will increase our annual deficit by more than $16 billion. Under this administration and Republican leadership in Congress, our national debt has shot through the $8 trillion mark and continues to rise.

PAYGO PROPOSAL
(Mr. COOPER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. COOPER. Madam Speaker, I think most folks back home want us to get along with each other in order to strengthen our Nation. Well, can we best do that, especially at a time of contentious budget reconciliation? There is a simple proposal called PAYGO that is not theory; it has worked incredibly well. It worked from the year 1990 to the year 2002 when our friends on the other side of the aisle allowed it to expire. How does it work? Well, Alan Greenspan, the Chairman of the Federal Reserve, said it is the single most important thing we can do to right our fiscal ship. Pay-as-you-go means that if you want to spend more money, you have to pay for the cuts somewhere. Before you can think about spending the new money. And it also means if you want to offer someone a tax cut, that is fine. Just figure out a way to pay for it. It is a simple and clear rule, and it guided our Nation into prosperity from 1990 to 2002.

Why can we not readopt that? It has proven to work and work well for all Americans and to strengthen our Nation. The Blue Dog Coalition has been more consistent in its support for the PAYGO provisions than any other group in Congress. Support PAYGO.

FISCAL RESPONSIBILITY
(Mr. BERRY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BERRY. Madam Speaker, I love coming down here and listening to those who hang on the other side talk about their fiscal responsibility and all of this foolishness that they have put forth to the American people. It makes me want a dip of snuff. It is almost like they cannot add and subtract. I know they cannot multiply and divide. But the great mystery to me will always remain why in 5 years’ time when they have increased the national debt by $3 trillion and demonstrated beyond a shadow of a doubt that they have absolutely no idea in being responsible, they would come here, present a budget that increases the debt by tens of billions of dollars more and try to tell the American people this is what you need; this is what we are going to do for you. You are going to have to answer to your children and grandchildren. And I would love to be there when they walk up to you and say, Grandmother, Grandfather, why did you do this to us?

RECONCILIATION PLAN
(Mr. MELANCON asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. MELANCON. Madam Speaker, I cannot vote for this reconciliation plan for one very simple reason: Now is not the time to be cutting taxes for the wealthy in our country when the people of the ravaged gulf coast region receive silence and burdensome loans. I join my fellow Blue Dogs in opposition to this plan. Do the math: $54 billion in spending cuts minus $70 billion in tax cuts equals a $16 billion increase in the deficit. We give tax cuts to the rich and continue to run up the deficit, but continue to send loans to the people who need their government the most in the gulf coast region.

Our government must do just as President Bush said in Jackson Square, whatever it takes to rebuild. I agree with the President on rebuilding. But let me be clear. Cutting taxes for the wealthy while loaning money to the devastated communities along the gulf coast is the wrong course of action. Let us start sending real help to the people in need and stop sending millionaires refund checks.

STUDENT AID IN RECONCILIATION BILL
(Mr. OLVER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. OLVER. Madam Speaker, tomorrow’s reconciliation bill is a reckless attack on students attending college. Basically, the bill burdens students from low- and middle-income families with 33 percent higher debt to pay for tax cuts that benefit almost exclusively the wealthiest 1 percent of our income. This is over $200,000 a year. This bill cuts $14 billion from student aid by increasing interest rates and taxes on loans and charging students new fees.

The cost of college is skyrocketing, and it already leaves the average student $17,000 in debt. This bill would increase that debt by 33 percent. Many low- and middle-income students will no longer be able to afford college and their lifetime earning power will be reduced. Under the reconciliation bill, at least four students are going to start their careers burdened with added debt to pay for each millionaire’s tax cut. And all this is being done so that the wealthiest 3 percent of Americans can have another huge tax cut.

REPUBLICAN RECONCILIATION BILL
(Mr. DeFazio asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. DeFazio. The Republican reconciliation bill, pretending to finally bring a sense of fiscal responsibility to the discussion of the deficit, is the story of the wealthiest 3 percent of Americans adding $97 billion in tax breaks, actually increasing our debt by 62 percent in 5 years, actually is bleeding middle-income families, kids who want to get a higher education, $14 billion out of student loans.

Those youngsters in the elementary schools are eating too much. Cut student lunches for those kids. Foster care, the family values side, long-term care for seniors. Why are they cutting all that? So they can bleed the poor and the middle class in this country. And then as they create this giant sea of red ink, they will float the yachts of the wealthy on it by giving them $70 billion in tax breaks, actually increasing the deficit, having already stuck it to the middle class and struggling families.

They are going to increase the deficit in order to finance tax cuts for people who earn over $300,000 a year so their yachts can be a little bigger and float a little higher. They should be ashamed of what they are doing to America and what they are doing to middle-income and struggling families.

WAIVING POINTS OF ORDER AGAINST CONFERENCE REPORT ON H.R. 2419, ENERGY AND WATER DEVELOPMENT APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 2006
Mr. HASTINGS of Washington. Madam Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 339 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:
Resolved. That upon adoption of this resolution it shall be in order to consider the conference report to accompany the bill (H.R. 2419) making appropriations for energy and water development for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2006, and for other purposes. All points of order against the conference report and against its consideration are waived. The conference report shall be considered as read.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mrs. MILLER of Michigan). The gentleman from Washington (Mr. HASTINGS) is recognized for 1 hour.

Mr. HASTINGS of Washington. Madam Speaker, for the purpose of debate only, I yield the customary 30 minutes to the gentleman from California (Ms. MATSUI), pending which I yield myself such time as I may consume. During consideration of this resolution, all time yielded is for the purpose of debate only.

(H.R. 2419) making appropriations for energy and water development for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2006, and for other purposes. All points of order against the conference report and against its consideration are waived. The conference report shall be considered as read.

Mr. HASTINGS of Washington. Madam Speaker, House Resolution 539 waives all points of order against the conference report and against its consideration.

The resolution also provides that the conference report shall be considered as read. The energy and water development appropriations conference report provides a total of $30.5 billion to fund the Army Corps of Engineers, Department of Energy, Department of Interior, the Bureau of Reclamation and several independent agencies for the current fiscal year.

The Bureau of Reclamation receives $1.1 billion to maintain and operate water infrastructure projects throughout-the West. The Department of Energy constitutes the bulk of the bill with funding of $24.3 billion. This represents a decrease of $129 million from fiscal year 2005.

Overall, the conference report represents a compromise between the House- and Senate-passed bills and deserves the support of my colleagues.

Madam Speaker, included in this bill are a number of projects and provisions of importance to my central Washington congressional district. The Bureau of Reclamation’s budget provides $1.5 million to keep pace with a Federal study looking to add more water storage in the Yakima River basin and the potential of the Black Rock reservoir. Water storage is critical to the farmers and communities in this arid part of our Nation, and this year’s drought made clear the importance of finding solutions for creating additional storage.

Funds were also provided for the Bureau of Reclamation to continue work to address the depletion of the Odessa Subaquifer on the Columbia Basin project, as well as improved projects to the West Canal. Finding answers for farmers whose water supply is disappearing requires the active participation of the Bureau of Reclamation, and this bill continues the involvement that I was able to launch last year.

The final conference report also provides $18 million for the Department of Energy’s budget for the transition of Pacific Northwest National Lab scientists and infrastructure to new lab space. The buildings in which the scientists currently work are located in the Hanford site’s 300 Area and will be torn down in the next few years to clean up this contaminated area.

The bill also includes an increase of $10 million above DOE’s budget request that I worked to add to make certain this effort remains on track and that construction activity can begin this year.

Ensuring the new lab space is ready and available before cleanup of Hanford requires the destruction of the scientists’ current lab space is a top priority of mine, and I intend to continue the work hand-in-hand with the leaders of the Pacific Northwest National Lab to make this happen.

This bill also funds the cleanup of the Hanford site. In February, I was disappointed with the Department of Energy’s proposed funding for Hanford, and I met with DOE for months to restore some of that funding.

I am pleased that this bill provides increases above DOE’s requested budget for several important cleanup projects in Hanford, including the River Corridor initiative, tank waste retrieval, groundwater protection, preserving the historic B Reactor, and continuing the important safety and training work of the Volpentest HAMMER facility.

There are very real cleanup successes being achieved at Hanford, and it is important to keep progress moving forward. This bill does, however, reduce funding for construction of the Waste Treatment Plant by $100 million, which is a serious concern.

I have made my dissatisfaction with the situation created by the Department very clear, and I intend to keep pressing DOE to open in providing answers on its plan for the Waste Treatment Plant.

DOE has repeatedly stated their commitment to building and completing the vitrification plant, and we simply cannot afford to have a lack of information from the Department create further hurdles for this project.

Madam Speaker, this conference report comes to us with bipartisan support from the House-Senate conference committee, and I urge my colleagues to give bipartisan support for this rule and passage of the conference agreement.

Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. MATSUI. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Washington for yielding me this time, and I yield myself such time as I may consume.

(Ms. MATSUI asked and was given permission to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. MATSUI. Madam Speaker, I look forward to today’s consideration of H.R. 2419, which reflects much thought and long-term planning on behalf of the Committee on Appropriations. This year’s energy and water bill means a great deal to my constituents in my home State of Washington.

This year, we pointedly witnessed just how important the water funding included in the energy and water appropriations funding legislation is. And I am now embracing this year’s unprecedented hurricane season have taught us about the essential need to invest in our Nation’s flood control infrastructure, dollars that are necessary to examine, maintain and strengthen our levee and dam systems.

Federal officials must look expeditiously at the significant role infrastructure plays to reduce catastrophic loss in a flood event. I commend the committee for calling on the Corps of Engineers to identify and create a list of the Nation’s most critical water resource needs in the country.

While hurricane season has ended, the flooding season in Sacramento and all of California will begin shortly. And as I have consistently spoken about the vulnerable risk of Sacramento and my constituents face, I am certain you understand the concern I have about this upcoming season. Despite years of dedicated efforts, Sacramento still remains one of the most flood-prone and threatened cities in the country, pulling in comparison to the level of protection enjoyed by other river cities.

According to the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, Sacramento’s flood risk is among the highest of urban areas in the country. This bill makes a significant investment in Sacramento’s flood reduction efforts. It keeps the region on track to achieve our short-term goal, through levee work, of reaching 100-year protection. Moreover, this legislation ensures projects move forward, through which Sacramento will more than double the current level of flood protection. This increased protection is essential.

With thousands of lives and the capital of the Nation’s largest State at risk, the need for this critically important investment is clear. We cannot afford to delay this work. This legislation recognizes the immediate need for progress on our flood control by directing the Corps of Engineers to work hand-in-hand with the Bureau of Reclamation to continue the collaborative work addressing improvements to Polson Dam. On behalf of Sacramento, I appreciate their dedication to this goal.

Each of our flood control partners, the Sacramento Area Flood Control Agency, the Corps of Engineers, the Bureau of Reclamation, and the State of California, recognize the dire need for improved flood control and have personally invested in finding solutions. I thank them for this. Therefore, as I, who live in Sacramento, understand that lives are at risk and delays only add to our vulnerability.
I cannot proceed without also expressing my gratitude to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. HOBBON), the gentleman from California (Mr. DOOLittle), and the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. VISCOSEY). Their commitment to improving our Nation’s water infrastructure is a testament to our leadership in this legislation. I thank both of California’s Senators for their efforts on Sacramento and California’s flood control needs. I appreciate Senator FEINSTEIN’s leadership in the conference committee. To the Members of the Senate Appropriations staff, particularly Peder Maarbjerg and John Blazy, your long hours and hard work are much appreciated.

Their efforts reflect not only the incredible investments that must be made to improve our infrastructure across the Nation, but also an acknowledgment that we must wisely spend each dollar. This legislation adds new measures to ensure that the Corps manages each dollar efficiently.

To improve the execution of projects, the bill directed to develop a 5-year comprehensive budget plan and vision for water infrastructure in the country to comprehensively integrate financial planning and project management. Further, while the Corps will still have the flexibility to occasion- ally shift project funding as needed, the Corps will no longer be able to consistently use this practice.

By working together, the Congress, the administration, and the Corps of Engineers will be better prepared to ensure that the limited Federal resources are spent efficiently, commitments to local sponsors are honored, and projects remain on schedule.

This bill moves our country forward on many levels, from improving local water infrastructure to bigger-picture Corps of Engineer financial management and efficiency issues.

In light of the realities our Nation faced this year, I hope Congress will continue this commitment to public safety and significantly invest in water infrastructure to better support the underlying conference report and look forward to voting in support of the measure.

Madam Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. HASTINGS of Washington. Madam Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time, and I move the previous question on the resolution.

The previous question was ordered. The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the resolution.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. HASTINGS of Washington. Madam Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered. The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to rule XX and the Chair’s prior announcement, further proceedings on this question will be postponed.

WAIVING POINTS OF ORDER AGAINST CONFERENCE REPORT ON H.R. 2862, SCIENCE, STATE, JUSTICE, COMMERCE, AND RELATED AGENCIES APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 2006

Mr. GINGREY. Madam Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 538 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. Res. 538

Resolved, That upon adoption of this resolution it shall be in order to consider the conference report accompanying the bill (H.R. 2862) making appropriations for Science, the Departments of State, Justice, and Commerce, and related agencies for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2006, and for other purposes. All points of order against the conference report and against its consideration are waived. The conference report shall be considered as read.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Georgia (Mr. McGOVERN), pending which I yield myself such time as I may consume. During consideration of this resolution, all time yielded is for the purpose of debate only.

House Resolution 538 waives all points of order against the conference report and against its consideration and provides that the conference report shall be considered as read.

Madam Speaker, I rise today in support of House Resolution 538 and the underlying conference report for H.R. 2862, the Science, State, Justice, Commerce, and Related Agencies Appropriations Act of 2005. This conference report provides $57.85 billion, $2.5 billion less than the President requested, to fund the Department of State, Commerce and State along with NASA, the National Science Foundation, the Federal Communication Commission, FCC, the Securities and Exchange Commission, SEC, the Legal Services Corporation, and the Small Business Administration, SBA.

In recognition of the continual requirement to reassess our security and law enforcement needs, this conference report establishes responsible priorities to enable law enforcement to meet threats abroad and at home in order to secure our communities.

Madam Speaker, this conference report provides $5.8 billion for the FBI, an increase of $547 million above fiscal year 2005 and $15 million above the President’s request. It provides $1.7 billion for the Drug Enforcement Agency, the DEA, and this is a $48 million increase from fiscal year 2005, and it is $9 million below the President’s request. It provides $302 million for the United States Marshals Service, and this is an increase of $12 million from fiscal year 2005 and actually $12 million above the President’s request.

Additionally, included in the conference report is $924 million for the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives, an increase of $41 million above fiscal year 2005 and it is the same as the President’s request.

Further, this conference report contains $2.7 billion for assistance to State and local law enforcement for crime-fighting initiatives above the President’s request and actually $287 million below fiscal year 2005.

This amount includes $405 million to reimburse States for criminal alien detention costs, $367 million for violence against women prevention and prosecution programs, $416 million for the Edward Byrne Discretionary Grants program, $340 million for juvenile delinquency prevention and accountability programs, and includes $109 million to search program. Additionally, the $140 million for law enforcement technologies and interoperability, $64 million for methamphetamine hotspots, and $40 million to reduce gang violence.

Madam Speaker, this conference report appropriates $6.6 billion for the Department of Commerce, marking a decrease of $37 million from fiscal year 2005 and a $2.9 billion increase from the President’s request.

Recognizing the importance of space exploration that has fascinated minds for generations and provided many breakthrough technologies, this conference report matches the President’s request of $16.5 billion for the National Aeronautics and Space Agency, and this is $260 million above fiscal year 2005. The bill provides funding for space exploration and the space shuttle program, restoring the aeronautics research and development program. Additionally, the National Science Foundation would receive $5.65 million of much-needed funding to drive American research and education, thereby keeping this country on the cutting edge of advanced technology and research.

This conference report also provides $9.6 billion for the State Department and the Broadcasting Board of Governors, including $1.6 billion to continue worldwide security improvements and replacement of vulnerable embassies; $4.4 billion for diplomatic and consular programs; and $652 million for international broadcasting, including expanding broadcasting to the broader Middle East.

Finally, Mr. Speaker, this conference report includes $456 billion for the Small Business Administration, $250 million for the Federal Communications Commission, $888 million for the Securities and Exchange Commission, and $331 million for the Legal Services Corporation.

While this conference report is not perfect, all in all it adds up to better protection for the communities, more vigorous law enforcement, stronger law enforcement abroad, and improved scientific research and technology. This is the kind of fundamental support that Americans expect from this Congress. These are true national priorities, balanced with our budgetary restrictions and with fiscal responsibility in mind.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask my colleagues’ support of the rule and the underlying conference report.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. GINGRrey) for yielding me the customary 30 minutes, and I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. MCGOVERN asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, with the passage of this rule, this House will consider the Science, State, Justice, Commerce and related agencies appropriations conference report for fiscal year 2006. I want to begin by congratulating the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. WOLF), the chairman of the subcommittee, and the gentleman from West Virginia (Mr. MOLLOHAN), the ranking member, for working together to create a bill that seems to be a fair and responsible package of legislation.

Mr. Speaker, I believe that budgets are moral documents, and where and how we decide to spend the taxpayers’ money says more about our values as a society than any speech or political rhetoric.

This conference report, among other things, rightly retains language included in the House-passed bill that prohibits funding being used to support or justify the use of torture by the United States Government. Despite the rhetoric coming from the White House, this language is both necessary and appropriate.

As the most powerful democracy in the history of the world, we have a moral responsibility not only to promote the expansion of our democratic values around the world, but perhaps most importantly, to demonstrate our commitment to them through our own practices and in the legislation we pass here in the Congress.

One of the most dramatic and significant tests of that commitment is before us today in the debate over our own use of the abhorrent practice of torture. The United States of America, as the leader of the free world, cannot and should not engage in a behavior which has been condemned around the world by the international community.

To engage in such a heinous practice is a betrayal of our own values as defenders of freedom and liberty.

The fact that the people who would seek to take away our freedom and the freedom of others utilize such techniques is in no way a justification here.

As a matter of the highest national security, we must openly and outright reject the use of torture as a means of achieving military victory in this or any other war. Our ideals as a Nation demand nothing less. Indeed, the fact that we must even engage in this debate on the House floor is indicative of the deep crisis of conscience which has embroiled the White House.

Senator JOHN MCCAIN is working hard to build on the language in this conference report that prohibit the use of torture and include language in the DOD authorization bill prohibiting the use of torture to make real and meaningful policy changes. His amendment is important. It is broadly supported and should be signed into law as soon as possible.

It is disconcerting that, as we speak here today, the White House is fighting Senator MCCAIN and others who support his initiative every step of the way. Senator MCCAIN certainly knows a lot more about the reality of detention and torture and the ineffectiveness of torture than the President, the Vice President, or the Secretary of Defense.

The recent revelation that the United States has secret prisons around the world and that there is no accountability or there is no oversight of what goes on in those prisons, quite frankly, is a national scandal.

This is not what America is about. This is not what America stands for. The fact that those who would seek to take away our freedom and the freedom of others utilize such techniques is in no way a justification here.

Mr. Speaker, America can do better; and all of us, including the conferees in this conference report, hope we will all join in a bipartisan way to support Senator MCCAIN’s effort to ban torture as a policy for this country once and for all.

Mr. Speaker, I am disappointed that the conferees once again stripped the Sanders provision from this bill that would have prevented funds in the bill from being used to implement provisions in section 215 of the PATRIOT Act. These provisions permit searches of library, bookstore, and general book sales records, book customer lists.

This amendment passed by a vote of 238-187, yet the Republican leadership has decided to strip it out of the bill. This is wrong and these provisions, like so many others in the PATRIOT Act, quite frankly should be stripped out of the bill as well.

Mr. Speaker, the American people do not want this provision. A majority in the Congress do not want this provision, and yet somehow it managed to basically be null and voided in the conference committee.

Finally, Mr. Speaker, this conference report includes language prohibiting the White House from blocking the importation of discount prescription drugs through trade agreements. That means that the White House cannot subvert the House’s authority by preventing the American people from having access to life-saving, affordable prescription drugs.

Mr. Speaker, I strongly believe that access to affordable medication and health care should be a right in this country and not the fodder of a political power struggle. Health care should be a right in the United States of America and not a privilege.

I applaud my colleagues in both Houses for demonstrating the rare political will to constrain the power of the White House in the interest of protecting the American people.

Mr. Speaker, as I said before, budgets are moral documents, and this budget is a statement of America’s principles. The level of funding the committee had to cut with is shameful because of the fiscal ineptitude of the Republican leadership in Congress and the Bush administration. Their policy of tax cuts for the rich and a continual growing of the Federal deficit has forced important programs like legal services for the poor and COPS funding to be cut. This is irresponsible, and this does not reflect the wishes and values of the American people.

With that, Mr. Speaker, let me once again commend Chairman WOLF and Ranking Member MOLLOHAN for making the best out of a bad situation. I appreciate their help and their hard work.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 6 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. DOGGETT).

Mr. DOGGETT. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me time.

Mr. Speaker, this bill fails the tens of thousands of Texans living along the Lower Rio Grande River Valley. It is difficult to fault the conferees for this bill they approved. They were making the best out of a bad situation. I appreciate their help and their hard work.

Along the Rio Grande River in the Valley, we have some 270 miles of levees and numerous drainage structures that are always that protect our citizens from flooding. All of these levee structures, every bit of the levees, is not city, it is not county, it is Federal infrastructure.

The United States Section of the International Boundary and Water Commission (IBWC) is a tiny Federal agency based in El Paso, Texas, and it reports through the Department of State, through Secretary Condeleeza Rice here in Washington, to the President. It is set up to define and protect the boundary between the United States and Mexico. Now it has responsibility for seeing that the levees under its jurisdiction protect the Valley’s growing population, which includes one of the poorest populations in the United States.

Only the Federal Government can change, alter, or improve these levees. The dozens of local governments, the businesses, the houses of tens of thousands of American citizens are all at risk when the Federal administration shirks its responsibility to protect them as this one has done.
In New Orleans, we saw levees breached at a terrible cost, suffered by many, but a cost particularly borne by the poorest citizens of that city.

In the Valley, as in New Orleans, the Federal Government cannot justifiably claim that nobody anticipated a breach of the levees. As President Bush mistakenly declared on September 1 of this year, in offering his first of many excuses about the Katrina disaster.

In June of 2003, the IBWC itself, the Federal Administration with the expertise and the sole responsibility for these levees along the Rio Grande, issued its report entitled "Hydraulic Model of the Rio Grande and Floodways."

It concluded that a 100-year flood, the type that could be produced by a hurricane with far less punch than Katrina, would result in the levee system being overwhelmed along many river miles at a variety of locations. This is the type of flooding that will shut down the McAllen-Miller International Airport, affect the international trade zone, and will inundate the thousands of homes and businesses, endangering people across the Rio Grande Valley.

Nor do the similarities between the Rio Grande Valley and New Orleans end there. I am horrified, quite frankly, by the behavior of the White House on this issue. They attempted to try to undermine what Senator McCain has tried to do in the Senate and what some of us have tried to do here in the House. Those who believe that torture should have no place in America or American society are frustrated by what the White House is trying to do. We are a much better country.

The U.S. Army Manual bans torture, prohibits it. And one of the reasons why is because those who are in the military understand that it jeopardizes the lives of Americans, of American soldiers. How do we demand that the military understand that it jeopardizes our veterans in part by doing everything we can to protect the soldiers who are now on the field, and that must mean making torture something that this country will never be part of.

Sounds a lot like the great job that Ol’ Brownie did. And as the painful footnote of Katrina shows, the price to be paid by Americans is grave indeed.

We know that sea levels are rising around the world, and the Gulf of Mexico has entered a cycle of intensified hurricane activity: Katrina, Wilma, Alpha, Beta, so many hurricanes we ran out of names for them. But for the grace of God, had they headed toward the mouth of the Rio Grande River, we would be seeing on the evening news flood victims in Hidalgo, in McAllen and in Mission being rescued.

In spite of repeated calls for action, the Bush Administration did not add one thin dime to its construction budget in this bill to protect our Valley residents.

This is a chart right out of the IBWC’s own report showing by color, 6 feet in purple, 6 feet over the top of the existing levees with a major flood. Five to 6 feet in red, 9 to 3 feet over the top of the levees. What is going to happen to the City of Hidalgo? What is going to happen to all the businesses and homes and tens of thousands of people who live in this area if we do not provide an adequate amount of funding to the levees?

This bill approves every dime the President asked for, but he is failing the Texas Valley. He is failing to learn the lessons of Katrina and protect the people of the Rio Grande Valley, who live in the poorest statistical metropolitan area, McAllen-Mission, in the entire United States. The Federal Government is failing to meet its responsibility to provide the security that the people of New Orleans did not have.

Mr. GINGREY. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. McCOVERN. Mr. Speaker, let me close as I began today by pointing out to my colleagues that this conference report drafted from being used by the United States Government for torture. We need to make this the absolute policy of our country.

Friday is Veterans Day, and we need to do everything we can to honor veterans, but we can honor our veterans in part by doing everything we can to protect the soldiers who are now on the field, and that must mean making torture something that this country will never be part of.

I just want to say I agree with the gentleman on his comment that we cannot tolerate that.

Mr. McCOVERN. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. GINGREY. I yield to the gentleman from Massachusetts.

Mr. McCOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding. Again, my point is that if in fact we can all agree that torture is abhorrent and something that should not be part of our society, then we can all in a bipartisan way support the effort of Senator McCain, who wants to make it the policy of this land.

My problem with the White House, quite frankly, is that I am puzzled why they are trying to lobby to undermine what Senator McCain is doing. I am also quite frankly shocked by the recent revelations in the Washington Post about these secret prisons that we have all over the world where really, basically, there is no accountability.

So my point is, if we can all agree that this is wrong, let us make it the absolute law of this land and comply with what the U.S. Army Manual says and support Senator McCAIN in his efforts. And I hope we can do that in a bipartisan way, and I thank the gentleman.

Mr. GINGREY. Reclaiming my time, Mr. Speaker, I will simply close by recognizing the hard work and the incredible effort of Subcommittee Chairman WOLF and all of the House and Senate conferences. Reconciling differences between the two Chambers is rarely a simple task, but I believe they have once again risen to the occasion and they have produced a conference report that may not please everybody with everything, but it gets the job done by appropriately balancing our spending needs with our budget.

Mr. Speaker, the American people demand, and we expect responsible spending to support law enforcement, strengthened diplomacy which builds upon our competitive edge. Today, it is my hope that we have delivered. So I ask my colleagues for their full support of the rule and this underlying bill.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time, and I move the previous question on the resolution.

The previous question was ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the resolution. The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. GINGREY. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX, further proceedings on this question will be postponed.

MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT

A message in writing from the President of the United States was communicated to the House by Ms. Wanda Evans, one of his secretaries.

PROVIDING FOR CONSIDERATION OF H.R. 1751, SECURE ACCESS TO JUSTICE AND COURT PROTECTION ACT OF 2005

Mr. GINGREY. Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 540 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. Res. 540

Resolved, That at any time after the adoption of this resolution the Speaker may, pursuant to clause 2(b) of rule XVIII, declare the House resolved into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for consideration of this rule and pursuant to clause 18, United States Code, to protect judges, prosecutors, witnesses, victims, and their family members, and for other purposes. The first reading of the bill shall be dispensed with. All points of order against consideration of the bill are waived. General debate shall be confined to the bill and shall not exceed one hour equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on the Judiciary. A motion to recommit the bill shall be considered for amendment under the five-minute rule. It shall be in order to consider as an original bill for the purpose of amendment under the five-minute rule the amendment in the nature of a substitute recommended by the Committee on the Judiciary now printed in the bill. The committee amendment in the nature of a substitute shall be considered as read. All points of order against the committee amendment in the nature of a substitute are waived. Notwithstanding clause 11 of rule XVIII, no amendment to the committee amendment in the nature of a substitute shall be in order except those printed in the report of the Committee on Rules accompanying this resolution. Each such amendment may be offered only in the order printed in the report, may be offered only by a Member designated in the report, and shall not be debateable for the time specified in the report equally divided and controlled by the proponent and an opponent, shall not be amendable and shall not be subject to a demand for division of the question in the House or in the Committee of the Whole. All points of order against such amendments are waived. At the conclusion of consideration of the bill for amendment the Committee shall rise and report the bill to the House with such amendments as may have been adopted, and shall not be subject to a separate vote in the Committee of the Whole to the bill or to the committee amendment in the nature of a substitute. The previous question shall be considered as ordered on the bill and amendments thereto to final passage without intervening motion except one motion to recommit with or without instructions.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Georgia (Mr. GINGREY) recognized for 1 hour.

Mr. GINGREY. Mr. Speaker, for purposes of debate only, I yield 30 minutes to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. MATSUI), pending which I yield myself such time as I may consume. During consideration of this resolution, all time yielded is for purposes of debate only.

Mr. Speaker, House Resolution 540 is a structured rule which provides 1 hour of general debate equally divided and controlled by the chairman and the ranking minority member of the Committee on the Judiciary. It waives all points of order against consideration of the bill. It provides that the amendment in the nature of a substitute recommended by the Committee on the Judiciary and now printed in the bill shall be considered as an original bill for the purpose of amendment and shall be considered as read. It waives all points of order against the committee amendment in the nature of a substitute.

It makes in order only those amendments printed in the Rules Committee report accompanying this resolution. It provides that the amendments made in order may be offered only by a Member designated in the report, shall be considered as read, shall be debateable for the time specified in the report, equally divided and controlled by the proponent and an opponent, and shall not be subject to amendment or a demand for division of the question in the House or in the Committee of the Whole. It waives all points of order against the amendments printed in the report and provides one motion to recommit with or without instructions.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today to speak on behalf of House Resolution 540 and the underlying bill, H.R. 1751, the Secure Access to Justice and Court Protection Act of 2005.

First, I want to extend my gratitude to the gentleman from Wisconsin (Chairman SENSENIBRENNER) of the Committee on the Judiciary. I also want to extend my gratitude to my colleague, the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. CONyers) as well as the gentleman from Texas (Mr. GOHMER), the author of this important piece of legislation.

As I previously noted in my opening statement, the amendment to the underlying bill, the Class Action Fairness Act of 2005, this past month has ushered in the passage of very meaningful and very significant legislation to reform and strengthen our courts both procedurally and substantively. Today we have an opportunity to strengthen our courts in a more literal sense by protecting them against a rising tide of violence that has harmed and claimed the lives of innocent individuals charged with enforcing and upholding our laws.

It was only a number of months ago that tragedy struck the Fulton County courthouse in Atlanta, my home State of Georgia. There, as most of America watched and sorrowfully remember, on March 13 a cold-blooded killer took the lives of four innocent people, forever robbing their families and depriving our legal system of the distinguished service of Fulton County Superior Court Judge Rowland Barnes, age 64; his court reporter, Julie Anne Brandau, age 46; Fulton County Sheriff Deputy Hoyt Teasley, age 43; and Federal agent David Wilhelm, age 46.

Mr. Speaker, law and order, not violence, should permeate our courts. Accordingly, H.R. 1751 would take important steps to deter and punish those who would exact revenge because they were caught up in criminal activity.

First, this bill will further punish any individual who would seek to influence, impede, or retaliate against a judge, a prosecutor, a law enforcement officer, or their families by increasing the mandatory minimums such as 30-years-to-life mandatory minimum for kidnapping.

Additionally, each and every day men and women in law enforcement and public safety across this country proudly don their uniforms, fully recognizing that they represent their cities, States and their country; and they... profoundly assume a substantial amount of personal risk to do so.

Therefore, H.R. 1751 would establish as a new category of criminal offense the killing, the attempted killing, or conspiracy to kill any public safety officer for a federally funded public agency. This legislation defines "public safety officer" as an employee or officer of the judiciary, a firefighter, a law enforcement officer, or any other State or local employee.

The bill would also crack down on the disclosure on the Internet of personal information of judges, court personnel, law enforcement and safety officers, jurors, and witnesses.

Mr. Speaker, I would also like to emphasize H.R. 1751's protections for jurors, witnesses, victims, and informants. The reality is that criminals or their associates can have the means to intimidate victims, and especially witnesses, essentially muscling them out of the courtroom. Accordingly, this bill goes a long way to ensuring the safety of witnesses and victims in order to keep their testimony in the court and keep the criminals behind bars.

This legislation expands the current framework between the United States Marshals Service and the Administrative Office of the United States Courts to facilitate consultation and cooperation in the development of security standards and requirements for our courthouses. It prohibits the possession of a dangerous weapon, including a firearm, in a Federal court facility; and it creates opportunities for State courts to improve security through discretionary Byrne grants.

Mr. Speaker, in recent debates, some of my colleagues have unfortunately called into question the importance of legal reform in this country to the point of insinuating that such reforms are not worth this House's time for consideration.

Mr. Speaker, the judicial branch affects the lives of every single American and almost every aspect of American life from conception to natural death, and sometimes even after death. Therefore, I think legal reform has and will continue to be a very appropriate matter for consideration and a good use of this Congress' time, especially when we are dealing with the safety of those men and women involved with our all-important third branch of government.

Again, Mr. Speaker, I look forward to the consideration of this rule. I ask my colleagues to support it and the underlying bill.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. MATSUI. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

(Ms. MATSUI asked and was given permission to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. MATSUI. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. Gingrey) for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, the rule, H. Res. 540, will allow the House to take up legislation to protect Federal judges, court employees, safety officers, jurors, and witnesses.

Unfortunately, we are all aware of the tragic violence committed against judges and their families this year. In fact, in just the past week, February, Judge Joan Letko-Kowal, a Federal judge from Chicago, returned home to find her husband and her mother murdered. We later learned it had been a retaliation for an earlier court ruling. It is hard to comprehend such a senseless loss. Clearly, the steps we are taking today are important to protect judges and their family members.

H.R. 1751, the Secure Access to Justice and Court Protection Act of 2005, increases the penalty for assault, kidnapping or murdering a Federal judge, other public officials, and their immediate family members. Further, the bill extends these protections to jurors and witnesses.

For our judicial system to function, the authority and safety of our Federal judges must be assured. Judges, as well as jurors, should know they are free to make unbiased and sound decisions based on the facts and the rule of law and not on the fear that they may face retaliation for a decision they hand down.

It is equally important witnesses know they will also be secure when testifying. They must know that it is safe to do the right thing and testify before a court of law. For this reason, I appreciate that the Committee on the Judiciary included grants to assist States in operating the protection programs.

However, I do have some significant reservations about this legislation. Included in H.R. 1751 are over a dozen new mandatory minimum penalties.

Mr. Speaker, we must protect our judges from harm without impeding their judicial independence. It is the judges and juries who have the facts of each case before them, not Congress. And it is judges and juries who should be determining the proper and appropriate punishment.

Therefore, it should not surprise Members that the Judicial Conference of the United States, the body Congress turns to for nonpartisan recommendations on our Federal judiciary, has expressed a deep opposition to mandatory minimums on more than a dozen occasions in its communications to Congress.

Mr. Speaker, mandatory minimums simply do not work. Rather, they tie the hands of our judges, not allowing them to fit the best punishment to the crime.

I look forward to the debate on these amendments and the underlying legislation.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. GINGREY. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from California (Mr. Dreier), the chairman of the Rules Committee.

(Mr. DREIER was asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of this rule and the underlying legislation. I want to congratulate my colleagues from Georgia and my friend from California for their management of this issue.

I would like to say that the rule itself provides by a 2-1 ratio more amendments offered by Democrats than Republicans. Not every single amendment was made in order, as I see my friend, Mrs. McCarthy, here. I will say, as we regularly hear people say that the amendments the Democrats proposed are not given an opportunity to be heard on the floor, by a 2-1 margin. Mr. Speaker, we are seeing amendments made in order by Democrats over Republicans.

Specifically to the concern I know will be raised by the gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. McCARTHY), we frankly understand that there is the impression that she and the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Dingell) had proceeded through consideration, and I was wrong on that. I had gotten some incorrect information.

I have talked to staff members of the Judiciary Committee; and I have an assurance, and while I know this amendment will not be made in order today, when it comes to looking at the record, we have the impression that the language that she and the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Dingell) had proceeded through consideration, and I was wrong on that. I had gotten some incorrect information.

I would like to take a few minutes to talk about the legislation itself. I would like to begin by congratulating Chairman SENSENBECK and the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Gohmert), who as a former judge is obviously concerned about the threats that have been out there for his former colleagues. I believe it is very important, when we think about the importance of the rule of law, which is absolutely essential, absolutely essential for the success of liberty, ensuring the safety of these judges who have continued to face threats, is very, very important for us to do.

Last night in the Rules Committee, our colleague from Texas (Mr. Sessions) referred to his father who was a judge, and as we all know, former director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. He talked about those threats. He told us repeatedly about the threats that existed. This legislation, I believe, that Mr. Gohmert has put together will go a long way towards addressing that concern.

I would like to talk about a very important provision that is included in this bill that enjoys strong bipartisan support. One of the serious problems with which we are all dealing is the issue of illegal immigration and the housing of a threat that a terrorist could come here. We know that Mohammed Atta, one of those who flew a plane into the World Trade Center Tower on September 11, 2001, was, in fact, here illegally. So as we look at the issue of illegal immigration, focusing on criminals and potential terrorists is a very high priority.

One of the worst days for law enforcement in the Los Angeles County Sheriff’s Department was April 29, 2002. That is 3½ years ago. On that day, Deputy Sheriff David March was on patrol. He pulled over for a traffic violation an individual who ended up putting a gun to Deputy March’s head and brutally killing him.

The alleged killer, Armando Garcia, fled to Mexico, and it has been 3½ years, and we have not resolved that case. Within just a few weeks of that April 29 killing in 2002, upstairs in the Rules Committee I convened a meeting of my colleagues, BUCK MCKEON, who represented the March family; KEN CALVERT, who was very involved in this issue and concerned about it. On the other side of the aisle, HOWARD BERNMAN and ADAM SCHIFF, and we also had at that meeting, Mr. Speaker, representatives from the Mexican Embassy’s judicial department within the embassy here; and we also had representatives from our Department of Justice.

Now, our concern has been a terrible provision that exists in Mexican law. It is actually constitutional, saying that the Mexican Government refuses to extradite any individual who potentially could face the death penalty, and this is something that has existed for a long period of time. Something that was very unfortunate was that in September of 2001, the Mexican Supreme Court took steps to say that they refused to extradite an alleged criminal to a country or a state or a jurisdiction that had life imprisonment as the punishment because they considered that to be cruel and unusual punishment.

Mr. Speaker, it is horrific that they have that policy, and we need to do everything we can to change that policy. We need to encourage the Mexican Government to change that policy. Why? This does not have to do with some who that took place in their country. It has to do with a crime perpetrated on U.S. soil. So I believe the Mexican Government should, in fact, extradite an alleged criminal who has perpetrated a crime here in the United States to face the punishment in the jurisdiction where the crime was perpetrated.

So what has happened here, Mr. Speaker, is that we want to ensure that we never see happen again what happened on April 29, 2002. And I should add that is not the only instance. We all know of many of other instances where law enforcement officers have been killed and people have fled the country. But this case has become a very prominent one.

So I was approached by Los Angeles County Sheriff Lee Baca, and I was joined by my colleague MR. SCHIFF, who serves on the Judiciary Committee; and we were asked to introduce a package that would make it a Federal crime to kill a law enforcement officer and flee the country. We spent a great deal of time working with a wide range of organizations, and we have put together a package which I believe can allow us to do that without impinging on the local jurisdiction that we believe district attorneys should have in dealing with this issue. It does not in any way diminish the level of punishment. But what it does do, Mr. Speaker, is put full force of the Federal Government behind an effort to ensure that we do not have happen again what happened on April 29, 2002.

One of the things that I believe is important is to recognize that there are families that have suffered, and I have had the opportunity, through Sheriff Baca and through others, to get to know the family members of Deputy Sheriff David March. So, Mr. Speaker, H.R. 2009 is the legislation that ADAM SCHIFF and I introduced, and it is included as part of this very important court security measure that Mr. GOHMER has offered, and I would like to name the provisions that are included calling for making it a Federal crime to kill a law enforcement officer in the name of Deputy Sheriff David March. And I spoke with Sheriff Lee Baca this morning about that, and I really feel that we are doing this in the name of David March to keep the memory of his life alive, the memory alive so that we can send a signal that we are not going to tolerate this kind of act in the future.

So, Mr. Speaker, we have here, again, a very important measure included in critical must-pass legislation, and I hope that my colleagues will join in providing bipartisan support for this measure.

Ms. MATSUI. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. Mccarthy). Mrs. McCarthy, Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman for yielding me this time.

I am very happy to hear from my colleagues from the Judiciary Committee that they are making the move last night on not allowing my amendment to be put forth; and I hope that, working with him and certainly Mr. SENSIBRANNEN on the Judiciary Committee, we can move this bill forward.

H.R. 1751 goes to great lengths to punish those who commit violence in our courthouses, and rightly so. However, this bill falls short when it comes to preventative measures that would stop these senseless attacks from happening in the first place.

As was mentioned, last night I offered such an amendment in the Rules Committee. It would automate the process into the National Institute Background Check System so recently convicted individuals could not buy a gun. The reason we want to do that, basically, is if a person is convicted and still not going straight to jail to prevent them from going out and buying a gun and coming back and doing harm, whether it is to a judge, a family, or a court officer.

Many State courts fail to enter this data into the NICS System in a timely manner, if at all. For example, the subject of a restraining order stemming from spousal abuse can leave the courthouse, go to a gun store, make a purchase, and seek revenge on the court officers.

My amendment would require that court rulings be immediately entered into the NICS System. It would provide grants to State courts that do not have the resources to comply. But my amendment was the only amendment not to be accepted by the Rules Committee, and we heard that wrong information had been given to Mr. DREHER, and I accept that. Those things happen.

All of us here want to save lives. I mean, that is what we want to do. We want to protect our men and women in uniform. We want to protect our courthouses, our judges. This amendment certainly could have helped that. It would have made a good bill, in my opinion, a better bill.

So with that I hope that we will be here down the road soon, be able to offer my full bill because, again, this does not infringe on second amendment rights. It is there to protect people. It is there to save lives, and that is my goal.

Ms. MATSUI. Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. GINGREY. Mr. Speaker, I would like to close in celebration of the men and women who put their lives on the line every day, whether by working the beat, extinguishing a four-alarm fire, or ensuring equal justice under the law by means of the gavel.

As I mentioned earlier, when these individuals put on their uniforms, they represent all of the community in service of the community. They are not enforcing their own will; but they are, rather, seeking guidance from and working to uphold the laws of the land.

Mr. Speaker, while there are some individuals who are occasionally accused of abusing their power, the vast majority, the vast majority, of these civil servants are only doing their job admirably; and, therefore, there is absolutely no justification for an accused individual to ever attach their anger to or seek revenge against these individuals who are only doing their duty.
Unfortunately, the increase of violent activities against judges, and we talked about that here during this hour, court officers, witnesses, victims, and law enforcement has made this bill not only necessary but also a top priority in the preservation of our system of law and justice.

Mr. Speaker, I look forward to the discussion on H.R. 1751 and the numerous amendments this rule has made in order. As always, I urge my colleagues to support the rule and the underlying bill.

Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, I yield back the balance of my time, and I move the previous question on the resolution.

The previous question was ordered. The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. PETRI). The question on the resolution is the question.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. HOBSOHN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks and include tabular and extraordinary material on the conference report to accompany H.R. 2419.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Ohio?

There was no objection.

CONFEREE REPORT ON H.R. 2419, ENERGY AND WATER DEVELOPMENT APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 2006

Mr. HOBSOHN. Mr. Speaker, pursuant to House Resolution 539, I call up the conference report on the bill (H.R. 2419) making appropriations for energy and water development for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2006, and for other purposes.

The Clerk read the title of the bill. The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to House Resolution 539, the conference report is considered read. (For conference report and statement.)

The amount of funding included in the Energy and Water conference agreement is $30.5 billion. This represents an increase of $663 million over the enacted level for fiscal year 2005, including supplements, and approximately $748 million over the budget request.

The total amount of funding included in the Energy and Water conference agreement is $30.5 billion. This represents an increase of $663 million over the enacted level for fiscal year 2005, including supplements, and approximately $748 million over the budget request.

The recent hurricanes in September and October should serve as a long-overdue wakeup call to both Congress and the Corps of Engineers about the importance of water resource infrastructure in this country. We have to make sure that we fund the Corps to address the most pressing water resource needs in this country, and we have to make sure that the Corps follows the spending guidance provided by Congress. We have to fund the right projects, we have to make sure the Corps completes its projects in a timely manner, and we have to make sure those projects perform as intended.

To that end, our top priority in this conference was to provide additional funding for essential water projects around the country. Of the additional $748 million that was available to our conference over the amount requested by the Administration, we dedicated $634 million of that increase to the Corps of Engineers.
As we have done in the last several fiscal years, we have attempted to focus those resources on the Nation’s top water resources priorities. That means that we apply funds to projects that can be completed in fiscal year 2006. We asked the Corps to use its professional engineering judgment to provide us with a list of critical flood control needs around the country, and a list of the top ten navigation infrastructure needs as well. Unfortunately, the Corps was unable to provide us with anything other than the list of projects contained in the budget request, so we generally funded those critical flood control and navigation projects at the full amount of the request.

As in previous years, we also limit the number of new starts and the number of project authorizations contained in this conference agreement. However, the most significant change is not in the funding levels or the individual projects, but rather in the way the Corps manages those funds and executes those projects. The Corps has operated its Civil Works program with a large amount of flexibility in the past, with the freedom to move funding around from project to project. Unfortunately, that practice got out of hand, to where the Corps was executing 20,000 reprogrammings a year for a workload of only 2,000 projects. That is not sound financial management.

The problem was compounded by the Corps’ excessive reliance on continuing contracts, whereby the Corps can commit the Federal government to multi-year contracts in advance of having sufficient appropriations in hand, and use those two contracts, reprogrammings, and continuing contracts, meant that the Corps was playing a shell game with the funding we appropriated, moving money around from project to project to cover obligations they had made in excess of available appropriations.

Our conference agreement brings that practice to an end, by imposing stricter controls over reprogrammings and continuing contracts. We put a lot of effort into negotiating sound allocations for water projects, and we expect the Corps to abide by those allocations in the future.

Funding for Title II of the bill, which includes the Central Utah Project Completion Account and the programs of the Bureau of Reclamation, is $1.065 billion, $47 million above the amount appropriated last year and $114 million above the budget request. Total funding for Title III, the Department of Energy is $24.29 billion, $129 million above fiscal year 2005 and $77 million below the budget request.

Our conference agreement provides healthy funding levels for the major Department of Energy programs. Energy Supply and Conservation is funded at $1.83 billion, an increase of $67 million over the current year and a decrease of $29 million below the request. Defense Environmental Cleanup programs are funded at $6.19 billion, an increase of $177 million over the request. Of this amount, $157.4 million goes to the cleanup of facilities of the National Nuclear Security Administration (NNSA), initially proposed in the budget request for transfer from Environmental Management to the NNSA. The conference report provides $526 million for the construction of the National Ignition Facility at Savannah River to proceed into the current year and $6 million over the request. This amount includes an additional $30 million for advanced scientific computing, to accelerate the development of a leadership-class supercomputer for scientific applications.

For nuclear waste disposal activities, the conference agreement provides a total of $500 million, including $450 million for work on the Yucca Mountain repository and $50 million to initiate planning and a competitive site selection process for one or more integrated spent fuel recycling facilities. It is essential to continue development of the Reliable Replacement Nuclear Reactor and the Yucca Mountain repository, but it is also essential to pursue alternative approaches to spent nuclear fuel so that we do not have to develop eight more repositories by the end of this century.

The conference agreement provides a total of $9.2 billion for the Nuclear Security Administration (NNSA), an increase of $217 million over the current year but a decrease of $201 million from the request. This decrease compared to the request results largely from the cleanup responsibilities for NNSA sites and facilities, which were proposed in the budget request for transfer to the NNSA but were retained in Environmental Management in the conference agreement.

The conference agreement does not include funding for the Robust Nuclear Earth Pene- tration but provides for the development of the Reliable Replacement Warhead. Additional resources are provided to accelerate the consolidation of special nuclear materials into a smaller number of secure sites, and to accelerate dismantlement of obsolete nuclear weapons. The conference agreement includes the requested amount of funding for construction of the National Ignition Facility.

Defense Nuclear Nonproliferation activities are funded at $1.6 billion, an increase of $138 million over the current year and $6 million below the request. This amount includes sufficient funds for the Mixed Oxide Fuel Fabrication Facility at Savannah River to proceed into construction in fiscal year 2006.

Funding for Title IV, Independent Agencies, is $271.1 million, a decrease of $18.2 million from last year and an increase of $36.9 million above the budget request. We have funded the Appalachian Regional Commission at $65.5 million, the same as the request. The Delta Regional Authority is funded at $12 million, an increase of $6 million over the request. The conference agreement provides $50 million for the Denali Commission, a decrease of $16 million below the current year and $47 million over the budget request. The conference agreement provides $734 million for salaries and expenses of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC), an increase of $77 million over the current year and $41 million over the request. This additional budget authority is provided for NRC work on licensing new reactors and for increased enforcement of the Honorable一眼 County of Indiana, who was at my side during this entire process. I truly value his support and advice, and that of all the Members of our Energy and Water Subcommittee. I believe we are all proud of this bipartisan product.

Mr. Speaker, before I conclude I would also like to thank the staff for their help in shepherding this bill through the House and through conference with the Senate. The Subcommittee staff includes Kevin Cook, John Blazey, Scott Burnison, Terry Tyborowski, and our detailee from the Corps of Engineers, Taunja Bergquam. I also want to thank Kenny Kraft of my staff, and Dixon Butler of the minority staff, and Peder Maarbjerg and Felicia Kirksey of Mr. Visclosky’s staff. I urge the unanimous support of the House for adoption of this conference report.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. VISCOSKY. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I recommend that all Members join me in supporting this conference agreement. Its presentation has been bipartisan, and the chairman has been fair throughout his preparation. I would also join the chairman in adding my appreciation to the staff led on the majority side by Kevin Cook. He is joined by Terry Tyborowski, John Blazey, Scott Burnison and Tracy LaTurner. They are a very strong team.

On the minority staff, I would like to thank Dixon Butler. This year we have two of the finest detailers ever from the Army Corps, Taunja Berquam helping with the majority and Felicia Kirksey helping with the minority. I would also thank Kenny Kraft on Chairman HOBSON’s staff as well as Peder Maarbjerg on mine.

Conference negotiations this year were protracted and their favorable results required a great deal of hard work and firmness in pushing for positive reforms of the Corps of Engineers management practices.

I want to thank Chairman LEWIS as well as Ranking Member OBST for their steadfast support in getting this done.

As I said in my remarks earlier this year, Chairman HOBSON has led our subcommittee to take a long-term perspective on a number of important issues, and this is resulting in some profound and positive changes, including saner and safer policies on nuclear weapons, insistence on 5-year planning from the Corps of Engineers, Bureau of Reclamation, and the Department of
The conferencees were given an allocation of $79 million larger than was available when the House developed its bill back in the spring. The tragic events that resulted from the hurricanes demonstrated that our Nation has crying needs in the areas served by the program of the corps, and we have devoted the increased funds to meet these needs along the Gulf of Mexico and across the Nation.

Mr. Speaker, I ask for my colleagues' support of this conference agreement.

Mr. Speaker, I recommend that all members join me in supporting this conference agreement. Its preparation has been bipartisan and the Chairman has been fair throughout its preparation. I would add my appreciation to the staff led on the majority side by Kevin Cook. He is joined by Terry Tyborowski, John Blazy, Scott Burnison, and Tracy LaTurner. They are a strong team. On the minority staff, I would especially note Taunja Berquam helping the majority and Felicia Kirksey helping the minority. I would also thank Kenny Kraft on Chairman Hobson’s staff and Peder Maarbjerg on my staff.

Conference negotiations this year were protracted and their favorable resolution required both patience and firmness in pushing for positive reforms of the Corps of Engineers management practices. I want to thank Chairman Lewis and Ranking Member Obey for their steadfast support in getting this done.

As I said in remarks earlier in the year, Chairman Hobson has led our subcommittee to take a long-term perspective on a number of important issues and this is resulting in some profound and positive changes, including improvements on nuclear weapons, insistence on 5-year planning from the Corps of Engineers, Bureau of Reclamation, and Department of Energy, a focus on completing projects, and management reforms, particularly at the Corps. On this side of the aisle, I am pleased to have had the opportunity to support him on these issues.

The conferencees were given an allocation of $749 million larger than was available when the House developed its bill back in the Spring. The tragic events that resulted from the hurricanes demonstrated that our Nation has crying needs in the areas served by the programs of the Corps of Engineers, and we have devoted the increased funds to meet these needs both along the Gulf of Mexico and across the Nation.

The Energy and Water Development conference agreement had to work within the constraints that started with the President's budget request and its inadequate commitment of resources to the programs of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. The events of this year amply demonstrated the latent threats to our Nation and the failure of inadequate manmade structures. The Congress is doing the right thing in increasing spending on the Corps in FY 2006 by more than $1 billion over the request. Hopefully the Administration will now understand the level of investment needed and submit a budget for FY 2007 that sustains and extends this investment level for the water infrastructure of our Nation.

An additional top priority within the Energy and Water appropriations is nuclear non-proliferation. While the overall level included in the conference agreement is slightly below the request, considerable funds have been shifted from a construction project with major unspent balances to support of high priority programs such as the safe removal of nuclear weapons material. The Russian side has signaled strong willingness in this area, and bureaucratic obstacles in the U.S. have been removed. We must seize this opportunity for the increased safety of us all.

Alas, this conference agreement is limited by an overall constraint forced by allocation.

Four fifths of the Energy and Water funding goes to the Department of Energy, but energy research, development and demonstration is only 10% of the Department. The cost of gasoline, natural gas, and oil have exploded over the past 18 months. Only the Federal Government can invest in the long-term R&D needed and stimulate demonstration and deployment of new technologies through partnerships with the private sector.

When our Nation’s energy and uncertain supplies for energy in the mid-1970s, President Carter and Congress, made major investments in energy conservation and renewable energy along with unconventional sources of fossil fuels were funded. A comparable response today would require quadrupling our support for renewable energy and doubling our support for conservation R&D at DOE. As a start, Democrats advocated for creation of an energy independence fund of one-quarter billion dollars of new money at DOE at the time the House considered the Energy and Water appropriations bill.

The prosperity of our Nation is built in part on preeminence in almost all areas of fundamental science research. The Department of Energy is the primary supporter of scientific research, science research and provides state-of-the-art user facilities available to investigators from government, academia, and industry.

The constraints on this conference agreement have allowed only one area of research and user support to be increased above the request—high performance computing. This is an area where the United States invented the field and long held undisputed leadership in the world. Several years ago, that leadership was challenged by Japan with their development of the Earth Simulator. For three years in a row, the U.S. has had to go away. But the issue is not going to go away.

I want to make clear to everyone concerned that I will do everything in my power to kill the ITER project if there is not an agreement by March that the domestic fusion program has to be scaled back to pay for ITER.

I am not going to allow the U.S. to enter into an international commitment that it cannot afford. I would rather kill the ITER project.

The fusion community wants to be realistic. It cannot have all its current projects and ITER. And it will not.

This year’s appropriation already makes clear why this is so. Just about every area of activity under the DOE Office of Science sees a cut, especially if earmarks are excluded, except Fusion Energy Sciences. Fusion science is important and may be a key to our energy future, but it cannot consume the entire budget of the Office of Science. And that is what happens if the ITER project is held harmless while ITER is constructed.

So I look forward to working with my colleagues on Appropriations and all my colleagues to make sure that the U.S. handles its international commitments responsibly. No one should misread what happened in this conference. The ITER program is in grave danger, and I guarantee you that it will not be completed with U.S. participation unless there is a more realistic plan to fund it.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.
First, let me commend Chairman Dave Hobson and Ranking Member Pete Visclosky for their hard work on this Conference report.

In a year of fiscal constraint, extraordinary costs due to natural disasters, they have produced an excellent bill that addresses our national priorities and a wide range of Federal programs—encompassing such diverse matters as flood control, navigation improvements, environmental restoration, nuclear waste disposal, advanced scientific research, maintenance of our nuclear stockpile, and nuclear non-proliferation.

No policy discussion about the Corps of Engineers can take place in this body without the looming shadow of Hurricane Katrina and its huge devastation.

This historic storm—encompassing 90,000 square miles in Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama—raised issues that the Corps and the Congress must consider in the months ahead as we look to rebuild the Gulf Region and protect others susceptible to same kind of natural disaster.

Let's be blunt. A Katrina could—and will—happen again and we must heed its "lessons learned."

In the near term, we must be a careful steward of the taxpayers’ dollars.

In the long—term, Congress needs to revisit how we prioritize ongoing Corps water infrastructure projects in a way that allows flood control, navigation, beach erosion to be completed once they are begun.

The Army Corps of Engineers keeps our waterways open for business, prevents our communities from flooding and our beaches from eroding.

In New Jersey alone, the Army Corps budget helps keep the 127 miles of New Jersey coastline open to visitors from across the country. Serving as one of New Jersey’s greatest attractions, our beaches generate over $3 billion dollars for our State’s economy each year, while providing over 800,000 people with jobs. This bill provides $71 million dollars for beach preservation and restoration.

One of the most important Army Corps projects is the Port of New York and New Jersey Harbor Deepening. For the third year in a row, Rep. Gillmor’s budget message recognized the dredging of this port as a national priority and it called for it to be one of five national navigational projects.

It goes without saying that projects like the Port drive our national economy. The Port is a national asset. As the largest port in the northeast and a leading job center for the New Jersey/New York Metropolitan Region, we must continue to focus our efforts on deepening its major navigation channels so that the port is able to meet the 21st Century needs of our economy.

Of course, the importance of the Army Corps budget is not limited to just navigational projects. In an effort to protect New Jerseyans, their homes, and their businesses from the destruction and devastation of flooding, this bill also provides the framework and the funding to purchase wetlands for natural storage areas, and to work with the local governments across northern New Jersey to develop long-term solutions to re-occurring floods. In New Jersey this means that important corps initiatives like the Jackson Brook Flood Control project in my own district and the ongoing acquisition of wetlands critical for the preservation of flood storage areas, among several other critical local projects have the funding to remain on track.

Mr. Speaker, our country continues to benefit from advances in science, technology and engineering. We’ve discovered the potential for fusion energy, advanced renewable energy, and improved energy efficiency. Through cutting edge research and development of these programs at the U.S. Department of Energy, we are rapidly advancing our scientific knowledge.

Mr. Speaker, I have long supported funding for renewable energy sources. The Committee’s investment of $1.2 billion in renewable energy resources will be integral to creating alternative energy solutions for our nation. The Department of Energy is pursuing other new technologies to meet future energy and environmental needs. These technologies will change how we use and produce energy.

I am pleased this year this Committee continues to recognize the incredible potential of fusion energy by providing a $30 million increase in funding for a total of $296 million in funding for the program—which will advance the vital work of the domestic fusion community to prosper at sites such as New Jersey’s Princeton Plasma Physics Laboratory.

The money in this bill for energy efficiency and renewable energy will fund continuing improvements in technology for programs I strongly support like hydro-electricity, wind and solar power. Since FY2000, the U.S. Congress, through this Committee has invested over $3 billion in renewable energy.

The Chairman and his staff have worked extremely hard to craft a good bill. Kevin Cook and his team deserve a lot of credit. For all of these reasons, I urge my colleagues to support this important legislation.

Mr. Hobson, Mr. Speaker, I yield for the purpose of making a unanimous consent request to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Gillmor).

(Mr. GILLMOR asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GILLMOR, Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the bill.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today to thank Chairman Hobson and Ranking Member Visclosky for their diligent efforts in bringing the Energy and Water Appropriations bill to the floor.

This legislation contains many important provisions for energy and water projects and funding for dealing with spent nuclear fuel, including funding for the Yucca Mountain repository. I want to thank the chairman for being a leader in nuclear issues, and for moving forward aggressively to deal with the spent fuel crisis. Regarding Yucca, and thanks specifically, the funding level is lower than the $651 million requested by the House Energy and Water Appropriations Subcommittee, but I understand this lower funding is a result of some challenges facing the project. With nuclear waste being stored at approximately 100 sites around the country, it needs to move to a central repository as soon as feasible.

I want to continue to see that this project moves forward and I look forward to when the Energy and Commerce Committee holds oversight hearings to ascertain the project’s recent progress as well as DOE’s plan for moving ahead at Yucca Mountain. I urge all of my colleagues to vote for this very important legislation.

Mr. HOBSON. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Montana (Mr. Rehberg), a committee member.

Mr. REHBerg, Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Hobson) for his hard work and the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. Visclosky) as well.

The current energy crisis has caused us to refocus on future energy needs, how we can become more efficient and produce more energy from the same resources with less pollution.

Funds have been correctly appropriated in this bill to research initiatives that will speed up the deployment of hydrogen fuel cells, coal gasification technologies, advanced turbine research, next generation fuels, and environmental controls.

In this bill, you will see Future Gen. Future Gen is a Department of Energy collaboration with private industry to develop a near-zero emissions power plant. Unlike traditional coal-fired generation facilities, sulfur and mercury will be removed before combustion, and the carbon dioxide will be safely sequestered underground, making Future Gen the most environmentally friendly coal-fired generation facility in the world.

The success of this venture requires government support to cost-share substantial private investments. This conference report sends a powerful message that the United States is prepared to move forward and construct such a facility.

I support these efforts and would like to again thank Chairman Hobson and Ranking Member Visclosky, and I look forward to seeing these research initiatives becoming a reality.

Mr. HOBSON. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. VISCLOSKY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from New York (Mr. Bishop).

Mr. BISHOP of New York. Mr. Speaker, I was one of 416 Members of this body who voted back in May for a different and better energy and water appropriations bill.

But then a funny thing happened on the way to the conference committee. Although the House- Senate-passed bills both funded one of this Nation’s most important analytical research projects, the Relativistic Heavy Ion Collider, which is operated by the Department of Energy’s world-class Brookhaven National Laboratory, which I am very proud to represent, somehow this groundbreaking research was cut dramatically in conference.

As a result, the RHIC, as it is known, could lay dormant, unused, for 47 weeks out of the year. Why is this project so important? It is designed to recreate conditions of the Big Bang from which the universe was born and life created.

The Federal Government has already invested more than $1 billion, that is $1 billion, in the construction of this facility; and it simply makes no sense to let such an investment go unused. I do not look to my colleagues, but this is like buying a Porsche and letting it sit in your driveway because you will not buy the gas.

I ask, is there a more important basic research project in progress anywhere else in the country? How did we justify disinvesting in this project, as well as BNL’s research into translational neuroimaging and functional nanomaterials?

Could this be an example of the kind of cuts we are beginning to witness as a result of the misguided priority of the budget reconciliation legislation?

That said, I am deeply grateful for the support of the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. HOBN), the chairman of the subcommittee, who visited the laboratory last year, and the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. VISCLOSKY), the ranking member, who has consistently advocated this research.

I look forward to their continued support and working with them to restore this funding and protect the jobs at BNL, some 200 of which might be lost, ideally within these first few months of fiscal year 2006, and upon their approval of reprogramming existing funds within the Department of Energy.

Until that happens, Mr. Speaker, I, therefore, must reluctantly oppose this conference report.

Mr. HOBN. Mr. Speaker, I yield for the purpose of making a unanimous consent request to the gentleman from Idaho (Mr. SIMPSON).

(Mr. SIMPSON asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SIMPSON. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of this conference report.

Once again this year, the bill before us is the result of a bi-partisan atmosphere in the Energy and Water Subcommittee that is fostered by Chairman HOBN and his ranking member—Mr. VISCLOSKY. I want to thank both of them for the manner in which they approach the many issues before the committee and for producing a bill that will pass today with little or no opposition.

First, the Energy and Water bill begins a new chapter in the history of the Army Corps of Engineers which will lead to better budgeting, more accountability, and the completion of high-priority projects in a quicker timeframe.

I want to commend Chairman HOBN for his insistence on reforming the Corps budgeting process and for demanding greater accountability from the Corps to Congress and the American people.

Second, the bill makes tremendous investments in our nation’s science and energy-related programs. Our National Laboratories, under this bill, will continue and expand their cutting-edge work on the many pressing scientific challenges facing our Nation. Perhaps even more important in a time of high energy prices, this bill will expand our Nation’s efforts to become less dependent on foreign sources of energy.

For my home state of Idaho, this bill will provide a boost to the Idaho National Laboratory’s ongoing work to design and build a new generation of nuclear reactors. This, the nuclear fuel cycle, protect our Nation’s critical infrastructure from cyber-based attacks, and secure radioactive nuclear materials from those who would do us harm.

Finally, this bill continues our Nation’s efforts to establish a long-term repository for spent nuclear fuel and high-level nuclear waste at Yucca Mountain. While the Yucca Mountain funding in the bill represents an overall decrease from last year, it still provides $500 million to move the project forward toward a license application and construction.

I am committed to seeing Yucca Mountain finalized and I know Chairman HOBN is as well. I remain hopeful that the current challenges facing the program will soon be overcome and that an aggressive schedule for completion of the project can be adopted in the very near future.

In closing, I want to again recognize the bipartisan manner in which this bill was written and acknowledge the tremendous work of all of the staff on the Subcommittee.

I urge my colleagues to support the bill.

Mr. HOBN. Mr. Speaker, I yield for the purpose of making a unanimous consent request to the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. LATHAM).

(Mr. LATHAM asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. LATHAM. Mr. Speaker, I thank the chair and I rise in support of the conference report.

Mr. HOBN. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Washington (Mr. HASTINGS).

Mr. HASTINGS of Washington. Mr. Speaker, I thank the chairman for yielding.

Mr. Speaker, the Department of Energy has been working for the past year to answer very similar questions about the challenges on construction of the waste treatment plant at the Hanford cleanup site, with only limited information being shared with Congress, the State of Washington, or the local community.

Just yesterday, the Department officially notified Congress that the costs of constructing the waste treatment plant have increased by more than 25 percent.

We were not told what caused the increase, what the Department’s planned path forward is for the waste treatment plant, or what the ultimate cost and completion date will be. We know only that costs have increased by over 25 percent, and more information is promised in the summer of next year.

Waiting until next summer for answers is simply not acceptable to me. Is that also the view of the chairman? Mr. HOBN. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HASTINGS of Washington. I yield to the gentleman from Ohio.

Mr. HOBN. Mr. Speaker, it is my view. My visit to Hanford last year gave me a real appreciation for the need to treat the tank wastes at Hanford and protect the Columbia River from the groundwater contamination.

The Department must be more forthcoming with information on its plans for the waste treatment plant, and this conference agreement requires a report on their actions to date by December 1 and quarterly reports beginning on January 1.

So the gentleman has my assurance that action on this is overdue. I had not visited and seen the problem first-hand, I might not have been as active and as strong on this; but I want to assure the gentleman and his State that we are going to be on top of this.

Mr. HASTINGS of Washington. Mr. Speaker, reclaiming my time, this reporting requirement, in my mind, is fully justified and delivers a strong message that the Department must be more direct, open, and prompt in sharing details on its path forward for the waste treatment plant. I thank the gentleman for his continued commitment to the environmental management program within the Department of Energy.

Mr. HOBN. Mr. Speaker, I yield for the purpose of making a unanimous consent request to the gentleman from California (Mr. DOOLITTLE).

(Mr. DOOLITTLE asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. DOOLITTLE. Mr. Speaker, I rise to express my strong support for this bill.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of the Energy and Water Development rule/conference report on the floor today and urge my colleagues support it.

The Energy and Water Development Appropriations bill for fiscal year 2006 total $30.5 billion.

Title I of the bill provides $5.4 billion for the programs of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, an increase of $661 million above the fiscal year 2005 enacted level and $1.2 billion over the budget request.

Title II provides $1.07 billion for the Department of the Interior and the Bureau of Reclamation, an increase of $113.9 million above the budget request. The committee recommended $1.03 billion for the Bureau of Reclamation.

Title III provides $24.2 billion for the Department of Energy, DOE, a decrease of $129 million from fiscal year 2005 and $76 million less than the budget request. All Department of Energy programs are funded within this bill. The committee funds new initiatives on the consolidation of special nuclear materials, the interim storage and integrated recycling of spent nuclear fuel, and on creating a sustain-able nuclear stockpile and the DOE complex necessary to support that stockpile.

California Specific Funding

Over $300 million for Corps projects in California. These include flood control, water supply and navigation.

Over $200 million for Bureau of Reclamation projects in California. These include water supply, water reuse, and desalination.

$37 million for CALFED projects. The committee has redirected the funding for higher priority projects that will support the implementation of the CALFED program. The funded projects will produce increased sources of water for the State of California, otherwise known as “firm yield” projects, improve drinking water quality, and improve water delivery flexibility.

$6 million for Sacramento Area water conservation projects.

$1 million for an economic analysis update for Auburn Dam.

$2 million for the American River Pump Station.

$1 million for the El Dorado Irrigation District Temperature Control Device.

$1 million for the Sacramento River diversion Study.

$40 million for the American River flood control projects, including $10 million for a permanent bridge below Folsom Dam.

The bill fully funded the President’s request for the National Ignition Facility, the premier U.S. facility for inertial confinement fusion, and the Stanford Linear Accelerator Center, a high energy physics facility and cornerstone of our understanding of the physical universe. These two outstanding California facilities are on the cutting edge of research.

The bill also provides continued funding for Lawrence Berkeley Laboratory to continue basic research and advanced scientific computing, which allows the U.S. to compete with the rest of the world in important scientific fields.

Mr. BLUMENAUER. Mr. Speaker, the tragedy of Hurricane Katrina taught us again the importance of investing in our Nation’s water infrastructure. While I believe that significant changes need to be made in the operations and management of the Army Corps of Engineers, I support this legislation which acknowledges the lack of prioritization process for Corps projects. I support language in the bill that directs the National Academy of Public Administration to study and recommend factors to be used in determining the allocation of the Corps’ limited resources.

I also strongly support funding contained in the bill that will benefit my constituents and the Pacific Northwest environment. I appreciate the funding included for floodplain res-oration on Johnson Creek, which will enable the Corps to undertake a cost-effective environmental improvement within an area slated for industrial development and will help leverage private development by proactively addressing important stream corridor needs. I am also pleased that the conference chose to fund an energy conservation program at the Amory Theater in Portland and a Solar Photovoltaic Test Facility System at Portland State University. The report language contains important funding, although not nearly the amount necessary, for the St. Johns Landfill Dike Stabilization, which will help prevent municipal and industrial waste from contaminating sensitive wetlands. Finally, I appreciate the funding in the bill directed towards dredging, maintaining, and improving restoration on the Williamette and Columbia Rivers.

However, I am strongly opposed to language in the conference report directing the Bonneville Power Administration, BPA, to cease funding of an important independent scientific study, the Idaho National Laboratory’s Environmentally Responsible Energy Solutions Study. BPA was mandated by the Department of Energy and Commerce Committee. The committee doesn’t even get a copy of the report and should not be forced to fund work that the committee has already directed DOE to stop. In this bill, the Appropriations Committee is reversal the decisions of the Department of Energy.

As I noted in the House debate, the Idaho National Laboratory’s Environmentally Responsible Energy Solutions Study is an important scientific study that will help us understand the potential environmental impacts of carbon capture and storage technologies. The study is being conducted by the Idaho National Laboratory and is peer-reviewed and transparent. The study is important because it will help us understand the potential environmental impacts of carbon capture and storage technologies. The study is being conducted by the Idaho National Laboratory and is peer-reviewed and transparent. The study is important because it will help us understand the potential environmental impacts of carbon capture and storage technologies.

I am also pleased at the outcome on the bunker buster, I am very concerned that this appropriations bill provides $80 million for the Advanced Fuel Cycle Initiative—an increase of $10 million over the amount requested for this program. In addition, the bill provides an additional $50 million in nuclear waste disposal funding to support development of a spent nuclear fuel recycling plan. These proposals are aimed at reviving nuclear reprocessing—an idea that Congress has considered and rejected in the past.

The conference report contains language that directs the Department of Energy to use this money to accelerate the development of a separations technology that can address the current inventories of commercial spent nuclear fuel and select the preferred technology no later than the end of fiscal year 2007.

Essentially, the Appropriations Committee is telling DOE that it must either develop a new nuclear weapon on international non-proliferation efforts, the fact that the bunker buster is a dangerous and wasteful use of limited resources.

I warned back in 1987 that the decision to limit the search for a deep underground repos-sitory. It effectively means that there will be forced back to square one. Now it appears that my warnings are being borne out. The Yucca Mountain repository is falling apart in the face of serious scientific and technical problems. But rather than come back to Congress and ask for legislation that would re-open the search for a permanent repository, which the nuclear industry and its supporters in Congress know would be politically hazardous, the appropriators now appear to be effectively abandoning the notion of deep underground burial. Instead, they want to reprocess the waste and store it in above ground “intern” storage sites. The search for a deep underground repository is a multi-billion dollar project that would take decades to complete and could be permanently halted if it is ever constructed.

Now, you would think that such a fundamental rewrite of the Nuclear Waste Policy Act would actually require action by the committee that actually has jurisdiction over the act in the first place. In the House, that would be the Energy and Commerce Committee. However, in this bill the directive to prioritize reprocessing is being made without any participation by the Energy and Commerce Committee. The committee doesn’t even get a copy of the report mandated by the Appropriations conferences.

The conference report language in the Energy Policy Act which authorized R&D on reprocessing. I opposed that language, and sought unsuccessfully to remove it from the bill. But R&D is far different from moving to full-scale engineering of reprocessing technologies with a short-term deployment objective. That is what is being proposed in the bill before us today. This conference report is actually talking about setting a target for site selection in fiscal year 2007, and a target for initiation of construction of one or more integrated spent fuel recycling facilities in fiscal year 2010.

This has enormous implications for the future of efforts to permanently dispose of the Nation’s nuclear waste in a deep underground repository. It effectively means that there will be no deep underground repository. It effectively means that there will be no deep underground burial of waste in our lifetimes. So, all of the billions paid into the Nuclear Waste Fund over the years will soon see those funds be diverted over to supporting this new unproceeded program of reprocessing.
This is a huge policy shift. Since the 1970’s we have had a policy in this country against reprocessing spent fuel, both because of the risk of nonproliferation and because reprocessing is not economical. In recent years, Republican leaders in Washington have decided they would like to change the policy, however.
I am fundamentally opposed to reprocessing, because I believe that a revival of domestic reprocessing would undermine America’s nuclear nonproliferation efforts, cost us enormous amounts of money, will not solve the nuclear waste problem, and won’t increase nuclear safety.

With respect to the proliferation risks—just look at North Korea. It has been reprocessing spent fuel from its reactors to use in nuclear bombs. In response, President Bush has asked his military advisors Group 11 to accede ac-sess to reprocessing technology, arguing that:
This step will prevent new states from developing the means to produce fissile material for nuclear bombs.

At the same time, the U.S. is confronting Iran over its plan to develop a full uranium enrichment program. How are we going to cre-ibly ask the rest of the world to support us when we tell Iran or any other nation that they cannot have the full fuel cycle or reprocessing when we have one here at home? It just won’t fly.

America cannot preach nuclear temperance from a barstool. We cannot credibly tell other nations that they should refrain from reprocessing or other nuclear fuel cycle activities abroad when we are engaging in these same exact activities here at home. That is why President Gerald Ford called for an end to commercial reprocessing back in 1976, and why no President since then has successfully revived reprocessing.

In addition to the serious adverse non-proliferation consequences, reprocessing also is not economical. A MIT study put the cost of reprocessing at four times that of as once-through nuclear power. The current price of concentrated uranium “yellowcake” in the spot market is about $53.00/kg. For reprocessing to be economical, there must be a sustained 8-fold increase in the long-term price of uranium.
That is not likely to occur anytime soon.

On top of that is the cost of building a plant.
As a benchmark, Japan’s nearly completed Rokkasho reprocessing plant—20 years in the making—costs on the order of $20 billion. I have seen some cost estimates for a U.S. re-processing program that run as high as $65 billion. That is not something that is economically viable at a time of huge Federal budget deficits.

Moreover, reprocessing will not really alleviate the nuclear waste problem. Talk to the folks at Savannah River where over 30 million gallons of high-level were left behind from re-processing. Under this bill, Savannah River may be targeted again for interim storage for spent fuel, awaiting reprocessing. So might Hanford and Idaho or other Federal sites.
The conference report states that funding in the Nuclear Waste Disposal Account will be used:
to prepare the overall program plan and to initiate a competition to select one or more sites suitable for development of integrated recycling facilities (i.e., separation of spent fuel, fabrication of mixed oxide fuel, vitrification of waste products, and process storage) and initiate work on an Environmental Impact Statement. The site competition should be open to a wide range of other possible federal and non-federal sites on a strictly voluntary basis.

These reprocessing sites will become de facto nuclear waste dumps. Which State is going to “volunteer” to become a nuclear waste dump? Under the Nuclear Waste Defect Act, such a site cannot legally be located at the Yucca Mountain site. So, where is it going to go?

How long will the waste be stored there?
The spent nuclear fuel cannot even be handled to be reprocessed for 5 to 15 years—it is so radioactive. So we know already that “interim storage” could last for a very long time.

And if we construct these “interim” waste dumps, what happens next? What will happen to all this waste when the hard reality of the disastrous economics combined with the fact that our government is already too deep in deficit that it will be unable to subsidize such a program forever? There are simply too many unanswered questions.

It is also not accurate to suggest, as some do, that reprocessing is safe. Twenty tons of highly radioactive material leaked from a broken pipe at the Sellafield nuclear reprocessing plant in the United Kingdom in April of this year. Senior officials at the UK’s Nuclear Defense commission, which operates the Sellafield reprocessing have pushed to close THORP altogether, arguing that it is more cost-effective to close the plant now rather than repair the problems only to decomisso the plant as planned in 2012. Is that the kind of mess we want happening over here?

When the House version of this bill was being debated on the House floor last summer, I offered an amendment which would have transferred the $15.5 million appropriated for reprocessing and interim storage to several energy efficiency programs that were underfunded in the bill. Unfortunately, my amendment was defeated.

I continue to be opposed to the reprocessing language in the bill. I intend to continue raising questions about this proposal, both in the Energy and Commerce Committee and on this floor.

Finally, on another matter, I am very concerned about the cuts that have been made in energy efficiency programs in this bill. We are in the midst of an energy emergency. We had a hearing last week when the Commerce Committee last week that showed the impact that these high prices are having across the board, in every sector of the econ-
y. The Senate will be holding a hearing today on price gouging by big oil companies and the $100 billion in oil company profits produced for 2005. There are things that we can do in this area. What we are seeing is missed opportunities.

The House Bill for the fiscal year 2006 Energy and Water Appropriations provided $41 million for the State Energy Program. The Senate bill provided $41 million for the State Energy Program. Now we go to conference and the conference report provides $36 million, which is $8 million below fiscal year 2005 levels—almost a 20 percent cut. We are in the midst of an energy crisis. This program implements energy efficiency programs and energy emergency preparedness activities in every State in our country. A recent National Laboratory study concluded that for every $1 in vested, we get $7.22 in return for blockage ings. This makes no sense. We should be increasing these programs, not cutting them.

Mr. GENE GREEN of Texas. Mr. Speaker,
I rise in strong support of the House Energy and Water Appropriations Act for Fiscal Year

This legislation provides essential funding for the Houston Ship Channel, $26 million to finish the deepening and widening project and conduct environmental restoration work.

Also, I want to particularly express my appreciation for the Subcommitte’s increase for Operations and Maintenance funding to $11 million for Houston-Galveston.

It is penny-wise and pound foolish to underfund maintenance, because that reduces the capacity we get from all of our construction dollars.

If we are going to dredge a channel to 45 feet to allow for modern ships to reach a port, we obviously have to keep that channel at 45 feet to remove silting and for navigation.

This bill also provides important funding for flood control projects in the Houston area—$375,000 for construction of the Hunting Bayou Federal flood control project and $75,000 to finish up the General Reevaluation Review study for Greens Bayou.

Hurricane Katrina showed the Nation the value of flood control projects. Both the Hunting Bayou and the Greens Bayou projects will save Federal money. By protecting homes from flooding, we reduce the amount of future disaster assistance and flood insurance claims.

My constituents who would benefit from these projects do own expensive beach houses close to the shoreline, they own homes in a densely populated urban area over 50 miles from Galveston Bay.

However, Houston does not have a lot of elevated areas and we are at risk from hurricanes and tropical storms, and as a result flood control projects make good economic sense.

Unfortunately the Bush Administration repetedly zeroes out funding in their budgets for flood control projects in Houston, for reasons I still cannot understand.

Our projects are authorized by Congress, have strong cost-benefit ratios, are supported by the community, and are managed by the professional experts at the Harris County Flood Control District. Hunting Bayou had over 8,000 residences flood in 2001 from Tropical Storm Allison and Greens Bayou had over
2,000 homes flood in 2001.

As a result, I want to thank the Subcommittee Chairman, DAVID HOIBON, the Ranking Member, PETE VISCLOSKY, and especially my Texas colleague CHERT EDWARDS for their strong support of funds for flood control projects.

As final note, I want to add that the Houston Ship Channel has received serious damage from Hurricane Rita, roughly $30 million. Parts of the channel have silted up with material to the depth of 45 feet, which is a serious safety and economic problem.

If the large oil tankers cannot get to the refineries on the Houston Ship Channel, that will not help gasoline prices to go down in this country. Our refinery capacity has got a lot of notice lately in Congress, and this is something we can do in the short term to help that—repair hurricane damage at oil importing ports like the Port of Houston.

The Houston delegation—myself, John Culberson, Tom Delay, Al Green, Sheila Jackson-Lee, Kevin Brady, Michael McCaul, Ted Poe, and our Texas colleagues on the Appropriations Committee Chet Edwards all recently sent a letter to the Committee and Subcommittee requesting this $30 million in emergency damage repair funding for the next Supplemental.

Mr. Speaker, I encourage my colleagues to support this legislation.

Mr. BERRY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to support the FY06 Energy and Water Appropriations Bill.

Chairman HOBSON, Ranking Member VISCOSKY, and their staffs have worked tirelessly to produce a good bill and they deserve much praise for their efforts.

This bill goes a long way in strengthening our Nation’s water infrastructure. If this past hurricane season has taught us anything, it is that we must ensure an adequate level of protection for our coastal cities and those areas prone to flooding.

The modest investments included in this bill can save billions in disaster recovery needs.

Our Nation’s water infrastructure is also critical to building the economy. Our waterways provide a low cost way to move agriculture commodities and manufactured goods to the world market. This bill will help maintain and strengthen these arteries, ensuring access for American producers.

This legislation also includes critical funding for Nuclear power and our ability to store nuclear waste, namely the Yucca Mountain repository. The funding level is lower than what the House agreed to earlier this year, but the lower funding level is justified by the Energy Department’s recent changes to the project. What is important is that the Yucca Mountain project and Federal spent fuel management moves forward.

The legislation’s funding for the Corps of Engineers, nuclear energy R&D and the Yucca Mountain program helps ensure a vibrant future for American water ways, flood control and nuclear energy.

I ask my colleagues to join me in congratulating Chairman HOBSON and Ranking Member VISCOSKY for their hard work and encourage all of them to support this bill.

Mr. VISCOSKY. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. HOBSON. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. ISSA). Without objection, the previous question is ordered on the conference report.

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the conference report.

Pursuant to clause 10 of rule XX, the yeas and nays are ordered.

Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX, further proceedings on this question will be postponed.

CONTINUATION OF THE NATIONAL EMERGENCY WITH RESPECT TO IRAN—MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES (H. DOC. NO. 109-68)

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following message from the President of the United States: which was read and, together with the accompanying papers, without objection, referred to the Committee on International Relations and ordered to be printed:

To the Congress of the United States:

Section 202(d) of the National Emergencies Act (50 U.S.C. 1622(d)) provides for the automatic termination of a national emergency unless, prior to the anniversary date of its declaration, the President publishes in the Federal Register and transmits to the Congress a notice stating that the emergency is to continue in effect beyond the anniversary date. Consistent with this provision, I have sent the enclosed notice to the Federal Register for publication, stating that the Iran emergency declared by Executive Order 12170 on November 14, 1979, is to continue in effect beyond November 14, 2005. The most recent notice continuing this emergency was published in the Federal Register on November 12, 2004 (69 FR 65513).

Our relations with Iran have not yet returned to normal, and the process of implementing the January 19, 1955, agreements with Iran is still underway. For these reasons, I have determined that it is necessary to continue the national emergency declared on November 14, 1979, with respect to Iran, beyond November 14, 2005.

GEORGE W. BUSH.

THE WHITE HOUSE, November 9, 2005.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. WOLF. Madam Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days in which to revise and extend their remarks and include tabular and extraneous material on the conference report to accompany H.R. 2862.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mrs. BIGGERT). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Virginia? There was no objection.

CONFERENCE REPORT ON H.R. 2862, SCIENCE, STATE, JUSTICE, COMMERCE, AND RELATED AGENCIES APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 2006

Mr. WOLF. Madam Speaker, pursuant to House Resolution 538, I call up the conference report on the bill (H.R. 2862) making appropriations for Science, the Departments of State, Justice, and Commerce, and related agencies for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2006, and for other purposes.

The Clerk reads the conference report.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to House Resolution 538, the conference report is considered read.

(For conference report and statement, see proceedings of the House of November 7, 2005, at page H9713.)

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Virginia (Mr. WOLF) and the gentleman from West Virginia (Mr. MOLLON) each will control 30 minutes of debate.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Virginia.

Mr. WOLF. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume, and I am pleased to bring to the floor today the conference report on H.R. 2862, the fiscal year 2006 Science, State, Justice, Commerce, and Related Agencies Appropriations Act.

Madam Speaker, I want to thank my colleague, the gentleman from West Virginia (Mr. MOLLON), for his support throughout the process. Together, we were able to get a strong bill passed by the House with a vote of 418 to 7. Also, I want to thank our Senate counterparts, Chairman SHELBY and Senator MCCONNELL, as well as Ranking member, the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY).

Within a very tight allocation, we were able to provide funding for a variety of critical national priorities. The conference report provides $21.4 billion for the Department of Justice, $784 million above fiscal year 2005 and $1.1 billion over the budget request.

The conference agreement includes $5.8 billion for the FBI, which is $15 million above the budget request. The bill will provide for additional agents, analysts, and support staff to address terrorism and espionage threats. And keep in mind that last week the stories broke about how the Chinese, that, unfortunately, this body gave the Most Favored Nation trading status to, has been spying aggressively against our country, and the latest spying episode dealt with the B-1 bomber.

In addition, the bill provides funding to address deficiencies identified through external reviews, including a $20 million increase for the FBI Academy, a $20 million increase for additional secure space, and a $14 million increase to improve information technology program management. $5 million for retention and recruitment, a $26 million increase for translators, and a $70 million increase for the Terrorist Screening Center.

The conference agreement includes $12 million above the request for the Marshals Service to enhance the protection of the Judiciary and fugitive apprehension programs.

For DEA, Madam Speaker, the bill restores proposed cuts for Mobile Enforcement Teams and the Demand Reduction program, and directs these efforts to focus on meth enforcement. The conference report does not include the Combat Meth Act that was attached to the Senate bill. While I strongly support the bill's intent to address this destructive drug, there were some concerns raised about the Senate language.

The Judiciary Committee and the Energy and Commerce Committee, who are the committees of jurisdiction on this subject, are addressing these concerns. In fact, today I understand the House Judiciary Committee is marking up a meth bill. I look forward to voting for Chairmen SENSENIBRNER and Barton's bill when it comes to the House floor.

The conference report fully funds the ATF's request and includes a $20 million increase for Violent Crime Impact Teams to help those communities most impacted by gangs and violent criminals. There is a growing problem of gang and gang violence throughout the country.

The conference agreement provides $2.7 billion for State and local law enforcement, $1.1 billion above the administration's request, including $416.5 million for Byrne Justice Assistance grants and $405 million for State Criminal Alien Assistance. And that funding really was due to Chairman LEWIS, and also Mr. DREIER and Mr. KOLBE, when we dealt with that issue on the floor. That was a big issue .

The bill also includes $109 million to address critical DNA backlogs, $387 for violence against women prevention and $333 million for juvenile justice.

The conference report provides $5.82 billion for NASA, including funding for the President's vision for space exploration. We have also restored funding for aeronautics research, which the administration had proposed to reduce.

For the National Science Foundation, Madam Speaker, the bill includes $5.65 billion, which is $48 million above the request. This increase for basic scientific research and science education is critical to ensuring that we continue to lead in our scientific revolution and competitiveness, which is necessary if we are to retain our position in the world economy.

Many people are concerned that with the test scores in math, science, physics, chemistry and biology, and the number of engineers we have, we are falling behind. So even in this tight period of the budget, we were able to dramatically increase that, and there will be a conference that was directed by the subcommittee by the House Appropriations in December, chaired by Congressman VERN EHLERS and also Chairman BOEHLERT and others, with some of the best minds to come together to attempt to deal with this issue. Rather than just talking about it, they will constructively deal with it and get the administration on board. So I would hope and I pray that the President will address this issue in his State of the Union message next year.

The conference report includes $888 million for the Securities and Exchange Commission to provide the necessary resources to protect investors from corporate fraud.

For the State Department, we have provided $9.6 billion, including $1.6 billion, the full requested level for embassy security upgrades. It also includes $1.53 billion for public diplomacy programs including international broadcasting, focusing on expanded programs for the Arab and Muslim world.

At the Department of Commerce, the conference report provides $5.6 billion for the Department of Commerce and budgetary issues. Increases will result in more accurate economic statistics, improved weather forecasting, and more accurate and timely census data.

The bill also includes an increase for the Nation's trade agencies. This will help former Member Mr. Portman to negotiate, enforce and verify free and fair trade agreements. It also has an amendment offered by Congresswoman Noonan, which is very, very important with respect to this whole issue of negotiating treaties.

Overall, Mr. Speaker, the conference report agreement represents a sound and fair resolution to the many issues that faced us, and it did so in a fiscally responsible manner. I would urge my colleagues to support this conference.

Before I reference some people, I want to say there is another issue we attempted to deal with and were not able to get agreement on, and that is to direct the Department of State in a period of 60 days to come up with a policy to deal with how we take care of the families of those who were lost in the bombing of the American Embassy in Beirut in 1983; the October bombing of the U.S. Marine barracks, where 241 Marines were killed; the Tanzania Embassy bombings; the Kenya Embassy bombings, and the USAID employees that were killed.

It was a strange experience because we were operating in good faith, trying to get this, and some lawyers who got involved in this process really created a roadblock, and they did so in a fiscally responsible manner. I would urge my colleagues to support this conference.

I want to particularly thank Mike Mollohan, who has led the subcommittee through the process.

Madam Speaker, this is a good bill. It really was due to Chairman LEWIS, and also Mr. DREIER and Mr. KOLBE, when we dealt with that issue on the floor. That was a big issue.

Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MOLLOHAN. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, I rise in support of the fiscal year 2006 appropriations conference report for Science, the Departments of State, Justice, Commerce and related agencies.

