The House met at 2 p.m. and was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. Wolf).

DESIGNATION OF THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The Speaker pro tempore laid before the House the following communication from the Speaker:

I hereby appoint the Honorable Frank R. Wolf to act as Speaker pro tempore on this day.

J. Dennis Hastert,
Speaker of the House of Representatives

PRAYER

The Chaplain, the Reverend Daniel P. Coughlin, offered the following prayer:

Again out of Your infinite goodness and with wise provident love, Lord our God, You have given us a new day, another week.

We ask that You send Your spirit upon America and in particular the U.S. Congress. We do not seek simply a blessing upon human deeds performed routinely, inattentive to Your commands and devoid of the best in human performance. Instead, we beg Your spirit to penetrate all conversations and deliberations, the very manner in which we deal with others, every complicated issue to be addressed, our very being.

In this way, fashioned for Yourself, a people will know Your will and build Your kingdom upon Earth. How? By creating a better world, affecting those who are close to them and even those who are united only in the common bond of humanity because they are willing to be changed themselves by Your word and Your spirit.

Through Your activity in and through us, we are recreated now and forever.

Amen.

THE JOURNAL

The Speaker pro tempore. The Chair has examined the Journal of the last day’s proceedings and announces to the House his approval thereof.

Pursuant to clause 1, rule I, the Journal stands approved.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The Speaker pro tempore. The Chair will lead the House in the Pledge of Allegiance.

The Speaker pro tempore led the Pledge of Allegiance as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

COMMUNICATION FROM THE CLERK OF THE HOUSE

OFFICE OF THE CLERK, HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,

Hon. J. Dennis Hastert,
The Speaker, House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

Dear Mr. Speaker: Pursuant to the permission granted in Clause 2(h) of Rule II of the Rules of the U.S. House of Representatives, I have the honor to transmit a sealed envelope received from the White House on March 13, 2006, at 12:38 p.m. and said to contain a message from the President whereby he notifies the Congress he has extended the national emergency with respect to Iran.

With best wishes, I am

Sincerely,

Karen L. Haas,
Clerk of the House.

CONTINUATION OF NATIONAL EMERGENCY WITH RESPECT TO IRAN—MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES (H. DOC. NO. 109–95)

The Speaker pro tempore laid before the House the following message from the President of the United States: which was read and, together with the accompanying papers, without objection, referred to the Committee on International Relations and ordered to be printed:

To the Congress of the United States:

Section 202(d) of the National Emergencies Act (50 U.S.C. 1622(d)) provides for the automatic termination of a national emergency unless, prior to the anniversary date of its declaration, the President publishes in the Federal Register and transmits to the Congress a notice stating that the emergency is to continue in effect beyond the anniversary date. In accordance with this provision, I have sent the enclosed notice to the Federal Register for publication, stating that the Iran emergency declared on March 15, 1995, is to continue in effect beyond March 15, 2006. The most recent notice continuing this emergency was published in the Federal Register on March 14, 2006 (70 FR 12981).

The crisis between the United States and Iran constituted by the actions and policies of the Government of Iran that led to the declaration of a national emergency on March 15, 1995, has not been resolved. The actions and policies of the Government of Iran are contrary to the interests of the United States in the region and pose a continuing unusual and extraordinary threat to the national security, foreign policy, and economy of the United States.

For these reasons, I have determined that it is necessary to continue the national emergency declared with respect to Iran and maintain in force comprehensive sanctions against Iran to respond to this threat.

GEORGE W. BUSH.

The Chaplain, Dr. Barry C. Black, offered the following prayer:

Let us pray.

Gracious Father, You have set before us many ways of doing Your work in our world. Empower us to creatively use our abilities for Your glory. Open our eyes to see possibilities in seemingly barren places. Use us to open new channels of blessing to those who need it most.

Speak to our Senators and give them a willingness to obey Your voice. Strengthen them to follow Your precepts and to trust You in quietness and confidence.

Renew us so we will mount up on wings like eagles. Help us to run and not be weary, and to walk and not faint.

And Lord, today, we pray for those affected by the Midwest tornadoes. We pray in Your sovereign Name. Amen.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The PRESIDENT pro tempore led the Pledge of Allegiance, as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

RESERVATION OF LEADER TIME

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, the leadership time is reserved.

RECOGNITION OF THE MAJORITY LEADER

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The majority leader is recognized.

SCHEDULE

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, this morning we are starting consideration of the budget resolution which was reported out of the Committee on the Budget on Thursday. The chairman and ranking member are here and we will open the debate this morning.

The Budget Act provides for up to 50 hours of debate. Therefore, I hope Senators will come to the Senate today and use that time for their opening statements.

This week will be quite busy as we consider the budget resolution each day and night as that clock ticks. We will finish the resolution this week, and that will normally require full sessions with votes, which I expect. We would like to minimize the so-called vote-a-rama at the end of the process. I know the two managers have been talking, are talking, and will be working together in an effort to avoid that, if at all possible.

This week we will also complete the extension of the debt limit. The Democratic leader and I are working on an agreement for the consideration of that bill. I hope we can reach a reasonable period for the debate on that must-do legislation. Needless to say, there is a lot of work to be done prior to the adjournment. We will stay in session as necessary to give the managers the best opportunity to complete our business.

This week we will complete action on the budget. And we will complete action on the debt limit. On Wednesday of this week, we will have a joint meeting with the House to hear an address by President Ellen Johnson Sirleaf of Liberia. That address will begin at 2 p.m.; therefore, Senators should gather in the Senate Chamber at 1:30 so we can proceed at 1:40 to the Hall of the House of Representatives.

Lastly, I remind my colleagues we have a rolcall vote scheduled for 5:30 this evening. That vote will be on the confirmation of Leo Gordon to be a judge for the U.S. Court of International Trade. That will be the first vote of the day.

I suggest the absence of a quorum. The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. FRIST. I ask unanimous consent the call of the quorum be rescinded.

CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET FOR THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT FOR FISCAL YEAR 2007

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, the Senate will proceed to consideration of the budget resolution, which the clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

A resolution (S. Con. Res. 83) setting forth the congressional budget for the United States Government for fiscal year 2007, and including the appropriate budgetary levels for fiscal years 2006 and 2008 through 2011.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, the time until 11:30 a.m. shall be equally divided.

The Senator from New Hampshire. Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, we are now proceeding to the budget?

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. That is correct. The budget is before the Senate.

Mr. GREGG. I begin by thanking the committee, the committee staff, both the majority and Democratic side, for the assistance in getting us to this point. We had a markup last Thursday which was done very professionally. A lot of issues were raised. A lot of votes were taken. We were able to complete the budget on a timely schedule pursuant to the rules of the Senate.

Now we are in the Senate. As everyone knows, under the rules of the Senate, we have 50 hours on the bill. Then we have what is known as the vote-arama. The Senator from North Dakota and I have been talking. We hope we can coordinate things so that Members will be comfortable getting their amendments up and have adequate time and have adequate time as to when their amendments are coming up, and in doing that, hopefully, actually reduce the vote-a-rama at the end. And cooperation would be helpful.

Right off the bat, I thank the Senator from North Dakota and his staff. They have been extraordinarily cooperative as we moved forward throughout this process.

Let me ask Members, if Members have an amendment, all on our side, tell us about it so we can get you a time slot.

On the substance of the bill, the purpose of a budget, of course, is to be a blueprint for how the Government will spend its money in the coming year. The year for our Government begins on October 1, 2006. We are already into the 2006 year, so this is the budget for 2007. It is then when we are defining a budget, of course, to be reasonably realistic about what the opportunities are, the demands are, what the needs are for saving money, what the tax structure will be in the country. We have attempted to do that in this budget.

We began, basically, with the President's proposal. He sent up a budget. Ironically, under the rules of the Congress, the President's budget has no actual impact on the substance of the process. In fact, the budget of the Congress is never signed by the President. It is a document entirely within the Congress. Clearly, the President gives his thoughts and his guidelines. He is in charge of the executive branch. We take it seriously.

We have looked at the President's budget and used it as a template for much of what we have done in this budget, although we have departed in a few significant ways. I congratulate the President for sending up a budget that is responsible. He controlled spending on the discretionary side and the non-Defense accounts. He did make proposals in the area of entitlement spending which were significant and which would bring about some restraint in the rate of growth, for example, of the biggest entitlement, which is Medicare and pensions, and even in the agricultural area he made some proposals. His budget is a legitimate budget and used it as a template for how we control our budget, and we should be focusing on those concerns.

But in the short run, there are things we can do to bring the deficit under control. This budget attempts to do that. In fact, this budget will reduce the deficit of the United States in half over the next 4 years. That is a fairly significant step forward. As a percentage of gross national product, by the year 2010, we will actually be down to about 1 percent of gross national product, which will be well below the historical norm of deficits in this country.

Our deficit in the coming year, however, will be higher, and I will get into that down the road. But let me go back to this entitlement question because it is important as we start the discussion that we frame it in the context of the issues that concern me the most.

We have an outstanding at the Federal level, as a result of the coming retirement of the baby boom generation, an obligation of the Federal Government which amounts to $65 trillion. That is trillion, with a "T." It is hard to understand what that means, but let me go back to this entitlement question because it is important as we start the discussion that we frame it in the context of the issues that concern me the most.

We have an asset, and we add it all up—the net worth of the American people is $51 trillion. That is the second blue chart. The total outstanding debt, therefore, of three major programs—Medicare, Social Security, and Medicaid—represents $65 trillion. So it is more than what has been paid in taxes since the beginning of time, as far as this country is concerned, and it is more than the net worth of our Nation. It is equivalent to the stock in a 75-year-old person.

And it is all driven by the fact that this baby boom generation is so large, and when it retires it will demand so much in the way of services.

What is the issue? The issue is, if we have this type of an outyear liability, we need to do things today to try to structure our house and get it under control. In the last budget cycle, for the first time in 8 years, we stepped forward as Republicans—I think we had two Democratic votes. We stepped forward, and passed what was known as the reconciliation bill to reduce entitlement spending by $39 billion over 5 years. Anyone would have thought we were scouring the earth in passing that bill from the outcry from the other side of the aisle, that all poor people, all people of need were being thrown out the door as a result of that reduction. Well, to try to put it in perspective, it was $39 billion. Actually, the biggest item was the Medicaid item, which was $5 billion over 5 years, or in that period of 5 years, the Medicaid system was going to spend $1.2 trillion.

The baby boom generation is headed toward retirement. As they retire, it will put a huge strain on the operation of the fiscal house of the United States. That retirement begins in earnest in about the year 2008 and accelerates and peaks in the year 2030. At that point, we will have an entitlement vote-arama at the end. And cooperation would be helpful.

We have, however, marked up the budget a little differently. Our purpose, honestly, my purpose is to reduce the deficit of the United States. That is critical. We have a situation facing us as a people and as a Nation which is unique in our history in that we have this large generation called the baby boom generation in our history, with 70 million people, about twice the size of any other generation.

The President for sending up a budget. Clearly, the President gives his thoughts and his guidelines. He is in charge of the executive branch. We take it seriously.

In any event, it became very clear from statements made by my colleagues on the other side of the aisle they were opposed to that. In fact, immediately—as soon as the President sent up his budget for 2007, his budget—saying Medicare was going to be slashed—of course, it was still going to grow at 35 percent—and that senior citizens would be harmed. That drumbeat immediately met it, as it did when the President suggested we should do something about Social Security. So no progress was made on that side with that, and, unfortunately, on our side of the aisle there was also a fair amount of hesitancy on that issue.

So I am chairman of the various committees that the President suggested do these entitlement changes, and they all said they could not get the votes on their own committees to pass them out because the committees are ratioed in a way that means if you have a Republican who votes for it, you cannot pass out these types of things, and in each committee there was at least one Republican, unfortunately, who opposed it.

So I became fairly clear to me, regrettably, that a major reconciliation bill this year, on the side of entitlements—because it is an election year—was not going to accomplish much other than to give people who were not willing to be constructive on the issue, and wanted to create a political issue, a sort of free shot at people who were trying to be constructive on the issue, specifically the President. So we did not put reconciliation instructions in this bill which are applicable in the entitlement accounts—well, let me step back. In the area of discretionary spending, the President sent up a number, which was $30 billion over last year’s spending. Last year, we spent about $843 billion on discretionary accounts. Now, discretionary accounts—for those of you listening who don’t understand these arcane terms we use around here—discretionary accounts are for spending we do every year which we do not have to do, but we do it because it involves the necessity obligations of the Government. But it can be adjusted each year.

Entitlement accounts, which I was talking about before—Medicaid, Medicare, those accounts spend automatically. They do not adjust every year. If you meet certain conditions of income, of economic well-being, of health, of experience, you have a right to certain payments. Those are called entitlements. To control those, you have to change the law. That is why you have to have a reconciliation bill.

To control spending, you have to reduce or adjust the spending in what is known as an appropriations bill as it comes through the Congress every year. So the Congress has its most significant impact on discretionary spending in that the budget can set a limit on how much money can be spent by the Federal Government under these discretionary accounts.

Now, discretionary accounts would be things such as national defense, education, and laying out roads in some instances—although that is pretty much off-budget now—environmental concerns, some health care accounts.

The President sent us this number, which was $30 billion above last year. Last year, we spent $843 billion. This year, the President’s number was $870 billion. It was rescinded by CBO to be $873 billion.

So we said that is a reasonable number. We are going to hold that number. That is called the top-line discretionary cap. So all discretionary spending in the Federal Government will be held at $873 billion under this cap.

What does that mean? That means, essentially, if anybody wants to come to the floor and spend more money than that, they are going to have to get the votes there. And they will be violating the budget discretionary cap. That is an enforcement mechanism we have around here, and sometimes the 60 votes are here and it gets waived, but, hopefully, people will be aggressive in protecting this number.

With that number, defense spending goes up, under the President’s proposal, about $23 billion of the $30 billion. And social spending, or non-defense spending, or social spending—essentially is held flat. In fact, in some accounts it actually goes down.

We have aligned ourselves with the President’s top-line number in our bill and recognize we need to make some adjustments. It was allocated, although our committee does not do allocations. That is done by the Appropriations Committee. We have suggested different allocations than what the President might have used. We put, for example, an additional $1.5 billion into education. We put an additional $1.5 billion into health care. We put an additional $2 billion into border security.

If we were the appropriating committee, that is what we would do. But, believe me, there is a lot of resistance to the floor and gets reviewed. If certain things are not appropriate, in some instances a budget point of order lies against it.

Now, that brings me to the second topic. There is a lot of resistance to that, by the way. You would think that when you are running these types of deficits that people would be willing to be fiscally responsible around here, but, believe me, there is a lot of resistance because in general terms people are always willing to be fiscally responsible, but, when they get specific, they have programs they want to see increased, which is human nature, I guess.

Within the budget we have an allocation for defense. But what has happened recently—and this is an issue I have some concerns about—is that since the war on terrorism has begun, a war we did not ask for but which we are prosecuting aggressively, and I strongly support the President’s efforts to fight terrorism—we have felt the need—it is an absolute need, and I do not want to hold the military to an absolute level of spending. In other words, the President has to have the flexibility to spend to fight terrorism.

So what has happened is we have created this new budget process around here. We have the basic budget process, which is the core, which comes under the discretionary account, which I have been talking about, the $873 billion number, of which approximately half will be defense money. That is shown in green on the chart. That is what we call the core defense budget, the national defense budget. That operates the national defense system.

But on top of that, as part of the warfighting effort, there has been an emergency funding bill every year now for 4 years in a row, which has been growing every year. These emergency funds are not subject to the budget. They are not subject to the budget process. They are not subject to the Appropriations Committee. They are essentially a sort of emergency spending in the Federal Government of about $16 billion, on the average, throughout the 1990s. They represented usually disasters that had to be dealt with. Many of them were floods. Some of them were earthquakes.

Now we are seeing basically a process where emergency spending has become so significant that I call a shadow budget, but at a minimum, it is an alternative budgeting process where you essentially have two budgets around here. You have the budget, which is fairly aggressively disciplined through points of order, many of which I have put in place, by a committee, with the cooperation of the Senator from North Dakota, some of which were put in place by my predecessor, Senator Nickles, and some of which were put in place by Senator Domenici, the predecessor of Senator Nickles.

But budget points of order lie in order to discipline us on the floor so the core spending of the Defense Department and other discretionary accounts is reviewed. It goes to the authorizing committees. It comes out of the authorizing committees. It comes to the floor and gets reviewed. If certain things are not appropriate, in some instances a budget point of order lies against it.

This second budget which we now have around here—and it is an entirely separate budget. In fact, the average amount spent annually is about $50 billion, which would run the State of New Hampshire for about 20 years—one emergency budget. So it is a pretty big budget. That budget has no controls at all. Essentially, that comes up here as an emergency. It does not go through the authorizing committee. It goes... through the appropriating committee, which is very effectively led by the President pro tempore, who is now presiding.

But the fact is, it does not have any of the controls that have traditionally gone with regular budgeting, and it has become basically a fact of life. We are not going to get around it. We are going to be in this war for a while. It is going to be expensive.

So feel, there are others who feel—I think the Senator from North Dakota agrees with me on this—we have to do something to make sure there is some review of this that puts it more in the camp of being a traditional budget rather than an extraordinary emergency budget which has no discipline to it at all.

So in this bill, we essentially pick a number, $90 billion. Now, historically, the White House was not sending up any number for these emergency cuts. In fact, in the years 2003, 2004, 2005, and 2006 they sent up zero. They assumed no emergency at all. That was a bit of gamesmanship, in my humble opinion, to be kind.

Last year, we, as a Budget Committee, put in a figure of $50 billion. So this year they assumed $50 billion. And when I asked the Assistant Secretary of Defense why they put in $50 billion, they said they did not put it in. It was there only because last year the Congress put it in, and they felt they needed to have it in there in order to reflect what the Congress wanted last year and they didn’t think it had any relevance at all.

That being the case, what we decided to do this year is take the average of the last 4 years and put that in as the number because I want to get a reasonably accurate number so we have some true numbers. So we added a number of $90 billion for emergencies that we are assuming, which is why—if you go back to the first chart—in our budget the deficit actually exceeds the President’s deficit because the President’s submission did not have the full cost of the emergencies which we know are coming up. I believed we should have it there, so our budget deficit is projected as higher.

My hope—and I think it is a reasonable hope—is that this will not go on for ever. We are, hopefully, going to start drawing down troops, in Iraq especially, soon. And the cost of that will wane. Obviously, the cost of Katrina, which was a big part of the cost last year, is already in place. That is pretty well spent out, or has been put in place—over $100 billion for the Gulf States.

So hopefully, this number will come down. But we are assuming next year, to the extent it comes down, it will be about $90 billion. In that $90 billion we are assuming a budget deficit that is about $40 billion higher than the President’s based on the additional money we put in for the emergencies.

Now, in order to put a little discipline into this exercise, we also put in a new point of order. I want to be very forthright about this. If we go over that $90 billion, there will be a point of order that will be put in against emergencies. They really should not be called emergencies because they are known commodities that are coming up here. They should be called extra budgeting for the war on terrorism.

What we have done is put in a point of order which says if you go over the $90 billion, there has to be a more serious justification of why that money is spent, considering the average is $90 billion over the last 5 years, and it can be raised with a 60-vote point of order to try to get that discussion going around here. It is a minor attempt—not a very big one—to try to put some discipline into this exercise.

In addition, because of the fact that I still believe entitlements are the biggest issue the Federal Government has in front of it, and some of them have not been successful in convincing my colleagues to do reconciliation this year, if you look at this chart, you will see the cost of entitlements going through the roof, especially Medicare. If you take Medicare and Social Security and combine them, we will spend more in 2030 than we spend today on the entire Federal Government. They keep going up. Basically we would have to radically increase taxes on working Americans in 2035 and ratchet up dramatically by the year 2030 to remain solvent, well over historical norms, if we are not going to do something about entitlements before then.

In order to address that, I have asked for a new point of order. I didn’t ask for it. This idea came from Mr. Leavitt, the Secretary of Health and Human Services. He suggested we put in place a tree which essentially says that if you want Medicare to be an insurance program, everybody goes to work and they get a Medicare insurance tax, it is supposed to accumulate and you are supposed to be able to pay for your retirement health care through the insurance tax. Parts of Medicare don’t have the insurance. Part B, Part D are a little different, but the basic Part A is supposed to be fully insured by then. If the Medicare accounts dip into the general fund—and they shouldn’t be dipping into the general fund—then at that point, they are basically a general fund account, which means that the general taxpayer is paying them twice—they are paying at the work-place, and then they are paying them out of the general fund—then at that point, if the Medicare trustees tell us that is going to happen for 2 years in a row, it is going to be more than 45 percent in 1 year and more than 45 percent in the next order of magnitude, the President has got to step in and order that arises which says we need 60 votes to spend money on these entitlements, new money. The idea is to simply generate the discussion necessary to get some constructive activity around here on the issue of how we control spending in light of projected deficits caused by the baby boom generation retirement.

There is going to be a lot of discussion today about tax policy. It is important to understand our view of tax policy. Obviously, there are two ways you address the deficit. You address it through spending and through revenues. I take the basic view that we are not in an emergency society, that Americans pay a lot of taxes. Whether they get what they deserve for what they pay in taxes. I am not so sure, but they certainly pay a lot of taxes. We will see charts from the other side of the aisle—I can’t count how many times I have seen these charts, but we will see charts coming from the other side of the aisle which will say that revenues have dropped precipitously since President Clinton was President and that they have only started to recover incrementally in the last few years. The representation will be made that the majority of this drop is a function of cutting taxes which was put in place by President Bush in the first 2 years of this President’s term.

Let me say that I disagree with that representation. We were in the biggest bubble in the history of the world. It was a bigger bubble than the tulip bubble, bigger than the south seas bubble. It was the Internet bubble of the 1990s. They generally believed that the basic economics had changed and something had been invented which was going to circumvent the business cycle and there would be no more business cycles. It is a concept which people believed in in the late 1990s. They generally believed that the technology advantages were going to cause us to expand revenues that would allow them to invest and speculate at rates which were massive and historical proportions never seen before. But that bubble has collapsed and generated a recession which obviously contracted Federal revenues. On top of that recession, we had the attack of 9/11 which generated even a larger recession. The economic damage done by 9/11 was massive but reallocation of resources that had to occur, the basic grinding to a halt and hiatus taken relative to investment for a while as a result of Wall Street being in chaos for a period of time, all of this led to an even more severe recession or potentially worse recession. In any event, the President had put in his first tax cut. Then after that event, he put in the second tax cut. Those two tax cuts together were the perfect relief, the perfect formula for basically curing a recession and making it a more shallow recession than one might have expected. We are fortunate that we didn’t actually fall into a deep and severe recession during that period. The primary reason we did not was because of the tax cuts.

Another factor of these tax cuts was that they were oriented toward the productive side of our economy so that they provided an incentive for entrepreneurs to invest. As a result of that investment, they created an incentive for people to generate economic activity. What comes from that? Jobs. We have had a massive economic expansion in jobs. We have had a massive expansion as a result of the incentives created in the tax law.

Another thing was created by that. When people have more jobs, when there is more economic activity, we get more tax revenues. This chart really shows that dramatically. We see revenues jumping here. In fact, in 2005, we had the largest increase in revenues in our history. If you go back to 2005, you will see revenues coming up. But they are coming up dramatically, 6 percent, 7 percent. The average of 6 percent is the projected revenue increase.

It is a function of the fact that we have in place incentives today such as the capital gains and dividends rates that basically create an atmosphere where people will go out and invest. As a result of those investments, they generate capital activity, which creates jobs, which creates taxable events and receipts will be back to what they should be as a percentage of gross national product. Yes, we dropped down dramatically, but now we are seeing that line come up dramatically. We will reach a historical level fairly soon—if not next year, certainly the year after—and receipts will be back to what they should be as a percentage of gross national product because we will have put in place an economic engine to generate revenues, called a tax code, which creates an incentive for people to be productive and take risks and create jobs. That is what we wanted.

The other side is going to hold up chart after chart which says, the tax cuts were made by people underreporting. They have an incentive to not report it, and correctly so. We can collect more money. We don’t get the score for that, unfortunately. Even though we are going to increase significantly the amount of money that will flow to the government, it is the taxpayers who will pay it. That is the purpose of audits—and they tell us that is going to generate between 10 and 40, maybe even $50 billion of revenue we are not getting today—we don’t get the score for that. CBO won’t score it. Still it is what it is, and correctly so. We can collect more money.

On another courtesy of the Senate from North Dakota and I do agree—and we have accepted language which he suggested or we are going to before we finish—we believe strongly there are a lot of taxes which should be paid the Federal Government that are not being paid. We had testimony on this before our committee. I am not talking about drug money; I am talking about people underreporting. The Senator from North Dakota has been addressing this issue, and correctly so. We can collect more money. We don’t get the score for that, unfortunately. Even though we are going to increase significantly the amount of money that will flow to the government, it is the taxpayers who will pay it. That is the purpose of audits—and they tell us that is going to generate between 10 and 40, maybe even $50 billion of revenue we are not getting today—we don’t get the score for that. CBO won’t score it. Still it is what it is, and correctly so. We can collect more money.

That brings me to my conclusion so that we can hear from the Senator from North Dakota. We have an obligation to do a budget. We as a nation should not go forward without a budget in place; it is not appropriate to running a fiscal house. A lot of people can disagree with this budget—and just because they disagree, does that mean it is not a budget which has made decisions. You can disagree or agree with them. Over the next 50 hours you can offer amendments to try and change it. But at the end of the day, you have to spend $2.8 trillion needs to have some guidelines as to how it will be spent. There needs to be a blueprint. There needs to be defined. Everyone who runs a household works off a budget, and it would be totally irresponsible if we did not have a budget.

I hope the other side of the aisle will offer a budget as their alternative. There have been some rumbles that they may. The committee offered a series of amendments which would have significantly raised spending and significantly raised taxes. If that is their budget, fine. But put a budget on the table. We have put our budget on the table. We thought it was reasonable. There are things I would have done. I would have gone further in accounts if I had had the ability to pull it off. But independent of that, this budget is a responsible budget. It addresses spending in a responsible way, and it puts in place enforcement mechanisms which allow us as a Congress to put at least warning signs in the road when we start to get off the road of fiscal responsibility.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from North Dakota.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I thank the Senator from North Dakota. I am grateful to the Chairman of the Budget Committee, for his many courtesies during the budget process and the budget hearings. There has been full consultation with respect to the decisions that we have made. In the course of the hearings that we have held, the way we have conducted the markup, the way we will proceed here on the floor, I thank him very much for that set of courtesies. I also thank him for his professionalism. There are many places where he and I agree. I think both of us would be the first to acknowledge that we are on an unsustainable course and that the country is going to have to face up to these growing deficits and debt. And the sooner we do it, the better.

With that said, I do disagree with this budget. I don’t think it meets the needs of our time. I don’t think it faces up to this rapidly growing debt. I don’t think it has the right priorities for the American people. And I don’t think it has the right balance.

If there is one message I would want to communicate, it is this: The debt is the threat. We hear a lot of talk about deficits, but really the threat to our country is the growing indebtedness of our country, an indebtedness that is increasingly being financed by foreigners.
How did we get into this mess? We can go back to 2001 when the President told us that if we would adopt his financial plan, everything would go well. He told us:

[We can proceed with tax relief without fear of budget deficits, even if the economy softens.]

That is what he told us back in 2001. Now we are able to check the record and see, was the President right? This chart shows very clearly the President was wrong. We had a $236 billion surplus two years before he took office, and this is the fiscal record since. The President's plan has plunged us into deep deficit, the largest deficits in our country's history.

The next year, 2002, the President revised his position and said:

...Our budget will run a deficit that will be small and short-term...

He retreated from the assertion that we were not going to have deficits because obviously that proved wrong. Then when deficits are about to be small and short-term. That was the next year. Now we are able to check that statement and see if that was right.

Once again, the President was simply wrong. The deficits have not been small and short-term; they have been large and long-term. In fact, virtually every year, the deficits have gotten worse. In the first year under the President's plan, we had a $158 billion deficit in 2003, that exploded to $376 billion the next year even more in 2004 to $413 billion. Then we had some improvement in 2005 with $319 billion. In 2006, we are now forecasting once again the deficit going up.

Far more serious than the deficit is the increase in the debt because the debt is increasing much more rapidly than the size of the deficits. I indicated for 2006, we are anticipating a deficit now of $371 billion, but the debt is going to increase by $654 billion.

If I find very often people are confused on this point. They think the deficit is the amount by which the debt increases, and that is not the case. The biggest difference is Social Security funds that are in temporary surplus that are being used under the President's plan to pay for other things—to pay for tax cuts, to pay other bills. And when you add up the deficit and the amount being taken from Social Security, which has to be paid back, and other trust funds that are also being diverted and being used for other purposes, what we find is the debt in this year will increase not by $371 billion, the amount of the deficit, but instead by $654 billion. That is why I say the debt is the threat.

The next year after 2002, the President, in 2003, no longer made the argument that the deficits were going to be small and short-term because that was clearly not going to be the case. Now he revised his argument for the second time when he said:

Our budget gap is small by historical standards.

That is not really right, either, because here is the record with respect to the deficits in comparison to back in 1970, 36 years of comparisons. We can see the deficit under the President's plan has been the largest in dollar terms for any President since. In fact, he is in first, second, and third place. He has the top three deficits in our country's history.

There is a new report out that says the deficits required are themselves understated. Not only is the debt going up more rapidly than the deficits, but this is a report about what would happen if we were under the kind of accounting system virtually every company in America is under, accrual accounting. Here is what it says. This is a Gannett News Service report from March 3 of this year:

If the United States kept its books like General Motors and nearly every other business in the country, the 2005 budget deficit would be $750 billion and rising, not $319 billion and falling, as is commonly reported.

They go on to ask the question:

How can two reports on the same budget be so different? It's a matter of what's counted. The budget figures usually bandied about in Washington are the Government takes in and spends each year. The financial report, which has been an annual requirement since the mid-1990s, does what businesses are required to do: include the cost of promised benefits.

If that were done, the deficit for 2005 would not have been $319 billion, the deficit would have been $760 billion.

I am increasingly persuaded that the language used by the President misleads people. I go back to when President Bush came in and we were told we were going to have $5.6 trillion surpluses. It was never true. Much of that money was Social Security money. There wasn't much of a surplus at all. It was a temporary surplus, but every dollar of that money was going to be needed.

This shows that if we were on an accrual basis, virtually every other institution in this country operates on, we would not have had a deficit of $319 billion in 2005, we would have had a deficit of $760 billion.

Then in 2004, the President changed this argument once again. He went from there are going to be no deficits, to they are going to be small and short-term, to they are small by historical standards. When all of those proved wrong, then the President said: I am going to count the deficit in half over the next 5 years. This is what he said in August of 2004:

So I can say to you that the deficit will be cut in half over the next five years.

I think the President will be proved wrong once again. Why? Because in reaching that calculation, the President simply left out things. He left out any war costs past 2007. He left out all the costs of fixing the alternative minimum tax, which will cost $1 trillion to fix. He didn't take the money in his budget for it past this year.

When we add back in the items the President has left out and we go beyond the 5 years in his budget to capture the full effect of his proposed tax cuts, what we see is some modest improvement during the 5 years in terms of the deficit—that is not true of the debt, by the way; it is true of the deficit—but past the 5 years, things get much worse as the full effects of the President's tax cuts take effect. Here is why.

This chart shows the full effect of the President's proposed tax cuts. The President's budget only goes to this dotted line. But look what happens beyond the dotted line in terms of the cost of his tax cut. It absolutely explodes. Of course, not all this is captured in his budget.

Similarly, none of the cuts beyond fiscal year 2006 are in his budget for fixing the alternative minimum tax. The alternative minimum tax, the old millionaire's tax, is rapidly becoming a middle-class tax trap. It costs $1 trillion to fix over 10 years. The President does not have a dime in his budget to do it beyond 2006.

The President has what I would call a rosy scenario. He says he is going to cut the deficit in half, but it is largely based on a fiction. It is not really a budget at all.

On the alternative minimum tax, again the President has nothing in his budget past 2006 to deal with it. Mr. President, 3.6 million taxpayers were affected in 2005. By 2010, there will be 29 million taxpayers affected. And the President does not think he needs this need. There is no money in his budget past 2006 to face up to it.

But that is not the only place the President has understated the costs. With respect to the war, in 2006 and 2007, the supplemants he has provided, he has $118 billion budgeted. The CBO says $312 billion is needed.

Once again, the President is badly understating the true cost to the country and, as a result, winds up with a misleading budget presentation.

When I say the debt is the threat—and I hope, if people take nothing else away from my discussion today, they will begin to understand that the great threat to this country is the burgeoning debt of our Nation. The debt is the threat.

As I have indicated, the President has funded the war with a series of supplemants. The chairman of the committee had this chart up as well. In 2006, $118 billion; in 2007, he is only asking the 50 billion at this point. Really, is that what the war is likely to cost? Is all of a sudden the need for these additional funds going to be cut more than 50 percent? Or is the President playing hide the ball from us in terms of these costs?

When I talk about the debt, the President early on acknowledged how important it is to face up to the debt. This is what he said in 2001:...My budget pays down a record amount of the national debt. We will pay off $2 trillion of the debt over the next decade. That will be the largest debt reduction of any country, ever.
Future generations shouldn’t be forced to pay back money that we have borrowed. We owe this kind of responsibility to our children and grandchildren.

