The House met at 10 a.m. The Chaplain, the Reverend Daniel P. Coughlin, offered the following prayer:

O God, the dawn of salvation approaches. You come from afar. With all our human limitations may we stand upright, look heavenward and wait. Your light throws open the way to peace. Long, long have we been watchful. Behold, now we see You, our God, coming in power, as in a cloud that covers all the land. Let us rush out to meet You, our God, and ask: Are You the one to rule Your people with integrity and compassion? Tell us, are You the one to rule Your people and the nations? Need we look for another?

Since Your coming is wrapped in night’s silence and peace, we fail to understand Your notion of power. Your drawing near only gives rise to questions: good news, or bad news?

All you, people of the Earth, whether rich or poor, need you look for another? Rush out to meet the Lord, Your God, and say: Rule over us, Shepherd of souls. Lead us as You did of old. Show me, then, which of us can go on our own way and find rest. For the Earthly light You have set in the distant window will draw us home for the feast of promise.

Amen.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER

The SPEAKER. The Chair will enter 10 one-minute speeches on each side.

PEARL HARBOR—"LEST WE FORGET"

(Mr. POE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. POE. Mr. Speaker, West Virginia, California, Oklahoma, Tennessee, Utah, Maryland, Nevada, Arizona. These were fierce U.S. naval battleships whose silent guns and hulls became sacred graves in the peaceful Pacific for 2,403 Americans.

These sailors on board these battlewagons fought with the courage and heroism of entire legions of warriors when attacked by a fanatical and tyrannical enemy.

“December 7, 1941, a date that will live in infamy” were words spoken by President Roosevelt that became for ever embedded in the minds of patriots across our land, igniting and launching a Nation into the fiery trenches of battle.

Japanese naval commanders were concerned because they said, “What Japan has done was awake a sleeping giant,” the United States.

Mr. Speaker, those of the greatest generation proved that when invaded, our people will stand up and fight, bringing the thunder of God upon our enemies. Defending freedom and liberty was the battle cry of the sailors and soldiers that died 65 years ago today.

Mr. Speaker, we don’t always choose war, but we must always choose victory. And that’s just the way it is.

PRIVATEZATION OF IRAQI OIL RESOURCES

(Mr. KUCINICH asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, President Bush has cited oil as a reason for our continued presence in Iraq. The Iraq Study Group is recommending that Iraq oil law be changed to facilitate privatization of Iraq’s oil resources. The Iraq report says as much as 500,000 barrels per day, that is $1.3 billion per year in Iraqi oil wealth, is now being stolen, which is interesting since the oil ministry is the first place our troops were sent after the invasion. And we have 140,000 troops in Iraq.

How can we expect the end of the Iraq war and national reconciliation in Iraq while we advocate that Iraq’s oil wealth be handled by private oil companies? And it is ironic that this report comes at the exact time that our Interior Department’s Inspector General says that oil companies are cheating u.s. people, out of billions of dollars and the administration is looking the other way. Is it possible that Secretary Baker has a conflict of interest, which should have precluded him from co-chairing a study group which promotes privatization of Iraq oil assets, given his ties to the oil industry? Is it possible that our troops are dying for the profits of oil?

RECOGNIZING THE WATAUGA HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL TEAM

(Ms. FOXX asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. FOXX. Mr. Speaker, I rise to pay tribute to the Watauga High School football team of 2006. The Pioneers of Watauga High School in Boone, North Carolina, set out with modest expectations and ended up just one game away from the State championship for 4-A football. They won 12 games and lost 3, and set an example of character and perseverance that made a lasting impression on their school and their community.

Frequently coming from behind in the second half to win their games, they won three times in the playoffs by one point, advancing further than any other team from Watauga County in 28 years.

Success on the football team had to be built from the ground level. And as the success of the team gained momentum in this special season, it brought a new spirit and energy to Watauga High School.

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — HOUSE

December 7, 2006

H8892
School and, indeed, to the whole community. In churches and stores you could hear excited conversations about the team’s success.

In the end, they did not capture the State championship, but achieved something of greater and more lasting importance, the values of determination, hard work and courage in the face of adversity. In proving that history does not have to be destiny, they provided a very real example of the best of the American Dream and they lived at the heart of the American experience. Their school and their community are the better for it.

IRAQ STUDY GROUP REPORT

(Mr. COOPER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. COOPER. Mr. Speaker, the Iraq Study Group has completed its work. Now it is available for all Americans to read. I would urge everyone to pick up a copy. It is only 96 pages. It contains 79 recommendations, and it is a vitally important tool to inform the debate on Iraq.

Regardless of how you feel about this report, the men and women of this commission did a commendable job in reaching a consensus. If only the American people can do the same thing.

Voters voted for change. We will have change. It is the next coming weeks during the Christmas holidays, we need to inform the debate so that everyone can give us, your representatives, your opinion about how the war should be conducted or how it should be ended. So this is a very helpful tool. It is now available for everyone. I urge all of our citizens to pick up a copy.

HOSPITAL INFECTION CONTROL

(Mr. MURPHY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. MURPHY. Mr. Speaker, while we are all talking and debating about the number of deaths in overseas wars, America has a dirty little secret in terms of the numbers of deaths that occur in our hospitals. About 90,000 people a year die from infections that they receive at hospitals or health care, at a cost of about $50 billion to our health care system.

The November issue of the “American Journal of Medical Quality” said it costs about $26,000 for each patient to treat those diseases. And it lasts an average of 20.6 days for a patient that has an infection, compared to 4.5 days without.

If we are really serious about controlling health care cost, it is not a matter of shifting the burden to having the government take it over, nor is it a matter of offering tax breaks just to carry health insurance.

This Congress, in this upcoming Congress, it is our duty, it is our responsibility to finally start doing some things about reforming our health care system so we can make it a system that people can afford, and not one that is so overwhelming in cost that it ends up hurting citizens and, in fact, leading to their deaths.

THE AMERICAN PEOPLE DESERVE MORE

(Mr. McDERMOTT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. McDERMOTT. Mr. Speaker, on a day when 10 more U.S. soldiers died in Iraq, raising the number of brave Americans killed to 2,900, it is hard to find anything positive to say about the Baker Report, anything which is associated with a war which was hopelessly wrong from the outset.

It was Congress that demanded the creation of a bipartisan group to critically examine the U.S. presence. At long last, the Congress, the American people, and the reluctant President have an Iraq plan to debate, except this President’s interest was already begun to wane. He recently installed his own study group, which is a sign to me the President has changed his rhetoric but has not changed the course.

America cannot and must not deal with Iraq in 2007 in the same way this President dealt with it in 2006. America needed a plan for Iraq long before the U.S. went in there. Many of the 79 recommendations made should have been implemented years ago. One recommendation that is imperative from any hope of success, diplomacy involving Iraq and Syria, has been rejected by the President before it is even debated out here in the Congress. The American people and the American soldiers deserve better than that. This President has led them into this mess and we have, now, a chance to lead them out. And he rejects the recommendations before they are even discussed. We need better than that out of the Presidency.

GO BUCKEYES

(Ms. PRYCE of Ohio asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. PRYCE of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I rise to accept Tuesday’s challenge from the gentleman from Florida, who suggested that his Florida Gators will upset the undefeated number-one ranked Ohio State Buckeyes and our soon-to-be-declared Heisman Trophy Winner, quarterback Troy Smith.

To his face, the Congressman staked a crate of Florida oranges to a corresponding delicacy from the State of Ohio. I offer up a crate of peanut butter and chocolate buckeyes. But no such buckeye treat will ever savor the sweet taste of victory.

If the gentleman from Florida remains tragically optimistic about his team’s chances in Glendale, he should examine the fate of two other teams whose schedules placed them helplessly in the path of the mighty Buckeyes. The agony that permeates through the cities of Austin, Texas and Ann Arbor, Michigan should serve ample notice to the elusive Ohio State Buckeye that the so-called Palestinian right of return in the 2006 Fiesta Bowl is not an opportunity for football immortality, but a certain footnote in Ohio State’s storybook 2006 season.

INCREASING THE MINIMUM WAGE

(Mr. STUPAK asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. STUPAK. Mr. Speaker, 7.5 million Americans would benefit from an increase in the minimum wage. That is 7.5 million people who are currently struggling to make ends meet in an economy where job growth is slow, pay is falling, and prices are rising.

The minimum wage is currently at a historically low level in terms of purchasing power and at a striking 50-year low when adjusted for inflation. Hardworking families are currently struggling because this Republican Congress has refused to raise the minimum wage for the past 9 years.

Democrats believe that these millions of hardworking Americans deserve a pay raise to help them make ends meet in this tough economy. We believe that no one who works full-time in this country should have to live in poverty. They deserve a shot at the American Dream, a chance to give their family the opportunity to move ahead.

Mr. Speaker, within the first 100 hours of the new Democratic Congress, we are going to give these hardworking Americans a much-needed pay raise. It is time this Congress started expanding economic prosperity to those who have been left out. I ask my Republican colleagues to join the Democratic Congress in raising the minimum wage in January.

OPPOSING ‘RIGHT OF RETURN’ REFERENCE IN THE IRAQ STUDY GROUP REPORT

(Mr. MCENRY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. MCENRY. Mr. Speaker, a curious section of the Iraq Study Group final report which was submitted to the President yesterday mentions the so-called Palestinian right of return demand, and says that it should be addressed in the negotiation process to stabilize Iraq.

I am concerned that many in the region, including groups opposed to Israel, very explicitly in the report will take this mention in the Iraq Study Group report as support of a full so-called right of return.
The United States should not be seen as supporting any policy that will fundamentally alter Israel’s safety and security. The so-called right of return would jeopardize the future of Israel and benefit the enemies of peace and freedom and enemies of the United States.

I strongly urge the President and this Congress to remain steadfast in our support of Israel and offer policies designed to enhance, not weaken, our most important and trusted friend and ally.

RAISING THE MINIMUM WAGE

(Mr. CLEAVER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. CLEAVER. Mr. Speaker, in 1938, that old wild-eyed liberal, Franklin Delano Roosevelt, put forth a proposal to increase or to establish a minimum wage. It was 25 cents an hour. Mr. Speaker, we are now closing out 2006, and for 9 years, this Congress has failed to increase the minimum wage. Democrats strongly believe that no one in this country who works hard at a full-time job should have to live in poverty, unable to provide for their children.

On the current minimum wage they can earn only $10,700 a year. That is shameful. It is close to being sinful. During the past year, we took the message to the American people. On November 7, they responded overwhelmingly by electing the Democratic majority to Congress.

Mr. Speaker, the Democratic majority in the next Congress will not let the American people down. Within the first 100 hours of the 110th Congress, we will pass a pay increase for the workers who need it most.

ETHICS AND THE U.S. HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

(Mr. HEFLEY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HEFLEY. Mr. Speaker, as the 100th Congress ends, and I prepare to leave the House after 20 years, I want to speak with my colleagues one last time about ethics, and I have here 32 pages of analyses and recommendations, which I will not bore you with, nor do we have the time.

But I have had the if not unique experience, at least the unusual experience of being on the committee and being chairman of the committee for 8 years, and I have seen the best and the worst of this House of Representatives. I can tell you that my analysis is that this is an honorable House, and it is an ethical House. Most House Members desire to serve honorably and ethically. A few do not.

The integrity of this House is important to our Nation, and our integrity is not as it should be. As Members of Congress, we will never be perfect, but we can strive to be better. As Members of the House, we must do better.

HONORING UCSB SOCCER TEAM

(Mrs. CAPPs asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mrs. CAPPs. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to celebrate the men's soccer team at the University of California Santa Barbara. On Sunday, this past Sunday, UCSB completed a victorious 6-0 run in the NCAA tournament and soundly defeated UCLA to claim the second Division I title in the school's history.

As a proud alumna of UCSB, I know I speak for the student body and the faculty and fellow alumni of the Santa Barbara community when I congratulate the Gauchos on their momentous victory. Coach Tim Vom Steeg, himself a UCSB grad, and his coaching staff deserve high praise for their leadership in guiding UCSB to its second college cup championship game in 3 years and its first title.

Nick Perera was named the All-College Cup Most Outstanding Offensive Player and proved to be a tremendous asset to the Gauchos during the championship game, scoring a goal and assisting on the game-winning shot. Andy Iro, selected as the All-College Cup Most Outstanding Defensive Player, also greatly contributed to keeping UCLA at bay.

The quality of UCSB's soccer program is but one example of the fine institution that is UCSB, home to five Nobel laureates, as well as stellar athletic and extracurricular activities. Go Gauchos.

STAN WILKINS

(Mr. GINGREY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GINGREY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor the memory of Stan Wilkins of Cartersville, Georgia, a minister, teacher and friend to so many in our community.

Dr. Wilkins passed away last week at the age of 53. While his celebrated life was certainly too short, his accomplishments as a Baptist preacher and community advocate will long be remembered.

Dr. Wilkins was only 17 years old when he answered the call to the ministry, and in the next 18 years as a pastor, most recently at Cartersville First Baptist Church, he spread his passion for education and a firm commitment for fulfilling the spiritual needs of his congregation. Dr. Wilkins also was deeply involved in the Cartersville community, serving as a member of the Bartow County Rotary Club, the United Way Allocations Board and the Good Neighbor Homeless Shelter Board.

Indeed, everyone whose life was touched by Dr. Wilkins is indebted to his enthusiasm for service and his outreach for education. Mr. Speaker, I ask you to join me in honoring the memory of Stan Wilkins, an outstanding member of the Cartersville community.

DEVELOP NEW ENERGY SOLUTIONS

(Mr. MILLER of North Carolina asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. MILLER. Mr. Speaker, the Republican solution to our energy needs is to drill anywhere no matter what. We desperately need to develop new energy technologies, but those efforts have been minuscule. Instead the Republican Congress has given massive tax breaks to all companies, as if they need any more incentive.

The profits of the five largest oil companies in America, ExxonMobil, Chevron, Texaco, Phillips, BP and Shell, were $342.4 billion in just the first quarter of this year. Next year, those companies are going to have some explaining to do. In the first 100 hours of the new Congress, we are going to take the tax breaks and subsidies that this Congress has thrown at oil companies and invest them instead in the new energy technologies that are the real solution to our energy needs.

Mr. Speaker, a real energy agenda is coming.

Mr. Speaker, it is unfortunate that Ms. Pryce of Ohio apparently does not bet on college basketball.

LINCOLN UNIVERSITY MEN'S BASKETBALL TEAM

(Mr. PITTS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. PITTS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize an amazing performance by the men's basketball team at Lincoln University in Chester County, Pennsylvania.

Last Saturday, the Lincoln Lions set an NCAA Division III record by scoring an astounding 201 points in a single game to beat Ohio State-Marion, 201-78. The Lions' unbelievable point total shattered the previous point record by almost 30 points. The game also set the record for the greatest margin of victory and most points scored in a half.

On their way to their historic win, Lincoln guard Sam Wylie set some records of his own. The senior knocked 21 three-pointers, the most ever in NCAA Division III, and finished the game with 69 points, a school record. I congratulate the coaching staff of Lincoln University's men's basketball team on a historic performance.
TIME FOR A NEW DIRECTION IN IRAQ

(Mr. PALLONE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. PALLONE. Mr. Speaker, for months now, President Bush has refused to listen to anyone outside of his war cabinet and for any counsel on the war in Iraq. Yesterday, the bipartisan Iraq Study Group came to the sobering conclusion that the situation in Iraq is grave and deteriorating.

We lost 10 soldiers in Iraq yesterday. We have lost more than 30 soldiers already. I had hoped that the President would begin to reconsider his course after the November election, but the President continues to say that American troops will remain in Iraq after he leaves office in 2 years. This is simply unacceptable. We must begin the process of redeploying our troops out of Iraq now.

The Iraqi Prime Minister was correct when he said that the war can only be won politically, and, therefore, it is time for us to bring our troops home. It is time for the politicians in Iraq to begin to work together to bring an end to the civil war and for the international community, particularly Iraq’s neighbors, to work with Iraq leaders to stabilize the Nation. Our troops have done everything they can, and it is now up to the Iraqis to take complete control of their country.

Mr. DREIER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, 8 years ago this month this House was in a great crisis. We had had a Speaker of the House who chose to resign. The Republican leadership selected a new Speaker, he chose to resign, and we as Members came together and called on J. Dennis Hastert to become Speaker of the House of Representatives.

It was a difficult time. We were in the midst of considering articles of impeachment, and we continued to face many great challenges ahead. As we marked earlier this year, Dennis Hastert became, following that crisis 8 years ago, the longest-serving Republican Speaker in the history of the U.S. House of Representatives.

During that period of time, Mr. Speaker, we know that we have gone through some amazing changes and faced some real difficulties. Today marks the 65th anniversary of the bombing of Pearl Harbor. We can’t help but think about the attack on September 11, 2001. We have not had an attack on this soil, on our soil, in large part due to the leadership that Dennis Hastert has provided in ensuring that our homeland is secure. Today we got the report of a reduction in unemployment claims, and that number, a huge drop, is further indication of the strong and growing economy that is in place because of the actions and the leadership of Dennis Hastert.

Mr. Speaker, I think it is important for us to note that while Denny Hastert is going to remain a Member of this House and provide advice and counsel to all of us, Democrats alike, I think it is very, very appropriate as we look at the waning days of this 109th Congress to recognize his amazing and wonderful accomplishments on behalf of the American people and this institution.

WELCOMING THE FIRST LADY OF AZERBAIJAN

(Ms. SEKULA GIBBS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. SEKULA GIBBS. Mr. Speaker, yesterday I had the distinct pleasure of meeting the First Lady of Azerbaijan, Dr. Mehriban Aliyev, and several individuals of Parliament who were traveling with her. They were received in the office of Senator Kay Bailey Hutchison, who hosted a reception for the First Lady of Azerbaijan.

Azerbaijan is a growing democracy and one that historic relationship with the United States, in that it shares troops with the United States and other countries in Kosovo, Afghanistan, and Iraq, and they support the efforts to work combating global terrorism. They also help to play a key role in securing dependable energy supplies to countries, including the United States.

The Caspian Sea Republic of Azerbaijan is rapidly modernizing and developing its offshore energy sector, including gas pipelines, which have been very beneficial to its economic growth. Here in the United States, I would add that my district in Houston, Sugar Land is particularly aware of the importance of developing new sources of energy and expanding our global reach for energy production for our country.

We also recognize that as an emerging democracy, Azerbaijan would like to be a member of NATO and EU and is a current member of the Council of Europe, which seeks to harmonize human rights and the goals of all humans.

Mr. Speaker, I would just like to say that the First Lady of Azerbaijan is also a physician, and we share the greater good. It was an honor to receive her as well as to welcome Melanine Verveer and Vital Voices at that reception.

WAIVING REQUIREMENT OF CLAUSE 6(a) OF RULE XIII WITH RESPECT TO CONSIDERATION OF CERTAIN RESOLUTIONS AND PROVIDING FOR CONSIDERATION OF MOTIONS TO SUSPEND THE RULES

Mrs. CAPITO. Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 1096 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. Res. 1096
Resolved, That the requirement of clause 6(a) of rule XIII for a two-thirds vote to consider a report from the Committee on Rules on the same day it is presented to the House is waived with respect to any resolution reported on the legislative day of December 7, 2006.

Sec. 2. It shall be in order at any time on the legislative day of December 7, 2006, for the Speaker to entertain motions that the House (a) suspend the rules; or (b) designate her designee shall consult with the Minority Leader or her designee on the designation of any matter for consideration pursuant to this resolution.

Sec. 3. House Resolutions 810, 939, 951, and 1947 are laid upon the table.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. BOOZMAN). The gentlewoman from West Virginia (Mrs. CAPITO) is recognized for 1 hour.

Mrs. CAPITO. Mr. Speaker, for the purpose of debate only, I yield the customary 30 minutes to the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. McGovern), pending which I yield myself such time as I may consume. During consideration of this resolution, all time yielded is for the purpose of debate only.

(Mrs. CAPITO asked and was given permission to revise and extend her remarks.)

Mrs. CAPITO. Mr. Speaker, House Resolution 1096 waives clause 6(a) of rule XIII requiring a two-thirds vote to consider a rule on the same day it is reported from the Rules Committee against certain resolutions reported from the Rules Committee. The resolution applies the waiver to any special rule reported on this legislative day.

The rule also provides that suspensions will be in order at any time on this legislative day.

This resolution also provides that the Speaker or his designee shall consult with the Minority leader or her designee on any suspension considered under this rule.

Mr. Speaker, this Congress has accomplished many things. We have worked on a variety of initiatives that will provide our working men and women with the resources necessary to succeed, expand access to health care, secure our borders, and continue to grow our economy. I would like to just comment on a few of these.

I am proud to say that I was part of the majority of Members that passed a raise in the Federal minimum wage for the first time in 9 years. It is important that we assist those who are struggling with the necessary tools to help them develop as individuals and in the workforce. I tell you that the hard-working men and women of West Virginia deserve this raise.

Another component of helping Americans succeed is making health care affordable and accessible. This Congress has led the charge in modernizing our entitlement programs, allowing them to better serve the 21st-century senior.
Mr. Speaker, I encourage my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to support this balanced rule.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the gentlewoman from West Virginia (Mrs. CAPITO) for yielding me the customary 30 minutes.

Mr. Speaker, the 109th Congress is ending the same way it started, in a closed and secretive fashion. I guess old habits die hard. Once again we are here on the floor debating a martial law rule that also makes today a suspension day. Here we are, once again, unsure of what we will be considering today, tonight, or tomorrow.

Now, it is hard to be shocked by the majority’s tactics; this is business as usual. Time after time the Republican majority has forced this House to consider bills under a closed process. In the 109th Congress, out of the 190 total rules reported, only one non-appropriations bill was considered under a closed rule. One out of 190. That is a dismal record, even for this Republican majority.

Mr. Speaker, the trouble with this martial law rule is that it allows the House to consider any bill before we even have a chance to read it. What is going to be included in the final bill? We already know about the tax extenders, Medicare fixes and offshore drilling that will be cobbled together in one bill. What else will be thrown in here? What other surprises does this Republican majority have in store?

Just a few years ago, Mr. Speaker, liability protection for pharmaceutical companies was included in a conference report after the conference was closed. Now, it is hard to be shocked by the majority’s tactics, because this is business as usual. It is hard to be shocked by the majority’s tactics, because this is business as usual.

Legislation is not supposed to work like this. None of the issues we are considering here are new. The Ways and Means Committee knew about the offshore drilling measures. The Energy and Commerce Committee knew about the energy measures. The Judiciary Committee knew about the immigration issues. The committee with jurisdiction on the other side of the aisle upstairs and came down because I was reminded of Mrs. CAPITO’s remarks.

He said in war, resolution; in peace, goodwill.

Legislation is not supposed to work like this. None of the issues we are considering here are new. The Ways and Means Committee knew about the Medicare problem all year, but didn’t care to act. The offshore drilling measure should be considered under regular order, but the Republican majority appears unwilling to schedule it that way. And the tax extender provisions, things like the R&D tax credits and work opportunity tax credit, to name a few, should be passed on their own and considered in the Senate in regular order.

Mr. Speaker, there is a better way to run this body. The truth, Mr. Speaker, is that the American people expect and deserve better. That is why the 110th Congress must be different. I believe we need to rediscover openness and fairness in this House. We must insist on full and fair debate on the issues that are left that should garner bipartisan support.

Now, it is hard to be shocked by the majority’s tactics, because this is business as usual. It is hard to be shocked by the majority’s tactics, because this is business as usual.
I keep on hearing that we need to consider our business in a timely fashion. Well, what is the rush? We could be here next week. Since they didn't get their work done before the election, we can stay here another week and do this right.

I think people expect Members of Congress when they vote on legislation to know what they are voting on. They don't want any more backroom deals. They don't want to read in the newspapers a week or two weeks from now that they have just voted on a bill that had all these objectionable provisions included in it.

So my point is that this is a bad process and we should do better, and I hope in the future we will do better. But here we are today, and I think those who care about responsible legislating should oppose this rule.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mrs. CAPITO. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, as one who cares about responsible legislating, I guess I would like to say that I have been in the legislative process now for 10 years, 4 years in my State House and 6 years now in Congress. When you reach the end of a legislative session, there is always, rightly or wrongly, a rush to wrap up loose ends, to make sure that you don't leave issues undone, untied, so that you can start afresh in the new Congress.

But I would like to tell the gentleman something he probably already knows, that in the 103rd Congress, which was the last Congress that the Democrats had control, they actually used the same-day rule provisions 22 times, and this Congress, rightly or wrongly, has used the same-day rule 20 times.

So I would like to ask the gentleman, what I am hearing you say, and I know you will be on the Rules Committee and will chair a Subcommittee on Civility, and I congratulate him. He is a mighty adversary. And I also want to say congratulations to you and to the new majority. You fought hard for it, you won it, and I look forward to the new open and fair process in this House, that it will go a long way to increasing collegiality and respect for one another.

I think a lot of the bitterness and rancor that exists in this Congress is when people feel locked out, when they feel disrespected.

So I hope we do better and I am going to fight in the Rules Committee to do better.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mrs. CAPITO. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I thank the gentleman for his response, and I have enjoyed my 2 years on the House floor by his Committee. He is a mighty adversary. And I also want to say congratulations to you and to the new majority. You fought hard for it, you won it, and I look forward to the new open process that you are proposing and particularly in the first 100 hours that you are proposing in the first several days of our legislative session in the 110th Congress.

I would like to just kind of piggyback on one thing you said, and I think it really rings true. It certainly rings true in my State and everywhere.

People are tired of the way we conduct our debate here in Congress. They turn us off. They do not listen to us because we heighten the words that we use, we disrespect each other as individuals. I am not saying that you and I do, but certainly several of our Members do on both sides of the aisle. We use words that are meant to catch the 30-second sound byte, that are meant to inflame one side or the other.

In my service in the Rules Committee, Chairman DEERE asked me to chair a Subcommittee on Civility, and I began working with that and working with Representative Cleaver on the other side. We joined together in a Special Order where we both debated civilly over the pros and cons of tax relief without throwing the usual big word bantering, disrespecting words that one another have a tendency to use in our debate. I would ask my colleagues who are listening, join together in this effort with Representative Cleaver so we can grow the amount of Members, we can have Special Orders where we debate the pros and cons of such hot issues like the war in Iraq or immigration or tax relief, all these things that are so important to the American public, but we do it in a way where we have a little bit more time where we can go back and forth and ask each other questions. It is difficult the way our structured debate is, to actually make a point in one minute and then be able to respond to the other side. So I would join with my colleague and maybe convince him to join our Subcommittee on Civility and we can have longer, more meaningful, and I think the American public would actually embrace the opportunity to sit in front of their TV, watch C-SPAN for an hour become educated on an issue on both sides, and then understand a little bit more about why we are voting one way or the other, where our belief systems are.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time, and I move the previous question on the resolution.

The previous question was ordered. The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the resolution.

The question was taken; the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes appeared to have it. Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there appeared—yeas 212, nays 30, not voting 30, as follows:

SUPPORTING THE GOALS AND IDEALS OF PLAN AHEAD WITH AN ADVANCE DIRECTIVE WEEK

Mr. BURGESS. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and agree to the resolution (H. Res. 934) supporting the goals and ideals of Plan Ahead with an Advance Directive Week. The Clerk read as follows:

H. Res. 934

Whereas life and death situations confront hundreds of thousands of persons within the United States each year due to life threatening illnesses or injuries:

Whereas advance directives offer individuals the opportunity to discuss with loved ones and family members in advance and decide what measures would be appropriate for them when it comes to end-of-life care;

Whereas the preparation of an advance directive and appointment of a health care proxy are valuable tools to help communicate the wishes about future medical care. Thoughtfully prepared advance directives can ease the burden on those who must make health care decisions for us;

Whereas physicians, other health care providers, clergy, legal counsel, and family members should, or may, provide guidance and insight into determining the final wishes of a person when an advance directive is being prepared;

Whereas to avoid any legal or medical confusion due to the emotions involved in end-of-life situations, it is in the best interest of all Americans that each person over the age of 18 communicate his or her wishes by creating an advance directive; and

Whereas the designation of the first week of April each year as Plan Ahead with an Advance Directive Week would give honor and respect to all persons as they make critical decisions about their end-of-life care and allow death with dignity according to their own decisions: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the House of Representatives—

(1) supports the goals and ideals of Plan Ahead with an Advance Directive Week;

(2) encourages each person in the United States who is over the age of 18 to prepare an advance directive to assist his or her family, friends and loved ones regard- ing their wishes as they pertain to end-of-life care. Advance directives are integral part of any care delivery plan. Simply put, advance directives are statements by competent persons which articulate that person’s medical, legal and personal wishes regarding medical care in the event of future incapacity.

When advance directives are available, medical professionals, families and loved ones are best able to make critical care decisions should a patient become unable to make sound judgments about their health care.

This resolution encourages those 18 years of age and older to prepare advanced directives. It also encourages medical, civic, educational, religious, and other nonprofit organizations to encourage individuals to prepare advanced directives and to ensure that their wishes and rights with respect to end-of-life care are protected.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. BURGESS) and the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. PALLONE) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. BURGESS. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on this legislation and to insert extraneous matter on the resolution.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?
Advocate directives are available to individuals through many different avenues. Each state government has a medical power of attorney form that a citizen can fill out and have witnessed. This then authorizes the appointed agent to make health care decisions on that individual’s behalf.

In addition to state government and public health departments, there are many organizations and hospitals around the country that have advance directives available for patients and loved ones who may find themselves facing these tough decisions.

So, Mr. Speaker, I cannot say it enough, but simply encourages everyone to take a moment and discuss with their loved ones what their wishes would be in a health care situation where they are unable to communicate.

I encourage my colleagues to please take this opportunity to support these many fine organizations and institutions around the country who work tirelessly to support the simple goals of education and awareness. In addition and perhaps most importantly, this is a chance to take a moment and do what is in the best interest of patients and families in our great country. Please join me in supporting House Resolution 934.

Mr. PALLONE. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. BURGESS. Mr. Speaker, it is my great honor to recognize another physician from Georgia, Dr. Tom Price, for 3 minutes.

Mr. PRICE of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I want to thank my colleagues. I want to thank Congressman Burgess, physician colleague and Congressman colleague, for yielding me time and allowing me to participate in this.

In our lives we plan for all sorts of things. Some are typical and some not. We plan for vacations. We plan for changes in our jobs. We plan for changes where we live, moving. We plan for changes in education. But most of us don’t plan for the time when end-of-life decisions must be made. And what, Mr. Speaker, could be more personal than those decisions, when none of us, none of us, would want others making uninformed decisions on our behalf?

So I rise and commend my colleague Mr. Gingrey, my fellow colleague from Georgia, for his leadership and his wisdom in bringing this issue forward. It is extremely important. I also want to commend our own Cobb County Medical Society for their leadership and their persistence in maintaining attention on this vital matter.

We all take for granted the fact that we make these personal medical decisions on our own, but we are unable to make those decisions ourselves. But occasionally we are not conscious or competent to make these decisions, and sometimes that happens in a split second.

As an orthopedic surgeon, I would often treat patients or folks who were involved in automobile accidents, and sometimes they would arrive in the emergency in a coma, unable to participate in decisions about how they would want their care to proceed. Very important life and death decisions. And without advocate directives, then their families had no guidance on the direction of these decisions. That is why advocate directives are so remarkably important. And so when a patient is not able to make decisions about the care that they would want to receive if they happen to become unable to speak or act for themselves.

The term “advocate directives,” as has been noted, really encompasses two types of legal documents for each individual. They answer the questions what and who. What would individuals want to do? That is through a living will. And who would make those decisions for them if they were unable to make themselves? That is the medical power of attorney or health care proxy.

I also think it is interesting to note that although these are legal documents, they do not require an attorney to execute, which may be good news for folks. So I would encourage, as the others have, to make certain that they give the time and effort to this activity and make certain that they proceed with fulfilling the obligation, actually the responsibility that they have to their loved ones.

So I want to commend Congressman Gingrey once again and I want to mention really it is our desire to ask people to be prepared. Be prepared, as the resolution states, to avoid any legal or medical confusion due to the emotions involved in end-of-life decisions. It is in the best interest of all Americans that each individual over the age of 18 communicate his or her wishes by creating an advocate directive. So it is wholly important that this House of Representatives supports the goals and ideals of Plan Ahead with an Advocate Directive Week: that we encourage each individual to fulfill their responsibility for those forms and we encourage medical, civic, educational, religious, and other nonprofit organizations to ask their members as well to fulfill their obligation for a living will and a medical durable power of attorney.

I want to encourage all my colleagues to support this resolution.

Mr. PALLONE. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. BURGESS. Mr. Speaker, we have had good participation from the House Physicians Caucus this morning, and I just wanted to make note of that.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to our third speaker, who is one of our newest Members, another physician colleague from Houston, Texas, the recently elected Shelley Sekula Gibbs.

Ms. SEKULA GIBBS. Mr. Speaker, I thank the Congressman from Texas, Dr. Michael Burgess, for yielding.

I appreciate the opportunity to rise and speak in support of the gentleman from Georgia, Dr. Phil Gingrey’s, House Resolution 934, which encourages the creation of a week that would be dedicated to the support and development of advocate directives.

Advocate directives are a legal document that every American should explore and hopefully will find useful. An advocate directive is something that has been very helpful in my own family since I lost a spouse to cancer and then subsequently lost my father to cancer.

So I rise and commend my colleague the gentleman from Georgia, Dr. Phil Gingrey, for bringing this resolution to the floor.

Mr. PALLONE. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. BURGESS. Mr. Speaker, just a housekeeping detail: I would point out that the House has previously passed this legislation. It went over to the Senate. Some modest changes were made, and this is now the legislation that will conform to those changes.

Mr. Speaker, I have to go to other requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. PALLONE. Mr. Speaker, I would also urge support of the bill.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of House Resolution 934, which supports the goals and ideals of Plan Ahead with an Advocate Directive Week and encourages Americans to prepare advocate directives to ensure that their wishes and rights with respect to end-of-life care are protected.

This is an issue I became involved with back in 1990 when I introduced the Patient Self-Determination Act in the House, Senators John Danforth and Pat Moynihan introduced the companion bill in the Senate. The measure became public law in 1991. Among other things, the Act requires all Medicare and Medicaid provider organizations, including hospitals, nursing facilities, home health agencies, and hospices to provide written information to patients at the time of admission concerning an individual's right under State law to make decisions concerning medical care, including the right to accept or refuse medical or surgical treatment and the right to formulate advance directives. It also required these organizations to provide these same materials to patients with respect to advance directives. But even with laws like the Patient Self-Determination Act in place, only about 29 percent of Americans have a living will.

Advance directives, which include a living will statement of an individual's preferences for care and a power of attorney for health care, are critical documents that each of us should have. As important as it is to encourage Americans to prepare advance directives, Congress is in a position to do more to help families make these arrangements. Last year I introduced H.R. 2058, the Advance Directives Improvement and Education Act. This bipartisan bill would build on current advance directive laws to educate Americans about living wills, give people the opportunity to discuss options with their doctors, and ensure that their wishes are honored.

In a word, the purpose of H.R. 2058 is to encourage all Americans to think about, talk about and write down their wishes for medical care near the end of life. The bill also would ensure that people's advance directives are honored, even if the directive is issued in one state and end-of-life care is given in another. The bill also encourages all Medicare and Medicaid provider organizations to provide advance directives by providing a free physician office visit for the purpose of discussing end-of-life choices, and directs the Department of Health and Human Services to conduct a public education campaign to raise awareness of the importance of planning for care near the end of life.

Let me conclude by again stating my support for the resolution before the House with the hope that we can build on this effort in the next Congress.

Mr. FALLONE. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Burgess) that the House suspend the rules and agree to the resolution, H. Res. 934.

The question was taken; and (two-thirds of those voting having responded in the affirmative) the rules were suspended and the resolution was agreed to

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

SOBER TRUTH ON PREVENTING UNDERAGE DRINKING ACT

Mr. BURGESS. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and concur in the Senate amendment to the bill (H.R. 864) to provide for programs and activities with respect to the prevention of underage drinking.

The Clerk read as follows:

Senate amendment:

Strike out all after the enacting clause and insert:

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "Sober Truth on Preventing Underage Drinking Act" or the "STOP Act."

SEC. 2. AMENDMENT TO THE PUBLIC HEALTH SERVICE ACT.

Section 519B of the Public Health Service Act (42 U.S.C. 290bb–25b) is amended by striking subsections (a) through (l) and inserting the following:

(a) DEFINITIONS.—For purposes of this section:

(1) The term 'alcohol beverage industry' means the brewers, vintners, distillers, importers, distributors, and retail or online outlets that sell or serve beer, wine, and distilled spirits.

(2) The term 'school-based prevention' means programs, which are institutionalized, and run by staff members or school-designated persons or organizations in any grade of school, kindergarten through grade twelve.

(3) The term 'youth' means persons under the age of 21.

(b) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of the Congress that:

(1) A multi-faceted effort is needed to more successfully address the problem of underage drinking in the United States. A coordinated approach to prevention, intervention, treatment, enforcement, and research is key to making progress. This Act recognizes the need for a focused national effort, and addresses particulars of the Federal portion of that effort, as well as Federal support for State activities.

(2) The Secretary of Health and Human Services shall continue to conduct research and collect data on the short and long-term impact of alcohol use and abuse upon adolescent brain development, and shall focus on five priority areas identified in the IOM report.

(3) States and communities, including colleges and universities, are encouraged to adopt comprehensive prevention approaches, including:

(A) evidence-based screening, programs and curricula;

(B) brief intervention strategies;

(C) consistent policy enforcement; and

(D) environmental changes that limit underage access to alcohol.

(4) Public health groups, consumer groups, and the alcohol beverage industry should continue and expand evidence-based efforts to prevent and reduce underage drinking.

(5) The entertainment industries have a powerful impact on youth alcohol use rating systems and marketing codes to reduce the likelihood that underage audiences will be exposed to movies, recordings, or television programs with unsuitable alcohol content.

(6) The National Collegiate Athletic Association, its member colleges and universities, and athletic conferences should affirm a commitment to prevent and reduce underage drinking.

(7) Alcohol is a unique product and should be regulated differently than other products by the States and the Federal Government. States have primary authority to regulate alcohol distribution and sale, and the Federal Government should support and supplement these State efforts. States also have a responsibility to fight youth access to alcohol and reduce underage drinking. Continued State regulation and liceasing of the manufacture, importation, sale, distribution, transportation and storage of alcoholic beverages are clearly in the public interest and are critical to promoting responsible consumption, preventing illegal sales of alcohol by persons under 21 years of age from commercial and non-commercial sources, maintaining industry integrity and an orderly marketplace, and otherwise effectively taxing alcohol.

(c) INTERAGENCY COORDINATING COMMITTEE ON THE PREVENTION OF UNDERAGE DRINKING.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary, in collabo-

(D) DUTIES.—The Committee shall guide policy and program development across the Federal Government with respect to underage drinking, provided, however, that nothing in this section shall be construed as transferring regulatory or program authority from an Agency to the Coordinating Committee.

(E) CONSULTATIONS.—The Committee shall actively seek the input of and shall consult with all appropriate and interested parties, including State and local public health entities, interest groups, foundations, and alcohol beverage industry trade associations and companies.

(iv) other information regarding underage drinking as the Secretary determines to be appropriate.

(iii) CERTAIN INFORMATION.—The report submitted under clause (i) shall include information on the following:

(E) PROVISIONS.—

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Texas, Mr. PALMISTE, and the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. PALLONE) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. BURGESS. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on this legislation and to insert extraneous material on the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore.

There is no objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

Mr. BURGESS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from Nebraska, the sponsor of this bill.

Mr. OSBORNE. Mr. Speaker, under the rules allocated to us, those Members of the House who are interested in this important legislation are being allocated 4 minutes to discuss the Stop Act.

Mr. Speaker. Mr. Speaker, the Stop Act is being reintroduced today with technical changes to further clarify implementation of this legislation. When originally brought to the House floor on November 14 of this year, H.R. 864 passed by a vote of 373-to-2.

Underage drinking is a major public health concern in communities throughout our Nation. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention has estimated that annually there are over 142,000 emergency room visits by youth, age 12 to 20, for unintentional injuries and other health-related concerns caused by alcohol consumption. H.R. 864 is a great start in moving our Nation toward the goal of decreasing youth access to, and consumption of, alcohol.

This bill authorizes coalitions on the issue of underage drinking, funds national media campaigns about the dangers of underage drinking, and creates grants programs for preventing and reducing alcohol abuse in institutions of higher education and surrounding communities.

The STOP Act has the endorsement of key public health advocates, as well as the alcohol beverage industry. Both endorse this legislation on the basis that it recognizes that a multifaceted national effort is key to making progress in curbing underage alcohol consumption.

The issue of underage drinking deserves our immediate consideration and support. So I urge my colleagues to support this bill for a second time.

But I particularly want to thank the Leadership of the House, Mr. Speaker. I yield the balance of my time.

Mr. BURGESS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from Nebraska, the sponsor of this bill.

Mr. OSBORNE. Mr. Speaker, under the rules allocated to us, those Members of the House who are interested in this important legislation are being allocated 4 minutes to discuss the Stop Act.

Mr. Speaker, self-inflicted injuries are the leading cause of death for youth. Alcohol kills six times more young people than all other illegal drugs combined. Let me say that again: it kills...
Mr. ROYBAL-ALLARD. Mr. Speaker, the STOP Act is a result of an enormous commitment to the future well-being of our children by a bipartisan coalition of Democrats and Republicans from both Houses who have worked in partnership with our public health colleagues and the alcohol beverage industry.

I thank my Senate colleagues, CHRIS Dodd and MIKE DEWINE, for their tireless support of this bill over the past 3 years.

And I also thank my colleagues from the House, FRANK WOLF, for his early and steadfast support of this issue in the Appropriations Committee, as well as my colleagues TOM OSBORNE, ZACH WAMP, and ROSA DELAURO for their unwavering perseverance in addressing the problem of underage drinking in this country.

I particularly want to acknowledge Tom Osborne and thank him for his friendship and his support on this issue and for his lifetime commitment to building a better future for our youth.

Tom, your legacy here in Congress will not soon be forgotten.

I would also like to thank my advocacy friends, as well as those in the industry, for their efforts to help pass this bill in this 109th Congress.

And finally, and but certainly not least, I would like to thank my staff, Debbie Jessup, and especially my chief of staff, Ellen Riddleberger, who has worked with me on this issue for the past 7 years. Her many talents and knowledge of the issue are greatly responsible for this bill being before us today.

Mr. Speaker, 3 weeks ago, this House overwhelmingly passed H.R. 864. Last night the Senate unanimously passed this bill with an offset and language that addresses some of the technical concerns of our Senate and House colleagues. The substance of the bill, however, remains the same as the bill the House passed on November 14.

The bill represents the national anti-underage drinking media campaign directed at parents. It authorizes research to find effective strategies to deter childhood drinking, as well as makes grants available for communities and colleges to address this crisis.

In addition, the STOP Act requires an annual report by the Secretary of HHS on the progress States are making to address underage drinking.

Mr. Speaker, this bill shows what can be accomplished when we put our differences aside and work together for the future of our children. I ask my colleagues in this House to join me and the sponsors of this bill in passing it today.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from Connecticut (Ms. DELAURO), who was a key sponsor of this bill.

Ms. DELAURO. Mr. Speaker, I want to thank all my colleagues for their many years of hard work to ensure that this bill reaches the floor: Congresswoman ROYBAL-ALLARD, Congressmen OSBORNE, WOLF and WAMP, as well as our colleagues in the other body, Senator Dodd and SENATOR MIKE DEWINE.

Passing the STOP Act, Congress has the opportunity to say here, enough. Enough to looking the other way when it comes to increasing problems of underage drinking. Enough of simply accusing the fact the kids start drinking is 13; that 7 million young people describe themselves as binge drinkers; and above all, we say enough to alcohol playing a role in the three leading causes of death among young people. It is time we do something about everyday young people engaging in behavior that leads to alcoholism.

So, Mr. Speaker, that is why we need this comprehensive bill. The STOP Act will increase resources for drinking and driving prevention coalitions like Mothers Against Drunk Driving, which we know already have a positive impact on teenagers. It will fund additional research and create a committee that delivers a report card on the progress we are or are not making, and it will review alcohol advertisements targeted toward young people.

And lastly the STOP Act would help us fund a national media campaign directed at adults. Too often parents ignore signs in their own children. They refuse to believe their own child could have a problem, and we need to turn that around.

So I urge my colleagues, support the STOP Act. As a Member of Congress, as someone who has lost a loved one in a drunk driving accident, it is time that Congress spoke clearly and decisively about reducing underage drinking in our communities. With this bill, we can and we will.

Mr. BURGESS. Mr. Speaker, I re- serve the balance of my time.

Mr. PALLONE. Mr. Speaker, I would urge support of the bill again, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. BURGESS. Mr. Speaker, I have no further speakers.

I also would just like to point out what a privilege and an honor it has been to serve with Tom Osborne here in my short time in the House. And, Coach, we will miss you next year.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Texas (Mr. BURGESS) that the House suspend the rules and concur in the Senate amendment to the bill, H.R. 864.

The question was taken; and (two-thirds of those voting having responded in the affirmative) the rule was suspended and the Senate amendment was concurred in.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.
Mr. GALLEGLY. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 5948) to reauthorize the Belarus Democracy Act of 2004, as amended.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

“(5) The Government of Belarus has failed to make any effort to solve the cases of disappeared opposition figures Yuri Zakharanka, Viktor Gonchar, and Anatoly Krasovsky in 1999 and journalist Dmitry Zavadsky, and the prosecution of those individuals who are in any way responsible for the disappearances of opposition leaders and journalists in Belarus, including Victor Gonchar, Anatoly Krasovsky, Yuri Zakharanka, and Dmitry Zavadsky, and the prosecution of those individuals who are in any way responsible for these disappearances.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from California (Mr. Gallegly) and the gentleman from California (Mr. Lantos) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from California.

Mr. Gallegly. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members have 5 legislative days to revise and extend their remarks and include extraaneous material on the bill under consideration.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

Mr. Gallegly. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, H.R. 5948, the belarus Democracy Act of 2006, was introduced on behalf of a democratic representative from New Jersey, Mr. Smith. I would like to commend Mr. Smith for his hard work on this issue and also for the work on supporting and promoting human rights throughout the entire world.

This important legislation reauthorizes the original Belarus Democracy Act, which was signed into law by President Bush in October of 2004. Given the anti-democratic track record of the Lukashenka regime in the past 2 years, it is entirely appropriate for Congress to reauthorize this statute.

Mr. Speaker, Belarus is often described as the last dictatorship in Europe, and the situation has only gone from bad to worse. In the past three or four years, President Alexander Lukashenka has increased repression against NGOs, media outlets, and any opponents of the government, including youth groups.

In addition, presidential elections held in March of this year were widely viewed as neither free nor fair.

Mr. Speaker, H.R. 5948 promotes democracy or democratic development, human rights and the rule of law in Belarus. It also promotes that country enter into our Euro-Atlantic community of nations.

The bill authorizes funds for fiscal years 2007 and 2008 for democracy-building activities such as support for nongovernmental organizations, development of democratic political parties and independent media. It also authorizes funds for radio and television broadcasting in Belarus.

Finally, H.R. 5948 puts Congress on record in support of sanctions against the Lukashenka regime. We believe the Government of Belarus has made significant progress in meeting several human rights conditions.
Mr. Speaker, this is an important measure in the support of human rights and democracy in Belarus. At a time when Belarus’s neighbors, such as Poland, Ukraine and the Baltic Nations, have democratic governments that respect the rights of their citizens, it is long overdue that the Lukashenka regime provide the same freedoms for its citizens.

Again, I would like to compliment my good friend, Representative SMITH, for his hard work on H.R. 5948 and on behalf of democracy in Belarus. And I urge the passage of this bill.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. LANTOS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of H.R. 5948, the Belarus Democracy Act of 2006.

Mr. Speaker, as the third wave of democracy spread over Europe since 1989, one country has been conspicuously absent from the momentous changes affecting its neighbors: the continuing dictatorship of Belarus. Regrettably, this continuing communist cancer in the heart of a vibrant democratic Europe threatens to metastasize to its neighbors, threatening the progress of European civilization.

Mr. Speaker, I will not try to provide an in depth catalog of the outrageous abuses of the Lukashenka regime. From stolen elections to suppression of freedom of the press to jailing opposition leaders to oppressing organized labor, the Belarusian strong-arm tactics are well known.

Early this year, after President Alexander Lukashenka won 80 percent of the vote in a fatally flawed and corrupt election for president, police arrested over 100 people protesting Lukashenka’s strong-arm tactics. When the head of security services equates protests to terrorism, as the head of the Belarusian KGB did during that campaign, you should recognize that we must act, and soon.

Some may say that this is an issue where the Europeans should take the lead, and that dealing with Belarus is their responsibility. And the Europeans, despite their divisions, are moving forward on pressuring Belarus to do more to open their society. Just this week, Mr. Speaker, the European Commission announced that it would move ahead to suspend trade preferences to Belarus because it had violated trade union norms.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of H.R. 5948, the Belarus Democracy Act of 2006, to provide sustained support for the promotion of democracy, human rights and the rule of just law in the Republic of Belarus.

I want to thank our speaker, Speaker HASTERT, for his commitment in bringing this legislation before the Congress today. Speaker HASTERT’s deep personal interest in the cause of freedom in Belarus was demonstrated at his recent meeting in Vilnius in Lithuania when he met with the leaders of the democratic opposition.

It was very much appreciated by them. I know them, I have worked with them for many years. They got a great boost from his personal intervention on their behalf and for really taking the time to listen and to react to their pleas.

I am happy to say again that this legislation enjoys very broad bipartisan support. As I said, again, I want to thank Mr. LANTOS for his leadership on this as well.

As one who has worked for freedom in Belarus over many, many years, I remain deeply concerned that the Belarusian people are subjected to the arbitrary and self-serving whims of a corrupt and anti-democratic regime headed by Aleksandr Lukashenka. Since the blatantly fraudulent March 19 presidential elections, which the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe condemned as having failed to meet international democratic standards, the pattern of repression and gross violations of human rights and fundamental freedoms has continued.

While those who dare to oppose the regime are especially targeted, roughed up, tortured, thrown into prison, the reality is that all in Belarus, outside of Lukashenka’s inner circle, pay a price. Last week in Riga, President Bush pledged support to help the people of Belarus who faced a cruel regime, his words, and apt words, led by President Lukashenka.

The President, President Bush went on to say, of such oppression in our midst offends the conscience of Europe, and the conscience of America. Mr. Speaker, this legislation would be a concrete expression and expansion of congressional commitment to the Belarusian people and would show that we stand as one in supporting freedom in Belarus.

Just within the last few months, Mr. Speaker, we have witnessed a series of politically motivated trials designed to further stifle peaceful democratic opposition. In the last few months, the regime continues to show its true colors, punishing those who would dare to challenge the tin-pot dictator, Aleksandr Lukashenka.

Former presidential candidate Aleksandr Kozulin was sentenced to a politically motivated 5½ years’ imprisonment for alleged hooliganism and disturbing the peace. His health is precarious, and he is now well into the second month of a hunger strike.

This is only the tip of the iceberg with respect to political repression, as many other political prisoners continue to languish in prison or so-called corrective labor camps. By way of background, Mr. Speaker, 3 years ago I introduced the Belarus Democracy Act which passed the House and Senate with overwhelming bipartisan support and was signed into law by President Bush in October of 2004. Prompt passage of the reauthorization act before us today will help maintain this momentum aimed at upholding the democratic aspirations of the Belarusian people.

With the continuing decline on the ground in Belarus since the fraudulent March elections, this bill is needed now more than ever. This reauthorization bill illustrates the sustained support for Belarus independence. We seek to encourage those struggling for democracy and respect for human rights in the face of formidable pressure and personal risks from this anti-democratic regime. The bill authorizes such sums as may be necessary in assistance for each of fiscal years 2007 and 2008 for democracy-building activities such as support for nongovernmental organizations, including youth groups, independent media, human rights defenders, independent trade unions and entrepreneurs, as well as those engaged in political prisoners.

Mr. Speaker, I hope that the administration will make this a priority. In addition, I hope that the administration would make this, like I said, a priority and much more.

In addition, H.R. 5948 calls for selective sanctions against the Lukashenka regime, and a denial of entry into the United States for senior officials of the regime, as well as those engaged in human rights and electoral abuses.

Mr. Speaker, it is my hope that the Belarus Democracy Reauthorization Act of 2006 will help end the pattern of violations of OSCE human rights and democracy commitments made by the Lukashenka regime and loosen its unhealthy monopoly on political and economic power.

I hope our efforts here today will facilitate independent Belarus’s integration into the European Union in which the principles of democracy, human rights and rule of law are respected.

Clearly, the beleaguered Belarusian people have suffered so much over the course of the last century and deserve better than to live under a regime frighteningly reminiscent of the Soviet Union.

The struggle of the people of Belarus for dignity and freedom deserves our unyielding and consistent support. This legislation is important and timely, and I urge Members to support it.

Mr. Speaker, I strongly urge passage of H.R. 5948, the Belarus Democracy Reauthorization Act of 2006, to provide sustained support for the promotion of democracy, human rights and the rule of law in the Republic of Belarus, as well as encourage the consolidation and strengthening of Belarus’s sovereignty and independence. Mr. Speaker, I especially thank you for your commitment and for the legislation before this Congress. Your deep personal interest in the cause of freedom in Belarus, as demonstrated by your recent meetings in Vilnius with the leaders of the democratic opposition, has been particularly appreciated by those struggling for the rule of law and basic human freedoms. This legislation enjoys bipartisan support, and I want to recognize and thank the tremendous collaboration of Rep. Tom Lantos, an original co-sponsor of this bill.

As one who has followed developments in Belarus over many years through my work on the Helsinki Commission, I remain deeply concerned that the Belarusian people continue to be subjected to the arbitrary and self-serving whims of a corrupt and anti-democratic regime headed by Aleksandr Lukashenka. Since the blatantly fraudulent March 19 presidential elections, which the OSCE condemned as having failed to meet international democratic standards, the pattern of repression and gross violations of human rights and fundamental freedoms. While those who dare oppose the regime are especially targeted, the reality is that all in Belarus outside Lukashenka’s inner circle pay a price.

RECENT NEWS REGARDING LUKASHENKA’S REGIME

Last week in Riga, President Bush pledged to help the people of Belarus in the face of the “cruel regime” of Lukashenka. “The existence of such oppression in our midst offends the conscience of Europe and the conscience of America,” Bush said, adding that “we have a message for the people of Belarus: the vision of a Europe whole, free and at peace includes you, and we stand with you in your struggle for freedom.” Mr. Speaker, this legislation would be a concrete expression of Congress’ commitment to the Belarusian people and would show that we stand as one in supporting freedom for Belarus.

Just within the last few months, we have witnessed a series of patently political trials designed to further stifle peaceful, democratic opposition. In October, 60-year-old human rights activist Katerina Sadouskaya was sentenced to two years in a penal colony. Her “crime”? “insulting the honor and dignity of the Belarusian leader.” Mr. Speaker, if this isn’t reminiscent of the Soviet Union, I don’t know what is. And just a few weeks ago, in a closed trial, Belarusian youth activist Zhmitser Dashkevich received a one-and-a-half year “sentence for an offense on behalf of an unregistered organization.”

A report mandated by the Belarus Democracy Act and finally issued this past March reveals Lukashenka’s links with rogue regimes such as Iran, Sudan and Syria, and his cronies’ corrupt activities. According to an October 9, 2006, International Herald Tribune oped: “Alarming, over the last six years, Belarus has intensified its illegal arms shipment activities to the point of becoming the leading supplier of lethal military equipment to Islamic extremists.”

I guess we shouldn’t be all that surprised that in July, Lukashenka warmly welcomed to Minsk Venezuela’s Hugo Chavez. In keeping with their bent, both pledged cooperation and denounced the West. More recently, Belarusian Foreign Minister Martynov traveled to Iran where President Ahmadinejad pledged further cooperation in the energy and defense industries. Not long ago, a member of Belarus’ parliament associated state-controlled radio that has the right to develop its own nuclear weapons. Mr. Speaker and Colleagues, Belarus is truly an anomaly in Europe, swimming against the rising tide of greater freedom, democracy and economic prosperity.

THE LEGISLATION

Three years ago, I introduced the Belarus Democracy Act which passed the House and Senate with overwhelming bipartisan support and was signed into law by President Bush in October 2004. At that time, the situation in Belarus with respect to democracy and human rights was already abysmal. The need for a sustained U.S. commitment to foster democracy and respect for human rights and to sanction Aleksandr Lukashenka and his cronies, is clear from the intensified anti-democratic and repressive policies pursued by the current leadership in Minsk.

Mr. Speaker, I am pleased that countries throughout Europe have joined in a truly trans-Atlantic effort to bring the promise of freedom to the beleaguered people of Belarus. Prompt passage of the Belarus Democracy Reauthorization Act of 2006 will help maintain this momentum aimed at upholding the democratic aspirations of the Belarusian people. With the continuing decline on the ground in Belarus since the fraudulent March elections, this bill is needed now more than ever.

This reauthorization bill demonstrates the sustained U.S. support for Belarus’ independence. We seek to encourage those struggling for democracy and respect for human rights in the face of the formidable pressures and personal risks from the anti-democratic regime. The bill authorizes such sums as may be necessary in assistance for each of fiscal years 2007 and 2008 for democracy-building activities such as support for nongovernmental organizations, including youth groups, independent media, human rights defenders, independent trade unions and entrepreneurs, as well as those engaged in the regime, and a denial of entry into the United States for senior officials of the regime— as well as those engaged in human rights and electoral abuses.

The bill further authorizes money for both radio and television broadcasting to the people of Belarus. While I am encouraged by the recent U.S. and EU initiatives with respect to radio broadcasting, much more needs to be done to penetrate Lukashenka’s stifling information blockade.

Mr. Speaker, I hope that the administration will make this a priority. In addition, I hope that the administration would make this, like I said, a priority and much more.

In addition, H.R. 5948 calls for selective sanctions against the Lukashenka regime, and a denial of entry into the United States for senior officials of the regime, as well as those engaged in human rights and electoral abuses.

Mr. Speaker, it is my hope that the Belarus Democracy Reauthorization Act of 2006 will help end the pattern of violations of OSCE human rights and democracy commitments made by the Lukashenka regime and loosen its unhealthy monopoly on political and economic power.

I hope our efforts here today will facilitate independent Belarus’s integration into the European Union in which the principles of democracy, human rights and rule of law are respected.

Clearly, the beleaguered Belarusian people have suffered so much over the course of the last century and deserve better than to live under a regime frighteningly reminiscent of the Soviet Union.

The struggle of the people of Belarus for dignity and freedom deserves our unyielding and consistent support. This legislation is important and timely, and I urge Members to support it.
Of course, we would not want the exports to affect humanitarian goods and agricultural or medical products. The U.S. Executive Directors of the international financial institutions are encouraged to vote against financial assistance to the Government of Belarus except for loans and assistance that serve humanitarian needs. Furthermore, the United States recommends that the U.S. companies in Belarus be encouraged to divest themselves of their holdings of the assets (in the United States) of members of the Belarus government as well as the senior leadership and their surrogates.

To this end, I welcome the Treasury Department's April 10 advisory to U.S. financial institutions of the potential money laundering and terrorism concerns associated with Lukashenka and his cronies and strongly applaud President Bush's June 19 "Executive Order Blocking Property of Certain Persons Undermining Democratic Processes or Institutions in Belarus.

Mr. Speaker, I want to make it crystal clear that these sanctions are aimed not at the people of Belarus, but at a regime that displays contempt for the dignity and rights of its citizens even as the corrupt leadership moves to further enrich itself at the expense of all Belarusians.

ONGOING ANTI-DEMOCRATIC BEHAVIOR

To chronicle the full litany of repression over the course of Lukashenka's 12-year misrule would go well beyond the bounds of time available here. Let me cite several more recent illustrations of anti-democratic behavior which testify to the true nature of the regime.

Belarus' March 19 presidential elections can only be described as a farce, and were met with condemnation by the United States, the OSCE, the European Union and others. The Lukashenka regime's wholesale arrests of more than 1,000 opposition activists and dozens of Belarusian and foreign journalists, before and after the elections, and violent suppression of peaceful post-election protests underscore the contempt of the Belarusian authorities toward their countrymen.

Illegitimate parliamentary elections in 2004 and the recently held presidential "elections" in Belarus brazenly flouted democratic standards. As a result of these elections, Belarus has the distinction of lacking legitimate parliamentary leadership which contributes to that country's self-imposed isolation. Albeit safely ensonced in power, Lukashenka has not let up on the democratic opposition. Almost daily repressions constitute a profound abuse of power by a regime that has blatantly manipulated the system to remain in power.

In the last few months, the regime continues to show its true colors, punishing those who would dare to challenge the tinpot dictator. Former presidential candidate Aleksandr Kozulin has been sentenced to a political term of imprisonment for alleged "hooliganism" and disrupting the peace. His health is precarious as he is now well into his second month of a hunger strike.

In early August, authorities sentenced four activists of the non-partisan domestic election monitoring initiative "Partnerstva". In a patent attempt to discourage domestic observation of the fraudulent March 19 presidential elections, the four had been kept in custody since February 21. Two were released, having served their sentences with evidences. Two others, Tsimafei Dranchuk and Mikalay Astreyka—received stiffer sentences, although Astreyka has been released from a medium security colony and is now in "correctional labor". Other political prisoners, including Artur Finkевич, Mikalay Autukhovich, Audrey Klaimu, Ivan Kruk, Yury Lyavonau, Mikalay Razumau, Pavel Sevyanynets, Mikalay Statkevich also continue to have their freedom denied, languishing in prison or in so-called "correctional labor camps".

Administrative detentions of ten or fifteen days against democratic opposition activists are almost a daily occurrence. Moreover, the Lukashenka regime continued to stifle religious expression. It refuses to register church-owned premises, and threatens to expel foreign clergy, and refuses religious groups the use of premises to hold services.

Despite the repressions, Protestant and Catholic congregations have increasingly become more active in their pursuit of religious freedom. I am also concerned about the recent explosion at a Holocaus memorial in western Belarus, the sixth act of vandalism against the monument in 14 years. Unfortunately, the local authorities have reportedly refused to open a criminal investigation. Lukashenka's minions have closed down independent think tanks, further tightened the noose around what remains of the independent media, suspended the activities of a political party, shut down the prominent literary journal Arche, and evicted the Union of Belarusian Writers from its headquarters. Of course, Lukashenka's pattern of contempt for human rights is nothing new—it has merely intensified with the passage of time.

Moreover, we have seen no progress on the investigation of the disappearances of political opponents—perhaps not surprisingly, as credible evidence points to the involvement of the Lukashenka regime in their murders.

Mr. Speaker, it is my hope that the Belarus Democracy Reauthorization Act of 2006 will help end to the pattern of violations of OSCE human rights and democracy commitments by the Lukashenka regime and loosen its unhealthy monopoly on political and economic power. I hope our efforts here today will facilitate independent Belarus' integration into democratic Europe in which the principles of democracy, human rights and the rule of law are respected. The beleaguered Belarusian people have suffered so much over the course of the last century and deserve better than to live under a regime frighteningly reminiscent of the Soviet Union. The struggle of the people of Belarus for dignity and freedom deserves our unyielding and consistent support.

This legislation is important and timely because Belarus, which now borders on NATO and the EU, continues to have the worst human rights and democracy record of any European country.

Mr. LANTOS. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. GALLEGLY. Mr. Speaker, before I yield back, I would just like to say that this is a classic example of sending a message around the world of what America is all about. We stand here in this room, not as Democrats and Republicans, but as individuals fighting oppression and human rights violations around the world.

I applaud Chris Smith for his long-standing leadership. It has been an honor for me to serve with my good friend Tom LANTOS on the other side of the aisle, it doesn’t seem possible that I have been here 20 years, Tom, but he is a colleague from California, He is to be applauded.

I would be remiss if I didn't recognize our mutual friend, HENRY HYDE, a mentor of mine for every year that I have been here on an ongoing basis, who has dedicated much of his life to fighting oppression and the violation of human rights around the world.