Madam Speaker, right at the beginning, I would especially like to thank Chairman Wolf and his staff; Celia Alvarado, Anne Marie Goldsmith, Joel Kaplan, Christine Kojac, John Martens, and Mike Ringler for their help, their outstanding work on this bill, their professionalism, and for their help in shepherding this bill with all its jurisdictions through the appropriations process.

I would also like to thank the minority appropriations staff, Michelle Burkett and David Pomerantz, and my personal staff, Julie Aaronson and Sally Moorehead, for their hard work throughout this long process.

Madam Speaker, let me especially express my appreciation to Chairman Wolf, and his Capitol Hill management of a complicated bill with a lot of jurisdictions; and I cannot stress enough the kindness and fairness that he has shown to me, to our committee staff, and to the House minority throughout this process. While Chairman Wolf and I may have had disagreements, we may not have agreed on every provision in this bill, Chairman Wolf has listened to our arguments and, where appropriate, he has looked for ways to accommodate our requests, and we thank him for that.

Madam Speaker, this is a good bill. It provides $57.85 billion. That is an increase of $1.6 billion above last year's level for very diverse programs; programs that fund our Federal and local law enforcement activities; programs that invest in our government's major science activities; programs that construct and defend our embassies abroad; programs that provide support to our forces overseas; programs that help promote our economic development. There are many high points in this bill. The Department of Justice and all the law enforcement programs that it manages were at $1.1 billion above the President's request and $784 million above fiscal year 2005, while we are disappointed in the funding available for local and State law enforcement.

Science activity is up, with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration funded at the requested level of $16.5 billion. That is $260 million above fiscal year 2005.

The National Science Foundation receives $5.65 billion in this bill, an increase of $4 billion above last year and $49 million above the President's budget request.

The State Department and Broadcasting Board of Governors, while funded below the President's request, receive $6 billion for worldwide security upgrades, diplomatic and consular programs, and international broadcasting.

For our local communities, we restored the Economic Development Administration's funding to last year's level, rejecting in the process the President's proposal to eliminate the Economic Development Administration.

In addition, we rejected his proposal to consolidate and shrink proposals that provide Federal investment to strengthen our local communities. In this bill we also included language supporting the role of the economic development districts and reaffirming our commitment to the minimum 50 percent Federal match for local dollars. My constituents and those in rural areas were very vocal on these two points, and I am pleased that the chairman was supportive and that we could be responsive to those requests.

Madam Speaker, I am concerned that this year, like last year, we were not able to provide the $80 million needed to subsidize the 7(a) loan program in the Small Business Administration. I have seen firsthand the chilling effect that increased fees have had on small businesses in my State, and I hope we will monitor the 7(a) program during the next year and evaluate to what extent this lack of funding creates a problem for our small businesses accessing needed capital.

Finally, Madam Speaker, I would like to draw special attention to section 624 of the conference report. It reads... None of the funds made available in this act shall be used in any way whatsoever to support or justify the use of torture of any official or contract employee of the United States Government.

Madam Speaker, this provision reflects Chairman Wolf's values and his unwavering commitment to human rights. It is the chairman's initiative, and it is to his credit that it is included in the final bill.

Madam Speaker, again, I want to thank Chairman Wolf, and I urge Members to support this conference report.

Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. WOLF. Madam Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. EHLERS), a member of the Science Committee, who is also a physicist.

Mr. EHLERS. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time, and I commend him for his work on this report as well as on the original House bill.

Madam Speaker, I rise today in support of the conference report of the Science, State, Justice, Commerce, and Related Agencies Appropriations Act for Fiscal Year 2006. I want to recognize and pay tribute to the tremendous effort of Chairman Wolf and his staff, and the members on the minority side and his staff, that they have exerted to meet the challenge of fairly balancing this bill.

Madam Speaker, their hard work is commendable. I want to thank them for their tireless work.

I would like to speak in particular about one part of the bill, the National Science Foundation, better known as NSF. New to the subcommittee this year, NSF is the only Federal agency dedicated solely to supporting fundamental scientific research. While it represents a relatively small part of the overall budget, it is an extremely important part. NSF funding accounts for one-fifth of all Federal support for basic research and 40 percent of physical science research at academic institutions.

I am delighted that Chairman Wolf shares an appreciation for the critical role innovation has played in our economy and national security, as well as its unique tie to education and the work supported by the NSF.

In May of this year, 167 Members of Congress joined with me in signing a letter to support an increase for the budget of the National Science Foundation. Since the NSF was funded below the President's request last year, I am very grateful that the conference saw fit to reverse this declining trend and return to sustaining the level of funding for NSF. The baseline funding level for NSF in fiscal year 2006 of $5.65 billion reflects a strong commitment to NSF's job of developing our future skilled workforce and laying the foundation for innovative technologies in the fields of telecommunications, medicine, and energy.

Furthermore, I want to acknowledge the committee's work to restore cuts endured by several programs within the Education Directorate at NSF. The Math and Science Partnership Program budget has been greatly diminished since 2002, when it was funded at $160 million. I am grateful that the conference has signaled their recognition of the importance of this program by funding this program at $64 million, $4 million above the requested level.

We know that other countries are investing and outperforming the United States in the area of math and science education. We will not compete successfully with the rest of the world if our workforce is not on the cutting edge of these fields, and we need to maintain these important programs that support math and science education.

Also within this bill, I want to briefly mention my appreciation that the Manufacturing Extension Partnership Program, MEP, at the National Institute for Standards and Technology has been funded at $165 million. These funds will allow MEP centers across the country to continue their vital services for small- and medium-sized manufacturers that are not replicated by any other private or public organization.

Balancing many pressing national priorities within this tight budget climate is certainly a challenge. We must increase our funding of research and development because it is the foundation for increased innovation, economic vitality and national security. I look forward to continuing to work with Chairman Wolf and my colleagues to improve our support for NSF fundamental research and education programs in future years. I certainly encourage the administration and the President to increase their funding request for the National Science Foundation in the next budget that we will process next year.

Mr. MOLLOHAN. Madam Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY), the ranking member of the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. OBEY. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

Madam Speaker, I want to say at the outset I have a great deal of admiration for the gentleman from Virginia. I think he is one of the best committee chairmen in this House, and I think he has treated the substance of this bill absolutely down the center, and I think he has dealt with the majority and the minority in a very even-handed fashion. I respect that and appreciate that.

Frankly, I had thought I would be voting for this bill as I have for the Foreign Operations Appropriations bill, and as I intend to vote on the Energy and Water conference report. But I find myself unable to support this bill in the final instance for a number of reasons which have very little to do with the gentleman from Virginia or the gentleman from West Virginia. I have three basic problems with this bill.

First of all, the conferees stripped the Sanders amendment out of the bill.
I think this Congress has done a miserable job of oversight with respect to Iraq, a miserable job with respect to oversight of the PATRIOT Act and a number of other security-related issues.

I might not be so concerned about the fact that the conferees stripped out the amendment which precluded the administration from snipping into people’s use of libraries, I might not feel so strongly about it if I felt that the Congress had a better record of conducting aggressive oversight than that which I do not. So under those circumstances, I think what the committee has done in stripping out that language is quite dangerous.

Secondly, I would say there is a kabuki dance going on in this town with respect to local and State law enforcement funding. This bill now effectively funds State and local law enforcement at a level which is $1 billion less than it was in fiscal year 2004.

What happens each year is that the President makes very large cuts in that program. This committee then restores a significant portion of those funds, but still leaving us below the funding level for last year. As a result, this year was $226 million below the level of last year before I think that is headed in the wrong direction.

Lady, I think there is one provision in this bill which is especially mean and that is the funding level for legal services. Legal services is the program that we provide in order to enable indigent people to have some access to civil courts, and yet this bill reduces funding for legal services below last year’s level.

As I said in the conference, every day we come onto this floor and we pledge allegiance to the flag and at the end of that pledge we talk about our dedication to providing “liberty and justice for all”. I do not think anybody can stand on this floor with a straight face and say that anymore. I think, if you vote to cut legal services, what you are really saying is that we stand for liberty and justice “for those who can pay for it”.

I do not think that is what this country is supposed to be all about. By the time you take into account not just the money in this bill for legal service, but when you take into account the across-the-board cut that has already been applied, and when you add to that the additional across-the-board cut which is expected to be applied at some point in the process before we are finished, you have substanially weakened funding for legal services. I think that is an indefensible thing to do.

I would point out that these reductions being made at the same time that NASA is being given upwards of $2 billion to deal with a manned mission to Mars. I have nothing against going to Mars. I think in the long term it is a wonderful expansion of the human endeavor. But I do believe that to add that kind of funding to NASA for a Mars mission and to make the kind of tax cuts for the most wealthy people in this society that the Congress is going to be supporting in the coming days, while at the same time cutting legal service funds for the indigent, cutting aid for local and State law enforcement grants, I think that represents a wrong set of priorities. I think it is taking us in the wrong direction.

I note that this subcommittee has been reorganized at the demand of the majority leader on the side of the aisle, Mr. DeLAY, who last year, representing Houston, wanted to see to it that NASA had a clear track to funding increases. So he did a very effective job of representing his district by moving NASA into this subcommittee where it has to compete against programs such as I have just mentioned.

And as a result of the front of the train and some of these other priorities are at the back of the train, I regret that.

I do appreciate very much the dedication that the gentleman has shown to the science budget. I think the National Science Foundation is one of the keys to our future economic growth. I congratulate him for that. But in the end, for the reasons I have cited, I am going to feel constrained to cast a “no” vote on the passage of the conference report.

Mr. WOLF. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I appreciate the comments of the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY). On the issue of legal services, we are above the administration’s request, but I understand what the gentleman is saying. I am somewhat sympathetic to it, too. But for the record, we are $12.5 million above the administration’s request. But the gentleman’s comments are telling.

On the issue of oversight on the war, I agree with the gentleman. I have been to Iraq three times, and I have come up with a proposal asking the administration to have fresh eyes on the target, 10 people who are men and women of integrity and honesty and character to go and come back and report.

So I think the gentleman is right. I feel very strongly we should have major oversight on the operation of the war. Also, I think the administration has to do a better job, and I think oversight would tell us if it were to come back and tell us the ramifications of failure. I think we should fail in Iraq, the ramifications to this country are very serious with regard to terrorism. So by having oversight, I think those ramifications would come out. But I agree with Mr. OBEY. I think there should be much more aggressive oversight. Mr. WAMP.

Mr. WAMP. Madam Speaker, I rise in support of this conference report with deep gratitude to the ranking member and the chairman and excellent staff work. I believe that Chairman Wolf, while he does not like for people to talk about him, said that a discipline, and I believe it is the God who created us speaks to us and through us through our conscience, and I am grateful that he is so sensitive to the needs of humanity.

We talk a lot about terror. There is terror in a lot of homes in this country because methamphetamine production has crept into our communities, particularly in rural America. It hit Tennessee really hard. And in this bill, the staff and the chairman and the ranking member have responded very well, and I am grateful for that because we have got to attack this problem. At a time of need to tighten our belts and get back towards a balanced budget, we ought to do some of these things going to cost us a whole lot more later.

In Tennessee we started with a U.S. Attorney-led partnership of local, State, and Federal governments and a task force that has proven good for the whole State, and it is a model for the Nation on cooperation between local, State, and Federal governments so that they can interdict, they can actually get a conviction, not just an indictment but a conviction; and we now are second in the Nation in attacking this problem and busting these labs and running these people back into the woods.

We have had to change State laws and Federal laws, but it takes support; and this committee has been very responsive, and I am grateful for that; and I think the House should support this continued effort to fight methamphetamine production in this country.

Mr. MOLLOHAN. Madam Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from New York (Mr. SERRANO). There is no member of the majority of our subcommittee who has made a greater contribution to the jurisdiction, to the funding in our bill than he.

(Mr. SERRANO asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SERRANO. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time and for the very kind words.

I rise in support of the conference report, and I congratulate the gentleman from Virginia and the gentleman from West Virginia for not only the way in which they work with all members of the subcommittee and, indeed, all Members of the House.

I am especially pleased that we were able to fund the Census Bureau at the higher House level. This will allow for the continuation of the important American Community Survey which provides accurate and up-to-date information on housing, demographic and socioeconomic conditions in our country. As we know, there was a period of time there during conference negotiations where this program was in danger.

I am also glad that NOAA was funded at a higher level than that included in the House bill. In the aftermath of the recent hurricanes, we all recognize the important role of our National Weather Service.

This is the first year, Madam Speaker, that the Science portfolio was added to this subcommittee's jurisdiction, and I am happy that NASA and the National Science Foundation received more funding than was appropriated in 2005. NASA has a vital role in maintaining our Nation's leadership in science and technology through its educational programs, in particular, and in its broad portfolio of university-based research. I am happy that the National Science Foundation's funding will allow for the continuation of their education programs, which benefit so many of our students.

I am pleased that the State Department funding was provided so that there would be worldwide security improvements. We must always be vigilant in guarding the safety of those who so ably represent us both here and abroad.

The FBI is the biggest winner in this bill, receiving an increase of $547 million; and as the chairman knows and the ranking member knows, I have always felt that the FBI should get whatever resources it needs. But I would be remiss, Madam Speaker, if I did not briefly mention that I have been troubled by many of the bureau's practices of late, including its handling of the Filiberto Ojeda-Rios incident in Puerto Rico, which should not have resulted in his killing. I am also concerned about the FBI's ever-increasing use of national security letters. As the FBI continues to adjust to its new powers and responsibilities, I hope that we in this country continue to scrutinize these funds to ensure that the FBI's activities to ensure that we do not witness repeats of the abuses that have tainted the organization in the past.

Before closing, let me just say that I have often said in subcommittee, Madam Speaker, that if in the process of getting the bad guys, we throw away the Constitution and take away the civil liberties of the good guys, then the terrorists would have won and we as a Nation would have lost. With that in mind, I support that conference report, and I ask for its passage.

Mr. WOLF. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentleman from New York for his comments and for his friendship and for working together as we have over the years.

Madam Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to Coach OSBORNE, a member of Congress from Nebraska. As I was looking over, I thought of another great coach. This is a great coach. Another great coach is Joe Paterno, who, when I watched the game on Saturday, and I do not know if the gentleman from Nebraska watched the game, the announcers kept saying that he was 79 years old and wears white socks, but what they did not keep talking about is he is a man of such honesty and integrity and character. I think the two of them must have been carved out of the same thing. I am sorry the gentleman is going to be leaving here.

Mr. OBEY. Madam Speaker, I object to the gentleman's words. He is reminding me of a painful loss to Penn State.

Mr. WOLF. Madam Speaker, I forgot my colleague is from Wisconsin. We are going to miss having Mr. OSBORNE here, but we look forward to working with him as Governor of Nebraska.

Mr. OSBORNE. Madam Speaker, I thank the chairman for those kind words. I guess I would like to reciprocate by saying that I have worked with a great many people in the House and no one has been more responsive and more interested in matters dealing with law enforcement and children than the chairman. So we really appreciate it.

I am sorry that Wisconsin got beat, but everybody has got to lose sometime. Of course, Barry Alvarez is a good friend of mine, too.

I rise in support of the conference report, and I would like to particularly thank Chairman WOLF for restoring some of the Byrne grant funds. As many people know, Byrne grant funds were zeroed out in the President's budget. It was a tremendous effort to get any money back in there for Byrne grants. And for those who do not know, Byrne grants basically support local law enforcement as we attack the methamphetamine problem.

The gentleman from Tennessee (Mr. WAMP) talked about meth a little bit earlier, and I would like to just take a second to show people graphically what has happened in regard to this problem. In 1990 there were two States, California and Texas, that each had more than 20 methamphetamine labs. The rest of the country was relatively free of this problem. Then we look at what is present in 2004, and we see the spread of methamphetamine from west to east, just a few States in the northeast that are preserved to some degree from meth, and that will soon change. I am certain.

In most of these counties in most of these States in the western and the central part of the country, more than half of the jail cells are now occupied by meth addicts or people who have had meth-related crimes. I would say more than half of the child deaths, child assaults, foster care cases in these regions are due to methamphetamine abuse. Also, this conference report provides funds to clean up toxic material from meth labs, which is much needed. Above all, it encourages the Drug Enforcement Agency to establish a methamphetamine task force. Currently, we do not feel that the DEA has a comprehensive plan to attack the problem of methamphetamine, which is really covering the whole country and is certainly being expressed and more of a problem on the east coast. So this part of the bill is excellent. I appreciate the chairman's work. I would like to thank him one more time for his efforts.

Mr. MOLLOHAN. Madam Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Ohio (Mr. KUCINICH).

Mr. KUCINICH. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time. I want to begin by saying that I think that our ranking member, DAVID OBEY, has stated well the concerns that many of us have with respect to some provisions of the bill that would, in this case, cut legal services to the poor; aeronautics was recognized as being critical; and without the help of the entire Ohio delegation on both sides of the aisle, without the help of the entire Ohio delegation on both sides of the aisle, without the help of Chairman WOLF, without the help of Ranking Member MOLLOHAN, we would not be here at this exact moment pointing out that this bill represents a victory for aeronautics.

Aeronautics research and development has drastically improved our national security, our air safety, our economy, and our environment. NASA's field centers, such as the Glenn Research Center in Cleveland, are where the actual basic research is done. There we will find unique research facilities of the best scientists and engineers of our time, and a track record of discovery for the public good that is the envy of the world.

One of the secrets to NASA's success has been its dual emphasis on both aeronautics and space. The successful space program is heavily dependent on a strong aeronautics program. Indeed, we cannot get to space without first navigating the atmosphere, and yet the budget for fiscal year 2006 attempted to drastically cut funding for aeronautics research. Recovery from that devastating loss would have taken decades and billions of dollars.
That is why I am so grateful to the chairman and to the ranking member and all of my colleagues for the work that they have put into the bill and showing that the members of the subcommittee share the deep affinity that I have to the other key aspects of what we are trying to accomplish for a healthy, balanced National Aeronautics and Space Administration. This recognizes that a healthy NASA requires strong field research centers like NASA Glenn. Strong field centers turn, are dependent on their physical facilities and, more importantly, their talented workforce.

The bill protects the jobs and facilities from cuts that are driven by what accountants want instead of scientific need and instead of engineering know-how. This bill stands in defense of aeronautics, and it is a nod to the crucial role that aeronautics plays in so many facets of our daily life.

Mr. WOLF. Madam Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from New York (Mr. BOHLENT).

Mr. BOHLENT. Madam Speaker, I thank the chairman and the ranking member of the subcommittee for their outstanding work in very difficult, challenging times. But this measure deserves our support, and I say that as chairman of the Science Committee. So I have a special interest, because it will bolster America’s science and technology enterprise, it will foster innovation, and boost U.S. competitiveness.

Why do I support this bill? Let me count the ways, and this is by no means meant to let me focus on the matters that I am most familiar with. It increases funding for the National Science Foundation to support more fundamental science and engineering research. That is the fuel that drives the knowledge economy, and that is what drives the American economy. It preserves the science and math partnership program at NSF, designed to improve the performance of local school systems in math and science education at a time when we have been challenged as never before in our history.

It increases funding for the laboratory programs for the National Institute of Standards and Technology.

And what does NIST do in addition to performing advanced science and engineering research? It develops the technical standards that advance productivity and saving American jobs. It supports a balanced program at NASA, including increased funding for aeronautics, as the previous speaker mentioned; and it increases funding for the National Weather Service, which provides the saving forecasting of hurricanes and other extreme events. I need provide no further example than Katrina.

At a time when government agencies at all levels were less than adequate with their response, the shining star in our crown was the National Hurricane Center and the National Weather Service. The Hurricane Center is under the Weather Service. They provided us with invaluable information in advance of the hurricane hitting the coast of the gulf. It is what was done with that information that created the problems, not the information itself. That was provided completely and in a timely manner.

My congratulations go to the gentleman from Virginia and the gentleman from West Virginia. Under very difficult circumstances, they recognized that we have to establish some priorities, and one of the high priorities that they have both given and this House should be giving is to invest in the science enterprise.

What is that all about? It is about our future. It is about opportunity. It is about jobs.

Mr. MOLLOHAN. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentleman for his kind comments.

Madam Speaker, I am pleased to yield 2 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Maryland (Mr. FARR), a member of the full committee.

(Mr. FARR asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. FARR. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

Madam Speaker, I rise today in support of the conference report on H.R. 2862, the Science, State, Justice, Commerce, and Related Agencies Appropriations Act. I think the conferees did an incredibly good job, considering the tight allocations they had. And I want to thank the subcommittee chairman, the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. WOLF), and the gentleman from West Virginia (Ranking Member MOLLOHAN) and their highly competent staff.

Despite the good job, I would be remiss if I did not stand here and remind Congress of our need to deal with the recommendations that have been made to us by very important organizations, our U.S. Commission on Ocean Policy that studies the oceans, and the Pew Oceans Commission, a charitable trust which already studies the oceans, and ask our administration to propose an adequate budget for our ocean programs in the future.

It is so critical, as Americans depend on the oceans, when we think of all of the tourism from the beaches and the watchable wildlife. We make livings on sometimes turbulent surfaces, we put food on America’s tables, we play on its beaches and so on. These are often critical and overlooked in our economic engine, yet the U.S. economy in 2000 was almost 2½ times larger, the ocean economy, than the agricultural economy in terms of output and employed 1.5 times the number of people. It encompasses huge activities. NOAA activities touch almost a third of our Nation’s gross domestic product, and our oceans and coasts contribute more than $117 billion to American prosperity each year.

So the issue here is really that we have to put more effort into this, because if we do not, we are just loafing ourselves in the foot. The oxygen that we breathe comes from the oceans, the future, the unexplored. It is frankly more important that we explore the oceans on this planet than we explore Mars, yet we are putting more and more money into the effort than we do into our own planet.

So I am thanking the committee for job well done and hoping that next year we can get a better mark on this. Madam Speaker, I rise today in support of the conference report on H.R. 2862, the Science, State, Justice, Commerce, and Related Agencies Appropriations Act 2006, but I also strongly encourage both the administration and the House to invest more in the programs that protect, maintain, and restore the health of our oceans in subsequent years. The conferees did a good job with this bill given the allocation, and I especially appreciate the hard work of Subcommittee Chairman WOLF, Ranking Member MOLLOHAN, and their highly competent and helpful staff.

The Pew Oceans Commission and the U.S. Commission on Ocean Policy both released landmark reports within the past 2½ years reviewing the state of our oceans and the policies we use to govern them. This was the first comprehensive review in over 30 years. Both reports came to the same conclusions: Our oceans and coasts are in a state of crises and we are losing important goods and services that they provide. At the top of the list of problems causing this crisis is an under investment in the programs we use to manage the oceans and coasts.

From our oceans, Americans draw inspiration from the animals in their waters, make a living on its sometimes turbulent surface, put food on their tables, play on its beaches, and benefit from the microscopic plants that provide the majority of oxygen we breathe. For many of these reasons and others, our oceans are a critical, albeit often overlooked, economic engine. The U.S. ocean economy in 2000 was almost 2½ times larger than the agricultural economy in terms of output and employed 1½ times as many people. Ocean sector employment is larger than every manufacturing industry, NOAA activities touch almost a third of the Nation’s gross domestic product, and oceans and coasts contribute more than $117 billion to American prosperity each year.

We are going to obtain these important benefits from our coasts and oceans, we will need to implement the recommendations of the U.S. Commission on Ocean Policy to invest more in our oceans. I call on the administration to propose a more robust budget next year so that Americans will continue to benefit from the goods and services our oceans provide. I also ask my colleagues here in the House to push for a budget resolution next year that authorizes adequate money to the Science, State, Justice, Commerce, and Related Agencies Appropriations Act.

Mr. MOLLOHAN. Madam Speaker, I am pleased to respond to the gentleman’s remarks.

So I have a special interest, because it is about jobs.

Mr. MOLLOHAN. Madam Speaker, I say that as an American with a special interest, because it is about jobs.

Mr. MOLLOHAN. Madam Speaker, I say that as an American.
Mr. DOGGETT. Madam Speaker, I thank the Gentleman for yielding me this time. I am pleased to yield 2 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from New York (Mr. WEINER). I thank the ranking member and the chairman. I offer my gratitude to both of them for the work they have done in, once again, trying to fit many programs into a very small package.

Mr. WEINER. Madam Speaker, I thank the ranking member and the chairman. I offer my gratitude to both of them for the hard work they have done in, once again, trying to fit many programs into a very small package.
need more and more first responders, not fewer.

So the COPS program in this bill meets its demise, a successful program. We do not quite know why it is ending. We are grateful to the chairman and ranking member for having it go on this long.

But we do have a chance to resuscitate it. The House has passed the reauthorization of the Justice Department bill. The Senate is taking action in the Senate. In that bill we authorized the COPS program to live to see another day. We have bipartisan support from Chairman SENSENBRINNER, Democrats and Republicans joining together to try to make the COPS program come back to life.

I would urge my colleagues to think about whether or not at this time of heightened national security concern, we want the COPS program to end.

Mr. DOGGETT. Madam Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WOLF. I yield to the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. DOGGETT. Yes, I think it is in writing. It is in the cost estimates or in the reports that have already been forwarded up to the State Department. But I do not think they were ever forwarded to the committee.

If I applaud the committee concerns about this and the language that they added, and I am glad the gentleman will be submitting further letters and the like, because this is a small part of this budget, but a big problem for our folks. And they get out of this, even if they get out of the year altogether, only a third of what the agency itself says is needed, not just this year, but each year for the next 10 years.

Mr. WOLF. Well, we are going to do a letter. I would urge the gentleman to get a meeting to get the commission to come up to your office. We will have a staff person come by. Also get the State of Texas. Do not forget about Mexico, to get them to come by and try to bring it to a head. I think that is a more constructive way than just saying this bill is not very good. I thought we had with this language forced them to address the issue. We will send a letter.

But if this were my congressional district, I would have them up here. I would ask the State Department to come down and walk with you. I would not just go to Mexico to the other side. I would have a letter to President Vicente Fox. I would have a letter to Secretary Rice. So there is a lot that you have to do.

Mr. DOGGETT. If the gentleman will yield, let me just assure him I have done all those things short of walking in Mexico because this only covers the cost of repairing the U.S. side of the levees. It does not concern any repairs to the Mexican side.

Mr. WOLF. What do they do? What does Mexico do?

Mr. DOGGETT. Well, Mexico, I think if they see that we are moving to raise the levees on the American side, they will be caused to take action on the Mexican side. This is simply, the cost that I have talked about is only the U.S. side of the levees. It is not the Mexican side of the levees. That is their responsibility to act on that.

Mr. WOLF. But if it goes on one side does that not impact on the other side?

Mr. DOGGETT. Well, it does. I think why I say, naturally, the kind of budget challenges they face in Mexico, if they say we are raising our side to meet this flood problem, we believe that they will act to raise it on their side also.

Mr. WOLF. Well, I would like to challenge the gentleman to really pull together. I will try to come to the meeting or get some staff people to come. Bring in the Mexican ambassador. Do something rather than just coming down and doing that. But something, some kind of ambassador to come on in. Have somebody from the State Department. Bring them on up. Go down there. Walk it. Do everything you possibly can, because you certainly do not want something to happen whereby people die in a flood.

Mr. DOGGETT. I accept that challenge already having done most of that. It has not just been my request, but the request of three of us, four of us, actually, from the Rio Grande Valley to the President and to the State Department, and we have been unable to get any movement from them. And I understand we need their cooperation in order for your committee to move forward. Thank you for your interest.

Mr. WOLF. Well, we will try to help you. We will send a letter, and in the letter that we will send maybe Mr. MOLLOHAN will sign it with me. We will send you a copy of it.

Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MOLLOHAN. Madam Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the distinguished gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE).

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas asked and was given permission to revise and extend her remarks.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Madam Speaker, I thank the ranking member, Mr. WOLF, for that. I think this is an interesting mix of a committee, the State, Justice, Commerce and related agencies; and I acknowledge that the amount is up to $4.9 billion from the request of $4.7 billion. Let me quickly point out some of the things we had more money, but I am grateful and want to emphasize the value and this is, of course, NOAA that played a pivotal role and could play an even greater role as we begin to see climatic changes and see storm surges create the devastation of the gulf coast.

This is an important agency and the monies included certainly are welcome and arguably, I hope, we will see additional dollars. The $1.3 billion for intergovernmental peacekeeping, I think, is extremely valuable, and I hope that the emphasis is on peacekeeping. I would hope that some of those dollars could be used in transitioning our military out of Iraq and putting in peacekeeping forces that would combine with our allies over this crisis that we have.

I am grateful that NASA is funded. In times of trouble, I know that we look to agencies like this, but I am grateful for that funding and also for the National Science Foundation and, in particular, the small business.

What I do want to bring to my colleagues' attention are two points. One, I am sorry that we did not include the language that would prohibit the FBI under the PATRIOT Act from accessing library circulation records. And I hope we can fix that. I really do. After the backdrop of the national security letters, we know that the FBI, we have a great deal of respect for them and their homeland security role; but we need the protection of civil liberties as well.

I would also say to my good friend, one of the issues that I have been studying for a number of years is, if you will, the population of elderly prisoners who are in the Federal prisons. They are nonviolent. They are in there for nonviolent offenses. And we have been working on what we call the Good Time Reform. Only release programs that would release individuals over the age of 40 to 45 on good behavior. And I believe that this is an issue that is long overdue. I hope that we can work on authorization, but also appropriations to look at this issue. I ask my colleagues to support the conference.

Mr. GORDON. Madam Speaker, I am very pleased that the joint explanatory statement of the Committee of Conference designated $360,000 under the COPS Methamphetamine Enforcement and Clean-up for the Tennessee Methamphetamine Detection and Remediation Research.

Tennessee Technological University will use this funding to develop mobile equipment that can help law enforcement detect and analyze environmental hazards associated with clandestine meth labs.

Since 1999, the number of meth labs in Tennessee has increased by more than 500 percent. And, more than 1,300 labs were seized last year in Tennessee alone, the most of any state in the Southeast.

We are all reading the news stories about illegal homemade labs being set up inside homes, or even in the trunks of cars. Often you hear about one of these labs exploding, injuring the meth cooks, as well as children inside the home, or even innocent bystanders. These volatile labs pose a threat to the entire community. Tennessee Tech University will collaborate with the law enforcement community to address this critical problem.

Once again, I am very grateful to the conference for providing this important funding for Tennessee Tech University.

Mr. GENE GREEN of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of this bill to fund the Department of Commerce, Justice, and State, as well as NASA and the National Science Foundation.

In crafting this legislation, our appropriators faced the difficult task of adequately funding many national priorities. On balance, they did a remarkable job and have produced a bill worthy of our support.

This bill increases funding for many important Justice Department programs and included a 9 percent increase for the Federal Bureau of Investigation and a 6 percent increase for both the U.S. Marshals Service and the Drug Enforcement Agency.

For the first time, these programs that we would all like to see funded at higher levels. I am particularly disappointed to see reduced funding for local law enforcement, Community Oriented Policing Services and juvenile justice programs; however, I am pleased that appropriators did not accept the Administration’s request to lump all of these programs into one broad Justice Assistance line. I also applaud the conference committee for increasing funds for Byrne grants and the State Criminal Alien Assistance Program, both of which I have long supported.

This is the first year that NASA has been funded in this legislation, which provided $16.5 billion—or a 2 percent increase—for NASA. I appreciate the committee’s support of NASA’s efforts to develop a crew exploration vehicle that will eventually replace the Space Shuttle. With Johnson Space Center in our community, we are certainly grateful that the committee rejected the Administration’s efforts to cut funding for NASA’s Aeronautics Research program.

While the bill provides a slight decrease in funding for the Commerce Department, I am pleased to see significant funding increases for the Economic Development Administration and NOAA, as compared to House-passed funding levels.

One program of particular interest to me and our community in Houston is NOAA’s Coastal and Estuarine Land Protection Program. This program exists to protect important coastal and estuarine areas that have significant conservation, recreation, ecological, or historical values and are threatened by development or conversion.

In Houston, we are involved in an effort to preserve the Buffalo Bayou, which is the historic waterway on which the Allen Brothers founded Houston in 1836. NOAA’s Coastal and Estuarine Land Protection Program has allowed us to partner with the Trust for Public Land to conserve critical tracts of land along the Buffalo Bayou in order to further our conservation efforts.

For the past two years, Congress has supported our land acquisition funding requests to help revitalize the Buffalo Bayou in a manner that balances the need to conserve the Bayou with the recreational and business development needed to transform the Buffalo Bayou into an active and vibrant urban waterfront.

To date, congressionally-appropriated funds have played a significant role in the development of Buffalo Bayou Park. The park has recently dedicated and has provided residents of my district with increased greenspace and recreational opportunities.

In this bill, Congress appropriated $750,000 for the acquisition of two tracts of land, funding that will help with the implementation of the Buffalo Bayou master plan. Land along the Buffalo Bayou will be purchased to expand Hidalgo Park, which sits in a historically Hispanic community that has traditionally lacked parkland. Today, Hidalgo Park will be linked to Buffalo Bend Nature Park, enhancing residents’ recreational and environmental experience along the bayou.

The funding will also allow the City of Houston to purchase land along Brays Bayou, beginning at the confluence of Brays Bayou and Buffalo Bayou and stretching to Mason Park, less than a mile away. This area is a prime location for a greenbelt park, the development of which would further the City’s plan for parks connected by and along the city’s bayous.

I urge my colleagues to support this legislation.

Mr. ALLEN. Madam Speaker, although I support the Science-State-Commerce-Justice Appropriations conference report, I rise today to call attention to the need for more funding for our coasts and oceans.

When, together with Representatives Weldon and Farr and former Congressman Jim Greenwood, I co-founded the Bipartisan House Oceans Caucus in 1999 in order to inform my colleagues about the oceans, we faced major policy challenges. Americans were faced with declining fish stocks, beach closures due to poor water quality, and laws that were inadequate to protect America’s oceans. My constituents were asking why.

In 2000, Congress finally asked why. The Oceans Act of 2000 called for a National Commission on Ocean Policy and charged the Commission with conducting a nationwide fact-finding mission on the state of our oceans.

The goal was to develop policy recommendations that would lead to a coordinated and comprehensive national ocean policy. The independent Pew Oceans Commission underwent a similar process, touring the country to listen to testimony from scientists, stakeholders, and others to identify the root problems threatening our nations’ oceans.

The production of these two commissions is nothing short of remarkable. Two comprehensive guides, based on the knowledge of our nation’s experts, came to many comparable conclusions.

The history of our space program has shown that money spent by our taxpayers on NASA is an investment in the technologies that drive not only our exploration of the unknown, but our economy here on Earth.

Since its earliest days, NASA has blazed the trails of rocketry, satellite technology, aero space engineering, telecommunications, and even produced health care miracles from the MRI to the portable x-ray machine.

The earthbound application of these space-based innovations has transformed the eartbound application of these space-based innovations has transformed the Specifically, the two reports call on Congress to increase our investment in the study, management, and protection of our oceans. Relative to their size and economic value, funding for ocean research and management pales in comparison for other natural resource programs. The federal government spends over $10 billion on public lands and more than $16 billion on space exploration.

In 2001, the Pew Commission recommended a doubling of the NOAA budget to $6 billion over 5 years. Similarly, the U.S. Commission on Ocean Policy recommended an additional $3.9 billion in new spending on top of what we already allocate to NOAA. Yet, the legislation we are debating today sets $3.95 billion. This level is only a modest increase of $28 million over funding levels enacted in FY ’05 ($3.92 billion total).

Now I have a great deal of respect for the Chairman, Mr. WOLF, and the Ranking Member, Mr. MOLLOHAN, and I know that they did the best they could with this bill under the tight budget allocations that they were forced to deal with. In this conference report there are modest increases to fishery and coastal management programs but these are unfortunately accompanied by cuts to other vital programs such as marine sanctuaries, the Coastal and Estuarine Land Conservation Program, and the National Sea Grant Program.

Our economy, security, and health all hinge on healthy ocean ecosystems. I look forward to working with the Chairman and the Ranking Member on implementing the recommendations of the Ocean Commissions and investing appropriately in our coasts and oceans in the FY 2007 budget.

Mr. VAN HOLLEN. Madam Speaker, I rise to applaud the passage of the FY 2006 Science-State-Justice-Commerce Appropriations Bill, which includes funding for Montgomery and Prince George County Gang Suppression and Prevention Initiative in my district. I salute my colleague Mr. WOLF and thank him for his leadership on confronting the issue of gang violence in the Washington metropolitan area.

The federal funding approved today builds on the ongoing work of the Joint County Gang Prevention Task Force, which was established by the county executives of Montgomery and Prince George’s Counties in February 2004. This funding will allow for the establishment of centralized anti-gang units within each county’s police force, enabling them to pursue a zero-tolerance policy for gang violence. A cross jurisdictional community-based program, serving youth and families, would be created to provide gang prevention education, mentoring, and outreach services. Critical after-school programs would be funded for areas where there is a high incidence of gang activity.

Law enforcement research shows that there are approximately 3,600 gang members in Maryland, the District of Columbia and Virginia and that there are nine major active gangs and more than 100 additional crews region wide. Montgomery County Police estimate that there are 20 to 22 active gangs with approximately 540 to 560 active members and associates throughout our service area. Critical after-school programs would be funded for areas where there is a high incidence of gang activity.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX, the Chair will postpone further proceedings today on the motion to suspend the rules on which a recorded vote or the yeas and nays are ordered, or on which the vote is objected to under clause 6 of rule XX. Any record vote on the postponed question will be taken tomorrow.

VETERANS HOUSING AND EMPLOYMENT IMPROVEMENT ACT OF 2005

Mr. BOOZMAN. Madam Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 3665) to amend title 38, United States Code, to authorize the Secretary of Veterans Affairs to provide adaptive housing assistance to disabled veterans residing temporarily in housing owned by a family member and to make direct housing loans to Native American veterans, and for other purposes, as amended.

The Clerk reads as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE; TABLE OF CONTENTS.

(a) SHORT TITLE.—This Act may be cited as the “Veterans Housing and Employment Improvement Act of 2005.”

Amend the title so as to read: “A bill to provide assistance for disabled veterans residing temporarily in housing owned by a family member, to make certain improvements in veterans employment assistance programs, and for other purposes.”.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Arkansas (Mr. BOOZMAN) and the gentlewoman from Nevada (Ms. BERKLEY) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Arkansas (Mr. BOOZMAN).

Mr. BOOZMAN. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, I am pleased to commend H.R. 3665, as amended, to the House for passage. This bill has several goals. First, we want to provide some flexibility in several VA programs, including the Adapted Housing Grant program and the Native American Loan program. Second, we want to protect and institutionalize the taxpayers’ investment in the President’s National Hiring Veterans Committee. Third, we want to reauthorize the Homeless Veterans Reintegration program for 3 years.

Madam Speaker, it is no secret that many of those wounded in Iraq and Afghanistan return home with significant disabilities. Many of those severely disabled servicemembers spend their convalescence at a family home before moving to their own home when they are well enough to do so. Under the current rules, VA cannot help adapt those family homes for their specific disabilities unless the veteran has an ownership interest in the property. This bill would eliminate the ownership requirement for a partial grant.

Therefore, I would provide a partial adaptive housing assistance grant up to $10,000 or $2,000, depending on the level of disability to veterans residing temporarily in housing owned by a family member. It would also authorize up to three specially adaptive housing grants within the allotted maximum amount.

Madam Speaker, this measure contains several provisions from H.R. 1773, originally introduced by the Economic Opportunity Subcommittee ranking member Ms. HERSETH. I want to compliment her and her staff for their hard work on this issue. These provisions would make permanent the pilot program for housing loans to Native American veterans; extend the eligibility for Native American loans to certain non-Native American veterans who have a meaningful interest in the property under tribal law and are the spouses of a Native American. And finally, this would adjust the maximum loan to conform with the Freddie Mac limits similar to other VA loans, currently $59,650.

Madam Speaker, the taxpayers have made a significant investment in the work of the President’s National Hire Veterans Committee and we feel strongly that a 1-year extension will allow a proper transition of the duties and products of the committee to the Veterans Employment and Training Service of the Department of Labor. Therefore, title II would extend the committee’s work until not later than December 31, 2006. Transition of its duties to the Assistant Secretary of Labor for Veterans Employment and Training require the Assistant Secretary of Labor for Veterans Employment and Training to develop a transition plan for those duties and modify the membership and duties of the advisory committee on veterans employment and training to include outreach activities.

Madam Speaker, we all know that homelessness among the veterans continues to be a problem. While there is some disagreement about the total number of veterans needing a job to break the cycle of homelessness, there is no disagreement that the Homeless Veterans Reintegration program remains a valuable tool to put homeless veterans back to work. I want to emphasize that this is an employment program managed by the Veterans Employment and Training Service of the Department of Labor, not a housing program. Therefore, title III would reauthorize the Homeless Veterans Reintegration program for fiscal years 2007 through 2009 and retain the maximum authorization of $50 million per year.

Finally, title IV makes technical amendments to the Homeless Veterans Reintegration Program as well as clerical and technical amendments to a number of other sections of title 38.

Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. BERKLEY. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I want to thank Chairman BUYER, Ranking Member EVANS, Subcommittee Chairman BOOZMAN, and Ranking Member HERSETH for bringing this bill to the floor. Ms. HERSETH has been detained at a legislative hearing before the Resources Committee concerning the bill she has introduced. I hope that she will be able to join us before the debate on the bill is completed, but I want to particularly thank her for her input into this important piece of legislation.

Madam Speaker, I am pleased to be an original cosponsor of H.R. 3665. As amended, the bill before us would provide greater flexibility to the VA’s Adaptive Housing Grant program. It also includes measures to extend the Department of Labor’s Veterans Employment and Training Service. The bill also includes language from H.R. 1773, which Ms. HERSETH introduced to make the Native American Veteran Home Loan program permanent.

Section 102 of the bill would make permanent the Native American Housing Loan program, currently a pilot program administered by the Veterans Administration since 1993. The Native American Housing Loan program has provided more than 443 direct loans nationwide since its inception. By all accounts, the program has been a great success and, in fact, currently does not receive any government subsidy.

The Congressional Budget Office estimates that enactment of the provision would generate savings of $1 million over the next 5 years. Section 103 of the bill would authorize non-Native American veterans married to a Native American spouse and living on trust or tribal land to fully participate in this direct loan program. Because certain tribal sovereignty rules prohibit ownership interest by nonnative persons, they have been excluded from the home loan program. The language in section 103 would make it possible for a nonnative military member or for a nonnative military member or veteran to qualify for a VA loan if he or she shares a meaningful interest rather than an ownership interest with their respective spouse in their home.

Madam Speaker, on this Friday we will celebrate and honor the service of our Nation’s veterans. Hopefully, we will all be in our home districts attending Veterans Day parades and other activities that we share with our veterans. As I do so, I am mindful that many of our veterans return home homeless. Most of them are living on the streets in Las Vegas. The number of homeless veterans is America is, I am sorry to say, a national disgrace and simply must be addressed. According to the National Coalition for Homeless Veterans, there are already 400 veterans who have served in Iraq and Afghanistan who have sought shelter through homeless programs.
Madam Speaker, I thank the chairman, STEVE BUYER; the rank- ing member, LANE EVANS; and the hardworking committee for their dili- gent work on this legislation. I strongly urge its passage.

Mr. BOOZMAN. Madam Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Idaho (Mr. SIMPSON), the sponsor of the original bill to extend the term of the President’s National Hire Veterans Committee, and former chairman of the Veterans’ Benefits Subcommittee.

Mr. SIMPSON. Madam Speaker, I want to thank Chairman BOOZMAN and Ranking Member HERSETH for their work on this piece of legislation.

Earlier this year, I introduced H.R. 419, which would authorize the President’s National Hire Veterans Committee through 2008. The bill before us today, H.R. 3665, not only extends the life of this important committee, but also provides for its continued operation long into the future under a new Advisory Committee on Veterans Employment Training and Employer Outreach.

It is important that we continue to support and fund the work of this committee which strives to make employers and businesses more aware of the valuable role that veterans play in the policy workforce.

Today’s employers do not often realize the wealth of skills possessed by the men and women returning from duty in the Armed Forces. Through the creation of the One Stop Career Centers for veterans and the development of hirevetsfirst.gov Web site for potential employers, the President’s National Hire Veterans Committee has fostered a vital link between military and civilian employment.

As Veterans Day approaches many of us take for granted the sacrifices made by those who defend our Nation. Voting for this bill is a way to truly show our veterans that we appreciate them and are willing to support them not only while they are serving our country abroad, but when they return home as well.

I urge my colleagues to support H.R. 3665 and thank them for their work on this bill.

Ms. BERKLEY. Madam Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. BROWN), chairman of the Health Subcommittee.

Mr. BROWN of South Carolina. Madam Speaker, I thank the chairman for yielding me the time and for his leadership in bringing these bills to the floor.

Madam Speaker, H.R. 3665, the Veterans Housing and Employment Improvement Act of 2005, provides needed enhancements to veterans’ benefit programs. Specifically, I would like to dis- cuss the provisions which were contained in H.R. 3279, the Homeless Vet- erans Reintegration Program Reau- thorization Act of 2005, of which I was an original cosponsor.

H.R. 3279 was rolled into H.R. 3665 in the full committee markup held on Oc- tober 7. This legislation would reau- thorize HVRP through fiscal year 2009. Currently, the authority for this program expires at the end of fiscal year 2006. This legislation continues the current authorization for $50 million per year. I am eager for this legislation to be sent to the President as soon as possible.

The Homeless Veterans Reintegra- tion Program, or HVRP, is designed to take the men and women who are prob- ably the most difficult population of veterans to serve off the streets and re- turn them as productive contributors to society. I introduce you to one that presents unique challenges to both the government and to those who de- liver services to homeless veterans.

HVRP program providers have taken on this difficult task and have turned HVRP into one of the most successful programs in the Federal Government. HVRP grantees are taking on the dif- ficult task of breaking the cycle of homelessness. I urge my colleagues to support this program and this important legislation.

Ms. BERKLEY. Madam Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentlewoman from Guam (Ms. BORDALLO).

Ms. BORDALLO. Madam Speaker, I rise today in strong support of H.R. 3665, the Veterans Housing and Em- ployment Improvement Act. This legis- lation would permanently authorize a successful and worthy pilot program, commonly referred to as the Native American Home Loan Program. Established in 1992 as a 5-year pilot program, Congress has extended the authority for this loan program on three separate occasions. Clearly, the program has proven very effective and deserves a permanent authorization.

Administered by the Department of Veterans Affairs, this program makes direct loans to Native American vet- erans who reside on tribal lands and veterans who reside on land trust prop- erties in the United States territories, Alaska, Hawaii. We have thousands of veterans on Guam, many suffering from military-related illnesses. Cur- rently, Madam Speaker, five veterans from my district of Guam have loan ap- plications under this program, pending review by the Department.

These loans are for the purchase, ren- ovation, or construction of new homes. And, as you know, home ownership is also a primary driver for economic growth of local communities. Afford- able housing is critical for families in the critical housing needs of our Nation’s disabled and Native American veterans.

I also would like to thank Representatives BOOZMAN and HERSETH for their leadership on this legislation and, of course, Veterans Committee Chair BUYER and Ranking Member EVANS for expeditiously bringing this bill to the House floor.

H.R. 3665, in part, provides perma- nent authority for the Native American Direct Home Loan Program and extends eligibility to such loan for non-Native American spouses of Native Americans living on Native American trust and tribal lands.
The Native American Direct Home Loan Program has been a highly successful veterans effort, particularly in my home state of Hawaii, where it applies to veterans living on lands held in trust under this Congress’ own Hawaiian Homelands Act of 1920. The majority of these Hawaiian homelands are located in the Second Congressional District of Hawaii, including the islands of Oahu, Kauai, Molokai, Maui, Hawaii, and Lanai.

Since the inception of this program, which was spearheaded by the great Hawaii Senator Spark Matsunaga and later continued by Senator Daniel Akaka, native Hawaiian veterans have successfully used this direct home loan program for their acute housing needs, and I am proud to say with nominal deficiencies and delinquencies.

Over $20 million has now been approved for over 200 loans in Hawaii, with 106 loans totaling $7.5 million pending. This is an incredible help not only with the needs of many veterans who otherwise would otherwise be excluded from quality housing, but about Hawaii’s overall housing crisis.

Due to its success over the last 13 years, the Native American Direct Home Loan Program, which initially started out as a pilot program, was twice extended by Congress but is currently set to expire on December 31 of this year. It is vital to understand why this program is so important to our Native American veterans and why we should make the program permanent, as this bill proposes.

Of course, the most basic reason is the success of the overall program in honoring our commitment to our Nation’s veterans. Beyond that, Congress found some years ago that during the entire history to that date of the program, not a single Native American veteran living on Indian trust lands or Hawaii homelands had in fact received the VA home loan under the VA’s traditional home loan program. The reason for this is simple.

The unique trust status of native lands did not lend itself to conventional lending practices because banks and other financial institutions did not recognize those lands as valid collateral.

As part of our obligation to all of our Nation’s veterans, that obligation being to ensure that they are all able to tap fully into VA programs, the Native American Direct Home Loan Program addressed this unique and discrete challenge facing many Native American veterans and afforded them the same opportunity of home ownership that availed their comrades-in-arms.

This bill recognizes and improves upon the clear success of this effort, and I ask my colleagues to vote in favor of H.R. 3665.

Mahalo,

Mr. BOOZMAN. Madam Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from New Hampshire, Mr. Bradley.

Mr. BRADLEY of New Hampshire. Madam Speaker, I thank the chairman and the ranking minority member for their hard work to make this bill a reality.

Madam Speaker, I rise in support of the Veterans Housing Improvement Act, H.R. 3665. All of us, as Members of Congress, have had the opportunity to meet our brave soldiers who are serving in Iraq and Afghanistan, fighting in the war on terror. One of the components of the war on terror is that many of them are coming home with disabling injuries.

This bill in a very significant way will help families to be able to allow the reintegrations of these disabled heroes back into not only working life, but at-home life. The $10,000 grant will help home owners to be able to renovate their homes to make them suitable for disabled veterans, and that is why it is so important that we authorize and fund this pilot program to do what needs to be done to help these heroes integrate back into life.

I thank the chairman and the ranking member for their hard work and understanding for support this bill.

Ms. BERKLEY. Madam Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. BOOZMAN. Madam Speaker, first, I would like to thank the chairman of the Committee on Veterans Affairs, the gentlewoman from Indiana (Ms. Buyer), and the committee’s ranking member, the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Evans), for their leadership and support in bringing this bill to the floor. I would also like to thank the ranking member of the Economic Opportunity Subcommittee, the gentlewoman from South Dakota (Ms. HERSETH), as well as her staff and my staff for their hard work and cooperation on this bipartisan legislation.

Special thanks to the gentlewoman from Nevada (Ms. BERKLEY), who is the ranking member for Disability Assistance and Memorial Affairs.

This bill is an example of how we can work together to achieve good things for veterans, and I urge my colleagues to support H.R. 3665, the Veterans Housing and Employment Improvement Act of 2005.

I do not think we can close today before noting that this coming Friday is Veterans Day, a day that originally marked the 11th hour of the 11th day of the 11th month in the war to end all wars. Of that war’s realistic prediction failed, and several generations of Americans have since served in wartime. So today, instead of honoring the end of World War I, Veterans Day now honors all of those who have worn the uniform in defense of the Nation.

Whether it was in the war or in peacetime, we owe them our gratitude, and this bill is just one small token of our appreciation.

Madam Speaker, on behalf of the House, I want to say thank you to all who have served.

Ms. HERSETH. Madam Speaker, I rise today in strong support of H.R. 3665, as amended, the Veterans Housing and Employment Improvement Act of 2005. This bill incorporates a number of important measures aimed at improving the quality of life of our service members, veterans, and military families.

I would like to thank Chairman Buyer and Ranking Member Evans for their leadership on the full committee and for their assistance in moving this bill to the floor today.

I also want to express my appreciation to the Chairman of the Economic Opportunity Subcommittee—Mr. Boozman, for all his hard work and bipartisan leadership on the subcommittee this legislative session. I look forward to continuing work with my friend from Arkansas as we begin discussions with the Senate to ensure passage of a bipartisan, bi-laterally supported veterans’ homeownership bill.

Madam Speaker, H.R. 3665, as amended, incorporates important provisions that would provide greater flexibility to the VA’s adaptive housing grant program. It also includes important measures to extend the Homeless Veterans Reintegration Program and improve the Department of Labor’s Veterans Employment and Training Service. In addition, the bill also includes language from H.R. 1773, the Native American Veteran Home Loan Act—a measure I introduced along with a number of colleagues earlier this year.

Section 102 of the bill would make permanent the Native American Housing Loan Program, currently a pilot program administered by VA since 1993. The Native American Housing Loan Program has provided 443 direct loans to eligible veteran spouses to purchase up to 20% of a home on lands held in trust to veterans in South Dakota. By all accounts the pilot program has been a great success and in fact currently has a negative subsidy—that is, it actually pays for itself. The Congressional Budget Office estimates that enactment of this provision would generate savings of $1 million over five years.

Section 103 of the bill would authorize non-Native American veterans married to a Native American spouse and living on trust or tribal land to fully participate in this direct loan program. Because certain tribal sovereignty rules prohibit ownership interests by non-native persons, they have been unable to qualify for this home loan program. The language in section 103 now makes it possible for a non-native spouse member of a veteran to qualify for a VA loan if he or she shares a “meaningful interest” rather than “ownership interest” with their respective spouse in their home.

I want to thank Mr. Faleomavaega the Delegate of American Samoa for bringing this issue to my attention, and I want to also thank the VA for its assistance in drafting this particular provision.

Madam Speaker, the service members, veterans and military families of this nation have earned and deserve our best efforts here in Congress. Indeed, they deserve so much more.

As we approach Veterans Day, I am very proud to support this legislation and confident it will benefit the veterans of my home state of South Dakota, as well as the other veterans around the country.

I fully support H.R. 3665, as amended, and urge my colleagues to do the same.

Mr. BUYER. Madam Speaker, as Chairman of the House Committee on Veterans’ Affairs, I rise in strong support of H.R. 3665, the Veterans Housing and Employment Improvement Act of 2005, as amended. This is a bipartisan bill that as amended also includes provisions from Chairman BOOZMAN’s H.R. 3279, the Homeless Veterans Reintegration Program Reauthorization Act of 2005, Ranking Member HERSETH’s H.R. 1773, the Native American Veteran Home Loan Act, and Mr. SIMPSON’s H.R. 419, the Hire Veterans Act of 2005.

Title I of this bill, as amended, would improve the flexibility of the VA’s Adapted Housing Grant Program, and make the Native American Veterans Home Loan Program permanent.

Title II of the bill would extend the life of the President’s National Hire Veterans Committee (PNHVC), which was created by Public Law 107-286, as amended. In the wake of the industry’s awareness of the value inherent in increasing the number of veterans hired by the private sector. The Committee determined that a one-year extension of the PNHVC’s three-year authority for purposes of winding down its operations, in addition to providing for added oversight, would be an appropriate way to ensure that the Department of Labor integrates the positive aspects of the PNHVC into its future activities.

Title III of the bill would reauthorize the Homeless Veterans’ Reintegration Program (HVRP), which is administered by VETS. Based on testimony and meetings with HVRP providers, the program appears to be one of the more successful homeless programs in government by rehabilitating and finding jobs for the most difficult to place population of veterans.

Title IV of the bill would also make technical, clarifying, and conforming changes to new section 1890A of title 38, the Traumatic Injury Protection program, which was established by the supplemental.

Madam Speaker, as Chairman of the Committee on Veterans’ Affairs, I would like to thank the Ranking Member of the Committee, Mr. LANE EVANS (IL) for his cooperation in moving this legislation to the floor. I would also like to acknowledge the hard work of Mr. BOOZMAN (AR), and Ms. HERSETH (SD), the Chairman and Ranking Member of the Subcommittee on Economic Opportunity, through whose leadership and hard work, this legislation has come before the House. Its timing is especially propitious, the day after tomorrow being Veterans’ Day.

Madam Speaker, I strongly urge all my colleagues to support this important legislation.

Mr. EVANS. Madam Speaker, I rise in strong support of H.R. 3665, as amended.

It is only fitting that as November 11th approaches and we prepare to commemorate another Veterans Day, we are meeting here today on the House floor to discuss and pass this legislation, which is intended to honor the courage and sacrifice of the nation’s veterans.

I would like to thank Chairman BUYER for his support of this bill.

I also want to thank the Chairman and Ranking Member of the Economic Opportunity Subcommittee, JOHN BOOZMAN and STEPHANIE HERSETH, for their work in developing and moving this important legislation to the floor.

The housing, employment and homeless provisions contained in the bill are very important and should be enacted into law.

Madam Speaker, I am proud to be an original cosponsor of this bill. Our servicemembers, veterans and military families sacrifice greatly. It is our responsibility to care and provide for them upon their return from service as we do when we send them off to war.

I strongly support this measure, Madame Speaker, and I urge all my colleagues to vote for its passage.

Mr. FALEOMAVAEGA. Madam Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 3665, the Veterans Housing and Employment Improvement Act of 2005. I especially want to thank Chairman STEVE BUYER and Ranking Member LANE EVANS of the Committee on Veterans’ Affairs and also Chairman JOHN BOOZMAN and Ranking Member STEPHANIE HERSETH of the Subcommittee on Economic Opportunity for their leadership in making it possible for Native Americans to participate in the veterans’ housing loan program.

I am especially thankful that American Samoa’s veterans have also been able to participate in this very successful program. Today, I am here to thank my colleagues for working with me to address the concerns of American Samoans without adversely affecting the rights of other tribes.

Many Samoans have served in the military and they are allowed to obtain home loans under current law. Other Samoans are married to non-Samoan veterans. Nonnative military spouses married to native Samoans have not been able to qualify for the VA home loan program. In part, this is because the Native American Home Loan program excludes the spouses of non-native Americans from qualifying for a VA home loan.

For my constituents, this is problematic. In brief, most land in American Samoa is communal, meaning that only Samoans of Tutuila, Manu’s, Aunu’u, or Swain Islands may qualify for home loans offered by traditional lending institutions because only they can make claim to native land.

As a result of these land laws, non-native spouses of veterans or persons serving in the U.S. Armed Forces who are married to a Samoan may not qualify for a VA home loan. The VA has been helpful in assisting the Veterans’ Affairs Committee and my office in drafting language to rectify this problem and I am pleased that this language has now been included in H.R. 3665.

As we have agreed, it is our understanding that this language makes it possible for a non-Samoan military member or veteran to qualify for a VA loan if the non-Samoan military member has a “meaningful interest” in the housing a Samoan spouse has been granted permission to build on communal land. It is also our understanding that “meaningful interest” means that the veteran has the right to reside in the home under tribal laws.

Madam Speaker, I urge support of H.R. 3665 and I again thank my colleagues for including my provision in this important legislation.

Ms. Mary Ellen McCarthy, Democratic Staff Director for Disability Assistance and Memorial Affairs, for her tireless efforts. I urge support of this legislation.

Mr. BOOZMAN. Madam Speaker, having no further requests for time, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Madam Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to have my name removed as a cosponsor of H.R. 4200.

Mr. SCOTT of Virginia. Madam Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to have my name removed as a cosponsor of H.R. 4200.

Mr. BOUCHER. Madam Speaker, I rise today in support of the Boucher-Rohrabacher-Mack motion to instruct the conferees to recommit the Senate with respect to sunsetting in 4 years the libraries and book stores, roving wire taps and loan wolf provisions of the USA PATRIOT Act.

Mr. SENSENBRENNER. Madam Speaker, I yield myself 4 minutes.

The current House bill provisions for 10 year sunsets on the 215 and 206 roving wiretap powers is not much better than no sunset at all. What we are talking about under the 215 provision is power to get access to your personal records from a business, including a public library, without you ever knowing about it, or what is done with the information. And the librarian or other business operator cannot tell you or anyone else other than the business’s attorney or appropriate superiors, about the FBI’s taking your records.

In the last year of the current sunsets, the Justice Department refused any meaningful oversight of their PATRIOT Act powers and other war on terrorism authority. Even with Chairman SENSENBRENNER threatening a subpoena because he was not getting answers to his PATRIOT Act questions, it wasn’t until the powers were set to expire that we got real answers—hard numbers and at least anecdotal evidence of their use. Take, for example, the effort to get information about library record requests under the secretive Section 215 powers where the recipient of the order is gagged from disclosing any information about it: first we were told that information about even the number of these orders was secret, so it couldn’t be disclosed. It was only in the last year of the sunset that we were finally told that there had been no 215 orders issued to libraries, then we learned that this was misleading because most libraries cooperated with FBI requests for these orders without ever issuing a 215 order, and, with all the secrecy and gag orders in effect, we still don’t know what the full story is. Perhaps some of the pending lawsuits will finally reveal what has been going on in this area.

The problem with a 10-year sunset is that it will have no impact on the current Administration, or the next one and only have an impact in the last year of the 3rd Administration from now. Moreover, with a 20-year retirement period for most career officials, in 10 years most of today’s officials will have retired. So, that’s really of little oversight value if we have to wait until the last year of a 215 order, and, with all the secrecy and gag orders in effect, we still don’t know what the full story is. Perhaps some of the pending lawsuits will finally reveal what has been going on in this area.

Accordingly, we should accede to the Senate sunset provisions which call for 4 year sunsets on the three most controversial and worrisome PATRIOT powers—secret acquisition of library and other business records, roving wiretaps, and the “lone wolf” provision for terrorism investigations, which allows a single individual to fall under the extraordinary, secretly administered foreign surveillance powers otherwise reserved for foreign governments or organizations.

Mr. SENSENBRENNER. Madam Speaker, I do not intend to oppose the motion to instruct, and I ask unanimous consent that I may control the 30 minutes that I have been allotted.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Virginia?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 7 of rule XXII, the gentleman from California (Mr. ROHRABACHER), and the gentleman from Florida (Mr. MACK).

The Clerk reads as follows:

Mr. Boucher moves that the managers on the part of the House at the conference on the Senate amendment to the bill H.R. 3199 (a) and (b) of section 9 of the Senate amendment to the bill H.R. 3199 each will control 30 minutes.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

been intruded upon. Earlier this year, the House, by a wide margin, voted to bar enforcement of this overly broad provision. But the House bill reauthorizing the act with some changes perpétuates it for 10 years, and I think that that is inappropriate. The Senate bill sunsetted it in 4 years. Our motion to instruct directs conferees to adopt the 4-year sunset provision.

Section 206, John Doe roving wiretaps, allows law enforcement to obtain a single court order to tap any phone it believes a foreign agent would use, instead of getting separate orders for each phone. Moreover, the government is not required to name the target which allows wiretaps on phones of virtually anyone meeting the description of a John Doe. The combination of allowing blanket tapping of, for example, all of the pay phones in a target's neighborhood or the phones of all of his friends and relatives, combined with the ability to wiretap a vaguely described individual means that roving John Doe wiretaps require so little specificity that they can easily be abused.

Sunsetting this provision in 4 years will allow Congress to revisit how this authority is being used and whether it continues to be necessary.

Reinstating is about accountability. This motion to instruct would simply assure that we have the authority to carry it out.

Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. SENSENBRENNER. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, I think it is important for the Members to note that the motion to instruct deals specifically with the "lone wolf" provision and sunsets that. The lone wolf provision was not passed as a part of the PATRIOT Act in October 2001, but was included as a Intelligence bill which was enacted into law a little bit less than a year ago. So as a result, the committees and the public have not been able to have as extensive oversight and for as long a period of time as the other 16 provisions that were sunsets in the act which the President signed in October 2001.

So I think it is appropriate to have a sunset on the lone wolf provision simply because we do not have the experience to examine what the Justice Department has done with this new and expanded authority.

On the other hand, let me say that we are negotiating with the Senate at the present time on what the length of the sunset is, and I think that the sunset on this provision will be longer than 4 years, and the sunset on the other two provisions that were contained in the House-passed bill will be shorter than the 10 years that the House of Representives placed in the bill, which was passed and sent over to the other body.

Having said all of this, I would like to make a couple of points. First of all, finding out what a Department or an agency of the executive branch is doing is entirely the prerogative of the committee that has the responsibility for the oversight and of its Chair. I have been extremely vigorous, since the enactment of the PATRIOT Act in doing an oversight over what the Department of Justice has done relative to that law.

I am happy to say that most of the oversight letters that have been sent to the Attorney General have been co-signed by the Michigan (Mr. Conyers), ranking member of the Judiciary Committee.

We have been kind of like tough school marmers with the Department of Justice because, in the late and when they were nonresponsive to the questions, we required the Department of Justice to come up with responsive answers, and those responsive answers we placed on the committee's site so that any new reader could find out what the questions were and what the answers were, with the exception of responses that were classified and which were sent to the Intelligence Committee rather than to the Judiciary Committee.

In addition to the oversight which was done, the original PATRIOT Act requires the Inspector General of the Department of Justice to report twice a year to the relevant committees of Congress the number of civil liberties violations that have been found against the Department of Justice as a result of its exercising the increased and new requirements in the PATRIOT Act. We have received those reports by the Inspector General of the Department of Justice on a regular and on a timely basis, and the answer to how many civil liberties violations they have site a number any new reader can find or that: they have said there are no civil liberties violations that the Inspector General has been able to uncover.

Further, I resisted a premature repeal or the sunset prior to this Congress because I felt it was important that the oversight be done for as long a time as possible so that the Congress will be able to look over the shoulder of the Department of Justice and find out whether or not they were doing it the right way or whether or not they needed a tap on the shoulder from Capitol Hill for improvements in their methods of operation.

When we did get to this Congress with the oversight completed and the sunset approaching, I fulfilled the promise that I made to the public and anybody who asked that we would be doing a section-by-section review of the expiring sections of the PATRIOT Act. We had hearings before the Judiciary Committee on the 12 separate hearings on the PATRIOT Act's sunset provisions. There were minority witnesses at all of the hearings except the one where the Attorney General and the one where the Deputy Attorney General appeared. However, there were plenty of time for questions by every member of the committee.

As a result of all of those hearings, we found that all but two or three sections of the PATRIOT Act were essentially noncontroversial. Nobody was complaining about an abuse of power. Nobody had proved abuse of power. Nobody had alleged an abuse of power. As a result of all of that, during this Congress we ended up with a provision that in the House bill eliminated the sunsets for those sections of the PATRIOT Act for which there was no complaint at those extensive series of hearings, and that is good policy. And if it is not good policy, then the message that is given downtown as well as to the public is that our oversight really does not make any difference. If the oversight shows they have been doing a good job, they ought to be rewarded.

Getting rid of the 14 of the 16 sunset provisions that were contained in the original PATRIOT Act does not mean that the Justice Department is not going to have the committee looking over its shoulder. We will do that; but, what that does mean is that the Senate continues to be necessary.

Because the motion to instruct only relates to the lone wolf provision and I believe that because we have had a much shorter period of time in viewing how they have dealt with the lone wolf provision because it was passed 3 years after the original PATRIOT Act was enacted into law, I think this motion to instruct is a proper one, although I do think that the difference between 4 years and 7 years still should be negotiated with the Senate. But because the gentleman from Virginia is 95 percent to where we ought to be, I am going to vote for it, and you have to do it in a way that is more flexible with the other 5 percent.

Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. BOUCHER. Madam Speaker, I yield myself 30 seconds.

For basis of clarification, the motion to instruct that we have put forward applies to lone wolf, as the gentleman from Wisconsin indicates.

But it also applies to sections 206 and 215. The House sunsets those in 10 years, and we would instruct conferees to adopt the Senate 4-year sunset. I wanted to be sure that was well understood.

Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. ROHRABACHER. Madam Speaker, I yield myself a moment here to thank the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. Boucher) for the tone of the discussion and his good faith with us in having an honest discussion of this very significant issue.
Madam Speaker, I yield for the purpose of making a unanimous consent request to the gentleman from Idaho (Mr. Otter).

Mr. OTTER asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.

Mr. OTTER. Madam Speaker, I rise in support of the motion to instruct.

We have heard much from many sides about the USA PATRIOT Act—concerns about what the bill does, statements about what it does not do, and fears about what it could do in the future. We have shared these discussions with constituents, state and local officials, businesses, librarians, and other government agencies.

But earlier this year we had an important opportunity to move those conversations back to Congress to examine—in a light much more clear and objective than that in which we passed the original bill—how the PATRIOT Act has protected us from further terrorism attack, and also how balance between national security and personal security needs to be restored.

As a result of the opportunity to debate, deliberate, and discuss, we made important changes to the original USA PATRIOT Act in H.R. 3199, changes that enable law enforcement to continue to investigate and prosecute crime for the protection of civil liberties. Congress was able to go back and make those changes because the original bill included a sunset and made many questionable provisions subject to it.

This sunset served us well, and so I am perplexed that in the same bill where we made vital revisions to the USA PATRIOT Act we also eliminated many of the sunsets and extended others for a decade or more. In doing so, H.R. 3199 takes away from Congress the opportunity to periodically review these provisions and ensure that the tools they provide law enforcement are necessary and that they are not being abused.

I am glad that, in respect to Sections 206 and 215 of the USA PATRIOT Act we also eliminated many of the sunsets and extended others for a decade or more. In doing so, H.R. 3199 takes away from Congress the opportunity to periodically review these provisions and ensure that the tools they provide law enforcement are necessary and that they are not being abused.

I am glad that, in respect to Sections 206 and 215 of the USA PATRIOT Act, the Senate did not act as rashly as we did. I strongly urge confidence, to use the wisdom of four-year sunsets for these sections, as passed by the Senate, and I ask my colleagues to join me in supporting this motion to instruct.

Mr. ROHRABACHER. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, I rise in strong support of this motion to instruct conferees on the PATRIOT Act. Let me note that I am one of several, if not many, Members of Congress who feel that it was an act of bad faith on the part of those in this body who turned the temporary sunsetted provisions of the PATRIOT Act into permanent law for the United States of America.

I supported the PATRIOT Act and would have again voted for the PATRIOT Act as it was when we first voted for it, except now we end up with a PATRIOT Act that permanently changes the balance of power in the United States between the police power and the limitations of power of the policing authorities of the Federal Government. That, I do not believe, should be tolerated by those of us who love liberty and justice and feel that limited government is vital to the protection of freedom.

Second of all, let me note that any investigation or hearings that we have had so far into the PATRIOT Act are irrelevant to the issue at hand, the issue at hand is whether or not we have permanently changed this law and whether in the future there could be abuse. I would say, along with many others, that by permanently granting these excessive powers, or extended powers, to the Federal Government in this time of war, we perpetually extending it so that now it is the norm for a time of peace is asking for abuse. So whatever hearings have been held so far in this conflict are irrelevant.

On September 11, our country was attacked and we saw 3,000 Americans slaughtered before our eyes, and it totally justified the major expansion of the police and investigative powers of our government. I voted for the PATRIOT Act, as I just said, and I continue to support its provisions as a necessary expansion of police powers in order to prosecute this war on Islamofacism. They declared war on us every bit as much as the Japanese declared war on us on December 7, 1941.

Hence, I said in the original bill, sunset provisions were placed in all of these expanded police powers that were going to enable us to protect our people in this time of war. It was a consensus that when the war was won, those powers would be rescinded and their purposes would have then served.

The expanded authority we are talking about in terms of eliminating these sunsets in the current bill, this has nothing to do with fighting the war or winning the War on Terror. It has everything to do with using that war as an excuse to permanently change the way we do business in the United States. Congress voted for a war when we are at war with radical Islam should not be the new standard set for America once that war is over. It is as simple as that.

I support the expansion of those powers until we win that war. But we cannot, and this is what we have been handed, a bill that permanently does it so our way of life is changed after the war is over.

The special grants of police power that we believe should only last for the duration of the war, and we must demand at least a forced reexamination of these provisions to ensure that winning the War on Terror does not result in a permanent change of our way of life.

Of course, we all remember the debate over the PATRIOT Act again. Today, we are limited to instructing conferees to adopt the Senate’s version of the bill, which would sunset in 4 years the same two provisions that the House bill sunset in 10 years. The only change was the expansion of the police powers, such as the sneak-and-peak searches, Internet and credit card seizures, the lowering of standards for logging all calls dialed from one particular phone, and the rules against discussing property seizure, all without the traditional warrants that would be required for those activities, have been made permanent in U.S. law. The two provisions allowing one to expect, are the most questionable of the lot.

Specifically, section 206 of the House version of the PATRIOT Act extends to Federal authorities for 10 years until 2015 in the House version rather than in the 5 years in the Senate bill. This section allows for law enforcement to examine library and financial records of any person in connection with a Federal investigation. This provision is possibly the most controversial in the entire bill. My colleagues on one side of the aisle say that this is an unacceptable invasion of privacy; never justified, even in wartime. Others, however, argue that this particular provision is rarely, if ever, used, so why worry about it?

Well, let us be frank and admit that searching library and financial records of our citizens is hugely intrusive, even if it is rarely used. Nonetheless, this section 215 may be needed in a time of war to secure our country and to make sure our people are safe. Let us grant the expansion of this police power with a reasonable time limit, such as the expansion of a shorter term of years to ensure section 215 is not abused, that seems reasonable. But it may, again, 215 may be justified now.

We may have a justification to find out if someone who checked out a book on radical Islam has also checked out books on how to make bombs. That is why sunsetting this provision 4 years from now, rather than 10 years, is the right thing to do. We want to have that kind of power in the hands of the Federal police authorities after this war is over.

Finally, we need to ask, why do the radical Islamists hate us? They hate the openness of our society. They hate our tolerance, our belief in the equality before the law, the right of those of other faiths to worship, and the right of us to express our beliefs. In short, radical Islam is the enemy of freedom; thus, they are our enemy.

We permanently alter the traditional limitations of our government here in America, the terrorists have won. They have changed our way of life. During no war in the past, whether World War II or the Cold War, were the police powers of the Federal Government permanently changed so that after the war a new standard of government would exist.

Well, Ronald Reagan would never have supported such an expansion of Federal power and neither should we. I ask my colleagues to vote on this motion to instruct conferences, and I would like to search their consciences about voting for a new PATRIOT Act at all that threatens to permanently change the American way of life.

Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. SENSENBRENNER. Madam Speaker, I am really disappointed that the gentleman from California (Mr. ROHRABACHER), whom I consider to be my friend, has said that the extensive oversight and hearings that we, the Judiciary Committee, have held at least the last year and, in some cases, two witnesses that could come in and present any information that they wanted to present.

Now, the way we make sure that there are no warrantless overreaching in our system of government is to give the courts the power to declare unconstitutional overreaching by government agencies. The fourth amendment is alive and well, and the Supreme Court of the United States will never allow the Congress or State legislatures to ignore the provisions of the fourth amendment.

There has been not one of the 16 expanded powers in the PATRIOT Act, signed by President Bush in October of 2001, that has been declared unconstitutional. There has been no declaration of unconstitutionality of any of those powers. But what has been declared unconstitutional was a provision on national security letters that was contained in the PATRIOT Act as a renumbering, but which was enacted as a result of a bill that originated in the other body in 1986. That bill was signed by President Ronald Reagan.

To the gentleman from California, you are wrong.

Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.
for sneak-and-peek searches, for invading library privacy and section 505, expanding the use of national security letters invites abuse.

The administration assures us, the chairman assures us that these provisions have not been abused. But how do we know? It is all secret. We were told repeatedly that section 215 we should not worry about; it is rarely if ever used to demand library records. Now we know why.

The Washington Post revealed last Sunday that the FBI issues more than 30,000 section 505 national security letters a year, many to libraries for "preliminary investigations and threat assessments" before deciding whether or not to launch an investigation. These tens of thousands of invasive government demands for sensitive and private information which never even go before a judge have resulted in the collection of probably hundreds of millions of personal facts regarding innocent Americans, American residents, citizens, and businesses. And the Bush administration has decided to file all this personal information in government databases even if no basis is found for a real investigation and they will not even selling this information to private conditions.

Sunsets have been the major check, albeit probably inadequate checks, on abuse of the PATRIOT Act. They mean that at least every 4 years Congress is required to look at the law again, to revisit it, and has the opportunity to ask tough questions on the use or abuse of these powers, and most important, the administration cannot stone-wall these questions except for every 4 years.

We should have to look into these burdens on our civil liberties at least one in four years and ask are these powers being abused, should they be fine tuned? Should they be narrowed? Have we, in the right balance between security and liberty? What can we do to ensure that our constitutional rights are not violated?

I wish, Madam Speaker, that this motion to instruct were broader than it is, that it kept all the sunsetting provisions from being made permanent. The FBI will still have all the powers it needs. It will simply have to hold itself accountable to Congress and the American people every 4 years about how these powers are used. Why is that so terrifying to Congress?

I call on all my colleagues, Democrats and Republicans, liberals and conservatives, to begin to safeguard the national security, not adequately, but to begin to safeguard the civil liberties of all Americans by voting for this very, very skimpy motion to instruct.

Mr. ROHRABACHER. Madam Speaker, I yield myself the balance of my time.

The discussion today is not whether or not the Federal Government after 9/11 should have had expanded police powers and investigatory authority. That is not the issue. And I voted for that expansion of the police powers, just as most of my colleagues on the other side of the aisle and all of my colleagues on this side of the aisle did, almost all of my colleagues on this side of the aisle did, not the question, because when we voted for those expansions, we put in a sunset clause that after a certain number of years, 4 years, that the issues of those expanded authorities would be re-examined.

The only question at hand in the debate today is whether or not those expanded powers for wartime expansion in the war against radical Islam should be made permanent even now in this time of crisis. This is not a good strategy for free government to change permanently its law during a moment of crisis. I would vote for the PATRIOT Act again because I think that these powers are used. Why is that so?

But that still does in no way justify permanently expanding those powers. Just because we are at war in some countries does not mean that the conscience is no longer here to conduct hearings that the Federal Government still has those powers perhaps for people who are less, let us say less responsible than Mr. SENSENBRENNER in overseeing those expanded powers. Our Founding Fathers understood limitations on government is a guarantee of freedom. Now is not the time for us to permanently change law and permanently expand power, yet.

Mr. BOUCHER. Madam Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER), the distinguished minority whip of the House.

Mr. HOYER. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Virginia for yielding, and I urge my colleagues to vote for this important motion to instruct on the PATRIOT Act. Like so many, I voted for the PATRIOT Act the first time and the second time. But I agree with the gentleman from Virginia, and as I understand it, perhaps the chairman as well, I simply do not understand the reticence to include sunset provisions on a law that affects the civil liberties of every American citizen.

In fact, when we reauthorized the PATRIOT Act in July, the Republican bill permanently authorized 14 of the 16 provisions. The other two provisions, the one that the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER), that we ought to look at what the Justice Department had done with those expanded powers. We have looked at those actions. We have looked at how those expanded powers have been utilized; and in 14 of the 16 cases, nobody had any complaint about how those expanded powers have been utilized.

Now, sunsets are very rare in congressional action. I am proud of the way that we put the last 4 years ago. But what I will say is that we do not sunset a whole host of other programs. Social Security is not sunsetted, nor should it be. Amtrak is not sunsetted, maybe it should be, but that should be done. And I have, I am looking at the Federal criminal code and the national security letters that have been complained of by people on the other side of the aisle; they are not sunsetted. The need for security for the national security letters was passed in 1986 when, I recall, the current minority party had a significant majority in the House of Representatives.

Mr. SENSENBRENNER. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, I am the author of the sunsets that were put in the PATRIOT Act that was signed by the President in October of 2001 because I agreed with what the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER), that we ought to look at what the Justice Department had done with those expanded powers. We have looked at those actions. We have looked at how those expanded powers have been utilized; and in 14 of the 16 cases, nobody had any complaint about how those expanded powers have been utilized.

Now, sunsets are very rare in congressional action. I am proud of the way that we put the last 4 years ago. But what I will say is that we do not sunset a whole host of other programs. And I have, I am looking at the Federal criminal code and the national security letters that have been complained of by people on the other side of the aisle; they are not sunsetted. The need for security for the national security letters was passed in 1986 when, I recall, the current minority party had a significant majority in the House of Representatives.
Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from the Judiciary Committee for the wisdom of this motion, and I applaud the joining by the chairman of the full committee and offer an explanation for the reason our colleagues should join me in instructing, and frame it in the context of the crisis of the recent weeks, asking Congress to accept its responsibility to investigate the CIA leaks and now to investigate further the leaking of the CIA sites, particularly the activities of individuals around the world who have been charged or are alleged to have committed acts of terrorism.

It is important now to speak to the American people and argue that this motion to instruct does simply one thing. It now brings the American people into the focus of being the priority of the actions of this Congress.

Yes, the PATRIOT Act in some minds has not provided us more protection. There were aspects of the PATRIOT Act that I did support. The original writing was a bipartisan product. Unfortunately, the ultimate product was not as bipartisan as some of the members would like us to believe.

But what is bipartisan is our responsibility to protect the American people. The 4-year sunset gives us that opportunity so that we can begin in 4 years to assess whether authorizing secret intelligence, going into libraries and getting a list of your library books; whether one wiretap helps or hurts the American people; whether the authorizing of a blank wiretap helps or hurts the American people, whether or not the lone wolf, where you can be one individual, not part of a terrorist organization or an association or to be part of a large mass group, but one individual who may be part of, words may have suggested that they are giving some comfort to those whose views we disagree with can be hauled in as a terrorist. This sunset allows us to protect the American people.

Many of us are familiar with the recent film that said “Good Night and Good Luck.” It reminded us of the days of the McCarthy era when no one seemed to want to rise to support the rights of the American people. I ask my colleagues to support this motion to instruct and sunset in 4 years so Congress can have the ability to protect the rights of the American people.

Mr. SENSENBRENNER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material on the motion to instruct currently pending.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. SIMPSON). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Wisconsin?

There was no objection.

Mr. SENSENBRENNER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the balance of my time.

Mr. Speaker, we have had a pretty extensive debate on this motion to instruct. I think the motion to instruct is constructive and would urge the Members to support it.

On the other hand, after listening to the debate that has been going on here for the last 40 or 50 minutes and what we have heard from the people who have complained about the PATRIOT Act is the potential for abuse rather than abuse itself. I would point out that there is a potential for abuse of virtually everything law enforcement does.

There is a tremendous amount of discretion that the law and the Constitution have given to our law enforcement personnel, to our prosecutors, to those who apply for search warrants as well as other tools that law enforcement utilizes to keep us safe and to try to track down those who commit crimes or who conspire to commit crimes or acts of terrorism. I do not know why there seems to be a greater suspicion that law enforcement already abuses provisions under the PATRIOT Act rather than other provisions of law which are not sunset, including the national security letters, that the facts simply are not there that there has been abuse.

What I would like to ask the Members as we are debating the PATRIOT Act as it goes forward through conference and to the floor is to look at the way the Justice Department has done what the Justice Department has done right, the Justice Department should be told they have done it right.

And that means eliminating the sunsets from those areas where it has done it right.

And where there has to be a greater scrutiny on it, such as the two provisions in the House-passed bill and the lone wolf provision that are being talked about, we can talk about future sunshine and I support the concept of doing that.

But simply going around and painting with a broad brush the Justice Department for the potential of abuse which has not happened, I think, is unfair and does not go to the debate of whether the PATRIOT Act has actually served to protect the people of the United States without trampling on their civil liberties. It has done that. That is why it is a good law and that is why some provisions should be made permanent and some provisions should be sunsets to be looked at in the future.

Mr. Speaker, again I urge the Members to support the motion to instruct.

When we come back with a conference report, I will urge the Members to support that as well.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.
partnering with us and structuring this motion to instruct conferees. I want to express appreciation to the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. SENSENBRENNER) for his constructive comments and for his support of the motion to instruct.

The motion to instruct promotes accountability. It assures that in the absence of a near-term sunset we will not get answers to our questions about how controversial law enforcement powers are being used. In the absence of a near-term sunset, we cannot ensure that civil liberties are being protected.

This is not a matter about what the Department of Justice has done in the past, and I differ with the gentleman from Wisconsin on this matter. This is all about what the Department of Justice may do in the future. And having near-term sunsets will ensure that we can perform oversight over that performance.

Sunsets do not prevent law enforcement from using the broad powers the PATRIOT Act confers, but sunsets promote accountability. They ensure we get the information necessary to conduct oversight and to make decisions about whether powers that are subject to abuse should be contended.

Adopt this motion, let us adopt the Senate’s 4-year sunsets and, in doing so, further the cause of protecting Americans’ civil liberties. Mr. Speaker, I urge approval of the motion to instruct.

Mr. JONES of North Carolina. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of this motion to instruct.

The American people want us to protect them from the terrorists—but the American people also want us to protect their liberties and constitutional rights from an overreaching government.

Our system of government is made up of checks and balances and this motion to instruct only expands these checks and balances.

A review every 4 years is the right action to assure American citizens that their civil liberties are protected.

Let me close with a quote attributed to Patrick Henry:

The Constitution is not an instrument for the government to restrain the people, it is an instrument for the people to restrain the government—I—and I—and it come to dominate our lives and interests.

I ask that we restore the Senate’s Sunsets in the Conference Report.

Mr. BOUCHER. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, the previous question is ordered on the motion to instruct.

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion to instruct offered by the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. BOUCHER).

The motion was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, the Chair appoints the following conferees:

From the Committee on the Judiciary, for consideration of the House bill (except section 132) and the Senate amendment, and modifications committed to conference: Messrs. SENSENBRENNER, COBLE, SMITH of Texas, GALLEGGY, CHABOT, JENKINS, CONYERS, BERMAN, BOWEN, and NOBLE.

Provided that Mr. SCOTT of Virginia is appointed in lieu of Mr. NADLER for consideration of sections 105, 109, 111–114, 120, 121, 124, 131, and title II of the House bill, and modifications committed to conference: Mr. HOEKSTRA, Mrs. WILSON of New Mexico, and Ms. HARMAN.

From the Committee on Energy and Commerce, for consideration of sections 124 and 231 of the House bill, and modifications committed to conference: Messrs. NORWOOD, SHADEE, and DINGELL.

From the Committee on Financial Services, for consideration of section 117 of the House bill, and modifications committed to conference: Messrs. OXLEY, BACHUS, and FRANK of Massachusetts.

There was no objection.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. SENSENBRENNER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material on H.R. 1751.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The motion to instruct conferees. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Wisconsin?

There was no objection.

SECURE ACCESS TO JUSTICE AND COURT PROTECTION ACT OF 2005

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mrs. CAPITO). Pursuant to House Resolution 540 and rule XVIII, the Chair declares the House in the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the bill, H.R. 1751.

Mr. BOUCHER. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. SENSENBRENNER. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of this important measure.

The murder of family members of United States District Judge Joan LeFkow, the brutal slayings of Judge Richard Barnes, his deputy sheriff, and a Federal officer in Atlanta, and the cold-blooded shootings outside the Tyler, Texas, courthouse all underscore the need to provide better protection for judges, courthouse personnel, witnesses, law enforcement and their family members.

This bill is an important bipartisan measure introduced by the gentleman from Texas (Mr. GOHMEERT) and the gentleman from New York (Mr. WEINER). It will help address the problem of violence in and around our Nation’s courthouses.

Statistics show that aggravated assaults against police officers are a serious national problem. According to the Bureau of Justice Statistics, 52 law enforcement officers were killed in the United States in 2002 and 56 were killed in 2001. From 1994 through 2003 a total of 616 law enforcement officers were feloniously killed in the line of duty. Approximately 100 of these officers were murdered after being entrapped or ambushed by their killers. These attacks are simply unacceptable.

The lives of judicial personnel are also at risk. According to the Administrative Office of the United States Courts, Federal judges receive nearly 700 threats a year and several Federal judges require security personnel to protect them and their families from terrorist associates, violent gang members and drug organizations and disgruntled litigants. The intimidation of judges directly assaults the impartial administration of justice our Constitution demands.

Court witnesses are also at risk. Threats and intimidation toward witnesses continue to grow, particularly at the State and local level. In 1996, a witness intimidation study by the Justice Department included that witness intimidation is a pervasive and insidious problem. No part of the country is spared and no witness can feel entirely free or safe.

Prosecutors interviewed in this study estimated that witness intimidation occurs in 75 to 100 percent of the violent crimes committed in some gang-dominated neighborhoods.

This bill passed the Committee on the Judiciary by an overwhelming vote of 26-5. The legislation enhances criminal penalties for assaults and the killing of Federal, State, and local judges, witnesses, law enforcement officers, courthouse personnel and their family members.

It provides grants to State and local courts to improve security services and improves the ability of the United States Marshals to protect the Federal judiciary.

The bill also prohibits public disclosure, on the Internet and other public sources, of personal information about judges, law enforcement, victims and witnesses to protect Federal judges and prosecutors from organized efforts to harass and intimidate them through false filings of liens and other encumbrances against their property and improves coordination between the marshals and the Federal judges.

The bill also contains vital security measures for prosecutors handling dangerous trials against terrorists, drug organizations, and other organized crime figures.

Finally, the bill incorporates key provisions of the Peace Officer Justice Act, legislation introduced by the gentleman from California (Mr. DREIER), to bring justice to those who murder law enforcement personnel and flee to foreign nations to escape prosecution and justice in this country.

The bill is supported by those on the front lines of our criminal justice system and is backed by the Conference of Chief Justices and the Conference of State Court Administrators; the Federal Bar Association; the Federal Criminal Investigators Association; the Fraternal Order of Police; the National Association of Assistant U.S. Attorneys; the International Union of Police Associations AFL-CIO; the Major County Sheriffs’ Association; the National Troopers Coalition; the International Association of Campus Law Enforcement Administrators; and the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees.

While prosecutors, law enforcement and courthouse personnel speak in a clear and unanimous voice, we have a duty to listen and to act to give their members the tools and resources necessary for their protection.

Mr. Chairman, Congress has an obligation to ensure that America’s courts and the brave men and women of law enforcement render justice without fear of assault or retaliation. Judges, witnesses, courthouse personnel, and law enforcement officers must operate without fear in order to administer the law without bias.

I urge my colleagues to strengthen the integrity of America’s justice system and the security of court and law enforcement personnel by supporting this vital and bipartisan legislation.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I might consume.

It is, I think, a very clear statement to make that we have faced extensive violence in our courts in recent times. The problems and threats against judges, court officials, employees, witnesses, and victims is not a new one, but one that is growing rapidly.

Recent events, including the killing of a Fulton County judge and other court personnel in Atlanta, the murders of United States district judge Joan LeFkow’s family members outside Chicago, Illinois, and the murders immediately outside the Tyler, Texas, courthouse have underscored the increasing significance of the problem.

According to the Administrative Office of United States Courts, there are almost 700 threats a year made against Federal judges; and in numerous cases, Federal judges receive death threats assigned to them for fear of attack by members of violent gangs, drug organizations and disgruntled litigants.

With such tragic incidents, Mr. Chairman, we are in collaboration, if you will, on H.R. 1751, at least the premise, the Secure Access to Justice and Court Protection Act of 2005. I commend the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. CONROY), the ranking member, and the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. SENSENIBRENNER), the chairman, for their collaborative efforts, and the gentleman from Texas (Mr. GOHMLER), my colleague, a former judge, and I guess one would say once a judge always a judge, who has taken the leadership on this issue.