The President was exactly right. I agree with every word of these words in terms of the need to pay down the debt and we should not be shuffling this responsibility off on our children and grandchildren. That is what the President said. He said he would have maximum paydown of the debt. Let’s look at what has actually happened because, once again, the President was simply wrong. There has been no paydown of the debt. This is what the debt was at the end of his first year. We don’t hold him responsible for what happened the first year because he is operating under the previous administration’s budget.

At the end of the first year, the debt was $5.8 trillion. At the end of this year, the debt will be $8.6 trillion. The President said he would have maximum paydown of debt. There is no paydown of debt here. The debt has exploded. And if the President’s budget or the budget that is offered on the floor is adopted, at the end of the next 5 years, the debt will be $11.8 trillion national debt that will have more than doubled since the end of the President’s first year in office, all of this before the baby boom generation retires.

This President has racked up already more money than every President in history and by a large measure. The debt limit has already increased over $3 trillion: $450 billion in 2002 was added to the debt limit; in 2003, $984 billion; in 2004, $800 billion; now this week, they are asking for another almost $800 billion increase in the debt limit. That is why I say the debt is the threat.

And what are the ramifications? Here is one that I find most stunning. It has more than doubled since the end of the President’s first year in office. It is going up each and every year of this budget proposal by more than $600 billion. In 2010, it is going to go up $622 billion. In 2009, it is going to go up $635 billion. In 2008, it is going to go up $656 billion. In 2009, it is going to go up $683 billion. In 2010, it is going to go up $622 billion. In 2011, it is going to go up $662 billion.

Now, unless somebody thinks I am just imagining these numbers, making them up, let’s look at what is in the budget offered by our colleagues, their calculations, their calculation of how much the debt is going to go up during this period. And, remember, they have left out war costs past September 7, 2007. They have left out the need to fix the alternative minimum tax. They have left out the associated interest costs. But even their calculations—let’s call them the chairman’s—show these red blocks with the budget deficit going down or appearing to go down, if you add back the omitted costs and you add back the money that is being taken from Social Security that adds to the debt—what you have to do—but and you add the associated interest costs, what you find is the debt is going up each and every year of this budget proposal by more than $600 billion.

In 2007, the debt is going to go up $680 billion. In 2008, it is going to go up $656 billion. In 2009, it is going to go up $683 billion. In 2010, it is going to go up $622 billion. In 2011, it is going to go up $662 billion.

Now, unless somebody thinks I am just imagining these numbers, making them up, let’s look at what is in the budget offered by our colleagues, their calculation, their calculation of how much the debt is going to go up during this period. And, remember, they have left out war costs past September 7, 2007. They have left out the need to fix the alternative minimum tax. They have left out the associated interest costs. But even their calculations—even the calculations—as to how the debt going up this year, 2007, by $663 billion; in 2008, $577 billion; in 2009, $536 billion; in 2010, $513 billion; in 2011, $539 billion. This debt is running out of control.

If we look at what are the causes, it is very simple. We are spending more money than we are raising in revenue. That is why we have explosions of deficit and debt. We are spending more than we are raising, and our colleagues on the other side don’t want to reduce spending to the amount of revenue. Nor are they willing to raise the revenue to meet their spending. The result is an explosion of deficit and debt.
of what happened since 2001; here is what an Economist.com report says on the U.S. macroeconomy:

Economists find no support for the claim that tax cuts pay for themselves. Four years after income taxes were first cut and nearly four years after the recession ended, federal revenues are still slightly below their early 2001 peak on a nominal basis; on a real basis, adjusted for inflation, revenues are down 11 percent from their all-time high. Therefore there is no support for the Laffer Curve effect: the view that a tax cut can actually boost government revenues as workers and entrepreneurs respond with large increases in effort.

From that, I don’t make the argument that the answer to our problem is tax increases at this point. I do believe revenue has got to be part of the solution.

Our friends on the other side and the chairman have said it has to be done on the spending side. Absolutely, the spending side has to be a very significant part of addressing this problem. But that does not have to be a problem in addressing the problem, and the first place we ought to look for revenue is not a tax increase. The first place we ought to look for revenue is the tax gap, the difference between what is owed and what is being paid.

The revenue department says the tax gap is now $350 billion a year. Let me repeat that. The tax gap, the difference between what is owed and what is being paid, the revenue commissioner tells us, is now $350 billion a year. If we were to just collect the revenue due under the current revenue table, we would virtually eliminate the deficit. We would still have a problem with the debt because, as I have indicated, the debt is going up much faster than our deficits. But if we could collect the amount of money that is actually due, we would make meaningful inroads into this incredible abyss of deficits and debt, and we ought to do it.

Also, as the chairman has said—and this is the case—we are going to have to deal with the entitlements. Entitlements are growing much more rapidly than the size of the economy, and they are going to be added to by the baby boom generation. The baby boom generation is going to change all of this very dramatically. So at some point, we are going to have to face up to that.

I think it is increasingly clear that the only way this is going to be faced up to is if we do it together. Republicans can’t do it alone; Democrats can’t do it alone. It is going to require Democrats and Republicans working together to face this challenge of a burgeoning debt, and the sooner we do it, the better.

On the assertions that the economy is doing great, here is what the Comptroller General said about our current fiscal path before the Senate Budget Committee last month:

Continuing on this unsustainable fiscal path before us, if not sooner, will severely damage our economy, our standard of living, and ultimately our national security. Is anyone listening? Is anyone listening? Here is what the Comptroller General of the United States telling us we can’t stay on this course, that it threatens our economy and even our national security.

For those who say the economy is doing fine, I present an alternative view. Here is what has happened to real median household income. It has declined for 4 straight years. Median household income has declined for 4 straight years. We have looked at previous recoveries since World War II. There have been nine economic recoveries from recessions since World War II. We have compared this recovery to the previous recoveries. Here is what we found. Growth of the economy lags behind the typical recovery. On average in the previous 9 recoveries, GDP has averaged 3.2 percent; in this recovery, it is averaging 2.8 percent.

It is not just economic growth, it is also business investment. Here is the average. This dotted red line is the average of the nine previous business cycles in terms of business investment. Here, the black line is this recovery. Business investment is lagging the average of the nine previous recoveries by 22 percent. Where is something wrong? Something has changed from our previous economic recoveries. It is not just growth of GDP, it is not just business investment, it is also job creation. This red line is the average of the nine previous recessions from recoveries since World War II. The black line is this recovery. Business investment is lagging the average of the previous recoveries by 22 percent. When something is wrong. Something has changed from our previous economic recoveries.

We have to face up to what is happening: burgeoning deficits and debt; a recovery that is not producing the same economic and business investment, the same job creation we have seen in other recoveries since World War II; and then we have a budget that I believe is also wrong on priorities. This budget says that in 2007, the tax cuts going to those who earn on average over $1 million a year will cost $1 billion for the year. Let me repeat that. Under the budget that is presented here and the budget of the President, the tax cuts going to those who on average earn over $1 million a year, the tax cut for one year will be $1 billion. Meanwhile, the President says cut education $2.2 billion, the biggest cut education has ever been asked to take. I don’t believe that is the right priority for the country.

It is not just with respect to education. Veterans are being asked to take reductions such that it would cost $800 million—$785 million to restore those reductions, those cuts, in terms of what they receive. Actually, this $800 million is the $250 annual enrollment fee the President is asking for, and the increase in their drug copayments that he is asking for—$800 million to eliminate those increased fees and costs to veterans. But the President’s budget says: No, it is 50 times more important to provide tax cuts to those earning over $1 million a year. Those are his priorities. I don’t think those are the priorities of the American people.

When I look at law enforcement, I see the same thing. It would cost about $400 million to restore the COPS Program. The President cuts the COPS Program that puts police officers on the street. He cuts it about $400 million, which is onethird as much as is going to tax cuts for those who earn over $1 million a year. Are those really the priorities of the American people? Is it 100 times more important to give tax cuts to those earning over $1 million a year than it is to put police on the street? I don’t think so.

It doesn’t end there. This budget, the President’s budget, on local law enforcement grants, they don’t just cut those, they eliminate them. The Byrne Formula, which are to sustain law enforcement and Drug-Free Schools—they eliminate them. They don’t just cut them; they eliminate them. Vocational education—they don’t just cut it; they eliminate it. The COPS Program, as I indicated, is cut 78 percent; firefighter grants, cut 55 percent; essential air service, cut 54 percent.

I am not talking Washington-talk about cuts. I am not talking about restricting the rate of growth. I am talking about cutting from what was promised and from programs that are glaringly apparent in the easily discerned outlines of its proposed 2007 budget. Cuts in vital programs that benefit the poor and middle class, continuing tax relief for the very wealthy.

If budgets are, as some contend and we would agree, moral documents, then this one suggests we have abandoned a basic sense of right and wrong and any notion that we are living in America. It is punitive to those earning over $1 million, which is one one-hundredth as much as is going to tax cuts for those who earn over $1 million a year.

I want to end as I began. I believe the fundamental threat of our time is the growth of the debt. This is the threat. This budget absolutely fails to face up to that growing and burgeoning debt.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. Voisinovich). The Senator from New Hampshire.

Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, just to briefly respond because obviously the Senator has made numerous points.
here, I agree with some, and with some I disagree. But I think this focus on the debt is an interesting approach and one which I can certainly be sympathetic to, and I would be more sympathetic to it if during the markup on this bill we had amendments offered from the other side that would have significantly reduced the debt. That is not what we had. We had amendments which would increase the spending of the Federal Government by about $150 billion in entitlements, amounts about $16 billion approximately on discretionary accounts for this coming year, and then they raise taxes or proposed raising taxes in order to meet those new spending initiatives.

If you are going to reduce the debt, you can do it, of course, by raising taxes. The last group of charts the Senator highlighted would be one way, and maybe the alternative they could seek on their side of the aisle would be where they would raise taxes by $41 billion, $41 billion out of $268 billion. They can raise taxes across the board, or they can raise taxes on specific groups. All of that is possible to reduce the debt, but that is not what they offered in committee. What they offered in committee was to increase spending on all sorts of initiatives and then raise taxes to cover the spending, which does nothing significant to reduce the debt.

You also reduce the deficit by reducing the deficit because every deficit dollar is added to the debt. That is what we have attempted to do in this bill. We will attempt and we intend to reduce the deficit in half over 4 years on this bill, and we do it by aggressively addressing discretionary spending.

The Senator is suggesting there are other places not mentioned in this bill, such as the AMT. Yes, we do not address the AMT. I believe the AMT, if it is going to be addressed, should be addressed in the context of tax reform where it is a revenue-neutral event. I would also point out the vast majority of AMT is paid for by people in high incomes; 75 percent of the AMT tax, I believe, comes from people with incomes over $100,000.

First they put up a chart that says high-income individuals should have their taxes increased, and then they put up a chart that says we don’t account for cutting taxes on high-income individuals. There is a little bit of inconsistency there, in my opinion. But the AMT fix should not be done in a vacuum. It should not be a hit on the Treasury to the tune of almost $1 trillion. It should be done in the context of major revenue reform, which allows us to adjust it so if low-income people or moderate-income people—there are no low-income people covered by AMT, but if moderate-income people find themselves falling in the AMT, the tax laws would be bumpered so they would be taken out of that, but at the same time we adjust in other areas to make the laws more fair and maintain the revenue base. That is the way to address that. You don’t just unilaterally act on that. So I don’t find that to be a compelling case they are making.

They make the case on Social Security. We would have been happy to put Social Security in here if the other side of the aisle would do the same. So I am kind of held down by any Social Security reform—which we really need, we need Social Security reform—shut it down before it even got up to the Congress.

The President went around the country talking about ideas. He put everything on the table, and the other side of the aisle just started attacking him for even addressing the issue of Social Security. We know Social Security is a serious problem. We know it. But there is no point in moving forward on it if the other side of the aisle has an attitude that we are not going to do anything, we are just going to use it as a political club, which was exactly the approach that was taken when the President addressed it. So that is hard to accept as a valid thing that should be in this budget, Social Security.

This budget does not assume the present tax increases after the budget window which is different from the President’s budget, so it is a different approach we have taken in this bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The time of the Senator has expired.

Mr. GREGG. How could my time possibly expire? I think I have 25 hours.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The time until 11:30 was evenly divided. So it is out before 11:30.

Mr. GREGG. It is only 11:25.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from North Dakota has the remainder of the time.

Mr. CONRAD. I will be happy—maybe we can make an adjustment here, so the Senator can finish his thoughts and then I would have a brief time to respond.

Mr. GREGG. That sounds good to me. Why don’t we extend this for 15 minutes? Divide the time equally?

Mr. CONRAD. Could we do it for 12?

Mr. GREGG. Whichever. Twelve is fine to me.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. CONRAD. We can split the time so the Senator has a chance to conclude his thoughts.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. GREGG. The context of my comments are basically directed to the issue of debt. I believe debt should be reduced. I believe the way you reduce debt is to begin by reducing the deficit, which is what the budget does. But the presentation that this budget uniquely aggravates the debt is really not viable in the context of the solutions which are being offered by the other side because none of the solutions being offered by the other side would reduce the debt, either. They are basically offering—or at least they did in committee—amendments which increase spending and increase taxes, thus taking resources which logically the other side would want to use to reduce the debt but isn’t, and spending the money. In the end, that doesn’t reduce the debt at all.

Mr. GREGG. I didn’t see in the markup at any proposals that would reduce the debt coming from the other side. We look forward to them offering a budget which accomplishes that. I would be most interested in such a budget because I do think it is important we do this. We tried to reduce the deficit in half over the next 4 years, which does take money and reduce the debt because any time you reduce the deficit, you reduce the debt. You are not adding to the debt.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the use of calculators be permitted on the floor Senate during consideration of the budget resolution.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent the following staff members from my staff and from Senator CONRAD’s staff be given all-access floor passes for the Senate floor during consideration of the budget resolution:

From the Republican staff: Cheri Ritter, Benzel, Molly Hearn; from the Democratic staff: John Righter, Steven Posner, Sarah Kuehl.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the staff of the Budget Committee be granted the Senate floor privileges for the duration of the consideration of the budget resolution:

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from North Dakota.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I go back to where I started. The debt is the threat. This budget before us increases the debt $600 billion a year, each and every year of its term. That is the reality. That is the budget we have before us. It is the obligation of the majority to offer a budget, and they have done so. It is our obligation to comment and critique their budget, which we have done.

The most important critique that I offered is that this budget explodes the debt. It is undeniable. It is clear. Their own numbers show that it explodes the debt.

Beyond that, the chairman references what happened in the committee. I believe he didn’t mention our first amendment—it will be our first amendment—and which is a pay-go amendment to restore budget discipline to require that if you want to have more mandatory spending, you have to pay for it. And if you want to have more tax cuts, you have to pay for them. But they defeated that budget discipline and they proposed this budget that explodes the debt.

In addition, every one of our amendments—I don’t know where the chairman got his number—that cost $129 billion less than the deficit, or broke the debt. We proposed $129 billion of funding for those amendments.

We reduced the buildup of deficit and debt by $6 billion. But that is not the point. The point is, what needs to be done—and I think the chairman might agree with me—to take on this threat. The only way it is going to happen is if we do it together. Your budget doesn’t do it. We are not going to offer a budget that is going to do it because if you offer one on your own, you could vote against it. If we offered one on our own, we couldn’t pass it on our own—certainly not in the minority.

I have come to the conclusion—I have talked to colleagues over the weekend, and I believe the chairman may share this view—that the only way we are going to take on this debt is to march together. It has become so clear that we have to pay for the roads, the schools, the hospitals, the cayman Islands and that is where those companies want to show their profits?

Shame on those companies, shame on the Cayman Islands, shame on us for allowing that to happen, and shame on us for collecting the revenue that is due under the current system. The vast majority of us pay what we owe. The vast majority of companies pay what they owe. But we have an increasing number of individuals and an increasing number of companies that aren’t, and we ought to go after them. It is $350 billion a year. The revenue commissioner said we could get at least $50 billion to $100 billion of that amount without fundamentally changing the relationship of the revenue service to the taxpayers of the company.

Social Security reform: What the President proposed is not what I would consider Social Security reform. Once again, he was going to borrow the money. He was going to borrow hundreds of billions of dollars to change the Social Security system. Of course we opposed that. Not only was he going to borrow hundreds of billions of dollars, but he himself was going to cut benefits. We opposed that. I am proud to have opposed that.

I am not for any more of these plans that explode the debt of the country. We have had enough of that. The debt does represent an enormous threat to the economic security of America. I believe that.

Could I be advised of the time remaining, how it is divided?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Ohio does not object.

Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that as time is running during morning business, the next hour and half also be running against the budget bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Ohio does not object. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. GREGG. I thank the Senator for his courtesy.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is more than welcome.

Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, I understand that will be equally divided.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. That is correct.

Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. THOMAS). The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Ms. COLLINS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that as time is running during morning business, the next hour and half also be running against the budget bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Ohio does not object.

Without objection, it is so ordered.

Ms. COLLINS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to speak for up to 15 minutes in morning business.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The time is yielded.

MORNING BUSINESS

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, there will be a period for the transaction of morning business from 11:30 a.m. until 1:30 p.m.

Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that during the period of morning business it be deemed the clock is running on the budget bill, and the time will be charged equally.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, we urge our colleagues who want to make a statement on the budget, this is the time where they could come and do that. We are going to be working very hard. The chairman and I are trying to develop a plan that would give people certainty and that we would have time agreements to shorten the amount of time on each amendment so we could get more amendments concluded before we would vote on this. I think that would dramatically improve the quality of the debate. I think it would improve the quality of experience for Members of this body.

The chairman and I have talked about this. Perhaps he would want to comment on what we are trying to do as well, so we alert colleagues and their staff that we are going to be coming to them with relatively short time agreements on amendments with a certainty of schedule so that we can try to get our business conducted to the extent we can before we begin the vote-arama.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Acting as the Presiding Officer and as a Member of the Senate, the Senator from Ohio objects.

Objection is heard.

Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that as time is running during morning business, the next hour and half also be running against the budget bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Ohio does not object. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. GREGG. I thank the Senator for his courtesy.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is more than welcome.

Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, I understand that will be equally divided.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. That is correct.

Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. THOMAS). The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Ms. COLLINS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that as time is running during morning business, the next hour and half also be running against the budget bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Ohio does not object.

Without objection, it is so ordered.

Ms. COLLINS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to speak for up to 15 minutes in morning business.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Maine is recognized.

Ms. COLLINS. I thank the Chair.

(The remarks of Ms. COLLINS pertaining to the introduction of S. 2400 are printed in today’s RECORD under “Statements on Introduced Bills and Joint Resolutions.”)

Ms. COLLINS. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. ALLEN). Without objection, it is so ordered.
Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, I understand this is fiscal responsibility week on the Democratic side of the aisle. It is a good time to talk about that and to talk about the strength of the American economy. It is certainly no secret to any in Congress or to the American people. The Government and the Republican Congress have stimulated the private sector, allowed our country to work its way through some of the most dramatic setbacks imaginable, from the first big terrorist attack—hopefully the last one on our soil—corporate scandals, the stock market bubble bursting, all of that, and yet our economy is roaring.

What do our good friends on the other side of the aisle think the prescription is in the wake of this ripooring economy and all of this success? We saw some of it in the Committee on the Budget last week. First, they want to increase the discretionary cap on this budget we are now considering, increase that by $19 billion. In other words, have some more spending over and above what the President has recommended and what the budget that came out of the Committee on the Budget recommends, $873 billion. They want to increase that by $19 billion. They also would have mandatory spending increases of $309 billion. The President just got through signing, after Congress passed, a deficit reduction bill to reduce mandatory spending by $40 billion over the next 5 years and the Democrats on the Committee on the Budget want to increase it by $109 billion. That will wipe out all those savings and add another $50 billion or so on top of it.

Our Democratic friends also proposed tax increases of $134 billion in the Committee last week. It strikes me that their solution of this stunningly robust economy we find ourselves with is to tax and spend, the old formula.

I hope we will not go down that road as we move toward passing the budget this week. We have an opportunity to demonstrate that we are willing to restrain ourselves, that we are willing to cap the rate of discretionary spending. We will have that vote at the end of the week. I hope it will be successful. I yield the floor.

CONCLUSION OF MORNING BUSINESS

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, morning business is closed.

CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET FOR THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT FOR FISCAL YEAR 2007—Continued

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the hour of 1:30 p.m. having arrived, the Senate will resume consideration of the budget resolution, which the Senate ordered reported.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A concurrent resolution (S. Con. Res. 8), setting forth the congressional budgets of the United States Government for fiscal year 2007 and including the appropriate budgetary levels for fiscal years 2006 and 2008 through 2011.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from North Dakota.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I listened to the very able Senator from Kentucky. His description of this budget does not quite fit the budget I have seen, both in the Senate and in the committee. He talks about deficit reduction. There is no deficit reduction here. Let’s be clear with people. There is no deficit reduction.

He talks about the deficit reduction bill offered last year by the Republican Congress. They called it "reduction," but there was no deficit reduction. They cut taxes $70 billion, cut spending $40 billion. Do the math. That did not reduce the deficit. It increased the deficit. Is the deficit going to be lower this year after their deficit reduction bill? Or is it going to be higher? It is going to be higher. There is more deficit after their deficit reduction bill of last year. Not only is there more deficit, but there is a whole lot more debt.

Let me say to my colleagues, here is what is happening under our colleagues’ fiscal plan. Here is what is happening to the debt of the country. When President Bush came in at the end of his first year—we do not hold him responsible for the first year because that is operating under the previous year’s Presidency—at the end of his first year the debt was $5.8 trillion. At the end of this year, the debt will be $8.6 trillion. If this budget is adopted, this 5-year budget, at the end of the 5 years the debt will be $11.8 trillion. And they are talking about deficit reduction? Where? Where is it? Show me. Show me where the deficit has gone down. This is the debt of the country. The debt is skyrocketing under their plans.

Now the Senator talks about their deficit reduction plan of last year. This is last year. The deficit was $319 billion. The Congressional Budget Office says if this budget is adopted, this 5-year budget, at the end of the 5 years the debt will be $371 billion. What about going forward? What will happen going forward? Here is what will happen, going forward, to the debt of the country. They say the deficit will go down each and every year of this budget. Well, not quite. The last year they say it will be $319 billion. They claim the deficit will be going down. But, of course, they have left out some pretty big things. They have left out any war costs past 2007. They have left out any cost to fix the alternative minimum tax passed this year. They have left out any cost to fix the alternative minimum tax passed this year. Over 10 years, that costs $1 trillion to fix. That is a big item. They have left out the associated interest costs of those items, which is "other" on the chart. They have also left out the money they are taking from Social Security each and every year of this budget, all of which gets added to the debt, all of which has to be paid back.

So what would it all up, here is how much the debt is going to grow under the plan before the Senate: In 2007, it will go up $680 billion. Not the deficit they are talking about of $319 billion; the debt will go up $680 billion. The next year it will go up $656 billion; the next year up $632 billion; the next year it will go up $622 billion; the next year it is going up to $662 billion.

Is there any improvement here? They are talking about deficit reduction. They are talking about their improving the fiscal picture of the country. No, they are not. The debt is going to grow every year by more than $600 billion. The result is going to be at the end of this period, the debt of our Nation will reach $11.8 trillion. Now I project at the end of this year it will be $8.6 trillion. By the way, the way they are getting ready to increase the debt limit by almost $800 billion in 1 year. We are going to have that vote this week.

So when they say they are reducing the deficit, they are reducing the reduction in the deficit going on here. In the deficit reduction package they say they had last year, the deficit went up, and the deficit is going up under their deficit reduction package. So let's be straight with people.

Now, my colleague called the economy "stunningly robust." No, the economy is not stunningly robust. In fact, the unemployment rate just went up. The unemployment rate just went up from 4.7 to 4.8 percent. That is not good news. That is going the wrong way.

But I think of more concern is, if you compare this recovery to the nine previous recoveries since World War II, what you see is this one is far weaker than the average of the nine previous recoveries.

Let's look at what the numbers show. Here is real median household income, as shown on this chart. Now, this would tell us whether the economy is doing well. If this is such a robust economy, why isn't household income going up? It is not going up. It is going down. Real median household income has declined 4 years in a row.

To determine what is happening with this economy, we went and looked at all the recoveries since World War II. Here is what we found. On average, at this stage of recovery, the economy would be growing at 3.2 percent a year. That is what we have seen in the nine previous recoveries: 3.2 percent growth; this recovery: 2.8 percent. It is weaker than the average of the nine previous recoveries.

That is not the only indicator that things are not going as well as they have been seen in other recoveries. For the nine other recoveries since World War II, this dotted line on the chart shows business investment. The black line shows this recovery. It is 62 percent below the average of the nine previous recoveries.

My colleague just talked about how strong job growth has been. No, job growth has not been strong. We went through nine recoveries since World War II. This dotted red line on the chart shows the average. This black line shows this recovery. And, look, we are 6.6 million private sector jobs short of the typical recovery. So when they say things are going well, I ask what not what any serious analysis reveals.

What any serious analysis reveals is that this recovery is lagging in a substantial way behind the nine recoveries since World War II. It is lagging in business investment by 62 percent. It is lagging in economic growth—3.2 percent is the average of the nine previous recoveries, and in this period, 2.8 percent. On job creation, we are 6.6 million private sector jobs short behind the average of the nine other recoveries since World War II.

But I said this morning the debt is the threat. And here it is, as shown on this chart. Our friends on the other side have been in charge since 2001. This is the record. This is what has happened under their fiscal plan.

The President told us if we adopted his fiscal plan, he would have maximum paydown of the debt. Remember? He was going to virtually eliminate the deficit and have maximum paydown of the debt. Not only has there been no reduction in the debt, the debt has skyrocketed, and the debt has gone up approaching—well, with this latest increase that is being sought that they want to vote on this week—the debt under this President will have gone up $3 trillion. If we adopt this plan, it is going to go up another $3 trillion.

That is the hard reality of what we see before us. If you love debt, you are going to love this budget plan. Our friends on the other side accuse us of tax and spend. They are guilty of spend and borrow, spend and borrow, spend and borrow. Borrow and spend, borrow and spend, spend and borrow—that is their policy, to drive us deep into debt.

As I showed on the Senate floor, one of the most alarming things is, increasing dramatically is the debt. We have proven they are not going to do it. And if they wanted to do it, I do not believe they could do it on their own. I think this is going to take us working together. And the sooner we get together and the sooner we face up to this, the better off our country will be. At some point we have to take this on. This budget does not do it.

My own belief is, the only way we are going to take this on is to do it together. Democrats and Republicans, Democrats certainly cannot do it. We are in the minority. I do not think Republicans can do it alone because they have proven they are not going to do it. And if they wanted to do it, I do not believe they could do it on their own. I think this is going to take us working together. And the sooner we get together and the sooner we face up to this, the better off our country will be.

I thank the Chair, and yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Hampshire.

Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, I join in the desire of the Senator from North Dakota to move forward in a bipartisan way.

We could start by approving this budget in a bipartisan way. But independent of that, I agree, we—and we have talked about this; actually I think we are the only two people talking about this, but we have talked about trying to develop a framework where we could actually address this issue.

But that is a global settlement. I would like to see it done. It is going to have to address Medicare. It is going to have to address Social Security. It is going to have to address revenues. And it needs to be done sooner rather than later. It is such a large idea that it is not going to occur this week.

This week, what is going to occur, hopefully, is a step forward in the exercise of disciplining ourselves through budget processing, setting out a blueprint which defines where the Federal Government is going to spend money, how it is going to spend money, and constrains the Federal Government, especially on the discretionary side of the ledger. I would like to have constraints on the Federal Government cuttle bit in its rate of growth on the entitlement side of the ledger, but that is not possible, primarily because I get no votes from the other side of the aisle.

The Senator from North Dakota has made good points talking about economic statistics relative to what the Bush administration and the Republican leadership have done relative to this economy. His structure and definition of this, it is sort of dire, this economy. Well, that is hard to accept on its face. This is not a dire economy. In fact, it is a fairly robust economy that has gone through very significant growth now for 5 years.

We have had 17 consecutive quarters of expansion of this economy. That is big, 17 consecutive quarters. We came out of one of the most difficult times, from an economic standpoint, in the history of this country, probably the most difficult time in the postdepression period, when we had the largest bubble in history, the Internet bubble collapse, and when we were attacked and America was at war and found the essence of our economy—Wall Street—basically destroyed in the World Trade attack.

So they were double blows to our economy, and yet we have responded as a government the right way. We cut taxes. We gave people an incentive to go out there and be productive and create jobs. The response has been that people went out and were doing better or worse—has increased $1,905 since President Bush has been in office, which has been for about 5 years, 4½ years.

Under President Clinton, what was the increase in personal income, the last 4 years when he was in office, during this period, when we were going through this economic bubble, real disposable income only went up $1,500. So this President has exceeded the rate of growth, in real disposable income, of the Clinton final 4 years, for which we hear so much about what a great job President Clinton did on the economy. And except for the fact he did not control the bubble, the fact is, the economy did pretty well during his administration.

Real hourly compensation has gone up 8.9 percent during this same period, whereas if you compare it to President Clinton second term, real hourly wage growth went up only three-tenths of 1 percent.

The rate of growth of a person's actual wages has jumped dramatically in comparison to the Bush years versus the last 4 years of President Clinton. This is true economic growth. It is hard to deny that. You can deny it, you can be pessimistic about it, but the fact is the economy is doing very well, especially when one takes into account the fact that we are fighting a war on terrorism in the middle of all this, which has been a fairly significant stress on our economy, and that we had the largest natural disaster in the history of our country—the San Francisco earthquake of 1906—in the Katrina and Rita storms in the Gulf States which essentially wiped out one of the great engines of our economy, the Gulf States, especially in the area of energy production. Still the economy grows.

In fact, interest rates—I remember the Senator from North Dakota making a statement, I think it was last year, maybe the year before, saying that interest rates were going to have to go up because the Federal Government was crowding out borrowing—haven't gone up. Interest rates continue at a historic low, but they are still well below what is the historic mean for interest rates.

So the economy is not only not dire, it is rather robust. It is not big because of the fact that we made the right decisions at the beginning of this administration on the issue of tax policy. We gave people an incentive to be productive, an incentive to invest, to raise taxes. But that will have no jobs built, and jobs translate into more revenue for the Federal Government.

We have gone through the charts of how much the revenue to the Federal Government is jumping as a result of this economic activity. It is a consistent statement made by the Senator from North Dakota that the economy is terrible, but I don't think it is a correct statement.

Furthermore, this budget is obviously not a magic wand. It doesn't have the capacity to say: Eliminate the debt or eliminate the growth of the debt as we fight this war and we face issues of financial pressure. But without this budget, the debt will be significantly larger. In fact, as has been said before, spending will go up if the Democratic proposals that came out of committee are allowed to pass. Taxes will also go up because they propose tax increases. But that will have no impact on the debt. That is a wash, according to their representation. They spend $120 billion, and they raise taxes $125 billion or something like that, so they may have jumped $5 billion over 5 years back for deficit reduction. We usually underestimate the spending in those programs and we usually overestimate the revenue, especially when you are talking about loophole closing. They definitely greatly overstate the revenue. So I suspect we would have found the debt would have increased, too.

But giving them the benefit of the doubt, there is no initiative here on the floor—and there was no initiative in committee—which significantly addresses the debt other than the budget that is before us which puts a hard freeze on nondefense discretionary spending. That addresses the debt. That means that next year you will add less to the deficit than you would have if you didn't have that hard freeze. It is not a big number in the context of the overall issue, but it is a big number by New Hampshire standards and it represents billions of dollars which will not be added to the deficit and therefore not added to the debt.

I yield the floor.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, the Senator from New Hampshire has very ably used the oldest debate tactic known to man, which is the straw man argument. He suggested I have said that the economy is terrible. Those are not my words. I have not described the economy as terrible. I have described the economy as not performing as well as it has in other recoveries since World War II.

Let me repeat: Real median household income has declined 4 straight years. That is not a sign of economic strength; that is a sign of economic weakness. The economic growth in this recovery has substantially lagged the economic growth we saw in the other nine recoveries since World War II. In the other recoveries since World War II, economic growth averaged 3.2 percent. In this recovery, it is averaging 2.8 percent.

On business investment, this dotted line is the average of nine previous recessions. This recovery is the black line. It is 62 percent behind what we have in the other nine recoveries since World War II. That is also true of job creation. The red dotted line is job creation and the average of nine recessions since World War II. The black line is this recovery, 6.6 million private sector job losses.

The most dramatic result is this: This is how our friends have propped up the economy. They have done it by running up the biggest debt in the history of America. Their proposal in this budget is to keep on doing it, more debt on top of debt that is already at record levels. When this President came in, at the end of his first year the debt was $5.8 trillion. At the end of this year, it will be $9.6 trillion, headed for $11.8 trillion if this budget is adopted. That is the wrong course for America.

At the end of this year, the national debt was $5.8 trillion. At the end of this year, it will be $9.6 trillion, headed for $11.8 trillion if this budget is adopted. That is the wrong course for America. Their proposal in this budget is to keep on doing it, more debt on top of debt that is already at record levels. When this President came in, at the end of his first year the debt was $5.8 trillion. At the end of this year, it will be $9.6 trillion, headed for $11.8 trillion if this budget is adopted. That is the wrong course for America.

Money isn’t everything, but it is a measure of a nation’s priorities. Budgets are moral documents. They represent who we are and what we value. Just 6 weeks ago, the President delivered a State of the Union Address that gave hope to many of us in Congress for a budget that meets the needs of the American people. The President told us that night that a hopeful society responds to the struggles of citizens in times of suffering and emergency and stays at it until they are back on their feet. But the budget before us tells a different story. It fails to meet the security needs of Americans who are looking for real security in the face of terrorism.