HENRY HYDE will be missed, as he is retiring this year, but his legacy will live on, and I hope that is a message we will send to the rest of the world. That is what America is all about.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. LAFOURRETE). The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from California (Mr. GALLEGLY) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 5948, as amended.

The question was taken.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. In the opinion of the Chair, two-thirds of those voting have responded in the affirmative.

Mr. LANTOS. Mr. Speaker, on that I move to order the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX and the Chair's prior announcement, further proceedings on this question will be postponed.

The Chair recognizes the gentlewoman from Florida, Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Mr. Speaker, Senate bill 2370, the Palestinian Anti-Terrorism Act of 2006, seeks to prevent U.S. tax dollars from reaching the hands of Hamas-controlled Palestinian Authority until Hamas agrees to recognize Israel, renounces violence, and agrees to all previously made agreements.

In January of this year, Mr. Speaker, Hamas, a terror organization responsible for murdering and injuring hundreds of Israelis and scores of American citizens, took control of the Palestinian Authority. This was a tremendous blow to the efforts of the United States and to the international community that has been working to bring peace and security to the region. Since Hamas took power, the terror group has made it clear that they have no intention of changing their hateful charter which calls for the destruction of Israel.

In fact, rockets launched by Palestinian extremists continue to rain upon Israel, and the flow of cash and weapons that are being smuggled into Gaza from Egypt is providing the terrorists the means to carry on with their destructive agenda.

The U.S. mustolate the Hamas-led government financially and diplomatically through implementing this bill. Among other provisions, Mr. Speaker, the Senate version of the bill denies visas to any officials of the Hamas-led Palestinian Authority and designates the territory controlled under Palestinian Authority as a terrorist sanctuary under the 9/11 recommendations.

Similar provisions were in the House-passed version of the Palestinian Anti-Terrorism Act. However, let us focus on what is arguably the most important concern for us, the parameters and the restrictions relating to assistance to the Palestinian Authority.

While not ideal, as we would have preferred the House text in this regard, the Senate version of the Palestinian Anti-Terrorism Act works in tandem with current U.S. law and strengthens components of the current policy.

For example, current U.S. law prohibits direct assistance to the Palestinian Authority, but it offers a broad national security waiver, and it is applicable only for the duration of the fiscal year appropriations. The Senate version of the Palestinian Anti-Terrorism Act provides a very limited waiver for:

"National Security Waiver: In general, subject to paragraph (2), the President may waive subsection (a) with respect to:

(A) the administrative and personal security costs of the Office of the President of the Palestinian Authority;

(B) the salary and expenses of the President of the Palestinian Authority to fulfill his or her duties as president, including to maintain control of the management and security of the border crossings, to foster the Middle East peace process and to promote democracy and the rule of law; and

(C) assistance for the judiciary branch of the Palestinian Authority and other entities.”

Some of this is allowed in the House version. However, the President may only exercise this authority after, and I am reading directly from the bill: “Consulting with and submitting a written policy justification to the appropriate congressional committees that it is in the national security interest of the United States to provide assistance otherwise prohibited under subsection (a); and (ii), the individual or entity for which assistance is proposed to be provided is a member of the security services controlled by, as the case may be, Hamas or any other foreign terrorist organization.”

Further, Mr. Speaker, the Senate bill also has a number of reporting requirements that further increase congressional authority and oversight.

Essentially, under this language, if the Congress does not believe that the threshold has been met, we can place an hold on the proposed funding and prevent such assistance from going to any individual or entity of the Palestinian Authority that is linked to Hamas or any other foreign terrorist organization.

We must look at the bill in its totality. Mr. Speaker, and the safeguards that it places on indirect assistance which coincide with many of those appearing in the House bill.

Further, while the Senate bill does not contain provisions concerning the PA and Palestinian-related activities at the United Nations, the Senate authors are committed to working with us next Congress to address these other components and make such changes as necessary to reflect the changing conditions on the ground.

This bill sends a strong message about the direction of the United States policy and provides a strong foundation from which to build on. I ask my colleagues to render their full support of this bill.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of S. 2370. At the outset, I want to pay tribute to my good friend, our distinguished colleague from Florida, for her extraordinarily effective leadership on this issue.

In January of this year, the Palestinian people shocked the world. Mr. Speaker, by electing Hamas to run the Palestinian Authority. So for nearly a full year we have been living with an extraordinary and alarming situation in the Israeli-Palestinian arena, a situation which the House-controlled Palestinian Authority, refuses to recognize the very existence of the other party, the State of Israel.

It is a situation in which no negotiations are possible. It is a situation in which the Palestinian leadership has isolated the Palestinian people from the international community. Worst of all, it is a situation in which the Palestinian Authority is governed by a group of assassins and kidnappers who share the vision of the Iranian President, Ahmadinejad, that Israel should be wiped off the map.

If anything, Hamas adheres to this vision more fervently and more obsessively than even Ahmadinejad does. In fact, since Hamas took office, Iran has stepped up its financial support for Hamas, and the monstrous terrorist network of Iran, Syria, Hezbollah and Hamas has become ever more intertwined. It is this frightening situation that the legislation before us today strives conscientiously to begin to address.

Mr. Speaker, as the ally and long-time unshakeable supporter of the democratic State of Israel, we should do everything we can to demonstrate the bankruptcy of Hamas’ vision and to ensure that Hamas remains too weak even to begin to implement its evil vision. The bill under consideration will help to do just that.

This legislation ensures that no U.S. taxpayer money will be used by Hamas officials and that the United States will not fund any project for which the Hamas-controlled government could take any credit. At the same time, it allows for restrictions on aid to the Palestinian Authority to be considerably eased if Hamas loses control of the government. It also ensures that we can support the President of the Palestinian Authority, Mahmoud Abbas, also known as Abu Mazen, in a prudent fashion, to advance the cause of peace and the prospect of a peacefully negotiated two-state solution. But Abu Mazen’s hold on the presidency of the Palestinian Authority is the only obstacle to Hamas’ full control of all the levers of power in Palestinian society.
Mr. Speaker, let me be clear: this bill is the Senate version of legislation that this body passed in May 2006. I was the cosponsor of that legislation, along with my good friend Congresswoman ILEANA ROS-LEHTINEN of Florida.
Our legislation passed overwhelmingly, and I will frankly acknowledge that there are aspects of the legislation we are now considering that do not full-ly satisfy me. I think, for example, that it allows the executive branch far too much leeway to aid a government in which Hamas has significant particiipation, perhaps holding posts like foreign minister or interior minister, but may not be fully independent of that government. For now, that is only a theoretical concern, but it will be a real concern if Hamas ever decides to join a national unity government along the lines Abu Mazen has been urging.
I nevertheless believe that this bill, sent to us by the Senate, is an appropriate response to our dire concerns about Hamas. It is the best we can do for now, and I believe it merits our firm support.
I also believe it is long past time for the Congress to make a legislative response to Hamas’ disturbing electoral victory. It sends a strong message to Hamas leaders that we reject their murderous mendacity that they have attempted for their refusal to recognize their neighbor, the State of Israel; it clarifies that our support for the Palestinian people is conditional on their support for a peaceful two-state solution; and it makes clear to the Palestinians that our problem is not with them, but with Hamas, both its ideology and its conduct.
A new government, and in my view that would have to be a government without any Hamas participation, can open a new era in relations with the United States and with Israel.
Our goal, Mr. Speaker, is not to punish the Palestinian people. In fact, the bill before us allows considerable scope for aid to the Palestinian people, including humanitarian assistance and support for democratization, which we hope ultimately will lead to Hamas’ peaceful political demise. I think we would all agree on continuing the U.S. tradition of dealing with the humanitarian needs of any people, including the Palestinians.
Our goal is simply to demonstrate to the Palestinians and to their government that hatred, assassination and non-recognition of neighbors is unacceptable to the civilized world and that they cannot accomplish anything if they show such contempt for the entire civilized world.
We also want to make sure that the U.S. taxpayer is not the source of one penny of aid for a government that Hamas controls, and we want to make sure that Hamas and its government are accorded absolutely no legitimacy by the United States or its representatatives. This bill does that.
Mr. Speaker, I am sickened by the fact that the Palestinians chose Hamas as their leader, and I am sickened by everything that Hamas stands for. I believe every Member of this Congress shares my views in that regard.
S. 2370 demonstrates that America will stand firm in the fight against ter-rorsim, while remaining true to the hope for a peaceful Middle East. Indeed, I hope that our action will serve as a real lever for the right policy to take against terrorists, however they take power, and on behalf of a democratic ally that is the target of the vilest threats and the most dangerous enemies of any nation in the free world today I urge all of my colleagues to support this legislation.
Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to our distinguished colleague, the gentleman from New York (Mr. WEINER).
Mr. WEINER. Mr. Speaker, I thank
Mr. LANTOS and the sponsor of the legislation.
Look, I fundamentally believe, and I have said for some time that aid to the Palestinians has not achieved any of our foreign policy goals. It hasn’t been accountable; it hasn’t gotten us a more peaceful administration there, and fundamentally, I believe that it doesn’t achieve what we seek to do in foreign aid.
I commend the sponsors of the legislation. I agree with both of them that this doesn’t go far enough. It allows for too many loopholes. Among other things, it permits the PLO, the last vestige in the thrones of the terrorist organization that passed, to continue to have a mission in New York City, in my hometown.
Let us not forget that we have provided $1.5 billion dollars in U.S. assistance to Gaza and the West Bank. We always lead this debate with our hearts rather than our heads. When the Gaza Law was signed, the United States said its citizens and taxpayers will put dollars on the barrelhead. When Oslo was signed, we said we will put dollars on the barrelhead.
Invariably, we the American people, are very generous in trying to live up to the aspirations we have for that region, despite the fact that every single time it proves to be for naught.
So I believe that this is a very important first step. But I also think it is important that people understand that democratization in the territories is a good thing. I agree with President Bush that having democracies and free, open elections are good things. But they have consequences.
Many people argue in that part of the world that because we had used foreign aid in support of so many organizations of Fattah, the Palestinian people were impelled to vote for Hamas.

When you have a campaign based on the idea that we are going to continue terrorism, we are going to refuse to acknowledge the existence of our neighbors and the voters vote for that administration, there are consequences.
One of the consequences is that the American people say we are not going to be involved.
I also cannot take the floor at this time without speaking particularly to one critic of note of late. Being a former President of the United States who gives you a vacuous place in American and world life to be someone who speaks about the important issues of the day. Unfortunately, former President Carter has turned into a polemist on this issue and an irresponsible one to say the least.
In recent appearances on television, he has gone so far, as to refer to the ‘‘Jewish lobby’’ as the reason we are not aiding Hamas and not doing more in the Middle East. He has had the audacity to suggest in a recent television appearance there has not been any Hamas terrorist attacks since 2004, ignoring the daily barrage of rockets coming into the south of Israel since Hamas took over. The missiles are being lobbed at schools and at hospitals.
I believe that there is a responsibility that former President Carter has, and he dishonors himself and dis-hones the role of former Presidents by continuing this polemic screed. We in this body and Americans who want to be peace in the Middle East, overwhelmingly support a two-state solution. However, voters in that part of the world voted for terrorists. They have to understand there are ramifications.
I thank the gentleman for yielding.
Mr. LANTOS. Mr. Speaker, we have no additional requests for time and yield back the balance of our time.
Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consider to close.
Let me just say, again, that it is always such a pleasure to work with my wonderful mentor, Mr. LANTOS, on all of these issues dealing with the Middle East, and I hope to be working with him in an even closer manner in the future. He has been a true friend. And also Chairman HYDE who has been very generous in allowing me to work with the bills from our Middle East and Central Asia Subcommittee to come to the floor of the House. And we hope that this is just the beginning of a long road to peace and security in the Middle East.
I commend the dedicated contributions that he made to the House text, and we will work on those issues in the next session.
In closing, Mr. Speaker, I would simply emphasize that this bill is but the beginning of our efforts to deny Hamas or any other foreign terrorist organization the economic resources, the political legitimacy and the excuses to pursue their threatening agenda. Hamas, and other terrorist organizations and their supporters are now put on notice.

We clearly outline in this bill the path to peace and security, requirements that include those outlined in international agreements. It is up to Hamas to heed this call. If they do not, we will return to the floor next year to address developments on the ground. Until that time, we must undertake efforts to ensure that the United States taxpayers are not directly or indirectly contributing to Hamas activities and policies.

This bill, Senate bill 2370, provides a critical tool towards such protections and safeguards. I ask my colleagues to render their full support for this bill.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of S. 2370, the Palestinian Anti-Terrorism Act.

This Senate-passed bill is light-years better than the version passed by the House, which I opposed. It focuses on the Hamas-led government and the goal of a two-state solution, with a secure Israel living side-by-side with an independent Palestinian state in peace.

While I don’t believe this legislation is necessary, as there is already a prohibition on U.S. government support to foreign terrorist organizations, I recognize the progress made in this legislation toward prioritizing on the basis of our strategic interests and maintaining flexibility in our efforts to promote a peace process between Israel and the Palestinians.

I have two hesitations: One, I hope this is not read as a signal in the region—by either side—that the United States is more interested in didactics than negotiations. Two, I hope that Section 9, related to diplomatic contacts, will be interpreted as narrowly as possible, so as to allow for contact with a Hamas-led government if it is determined that such contacts could promote Israel’s security and a peaceful two-state solution.

However, I greatly appreciate the changes made to this legislation and the flexibility shown by its sponsors in considering the concerns of many Members of Congress, the Bush administration, and outside experts. Because of this progress, I intend to support the bill.

Mr. CROWLEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of this legislation.

While this bill does not go as far as the House version, which passed overwhelmingly this past May, it still provides the Administration with the necessary tools they need to bring about real peace.

The goal of this Congress is to create a peaceful resolution to the conflict. But I want to clear that the goal of this legislation is not to create a humanitarian catastrophe but to isolate this terrorist-led government, this legislation will allow funding for the basic health needs of the Palestinian people. This cannot come about with Hamas in control of the Palestinian Authority while they continue to support terrorist operations on innocent civilians.

Hamas officials continue to endorse and carry out suicide bombing and missile strikes against our friends and ally Israel.

As long as Hamas continues to choose terrorism instead of peaceful coexistence, it will meet with financial and diplomatic isolation from the United States and its allies. I have read the statements of several groups opposed to this legislation because this will create a road block towards negotiations. What I want to know is how do you negotiate with a government who is hell bent on your destruction? Would any member of this House negotiate with al Qaeda? I hope not.

Hamas must be isolated and not coddled and that is what this legislation will do.

Hamas would rather cling to the impossible dream of the destruction of Israel than work toward a two state solution that will bring prosperity and an end to the bloodshed that has tainted this region for so many years.

Hamas refuses to change so they must be treated like the terrorist they are.

I’m sure like me, my colleagues would rather be supporting a Palestinian Authority-led government working toward a peaceful two state solution but instead we face the realities of a Hamas-led government went on the destruction of Israel.

Until this Hamas-led government recognizes Israel’s right to exist as a Jewish State, renounces violence, dismantles its terrorist infrastructure, and halts all anti-Israel incitement the United States should never provide assistance to the Palestinian Authority-led government of Hamas.

Mr. PRICE of North Carolina. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to speak about S. 2370, the Senate-passed version of the Palestinian Anti-Terrorism Act before us today.

Earlier this year, the House considered a version of this legislation. I rose in strong opposition to that bill, because it would have unfairly punished the average Palestinian citizen for the crimes of extremist Hamas leaders. It would have shut off all aid but the most narrowly defined humanitarian assistance, ending U.S. government support to non-governmental efforts to promote democracy, tolerance, and peace in the region. In short, though well-intentioned, it would have undermined our ability to stop attacks against Israel and to achieve our most important foreign policy goals in the region.

I was joined by several of my colleagues in opposing the bill. Though the House passed this flawed legislation, we were able to send a vital message: at this critical moment, we cannot afford to pull the rug out from those working for democracy and reconciliation in the region.

The Senate heeded our message, and passed a much improved bill. Specifically, the bill addresses two significant concerns we raised during the House debate.

First, the Senate bill provides the Administration far more flexibility to deliver aid to the Palestinian people and to those working for a peaceful resolution to the conflict. In addition to broader humanitarian aid, it explicitly authorizes “assistance to promote democracy, human rights, freedom of the press, non-violence, reconciliation, and peaceful co-existence.”

Second, the bill expands the Administration’s options for engaging diplomatically with Palestinian leaders not associated with Hamas, including Palestinian Authority (PA) President Mahmoud Abbas, who will be a critical ally if we are to negotiate a peace agreement.

I am greatly pleased to see the improvements in the Senate legislation, and for that reason I will support the bill’s passage. However, because events have evolved since this legislation was first considered, I want to add a few words, lest our action today send the wrong message at the wrong time.

After a summer of crisis, during which the kidnapping of an Israeli soldier led Israel to send its military into Gaza, there have been several recent positive developments. First, Israeli Prime Minister Ehud Olmert and PA President Abbas negotiated a ceasefire to end the violent confrontation in Gaza. Second, both Prime Minister Ohmert and President Abbas have recently made clear their commitment to resuming peace talks. And third, Palestinian leaders are reportedly on the verge of forming a unity government that would end Hamas’s sole control of the PA.

Passage of this legislation at this time should not be interpreted as unawareness of these positive developments or unwillingness to support them. Such progress should be rewarded with an increased U.S. commitment to work for peace in the region, not punished by the imposition of new obstacles or the imposition of new sanctions.

With that said, however, I strongly support the goals of isolating Hamas and encouraging the Palestinian leadership to renounce violence and recognize Israel’s right to exist, and practical and principal steps toward the resumption of negotiations aimed at a two-state solution. This bill would accomplish those goals and I will support it. I hope it will serve not as an endpoint but as a launchpad for reinvigorated U.S. action to support a settlement that will bring a lasting peace to Israelis and Palestinians.

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentlewoman from Florida (Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN) that the House suspend the rules and pass the Senate bill, S. 2370.

The question was taken; and (two-thirds of those voting having responded in the affirmative) the rules were suspended and the Senate bill was passed. A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

FEDERAL DEPOSIT INSURANCE ACT AMENDMENT

Mr. HENSARLING. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 6345) to make a conforming amendment to the Federal Deposit Insurance Act with respect to examinations of certain insured depository institutions, and for other purposes.

H.R. 6345

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, SECTION 1. AMENDMENT TO THE FEDERAL DEPOSIT INSURANCE ACT

Paragraph (10) of section 10(d) of the Federal Deposit Insurance Act (12 U.S.C. 4814) is amended to—
The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. HENSARLING) and the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. FRANK) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. HENSARLING. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to submit extraneous material and include extraneous material on H.R. 6345.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, Mr. HENSARLING has asked unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to submit extraneous material and include extraneous material on H.R. 6345.

Mr. HENSARLING. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong support of H.R. 6345 which makes a minor but important change to the Financial Services Regulatory Relief Act of 2006. The Regulatory Relief Act, a strong bipartisan bill which was recently signed into law, is a strong first step in reducing the excessive regulatory burden on America’s insured financial institutions in order to benefit consumers and to benefit the overall economy. This bill, which is virtually identical to the provision included in our House regulatory relief bill, which passed by a strong bipartisan vote, gives banking regulators the discretion to grant well-managed and well-capitalized institutions with good ratings an 18-month bank examination cycle rather than a 12-month cycle.

The bill that we are considering today is consistent with the goals of the Regulatory Relief Act that again was signed recently into law. Prior to passage of the Regulatory Relief Act, well-managed, well-capitalized insured depository institutions that had less than $250 million in total assets and that had an outstanding rating qualified for an 18-month exam cycle instead of the 12-month exam cycle.

In addition, the Federal banking regulators, through regulation, eligibility for the 18-month cycle to well-capitalized and well-managed institutions with good ratings, which the regulators have indeed done. The Regulatory Relief Act of 2006 included language to extend the exam cycle from 12 to 18 months only for outstanding rated institutions with assets up to $500 million but did not make a conforming change for institutions with good ratings. H.R. 6345 simply makes that parallel change.

H.R. 6345 is common sense legislation. Changing the current discretionary threshold from $250 million in assets to $500 million gives the regulators more flexibility to focus on troubled institutions, while still examining well-capitalized, well-managed institutions at least once every 18 months. Nonetheless, the legislation would not prevent a Federal banking agency from conducting an examination of any institution more frequently, if deemed necessary.

Mr. Speaker, at this time, I insert into the RECORD a December 4, 2006 letter requesting this change, signed by the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency, and finally, the Office of Thrift Supervision.

H.R. 6345, which is sponsored by Subcommittee Chairman BACHUS, as well as Chairman OXLEY and Ranking Member FRANK, gives banking regulators the discretion to grant well-managed and well-capitalized institutions with good ratings an 18-month bank examination cycle rather than a 12-month cycle.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Mr. Speaker, I join with the gentleman from Texas in urging the House to pass this bill. It is an example, I think, of how we should be flexible in our approach to regulation. Regulation plays a very important role in a sensible, capitalist economy, but it can only play that role if it is flexible and appropriate, and overregulating does damage in ways different, but still quite tangible, than underregulating.

As Members know, Mr. Speaker, some banks, depending on how they are chartered, are entirely Federal in their... regulation but some are State-chartered and are regulated by both State and Federal regulators in various ways. This bill will allow better coordination between State and Federal regulators. It will give the regulators the discretion, not the mandate, to be more flexible in the timing of regulations.

It is an example of how we should make regulation appropriate, not unduly burdensome, and therefore, I am glad to join with the gentleman from Texas in urging passage of this bill.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. HENSARLING. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I want to conclude and say again, I very much thank the ranking member for coming to the floor personally to urge passage of this legislation and to also, on a personal note, congratulate him as he will soon become the chairman of our Financial Institutions Committee. As a Republican, I did not look forward to Democrat control of this House. I do not want to be stuck with somebody, I cannot think of one I respect more than the gentleman from Massachusetts who brings unparalleled wisdom and wit to the committee. I have no doubt that the great tradition of bipartisanship that Chairman Oxley established in this committee will be further carried out under his leadership.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HENSARLING. Mr. Speaker, that is very gracious of the gentleman from Texas. I guess I should note that this may be the first of many collaborations between myself as past chairman, the gentleman from Texas, who will soon become the chairman and his role, and I congratulate him as the new chairman of the Republican Study Committee, but he is absolutely right. The current chairman, the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. OXLEY), set a very good tone for this committee of bipartisan cooperation. As I have said often, bipartisan cooperation does not mean that legitimate differences between the parties disappear. It means that we pursue those where they exist in a civil manner so that differences there do not poison our ability to work together on areas where there is no partisan difference as this one.

The gentleman from Texas has been a part of that tradition and I look forward to working with him and the other Members in that way, and I appreciate very much his kind remarks.

Mr. HENSARLING. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for his gracious comments as well.

Mr. Speaker, I urge passage of the bill and yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from New York (Mr. KUHL) and the gentleman from New York (Mr. BISHOP) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New York (Mr. KUHL).

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. KUHL of New York. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members have 5 legislative days in which to revise and extend their remarks on H. Con. Res. 343.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

There was no objection.

Mr. KUHL of New York. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H. Con. Res. 343, a resolution recognizing the 50th anniversary of the Commission on Independent Colleges and Universities.

RECOGNIZING THE 50TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE COMMISSION ON INDEPENDENT COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES

Mr. KUHL of New York. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and agree to the concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 343) recognizing the 50th anniversary of the Commission on Independent Colleges and Universities.

The Clerk read as follows:

WHEREAS the Commission on Independent Colleges and Universities represents the member campuses with more than 450,000 enrolled students, including 300,000 residents of New York; and

WHEREAS the Commission on Independent Colleges and Universities enjoys a diverse membership of independent institutions of higher education and to advance higher education public policy; and

WHEREAS the Commission on Independent Colleges and Universities produces several informative publications for students, parents, and schools about member colleges and universities, college admissions, and financial aid; and

WHEREAS the Commission on Independent Colleges and Universities is one of the largest organizations of independent sector institutions of higher education in the world; and

WHEREAS the member institutions of the Commission on Independent Colleges and Universities provide access to high-quality education and opportunity for hundreds of thousands of students; Now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate concurring): That Congress recognizes the Commission on Independent Colleges and Universities for 50 years of service and contributions to higher education and higher education public policy;

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

There was no objection.

Mr. KUHL of New York. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H. Con. Res. 343, a resolution recognizing the 50th anniversary of the Commission on Independent Colleges and Universities, and I want to thank my friend and colleague from New York (Mr. BOEHLERT) for introducing this resolution and recognizing the important role that the Commission for Independent Colleges and Universities plays in preparing New York students about their options for obtaining a postsecondary education.

This institution was founded in 1956 and incorporated in 1972, and the Commission on Independent Colleges and Universities enjoys a diverse membership with a shared goal of shaping and strengthening public policies in higher education. Its membership institutions, which include more than 100 private nonprofit institutions of higher education, enroll close to 460,000 students, including 300,000 New York residents, and award 59 percent of our State's baccalaureate degrees. Minority and 81 percent of the doctoral and first professional degrees earned in the State. In my congressional district, there are nine campuses, which include Alfred University, Buffalo State College, Hofstra University, Nazareth College, College of Rochester, Roberts Wesleyan College, Rochester Institute of Technology, St. Bonaventure College, and Saint John Fisher College.

Independent sector campuses promote diversity in their missions and academic program offerings and in their student bodies. Approximately one in four, or 80,000, full-time and part-time graduates enrolled in New York State's independent colleges and universities are considered nontraditional students. At dozens of campuses, more than one quarter of all undergraduates are age 25 or older. Sector-wide, one in four enrolled students, 26 institutions in New York alone are Asian American, African American, and/or Hispanic, nearly double the percentage of minority students who were enrolled in 1980, which was 15 percent.

The importance of independent college and university contributions to the New York economy is significant. A recent study produced by the Nonpartisan Center for Governmental Research estimates that the total annual contribution to the economy made by independent colleges and universities rose 42 percent over the past decade to $41.4 billion in 2005, up from $29 billion in 1995. This figure includes $20.8 billion in direct campus spending and $20.6 billion in spillover spending. In addition to its economic contribution to the economy, the independent campuses each year provide billions in aid to thousands of lower-income students, working to ensure that every single qualified student can earn a college degree. Access to college education will provide access to better jobs and certainly more opportunities for our young people.

The Commission on Independent Colleges and Universities also participates in a number of educational efforts. For example, the commission produces publications for students and families that provide helpful... admissions information regarding member institutions and information about financial aid programs that may assist a student in obtaining a college education. Recently, over 500,000 copies of these documents were provided to New York high school guidance counselors and principals, in addition to public libraries and high schools in neighboring States.

Mr. Speaker, over the past 50 years the Commission on Independent Colleges and Universities has provided invaluable value to New York’s families and institutions. It is for that reason and all the others that I have articulated here today that I urge my colleagues to honor the 50th anniversary of this important organization and support House Concurrent Resolution 343.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. BISHOP of New York. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I rise in strong support of House Resolution 343. But before I speak on the resolution, I would just like to say a few words about the author of the resolution, my friend and colleague and fellow New Yorker, Congressman BOEHLERT.

Congressman BOEHLERT, during your time in Congress you have been a fair and open-minded public servant; you have been a model of bipartisanship. You have been an outstanding voice for the Science Committee and for the scientific community, and I wish you good luck and congratulations in your future endeavors.

I rise in strong support of House Resolution 343. This bipartisan resolution recognizes the 50th anniversary of the Commission on Independent Colleges and Universities. Founded in 1956, the Commission on Independent Colleges and Universities is a statewide association representing the public policy interests of more than 100 independent colleges and universities in New York State.

The private colleges and universities of New York award 56 percent of the baccalaureate degrees, 71 percent of the master's degrees, and 87 percent of the professional degrees earned in New York State. Over 460,000 students in New York are enrolled in independent higher education, which comprises 38 percent of overall enrollment in 109 independent colleges in New York State. Collectively, these campuses employ over 156,000 New Yorkers and generate more than $40 billion annually of economic activity within their communities.

Before coming to Congress, I was lucky enough to work for 29 years as a member institution of CICU, and thus I have had the opportunity to see firsthand its effective and unified approach to ensuring access, quality, and diversity.

As a result of CICU's relentless advocacy, New York’s students have seen increases in both the Tuition Assistance Program and the Bundy Aid program, both of which are New York-based financial aid programs that fill a vital need in both student aid and in institutional aid.

In Congress, I have found CICU and its president, Abe Lackman, and his staff to be a valuable resource on higher education, keeping me abreast of trends and concerns of the New York higher education community.

The students and private colleges of New York are lucky to have CICU advocating on their behalf in both Albany and Washington. I would like to personally congratulate CICU on their 50th anniversary, and I look forward to working with them during the next session of Congress on ways to improve college access and affordability.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. KUHL of New York. Mr. Speaker, at this time I would like to yield as much time as he may consume to the distinguished Member and colleague of mine from New York (Mr. BOEHLERT).

(MR. BOEHLERT asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BOEHLERT. Mr. Speaker, I thank my generous colleague for yielding me that time, and I want to thank my colleagues on both sides of the aisle for their kind words. It has been a great privilege to serve in this institution, and one of the things I take special pride in is my friendships across the center divide. So I thank you most sincerely.

I rise today to recognize the 50th anniversary of the Commission of Independent Colleges and Universities. Fifty years ago, half a century, the commission was established in my home State of New York with the goal of strengthening private, not-for-profit higher education institutions, a goal I wholeheartedly support and have worked tirelessly to achieve.

New York has a long and proud tradition of higher education, and the CICU has worked day after day, week after week to improve and strengthen that legacy.

Since 1956, enrollment in the independent sector has doubled from 225,000 to nearly a half a million today, 460,000. The 109 independent colleges and universities that make up the commission are spread throughout New York State and the entire educational system is supported by several of our Nation's most notable institutions, including Columbia, NYU, Cornell, RPI, Hamilton, and many others, including, and pardon my understandable pride, the best of the lot, my alma mater, Utica College.

Together, these institutions award over half of all undergraduate and three-quarters of all graduate degrees in New York, as well as training almost 90 percent of our professional students. That is quite a record of achievement.

As the lead sponsor of this resolution, I thank my colleagues from New York for joining me in honoring the Commission on Independent Colleges and Universities. I am confident that CICU will continue to help improve educational opportunities throughout New York State and the Nation for many years to come, and that is one of the most worthy of goals.

Mr. BISHOP of New York. Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. KUHL of New York. Likewise, Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from New York (Mr. KUHL) that the House suspend the rules and agree to the concurrent resolution, H. Con. Res. 343.

The question was taken; and (two-thirds of those voting having responded in the affirmative) the rules were suspended and the concurrent resolution was agreed to.

Motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

TRUMAN SCHOLARSHIP FUND MODERNIZATION ACT

Mr. KUHL of New York. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 6206) to revise the calculation of interest on investments of the Harry S. Truman Memorial Scholarship Fund.

The Clerk read as follows:

H.R. 6206 Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the “Truman Scholarship Fund Modernization Act”.

SECTION 2. REVISION OF INVESTMENT PROCEDURE.

Section 10 of the Harry S Truman Memorial Scholarship Act (20 U.S.C. 2009) is amended—

(1) by striking subsection (b) and inserting the following:

"(b) INVESTMENT OF AMOUNTS APPOPRIATED.—"

“(1) At the request of the Board, it shall be the duty of the Secretary of the Treasury to invest in the United States government obligations appropriate to the fund. Such investments may be made only in the interest-bearing obligations of the United States issued directly to the fund.

“(2) The purposes for which obligations of the United States may be issued under chapter 31 of title 31 are hereby extended to authorizing the issuance of special obligations directly to the fund. Such special obligations shall bear interest at a rate equal to the average rate of interest, computed as to the month of the calendar month next preceding the date of such issue, borne by all marketable interest-bearing obligations of the United States then forming a part of the public debt; except that where such average rate is not a multiple of one-eighth of 1 per centum, the rate of interest of such special obligations shall be the multiple of one-eighth of 1 per centum next lower than such average rate. All requests of the Board to the Secretary of the Treasury provided for in this section shall be binding upon the Secretary"; and (2) by striking subsection (c) and inserting the following:

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from New York (Mr. KUHL) and the gentleman from New York (Mr. BISHOP) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New York (Mr. KUHL).

Mr. KUHL of New York. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on H.R. 6206.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

There was no objection.

Mr. KUHL of New York. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I rise in support of H.R. 6206, a bill to revise the calculation of interest on investments in the Harry S. Truman Memorial Scholarship Fund.

The Harry S. Truman Memorial Scholarship Fund was signed into law by President Ford in 1974, created with the purpose of awarding scholarships to college juniors who, and I quote, “demonstrate the capacity to assume the mantle of leadership in our political system.” These individuals are among our Nation’s best and brightest, and many of them have gone on to provide real leadership within our government and within our institutions.

I am a strong supporter of this program, and I want to thank all of those who helped us get this bill to the floor today: Chairman MCKEON and the Education and the Workforce Committee, Representatives BOEHNER and BLUNT, and all of their staffs.

The bill would simply allow the board of trustees of the Harry S. Truman Scholarship Foundation, instead of the Secretary of the Treasury, to choose the type of interest that would be received as a yield on the bonds issued by the Truman Scholarship Fund.

Other established and highly accountable programs have already had this minor change in their discretion; for example, the James Madison Memorial Fellowship Foundation and the John C. Stennis Center for Public Service Training and Development.

This foundation, the Harry S. Truman Memorial Scholarship Fund, is a living memorial to our 33rd President. And it has also become an emblematic program of pro-moval toward educational opportunity and to encourage them to be educated for citizenship and political responsibility and to assume the mantle of leadership in our political process.

Every year, hundreds of college juniors compete for what amounts to approximately 80 awards. The rigorous selection process requires the candidates to have a strong record of public service as well as a policy proposal that addresses a particular issue facing our nation. These individuals are among our Nation’s best and brightest, and many of them have gone on to provide real leadership within our government and within our institutions.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 6206, the Truman Scholarship Fund Modernization Act. It closes an important loophole in our existing law, and I want to thank all of us who helped us get this bill to the floor today: Chairman MCKEON and the Education and the Workforce Committee, Representatives BOEHNER and BLUNT, and all of their staffs.

This program is an extraordinary success, and this bill provides it... greater flexibility in generating the one source of revenue it has. We think that this program is very important. We think that this change is essential. We think that this is an important commitment for this Congress to make to cultivate the leadership of the future in public service.

I salute the gentleman for leading this effort to pass this bill on the floor. I am privileged to have introduced it with the idea that this one small change can do a great deal to promote greater leadership not only in this institution but throughout our political process and throughout our governmental and nongovernmental institutions.

I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting this legislation.

Mr. BISHOP of New York. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. KUHL of New York. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. AKIN).

Mr. BISHOP. Mr. Speaker, I am one of the two Congressmen who serves on the board of this Truman Scholarship fund. As has been explained here today, it is a very good use of money to help students obtain these different scholarships to prepare them for work in public service.

The problem is that the principal cannot be invested in a very flexible kind of way. That is why this is a modernization act, to allow us to use those funds. I think it is completely noncontroversial. I serve with a Member of the other party on that board. Everybody, as far as I know, is in agreement that this modernization needs to take place. It is going to result in more money for scholarships, and people will be better prepared for public service. It seems like everybody wins, and so I am a strong supporter. I urge my colleagues to support H.R. 6206.

Mr. BISHOP of New York. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. KUHL of New York. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members be allowed to revise and extend their remarks on the legislation under consideration.

Mr. HUNTER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members be allowed to control the time for purposes of debate.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from California (Mr. HUNTER) and the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. SKELTON) will each control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from California.

Mr. HUNTER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members be allowed to control the time for purposes of debate.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?
not mandated by the Constitution. It is our job to build the defense budget of the United States.

Let me just say, Mr. Speaker, we do that. I think we do that very effectively. I think this great bill, this $532 billion defense budget, is a reflection of that. It was put together by my committee, the Armed Services Committee, Democrats and Republicans, and by the gentleman from Florida's Appropriations Subcommittee on Defense who do such a good job.

Let me give you one example of what we did, one thing that might perjoratively be called earmarks by people who think that somehow what the administration sends over is sacrosanct and what we add is somehow an illegitimate addition.

We had the Army and United States Marine Corps come to us this past spring after we were putting our budget together after the President's recommendation had come over, and they said they needed to have some money to reset the United States Army and Marine Corps, largely because of that tough, harsh theater in Iraq and Afghanistan, and that means repairing the tanks, trucks, aircraft and all of the other equipment that you need for warfighting. We need wherewithal, the additional money to fix that fire engine so it can go back in the firehouse and be ready for the next emergency, whether it is the $11.7 of this country, the Marine Corps, special operations, United States Army, United States Navy, United States Air Force.

Mr. Young and I in our committees listened to the United States Army and to the Marine Corps. We said, come in and you lay out for us everything that you need to get our forces ready to fight again so they are reset. That "reset" is a term of art.

They gave us a bill, $27.7 billion for the Army, $11.7 for the Marine Corps. We had to take the President's budget which only funded a part of that; we looked at the supplemental which only funded a part of that, and we looked at the balance. We took that balance and we added every single dime that was identified by our warfighting leaders as something that they needed in combat, and we added that to the President's budget. I guess you could call that a $30 billion earmark. That was a congressional initiative that exactly describes what that is, that is charged to us by the United States Constitution and how we discharge that duty.

Let me give you a few other congressional initiatives. One reason why I support this bill, incidentally, and it is fine with me because I put my initiatives on the Internet and if people want to look at them and see what we add, that is great.

Let me tell you some of the initiatives that I added and I asked Mr. Young to add in his bill: jammers, jammers that protect our Armed Forces, when they are dismounted, against roadside bombs that are electronically triggered from remote areas that were not in the administration's budget, we added those. So jammers that protect the lives of our soldiers, sailors, airmen and marines, we added, congressional initiatives.

Body armor, extra body armor, more Humvees that have the thick armor that keeps the fragments from these IEDs, these roadside bombs. We put in things that are important for the warfighters of this country.

Mr. Speaker, I would say that I am here to reaffirm our constitutional right to do things of the defense budget, but to do the entire budget; and what the administration recommends is the edges. If they didn't come over with a recommended budget, we could build and we are totally equipped to build this budget from the ground up. We have the expertise to do it, Democrat and Republican, and we could do it from the ground up.

Having said that, I support this bill which says that the Department of Defense has the right to give this Congress its plan on their ratings on what congressional initiatives have requested and placed into the bill; and from my personal perspective, that is fine with me. I put mine on the Internet for the world to see.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. SOUDER. Mr. Speaker, before making my opening statement, I now yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from California (Mr. HUNTER), Chairman of the Appropriations Subcommittee on Appropriations.

Mr. HUNTER. Mr. Speaker, out of deference to his leadership and longtime activity in this field, Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I will not use the gentleman's yielding, and I understand his interest in this bill, but I am opposed to this bill. I am opposed to this bill.

If it were simply a bill requiring that the President identify all congressional earmarks, if I had no problem with that. As a matter of fact, the Defense Subcommittee identifies all congressional earmarks, if you would like to use that term, in the report that we publish along with the bill itself.

But here is what offends me about this bill. This bill would say to the Department of Defense, you have to look at all the initiatives by the Congress and then issue a report card and the report card would say it gets an A, it gets a B, it gets a C, it gets a D, and I don't want the Pentagon having to spend all that time grading the work that we in the Congress do.

I have cited the Constitution many times, and I am going to do it again today. Article I, Section 9, Chairman HUNTER referred to it generally. It says: "No Money shall be drawn from the Treasury, but in Consequence of Appropriations made by Law." Not made by budget requests from the White House but made by law. There is another part of that sentence that people tend to ignore. It says: "and a regular Statement and Account of the Receipts and Expenditures of all public Money shall be published from time to time." And we do that and the administration does it . . . sometimes. Read this Constitution from cover to cover. You will not find anything in this Constitution that says Congress can only appropriate money that has been requested by the President. Nothing in this Constitution precludes that. Article I, Section 9, however, says the President cannot spend any money that has not been appropriated by law.
This is not a good bill. It flies in the face of the Constitution, and it adds burdens to the Defense Department to grade us on a report card for the work that we do.

One final point. Chairman HUNTER mentions that we need a so-called bridge fund for the war in Iraq. This Congress, this House of Representatives, your Appropriations Committee asked and asked over and over again from the Department of Defense, ‘How much do we want in this $70 billion?’ To this day we are waiting for a formal answer. So Congress had to take the initiative and determine by dealing with the services themselves what was needed in that $70 billion bridge fund, and we did it and we did a good job at it.

This bill is not a good bill. I hope you will vote ‘no.’

Mr. SKELTON. Mr. Speaker, I yield back my time.

Mr. SOUDER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to thank our Republican leadership for bringing this important bill to the floor today. At a time when our Nation is fighting wars in Iraq and Afghanistan as well as waging a global war on terror, we must ensure that every defense dollar we allocate is well spent on programs, equipment, and other initiatives that support our troops in winning the battle and advancing our mission of national defense. We cannot afford to be wasteful in our spending. Our freedom and the lives of our men and women in uniform are on the line if we waste or misappropriate funding.

The bill before us today, the Defense Spending Report Card Act, has already passed the Senate two times as amendments to the 2007 Department of Defense appropriations and authorization bills. The first amendment passed on voice vote, and the second amendment received overwhelming bipartisan support with only one Senator voting against it, 96-1, and unanimous in the Senate. Unfortunately, the amendments were stripped out in conference. But today we have an opportunity in the House to pass similar legislation in a bipartisan way that will send a message to both our constituents and our troops overseas that we are serious about fully funding our military needs and improving our accountability and transparency to the appropriations process.

H.R. 6375 is quite simple. It requires the Department of Defense to annually report, number one, the total cost of spending initiatives in defense appropriations bills; two, the purpose of these initiatives; and, three, an analysis of the usefulness of each initiative to advancing the goals of the Department of Defense. While there are no requirements directing what Congress must report, this proposal will provide Members of Congress with a helpful tool by which to determine the value and cost effectiveness of each defense spending initiative. This transparency will also encourage greater accountability in the funding process, which voters in both parties will truly appreciate.

In recent months we have seen the potential for cost overruns can result from a closed-door favoritism approach to government spending. Most people will agree that a little sunshine on the Federal appropriations process, as well as the authorizing process, and, by the way, this bill covers any House initiative that requires the Department of Defense to spend money, is always a good thing; and this bill takes an important step towards that goal. We should not be afraid of transparency but, rather, support it for the benefit of our troops and the integrity of the Congress.

Again, let me thank our leadership and Chairman HUNTER for bringing this bill to the floor.

Thank you very much.

Mr. Speaker, I rise to address a few other questions that have been raised by many of our distinguished leaders here. My position is actually closer to Chairman HUNTER’s position, which is I support this bill as does Chairman HUNTER and I appreciate what would be called earmark or congressional narratives. I, in fact, have many defense contractors in my district. I annually make requests to the Appropriations Committee. I work with the defense authorizations committee. In fact, one contractor has a facility in my district. I have argued with the Department of Defense about what they have as their priorities. I absolutely believe Congress has the right to initiate whatever spending we so choose. We have the right to override the Department of Defense. We have a right to plus-up the Department of Defense. And, by the way, anything that is in the President’s budget that comes to us we can plus-up, it isn’t covered by the report card. But I believe in transparency. I release every request I make. I defend publicly every request I make.

This bill is very simple. It is about transparency. It isn’t about whether or not we are going to do congressional initiatives. Of course we are. If Chairman HUNTER and our ranking member and soon-to-be leader of Armed Services, Mr. SKELTON, hadn’t fought the Defense spending battles, sometimes the Defense Department does not support the troops in the field. In the Appropriations Committee sometimes they appropriate things that aren’t needed, but there is nothing to fear then. If you can defend it, that is the general in the field and that the military experts believe it is a better bill, why would you be afraid of transparency?

Now, to the argument of report cards, we do report cards. We do report cards and it doesn’t take millions and millions of dollars and hours and hours to do report cards. And we have done report cards on multiple things over in the Government Reform Committee. We have done it in other agencies. It is a way that we can force a public measurement and a public debate about how contracts are given. Should they be given just on the basis of what is in your district or should they have a national merit? Can you defend it on a national merit? When we debate which kind of planes to move to, whether we go to more this kind of carrier or that kind of carrier, how many ships we build, should it be driven by the Navy or by the shipbuilding district and whether one place is going to close down versus another, that should be a public debate. And if the administration and the House disagree, let us force that debate clear tool to determine the effectiveness at the end of the day, this bill is very, very simple: Do you believe in more transparency or don’t you?

I appreciated my distinguished friend SOUDER’s position requiring the Inspector General in Iraq. Yes, we need more Inspectors General in general. That is just part of the problem. We have lost the confidence, both parties, of the American people about the process. Those of us who are concerned what is best for our troops, what is best to protect our country have nothing to fear, absolutely nothing to fear from transparency.

Mr. GARRETT of New Jersey. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to speak today in favor of Mr. SOUDER’s commonsense legislation. As defense spending takes up a great percentage of Federal spending each year and is perhaps the most complex spending issue we confront in Congress, it is time for us to have a clear tool to determine the effectiveness of the billions of dollars we spend each year.

One of the difficulties in accounting for defense spending is just trying to figure out the total amount of funds spent. Representative SOUDER’s legislation will require the Department of Defense to provide to us a clear number of how much is spent each year.

Earlier this year, in my position as a member of the Budget Committee, I wrote Secretary Rumsfeld decrying the poor condition of financial management. When this administration took office, DOD announced it was adding $100 million to the Department of Defense England testified before the committee, I wrote Secretary of Defense Rumsfeld mandating that departments must be conducted and critical bill and urge its immediate passage.
Mr. SOUDER. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from California (Mr. HUNTER) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 6375. The motion was taken.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. In the opinion of the Chair, two-thirds of those voting have responded in the affirmative.

Mr. SKELTON. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX and the Chair’s prior announcement, further proceedings on this question will be postponed.

NAMING OF ARMED FORCES READINESS CENTER IN HONOR OF CAPTAIN WILLIAM WYLIE GALT

Mr. HUNTER. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the Senate bill (S. 3759) to name the Armed Forces Readiness Center in Great Falls, Montana, in honor of Captain William Wylie Galt, a recipient of the Congressional Medal of Honor.

S. 3759

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, that:

SECTION 1. NAMING OF ARMED FORCES READINESS CENTER IN GREAT FALLS, MONTANA, IN HONOR OF CAPTAIN WILLIAM WYLIE GALT, A RECIPIENT OF THE CONGRESSIONAL MEDAL OF HONOR.

The Armed Forces Readiness Center in Great Falls, Montana, shall be known and deemed to be the “Captain William Wylie Galt Great Falls Armed Forces Readiness Center”. Any reference in a law, map, regulation, document, paper, or other record of the United States to such facility shall be deemed to be a reference to the Captain William Wylie Galt Great Falls Armed Forces Readiness Center.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from California (Mr. HUNTER) and the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. SKELTON) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from California.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. HUNTER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on the legislation under consideration.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

Mr. HUNTER. I would also at this time like to yield the balance of my time, after I finish my opening remarks, to the gentleman from Montana (Mr. and Mrs. HUNTER), who was the sponsor of this bill, and I ask unanimous consent that he be allowed to control the time for purposes of debate.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from California (Mr. HUNTER) may continue.

Mr. HUNTER. Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Mr. Speaker, this is one of those bills that it is good to go out on as we close down this session of Congress. This is an excellent initiative by my good friend from Montana, Mr. HUNTER, to name the Armed Forces Readiness Center in Great Falls, Montana, in honor of Captain William Wylie Galt, who was a recipient of the Congressional Medal of Honor.

Mr. Speaker, we just had a hearing under the leadership of JOHNNY MCWHIG, who is the outgoing chairman of the Personnel Subcommittee in Armed Services on the Medal of Honor and on the criteria for the award. And we had some initiatives, some good discussions with our service representatives on ensuring that we have the appropriate guidelines for giving this great medal. And it was an uplifting hearing, because it is a hearing in which the acts of Americans who went far beyond the call of duty were reviewed and were discussed.

Mr. Speaker, I think anytime somebody passes this, walks by the Armed Forces Readiness Center in Great Falls, Montana, and they see that it is named after him, they are going to be reminded, perhaps inspired, of his heroism.

The Congressional Medal of Honor is a symbol of adherence to duty, honor and country; and I think it is absolutely appropriate that we name, with this dwindling pool of Medal of Honor recipients, and the gentleman, as a veteran of the United States Army knows, we now have a very small pool of living Medal of Honor winners. So I think that when we name our buildings and our institutions and installations after Medal of Honor recipients, it is a point of inspiration for young people that will be enduring.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. SKELTON. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I fully support Senate bill 3759. It establishes an Armed Forces Readiness Center in Great Falls, Montana, as a memorial to Captain William Wylie Galt. And reading his resume, reading his citation, receiving the Medal of Honor, it is one of courage and selfless sacrifice. There is no question in my mind this is a very good gesture, as it should be more often, to those who exhibited the highest type of valor for our country.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. REHBERG. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I thank the gentleman for his kind words. And there are times in this responsibility of being a Congressman that sometimes you forget why you are here. It gives me tingly up the middle of my spine to think about the Galt family and how much they have contributed to the State of Montana and to this Nation over the years.

This legislation would name the Armed Forces Readiness Center in Great Falls, Montana, in honor of Captain William Wylie Galt, a recipient of the Congressional Medal of Honor, as was said.

The Armed Forces Readiness Center will honor the Army National Guard and the Army Reserve units who have spent recent tours in Operation Iraqi Freedom.

William Galt was born on December 19 of 1919 in Geyser, Montana. He was commissioned as a 2nd lieutenant, Infantry, through the ROTC program upon graduation from Montana State University in the spring of 1942. I sometimes give Mr. HUNTER a hard time because he did in fact attend the University of Montana for 1 year. And Missoula has not been the same since he left.

Captain Galt was in Italy during World War II. For conspicuous gallantry above and beyond the call of duty, Captain Galt, at a particularly critical period during two unsuccessful attacks by his battalion, of his own volition went forward and ascertained just how critical the situation was. He volunteered, at the risk of his life, personally, to lead the battalion against the objective.

When the lone remaining tank destroyer refused to go forward, Captain Galt jumped on the tank destroyer and ordered it to attack. As the tank destroyer moved forward, followed by a company of riflemen, Captain Galt manned the .30 caliber machine gun in the turret of the tank destroyer, located and directed fire on an enemy anti-tank gun, and destroyed it.

Nearing the enemy positions, Captain Galt stood fully exposed in the turret, ceaselessly firing his machine gun and tossing hand grenades into the enemy’s zigzag series of trenches despite the hail of sniper and machine gun bullets ricocheting off the tank destroyer.

As the tank destroyer moved, Captain Galt so maneuvered it that 40 of the enemy were trapped in one of the trenches. When they refused to surrender, Captain Galt pressed the trigger of the machine gun and dispatched every one of them.

A few minutes later, an 88-millimeter shell struck the tank destroyer and Captain Galt fell mortally wounded across his machine gun. He had personally killed 40 Germans and wounded many more.

Captain Galt pitted his judgment and superb courage against overwhelming odds, exemplifying the highest measure of devotion to his country and the finest traditions of the U.S. Army.

His courage and unrivaled determination to win for his country led to a win for America that day, but at the cost of his own life. William Galt is a true example of not only a Montana hero, but... an American hero. We are proud to honor him and the great sacrifice he gave to this country.

The U.S. Army Reserve Center on Gore Hill was dedicated to Captain Galt in 1968. Unfortunately, in 2005, the Base Closure Commission, BRAC, decided to permanently close Galt Hall U.S. Army Reserve Center on Gore Hill in Great Falls, Montana and relocate units to a new Armed Forces Readiness Center near Malmstrom Air Force Base across town.

I believe it is a fitting tribute to name the U.S. Armed Forces Readiness Center in Great Falls, Montana, the Captain William Wylie Galt Great Falls Armed Forces Readiness Center. It gives me a great deal of pleasure to have this legislation passed.

Mr. SKELTON, Mr. HUNTER, thank you for your patience, thank you for your cooperation. Thanks for all that you did.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. SKELTON. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from California (Mr. HUNTER) that the House suspend the rules and pass the Senate bill, S. 3759.

The question was taken; and (two-thirds of the Members voting being responded in the affirmative) the rules were suspended and the Senate bill was passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

EXPRESSION OF SENSE OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES THAT THERE SHOULD BE ESTABLISHED AN IRISH-AMERICAN HERITAGE MONTH

Mr. SOUDER. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and agree to the resolution (H. Res. 733) expressing the sense of the House of Representatives that an Irish-American Heritage Month should be established; and that the people of the United States should observe such a month with appropriate ceremonies, celebrations, and activities.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. SOUDER) and the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. DAVIS) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Indiana.

GENTLEMAN LEAVES

Mr. SOUDER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks and insert illustrative material on the resolution under consideration.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Indiana?

There was no objection.

Mr. SOUDER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

From the very beginning, the United States has been changed for the better by its citizens of Irish descent. Nineteen Presidents, including George Washington, were signers of the Declaration of Independence were of Irish ancestry; 263 recipients of the Congressional Medal of Honor were born in Ireland, as was John Barry, the first President, George Washington; whereas Irish-born Commodore John Barry was the first flag officer of the United States Navy and is enshrined by many as the ‘Father of the American Navy’; whereas at least 263 recipients of the Congressional Medal of Honor proudly claim Ireland as their birthplace, making Irish-born individuals the largest group of foreign-born recipients of the prestigious honor; whereas Irish-American social reformer Elizabeth Cady Stanton successfully championed women’s voting rights, which were granted in 1893 by the 19th amendment to the Constitution; whereas pioneers of the American space program were of Irish descent, including Kathryn Sullivan, the first woman to walk in space, and Christa Corrigan McAuliffe, America’s first school teacher to bravely engage in space exploration, who ultimately gave her life to knowledge about the surrounding universe; whereas more than 44 million American citizens are of Irish descent; whereas each year, on March 17th, the United States and its citizens humbly observe St. Patrick’s Day in honor of the patron saint of Ireland; and whereas the Irish and their descendants have resolved throughout the existence of the United States, contributing significantly to the enrichment of all aspects of life in this Nation, including military and public service, science, education, agriculture, industry, dance, music, theatre, film, literature, visual composition, business, technology, athletics, and leadership. Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That it is the sense of the House of Representatives that

(1) an Irish-American Heritage Month should be established; and

(2) the people of the United States should observe such a month with appropriate ceremonies, celebrations, and activities.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. SOUDER) and the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. DAVIS) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Indiana.

Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to support this resolution. I yield back the balance of my time.
The question was taken; and (two-thirds of those voting having responded in the affirmative) the rules were suspended and the resolution was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

RECESS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 12(a) of rule I, the Chair declares the House in recess subject to the call of the Chair.

Accordingly (at 1 o'clock and 48 minutes p.m.), the House stood in recess subject to the call of the Chair.

AFTER RECESS

The recess having expired, the House was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. SHIMKUS) at 2 o'clock and 14 minutes p.m.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, the Chair will recognize the gentleman from Arkansas (Mr. ROSS) and the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. KIRK) each for 45 minutes without prejudice to the resumption of legislative business.

There was no objection.

BLUE DOG COALITION

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the previous order of the House, the gentleman from Arkansas (Mr. Ross) is recognized for 45 minutes.

Mr. ROSS. Mr. Speaker, I rise this afternoon on behalf of the 37-member strong, fiscally conservative, Democratic Blue Dog Coalition, a group of conservative Democrats that are united with a common cause, and that is, restoring common sense and fiscal discipline to our Nation’s government.

As we spend the next 45 minutes or so, Mr. Speaker, talking about the fiscally conservative Democratic Blue Dog Coalition’s 12-point plan for meaningful budget reform, and as we talk about our plan for accountability within our government, I would remind you, Mr. Speaker, that you can e-mail us your comments or concerns at bluedog@mail.house.gov. Again, Mr. Speaker, if you have any comments, questions or concerns of us, you can e-mail us at bluedog@mail.house.gov.

Mr. Speaker, the Federal debt is the largest this Nation has ever seen, some $36.6 trillion. This Nation has had one of the largest deficits year after year after year since 2001. I believe the American people are ready for us to put an end to the partisan bickering and clean up the mess in Washington to restore common sense and fiscal discipline to our Nation’s government.

The projected deficit for fiscal year 2007 is $350 billion, at least that is what they tell us, but not true. The real deficit for fiscal year 2007 is $545 billion. You see, when the people in this House, when the Republican leadership tells us that the deficit that is projected for fiscal year 2007 is $350 billion, that is counting the money they are borrowing from the Social Security trust fund, with absolutely no provision on how or when or where the money is going to come from to pay that debt back.

I am starting to understand now why, when I first got to Congress in 2001 and I wrote that bill to tell the politicians in Washington to keep their hands off the Social Security trust fund, I am beginning now to understand why the Republican leadership refused to give us a hearing or a vote on that legislation.

Last year, the deficit was about $300 billion. In fact, Mr. Speaker, if you look with me here, you can see in 2004, for the first time ever in our Nation’s history, $413 billion; the second largest deficit ever in our Nation’s history in 2005, $378 billion. In 2005, it was $318 billion, and for 2006, there was much to do made out of the fact that the only one had a deficit of $296 billion. Only $296 billion? Mr. Speaker, that is an enormous debt. That is a lot of hot checks that have been written by our Nation.

Let me put it in perspective. Those are the four largest deficits ever in our Nation’s history, the fiscal year 2007 deficit projected at $350 billion, but let me put it in perspective. The total national debt from 1789 until 2000 was $5.67 trillion, but by 2010 the total national debt will have increased to $10.88 trillion. This is a doubling of the 211-year debt in just 10 years. Interest payments alone are already getting in the way. Interest payments alone are already $500 million on the debt we have already got in interest payments alone.

I want to make that clear because I know the American people are sitting there and saying, is he saying what I think he is saying, that since 1789, at the birth of this country, through all the way up to 2001, we have borrowed less money from foreign governments than we have borrowed in the past 5 years? That is a dangerous situation for us to be in. It is dangerous to the future of our country, and we must move to correct this situation.

When we look at Japan, we are borrowing nearly $700 billion from Japan. We are borrowing $368 billion from China, and we are borrowing $117 billion from Taiwan. We are borrowing over $2 trillion from foreign governments and foreign banks, foreign financial institutions. In the last 5 years, we borrowed more money from foreign banks than we borrowed in the whole history of this country up to 2001.

We are borrowing over $2 trillion from foreign banks, foreign financial institutions. In the last 5 years, we borrowed more money from foreign banks than we borrowed in the whole history of this country up to 2001.

I want to make that clear because I know the American people are sitting there and saying, is he saying what I think he is saying, that since 1789, at the birth of this country, through all the way up to 2001, we have borrowed less money from foreign governments than we have borrowed in the past 5 years? That is a dangerous situation for us to be in. It is dangerous to the future of our country, and we must move to correct this situation.

When we look at Japan, we are borrowing nearly $700 billion from Japan. We are borrowing $368 billion from China, and we are borrowing $117 billion from Taiwan. We are borrowing over $2 trillion from foreign banks, foreign financial institutions. In the last 5 years, we borrowed more money from foreign banks than we borrowed in the whole history of this country up to 2001.

spending our money and putting our priorities where they count the most. The American people are looking for help in terms of getting more of this money into their pockets, being able to help them with critical issues of education, health care, and security.

So, for a little bit today, I want to talk about what we are doing as Democrats, and I thank God because this is the first time that I am standing and you are standing in this floor on the House floor representatives with this debate when we will say to the American people as Democrats, thank you, thank you for giving Democrats an opportunity to lead this Congress. We are grateful and we are humbled because we understand the levity and the seriousness of this responsibility that the American people have given us to lead. Nowhere is that more crucial than in taking care of their money and taking care of our fiscal responsibility and being responsible for it.

So I think it is very important that as we talk this afternoon about this responsibility to let the American people know where we are going to work quickly to make sure we are paying attention to their needs, and one of the first things we are going to start is to raise the minimum wage.

Why is that important, people say, the minimum wage? It is more than just a symbolic gesture. It is a timely gesture. We have had the minimum wage since 1938. There has never been a long period where we have not adjusted the minimum wage as in the period since the last raising of the minimum wage. So it is important for us to show the American people, at least they will see, they are paying attention to us. Yes, we will pay attention to the world; yes, we are very much concerned about what is happening in the world; but we must immediately send a message to the American people that we care about you. We care about America first. That is why the importance of raising this minimum wage is so important. It sends that message. The American people say, oh, okay, I think they get it.

Mr. ROSS. Mr. Speaker, I believe an important message was sent on election night, and that message was that the American people are ready for us to put an end to the partisan bickering, to work together to clean up the mess and to put people's interests above special interests.

That is why I am real proud that in the first 100 hours under Speaker-elect Pelosi, she has announced that in the first 100 hours we will reestablish PAYGO rules on the floor of the United States House. There have been 1430 PAYGO means pay-as-you-go, and it is one of the 12 points for meaningful reform that the Blue Dog Coalition has put forth. We are very grateful that she has included it in one of her objectives to accomplish in the first 100 hours.

What PAYGO means is that if you have got a new Federal program you want to fund or if you have got a tax for folks earning over $400,000 a year that you want to cut, you have got to show us where you are going to pay for it. You cannot just pass laws that cut revenue or increase spending without showing where the money is going to come from, because we know where it has been coming from foreign central banks and foreign investors, as the gentleman from Georgia so eloquently pointed out.

This administration and this Congress in the past 5 1/2 years have borrowed more money from foreign central banks and foreign investors than the previous 42 Presidents combined. Reinstating the PAYGO rules that were in place on the floor of this House when President Clinton gave us the first balanced budget in about 40 years, every year from 1998 through 2001, PAYGO rules were in place; then they will be in place again on the floor of this House, which is the first step toward restoring fiscal discipline and common sense to our Nation's government.

I yield back to the gentleman from Georgia.

Mr. SCOTT of Georgia. You are absolutely right, and it is so important I think as we talk this afternoon that the American people are well aware that they are in good shape with Democrats in control of the Congress.

Let me go on from the minimum wage. I mean, that is important. We are going to get that done and we are going to do it in a bipartisan way. We will reach out to the Republicans. We will work with Republicans. That is another thing that the American people want to see us do.

I can't tell you the number of times on the campaign trail that people will come up to me and say, Congressman SCOTT, for goodness sake, can you all get along? Can you just get along? To paraphrase our friend in California, can we just get along? And we are going to do that.

So we find common ground on the minimum wage and quickly pass that. Then we can find common ground, and let me just say something about the minimum wage as we go forward so people will know. We are talking about pay-as-you-go; we are talking about keeping financial and fiscal responsibility and making us accountable. This minimum wage is totally absorbed by the private sector, by the employment sector. We are simply making the adjustment to give a due raise to go in line with inflation and the other needs to bring the minimum wage up to the standard that we have. Mr. ROSS. Will the gentleman yield? Mr. SCOTT of Georgia. Yes, I will.

Mr. ROSS. Just on the minimum wage aspect, let me just make a point to that. If folks don't recognize the current Federal minimum wage of what it means, let me tell you what it means. If you are working 40 hours a week, 52 weeks a year, never get sick and never take a single day off of work for vacation, you earn $10,712 a year.

If we are serious as a Nation in moving people from welfare to work, we have got to value their work and we have got to pay them a living wage. That is exactly what the gentleman from Georgia is talking about; and I am so pleased that Speaker-elect PELOSI has included that in her legislative agenda for the first 100 hours.

As you walk the Halls of Congress, Mr. Speaker, you will find this Blue Dog Coalition poster as a welcome mat to the door of each of the 37 members... of the fiscally conservative Democratic Blue Dog Coalition to serve as a daily reminder to all of us that walk the Halls of Congress that our Nation and its spending habits are out of control. Today, the U.S. National Debt, and these enormous changes daily in the Halls of Congress by the fiscally conservative Democratic Blue Dog Coalition. But today, as we stand here, the U.S. national debt is $8,649,173,961,324 and some change.

If you don’t have an enormous number that is very difficult for us to get our arms wrapped around, if you take that number and you divide it by every man, woman, and child, including those being born today here in America, your share, each individual’s share of the national debt is $28,867. We refer to it in the Blue Dog Coalition as the debt tax, D-E-B-T. And that is one tax that cannot go away, that cannot be cut, that is stopping us from meeting America here at home and abroad: that is the reason we have written a 12-point plan for reform that will cure our Nation’s addiction to deficit spending, put us on a course toward a balanced budget, and that will allow us to begin to improve again. We have got the cochairs-elect of the Blue Dog Coalition with us today, one of the members of the Blue Dog Coalition who has been around for quite some time and has been a real leader in the group and was pleased to report that beginning with the 110th session of Congress will become the cochairs for administration for the Blue Dog Coalition, and that is the gentleman from Florida, Mr. ALLEN BOYD.