None of us would step away from the purpose and the necessity of this legislation. In fact, I am very gratified to have sources that will allow State courts to establish a threat assessment database similar to that of the U.S. Marshals where they will be able to determine the threat status or situation against a respective court, and then, of course, to hopefully have an amendment that would pass that would provide grants to the highest State courts to be able to disseminate those moneys to create that database and that threat assessment database.

In addition, I applaud that this hard work and commitment of Democratic members on the committee have also now provided for offers of grants to State courts so they can make meaningful enhancements to courtroom safety for judges.

It provides the U.S. Marshal Service with an additional $100 million over the course of the next 5 years to increase ongoing investigations and expand the protective services it currently offers to judges without a statutory limitation.

It authorizes the Attorney General to establish a grant program for States to establish threat assessment databases.

Even with these valuable improvements, however, the bill still suffers from a number of fatal flaws, specifically its inclusion of 16 mandatory minimum sentences and its establishment of one new death-penalty-eligible offense.

I want to comment briefly on those mandatory sentences. Mandatory minimum penalties have been studied extensively; and the vast majority of available research clearly indicates that they do not, in many instances, work. Among many other things, they have been shown to distort the sentencing process to discriminate against minorities in their application and to waste valuable taxpayer money.

But the real emphasis is, although we are here today to protect our court systems and our court officials and our law enforcement officials, we are also here to recognize the discretion necessary for our courts; and in many instances, the judicial conference itself has indicated it needs to have more discretion in sentencing.

The Judicial Conference of the United States would see the impact of mandatory minimum sentences on individual cases, as well as on the criminal justice system as a whole, and has expressed its deep opposition to mandatory minimum sentencing over a dozen times to Congress, noting that these sentences severely distort and damage the Federal sentencing system. Yes, we must have deterrence, and I have supported enhancements of penalties, adding more time for individuals to serve; but at the same time, we must allow the courts to make that determination.

If heinous acts against our Federal courts have been perpetrated, then that judge hearing that particular case would then have the discretion to yield or to render, along with a jury and a jury trial, the highest sentence; but the mandatory minimum would not be the rule of a judgment.

As I was saying, the Federal sentencing system, the Judicial Conference has said, and the mandatory sentencing undermine the sentencing guideline regimen established by Congress to promote fairness and proportionality and destroy honesty in sentencing by encouraging charge and fact plea bargains.

In fact, in a recent letter to members of the Crime Subcommittee regarding the Goodlatte and Community Protection Act of 2005, the conference noted that mandatory minimum sentences create the opposite of their intended effect. Far from fostering certainty in punishment, mandatory minimums result in unwarranted sentencing disparity, and mandatory minimums treat dissimilar offenders in a similar manner, although those offenders can be quite different with respect to the seriousness of their conduct or their danger to society.

So I would suggest we are united around the necessity of this legislation. We must protect our courts and those officials. I might add that I hope that we will have further discussion about lawyers who are engaged in the practice of law in cases where they come under particular threats, whether it is in particular the prosecutor who is covered by this or defense lawyers and other lawyers who engage in cases which treat them against their lives. We might consider hearings that would discuss that propensity.

I might also say that the inconsistent and arbitrary nature of mandatory minimum sentences is made readily apparent by a quick analysis of section 2 of the bill. Section 2 establishes a 1-year mandatory minimum with 10-year maximum criminal penalty for assaulting the immediate family member of a law enforcement officer or judge, if the assault results in bodily injury. However, just a few lines later in the same section, an identical criminal penalty is established for a simple threat.

So, Mr. Chairman, I think it is important that as we support this legislation that we also take note of some of the inconsistencies that might warrant consideration as this bill makes its way through the House, through the Senate and, of course, conference.

In the death penalty, let me suggest these few thoughts. In creating a new death penalty-eligible offense for anyone convicted of killing a federally funded public safety officer, there is no disagreement in the value of our public safety officer. It is just whether or not in addition to such an offense of death penalty, whether or not a substitute of life imprisonment without parole could have equally been used. Expansion of the use of the Federal death penalty in the current environment seems to warrant consideration.

The public is clearly rethinking the appropriateness of the death penalty in general due to the evidence that it is ineffective, crime and is especially discriminatory and is more often than not found to be erroneously applied.

I know that for a fact in a recent case we had in Texas, Frances Newton, a young woman accused of killing her children and her husband, a horrific and heinous crime, certainly one would suggest that she warrants the ultimate penalty. However, unfortunately, in petitioning to get a new trial on the basis of real definitive new evidence, the court would consider such and, of course, Frances Newton has gone to her death. I believe that she has gone to her death with raising the question of whether or not she was, in fact, innocent.

In a 23-year comprehensive study of death penalties, 68 percent were found to be erroneously applied. So it is not surprising that 119 people sentenced to death for murder over the past 12 years have been completely exonerated of those crimes.

This is a good bill. It would have been even better if we had considered life without parole and considered the viability or the necessity of creating a new eligibility for the death penalty.

I would ask my colleagues to consider this legislation.

Let me begin by saying that I strongly support the need for the proper judges and court officials from threats and violence. Despite this fact, I do have major concerns with this bill. For example, H.R. 1751 proposes to add 16 new mandatory minimum sentences to the current criminal code. Mandatory minimum sentences have, extensively and the vast majority of available research clearly indicates that they do not work. Among other things, they have been shown to distort the sentencing process, to discriminate against minorities in their application, and to waste valuable taxpayer money.

The Judicial Conference of the United States, which sees the impact of mandatory minimum sentences on individual cases as well as on the criminal justice system as a whole, has expressed its deep opposition to mandatory minimum sentences over a dozen times to Congress, noting that these sentences “severely distort and damage the Federal sentencing system . . . undermine the Sentencing Guideline regimen” established by Congress to promote fairness and proportionality, and “destroys hope in sentencing by encouraging charge and fact plea bargains.”

In fact, in a recent letter to Members of the Crime Subcommittee regarding H.R. 1279, the “Gang Deterrence and Community Protection Act of 2005,” the Conference noted that the mandatory minimum sentences create “the opposite of their intended effect.”

Far from fostering certainty in punishment, mandatory minimums result in unwarranted sentencing disparity. Mandatory minimums result in selectively imposing a punishment in a similar manner, although those offenders can be quite different with respect to the seriousness of their conduct or their danger to society.

The inconsistent and arbitrary nature of mandatory minimum sentences is made readily apparent by a quick analysis of section 2 of the bill. Section 2 establishes a one-year mandatory minimum (with a 10-year maximum criminal penalty) for assaulting the immediate family member of a law enforcement officer or judge—which can include injury or death. However, just a few lines later in the same section, an identical criminal penalty is established for a simple threat. Thus, the same section of the bill makes two completely different actions, with considerably varying outcomes, subject to the same term of imprisonment.

Furthermore, H.R. 1751 unwisely creates a new death penalty eligible offense for anyone convicted of killing a federally funded public safety officer. Expansion of the use of the federal death penalty in the current environment is patently unwarranted. The public is clearly rethinking the appropriateness of the death penalty, in general, due to the evidence that it is ineffective in deterring crime, is racially discriminatory, and is more often than not found to be erroneously applied. In a 23-year comprehensive study of death penalties, 68 percent were found to be erroneously applied. So, it is not surprising that 119 people sentenced to death for murder over the past 12 years have been completely exonerated of those crimes. Nor is it surprising with such a lackluster record of death penalty administration that several states have abolished the death penalty. For example, Connecticut has not executed anyone in 45 years. Without a doubt, the increasing numbers of innocent people released from death row illustrates the fallibility of the current system. Last year, a University of Michigan study identified 199 murder exonerations since 1989, 73 of them in capital cases. Moreover, the same study found that death row inmates represent a quarter of 1 percent of the prison population but 22 percent of the exonerated.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.
the Senate supporting the court security legislation. I have spoken with her personally and again just in the last hour, and she is most gracious and also grateful for the overall bill. She had also mentioned previously when I talked with her a concern about provisions regarding the use of habeas corpus procedure. That has been pulled from the bill itself. It is not part of the overall bill today. We also know that her elderly mother and husband were tragically murdered by a disgruntled gentleman who was upset by a ruling she had made in a case.

This bill requires consultation and coordination of U.S. courts between U.S. Marshals and the courts themselves. It will open the lines of communication between the marshals and the courts and, therefore, help with the prevention, protection, and penalties in this bill.

Those of us who have had threats against us as judges, but particularly against our families, understand all too well the importance of this bill. I would also like to thank Chairman SENSENBEINER for shepherding this legislation through his committee, through the rules and here to the floor. It is an honor to serve with him on the Judiciary Committee that he chairs, and I thank the chairman for that continued support.

This legislation will protect immediate family members of federally funded public safety officers and judges at all levels. It also provides enhanced penalties where the victims are U.S. judges, Federal law enforcement officers, federally funded public safety officers, and includes new a provision to protect National Guard troops when they are acting as public safety officers.

It increases the maximum punishment for crimes against victims, witnesses, jurors and informants.

This bill adds a new Federal crime prohibiting recording a fictitious lien by covering officers and employees of the United States, including the Federal judiciary and its employees. It provides a 30-year mandatory minimum to life in prison, or the death penalty for killing a federally funded public safety officer. Of course, for the defendant to get the death penalty, a death must have resulted from their actions. This bill includes killing judges or members of the National Guard, as I mentioned, and gives them added protection.

There has been some mention by the gentlewoman from Texas regarding mandates and it has also been noted that we removed a number of mandatory minimums in this bill for things like simple assault and threats. So the court has that consideration. But when it comes to seriously threatening, killing, kidnapping, conspiring to do death, or mandating mandatory minimum and there is. The folks that we attempt to protect are on the front lines. They need protection.

Mr. Chairman, I want to thank the Rules Committee chairman, the gentleman from California (Mr. DREIER). His bill was added to this, the David March provision, making a new Federal criminal offense for flight to avoid prosecution for killing a peace officer.

I've been asked in addition in opposition to whatever the defendant receives. So it stacks it.

This is not intended to usurp State authority but to assist the States where they need it and where they are unable. This legislation's purpose is seeking to ensure the safety and security of America's last bastion of civility, our Nation's courthouses. I urge all Members to vote yes.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 1 minute. Let me simply say that I think we will continue to have discussions as relates to mandatory minimums. I think this bill has great purpose; I think it is important, however, for us to raise those issues.

I will conclude by saying that we have a long way to go in the criminal justice system, and I hope that we will also bring to the floor of the House this whole issue of early release for those who are languishing in prisons. I hope the Good Time Early Release bill for nonviolent prisoners in our Federal prisons who are over 40 years old will have an opportunity for full debate, because they all go hand-in-hand.

Mr. SCOTT of Virginia. Mr. Chairman, can you advise how much time remains?

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Virginia has 20 minutes remaining and the gentleman from Wisconsin has 18 minutes remaining.

Mr. SCOTT of Virginia. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to H.R. 1701. With several sensational incidents involving the murders of judges, family members of judges, court personnel, witnesses and other victims, we have seen the consequences of insufficient security for our court operations and personnel associated with the courts.

All are agreed that enhancement of security for our courts and all persons associated with them is imperative. However, the main focus of this bill is not the things that the courts have been asked for to enhance the security, but on extraneous death penalties and mandatory minimum sentences which will do nothing to improve the security of our courts or personnel associated with them.

Mr. Chairman, I want to acknowledge and thank Chairman SENSENBEINER for making significant improvements in this bill since our initial consideration of the bill in Subcommittee, by removing a number of the superfluous mandatory minimum sentences and death penalties from the bill. However, all such provisions were not removed.

The notion that Congress has to direct judges on how to sentence those who harm or threaten judges and their families and others associated with court activities, or that Congress has to replace the States in prosecution of murders of State judges and other State officials is absurd. The kinds of people who are talking about clearly mandatory penalties have been here such death penalties and mandatory minimum sentences already on the books and applicable to them for those kinds of crimes, so they certainly will not be deterred by adding more such mandates. And judges facing such defendants clearly do not need congressional guidance on what the appropriate sentences may be.

Accordingly, I have prepared an amendment which would remove the provisions allowing the Federal Government, simply on the basis of someone's salary being paid in part by Federal funds, to take over traditional State prosecutions of State murder cases. I have also prepared an amendment which would replace the mandatory minimum sentencing in Federal cases involving judges, their family members or other court personnel, and replace them with higher maximums that would allow even greater sentences than the bill allows in cases which warrant it, but would not require sentences which violate common sense.

The courts have not requested mandatory minimums or death penalties because they do not mandate at the court. Nevertheless, here we go again with more mandatory minimums and more death penalties. In fact, Mr. Chairman, the Federal courts have consistently and loudly expressed their strong opposition to mandatory minimum sentences.

Through rigorous study and analysis, as well as through their everyday experiences in sentencing major players and bit players in crime, the courts have determined mandatory minimums to be less effective than regular sentences. They have found them to be racially discriminatory in their application. They have found mandatory minimums to waste money compared to traditional sentences, and they have found mandatory minimums to be a violation of common sense.

The Judicial Conference has written us often to express their opposition to mandatory minimum sentencing and it is written in this bill to state their opposition to mandatory minimum sentences as a violation of the systemic sentencing scheme designed to "reduce unwarranted disparity and to provide proportionality and fairness in punishment." That idea is violated with mandatory penalties.

The Judicial Conference and everyone concerned supports the grant programs in the bill aimed at strengthening court security and personnel and providing security for persons associated with courts. And judges mandatory minimums and the extension of the death penalties, this bill would be one that we could all support.
DEAR REPRESENTATIVE CONYERS: On behalf of the American Bar Association, the most prominent association of American attorneys, we write to oppose the House’s amendment to H.R. 1751, the Safe Access to Justice and Court Protection Act of 2005, an amendment that would be offered by Representative Jeff Flake (R-AZ) to propose changes that undermine the federal habeas corpus review of capital cases. The ABA strongly opposes this amendment and urges House members to reject it.

This amendment addresses a number of technical changes in a complicated area of law without the benefit of hearings or any previous consideration by the House Judiciary Committee. It is inconsistent with other pending House and Senate legislation and its enactment would create more confusion and chaos in a complex area of law.

We are particularly concerned about a provision in the amendment that would completely remove federal court jurisdiction for all sentencing phase claims not just those found harmless by the state courts. Under this proposal, unless the claim goes to the validity of the conviction itself, it is not cognizable in the federal courts.

If such a profound change in law were enacted, there would no longer be a federal forum for claims of ineffective assistance of counsel as well as those of retaliation. This amendment would authorize the U.S. Attorney General to determine that a particular defendant in a capital case is a ‘‘seriously mentally ill’’ defendant and thereby determine whether the federal death penalty would be cognizable. For example, if the prosecution suppressed evidence of the identity of the trigger-man, that would also not be cognizable. At a resentencing proceeding ordered by a state court on direct appeal, a prosecutor could commit a flagrant violation of Batson v. Kentucky by striking all African-Americans from the jury, and a federal court would be powerless to do anything about it. In short, no matter how unreasonable the state court decision was, there would be no federal jurisdiction for sentencing phase issues.

The House should not act on such far-reaching changes that would abrogate the federal court’s jurisdiction without more careful consideration and should reject the Flake amendment when it considers H.R. 1751. Fairness and justice demand no less.

Sincerely,
ROBERT D. EVANS

DEAR REPRESENTATIVE: On behalf of the American Civil Liberties Union, we write to oppose our expression to H.R. 1751, the Secure Access to Justice and Court Protection Act of 2005. This legislation would create a 30-year mandatory minimum sentence for second-degree murder in federal criminal cases, and mandatory minimum sentences for a number of other federal offenses, including inadequate defense counsel and racial disparities, plague the death penalty system in the United States. As a matter of principle, Congress should not be expanding the federal death penalty while these problems remain unresolved.

We urge you to oppose the following amendment:

(1) Flake #2: This amendment would eliminate federal jurisdiction for all sentencing phase claims in habeas corpus proceedings, unless the claim went to the validity of the state conviction in a capital case. For example, this would result in federal courts not having jurisdiction in any habeas cases involving claims in state capital cases that were based on ineffective assistance of counsel or prosecutorial misconduct during the sentencing phase of the case—errors that could mean the difference between life and death for the petitioner. In addition, this amendment would authorize the U.S. Attorney General to determine in a capital case a state’s indigent defense counsel system passes constitutional muster. The Attorney General, our nation’s top federal prosecutor, is not an objective third party and therefore should not decide whether states have provided competent defense counsel in death penalty cases.

For the above-mentioned reasons, we urge members to oppose H.R. 1751 when the House votes on the bill on November 9, 2005.

Sincerely,
CAROLINE FREDRICKSON, Director.

DEAR REPRESENTATIVE CONYERS, Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Chairman, the legislation under consideration today represents a vast improvement over the version of the bill as originally introduced.

Thanks to the hard work and commitment of Democratic members on the committee, it now offers grants to state courts so that they can make meaningful enhancements to courtroom safety and security. It provides the US Marshals Service with an additional $100 million over the course of the next five years, to increase ongoing investigations and expand the protective services it currently offers to members of the federal judiciary. This also authorizes the Attorney General to establish a grant program for states to establish threat assessment databases.
Even with these valuable improvements, however, the bill still suffers from two fatal flaws. Specifically, its inclusion of 16 new mandatory minimum sentences and its establishment of one new death penalty eligible offense. Mandatory minimums have been studied extensively and have been proven to be ineffective in preventing crime. They also have been proven to distort the sentencing process, and waste valuable taxpayer money. With more than 2.5 million Americans currently in jail or prison—roughly quadruple the number individuals incarcerated in 1985—it’s hard to see how anyone can continue with such a deeply flawed strategy.

Today, this country incarcerates its citizens at a rate 14 times that of Japan, 8 times the rate of France and 6 times the rate of Canada. We spend an estimated $40 billion a year to imprison criminal offenders, we choose to build prisons over schools and we fail to provide inmates released from prison with the necessary tools and assistance for a successful re-entry into society.

Thanks to mandatory minimum sentences, almost 10 percent of all inmates in state and federal prisons are serving life sentences, an increase of 83 percent from 1992. In two states alone, New York and California, almost 20 percent of inmates are serving life sentences.

We’ve also noted the numerous problems that exist with regard to the death penalty. Namely, that all of the availability of this punishment has happened in my district, in the Fulton County Courthouse, on the morning of March 11, 2005.

On that day, Brian Nichols, was to appear in the nature of a substitute printed in the morning of March 11, 2005. Mr. SCOTT of Georgia. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of Matthew Hale, who had been convicted of soliciting Judge Lefkow in support of H.R. 1751 and in support of the dedicated public servants working in our criminal justice system. The very nature of their work brings them in contact with dangerous criminals on a daily basis. After all, some of these criminals seek revenge against the prosecutors and judges who put them in prison. As unfortunate as it is, we must do more to protect those in the justice system who work to protect all of us.

We all remember the brutal murders of Michael Lefkow and Donna Humphrey, the husband and mother of U.S. District Judge Joan Lefkow. The initial investigation focused on a likely suspect, white supremacists. Matthew Hale, who had been convicted of soliciting Judge Lefkow one year before. As it turns out, Hale was not behind the murders, but another disgruntled individual with a history in front of Judge Lefkow was Bart Ross, a plaintiff in a medical malpractice case Judge Lefkow dismissed, wrote a letter to a Chicago television station admitting he killed Michael Lefkow and Donna Humphrey and that his target had been the Judge. Included in the note was a “hit list” of others he felt had wronged him, many of whom were involved in his medical malpractice case. One of the individuals on the “hit list” is a constituent of mine and while we are thankful he and his family are safe, it is a chilling reminder that the security of judicial officials cannot be taken for granted.

This tragic case is just one example of the danger prosecutors and judges face simply for doing their jobs. Even though Matthew Hale and his white supremacist group were not responsible for the Lefkow murders, they were vocal in their praise for the killings on the Internet. The fact remains that judges, prosecutors, and their families are often targeted by those they can never wish to see even in their own homes. Mr. Chairman, I support this legislation and I believe the Congress should do all it can to protect judges and their families and enhance courthouse security.

Mr. SCOTT of Virginia. Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. SENSENBRENNER. Mr. Chairman, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time. The CHAIRMAN. All time for general debate has expired.

The text of the amendment in the nature of a substitute is as follows:

“(A) The punishment for an assault in violation of this section is as follows:

“(i) If the assault is a simple assault, a fine under this title and a term of imprisonment for not more than one year or more than 10 years.

“(ii) If the assault resulted in bodily injury (as defined in section 111), a fine under this title and a term of imprisonment for not less than 3 years nor more than 10 years.

“(E) If a dangerous weapon was used during and in relation to the offense, the punishment shall include a term of imprisonment of 5 years in addition to that otherwise imposed under this paragraph.

Section 3. PENALTIES FOR CERTAIN ASSAULTS.

(a) INCLUSION OF FEDERALLY FUNDED PUBLIC SAFETY OFFICERS.—Section 111(a)(1) of title 18, United States Code, is amended by inserting—

(1) in paragraph (1), by inserting “or a federally funded public safety officer (as defined in section 1123)” after “1114 of this title”; and

(2) in paragraph (2), by inserting “or a federally funded public safety officer (as defined in section 1123)” after “1114”. The Fulton County Courthouse, the entire Atlanta metropolitan area, an area of more than 4 million people, was on edge. Schools were put on lock down in several counties. If we had proper security measures in place on that fateful Friday morning, we could have avoided the hysteria and disruptions of normal life that followed.

My constituents, the residents of the Atlanta area, and the law-abiding citizens of this great nation deserve the right to go about their daily lives knowing that our court rooms are secure. Therefore, I urge the passing of this bill.

Mr. KIRK. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the few grants that this bill purports to offer in the area of witness protection and the need for court security can’t make up for its two fatal flaws. I urge my colleagues to oppose this measure.
(b) ALTERNATE PENALTY WHERE VICTIM IS A UNITED STATES JUDGE, A FEDERAL LAW ENFORCEMENT OFFICER, OR FEDERALLY FUNDED PUBLIC SAFETY OFFICER.—Section 111 of title 18, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following:

“(c) ALTERNATE PENALTY WHERE VICTIM IS A UNITED STATES JUDGE, A FEDERAL LAW ENFORCEMENT OFFICER, OR FEDERALLY FUNDED PUBLIC SAFETY OFFICER.—(1) Except as provided in paragraph (2), if the offense is an assault and the victim of the offense under this section is a United States judge, a Federal law enforcement officer (as defined for the purposes of section 1114) or of a federally funded public safety officer (as defined for the purposes of section 1312) of the penalties otherwise set forth in this section, the offender shall be subject to a fine under this title and—

“(A) if the assault is a simple assault, a fine under this title or a term of imprisonment for not more than one year, or both;

“(B) if the assault resulted in bodily injury (as defined in section 1365), shall be imprisoned not less than 3 nor more than 12 years;

“(C) if the assault resulted in substantial bodily injury (as defined in section 2119), shall be imprisoned not less than 10 nor more than 30 years.

“(D) if a dangerous weapon was used during and in relation to the offense, the punishment shall be a term of imprisonment of 5 years in addition to that otherwise imposed under this subsection.”.

SEC. 22. MEDIA COVERAGE OF COURT PROCEEDINGS.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Congress makes the following findings:

(1) The right of the people of the United States to freedom of speech, particularly as it relates to comment on governmental action, is protected by the first amendment to the Constitution, and cannot be meaningfully exercised without the ability of the public to obtain facts and information about the Government upon which to base their judgments regarding important issues and events. As the United States Supreme Court articulated in Craig v. Harney, 331 U.S. 367 (1947), judicial proceedings that transpire in the courtroom are public property.”.

(2) The right of the people of the United States to a free press, with the ability to report on all aspects of the conduct of the business of government, as protected by the first amendment to the Constitution, cannot be meaningfully exercised without the availability to the public of information about the affairs of government as protected by the first amendment to the Constitution, particularly as it relates to information about the Government upon which to base their judgments regarding important issues and events.

(3) The right of the people of the United States to petition the Government to redress grievances, it is good public policy for the Congress affirmatively to facilitate the ability of the public to gather facts and information freely for dissemination to the public.

(4) In the twenty-first century, the people of the United States exercise their rights to freedom of speech, freedom of the press, and freedom of information, and the Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit has found that public access to courtroom proceedings that more closely approximates the ideal of actual physical presence than newspaper coverage or still photography.

(5) Providing statutory authority for the courts of the United States to exercise their discretion in permitting televised coverage of courtroom proceedings, including specifically the access of the people to the Federal judiciary.

(6) Inasmuch as the first amendment to the Constitution affords to the Congress from time to time the authority to exercise its inherent rights to freedom of speech, freedom of the press, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances, it is good public policy for the Congress affirmatively to facilitate the ability of the people to exercise those rights.

(7) The granting of such authority would assist in the implementation of the constitutional guarantee of public trials in criminal cases, as provided by the sixth amendment to the Constitution. As the Supreme Court stated in In re Oliver, 333 U.S. 257 (1948), “Whatever other benefits the guarantee to an accused that his trial be conducted in public may confer upon our society, the guarantee has always been recognized as a safeguard to his attempt to prove his courts as instruments of persecution. The knowledge that every criminal trial is subject to controversional review in the forum of public opinion is an effective restraint on possible abuse of judicial power.”.

(1) AUTHORITY OF APPELLATE COURTS.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the presiding judge of an appellate court of the United States, upon citation of a party or upon request, may permit the photographing, electronic recording, broadcasting, or televising to the public of court proceedings over which that judge presides.

The CHAIRMAN. No amendment to the committee amendment is in order except those printed in House Report 109-279. Each amendment may be offered only in the order printed in the report, by a Member designated in the report, shall be considered in the report, equally divided and controlled by the proponent and an opponent, subject to a demand for division of the question. Amendment No. 1 offered by Mr. SENSENBNRENNR. Amendment No. 2 offered by Mr. SCOTT of Virginia.
Mandatory minimums have been studied and have been found to disrupt an orderly sentencing scheme, to be discriminatory against minorities, to waste the taxpayers’ money when compared to traditional sentencing where individual roles and culpability can be taken into account. If we do not trust judges to sentence offenders sufficient time where the evidence is clear that we should be able to trust judges is in the case where the charge is murder, injury, or threats to judges.

Certainly, Mr. Chairman, mandatory minimums are not indicated in this bill. My amendment supports this amendment and remove the mandatory minimums from the bill.

Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. SENSENBRENNER. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the Scott amendment. It strips all of the mandatory minimum penalties out of the bill.

The amendment seeks to strip the core provisions of the bill. Let me remind everyone of the nature of the problem we face today. More than 57,000 law enforcement officers were assaulted in 2003, or one in every 10 officers serving in the United States. The numbers have been increasing since 1999, even as every other crime has decreased or held steady.

The Executive Director of the Fraternal Order of Police noted recently that, "There is less respect for authority in general, and police officers specifically. The predisposition of criminals to use firearms is probably at the highest point of our history."

The secure access proposal addresses the problem by sending a message of deterrence. The existing penalty for assaulting a law enforcement officer is 8 years, 15 if with a weapon. Under current criminal law, a false statement made to an FBI agent in a terrorism investigation carries the same penalty as a violent assault of a police officer.

Federal, State, and local judges have suffered from rising threats, and deadly attacks have been directed against judges as well as courthouse participants.

According to the Administrative Office of the United States Courts, there are almost 700 threats made a year against Federal judges, and in numerous cases, the courts are obviously absurd. Judges have not asked for mandatory minimum sentences as a protection for themselves and their families. Indeed, they have asked for just the opposite.

Having the experience of sentencing people on an ongoing basis, judges see the differences in activities, roles, backgrounds of the offenders of crime. They know it makes no sense to sentence just on the basis of the name of the crime rather than on the basis of the facts and circumstances of the crime and the level of involvement and background of the offenders. Having heard all the facts and circumstances in the case, they are in a much better position to sentence offenders than Congress is in sentencing offenders with no knowledge of the individual case.

To ensure a systemic approach in sentencing like offenders in a similar manner, Congress has created the Sentencing Commission and the sentencing guideline system. By increasing the maximums, we signal to the Sentencing Commission to consider increasing the guideline minimums, which they characteristically do when we make such suggestions. The sentencing statistics do not establish that the courts have not followed the guidelines, especially when you take into account that most of the deviations result from government motions, or acquittals. In a recently released report, the Sentencing Commission data confirmed that this trend is continuing, and specifically broke out such data by circuits, which showed that judges in the Second and Ninth Circuits followed the guideline ranges in imposing sentences in a substantially lower percentage than the other circuits. Sentences now for similar crimes are being handled consistently, regardless of the region where the offense occurs. This is not equal justice under the law in the Federal system.

Congress has a duty to set sentencing policies for Federal crimes and to make sure that judges impose such sentences. Unfortunately, that has not been the experience since the Supreme Court’s decision. Once freed from mandatory sentencing schemes, Federal judges are now starting to ignore the guidelines: In one of every 10 criminal cases, they are imposing sentences below the previously mandated guideline.

In a recently released report, the Sentencing Commission data confirmed that this trend is continuing, and specifically broke out such data by circuits, which showed that judges in the Second and Ninth Circuits followed the guideline ranges in imposing sentences in a substantially lower percentage than the other circuits. Sentences now for similar crimes are being handled consistently, regardless of the region where the offense occurs. This is not equal justice under the law in the Federal system.

Those judges, when they go to the Supreme Court, ought to look at the motto that is underneath the roof of the Court at the main entrance when they walk in. For these reasons, I urge my colleagues to oppose the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. SCOTT).
The amendment was rejected.

AMENDMENT NO. 3 OFFERED BY MR. SCOTT OF VIRGINIA

Mr. SCOTT of Virginia. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 3 printed in House Report 109-279 offered by Mr. SCOTT of Virginia:

In the matter proposed to be inserted by section 2(a) of title 18, United States Code, strike "shall be punished" and all that follows through "death" and insert "shall be fined under this title or imprisoned for any term of years or for life, or both".

The CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to House Resolution 540, the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. SENSENBERGER) and the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. SCOTT) and the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. SENSENBERGER) each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Virginia.

Mr. SCOTT of Virginia. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, this amendment would eliminate the expansion of the Federal death penalty jurisdiction on the basis of the salary of a State or local official being covered with Federal funds. That means they could be eligible for a Federal death penalty. The notion that the Federal Government has to replace the States and localities in murder prosecutions against those who would murder a State judge or others associated with a judge or courts is absurd.

States have shown themselves quite capable of prosecuting murder cases and in obtaining death penalties where applicable. They have done far more of it, frankly, than the Federal Government, so there is no indication that this raw extension of Federal power is necessary or even desired. If a State has chosen to represent the will of its citizens by not authorizing a death penalty, why should Congress step in and impose it in spite of the State’s public policy choice?

The States certainly have not asked that we add a Federal death penalty to apply to the murder of federally funded State or local officials. And there is no evidence that the kind of people who would kill or plot to kill a State court judge or other officials may be deterred by a Federal death penalty.

The public is clearly rethinking the appropriateness of the death penalty, in general, due to the evidence that it is ineffective in deterring crime, that it is racially discriminatory, and found more often than not to be erroneously applied.

A 23-year comprehensive study of the death penalty found that the death penalty had been erroneously applied 68 percent of the time. So it is not surprising that over 120 people sentenced to death over the last 10 years have been exonerated of the crimes for which they are convicted or otherwise found to be not guilty.

Nor is it surprising that with such a sorry record of death penalty administration, that several States have abolished the death penalty or placed moratoriums on the applications of their death penalty while studies are being conducted, and why some, while they have been in the books, have not applied it in many years.

In recognition of the problems States and localities were having with administering the death penalty, Congress adopted the Innocence Protection Act just a few years ago, providing funding to State and local entities to help ensure that there is competent counsel at all parts of the trial.

Mr. Chairman, during committee deliberations of the death penalty, we heard references to econometric research of economist Joanna M. Shepherd. I want to point out, more recently, she has done further analysis in elaboration of her research and found, in terms of deterring murders, executions deter murders in States, have no effect on murders in eight States, and increased murders in 13 States.

Mr. Chairman, despite the fact that the death penalty is arbitrarily applied, it is discriminatory and we make mistakes. I would hope that we would delete the death penalty from this bill by adopting the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. SENSENBERGER. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I rise in opposition to the Scott amendment which eliminates the death penalty for the killing of a federally funded public safety officer, such as a judge, police officer, firefighter, prosecutor, or a family member of a public safety officer.

According to the Bureau of Justice Statistics, 52 law enforcement officers were feloniously killed in the United States in 2003, 100 of whom were killed in ambush situations, entrapment or premeditated situations. If not for the advent of bulletproof vests, an additional 400 officers would have been killed over the last decade, except for the fact that they were wearing protective armor.

Of those responsible for killing police officers between 1994 and 2003, 521 had a prior arrest for assaulting a police officer between 1994 and 2003, 521 had a prior arrest for assault or battery, 246 for a crime of violence, 93 had prior violent arrest, 23 for murder.

Recent events include the killing of an individual with a grenade in the Seattle Federal courthouse; the killing of Judge Roland Barnes, his deputy sheriff and a Federal agent in Atlanta; the murder of Federal Judge Lekefow’s husband and mother; and the murders immediately outside the Tyler, Texas, courthouse.

These recent attacks follow on the heels of the 1998 bombing of Circuit Judge Robert Vance in the 11th Circuit; the 1998 shooting of Judge Daronoco; and the 1979 shooting of Judge Wood outside his San Antonio home.

According to the Administrative Office, there are almost 700 threats a year made against Federal judges, and security detail have had to be assigned to those Federal judges because of the threats of attacks.

The Secure Access bill authorizes, but does not require prosecution of federally funded State and local judges and first responders if there is a threat on an assault against them.

First, jurisdiction only exists when it involves Federal funding and protection of Federal investment.

Second, under current Federal law, the Department of Justice pays survivors of families of first responders who are killed in the line of duty. The Federal interest in minimizing these assaults and murders is obvious and cost-saving.

The intent underlying this provision is to authorize Federal prosecution after State and local prosecutors and Federal prosecutors determine where such prosecution would best be brought. Some States do not have a death penalty and Federal prosecution of a cop killer may be warranted. Federal prosecution may be advantageous over State or local prosecutions for a variety of reasons, such as laws relating to evidence, statute of limitations, or other reasons.

The provisions do not require Federal prosecution, but only add another tool in the arsenal to protect law enforcement officers, judges, and other courthouse personnel.

The need for a swift and effective death penalty is significant in the case of violent offenders who assault and kill law enforcement officers, judges and witnesses. Several scientifically valid statistical studies that examine a period of years and control for national trends consistently support that capital punishment is a substantial deterrent and saves lives. Recent estimates show that each execution deters 18 murders. I urge a “no” vote on the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The CHAIRMAN. The question was taken; and the Chairman announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Mr. SENSENBERGER. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. SCOTT) will be postponed.

AMENDMENT NO. 4 OFFERED BY MR. CUellar

Mr. Cuellar. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.
The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 4 printed in House Report 109-279 offered by Mr. CUELLAR:

Section 11(c) is amended—

(1) by striking “and” at the end of paragraph (2);

(2) by striking the period at the end of paragraph (3) and inserting “and”; and

(3) by inserting after paragraph (3) the following:

(4) shares an international border and faces a demonstrable threat from cross border crime and violence.

The CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to House Resolution 540, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. CUELLAR) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. CUELLAR. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, my amendment is an amendment that adds a category of preferential consideration for witness protection grants for jurisdictions that share an international border and face a threat from cross-border crime.

Basically, this would allow the border prosecutors an opportunity to protect the witness that sometimes fears that they might get a threat from international cross-border threats. I believe this amendment is acceptable to Chairman SENSENBRENNER.

Mr. Chairman, Chairman SENSENBRENNER and Ranking Member CONERS, Congresswoman SCOTT, thank you for this opportunity to offer my amendment to H.R. 1751, the Secure Access to Justice and Court Protection Act of 2005.

Crime and violence along the U.S.-Mexico border presents unique challenges to the law enforcement community. Border crimes can be especially difficult to prosecute: a witness to a crime along the border may be hesitant to testify if he or she fears it is related to criminal activity across the border in another country. The Cuellar amendment is simple; it adds a category of preferential consideration for witness protection grants for jurisdictions that share an international border and face a demonstrable threat from cross-border crime.

This category will benefit such jurisdictions that choose to apply for witness protection grants.

We must provide prosecutors every means possible to adjudicate crimes along the border, and giving them preferential consideration for witness protection grants will help that goal.

Mr. SENSENBRENNER. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. CUELLAR. I yield to the gentleman from Wisconsin.

Mr. SENSENBRENNER. Mr. Chairman, the amendment is a very good amendment. It is not acceptable, but it is something that I enthusiastically support.

Mr. CUELLAR. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. CUELLAR. I yield to the gentlewoman from Texas.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for his very wise amendment. He comes from a region that has suffered an enormous amount of border violence. But his local officials, in working with the gentleman, has brought this to the Nation’s attention.

This amendment will protect witnesses who I think are the crux of solving some of our most violent crimes. I have supported amendments such as this, which include language in legislation that I have which deals with rewarding informants in order to get them to tell the facts that would allow for busting traffickers and others who are perpetrating violence. This is a wise amendment, and I am happy to support it.

Mr. CUELLAR. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentlewoman for the work she has done.

Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Texas (Mr. CUELLAR).

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 5 OFFERED BY MS. JACKSON-LEE OF TEXAS

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 5 printed in House Report 109-279 offered by Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas: In section 25, after subsection (a) and insert the following:

The CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to House Resolution 540, the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentlewoman from Texas.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I want to thank the ranking member and the chairman of the full committee and the chairman and the ranking member of the subcommittee to allow the amendment that I secured that has to do with providing courts the opportunity to establish a threat assessment database similar to that of U.S. Marshals.

I want to thank the ranking member and the chairman of the full committee and the chairman and the ranking member of the subcommittee to allow the amendment that I secured that has to do with providing courts the opportunity to establish a threat assessment database similar to that of U.S. Marshals.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I want to thank the ranking member and the chairman of the full committee and the chairman and the ranking member of the subcommittee to allow the amendment that I secured that has to do with providing courts the opportunity to establish a threat assessment database similar to that of U.S. Marshals.

Mr. CUELLAR. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Chairman, I yield to the gentleman from Wisconsin.

Mr. SENSENBRENNER. Mr. Chairman, I support this amendment. It makes a technical change to section 25 of the bill, and it broadens the eligible grants. I think it is a good amendment and urge the committee to adopt it.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Chairman, reclaiming my time, I thank the distinguished chairman for his support.

Let me conclude by simply saying again I remind colleagues I hope that some day we will be able to discuss the Good Time Early Relief bill that speaks to the question of individuals languishing in Federal prisons who have been nonviolent and would welcome this discussion and this legislation.

I am grateful for this amendment, and I ask my colleagues to support the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I rise to offer an amendment to H.R. 1751, the Secure Access to Justice and Court Protection Act of 2005. Before doing so, I want to thank the Chairman and the Ranking Minority Member of the House Judiciary Committee for their efforts on this bill. Let me briefly explain the thrust of my amendment. It is the only small technical change to my original amendment that was adopted during the Full Committee Markup last week. In essence, the change would require the Attorney General to work, through the Office of Justice Programs, to make grants to highest State courts in States participating in the threat assessment database program.

The rationale for changing the language to make State Supreme Courts eligible for receiving grants for the creation of a threat assessment database is that the State courts are on the ground and have the best understanding of what type of threats are out there and where they are coming from. In addition, the Department of Justice has interpreted language giving “grants to States” as going directly to State executives (Governors) and they have sometimes bypassed the State courts.

The State court administrating agencies (led by the State supreme courts) are in a better position to know about the kind of threats and attacks they experience in a given year.

The State court administrating agencies are in a better position to know how to respond to attacks and develop procedures to counter threats to the State courts.

If the grants go to the State executive, there is a chance that money expended under this program will go to another part of the State budget such as roads or education, not court security.

I respectfully request that my amendment be made in order.

Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE).

The amendment was adopted during the Full Committee Markup last week. In essence, the change would require the Attorney General to work, through the Office of Justice Programs, to make grants to the highest State courts in States participating in the threat assessment database program.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Chairman, I yield to the gentleman from Wisconsin.

Mr. SENSENBRENNER. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.
The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 6 printed in House Report 109-279 offered by Mr. FILNER:

Section 26(h)(3) is amended—
(1) by redesignating subparagraphs “(D)” and “(E)” as subparagraphs “(E)” and “(F)”, respectively; and
(2) by inserting after subparagraph (C) the following:

“(D) support for young witnesses who are trying to leave a criminal gang and information to prevent initial gang recruitment.”.

The CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to House Resolution 540, the gentleman from California (Mr. FILNER) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from California.

Mr. FILNER. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I thank Chairman SENSENBRINNER and the Rules Committee for allowing this amendment to proceed. There is a very good section of the bill talking about grants for young witness assistance, and I think when we talk about that, as the bill does, very importantly, we also must explicitly talk about gangs because we know that youth witness intimidation generally comes at the hands of criminal gangs.

So my amendment adds language to this section that provides for this bill to allow the use of witness protection grants by youths who are trying to leave a criminal gang or to prevent initial gang recruitment.

Mr. SENSENBRINNER. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. FILNER. I yield to the gentleman from Wisconsin.

Mr. SENSENBRINNER. Mr. Chairman, I am happy to support this amendment. I think it plugs a hole in the original bill, and we certainly want to do whatever we can to prevent people from going into gangs and from being threatened if they are witnesses and are sworn to tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth in criminal trials involving gang members.

Mr. FILNER. Mr. Chairman, I thank the chairman for his support.

Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. WATSON).

Ms. WATSON. Mr. Chairman, I am here to support the gentleman from California (Mr. FILNER) and his amendment to H.R. 1751. I would like to thank the chairman for accepting that amendment.

What he is trying to do is to help that young person extricate him or herself and let the courts and law enforcement know aspects of gang crime that are key in convicting our most dangerous criminals on the streets.

In my district I think we have exported gang activities around the country and maybe even around the world, South Central Los Angeles. So as a result, I started a series of youth violence summits with intervention specialists, educators, counselors, and the youth themselves. And one clear message that has resonated amongst all of them is the dire need to promise our youth that if they are involved in gang activity and remove themselves, they will not be harmed or killed by the very gang that they wisely ostracize themselves from.

So this amendment clearly provides much-needed witness protection for our youth who are fearful of leaving a gang and who will come forward to testify about the inner workings of these gangs.

So I thank the gentleman very much for recognizing that we need to have options for the young people that are trying to be responsible in the process. And we are going to come back next year with a comprehensive bill because we have been studying this issue, working with it for the last 20 years; and I thank Mr. FILNER and Mr. SENSENBRINNER so much for recognizing the need to have these programs.

Mr. FILNER. If I may conclude, Mr. Chairman, according to the past president of the National District Attorneys Association, Mr. Robert P. McCullough, he said that “prosecutors across the country believe that the issue of witness intimidation is the single biggest hurdle facing any successful gang prosecution.”

So I appreciate the chairman’s acceptance of this amendment. I look forward to these grants helping our youth people avoid gangs or at least avoid intimidation.

I believe when you talk about witness assistance programs for children, which this bill does, you have to talk about gangs because as many know, witness intimidation generally comes at the hands of criminal gangs.

My amendment adds language to the witness protection grants provided in this bill to allow their use by youths who are trying to leave a criminal gang or to prevent initial gang recruitment.

Unfortunately, my district like many others across the country has a problem with gangs, which is why I introduced this amendment.

In San Diego, police department records count more than 3,750 gang members on the street. Most are young—pre-teens to mid-20s. During the first six months of this year, gang violence resulted in eight homicides in San Diego, nearly a third of the total of 23.

However, don’t let these statistics mislead you, gang violence is not limited to California and or big urban areas—that might have been true a while ago but it is no longer the case today. While big cities still have the majority of gangs their tentacles reach out from the cities into every aspect of our society. For example, Mara Salvatrucha known as MS-13, began from a gang that once numbered a few thousand and was involved in street violence and turf battles in Southern California into a gang that operates in at least 33 states, with an international membership in the hundreds of thousands.

Three thousand jurisdictions across the U.S. are estimated to have had gang activity in 2001. In 2002, 32% of cities with a population of 25 to 50 thousand reported a gang-related homicide. Furthermore, it is estimated that there are 840,000 active gang members in the U.S. operating in every state of the Union.

These gangs are effective because they bind their members to loyalty and create fear throughout the community in which they operate. This fear, most noticeable in children, prevents residents from cooperating with law enforcement officials and testifying against gang members. My amendment, while not a panacea for the gang problem, is a step in the right direction. It provides support to prevent initial gang recruitment and help young witnesses who are trying to leave criminal gangs. Passage of my amendment will decrease youth witness intimidation by gangs and as a result lead to improved prosecution of gang members.

Finally, as a matter of clarification, my amendment does not “require” states to provide such criminal gang witness assistance to be eligible for young adult witness assistance grants.

Mr. Chair, I yield back the balance of my time.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from California (Mr. FILNER) and a Member opposed.

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 7 OFFERED BY MR. WEINER

Mr. WEINER. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 7 printed in House Report 109-279 offered by Mr. WEINER:

At the end of the bill add the following:

SEC. 6. STATE AND LOCAL COURT ELIGIBILITY.

(a) BUREAU GRANTS.—Section 302(c)(1) of title I of the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968 (42 U.S.C. 3723(c)(1)) is amended by inserting “State and local courts,” after “contracts with”. (b) EDWARD BYRNE GRANTS.—Section 501 of title I of the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968 (42 U.S.C. 3751) is amended— (A) in subsection (a), by striking “and units of local government” and inserting “units of local government, State and local courts”; and (B) in subsection (b), by inserting “. State and local courts,” after “use by States”.

(2) DISCRETIONARY GRANTS.—Section 510(a) of title I of the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968 (42 U.S.C. 3760(a)) is amended by inserting “. State and local courts,” after “private agencies.”

(b) ARMOR VESTS.—Section 2501 of title I of the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968 (37691) is amended— (1) in subsection (a), by inserting “State and local court,” after “local,”; and (2) in subsection (b), by inserting “State and local court” after “government.”.

(c) CHILD ABUSE PREVENTION.—Section 105 of the Child Abuse Prevention and Treatment Act (42 U.S.C. 5106) is amended— (1) in the section heading, by inserting “STATE AND LOCAL COURTS,” after “agencies”;

(2) in subsection (a), by inserting “and State and local courts” after “such agencies or organizations”; and

(b) in subsection (a), by inserting “and State and local courts” after “organizations”.
The CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to House Resolution 540, the gentleman from New York (Mr. WEINER) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New York.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

This is a technical amendment that fixes an oversight in the bill that left out four programs that would be helpful for courts, court officers, and court security personnel to take advantage of: the Bulletproof Vest Partnership Grant program; the Byrne Memorial State and Local Law Enforcement Assistance Discretionary Grant program; the Assistance for Children’s Justice Act, CJA, grants; and State Justice Statistics program for Statistical Analysis Centers.

These four grant programs, I think, the authors of the bill, Mr. GOHMIERT, myself and members of the committee, had intended to be available to courts as a whole, and this amendment would include those.

Mr. SENSENBRENNER. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WEINER. I yield to the gentleman from Wisconsin.

Mr. SENSENBRENNER. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding to me.

The gentleman from New York is absolutely correct in that there was an oversight in that State and local court officers would not be eligible for these four grant programs that the gentleman outlined in his remarks. This amendment corrects the oversight, and I am happy to support it and hope that the committee adopts it.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. Chairman, reclaiming my time, I thank the chairman for his support.

For the balance my time here, I do want to point out one other provision that has gone largely unnoticed, but is a very important part of this bill.

I have beside me, and it is difficult to read from afar and, frankly, it is difficult to even read from up close a Web site that distributes the personal information about judges, police officers, elected officials, and the like. This Web site, and we have obviously obscured the URL, goes so far as to talk about the comings and goings of undercover officers in New York City. It provides sensitive details of about 79 different officers, what type of car they drive, things about what the comings and goings of their families are, personal habits. This is an example where we find the matrix, or perhaps I would call it the conflict, of the virtues of the Internet. Now it is a place to bring information far and wide and the ability to use the Internet for what is in this case a very pernicious, mean-spirited, and perhaps deadly cause.

We know from the examples we have had judges’ families stalked based on information that can be found on the Internet. In this bill we essentially incorporate H.R. 1710, the Internet Police Protection Act, that I offered. It becomes section 18 of this bill. What it says is there is a lot of publicly accessible information about judges; there is a lot of publicly accessible information about police officers. If someone wants to, if they really want to harass or harm a police officer via a judge, we all have to allow the Internet to be used as a repository for information like that.

I am someone who spends a great deal of time as a member of the Judiciary Committee fighting for the rights of people to free speech. I know there are going to be things on the Internet that are troubling to us, and we are always going to be in a tug and a push to try to figure out where we draw the line.

In this case, the line clearly gets drawn in the following place: if people are going to use the Internet to harass, intimidate, or harm law enforcement personnel, to harm court officers, to harm judges, then they should be illegal. If they simply compile the database and a police officer’s name happens to be on it with no intention of ill will, then obviously this would not make that illegal. But if it is clear that they are assembling this type of information, as I see this, which starts out, I should point out, the very first line says: “Welcome to this legal, noncriminal Web site which provides publicly available information about NYPD, New York City Police Department.”

This is this Web site’s most visited page,” and it goes on to talk about how the information that was gathered was gathered in a lawful way. That is probably right. But it should be illegal. This is just the type of harassment tool, and perhaps even worse, that we need to keep off of the Internet.

I also draw another distinction, Mr. Chairman. When one is an elected official, a public official, their comings and goings are going to be more public than others. That is part of the cost of doing business. Any information about where a Congressman shows up obviously is not going to be covered by this legislation. But if one is a police officer, if one is an undercover police officer, imagine what it feels like to go home after a hard day at work dealing with some very bad people and find information about their comings and goings posted on a Web page.

This bill, the Court Protection Act, is going to make that illegal, as it should. And there may be tests that we have to figure out where the line gets drawn. Courts have come down in different places, but one thing we know: threatening speech is not protected speech. Speech that endangers someone’s livelihood, endangers someone’s life is not protected speech, and this provision in the Court Security Act will make that abundantly clear.

I ask for a “yes” vote on the Weiner amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from New York (Mr. WEINER).

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 8 OFFERED BY MR. KING OF IOWA

Mr. KING of Iowa. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment. The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 8 printed in House Report 109-279 offered by Mr. King of Iowa:

At the end of the bill, add the following:

SEC. 3054. Authority of Federal judges and prosecutors to carry firearms

“(a) In general.—Chapter 233 of title 18, United States Code, is amended by inserting after section 3003 the following:

“(b) CLERICAL AMENDMENT.—The table of sections for such chapter is amended by inserting after the item relating to section 3053 the following:

“3054. Authority of Federal judges and prosecutors to carry firearms

“Any justice of the United States or judge of the United States (as defined in section 451 of title 28), any judge of a court created under article 1 of the United States Constitution, any bankruptcy judge, any magistrate judge, any United States attorney, and any other officer or employee of the Department of Justice whose duties include representing the United States in a court of law, may carry firearms, subject to such regulations as the Attorney General may prescribe. Such regulations shall provide for training and regular certification in the use of firearms and shall, with respect to justices, judges, bankruptcy judges, magistrate judges, shall be prescribed after consultation with the Judicial Conference of the United States.

(b) CLERICAL AMENDMENT.—The table of sections for such chapter is amended by inserting after the item relating to section 3053 the following:

“3054. Authority of Federal judges and prosecutors to carry firearms

“The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 8 OFFERED BY MR. KING OF IOWA

Mr. KING of Iowa. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

First, Mr. Chairman, I want to thank Chairman SENSENBRENNER and Mr. GOHMIERT for bringing this underlying bill to the floor, H.R. 1751.

My amendment specifically addresses the problem of violence in and around Federal courthouses. The amendment authorizes any Federal judge, magistrate, United States Attorney, or any other officer of the Department of Justice who represents the U.S. in a court of law to carry firearms. They would be subject to training and regulation as prescribed by the Attorney General.

H10104 CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — HOUSE November 9, 2005 murder of family members of U.S. District Judge Jane Lefkow; the slaying of Judge Rowland Barnes, his court reporter, deputy sheriff, and a Federal officer in Atlanta; the cold-blooded shootings outside the Tyler, Texas courthouse, among others. These situations underscore the importance of security for judges and prosecutors.

There is a significant need to allow judges and U.S. Attorneys to carry firearms because threats and dangerous assaults upon them are steadily increasing. By virtue of their positions, United States judges and prosecutors are high-profile targets. They and their families have often been victims of violent crimes, murder, and threats to their personal safety.

United States judges, justices, and U.S. Attorneys bravely serve the people of the United States of America. They prosecute our most serious, sophisticated, and violent offenders. These offenders range from international terrorists to armed career criminals.

Protecting the courthouse is important, Mr. Chairman, but the courthouse is just a building. This amendment is designed to provide meaningful protection to the actual person and his or her family. My amendment extends protection from the courthouse to the homes in the areas where the judges and prosecutors live.

Our Nation relies and depends upon the sound and unintimidated judgment of these dedicated public servants. We owe them every reasonable tool to protect themselves and their families. This includes the right to carry an effective personal security tool.

Mr. Chairman, I urge a “yes” vote on this amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. SCOTT of Virginia. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to claim the balance of my time.

Mr. SCOTT of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. KING).

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. KING of Iowa. Mr. Chairman, on that specific question, I cannot answer “yes” or “no” to it. I am working with a piece of language I believe in, and I have not looked a Federal official in the eye that specifically asked me.

Mr. SCOTT of Virginia. Mr. Chairman, reining my time, it is my understanding that this was a fact their request, in fact, their number one request. Does the gentleman have any evidence or know anything contrary to that?

Mr. KING of Iowa. I have been informed that, yes, we have Federal officials that have asked for this legislation. I would point out that it is not mandatory that they accept carrying a firearm; it is their option that they exercise under the regulation provided by the Attorney General.

Mr. SCOTT of Virginia. Reclaiming my time, I would finally ask, is this the right to carry, subject to training and regulation prescribed by the Attorney General? I yield to the gentleman.

Mr. KING of Iowa. It is subject to training and regulation as prescribed by the Attorney General.

Mr. SENSENBRENNER. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SCOTT of Virginia. I yield to the gentleman from Wisconsin.

Mr. SENSENBRENNER. Mr. Chairman, I appreciate the gentleman yielding. I support the amendment as well, and I understand why Federal officials who are designating the amendment would feel a need for this. As long as it is optional and as long as it requires training and certification, I think that this is an appropriate thing, to empower those Federal officials designated who feel that the need to carry a firearm to be able to do so.

Mr. SCOTT of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The CHAIRMAN. AMENDMENT NO. 3 OFFERED BY SCOTT OF VIRGINIA.

The CHAIRMAN. The pending business is the demand for a recorded vote on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. SCOTT) on which further proceedings were postponed and on which the ayes prevailed by voice vote.

The Clerk will redesignate the amendment.

The Clerk redesignated the amendment.

RECORDED VOTE

The CHAIRMAN. A recorded vote has been demanded.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 97, nays 325, not voting 11, as follows:

MR. SCOTT OF VIRGINIA. Mr. Chairman, reining my time, also, did the Federal officials ask for this new power?

I yield to the gentleman.
Messrs. BRADY of Pennsylvania, GARRETT of New Jersey, GARY G. MILLER of California, RYAN of Wisconsin, MCCaul of Texas, MORAN of Virginia, BUTTERFIELD, UDAALL of New Mexico, Ms. HARRIS, Ms. CORRINE BROWN of Florida, Ms. DeLARUO and Ms. MATSUJI changed their vote from “aye” to “no.”

Mr. UDALL of Colorado and Ms. SOLIS changed their vote from “no” to “aye.”

So the amendment was rejected.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the committee amendment in the nature of a substitute, as amended.

The committee amendment in the nature of a substitute, as amended, was agreed to.

The CHAIRMAN. Under the rule, the Committee rises.

Accordingly, the Committee rose; and the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. TERRY) having assumed the chair, Mr. SIMPSON, Chairman of the Committee of the Whole, reported that the Committee, having had under consideration the bill (H.R. 1751) to amend title 18, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following new item:

“§1351. Profligating and fraud in connection with military actions and disaster relief.”

(a) IN GENERAL.—Chapter 63 of title 18, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following new item:

“§1351. Profligating and fraud in connection with military actions and disaster relief.

shall be fined under subsection (b), imprisoned not more than 30 years, or both.

(b) FINE.—A person convicted of an offense under subsection (a) may be fined the greater of—

(1) $1,000,000; or
(2) if such person derives profits or other proceeds from the offense, not more than 3 times the gross proceeds from the offense.

(b) CERICAL AMENDMENT.—The table of sections at the beginning of chapter 63 of title 18, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following new item:

“§1351. Profligating and fraud in connection with military actions and disaster relief.”

Mr. Higgins. Yes, in its current form, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the motion to recommit.

Mr. HIGGINS. Mr. HIGGINS, Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion to recommit.

Mr. UDALL of Colorado and Ms. SOLIS changed their vote from “aye” to “no.”

Mr. RANGEL (during the reading). The objection was already heard.

Mr. RANGEL, Mr. Speaker, I cannot hear the Chair.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The objection has already been heard.

Mr. RANGEL, I cannot hear the Chair.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The objection has already been heard.

The Clerk continued reading the motion to recommit.

Mr. RANGEL, the objection was not made to dispensing with the reading.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Wisconsin objected to the dispensing of the reading. The Clerk will continue to read.

Mr. RANGEL, Mr. Speaker, my parliamentary inquiry was, could the Chair share with us the reason given by the distinguished objector?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The objection has already been heard.

Mr. RANGEL. I cannot hear the Chair.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The objection has already been heard.

Mr. RANGEL, I cannot hear the Chair.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The objection has already been heard.

Mr. RANGEL, I cannot hear the Chair.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The objection has already been heard.
On that day, we as Americans took a hit, but we stood united and we responded with confidence, blue States and red States, suburban and urban, black and white, rich and poor, together, united. Everyone suffered equally and collectively rebuilt, to sacrifice, to reaffirm boldly what the scum terrorists had tried to destroy. People reached deep within themselves and from the collective heart a supremely compassionate response for ages, a surge of national pride forever. Confidence in public officials and institutions soared.

Today, Mr. Speaker, we are a nation that is stumbling. We have lost our confident and compassionate way. In the wake of Hurricane Katrina, the Federal Government’s response was slow and sluggish, sloppy and uneven. No one took responsibility and there was no leadership. None. Our collective and national compassion was reduced to internal recriminations and rapid-fire impulses. While so-called leaders span blame, the poor, the sick and the strangled continued to suffer. We, as a nation, collectively fell down and hard, and against and away from the greater good that is in all of us.

Mr. Speaker, government-sponsored no-bid contractors at politically motivated firms like Halliburton are exploiting our Nation’s generosity here in America and abroad. In the gulf coast region of this Nation and in the Middle East region of this world, contractors are pillaging the very people whose economic interests we have sent here to protect. In the midst of war and in the aftermath of natural disaster, hundreds of millions in taxpayer-funded relief and recovery are being wasted, squandered, lost forever.

Mr. Speaker, the motion I offer today will impose stiff fines and criminal penalties on contractors who wilfully and knowingly falsify information in order to win approval of government contracts during Presidentially declared emergencies. While in this Chamber the proper role of government is often debated and disputed, one immutable principle is that above all else, our responsibility to each other and to the American people is to protect the Nation from entities who seek to injure and destroy us and from natural disasters that devastate our community.

Mr. Speaker, the motion I offer today at this defining moment in our Nation’s history will either reaffirm the promise of our Nation’s greatness or condemn us from this moment on for failing to live up to our obligations as a nation that deserves and demands only from us fairness and goodness.

Mr. Speaker, I urge all the Members to support this motion to end this culture of corruption.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. SENSENBRENNER. Mr. Speaker, in rise in opposition to the motion to recommit.

Mr. Speaker, I urge all Members to support this motion to end this culture of corruption.

Mr. SENSENBRENNER. Mr. Speaker, this motion is offered by a Member who stated to the Speaker that he is opposed to this bill. He is opposed to providing additional security to judges, to prosecutors, to witnesses, to victims and their family members. He is opposed to a bill that has worked on significantly on a bipartisan basis. And he has stated that he is opposed to doing something where there is a crying need, given the threats and the murders in courthouses all around the country, and not just Federal courthouses but State and local courthouses as well.

Now, what does he propose to do in the motion to recommit? He proposes to add additional criminal penalties for things that are already criminal. And all that does is to confuse juries, to confuse prosecutors, to confuse people who are attempting to do business with the government.

Profitteering in an illegal manner is already criminal under the United States Code. We do not need to confuse the issue with an additional statutes. And we do not need to defeat this bill by this motion that has been offered by several proclaimed opponents of this bill.

The bill is a good one. In order to get it passed and signed into law to protect the judicial branch and those who do business and work for it, vote this silly motion down and pass the bill as has been worked out on a bipartisan basis.

Mr. FARR. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the motion to instruct conferees on the PATRIOT and Terrorism Prevention Reauthorization bill.

This Motion to Instruct would take the most contentious provisions of this bill and sunset them in 4 years. These provisions include section 215, which allows officials to order the surrender of anything when relevant to a terrorist investigation. This section 215 also allows secret wiretap orders without definition of who and where the tap will go, and the “Lone Wolf” provision which allows the government to surveil so-called “agents of a foreign power” who act alone.

Egregious law that robs the civil liberties of abiding Americans should be reviewed sooner than later, therefore I strongly support these sunset provisions proposed in this motion to instruct.

My constituents agree that the American people should not have to compromise their civil liberties in order to combat extremism. The local governments of Pacific Grove, Salinas, Santa Cruz, and Watsonville, CA have all passed resolutions expressing their concerns with the anti-privacy and anti-liberty nature of the PATRIOT Act.

I also would like to note my disappointment that the fiscal year 2006 State-Science-Justice-Commerce Appropriations bill included one of the most invasive provisions of the PATRIOT Act that permits sweeping searches and seizures of library and bookstore patron records, despite this body’s condemnation of the provision earlier this year.

Voices in the Congress echo voices of people across America. I urge a “yea” vote on the motion to instruct.

Mr. HIGGINS. Mr. Speaker, I demand a recorded vote.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion to recommit.

Mr. Speaker, I urge all Members to support this motion. Pursuant to clause 9 of rule XX, the Chair will reduce to 5 minutes the minimum time for any electronic vote on the question of passage.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayeys 201, noes 221, not voting 11, as follows:

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. SENSENBERN. Mr. Speaker, do the House rules not require that the proponent of an unsuccessful motion to recommit, who has stated that he or she is opposed to the bill in its present form, vote against the bill on final passage?

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. TERRY). A Member must state his opposition to the bill in order to qualify to offer a motion to recommit.

Mr. SENSENBERN. Mr. Speaker, further parliamentary inquiry. I noticed that the proponent of the motion to recommit, who stated his opposition, of the bill after the motion to recommit was rejected by the House.

Is that not in violation of the rules?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The positive rule is satisfied when the gentleman states his opposition to the bill and then does not follow up his statement, are not the rules violated or the House misled?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair accepts the gentleman’s statement as final, but it does not bind his vote on passage as a matter of positive rule.

AUTHORIZING THE CLERK TO MAKE CORRECTIONS IN ENGROSSMENT OF H.R. 1751, SECURE ACCESS TO JUSTICE AND COURT PROTECTION ACT OF 2005

Mr. SENSENBERN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that in the engrossment of the bill, H.R. 1751, the Clerk be authorized to make technical corrections and conforming changes to the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Wisconsin?

There was no objection.

SAYING FAREWELL TO HOUSE PARLIAMENTARIAN MUFTIAH MCCARTIN

(Mr. DREIER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, I would like to say to all of us Members of this great institution owe a tremendous debt of gratitude to our Parliamentarian and his staff of Parliamentarians who do a phenomenal job for us.

One of the very best examples of success from those Parliamentarians who work daily to ensure the orderly operation of this great institution is our friend, Muftiah McCartin.

After nearly three decades in the Office of the Parliamentarian, Muftiah is retiring to spend more time with her family. As anyone who has worked with Muftiah can attest, speaking with her is like having a double espresso. She is more aleph, the Chair, but in her own personal life, as the mother of four children, having a spouse, and having to work long hours. As one who has served here as a staffer for six decades and serving with great privilege and honor as Speaker pro tem, I can tell you that Muftiah was certainly a part of that team that really helped us do that.

Then coming into the majority party and serving with great privilege and honor as Speaker pro tem, I can tell you that Muftiah was extraordinary in the work that goes on around here in helping us do the work that we do.
McCartin has managed to raise four wonderful children: Marissa, Elaine, Sandra, and Luke. I'm sure she will welcome spending the extra time with her family and her husband, Terry.

McCartin, today we thank you for your service to this great institution and wish you the very best. You have been a tremendous asset to the work that we do every day. And we will miss you.

Thank you again for your many years of commitment toward making this House of Representatives a better place.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on the 1-minute speech I just offered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

SAYING FAREWELL TO MUFTIAH McCARTIN

(Mr. DeFAZIO asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. DeFAZIO. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor the many years of service of House Parliamentarian Muftiah McCartin, who completes her excellent work in this body later this week. Ms. McCartin joined the Parliamentarian's Office in 1976, and has served during the tenure of six Speakers and six Presidents. In 1991, she became the first woman to be appointed a Parliamentarian.

The minority leader, Ms. Pelosi, is someone who understands the importance of breaking glass ceilings. She had hoped to be here personally to congratulate Muftiah on her outstanding work and her dedication over the many years.

She goes on to say Muftiah always had such a wonderful smile and warm demeanor on the House floor, which I might comment often lacks smiles and warm demeanor. Well, it is warm; sometimes heated. As we know, it can get heated in debate and very partisan, but she has always been a calm and rational person. Ms. McCartin has managed to raise four wonderful children: Marissa, Elaine, Sandra, and Luke, one of whom has the great, good sense to have moved to my congressional district. That is my district, that is correct. I only regret that she trained him too well.

I believe that all of our Parliamentarians aid that in that sometimes we get out of line, Democrats or Republicans, in the spirit of the moment, in the emotion of the moment, and we say something that we regret saying; and it is at that time when all eyes turn to a nonpartisan, objective third party who can say everything is sit down, a little calmness here, let us get through this maze of parliamentary mystery and then get back on the course of civil discussion.

I want to say, Muftiah, thank you for being part of that team and thank you for everything that you are doing. Your job is a profound one, and it is one that should be studied in every civics class in every school at every level of education in America.

And I want to say to my friend from the west coast, who does not always vote green when I vote red and vice versa, we always agree that this is the place where we can come and have good, open debate thanks to people like Muftiah and the Parliamentarians.

Mr. DeFAZIO. Mr. Speaker, reclaiming my time, that is correct. I only regret that she trained him too well.

SPECIAL ORDERS

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. FORTENBERRY). Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 4, 2005, and under a previous order of the House, the following Members will be recognized for 5 minutes each.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. BURTON) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Mr. BURTON of Indiana addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

HONORING THE 106TH TEXAN: MARINE STAFF SERGEANT RUSSELL SLAY

Mr. POE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to claim the time of the gentleman from Indiana.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. POE) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. POE. Mr. Speaker, It has been said that “never in the history of the world have so few sacrificed more for the freedom and liberty of total strangers than the American soldier,” said by Zell Miller about the American fighting men.

I rise today to honor a young American marine from my southeast Texas district, Marine Staff Sergeant Russell Slay, who valiantly served the Nation in Iraq and who died doing so. He was a member of the 2nd Assault Amphibian Battalion of the 2nd Marine Division at Camp Lejeune, North Carolina.

Russell Slay grew up in my hometown of Humble, Texas. As a student at Humble High School, he played football and was in the band. After he graduated from Humble High School, he started working, but quickly realized that he needed something more in his life. His high school friend Jason Tuck er had joined the Marine Corps, and he was trained to drive armored vehicles. He left for his second mission on October 20, 2002, Slay took part in overtaking Fallujah when his armored vehicle was attacked by terrorists.

During his 10-year military career, he was trained to drive armored vehicles that carried combat troops from ships to beachheads during amphibious attacks. During his first tour of Iraq in 2002, Slay took part in overtaking Baghdad. He had been in charge of a section of four armored all-terrain vehicles. He left for his second mission on November 9, 2004.

Upon receiving his orders to report for a second tour in Iraq, Staff Sergeant Slay told his family and friends that he did not think he would make it back. A year ago today, Russell Slay’s perceptive premonition became a reality. He was the 106th Texan member of the Armed Forces to be killed in Iraq. And, by the way, Mr. Speaker, one out of every 10 Americans wearing the uniform today is from the State of Texas. Russell Slay was 28 years old. He died in combat with seven others in Fallujah when his armored vehicle was attacked by terrorists.

His funeral was a moving memorial to him as a devoted father, son, and friend. People paid their respects to a man that was remembered for his engaging spirit and his love of life. Family and friends expressed that Slay was nothing short of spectacular. His sense of humor was contagious. He was a loving, loyal, and dedicated father.

He left behind a 9-year-old daughter, Kinlee, and a 5-year-old son, Walker. At the funeral, Marine Captain Mike Evans read letters that Slay had prepared for his children in anticipation of his death. He told his daughter, Kinlee: “I love you and never knew what life was before you were born. You will always be Daddy’s little girl.” He encouraged her to have the best life possible and to be sure that she went to college.

He said: “Daddy will always be with you and watching out for you. Hugs and kisses. I’ll miss you.”

He also wrote to his son, Walker, and told him that watching him grow up was “like reliving his own youth. He said: “You’re the best little man there ever was. Be a studious son and stay in school. Always be a man. If you make mistakes, stand up and say so.” Russell Slay encouraged his son to have children of his own so he too could feel the joy and happiness that had been brought to him.

He insisted in his letter that his family know how much he loved them, and he wrote: “I promise you my family was my last thought. Don’t mourn for me, but celebrate my life.”

Nine-year-old daughter Kinlee spoke at her father’s funeral, and through tears she talked about playing cars with her dad and brother and shopping at Wal-Mart. She spoke fondly about the weekend family ritual of washing the car.

Charlie Flannigan, who officiated the funeral service, told of Slay’s skills in the band that he and his buddies had created in Iraq. They called it the Texas Trío. He said Russell was not the best athlete, but he sure knew how to play a guitar.

Staff Sergeant Russell Slay in 28 short years had already exhibited a lifetime of bravery and boldness. Mr. Speaker, Thomas Jefferson once said: “From time to time the tree of liberty must be watered with the blood of tyrants and patriots.”

Russell Slay was a true American patriot. Russell Slay died for Americans. He died for Iraqis. He died for freedom.

Staff Sergeant Russell Slay, we will never forget the price you paid for America, and we thank you for devoting your life. You are a true American hero. You make us proud.

So Semper Fi, Staff Sergeant Slay, Semper Fi.

HONORING THE AMERICAN FALLEN IN IRAQ AND AFGHANISTAN

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. EMANUEL) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. EMANUEL. Mr. Speaker, Veterans Day marks the historic signing of the armistice ending World War I. On this date we honor the soldiers, sailors, marines, and aviators who have protected the United States in times of war.

Today, we are again a Nation at war; 2.058 American military personnel have now given their lives fighting in Iraq; 247 Americans have fallen in Afghanistan.

This Veterans Day we must honor those who have served, those who have been wounded, and those who have fallen.

For this reason, I have introduced a resolution, with 73 cosponsors, honoring each of the fallen from Iraq and Afghanistan by name.

I have also led a bipartisan group of 21 Members of Congress in reading the names of the fallen into the Congressional Record. Tonight, we continue this tribute with the names of the most recently fallen, completing all 2,300.

God bless each of the brave Americans, men and women, whose memory we honor tonight; and their families are in our prayers.

Mr. SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. FORTEBNERRY). Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Nebraska (Mr. OSBORNE) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. OSBORNE addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.

HEARINGS TO ADDRESS WASTE, FRAUD, AND ABUSE

Mr. JONES of North Carolina. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that I might speak at this time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the gentleman from North Carolina?

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. JONES) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. JONES of North Carolina. Mr. Speaker, I came to the floor last week and read part of an article that appeared on October 23 in the article by Knight Ridder reporters about the Pentagon program costing taxpayers millions in inflated prices. I came to the floor and I reported that there was some reports that we were paying anywhere from $20 for a plastic ice tray that should cost about 89 cents. In addition, I said that we were paying $29 for coffee makers that you can buy at a retail store for $29. In addition, I said that we were paying for a 5-cubic-foot refrigerator $27,000 that should cost about $3,000 or $4,000, and these are the types of refrigerators that are put on aircraft.

I wanted to report to the House tonight. I am extremely pleased. I wrote a letter to the chairman and ranking member, Chairman DUNCAN HUNTER and Ranking Member ICE SKELTEN, and today we held hearings on this issue of inflated prices. I want to say that the hearing was attended by a fair number of those on the Armed Services Committee.

The witnesses, the Admiral and the Under Secretary that were there present, we were able to ask about these inflated prices. They explained this program that is called the Prime Vendor program. We talked about how it was encouraged by the response of the chairman and the ranking member that next week we are going to bring the prime vendors to the committee to talk about these inflated prices.

Mr. Speaker, as I said today on the Armed Services Committee, there is one thing that the American people, maybe they do not follow us when we talk about deficits and debt and some of these other issues that are very important to the future of this Nation; but there is one thing they know, that if you are paying $20 for a plastic ice cube tray that you can buy for 89 cents, they know that is not right. I also said to those on the panel today that when you are paying $24,000 or $25,000 for a 5-cubic-foot refrigerator, the taxpayers know that is not a wise investment as well.

So tonight I want to give credit to the chairman and the ranking member of the Armed Services Committee, I want to give credit to the Admiral and the Under Secretary for the leadership and for the hearings that we had.

IRAQ AND THE 250TH MILITARY INTELLIGENCE BATTALION

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from California (Ms. WOOLSEY) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. WOOLSEY. Mr. Speaker, usually, when I speak on this House floor each evening, I voice my concern about some of the Bush administration's woeful policies in Iraq. Trust me, there is no shortage of material to speak about.

But tonight I want to boast a little bit about what I just saw today. I am here to represent the 250th Military Intelligence Battalion, an Army unit that returned home from Iraq today. They returned home to Marin County, just north of the Golden Gate Bridge in California's Sixth Congressional District.

I had the great pleasure to meet and enjoy dinner with the members of the 250th battalion this past September during my visit to Iraq. Their vigilance and dedication to the welfare of the United States is admirable. Everything they do, they do to serve their country. And I could not be more proud to represent them as their voice in Congress. They are truly American heroes.

Unfortunately, this is another example of the Pentagon's wastefulness and this battalion and other military units that have served or are currently serving in Iraq have not always gotten the treatment they deserve from their government. Far too often, the Bush administration has failed to live up to its promise to the troops, whether it is denying them full veterans' benefits, sending them on second, third, and now fourth deployments to Iraq and/or Afghanistan, or failing to provide them with the life-saving body armor or equipment that they need. One thing is clear: This administration has failed our troops time and again.

Sadly, the hundreds of thousands of soldiers who have been deployed to Iraq, and their families, were not the only ones affected by the war in Iraq. That is because just about every single American will suffer from the billions of dollars in budget cuts to important domestic programs since the U.S. invaded Iraq. These budget cuts are directly related to not only the tax cuts for the wealthiest among us, but also to the ludicrous spending for the military misadventures around the world.
of the civilian leadership, with the White House, the Pentagon, and this Congress making decisions that cost our country billions, in fact, $1 billion a week, actually. Anyone who thinks that the more than $200 billion that Congress has allocated for the Iraq war so far has not affected important domestic programs is just kidding himself or herself.

In the last example and the very latest example, tomorrow, the House will vote on a reconciliation bill that would give the wealth of $1 billion to $100 billion in tax breaks, while slashing safety net programs for the poor, programs like Medicaid, student loans, child support enforcement, and veterans' health care. This is just wrong.

If he wants to get things right, President Bush and his administration would actually send a clear message that it has let the American people down, and now it is time to start anew. First and foremost, that means leaving Iraq.

After all, the President's notion that we are fighting the terrorists in Iraq so we will not have to fight them here at home is pure nonsense. If that were true, how could the President explain the London subway bombings earlier this year? How could he explain the terrible bombs that went off at three hotels in Jordan earlier today, already, killing over 50 people and wounding more than 100?

Mr. Speaker, our troops and the American people have endured enough sacrifice. We need to end this war and bring our fine soldiers home. We need to give Iraq back to the Iraqi people through a range of economic, political, and humanitarian partnerships.

The American people deserve better than a war that has destroyed the social safety net here at home, and the extraordinary men and women whom I met in Iraq certainly deserve better. In return for their unfailing loyalty, they deserve basic competence and integrity from their Federal Government. They deserve leaders as courageous as they are.

Mr. GINGREY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to encourage all Americans to take the time to prepare an advance directive. November is National Hospice and Palliative Care Month, and this month should serve as a reminder for individuals to take the time to discuss with their loved ones important end-of-life and medical decisions.

As people discuss their end-of-life health care wishes, there are two legal documents that can help. The first is a living will. Living wills are probably the most familiar of the advance directive documents to aid individuals in communicating their wishes.

However, Mr. Speaker, today I would like to draw the attention of the American public to a different type of advance directive, a medical power of attorney. A medical power of attorney, or health care proxy, allows you to appoint a person whom you trust to serve as your health care agent.

Each State government has a medical power of attorney form that an individual can fill out and have witnessed. This then authorizes the appointed agent to make health care decisions on an individual's behalf. Mr. Speaker, people should not be scared away by these forms; they are written in plain English, and they are very easy to fill out.

I have brought with me an example from my home State of Georgia in order to illustrate how easy this process can be for the American public. The form is simple and straightforward, and is only 6 pages long. I have highlighted two sections for us to look at today.

First is the portion where you identify yourself and then name your power of attorney, and I call my colleagues' attention to the first poster. It be a little bit difficult to read from the back of the Chamber but basically, Georgia's statutory short form durable power of attorney for health care. And the instructions, again, pretty simple. Print the date, print your name and address, print the name and address of your agent. It is that simple. This authorizes the individual to act for you and, as my colleagues can see, in Georgia, you have the opportunity to initial the statement also. This is the second poster, Mr. Speaker, to check the box really that best reflects your wishes, and there are three. It is just a simple, initial process.

The first one is, I do not want my life to be prolonged, nor do I want life-sustaining or death-delaying treatment, et cetera.

The second check box: I want my life to be prolonged, and I want life-sustaining or death-delaying treatment to be provided, under certain circumstances.

And then the last box, and again, a simple check: I want my life to be prolonged to the greatest extent possible without regard to my condition, the chances I have for recovery, or the cost of the procedure. It is as simple as that.

In addition to State government and public health departments, many organizations and hospitals around the country have advance directives available for patients and loved ones who may find themselves facing these tough decisions.

Mr. Speaker, executing living wills and powers of attorney are so important, I plan to introduce legislation next week that encourages all Americans at all stages of life to prepare these advance directives. My legislation will offer a one-time, refundable tax credit to those individuals who prepare an advance directive.

The refundability of this tax credit is essential in incentivizing lower-income Americans, who often are unaware or unable to adequately prepare for end-of-life medical decisions, to prepare advance directives to ensure that their wishes are honored and valuable health care resources are used where they are needed and wanted.

Mr. Speaker, it has been shown that medical care at the end of life consumes almost 15 percent of our country's health care budget and nearly 30 percent of the Medicare budget. In addition, according to an article in the Journal of the American Medical Association, it has been estimated that hospice care and advance directives can save between 25 and 40 percent of health care costs just during the last month of life.

Mr. Speaker, the Federal Government needs to provide an incentive to the American people to have these conversations and to take these important actions. It is not only in the best interests of patients and families, but also our country's health care system and the American taxpayer.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to encourage my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to join me in cosponsoring this important piece of legislation.

FISCAL RESPONSIBILITY

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. DeFazio) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. DeFazio. Mr. Speaker, there seems to be a new-found sense of fiscal responsibility on the Republican majority side of the aisle. There should be.

Last year, the fiscal year was a record deficit, nearly $600 billion. Not only did the United States of America borrow over $400 billion from investors, and a great deal from China and other foreign interests, they also borrowed the entire Social Security trust fund surplus for the year, about $180 billion, money that was intended to pay for future benefits for Social Security retirees to ensure that those benefits would be there to pay for the looming retirement of the baby boomers.

Mr. Speaker, $180 billion extracted only from people who earn salary and wages and earn less than $90,000 a year was borrowed and spent. Some of it was... spent to give tax refunds to profitable corporations, some of it was spent to give huge new tax breaks to people who earn over $300,000, and some of it was spent on other Federal Government purposes.

Now, they are projecting that the first quarter next year, we will borrow more money in one quarter than any quarter in the history of the United States of America. So they may have more than doubled the Federal debt in 5 short years. George Bush said it is just an illusion. It is not true. It is just another move by the arrogant majority, thinking that America is not watching. Well, I think America is beginning to pay attention; and I urge my colleagues to oppose this mean-spirited, short-sighted legislation. Assume fiscal responsibility, reimpose tax fairness for this country, and let us give a fair deal to the American people.

Likewise, the United States of America. Now, what are they doing about it? Well, they are bringing up with great fanfare a bill tomorrow called the reconciliation bill, $53.9 billion of supposed new income or cuts and programs. There are some real cuts. There are real cuts that will hit hard at middle-income and struggling families. The biggest cuts are to the student loan programs, $14.3 billion, adding about 6,000 bucks to the average kid’s public school 4-year cost with new interest charges, and high front-end charges. Cuts in foster care, cuts in long-term care. This is the family values side of the aisle over here, they like to claim, remember. And many other vital Federal programs.

And then they are assuming some phony revenues, 50 times as much per acre to lease out the Alaska National Wildlife Refuge with unknown reserves, as we just got a few months ago for the naval petroleum reserve with known reserve closer to the pipeline. So phony baloney and mean cuts. But that is not even the end of the story. They are going to follow these mean cuts and the phony baloney with $70 billion in real cuts to the richest among us, predominantly weighted toward those who earn over $300,000 a year, particularly toward those who earn over a $1.2 million a year. They are averaging $120,000 a year in tax cuts now. Under their proposal, it will be even more generous, and that is because those wealthy people, also their contributors, are going to trickle down on the rest of us and bring new prosperity to America and wipe out the deficits with that new prosperity.

After all, when we wax their yachts, when we cut their lawns, when we do other things that they will employ us to do when they are not spending the money overseas or on luxury items produced overseas that will bring jobs to America. As they say famously on that side, they never saw a poor person give anybody a job. No, those poor people are doing the work and paying taxes, unlike the rich people who they are favoring and showering money upon, and they are borrowing money and taking money from programs that are important to middle-income and poor people to give to the rich people.

Trickle down economics. And in the end, guess what? They are actually going to increase the deficit of the United States and the deficit in the first quarter next year, we will borrow more money in one quarter than any quarter in the history of the United States of America. So they maybe give huge new tax breaks to people who earn over $300,000, and some of it was spent to give tax refunds to profitable corporations, some of it was spent to give huge new tax breaks to people who earn over $300,000, and some of it was spent on other Federal Government purposes.

Now, they are projecting that the first quarter next year, we will borrow more money in one quarter than any quarter in the history of the United States of America. So they may have more than doubled the Federal debt in 5 short years.

Mr. Speaker, it would not be saying too much to say we need to rebuild some confidence in America. If we can cut some red tape then I think we can take care of the average American’s needs. Where the President says, Mr. Secretary, you need to have a plan. Do not let the local people have to come up with a plan. And the Secretary does have a plan. But he said, local activities are going to be important as well. You do not need the Secretary of HHS telling every school district across the country when they can and cannot open their doors.

I could not agree with him more. Mr. Speaker, we need to modernize some of our Federal programs. We are using tin-can telephones when the rest of the world is using satellite communications, and it is not right. We need to reform government. We need to set priorities. And sometimes that means making some tough choices. Certainly, Mr. Speaker, we need to learn from the past, learn from the past, whether it be the Spanish flu outbreak of 1918, learn from the past of previous wars this country has fought; but along those same lines, we must ensure that the information from the past to plan for our future.

Now, Mr. Speaker, a few weeks ago, 2 weeks ago, my committee, the Committee on Energy and Commerce, spent 3 days, 3 days on a markup to produce a plan, a plan that reforms government and leads to greater value for dollars spent, particularly in the Medicaid program. We held hearings through the spring and the summer leading up to this legislation. We heard from Members; leaders of the National Governors Association, a body of 35 bipartisan Governors in this country, who came to us with a set of principles and said we had a lot of ideas that we put out on the table, but here are seven things that everyone of us, 35 out of 35 agreed upon.

And, Mr. Speaker, we crafted legislation that incorporated at least six of those seven principles. We left out some judicial reforms that I would have liked to have seen in the bill, but maybe that is for another day. But those other reforms were crafted in legislation and then we spent 3 days, 3 days on the Committee of Energy and Commerce talking about that.

Mr. Speaker, at the end of the day, I think we have crafted a legislation that is going to save Medicaid for the poor, the truly infirm, the people that really need it in this country. The default position was to do more and more people turned off the Medicaid roles by the States as they could know longer afford to keep up with the expenditures in Medicaid. So we are going to provide more services. And maybe we are going to deliver a little greater value. And, Mr. Speaker, if that means that a few dollars are saved in the process, well, I am all for that.

But consider the numbers involved here. Medicaid, with no reform, is going to grow at a rate of 7.3 percent over the next 5 years. With the reforms we put in place, Medicaid is going to grow at a rate of 7 percent over the next 5 years. We are talking about a miniscule amount of savings by adding some reforms to a program as it exists today. As a consequence, more patients will be served by this program.

Now, Mr. Speaker, I know, because I sat in that markup for 3 days, I know right now it is popular to vilify the productive segment of American society. I have heard it done from every angle. There is angst, genuine angst over reinvesting in the productive segment of American society. We hear it all the time, why $55 billion was given to people who really do not need it.

But Mr. Speaker, there are the taxpayers. Those are the people who create the jobs, I know, because I was one three short years ago. That 36 percent tax rate I paid on my business allowed me to employ 50 people in my town of Lewisville, Texas. It allowed me to purchase equipment for my practice. But what do we hear out of the other side? They want that $55 billion back, but that $55 billion that we reinvested produced $202 billion for the American Treasury this year in additional tax revenue. So they would have to double the tax and double it again to even approach the amount of money.

Well, this is the default position on the other side. This fall is not the time for Democrats to roll out positive agenda, said a House Democrat aide. That is a shame. We need their ideas. We need their enthusiasm. We need their energy. I look forward to this debate tomorrow. I think at the end of the day we are going to have a good product for the American people.

Mr. McDermott. Mr. Speaker, who needs the first amendment when we have the Republican Party? Their view is that the American people just do not need to know what their government is doing in their name. We just do not need to know that this country now has secret CIA-run prisons all around the world where prisoners are sent or sentenced because they get no representation. After all, Dick Cheney, our President of foreign policy, supports us looking and acting like Cold War countries. We do not have any skills in building facilities to be ashamed of, so we rent those old Cold War prison camps in places where people went in and were never heard from again.

Republican leaders just do not think this is the kind of information the American people need to know. After all, we might talk about it. Someone might write about it. Someone might question why we want to behave like the Cold War again. But this time, we are on the other side. The American people would not know any of this except for The Washington Post reporting about prisoners and policies that sound more like the enemy than the good guys.

(Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

WHO NEEDS THE FIRST AMENDMENT?

Mr. McDermott. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to addres the House for 5 minutes out of order.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Washington?

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Washington (Mr. McDermott) is recognized for 5 minutes.
Republicans have recommended the termination of 98 inefficient and duplicative programs which would bring American taxpayers a savings of more than $13 billion. Yet the Democrats continue to obstruct while singing the tax-and-spend tune. It is time to change our course.

The American people have repeatedly rallied against more taxes and more spending. It is time we listen to their song.

FI FTH ANNIVERSARY OF THE VETERANS HISTORY PROJECT

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. KIND) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. KIND. Mr. Speaker, this year marks the 30th anniversary of the end of Vietnam War and the 60th anniversary of the end of Second World War. It also marks the fifth anniversary of the Veterans History Project.

Five years ago Congress unanimously passed legislation that I authored creating the Veterans History Project. It was ushered through Congress with the help of Representative Amo Houghton, the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER), and Senators CLELAND and HAGEL.

The idea behind the project is simple: to collect, preserve and share with current and future generations the stories and history of American veterans and those who supported them on the home front. The project spans from World War I to the present, covering both World Wars, the Korean War, the Vietnam War, the Gulf War and the current conflicts in Afghanistan and Iraq.

It acts as both a learning tool and a living memorial to our Nation’s veterans. Since its inception in 2000, the Veterans History Project’s success has far exceeded our expectations. Despite modest funding, the Veterans History Project has an ever-increasing collection with more than 40,000 histories contributed by America’s veterans, making it the largest oral history collection in the world today. Each story is unique, but taken together as a whole, the compilation puts a familiar face on the universal realities of war, courage and fear, horror and exhilaration, sorrow and triumph.

These collections include oral interviews, written, audio and video recordings, and authentic diaries, maps, letters, and photographs. Thanks to the dedicated staff at the Library of Congress, where it is being housed, and the thousands of contributions from our many veterans across the country, the Veterans History Project has captured the American spirit better than any history book ever could.

The project also provides a way for local veterans to connect with students, community groups and each other. Country teachers have used the project as an eye-opening history lesson for their students. Veterans have been able to meet with classes, sharing their experiences with students and having their stories recorded as part of the project.

Two of the biggest supporters of the Veterans History Project in my congressional district are Bill Bruning, a veteran and Patriotic Officer for American Legion Post 52 in LaCrosse, Wisconsin, and Karen Schoenfeld. Karen teaches at a charter school in LaCrosse and includes the Veterans History Project in her class. Inspired by the veterans she and her class have met as part of the project, Karen wrote this beautiful poem, which I would like to share. It is entitled “I Never Saw Your Face.”

“I never saw your face before, I never knew your name. But now our paths have crossed, and I will never be the same.

“I never saw the flag before. Not really, not its soul. I only saw the stars, the stripes, a fabric on a pole.

“Now as I gaze upon our flag, I can see young faces, all called away from our proud land to other distant places.

“They did what they were called to do. They put their dreams on hold. They knew that others needed them. They did what they were told.

“And you, my friend, have taught me this, the sacrifices made. You helped me know what I have earned from the price that others paid.

“I’ve been in class, I’ve read the books. I’ve seen the movies, too. But now I know our freedom’s price, all this I’ve learned from you.”

This beautiful poem is a testament to the power this project has had in educating Americans about our bravest men and women.

The Veterans History Project is a salute and an ongoing memorial to these many brave individuals who have sacrificed to protect the ideals of this great Nation and those who continue that proud tradition of service today.

On this Veterans Day, I invite my colleagues in Congress, as well as all Americans, to participate in this nationwide effort to honor our veterans. Anyone can contact their Representative’s or Senator’s office for more information on the Veterans History Project, or you can contact the Library of Congress through their Web site at loc.gov.

On this Veterans Day we may all take time to thank the veterans in our life, perhaps do an oral history interview with them or find some other way to show them our gratitude.