We have seen the failed response to Hurricane Katrina, the failure in Iraq, a failing grade from the 9/11 Commission, failure on the security of our ports, failure in curbing nuclear power in Iran and North Korea, failure after failure when it comes to our national security. But you would never know it from this budget. Does it prepare us for the next disaster? Does it provide the resources needed for real non-proliferation? The answer to each of these questions is no. The administration and the Republicans may talk about national security, but the real record is one of mistake and failure.

This budget is a failure, too, when it comes to meeting the needs of our families here at home. When it comes to healing the sick, feeding the hungry, caring for the poor, the elderly, or the disabled, this budget fails short. When it comes to strengthening our economy, opening the doors of opportunity, creating new jobs, and equipping America to compete in the global economy, this budget again falls short. Instead, it cuts vital programs on which people rely and offers even more tax cuts to the wealthy.

Franklin Roosevelt had it right: The test of our progress is not whether we add more to the abundance of those who have much, it is whether we provide enough for those who have too little. This budget does none of that. Countless families are facing serious problems. They are being hit on all sides with higher health costs, higher heating costs, higher college costs, higher gas prices. Their jobs and pensions are in danger. Wages are at an all-time low. They are caught in a prescription drug nightmare because of a bill that put the drug industry and the insurance industry ahead of patients.

These are hard-working men and women who play by the rules and take care of their families, but this budget lets them down. Instead of investing in education, it cuts school programs. Instead of helping the elderly with their heating bills, it slashed funding for low-income heating programs. Instead of training workers for new jobs, it eliminates job training and vocational education programs. Instead of helping

SEC. 311. DEFICIT-NEUTRAL RESERVE FUND FOR CHRONIC CARE CASE MANAGEMENT.

If the Senate Committee on Finance reports a bill or joint resolution, or an amendment is offered thereto or a conference report is submitted thereon, that would provide $1,750,000,000 to the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS) to create a demonstration project or program that designates a case manager to coordinate the care of chronically-ill and other high-cost Medicare beneficiaries in traditional fee-for-servicing Medicare, the Chairman of the Senate Committee on the Budget may revise the allocative, aggregates, and other appropriate levels and limits in this resolution by the amount provided in such measure for that purpose provided that such legislation would not increase the deficit for the period of fiscal years 2007 through 2011.

Mr. GREGG. This is an amendment to make corrections to the resolution so it conforms to the resolution as ordered."
our young people afford college, it cuts college aid. But it provides for $1.7 trillion in tax cuts over 10 years. Those are the wrong priorities for America. Compare that to the recent cuts to Medicaid. Compare that with the $379 million cut in heating assistance for the poor. Compare that with $200 million less to education. Compare that with the $456 million needed to help disadvantaged high school students reach college under the TRIO, Upward Bound, or Talent Search Programs. Yes, a budget is a statement of priorities, and we have seen where this administration’s priorities are on health. The Medicaid Program is key to promoting a real culture of life in America. Medicaid provides care to a third of all mothers giving birth, including the prenatal, pediatric care their children need to be healthy.

Mere hours after the President declared in the State of the Union Address that the Government would meet its promises to provide health care for the poor and elderly, the President signed a bill to impose draconian cuts on the Medicaid Program. According to the Congressional Budget Office, that bill will cause 45,000 poor Americans to lose coverage over the next 5 years, and 65,000 will lose coverage within 10 years, and 60 percent of those losing coverage will be children.

In Maryland, a quarter of families subject to increased premiums disenrolled. In Pennsylvania, high co-pays caused disenrollment, and 67 percent of those disenrolled became uninsured. Because of these Medicaid cuts, 13 million Medicaid beneficiaries will have to pay more for their prescriptions over the next 5 years, and 20 million will have to pay more over the next 10 years.

When copayments rise for the poorest patients, health declines. A study in the Journal of the American Medical Association that increased copayments for medications for poor families caused an 88-percent increase in adverse events, such as heart attacks and strokes, and caused a 78-percent increase in emergency room visits.

This is what happens. If you cut back on providing assistance with copays for individuals who otherwise would be eligible, we are finding out, you end up paying a great deal more out of the health care budget, in addition to increasing the pain, anxiety and difficulties these families are facing.

A single mother with two children who makes $8 an hour currently pays $3 when she visits the doctor and does not have any cost sharing when her children go to the pediatrician. Under the new law, when her child goes to the pediatrician with an ear infection, she may be charged $20. When she goes to a doctor for treatment and a test for diabetes, she will pay $50. She may have to pay as much as $2,250 a year for Medicaid.

Do you know what happens? Those parents, when they have that sick child who has the ear infection or has that cough, are thinking: Is this child $40 sick or $20 sick? Is this child $40 sick or $20 sick? Is it in the emergency room, is this child $125 sick? Is my child $125 sick? I think I will wait tonight. Sure, they are coughing, and sure they are in pain, sure they are suffering, but I am working at a low paying job, and I have to make the decision about whether I can afford care.

For a single mother of two earning the minimum wage, the new Medicaid law imposes additional cost sharing on her children. They would now face copayments on certain prescriptions, and these copayments would, for the first time, be indexed to the rate of medical inflation, which is higher than the general inflation. And on minimum wage, her income would not even keep up with general inflation since the minimum wage has not been increased since 1997.

To add to these damaging reductions, the President’s budget proposes another $14 billion in reductions to Medicaid. This budget has not adopted these serious cuts, but time and again, we have seen how the House-Senate conferees follow the administration’s proposal rather than the Senate’s measure.

The President’s budget proposes $36 billion in Medicare cuts over the next 5 years and $105 billion over the next 10 years. This means higher premiums for seniors and the disabled and will result in reductions of quality of care at hospitals and clinics.

In Massachusetts, President Bush’s Medicare proposal will mean that our hospitals will have to cut their budgets by more than $400 million, home health agencies by $50 million, and nursing homes by $150 million.

Again, the Senate resolution has not adopted these reductions, but we know where the conference report is likely to end up.

In addition, the budget resolution includes a deeply troubling procedural barrier to fixing the problems in the Medicare drug program. The Republican budget effectively torpedoes any sensible measure to improve the benefit provided to seniors by requiring any such improvements to overcome a point of order.

The budget resolution has adopted major reductions to public health programs. Under these reductions, Massachusetts would lose millions of dollars for programs that protect the health and safety of our people. That cut means 17 rape crisis centers across our State will face significant financial hardship, and our programs on violence prevention and suicide would effectively be eliminated.

The cuts mean that programs to keep our children healthy would be eliminated. Programs to screen newborns as early as possible for hearing loss would be eliminated and so would our State Earthquake Program. That means 59,000 children would not get basic dental screening, and over 35 programs that train health care providers to deliver care in underserved areas and support diversity and proficiency in health care workers would be eliminated.

Although we are living with the threat of natural and manmade disasters, the proposed cuts would compromise our emergency medical services and impair the system’s ability to function as a safety net for catastrophe.

Under the chairman’s budget, NIH funding will barely keep up with inflation. Last year’s budget was cut so our medical research programs are still suffering setbacks. Over the last 2 years, the NIH budget has increased by an average of 1 percent per year. Not since 1970 has the NIH been so consistently underfunded. If the NIH budget was simply to keep up with inflation since 1970, we would have to increase the budget by another $1.8 billion.

This chart indicates the Bush administration cuts to vital NIH research. We see the important increases during early 2000, 2001, 2002, and 2003. Then we see significant cuts. Under the President’s budget, the NIH budget would be flat for the second year in a row. That hasn’t happened in more than half a century.

This is the century of the life sciences. With all that we know about the slicing of the gene, DNA, and all the possibilities of stem cell research, most researchers believe that the opportunities to make enormous progress on the diseases which affect every family in this country: cancer, Alzheimer’s, or heart disease, are immeasurable. But we are not going to have those promises fulfilled if we see the kinds of reductions that we have seen in this budget.

We hear a great deal about the challenges we are facing to compete internationally. We are told we need to be an innovative society, and an innovative society needs innovative life sciences. That is certainly an area where we are possibly failing to provide resources for the basic research. But, no, we are cutting back in these extremely important areas. These are the areas in which we are cutting back: We have seen reductions in the Cancer Institute, a reduction in the Heart, Lung, and Blood Institute, reductions in research in diabetes and kidney diseases. We know that $1 out of $4 spent under Medicare are spent on diabetics; $1 out of $10 in the general health area are spent on diabetics.

When we make breakthroughs in the diabetes treatments, we are going to see an enormous change for the people who are affected by this disease, and we are going to have an enormous impact in terms of total health care costs.
 But we are cutting back on those areas of research and we are cutting back on mental health and cutting back on child health and development. 18 of the 19 NIH institutions will suffer cuts compared to the rate of inflation, which means that NIH will fall behind in the race for new cures.

 I don’t believe those are America’s priorities, but they are the priorities of this President, and we are going to find out if they are the priorities of this Senate.

 Mr. President, how much time do I have remaining?

 The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator has approximately 4½ minutes remaining.

 Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, I want to address the issue of education. This budget also fails to make education a priority. In this shrinking world, education is an even greater priority than ever before, and our budget should reflect that.

 As a nation, we must invest in Americans by ensuring access to the highest quality educational opportunities. We need to have the best educated, the best trained, the most sophisticated individuals, and we need to nourish the capacities of every person in the Nation.

 Yet the President’s budget has proposed the biggest cut to education in the 26-year history of the Department of Education.

 Here is what we have seen on the No Child Left Behind Act—I will have an opportunity in the debate to go through this in greater detail—but the commitment to No Child Left Behind, an Act signed into law by the President, is to take every child who is not up to proficiency and to make sure they are going to have the support systems to get them up to proficiency—smaller class sizes, better trained teachers, supplementary services, and greater involvement of parents in these various programs.

 However, what we have seen is that we are not living up to that commitment—instead, we are leaving children behind because of inadequate funding.
 This year alone, 3.5 million to 4 million of the nation’s students will be left behind.

 We are seeing now under the current program that 29 States are going to lose Title I funding, which are funds for the schools in greatest need. Under this budget, there are going to be some 29 States, including the State of Virginia, that are going to lose funding.

 Many of the programs that the President has slated for elimination—GEAR
 UP, TRIO Upward Bound and Talent Search—have been incredibly successful in terms of providing students who might not have had the opportunity to continue their education with the important resources to do so. In the TRIO Upward Bound program we find that when measured against students of similar backgrounds, nearly 70 percent of the students who participate in these programs go on to higher education. If we take a similar review of the students who don’t participate, only about 54 percent of them attend colleges.

 Now let’s look at what is happening in higher education. This chart shows the cost of attendance at a 4-year pub-college versus the maximum Pell grant. In 2001, we look at the gap between the cost of going to a 4-year pub-college, and we look at it today, and we see the average student today is paying about 8,000 dollars. We have about 400,000 young Americans who would be able to go to college and who want to go college, who have the intellectual abil-ty to go to college, but who just cannot afford it. And those numbers are increasing dramatically over time.

 At an appropriate time, I intend to offer an amendment, hopefully with my colleague Senator MENENDEZ and others, that will increase the maximum Pell grant to $4,500, to $4,500, restore the eliminations of TRIO, GEAR UP, the LEAP program, and Perkins loans, and further increases the funding for all student aid programs, including what they call the SEOG, work study and graduate education, and restores cuts in vocational education and job training programs.

 The cuts in the job training program make no sense whatsoever. We have 73,000 jobs that are going begging in my State of Massachusetts. We have 156,000 people who are looking for jobs. What is missing is the connection between the training of those people who want the jobs and the jobs that are there, and in this particular budget, we are cutting those training programs, cutting the education programs, cutting the training programs, and even reducing the title I programs that are so essential.

 The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator has used 20 minutes.

 Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, I thank the Chair, and I suggest the absence of a quorum.

 The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr.
 ALLEN). The clerk will call the roll.

 The assistant legislative clerk proceded to call the roll.

 Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for

 The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without
 objection, it is so ordered.

 Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, how much additional time does the Senator need?

 Mr. KENNEDY. An additional 4 minutes.

 Mr. CONRAD. I yield an additional 4 minutes to the Senator from Massachusetts on the resolution.

 Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, please let me know when I have 30 seconds left.

 At some time, we will have an opportunity to see the Senate vote for an increase in the areas of education, offset by closing a loophole that has been accepted here in the Senate by 80 votes or more that are available out there at the present time.

 As many of us have seen, in a recent report, it was stated that about 650,000 engineers will graduate from China this year. There will be 330,000 engineers graduating from India, and 72,000 graduates from Russia. For example, 45 percent of the engineers from China—and half of those are foreign students.
 We are falling further and further behind.
 We are not talking just about outsourcing, we are talking about outsourcing basic research. When we find IBM opening up their research centers in Bangalore, Intel opening up their re-centers in Baltimore, it is clear that 350 engineers over there, we have to ask:
 Where are we here in the United States?
 Are we giving the appropriate kinds of support for students to continue their education?

 We have seen the request and the statements that have been made in a bipartisan way by Senator ALEXANDER and Senator BINGAMAN, the reports of the Academy of Engineers, the National Academy of Sciences, all of which say that we need to respond here in the United States the way we responded at the time the Russians sent up Sputnik, and that is to have a major investment in the young people of this country.

 Yes, we can give focus and attention just narrowly to math and science, and certainly we ought to provide that, but in order to really meet the challenge we are facing because of globalization, we have to make sure we have the best trained, best educated young people that are ready to meet these challenges. We need to equip every single American with the ability to compete and succeed, and we need to equip our country to be able to deal with globalization and ensure that we are well-educated, that we will be an innovative economy, and that we will provide innovative research. And when we have an innovative economy, we will have an innovative defense.

 This is a matter of national security.
 This is a matter of national security and national defense, making sure that we are going to be at the cutting edge of all of the research that is possible over a period of years. That is going to be the issue in question on which we will have an opportunity to vote during the course of this debate and discussion, and I look forward to the opportunity to do so.

 Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

 The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

 The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

 Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for
 the quorum call be rescinded.

 The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without

 The Senator from North Dakota is recognized.

 Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I say to colleagues on our side of the aisle, what we are attempting to do is change

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—SENATE

the way we handle the budget debate this year and to do it in a way that will have more of the votes occur before the vote-a-thon on Thursday night. That is what Senator GREGG and I are attempting to accomplish. It is going to take cooperation.

What we are doing with our colleagues now, we have agreed on the first six amendments to be debated and the time for each. What we are asking our colleagues to do is agree to exchange time for certainty—certainty of when their amendment would be considered, certainty for the amount of time they would have but less time than they could have under the rules. People can disagree and they can say: No, we won’t agree to that. If they don’t agree, we are going to be right back in the soup, and we will be here until the wee hours Thursday. We don’t think that is the best way to debate this issue. We don’t think that is the best way for colleagues, all of our colleagues, best chance of having their amendments considered.

So I am sending this message out to colleagues: If we work together, I think we can improve this budget debate process and have a whole series of votes tomorrow afternoon that we won’t then have to have Thursday and do it again the next day and do it again the next day. That is what we are asking colleagues to do.

Mr. President, would 20 minutes be sufficient for the Senator from North Dakota?

Mr. DORGAN. Twenty minutes, yes. Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I yield 20 minutes to the Senator from North Dakota.

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, I have enjoyed the debate, the discussions today, and I have watched some of it from my office. The budget is a discussion about this country’s value systems. It is very simple. I have mentioned on the floor of the Senate that I think this is a proposition that if someone asked you to write an obituary for someone you had never met but who had died and the only information you had about that person was their check register, what would you write? Well, you would write a little something about what that person felt were his priorities in life, what was his or her value system. What did they invest in? What did they spend money on? That would represent their value system. That is what you would tell about that deceased person you never met.

One hundred years from now, we will all be dead. Historians will be able to look back at this moment and say: What were our values? What was our value system? By looking at the Federal budget, they will say: Here is what the United States held dear; here is what they invested in; here is what their priorities and their values were.

Now, because this budget represents a set of priorities and values, it is important to take a look at the first step in the budget process, and that is the budget sent to us by President.

I recall, in the year 2001, the debate on the floor of the Senate about the President’s fiscal policy. This President came to town at the time when we had a very large budget surplus for the first time in many decades, and were predicting surpluses in future years. The President said: Let’s give away this future surplus. This money doesn’t belong to the Government; it belongs to the taxpayers.

Some of us said: Well, we don’t have that surplus yet. Yes, the year that we go back in time but we don’t have the next 10 years as a surplus. What if something should happen? Maybe we should be a little conservative.

The President said: No, don’t worry about being conservative. Let’s give back money we don’t have but are expected to have because experts tell us we will have a big surplus during the next 10 years.

So the President got his way and gave very large tax cuts. The most significant amount went to the wealthiest Americans. And those large tax cuts which now eat quite a hole in our revenue stream for this Government turned out to be tax cuts, cutting revenue at the time when we hit a recession back in the 9/11 attacks in 2001, about 9 months, 8 months later; then we had the war on terrorism, the war in Iraq. So these large budget surpluses turned into very large budget deficits.

My colleague Senator CONRAD, has described with this chart where this administration will take us. This doesn’t take an advanced degree from Wharton School of Economics to understand. All you have to do is look at this red ink and evaluate where this fiscal policy is taking America.

I believe both political parties have contributed mightily to this country. These are political parties, Democrats and Republicans, that have a grand tradition of offering good ideas to America.

One of the things you used to be able to count on the Republicans for was fiscal policy. The caricature was that they wore wire-rimmed glasses and gray suits, they looked like they just swallowed a lemon, and you could always count on them saying: We demand a balanced budget; we demand a fiscal policy that adds up for the good and for the wealth and for this country. What they are doing now is that because of this emergency money. It is the case that we have been hit with a lot of things: a recession back in 2001—and no, President Bush didn’t inherit a recession. Let’s set the facts straight, if we can. The recession that began on this President’s watch, then 9/11, and then a series of other things, including Hurricane Katrina.

Not only do we have a fiscal policy that is completely and thoroughly out of balance, adding debt after debt to our children year after year, we also have a sea of incompetence almost never before seen. Let me describe that with respect to Hurricane Katrina.

This is a picture of Paul Mullinax. Do you see Paul there? He has a portable radio, he has a couple of bottles of water, it looks like maybe he has some chips, and I think this is a little stove. Paul is a really interesting guy. I met him, actually. He is an independent truck driver from Florida. As you see, he is sitting out in front of his truck. This is Paul’s truck. He was sitting with a long line of trucks, and that picture was taken on a base, Maxwell Air Force base in Montgomery, AL. There were 100 refrigerated trucks and nothing is happening with some of this emergency money. It is the case that we have been hit with a lot of things: a recession back in 2001—and no, President Bush didn’t inherit a recession. Let’s set the facts straight, if we can. The recession that began on this President’s watch, then 9/11, and then a series of other things, including Hurricane Katrina.

Mr. Mullinax was instructed by FEMA, in the post-Katrina Hurricane period, to take a truckload of ice from Newburgh, NY, to Montgomery, AL. Actually they said take it to Carthage, MO, first so he picked up the ice at Newburgh, NY, and then he went to Carthage, MO, and the minute he got there they told him you need to go to Maxwell Air Force Base in Montgomery, AL, so he got there.

Then Mr. Mullinax sat there in front of his refrigerator truck for 12 days with 100 other refrigeration trucks that were also hauling ice. The victims of Katrina needed the ice, but it just sat there at an Air Force base in Alabama.

So here was Paul, a Florida trucker who hauled the ice to Missouri, then was told you need to go to Alabama, and with 100 other truckers, Paul sat in front of his truck for 12 days. Then he was told by FEMA, you need to take this ice to Massachusetts. You think I am kidding, I hear someone giggling about that. The folks who were the victims of Katrina needed this ice but he was told by FEMA to deliver it to Gloucester, MA, and so he did. I don’t know what happened to the other trucks. There were 100 trucks lined up there.

It cost $15,000 to have the American taxpayers have Paul pick up ice in New York and deliver it to Massachusetts by way of Carthage, MO, and Maxwell Air Force Base, AL. In the meantime, the victims of Hurricane Katrina did not get any ice. So Paul sat. Then he went to Massachusetts to offload his ice. One load of ice, and there were hundreds and hundreds of such trucks—and just one load of ice cost $15,000, and was hailed from New York ultimately to Massachusetts.

A Mississippi sheriff, in the middle of all this, got so frustrated with the ice truck fiasco that he ended up commandeering his truck, loaded the ice and sent it directly to the relief centers for Hurricane Katrina. Sheriff Mickey McGee saw trucks sitting at a staging area in Camp Shelby, MS, so he ordered two of the trucks to be sent to Brooklyn and Sheepmow, MS, and a National Guard man tried to stop the sheriff from re-routing these two trucks. The sheriff had the guardsman arrested and got the trucks where they were to be offloaded for the victims, and now the sheriff is being prosecuted for a misdemeanor.

Why do I tell you all this? Because we are spending a massive amount of money with parts of a Government that are fundamentally incompetent. It is almost unbelievable to see the way some of this money is wasted. I think a lot of people take a look at the way some of this money is wasted. I think a lot of people look at the way some of this money is wasted.

One of the stories that was interesting to me was a nonprofit group which the day before had an 81-year-old woman show up applying for a job. This is a group that helps people get work. The 81-year-old woman wanted a job. Why? Because she lost her last job. What was her last job, at 81 years old? Cleaning office buildings at age 81.

Cleaning office buildings at age 81. The company downsized a little bit and she lost her job and now she wants another job. Why? Because her payment under Social Security was $170 a month. That is what she was left with. So she has to work at 81.

Should this budget reflect the needs of this woman who is cleaning buildings at 1 in the morning at age 81? Sure it should. There are a lot of people in this country who are vulnerable, who are in difficulty, who understand they need some help. A good budget, a thoughtful budget reaches out to those people. It is unbelievable. A thoughtful budget reaches out to those folks to say here is a helping hand. We want to help you up. This budget doesn’t do that.

This budget offers a helping hand only to the rich. In fact, every budget since 2001 has been a budget that says let’s give a helping hand—to those who have much. That is the way the budget has been working. It is unbelievable.

I want to put up another picture. I have used this a fair number of times. I do it because a budget is about how much revenue do you have and how much spending are you going to have. Let me tell you why we don’t have enough revenue, and why the President wants to cut funding for key programs, especially program cuts that will hurt the most vulnerable in our country.

This is a nice place called the Ugland House. It is a five-story white building on Church Street in the Cayman Islands. According to David Evans, an enterprising reporter who told the story about this building, this building houses 12,748 companies. The companies are not all there in person. I am not suggesting that. But this is the official home in the Cayman Islands, on Church Street, for 12,748 companies.

Do you know why? It is their mailing address. They need a formal mailing address in a tax haven country so they can run their income through a tax haven country and avoid paying the taxes they would owe to the United States of America.

This goes on, getting worse. Is anybody talking about cutting that? No, not really. In fact, this issue of cutting taxes for those who are the most well off in America is not abating at all. The budget that the President proposes its highest priority is to retain that 15 percent.

Interestingly enough, we don’t have enough money for community development block grants, rural health, the Byrne grants and so on. Last year the Byrne grants were taken out of the budget. Why? No, we don’t have enough money in this Chamber to decide that these companies and many more should get a 5.25-percent tax rate. That is right, 5.25-percent tax rate on money they repatriate from abroad. The expectation was they were going to pay a 35-percent tax rate. That was the statutory rate. But we—No. We didn’t vote for it—but we said as a Congress, we want to be generous so all of those big companies with standard brands out there who would repatriate, they want to pay 5.25 percent, not 35 percent, of the billions worth of income, bring it back to this country. Did they pay 10-percent income taxes on it as most people would at the lowest income Americans? No, they didn’t. Fifteen percent or 25 percent or 30 percent. No, they didn’t pay any of that. They paid 5.25 percent. They saved $102 to $104 billion.

This Senate had enough resources to decide we want to give the biggest interests of this country a $102 billion tax break by allowing them to pay a 5.25-percent tax rate but now we say we are out of money, we can’t afford to deal with those ends of the spending side that affect the most vulnerable in our country. I think those are very strange priorities. There is much to be said about this budget. I am mindful, also, that it is easier to criticize than it is to propose. I think it was Mark Twain who once said if he were engaged in a debate and said, Of course, as long as you take the negative side they said. We haven’t told you the subject. He said, It doesn’t matter, the negative side takes no preparation.
This takes even less than no preparation, to look at this budget and look at what this is doing to America and understand that this is to fiscal policy like mud wrestling is to the performing arts. This is an abysmal failure that is dragging this country down, down, down. The reason I think most people would ask—they certainly ask those who propose this from the White House, and those who construct it here, is do you believe adding additional debt is a move toward greater fiscal policy?

The answer has to be no.

I have a whole series of recommendations on where we should cut funding. I will not go over them at the moment and I will be happy to come back at some point. I would start with programs such as TV Marti. We actually spend money—we bought a new airplane last year to send television signals to Cubans that they can't see. We have spent close to $230 million on that program. It ought to be shut off immediately, but we can't do it because too many of the Members of the Senate keep voting for it. Why? Because of Florida. Why? Because of politics.

That is for another day. I have a whole series of recommendations. These are areas where we can and should cut Federal spending. I think we ought to. We ought to begin collecting revenues from companies that have been generously provided tax breaks from the Senate and our colleagues in the House, pushed by this President. We ought to get our fiscal house in order.

As I started, I said I watched some of this debate today. This is very important. This establishes some of the priorities for this Congress and I hope finally this year we might get them right.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from North Dakota, Senator CONRAD.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I thank my colleague, the Senator from North Dakota, for his comments and for his insights. I especially like his picture of the building in the Cayman Islands that is the home to more than 12,700 companies. Why is it their home? Because given the chance to pay a 51⁄4-percent tax rate or a $102 billion tax break, and move their jobs overseas. If there is any perversity in this Congress, it is that kind of a tax break. We have had four votes on it. I have offered it four times. We have lost all four times. And on four occasions, people stood up here in the Senate and supported a tax break to companies that would ship their jobs overseas. It is almost unbelievable.

The reason I mention this is that in the case of putting together a budget, you ought to be able to at least shut down those drains on the revenue side that run against the public interest in this country. Is it in the public interest to pay those companies to shut down their American plants and fire their workers? I certainly think so. Get that through your mind: it is not. It is just suggestions for the Congress to be saying: Let us reward that behavior. And that is exactly what is happening this year to the tune of $1.2 billion.

I say to my colleague from North Dakota that there are many areas in revenue where we would try to plug a drain on our revenue, and the other side will say: You are increasing taxes. Yes. I am increasing taxes for those who aren’t paying, for God’s sake.

Maybe somebody camped out in the Ugland House, an official address in the Cayman Islands, with a lawyer camped out, so they can move their jobs to China, sell their products in America, and run their income through a house in the Cayman Islands and avoid paying taxes. Do we want to increase their taxes? Darned right. Why? Because they are not paying their fair share. Everybody else does. What about them? Yet the majority party keeps saying that the wrong way to plug the loopholes, you are increasing taxes. That is a strange viewpoint, and I think one we need to fix. We need to solve these problems.

I appreciate the work of Senator Conrad.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I thank the Senator. I don’t consider it a tax increase to actually collect the taxes that individuals or companies already owe which they are not paying. That is not a tax increase. No tax rate is increased. That is not creating a new tax; that is collecting the taxes that are already owed.

The Revenue Commissioner testified before the Senate Budget Committee that the difference between what is owed and what is actually being paid—is $350 billion a year. The deficit is going to be $371 billion, and we are not collecting $350 billion of revenue that is owed. I don’t consider that a tax increase. I think that is simply enforcing the laws that already exist.

I want to again alert colleagues. We are trying to change the way the budget debate occurs. The chairman and I are trying to change it. We have heard some of the complaints of our colleagues about vote-aramas. A vote-arama typically occurs because time runs out before the amendment that has been offered has a chance to be voted on under the rules of the Senate. We are trying to make sure that the people have a chance to debate those amendments and get a vote and dispense with some of these votes before we get to Thursday night.

I hope very much that colleagues are going to agree to the timeframe that we have set out in order to accomplish that purpose. If people resist that, then we are going to be right back in a vote-arama Thursday night and voting until the wee hours of the morning. If people want a reform of the way we do business here, we need them to cooperate and help us.

Perhaps the chairman could review what the order of business is going to be for the rest of the afternoon and this evening in terms of the opportunities that are going to exist for colleagues to come to the floor tonight and talk about their amendments and make their opening statements. We are going to try to be in business to the extent that people take advantage of the time that is available.

Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, I thank the Senator from North Dakota. I agree with him and thank him for encouraging our membership to participate actively early in the debate.

As he mentioned, we hope to reduce the exercise known as vote-arama so that we will have time to get a vote and dispense with some of the amendments. Again, this won’t be the time to actually offer amendments, but you can debate them. The first six amendments, which will begin debating tomorrow in sequence, and then we will vote them tomorrow, with the vote time coming off the bill. This evening, we are going to have a vote at 5:30. I hope colleagues will come down between now and 5:30 and talk about the bill or talk about their amendments. Then, after the vote at 5:30, the floor will be open for Members to come forward and talk about their amendments—not at that time because we are going to set up this sequence. If Members have amendments they wish to offer, get in touch with us, and we will get them in debating order.

That is the game plan at the moment. I appreciate the efforts of the Senator from North Dakota in making that happen.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, we have Members who are now on their way to the floor to talk about the budget. I again implore colleagues, if they want to make an opening statement, tonight is the opportunity to do so. If they want to talk about an amendment and not offer it tonight but talk about it, tonight is the opportunity.

As we get into tomorrow, the time is going to be very scheduled in a very disciplined way so that we can make maximum progress. It is going to be that way Tuesday and Wednesday and Thursday up until tonight is the opportunity to make opening statements. Tonight is the night to talk about amendments that you might otherwise not get time to talk about. Again, this won’t be the time to actually offer amendments, but you can describe it, you can debate it, and you can discuss it. Please. We are giving colleagues this opportunity tonight so that tomorrow we can get amendments up and vote on amendments and get the work of the Senate concluded.

I thank the Chair.

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, I talked earlier about the $12 billion expenditure, $1.2 billion a year over the next 10 years, according to the Joint Tax Committee, that we use to reward companies that move their jobs overseas by giving them a tax break for such activity.

I have previously offered this on four occasions. I have lost it on four occasions in the Senate. I can’t believe there is anyone left in the Senate who, having thoughtfully evaluated this, would believe we should continue to give tax breaks to those who ship jobs overseas.

In the hope that other of my colleagues have seen the light or felt the heat or some way or other found an epiphany about this subject, I anticipate offering this again and consider my previous statement to be an opening statement when I would offer such an amendment, so I wouldn’t require any particular time on it. I have already spoken on it, and perhaps my two colleagues would consider at an appropriate point accepting the amendment. It is infused with such wildly common, common sense my hope would be that my colleagues would decide to simply accept the amendment on this occasion in the floor of offering the amendment, as much, I might say, as Ford Motor announces that they are going to close plants and get rid of 30,000 workers, General Motors is going to get rid of 25,000 to 30,000 workers—and the list goes on. By the way, not only get rid of their workers but their plants. They run them through with health care problems and payment of corporate health care accounts.

Given all that news, my guess is that perhaps the sentiment would have changed, believing maybe now is the appropriate time to shut down this perverse tax incentive that rewards companies that fire their American workers and move their jobs overseas. At an appropriate point, I will consider offering it. I would not need time to debate it.

Again, I say to my two colleagues that my hope and expectation would be that you would just accept the amendment at some appropriate time. And this would stand in some future discussion, if I offer that amendment at the appropriate time.

Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, I may have already asked, but let me renew this unanimous consent request that for the duration of the budget debate, when there is a quorum call, the time be deemed to be running against both sides equally.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? Without objection, it is so ordered.

WATER INFRASTRUCTURE

Mr. CRAPO. Mr. President, I rise to engage the distinguished chairman in a colloquy.

Mr. GREGG. I yield to the Senator. Mr. CRAPO. I wish to express my appreciation for your efforts to put together a well-crafted fiscal year 2007 budget resolution that balances the need for critical Government programs while taking a strong stand against our budget deficit.

As the committee works to address these critical needs, one area of the administration's request in particular needs special attention—the proposed reduction in funding for the Clean Water State Revolving Fund, CWSRF, and the Drinking Water State Revolving Fund, DWSRF. Although the administration's budget submission makes a number of difficult choices, the recommendation to reduce funding to the CWSRF and the DWSRF represents a tremendous hardship for communities throughout the country.

Recent studies show that our Nation's water and wastewater infrastructure needs severely exceed the availability of resources at the local and State level to meet them. So many towns and cities across the country have exhausted their abilities to raise utility rates and issue bonds to pay for needed projects. At the same time, increasing Federal water quality and drinking water standards force utility managers to upgrade systems or fall into noncompliance.

No community or customer wants to be served by a failing water or wastewater facility, but the Federal Government's commitment to addressing these regulatory mandates must be matched with its assistance. Without this commitment, communities can be left with no recourse turn for help. The Congressional Budget Office estimated in 2002 that the United States has between $132 billion and $388 billion in clean water infrastructure needs alone over the next 20 years and the spending gap over that time will reach $70 to $360 billion. Similar figures affect the Nation's drinking water infrastructure.

Idaho, a small State by population and infrastructure needs, still only receives about $15 million annually, but its aggregate water and wastewater needs over the next 20 years will approach $1 billion by some estimates. For instance, the rural city of Castleton, ID, has become out of compliance with the EPA's arsenic standard for drinking water. In order to conform with the rule, the town, with a population of less than 200, will have to expend more than its entire annual operating budget to update the water infrastructure system.

The principal means for assisting utilities are the SRFs, which provide a loan pool for State agencies to work with distressed communities. The SRF assistance helps finance infrastructure projects at the local level, and those communities in turn repay those loans so that the State might aid other communities in need.