Mr. BOYD. Mr. Speaker, I want to thank my colleague from Arkansas, my fellow Blue Dog, Mr. Ross, and also Mr. SCOTT, for being here and sharing in this hour to talk a little bit about the priorities of the Blue Dog Coalition. Mr. Speaker, I have a unique opportunity here before us that we don’t have a whole lot of time to grasp on to and do something with. It is an opportunity that doesn’t come along often, maybe once every generation or so, in which the American people say to the United States Congress and to the administration, We don’t like the direction the country is heading in, and we would like to put a new team in place and head in a different direction. And, Mr. Speaker, some of us who serve in the Halls of Congress have not experienced this before, we have not been here when this has happened. More than half of the Members of this Congress were not here in 1994 when this happened before. So we have a unique opportunity to change the way that this Congress operates and to do some things that will help to keep America the greatest country on the face of the Earth.

Mr. Speaker, we all recognize that we live in a very special place. It is not perfect, but it beats the devil out of what is in second place around the world. We have the greatest economy on the face of the Earth; we have the political machine that has been put here over the years that has never been equaled by man before. And with that, we achieve a lot of political clout around the world, and with that comes a lot of responsibility. But we have an underlying economic model, Mr. Speaker, that has allowed us to become really the greatest country on the face of the Earth, and for several years now we have eroded that underlying economic model in a way as we begin and as we end the year. It is not very successfully, the issues that face our country.

It appears to me that over the last few years that many of the things we did were to maintain power rather than to advance the American cause and make life better for the American people.

We have a unique opportunity, Mr. Speaker, to tear down that wall that exists in the middle of that aisle that has been up for 8 or 10 or 12 years. The Blue Dogs want to do that. We want to reach across that aisle as Democrats and take hands with some folks on the Republican side who feel like we do, that we have to preserve that America and to address these issues that are before us in terms of spending problems and revenue problems, we have to address them all in one context.

You can’t come here to this floor and address the spending issue one day, without any regard for the revenue side, and then come the next day and address the revenue side without any regard for the spending priorities of this country. So that is what the Blue Dogs are all about. We believe at the end of the day the revenues have to meet the expenditures.

Now, we have some very difficult choices to make before us in the next few months: how do we put this Congress together on a path so that we will again come into a fiscal discipline situation where we can see down the road that we are going to have a balanced budget. We have a systemic deficit built in right now into our government activities, and we are going to have to make some tough choices relative to spending and relative to the revenue side, and I am honored that the Blue Dogs are going to be leading the way to bring fiscal sanity back to this government that we so very much need.

My friend from Georgia (Mr. SCOTT) has laid out the agenda items of the first 100 hours, and those we agree with. We think they are items that we heard the American people tell us during the campaign that we need to get done. And we are going to do those things, and we are going to do them in the context of balancing the budget in the long run.

One of the things that the Blue Dogs are going to really push for in the first 100 legislative hours in the 100-hour agenda is to make sure that we pass a PAYGO rule, a PAYGO rule that says that if you are going to have a new program, you have got to find money to pay for it. And we also want to put in place spending caps. We want these in statute. This is what we did in 1997, Mr. Speaker, shortly after you came here a few years ago that got us on the path to fiscal responsibility and fiscal sanity.

So I am very proud to be a part of this group. This group wants to reach across that aisle, tear down that wall that exists, work with the folks on both sides of the aisle, because we all represent about 650,000 or 700,000 people, and those people have a right to be heard. Those people from back in the country have a right to be heard, and we ought to work that way. And I know the new leadership of this Congress has committed that they will work in a bipartisan way, and we will have a Speaker of the House, not the Speaker of a party.

Mr. Speaker, I want to thank you for the time, and I want to especially thank my colleague, Mr. Ross, for putting this together.

Mr. ROSS. Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the gentleman from Florida who has been elected cochair of the Blue Dog Coalition for the 110th session of Congress for coming and sharing his thoughts with us.

Mr. BOYD, you are so right. The American people on election night were telling us they want us to put an end to the partisan bickering, to clean up the mess in Washington, to reach across that aisle and work together, not as Democrats or Republicans, but as Americans. And put America first again, put our families and children first again, and put the people’s interests above special interests. That is why I am so proud that Speaker-elect PELOSI has announced that during the first 100 legislative hours we will see a meaningful ethics reform bill on the floor of this House.

Mr. Speaker, when they hear about the Blue Dog Coalition and the fact that we are a group of fiscally conservative Democrats, a lot of people all of a sudden just assume that it is a group of Southern Democrats. Not true. This is not a regional group; this is a national group and a national movement that stretches from Salt Lake City and Burbank, California all the way to Long Island. And I am so pleased that our colleagues from Long Island, STEVE ISRAEL, is here with us today; and I yield to him.
our country strong and safe, making sure that our military continues to be the strongest and greatest on earth; making sure that our children, as they advance in years, inherit a military that is strong and a country that is safe and secure. That is what we all think about. That is the obligation that we all have.

But if we continue these unsustainable budget strategies on this unsustainable budget path with $8 trillion dollars and multibillion-dollar annual deficits, we are undermining our military and we are doing a disservice not only to our children but to the brave men and women who count on us to ensure that we are appropriating the funds adequate for them to fight the fight.

I have the great privilege of being on the Armed Services Committee, which has jurisdiction for all military and national security issues. We have a $500 billion national defense budget this year. We are continuing to ask our forces with the critical funds that they need for force protection, for night vision goggles, for up-armed Humvees, for Kevlar, for pay increases, for health benefits, for decent housing, for education, and we are going to continue to need to do that because the world will continue to be a very dangerous place. We want to make sure that our men and women have all of the resources that they need to confront those dangers.

The problem is this: These unsustainable budgets, the lack of balanced budgets, the lack of true prioritizing and the lack of true bipartisanship is not going to provide our military with what they need. Let me give an example.

At a recent Blue Dog meeting, I was very concerned to receive a report from the GAO, and that report is eye-opening. It is jarring. It should be a matter of concern to everybody who makes budget decisions.

According to that report, in 2005 Federal revenues as a percentage of GDP were just over 20 percent; just over 20 percent of our gross domestic product was Federal revenues. Federal revenues will be flatlined all of the way through 2040. Federal revenues, now over 20 percent of our GDP, in the year 2040 Federal revenues will continue to be just over 20 percent of our GDP. The problem is that Federal spending is going to far exceed our Federal revenues. Last year, 2005, Federal spending as a percent of GDP, might have been sustainable. But by the year 2040, Federal spending as a percentage of GDP will be so high, without the appropriate balanced budget controls, that this is the condition that our kids will find themselves in. In the year 2040, Federal revenues will be ample to pay for two functions in the Federal Government: interest on debt and a little bit of Social Security. They are either going to have to cancel all other programs or tax themselves catastrophically to pay for them. Now, that is not a value that any responsible person in their kitchen table would agree to. That is not a work ethic that any of us would agree to.

So how do we fix this problem? How are the Blue Dogs proposing that we give our kids the ability to pay for the strongest military on earth? It is very simple, not very complicated at all. The Blue Dogs say balance our budgets. Don’t spend if you don’t have the resources to spend. The Blue Dogs say that this is not hard. Let me give an example from this Congress and on the administration. The Blue Dogs say prioritize, meet your critical needs first, pay for a strong military, don’t try to balance budgets on the backs of people who are fighting for us or working in our economy. They report to us that they didn’t have coagulant bandages in Iraq because nobody paid for adequate amounts. Pay for those things first and watch and measure your spending on other less important things. That is what we are saying. But make sure at the end of the day the budget is balanced.

Finally what the Blue Dogs are saying is this: We don’t care whether you are Democrat or Republican. We don’t care whether you are from the south shore of Long Island or from the deep South. It doesn’t matter to us. Work with us. Work with us. We will work with you.

The seat that I stand in front of here is the seat of three Democrats: the center aisle of the Congress of the United States. Blue Dogs have demonstrated time and time again our willingness to cross that aisle and forge partnerships with Members on the other side of the aisle to do what is best for our children: Pay for a strong defense, an excellent military, a well-trained military, and do it as we balance our budgets. Give our children the ability to be protected and pay for that protection at the same time.

It is about simple, fundamental common-sense priorities, and few organizations are as equipped and as expert to pursue those priorities as the Blue Dog Coalition, which is why I have been so proud to be a member of this Coalition.

Mr. ROSS. I thank the gentleman from Long Island for joining us on the floor of the U.S. House of Representatives as we discuss the fiscal conservative Democratic Blue Dog Coalition and our plans to restore some common-sense and fiscal discipline to our government.

It begins with our 12-point reform plan for curing our Nation’s addiction to deficit spending.

Mr. Speaker, if you have questions, comments or concerns, you can e-mail us at BlueDog@mail.house.gov.

Quickly, I want to go through some of our 12 points. In other words, we are not here on the floor of the U.S. House of Representatives just to beat up the Republican leadership or just talk about what has gone wrong, we are here to offer up commonsense solutions to getting this Nation out of debt.

Number one, require a balanced budget. Forty-nine States do. Forty-nine States do. Most Americans understand the concept of a balanced budget. So number one, require a balanced budget as a national priority.

Number two, don’t let Congress buy on credit. That goes back to the PAYGO rules, and we are very pleased that Speaker-elect PELOSI has included in her legislative agenda for the first 100 hours reestablishing PAYGO rules, and this is a change that has been made by this House from 1998 through 2001 when we had a balanced budget for the first time in about 40 years. Pay as you go simply means if you want to spend money on a project, show us where the money is coming from; don’t go to China and borrow it from them.

Number three, put a lid on spending, what is referred to as strict spending caps to solve the growth of runaway government programs.

Number four, require agencies to put their fiscal house in order.

Mr. Speaker, did you realize that 18 of 24 major Federal agencies can’t produce a clean audit of their books? The Constitution clearly gives Congress the authority to provide oversight, and all this Republican-led Congress has been doing is rubber stamp after rubber stamp and continuing to give these agencies more money when they can’t account for the money they already get.

These are four of the basic principles of the 12-point plan that the Blue Dog Coalition is offering up for meaningful budget reform.

I yield to the gentleman from Georgia, Mr. SCOTT.

Mr. SCOTT of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, it is very important that we put this in context because as we move forward with pay as you go, we at the same time must respond to the needs of the American people. But we are doing so in a very fiscally responsible way. Check the minimum wage, no Federal expenditure. It will be absorbed by the private sector, and indeed stimulating that private sector to produce more.

The movement to bring down prescription drugs; in other words, we are the Secretary of Health and Human Services be able to negotiate using the bulk number of 55 million recipients of Medicare to be able to bring down the cost that accrues to us.

And just now with the release of the Iraq Study Group report, and Mr. ISRAEL and I share as cochairs of our Democratic group, as cochairs on national security, that we have been examining these issues. He is absolutely right. We must take better care of our military. The American people are expecting our expenditures to go there. And one of the great, I think, recommendations this study group that is headed by Mr. Hamilton and Mr. Baker that was just presented to the President yesterday is the realization, number one, we have to make some changes in this Iraqi situation because of the terrible drain that it is doing to our military. If we don’t correct that, surely the security of our country goes down.

The other area that we talked about with regard to significant vulnerability is the matter of how we fund the incentive to ensure that our students pay on their student loans. That is money that goes back into the economy and a savings to our middle-class families.

Now the other idea that we are going to move on in our first 100 hours is to begin to deal forthrightly with our problem of energy, our problem of energy dependence on the Middle East, that most volatile region. We are making great strides. One of our first efforts is to increase the incentives to go into renewable energy.

I just came back with a group of other Congressmen who are members of the Agriculture Committee. We went to Brazil. The reason we went to Brazil and South America, is because we realize here in this country we don’t have all of the answers. But I will tell you one thing, they are doing something very special down in South America. We need to hurry up and do it here.

For example, in Brazil, 85 percent of their new automobiles that they are putting out in the market this year are flex fuels so that they will be able to use ethanol as regular gasoline. I asked the Minister of Industry in Argentina and Brazil this one question about their trade relations with the Middle Eastern countries and what percentage of their energy they were getting from abroad. Argentina and Brazil, absolutely none. They are almost at the point of being energy independent because they had the foresight to move on this area.

I advocate that with our leadership on the Democratic side to say among our first efforts will be to increase at a rapid rate our preparedness, our infrastructure, so that we can develop ethanol in this country from the primary two sources that we have, corn and soybeans, as well as celulosaic.

Mr. ISRAEL. If the gentleman would yield, this is such a critical point. This is a national security area. And I know that the gentleman understands that well.

Mr. Speaker, last year the Department of Defense spent $10.6 billion on basic energy costs. That is what it costs the military to fuel itself. Of that, the Air Force spent $4.7 billion, about half on one thing: fuel for its airplanes. With this $8 trillion debt, we have to fund the defense budget. How do we do it? The gentlemen know well, we borrow the money from China. So here is what we are doing: We are borrowing money from China to fund defense budgets to buy oil from the Persian Gulf to fuel our Air Force to protect us from China and the Persian Gulf. That is a flawed policy, it is a national security vulnerability. We will balance our budgets, have fiscal responsibility and pursue energy independence so that we are safer and we are much better off in terms of our budgets.

I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Mr. SCOTT of Georgia. Absolutely. Again, energy and becoming independent is a reachable goal. It is a double goal, and we can reach that conclusion within in a matter of a few years with the kind of leadership we are putting forward.

I am proud to say we will be putting research grants into that to spur our country to move very rapidly and develop that infrastructure.

Mr. BOSS. The gentleman raised an excellent point, and I am writing a plan to put America on a path towards energy independence, something Brazil will achieve this year. And the reason this is all so important, and it relates to the debt and the deficit, is as a Nation we are spending half a billion dollars a day paying interest on the debt we have already got.

America’s priorities, including investing in alternative and renewable fuels and bioenergies and clean coal technology and synthetic fuels, will never happen. So it is time to get our Nation’s fiscal house in order.

Mr. Speaker, we will be back on the floor next Tuesday night or at some Tuesday night in the future, whenever we see fit to come back as a Congress, to talk more about the Blue Dogs 12-point plan for meaningful budget reform, to restore common sense and fiscal discipline to our Nation’s government.

And until we see you again, Mr. Speaker, I will leave you with this thought: everyone in America’s share of the debt is $67,000. The debt, d-e-b-t. It is time, Mr. Speaker, we get our Nation’s fiscal house in order and pay down this debt and have a balanced budget in this country once more.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. KIRK. Madam Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days in which to revise and extend their remarks and to include extraneous material on S. 2370.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mrs. EMERSON). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Illinois?

There was no objection.

COMMEMORATING THE SERVICE TO THE UNITED STATES OF THE HON. HENRY HYDE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the previous order of the House, the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. KIRK) is recognized for 45 minutes.

Mr. KIRK. Madam Speaker, I am here today to commemorate the service to the United States of our colleague HENRY HYDE of Illinois. HENRY ODLOZIL, general leave.
HYDE, from our Sixth Congressional District, currently is retiring as the chairman of the House International Relations Committee and has become one of the most intellectual and respected Members of the House. Henry HYDE was born on Chicago Earth. Raised as a Catholic and a Democrat, he was an all-city basketball center when he went off to college in Georgetown and then enlisted in the Navy. Henry HYDE served our country in the United States from 1945 to 1946, serving in the Lingayen Gulf and then the Reserves from 1946 to 1968, finally retiring from the Navy as a commander. After the war, he finished college and law school and practiced law in Chicago and in 1958 switched parties, convinced that Republicans were in line with his anti-communist beliefs. He ran for the House in 1962 and lost by a six-point margin.

He then ran for the Illinois House in 1966. He served as the majority leader between 1971 and 1972. He ran for Speaker of the Illinois House, but didn’t make it after a narrow battle.

Henry was elected to the Congress in 1974, after originally planning to run as president of the Cook County Board until Harold Conkle said to him, “Henry HYDE that he was not going to run for Congress again.” HYDE’s first campaign for Congress was against the Cook County State’s Attorney, Edward Hanrahan, and in that race Henry won by a margin of eight percent.

It was a big Democratic year in 1974, but what a leader the people of the Sixth Congressional District selected when they chose Henry HYDE, not only as chairman of the International Relations Committee but also of the Judiciary Committee and someone who had a key role in expanding the fight for freedom and democracy in Central America.

I first worked closely with Henry HYDE when I served in the United States State Department on behalf of the Central American Peace Process. It was Henry HYDE, his intellect and his voice, that saw the growing danger in Central America. It was Henry HYDE that helped lead this House on a bipartisan basis to back the democracy in El Salvador in its resistance against a communist-backed insurgency. It was Henry HYDE that worked with the Assistant Secretary of State Bernard AARONSON on elections in Nicaragua where for the first time a communist dictatorship was lullied into an election and then defeated by the people there. It was Henry HYDE that real laid the groundwork in this House as a minority Member on behalf of a new pro-democracy strategy in Central America that ended all of those terrible wars in El Salvador and Nicaragua and in Guatemala, laying the groundwork for peace, the Central American Free Trade Agreement, and much greater prosperity and security.

Today, we, his colleagues, mark his service, since 1974 in this House of Representatives, as an intellectual leader.

I would now like to recognize Congressman RAY LAHOOD for his remarks on the service of Henry HYDE to our country.

Mr. LAHOOD. Thank you, Congressman KIRK. I appreciate the fact that you have taken the time for those of them here in the House that want to pay high honor to Henry HYDE for his service to our country and to the people of Illinois and to the people of the world.

Certainly his service as chairman of the International Relations Committee has been service to not only Illinois and our great country but also to people all around the world, because he has become somebody who has been an advocate for those who have had little voice in their own countries and an advocate for those who have had little voice in their opportunities to share in the same kind of democracy that we have in this country.

Illinois has a rich heritage of sending to Washington, DC, distinguished Americans, not the least of whom certainly was Abraham Lincoln, who served in this House for one term; not the least of whom was Everett Dirksen, who served in this House for several terms. Both served the other body; not the least of whom was my predecessor, Bob Michel. So I have had the privilege of coming from a State that has sent to Washington, DC, men of great honor, great integrity, men who have represented the country so well. And Henry will certainly go down in the annals of the history of Illinois, the history of our country, as being one of those men.

A distinguished career here in the House. A career that, unlike probably almost any other Member, he has been able to chair two very significant committees, the Judiciary Committee for 6 years and because of the term limits on our side, he had to give up that chairmanship but he served with great distinction on that committee and handled one of the most contentious issues ever to come before the House of Representatives in the history of the House, and that was the impeachment of a President. And he did it with great integrity, great honesty, and in a way that I think distinguished him and distinguished the Judiciary Committee and distinguished the House of Representatives. As the chairman of the International Relations Committee, he has served the House very well and served the Members very well.

As he retires, tomorrow marks probably the last day for the 109th Congress and the last day for Mr. HYDE to have an opportunity to be a voting Member of this great deliberative body. I know that so many on both sides of the aisle have the highest regard and respect for his service here.

In addition to serving in both important committees, as Chair of important committees, the Judiciary and International Relations, the one thing that I think Congressman HYDE will be remembered for certainly is being the loudest and the strongest voice for the unborn, for those who have not had a voice, for those who have not had the opportunity to have their voice heard. He has been the strongest advocate for what has been commonly referred to as the ‘‘Hyde Amendment’’ that restricts Federal funding for abortions. And that issue is an issue that he will long be remembered for, along with many other issues, but one that I know he is very, very proud of. His service to those who did not have a voice but he has given them voice in this House of Representatives.

So as we say fond farewell to our friend from the northern part of Illinois, from the Sixth District of Illinois, we say God speed. We say job well done. We say what an honor it has been for those of us not only from Illinois but for the entire body to say that we have served with a giant, a giant in so many ways, for whom as HENRY J. HYDE, the Congressman from the Sixth District, the former chairman of the Judiciary Committee, the current chairman of the Committee on International Relations, someone who has made a mark in the history of the House, made a mark in the history of politics in Illinois, and will long be remembered for his distinguished career. Mr. KIRK. Madam Speaker, I would like to yield now to my colleague from Illinois, Mr. Shimkus.

Mr. SHIMKUS. Madam Speaker, I would like to thank Congressman KIRK for helping arrange this and my colleagues who are making their way to the floor to honor him, the giant and a great leader, someone who sometimes there are people here who you just don’t feel you are worthy enough to speak in support of.

Chairman HYDE has been an intellectual giant, a man for whom is good about America. He has been a believer in democracy, in freedom, and the rule of law. He has been an outspoken supporter of the right to life and protecting those who have no say in our society. And I guess as colleagues come to the floor, I think they will agree with me that Chairman HYDE is an ideologue but has never allowed his ideology to get in the way of his ability to be honorable, respectful, thoughtful, open, and in such a way that he has earned great respect from this institution.

Many people have legacies that they leave throughout life in very different areas of careers. Chairman HYDE’s legacy will be one of a conservative beliefs and one who put his heart and soul not only into his values and beliefs but into this institution. He cherishes it. He loves it. And it would be good for all of us to remember the life that Chairman HYDE led in his chosen career, field, which is as a legislator at this level, and emulate that type of service. And I think we will be well served as a Nation to follow Chairman HYDE’s lead.

I wish him the best, God’s blessings on him, and thank him for his service to this great Nation.
Mr. KIRK. Madam Speaker, I would now like to yield to another admirer because HENRY had so, so many admirers on both sides of the aisle and one of them was our colleague from Illinois (Mr. DAVIS).

(Mr. DAVIS of Illinois asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. DAVIS of Illinois. Madam Speaker, I want to, first of all, thank my colleagues, Representatives KIRK and SHIMKUS from Illinois, for giving us the opportunity to take this moment to pay tribute and commend the life, the work, and I would even extend to the point of saying the legacy, of Chairman HENRY HYDE.

As a matter of fact, HENRY’s district is next door to mine. His district is number six. Mine is number seven. And oftentimes I find myself in his community, in his neighborhood. And I sometimes go to an eating establishment, that is a restaurant, where he is a legend. Every time I go there, someone is exploiting and extolling the virtues of HENRY HYDE, and they are talking about they remember the time when HENRY did this, HENRY did that. I agree with Representative SHIMKUS that although ideologically bent, HENRY always been a gentleman and a scholar, a true gentleman and a pleasant person to work with. I am delighted to have served with him, wish him well, and know that we are still going to bump into each other occasionally. I know that great restaurant where he likes to eat.

Have a good time, HENRY. We look forward to seeing you.

Mr. KIRK. Madam Speaker, we have a number of admirers of HENRY HYDE. One who served with him longer than almost any other Member in the House of the Representatives is my colleague from California, Congressman LUNGREN.

Mr. DANIEL E. LUNGREN of California. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding.

It is a privilege and a distinct pleasure to be able to say a few words about HENRY HYDE, someone I consider to be a friend but also who I consider to be part of the institution of the House of Representatives and in many ways a true hero.

We count probably on one hand the number of inspirational people that we either have read about in history or have met in person. I count my father as one of my heroes. I count Abraham Lincoln as one of my heroes. I count Ronald Reagan as one of my heroes, Lincoln as one of my heroes. I count HENRY HYDE as one of my heroes. Of that group, there is only one in public life attempting to try and make our country as the best exposition of liberties that are enshrined in our Constitution, we could do no better than look to HENRY HYDE for inspiration.

I can recall in the years when we were in the minority, HENRY HYDE oftentimes arguing in the well of the House with passion and compassion, with intellect, sometimes with a slight bit of humor, sometimes even sarcasm, but it was good-natured sarcasm. And as he ended, he would go to the other side of the well and seek out his opponent and oftentimes give him or her a playful punch in the arm and tell them a joke to alleviate the pressure. And that was not just for his own personal principles, but always attempting to have a level of civility in this House that we desperately need.

HENRY HYDE was here a couple of years before I was, 1979, and he was sitting on the floor of the House with another Member when a certain appropriation bill came through, and they thought, you know, we have been talking about something on the issue of the unbom, and maybe we ought to put pen to paper and write out an amendment. That was the birth of the Hyde amendment, not something that had been done by staff, as good as they are, and worked on for months or for years, but sitting here on the floor of the House of Representatives, debate that had gone on and thinking, you know, maybe I can make a difference by just writing out an amendment and sending it up to the Clerk and having it read, having it introduced and having it become an issue of prime importance on which Members can disagree here; but there is no doubt that it, in many ways, focused that debate in a very serious way, and it continues to this day.

I was with HENRY HYDE when he thought about given by the Governor of New York, Mr. Cuomo, at my alma mater, Notre Dame, about the proper role of someone who has faith and seeks to be a politician and elected official. And Mario Cuomo’s speech at Notre Dame was lauded by many across the Nation as the best exposition of one in public life attempting to try and make that proper balance between their private views and their public views. But HENRY was troubled by the overall approach that was utilized by Government. This is one of the opportunities to respond about 2 months later when he spoke to the law school at the University of Notre Dame. He later put that speech in a small book and it was called “For Every Idle Silence.” And it is a phrase that suggests that we will be held responsible, not only for every act that we do, but for every idle silence we do in the face of a moral dispute. If anybody has the occasion to go and look at this one of the most profound statements on how one can resolve in his or her own mind how you can be faithfully an American and faithful to your faith, all at the same time.

HENRY HYDE had that unique ability to bring the force of intellect, the power of faith, and unquenchable desire to make sure America stood tall, and a profound understanding of the Constitution that you rarely see combined in one individual. This place has been ennobled by the participation in the debate by HENRY HYDE. This place has been honored by HENRY HYDE’s presence here. And while he leaves us as he retires, his spirit will not leave. His example still will bump into each other occasionally. I know that the Members of this body, my model for a Member of the House of Representatives will always be HENRY HYDE.

Mr. KIRK. Madam Speaker, HENRY HYDE was known as a strong Republican partisan, but he also had a number of bipartisan achievements, one of them in backing the assault weapons ban, also in supporting JESSE JACKSON, Jr. on his effort to build a third airport at O’Hare. And one of the men who have worked with HENRY HYDE and seen his legacy is my colleague from Illinois, Congressman LIPINSKI, and I yield to him.

Mr. LIPINSKI. Thank you, Congressman KIRK, for the opportunity to come today to speak about HENRY HYDE, who has been a great statesman, who has served his district from Illinois and the Nation in such a great manner for so many years. It is a great honor to rise to recognize his dedication as a public servant and as a legislator, and as a real pillar, especially in the foreign policy community.

Since 1975, Congressman HYDE has faithfully served his constituency in the Chicagoland area. And all Americans, now, on his retirement, we take this opportunity to thank HENRY for his outstanding contributions and influence on our country.

Before entering the U.S. House, Representative HYDE served in the Illinois General Assembly, beginning in 1966, which I note is the year that I was born. So I don’t quite remember that, when HENRY first started serving the
When I came here some 16 years ago, I think one of the first meetings I had as a Member was with Henry. And I went to Henry because he was one of the most respected Members of the House. I thought I could learn something. I thought it was important, I wanted him to know who I was.

But over the years, I have learned an awful lot from Henry Hyde. And I can remember vividly the spring of 1995 when the Republicans had taken control of the House for the first time in 40 years. We had pledged that we would move the Contract with America in the first 100 days of a Republican Congress. And I don’t think any of us realized the amount of work that was involved in that contract, nor how much of it fell within the jurisdiction of the Judiciary Committee of which Henry Hyde was the new chairman.

And Mr. Hyde, in his committee, worked tirelessly day and night for 93 days to produce the Contract with America. And I remember sitting in leadership meetings where we were concerned about Henry’s health during that 93 days. And here it is, some 16 years later, Henry is strong, still with us and still doing a great job and producing good work.

It was an honor for me to serve with Henry Hyde, and I was proud that I supported him to be the majority leader. Thinking back some 16 years ago, I would have never looked at myself as a potential majority leader. I would have been looking towards Henry. But he is a fine man and a great asset to this institution.

Mr. Kirk, Madam Speaker, I would like to recognize one of his subcommittee chairmen, Congressman Royce from California. Mr. Royce. Madam Speaker, I am rising also to honor Henry Hyde. As every Member of the House is aware, Mr. Hyde will be retiring from Congress after the end of this year after 32 years of service, not only to the people of the State of Illinois, but of service to the people of Illinois.

Chairman Hyde took over the Committee on International Relations when the 107th Congress began; and if we think back to that time, that was January of 2001. Most of us weren’t thinking that foreign policy would soon be at the forefront of Congress’s agenda.

But, of course, not long after that, on September 11, our Nation was attacked, and our agenda changed. I know that my colleagues had added confidence knowing that Henry Hyde would be leading the Committee on International Relations in the face of the terrorist threat. Their confidence proved to be well placed.

Chairman Hyde has said, you know, you want to be thought of well by the people you work with. You like to earn their respect. I would like that to be my legacy.

Well, Madam Speaker, that will be the legacy of Chairman Hyde. The gentleman from Illinois has earned the respect of his colleagues with his hard work, with his fairness, with his intellectual prowess and good-natured Irish wit.

Madam Speaker, it is often said that politics don’t stop at the water’s edge. Chairman Hyde has personified that adage. He is a leader for all of us. Other committees in the House, and indeed the Congress as a whole, would do well to take their cue from Chairman Henry Hyde. The issues being dealt with, our commonwealth of war and peace, are just too important to succumb to partisan rancor.

Though he has been tried at times, Henry Hyde understands that we are Americans more than we are Republicans and Democrats. He makes many of us a little prouder to serve in Congress.

Madam Speaker, the House would do well to consider carefully the chairman’s words delivered earlier this year. I will quote the chairman’s speech titled “Perils of the Golden Theory,” had received greater attention than it did. It is profound and poignant, as is usual with Henry Hyde.

Chairman Hyde provided a cautionary note. I am going to quote from him for that speech. “For some, the promotion of democracy promises an easy solution to the many difficult problems we face, a guiding light on a dimly seen horizon. But I believe the great caution is warranted.”

The chairman was reminding us that there is no single solution to solving the world’s complex problems, and that we must challenge ourselves to better understand the world, to better understand its millennia of recorded history and culture, if we are to navigate these very challenging times.

Chairman Hyde’s message, I believe, was, yes, try to make the world a better place, but get there by dealing with the world as it is, not as we wish it was to be. It was a speech of a hopeful realist.

Madam Speaker, we should listen to men who have seen as much in their lifetime as Chairman Hyde. While times change, much has remained the same since the days that a young Henry Hyde fought for his country in the Pacific theater, for human nature is immutable. But looking to Chairman Hyde for guidance, and I hope we will hear from him in the years to come, and should we look to him for guidance, I am sure our Nation will be more secure.

Mr. Kirk. I yield to the chairman of the Agriculture Committee, another HENRY HYDE aficionado, the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. GOODLATTE).

(Mr. GOODLATTE asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GOODLATTE. I thank the gentleman for yielding. It is a real honor to rise in tribute to a great American statesman, HENRY HYDE.

Madam Speaker, HENRY HYDE is somebody that I knew of by reputation before I ever worked at Congress. I knew him in 1993. It has been one of the true privileges of my service here to get to know and work with this outstanding man. He is known throughout the world in diplomatic circles as a great ambassador for the United States, as chairman of the International Relations Committee. I have had the opportunity to see him in action with Presidents and Prime Ministers, to see the kind of responses and the commands from world leaders because of his leadership of that committee and because of his great concern for the promotion of American interests around the world. There are very pure interests of promoting democracy and opportunity, freedom and peace, for people in every corner of the globe. I have not had the privilege of serving on the International Relations Committee, but I have had the opportunity to serve for 14 years on the Judiciary Committee with HENRY HYDE. Not only is he a great statesman on the international stage, but he is clearly also a great statesman in promoting and protecting the United States, the people’s Constitution, as he views it, and as he has protected it for many, many years in his service here in the Congress.

I have, as one of my prize possessions, a gavel that he used during the impeachment proceedings with regard to former President Clinton. The impeachment proceedings are not a happy or pleasant circumstance, and I don’t prize the gavel because of the circumstances, but I prize it because it was used by HENRY HYDE with courage, with integrity and with forthrightness and handling, in a very diplomatic and very statesmanlike way, what was clearly the most challenging thing that he dealt with in his entire career.

He did it with great dignity. He did it correctly, he did it with great sacrifice as well, because he faced bitter, unfair, false attacks from many quarters for his courage that challenged, and I was proud to serve with him on that committee in that regard.

He is also known as a champion for life in America and around the world, and I think that may perhaps be his greatest legacy of all. Because to HENRY HYDE, life is not just about one issue, abortion or any other issue, it is about human dignity and about preserving and protecting and giving opportunity to each and every one of us. As a new Member of Congress, he took me and guided me through many challenges when we became the majority party.

As a member of the Judiciary Committee, a new member of the committee, he gave me opportunities to lead the management of legislation and amendments here on the floor of the House, and I will be forever indebted to HENRY HYDE for making my career in the Congress a greater institution because of his dedication and service. Thank you.

Mr. KIRK. I thank the chairman. Pat Durante, who has worked for HENRY HYDE since 1974, said that Henry is now in the book of world records as having done the most number of parades of any sitting Member of Congress at that time.

To mark that service, I yield to my colleague from Illinois (Mr. MANZULLO), the chairman of the Small Business Committee.

Mr. MANZULLO. Madam Speaker, it was a scene reminiscent of the courtroom scene when Scout was asked by the pastor to stand up when her father was charged in To Kill a Mockingbird. When Atticus FINCH got up to leave, the pastor turned to Scout and said, “Scout, your father is leaving the courtroom. Please stand.” And everybody stood. I was a freshman in 1993. HENRY HYDE, for some reason procedurally had been unable to offer his Hyde amendment. William Natcher from Kentucky, who was the chairman of the Appropriations Committee when there was tremendous opposition to Mr. HYDE getting the Hyde amendment through, and he needed unanimous consent to do that. Mr. Natcher stood up and said, Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Illinois wishes to offer a unanimous consent motion with which I agree heartily. At that point Mr. Natcher was looking at everybody on the floor, and HENRY HYDE got up, and was allowed to offer that amendment, without objection.

It was a historic scene from To Kill a Mockingbird, because were it not for the significance and importance and now the posterity that he will leave with this magnificent gentleman from Illinois, that unanimous consent never would have been honored by this body. We don’t have a lot of HENRY HYDES around anymore. This place is less for that. But one thing we will always have as he leaves this body, being the distinguished gentleman from Illinois, is that spirit, that wit, that always gave rise to the fact that when he was amongst Members of Congress, somebody yelled out the name “Congressman,” we all would turn and look at HENRY HYDE.

Mr. KIRK. I thank my colleague from Illinois.

Madam Speaker, I would just note that the conference report on the bill that we just filed, H.R. 5692, is called the HENRY J. HYDE United States-India Peaceful Atomic Energy Cooperation Act of 2006.

To mark that bipartisanship spirit of Henry’s leadership on our foreign policy, that partisanship should end at the water’s edge, I recognize my colleague, Congressman FALEOMAVAEGA.

Mr. FALEOMAVAEGA. I do thank my good friend and colleague for giving me this opportunity. Madam Speaker, I had to literally run to the floor, only to find that before this piece of legislation is a special tribute not only to our colleague, but certainly a special friend and a mentor, and what I consider as an institution, an institutional, outstanding leader in our Nation, about to retire.

Madam Speaker, in this conference report I want to express my support of the U.S.-India Nuclear Cooperation Act of 2006 and I commend the chairman of the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. HYDE) and the ranking member, Mr. LANTOS, of the International Relations Committee, Senator RICHARD LUGAR and Senator JOSEPH BIDEN, chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on Foreign Relations in the Senate, for moving this legislation forward.

With my time remaining, I wish I had more time, I cannot help but to say that we are going to miss one of the most outstanding leaders that we have had in our Nation, and I want to pay that special tribute to my good friend, and he is like a father to most of us, the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. HYDE), whom I am going to miss very much.

Madam Speaker, I rise in support of the U.S. and India Nuclear Cooperation Promotion Act of 2006 and I commend Chairman HENRY HYDE and Ranking Member TOM LANTOS of the International Relations Committee, Senator RICHARD LUGAR and JOSEPH BIDEN, Chairman and ranking member of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, for their leadership in moving this legislation forward.

While some of our critics may argue that India has not signed the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty (NPS), I submit that had it not been for our country’s indifference, or benign neglect, if you will, India may have been a member of the nuclear club years ago and our discussion about the most important point. To be specific, India had a civilian nuclear program in place prior to the NPT being opened for signature in 1968 and, at the time, India was only months away from possessing nuclear weapons. But, in 1967, the U.S. joined with the Soviet Union in crafting a nuclear nonproliferation treaty which to this day states that only the United States, Russia, the United Kingdom, China, and France are permitted to own nuclear weapons because only these five nations possessed nuclear weapons at the time the treaty was open for signature. Again, India, had a civilian nuclear program in place and was only months away from possessing nuclear weapons prior to the NPT being opened for signature in 1968. But U.S. policy toward India precluded India from being a member of the exclusive nuclear club and this is why I agree with India’s position that the NPT is, and has always been, flawed and discriminatory.

In fact, history speaks for itself. In 1962, when China attacked India, the U.S. responded by saying it might protect India against a future attack. But when China exploded its first nuclear bomb in 1964, the U.S. welcomed China as a member of the nuclear club and we also supported China's bid to become a permanent member of the United Nations Security Council.

In 1965, when Pakistan attacked India, the U.S. remained neutral while China outspokenly supported India. I was concerned about its own security and having little reason to rely on the U.S., India announced in 1966 that it would produce nuclear weapons and it is little wonder that India exploded its first nuclear device in 1974. Recent U.S. State Department declassified documents on U.S. foreign policy show that India had little choice given the hostile attitude assumed by the United States towards India during the Nixon/Kissinger years.

As we all can agree, India then and India today lives in one of the world's toughest regions and it is somewhat Eurocentric for the U.S. to treat India as if it is beholding to us for the safety, protection and well-being of her people. It is no grand gesture on our part that we now offer India civil nuclear cooperation. Instead, U.S.-India civil nuclear cooperation is long overdue and, quite frankly, the deal is as good to India.

Madam Speaker, I commend President Bush and Prime Minister Singh for bringing this initiative to the table. I also applaud the efforts of Under Secretary of State Nicholas Burns who is the unsung hero of U.S.-India civil cooperation. As the lead negotiator for this agreement, he has represented this nation's interest with unprecedented distinction and I am honored to have worked with him during these critical months leading up to today's historic vote.

I always recall when Mr. Sanjay Purie who worked in cooperation with Under Secretary Burns and Members of the House and Senate to bolster support for this agreement since the day it was first announced. I commend him for being a part of today's victory and I urge my colleagues to vote in favor of the conference report.

Mr. KIRK. Madam Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. BIGGERT), the Speaker of the House, and also a next-door neighbor of Henry Hyde in his district.

Mr. BIGGERT. Madam Speaker, I believe that Henry Hyde is a person who I have got to know in cutting my teeth in politics. As a young teacher who decided to take a run for the State legislature after about 16 years of teaching, I was, to say, little behind the ears. I was a novice. Part of this district that I had was DuPage County, which is the land of great Republicans and was outside of my home county, but, nonetheless, I had to represent part of it.

Every time that I would go on the dais or the podium, usually late in the program, I would follow Henry Hyde. Henry Hyde, of course, was this great, well-known statesman, the person who came to Congress in 1972, that fought the fights, that was the leader, that carried through the conservative Republicanism, and I was the schoolteacher who was just cutting my teeth.

I got to learn a little bit from Henry Hyde. I learned that if you wanted to keep people's attention, you had to have a little bit of humor, you had to keep to the point, you had to be loquacious. Well, I never quite learned to be loquacious, but, anyway, Henry had that quality, and he still does.

One of the greatest speeches that I heard in 1980 was the speech he, Mr. COBLE, gave on the House just is going to be the same without Henry Hyde—one of the rarest, most accomplished, and most distinguished Members of Congress ever to serve.

Henry Hyde is a class act. He is a man of deep and abiding faith, he is generous to a fault and he has an incisive mind that works seamlessly with his incredible sense of humor. He is a man who inspires and challenges us to look beyond surface appeal arguments. He is a speaker of truth in a society that all too often is willing to accept cheap simplification, the plausible, and the frivolous. And Henry Hyde compels us to take seriously the admonitions of Holy Scripture to care for the downtrodden, the vulnerable and the least of our brethren.
The Almanac of American Politics has written that HENRY HYDE is “one of the most respected and intellectually honest members of the House” and “has proven himself as one of the most eloquent members of the House” and that his “speeches are classics.”

In another speech, HENRY HYDE remains the great defender of children and their moms, the champion of the most fundamental of all human rights—the right to life. Because of the Hyde amendment countless young children and adults walk on this earth today and have an opportunity to prosper because they were spared destruction when they were most at risk. With malice towards none, HENRY HYDE often took to this microphone to politely ask us to show compassion and respect—even love—for the innocent and inconvenient baby about to be annihilated. In one speech here on this floor he stated, “for over two centuries of our national history, we have struggled to create a society of inclusion—we keep widening the circle of those for whom we are responsible—the aged, the infirm, the poor. Slaves were freed, women were enfranchised, civil rights and voting rights acts were passed, our public spaces made accessible to the handicapped, Social Security for the elderly— all in the name of widening the circle of inclusion and protection. This great trajectory in our nation’s history was shattered by Roe v. Wade and its progeny. By denying an entire class of human beings the welcome and protection of our laws, we have betrayed the best in our tradition. We have also put at risk every life which someday someone might find inconveniencing. What I ask here today, “welcome the little stranger.”

In another speech on U.S. foreign policy in the 21st century given in Committee back in 2001, HENRY eloquently summed up the challenges and I quote in part “As a new century opens, the United States finds itself at a unique moment, not only in its own history, but in that of the world as well. We stand at the pinnacle of power: in virtually every area—economic, technological, cultural, political—we enjoy a primacy that is unprecedented. Our potential at times seems unlimited, to some perhaps even permanent. . . . But as pleasant as these thoughts may be, I confess that I also see much that concerns me. . . . The concern I speak of is the longer-term, specifically how well we will use the enormous power we currently possess to secure the future for our country and the generations to come. The wealth of opportunities we currently possess are not permanent; the luxury of choice may be a passing one. To believe that we shall always be above the fray, untouched and unchallenged is a dangerous illusion. . . . The principal problem, the one that concerns me the most, is that we have no long-term strategy to shape the future. . . . Despite our power, we must resist the temptation of believing we can fix every problem, indulge in every wish. Part of our strategy must be to decide what we cannot do, what we choose not to do, and to ensure that others take up their responsibilities. . . . So even as we revel in our good fortune, my greatest hope is that we will use this gift of time to plan for the future, unhurried, uncoerced, but mindful of the task at hand, aware that our opportunity to do so is a mortal one. The choice is clear: We can either shape the future or have it shape us. A century ago, Britain stood majestically at the height of her power. Within 40 years, the knife was at her throat, and she survived only because the United States was there to rescue her. But, Mr. Secretary, as you are well aware, there is no one to rescue us. That is why we must think long and hard about how we can use the opportunities that Providence and the labors of two centuries have provided us to so shape the world that the need for rescue never occurs.”

A Congressman for 32 years, a Chairman for 6 years of the Judiciary Committee and for another 6 years of the International Relations Committee, HENRY has been a pro- digious lawmaker. With uncanny skill, determination and grace, he has crafted numerous, historic bipartisan laws and common sense policies that have lifted people out of poverty, helped alleviate disease, strengthened the U.S. Code to protect victims and get the criminals off the streets and has been magnificent in his defense of democracy and freedom both here and overseas.

One of his many legislative accomplishments includes the adoption of the President’s Emergency Plan For AIDS Relief (PEPFAR), a 5-year $15 billion plan to combat HIV/AIDS, tuberculosis, and malaria. During the debate Chairman HYDE was positively incisive as he compared the HIV/AIDS crisis to the Bubonic plague of the 14th century—the dark death—and challenged us to enact a comprehensive program, which we did, to rescue the sick, assist the dying and prevent the contagion from spreading.

Having served with this brilliant one-of-a-kind lawmaker for my 26 years here, I hope HENRY HYDE will continue to lead and so many others—will truly miss him. He is as irreplaceable as irreplaceable can get. Mr. BUYER. Madam. Speaker. I rise to salute one of the greatest Members of this body, HENRY HYDE.

Congressman HYDE has a distinguished career in public service, beginning with his service in the Navy during World War II. Following service in the Illinois General Assembly, Mr. HYDE won election to the House of Representatives in 1974, admittedly a tough year for Republicans.

It was not long before HENRY’s leadership and steadfastness to principle became apparent to this House. HENRY has been a stalwart defender of the rights of the unborn, and has pushed the Congress to see clearly the impact of its decisions on the defenseless.

I have been honored to serve with HENRY while he was Chairman of the Judiciary Committee, enduring long markups to move the Contract with America legislation, equipping our law enforcement with the tools to fight terrorism, and combating the scourge of drugs in our society.

His amiable personality hides an individual who doesn’t shy from a fight, especially for upholding the Constitution, the rule of law, and other interests of the United States.

He is a true giant in this House. His presence next Congress will be missed and I am honored to call him friend.

GENERAL LEAVE
Mr. KIRK. Madam Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material on the matter of my Special Order today.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Illinois?

There was no objection.

CONFERENCE REPORT ON H.R. 5682, HENRY J. HYDE UNITED STATES-INDIA PEACEFUL ATOMIC ENERGY COOPERATION ACT OF 2006
Mr. Boehner (during the Special Order) Mr. KIRK submitted the following conference report and statement on the bill (H.R. 5682) to exempt from certain requirements of the Atomic Energy Act of 1946 a proposed nuclear agreement for cooperation with India:

CONFERENCE REPORT (H. Rept. 109-721)

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 5682), to exempt from certain requirements of the Atomic Energy Act of 1946 a proposed nuclear agreement for cooperation with India:

In lieu of the matter proposed to be inserted by the Senate amendment, insert the following:

TITLE I—UNITED STATES AND INDIA NUCLEAR COOPERATION
SEC. 101. SHORT TITLE
This title may be cited as the ‘‘Henry J. Hyde United States-India Peaceful Atomic Energy Cooperation Act of 2006’’.

SEC. 102. SENSE OF CONGRESS
It is the sense of Congress that—
(1) preventing the proliferation of nuclear weapons, other weapons of mass destruction, the means to produce them, and the means to deliver them are critical objectives for United States foreign policy;
(2) sustaining the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty (NPT) and strengthening its implementation, particularly its verification and compliance, is the keystone of United States non-proliferation policy;
(3) the NPT has been a significant success in preventing the acquisition of nuclear weapons capabilities and maintaining a stable international security situation;
(4) countries that have never become a party to the NPT and remain outside that treaty’s legal regime pose a potential challenge to the achievement of the overall goals of global non-proliferation, because those countries have not undertaken the NPT obligation to prohibit the spread of nuclear weapons capabilities;
(5) it is in the interest of the United States to the fullest extent possible to ensure that those countries that are not States Party to the NPT are responsible in the disposition of any nuclear technology they develop;
(6) it is in the interest of the United States to enter into an agreement for cooperation arranged pursuant to section 122 of the Atomic Energy Act of 1946 (42 U.S.C. 2153) with a country that has never been a State Party to the NPT if—
(A) the country has demonstrated responsible behavior with respect to the nonproliferation of technology related to nuclear weapons and the means to deliver them; (B) the country has a functioning and uninterrupted democratic system of government, has a functioning and non-militarized government, the United States, and is working with the United States on key foreign policy initiatives related to nonproliferation; (C) the country's export control system enables the country to implement and supplement substantially improved protection and technology proliferation-related to nuclear weapons and the means to deliver them and to refrain from actions that would further the development of its nuclear weapons program; and (D) such cooperation will contribute to the country's ability to control the proliferation of nuclear weapons, fissile material, and the means to deliver such weapons.

(3) The United States should continue its policy of engagement, collaboration, and exchanges with India and Pakistan.

(4) I n General.—(a) Full participation in the Proliferation Security Initiative. (b) Formal commitment to the Statement of Principles of such Initiative.

(c) Public announcement of its decision to conform its export control laws, regulations, and policies with the Australia Group and with the Guidelines, Procedures, Criteria, and Control Lists of the Wassenaar Arrangement on Export Controls.

(g) Seek to enhance the increase of nuclear weapons arsenals in South Asia and to promote their reduction and eventual elimination.

(h) Ensure that spent fuel generated in India’s civilian nuclear power reactors is not transferred to the United States except pursuant to the Congressional review procedures required under section 131 of the Atomic Energy Act of 1954 (42 U.S.C. 2161(b)).

(7) The NSG has decided by consensus to permit a moratorium on the production of fissile material for nuclear explosive purposes by India, Pakistan, and the People’s Republic of China.

(2) Achieve, at the earliest possible date, the NSG moratorium on the production of fissile material for nuclear explosive purposes by India, Pakistan, and the People’s Republic of China.

TITILE II—UNITED STATES ADDITIONAL PROTOCOL IMPLEMENTATION

SEC. 201. SHORT TITLE.

This title may be cited as the “United States Additional Protocol Implementation Act”.

SEC. 202. FINDINGS.

Congress makes the following findings:

(1) The proliferation of nuclear weapons and other nuclear explosive devices poses a grave threat to the national security of the United States and its vital national interests.

(2) The Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty has proven critical to limiting such proliferation.

(3) The United States and other Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty States must conclude a comprehensive safeguards agreement with the IAEA, and such agreements are essential to a comprehensive approach to non-proliferation.

(4) Recent events emphasize the urgency of strengthening the effectiveness and improving the efficiency of the safeguards system. This can be accomplished by providing IAEA inspections with more information about, and broader access to, nuclear activities within the territory of non-nuclear-weapon States.

(5) The proposed scope of such expanded information and access has been negotiated by the member states of the IAEA in the form of an Additional Protocol and related safeguards agreements, and universal acceptance of Additional Protocols by non-nuclear weapons states is essential to enhancing the effectiveness of the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty.

(6) On June 12, 1998, the United States, as a nuclear-weapon State Party, signed an Additional Protocol to its Model Additional Protocol, but which also contains measures, consistent with its existing safeguards agreements with its members, that protect the United States from the abatement of IAEA safeguards to locations and activities with direct national security significance or to locations or information associated with such activities.

(7) Implementation of the Additional Protocol in the United States in a manner consistent with United States obligations under the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty and the United States will not allow any inspection activities, nor make any declaration of any information with respect to, locations, information, and activities of direct national security significance to the United States.

(8) Implementation of the Additional Protocol will conform to the principles set forth in the Additional Protocol, but which also contains measures, consistent with its existing safeguards agreements with its members, that protect the United States from the abatement of IAEA safeguards to locations and activities with direct national security significance to the United States.

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—HOUSE

Administration deemed to be impediments to conducting civil nuclear cooperation with India. Section 123(a)(2) of the AEA requires that a non-nuclear weapon state have IAEA safeguards on all nuclear material and peaceful nuclear activities in that state, under its jurisdiction, or carried out under its control anywhere (commonly referred to as “outside the United States”) as a condition of entry into force of a 123 agreement with India. Finally, Section 129 requires the termination of nuclear exports if a non-nuclear weapon state has, among other things, tested nuclear weapons after 1978, which India did in 1998. There are waivers available to the President for these provisions in existing law. But the standard for such a waiver is very high.

In addition, international civil nuclear commerce is restricted pursuant to the Guidelines for Nuclear Transfers of the Nuclear Suppliers Group (NSG). The NSG, which is comprised of 44 countries, permits such trade with countries only when the receiving State has brought into force an agreement with the IAEA requiring the application of the NSG guidelines on all sources of fissile material in its current and future peaceful activities.

The Administration's proposed legislation would allow the President to permanently waive these provisions for India, subject to the President's determination that India had achieved certain benchmarks for engaging in international civil nuclear commerce. These benchmarks include the NSG guidelines and decisions. Equally important is the need to ensure that U.S. cooperation does not assist the Indian nuclear weapons program, directly or indirectly, in any way.

Under existing law, a nuclear cooperation agreement with a country that does have full-scope safeguards and that satisfies other criteria under 123a, of the AEA would come into force 90 days after its submission for congressional review. Unless a resolution of disapproval is passed in both Houses, the agreement takes effect. In practice, it is very difficult to secure passage of such resolutions because a veto by the President can prevent the resolution from becoming law. Furthermore, the President can make a determination that the agreement grants the President the ability to waive existing provisions of section 129 of the AEA, which mandates the termination of U.S. civil nuclear exports to a country if that country tests a nuclear explosive device, terminates or abrogates IAEA safeguards, materially violates an IAEA safeguards agreement, or engages in nuclear activities related to nuclear proliferation.

Thus, the Conference agreement provides that the President must terminate all export and reexport of U.S. nuclear material, equipment, and sensitive nuclear technology to India. The President must also terminate all export and reexport of U.S.-origin nuclear materials, nuclear equipment, and sensitive nuclear technology to India. The Conference agreement states that the President must terminate all export and reexport of U.S.-origin nuclear materials, nuclear equipment, and sensitive nuclear technology to India. The President must also terminate all export and reexport of U.S.-origin nuclear materials, nuclear equipment, and sensitive nuclear technology to India. The President must also terminate all export and reexport of U.S.-origin nuclear materials, nuclear equipment, and sensitive nuclear technology to India. The President must also terminate all export and reexport of U.S.-origin nuclear materials, nuclear equipment, and sensitive nuclear technology to India.
The House International Relations Committee and the Senate Foreign Relations Committee studied carefully the implications of the proposed agreement for non-proliferation and both committees are concerned about the precedent this exception for India could establish and worked to ensure that this agreement does not under-cut U.S. policy. Delhi’s commitment to implement strong export controls, separate its civilian nuclear infrastructure from its weapons program, and place additional civilian facilities under IAEA safeguards in an agreement for peaceful nuclear cooperation with India approved by Congress according to the procedures and conditions of this conference report would be a powerful incentive for India to cooperate more closely with the United States in stopping proliferation and to abate from further nuclear weapons tests.

The Administration’s decision to establish an increasingly close relationship with this country, which possesses a large nuclear potential, and to believe that the U.S. welcomes India’s advancement as a major economic and political player on the world stage represents a new and strategic opportunity to advance U.S. goals. Given that India already possesses a vibrant democracy, a rapidly growing economy, and a well-educated middle class greater than the entire U.S. population, it can serve as an engine of global economic growth. Its increasing economic, military, and political power may also contribute to increasing stability in South Asia and other regions.

India has the potential to become a valued partner in countering the rise of extremism around the world as both countries can cooperate to promote religious pluralism, tolerance, and democratic freedoms. As a country with well-enfranchised democratic traditions and the world’s second largest Hindu population, India can set an example of a multi-religious and multi-cultural democracy in an otherwise volatile region. The hope that the conference agreement will help solidify India’s commitments to implement strong export controls, separate its civilian nuclear infrastructure from its weapons program, and place additional civilian facilities under IAEA safeguards. An agreement for peaceful nuclear cooperation with India approved by Congress according to the procedures and conditions of this conference report would be a powerful incentive for India to cooperate more closely with the United States in stopping proliferation and abating from additional tests of nuclear weapons. The conferences, along with both Houses, place great emphasis on their expectations of India’s full cooperation with efforts by the U.S. and the international community to prevent Iran from acquiring the capability to produce nuclear weapons will be forthcoming.

India is already assuming a more prominent role in world affairs. Its votes in the IAEA Board of Governors in September 2005 and February 2006 regarding Iran’s likely efforts to acquire a nuclear weapons capability are evidence that the Government of India is able and willing to adopt a more constructive and non-proliferation related policy. The Conferences believe the test true test of the wisdom of this legislation, which will be the effectiveness of India’s new commitments, regarding non-proliferation, can be judged only over time. India is determined to secure a more prominent role in global affairs. This agreement will provide it with enhanced incentives to use its rapidly expanding influence to promote regional and international stability, respect for international law, and the peace and security of all nations.

SECTION-BY-SECTION ANALYSIS AND DISCUSSION

TITLE I—UNITED STATES AND INDIA NUCLEAR COOPERATION

Section 101 shall be cited as the “Henry J. Hyde United States-India Peaceful Atomic Energy Cooperation Act of 2006”.

Section 102. Sense of Congress

Section 102 combines provisions relating to the Sense of the Senate bill and those relating to the Sense of the House bill in the Senate amendment. It expresses the Sense of Congress regarding the nuclear non-proliferation regime and the principles that should guide the United States in entering into an agreement on nuclear cooperation with a country that has never been a State Party to the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty (NPT). Paragraph (1) states that preventing the proliferation of nuclear weapons, other weapons of mass destruction (WMD), and the means to deliver them are critical to American foreign policy.

Paragraph (2) states that sustaining the NPT and strengthening its implementation is the cornerstone of United States nuclear policy. Paragraph (3) states that the NPT has been a significant success in preventing the spread of nuclear weapons capabilities to other countries and in maintaining a stable international non-proliferation regime.

Further, the United States believes that non-proliferation and other security-related measures are necessary to prevent and contain nuclear weapons proliferation and protect the global nuclear non-proliferation regime. Paragraph (4) states that countries that have never become a party to the NPT and remain outside that treaty’s legal regime pose a potential threat to the overall goals of global non-proliferation because those countries have not undertaken the NPT’s international obligation to prohibit the spread of nuclear weapons, other weapons of mass destruction (WMD), and the means to deliver them and also to refrain from actions that threaten the development of its nuclear weapons program and that such cooperation will induce the country to give greater political and material support to the United States in key foreign policy initiatives related to non-proliferation; such cooperation induces the country to promote countering the proliferation of nuclear weapons and the means to deliver them; the country has a functioning and uninterrupted democratic system of government, has a foreign policy that is congruent with that of the United States; that it is consistent with the United States and other countries has the right to peacefully cooperate with any State Party that it and that it is consistent with the United States and other countries has the right to peaceably cooperate with any State Party that is a member of the Nuclear Suppliers Group (NSG). Paragraph (5) states that the United States should not seek to facilitate or encourage the continuation of nuclear exports to India by any other party if such exports are terminated under United States laws.

Section 103. Statements of policy

Section 103 contains provisions from the House bill and from the Senate amendment and sets forth two sets of policies of the United States; those general in nature and those specific to South Asia.

Subsection (a) states that it shall be the policy of the United States to:

1. Oppose the development of a capability to produce nuclear weapons by any non-nuclear weapon state, within or outside of the NPT.

2. Encourage States Party to the NPT to interpret the right to “develop research, production and use of nuclear energy for peaceful purposes,” as set forth in Article IV of the NPT, as being a right that applies only to the extent that it is consistent with the purpose of the NPT to prevent the spread of nuclear weapons and nuclear weapons capable technologies.

3. Act in a manner fully consistent with the NSG guidelines concerning nuclear transfers and transfers of nuclear-related dual-use items.

4. Strengthen the NSG guidelines concerning nuclear transfers and transfers of nuclear-related dual-use items.

5. Given the special sensitivity of equipment and technologies related to the enrichment of uranium, the reprocessing of spent fuel and global non-proliferation objectives, especially with respect to dissuading, isolating, and, if necessary, sanctioning and containing states that sponsor terrorism and terrorist groups and that are seeking to acquire a nuclear weapons capability or other WMD capability and the means to deliver such weapons, the United States should continue its policy of engagement, collaboration, and exchanges with and between India and Pakistan. Paragraph (8) states that strong bilateral relations with India are in the national interest of the United States. Paragraph (9) states that the United States and India share common democratic values and the potential for an enduring and sustainable agreement. Paragraph (10) states that commerce in civil nuclear energy with India by the United States and other countries has the potential to benefit the people of all countries.

Paragraph (11) states that civil nuclear commerce with India represents a significant challenge for U.S. policy. Countries not parties to the NPT and stresses that the NPT remains the foundation of the international non-proliferation regime. Paragraph (12) states that any commerce in civil nuclear energy with India by the United States and other countries must be achieved in a manner that minimizes the risk of nuclear proliferation or regional arms races and maximizes India’s adherence to international non-proliferation regimes, including, in particular, the guidelines of the Nuclear Suppliers Group. Paragraph (13) states that the United States should not seek to facilitate or encourage the continuation of nuclear exports to India by any other party if such exports are terminated under United States laws.
the Atomic Energy Act of 1954 (42 U.S.C. 2101 et seq.), or any other United States law.

Regarding the second statement, the conference note that the NPT was conceived for the sole purpose of preventing the proliferation of nuclear weapons and nuclear explosive devices, as stated in the Preamble and its first three Articles. All provisions of the NPT must be interpreted within the context of preventing the proliferation of nuclear weapons and nuclear explosive devices. The conferees believe strongly that no bilateral objective, including that of a country’s “inalienable right to develop research, production and use of nuclear energy for peaceful purposes without discrimination” as contemplated by Articles I, II, and III, which obligate each non-nuclear weapon State Party “not to manufacture or otherwise acquire nuclear weapons or other nuclear explosive devices.” The conferees believe that, because the processes of enriching uranium or separating plutonium for peaceful or military purposes are essentially identical, they inherently pose an enhanced risk of proliferation, even though the United States and other supplier countries have not provided convincing evidence that their nuclear activities are fully understood and exercised only insofar as they are consistent with the July 18, 2005, Joint Statement commitments. In such a circumstance, the conferees expect the United States and other supplier countries not to undermine U.S. sanctions.

On March 6, 2006, the Indian Prime Minister told the Indian Parliament that the U.S. should not supply nuclear fuel to India. The U.S. would then have to negotiate a new arrangement. This is a development that is important and positive turning point in the U.S.-India relationship. It does not mean, however, that the United States should sacrifice its long-standing efforts to prevent proliferation in South Asia. This subsection states that U.S. policy must be to continue to work for a multilateral treaty banning the production of fissile material; whether through Fissile Material Cut-off Treaty negotiations or, for example, through an agreement reached by all the countries that have fissile material for nuclear weapons purposes.

The conferees believe that India has a significant role to play in preventing the proliferation of dangerous nuclear technologies to other countries and that India has a significant role to play in preventing Iran from acquiring weapons of mass destruction, especially nuclear weapons. The conferees fully expect and look forward to the development of strong cooperative relationship with India. India will continue to work for a multilateral treaty banning the production of fissile material; whether through Fissile Material Cut-off Treaty negotiations or, for example, through an agreement reached by all the countries that have fissile material for nuclear weapons purposes.

The conferees believe also that India has a significant role to play in preventing the proliferation of dangerous nuclear technologies to other countries and that India has a significant role to play in preventing Iran from acquiring weapons of mass destruction, especially nuclear weapons. weapon state to manufacture or otherwise acquire nuclear weapons." Many non-proliferation experts have noted the need to avoid a nuclear arms race in South Asia, as well as the fact that U.S. assistance does not encourage India to increase its production of fissile material at unsafeguarded nuclear facilities. The conference reports that the non-critical cooperation of India will not be intended to inhibit India’s nuclear programs. At the same time, however, such cooperation must be conducted in a manner that does not support India’s nuclear weapons program. That is why the conference stress the need for effective safeguards on nuclear-related exports or reexports to India, the need for safeguards agreements in section 123(a) and (3) through (9) of section 123 of the Atomic Energy Act, and the need for any nuclear fuel reserve provided to the Government of India to be commensurate with reasonable reactor operating requirements, rather than of a size that would enable India to break its commitments or end its moratorium on nuclear testing and maintain its nuclear energy production despite unilateral or international sanctions.

Indian officials have publicly stated that under an agreement, India will be able to produce as much fissile material for weapons purposes as it desires. At the same time, however, many experts have said that there would be severe consequences for nuclear cooperation, for U.S.-Indian relations, and for the world-wide nuclear nonproliferation regime.

India’s March 2006 nuclear facility separation plan stated: “The United States will support an Indian effort to develop a strategic reserve of nuclear fuel to guard against any disruption of supply over the lifetime of India’s reactors.” Congress has not been able to determine precisely what was said on this matter in high-level U.S.-Indian discussions. U.S. officials testified, however, that the United States does not intend to help India build a stockpile of nuclear fuel for the purpose of committing the United States to be imposed in response to Indian actions such as conducting another nuclear test. The conference understands that nuclear reactor facilities in India are not capable of producing significant amounts of nuclear materials, so as to minimize down time when reactor cores are removed. They endorse the Senate proposal, however, that there be a clear U.S. policy that any fuel reserve provided to India should be commensurate with normal operating requirements for India’s safeguarded reactors.