May God bless our men and women in uniform wherever they may be serving our country today. May God bless our veterans and their families and may God continue to bless these United States of America.

THE RIGHT PRIORITIES FOR AMERICA

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. WYNN) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. WYNN. Mr. Speaker, after claiming that they believe in fiscal responsibility and balanced budgets, the Republicans in their years of control in Washington have created the deepest budget deficits in American history and spiraling national debt.

Now, after abandoning fiscal responsibility and borrowing to pay for tax cuts and to reconstruct Baghdad, Republicans say they must cut programs that primarily serve disadvantaged Americans in order to pay for reconstructing the Katrina-leveled gulf region. No other emergency funding required offsets.

They claim that they are going to get tough on Federal spending through the budget reconciliation process. Where they propose a cut over $50 billion. They are getting tough all right, tough on the weak and needy, because this is where the cutting will be done: $10 billion in Medicaid cuts to health services for poor children and long-term care patients, and increasing the costs of prescription drugs for those beneficiaries; $844 million in food stamp cuts, eliminating nutrition and school lunch and breakfast benefits for hundreds of thousands of families and children; $14 billion in cuts to student aid programs, raising the costs of college for students and their families through the increased interest rates and loan fees. And it cuts all discretionary spending programs, such as veterans’ health care, by a 2 percent across-the-board.

I listened to some of my Republican friends yesterday who likened the increased spending to increasing a child’s allowance, but the analogy does not work. These cuts are not the same as taking away an allowance which a parent has given a child for good behavior. They add more burden to the family. They take away spending programs which serve the poor—food stamps, housing assistance, health care, education, grants to states, child care, meals, not taking them to the doctor.
denying them college tuition, and then the parents borrowing for a vacation and having the child have to pay for it out of their allowance.

Many reports and the Washington Post even in an editorial last month pointed out the Republican Katrina budget plan would add to the deficit, not reduce it, because the required spending cuts do not come close to paying for the at least $70 billion in new tax cuts provided for in the budget, cuts that mostly benefit the wealthiest Americans and that eventually remain sacrosanct no matter what other expenses pile up.

I think the American public needs to know what the Congressional Budget Office said about some of those cuts. That office said last Thursday that the House Medicaid cuts would save more than $30 billion over 10 years. However, that office, the Congressional Budget Office, also pointed out that these savings will not come from the premiums and copays the Republicans say will create the savings, but they will come because those cuts would keep our must vulnerable communities and residents out of the health care system.

Many of those people dropped would be the poor poor. The majority of those dropped, like those in Tennessee like I visited with last week, would be African American and other minorities. But there will be large numbers of people with disabilities, children, people living in our rural areas and the poor of every race, ethnicity and nationality.

So instead of closing the health care disparity gap, which causes close to 100,000 premature, preventable deaths in this country every year, this body, should it pass the Republican budget package, would by that act be increasing those deaths and continuing the health care inequality which the Reverend Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., called the most shocking and inhuman of all.

The poor folks, the folks in our rural areas, people with disabilities, seniors, people of color, immigrants, and our children should not be made to carry the burden of the war and pay for the luxuries of the rich. At the same time the Republicans are proposing such spending cuts, they are preparing to move forward with $106 billion in additional tax cuts this year that will largely benefit the wealthy.

Will we save money? No. The net result of the GOP budget plan is $100 billion of debt over the next 5 years.

As I said to my American Legion this past weekend, America is being transformed by the actions of this administration and this Congress into a country I do not recognize, one that has gone far astray from the values and principles on which it was founded and on which this United States became the leader of the free world. What this budget plan will do and what it says about this country is not what they fought for and laid their lives on the line for. It dishonors their service and that of the men and women who are fighting for this Nation even today.

So it is my hope and prayer that my friends on the other side of the aisle will abandon the irresponsible and heartless budget plan. Now is not the time to cut programs that are vital to the victims of Hurricanes Katrina and Rita and to our most vulnerable citizens who, like those victims, also face smaller but just as devastating socioeconomic hurricanes every day, while they have cut taxes for the most fortunate and wealthiest Americans.

These are not the actions of a people who value life as Americans do. These are not the right priorities for our country.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from Florida (Ms. CORRINE BROWN) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Ms. CORRINE BROWN of Florida addressed the House. Her remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

CUTS AND BLOOD

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. DAVIS) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. DAVIS of Illinois. Mr. Speaker, since Hurricane Katrina and Rita and the budget reconciliation talks began, practically all that we have heard in this House about budget cuts have been cut, cut, cut, and cut. And of course, Mr. Speaker, where I come from in Chicago, if all that you do is cut, cut and cut, all that you get is blood, blood, and more blood. And, of course, the blood will be on the hands of those who have the knife.

Much of the debate in this House during the past 2 months has been around the majority’s proposal to cut mandatory programs by $35 to $50 billion over the next 5 years. Just the idea of some of these Draconian measures is enough to send chills up and down one’s spine because we are talking about programs that provide basic assistance to vulnerable, low-income families and individuals.

In essence and in reality, we are talking about Robin Hood in reverse; that is, take from the poor and give to the rich. We are talking about programs that provide help to people with disabilities, people who make use of the earned income tax credit, people who use Supplemental Security Income programs, Temporary Assistance to Needy Families and individuals who are indeed elderly.

Food stamps, unimaginable. I mean, how can you think of cutting food stamps, with all of the individuals who are homeless, hungry, in many instances hopeless and helpless, individuals who are unemployed, laid off from their jobs and having difficulties with acquiring the basic necessities to sustain life.

Mr. Speaker, I am strongly in favor of our government operating on sound fiscal policies. I am in favor of reducing the deficit to the extent prudent and possible. I am in favor of rebuilding the areas damaged by Katrina and Rita, but I am not in favor of continuing to throw money away on a war that we never should have been in in the first place. I am not in favor of giving huge tax breaks and cuts to the wealthiest 1 percent of the population. I am in favor of budget reconciliation, but not on the backs of the poor, needy, and most vulnerable sectors of our society.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I could do nothing less than oppose. As a matter of fact, it would be a dereliction of my duty and responsibility if I were to vote for the Budget Reconciliation Act that is before us. I will vote prudently and sensibly.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. FITZPATRICK of Pennsylvania). Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from California (Ms. WATERS) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Ms. WATERS addressed the House. Her remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

DEFLICT REDUCTION ACT OF 2005

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker’s announced policy of January 4, 2005, the gentlewoman from Tennessee (Mrs. BLACKBURN) is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the majority leader.

Mrs. BLACKBURN. Mr. Speaker, you know, there is an age-old drama that Americans have seen play out time and time again here in Washington, and I
Mr. Speaker, this legislation is a good, solid plan from the Republican leadership. It is a plan that will put this government on track to reform; and in the end, the goal is to yield a savings for the American taxpayer.

The bill that my colleagues are going to join me in discussing tonight is finding $53.9 billion in spending reductions over the next several years in a $2.4 trillion-a-year budget. Mr. Speaker, I want everybody at home to hear that: $53.9 billion, that is billion with a B, in savings, over several years of a yearly budget of $2.4 trillion, and that is trillion with a T.

Mr. Speaker, we are not asking a lot. In fact, we should be asking for a whole lot more. The constituents in my seventh district of Tennessee want to see us reduce Federal spending more. They want to see more of these programs that have outlived their usefulness put on the table, reviewed, put into sunset, deauthorized, scaled down, or taken away.

But I will tell you, I think that for many of the Democrats what we are proposing is too much. They cannot believe it. They do not think we are going to talk some about why we need to reform this government and why we need to make these spending reductions.

At this time, I would like to yield to one of my colleagues who has joined us. The gentleman from Georgia (Mr. Gingrey) is going to join us and talk for a few minutes about Medicaid. We are hearing so much about Medicaid. We have heard the left say that we are slashing it, that we are cutting it; and I think you know what, in spite of all this talk, Medicaid will grow. We are not talking about cuts. We are talking about reducing spending, and I yield to the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. Gingrey).

Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the gentleman from Tennessee for yielding, and I do want to speak a little bit about the Medicaid program.

The gentleman from Tennessee and I have had with their Medicaid program and TennCare, the cutbacks that have been necessary, she understands as well as anybody how important it is to make sure that these programs work the way they were intended to work. Mr. Speaker,

As the gentleman from Tennessee (Mrs. Blackburn) points out, we are not talking about cutting anything. We are talking about reforming government. If a medical majority has a plan to reform government, to effect savings for our taxpayers and to spend their money wisely and efficiently and to spend it for those who have the need and to eliminate all this waste, fraud, and abuse that is so rampant in government and certainly in the Medicaid program.

But as the gentleman from Tennessee (Mrs. Blackburn) points out, this is no cut. The reduction in the growth rate is what we are talking about, Mr. Speaker. Medicaid, over the last 5 years and in this current fiscal year, is growing at 7.3 percent a year, 7.3 percent a year growth rate. So we have in this plan to cut that growth rate by three-tenths of 1 percent, cut it from 7.3 percent to 7 percent over the next 5 years.

Today, in fiscal year 2006, before this cut, we are spending $260 billion with a B on the Federal part of Medicaid. Over a 5-year period, in 2010, because of that 7 percent rate of growth, we will be spending $260 billion. So our colleagues on the other side, they want to say, oh, you are cutting, you are cutting to the bone. They are taking away, they call it Robin Hood taking away from the poor and giving to the rich.

This program, Mr. Speaker, will continue to grow at a healthy 7 percent rate, but we are talking about cutting waste, fraud, and abuse. Yes, we are going to cut that. We are going to cut out this situation where people are gaming the system and it happens. It happens in every State, including my own.

What is so tragic about that is that then you end up taking money away from those people, those pregnant women, those young children, those aged and infirm that really, really need our help. With this help, with these savings that we can effect, that is who the help will go to, exactly where it is needed.

I want to take a little time to explain one thing that I think is so important that my colleagues and anybody who might be listening to these proceedings tonight understands very clearly.

With long-term care in this country, we have a huge problem; and it is shocking when you find out that probably 70 percent of nursing home care is paid for with Medicaid dollars. Some of those people who are in long-term care facilities, a skilled nursing home is what I am referring to, they clearly are low income. They do not have the financial wherewithal once their Medicare benefit runs out, and it does pretty quickly; and they need to have that Medicaid benefit.

But 70 percent of all expenditures for skilled nursing home care is coming out of the Medicaid program. Something is wrong with that, and what it is is people and maybe it is not the individual so much as a smart lawyer figuring out a way to game the system.

So in this reform, Mr. Speaker, we are saying that if a person, an individual, has more than $500,000, I believe that is a half a million if my math is correct, if an individual has more than $500,000 equity in their home, then they are not going to be eligible for Medicaid to pick up the tab for nursing home care.

What is happening, and we are going to eliminate this, is that families, and I guess in a way I can understand their thinking, but it is just not right, they do not think about the fact that it is taking needed dollars away from people that really need this benefit.

As an example, say mom or dad needs to go into a nursing home, a skilled... nursing home, and is going to be there for a long time. They may have $750,000 in equity in their home. So all of a sudden they figure out a way to transfer the ownership to a son or a daughter or a first cousin and let mom or dad rent the house and live in the house or pay out of their Social Security check.

That is totally wrong. I think my colleagues understand that, and I think the American people understand that.

So it is not talking about cutting benefits to people that really need them. We are trying to make sure that in this reform we get the dollars where they need to be. That is really what it is all about, cutting out waste, fraud, and abuse; and spending the money efficiently and effectively. That is what we are doing.

I really appreciate the gentleman from Tennessee for leading this hour and giving me the opportunity to talk about this. I have spent 30 years practicing medicine and seeing some of these patients and writing prescriptions for those who need that Medicaid benefit. So I know how important it is to do it the right way, and I commend my leadership in the Republican majority for facing up to the problem we have.

I can remember, and I will say this in closing, Mr. Speaker, when we were trying to make some sense in solvency to the Social Security program for our needy seniors, the other side of the aisle said, Well, you know, you do not need to be doing this because the need is in Medicare and Medicaid. It is going to run out of money much quicker; you need to reform that. Why are you all spending your time on Social Security?

So here Social Security seems to have been pushed off to the Social Security program for our needy seniors, the other side of the aisle said, Well, you know, you do not need to be doing this because the need is in Medicare and Medicaid. It is going to run out of money much quicker; you need to reform that. Why are you all spending your time on Social Security?

So here Social Security seems to have been pushed off to the Social Security program for our needy seniors, the other side of the aisle said, Well, you know, you do not need to be doing this because the need is in Medicare and Medicaid. It is going to run out of money much quicker; you need to reform that. Why are you all spending your time on Social Security?

Every one of our 50 States is suffering. Governor Huckabee, Republican Governor from Arkansas, and Governor Warner, Democratic Governor from Virginia, wrote to me with a bipartisan governors’ report that we need to do this. So this is what we are talking about.

And with that, I will yield back to the gentleman from Tennessee.

Mrs. BLACKBURN. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for his comments, and he is exactly right. Medicaid needed reforms that would address some of the waste, fraud and abuse; reforms that would make the process quicker; procedures of the delivery of the program. Once we go through achieving these efficiencies, there will be individuals who truly need it, who will see a better delivery of service.

The last thing I want to say is that the governors, the bipartisan National Governors Association, have asked us to make. They are things we have worked with them on, and we are pleased to bring forward the type of reforms that will yield the efficiencies that are needed.

Mr. Speaker, another colleague who is joining us this evening is the gentleman from Tennessee (Mr. WAMP), another member of my delegation who is a member of the Appropriations Committee. He has brought wisdom and expertise to the appropriations process and being certain that we are wise stewards of the taxpayers’ dollars.

I yield to Mr. WAMP out of Chattanooga, who is going to talk with us for a few moments about the work they have done in the Appropriations Committee as we work toward a Deficit Reduction Act that is going to help put us on track to achieve savings for the American people through the reform process.

Mr. WAMP. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman for yielding to me and for her leadership and for all my colleagues on the floor tonight. I am encouraged as a member of the class of 1994, the class that came in with the new majority for the first time in 40 years, to see the passion and the focus and the determination that we now see again in the House as it works with the Senate and the president for reform that actually brought us here years ago. You can feel it every day here building steam, because the American people demand it, and we are carrying out an agenda now of reform and responsibility.

Interesting for me, I do not come to the House floor to speak much except for specific legislation, but today you kind of hear mixed messages on the minority side. Half of them say, you are spending too much and the other half says we are not spending enough. What we see over here now is a very consistent message that we cannot spend this much, that we have an $8 trillion dog.

Now, when we first came in in 1995 in the new class, our goal was to hold the growth of spending below inflation and let the economy grow, it was strong, so that revenues would surpass expenditures. And that happened and the budget got balanced. Seems like a long time ago, but it happened. For 3 consecutive years we held the growth of government spending below inflation, below the family’s budget growth; and then revenues passed expenses.

Then we were dealt a difficult hand. September 11 happened, challenges beyond our control, and spending escalated. And for several years in a row, it averaged 6 percent growth per year in discretionary spending, which was twice inflation, and it started slipping away.

Sometimes it is easy to forget when something like Katrina happens, what was going on before Katrina hit, but we need to think back. I remember this spring I put out a press release after the House passed the budget and we then passed our 602(b) allocations for the appropriation bills to match that budget. I put out a press release that said, this is the most austere budget in the 11 years I have been in Congress, because it deals with the processes and procedures of the delivery of the program. It would deal with the processes and procedures of the delivery of the program. So this is what we are talking about.

When my wife, sweet Kim, was born in 1964, two-thirds of all Federal spending was appropriated by the Congress with annual oversight, and one-third was mandatory, which is really made up of Medicare and Medicaid and pensions, mandatory spending programs, things that are fixed by previous law. And unless the Congress acts again, they automatically go out. They are indexed to inflation. People either qualify for them or they do not, but they automatically get the money. In 1964, that was one-third of all spending and appropriations was two-thirds.

Today, it is the other way around: Two-thirds is mandatory and one-third discretionary. And if you take out national security and homeland security, the part of the discretionary budget that is left is only one-eighth of the $2.4 trillion annual budget that the gentlewoman referred to. So discretionary spending is now a small portion of it.

That is why it is so important to have this budget reduction act. Because the mandatory spending is where fraud and abuse and waste creeps in, because things are automatic and they do not annually oversee it. It sets in, and people back home do not like it when people are cheating the government. But if we fail to act and they win, the status quo has prevailed and it gets worse.

When we act, they say you are mean and cruel, but the people want us to tighten the belt of government, which creates efficiency. Any government that has to tighten the belt will become more efficient because somebody has got their fingers on the buttons to make it more efficient to live with what they have.

We have done well on discretionary spending, but we can do more and we will do more. But I come as a member of the Appropriations Committee to say that this majority is doing it. We are doing it like we were when we got here, again with vigor and commitment. I am excited.

We have just been joined by another member of my class, and he was shaking his head as he walked across the floor, because he can feel it. He knows it. We are focused on being responsible and reforming this government so that it works better and so that people can see us acting on what they would like to see us do.

So I thank all of my colleagues that have come to the floor tonight, and the gentlewoman for hosting this hour. It is important that we unite and we bring people to this most important cause at this critical time. And I yield back to her.

Mrs. BLACKBURN. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman from Tennessee for his wise words and for joining us in this debate and reminding us we do hear a lot of rhetoric, as he mentioned. We have the Blue Dogs from the Democrat side, who have been coming to the floor demanding spending increases. Suddenly they are not so fiscally conservative.

Well, it is like the story I used to read to my children, the Three Little Bears. It is almost as if you have to have just right. Just right. And they are going to let the perfect be the enemy of the good, because these are good, solid reductions and a good, solid plan for moving forward, a great first step.

As we have worked through this process, we have heard from the gentlewoman from Virginia several times in regard to military issues and veterans’ issues. She has such a heart for this and works so diligently on these issues, so at this time I yield to the gentlewoman from Virginia (Mrs. DRAKE) to set the record straight about the appropriations and the funding for our veterans’ programs.

Mrs. DRAKE. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman from Tennessee for hosting this event tonight and for inviting us here to tell the American people exactly what is in this bill that we will all vote on tomorrow. I know that she joins me as a Republican in our belief in government, personal responsibility, and accountability.

This deficit reduction bill is an example of this philosophy. This bill creates a planned reform and savings for taxpayers. It is important that we set priorities and that we make tough choices.

I also know the gentlewoman from Tennessee would agree with me that how we spend taxpayer dollars is one of our greatest responsibilities as Members of Congress. We have a duty to spend smarter and wiser.

It is unfortunate, Mr. Speaker, that this plan is being misrepresented. Just Monday of this week it was represented on the House floor by Mr. MEeks, and this was in reference to veterans’ care, who asked, and I quote, “because the majority side has made a 5-year cut of $14 billion.” That same night Ms. WASSEMER SCHULTZ said, and I quote “There is a proposal to cut $600 million in veterans’ health care.”

Mr. Speaker, the reality is in this deficit reduction bill there are no cuts proposed for veterans’ health care. In fact, in the last 5 years, funding has increased by 50 percent. In fact, the Veterans Committee was not asked to participate in spending reform. We recognize, we appreciate, and we value the service of our military members and our veterans, and we know that their health care and their benefits are critical and very important to them.

On November 2, this House unanimously approved H.R. 4061, the Department of Veterans’ Affairs Information Technology Management Improvement Act. This Act combines three information technology programs into one. Currently, benefits, health, and burial claims are handled by three separate IT departments. This was commonsense reform to turn these into one and will save the Federal Government $1.7 billion simply by turning three programs into one. This is exactly the type of example which shows we are redesigning government, reforming programs, and saving taxpayer dollars.

Mr. Speaker, billions have been spent on IT systems by both the VA and Department of Defense, and these agencies still cannot share medical information. This is corrected in H.R. 4061.

The result of this reform is not only to save taxpayer dollars, but it provides a seamless transition for our servicemembers and makes the process easier. I know the gentlewoman from Tennessee is happy to hear that: save money, do it easier, and do something that makes sense. The Department of Defense and the VA will be able to share information on health records and claims for disability benefits.

Also understand that these necessary reforms are critical to be sure that important programs remain in place and are able to sustain themselves.

Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman for sharing her time with me earlier today and being able to talk just before Veterans Day about the wonderful service of our veterans and our military.

Mrs. BLACKBURN. Mr. Speaker, I join the gentlewoman in a heartfelt thanks to our veterans, as she speaks about the fiscal stewardship and the commonsense reforms we need to put into these programs. It is so frustrating to veterans in my district when they get the runaround and cannot get a proper answer and go from one bureaucracy to another bureaucracy. To take three programs and roll it into one, as H.R. 4061 has done, that is common sense.

We hope to achieve efficiencies and save money in the Department of Veterans and the administration so it goes into programs and we get that money into programs that are so needed and so deserved by our veterans.

Again, God bless those veterans. And I say God bless the gentlewoman from Virginia who has worked so hard on these issues.

A leader on agricultural issues is the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. KING). He is going to talk about the agriculture bill and then will return to the floor to talk about what has been done through the agriculture appropriations process.

Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. KING).

Mr. KING of Iowa. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman for organizing this Special Order and her leadership.

At this time I would like to address the Deficit Reduction Act. It seemed like it was heavy lifting for a lot of people in this Congress; it should not be. It should not be when you are going to save $4 trillion, the trajectory of the increase of Federal spending down range 5 years. I do not find that heavy lifting. I find that a piece of cake for somebody who has had to balance a family budget, a business budget, and meet payroll with my own employees for over 1,400 consecutive months. We had to find a way to make it work, and we did not have a budget like this to work with, and we made it work.

I want to talk about the agricultural aspect of this. First, we brought this package before the Committee on Agriculture, and we went for approximately 5 hours in debate, listening to demagoguery about how painful it was to squeeze down some of these categories within the agriculture budget. And this is over 5 years.

One of those subjects is the commodity programs direct payments. We reduce that, the projected spending, by 1 percent. That is $1 out of $100. The actual effect out in the field is approximately one-twentieth of the payments going into a region like I represent where we raise corn and soybeans.

The people that I represent there are fiscally responsible people. They watch their budget. They invest their dollars and do a good job of managing, all because it is good business. That is what it takes to have black ink on the bottom line instead of red ink.

I am very confident I can take this back and look my neighbors in the eye and say we did the best we can for the agriculture economy. We did the best we could for our agriculture producers. We pinched that down by 1 percent on direct payments.

We are looking at WTO trade negotiations coming up in Hong Kong in December. We are traveling the rest of the world about how we want to really eliminate export subsidies, and we can do that without great pain to this country and reduce domestic subsidies and be able to get access to the developing world so we can sell our products.

Our agriculture producers know they can compete with anybody in the world if they can get access to the markets without having punishing tariffs at every developing country in the world. We are the envy of some of those people in as trading partners. We are going to expand that. But if that 1 percent here is a painful thing, then I am going to say... we are going to have one difficult debate when the time comes to adjust our long-term trade trajectory.

By the way, there was not a single Democrat that would support any of this reconciliation package, and it became an issue just to pass CAPTA. People like you and I, we watched trade become a partisan issue. We watched budget responsibility become a partisan issue, and I listened to criticism after criticism from the other side of the aisle about what we are doing to our producers during a time of need. It is always a time of need.

But it is also a time where we have just pulled in the best 3 years in agricultural ever where I live. We have harvested the best crops in the last 3 years. Their overall accumulated value is more than we have ever had. It would have raised more corn and soybeans this year than any time in history, except last year, which was a record. That came upon a good crop for 2003. It is a good time to be responsible in agriculture. Believe the producers will stand up and take this just fine.

We minimized some of the damage to agriculture as well. Some money was left over in the watershed rehab program, and so we put that in our Deficit Reduction Act. The Conservation Security Program, I like that program. I spent my life in soil conservation. I have built more terraces than any Member of Congress, and I do not have to wonder who is second. More watershed dams. I have spent my life protecting soil and water. I like those projects. We took no money out of any one that was qualified today, but were required to pull some money out down range in order to come up with these savings that we needed to get, which is $3.7 billion out of agriculture.

Skipping across some of these, the food stamp program, that probably consumed, out of 3 hours, probably 2 hours of the apportioned demagoguery for the day. It was how we could take food out of the mouths of babes, pregnant mothers, senior citizens, everybody you can imagine. I sat there and listened to that, and if I did not have a brain of my own to work with, I would have crawled out of that room after they got done with me. The truth is when you look at it, we did not take any food out of anybody’s mouth. We saved overall $844 million up to the year 2010.

I would have thought that as much waste do we have in food stamps just for the last year we have records. Well, $1 billion in food stamp waste. That is fraud.

Mr. GINGREY spoke about how we will cut waste, fraud and abuse. We did that in the food stamp program, and we did not do it randomly. We realized there are States that grant food stamps to people who do not qualify for any other benefit. That is a pretty good sign it is a fraud. We conditioned it if they need another benefit, like TANF, it will qualify them for food stamps. Unless they do, we are not going to give them a bunch of food stamps because, likely, they will be eating the food. The States are that way. Iowa is that way. It works for us. We do not hear complaints because it is a responsible way to manage.

The other side of the food stamp piece was we extended the period of time. When people come into this country legally, they pledge they are going to be self-sufficient. We say to them, under current law that means you do not get these benefits for 5 years. Then you can be unself-sufficient and we will help you out. We extend that time on food stamps from 5 years to 7 years. That picked up $275 million. We found our $3.7 billion without a lot of pain.

I will not say it was easy, because I had my share of demagoguery; but we did not hurt anybody, and we helped people and we helped the taxpayer.

We have another way we can help this country. I have got to say this because agriculture cause agriculture cause energy, but we have 406 trillion cubic feet of natural gas out there under the Outer Continental Shelf. We are paying $14.50 per million BTus here in this country. In Venezuela, it is $1.60 compared to our $14.50. The same with Brazil, Argentina, and most places on this continent; and we have got 406 trillion cubic feet of natural gas right there next to the pipeline. All we have to do is move our drill rigs a little further to the east, sink them in the ground, hook the pipes up, and go to the same refineries and we can drive this price down. If we do so, we can cut fertilizer prices down and gas drawing prices down for our grain as well.

Go up and drill in ANWR, fix the energy piece in all of this, and we are going to see a big difference in this country. This is not all of the work we need to do, but this is a bunch of the important work we need to do. I am looking forward to getting on with it.

Mrs. BLACKBURN. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Iowa truly is a great conservationist not only with the soil and the land in Iowa, and we love to say he gets his best information on the back of his tractor. I would hope I would rise up and say yes. I would also hope we have heard from the Brookings Institute, which is no

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — HOUSE

H10121

November 9, 2005

Mr. Speaker, you have heard how important it is that we have a plan that is going to reform our Social Security. It will help achieve savings for the American people. It is so sad that the Democrats on the other side of the aisle, not one, not one has risen up to join us in this effort to try to reform government.

Well, we know that our Nation faces a number of challenges. We have Medicare and Medicaid and Social Security. We have important programs, but they are growing beyond our ability to pay for them. Now we have had the debate. The Democrats are so keen that there are only three ways we can pay for all of this: one, we are going to pass debt on to our children; two, we are going to raise taxes on the American people; or, three, we are going to find smart ways to hold government accountable and decrease the rate of growth in spending and bring about reforms.

Well, the Democrats have attacked all of our reforms. They claim that somehow these are massive cuts, not understanding the fact that the Federal budget is going to grow next year over this year in what we call mandatory spending that has most of the welfare programs growing next year over this year. TANF is going to grow. Medicaid, Medicare, it is all going to grow. But they attack all of our reforms, and they claim that they do not want to pass debt on to our children. Well, what does that leave us? That leaves us with tax increases. They do not like to talk about it, but it is the only other option on the table. In this case, massive, unconscionable tax increases that, if imposed on the American people, will leave the next generation with a lower standard of living than we enjoy, because the government will have already taken away beyond our ability to pay for it.

Chairman Greenspan of the Federal Reserve recently said, “As a Nation, we may have already made promises to coming generations of retirees that we are unable to fulfill.”

The Brookings Institute, which is no bastion of conservative thought, says expected growth in these programs, speaking of Social Security, Medicare and Medicaid, along with projected increases in the debt and defense, will absorb all of the government’s currently projected revenue within 8 years, leaving nothing for any other program.

The Democrats’ plan. That means no veterans funding. That means that beloved Pell grants are gone. All of this is gone because they refuse to join us in any of these reforms. The Government Accountability Office said in order to balance the Federal budget in the next 30 years, total Federal spending is going to have to be cut in half or Federal taxes doubled.

Mr. Speaker, we have a chart that shows what is happening to the size of our government. This shows here the percent of our economy that we are devoting to government. Right now it is about 20 percent. Our revenues, which is this line here, runs pretty consistently between 18 and 20 percent of our economy.

But the government programs that are in place today, not all the ones that the Democrats want to add, but the government programs that we have today that are on automatic pilot, without the reforms, if we do not reform them, if we do not achieve success in our plan, then in just one generation we are going to go from 20 percent of our economy devoted to government to 40 percent. Mr. Speaker, in just one generation.

And, Mr. Speaker, is the cost of it. Here we have the year 2005, and look at the tax increases on the average American family as the years go by. Again, what does that mean? It means in just one generation we are going to end up doubling taxes on the American people. And, Mr. Speaker, I just believe that is absolutely unconscionable, particularly for a party that continues to want to preach compassion to us.

Right now, they want to cut the child tax credit in half. And that is their idea of compassion? That is what they are telling us. That is what their tax plan is. They want to institute the death tax so that people have to pay twice the market rate for student loans? These are common-sense reforms. And, Mr. Speaker, as this debate continues to unfold, we have to remember what the Democrats want to do, and that is massive tax increases that are going to leave the next generation with a lower standard of living than we enjoy, and that is unconscionable.

Compassion, Mr. Speaker, ought to be measured by how we treat the next generation and how many paychecks we create, not how many welfare checks we create. Our reform plan will help create paychecks. We have already created 4 million new jobs in this economy. Theirs is more of the same: more government, more spending, tax increases for future generations. There is no compassion there, Mr. Speaker. No compassion whatsoever.

No compassion whatever. Right now, Mrs. Blackburn, the gentlewoman from North Carolina (Ms. FOXX), who is a leader in education on the Education and Workforce Committee, and she is going to talk with us for just a few moments and dispel a couple of myths pertaining to education funding and talk about what we are trying to do to be certain that young people have the opportunity to dream big dreams, dream big dreams and have great adventures and look forward with hope and opportunity to a future.

Ms. FOXX. Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the gentlewoman from Tennessee (Mrs. BLACKBURN) for organizing this Special Order again and for helping us bring the facts to the people of this country.

She used a very nice word, “myths.” Some people could use much stronger words about the things that are being said about this Deficit Reduction Act. So let me tell the Members that the truth is this: We need to set the record straight about what is being said about this bill and about what we are actually doing.

The Education and Workforce Committee has given the Nation $1.1 billion in net savings. Of that $1.1 billion, we generated $14.5 billion by making the Federal programs dealing with higher education more efficient and effective.

I can serve many years in higher education. I was a community college president, a university administrator, dealt with higher education programs, with financial aid. So I understand these programs a great deal. And let me tell the Members just in summary what we did. We are helping the students and the families of this country tremendously by what we are doing. We are going to continue to increase student financial aid as college enrollment increases. We are going to see financial aid going up through increases in loan limits and reductions in origination fees. That is going to help students and families. We are going to end the practice that allowed some lenders to collect the minimum 9.5 percent rate of return on some student loans.

And yet the Democrats have fought these tooth and nail. They all voted against these measures. They do not want to help make access to higher education better for low- and middle-income students like we do. And that is what this is going to do. It is going to generate savings for taxpayers by eliminating waste and inefficiency, trimming subsidies paid to lenders, and place the aid programs on a stable financial foundation. We are going to put a complete and permanent end to federal student loans. We are helping the students and the families of this country.

The government, to reduce the bureaucracy, to be certain that money is going into programs to meet needs at the local level; that money is not being soaked up by the bureaucracy that sits in these buildings around Washington, D.C.

Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentlewoman from North Carolina (Ms. FOXX), who is a leader in education on the Education and Workforce Committee, and she is going to talk with us for just a few moments and dispel a couple of myths pertaining to education funding and talk about what we are trying to do to be certain that young people have the opportunity to dream big dreams, dream big dreams and have great adventures and look forward with hope and opportunity to a future.
That is simply unfair to the students who are having to borrow money.

It will also reduce student loan fees by 75 percent over 5 years. Student loan borrowers today pay up to 4 percent in loan fees and a 3 percent origination fee. We are going to reduce that origination fee to 1 percent. It also is going to expand student loan borrowing by increasing the amounts for first- and second-year college students. This is going to be a tremendous boon to those students.

It is also going to protect borrowers’ credit by requiring lenders to report to all national credit bureaus to ensure students and graduates will be able to take full advantage of the good credit history they have earned through repayment of their Federal student loans. They cannot do that now, and it is a shame because they cannot build a good credit history.

We also, through this bill, improve consumer protection and awareness by eliminating rules that limit options for consolidation borrowers and providing borrowers more information about their loans. We want students to be responsible. We are going to help them be responsible.

The Democrats are opposed to that. It is really mind-boggling to understand why they would oppose all these reforms that we are putting in. One would think they would want to help moderate- and low-income people get a higher education, but they are putting stumbling blocks up and saying we are reducing money; we are increasing the amount of money. We make it easier for the neediest students to participate in these programs by simplifying eligibility.

I know when I conducted programs with financial aid, it took a college degree to fill out the forms. So it was a real problem. We are going to improve that.

Taken as a whole, CBO estimates these reforms will save $14.5 billion over 5 years. That is money going into the pockets of the students and the families that we want to help and other taxpayers.

Spending is out of control. Mr. Speaker. We cannot afford to keep increasing Federal spending at astronomical and unreasonable rates. Contrary to what our colleagues on the other side of the aisle are purporting, we are not finding these savings on the backs of college students. We are going to help college students. These reforms will strengthen student aid programs and expand student benefits.

Everybody needs to support this bill and know that they can go home and say to students today to get an education, We are helping you with this.

Mrs. BLACKBURN. Mr. Speaker, reclaiming my time, I thank the gentlewoman from North Carolina for her comments.

She is exactly right. Reforming the process, reforming the way government does business, making it simple, being certain that we find another way to get government off people’s back, out of their pocketbook, simplify the system so that the money gets to where it is needed, in this case, in education, getting that money into the student loan programs so that students are in the classrooms, so that they have access to those classes.

We have been joined by the gentlewoman from Ohio (Mrs. SCHMIDT), and she is new as a Member of the U.S. House of Representatives. She comes with a State legislative background from the General Assembly. She has worked on so many of the health care programs, the reform programs that were needed, and working with Governors. At this time she is going to spend just a couple of moments and talk about some of the reforms that were needed by the Governors and are addressed in this bill.

I yield to the gentlewoman from Ohio.

Mrs. SCHMIDT. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman from Tennessee (Mrs. BLACKBURN) for yielding to me.

Mr. Speaker, I am going to keep this very brief. I just came here 64 days ago, and I served on the general assembly and I served on the appropriations committee. The Members of Congress, the Members of the General Assembly, and the Members of the State legislature have a plan to reform government, to reduce spending, not just at the Federal level but at the State level as well.

The gentleman from Texas’s (Chairman BARTON) program that addresses the eldercare with Medicaid will really help States initiate programs that truly take care of the elderly who are in need, but force people who are not in need who try to circumvent the system from circumventing that system. And that is so important. That is reforming government. That is reducing spending. That is good welfare, fraud, and abuse. And that is a plan.

Chairman BARTON also has a plan for Medicaid savings on prescription drugs. That is important, because when I came from Ohio and when 85 percent of our budget is crimped by Medicare and education, we need to have help at the Federal level to enact reforms at the State level that will allow us to feed our poor, feed our elderly, educate our children, and not bankrupt our system.

That is what this act is all about. I am going to vote for it, and I want to applaud the leadership on the Republican side of this aisle for giving us a plan to reform government, reduce spending, and save our future.

Mrs. BLACKBURN. Mr. Speaker, reclaiming my time, I yield to the gentlewoman for her comments.

At this time I yield to the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. GUTKNECHT), who is going to talk with us about the food stamp program and address some of the myths that we have been hearing about this program. This gentleman has done so much work in the agriculture programs, looking to be certain that we address the stewardship requirements that our constituents and citizens have for us.
I came here in 1994, and earlier my colleague, the gentleman from Tennessee (Mr. WAMP) talked about what we did in 1995 and 1996. One of the things we did that I will always be proud of is, we reformed the welfare system, and we put limits on welfare. We heard some of the same arguments back then. Oh, my gosh, people are going to be thrown into the streets, people will go hungry, this is going to be terrible. Well, let us look at what happened. We cut the welfare caseloads by 50 percent.

Mr. Speaker, I always said, and I really believe this, welfare reform was never about saving money. It was about saving families; it was about saving children from one more generation of dependency and despair.

Unfortunately, our friends on the left still believe in big government. They somehow believe that big government programs can really solve problems. Somehow believe that big government programs can really solve problems. Some of us here in this country go to these destinations for relaxation. And also as it relates to even helping our own U.S. economy, people fly from overseas to come over and try to enjoy themselves and, at the same time, bring dollars to the United States. They are trying to figure out how they can stick an oil rig in the middle of a national park because special interests want that to happen, not that the American people want it to happen.

They are also trying to figure out how they are going to get health care. They are trying to figure out how they are going to say that their budget is better than the Democratic alternative, and it is all about priorities.

Mr. Speaker, that is the reason why we are here on the floor tonight. This is the eve of the budget vote. I will tell my colleagues this: I just do not know how, on the majority side, they can get over that hump, on how they can talk about all of the things that they talk about as it relates to defending our country, and those very individuals that are defending our country, as we speak, Mr. Speaker, will come back only to have to wait 8 months to see a specialist at the VA.

Where is the money going to come from and the services if you are pulling the rug out from under the veterans? Mr. RYAN of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, this is about third-party validators. This is not KENDRICK MEEK, TIM RYAN, BILL DELAHUNT; this is not just us spewing out rhetoric to the American people, Mr. Speaker.

I want to read a letter that I think may be of some interest to the Republican majority as they are all deciding right now how they are going to vote. It is about time you get on your knees, you say your prayers before you go to bed tonight. The Republican majority needs to remember this letter:

“The absolute folly and moral bankruptcy of this plan is apparent.” He is referring to the budget reconciliation package that the Republicans are about ready to pass out of this Chamber.

This gentleman says, “The absolute folly and moral bankruptcy of this plan is apparent to the United States Senate, who voted to bar funding for it from the appropriations bill now in conference.”

“The VFW.” I say to my friends, “urges the Congress to put a stop to the wartime assault on past and present warriors who have fought for and continue to defend our country.”

Mr. DELAHUNT. That is from the VFW.

Mr. RYAN of Ohio. “Understand that this situation is totally unacceptable to the VFW and its 2.4 million members and auxiliaries. We will do what is necessary to protect, in Lincoln’s words, ‘He who bore the battle, and his widow, and his orphan.’ These words are marked on the front of the VA headquarters building. I urge you to take them to heart. Sincerely, Robert E. Wallace, Executive Director, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Washington Office.”

We are not making this up. This is the VFW.

Mr. DELAHUNT. That is the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Mr. RYAN of Ohio. Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Mr. MEEK of Florida. Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman will yield, will the gentleman from Ohio give that to the Clerk so that we can enter it into the RECORD.

Mr. RYAN of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I will enter the letter into the RECORD at this time.

NOVEMBER 7, 2005.

ALL MEMBERS OF CONGRESS: The absolute folly and moral bankruptcy of this plan is apparent to the United States Senate, who voted to bar funding for it from the appropriations bill now in conference. We have heard, however, that the House Leadership fully intends to strip all mention from the bill, and require the VA to execute this witch-hunt of a review.

The VFW urges the Congress to put a stop to this wartime assault on past and present warriors who have fought for and continue to defend our country. Understand that this situation is totally unacceptable to the VFW, and its 2.4 million members and auxiliaries. We will do what is necessary to protect, in Lincoln’s words, “He who bore the battle, and his widow, and his orphan.” These words are marked on the front of the VA headquarters building. I urge you to take them to heart.

Sincerely,

ROBERT E. WALLACE,
Executive Director,
VFW Washington Office.

Mr. MEEK of Florida. Mr. Speaker, what is going to happen is that historically, as we look right now in the U.S. Congress; they are going to look at this very moment, as we are on the floor right now, and the Rules Committee, they are meeting behind closed doors, at night, in the dark, going down decisions to affect the American people, the everyday American people. It is going to affect them.
This is not a hearing that is broadcast to the American people; it is not a hearing, not even in the daytime. It is a hearing in the middle of the night. And what they are going to do in that closed-door hearing is set the stage to try to take out of the American people.

They cannot persuade our Members on this side, because we are already on the side of the American people. We already know, together we can do better on this side of the aisle. We already know that we put forth amendments in the House, and that we voted down on a party-line vote.

As it relates to the oil companies’ profits, there was a hearing today with the oil companies here. They must have heard us talk about it, and so they said, well, let us call a couple of them in and let us talk to them about why the American people possibly got price-gouged. A lot of talk.

But it was the Democratic Caucus and the Democrats in committee and the Majority Party that put forth the amendment, not talk, but action, to make sure that the American people no longer were being price-gouged; and also making sure that those individuals in America that have to pay higher fees, especially our poor, for health care this winter, talk, not action. To come to the floor and to just talk, without action.

We in the minority, and by the fact that we are in the minority, we are trying to do the best that we can to fight; we are not going to sit in our offices and turn our heads the other way, as my colleague, Mr. DELAHUNT, when that board opens this up tomorrow, the vote on the budget, we are going to be here for some time. We are going to be here for some time while arms are being twisted, while the special interests are calling in on cell phones saying, you have to vote for this because our stuff is in that bill.

But meanwhile, back at the ranch, I grabbed the PAC list a little earlier. I did not see a PAC on behalf of people who fought for this country. I did not see a PAC that was put forth by the children in America that are on Title I and free and reduced lunches; I did not see a PAC on their behalf to get the attention of this Congress. I did not even see a PAC that said, Hey, listen, we just shipped you to do the right thing on behalf of the American people. I did not see that PAC listed on the PAC list.

But I will tell my colleagues this: This is very disturbing.

The reason why I asked the gentleman to put that VFW letter into the RECORD, and we need to put that AARP letter that came in yesterday since we are helping seniors, into the RECORD, because we want historians to look at the time when we had the highest deficit in the history of the Republic, we want historians to be able to look at when one President, with a majority Congress, with a majority House and a majority Senate, voted more from foreign countries than 42 previous Presidents and 42 previous administrations, Democrats and Republican.

Mr. DELAHUNT. Mr. Speaker, it was interesting to listen to our Republican colleagues in the previous hour. I heard the word “reform” over and over again. I heard the term “fiscal responsibility.” I heard the concept or the phrase “spending cuts reining in” and “making government smaller.”

And they kept referring to Democrats and the minority side with certain gestures. I guess my response is, who has been in charge, Mr. Speaker, for 12 years? It was in 1994 that the Republicans came to power and took control of this country. Twelve years ago. Is it just dawning on you now that the health care insurance is essential to our economy, essential to the future of our children? And reform, you have had 12 years to do reform. They speak of the veterans and health care and they recite statistics and they say in reality that the Republican Party that spoke here tonight, so maybe they are unaware of what the Republican leadership in the House did about a year or two ago. The chairman of the veterans services committee, the then chairman was the gentleman from New Jersey, someone whom I disagree with on occasion, but for whom I have great respect because he tells it like it is and he stands tall, and if he believes in something his commitment is unwavering. He made a big mistake. He sided with the VFW. He sided with the American Legion and the DAV, Disabled American Veterans organization. These are the people who understand best. They are not governmental organizations. They are nonprofit voluntary associations of veterans.

Mr. RYAN of Ohio. Who do not give money.

Mr. DELAHUNT. Who do not give money to politicians. But because he did, the few were omissions, their expression of what was needed to properly respect the needs of American servicepeople who have done so much for this country, you know what happened to him? Now, they probably do not know this. He got fired, for all intents and purposes. He was removed as chairman of that veterans services committee. And that is Chris Smith, a man of courage and moral principle.

Mr. MEEK of Florida. If the gentleman will yield, even more, not only was he removed as chairman; he was taken off the committee. I think he was taken off the committee as it relates to being the chairman. I am not just talking about being off the committee, taken out of the chairmanship. But that is what you get when you stand up against the machine.

Mr. RYAN of Ohio. The machine.

Mr. MEEK of Florida. Yes.

Mr. RYAN of Ohio. I thought it was very interesting how, as we were gathering or coordinating our efforts here tonight, I thought as I was listening to our Republican friends on the other side, there were things missing that I think the American people, Mr. Speaker, need to know about. No one on the other side said that we should cut the $16 billion in oil subsidies to pay for some of the other cuts that are being made for poor children or middle-class college students. No one on the other side said anything about the $100 billion in subsidies that are going to the pharmaceutical companies. No one said anything about that. And if there is any concern about the lack of responsibility, the incompetence, the inability to govern, all we need to do is look at what has happened in the last 4 years.

Mr. DELAHUNT. I say to the gentlman from Ohio, what about some welfare reform? Welfare reform for the oil industry and welfare reform for the pharmaceutical companies. You know, when they speak to the issue of welfare reform, they are not talking about the oil industry or the drug manufacturers. No, they are not talking about those folk. They are not talking about corporate welfare. And as you just indicated, $16 billion to go to Big Oil for what? For an industry that just had record profits.

As you indicated earlier, they were up here today, brought up here by Republicans because it is so embarrassing to have passed an appropriation and provided subsidies for Big Oil, and then they report these incredible profits. I mean, it was embarrassing.

Mr. RYAN of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, we may be a little more intense tonight than normal, and the reason is that tomorrow this budget may come before this House, and all the rhetoric over the last few weeks of priorities, their expression of what was needed to properly respect the needs of American servicepeople who have done so much for this country, you know what happened to him? Now, they probably do not know this. He got fired, for all intents and purposes. He was removed as chairman of that veterans services committee. And that is Chris Smith, a man of courage and moral principle.

Mr. MEEK of Florida. If the gentleman will yield, even more, not only was he removed as chairman; he was taken off the committee. I think he was taken off the committee as it relates to being the chairman. I am not just talking about being off the committee, taken out of the chairmanship. But that is what you get when you stand up against the machine.

Mr. RYAN of Ohio. The machine.

Mr. MEEK of Florida. Yes.

Mr. RYAN of Ohio. I thought it was very interesting how, as we were gathering or coordinating our efforts here tonight, I thought as I was listening to our Republican friends on the other side, there were things missing that I think the American people, Mr. Speaker, need to know about. No one on the other side said that we should cut the $16 billion in oil subsidies to pay for some of the other cuts that are being made for poor children or middle-class college students. No one on the other side said anything about the $100 billion in subsidies that are going to the pharmaceutical companies. No one said anything about that. And if there is any concern about the lack of responsibility, the incompetence, the inability to govern, all we need to do is look at what has happened in the last 4 years.

Mr. DELAHUNT. I say to the gentleman from Ohio, what about some welfare reform? Welfare reform for the oil industry and welfare reform for the pharmaceutical companies. You know, when they speak to the issue of welfare reform, they are not talking about the oil industry or the drug manufacturers. No, they are not talking about those folk. They are not talking about corporate welfare. And as you just indicated, $16 billion to go to Big Oil for what? For an industry that just had record profits.

As you indicated earlier, they were up here today, brought up here by Republicans because it is so embarrassing to have passed an appropriation and provided subsidies for Big Oil, and then they report these incredible profits. I mean, it was embarrassing.

Mr. RYAN of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, we may be a little more intense tonight than normal, and the reason is that tomorrow this budget may come before this House, and all the rhetoric over the last few weeks of priorities, their expression of what was needed to properly respect the needs of American servicepeople who have done so much for this country, you know what happened to him? Now, they probably do not know this. He got fired, for all intents and purposes. He was removed as chairman of that veterans services committee. And that is Chris Smith, a man of courage and moral principle.
the TV on or go back home to our apartments and watch this happen without a fight, they have got another think coming, because they have taken this country, and in the last 4 years borrowed over $1 trillion from foreign countries. And in that 231 years, we have not borrowed that much from foreign countries.

Mr. MEEK of Florida. I know you have a point there. I just want a point of clarification. Point of clarification. I did speak directly, Mr. Speaker. When I said that the chairman, the past chairman of the Veterans’ Affairs Committee, Republican, was not only removed as chairman, but kicked off of the committee. They did not even want his thoughts on the committee because he stood up for veterans. He stepped out of line. He stepped out of line, because he did what he thought was right. I am holding in my hand right now, but I just wanted to share that because we were making a point earlier and I said he was off the committee, and then folks were looking around, I knew that I was not correct. He was the Committee Chair and for the 109th Congress. It has the names of the members on the committee, and I do not blame the Members. I am talking about the leadership. But there are two spots there that say vacancy, vacancies. Those two vacancies were the past chairman of that committee who was a Republican that could no longer stomach doing what the Republican leadership was asking in this House for him to do.

Mr. DELAHUNT. Because he sided with the veterans of foreign wars, with the American Legion, with the disabled veterans and the various veterans services organizations.

Mr. RYAN of Ohio. And the American people, for that matter.

Mr. DELAHUNT. And the American people. Because the American people want to take care of the veteran. Before we leave the veteran issue, if anyone is watching our conversation this evening has any doubts, do not call us. Do not call our offices. Do not call the offices of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee. Do not call the Republican Leadership. Call the Veterans of Foreign Wars where you live. Call the American Legion where you live.

Ms. WASSERMAN SCHULTZ. We have a national holiday coming up the day after tomorrow, and each of us is hoping that we have an opportunity to go home and look our veterans in the eye and tell them how much we appreciate and honor them. And the American people will be able to do that in good conscience. I know that I will stand proud with my veterans and tell them that I did everything I could and will continue to do everything I can and House Democrats will continue to do everything we can to ensure that we honor their service.

I certainly would not want to be any Member of Congress with an R next to their name that votes for this bill tomorrow if it comes up on the floor because, growing up, my mom always told me that the guide that I should use when making a decision was whether I was going to be able to sleep well and then wake up in the morning and look at myself in the mirror and be comfortable with the decision that I made and know that I did the right thing.

Well, I wonder just how well our Republican friends on the other side of the aisle are going to be sleeping tonight. They have a lot for their stomach to be churning about; and for those that are going to wake up in the morning and decide that they are going to vote ‘aye’ and support this legislation, I do not know how the very next morning they are going to be able to stand on the podium with their veterans and look them in the eye and say that they continue to honor them. And you know, sometimes we stand here and people listening to us or, Mr. Speaker, sometimes people might think that, you know, this is just our opinion, that we are obviously committed Democrats and committed to our beliefs and our agenda. But we are not representing everyone else just our own opinion, although we certainly do vociferously express our opinion. We like to make sure that we bring third-party validators to back up the opinion that we are reading this floor.

I just want to read an excerpt from a letter that was sent to each Member of Congress, all 535 Members of us, of these two Chambers, on Monday, November 7, 2005 by Robert E. Wallace who is the executive director of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Washington office. And I am hopeful that I am not being repetitive. I am not sure if you have already read his words. But, you know, for those that may question whether or not we know what we are talking about, or whether we are exaggerating or engaging in hyperbole when it comes to what is in this bill and the priorities of the Republican leadership versus our priorities when it comes to commitment to veterans, he says:

‘‘Dear Senator or Representative, To all Members of Congress, we have at the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States, VFW, observed for the past several months astonishing efforts to cast veterans who have been found to be severely disabled by the Department of Veterans Affairs’ own determinations as undeserving of the veteran benefits their grateful Nation has provided for them in the law. This assault on the most vulnerable members of the veteran community, disabled in service to this country and suffering from post-traumatic stress disorder, is broad in its scope and execution. At a time when the VA should be preparing to serve combat veterans returning from the war on terrorism being fought in Iraq, Afghanistan and elsewhere, the wealthiest corporations in the world.

Mr. RYAN of Ohio. They are just saying stop. The VFW is telling the Republican Party, Mr. Speaker, stop. Look what you are doing. You are hurting veterans. I mean, the executive director of the VFW Foreign Wars does not just say I am going to send a letter to Congress today, Mr. Speaker. Stop it. You are going to hurt veterans. And at the same time, you are giving tax cuts to people who make $1 million a year or more. You are giving $16 billion in subsidies to the oil companies. You are giving handouts to the pharmaceutical companies, the wealthiest corporations in the world. And you are cutting veterans benefits. What is going on here?

Mr. DELAHUNT. Well, I think what is going on is that there is a misunderstanding on the part of the Republican leadership when they speak of patriotism. Patriotism is not about a parade. It is not simply respect for the flag. It is about treating the men and women who go to war for us, who serve the country with respect.

Mr. DELAHUNT. Did you hear about reform?

Ms. WASSERMAN SCHULTZ. I did not notice.

Mr. DELAHUNT. Did you hear about limited government? Did you hear about fiscal responsibility?

You know what is interesting? I served with a gentleman who is a genuine conservative and he was part of the leadership on the Republican side. Did you know that must be a very liberating experience, because he recently spoke out and this is what he said:
Our President is publicly oblivious to criticism, although off-the-record reports indicate his patience is running thin inside the White House. He argues the right wing is now spending like profligates with no tomorrow, and is displaying a very real arrogance. What they do not get is that absolute power is coming to reality.

Those words were written by, as I said, a former member of the Republican leadership, Representative J.C. Watts of Oklahoma, a conservative, a man of principle.

As I said earlier, we have heard about reform. We hear about we have got to limit government. Well, what have they been doing for 12 years?

Mr. RYAN of Ohio. It had to be a joke. They had to be kidding.

Mr. DELAHUNT. Maybe it is just that they do not get it. They have not been here long enough to understand that they have been in power for 12 years. And that is what a simple majority government in this country today, the Senate, the House, and the White House. And yet conservatives like the President of the American Conservative Union, David Keen, he noted in a letter to members that Federal spending has increased by $300 billion since George Bush took office, including $96 billion for domestic social welfare programs. By comparison, Keen said, spending increased by only $51 billion during President Clinton’s 8 years. So I guess what we are talking about is the capacity of an administration to spend money wisely and effectively.

We heard about welfare reform, Mr. Speaker, and yet we have created a welfare state for major corporations. We have created in Iraq a welfare state for Iraqis. And as we have said here before, it was the Republican majority that insisted that the money that goes to Iraq, to rebuild Iraq, never be paid back to the American taxpayers. That just does not make any sense. That makes absolutely no sense. And we stood here on this floor and said, Make it a loan so that we get the money back, so that we can use it to control the deficit, this deficit that is the product of this administration and this Congress.

When Bill Clinton left office, there was a surplus of $5.6 trillion. And I kept hearing something about facts over here. Well, that is a fact that they should recognize, the Republican majority that left a surplus for the American people. And what do we have now? We have trillions, trillions of a deficit that will explode in future years harming the interests of generations of Americans to come.

Ms. WASSERMAN SCHULTZ. And their answer to the deficit that they have ballooned is to not just hurt veterans, but to hurt people just when they are on the cusp of being able to make a change and turn the corner in their life. $844 million in food stamp cuts in this bill.

Now, I have heard some of our friends on the Republican side of the aisle argue that there is fraud in the food stamp program and that there are people who are collecting food stamps that do not deserve it or maybe we do not have as many people who need food stamps these days. Well, today, not yesterday, not 5 months ago, not a year ago, on the floor of the House of 25,000 people, 25,000 people in Broward County where I am from, who lined up as early as 3:00 in the morning to sign up for food stamps following Hurricane Wilma.

Now, I checked to make sure that I was being accurate when I came down here tonight. This food stamp application process is through the regular food stamp program, nothing special, no special appropriations, nothing from FEMA. This is 25,000 people, most of whom have never before applied for public assistance.

Now, if the Republicans are going to say that there are not people in need and it is more important to cut taxes than to provide food stamps for the people who are standing in this line, who have already been through so much, then really I guess we are serving with many who are serving in this Chamber without conscience.

Mr. DELAHUNT. Mr. Speaker, may I say something?

I do not know if the gentlewoman had the opportunity to listen earlier to our friends and colleagues, but they talked about common sense and they talked about respect for families. And yet in their proposal there is a cut of some $5 billion in a category called child support enforcement.

Now, common sense would dictate that if you invest money, if you invest $1 and get $4 in return that you do it because that is a good deal. Well, that is a bureaucratic term, child support enforcement. Really what it comes down to is, in most cases, deadbeats, deadbeat fathers who are running out the back door on their children, leaving mom and the children without any support, and forcing them onto welfare.

So instead of really demonstrating common sense, this Republican budget reduces the enforcement of audits on fathers to provide support for their children and former wives. It eliminates that or reduces it by $5 billion, and that translates, if you look at it as a business decision, into a loss of some $20 billion, $20 billion that would go to support working families in this country.

Ms. WASSERMAN SCHULTZ. Let us just make sure people understand and the Speaker understands that we are not talking about made-up numbers here that we are just pulling out of thin air.

In the Washington Post last Thursday, another third-party validator, they describe the cuts in this bill and they go on to say, The food stamp cuts in the House measure would knock nearly 300,000 people off nutritional assistance programs, including 70,000 legal immigrants, according to the nonpartisan Congressional Budget Office, which is the office that we get our economic facts from.

Those immigrants would lose their benefits because the House measure would require legal immigrants to live in the United States for 7 years before becoming eligible for food stamps. About 40,000 children would lose eligibility for free or reduced-price lunches, the CBO estimated. The food stamp cuts, if approved, will especially affect 11 States, including Maryland, that insisted that the money that goes to third-party validators, David Keen, he noted in a letter to members that Federal spending has increased by $300 billion since George Bush took office, including $96 billion for domestic social welfare programs. By comparison, Keen said, spending increased by only $51 billion during President Clinton’s 8 years. So you are 110 percent right. If things happen at all the way it appears here under this Republican majority, it will pass. It will pass because they will literally make their Members vote for it. Mr. RYAN of Ohio, I appreciate that. So we go through this bill here and we look at the cuts.

Medicaid cuts on poor and working-class families who are trying to get some health care for their kids, student loan cuts $14.3 billion; $24 billion in respect collection. It is going to knock 300,000 Americans off food stamps. Many of them have been displaced because of the natural disasters. 40,000 kids are going to get kicked off school lunch programs. Foster care is going to take a hit of 7 or $800 million. I believe. Veterans are going to get cut $600 million. There is a funny thing here because at the same time all this is going on, our friends who make more than a half a million dollars a year are going to receive a tax cut worth $70 billion.

So as all of these programs on college students and their parents, Medicaid, child support, food stamps, veterans, foster care are getting cut, there is going to be $70 billion in tax cuts for people who make more than a half a million dollars a year and before I yield over there to my friend from Florida, there is something funny about this list that we have here.

I am looking at this: poor kids and poor families who have their kids on Medicaid; college students who are just trying to get a better life; improve themselves; kids on child support and mothers who are receiving child support; people on food stamps; kids and families who qualify for the school lunch program; veterans.

Ms. WASSERMAN SCHULTZ. Mr. Speaker, do you know what that is called? That is called taking from the poor kids who are dancing in the streets because there are a lot of the religious organizations that because I cannot help think about what we are facing right now.

We are facing allegations in the White House of outing a CIA agent and several other agents because someone decided that it was politically right for them to share classified information about a clandestine agent with reporters. This is not what I am saying; this is what the indictment says.

You know what I did get, now, from help from the majority, but I finally got the list of the subpoenas that were issued under the Clinton administration versus the Bush administration. It saddens me to see that the Republicans can provide oversight when they want to. They can get to the bottom of what actually happened when they want to.

I will tell you this, just one committee I am going to take, just one committee, the House Government Reform Committee issued over 1,689 subpoenas to the Clinton administration. That is the record. That is not my report; that is what the record reflects. Ninety-seven percent of those subpoenas were targeted towards the Clinton administration and the Democratic Party. Only 11 subpoenas for the Republicans, 11 out of 1,689.

It goes on further to say that the GAO, this is the Government Accountability Office, examined the White House’s efforts to provide documents to the Congress over a period from October 1996 to March 1, 1999. The Government Accountability Office found that during that period the White House staff spent, alone, over 55,000 hours responding to over 300 congressional requests, producing hundreds, thousands, pages of pages of documents and videotapes and audiotapes to the Congress.

They called 134 Clinton administration White House agency officials to hearings concerning allegations of the Clinton administration. The witnesses were called to appear before the committee and in public session, not secret session, but public session, so the American people can see it. The White House chief of staff and the counsel to the President, the counsel to the Vice President, all of them were called here, spent over 568 hours in depositions with staff. That is just with staff. They also provided discussions between the President and his advisers. President Clinton waived the executive privilege and allowed these advisers to testify before the committee about their discussions with him.

Internal White House e-mails, over $12 million was spent to reconstruct those e-mails. Confidential conversations within the White House counsel’s office were provided to the Congress, but now we have questionable intelligence that sent us to war. We have a CIA agent that has been outed, and this is what the Republican Congress does now.

Well, we know that CIA agents are being outed, but we are not looking over there because our friends may be embarrassed. It may jeopardize national security, but that is not important. It is all about making sure that we stay in power and that we do not pay attention to what the American people constitutionally have asked us to do, to provide oversight and to give the American people a voice when wrongdoing is evident, et cetera, et cetera.

It is a shame. It is a shame that this is happening as we speak in this Congress.

Ms. WASSERMAN SCHULTZ. But do not worry because last week President Bush rode in on his white steed to the rescue of the American people and addressed the culture of corruption and cronyism and lack of competence that is going on and emanating from the White House.

Mr. DELAHUNT. What did he do?

Ms. WASSERMAN SCHULTZ. He required all of the White House staff to take an ethics refresher course this week.

Mr. DELAHUNT. Is that mandatory?

Ms. WASSERMAN SCHULTZ. Oh, yes, do not worry. White House staff attendance is mandatory for anyone holding any level of security clearance.

Mr. DELAHUNT. Is this a semester-long course?

Ms. WASSERMAN SCHULTZ. No. This is a 4-hour class that actually I think it is being given this week by White House counsel Harriet Miers’ office, who, of course, we know has been doing such a bang-up job at guiding the White House through their ethical morass.

Mr. DELAHUNT. Not being facetious for a moment, we have I would submit, a very serious problem in terms of the health of our democratic institutions. There has not been, and if you reflect, you will not be able to identify another administration with the obsession for secrecy that this administration has.

What’s particularly interesting, the Republican chairman, highly respected, former Governor of New Jersey, Tom Kean, who headed the independent 9/11 Commission report, he observed that many so-called classified documents he reviewed in the course of their investigation were not true secrets as much as there was information that was publicly available.

It just did not make any sense at all. And what we have seen is a 25 percent increase on documents being classified almost across the administration. All we know that they refuse to submit to any oversight or any accountability, and the American people should know that.

In a moment of candor, a friend of ours, again a senior member of the Republican Caucus, had this to say. He aptly characterized recent congressional oversight of the administration. This is Mr. RAY LAHOOD, a very solid Member and someone respected on both sides of the aisle. These are his words, not mine. This is Ray LaHood, whom the Speaker and every Member in this body knows and respects.

Mr. RYAN of Ohio. Good man.

Mr. DELAHUNT. “Our party controls the levers of government. We are not about to do, to provide oversight and to give the American people a voice when wrongdoing is evident, et cetera, et cetera.”

In other words, you have a shroud of secrecy that has descended around the democratic institutions that are controlled by the majority party. That is dangerous.

Mr. RYAN of Ohio. If the gentleman will yield, this is about protecting their party. If the Republicans control the House and the Senate and the White House, and they are not being investigated to find what went wrong, whether it was Katrina or the CIA leak or Karl Rove or “Scooter” Libby or the Vice President’s role in all this, or how are we going to balance the budget, if the Republican Party is not willing to investigate these situations, then they are putting the Republican Party before the interests of the country. And that has been the consistent modus operandi of this institution.

Mr. DELAHUNT. And if you disagree with them, what happens?

Mr. RYAN of Ohio. You get punished.

Mr. DELAHUNT. Right. Ask General Shinseki, who was dismissed when he disagreed, when he gave just a different opinion to the one that some officers that were going to be required in Iraq. He said 300,000. The then-Under Secretary of Defense, Mr. Wolfowitz, said, Hey, that is vastly overrated. Subsequently, we have discovered that the good general was correct.

What about Larry Lindsey, who was an economic adviser to the President and who came out with an estimate that the range of dollars that would be necessary in Iraq would go from $500 billion to $200 billion. We are way past $200 billion, $250 billion. But the administration, the White House, kept saying it will not exceed $60 billion. The American people should remember that.

And what happened to Larry Lindsey? He got bumped too.

Mr. MEEK of Florida. If my colleague will give out the Web site before we have to close.

Mr. RYAN of Ohio. We want an opposition to take this Congress and this country in a new direction, change the way we are going and derive some independence. We are at 30somethingdems@mail.house.gov.

That is 30, the number, at mail.house.gov.

Mr. MEEK of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the Members for joining us here this hour. I look forward to being back on the floor, all of us, in one more hour when my colleague claims his hour so that we can continue sharing good information not only with the Members but the American people.

Mr. Speaker, I thank the Democratic leadership for allowing us to have this hour.

THE PRESIDENT, AND THE WAR ON TERROR

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. FORTENBERRY). Under the Speaker’s announced policy of January 4, 2005, the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. KING) is recognized for 60 minutes.

Mr. KING of Iowa. Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the opportunity to be recognized as I get organized here. I would point out that it is rare that I have had the privilege to listen to this dialogue here tonight. I know that this group comes to the floor nearly every night, and that shows a certain kind of tenacity, and I appreciate that they put this into this. But I wanted to just start down the list of some of the things that I heard and address some of the remarks.

I happen to have seen a poster that I hope was not presented here, because I believe it would have challenged the mendacity of the President, and I believe that would have been out of order here in these Chambers, Mr. Speaker. So I hope that kind of poster is never presented. But I will say that I have heard that challenge made in a number of different oblique ways.

I have looked into the eyes of this President, and I think there is a distinction that should be made in a very clear way to the people here on the floor every night, the Republican Group and all the Members of this Congress, Mr. Speaker, and the people in this country, and that is there is a difference between a mistake and a lie.

I look back on a Presidential campaign, and I remember the face and the voice of Charlton Heston as it came on television over and over again. He said to the previous President over the airwaves of television, “Mr. President, when you say something that’s wrong and you don’t know that it’s wrong, that’s a mistake. When you say something that’s wrong and you know that it’s wrong, that’s a lie.” That distinction seems to be lost amongst many of the Members of the minority party in this Congress.

And by the way, I would not concede that the President has made a statement that was even wrong, let alone a mistake, and certainly a long ways away from a lie. When you look into the eyes of this man we have as our commander in chief, you see those eyes look back at you with conviction. You hear it in his voice, you can see it in his bearing, and you can see it in his actions.

I would like to go back to an event that maybe was not designed to be spoken about necessarily in public, but I think it speaks well of this President, so I want to mention it at this time.

A few Members of Congress were invited to the White House for a small luncheon. It was on a Monday noon, and I recall it was the Monday noon after the Columbia had gone down on Saturday. It was a hard time for all of us. We saw our space program go up in flames, the lives of brave men and women that were up in space. We knew that our NASA program was going to be suspended for a good, long time.

Thankfully, we are back on track, at least the degree.

I was surprised that the President had gone ahead with the luncheon that day, because I believed he would be taking care of so many issues that he would not have time to sit and talk with the people he did. There were maybe a dozen, 15, 20 people in the room, a few of the President’s closest staff and about 10 or so, maybe a dozen Members of Congress, myself among them.

As we sat around the tables and had our lunch, the President got up and stood at an old, rickety, wooden podium, a podium not as stable as this one. I wondered if it was really quite suitable for the White House. And as he leaned on the podium this way and that way, we went through the whole spectrum of issues that we were concerned about at the time, Mr. Speaker.

He talked about the impending operations in Iraq. He talked about our national security and al Qaeda, and about September 11. He talked about the overall budget and the tax cuts that we needed to stimulate this economy. And he talked about education. Now, remember, we had not gone into Iraq at that point. It was speculated about certainly, but we had not gone in at that point.

As he got through the education cases, he said, just a minute. I want to back up a minute and I want to tell you this with regard to Iraq. My critics have me wrong on Iraq. The media has me wrong on Iraq. There is only one person that orders our men and women into battle, and that is the person that hugs the widows and the widowers of those who do not come back home.

I will never forget the tone of his voice, the look in his eye, and the look on his face. He told me afterwards that to finally give that order, he knew it was going to be hard, but it was a lot harder when the time finally came that he had to make that decision and give that order.

I look at this entire operation in this view of the war in the Middle East and in this war against terror and this war against militant Islamic extremism and I will always understand that this is not a President that would give an order that would put anyone in harm’s way and do so for any reason other than a profound conviction that it was necessary for the protection, the preservation, the future of the people in this country and the destiny of the United States of America. Never would that order come unless it fit that standard, unless it fit that very high standard and that qualification.

The order was given. And it seems as though there are a couple hundred Members in this Congress that do not understand this war against terror, as we do. We understand that it was necessary to pay this price, to prevent the kind of thing that we had on September 11. He talked about the impending operations in Iraq. He talked about the overall budget and the tax cuts that we expected in the Congress.

He talked about the impending operations in Iraq. He talked about our national security and al Qaeda, and about September 11. He talked about the overall budget and the tax cuts that we needed to stimulate this economy. And he talked about education. Now, remember, we had not gone into Iraq at that point. It was speculated about certainly, but we had not gone in at that point.

As he got through the education cases, he said, just a minute. I want to back up a minute and I want to tell you this with regard to Iraq. My critics have me wrong on Iraq. The media has me wrong on Iraq. There is only one person that orders our men and women into battle, and that is the person that hugs the widows and the widowers of those who do not come back home.

I will never forget the tone of his voice, the look in his eye, and the look on his face. He told me afterwards that to finally give that order, he knew it was going to be hard, but it was a lot harder when the time finally came that he had to make that decision and give that order.

I look at this entire operation in this view of the war in the Middle East and in this war against terror and this war against militant Islamic extremism and I will always understand that this is not a President that would give an order that would put anyone in harm’s way and do so for any reason other than a profound conviction that it was necessary for the protection, the preservation, the future of the people in this country and the destiny of the United States of America. Never would that order come unless it fit that standard, unless it fit that very high standard and that qualification.

something for the spirit. That does something for the esprit de corps, as they say in the part of the world that is in flames now, which would be France. And I may get to that subject matter before this hour is over, Mr.
Speaker.

I want to speak highly of the people who went to Afghanistan. We have lost 200 Americans in Afghanistan, liberated 25 million people. That is a legacy for the world and a legacy that the United States is leaving there for them to pick up as they earn their freedom.

Why is nobody saying, Pull your troops out of Afghanistan? Can their troops not handle the security? Can Afghanistan run their country themselves? Why is no one on this side of the aisle addressing that? Why are they not saying, Get the troops out of Afghanistan, or Kosovo, for example.

Mr. Speaker, the President that orered the troops into Kosovo promised the world that our troops would be back from there in 1 year. I have to go back and check the calendar, but I know it has been over a decade. I expect it is 12 years. They are still there.
No one on the other side of the aisle is saying, Bring the troops home. No one is saying the President previous to our current President Bush, no one is saying, He did not tell the truth to the American people when he ordered the troops into Kosovo promised that speech. I believe I was the only person listening to that speech. I believe I was the only Member of Congress that was there to hear the speech, the rest was downtown people and other Representatives.

She was not speaking to the faces of Congress, she was speaking to Americans. She saw that group as a few hundred Americans that had gone to diner to listen to her keynote address.

That brings us back to 1898. I recall a speech by President Arroyo of the Philippines here in Washington, D.C., at one of the hotels. My wife and I went to see that speech, we listened to that speech. I believe I was the only Member of Congress that was there to hear the speech, the rest was downtown people and other Representatives.

I remember the freedom in Afghanistan and the pride that the remaining troops had when they came home, how his father led them all in with a big American flag on the back of his motorcycle, and how the highway was lined with American patriots who stopped, took off their hats and saluted that young man that had given the ultimate sacrifice and helped free 25 million Afghans, and no one is saying, Let the 25 million Afghans left at al Qaeda go back into Afghanistan. No one is saying, Bring them home, Mr. President. What is the difference between Afghanistan and Iraq?

I think the people that are critics of the people in Iraq think there is no distinction between Afghanistan and Iraq. I believe from a national strategic standpoint they are one and the same. They are not the same by the numbers of casualties. By those that say, We have reached the 2,000 death casualties number, they are not the same by the Iraq. I believe from a national strategy between Afghanistan and Iraq?

President. What is the difference between Afghanistan and Iraq?

Qaeda go back into Afghanistan. No one is saying, Let the Taliban grow their ranks or let al Qaeda go back into Afghanistan. No one on the other side of the aisle is saying, Bring them home, Mr. President.

I want to compare that to the war we are in now against terror and the militant Islamic extremists.

We are having trouble today connecting the idea that you can have al Qaeda that is run out of perhaps the mountains in Pakistan, Afghanistan, up in that region. So al Qaeda is there, Pakistanis that set off bombs in the subway in London. We have first-and second-generation Middle Easterners, both North Africans and Middle Easterners, mostly Muslim, probably all Muslim, that are running all over the streets of Paris as I speak, burning approximately 1,000 cars a day, and buildings, and attacking the very facilities designed for them.

We know there are second-generation Pakistans that set off bombs in the subway in London. We have first- and second-generation Middle Easterners,

erners, mostly Muslim, probably all

So how is it that Saddam Hussein could have been cooperating with Osama bin Laden when bin Laden is an Islamic fundamentalist and Saddam Hussein is a secular Arab and a Baathist and a Sunni? They could not get along, surely, because they are not motivated by the same things.

We forget about this thing that the enemy of my enemy is my friend. Well, we are the enemy of those enemies. It is easy for them to be friends, whether you are secular or a fundamentalist. In fact, Saddam had the entire Koran written inside a mosque with his blood.
It is kind of hard to be secular when you give that much blood to be written inside a mosque.

So the kind of joined himself with his blood with Osama bin Laden. There is a philosophical connection. You do not have to be on a e-mail list and distribution tree from Osama bin Laden to be wired in with the philosophy worldwide. So this network rolls around here. People can work autonomously.

The bombers in the subway in London may or may not have had direct orders from Osama or Zarqawi or whoever else the leaders might be.

The people that are out running in the streets of Paris today, I do not think each one of them gets their daily marching orders from on high. It becomes spontaneous after awhile. You

No one is willing to be back in a year. But I would submit that this is the accuracy of that statement.

I want to speak highly of the people who went to Afghanistan, and 200 Americans have lost their lives there. One of my constituents was lost there, the son of a friend of mine. I stop at his grave, and I commemorate him and all of the soldiers we have lost from time to time. That is how I sym-boлиз arson his loss, it is how I remember ev-everyone.

Thank you for sending your missionaries over to the Philippines that bought us our language because we learned English, and today 1.6 million Filipinos leave the Philippines and go work anywhere else they want to in the world, that we could just retreat back to our own shores, our own borders, run the United States of America, dis. regard the rest of the world, not do any trade treaties, not engage in any for-ign conflicts. If we were not at risk, we should not be involved in anything ever going on in the world.

But we know what the history of the world is. In fact, I take you back to the years that built up to World War II, and I want to compare that to the war
we are in now against terror and the militant Islamic extremists.

We are facing trouble today con-

The people that are out running in the streets of Paris today, I do not think each one of them gets their daily marching orders from on high. It becomes spontaneous after awhile. You get a sympathetic support and a kind of synergy that grows and a philosophy that connects. And they start to think, if they can cause this trouble, so can I. And the next person can come along and figure out how to fly two planes into there and take it down. It does not have to be one command person sitting at the top distributing all of this.

Now going back to World War II, and that is that people in those days prior to World War II had a little trouble connecting how it could be that a national socialist, a Nazi like Hitler, could be connected with and allied with a fascist like Mussolini in Italy. That did not quite fit. People said they are not philosophically connected. And we had the civil war going on in Spain, and people did not put it together as any kind of axis powers. There is no genesis of the axis powers.

Furthermore, how could, for example, the Soviet Union be allied with and make any deals with Hitler because they really are not philosophically connected. One is a Nationalist-Socialist and the other is a Socialist or a Communist, take your pick. And I say, if you take people’s freedom away at the point of a gun, you are a Communist. Stalin was a Communist.

You look across and you see that the revolt it was beginning to form itself in China, culminating in 1949. And looking at the Japanese, they invaded Manchuria and wound down the coast of China. They invaded Singapore. How in the world could the Imperial Japanese have something in common with the Nazis in Germany and be tied with an axis power effort of the fascists in Italy? And how does it work with the Soviet Union in the middle that really has a little bit of trouble figuring out who their friends are and who their enemies are?

All of that was an unfathomable equation to most people until September 1, 1939, when the Soviet Union, and I will say the Russians, and the Germans carved up Poland. It did not last very long. It was over in a matter of 3 weeks.

Then they began to see maybe they can find a way to cut a deal, shake hands and make a treaty. So World War II began. As it began, we did our best to stay out of it. We did a lend-lease program, and we tried to help the Allied powers.

The British essentially were standing there without a lot of help. The Australians were with them from the beginning, and then the attack came on Pearl Harbor from the Japanese. As soon as that happened, as quick as administratively it could be done, Hitler and Germany declared war on the United States.

Now it all starts to fit together. We know it from the historical perspective because we have seen it unfold. Now it makes sense. Now we do not even ask the questions: What are the philosophical differences between Nazism, Fascism, Japanese Imperialism, and the Communism that was Russia at the time? How did they all get together?

Well, if you have a common interest, you can be joined together. This common interest of the United States, this great Satan that they declare us to be, is plenty enough to join together the people that danced in the streets when the Twin Towers were hit on September 11, 2001, plenty enough to bind them.

We should understand by now this enemy far better than we do, and it is predictable what is taking place in France right now. And I do not remember if this is the 12th or 13th night of riots going on in France.

The population of France, perhaps 10 percent, is Muslim. These people have come from North Africa and the Middle East. France opened up their doors and said, let us have an open border policy.

We will respond.

I am starting to hear they did not make jobs for them, but I am not sure that is the government’s job. I do not think government can create jobs. You have to set the structure and let the private sector do it. And we recognize the French have a different view.

What I saw were probably hundreds and perhaps thousands of radical Middle Eastern, North African Muslim demonstrators running all over the place with Molotov cocktails, torching trucks, living in streets, attacking schools and libraries and churches. Yes, churches. You will listen to CNN for a long time before you will hear “church burned in France.” And you will listen to ABC, NBC and CBS a long time before you will hear the words “church burned in France.”

In fact, we will listen to them for a long time before they will say “Muslim youth” torch anything in France. They will say “youth,” “disgruntled youth,” “unemployed youth,” “disenfranchised youth.” But they do not want to say “Muslim youth attack France.”

So what do the French do when they are being attacked? Essentially we could define it as a civil war going on there right now. Had I been Jacques Chirac, I would have declared martial law a long time ago. I would have put the French troops out into the streets. I would have established a curfew. I would have had people on the rooftops with infrared sniper rifles. We would have said looters will be shot on sight. Anybody with a molotov cocktail, we will shoot that molotov for you from the roof so you can experience what it is like when you are at the other end of that bomb.

None of that is happening. They had their high-level meeting and put out some warnings; and as far as I know, they arrested 250 people or so. They have not done the hard things that needed to be done early to shut this off. So instead, 1,000 Frenchmen and women put the tri-color banner on and marched in the street for peace.

Well, they have got a little trouble over there, Mr. Speaker, because we have an enemy that is not interested in negotiations. They are not interested in hand-holding. They are not interested in talking. They are interested in killing the people who are not like them.

And, by the way, we are not guilty of doing something. We are not guilty because of something one or failed to do. We are guilty and deserve a death penalty by their viewpoint because of who we are, what we are, what we are born; and it cannot be rectified. So we cannot talk and negotiate with these people. This is really difficult for the French, Mr. Speaker, because when 10 percent of their population lives within them and among them and they are out there burning things, some of which you built and provided those facilities for them, day care centers, libraries, the churches. I do not think they are burning any mosques. I am pretty confident they are not. But a people that are determined to kill them, and yet there is no organized head from the top to the people below. The French cannot surrender to Osama bin Laden. They cannot find him. They cannot find Zarqawi and surrender to him. In fact, if every Frenchman held up a white flag, and I imagine some have by now, there is no organized surrender to. They do not want us to surrender. They want to kill us. They want to take over Western Civilization. They want to destroy Western Civilization.

And I happen to believe that Western Civilization, as civilizations go, has been a great gift to all the people in the world. I would be willing to state also, Mr. Speaker, that all of the missionaries that have ever gone to Africa or to anywhere in the world, and God bless them for what they have done and it has been a lot of good work, free enterprise capitalism has done more for the world, more for the well-being of humanity than all of the missionaries that ever went anywhere from a standard-of-living standpoint, from a medical care standpoint.

I would submit, Mr. Speaker, that the investment of capital and the desire for profit has developed this technology that has raised everyone’s standard of living worldwide. We are not guilty because of something we have done or cause of something we have done. We are innocent, because we have research and development for pharmaceuticals, for example, for new surgery techniques, for preventative health care, most of that was driven as a desire to make a little money. Well, a good thing Americans do want us to surrender to. They do not happen. A good thing that we have a motivation in this country to lead the world in patents, lead the world in creativity. We have that because we have freedom. That all came from Western Civilization.

Mr. Speaker, this is the Western Civilization that our enemy wants to destroy, this great gift to the world, this descendant that we can trace back to; and I will say Western Civilization has descended from the Greeks, the Age of Reason, the age where the Greeks sat around and analyzed and set up a structure that let them rationalize their way through and establish science as the beginning of the rationalization that has allowed us to develop technology. And the Greeks took great pride in their ability to reason. And there were philosophies and we can name many of them.

And as the Age of Enlightenment developed, we saw the technology come. We saw some of the mass production come. We saw that, as that technology and science took a step forward, Western Civilization has successfully manifested itself in the Age of Enlightenment in France just in time to be transported across the Atlantic Ocean and arrive in the United States of America where it found the most fertile ground it could have imagined because here we were in the United States establishing a free country, a free country unfettered by taxes, by regulation, by restrictions, by managed economies, by managed societies, where we let people go out and invest capital and the sweat off their brow and their labor and to grow technology at the same time and energize this manifest destiny and settle this continent, the lightning rod, the fertile ground here in the United States for Western Civilization to establish itself.

And, yes, we descended from Europe, but we are different than Europe. And I will argue this to the people, it does not take a lot of science, a lot of Muslim immigrants that are there. But it is a whole different political than the Dutch areas that I represent in northwest Iowa, where they are very conservative. They would not think of ending someone’s life at the end of life. They believe in life being sacred from conception to natural death. Life is sacred. They have abortion. They have legalized drugs, the right to die, the right to refuse treatment, the right to refuse to be transferred here to the United States because they left there to get away from some of those things. They knew what they wanted to get away from. They knew what they wanted to establish: That is just an example of the many people who came over here for religious freedom. They brought their standards with them. And the strength that we have in this Nation, Mr. Speaker, is a strength of a three-legged stool built where he this Western Civilization that we have.

And I will argue this: that the strength comes from Judeo-Christian values, free enterprise capitalism, and Western Civilization. Science and technology. And it started in the Age of Enlightenment and all of its descendents came over here where we had all of these natural resources and this unfettered free enterprise capitalism to join with this Age of Enlightenment and blossom this economy that was here and established more patents than any country had ever created, more productivity, more freedom, more opportunity, more economic growth. And all of that would have created an imperialistic Nation that would not have just been manifest destiny out to the Pacific Ocean, but imperialistic to dominate the rest of the world.

What kept us from doing that, Mr. Speaker? Our Judeo-Christian moral values, and a robust desire to occupy or command or own the world. We recognize our responsibility for freedom. We recognize our freedom comes from God. We have a morality and a responsibility to restrain ourselves because of the Judeo-Christian foundation that is the culture of this country. No matter how one tries to secularize America, we have a Judeo-Christian foundation that is part of everything that we do. And when I say that, that’s what I take that that have held us back, that has caused us to try to project and promote our way of life to the rest of the world without imposing it on the rest of the world.

Which brings me back, Mr. Speaker, to Iraq, Iraq where we have lost more than 2,000 Americans. 300 to 400 of them were not combat deaths, but they gave their lives for freedom and liberty just the same. And I have held some of those widows and looked in the eyes and prayed with them, the mothers, the fathers. It is hard, but they are some of the most patriotic people that I have met. And some of the most meaningful times I have ever had as a Member of this United States Congress have been standing in that living room, understanding and to some extent trying to take some of the pain away from a family.

Mr. Speaker, Iraq is a country that is a cell. It is a place where, yes, there was al Qaeda; yes, Saddam did send agents around the world; yes, he did provide sanctuary for the first planner and strategist for the first attack on the Twin Towers; yes, he did send one of his security operatives, who was a colonel in the Iraqi military security, over to Malaysia. He was there. He was in the meeting that planned the second attack on the Twin Towers. Not only that, but there were al Qaeda training camps in Iraq. And whether or not there were massive quantities of weapons of mass destruction in Iraq, the President could not take that chance. We cannot take the chance of having hundreds of thousands of people there and the ability to fund this kind of enemy and someone who has continually funded terrorism around the world, give him weapons of mass destruction.

And, by the way, a lot was made of David Kay’s report when he came back to this Congress and reported. As I listened to the other side of the aisle, their interpretation was there were no weapons of mass destruction in Iraq; David Kay said so. And I read the report. I read the report. He said that he was sure. He has continually funded terrorism around the world, give him weapons of mass destruction.

And, by the way, it does not take a lot of bacterial germ agent to produce a lot of problems. And I would argue that if you give me $2 million and put $1 million in one coffee can and $1 million another coffee can and give me a posthole digger and send me to California with a GPS, I will go out there and bury those two coffee cans somewhere and look for those $2 million. There is almost no chance of finding that. And that is about what chance we had of finding some of the weapons of mass destruction. And we are doing actually digging up different weapons in Iraq that we stumble across. I read an article just the other day.

But I would argue this to the people on that side of the aisle: we know Saddam Hussein had weapons of mass destruction. He used them against Iran. No one argues that. He used them against his own people in Kurdistan.
and killed at least 5,000 people there, perhaps more. In fact, I met with the judges in the tribunal, and in a moment we will hear from the gentleman from Texas (Mr. BURGESS). Those three judges talked about, if I have got the number right, and I am going to ask Mr. KING, if I have got the number right, but it was over 100,000 Kurds killed and slaughtered by Saddam. I do not know how many were by gas, at least 5,000.

But I would argue this: either Saddam Hussein had significant quantities of weapons of mass destruction, and we know because he used them on Iran and on the Kurds and other places, either he had those quantities or he used up his last can of mustard gas on the Kurds. Is there anybody over here willing to say they believe Saddam Hussein, out of all that inventory that he had those quantities or he used up his last can of mustard gas on the Kurds and we just lied to America because against the Iranians and the Kurds, used up his last can of mustard gas and we just lied to America because we were in breach of its international obligations, failure to follow United Nations resolutions, oppression of their own people, using weapons of mass destruction against his own people and, perhaps very interestingly, the violation of Public Law 105–338 which was passed in a previous President’s administration in 1998 where it was a sense of Congress that it was imperative for the United States to support efforts to remove from the power the current Iraqi regime and promote the emergence of a democratic government to replace that regime. That was passed in 1998, and we had to wait until 2003 to have a President who had the courage to actually execute that. I am glad we have a President who had that wisdom, because I would not like to think of the alternative. I am glad we had in 25 or 30 years time had we not taken the effort that has been undertaken in Iraq.

The gentleman from Iowa (Mr. KING) is quite right. We were in Iraq in August. It was not there. Boy, big steps. Every time I go to that country, it is incredible the amount of work that has been accomplished, hard work in sometimes tough, tough climatic conditions, the weather is hot in the summer, cold in the winter, dusty all year-round, and then of course the constant threat of danger from terrorists and insurgents who live in that country.

But the actual quote that the gentleman was talking about from the words of Chemical Ali, the man who was responsible for the killing of the Kurds in Halabja, and he was accused of killing 180,000 Kurds. Chemical Ali’s defense of that was, it was not one over 100,000, and I do not know why you continue to lie about it. So perhaps he will get his day in court soon. I hope that is true.

Mr. Speaker, I had been on the Floor earlier tonight talking about the debate that we have on the budget, and I know the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. KING) has referenced some of those points. I do get so frustrated, and the group that was here the hour before us, continuing to vilify the productive sector of our society, the productive segment of our society that provides the tax revenue for us to be able to do all of those free market capitalism things that the gentleman from Iowa referred to, all of those things that we want to give back to people who are less fortunate than ourselves. All of those things are made possible because of the productive segment of society. This angst over the $55 billion that was returned to the most productive segment in society in May of 2003, legislation that I voted for and I believe the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. KING) voted for, this $55 billion they desperately want to have back. But what has that $55 billion that we passed in May of 2003, what has that $55 billion done? It has given us 262 billion additional dollars in tax revenue for fiscal year 2005, the fiscal year that just ended on September 30.

So, Mr. Speaker, to get back the benefit of that $55 billion that we reinvested in the American economy, we would have to raise taxes, not that $55 billion, but you would have to double that and double that again to get the same number of dollars back to the Federal Treasury that the tax relief provided in May of 2003. I think one of the most telling things I have seen in the past several days as we prepare for the debate was a quote from Roll Call from just yesterday. This fall is not the time for Democrats to roll out a positive agenda, said a House Democrat aid. That is some of the most unfortunate language that I have heard since coming to this House a year-and-a-half ago. It is so bereft of ideas, if they are intimidated or frozen by their leadership, if they are afraid to show up for the debate, then that is truly one of the saddest comments on this body and this country.

Because we need their ideas. We need their enthusiasm, we need their participation. I think, Mr. Speaker, hopefully, over the days and weeks to come, we will see more of that. We will see more of a willingness to have and to engage in debate, and not just the talking points that are in the top drawer of your desk. We can have talking points read to us by a commentator on CNN. We do not need have more. We have here and read their talking points, we need them to come down here where really it should be the free exchange of ideas. This should be the marketplace of great ideas in this country where they are talked about. So I would welcome the opportunity if the other side would some day wish to do that.

Mr. Speaker, I know the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. KING) has some other very important data that he wants to share with us, and I yield back to the gentleman.

Mr. KING of Iowa. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Texas (Mr. BURGESS), a personal friend, a good friend, and such a good friend that he is over working at night in his office and he sees me having a little difficulty with my voice and comes over to help me out. That is the kind of camaraderie we have here. We have seen a lot of Iraq together, and we do see it through the same eyes, and I appreciate his 4 trips over there and my 3 trips over there, and each time we are there, the troops appreciate it. But I cannot let my colleague appreciate them a great, great deal, and it is an honor to be with them at a time like that.