That is why I believe it is so problematic to see a continuing decline in funding for the CWSRF and DWSRF. As recently as 2 years ago, funding was $1.35 billion and $850 million, respectively. Unfortunately, budget pressure has forced the CWSRF down to $900 million in the current fiscal year, and the President has proposed to reduce that to $688 million for the next year. While the DWSRF is proposed at only an $8 million reduction, a fateful and disturbing trend is developing.

As the past chairman of the Environment and Works Subcommittee on Fish, Wildlife, and Water, I led efforts in two successive Congresses to update and increase the authorization for the CWSRF and DWSRF. Although those legislative initiatives never made it to the Senate floor, I remain committed to bringing them to a vote in Idaho and throughout the country. I have stressed that communities in turn repay those loans at the local level, and those utilities are the SRFs, which provide a tremendous hardship for communities throughout the country.

During the debate on this budget resolution in the Senate, an amendment was offered to the President's call for reductions in those important accounts. I opposed that amendment because I want to focus effort where it counts, by working with my distinguished chairman and the Appropriations Committee to restore funding for the two SRFs to the best of our abilities.

Mr. Chairman, I ask that you join me in working through the balance of the budget resolution process, as well as during your service on the Appropriations Committee, to help restore these vital funds.

Mr. GREGG. Thank you, Senator CRAPO. I agree with your comments about the importance of these resources, and I applaud your leadership in this area. While the President's request for these accounts is lower than many would like, I believe that during the appropriations process, Congress will try to remedy this problem. As you know, historically, the President tends to request lower funding levels for these accounts, and Congress usually pluses them up through the appropriations process, often quite significantly. For example, in 2004, 2005, and 2006, Congress provided considerably more for these accounts than the President requested.

Additionally, in my role as a member of the Appropriations Committee, I will certainly be cognizant of the funding needs for SRF Programs.

Mr. CRAPO. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

Mr. GREGG. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. SUNUNU). The clerk will call the roll.

The bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. SARBANES. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. BURR). Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. SARBANES. Mr. President, I take it the parliamentary situation is such that it is in order for me to now be recognized?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is recognized.

Mr. SARBANES. I thank the Chair. At the very outset, let me say I have closely followed Senator CONRAD's remarks on the budget. It is something I have done each year he has... served as the ranking member on the Budget Committee. As always, I found his presentation to be both clear and insightful. For anyone who cares deeply about fiscal responsibility, as he does, the picture he has painted of America's fiscal condition is deeply troubling. I express my own deep appreciation to Senator CONRAD, as I think people all across the country should do, for seeking to focus attention on this important problem.

Day by day, we have different issues which demand our attention. The public's attention, but, meanwhile, this deteriorating situation of America moving further and further down into a fiscal box goes on. The implications of that are very far reaching.

Senator CONRAD has sought to call our attention to that, to focus our attention upon it, and to make us come up to grips with this challenge. I commend him for what I think has been a very important public service.

As we consider the budget for fiscal year 2007, I think it is necessary for all of us to recognize the budget resolution is, in a very basic sense, the most important document we will deal with in this Congress.

The President has provided for funding for Iraq and Afghanistan outside of the regular budget process. For purposes of illustration in terms of dealing with a budget that is far more transparent and fully accountable, I will give two examples of that. There are others. We could develop a longer list. But for purposes of illustration in terms of dealing with a budget that is far more transparent and fully accountable, I will give two examples of that.

From the very start of the war in Iraq, the administration has not reflected its true cost in the budget and in the budget submissions. In retrospect, one is given pause by the fact that the very day the bombing started on Baghdad in March of 2003, we were debating the budget resolution on the floor of the Senate—3 years ago. Of course, since the President has just started that at time, the budget resolution before us did not contain funding for that war. Instead, the President came along and submitted a request for an emergency supplemental appropriation to cover the initial war cost. That is the beginning of the tale. The budget had been submitted. The war had not been started. The money was not included for the war. I noted at the time that the money requested in the emergency supplemental appropriations was only a down payment. That much more would be needed to cover the full cost of the war and of the reconstruction. I am frank to say to my colleagues, I fully expected that the President would include those costs in his next budget submission. In other words, I expected that, having now become involved, the costs of that involvement would be reflected in subsequent budget submissions, and yet the President's budgets in fiscal year 2005 and fiscal year 2006 did not include a single cent for the ongoing cost of operations in Iraq and Afghanistan.

This year the President has included a placeholder of $50 billion in his budget. Even for the administration, after 2 years of not recognizing these costs, it finally hit home that they had to do something. So they put, as it were, a clear placeholder of $50 billion in the budget, which is not fully reflected in the budget. That is the cost of fixing the cost of the large national debt that had been accumulated as we moved through the 1980s and into the 1990s. But in what I predict history will write as a gross irresponsibility, President Bush, in effect, squandered the projected surpluses by instituting irresponsible and reckless tax cuts where the overwhelming beneficiaries were those at the very top of the income and wealth scale. These were not broad-based tax cuts. These were tax cuts whose benefits, upon analysis, were seen to be focused with the top few percent of the income scale.

When the President submitted his first budget proposal, he asserted: We can proceed with tax relief without fear of budget deficits, even if the economy softens.

The following year, with a budget already in deficit, the President advocated further tax cut but another—promising that “our budget will run a deficit that will be small and short term.” In fact, the President's budget that year, 2002, stated the deficits would be so short term that he was looking ahead—saying the Government would be back in surplus.

Now, let’s look at what has happened. Exactly the opposite of what the President predicted has happened. Under the irresponsible fiscal policy that this President has pursued, we have run deficits each and every year since 2001.

In 2002, the deficit was $158 billion. President Bush inherited a surplus in 2001 of $128 billion. The three previous years had had surpluses as well, and then there was a $158 billion deficit in 2002. The deficit rose to $378 billion in 2003, rose again in 2004 to $413 billion, fell slightly in 2005 to $319 billion, and is now projected to go back up again in 2006 to $371 billion. Far from being small and short term, these deficits are at record levels.

This chart shows the deterioration in the Nation's fiscal position over the last 35 years. As we see, the budget went into the red more and more and more. In fact, in 1992, we had the previous record deficit of $289 billion. Then there were the years I referred to when we came out of deficit and ran a surplus. Now we have dived back into deficit, thanks primarily to the excesses at the very top of the income and wealth scale. These were not broad-based tax cuts. These were tax cuts whose benefits, upon analysis, were seen to be focused with the top few percent of the income scale.

The President would include those costs in his budget every year. Regrettably, the President's budget would not treat these significant and substantial obligations as a priority. Regrettably, the President's budget would not treat these significant and substantial obligations as a priority. The President's budget would not engage in responsible budgeting. The President is refusing to own up to the true cost of his policies.

Let me turn to a domestic issue which is not fully reflected in the budget but, again, as we know, is going to happen. That is the cost of fixing the alternative minimum tax. This tax was put in place as part of our Tax Code in order to require that very wealthy people who are using various exemptions and deductions in the Tax Code to avoid paying any taxes at all, would pay at least a certain amount of tax. It was an effort to assure some equity and fairness in the workings of the tax system. What has happened is that the threshold levels of the alternative minimum tax have not been adjusted for inflation. As a consequence, this tax is beginning to place a burden on middle-class Americans to whom it was never intended to apply. We have adjusted it in previous years. It is clear it will need to be adjusted again at a significant cost. But those costs are not reflected in the budget the President has submitted to us.

When these two items are taken into account, plus the deficits the President is projecting on the basis of his revenue and spending programs, we are now projecting a 10-year deficit of $3.5 trillion. Think about that. When the President came into office we were projecting a surplus over 10 years of $5.6 trillion. Now we are projecting a $3.5 trillion deficit. This is a deterioration in fiscal position of over $9 trillion. Because of these annual budget deficits, which we are running and are projected to continue to run, the debt of the country is projected to explode. It is now projected to rise to $11.8 trillion, almost $12 trillion, in gross Federal debt by the year 2011.

Look at this incredible runup in debt that has happened since 2001. We have moved up in an escalating way. We are at $8.6 trillion in 2006. We are projected to go to almost $12 trillion by 2011. Net interest payments on this debt are expected to consume more than $1 trillion over the next 5 years. These are just the interest payments on the debt. Each dollar that we pay in interest is one less dollar that we can invest in key areas that will help to keep our economy competitive in the future. We face a global competition. Other nations are investing in workforce training, physical infrastructure, transportation networks, research and development. As we face this competitive challenge, we are going to fall behind, not move ahead.

These debt figures, some say, are just numbers. It is hard to get your imagination around $12 trillion in debt. But these numbers all reflect real obligations. These will have to be paid off by the next generation and the generation after them through higher taxes and a reduced standard of living. As the New York Times put it in an editorial entitled "Utterly dependent on the kindness of strangers." Obviously, this situation should raise serious concerns about our ability to conduct our foreign policy in the future if we are constrained and limited by the need to keep our creditors willing to lend us money.

Regrettably, in the budget plan submitted this year, the President offers no solution to bringing this national debt under control. In fact, the President is calling for the permanent extension of his tax cuts for the wealthy at a cost of trillions of dollars. I didn’t agree with the President’s tax plan in the days in which we had a budget surplus. I felt then it was too large, too heavily weighted toward the wealthy. Some argued—and I thought it had some logic to it—for a short-term targeted tax cut aimed primarily to middle- and working-class Americans. The President is calling for a permanent extension of his tax cuts for the wealthy.

What I opposed and did not understand was the very excessive tax cuts the President put forward then and his continued support today for tax cuts in times of war and enormous budget deficits.

We keep moving along year to year in this way. We make our budget decisions, and then we go on to other business, but all the time these policies are working to drive us deeper into debt. As I said, much of this debt is held by foreign lenders, and that amount is growing all the time.

At the end of fiscal year 2001, 31 percent of the outstanding Federal Government debt was held by foreign lenders. Over the succeeding 4 years, borrowing from abroad accounted for more than 80 percent of the increase in our debt. We have seen the debt rise and the portion of the debt held by foreign lenders, in percentage terms, rise at a much more rapid rate. If foreign lenders continue to buy 80 percent of new Federal debt, the Federal Government will owe more than half of the debt to foreign lenders by 2011. That is equivalent to almost 25 percent of our expected gross domestic product. Think of the leverage we are placing in the hands of lenders. And a shift has also occurred from private to Government lenders with respect to where those funds are coming from.

Regrettably, the President’s budget also cuts substantially a number of programs designed to help working and middle-income people in this country. For example, Federal education funding has been cut by the largest amount in the 26-year history of the Department of Education. These cuts come at a time when tuition and fee increases have placed college education out of reach for many students. Since 2000, tuition and fees have increased almost 60 percent for public 4-year colleges and 44 percent for private 4-year colleges.

The budget for the Department of Housing and Urban Development is, once again, marked by cuts in programs that provide housing services that make healthy homes for millions of American households. The President has proposed a 20-percent cut in community development block grants, a 25-percent cut in elderly housing, a 50-percent cut in housing for the disabled, and despite everyone’s recognition of the vital services provided by our police and firefighters—everyone waxes eloquently about our first responders—the budget proposes to cut funding for community police by close to $400 million and to cut the fire programs by more than half.

Let me try to put this a little bit of context in terms of the choices being made with respect to priorities. For fiscal year 2007, the costs of the President’s tax cuts for millionaires, those with incomes over $1 million, will total $41.3 billion. That is the benefit for millionaires resulting from those tax cuts.

I mentioned cuts in education, housing, police, and fire. We could fund all of those programs that I listed—in other words, bring them back up to the current levels—for less than 10 percent of the benefits flowing from that tax cut for millionaires. In other words, bring them back up to the current levels—for less than 10 percent of the benefits flowing from that tax cut for millionaires. In other words, bring them back up to the current levels—

What does it say about our priorities as a nation that we are placing these tax cuts for people at the very top ahead of investments in these programs?

If foreign lenders are buying 80 percent of our government debt, is said, of course, is: We can’t do the programs because we have a deficit. The public needs to ask: Why do we have this deficit? And the reason we... have it is because of the tax cuts. So in terms of setting priorities, the tax cuts were given a higher priority than investments in education or in housing or in stronger police and fire, and I could go through the rest of the budget reflecting the same decisions and the same sense in terms of priorities.

I could develop that list at some length, but let me conclude with one last point. I think the American people have a strong sense of fairness and equity. There have been a number of events during the course of this administration which have underscored the necessity to come together as a nation with this sense of fairness and equity—the attacks of 9/11, the war in Afghanistan and then in Iraq, the devastation of Hurricane Katrina, most prominent among them. But to move ahead, we must share the burden, and, unfortunately, the President's budget continues to favor the very wealthy. They are not carrying the burden. In fact, they have been relieved of some of the burden through the tax cuts while leaving the majority of Americans to carry the burden.

So as we move forward with this budget process, we need to ask ourselves about our priorities here in this nation: In my judgment, the President's budget does not reflect the values of the American people. It is neither fair nor responsible. While some changes were made in the Budget Committee, I still think it basically reflects the policies established by the President which I think are not fair, not responsible, and I urge my colleagues to reject the budget resolution.

Mr. President, I know Senator Feingold is here on the floor and would like to be recognized for up to 25 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The majority leader.

Mr. SARBANES. I ask unanimous consent for a unanimous consent request.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. FRIST. Reserving the right to object, I have a short statement to make, and then I will be happy to yield to the Senator from Wisconsin or have one of the majority members yield to him.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the unanimous consent request?

Mr. SARBANES. Mr. President, I understand this has not been discussed with the minority leader, this proposal for a vote, and I would therefore object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Objection is heard. The unanimous consent request is not agreed to.

Mr. SARBANES. I would respectfully request of the leader that he should have a discussion with the minority leader before seeking to set the agenda. Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I then ask unanimous consent that immediately following the budget vote scheduled for tomorrow afternoon, the Senate proceed to the consideration and an immediate vote on the resolution of censure that will be submitted by the Senator from Wisconsin, without further intervening action or debate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. SARBANES. Mr. President, I understand this has not been discussed with the minority leader, this proposal for a vote, and I would therefore object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Objection is heard. The unanimous consent request is not agreed to.

Mr. SARBANES. I would respectfully request of the leader that he should have a discussion with the minority leader before seeking to set the agenda.

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I then ask unanimous consent that immediately following the budget vote scheduled for tomorrow afternoon, the Senate proceed to the consideration and an immediate vote on the resolution of censure that will be submitted by the Senator from Wisconsin without any further intervening action or debate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. SARBANES. Mr. President, I object for the same reason. I think the minority leader should have a responsible discussion with the majority leader before setting the agenda. Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I heard the objection. I just wanted to discuss our willingness on what is an important issue. We are talking about the censure of the President of the United States, and we are ready to vote on that this afternoon.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Wisconsin.

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, does the Senator from Maryland yield me time?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that I be recognized for up to 25 minutes as in morning business.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?
there was nothing willful in what he did; I am sure it was just an oversight.

To try to limit debate on this most important matter that Senator FEINGOLD is going to put before the Senate is not appropriate. I have no problem with the time to finish debate on the Feingold proposal, but it seems to me what is happening in the Senate is there is no time to debate much. And we are under a statute, and that is why we are here today with the budget resolution, with 50 hours on this.

But what we have been facing is the future, in the immediate future, the Secretary of the Treasury has asked us to increase the national debt by $800 billion, should debate on that.

To show our willingness to cooperate on something this important, I agreed with the distinguished majority leader that we would have 5 hours of debate on the national debt and three amendments would be yielded. We would have a half hour on each of ours, an hour and a half time is all we wanted. When we are going to be asked to increase the national debt by approximately $800 billion, I think it is fair that we could have a few hours to talk about that.

But it appears at this stage that is not going to happen. It appears there will be the 50 hours on this matter that is now before the Senate which will be completed sometime Thursday, and there will be a mad rush to get out of here for the week I that we have. Of course, offering amendments after the matter is brought to the attention of the Senate, I mean we can’t do that because we have been waiting on that. And that is why the majority has waited so long, even though Secretary Snow advised us in December that there was going to be a problem with the national debt ceiling.

So I have no problem with the Senator from Wisconsin being yielded time for the resolution by the distinguished ranking member of our Banking Committee who is now managing this bill for Senator CONRAD, but I want the record to be spread with the fact that this is an issue that deserves more debate, not less debate. I don’t care if the time is used off the budget resolution.

So I would ask the distinguished Presiding Officer to read, or recall, at least, the unanimous consent request that was made by the distinguished majority leader.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The unanimous consent request of the majority leader?

Mr. REID. Yes. It was my understanding the request was that the Senator from Wisconsin would be recognized for 25 minutes as an introduction.

Mr. REID. But the time would be used off the budget resolution.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. That is correct.

Mr. REID. I have no objection.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, reserving the right to object, I yield first to the majority leader to comment.

Mr. PRIST. Mr. President, a lot is happening very quickly now. In a very few minutes, we are going to get to the Senator from Wisconsin who has appropriately requested 25 minutes, and the unanimous consent request will be that the time would come off the bill and it will be as in morning business.

Just to clarify, he has said his intentions representing the other side of the aisle to offer a resolution to censure the President of the United States for his program and will re-state is a lawful program, is a program that is constitutional, and is a program that is vital to the safety and security of the American people. My response to that unanimous consent request was if that is the case and if that is the position of the Senate, then we are ready to vote at 5:30 or after our 5:30 vote today. That unanimous consent request was objected to by the other side of the aisle.

Then the second unanimous consent request that I propsed was that we would vote after a series of stacked votes tomorrow on the resolution to censure. There was an objection from the other side of the aisle.

When we are talking about censure of the President of the United States, at a time of war when this President is out defending the American people with a very good, lawful, constitutional program, it is serious business. And if it is an issue that the other side of the aisle wants to debate or debate through the night, I guess we are willing to do that as well. But the censure of the President is important, and if they want to make an issue of it, we are willing to do just that.

I have no objection to the unanimous consent request that has been made.

Mr. REID. There is no unanimous consent request now pending; is that right?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. No. You reserve the right to object, there is only one pending before the Senate at this time.

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, I ask that the unanimous consent request giving Senator FEINGOLD 25 minutes be expanded to give this Senator 25 minutes, with the time running off the bill.

Mr. REID. So now we have Senator FEINGOLD speaking for 25 minutes, that would be yielded off the budget resolution, and Senator SPECTER speaking for 25 minutes, that being yielded off the resolution: is that right?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. That is the pending request. Is there objection? Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, and there is no other unanimous consent request before the Senate at this time?

The Senator from Wisconsin.

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, when the President of the United States breaks the law, he must be held accountable. That is why today I am submitting a resolution to censure President George W. Bush. The President authorized an illegal program to spy on American citizens on American soil, and then misled Congress and the public—

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, will the Senator from Wisconsin yield for a question? May we have a copy of your resolution?

Mr. FEINGOLD. I will be introducing it at the conclusion of my remarks. I will be happy to supply the Senator with a copy of the resolution, but I do not want to introduce it at the conclusion of my remarks.

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, if the Senator from Wisconsin would let this Senator have a copy of it now.

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, I just said we would be happy to give the Senator a copy of the resolution right now.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that my time be started over again.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Wisconsin is recognized.

Mr. FEINGOLD. I thank the Chair. Mr. President, when the President of the United States breaks the law, he must be held accountable. That is why today I am submitting a resolution to censure President George W. Bush. The President authorized an illegal program to spy on American citizens on American soil, and then misled the Congress and the public about the existence and the legality of that program. It is up to this body to reaffirm the rule of law by condemning the President’s action.

All of us in this body took an oath to support and defend the Constitution of the United States and bear true allegiance to the same. Fulfilling that oath requires us to speak clearly and forcefully when the President violates the law. This resolution allows us to send a clear message that the President’s conduct was wrong.

And we must do that. The President’s actions demand a formal judgment from Congress.

At moments like this in our history, we are reminded why the Founders balanced the powers of the different branches of Government so carefully in the Constitution. At the very heart of our system of government lies the recognition that some leaders will do wrong and that others in the Government will then bear the responsibility to do right.

This President has done wrong. This body can do right by condemning his against al-Qaida and its affiliates. In both of these instances, however, Congress gave its approval to the President’s action, however mistaken the approval may have been.

Here is the difference, Mr. President: This was not an isolated, domestic wiretapping program authorized by the President shortly after September 11. The President violated the law, ignored the Constitution and the other two branches of Government, and disregarded the rights and freedoms that our country was founded upon.

No one questions—no one questions—that the Government should wiretap suspected terrorists. Of course we should and we can under current law. If there were a demonstrated need to change the law, of course, Congress should consider that step. But instead, the President is refusing to follow the law while offering the flimsiest of arguments to justify his misconduct. He must be held accountable for his actions.

The facts are pretty straightforward. Congress passed the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act, known as FISA, nearly 30 years ago to ensure that as we wiretap suspected terrorists we also protect innocent Americans from unjustified Government intrusion. FISA makes it a crime to wiretap Americans on U.S. soil without the requisite warrants, and the President has ordered warrantless wiretaps of Americans on U.S. soil. So it is pretty simple, The President has broken that law and that alone is unacceptable.

But the President did much more than that. Not only did the President break the law, he also actively misled Congress and the American people about his actions and then, when the program was made public, about the legality of the NSA program. He has fundamentally violated the trust of the American people. The President’s own words tell us just how seriously he has violated that trust.

We now know that the NSA wiretapping program began not long after September 11. Before the existence of this program was revealed, the President went out of his way, he went out of his way in several speeches to assure the public that the Government was getting court orders to wiretap Americans in the United States, something he had admitted not to do.

On April 20, 2004, for example, the President told an audience in Buffalo, “Any time you hear the United States government talking about wiretaps it requires a court order. Nothing has changed by the way.”

In fact, a lot had changed. But the President wasn’t upfront with the American people. Just months later, on July 14, 2004, in my own State of Wisconsin, the President said, “Any action that takes place by law enforcement requires a court order. In other words, the government can’t move on wiretaps or roving wiretaps without getting a court order.”

And then, Mr. President, last summer on June 9, 2005, the President spoke in Columbus, OH, and again insisted that his administration was abiding by the laws governing wiretaps. “Law enforcement officers need a federal judge’s permission to wiretap a terrorist leader,” the President said, “and a federal judge’s permission to search his property. Officers must meet strict standards to use any of these tools. And these standards are fully consistent with the Constitution of the U.S.”

The facts are the same. If these cases the President knew that he wasn’t telling the complete story. But engaged in tough political battle during the Presidential campaign and later over the PATRIOT Act reauthorization, he wanted to convince the public that a system of checks and balances was in place to protect innocent people from Government snooping. He knew when he gave those reassurances that he had authorized the NSA to by-pass every system of balance that he was using as a shield against criticisms of the PATRIOT Act and his administration’s performance.

This conduct is unacceptable. The President has a duty to play it straight with the American people. But for political purposes, he just ignored that duty.

After a New York Times story exposed the NSA program in December of last year, the White House launched an intensive effort to mislead the American people yet again. No one would come to testify before Congress until February, but the President’s surrogates held press conferences and made speeches to try to convince the public that he had acted lawfully.

Most troubling of all, the President himself participated in this disinformation campaign. In the State of the Union Address he implied that the program was necessary because otherwise, the Government would be unable to wiretap terrorists at all.

Now, Mr. President, that is simply untrue. In fact, nothing could be further from the truth. You don’t need a warrant to wiretap terrorists overseas, period. It is clear. You do need a warrant to wiretap Americans on American soil, and Congress passed FISA specifically to lay out the rule for these types of domestic wiretaps.

FISA created a secret court made up of judges who develop their expertise to issue warrants for surveillance of suspected terrorists and spies. These are the judges from whom the Bush administration has obtained thousands of warrants since 9/11. They are the judges who review applications for business records orders and wiretapping authority under the PATRIOT Act. The administration has almost never had a warrant request rejected by these judges. It has used the FISA Court thousands of times, but at the outset it assured the FISA is an “old law” or “out of date” in this age of terrorism, that it can’t be complied with. Clearly the administration can and does comply with it except when it doesn't. Then it just arbitrarily decides to go around these judges and around the law.

The administration has said that it ignored FISA because it takes too long to get approval that the Attorney General would need to go to the court within 72 hours. Now, the Attorney General has complained that the emergency provision does not give him enough flexibility; he has complained that getting a FISA application together, of getting the necessary approvals, takes too long. What the Attorney General is actually talking about, the problems he has cited, are bureaucratic barriers that the executive branch put in place. They are not mandated by Congress. They are not mandated under FISA. These were put into place by the Justice Department, the executive branch itself, and they could be removed if they wanted.

FISA permits the Attorney General to authorize warrantless wiretaps for electronic surveillance in the United States—unlimited—during the 15 days following a declaration of war to allow time to consider any amendments to FISA required by a wartime emergency. This is the time period that Congress specified very clearly. Yet the President thinks he is above the law. He thinks that he can just ignore that 15-day period and do this indefinitely.

The President has argued that Congress gave him authority to wiretap Americans on U.S. soil without a warrant when it passed the authorization for use of military force after September 11, 2001.

That is ridiculous. Members of Congress did not pass this resolution to give the President blanket authority to order warrantless wiretaps. We all know that. Anyone in this body who doesn’t. This particular claim is far less persuasive than others the President has made. The President has now said that he has been acting in direct violation of a criminal statute. That means his power is, as Justice Jackson said in the steel seizure cases a half century ago, "at its lowest ebb." A letter from a group of law professors and former executive branch officials points out, "Every time the Supreme Court has confronted a statute limiting the Commander-in-Chief's authority, it has upheld the statute." The Senate reports issued when FISA was enacted confirm the understanding that FISA overrode any preexisting inherent authority of the President. As a 1978 Senate Judiciary Committee report stated, FISA "recognizes no inherent power of the President in this area." And "Congress has declared that this statute, not any claimed Presidential power, controls." So contrary to what the President told the country in this year's State of the Union, no court has ever approved warrantless surveillance in violation of FISA.

The President's claims of inherent executive authority and his assertions that the courts have approved this type of activity are baseless. But it is one thing to make a legal argument that has no real support in the law; it is quite another to claim executive authority, to say that the President has done, which is to make misleading statements about what prior Presidents have done and what courts have approved to try to somehow make the public believe that his legal arguments are much stronger than they really are.

For example, in the State of the Union, the President argued that Federal courts have approved the use of "presidential" wiretaps. He was invoking. I asked the Attorney General about this when he came before the Judiciary Committee, and he could point me to no court—not the Supreme Court or any other court—that has considered the question of executive wiretaps. FISA was signed into law. The President nonetheless had the authority to bypass it and authorize warrantless wiretaps. Not one court. The administration's effort to find support for what it has done in snippets of other cases is likely to be held up as absurd if this issue were not so serious.

In the same speech, the President referred to other Presidents in American history who cited executive authority to order warrantless surveillance. But of course, those past Presidents—like Wilson and Roosevelt—were acting long before the Supreme Court decided in 1967 that our communications are protected from warrantless interception, and before Congress decided in 1978 that the executive branch could no longer unilaterally decide which Americans to wiretap. I asked the Attorney General about this when he testified before the Judiciary Committee. And neither he nor anyone in the administration has been able to come up with a single prior example of wiretapping inside the United States since 1978 that was conducted outside FISA's authorization.

So again the President's arguments in the State of the Union were baseless, and it is unacceptable that the President of the United States would so obfuscate the Congress and American public.

The President also has argued that periodic internal executive branch review provides an adequate check on the program. He has even characterized this public review as an adequate check for civil liberties. But we don't know what this check involves. And we do know that Congress explicitly rejected this idea of unilateral executive decision-making in this area when it passed FISA.

Finally, the President has tried to claim that informing a handful of congressional leaders, the so-called Gang of 8, somehow excuses breaking the law. As a former executive branch official points out, "Every time the Supreme Court has confronted a statute limiting the Commander-in-Chief's authority, it has upheld the statute." Nor does the latest agreement to allow a seven-member select committee to be "fully and currently informed of the intelligence activities of the United States." Nor does the latest agreement to allow a seven-member select committee to be informed of the intelligence activities of the United States. Nor does the latest agreement to allow a seven-member select committee to be "fully and currently informed of the intelligence activities of the United States." Nor does the latest agreement to allow a seven-member select committee to be informed of the intelligence activities of the United States. Nor does the latest agreement to allow a seven-member select committee to be "fully and currently informed of the intelligence activities of the United States." Nor does the latest agreement to allow a seven-member select committee to be informed of the intelligence activities of the United States. Nor does the latest agreement to allow a seven-member select committee to be "fully and currently informed of the intelligence activities of the United States." Nor does the latest agreement to allow a seven-member select committee to be informed of the intelligence activities of the United States.

In fact, it doesn't even comply with the National Security Act, which required periodic review as a condition for the House and Senate Intelligence Committee to be "fully and currently informed of the intelligence activities of the United States." Nor does the latest agreement to allow a seven-member select committee to be reviewed of the program comply with the law. Granting a minority of the committee access to information is inadequate and still does not comply with the law requiring that the full committee be kept fully informed.

In addition, we now know that some of the Gang of 8 expressed concern about the program. The administration ignored their protests. One of the eight members of the Gang of 8 has been briefed about the program. Congresswoman Jane Harman, ranking member of the House Intelligence Committee, has said she sees no reason why the administration cannot accomplish its goals within the law as currently written.

None of the President's arguments explains or excuses his conduct, or the NSA’s domestic spying program. Not one. It is hard to believe that the President has the audacity to claim that they do.

And perhaps that is what is most troubling here. Even more troubling than the arguments the President has made is what he relies on to make them convincing—the credibility of the Office of the President itself. He essentially argues that the American people should trust him simply because of the office he holds.

But Presidents don’t serve our country by just asking for trust, they must earn that trust, and they must tell the truth.

This President hides behind flawed legal arguments, and even behind the office he holds, but he cannot hide from what he has created: nothing short of a constitutional crisis. The President has violated the law, and Congress must respond. The press must investigate and demand answers. Congress should also determine whether current law is inadequate and address that deficiency if it is demonstrated. But before doing so, Congress should ensure that there is accountability for authorizing illegal conduct.

A formal censure by Congress is an appropriate and responsible first step to assure the public that when the President thinks he can violate the law without consequences, Congress has the will to hold him accountable. If Congress does not reaffirm the rule of law, we will create another failure of leadership, and deal another blow to the public’s trust.

The President’s wrongdoing demands a response. And not just a response that prevents wrongdoing in the future but a response that passes judgment on what has happened. We in the Congress bear the responsibility to追究 a President who has violated the law, who continues to violate the law, and who has not been held accountable for his actions.

We are hearing people say that somehow this censure resolution sends a terrible signal to the terrorists who want to do us harm. I tell you what is a terrible signal, that we are so meek in response to this terrorist threat that we are going to let the President of the United States break the law of this Nation and not do anything about it. Now that is a victory for the terrorists if we won’t even stand up for our system of Government because everybody has to be afraid to mention that this President broke the law.

Passing a resolution to censure the President is a way to hold this President accountable. A resolution of censure is a time-honored means for the Congress to express the most serious disapproval possible, short of impeachment, of the Executive’s conduct. It is different than passing a law to make clear that certain conduct is impermissible or to cut off funding for certain activities. He should be censured.

The Founders anticipated abuses of Executive power by creating a balance of powers in the Constitution. Supporting and defending the Constitution, as we have taken an oath to do, requires us to preserve that balance and to have the will to act. We must meet a serious transgression by the President with a serious response. We must work, as the Founders urged in Federalist 51, to control the abuses of Government.

The Constitution looks to the Congress to right the balance of power. The American people look to us to take action, to speak with one clear voice, against wrongdoing by the President of the United States.

To conclude, in our system of government, no one, not even the President, is above the law.

I send the resolution to the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The resolution will be received and appropriately referred.

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDENT. Mr. President, might I ask the Senator from Wisconsin to stay on the floor?

Mr. President, I think this subject matter is worthy of debate, but notwithstanding my experience of debating, I don’t think I can debate without someones with me. I tried to address the address of the Senator from Wisconsin before he departed the Chamber. I think I got in right as he was on the way out the door.

But let me ask his staffers if they would invite the Senator from Wisconsin to return to the floor. Having listened to his long soliloquy, I would appreciate the benefit of his presence so we can deal with these issues in some substantive detail.

At the outset, I say that I agree with a number of things which the Senator from Wisconsin said and items which are in his resolution.

When he comes to the resolve clause and speaks about censure and condemnation of President Bush, I think he is vastly excessive. Call it over the top, call it beyond the pale, the facts recited in this resolution simply do not support that kind of conclusion.

Going right to the heart of the issue, the Senate from Wisconsin says in the fourth where clause that the President does not have the inherent constitutional authority to act in distinction and difference from the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act.

That is what you call a naked assertion unsupported by any statement of law, unsupported by any rationale.

The Judiciary Committee, of which the Senator from Wisconsin is a member, has held two hearings on the authority of the President to conduct electronic surveillance. And there has been an array of testimony by credible sources saying that the President does have inherent authority under article II of the Constitution.
CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — SENATE

of those two propositions do not super- sede the inherent article II authority of the President. And that is the issue which has yet to be resolved.

The majority leader spoke very brief- ly this afternoon before the Senator from Wisconsin presented his position. Senator FRIST said that we are dealing with a lawful program. Senator FRIST is in the position to make an evaluation on that subject because Senator FRIST is one of the so-called Gang of 8, which has had access to the program. He has been briefed on the program.