Section 104. Waiver authority and Congressional approval

The conference agreement adopts the framework of the House bill, but adds a number of provisions from the Senate amendment.

Section 104(a) provides the President with authority to exempt an agreement for civil nuclear cooperation with India and nuclear exports under section 123 of the Atomic Energy Act of 1954 (AEA) that would otherwise present obstacles to approving and implementing an such an agreement. Specifically, the waiver authority applies to sections 123(a)(2), 128, and 129.

Both the House of Representatives and the Senate concurred with the administration regarding the requirement to requalify for the noncritical operation requirement in section 123(a)(2) of the AEA, which would otherwise require that India agree to put all its nuclear facilities under IAEA safeguards. They concluded, in particular, that the Executive branch would be unable to meet the standard in existing law in the absence of specific language to support from this requirement, namely that failure to make the proposed exception/waiver would be "seriously prejudicial to the achievement of the United States national objectives in or otherwise jeopardize the common defense and security." The conferences recommend allowing the President to exempt an agreement, consistent with the requirements in section 123(a)(2) of the AEA without making this determination. Instead, subsection 104(a) requires the President to make the determination in subsection 104(b).

The conference emphasize their intent, however, that section 123(a)(2) be the only portion of the bill that requires approval. Their recommendation provides relief. The Executive branch will still be required to coordinate and submit to Congress a Nuclear Ferra-lation Assessment Statement under section 123. In addition, an agreement for cooperation with India will still have to meet the requirements of sections 123(a)(1) and (3) through (9), while the agreement can be approved by a joint resolution of approval.

The conferees recommend subsection
104(e), moreover, which amends section 123 a.
1 of the AEA so as to make clear that an agreement for cooperation with India in which the President has exercised the waiver provided by subsection 104(a) of this title will be considred under existing AEA procedures for approval of an agreement for cooperation exempted from one of the requirements of section 123 a. These procedures provide for expedited consideration of a joint resolution of approval, but require that the agreement to enter into force unless and until a joint resolution of approval is enacted. Parliamentary practice in the two houses of Congress is that the expedited joint resolution will not contain any conditions to their approval of the agreement and will not be subject to amendment. Congress could pass a joint resolution of approval with conditions, but would have to proceed without benefit of the expedited procedures offered by sections 123 and 130 of the AEA.

Section 104(b) provides the President authority to waive section 128 of the AEA with respect to exports to India, without the additional limitations proposed in the House bill. It allows the President to waive the restrictions of section 129 a.(1)(A) of the AEA for any activity that occurred on or before July 18, 2005, and also to waive the restrictions of section 129 a.(1)(D). This would provide authority to waive a termination of nuclear exports that would otherwise occur because of President Clinton’s determination that India had tested a nuclear explosive device in 1998, while keeping in place the requirement to cut off exports of fissile material in the future. It would also provide waiver authority for cessation of U.S. nuclear exports to India in the event that the President determines that India has "engaged in activities involving source or special nuclear material and and having direct significance for the manufacture or acquisition of nuclear explosive de-VICES, and has failed to take steps which, in the President’s judgment, represent sufficient progress toward terminating such activities." This waiver will be necessary because India’s current enrichment program, which will continue under the agreement, would otherwise provide India with significant latitude regarding their completion. But the conferences believe that none of these conditions, either singly or in combination with others, is onerous. In addition, although they did not impose any rigorous measures or deadlines, the conferences intend that considerable substantive progress on the ongoing measures can be demonstrated, including cooperation with the United States to prevent the spread of enrichment and reprocessing technology and its taking steps to strengthen its export laws and regulations.

The House bill required a determination that India and the IAEA have "achieved a significant degree of enforcement of the safeguards agreement," which will be provided when an agreement with India is submitted to Congress, is what will actually come into effect. The conferences believe that there will be a delay between the approval of a safeguards agreement and the date of its entry into

(1) India has provided the United States and the International Atomic Energy Agency with a credible plan to separate civil and military nuclear facilities, materials, and programs, and has filed a declaration regarding its civil facilities and materials with the IAEA.

(2) India and the IAEA have concluded all legal steps required prior to signature by the parties of an agreement requiring the application of safeguards and providing for cooperation in accordance with IAEA standards, principles, and practices (including IAEA Board of Governors Resolution GOV/161(1973)) to India’s civil nuclear facilities, materials, and progress as declared in its separation plan, including materials used in or produced through the use of India’s civil nuclear fa-
force. They understand also that India may be wary of signing a safeguards agreement with the IAEA before an agreement for cooperation with the United States has been approved.

The conferees recommend that the President be required to determine that India and the United States have concluded all legal requirements prior to the signature of a safeguards agreement that conforms to IAEA standards, principles, and practices. They have been assured that signature is the final step in the process of negotiating and approving a safeguards agreement. Normally, safeguards agreements enter into force upon signature, subject to the Senate's consideration under its treaty-making power. However, Congress must be confident that the India-IAEA safeguards agreement text it is shown when an agreement for cooperation is submitted is, in fact, what will be signed and come into force. The conferees believe that Congress will be able to rely upon a text that has gone through all legal steps required prior to signature by the parties.

With regard to Indian adherence to the MTCR and the NSG, the conferees understand that there are specific procedures that a country uses to unilaterally adhere to such regimes. The conferees also understand that the Government of India is aware of these processes.

Paragraph (7) requires a presidential determination that the Nuclear Suppliers Group has decided by consensus to permit supply to India of any equipment, material or technology covered by any of the guidelines of the NSG. The conferees believe that it is vital to maintain the role and effectiveness of the NSG, a position which is consistent with statements by senior Administration officials. This provision ensures that the NSG will change its guidelines, or grant an exemption from them, only in accordance with its longstanding practice that all such changes require consensus among its participating governments.

Subsection (c) requires the President to submit to the House International Relations Committee and the Senate Foreign Relations Committee the determination described in subsection (b) and a report regarding this determination that includes:

(1) summaries and copies of India's separation plan and of its declaration of which of its civil nuclear facilities will be safeguarded under IAEA safeguards, including an analysis of the credibility of the plan and declaration;
(2) an summary of the safeguards agreement between India and the IAEA, including a copy of the agreement and a description of progress toward its full implementation;
(3) a summary of the progress made toward concluding and implementing an Additional Protocol between India and the IAEA, including a description of the scope of that Additional Protocol;
(4) a description of the steps India is taking to work with the United States for the conclusion of a multilateral treaty banning the transfer of nuclear technology and nuclear weapons, including a description of the steps the United States has taken and will take to encourage India to identify and declare a date by which India would be willing to stop production of fissionable material for nuclear weapons unilaterally or pursuant to a multilateral moratorium or treaty;
(5) a summary of the steps India is taking to prevent the spread of nuclear-related technology, including enrichment and reprocessing technology or materials that can be used in nuclear weapons technology, as well as the support that India is providing to the United States to restrict the spread of such technology;
(6) a summary of the steps that India is taking to secure materials and technology applicable for the development, acquisition, or manufacture of weapons of mass destruction and the means to deliver such weapons through the application of comprehensive export control legislation and regulations, including and in addition to the MTCR, NSG, Australia Group, and Wassenaar Arrangement guidelines, as well as compliance with United Nations Security Council Resolutions and relevant United Nations Security Council Resolutions and the Proliferation Security Initiative;
(7) a description and assessment of the specific measures that India has taken to fully and actively cooperate with the United States and international efforts to dissuade, isolate, and, if necessary, sanction and contain Iran for its efforts to acquire weapons of mass destruction, including its fissile material production capability and the capability to enrich uranium or reprocess nuclear fuel, and the means to deliver weapons of mass destruction;
(8) a description of the NSG decision regarding India, including whether such cooperation will include the provision of enrichment and reprocessing technology; and
(9) a description of the scope of peaceful cooperation envisioned by the United States and India that will be implemented under the guidelines of the NSG, including whether such cooperation will include the provision of enrichment and reprocessing technology.

Subsection (d) requires that this report also include a description of the progress India is making toward its full and active implementation of its safeguards agreement with India in this bill, it is particularly important. The conferees believe that India’s full and active participation in U.S. and international efforts to have full-scope safeguards. In making an exception for a future nuclear cooperation agreement with India, it is paramount to ensure that nothing in such cooperation would undermine India's commitment to abide by Article I of the NPT.

Section 104(d) is one of several provisions in the bill intended to ensure that any civil nuclear cooperation between the United States and India is consistent with Article I of the NPT and weakens the nuclear nonproliferation regime. This provision contributes to the achievement of this objective by prohibiting the transfer of nuclear material to India in the event that the United States determines that India is not a signatory to the NPT or that transfer would be inconsistent with either of the aforementioned NSG guidelines as in effect on the date of the transfer. No waiver authority is provided to permit transfers to be made notwithstanding this restriction.

This restriction will ensure that U.S.-India nuclear cooperation continues to be carried out through the framework of NSG guidelines and policies of the NSG. The Administration has expressed confidence that the NSG will adjust its guidelines in order to permit civil nuclear cooperation along the lines contemplated by the July 18, 2005, Joint Statement of President Bush and Prime Minister V. P. Singh of India. Secretary of Energy Spencer Abraham and Secretary of Defense Donald Rumsfeld have publicly assured Congress, by means of a letter dated June 28, 2006, to Senate Foreign Relations Committee Chairman Richard Lugar, that: "* * * in carrying out the laws and regulations of the United States governing the export of nuclear-related items, the United States Government will continue to act in accordance with IAEA INFCIRC/254, as amended, the Guidelines and Annexes of the Nuclear Suppliers Group, and will also ensure that action taken to act within the policies and practices of the decisions taken by the Nuclear Suppliers Group with respect to India. We intend to do so not only with respect to India, but with any other participating countries in the Nuclear Suppliers Group."

Section 104(d)(3) reflects the importance the conferences attach to India's commitments in the July 18, 2005, Joint Statement to secure its nuclear materials and nuclear and missile technology through comprehensive export control and through verification and adherence to MTCTR and NSG guidelines. These two steps are critical to bringing India closer to the nonproliferation mainsteam, and to enhancing the benefits to U.S. cooperation. Under the Administration, the failure to conform to these nuclear and missile export control guidelines or to exercise jurisdiction, would represent a failure by India to meet the nonproliferation standards expected of other responsible states.

This provision mandates termination of exports under an agreement for cooperation in the SILEX uranium enrichment project. The conferees intend that the SILEX project not proceed unless the President determines that it will be in the interest and applicable to the United States. This termination would apply if the United States Government opted to expand cooperation to include fuel cycle services (which can provide plutonium for weapons), the reprocessing of spent nuclear fuel (which can provide plutonium for weapons), or the production of heavy water (which is used in reactors that produce weapons-grade plutonium and tritium as byproducts). In circumstances that provide assurance that this technology would not be diverted to another site, facility, location, or program not associated with and under safeguards and assurances approved by the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA).

India's production of heavy water, operations heavy-water moderated reactors, reprocesses spent nuclear fuel, and has a limited uranium enrichment capability. Only a portion of India's facilities will be under IAEA safeguards, and sensitive nuclear technologies will reside within secure, safeguarded and un-safeguarded facilities. The conferences seek to ensure that the United States does not provide, even inadvertently, assistance to India that will advance its development of these technologies for non-civilian purposes. Assistance should be viewed as a violation of U.S. obligations under Article I of the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty.

The conferences intend that no licenses be issued pursuant to Parts 110 and 116 of Title 10 of the Code of Federal Regulations by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) and the Secretary of Energy except under the requirements of subparagraph (B) of section 104(d)(4). Such a restriction on transfers to the United States Government or under section 123 of the Atomic Energy Act would restrict access to heavy-water related technologies.

The conferences make it clear that only a portion of the uranium is to be used for peaceful purposes. The conferees note that the Administration has already stipulated that "full civil nuclear cooperation," the term used in the July 18, 2005, Joint Statement between President Bush and Prime Minister V. P. Singh, will not include enrichment or reprocessing technology. This is consistent with President Bush's February 11, 2004, speech at the National Defense University, in which he stated that, as India has already stated, that enrichment and reprocessing are not necessary for nations seeking to harness nuclear energy for peaceful purposes. The conferences note that section 104(d)(4) requires that all areas of cooperation must specify if enriched uranium, reprocessed or heavy water production or reprocessing are covered in the agreement.

The conferences recommend an additional provision, not contained in the original Senate bill, that would add a requirement that appropriate measures will be in place to ensure that no sensitive nuclear technology (SNT), as defined in section 4(g)(5) of the Nuclear Nonproliferation Act of 1978 (22 U.S.C. 2403(5)), will be diverted to any person, site, facility, location, or program not under IAEA safeguards.

The conferences believe that this language is necessary to ensure that cooperation related to the enrichment of uranium (which can be used to make highly-enriched uranium for weapons), the reprocessing of spent nuclear fuel (which can provide plutonium for weapons), or the production of heavy water (which is used in reactors that produce weapons-grade plutonium and tritium as byproducts), will remain subject to safeguards and circumstances that provide assurance that this technology would not be diverted to another site, facility, location, or program not associated with and under safeguards and assurances approved by the International Atomic Energy Agency. This is a condition that is consistent with President Bush and Indian Prime Minister Singh, will achieve its goals of bringing India closer to the nonproliferation guidelines. These two steps are critical to securing India's nuclear materials and nuclear and missile technology. The conferees intend that the SILEX project not proceed unless the President determines that it will be in the interest of the United States. This termination would apply if the United States Government opted to expand cooperation to include fuel cycle services (which can provide plutonium for weapons), the reprocessing of spent nuclear fuel (which can provide plutonium for weapons), or the production of heavy water (which is used in reactors that produce weapons-grade plutonium and tritium as byproducts). In circumstances that provide assurance that this technology would not be diverted to another site, facility, location, or program not associated with and under safeguards and assurances approved by the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA).

India. Such an agreement would not be pursuant to the terms of this title, and would have to be submitted under the existing exemption authority contained in section 123 of the Title

Section 104(d)(5) contains broad requirements for a nuclear export accountability program that is consistent with United States allegations and re-exports of nuclear materials, equipment, and technology sold, leased, exported, or reexported to India. Such an agreement would also have to be submitted under the existing exemption authority contained in section 123 of the Atomic Energy Act of 1946. The purpose of this provision is to make clear that the U.S.-India agreement on civil nuclear cooperation, even if exempted from subsection (a)(2) of section 123, may enter into force only if approved by Congress by a joint resolution of approval, consistent with title II of each agreement; (2) the name or names of the authorized end user or end users; (3) the name of the site, facility, or location in India to which the export or reexport would be directed; and (4) the terms and conditions included on such licenses and authorizations; (5) any postshipment verification procedures that will be applied to such exports or reexports; and (6) a description of the verification, or reexport to India of nuclear materials and equipment; and with respect to each such license or other form of authorization as described: (1) the number or other identifying number of each license.

Section 104(d)(6) provides a large degree of flexibility to the President. Clause (B)(i) and (ii) require sufficient measures to ensure that the IAEA IAEA-safeguards agreement for each U.S. export or reexport to India under parts 110 and 810 of title 10, Code of Federal Regulations, or the equivalent NSG guidelines or decisions, or any such trade that is not consistent with applicable NSG guidelines or decisions, or would not meet the standards applied to exports or reexports of such material, equipment, or technology of United States origin.

In addition, the report must include either an assessment that India is in full compliance with the commitments and obligations contained in the agreements and other documents referenced above; or an identification of any significant nuclear commerce between India and the United States, including any such trade that is not consistent with applicable NSG guidelines or decisions, or would not meet the standards applied to exports or reexports of such material, equipment, or technology of United States origin.

The report must also include information regarding any significant nuclear commerce between India and other countries, including any such trade that is not consistent with applicable NSG guidelines or decisions, or would not meet the standards applied to exports or reexports of such material, equipment, or technology of United States origin.

The report must also include information regarding any significant nuclear commerce between India and other countries, including any such trade that is not consistent with applicable NSG guidelines or decisions, or would not meet the standards applied to exports or reexports of such material, equipment, or technology of United States origin.
Fissile Material Cut-off Treaty; the responses of India and Pakistan to such efforts; and assistance that the United States is providing, or would be able to provide, to India to help promote the aforementioned national and regional progress by India and Pakistan.

The report must also contain an estimate of the amount of uranium mined and used in India during the previous year, the amount of such uranium that has likely been used or allocated for the production of nuclear explosive devices, and the rate of production in India of fissile material for nuclear explosive devices and of nuclear explosive devices, along with an estimate of the amount of India’s nonproliferation policies, the Proliferation Security Initiative and formal commitment to the Statement of Interdiction Principles of the PSI, public announcements of decisions to control export control laws, regulations, and policies with the Australia Group and with the Guidelines, Procedures, Criteria, and Controls in the Memorandum of Understanding and the implementation of these decisions.

Finally, this report requires information regarding the disposal during the previous year of spent nuclear fuel from India’s civilian nuclear program, and any plans or activities relating to future disposal of such spent nuclear fuel.

Section 105. United States compliance with its Nuclear Nonproliferation Treaty obligations

Sec. 105 states that nothing in this title constitutes a requirement or authorization of an obligation of the United States under the NPT. As stated earlier in this report, the conference intends the NPT to be the cornerstone of U.S. nonproliferation and nonproliferation policy. They expect the Executive branch to keep its NPT obligations in mind when considering each export or reexport, transfer, or retransfer pursuant to an agreement for cooperation, and especially pursuant to any agreement that is not a State Party to the NPT.

Section 106. Insoperability of determination and waivers

Sec. 106 states that a determination and any waiver under section 104 shall cease to be effective if the President determines that India has used or allocated for the production of nuclear explosive devices, and the rate of production in India of fissile material for nuclear explosive devices and of nuclear explosive devices, along with an estimate of the amount of India’s nonproliferation policies, the Proliferation Security Initiative and formal commitment to the Statement of Interdiction Principles of the PSI, public announcements of decisions to control export control laws, regulations, and policies with the Australia Group and with the Guidelines, Procedures, Criteria, and Controls in the Memorandum of Understanding and the implementation of these decisions.

An ‘MTCR Adherent’ is a specially defined status in terms of Section 73 of the missile controls law that is equivalent to the missile sanctions law. An ‘MTCR Adherent,’ as defined in Section 73 of the missile sanctions law, is a country that ‘participates in the United States under the AECA; or if a foreign person facilitates such an export, transfer, or trade by any other person; or if the President has made a determination with respect to a waiver under section 118(b)(1) of the Export Administration Act of 1979 (50 U.S.C. App. 2411b(b)(1)).

Section 73 of the AECA defines the MTCR adherents if the export in question is ‘any export, transfer, or trading activity that is authorized by the laws of an MTCR adherent, if it were United States-origin equipment obtained by misrepresentation or fraud’ or if the export, transfer, or trade of an item is to an end user in a country that is an MTCR adherent (section 73(b)). Section 73 also provides for the termination of sanctions when an MTCR adherent takes steps toward effective judicial enforcement against persons violating the MTCR.

Secretary Rice has stated that ‘India would not be considered an MTCR adherent’ as defined under Section 73 because ‘India has committed to unilaterally adhere to the Missile Technology Control Regime (MTCR) Guidelines. The missile sanctions law would generally still apply to a ‘unilateral adherent’ to the MTCR.

Unilateral adherence to the MTCR Guidelines means that India unilaterally commits to export controls and technology consistent with the MTCR Guidelines, including any subsequent changes to the MTCR Guidelines and Annex. Inter alia, this means that MTCR unilateral adherence countries need to have in place laws and regulations that permit them to control the export of MTCR Annex equipment and technology as consistent with the MTCR Guidelines.

An ‘MTCR Adherent’ is a specially defined status in terms of Section 73 of the missile controls law that is equivalent to the missile sanctions law. An ‘MTCR Adherent,’ as defined in Section 73 of the missile sanctions law, is a country that ‘participates in the United States under the AECA; or if a foreign person facilitates such an export, transfer, or trade by any other person; or if the President has made a determination with respect to a waiver under section 118(b)(1) of the Export Administration Act of 1979 (50 U.S.C. App. 2411b(b)(1)).

Section 73 of the AECA defines the MTCR adherents if the export in question is ‘any export, transfer, or trading activity that is authorized by the laws of an MTCR adherent, if it were United States-origin equipment obtained by misrepresentation or fraud’ or if the export, transfer, or trade of an item is to an end user in a country that is an MTCR adherent (section 73(b)). Section 73 also provides for the termination of sanctions when an MTCR adherent takes steps toward effective judicial enforcement against persons violating the MTCR.

Secretary Rice has stated that ‘India would not be considered an MTCR adherent’ as defined under Section 73 because ‘India has committed to unilaterally adhere to the Missile Technology Control Regime (MTCR) Guidelines. The missile sanctions law would generally still apply to a ‘unilateral adherent’ to the MTCR.

Unilateral adherence to the MTCR Guidelines means that India unilaterally commits to export controls and technology consistent with the MTCR Guidelines, including any subsequent changes to the MTCR Guidelines and Annex. Inter alia, this means that MTCR unilateral adherence countries need to have in place laws and regulations that permit them to control the export of MTCR Annex equipment and technology as consistent with the MTCR Guidelines.

An ‘MTCR Adherent’ is a specially defined status in terms of Section 73 of the missile controls law that is equivalent to the missile sanctions law. An ‘MTCR Adherent,’ as defined in Section 73 of the missile sanctions law, is a country that ‘participates in the United States under the AECA; or if a foreign person facilitates such an export, transfer, or trade by any other person; or if the President has made a determination with respect to a waiver under section 118(b)(1) of the Export Administration Act of 1979 (50 U.S.C. barred from using fissile material for military purposes. The conferences are further persuaded that these sections will not prevent the United States from exercising its obligations under the Additional Protocol. This is true even though section 254, also added by the Senate, limits the purpose that may be construed as covered by the phrase "necessary to broaden the capability of the IAEA to detect undeclared nuclear activities in a non-nuclear weapon state.

Subtitle F of title II, Protection of National Security Information and Activities, was added by the Senate. Section 261(a) provides that no current or former Department of Defense or Department of Energy location, site, or facility of direct national security significance shall be declared or be subject to inspection under the Additional Protocol. Similarly, under section 261(b), no information of direct national security significance regarding such locations, sites, or facilities shall be provided under the Additional Protocol. These requirements parallel statements that Administration officials have made for several years regarding how the Additional Protocol’s national security exemption will be implemented.

Sections 261(c) and 261(d) provide that nothing in this title shall be construed to permit the submission of information or disclosure to the IAEA or IAEA employees of restricted data controlled by the provisions of the Atomic Energy Act of 1954 or of national security information of other classified information. These provisions parallel an understanding in the resolution of ratification approved by the Senate in 2004 that the Additional Protocol would not require any such disclosure. The conferences note that these provisions do not bar the Executive branch, however, from using any other authority that it may possess to provide classified information to the IAEA.

Section 262(a) provides that no national of a country designated by the Secretary of State under section 629A of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 (22 U.S.C. 2371) as a government supporting acts of international terrorism shall be permitted access to the United States to carry out an inspection activity under the Additional Protocol or a related safeguards agreement. Both the Additional Protocol and the underlying U.S.-IAEA safeguards agreement allow the United States to bar individual inspectors from engaging in inspections in the United States, and the United States has routinely exercised that right as appropriate. The conferences note of no occasion on which a national of a state sponsor of terrorism has conducted an IAEA inspection in this country.

Section 262(b) requires that IAEA inspectors be accompanied at all times by U.S. Government personnel during inspections, locations, facilities, or activities in the United States under the Additional Protocol. The conferences understand that this provision will not require any change in current practices.

Section 262(c) provides that the President shall conduct vulnerability, counterintelligence, and related assessments not less than every 5 years to ensure that information of direct national security significance remains protected at all sites, locations, facilities, and activities in the United States that are subject to IAEA inspection under the Additional Protocol. The conferences understand that this title is enacted so that the Executive branch will resume such assessments.

Subtitle G of title II provides for several reports and investigative branches. Sections 271 through 273 provide for prior notice of sites, locations, facilities, and activities in the United States to be declared to the IAEA or removed from that status, along with the reasons for those decisions; and certification that the necessary security assessments have been conducted and appropriate measures taken to ensure that information of direct national security significance will not be compromised.

Section 274 provides for reports on: measures that have been or should be taken to achieve the adoption of additional protocols to existing safeguards agreements signed by non-nuclear-weapon States Party; and on assistance that has been provided or should be provided by the United States to the IAEA in order to promote the effective implementation of additional safeguards agreements signed by non-nuclear-weapon States Party and the verification of the compliance of such parties with IAEA obligations, with a plan for providing any needed additional funding. The conferences believe that the safeguards function is a vital element of U.S. nonproliferation policy and urge the Executive branch to maintain robust funding for U.S. assistance to the IAEA, taking into account the continuing need for improved safeguards in countries of concern, the additional safeguards load that the IAEA will have to bear when India begins to engage in large-scale civil nuclear commerce, and the likely advent of additional safeguards in both nuclear-weapon States under the Additional Protocol.

Section 275 provides that the President shall notify Congress of any notifications issued by the IAEA to the United States under Article 10 of the Additional Protocol. Article 10 says that the IAEA shall inform the United States of activities carried out under the Additional Protocol, under section 275, excluding those in response to questions or inconsistencies the IAEA has brought to the attention of the United States, the results of those IAEA activities, and the conclusions that the IAEA has drawn. Section 275 notifications will take place at least annually.

"SEC. 1119. AWARDS FOR DEMONSTRATION PROGRAMS BY LOCAL PARTNERSHIPS TO COERCET ABSTINENCE IN CHRONIC HARD-DRUG USERS UNDER COMMUNITY SUPERVISION THROUGH THE USE OF DRUG TESTING AND SANCTIONS.

I would also like to thank Judiciary Chairman SENSENIBRENNER, as well as the minority, for waiving the right to go to the Judiciary Committee. I know that is rare, but in our negotiations with the Senate, we had multiple changes over the last few days, and that was a very important waiver. His staff and the staff of Senator SPECTER in the Senate have been very important allies in moving this bill. Also Senators GRASSLEY, BIDEN, LEAHY and Specter have made multiple changes in this bill in the last few days, all of which I think have helped improve this bill. I very much appreciate the bipartisan spirit with which we are trying to pass anti-drug legislation.

Of course my friend and colleague, Congressman ELIJAH CUMMINGS, the ranking member, and I have had a great working relationship these past few years and have been able to tackle out of the toughest issues that is hitting both urban America, suburban America and rural America, together, and build a very close friendship during these years too and a passion. I know from his experience in Baltimore seeing firsthand the violence and violence and as a resident in the communities so hard hit, he brought a passion to this issue that has been very important. It has been a real privilege working together during this period.

I now would like to read my opening statement.

Across America, individuals, families and communities continue to be devastated by the scourge of drug abuse, and it remains one of the most pressing and unforgiving problems our country faces. This bill is largely the same language that the House passed on March 9 on a vote of 399-5, with some improvements that came from negotiations between other body and the administration.

It is a forceful and bipartisan recommitment to our broad national efforts to control drug abuse and to renew our support for strong leadership from the Office of National Drug Control Policy, often known as the Drug Czar. By renewing this authorization, we believe we will soon see an even better coordination of the President’s strategy to demonstrably reduce drug abuse by America’s young people and to control its sad consequences.

This reauthorization will preserve and improve our anti-drug efforts in a number of ways. It will preserve the successes of the specialty Drug Trafficking Areas, or HIDTA programs. As the ONDCP’s principal law enforcement program, HIDTA brings Federal, State, and local law enforcement together in specific high trafficking areas, sharing intelligence and joint enforcement actions. It is perhaps the best model of governments working together in such a coordinated way, in a model that in Homeland Security we are attempting to duplicate but thus far have not had the same success. This bill keeps HIDTA in ONDCP where it belongs, focusing on dismantling drug trafficking organizations.
It also provides a process for re-directing scarce funds to those HIDTA regions where the need is greatest, as well as enacting much-needed performance measurements. It will refocus the National Youth Anti-Drug Media Campaign, which already operates in radio and television, to focus more directly on youth. This bill clarifies the purposes of this campaign, establishing that it is intended for mass media advertising to direct young people away from drug abuse. This will turn the campaign away from projects not related to such mass media advertising.

It will strengthen the Southwest Border Counterdrug Strategy. Perhaps you have heard that we don’t exactly control the southwest border at this time. Increasingly, the drug trade and all its attendant violence and corruption is concentrating on the southwest border.

This bill requires the director of ONDCP to issue within 120 days of enactment a strategy identifying how the government will deal with this narcotic problem on the border, the roles of the various agencies in it, and the resources needed.

Quite frankly, it is astounding that such a southwest border strategy does not currently exist. It will elevate the rank and status of the ONDCP director because the director is tasked with coordinating the drug control efforts of numerous agencies, including Cabinet-level Departments.

This bill designates that he has the same kind of rank and status as a Cabinet officer. This does not interfere with the President’s authority to determine the makeup of his Cabinet, but it does assure that the director will be able to work Department heads as an equal, which is critical when you are working with State, Defense, Judiciary, Homeland Security and the many other agencies. This is essential if he is to have full cooperation and teamwork from these other executive offices.

It will enhance drug treatment programs by requiring, for the first time, a uniform system of evaluating the success of drug treatment.

Further, it will prevent the director from certifying any Federal budget request related to drug treatment that does not provide for adequate result and accountability measures.

I want a few other things that were added over the last few days with the Senate. One is the Drug Free Communities Act. This was developed by former Congressman Portman and Congressman Levin here and has been backed by the minority party.

It usually has a separate reauthorization. It has been put into this bill. It is already under ONDCP, but it usually moves in a separate bill. It has been combined with the bill so we are also reauthorizing the Drug Free Communities bill, which is absolutely one of the most effective grassroots prevention programs.

It, along with drug free schools and the national media campaign, are our only prevention efforts. It reauthorizes the National Guard counterdrug schools, which uses our National Guard in different States. In Indiana they are very active in going into schools and is the National Guard Schools in Indiana.

It is reauthorizes the Drug-Free Schools program. It also authorizes the U.S. Anti-doping Agency, which has been very critical in the steroids fight and something we have been pushing for to get national measurements and a more aggressive response of steroids among young people, and this authorizes that agency.

I once again want to thank all of those involved in this, particularly Ranking Member Cummings, Chairman Davis, and Ranking Member Waxman of the full committee.

Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. Cummings. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, I rise in strong support of the bill to reauthorize the Office of National Drug Control Policy and related anti-drug programs. The product of a bipartisan and bicameral process, this bill was passed more than 3 years ago in the Government Reform Subcommittee on Criminal Justice, Drug Policy and Human Resources, on which I serve, and the rank and file membership of the subcommittee, and then was sent to the floor, where it was passed by voice vote. Since that time, the office has operated without legislative authorization.

I want to thank and congratulate Chairman Souder, he talked about his passion. I had an opportunity to see his when we visited his district. He has spent just a phenomenal amount of time on this legislation and spent a lot of time on this problem that we suffer from in this country, and I want to thank him for his leadership, and his very strong leadership at that.

I also want to thank our full committee chairman, Tom Davis, and the Government Reform ranking member, Mr. Henry Waxman, for their strong leadership and cooperation in shaping a bill that we were able to report out of committee and pass on the House floor with strong bipartisan support.

This legislation incorporates additions and modifications negotiated with the Senate Republicans and Democrats, most notably Senators Grassley, Hatch, Biden, Leahy, and Levin.

At its core, the bill before us today is substantially the same as the legislation passed by the House on March 9. The bill reauthorizes the drug czar’s office for 5 years and also reauthorizes several key anti-drug programs managed by ONDCP, including the National Youth Anti-Drug Media Campaign, the High Intensity Drug Trafficking Areas, or HIDTA program, and the Counterdrug Technology Assessment Center. In addition to authorizing funding for these programs, the bill contains provisions to strengthen them and make them more accountable.

ONDCP, as the central coordinating body for drug control strategy in the White House, plays a vital role in shaping the Federal response to a national drug problem that claims more than 20,000 American lives each year. Through its formulation of the National Drug Control Strategy and its ability to certify the drug control budgets of agencies throughout the executive branch, ONDCP provides critical guidance and support to our efforts to address illegal drug abuse through programs in the areas of prevention, treatment, domestic law enforcement, interdiction, and international supply reduction efforts. We are taking an important step by reauthorizing the drug czar’s office today.

I am especially pleased that this bill preserves bipartisan agreements achieved through good faith negotiations during committee consideration of the bill, including a provision to ensure that funds for the National Youth Anti-Drug Media Campaign are not used to advocate for or against candidate or legislative or regulatory measure.

I am also pleased that we will finally pass the Dawson Family Community Protection Act which authorizes $7 million of HIDTA use-pass funds to be devoted to supporting efforts to improve safety and facilitate cooperation with police and communities ravaged by drug violence.

This provision memorializes the courageous efforts of Angela Dawson, a Baltimore City resident, who along with her husband and five children lost her life when a drug dealer fire-bombed the family’s home in retaliation for Ms. Dawson’s reporting of drug distribution activities in the immediate vicinity of her home. I might add that Ms. Dawson’s home is within a mile of my home.

HIDTA plays a vital role in combating drug trafficking in many areas of the country, and this provision will help to ensure that funds are available to address urgent threats to community safety due to drug violence.

The amendments adopted by the other body augment and mainly improve the House bill. This bill adds reauthorization of the Drug-Free Communities Support Program, one of the most popular and effective Federal drug prevention programs that we have. One other addition included in this bill also deserves particular mention.

The provision proposed by Senator Levin would amend the Controlled Substances Act to increase from 30 to 100 the number of patients to whom a doctor can prescribe buprenorphine, an extremely effective drug for the use of opiates addiction. This important and welcome change will have a tremendous impact in places like my own city.
of Baltimore where opiate addiction is far too common and access to treatment is far too limited. The bill would immediately triple the capacity of physicians to prescribe this drug for patients with opiate addiction and should have an immediate impact.

The substitute amendment implements two further changes negotiated with the Senate in recent days. The first would modify a provision in the House-passed bill calling for a study of Physicians to prescribe this drug for opiate addicted patients. The second would restore a provision offered by Mr. WAXMAN that would require ONDCP to consult with the National Institutes of Health and the National Academy of Sciences when formulating policy on syringe exchange programs aimed at preventing HIV transmission among injection drug users. The provision calls for ONDCP to base any decision on the science and evidence regarding the efficacy of syringe exchange and its impact on drug use.

Madam Speaker, the devastating impact of drugs on communities throughout the country is difficult to overstate. In some communities, drugs are a quiet, invisible, disruptive force. In others, as in the case of America’s inner cities and rural communities, afflicted by meth, it is impossible not to see and it is impossible not to feel the pain. But no community is completely untouched or immune from this problem.

I am confident that this bill will preserve and strengthen our Nation’s most essential tools for fighting the good fight against drug abuse and related crime and social problems. I am also very pleased about the provisions with regard to accountability for dollars spent. My colleagues and I have agreed over and over again and done everything in our power to make sure that if there is going to be drug treatment, that that drug treatment be effective and efficient. We wanted to make sure that the people who go into treatment come out better off than what they went in.

One of the things that I have discovered as an elected official and talking to many addicts is they go into drug treatment, and they feel they have not been treated properly or that the treatment has not been effective. That makes them reluctant to go into treatment again if need be, and at the same time, many of them would not have gotten better. That is not to take away from the many, many great organizations that are doing a great job of treating drug-addicted folks, but we just want to make sure that when American dollars are spent, that they are spent, again, in an effective and efficient manner, but we also want something else. We want to make sure that those people who find themselves in the clutches of drug addiction are able to depend upon treatment that can best help them.

So I applaud my colleagues on both sides of the aisle and in both Houses for their cooperative efforts, and I again want to thank Mr. SOUDER for all the hard work. We have come now to what appears to be an end to a long journey, but I am hopeful that what we have done in this bill will affect generations yet unborn, for there are so many people that the legislation here were able to accomplish in this legislation, but they will be affected and they will be able to raise their families, hopefully get back to work, do the things that productive citizens do, and perhaps, just simply generation of folk who may have gone into drugs, we may have just prevented some of that.

Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. SOUDER. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I wanted to make a couple of additional comments before I yield back fully. This is a very comprehensive bill. It includes provisions that Members are familiar with in their districts but they may not have realized was under the Office of National Drug Control Policy.

One is the Counterdrug Technology Assessment Center. That is the primary resource of the United States Government that transfers technology to your local law enforcement. It has also been a great model. This bill requires it to be coordinated more closely with homeland security.

Quite frankly, I think one of the challenges in the homeland security is to make sure that they do what we have done in narcotics enforcement. And that is, if a local small town wants certain equipment because they think it is a fancy gadget, there is a review process that says that is not really what you need; this is more likely to effect and impact the type of narcotics enforcement you need in your community. But it is the primary transfer program for technology and a great model, and it reauthorizes that.

Also, we have had an exasperating 3-year fight with the drug czar over the lack of coordination in this administration on methamphetamine. There is a section here, approximately 4½ pages long, in the National Methamphetamine Information Clearinghouse Act. While the Combat Meth Act we passed in coordination with many State acts have at least leveled off and in some States resulted, actually resulted in a drop in the so-called mom-and-pop labs that are home grown, in some States they are still coming in. Florida has had an expansion. Some of this is to mining to Internet and some to crystal meth.

We have had no clearinghouse in the United States Government that worked with meth. This bill will add, in addition the our Combat Meth Act, it will put the office of the national director, who is supposed to be in charge of narcotics, in a position of having an organized effort now on methamphetamine, which has been in every State an increasing major threat to so many families. It has sections on drug-endangered children and others.

Approximately 75 to 90 percent of all crime in America is related or at least enabled by drug and alcohol abuse; that in many States where we had hearings as many as 80 percent of the kids in child custody protection were because of meth or other drug abuse and danger to children. We heard horror stories about people high on narcotics who even put their baby children in a stove or others to warm them up because they were not fed. The Dawson family in Baltimore who were fire-bombed because they were afraid they were going to be witnesses in a case.

This bill addresses most of those things. It is absolutely essential that we get this department reauthorized with some guidelines because, unless Congress does its work, there are no guidelines on the executive branch to try to respond to what we are hearing in our grass roots.

So, once again, I want to thank Mr. CUMMINGS, Mr. DAVIS, and those in the Senate who have worked so long and hard on this, and I urge all Members to pass it.

Madam Speaker, I reserve my time.

Mr. CUMMINGS. Madam Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Illinois (Mr. DAVIS), a member of our subcommittee who has worked tirelessly on this issue and has just been a real champion.

Mr. DAVIS of Illinois. Madam Speaker, first of all, I want to thank the gentleman from Maryland for yielding.

I also want to commend Chairman SOUDER and Ranking Member CUMMINGS for the tenacious and outstanding work they have done on this issue ever since I have been associated with them and affiliated with the subcommittee. As a matter of fact, they have traveled all over America, the length and breadth of the country, listened to people, told them about the problem. As a matter of fact, I do not know anybody who has worked harder on an issue than they have, and so I commend both of you for your tenacity and outstanding work.

I rise in support of H.R. 2829, Drug Control Policy Reauthorization Act of 2005, a policy which addresses prevention, interdiction and treatment, as well as all aspects of law enforcement.

The use and abuse of illegal, illicit and contraband drugs is one of the most challenging and difficult problems facing America, in Cook County where I live, in a survey that was taken a couple of years ago, 800,000 individuals indicated that they used drugs, 800,000. I grant you that we have a population of over 5 million people but 800,000 of those said that they used illicit drugs, 800,000. I grant you that they were what we call hard core drug users, every day or whenever they could find the money to purchase what they need. As a matter of fact, the Chicago police records suggest that 75 percent of all the people that they arrest test positive for drug use.

If we could somehow or another reduce the use of drugs, crime statistics would go so far down until sometimes we would not even need a red thread finding them. There is a direct correlation between crime and drug use in America.

As a result of looking at this problem, I have become more and more a fan of what I call treatment on demand. That is, enough resources so that when individuals who are addicted decide that they are ready for treatment, that treatment is available to them and so that they do not have to wait 90 days or 60 days or 30 days to get into a program, because in 90 days or 60 days or 30 days they may have decided that they do not want treatment anymore. So we lose the opportunity.

While again I commend Chairman SOUDER, Ranking Member CUMMINGS and Chairman T. TOM DAVIS and Ranking Member HENRY WAXMAN for all of the attention that they have given, I hope that as we go into the new Congress in January that we can build upon the outstanding work that this subcommittee and the Committee on Government Reform has done and make certain that we have not only the resources available for law enforcement for prevention but that we also have enough resources available for treatment.

Mr. SOUDER. Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. CUMMINGS. Madam Speaker, may I inquire as to how much time we have.

Mr. SOUDER. Has the gentleman closed on the other side?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Indiana has 6 minutes remaining.

Mr. SOUDER. Has the gentleman closed on the other side?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Indiana has 6 minutes remaining.

Mr. CUMMINGS. I just want to say this, Madam Speaker. One of the things that we were concerned about was our HIDTA programs, High Intensity Drug Trafficking Areas. When we saw the budget, the budget basically cut substantially the funds for HIDTA, and we in our subcommittee and in our committee have seen the great work of the HIDTA throughout our country and we were determined to make sure that they stayed intact and continued to do the jobs that they have done so effectively.

One of the good things about HIDTA is that they are able to bring together our Federal, our local, and our State law enforcement officers so they can work together. And, again, going back to our taxpayers’ tax dollars, to use those dollars effectively and efficiently to fight drug violence and drug crimes, crimes related to drugs.

But as I sat and listened to Congressman DAVIS and certainly to Mr. SOUDER, I could not help but be reminded of just about 4 months ago as I was standing in my district in a supermarket and a young man standing in front of me was talking to me saying he was looking for a job, and he pulled up his shirt and he showed me the barren gun. And as he was standing there, he said, I am looking for a job because I simply do not want to continue to go around sticking up people to feed my drug habit.

That thing really shook me up, because when we get somebody possibly committing two or three robberies a day, as he told me, that says a lot. And I think that we fail sometimes to understand how deep this problem is and how it goes against the very safety of all of our residents, no matter where they may live. And if there is anything that I have learned from being on this subcommittee, it is that there are no boundaries. There really are no boundaries with regard to drug addiction and drug problems. One of the things that I know Mr. SOUDER will agree with me, when we got so much interest from our friends in the Congress who are seeing just a terrible problem with methamphetamines, they have come forth and they have been very, very helpful in helping us to figure out how to address not only the problems of methamphetamines, but the problems associated with heroin, associated with crack cocaine, with cocaine, and so many other drugs.

So I think that all of us have to understand that, no matter where we may live or who we may represent, that we all may have different problems but still we need to work together to address those problems in a way that is effective for all of us, because, again, we are trying to heal the Nation and heal those people who have again found themselves in the clutches of this horrible, horrible situation.

Madam Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. SOUDER. I urge all Members to support the passage of H.R. 6344, as amended, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question was taken; and (two-thirds of those voting having responded in the affirmative) the rules were suspended and the bill, H.R. 6344, as amended.

The question was taken; and (two-thirds of those voting having responded in the affirmative) the rules were suspended and the bill, as amended, was passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

Mr. SOUDER, Madam Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 5697) to provide for the appropriate designation of certain Federal positions involved in wildland fire suppression activities, as amended.

The Clerk read as follows:

H.R. 5697.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE. This Act may be cited as the “Federal Wildland Firefighter Classification Act”.

SEC. 2. REQUIREMENT. In General.—In the administration of chapter 51 of title 5, United States Code, the Director of the Office of Personnel Management shall ensure that the official title associated under such chapter to any class or other category of positions described in subsection (b) shall include the designation of “Wildland Firefighter” or words to that effect.

(b) APPLICABILITY.—This section shall apply in the case of any class or other category of positions that consists primarily or exclusively of forest technician positions, range technician positions, or any other category of positions the duties and responsibilities of which include significant wildland fire suppression activities.

SEC. 3. HAZARDOUS DUTY DIFFERENTIAL NOT AFFECTED. Section 5545(d)(1) of title 5, United States Code, is amended by striking all after “except” and inserting an em-dash and the following:

“(A) an employee in an occupational series covering positions for which the primary duties are wildland firefighting, as determined by the Office; and

“(B) in such other circumstances as the Office may by regulation prescribe;

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. SOUDER) and the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. DAVIS) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Indiana.

Mr. SOUDER. Madam Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material on the bill under consideration.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Indiana?

There was no objection.

Mr. SOUDER. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

H.R. 5697, the Federal Wildland Firefighter Classification Act, was introduced in June by Representatives RICHARD POMBO and JON PORTER to ensure that Federal wildland firefighters receive the recognition that they deserve in the Federal hiring process. Specifically, the legislation would designate employees who engage in firefighting duties as “wildland firefighters” in Federal job classifications. The importance of this legislation is well documented in hearings and testimony before several congressional committees. Also, we have witnessed the sacrifice these firefighters are willing to make to keep communities and their property safe.

Current wildland firefighter classification standards are far outdated and simply do not accurately reflect the all-risk duties performed by these brave men and women all year round. This legislation is the least we can do for these Federal wildland firefighters who lost their lives and those who continue to rehab from serious scarring and life-altering burns.

I urge all Members to join me today in supporting this important legislation.

Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. DAVIS of Illinois. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I might consume.

Madam Speaker, last August, the Federal Workforce and Agency Organization Subcommittee held a hearing in Las Vegas on Federal firefighter compensation. In addition to pay, one of the concerns raised at the hearing by the Federal Wildland Fire Service Association was the classification of Federal wildland firefighters.

Federal wildland firefighters are classified as either general schedule or wage-grade employees of the Federal Government. However, many of them are placed in the occupational series called forestry technicians, range technicians, and biological science technicians that do not reference their firefighting duties. These current classifications do not accurately represent the work performed by these wildland firefighters. H.R. 5697 would correct those classifications and provide a wage-grade classification for Federal wildland firefighters. This bill changes the name but not the pay of those currently called wildland firefighters or technicians. H.R. 5697 is supported by the FWFSA, and I urge my colleagues to do the same.

Madam Speaker, I strongly support this bill, and yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. SOUDER. I have no further speakers, and I also yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. SOUDER) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 5697, as amended.

The question was taken; and (two-thirds of those voting having responded in the affirmative) the rules were suspended and the bill, as amended, was passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

SPECIAL ORDERS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the following Members may have 5 legislative days to submit statements for the RECORD on the retirement of MICHAEL G. OXLEY, a Member from Ohio.

Mr. REGULA. Madam Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members present my remarks in order to allow the members of this delegation in this House since 1981. He has put in the hard work required to learn the issues that are important to my friend and colleague of the Ohio delegation, MIKE OXLEY, as he concludes 25 years of service to the constituents of Ohio’s Fourth Congressional District, this House and the people of this Nation. Many of Mike’s colleagues will be submitting statements today to tomorrow to pay tribute to Mike, or during the week. So I will limit my remarks in order to allow each of them the opportunity to speak if they should so desire.

Mike has been a member of our Ohio delegation in this House since 1981. He has served with distinction for these past 25 years. He has put in the hard work required to learn the issues that have come before him within the committee jurisdictions of both the House Energy and Commerce Committee and, most recently, the House Financial Services Committee. As chairman of the Financial Services Committee, he is the author of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act, a historic corporate accountability bill.

In addition to his commitment to the serious work of this body, MIKE’s friendly, outgoing personality and his love of sports, particularly baseball, helped to bring a positive atmosphere both in his committee and here in the House. We will miss MIKE very much and wish him and his wonderful wife, Pat, well in their future pursuits.

Mike Oxley is completing a twenty-five-year career in the U.S. Congress and a career in public life of over thirty years.

Mike was born in Findlay, Ohio, on February 11, 1944, to Maxine and Garver Oxley. He attended public schools there through his graduation from Findlay High School. Mike earned his B.A. from Miami University (Oxford, Ohio) in 1966, where he was student body president, and his law degree from The Ohio State University College of Law in 1969. He worked on the staffs of U.S. Representative Jackson Betts, Attorney General William B. Saxbe, Lieutenant Governor John W. Brown, and Cleveland Mayor Ralph Perk. After law school graduation, he became a special agent of the Federal Bureau of Investigation based in Boston and New York, special agent of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. After law school graduation, he became a special agent of the Federal Bureau of Investigative based in Boston and New York, where he met Patricia Plukey. Mike and Pat were married in November 1971, and are the parents of a son, Chadd. The Oxleys moved to Findlay, where Mike joined his father’s law firm: Oxley, Malone, Fitzgerald, and Hollister. He was elected to the Ohio General Assembly in 1972. He represented the 82nd Ohio District until he won a special election in July of 1981 that sent him to Washington to serve in the U.S. House of Representatives.

In a lifetime of representing his districts in rural and small-town Ohio, Mike has dedicated himself to promoting the values and policy goals he shares with his constituents: economic prosperity, family, lean government, low taxes, a strong defense and intelligence capability, free trade, competition, and the U.S. as the leader of the free world.

- Mike Oxley’s credo has always been “play hard, but play fair.” He was guided by that philosophy both in the halls of Congress and on the athletic field. Oxley played in the Congressional Baseball Game for Charity for 16 years, mowing every position except pitcher and catcher. He managed the Republican team for the last eight years, compiling a 7-1 managerial record and raising more than a half million dollars for charitable causes.

Mr. BACHUS. Mr. Speaker, it is with great admiration that I rise today to recognize the 25 years of public service that Chairman Oxley has bestowed upon this body. He is a dedicated and hard-working public servant whose leadership as Chairman of the Financial Services Committee has been exemplary. Under Chairman Oxley’s leadership, the Financial Services Committee enjoyed an unprecedented level of collegiality and comity that permitted us all to work together and get things done.

Chairman Oxley has a series of legislative successes few others can rival. When investor confidence was at a low, Chairman Oxley restored confidence in our financial markets by authorizing the landmark Sarbanes-Oxley Act. This legislation established tough new standards to enhance corporate accountability to all American shareholders. In addition Chairman Oxley was responsible for the passage of the Fair and Accurate Credit Transactions Act, or FACT Act, which gave consumers new identity theft protections and also improved credit report accuracy. Chairman Oxley also spearheaded efforts to reform our nation’s deposit insurance system and modernize our check clearing process which brought our antiquated systems into the 21st century. These achievements will have a positive impact on our financial services system for generations to come. Aside from his leadership in the House, MIKE Oxley has been a true mentor and friend. Fortunately, this is not a retirement for him. He is not interested in engaging in Iran in an effort to stabilize Iraq. There is a tragic irony in the President’s intransigence. While the President is unwilling to talk to Iran, his policies in Iraq, in reality, are allowing Iran to take over Iraq. But if we don’t recognize and act on this soon, Iran will succeed.

This is real, it is not rhetorical. Actions by the President, through his appointed surrogate to run Iraq, Paul Bremer, that date back to the first days of the U.S. invasion, have created a situation today that makes Iraq a prime candidate for what Iran could never accomplish on its own militarily; that is, taking over Iraq, its oil, its infrastructure, as its Exporting a separate Nation. Iran couldn’t successfully invade Iraq, but we did, and now we are playing right into the hands of the Iranians by not acting on what Iraqis see happening.

The media presents an overly simplistic picture of sectarian struggle. We hear a lot about Shia and Sunni Iraqis, but we don’t hear about Persians; that is, Iran and the Persian versus Arab is where the real battle for Iraq will be won or lost. Every time the President meets with Iranian Shia clerics, or those connected or controlled by them, he confirms in the Iraqi-Arab minds, both Shia and Sunni, that he is ceding control to the Iranians.

It began with Bremer’s decision to give the Shia control of the governing council. Then his decision to disband the Iraqi Army and the Baathist technocrat government further confirmed to the Arabs the feeling that the United States, despite its protests to the contrary, was opening up Iraq to an Iranian takeover. The borders were open.

This is not my speculation, this is what moderate leaders in the Middle East tell me in meetings I attended in Amman, Jordan recently. Moderate leaders desperately want the American people to understand what is really going on, because they see that as perhaps their last hope of getting our President to see.

To the Iraqi Arabs, there are only two explanations to account for Paul Bremer’s actions: a blunder based upon ignorance of the history of the region, or a deliberate decision to neutralize Iraq as a strong Arab secular nation, thereby making it more susceptible to U.S. influence in the future.

Moderates in the region see it this way. The President, and therefore America, continues to openly act in ways that enable an Iranian takeover. Just the other day, the President met with the leader of the Supreme Council of Islamic Revolution in Iraq, Abdul Aziz Hakim, in the White House. He continued a strategy to help the Iranians. This comes on the heels of the President's meeting and endorsement of al-Maliki.

Meeting with Iranian-controlled Iraqis, no matter what sect they belong to, confirms to many in the region that the President does not understand the current situation. Moderates told me the resistance in Iraq is based on the U.S. occupation and a power grab by the Iranian-controlled clerics. Blaming it all on Sunni-Shia tensions is not just incorrect, they say, it is exactly what Iran hopes for, because it leaves them hidden.

Here is another example. Moqtada al-Sadr, a Shi’a leader, left the coalition with the Iranian-controlled SCIRI and joined the Arab Sunnis. Al-Sadr strongly opposes the U.S. occupation of Iraq, and some see the meeting between the President and the Iranian leader of SCIRI as only deepening the passions against the United States. Friends of the United States in the region, and even foes, believe the same.

To many in the region, one only need look at history to understand. Arabs and Persians have fought for centuries before Islam even existed, and their enmity remains intense. Persians are the Iranians, Arabs are the ones in Iraq. Failure by the President to understand it is Persian versus Arab or Iran versus Iraq that is going on, has produced one disastrous decision after another. The solution, they believe, is obvious. Strategically, redeploy the U.S. troops out of Baghdad, out of the cities, and onto the border to stop the infiltration of Iranian agents into Iraq.

Some Arab leaders told me they estimate as many as 14,000 Persians, Iraqis, have infiltrated to run death squads who are killing the Arab Sunnis and inciting a civil war as cover for the real war that is Iran versus Iraq.

Unless we change the course, unless we draw back our troops out to the borders in preparation for ultimately leaving the country, the day will come when the only banner proclaiming “mission accomplished” will be flown by Iran. We can’t let that happen. We have to change the course. The President must see this is not a sectarian fight between Shi’a and Sunni, it is between Iraq and Iran. They fought for 8 years, just recently, and now they are doing it again, and we have allowed them, the Iranians, to have the goal of making it happen.

HONORING VETERANS AND THEIR OUTSTANDING COMMUNITY SERVICE

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. REGULA). Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from North Carolina (Ms. FOXX) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. FOXX. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in remembrance of Pearl Harbor Day, to honor those who fought for us in World War II and those who lost their lives this day 65 years ago. Also I am honored to pay tribute to two extraordinary veterans from Winston-Salem, North Carolina who continue to work tirelessly for our country and its veterans.

These distinguished men have served our Nation with bravery and honor, and years after they have retired from active duty their commitment to community and service remains an important part of their lives.

Sergeant George W. Carter served in the United States Army during the Korean War and earned the Silver Star for gallantry against an armed enemy. In addition, over World War II, Mr. Carter was awarded the Bronze Star with two V’s, along with the Purple Heart, Army Good Conduct Medal, Occupation of Japanese Medal, National Defense Service Medal and several other medals. After Mr. Carter served 5 years in the Reserves and then returned to the trucking industry, from which he retired in 1994.

In 1999, Mr. Carter was employed by the Department of Veterans Affairs as a security guard. At the age of 76, Mr. Carter retired from the Department of Veterans Affairs, but did not retire from service to his country.

In 2003, Mr. Carter began volunteering at the Winston-Salem outpatient clinic 3 days a week. He often picks up Krispy Kreme donuts at 5:30 a.m. and arrives at the outpatient clinic at 6 a.m. to set up coffee tables, napkins and snacks before the first patients arrive.

Today, December 7, 2006, Mr. Carter at 79 years old is still serving his country. In the last 3 years, he has volunteered over 2,000 hours to serve, console and support veterans.

Another distinguished gentleman is Mr. Howard Petree, a World War II and Korean War veteran, who also continues to serve his country and community with honor and dedication long after his active military service.

He served in the United States Army stateside in World War II after being drafted in 1943. In 1946, Mr. Petree served in the Army Field Artillery with a T-4 rank. He also served in the Korean War as a First Class Supply Sergeant. After being honorably discharged in 1952, Mr. Petree worked in a local municipality as a commercial water repairman for 32 years.

In 1997, Mr. Petree became one of the first volunteers at the Winston-Salem Outpatient Clinic. He volunteered from 6:45 a.m. until 12 noon 3 days a week until 2005. In 2005, he reduced his volunteer time to 2 days a week.

Mr. Petree also volunteers setting up coffee tables, napkins and snacks before the first patients arrive. He serves coffee, as well as answers questions for veterans and shares his experiences with them.

Today, Mr. Petree at 84 years old is still serving his country out of a selfless personal obligation to help others and to connect and assist other veterans. In the last 8 years, he has volunteered over 4,000 hours.

It is appropriate to honor these two gentlemen today. Years after their active military service, they continue to work with veterans and support those who have defended our country from tyranny and oppression, just as they themselves did. Although these men may no longer wear the uniform on active duty, their obligation and love of this country continues.

I ask my colleagues to join me in honoring Mr. George W. Carter and Mr. Howard Petree for their steadfast and faithful service to this Nation and their continued work with the very men and women who have made this country the land it is today. The Winston-Salem Outpatient Clinic is lucky to have such fine men who are a inspiration to us all.

TURKEY MUST OPEN PORTS TO CYPRUS: EUROPEAN UNION MUST NOT ALLOW DEFiance TO CONTINUE

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. REGULA). Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. PALLONE) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. PALLONE. Mr. Speaker, over the next couple of weeks the world will see how serious Turkey takes its accession talks with the European Union. We will also learn if the European Union is serious about ensuring Turkey complies with promises it made in order to begin those talks last year.

Last month, Turkey’s accession talks took a turn for the worse when it broke a promise to begin trading with EU Member Cyprus. Back in July of 2005, Turkey agreed to open its ports and airports to 10 new European members, including Cyprus, as one of the conditions for beginning membership talks with the EU. Talks began later that year, but to date Turkey has refused to begin trading with Cyprus.

Turkey simply cannot be allowed to defy established European Union conditions without facing penalties. It must open its ports and airports to Cyprus ships and airplanes under the conditions it agreed to back in 2005. Cyprus is a Member of the European Union, and if Turkey is really interested in joining the Union, it cannot be unwilling to trade with one of the EU members.

Fortunately, Mr. Speaker, the European Union has taken note of Turkey’s defiance. Late last month, EU Enlarge-m ent Commissioner Olli Rehn recommended a partial suspension of eight of the 35 policy areas included in the EU accession talks. Foreign ministers of the European Union will decide next week whether to back those recommendations.

I want to commend Commissioner Rehn for taking this action and strongly recommend that the foreign ministers approve it so that Turkey knows that the European Union is serious about living up to the promises it made before this process began.

In response to the European Union’s actions, Turkey made a proposal earlier this week that would allow ships from Cyprus into Turkey ports only if they are air carrying Cypriot goods. Turkey also demanded again, separate from the promises they made in 2005, that one of the ports in the illegally occupied north be opened for international traffic. The Cypriot Government correctly called this latest proposition a mockery of the European Union and the EU official said the proposal is not suitable to end the stalemate. Turkey should not simply be able to renegotiate promises they have already made.

Mr. Speaker, I am also baffled by some editorial pages here in the U.S. and around the world and some world leaders, including British Prime Minister Tony Blair, who have chosen to take the collective opinion that the European Union action was taken only to embarrass Turkey and to put another roadblock up in front of it, making it more difficult, if not impossible, for them to join the European Union.
This thinking is dangerous.

Turkey said it would open its ports and airports to Cyprus and has yet to do it. What is the European Union supposed to do, just allow this to continue without any penalties? It is not as if the EU has a choice here, which is very, very strong human being.

Eight years ago, LANE EVANS contracted Parkinson’s disease. As he has served with us and we have sat by him and worked with him, he never complained once. We watched him as it became more difficult for him to smile and he had to lift his arms and to come here to the floor to make his point. He has done that through his 24th year.

I can remember when he started the basketball games over at Georgetown to raise money for philanthropic causes here in the Capitol for the needy. He was also raising money for veterans, helping others, and he did not pay that much attention to himself. In fighting Parkinson’s disease, which he is still fighting, he became a model to all of us on what the words “Semper Fidelis” mean.

So, LANE EVANS, I want to thank you on behalf of the people of Ohio and on behalf of your colleagues here in the House. You truly have been a worthy servant and it has been an honor to serve by your side. We wish you Godspeed and we thank you so very much for making us better by knowing you.

Mr. COSTELLO. Madam Speaker, I rise tonight to honor the distinguished career of my good friend and colleague, Congressman LANE EVANS. LANE is retiring at the end of this Congress, and the House of Representatives will miss his leadership and untried support of our nation’s veterans.

LANE has devoted most of his entire professional life to service to the United States of America. He grew up in the heart of the district he represents, entering the Marines out of high school and serving in Vietnam. When he returned, he went to college and earned his law degree at Georgetown, and was elected to Congress in 1982.

Since then, he has made a tremendous impact on issues of national importance, such as Agent Orange compensation for affected veterans, investigating Gulf War Illness, and the effort to ban land mines. While never seeking the spotlight, our veterans, military retirees and active duty service personnel know they have a greater advocate in Congress than LANE EVANS. LANE was awarded the Vietnam Veterans of America’s first annual President’s Award for Outstanding Achievement in 1990 and he received the AMVET’s Silver Helmet Award in 1994, known as the “Oscar” of veterans honors.

At the same time, LANE has always defended the rights of working men and women, protecting the ability to collectively bargain while opposing unfair trade deals that have sent good paying jobs overseas. He has been a leader on issues and a friend of the family farmer. Above all, LANE has been a steady presence for the issues he believes in and the constituents he represents.

Over the last several years, LANE also gained prominence for his ongoing battle with Parkinson’s disease. The dignity with which he has faced the disease has inspired many, and helped educate the public about the disease. Not many people know how painful the disease can be, and you would never know it from LANE, as he has faced this ordeal with the same courage and determination he went to war and served in Congress.

Madam Speaker, what I appreciate most about LANE is his consistency. Whenever LANE was needed, he was there. His service to our country has been profound and I wish him the best as he prepares for this next chapter in his life. I am honored to call him my friend.

Mr. OBÉY. Madam Speaker, I rise in joining my colleagues tonight in recognizing the service of LANE EVANS. LANE is one of those people who came to Congress willing to work and who have attracted attention or claiming much credit. All the work he did demonstrated his beliefs that we are here not to make a name for ourselves, but to make life better for the people who make this country strong. He was an advocate for the American worker and an advocate for the American Veterans. Since 1995 when LANE became Ranking Member of the House Committee Veterans Affairs, no one has tried harder to honor our obligations to those who have served our country in uniform. Like the lighthouses on the Great Lakes, LANE has been a beacon of wisdom. When you follow LANE EVANS, you know you are going in the right direction.

In addition, he is just a first rate human being. I wish him well and offer my sincere gratitude for his service.

Ms. KAPTUR. Madam Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. BURTON) is recognized for 5 minutes.

TRIBUTE TO LANE EVANS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. LIPINSKI) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Mr. LIPINSKI, Madam Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to my colleague from Illinois, LANE EVANS, and recognize his long, distinguished career in public service.

From his time in the U.S. Marine Corps to nearly a quarter century in the House of Representatives, LANE has always put his country first, and now with his retirement at the end of the 109th Congress I join my colleagues in thanking LANE for his great service to his district, the State of Illinois and our Nation.

LANE Evans bravely served in the Marine Corps during the Vietnam War. His experience in the military and his firsthand knowledge of veterans’ issues led LANE to become a leading advocate for veterans during his time in Congress. On issues critical to veterans, such as post-traumatic stress disorder, the effects of Agent Orange, and homelessness to veterans, LANE Evans was consistently a leader in crafting real policy solutions. LANE’s leadership on veterans’ issues was formally recognized in 1995 when was named ranking member of the House Committee on Veterans Affairs.

In addition to his great work on veterans’ issues, LANE has always dutifully served his constituents and the State of Illinois. He has been a strong advocate for working Americans and was one of the first to see the need for renewable energies, especially for ethanol.