There are so many pieces of subject matter. Mr. Speaker, that I really intended to talk about tonight, and as I got into the depths of this Iraq issue and this worldwide war we are fighting, militant Islamic extremists, I wanted to make sure that we defined our enemy, and defined who this enemy is. There are a lot of places on this globe, and they are perhaps 16,000 Madrasas in Pakistan alone, places where they teach a kind of fundamentalism that sets the framework, sets the ideologies, the foundations that go into an active hatred. France and Great Britain perhaps are higher populations and more concentrations and further along in the growth and development of the kind of societies that require and demand what they want. They have rejected assimilation, they do not want to live as French or British. In fact, many of them do not really want to live as Americans. So I am a great proponent of assimilation. I will not take up that subject.

But I have 2 others that I would like to address here in the next 12 or so minutes that we have here. One of them is a list of the things that I heard from the people on the other side of the aisle and I really only got to subject number one. The next one that I heard was energy.

Mr. Speaker, there are many things we can do with energy in this country. We are not getting help from the Democrats. There is a strong segment of I will call them environmentalist extremists. I do not claim to be an environmentalist myself. I am a conservationist. I have spent my life protecting soil and water. I have built more terraces than, I said earlier tonight, than any Member of Congress; waterways, farm ponds, larger reservoirs. You name it, we have protected the water and also protected our soil and some of the rain drop down through the soil profile. I believe in all of that. I am one of the people that has been up to ANWR, and I challenge anybody here in this Congress out of the 435, if you are opposed to going up there and drilling in ANWR and have not been there, the environmental success that has been established on the north slope.

We began drilling up there with that entire operation in 1972. You could fly an airplane over there and see the oil fields in the north slope and they could look down from a thousand feet, and they would not know they were over the oil slope oil fields. They would say, where are the derricks? Where are the pump jacks? Where are the oil spills? Where are the pipelines? Where are the roads? Where are the electrical lines? Where are the distribution systems? Where are they burning off the gas here? How come I do not see an oil field below me, when you tell me I am right over the oil slope oil fields. They would not make any allegations that there had been any CIA agent outed. It was the purpose of his investigation. He apparently did not discover that, or he would have brought an indictment for that purpose. A prosecutor cannot find it in 2 years, how can the 30-Something Group find it over here? I would like to hear some more details on that. By the way, I read Bob Novak’s column too and he argued that it was a common known thing that there was a CIA agent that was married to the gentleman who went to Niger, and I am not talking about Joseph C. Wilson, our Member of Congress who is Joe Wilson from South Carolina, we call him the good Joe. But the gentleman that went there via the CIA to Niger to look and see if Iraq was out there seeking to purchase yellow cake uranium, came back with a report that apparently conflicts his public testimony.

By the way, if you are a CIA agent and you are being paid to go to Africa and investigate as to whether Saddam Hussein is trying to purchase uranium so that he can develop nuclear weapons, weapons of mass destruction, I would not make the assessment that had that not been a classified report, or that individual going to come back here and give a report that says, well, yes, there were some people negotiating to do business with Niger, but no, I do not think they are trying to buy uranium. I do not know what else he would buy there, and neither did he. But he makes that report, that when he disagrees with his own report, he makes that public. Why kind of an agent of the CIA would do that, and why are we not challenging that in the Senate? Why are we not finding that out? I do not know. I would say that the impeachment of the President is not worth the wait until there is a trial and find out what really happened under those circumstances, Mr. Speaker. So it saddens my heart that these conclusions can be leaped to from the same people who would say that the impeached President was innocent until proven guilty. Talk about a culture of corruption. No, I do not believe it exists, Mr. Speaker. Mr. Speaker, looking at this clock, I want to finish up this subject matter here and it is of significant importance, especially to the Midwest, but all over this country, and that is the issue of methamphetamines.

I want to point out on this chart, this is the Iowa experience. Mr. Speaker, we have some of the worst meth abuse in Iowa than of anywhere in the country. We have busted quite a lot of method labs. There are only a couple of States that can compete with us in the number of meth abuse labs that there are. We recognize that it takes some things to make methamphetamines, the worst illegal drug this country has ever seen. It takes pseudoephedrine, ephedrine, or a product called PPA. Those things are all available in the Midwest. We have more experience with it than anybody else, Mr. Speaker. So we began addressing this.

When I was in the Iowa Senate about 5 years ago, we did some things to take some of that off the shelf. We did not do enough. So in our first try, we found out that these people are creative and they will find a way around you. So they wrote some new legislation. I was not involved in that. But I want to commend the Iowa legislature and the governor for signing it into law that was enacted on the first day of June 2005.

This red line on this chart, Mr. Speaker, here are the meth labs that were busted from the previous year, this year, for the same period of time, 2004-2005, meth labs running per month: 229, 185, 122, 127, 213, 146. A law was passed right here, kind of at the peak of the meth labs being busted. March is a big month. And they began, the retailers began pulling the precursors off the shelf by April. By May, by the end of May, we had seen a dramatic reduction in the number of meth labs that were busted by our, I will say, very efficient drug enforcement people in Iowa.

And that May number went down from 42 in May to 29 in June, to 25 labs only in July, to 12 in August, to 12 in September, to 10 in October, and then this is up until October 28. That is an 80 percent reduction in meth labs because we took the precursors off the shelf, except we made sure that moms that have kids that get sick that might not be able to get to the pharmacy, they could go down to the convenience store or the grocery store and pick up enough pseudoephedrine to get those kids through the next day.

And this is what you can buy in Iowa off the shelf today legally. This product here,pseudoephedrine. You have 30 milligrams active ingredient of pseudoephedrine in this product that is by one of our grocery stores, a good old home-grown Iowa chain grocery store. They private-label package this in a 360-milligram package because that is the amount that you can purchase for a single day in Iowa. And you can go out and do that the next day and the next day and the next day in Iowa, or you can go into the pharmacy, in either case, buy enough to purchase 7,500 milligrams. But in 1 day what I have on display back here, Mr. Speaker, is what I bought in a single day, and all but this from a pharmacy in Cherokee, Iowa.

Mr. Speaker, this represents the pseudoephedrine that you can purchase at one stop, all of these behind me that you can purchase in one stop in Iowa. And that is plenty enough to take care of a family for a good long time.

We have passed some legislation out of the Judiciary Committee today. Instead of limiting it to 360 milligrams a day, it limits it to 3.6 grams or 3,600 milligrams a day. We have a 7,500 milligram per month purchase that we can do in Iowa, but that quantity needs to be purchased from a pharmacist who will have to keep volume. The law that passed, the language that passed out of the Judiciary Committee today, that 3.6 grams a day will allow a meth cook to go and make 19 stops around through retail establishments. Now, they sign up each place. They give their ID each purchase, but there is a way to track one retail place to another. So they will go from place to place. They will do 19 stops. They will pick up perhaps 70 grams of pseudoephedrine, go home and make an ounce of methamphetamine and they can get that all done all before noon.

And that ounce of methamphetamine will last one addict 90 days, or their 1-day supply, and then they go sell the 89-day supply, go back again in the afternoon and produce another 90 days' worth of methamphetamine under law that came out of the Judiciary Committee today.

We can do better. I have introduced the Meth Lab Eradication Act. These are the conditions that are part of it. We have set it to comply with Federal law. Schedule 5 drug, penalties are associated with the Schedule 5. This was so easy to adapt to in Iowa with regard to the retailers, the pharmacists and the consumers that the adjustment, according to the author, of this bill was simply pathetically easy. We need to do that in this Congress so we can eradicate meth labs in America.

Mr. Speaker, I promised earlier tonight that I would solve all the world's problems in 60 minutes. And you know, in fact, it is possible, but I did not solve them all tonight. So I am going to plan to come back and keep working on the world's problems in an optimistic, solution-oriented way. And I appreciate the opportunity to address this Congress.

REPORT ON RESOLUTION PROVIDING FOR CONSIDERATION OF H.R. 4241, DEFICIT REDUCTION ACT OF 2005

Mr. PUTNAM (during Special Order of Mr. KING of Iowa), from the Committee on Rules, submitted a privileged report (Rept. No. 109-281) on the resolution H. Res. 542, requiring consideration of the bill (H.R. 4241) to provide for reconciliation pursuant to section 201(a) of the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2006, which was referred to the House Calendar and ordered to be printed.

OUTING OF CIA AGENTS

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. FORTENBERRY). Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 4, 2005, the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. RYAN) is recognized for 60 minutes.

Mr. RYAN of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, we appreciate the opportunity for the 30-something Working Group to be back in action, and our friend from Iowa has not solved all the world's problems tonight. We will take it from here. We are ready, willing, and able to make the country in a new direction. A couple of the issues that the other side has addressed, one is the meth labs. I had a meeting recently with some sheriff deputies in Trumbull County, Ohio, from Youngstown, and Ashtabula, Ohio, who were saying that they were unable to confiscate the methamphetamine labs because the drug program, the Federal drug task force program has been cut. So maybe we can work together in a bipartisan way to try to increase the funding for that, and you will be supportive, I am sure, so that we can make sure we crack down on these methamphetamine labs. This is something that we want to do.

Also, Mr. Speaker, the other side brought up the fact that a CIA agent was outed, and there was some disagreement. The prosecutor here, Mr. Fitzgerald, said that the reason Scooter Libby was not charged with outing a CIA agent is because he lied so much to the grand jury that he could not prove it. And he used the example, he said that I am like the umpire. I am the Federal prosecutor. I am the umpire. And as I was trying to make a decision here of whether or not he outed the CIA agent, Scooter Libby threw sand in my eyes. So I was not able to get to the point where I could actually charge him with outing a CIA agent because he threw sand in my eyes.

So he charged him with making false statements to a Federal agent, two counts of perjury to a grand jury, and one count of obstruction of justice. And how the other side could somehow say that that is all right, that is okay, I cannot believe that they could hold him with that. You just lied to a grand jury? That was all you did? Okay. Well, that is all right. You did not out a CIA agent, or at least we could not prove it. And before we get going here, there are some CIA agents, former covert operatives that I think would disagree.

Mr. MEEK of Florida. Those are third-party validators that were actual CIA agents. And I say to you, Mr. Speaker, that we do not even realize yet. Here is one from The Washington Post, a small Boston company, listed as Valerie Plame's employer, suddenly was shown to be a bogus CIA front and her alma mater in Belgium discovered it was a favored haunt of an American spy.

By Karl Rove and Scooter Libby and the executive branch outing Joe Wilson's wife, they put a lot of people in jeopardy, and they hurt our intelligence capabilities all over the world because now people who have dealt with Americans who went to the University of Belgium or who had dealings with Brewster-Jennings are now being looked upon as suspect. Not only that, the word now is that the spouses of American ambassadors are being looked at suspiciously because now people think just because Valerie Plame was the spouse of an American ambassador and she was a CIA agent, that every other spouse of an ambassador all over the world may be a CIA agent. This has ramifications, Mr. Speaker, that we do not even realize yet. And that has done nothing but weaken the country.

Now, here is the ultimate third-party validator on why the corruption going on in the White House right now must stop, because it is hurting our ability to fight the war on terrorism. They are weakening our ability to fight this war. This is Melissa, who was a 14-year covert CIA operative, and she was asked a question on “60 Minutes.” She says because we are talking about lives, and we are talking about capabilities, we do our work. We risk our own lives, we risk the lives of our agents in order to protect our country. And when something like this happens, it cuts to the very core of what we do. We are not being undermined by the
Mr. RYAN of Ohio. He is the deputy chief of staff in the White House, in the West Wing. Ms. WASSERMAN SCHULTZ. He has multiple titles, actually. I know that he has more than just that one title. And the President has not dismissed him or assigned him new duties or responsibilities. Mr. RYAN of Ohio. Why is that? Can I ask, can we have a discussion here, a serious discussion, you know, at 11 o'clock at night? Why would the President not fire him? Ms. WASSERMAN SCHULTZ. You know, let us just give them the benefit of doubt. Let us say we did not think the President should fire him. We do, but let us say, why has the President not suspended him at least until he called upon even the White House council to do an internal investigation? They are really good at coping with internal investigations and not allowing independent investigations of wrongdoing or potential wrongdoing. But he has not even suggested that his duties should be suspended so that you can clear the cloud away.

Mr. RYAN of Ohio. Maybe we should clear up exactly what happened here. In the indictment on or around June 12 or 13, Karl Rove told "Scooter" Libby about Joe Wilson's wife. On or about June 12 Karl Rove told Libby about Joe Wilson's wife and that Bob Novak was going to probably write an article about it. So Rove was tipping off Libby that this article was going to be in the paper and we need to deal with this somehow. That was in June. On September 14, Karl Rove tells ABC News that he does not even know who Joe Wilson is or his wife or anything else. And then 2 years later, I think it may have been last summer, he reiterates the fact. Okay, so we have Karl Rove telling Libby one thing about Valerie Plame and then telling the American people a few months later he does not know anything about it. That is why Karl Rove is no longer fit to serve the American public because he did not lie to ABC News. He did not lie to CNN. Karl Rove lied to the American people. Period. Dot. End of story. And he tried to revise, he tried to recant but he just cannot do it. This is the fact. The indictment says he lied to the American people, He needs to be fired. I mean, no one here would accept that from their staff. Mr. MEEK of Florida. If I can, can I just be the majority right now? Mr. RYAN of Ohio. I would love for the gentleman to be the majority right now.

Mr. MEEK of Florida. Can I role play here you the majority for a minute for the Republican majority? What they are doing in response here in this House to this gentleman who has just pointed out that is public record, third-party validator, using the very words of these individuals. This is what the majority is doing.

We read it in the paper. We are hearing it on the news. People all over the world are talking about these allegations. The indictment has quotes of individuals where they contradict one another as it relates to the outing of a CIA agent, but they are my friends. This is not what we are saying. That is what the American people are thinking and what they know. That is the reason why this Congress has between a 35 percent approval rating to 31 percent approval rating. It is not our doing. It is the doing of the majority that are not doing their job.

Mr. RYAN of Ohio. Almost 60 percent of the American people believe that Karl Rove needs to resign. 60 percent. This is not me or my colleagues or the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. DELAHUNT), who failed a little bit on us tonight. We tried to squeeze him into the 30-things Group. We tried to help him wake up and put their pants on one leg at a time or grab their purse or what have you; and they are good people. But it is the leadership. That is the reason why the votes are extended.

Now, just like I have this mire here and this podium, there will be some Members who were asked to speak at a Veterans Day event and they are going to talk about the war on terror. And they are going to talk about winning the hearts and minds of Iraqis and other groups that are out there. And they are going to talk about the troops and their commitment. But I tell you one thing that they will not talk about. They will not talk about the fact that we know what is going on.

We are not going to call these people before the House or speak questions like we are supposed to when CIA agents are outed, when national security is jeopardized. We are not going to, when there is almost close to prima facie evidence that it jeopardized national security. And we have a friend, who was to find out and seek out those countries that have weapons of mass destruction for the reason that we went to war in the first place.

I am just in the middle of what they are doing or not doing. By the way, I want to let you know that I have voted to make sure that you veterans of wars that allow me to go into a free House in the Congress to represent you, that I have voted to increase your copayments. I voted to make sure that the Committee on Veterans’ Affairs over the next 5 years makes $798 million in cuts that very well will result in two things: one, making sure that you pay higher fees in Veterans Affairs Department for a death benefit, or make sure that you wait longer to see a specialist in the Veterans’ Department and clinics and hospitals.

That will not be said. That will not be shared with those veterans. But I guarantee you, as we sit here, letter after letter after letter from these groups that are saying that they are against what this Republican majority is doing. So when we see public know how to the United States and throughout the world that it is okay as long as it is the Republican White House and the Republican Congress that is condoning it to happen.

In the Senate, in the Senate I am so glad that the Democratic leadership used Rule 21 to call them into a closed session, to force the Republican majority to come with Democrats and Republicans, three on each side, to finish looking into the allegations of false information given to the Congress when it was not the time to say this.

So when we start talking about the budget and we start talking about corruption and cronyism, it is happening in the moment. And I am so glad that I am part of a party and have leadership that is willing to stand up on behalf of the American people.

Ms. WASSERMAN SCHULTZ. Does the gentleman remember when we were growing up, it seemed like any time you turned on C-SPAN or there was a shot of this Congress doing something, when we were kids, it was a shot of the Congress in a hearing, the Iran Contra hearings or some kind of investigatory hearing that would immediately be called. The ink on the accusation hearing that would immediately be hearings or some kind of investigatory hearing that would be called. The ink on the accusation that would immediately be hearings or some kind of investigatory hearing that would be called. The ink on the accusation hearing that would immediately be hearings or some kind of investigatory hearing that would be called.

Ms. WASSERMAN SCHULTZ. While you are on the rule, about an hour ago, the Rules Committee reported a rule which are the directions that are given to the House for legislation that we consider each day. The Rules Committee gives us the parameters under which we can operate and act on each bill.

So, the rule for tomorrow that has come out on a party-line vote for this budget reconciliation bill tomorrow, is called a closed rule. You may be asking, well, what is a closed rule, what does that mean? A lot of the terms we use in Washington are cryptic.

A closed rule means that no one can offer any amendments to this bill. We will have, using the term that people have heard so often, an up-or-down vote on this budget reconciliation bill.

A short time ago, I recall that one of the distinguished members of the Rules Committee was discussing with us how open the process is and how much input we as Democrats in the minority party have had in the talk about how many amendments we have been able to get in and have considered.

This document, this bill, that we are considering tomorrow is perhaps the most important piece of legislation which will have the most far-reaching impact on all of us. And I am so glad that the Democratic leadership has extended an invitation to all of us to be there to vote on this budget reconciliation bill.
cutting child care, $17.5 billion in financial assistance to college students. The list goes on and on, and the Republican leadership, because we have got to call it like it is, created a closed rule so that we cannot offer any changes to the bill tomorrow, none. That is the democracy.

Mr. RYAN of Ohio. One of the things, among others, what we would try to do, as we try to reconcile the budget, is not give $70 billion in tax cuts that go primarily to people who make more than $500,000 i.e., their campaign contributors, a tax cut.

Ms. WASSERMAN SCHULTZ. Would I ask a question?

Mr. RYAN of Ohio. Sure.

Ms. WASSERMAN SCHULTZ. I think it is always helpful for us to provide information to people who do not really know much about this process here. It is kind of arcane. Maybe you could help describe to people who are wondering about the process, we have to name each piece of legislation, so that it is descriptive for the membership.

Mr. RYAN of Ohio. Supposed to be.

The words at the top are supposed to identify the members.

Ms. WASSERMAN SCHULTZ. Ideally, it is actually supposed to define what we are doing.

Mr. RYAN of Ohio. You would think a deficit reduction bill would reduce the deficit.

Ms. WASSERMAN SCHULTZ. Yes, of course. The name of this legislation is the Deficit Reduction Act of 2005. I am a freshman and I do not know the rules in that book as well as the two of you, but they also gave $70 billion in tax cuts, which means their deficit, this is what is great about Washington, their deficit reduction package actually increases the deficit by $20 billion because they just cannot resist putting more than $500,000 in tax cuts, which is kind of arcane. Maybe you could help describe to people who are wondering about the process, we have to name each piece of legislation, so that it is descriptive for the membership.

Mr. RYAN of Ohio. Supposed to be.

The words at the top are supposed to identify the members.

Ms. WASSERMAN SCHULTZ. Ideal-ly, it is actually supposed to define what we are doing.

Mr. RYAN of Ohio. You would think a deficit reduction bill would reduce the deficit.

Ms. WASSERMAN SCHULTZ. Yes, of course. The name of this legislation is the Deficit Reduction Act of 2005. I am a freshman and I do not know the rules in that book as well as some of my senior colleagues. So I wonder if there is anything in the book, the rules book, that says you cannot be inaccurate or misleading.

Mr. RYAN of Ohio. Let us be a little more specific. Maybe the 30 Something Working Group will offer an amendment to the House rules to say that a bill specifically called the Deficit Reduction Act.

Ms. WASSERMAN SCHULTZ. Actually has to reduce the deficit.

Mr. RYAN of Ohio. Yeah.

Ms. WASSERMAN SCHULTZ. Why would you want to do that?

Mr. RYAN of Ohio. Let us try.

Mr. MEEK of Florida. All right. Here is a perfect example of what we call the Potomac 2-Step. You have just outlined a perfect example. Some may say hoodwink. Others may say bamboozle.

But here in Washington we call it Potomac 2-Step. It is a dance where, hey, I am going this way, you go that way, you swing your arms.

Mr. RYAN of Ohio. They call it the bootleg: fake left, go around the other side.

Mr. MEEK of Florida. Let me just tell you what they are doing.

Presently, they would say it is reducing the deficit. They are not saying within another 2 weeks, we are going to give people that make over half a million dollars a year the biggest tax cut they have ever seen. One Member described it on that side as we are going to help the productive people here in the United States; we are going to help the productive people. So I guess that means, American worker, if you make between $34,000 and $54,000 and you get an $840 tax cut, you are not necessarily in that group of the half a million folks.

I want you to go further on that chart, but just before we get too far away from what the Rules Committee did tonight on a party-line vote, you hear Members come to the floor and other Members are for fairness; we do not know why the Democrats will not offer their alternatives; they have nothing but complaints; it is almost un-American.

I am going to tell you what is un-American. Mr. Speaker, and I am going to tell you what is limiting the voice of the Democratic side over here.

The rule that was passed from the Rules Committee just moments ago in darkness, there, was not a television camera in that room. When we start talking about the back halls of Congress, it is our job here in the 30 Something Working Group, good or bad, we are supposed to expose what happens in the back halls of Congress.

Let me just read this. This is not something that I printed. This is what the gentlewoman from Florida (Ms. WASSERMAN SCHULTZ) just pointed out on H.R. 4241, what they call the Deficit Reduction Act of 2005, even though it is increasing the 2004 deficit and change. I did not put these in order.

Number 1, closed rule. Closed rule means that we cannot even offer an amendment to this Act when it comes to the floor, democrat or Republican. Let me just keep going here. This gets interesting.

Two, provides 2 hours of debate in the House, equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking member of the Committee on the Budget. That is where the Republican side gets 2 hours to talk about how good it is, the Democrats get 2 hours to talk about why we cannot offer anything to this budget, why are we cutting veteran benefits, why we are increasing student loan costs to students for our next generation of workers in this country, why can we not have more female engineers in this country, why are we putting what I call tax, they call fee, why are we putting additional tax on American families to educate their children.

Three, waive all points of order against consideration of the bill. Well, goodness gracious.

Ms. WASSERMAN SCHULTZ. What does that mean?

Mr. MEEK of Florida. That means if you have a point of order to the Speaker, that is waived, you are out of order. What do you mean by point of order? If something was found in the rule book tomorrow that violates the rules of this House and I want to make a point of order, you cannot make it because it has been waived by the Rules Committee.

Number 4, provides that all amendments printed in the Rules Committee report accompanying the resolution shall be considered as adopted.

Ms. WASSERMAN SCHULTZ. Without a vote?

Mr. MEEK of Florida. Without a vote. Should be considered as adopted.

That means it is already adopted. What are they meeting for? What is the 2 hours on both side? Why debate it? We did it because we are in the majority, and guess what, we have the power to do it. They are doing it.

They think they are muzzling the Democratic side. They are muzzling the people that sent us up here to represent them. That is what they are doing. That is the reason why this stuff happens at night here.

Number 5, this is not my order, Mr. Speaker. This is from the Rules Committee. Waive all points of order against provisions in the bill as amended. They have already, in their opinion, set the rules. They are setting the rules. They think they are muzzling the Democratic side. They are muzzling the people that sent us up here to represent them.

That is the reason why this stuff happens at night here.

Number 5, this is not my order, Mr. Speaker. This is from the Rules Committee. Waive all points of order against provisions in the bill as amended. They have already, in their opinion, set the rules. They are setting the rules. They think they are muzzling the Democratic side. They are muzzling the people that sent us up here to represent them. That is what they are doing. That is the reason why this stuff happens at night here.

Number 6, provides one motion to recommit, with or without instructions.

Ms. WASSERMAN SCHULTZ. Now, is that an opportunity for us to amend the bill or change it?

Mr. MEEK of Florida. No.

Ms. WASSERMAN SCHULTZ. What does that let us do?

Mr. MEEK of Florida. That is just an attempt by the individuals that have problems with this bill to recommend it back to committee. I mean, this is not something to change or improve or something comes to say, you know, if you just did not do what you are doing to free and reduced lunch for children, poor children in my community, I just cannot vote for this because I just cannot close a clinic which is only open in my rural area once every 2 weeks and now this may very well close it; all these billions of dollars in cuts to the veterans assistance and health care and death benefit, I just cannot vote for it in good conscience. So that means that that cannot even happen. When I say "they," I am talking about the Republican majority. When we talk about power, when we talk about an abuse of power, Mr. Speaker, that is what we are talking about.

I want to say it again, just in case someone missed it. This is not what we are doing, Mr. Speaker. This is what the Republican majority is doing on the Rules Committee.

Congressional Record — House

November 9, 2005

Mr. MEEK of Florida. No. No. It does not happen.

Ms. WASSERMAN SCHULTZ. So they never send a bill back to committee even if something may be wrong with it?

Mr. MEEK of Florida. No.

Number 7, provides that notwithstanding the operation of the previous question, the Chair may postpone further consideration of the bill to a time designated by the Speaker. Now, that is the out in number 7, and I can tell you, Mr. Speaker, in no way do I want to see the American people go through what the majority wants them to go through if this bill passes hypothetically tomorrow.

That allows the Republican majority to say, oh, the leadership, goodness, we could not get some of our Members to vote against their own constituents that sent them up here; we tried but it just could not happen because it was the wrong thing to do. They thought about it. Some slept on it. Some got calls from their veterans and from faith-based organizations that do what they can do on behalf of those that do not have as much as others; those that were concerned about the effects on the environment that is in this budget; those that cared about children to have an education environment. Mr. Speaker, where do you have kids on one end that had breakfast, lunch and dinner because their families were able to provide it versus those kids that could have been stricken by natural disaster or a father could have died or under this bill a single mother because we cut child enrollment dollars to help go after deadbeat parents that are not paying for it.

Mr. RYAN of Ohio. Can I say something. What we are trying to do here is move away from the country that says if you are born in the right neighborhood, with the right family, you are going to be fine, and if you are not born in the right neighborhood to the right family, the heck with you. That is what this is all about. I mean, if we have got to boil this down 30-Something-style and lay it out there, that is what it is. You cannot cut Medicaid. You cannot cut food stamps, foster care, child support enforcement, raise the fees on student loans.

Are we doing? This does not make any sense. We are a bit younger, on average, than most Members here; but this makes no sense. I do not know any other way to say it than this is crazy, what we are doing here. This makes no sense, at the same time we are giving half a million people, making half a million more here, huge tax cuts.

Mr. MEEK of Florida. It is not what we are doing, it is what the majority is doing.

Mr. RYAN of Ohio. It is late, and I appreciate my colleague correcting me. Mr. MEEK of Florida. It is not what we are doing.

Mr. RYAN of Ohio. It is what we are fighting against.

Mr. MEEK of Florida. It is what we are fighting against. And guess what? Those that come to the floor, and I guarantee there will be some come to the floor, and someone will give them a piece of paper, and they will say, Okay, thank you, and they will run up here, grab the mike and they will say, Why do the Democrats not offer something? Hello? The Rules Committee has spoken. It is done. Period. Dot. Even if someone had a great idea, they cannot do it. And there is a history of this kind of abuse here in the House and muzzling individuals and people with great ideas that want to help this country. But, better yet, the rule.

And this is America. This is not a Third World Country. This is not a Communist country. This is America.

Ms. WASSERMAN SCHULTZ. I want to elaborate on what my colleague is saying, because some people might think that this is unusual and that it is a rare occurrence that they would close that bill and not allow any amendments. This is just my first year, but I wanted to just check on what the Republican leadership's track record is in terms of allowing us the input that they say they so desperately want us to provide. There have been about 85 bills, as of last Thursday, which was November 3, 85 bills that we have considered on this floor that were amendable. There are lots of bills we consider that are under what is called the suspension calendar, and we vote those up or down. Those are the noncontroversial bills. But 85 bills.

Of the 85 bills that were potentially amendable, 38 of them were given restrictive rules where there were severe limitations on the amendments that were allowed to be offered. Severe. Fifteen of those bills were closed, like the one that we are considering tomorrow, meaning no additional amendments were allowed. No amendments at all were allowed. Plus three additional closed rules that were included in another bill. Now, there have been, of the 85, 12 open rules, meaning anyone can offer an amendment, those were appropriations bills, spending bills, which we always are allowed to offer amendments to.

So what it boils down to, and 10 were conference reports and 10 were procedural. But what that boils down to is that since I was elected and have served in Congress 11 months, we have had one bill, one substantive bill, that had an open rule, one where we could offer any idea we wanted. Now, we fight from Florida talked earlier about how we all put our pants legs on at a time. And I wear pants and sometimes I wear skirts, and sometimes I wear pajamas. I might be bringing those tomorrow because we are not sure how long we are going to be here and how long they are going to hold that vote open until they get their way. But we were also all elected by the same number of people, or we certainly represent the same number of people as the same 630 people. But we are not all not treated equally in this Chamber, because on our side of the aisle we are not allowed to provide the input that they say they want us to provide.

I actually just want to, if you do not mind, tell a little story, because we should demonstrate what is going on here in this bill tomorrow. Gene Sperling, who was at one time President Clinton's top economic adviser, he compared this budget and the cutting in the budget to cutting only peanut butter. I will share this story with you.

Imagine the following:

The father of a financially stretched family decides to live it up. He leases a fully loaded Hummer H1s for the bargain price of $9,750 a month, almost $10,000. As the family's financial situation deteriorates, the father calls the family together for a belt-tightening discussion. He holds up a jar of Whole Foods Peanut Butter. Do you realize we are spending $4.49 on this? We could be saving $2.04 if we bought Skippy Peanut Butter for only $2.45.

His teenage son responds, like, Dad, man, why are you on us about two bucks on peanut butter when you are spending like almost $10,000 a month on cars?

Then the father responds, Do not change the subject. We are talking about peanut butter.

Well, that is essentially what the leadership is saying by giving tax cuts to millionaires and the greedy, their cronies, and cutting programs for veterans, children, and the poor who are the payers and the taxpayers. We need to talk about the peanut butter, that is all that matters to us.

In some of the time we have left, we should let people know just exactly what the conscience vote is tomorrow, so that people know when we all go to sleep tonight just who is going to be able to wake up and look at themselves in the mirror and hold their head up high. We are being asked tomorrow to vote to cut $844 million from food stamps. They say there is fraud in the food stamp program and that we need to reduce waste.

Well, I held up this picture earlier tonight, and I will hold it up again, because I think it is very descriptive. There is the picture of the 25,000 people who lined up in Broward County today to apply for food stamps after getting hit by Hurricane Wilma. They started lining up at 3 a.m. They did not line up for emergency funding.

Mr. RYAN of Ohio. Those are new people. Those are people who were probably on food stamps.

Ms. WASSERMAN SCHULTZ. These are new people. The vast majority of people in this line were applying for the first time.

Mr. RYAN of Ohio. And there are a lot of other people in the country because the poverty rate has gone so high.

Ms. WASSERMAN SCHULTZ. And this does not come from FEMA money. This is not the emergency funding. This comes right out of the food stamp program.

We have cuts in child care. We have cuts that would prevent us from ensuring that deadbeat dads are pursued. There is a $1.9 billion cut from child support programs. As a result, parents will receive $7.1 billion, as the chart points out, less in child support over 5 years and $21.3 billion less over 10 years.

There is a $577 million cut from foster care. Now, I know there are colleagues of mine on the other side of the aisle who are just bristling at that possibility. They do not want to make it so that families cannot take children in.

Mr. RYAN of Ohio. We are not kidding here either. If you are watching at home, you might think these guys are out there telling a story.

Ms. WASSERMAN SCHULTZ. This is real.

Mr. RYAN of Ohio. This is real stuff. It is why we are up at 11:35 at night talking about it.

Mr. MEEK of Florida. My colleagues, it is not only what we are saying, it is what is in House Resolution 4241. You can go to the members that have not taken a look at that, they can look in the morning, read over it, have staff highlight exactly, verbatim, what we are talking about here.

I know the reason why the Rules Committee, Republican majority, closed the rule. I know why they did it. Because on this side of the aisle we will do what we tried to do in the Budget Committee. We will replace the cuts that they made to veterans' services and health care, we will replace that.

And guess what? Under the lights and in this Chamber they would have to go up, take my voting card out, they would have to go up to the machines that we have here and actually take out their voting card and put it in the machine and go on the record, on the board, saying that they are willing to cut child support enforcement.

I wonder what their State attorneys are going to say about that? And district attorneys are going to say when a single parent, nine times out of ten women, that are going to say when a single parent, nine times out of ten women, that are going to say and district attorneys and health care. We will replace that.

Committee. We will replace the cuts that are made to veterans, that will replace the cuts made to child enforcement.

Mr. Speaker, I have an amendment at the desk that will make sure that those oil companies that are celebrating historic record profits, that we not only talk about those record profits here in Congress, that we do something about it; and we make sure that those who cannot afford heating oil and LP gas this winter can receive a break on that. They stopped that from happening.

So when you start talking about where are the Democrats, where are their ideas? Well, guess what? We are not going to tell you that last night at 10 p.m., while some of you all were home asleep, we got them good. We shut them down. We put forth a rule that they cannot even introduce their ideas. And you know why they did it? Because they might very well have lost. And the people who would have had to take this card out and put it in these machines behind these chairs and vote for their constituents and the American people.

Mr. RYAN of Ohio. The American people did it not we, the Republican Party the power that they have to use it to suppress good ideas or to suppress other Americans' voices.

So the question be, as we are talking about the closed rule and all the procedural rules used here to shut down Democrats, many people would be saying. Well, what would you offer?

Well, a couple of things I can think of off the top of my head. One of the amendments we would offer on this floor is to strip the $16 billion that we are giving right now to the oil companies in corporate welfare. We would take that back. The Democrats, Mr. Speaker, would offer an amendment to repeal the $16 billion.

And the Democrats would offer an amendment on this floor tomorrow during the budget debate to pull back the prescription drug Medicare Part D and put in the bill a provision to allow the Secretary of Health and Human Services to negotiate down the drug prices.

I would also put in there that we would allow reimportation to drive the costs down. We would save the American taxpayer, with just those two or three amendments tomorrow, billions and billions and billions of dollars. And probably, over the course of the next few years, we would be able to pay for Katrina and be able to invest in our students through the Pell Grant and the student loan, and be able to make sure that every child has adequate health care.

That is what we would offer. So if you are sitting at home paying attention to this debate, those are a couple of the basic things the Democrats would do.

I yield to my colleague.

Ms. WASSERMAN SCHULTZ. Thank my colleague. And there is good news in all of this sadness. And that is that the word I can apply this piece of garbage that we are going to consider tomorrow. There is good news, because the voters get it. They know this country should be turned around and moved in a new direction, and they sent a very strong message yesterday.

We had a number of elections across this country yesterday, and in every single one that rose and fell on issues like these, who wonug The Democrats won. We will have a Democratic governor of Virginia, we will have a Democratic governor of New Jersey. All eight initiatives in California that would have abused the process, abused democracy, that would have harmed people had they passed in California, which were initiated by Republican Governors, Gore and Schwarzenegger, were repudiated by the voters of California. All eight were defeated.

So it is very clear that the American people are rejecting their agenda and want to go in a new direction.

Mr. RYAN of Ohio. We have the new ideas to take the country in a new direction and get away from this corruption and the cronyism of hiring friends to run major organizations like FEMA.

How rotten is the system, how corrupt is a system that the Republican Party will not use the wealthiest people, will not go to the oil companies or the pharmaceutical companies to pay for Hurricane Katrina or invest in the student aid and those kinds of things because they need the money for their campaign contributions. That is a corrupt system. That is what we want to change.

We want to move away from that and allow this body to once again become the independent body that it should be, that the Founding Fathers wrote up and it is something about it; and we make sure that those who cannot afford heating oil and LP gas this winter can receive a break on that. They stopped that from happening.

So when you start talking about where are the Democrats, where are their ideas? Well, guess what? We are not going to tell you that last night at 10 p.m., while some of you all were home asleep, we got them good. We shut them down. We put forth a rule that they cannot even introduce their ideas. We want to move away from that and allow this body to once again become the independent body that it should be, that the Founding Fathers wrote up and They did not do it for a great reason. They did it to get into the personal life of President Clinton.

But now we have public violations, violations of the public trust through CIA leaks, leaks of CIA prisons, and all of these nonsense, that has been going on. Let us restore some integrity back to this place and get rid of the three C's: corruption, cronyism, and the lack of competence.

Mr. MEEK of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I want to read Point No. 4. This paper is still a little warm because they just carried out this act. It states: “Provide that the amendment printed in the Rules Committee report accompanying the resolution shall be considered as adopted.

Why come to the floor tomorrow? We cannot offer an amendment.

Mr. RYAN of Ohio. People are going to make career decisions tomorrow.

Mr. MEEK of Florida. Yes, that is the bottom line. Some Member is going to make a career decision tomorrow because somebody told him to vote for something that they did not want to vote for in the first place.

We are going to make the right decisions, decisions on behalf of the American people. May the blocks fall where they may. There is going to be a difference between the Members and the followers in this Chamber. It is important that we let the American people know who is standing for them.

So Ms. WASSERMAN SCHULTZ talks about when judgment day comes every 2 years, when Democrats, Republicans and the one Independent we have, when people go to make their decision, I want them to think about the fact that they should vote principle over party. Do not go for, in the last minute what we call in some areas of this country, the okie-doke. Hey, I am strong on terror. I am with the trips. We have Members flying to Iraq. Thank you for fighting for our country; but do not talk, Mr. Speaker, like you become a veteran. I am just fresh off a vote cutting your future benefits. But, hey, I am with you all of the way. But as long as you stay enlisted, we stay with you.

Mr. Speaker, I want to give the Web site, located at 30SomethingDems@mail.house.gov.

Send an e-mail recommendation to the Members of this body tomorrow. And bring your PJ pants. We may be here into the wee hours of the morning. We want to apologize in advance to the veterans organizations we are supposed to be at Friday morning for speaking engagements because we may be here voting on this budget.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Dr. Barry C. Black, offered the following prayer:

Let us pray.

O God, who reigns forever. You are a shelter for the oppressed and a refuge in times of trouble. Give our Nation the shield of Your favor that it may bless our world. Guide our Nation’s legislative branch with wisdom, integrity, and unity. Strengthen the executive and judicial branches that they will serve Your purposes. Infuse each citizen with a desire to walk on the right road in order to honor You and serve this land we love.

Bless us all with strength of will, steadiness of purpose, and power to persevere. Remind us that it is better to attempt and fail in some great thing, rather than not to try at all. Lord, teach us to number our days that we may have hearts of wisdom. We pray in Your Holy Name. Amen.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The Honorable SAM BROWNBACK led the Pledge of Allegiance, as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

APPOINTMENT OF ACTING PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will please read a communication to the Senate from the President pro tempore (Mr. STEVENS).

The legislative clerk read the following letter:

U.S. SENATE
PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE
Washington, DC, November 9, 2005.

To the Senate:

Under the provisions of rule I, paragraph 3, of the Standing Rules of the Senate, I hereby appoint the Honorable SAM BROWNBACK, a Senator from the State of Kansas, to perform the duties of the Chair.

TED STEVENS, President pro tempore.

Mr. BROWNBACK thereupon assumed the chair as Acting President pro tempore.

RECOGNITION OF THE ACTING MAJORITY LEADER

Mr. BROWNBACK, today we are going to begin with a 1-hour period for morning business, and then we will resume consideration of the Department of Defense authorization bill. We made good progress on that measure yesterday by disposing of a very large number of amendments. Today, we hope to work through the remaining amendments, and it is possible that we could finish the bill this evening. The chairman and ranking member are expected to line up additional rollecall votes throughout today, and we will alert Senators as those votes are scheduled.

The majority leader has mentioned several appropriations conference reports that are available or soon will be available. We expect to consider the foreign operations conference report today or tomorrow and will vote on the remaining bills as we can clear them for action in the Senate.

Having said that, Mr. President, we look forward to further progress on the Defense authorization bill during the day.

I yield the floor.

RESERVATION OF LEADER TIME

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, the leadership time is reserved.

MORNING BUSINESS

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, there will now be a period for the transaction of morning business for up to 1 hour, with the first half of the time under the control of the Democratic leader or his designee and the second half of the time under the control of the majority leader or his designee.

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Ms. LANDRIEU. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

MINIMIZING DAMAGE FROM STORMS

Ms. LANDRIEU. Mr. President, I would like to spend a few minutes this morning speaking about a subject that is extremely important to the State I represent, the State of Louisiana, and to the Gulf coast and also to call attention to a small but important victory we achieved this week that I hope will signal a turning or a course correction that Congress should take to help prevent the destruction we have seen on the Gulf coast in the last several weeks.

Mr. President, you are from Kansas, and you know the power of tornadoes and Mother Nature. There is not anything we can do to prevent the fury of nature, but we can minimize the damage. We most certainly can use our intelligence that God has given us and our talent that God has given us and the wisdom that He gives us to make wise investments and smart choices and try to set priorities that help us make good choices for the people we represent so that we can minimize their pain and their suffering and we... can maximize their hopes and their dreams for the future. I believe that is why we are here. I know I have talked with you personally, Mr. President, about the reasons you came to the Senate and I came to the Senate, and I think most of our colleagues share that view.

I wish to speak for a few minutes this morning to remind the Nation and my colleagues about the devastation and the destruction that occurred only 10 weeks ago in New Orleans and the surrounding parishes. Our money better right in this Congressional district necessary to lay down the framework for the greatest explosion of entrepreneurship and scientific discovery that before had not been seen in the world; almost unequaled in its breadth and its scope. But what happened? Look here. Starting in the 1980s, there were new priorities set in Washington. They have been very damaging priorities, indeed—slashing critical investments in infrastructure, cutting back on our own investments in 'trading off' or 'conserving.' This is not conservation. This is akin to taking a gun and shooting yourself in the head, when you take money out of civil works projects, away from cities, away from suburbs, away from communities, and spend it on either tax cuts for people who do not need them or on other priorities that are not as important or on wars that we cannot win. It is this low line that we have, not set the right priorities in the last several years and over some time, and because we have our focus abroad and not at home, this is the destruction that has occurred, not just in New Orleans but in the region, in the south-western part of our State as well, and throughout the gulf coast of Mississippi.

Let me show another chart that does not have the same kind of picture, but in a more graphic form it shows the number of people who have been affected by this storm and the breaching of the levee systems which occurred throughout south Louisiana primarily.

Not many levees were breached to the north, but there were levee systems that were breached. In Louisiana, 3 million people were affected; in Texas, 802,000; in Mississippi, 1.7 million; and in Alabama, 829,000 people. Six million people were hit directly by a storm. Again, Katrina and Rita could not have been avoided, but I promise you, Mr. President, we could have minimized the damage and maximized hope if we had set better priorities and invested our money better right in this Congress with a different choice, a different course than the one set by this administration. What do I mean by that? I will get to that in a minute.

I also want to show the significance of this region. There were 6 million people affected in this region, but I am not just any region in the country. Forgive me, I represent this area, so I am quite partial to it. I do know every other area of this country is spectacular and wonderful, and I have visited many places, but I think anybody looking at this chart can understand there is something special about Louisiana, Texas, Mississippi, and Alabama.

What is special about it is we are the Nation’s energy coast. Much of the domestic production comes off the shores, basically, of Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi, and Alabama. Yes, we have some important production in the West in shallow plays of oil and gas, but we have virtually shut down drilling in other parts of the world. In my opinion, not on very good data, but nonetheless, that is a choice that has been made.

The point is that we have continued to supply this Nation at a time when it needs oil and gas and needs energy production. Louisiana has not sat down on the job. Texas has not sat down, Mississippi has not sat down, and Alabama has not sat down. But what has happened in this administration and some parts of this Nation have sat down on the job of helping Louisiana and this energy coast protect itself from the kinds of storms that we have seen.

How? By not investing in the wetlands restoration, which serves as a buffer against the east, and the south Louisiana and its surrounding areas and by not investing in the critical infrastructure of levees and navigation channels and appropriate dredging that would help manage water. We must have a very powerful force for good. You can see here the mighty Mississippi River. Our country, in large measure, became a nation because of the securing of the mouth of the Mississippi River, the Louisiana Purchase by President Jefferson—when he made a very smart strategic investment. He did not waste his money on things that would not return a benefit to our country, but made the Louisiana Purchase for 3 cents an acre, the best real estate deal in the history of the United States, and secured it for national security but also secured it for commerce.

Mr. President, it is impossible to get grain out of Kansas, your State, or Nebraska, or throughout the great Farm Belt in the Midwest of the United States, without using the Mississippi River and its tributaries. Yes, we can manage to get some of it over here to the east coast and out to our trading partners to the east, but moving it out here down south to our trading partners in the south and also trade routes to the east and the west would be impossible without the Mississippi River.

You would think this Congress would pay attention, particularly this administration that talks about energy independence would pay attention to this energy coast.

In addition to an energy coast, you can see here the red dots are our ports. These are parts of the largest port systems in the country—two of the largest. All of the south Louisiana ports and Houston. If you combined all of the ports in Louisiana from New Orleans to the Baton Rouge port, to south Louisiana, that port and the other ports, our port system is larger than any port system in the North American Continent and one of the largest port systems in the world. You would think this administration and our trade partners would pay attention to infrastructure such as this and invest wisely and take some of the money out of this Treasury and invest in protection of the wetlands and in a strong and robust levee system.

We have not done that. In fact, we have done the opposite. This chart is a startling summary. It is startling to me. It is hard to grasp. This is "Civil Works Capital Investment as a Percentage of Gross Domestic Product," since 1929 to the year 2001. When we in America, the America I grew up in, talk about the great investments after the war, you can see what we are talking about. You can see a Nation that was focused on its future. Why? Because it was investing in the towns and bridges and levees and dams and infrastructure necessary to lay down the framework for the greatest explosion of entrepreneurship and scientific discovery that before had not been seen in the world; almost unequaled in its breadth and its scope. But what happened? Look here. Starting in the 1980s, there were new priorities set in Washington. They have been very damaging priorities, indeed—slashing critical investments in infrastructure, cutting back on our own investments in "trading off" or "conserving." This is not conservation. This is akin to taking a gun and shooting yourself in the head, when you take money out of civil works projects, away from cities, away from suburbs, away from communities, and spend it on either tax cuts for people who do not need them or on other priorities that are not as important or on wars that we cannot win. It is this low line here, right down here to the lowest percent and it has not changed since 1980; it is not complicated. I am going to show it to you again. This is 20 years of disinvestment, disengagement, pretending that these problems do not exist, pretending we have surpluses when we do not, and underfunding critical infrastructure. When that happens, this is the result.

The 450,000 people who lived in the city of New Orleans at one time and the 450,000 people who lived in Jefferson Parish and the 200,000 people who lived in St. Tammany Parish and the 60,000 people who lived in St. Bernard Parish and the 30,000 people who lived in Plaquemines Parish—and that is not mentioning the other parishes along the western part of our coast, Cameron, that is completely destroyed, and Calcasieu Parish, that suffered, and the wetlands of Louisiana, every tree fall but every house collapsed or destroyed in some way or affected in some way by the falling of the trees—ask these people whom I represent, was it smart to cut off investments? I don’t think so.

The sad thing is, we have had an answer. I am not coming to complain. I am coming to offer a solution which our fellow citizens have reached. I am not suggesting it was a complete success. When I was a member of the House of Representatives, we have done field trips to Louisiana, we have done fly-overs, we have formed a national alliance, we built a coalition of 4,500, an alliance of industries, universities, and community leaders who have done it all. But what we cannot seem to do is get the attention of this administration and enough members of the Republican leadership to understand that smart investments make a difference; They save lives, they build communities, and they make a nation stronger. What I hope, they build communities, and they make a nation stronger. What I have asked for and my delegation has asked for—and I know my time is running out, and I will take 2 more minutes—what we have asked for is to redirect offshore oil and gas revenues that have been generated off of our coast, off of this coast where all these people have been injured.

There it is. With the oil and gas being drilled—and has been drilled since 1985—off this coast, we are generating about $6 billion a year that comes into the general fund. It would be a smart thing and a wise thing right now, a wise action and a smart action, to redirect a portion of those revenues to invest in a levee system, in the restoration of this Gulf Coast area and the wetlands that protect the Nation’s great energy port and trade port.

That is my message. We can do better. We must do better. We must make smarter investments with the money that is in the National Treasury. We do not have to raise additional taxes to do this. We have to redirect some of the taxes already flowing into the Treasury to invest in the people along this Gulf Coast. We share those revenues with other coastal communities—since by the year 2020, two-thirds of the continental United States will live within 50 miles of the coast—we most certainly are able to do that. But for Heaven’s sake, let’s get our priorities straight.

We can do better. We can make better decisions. That is what this effort is about. We are going to continue on, not complaining but offering solutions. We are not offering to raise taxes but to redirect some of the taxes that we have to make better choices to build a stronger Nation and stronger communities. I ask my colleagues to join us in this effort because I know we can get this job done. I thank the Senator from Illinois for a leading system, in the restoration of this Gulf Coast area and the wetlands that protect the Nation’s great energy port and trade port.

Ahmed Chalabi

It is almost hard to believe, and impossible to explain, going on in Washington today as we honor and fete Ahmed Chalabi. Who is Ahmed Chalabi? He enjoys the rank of Deputy Prime Minister in the nation of Iraq. But he enjoys a very questionable reputation otherwise. Ahmed Chalabi, it turns out, was one of the key advisers to the Bush administration before the invasion of Iraq. He was so important to the Bush administration that they paid his organization, through the National Intelligence Alliance, $355,000 a month to sustain his life and his office. Overall, the Bush White House gave his Iraqi National Congress $39 million over the last 5 years. $39 million to this Ahmed Chalabi. Ahmed Chalabi is an expatriate from Iraq, now returned with Saddam Hussein being removed from power, and he has been bankrolled by our Government as long as President Bush has been in office. His Iraqi National Congress were waging a massive campaign of misinformation and disinformation about the situation in Iraq before our invasion. He was the one who was producing the evidence that led the administration to tell the American people there were weapons of mass destruction.

There were people who were skeptical of Ahmed Chalabi from the start. Former Secretary of State Colin Powell said, on June 12, 2003, “I can’t substantiate Chalabi’s claims. He makes new ones every year.”

This skepticism was shared by other agencies of our Government, but it did not stop the leaders of our Government, under President Bush, from bringing Ahmed Chalabi into the highest level meetings concerning America’s national security and our policies in Iraq.

On September 18, 2001, Richard Perle convened a 2-day meeting of the Defense Policy Board, a group that advises the Pentagon. Chalabi, who was a guest speaker at this meeting, made a presentation on the threat from Iraq.

It turned out that Chalabi was producing information from so-called defectors on a regular basis to the highest levels of the Bush administration—most of which turned out to be false. Chalabi’s defector reports were . . . flowing from the Pentagon directly to the Vice-President’s office [Mr. Cheney] and then on to the President, with little prior evaluation by intelligence professionals.

That statement was made by State Department intelligence expert Greg Thielmann in the New Yorker. He went on to say:

There was considerable skepticism throughout the intelligence community about the reliability of Chalabi’s sources, but the defector reports were coming all the time. Knock one down and another comes along. Meanwhile, the President, who was being shoved straight to the President.

Ahmed Chalabi was the source of this so-called intelligence garbage about the situation in Iraq.

And then there was the notorious source named “Curve Ball.”

He should have been given that name because his information turned out to be so wrong, so bad, and so misleading. He was another one of the so-called defectors who provided this information. He was a discredited INC defector to Germany, code named “Curve Ball,” and the chief source of information on Iraq’s supposed fleet of mobile germ weapons factories which turned out to be a hoax. “Curve Ball” was the brother of a top lieutenant to Ahmed Chalabi.

Chalabi did not stop with reaching the highest levels of our Government and misleading them about the situation in Iraq. He had his friends in the media. Chalabi was the source of discredited news stories about Iraq, penned by New York Times reporter Judith Miller. In 2001, Miller wrote a front-page story about claims that Saddam had 20 secret WMD sites hidden in Iraq. It is amazing, the exclusive story that appeared just three days after the source had shown deception in a polygraph test administered by the CIA at the request of the Defense Intelligence Agency.

So when they confronted Ahmad Chalabi and asked, how could you mislead the United States with all of this bad information, leading to our invasion of Iraq, 160,000 American soldiers risking their lives, over 2,000 killed, he said "we are heroes in error." He boasted to the international media that even if he had misled the United States, he had achieved his goal. He got the United States to invade Iraq and dispose Saddam Hussein.

And then what happened? The tables turned on Mr. Ahmad Chalabi last year. In May of last year, the Iraqi officials, with the cooperation of the United States, raided Ahmad Chalabi's offices in Iraq. Why? I will tell you. In June 2004 Chalabi came under investigation of the United States, raided Ahmad Chalabi's offices in Iraq. Why? I will tell you. In June 2004 Chalabi came under investigation for allegations that he passed secret intelligence data to Iran. Remember, one of the axes of evil? Chalabi is accused of telling the Iranian Government that the United States had broken the code it used for secret communications. National Security Adviser Condoleezza Rice promised Congress a full investigation into these allegations.

The Wall Street Journal reports:

There is little sign of progress in a Federal investigation of allegations that Chalabi once leaked United States intelligence secrets to Iran.

If he did this, it is clear he endangered the lives of our troops, he endangered national security.

Just this week, the Wall Street Journal came out with a story about Ahmad Chalabi. They went to the FBI and said some 18 months later, what is the status of Ahmad Chalabi? Let me quote FBI spokesman John Miller, who strongly denied that the Chalabi investigation is languished. He said:

This is currently an open investigation and an active investigation.

He added:

Numerous current and former government employees have been interviewed.

Here we have a man who misled the leaders of our Government. Here we have a man who conceded and boasted that although he misled them, he achieved his purpose of getting the United States to invade Iraq. Here we have a man accused of selling secrets to the enemy, to Iran, and endangering American troops. And where do we find Ahmad Chalabi today? He is being hosted and feted by this administration. This man is in Washington with his friends, having lunch, having appointments with Treasury Secretary Snow and the Secretary of State, Condoleezza Rice. Today, he is going to share his wise view of the world with the conservative think tank, the American Enterprise Institute.

This is a hard story to explain. Hard to explain to the American people; harder still to explain to American troops. How can a man who has been accused and is under investigation for passing secrets from the United States to the Iranians and endangering the lives of our troops and national security now be the toast of the town in Washington? How can a man under active investigation by the Federal Bureau of Investigation, a man who has not been called for any statement or any testimony, be this guest at the highest levels of our Government? Congressman George Miller has been involved in this inquiry, as I have. He has made it clear, and I agree with him, when it comes to Ahmad Chalabi we shouldn't be serving him lunch, we ought to be serving him with a subpoena. We shouldn't treat him like a hero, we should treat him like a suspect in a case that may have endangered the lives of our troops.

I don't understand it. We need to call on the Intelligence Committee as well as the Department of Justice to use the tools they have to subpoena Ahmad Chalabi to make certain he answers the hard questions about how he misled our Government into invading Iraq and what he did to endanger the lives of our troops and our national security.

Nothing less should be allowed when it comes to protecting our troops.

How much time remains?

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. Isakson). There is 2 minutes 10 seconds.

OIL PROFITS

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, I close by saying we also have coming to Capitol Hill today a group of oil company executives. They couldn't have come at a better time.

Someone said this is simply theater. I hope it isn't. It is time to ask hard questions of these oil companies which have over the past 6 months dramatically increased the price of energy for people across America. People living in Illinois and across our Nation—families, small businesses, farmers—have been dealing with this oppressive increase in prices.

A lot of blame was pointed, when it came to the tank and watch the numbers spin on the gas pump; the money from your credit card is going directly to the boardrooms of these oil company executives.

Senator Maria Cantwell of Washington has the right idea: We need to put the oil company executives under oath today, ask them the hard questions as to whether they have been profiteering at the expense of the most vulnerable people in America, people who get up and go to work every day and cannot afford to fill their gas tanks; businesses that are languishing, cannot hire the people they need, cannot reach profitability, because of the profiteering of oil companies. And farmers, already hard pressed in many parts of our country by bad weather and bad prices, find their input costs going through the roof because of the high cost of energy.

The oil company and lobbyists are all over Capitol Hill. They are swarming because several Senators, including some Republicans, have called for a windfall profits tax. I support that. Take the money back from these oil companies, give it to consumers across America, fully fund LIHEAP, our program to provide heating sources for the poor in America. Make certain we tell these companies who stood up for the consumers who paid these outrageous prices.

I yield the floor.

RATIFICATION OF IRAQ CONSTITUTION

Mr. McCONNEL. Mr. President, normally I don't get an opportunity to hear my good friend from Illinois, but I am glad I was here as he gave one of his appraisals of the situation in Iraq. As Paul Harvey often says, I would like to provide the rest of the story; arguably, a more balanced view of what is going on in that very important country.

In fact, freedom has taken another giant step forward in Iraq. On October 15 the Iraqi people voted overwhelmingly to ratify their Constitution. Iraqis turned out in stunning numbers to embrace democracy, tolerance, and a just rule under law. In fact, they turned out in greater numbers than we turned out here last November, which was a very high turnout by U.S. standards—and, of course, most Americans were not afraid they would get shot when they went to the polls.

Iraqis created a constitutional republic in the heart of the Middle East. This is an unequivocal victory in the war on terror. It is the only way we can assess it. With their votes, millions of brave Iraqis rejected dictatorship and created a republic. They rejected rule by fear and terror and embraced rule by the consent of the governed. They stood together as a country under one motto: "we the people."

Nearly 10 million Iraqis turned out to vote, a turnout rate of 63 percent. That was up from 60 percent last January when they elected their interim government. That was 3 percent higher than our own turnout here last November, 60 percent, which was 10 percent higher than our turnout here in 2000, which was 50 percent. Again, I say, those Iraqis, they must have been concerned about their safety when they went to vote. That was the first free election in Iraq in over 50 years last January.

Furthermore, and very significantly, turnout among Sunni Arabs increased dramatically. This is a testament that the policy of continued political outreach to influential Sunni leaders during the constitutional drafting process was a success.

For instance, in the heavily Sunni province of Salahaddin in the city of Ishaqi, only 300 people voted last January in the interim election vote. This time around, on the Constitution, on October 15, 10,000 Iraqis voted. Three hundred, 10,000 in October, largely Sunnis. This is only one city, but the turnout was up dramatically. Many in the Sunni population obviously decided their interests are best served not by fighting an armed insurgency but by joining the political process.

Not only did Iraqis turn out in record numbers, they also voted to ratify their new organizing document in overwhelming numbers. The final results show over 78 percent of Iraqi voters said yes to the Constitution. Of Iraq's 18 provinces, 12 voted yes with majorities exceeding 94 percent. Three more provinces voted yes with solid majorities, including the province of Baghdad. In the Baghdad province, 77 percent ratified the Constitution.

The Iraqi Government decided that for the Constitution to fail, at least three provinces had to vote “no” with at least two-thirds of the vote. Only two provinces did that, the Anbar province and the province I mentioned earlier, Salahaddin.

The democratic process in Iraq will continue to move forward. Iraqis are now preparing for another nationwide election pursuant to the Constitution they ratified. That election on December 15 will be for the first permanent democratic government in Iraq's history. They will choose 275 members of a council of representatives to serve all the people of Iraq.

It is odd to me that at such a moment of triumph in that country, there are still those who call for America to get out while we can in the midst of this triumph that is occurring there. They believe our troop withdrawal should be arbitrarily based on the calendar rather than on achieving results. In short, they want to cut and run. And until we do, they will endlessly criticize our troops' efforts but offer no alternatives of their own.

It is important to remember to withdraw prematurely from Iraq, as the cut-and-run crowd suggests, would play right into the hands of the terrorists.

The terrorists themselves have already told us that. They have told us what they have in mind. In a letter our intelligence forces intercepted, written by Ayman al-Zawahiri, the No. 2 terrorist in the al-Qaeda hierarchy, and sent to lead Iraqi terrorist Abu Musab al-Zarqawi, the terrorists' foremost goal is to drive America out of Iraq. No great surprise.

Here is how al-Zawahiri instructs his partner in villainy:

[T]he Jihad in Iraq requires several incremental stages. The first stage: Expel the Americans from Iraq.

No surprise.

The second stage: Establish an Islamic authority. In order to fill the void stemming from the departure of the Americans, immediately upon their exit and before Islamic forces attempt to fill this void.

The third stage: Extend the Jihad wave to the secular countries neighboring Iraq.

So they clearly not only want Iraq, they want to spread this plague into the countries surrounding Iraq.

Al-Zawahiri goes on to say:

The mujahedeen have their mission end with the expulsion of the Americans from Iraq . . . their ongoing mission is to establish an Islamic state, and defend it, and for every garden or the banner to the one after it until the Hour of Resurrection . . . Americans will exit soon, God willing.

Those are chilling words from our enemies. Their plans are laid bare for all of us to see. They want us to cut and run. Worse still, they expect it. And then they will turn Iraq into a terrorist haven.

Al-Zawahiri realizes that the terrorists can never hope to defeat America on the battlefield. The only way they can defeat us is by undermining our resolve with continued suicide bombings, gruesome beheadings performed for the camera, and guerilla sneak attacks, all brought to American living rooms through the media.

The terrorists believe they can shape American policy—policy determined, in part, by this chamber—by killing Americans, because they have successfully done so before. In 1983, terrorists killed 241 Americans in Beirut, and American forces were withdrawn from Beirut as a result.

And America did not take the threat of terrorism seriously after the first bombing of the World Trade Center in 1993, nor did we take it seriously after the destruction of our ambassades in Tanzania and Kenya in 1998, nor did we take it seriously after the attack on the USS Cole in 2000.

The terrorists believe that our determination to fight them now, after 911, is the exception rather than the rule. They believe that eventually we will tire, falter, and fail in this fight.

We must make plain for them—in a language they can understand—that they are gravely mistaken.

America is not going to cut and run before the job is done. For our own security, for the security of the Iraqi people, and for the security of the world, we must defeat the terrorists and leave behind a strong, stable, and secure democratic Iraq.

The terrorists are rightfully scared because America is fighting and winning the war on terror. We have made incredible progress in Iraq in 2½ short years.

I think we ought to take a look at the progress that has been made.

Taking note of this chart, Saddam Hussein came to power in 1979 and was in power from 1979 to 2003. What were the hallmarks of those 24 years for the people of Iraq? Over 4,000 political prisoners were summarily executed—one of his great accomplishments; 50,000 Kurds killed, many of them with chemical weapons; 350,000 people were forced to leave Iraq during that 24-year period.

They had to get out or be killed. Iraq had no free elections and no free newspapers, and Saddam Hussein stood above the law.

What has happened in the 2½ years since Saddam Hussein's fall from power? Iraqis are now innocent until proven guilty. They have a legal system. Seventy-five Kurds have been elected to the legislature, as compared to 50,000 Kurds getting killed during Saddam's regime. Over 270,000 of those Iraqis who had to leave the country—of the 385,000 who were forced to flee Iraq—have come back home to build a new free Iraq, and 9.8 million people voted on the constitution on October 15. They weren't any free elections for 24 years under Saddam. They have over 100 free newspapers—100 free newspapers in Iraq now. They have more competition probably than we do, with freedom of speech breaking out all over Iraq.

Hussein, who stood above the law, now is on trial, subject to the law in Iraq.

That sums up the progress that has been made. The 24-year period of terror is over and a new democratic, free Iraq is emerging.

Before I leave the floor, I want to offer my colleagues some words of bravery from ordinary Iraqis, as an antidote to the al-Zawahiri letter I read earlier. These are the people who defied al-Zawahiri and al-Zargawi to vote for the free future of their country. What these courageous people have to say should convince anybody that the Iraqis understand and are willing to pay the price of freedom.

Here is what one fellow had to say:

'I have not forgotten the mass graves and the torture and the killings.' Said Abdul Hussein Ahmed of Najaf. 'Five members of my family were killed by Saddam and his people. But now, with this constitution, everyone is equal under the law.'

Munthir Abbas Elawi of Baghdad agrees.

'The constitution will bring all that is good for the people, such as stability, democracy and peace. With such a charter, we will show the world that we are a civilized nation, not a bunch of ignorant and blood-thirsty extremists.'
That is from one of the Iraqis participating in the progress. And if any terrorists think the people of Iraq do not hold their new republic dear, let them heed the words of Munthir’s older brother, Naseer Abbas, also of Baghdad. He states quite simply: “We are ready to defend this constitution with our blood.”

Iraqis are our partners in the war on terror, and they understand the magnitude of our shared cause. They realize the power a thriving democracy in the heart of the Middle East can have as a counter-example to tyrannical regimes like Iran, whose President recently called for Israel to be “wiped off the face of the Earth.” The Iraqis have embraced liberty, and rejected the homicidal urgings of terrorists. I hope my colleagues will join me in saluting them and their commitment to freedom.

Tyrannical leaders who repress their people much as Saddam Hussein once did tell us we should make no mistake: The people in your country are looking at Iraq and wondering, “Why not here? Why not now?”

The terrorists do not have the right answers to those questions. Americans, and Iraqis, do. I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. Cornyn). The Senator from Pennsylvania.

REVOLUTIONARY WAR TOMB OF THE UNKNOWN SOLDIER

Mr. SANTORUM. Mr. President, before I talk about the situation in Iraq, I want to urge those here—whilst this has gone on in my City of Philadelphia which I think deserves recognition during Veterans Day; that is, a situation with the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier from the Revolutionary War. That is a memorial which was erected in Philadelphia in 1954. There was an eternal flame added to that memorial back in 1976 during our bicentennial year. About 10 years ago that flame went out, and for 10 years the City of Philadelphia and the government of the City of Philadelphia refused to relight it—to fix the flame.

It wasn’t until the efforts of Larry Mendte, a journalist for the CBS station WKYW television in Philadelphia, and the work he did in bringing this issue to light—other journalists have brought this to light in the past—but to Larry’s credit, he did not give up. And they continued to run stories after story and hound the city of Philadelphia to try to finally fix this monument and fix this eternal flame.

I wish to give thanks to the veterans community in Philadelphia, to WKYW, to Larry, and ultimately I have to congratulate Mayor Street. After an enormous amount of pressure put on his administration, Mayor Street finally decided to fix the flame.

Once the flame was fixed, the National Park Service took that flame over and will make sure that the flame at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in the Revolutionary War, where so many died in the city of Philadelphia, will burn as an eternal flame.

As we all know, this Friday is Veterans Day, a day when Americans pay tribute to men and women who have served in our armed forces. There is no group of Americans to which we owe more than those who have fought to protect the freedoms that are the very heart of our Nation.

The truth is that our veterans, both past and present, should be honored every day of the year. We would not be here today, enjoying all the blessings we have if it were not for the sacrifices of those who took up arms to defend America. And so, I rise today to recognize the efforts of the residents of my home state who have fought to ensure that those who passed away in service to our country are remembered, day in and day out, with the reverence they deserve.

The city of Philadelphia, so central to the American Revolution, became the final resting place for thousands of Revolutionary soldiers. Many of these brave men, America’s first patriots, were laid to rest in mass, unmarked graves throughout the Philadelphia region. To honor these soldiers, and the millions more who have fought for our Nation since its inception, a war memorial was erected in Philadelphia in 1954. Ever since, this monument, known as the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, has stood as a tribute to those who first made the ultimate sacrifice in the name of America.

During the bicentennial celebration in 1976, an eternal flame was added to the monument. This flame, a symbol of the enduring spirit of the soldiers that passed, was to burn continuously in their honor. Yet over time, the flame was neglected and allowed to die out. For the last few years, this monument has stood incomplete, and as a tribute to our soldiers, insufficient.

Thankfully, Philadelphia is a city filled with conscientious, concerned citizens. On June 6 of this year, Mr. Larry Mendte, a journalist for the CBS station WKYW, reported that the flame had gone out. The response from viewers was immediate. The next night, a veteran of the gulf war traveled to the monument and lit her own flame, a flame that would certainly not wane due to age. Thus began a candlelight vigil that would be joined by many others.

Mr. Mendte, along with his colleagues at CBS, would not let this story disappear. He tracked down city officials, demanded an explanation, and refused to accept their attempts to brush him off. On June 13, merely seven days after the initial story was broadcast, the city began the repair process. Thanks to the efforts of Mr. Mendte, WKYW, and the many concerned Philadelphians who responded to this story, over 100 individuals were able to witness the reigniting of the eternal flame on June 29.

An inscription on the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier reads, “Freedom is a light for which many men have died in darkness.” Freedom is a light that still shines bright throughout the world thanks to the effort and sacrifice of American soldiers. Today in Philadelphia, once again, in recognition of these soldiers and what they have given for us.

I commend Mr. Mendte and his colleagues at WKYW for bringing attention to this issue and pushing for its resolution, as well as the residents of Philadelphia who responded, in force, with their support. Most of all, I thank America’s veterans, who have given more than we can ever repay, and deserve to be honored and recognized at every opportunity. The eternal flame at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier is a fitting tribute, and I am proud to represent such dedicated, patriotic citizens who worked so hard for its restoration.

Congratulations to all involved in the city of Philadelphia.

U.S. SERVICE MEMBERS’ SUCCESS IN IRAQ

Mr. SANTORUM. Mr. President, I congratulate the Senator from Texas, Senator Hutchison, for her tremendous effort in organizing hearings to come to the floor to tell the other side of the story in Iraq.

It started with a series of e-mails that I received from different people, from constituents to folks who weren’t constituents, who compiled to me—these are soldiers in-country—that they were becoming frustrated because every day they would be out there on the frontlines in-country, serving, sacrificing for our country and accomplishing great deeds and then would have to turn on CNN and other news shows and read the clips from the American newspapers and see a war being described which they were not seeing. They were not seeing the war as being an IED every day but seeing, every day, hundreds of thousands of Iraqis working with our American military forces to make Iraq a more stable and safe place.

I, along with Senator Hutchison and my colleagues, have decided it is time to start going around the mainstream media and telling the other side of the story.

I came from a press conference downstairs where I had four civilian independent military bloggers. These are people who have been in-country—one is going to be in-country in the next couple of weeks, one who is the wife of someone who is heading to Iraq—talking about the military blog, talking about all of the information that is now populating the Internet, of people who are actually there in-country, telling their stories, people who are making a difference every single day in the lives of Iraqis.
One such person is Captain Jim Bentzley, who is from suburban Philadelphia, who wrote to me a month and a half ago. He said:

The reason I'm writing to you about this mission is because I do not believe that the American public realizes how well we are working with the new Iraqi military. In my own shop, the mission could not be accomplished without the help and cooperation of my Iraqi counterparts. Likewise, I help them by guiding them through the U.S. military's logistics system. I'm also trying to educate them past the military logistics by introducing them to some of my civilian experience and U.S. business logistics practices: lean logistics and six sigma. Efficiency is a new concept for them... but I believe I can get through to them so that when we, Americans, leave this place, the Iraqis will pick up the mission seamlessly.

I would like you to visit my operation so that you can see the way we work with the Iraqis and so that the American people can also see. There are a lot of good things going on over here and most of them deal with people and the close relationships that are being formed—this is definitely not seen by Americans; America only seems to see the darker side of Iraq. Friendships that will last a lifetime are starting here, and they are friendships between former enemies. I realize I've only been here, in Iraq, for a couple of weeks, but already I consider my Iraqi counterparts close friends.

Corporal Mindo Estrella, from Erie, PA said:

I like working with the [Iraqi Army] and teaching them our tactics. I think that they've learned what we are teaching them and that day will be able to take over operations.

Corporal Estrella reenlisted. In the Marine Corps this past October, shortly after his battalion arrived: in Iraq. He said:

I like what I do. It gets rough at times, but nobody made me come out here. I signed the contract knowing what I was getting myself into.

He reenlisted last month. He said he likes what he does. He feels he is making a difference in transforming the country of Iraq.

LCpl Dan Williams said the same thing. He arrived in mid-March and has worked in-country, in Fallujah, to identify lots of insurgents and is working with the people now. He says he is getting the intelligence from the people in the community, where originally they were hesitant to work with them.

Now most of the intelligence they are gathering is from Iraqi civilians who realize that in their best interests for their country that they want to fight for to cooperate not with the American military but also with the Iraqi military in rooting out insurgents in their country.

We are making tremendous, positive steps.

I am going to be working, over the next several months, to make sure that the stories of the people who are on the frontline, who are fighting the war in the trenches, have their stories told to the American public and not people sitting in editorial rooms in New York City trying to spin what is going on in the mainstream of Iraq.

For example, news comes that America has suffered the loss of 2,048 brave servicemen and women in Operation Iraqi Freedom. The loss of any soldier in the cause of freedom grieves us all; especially the parents, wives, husbands and children of each deceased loved one. As great as the loss is, it only compounds a family's sadness to hear some say that the loss of their loved one was neither for the protection of America or the freedom of man. Yet we hear it regularly. Critics say Iraq posed no threat, as there was no link in Iraq to the war on terror. Or that securing freedom in the Middle East is impossible or isn't worth one American life.

To those who have lost their loved ones, I don't believe these critics. Don't let those poisoned words take root in your heart.

As you hear of the 2,048th soldier lost, there is another number that demonstrates the protection of Americans here, and the preservation of freedom is a number that, as best we can ascertain, stood at 450 last month.

Over 450 suicide bombers have attacked in Iraq. That is over 450 suicide bombers who did not strike at America's homeland, did not strike at our embassies, our ships, our civilians around the globe. It is your sons and daughters who have protected America from these 450 plus suicide bombers.

The suicide bomber represents that threat to America's interests for their country that they would ever arise behind the Iron Curtain, much less survive. And even here in America, as we buried the 4,435 lost in total at Concord, Lexington, Bunker Hill, Trenton, Princeton, Bennington, Cowpens, and Yorktown, no one could say for certain that a government of, and by the people would take. But it did.

Each of those who died in all these battles never knew if freedom and liberty would result from their sacrifice. Rather, they died for the hope and dream that it might exist and flourish, both here and elsewhere for our fellow man.

It is so unfortunate that so often critics of this war fail to tell the stories of success coming out of Iraq; the stories which prove that our U.S. servicemembers are working with the Iraqis to help them to sustain this newfound freedom by helping the strengthen their armies.

The stories of success from our soldiers and sailors in Iraq need to be told. Our soldiers need to know that their bravery and hard work in Iraq is not in vain.

This new chance for freedom in this part of the world is due entirely to the sacrifice of our soldiers and sailors, and their families.

I ask to our servicemen and women and their families—Our nation owes you our gratitude, and we honor you for bestowing the immeasurable gift of freedom. We thank each and every one of you.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Texas.

Mrs. Hutchison. Mr. President, I thank the Senator from Pennsylvania for talking about what our people with boots on, on the ground in Iraq, are saying and what they are seeing.

I think it is important that we talk to them about the feelings in America because some people might get a misimpression if they listened to people who actually put forward the idea that we would cut and run from something that is not in vain for all the right reasons—to protect Americans.

The President, knowing what happened on 9/11, was determined that he was not going to have another terrorist attack on America with weapons of mass destruction. That is why we went into the Middle East. We took on Saddam Hussein, who was known to have, from many different sources, weapons of mass destruction.

So we are there, and our troops are doing a great job. We are building the confidence in Iraq. You can see it from the people who are voting with their feet. They are walking to the polls and voting. Even under threat of death, they are working to establish a democracy. They are defying the terrorists. They know what the terrorists are doing to their country, and they are fighting back. And we are going to stand and fight with them, as we promised we would do.

I want to talk about this picture. It says more than any words ever could. Michael Yon is a former Green Beret who has been out of the service for many of them years. He is also a gifted photographer and writer. He was embedded in Iraq for 9 months earlier this year. He learned about the area, the people, the unit in which he was embedded, and the situation in Iraq. His photographs capture an honest and inspiring message about our soldiers' service in Iraq, the mindset of the terrorists we are fighting, and what this war is all about.

I would like to read Michael's own words describing what happened on Saturday, May 14, 2005, in Mosul, just before he took this heartbreaking picture:

Major Mark Bieger found this little girl after the car bomb that attacked our guys while kids were crowding around. The soldiers have been angry and sad for two days. They are angry because the terrorists could just as easily have waited a block or two and attacked the patrol away from the kids. Instead, the kids move the her car and hit the Stryker when about twenty children were jumping up and down and waving at the soldiers.

Major Bieger, I have seen him help rescue some of our guys a week earlier during another big attack, took some of our soldiers and rushed this little girl to our hospital. He wanted her to have American surgeons and not go to the Iraqi hospital. She didn't mean it. I snapped this picture when Major Bieger ran to take her away.

The soldiers went back to the neighborhood the next day to ask what they could do. The people were very warming and welcomed us into their homes, and kids were actually running up to say hello and to ask soldiers to shake hands.

Eventually, some insurgents must have realized we were back and started shooting at us. The American soldiers and Iraqi police started engaging the enemy and there was a running gun battle. I saw at least one Iraqi police woman who walked okay and actually smiled at me despite the bullet hole in her leg. I smiled back.

One thing seems certain—the people in that neighborhood share our feelings about the terrorists. We are going to go back there, and if any terrorists come out, the soldiers hope to find them. Everybody is still very angry that the terrorists attacked us when the kids were around. Their day will come.

Mr. President, it is stories like this one that reaffirm why Americans are so proud of our troops and proud of the Iraqi people for embracing democracy and working against efforts to defeat terrorism. U.S. troops are not seen as occupiers, as some in our country would have you believe. Our soldiers are standing beside Iraqi forces, and their sacrifice to win the war on terror will never be forgotten.

We are fighting an enemy who is willing to make a point of killing innocent children. There will be no freedom if we cut and run. We know why we are there, and we will complete the mission.

This story shows so much about how our troops feel. And if any person in this country talks to troops who have returned from Iraq, they will tell you similar stories about the feelings of the Iraqi people. Iraqis often are under threat of death if they are talking to American soldiers or trying to do something productive that would move their country forward, such as voting on a constitution, which they did in droves. They are standing firm despite the threat.

Our troops are going through the process of teaching the Iraqi police and the Iraqi soldiers how to help themselves, how to work the equipment, and how to counter insurgents who would wait until children are in the picture before choosing to blow themselves up.

This is an enemy that we must not let stay on this Earth. We must eradicate it wherever it is. And we must make sure that our troops can come to America because if this enemy would wait until children are surrounding our soldiers to do their heinous crimes, what would they do if they came back to America to attack our people? How heinous their crimes will be here?

Our President is trying to make sure they do not have that opportunity, that they will not be able to perpetrate their horrible and indelent acts against the people of America on our shores. Our President is taking every step to assure that Americans are secure.

So I think it is time for us to stop the partisan bickering. No one in their right mind would suggest that this is a time for America to turn and run. So let's work together to make sure we are doing everything possible to help the Iraqi people get on their feet, hold their elections, and begin the process of self-government.

Nothing will eradicate terrorism more quickly than showing that democracy and self-governance can work. That is what our President is leading our country and our troops in the field to provide: Safety and security for the Iraqi people so they can govern themselves. The Iraqi people are moving forward with a constitution they have written and they have voted for, which will be followed by more elections of a parliament and leaders who will take this constitution and make the laws that will give freedom to every Iraqi. Freedom is something which the Iraqis have not known—in their lifetimes. It is a worthy cause because it will also assure the security of the American people in future generations.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

CONCLUSION OF MORNING BUSINESS

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The President.

Mr. Leventritt. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senate will resume consideration of S. 1042, which the clerk will report.

The journal clerk read as follows:

A bill (S. 1042) to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 2006 for military activities of the Department of Defense, for military construction, and for defense of the Department of Energy, to prescribe personnel strengths for such fiscal year for the Armed Forces, and for other purposes.

Pending: Chambless amendment No. 2483, to reduce the eligibility age for receipt of nonregular military service retired pay for members of the Ready Reserve in active federal status or on active duty for significant periods.

Ensign amendment No. 2482, to restate United States policy on the use of riot control agents by members of the Armed Forces.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Michigan.

Mr. Leventritt. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The journal clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. Inhofe. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.
Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, may I ask what the regular order is right now, what the pending amendment is?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The pending amendment is the Ensign amendment No. 2443.

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to set aside the Ensign amendment, and I send to the desk my amendment No. 2440 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

(a) IN GENERAL.—The superintendent of a service academy may have in effect such policy as the superintendent considers appropriate with respect to the offering of a voluntary, nondenominational prayer as an element of their activities.

At the end of subtitle G of title X of division A there is added the following:

SEC. 1073. PRAYER AT MILITARY SERVICE ACADEMY ACTIVITIES.

(a) In General.—The superintendent of a service academy may have in effect such policy as the superintendent considers appropriate with respect to the offering of a voluntary, nondenominational prayer at an otherwise-required activity of the academy, subject to such limitations as the Secretary of Defense may prescribe.

(b) Service Academies.—For purposes of this section, the term “service academy” means any of the following:

(1) The United States Military Academy.
(2) The United States Naval Academy.
(3) The United States Air Force Academy.

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, even though the Founding Fathers were very clear and spoke of “Nature’s God” and of the “Creator” in the Declaration of Independence, the Federal courts have been increasingly trying to drive faith out of our communities and our nation.

We believe that the men and women who put themselves in harm’s way have the right to give public thanks to God and ask for His blessings. But some are trying to take this right away.

Ronald Ray and Linda Jeffrey of Concerned Women for America that:

On July 11, 2005 the Marine Corps Times announced the Anti-Defamation League’s re-issued call to cease the traditional noon-meal prayer at the Naval Academy, and the Academy refused to surrender. The ADL’s demands echo the April of 2003 complaint by the ACLU, which could not find a plaintiff to pursue a lawsuit.

This is kind of interesting. The ACLU was trying to find one cadet at the Naval Academy to act as a plaintiff. They couldn’t find one.

Take a good look at this painting by Arnold frieberg of “The Prayer at Valley Forge.” Since the time of George Washington and the founding of our country, there is unbroken historic precedent of leader-led prayer sustaining American fighting men on the battlefield through every American war. In his Farewell Address, George Washington said:

“I consider it an indispensable duty to close this last solemn act of my official life by commending the interests of our dearest country to the protection of Almighty God and those who have the superintendence of them into His holy keeping.”

On the 4th of July, John Adams of Massachusetts said:

“Ought to be commemorated as the day of deliverance, the solemn acts of devotion to God Almighty.”

The centrality of prayer for the protection of those in peril upon the sea and acknowledgment of divine providence is an official tenet of preparation of the American military. America’s dependence upon prayer exhibits itself before, and in the Declaration of Independence, and in the Inaugural Address of President. Congress opens each day with a prayer. The tradition of prayer continued on June 6, 1944, when President Roosevelt led the entire Nation in prayer during his radio address, lifting up our assault forces on D-Day who would give the supreme sacrifice in the D-Day invasion. The President did that before the invasion.

During World War II, GEN George Patton led the famous prayer for favorable weather during the crucial 1944 Battle of the Bulge, and the weather dramatically improved. Patton issued 3,200 training letters to officers and chaplains in the Third Army to urge, instruct, and indoctrinate every fighting man to pray as well as to fight. That is George Patton.

In one of the largest social science research projects in history, the Social Science Research Council reported and World War II, that song was selected prayer most frequently as their source of combat motivation. From 1774 until today, more than 67 Armed Forces prayer books have been widely and efficiently distributed to our fighting forces during war, from the American War for Independence to the war on terror we are fighting today.

A sampling of just two prayer books distributed during World War II and the Korean war contain recommended prayers from 34 armed forces miliary authorities, including Bradley, Eisenhower, MacArthur, Marshall, and Patton.

Former Chairman of the Joint Chiefs, Admiral Thomas Moorer, concludes:

The Constitution demands the freedom to worship freely, and our future leaders, our men and women in military academies across the country, may soon be denied that freedom for which many have died to ensure that freedom for all of us.

Last year, 2004, the Supreme Court denied not to hear the challenge to cadet-led prayers at Virginia Military Institute, VMI, that is where it all started. That decision allowed the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals decision to stand which prohibited VMI from sponsoring a daily supper prayer. But right after that, the Citadel followed their lead.

Supreme Court Justice Stevens pointed out in his decision for the majority not to hear the case that, in contrast, the Sixth and Seventh Circuit courts have rejected challenges to non-denominational prayer at the college level, reasoning that “college-age students are not particularly susceptible to pressure from peers towards conformity.’"

It is important to acknowledge here that the Sixth and Seventh Circuits, as well as the Fourth Circuit, all agree that there is not a problem in our colleges and universities. The VMI prayer was voluntary. Stevens states that there is no ‘‘direct conflict among Circuits,’’ relying on the factual differences between the cases in the different circuit courts.

Justice Scalia, however, that ‘‘the basis for the distinguishing—that this was a separate prayer at a state military college, whereas other cases involved graduation prayers at state nonmilitary colleges—is, to put it mildly, a frail one.’’

Scalia continues: 'In fact, it might be said that the former is more, rather than less, likely to be constitutional in the states.'

That is the state of the law today. Currently, they are not praying at VMI and at the Citadel. There is some problem at West Point.

Frustrated by the failure to find anyone in the Naval Academy to serve as a plaintiff, the ACLU now asks the Armed Services Committee of the Congress to take action. My amendment is designed to send an unsubtle signal to any court that entertains an ACLU suit against the military academies. It will stand as an indication of congressional intent on the matter. That is important. A lot of times congressional intent is what courts do when it is stated, when a decision is being made on a matter like this, it is significant. It is that intent that we want to have as an amendment to the bill today.

Judges will remove currently the mealtime prayer will be able to point to this legislation as an argument for judicial deference to the will of Congress and the executive branch.

My amendment’s language was in the House version of last year’s National Defense Authorization Act for fiscal year 2005. This year I want to see a recorded vote in the Senate to make sure clearly that agrees with this provision and who does not and to show the strength of support for this provision. While debating this National Defense Authorization Act, and hereafter, let us honor our heroes and those who have returned home and those who sacrificed their lives standing against those liberals who would seek to challenge their God-given right to pray to a living Lord.

What I would like to do is yield the floor. First, I ask unanimous consent that Senator ALLARD be added as a cosponsor of the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. GRAHAM). Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. INHOFE. I understand Senator WARNER, our distinguished chairman, wants to speak, as well as Senator BROWNBACK.

I yield the floor and retain the remainder of my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Virginia.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I commend our colleague. This is a very significant and important step that he has taken. I ask unanimous consent to be added as a cosponsor on the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. WARNER. The Senator from Kansas asked a point or two to speak. I shall yield the floor at this point and then follow with my remarks. I first ask the Presiding Officer with regard to the time remaining for the proponents of the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The proponents have 17 minutes 15 seconds remaining.

Mr. WARNER. I thank the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Kansas.

Mr. BROWNBACK. Mr. President, I thank my colleagues from Oklahoma and from Virginia for allowing me to speak on this important amendment. This morning I started my day in the Senate as the Presiding Officer. I started it standing next to Chaplain Black, who is a Navy chaplain. He gave the opening prayer for the Senate. We have had an opening prayer for many years. I found it inspiring, encouraging. I found it uplifting and important that we open this body with a prayer. We do so on a daily basis. As I sat as Presiding Officer, I looked at the door opposite me. Right above it, our national motto—In God We Trust—as we have on our coinage and in our beliefs and hearts. To many Americans, we are one Nation under God, indissoluble, with liberty and justice for all.

It is with this in mind that I rise in support of the amendment of the Senator from Oklahoma, No. 2440, that protects the ability of superintendents of military service academies to set appropriate policies for the offering of nondenominational prayers at authorized events. This is basic. It is important. It is the protection of the practice of religious liberties at our military institutions.

Prayer in military environments, as well as in public settings generally, has come into question in recent years. This amendment has specific relation to the 2004 Supreme Court decision not to hear a case regarding the challenge by the American Civil Liberties Union to mealtime prayers at Virginia Military Institute.

This follows on a series of cases for 40 years now of an attempt by the hard left in America to have a naked public square, to have no recognition of a divine authority, to have no recognition of seeking a divine authority or guidance, but a naked, sterile public square. That was not contemplated in our Constitution. It called for a separation of church and state, but not the removal of moral, which is what this seeks to perpetuate.

The mealtime prayer at Virginia Military Institute was a respected and time-honored practice, a military institution that has played a critical role in training U.S. military leaders for over 160 years. Sadly, the majority decision of the Supreme Court not to hear the case allowed a decision by the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals to stand, which prohibits them from sponsoring a daily supper prayer.

However, other circuit courts have rejected challenges to nondenominational prayer at the college level. And we should, too; we should allow this prayer to take place. If we didn’t have a naked public square. We should have a robust one that lifts up faith and lifts up the seeking of those to a higher moral authority.

Freedom of religion as protected in the U.S. Constitution does not require the removal of all religion from public settings. Such secularity is not what our Founding Fathers envisioned when they established religious liberty as one of the basic tenets of the Republic. I support the Senator from Oklahoma in his effort to clarify to the judicial branch and the military Congress’s understanding of this fundamental constitutional right with regard to military academies. This is important. It is one of those things that stop this onslaught of the removal of religious liberty, which is what the move is about and what the Senator from Oklahoma is trying to prevent, the removal of religious liberties, to allow the robust practice of religion, non-denominational, nonsectarian, yet seeking that God in whom we trust.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Virginia.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, before the distinguished Senator from Kansas leaves the floor, I want to speak to him about another matter. I ask unanimous consent to go off this amendment for a brief period and charge the time to me from the bill time. I may have a colloquy with my good friend and colleague from Kansas.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. WARNER. The Senator has submitted to me an amendment which is in our allocation of 12 amendments regarding the notification that you deem important with military families, should they seek to access a military hospital for the performance of an abortion by a young person in that family. Am I generally correct about that?

Mr. BROWNBACK. That is correct.

Mr. WARNER. In studying the amendment over the night—now it is not the pending amendment, but I want to bring these issues to the attention of the Senator, if fairness. The Senator, though, appreciates that so many of these families, particularly those abroad, are often separated because a spouse, male or female, as the family’s breadwinner, could be detached from the family homesite and sent into other areas of the globe for periods of time to perform missions. For example, there is a number of families resident in Europe whose spouses are then part of cadres of individuals going into the Iraq situation, some into the Afghan situation. That poses some difficulty, as I see it, in trying to work out a communication between family members, which communication is relative to life and death, and very important.

I am concerned that we are reaching down to a very small number of individuals, i.e., the military families, and could we not look upon them and say this amendment be adopted and become law, a difficult situation. I am of an open mind, but I am concerned about having that type of legislation on this bill.

Mr. BROWNBACK. If I could respond to my colleague—

Mr. WARNER. And then if the Senator would address also the issue of the U.S. Federal district court being a part of the mechanism?

Mr. BROWNBACK. This is a simple parental notification bill which we brought up last time on the Department of Defense authorization bill and agreed to take it on last year because of desires to move the bill forward. We have mentioned the great deal of what it is about is if a child, a dependent of military personnel, seeks an abortion, they have to get parental notification, which most Americans support. Most Americans believe if their child is seeking a medical procedure of any type, they should have parental notification take place.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, if I could interject at this time, personally, my own philosophy is in agreement with the objective. My only concern as manager of the authorization bill of the Department of Defense is that I cannot let my personal beliefs override my judgment as to how best to treat these families of our military.