I believe the Senator from Wisconsin is correct in the body of his resolution when he raises an issue that the statute requires all members of the Intel- ligence Committee to be briefed. That is the applicable law. It may be that there are good reasons for not briefing all the members of the Senate Intel- ligence Committee and all members of the House Intelligence Committee. Perhaps members of the Con- gress leak. But if good reasons do exist, then the President ought to come to the Congress and ask it to change the law. I agree with him that the Congress leaks. I have to say, in the same breath, that the White House also leaks. That is not a very good record for either the Congress or the White House.

That is why I have prepared legisla- tion which would submit the NSA electron- on intelligence program to the For- eign Intelligence Surveillance Court.

That court now passes on applications for search-and-seizure warrants under the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act. They apply the standard, which is different than the standard for a search-and-seizure warrant in a crim- inal case. They have expertise in the field. They also have an exemplary record for keeping secrets.

That is the way to deal with this issue. There must be a determination on constitutionality. It is not possible, in my legal judgment, to make a deter- mination as to whether the President’s inherent article II powers authorize this kind of a program, without know- ing what the program is. I don’t know what the program is. The Attorney General would not tell us what it is when he testified last month. I under- stood his reasons for not telling us, even though we could have gone into a closed session with the Judiciary Committee. The committee was looking at the legalities of the program. We were in a position to render a judgment on whether the For- eign Intelligence Surveillance Act was the exclusive remedy, and whether the resolution to authorize the use of force changed the FISA act. But it is a mat- ter for the Intelligence Committee to get into the details of the program which, until last week, the administra- tion has been unwilling to do.

I have great respect for my colleague Senator DEWINE, and have talked to him extensively about this issue. He and I serve on the Judiciary Com- mittee together. I like his idea about getting the administration to submit the program to, at least, the eight members of the Senate Intelligence Committee who, according to the press accounts, were briefed about it last week. I do not think it is adequate, as part of the President’s lawmaking, to allow the surveillance to go on for 45 days, and at the end of that 45-day period to then give the adminis- tration the option of going to the FISA Court or to the Senate subcommittee.

The subcommittee does not grant au- thorization of the sub- committee function is oversight. It is not a replacement for the Foreign In- telligence Surveillance Court. A way is at hand to deal with this issue. The majority leader, Senator FRIST, said we have a lawful program. That opinion has weight, substantial weight in my mind, but it is not con- clusive. Senator FRIST is not a judicial official. It may be that a more detailed analysis is necessary than has been presented to the Gang of 8. I don’t know, because I don’t know what they heard or what they learned.

How much time do I have remaining?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Sen- ator has 11½ minutes.

Mr. DURBIN. Will the Senator yield the floor?

Mr. SPECTER. No, but I will at the conclusion of my presentation.

We ought to focus for a few moments on the importance of judicial review on the fourth amendment issues of search and seizure.

With the limited time I have left, I have only a few references, but I begin with a famous case in 1761 where a Bos- ton lawyer defended Boston merchants who had been searched by customs house officials. James Otis gave a stir- ring 5-hour speech, charging the cus- toms officers “break locks, bars, and everything in their way; and whether they break through malice or revenge, no man, no court may inquire.” Very weighty words in 1761. Maybe if James Otis had seen this program, we could take his word on its constitutionality.

John Adams described this case as the spark of the American Revolution. He stated:

Then and there was the child Independence born.

Then in the Declaration of Inde- pendence in 1776, it is stated that one of the key reasons for the American Revolu- tion is that King allowing his of- ficers to violate the 4th amendment rights of Ameri- cans and then protecting them “by a mock trial, from punishment,” for the injuries that they had committed.

And then we have the fourth amend- ment. We need to go back to the basics of this amendment, which prohibit un- reasonable searches and seizures. That is the question in this matter.

In 1936, in the Weeks case, the Su- preme Court of the United States ruled that evidence obtained in violation of the fourth amendment should not be used in a criminal trial. In 1961, in Mapp v. Ohio, the Supreme Court of the United States ruled that the due process clause of the 14th amendment prohibited States and State criminal prosecutions from using evidence ob- tained as a result of an unreasonable search and seizure.

We have had the Supreme Court of the United States intervene, even in times of war to limit the President’s authority. During the Korean war, President Truman cited “the existence of a national emergency” to “be able to repel any and all threats against our national security.”

The Supreme Court of the United States, in Youngstown Sheet v. Saw- yer, said the President did not have that authority. They said it exceeded his authority.

In the Hamdi case, 2004. 18 or 20 months ago, the Supreme Court stated:

We have long since made it clear that a state of war is not a blank check for the President when it comes to the rights of the Nation’s citizens.

And the Court went on to say:

So in the United States Constitution envisions for the Executive in its exchanges with other nations or with enemy organizations in times of conflict, it most assuredly envisions a role for all three branches when individual liberties were at stake.

We have a way through this maze. The way through the maze is for the Congress to give jurisdiction to the FISA Court. That is our job, to give ju- diciary to Federal courts. We have dealt with the issue as to whether there is a case or a controversy. There is one. Without going into details here, it is not an advisory opinion.

But this resolution calling for the conformation and the censure of the President is out of line and out of bounds. In listening to the Senator from Wisconsin, I did not hear, at any time, him say the President has acted in bad faith. The President may be wrong, but he has not acted in bad faith. I think all would concede that the President was diligently doing the best job he can. And I agree with him.

I think the President’s best job is satisf- factory, and that no one has ever ac- cused him of bad faith.

In the absence of any showing of bad faith, who has standing to censure and condemn the President and then not stay in the Chamber to debate the issue? I do hope this matter is referred to the Judiciary Committee, and not to the Rules Committee. We have already had two hearings on matters relating to this subject. I especially want to see this resolution referred to the Judici- ary Committee because if it is in the Judici- ary Committee, I can debate it. And I cannot debate it under the Rules Committee. I cannot debate Sena- tor FEINGOLD. Now, isn’t that a powerful juridical argument for the Judici- ary Committee?

Mr. DURBIN. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. SPECTER. I do.

Mr. DURBIN. First, through the Chair, I commend the Senator from Pennsylvania. As a member of the Senate Judiciary Committee, he has shown extraordinary leadership in convening two separate hearings on this question of the wiretap issue, the first with Attorney General Gonzales which I attended and thought to be one of the more challenging and interesting committee hearings I have ever attended—it went on for a whole day—the second, sadly, was in conflict with another meeting, a Rules Committee on ethics reform and I did not attend it, but he invited constitutional scholars to come and speak to the same issue. Many on Capitol Hill may shy away from controversial issues, particularly if they involve an administration of the same party.

I commend the Senator from Pennsylvania for being an exception to the rule on this issue and for speaking up and standing up.

I wish to ask a question. After listening to Attorney General Gonzales’ testimony before our committee, it appears that the thrust of the constitutional argument justifying the wiretap goes back to a vote that we share, a few months ago that the program could be structured in a way that might accommodate what we are now seeing in this wiretap program, is that not an admission that what is going on now is violating of law or at least outside the bounds of the laws as written which authorize wiretaps?

Mr. SPECTER. No, I do not think it is an admission because, like consent, it has to be informed. And I do not think he is informed. I do not think anybody is informed. I do not think Senator DeWine intends to make an admission. I think Senator DeWine, in good faith—very good faith—is searching for a way out. And I think he made a significant step forward when his actions resulted in seven members of the Senate Intelligence Committee being briefed. The reason I say “I think” is because I do not know what they were told. But I think that is a significant step.

Senator DeWine’s proposal of legislation to allow the program to go on for 45 days is no concession. It is going on anyway. His idea to bypass the FISA Court and allow the Administration instead to go to the Intelligence Sub-committee, I think, is not appropriate because the Intelligence Subcommittee does not have the function of a court. So I think he is doing the best he can. But right now we are flying blind on a great deal of this, and we have to accept very limited representations by the Gang of 8, and now the new Gang of 7. And no matter what, it does not amount to judicial review.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator’s time has expired.

Mr. REID. The President, I have an important announcement to make.

Will my friend yield to me? Mr. SPECTER. I do.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The time of the Senator from Pennsylvania has expired. The Senator does not control time.

The Senate minority leader is recognized.

DEATH OF MAGGIE INOUYE

Mr. REID. Mr. President, at 4 o’clock this afternoon, an hour and 15 minutes ago, Maggie Inouye died. I had the good fortune of being able to visit with the Inouyes Friday night.

On behalf of the entire Senate, I extend our condolences to Senator INOUYE and his son Daniel Jr. This wonderful couple had been married 57 years. They were married in 1949. Senator Inouye proposed to Maggie on their second date. Daniel Jr. goes by the name of Ken, he has been at his mother’s side, as has Senator Inouye, for many days.

She was a wonderful woman. She formerly taught at the University of Hawaii. She was such a steadfast supporter of her husband in everything that he stood for.

Anyone who has spent any time at all with them knows how much they cared for each other, loved each other. Her death brings sadness to the entire Congress because she is a loss for the entire Senate family.

Senator INOUYE is a very nonpublic person. He holds everything very close to his vest, and he was not someone who cared to lunch with us and talk about his wife’s illness. That was a personal thing for him.

But she needed the support of her family. She had a very difficult time. She will now have peace, and to a certain extent so will Senator Inouye because he has suffered with her.

Senator INOUYE is such a wonderful human being. In my visit with him and Ken on Friday,—his wife was there but in another room—we talked about a lot of things. We laughed a lot. We cried a little bit. Here is a man who is a true American patriot. We throw those words around a lot, but we are not throwing this word around. DAN INOUYE is a true American patriot who served with distinction during World War II, and that is an understatement. He was awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor for courage above and beyond the call of duty.

Senator INOUYE will be away from the Senate for a while. He is going to take Maggie back to Hawaii. But I wish my words were adequate to convey my personal affection for Senator INOUYE and that of the entire Senate, but they are not. So the Record will have to stand on that.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, if the Senator will yield for a moment?

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I am happy to yield.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Illinois.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, I thank Senator Reid for bringing this sad news to the attention of the Senate family. There are many things that divide us, but there are things that unite us. We are united when Members of our Senate go through personal tragedy. Senator Reid knows better than anyone on our side of the aisle the personal sacrifices Senator INOUYE made over the last months and years as his wife has gone through this serious illness.

It is clear, from what he has given of his life, he took his vow very seriously to stand by her in sickness and in health. It is a tribute to this man, his devotion, and to their love which sustained them for 57 years.

I thank the Senator from Nevada for bringing this to our attention. We all join in expressing our sadness at her loss and will stand by Senator INOUYE and his family to ask them to try to remember, at this time of loss, those good memories together. We hope those memories will sustain their family.

I thank the Senator from Nevada.
INOUYE ON THE PASSING OF HIS WIFE, MAGGIE INOUYE

Mr. STEVENS. Mr. President, it has already been announced that Senator INOUYE’s wife Maggie has passed away.

I ask unanimous consent that the record be opened for Senator Daniel Inouye to make a statement about his wife be printed in the Record.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the Record, as follows:

STATEMENT BY U.S. SENATOR DANIEL K. INOUYE ON THE PASSING OF HIS WIFE, MAGGIE INOUYE

WASHINGTON—I am saddened to report that my dear and lovely wife of nearly 57 years, Margaret Awumara Inouye, passed away today at 4 p.m. Eastern Standard Time at Walter Reed Army Medical Center. She was 81, and her death was due to complications resulting from colon cancer.

“Maggie was recently hospitalized because an examination found small blood clots and some fluid in her right lung, and she had been in a process of draining out the fluid and dissolving the blood clots.

“This most recent medical challenge came after Maggie underwent surgery in November 2004 to remove a cancerous growth from her large intestine. Her surgeons had pronounced that operation a success.

“As Maggie has done throughout her life, Maggie handled her difficult situation without complaint, and with dignity and grace. Although her chemotherapy treatments would leave her drained, she always had a smile for you and she retained her optimistic outlook.

“It was a most special blessing to have had Maggie by my side for 57 years. She was my inspiration, and all that I have accomplished could not have been done without her at my side. We were a team. She always supported me, listened to my ideas, and many times offered invaluable suggestions that always proved she was capable of achieving as much on her own right, given her intelligence and education. Instead, she chose to join me on a special journey that took us to Washington, and gave us the privilege of serving the people of Hawaii.

“In the early 1950s when I was studying at George Washington to earn my law degree, Maggie was the girl I wanted to have as my lifelong partner a man who at that time was nothing more than a combat veteran on the GI Bill whose future was still uncertain. Her numerous other suitors had much more to offer, as they were already professional men.

“During the 18 months before our marriage on June 12, 1949, we were an unusual couple on the UH campus. She was an instructor; I was a student and contributed what I received from my GI education benefits and my pension as a retired Army Captain. While I was in class, she was working at the Department of the Navy’s Bureau of Yards and Docks, first as a file clerk and soon she was promoted to administrative secretary.

“When we returned to Hawaii, I went to work for the City and County of Honolulu as a Deputy Public Prosecutor, while Maggie returned to the University of Hawaii as an instructor in education. It was a position she would hold for six years.

“In 1961, five years after she left UH, Maggie gave birth to our son, Daniel K. Inouye, Jr. That was a most special day, perhaps because we became parents at a rather late stage in our lives.

“Kenny and I—as well as the people of Hawaii—were blessed to have had Maggie in our lives. She was a most special woman, and she will always be in my heart.”

“In addition to Senator Inouye and Daniel K. Inouye, Jr., that was a most special day, perhaps because we became parents at a rather late stage in our lives.

“Kenny and I—as well as the people of Hawaii—were blessed to have had Maggie in our lives. She was a most special woman, and she will always be in my heart.”

“Maggie handled her difficult situation without complaint, and with dignity and grace. Although her chemotherapy treatments would leave her drained, she always had a smile for you and she retained her optimistic outlook.”

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senate will now recess until 3:34 p.m., at which time Senator Inouye may be heard on his request.

Mr. AKAKA. Mr. President, I thank the Chair for this time.

Mr. President, on behalf of my wife Miki and my entire family, I rise to express our sincere sympathies, our deepest condolences, and our warmest aloha to my dear friend and my colleague, Senator Daniel K. Inouye, for the loss of his lovely wife Maggie, who passed away this afternoon.

Over the past year, whenever I spoke to Senator INOUYE, I would ask him about Maggie, and his reply to me was: She is a trooper. She is doing the best she can. And that really sums it up so well about Maggie.

Maggie was definitely a trooper. She was a wonderful, wonderful lady who served our country as a Senate spouse for the past 40-plus years. Maggie was a classy woman who was well respected everywhere she went. She was a lady with heart and gold and will definitely be missed by the people of Hawaii and the families here in Washington, DC. My thoughts and prayers go to Senator INOUYE, to his son Kenny and his wife, their extended family, and all of the Inouye staff here and in Hawaii. We stand waiting to do whatever we can to help in this difficult time. We will miss Maggie. May Maggie’s soul rest in peace.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Mr. President, I rise standing near our friend and colleague from Hawaii as we think about his colleague in the Senate and the fond relationship they enjoyed. If a poll was conducted in this Chamber or among the Members of this Chamber, if you ever asked who is this working, respected, beloved, wise Member of the U.S. Senate, you would come up with only one name, not that there aren’t others of friendship and good will and intellect and all of those things, but DANNY INOUYE is the exceptional person. His demeanor was quiet and thoughtful and always helpful, and he served his country in a way that few have in our history, having lost his arm in Italy and fighting on to lead his troops.

Mr. President, I have to say that all of us are so familiar with: a Medal of Honor winner, a distinction so rarely given, only to true heroes, to true leaders. But DANNY is a multidimensional person. He always had room for friendship, warmth, and affection, and his companion of 57 years, someone he always talked of with respect and admiration, and the linkage was true and fast. He relied on some people for advice and counsel and always cleared the air with his own thinking. But Maggie, his wife, was such an integral part of DANNY INOUYE’s living that this moment is especially tragic. He looked after her... with love and affection and talked to those with whom he had contact about her, never really resigning in tone or in words the fact that she was not doing well.

So when a Member, a friend like DANNY INOUYE, who is known for his caring, his beloved wife of 57 years, their relationship, we all feel sadness, we all feel touched by his loss and want him and his family, his son and all of the Inouye family, to know that we all care, we all share DANNY’s grief. We all are praying for him as friends and try to bolster his view about the future by reminding him how valuable he is to all of us and that we understand his pain, his anguish, and the sadness he feels. I think I speak for many in this Chamber: We want to express our feeling and devotion to DANNY INOUYE, friend, soldier, leader, our sadness, our grief at this terrible loss he has sustained.

I yield the floor.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, I join with the other Senators in expressing my sadness tonight as to Senator DAN INOUYE’s loss. I think all of us see Senator INOUYE as the gold standard of caring. He has always cared about his constituents, always cared about his family, always cared about his colleagues. But, most of all, he has cared about his family, and he threw himself with every ounce of his energy and strength into caring for his spouse who has passed away.

It is my hope that the Senate to note that in addition to his caring, what Senator INOUYE is best known for is his quiet sense of dignity. This is a place where it can get loud and clamorous at times, and what DAN INOUYE has always done is to try to always take the quiet path, to lower the decibel level, to try to get Senators to keep a perspective. That is why he always put his family first.

There are many fine people in the Senate, but when we think about our colleague DAN INOUYE tonight and all he did for his spouse in those last few months, there is no better person, no better colleague, no better friend all of us could have than DAN INOUYE. I just wanted to, along with my colleagues, let him know he is in my thoughts and prayers tonight.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. President, I join my colleagues in expressing our sincere sympathy to Senator INOUYE on his loss. He is certainly one of the finest, most respected Members of this body. He is one of the great Senators who have served here and has been a true American patriot, serving his country with such fidelity and putting his very life on the line, and nearly losing it, and winning him the Nation’s highest honors in the course of serving his country.

So I would just say from this Senator and, on behalf of so many of us, we are sorry to hear this news, and our prayers and support are with Senator INOUYE at this time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Washington.

Mrs. MURRAY. Mr. President, I rise this evening to talk about the budget that is before the Senate. But before I do, I want to add my voice to my colleagues who have come out here to express their condolences to our colleague, Senator INOUYE, on the loss of his beloved wife, Margaret Awamura Inouye. Certainly, as the Senator from New Jersey said, Senator INOUYE is the most respected Senator in this body, and he served his country well. Mrs. Inouye, too, has served her country by allowing Senator INOUYE to be the figure in this country and such a great leader and by all the time that was demanded by that. She has served her State, she has served her country, and we are all grateful. And to Senator INOUYE, he and his family are in my thoughts and prayers as well.

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, I would like to offer my deep condolences to our good friend and colleague, DAN INOUYE, and his family and to the people of Hawaii on the death of their good friend, DAN’s wife Maggie, who died this afternoon.

The death of anyone is cause for grief. The death of a spouse is an even greater cause for grief. The death of the spouse of a good friend, DAN INOUYE, is even more grievous to all of us.

Knowing DAN INOUYE as we do, we are all hard pressed to find anyone who is as wonderful and caring, a statesman, a patriot, as DAN INOUYE. A Japanese American under the most difficult of circumstances, he served his country—and served it with treasured valor.

His wife Maggie I did not know well. His children I have known for 38 years. His children tell me that Maggie handled her illness with dignity and grace—she always had a smile and kept a bright outlook. Maggie handled her illness with dignity and grace—she always had a smile and kept a bright outlook. The Senator tells us that Maggie was a true American patriot, serving his country with such fidelity and putting his very life on the line, and nearly losing it, and winning him the Nation’s highest honors in the course of serving his country.

at all. I do not know how often because I have not been briefed on the details, but apparently on many occasions this Government has wiretapped the conversations of American citizens without court approval. The President and the administration have not followed the clear letter of the law. That is an important and serious constitutional question.

I think the resolution being brought to us by Senator Feingold will cause us to look anew at this critically important issue. Whether it results in an action by Congress, as I said, remains to be seen. But I think it is important that we accept this challenge by the President from Wisconsin and that hearings be held in the Judiciary Committee, if that is where the resolution is eventually referred, and possibly even in the Intelligence Committee.

I hope the Intelligence Committee will start to move on this on a bipartisan basis. It has historically been a bipartisan committee. But recently in the last few weeks there have been many important votes taken on partisan rollcalls, votes relative to the authority and exercise of that authority by this committee in investigating this Bush administration.

It would be good if the committee could return to its bipartisan ways. I think it would give the institution of the Senate a vote of confidence that we can stand and investigate Presidents of either political party if there is serious and important policy questions to be determined.

I yield the floor.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. President, what is the time agreement?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There is a previous order that at 5:30 we will move to executive session and proceed to a vote on Calendar No. 520.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. President, I think back to a young Senator Inouye, serving in Vietnam, putting his life at risk and nearly losing it for our country. One thing he had a right to expect of his Congress was, as a soldier, he would be supported in the conflict.

We are here today hearing of a resolution presented by Senator Feingold to censure the President of the United States. It is baseless. It is not sound in law, and it is not sound in policy. We, by over a three-quarters vote, voted to send our soldiers in harm’s way. This Senate voted to do that. We authorized the President, in a use of force resolution, to identify those responsible for attacking us and to attack and destroy them, to use such military force as he deemed appropriate to attack and kill them. And our soldiers have been doing that.

The Supreme Court recently had to deal with the situation in which an American citizen was captured abroad, Hamdi. They caught him. It went before the Supreme Court of the United States, and the issue was whether he was entitled to a trial.

The question was, Was he entitled to a trial? The Supreme Court held otherwise. The Supreme Court said that he was a prisoner of war, and the authorization of military force authorized the military to attack and kill enemies of the United States. It also authorized them to capture them. That was incident to the use of military force.

It is quite plain that our history of military affairs supports the concept that surveilling in a time of war is incident to the carrying on of war. In the same way that we have a right to take an American citizen and lock them up in jail without trial if they are identified to be with the enemy, we can surveil the enemy’s communications.

The President authorized simply this: al-Qaida conversations in which one of the parties to that conversation is outside the United States could be monitored. We know it was through those kinds of communications that 9/11 occurred. We had sleeper cells here activated by foreign communications.

If the President is wrong, as the President has not fulfilled his promise to do that. We authorized the President while we have our soldiers at war and at risk, to suggest that he has done something wrong and needs to be censured.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The time of the Senator has expired.

Mr. SESSIONS. I express my strongest disapproval of the propriety of this resolution.

EXECUTIVE SESSION

Nomination of Leo Maury Gordon to be a judge of the United States Court of International Trade

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. Alexander). Under the previous order, the hour of 5:30 p.m. having arrived, the Senate will go into executive session and proceed to a vote on Calendar No. 520, which the clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read the nomination of Leo Maury Gordon, of New Jersey, to be a judge of the United States Court of International Trade.

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, this evening the Senate will consider another lifetime appointment to a circuit court. The nominee is Leo Maury Gordon, who is nominated to serve on the United States Court of International Trade.

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, this evening the Senate will consider another lifetime appointment to a circuit court. The nominee is Leo Maury Gordon, who is nominated to serve on the United States Court of International Trade. Mr. Gordon is the court’s long-time clerk, and he is very familiar with its important work. I urge all Senators, Republican and Democratic, to support this nomination.

His confirmation will bring the total number of judicial appointments since January 2001 to 232, including the confirmations of two Supreme Court Justices and 49 circuit court judges. Of course, 100 judges were confirmed in the 17 months that Democrats were in the Senate majority. In the other 45 months, 32 judges have been confirmed. Ironically, under Democratic leadership, the Senate was almost twice as productive as under Republican leadership.

It is most regrettable that this President has not fulfilled his promise to the American people to be a uniter. Nor has he fulfilled his pledge to complete his work in advance of vacancies and to make nominations promptly. Judicial vacancies have grown to more than 50, and the White House has failed to send judicial nominees for half of those. Some of those vacancies have been sitting empty for more than a year. Over and over the White House has missed the deadline the President established for himself, and today, half of the judicial vacancies, 27, are without a nominee.

If the White House would eliminate its partisan political and ideological litmus tests from the judicial nominations process and its emphasis on rewarding cronies and focus only on qualifications and consensus, the job of selecting nominees and our job of considering them for confirmation would be much easier. That is what this confirmation demonstrates.

Recently we have seen the President withdraw a circuit nomination after information became public about this nominee’s rulings in a number of cases in which he appears to have had a conflict of interest.

At a minimum, this case reinforces a point about this White House’s poor vetting process for important nominations. A number of nominations by this President have had to be withdrawn. Among the more well known are Bernard Kerik to head Homeland Security and Harriet Miers to the Supreme Court, which were withdrawn for different reasons. It was, as I recall, reporting in a national magazine that doomed the Kerik nomination.

When we are considering lifetime appointments of judicial officers who are entrusted with protecting the rights of Americans and when we are reviewing important law enforcement officials, it is important to be thorough. Unfortunately, this White House seems more interested in rewarding cronies.

Ms. CANTWELL. I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second? There appears to be a sufficient second.

The question is, Will the Senate advise and consent to the nomination of Leo Maury Gordon to be a judge of the United States Court of International Trade?

The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk called the roll.
Mr. MCCONNELL. The following Senators were necessarily absent: the Senator from Pennsylvania (Mr. SANTORUM) and the Senator from Oregon (Mr. SMITH).

Mr. DURBIN. I announce that the Senator from Louisiana (Mr. BAYH), the Senator from Minnesota (Mr. DAYTON), the Senator from Hawaii (Mr. INOUYE), the Senator from South Dakota (Mr. JOHNSON), the Senator from Louisiana (Ms. LANDRIEU), the Senator from New Jersey (Mr. MENENDEZ), the Senator from Maryland (Ms. MIKULSKI), the Senator from Florida (Mr. NELSON), and the Senator from West Virginia (Mr. ROCKEFELLER) are necessarily absent.

I further announce that if present and voting, the Senator from Minnesota (Mr. DAYTON) would vote "yea."

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. CORNYN). Are there any other Senators in the Chamber desiring to vote?

The result was announced—yeas 82, nays 0, as follows:

LEGISLATIVE SESSION

The Senator from North Dakota.

ORDER OF PROCEDURE

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Senator AKAKA and Senator LAUTENBERG be authorized to speak on the death of Senator INOUYE’s wife, Maggie, and then that Senator WYDEN be recognized for 12 minutes, Senator MURRAY for 15 minutes, and Senator Baucus for 15 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

SNOWE-WYDEN AMENDMENT TO LIFT NEGOTIATION RESTRICTIONS ON MEDICARE

Mr. WYDEN. Mr. President, on this difficult evening, I wish to take just a few minutes to talk about the budget.

Last Congress, Senator SNOWE and I, on a bipartisan basis, saw 51 Members of the Senate endorse bipartisan legislation to lift the restriction on Medicare so that program could bargain to hold down the cost of medicine. That vote, where a majority of Senators went on record in supporting the effort to hold down the cost of medicine, took place before the program went into effect. It seems to me everything that has happened over the last few months, since a majority of the Senate voted for our bipartisan amendment, supports our case for passing that legislation now.

We will be offering our bipartisan proposal, the Snowe-Wyden amendment, later this week, and I wish to take just a few minutes to outline why it is so important.

The American Association of Retired Persons says it all in a letter endorsing our bipartisan Snowe-Wyden proposal.

I ask unanimous consent that the AARP letter endorsing the Snowe-Wyden legislation be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Hon. RON WYDEN,
U.S. Senate,
Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR WYDEN: AARP supports your amendment to the Senate fiscal year 2007 budget bill to provide for the ability of the Secretary of Health and Human Services to participate in negotiations with pharmaceutical manufacturers under the Medicare prescription drug program.

Prescription drug prices continue to rise much faster than the rate of inflation. AARP’s latest Rx Watchdog report released in February 2006 found that prices for nearly 200 of the nation’s medications most commonly used by older Americans rose 6.0 percent during the 12 month period from October 2004-September 2005. At the same time, the rate of general inflation was 3.3 percent.

These drug price increases particularly hit older Americans, who use prescription drugs more than any other segment of the U.S. population.

Millions of older and disabled Americans now have the opportunity to choose prescription drug coverage as part of their Medicare benefit options. To date, millions of Medicare beneficiaries have enrolled in the program and as a result are realizing savings on their prescription drugs. However, improvements to the Medicare Modernization Act are necessary to strengthen the benefit and Medicare program. We believe the first step is to lift this drug benefit affordable for beneficiaries and their taxpayers.

While we have seen that the current competitive structure existing in the MMA has helped to bring prescription drug prices down, we believe that giving the Secretary the authority to participate in negotiations may also help to make prescription drugs more affordable for beneficiaries.

We look forward to working with you and your colleagues on both sides of the aisle to ensure that the new Medicare Part D benefit remains affordable over time. If you have any further questions, please feel free to contact me, or have your staff contact Anna Saxman of our Federal Affairs staff at 202-444-3770.

Sincerely,

DAVID P. SLOANE,
St. John Snowe, Government Relations and Advocacy.

Mr. WYDEN. Mr. President, as AARP notes—and they publish an Rx Watchdog report—they have noted that for the nearly 200 brand-name medications most commonly used by older people, the costs of those medicines have gone up twice the rate of inflation. So all Americans get hit by prescription drug costs. Particularly, hard hit are older people, and low-income older people, and people with very big prescription drug bills. As noted by AARP, these seniors are hit more than any other segment of the U.S. population by prescription drug costs.

At a time when the costs of this program and the costs of Government have gone through the stratosphere, one would think the Government would be doing everything possible to hold down costs. Yet, unfortunately, in the original prescription drug legislation, a bizarre restriction was put in place that literally bars the Government from being a smart shopper. Everybody else in this country tries to use their clout in the marketplace to get the best possible deal, but not Medicare—not Medicare, which offers a benefit to more than 34 million older people. They are not using the opportunity to go into the marketplace and hold down the costs.

I compare the Government’s approach to buying prescription drugs under Medicare to somebody going into Costco and buying toilet paper one roll at a time. Nobody would shop that way. No savvy shopper would ever give up, even before they walked into the store, the opportunity to hold down the costs. But that is what Medicare is doing, and that is what Senator SNOWE and I want to change.

Now, we have seen over the last couple of months older people and their families absolutely up in arms about the frustrations of getting this prescription drug program out and usable in a commonsense kind of fashion. It is far too complicated. There are far too many alternatives. Some seniors say that even with a Ph.D. they can’t sort it out. But what is especially troubling is at a time when the costs of the program continue to go up and up and up, the Government isn’t even taking commonsense steps to hold down the cost of these medicines.

So what Senator SNOWE and I have tried to do in a bipartisan effort for going on 3 years now is to make sure that when necessary the Secretary of Health and Human Services can negotiate for the best possible prices of prescription drugs for older people.

Now, this isn’t price control. Specifically, our bipartisan amendment stipulates that the authority granted here cannot be used to set prices or to set a uniform formulary. Nowhere in this amendment is there a call for price controls or anything that can be interpreted as price controls. This is about using marketplace forces. This is about saying, we are going to let the busitness, that way we - Americans do every day to hold down the cost of medicine.

Senator SNOWE and I believe one of the most flagrant mistakes in the Medicare law—and both of us voted for that legislation—was to write into law that the Secretary could not have bargaining power under any circumstances at all. We have seen drug prices increase, as AARP has noted, far higher than the rate of inflation. The Wall Street Journal has reported price spikes. The Congressional Budget Oflice has indicated there can be savings from negotiations in the area of single-source drugs that do not face competition, and suffice it to say, many of the single-source drugs are ones that are commonly used by Medicare patients, such as Lipitor and Zocor and Prevacid.

I will wrap up, Mr. President, with only a couple of additional points because I know my colleague from Washington has been very patient. The authority that Senator SNOWE and I seek to grant to the Department of Health and Human Services is the authority that Secretary Thompson at his last press conference as head of the Department of Health and Human Services, said he wished he had. So the last head of that agency, at a time when they were facing a budget crisis in the prescription drug law, said specifically he wished he had had this authority.

The last point I would make, Mr.
President, is that some have said: Well, seniors are seeing some savings already, so what—saying it isn’t true, but it comes about because the basic benefit covers 75 percent of the cost of the drug after the $250 de-tuctible. So the question for the Senate is going to be not in order to hold down the cost of this program? Are you going to look at taxpayer subsidies? Are you going to look at marketplace forces? Senator SNOWE and I believe that at a time when the costs of Government are soaring and the costs of this prescription drug benefit are soaring, we ought to use commonsense marketplace principles to hold down the cost of medicine, not continue to rely on taxpayer subsidies, and that is what our amendment is all about.

Mr. President and colleagues, I do not know of a single private sector entity, whether it is a timber company in my home State of Oregon, or a big auto company in the Midwest, that when they are buying something in bulk, say: What about the possibility of some discounts? So why shouldn’t Medicare ask that question, just to have that authority so as to make marketplace forces work? Why wouldn’t we want to empower us or tie our hands when we turn to negotiation bills this year?
That means you cannot vote for an unrealistic budget now and then act surprised in the summer and fall when painful cuts are required. Just look at what happened last year. The logjam that we experienced at the end does not pass the test of fighting for our middle-class families.

Let me start by putting this discussion in the right context. The budget decisions that we make now will either empower us or tie our hands when we swing the scissors in the winter.

Starting last March, many of us saw that there was no way we could meet
our obligation to our veterans, honor
our commitment to America’s working families, enact huge cuts in entitlement programs such as Medicaid and Medicare, enact another round of tax cuts, and continue to cut our Nation’s deficit. And when you added the growing cost of Hurricane Katrina, the legislative train wreck was entirely predictable. I hope we do not repeat the same mistakes this year—starting with the wrong priorities and unrealistic assumptions here in the budget process which will lead to strangled appropriations bills that will end up hurting our American families.