My own experience in the hallowed halls of Congress began more than 20 years ago when I worked as an intern in LANE Evans’ office. I will never forget how he was a great example to me. He showed how to be a truly compassionate and effective leader in the House.

LANE Evans’ legacy will certainly reflect his commitment to our great Nation. His insight, passion and presence will be deeply missed by all of us.

I wish LANE all the best in his retirement, and we are all truly grateful for his dedicated service, and we will truly miss the man and his dedication and the friend that he was to so many in this chamber.

VACATING 5-MINUTE SPECIAL ORDER

Mr. LEWIS of Georgia. Madam Speaker, I have a Special Order for tonight. I am taking out with Mr. SCOTT and Mr. BISHOP.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, the 5-minute for Mr. Lewis is vacated.

There was no objection.

PROPOSED DELTA/U.S. AIRWAYS MERGER

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 4, 2005, the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. SCOTT) is recognized for 28 minutes as the designee of the minority leader.

Mr. SCOTT of Georgia. Madam Speaker, joining me tonight are Mr. SCOTT and Mr. BISHOP from Georgia.

Mr. BISHOP of Georgia from Albany, Mr. SCOTT of Georgia and my colleague from Georgia.

I rise tonight to tell you about a bad deal, a very bad deal. You may have read about the recent unwanted, unsolicited and unnecessary bid from U.S. Airways to take over a strong, proud, Georgia company named Delta Airlines.

But Americans have learned the hard way that bigger is not always better, and in this case, Delta's takeover by U.S. Airways will have a devastating impact on the people of Atlanta, on the east coast of this country, and it will rob the American travelers of the economic advantages that competition creates.

Mr. Speaker, today I represent thousands of Delta employees all over Georgia, hundreds of Delta pilots, and the executive leadership of that organization. Delta employees and its executive are working through some difficult problems right now as they reshape the company, but when it comes to this merger, they speak with one strong and mighty voice.

Management and employees agree on this. None of them are for this deal. I think that speaks volumes, Madam Speaker. It demonstrates how deeply they believe this takeover will impair the quality of airline transportation in our country.

You may have heard that Delta had run into some problems and was going through a bankruptcy, but it is about to emerge from this bankruptcy a stronger, better airline, with a renewed commitment to serve the American people, American travelers and world travelers.

Delta had problems but it was not a failing company. They have used the hardship of bankruptcy to make tremendous progress. In spite of its challenges, it has created 70 new international destinations. It out-serves the entire service to all 50 States. Employee morale has improved. Pensions for 90,000 employees and retirees were saved, and 2,500 pilots, machinists and other employees have been called back to work.

It is because of the actions of Delta employees and executives to make good on its commitments to its creditors that it became a prime target for this hostile merger. It is because Delta was able to win the uphill battle of bankruptcy and is poised to emerge transformed that U.S. Airways want to take it over against its will. That is not right, that is not fair, and that is not just.

This is not a case of the survival of the fittest. U.S. Airways is in trouble. It has already gone through two bankruptcies and cannot seem to bring its merger with America West to a close.

In 2004, U.S. Airways was on death's doorstep. It had no choice but to merge with America West. It would have had to liquidate all its assets if it had not merged with another company, but 2 years later, the integration of U.S. Airways and America West is still not complete. The majority of its labor groups are still working under separate contracts. It still has two IT systems. U.S. Airways has not even repainted all of its aircraft.

Madam Speaker, even though U.S. Airways cannot seem to manage its own merger, it is hoping and praying that it can take advantage of the hard work and tough sacrifices the good people of Delta have already made so that it can survive. This is not a win-win situation. It is a win for U.S. Airways and an incredible risk for Delta Airlines and for all of its customers.

It is a risk for the people of Atlanta, a risk for Hartsfield-Jackson Airport, the largest commercial airport in the world. It is a risk for the State of Georgia and thousands of American citizens.

At this time, Madam Speaker, I want to yield to my colleague and friend from the State of Georgia (Mr. SCOTT). Mr. SCOTT of Georgia. Madam Speaker, I thank very much my colleague Mr. LEWIS.

This is indeed an extraordinary moment in the history of this country and history of American business. Let us see if we cannot set the stage properly so we understand exactly what is going on.

As my colleague Mr. LEWIS has stated and given history of Delta Airlines' brilliant and hard fought effort to come out of bankruptcy, this is a great American story. It is perhaps one of the greatest business recovery stories in American history.

Delta Airlines was at the bottom, but that company came together. It made the sacrifices. Its pilots' union gave and gave. Its employees gave back raises. They combined their efforts. Delta had problems, but under brilliant management and leadership, brought itself together.

We owe it to Delta to have their bankruptcy plan now go into effect, and they have a plan to come out of bankruptcy, which they will have and they will come out of bankruptcy within the next 6 months. Do we not owe it to Delta to give them that opportunity to make it work?

Auction bidding on the sidelines, almost like a vulture, is U.S. Airways. Let me take a moment to describe U.S. Airways at this point. Here is a company that is just coming out of bankruptcy itself, a company that has just emerged from a merger that is now problematic, a company that has a merger in which it is now dealing with two sets of pilots' unions, two sets of flight attendants' unions, two reservation systems and two scheduling systems. Now in the world can stand in effect, for a creditor who has an indebtedness with Delta feel that that investment can best be met by investing in a company, an airline company that is beset with a ton of labor problems?

I want to deal with the other issue. Not only is it bad for the creditors, it is bad in terms of our own antitrust practices. In a previous case in which there was a United Airlines merger, the Justice Department's antitrust division ruled that that could not merge, and they did not nearly have the overlapping that this does.

So now we have a case here that with Delta in bankruptcy, even if this merger were to proceed, if it goes into bankruptcy, then the antitrust division of the Justice Department must rule.

That is why it is important for us in Congress to make this bold statement and urge the Justice Department and urge that we have hearings and do everything we can to stop this merger from going through on the grounds that it is anti-competitive, it is anti-consumer and anti-American for this important reason.

Another thing about U.S. Airways, they buy their airplanes from foreign governments, whereas Delta buys theirs from American governments. Mr. SCOTT should know we have two more BISHOPS waiting to speak. We have BISHOP of Georgia and BISHOP of Utah, and they both live in cities that are served by Delta. BISHOP of Georgia from Albany, Georgia, and BISHOP of Utah in Salt Lake City.

Madam Speaker, I now yield to Mr. BISHOP, my colleague from Georgia.
Mr. BISHOP of Georgia. Madam Speaker, I thank my colleague for yielding.

I rise tonight to discuss Delta Airline’s tremendous progress since it entered bankruptcy in September 2005 toward its long-planned goal toward emerging as a financially strong, stand-alone, independent airline.

This is a very positive story that has involved difficult decisions by Delta’s management, sacrifices from its employees and strong support from its creditors, from the home State of Georgia and other communities it serves.

This is also an important story to tell tonight because U.S. Airways’ unsolicited merger proposal would jeopardize the progress and saddle Delta with a huge debt that would put it at a competitive disadvantage.

On November 15, when U.S. Airways went public with this unsolicited merger proposal, Delta’s CEO Gerald Grinstein and Delta’s 45,000 employees and said, Delta people have participated in the hard work and tough choices driving our company’s already remarkable restructuring progress. I know you care deeply about what this means for our airline.

Less than a week later, Mr. Grinstein wrote again to Delta’s employees to share how the outpouring of support for Delta’s future as a profitable, strong, stand-alone airline and for you, the people who have been fighting hard to reach that goal, has been overwhelming.

So what is the story behind this remarkable restructuring progress since Delta entered bankruptcy in September 2005? In short, Delta has reorganized and improved customer service, launched new domestic and international air services and achieved tangible progress on other major fronts.

As Business Week recently put it, Delta’s senior management has worked around-the-clock renegotiating thousands of contracts, bucking up demoralized employees, imploring bankers to provide financing and wrangling with creditors to keep them from picking all the meat off Delta’s bones.

To give just a few examples of Delta’s tremendous progress over the last year, Delta has overhauled its vast domestic and international network, shifting as much as 20 percent of its domestic and international service, all while expanding to all 50 States and serving 70 new international cities.

Delta recently announced the recall to nearly 2,500 the number of employees recalled in just the recent months. This week, in a move critical to its ability to emerge from bankruptcy, Delta agreed with the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation to terminate Delta’s pension plan for its pilots. Retired Delta’s pilots will get more than $800 million in allowed claims. A group representing most of Delta’s retired pilots agreed not to fight this agreement.

Based on this tremendous progress, Delta plans to file a plan of reorganization with the bankruptcy court in the coming weeks, and expects to emerge as a strong, competitive, stand-alone airline during the first part of next year. Such a result will be good for the consumers in our region, as there would have been more than $800 million allowed claims. A group representing most of Delta’s retired pilots agreed not to fight this agreement. Further, and perhaps of greatest significance, at the time of their agreement, Delta’s senior management also confirmed that it will preserve its non-pilot retirement plan for 90,000 active and retired ground employees and flight attendants.

In short, US Airways’ proposal would jeopardize all that Delta, with strong support from its employees, creditors, and local communities and others, has worked for more than a year. Now, we sincerely hope that it will be soundly rejected.

Mr. SCOTT of Georgia. If the gentleman from Georgia said, Delta’s senior management has worked around-the-clock renegotiating thousands of contracts, bucking up demoralized employees, imploring bankers to provide financing and wrangling with creditors to keep them from picking all the meat off Delta’s bones.

If this was a willing merger, I would not be so upset, but it is not. Delta does not wish to enter into this arrangement. They wish to stay a stand-alone strong company, and I would suggest that this is a significant and fundamentally a different situation than US Air was in when they merged with America West. It is a company that is in economic recovery and very close to being in full economic recovery. And as the gentleman said, this is a company where the morale of their employees is on the upswing.

As the gentleman from Georgia said, the employees are now coming back to this company as they have now turned away from the other company.

Delta has overhauled its vast domestic and international network, shifting as much as 20 percent of its domestic and international service, all while expanding to all 50 States and serving 70 new international cities.

of the American people, not just to people in the Southeast, but to people in the West and all over this country.

And it is because of the sacrifice of Delta employees and executives to make good on its commitments to its creditors that it became a prime target for this hostile merger. It's because two airlines were able to win the uphill battle of bankruptcy and is poised to emerge transformed, that US Airways wants to take it over against its will.

This merger puts the very successful efforts of an independent corporation in jeopardy, ... and it would leave this important transportation resource in the hands of an institution that cannot seem to get its own house in order. This is not a case of the survival of the fittest. US Airways is in trouble. It has already gone through two bankruptcies, and cannot seem to bring its merger with America West to a close.

In 2004, US Airways was on death's door— it had no choice but to merge with America West. It would have had to liquidate all its assets if it had not merged with another company.

But two years later, the integration of US Airways and America West is still not complete. The majority of its labor groups are still working under separate contracts. It still has two I-T systems. US Airways hasn't even re-painted all its aircraft!

Madam Speaker, even though US Airways can't seem to manage its own merger, it is hoping and praying that it can take advantage of the hard work and tough sacrifices the good people of Delta have already made so that it can survive. This is not a win-win situation. It is a win for US Airways and an incredible risk for Delta Airlines.

It is a risk for the people of Atlanta, a risk for Hartfield-Jackson Airport, the largest commercial airport in the world. It is a risk for the State of Georgia and thousands of American citizens.

I think freedom in the marketplace is important, but to make business deals like this one threatens the economies of so many communities and the lives of so many citizens, I think Members of Congress must take notice. I think we must step in and take a long hard look at the economic impact of this kind of hostile takeover...

Why must the American people pay, why must the employees pay, why must travelers pay when American businesses can't get their house in order? This takeover attempt will hurt people in my district, it will damage the economy of the State of Georgia, and it will isolate communities in the Southeast that have come to depend upon air travel.

I think the Members who stand with us tonight would encourage the Justice Department and the House Judiciary Committee to review this takeover with a fine-toothed comb so we can make sure it serves the best interests of the American people.

Madam Speaker, US Airways keeps using the word "synergy" to describe this takeover. They want us to make us feel comfortable about this deal. But, synergy is just a codeword for cutting flights and eliminating competition. And that means higher prices for American consumers.

"Synergy" means two companies working together to accomplish what one couldn't, but that's not what will happen in this merger. Delta could emerge as an independent company from this bankruptcy in a few months.

That's something US Airways could not do when it was in trouble. An independent Delta will continue to serve hundreds of markets that US Airways will cut off or cut back. This is not synergy; it is exploitation. It is suffocation.

US Airways wants to take over the strength of a new Delta Airlines for its own benefit and the benefit of its creditors. That is why this merger is so dangerous. Delta has already negotiated. That is a win for US Airways and an incredible risk for Delta

This merger is in a very different position than US Airways was in when it received the America West offer. Delta is returning to profitability. It will emerge from bankruptcy in a few months. Delta's network is strong.

The morale of Delta's people is good. Delta's revenue picture is impressive. In no way does Delta need US Airways to survive. But US Airways needs Delta to survive. That's why this is a hostile takeover. It knows Delta would have no good reason to participate in this deal, except by force.

Madam Speaker, I am here today to raise the question: Will this merger really serve the best interests of the American people?

If this merger is stopped, travelers in many American cities will only have one air carrier to choose from. If they want to fly, they will have to accept monopoly prices or stay home. And if the past is any indication, the "New Delta," as US Airways likes to call the results of this merger, will make full advantage of their monopoly.

Using the name, "New Delta," tells us something about which airline has real strength and a better reputation. Madam Speaker, it would seem that US Airways has more confidence in Delta, than they do in themselves.

If the proposed merger goes as planned, there may be some reduction in fares between some big cities, but service to hundreds of small cities throughout the northeast region of this country—cities that are just beginning to build a new economic life, cities like Asheville, Asheville, New Britain, Atlanta. That's what US Airways did when it merged with America West. There's no reason to think they won't do it again.

Some analysts say that a merger with Delta would be good for the airline industry. But, US Airways will weigh Delta down with $23 billion in debt. $23 Billion Dollars! Delta went into bankruptcy because it had $21 billion in debt. This plan will probably send the two airlines right back into bankruptcy!

The whole purpose of Delta's bankruptcy negotiations was to reconfigure its debt load. It was a tough struggle, but Delta did it. And now US Airways wants to put up staggering amounts of new debt in hopes that Delta can bear some of the load, hoping that a more efficient organization can solve its problems. That's like asking an expert swimmer to save one that's drowning. It might work, but there's just as much chance that they will both die.

There is no economic model, except maybe voodoo economics, that resolves debt by adding debt. This extra burden would drain the competitiveness of the merged airline and threaten the survival of both companies.

This is not a promising plan for Delta's creditors who are taking a risk that a company which cannot complete its own merger, could somehow juggle a brand new merger at the same time. Practically and economically, it doesn't make sense. This is a win for US Airways and much too risky for Delta.

US Airways executives have said they will find so-called "synergies" if the merger occurs with Delta. It is still in bankruptcy. Don't be fooled—that just means that the Delta executives and employees who have already sacrificed a lot, will be asked to sacrifice even more. And it means that all the agreements they worked so hard to gain are up for grabs. Practically and economically, it doesn't make sense.

Gaining "synergies" while Delta is still in bankruptcy means rejecting contracts and leases Delta has already negotiated. That is a win for US Airways and a risk for Delta's creditors.

There are some who claim that airline mergers are unavoidable and good for the industry. In some instances, like the US Airways and America West case, end-to-end mergers of that sort can be good and competitive if they are executed well. Both of those airlines had very little overlapping service.

But Delta is in a very different position than US Airways was when it received the America West offer. Delta is returning to profitability. It will emerge from bankruptcy in a few months. Delta's network is strong.

The morale of Delta's people is good. Delta's revenue picture is impressive. In no way does Delta need US Airways to survive. But US Airways needs Delta to survive. That's why this is a hostile takeover. It knows Delta would have no good reason to participate in this deal, except by force.

Madam Speaker, I am here today to raise the question: Will this merger really serve the best interests of the American people?

Will it benefit travelers and the good people in small communities to fly at the will of a monopoly? Will the service cuts and hub closures benefit business and individual citizens in those cities? Most small communities that lose service will never again see a low-cost carrier come to town to save the day.

Just look at Georgia—there are no low cost carriers today in any cities other than Atlanta and Savannah.
Airlines won’t take on those routes for the very reason that they haven’t up to now. They don’t believe in that kind of service. There are not enough passengers for them.

Delta is proposing to maintain those routes, and US Airways now has to compete with Delta in those markets. That competition helps keep fares down and provides choices a monopoly carrier will not offer.

And Madam Speaker, what about justice for Delta’s employees? Delta’s employees have sacrificed a lot to turn the company around.

They’ve taken pay cuts, layoffs, and uncertainty about the company’s future and even their retirement benefits. They deserve to reap what they’ve sown. They have hung in there. They didn’t give up in hard times. And this is the kind of nation that rewards hard work and sacrifice.

Delta employees should reap the benefits of their sacrifice. They don’t deserve the risks of a US Airways takeover. They have been through the worry of losing their jobs and benefits. They have fought hard to win back their security. They don’t deserve to lose the seniority they’ve worked so long to achieve.

And that’s why—they don’t want US Airways! They don’t want to go back. They want to move forward with a free and independent Delta airlines.

Madam Speaker, I submit to you that the U.S. Government must look at this takeover bid and measure it against our nation’s antitrust laws. We must begin a rigorous antitrust investigation by the Department of Justice. House and Senate Committees must also investigate this merger proposal thoroughly.

It is our duty, it is our obligation, it is our responsibility as Members of Congress to represent the best interests of our constituents and our nation, and to hold the feet of the responsible agencies of the Federal Government to the fire to make sure that their review is thorough, careful, and fair.

I am convinced that, if they look at this deal, they will find that it is more anti-competitive than the 2000 United-Us Airways merger, which the Justice Department opposed. I am convinced that this deal is more anti-competitive than almost any other airline combination possible.

Over the years, Delta has been a significant economic engine, fueling the region’s growth. It has helped to make Atlanta one of the world’s most important international transportation centers. The potential loss of Atlanta as Delta’s home would be a tragedy—a real blow to Atlanta, to the State of Georgia, and to the people of the United States.

Madam Speaker, this is a bad deal. That is why we are speaking here tonight, and we will continue to speak in opposition to this takeover bid until it is off the table. We want to secure Delta’s future as a strong, stand-alone company in the heart of Atlanta.

Madam Speaker, I yield to Mr. SCOTT of Georgia. Madam Speaker, I think it is very important for us to make sure that we sum up these major points that we have made here this evening, and that is this: one, this planned hostile takeover, which hopefully we will arrest and stop in the next few days, is anti-consumer, it is anti-competitive; it is not in the best interests of the American traveling public, it is not in the best interests of the creditors to Delta, and it certainly violates, as the gentleman from Utah so eloquently stated point by point, it clearly violates the antitrust statutes of the Justice Department of this country.

So it is within the spirit of what is good and what is right about America, and let me say this to my colleagues and to you, Madam Speaker, that this country is grounded on justice. The American people are expecting justice. This is not just a case for Delta Airlines; it is not just a case for the airline industry. This is a case for the American people, and they are looking at this Congress to provide leadership, keep the feet to the fire, and make sure that this hostile takeover does not take place in the form of any kind of merger, and that Delta Airlines is allowed to stand alone and earn the right that they deserve to come back full flushed and be the outstanding airline that we know that they are.

Watson, a Citizen of Austin, Texas, relative to a petition urging the United States Congress to reject and oppose those portions of H.R. 5818 which would discontinue the minting of the American penny; jointly to the Committees on Financial Services and the Budget.
PRAYER
The Chaplain, Dr. Barry C. Black, offered the following prayer:
Let us pray.

Eternal Lord God, our stronghold in times of trouble, bless today our Senators. Lord, 65 years ago, America experienced a day of infamy. As we remember Pearl Harbor, our hearts turn toward the men and women of our Armed Forces and their families. Thank You for their investment in freedom and their sacrifices for our liberties. Comfort those who mourn and those who bear the scars of battle. Be a companion to those who must stare at an empty chair during this holiday season. Defend those in harm’s way with...
Your heavenly grace, and give them courage to face perils with trust in You. Give them a sense of Your abiding presence, wherever they may be.

We pray in Your sovereign Name. Amen.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The PRESIDENT pro tempore led the Pledge of Allegiance, as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

RESERVATION OF LEADER TIME

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, the leadership time is reserved.

EXECUTIVE SESSION

NOMINATION OF ANDREW VON ESCHENBACH TO BE COMMISSIONER OF FOOD AND DRUGS. DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, the Senate will proceed to executive session to consider the nomination of Andrew von Eschenbach, of Texas, which the clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read the nomination of Andrew von Eschenbach to be Commissioner of Food and Drugs, Department of Health and Human Services.

RECOGNITION OF THE MAJORITY LEADER

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The majority leader is recognized.

SCHEDULE

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, this morning the Senate will vote on the motion to invoke cloture on the nomination of the FDA Commissioner, Andrew von Eschenbach. Senators can expect to have this vote around 10:30 to 10:45 this morning, following the 1 hour for debate. As I mentioned yesterday morning, this is a very important position, and to have this confirmation finally being accomplished will be a great achievement for this Congress.

Once cloture has been invoked, we will try to schedule that vote on confirmation early in the day. There are several critical items the Senate must act on before we adjourn sine die, and therefore Senators should adjust their travel plans to be here voting over the coming days.

I will be working with colleagues on both sides of the aisle to wrap up our business for the Congress, and I appreciate Senators’ willingness to work together on a number of legislative and executive matters.

RECOGNITION OF THE MINORITY LEADER

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The minority leader is recognized.

MOVING THE LEGISLATIVE AGENDA

Mr. REID. Mr. President, Andrew von Eschenbach is cleared on this side, so as far as we are concerned there is no need for a cloture vote. We look forward to working with the distinguished majority leader today, maybe tomorrow, maybe Saturday, to try to get as much cooperation out of Senators as possible. I know the majority leader has worked long and hard to try to come up with something that is very important for the country. We will continue to monitor that and do everything we can as we try to move this legislative agenda.

PROTECTING AMERICAN VALUES

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I will be very brief. I want to speak on another matter. I know we want to get to the hour of pre-vote time here shortly, but we will officially end the 109th Congress. At the end of the day tomorrow, if we do our work today successfully, and tonight, the Senate will be able to adjourn. That will also mark, once we adjourn, this official change in leadership and change in the Senate agenda. I know many of my colleagues and many of my conservative allies view this change with a bit of trepidation, but change is good, change is constructive. It can be difficult, it can be painful, and it can be messy, but change forces us all to reexamine who we are, where we are, and where we want to go; what we know, what we believe.

I believe we have a responsibility to protect traditional, commonsense American values. I believe when we give the American people the freedom to invest their money as they choose, the economy is going to flourish. It is going to have more freedom to grow. At the end of the day, I believe good leaders don’t talk about principles—don’t talk about them—but good leaders lead on principle. They act, and they act with solutions, even if they don’t know that the outcome is going to be 100-percent successful every time a bill is taken to the floor.

I think that is one of the things that at least I tried to do, is not say let’s only take to the floor what will necessarily pass, it makes the right thing to do, on principle; what is the right thing for us to be considering.

During my tenure in public office, it is what I tried to do, to lead on principles and act with solutions. It does come from that surgical approach of fixing things, of operating, of action.

For example . . . for 10 years, we grappled with the issue of Internet gambling. We watched the industry grow from a $1 million mushroom industry in 1996 to a $12 billion industry today. We watched an addiction undermine families, dash dreams, and fray the fabric of a moral society.

So we acted with a solution . . . by passing the Internet Gambling Prohibition and Enforcement Act to provide new enforcement tools to prosecute illegal Internet gambling.

Let me give you a few more recent examples of how we have led on principle, and acted with solutions.

We passed the Adam Walsh Child Protection and Safety Act . . . which creates a national sex offender registry, strengthens measures to prevent child pornography, and reinforces laws against child porn.

We passed the Trafficking Victims Protection Reauthorization Act, which funds the first federal law to strengthen prosecution efforts against human traffickers.

We passed legislation securing the right to pray in U.S. military academies.

We passed legislation protecting the Mount Soledad Memorial Cross.

We passed the Broadcast Decency Enforcement Act, which allows for the 10-fold increase of FCC fines for indecency violations.

We passed Cord blood legislation that harnesses the power of stem cells in cord blood to develop new cures for life-threatening diseases.

We passed the Fetus Farming Prohibition Act, which prohibits the gestation of fetal tissue in order to use it for research.

And perhaps most notably . . . we confirmed John Roberts Chief Justice of the Supreme Court . . . and Samuel Alito as an associate Justice of the Supreme Court.

We confirmed 18 Circuit court nominees and 87 District court judges, including six previously obstructed nominees. America needs judges who are fair, independent, unbiased, and committed to equal justice under the law . . . and we made sure that’s what America got.

Over the past 12 years, what Republicans have done has changed our economy, our country, and our way of life for the better.

Our record of success, combined with the lessons of November’s election, ensures that our party will recommit to serving the interests of America, both here at home and around the world.

That vision—optimistic, forward-looking, hopeful—will be grounded in the fundamentals of commonsense conservative values best found on Main Street and in families with whom we have the privilege of interacting all across the country.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, there will be 60 minutes for debate prior to the cloture vote, with time divided as follows: the Senator from Wyoming, Mr. ENZI, or his designee, 30 minutes; the Senator from Iowa, Mr. GRASSLEY, 20 minutes; the Senator from Louisiana, Mr. VERNIER, 10 minutes.

Who yields time? The Senator from Wyoming is recognized.

Mr. ENZI. Mr. President, I rise to discuss the pending nomination of Dr. Andrew von Eschenbach to be the Commissioner of Food and Drugs. The FDA has a very broad and critical mission in protecting our public health. The Commissioner of Food and Drugs is in charge of an agency that regulates $1 trillion worth of products a year. The FDA ensures the safety and effectiveness of all drugs, biological products such as vaccines, medical devices, and animal drugs and feed. Let me repeat that: all drugs, all biological products such as vaccines, medical devices, animal drugs and feed. It also oversees the safety of a vast variety of food products, as well as medical and consumer products including cosmetics.

As Commissioner of Food and Drugs, Dr. von Eschenbach would be responsible for advancing the public health by helping to speed innovations in its mission areas, and by helping the public get accurate, science-based information on medicines and food. Dr. von Eschenbach has a strong record. He is an accomplished scientist, a proven manager, and a man with a vision. He is also a cancer survivor, and he has brought that perspective, and the compassion that goes with it, to his Government service. He gave up a job he loved, a challenging but rewarding post directing the National Cancer Institute, to offer his service for what I believe is a much more challenging and definitely thankless job of leading the FDA.

The FDA has been without a confirmed Commissioner for all but 18 months of the last 5½ years. Have you firmed Commissioner for all but 18 months? And that was a tenuous 18 months? I believe we can all agree that we need a strong leader at the FDA now, and one who has a mandate to act. He needs full authority to bring back the morale of the Department and get the job done. We must be forward looking. There are many items before the FDA that require the immediate attention of an FDA Commissioner vested with full authority. But that authority flows directly from the act of Senate confirmation. Without a Senate-confirmed leader, we can’t expect the FDA to be as effective as we need it to be. I urge my colleagues to consider this.

I know some of my colleagues on and off the committee are not completely satisfied with their interactions with the FDA during Dr. von Eschenbach’s tenure. Some would urge that the Food and Drug Administration move quickly on cert two expiring pediatric programs, as the next Commissioner of Food and Drugs. Voting yes on cloture and to ensure the FDA to be as effective as we need it to be. I urge my colleagues to consider this.

which required the standing committees of Congress to exercise continuous watchfulness over programs of agencies in their jurisdiction. Numerous Supreme Court decisions will support all the precedents for Congress to see all aspects of the Federal Government.

In 1927, in McGrain v. Daugherty, the Supreme Court upheld congressional authority to conduct oversight of the Teapot Dome scandal. Justice Van Devanter writing for the unanimous Court stated:

We are of the opinion that the power of inquiry with the process to enforce it is an essential and appropriate auxiliary to the legislative function.

To do oversight, Congress needs access to information and people in the executive branch. And that is what I did not, and still may not, be getting from the FDA under the leadership of Dr. Von Eschenbach—as an example, 47 pages removed; another example, 43 pages removed.

How are you going to conduct oversight when you get answers such as that from the Food and Drug Administration?

I take exception to the statement made in support of the cloture motion. People ought to be ashamed of saying Dr. Andrew von Eschenbach has done a superb job in the position he is currently occupying. And an answer such as that to the Congress of the United States. That is an insult. Before you cast your vote in favor of cloture, consider what is at stake—and particularly Members on the other side of the aisle who, during the campaign, in campaign commercial after campaign commercial after campaign commercial, said Congress is not doing its job of oversight, implying that Republicans were covering up wrongdoing by the administration. If you want to preserve your access to information and do the oversight that you think you are going to do, when you are in the majority and you get answers such as that, do you think you are going to be able to do oversight?

In my interactions with the Department of Health and Human Services and the FDA these last 8 months, I have seen a complete and utter disrespect for congressional authority and hence the law. The department and the Food and Drug Administration have repeatedly failed to act in good faith in responding to congressional investigations—and the lack of 43 pages is just one example.

Although the Director’s leadership at the FDA has failed to fully comply with two congressional subpoenas that were issued 7 months ago, efforts to accommodate the agency’s concerns fail on its own merit if it is failing with dysfunction by design. Not only has the NEDA withheld documents that do not appear to be privileged, but it also says what has been withheld and why. The subpoenas compel a privilege log, but the FDA has not provided us with that privilege log.

For Democrats in the majority next year doing the oversight that they said they were going to do because Republicans weren’t doing it—they didn’t let me—let me ask you this: Are you going to be able to conduct oversight when you get answers such as that? Are you going to be able to conduct oversight when you are going to confirm General Counsel? Are you going to let your subpoenas respond to? What is the agency’s explanation? The FDA has said that many documents have been withheld, that it is unduly burdensome to provide a privilege log. Even in the FDA, general counsel, as recently as Tuesday of this week, could not see why the agency needed to comply with the law and the terms of the subpoena which was issued by the committee.

In denying the committee access to the documents responsive to the subpoena, which the department and the FDA administration have claimed “prosecutorial deliberative process” or “confidential communications” or “agency prerogatives” to determine which will be withheld and justify before a jurisdictional committee, when those on the other side of the aisle get answers such as that when you are going to be in the majority, what are you going to do about it? Are you going to keep your commitment to the American people in the majority? And are you going to be able to do the oversight when you get rationales such as “prosecutorial deliberative process” or “confidential communications” or “agency prerogatives”?

I could not talk to line agent West because you can’t talk to line agents, when 3 months before I talked to line agents? There was someone from the Justice Department before the Judiciary Committee, when Senator Kennedy said, “I want access to line agents,” unrelated to what I am talking about: Line Agent West, whom I wanted to talk to and I was told I couldn’t talk to because you can’t talk to line agents, the official at the Justice Department said to Senator Kennedy: You can talk to line agents. We will get them for you.

I do not know whether that ever happened. But that was the answer.

When I went around doing my questioning of Justice Department officials, I said: What about my ability to talk to Line Agent West? It just seemed as if I was going to be able to talk to Line Agent West. But yet this very day the Department is advising the Secretary of the Interior that we can’t talk to Line Agent West, which is key to whether some of these investigations are allowing dangerous drugs on the market. In Cedar Rapids, IA, I have a family that lost an 18-year-old because of a drug that was on the market then and which is not on the market now.

It seems to me that if you are concerned about the safety of drugs, this information is important, and if you have too much coverage up in the FDA, you aren’t protecting the public. If Congress knows about it, you are not doing your job of oversight.

This past summer I asked the Congressional Research Service to look into the department’s policies regarding this matter. And the Congressional Research Service told me that there is “no legal basis” for the department’s executive branch assertion. The analysis provided by Congressional Research Service supports the committee’s position that these executive agencies’ claims have been consistently rejected and compliance with congressional requests in the past has been forthcoming. CRS cites numerous court cases which establish and support Congress’s power to engage in oversight and investigate activities and its access to executive branch personnel and documents in carrying out our powers of oversight.

The Department of Health and Human Services, the FDA within Health and Human Services, says it has been responsive because the agency made available hundreds of thousands of millions of documents to the Finance Committee in response to its subpoena. But the agency can give me all of the books and all the documents housed at the Library of Congress and it won’t matter if it is not what I have asked for and the pages are removed.

It is this type of cooperation that I am getting under this Director that you are now going to confirm. I am very concerned about the cooperation, if any, that this new FDA commissioner is going to confirm. Every Member of Congress should be equally concerned if they take their constitutional duty of conducting oversight of the executive branch seriously, and most importantly to the new majority when you are going to carry out your campaign promises to make sure that there is proper oversight, checks and balances against an executive branch of Government you think is exceeding authority. Every Member should be concerned, I cannot enough. A vote for cloture today is a vote against oversight, and that is not what this Senate should be doing. It is not what the American people sent us here to do. We need to step up congressional oversight to protect our Nation’s system of checks and balances and not reward those who seek to impede our constitutional authority.

This body should not walk hand in hand with the executive branch and sit idly as instances of abuse and fraud continue to endanger the health and safety of American people. This Senate needs to make it clear to the executive branch that Congress takes its oversight responsibilities seriously and to vote against cloture. If we do have cloture, I will have other remarks during post cloture debate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Ms. Murkowski). The Senator from Wyoming.

Mr. ENZI. Madam President, I want to briefly comment.
with Mr. West. I want you to put yourself in Dr. Von Eschenbach’s position. He has not been confirmed. He does not have the full authority to run that department. So what he has to do is rely on the Department of Justice, as the Senator mentioned. The Department of Justice has to make him do what he needs to do. I don’t think he has authority to go beyond what the Department of Justice says.

The Senator is one of the most diligent Members to hold oversight hearings and I appreciate the depth that you go to for individuals as well as groups. I know it is what you are doing on this one. Unless we give him full authority, he has to rely on the Justice Department. The way one has to take on the Department of Justice is through the Judiciary Committee and bring them to task for giving him that kind of advice. I think he is just following the advice he has gotten from those he has to rely on until such time it will be different when he has full authority.

I yield 2 minutes to the Senator from Alaska.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Alaska.

Mr. STEVENS. Madam President, during my time of almost 7 years as chairman of the Appropriations Committee, I have met with Dr. Von Eschenbach quite often. We had many requests for documents. I can’t remember one that he refused. But beyond that, I came to the floor today to say that I have gotten to know Dr. Von Eschenbach personally, and I can’t think of a more qualified man at this time to be confirmed to this position. I hope the Senate will vote cloture and we will confirm Dr. Andrew von Eschenbach as requested by the President. I thank the Chair.

Mr. ENZI. Madam President, I yield 10 minutes to the Senator from Texas.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Texas.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Madam President, I thank Senator Enzi for giving me this time. I am pleased to rise to support Dr. Andrew von Eschenbach’s nomination for Commissioner of the Food and Drug Administration. I am speaking about a person whom I know. I know him as a person. I know him as a human being. I can say, with full confidence, there is no one more qualified and more well suited to lead this very important agency.

I was very pleased the committee overwhelmingly, unanimously, supported his nomination. Not only is Dr. Von Eschenbach a wonderful friend of mine, but he is so qualified for this position. His experience and integrity make him the right choice to lead the FDA.

He is a nationally recognized urologist, surgeon, medical educator, and cancer advocate. He is a three-time cancer survivor. There is no one who can understand what it is like to go through a fight against cancer than someone who has done it. So many doctors haven’t had that experience, one might not get the impression that they really understand what a patient is going through. Not Dr. Andy von Eschenbach. He has been through the hard time of being told he has this dreaded disease and fighting it with all his might. He does relate to patients’ struggles.

During his 25 years at the University of Texas M.D. Anderson Medical Center, he led a faculty of 1,000 cancer researchers and clinicians. He was the chairman of one of the greatest cancer institutions. He was also the founding director of M.D. Anderson’s Prostate Cancer Research Program. In this position, he developed integrated programs to study, treat, and prevent prostate cancer. Before arriving at M.D. Anderson, he served his country as lieutenant commander in the U.S. Navy Medical Corps from 1968 to 1971. In 1976, he joined M.D. Anderson as a urologic oncology fellow. He became a part of the faculty and was named chairman of the Department of Urology in 1983.

When he left M.D. Anderson in 2002, he became Director of the National Cancer Institute. At the time, he was named the American Society of Clinical Oncology’s Oncologist of the Year. The American Cancer Society, of course, is one of the leading organizations in our country that fights for victims of cancer.

He has, also, been published in more than 200 publications. This year, Time Magazine named Andy von Eschenbach as one of the 100 people who shape our world.

The FDA is fortunate to have Dr. von Eschenbach. It is one of the Nation’s oldest and most respected consumer protection agencies. It regulates $1 trillion worth of products available to American consumers, and it makes sure the products are safe and effective.

Dr. Von Eschenbach is the right person to lead the FDA’s mission. I completely trust him. I cannot think of a more qualified candidate. I hope we will put politics aside in this very important nomination and we will confirm this very qualified individual. He is balanced. He has good judgment. He will continue to be a cancer advocate as well as a patient advocate.

He knows, also, from the FDA standpoint, of the issues involved with the drug approval process—that products face extensive testing and studies compared to products in other countries. I have talked to him about this. Of course, their first and foremost responsibility is safety. That is why they have this arduous and comprehensive process of approving drugs.

On the other hand, he also knows you need to make drugs available for patients who otherwise may not survive. He realizes these concerns from every angle. He knows it from the research angle, from the academic angle, from the government angle, and from the patient advocate angle.

It would be a tragedy if we did not give him the full authority and the full congressional confirmation he deserves. He deserves it because he left the private sector at a world renowned cancer research institution to serve his country and the responsibility it takes in a high public policy position.

Sometimes I wonder how we attract such qualified academics and people who are not experienced in this arena. They are not used to the compromise of politics. They have been researchers and in academia all their lives. They come into public service, often of a sudden they are hit with the public exposure and scrutiny. Sometimes they are unfairly characterized in a way they never dreamed.

Yet we have someone of the caliber of Andy von Eschenbach willing to take all of that to do something better for our country and for cancer patients in the country and in the world. We owe him the ability to have this position without any further delay, with the complete imprimatur of the Senate as well as the President of the United States. He deserves it.

I hope our colleagues will look at this, not from a political prism but from the standpoint of an individual who is trying to help medical research and safety in this country go forward, who is a patient advocate, first and foremost.

I thank Senator Enzi and Senator Kennedy for working together to bring this nomination to the Senate. We should have a bipartisan vote in confirming Dr. Andrew von Eschenbach.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Louisiana.

Mr. VITTER. Madam President, I rise today to speak against the cloture motion to confirm Dr. Andrew von Eschenbach as Commissioner of the FDA. I have had a public hold on this nomination and have been very upfront about it. Because my serious concerns have not been addressed in any significant way, I will vote against cloture. If cloture is invoked, I will vote against the nomination.

In doing so, I want to be clear I have nothing against Dr. Von Eschenbach’s technical credentials or professional experience. They are very impressive in many ways. I strongly object to this nomination because the FDA and Dr. Von Eschenbach, acting on orders from the administration, has had a complete and utter lack of action creating a reasonable, safe system for reimportation or prescription drugs from Canada and elsewhere.

Clearly, this nomination making him the permanent head of the FDA will only further delay that reasonable implementation of a reimportation policy. In fact, at my extensive meeting with Dr. Von Eschenbach, my discussion with him made that perfectly clear. I give him credit, I suppose, for being very direct about that, although I am not sure he fully understood the seriousness of the reimportation policy. It is for this reason I will vote against cloture. If cloture is invoked, I will vote against the nomination.
The FDA is completely capable of setting up a reimportation system, one that is safe and effective. The FDA can do this. It is not a matter of technical ability. We have great technical and other resources in this country. It is a matter of political will. At any time, the FDA could implement a sort of prescription drug reimportation plan—perhaps beginning with personal reimportation from Canada, including Internet and mail order sales. The FDA could do this. It is fully capable of doing this. It simply will not because of lack of political will.

The need for this is very obvious to me. Every time I talk to consumers in Louisiana, particularly seniors, it becomes more obvious. And as important is the growing support for this—not just out in the country where that support has always been strong but in the Congress, in the Senate, in the House.

The House passed comprehensive drug reimportation language in 2003. It passed it by an overwhelming majority. More recently, the Senate passed my amendment coauthored by Senator BILL NELSON of Florida by a vote of 68 to 32. This past July was a significant breakthrough because it was the first time we had a meaningful, straight up-or-down vote on a reimportation issue in the Senate. Again, the vote was clear. It was overwhelming. That important amendment passed 68 to 32.

All this shows that the majority of Americans strongly support allowing all Americans to purchase safe, cheaper prescription drugs from Canada and elsewhere. Administration officials absolutely refuse to budge. Not only does the administration refuse to budge, it even went so far as to quietly implement even the most modern programs to stop the very same做法s. I share that attitude. I share that skepticism.

Owning the right of an American to buy prescription drugs, FDA-approved medicines, and use them for themselves, is a wrong policy. We pay the highest prices in the world for prescription drugs in America. Our prices subsidize not only rock-bottom prices in almost every other country but also sky-high and escalating profits of the pharmaceutical companies. That is not fair. That should not be allowed to continue. That is why we need to pass this important policy of reimportation.

Many of my colleagues have spoken about this significant issue in the Senate.

In September, my colleague from Michigan spoke of her bus trips with her constituents to Canada where they were able to buy safe, FDA-approved drugs at a lower cost. Lipitor, a very important cholesterol-lowering drug, for 40 percent less; Prevacid, an ulcer medication, for 50 percent less; antidepressive medications such as Zyprexa for 70 percent less.

In June, my colleague from North Dakota spoke eloquently about the need to allow the reimportation of safe drugs as a way to pressure U.S. pharmaceutical companies to lower prices here. That is the key, not just offering this option of cheaper drugs from another source but breaking up the present system that allows companies to charge dramatically different prices for the same drug around the world. As a Senator, I address to the world by far are right here in the United States. That system will not be able to withstand reimportation. That system will fall with reimportation.

So that is why I continue this fight. That is why it is so important. Although certainly this nominee may very well be confirmed by the Senate today. I am very optimistic that, as we make progress on this issue, we march to a very certain victory, probably next year, on the issue.

Again, we have been making steady progress. My amendment this past summer—the first vote on the floor of the Senate—was a breakthrough vote that showed overwhelming support here on the floor of the Senate for reimportation. Previous House votes, similarly, showed not just majority support, overwhelming support for this change in policy. Just recently, I again joined with Senator BILL NELSON of Florida to put up another important amendment to the appropriations bill that would go a step further. We will continue to pursue that.

Then, next year, I fully expect a full-blown reimportation plan to be here on the floor of the Senate for a full debate and a fair vote.

So as I oppose cloture, as I oppose this nomination, I do so in that spirit and with real optimism that we are not only making progress, but we will, in fact, win on this issue next year. Again, I expect my bill to be fully debated. In this Congress, that bill is S. 109, the Pharmaceutical Market Access Act. I believe it will reach the floor and will get a full debate with what, I think, is a significant bills on the issue next year.

I look forward to that continued progress. I look forward to that ultimate victory because Americans, particularly seniors, all across our country, including in Louisiana, need this very important relief. We can give them this relief in a safe, reliable way to dramatically bring down prescription drug prices.

With that, I yield back the floor.

Mr. ENZI. Mr. President, I wish to acknowledge the intense, enthusiastic, and persistent work of the Senator from Louisiana, Mr. VITTER, for drug reimportation. I do not think I have seen anybody lead as much on an issue or work as hard on an issue. Around here, that is a talent which is very much appreciated.

I do want to mention that, again, Dr. Von Eschenbach has not been confirmed, so he does not have full authority to run the Department or to do what he would like to do or might need to do. He has to rely on the advice of other people, particularly until he is confirmed. After that, even then, he will have to abide by the laws.

I would point out that drug importation is illegal right now, and it is Congress, not the FDA, has determined that. So until we change the laws, all bills we do on any of the things the Senator from Louisiana is suggesting, Dr. Von Eschenbach would really be stepping out of bounds to do drug importation. So I hope we do not hold that against him or hold up his nomination for that reason. We should hold him accountable for what is within his control, but urge him to work with Congress.

I have had dozens of meetings with him on a variety of issues, as Senators have brought them up. Most of them have been resolved. Those within the law, those the Department of Justice has not contested, have been resolved.

Mr. VITTER. Will the Senator yield very briefly?

Mr. ENZI. Yes.

Mr. VITTER. Just very briefly, first of all. I appreciate your kind comments. Very briefly, my comments regarding his and FDA’s ability to move forward on this is based on current law, including the Medicare Modernization Act. He says that if they institute a safety regime and certify the safety of these drugs, they can, in fact, move forward with the reimportation regime.
So under present law, that is possible, and that is what I was referring to. But I respect the Senator’s point of view.

Mr. ENZI. I appreciate that comment. If you were a person who was in a catch-22 position, a very qualified doctor and you really wanted to do a good job with FDA and you knew that half the people or a third of the people or even 10 percent of the people did not want drug importation and you were the guy in charge of maybe making this determination for the first time—even if you knew 8 years prior, and Congress had opposite opinions on it—I do not think you would want to put yourself in that position.

He has just had a number of catch-22 positions where he can irritate half or more of us by making a decision, and nobody is going to make a decision in their confirmation process that way.

It is actually the Health and Human Services Secretary who has to certify under the new law as well. So you get him confirmed and then do the kind of oversight we need to do to make sure he does everything that is possible to make sure we have safe food and drugs.

Mr. President, I yield up to 10 minutes for the Senator from Utah.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Utah.

Mr. BENNETT. Mr. President, I did not plan to talk about drug reimportation, but coming on the heels of this conversation, I really want to make this one observation: The key statement made by the Senator from Louisiana was safe drug reimportation. And the key problem here is certifying that the drugs coming across the border—are they safe. They have traces of whatever the drug might be in the fraudulent packages, but the dose control is not the same, and it is dangerous to the individual taking the drug if he or she assumes they are getting a certain dosage and in fact, they are getting a great disparity.

That has been the challenge. That has been the problem. And until the Secretary of HHS, be it Donna Shalala or Michael Leavitt, can come forward and certify that all of these are, in fact, as advertised, it is the law that they cannot be brought into the United States. I think that is an appropriate law protecting people in the United States.

I agree with the Senator from Wyoming that it really is not appropriate to hold up Dr. Von Eschenbach’s confirmation on this issue because it has to be decided by the scientists and those who are doing the sampling of the shipments rather than the head of the FDA.

I have gotten to know Dr. Von Eschenbach as the chairman of the Agriculture Appropriations Subcommittee. You usually think of agricultural appropriations in terms of crop supports and USDA activities. But for whatever reason, in its wisdom, Congress at one point put jurisdiction over the Food and Drug Administration into that subcommittee. So, if you have people in this position dealing with this man as he has come up.

As we are in the Appropriations subcommittees, everybody who has responsibility over what we have control over, they come asking for things, they come outlining their position, and they come describing what they will do with the money. All of us who have been on the Appropriations Committee have had this experience with a wide variety of people from the executive branch. I have never seen anyone who has come before our subcommittee better prepared, with a better understanding of how the money will be spent, and with more vision as to where the money ought to be spent to take the agency into the future than Dr. Von Eschenbach.

We have not just sat and discussed budget issues; we have not just sat and talked about dollars and cents—what are you going to spend here and what are you going to spend there—he has outlined for me in our conversations where he thinks the FDA of the future ought to be and what it will cost to get it there.

I have been very struck and impressed by his vision for the FDA. This is not a man who is content to simply superintend what he has on his plate. This is a man who has the capacity to look to the horizon, and maybe even beyond the horizon, to see where America ought to be.

In the practice of medicine right now, drug therapy is the cutting edge. Yes, we are developing new operations. We are developing new surgical procedures to try to push the envelope out further as far as health care is concerned. But the major breakthroughs are coming through drug therapy. There are all kinds of situations now where it can be handled with drug therapy that obviates the need for an operation and yet is not intruding or any kind of surgical intrusion.

The implications of that are huge, and the role of the FDA in that kind of medical revolution of the future is paramount. We absolutely have to have at the head of the FDA, in that kind of revolution, a man who is visionary, a man who looks to the future, and a man who understands the potential that lies in the area which he superintends.

Dr. Von Eschenbach, I am convinced, is such a man. I have his resume. We have heard it outlined here. It is an outstanding resume. But people with good resumes can come before us all the time, and for the most part, they spend their time tending what is on their own plate. This is a man with vision. This is a man who sees what can happen and who desperately wants to take the FDA in that direction.

The longer we hold up his nomination, the longer we keep him from being confirmed, the longer we will wait for that kind of vision to be established in that agency. I think we have waited too long. I salute the majority leader for his persistence in bringing this nomination to the floor. At this time, with all the other things we have to do before this Congress comes to an end, this is one he could easily have put off. I am grateful that he did not. I am grateful that he filed a cloture motion to hold our feet to the fire on this and say it is time for us to act. It is time for us to give this man the imprimatur of our confirmation vote so he can move forward, he can infuse the agency with the kind of vision and excitement that I know he has spent enough months with. I think he has had enough conversation with him—have talked to his peers outside of the agency to know that the President has made an outstanding choice in Dr. Von Eschenbach. We as a country would be well served to have him in this place, and I urge the Senate to invoke cloture and confirm this nomination as quickly as we possibly can.

Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, to me it is simply unconscionable that the Food and Drug Administration, one of the best little agencies in Government, has gone leaderless for such a period of time.

Here we have an agency that governs, by some estimates, 25 cents out of every consumer dollar, and yet we treat it as a stepchild. We do not provide it with the funding it needs. We allow it to exist without a confirmed commissioner for months on end, for repeated periods. And yet we expect it to be the vital consumer watchdog agency it was intended to be.

When you think about what this agency does, what the daily business of the FDA is, you can see how dire the situation really is.

This is an agency that makes certain the drugs and medical devices we use
Mr. ENZI. Mr. President, I thank the Senator from Utah for his delightful comments. He speaks so clearly and explains things so well. I know of his contacts with Dr. Von Eschenbach. I hope people will follow his advice and vote for cloture.

Dr. Von Eschenbach’s qualifications are excellent. He is supported by many organizations. We had received a number of letters in support of his nomination prior to his confirmation hearing. Those were duly entered in the hearing record. However, since then we have received additional letters of support.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

OMERIS, Columbus, OH, August 2, 2006.

Hon. Michael B. Enzi, Chairman, Committee on Health, Education, Labor and Pensions, Dirksen Senate Office Building, Washington, DC.

Subject: Nomination of Dr. Andrew von Eschenbach as Permanent Commissioner of Food Administration.

The New York State Cancer Program Association, Inc., supports the nomination by President Bush of Dr. Andrew von Eschenbach to the US Food and Drug Administration.

Dr. Andrew von Eschenbach’s experience as a researcher and physician will provide the FDA with a better focus to confront the challenges and new opportunities facing the agency. Dr. von Eschenbach will lead the agency and strengthen the credibility of its decision-making process.

EDWIN A. MIRAND, Secretary.

THE AMYTROPHIC LATERAL SCLEROSIS ASSOCIATION, 955 15TH STREET, NW, WASHINGTON, DC, July 24, 2006.

Hon. MICHAEL ENZI, Chairman, Health, Education, Labor and Pensions Committee, U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

Hon. EDWARD KENNEDY, Ranking Member, Health, Education, Labor and Pensions Committee, U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

DEAR CHAIRMAN ENZI AND RANKING MEMBER KENNEDY: The ALS Association strongly supports the nomination of Andrew von Eschenbach, M.D., to be Commissioner of the Food and Drug Administration and we urge the Committee to favorably report the nomination to the full Senate.

The ALS Association is the only national voluntary health association dedicated solely to the fight against Amyotrophic Lateral Sclerosis (ALS), more commonly known as Lou Gehrig’s disease. This is a progressive, degenerative disease that is fatal, with no cure, and only one drug available to treat the disease. That drug, approved by the FDA in 1995, provides only modest benefits, prolonging life by just a few months. Dr. von Eschenbach would provide the vital leadership that is needed at the FDA. Moreover, his diverse background as a physician, educator and advocate will be a tremendous asset to the Agency and to the Nation, for he can view the Agency’s mission from many different perspectives and help to foster the collaboration that is so important to advancing medical science and quality health care.

The ALS Association is pleased to offer our strong support for this nomination and again urge the Committee and the Senate to support Dr. von Eschenbach as the next Commissioner of the Food and Drug Administration.

Sincerely,

STEVE GIBSON, Vice President, Government Relations and Public Affairs.

Senator MICHAEL B. ENZI, Chairman, U.S. Senate Committee on Health, Education, Labor and Pensions, Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR ENZI: The Cancer Cure Coalition supports the nomination of Dr. Andrew VonEschenbach as commissioner of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration and we today issue a press release announcing our support. Attached is a letter from the coalition to Dr. VonEschenbach which expresses our support for his appointment.

The Cancer Cure Coalition supports changes at the FDA which will improve its operation. We believe the appointment of Dr. VonEschenbach will lead to that result. If it would help your committee in its decision on Dr. VonEschenbach’s appointment, we would be pleased to appear before the committee to testify. My bio appears on the Cancer Cure Coalition’s website.
I do want to mention the staff person who has directed my health issues. Stephen Northrup is on the floor, and I thank him particularly for all of the work on all of the health issues we have had. Anybody who has looked at the list of those we have dealt with will find it has been a very productive session in the health area, and we are still working on another half dozen issues that could pass yet in this session before the week ends. So I thank Stephen for all of his tremendous help. I ask that people support the nomination of Dr. Von Eschenbach.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Iowa is recognized.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, I spoke earlier this morning against cloture. Cloture passed, which for the public listening means there are 60 percent or more in support of stopping debate, and there is under the rules the possibility of 30 hours of debate. I don't intend to probably speak for more than a half hour, so if anybody is interested in how long postcloture debate might go on, it won't go on very long from my point of view. But I do want to take some time to tell people, even though it is quite obviously nomina[tion] will be approved, why I think he should not be approved.

I placed a hold on this nominee for quite a few weeks. That hold obviously was ignored by the leader when he filed cloture, which is his right to do. I voted against cloture because I take my constitutional duty to conduct oversight of the executive branch of Government very seriously, and I think the nominee is standing in the way of Congress doing its oversight of the agency of which he is now Acting Director and will probably soon be the confirmed Director. That sort of lack of cooperation violates the separation of powers and the checks and balances within our constitutional system.

I hope my colleagues know that I take a great deal of time to make sure that we do both jobs we have the responsibility to do here in the Congress. One is to pass laws. But the one we are never taught much about in political science classes is the constitutional job of oversight, which is the responsibility to make sure the laws are faithfully executed and money is being spent according to congressional intent in the executive branch of Government. So I take a great deal of my time in the Senate trying to make Government work not just by passing laws but by making sure they are faithfully executed. I don't do that all by myself as a single Senator. I have good staff. I charge my staff to conduct oversight rigorously and to investigate any areas where the Federal Government is failing to be transparent, accountable, and effective. Transparency is so important that it is a mess which is everything about the Federal Government, ought to be public. If the work of the executive branch fails the sniff test and the law is not being faithfully executed or the public's business is not being made public, that is when it is my constitutional responsibility to blow the whistle.

Quite frankly, I don't want to take credit for being able to blow the whistle on, because there are a lot of good, patriotic employees in the executive branch of Government who also know it is their constitutional responsibility to execute the laws and spend the money right. When they see it isn't happening, and particularly when they go up the chain of command and don't get results, or when taxpayers monies are being wasted and it seems nobody cares, then they exercise the right they have under laws to blow the whistle to Members of Congress.

So we obviously count on whistle-blowers—in other words, patriotic Federal employees—who report something wrong when people above them don't care. They're not enough to come to us and give us a lot of good information. So today I am blowing the whistle on this nominee. In good conscience, I did put a hold on the nominee, and I will not vote in favor of him for the reasons I have given before and reasons that will come out more today. For this nominee would be an endorsement of the stonewalling, but, more importantly, the disrespect for Congress he has shown by not cooperating with congressional oversight. I can say this about, and I think enough to come to us because of his words which are on the record.

In response to a nomination question in which I asked this nominee if he would cooperate with congressional oversight, Dr. Von Eschenbach identified a number of "executive branch interests" as a basis for not complying with congressional requests, including "matters pending before the agency." And "predeliberative deliberative process information." As the expert in your area. You get this sort of gobbledegook as excuses for not giving information to Congress as they promised to do, but, outside of that, that the Constitution requires they do; that is if you believe in the checks and balances of our Government and if you believe it is backed up by Supreme Court decisions. It seems to me it has a good basis.

This nominee was not well-served by whoever counseled him on these matters. He should know that during my years in the Senate, my investigators have obtained access to every single one of these categories of so-called confidential information. His answer is at odds with my belief that congressional oversight is one of the best ways to shake things up at a government agency and expose the truth. The truth will make Government look better, or if the truth doesn't make Government look better, at least you are being candid with the American people. Besides, it is the public's business, and whether it is good news or bad news, it ought to be public.

Dr. Von Eschenbach's answers happen to be at odds with my belief that congressional oversight is one of the best ways to get to the bottom of things. This is true not just of the FDA: it is true of any Government agency. If an agency is not doing the right thing, typically behind it there is an effort to keep information suppressed, an effort to keep people from doing things which they are supposed to do. And under Dr. Von Eschenbach, the FDA has not only avoided transparency, it also has threatened those who are trying to desperately expose the truth.

That is not just under Dr. Von Eschenbach. For years before him, there has been intense pressure brought to bear upon scientists who want to do the scientific process. I say "do the scientific process" because the scientific process answers itself or gives the answer. That is what we want: answers on safety and efficacy of drugs.

There is a culture there—even prior to Dr. Von Eschenbach, for any serious Director who wants to change it—that is going to make it very difficult to change because you have an agency that is more interested in its public relations and how they look to the public-at-large than what their job is. That is when they end up getting egg on their face, when they are more concerned about their public relations than just doing the job. In most instances, if these agencies do what they are supposed to do, get done effectively, and then the public relations takes care of itself. Good policy, good administering of law, is good public relations. It will take care of itself.

I met with this nominee after the White House sent his nomination to the Senate last March. I hoped he would provide the kind of strong, permanent leadership this agency needs to change its culture, where scientists are intimidated from doing their work. Over the next 9 months, this nominee showed me that he is unlikely to provide that kind of leadership. My belief is what you see is what you get. I fear what we will get from this nominee is an agency that got from him just as much as the Acting Commissioner. Let me tell you why, with just a few examples.

First, the doctor failed to live up to his word. In our meeting, he said he respected and understood the importance of the role the Government plays. He is now the Commissioner of Government. But it didn't take long after that meeting before the first red flags appeared.

In April, the committee began its investigation of the Food and Drug Administration's role in the postmarket surveillance of the Ketek drug, an antibiotic that came under renewed scrutiny last January. It looks as though it is another drug where the FDA was caught flatfooted. The Finance Committee issued two subpoenas in May after the FDA refused to provide documents related to Ketek. I referred to a family in Cedar Rapids, IA, who lost an 18-year-old son.

During this time, the Food and Drug Administration also refused access to Food and Drug Administration officials. The Finance Committee was forced to issue a subpoena to a special agent in the FDA's Office of Criminal Investigation. The FDA refused to allow my staff to speak to this Federal employee, citing a policy against providing access to line agents. Yet, only months before, just a few weeks before that, my staff interviewed two line agents from the Food and Drug Administration on another rule that was in place when I interviewed them, but a few weeks later you couldn't interview another? Apparently, the policy was abruptly changed. I have seen it change over the years with other investigations. This policy is not law, and it is typically enforced when the stakes are at their highest and there is something to hide.

I took this matter seriously enough that I went to the Department of Health and Human Services with the agent. I was told that if this agent wanted to speak to me, he would have to assert his status as a whistle-blower under Federal law. I ask today what I asked that day: Why does this Government employee have to become a whistleblower to talk to me or anybody else in Congress if the public’s business is really public?

So I have to ask my colleagues, is that acceptable? When you are doing your constitutional responsibility of oversight, is it acceptable to the rest of you in the Senate that they thumb their noses?

Also, this Government employee’s supervisors put him in a no-win situation, and because of that he risked being in contempt of Congress. This is an agent who put a doctor in jail for fraud in the Ketek study. You might wonder if I said this started back in January with Ketek and our getting involved in the oversight. There was fraud in this Ketek study. Did the agent do the right thing? It is a closed case. We want to talk to him about the competency of the people who work within the agency.

Again, two copies of the same document were redacted differently. Think of this. They want to keep us from getting information. They send us two copies. One copy has one sentence redacted, and the other copy doesn’t redact it. In another sentence. So we got the whole document but presumably a basis for things we were not supposed to know but now we know. Do you think this guy with a medical degree, with this sort of background, is going to make a change that culture even if there was nothing wrong with him? Even if he cooperated with me? So it calls into question the good-faith basis for redaction at all.

I could go on and on with examples showing the stonewalling and the withholding of information from legitimate congressional requests, pursuing our constitutional responsibility of oversight. What it boils down to is that this nominee has demonstrated he does not understand that the true role of the people’s business. He doesn’t seem to understand that the people who finance it, the taxpayers, have a right to know what their Government is doing and how our money is spent.

I will give one final example. I have been a longtime champion of whistleblowers. I was the lead Senate sponsor of the 1986 whistleblower amendments to the False Claims Act. Back then, we were investigating a too-cozy relationship between defense contractors and the Pentagon. Today, whistleblowers are once again the key to dismantling the cozy relationship between companies and the Food and Drug Administration.

In June, Dr. Von Eschenbach held a meeting of FDA staff involving this drug I have been investigating, questioning how it was handled—Ketek. FDA employees who were present say that he used a lot of sports metaphors regarding being a “team player” and keeping opinions “inside the locker room.” Basically, he said not to criticize the FDA outside the locker room, and if you were thinking about blowing the whistle, he didn’t seem to think there was anything wrong with him. Apparently he stated that anyone who spoke outside the locker room might find themselves “off the team.”

How are you going to do your job of congressional oversight if you have somebody you are getting confirmed who says that if you want to talk to anybody, they better not talk to you, at least not talk off note, because they are no longer on the team? Just think of the damage that can bring through the Federal bureaucracy.

This nominee held this meeting in the midst of this ongoing congressional investigation of this drug Ketek. He called the meeting after a number of allegations were made about the FDA’s handling of Ketek. A number of FDA employees interviewed by the committee were offended by his comments, found them highly questionable, inappropriate, and potentially threatening. I don’t think there was any “potential” about it, they were meant to be threatening, and I agree with the employees.

Leaders of an agency should not hold a meeting to suggest that dissenters will be kicked off the team, particularly when the lives of American people are at stake, when drugs are going to be put on the line and they might cause severe harm—or death. An 18-year-old in Cedar Rapids, IA. His is the type of action that shows the true stripes of the nominee. He broke his word that he respected whistleblowers—that is what he told me; quite obviously he doesn’t respect whistleblowers—and that he would never raise even the appearances of retaliation. If this meeting isn’t an example of retaliation, I don’t know what it is. When it comes to health care and public safety, we need to empower whistleblowers more than ever. They demonstrate extraordinary courage in the face of extraordinary adversity. It is extremely difficult to be a whistleblower. As I like to say, they are about as welcome as a skunk at a picnic. Yet it is whistleblowers in Government who put their job security on the line to come forward and expose fraud or wrongdoing for the public good. My Finance Committee staff has been investigating serious allegations raised by whistleblowers at the FDA on various issues over a period of 3 years. Many of these allegations are very serious and call into question whether the Food and Drug Administration is fulfilling its mission to protect the health and safety of Americans. The way the Food and Drug Administration under this nominee has handled the investigation of Ketek shows the agency would like to keep its business secret. It doesn’t want these issues made public or subjected to scrutiny. The culture at the FDA has been we will let the public know what we think they need to know.

The American people do not want the government making decisions about what is good for them behind closed doors.

The goal of the Finance Committee’s oversight has been to get the chairman, I wanted to bring out in the open the decisions made by the FDA. For too long the agency has been making its decisions behind closed doors.

This nominee is not likely to serve well because he just does not seem to get it. He has placed media relations in the center, and this nominee will not serve and they are not always in the interests of John Q. Public.