Mr. BROWNBACK. I understand that my colleague from Virginia and I, too, have major military bases in our States. Fort Riley is growing in size as an army unit. It is a place that has troops all the time in Iraq and Afghanistan, so I see this on a personal basis in my State. But I also see on a personal basis, if you are deployed there and you have a minor child who is seeking an abortion, that you as the father or mother want to be notified about that, and probably this to be done telephonically so a decision does not have to be present. The court itself would have to establish witness or evidentiary standards if they want somebody to be present to be able to determine that this person is there, is the actual one who is seeking that.

We also provide a system in here that a guardian is appointed if needed, and that can be done by the district court without the approval of the parents, but they have to go through that procedure to get this done.

We have worked to try to make this work with personnel. I think it is going to happen in a limited number of settings, but it will happen. It is a Federal issue because it is Federal property. Federal employees, and it is something I think we should do for military personnel so they are in charge of their child’s upbringing, and particularly on something such as this of a significant medical operation. So I want to take into consideration the very legitimate concerns of the Senator in putting this forward.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, again, I strongly support the principle and the goals the Senator is seeking, but I have to be mindful of the practicalities of military life. It is so different than the families who are in our several States, wherever they may be, and that of course, brings up another question. Suppose this particular military family’s members are residents of a State, which State thus far has not addressed this issue. This State has no requirement for the parental consent in that State, yet they are now being subjected to a Federal law which, of course, would have supremacy over the State law. But is that not an invasive practice in the States rights?

Mr. BROWNBACK. Again, it is a legitimate question the chairman asks in these situations. It does seem to have difficulty with this in any other medical procedure a minor child would ask for, that they have to get their parents’ notification. If a child literally in many places has even very little difficulty to get parental notification. And yet because of the social difficulty and how much we wrestle with the issue of abortion, they don’t there, and they are using Federal facilities to do this. I think this is wholly appropriate given the use of Federal facilities.

Remember, too, what we are protecting here is the right of the parent toward their minor child. If the minor child has a very difficult relationship with the parent, it is actually taking this to take it separately to the court and not have the parent get approval to do this. If I were a military person, I would want something such as this, that I am in charge of my minor child’s upbringing, and particularly when it comes to surgery and something that is so important and difficult as an abortion. This is for the personnel.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I engaged my colleague to set forth my concerns on the views of those who are trying to evaluate their positions on this amendment, should it come forward, I anticipate at the appropriate time the Senator will be introducing it. I question is there any precedent in Federal law for requiring parental notification where, for example, in Medicare, Medicaid, or Federal employee health programs?

I have to move on to this amendment, but it is a series of very important fundamental questions that has to be addressed in the context of the Senator’s amendment, despite my own personal view that I associate myself with the Senator about the parental consent. Consistently I have voted for that here, but I have an overriding responsibility for the men and women in the military, and this is very unique.

So I put this aside at this time, Mr. President, and return to the Inhofe amendment. I thank my colleague. Mr. BROWNBACK. If I could respond to the last question. No, not Federal employees involved in Medicare and Medicaid, the other situation. We are talking about Federal employees on Federal facilities. We are trying to protect the parents’ rights in this, which the chairman did not dispute, but others may dispute, and we still need to provide another procedure for the child to go outside the parents’ rights. I think this is important, and we have tried to make it workable within the military system.

I thank the Senator.

Mr. WARREN. I thank my colleague. We are going to move swiftly today, and issues could be brought up with very short time limitations on debate. That has allowed me the opportunity to express my serious concerns that I will have to address in the context of this amendment as the day progresses.

Mr. President, again, we go back to the amendment by the Senator from Oklahoma, Mr. INHOFE.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

AMENDMENT NO. 2560

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I want to again thank my colleague from Oklahoma. I think it is a very important amendment.

Mr. President, this is an issue that must be carefully balanced, the constitutional guarantee of free exercise of religion and the constitutional prohibition against the establishment of religion. But it is a longstanding tradition at these academies, and I think the amendment is carefully drafted to strike a balance in those two important considerations.

Moreover, this amendment deals with the particular circumstances and environment that exist at our service academies, those honored institutions with long and storied traditions that have the mission of training our next generation of military leaders. A part of that mission is now and always has been the development of moral character and the appropriate respect for religious beliefs and needs of others who may be entrusted with their leadership.

I must draw a little bit on my modest experience in service on active duty in periods of two wars. I can tell you my own observation of the importance of religious belief to those serving overseas, and the hardships they endured either from family separation or combat situations or other difficult problems. It is a very deep conviction that many of these believe that the waging of war is a very complex religious and family tradition in the military, and it has often been a matter of life and death to some individuals. Clinging to those strong beliefs has pulled them through difficult situations. I also stop to think about our academics. I have had the privilege over the years to visit all of them. I think particularly of the Naval Academy and its magnificent chapel. People come from all over the world to see the chapel at the U.S. Naval Academy. Just this year I was privileged to be the keynote speaker at the dedication of a new small entrance at the Naval Academy where those of the Jewish faith can go and quietly exercise their religion and share their prayers. I encourage anyone in that area to go and look at these two edifices. To me they symbolize the importance of religion in our military life.

I commend the Senator from Oklahoma.

I have been informed by the distinguished ranking member that there could be an amendment in the second degree and that individual who would bring it forth is due here in about 20 or 30 minute is my understanding, at which time I hope we could finish addressing this amendment such that the Senator presumably of the second-degree amendment and then the underlying amendment prior to the noon period, although we will not stop consideration of the bill at the time but would continue. But I hope that amendment could be agreed to.

I see the distinguished ranking member.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Michigan.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, I appreciate the chairman’s comment. I do hope and believe that Senator Reed will in about half an hour be able to address the issue. I can’t commit to a vote, however, as indicated by the chairman. I believe there is some scheduling conflict this evening which may preclude a vote at the time hoped for by the chairman. But let me work that issue the best I can as to when the vote would come on this amendment.

I believe Senator Craig may have an amendment.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, before we depart, I hope the Senator could share with me and the Republican leadership, with the understandable impediments our two leaders have, with regard to votes and scheduling them. We want to try to.

Mr. LEVIN. I hope we could stack votes at some point, including a vote on the Inhofe amendment with a second-degree amendment and also—

Mr. WARNER. And the Ensign amendment.

Mr. LEVIN. The Ensign amendment as well. I have talked to Senator Craig, I am told apparently to the second-degree amendment and also.

Mr. WARNER. I have. It is such that you and Senator Craig can discuss that amendment.

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, may I inquire as to the order appropriate that we would discuss and bring up this amendment?

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the pending amendment be laid aside to consider amendment No. 2437.

Mr. INHOFE. Reserving the right to object, let me ask the author of the request what the intention is because I want to continue with my discussion. About how much time does the Senator want to take for consideration of the amendment?

Mr. CRAIG. I think less than 2 minutes could solve this issue and we could return to the Senator’s amendment.

Mr. INHOFE. I have no objection. I ask unanimous consent that Senator Cornyn be added as a cosponsor of my amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, we have a technical problem we have to address with regard to the UC request; that is, we are operating this bill under a UC, 12 amendments each side. This is not I of the 12.

Mr. CRAIG. That is correct.

Mr. WARNER. Therefore, I think we could go on the bill time for the purpose of discussing the Senator’s amendment in the hopes what differences remain could be reconciled so this amendment could be included as part of the managers’ package.

Mr. President, let the record reflect we are not calling this amendment up within the context of the UC which controls the overall procedure of this bill but that the two Senators are simply having a conversation.

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, that is, of course, the order. I thank the chairman for correcting us in that because we are operating on the broader bill, the underlying bill, under a UC.

This amendment was brought forth with the hope that both sides could accept it. Our side has accepted it. I worked with the ranking member, Senator Levin, to resolve a couple of issues in it that I think can be accepted. In that case, I hope it will appear in the managers’ amendment.

We would include in the amendment—and we are discussing those who are eligible to be buried in military cemeteries. We have a prohibition now against those with a Federal capital offense lying at rest in our military cemeteries. We found this summer that an individual who had been convicted of murder in two instances in Maryland was buried in Arlington Cemetery, they understand that clearly, they appreciate that correction. And I am very specific in my discussions with the Senator from Michigan that we are talking about capital offenses—not all felonies, capital offenses of this kind.

I thank both of my colleagues for helping us work out this issue. I hope this could be included in the managers’ amendment.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, if the Senator will yield further, we have had a discussion, and I received the assurance from Senator Craig, which I very much welcome, that it is not his intent that this lead to a broadening of this prohibition to include all felonies, but it is his intent, both in the amendment and his personal view, that this should be limited to the capital offense as identified in the amendment.

Mr. CRAIG. That is correct.

Mr. LEVIN. I thank the Senator.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I would like to join Senator Craig as a cosponsor on this amendment.

This is an example which other Senators may wish to access as to how the... two managers are willing to work in open colloquy on areas where there are amendments outside the framework of the 12 on each side which could possibly be reconciled, and a part of that reconciliation process would be the need for an open colloquy. This is a format that Mr. Dickig and I are pleased to entertain where there are other amendments that a colloquy in open session would be helpful in trying to reach a reconciliation.

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, I thank the chairman of the full committee and the ranking member for their accommodations.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, we thank the Senator from Idaho for bringing this to the attention of the Senate and for making this correction.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, it is also important, with my colleague on the floor, that we are bound by this UC, 12 amendments on each side, and as we bring up amendments, I carefully designate, as the Senator from Michigan does, that they are within the 12 each side has.

Mr. LEVIN. If the chairman will yield on that point because I wish to affirm what he said, that these colloquies, which are necessary for clearance of amendments, are very useful. We are used to this, all of us in the Senate, engaging in these kinds of colloquies, and there is not latitude, for instance, in this last colloquy, that amendment be listed as 1 of the 12 amendments on the Republican side.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Oklahoma.

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, how much time remains on our side?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There is 8 minutes remaining.

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, I don’t know of anyone who is going to be wanting time to speak against this amendment. I inquire of the ranking member if he knows of anyone who is going to be speaking in opposition to this amendment?

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, I do believe there is at least one Member on this side who will be offering or considering a second-degree amendment.

Mr. INHOFE. Or another first-degree amendment. That is fine. In opposition to this amendment, though.

Mr. LEVIN. The second-degree amendment—however one wants to characterize it—I do understand there is a second-degree amendment possible.

Mr. INHOFE. I understand there is 8 minutes remaining: is that correct?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. That is correct.

Mr. LEVIN. So we do not mislead our friend from Oklahoma, there may very well be Senators of whom I am not aware who would want to speak in opposition.

Mr. INHOFE. In that there is no one on the floor right now, if it is all right with the chairman and ranking member, I will conclude my remarks.

Mr. President, I have always enjoyed one-sentence amendments because one can’t misinterpret one sentence. I had one the other day that had to do with the appropriations process. I did one in 1994 that ended up being a major, significant reform in the other body.

I will read this so people don’t misunderstand it:

The superintendent of a service academy may have in effect such policy as the superintendent conceives with respect to the offering of a voluntary, nondenominational prayer at an otherwise authorized activity of the academy.

Some people asked a question about denominational prayer. Let me share with you—and I think I can read it in this period of time—an entire piece by John Adams. John Adams was the first Vice President of the United States and the second President of the United States. This is what he said on this subject:

When the Congress met, Mr. Cushing made a motion that it should be opened with prayer. It was opposed by Mr. Jay of New York and Mr. Rutledge of Carolina, because we were divided in religious sentiments, some Episcopalians, some Quakers, some Anabaptists, some Congregationalists, so that the House of Representa

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, the distinguished Senator from Texas.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, it is a second-degree amendment. The term "second-degree" is used to indicate that there is no right to offer a second-degree amendment to this amendment. There is a second-degree amendment possible.

Mr. INHOFE. I understand there is 8 minutes remaining: is that correct?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Mr. President, the distinguished Senator from Texas.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I understand there is 2 minutes remaining.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, the distinguished Senator from Texas inquired of the managers if he could address an issue that is tangential to our national security and that has to do with the use of those means which the God of nature has placed in our power. Three millions of dollars in the fiscal year 2006, and in such a country as that which we possess, are invincible by any force which our enemy can send against us. Besides, sir, we shall not fight our battles for our country, but a just God who presides over the destinies of nations, and who will raise up friends to fight our battles for us.

And they fired the shot heard round the world, and we won.

We were a nation under God, and we depended upon God to win that fight and every fight since then. That is why I think it is so important today, as a part of this reauthorization bill, that we reaffirm our commitment to our people at our academies to look to Almighty God in the way they deem appropriate, in a way to use that power to defend America in their careers.

I retain the remainder of my time.

Mr. President. I understand there is 3 minutes remaining.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There is 2 minutes remaining.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, the distinguished Senator from Texas.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, a part of this reauthorization bill, that reaffirms our commitment to our people at our academies to look to Almighty God in the way they deem appropriate, in a way to use that power to defend America in their careers.

I retain the remainder of my time.

Mr. President. I understand there is 3 minutes remaining.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There is 2 minutes remaining.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, the distinguished Senator from Texas.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, I have always enjoyed reading an article the other day that I think I can read it in 3 minutes.

As my colleagues know, Prime Minister Bhartia of India visited Washington in July for a historic state visit. This event marked a critical milestone in our improving relationship, but the Congress...
The fact is, this agreement will enhance our nonproliferation efforts. It is correct that India is not a signatory to the NPT. They have decided, for their own national security reasons, that they will not become a party to the treaty, and no amount of international pressure or negotiations will convince them to do otherwise. This is a reality which we face, but the status quo for another 30 years is not acceptable either.

Recognizing this reality, we must ask ourselves what we can do to promote nonproliferation efforts with India and bring them within the international nonproliferation regime. The civil nuclear cooperation agreement provides the answer. Despite not signing the NPT, the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty, India has an excellent nonproliferation record. They understand the danger of the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction, and that is why India has agreed to adhere to key international nonproliferation efforts on top of their own stringent export control regime.

This is a significant step forward, which has been welcomed by the International Atomic Energy Agency Director General. It understands that India will not come into the NPT through the normal route. This agreement brings India’s growing civilian nuclear capabilities within international export control regimes. India will now assume some nonproliferation responsibilities that other nations have with civil nuclear energy. Specifically, India has agreed to identify and separate civilian and military nuclear facilities and programs and file with the IAEA a declaration with regard to its civilian facilities. It has agreed to place voluntarily its civilian nuclear facilities under IAEA safeguards. It has agreed to sign and adhere to an additional protocol with respect to civilian nuclear facilities. Agreement to continue its unilateral moratorium on nuclear testing.

Furthermore, it has agreed to work with the United States for the conclusion of a multilateral fissile material cutoff treaty. It has agreed to refrain from the transfer of enrichment and reprocessing technologies to states that do not have them and support efforts to limit their spread.

Finally, India has agreed to secure nuclear materials and technology through comprehensive export control legislation and adherence to the Missile Technology Control and Nuclear Suppliers Group.

Each of these commitments represents a positive step forward. India, which is no stranger to international terrorism itself, is motivated by its own security needs to fight proliferation of nuclear weapons. The same is true of the United States. Both nations are dependent on oil imports to satisfy the needs of their economies and to create jobs for their people. Both nations, therefore, see in civilian nuclear energy cooperation an opportunity to satisfy these growing energy needs without environmental hazards of relying solely on fossil fuels. In short, this agreement is important to our growing international strategic partnership and for India’s domestic energy needs.

Although the administration’s negotiations with the Indians are ongoing regarding the implementation of these commitments, I am confident that we are on the right track. I look forward to the role that Congress will play in this important process.

I yield the floor and I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. That is correct.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I rise to address some of the issues that have been presented by the amendment of Senator Inhofe. I do so with some perspective on issues of prayer at service academies. I spent 2 years as a cadet at West Point, 2 years as a faculty member at West Point, and today I am the chairman of the board of visitors at West Point. I am the first to recognize the importance of prayer, not only in the life of the service academies but in the life of people everywhere.

Over the course of 200-plus years of history, prayer has become an important aspect of life, not only at West Point but at Annapolis and other institutions.

Interestingly enough, when I was a cadet, there was a much more significant structure of religious participation. We were actually ordered to go to chapel, ordered to participate in activities. That was struck down in 1972 as an unconstitutional infringement.

This is a very difficult issue because it does implicate serious constitutional concerns, as well as the desire to maintain the traditions and the customs of military and the service academies.

Interestingly enough, my perspective now, after about 30 years, is that the faith communities at West Point are even more vital and vibrant today than years ago when cadets literally were ordered to participate in activities. In fact, last summer, as part of the operations of the board of visitors, I asked that the chaplains come together on an informal basis, and we talked about religious participation at West Point. What I heard from the chaplains is that it is as well, that it is something important to the individual lives of cadets and to the community at West Point. That is why
I think, as we try to legislate these activities from the perspective of the U.S. Congress, we might be inviting more problems than we are solving.

As I look at the amendment of Senator INHOFE, it speaks of voluntary, nondenominational prayer at otherwise authorized activities of the academy, subject to the limitations of the Secretary of Defense, more or less. The real problem in the context of military activities is, what is voluntary? There is a sense there that is not much voluntary in the military. Anyone who has served on active duty understands that even in some cases volunteering isn’t voluntary. I know I had a first sergeant in the 82nd Airborne Division who would walk in and pick three people and inform them they had just volunteered. That is a cultural aspect and a legal aspect of military service. So even though this speaks to voluntary, nondenominational prayer, the real issue in the context of the military is, is it voluntary?

That issue is now being debated. One of the reasons prompting this particular legislative amendment is the fact that the Naval Academy has been questioned about a prayer at their lunchtime whether it is voluntary or not. Whether it is voluntary or nondenominational is not the point. The question is whether it is voluntary. I do not think we are going to escape that analysis and that issue by passing this legislation. In fact, my fear is that by passing this legislation we are going to essentially invite litigation about a whole series of religious expressions at service academies, not just prayer in the mess hall at lunch but prayer at graduation ceremonies, at promotion ceremonies—all of that.

Prankly, on a practical basis, this legislation is not necessary. First, the superintendents already have the authority to prescribe what is happening at the academies—either explicitly or implicitly religious expression at the academies is being authorized by the superintendents.

Also, I think, given the fact that they are doing this and it seems to be working fairly well, this legislation does not give them any more authority than they have already. As I suggested previously, it raises, certainly, the profile, so it might engender the kind of controversy that will lead to seriously questioning and perhaps cutting back on the kinds of religious expressions at these service academies. So I do not think, as a matter of either policy or of good sense, this legislation is in order or necessary.

In addition, what is happening at the academies now is not so much the sole issue of the propriety of prayer or religious expression at different authorized activities. There is another big issue out there that we have to recognize. It comes from the recent activities at the Air Force Academy, where there have been serious reports about proselytization of cadets, to try to insert in the activities of the academy a pronounced and sectarian religious approach. I think we are all familiar with many of the stories from the Air Force Academy.

As a result, the Secretary of Defense has issued interim guidance with respect to other religious activities. I would note that the language of Senator INHOFE recognizes the right of the Secretary of Defense to do that. In fact, I would assume it lends further support and credence to the guidance that he is developing and will issue because, as the language says, “subject to such limitations as the Secretary of Defense may prescribe.”

I think what we are seeing, in terms of this legislation, is several results which might be unintended by those who are supporting it. First, I think rather than clarifying and settling the issue of religious expression at the service academies, it will prompt further discussion, debate, and perhaps legislation with respect to their propriety and specifically recognize that there is an ongoing process by the Secretary of Defense to redefine appropriate modes of religious expression at the academies.

And, as I read it, it does give sanction to the idea that there is a legal sanction to those activities.

So for many reasons I think the legislation is not the most appropriate way to deal with this issue. Ultimately, my sense is that these issues, because they are dominated by constitutional concerns, will be settled in court, not by legislative enactment. There is nothing we could do legislatively to correct such constitutional faults. I think to try to do that misconstrues what we are about and what we could practically do.

As a result, I hope this legislation could be withdrawn, but I suspect that is not the case. So I think we should make some changes in the legislation in the text in that the FACT that all of us are bound by the Constitution of the United States.

Again, I have been involved with these academies since I was 17 years old. I have seen personally the important role that prayer and religion play in the lives of cadets, soldiers, and officers. I recognize and cherish the customs of these academies, and these traditions. I think it is unfortunate that we may unwittingly be starting a dyng that will seriously erode these customs and traditions, and I think perhaps to the detriment of the academies and to the military service and to the young men and women who proudly wear the uniform of our Armed Forces. So I hope we can avoid that.

But I think, also, to recognize that we are all governed, particularly when it comes to issues of prayer in the public space, by the Constitution of the United States, and that there is nothing, as I said before, that we can do that will inherently accomplish that, that is evenhanded, appropriate, recognizing that soldiers are bound by the Constitution. That is their duty. That is their obligation.

I say if we march down this road, I think we are raising serious issues that are going to complicate the facts even more than they are today. So I hope we could wait. I hope we could wait until these guidelines have been fully vetted by the Secretary and he has made a decision with respect to their propriety and their appropriateness. Indeed, once again, as the amendment suggests, ultimately whatever the superintendents of the academies do will be subject to the guidance of the Secretary of Defense, implicitly the current religious expression at different authorized activities. There is another big issue.

I hope we could forbear on this one. If not, then I think we have to make some changes in the text to reflect the overarching constitutional imperatives that are at the heart of this debate.

I yield the remainder of my time and yield the floor.

Mr. INHOFE. If the Senator will yield, I inquire of the Senator, he has used some of the time in opposition speaking to this amendment. Is the Senator’s desire to have another amendment on the same subject to be introduced separately from this?

Mr. REED. My preference would be to try to amend the Senator’s amendment.

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, we have a problem.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I yielded to the Senator. Would he like to use his time? I retain the remainder of my time.

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, I understand I only have a couple of minutes left, so let me very quickly say right now: There is a problem. In the Air Force all they have is a 20-second period of silence. I don’t call that a prayer. At West Point they do not even have a period of silence. They say you can pray, but everyone else is talking. This is not a prayer. I think a problem is there.
I think the argument that this might raise the profile is not a valid argument. I have heard it before. In 2003 the ACLU requested specifically that the prayers stop. In 2005 the Anti-Defamation League did the same thing. The attack on prayer deals with this issue.

This is a very simple, one-sentence solution to the problem. At the appropriate time, in fact, right now, I urge the adoption of this amendment and ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Ms. MUKOWSKY). Is there a sufficient second? There is a sufficient second.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. INHOFE. It is not my intent to proceed until we start several votes at a later time, I say to my good friend from Rhode Island.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. WARNER. Madam President, we need to inquire as to the issues of the proponent of the amendment, as to the allocation of time. What is his desire on that?

Mr. INHOFE. I would say to the chairman, I think the allocation of time has already taken place. I have used my time. I have not yielded back the remaining time. I told the Senator from Oklahoma that I would only have 30 or 40 seconds left. It is my desire to get a vote on this amendment, if the distinguished Senator from Rhode Island has an amendment that we get a vote on his amendment, and then, of course, the allocation of time is at that point, we will exercise that.

Mr. WARNER. Madam President, that sounds like a reasonable request. Can the Senator from Rhode Island advise the Senate?

Mr. REED. Let me understand. Is it in order now for me to propose a second-degree amendment which would then require just a short explanation and debate, and then we can move to a vote on the second-degree amendment, and then on the underlying amendment?

Mr. WARNER. That would be the desire of the manager.

I wish to inquire of the proponent. Does he agree to the course of action?

Mr. INHOFE. Would the Senator please repeat that course of action?

Mr. REED. We are agreeing, as I understand it, that as soon as the Senator yields his remaining time, it would be in order for me to offer a second-degree amendment. I would then speak briefly on the second-degree amendment, and I think it would be in order to either entertain additional debate by the Senator from Oklahoma and others or to set a time for a vote.

Mr. INHOFE. My preference would be to go ahead and have this as a first-degree amendment, offering the amendment of the Senator from Rhode Island as a first-degree amendment, and if he desires to have a vote on his first, I would have no objection.

Would that satisfy the Senator from Rhode Island?

Mr. REED. I think the most efficient course is simply to allow my second-degree amendment, allowing Members to vote essentially on my amendment first, then voice vote the amendment of the Senator from Oklahoma—if it succeeds, then the underlying amendment. That was my preference.

Mr. INHOFE. If there would be side-by-side amendments

Mr. REED. No. My preference is that we entertain a second-degree amendment, and if the second-degree amendment is agreed to, then the underlying amendment would be voted on. There would be a series of votes. Mine would be voted on first.

Mr. INHOFE. I object to that course. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. INHOFE. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. INHOFE. Madam President, I have read the suggested change that the distinguished Senator from Rhode Island has to my amendment. If it is his intention not to offer another second-degree amendment in this subject matter but merely to amend mine, I will accept that. I would yield the remainder of my time, and we would have one vote to take care of it.

Mr. REED. Madam President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. REED. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. REED. Madam President, the Senator from Oklahoma has offered to modify his amendment the way I suggested and having modified the amendment, schedule votes. I have no objection to that.

Mr. INHOFE. Madam President, that seems very acceptable to me.

I will read the modification on page 2 of the amendment. On line 2, insert the following: “the United States Constitution and . . .” I have no objection to that.

AMENDMENT NO. 2440, AS MODIFIED

I send this amendment to the desk and ask unanimous consent that it be so modified.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment (No. 2440), as modified, is as follows:

(Purpose: To ensure by law the ability of the military service academies to include the offering of a voluntary, non-denominational prayer as an element of their activities)

At the end of subtitle G of title X of division A, add the following:

SEC. 1072. PRAYER AT MILITARY SERVICE ACADEMY.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The superintendent of a service academy may have in effect such policy as the superintendent considers appropriate with respect to the offering of a voluntary, non-denominational prayer at an otherwise authorized activity of the academy, subject to the United States Constitution and such limitations as the Secretary of Defense may prescribe.

draw the pay until they reach the age of

PART III—AIR FORCE CONVEYNANCES
Mr. WARNER. Madam President, we are making progress on this bill. I thank all Senators for their cooperation. It is my hope that in the intervening period between now and the hour of 2:45, subject to the unanimous consent of 15 minutes, that other Senators can come to the Chamber and address the managers regarding the timing of the remaining amendments under the unanimous consent providing 12 amendments on each side.

1 hour later,

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Sen-ar from Minnesota.

Mr. DAYTON. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that Senators BURNS, THOMAS, ENZI, DORGAN, and HATFIELD be original cosponsors of amendment No. 2448, which was agreed to yesterday by unanimous consent.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DAYTON. I thank the Chair.
I yield the floor, and I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. LEVIN. I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

AMENDMENT NO. 2443

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, relative to the amendment of the Senator from Nevada, I had one question. Section 1 of Executive Order 11850 states the following:

The Secretary of Defense shall take all necessary measures to ensure that the use by the Armed Forces of the United States of any riot control agents and chemical herbicides in war is prohibited unless such use has Presidential approval in advance.

Is there anything in the Senator’s amendment which authorizes or intended to modify or change in any way that executive order?

Mr. ENSIGN. The Senator is correct; the amendment seeks to clarify and to report references between the military retirement system for Reserve components and Active components of our military forces. A person who joins the active-duty military and has 20 years has the option to retire at that point and draw half their pay. A young person at age 18, with 20 years in service—age 38, still relatively young, moves on to a new career, new source of into their pay.

For a member of the Guard and Reserve, it is different. As you might expect, retirement pay from a part-time career is lower than at the end of a full-time active-duty career. It makes sense.

The major difference, however, lies in the length of time the reservist retiree must wait to start to receive retirement pay. Under the current system, a person who completes 20 years in the Reserve component is eligible to receive retired pay but cannot begin to draw the pay until they reach the age of 60. In the Reserves, a young person age 18 can enlist, complete 20 years of dedicated service to our country, and at the end of 20 years reach the age of 38 and retire. But that person has to wait 22 years before receiving the first penny of retirement pay.

That is entirely too long. Many have recognized the system needs to be changed. The Military Officers Association, Reserve Officers Association, National Guard Association, Enlisted Association, the National Guard, all have called for Reserve retirement age to be Senator Chambliss, falls short of being worthy approaches to accomplish our goal.

Unfortunately, the plan that has been offered is in the form of the amendment by the Senator from Georgia, Senator Chambliss, calling for a reduction in the retirement age for every year of service beyond 20 years. That is an incentive to stay in the force. A reservist can begin to draw retirement pay as early as age 55, but in order to do so, they would need to serve an additional 5 years.

By providing a way for reservists to draw retirement pay at age 55 rather than being forced to wait until age 60, this amendment brings the retirement age for reservists down to the Federal civil service retirement age, as was intended when the reservist retirement age was set 50 years ago. Our reservists make tremendously sacrifices. They risk their lives in combat zones. And, in far too many instances, they give their lives for our country. At the very least, they should have the same retirement age as Federal civil servants.

By replacing the current, inflexible approach with a sliding scale that provides earlier receipt of retirement pay in exchange for more years of service, we can create a powerful system of incentives to retain our personnel and maintain a strong Reserve. This is the approach my amendment takes.

Many of my Republican and Democratic colleagues who, like me, are co-sponsors of S. 337, the Guard and Reserve Retention Act, introduced earlier this year by my friend and distinguished colleague, the Senator from South Carolina, will no doubt recognize this concept. The mechanisms are very similar.

I invite my colleagues from both sides of the aisle to join me in making a meaningful reform of the Reserve retirement system. I am afraid the Chambliss amendment, which I am suggesting is a good approach to the Chambliss amendment and my amendment rewards mobilization but does nothing to create the incentive for further service. It simply provides a future benefit to those who get called up. We want to honor the members of the Guard and Reserve who are selected to go overseas. Yes, we want to reward service that takes members of the Guard and Reserve away from their families and careers for a year and puts them in harm’s way. But we must ask ourselves if such a modest adjustment in the retirement pay eligibility age is the best way to do it.

With recruiting targets being missed by our Reserve components and retention holding steady, but under severe pressures, what we need to do is revitalize the retirement system so that it is both fairer to members of the Guard and Reserve and a more powerful incentive to continued service. We should make every effort to reform the system while rewarding long and continued services, not simply rewarding after mobilization; one which will incentivize all of the force to stay in service longer, not just the half—roughly, 50 percent—who are tapped for a callup.

The amendment is endorsed by some significant groups: the National Guard Association of the United States, the Military Officers Association of the United States, the Reserve Officers Association, the Enlisted Association of the United States (NGAUS) in its support of your amendment to reduce the age at which reserve component members receive their retirement pension. An active component member retiring at 20 years of service may receive a pension immediately upon retirement. A reserve component member serving the same amount of years cannot. Reducing the age from 60 to 55 will be a big step in mitigating this disparity. A more equitable retirement program will aid greatly in recruiting and retaining members in the National Guard. When the age limit for receipt of retired pay by National Guard members was set decades ago, the National Guard was not relied upon the way it is today.

The objective of NGAUS is to support the reduction of the age for retirement eligibility from its current level. I look forward to working together in support of a strong and viable National Guard. Again, on behalf of the members of NGAUS, thank you for all your hard work on our behalf.

Sincerely,

STEPHEN M. KOPER,
Brigadier General, USAF, (Ret.), President.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Michigan.

Mr. LEVIN. Madam President, if there is no one prepared at this time to speak on the Durbin amendment, I ask unanimous consent that the Senator from Wisconsin be permitted to speak as in morning business for 5 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Wisconsin.

(The remarks of Mr. KOHL pertaining to the introduction of S. 1979 are printed in today’s RECORD under “Statements on Introduced Bills and Joint Resolutions.”)

Mr. KOHL. Madam President, I yield the floor.

Mr. LEVIN. Madam President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. LEVIN. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. LEVIN. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that Senator Dorgan be given 5 minutes as in morning business for 5 minutes, and that then Senator Dorgan be recognized to offer an amendment relative to—I think he is calling it a Truman-like commission, I have talked to Senator Emmerich and that is agreeable with the majority.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.
The Senator from North Dakota.

(The remarks of Mr. DORGAN are printed in today’s RECORD under “Morning Business.”)

AMENDMENT NO. 376

(Purpose: To establish a special committee of the Senate to investigate the awarding and carrying out of contracts to conduct activities in Afghanistan and Iraq and to fight the war on terrorism)

(Mr. THUNE assumed the chair.)

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, I have an amendment to offer, an amendment I have shared with both sides. It is, in fact, an amendment that we have previously debated. It deals with the subject of contracting abuses, especially contracting abuses in the reconstruction in Iraq—the money that is paid by American taxpayers, through our Government, to major contractors that are given no-bid contracts, spending billions of dollars, and the stories about contracting abuse are horrifying. Yet nothing seems to happen.

If I recall, previously something that happened in the 1940s. Harry Truman was in the Senate. Harry Truman was a Democrat. A member of his party was in the White House, Franklin Delano Roosevelt. He couldn’t have been more about Harry Truman because Truman came to the floor of Senate and said: I have substantial evidence of wrongdoing, of contracting, of military waste with respect to defense contracts and defense spending. I think it needs to be investigated.

They began holding a series of hearings. He finally was able to get a committee together called the Truman Committee. They began a series of hearings. It lasted a number of years. At a time when a member of his own political party was President, it was probably embarrassing for everybody that Harry Truman was leading the charge while FDR was in the White House. But they uncovered a substantial amount of waste and abuse and fraud. Good for them. The memory of the Truman Committee lives on today as an example of what should be done with respect to oversight by the Congress.

We spend a dramatic amount of taxpayer money. The question is, Is it spent wisely? If it is not, when it is wasted or stolen or subject to cheating of the taxpayers, shouldn’t somebody know it? Shouldn’t somebody see it and do something about it? That is the issue.

I have held a number of hearings as chairman of the Policy Committee on this subject, only because no one else is holding any substantial hearings on it. We will have a couple people come to the floor today. We have held a good number of hearings. That is not true. Very few if any hearings have been held on this issue.

I wish to go through a few examples of the hearings that we have held, along with some of the headlines. I wish to say this before I get into this too far: Some of this deals with a company called Halliburton. The minute you mention the company Halliburton on the floor of the Senate, they say: Aha, this is a criticism of Vice President CHENEY because he used to be president of Halliburton. It is not about Vice President CHENEY. Vice President CHENEY is now the vice president of Halliburton. He left that job when he became Vice President. This is not about him.

All of these actions have occurred after Vice President CHENEY left the Halliburton Corporation. But this is about contracts that other companies—Halliburton being the largest—that have gotten big, fat, multibillion-dollar contracts, no-bid, sole-source contracts, and, with all of the evidence in front of us, have been charging American taxpayers for services they have not delivered or overcharging the taxpayers for other services.

We need to aggressively root out that waste, fraud, and abuse. Let me give some examples. The committee that I chair, the Policy Committee, had a hearing. We heard from a man named Rory Mayberry. Rory Mayberry is the former food production manager for KBR, which is a Halliburton subsidiary. Halliburton has gotten billions of dollars to deliver all sorts of things to our troops in Iraq, including feeding the troops.

Here is what Mr. Mayberry, who was the food service supervisor, told us:

Food items were being brought in to our military bases that were outdated or expired by as much as a year and we were told by the food service managers, feed them anyway, use them anyway. So the food was fed to the troops, expired food with expired date stamps. For trucks that were hit by convoy fire and bombings we were told to go into the trucks, remove the food items and use them after removing the bullets and any shrapnel from the bad food that was hit. And we were told then to remove the bullets and turn them over to the managers of the food service operations.

We had hearings at which Bunnatine Greenhouse testified. Bunny Greenhouse was the top civilian official at the Corps of Engineers. She rose to the very top, the highest civilian official in the Corps of Engineers. That is the area of the Pentagon where they actually do the contracts for these firms. In that position, she was responsible for reviewing all contracts worth more than $10 million. After she objected to special treatment given Halliburton on a number of occasions, including an occasion where the company was brought into the meeting at which the contract was being discussed, the specs developed, and who it was going to be awarded to, after objecting to all that, she was forced to either resign or face demotion.

This is a woman who was the highest civilian official in the Corps of Engineers, given stellar performance reviews always, an outstanding employee. But then she started raising questions about the no-bid business, they began a network about giving billions of dollars of sole-source contracts under the buddy system. She said:

I can unequivocally state that the abuse related to contracts awarded to KBR [Halliburton] represents the most blatant and improper contract abuse I have witnessed during my course of my professional career.

That is pretty strong.

Now let me go through a couple of headlines. Boston Globe, June of this year: Internal Pentagon audits have flagged about $1.4 billion in expenses submitted by Halliburton for services the firm is providing in Iraq. Charges include $45 for a case of soda, $100 per bag for laundry service, and several months preparing at least 10,000 daily meals for the troops that the troops didn’t need and ultimately went to—by the way, in this meal issue, there is another complaint. The other complaint is they were charging for $2,000 meals a day and preparing 14,000 meals a day. That meant they were charging the taxpayers for 28,000 meals they were not serving the troops.

“Ex-Halliburton Workers Alleged Rampant Waste: They say the firm makes no efforts to control costs, overbilling taxpayers for services in Kuwait.” One former employee: “They didn’t want to control costs at all. Their motto was don’t worry about cost. It’s a cost plus contract.”

Another former employee described an arrangement in which Halliburton provided 10 percent of additional payment on its phone calls to a Kuwaiti company for providing cellular phones although nothing in the contract between Halliburton and the company called for the payments.

They just added 10 percent.

Well, I won’t go through it at great length, but $7,500 a month to rent ordinary cars and trucks; $85,000 new trucks left on the side of the road because they had a flat tire, to be trashed and torched. Yes, the taxpayer paid for them. How about a fuel pump that was plugged. Leave the truck on the side of the road. It gets torched. It is all over. The taxpayer pays for it. It is all cost plus.

“Uncle Sam Looks Into Meal Bills; Halliburton Refunds $27 million as a Result.”

You would think with all of this you would have committees in the Congress saying: Wait a second, we are going to pull back the curtain. We are going to have tough investigations to evaluate what is happening, what is happening to the American taxpayer, what is happening with contracts that are given without any competition, soul-source, no-bid contracts.

Mr. ENSIGN. Mr. President, will the Senator yield for a comment?

Mr. DORGAN. Of course.

Mr. ENSIGN. I want to inform the Senator from North Dakota that, hopefully, when we come back for a couple days in December, as the chairman of the Readiness Subcommittee, I plan on holding hearings on exactly this. I plan on pulling that curtain back. I plan on getting into the investigation in the same way that Harry Truman did. If it happens to be cost-plus contracts, to the administration, we are going to find out the truth on this—just like Harry Truman went after those cost-plus contracts in those days. It is not only the soul-source aspect, it is also the fact they are cost-plus contracts.

We are going to do a thorough investigation through the subcommittee, and I am committing to the Senator that the things he is talking about right now will be fully investigated by our committee, and we are going to uphold our oversight responsibility of this administration.

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, that gives me pause, and I hope it is a result of that the Senator would support my amendment as well. The facts is, we have not had many oversight hearings. We have now been in this conflict for several years, and a substantial amount of time has been spent. A very substantial amount of it has been wasted, regrettably.

But I think anything that any committee or subcommittee does to shine a spotlight on this makes some sense. I must say, however, as my colleague knows, there is substantial brushback from the administration. They do not want anything to do with this. And I understand why. But the fact is, what happened here was wrong. A top contractor with the federal government has been demoted because he blew the whistle on bad practices, and the taxpayer takes a bath to the tune, I think, of billions of dollars.

So whatever subcommittee or committee wants to dig into this; I think that would be great, and I certainly will commend my colleague if he contracts on many of our committees and this: I think there are substantial pressures on many of our committees and subcommittees. And I think the administration is not to move too far. We had an example of that on the issue of intelligence recently, and I won’t explore that more, but there has been a lot of foot dragging in a lot of areas.

The point of this on behalf of myself, Senator DURBIN, Senator LAUTENBERG, Senator BOXER, and others, the point of it is to establish what we know works, and what we know works is the Truman committee. Yes, it is an old model, but it is a model that really did work—nonpartisan, bipartisan. Take a hard look at what is going on. Don’t care where the chips fall, investigate it all. If somebody is cheating the American taxpayer, hold them accountable for it. I mean how do they miss 28,000 meals a day? I come from a town of 300 people, so we had a small restaurant. You can understand somebody missing a cheeseburger or two but 28,000 meals a day? They can’t do that. And I think to the administration we have to do twice to learn the lesson. Do business with companies that cheat. Cut them off. Shut it down.

I am not going into this at great length, but I can give the example of companies that in the same week that they were paying multimillion dollar penalties for cheating and defrauding the Government, in that same week they were signing new contracts for hundreds of millions of dollars of work. I think it is scandalous. Are we that lamedbrained that we can’t understand when somebody cheats you once you don’t need a second chance?

In my hometown, again, a town of 300 people, you wouldn’t need to learn that lesson anymore. And I think a company that cheats you, you don’t do business with them again. Not in this town. It is a slap on the wrist, a pat on the back. Atta boy. That is not the way it ought to work.

I could spend a lot of time on this. I will not do it now, but I could spend a lot of time talking about the abuses—the taxpayer pays to air-condition a building under reconstruction in Iraq. Well, that contract that goes to a sub-contractor for the building subcontract and pretty soon it is all done. We pay it. It is like an ice cube; it melts in your hand like money does as it goes through to—guess what—pay for air-conditioning, and it is a ceiling fan in what is going on some place.

Cheating? You bet it is.

I want to show you a picture of two million dollars. Incidentally, this guy wearing the striped shirt, he worked in this area. These are hundred-dollar bills wrapped in Saran Wrap. What would they be doing with a pile of bills wrapped in Saran Wrap? He testified: I was over there with the Coalition Provisional Authority, which is really us, as you know.

He says: We were telling people that when you come to pick up the cash for your contracts and so on, understand it is going to be in cash, so bring a bag. We deal in cash. He said we actually threw these around as footballs from time to time to the office, hundreds-of dollars, bills wrapped in Saran Wrap?

I don’t know how that would feel. But you can look at what it looked like. You know, the litters wrapped in Saran Wrap? He testified: I was over there with the Coalition Provisional Authority, which is really us, as you know.

I have spoken at some length about this with a company called Custer Battle. A couple guys show up in Iraq, and they decide: We are going to be contractors. Pretty soon they are contractors. Pretty soon they have millions of dollars in their pockets, and they are off and contracting, and then they set starting up offshore subsidiaries and selling to them, cheating the Federal Government. A couple of their employees decide that is not right and they are going to disclose it. Then their lives are threatened.

There is so much going on that it is just almost unbelievable to me.

The inspector general for the Coalition Provisional Authority issued a report. You do business with companies that actually belong to the Iraqis. It came from the oil revenues which was under our control then. There were 8,206 guards at one Iraqi ministry. 8,206 guards at one of the ministries. And that is what we were paying for through this $9 billion. It turns out, in paying 8,206 security people, there were only 602 of them. But 8,206 were paid. Where did the money go? If we could have dyed them purple and walked around to see who had purple pants pockets, we could have figured it out. This is a massive cheating and abuse scandal.

This is exactly like a Rip Van Winkle operation. We sort of doze through it all, don’t offend anybody, upset anybody.

I am delighted to hear my colleague is going to hold some hearings in December, but I am telling you this is a cessepool of trouble, digging into this. The guy who used to buy towels for our troops, from K.B.R. Halliburton, bought hand towels—you know, the little hand towels. He told us how he ordered the hand towels. Need some thousands and thousands and thousands of pounds of nails, 25 tons of nails, you just order them, don’t you? Oh, no, no. His supervisor said you don’t just order hand towels, you order hand towels embroidered with the company’s logo on it so it can double the price. You think about the troops when they are in their hands and face they are going to want just a plain towel? No, they are going to want one with our company logo on it, so order the more expensive one.

The sky is the limit. It is all cost plus, no worry and they are happy. We are all making money, except the taxpayer is taking a bath.

I have raised this issue now for about 2 years on the floor of the Senate, to dead silence.

There was a silence back in the forties when Harry Truman raised it. They empowered a committee to take a look and they discovered billions of dollars of waste, fraud, and abuse. The taxpayer was taking a bath and the Congress did something about it. The question is, Will it now?

We haven’t received one answer from the Pentagon about all these issues. We haven’t received one single answer. This has all been transmitted to the Pentagon, all of the testimony from five or six hearings. It is just unbelievable.

By the way, do you want 50,000 pounds of nails? I know where 25 tons of nails are. They are laying in the sand in Iraq. 25 tons of nails, 50,000 pounds ordered for reconstruction of Iraq. But they are the wrong size, and it does not matter, I guess, so they threw them on the ground and they re-order. It is just the taxpayers’ money. It is all cost plus. Order 50,000 pounds of nails the wrong size—Don’t sweat it. We are all going to get paid.

What a mess. So the point is, Congress has the responsibility. Congress has a responsibility to legislate, and Congress has a responsibility for something called oversight. With respect to the funds that the Congress appropriates. These funds, after all, come in from the American taxpayers.

and then are used to be expended on various operations, various projects, in this case reconstruction in Iraq or contractors that are contracting to provide assistance to the troops in Iraq. Some of that assistance to the troops manifests itself in charging for food that wasn't delivered.

Now, Mr. President, I was tempted to go through the whole list of those who have not called not do that in deference to my colleague who is on the floor ready to speak. But I think, the point is made. The Congress can deference to my colleague who is on that floor. But it is pretty hard, it seems to me, to look in the mirror and think you have done a good job for the people in this country, the taxpayers who pay the taxes, if you don't do that. We must give them the respect and the Congress has failed in its responsibility of oversight. If you don't believe that, then you should vote against my amendment. If you do believe that oversight and understand there has been virtually nothing done except for the hearings, I chair in the Policy Committee and with those hearings have uncovered dramatic examples of massive waste, fraud, and abuse, if you believe that is a real serious problem, then you ought to support this amendment.

I hope every Senator will ask questions of the Pentagon about Bunnettine Green the highest ranking civilian in the Pentagon with outstanding performance reviews, outstanding reviews all along the way until she began to say: You can't do this. You are violating the regulations of the Pentagon in the way that she told those at the top of the Corps of Engineers who wanted to award the kind of contracts that I have described. Look, you are violating the very rules that exist. The minute she started doing that, her career took a dramatic turn for the worse. At that point, she was told you are either going to be dismissed or she would have to resign the right to do this. She resigned.

If the Congress does not care about that, then it does not care about anything. If those who have the courage to speak up and tell the truth, as they see it, are told the consequences for that will be, then this Congress doesn't care much about those who have the courage to stand up and speak out when it is necessary. There has been a deafening silence, with the exception of a few Members of Congress, on this issue.

This Congress fights on alone. Why? Because not enough people here seem to care, not even to care to ask the basic question of those who run the Pentagon. Mr. President, I send the amendment to the desk on behalf of myself, Senator DURBIN, Senator LUTENBERG, and Senator BOXER, and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The amendment is printed in today's RECORD under "Text of Amendments.")

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Twenty-two minutes.

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, I reserve the remainder of my time. Senator DURBIN, I know, wishes to speak on this amendment. I reserve the remainder of the time on this amendment.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Mr. CHAMBLISS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

Mr. CHAMBLISS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. CHAMBLISS. Mr. President, I rise in support of the Chambliss amendment and in opposition to the amendment filed by my friend from Illinois, Senator DURBIN. I am pleased that the DURBIN amendment has been filed because it is good to see others share my idea that the retirement system of our Guard and Reserve soldiers needs to be updated to meet the new role these soldiers are playing as part of our Nation's military.

By way of introduction, let me say I think it is a very good thing we are debating this issue at this time in the Senate today because not only is it an important issue we need to talk about as policymakers in the Congress, but today we have a majority of the men and women serving in the theater in Iraq who are members of the Guard and Reserve. It is critically important that as we use these soldiers, we provide them with benefits that compare to those in the active-duty soldiers.

I would like to compare the military personnel system to a finely tuned machine because that is what it is. The Department of Defense and the individual military services have staffs that devote significant time and energy to determining how to recruit, retain, promote, separate, and retire people in their respective services. The Department recommends incentives, which we in Congress consider and authorize, which shape this process of recruiting for the active-duty soldiers.

We should give a real incentive or reward those members of the Reserve components who disrupt their lives in service of a continued commitment, and does not provide an incentive or reward for soldiers deployed in harm's way in defense of their country.

Both amendments target soldiers who have sacrificed, but my amendment targets the people who put their lives in harm's way, and we should be giving them a real incentive to stay in the military.

From a cost perspective, the DURBIN amendment has a 1-year reward for as few as 22 days of Reserve duty. That is a 17-day reduction in the age a reservist could collect retirement for every 1 day of service, whereas my amendment is far more equitable. It is a one-for-one reduction.

The DURBIN amendment scores at $4.8 billion over 5 years. My amendment scores at $320 million over 5 years. I agree that cost should not be the sole determining factor, but we are in a real budget world today where we are struggling to find dollars to buy weapons systems and to provide for these quality-of-life issues for our men and women. I had an amendment last year that was too expensive. We have come back this year with a much less realistic amendment that is affordable and, in my opinion, is more rewarding to those who deserve it at this point in the life of our military. The scoring of Senator DURBIN's amendment is roughly 8 times, almost 10 times as expensive as my amendment. and incentivized to stay in the Reserve. That is exactly what my amendment does and does it in a fair and cost-effective way. We incentivize voluntarism, not just incentivize longevity of service.

I urge my colleagues to reject the Durbin amendment and to support the underlying amendment.

I yield the floor and suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. SEXTON). Without objection, it is so ordered.

AMENDMENT NO. 2476

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, I joined with Senator DORGAN of North Dakota in offering amendment numbered 2476. It is an amendment on which we both do not try to do everything within our power to make certain their fellow soldiers are protected. Our current system does not work.

In 1941, Senator Harry Truman, a Democrat from Missouri, introduced a resolution in which he said:

"If we waste money with profit-seekers and those who try to gouge the Federal Government at the expense of our troops, we are not doing our soldiers any favor.

These shortages, especially of armor, have sent young men to Walter Reed for a long time, with missing arms and legs, and other serious injuries. I have met them. I don't know how we can face them and honestly say we have not tried to do everything within our power to make certain their fellow soldiers are protected. Our current system does not work.

the White House. This is not about protecting the President from embarrassment. This is about protecting our troops.

This Truman Commission cost very little money in those days, but it saved us billions of dollars. It is a valuable lesson for today. Then, as now, skyrocketing contract costs, rapid allocation of funds meant we were wasting money. Harry Truman stated when he came to this Senate, the same Chamber, almost 64 years ago:

I’m calling the attention of the Senate to these things because I believe most sincerely they need looking into. I consider public funds to be sacred funds and I think they ought to have every safeguard possible to prevent their misuse or being mishandled.

Senator Truman went on to say:

I think the Senate ought to create a special committee with authority to examine every contract.

The National Archives describes the Truman Committee:

The committee earned a high reputation for thoroughness and efficiency. After the end of the war the committee turned its analysis to wartime experiences in order to make recommendations that improved postwar and future national defense programs.

It was a real national service. We continue to offer this amendment on the Democratic side of the aisle and we cannot find a single Senator, or very few, I should say, on the Republican side even interested in talking about it. Why? Why wouldn’t they be interested in making certain the taxpayers’ dollars are well spent in the Department of Defense? Why wouldn’t they want accountability when it comes to the equipment to protect our troops?

I joined with Senator DORGAN with this amendment to create a new Truman committee to oversee contracting awards in Iraq, Afghanistan, and the war on terrorism. We need this committee. As Goldman Sachs International Vice President Robert Hormats stated:

There is nothing more corrosive of support for a war anywhere in the world, the war against terrorism or dealing with the problems in Iraq, than the concern that taxpayer money is not being used well.

The simple fact is we need better oversight. We need this committee. We need to identify the weaknesses in our current system. We need the best practices to be followed by our Department of Defense.

We received earlier this year that $8.8 billion that was managed by the Coalition Provisional Authority in Iraq simply disappeared. We brought back Mr. Bremmer, the head of that Coalition Provisional Authority for the United States, and gave him a gold medal. I wish we had found the $8.8 billion before we gave him a gold medal. Reports indicate that payrolls in Iraqi ministries under the control of that authority were inflated with thousands of ghost employees. The United States Inspector General for Iraqi reconstruction has said:

We believe the CPA management of Iraq’s national budget process and oversight of funds was burdened by severe inefficiencies and poor management.

The list goes on and on. We owe our troops and our taxpayers better oversight of their money. This bipartisan special committee called for in the Dorgan-Durbin amendment will accomplish this.

So many Members come to the Senate today and say not one penny is going to be spent for Hurricane Katrina or to safeguard America against avian influenza unless we offset it. We are not watching for new programs. Why not be watchdogs for existing programs? If Congress is not exercising its power of oversight, for goodness sake, let us create a Truman-like commission that will. Let’s ask the hard question and get the right answers. Let’s protect our troops and protect the taxpayers.

I reserve the remainder of my time and urge my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to support the Dorgan-Durbin amendment numbered 2476. I yield the floor and suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

Amendment No. 2478

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The bill clerk read as follows:

The Senator from New Jersey [Mr. LAUTENBERG] proposes an amendment numbered 2478.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

(Purpose: To prohibit individuals who knowingly engage in certain violations relating to the handling of classified information from holding a clearance)

On page 286, strike lines 1 through 3, and insert the following:

SEC. 1072. IMPROVEMENTS OF INTERNAL SECURITY ACT OF 1950.

(a) PROHIBITION ON HOLDING OF SECURITY CLEARANCE BY INDIVIDUALS VIOLATING ON HANDLING OF CLASSIFIED INFORMATION.—

(1) PROHIBITION.—Section 4 of the Internal Security Act of 1950 (50 U.S.C. 783) is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

"(f) No person who knowingly violates a law or regulation regarding the handling of classified information shall be permitted to continue to hold a clearance that could have a significant adverse impact on the national security of the United States, including the knowing disclosure of the identity of a covert agent of the Central Intelligence Agency to a person not authorized to receive such information, shall be permitted to continue to hold a security clearance for access to classified information."

(2) APPLICABILITY.—Subsection (f) of section 4 of the Internal Security Act of 1950, as amended by this amendment, applies to any individual holding a security clearance on or after the date of the enactment of this Act with respect to any knowing violation of law or regulation described in such subsection, regardless of whether such violation occurs before, on, or after that date.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Mr. President, the amendment I offer today is something I believe is urgently needed because of security concerns raised constantly these days, particularly as a result of a recent indictment we are all aware of. The amendment is relatively simple, straightforward. It clarifies part of the intelligence law to be clear that those who compromise classified information cannot hold a clearance.

The indictment describes conduct by a White House official that must not be tolerated. Certainly, an irresponsible and reckless official should not be allowed to continue to hold a clearance to see top-secret information. Any official who does something that should certainly not continue to hold a clearance.

It is quite clear what President Bush’s intent was when he said he wanted to clear the air about any leakage of classified information. I think we should follow his pledge or remind him of his pledge to remove anyone involved with leaking information. We know the information given to the journalist Robert Novak was, indeed, published, and a CIA operative was exposed.

The actions taken by the White House staff have damaged our national security. Thusly, an indictment has come about. It has destroyed an operative’s covert cover, compromised intelligence-gathering operations, and endangered the safety of other CIA employees and their families.

The amendment I offer today is similar to one that was offered earlier in the year by Senator REID in July. My amendment has one significant difference. It includes the words a “knowingly” standard so that someone who unknowingly does it doesn’t get included in our amendment. We wanted to narrow the field and say, if you talk about these things and know it, you ought to pay for it. The payment is fairly simple. My Republican colleagues reacted to the Reid amendment by talking about it as an open-ended standard. In deference to the concerns of our colleagues on the other side, I have added a “knowing” standard—in other words, if you don’t know it, then that is one thing; if you do know it, it is quite something else—which is more than fair to someone who reveals our national security secrets.

I serve as a colleague and friend from Virginia on the other side. I am reminded when both of us wore a uniform some years ago, it was “loose lips sink ships.” The lights were darkened all along the coast. You couldn’t even tell your family where you were at the time. As a matter of fact, I was in the area in Belgium that was quite dangerous. I did find a place that sold a postcard that was written in the language of the area. It was Flemish. I sent it to my mother to give her an indication where I was. I kind of had to sneak by the censors.

We are at war. People are at war with us. Terrorists are liable to attack us at any time. They are certainly doing what they can to even injure or kill our allies who are abroad. We ought to make sure we are as diligent about covering our security as we can be. We should ask nothing less than total obedience to the rules. I am here with the consent and support of Senator from Florida, Senator from Nevada, and others who believe we should do this. I hope my colleagues across the aisle can agree that if somebody gives information they shouldn’t, by golly, what we are saying is the penalty is that you have to lose your clearance and that person should be treated as the President suggests, removed from the security scene.

It is plain common sense. I urge my colleagues to support the amendment. I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. Martinez). The Senator from Virginia.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I say to my colleague, I recall that period very well. There were times when the Nation’s blackout. At that time my father was a doctor actively practicing medicine in this city, and he had to take the headlights on his car and put a black screen over the headlight with about a 1-inch slit so he could respond to emergency measures during the blackout. Where our home was at that time we had blackout curtains. We regularly went out to make sure there was no leakage of the light because at that time the city lights, if they were illuminated U.S. and other allied shipping such that they were the target of then German submarines off the coast. Indeed, it is hard to believe this, but the coastline from Florida all the way up to New England was strewn with the damage of ships that were torpedoed. I remember well that period of time, and I remember the phrase. I am surprised you, as an Army man, used a Navy phrase that loose lips sank ships. But we have a very serious amendment here, deserving of equally serious attention. It has just been handed to us. I am sure the Senator would appreciate that we would need some time to study this to determine exactly how we should respond.

I am reading the first paragraph: “No person who knowingly violates,” that would mean he would have to know that, A, his material is classified, and, B, that he has to have a knowledge of the law and regulation? Are those the two elements of that?

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Yes. The Senator is correct. And what we say is, if you do it, the least that ought to happen is you ought to learn enough of a lesson so that access is going to be denied to classified information if you do it knowingly.

Mr. WARNER. I understand what the consequences are. But I want to make certain the Senator was trying to draw this up in such a way that, no matter how misfortunate, if it is unintentioned, then that would not be a violation.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Right.

Mr. WARNER. I find it difficult to believe anyone who has a security clearance would not understand the basic law and regulation prohibiting or controlling its use. You can almost impute to the person knowledge of the statute and law.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. We tried our best to clarify it and remove the concern that was exhibited when Senator RZD offered it last July. This was added because colleagues on the other side made an observation that was sensible: that the person who does something unknowingly, you can’t punish them. But on the other hand, if someone has a job that includes security, I would have to say they would know this is a violation to betray any of the rules they are subject to. But this clarifies it. There is no intention here to pull the wool over anybody’s eyes or anything such as that. It is to make sure we prevent any leakage as much as we can of security information. We are so sensitized to it that our country is at times locked up in concerns with these warnings being given out, and we ought to try to restrict that from happening as much as possible.

It can be careless. The Senator can well remember the time, a very unfortunate time, when an informant, someone working with the CIA in Latin America—Guatemala, I believe it was—was assassinated after their identity was revealed. We don’t want that to happen. We have our friends and relatives overseas now.

Mr. WARNER. Let me interrupt. I want to make certain that time used during the colloquy is divided equally, that when I speak, it is charged to my time, and the Senator from New Jersey, as he will be charged to him; is that agreeable?

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Certainly.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. WARNER. The standard you have is “securities adverse impact.” Do you have any criteria for “significant”? As you and I both know, having dealt in these areas for many years, we often look at things that are classified and we say to ourselves: Why in the world would they be classifying this document? Unfortunately, the broad brush of classification sometimes is utilized on things that I don’t think need to be classified.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. I think current law describes that. We will use that as the standard. Again, there is no intention here to bypass the rules. It is to confirm clearly that if you talk about this, we are not saying you go to jail. We are not saying anything else. But you certainly should no longer have access to classified information.

Mr. WARNER. Would the Senator be able to supply for the record the references that he says would define further the word “significant”? You said it is defined in law. Could you cite those laws upon which you rely?

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Yes. We will certainly try to do that.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. WARNER. I think I still have the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Virginia.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, again, this amendment has just been given to the majority side. We will, in due course, have further response to the Senator. At this time it becomes the pending amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. It is the pending amendment.

Mr. WARNER. Fine. I thank my colleague. I yield the floor.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. I thank the Senator. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, are we not at this point in time guided by the standing order we just entered?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is correct. The question is on agreeing to the Inhofe amendment, as modified.

Mr. WARNER. Have the yeas and nays been ordered?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. They have been ordered.

Mr. WARNER. May we now proceed with the vote.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The bill clerk called the roll.

Mr. DURBIN. I announce that the Senator from New Jersey (Mr. CORZINE) is necessarily absent.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there any other Senators in the Chamber desiring to vote?

The result was announced—yeas 99, nays 0, as follows:
The amendment offered by Senator ENSIGN represents an important step in the effort to ensure that U.S. Armed Forces have the clear guidance that they need and deserve.

I am confident that the DoD and the administration will ensure that our men and women in uniform have every tool available to them consistent with U.S. and international law.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, the Senator from Nevada has assured the Senate that this amendment does not seek, in any way, to alter or modify the policy, including Executive Order 11850, relative to the use of riot control agents. I note that the President has provided the Presidential approval required by that Executive order for uses of riot control agents in Iraq. We look forward to consulting with the administration. The amendment of the Senator from Nevada is an important amendment. It could be very helpful, and we support the amendment.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, as I stated on the floor yesterday, I am able to support Senator ENSIGN’s amendment because it now includes several important modifications that were requested by the administration. As a result of those modifications, the amendment now accords with current U.S. policy and law regarding the use of riot control agents by members of the Armed Forces. I thank Senator ENSIGN for agreeing to those modifications. I will take into account the views and recommendations of the administration as we continue our work on this issue and the bill in conference.

The resolution of ratification for the Chemical Weapons Convention, CWC, passed by this body contained a condition requiring the President to certify that the United States is not restricted by the CWC in its use of riot control agents in certain specified circumstances. In addition, the condition required the President not to eliminate or alter Executive Order 11850, which prohibits the use of riot control agents in war “except in defensive military modes to save lives.”

In response to questions from myself and Senator LEVIN on the floor yesterday, the President confirmed that he does not seek through this amendment to amend, expand or reinterpret Executive Order 11850 in any way. It is on that understanding that I can support his amendment.

The Senator from Nevada has raised the question of whether the U.S. Armed Forces currently have sufficiently clear authority with respect to riot control agents. I have looked into this matter and consulted with representatives of our Department of Defense, including representatives of our commanders in the field.

They have informed me and my staff that, in their view, the use of riot control agents is a very complex matter. It is not clear that commanders in the field could use “RCAs” widely. However, there are a number of cases where RCAs could be very useful to avoid unnecessary loss of life. I have been assured that, consistent with the Executive Order, U.S. Armed Forces have authority to use riot control agents.

Furthermore, I am informed that DoD will examine whether any confusion exists about RCA use, and will take all steps necessary to ensure that U.S. Armed Forces have the clear guidance that they need and deserve.

The amendment (No. 2440), as modified, was agreed to.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, it is my understanding that we have a second vote as ordered.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The next question is on the Ensign amendment. There are 2 minutes equally divided. Who yields time?

Mr. ENSIGN. Mr. President, I ask that Senator ALLARD be added as co-sponsor to my amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. ENSIGN. Mr. President, very simply, this amendment seeks to clarify what the policy of the United States has been since 1975, that our military would be able to use riot control agents—in this case tear gas—for defensive purposes. That has been the policy of the United States. But because of some of our interpretations, our military is not able to use tear gas.

They do not take it with them, they do not train with it, and in many cases tear gas—just as police forces use it all over the world—would save civilian lives as well as lives of the members of our military.

This is absolutely a critical amendment to save lives of Americans and for those civilians who, when our military kills them—and unfortunately these things happen—it makes us look bad as a country.

This is a critical amendment that we need to adopt.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I wish to indicate to my colleagues that I have carefully studied this. I support the Ensign amendment. I defer to my colleague, Senator LEVIN.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, the Senator from Nevada has assured the Senate that this amendment does not seek, in any way, to alter or modify the policy, including Executive Order 11850, relative to the use of riot control agents. I note that the President has provided the Presidential approval required by that Executive order for uses of riot control agents in Iraq. We look forward to consulting with the administration. The amendment of the Senator from Nevada is an appropriate amendment. It could be very helpful, and we support the amendment.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, as I stated on the floor yesterday, I am able to support Senator ENSIGN’s amendment because it now includes several important modifications that were requested by the administration. As a result of those modifications, the amendment now accords with current U.S. policy and law regarding the use of riot control agents by members of the Armed Forces. I thank Senator ENSIGN for agreeing to those modifications. I will take into account the views and recommendations of the administration as we continue our work on this issue and the bill in conference.

In addition, the condition required the President not to eliminate or alter Executive Order 11850, which prohibits the use of riot control agents in war “except in defensive military modes to save lives.”

In response to questions from myself and Senator LEVIN on the floor yesterday, the President confirmed that he does not seek through this amendment to amend, expand or reinterpret Executive Order 11850 in any way. It is on that understanding that I can support his amendment.

The Senator from Nevada has raised the question of whether the U.S. Armed Forces currently have sufficiently clear authority with respect to riot control agents. I have looked into this matter and consulted with representatives of our Department of Defense, including representatives of our commanders in the field.

They have informed me and my staff that, in their view, the use of riot control agents is a very complex matter. It is not clear that commanders in the field could use “RCAs” widely. However, there are a number of cases where RCAs could be very useful to avoid unnecessary loss of life. I am confident that the DoD and the administration will ensure that our men and women in uniform have every tool available to them consistent with U.S. and international law.

Mr. LUGAR. Mr. President, I rise today to share my views on the amendment offered by Senator ENSIGN regarding the use of riot control agents, or RCAs, by members of our Armed Forces in war. As one of the principal proponents of Senate ratification of the CWC, along with my ranking member, Senator BIDEN, I feel it important to provide my views in relation to this amendment.

I will vote in favor this amendment, and I do so because I believe that it in no way modifies, changes, reinterprets, or otherwise revises the laws of the United States regarding the use of RCAs in war to save lives, nor in any way affects U.S. international obligations. This amendment creates no new law, and changes no U.S. policy.

When the Senate approved a resolution of advice and consent to ratification of the Convention on the Prohibition of Development, Production, Stockpiling and Use of Chemical Weapons and on Their Destruction—the Chemical Weapons Convention or CWC in 1997, it made the conditional on maintaining U.S. law in effect at that time. Condition 26(B) of that resolution of ratification stated:

The President shall take no measure, and prescribe no rule or regulation, which would alter or eliminate Executive Order 11850 of April 8, 1975.

Senator ENSIGN’s amendment mentions both this Executive order and the Senate-approved condition.

Senator ENSIGN’s amendment cannot modify that condition, and because it merely restates authority to the President already has regarding the use of RCAs in war, I believe that voting for the amendment will not harm U.S. leadership in preventing the proliferation of chemical weapons nor will it reverse the will of the Senate at the time it approved the CWC. I look forward to working with Chairman WARNER, Senator LEVIN, and the administration as this provision is considered in conference with the House, and in efforts to improve it in that conference.

Mr. BIDEN. Mr. President, I will vote in favor of the Ensign amendment to this bill, relating to the use of riot control agents, and I want to make clear to my colleagues why a steadfast support of the Chemical Weapons Convention can do so in good conscience. Senator ENSIGN is concerned that current interpretation of U.S. policy and of U.S. obligations under international law might be hampering U.S. forces in Iraq. I agree that that not everybody shares that belief, but I do not doubt that some people have this concern, and I appreciate Senator ENSIGN’s desire to make sure that people in the military fully understand what they can and cannot do when it comes to using riot control agents in Iraq.

What is important about the Ensign amendment, in my view, is that it will in no way modify either U.S. policy or U.S. international obligations regarding the use of riot control agents. The statement, in subsection (a) of the amendment that “riot control agents are not chemical weapons” is fully consistent with the Chemical Weapons Convention, in which “riot control agents” are defined as a chemical, not listed in any of the Convention’s three lists of chemical weapons or their precursors, “which can produce rapidly in humans sensory irritation or disabling physical effects which disappear within a short time following termination of exposure.” That definition is quite different from the definition of a “toxic chemical” in a chemical weapon, “which through its chemical action on life processes can cause death, temporary incapacitation or permanent harm to humans or animals.” So the Ensign amendment is correct in that a riot control agent, as defined in the Chemical Weapons Convention, would not be a chemical weapon as defined in that convention.

Similarly, the Ensign amendment now before this body accurately reflects U.S. policy as established by President Gerald Ford in Executive Order 11850 of April 8, 1975. That Executive order, signed by a Republican President and implemented by subsequent Presidents of both parties over the last 30 years, states: “The United States renounces, as a matter of national policy... first use of riot control agents in war except in defensive military modes to save lives.”... It goes on to give four examples of such defensive military modes, only two of which relate to combat zones:

“(b)... in situations in which civilians are used to mask or screen attacks and combat casualties can be reduced or avoided”; and

“(c)... in rescue missions in remotely isolated areas, of downed aircrews and passengers, and escaping prisoners.” Executive Order 11850 then orders implementation, as follows:

“Sec. 1. The Secretary of Defense shall take all necessary measures to ensure that the use by the Armed Forces of the United States of any riot control agents and chemical herbicides in war is prohibited unless such use has Presidential approval, in advance.

“Sec. 2. The Secretary of Defense shall prescribe the rules and regulations deemed necessary to ensure that the national policy herein announced shall be observed by the Armed Forces of the United States.”

As far as I can tell, Senator SHELBY does not intend that anything in Executive Order 11850 be changed, nor that there is a contradiction in the U.S. policy and obligation to fully obey the Chemical Weapons Convention, which binds each state party “not to use riot control agents as a method of warfare.” It is standing U.S. policy that if somebody is using human shields, as occurred in Somalia in the early 1990s, our Armed Forces may use riot control agents “in defensive military modes to save lives” without violating our obligations as state party to the Chemical Weapons Convention.

In light of my view that the Ensign amendment will not change U.S. policy and will not call into question the requirement to comply with our international obligations under the Chemical Weapons Convention, I see no reason to oppose this amendment. I do urge, however, that the limited nature of this amendment be made more explicit in conference.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. All time has been yielded. The question is on the amendment. The yeas and nays have been ordered, and the clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk called the roll. Mr. DURBIN. I announce that the Senator from New Jersey (Mr. CORZINE) is necessarily absent.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there any other Senators in the Chamber desiring to vote?

It is the sense of the Senate that—

AMENDMENT NO. 2489

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Illinois?

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that I am hereby a sponsor of the following amendment:

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Mr. DURBIN. Without objection, the pending amendments are put asides.

The clerk will read the amendment as follows:

The Senator from Illinois [Mr. DURBIN], for himself and Mr. BAYH, proposes an amendment numbered 2489.

Mr. DURBIN. I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

(Purpose: To provide income replacement payments for certain Reserve component members for extended and frequent mobilization for active duty service)

"(3) is involuntarily mobilized for service on active duty under section 910 of title 37, United States Code, and that mobilization or the member’s separation from the member’s most recent Federal income tax filing, divided by 12.

"(d) LIMITATION ON FISCAL YEAR 2006 Obligations.—During fiscal years 2006, obligations incurred under section 12579 of title 37, United States Code, to provide income replacement payments to involuntarily mobilized members of a reserve component who are subject to extended and frequent active duty service may not exceed $60,000,000.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, let me say at the outset that Senator BAYH and I are offering this amendment. It is based on a very simple concept and idea. We kind of came at it a little differently. I spoke earlier about the disparity that we see that exists in the ranks and poses on reservists a burden not experienced by many Active-Duty troops. Many Active-Duty troops experience income losses during deployments due to tax advantages, hazardous duty pay, family separation allowances, and other special pay enhancements. Those reservists with incomes higher than the deployed military suffer a loss. Their ongoing financial commitments continue for their children, for their families, for their homes, for their automobiles. You know the list as well as I do. Their basic expenses are based on civilian income, but when they are activated, they are receiving military income. The resulting financial problems on the homefront can distract a man or woman who has said: I am ready to serve my country and even risk my life.

The amendment I offer with Senator BAYH allows reservists mobilized for extended periods to receive up to $3,000 per month in extra pay to make up for differences between their military and civilian salaries. To qualify, a reservist must have a pay gap of at least $50 a month.

The language I offer today is identical to that in the House bill, with one exception. This amendment provides income replacement payments for Reserve component members mobilized for 6 months or more. The House
Mr. President, I have just gotten this provision. Chairman MCRGH has something interesting to do. I agree with him. He said: "We have a crisis." I agree with that. He repeated that the extended deployments are raising this issue time and time again for many of the very best who serve our country. I have to agree with Chairman MCRGH 100 percent. We have made a sound proposal because we do, indeed, have a crisis. Recruiting numbers are down for our military. That is a fact of life. With the Reserve components missing their recruitment targets, we must look to the retention of existing members to keep up force strength.

So far, retention has been pretty good. I salute the men and women for staying on in the military even though we ask more and more of them each day. But the existence of this income loss is going to hurt us with retention. Let's be honest about it. Of the top 10 reasons cited in the status of forces survey, the National Guard and Reserve, income loss was No. 4. The others are obvious: family burden, too many activations and deployments, activations are too long, and loss of income. We ask a lot of sacrifice from the men and women in uniform. They march off and do their duty, whether it is responding to Hurricane Katrina at home or going over to risk their lives in Iraq or Afghanistan. We understand that we can do something about the income loss. That is what this amendment seeks to do.

I urge my colleagues on both sides to support this measure. Pass this amendment and include it in our Senate bill language so that when we get together with the House of Representatives, we can ensure that something does get done this year to eliminate or at least reduce the income loss suffered by families of some of our guardsmen and reservists. By standing behind a qualification period, we may lay down a clear marker that we in the Senate stand for more than just symbolism. We really want to help. We stand for real help in addressing the pay gap for the good of the members of our Guard and Reserve components, the good of their families, for the good of our Nation.

I urge my colleagues, if they think this is a worthy amendment and will join us in it, Senator Bayh and I would welcome their support. This should be a bipartisan amendment. I don't know how we can argue over whether we should protect the income of the men and women who fight for us. If they are separated, not there for the important decisions that are being made by their families, the least we can do is make sure they don't face some unreasonable hardship because of income loss.

I see Senator Landrieu is here. I salute her. She has done so many things recently on Hurricane Katrina and other issues. But she has been one of the strongest voices in the Senate for the Guard and Reserve of our military. She also spoke the other day about this issue. She said: We have to have an amendment to help Guard and Reserve. I am glad she has come to the Chamber at this moment because it is timely. We are trying to make sure this bill doesn't leave the Senate without a provision in it that is going to help these men and women in uniform.

Ms. Landrieu. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. Durbin. I am happy to yield.

Ms. Landrieu. I know the Senator is wrapping up his remarks, but I would like to ask the Senator, is he aware that a complementary amendment we have worked on for a couple of years, giving a tax credit to employers who are filling that pay gap, is the Senator aware that has still not passed this Congress?

Mr. Durbin. I was aware of it. I say to the Senator from Louisiana, a lot of people are aware of it. They think we have already done these things. We make these proposals on the floor of the Senate. Some of them pass the Senate, then they disappear in conference committees. We all pat ourselves on the back and say we are standing up for the men and women in uniform. At the end of the day, there is no law for the President to sign.

A lot of our colleagues, myself included, will be at Veterans Day events this week. I will be traveling all over the country. I will be standing there. We may be holding the flag. We will say we are for our soldiers and our veterans. But the real proof is in our votes. That is a good one to say to employers: If you are willing to stand behind that man or woman in uniform who is leaving your employment for a short period to do their duty for our country, why shouldn't we stand behind you with the Tax Code?

I thank the Senator from Illinois. I ask him, is there any reason he could believe or think the American people wouldn't put the Guard and Reserve at the top of the list for a tax cut or a tax credit? Is there any other group you can think of that is more deserving than the men and women who leave their homes, put on the uniform, leave their jobs, leave their businesses, and go to the frontline to take the bullets? Would the Senator be able to identify any other group that would be more worthy of a tax credit or a tax cut if we had extra money to give?

Mr. Durbin. From my point of view, absolutely none. But it is interesting, I was aware of it. I say to the Senator from Illinois, if you happen to be a millionaire in America, we think you need a tax break of $35,000 a year. Poor souls. If you happen to be making between $50 and $200,000, the tax break turns into $112 dollars; under $50,000, $6. The point is, we are going to spend billions of dollars giving tax breaks to the wealthiest people and not giving a helping hand to the men and women in uniform and the employers who patriotically stand behind them.

I say to the Senator from Louisiana, she couldn't have a more timely observation.

Ms. Landrieu. I thank the Senator from Illinois. I would just like to add my few remarks to support his amendment.

The Presiding Officer. The Senator from Louisiana is recognized.

Ms. Landrieu. Mr. President, I thank the President from Virginia for recognizing me. I am glad the Senator from Illinois has come to the floor again this afternoon and has spent literally hours over the last 2 years, in particular, speaking about the importance of supporting our Guard and Reserve.

Mr. Warner. Mr. President, will the distinguished Senator from Louisiana allow me to propound a question to the distinguished Senator from Illinois before he departs the floor?

Ms. Landrieu. Mr. President, I will be happy to yield to the chairman.

The Presiding Officer. The Senator from Virginia is recognized.

Mr. Warner. I thank the Presiding Officer.

Mr. President, I have just gotten this amendment and I am looking it over. It is not unlike similar provisions that have been before the Senate. As a matter of fact, it has been passed by the Senate but dropped in conference.

Here is the problem based on, again, your modest military experience of my own, but a lifetime of association with the men and women in the military. I have come to learn the importance of pay. Pay to an individual is a tremendous symbolism. I remember when we advanced from private to private first class or, in my case, from seaman to seaman second class, seaman first class, and so on. I got $4 a month in one pay increase. I remember, in World War II. And because the units are merged together. When we go to Iraq, as all of us do now, we will find Reserves and regulars performing the same duties commensurate with their rank and their technical experience. Reserves and regulars are subject to the same threat to life and limb from an IED, from the missiles coming in, subject to the same arduous hardships and living conditions both in Iraq and Afghanistan.

The argument comes this amendment, no matter how well-intentioned, and suddenly the Reserve gets a significant amount of money in addition to his monthly pay to the regular who is serving right with him, living in the same places, eating the same food, and taking the same risks.

For those of us who have had the opportunity to serve in the ranks, that begins to breed tension and inequitities. You don’t want those types of tensions as these young men and women are courageously performing their military duties. This is my concern.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, may I respond to the Senator?

Mr. WARNER. Yes, of course.

Mr. DURBIN. First, I have the greatest respect for the Senator from Virginia, who served his country not only in the Navy but as Secretary of the Navy, and also as the longest serving Senator in Virginia. Didn’t the Senator from Virginia break the record recently?

Mr. WARNER. I am No. 2 for life.

Mr. DURBIN. And very popular in the State of Virginia. I say to him, consider two things. Let’s assume the Senator is in a unit that is in combat and he learns the fellow next to him who has been activated as a Guardsman used to work for Sears Roebuck, a Chicago-based company. And because Sears Roebuck is such a good and patriotic corporation, they have decided they are going to protect his income. They are going to give him more than his military pay. They are going to keep him at the same level of income. They are going to give him what he or her life is going to be and builds his or her life accordingly in terms of expenses incurred. A person in the Guard and Reserve has a civilian life and civilian financial obligations that he or she learns the first time they are activated and a hardship may come from separation. But they are in different circumstances as they go into this field of combat. One comes from a private military life with a family budget, and the other comes from the private sector with another family budget.

It seems to me what I am asking is, since we now rely more than ever on the Guard and Reserve, shouldn’t we be more sensitive to that? Shouldn’t we say that if you are willing to sacrifice your time and your life for your country, we are willing to sacrifice, too, to make sure there is no unnecessary economic hardship.

I don’t think the two observations I made are unreasonable. The Senator from Virginia knows better than I because he has been in the military and I have not served. But I would think in a unit, people would be more sensitive to the fact that soldier who left that job in the private sector or the Federal Government is next to me worried because they missed the second mortgage payment back home wouldn’t make me feel any better about my unit and wouldn’t make me feel any better to know.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I think we have different perspectives. But pay is a very significant thing in every military person’s life. We have to adjust. We certainly have to recognize.

What you are in a sense doing, Sears has opted as an employer to do as you state, not let their employee accept the consequences, and there is a category of persons coming in from the Reserve and Guard who do not have employers such as Sears Roebuck; for whatever reason their employer won’t do it.

I don’t know, I am concerned about building tensions into these young people in these units. Mr. DURBIN. May I ask the Senator, in this colloquy through the Chair, consider this whole question about retention. That is a big issue now. We need these men and women in the Guard and Reserve to fulfill their duty. If they have developed the skills, understand the mission, can be combat ready in an instant. We need them to stick around. We need them to reup. If they have been through a bitter experience—personal experience, financial experience, separated from their families—we know it lessens that likelihood. If we want the very best to continue serving, I think this is an incentive for that to happen.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, the Senator is absolutely correct. I could even take it a step further. If we didn’t have the Guard and Reserve, we would have to carry in peacetime, as well as wartime, a much larger active force. We are fortunate that in wartime conditions, we have these men and women who will respond, and do so willingly and subject their families. The Senator from Illinois is correct on that point.

I have to dwell on this amendment. I just want to make one point. I want to thank the Senator for his collocation, and I appreciate the courtesies the Senator always extends.

Mr. DURBIN. I thank the Senator.

Mr. WARNER. The Senator from Louisiana has the floor.

Mr. LEVIN. Will the Senator from Louisiana yield for a question to Senator DURBIN?

Mr. LANDRIEU. I would like to ask the Senator from Virginia a question before he leaves the floor.

Mr. WARNER. I will be here when the Sun comes up tomorrow.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, it is my recollection that the Senate already passed an amendment in one of the previous bills where we made up the difference for Federal employees. Is that not correct?

Mr. DURBIN. That is correct. We passed it for the third or fourth time. It goes into this strange world of conference committees and disappears.

Mr. LEVIN. In which all of us have participated. We have seen the parts that emerge and the parts that do not, and it is always a little mystery as to what emerges and what does not emerge.

My understanding is that clearly is a precedent for treating all employees. Everybody is activated the same way as Federal employees. That is No. 1. So I think that is a good argument for the amendment. But also the cost of this amendment, it seems to me, given the qualification period of 6 months, as I understand it, the cost over 5 years would be $285 million which would be a little under $60 million a year. Is that correct?

Mr. DURBIN. That is correct. Mr. LEVIN. I thank the Senator.

Mr. LEVIN. Will the Senator from Louisiana yield for a question to Senator DURBIN?

Mr. LANDRIEU. I do so through the Chair. I first say how much I appreciate the exchange between the Senator from Virginia and the Senator from Illinois. I hope we can find a way to move forward on this very important issue because it is so crucial to the security of our Nation, to the security of these Guard and Reserve families. It seems the right thing for us to do.

My question to the Senator from Virginia, because he has so much experience in warfighting and the Secretary of the Navy, and the Chairman of the Committee on Armed Services, is: When we created the Guard and Reserve Force, did we anticipate that so many would be called up for such a long period of time? That is an important question to have because my sense of it is that we didn’t completely anticipate these numbers and these lengths of deployment.

I ask the Senator, several decades ago, did we foresee this dependency?

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, the Senator raises a very interesting historical perspective. During World War II, the National Guard was mobilized early on and amalgamated with the regular forces. The Reserves likewise were brought in. So everybody was in World War II for the duration.

The next major conflict was Korea, in which I had minor participation, modest though it may be. The units I served in were quickly made an amalgamation of Reserves and regulars. I remember vividly the squadron I served in as a ground officer. The Reserve pilots, even though they had been called, some of them had only been on active duty 60 days, barely getting retraining and were flying missions with the regulars who had been on active duty for a number of years. There was no distinction between any of us. We were all treated the same. I was a Reservist called up at that time.

Then along came Vietnam, and for whatever reasons, when I was Secretary of the Navy, we didn’t employ the Guard and Reserve. We relied on the draft. I would have to research into that, but basically to the 1990s, we called up 200,000. But as the chairman knows, because he is the great distinguished chairman of our committee, he is correct, since 1990, the Persian Gulf War to the present, we are 150,000 troops strong in Iraq and we have called up 744,000 Guard and Reserve members.

As the Senator from Illinois so beautifully pointed out, these are citizen soldiers. They live in the community. Their budgets are based on their civilian jobs. Their children, their spouses, and their families have dreams and aspirations based on their civilian payrolls. They do not enter the military and decide: We are only going to make $10,000, $50,000, $60,000 the rest of our life, but the benefit is we get a discount on food. We get our health insurance. We will move around every 2 years. We get a housing allowance. It is the life we have chosen. We understand the sacrifices we are making, and we budget accordingly.

These are business owners, police, nurses, doctors, engineers, scientists who answer the call, put on the uniform, and sometimes answer that call in 24 hours, literally, or in just a few weeks. They kiss their children goodbye—maybe the wife is the spouse who is leaving. Maybe it is the husband. They tell everyone goodbye. They leave and they are gone for 18 months.

We understand our current rules, which are not working, not only does that soldier make the sacrifice but our Government is asking that family in some cases to take a 30- to 40-percent decrease in pay. I just cannot understand it. Nothing about it makes sense. It defies common sense. How can we—in the Guard and Reserve, then send them to long deployments, sometimes without even the equipment they need—which is a whole other issue—but ask their families to take a 30- and 40-percent decrease? I know we have not done this in the past, but this Senator from Louisiana thinks it is time to do it for the future, I hope we can again take bipartisan action on this Senate floor, as we have done so many times before, to support the amendment offered by the Senator from Illinois, at least in the Federal employ, our own engineers, our own nurses, our own doctors, our own office administrators, when we ask them to put the uniform on and go to the frontline to take the bullets, that as an employer we do not say: And also, by the way, we would like your spouse and your children to take a 40 percent less income while you are away.

If the country was in crisis in terms of no money for anyone and we were all on rations and we were all sacrificing financially and we did not have the money, I think these families would say: Look, we are all in the same boat. We are serving the country. We will take the 30-percent cut in pay. But what gets me, what galls me, what makes me so angry is, this Congress is the only family that has put one of its own on the uniform, other families who are making upwards of $350,000, $400,000, $500,000, tax cuts, and we cannot seem to find the will, the energy, or the focus to help the small group of families who are doing so much. We are sharing the entire burden in some cases—let me repeat, the entire burden of the war on terror. I do not understand it. Senator DURBIN does not understand it. Senator BAYH does not understand it. By the way, senators have voted unanimously.

What happens to this amendment when it goes to the House of Representatives? What should I tell the Guard and Reserve families who went to Iraq, over 6,000 of them—3,000 of them just came home and a third of the ones who just came home came home to no house, no school, and no church. Now I have to go home and say that Congress is going to get ready to pass another spending bill, another tax bill, and I am sorry, yes, you have, once again, been left out. I do not even know how to explain it because it cannot be explained.

Senator DURBIN’s amendment simply says, let the Federal Government be the leader. Let the Federal Government set the pace as an employer. Let us at least do what other States and other employers are doing, fill the gap, stand in the gap for them. They are merely filling the gap, the risk with their lives. Why would we ask our Federal employees to take a serious pay cut? I do not think we should. Again, if we did not have any money at all, if we were just flat broke, then maybe we would have to. We give money away to everybody, but we cannot give it to our Federal employees who are serving this country twice: as public servants so they do not get a very high salary normally, and then they go to the frontlines and take the bullets and get a salary even lower, and we think that is perfectly fine.

Well, this Senator does not think it is fine. This Senator thinks we can do... better. This Senator thinks we need to have better priorities. This Senator believes we need to have different priorities that support our Nation, support our services, support our Guard and Reserve, and it would ultimately support the country. And, frankly, it is the right thing to do.

I see the Senator from Michigan.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Michigan is recognized.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, this is an important issue. It has been offered on behalf of Senator BAYH, by Senator DURBIN, Senator LANDRIEU is a very passionate and persuasive supporter of this amendment. I think Senators BAYH, DURBIN, and LANDRIEU are right; that we basically designed the Guard and Reserve force to be a strategic reserve. As a practical matter, now they are effectively part of our operational forces. We have to change this arrangement so they do not take such a severe hit as they are being called to active duty. They are now in for longer and longer periods. I do not have the statistics on how long the average period of callup is now, but I am quite confident that if we could compare the length of the callup, say, during the last war and the periods between 1973, when we ended the draft, that we would see there has been a dramatic increase in the length of the callup.

I support the amendment. I think we can make some real progress—I hope we can make some real progress—on this amendment. The periods are getting longer and longer, and it is a reasonable cost, a fair cost. It is something on which we can do better, and the troops deserve that we do better.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Virginia is recognized.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, first I commend all Senators who have participated in this debate. Each time I listen to the distinguished Senator from Louisiana, I say to my ranking member, she was a very valued member of our committee before she went AWOL.

Mr. LEVIN. She is still part of the Guard and Reserve, though.

Mr. WARNER. Yes, proceeding to the Appropriations Committee, where some think all power resides in the Senate. Nevertheless, to think that the Senator found time to work on this amendment, as she has on a number of personnel issues through the years—I remember this amendment bill, but particularly because of the question of recruiting and the difficulty of the Reserve and Guard, and the adjustment to family life. As the Senator pointed out, hundreds upon hundreds of thousands—700,000 I believe—have been involved in this conflict.

Mr. LEVIN. If the Senator would yield on that?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Michigan.

Mr. LEVIN. It seems to me, the fact that there is a provision in both bills does increase the opportunity and the likelihood this time around that we will come out of conference with something. All we can do is continue to try, but I am a little more optimistic now that this amendment passed. Again, we thank the Senators from Indiana, Illinois, and Louisiana for their leadership.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Louisiana is recognized.

Ms. LANDRIEU. I see the lead sponsor of the amendment on the floor, so let me be brief so he can close out. I thank the leadership for accepting this amendment. I know they will fight hard to keep this in conference as we move forward because it really is an important part of our strategic alignment for the future. I thank the chairman and the ranking member for their leadership not just today but over time, for doing the right thing by our troops and always being willing to think about new ways of making our military stronger and better.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Virginia is recognized.

Mr. WARNER. If I can make one comment before our distinguished colleague from Louisiana leaves the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Virginia is recognized.

Mr. WARNER. There comes a time every now and then to reflect on the past with a sense of humor. When I was a young Senator many years ago, one of the Senator’s predecessors was Russell Long. His expertise was in the area of taxes. How many times, I ask my good friend from Michigan, would I hear him in these vigorous floor debates come over and say: We will drop it in conference; accept it?

Mr. LEVIN. Usually with his arm around you.

Mr. WARNER. With his arm around you shaking you like a tree. But we are not saying that.

I just thought maybe that little bit of color might remind Louisiana of his proud record in the Senate.

Mr. WARNER. This is another example of how the managers, in the course of colloquies, can work out amendments. I strongly urge colleagues to come forward because we are getting down to the few amendments that are remaining. I hope that this bill can be acted on for final passage tomorrow, as early as possible in the day.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Michigan.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, my understanding is that at 5:30 there will be two votes. I am wondering if Senator Lautenberg’s amendment has been—I know it has been offered. I am wondering whether there is further debate on that amendment.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I wish to say to my colleague at the present time I am drafting an amendment in the second degree. As soon as I have it, I will be prepared to debate it on the floor and let the matter go to a vote.