Mr. President, a budget is more than just a bunch of numbers on a piece of paper. It is more than a list of priorities;
it reflects our values, and it reflects our priorities. The budget
this Senate is now considering closely follows the President’s budget, and it is based on the wrong priorities. It is clear to me that we need to invest here
at home to make our country strong again. That means investing in education and in health care, in infrastructure and housing, in safety and security, and on each of those fronts the Bush priorities have been time and again misguided, adrift, and downright downright painful for millions of Americans.

You know, Mr. President, when I am at home in Washington State or here in the Nation’s Capital I hear a lot of concern from the business community, from local governments, and from families across the United States about us losing our global competitiveness.
They talk to me about the challenges they face in keeping and growing good jobs right here at home and they tell me that education is one of the elements for our success. But last year’s budget, the fiscal year 2006 budget, set us on the path of undermining our competitiveness by weakening education programs and all of us feared that this budget, the fiscal year 2007 budget, will do the exact same thing.

Last year’s budget, the 2006 budget so constrained education that the Labor, Health and Human Services and Education appropriations bill failed once in the House and almost did not pass at all. In the end, the programs faced one last hit, a 1-percent across-the-board cut on further hindered education at all levels.

At a time when our schools are facing the increasing requirements of No Child Left Behind, our families are facing rising college tuition costs, and everyone is our need for more highly skilled, educated workers, this is no time for our Nation to be short-changing education.

The reason I feel the need to talk about last year’s budget at length is to point out last year’s budget is the logical outcome of decisions that were made regarding the budget.

Starting last March, many of us saw
that there was no way we could meet
our obligation to our veterans, honor
our commitment to America’s working families, enact huge cuts in entitlement programs such as Medicaid and Medicare, enact another round of tax
cuts, and continue to cut our Nation’s deficit. And when you added the growing cost of Hurricane Katrina, the legislative train wreck was entirely predictable. I hope we do not repeat the same mistakes this
year—starting with the wrong priorities and unrealistic assumptions here
in the budget process which will lead to strangled appropriations bills that will end up hurting our American families.

Mr. President, a budget is more than just a bunch of numbers on a piece of paper. It is more than a list of priorities;
it reflects our values, and it reflects our priorities. The budget
this Senate is now considering closely follows the President’s budget, and it is based on the wrong priorities. It is clear to me that we need to invest here
at home to make our country strong
again. That means investing in education and in health care, in infrastructure and housing, in safety and security, and on each of those fronts the
again misguided, adrift, and downright downright painful for millions of Americans.

You know, Mr. President, when I am at home in Washington State or here in the Nation’s Capital I hear a lot of con-for college, and 70 percent of those cuts is going to come right out of the pockets of students and their families.

Those cuts, by the way, will not go for balancing the budget. They are going to go for tax cuts for those who need it the least. We are trading the higher education of the Nation’s families for our majority’s misguided fiscal policy.

Tuition and fees increased by 7.1 percent at four-year public universities and 5.9 percent for private universities. The policies that are pursued in this budget are not just wrong for our country, they are going to cost our Nation dearly in the long term. Today, one-third of our U.S. workforce has a postsecondary education—one-third. But it is estimated that 60 percent of the new jobs in the 21st century are going to require a college education.

Workers who have attended college on average have higher incomes and lower rates of unemployment than those who don’t. And those with a college education are more likely to have jobs with benefits like health care and retirement and pension plans.

We want to be ensuring that all of our good-paying jobs are going to be outsourced abroad.

Finally, this budget fails to adequately protect our miners and our other workers from health and safety dangers they face in their workplace.

On housing, this budget resolution will mean painful cuts—housing for the elderly cut 50 percent, community development block grants cut by more than $1 billion. Those are the wrong priorities. We should be providing more help for the disabled and the elderly and for community development.

Across the country, public housing agencies and nonprofit organizations are working hard to help families find a place they can call home. At the same time, they are contributing to community revitalization efforts that will bring new jobs and opportunities. They have invested in the accomplishments that have been made and the work that is yet to be done.

This budget resolution that is before us assumes the President’s proposal to cut the Community Development Fund, which supports the Community Development Block Grant Program, by more than $1 billion. That, by the way, is on top of a $5 billion cut the program received this year.

Every Senator here knows how successful the Community Development Block Grant Program is. You can see its impact in communities across the country. Whether it is construction of new affordable housing or supporting community revitalization, CDBG is bringing hope to some of our country’s most vulnerable.

The budget resolution we are looking at this week does not restore funding for the Community Development Block Grant Program. That will make it virtually impossible to restore cuts in housing and community development, including that $1 billion reduction in CDBG.

I refer my colleagues to the views and estimates filed on the Budget Committee resolution from the chairman and ranking member of the Appropriations Committee, and I want to quote directly from those views:

We reiterate that unless the committee—the Appropriations Committee—receives substantial relief from those unachievable assumptions, the committee will be unable to fund the President’s request much less items of Congressional interest.

I think that is wrong.

I am going to be offering an amendment, with the support of many of my colleagues, to restore that funding.

I believe it is also critical that we continue to invest in our Nation’s infrastructure. Recent cuts in transportation spending are threatening to weaken our airline safety. They are imposing new transportation costs on American businesses, and they cost tens of thousands of construction jobs. Investing in our Nation’s transportation infrastructure helps reduce congestion, improves safety, and supports continued economic growth.

On veterans, this budget does not keep America’s commitment to our veterans because it is built on making it harder for veterans to get the health care they have earned. The Bush administration wants to close the doors of VA hospitals to 1.1 million veterans. It is going to keep another 200,000 from accessing the VA. The Bush administration is imposing new fees, copayments, and blocking access, and that is just wrong.

The committee resolution will simply make it impossible to fully fund VA health care without additional cost sharing. The resolution assumes the President’s increase for VA health care, but this increase is matched in part through higher premiums and copayments.

I offered an amendment during mark-up to restore full funding for VA health care without forcing our veterans to pay for the care they earned. Unfortunately, it failed in committee, but we are going to try again on the floor.

One of the biggest flaws in this budget is in homeland security. I know a lot of Senators recognize the inadequacies of the administration’s approach, with the Chairman of the Appropriations Committee, who also serves as chairman of the Homeland Security Appropriations Subcommittee, characterizing it as “gross malfeasance.”

I thank the chairman for recognizing this and for making a gesture in the budget toward addressing this gaping hole. But gestures are not enough, and if the Senate passes the caps proposed by the administration and contained in this budget, no Senator should be under any illusion that we will have the courage and choice to do it again underfund our Nation’s defenses.

In recent weeks, we have all heard about the issue of cargo and port security. It is looming large, and we have had a vigorous debate here and across the country. No matter the particular outcome of this transaction, this country is not adequately prepared to confront the threats we face to our security through our trading system. Sadly, this budget continues that regretful trend.

On health care, the President wants to cut 2.2 percent from HHS. That is going to reduce our investment in medical research, in disease prevention, and in important safety net programs such as urban Indian health.

During the Budget Committee, I actually offered an amendment to try to provide more direction and flexibility to the Finance Committee’s work on legislation aimed at addressing the problems with the Medicare Part D benefit, to provide them with a deficit-neutral reserve fund to deal with the copayments our States are facing.

It is only a matter of time and our States are going to revolt, and our pharmacists are already paying the price. I hope we again address that.

Let me conclude by saying this budget is neither fiscally responsible nor disciplined. Under the assumptions in this resolution, the deficit is actually going to get worse. It is going to continue to increase. The only fiscal constraint included in this resolution is a cap on discretionary spending that will make it almost impossible to meet our country’s needs or our appropriations deadline of October 1.

I will have more to say.

Let me end by saying that this budget is based on unrealistic spending targets and lacks any real fiscal discipline. Simply providing unrealistic caps on domestic spending while assuming additional tax cuts is not fiscally responsible. I believe this budget is neither honest nor responsible.

We have a lot of work to do to make our country strong again. We need a budget that reflects our priorities and values. And I cannot forget that the choices we make today will empower us—or entrap us—from now on. I hope we can work together on both sides of the aisle to create a budget that protects our homeland, ensures fiscal discipline, and stands up for our middle-class families.

Thank you Mr. President. I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Montana.

BUDGET DEFICITS

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, the Book of Proverbs says, "The borrower is servant to the lender."

This is a sad week for America, for we have become servants to many nations.

This week, we debate legislation to raise the Government's borrowing by $781 billion—a third of a trillion dollars.

This will be the fourth largest debt increase in the history of our country, and it will be the fourth debt limit increase enacted in this administration.

In 2002, the Government raised the debt ceiling by $450 billion. The next year, 2003, the Government raised it by $984 billion—nearly a trillion dollars. That was an all-time record. And in 2004, the Government raised the debt ceiling by another $800 billion.

This week, we consider legislation to raise the debt ceiling by another $781 billion. When added to the three other debt limit increases during this administration, the total increase in the debt ceiling will be a mammoth $3 trillion. That is servitude.

When this administration took office, the limit on Treasury borrowing was about $6 trillion. It took us as a country 212 years to accumulate that much debt. Now, a mere 5 years later, this administration has added another $3 trillion. This one administration has added half again as much debt as all the other administrations that came before it put together. That is servitude.

During the period that this administration has been in office, the debt has gone up by about $10,000 for every man, woman, and child in America. For a family of four, that is an increase of $40,000 just during the time this President has been in office as President.

What would an average American family think of that amount of debt? Imagine an average American family sitting at the kitchen table. Imagine them looking at $40,000 in new debt. What would they think? Would they just call their credit card company and ask for a higher limit?

The right thing to do would be to turn over a new leaf. The right thing to do would be to balance the family budget. When your debt spins out of control, you cut up the credit card, you try to live within your means, and you stick to a budget for the future of your family.

The question is, Will Congress show the kind of fiscal discipline that is necessary? Will Congress show that discipline that any American family should be expected to show?

And to whom are we servants? We are servants to future generations. Much of the Treasury debt is now owned by foreigners. That includes both foreign citizens and central banks in foreign countries. That means we pay interest to foreign citizens and foreign central banks. Over time, this will lower America's standard of living.

How is debt like servitude? These large foreign holdings of our Treasury debt are a risk to our homeland security and our economic security. Suppose the President thinks that another country is a threat to America's security. Suppose the President would like to tell that country that America would take action against it if it did not change its actions. If that country's central bank, a major holder of our Treasury debt, it could threaten to sell it quickly. That sale would drive up interest rates and cause the dollar to fall. That would cause a recession in America. As a result, the President might have to back down from threats against that other country. America would be at greater risk.

Or take the situation where America has a trade dispute with a foreign country. Imagine that the foreign country's central bank owned a lot of our debt. Then that country could threaten to sell the debt to force America to back down from our position in a trade dispute. America would be weaker in trade.

Foreigners now own more than $2 trillion of Treasury debt today. This is double the amount they owned at the beginning of this administration.

Mr. President, 96 percent of the increase in debt held by the public between December 2004 and December 2005 resulted from foreign purchases of that debt. The bottom line is simple. These massive increases in debt harm America. They make us the servants of foreign nations.

How did we get to this point? Federal budget deficits drive up our debt, and these deficits have been huge during this administration. When this administration took office we were running large budget surpluses—not deficits, surpluses. In fiscal year 2000, the last year of the previous administration, we ran a surplus of $236 billion. We ran a surplus of $86 billion even without counting Social Security. By fiscal year 2001, the surplus, counting Social Security, had dropped to $128 billion. We ran our first deficit in the prior year. Then, the tide of red ink really flowed. In fiscal year 2002, the Government ran a deficit of $158 billion. The following year, 2003, the Federal Government ran a budget deficit of $375 billion. That was an all-time record. But that record lasted just 1 year.

The next year, fiscal year 2004, the Government set a new record by running a deficit of $413 billion. The following year, fiscal year 2005, the Government ran a deficit of $319 billion. Although this was not a record, it was still larger than deficits run in any year before this administration took office. In the current year, the deficit will go up again. The administration predicts that the deficit will rise to $423 billion. This represents yet another all-time record.

To make matters worse, these record deficits are occurring just at the time the retirement of the baby boom generation is about to begin. The retirement of the baby boom generation will put enormous stress on the Federal budget. It will lead to huge increases in the cost for Social Security, Medicare, and Medicaid, and this will drive up budget deficits.

The fiscal policy of this administration has been the most irresponsible in the Nation's history. This fiscal policy has generated huge surpluses, and these deficits, in turn, have contributed to massive increases in Federal debt.

We need to change course. We must rein in the tough pay-go budget rule. The pay-go rule says if you want to increase entitlement spending or tax cuts, we have to pay for them. Senators CONRAD and FEINGOLD will offer an amendment to the budget and again to the debt limit legislation to restore tough pay-go rules.

I will have more to say about that when the amendment is offered, but for now let me cut to the chase. Every Senator ought to vote for that amendment. We need to enact a tough pay-go rule. We need to work together to stop increasing the budget deficit. We need to vote against the hemorrhaging of debt that has afflicted us these last few years. That is what we need to do.

The choice is clear. Do you want to fall further into debt to foreign powers or do we have the will to break the bonds of our debt servitude? All that is at stake is our freedom.

I urge Senators to think deeply about the upcoming vote. The future of our country, in many deep senses of the term, depends on that vote, especially the future of our children and our grandchildren.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

MORNING BUSINESS

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that there now be a period of morning business, with Senators permitted to speak for up to 10 minutes each.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

HONORING DR. BRUCE MCMILLAN

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, I rise today to honor a constituent, Dr. Bruce McMillan, director of the Illinois State Museum, and congratulate him on his retirement.

Dr. McMillan began his career at the Illinois State Museum in 1969 as associate curator of anthropology. Since becoming director in 1977, Dr. McMillan has guided the museum through an expansion from two to six facilities throughout Illinois.

The Illinois State Museum serves the State of Illinois through its excellence in interdisciplinary research and its commitment to innovation in exhibits and education. With collections in the natural sciences, anthropology, and art, the museum tells the story of the land, life, people, and art of Illinois.

Dr. McMillan has brought to his work a true passion for research, travel, and the outdoors. Those who know him best call him a natural leader who inspires those around him to do things they would never try on their own. An avid outdoorsman, Dr. McMillan has led yearly field trips for friends and colleagues, including one to the dry shelters of Arkansas that has become legend amongst his friends.

Known to be a sports enthusiast, Dr. McMillan has played in the Springfield senior softball league for years and has admirably represented Illinois in the Senior Olympics. He is supported by his wife Virginia and his three children in all of his many varied pursuits.

Through his decades of service as director of the Illinois State Museum, Dr. Bruce McMillan has promoted discovery, learning, and an appreciation of Illinois’ heritage. Under his leadership, the Illinois State Museum has become a premier State Museum in the country, and the legacy he has created will continue to benefit the State of Illinois in the years to come.

Mr. President, I congratulate Dr. Bruce McMillan on his many accomplishments throughout his long and successful career, and I wish him many more years of happiness and accomplishment in retirement.

HONORING OUR ARMED FORCES

PRIVATE FIRST CLASS MATTHEW LEE BERTELTONO

Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, I rise today to pay tribute to PFC Matthew Lee Berteltono of Hampsted, NH, for his service and supreme sacrifice for his country.

Matthew, a 2003 graduate of Pinkerton Academy, Derry, New Hampshire, joined the Marine Corps through the Marine Corps Delayed Entry Program on September 30, 2004. He started his initial training on January 26, 2005, at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot, Parris Island, SC. Upon completion of his training he became an infantry marine with an 0351 assaultman specialty. His awards include the Afghanistan Campaign Medal, Global War on Terrorism Service Medal, National Defense Service Medal, and Expert Rifleman Medal.

Tragically, on February 9, 2006, this courageous young marine, only 20 years of age, died as a result of a non-hostile accident while operating as part of a patrol near Jalalabad, Afghanistan. At the time Private First Class Berteltono was serving with A Company, 1st Battalion, 3rd Marine Regiment, 3rd Marine Division, III Marine Expeditionary Force which was deployed to Afghanistan in support of Operation Enduring Freedom—Afghanistan.

Patriots from the State of New Hampshire have served our Nation with honor and distinction from Bunker Hill to Afghanistan—and Matthew served in that fine tradition. Daniel Webster said: God grants liberty only to those who love it, and are always ready to guard and defend it. Matthew was one of those proud and dedicated volunteers who chose to serve our Nation, and guard our precious liberty, and for that we will always owe our sincere gratitude.

Family, friends, and fellow marines will no longer be able to enjoy the company of PFC Matthew Lee Berteltono. Yet memories of this young patriot will last forever with those who were fortunate enough to have had the opportunity to know him. He realized a calling for a higher service and chose to employ his considerable talents in the service of his country. He understood that the freedoms and opportunities provided by this Nation need continuous defense and that they are among the most precious gifts he can give to his family and loved ones. We honor Matthew for the dedication he has shown to his family and our Nation. Because of his efforts, the liberty of this country is made more secure.

HONORING DR. BRUCE MCMILLAN

Mr. BAYH. Mr. President, I rise today to applaud the Transportation Corporation in South Bend, IN, for its decision to use biofuels to power the South Bend public transit system, the second largest public transit system in Indiana. These events, which focus on current events and policy, are a fantastic educational tool for students to learn about their world and their government. In fact, I have several former Montana team debaters on my staff, including a former State champion in team debate.

By winning its 23rd straight state championship, the Loyola Sacred Heart speech and debate team extended its State record for the most consecutive titles in any division in any activity. A lot of things have changed since they won their first title in 1984, but the success enjoyed by Loyola Sacred Heart in speech and debate has remained consistent. Since 1981, over 1,000 students have competed for Loyola Sacred Heart and the team has produced 34 individual State champions and over 225 medalists.

Students competed in two debate events—team debate and Lincoln-Douglas debate—and seven individual public speaking events—extemporaneous speaking, impromptu speaking, original oratory, memorized public address, expository speaking, serious oral interpretation of literature, and humorous oral interpretation of literature.

Head coach: Matthew Stergios
Assistant coaches: Sarah Jennings, Charles Hansberry, Theresa Stergios and Jessica Weinert.

ADDITIONAL STATEMENTS

HONORING TRANSPORTO

Mr. BAYH. Mr. President, I rise today to applaud the Transportation Corporation in South Bend, IN, for its decision to use biofuels to power the South Bend public transit system, the second largest public transit system in Indiana. These things have changed since the environment and good news for the economy. By using biofuels to power South Bend’s public buses, Indiana is setting an example for the rest of the Nation and leading the way on the path to greater energy security.

Ending our dependence on foreign oil is one of the defining challenges of our generation and it’s going to affect America in every way, from the health of our finances to the health of our environment, from our well-being to our security. That is why we must make America’s dependence on foreign oil a thing of the past. And that means reducing our overall energy consumption, increasing America’s use of biofuels through significant increases in tax credits and grants. By letting America’s farmers produce America’s fuel, we will help truly set our country free. I want to thank South Bend and TRANSPO for showing how to start making that progress.

RONALD SEARIGHT OF ST. LOUIS

- Mr. BOND, Mr. President, I rise today to recognize the achievements of an exceptional Missouri student.

Second grader Ronald Searight of St. Louis has taken it upon himself to lead his peers in the St. Louis Public School District in an effort to end school violence, particularly bullying. Using his personal experiences at Laclede Elementary School during his first grade year, Ronald published a short book entitled ‘’The Bully,’’ which he hopes will guide other students to free themselves from bullying.

Ronald’s book, “The Bully,” explains who bullies are and what they do, as well as how to respond when you are frightened by a bully. Ronald’s advice is sound: do not suffer the intimidation of a bully. He stresses the importance of communicating to trusted adults in order to help students overcome peer violence and abuse in its early stages before the school’s learning environment is disrupted.

With the aid of his mother and local leaders, Ronald continues to spread his message. On March 14, 2006, public schools across the city of St. Louis are celebrating Live Bully-Free Day. Ronald has invited other school children to join him in learning the personal and social skills necessary to protect themselves from bullies, gangs, and their tactics. Ronald deserves to be commended not only for his courage but also for his great service and leadership in our community.

Mr. President, I encourage you and other Members of the Senate to join me in recognizing the initiative of this brave and creative young man, Ronald Searight.

IN MEMORIAM TO SAM CHU LIN

- Mrs. BOXER, Mr. President, I take this opportunity to honor the life of Sam Chu Lin, who broke new ground as one of the first Asian American journalists. Mr. Chu Lin passed away on March 5, 2006, at the age of 67.

Mr. Chu Lin is survived by his wife, squad, and their contributions throughout his lifetime. Mr. Chu Lin was also the recipient of many awards and accolades from prestigious organizations, including the Associated Press, United Press International, the Academy of Arts and Sciences, the Greater Los Angeles Press Club, and the Radio and Television News Association. As a strong advocate for Asian-Pacific-Americans and their contributions throughout the years.

Sam Chu Lin believed that journalism should be educational, and that ‘’informing and helping others is what makes journalism exciting.’’ He felt that journalism was a ‘’chance to use your roots for a positive purpose.’’ In his reports, articles, and stories, it was evident that Mr. Chu Lin did just that. He was a tireless advocate on behalf of the Asian-Pacific-American community, whether he was producing documentaries on the Asian-Pacific American experience or speaking to organizations about the importance of civic participation. His contributions to the field of journalism, especially within the Asian-Pacific-American community, will not be forgotten.

Mr. Chu Lin is survived by his wife, Judy; his two sons, Mark and Christopher; and his mother. I extend my deepest sympathies to his family.

Sam Chu Lin was a pioneer among Asian-American journalists, and he will be missed by all who knew him. We take comfort in knowing that future generations will benefit from his tenacity, his strength and his desire to make America a better place to live.
HONORING MAJOR JEFF JURGENSEN

Mr. OBAMA. Mr. President, it is my pleasure and privilege to honor an exceptional Marine, MAJ Jeff Jurgensen. Major Jurgensen has served our Nation for more than 20 years. Rising from the rank of Marine Private, he has served around the globe in both war and peace. Major Jurgensen was born in Oak Park, IL, and spent much of his youth in the Chicago area.

He began his Marine Corps service at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot, Parris Island, S.C. He also completed the School of Industrial Arts, Camp Lejeune. He then signed duties as a Marine Corps Combat Correspondent, he subsequently graduated from the Military Print and Broadcast Journalist Program at the Defense Information School.

Major Jurgensen was then stationed in Tokyo, Japan, as a Correspondent for the Armed Forces Radio and Television Service. Promoted to Corporal while in Japan, Major Jurgensen was selected for the Enlisted Commissioning Program and transferred to Quantico, VA, where he attended Officer Candidate School and the Basic School—graduating with Honors. As a Marine Officer, Major Jurgensen has served in North Carolina, Missouri, Louisiana, and Washington, DC. In addition, during his career, he has deployed in support of Hurricane Andrew Relief Operations in Dade County, FL, Operation Enduring Freedom in the Horn of Africa, and Operation Iraqi Freedom in Bahrain, Kuwait, and Iraq.

Since 2004, Major Jurgensen has been assigned to the Marine Corps’ Office of Legislative Affairs as a Congressional Liaison Representative. Responding to more than 4,000 inquiries from Members of Congress, Major Jurgensen has worked to provide our Nation’s elected leaders with critical information regarding Marine Corps operations, policies, programs, and personnel. His efforts have measurably contributed to the mission of the Marine Corps, U.S. House, and Senate Representatives and Senators. His skill, judgment, and complete dedication to duty are in keeping with the highest traditions of the United States Marine Corps and the United States Naval Service.

I wish Major Jurgensen, his wife Kamie—also from Illinois—and their wonderful family the very best as they begin a new life. I am particularly proud that residents of the great State of Illinois choose to join the Marine Corps and serve this Nation. Major Jurgensen has done so with distinction.

On behalf of the Senate, I wish to extend my heartfelt thanks and gratitude. May he have many more years of continuing success.

MESSAGES FROM THE PRESIDENT

Messages from the President of the United States were communicated to the Senate by Ms. Evans, one of his secretaries.

EXECUTIVE MESSAGES REferred

As in executive session the President may read the Senate messages from the President of the United States submitting sundry nominations which were referred to the appropriate committees.

(REport of the continuation of the national emergency with respect to Iran that was declared in executive order 12957—PM 43)

The PRESIDENT OFFICER laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States, together with an accompanying report; which was referred to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs.

To the Congress of the United States:

Section 202(d) of the National Emergencies Act (50 U.S.C. 1622(d)) provides for the continuation of a national emergency unless, prior to the anniversary date of its declaration, the President publishes in the Federal Register and transmits to the Congress a notice stating that the emergency is to continue in effect beyond the anniversary date. In accordance with this provision, I have sent the enclosed notice to the Federal Register for publication, stating that the Iran emergency declared on March 15, 1995, is to continue in effect beyond March 15, 2006. The most recent notice containing this emergency was published in the Federal Register on March 14, 2005 (70 FR 12581).

The crisis between the United States and Iran constituted by the actions and policies of the Government of Iran that led to the declaration of a national emergency on March 15, 1995, has not been resolved. The actions and policies of the Government of Iran are contrary to the interests of the United States in the region and pose a continuing unusual and extraordinary threat to the national security, foreign policy, and economy of the United States. For these reasons, I have determined that it is necessary to continue the national emergency declared with respect to Iran and maintain in force comprehensive sanctions against Iran to respond to this threat.

GEORGE W. BUSH

STATEMENTS ON INTRODUCED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS

By Ms. Collins (for herself, Mr. Lieberman, Mr. Coaleman, Mr. Akaka, Mr. Talent, and Mr. Graham):

S. 2400. A bill to transfer authority to review certain mergers, acquisitions, and takeovers of United States entities by foreign entities to a designee established within the Department of Homeland Security, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs.

Ms. Collins. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce legislation to reform and strengthen the national security review process for foreign investments in the United States. I am very pleased to be joined by three of my colleagues—Senator Lieberman, Senator Coaleman, and Senator Akaka—in introducing this legislation.

In a global economy, foreign investment in the United States is becoming increasingly common. The national security and homeland security implications of those investments must be scrutinized by the departments with responsibility for those critical matters.
March 13, 2006

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — SENATE

The controversy over the Dubai ports transaction has exposed serious flaws and shortcomings in the current law and process used to review foreign investments in our country.

In 1988, Congress passed the Exon-Florio provision of the Defense Production Act to get the President the authority to suspend or prohibit any foreign acquisition, merger, or takeover of a U.S. corporation that is determined to threaten our national security.

Through an Executive order, the President gave a new committee—known as the Committee on Foreign Investment in the United States, often referred to as CFIUS—the responsibility of reviewing transactions pursuant to the Exon-Florio law and to make recommendations to the President.

The law is something of an anachronism because of what it doesn’t say. It focuses on acquisitions of American companies that are either important to our military industrial base or have technology that could help a terrorist state carry out acts of mass murder. Obviously, both of those concerns are very important. We do want to preserve our military industrial base, and we do want to safeguard technology that could help terrorists or anyone else carry out acts of mass murder. But neither of those transactions or those requirements address transactions that could assist terrorists in threatening our security right here at home.

Obviously, there are other ways for terrorists to undermine our security that might be completely separate from the military industrial base issues or the technological issues related to weapons of mass destruction. In other words, the law is simply too narrow in its application. The current CFIUS process is not designed to analyze transactions that involve a port terminal or other critical infrastructures within our borders.

The Government Accountability Office, in a report issued last September, found that the Exon-Florio law’s effectiveness in protecting U.S. national security may be limited—limited because the Department of Treasury, as the chairman of the Committee on Foreign Investment in the United States, narrowly defines what constitutes a threat to our national security. The Committee on Foreign Investment in the United States, CFIUS, focuses too much on the financial component and not enough on security.

I think that is what many of us concluded happened in the review of the Dubai ports transaction. The focus was on investment, needed investment in our ports, rather than being focused on the national security or homeland security implications that could possibly arise from that transaction. The committee is supposed to identify transactions that could affect our national security. It doesn’t say “harm” our national security; it says “affect” our national security. That is supposed to be sufficient to trigger a full 45-day investigation. But, unfortunately, that is not initially what happened with the proposed Dubai ports transaction.

I would like to draw the attention of my colleagues to a broader issue, and that is the composition of CFIUS. Remember, this is supposed to be a national security review, but who chairs the committee? Not the Department of Homeland Security, not the Department of Defense, not the Department of Justice. The committee is chaired by the Department of the Treasury, and chairing this committee is meaningful because the chairman’s interpretation of the law, including the provision that makes a 45-day investigation mandatory in the case of foreign government control to entities that could affect national security, tends to govern. In other words, what the chairman decides in interpreting whether the 45-day investigation is triggered tends to be what happens.

I suggest to you, and to my colleagues that this system is fundamentally flawed because the Secretary of the Treasury, no matter how capable and well qualified he is—and I believe he is all of those things—chair a committee that is supposed to be looking at national security. Thus, I believe the CFIUS process has been weighed too much toward investment considerations and not sufficiently attentive to the national security and homeland security implications. Indeed, the GAO found that Treasury is “reluctant to initiate investigations to determine whether national security concerns require a recommendation for possible Presidential action.” That is what GAO found, and that certainly seems to be an accurate finding.

These are concerns which we simply cannot tolerate given today’s threat environment, and that is why I am introducing legislation to abolish the CFIUS process and to create a new interagency, interdepartmental mechanism chaired by the Department of Homeland Security to analyze transactions for both their homeland security and national security implications. Our bill is designed to fix the process through the following changes:

First, the bill would establish a new committee, the Committee for Secure Commerce, to replace the old CFIUS. The Committee for Secure Commerce would be chaired by the Secretary of Homeland Security, and the Secretary of Defense would serve as the vice chairman. The Director of National Intelligence would be specifically designated as a standing member of the committee in order to ensure that important intelligence information is part of the deliberative process. The Department of Justice would still be represented on the committee, but with respect to the other members, the President shall name the appropriate agencies and departments to sit on the committee. This is an important change because it helps ensure that the focus will, indeed, be national homeland security, and it corrects what I believe to be a major shortcoming in the composition of the current committee. That is, the intelligence community is not represented. That is extraordinary, given the purpose of this committee.

Second, the bill would explicitly include homeland security among the factors the committee will consider in deciding whether to review or investigate a transaction.

Third, the Secretary of Homeland Security would establish a process by which the committee reviews transactions and would establish the role and responsibility of each member.

In addition, each member would establish the process and procedure by which each respective agency would conduct its review, sharing that with the other committee. It is important that committee members each have a general understanding of the scrutiny being applied to a transaction both within their own agencies and across the government. Such understanding was not apparent in the current CFIUS process.

Should a transaction warrant an investigation, the bill would require the Director of National Intelligence to coordinate intelligence assessments.

Lastly, this legislation would strengthen the reporting requirements to Congress. The existing process lacks transparency and does not allow sufficient oversight. It may be appropriate for the reviews, which may involve proprietary data and classified information, to be conducted confidentially. However, it is wholly appropriate that Members of Congress be briefed in a timely manner.

The bill would also address the so-called Byrd amendment loophole, requiring an investigation where the entity would be controlled by a foreign government. In looking at the plain language of the existing statute, a 45-day investigation should have taken place in the Dubai Ports World purchase of Peninsular & Oriental Steam Navigation Company. However, the Treasury Department interpretation of the statute for nearly 15 years has been contrary to congressional intent, and the understanding was not apparent in the current CFIUS process.

When I introduced this bill, many times my colleagues and I have said we wanted to make a difference on the 45-day transaction. That is the purpose of this legislation. It is important that Congress take action to reform the review process for foreign investment in the United States. This bill provides a new structure, appropriately focused on homeland security and national security and the Committee on Foreign Investment in the United States. I seek my colleagues support in moving this legislation forward.
The Dubai ports controversy may have temporarily or perhaps permanently been set aside, but that does not mean we should abandon the efforts to reform and strengthen the law to ensure a proper review of foreign transactions.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Section 1. Transfer of Authority to Review Certain Mergers, Acquisitions, and Takeovers.

(b) Transfer to Homeland Security.—Title II of the Homeland Security Act of 2002 (6 U.S.C. 121 et seq.) is amended by adding at the end the following:

Subtitle E—Review of Mergers, Acquisitions, and Takeovers by Foreign Entities

Section 241. Authority to Review Certain Mergers, Acquisitions, and Takeovers.

(a) Review and Investigation.—

(1) In general.—The President or the President’s designee may undertake an investigation to determine the effects on national security or homeland security of mergers, acquisitions, and takeovers proposed or pending on or after the date of enactment of this section by or with foreign persons which could result in foreign control of persons engaged in interstate commerce in the United States.

(2) Review.—For purposes of determining whether to undertake an investigation under this subsection, the President or the President’s designee shall conduct a review of the proposed or pending merger, acquisition, or takeover, which review shall be completed not later than 30 days after the date of receipt by the President or the President’s designee of written notification of the proposed or pending merger, acquisition, or takeover, as prescribed by regulations promulgated pursuant to this section.

(3) Intelligence Assessment Report.—With respect to any investigation undertaken under this subsection, the Director of National Intelligence shall create a report that consolidates the intelligence findings, assessments, and concerns of each of the relevant members of the intelligence community. Such report shall be considered as part of the investigation, provided to all members of the Committee, and included as part of any recommendation to the President.

(b) Committee Hearings.—

(1) In general.—The President or the President’s designee shall undertake an investigation, as described in subsection (a), in any instance in which an entity controlled by or acting on behalf of a foreign government seeks to engage in any merger, acquisition, or takeover which would result in control of a person engaged in interstate commerce in the United States.

(2) Timing.—An investigation undertaken under this subsection shall be completed not later than 30 days after the date of receipt by the President or the President’s designee of written notification of the proposed or pending merger, acquisition, or takeover, as prescribed by regulations promulgated pursuant to this section.

(3) Exception.—Subsection (a) shall not apply to an investigation undertaken under this subsection if the President or the President’s designee determines necessary or appropriate to carry out the duties of the Committee under this section.