I hear from time to time from other agencies that particular documents are especially sensitive or that the release of subordinates have been investigated for a criminal investigation—I understand that. But in those circumstances, I have reached accommodations. Unfortunately, in this case, my efforts to work with Dr. Von Eschenbach and his subordinates have been all but summarily dismissed.

As I am sure you know, I intend to keep pressing the FDA for greater transparency and openness. I think there is going to be new leadership in the Congress which is going to be even more aggressive and has a history of being more aggressive in this area. I have been welcoming and I continue to welcome that help.

As I continue with my constitutional duties to conduct oversight, I look forward to working with my colleagues to ensure transparency, accountability, and effective governance by the executive branch. The bottom line is Congress committed to oversight of the executive branch. The public depends on Congress to fulfill its duty and hold executive agency leadership accountable. To sum up, that is what congressional oversight is all about.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Colorado.

Mr. ALLARD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to speak as if in morning business.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the Senator is recognized.

TRIBUTE TO KENNETH JORDAN

Mr. ALLARD. Mr. President, I rise today to honor the service and sacrifice of Colorado Springs police officer Kenneth Jordan.

My wife Joan and I were deeply saddened to hear of the senseless death of Officer Kenneth Jordan while in the line of duty this past Tuesday in Colorado Springs, CO, during a traffic stop.

It takes a person of great courage to become an officer of the law. It takes a strong, hardworking, and considerate individual. It takes a special someone who is willing to pay the ultimate price in protecting the safety of others.

Officer Kenneth Jordan was just this person. Unfortunately, Officer Kenneth Jordan paid the ultimate price.

Officer Kenneth Jordan was the 12th Colorado Springs police officer to be killed in the line of duty. According to the National Law Enforcement Officers Memorial Fund, more than 17,500 officers have been killed nationwide since 1792, including 231 in Colorado.

The shock to the city of Colorado Springs this week at his death is especially harsh—Kenneth Jordan was the second Colorado Springs officer to be killed this year. Officer Jared Jensen made the ultimate sacrifice last February. The memorial service for officer Kenneth Jordan is at 1 p.m. today at New Life Church will be a grim repeat of the day 10 months ago when Officer Jensen was laid to rest.

Before Officer Jensen Colorado Springs police had not held a funeral for one of their own in 24 years.

A Chicago native at 32 years of age, Kenneth Jordan joined the Colorado Springs Police Department in January 2000 and was known for his unwavering professionalism and strong work ethic. In February 2004, Officer Kenneth Jordan was named a DUI officer, whose passion was getting drunk drivers off the road. According to his colleagues, Officer Jordan made 584 DUI arrests since joining this elite team and nearly broke the yearly record of 283 when he made 270 arrests in 2005. Officer Jordan was honored in 2004 by the Mothers Against Drunk Drivers for his dedication to enforcing DUI laws.

Officer Kenneth Jordan has a brother and a son. He is survived by his sister, his loving parents and his girlfriend. Kenneth was well liked by his peers and others with whom he came in contact. He was always willing to lend a hand to friend or a stranger alike.

The city of Colorado Springs has lost a valuable member of its community, and we are all forever grateful for Officer Kenneth Jordan’s service and dedication to the safety and well-being of others. His service to the city of Colorado Springs is highly commendable, and his contributions will be remembered.

I extend my deepest sympathy to the family of Officer Kenneth Jordan. May his bravery and unwavering sense of duty serve as an example for the future generation of law officers. Thank you for your service, Officer Jordan. Rest in peace, Sir.

I yield the floor.

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? Without objection, it is so ordered.

ORDER OF PROCEDURE

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that myself, the Senator from Idaho, and the Senator from California, Senator Feinstein, be allowed to speak as if in morning business for the next 30 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? Without objection, it is so ordered.

LABOR SHORTAGE

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, the Senator from California, Senator Feinstein, will be here in a few moments to join me in what we believe is an important message, to continue to speak not only to our colleagues here in the Senate but to America as a whole. It is a speech not unlike the one we gave before we recessed for the break before the election, when it was becoming increasingly clear that America was finding itself in a major labor shortage, primarily in agriculture and some of the service industries. In fact, while I was home during this recess period of time, the shortage of orange juice in the U.S. market made national news as the price went up substantially.

A shortage of orange juice today in the American market is because nearly a million cases of oranges rotted on the trees of Florida this fall, late summer, because there were not hands to pick the oranges off the trees. From the trees and move them to the processing sheds. That became painfully obvious across America as the harvest season went on, especially in those areas that require concentrated hand labor, whether it was Florida, California, and the great San Joaquin Valley of California, whether it was my State of Idaho that began to see labor shortages in a variety of crops, whether it was the Washington or Oregon, where many of the continuing fruits and vegetable crops simply did not get picked and apples rotted on the trees, whether it was in Kentucky, Illinois, Colorado or Michigan, it became so obvious this Congress, in its effort to pass comprehensive immigration reform, simply failed to do so. America grew angry about it, grew angry about the number of illegals in our country and the fact this Congress did little or nothing about it.

A great deal is going on. One of the reasons the labor shortages began to appear is because this Congress insisted, and the administration agreed, we put money behind the securing and the closing of our southwest border where literally a million-plus people were moving across annually into our labor market.

We viewed that as untenable and irresponsible for a great nation to fail to control and secure its borders. We are doing that now. We are continuing to invest and will continue to invest in a secured border environment. But in doing that, and failing to couple with a more secure border a comprehensive immigration reform package that allows the border to work, how to get the worker program. American agriculture now hurts as they have never hurt before.

On December 4, all of my colleagues received a letter that in itself was almost unprecedented, a letter from over 400 agricultural groups around the country—not just agricultural groups but nursery groups, warehouse groups, storage groups, all of them generally agriculture related.

I ask unanimous consent to have that printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

December 4, 2006.

Hon. Larry Craig, U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

Dear Senator Craig: The organizations on the attached list urge you to support passage of a comprehensive agricultural worker program this year!

We read the headlines. Food grown for American tables has rotted in American fields this year. The cause? In this case it’s not the weather. It’s something the Congress can address—labor. We need agricultural worker reform before the end of the 109th Congress.

The facts are clear: on many American farms, immigrant labor plants, tills and picks the fruits, vegetables, and other crops. Immigrant workers tend the livestock—feeding the chickens, turkeys, horses, sheep, hogs and cattle and milking the cows. Immigrant workers also produce, install, and maintain the plants that make our homes, towns, and cities livable.

The current agricultural temporary worker program—known as H2A is flawed and needs reform. There is no area of the country... in most areas, it’s far less than that. Nationally, only two percent of farm workers are provided with compensable and negotiable rest.

American agriculture needs a reformed H2A program. American agriculture needs a reformed H2A program that is time- effective and streamlined, and a transition approach that allows farmers to retain the experienced workforce while capacity is built on the farm and at the border to support wider use of a program like reformed H2A.

Language that seeks to address the challenges specific to agriculture was included in the bipartisan bill reported by the Senate. Many House members of both parties have acknowledged the need to address immigration reform for agriculture. Polls show the American people overwhelmingly favor a common-sense approach to immigration reform including sensible foreign worker programs and earned legal status subject to strict conditions for workers currently in the country.

Another fact we must point out, at this late date in the year, is that agriculture issues are rarely partisan issues. While they are sometimes regional, in this case every area of the country is affected by agricultural shortages and support for a common-sense solution comes from every region of the country as well.

Reports in the media have told the story this harvest season: not enough workers to pick the apples in New York and Washington or the cherries in Oregon and Michigan or the oranges in Florida. One major daily newspaper showed on its front page a massive pile of pears on the ground in California—rejected by the packing house because they were picked too late due to labor shortages, while pears have been imported from coast to coast, from border to border.

It is time for the Congress to act. After a decade of debate and with worker shortages now a reality, American agriculture needs your help.

The number and geographic representation of the organizations on the attached list show the widespread and urgent need for solving this problem. We urge you to support enactment of a comprehensive agricultural worker program, this year.

Sincerely,

Mr. CRAIG. What did they say? They said very clearly: a failure to reform the H-2A program has put American agriculture in an untenable position.

As we bring in the numbers this winter to do the harvest this summer and fall, it is reasonable to predict the loss that American consumers are now hearing about in bits and pieces through the national news could well be equivalent to $4 billion to $5 billion of actual value lost at the farm gate—meaning the produce did not leave the farm, it did not make it to the processor, it will never make it to the consumer’s shelf, and American consumers will grow increasingly dependent upon foreign sources for their food supply. For a great nation like ours, that is not only dangerous, it is foolish and irresponsible.

As we put American agriculture through this difficult time by our failure to enact comprehensive immigration reform, something else is going on out there on the farm. Diesel costs, fertilizer costs, equipment costs are at an all-time high. Of course, we know the general energy costs have increased at an unprecedented rate this year. Not only do we have the impact of high input costs in the production of American agriculture and agricultural foodstuffs, now, there is nobody to pick the crop.

I was in the upper San Joaquin Valley late summer meeting with a group of agricultural people. One farmer said it as clearly as he could ever be said. He said: Senator CRAIG, if you can’t bring the workers to me or if you can’t make the workers available in the valley, I will have to go where the workers are.

What did he mean by that? He meant he was leasing land in Argentina or Mexico or Brazil, where the labor force is today.

What will happen to the land in the great San Joaquin Valley? It will go fallow, or it will be put in homes. It will no longer be profitable to produce in that greatest agricultural valley in the world which produces the vegetable crops and all of the other kinds of crops the American consumer so readily needs and wants.

Last year, for the first time, by a near majority of months, America was consuming more from foreign import than they were consuming from their own production. That is something that should never happen in the greatest agricultural area in the world. I think Americans get it. There was a very loud group who distorted the whole debate. But they also taught us something important, that Government had fumbled and Congress had failed in its responsible approach to a comprehensive, enforceable, immigration law. We ignored it for decades. In ignoring it, great problems had occurred. Not only did we have an unprecedented number of undocumented illegal nationals in our country, but we had allowed industries such as agriculture to grow increasingly dependent on an illegal workforce.

Agriculture came to me in the late 1990s and said: Senator Craig, this problem is no longer fixed.

We began to work on it then. Last year, the Senate passed a comprehensive bill with AgJOBS, the bill I had worked on with American agriculture and the coalition of over 400 agricultural organizations in my State. When the House failed to act and would not act, when we recognized that we had to gain confidence with the American people that we knew what we were doing and we would do it right, we increasingly began to put pressure on the border, to secure it, to make it a real border, to recognize that to cross it you had to be legal, you had to have the right papers and credentials. That is going on as we speak.

I was encouraged our President to maximize the use of our National Guard to help the Border Patrol to focus on those concentrated areas where greater movement of illegals coming across our border was occurring. It is an issue of security; it is not just people wanting to cross the border to work. Last year, over 200,000 were apprehended who were non-Mexican. They were from all over the world. Many of them, tragically enough, were drug traffickers and illegals trying to get here for illegal purposes—not just a hard day’s work in the hot sun of an agricultural field. Border security is critical.

I hope this Congress will do now what it must do, what it has to do for the American farmer, for the American agricultural industries, and that is pass a responsible, comprehensive reform of the H-2A program.

Yes, we need to deal with the illegals who are currently in the country, but we also need to create a legal, identifiable flow of people who come to work and then go home. Ninety-plus percent who work here want to do just that: they want to go back from where they came. That is where their families are in large part. That is where the American dollar improves their lifestyle, back in their hometowns, predominantly in Mexico but in other parts of the world, too.

If we fail to pass comprehensive reform this year, American agriculture will go through another devastating year in the field, and real management choices will be made, management choices no longer to plant and grow in the American market but to plant fresh vegetable crops in the field in December to be harvested in February to supply our great and abundant markets and the needs of our consumers.

This is a very real issue today and a very real problem. That is why on December 4 this coalition sent to this Congress an urgent message, a plea. It said: Please listen to us. Support and pass the comprehensive agricultural worker reform. Give us an H-2A program that is transparent, that recognizes because even in all of our debates this is not going to happen overnight. We won’t get to this for several months, and when we do, it will take time working with the House. Then it will pass. Then it has to be implemented.

So American agriculture will go through another very tough cropping season and billions of dollars will be lost. Wise business men and women will say: That is not sustainable. That is not going to work. But the people who will continue to farm in this country and produce in this country or if they go elsewhere to produce, and instead of being domestic producers, they become foreign importers. That is something that should never be allowed to happen.

My colleague from California has joined me. Senator Feinstein and I and others have worked closely to craft the right kind of bill that works, that is legal. One of the things that recognizes the importance of border security and border control to get this great country back into the business of doing what it ought to do; that is, to allow into our country those we want and to keep out those we don’t want.

We are proud of that. Most of all of us came from somewhere else some time ago. It is because of this we are a great nation. It is because of the ability to assimilate, to bring into our culture foreign nationals to become Americans that has made our country great.

In the last two decades, we failed to do that in a responsible fashion. Now, because of that, American agriculture hurts, other industries hurt. It is important to grow increasingly sensitive to getting this job done and getting it right. The job itself is passing AgJOBS, the comprehensive responsible bill to help American agriculture create a legal workforce.

Under the unanimous consent of the Senator from California, Mrs. Feinstein, has the next 15 or 16 minutes.

Mrs. Feinstein. That is correct.

May I proceed, Mr. President?

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. Graham). The Senator from California is recognized.

Mrs. Feinstein. Mr. President, I thank the Senator from Idaho, I also thank the Senator from California, and I think I agree with the Senator.

Before I proceed, I note that Senator Murray is in the Senate. I ask unanimous consent she be given 10 minutes directly following my remarks.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mrs. Feinstein. Mr. President, Senator Craig rightly stated that management choices are being made right now. That, in fact, is true. We are seeing billions of dollars of an agricultural industry effectively being destroyed. Some of it is competition from abroad, but much of it is the fact that growers and farmers have a 20-percent—It is estimated—labor shortage to harvest, to produce. There is tremendous uncertainty. I can tell you for a fact, in the largest State in the Union, and the largest agricultural State. Farmers do not believe they can get workers to harvest their crops, ergo they are not planting these crops. Senator Craig and I have been to the Senate before. We have written a joint letter to the leader. We have asked, please, because comprehensive immigration reform tends to be stalled, at least pass AgJOBS. An industry depends on it.

We have worked out AgJOBS. It has passed the Senate as part of the immigration bill. Just take out the part that is AgJOBS and pass it. It is a 5-year pilot. It involves the ability of the agricultural industry of our country to get labor, both through H-2A reform, which is contained, and through a 5-year pilot to try to secure a workforce for agriculture.

While I was in California, I had the opportunity to meet with growers and farmers. The cry for labor reform has only grown louder. What I will do is talk a little bit about the micro impact and then the macro impact.

California olive farmers delivered only about 50,000 tons of olives this year. That is down from 142,000 tons last year. So only one-third of the crop could be harvested this year because of a lack of labor. Farmers knew their crops were going to be light because of weather troubles. But in the smaller crop to harvest, farmers had trouble hiring enough workers to work in their groves.

In Stanislaus County, a farmer by the name of Kevin Chiesa he is a grower and is the president of the Stanislaus Farm Bureau—reported that they simply pulled their figs and peach trees out of the ground because they did not have enough workers to harvest the ripe fruit. Mr. President, 350 acres were pulled on his farm, leading to a net dollar loss of $200,000 and a gross loss of $750,000.

Now, that may not seem like much to some, but it sure is a lot to a farmer who depends on this money to pay his bank loans and to support his family and pay his mortgage.

In San Bernardino County, Richard Miller of Murai Farms saw his small farm of 130 acres struggle because of a lack of labor. He reported they experienced substantial losses in their strawberry crop, resulting in a half a million dollars in losses already this year. Mr. Miller has been farming since 1962, but the difficulties he has experienced have recently caused him to think about giving up his farm and leaving the profession for good.

Over and over again, I have heard that growers need an immediate fix. They do not know what to plant in the upcoming spring season because they do not know whether they will have the workers necessary to harvest the crops.

I will say that my friend and colleague, Senator Boxer, and I are in sync on this issue. She also has talked to growers. She also knows the problem. She also has been a strong supporter of the AgJOBS program. So in making my remarks today, I want to be certain that this body knows I am also speaking for my friend and colleague, Senator Boxer.

I have brought to the floor today a graphic illustration of one of our pear growers. Her name is Toni Scully. I have met Toni Scully. I met with her in California and she told me about the problems her family had experienced. Shown in this picture is Toni Scully in her pear orchard. Her family lost 25 percent of their bumper crop this year because they did not have sufficient labor to harvest the pears. As shown in the picture, here are the pears all over the ground. They are all going to be either plowed under or thrown in the garbage. Here is a woman who will have lost essentially everything this year.

Now, other growers tell me they are afraid to plant crops that will later be left to rot in the fields. So some growers are experimenting with moving their farms to Mexico. Last week, the New York Times ran an article that pointed out how much imported produce is now rising above exported produce. And one of the big problems is the national loss in fruits and vegetables will be between $5 billion and $9 billion a year. This is not my estimate. This is the U.S. Agriculture Department’s estimate. They also say that over the long term, the annual production loss would increase to $6.5 billion to $12 billion each year.

These losses are not just limited to fruits. The impact is felt throughout the economy. For every job lost on family farms and ranches, the country loses three to four jobs in related sectors—equipment, inputs, packaging, processing, transportation, marketing, lending, insurance—they are all supported by having agricultural production here in this country.

Low-producing farms mean a lowered local tax base as farms no longer generate income and create jobs.

Ultimately, the current farm labor situation is making Americans more dependent on foreign food. Instead of stocking produce grown and harvested in our country, America’s grocers are increasingly filling their shelves with foreign-grown produce.

For decades, the fiercely independent fruit and vegetable growers of California, Florida, and other States, traditionally have shunned Federal subsidies. Now, they are now buckling under the pressure and asking us for Federal subsidies.

In just one example, because of labor shortages, U.S. avocado farmers may miss the January market window and lose out to Mexican avocado farmers—those already in California in 2007. This will wipe out our local avocado crop. The fact that they cannot get the labor they need to harvest the fruits and vegetables only weakens our whole American agricultural industry.

Now, the reason for the shortage is simple. There is no readily available pool of excess labor to replace the 500,000 foreign migrant workers we have depended on for years. The work is hard. It is stooped. It is manual. The workers necessary to harvest the pears. As shown in the picture, here are the pears all over the ground. They are all going to be either plowed under or thrown in the garbage. Here is a woman who will have lost essentially everything this year.

In November, I received a letter signed by 147 growers’ organizations and individual farmers. They point out in their letter that they cannot wait another year, that our State’s pear growers had an exceptional crop, the best-looking crop in over 40 years, yet they suffered major losses. They point out:

While the pear losses were the most dramatic among the commodities, other producers suffered as well from delayed harvests, degraded quality and deferred cultural practices.

These crises are a big deal. Farm worker crews in my State during harvest were 60 percent of normal—60 percent of normal. What they say is:

Pending regulatory changes proposed by the Department of Homeland Security propose to turn Social Security Administration’s mismatch letters into immigration compliance documents. The proposal would allow DHS to prosecute and penalize employers across this country who do not terminate employees who cannot verify their status.

So, Mr. President, you see the problem. The farmers are going to be pressured if they hire someone who is not legal to harvest their crops. And they cannot find legal people to harvest their crops. That is the dilemma.

Further quoting the letter:

Even though today’s employers follow current SSA requirements regarding mismatch letters, they would be in violation of the Department of Homeland Security proposal. If finalized, the DHS proposal will aggravate the current labor shortage problem in agriculture.

Bottom line, we cannot continue the way we are going. That is why Senator Craig and I have come to the floor. He has worked on this bill for 7 years. I finally got involved and we made some agreed-upon changes. I was able to introduce it in the Judiciary Committee as part of the immigration bill with these changes. We were able to address H-2A reform—and I will go into that in a moment—and I will address the Senate. And, as I say, we believe we have in fact 60 votes in this House.

The letter I spoke about and quoted from is signed by the Allied Grape Growers; California Association of Nursery’s & Garden Centers; California Association of Wheat Growers; California Association of Winegrowers; California Bean Shippers Association; California Citrus Mutual; California Cotton Ginners & Growers Associations; California Egg Industry Association; California Grain & Feed Association; California Fig Advisory Board; California Floral Council; California Grape & Tree Fruit; California Grain... and Feed Association; California League of Food Processors; California Pear Growers Association; California Seed Association; California State Floral Association; California Warehouse Association; Far West Equipment Dealers Association; almost every county farm bureau; Nisei Farmers League; Olive Grower Council of California; and on and on and on, with different farms, grape growers, olive growers, cotton ginners, poultry farmers—pages and pages of farm leaders with us to do something. And we do nothing.

We will not re passes a bill that has been passed by this Senate once, and we are in the middle of a major crisis. So I am kind of at my wit's end.

Let me tell you a little bit about the AgJOBS bill. It is a 5-year pilot. It would provide a one-time opportunity for trained and experienced agricultural workers to earn the right to apply for legal status. It would reform the labor certification process, which has been convoluted, with a pilot that would cap and sunset. It would provide a secure guest worker program, H-2A, where necessary, to go in to areas for short periods of time. It is a win/win situation.

There are a number of specifics. It freezes the adverse wage rate for 3 years, to be gradually replaced with a prevailing wage standard. The H-2A visas would be secure and counterfeit resistant. In this way, agricultural labor would have a permanent workforce and secure guest worker program, H-2A, where necessary, to go in to areas for short periods of time. It is a win/win situation. It has passed this Senate.

The losses are in the hundreds of millions of dollars of Nation, and we do nothing. We stiff the American agricultural industry. I have a hard time understanding that. I know the votes are here to do it. We could probably do it. Through the Chair, I ask Senator Craig, does he not believe we could pass this bill with maybe an hour on the floor of the Senate.

Mr. CRAIG. I thank the Senator for asking the question. This is not an unknown issue. We all understand it. The Congress understands it. The election is over. People can decide whether they survived or failed because of their position one way or another on immigration. The reality of what she and I talk about is so real today. We knew it then; we know it now. We have the 60 votes. We have had them for some time. There is no question in my mind, with the reforms we are talking about, this could become law and we could pass it in the Senate.

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. I ask unanimous consent that the Senator from Maryland be recognized.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. Thank you very much.

The blue card would require that they work in American agriculture for an additional 150 workdays per year for 3 years, or 100 workdays per year for 5 years. At the end of that time, they would be able to obtain a green card. The Department of Homeland Security would ensure that the ID cards are encrypted, that they have biometric identifiers, that they contain antiterrorist protections. So you would be able to identify 1.5 million people who are currently illegal. You would know who they are. You would know they are legal. You would have a legal path to bring workers to harvest their crop. Workers can apply for a blue card if they can demonstrate that records that they have worked in agriculture for at least 150 days within the previous 2 years. I can see my time is running out. May I have a couple minutes more to sum up?

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senator from California be allowed to proceed for at least 5 more minutes.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The blue card would require that they work in American agriculture for an additional 150 workdays per year for 3 years, or 100 workdays per year for 5 years. At the end of that time, they would be able to obtain a green card. Over the 5 years, it would apply to 1.5 million people, which would provide a stable, ongoing workforce for the United States. Workers would be required to pay a fine of $500, show that they are current on their taxes, that they have not been convicted of a crime that involves bodily injury or harm to property in excess of $500. Employment would be verified. The program would be capped and sunset.

The Department of Homeland Security would ensure that the ID cards are encrypted, that they have biometric identifiers, that they contain antiterrorist protections. So you would be able to identify 1.5 million people who are currently illegal. You would know who they are. You would know they are legal. You would have a legal path to bring workers to harvest their crop. Workers can apply for a blue card if they can demonstrate that records that they have worked in agriculture for at least 150 days within the previous 2 years.

I can see my time is running out. May I have a couple minutes more to sum up?

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senator from California be allowed to proceed for at least 5 more minutes.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. Thank you very much.

The blue card would require that they work in American agriculture for an additional 150 workdays per year for 3 years, or 100 workdays per year for 5 years. and colleges and universities? What about the support of health research or investing in infrastructure or meeting the needs of our farmers or ranchers or law enforcement? Those are critical needs. The Senate Republican leadership did this past summer that they could go out the back door.

Never in my 14 years in the Senate have we started a new fiscal year with so little progress in the Senate in passing the appropriations bills and funding the critical functions of Government. Nineteen days ago we entered a new fiscal year. I came to the floor at the time to complain about the unfinished business of the Senate and expressed my disappointment that we were recessing for the elections without moving these bills. I always thought we would come back and the Republican leadership would finish its work this session. But they have made a different choice. It is now December 7. We have not seen one additional funding bill this year. And this time we are hearing talk that the Republican leadership may formally adjourn the Senate by the end of this week, with most of the 11 appropriations bills never being sent to the President.

I think it is worth remembering that when this happened last time, there was a major shift of power back in November of 2002. I was serving at the time as chair of the Transportation Appropriations Subcommittee. After the election, the appropriations process was not complete. But Democrats still worked to fulfill our responsibility by moving bills on the floor and sending them to conference. Unfortunately, we were blocked from completing our job. The Republican leadership that was due to come into the majority in January of 2003 prohibited us from moving those bills forward. They decided they wanted to complete the appropriations process when they were in control.

This is not what we are seeing in the appropriations process now, because it is important to America’s families and communities. We are already 2 months into this fiscal year. The American people are paying a price for these delays. Democrats are willing to complete this process now, even under Republican control, because we believe the American people have waited long enough. Unfortunately, the Republican leadership didn’t get the message. Now, American families are going to pay the price of this negligence.

Some Senators have been suggesting that we simply pass a continuing resolution for the next entire fiscal year and everything will be fine. Unquestioning there is no real difference between passing these bills we have worked so hard to put together and putting Government on auto pilot for a full year. There is a big difference. This country will pay a price under that scenario for airborne safety.

Under a full year’s CR, my colleagues should know we will only be able to hire half of the air traffic controllers we need, and we will not be able to hire the air traffic safety inspectors who are desperately needed. We are going to pay a price in highway safety because we are not going to be able to reverse the recession in that critical area. We are going to pay a price in the fight against terrorism, because we are not going to be able to fund the Treasury Department’s efforts to stop terrorist financing. And we are going to pay a price in ensuring our kids and improving our communities and training our workforce. Everywhere you look, we will pay a price if we fail to do our job.

The Republican mismanagement will hurt my State of Washington, from the fight against drugs and gangs to the cleanup effort at the Hanford Nuclear Reservation. If you sit down with law enforcement officers in my home State, as I have, they will tell you they are facing a methamphetamine epidemic. It is families and communities, and law enforcement needs help to deal with it. Over the past few years I have worked to provide funding each year for the Washington State meth initiative. It is a coordinated Statewide effort that focuses on treatment, prevention, enforcement, and law enforcement and it is a great model for other States. Again, this year in the Senate bill, I got a commitment to support my State’s meth initiative. But now this funding is going to be lost because Senate Republicans have refused to do their job and pass the Commerce-Justice-State spending bill. Because Republican Senators are not going to do their job, they are going to make it harder for police in my State to do their job, and that is wrong.

This failure to act will also delay and put at risk support for an antigang program in Yakima Valley. Back on October 16, I was in Yakima at the police department meeting with two dozen local officials, law enforcement, and prosecutors. They told me about the tremendous challenges they were facing, and the top issues on their list were meth and gangs. I heard their message, and I have fought for a commitment in the Senate to support a community-based gang task force. That funding is needed immediately. Now I have to go back to Yakima and tell those hard-working leaders that the funding I fought for is put at risk because Republicans don’t want to do their jobs and pass the annual spending bills. People in my State deserve better than that.

Let me offer another example of how the Republicans’ failure to do their jobs is hurting my State. Our Government has an obligation to clean up the Hanford Nuclear Reservation in Richland, WA. As I speak, that community is working hard to clean up nuclear waste, protect the community, and the environment. The Senator I have fought for the funding we need to keep that cleanup moving forward. But now the Republicans are refusing to move the Energy and water bill. As a result, funding for Hanford cleanup is going to be delayed. That means it is going to take longer, and it will cost more money. The Republican leadership is going to have to explain to the people I represent in the Tri-Cities why Hanford funding is being delayed. They are going to have to answer for their failure to act on these and other priorities.

It doesn’t have to be this way. Rather than spending the month of July and September debating these appropriations, we could have been debating these appropriations bills that are critically needed for our Nation’s safety and security.

We could have been fighting for the people we represent. We could have been meeting their basic needs and protecting their livelihoods and ensuring their safety. Unfortunately, the Republican leadership said “no,” and now our families are going to pay a price.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Ms. MIKULSKI. Mr. President, I want to compliment the Senator from Washington State for commenting on the law enforcement aspects that are going to be lost under the way we are going to be funding my State. Absolutely right. I say to the Senator before she leaves the floor, that is in the Commerce, Justice, Science Committee, on which I am currently ranking member. We worked on a bipartisan basis—Senator SHELBY and I—to produce the bill that would have given the financial tools to local enforcement to fight the meth epidemic, the gangs that are coming, all with the most grim and ghoulish approaches in our local communities.

But we are saying, you know what, we are cutting and running. So we are cutting their budget, and we are running out of here. That phrase “cut and run” has been used so cavalierly, but I am telling you that is exactly what we are doing now. We are cutting and running from our responsibility to fund the programs that meet compelling human needs in our own States, in our own country, as well as those things that are important, such as the security, such as funding the FBI and to the security in our own communities. We are talking about meth and gangs, but I know the Senator feels as strongly as I do about sexual predators. We worked with Mr. Gonzales, the Attorney General, in terms of a very good anti-sexual predator approach, with listing and watch lists and those things that, again, empower the local law enforcement. We have a program that helps sheriffs.

We want to bring in the posse, we have to bring in the bucks. What I like about the sheriff initiative is it is in every community, not only urban areas but also out in the rural areas. But, oh, no, we have to get home. Well, I think we have abdicated our responsibility. I thank the Senator for what she has said.

Mr. President, we are abdicating our responsibility. And in abdicating our responsibility to pass the outstanding appropriations bills, we are having a very dire impact on our own country. Of the 12 appropriations bills, only 2 have passed. One is Defense and one is Homeland Security. I am so glad that we did pass those and we did them in a responsible way and in a timely manner. But one can say, then, we met our national security responsibilities. Well, not the way this Senator sees it. The national responsibility for national security also comes to our own FBI, which gets all of the stakeholders in the same room, providing important legal guidance to all of the police chiefs, certainly, in the Baltimore area, and those involved in port security and local law enforcement. The people from the Governor's office run that. Whether it is in our own State, they run something called the Joint Terrorism Task Force. It is the U.S. attorney who gets all of the stakeholders in the same

So we are committed to national security—whether it is the Port of Baltimore or whether it is Bethesda, whether it is the Naval Academy and looking out for them, but we need these resources. Sure, we need to fund defense and we need to fund homeland security. But we also need to fund the FBI? The CIA can spy around the world, but ultimately any information to come back and protect us against predators here comes through the FBI. The National Security Agency—hopewfully completely within the law with reforms that need to be made—can pull out these “cyber snitches,” with the Internet, that is going on somewhere in the Middle East and prevent those attacks. We are proud of what they did in working with our British counterparts in London. No matter what happens over there, when it comes back here, the FBI needs to protect us. But, oh, no, we have to get home. That is what I mean about cutting and running. We are cutting and running.

When we do what we are about to do soon, the FBI will be short $100 million. What does that mean? Well, it means that the FBI will not be able to maintain the operations tempo that they have had. It means that they will not be able to hire and keep the agents that they have, including the important linguists. We have had to recruit people who can speak Farsi and a whole variety of other languages that are not well known and available in our universities. But Director Miller went out and found them. They are ready to go. They are already being trained. But we are saying: Oh, no, we cannot hire you now because the Congress had to go home. They have to cut and they have to run. Let me tell you, linguists, even though the private sector will hire you for more money, at an easier lifestyle, we know you were ready to join the FBI, but you can't make it here. But I am concerned particularly about the famous watch list and the fact that right now in our Federal prisons there could be underground recruitment efforts going on to recruit people for terrorism or for these Latin American gangs, such as M-13. Talk to the families of the Bureau of Prisons and the U.S. attorney who is the U.S. attorney for the Baltimore area, and the FBI. It is the U.S. attorney who gets all of the stakeholders in the same

I come to you today with my great concern about the global war against terrorism. I am a member of the Intelligence Committee. I am on the Appropriations Committee and I am also a member of the Intelligence Committee. I want to talk about those programs affecting the FBI and Federal law enforcement agencies, as well as the locals. The FBI to the sheriffs are going to be shortchanged, resulting in, I think, very serious consequences. We use budget-speak, Senate-speak with words such as “CR” and “omnibus,” but whatever we are talking about, the fact is we are not finishing our job, when we could have done it if there was a willingness from both sides of the aisle and they want the Republican leadership to move these bills. Many of them have been worked out—again, on a bipartisan basis.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Minnesota.

Mr. DAYTON. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that I may speak as in morning business for up to 15 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

SENATE SERVICE

Mr. DAYTON. Mr. President, it has been almost 6 years since I was sworn in as a Democrat of Minnesota’s 33rd U.S. Senate district with my friend and colleague Paul Wellstone at my side. I began my term hopeful and optimistic. The Senate was evenly divided, with 50 Democrats and 50 Republicans, and President-elect George W. Bush was promising to change the tone in Washington with a new era of bipartisan cooperation.

Our country enjoyed peace and relative prosperity. Outgoing President Bill Clinton, a Republican-controlled Congress, and over 6 years of economic expansion had combined to create the first annual surpluses in the Federal Government’s on-budget account in 39 years, and they were projected by OMB to continue for at least the next decade.

The Social Security trust fund’s annual surpluses were going to be saved in a lockbox for the upcoming retirements of a large baby boom generation. There was even discussion of paying down the national debt to further strengthen our financial position. Yet we still would be able to increase funding for such essential needs as public education, affordable health care, seniors’ drug coverage, and infrastructure improvements.

Just 6 years later, our country’s condition has changed drastically, and mostly for the worse. We are mired in a disastrous war in Iraq despite the heroic efforts and sacrifices by our Armed Forces. The fiscal integrity of the Federal Government has been destroyed, with record-high annual deficits continuing, despite budget gimmickry and a modest economic recovery. The Federal tax base has been decimated by huge tax giveaways to the rich and super rich that will burden our children and grandchildren. The Social Security trust fund’s surpluses have been spent every year on what the nonpartisan Concord Coalition has called “the most reckless fiscal policy” in our Nation’s history.

The Bible says if the leaders don’t lead, the people perish. Unfortunately, the Bush administration and the Republican majority in Congress have not led this country well, and our people are suffering the consequences: lost jobs, businesses, and farmland; lost incomes, standards of living, and security; and lost loved ones killed or maimed in Iraq.

We have lost the national unity which then. But the terrible atrocities of September 11, 2001, and the Bush administration has lost the world’s support which they had after that awful attack. The President’s decision to invade Iraq unilaterally, the absence of weapons of mass destruction that had been the initial justification for that invasion, and his administration’s disastrous mismanagement of Iraq following the overthrow of Saddam Hussein has squandered most of our national unity and international goodwill.

The Congressional Record will show that I opposed those failed policies and supported other and better alternatives. For example, on the question of a vote against the Iraq war resolution, I opposed the large tax giveaways to the rich and super rich. In fact, during my 6 years in the Senate, I voted 29 times to raise my own taxes. Why? Because our country needs those tax revenues, and I can darn well afford to pay my fair share of them, as can all other Americans with my good fortune.

I tried seven times unsuccessfully to get the Senate to honor its 30-year promise to school districts and schoolchildren with special education. The Senate did pass my “Taste of Our Own Medicine” amendment limiting Members of Congress’s prescription drug coverage to what they provided to senior citizens through Medicare. The amendment was discredited by the House-Senate conference committee.

It has pained me deeply to see the Senate’s majority lead our country into what I consider the wrong direction. The fundamental principle that we are the people, and government exists to serve the people, was “we the people,” and it remains so today. If we are not always united by the common cause, we are bound together by a shared destiny. If the laws this Senate passes are successful, ‘we the people’ benefit together. If those laws fail, we suffer together. Some Americans will suffer more than others as unfair victims of social and economic injustices, but ultimately all Americans cannot escape our common fate. If the Senate failed and such a law succeed; divided we fall and fail. I regrettably believe that during my Senate term this administration and its congressional followers have caused too many divisions, declines, and failures.

Thus, I leave the Senate with strong feelings of frustration and disappointment. I have been unable to pass most of what I believe was most important to Minnesota, to our country, and to the world. I remain convinced that those policies would improve the lives of all our citizens and most Americans far better than what the majority here enacted.

A cornerstone of democracy, which I honor, is that the majority prevails. Winning, however, does not make them right and, unfortunately, it does not make them wise. In those decisions with which I have disagreed, time will tell us and the American people who was right and who was wise.

I do want to thank my colleagues on both sides of the aisle for the privilege to serve these last 6 years with them. I am grateful for the friendships I have made, which I hope will continue after my departure.

I thank my excellent staff, those here in Washington and those in Minnesota, for their tremendous dedication and many hours of hard work. Most of the successes I have enjoyed here have been the result of their dedication and their abilities, and I thank them again for their support.

I especially want to thank the people of Minnesota who gave me this extraordinary opportunity to serve them in the Senate. Our democracy is, through the people’s leaders and their choices and actions, what makes our world the most advanced and successful form of self-governance that human beings have ever devised. It is far from perfect, but it is far better than anything else. We who are elected as its leaders and its stewards have sacred duties to uphold its principles, to elevate its policies, and to improve its practices before we bequeath them to our successors.

I have done my very best to fulfill those duties before I pass on to my outstanding successor, Senator-elect Amy Klobuchar. We in the Senate and in the House of Representatives also have the duty to serve the best interests of all Americans. To be successful and sustainable, our Government must improve the lives of all of our citizens.

Unfortunately, here in Washington, the people who already have the most keep getting more than anyone else. The excessive influences of their money and political power on the Federal Government and Congress is a serious threat to our democracy. They skew decisions and laws in favor of the rich and powerful, often at the expense of other Americans: the hard-working people who pay their taxes and hope their elected representatives will look out for them in Washington. It isn’t too much for them to expect. However, it is too often more than they are getting.

They are told repeatedly that new laws and policies will improve their lives, but they get their outcome worse, not better. They experience a deep disconnect between what they are told will happen and what is actually happening to them.

In attempts to hide those disparities, the words used in Washington are often carefully selected by very clever people in order to disguise reality rather than to describe it. For example, legislation that stripped many Americans of their bankruptcy protections for major medical expenses was described in the Bankruptcy Abuse Prevention and Consumer Protection Act. Another bill that would have increased industrial pollution was entitled the Clear Skies Act. No Child Left Behind has knowingly underfunded Head Start, title I, and special education, which has left millions of schoolchildren behind.

These discrepancies and the disparities they create will be even more destructive to the American people’s trust in their Government in the years ahead. This is because the choices facing Congress will become even more difficult as the needs of an aging population grow but revenues do not. In about a decade, the Social Security trust fund’s large annual surpluses will be replaced by deficits, and its IOUs from the general fund will add to that fund’s own chronic deficits. If combined with today’s enormous and unrelenting balance of trade deficits and a continuing crisis of our manufacturing job base, the consequences could be catastrophic.

That somber forecast has replaced my hope and optimism of 6 years ago to my deep regret. Following the wisdom of "speak truth to power," I present my truth to the world’s most powerful legislative body, the U.S. Senate, and one of the two institutions that must act to keep our Nation strong. I hope that you will, I will pray for your wisdom to discern what is right, for your courage to act accordingly, and for your success on behalf of our great Nation and the world.

Mr. President, I yield the floor, and I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the question be rescinded.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, for one final time, I wish to address the nominee before us, Dr. Von Eschenbach, who is up for Commissioner of the Food and Drug Administration and who I think should not be approved for the position by the Senate.

I have considered Dr. Von Eschenbach’s performance on the job for more than a year now because he was appointed Acting Commissioner in September of 2005. In fact, over the last year I have closely monitored his actions both publicly and privately to the FDA staff and to the public.

This nominee inherited a Food and Drug Administration plagued by cultural and structural and personnel problems, and I surely do not blame him for the problems, but I have to look at whether he is the person to correct those problems. Because this agency is plagued by these cultural and structural and personnel problems, the FDA is in desperate need of a leader, a leader who can not only restore the public’s confidence in the agency but also restore the agency’s confidence in itself.

I met with Dr. Von Eschenbach more than once. We talked, and he seemed to be very nice. He has, of course, without dispute excellent credentials. He promised me full cooperation in my oversight work I was doing and the investigations I was doing, but, in fact, it did not happen. Instead, I had to issue two subpoenas which were issued 7 months ago. This reflects a lack of respect for the authority of Congress conducting its constitutional responsibility of oversight of the executive branch of Government.

In addition, under Dr. Von Eschenbach’s leadership, the FDA remains in a state of denial about all these cultural problems to which I have referred. I have ordered an urgent action plan to address the problems is nowhere to be found. Dr. Von Eschenbach has told me that there is room for improvement in the area of technology, but it does not appear that he understands the depth of problems affecting the Food and Drug Administration.

The FDA is in serious trouble, and I am not the only one saying so. Over the last year, we have heard from the Government Accountability Office, the Union of Concerned Scientists, and just a few months ago we had a scathing report from the Institute of Medicine.

The Institute of Medicine completed a $3 million, 15-month study and set forth 25 recommendations. This report by the Institute of Medicine conveys a sense of urgency to fix the problems. Just last month at the Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions Committee hearing, the chairman of the Institute of Medicine committee that produced the report said:

If there ever was a time that it was critical to address these issues, it is now.

The next Food and Drug Administration Commissioner must be a person who not only has excellent credentials, as I have said he has, but who also will accept the criticism of the agency and develop coherent solutions.

Here is what the Institute of Medicine reported:

The committee believes that cultural changes are urgently needed to support a stronger, more systematic and more credible approach to drug safety in the Center for Drug Evaluation and Review and it recommends solutions to the problems created or exacerbated by the elements of the Center’s management, structure and environment.

Now a short quote:

Many have observed signs of an organizational culture in crisis.

Another quote:

The Center’s leaders have to be prepared to address the underlying cultural problems that divide and impair the optimal functioning of the Center’s staff and effectively use the existing and new authorities and resources to achieve the Center’s public health and regulatory mission.

These criticisms of the Food and Drug Administration have come from outside the agency, not from whistleblowers reporting to me. But I also continue to hear from these employees inside and also from managers inside the Food and Drug Administration who were concerned about the integrity of the Food and Drug Administration’s work. What is also troubling is that some of these employees have experienced intimidation or reprisals for voicing concerns.

I have fought long and hard over the last two decades to protect the rights of numerous whistleblowers who expose fraud, waste, and abuse. When I met with Dr. Von Eschenbach in March, he told me that he was “committed to whistleblowers.” Yet his actions seem to suggest otherwise.

The worst example may be when Dr. Von Eschenbach ordered a meeting with the FDA staff after the press reported information that was critical of how the FDA handled safety issues with the drug Ketek. I keep referring to Ketek because it is a drug involved in the death of an 18-year-old in Cedar Rapids, Iowa. As I understand it, Dr. Von Eschenbach sent a clear message at that staff meeting. Some suggested that this attempt was simply to boost morale among FDA employees, but some longtime FDA employees saw it differently. They took their word that anybody who spoke “outside the locker room” might find themselves “kicked off the team”—literally. And I don't blame them for taking offense at that. People are trying to do their job, and the talk about who you might be fired for it? People like that ought to be upheld and honored. In the final analysis, they ought to have their concerns addressed within the agency and not have to come to those of us in Congress because they are not getting answered in the agency. They took his message to mean: Your career is in jeopardy if you happen to come to Senator Grassley or outside the agency or to any Member of Congress. To me, it shows his poor judgment and intolerance and disrespect. And also for what is basic to American government, that the public’s business ought to be public.

Dr. Von Eschenbach also told me that he was a man of “discipline, rigor and precision.” Those are his words. He used those same words in a speech:

We will retain all the rigor, all the discipline and all the precision of regulation, but our efforts will be geared so that things can be done faster rather than slower.

We can all agree that new drugs and devices should be available to the public as soon as possible, but there is also the issue of safety and the protection of the public. The FDA must do its job and ensure that the drug’s benefits outweigh its risks before approval.

My other concern regarding Dr. Von Eschenbach is that he assured me of his commitment to respond promptly to requests from Congress. That is a promise which when you do I have a reason to be concerned about this person, regardless of the very good credentials he has? My oversight of the FDA has consequently been slowed by inaction on the part of his agency. In fact, he has not responded to a letter I sent to him 9 months ago, and my requests for interviews with some FDA officials were ignored for more than 3 months and some still have not been scheduled. As Acting Commissioner, he has ignored congressional requests, and I expect that change if he is confirmed by the Senate.

Before I close my remarks, I ask unanimously consent to have printed in the RECORD the full text of a letter I sent to the Acting Commissioner in September.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Dear Dr. Von Eschenbach:

As a senior member of the United States Senate and as the Chairman of the Committee on Finance (and as a citizen who wishes to conduct oversight into the actions of executive branch agencies. For nearly three years, I have been investigating matters related to, among other things, the safety and efficacy of products regulated by the Food and Drug Administration (FDA or agency).

I have reviewed and questioned how the FDA handles the pre-market review and postmarket surveillance of drugs, biologics, devices and veterinary medicines to assess whether or not the agency is fulfilling its mission to protect the public health. Additionally, I have worked to give voice to the concerns of a number of rank-and-file scientists working at the agency and a lack of respect for the scientific process. In February 2004, the FDA held an advisory committee meeting to discuss whether or not Vioxx, a marketed drug that was associated with some antidepressants and suicidal behavior in children. Dr. Andrew Moshizer, the FDA’s expert on this matter, concluded that there was overwhelming evidence that the FDA’s supervisors disagreed and canceled Dr. Moshizer’s presentation to the advisory committee. Instead, Dr. Moshizer was given a statement to read if he were asked why he was no longer presenting before the advisory committee.

Similarly, in February 2005, Dr. David Graham, the FDA’s expert on Medicaid patients taking COX-2 inhibitors, was told by his supervisors that he could not present his findings regarding these drugs at an upcoming advisory committee meeting. The scientific process ultimately prevailed, but only after then-Acting Commissioner Lester Crawford overruled Dr. Graham’s supervisors to allow him to present his findings. This was not the FDA’s first attempt, however, to muzzle Dr. Graham. Several months prior to the advisory committee meeting, Dr. Graham had raised allegations about the FDA’s mishandling of the COX-2 inhibitor Vioxx, which was manufactured by the pharmaceutical company Merck. According to Dr. Graham himself, all as information and documents obtained by the Committee, senior FDA officials attempted to intimidate him so he would not testify about the adverse cardiac effects of Vioxx. The FDA also tried to prevent the publication of Dr. Graham’s findings in Lancet.

In July 2005, the FDA approved the Vagus Nerve Stimulation (VNS) Therapy System, a medical device for treatment-resistant depression. Providing its scientific basis, FDA scientists could not determine if the device worked. Rather than allow the scientific process to dictate FDA’s decision, a senior FDA official overruled a team of more than 20 FDA scientists, medical officers, and management staff who recommended against approval of the device based on their comprehensive scientific evaluation of the sponsor’s application. In addition, while the FDA has publicized differences of scientific opinion within the agency regarding controversial regulatory issues, at the same time, the FDA did not publicize scientific dissent regarding the effectiveness of the VNS Therapy System for TRD.

More recently, the FDA’s own office was approached by yet another FDA scientist who is being prohibited from submitting an article to a major scientific journal despite the fact that an appropriate disclosure statement would be made.

COZY RELATIONSHIP WITH INDUSTRY

I have frequently criticized the FDA for its relationship with the industry, which I believe is a necessary step to distance itself from the industry and return to its role as regulator, not a facilitator. Despite findings from a Merck study that heart attacks were more prevalent for Vioxx patients than for patients on another drug, nearly two years passed before label changes were made. The overriding concern of the FDA showed a lack of respect for the safety of the American people. However, while the FDA was negotiating label changes with the company, patients and doctors remained largely unaware of the cardiovascular risks. In addition, Merck was aggressively marketing Vioxx during that time.

Another troubling example of FDA's coziness with industry is the approval of the drug Vioxx. In Victoria Hampshire, a drug safety reviewer, from the review of ProHeart 6, a heartworm prevention drug for dogs. Dr. Hampshire was reassigned following the drug company’s presentation of findings from its private investigation of Dr. Hampshire after the company met with the safety evaluator. It appears the purpose of that investigation was retaliatory and an effort to discredit Dr. Hampshire. The company also led to a criminal investigation by the FDA; however, the investigation resulted in no action taken against Dr. Hampshire. In fact, Dr. Hampshire was subsequently awarded for her job performance related to ProHeart 6.

Unfortunately, it appears that Dr. Hampshire is not the only FDA employee who was the target of a company’s campaign to discredit individuals who may present impediments to its agenda. I wrote to the Department of Health and Human Services Office of Inspector General (OIG) to investigate whether or not one or more FDA employees harmed by Merck to discredit Dr. Graham and/or call into question Dr. Graham’s allegations regarding the safety and efficacy of Vioxx. FDA’s handling of the antibiotic Ketek is another example where the FDA appears to have accommodated a drug company despite the fact that the company submitted fraudulent data to the FDA and repeatedly provided incomplete safety information. What baffles me even more is the fact that the FDA’s draft of Study 3041 in publicly released safety information for Ketek even after its Division of Scientific Investigations concluded that Study 3041 involved multiple instances of fraud and that “the integrity of data from all sites involved in [the] study . . . cannot be assured with any degree of confidence.”

LACK OF TREASURY OR ALTER INFORMATION

Not only has the FDA disregarded and downplayed important concerns and warnings from its own scientists, but FDA supervisors have also pressured some of these scientists to change their findings or conclusions regarding the safety and/or efficacy of a product. Most notably Dr. Moshizer and Dr. Graham, among others, have been pressured by their supervisors to soften their safety findings or conclusions regarding antidepressants and Vioxx, respectively. In addition, a survey of Concerned Scientists (UCS) and the Public Employees for Environmental Responsibility (PEER) on July 20, 2005, found that approximately one-fifth of the UCS scientists surveyed said that they had been asked, for nonscientific reasons, to inappropriately exclude or alter technical information or their conclusions and that they have been asked explicitly by FDA decision-makers to provide incomplete, inaccurate or misleading information to the public.

HURDLES TO APPOVE PRODUCTS

Throughout numerous investigations by my Committee staff, FDA employees have also stated that they are under constant pressure to approve drugs within deadlines established by the Food and Drug User Fee Act. For example, during the Committee’s investigation into the delay in labeling changes for post-Merck Vioxx, the safety evaluator for that drug informed my staff that the Office of New Drugs is under such time pressure to approve new drugs that they are likely to approve a new drug despite concerns about its safety, effectiveness, or quality. This needs to be corrected immediately, and FDA needs to resume its science-based mission.

ATMOSPHERE OF FEAR OF REPRISAL

According to the FDA, there are regulations and procedures in place to help resolve organizational and individual disagreements. However, my Committee staff continues to hear from FDA employees who experience intimidation and reassignments when they raise concerns about the integrity of FDA’s work. In addition, the 2006 UCS and PEER survey found that over one-third of the FDA scientists who responded to the survey said they were not allowed to express any concerns about public health within FDA without fear of retaliation. Moreover, the GAO found that the dispute resolution processes for disagreements involving drug safety decisions “have not been used and may not be viewed as sufficiently independent.”

Your recent meeting with FDA staff involved in the review of Ketek is a disturbing example that FDA involvement in the review of this drug is a matter of public health.

YOUR RECENT MEETING

Mr. GRASSLEY. The letter lays out the major problems at the FDA. I encourage my colleagues to read it and, maybe more important, emphasize again reading the Institute of Medicine’s criticism of the Food and Drug Administration.

The FDA needs a permanent commissioner to tackle these problems. Unfortunately, the person for the job is not the person for the job. Over the past year, the nominee has failed to step to the plate and failed to keep his assurances to me. He has said the agency needs to be a facilitator, but think what the word “facilitate” means or what “being a facilitator” means. It could mean a cozy relationship between the FDA and industry. What is called for is someone who recognizes that the FDA is supposed to be a regulator, not a facilitator.

I am also concerned that the process of management will allow FDA management to continue pressuring FDA scientists to change their findings or conclusions and to approve the products despite concerns about the safety efficacy of the product. Dr. Von Eschenbach is not preparing or providing the leadership necessary to restore confidence in the FDA.

Given these concerns, I hope my colleagues will take them in consideration before they vote. I intend to vote no. I hope my colleagues will so that we can have a person in this position who will change the culture but also cooperate with the constitutional responsibilities of the Congress of the United States to oversee the executive branch.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Wyoming is recognized.

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. President, I would like to take just 5 minutes as in morn-ning business before the break.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without
objection, it is so ordered.

GRATEFULNESS FOR EXPRESSIONS OF CONCERN

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. President, I come to the Senate floor to express my gratitude for the response I have gotten over the last month from my friends and neighbors in Wyoming.

As many of you know, about on election day I was diagnosed with leukenia, and I have spent the last month in the hospital. I got out last Saturday, and I am now back on the job, and I am very delighted to do that. Certainly Susan and I wish to express our real thank-you for all the comments and contacts, expressions of hope, and prayers we have gotten from the Members in the Senate. It is very meaningful. It is the first time I have been through this sort of thing I can tell you that it means a great deal. We also got literally hundreds of comments from our voters in Wyoming. So we are so pleased, so grateful for that kind of response.

The process has gone well. As I said,
I was in there for a month. I have gone through the chemo, I have gone through the other activities and may go back to additional treatments, but the fact is I am out, my blood count is up, and I am very positive.

I want to urge people to be very careful about their own health, and when there are signs of problems, to be sure they take care of them because Bethesda was a wonderful place for me to be.

Again, my real purpose here is just to express my gratitude for all the kind feelings I have had from the staff and from the Members of the Senate, and I appreciate it very much. It has been very helpful, and I am grateful.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without
objection, it is so ordered.

HONORING SENATORIAL SERVICE

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I have had the privilege of being here for the 26th year beginning shortly. I calculated not long ago that I have served with 261 individuals. I am not about to try and review all of the many magnificent friendships I am privileged to have through these years. Indeed, if one looks at the rewards, of which there are many serving in this historic institution, the Senate, it is the personal bonds, the friendships that we so firmly cement and that will last a lifetime as a consequence of our duties of serving the United States of America and in our respective States. The title of “United States” Senators. I often believe it is the first obligation, our Nation, the Republic for which it stands.

GEORGE ALLEN

For my colleague now of 6 years,
GEORGE ALLEN, this will be his last year as a Senator as this brief session closes. I have said it before, I will say it again and again, I rank him at the very top of the 261 Senators I have been privileged to serve with these many years.

In fact, I have looked back at the history of Virginia and would like to note for the record that my colleague, GEORGE ALLEN, is one of only five Virginians to have served in the Virginia
General Assembly, as Governor, as a Member of the House of Representatives; and as a U.S. Senator—the first in more than 150 years of our State’s history.

Together, we have shared a long history of serving the people of Virginia—
I as a Senator and he as a member of the Virginia House of Delegates, House of Representatives, Governor, and U.S.
Senator. I remember participating in his first campaign and all the successive campaigns. GEORGE ALLEN served the Commonwealth of Virginia in public office for 25 years. How well I know. I campaigned for him when he ran for the State legislature, then for the Congress, then for Governor, and those elections handily. Then he ran for the Senate. It was a tough race. Tough because he was up against a very able opponent, a man whom I admire, a man with whom I have served with in this Chamber. But the voters of Virginia, not deterred by the personal decision—sent GEORGE ALLEN to the Senate where I believe he has served with great distinction.

I have been privileged to share the warmth and vigor of this magnificent man with his lovely wife Susan and their children, Tyler, Forest, and Brooke. What a privilege, a joy for me to see them as they have grown nourished by the love of two strong parents.

In 1981 he was elected to the Virginia House of Delegates to the seat once held by his philosophical inspiration, Thomas Jefferson. Throughout his career in public office, GEORGE ALLEN has consistently been guided by that same inspiration of smaller government and individual freedom. He has also been driven by the thoughts of two other leaders important to him; Ronald Reagan who said “If not us who, if not now when?” and his father who always told him “The future is now.”

Through his career in public service GEORGE has worked as an advocate of economic development, recruiting companies to Virginia and espousing policies to create jobs. As Governor, he oversaw the creation of 312,000 new jobs in Virginia by making the Commonwealth a better place to do business. He reformed the parole system to keep repeat offenders off our streets and out of communities; innumerable infrastructure projects, and research at our colleges and universities. We also worked together on the Teacher Tax Relief Act. I am very happy if we pass this tax package, there will be a provision that GEORGE and I worked on together for many years, to be extended in statute; and that is, the Teacher Tax Relief Act. I will never forget, I was down visiting a small school. And as is so often the case here in the Senate, the teachers and the principal want you to meet as many students as you possibly can. It is always quite interesting to do that.

I remember how he was rushed into one classroom, and I think they were first graders. They were all sitting on the floor, and the principal said: You have a few minutes. So I started talking away, and I asked the first graders: Is there a question you might have? And this absolutely adorable little girl, who sat there riveted to every word I spoke, looked up and said: Yes. My question is, how much longer must we sit here until the Senator comes? Well, you don’t forget those things. And I had difficulty answering the question. I was so taken aback. I felt I was universally recognized, but it is not the case in the first grade.

Then I was in another classroom, and for some reason I—I went through the school and I have always been interested in pencils and writing instruments—and I saw a pencil, a rather fancy one, and I picked it up, and the teacher saw that I liked it, and she said: Take it. Keep it. I said: Oh, no, I don’t take any gifts or anything. You know, we have rigid rules in the Senate, and nobody is going to bribe me with a pencil. And she said: Oh, please, please, please. It is not school property. I said: Oh? She said: Yes. And I understand that as teachers—and this is prevalent not only in Virginia but it is prevalent all across the land, particularly among teachers in the elementary grades—we have to take part of our own salary to pay what we deem are the essential tools that are needed to educate our students.

Well, I just could not believe this, because teachers are not among the most well paid. So GEORGE ALLEN and I fought for years to get the Teacher Tax Relief Act signed into law. It is on the books, and we need to extend it, and I am optimistic that will be done. But it simply says, if you can establish that you took your own salary and you bought school supplies which were necessary for teaching and the profession you are in, you get a $250 above the line deduction—a small amount of money, but a great sense of satisfaction.

GEORGE has been a strong member of the Commerce and Foreign Relations Committees seeking to make our nation a better place for business, ultimately creating more economic opportunity for all Americans.

We joined together after the tragic events of September 2001, to try to help the people of Northern Virginia and indeed all America respond and recover.

We worked on behalf of the men and women of the Armed Forces. How proud we are in the Commonwealth of Virginia of the extensive number of bases and institutions of the U.S. military which we are privileged to have. There is no greater responsibility of the Congress of the United States than its specific—specific—obligation under the Constitution. As my great teacher and mentor, Senator BYRD, so often has told me, that is to provide for the care and the welfare, and to raise the armies and maintain the navies that this Nation requires. GEORGE ALLEN has been a partner with me as we have done those things for these many years.

In life we go through a series of stages. We are raised and nurtured by our parents, receive an education, raise a family of our own, and serve in various careers. GEORGE ALLEN and his family have been public servants to the people of Virginia and America for the past 25 years. The people have been fortunate to have such a dedicated Delegate, Congressman, Governor, and U.S. Senator. I am proud to have served with this man and to call him my friend all these years. Therefore, I bid him a fond farewell from this institution. But I look forward to working with him as he goes on and accepts challenges perhaps even greater than the ones he had in the years that he so loved serving in this Chamber.

The people of Virginia spoke, and GEORGE ALLEN, with great courage, took that decision and quickly said: I understand. He accepted it and has gone on about his business.

I would also like to pay tribute to nine other United States Senators who will retire from the Senate in the coming days.

I have previously spoken in honor of my colleague from the neighboring state of Maryland, Senator SARBANES. Since my first days in the Senate, Senator SARBANES and I worked together on a host of important regional initiatives, including: the restoration of the Chesapeake Bay; improvements to our Metro system; the creation of anional Capital Region Coordinator; and on funding for the construction of the new Woodrow Wilson bridge. His retirement is certainly a loss to the region as Senator SARBANES has been a true champion of many issues vital to the Maryland, Virginia, and DC metropolitan area.

Now, I would like to take a few moments to salute our majority leader—Senator FRIST—as well as Senators CHAFEE, BURNS, SANTORO, DEWINE, JEFFORDS, TALENT, and DAYTON. Each and every one of these U.S. Senators has served his State and his country with dedication and distinction.

Without a doubt, I could speak at length in honor of each of these outstanding individuals. In light of time constraints, however, and the fact that so many of my colleagues wish to similarly pay tribute, I shall endeavor to keep my remarks brief.

First, I would like to say a few words about our distinguished majority leader, Senator BILL FRIST. You know, in this fast-paced American 21st Century, we think of national security as the most important issue of the day. Certainly, BILL has worked hard in that area over the years—not only as majority leader but as a hard-working member of the Senate Select Intelligence Committee. But, right behind national security comes the issue of the health of our citizens, and BILL FRIST has been at the forefront of every major piece of health care legislation during his 12 years in the Senate.

Whether it has been ensuring that America’s seniors have access to a sorely needed Medicare prescription drug benefit or whether it has been his efforts to encourage the use of new technology in medicine so that the knowledge of one doctor in one part of the world could help a doctor and a patient in another part of the world, BILL FRIST has improved the healthcare system for all Americans.

The Senate will no doubt miss BILL FRIST’s leadership, but I have no doubt that his public service will continue, particularly his heartfelt healthcare work in impoverished areas of the world. I wish him, and his magnificent wife Karen all of the best in their future.

Now, I will speak a few words about our colleague LINCOLN CHAFEE. I have known the Chafee family for many years, and count the late John Chafee and his wife Virginia as my dearest friends.

The year was 1969, this country was engulfed in a war in Vietnam, and I was just asked to serve as Under Secretary of the Navy. I was told that the Secretary of the Navy, who would be my boss one step up, would be a man named John Chafee, former Governor of the great State of Rhode Island.

I will never forget we both served in the Marines, at different times. He was a captain and I was a captain in the Marines, at different times. He was the former Governor of the State of Rhode Island. I believe it is this experience of leading a major city that so solidified his commitment to fiscal responsibility. In his service in the Senate, he was steadfast in his belief to restore controls on the federal budget and to promote responsible government spending.

We were privileged to serve together on the Committee on Environment and Public Works where he quickly became a skilled legislator. He successfully authored legislation to stimulate the re-development of brownfields areas previously contaminated by hazardous waste, that plague our urban areas. This law is already producing results in increasing neighborhood and bringing new industries back to urban areas.

Senator CHAFEE was also a leading voice in fostering bipartisanism in the Senate, and was an active member of our informal group of Senators known as the Gang of 14. We were a group of seven Republicans and seven Democrats, but we had no formal standing in the Senate. We would meet regularly to share our thoughts on judicial nominees pending on the Senate Calendar to ensure that the Senate could continue its responsibilities under article II, section 2, of the U.S. Constitution—the advice and consent clause. Senator CHAFEE was an integral part of this effort which allowed candid and respectful discussions of the qualifications of individuals to serve in the federal judiciary and prevented the continued use of party-led filibusters on judicial nominees except in extraordinary circumstances.

LINCOLN CHAFEE will be remembered in this institution for his independence. We all fight to try to maintain that independence. We are respectful of our party leadership. We are respectful of our party affiliations. We know the demands of our State. There are times when we feel we must act and make decisions that reflect our own innermost feelings of independence, and LINCOLN CHAFEE will be remembered for that.

As Senator FRIST prepares to depart the Senate, I thank him for his meaningful contributions to the Senate, and wish him, his wife Stephanie, and his children, Louisa, Caleb and Theo, “fair winds and following seas.”

Mr. President, I wish to say a few words about CONRAD BURNS. Senator CONRAD BURNS has an impressive record of public service, beginning with his service in the U.S. Marine Corps from 1955 to 1957. CONRAD has served the great State of Montana with distinction in the U.S. Senate since 1989.

I will never forget when his first campaign came along, I was asked to go out and campaign with him. I acknowledged I would do it. I didn’t know him, so I went out to Montana. I had been in Montana in earlier years. I had been actually an employee of the U.S. Park Service and had been a firefighter out in Montana in 1943 and then again in 1947, I think it was.