Mr. LEVIN. I think it is very helpful that Senator Lautenberg be informed that there is a plan to offer a second-degree amendment so perhaps he can then be prepared to come to the floor and his amendment that second-degree amendment is.

Mr. WARNER. I would propose to do it. I would have to check. There are three amendments, and actually the fourth is the pending amendment. I will see if he cannot possibly bring up his amendment right after the two votes.

Mr. LEVIN. Perhaps during those two votes, if the chairman so desires, we could try to line up the rest of the business for tomorrow.

Mr. WARNER. Thank you, my partner, who has been most helpful in getting this bill passed. We are going to try and facilitate that.

Mr. LEVIN. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Michigan.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, let me add my thanks to the Senator from Indiana for his eloquent, passionate portrayal of the needs and responsibilities we have to carry out toward our guardsmen and reservists.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, it is just a matter of minutes before we start the votes. Perhaps the distinguished Senator from Georgia would like to make some explanation about the vote coming up.

Mr. CHAMBLISS. Mr. President, these next couple of votes involve an amendment I filed and an amendment the Senator from Illinois, Mr. Durbin, has filed. I think the significant thing about both amendments is that we are finally starting to recognize that, because we are calling up our Guard and Reserve folks on an all too regular basis these days, and because today, as we enjoy the freedoms that we sometimes take for granted in this country, we should treat the Guard and Reserve the same as the Active-Duty folks. Unfortunately, the difference between the two is we cannot afford the Durbin amendment.

What my amendment does is to ultimately allow the reduction down to age 55 for those Reserve and Guard men and women into contingency areas. For every 3 months they have been activated and sent into a conflict, they receive a 1-for-1 or 3-month reduction in the retirement age from 60 to 55 for reservists, based upon the activation of those reservists and Guard men and women while they are serving our country.

I also express my appreciation to the two leaders of the Armed Services Committee, Senators Warner and Levin, for their courtesy. I thank you for accepting our amendment. I know you share our conviction about doing right by our brave men and women in the Guard and Reserve, and I wish to express my personal appreciation for your accommodation in this regard. I know there are occasionally differences of opinion about some aspects of this, and the fact that we could work through them at this moment means a great deal to me, as I know it does to the families of the Guard men and women we are attempting to help.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, the distinguished Senator from Indiana has had a lot on his mind here recently with the tragic natural disaster in his State, and I thank him for finding the time to come to the Chamber and offer this amendment. I recall, during the markup of the Armed Services bill, he, being the chairman of the committee, had this general concept in mind. The Senator advised the committee as a whole in the markup session that at the time this bill reached the floor, he would have formulated his thoughts and done his research and gathered his colleagues and would present this bill. That he has done, and in that he has succeeded. This is a matter we will take up in conference with careful consideration.

I thank our colleagues.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Michigan.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, let me add my thanks to the Senator from Indiana...
Mr. CHAMBLISS. The Durbin amendment would not do that. Mine would.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the vote be delayed by 5 minutes so the Senators may have a minute or 2, I can have a minute or 2, and the Senator from Michigan can have a minute or 2.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. CHAMBLISS. Mr. President, if we are going to call on these brave volunteers to put themselves in harm's way, we must incentivize them, and my amendment does that. It seeks to call on the individual from a volunteer standpoint. It doesn't seek to protect the top level, the officers and the upper crust, the enlisted personnel. It seeks to protect all members of the Guard and Reserve from the enlisted standpoint and give them an opportunity to reduce their retirement age from 60 down to 55.

I think it is fair. I think it is reasonable. And I think it is supportable.

I ask my colleagues to support my amendment and to vote against the Durbin amendment.

I ask unanimous consent that Senator HAGEL be added as a cosponsor of my amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I likewise ask to be added as a cosponsor of the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I strongly support the Chambliss amendment.

I want to bring to the attention of colleagues that if we accept another amendment which will go to conference, and I am quite confident that out of that conference will come a package of further compensation to the men and women for the Guard and Reserve for other reasons. But I think all will agree we should protect the benefits for the men and women in the Armed Forces, all of which are justified in many areas. The Senator has picked out an area which has been under consideration for some period of time. But I point out that the cost of the Durbin second degree, which vote will follow this one, must be considered in the area of $1 billion for their 2006 and $10 billion over the next 10 years. That is 10 times, according to my calculation, the cost to the Federal taxpayer of the amendment of the Senator from Georgia.

Am I correct?

Mr. CHAMBLISS. That is correct.

Mr. WARNER. So I urge my colleagues we must show some restraint as we are going through a number of valid and important increments in pay and benefits for the men and women in the Armed Forces. In essence, the Chambliss amendment is an adaptation of the Durbin amendment at one-tenth the cost. I hope you will more equitably treat those who have served in periods of active service.

I thank the Senator.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Michigan is recognized.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, I support very much the Chambliss amendment. I think it makes an important statement, as well as taking an important step toward equity relative to retirement. The Senator from Georgia has described his amendment, and I will not describe it again because he has accurately described it.

I commend him for this amendment. It is an important amendment.

I ask the Presiding Officer whether there is time between the vote on the Chambliss amendment and the Durbin amendment for an explanation of the Durbin amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There are 2 minutes equally divided.

Mr. LEVIN. I will be in a position of supporting the Chambliss and Durbin amendments. While the Chambliss amendment takes an important step, the Durbin amendment takes three or four important steps in the right direction allowing earlier retirement. There has been 25 years of service, for instance, retirement would be allowed at age 55. Where there has been 24 years of service under the Durbin amendment, retirement would be allowed at age 56. There is a greater cost. I think it is justified. We will talk more about that in the minute which has been allowed on the Durbin amendment.

Mr. CHAMBLISS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that a letter from the Naval Reserve Association in support of my amendment be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Mr. SAXBY CHAMBLISS, Russell Senate Office Building, Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR CHAMBLISS: I am writing on behalf of the members of the Naval Reserve Association in support of your amendment to reduce the age at which reserve component members receive their retirement pension.

An active component member retiring at 20 years of service receives a pension immediately upon retirement. A reserve component member serving the same number of qualifying years cannot. Reducing the age from 60, will be a positive step in mitigating this disparity. A more equitable retirement program is greatly needed, recruiting and retaining members in the Navy Reserve, and all reserve components. When the age limit for receipt of retired pay by reserve component members was set decades ago, the Navy Reserve, and other reserve components, was not relied upon the way it is today.

The objective is to support the reduction of the age for retirement eligibility from its current level to one that is consistent with today's utilization of the reserve component. Your new legislation which links that reduction to duty status allows active duty status accomplishes that goal.

I look forward to working together in support of a strong and viable Navy Reserve, and all reserve components. Again, on behalf of the members of the Naval Reserve Association and members of the Navy Reserve, thank you for all your hard work on our behalf.

Sincerely,

CASY W. COANE, RADM, USN (Ret) Executive Director.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. All time has expired.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There is a sufficient second.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I also ask for the yeas and nays on the Durbin amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There is a sufficient second.

The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the Senator from Georgia. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. DURBIN. I announce that the Senator from New Jersey (Mr. CORZINE) is necessarily absent.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. VERRAZANO). Are there any other Senators in the Chamber desiring to vote?

The result was announced—yeas 99, nays 0, as follows:

The amendment (No. 2433) was agreed to.

Mr. WARNER. I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. LEVIN. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There are now 2 minutes of debate equally divided on the upcoming amendment.

The Senator from Virginia is recognized.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, we have this vote. We are making great progress on this bill. I will be consulting with the leadership. There is a possibility we would like to continue tonight, but with regard to further rollcall votes, we will have to consult our respective leaders to determine that. We will do that as quickly as possible so as to convene Senators. But this bill will go on tonight. It may well be that amendments and stack them for the morning.

Mr. LEVIN. Is there any way of determining that now?

Mr. WARNER. Well, I have to get my leader, I have to tell you. I know he cannot kind of off the floor.

Mr. President, the managers wish to advise the Senate that this will probably be the last rollcall vote tonight. But we will continue to debate amendments and stack them for a time agreed upon by the two leaders for tomorrow morning.

AMENDMENT NO. 273, AS MODIFIED

THE PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time on the amendment?

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, if I could have the attention of the Chamber for 90 seconds.

The last amendment by Senator CHAMBLISS received 99 votes. We all joined in supporting it. It was a good amendment. This amendment, which I am offering, I think is better. Here is why.

Under the amendment offered by Senator CHAMBLISS, you could reduce the age at which you are eligible as a reservist to start receiving your retirement based on the time you spent mobilized and activated. This amendment says you could reduce it by the time used in the Reserve.

Right now, no matter when you start, how long you serve, you cannot draw the first dollar in retirement until you are 60 years old. Under my amendment, if you have served 25 years in the Reserve, you could start drawing it at age 55, which is the common retirement age for civil servants, for Federal employees.

My amendment is endorsed by the National Guard Association, the Military Officers Association, and the Reserve Officers Association.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to add Senators Corzine and Landrieu as co-sponsors.

THE PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Who seeks time in opposition?

The Senator from Georgia is recognized.

Mr. CHAMBLISS. Mr. President, as I said earlier, while I sympathize with the Senator from Illinois, because this is a critical issue, it is simply a matter of not being able to provide the funding for this particular retirement bill.

We had this issue up last year, and we did not get the funding for it. My bill takes a more reasonable approach. It rewards those men and women who are serving in Iraq today.

I ask that we render a "no" vote against this amendment so we can make a strong move to include my amendment in the conference report that will be forthcoming.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment. The yeas and nays have been ordered. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk called the roll.

Mr. DURBIN. I announce that the Senator from New Jersey (Mr. CORZINE) is necessarily absent.

THE PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there any other Senators in the Chamber desiring to vote?

The result was announced—yeas 40, nays 59, as follows:

THE PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment (No. 2473), as modified, was rejected.

Mr. WARNER. I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. LEVIN. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I see the distinguished Senator from Missouri and the Senator from Connecticut. This is one of the amendments in the 12 on this side of the aisle. I would like to have this amendment move forward.

THE PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Missouri is recognized.

AMENDMENT NO. 2477

Mr. TALENT. Mr. President, I have an amendment at the desk.

TAKEN UP BY PRECEDENT. The clerk will read as follows:

The Senator from Missouri (Mr. TALENT), for himself, Mr. WARNER, Mr. STEVENS, Mr. CHAMBLISS, Mr. CORZYN, Mr. LIEBERMAN, Mrs. BOXER, Mr. FRAZIER, and Mrs. COLN, proposes an amendment numbered 2477.

Mr. TALENT. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

THE PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

(Purpose: To modify the multiyear procurement authority for C-17 aircraft.)

Strike section 131 and insert the following:

SEC. 131. C-17 AIRCRAFT PROCUREMENT—INTER-THEATER AIRTIFT REQUIREMENTS.

(a) MULTIYEAR PROCUREMENT AUTHORIZED.—The Secretary of the Air Force may, in accordance with section 2306b of title 10, United States Code, enter into a multiyear contract, beginning with the fiscal year 2006 program year, for the procurement of up to 42 additional C-17 aircraft.

(b) CERTIFICATION REQUIRED.—Before the exercise of the authority in subsection (a), the Secretary of Defense shall submit to the congressional defense committees a certification that the additional airlift capacity to be provided by the C-17 aircraft to be procured under the authority is consistent with the quadrennial defense review under section 118 of title 10, United States Code, to be submitted to Congress with the budget of the President for fiscal year 2007 (as submitted under section 1105(a) of title 31, United States Code), as qualified by subsection (c).

(c) ADDITIONAL EXPLANATION OF INTER-THEATER AIRTIFT REQUIREMENTS.—

INCLUSION IN QUADRENNIAL DEFENSE REVIEW.—The Secretary of Defense shall, as part of the quadrennial defense review in 2005 and in accordance with the provisions of section 1180 of title 10, United States Code, carry out an assessment of the inter-theater airlift capabilities required to support the national defense strategy.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION.—In including the assessment required by paragraph (1) in the quadrennial defense review as required by that paragraph, the Secretary shall explain in the recommendations the future airlift force structure requirements in that quadrennial defense review take into account the following:

(A) The increased airlift demands associated with the Army modular brigade combat teams.

(B) The objective to deliver a brigade combat team anywhere in the world within four to seven days, a division within 10 days, and multiple divisions within 20 days.

(C) The increased airlift demands associated with the expanded scope of operational activities of the Special Operations Forces.

(D) The realignment of the overseas basing structure in accordance with the Integrated Presence and Basing Strategy.

(E) Adjustments in the force structure to meet homeland defense requirements.

(F) The potential for simultaneous homeland defense activities and major combat operations.

(G) Potential changes in requirements for inter-theater airlift or sealift capabilities.

(MAINTENANCE OF C-17 AIRCRAFT PRODUCTION LINE.—In the event the Secretary of Defense is unable to make the certification specified in subsection (b), the Secretary of the Air Force should procure sufficient C-17 aircraft to maintain the C-17 aircraft production line at not less than the minimum sustaining rate until sufficient flight test data regarding improved C-5 aircraft mission capability rates as a result of the Reliability and Environmental and Re-engining Program and Air Force Modernization Program have been obtained to determine the validity of assumptions concerning the C-5 aircraft used in the Mobility Capabilities Study.

Mr. TALENT. Mr. President, Senator LIEBERMAN and I are offering an amendment that we believe is crucial to providing our Armed Forces with the air transport capabilities they need. The amendment has been cosponsored by Chairman WARNER and Senator STEVENS, BOXER, FEINSTEIN, CORNYN, CHAMBLISS, and others. In addition, we have worked closely with the chairman and Senator LEVIN and committee staff, and this amendment has been worked on both sides. I am grateful to the managers of the bill for their work on this important legislation.

The Defense Department’s current intertheater airlift requirement was established by the Mobility Requirement Study, called MRS-05, which was released in December 2000. That study identified the airlift necessary to conduct high-priority missions in support of two major theater wars. That was the national military strategy at the time, to be able to conduct two major theater wars at the same time.

Even back in 2001, recently retired TRANSCOM Commander, GEN John Handy, identified the Department’s pre-September 11 intertheater airlift requirements as inadequate. He characterized that study, which was a pre-9/11 study, shortly after its release as a historical document, not of great value, because in his judgment it significantly underestimated the true airlift requirements of the Department even at that time. I will expand on this point in a few minutes.

We are now learning that the Department’s most recent study has completely failed to readjust the airlift requirement in light of all the different missions in which the United States is now and will be engaged for years to come—the global war on terror, international humanitarian relief missions, expanded special operations and training, to say nothing of our need to support the underlying national military strategy needs.

The C-17 is the primary intertheater air transport used by the United States to deploy and sustain forces worldwide. It has delivered 70 percent of the cargo airlifted into Iraq. It has turned in stellar performances in theaters from Kosovo to Afghanistan to the global war on terror in all its various locations. In addition, the C-17 played a key role in several recent humanitarian relief missions, including the response to the gulf coast hurricanes and the earthquake in Pakistan.

The Chief of Staff for the Air Force, GEN Mark A. Welsh, recently said that the C-17 has ‘proven its worth in gold.’

The real question before the Senate is not whether we need additional intertheater airlift but how much more airlift is required. The Air Force’s long-standing position, reiterated time and again over the last few years, has been at least 222 C-17s—42 more than the planned procurement of 180 aircraft—are needed to meet growing airlift requirements. General Handy repeatedly said that 222 C-17s would be the minimum necessary to meet our airlift requirements and that even more may be needed, and this is in addition to other programs for increasing the lift capabilities of the Department.

The Department’s decision regarding future C-17 production is, we believe, imminent. Senator LIEBERMAN and I believe if we do not procure additional transport aircraft, our intertheater airlift capability will be inadequate to meet our military’s needs. We will lack the lift capability needed to deploy and adequately sustain forces overseas.

While our primary responsibilities must be the military personnel and national security, there is also a significant economic stake for many States. C-17 production generates approximately $8.4 billion in economic activity and is supported by 702 suppliers in 42 States. This is a major industrial base issue. St. Louis is one of the essential suppliers of components for the C-17. I have had the privilege of visiting workers who build parts for the plane.

There are over 1,800 people throughout Missouri who help build the C-17, which generates more than $776 million in economic impact. States such as California, New York, Illinois, Iowa, Connecticut, Florida, and Washington have over 461 C-17 suppliers that generate billions of dollars of economic activity in these States alone.

Despite the facts I recited before about airlift, it has been reported that the draft version of the new Mobility Capabilities Study recommends no further C-17 production beyond the existing contract for the purchase of up to 42 additional C-17 aircraft, at least 42 transports short of the minimum number required. Incredibly, the new Mobility Capabilities Study calls for the same transport force structure planned before 9/11, and it sets forth the same airlift requirement in the pre-9/11 days. Again, even before 9/11, the head of TRANSCOM, General Handy, said the Department’s estimate of its airlift requirement was out of date. Yet the draft study doesn’t increase or otherwise correct the given undeniable additional needs since the global war on terror began.

The Talent-Lieberman amendment would accomplish three objectives to protect the lift capability needed to deploy and sustain forces overseas.

First, it would authorize a multiyear contract for the purchase of up to 42 additional C-17 aircraft.

Second, the amendment urges the Secretary of the Air Force to sustain C-17 production exceeding a minimum sustaining production rate of C-17s per year at least until further assessment of airlift needs are completed.

Third, it requires the Secretary of Defense to certify whether there is a need for additional C-17s by assessing the additional intertheater airlift requirements generated by seven factors which have to be considered but which were not considered, we believe, in the flawed mobility study, including the AAFES teams, its goal of deploying a brigade anywhere in the world in 4 to 7 days, and a division anywhere in the world in 10 days, our increased involvement in international humanitarian relief missions and deployment back to the United States of forces as part of the Global Posture Review.

We cannot pull back from forward bases from which we must be able to move substantial forces of the Army around the world. We cannot fight a global war on terror everywhere and perform humanitarian relief functions around the world. We cannot do this without an adequate airlift capability.

What is at stake is the ability of the United States to project its military power on the world and to project aid where necessary on a humanitarian basis around the world. It is this airlift which enables us to do the other transformational things in the military which are the way we hope to sustain an adequate military force while also having some economies.

Senator LIEBERMAN and I offer this amendment because intertheater airlift is the means by which our forces deploy on short notice anywhere in the world and a primary means by which we sustain deployed forces. When the Chief of Staff of the Air Force, the re不久前 retired head of TRANSCOM, and others who understand the central importance of airlift for our services tell us about how vital this aircraft is to the military’s air transport needs, we believe it is prudent to take their word for it and plan accordingly.

It is my understanding this amendment has been agreed to on both sides. We are certainly grateful for that. I appreciate the leadership of the floor managers in being able to reach that agreement.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

MR. LIEBERMAN. Mr. President, I rise to speak in favor of the amendment that I am privileged to cosponsor with my friend from Missouri. He spoke very comprehensively and eloquently about it. I will say a few words and associate myself with everything he has said.

This is all about strategic airlift. It is all about the ability to deploy our forces and the equipment and materials to sustain them to battlefields around the world. The C-17, a remarkable aircraft, has done that with enormous efficiency, reliability, and skill.

I have been around here long enough now that I remember when the military was pleading with us in Congress to authorize and appropriate for the development of a new strategic airlift capacity. It became the C-17. I remember the arguments. The strategic airlift is like the long pole in a tent. If the pole is gone, the tent collapses. If you cannot get your forces, material, and equipment to support them to the battlefield the intertheater airlift of battle are not only dispersed around the world but in very different circumstances often without typical or conventional airfields on which to land—then you can’t fight the battle.

From that plea over a period of years came the design and construction of the C-17. I remember the first day I saw the first C-17 fly into an airfield in East St. Louis, Illinois, associated with Pratt & Whitney. I am proud to say, builds the engines for these planes. It is remarkable. It is an enormous plane. The pilots flew it with an ease and mobility that made it seem like a much smaller plane.

It has performed admirably over the years. Time after time, members of the Armed Services Committee, on which the Senator from Missouri and I are privileged to serve, have heard our warfighting commanders tell us that they don’t have enough strategic airlift.

I am privileged to serve as the ranking Democrat on the Airland Subcommittee of the Armed Services Committee. We authorize strategic airlift, and have long been concerned about the need for additional airlift, both strategic and theater-oriented.

It is the heart of our strategic airlift. The Air Force, as my friend from Missouri has pointed out, has contended over and over—and this reaches a level of a plea also—that we need 222 C-17s. That is a position held by the U.S. Transportation Command, which is responsible for the planning and providing of strategic transportation for our military.

Here is the problem and what brings Senator Talent and I and a very broad group of Senators of both parties to offer this amendment.

A study has recently been completed by the Department of Defense called the Mobility Capabilities Study. It concludes, uniquely—no one else has—that the need now is for 180 C-17s; again, at odds with the Transportation Command. Here is the problem. If that position holds and we stop production of the C-17 at 180, that would mean production would end in 2008 and the production line would close. It is hard to start up again—impossible to start it up again. A lot of people around the country, including in Connecticut, will lose their jobs.

There is a fundamental flaw to the Mobility Capabilities Study. It is simply that the case has not been made that we need to adequately support our military with 180 of these planes. We need 222.

The Mobility Capabilities Study has serious limits and flaws. The first point is that it started several years ago, and its conclusions are based on assumptions that I contend are no longer valid.

Among those that concern me most are the assumptions that the planning scenarios in place during the study, the war situation scenarios, need situation scenarios, are still valid. Also, that there will be no increase in demand from revisions in those planning scenarios, that there will be no increase in what we call intertheater demand—within the theater—demand for strategic airlift, and there will be no significant increase in concurrent demand associated with homeland defense at the same time there are major combat operations overseas underway.

Senator Talent pointed out that recently the C-17s were used to bring critically important materials into the gulf coast area after Hurricane Katrina struck.

I say that all of these assumptions of the Mobility Capabilities Study, which reached this unique conclusion that we will be safe with 180 C-17s, are suspect. The fact is, the Department of Defense is now looking at some very different military planning scenarios which would occasion a very significant demand for the C-17 strategic airlift capacity.

We know that in-theater demand for this capacity has obviously increased in Iraq because of the danger of ground operations there. We have met that need brilliantly and reliably.

Subsequent insurrections, the kinds of unconventional conflicts and threats we are likely to face in the years ahead, will also require the kind of unique capacity that the C-17s have to carry an enormous amount of material or personnel and land in very unconventional and different topographies.

There is no, as we know, a Quadrennial Defense Review underway. That is done every 4 years within the Pentagon to sketch out—more than sketch out—to define and delineate the strategic and specific material needs of our military to execute the national military strategy. That QDR is underway and probably will address these issues. I personally believe that the QDR will increase the requirement for strategic airlift, not decrease it, as the Mobility Capabilities Study suggests.

This plane has been an absolute, rock-solid performer in our inventory of airlift. I think this amendment comes at a critical time, expressing the desires of the Congress. It gives flexibility to the Secretary of the Air Force and the Secretary of Defense to proceed. I strongly support it.

At this time, it may be necessary to put in a quorum call so the matter can be discussed. Is that correct?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Connecticut.

Mr. LIEBERMAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that my friend and colleague from Connecticut, Senator Dodd, be added as an original co-sponsor of the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. LIEBERMAN. He has been a steadfast and I would go so far as to say a fervent supporter of the C-17 over the years of the existence of this program, and on behalf of Senator Talent, I ask that when a vote is taken on this amendment, it be taken by rocoll.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Michigan.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, we support this amendment. The Secretary’s certification that is involved should not be related to the mobility capability study because that will not make any recommendations for changing airlift requirements. The certification should be related to the Quadrennial Defense Review because if there are changes in the national military strategy that affect airlift requirements, those should be reflected in the QDR.

If the Air Force does not buy any more C-17 aircraft, Boeing may have to close down its production line after delivering the last of 180 C-17s. That would be before we have the testing data on the C-5 upgrades because that data will not be available until 2008.

Given the fact there are some risks those upgrades will not achieve the mission-capable rates the DOD expects and then make it possible for us to meet our lift requirements, this is a positive amendment. It gives some real flexibility and discretion to the Secretary of Defense.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Virginia.
Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, do I understand the Senators desire a rollicall vote?
Mr. TALENT. That is correct.
Mr. WARNER. I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There appears to be a sufficient second.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. WARNER. We will schedule this vote at a time in consultation with our respective leaders. There may be some other matters that we have.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Missouri is recognized.

Mr. TALENT. Mr. President, I again thank the chairman and ranking member for their hard work. The Senator from Connecticut and I talked about it. We thought this measure, going to the heart of such an important requirement, was worthy of a rollicall vote. I do appreciate the chairman’s patience on that.

Mr. WARNER. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. DeMINT). The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. WARNER. The Senate is now in session on the bill; is that correct?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is correct.

AMENDMENT NO. 276.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Mr. President, I want to amend my amendment, No. 2478, which I introduced earlier, to include another paragraph to clarify exactly what we mean. I listened to recommendations that we use other language that again further clarifies the intent here.

The intent, very simply, is to say if someone violates the rules for transferring classified information knowingly, then we think they should lose that opportunity for access to that.

That was the sole purpose, I offer it.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Objection is heard.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to second-degree my amendment. I send it to the desk for consideration.

Mr. LEVIN. Parliamentary inquiry.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Michigan.

Mr. LEVIN. Parliamentary inquiry: It is my understanding the Senator has a right to send a second-degree amendment to the desk without consent.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator may second-degree his own amendment.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, my understanding of the parliamentary situation is that the rule of the Chair is correct, that a Senator may send an amendment in the second degree. But under the underlying unanimous consent agreement on which we are operating on this bill, all time has to be yielded back before the second-degree amendment may be offered.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Jersey asked consent to second-degree his amendment. The amendment is not currently the pending question, nor has all time expired on the first-degree amendment, so it is appropriate to ask consent at this time.

Is there objection?

Mr. WARNER. Objection.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Objection is heard.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President. I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

AMENDMENTS NOS. 1126, AS MODIFIED; 1292, AS MODIFIED; 1438, AS MODIFIED; 1498, AS MODIFIED; 1541, AS MODIFIED; 1544, AS MODIFIED; 1599, AS MODIFIED; 1600, AS MODIFIED; 1657, AS MODIFIED; 1885, 2024, 2080, 2097, 2488, 2490, 2501, 2502, 2501, 2504, 2505, 2507, 2508, 2509 TO 1396; 2598, 2599, 2600, 2601, 2602, 2603, 2604, 2605, and 2606, EN BLOC.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, in consultation with the distinguished Senator from Michigan, I send a managers’ package of some 40 amendments to the desk which have been cleared by myself and the ranking member.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, the amendments have been cleared on our side.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent the Senate consider those amendments en bloc, the amendments be agreed to, and the motions to reconsider be laid upon the table. Finally, I ask unanimous consent that any statements relating to any of these individual amendments be printed in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

AMENDMENTS NO. 1329, AS MODIFIED

The aerostat’s range and operations allow it to provide surveillance coverage of the eastern Caribbean corridor and the strategic waterway between Puerto Rico and the Dominican Republic, known as the Mona Passage.

(3) Including maritime radar on the Lajas aerostat will expand its ability to detect suspicious vessels in the eastern Caribbean corridor.

Mr. LEVIN. No objection.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, the Senate will soon vote to approve the fiscal year 2006 Defense authorization bill.

The passage of this legislation is important to all Americans who are now serving in the U.S. Armed Forces, and especially to those who are serving in harm’s way.

Our troops in Iraq and Afghanistan require all the support that our Nation can give. It is important that they can return to their homes. Our military prides itself in being the most capable and the best trained fighting force in the entire world. The Constitution places in Congress the responsibility for ‘providing and maintaining armies’ and to ‘provide and maintain a navy.’ It is therefore of the greatest importance that Congress provide our troops with the equipment that they need for their dangerous missions.

The wars that continue in Iraq and Afghanistan are unlike the conflicts that the United States has fought in the past two decades. In the first Persian Gulf War or Kosovo, our military depended on high-tech aircraft and smart bombs to quickly overwhelm our enemy.

Today, in Iraq, our awesome airpower is of limited use. The wars in Iraq and Afghanistan are, by and large, the wars of the soldier and the marine. These are the wars of the foot soldier, carried out in the hostile streets of foreign cities. These troops do not enjoy the near-invincibility of stealth aircraft or cruise missiles. Our troops do not see the enemy as a blip on a radar screen, because often the enemy is seen eye to eye.

With this being the reality of urban warfare, there must be a new focus on providing our ground troops with the equipment that they need to fight and survive in the urban combat environment. The Defense authorization bill reported by the Armed Services Committee makes steps in this direction. It authorizes $1.4 billion in spending to protect our troops serving overseas. This figure includes $500 million to detect and destroy roadside bombs, $344 million for up-armeded HMMWVs, and $118 million for body armor.

But more must be done to provide our troops with the next generation of weapons that will help our troops prevail in ground combat. More needs to be done to apply the technology that allows our military to dominate the air and the seas to build a new generation of weapons that will allow our troops to dominate the ground. The technology that deserves investigation is the SPIKE missile system currently being developed by the Navy. The SPIKE missile is designed to be a low-cost, lightweight, precision-guided weapon that would allow our troops to accurately engage enemies at great range. If this technology is successful, it could provide our ground troops with the same sort of revolutionary advantage that precision-guided munitions provided to our advanced aircraft a decade ago.

There are also emerging opportunities for the use of unmanned aerial vehicles to support the warfighter on the ground. While important UAVs like the Predator and the Global Hawk provide intelligence about what is going on in large sections of a country, our ground troops often need to know what is happening on the other side of a hill. Smaller UAVs can provide our troops with a decisive advantage in urban environments. An UAV like SWARM, being developed by Augusta Systems in Morgantown, are exploring ways to allow small UAVs to work together to seek out our enemies on the battlefield, eliminating the chance that our troops would be taken by surprise. The next step is to use small UAVs as ways to strike first, before our ground troops come into the range of our enemy’s weapons. Our military is only beginning to tap the growing potential of UAV technology to support our troops on the ground.

The Department of Defense is currently engaged in the Quadrennial Defense Review, a top-to-bottom study of our military strategy, posture, and equipment that will shape our Nation’s defense research and development and procurement policies for the next 4 years. With this review underway, it is an ideal opportunity to place a new emphasis on bringing cutting-edge technology to our troops on the ground in Iraq and Afghanistan. I urge the Secretary of Defense, the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and the other Pentagon officials who are carrying out this study to broaden their view of what our troops require.

The QDR should propose new technologies to protect our troops from the threats that they face in combat, and it should also accelerate the development of new weapons systems that will give our soldiers the edge in urban combat in urban environments. The Department of Defense should place these efforts on the top of its priorities: we should not wait for the next war to give our troops the advantage of new, high-tech weapons. Instead, the Pentagon should do everything in its power to arm our troops with the next generation of technology, today. For so long as our troops are serving in congressional_record_sensor_12595 harm’s way, we must give them not only the armor and protection, but also the weapons, that they need to ensure that they will come home safely.

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, last night the Senate passed an amendment that I offered to this bill that represents another step toward enhancing and strengthening transition services that are provided to our military personnel and builds upon an amendment that I offered to this bill last year. I want to thank the chairman, the ranking member of the Armed Services Committee for working with me to accept this amendment.

As the Senate conducts its business today, thousands of our brave men and women in uniform are in harm’s way in Iraq, Afghanistan, and elsewhere around the globe. These men and women serve with distinction and honor, and we owe them our heartfelt gratitude.

We also owe them our best effort to ensure that they receive the benefits to which their service in our Armed Forces has entitled them. I have heard time and again from military personnel and veterans who are frustrated with the system by which they apply for benefits and their current benefits. I have long been concerned that tens of thousands of our veterans are unaware of Federal health care and other benefits for which they may be eligible, and I have undertaken numerous hearings and oversight efforts to ensure that the Department of Veterans Affairs makes outreach to our veterans and their families a priority.

While we should do more to support our veterans, we must also ensure that the men and women who are currently serving in our Armed Forces receive adequate pay and benefits, as well as services that help them to make the transition from active duty to civilian life. I am concerned that we are not doing enough to support our men and women in uniform as they prepare to retire or otherwise separate from the service or, in the case of members of our National Guard and Reserve, to demobilize from active-duty assignments and return to their civilian lives while staying in the military or preparing to separate from the military. We must ensure that their service and sacrifice, which is much lauded during times of conflict, is not forgotten once the battles have ended and our troops have come home.

Earlier this year I introduced legislation, the Veterans Enhanced Transition Services Act, VETS Act, which would help to ensure that all military personnel have access to the same transition services now as we continue to make transitions to civilian occupations, and that they have access to the same transition services when they are demobilizing from service in Iraq, Afghanistan, and elsewhere.

I have heard from a number of Wisconsinites and members of military and veterans service organizations that our men and women in uniform do not all have access to the same transition counseling and medical services as they are demobilizing from service in Iraq, Afghanistan, and elsewhere. I have that reports of uneven provision of services from base to base and from service to service. All of our men and women in uniform have pledged to serve our country, and all of them, at the very least, deserve to have access to the same services in return.

I am pleased that the VETS Act is supported by a wide range of groups that are dedicated to serving our men and women in uniform and veterans and their families. These groups include: the American Legion; the Enlisted Association of the National Guard of the United States; the National Coalition for Homeless Veterans; the Paralyzed Veterans of America; the Reserve Officers Association; the Wisconsin Department of Veterans Affairs; the Wisconsin National Guard; the American Legion, Department of Wisconsin; Disabled American Veterans, Department of Wisconsin; the Wisconsin Paralyzed Veterans of America; the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Department of Wisconsin; and the Wisconsin State Council, Vietnam Veterans of America.

I introduced similar legislation during the 108th Congress, and I am pleased that the VETS Act which was based on that bill was enacted as part of the fiscal year 2005 Defense authorization bill.

In response to concerns I have heard from a number of my constituents, my amendment, in part, directed the Secretaries of Defense and Labor to jointly explore ways in which DoD training and certification standards could be coordinated with Government and private sector training and certification standards for corresponding civilian occupations.

The Secretaries of Defense and Labor submitted their report, “Study on Coordination of Job Training Standards with Certification Standards for Military Occupational Specialties” in September of this year. It is my hope that this report will serve as a useful tool as the Departments seek to help military personnel who wish to pursue civilian employment related to their military specialties to make the transition to comparable civilian jobs.

In addition, this amendment required the Government Accountability Office, GAO, to undertake a comprehensive analysis of existing transition services for our military personnel that are administered by the Departments of Defense, Veterans Affairs, and Labor, and to make recommendations to Congress on how these programs can be improved. My amendment required GAO to focus on two issues: how to achieve the most uniform and appropriate transition services to all military personnel, and the role of post-deployment and predischarge health assessments as part of the larger transition program.

GAO released its study “Military and Veterans Benefits: Enhanced Services Could Improve Transition Assistance for Reserves and National Guard” in May 2005, and it plans to release its study on health assessments in the near future.

In July of this year, GAO provided testimony on its transition services report to the House Committee on Veterans Affairs Subcommittee on Economic Opportunity. That hearing could not have been more timely. We owe it to our men and women in uniform to improve transition programs now as we continue to welcome home thousands of military personnel who are serving our country in Iraq, Afghanistan, and elsewhere. I commend the Departments of Defense, Veterans Affairs, and Labor for the steps they have taken thus far to improve these important programs.

We should not miss an opportunity to help the men and women who are currently serving our country.

I am pleased that the chairman and the ranking member agreed to accept a number of provisions from my legislation as an amendment to the fiscal year 2006 Defense authorization bill.

I am pleased that the memorandum of intent between the Department of Defense, together with the Departments of Veterans Affairs, VA, and Labor, provide preseparation counseling for military personnel who are preparing to leave the Armed Forces or transition to comparable civilian jobs.

The Department of Defense and the Department of Labor submitted their report, “Transition Assistance Program/Disabled Transition Assistance Program, TAP/DTAP,” which is much lauded during times of conflict, is not forgotten once the battles have ended and our troops have come home. It is my hope that this report will serve as a useful tool as the Departments seek to help military personnel who wish to pursue civilian employment related to their military specialties to make the transition to comparable civilian jobs.

what demobilizing Reserve and National Guard members need to make a smooth transition and explore options to enhance their participation in TAP.” GAO also recommended that “VA take steps to determine the level of participation in TAP, to ensure those who may have especially complex needs are being served.”

In addition to ensuring that all discharging and demobilizing military personnel are able to participate in TAP/DTAP, we should take steps to improve the uniformity of services provided to personnel by ensuring that consistent transition briefings occur across the services and at all demobilization/discharge locations. In its report, GAO noted that “[t]he delivery of TAP may vary in terms of the amount of personal attention participants receive, the length of the components, and the instructional methods used.” We should make every effort to ensure that those who have put themselves in harm’s way have access to the same transition services no matter their discharge/demobilization location or the branch of the Armed Forces in which they serve. I look forward to reviewing the Department’s progress on GAO’s recommendations in this area.

In order to improve the breadth of information provided to Members during TAP/DTAP, my amendment would require pre- and post-deployment counseling programs to include information regarding certification and licensing requirements in civilian occupations and information on identifying military occupations that have civilian counterparts. Information concerning veterans small business ownership and entrepreneurship programs offered by the Federal Government, information concerning employment and reemployment rights and veterans preference in Federal employment and Federal procurement opportunities, information concerning housing counseling assistance, and a description of the health care and other benefits to which the member may be entitled through the Department of Veterans Affairs.

In addition to the current provision of transition services, I have long been concerned about the immediate and long-term health effects that military deployments have on our men and women in uniform. I regret that, too often, civilians are reluctant to take responsibility for proving that a condition is related to military service falls on the personnel themselves. Our men and women in uniform deserve the benefit of the doubt, and should not have to fight the Department of Defense or the VA for benefits that they have earned through their service to our Nation.

Since coming to the Senate in 1993, I have worked to focus attention on the health effects that are being experienced by military personnel who served in the Persian Gulf War. More than 10 years after the end of the gulf war, we still don’t know why so many veterans of that conflict are experiencing medical problems that have become known as gulf war illness. Military personnel who are currently deployed to the Persian Gulf region face many of the same conditions that existed in the early 1990s. I have repeatedly pressed the Department of Defense for additional followup care if they so request that these personnel may use to access additional followup care if they so request.

It is vitally important that these assessments include a mental health component. Our men and women in uniform serve in difficult circumstances far from home, and too many of them witness or experience violence and horrific situations that most make it difficult to imagine. I have heard concerns that these brave men and women, many of whom are just out of high school or college when they sign up, may suffer long-term physical and mental fallout from their experiences and may feel reluctant to seek counseling or other assistance to deal with their experiences.

Some Wisconsinites have told me that they are concerned that the multiple deployments of our National Guard and Reserve could lead to chronic post-traumatic stress disorder, PTSD, which could have its roots in an experience from a previous deployment and which could come to the surface by a triggering event that is experienced on a current deployment. The same is true for full-time military personnel who have served in a variety of places over their careers. I am pleased that the Senate has already accepted an amendment of Senator Landrieu from Louisiana, Ms. LANDRIEU, that will require that personnel receive mental health screenings prior to deployment into a combat zone, not later than 30 days after return from such a deployment, and not later than 120 days after return from such a deployment.

We can and should do more to ensure that the mental health of our men and women in uniform is a top priority, and that the stigma that is too often attached to seeking assistance is ended. One step in this process is to ensure that personnel who have symptoms of PTSD and related illnesses have access to appropriate clinical services, through DoD, the VA, and the private sector health care provider. To that end, my amendment would require that the health care professionals who are assessing demobilizing military personnel provide all personnel who may need followup care for a physical or psychological condition with information on appropriate resources through DoD or the VA and in the private sector that these personnel may use to access additional followup care if they so choose.

I commend the Assistant Secretary of Defense for Health Affairs for issuing in March 2005 a memorandum to the Assistant Secretaries for the Army, Navy, and Air Force directing them to extend the Pentagon’s current post-deployment health assessment process to include a reassessment of “global health with a specific emphasis on mental health” to occur 3 to 6 months post-deployment. At a hearing of the Senate Armed Services Committee’s Personnel Subcommittee earlier this year, the Assistant Secretary stated that the services were in the process of implementing a program that would include a “screening procedure with a questionnaire and a face-to-face interview at about three months” post-deployment. He also noted that the idea for this program came from “front line personnel” and that he “asked them... ‘do you think we should make it mandatory?’ and the answer was: yes.” This sentiment makes it even more important that the initial post-deployment mental health assessment assessment be strengthened and that it be mandatory as well so that health care professionals have a benchmark against which to measure the success of the followup screening process. I am pleased that the Pentagon has undertaken this effort, and I believe that the provisions in Senator LANDRIEU’s amendment and in my amendment will further enhance this process and help to ensure that we are properly caring for the mental health of our men and women in uniform.

In addition, in order to ensure that all military personnel who are eligible for medical benefits from the VA learn about and receive these benefits, my amendment would require that, as part of the demobilization process, assistance be provided to eligible members to enroll in the VA health care system.

Finally, I want to thank the leadership of the Secretary of Defense, in consultation with the Secretaries of Labor and Veterans Affairs, to report to Congress on the actions taken by those Departments to ensure that the Transition Assistance Program is functioning effectively to provide members with timely and comprehensive transition assistance. As part of the report, the Secretary will be required to include a review of transition assistance that has been/is being provided to members deployed as part of Operation Iraqi Freedom, Operation Enduring Freedom, in support of other contingency operations, and members of the National Guard who were activated in support of relief efforts following Hurricanes Katrina and Rita. I look forward to reviewing this report.

Again, I thank the chairman and the ranking member for their assistance on this important issue.

Mr. LIEBERMAN. Mr. President, I rise on behalf of my colleagues’ attention to a provision in sections 231–235 in the Defense authorization bill titled “High Performance Defense Manufacturing Technology Research and Development.” I introduced this legislation with my colleague Senator COLLINS to address erosion in our defense manufacturing base that threatens our national security and ultimately our economy overall. We are running major deficits with China in defense critical manufacturing areas, such as computer hardware—$25 billion—and electronics machinery and parts—$23 billion—as U.S. production drifts offshore. We are transferring major portions of our circuitry, IT, production tool, and weapon system metal casting manufacturing to China and other nations because of lower wage and lower production costs. Without productivity breakthroughs, the U.S. defense manufacturing base will continue to erode.

In the high-tech sector, manufacturing needs and research and development needs are highly correlated. As a result, research and development, R&D, centers are often located near manufacturing facilities of the military. It is imperative that we continue to lose the manufacturing base, we may well lose over time critical research and development capabilities and damage our ability to innovate. And if we hurt both of those we may also lose our military technical leadership. This ultimately puts our warfighters in harms way. Clearly, the Department of Defense (DOD) has a huge stake in rebuilding the defense manufacturing base.

The President’s new advanced manufacturing technologies and processes to achieve productivity breakthroughs to drive down costs in mature defense supply sectors. But it also needs advanced manufacturing techniques to spark the next generation of advances in defense related technologies; technologies that our warfighters deserve. This legislation proposes four basic things.

First, it calls, in section 231, for a R&D effort focused on developing new advanced manufacturing technology and information technology, IT, operating models. The Under Secretary of Defense for Acquisition, Technology, and Logistics, acting through the Director of Defense Research and Engineering and with other appropriate defense programs and agencies such as the Manufacturing Technology Program, the Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency, DARPA, and other defense research activities, is to undertake research and development to develop critical manufacturing productivity breakthrough approaches and the technologies and systems to support them—section 231(b)(1). These could include such breakthrough opportunity areas as distributed and desktop manufacturing, quality inspection that is built into the production process, small lot manufacturing that is as cost-efficient as mass production, use of revolutionizing fabrication methods of fabrication, and the ability to manufacture devices and machines at the nanoscale. Productivity breakthroughs will ultimately help reduce weapon systems costs and support purchase capability.

The legislation also directs the Under Secretary of the Defense for Acquisition, Technology, and Logistics to undertake R&D to develop a new model, an extended production enterprise—section 231(b)(2)—using IT and new business models, that integrates services, design, and manufacturing stages, to achieve major new efficiencies and cost savings. Included as part of this research effort, the development of the logistics and other critical manufacturing of extended production enterprise and the corresponding interoperability standards. The key way for ManTech to achieve this would be collaboratively developing and issuing a new performance threshold—a new benchmark system—to ensure ongoing quality and continuous focus on improving and innovative manufacturing technology. A key way for ManTech to achieve this would be by collaboratively developing and issuing a new performance threshold—a new benchmark system—to ensure ongoing quality and continuous focus on improving and innovative manufacturing technology.

Working with industry, ManTech should develop a new program to utilize these new manufacturing improvements and processes in the defense manufacturing base—section 232(b). A key way for ManTech to achieve this would be to be more collaborative in developing and issuing a new performance threshold—a new benchmark system—to ensure ongoing quality and continuous focus on improving and innovative manufacturing technology.

Two, the legislation directs DOD’s Manufacturing Technology Program, ManTech, to undertake technology transition including prototyping and test beds—section 232(a) and (b)—for projects in the new extended production enterprise and the corresponding interoperability standards. The performance standard behind it should also be a focus working with the defense industries to develop the organizational model required.

Third, it establishes mechanisms to efficiently disseminate technological developments to the broader defense manufacturing base—section 232(d)—including outreach through the Manufacturing Partnership program, section 232(d)(2), an established program proven to be effective in assisting small and mid-sized which has coordination responsibility for manufacturing research in DOD, does not have funding independent of the Services to initiate new efforts focusing on longer term, higher risk, higher payoffs technologies and processes. The currently underway at ManTech are short-term focused projects addressing immediate needs. ManTech needs to balance the current shorter term portfolio by including a focus on longer term, higher risk, higher payoffs technologies, and technology development that are industry game changers and yield big efficiencies and cost savings to DOD.

Additionally, the Under Secretary of Defense for Acquisition, Technology, and Logistics should coordinate activities within ManTech—section 232(b)(2)—with activities under the Small Business Innovation Research Program, SBIR, and the Small Business Technology Transfer Program, STTR, with activities under the Office of the Under Secretary of Defense for Acquisition, Technology, and Logistics, entitled “Encouraging Innovation in Manufacturing,” requires all SBIR/STTR Programs to give priority to research programs that help to advance innovation in manufacturing. ManTech could benefit significantly from this work currently underway.

Working with industry, ManTech should develop a new program to utilize these new manufacturing improvements and processes in the defense manufacturing base—section 232(c). A key way for ManTech to achieve this would be by collaboratively developing and issuing a new performance threshold—a new benchmark system—to ensure ongoing quality and continuous focus on improving and innovative manufacturing technology. A key way for ManTech to achieve this would be by collaboratively developing and issuing a new performance threshold—a new benchmark system—to ensure ongoing quality and continuous focus on improving and innovative manufacturing technology.

Third, it establishes mechanisms to efficiently disseminate technological developments to the broader defense manufacturing base—section 232(d)—including outreach through the Manufacturing Partnership program, section 232(d)(2), an established program proven to be effective in assisting small and mid-sized American manufacturers, including numerous defense manufacturers and suppliers. It has traditionally focused on providing technical assistance in manufacturing operational efficiency and quality and is now evaluating additional roles in providing tools and assistance to promote innovation. DOD could use this existing mechanism to help it reach its defense manufacturing base with these advances.

The Under Secretary of Defense for Acquisition, Technology, and Logistics should also consider outreach through public-private partnerships—section 232(d)(1). Because the prototyping and testing involves public-private partnerships, should also consider outreach through public-private partnerships. Because the prototyping and testbeds—section 232(d)(1)—established to severely reduce the risk, cost, and time of development for new technologies important for national defense. These centers should be given a high priority by DOD to reach its defense manufacturing base with these advances.

Specifically, in implementing the prototype and testbed provisions, section 232(b), the Under Secretary of Defense for Acquisition, Technology, and Logistics can consider establishing one or more pilot manufacturing centers in manufacturing fields important to the production of advanced defense technologies. Additional centers can be shared production facilities of the Federal Government and the private sector that focus on production development including the invention prototyping and engineering development fields. For example, the Under Secretary of Defense for Acquisition, Technology, and Logistics could permit the participation of State and local governments and could carry out a competition to determine the optimal private sector participants in any manufacturing centers.

Fourth, the legislation—section 233—directs the Under Secretary of Defense for Acquisition, Technology, and Logistics to identify and develop a strategy working with industry in a technology area beneficial to the military where a technology development roadmap and strategy is needed to ensure the manufacturing technologies and processes are shared among collaborative facilities and testbeds—section 232(b)—and testbeds should be established to severely reduce the risk, cost, and time of development for new technologies important for national defense. These centers should be given a high priority by DOD to reach its defense manufacturing base with these advances.

In addition, I would like to point out that this legislation is based on the manufacturing recommendations from the National Innovation Initiative report re-released to Congress in December, a report supported by prominent business, academic, and government leaders.

Additionally, I received letters from two key manufacturing organizations supporting this proposal, the Association for Manufacturing Technology, AMT, and the National Coalition for Advanced Manufacturing, NACFAM, which stress the critical importance of passing this legislation. And last year I would like to reiterate that this legislation is in line with the Executive order issued by President Bush to encourage innovation in manufacturing in Federal agencies, including through SBIR and STTR to assist the private and small businesses in manufacturing innovation efforts.

This legislation will help move the U.S. defense manufacturing base ahead of global competition as well as provide capabilities that we are at risk of losing. The aim of this legislation is a first step in an overall effort needed to preserve our military excellence and national security.

Mr. McCaIN. Mr. President, I want to speak briefly in favor of a provision in the Department of Defense authorization bill that would require the Department to study the feasibility of procuring satellite capacity through multiyear contracts. I worked with Senator Inhofe and Senator Levin to address this issue in the thanking bill, and while I am pleased that the committee’s leadership has accepted the provision, I am disappointed that Congress must once again request the Department to study this issue.

Last year, Congress included a provision to the Department of Defense authorization bill to require the Department to scrutinize its commercial satellite capacity procurement practices and report its findings and recommendations. That study was completed, albeit after the statutory deadline and too late for many of the recommendations to be implemented in this year’s authorization bill. The study also failed to specifically review the issue of multiyear contracting. Therefore, Congress will be more explicit this year in its request and will once again await the Department’s findings.

The study on multiyear contracting is necessary because many in the satellite industry and the Government question whether the Department of Defense’s general policy of procuring leased satellite capacity on a year-to-year basis is resulting in the best price for the Government and the taxpayers. In contrast to the Government, other entities purchasing leased satellite capacity for communications services, such as CNN and FOX, negotiate multiyear contracts and often receive lower prices for the same services. The Federal Government, with the Department of Defense as the main buyer, is the world’s largest consumer of leased satellite capacity and, as such, the Government should be able to negotiate the lowest price and the most flexible terms for leased satellite capacity.

Last year, the Government Accountability Office studied the Department’s procurement process for leased satellite capacity and found that the Department’s procedures were uncoordinated, frustrating for military commanders, and overly expensive to U.S. taxpayers. Using the results of the GAO study, I am pleased that the Department’s study completed this year and the findings on the multiyear contract issue, I hope Congress will finally have the necessary information to consider wholesale satellite procurement reform during next year’s authorization process.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. President, when the Senate was considering S. 1042, the National Defense Authorization Act for fiscal year 2006, earlier this year, there was rather extensive debate over a $4 million funding item called the Robust Nuclear Earth Penetrator, RNEP. This item was a feasibility study to be conducted by the Department of Energy to determine whether an existing nuclear weapon could be modified so that it could destroy hardened and deeply buried targets.

Since the time of our earlier debate on this matter, our colleagues on the Appropriations Committee have completed work on the Department of Energy Appropriations Act for fiscal year 2006. The conferees have reached agreement on appropriations for the Department of Energy and have agreed to eliminate funding for continued research on the Robust Nuclear Earth Penetrator at the request of the Committee on National Security Administration.

In light of this outcome and the elimination of funding, an amendment to S. 1042 has been cleared on both sides of the aisle which will remove the authorization for the Department of Energy to continue the feasibility study.

I note for my colleagues, however, that the Senate Armed Services Committee received a letter from Gen. James Cartwright, the Commander of U.S. Strategic Command, dated November 1, 2005, which emphasizes the need for continued work on earth penetrating weapons which can be either nuclear or conventional. General Cartwright states his support for research to mitigate concerns raised by the impact physics of penetrating warheads into hard surface geologies. What the general is essentially saying is: Just because the funds have gone away doesn’t mean that the problem has gone away.

I think the general’s statement is very reasonable. I would hope that with the tremendous investment that this country has made in research and development, at some point and in some fashion, we could work together to address the military need the general has identified.

Mr. KOHL. Mr. President, the decisions made by the Base Realignment and Closure Commission are final. All around the country communities are now forced to deal with the difficult reality of how to approach the redevelopment and transfer of a local military facility that is being closed. In my State of Wisconsin, the city of Milwaukee is faced with the difficult prospect of what to do after the 440th Airlift Wing leaves Mitchell Field. The community, the State, and our congressional delegation fought long and hard the proud women of the 440th, but we were not able to convince the Commission that closing the 440th would be a mistake.

Senator S NOWE offered an amendment that I believe will make the process of transferring and redeveloping base properties easier and faster. Senator S NOWE proposed to allow the property to go directly to a local redeveloper and avoid the current complicated and time-consuming process. This faster process means a quicker return to economic vitality, and I support that.

Senator S NOWE also proposed that the local community not have to pay for the land the Federal Government is giving up. It is only fitting that in these communities that have given so much to our military men and women that we give something back. Pulling up stakes and removing an important economic engine is bad enough, but to then remove a base property to the land as well just adds insult to injury. It is unfortunate that this amendment that will make the transition process easier for Milwaukee and communities around the country was not accepted.

Mr. LIEBERMAN. Mr. President, U.S. competitiveness in the high-tech sector of semiconductors, an important enabler in today’s world providing the basis for nearly all electronic products and systems used in both consumer and military applications, is at risk. As we are all aware, global competition is on the rise, U.S. basic research investment is on the decline, and there is serious concern regarding the U.S. science and technology talent base. These issues have long been a concern of mine not only for the health of our economy but also for maintaining and preserving our national security. I released a whitepaper back in June of 2003 titled ‘‘Semiconductor Industry’’ that discusses and highlights the importance of addressing the accelerating shift in manufacturing overseas. Historically, shifts in manufacturing result over time in migration of research and development which, unfortunately, means we will be essentially offshoring our innovation capacity itself. In the March 21, 2005, edition of BusinessWeek, the cover story article titled ‘‘Outsourcing Innovation’’ exactly addresses this issue. The article discusses how Western corporations began offshoring manufacturing in the 1980s and 1990s and no longer focuses on research and development and proceeds to say how ‘‘that pledge has now passed.’’ Companies such as Dell, Motorola, and Phillips are buying designs of digital devices from abroad, slightly altering the device, and then branding the product with their name.

In addition, there is another aspect of the semiconductor industry that cannot be overlooked, the limitation of Moore’s Law. There will soon be physical barriers to the continued diminution of transistor size, and the financial barriers will become even more extraordinary. This situation would inevitably lead to the slowing or stopping of chip manufacturer’s progress. I am pleased that nanotechnology to fruition in the semiconductor world.

I think it is pretty clear that it is more important than ever to create an environment in the United States in which companies develop and foster innovation. The Defense Science Board Task Force released to the Congress in April 2005 the final report titled ‘‘High Performance Microchip Supply’’ which was in part a response to the issues I raised in my 2003 report. The report outlines a series of recommendations to help ensure the long-term health of the U.S. microchip design, development, and manufacturing industries. The report emphasizes the importance of maintaining technical superiority in the semiconductor industry in order to lead in the application of electronics to support the warfighter. This lead is critical to the foundation of the next generation of U.S. security strategy network centered warfare superiority. The report specifically stresses the need for trusted and assured suppliers of integrated circuit components and emphasizes that ‘‘trust cannot be added to integrated circuits after fabrication; electrical barriers blocking the continued engineering cannot be relied upon to detect undesired alterations in military integrated circuits.’’ Beyond highlighting the threat of IC device compromise, the report also highlights the risk associated with reliance on foreign suppliers to access high-performance microelectronics in time of war when quick response or surge capacity is needed and additionally, the report stresses the longer term risk of losing leading edge R&D in a technology area of strategic importance. This latter point was a particular emphasis of my 2003 report referenced previously and this new report agrees.

The DSB report calls for the Department of Defense’s senior officials to advocate that a strongly competitive U.S. semiconductor base is not only a Department of Defense goal but should also be a national priority. Because the semiconductor industry is closely coupled with a solid manufacturing base, and the U.S. semiconductor manufacturing base is going abroad, the United States will soon start to lose its R&D skill base which is essential for not only U.S. defense systems but general economic competitiveness.

Given the low production volume of Department of Defense microelectronics parts, the report also recommends that the Department of Defense, working with the semiconductor industry and fabrication equipment suppliers, develops a cost-effective technology for the design and fabrication of low production volume, leading edge technology given the low volume demands of the Department of Defense.

It states that an overall vision is needed that develops an approach to meet Department of Defense needs before a supply source becomes an emergency. This requires funding research and development of national priority; the trusted foundry agreements assist in solving the immediate problems, not the longer term. Included in the overall vision, a plan is needed specifically for a Department of Defense semiconductor strategy that addresses both short- and long-term technology, acquisition and manufacturing capabilities to assure an ongoing supply of trusted microelectronic components.

Although U.S. leadership in chip design does not in and of itself assure the trustworthiness of the microelectronic parts, it does put the Department of Defense in a superior position to potential adversaries whose systems rely on U.S. based suppliers. The Department needs to sustain this leadership by investing in research programs and ensuring a domestic supply of scientists and engineers who are skilled in this area. New programmable chip technology, which has intricate designs and therefore is more difficult to validate, is needed and efforts to develop next generation technologies in this area should be pursued.

This DSB report clearly stresses the need for immediate action and lists a number of recommendations. The Department of Defense need not only a short-term plan to address the immediate needs but, importantly, a longer term vision as well. By the end of 2005, there will be 59 300 mm fabrication plants worldwide with only 16 of these located in the United States. The United States cannot wait much longer; we need to address the global competitiveness issue today.

The Department of Defense has been telling us for a year or more to wait for the Defense Science Board report. It has now finally arrived and an actual Department of Defense ‘‘action plan’’ to implement these recommendations
MORNING BUSINESS

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that there will now be a period of morning business with Senators permitted to speak for up to 10 minutes at a time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

ENERGY PRICES

Mr. DORGAN. Madam President, I have received a press statement, issued moments ago, from the Amtrak National Rail Passenger Corporation board of directors. Four members on the board oppose membership appointed by the President. Two of them are recess appointments not given the stamp of approval by the Senate. The four members of the board of directors at Amtrak this morning decided to fire David Gunn, president of Amtrak.

David Gunn is not anybody’s crony. He happens to be an appointment that is smart, tough, with experience in the area. He has run Amtrak like a true champion. He ran afoul of the White House when the White House decided they wanted to shut down Amtrak, shut down long-distance trains and effectively get rid of Amtrak.

David Gunn was the president of Amtrak. He needed to maintain rail passenger service and fought to persuade this Congress to fund Amtrak. The administration recommended zero funding for Amtrak. The Congress didn’t agree. So the Congress funded Amtrak in a manner that would allow it to continue to be a national rail passenger system. Apparently, David Gunn doesn’t measure up to the White House, and so they got the board of directors this morning to fire him. Incidentally, two of the recess appointments on the board of directors, one from New Jersey, one from Florida, will have some kind of rail passenger service no matter what happens to Amtrak.

All those folks who live on the east coast, from Boston to Florida, they probably are always going to have a train running down that little strip on the eastern seaboard. I can understand that the two members of the board, neither of whom were confirmed by the Senate, both of whom were given recess appointments by the President and who cannot beyond this Congress, I can understand if the President or somebody in the White House said: Let’s get rid of this David Gunn. They say: That’s all right because even if we get rid of Amtrak, we will have rail passenger service on the east coast.

I wish to say what a horrible mistake it was for the board of directors of Amtrak to do this. I understand where it came from. It came from the White House. It came from the Secretary of Transportation. I understand meetings were held in recent days, and the decision was made. That decision was carried out by the President’s board of directors.

I am saying this: A national rail passenger system, Amtrak, is beneficial to this country. In my State, 100,000 people used Amtrak last year. Many of those people don’t have alternative transportation opportunities. Yet when Amtrak, the Empire Builder, in this case, runs from Chicago to Seattle, 100,000 North Dakotans have used it. It is an important part of our Nation’s transportation system. But there is a disagreement about Amtrak. The President wants to shut it down. He doesn’t want it. That is why he proposed no funding for it. The Congress, the majority from his own party, said: No, we want to fund it. We believe Amtrak advances this country’s transportation system. We believe it is worthy, something we should do.

The president of Amtrak, David Gunn, is a first-rate executive. He has experience. He has done a great job. I say that as a member of the committee that authorized Amtrak. I have watched this enterprise. I have spent time with Mr. Gunn. I have spent time with Amtrak officials. I know what is happening there. This guy is nobody’s crony. As a result, he gets fired. The “you are doing a great job, Brownie stuff,” I am sick of that. I would like to see people who are qualified to run things running things in this Government. They had one running Amtrak. Today he gets fired because somebody got their nose out of joint and decided, apparently, the Congress won’t allow us to shut down Amtrak so we will fire the president of Amtrak.

It is a big mistake for the country. I don’t know how others in Congress will react, but for me, this is a setback and a setback for those who care about rail passenger service. It was a travesty to treat David Gunn, an executive who came out of retirement to run Amtrak, an executive who did a first-rate job, who came out of retirement to run Amtrak. Today he gets fired because somebody got their nose out of joint and decided, apparently, the Congress won’t allow us to shut down Amtrak so we will fire the president of Amtrak.

Secretary of Transportation, coming from the White House, I guess. But I still think it is a setback for the country. I hope others know it as well.

NATALEE HOLLOWAY

Mr. SHELBY. Mr. President, I rise today to discuss an issue that has troubled me for many months, and that is the disappearance of an Alabama teenager, Natalee Holloway, from the island of Aruba. Most people have heard about this. It has been in the news for months.

More than 5 months ago, on the early morning of May 30, Natalee Holloway disappeared from the island of Aruba. Since the start of the investigation into Natalee’s disappearance, I, along with others, have been deeply troubled by the process that has taken place in Aruba. From the outset, there has been disinformation and misinforma- tion from the Aruban Government. The investigation has been plagued by inconsistencies and conflicting information, calling the integrity of the investigation into question. Since Natalee’s disappearance, a number of suspects have been arrested, detained, and released without being informed of any substantive information regarding her disappearance.

I have made no secret of my concern regarding the handling of this case and the careless and inappropriate manner in which it appears the evidence has been handled. Nevertheless, I continue to believe that without the will of Natalee Holloway’s mother, Beth Twitty, Natalee’s disappearance would not have received the level of scrutiny in Aruba and around the world we have witnessed.

It is disturbing that so many months have passed with no clear answers regarding the circumstances surrounding Natalee’s disappearance. To that end, I joined Alabama GOV Bob Riley and others yesterday to call for a boycott of Aruba. Today, I call upon my colleagues to join me in that call.

I understand this is a drastic measure, but I believe that we as Americans, along with others around the world, should carefully weigh our travel options until the Government of Aruba exhibits a good-faith effort to solve this case.

For the safety, security, and well-being of others, I do not think the American people can trust that we will be protected while in Aruba. Quite frankly, if this can happen to Natalee Holloway, a teenager from my home State of Alabama, it could happen to any of us. That is why I believe a boycott is the answer. I believe the American people, when they think of traveling to the Caribbean this winter, will look at other options.

Mr. HAGEL. Mr. President, I rise today to discuss an issue that has troubled me for many months, and that is the disappearance of an Alabama teen- ager, Natalee Holloway, from the island of Aruba. Most people have heard about this. It has been in the news for months.

LOCAL LAW ENFORCEMENT ENHANCEMENT ACT OF 2005

Mr. SMITH, Mr. President, I rise today to speak about the need for hate crimes legislation. Each Congress, Senator KENNEDY and I introduce hate crimes legislation that would add new categories to current hate crimes law, sending a signal that violence of any kind is unacceptable in our society. Likewise, each Congress I have come to the floor to highlight a separate hate crime that has occurred in our country.

On January 2, 2004, in Madison, WI, Matt Collins and Shawn Wiese went to the Green Bay Brewing Co. to meet a friend. After the restaurant closed, an altercation between two men and Collins and Wiese occurred. A woman later testified that one of the men told her that night that he should beat up Collins and Wiese for being gay. Mr. Collins, who had no health insurance, was hospitalized for 2 days with a broken wrist that required a plate and seven screws.

I believe that our Government’s first duty is to defend its citizens, in all circumstances, from threats to them at home. The Local Law Enforcement Enhancement Act is a major step forward in accomplishing this. I believe that by passing this legislation and changing current law, we can change hearts and minds as well.

THE INTELLIGENCE AUTHORIZATION BILL

Mr. Wyden. Mr. President, this year’s intelligence authorization bill is a key piece of legislation for all Americans and one that I hope to be able to support. But, as written, the bill is marred by the presence of provisions that pose serious concerns for Americans’ privacy rights. Among them is one provision that would permit military intelligence officials to conduct covert interviews of U.S. persons on U.S. soil to assess them as potential intelligence sources without disclosing their government affiliation. With this provision in the legislation, I am compelled to announce my intention to object to any unanimous consent request to bring this bill.

This legislation has been considered by three different Committees: The Senate Intelligence committee, the National security advisory panel, and the Senate Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs. Three different committees have reviewed the legislation, but there has not been a single hearing on the executive privilege claim that is seeking to enable DOD personnel to demand information of law-abiding U.S. citizens without having to disclose to them who they are, on whose behalf they are seeking personal and other information. It is their intent to do with this information.

The CIA already possesses the statutory authority to engage in such surreptitious interrogations of U.S. citizens, and the Department of Defense has in my mind made the case for gaining this new authority as well. In fact, the DOD has not provided any evidence that the failure to have this authority has resulted in damage to U.S. national security.

According to recent press reports, the FBI has gained access to tens of thousands of pieces of information about U.S. citizens through national security letters. This information ranges from the person makes and spends money and who they live with to where they travel and who they email. All of this information has been deposited in government data banks, and according to press reports, this personal information is shared widely, without restriction. The same press reports say that tomorrow not only will such information be shared within the Federal bureaucracy but it will be made available to State, local and tribal entities, and “appropriate private sector entities.”

I remain steadfast in my belief that you can protect national security without gutting civil liberties; and this legislation, as written, is out of balance. A debate on something as important as protecting the rights of our constituents to their privacy and shielding against the surreptitious shakedown of law-abiding citizens is one instance when Americans can and must be invited into the process.
and policymakers alike is critical to our security. Congress must work to improve information sharing, and we owe it to the American people to make sure that safeguards remain in place to ensure that sensitive personal information is not tossed around inappropriately.

MAYORS SUPPORT THE TERRORIST APPREHENSION AND RECORD RETENTION ACT

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, our Nation’s gun safety laws do not go far enough to protect our families and communities and may leave us vulnerable to an attack by terrorists using military style firearms legally purchased within our own borders. Current law not only allows a known or suspected terrorist to buy firearms in the U.S., it also requires that records pertaining to the sale be destroyed within a day of the purchase. Congress should take steps to address these shortfalls in our gun safety laws.

Federal law requires that anyone seeking to purchase or obtain a permit to possess, acquire, or carry firearms undergo a background check through the National Instant Criminal Background Check System, or NICS. This process requires the applicant to provide a variety of personal information including name, date of birth, current residence, and country of citizenship which is then compared with data in the NICS system to determine whether or not the person is prohibited by law from receiving or possessing firearms. Disqualifying criteria includes such things as felony convictions and fugitive or illegal alien status.

As part of the background check, applicants are also checked against known terrorist watch lists. However, under current law, membership in a known terrorist organization does not automatically disqualify an applicant from receiving or possessing a firearm. In cases where a positive match is made, federal authorities search for other disqualifying information. If no disqualifying information can be found within three business days, the transaction is permitted to continue. In addition, all records pertaining to a positive match of an applicant to a terrorist watch list must, under current law, be destroyed within 24 hours if no disqualifying information is found.

I introduced the Terrorist Apprehension Record Retention Act introduced by Senator Lautenberg. This bill would require that in cases where an NICS background check turns up a valid match to a terrorist watch list, all records pertaining to the transaction be retained for ten years. In addition, the bill requires that all NICS information be shared with appropriate federal and state counterterrorism officials anytime an individual on a terrorist watch list attempts to buy a firearm. This is only common sense.

The U.S. Conference of Mayors, which represents some 1,183 cities around the country, adopted a resolution strongly supporting the Terrorist Apprehension and Record Retention Act at their 2005 annual meeting. The resolution cites a report by the General Accountability Office which found that from February 3, 2004 through June 30, 2004, a total of 44 firearm purchase attempts were made by individuals designated as known or suspected terrorists by the federal government. This is an alarming statistic. I ask unanimous consent that a copy of the resolution adopted by the Conference of Mayors be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

TERRORIST APPREHENSION AND RECORD RETENTION (TARR) ACT

Whereas, neither suspected nor actual membership in a terrorist organization by itself prohibits a person from owning a gun under current law; and

Whereas, beginning in November of 2003, the U.S. Department of Justice directed the FBI to revise its procedures to better ensure that suspected members of terrorist organizations and their associates do not receive firearms in violation of the law by automatically delaying responses to provide more time to conduct a background check;

Whereas, in January of 2005, the U.S. Government Accounting Office (GAO) released a report entitled, ‘‘Gun Control and Terrorism: FBI Could Better Manage Firearm-Related Background Checks Involving Terrorist Watch List Records’’; and

Whereas, that report found that from February 3, 2004 through June 30, 2004, a total of 44 firearm related background checks handled by the FBI and state agencies resulted in valid matches with terrorist watch records, and of this total 35 transactions were allowed to proceed because the checks found no prohibiting information, such as felony convictions, illegal immigrant status, or other disqualifying factors; and

Whereas, the report states, ‘‘GAO recommends that the Attorney General (1) clarify procedures to ensure that the maximum amount of alienation from these background checks is consistently shared with counterterrorism officials and (2) either strengthen the FBI’s oversight of state agencies or have the FBI manage all valid match background checks. The Department of Justice agreed.’’; and

Whereas, legislation has been introduced in the U.S. Senate and House of Representatives entitled the ‘‘Terrorist Apprehension and Record Retention (TARR) Act’’; and

Whereas, this Act amends the Federal criminal code to provide that if the national criminal background check system indicates that a person attempting to purchase or possess a firearm or obtain a permit to possess, acquire, or carry a firearm is identified as a known or suspected member of a terrorist organization in records maintained by the Department of Justice or the Department of Homeland Security, including the violent Gang and Terrorism Organization File or records maintained by the Intelligence Community: (1) all information related to the prospective transaction shall be automatically and immediately transmitted to the appropriate Federal and State counterterrorism officials including the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI); (2) the FBI shall coordinate the response; and (3) all records generated in the course of the check that are maintained by Federal and State officials shall be retained for at least ten years, Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the U.S. Conference of Mayors strongly supports the Terrorist Apprehension and Record Retention Act (TARR), and urges that it be passed by Congress and signed into law by the President.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, the U.S. Conference of Mayors recognizes the importance of preserving records of gun purchases by known terrorists and the important role they could potentially play in uncovering a terrorist attack before it is carried out. We owe it to all Americans in this era of heightened risk of terrorist attack to do all we can to protect their safety.

INTEGRITY IN PROFESSIONAL SPORTS ACT

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I rise to express my support for the Integrity in Professional Sports Act, S. 12604. I am deeply troubled by the accounts of children and professional athletes who use anabolic steroids and other performance-enhancement drugs. The effects of taking steroids are not only physiological, but psychological. Experts have testified before Congress that steroid use creates an increased propensity for aggressive and sometimes criminal behavior. It is clear to me that the use of performance-enhancing drugs is one of a number of problems, one of which is a problem of character.

As many of my colleagues may know, for the past 12 years, I have been involved in a grassroots program to promote character education for our country’s children. The Character Counts program is an important grassroots effort that I am proud to have supported. Most recently, on October 7, 2005, 28 Senators joined Senator Christopher Dodd and I in sponsoring a resolution to designate ‘‘National Character Counts Week.’’ The program promotes six fundamental and universal pillars of good character. Those are trustworthiness, responsibility, fairness, caring, and citizenship. A central premise of the Character Counts program has held that children across the country depend on social institutions and leaders for the development of good character. For children, these leaders and role models are often found on the rosters of professional sports teams. When our children see professional athletes engaging in the use of steroids, they begin to question the importance of pillars such as trustworthiness, responsibility, and fairness.

Speaking as a former baseball pitcher for the University of New Mexico and the Albuquerque Dukes, I cannot emphasize enough the value of trustworthiness and fairness in sportsmanship. As athletes, my teammates and I understood that the integrity of the game depended on knowledge that your competitors brought no advantage other than talent and hard work to the playing field. I think that your competitors used steroids to enhance their athletic performance would mean that the game itself was compromised.
S. 1600 is important legislation because it makes clear that all athletes participating in professional sports will be held to the same standards of fair play. By instituting minimum standards for the testing of steroids, professional sports teams and professional athletes must come together to make sure these adults behave according to the same standards of trustworthiness, fairness, and respect.

VETERANS DAY 2005
Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, today, we as Americans gather to honor all those who served, fought and sacrificed to defend our Nation throughout its history.

During the 229 year history of our Nation, brave Americans have answered the call to defend their country’s freedom and the freedom of people around the globe. Today, as in the past, our servicemen and women continue to embody these two goals. I encourage my fellow New Mexicans and all Americans to take a few moments to remember and honor the gallant men and women of our Armed Forces and to pray for their safe return.

New Mexicans have a long distinguished history of military service. During the Spanish American War New Mexico guardsmen formed the bulk of the 2nd Squadron of the 1st Calvary Regiment which served with Teddy Roosevelt and his Rough Riders at the battle of San Juan Hill. When the United States entered the First World War, New Mexicans of the 1st Infantry Regiment served with the 40th Infantry Division in France. While participating in the Italian campaign of the Second World War, New Mexicans of the 104th Tank Destroyer battalion were awarded 8 Silver Stars, 60 Bronze Stars, and 135 Purple Hearts. Of course no one will forget the contribution to final victory the Navajos from our State made as “code talkers” or the bravery of the “New Mexico Brigade” in the Philippines. In the history of our Nation New Mexicans have served with great distinction from the swamps of Cuba, to the jungles of Vietnam and the deserts of Iraq.

It is important that we never forget the sacrifice and dedication of these Americans. They left behind the comfort of home, family and friends to defend our country and its countless blessings. For this, many have paid an immense price, emotionally and physically, some enduring years of captivity and suffering, some never to return home. We Americans owe all that have to these men and women. No praise can ever be too great for these individuals.

The service of veterans to our country has never ended with their departure from the Armed Forces. They have enriched every community in which they reside with their strength of character, hard work and devotion to family. For this we must also be grateful.

Since 9/11, the men and women of our Armed Forces have been called away from home, and are today furthering the cause of freedom in Iraq, Afghanistan and all over the globe. Many of these individuals are National Guardsmen like the members of the 515th Corps Support Battalion that recently returned from Iraq, and women from Holloman, Kirtland, and Cannon Air Force bases. They serve with the same courage and commitment shown by Americans of generations past and they, too, deserve our thoughts and prayers. May our United States continue to be blessed and may America forever remain the land of the free and the home of the brave.

MESSAGES FROM THE PRESIDENT
Messages from the President of the United States were communicated to the Senate by Ms. Evans, one of his secretaries.

EXECUTIVE MESSAGES REFERRED
As in executive session the Presiding Officer laid before the Senate messages from the President of the United States submitting sundry nominations which were referred to the appropriate committees.

(REPORTS OF THE COMMITTEE ON BANKING, HOUSING, AND URBAN AFFAIRS:

To the Congress of the United States:

Section 202(d) of the National Emergencies Act (50 U.S.C. 1622(d)) provides for the automatic termination of a national emergency unless, prior to the anniversary date of its declaration, the President publishes in the Federal Register and transmits to the Congress a notice stating that the emergency is to continue in effect beyond the anniversary date. Consistent with this provision, I have sent the enclosed notice to the Federal Register for publication, stating that the Iran emergency declared by Executive Order 12170 on November 14, 1979, is to continue in effect beyond the anniversary date.

A recently published report of the committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs was published in the Federal Register on November 12, 2004 (69 FR 65513).

Our relations with Iran have not yet returned to normal, and the process of implementing the January 19, 1981, agreements with Iran is still underway. For these reasons, I have determined that it is necessary to continue the national emergency declared on November 14, 1979, with respect to Iran, beyond November 14, 2005.

GEORGE W. BUSH.
THE WHITE HOUSE, November 9, 2005.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE
At 12:38 p.m., a message from the House of Representatives, delivered by Mr. Hays, one of its reading clerks, announced that the House has passed the following bills, in which it requests the concurrence of the Senate:

H.R. 3770. An act to designate the facility of the United States Postal Service located at 205 West Washington Street in Knox, Indiana, as the “Grant W. Green Post Office Building”.

STATMENTS ON INTRODUCED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS

By Mr. KOHL.

S. 197. A bill to provide for the establishment of a strategic refinery reserve, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

Mr. KOHL. Madam President, I rise today to speak briefly about an amendment Senator Jeffords and I had hoped to offer to the Defense authorization bill. I understand it is not considered relevant, so we won’t get a vote. That is unfortunate. I cannot imagine what is more relevant to the defense of our Nation than an amendment that would do something concrete about high energy prices, about national security, and about economic security—all with one vote.

Our amendment, which we are introducing today, along with Senator Feinstein, would authorize the Department of Energy to build enough refining capacity to meet the energy needs of the Federal Government—primarily the Department of Defense—and also to supply the private market in times of shortages and price spikes.

There is bipartisan agreement that increasing refining capacity in the United States would help avoid the kinds of energy price spikes we have seen in the last few months. There also seems to be clear evidence that, despite generous incentives from the Government and soaring profits, the oil companies are not interested in building the new refining capacity in a free market, of course, that is their choice.

But in a democracy, we in Congress are charged with making a different choice. We need to do what is best for our national and economic security. And, in this case, that would be to stop begging and bribing the oil companies. By building our own refining capacity, we would be able to supply the fuel needs of the Federal Government at what it actually costs to make that fuel. And we would also be able to hold in reserve refining capacity that we could access to bring down the cost of gas in times when shortages raise prices.

Today, the Senate is holding important hearings on energy. I am concerned, however, that instead of offering answers and solutions, the oil companies will blame OPEC for the high price of gasoline, diesel fuel, and home heating oil. We should not let them get away with that because OPEC is only part of the story.

While the price of gasoline rose to record levels in recent months, the oil companies were earning increasingly high profits on each gallon of gasoline. One measure is the “domestic spread,” the retail gasoline pump price minus the cost of crude oil and taxes. During the 1990s, the domestic spread was about 40 cents per gallon for regular gas. This number has grown sharply since 2000. The domestic spread averaged above 50 cents per gallon between 2000 and 2004, and has reached as high as over 70 cents per gallon in recent months. In other words, the oil companies are earning much more today for a gallon of gasoline, even factoring in the higher price of crude oil.

Growing oil company profits also demonstrate this point: Oil industry profits, after tax, increased by more than $100 billion in the 5 years from 2000 to 2004, as compared to the previous 5-year period. ExxonMobil’s earnings for the first 9 months of 2005—over $25 billion—already exceeded its full-year earnings for all of 2004. So obviously, these companies are doing much more than just pass along higher crude oil prices to customers.

One major reason for these soaring prices and profits is the oil industry’s failure to increase refining capacity in the face of rising demand for refined petroleum products on each gallon of crude. So far, no refinery has not been built in the United States since the 1970s, and many oil refineries have been closed. In 1985, refining capacity equaled daily consumption of petroleum products. By 2002, daily consumption exceeded refining capacity by almost 20 percent.

As domestic supply falls short of domestic demand, three very dangerous... things happen: 1, we are forced to rely on more imports. 2, we pay higher and higher prices for our fuel. And, 3, our economy is increasingly vulnerable to disasters and disruptions—like those we saw in the wake of Hurricanes Katrina and Rita.

The bill we are introducing would authorize the Department of Energy to create a refining capacity equal to 5 percent of current domestic consumption. These refineries would supply the Federal Government’s need for petroleum products, estimated to be roughly 2 percent of U.S. consumption. The extra 3 percent of capacity would be available for emergencies and market disruptions.

This “Strategic Refining Reserve” would have a direct effect on energy prices to the consumer. It would get the Federal Government out of the private market where its huge demand for energy drives up prices. And it would increase the amount of oil that can be refined in the U.S. in times when the oil companies’ refining capacity is tapped out.

We have a duty to protect consumers, our economy, and our national security from an industry that often seems focused only on the short-term bottom line. We have a duty to respond with concrete help for the families and businesses that tell us daily of the enormous financial threat posed by soaring energy prices. And we have a duty to make sure our military has access to a steady, affordable supply of domestically refined fuel.

Though we will not be able to offer this proposal as an amendment to the DOD authorization bill, we have introduced it as a bill, and we plan to continue to look for opportunities for a vote. We need to take sole control of fuel prices away from the oil companies. We need to take charge and bring down the price of fuel down by building this “Strategic Refining Reserve.”

I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

By Ms. MURKOWSKI.

S. 1980. A bill to provide habitable living quarters for teachers, administrators, and other school staff, and their households, in rural areas of Alaska located in or near Alaska Native villages; to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Ms. MURKOWSKI. Mr. President, I rise to introduce a bill that will have a profound effect on the retention of teachers, administrators, and other school staff in remote and rural areas of Alaska.

In rural areas of Alaska, school districts face the challenge of recruiting and retaining teachers, administrators, and other school staff due to the lack of housing. In one particular year in the Lower Kuskokwim School District in western Alaska, they hired one teacher for every six who decided not to accept a teaching job. The applicants who did not accept a teaching position in that district indicated that their decision was related to the lack of housing.

In 2003, I traveled through rural Alaska with then-Education Secretary Rod Paige. I wanted him to see the challenges of educating children in such a remote and rural environment. At the village school in Savoonga, the principal slept in a broom closet in the school due to the lack of housing in that village. The special education teacher slept in her classroom, bringing a mattress out each evening to sleep on the floor. The other teachers shared housing in a single home. Needless to say, there is not enough room for the teachers’ spouses. Unfortunately, Savoonga is not an isolated example of the teacher housing situation in rural Alaska.

Rural Alaskan school districts experience a high rate of teacher turnover due to the lack of housing. The turnover is as high as 30 percent each year in some rural areas with housing issues being a major factor. How can we expect our children to receive a quality education when the good teachers don’t stay? How can we meet the mandates of No Child Left Behind in such an educational environment? Clearly, the lack of teacher housing in rural Alaska is an issue that must be addressed in order to ensure that children in rural Alaska receive the same level of education as their peers in more urban settings.

My bill authorizes the Department of Housing and Urban Development to provide teacher housing funds to the Alaska Housing Finance Corporation, which is a State agency. In turn, the corporation is authorized to provide grant and loan funds to rural school districts in Alaska for teacher housing projects.

This legislation will allow school districts in rural Alaska to address the housing shortage in the following ways: construct housing units; purchase housing units; lease housing units; purchase or lease property on which housing units will be constructed, purchased, or rehabilitated; repay loans secured for teacher housing projects; and conduct any other activities normally related to the construction, purchase, or rehabilitation of teacher housing projects.

Eligible school districts that accept funds under this legislation will be required to provide the housing to teachers, administrators, other school staff, and members of their households.

It is imperative that we address this important issue and allow the disbursement of funds to be handled at the State level. The quality of education of our rural students is at stake. How can we meet the mandates of No Child Left Behind in such an educational environment? Clearly, the affected Village Corporation; or (ii) that requires travel by road through Canada.

By Ms. SNOWE.

S. 1982. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to provide a tax credit against residential heating costs; to the Committee on Finance.

Ms. SNOWE. Mr. President, today I rise to introduce legislation that would provide a tax credit for home energy costs to low- and middle-income taxpayers. This legislation will help those who are struggling to simply heat their homes at a reasonable cost and while fuel prices remain so high.

Home heating oil in Maine is $2.52 per gallon, up 59 cents from a year ago. Kerosene prices average $2.95 a gallon, 75 cents higher than this time last year. Some projections have a gallon of heating oil reaching $3.00! And I am told that rolling blackouts on cold days this winter may be a possibility because of a high demand for electric heat.

According to the National Energy Assistance Directors Association, heating costs for the average family using heating oil are projected to hit $1,666 for the upcoming winter. That represents an increase of $403 over last winter’s prices and $714 over the winter heating season of 2003-2004. Should colder weather prevail, these costs will surely increase, especially for States like Maine.

So understandably, my constituents are asking how they will be able to afford to pay home heating oil bills that are 30 percent more expensive than last year. This is a crisis that has arrived. For one’s home is a necessity of life—so much so that 73 percent of households in a recent survey reported they would cut back on, and even go without, other necessities such as food, prescription drugs, and mortgage and rent payments. Churches, food pantries, and other charitable services that are all deeply concerned, and the leaves have barely fallen from the trees.

In order to help low- and middle-income families heat their homes this winter, we are imposing a tax credit for home energy costs up to $500. The credit would be available to married couples earning less than $100,000 and single taxpayers making less than $50,000.

My legislation also directs the Treasury Department to assist individuals to adjust their withholding amounts for 2006, which will immediately increase take home pay. Without adjusting their withholdings, taxpayers would not benefit from the credit until they file their taxes some time in 2007. Importantly, long after energy prices have returned to a normal level. As a result, this is a crucial provision to ensure that these individuals and families get a helping hand exactly when they need it most. Finally, any unused credit amount could be carried back to the prior two taxable years or carried forward to future taxable years.

It is critical that those who would benefit from the home energy credit and who need the assistance are not required to shoulder the burden of the cost of the credit through an increase in the national debt. This credit should be paid for, and it makes sense to me that costs of the credit should be financed by those who profit the most by high energy prices, namely large oil companies. I am concerned that while many individuals are forced to make the choice of heating one’s home or meeting the other basic necessities of life, large oil companies are showing record profits. Therefore, the High Energy Cost Tax Assistance Act includes an offset provision to disallow the tax benefit that large oil companies with revenues in excess of $1 billion in 2005 receive by use of the Last-In, First-Out (LIFO) tax accounting method. Instead, these companies would be required to use the First-In, First-Out (FIFO) method of accounting for 2005. Put another way, the proposal would scale back a tax provision that allows oil companies to take an enormous tax deduction when prices are sky high and allows them to boost after-tax profits even further. As big oil companies show record profits on the backs of ordinary Americans, they have less need for such a tax break, and I believe it is fair to scale back this tax break in order to lend a helping hand to low- and middle-income workers.

It is critical that Congress act to help low and middle income Americans absorb the increased home energy costs associated with the drastic increase in price of fuel. Temperatures are falling, prices are rising and we must move swiftly.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 1983

(a) General Rule. -In the case of an individual, there shall be allowed as a credit against the tax imposed by this chapter for the taxable year an amount equal to the amount which bears the same ratio to the amount determined under this subparagraph as the amount of Federal income tax imposed on such property (including any amount attributable to such property) in any succeeding taxable year for increased residential heating costs incurred during such taxable year.

(I) the taxpayers adjusted gross income for such taxable year, over

(ii) the threshold amount, bears to

(I) $40,000 in the case of a joint return, and

(ii) $60,000 in the case of a head of a household, and

By Mr. ALLARD:

S. 1986. A bill to provide for the coordination and use of the National Domestic Preparedness Consortium by the Department of Homeland Security, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs.

Mr. ALLARD. Mr. President, the events of the past few months remind us of the vital role of first responders in responding to natural disasters and terrorism. First responders are just that: the first to respond. When they arrive on the scene, they often face fluid and volatile situations whereupon they are required to make split-second decisions, each of which has the potential to affect thousands of lives. For this reason, it is important that our first responders receive the training and experience needed to make critical life saving decisions under emergency circumstances. I believe that an essential element of preparing our first responders is to provide them with hands-on experience in simulated, real-world training environments.

The importance of real world training was called to my attention by a visit to the Technology Training Center (TTC) in Pueblo, CO. There, I witnessed first hand the tools at our disposal to equip our first responders with the training they need, specifically in the context of rail and mass transit. As a result of our visit, we have responded by providing facilities at the disposal of our first responders through the Department of Homeland Security’s National Domestic Preparedness Consortium (NDPC). TTP’s potential to fill a gap in the rail and mass transit environment became apparent.

Congress recognized the need to train first responders in the 1998 Appropriations Act, Public Law 105-119, and accompanying report. There, Congress stated that, while the Federal Government plays an important role in preventing and responding to these types of attacks, state and local safety personnel are typically first to respond to the scene when such incidents occur. As a result, Congress authorized the Attorney General to assist state and local public safety personnel in acquiring the specialized training and equipment necessary to safely respond to and manage terrorist incidents involving weapons of mass destruction.

On April 30, 1998, the Attorney General delegated authority to the Justice Department’s lead Office of Justice Programs (OJP) to develop and administer training and equipment assistance programs for state and local emergency response agencies to better prepare them against this threat. To execute this mission, the Office of Justice Programs established the Office for Domestic Preparedness (ODP) to develop and administer a national Domestic Preparedness Program.

Upon passage of the Homeland Security Act of 2002, Pub. L. 107-296, the ODP was transferred to the Department of Homeland Security from OJP. In 2003, a number of grant programs and functions from other DHS components were consolidated into ODP, including the NDPC, under a new DHS agency, the Office of State and Local Government Coordination and Preparedness (SLGCP). Today, SLGCP is the Federal Government’s lead agency responsible for preparing the nation against terrorism by assisting states, local and tribal jurisdictions, and regional authorities as they prevent, deter, and respond to terrorist acts. SLGCP’s ODP provides tactical training to emergency responders at the state and local level.

As a result, Congress authorized the Office of State and Local Government Coordination and Preparedness (SLGCP) to develop and administer a national Domestic Preparedness Program. This legislation was designed to provide specialized training for emergency responders across the country.

ODP’s major training partner is the NDPC, through which ODP identifies, develops, tests, and delivers training to members of the emergency response community in the areas of command, control, and technical operations. The NDPC includes: ODP’s Center for Domestic Preparedness (CDP): CDP provides advanced, hands-on training to members of the emergency response community in the areas of command, control, and technical operations. CDP is the only WMD training facility that provides hands-on training to civilian emergency responders in a toxic chemical agent environment. New Mexico Institute of Mining and Technology (NMIMT): NMIMT, a world leader in explosives research, serves as the lead NDPC partner for explosives, firearms, and incendiary devices training. New Mexico Tech also delivers a program in suicide prevention and response.