(c) Broad Authority.—The actions of the President under this section by or with foreign persons which could result in foreign control of persons engaged in interstate commerce in the United States.

(4) Intelligence Assessment Report.—With respect to any investigation undertaken under this subsection, the Director of National Intelligence shall create a report that consolidates the intelligence findings, assessments, and concerns of each of the relevant members of the intelligence community. Such report shall be considered as part of the investigation, provided to all members of the Committee, and included as part of any recommendation to the President.

(5) Preemption.—The authority of the President under subsection (a) shall not be subject to review or appeal.

(d) Action by the President.—

(1) In general.—Subject to subsection (e), the President may take such action for such purposes as the President determines appropriate to suspend or prohibit any acquisition, merger, or takeover of a person engaged in interstate commerce in the United States proposed or pending on or after the date of enactment of this section, by or with a foreign person so that such control will not threaten to impair the national security or homeland security.

(2) Announcement by the President.—The President shall announce the decision to take action under this subsection not later than 45 days after the date of investigation described in subsection (a) is completed. The President may direct the Attorney General to seek appropriate relief, including investment relief, in the district courts of the United States in order to implement and enforce this section.

(e) Findings by the President.—The President may exercise the authority conferred by subsection (d) only if the President finds that:

(1) there is credible evidence that leads the President to believe that the foreign interest exercising control might take action that threatens to impair the national security or homeland security; and

(2) provisions of law, other than this section and the International Emergency Economic Powers Act, do not, in the judgment of the President, provide adequate and appropriate authority for the President to protect the national security or homeland security in the matter before the President.

(f) Action by the President.—The actions of the President under subsection (d) shall be subject to judicial review.

(g) Factors to be Considered.—For purposes of this section the President’s designee shall, taking into account the requirements of national security and homeland security, consider among others:

(1) critical infrastructure, the control of which is important to homeland security;

(2) domestic production needed for projected national defense and homeland security requirements;

(3) the capability and capacity of domestic industries to meet national defense requirements, including the availability of human resources, products, technology, materials, and other supplies and services;

(4) the control of domestic industries and commercial activities that threatens to impair the capability and capacity of the United States to meet the requirements of national security or homeland security;

(5) the potential effects of the proposed or pending transaction on sales of military goods, equipment, or technology to any country;

(6) the potential effects of the proposed or pending transaction on United States international technological leadership in areas affecting national defense and homeland security;

(7) the potential effects of the proposed or pending transaction on United States international technological leadership in areas affecting national defense and homeland security;

(8) the potential effects of the proposed or pending transaction on United States international technological leadership in areas affecting national defense and homeland security.

(h) Confidentiality of Information.—Any information or documentary material that is provided to the President’s designee pursuant to this section shall be exempt from disclosure under section 502 of
(d) Breakdown by Type of Documentation and Other Sensitive Information.—In any case in which an assessment of the risk of diversion of a critical technology is performed and designated by the President for such purpose, a copy of such assessment shall be provided to each member of the Committee for purposes of reviewing or investigating a merger, acquisition, or takeover under this section.
that is not how we do things in America. We do not judge people in our democracy by their race, nationality, religion, gender, sexual orientation, or age. We judge people on their merits.

I believe this legislation would establish a process for judging the wisdom or folly of selling U.S. property to foreign owners by establishing that the Nation’s security should be the preeminent consideration in foreign purchases of U.S. property and by ensuring that every Section 721 concerns about such sales get a fair hearing.

Mr. AKAKA. Mr. President, I am pleased to join Senator COLLINS and Senator LIEBERMAN in introducing a bill to transfer the authority of reviewing foreign investment in the United States to the Department of Homeland Security and to impose additional structure and increase congressional oversight on the review process. There has been a failure in Government procedure that must be corrected, and this legislation will address those procedural failures.

I am concerned that our process to review acquisitions, mergers or takeovers of U.S. corporations by foreign entities that “may” pose a national security threat trigger the Committee on Foreign Investment in the United States, CFIUS, to conduct a more thorough review. While the United Arab Emirates has supported the United States in the war against terrorism, its past activities related to terrorist groups should have triggered CFIUS to conduct a more thorough review.

More specifically, the act states that if there is an acquisition, merger, or takeover of a U.S. corporation by a foreign entity, then CFIUS, an interagency committee chaired by the Secretary of Treasury, reviews the deal to ascertain if there is any threat to our national security. In addition, in accordance with Section 332(a) of the National Defense Authorization Act for fiscal year 1993, called the Byrd amendment, amended Section 721 of the Defense Production Act, the Exon-Florio provision, a more extensive review should have been conducted on the Dubai Ports World deal, especially since certain members of CFIUS did have national security concerns about the acquisition.

Given the questionable interpretation of the CFUJS, the Byrd amendment, I believe it is important for Congress to revisit the act and clarify the provisions that require CFIUS to conduct a thorough review of foreign acquisitions, mergers, and takeovers.

Our legislation removes any ambiguity by specifically requiring an investigation any time a foreign government-owned corporation is involved in a transaction. As ranking member on the Oversight of Government Management Subcommittee, it is my responsibility to ensure congressional processes and develop solutions that ensure our national and homeland security while maintaining the favorable promotion of foreign investments in the United States.

I was pleased to work with Senator COLLINS and Senator LIEBERMAN, chairman and ranking member of the Homeland Security and Government Affairs Committee, in drafting the legislation to address these process shortcomings, which will promote reasonable transparency and oversight within the foreign investment review process. The security of U.S. ports is of particular importance to my home State of Hawaii receives 98 percent of its imports via sea-based transportation.

Given the national and homeland security implications of the proposed DP World takeover, I believe it is absolutely necessary for Congress to ensure that the executive branch performs a rigorous review of the transaction. Our bill ensures that Congress is informed of pending investigations that may impact national security prior to the President making a decision whether to disapprove the transaction. I believe that additional intelligence community resources should have been deployed before the President made his determination to support the transaction. There should have been a consolidated intelligence assessment, and this report should have been provided to all senior members of the review committee. The bill we introduce today requires consolidated intelligence assessments to be developed by the Director of National Intelligence and provided to all review committee members, thereby ensuring that all members are sufficiently informed.

I was also disturbed that two of the reviewing Departments—the Departments of Defense and Homeland Security—do not currently have internal written instructions on their review processes. How do we know that adequate reviews of foreign investment in the United States are being conducted by these two critical CFIUS members if a systematic and documented process, subject to audit, our legislation requires the development and documentation of internal procedures to ensure that all reviewing members use a standardized process while conducting their review of foreign investment proposals.

Mr. President, I am pleased that Dubai Ports World is attempting to address the concerns of the American public. However, this problem is bigger than just a single transaction, which is why we are introducing this legislation today. I am honored to cosponsor, with Senator COLLINS and Senator LIEBERMAN, this bill which reforms the process of reviewing foreign investment in the United States.

By Mr. GRASSLEY (for himself and Mr. BAUCUS):

S. 2032. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to extend certain energy tax incentives, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, I rise to speak in support of a bill that I am introducing today, the Combating Money Laundering and Terrorist Financing Act of 2006.

I first introduced the Combating Money Laundering and Terrorist Financing Act in 2003 to address what I saw as a significant threat to the security of our Nation. Money laundering is an issue of profound importance to our national security and undermines financial stability by infiltrating and using legitimate financial institutions to hide the illegitimate source of these funds. Money laundering also affects our national security simply because money is the motivating factor for so much of the criminal activities that affect our daily lives, from shoplifting and petty theft to drug trafficking and multi-million dollar stock frauds.

Money laundering is a key tool for terrorist groups because it fuels their ability to spread murder, fear and destruction throughout the world. One of the 9/11 Commission recommendations stated that, “Vigorous efforts to track terrorist financing must remain a front and center in the U.S. counter-terrorism efforts.” The Commission expressed its concerns about terrorist financing and the need to crack down on terrorist organizations and curtail their funding.

I strongly share the Commission’s concerns and support their recommendations that they provided in their final report.

However, I am very concerned about the 9/11 Commission’s Final Report Card, released on December 5, 2005, which gave the U.S. Government an A− for our “vigorous efforts against terror financing.” After the release of the 9/11 Commission Report and nearly 4 years after the terrorist attacks on the World Trade Center and the Pentagon, our Government is still too ill-equipped and fraught with inadequate tools to adequately deal with the threat posed by terrorist and criminal organizations after being laundered for these organizations around the world. Therefore, we must continue to increase the pressure we put on these organizations until they reach the point where their ever-changing money laundering methods are no longer effective at funneled to terrorist and criminal organizations after being laundered for these organizations around the world. Therefore, we must continue to increase the pressure we put on these organizations until they reach the point where their ever-changing money laundering methods are no longer convenient, profitable or effective.

The legislation I am introducing today includes several provisions that strengthen our money laundering laws by streamlining a number of statutes, clarifying language in the current law and closing loopholes that are often exploited by criminal organizations. As my anti-money laundering colleagues have proven to be effective and make money laundering through traditional financial institutions more difficult, criminals are forced to shift methods to launder their illegally gained funds. As these criminals change their tactics, so must we. Allow me to tell you about some of the key changes that this bill includes to meet these challenges.

Passed what is currently law there are over 200 ‘‘specified unlawful activities’’ or ‘‘SA’s’’ that serve as predicate offenses for money laundering crimes. As criminals continue to alter their methods of laundering illegal funds, the list of ‘‘SA’s’’ is sure to grow. My legislation will eliminate the need to continually update the statutes by consolidating the growing list of ‘‘specified unlawful activities’’ to include all offenses punishable by imprisonment for more than 1 year. This legislation also recognizes the global aspect of money laundering by including foreign offenses that would be illegal money laundering offenses had they occurred within U.S. jurisdiction.

This legislation simplifies current law by allowing the government to charge money laundering acts as a ‘‘course of conduct.’’ Currently, in most circuits, courts are required to charge each money laundering transaction as a separate offense in separate counts, but does not require, courts to charge a series of money laundering offenses as a ‘‘course of conduct.’’ This change would reduce the time and expense incurred by courts that are required to charge and prosecute each separate violation of the money laundering laws.

As new laws have made money laundering through traditional financial institutions more difficult, criminals are turning to riskier methods of moving their money. One growing area is bulk cash smuggling, and as such, this bill increases the penalty for bulk cash smuggling to 10 years.

In addition, many ‘‘money service businesses’’ or ‘‘MSB’s’’ have also come under increased scrutiny because of their suspected role in moving funds from the United States to terrorist organizations throughout the world. Another provision of my legislation amends Section 373 of the USA PATRIOT Act regarding money service businesses to read ‘‘illegal’’ instead of ‘‘unlicensed’’ to ensure that the law covers any money service business that promotes unlawful activity as a course of business.

Another money laundering technique is for couriers to carry checks that are complete except for the dollar amount. Under this approach the couriers attempt to avoid U.S. Customs reporting requirements through the movement of monetary instruments that are in bearer form and are worth over $10,000. Even though the blank checks are in bearer form, they argue that the value being left blank is not over $10,000 and does not need to be reported. Once they hand over the check, each check reaches its destination, all they need to do is to fill in the amount, whatever that may be, and have it negotiated. This legislation removes any confusion as to whether this act is a violation of the reporting requirement. This bill would resolve this issue by clarifying that a check in bearer form, with an amount left blank shall be deemed to have a value equal to the highest amount in the bank account at the time the check was being transported, or when the blank check is cashed or intended to be cashed.

My legislation eliminates confusion or ambiguity regarding the term “commingled funds,” and structured transactions. “Commingling of funds” is a method often used by criminals to disguise illegal money from legal money by mixing the funds together in one account. “Structured transactions” is a method used to circumvent our monetary transaction reporting requirements by breaking monetary transactions into several smaller dollar amounts so as to avoid a Government reporting requirement if the transaction had been only one transaction with a value over $10,000. Plus, this legislation clarifies extraterritorial jurisdiction to include money laundering acts that have an effect in the United States.

Often, couriers are intercepted before they reach the collection point but are released because they claim that they didn’t know that the money was derived illegally. My bill ensures that the courier can no longer benefit from mixing the money by requiring that the courier be released from responsibility in the money laundering chain by claiming ignorance about how the money was derived, which means the law enforcement agency can get both the courier and the money off the street.

Finally, this bill updates counterfeiting statutes to keep them current with new technology and devices, such as holograms, that are used to produce counterfeits of U.S. obligations and securities.

The battle against terrorism and organized criminal groups must be fought on many fronts—including the financial front. We know that we have made strides in this area as evidenced by the money launderers’ use of different techniques. As important as it is to learn what techniques these criminals use, it is just as important to act upon this knowledge. If we can shut down the flow of illegal money, whether generated by drug sales or in support of terrorist activities, I believe we will have accomplished an important part of the demise of these criminal and terrorist groups. This bill is important to identifying particular criminal and terrorist financing operations and putting them out of business. I urge my colleagues to support my legislation and strengthen our national efforts against the continued threat of terrorist financing and financial crimes.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

IV—ENFORCEMENT

SEC. 401. RESTRICTIONS ON ADVANCE APPROPRIATIONS.

(a) POINT OF ORDER.—

(1) In general.—Except as provided in paragraph (2), it shall not be in order in the Senate to consider any bill, joint resolution, amendment, or conference report that would provide an advance appropriation.

(b) ADVANCE APPROPRIATION.—An advance appropriation may be provided for the fiscal years 2008 and 2009 for programs, projects, activities, or accounts, as to some or all of the provisions against which the Senator raised the point of order. If the President of the Senate sustains the point of order as to some or all of the provisions (including provisions of an amendment, motion, or conference report), then only those provisions (including provisions of an amendment, motion, or conference report) shall be in order for a Senator to raise a single point of order that several provisions of the resolution or amendments provided under section 302(a) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974; the chairman of the Committee on the Budget may make the appropriate adjustments in allocations and aggregates to the extent that such legislation would not increase the deficit for fiscal years 2007 through 2011.
Senate only by an affirmative vote of three-fifths of the Members, duly chosen and sworn. After the Presiding Officer rules on a point of order under paragraph (1), any Senator may appeal the ruling of the Presiding Officer. An affirmative vote of three-fifths of the Members, duly chosen and sworn, shall be required to sustain such an appeal. The Members of the Senate, duly chosen and sworn, may move to waive such a point of order as provided in subsection (d).

SEC. 402. EMERGENCY LEGISLATION.

(a) SECURITIZATION TREATMENT OF EMERGENCY LEGISLATION.

(1) AUTHORITY TO DESIGNATE.—With respect to a provision of direct spending or receipts legislation, the term "discretionary accounts that Congress designates as an emergency requirement for the purposes of this subsection" means any new budget authority provided in a bill or joint resolution making general appropriations or continuing appropriations for fiscal year 2007 or any new budget authority provided in a bill or joint resolution making general appropriations or continuing appropriations for fiscal year 2008, as first becomes available for any fiscal year after 2007 or 2008.

(b) EXEMPTION OF EMERGENCY PROVISIONS.—As limited in paragraph (3), any new budget authority, outlays, and receipts resulting from any provision designated as an emergency provision, pursuant to this subsection, in any bill, joint resolution, amendment, or conference report shall not count for purposes of sections 302 and 311 of the Concurrent Resolution on the Budget Act of 1974, section 403 of this resolution (relating to discretionary spending limits in the Senate), section 407 of this resolution (relating to direct spending), and section 409 of the concurrent resolution on the budget for Fiscal Year 2008, H. Con. Res. 95 (relating to the long term direct spending) and section 585 of the Concurrent Resolution on Fiscal Year 2004, H. Con. Res. 95 (relating to the paygo requirement in the Senate), until the adoption of a subsequent budget resolution.

(3) FISCAL YEAR.—For fiscal year 2008, the total exemption under paragraph (2) for emergencies shall not exceed $90,000,000,000 in new budget authority and outlays associated with the global war on terrorism and other emergencies, of which—

(A) $50,000,000,000 in new budget authority (and outlays associated with the global war on terrorism and other emergencies) may be available for the global war on terrorism and other emergencies, of which—

(1) $2,300,000,000 in new budget authority (and outlays associated with the global war on terrorism and other emergencies) may be available for the global war on terrorism and other emergencies, of which—

(2) $2,000,000,000 in new budget authority (and outlays associated with the global war on terrorism and other emergencies) may be available for United States border security initiatives; and

(C) $2,300,000,000 in new budget authority (and outlays associated with the global war on terrorism and other emergencies) may be available for pandemic influenza initiatives.

(4) POINT OF ORDER.—When the Senate is considering a bill, resolution, amendment, motion, or conference report, if a point of order is made by a Senator against an emergency designation in that measure, that designation making such a designation shall be stricken from the measure and may not be offered as an amendment from the floor.

(b) DISCRETIONARY SPENDING POINT OF ORDER.

(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as otherwise provided in this subsection, it shall not be in order for a Senator to raise a single point of order against several emergency designations in a bill, resolution, amendment, motion, or conference report. The language making the designations shall be stricken from the measure and may not be offered as amendments from the floor.

(2) WAIVER AND APPEAL.—Before the emergency designation or designations are stricken pursuant to paragraph (1), any Senator may move to waive such a point of order as permitted in paragraph (4). Such a motion may be made at any time before the ruling of the Chair on a point of order raised under paragraph (4).

(c) CONFERENCE REPORTS.—When the Senate is considering a conference report on, or an amendment between the Houses in relation to, a bill or a joint resolution, upon—

(A) a point of order being made in paragraphs (4) and (5); and

(B) such a point of order being sustained, such material contained in such conference report or amendment shall be deemed stricken from the measure and may not be offered as an amendment from the floor.

(d) ADVANCE APPROPRIATION.—In this subsection, the term "discretionary category" means any new budget authority provided in a bill or joint resolution making general appropriations or continuing appropriations for fiscal years 2008, 2009, and 2010, or any new budget authority provided in a bill or joint resolution making general appropriations or continuing appropriations for fiscal year 2007 that first becomes available for any fiscal year after 2007 or 2008, as first becomes available for any fiscal year after 2007 or 2008.

(e) LIMITATION.—For fiscal year 2007 the limitation, pursuant to this subsection, on the amounts that Congress may designate as emergency requirements for the purposes of this section includes an aggregate level of anticipated emergencies that would not exceed $90,000,000,000.

amount provided for fiscal year 2007 if a bill or joint resolution is reported making appropriations for fiscal year 2007 that appropriates $6,824,000,000 to the Internal Revenue Service for the enforcement of tax laws, the chairman address the ‘‘Federal tax gap’’ and provides an additional appropriation of $274,000,000 to the Internal Revenue Service for enhanced tax enforcement. As a new matter, the ‘‘Federal tax gap’’ then the chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the Senate may make the adjustments in paragraph (c)(1)(B).

(3) REVISED SUBALLOCATIONS.—Following any adjustment made under paragraph (1), the Committee on Appropriations of the Senate shall report appropriately revised suballocations under section 302(b) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 to carry out this subsection.

SEC. 404. APPLICATION AND EFFECT OF CHANGES IN ALLOCATIONS AND AG-

GREGATES.

(a) APPLICATION.—Any adjustments of allocations and aggregates made for any measure of legislation pursuant to this resolution shall—

(1) apply while that measure is under consideration;

(2) take effect upon the enactment of that measure; and

(3) be printed in the Congressional Record as soon as practicable.

(b) FIRST OF CHANGED ALLOCATIONS AND AGGREGATES.—Revised allocations and aggregates resulting from these adjustments shall be considered for the purposes of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 as allocations and aggregates contained in this resolution.

(c) BUDGET COMMITTEE DETERMINATIONS.—

For purposes of this resolution, the levels of new budget authority, outlays, direct spending, new entitlement authority, revenues, deficits, and surpluses for a fiscal year or period of fiscal years shall be determined on the basis of estimates made by the chairman of the Committee on the Budget.

SEC. 405. ADJUSTMENTS TO REFLECT CHANGES IN CONCEPTS AND DEFINITIONS.

Upon the enactment of a bill or joint resolution providing for a change in concepts or definitions, the chairman of the Committee on the Budget may make adjustments to the levels and allocations in this resolution in accordance with section 251(b) of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985 (as in effect prior to September 30, 2002).

SEC. 406. DIRECT SPENDING LIMITATION.

(a) MEDICARE FUNDING WARNING.—The chairman of the Committee on the Budget may submit to the Senate a notification of a Medicare funding warning. Such warning is defined as a projection that within 7 years General Fund contributions to Medicare funding expressed as a percentage of total Medicare outlays, exceed 45 percent.

(b) POINT OF ORDER.—It shall not be in order for a bill, joint resolution, amendment or conference report that would cause any increase in direct spending, net of proposal to change in direct spending, receipts, or revenues contained in the measure, if a Medicare Funding warning has been submitted to the Senate pursuant to subsection (a) for 2 consecutive calendar years.

(c) WAIVER.—This section may be waived or suspended only by an affirmative vote of three-fifths of the members, duly chosen and sworn.

(d) APPEALS.—An affirmative vote of three-fifths of the Members, duly chosen and sworn, shall be required to sustain an appeal of the ruling of the Chair on a point of order raised under this section.

(e) DETERMINATIONS.—For the purposes of this section, the determination of whether Medicare funding warrants a funding warning and when it may be appropriate to withdraw such warning, as well as the levels of net direct spending as required under subsection (b), shall be provided by the chairman of the Committee on the Budget.

(f) CANCELLATION.—Should legislation be enacted to reduce the general fund contributions by the percentage stated by the chairman of the Committee on the Budget, the notification of a Medicare funding warning is withdrawn.

SEC. 407. EXERCISE OF RULEMAKING POWERS.

Congress adopts the provisions of this title—

(1) as an exercise of the rulemaking power, and as such they shall be considered as part of the rules of each House, or of the Senate and such rules shall supersede other rules only to the extent that they are inconsistent therewith; and

(2) with full recognition of the constitutional right of the Senate to change those rules (so far as they relate to that house) at any time, in the same manner, and to the same extent as is the case of any other rule of the Senate.

SUBMITTED RESOLUTIONS

ING TO THE CENSURE OF GEORGE W. BUSH

Mr. FENTOLI submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary:

S. Res. 398

Whereas Congress passed the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act of 1978 (50 U.S.C. 1801 et seq.), and in so doing provided the executive branch with clear authority to wiretap suspected terrorists inside the United States;

Whereas the Foreign Intelligence Survell-

iance Act of 1978 has been amended multiple times since 1978, to expand the surveillance authority of the executive branch and address new technological developments;

Whereas the Foreign Intelligence Survell-

iance Act of 1978 states that it and the criminal wiretap law are the ‘‘exclusive means by which electronic surveillance’’ may be conducted by the United States Government and makes it a crime to wiretap individuals without complying with this statutory authority;

Whereas the Foreign Intelligence Survell-

iance Act of 1978 permits the Government to initiate wiretapping immediately in emergencies as long as the Government obtains approval from the court established under section 103 of the Foreign Intelligence Survelliance Act of 1978 (50 U.S.C. 1803) within 72 hours of initiating the wiretap;

Whereas the Foreign Intelligence Survell-

iance Act of 1978 authorizes wiretaps without complying with this statutory authority;

Whereas the Authorization for Use of Military Force that became law on September 18, 2001 (Public Law 107–40; 50 U.S.C. 1541 note), did not grant the President the power to authorize wiretaps of Americans within the United States without obtaining the court orders required by the Foreign Intelligence Survell-

iance Act of 1978;

Whereas the President’s inherent constitutional authority does not give him the power to authorize wiretaps of Americans within the United States without obtaining the court orders required by the

Whereas George W. Bush, President of the United States, has authorized and continues to authorize wiretaps by the National Security Agency of Americans within the United States without obtaining the court orders required by the Foreign Intelligence Survell-

iance Act of 1978;

Whereas President George W. Bush has failed to inform the full congressional intelligence committees about this program, as required by the National Security Act of 1947 (50 U.S.C. 401 et seq.);

WHEREAS President George W. Bush repeatedly misled the public prior to the public disclose-tion of the National Security Agency surveillance program by indicating his Adminis-

tion, thus violating the explicit statutory prohibition.

Resolved, That the United States Senate
Whereas President Bush stated that Greece's successful "law enforcement operations against a terrorist organization [November 17] responsible for three decades of terrorism..." were the important contributions Greece is making to the global war on terrorism;

Whereas Greece is a strategic partner and ally of the United States in bringing political stability and economic development to the volatile Balkan region, having invested over $10,000,000,000 in the region;

Whereas the signing of the Dayton Peace Accords was a historic accomplishment that was made possible through the strong leadership of the United States;

Whereas the signing of the Dayton Peace Accords ended a brutal 3½-year conflict marked by aggression and genocide in which many tens of thousands lost their lives;

Whereas Greece created a framework for a common state in Bosnia and Herzegovina, but was cast aside amidst the conflict of war and was denied many compromises imposed by the need for quick action to preserve human life;

Whereas in the 10 years since the signing of the Dayton Peace Accords, there has been considerable progress in building a peaceful society in Bosnia and Herzegovina;

Whereas this progress in building a peaceful society has been facilitated by both the citizens of the country and the international community;

Whereas, during the 9 years that the peacekeepers of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization worked to keep order in Bosnia and Herzegovina, their forces suffered no intentional casualties and never fired a single shot in combat;

Whereas Bosnia and Herzegovina has demonstrated a willingness to contribute to the work of the international community and succeed in efforts to assist in efforts to stabilize the country of Iraq;

Whereas the full incorporation of Bosnia and Herzegovina into the Euro-Atlantic community is in the national interest of the United States;

Whereas leaders of Bosnia and Herzegovina have already agreed to significant reforms of the budget process, intelligence services, central and local prosecution offices, justice ministry, border and customs services, and defense sector;

Whereas, on November 22, 2006, political leaders of Bosnia and Herzegovina met in Washington and signed the Constitution of the Federation of Bosnia and Herzegovina, which members pledged to continue working toward the creation of stronger and more efficient democratic institutions; and

Whereas it is imperative that changes to the constitution of Bosnia and Herzegovina be implemented by April 2007 to take effect prior to national elections in October 2006: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate—

(1) designates March 25, 2006, as "Greek Independence Day: A National Day of Celebration of Greek and American Democracy"; and

(2) encourages the people of the United States to observe the day with appropriate ceremonies and activities.

Whereas the General Framework Agreement for Peace in Bosnia and Herzegovina (commonly referred to as the "Dayton Peace Accords") was agreed to at Wright Patterson Air Force Base in Dayton, Ohio, on November 21, 1995;

Whereas the signing of the Dayton Peace Accords was a historic accomplishment that was made possible through the strong leadership of the United States;

Whereas the signing of the Dayton Peace Accords ended a brutal 3½-year conflict marked by aggression and genocide in which many tens of thousands lost their lives;
(3) the constitutional reforms of Bosnia and Herzegovina should be consistent with, and bring the country closer to, the goal of membership in the European Union;
(4) the United States can take effect before national elections in October 2006;
(5) all groups responsible for past violence and atrocities in Bosnia and Herzegovina must accept responsibility for their actions and promote reconciliation among the different ethnic groups of Bosnia and Herzegovina; and
(6) all levels of government in Bosnia and Herzegovina must comply with the directives of the International Criminal Tribunal for the Former Yugoslavia (ICTY), arrest persons indicted for war crimes, and turn over fugitives to face justice at the International Criminal Tribunal.

SENATE RESOLUTION 401—URGING THE REPUBLIC OF BELARUS TO CONDUCT PLANNED PRESIDENTIAL ELECTIONS MARCH 19, 2006, IN A FREE, FAIR, AND TRANSPARENT MANNER AND WITH RESPECT FOR HUMAN RIGHTS

Whereas the Government of Belarus has accepted numerous specific commitments governing the conduct of elections as a participating State of the Organization for Security and Co-operation in Europe (OSCE), including provisions of the 1990 Copenhagen Document;
Whereas the Belarus parliamentary elections of 2000 failed to meet international standards;
Whereas the Belarus presidential elections of 2001 failed to meet international standards;
Whereas the local elections in Belarus in 2003 failed to meet international standards;
Whereas the Belarus parliamentary elections of 2004 failed to meet international standards;
Whereas the 2004 vote on the constitutional referendum in Belarus failed to meet international standards;
Whereas Belarus is scheduled to conduct presidential elections on March 19, 2006;
Whereas President of Belarus Alexander Lukashenko has placed tight controls on the press, jailed opposition party members, violently disrupted protests, conducted surveillance of opposition candidates, and been implicated in the disappearance of at least 3 opposition members and a journalist;
Whereas, on March 2, 2006, opposition candidate Alexander Kazulin and 20 of his supporters were beaten and detained;
Whereas the campaign of Alexander Milinkevich, opposition candidate, has been subject to repeated government harassment and bureaucratic obstacles to open campaigning; and
Whereas the intimidation and arrest of opposition parties and candidates, including the reported March 8, 2006, arrest of Vincuk Viachorka and 5 other members of Alexander Milinkevich’s campaign team, represents a deliberate assault on the democratic process and sends a clear signal that government officials will not stop short of intimidating free and fair elections; Now, therefore, be it:
Resolved, That the Senate—
(1) supports the people of Belarus as they face the dictatorship of President Lukashenko;
(2) notes that the integration of Belarus into the Western community of nations will suffer delay so long as President Lukashenko prevents the development of a democratic political system;
(3) urges the Government of Belarus to ensure a free, fair, and fully transparent 2006 presidential election, in accordance with Organization for Security and Co-operation in Europe (OSCE), opposition parties, and nongovernmental organizations;
(4) encourages the international community, including the Council of Europe and the OSCE, to continue supporting democracy in Belarus, and thanks the governments and people of neighboring countries such as Poland, Lithuania, and Latvia for continuing to promote democracy and human rights in Belarus; and
(5) expresses its belief that tyranny in Belarus will not forever endure and that the people of Belarus can enjoy the benefits of democracy and human rights at home.

If the Senate or the House of Representatives reports a bill or joint resolution, or an amendment is offered thereto or a conference report is submitted thereon, that would provide $175,000,000 to the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS) to create a demonstration project or program that assigns a case manager to coordinate the care of chronically ill high-cost Medicare beneficiaries in traditional fee-for-service Medicare, the Chairman of the Senate Committee on the Budget may revise the allo-locations, aggregates, and other appropriate levels and limits in this resolution by the amount provided in such measure for that purpose, provided that such legislation would lower the poverty rate for the period of fiscal years 2007 through 2011.

SA 3003. Mr. KENNEDY submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the concurrent resolution S. Con. Res. 83, setting forth the congressional budget for the United States Government for fiscal year 2007 and including the appropriate budgetary levels for fiscal years 2006 through 2011; which was ordered to lie on the table; as follows:

At the appropriate place, insert the following:

POVERTY

SEC. 1. SHORT TITLE.
This title may be cited as the "End Child Poverty Act.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.
Congress makes the following findings:

(1) More than 13,000,000 children in the United States who are younger than 18 live below the poverty line.

(2) Most parents of poor children are playing by the rules by working to support their families. Despite their efforts, many of these parents do not earn enough to help their children get ahead. Seven out of 10 poor children live in a working family and 1 poor child in 3 lives with a full-time year-around worker.

(3) At least twice as likely as non-poor children to suffer stunted growth or lead poisoning, or to be kept back in school. Poor children score significantly lower in reading, mathematics, and vocabular tests when compared with otherwise similar non-poor children. In more than half of poor households with children in the United States, the members of the households experience serious deprivations during the year, including lack of adequate food, utility shutoffs, crowded or substandard housing, and the lack of needed medical care.

(4) Over 8,000,000 children under age 18 in the United States lack health insurance. With a 2004 uninsured rate of 18.9 percent, poor children are more likely to be uninsured than children generally.

(5)(A) The members of 1 in 6 households with children in the United States are hungry or go on the verge of hunger, largely due to inadequate household income.

(B) Hungry children—
(i) tend to lack nutrients vital to healthy brain development;
(ii) tend to have difficulty focusing their attention and concentrating in school; and
(iii) often have greater emotional and behavioral problems, and an increased sus-tem, and are more susceptible to infections, including anemia, than other children.

(6) Child poverty has risen significantly, by 1,440,000 since 2000.

(7) The poverty rate for children in the United States is substantially higher than that in most other wealthy industrialized nations.

(8) Children in the United States are more likely to live in poverty than any other age group in the United States.

(9) African-American and Latino children are much more likely to live in poverty than White children. One third of African-American children and one third of Latino children are low income.

(10) Great Britain made a public committment to cut child poverty in half in 10 years. Great Britain already has successfully lifted 2,000,000 children out of poverty.

(11) Poverty is a moral issue and Congress has a moral obligation to address it.

SEC. 3. PURPOSES.
The purposes of this title are—

(1) to set a national goal of cutting child poverty in half within a decade, and eliminating child poverty entirely as soon as possible; and

(2) to establish a Child Poverty Elimination Trust Fund to fund Federal programs to achieve that goal.

SEC. 4. DEVELOPMENT OF PLAN BY CHILD POVERTY ELIMINATION BOARD.

4(c) except insofar as the

(a) In General.—There is estab-ilished a board to be known as the Child Poverty Elimination Board (referred to in this title as the "Board").

(b) Composition.—

(1) APPOINTMENTS.—The Board shall be composed of 12 voting members, to be appointed not later than 60 days after the date of enactment of this Act, as follows:

(A) Senators.—One Senator shall be appointed by the majority leader of the Senate, and one Senator shall be appointed by the minority leader of the Senate.

(B) MEMBERS OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTA-TIVES.—One Member of the House of Representatives shall be appointed by the Speaker of the House of Representatives, and one Member of the House of Representatives shall be appointed by the minority leader of the House of Representatives.