Most recently, in August I toured Malmstrom Air Force Base with Senator BURNS. On this tour, I saw firsthand the love and pride that Senator BURNS has for the people of his State. As a senior member of the Senate Defense Appropriations Subcommittee, he has worked tirelessly for the men and women in the Armed Forces.

And old CONRAD—he embodies all of those great qualities of Montana. Talk about independence, he has it, and robustness, and a thirst for life and laughter. It was a sheer joy to campaign with CONRAD BURNS because wherever he went, he would walk into a room and he would tell a story, talk to him, and he could have you laughing. He loves every square foot of that State. And I shall miss him. I shall dearly miss CONRAD BURNS. We have to have a few characters around here who do our duties and accept our daily bread, and I am one. And you could kind of go to the bank on what he told you. He was never at a loss for telling a story to cheer up a colleague. Whenever he felt that colleague was a bit down, CONRAD would cheer that colleague up. He and his lovely wife and family will go on to other challenges.

Senator RICK SANTORUM has an impressive record of public service. Subsequent to his service in local and state government, he was elected to the United States House of Representatives. In 1994, RICK was elected for the first time to the United States Senate. From his first day in the Senate until 2002 we had the opportunity to serve together on the Senate Armed Services Committee. Throughout his time on that Committee, RICK could always be counted on for his deliberate and reasoned decisionmaking to ensure the best possible policies for the men and women in the armed forces. Since 2001, Senator SANTORUM has also played an important role in the Senate leadership as Republican conference chairman. As conference chairman, Senator SANTORUM has tirelessly represented the Republican Party as the party spokesman. There is no doubt in my mind that RICK SANTORUM’s passion, enthusiasm, and leadership will be missed here in the Senate.

Senator MIKE DEWINE has been in public service nearly his entire adult life. He was an assistant prosecuting attorney, he has held various state elected positions, he was a member of the U.S. House of Representatives, and most recently, since 1995, he has served the state of Ohio in the U.S. Senate. I am pleased to have served on the HELP Committee with Senator DEWINE where we worked together on various children’s health issues. There is not a bigger champion of children’s health than Senator DEWINE. Senator DEWINE was the key Senate congressional member of the “Gang of 14” throughout his years in the Senate, Senator DEWINE has proven to be a thoughtful, highly respected member who has always been willing to do what is right. In my view, he is a true statesman.

From 1956 to 1959, Senator JIM JEFFORDS served in the United States Navy. He later served in the Naval Reserves. In 1989, after JIM had served the citizens of Vermont in State positions and in the United States House of Representatives, he was elected to the United States Senate. In the Senate, I have been pleased to work closely with him, particularly in serving with him on the Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions Committee and on the Environment and Public Works Committee. JIM chaired both Committees during his years in the Senate.

While Senator JEFFORDS legislatively had one focus, that is improving the education of our children, particularly children with special needs, is the issue most dear to his heart. I remember him time and time again on the floor of the United States Senate arguing for increased funding for the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act, IDEA. And, I remember joining him, and others, in pushing hard for mandatory IDEA funding after it became clear that the Congress would be unable to fulfill its funding commitment through the discretionary funding process. While, to date, we have not achieved full funding, it is without question that JIM JEFFORDS’ Senate career has left a lasting, positive imprint that will improve America’s education system for years to come.

Over the past 4 years, I have been fortunate to have been given the opportunity to work closely with JIM TALENT on the Senate Armed Services Committee. As chairman of the Seapower Subcommittee, Senator TALENT has been at the forefront of our efforts to strengthen the Navy’s shipbuilding program, working closely with the Chief of Naval Operations in the formation of the CNO’s plan for a 313-ship Navy. He showed steadfast determination in working with the administration and the Congress to secure the funding required to build the future Navy; spearheading the effort to raise the top-line for shipbuilding by over 20 percent during the course of his tenure as Seapower chairman. Senator TALENT has also been passionate in his support for the needs of our brave men and women in uniform; championing quality-of-life and quality-of-service initiatives. Most notably, he has been a strong advocate for legislation that will put an end to predatory lending practices against military personnel and their families.

Senator DAYTON was elected to the Senate in 2000, and throughout his years in office he has had the privilege of serving with him on the Senate Armed Services Committee. As a hard-working member of that Committee, MARK was a strong advocate for our armed forces. Notably, he was a strong supporter of increasing the death benefit gravy for survivors of deceased members of the Armed Forces from a little more than $12,000 to $100,000. Thanks in part to his efforts, this increased death benefit gravy is now law.

Senator DAYTON also reached across the aisle and worked closely with me in support of efforts to provide Medicare beneficiaries with a prescription drug benefit. Together, we introduced legislation to provide America’s seniors with a refundable tax credit to help offset the costs of prescription drugs.

In conclusion, over the years I have served with each of these 10 Senators, each has not only been a colleague, each has also been my friend. I will miss serving with each of them in the Senate but know that each will continue in public service in some capacity. I wish each and every one of them well in the years to come.

Mr. President, I see a number of colleagues here anxious to speak, and I have taken generously of the time the Presiding Officer has allowed me to speak.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Florida is recognized.

Mr. NELSON of Florida. Mr. President, I am mindful that the majority leader will be coming here in approximately 6 minutes to speak, and I am looking forward to his comments.

Mr. President, I want to say that one of the great delights of being a part of this Senate is to sit beside such great leaders, such as the senior Senator from Virginia, and to learn from him and to hear the stories that so often he can weave into any circumstance that is facing us, that has some application or some application of a story he had encountered in the past. I thank him for his leadership. I thank him for his contribution. And I thank him for being a mentor to so many of us in this Senate.

WATER RESOURCES DEVELOPMENT ACT

Mr. NELSON of Florida. Mr. President, in the remaining moments here, I want to say one of the things this Senator will address in the next Congress is the fact that we did not pass a Water Resources Development Act, which has so many important projects for this Nation. We have not had a Water Resources Development Act bill since 2000, and we are suffering for it.

As to this great ecological restoration project. It struck down the Florida Everglades Restoration Project, there are two critical projects in this WRDA bill—the Indian River Lagoon and the Picayune Strand. The Indian River Lagoon is a 156-mile-long estuary that I grew up on as a boy. It runs from basically just north of Cape Canaveral all the way south to Palm Beach County. It has been altered by unnaturally large and poorly timed freshwater discharges arising out of the Lucie Canal. They have altered the water quality and depleted the water supplies in the Everglades ecosystem. So that is one project that is going to be necessarily addressed in the new Congress. There are many components as to this Everglades restoration is an $8 billion project over 20 years, shared by the Federal and the State governments.

The other major project—I will close with this one, is the Picayune Strand restoration project. It is going to remove roads and canals and other infrastructure to increase freshwater flows. It encompasses 94 square miles in Collier
Mr. NELSON of Florida. I thank my colleagues for allowing me the time. As we are awaiting the majority leader to arrive, I might say that since many Senators are not here, I want them to know what a great privilege it has been for this Senator to serve with each of you and to serve in a bipartisan way.

One of the messages of this election I have just come through is that people do not want this partisan bickering they have seen. They want us to come together, to build consensus, to perform, and to do it in a bipartisan way. This Senator is dedicated to doing that from now on.

I yield the floor.

Mr. REID. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Without objection, it is so ordered.

FAREWELL TO THE SENATE

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, about 2 months ago, late Sunday afternoon, when no one was around, I came into this Chamber to carry out a time-honored tradition, nearly as old as the institution itself. I came over to this desk and I opened the drawer and the tradition of carving your initials or your name into the bottom of that desk and I opened the drawer and the tradition of carving your initials or your name into the bottom of that drawer was carried out. As you open these drawers, as many of us do when we are sitting here listening and debating, you tend to look at the names that are there. I see Robert Taft at the bottom of this drawer, Hugh Scott, Everett Dirksen, Howard Baker, Bob Dole, Trent Lott, and the list goes on. And with the quiet here, you begin to reflect a little bit. But then all of a sudden you start thinking, as you are carving out of that drawer, that there aren’t very many things that you leave that are permanent around here, but that is one.

It confronted me, as it hits me with such force today, that our time here, indeed, is temporary, and that we are here to occupy these seats at these desks just for a period of time. We can never forget that we don’t own these seats. We don’t own our presence in this U.S. Senate. It is with that recognition that I address my colleagues today.

I have reflected a lot over the last several weeks, and I think back to that nonpolitician who came to this city, this body, 12 years ago with a whole lot of hope for the people of Tennessee and a whole lot of hope for this country. I think back to the people who put their trust in that man’s hands.

Indeed, it was 12 years ago that Kay and I moved into the Potomac Club in Washington, D.C., not knowing that I would move into the Capitol. That is where the history of the Senate is written. And that is where we come to occupy these seats at these desks just for a period of time.

One of the messages of this election I have come through is that people do not want this partisan bickering they have seen. They want us to come together, to build consensus, to perform, and to do it in a bipartisan way. This Senator is dedicated to doing that from now on.

I yield the floor.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Sergeant at Arms will call the roll.

Mr. FRIST. I ask unanimous consent to have the record opened.

Mr. MCCONNELL, whose wisdom and service to this institution itself. I came over to this desk and I opened the drawer and the tradition of carving your initials or your name into the bottom of that desk and I opened the drawer and the tradition of carving your initials or your name into the bottom of that drawer was carried out. As you open these drawers, as many of us do when we are sitting here listening and debating, you tend to look at the names that are there. We can never forget that we don’t own these seats. We don’t own our presence in this U.S. Senate. It is with that recognition that I address my colleagues today.

I have reflected a lot over the last several weeks, and I think back to that nonpolitician who came to this city, has been indispensable to leading the Republican majority, who ascends in party leadership, who will be sitting at this desk in a few weeks, a temperament and skill with which no one is better prepared; my Tennessee colleagues Fred Thompson and now Lamar Alexander, two great statesmen with whom I have had the honor to work side by side as we have addressed the needs of our constituents.

I thank the two Democratic leaders, Tom Daschle and now Harry Reid. As Harry has said publicly many times, everybody sees the public contrast between one leader to the other, between Harry and me. But what people don’t see are the daily conversations, the private conversations off the floor where views are mutually respected, where burdens are shared, and where family is discussed. Karyn and I leave this body with tremendous respect for Harry and for Landra, for their contributions to this country.

To argue from where we have reached across the aisle and across differences when you could, thank you.

Twelve years ago, it was people in Tennessee who took a big chance, who took a great chance. They took a chance on the little known, who had never served in public office, obviously had never run for public office. They began by opening their minds and then opening their homes and then opening their lives and then opening their hearts. And I am eternally grateful to them for giving me that trust and taking that chance.

On this floor many times I have mentioned my parents and I mentioned my dad. Dad used to say: It is a powerful thing to know where you are going in life, but it is equally powerful to know where you have come from.

To the good people of Tennessee, I thank you for never letting me forget where I have come from. You never let me forget the promises made along the trail over a decade ago, the promises that have been the heart of everything that we have done. Yours are the voices that have called out to me from the floor where views are mutually respected as destructive partisanship on this floor. In order to judge the form to be given to this institution, it will be proper to take a view of the ends to be served by it.

These were, first, to protect the people against their rulers and, secondly, to protect the people against transient impressions into which they themselves might be led.

I think we need to remember this vision of the Senate that the Framers established—that the Senate is to produce the body that will be a check on the House and on the passions of the electorate. Let us not allow these passions of the electorate to be reflected as destructive partisanship on this floor.

To serve in this grand institution has been a labor of love. To lead here is a great believer in self-imposed term limits. Every morning you get up, you say I have 3 more years, 2 more years, or 1 year, or a half year, or 10 days, and you know that as every day goes by. If you don’t have an understanding that there is a clock ticking over that term, Self-imposed term limits are the extreme exception here today, not the practice of this city. I think as a consequence we are moving toward a body that has too much of a 2-year vision, governing for that next election, rather than a body with a 20-year vision governing for the future.

As we consider the future of the institution, I urge that we ask ourselves what it is our forefathers envisioned. Is today’s reality what they foresaw? I urge that we consider our work in this Chamber. What is it all about? Is it about keeping the majority? Is it about red States versus blue States? Is it about lobbying attacks across the aisle or is it about war rooms whose purpose is not to contrast ideas but to destroy or is it more? When the Constitutional Convention met in 1787, delegates considered how best to structure this legislative branch of our Government. There we determined not to repeat the mistakes made in the Articles of Confederation, which had a single, unicameral legislature. Speaking to the convention, Virginia’s James Madison set forth the reasons to have a Senate. He said:

In order to judge the form to be given to this institution, it will be proper to take a view of the ends to be served by it.

operate on somebody, they say thank you. So I said, "you’re welcome," and I got ready to leave. He was frustrated and he said, "Come back." He said, "Thank you for being the American doctor." I still didn’t quite get it. He picked up his arm and said, "I lost my arm fighting in this civil war. I lost my leg 8 days ago. It was about 2 years ago that I lost my wife and my 2 children. Thank you for being the American doctor."

And then I started to get it. He was saying thank you for being the American doctor. Then he said, basically, that: It is you who are a representative of America, and for democracy and liberty and freedom I sacrificed my wife and my children and my arm and my body. Thank you for what you represent.

Then all of a sudden, it began to hit me. To me, that image cuts through just about everything that we do. It is about preserving as best we can the great American experiment. And that experiment, which is embodied in this institution, the freedom, the responsibility, the opportunity, the compassion, and the basic decency that is at the heart of who we are as Americans. Beyond Democrat or Republican—which came out of the campaign—now is the time to again remind ourselves and state again and again that beyond being Democrats and Republicans, we are Americans. Together, we are one people. It is our responsibility to uphold and protect that hope for every American and indeed the people around the world who seek that freedom.

I opened by saying that our time here is temporary; we are just passing through. Now is the time to close. Your patience has been generous. As I have spent a lifetime learning, to everything there is a season. We say that and hear it and tend to repeat it when there are changes. But to everything there is a season, a time to bring them back to the operating room. Things have changed since then. Pioneering in the 20th century, Dr. Frist was a pioneer, but he learned his transplant surgery from the pioneer. I have heard Bill Frist talk about Norman Shumway on many occasions—"the first doctor to perform a successful heart transplant in the U.S." Senator Frist has done, but most say it was the first doctor to perform a successful heart transplant in the U.S.

In the years that go on, I, frankly, will never think about or, if I try, not remember any of the differences we had on the Senate floor, but I will always remember the friendship I have developed with the good man from Tennessee, a citizen legislator.

Senator Frist, Karyn, I wish you the very best. You are a good man. I love and appreciate everything you have done for the country and for me.

(Applause.)

The VICE PRESIDENT. The majority whip is recognized.

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, I offer—on behalf of all of us on this side of the aisle—and Senator Reid acknowledged the same as well—am grateful for your presence here today.

Being here today to help honor our outgoing majority leader, I know, means a lot to him. It means a lot to all of us.

Rare is the person who rises to the top of one profession, not to mention two. We are honoring today a man who has done that—he has risen to the very top of not one but two extraordinarily difficult professions. And I am absolutely certain, as all of his colleagues are, that he will excel in whatever challenge he takes on next.
Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, I join in this chorus of salutations and praise for the retiring majority leader. I listened carefully to Senator Frist’s recollection of his public service, and I noted the first item on his agenda was the $15 billion in the fight against global AIDS. This is an issue which we joined together many times, an issue where President Bush showed extraordinary leadership, and there was extraordinary bipartisan support for what he was trying to achieve.

As one reflects on his life and his background, it was no surprise that led the list. Senator Frist dedicated his time before the Senate to the healing arts, and I think he brought some of that same dedication to this role in the Senate, trying to use his post as the Senator from Tennessee and as a leader in the Senate to heal the world and our Nation. I thank you for all your efforts in that regard.

I know when he came to this job, it was as a Senator, because I know he had his critics, and there might even have been a few on this side of the aisle from time to time, but, by and large, I think his leadership has been symbolized by a lack of cunning, a lack of bowing and an effort to try and patch up our differences and get things done. Once again, you were the healer when you had the chance to do it.

I have traveled to Africa, as he has, probably more or less than I have seen some of those dusty villages where there is no one to be seen for miles around. But I cannot imagine your taking your surgical skills to those villages and those huts and operating under a flashlight, hour after hour, day after day, week after week. That defines Bill Frist, in my mind—a person who may not have been recognized by anyone on the road to that village, did some good, and left a legacy that will be remembered.

To you, Mr. President, and to your family, let me add my voice in saying you left a great legacy in the Senate, and I wish you all the very best.

(Applause.)

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Tennessee.

Mr. ALEXANDER. Mr. President, I join in this chorus of praise. Senator Frist knew first-hand that our public health infrastructure was incapable of meeting the threat of a massive natural epidemic, let alone a deliberate biological attack. It was a privilege to work with him on the first bio-terrorism legislation, which because of his leadership we were able to pass before 9/11.

When I think of Senator Frist, I think of civility, of decency, a good smile, his quiet, confident manner, and of a leadership that surprised us all when 9/11 or the anthrax attacks. Senator Frist knew first-hand that our public health infrastructure was incapable of meeting the threat of a massive natural epidemic, let alone a deliberate biological attack. It was a privilege to work with him on the first bio-terrorism legislation, which because of his leadership we were able to pass before 9/11.

He has also been a pioneer in the effort to bring modern information technology into all aspects of health care, and to end the enormous human and financial costs caused by medical errors and by the needless administration of health care with outdated paper records. He has also helped shine a light on the serious problem of health disparities in our country.

He has inspired each of us with his commitment to addressing the horrific tragedy still unfolding in the world, especially in Africa, because of AIDS. He has dedicated his time for years, giving of himself personally, and urging Congress to act more expeditiously. He made time to continue this missions of mercy, even after he became majority leader, and I was deeply touched by it every time. I have had the good opportunity to meet his family, and I know, as others have said, where his values come from and who he is. And I hope he’ll be able to enjoy more time with them now without the burden of running the Senate.

We wish BILL FRIST the best as he prepares to leave the Senate. We know he will have great success, and we thank him for his service to our country. We will miss the majority leader, but we know he will continue to use his immense talent to make a very real difference for all humanity in the years ahead, and continue to make us proud to call him our friend. The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Mexico is recognized.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I wanted to say a few words before the leader leaves us. I hate to call him leader or majority leader. He has become a great friend. I don’t know how to explain it, but I didn’t really think coming to the Senate that I would have a chance to meet somebody like our good departing leader. I have met all kinds of wonderful people here, but I believe I once said: If you sit down with all 100 of them, no matter what you have said about criticizing them, there are no better 100 men put together in America than the 100 Senators who serve. I believe he has been a great friend. I am wondering now about whether the Senator wouldn’t rival military leadership.

But the point is, I didn’t think BILL— I know we can’t do that in the Senate, use first names—but I didn’t think I would ever meet in the Budget Committee of the U.S. Senate—sitting in the very last seat available was this man whose name is so simple, but I had so much trouble with it. Do you remember? I didn’t say “FRIST,” kept saying “FIRST,” and I don’t know why, but I did that for a long time, and then it became sort of a—people would come up and punch me so I would say it right. But whether it is “FRIST” or “First,” I guess they mean about the same thing to me. You are truly first. What we have gone through personally will not be reflected in the RECORD. People know I have had a few years of illness. It is mostly gone now. But I found out he was a superb doctor, and I eventually I found out there weren’t better anywhere. That made it easy because I had a ready-made doctor and he was the best. And we would meet in his office, and people would think it was always business, but they had no idea that it was half business, a little bit family, but they had no idea that it was running the Senate.

I believe an in-depth search of what he has done may even rival the best, even though he may not have the skill to legislate, and there is no question about that, and he does not know how to appropriate, and there is no question about that. He might not even know how to bring an appropriations bill up, and there might be no doubt about that. He may doubt it, but this Senator doesn’t, and I am his best friend, but I have great doubts whether he knows how to get an appropriations bill up and passed.

But I strongly believe the business of the Senate is not done in those very overt ways that people think. It is done as you sit down for long hours on a conference report and come out with a health bill that all of a sudden is better than anything we have had before. When you think about that, it might not have been named for the Senator or for the chairman of this or that, but you will find out that for many hours, many trips were taken to his office, and many times, he said: Wait and we will do it. And I will tell you how to do it. And that happened.

I could go on for much longer, but I really wanted him to know that I just waited for my time. Being the fifth or sixth eldest here in seniority, I waited for my time here, and I didn’t want to wait until tomorrow or the next day in fear that I would not find time or that the Senate would not accommodate. So I thought I would, as usual, be late for a next appointment, but I have a good excuse for this, as I will tell you. I had to come here and say goodbye in a very interesting way, although it is not a goodbye. But I do think it is true that this will be a very major change in our friendship, in the way we react to each other, and the time we get to spend with each other. So it is an occasion, this leaving of the Senate, because you won’t come back very often. Even though you say you will, you won’t, and we won’t get to see you. I realize this is the last time I will see him, and probably we will call you more times than you will call us because I think we may just from time to time figure out more times than you will that we need some advice, and it will probably run in your direction, not in ours, in the next few years, and I will tell you how to do it. And that happened.

Good luck in whatever you do. It is not going to be this little return to being a country doctor, if that is what you are saying. You can’t sell me on that. You are not going to be a little country doctor; you are not going to be a regular doctor. You are going to do something much bigger than that. It is just waiting. Somebody is going to place it in front of you, and then you will do it and it will be something big and exciting for America and for our people, probably more exciting than you did here, so that will be a third one—one, the heart transplants and all that, one here with us, and then you will have a third one, and you can do a lot of duck hunting, no problem with that. You can probably go with me, if you want. But if you shoot too well, I won’t bring you anymore because it is embarrassing. It has to be sort of a modest hunt, not so superb that I am embarrassed. So we will have to work that out some way. And your son—he can’t come anymore because he shoots too well. It is truly not the right thing to do. He should not be hunting with an old man like me. No way. But if it happens, we will accommodate it some way.

Having said all that I should and much more, I will say goodbye and thank you, Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. BOND. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. CORNYN). Without objection, it is so ordered.

JIM TALENT

Mr. BOND. Mr. President, I rise on the floor to pay tribute to my very good friend and colleague, Senator JIM TALENT, who will be leaving the Senate next month.

I have known Jim for over 20 years, since he was minority leader in the Missouri House of Representatives. Throughout all these years, when he was in the State legislature and in the Big Eight, when he was chairman of the Senate Small Business Committee, I found Jim to be unfailingly a man of honesty, integrity, and hard work. He has been a wonderful friend and colleague.

I am going to miss him very much, and many people in Missouri are.

We all know that Washington can change a person, but it hasn’t changed him. Jim still has the same commonsense Missouri values he brought with him from that State. He still has the same calm, polite demeanor. He still has strong convictions and a work ethic. As I said to our folks back home in Missouri, in an arena of show horses he has been a work horse.

I was with him on the night he got the news that he lost the campaign. He was a man of unfailingly good humor and courage. And still, he thanked his Lord, his friends, and graciously accepted his fate.

I have a feeling and hope that public service will see much more of Jim Talent somewhere, sometime. And whatever he decides to do in the public or in the private sector, the qualities he has demonstrated to so many of us in the Senate will be one he will carry with him.

He served in the Senate for only 4 years, but when you look at his record of legislative achievements, he has had so many positive impacts on people's lives. In Missouri and the country, he believed he could cram all of that into 4 years.

He has been a leader on national security, energy, and criminal justice.

As a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, Jim worked to extend production of the C-17 line, allowing 30,000 workers across the country to keep their jobs, and more importantly to give our military strategic lift capability which they need to move troops and equipment to very difficult to reach places.

Jim also cares about our troops in battle. He sponsored legislation to end interest on money loaned to troops and equipment to very difficult to reach places.

I am sure the next Congress will follow up. This idea should be central to any discussion of expanding health care coverage to the uninsured.

As we prepare to say goodbye to you now from this floor, thank you for your years of devoted service to our State, to our Nation. With heartfelt gratitude, on behalf of my wife Linda and I, we wish you, Brenda, and your children the very best in future endeavors. And I know for a fact that there will be great successes ahead.

I yield the floor.

APPROPRIATE LEVEL OF MILITARY FUNDING

Mr. TALENT, Mr. President, my great friend and colleague from Missouri has an Intelligence Committee meeting to go to. So he went ahead and did his kind tribute before I give my speech, and those who are not aware of that may have thought that maybe they would be able to get in short tributes after the long farewell speech. That is not true.

I will devote my time to a substantive and very important subject—the appropriate level of funding for America's military. It is an issue that I have been fighting for since I went to the House of Representatives in 1993.

I am grateful for my friend's remarks, and I want to say that I have always enjoyed serving in legislatures, in part because of the collegial nature of the service. When you are done, yes—it is the legislation that you worked on that you want people to remember, but what you remember are the friendships and the associations and the marks, and I want to say that I have made.

And, fortunately, those do not end with your service. I look forward to continuing to visit with my friends in the Senate for years to come. I hope to be able to work with them in other venues on issues of importance to America. Nothing is more important for America than her security.

Mr. President, America has the most capable military in the world by a large margin; in fact we have the best military that has ever served any nation at any time in human history. We should be proud of that; we should especially be proud of the men and women who make America's military what it is. But it would be wrong for us to believe that because our military is the best in the world or even the best ever, that it is as capable as it needs to be. True, America is many times stronger than other nations, but its responsibilities are many times greater as well. If Denmark's military is inadequate, it matters much, even to Denmark; if America's military is inadequate, it matters tremendously, first to America, but also to the hopes and aspirations of people throughout the world.

We must understand the importance of this issue very clearly, without the distortions of ideology, politics, expediency, or wishful thinking. Like it or not, America is the first defender of freedom in the world and therefore a prime target for those who hate freedom. And like it or not, while there are many tools in the basket of western diplomacy, the underpinning of them all is an American military establishment which the world knows is capable of swiftly, effectively and at minimal cost defeating every substantial threat to our security and to our freedom.

Judged by this standard—the only appropriate standard—the situation is very necessary and sufficiently—doubt—as good as the men and women are—whether our current military establishment is strong enough. Because of decisions over the last 15 years driven more by budgetary than military considerations the size of our Army may well be too small, and much of the equipment in all the services is too old and increasingly unreliable.

Whatever the current status of the military may be, there can be no doubt that without a substantial increase in procurement spending beginning now and sustained over the next 5 to 10 years—an increase, I suggest to the Senate today, that must be measured in billions but not in billions of dollars above current estimates every year—our military will be set back for a generation. We will not be able to modernize our forces to the degree necessary to preserve our security with the necessary margin of safety.

I said that our current military is too small and inadequately equipped to execute the national military strategy. I will not go into detail on this point because my main focus is on the future but a brief overview is warranted. The world is, on balance, at least as dangerous today as it was at the end of the Cold War. And we may thank God we are no longer in danger of a massive nuclear attack from the former Soviet Union. It is a major land war in Europe likely.

Against this, however, we are engaged in a global war on terror that will continue for years to come. The end of the Cold War ushered in the emergence of dangerous regional conflicts, such as the conflicts in the Balkans. We are in greater danger today of a rogue missile attack than ever before, and China is emerging as a peer competitor much faster than anyone believed.

These conditions either did not exist, or like the conflicts in the former Yugoslavia, were suppressed, during the Cold War. As a result, the operational tempo of our conventional forces—and that means the rate, intensity and duration of their deployment—was far higher beginning in the mid-1990s, even before September 11, than it had ever been during the Cold War. Yet at the beginning of the 1990s, our forces were 30 to 40 percent bigger than today. For example, the active-duty Army was cut from 18 divisions at the time of Desert Storm to only 10 divisions by 1994. Defense had those additional divisions today to relieve the pressure in Iraq. The Navy has gone from 576 ships in the late 1980s to 276 ships today.

At the same time, procurement budgets have been cut substantially, far greater than the cuts in force structure warranted. The contrast in the average annual procurement of major equipment from two periods—1975 to 1990 and from 1981 to 2000—is startling. For example, we purchased an average of 78 scout and attack helicopters each year from 1975 to 1990, and an average of only four from 1991 to 2000. We purchased an average of 238 Air Force fighters each year from 1975 to 1990, and an average of only one from 1991 to 2000. We purchased five tanker aircraft each year from 1975 to 1990, and an average of only one per year from 1991 to 2000.

The implications for these dramatic reductions are profound. Older platforms are what the military calls generation—tankers, must design and build a new long-range strike bomber to replace the B-52. Our B-52 inventory is 45 years old.

The Air Force must buy large numbers of the F-22. That is our new air-superiority fighter. We must maintain the ability to have complete air superiority over any combat theater. The Air Force must buy large numbers of Joint Strike Fighters or equivalent aircraft. In addition, the Air Force must buy out its airlift requirement. That is how we transport personnel, equipment and supplies from one place to another in the world. It must build a new generation of tankers, must design and build a long-range strike bomber to replace the B-52. Our B-52 inventory is 45 years old.

The Army must rebuild, modernize or replace almost its entire capital stock of ground combat and support vehicles including many of its tanks.

The current procurement budget for all three services is $80.9 billion. Simple budgetary mathematics tells us that the services cannot possibly meet their crucial requirements without an average budget over the next 5 to 10 years that I estimate is at least 30 billion dollars higher than what we are now spending.

Perhaps I have gone into more detail than the Senate is willing to indulge me in already, but I want to look in more detail at the situation of the Navy. Here I speak from what I know because I have been the chairman of the Subcommittee on Seapower for the last 4 years. Currently, there are 278 ships in the U.S. Navy. The Navy shipbuilding plan calls for 326 ships by the end of the next 5 years. We are leaping down to an average of 313 ships. The plan actually calls for fewer aircraft carriers, a substantial drop in attack submarines, and fewer major surface combatants, but it attempts to make up for these reductions with modern destroyers, more capable submarines and what it calls pre-positioning ships that allow us to establish sea bases, from which to project forces ashore, as well as a whole new class of smaller multi-mission, modular ships called Litton-class Combat Ships. There is no margin whatever for error in this plan. It is, at best, the minimum necessary for our security.

The Chief of Naval Operations—that is the admiral who leads the Navy—has estimated the plan will require a shipbuilding budget of $13.3 billion for fiscal year 2008, the upcoming budget year. That is $5 billion more than what was spent this year on ship building. His plan calls for that figure to escalate to $17.5 billion by 2012. I believe these figures are too conservative. It is a good-faith effort to calculate what we need but too conservative. I think the plan will require billions more each year to execute. Both the Congressional Budget Office and the Congressional Research Service agree. In any event, I say on my oath as a Senator, that it will be utterly impossible, at the rate of defense spending now, for the Navy to reach and sustain the $13.3 billion figure, to say nothing of the even higher sums required in the out-years of the 5-year defense plan and beyond.

Beginning no later than 2009, there will be a growing shortfall in the shipbuilding accounts, in addition to an annual shortfall of $1 billion to $2 billion in Navy aviation procurement. I expect the total deficiency to be no less than $45 billion over the fiscal year 2008 to fiscal year 2016 period; and remember, this assumes that the 313-ship Navy is sufficient to protect American security, an optimistic assumption. much of its Marine Corps, and many of its Reserves to sustain 130,000 troops over time in a combat view. In 1992—which was right after Desert Storm—the Defense Department stated a requirement of 12 Active-Duty Army divisions before the increases in operational tempo of the 1990s and before the global war on terror. The Army should surely be at least 12 divisions today. It costs approximately $2 billion to stand up and sustain an additional Army or Marine Corps of division strength, so we need to invest $4 billion per year in increased force structure for the Army, in addition to the $30 billion more in new procurement funding. So to sustain our military over the next generation at the appropriate level, we need to increase procurement spending and spending on the size of the Army by about $34 billion per year. And that is above current baseline estimates. It would have to be sustained over the life of the current defense plan and beyond.

I want to emphasize that this is, of necessity, a ballpark figure. It is always difficult to predict precisely the cost of new programs—some of which are in phase, part of the way through, given the uncertainties associated with developing technologies. We will be acquiring this equipment over the next 10 to 20 years and needs in technology are going to change. We must confront the fact that the money we are basing our procurement budgets on today are fundamentally inadequate. We have to ramp up spending. We must begin now. And we have to accept the fact that it will not be cheap.

I, also, want to make clear that this additional $34 billion must come from an increased overall defense budget. There may be some who say that it is possible to cannibalize the rest of the defense budget to produce all or most of this additional procurement funding. That is a dangerous fantasy. The money cannot come from the supplemental appropriations bills. Those are necessary to pay the day-to-day costs of the war and may not have been adequate to do that. The money cannot come from reducing the readiness budget because that budget is overstressed already. It cannot come from reducing the number of service personnel. The military is already too small. It can’t come from reducing salary and benefits. We have to retain the best people. Besides, Congress is far more likely, and properly in my view, to increase personnel benefits rather than reduce them. Take a look at the last 7 years. Total spending on defense health care, for example, increased from $17.5 billion in fiscal year 2000 to $37 billion in fiscal year 2006—an increase of more than 100 percent over the last 7 years, appropriately so.

The men and women of America’s military deserve good salaries and benefits, and so do those who are retired. The savings from base closing is not going to supply the additional funds. Those are highly speculative. They will not occur, if at all, for many years, and they are unlikely to be more than a billion dollars per year.

Some say we can save money by reducting personnel earnings or additions to the defense budget, and within limits that is true. But the total of such earmarks is no more than $3 billion to $4 billion per year. Realistically, Congress is not going to give up all of these and at least a number of these are clearly justified because they simply restore to the budget items that our service chiefs desperately wanted and omitted only because of budgetary pressure. Still others will say we can get the necessary additional funding by lowering the cost of new programs through procurement reform. I am all for procurement reform. I have been for it ever since Secretary Bill Perry, who was a great Secretary of Defense, proposed it over 10 years ago. We have had several waves of procurement reform since then. Several Defense Secretaries have championed its virtues. We continue to hold oversight hearings to pressure the defense industry to lower costs. The problem is that people in the Department who might be violating procurement regulations. I have chaired some of those hearings.

Meanwhile, the cost of new programs keeps going up. I suggest the reasons for this can be found in theProcurement system, bad as it is, than with the stress on the industrial base and on the military caused by the budgets that are consistently too low and unstable.

One of the arguments supporting reductions in force in the past has been that transformational technology and tactics can empower the military to do more with less. The idea is to make each servicemember, each plane, ship, and vehicle less vulnerable so we lose fewer of them, and more lethal so we need fewer of them. Within limits, that is sometimes true. But the best technology costs money, and changing technology, tactics, and doctrine makes it more difficult to fix stable requirements. Program instability costs money, too.

Here is an example. The Navy originally planned to procure 32 DD(X) next-generation destroyers. The ship was deemed too expensive and is a marvel of transformational technology. But its unique capabilities have driven the per ship cost to about $3 billion. As a result, the Navy plans to procure only seven new destroyers. The problem is that the complexity of the ship’s design, the unprecedented capabilities of the vessel, and the high price of the best technologies, have all driven up cost to the point where the ship is impossible to procure in sufficient numbers at current budget levels.

Another example, the Air Force desperately needs more air lift, and it also needs a new tanker aircraft. The Air Force shoulders much of the mobility mission, and it also performs the midair refueling mission. Normally, the Air Force would simply buy more C-17 aircraft. It is a perfectly good, modern cargo aircraft. Then the Air Force would design and procure a new tanker. But because the service is under tremendous pressure, it has decided to develop a cargo-tanker, combining the two missions into one aircraft. The service assures us that it is not going to have any bells and whistles on the new plane, and the aircraft will be cheap.

Surely, the concept of a cargo-tanker allows the Air Force to claim that it will be able to perform both of these missions while relieving some of the pressure on its budget. But, again, reality must and will eventually bite. As requirements build and changing technologies force changes in design, the odds are very high that the cost of the new aircraft—if it is to do the combined mission it is supposed to do—will go substantially.

The problem of cost is exacerbated by the stress on the defense industrial base. Procurement budgets have been too low for 15 years and because of budgetary pressured they constantly fall short. The Department projects what it intends to procure in the outyears of its defense plan but then often makes last-minute cuts and changes.

Under those circumstances, it is no surprise that contractors are not investing sufficiently in the defense industrial base. It is shrinking, and it is undercapitalized. That means fewer competitors, more sole-source contracts, less research, and, therefore, higher costs. No amount of oversight, reform, or pressure on procurement officials can change that.

The good news is that a robust and consistent commitment to adequate funding would soon begin to reverse these trends. Again, the Department has made improvements in the way we design and build new systems, and those improvements can save money. But they cannot work miracles. Sufficient and stable funding is not only consistent with transformation and efficient use of the taxpayers’ dollars, it is necessary to both. If Congress were to commit to my proposal, for example, the service chiefs and the defense industry would know that substantial new money was moving. The Department would proceed with confidence. The taxpayers would know that taxpayers’ dollars are being put to work.
major parties have very different views on what to do about those problems, but nobody can or does claim that the defense budget is the cause.

Right now, we are spending 3.8 percent of our gross domestic product on the military defense budget. That’s a very low percentage, historically, far less than we spent at any time during the Cold War. Under President Carter, we spent 4.6 percent of the GDP on national defense.

If we spent only 4.2 percent now, we could easily fund what I have proposed. We would have a fighting chance to support our service men and women with the equipment they need and deserve. We could sustain the military power that the last two Presidents have used to protect our freedom and stabilize the post-Cold-War world. We would send the clearest possible message to both our friends and enemies, and to those nations who are deciding now whether they are going to be a friend or foe, what ever happens, whatever the direction our foreign policy takes, the United States has the ability to sustain our freedom and the hope of freedom for the world.

To those who worry about the price of strength, there is a price to be paid for weakness. How many conflicts will we invite, how much instability will we engender, if we allow this restless and troubled world to doubt America’s ability to defend itself?

Let’s look at the risks of alternative courses of action. If we adopt the course I suggest, and it turns out that I was wrong, all we will have lost is a fraction of our wealth that would be spent in this country on products produced by our workers, for a margin of safety that, in the end, we did not need. But if we stay on our current course, and it turns out that I was right, how much will we pay then in a future course, and it turns out that I was tempted to be discouraged, she reminded me that when she family openly discussed the sacrifice that before her husband deployed, their daughter, Kelsi Lamberson, was killed in Iraq only 8 months ago. Mrs. Lamberson told me that before her husband deployed, their family openly discussed the sacrifice which he, and they, might be called on to make. I asked her how she was able to bear her grief with such grace and fortitude. She told me that when she was tempted to be discouraged, she reminded herself that “life is only as difficult as you make it.”

Mr. President, I have met thousands of Americans over the last 4 years like the Lamberson family, not just soldiers and their families, but people from every walk of life, who live each day with courage, resilience, and optimism. Because of them, I believe with all my heart that America’s time of leadership is not done.

I ask the Senate to honestly face the true cost of defending this Nation. If we do, if we carry that burden with confidence, we will find the weight of it to have been a small thing compared to the blessings of peace and liberty we will secure for ourselves, and the hope we will give to freedom-loving people all over the world.

Mr. President, I cannot close without thanking my dedicated staff who served the people of Missouri so well over the last 4 years, who have kept me going, kept me on time, who are largely responsible for the many pieces of legislation which Senator Bond was kind enough to mention. I just ask the Senate to indulge me for another moment or two because I am going to read their names. I think they deserve it: Mark Strand, my chief of staff; Cortney Brown, my scheduler; Les Sealy, our great office manager who also worked for me while we were in the House; Linda Neas, Katie Smith, Heath Hall, Jesse Appleton, Katie Duckworth, Christopher Papagianis, Shamed Dogan, and John Cox, who works so hard and so well on veterans issues, a man who has served this country in many different venues: Andy Karellas, Martha Petkovich, and Sarah Cudworth, who did legislative correspondence, grants and case work; Peter Henry, who managed the mail; Sarah Barfield, my staff assistant; and my legislative assistants: Lindsey Smith, Rachel Gross, and Lindsay Wetzel. We also have CDR Dan Brintzingerhoff and LCDR Lori Aguayo, two patriots and both outstanding officers; and Mark Hegerle, my Energy Fellow who came over from the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission just in time to help me make a real difference on the Energy bill.

I want to thank our press shop: Rich Chrismyer, my communications director; Erin Hamm, and Andrew Bremmy.

Casework—we handled over 10,000 cases. I am a big believer in casework. This is a big government, and navigating it is hard, and if we could help, we wanted to help. I thank Nora Breidenbach, Jenny Bickel, Abby Pittlick, Debbie Dornfeld, and Jessica Van Beek.

And the State staff, we always tried to integrate the work of the State staff and the Washington staff, and I think the State staff deserves a special thanks. I thank the State director; in St. Louis: Kacky Garner, my district director; Peggy Barnhart; Rachel McCombs; and Angel McCormick Franks; in Kansas City: Joe Keatley, my great district director; Danny Pfeifer; Emily Seifers; Greg Pfeifer; in Springfield: Terry Campbell, the district director; Christopher Stone; and Coriann Gastol; and in Cape Girardeau: Jeff Glenn, who directed that office; and Liz Malnord.

I also want to thank, as other Senators have done, my family, my wife, obviously, in particular, who has shared the highs and lows of this job, and my wonder kids.

Mr. President, it remains only for me to thank my colleagues in the Senate for the many kindnesses, personal and professional, which they have shown my family and my family over the last 4 years.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

THE PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Pennsylvania.
Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, I have sought recognition to discuss a number of matters briefly.

HONORING SENATORIAL SERVICE

BILL FRIST

First, I want to join my colleagues in paying tribute to our majority leader, Senator Frist, who has done such an outstanding job in the past 12 years.

Senator Frist came to this Senate as a real all-American. He has displayed extraordinary talents, academically, professionally, public service, as a family man, as a friend, at Princeton and Harvard Medical School, a renowned heart and lung transplant surgeon, then selected to be the majority leader and has taken this body through a very difficult 4 years and a very productive 4 years.

A great deal has been said about Senator Frist earlier today. I just wanted to add my personal congratulations to him on his service and to wish him well.

RICK SANTORUM

Mr. President, I regret the departure of my distinguished colleague, Senator RICK SANTORUM. He has been really a ball of fire in the U.S. Congress. He was elected in 1996 to a House of Representatives, defeating a long-term incumbent by literally going door to door in his district in the Pittsburgh area.

He was elected to the U.S. Senate in 1994, reelected in the year 2000, and has displayed admirable qualities-energy, determination, confidence, and the pursuit of his own personal values. There is no doubt that Senator SANTORUM has espoused, articulated, and pushed causes he deeply believed in which may not have been popular in many quarters, but he was determined to undertake the pursuit of those values because he believed in them so deeply. I counseled him from time to time to save some of his philosophy for December of the year 2006.

A famous quotation about President Lincoln: he was asked by a little boy, in effect: How do you serve, Mr. President?

He said: I represent my true beliefs and values 90 percent of the time.

The little boy said: Well, what about the other 10 percent?

The famous statement by President Lincoln: So that I can represent my true beliefs 90 percent of the time.

It is not unknown in our body to occasionally defer some of the more controversial positions. But Senator SANTORUM didn’t do that. He spoke his mind and he spoke his heart. Those are rare qualities in public life and public service and in politics. For that, I salute him.

On a personal level, Rick and I have had a superb relationship, not only professionally, not only politically, but also personally. A more devoted family man could not be found. He has taken this turn of electoral results philosophically and in a good spirit. I have had some experience on the losing end of elections and, having been there, I say that he has responded with great class, with great style. His comment earlier this week was: Tough on the family, tough on Karen, tough on the children, but now they have their husband back, and they have their father back. And he had a big smile and a sense of satisfaction. He spoke to the caucus yesterday, and he exuded confidence. He exuded personal pride in what he had done. I join him in that. As a colleague, I personally will miss him very much. I know that will be the sentiment of this body, even those with whom he has tangled in a rigorous way.

Mr. President, I urge my colleagues to move ahead with the confirmation of judges.

We have U.S. District Judge Kent Jordan, of the District of Delaware, who has been nominated to be a judge on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit. He has been approved by the Judiciary Committee and is ready for floor action. Nobody has anything adverse to say about Judge Jordan. He is endorsed by both of the Delaware Senators, both of whom are Democrats. They have a judicial emergency in the Third Circuit, and he ought to be confirmed.

We also have a list of some 13 district court nominations pending on the executive calendar. I ask unanimous consent that the list be printed at the conclusion of my remarks.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

(See Exhibit 1.)

Mr. SPECTER. A good number of these nominees are also in districts where there are judicial emergencies. I think that from time to time we in the Senate, where we have the responsibility for confirmation, don’t really take seriously enough the impact of judicial vacancies. The courts are busy. The Third Circuit, my circuit, is overwhelmed. District Court Judge Jordan ought to be confirmed. My colleagues have told me about the problems posed by vacancies in their states. If these other 13 districts nominees are not confirmed today, they will languish until February and February in March. We always find a reason around here not to do something. That applies most emphatically to the judges.

It is my hope that in the 110th Congress, we will approach judicial confirmations a little differently. I have already consulted with Senator LEAHY, who will become chairman of the committee. Senator LEAHY and I have had an excellent working relationship on a bipartisan basis, and the record shows it. I don’t have to go into detail about that. I have recommended to the White House that the it consult with Senator LEAHY and the Democrats, as well as with Arlen Specter, as ranking member, and the Republicans. There is a limited amount of time. We know what happens in a Presidential election year.

Let us make a determination about who knows canary, turned to judges who meet the standards and criteria of President Bush but who also pass muster in the U.S. Senate on both sides of the aisle. We have had vacancies for in terminable periods of time. I have discussed this with Senator LEAHY and with the White House.

I hope we approach the 110th Congress differently. And before this Congress adjourns, the 109th, I hope we will confirm these judges who are on the calendar awaiting floor action.

JUDICIAL NOMINEES PENDING ON THE SENATE FLOOR

The following nominees were all reported out of the Judiciary Committee prior to the October recess. Eight of the 14 nominees on the floor are in districts where judicial emergencies have been declared.

ATTORNEY-CLIENT PRIVILEGE PROTECTION ACT

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, I introduced legislation which will modify practices of the Department of Justice on the attorney-client privilege where the Department of Justice, acting under a memorandum called the Thompson Memorandum by Deputy Attorney General Thompson, has initiated a policy where requests are made to waive the attorney-client privilege, and if the attorney-client privilege is not waived, then that is considered in the context of the amendment right to jury trial.

Because of the limited time and other Senators waiting, I will not elaborate upon the provisions of this legislation.

I am unanimous consent that a summary of the bill and the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

That being the case, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

SEC. 1. SHORT TITLE.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled:

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE. This Act may be cited as the “Attorney-Client Privilege Protection Act of 2006”.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS AND PURPOSE.

(a) FINDINGS. -- Congress finds the following:

(1) Justice is served when all parties to litigation are represented by experienced diligent counsel.

(2) Protecting attorney-client privileged communications and compelled disclosure fosters voluntary compliance with the law.

(3) To serve the purpose of the attorney-client privilege, attorneys and clients must have a degree of confidence that they will not be required to disclose privileged communications.

(4) The ability of an organization to have effective compliance programs and to conduct comprehensive internal investigations is enhanced when there is clarity and consistency regarding the attorney-client privilege.

(5) Prosecutors, investigators, enforcement officials, and other officers or employees of Government agencies have been able to, and can continue to, conduct their work while respecting attorney-client and work product protections and the rights of individuals, including seeking and discovering facts crucial to the investigation and prosecution of organizations.

(6) Despite the existence of these legitimate tools, the effectiveness of Justice and other Government agencies has increased in employing tactics that undermine the adversarial system of justice, such as encouraging organizations to waive attorney-client privilege and work product protection, and avoid indictment or other sanctions.

(7) An indictment can have devastating consequences on an organization, potentially eliminating the ability of the organization to survive post-indictment or to dispute the charges against it at trial.

(8) Waiver demands and other tactics of Government agencies are encroaching on the constitutional rights and other legal protections of employees.

(9) An attorney-client privilege, work product doctrine, and payment of counsel fees shall not be used as devices to conceal wrongdoing or to cloak advice on evading the law.

(b) PURPOSE. -- It is the purpose of this Act to place on each agency clear and practical limits designed to preserve the attorney-client privilege and work product protections available to an organization and preserve the constitutional rights and other legal protections available to employees of such an organization.

SEC. 3. DISCLOSURE OF ATTORNEY-CLIENT PRIVILEGE OR ADVANCEMENT OF COUNSEL FEES AS ELEMENTS OF COOPERATION.

(a) IN GENERAL. -- Chapter 201 of title 18, United States Code, is amended by inserting after section 3031 the following:

(b) DEFINITIONS. -- In this section:

(1) ATTORNEY-CLIENT PRIVILEGE. -- The term ‘attorney-client privilege’ means the attorney-client privilege as governed by the principles of the common law, as they may be interpreted by the courts of the United States in the light of reason and experience, and the principles of article V of the Federal Rules of Evidence.

(2) ATTORNEY WORK PRODUCT. -- The term ‘attorney work product’ means materials prepared by or at the direction of an attorney that are not otherwise received in evidence in any proceeding and that contain a mental impression, conclusion, opinion, or legal theory of that attorney.

(3) ORGANIZATION. -- The term ‘organization’ means any Federal investigation or criminal or civil enforcement matter, or any entity or organization of the United States, as the term is defined in title 18, United States Code, and includes any corporation, partnership, association, or other organization.

(4) THE ATTORNEY. -- The term ‘the attorney’ means the attorney or person affiliated with that organization, on or use for a factor in determining whether an organization, or person affiliated with that organization, cooperates with the Government.

(A) any valid assertion of the attorney-client privilege or privilege for attorney work product;

(B) the provision of counsel to, or contribution to the legal defense fees or expenses of, an employee of that organization;

(C) the disclosure of information, information sharing, or common interest agreements with an employee of that organization if the organization determines it has a common interest against the investigation or enforcement matter;

(D) the sharing of information relevant to the investigation or enforcement matter with an employee of that organization; or

(E) a failure to terminate the employment of or otherwise sanction any employee of that organization because of the decision by that employee to exercise the constitutional rights or other legal protections of that employee in response to a Government request;

(F) demand or request that an organization, or person affiliated with that organization, take any action described in paragraph (2).

(C) INAPPLICABILITY. -- Nothing in this Act shall prohibit an agent or attorney of the United States from accepting, a voluntary and unsolicited offer to share the internal investigation materials of such organization.

(b) COOPERATING AMENDMENT. -- The table of sections for chapter 201 of title 18, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following:

“3014. Preservation of fundamental legal protections and rights in the context of investigations and enforcement matters regarding organizations.”

ATTORNEY-CLIENT PRIVILEGE PROTECTION ACT OF 2006

The bill protects the attorney-client relationship by prohibiting federal lawyers and investigators from: (1) requesting that an organization waive its attorney-client privilege or work product doctrine; and (2) conditioning any charging decision or cooperation credit on waiver or non-privileged, work product.

The payment of government legal fees, the continued employment of a person under investigation, or the signing of a joint defense agreement.

All of the acts and considerations prohibited by the bill are acts and considerations that federal prosecutors must factor into any corporate or organizational charging decision under DOJ’s Thompson Memorandum, which is described in more detail below.

The bill is appropriately narrow. It allows organizations to continue offering internal investigation materials to prosecutors, but only if such an offer is entirely voluntary and unsolicited by the prosecutors. The bill also allows prosecutors to seek materials that they reasonably believe are not privileged.

Mr. SPECTER. I well understand that there will be no action on this matter during this Congress, but I want to put it into the public milieu so there can be comment about it and it will be pursued in the next Congress. The Department of Justice has advised that they are going to revise the Thompson Memorandum to a memorandum called the McNulty Memorandum from the Deputy Attorney General. I had hoped we would have a chance to see what he came out of session so that we could have reviewed it and perhaps accepted their work, but it is not ready. I have advised Deputy Attorney General Paul McNulty and also Attorney General Gonzales that this legislation would be introduced and we can work on it in the next Congress.

HEDGE FUNDS

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, I will include for the RECORD proposed legislation to deal with hedge funds. The Judiciary Committee has had a series of hearings on this important subject, now $1.3 trillion in the economy, 30 percent of the market options. After reflecting on the matter, I have decided not to introduce the legislation but simply to put the draft bill in the record so that there can be further comment. I talked about this proposed legislation earlier this week and had said that I was going to introduce the legislation, but I want to give interested parties more time to comment on it.
I ask unanimous consent that a summary of the bill and the bill itself be printed in the RECORD. I am not introducing the bill. I do not look for a Senate bill number on it. But it will be in the public record, and there will be more time for people in the profession to view it as they wish.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

SEC. 2. FINDINGS; PURPOSE.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds the following:

(1) Unlawful insider trading causes a loss of confidence in the integrity of the securities markets, increases the cost of equity capital, and places small investors at a disadvantage.

(2) Unlawful insider trading and other misuse of material nonpublic information allows wrongdoers to engage in fraudulent and manipulative activities at the expense of investors, and diminishes the role of the capital markets in supporting economic growth.

(b) PURPOSE.—The purpose of this Act is to ensure effective criminal enforcement of prohibitions against unlawful insider trading and effective protection of the integrity of the securities markets and investors who use them by authorizing coordination of investigation by civil regulatory agencies and the Department of Justice, providing effective incentives for private citizens to report and provide evidence of misuse of material nonpublic information, requiring hedge funds to create and enforce effective compliance programs and ensure maintenance of records, and removing exemptions from coverage under the Securities Act of 1933, the Exchange Act of 1934, and the Investment Advisers Act of 1940.

SEC. 3. DEFINITIONS.

(a) In this Act—

(1) the term ‘‘hedge fund’’—

(A) means a privately offered, pooled investment vehicle;

(B) that is not widely available to the public;

(C) that invests primarily in securities;

(b) ‘‘misuse of material nonpublic information’’ means the improper use of material nonpublic information for purposes other than to support a market-based investment decision;

(c) ‘‘wrongdoer’’ means an individual, an entity, or an entity’s employee.

SEC. 4. MISUSE OF MATERIAL NONPUBLIC INFORMATION.

(a) Misuse of material nonpublic information by manipulating the grant dates of stock options or timing of public announcements of material nonpublic information for purposes of more profitable trading is a form of unlawful insider trading that harms investors. Public companies referred to a regular and objectively identifiable program for selecting option grant dates presumptively are not engaging in fraudulent behavior regarding the grant of those options.

(b) Hedge funds increasingly are making loans, participating in private placements, and sitting on bankruptcy committees and corporate boards. These changes increase the difficulties of detecting and proving unlawful insider trading by hedge funds.

(c) Hedge funds enhance market liquidity and contribute to pricing efficiency and market stabilization, but these sophisticated instruments should be restricted to wealthy investors.

(d) The inappropriate disclosure of fraudulently obtained information by law enforcement agencies allows wrongdoers to engage in fraudulent and manipulative activities at the expense of investors.

(e) Pressure on hedge funds to de-corporate boards. These changes increase the likelihood of insider trading by the Securities and Exchange Commission, the Department of Justice, and self-regulatory organizations. Certain recent court decisions have chilled this cooperation.

(f) Hedge funds or hedge fund advisers that sell securities to or manage investments of pension funds and smaller investors strikes the appropriate balance between investor protection and capital formation needs.

(g) The grant of those options.

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, I urge the confirmation of Dr. Andrew von Eschenbach to be Commissioner of the Food and Drug Administration. Dr. Von Eschenbach is a native Philadelphian. He has had a very distinguished professional record. He has served as the director of the National Cancer Institute. He has made a commitment publicly to lead the way to conquer cancer. However, that is not good enough for me. I think we ought to do it sooner.

In 1970, President Nixon declared war on cancer. Had we pursued that war with the same diligence and resources that we pursue other wars, I would not have gotten cancer, my formation chief of staff. I would not have had that war been pursued with the same diligence and resources that we pursue other wars, I would not have gotten cancer, my formation chief of staff. I would not have had cancer. It is something that we hear about every day, Dr. von Eschenbach, a cancer survivor himself, understands the need for better cancer treatments. During Dr. von Eschenbach’s tenure as Director of the NCI, funding for the NCI in fiscal year 2006 was $4.76 billion. Today, recommended Senate funding for 2007 is $4.8 billion, an increase of 25 million. However, it is concerning that the funding for the NCI in fiscal year 2006 was $50 million less than fiscal year 2005.

The quality of the people he has around him, his staff. It says a lot about him. He hired 40 percent of them are sitting in this room today. The quality of the people he has around him says a tremendous amount about... him, as does the passion with which they served him and the passion with which he serves the country.

I also came to know Karen and her six kids. They are extraordinary people. Rick is a great leader of his home. Just to keep you all informed and respected, that Karen has for Rick and that his children have for him as a father says a lot about him as an individual as well.

I am going to keep this short. This is completely from the heart. I can say with confidence that as a human being there have been maybe as good human beings who have served in this Senate, but there have been no better. He is that quality of a human being. His faith leads him to that. I consider it a great privilege to have served with him and to call him a friend over these last 6 years. I know the friendship he and I share will be a lifetime friendship.

Rick, this body will miss you greatly, but no one in this body will miss you more than I.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. Crafter). The Senator from Pennsylvania is recognized.

FAREWELL TO THE SENATE

Mr. SANTORUM. Mr. President, let me thank my long-time friend and colleague from Nevada for his very kind words. I thank him for coming to hear my last speech on the floor of the Senate. I know there are many listening who are applauding at this moment for that. But I come here with a wonderful spirit. I have written on the top of the page the same words that I wrote the night of the election, and that is the word “gratitude” because that is all I feel—an incredible sense of gratitude.

Mark Rodgers is my long-time friend and chief of staff, now head of the conference. We were talking again this morning about coming to work every day and walking up to the Capitol Building every day for 16 years now and still feeling that, wow, I work here for 16 years. It was such a gift, such an incredible gift to be blessed to serve the people of the 18th District in the Congress, southwestern Pennsylvania, in Allegheny County, and for 12 incredible years to be able to serve the people of Pennsylvania here.

So first and foremost, I want to thank who is most responsible—and that is God—for this great gift he has bestowed upon me and my family—to be a part of the greatest country in the history of the world and to serve in a body that is, and hopefully will be, the greatest deliberative body in the world. I think back to my dad, when he came to this country, and my mom, who is a second-generation, and I think of how I grew up. It is amazing what a great country this is and how God has bestowed upon me and my family tremendous blessings. So I thank Him for the opportunity he has given me to serve. We are all called to serve. Some are more privileged than others. They don’t think they are in a job or a position in life where they are doing what God has called them to do. God has blessed me with the opportunity to do this and to serve in a way that I hope he has called me to serve.

Second, I thank my family. Karen and the kids are watching. They have suffered a lot and have sacrificed a lot. I spent many a night saying to Karen the other day that it is amazing how you think you are doing certain things well, and then you have the opportunity to spend a little more time doing those things and you realize how insufficiently you did them in the past. A phrase from the Bible is ringing in my ears, “the scales falling off of the eyes.” In the last month or so, I have had a lot of scales fall from my eyes—to see not just what the 2 years have been to my family, which have been a tough 2 or 3 years, but the accumulation of 16 years in what is a very difficult life. I know everybody here recognizes that because you live it. They know how difficult this life is, how public everything we do and say is or why we think we understand how difficult that is for our family, but I don’t think we really do. I want to say thank you to Karen, who I picture in my mind with this T-shirt dress she wore and had stenciled on it “Santorum for Congress.” She went to knocking on doors in 1990, when no one gave us a chance. We did the impossible. We were able to defeat a 14-year incumbent who no one thought could ever be defeated. I would not have even come close to winning that election but for her.

In 1994, it was the same thing. She went out with the two children at home and she spent day after day—not traveling with, no; she was giving speeches in her own right and traveling all over the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, sacrificing. They continued to do that day after day, year after year. I was a Senator, and I had important things to do. I tell stories all the time about debates that were held on the floor of the Senate, when I would call Karen and say I had to come back to this very place and say more. There was never a hesitation. She served more than I did. My children—none of them have known their father without being in politics. I got married in 1990 to Karen, and Elizabeth came along 11 months later. Their life has been with their father in politics, in the public arena. They have had to deal with what I would call pleasurable ways and some very painful ways. So I thank them for being without their dad far too often. Even when they are with their dad, I am not as attentive as I should have been. But I think they knew and they shared in the endeavor because they knew it was important for them and for our country.

So, hopefully, out of this experience they have been given a sense of purpose, and they know more about what life should be all about and that is to serve—serve God, serve your family, serve your community, and to serve your country. It is a great blessing. I thank them for the opportunity they have given me, through their sacrifice, to do that for the last 16 years.

I thank my mom and dad and Karen’s mom and dad and all in our family who have been supportive every step of the way—sometimes wondering why I was doing this, sometimes unable to walk to the door of the Senate, telling up the paper for fear of what next was going to be said about their son-in-law or son. But they stood with us and fought with us and they comforted us. I thank them.

John mentioned the people who are here in this room, my staff.

I ask unanimous consent to have printed a list of all of the folks who worked for us over the last 12 years in the Senate at the end of my remarks.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

(See Exhibit 1.)

Mr. SANTORUM. Mr. President, I wish I could read all these names, but there are a lot of names. These are the people who worked for me in my personal office, in my Washington offices across the State and the people who worked here in Washington in my leadership office at the Senate Republican Conference. John said it so well. These are incredible people. I have had the opportunity now in the last few days to sit and talk with each one of my staff members to find out what they are doing and to get any final thoughts they would have. One after another, I have been amazed at the dedication, integrity, caring, and the commitment of service they had to the people of Pennsylvania, or to the causes I have attempted to do my best to fight for in the Senate. These are incredibly talented people whom I have been so blessed to be associated with and to work with.

I looked at the list of our legislative accomplishments and I can say, yes, I worked on that, but on the autism legislation, Jennifer Vesey wrote it, not me. She spent 16 months working with 15 offices. In fact, let me do something at this point.

"(A) a description of the progress made in implementing the provisions of the Combating Autism Act of 2006;

"(C) information on the incidence of autism spectrum disorder and trend data of such incidence since the date of enactment of the Combating Autism Act of 2006.
Mr. SANTORUM. Mr. President, we just passed the combating autism bill that we have been working on for 16 months. I thank Senator DODD for his tremendous work on that. I thank all of the autism groups. I thank Jennifer Vasey for the tremendous work she did and the hours and hours and patience it takes to put together complex and important pieces of legislation.

Later today, or tomorrow, we are going to pass the abandoned mine lands bill. I believe that Mr. SANTORUM, but it was Ashley Hornung; it wasn’t Rick SANTORUM. She did all the work. I pretty much knew what was in there, and I would negotiate the parts in disagreement. That is what we all do. But on 90 percent of the bills that most of us know about, we didn’t hammer out the details; it was done by folks who have the commitment and vision and effort and work the long hours to make the legislation possible.

It is important that in Pennsylvania now we will get a billion dollars to clean up abandoned mines—it is a tremendous contribution to the environment—or miners will have health care coverage paid because, in part, I had a terrific staff person, I can’t go through here and look at these accomplishments that would be great to stand up and say that I did, but I had a tremendous amount of help. I had incredibly talented, gifted people who worked incredibly hard.

What most people across America don’t realize is how hard our people around here work. They don’t do it for the money. They don’t do it because they have some agenda to accomplish. They do it because they want to improve America, make America a better place. They want to leave this place better than how they found it. They want to serve because they love this country and they believe in what will make this country better. They work long hours. They get paid as much as they could if they wandered off the Hill. I will put my folks, both in Washington and across the State, up against anybody. They are sitting in the gallery and here along the railing. They have given their all and I thank them. They served the people of Pennsylvania. Looking at Kevin Roy over there, I think of all of the earmarks—that is a dirty word—that we were able to get to help the people in Pennsylvania. I look at work we did for the nonprofit community and welfare and families, and Melanie Looney and her team worked on that.

It had been an incredible group. Our Senate conference, the message folks—they was awfully hard. Republicans are not good on the old message issue. We don’t follow our talking points very well. We try. We try. We have a lot of independent thinkers on our side. God bless them. They always have a better way. They suggest or actually not even saying things, thinking things than what we suggest. That is the beauty of our party. We have a lot of diversity within our party.

We have some very talented people who work very hard, not just a dry message to spin, but to try to move the debate, try to get our causes articulated, to lay out a way that we can communicate effectively to people across America. They worked hard. They built coalitions. They did their best, and I thank them for their effort and the tremendous service they have given our conference.