Louisiana State University (LSU): LSU provides training and expertise in the areas of law enforcement, bioterrorism, agricultural terrorism, weapons of mass destruction, and mass casualty incidents. Texas A&M University System, Texas Engineering Extensive Service (TEEX): TEEX develops and conducts national WMD preparedness training for all emergency response disciplines, as well as courses in incident management/ unified command, threat and risk assessments, operations for public works, and WMD operations for emergency medical services. TEEX also conducts a structural collapse technician course to build state capacity for urban search and rescue operations. Department of Energy’s Nevada Test Site (NTS): NTS conducts radiological and nuclear training at NTS and via mobile training teams. It also develops and delivers radiological and nuclear training at the awareness and operations levels and conducts train-the-trainer courses for first responders across the country.

Although it consists of an impressive array of training facilities, the National Domestic Preparedness Consortium is not statutorily authorized and does not include a facility that is uniquely focused on emergency preparedness within the railroad and mass transit environment. Therefore, in addition to specifically authorizing the NDPC, this bill incorporates the Transportation Technology Center into the Department of Homeland Security’s National Domestic Preparedness Consortium, filling a critical gap in its current training agenda.

TTC is a federally-owned, 52 square mile multi-modal testing and training facility in Pueblo, Colorado, operated by the Association of American Railroads (AAR). In 1985, TTC established an on site Emergency Response Training Center (ERTC) to train railroad officials to safely handle accidents involving tank cars carrying hazardous materials. The training proved to be so successful that attendance was opened up to other railroad companies. TTC now serves not only the transportation service industry, but also the public sector emergency response community, the chemical industry, government agencies, and emergency response contractors from all over the world. Each year, an average of 1,700 first responders—from Portland, ME to Portland, OR—travel to Pueblo, CO, to participate in TTC’s training program. Former participants include over 600 fire departments and entities from 45 states; 16 state police agencies from Arkansas, Colorado, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Louisiana, Massachusetts, Michigan, Missouri, New Jersey, Nebraska, New Mexico, Oregon, Texas, and Washington; and numerous government agencies, including the U.S. Air Force, Army, Coast Guard, Customs Service, Federal Bureau of Investigation, Environmental Protection Agency, Drug Enforcement Agency, National Aeronautics and Space Administration, and the National Transportation Safety Board. In its 20 year history, the facility has trained more than 20,000 students worldwide.

The ERTC is regarded as the “graduate school” of emergency response training because of its focus on hands-on, true to life, training exercises on actual rail vehicles, including tank cars and passenger rail cars. The ERTC is uniquely positioned to teach emergency response for railway-related emergencies with 69 railway freight cars, 15 railroad passenger cars, 25 highway cargo tanks, van trailers, and intermodal containers, and computer work stations equipped with the latest emergency response software. The Passenger Railcar Safety and Integrity Training Facility is currently being developed to test various inspection, response, and remediation techniques’ effectiveness for mitigation to incidents involving passenger railcars. This facility focuses on chemical, biological, radiological, nuclear, or explosive incidents and other activities associated with potential terrorist events.

The distinctive environment of TTC allows testing and training activities to be carried out at a remote location without disruption to the flow of passenger and rail traffic in and around urban areas. Its inclusion in the NDPC presents a unique opportunity to enhance technology and training that will improve our Nation’s ability to prevent, minimize, and respond to potential terrorist attacks similar to those recently seen in London and Madrid.

It is for these reasons, among others, that I rise today to introduce a bill to statutorily authorize the National Domestic Preparedness Consortium, as expanded to include the Transportation Technology Center in Pueblo, CO, and providing for its coordination and use by the Department of Homeland Security in training the Nation’s first responders.

SUBMITTED RESOLUTIONS

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION 63—SUPPORTING THE GOALS AND IDEALS OF NATIONAL HIGH SCHOOL SENIORS VOTER REGISTRATION DAY

Mr. VITTER submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Rules and Administration:

S. CON. RES. 63

Whereas in order for the Government of the United States to reveal, by the people, and for the people, individuals must take advantage of their right to vote;

Whereas the right to vote is one of the most important rights of a citizen, and every effort should be made to promote voter registration at school so that students may be participating in the operation of the Nation’s representative democracy;

Whereas the Legislature of Louisiana voted in 2002 to recognize annually the first "Thanksgiving" Thursday as "National High School Seniors Voter Registration Day; and

Whereas the purpose of National High School Seniors Voter Registration Day is to allow students to register at school to encourage their participation in making democracy work: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That the Senate of the United States of America, representing the people of the State of Louisiana and the United States, hereby expresses its bites in Article 19 of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, and reaffirmed in the Geneva Declaration of Principles adopt ed at the first phase of the World Summit on the Information Society;
Whereas the U.S. Principles on the Internet’s Domain Name and Addressing System, issued on June 30, 2005, represent an appropriate framework for the coordination of the system and the Internet’s architecture, and are encouraging all Internet stakeholders to reflect in its activities;

Whereas governments have legitimate concerns with respect to the management of their country’s code top level domains; and

Whereas the United States Government is committed to working successfully with the international community to address those concerns, bearing in mind the need for stability and security of the Internet’s domain name and addressing system;

Whereas discussion of Internet governance, as currently being discussed in the United Nations World Summit on the Information Society is a broad and complex topic;

Whereas it is vital that governments and other stakeholders discuss Internet governance, given that the Internet will likely be an increasingly important part of the world economy and society in the 21st Century;

Whereas Internet governance discussions in the World Summit should focus on the real threats to the Internet’s growth and stability, and not recommend changes to the current regime of domain name and addressing system management and coordination on political grounds unrelated to any technical need; and

Whereas market-based policies and private sector leadership have allowed this medium the flexibility to innovate and evolve: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That it is the sense of Congress that—

(1) It is incumbent upon the United States and other responsible governments to send clear signals to the marketplace that the current framework of oversight and management of the Internet’s domain name and addressing service works, and will continue to deliver tangible benefits to Internet users worldwide; and

(2) Therefore the authoritative root zone server should remain physically located in the United States and the Secretary of Commerce should maintain oversight of ICANN so that ICANN can continue to manage the day-to-day operation of the Internet’s domain name and addressing system well, reaping the benefits to all Internet stakeholders world-wide, and otherwise fulfill its core technical mission.

TITLE—SPECIAL COMMITTEE OF SENATE ON WAR AND RECONSTRUCTION CONTRACTING

SEC. 01. FINDINGS.

Congress makes the following findings:

(1) The wars in Iraq and Afghanistan have exerted very large demands on the Treasury of the United States and required tremendous sacrifice by the members of the Armed Forces of the United States.

(2) Congress has a constitutional responsibility to ensure comprehensive oversight of the expenditure of United States Government funds.

(3) Waste and corporate abuse of United States Government resources are particularly unacceptable and reprehensible during times of war.

(4) The magnitude of the funds involved in the reconstruction of Afghanistan and Iraq and the war on terrorism, together with the speed with which these funds have been committed, presents a challenge to the effective exercise of Congress’ oversight functions of Congress and the auditing functions of the executive branch.

(5) The Senate Special Committee to Investigate the National Defense Program, particularly known as the Truman Committee, which was established during World War II, offers a constructive precedent for bipartisan oversight of United States military activities that can also be extended to wartime and postwar reconstruction activities.

(6) The Truman Committee is credited with an extremely successful investigatory effort, performance of a significant public education role, and achievement of fiscal savings measured in the billions of dollars.

(7) The Senate is duty-bound to expect that taxpayer resources will be carefully disbursed and honestly spent.

SEC. 02. SPECIAL COMMITTEE ON WAR AND RECONSTRUCTION CONTRACTING.

There is established a special committee of the Senate to be known as the Special Committee on War and Reconstruction Contracting (hereinafter in this title referred to as the “Special Committee”).

SEC. 03. PURPOSE AND DUTIES.

The purpose of the Special Committee is to investigate the awarding and performance of contracts military, security, and reconstruction activities in Afghanistan and Iraq and the prosecution of the war on terrorism.

B. DUTIES.—The Special Committee shall examine the contracting actions described in subsection (a) and report, in accordance with this section, regarding—

(1) bidding, contracting, accounting, and auditing standards for Federal Government contracts;

(2) methods of contracting, including sole-source contracts and limited competition or non-competitive contracts;

(3) subcontracting under large, comprehensive contracts;

(4) oversight procedures;

(5) consequences of cost-plus and fixed price contracting;

(6) allegations of wasteful and fraudulent practices;

(7) accountability of contractors and Government officials involved in procurement and contracting;

(8) penalties for violations of law and abuses in the awarding and performance of Government contracts; and

(9) lessons learned from the contracting process used in Iraq and Afghanistan and in connection with the war on terrorism with respect to the structure, coordination, management policies, and procedures of the Federal Government.

C. INVESTIGATION OF WASTEFUL AND FRAUDULENT PRACTICES.—The investigation by the Special Committee of allegations of wasteful and fraudulent practices under subsection (b)(6) shall include investigation of allegations regarding any contract or spending entered into, supervised by, or otherwise involving the Coalition Provisional Authority, regardless of whether or not such contract or spending involved appropriated funds of the United States.

D. Mr. WARNER (for Mr. DODD (for himself and Mr. KENNEDY)) submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by Mr. WARNER to the bill S. 1042, to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 2006 for military activities of the Department of Defense, for military construction, and for defense activities of the Department of Energy, to prescribe personnel strengths for such fiscal year for the Armed Forces, and for other purposes; as follows:

At the end of subtitle F of title V, add the following:

SEC. 252. NATIONAL CALL TO SERVICE PROGRAM.

(a) LIMITATION TO DOMESTIC NATIONAL SERVICE PROGRAMS.—Subsection (c)(3)(D) of section 510 of title 10, United States Code, is amended—

“(1) by inserting “in the Peace Corps, Americorps, or another national service program” and inserting “in Americorps or another domestic national service program”;

(b) ADMINISTRATION OF EDUCATION INCENTIVES BY SECRETARY OF VETERANS AFFAIRS.—

Paragraph (2) of subsection (b) of such section is amended to read as follows:

“(2)(A) Educational assistance under paragraphs (3) or (4) of subsection (e) shall be provided through the Department of Veterans Affairs, to be entered into by the Secretary of Defense and the Secretary of Veterans Affairs. The agreements shall include administrative procedures to ensure prompt and timely transfer of the amount authorized to be appropriated by section 101(a)(9) of title 10, United States Code.

SEC. 253. MEDIUM TACTICAL VEHICLE MODIFICATIONS.

(b) ELEMENTS.—The policy under subsection (a) shall include the following:

(1) An identification of a graduate of home schooling for purposes of recruitment and enlistment in the Armed Forces that is in accordance with the requirements described in subsection (c).

(2) Provision for the treatment of graduates of home schooling with no practical limit with regard to enlistment eligibility.

(3) An exemption of graduates of home schooling from the requirement for a secondary school diploma or an equivalent (GED) as a precondition for enlistment in the Armed Forces.

(c) HOME SCHOoled GRADUATES.—In prescribing the policy, the Secretary of Defense shall prescribe a policy on the enrollment of home schooled graduates.

(d) REQUIREMENT FOR INTERIM REPORT.—In this section, the term “Secretary concerned” has the meaning given such term in section 101(a)(9) of title 10, United States Code.

SEC. 258. MEDIUM TACTICAL VEHICLE MODIFICATIONS.

(c) OFFFFSET.—The amount authorized to be appropriated by section 304(d) for Operation and Maintenance for the Air Force is hereby reduced by $5,000,000.
(2) Drug traffickers use the Caribbean corridor to smuggle narcotics to the United States via Puerto Rico and the Dominican Republic. This route is ideal for drug trafficking because of the geographic expanse and numerous law enforcement jurisdictions and fragmented investigative efforts.

(3) The aerostat system in Lajas, Puerto Rico contributes to deterring and detecting smugglers moving illicit drugs into Puerto Rico. The aerostat’s range and operational capabilities allow it to provide surveillance coverage of the eastern Caribbean corridor and the strategic waterway between Puerto Rico and the Dominican Republic, known as the Mona Passage.

(4) Including maritime radar on the Lajas aerostat will expand its ability to detect suspicious vessels in the eastern Caribbean corridor.

(a) SENSE OF THE SENATE.—Given the above findings, it is the Sense of the Senate that—

(1) Congress and the Department of Defense fully fund the Counter-Drug Tethered Aerostat program.

(b) Department of Defense install maritime radar on the Lajas, Puerto Rico aerostat.

A TRIBUTE TO THE REVEREND CANON H. GREGORY SMITH

HON. ROBERT A. BRADY
OF PENNSYLVANIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, November 9, 2005

Mr. BRADY of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor Reverend Canon H. Gregory Smith as he commemorates the 25th anniversary of his ordination. Reverend Smith is highly respected and beloved by the worshiping community of St. Luke’s Episcopal Church in Germantown, Pennsylvania, and has earned this respect in the many roles he has taken on throughout his life.

A graduate of Bradley University, Reverend Smith majored in Education and Music, and also trained professionally as a tenor. After graduation, he went on to work for the Red Cross, but he never forgot his childhood dream of working in the White House. His father had told him that the only black people in the White House were servants, but the young Reverend Smith vowed that he would someday work at the White House, and not as a servant. True to his word, Reverend Smith soon moved on from his position at the Red Cross to become a writer at the White House for First Lady Betty Ford.

After three years at the White House, Reverend Smith left to follow a call to attend seminary at Nashota House, and was ordained in June of 1980. Since then, he has served as Pastor in Chicago, Atlanta, and Denver. Today, Mr. Speaker, I wish to express my deep gratitude for Reverend Smith’s years of service to the community, and I extend my warmest congratulations to him on this 25th anniversary of his ordination. I ask that you and my other distinguished colleagues rise to congratulate him on all of his accomplishments.

HONORING AL LOPEZ

HON. JIM DAVIS OF FLORIDA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, November 9, 2005

Mr. DAVIS of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I rise in honor of Al Lopez, Tampa’s beloved son and one of America’s greatest baseball players and managers.

Born in Ybor City as the son of a cigar factory worker, Al Lopez never forgot his roots. His devotion to his hometown as he rose through the ranks of baseball stardom was one of many reasons that “Senor,” as he was affectionately nicknamed, was so cherished in the Tampa community.

Al was the first Tampa native to play in the major leagues. He launched his major league career in 1928 as a catcher for the Brooklyn Robins, soon to become the Dodgers. Al went on to catch for the Boston Braves, the Pittsburgh Pirates and the Cleveland Indians. Al retired after 19 years in the majors, during which he was a two time All-Star and earned the record for the most games caught—1,918—a record he held until 1987.

But Al’s career was far from over. He went on to manage for 14 years, earning a .581 winning percentage and a spot in Baseball’s Hall of Fame in 1977. Al brought both the Cleveland Indians and the Chicago White Sox to the World Series and managed several All-Star teams. However, he may be best known for managing teams that finished ahead of the New York Yankees between 1949 and 1964.

Al Lopez’s success inspired countless Tampa youngsters to pursue their baseball dreams. In his honor, Tampa dedicated Al Lopez Field in 1954 and Al Lopez Park in 1992. Those who had the pleasure of getting to know Al remember him as being the consummate gentleman. In spite of his fame, Al was always kind and eager to hear what others had to say.

Al’s remarkable skill and performance as a player on the field and a manager on the sidelines was only exceeded by his exemplary character and commitment to others he exhibited throughout his life. His very powerful example will undoubtedly inspire generations to come. On behalf of the entire Tampa Bay community, I extend my deepest sympathies to Al’s family. Al gave so much to his hometown. In turn, Tampa will forever remember and honor Al Lopez.

HONORING JUDGE SONDRA MILLER

HON. NITA M. LOWEY
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, November 9, 2005

Mrs. LOWEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor Judge Sondra Miller on her retirement from the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court of the State of New York.

A graduate of Wellesley College and Harvard Law School, Sondra Miller has had a distinguished career as an Associate Justice since her appointment to the court by Governor Cuomo in 1990. She also made notable contributions in her service as a Family Court Judge in Westchester County.

Judge Miller is an active member of the legal community. She currently serves as Commissioner of the Governor’s Permanent Judicial Commission on Justice for Children, a member of the New York State Bar Association Special Committee on Justice and the Community, a founding member of Judges and Lawyers Breast Cancer Alert (JALBCA), and a Member of the Board of Visitors at Pace University School of Law.

Over the course of her legal career, Judge Miller has been respected as a scholar, jurist, and incisive jurist, receiving numerous awards for her work. Among the honors she has received are the Westchester Women of the Year Award, the New York State Bar Association’s Ruth H. Schapiro Award, the Women’s Bar Association of the State of New York’s Founders Award, and the Peace School of Law Leadership Award. In 2005 the Westchester Women’s Bar Association Foundation established the “Justice Sondra M. Miller Scholarship,” which will be awarded annually.

Sondra’s work in our community is far-reaching. She is a respected and valued member of the League of Women Voters, Planned Parenthood, Hadassah, the Harvard Club, and the Westchester Jewish Center.

Judge Sondra and her husband Stanley Gelfman live in Westchester County. She is a devoted mother to Sabrina and David Miller, Miriam and Gary Reback, Seth and Amanda Miller, Wendy and Andrew Tatarsky, Sarri and Rick Harner, and a loving grandmother to her 13 grandchildren.

Mr. Speaker, I ask my colleagues to join me in honoring Judge Sondra Miller and in thanking her for a career of dedicated service to the citizens of New York.

A TRIBUTE TO THE CORPORATE HEROES OF HURRICANE KATRINA

HON. JO BONNER
OF ALABAMA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, November 9, 2005

Mr. BONNER. Mr. Speaker, today I rise to highlight some of the exceptional actions taken by our corporate citizens in the wake of Hurricane Katrina.

It is common to hear criticism from this floor of our Nation’s largest companies, and I think it is only fair to recognize the good these companies do in times of national emergency. The cover of a September Fortune magazine reads: “Government Broke Down. Businesses Stepped Up. How Wal-Mart, FedEx, and Home Depot got the job done after Katrina.”

We have a select committee working hard to address the first part of this headline. We should also recognize and learn lessons from the second part of the headline, how business stepped up.

I recall talking to a mayor in my district in September of last year when Hurricane Ivan had just devastated his city and much of the Alabama Gulf Coast. He said the community’s demands on the government for basic services such as water, food, and ice were relentless and almost overwhelming. Then the city’s Wal-Mart SuperCenter reopened; the cavalry had arrived. The mayor said it was as if a huge weight had been lifted.

Mr. Speaker, this Wal-Mart store did not reopen without careful planning, without superb execution, and without the extraordinary effort of Wal-Mart employees in Alabama and throughout the Wal-Mart distribution system. The efforts of Wal-Mart and other corporate citizens have been extraordinary in response to the needs of communities.
to Hurricane Katrina. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. has contributed $17 million to relief efforts and donated 19 vacant facilities for use by relief agencies.

After the storm made landfall, the company immediately dispatched pre-positioned trucks to the devastated region bearing $5 million worth of supplies. In addition, Wal-Mart employees personally donated over $9 million.

To quote Fortune magazine, “The world’s biggest company flexed its massive distribution muscle to deliver vital supplies to victims of Hurricane Katrina.”

It was this distribution muscle that provided relief to the hardest hit areas. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. and its employees have earned our respect and our heartfelt thanks.

Mr. Speaker, there are other companies, perhaps not as large, that contributed in quiet, unheralded ways to Hurricane Katrina relief.

One additional company I would like to highlight is EADS, a European aerospace and defense firm that has recently chosen to open a facility in Mobile, Alabama, my home town.

In the chaotic days immediately following landfall of Hurricane Katrina, two EADS helicopters flew dangerous missions to rescue stranded victims, transport medical personnel, and deliver critical supplies to the Gulf Coast, stopping only to load, unload, and refuel.

EADS also coordinated with Airbus to deliver 23 tons of blankets, cots, tents and other items donated by the United Kingdom and France. The aid was flown onboard the Airbus A300–600ST cargo jetliner, also known as the Beluga, from Europe to Brookley Field in Mobile, Alabama.

In addition to the rescue and aid missions, EADS built a mobile medical rescue station in Long Beach, Mississippi. EADS, the German government, and Airbus coordinated to move the 12-ton medical rescue station from Frankfurt to Atlanta. Once in Atlanta, the Airbus Beluga moved it to Mississippi. The rescue station is staffed by 38 doctors and treats approximately 150 patients a day, handling everything from routine immunizations to surgical procedures.

In this time of such extreme adversity for the people of the Gulf Coast, the people of EADS truly came to our aid. I am humbled by their dedication and commitment to help in the recovery from Hurricane Katrina.

Mr. Speaker, I am truly grateful to the national and international corporations that made generous contributions in the wake of Hurricane Katrina. I have singled out two for our well-deserved thanks, and I am glad to call them neighbors.

A TRIBUTE TO RON DOWNS
HON. JIM COSTA
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, November 9, 2005

Mr. COSTA. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in honor of Lieutenant Ron Downs of Fresno, California. Mr. Downs was a respected member of the Fresno police department. He passed away Monday, October 31st, 2005 of a heart attack; he was three weeks away from retirement.

Mr. Downs was sworn as a police officer in July 1, 1967, at the young age of 22. He worked as a lieutenant and commander of the Fresno narcotics unit. He previously was commander of the Fresno police department. He was one of the finest of citizens. We owe our freedom to them.

Today and every day, the prayers of the American people are with those who wear our country’s uniform. They serve a great cause and they follow a great tradition, handed down to them by America’s greatest heroes, our veterans.

E2306

American people are with those who wear our country’s uniform. They serve a great cause and they follow a great tradition, handed down to them by America’s greatest heroes, our veterans.

Mr. Speaker, there are other companies, perhaps not as large, that contributed in quiet, unheralded ways to Hurricane Katrina relief.

One additional company I would like to highlight is EADS, a European aerospace and defense firm that has recently chosen to open a facility in Mobile, Alabama, my home town.

In the chaotic days immediately following landfall of Hurricane Katrina, two EADS helicopters flew dangerous missions to rescue stranded victims, transport medical personnel, and deliver critical supplies to the Gulf Coast, stopping only to load, unload, and refuel.

EADS also coordinated with Airbus to deliver 23 tons of blankets, cots, tents and other items donated by the United Kingdom and France. The aid was flown onboard the Airbus A300–600ST cargo jetliner, also known as the Beluga, from Europe to Brookley Field in Mobile, Alabama.

In addition to the rescue and aid missions, EADS built a mobile medical rescue station in Long Beach, Mississippi. EADS, the German government, and Airbus coordinated to move the 12-ton medical rescue station from Frankfurt to Atlanta. Once in Atlanta, the Airbus Beluga moved it to Mississippi. The rescue station is staffed by 38 doctors and treats approximately 150 patients a day, handling everything from routine immunizations to surgical procedures.

In this time of such extreme adversity for the people of the Gulf Coast, the people of EADS truly came to our aid. I am humbled by their dedication and commitment to help in the recovery from Hurricane Katrina.

Mr. Speaker, I am truly grateful to the national and international corporations that made generous contributions in the wake of Hurricane Katrina. I have singled out two for our well-deserved thanks, and I am glad to call them neighbors.

TRIBUTE TO ALL MEN AND WOMEN WHO HAVE SERVED
HON. DANIEL LIPINSKI
OF ILLINOIS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, November 9, 2005

Mr. LIPINSKI. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to all the dedicated men and women who have served, and those who continue to serve and protect this great Nation.

Veteran’s Day is a day of remembrance and rededication. We pause to remember the noble service and great sacrifices of those who have worn our Nation’s uniform. And we re dedicate ourselves, in the words of President Lincoln, “to care for him who shall have borne the battle.”

As our Nation is at war, we look to the brave mothers, fathers, sons and daughters that have answered the call to defend us. With courage and character, American soldiers continue to put their lives on the line to defend our freedom, and so many have paid the ultimate sacrifice.

On this Veterans Day, let us remember the service of our veterans, and let us renew our national promise to fulfill our sacred obligations to our veterans and their families who have sacrificed so much so that we can live free.

On the battlefield, the military pledges to leave no soldier behind. As a nation, let it be our pledge that when they return home, we leave no veteran behind. As more veterans return home from the battlefield, let us honor the service of all veterans, young and old, that have stood guard and fought so bravely to ensure our freedom. Our Nation must provide sufficient access to healthcare, adequate benefits, and the supplemental resources our veterans were promised and so dearly need. We owe our heroes no less.

Today and every day, the prayers of the American people are with those who wear our country’s uniform. They serve a great cause and they follow a great tradition, handed down to them by America’s greatest heroes, our veterans.

Veterans from every era are the finest of citizens. We owe them the life we know today. They command the respect of the American people, and they have our everlasting gratitude.

May God bless our troops. May God bless our veterans and their families. And may God bless the United States of America.

HONORING MR. JAMES BERTRAL GALLOWAY
HON. ROBERT B.ADERHOLT
OF ALABAMA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, November 9, 2005

Mr. ADERHOLT. Mr. Speaker, today I would like to honor Mr. James Berthal Galloway, who was born on November 3, 1924, in the Hopewell Community near Geraldine, Alabama. Mr. Galloway was a Navy veteran who served stateside in Chincoteague, Virginia as an air mechanic, near the end of World War II. He later married the former Miss Pauline Mayes on October 22, 1970. Until retirement, the two taught basketball at Geraldine High School. Mrs. Galloway taught remediation for 30 years, and Mr. Galloway taught history and also coached basketball.

As a devoted teacher, Mr. Galloway also had a passion for the contributions of veterans to our country. His desire to honor these contributions, Mr. Galloway started the Geraldine Veterans Day Program. Spanning three decades, 2005 marks its 31st year. This program has become a Geraldine staple, and its special nature is attested to by the fact that it prompts surrounding communities to make plans to attend each year.

In recent years, the Geraldine School administration, in conjunction with the Student Government Association, has sponsored the Veterans Day Program and has taken it to new heights. The well-organized program, with the participation of the SGA, sponsors, faculty, and of course the veterans themselves includes being escorted to special seating, commemorative speeches, drama productions, and martial music in front of the student body, which numbers over 1,100. Each veteran is rec-gnized by name, service branch, years of service and theater of operations. There is a special memorial component of the program, to honor those veterans who have passed away during the year. Upon conclusion of the formal program, the veterans and their families share a meal together and have the opportunity to visit the school, where the halls and doorways have been decorated with a patriotic theme.

It is with sadness I note that Mr. James Galloway passed away on July 13, 2005. I want to publicly express how deeply he will be missed. His efforts will not be forgotten or unnoticed, and although we mourn his absence, we celebrate his many years of unselfish service to the community. His sincerity and devotion to country and service shine to this day.

Mr. OWENS. Mr. Speaker, I was absent on November 8, I would have voted; “no” on the motion to Table the Appeal of the Ruling of the Chair; “yea” to H. Res. 38, Expressing support for the accession of Israel to the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development; “yea” to H. Res. 302—Recognizing and commending the continuing dedication and commitment of employers of the members of the National Guard and the other reserve components who have been mobilized during the Global War on Terrorism and in defense of the United States; and “yea” to H.R. 3770—Grant W. Green Post Office Building Designation Act.

FAIR ACCESS FOSTER CARE ACT
OF 2005

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, November 8, 2005

Mr. TIAHRT. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the Fair Access Foster Care Act of 2005. This bill promotes the right to foster care maintenance payments by adding private for-profit agencies to the list of eligible recipients. Currently, State and non-profit agencies are the only therapeutic foster care providers eligible for this funding. Children with special medical, psychological, emotional, and social needs are the most vulnerable in the foster care system. Congress should provide strong support for all agencies willing to be involved in these fragile lives.

For children who enter foster care, separation from birth parents is traumatic, and separion from siblings who share a common history is a devastating, ultimately isolating loss. Since the 1980s, researchers have focused increasing attention on the importance of sibling ties. Siblings who are placed together have been known to transition more smoothly into new homes, and most researchers agree that attachments between siblings are critically important. In recent years, many states have taken action to help siblings stay together.

I am pleased to share with you an encouraging story of hope from my district. The Salvation Army chapter in Wichita, Kansas, conducts an annual birth family Christmas party and a summer picnic at Camp Hiawatha that provides an opportunity to reunite foster care children and their birth families. In addition to these annual events, the staff works with United Methodists Youthville to provide sibling visits a couple times a month. The foster care parents are required to make the connection for these visits with the foster child’s siblings and/or parents.

In May of this year, there were 4,789 foster care children in the State of Kansas, and 542,000 in the country. According to the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, the average stay for a child in the foster care system is 33 months. About 44 percent of these children reunite with their birth parents. Over 50 percent of foster children become juvenile offenders. This statistic, although disheartening, does not complete high school. These statistics speak of the desperate need for a good and solid foster care system, and of the commendable work so many agencies and families are willing to do for these children. Children in the foster care system become the responsibility of us all and their lives are changed forever when Americans begin to take that responsibility personally. My colleague Congressman Tom Davis (RVA) has been involved with foster care programs for years and I commend him for the work on this issue.

I am proud to support this legislation that will increase the access and opportunity for therapeutic foster care for our Nation’s children.

ments of Labor, Health and Human Services, and Education, and Related Agencies Appropriations Act of 2006), “yea” on rollcall vote 574 (H. RECOGNITION OF HONORABLE THOMAS R. SUOZZI

HON. CAROLYN McCARTHY
OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, November 9, 2005

Mrs. MCCARTHY. Mr. Speaker, this year, Governing.com, a leading online publication for and about State and local governments and a subsidiary of Congressional Quarterly, announced their list of the Outstanding Public Official of the Year. Only eight States and local leaders from throughout our Nation received this most noteworthy award. It is an honor for me to bring to the attention of my colleagues and this House one of those outstanding public officials, the Honorable Thomas R. Suozzi, County Executive of Nassau County, New York.

Tom Suozzi is a true leader. He has led Nassau County for the past four years with common, practical sense; with an approach to-toward running government as a business; with a vision for the future while not forgetting our past; all the while making paramount the needs of the people of Nassau County. He has established a record as County Executive, and before that as mayor of his home town of Glen Cove, New York, that can serve as a blueprint for governments at all levels, and yes, even the Federal Government, to follow.

Upon his election as County Executive, Mr. Suozzi inherited a county that had amassed a debt of $3 billion, had a junk bond rating and was ready to be taken over by State intervention. County facilities such as parks and public buildings were insufficient to meet the needs of the people. It has been said that ‘Nassau County was not just on the brink of disaster, but rather had toppled over and was nearing terminal velocity.’

Today, Nassau County has not only turned the corner on its financial woes, it is a national leader with its innovative ideas to governing. Since 2001, under the guidance of Mr. Suozzi, the county has had a balanced budget every year; it has a $200 million surplus; it has had ten upgrades in its bond rating to an A+ level currently, and most significantly, this has all been achieved without a tax increase in the last three years. It is important to point out, too, that during his tenure as mayor, Mr. Suozzi had very similar problems and very similar results.

Tom Suozzi is a visionary, looking to the future for ways to grow an economy and to make Long Island, the Garden State of the East Coast and suburbs in general more affordable and livable for everyone, including seniors and our young people. But at the same time, he understands the benefits of suburbia and combines his vision for the future with the heritage of our past.

Mr. Suozzi has demonstrated to all of us that governmental problems of our past do not need to be transferred to future generations. They can be resolved with logical and brave initiatives. On behalf of this Congress, and Nassau County, New York that I proudly represent. I congratulate Tom Suozzi on being named Public Official of the Year 2005.

Prime Minister Meles must now step aside and the international community must step forward to decide what to do about the stolen elections. This week thousands came out to protest in front of the White House. Today many Americans of Ethiopian origin are demonstrating at the State Department. Our Nation must support them and democracy in Africa. Continuing business as usual with Ethiopia is not the way to do so. It’s not the American way.

Let it be understood, America is on the side of the people struggling for an honest democratic government. The popular opposition to Ethiopia’s current corrupt regime is comparable to the Orange Revolution in Ukraine and the brave Lebanese demonstrators who removed the Syrian puppet regime in their country. Our State Department is often wrong and timid. In the case of Ethiopia, Americans clearly back democratic reform movement and that should be our government’s policy.

CONGRATULATING MOBILE COUNTY PUBLIC SCHOOLS SUPERINTENDENT HAROLD DODGE FOR BEING NAMED ALABAMA’S SUPERINTENDENT OF THE YEAR

HON. JO BONNER
OF ALABAMA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, November 9, 2005

Mr. BONNER. Mr. Speaker, it is with great pride and pleasure that I rise to honor Mobile County schools Superintendent Harold Dodge on the occasion of being named Alabama’s 2006 Superintendent of the Year. Dr. Dodge has been a distinguished member of the Mobile, AL, community and a tremendous advocate for the county school system. He came to Mobile in 1998 to be the superintendent of the Mobile County public school system, the State’s largest with over 65,000 students and 8,000 employees.

Under the leadership of Dr. Dodge, the Mobile County public school system has implemented a nationally recognized strategic plan that encourages sustained parental and community involvement while focusing on making children proficient in learning. His objectives for the next year include increasing the number of seniors who pass the High School Graduation Exam and increasing the number of Highly Qualified Teachers all while operating below budget projections. I have full confidence that these objectives will be met under the leadership of Dr. Dodge in 2006. During the last year, the Mobile County public school system received State and national attention for the transformation process of its five lowest-performing schools.

Mr. Speaker, there are few individuals more dedicated or more committed to our students than Harold Dodge, and I would like to offer my congratulations for being named Alabama’s 2006 Superintendent of the Year and for his many professional achievements. I know his wife, Jean, and his many family and friends join with me in praising his accomplishments and extending thanks for his many efforts on behalf of the students of Mobile County and the State of Alabama.

CONGRATULATING MOBILE COUNTY PUBLIC SCHOOLS SUPERINTENDENT HAROLD DODGE FOR BEING NAMED ALABAMA’S SUPERINTENDENT OF THE YEAR

HON. JOHN SHIMKUS
OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, November 9, 2005

Mr. SHIMKUS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to an outstanding group of young men from Central Illinois. The Glenwood High School boys soccer team from Chatham, Illinois, won the Class AA state championship on November 5, with a 2 to 1 win over Rockford Boylan. This win followed a thrilling, double-overtime semifinal win, and continues a 19-game winning streak for the Titans, who finished the year with a record of 26-1.

Mr. Speaker, I want to congratulate Head Coach Jay Lipe, who also achieved his 100th career victory this season, and assistant coaches Greg Lipe, Tom Johnson and B.J. Moore on a truly outstanding season. Most of all, I want to recognize the members of the 2005 state champion Chatham Glenwood Titans soccer team: Brandon Lex, Trevor Noonan, Tim Johnson, James Dice, Jaron Stretch, Neil Wilmarth, Ryan South, Paul Hummel, Derek Schislon, Bryan Curry, Blair Spencer, Hunter Schad, Dennis Mclhaney, Blake Vorreyer, Dan Short, Brett Dickson, Paul South, Dominick Traina, Kevin Hopkins, Bobak Hadidi, Trevor Kohirus and Dustin Curits.

These young men did an exceptional job of representing themselves, their school and their community, and I wish them best of luck in all of their future endeavors.

INTRODUCTION OF THE “WINDFALL PROFITS AND CONSUMER ASSISTANCE ACT OF 2005”

HON. EDWARD J. MARKEY OF MASSACHUSETTS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, November 9, 2005

Mr. MARKEY. Mr. Speaker, in the coming weeks, Democrats will be laying out a comprehensive energy strategy and a vision for America’s energy future. Today, Representative Rahm Emanuel and I are beginning that process by introducing a bill that would impose a windfall profits tax on the oil industry. The Windfall Profits and Consumer Assistance Act of 2005 would impose a windfall profits tax on oil companies on oil sold above $40 a barrel. Our bill would then use half of the revenue generated by this tax to fund a tax rebate for all American consumers to help them deal with their high gas and energy costs. Our bill would use the other half of the tax revenue to supplement funding for the Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program that helps poor families and seniors of fixed incomes pay their energy bills.

Now, more than ever, huge sums of money are gushing into the pockets of the oil and gas industry. Exxon and Shell recently reported third quarter profits that were $2 and $3 billion more than the greatest quarterly profits we have ever seen, from any company, in the history of the world. These historic profits are coming as the result of oil prices that are currently around $60 a barrel and have recently been near $70 a barrel.

Meanwhile, American consumers are facing astronomical prices at the pump and with winter coming, an impending home heating crisis. According to projections in the Energy Information Administration’s recently released “Short-Term Energy Outlook and Winter Fuels Outlook,” home heating oil prices are likely to be 31.5 percent higher than they were last year. This increase translates into an average consumer expenditure of $1,577—an increase of $378 over last winter. Moreover, last year only 15.6 percent of households eligible for the Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program nationwide were served. We can and must do better in addressing the additional burden that both average consumers and low-income consumers will face as a result of the current price increases.

Our bill would take a portion of the historic high profits that oil companies are making and use it to help the millions of American consumers who are bearing the brunt of high energy costs. Our bill will help reverse the Bush Administration’s policy to “Leave No Oil Company Behind” and would provide relief to American consumers who are paying the price for the Republican Party’s energy mistakes.

that the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD show that had I been present, I would have voted “yea” on H. Con. TRIBUTE TO THE LIFE OF SISTER ANNE LOUISE STOEZEL

HON. MARCY KAPTUR OF OHIO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, November 9, 2005

Ms. KAPTUR. Mr. Speaker, it is with a sense of deep gratitude and sorrow that I rise to pay tribute to the life of Sister Anne Louise Stoezel, an Ursuline sister of Toledo, Ohio who passed from this life on Nov. 19. Sister Anne Louise dedicated her life to the education of young women and men, and helped build St. Ursula Academy in our community into a premier institution of advanced learning at the elementary and high school level. She tutored students even into her 80’s and remained a smiling and vibrant presence to all who knew her.

Sister Anne Louise took on the task of moderating the school’s large, and growing alumnae association for 30 years, no small task, after having taught mathematics for two decades. In 1990, she received the Alumna of the Year Award and was sought out and loved by the school’s graduates. She remembered them, followed their lives, amazingly, kept in touch with thousands of girls, their families, and their lives.

She was an avid fan of St. Ursula sports teams and a regular attendee at games as St. Ursula’s winning teams rose to fame locally and statewide. She rooted on the bench with brother-in-law, Carl Trompeter, said. She was a strict teacher, Sister Kathleen Padden said. “As a tutor, she taught not only the girls from the academy, but boys from St. Francis [de Sales High School] and students from the public schools whose mothers might have been alumnas.”

She was a strict teacher, “but an excellent teacher,” said Fran Sears, whose daughter, Ellen, was a student of Sister Anne Louise’s. “She knew and understood math perfectly,” Mrs. Sears said.

Sister Anne Louise was moderator of the St. Ursula Alumni Association from 1973-2001 and was moderator emerita afterward. She received the Alumna of the Year Award in 1990.

Not only was she a regular at St. Ursula reunions, she kept in touch with alumnas and followed the events of their lives.

“She knew all the grads, all the alumnas. She knew their families and their daughters and granddaughters and great-granddaughters. You mentioned somebody, she could tell you about her.”

Sister Anne Louise was a fan of St. Ursula sports teams and followed local high school sports, Mrs. Sears said.

She was born Marie Kathryn Stoelzel and grew up in the Old West End. She was a parishioner of Rosary Cathedral when she entered the Ursuline Sisters Retirement Fund.

Sister Anne Louise received bachelor of arts and bachelor of science in education degrees from the former Mary Manse College. She received a master’s degree from Catholic University of America in Washington.

She was awarded National Science Foundation grants to pursue her post-graduate education during summer breaks. Her studies took her to the University of Notre Dame, St. Louis University, Depauw University, Bowling Green State University, the University of Toledo, and Ohio State University.

Sister Anne Louise previously taught at the elementary schools of St. Teresa and St. Thomas Aquinas in Toledo and at Lima, Ohio, Central Catholic High School.

She and her sister, Gertrude Trompeter, were close, and she visited the Trompeter home on holidays and other occasions, her brother-in-law, Carl Trompeter, said. She also took a keen interest in her four nephews—they called her Aunt Marie—and their families.

Her sister died Nov. 19, 2003.

There are no immediate survivors.

Visitations will begin at 3 p.m. today in the Ursuline Center, where there will be a vigil service at 7 tonight. Funeral services will be at 10 a.m. tomorrow in the Ursuline Center. Arrangements are by the Coyle Funeral Home.

It is suggested that tributes be to the Ursuline Sisters Retirement Fund.

THE HIPAA RECREATIONAL INJURY TECHNICAL CORRECTION ACT OF 2005

HON. MARK UDALL OF COLORADO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, November 9, 2005

Mr. UDALL of Colorado. Mr. Speaker, today I am introducing the Health Care Parity for Participation in Legal Transportation and Recreational Activities Act. This bill would protect those individuals who participate in legal recreational activities from being discriminated against by their employers for health insurance purposes.

In 1996, Congress passed and the President signed into law the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act (HIPAA). This legislation was enacted so that employees could continue health care coverage if they switched jobs and so that employees would not be denied health care coverage based on a pre-existing medical condition or participation in legal recreational activities.

On January 5, 2001, the Center for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS) released a Final Rule for Nondiscrimination in Health Coverage in a Group Market, which was required under HIPAA. Under the rule, employers are prohibited from basing employee coverage based simply on an employee’s participation in a legal recreational activity, such as motorcycling, skiing, snowmobiling, horseback riding and all-terrain vehicle riding. However, CMS, in its interpretation of the word “participation” effectively legalized the denial of benefits for any injuries sustained while participating in these activities. Clearly, Congress did not include specific language in HIPAA to provide coverage for employees who participate in these activities, only to be denied coverage in the event they sustain an injury. The rule is contrary to the intent of Congress and should be corrected.

In 2001, I joined with several of my House colleagues in sending a letter to HHS Secretary Tommy Thompson asking him to reverse the CMS ruling, but he said it would take an act of Congress. I cosponsored legislation that addressed this issue in the 108th Congress. There is legislation that has been introduced in the 109th Congress, but that bill excludes individuals who participate in skiing and snowboarding. That excludes a large number of people in my district and throughout the country who are winter sports enthusiasts, and I think it’s critical that they be covered for any injuries they sustain from participating in winter sports.

Mr. Speaker, this bill, which is identical to legislation introduced by Senator Susan Collins, is about fairness in health coverage for the millions of Americans who enjoy skiing, motorcycle riding, horseback riding, ORV riding, or any other legal recreational activity. It also further clarifies Congress’ intent when it passed this landmark law, which has helped so many Americans keep or obtain health insurance. I look forward to working with my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to pass this important legislation.
INTRODUCTION OF HIS PRIVATE BILL FOR THE RELIEF OF JUDITH TANJOH AND HER CHILDREN SERGE, MARINE, EMMANUEL AND ROGER TIKUM

HON. CHRIST VAN HOLLEN
OF MARYLAND
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, November 9, 2005

Mr. VAN HOLLEN. Mr. Speaker, today I have introduced a bill for the relief of Judith Tanjoh and her children Serge, Marie, Emmanuel and Roger Tikum.

This family last entered the United States in 1988 in A-2 diplomatic status from the Republic of Cameroon when the now deceased husband of Judith Tanjoh was attached to the Cameroon Embassy. For the next several years the family lived in lawful status in the U.S. through December 31, 1997 when the husband was recalled to the Cameroon because of Judith’s political activities against the Cameroon government.

Cameroon has been found by the U.S. State Department’s Country Reports on Human Rights Practices to possess a “poor human rights record”, continuing to commit “numerous serious abuses”. After her husband’s recall, Judith decided to file for asylum. However, her application was denied by the INS Asylum Office, the Immigration Judge on December 31, 1997 when the now deceased husband of Judith Tanjoh was attached to the Cameroon Embassy. For the next several years the family lived in lawful status in the U.S. through December 31, 1997 when the husband was recalled to the Cameroon because of Judith’s political activities against the Cameroon government.

Cameroon has been found by the U.S. State Department’s Country Reports on Human Rights Practices to possess a “poor human rights record”, continuing to commit “numerous serious abuses”. After her husband’s recall, Judith decided to file for asylum. However, her application was denied by the INS Asylum Office, the Immigration Judge on December 31, 1997 when the now deceased husband of Judith Tanjoh was attached to the Cameroon Embassy. For the next several years the family lived in lawful status in the U.S. through December 31, 1997 when the husband was recalled to the Cameroon because of Judith’s political activities against the Cameroon government.

The Tanjoh/Tikum family are not criminals. They are not terrorists. The children fear being uprooted from their true home in the U.S. and forced to live in a human rights abusive country which they do not know and whose predominant language they do not speak.

Yet, the INS Government Attorneys have coldly rejected each of the family’s statutory and regulatory rights. First, by insisting that the harsher “exceptional and compelling circumstances” standard applies and that their circumstances were neither exceptional nor compelling. Second, by stating that the family was not statutorily eligible for permanent residence because they overstayed the Board of Immigration Appeals’ December 17, 2002 Order granting a 30-day voluntary departure period even though the INS has never responded to the extension requests and even though the family timely pursued their Request for Review rights to the 4th Circuit which only enforced the Board’s Order on November 10, 2003.

Therefore, today I have introduced a Private Bill that will enable Judith Tanjoh and the Tikum children to obtain permanent residency. I hope my action today will help bring this heartbreaking story to a close.

CONGRATULATIONS TO GOVERNOR ED RENDELL AND CONGRESSMAN BOB BRADY

HON. JOHN P. MURTHA
OF PENNSYLVANIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, November 9, 2005

Mr. MURTHA. Mr. Speaker, I want to commend Governor Ed Rendell and Congressman Bob Brady of Pennsylvania for their key roles in facilitating successful contract negotiations between the Southeastern Pennsylvania Transportation Authority (SEPTA) and the labor union.

The following article, “The Pair Who Powered the SEPTA Deal,” illustrates Governor Rendell’s and Congressman Brady’s skillful and active leadership in resolving the issues between the parties. They saw a large problem facing the region and without hesitation waded in, rolled up their sleeves, and brought everyone together. I believe their hands-on approach and the confidence that both sides placed in their ability to handle the issues fairly serves as an excellent reminder of the kind of dedicated public service everyone looks for in their elected leaders.

[From the Philadelphia Inquirer, Nov. 8, 2005]

THE PAIR WHO POWERED THE SEPTA DEAL

(By Larry King and Marcia Gelbart)

At 3:45 a.m. yesterday, he paced alone on an empty, shadowed sidewalk at Broad and Walnut Streets. He was not part of the SEPTA contract negotiations taking place above him on the 11th floor of the Bellevue in Center City. But he looked like an anxious mother hen, neither ever far from them.

A passerby recognized the barrel-chested figure in the dark-blue warm-up suit, a thatch of gray curls atop his head.

Congressman Brady?
“Yeah, how you doin’?” came the familiar gruff voice.

Any news? “They’re done.”

Done? When? “About 10 minutes ago.”

Two hours before Gov. Rendell emerged with union and SEPTA leaders to announce the deal that ended the region’s transit strike. Together, the governor and U.S. Rep. Patrick J. Brady (D., Phila.) were called prime catalysts in events leading to the proposed settlement.

The worked like this: Rendell relied on his power over the state-created agency, and Brady relied on his patience to deal with the personalities of its managers and union leaders.

As for other officials, State Sen. Vincent J. Fumo (D., Phila.) was around but talking mostly through the ear of Brady. House Speaker John Perzel (R., Phila.) met to jump in today, at a scheduled meeting at the Holiday Inn City Line, with SEPTA board chairman Pasquale T. “Pat” Dean.

And Mayor Street played a low-key role. He met with union leaders for five hours on Friday, phoned Deon later that day, and then made at least two calls to the governor late Sunday.

While Street was limited by strained ties with Harrisburg lawmakers, Rendell had “no choice” but to wade in, said J. Whyatt Mondesire, president of the Philadelphia chapter of the NAACP.

Rendell “could not have an election campaign going up after the holidays, and a bitter public-transit strike in his backyard,” he said.

And Brady, Mondesire said, was “a natural bridge.” He talks a straight working-man’s kind of language ... and because he has political connections, the SEPTA people listen to him.

All involved with the negotiations said Brady—a labor leader from the carpenters’ union and a peacemaker with a long record of settling feuds as a longtime head of the city’s Democratic Party—cajoled them to talk, to keep talking, to talk until their minds could meet.

Brady “was very instrumental in this,” said Jeffrey Brooks, president of Transport Workers Union Local 234.

Brady, of course, demurred—just as he did seven years ago at the end of the last SEPTA strike. Three days of filming a news conference to announce a deal he helped broker to end that 40-day walkout.

“I just keep ‘em talking, that’s all,” he said in a monitor room. They don’t kill three days. This morning I met with the governor and Jeff at 8. They agreed to try and kick-start this thing back again. I told them, ‘if you do, please don’t stop until it’s over. It’s got to be done sooner or later, so why not do it sooner instead of later?’

Rendell was the first politician to visibly inspect himself into the negotiations, turning up late Tuesday as the contract negotiations briefly resumed at the Crowne Plaza hotel.

Rendell was the hands-on deal maker. He spoke first from Harrisburg on Thursday, warning both sides that the strike was “killing” chances of getting the dedicated source of state funding that the perennially strapped SEPTA so sorely needs.

And once in town, he said, he made a point of sitting down with Brooks and assuring him that SEPTA’s pot of money for crafting a deal was finite—that it was all a matter of slicing it fairly.

That was the point made at a noon meeting on Sunday, where Brooks made his case to 50 or so mostly elected officials whom Brady assembled at the Democratic City Committee headquarters.

“That’s one thing we made clear to both sides,” Rendell said. “If the strike goes on too much longer, or if the settlement is not seen as affordable, then that seriously decreases our chances of giving dedicated funding.”

City Councilman Michael A. Nutter said, “That meeting was certainly a part of what led to the contract.”

All week long, Brady had been calling Brooks two or three times a day. Now, in what would be the final moments, Rendell and his staff stuck side by side with SEPTA’s chief labor negotiator, Patrick Battel, from “basically 9 a.m. until Sunday when we signed the memorandum of agreement at 5:30 a.m.” according to Battel. The governor, he said, “is a skilled mediator and a skilled politician.”

“To be sure, there were other factors.

“Looming in people’s minds was the 40-day strike,” said State Rep. Dwight Evans (D., Phila.). “People knew they could not afford to do that.”

There was also, he said, the uncertain fate of SEPTA’s financial future.

“Rendell’s message was ‘there is not going to be any new money,’ and that is the same message Perzel and I were putting together as legislative leaders,” Evans said.

As it turned out, that message was no longer needed.

LEGAL SERVICES OF NORTHERN VIRGINIA: CELEBRATING 25 YEARS OF SERVICE

HON. JAMES P. MORAN OF VIRGINIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, November 9, 2005

Mr. MORAN of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I rise to honor a commendable and worthwhile non-profit organization which operates in my congressional district, the Legal Services of Northern Virginia.

Legal Services of Northern Virginia (LSNV) is celebrating its 25th year of providing free legal assistance and representation to those in our society who are unable to secure it on their own. The founders and staff of this invaluable entity have dedicated their time and energy to give voice to those often go unheard.

The mission of Legal Services is to provide necessary legal assistance to low income individuals and families. The organization assists its clients on a wide range of issues including family law, consumer protections, housing, employment, and access to health care.

Through the work of LSNV, thousands of eligible residents in Northern Virginia have gained access to health care; moved into affordable housing, received over due child support payments to care for their children, and achieved citizenship in our great country.

Legal Services of Northern Virginia is an example of a great equalizer in our society. Without its extraordinary work and commitment of its staff, conscientious instructions and assistance, thousands of residents in Northern Virginia would not be able to pursue their legal rights and responsibilities.

Over the course of 25 years, LSNV has made sure that rights are more than theoretical concepts. It has worked to ensure that our laws and legal protections apply to all men and women equally, without regard to race, religion, or income level.

I am proud to stand before you today, in the House of the people, to recognize the great accomplishments of Legal Services of Northern Virginia.

APPOINTMENT OF MR. BILL JANIS AS A FELLOW TO NORTH-WESTERN MICHIGAN COLLEGE

HON. BART STUPAK OF MICHIGAN
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, November 9, 2005

Mr. STUPAK. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to an outstanding member of the Traverse City, Michigan community, Mr. William G. Janis. On September 23, Mr. Janis was appointed a Fellow to Northwestern Michigan College. Mr. Janis’ service to Northwestern Michigan College (NMC) stands as a shining example to us all.

Mr. Janis’ service to NMC spans a wide range of roles including that of member and officer of the Board of Trustees; as a passionate leader and supporter in helping establish the Michigan Technical Education Center and as a life-long philanthropist whose efforts have helped establish the University Center, Dennos Museum Center, M–TEC and the Great Lakes Campus.

Born to George and Mary Janis in 1943, Mr. Janis is the oldest child in the Janis family. He attended school in Grosse Isle, Michigan and graduated from Grosse Isle High School in 1961. After graduation, he went on to serve his country in the United States Marine Corps. Upon being honorably discharged from the military, he continued his education at Michigan State University where Mr. Janis graduated with a Bachelor of Arts Degree in 1970.

Upon graduating from Michigan State, Mr. Janis took a job with Century, Inc. in Wyandotte, Michigan. He worked in Wyandotte until he and seven employees moved the business to Traverse City, Michigan in 1974. Today, Mr. Janis is the owner and President of Century, a business which employs two-hundred and eighty workers.

In 1961, Bill Janis and Susie Kildee exchanged marriage vows. Together, with their children from previous marriages, Eddie and Julie, they became a family. Bill and Susie Janis still reside in Traverse City where Mrs. Janis serves on a number of community boards and charities. Mr. Janis is an active member of the Munson Hospital Board, the Knife and Fork Club, and a Board Member of Huntington National Bank. In addition, Mr. Janis is also the owner of Leorie Vineyards in Traverse City and a partner in Black Star Farm’s Winery.

Aside from his many business ventures, Mr. Janis remains an active member of the Detroit Men’s Club and is an honorary member of the Michigan State Varsity Athletic Club. Mr. Janis is also an avid golfer with memberships to some of the country’s most prestigious golf clubs including The Bear in North Palm Beach, Florida; Hobe Sound in Hobe Sound, Florida; The Medalist in Marshall, Michigan; and the Grand Traverse Resort in Acme, Michigan.

Mr. Speaker, I ask the U.S. House of Representatives to join me in recognizing Mr. Bill Janis for being named a Fellow to Northwestern Michigan College and for his tireless service to the college and the organizations he provides with dedicated leadership. Beyond his incredible credentials, leadership roles and accomplishments that span his lifetime. Mr. Janis has shown unwavering commitment to the people he has known throughout that time.

Mr. Janis is an example of true American ingenuity and a person who continues to generously give of his time to serve the ideals he values most: his family, his work and his community. We in northern Michigan and those throughout America who have benefited greatly from his work and contributions thank him for his efforts.

CONGRATULATIONS TO COLONEL JAMES KELLY, THE UNIVERSITY OF ALABAMA’S FIRST ASTRONAUT AND PILOT OF THE SPACE SHUTTLE “DISCOVERY” RETURN TO MISSION FLIGHT

HON. JO BONNER
OF ALABAMA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Mr. BONNER. Mr. Speaker, it is with great pride and pleasure that I rise to honor and congratulate Colonel James Kelly, the pilot of the recent space shuttle Discovery Return to Flight Mission and the University of Alabama’s first astronaut.

Colonel Kelly earned his master of science in aerospace engineering from the University of Alabama in 1996. That same year, he applied for NASA’s astronaut class. Colonel Kelly was one of 44 members and one of only 10 pilots selected out of 2,400 applicants.

Colonel Kelly has logged over 3,800 flight hours in more than 35 different aircraft. Additionally, he has logged over 643 hours in space. He served as pilot on both the STS–102 Discovery and the STS–114 Discovery. The STS–102 Discovery was the eighth shuttle mission to visit the International Space Station. The two-week, 5.8 million mile STS–114 Discovery Return to Flight Mission reaffirmed our confidence in NASA and America’s successful future in space.

Mr. Speaker, I take this opportunity to commend Colonel James Kelly for his commitment to excellence and his willingness to explore. I thank him for his dedication and brave service to this country.

THE HEALTH FREEDOM PROTECTION ACT

HON. RON PAUL OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Mr. PAUL. Mr. Speaker, I rise to introduce the Health Freedom Protection Act. This bill restores the First Amendment rights of consumers to receive truthful information regarding the benefits of foods and dietary supplements by codifying the First Amendment standards used by federal courts to strike unconstitutional speech from the marketplace.

The Health Freedom Protection Act also stops the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) from censoring truthful health care claims.

The American people have made it clear they do not want the federal government to interfere with their access to dietary supplements, yet the FDA and the FTC continue to engage in heavy-handed attempts to restrict such access. The FDA continues to frustrate consumers’ efforts to learn how they can improve their health even after Congress, responding to a record number of constituent comments, passed the Dietary Supplement and Health Education Act of 1994 (DSHEA). FDA bureaucrats have decided to frustrate consumers’ access to truthful information that they are even evading their duty to comply with.

The FDA, the federal government agency responsible for ensuring that people have access to the health benefits of foods and dietary supplements, has been censuring consumers’ First Amendment rights to discover the health benefits of foods and dietary supplements.

FDA bureaucrats have even refused to abide by the DSHEA section allowing the publication of scientifically accurate and peer-reviewed articles and publications regarding the role of nutrients in protecting against diseases by claiming that every article concerning this topic is evidence of intent to sell a drug.

Because of the FDA’s censorship of truthful health claims, millions of Americans may suffer with diseases and other health care problems they may have avoided by using dietary supplements. For example, the FDA prohibited consumers from learning how folic acid reduces the risk of neural-tube defects for 4 years after the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention recommended every woman of childbearing age take folic acid supplements to reduce neural tube defects. This FDA action contributed to an estimated 10,000 cases of preventable neural-tube defects.

The FDA also continues to prohibit consumers from learning about the scientific evidence that glucosamine and chondroitin sulfates are effective in the treatment of osteoarthritis; that omega-3 fatty acids may reduce the risk of sudden death heart attack; and that calcium may reduce the risk of bone fractures.

The Health Freedom Protection Act will force the FDA to at least comply with the commands of Congress, the First Amendment, and the American public by codifying the First Amendment standards adopted by the federal courts. Specifically, the Health Freedom Protection Act stops the FDA from censoring truthful claims about the curative, mitigative, or preventative effects of dietary supplements, and adopts the court’s suggested use of disclaimers as an alternative to censorship. The Health Freedom Protection Act also stops the FDA from prohibiting the distribution of scientific articles and publications regarding the role of nutrients in protecting against disease.

This legislation also addresses the FTC’s violations of the First Amendment. Under traditional First Amendment jurisprudence, the federal government bears the burden of proving an advertising statement false before censoring that statement. However, the FTC has reversed the standard in the case of dietary supplements by requiring supplement manufacturers to satisfy an unobtainable standard of proof that their statement is true. The FTC’s standards are blocking innovation in the marketplace.

The Health Freedom Protection Act requires the government bear the burden of proving that speech could be censored. This is how it should be in a free, dynamic society. The bill also requires that the FTC warn parties that their advertising is false and give them a chance to correct their mistakes.

Mr. Speaker, if we are serious about putting people in charge of their health care, then we should stop federal bureaucrats from preventing Americans from learning about simple ways to improve their health. I therefore call on my colleagues to stand up for good health care and the First Amendment by co-sponsoring the Health Freedom Protection Act.

TED KOPPEL: HE KNOWS THE BURDEN OF THE IRAQ WAR MUST BE SHARED

HON. CHARLES B. RANGEL
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, November 9, 2005

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I rise to appreciate the career and character of Ted Koppel, who is retiring after 25 years as a stalwart and honest news reporter on the show “Nightline.”

Upon his retirement, he expressed some thoughts in the November 8, 2005 issue of the Washington Post. I applauded him then and I applaud him now for showing the photographs and naming the fallen in Afghanistan and Iraq on his show when others called him unpatriotic for that act to honor those killed in Afghanistan and Iraq.

Ted Koppel put it this way: “You don’t fight a war and allow just a tiny fraction of the population to carry the burden. It’s hard to make a case that the rest of us are sharing the burden of being at war when our taxes have been cut, not increased. There are no victory gardens. No one is being asked to do anything.”

I applaud him then and I applaud him now for showing the photographs and naming the fallen in Afghanistan and Iraq. This is a topic I have brought up again and again. One tiny fraction of this nation bears the entire burden of this war, and Ted Koppel put it this way: “You don’t fight a war and allow just a tiny fraction of the population to carry the burden.”

Ted, thank you. You have done a wonderful job for 25 years. Your honest reporting will be missed.

[From the Washington Post, Nov. 8, 2005]

HIS NIGHT IN THE SUN

AFTER 25 YEARS, TED KOPPEL IS LEAVING THE SHOW THAT DID IT HIS WAY

(By Howard Kurtz)

Given all the heat Ted Koppel took last year for reading the names of the hundreds of Americans killed in Iraq, he could be forgiven for claiming vindication over the huge coverage when the death toll hit 2,000 late last month.

The “Nightline” anchor believes a meaningless milestone was overplayed by the media—and is happy to tell you why.

“If the administration really did what it ought to be doing, they—all the people in charge of the war—shouldn’t have to worry. If the administration was doing its job, everyone would understand the sacrifice of 2,000, or even 20,000, lives is essential,” he says. “My complaint is that the administration has done a poor job of explaining why we’re in Iraq. You don’t fight a war and allow just a tiny fraction of the population to carry the burden. It’s hard to make a case that the rest of us are sharing in the burden of being at war when our taxes have been cut, not increased. There are no victory gardens. No one is being asked to do anything, really. That’s why I thought it was important to show all those photographs and read all those names.”
It is classic Koppel: tough-minded, eloquent, focused on world affairs and sometimes, it seems, conducting his own foreign policy. As he prepares to relinquish the helm of Nightline, he launched 3 years ago, when his focus was entirely on Iran and the Americans held hostage there, it is hard to avoid the end-of-an-era language that followed. of Tom Brokaw and Dan Rather and the death of Peter Jennings.

“This is easily perceived as the fourth 20-year-plus anchor stepping aside, and that’s not their fault,” says Executive Producer Tom Bettag, who plans to launch a reporting venture with Koppel after they leave ABC. Perhaps their greatest accomplishment, Bettag says, is that they will continue Koppel’s last night, Nov. 22, with an anchor triumvirate of Cynthia McFadden, Terry Moran and Martin Bashir. “A number of people said once Ted goes, there goes Nightline.’’

One thing that will be lost with the new incarnation’s wide-ranging format is what Koppel, 65, always has boasted about: an in-depth look at one subject each night. Does that bother him? “I don’t want to begin by prejudging what’s going to be done because it may be terrific,’’ he says. “I don’t want this to be interpreted as Ted saying the new approach ain’t going to work.”

Koppel resigned in March after ABC News President David Westin decided he wanted “Nightline’’—the ratings of which have been slipping in recent years—to be live. Koppel had not desired to work such a schedule, and always has argued that the program is live when it needs to be live and otherwise there is no point in having guest-hosts all evening.

“At some point, it would probably be time to pull out anyway,’’ says Koppel, who served notice five years ago that he and Bettag would give themselves something to do. Gradually, Koppel had hoped that Chris Bury would succeed him as anchor—Bury and John Donvan will remain as correspondents, most likely joined by Vicki Mahrey from CBS—and that former producer Leroy Siev would replace Bettag. But management, which hired British journalist James Goldston to run the program, had other ideas.

“Is their broadcast in the final analysis...’” says Koppel. “Don’t make the program as attractive to the audience as we could possibly make it, but there are limits. You don’t bring in the dancing girls.”

That’s not an entirely frivolous comment, given that Koppel’s competition includes Jay Leno and David Letterman. In fact, ABC tried to junk the show three years ago by luring Letterman from CBS. Koppel fought back, criticizing ABC and parent company Disney in a New York Times op-ed.

“I never questioned the corporation’s right to do that,’’ he says. “This is an industry, it’s a business. We exist to make money. We exist to put commercials on the air. The program would have been. But if Koppel and the commercials are simply the bait we put in the mousetrap.”

“It is true that David Letterman can draw a lot more viewers than ‘Nightline’ and Ted Koppel, if you can make an extra $30 million or $50 million a year, I absolutely understand that’s going to be done, because the fiduciary obligation to do that. I just don’t think they did it the best way in terms of the handling of it. We were among the last to learn about it. You just don’t move people who have worked hard for you for a long time.”

In his 42 years at ABC, and especially in his quarter-century at Nightline, Koppel seemingly has conducted every kind of interview. He’s talked to Nelson Mandela and Muhammed Ali, Larry Flynt and Ginger Rogers, Chuck D and Buz Aldrin. He famously quizzed Gary Hart about adultery, told Michael Dukakis he just didn’t get it and swatted down his racial views of baseball executive Al Campanis, who lost his job over the interview.

He also has reported from around the world—a foray to South Africa in the 1980s made news worldwide—and, more recently, covered the 2003 Iraq war amid the tanks in the desert. Just last month Nightline’s sister show on Zimbabwe ruler Robert Mugabe’s devastating impact on his country—not the sort of thing other programs are clamoring to cover.

Television executives, Koppel says, “live under the misapprehension that Americans don’t care about foreign news. They don’t get it and they don’t want it. If you present it in a boring fashion, then they don’t care about foreign news. What really dictates here is the cost of foreign news. At a time that we really have to worry about what’s going on in the rest of the world, what people in other countries think of us, we are less well informed by television news than we have been in many years.

“If the only time you cover foreign news is when you send someone, every foreign story is going to come home to you when you do it and likely to be less well informed than in the days when you had people who lived in the country for two, three, five, 10 years and understood the country.”

In a been-there-done-that media culture, Koppel relished the idea of returning to his signature issues again and again: the Middle East, South Africa, AIDS, racism, crime and punishment. Asked whether evening newscasts do the same thing, he says: “There’s a huge difference between coming back to a story and devoting 2½ minutes to it, and the next time 1:45, and what we have done when we focused on an issue for two, three or four programs. To bring to bear the different places as Congo—which Koppel says has “an inivable war which barely exists even in newspapers’’—boosted the ratings and burnedish the program’s reputation. “But it’s a very expensive thing to do and it’s also thoroughly exhausting.”

Koppel relishes the contrarian role. In 1996 he created a major stir by packing up and leaving the Republican National Convention in San Diego, saying no news was being committed there. When pressed, he says, “guess what? Everyone’s come to the conclusion that conventions really aren’t worth covering, except on cable.”

Last week Koppel committed news himself when he appeared to endorse Charlie Gibson, the “Good Morning America” co-host who has been doing part-time duty on the evening news, as ABC’s next anchor. Koppel says he was just responding to a specific question about Gibson from a TV Guide reporter.

“I do think Charlie Gibson would make an absolutely splendid anchor,’’ he says. But noting the rise of “GMA” under Gibson and Diane Sawyer, he adds: “You have to ask, is it possible that if Gibson were able to do full-time morning shows are moneymaking machines. Changing such a successful equation could cost you tens of millions of dollars.”

Koppel and Bettag say they will not make a deal with another media outlet until their departure—although they have had talks with HBO. Right after they depart, there is a vacuum in long-form reporting that they intend to fill. Still, they are leaving a very big stage.

“You can’t help but have mixed feelings,’’ Bettag says. “Trying to wear yourself away from the daily news adrenaline is no small thing. But this is something we’ve planned for a very long time. Ted is very much at peace with it.”

Koppel plans to take a few months off, but “I’m not going to slide into semi-retiremment,” he says. “Nothing lights my fire more than a big story out there and going out to cover it.”

TRIBUTE TO ALAN A. REICH

HON. TOM LANTOS
OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, November 9, 2005

Mr. LANTOS. Mr. Speaker, it is with a heavy heart that I announce to my colleagues in the House the sad news of the passing of one of our Nation’s great leaders for rights of the disabled, my friend Alan A. Reich. I offer our heartfelt condolences to his family and friends.

Mr. Speaker, my wife Annette and I consider ourselves blessed to count Alan among our good friends. He inspired both of us with his deep compassion, his energy and humor, as well as his determination to overcome obstacles no matter how insurmountable they appear. Alan was a true American visionary, a person who never let circumstance define or defy him. This perspective enabled him to implement a new understanding of disability rights and human rights, which included both and united them.

Mr. Speaker, only a few months ago, I informed my colleagues that Alan had retired as President of the National Organization for Disability (N.O.D.), which he founded. For the past 23 years, he provided extraordinary leadership as the head of N.O.D., one of the leading organizations promoting the understanding and acceptance of disability rights in the United States and around the world. Alan Reich was an outstanding human rights and disability rights leader, whose courageous work has had an impact on people with disabilities around the world.

In recognition of his leadership, President George H.W. Bush awarded Alan the George Bush Medal, an award that recognizes leaders in the fight to fulfill the promise of the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA). Alan certainly accomplished the ambitious goals of the ADA, and I cannot imagine a more fitting recipient of this award. In commenting on Alan’s extraordinary leadership, former President Bush said: “As the Honorary Chairman of N.O.D. and its World Committee, I’ve observed first-hand Alan’s tenacious commitment to providing hope and opportunity for millions of people with disabilities, not only in this country but also worldwide.”

Mr. Speaker, Alan Reich joined the disability community over 40 years ago as a result of a swimming accident, and he has used a wheelchair since that time, but he refused to permit his disability to constrain his boundless energy and commitment to worthy causes. Alan has been at the center of progress on disability issues, including public awareness, disability programs and promoting important legislation, and he has made significant contributions toward unifying and engaging the community of people with disabilities. His outstanding abilities to move disability rights issues forward first became apparent as the founder of the U.S. Council for the International Year of Disabled Persons in 1981. He was the first wheelchair user to address the United Nations General Assembly when he called on the international organization to declare 1981 the U.N. International Year of Disabled Persons.
While President of N.O.D., Alan built the coalition of disability groups that successfully fought for the inclusion of a statue of former United States President Franklin Delano Roosevelt in his wheelchair at the FDR Memorial in Washington, DC. He also spearheaded the critical survey resulting with Handicapped Poll Surveys which tracks the progress of Americans with disabilities in key areas of life.

In addition, Alan is the founder and Chairman of the World Committee on Disability, the international arm of N.O.D., which further underscores the worldwide reach of his contributions. Alan is also the author of the World Committee’s Franklin D. Roosevelt International Disability Award, which recognizes nations for progress toward the United Nations’ goals for disabled persons. I should add, Mr. Speaker, that my wife Annette and I are honored to be members of the World Committee on Disability.

A graduate of Dartmouth College, Alan has also had a distinguished career in both private business and government. Alan served as Deputy Assistant Secretary of State for Educational and Cultural Affairs. In this position, he developed international exchange programs to further mutual understanding. He also served as Deputy Assistant Secretary of Commerce for East-West Trade and Director of the Bureau of East-West Trade, where he was credited with the expansion of U.S. commercial relations with the People’s Republic of China, the Soviet Union and the countries of Eastern Europe. Prior to his outstanding career as a public servant, Alan was an executive in manufacturing management and corporate long-range planning with Polaroid Corporation.

Mr. Speaker, in many ways, Alan has changed the world’s attitude and approach to disability issues and made groundbreaking contributions to uniting the disability movement. Our entire Nation is profoundly saddened at the loss of this outstanding leader. We join in expressing our deep condolences to Alan’s family, and express our sincere gratitude for his outstanding achievements.

ABUSE OF PRESIDENTIAL POWER: THE WAR ON TORMURE

HON. CHARLES B. RANGEL
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, November 9, 2005

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to raise my voice against the use of torture by the United States of America against any human being for any reason. I believe torture in any form, including cruel and inhuman and degrading interrogation of human beings in the custody of the United States of America violates everything we stand for as Americans.

The Senate recently passed the McCain amendment to the annual appropriation bill by a vote of 90 to 9. The McCain amendment is very telling in terms of whether the United States has been battling terrorists or fighting the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan in lawful ways. The McCain amendment bans “cruel, inhuman, or degrading treatment or punishment of persons under the custody or control of the United States Government.” This amendment has passed the Senate twice; the first vote was 90 to 9. The second time it passed was after the disclosure of the secret CIA prisons. Senator McCain made a strong anti-torture speech. He said the CIA should not be running prisons. The second time the McCain amendment passed the Senate it did so by a voice vote.

I support the McCain amendment and will vote for it when it reaches the House of Representatives for a vote.

I find it unbelievable that the President in a speech today, November 8, 2005, in Panama City, Panama, stated: “We do not run torture prisons.” The evidence of torture in Abu Ghraib and the prison at Guantanamo Bay in Cuba has been documented by the International Committee of the Red Cross, Amnesty International, eyewitness testimony of American military officers and photo evidence of which the Department of Defense is still attempting to keep from the public.

This should not be shocking to me, but still it shocks. The statements of President Bush are a natural outgrowth of the unnatural power he was given by his lawyers and Justice Department lawyers because of their willingness to overlook or disregard the United States Constitution on the grounds that this war and this enemy was “special.” Congress was lied to, about the preemptive war; but Congress gave away its Constitutional Power under Article 1, Section 8 when it authorized the President to declare war, a power reserved solely to the Congress by the Constitution.

Less well known and just as ignored is that Article 1, Section 8 of the Constitution, gives Congress and only Congress the decision of how to treat prisoners. Just as the President declared a preemptive war on a country not involved in the attacks of 9/11, the President and Vice President decided how prisoners, even those “suspected” of being terrorists, were to be treated. This President has abused his power, ignored the Constitution and misled the American people.

The policies on treatment of prisoners which have included torture and interrogation techniques that are “cruel, inhuman, and degrading” were born with the Bush Administration. President Bush asked his Justice Department, then run by his trusted man of ideas named John Woo; his trusted Counsel, Alberto Gonzales who gave him the answers he liked when President Bush was Governor of Texas. President Bush asked these lawyers for guidance on whether the United States had to afford protections of the Geneva Accords to Taliban and al Qaeda prisoners. He also asked his civilian advisor in the Pentagon, Secretary Donald Rumsfeld, how far American military and intelligence personnel could go in questioning these prisoners. The answer from these civilians, as well as those who never served in the military, was the prisoners did not need to be afforded any of the protections of the Geneva Conventions. John Woo, who worked directly for John Ashcroft took the position that the President could do anything he wanted. This war was planned, and the one Alberto Gonzales passed on to the President.

Within the Bush administration, the advisor who knew the most about the military, Colin Powell was against these policies. President Bush decided the military advice was not what he wanted to hear or follow. The professional military people who disagreed with the “war president” found themselves silenced or “re-tired.”

On November 7, 2005, the Washington Post reported “Over the past year, Vice President Cheney has waged an intense and largely unpublicized campaign to stop Congress, the Pentagon and the State Department from imposing more restrictive rules on handling terrorist suspects.” Before the news of Vice President Cheney’s secret CIA prisons was disclosed by the Washington Post, Mr. Cheney had offered a “deal” to Senator McCain. He would stop opposing the McCain amendment and the amendment did not include the CIA from torturing non-Americans. Senator McCain considered Vice President Cheney’s threat of what we now know about America’s secret CIA prisons and Vice President Cheney’s in-sistence that the CIA should be exempt from any ban on torture, I am very concerned about what has happened and is still happening to prisoners in the custody of the CIA.

I doubt whether anyone who has experienced war would have to be convinced to support an anti-war amendment proposed by my noble friend John McCain, a veteran subjected to torture for more than five years in a Vietnamese prison. When I met with Vice President Cheney, a man who received five deferments during the Vietnam War, who has lobbied fiercely and shamelessly against the McCain amendment.

I take issue with President Bush that because we have an enemy he thinks “turks and plots and plans and want to hurt America again,” we can disregard the concerns of the human rights organizations, the European Union and the millions of Muslims who view Americans through the lens of Abu Ghraib, Guantanamo Bay and the Hooded Man attached to electric wires.

The practices approved by the President, the Vice President, Porter Goss and whom ever knew in the Senate and the House; anyone complicit in the torture of prisoners in the custody of the United States has shamed us all. Richard Cohen got it right when he said in an opinion piece in the Washington Post today entitled “Torture, Shaming Us All.” We in the United States not only have our torture and humiliating interrogation practices on the international front, but we have had for 200 years of U.S. principles. The real shame is that the President of the United States has threatened to use his veto for the first time if the McCain amendment comes to his desk as part of a big bill.

There are compelling reasons to support the McCain amendment. The first is that torture results in bad intelligence; second it endangers our troops; and third; it is causing us to lose the war of ideas. According to President Bush and his supporters in Congress, this war is about bringing democracy and freedom to Iraq. Muslims around the world see handcuffed naked men at Abu Ghraib and the orange jump suit hooded men of Guantanamo Bay, Cuba when they see the United States. This abuse of Muslims is what they see of “democracy” in American style.

The people throughout the world know that prisoners in the custody of the United States have been tortured even if President Bush denies it. As Richard Cohen points out, many countries torture prisoners but none admit to the practice. The United States has never had to worry about torture before because this country has never tortured prisoners as a matter of policy. The Uniform Code of Military Justice is clear about how prisoners in the custody of the United States should be treated. This country has signed the Geneva Conventions and in 1994 ratified the Convention Against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman, or Degrading Treatment or Punishment, which prohibits such treatment under all circumstances including “a state of war.” According to David Cole, the legal affairs correspondent of The Nation, the Bush Administration argued that the ban does not apply to foreign national being held and interrogated abroad. According to Mr. Cole, this interpretation runs against the central purpose of the Torture Convention, which is to protect all human beings, regardless of location and nationality.

Because of the Bush Administration and its abuse of power, we must, for the first time in our history, ban torture. And for the first time in our history, we have a President who is threatening to veto the ban and further shame us all.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I join the entire Nation in mourning the death of Ms. Rosa Parks. This humble woman showed how a single act, the refusal to give up her seat on a bus to a white man, could change the course of history. Her actions helped spark the civil rights movement, inspiring leaders like Martin Luther King Jr., and led to the Civil Rights Act of 1964.

Ms. Parks’ courage in an era marked by racial tension and hatred is still an example to us today. Indeed, we are all indebted to Ms. Parks for helping move this country toward one in which all men and women—black, Latino, Asian, Native American, white—can take their rightful place in society.

In recognition of a lifetime of achievement, Ms. Parks was awarded the Presidential Medal of Freedom in 1996 and the Congressional Gold Medal in 1999. She is also the first woman to serve in the U.S. Congress. In 2000, she was inducted into the Capitol Rotunda, which is a testament to her enormous impact on our Nation’s history.

Mr. Speaker, I join all Americans in mourning the passing of Ms. Rosa Parks. Though we are saddened by this loss, we are mindful of the fact that through her life she made our country a better place, and through her memory we will never forget the importance of justice and equality for all Americans.

Recognizing the 87th Anniversary of the Independence of the Republic of Poland

HON. RAHM EMANUEL
of Illinois
in the House of Representatives

Wednesday, November 9, 2005

Mr. EMANUEL. Mr. Speaker, on November 11, I will proudly join thousands of Polish Americans living in Chicago in celebrating the 87th anniversary of the Independence of the Republic of Poland.

Until Poland was recognized again as a sovereign nation, it struggled against tyranny, just as the United States did against colonial rule before our own independence was achieved. From the end of the 18th century until World War I, Poles were forced to live under the despotic rule of the Russian czars and Prussian and Austrian emperors. During the war, the Polish territory suffered under the heavy hand of Russian, German, and Austrian occupation. However, during World War I, Poles were gradually able to self-govern at local levels and established institutions, laying the groundwork for eventual independence.

Meanwhile, President Woodrow Wilson made the restoration of Polish independence one of his 14 conditions for peace. President Wilson was a friend of Ignacy Jan Paderewski, a famous Polish artist, composer, statesman and great patriot. As World War I drew to a close, Polish culture began to flourish again and self-governance was finally achieved when the first Polish government was established.

After 123 years of partitions and uprisings, Poland’s dream of independence was realized when it became a sovereign state again on November 11, 1918, as the Armistice ending World War I. With its long and rich history and traditions, Poland regained its rightful place among free and independent nations. Eighty-seven years later, we continue to celebrate Poland’s independence.

Mr. Speaker, 87 years after Poland regained independence, the Polish community in Chicago and throughout the United States has a strong voice in the affairs of the country.

On this day, I am proud to join the people of my district, as well as those of Polish descent around the globe, in celebrating the 87th Anniversary of Poland’s independence.

HON. CHRIS VAN HOLLEN
of Maryland
in the House of Representatives

Wednesday, November 9, 2005

Mr. VAN HOLLEN. Mr. Speaker, it is with great pleasure that I rise to commend John E. Taylor for his dedicated service to the National Archives. Mr. Taylor has worked for the National Archives since 1946. Throughout these years, Mr. Taylor has been recognized and honored by researchers worldwide for his extraordinary grasp of history and ability to locate pertinent documents.

Mr. Taylor specializes in World War II documents and records of the Office of Strategic Services. Mr. Taylor’s colleagues praise him as one of the most knowledgeable and generous archivists, known for his sound advice and resourceful assistance to authors, scholars and historians.

Throughout his illustrious career, Mr. Taylor has been honored by groups all over the world. In 1997 Mr. Taylor was honored by the Japanese Embassy for helping Japanese historians and journalists for the previous 40 years. In 2003 the American Jewish Historical Society awarded Mr. Taylor its first “Distinguished Archivist Award” for his lifetime of work as an archivist. He has also received numerous honors from the National Archives itself. The National Archives has a special John E. Taylor Collection of books on espionage and intelligence which largely consists of works with which Mr. Taylor provided critical assistance.

Mr. Taylor is truly an invaluable resource. His service at the National Archives is legendary. I applaud his outstanding achievements and dedication to his work, and this landmark achievement of 60 years of service.
Hurricane Katrina.

...and what a sad, tragic difference 6 years in disdain for government.

Mr. KENNEDY of Rhode Island. Mr. Speaker, in October 1999, a presidential candidate from Texas said that House Republicans “shouldn’t balance the budget on the backs of the poor.” He criticized his fellow Republicans for projecting “pessimism, indifference, and I disdain for government.”

That man was President George W. Bush, and what a sad, tragic difference 6 years in power has made.

Today, too many Americans are struggling just to get by, let alone get ahead. They are trying to scratch out a living ... that the energy companies can get their subsidies and the wealthy elite can get their tax breaks.

Democrats believe that government should reflect the sense of community that Americans demonstrated after Katrina—the sense of community that has defined and united America throughout its history.

We believe in some basic human principles—everyone should have the opportunities to be successful and live up to their God-given talents and abilities. Those are the values that should be reflected in our budgets. We could have a budget that brings Americans together.

But sadly, instead, we have a budget that will widen the divide in America between those who have plenty, and those who struggle just to have enough.

One of those people is a young lady in my district. She will graduate from high school this spring; the first in her family with a chance at college.

She will work in an America that faces more global economic competition than ever before in its history.

But this budget will limit her opportunity and turn education into a commodity because it will increase by almost $6,000 the interest rates, taxes and fees she will have to pay.

Robert McKenna, who heads up higher education in my state, has proclaimed that this budget could severely undermine already existing education benefits. And make it harder to expand access to higher education.

I have 44,000 students like that young lady in my state, and this spring when she graduates, she will have one less tool to build the American Dream for her and her family.

Unfortunately, these families will have plenty of company in their disproportionate sacrifice. At the beginning of every month, you will find many families in the supermarket, pinching and saving and clipping coupons to get by. We saw some of those same faces on August 31—just without enough money at the end of the month to fill up the gas tank to get out of New Orleans.

In my state, over 17,000 households are going hungry on a regular basis.

My state has the highest child poverty rate in all of New England, above the national average.

What does this budget do for the people in my state?

It starts by taking school lunches from their kids.

It continues by taking 300,000 families in this country—over 12,000 in my state alone—and kicking them off food stamps. Leaving them to sacrifice basic nutrition for their children to keep the heat on this winter or a roof over their heads.

Bernie Beaudreau, the Executive Director of the Rhode Island Community Food Bank, recently commented: “The forces and trends in our economy creating conditions of poverty and hunger—low wages, unemployment and low incomes, housing and energy costs, the cost of food and health care, are outstripping our capacity to respond. Given this hunger data, cutting food stamps is a disastrous idea.”

Regarding Medicaid, I recently had a chance to visit with some young adults who have Down’s Syndrome or autism, at the Groden Center in Providence, Rhode Island. Of all the people in America who are asked to sacrifice, I can’t believe this budget would go after them.

And yet the Medicaid program that helps them meet the challenges of their disabilities is also on the chopping block.

Dale Klatzker, Executive Director of the Providence Center, a facility that provides mental health treatment and supportive services, recently commented, “Perhaps if some of the Members of the House could spend some time with the individuals that these changes seek to make more personally responsible—would they have a different take on the life and death decisions they seem intent on making.”

Nearly 200,000 Rhode Islanders on Medicaid will be affected by these changes.

CONCLUSION

In conclusion, reconciliation is more than a line item in a budget. It should be about hope and dreams and opportunity, not just tax breaks for the wealthiest among us.

In his Second Inaugural Address, President Roosevelt said, “The test of our progress is not whether we add more to the abundance of those who have much; it is whether we provide enough for those who have too little.”

With this budget it is all too clear that we are failing the test.

THE CONGRESSIONAL ROLE IN DECLARING WAR

HON. CHARLES B. RANGEL
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, November 9, 2005

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to ask that we return to the framework for declarations of war set out by our Founding Fathers and found in the United States Constitution.

The Iraq War and all the damage it has done and continues to do, is a demonstration of what happens when Congress ignores the Constitution and the intentions of the Founding Fathers. As Leslie H. Gelb and Anne-Marie Slaughter point out in their article in the November 8, 2005 Washington Post “No More Blank-Check Wars” “Most wars overflow with mistakes and surprises. Still, in Iraq, much that has gone wrong could have been foreseen—and was. . . . Too often our leaders have entered wars with unformed aims, tossign away American lives, power and credibility before figuring out what they were doing and what could be done. Congress saw the problem after the Vietnam War and tried to fix it with the War Powers Act. It states that troops sent into combat by the President must be withdrawn within 60 days unless Congress approves an extension. But Presidents from Nixon on never recognized the validity of this legislation against their powers as commander in chief. Nor did Congress ever assert its rights and take political responsibility. Since the Korean War, the process has consisted of at most a Congressional resolution, a few serious speeches and authorization for the President to do whatever he wants. Odds are against changing these ‘political realities.’ But, impalled as we are on costs and carelessness of so many of our recent wars, it is worth trying to find a better way.”

And if it happens, Gelb and Slaughter point out: the answer is in the Constitution. The Founding Fathers understood that sending Americans to war required careful reflection and vigorous debate. The answer survives in Article 1, Section 8, of the Constitution, which gives Congress—and only Congress—the power to declare war. The authors suggest that power needs to be reestablished and reinforced by new legislation. The new legislation would require a declaration of war from Congress in advance of any commitment of troops. Requiring a declaration by Congress would require congress to debate the issues, analyze the threat, and consider the costs of a war. In the case of the September 11, 2001 attacks, the President would retain his power to repel the attack and strike back without a Congressional declaration. But if he went to Afghanistan and planned to keep troops there, topple the government and transform the country, he would need a Congressional declaration. Without the declaration, he would have no funding for nation building. These are ideas that need discussion. These ideas come from the document we all swear an oath to uphold: the Constitution of the United States.

In my view, a patriot is a person who remembers he must uphold and defend the Constitution, not a political party or a President.

[From the Washington Post, Nov. 8, 2005]
NO MORE BLANK-CHECK WARS
(By Leslie H. Gelb and Anne-Marie Slaughter)
Most wars overflow with mistakes and surprises. Still, in Iraq, much that has gone wrong could have been foreseen—and was. For example, most experts knew that 100,000 U.S. troops couldn’t begin to provide essential security and that Iraqi oil revenue wouldn’t dent war costs. But none of this was nailed down beforehand in any disciplined review.

And Iraq, whether justified or not, is only the latest in a long line of ill-considered and ill-planned U.S. military adventures. Time and again in recent decades the United States has made military commitments after little real debate on hazy goals and no appetite for the inevitable setbacks. John F. Kennedy and Lyndon Johnson plunged us into the Vietnam War with little sense of the region’s history or culture. Ronald Reagan dispatched Marines to Lebanon, saying that stability there was a “vital interest,” only to yank them out 16 months later after a deadly terrorist attack on Marine barracks. Bill Clinton, having inherited a mission in Somalia to feed the starving, ended up hunting tribal leaders and trying to build a nation.

Too often our leaders have entered wars with unclear and unfixed aims, tossing away American lives, power and credibility before figuring out what they were doing and what could be done. Congress saw the problem after the Vietnam War and tried to fix it with the War Powers Act. It states that troops sent into combat by the president must be withdrawn within 60 days unless Congress approves an extension. But presidents from Richard Nixon on never recognized the validity of this legislation against their powers as commander in chief. Nor did Congress ever assert its rights and take political responsibility. Since the Korean War, the process has consisted at most of a presidential request for a congressional resolution, a few serious speeches and authorization for the president to do whatever he wants. Odds are against changing these “political realities.” But impaled as we are on the costs and carelessness of so many of our recent wars, it is worth trying to find a better way.

As often happens, an answer can be found with the Founding Fathers and the Constitution. They could not have foreseen the present age of nuclear missiles and cataclysmic terrorism. But they understood political accountability, and they knew that sending Americans to war required careful reflection and vigorous debate. Their answer survives in Article 1, Section 8, of the Constitution, which gives Congress—and only Congress—the power to declare war. That power, exercised only a few times in our history, and not at all since World War II, needs to be reestablished and reinforced by new legislation. This legislation would fix guidelines for exercising the provision jointly between the White House and Congress. It would restore the Framers’ intent by requiring a congressional declaration of war in advance of any commitment of troops that promises sustained combat.

Requiring Congress to declare war, rather than just approve or authorize the president’s decision to take troops into combat, would make it much harder for Congress to duck its responsibilities. The president would be required to give Congress an analysis of the threat, specific war aims with their rationale and feasibility, general strategy and potential costs. Congress would hold hearings, examine the information and conclude with a full floor debate and solemn vote.

In case of a sudden attack on the United States or Americans abroad, the president would retain his power to repel that attack and strike back without a congressional declaration. But any sustained operations would trigger the declaration process. In other words, the president could send troops into Afghanistan to hunt down al Qaeda and punish the Taliban in response to the Sept. 11 attacks. But if he planned to keep the troops there to topple the government and transform the country, he would need a congressional declaration. Without one, funding would be restricted to bringing the troops home soon and safely.

This declaration process should appeal to conservatives and even neocons. It meets their valid concern that the United States often loses diplomatic showdowns and wars not on the battlefield but at home. It adds credibility to presidential threats and staying power to our military commitments. Binding Congress far more closely to war, for instance, might have convinced Saddam Hussein of Washington’s resolve to fight him in both Gulf wars; today it would help convince insurgents in Iraq of America’s long-term commitment to make Iraq secure. Liberals and moderates, always rightly complaining about a rush to war, would welcome the restored declaration. Not least, the attractiveness of this approach would be aided by the political power of the Constitution itself.

Nor would the process proposed here diminish a president’s leadership or stature as commander in chief as he makes his case to Congress. If, even with these advantages, his arguments fail, then the case cannot be very compelling.

Today Congress deliberates on transportation bills more carefully than it does on war resolutions. Our Founding Fathers wanted the declaration of war to concentrate minds. Returning to the Constitution’s text and making it work through legislation requiring joint deliberate action may be the only way to give the decision to make war the care it deserves.