(C) ADDITIONAL MEMBERS.—

(i) APPOINTMENT.—Two members each shall be appointed by—

(I) the Speaker of the House of Representatives;

(II) the majority leader of the Senate;

(III) the minority leader of the House of Representatives; and

(IV) the minority leader of the Senate.

(ii) EXPERTISE.—Members appointed under this subparagraph shall be appointed on the basis of demonstrated expertise in child poverty issues.

(2) PERIOD OF APPOINTMENT; VACANCIES.—

Members shall be appointed for the life of the Board. Any vacancy on the Board shall be filled in the manner in which the original appointment was made. The vacancy shall not affect the power of the remaining members to execute the duties of the Board.

(3) CHAIRPERSON AND VICE CHAIRMAN.—

The Board shall elect a chairperson and a vice chairperson from among the members of the Board.

(4) MEETINGS.—The Board shall meet not later than 30 days after the date on which all members are appointed, and the Board shall meet thereafter at the call of the chairperson or a majority of the members.

(c) PLAN AND REPORT.—

(1) PLAN.—The Board shall meet regularly to develop a plan for cutting child poverty in half within a decade, and eliminating child poverty entirely as soon as possible. The plan shall include recommendations for allocations of funds from the Child Poverty Elimination Trust Fund established in section 511 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, to carry out the plan.

(2) REPORT.—Not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act, the Board shall prepare and submit a report containing the information provided by the Committee on Education and the Workforce of the House of Representatives, the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions, the Senate, and the President.

(d) POWERS.—

(1) HEARINGS AND SESSIONS.—The Board may hold such hearings, sit and act at such times and places, take such testimony, and receive such evidence as the Board considers appropriate. The Board may administer oaths or affirmations to witnesses appearing before it.

(2) ACCESS TO INFORMATION.—The Board may secure directly from any Federal agency information necessary to enable the Board to carry out this title, if the information may be disclosed under section 552 of title 5, United States Code. Subject to the previous sentence, on the request of the chairperson or vice chairperson of the Board, the head of such agency shall furnish such information to the Board.

(3) USE OF FACILITIES AND SERVICES.—Upon the request of the Board, the head of any Federal agency may make available to the Board any of the facilities and services of such agency.

(4) PERSONNEL FROM OTHER AGENCIES.—On the request of the Board, the head of any Federal agency may detail any of the per-soneel of such agency to serve as an Executive Director of the Board in carrying out the duties of the Board. Any detail shall not interrupt or otherwise affect the civil service status or privileges of the Federal employee.

(5) VOLUNTARY SERVICE.—Notwithstanding section 1942 of title 31, United States Code, the chairperson of the Board may accept for the Board voluntary services provided by a member of the Board.

(e) COMPENSATION.—

(1) PAY.—Members of the Board shall serve without compensation.

(2) TRAVEL EXPENSES.—Members of the Board shall be allowed reasonable travel exenses, including a per diem allowance, in accordance with subchapter I of chapter 51 of title 5, United States Code, when performing duties of the Board.

SEC. 5. ISSUANCE AND IMPLEMENTATION OF PLAN.

ISSUANCE.—Not later than 90 days after receiving the report containing the plan developed by the Board under section 4(c), the President shall review the report, and shall issue a plan for cutting child poverty in half within a decade, and eliminating child poverty entirely as soon as possible. The plan shall include allocations of funds to be made from the Child Poverty Elimination Trust Fund, to carry out the plan.

(b) RELATIONSHIP TO BOARD PLAN.—The plan issued under subsection
(a) shall be the same as the plan developed by the Board under section 4(c) except insofar as the President may determine, for good cause shown and stated together with the plan issued under subsection (a), that a modification of the Board's plan would be more effective for eliminating child poverty.

(c) IMPLEMENTATION.—Not later than 90 days after issuing a plan under subsection (a), the President shall ensure the implementation of the plan issued under subsection
(a), and shall work with Congress to ensure funding for the implementation of the plan.
SEC. 6. IMPOSITION OF INDIVIDUAL INCOME TAX SURCHARGE TO FUND CHILD POVERTY ELIMINATION TRUST FUND.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 1 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to imposition of tax on individuals) is amended by adding at the end thereof the following:

"(j) ADDITIONAL INCOME TAX.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—If the adjusted gross income of an individual exceeds the threshold amount of tax imposed by this section (determined without regard to this subsection) shall be increased by an amount equal to 1 percent of the excess over the threshold amount of the adjusted gross income as exceeds the threshold amount.

"(2) THRESHOLD AMOUNTS.—For purposes of this subsection, the term 'threshold amount' means—

"(A) $1,000,000 in the case of a joint return, and

"(B) $500,000 in the case of any other return.

"(3) TAX NOT TO APPLY TO ESTATES AND TRUSTS.—This subsection shall not apply to an estate or trust.

(b) COORDINATION WITH MINIMUM TAX.—Section 55(c) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (defining regular tax) is amended by redesignating paragraph (3) as paragraph (4) and by inserting, after paragraph (2) the following new paragraph:

"(3) COORDINATION WITH MINIMUM TAX.—For purposes of this section, section 1(h) shall not apply in computing the regular tax.

(c) ESTABLISHMENT OF CHILD POVERTY ELIMINATION TRUST FUND.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Subchapter A of chapter 98 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to trust fund code) is amended by adding at the end thereof the following:

"SEC. 98L. CHILD POVERTY ELIMINATION TRUST FUND.

"(a) CREATION OF TRUST FUND.—There is established in the Treasury of the United States a trust fund to be known as the 'Child Poverty Elimination Trust Fund' (referred to in this section as the 'Trust Fund'), consisting of such amounts as may be appropriated or credited to the Trust Fund as provided in this section or section 9602(b).

"(b) TRANSFERS TO TRUST FUND.—There is hereby appropriated to the Trust Fund an amount equivalent to the increase in revenues received in the Treasury as the result of the surtax imposed under section 1(j).

"(c) AMOUNTS IN TRUST FUND.—Amounts in the Trust Fund shall be available, as provided by appropriation Acts, to make expenditures in connection with Federal programs designed to carry out the plan issued by the President under section 5 of the End Child Poverty Act, to eliminate child poverty.

(d) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 2005.

NOMINATIONS PLACED ON THE SECRETARY'S DESK

PUBLIC HEALTH SERVICE

PN936 Public Health Service nomination of Leah Hill, which was received by the Senate and appeared in the Congressional Record of September 28, 2006.

PN937 Public Health Service nominations (262) beginning Gregory A. Abbott, and ending Carl A. Huffman III, which nominations... were received by the Senate and appeared in the Congressional Record of September 28, 2005.

NOMINATION OF DONALD DEGABIETTE, JR.

Mr. CORNYN. Mr. President, I rise to express my enthusiastic support for Don DeGabrielle as United States attorney for the Southern District of Texas. The South Texas district of Texas is home to Houston, our Nation's fourth largest city. The district extends from Houston to the U.S.-Mexico border, and includes the cities of Brownsville, McAllen, and Laredo—all of which are located on or near the border. The position for which Don DeGabrielle is nominated has been vacant for some time now. As my colleagues know, the U.S. attorney is each district's chief Federal law enforcement officer. So it is critically important to the Department of Justice and to the people of the Southern District that this vacancy be filled as soon as possible.

Don DeGabrielle is an outstanding selection for this post. He brings extensive and noteworthy prosecutorial experience. Don DeGabrielle has served the Southern District as an assistant U.S. attorney for the past 20 years—the last 4 as first assistant U.S. attorney. As first assistant, he was responsible for the day-to-day management of the district, supervising an extensive criminal, civil, and appellate docket.

Don DeGabrielle has unimpeachable credentials as a prosecutor. He has tried nearly 200 cases in both State and Federal courts, has been an instructor at the National Advocacy Center, and has provided legal instruction to Federal agents.

Don DeGabrielle's diverse experience includes a stint in 2001 as the Resident Legal Adviser to the Republic of South Africa, where he advised that nation's prosecutors and helped reorganize its Justice Ministry. Prior to his career as a prosecutor, he served as an FBI special agent in New Orleans and New York City.

In short, Don DeGabrielle's unique qualifications make this nomination a superb one. I am confident that he will serve this country with distinction. And I am proud to support his nomination.

NOMINATION OF AMUL R. THAPAR

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, it is my great honor and privilege today to speak on behalf of Amul R. Thapar, the President's nominee to be the next U.S. Attorney for the Eastern District of Kentucky. Mr. Thapar is an outstanding man, with great credentials and character. He has many years of experience successfully prosecuting some of America's most wanted criminals, and his confirmation will lead to a safer, more just Kentucky.

Mr. Thapar has served as an Assistant U.S. Attorney in Cincinnati since 2002. In that position, he has managed the successful prosecution of a wide variety of Federal crimes, with an emphasis on public corruption, homeland security, and violent crimes.

Mr. Thapar led the Southern Ohio Mortgage Fraud Task Force, which successfully prosecuted approximately 40 perpetrators of mortgage fraud. Last year, he led the successful investigation and prosecution of a conspiracy to provide illegal aliens with fraudulent drivers' licenses.

Mr. Thapar was an Assistant U.S. Attorney right here in Washington, DC, from 1999 to 2001. He went on to handle violent criminals in the District, and had a role in prosecuting the notorious "Starbucks Homicides" that happened in Georgetown several years ago.

For his excellence in public service, Mr. Thapar has been recognized by the Department of Justice, which honored him with a special achievement award; by the Postal Inspection Service, for his investigations of violent and white-collar crimes; and by the Secret Service for his efforts to fight counterfeiting; and the FBI for his campaigns against bank fraud and election fraud.

Mr. Thapar is an accomplished attorney in private practice as well. He has worked as an associate at both the prestigious Squire, Sanders & Dempsey law firm of Cincinnati and the William & Connolly law firm of Washington, DC. In both of those jobs, he managed and litigated complex cases on behalf of major corporations in both Federal and State courts.

Mr. Thapar has served as an adjunct professor at the University of Cincinnati Law Center, and until recently served as an adjunct professor at the University of Cincinnati College of Law, where he taught Federal criminal practice. He has clerked for Judge Nathan R. Jones of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit and Judge S. Arthur Spiegel of the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of Ohio.

Even while managing such an impressive career, Amul still finds time to volunteer in his community. In 1995, he founded the Cincinnati chapter of the well-respected Street Law program. Street Law sends law school students into underprivileged high schools to teach kids about the basic underpinnings of our legal system, and the rights and responsibilities inherent in being an American citizen. Hundreds of students have benefited from Amul's initiative, and the program is larger and more successful than ever after 11 years.

Amul graduated from the renowned Boalt Hall School of Law of the University of California after receiving his law degree with high honors from Boston College. In addition to his remarkable career accomplishments, Amul has a remarkable family, and I am sure his wife, Kimberly, and his children, Zachary, Carmen and Nicholas, are proud of him and all he has achieved.

The President has made the right choice by calling on Amul to serve the people of Kentucky as the chief law enforcement officer for the State's Eastern District. Amul's entire career has prepared him for this assignment. He has risen to the top of his field to become a stellar career prosecutor. He has gained valuable experience in handling all types of cases. And, most importantly, he is a man of integrity, intelligence, and spirit, who has a deep desire to seek out justice on behalf of those who deserve it.

I appreciate my fellow Senators' expeditious handling of Mr. Thapar's nomination, and I am confident he has the energy and the experience to excel as Kentucky's next U.S. Attorney.

LEGISLATIVE SESSION

GREEK INDEPENDENCE DAY: A NATIONAL DAY OF CELEBRATION OF GREEK AND AMERICAN DEMOCRACY

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate now proceed to the consideration of S. Res. 399, which was submitted earlier today.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the resolution by title.

A resolution (S. Res. 399) designating March 25, 2006, as "Greek Independence Day: A National Day of Celebration of Greek and American Democracy."

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the resolution.

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the resolution be agreed to, the preamble be agreed to, and the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The resolution (S. Res. 399) was agreed to.

The preamble was agreed to.

S. Res. 399

Whereas the ancient Greeks developed the concept of democracy, in which the supreme power to govern was vested in the people; Whereas the Founding Fathers of the United States drew heavily on the political economy and philosophy of ancient Greece in forming our representative democracy; Whereas Greek Commander in Chief Petros Mavromichalis, a founder of the modern Greek state, said to the citizens of the United States in 1821 that “it is in your land that liberty has fixed her abode and . . . in imitation of your institutions and your constitution, and I trust that the principles of freedom and democracy through such bravery as was shown in the historic Battle of Crete, which provided the Axis land war with its first major setback, setting off a chain of events that significantly affected the outcome of World War II;
WHEREAS the price for Greece in holding our common values in their region was high, as hundreds of thousands of civilians were killed in Greece during World War II; and
WHEREAS the 20th century, Greece was 1 of only 3 countries in the world, beyond the former British Empire, that allied with the United States in every major international conflict.

WHEREAS President George W. Bush, in recognizing Greek Independence Day, said, “Greece and America have been firm allies in the great struggles for liberty. Americans will always remember Greek heroism and Greek sacrifice for the sake of freedom . . . (and) as the 21st Century dawns, Greece and America once again stand united; this time in the fight against terrorism. The United States deeply appreciates the role Greece is playing in the war against terror. . . . America and Greece are strong allies, and we’re strategic partners.”;

WHEREAS President Bush stated that Greece’s successive “law enforcement operations against a terrorist organization [November 17] responsible for three decades of terrorist attacks underscore the important contributions Greece is making to the global war on terrorism”;

WHEREAS Greece is a strategic partner and ally of the United States in bringing political stability and economic development to the vast region of Bosphorus, having invested over $10,000,000,000 in the region;

WHEREAS Greece was extraordinarily responsive to requests by the United States during the war in Iraq, as Greece immediately granted unlimited access to its airspace and the base in Souda Bay, and many ships of the United States that delivered troops, arms, and supplies to Iraq were refueled in Greece;

WHEREAS, in August 2004, the Olympic games came home to Athens, Greece, the land of their birthplace 2,500 years ago and the city of their modern revival in 1896;

WHEREAS Greece received world-wide praise for its extraordinary handling during the 2004 Olympics of over 14,000 athletes from 202 countries and over 2,000,000 spectators and journalists, which it did so efficiently, securely, and with its famous Greek hospitality;

WHEREAS the unprecedented security effort in Greek history, the Olympics after terrorist attacks on the United States on September 11, 2001, included a record-setting expenditure of over $3,390,000,000 and assignment of over 70,000 security personnel, as well as the utilization of the Olympic Security Advisory Group that included the United States;

WHEREAS Greece, located in a region where Christianity meets Islam and Judaism, maintains excellent relations with Muslim nations and Israel;

WHEREAS the Government of Greece has had extraordinary success in recent years in furthering cross-cultural understanding and reducing tensions between Greece and Turkey; Whereas Greece and the United States are at the forefront of the effort for freedom, democracy, peace, stability, and human rights; whereas those and other ideals have forged a common link between these 2 nations and their peoples;

WHEREAS March 25, 2006, marks the 185th anniversary of the beginning of the revolution that freed the Greek people from the Ottoman Empire; and

WHEREAS it is proper and desirable to celebrate this anniversary with the Greek people and to bond the democratic principles from which these 2 great nations were born: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate—

(1) designates March 25, 2006, as “Greek Independence Day: A National Day of Celebration of Greek and American Democracy”; and

(2) encourages the people of the United States to observe the day with appropriate ceremonies and activities.

EXpressing the Sense of the Senate on the ConstituTional Reform Process in bosnia and herZegovina

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the immediate consideration of S. Res. 400, submitted earlier today.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the resolution by title.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

A resolution (S. Res. 400) expressing the sense of the Senate on the constitutional reform process in Bosnia and Herzegovina.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the resolution.

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the resolution be agreed to, the motions to reconsider be laid upon the table, and that any statements relating thereto be printed in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The resolution (S. Res. 400) was agreed to.

The preamble was agreed to.

The resolution, with its preamble, reads as follows:

WHEREAS the General Framework Agreement for Peace in Bosnia and Herzegovina (commonly referred to as the “Dayton Peace Accords”) was agreed to at Wright Patterson Air Force Base in Dayton, Ohio, on November 21, 1995;

WHEREAS the signing of the Dayton Peace Accords was a historic accomplishment that was made possible with the strong leadership of the United States;

WHEREAS the signing of the Dayton Peace Accords ended a brutal 3½-year conflict marked by aggression and genocide in which many tens of thousands lost their lives;

WHEREAS the Dayton Peace Accords created a framework for a common state in Bosnia and Herzegovina, but was crafted amidst the exigencies of war and included many compromises imposed by the need for quick action to preserve human life;

WHEREAS in the 10 years since the signing of the Dayton Peace Accords, there has been considerable progress in building a peaceful society in Bosnia and Herzegovina;

WHEREAS this progress in building a peaceful society has been facilitated by both the citizens of the country and the international community;

WHEREAS, during the 9 years that the peacekeepers of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization worked to keep order in Bosnia and Herzegovina, their forces suffered no intentional casualties and never fired a single shot in combat;

WHEREAS Bosnia and Herzegovina has demonstrated a willingness to contribute to the work of the international community and sent 36 troops to assist in efforts to stabilize the country of Iraq;

WHEREAS the full incorporation of Bosnia and Herzegovina into the Euro-Atlantic community is in the national interest of the United States; and

WHEREAS past accomplishments notwithstanding, the citizens of Bosnia and Herzegovina continue to face significant challenges on their road toward further Euro-Atlantic integration;

WHEREAS the Council of Europe’s Venice Commission has concluded that the current constitutional arrangements of Bosnia and Herzegovina are neither national, and that the state-level institutions need to become more effective and democratic if Bosnia and Herzegovina is to move toward membership in the Euro-Atlantic community; and

WHEREAS Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice has said that the people of Bosnia and Herzegovina need “a stronger, energetic state capable of advancing the public good” and pledged that the United States will remain a dedicated partner to Bosnia and Herzegovina as it moves toward further Euro-Atlantic integration;

WHEREAS leaders of Bosnia and Herzegovina have already agreed to significant reforms of the budget process, intelligence services, judicial proceedings, public institutions, border and customs services, and defense sector;

WHEREAS, on November 22, 2005, political leaders of Bosnia and Herzegovina signed in Washington and signed a Commitment to Pursue Constitutional Reform in which members pledged to continue working toward the creation of stronger and more efficient democratic institutions; and

WHEREAS it is imperative that changes to the constitution of Bosnia and Herzegovina be made by the end of the year prior to national elections in October 2006;

(1) it is time for Bosnia and Herzegovina to work toward the creation of a state with more functional, self-sustaining institutions;

(2) any agreement on constitutional reform in Bosnia and Herzegovina should advance the principles of democracy and tolerance;

(3) the constitutional reforms of Bosnia and Herzegovina should be consistent with, and bring the country closer to, the goal of membership in the European Union;

(4) the United States will support the development of Bosnia and Herzegovina as a unified, fully democratic, and stable state on the path toward Euro-Atlantic integration;

(5) all parties to negotiations on the reform of the Constitution of Bosnia and Herzegovina should work together and seek compromises so that a first set of revisions to the Constitution can take effect before national elections in October 2006;

(6) all groups responsible for past violence and atrocities in Bosnia and Herzegovina must accept responsibility for their actions and promote reconciliation among the different ethnic groups of Bosnia and Herzegovina; and

(7) the Government of government in Bosnia and Herzegovina must comply with the directives of the International Criminal Tribunal for the Former Yugoslavia (ICTY), arrest indicted war criminals, and turn over fugitives to face justice at the International Criminal Tribunal.

Resolved, That it is the sense of the Senate that—

Bosnia and Herzegovina must achieve a fully democratic, and self-sustaining, more functional, and enduring state where the peoples of all communities are guaranteed equal citizenship rights, where all minority populations are adequately protected, where all communities have the right of self-determination, and where the citizens of Bosnia and Herzegovina are assured freedom of religion, speech, and press;}
The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the resolution by title.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

A resolution (S. Res. 401) urging the Republic of Belarus to conduct planned presidential elections March 19, 2006, in a free, fair, and transparent manner, and with respect for human rights.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the resolution.

Mr. FRIST. I ask unanimous consent that the resolution be agreed to, the preamble be agreed to, and the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The resolution (S. Res. 401) was agreed to.

The preamble was agreed to.

S. Res. 401

Whereas the Government of Belarus has accepted numerous specific commitments governing the conduct of elections as a participating State of the Organization for Security and Co-operation in Europe (OSCE), including provisions of the 1990 Copenhagen Document;

Whereas the Belarus parliamentary elections of 2000 failed to meet international standards;

Whereas the Belarus presidential elections of 2001 failed to meet international standards;

Whereas the local elections in Belarus in 2003 failed to meet international standards;

Whereas the Belarus parliamentary elections of 2004 failed to meet international standards;

Whereas the 2004 vote on the constitutional referendum in Belarus failed to meet international standards;

Whereas Belarus is scheduled to conduct presidential elections on March 19, 2006;

Whereas President of Belarus Alexander Lukashenko has placed tight controls on the press, opposition party members, violently protested protests, conducted surveillance of opposition candidates, and been implicated in the disappearance of at least 3 opposition members and a journalist;

Whereas, on March 2, 2006, opposition candidate Alexander Kazulin and 20 of his supporters were beaten and detained.

Whereas the campaign of Alexander Milinkevich, the main opposition candidate, has been subject to repeated government harassment and bureaucratic obstacles to open campaigning;

Whereas the intimidation and arrest of opposition parties and candidates, including the reported March 8, 2006, arrest of Vinčuk Vislavskii and 5 other members of Alexander Milinkevich’s campaign team, represents a deliberate assault on the democratic process and sends a clear signal that government officials in Belarus are not committed to holding free and fair elections; Now, therefore, be it:

Resolved, That the Senate—

(1) supports the people of Belarus as they face the dictatorship of President Lukashenko;

(2) notes that the integration of Belarus into the Western community of nations will suffer delay so long as President Lukashenko prevents the development of a democratic political system;

(3) resists the Government of Belarus to ensure a free, fair, and fully transparent 2006 presidential election, in accordance with Organization for Security and Co-operation in Europe (OSCE) standards, including unobstructed access to all aspects of the election process by the OSCE Office of Democratic Institutions and Human Rights (ODIHR), opposition parties, and nongovernmental organizations;

(4) encourages the international community, OSCE, Council of Europe, and the EU to continue supporting democracy in Belarus, and thanks the governments and people of neighboring countries such as Poland, Lithuania, and Latvia for continuing to promote democracy and human rights in Belarus; and

(5) expresses its belief that tyranny in Belarus will not forever endure and that the people of Belarus will one day enjoy the benefits of democracy and human rights at home.

JOHN H. BRADLEY DEPARTMENT OF VETERANS AFFAIRS OUTPATIENT CLINIC

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on Veterans’ Affairs be discharged from further consideration of H.R. 1691 and the Senate proceed to its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The clerk will report the bill by title. The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (H.R. 1691) to designate the Department of Veterans Affairs outpatient clinic in Appleton, Wisconsin as the "John H. Bradley Department of Veterans Affairs Outpatient Clinic."

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the bill.

Mr. FRIST. I ask unanimous consent the bill be read a third time and passed, the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table, and any statements relating to the measure be printed in the Record.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The bill (H.R. 1691) was read the third time and passed.

ORDERS FOR TUESDAY, MARCH 14, 2006

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that when the Senate completes its business today, it stand in adjournment until 9 a.m. on Tuesday, March 14, 2006. I further ask that following the prayer and pledge, the message be read and the Journal of proceedings be approved to date, the time for the two leaders be reserved, and the Senate resume consideration of S. Con. Res. 83, the budget resolution, as under the previous order; provided further that there be 40 hours equally divided remaining for debate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

PROGRAM

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, we are going to have a very busy day tomorrow and, indeed, a very busy week. We need to work through amendments on the budget resolution. At 3 p.m. tomorrow, we will have a series of votes on amendments. Senators should plan to be in the Chamber for six back-to-back votes. Senators who are planning to offer amendments should be working with the two managers, Senators Gianforte and Senator Cornyn, and Senators should expect full days and some late nights and should plan their schedules accordingly. There will be additional votes tomorrow after the stacked votes at 3 p.m.

Mr. President, as I said earlier today, we will complete action on the budget resolution this week, and we absolutely must address the issues surrounding the debt ceiling as well.

EXTENSIONS OF REMARKS

TRIBUTE TO MR. JAMES ROBERT SHERMAN

HON. MARILYN N. MUSGRAVE
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, March 13, 2006

Mrs. MUSGRAVE. Mr. Speaker. I rise today to honor Mr. James Robert Sherman, winner of the Eugene Casson Crittenden Award. The Eugene Casson Crittenden Award was first presented in 1967 recognizing superior achievement by permanent employees of the National Institute of Standards and Technology, also known as NIST. James Sherman is a recipient of this award for performing services that had a significant impact on technical programs beyond his own office, going above and beyond the call of duty.

James Sherman, “Jim” to family and friends, grew up on a small family farm and he worked hard each day with his father and brothers. He learned the value of a good work ethic early on. Married to his wife Betsy, and soon to be a father, Jim began work at the Colorado Research Corporation as a machine sheet metal welder. Among many important technological milestones at CRC, Jim helped to build parts for the analog computer as well as special components for Boeing.

On October 20, 1965, Jim Sherman became an employee for the National Bureau of Standards, known as the NBS, which would later be called NIST. Jim joined the NIST team in the Boulder Laboratories as part of the technical community and the Engineering, Maintenance, and Support Services Division, EMSS, as a laboratory mechanic. In 28 years in this position, Jim worked diligently on sheet metal work for the first atomic clock and on a device used to measure the ozone layer. Jim worked to acquire more warning time for the tornado warning system and in doing so provided research which aided in the development of the Doppler radar system as we know it today. In 1995 the shops in Boulder came to a close, and Jim gladly accepted his new position as Shop Planner.

Since, Jim has been the one responsible for ensuring the town streets are clear of snow. Right from the start, Jim was given the responsibility for maintaining the snow removal equipment before the first snowfall of the season and he did this with much success. Of his own accord, Jim, using his own mastery of welding, would even recondition the blades of the snow plows saving the EMSS from the necessity of contracting outside help. Soon, Jim was given the responsibility of leading the snow crew and overseeing the operation. As he took on this leadership role he always conducted himself in a truly professional manner. On many occasions Jim could be found arriving much before a site opened and leaving far after the close of business. This can-do attitude left him with the reputation as the go-to guy.

As of October 20, 2005, James Robert Sherman worked for the National Institute of Standards and Technology for 40 years. His dedication, reliability, and work ethic through the years made Jim the ideal candidate for the Crittenden Award as well as a model citizen of the great State of Colorado. Not only has Jim worked hard for the State of Colorado with passion and drive, he is also extremely well respected by his peers.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor Jim Sherman, a man of great integrity, dedication, and commitment. Jim has worked tirelessly, time and time again, going above and beyond the call of his regular duties. As a Member of Congress I am proud to represent such a fine citizen of the 4th District of Colorado.

SUPPORTING THE GOALS AND IDEALS OF NATIONAL ENGINEERS WEEK

SPEECH OF
HON. BETTY MCCOLLUM
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, March 7, 2006

Ms. MCCOLLUM of Minnesota. Madam Speaker, I am proud to rise today in support of National Engineers Week and to especially honor three 8th-grade students from Minnesota’s Fourth Congressional District, Emily Duffield, Alannah Pratt, and Max Showalter from Chippewa Middle School in Shoreview, Minnesota, along with their teacher, Nancy Roussin and their volunteer professional mentor, Stefan Gantert, an engineer for the Rice County Highway Department in Minnesota.

For the second time in 4 years Chippewa Middle School has won the National Engineers Week Future City Competition—a competition that encourages seventh- and eighth-graders to explore science, engineering, math, the arts, and writing in order to create models of future cities. The program requires that students work as a team to think about the future and apply engineering and creative concepts in the writing of an essay and the creation of a 3-dimensional model of a future city.

Winning the competition required that Emily, Alannah, and Max all work together to solve real-life scenarios, to apply their math, computer and science skills, and to present their ideas as a team. It is these kinds of opportunities that allow students like Emily, Alannah and Max to explore interests in engineering and to be inspired to possibly pursue an education and career path in the math and sciences. We need more young men and women to enter math and science fields in order to have a workforce and citizenry that can compete on a global level and strengthen the U.S. economy.

It is with great esteem that I rise to extend appreciation for and a congratulations to current engineers like Stefan and future engineers—perhaps young men and women like Emily, Alannah, and Max—who have the creative vision and the critical math and science skills to imagine and create a better world in which to live, work, and play.

TRIBUTE TO MR. ROY HERBERT NIX

HON. MARILYN N. MUSGRAVE
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, March 13, 2006

Mrs. MUSGRAVE. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to the profound bravery and selfless patriotism of Mr. Roy Herbert Nix. Mr. Nix proudly served our Nation in U.S. Army during the tumultuous times of the Second World War. The sacrifices he made to ensure the liberty and freedom of future generations will never be forgotten.

Born in the mountains of Northern Georgia, Roy’s family later moved to Colorado when he was five years old. In 1943, at the age of 19, Mr. Nix was drafted into the Army and was assigned to the 112th Infantry. From the farms and fields of Colorado, Mr. Nix soon found himself on the violent, battle-hardened shores of Normandy following the Allies’ D-Day invasion of German-occupied France.

In August 1944, Mr. Nix was captured by German soldiers and became a prisoner of war. Mr. Nix and his fellow POWs were forced to march at night from Normandy to a camp outside Paris. They were then herded into boxcars and transported, under constant threat of strafing by Allied aircraft, deep inside German territory. Sixty men where piled into each boxcar in which they could neither stand, nor lie down. With the exception of two, ten-minute toilet breaks a day, the POWs were forced to remain in the squalid boxcars twenty-four hours a day for sixteen days.

For what undoubtedly seemed like an eternity, Mr. Nix was confined to a prisoner of war work camp at Moosburg, Germany, at Stalag 7–A. Humiliated and near starvation, Mr. Nix and his fellow prisoners were forced to fill bomb craters. Working in the nearby forests, the prisoners were forced to endure the extreme cold wearing nothing on their feet except rags.

For a time, he was put out on a farm to work. There, a young child named Sophie would come talk to him in the barn. In the gravity of the moment, even this young girl was scared, because she knew that Roy Nix’s life could be taken at any time.

As the war drew to a close and their captors grew desperate, the prisoners at Moosburg were forced to march seventy-five kilometers to German territory. Sixty men were piled into the squalid boxcars twenty-four hours a day for sixteen days.

Finally, after months of captivity, Mr. Nix’s day of liberation arrived. At this time, his brother Fred who also served in Germany, remained with occupation forces. Later, the brothers found out they were in close proximity to each other while Roy was in German captivity.

Mr. Nix returned home to his wife Irene. Though they moved to North Carolina, they later moved back to Colorado to raise their children. Roy and Irene had twin sons Bruce and Gerald, who were born during his captivity. The young couple was also blessed with a beautiful daughter, Janet.

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — Extensions of Remarks
Mr. Nix has lived his life as a hardworking family man who is always the first to help those in need. He is a lifelong member of the local VFW and the local Baptist Church. His love of family and commitment to community confirm Mr. Nix’s integrity and character.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to John Holtorf, Jr., for his impressive contributions to Colorado agriculture. John is a successful producer who is a leader in the use of innovative agricultural practices. He has compassion for the land and has been able to consistently demonstrate good stewardship. Additionally, John’s willingness to involve local area youth in the daily ranch activities has had an extensive impact on numerous young lives.

John attended a one-room schoolhouse as a young person, and then went on to attend Colorado A&M College, now Colorado State University. He joined the U.S. Army and served from 1956–1957. Following his service, he returned home to the family ranch 14 miles north of Akron. In 1961, John became secretary-treasurer of Holtorf Incorporated and manager of the 8,000 acre Buffalo Springs Ranch. Under his management, pastures were reseeded and fenced to prevent overgrazing and the Hereford cow operation was converted to a crossbred Angus cows/Hereford bull operation. In 1994, John built a 3,000-head feedlot custom feedlot.

John tested and incorporated many innovative management practices, including artificial insemination, estrus synchronization and rotational grazing. He has worked with the Colorado Division of Wildlife to reintroduce antelope to the area, and to select a suitable location for prairie chickens. He offered the spring-fed ponds at Buffalo Springs for local public use while helping feed the world. He has helped sustain a way of life that honors the land while helping feed the world. I am proud to honor John Holtorf, Jr., for his devotion to Colorado agriculture.

TRIBUTE TO MR. JOHN HOLTORF, JR.

HON. MARILYN N. MUSGRAVE
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, March 13, 2006

MRS. MUSGRAVE. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to John Holtorf, Jr., for his impressive contributions to Colorado agriculture.

John’s lifelong contributions to agriculture have earned him induction into the Colorado Agriculture Hall of Fame in February of 2006. He has helped sustain a way of life that honors the land while helping feed the world. I am proud to honor John Holtorf, Jr., for his devotion to Colorado agriculture.

SENATE COMMITTEE MEETINGS
Title IV of Senate Resolution 4, agreed to by the Senate on February 4, 1977, calls for establishment of a system for a computerized schedule of all meetings and hearings of Senate committees, subcommittees, joint committees, and committees of conference. This title requires all such committees to notify the Office of the Senate Daily Digest—designated by the Rules Committee—of the time, place, and purpose of the meetings, when scheduled, and any cancellations or changes in the meetings as they occur. As an additional procedure along with the computerization of this information, the Senate Daily Digest will prepare this information for printing in the Extensions of Remarks section of the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD on Monday and Wednesday of each week.