I thank the folks in my district offices. Most of those folks have been with me 16 years. We don’t have a lot of turnover in our office. A lot of folks in Pittsburgh who I knew with no 16 and others around the State have been with me 12 years. They are dedicated people who go out and do those security checks and veterans benefits and med- ics.

We will always remember one story that happened this last year. There was a man, a World War II vet named Patrick. I was at a ribbon-cutting for a VA facility in Oakland in Pittsburgh. While I was there, we arranged a little media presentation for a man who had sought a medal and was never given that medal. That is all I knew about it. I showed up. There was this older gentleman sitting in the front row. His name was Patrick.

Patrick was a World War II veteran who served in Patton’s army and was sent on a secret mission to try to liberate a POW camp. In that mission, he was captured. He was imprisoned for seven months. I knew him with no 16 and others around the State have been with me 12 years. They are dedicated people who go out and do those security checks and veterans benefits and med- ics.

While I was there, we arranged a little media presentation for a man who had sought a medal and was never given that medal. That is all I knew about it. I showed up. There was this older gentleman sitting in the front row. His name was Patrick.

Patrick was a World War II veteran who served in Patton’s army and was sent on a secret mission to try to liberate a POW camp. In that mission, he was captured. He was imprisoned for seven months. I knew him with no 16 and others around the State have been with me 12 years. They are dedicated people who go out and do those security checks and veterans benefits and med- ics.

We will always remember one story that happened this last year. There was a man, a World War II vet named Patrick. I was at a ribbon-cutting for a VA facility in Oakland in Pittsburgh. I thank all of them for all the service they have done, for doing what I ask them to do when they come into the office: Treat every caller as if it is your grandmother calling. If you treat every caller as if it is your grandmother—hopeful they get along with their grandmother things will be fine.

I thank my colleagues. This place gets a lot of ridicule. It is very easy to criticize people in the fishbowl. It is very easy to take shots at people for not living up to expectations, and certainly, all do not live up to expectations. But I think I can say without any reservation that the men and women in this body are good and decent people who are doing what they believe is best for this country.

I know many people find that hard to believe because they look at people and they have beliefs so diametrically opposed to people in this Chamber. I certainly have views—and have demonstrated that on many occasions on the floor of the Senate—that are diametrically opposed to many people in this Chamber. But in my heart, I never questioned the integrity and the sincerity of the people who articulated their opinions, that they were not sincere. I was willing to be honest and I believed them to believe that it was in the best interest of the country. That is what is supposed to happen here. Ideas are to be debated, points of view are to be discussed, and the prevailing sentiment of the day will move the country in that direction.

There are very good people here. I tell the people of America: There are very good people here. There are people here on both sides of the aisle who pray every single day for God’s guidance. There are people here today who, while we fight and argue, do so out of a passion for doing what is right.

I thank my colleagues for the courtesies they have shown me, and particularly my Republican colleagues for the honor they have given me to serve in the leadership for 6 years. I know that was not an easy decision back in 2001 to elect someone who had a reputation of being somewhat of a bomb thrower in the House and in my early Senate days to a position of leadership in the Senate. They took a risk. I hope they feel it has paid off.

It has certainly been a great blessing to me to have been able to serve my colleagues in the capacity of conference chair for months in my second year in the Senate and taking on what I would argue was the most important piece of legislation in that session of the Congress, the Republican revolution.

I thank Trent Lott not only for his tutelage and mentoring me in the time I have been here as a leader, but for helping me in gaining leadership and being involved in the leadership in the Senate.

I thank Bill Frist for his friendship. His coming in as a leader when I was already in the leadership was a little different. He didn’t come in and put the finger and boss around, but he came in to learn. He came in to engage, to try to take the knowledge that was in the leadership group and use it to build a stronger group, I appreciate that.

There is a humility in Bill Frist. It is a very attractive quality and, I might also add, a rather rare quality if one is in the Senate, but a very attractive one and a very important one in Senators and leaders.

I thank, I guess finally, the people of Pennsylvania. I was talking to Jim Tohey. Jim is the new president of Saint Vincent College in Latrobe, PA. Jim is the former director of the faith-based office for the President. I called him the other day. He said: You know, Rick, I have been here—I think he said 6 months. He said: I really like the State, like the area, good people. But my point was to study the State and the more I get the feel of Pennsylvania, I have one question: It is not how did you lose the election, but how did you get elected here twice?

I got elected twice because I had a lot of wonderful people who campaigned hard, worked hard, and believed in me and were able to maybe see past some of the differences with me to give me an opportunity to serve here, and I am eternally grateful.

It is an incredible State. It is one I got to know very well and, obviously, got to know thousands of people. I had the opportunity to serve them. I had the opportunity to be scolded by them, reprimanded by them. But I always understood they were my employers. I work for them. And when you work for somebody, sometimes they are going to tell you they don’t like the job you are doing. And you better act like someone who is an employee instead of an employer or you are not going to find me here in Pennsylvania much longer. Well, I tried to act like an employee. But that doesn’t mean I always had to agree with my employer, and a lot of times I didn’t. And maybe I spoke up too often loudly and too boldly when some of the things my employer didn’t agree with. I hope they respect the fact that it was a heartfelt disagreement and that I did what I did and I said what I said because I believed it was in their best interests, even though they may not have thought so.

I respect the fact that I didn’t win this election and that the people of Pennsylvania made a different decision. I had an opportunity to meet with the president today and to work and get a chance to talk with him about some of the ins and outs of the Senate. He is a good man, and he will do a good job. I hope the people of Pennsylvania will give him and extend to him the same courtesies and trust and cooperation that so many Pennsylvanians who didn’t agree with me on a lot of things but knew that it was important to work together—such as our Governor, Ed Rendell, whom I worked with as manager when I did with any Republican that I know—I hope that Republican officeholders in Pennsylvania treat my opponent with the same kind of respect and the same kind of cooperation that Governor Rendell and I have had for the years.

That brings me to my colleague, Senator Specter. It was very kind of Arlen to come and say a few words. He said that we are not only colleagues in the Senate and, obviously, colleagues from Pennsylvania, but we are friends. I thank him. When I first came to the Senate, I thought it was a very long shot that I would be friends with Arlen Specter. All I had heard about ARLEN SPECTER was how prickly a character he is, how difficult he is, sort of cold and tough. But he is a pretty soft guy. He really is. He gets prickly a character he is, how difficult and be successful for America.

work we have worked on a lot of things together. And even when we disagreed, we understood and respected the disagreement, let it affect us, or certainly our relationship, or if it was important enough to us and important even, all of them have disagreed, hope each and every one and I can see them worked hard to try to bridge those differences. I think that is a good model. I recommend it to my successor. I recommend it to all my colleagues.

This place doesn’t have to be as personally confrontational as it is. I say that as someone who was pretty personally combative when I first came here, and I have had some pretty t drident debates on the floor of the Senate, but I will tell my colleagues that in my heart, it was never personal, it was always about what the issue was about. And it is hard for a lot of people who look at a culture that takes everything personally—people have asked me why I have been so comfortable and at ease with what has happened, and it is because I don’t take it personally. People disagree with one another, and I wanted to take it all of this, and that is fine. They will have an opportunity to take it somewhere else, for now.

But I don’t take it personally. I look at the empty desks of my colleagues on the other side of the aisle, and I look at each and every one and I can see them all sitting there, and I can’t think of one that I would take a disagreement with personally—and I have had disagreements with virtually every one but a few people, and I think people fully without being personally disagreeable. That is how this place works. It is the only way it can work and be successful for America.

In closing, I want to say that I always come back to the word “gratitude.” To God, to my family, to my colleagues, to the wonderful people who have worked for me and with me over the years, to the people of Pennsylvania, to the people of Pennsylvania

It has been a privilege to serve in this place and to have had the opportunity to work with so many wonderful people. I have been so comfortable and at ease with each and every one and I can see them all sitting there, and I can’t think of one that I would take a disagreement with personally—and I have had disagreements with virtually every one but a few people, and I think people fully without being personally disagreeable. That is how this place works. It is the only way it can work and be successful for America.

I want to thank all of the people who have worked for me and with me over the years, to the people of Pennsylvania, to the people of Pennsylvania.
Commissioner. And I am glad that the President's nominee, Dr. Andrew von Eschenbach, has acted to address concerns that have been raised about his nomination. He addressed conflict-of-interest concerns by resigning his position on the board of the National Cancer Institute. The FDA needs to do a better job in coordination with other agencies to emergency contraception without a prescription. This decision should have been made when the FDA's expert panel recommended it, and I was disappointed at the shameless politicizing of some over emergency contraception. With those issues now resolved, I will vote for his nomination.

Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, I rise in strong support of the nomination of Dr. Andrew von Eschenbach to be Commissioner Food and Drugs.

I am pleased that the Senate is considering Dr. von Eschenbach's nomination and I strongly urge my colleagues to support him because the FDA needs a permanent Commissioner to lead the agency that has been criticized for its lack of funding and over-the-counter drugs to report to the FDA any reports of serious problems associated with the use of the products. This is an important consumer protection bill, and it is important that FDA seek the funding to implement the program as Congress intends. I stand ready to work with the agency on this issue, and I want to emphasize that Dr. von Eschenbach and his agency is the need to look out for the "little guy" once he becomes Commissioner. Utah is the home to more than 100 medical device companies, many of them small, and I want Dr. von Eschenbach and his staff to treat these companies fairly, especially when the FDA officials conduct inspections. There have been several complaints from manufacturers about the tactics that the FDA inspectors have taken. I think these complaints have merit. All I ask of Dr. von Eschenbach is that Utah companies be treated fairly by the FDA.

I am deeply concerned about the agency's lack of funding. This has been a growing concern, especially as it affects implementation of DSHEA, the new AEER system, and also the review of generic drug applications. While I realize that FDA has a lot of responsibilities, ranging from ensuring the safety of drugs and medical devices to protecting our country's food supply, it simply isn't fair to continue to pile on these responsibilities without providing the FDA with adequate funding. I assure Dr. von Eschenbach that I will work with him and my colleagues on the Senate Appropriations Committee and the Senate HELP Committee to ensure that the agency is provided with sufficient funding.

I urge my colleagues to vote in favor of Dr. von Eschenbach today so that the agency will finally have a permanent leader who will look out for the best interests of both the American people and an important Federal agency—the FDA.

Mr. JORDAN. Mr. President, I rise before you today to discuss the nomination of Andrew Von Eschenbach as Commissioner of the FDA.

I want to say that I love the FDA. FDA is in my home state of Maryland. It employs over 10,000 of my constituents. It is right down the road from the NIH. I am proud to have all that research at NIH and then have FDA in Maryland standing up for the people who are looking out to make sure that the drugs and the technologies that we use are safe.

Over the years, I have fought for the right facilities, the right resources, and the right leadership at the FDA. Dr. Von Eschenbach is an experienced clinician and researcher and as the former Director of National Cancer Institute, NCI, I presume he is committed to the mission of FDA. However, I have concerns. I have yellow flashing light about his commitment to reform over drug safety, to not politicize science, and to establish a channel where employees can speak truth to power.

It is important. As we consider the nomination of Dr. Von Eschenbach, we must address one of the most important issues facing our Nation: the loss of confidence in our Government's ability to ensure the safety of our food, our drugs, and our medical devices. The FDA has always been the gold standard in maintaining the safety and efficacy of our drugs and medical devices.

Yet today the Agency is being politicized and degraded. The current administration has shown a pattern of placing politics before science; stifling scientists whose findings do not meet political objectives; making decisions based on ideology instead of competency; appointing scientists who do not meet political objectives; making decisions based on politics, rather than sound science.

Nowhere is this more evident than at the FDA. Today, FDA is facing a crisis: There is a crisis of morale. There is a crisis of confidence in the reliability of FDA officials. There is a crisis of whether there are scientists operating under a gag rule, putting politics above science. There is a crisis ensuring the reliability and safety of our drugs.

This summer, Union of Concerned Scientists released its survey of the scientists at the FDA. These scientists are my constituents. They found the morale of trusted and respected employees has been battered by years of weak leadership. This survey is important because it gives a voice to scientists who are too often silent. As we consider the nomination of Andrew Von Eschenbach as Commissioner of the FDA, we must address one of the most important issues facing our Nation: the loss of confidence in our Government's ability to ensure the safety of our food, our drugs, and our medical devices. The FDA has always been the gold standard in maintaining the safety and efficacy of our drugs and medical devices.
Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, we have to make sure the agency itself is going to have the adequate resources that are going to be necessary to protect the public interest. What we are talking about here is making sure they have the best, in terms of science—in terms of science, in terms of drugs and the new breakthroughs. We have the whole range of new medical devices which are out there. The United States is leading the way. We want to make sure they are safe and effective. The agency has important responsibilities in terms of the safety of our food supply. We have given it additional kinds of responsibilities to deal with the challenges of the war on terror.

This agency has enormous responsibilities in terms of the consumers and the safety of all of these. The National Cancer Institute, the FDA, the FDA, and Dr. von Eschenbach. We have the kind of support from the Congress that I think the nominee can bring, and it needs the kind of support from the Congress that will permit it to be the true gold standard for safety and for improving the health of the American people.

As other agencies are set up around the world—in Western Europe and now even in Asia—the place they look is at the FDA, and for very good reason. We want the agency to be the best. It can be the best. With a new leader and hopefully with the new Congress giving the agency the kind of support it should have, we can make sure the health of the American people in these important areas is going to be secure for the future.

Again, I thank my friend and colleague from Wyoming for his persistence and tenacity in making sure where we are this evening. We would not be here if it had not been for his good work on this issue, as in so many others. I thank him, and the American people ought to know that this is an enormously important vote to protect their interests. I hope this nominee is approved quickly.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Wyoming.

Mr. ENZI. Mr. President, I thank the Senator from Massachusetts, Mr. KENNEDY, for his tremendous effort over the last 2 years as we have worked on health issues but particularly as we have worked on the FDA. The Food and Drug Administration is critical to the people of this country, and Senator KENNEDY and I have been asking to have a fully confirmed person heading that up every opportunity we have had. We have been reminding people they did not want to be the one objecting if there happened to be a national safety crisis in food or health. It is just so critical.

People say he is “acting.” When you are the acting person in a position, you really do not have the authority. It means people are looking over your shoulder, seeing what you are doing, making sure you are dotting every “i” and crossing every “t” and following every rule and listening to every agency that has any control over you. Someone who is fully confirmed can be the boss.

A lot of people would say: Why would this highly qualified doctor take this job? I am sure now that he has been through the confirmation process, he is probably thinking: Why would I take that job? I am honored he is not. In fact, earlier today I called him to let him know that the delay in getting a final vote on his confirmation had nothing to do with him, that we had some other logistical process things we were going through, that there would be a final vote today, and that I suspected, in light of the cloture vote, there would not be any problem. I am pleased that it still looks that way. I am anxious to call him and let him know he is fully confirmed as a commissioner and he can now overwhelming start to work on some of the other vision things he has in mind, and people will know he has the full authority to do that.

I do want to remind people that the FDA’s mission is broad. It regulates food, it regulates drugs, it regulates biologics—and I wish I had time to explain all of what that really means. Medical devices is one. You probably didn’t know that he handles animal feed, and that is because animals are ingested and could cause a problem, too. He is also in charge of cosmetics. For every dollar Americans spend, this agency regulates 22 cents worth of products.

As science progresses, the challenges to regulation will grow. The FDA regulates a host of new products that blur the FDA’s traditional boundaries, and that is one of the reasons the Senator from Massachusetts and I have been working on a FDA reform bill for a year and a half. We have now held hearings on that.

It is a very bipartisan bill. We have had some outstanding comments. There is a possibility to make the agency better, and we are going to continue to work on that so that all the new innovations that require a nimble and responsive agency to regulate them, and resources to match, will be in place and that we can do the kind of job he needs to do.

This is such a critical role in our Nation’s public health, it is such an important agency. I do ask for people to give him a resounding vote in this confirmation.

Again, I thank Senator KENNEDY, who is the ranking member on the committee and soon to be the chairman of the Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions Committee, for his hard work and support during the process. I think it is time to bring this process to a close so we can get him confirmed as quickly as possible and have a true, fully confirmed Commissioner of Food and Drug.

I thank Dr. von Eschenbach for his patience with our process and for the work he has done in spite of the process. I look forward to getting to see the kind of job he will do as a fully confirmed physician. I ask for your vote in support of him.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The majority leader.

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, in a couple of minutes we are going to turn to a very important vote, a vote that to me is significant because it touches every single American in some shape or form. Much has been said over the course of today about the scope of the FDA, the importance of having an FDA Commissioner, a permanent FDA Commissioner, and we will realize that shortly.

Earlier this year we celebrated the 100th anniversary of the Food and Drug Administration, which is an administration that I have used professionally in every previous profession in everything from the thousands of prescriptions I have written, to investigational drugs, to left ventricular devices, to lasers and artificial hearts. I have seen firsthand how important it is to have an appropriate regulatory agency there. The Food and Drug Administration, as we all know, as we have said this afternoon, is America’s first scientific regulatory agency. While the agency has adapted and changed with the times, it has remained true to its purpose of protecting interests of everyone who is listening to me, the American consumer.

In a few minutes we will vote on the nomination of a very good friend, Dr. Eschenbach, to the position of Commissioner of the Food and Drug Administration.

I have known Dr. Eschenbach, again professionally, and I have had mutual patients with him. And he has assisted in many ways as we have looked at appropriate therapy for individuals from across the country. He is currently serving as Acting Commissioner. I have interacted with him in that regard. He has demonstrated a capacity to lead and to administer in an exceptional way the Food and Drug Administration with sensitive issues on a daily basis. It is important that we have a permanent person in this position, and he is the ideal person, the ideal candidate to do just that.

In both his professional and personal life, Dr. Eschenbach has experience: as a cancer survivor, as Director of the National Cancer Institute, literally a nationally renowned urologic surgeon and oncologist, which all attest to the superlative qualifications to handle that challenging job, as we all know, as FDA Commissioner.

I hope colleagues will join me in supporting Dr. Eschenbach’s nomination.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. All time has expired.

The question is: Will the Senate advise and consent to the nomination of Andrew von Eschenbach, of Texas, to be Commissioner of Food and Drugs, Department of Health and Human Services?

Mr. ENZI. Mr. President, I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There is a sufficient second.

The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk called the roll.

Mr. McCONNELL. The following Senators were necessarily absent: the Senator from Montana (Mr. BURNS), the Senator from South Carolina (Mr. GRAHAM), the Senator from Utah (Mr. HATCH), the Senator from Arizona (Mr. MCCAIN), and the Senator from Virginia (Mr. WARNER).

Further, if present and voting, the Senator from Utah (Mr. HATCH) would have voted in the affirmative.

Mr. DURBIN. I announce that the Senator from Delaware (Mr. BIDEN), the Senator from Connecticut (Mr. DODD), the Senator from Vermont (Mr. JEFFORDS), and the Senator from Nevada (Mr. REID) are present.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there any other Senators in the Chamber desiring to vote?

IRAQ

Mr. SMITH. Mr. President, I know it is probably appropriate to speak of our colleagues, and I will do that on the record. I rise tonight, however, to speak about a subject heavy on my mind. It is the subject of the war in Iraq.

I have never worn the uniform of my country. I am not a soldier or a veteran. I regret that fact. It is one of the regrets of my life. But I am a student of history, particularly military history, and it is that perspective which I brought to the Senate 10 years ago as a newly elected Member of this Chamber.

When we came to the vote on Iraq, it was an issue of great moment for me. No issue is more difficult to vote on than war and peace, because it involves the lives of our young men and women. It involves the expenditure of our treasure, putting on the line the prestige of our country. It is not a vote taken lightly. I have tried to be a good soldier in this Chamber. I have tried to support our President, believing at the time of our vote on war in Iraq that we had been given good intelligence and knowing that Saddam Hussein was a menace to the world, a brutal dictator, a tyrant by any standard, and one who threatened our country in many different ways, through the financing and fomenting of terrorism.

For those reasons and believing that we would find weapons of mass destruction, I voted aye.

I have been rather silent on this question ever since. I have been rather quiet because, when I was visiting Oregon talking about the Kurdish war in the Kurdish area, the soldiers said to me: Senator, don’t tell me you support the troops and not our mission. That gave me pause. But since that time, there have been 2,899 American casualties. There have been over 22,000 American men and women wounded. There has been an expenditure of $290 billion a figure that approaches the expenditure we will have every year on an issue as important as Medicare. We have paid a price in blood and treasure that is beyond our capacity and important. Now all of those memories seem much like ashes to me.

The Iraq Study Group has given us some ideas. I don’t know if they are good or not. It does seem to me that it is a recipe for retreat. It is not cut and run. I think it is much worse. I don’t know that that is any more honorable than cutting and running, because cutting and walking involves greater expenditure of our treasure, greater loss of American lives.

Many things have been attributed to George Bush. I have heard him on the floor blame for every ill, even the weather. But I do not believe him to be a liar. I do not believe him to be a traitor, nor do I believe all the bravado and the statements and the accusations made against him. I believe him to be a very idealistic man. I believe him to have a stubborn backbone. He is not guilty of perfidy, but I do believe he is guilty of believing bad intelligence and giving us the same.

I can’t tell you how devastated I was to learn that in fact we were not going to find weapons of mass destruction. But I do remember that if we had looked at the map of the Middle East, Iraq is a European creation. At the Treaty of Versailles, the victorious powers put together Kurdish, Sunni, and Shia tribes that had been killing each other for time immemorial. I would like to think there is an Iraqi identity. I would like to remember that the purple fingers raised high. But we cannot not demand democracy for Iraq more than they want it for themselves. And what I find now is that our tactics there have failed.

Again, I am not a soldier, but I do know something about military history. And what that tells me is when you are engaged in a war of insurgency, you can’t clear and leave. With few exceptions, throughout Iraq that is what
The mission was accomplished in the war on terror when President Bush stood in front of Congress and announced, "Mission accomplished." But… It was not accurate, but that is history. I would have never voted for this conflict had I reason to believe that the intelligence we had was not accurate. It was not accurate, but that is history.

This Christmas, we might alter our message preached peace, tolerance, and love for all people. I am at a crossroads as a Christian. I am at a crossroads as a Democrat. I am at a crossroads as a senator. I suppose if the President is guilty of one other thing, I find it also in the words of Winston Churchill. He said:

"After the First World War, let us learn our lessons. Never, never, believe that any war will be smooth and easy or that anyone who embarks on this strange voyage can measure the tides and the hurricanes. The statesman who yields to war fever must realize that once the signal is given, he is no longer the master of policy but the slave of unforeseeable events. That is a lesson we are learning again. I am afraid, rather than leveling with the American people and saying this was going to be a decade-long conflict, the mentions of that kind of unpeaceful setting, proudly and bravely wearing the uniforms of this country, continues to be a relentless march of consumerism to find the true spirit of Christmas. But, thankfully, it is still present amid all the bright lights and cheery background music. One can see it in the piles of canned goods donated to food banks. One can see it in the response to the "angel trees." One can see it in the answer the Christmas wishes of children in their communities. One can hear it in the Christmas choirs that put on magnificent performances. "At Christmas play and make good cheer, for Christmas comes but once a year." So wrote Thomas Tusser, who lived from 1524 to 1580, demonstrating that some good things have changed very little over the years.

For the birth of Jesus, the angels sang, and for Him in this cold season, churches across the Nation will be filled with joyous music. The churches of West Virginia are always filled with sweet traditional music, but at Christmastime the choirs are especially inspired. There are few things more uplifting than coming out of an evening church service, buoyed up by sweet traditional music, and seeing the stars of heaven sparkling like diamonds across the velvet dark sky. All of the carols that we learned as children in church, or around the family piano, sing in our heads, don’t they? The three kings following the "yonder star," the stars shining brightly over the holy child, the manger in Bethlehem, and the holy mother and child on that silent night. Each year, these loving memories surface from the deep well of our childhood, each time bringing with them fond memories of happy days and family members no longer with us but still very dear to our hearts.

This year, many families will look to the angel trees to know that Government offices and programs, and they postpone any new starts or major changes to programs until the regular authorizing and appropriation bills are acted upon. That is unfortunate. However, we may be grateful this Christmas that we live in a nation in which changes in Government may take place in a peaceful fashion in open elections. We may also be grateful that we live in a nation in which the voice of the people can be expressed freely, eloquently, and peacefully. Vox populi, vox diae. This Christmas, we might alter our prayers for those around the world who do not enjoy these same great blessings.

Christmas time is a time of peace and comfort, as Christians do, the birth of Jesus. The world-transforming message preached peace, tolerance, kindness, and love for all people. I am not quite sure where the message to shop, spend, and wrap presents came from, for it is surely not in the Bible, nor in the teachings of Jesus. These days, it takes effort to carve out enough time and energy from the ceaseless march of consumerism to find the true spirit of Christmas. But, thankful...
Mr. President, I wish everyone in our Nation and everyone in our Nation’s service among the globe a beautiful and peaceful Christmas season. Wherever the demands of the Nation may send our hearts and in your memories you can hear the music and relive the family traditions that make Christmas so very, very special.

As this year closes and a new year dawns, we are filled with kind thoughts and bold resolutions. For some, it would be a time also filled with a certain buyer’s remorse, as the Christmas bills come due. For others, New Year’s resolutions will lead them into gymnasiums in fresh attempts to exercise and diet and myriad other problems. Our resolve must last longer than most introductory gymnasium memberships if we are to set our national house in order.

In January, Lord willing, I will begin my ninth term and as a United States Senator from the beautiful State of West Virginia, whose motto is “Mountain-eers are always free.” I have been here long enough to know that we have done enough to make Christmas so very, very special.

The new Congress must also be filled with resolve—resolve to respond to the clear messages sent by the people of the United States. We will have much work to do if we are to successfully deal with the situation in the Middle East, the mounting national deficit at home, the soaring costs of health care, and myriad other problems. Our resolve must last longer than most introductory gymnasium memberships if we are to set our national house in order.

In January, Lord willing, I will begin my ninth term and as a United States Senator from the beautiful State of West Virginia, whose motto is “Mountain-eers are always free.” I have been here long enough to know that we have done enough to make Christmas so very, very special.

of the football team.’’ One of Danny’s former teammates Mike Banyasz also recalled how helpful he was to all his teammates. “He was starting center and I was backup center,” he said.

By the third game, he moved to tight end, and I became starting center. He helped me out a lot. He was a big reason I became the starter.

Clearly, Danny believed in the value of teamwork. His willingness to always help others be their best made him a truly special soldier.

It was also in high school, Mr. President, that Danny met his future wife Kassie for whom he cared deeply. While Danny was in Iraq, Kassie waited anxiously for him at home; she missed her husband terribly.

Kassie gave birth to their son, Daniel A. Shepherd, while Danny was deployed in Iraq. Daniel was born on St. Patrick’s Day and according to family members and friends, looks just like his father. Danny was scheduled to return on the same day his family did and he was looking forward to meeting his son for the first time. When Danny died, his son was only six months old.

Recognized for his unrelenting drive, Danny simply had a passion for public service. He participated in law enforcement classes at Lorain County Joint Vocational School and planned on contributing to the safety of his community by becoming a police officer upon his return from Iraq. And according to his grandmother Celia, “Danny understood the value of education and planned on attending college upon his return.”

Friends and family members were inspired by Danny’s motivation and positive attitude. He went about his busy and stressful days with an infectious smile on his face. Danny’s former teammate Chris Horn said:

Danny’s daily schedule was always hectic, yet I never heard him gripe or complain.

Indeed, Danny’s optimism shined through to his peers as he worked to reach his goals. According to Chris, Danny “seemed like he knew what he wanted to do from the get-go. He said he wanted to be in the military and then when he got out, he wanted to become a cop.”

Danny’s family and friends are frequently reminded of his character, reliability, and willingness to help others. Roger Pace—the minister at Broadview Road Church who delivered Danny’s eulogy—said that “the Army calls such people leaders, regardless of rank.” Indeed, Danny Shepherd epitomizes the definition of leadership.

Sgt. Andrew Ritchie of New York—who had served in an earlier deployment with Danny—reiterated this characteristic. This is what he said:

Shepherd was one of the best people I ever had the chance to meet and serve with in the Army. . . . He always did [his job] to the best of his ability. He would always stop to help somebody else out when they needed it. All I can really say is he was a great person.

Danny will leave a lasting impact on everyone he met. His former next door neighbor, Jennifer, reflected upon the sadness she felt when she heard of his death. She wrote the following on an Internet tribute webpage:

So much pain rushed through me all at once because I knew that I would never get to see ‘the boy next door’ again. The pain did not last long though because I soon realized that though Danny’s physical presence will no longer be there, his love and memories will forever falter.

Mr. President, Danny Shepherd’s heroic actions and service to our country will be honored and remembered long after his death. His optimism will continue to inspire those who knew and loved him.

My wife Fran and I continue to keep Danny’s family—his wife Kassie, their son Daniel, and Danny’s parents Karen and Daniel—in our thoughts and prayers.

PRIVATE FIRST CLASS ADAM R. SHEPHERD

Mr. President, I rise today to pay tribute to Army PFC Adam R. Shepherd from Somerville, OH. On January 17, 2006, Adam died in Iraq from an illness. He was serving with the 2nd Battalion, 502nd Infantry Regiment, 2nd Brigade Combat Team, 101st Airborne Division, based out of Fort Campbell, KY. Adam was 21 years old.

Adam was the kind of person who was always looking for a way to make someone laugh, even when they wanted to cry. He was one of the BEST’ friends that anyone could ever have the privilege of growing up next door to. Adam is not gone—he lives on in all of our memories, and with a guy like him . . . he will definitely not be forgotten.

Adam was a loving son and brother. His family dearly misses him. As his mother Susan said, “I have four children—four boys—and a quarter of my heart is gone.”

Adam’s Aunt Ruth wrote the following about her nephew:

Today is Valentine’s Day—a time to remember the ones who you love. I love Adam. I always will. He brings a smile to my face everyday when I think of him. He was such a sweet boy who turned into a fine young man. My heart goes out to his mother, who will always be my friend and sister. . . . I recall the saying, ‘It matters not how much we learn, but how much we are loved.’ And Adam was so very loved—till we meet again, Adam.

Adam will always be remembered for his warm, beaming smile. From the day he was born, as his Aunt Rose remembers that his smile just stood out—that it was truly unforgettable.

Adam was proud that he fulfilled his dream of becoming a soldier and serving our Nation. He was brave and dedicated. His service to our country has earned him several awards, including the Army Good Conduct Medal, the Army Service Ribbon, the Combat Infantryman Badge, the Global War on Terrorism Expeditionary Medal, the Global War on Terrorism Service Medal, and the National Defense Medal.

When I think of young men like Adam, I am reminded of the words of President John F. Kennedy. This is what he said:

Let every nation know, whether it wishes us well or ill, that we shall pay any price, bear any burden, meet any hardship, support any friend, oppose any foe, to assure the survival and the success of liberty.

Without question, Adam served his country bravely to help ensure the success of liberty. He was a man of courage and loyalty, devoted to his family, his fellow soldiers, and his country. But what’s more, Adam served cheerfully, and with a smile. Army PFC Adam Shepherd will never be forgotten.

My wife Fran and I continue to keep Adam’s friends and family in our thoughts and prayers.
LANCE CORPORAL DANIEL NATHAN DEYARMIN

Mr. President, I rise today to remember and honor a fellow Ohioan—Marine LCpl Daniel Nathan Deyarmin, Jr., from Tallmadge. Lance Corporal Deyarmin was killed on August 1, 2005, during combat operations in Iraq. Just two days before his death, he celebrated his 22nd birthday. He is survived by his parents Edie and Daniel Deyarmin Sr., and by his sister Erica.

To his family, Lance Corporal Deyarmin was known simply as “Nate.” Born in Tallmadge, he lived there his whole life and loved to dress in cowboy outfits and tinker with old cars. Kind-hearted and easy-going, he was also a good student, te. A prankster. Once, after cleaning his room under orders, he then painted the following words on the ceiling—“I got even!”

Nate’s mother remembers that he could make anything fun. Even when he was in trouble, his parents simply could not stay mad at him. It would never be long until they were all laughing together.

His friends recall that Nate was friendly to everyone he met. He was simply one of the guys, whether they were hunting, playing football or soccer, wrestling, or working on stock cars. Nate graduated in 2002 from Tallmadge High School, where he was a member of the football team.

Don Duffy was his school counselor for four years at Tallmadge High and remembers talking with the young Nate about his interest in the military. He describes Nate as “soft-spoken [and] polite, a go-to guy who was well-liked by his fellow classmates.

Nate enlisted in the Marines in January 2003, one of five members of his unit who graduated from the Tallmadge public schools. The group spoke to the students at Tallmadge Middle School before shipping to Iraq in January 2005. “They felt very strongly about what they were doing,” Tallmadge teacher Carol Arbour said. “We prayed they would be coming home together.”

In Iraq, Nate became part of a special sniper unit. His mother remembers how important his fellow Marines were to him. “He loved being with the snipers,” she said. “They worked together and they meshed. They covered each other’s butts.”

Nate’s sister, Erica, also remembers his commitment to being a Marine. “He believed in his country,” she said. “He loved being there.”

During phone calls home, Nate’s family had a rule that nothing negative could ever be said during their phone conversations. His parents knew that being a sniper was a difficult job, and that they had to stay focused and alert at all times—even if he had gone without sleep for hours on end.

Nate was enthusiastic about many things in life, but cars were his passion. He would help friends whose cars broke down in the middle of the night and he loved to restore old cars. “That was his favorite thing to do,” Nate’s sister recalls.

Family friend Ray Kozlowski described Nate as a “horsepower enthusiast.” With his father, he would work on old cars in the garage, where they kept a dozen cars in various states of disrepair. And Nate’s friend, Eddie Papp, remembers how focused he was with cars: “Every time we would be working on something, and I would want to go to bed and get some sleep, but Nate would not let me,” Eddie said. “He would make me push myself to go a little longer.”

During Nate’s procession, his family drove some of his favorite cars. One of them was a 1985 Monte Carlo—a car that literally had Nate’s teething marks in the dashboard. Nate’s friend Charlie Harner has painted the words “In Loving Memory” on the deck lid of his own stock car. All of his races are dedicated to Nate.

Nate was a man who was devoted to his country, to his marines, and to his family and friends. While serving in Iraq, he kept in contact with his family on the phone. Although the conversations were often emotional, he said he was proud of serving to make the country safe.

Nate’s mother remembers that her son was upbeat when he called on his 22nd birthday. “He was happy,” she said. “He was always happy.”

Nate’s death was felt by the entire Tallmadge community. He was honored by Tallmadge High School during its first football game of the 2005 season, and the sixth graders that Nate talked to at Tallmadge Middle School will always remember the day that they heard a true hero speak.

Nate was one of six men from his sniper unit to be killed on August 1, 2005. SGT Brian Casagrande served with these men. This is what he said about Nate:

Daniel ‘Nate’ Deyarmin came to us . . . from Weapons Company. He brought with him a lot of enthusiasm and spirit. His goofy exterior, which earned him the usual nicknames, contained the soul of a gentle, thoughtful man. He was always willing to undertake any task set before him, and did so without complaint or hesitation. He could be found during his time off reading some kind of ‘motorhead’ magazine, and he was always talking specs about vehicles. Nate’s smile will be missed.

Nate’s memory continues to inspire others. Working together with family friend Ray Kozlowski, Nate’s mother has organized a fundraiser in her son’s name to benefit veterans with disabilities. Fittingly, the fundraiser is based around what Nate loved most—horsepower.

On October 2, 2005, the LCpl Daniel “Nate” Deyarmin Memorial Benefit Run drew 1,500 motorcycles and 250 cars, successfully raising more than $17,000 for the veterans. Another event was held this past summer. In the past 2 years, Nate’s mom has helped to raise over $35,000 for veterans with disabilities.

The life and heroism of Nathan Deyarmin will never be forgotten. He was a fine man with a compassion for life and a dedication to his family, friends, community, and country. As his mother said, “If you truly knew Nathan, you loved him.”

I would like to conclude with words that Nate, himself, wrote in the Akron Beacon Journal. This article was published on July 4th, 2005, and Nate wrote about being away from loved ones over the holiday, and what it meant to be defending his country with his fellow marines instead. These were his words:

[The free will to be over here and help each other is one of the hardest things in one’s life and still being able to put forth our best effort to make the best of every situation we encounter. That’s what we as Americans do. We make the best of everything.]

My wife Fran and I continue to keep LCpl Nathan Deyarmin’s family in our thoughts and prayers.

Friend, Steve Young, remembers that Joe would tell say that “he was not only serving his country, but he was serving us. He would tell us, ‘I am going so you don’t have to.’”

In addition to his strong sense of duty, Joe also had a remarkable sense of humor. To his friends, he was always something of a prankster. Jacob Geopfert particularly remembers one night when they were all at his family’s lake house.

Without warning, their friend Nick sneaked in the return times in a row. Joe looked at him and yelled, “I don’t get allergies, I give them.” He then pushed Nick—fully clothed—into the lake.

“That was Joe,” Nick remembers.

“That’s how he was.”

While serving abroad in Iraq, Joe became pen pals for a class of second graders at Fishcreek Elementary School in Stow. Teacher Tracy Piatt remembers how much corresponding with the young Marine in Iraq meant to her class. They would make birthday cards and throw parties in his honor, singing “Happy Birthday” to his picture that hung on their wall. They sent him care packages, and tracked his location in Iraq on a map.

After his first tour ended, Joe visited the class, thanking them for their thoughtful letters. As he walked to the front of the room, they stopped and stared at him with awe and admiration. Joe talked to the class about being an American and being a marine. He spoke of the importance of respect, loyalty, faith, and trust. And, he told them that their packages were one of his best motivations in Iraq, and that he would sit there reading their letters for hours.

The students in Tracy Piatt’s class will miss the young man who became their marine. “He was so proud of what he was doing,” said Tracy tearfully remember. “You could tell he cared about making Iraq a better place for the people there.”

Joe was a good kid, a good young man. He just wanted to be good for people. I wish I knew how many people cared about him. He touched so many lives that he didn’t even know about.

Tracy believes that having corresponded with Joe will make her students grow up to be better adults. I don’t think there is anyone who could disagree with that.

Nearly 1,000 people gathered inside the Holy Family Church to pay their final respects to Joe. Standing at the front of the church were the boys and girls from Fishcreek Elementary. Their teacher Tracy spoke at the funeral.

This is what she said:

As we look into the faces of these boys and girls, you’re looking at Joe Tomci. For he is in their hearts, and they will carry him forever.

Also speaking at his funeral, Reverend Paul Rising remembered Joe as a true American hero. He said:

He fits the image of a classic hero. He’s tall, good-looking, and strong. He wanted to be a Marine since he was a small child, and he went into the Marines as early as he could.

Though Joe was nearing the end of his enlistment, his father believes that his son was destined for a bright career in the military. Joe had talked about the possibility of becoming a drill instructor, feeling that his combat experience in Iraq would help him make better Marines out of new recruits. And it was Joe’s nature to assume leadership positions. As his father said, “In a sense, he’d be helping others. That was kind of his life’s mission.”

Joe made everyone who knew him proud. His mother remembers how important being a Marine was to Joe. “He always dreamed of being a Marine,” she said. “He believed his service was a benefit to the world.”

This sentiment is one we hear over and over again when people talk about Joe’s life. He was a caring man, someone who genuinely loved life and had great compassion for others. His dedication to his friends, family, community, and country was unmatched. Joe is a model of what we all hope our children will become.

My wife Fran and I continue to keep his family in our thoughts and prayers.

SERGEANT GARY ANDREW ECKERT

Mr. President, I rise today to pay tribute to Army SGT Gary Andrew Eckert, from Sylvania, OH. On May 8, 2005, Sergeant Eckert died in Iraq when an improvised explosive device detonated near his military vehicle. He leaves behind his wife Tiffany, their daughter Madalyn, and twin sons Mason and Miles. Sergeant Eckert is also survived by his mother Deborah, his father and stepmother Gary and Cathy, his brother Ryan, and his sisters Denise, Crystal, Jessica, Stephanie, and Alexandria. Mr. President, Sergeant Eckert was 24 years old.

Family and friends referred to Gary as Andy, short for his middle name Andrew. They will remember Andy most for his courage, compassion, and dedication to his family. He was loved by all.

Andy graduated from Anthony Wayne High School in 2000, where he played on the basketball team during his freshman and sophomore years. Andy was a gifted athlete, someone for whom sports came easily. He was a huge University of Michigan fan, but would still spend afternoons cheering on The Ohio State University Buckeyes with his family.

That must have been an interesting time, particularly when Ohio played Michigan.

And Andy was attending Owens Community College when his Army Reserves unit was called to active duty in February 2003. Without question, Andy was a dedicated soldier. When he died, he was serving his second deployment in Iraq. During his first deployment, he had sustained injuries for which he received the Purple Heart. He was a courageous young man—a true hero.

During Andy’s funeral, BG Michael Beasley commented upon Andy’s second deployment to Iraq. Andy didn’t want to return, but BG Beasley reflected upon why. This is what he said:

Andy didn’t have to go back to war. He came back a Purple Heart recipient . . . He wanted to go back to serve our Nation, with our soldiers.

Brigadier General Beasley also said that Andy “was a wonderful soldier and a brilliant patriot. He was someone who taught us a whole lot about wearing a uniform, about being a father, about being a husband, and about being an American.”

Bret Howland was a good family friend and a father figure to Andy. He said the following about Andy’s decision to return to Iraq:

As we look into the faces of these boys and girls from Fishcreek Elementary, I just want to say that he will truly be missed. I was with friends with Andy on a short time, but he really touched my life. He was thoughtful, caring and just a great person all around. I pray that his family will be able to remember Andy through their memories and that his precious babies will understand what a special daddy they had for the short amount of time he was on this earth. I would like to thank him for serving and protecting our country above and beyond what was expected of him. I am so proud to have known him. I will be praying for his family.

Another of Andy’s friends, Tony Stephens, wrote that he wears a Hero Bracelet to honor his friend. This is what he wrote:

I cherish the moments I get to spend with people explaining the meaning behind my Hero Bracelet memorializing the life of Andy. I proudly wear Andy’s bracelet each and every day as a constant reminder to myself and everyone around me of the sacrifices made by Andy and his family, as well as those like him, who stand in harms way so that each of us may enjoy (the) freedom and liberties we have. I will always keep Tiphany, Myloe, Marlee, and all of Andy's family in my thoughts and prayers and pray that time will help to heal the feeling of loss you have all endured. Andy is still a hero and always will be.

Andy is also memorialized on the Wall of Heroes at Fort Snelling in Minnesota. The memorial features the etched faces of Army Reserve soldiers who have fallen while serving their country in Iraq. Andy's wife attended the unveiling of the memorial. During the occasion, she said that "my husband will always be honored. Every day I will honor him."

Andy's death has affected his entire community. Hundreds of mourners attended his memorial service to pay their respects. Family members carried Gerber daisies, a special flower to Andy and his wife, to place on his coffin. Many attendees also wore pink, because that had been Andy and Tiphany's color. Family friend Jackie Kild-Lutzmann said the following about Andy: "He was the only guy who could wear pink and still looked macho. He was a very, very special young man."

At the funeral, numerous photographs from Andy's life were on display, and a particularly touching one adorned the front cover of the program. In it, Andy bends carefully over his daughter, Marlee, and together they are walking off into the distance. It is a beautiful picture.

During the service, Andy's wife reflected upon the love she and Andy had shared. This is what she said:

'I was going to write a letter, but I couldn't find the words. But, Andy taught me that actions speak louder than words. The biggest action he ever showed me was love. Because God gave Andy to me, I know what it is to be cherished and loved."

Andy Eckert was a courageous young man—a model husband, father, son, and brother. He will always be remembered.

'My wife Fran and I continue to keep his family and friends in our thoughts and prayers.'

PRIVATE FIRST CLASS NICOLAS E. MESSMER

Mr. President, I rise today to pay tribute to Army PFC Nicolas E. Messmer from Gahanna, OH, who was killed when an explosive device detonated near a military vehicle in Iraq on May 8, 2005. He was just 20 years old.

He is survived by his parents Richard and Shirley Messmer, his four brothers Richard, Joseph, Dustin, and Zachary, his grandparents Ruth Ann Messmer, Martha and Clyde Lacey, and Donald Divers, and his high school sweetheart, to whom he was engaged to be married, Mary Murphy.

Nick—as family and friends called him—grew up in a very close and loving family. He was the middle child of five and the only boy of 7. Needless to say, he was extremely family-oriented—and someone with whom it was easy to get along. As his brother Joe said, "Nick was [just] an awesome person. He was the nicest, friendliest, happiest kid you could ever know. He wouldn't hurt a fly."

Nick graduated from Gahanna Lincoln High School in 2003 and immediately joined the Army that summer. He was proud of what he wanted to do—and that was to serve. As his brother, Joe, said, "He just went over there in [Iraq] to defend his country."

And Nick's father said, "Nick was the kind of soldier who makes this country great. He was just a great kid."

Nancy Dawson, Nick's high school guidance counselor, said she wasn't surprised when Nick joined the Army. She said the following in remembrance of Nick: "I hope they remember his heart, his enthusiasm for life, and just the neat kid that he was."

People were just drawn to Nick. They loved his warm and friendly personality. He was just an endearing, easy guy. My Lincoln High, his death came as a great shock, and there was a moment of silence in his memory.

Nick had many friends who will miss him dearly. Internet tribute web pages were created. I gathered messages from those whose lives he impacted. One of his friends, Kendra Hardrick, wrote the following:

'Nick, I just wanted to tell you that I miss you and all the crazy times we had together when we were able to speak out. I miss the old group. I just wanted to say that you're my hero and always will be. There is not a day that goes by that I don't think of you. I wish you could be here, and we all miss you."

While Nick had many, many friends, the one person dearest to him was his fiancée Mary. She remembers Nick as someone who was "wonderful, funny, generous and always smiling." She said that he was very brave. I am very proud of him. His family loved him. We all did.

Mary remembers the last time she talked with Nick and how excited he was about serving his country. This, of course, is simply the kind of person Nick was—always optimistic, always looking to the future.

'We had so many plans," Mary recalls. She remembers how Nick sometimes wanted to buy a motorcycle, and sometimes wanted to buy a truck. "He wanted to be a firefighter," she said. "He wanted to be a cop. He wanted to have his own lawn-care service. He wanted to be so many things." Although we don't know what else in life he would have done, this much is certain—Nick Messmer was a brave and dedicated Marine, who gave his all in service to his country.

Those who knew Nick will never forget him. Upon his death, hundreds of friends, neighbors, and family members gathered at a memorial ceremony to pay their respects. From Gahanna Lincoln High School, alone, hundreds of students formed a line that wrapped all the way around the school, symbolizing a wall of support for Nick and his family.

On an Internet tribute Web site, Nick's old health teacher from Gahanna Lincoln, Linda Shannon, wrote her sentiments about Nick. This is what she wrote:

'To the Messmer Family—I want to express my deepest sympathy to your family on the loss of your son. We hope that the expression of your love and respect from the students at the high school as they lined the school's perimeter will, in some way, help you know that Nick's service to this country is greatly appreciated.'

Nick's favorite color was orange. In his memory, utility poles along the streets were decorated with orange bows and his brothers placed orange roses on his casket. During calling hours, his family members wore orange ties.

At his funeral, Nick's pastor, Reverend Paul A. Noble, held back tears as he remembered the young man who gave his life for a cause he believed in. In the midst of sadness, he said, "we are also filled with pride and thanksgiving."

Nick will never be forgotten by the community in which he lived and went to school. Just last month, students at St. Matthew School in Gahanna honored Nick—along with another fallen Marine from Ohio, LCpl Ryan E. Miller. The school installed a "peace pole" and held a memorial prayer service. Both Marines were St. Matthew church parishioners. The pole has the word “peace” inscribed on it in English, Spanish, Latin, Italian, German, and French. According to Principal Frances Nishimak, there are 2,000 such poles throughout the world.

Brianna Ruth is an 8th grader at St. Matthew. Reflecting upon the meaning of the peace pole, she said that "it will be really nice for Nick and Ryan. Every time you drive by, you can remember them and what they did for our country." I would like to conclude my remarks with a message left for Nick by his friend Nick Stephenson. He wrote the following to his friend:

'There will never be enough that I could say, no matter how hard I try to describe it, but it’s like you’re now a missing link in my life. A part of me has truly left with you, Nick. Although you have so honorably departed from us to walk this cold world alone, I have gained so much from your passing. I remind myself daily of your awesome character and strive to look at life as you did—with total satisfaction of living freely with a courageous attitude toward life. I honestly believe that you not only live on in my heart, but your countrymen’s hearts, as well. I salute you Nicholas E. Messmer, and look forward to that one fine day when I will see you again. My prayers are with you, Nick."

My wife Fran and I continue to keep the family of Army PFC Nicolas Messmer in our thoughts and in our prayers.

PRIVATE CORPORAL DANIEL FREEMAN

Mr. President, I rise today to pay tribute to an outstanding Ohioan—Army Cpl Daniel Freeman from Cincinnati. He was killed in a helicopter
As a member of the Red Devils, Daniel served four months in Iraq before beginning his service in Afghanistan. Daniel’s passion and enthusiasm for his work translated into much success. Jack Kilbride, commander of the battalion, recalls that “no matter how mundane, how menial, or how difficult the task, Corporal Freeman accomplished it with a smile.”

Daniel Freeman was selfless. He volunteered to replace one of the soldiers who was supposed to be aboard that helicopter on the day that he died. Daniel’s comrade had been working without sleep and needed relief. Daniel was there to give it. This is simply what he had always done.

Friends and family remember Daniel and celebrate his life. Staff members at Sycamore High wore American flag ties and U.S. Army lanyards to remember Daniel. When he died, school officials arranged for the flat to half staff for Daniel, and the school observed a moment of silence before classes began. Daniel’s picture is still displayed in a case that honors former students serving in the military. Daniel’s former English teacher, Liz Gonda, captured the sentiments of so many, saying simply, “He knew what he wanted to do in life. He made a difference in the world by his presence and will be greatly missed.”

Funeral services were held on April 20, 2005, in Cincinnati. Shiva was observed in his family’s home. Daniel’s mother planned on taking her son’s ashes to Israel where they would be returned to the earth for all time. Additionally, a memorial fund has been set up in Daniel’s name, as his family has said, “we want to celebrate his life more than mourn it.”

Daniel’s mother was kind enough to share with me one of her email exchanges with her son as he arrived in Afghanistan in February. In his email, Daniel talked about some of the lessons he had learned in the Army and how much he had grown. This is what he wrote:

“I’ve learned that my mind can be my [ally] as well as my enemy, and I’m constantly fighting it . . . you’ll be amazed at how your mind will set limits, but how far your body will go.

Daniel goes on to explain to his mom his reasons for serving:“We don’t fight for glory, we fight for those men, women, who have spent countless less hours with, and suffered with. I fight for them, for their wives, for their parents. My biggest fear is not my death, it’s the death of those whose parents and wives I’ll have to see suffer. That’s why I fight, that’s what makes me a soldier, that’s why I don’t question why I go to war. I accept it, clear my head, and keep priorities straight. I want you to know that I love you and will see you in a year from now.

Daniel Freeman was a very insightful, thoughtful young man. He understood the simple, but powerful truths of love and service to others. He will never be forgotten.

My wife Fran and I keep all of Daniel’s family and friends in our prayers.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. (Mr. ALLEN.) The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. DeWINE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Ohio is recognized.

Mr. DeWINE. I thank the Chair. And I thank the Chair for his patience.

SERGEANT JUSTIN HOFFMAN

Mr. President, I rise this evening to pay tribute to a fellow Ohioan—Marine Sgt Justin Hoffman from Delaware. On August 3, 2005, Sergeant Hoffman died when a roadside bomb detonated under his military vehicle in Iraq. He was serving with Lima Company, 3rd Battalion, 25th Marine Regiment. Sergeant Hoffman leaves his father Robert, mother and step-father Carole andChuck and younger brothers Tyler and Travis. Justin was 27 year old at the time of his death.

Growing up, Justin’s father remembers that his son came to love motorcycles, cars, and anything competitive. He was smart, funny, and dedicated. His friends and loved ones remember that he had one of the biggest hearts they had ever known. His smile and laughter will always be remembered. He was fun loving, but would also jump to be there for anyone who needed him. Anyone who knew Justin remembers that he loved to talk about pretty much anything—whether it was politics, cars, women, or his personal dedication to serving his country. And that is something that everyone remembers about Justin Hoffman—he was always proud to be serving our Nation in the Marines Corps.

Justin graduated from Worthington Christian High School in 1995 and then attended the Ohio State University. Before his junior year of college, he joined the Marine Reserves. Justin’s father had also served in the Marines and remembers how proud he was of his son’s decision.

Justin’s mother Carole recalls that he joined the Marines not only because he wanted to follow family tradition, but because he had “wanted some discipline in his life.” She said that she saw a change in Justin after he completed his military training as a marine sharpshooter.

“He was a good Marine,” she said.

After graduating from Ohio State, Justin began working with information systems at Cardinal Health Center in Columbus. His dad recalls that his son’s intelligence qualified him for the job, but that he was also his biggest supporter and needed an outlet for his excess energy. Karen DePoy worked with Justin at Cardinal Health Center and remembers how smart he was. She wrote the following message on an Internet tributes website:

“It seems like just yesterday that I was getting this super sharp intern to work with. What a terrific young kid, I thought, as we discussed everything from personal investments to keeping the faith during rough times.

Josh Busic also worked with Justin. This is what he wrote about his friend:

He was one of the reasons I looked forward to coming to work every day. There was never a boring day with him at work. Whether it was one of his stories of someone he raced in his car, some [silly] clip on the Internet he wanted all of us to see, some argument on politics (there were a lot of those) . . . him telling a story about one his brothers (whom he talked about quite a bit), or just him talking about somethings he only would he think of—Justin was a good friend and my only regret is that I didn’t know him longer than I did.

Mom and Dad. Justin was a dedicated person. He was dedicated to his family, his job, and his marines. After 7 years of serving in the Reserves, he re-enlisted in 2004. His mother remembers that Justin’s reason for re-enlisting was because of the men he sent home sentiments, when he said that After 7 years of serving in the Reserve, his family, his job, and his marines.

Justin loved his fellow marines, and he loved his family. He was exceptionally close to his brothers, Tyler and Travis. Their parents would never let them fight while growing up, and Tyler remembers how protective Justin was of him. In Tyler words, Justin was a great brother, and more than that, he was a great friend.

Justin’s brother Travis remembers that the three of them were “inseparable.” Justin was the best man in his wedding. It is a memory he will always cherish. He remembers that his brother could always make him laugh.

Dad. Justin had also found the love of his life—his girlfriend, Teri Price. The two planned to get married one day, and Teri remembers that Justin would tease her about proposing as soon as he stepped off the plane on his way back from Iraq.

Teri recalls how much she loved Justin’s smile and how “he could always make me laugh and [how] he was always joking. I loved him more than anything.”

Teri—who knew Justin as “Fen,” short for his middle name of Fenton—left him the following message on the Internet tribute website:

Fen, there aren’t words deep enough to express how I feel about you. I love you more than anything and was looking forward to spending the rest of our lives together. You are the most generous, selfless, kind, amazing, funny, thoughtful person I know. I am so proud of you, and I am honored to have been a part of your life. You made every day a happier day.

Family was so important to Justin. While in Iraq, he always kept in contact with his family. He would e-mail, write, and call on a regular basis. His mom Carole remembers how Justin always wanted to hear about how things were at home. “Justin loved Eagle Pizza and wanted to hear about the tree that needed uprooting in the yard,” she said. “Justin just spoke the truth.”

Justin’s father remembers the last conversation he had with his son. It was after Justin’s close friend—fellow Ohio Marine Cpl Andre Williams—had been killed in Iraq. Justin reassured his father that there was nothing he needed, and then said good-bye with the following words: I love you, Dad.

Friends. Set Mr. President, Marine Sgt Justin Hoffman lived a life that was honorable and heroic. He was a devoted son, brother, and boyfriend. Everyday, he is dearly missed by his family, friends, and loved ones.

My wife Fran and I will continue to keep his family in our thoughts and in our prayers.

LANCE CORPORAL BRYAN N. TAYLOR

Mr. President, this evening, I rise to pay tribute to a brave marine from Milford, OH. LCpl Bryan Taylor, who was killed in Iraq on April 6, 2008, after he had been there for just 5 weeks. Bryan is survived by his parents Rick and Sherri Taylor, and his younger brother Matthew. He was just 20 years old at the time of his death.

A 2004 graduate of Milford High School, Bryan had a strong interest in computers and technology. He also attended Live Oaks Career Development Center, where he studied computer-assisted drafting during his last 2 years of high school. After he left for Iraq, Bryan “knew no strangers and had no enemies.” One of his favorite things to do was simply sit around and talk about good memories with his friends.

While reflecting on their memories of Bryan, his friends stressed his unceasing loyalty. Bryan’s friend John Legleu said that “people who didn’t even know Bryan that well are calling to tell me what he meant to them. He had a way of finding them. He was so good, you always found the good people.”

Friend Stacey Flick, added: Bryan strive to make sure he was there for his friends no matter what.

In fact, friends say it was the camaraderie of the Marine Corps that led Bryan to enlist.

As his friend James Wallace said:

Bryan was pretty much everything you want in a friend. . . . He had such a big influence on the people he knew.

Those who knew Bryan also remember his compassion and his willingness to listen. As his friend John said:

I would always seek advice from [Bryan]. Even though I was older, I would always get his opinion. He was mature beyond his years.

Bruce Wallace, the father of Bryan’s best friend James, shared the following story about Bryan. This is what he said:

I’d come home from work and Bryan would be sitting in the living room, watching TV alone, waiting for Jamie. I’d ask him if he had homework. According to Jamie, he’d say, ‘I’ve already done mine.’ I’d go into the kitchen and see an empty cereal bowl in the sink! He was the only person who could get away with this because he was truly my second son. He wasn’t like any of us. He was so exceptional.

After enlisting in 2005, Bryan quickly made friends among his fellow marines. Pvt Adam Michaels met Bryan during their training and shared this story about him:

Bryan was a great guy, and we had a lot of good times. I hung out with him before he left [for Iraq], and he always had a great presence. I remember watching Bengals games with him even though I am a huge Packers fan! He was as great as they come.

Bryan lived life fully and left a lasting impression on his friends, family, and community. After his death, Miami Township named the football field at Miami Meadows Park, where Bryan used to play Pee Wee football, in his honor.

Additionally, Clermont County held a “Celebration of Life” in tribute to Bryan. This celebration included a balloon release of red, white, and blue balloons, each filled with a note from Bryan’s family and friends. Bryan’s family also received an outpouring of support from many other families of fallen servicemen, which means so very much to them.

In talking about the loss of service members, GEN George S. Patton—who I know is a favorite of the Presiding Officer—once said that we should not mourn those who die on the field of battle. Rather, he said, “we should thank God that such men lived.”

Indeed, Mr. President, while we mourn, we do thank God that Bryan Taylor lived. He was a good son, brother, friend, and marine. Everyone who knew him loved him.

In December 2005, Bryan visited his old high school dressed in his marine uniform. He came to say goodbye to his former teachers before leaving to serve in Iraq. According to those at the high school, he was very much a marine and visited frequently to keep in touch with his favorite teachers. Milford High School Assistant Principal Mark Lutz shared the following story about his final visit with Bryan:

Bryan had a young person’s bravado . . . Bryan was an excellent young man. He was always looking for a new challenge. . . . I think the Marines gave him a sense of direction.

Assistant Principal Lutz also remembered the pride with which Bryan served. This is what he said:

Bryan was very proud of his decision to serve in the Marines, which he credited with giving him direction and helping him become the man he was today. He was looking forward to returning to his unit to prepare for his tour of duty in Iraq.

In describing his role in the military, Bryan, himself, wrote the following paragraph shortly before he died:

I am a Marine. . . . I am proud of what I do and the serve the country that I do. We are here for you and your families. We are the ones who are willing to give our lives to make your life easier and safer. . . . I have seen “a lot of good lives because of what our beliefs are. I honor these men every day.
Indeed, Mr. President, we all must honor these brave souls—and Marine LCpl Bryan Taylor is one of them. He will be remembered as a wonderful young man, a loyal friend, and a proud marine. My wife Fran and I continue to keep his family in our thoughts and in our prayers.

STAFF SERGEANT JASON A. BENFORD

Mr. President, this evening, I rise to honor the life of Army SSG Jason A. Benford from Toledo, OH. On September 27, 2005, SSG Benford died when insurgents attacked his patrol with small-arms fire in Ramadi, Iraq. He was 20 years of age at the time.

Staff Sergeant Benford was a devoted family man—the husband of Kimberly and the father of two young sons, Lane and Jacob. He is also survived by his parents George and Linda Benford, his sisters Kimberly and Lori, his brother John, his grandparents Robert and Deloris, and numerous nieces and nephews.

Jason truly was an excellent service-man—the epitome of what a professional soldier should be. He was also a man who cared deeply for family and friends. His devotion to duty were unmatched, and he consistently set high standards for himself.

Jason was born on June 8, 1975. A 1993 graduate of Bowsher High School, he attended the University of Toledo before enlisting in the Army in 1994. He originally enlisted for 3 years, as a "learning and growing" experience. But it turned out that the Army was Jason’s true calling, and he re-enlisted once his initial service was complete. According to his step-mother, Jason was planning to make the Army his career.

After graduating from Basic and Advanced Individual Training, Jason served in the Republic of Korea before being assigned to Fort Benning, GA, where he served as team leader and senior gunner. In Georgia, Jason found more to keep him busy than simply being an excellent soldier. It was at this time that he met and married Kimberly, the love of his life, whose hometown was near Fort Benning.

“My mother had told me not to date soldiers,” Kim remembers. “But I did, and I married him.” Shortly after being married in January 1998, Jason was transferred to Vilseck, Germany, where he and Kim remained for 3 years before returning to Georgia.

Jason’s life was clearly one of challenges, but he also loved his Ohio State University football, and on January 3, 2003, which was both his wedding anniversary and the night of the Buckeyes’ legendary NCAA championship game against Miami, he had to make a choice. The decision, however, was easy. Lucky for him, Kim ate quickly, and the game went into overtime. “He took me out to dinner,” Kim laughed, “but he was watching his watch the whole time. He lived in Georgia, but he was always a Buckeye.”

In July 2005, Jason was able to spend Independence Day with his family while on a 2-week leave. It was a time in which many memories were made. “We spent time in Panama City, went to a Braves game in Atlanta, and had fun at Whitewater,” Kim remembers. “It was a great time to be together—just the family.”

Kim remembers that her husband was a calm, even-tempered man who did not easily lose his cool. “He’s always been a special, personal person, so even-toned,” she said. “He’d handle all types of situations without breaking a sweat. That was one of the things we appreciated so much, [and] I know the soldiers did too.”

Those who served with Jason also remember his calm demeanor and his optimistic nature. CPT Brian Mehan left his friend the following message on an Internet tribute website in memory of Jason:

Staff Sergeant Benford and I served together. He was a steady and friendly demeanor made even the hard times more bearable. The world will be a lesser place without him.

Those who knew Jason have rallied around his family in support. Stacey Jarzobski, from Toledo, left his parents a note among the following message on that Internet tribute website:

I am so sorry to hear of your loss. My sisters (Becky & Kim) and I were childhood friends of John and Jason. I can remember how full of life [they] were together. I’m sorry that he was taken from you.

Nothing was more important to Jason than his family, and he talked to Kim as often as possible while in Iraq. And this is a proud Marine. When he left for boot camp, his family in our thoughts and in our prayers.

Mr. President and Members of the Senate, Army SSG Jason Benford was devoted both to the Army and to his country. But most importantly, Jason was a loving husband, father, and son—someone for whom family came first. He loved simply spending time with his family, and living his love of sports with his two sons.

Mr. President, my wife Fran and I will continue to keep Jason and his family in our thoughts and in our prayers.

LANCE CORPORAL DUSTIN ROBERT FITZGERALD

Mr. President, I rise tonight to pay tribute to Marine LCpl Dustin Robert Fitzgerald from Huber Heights, OH. On August 18, 2004, Lance Corporal Fitzgerald was killed in a vehicle accident in the Al Anbar Province of Iraq. He was 22 years old. He is survived by his parents Michael and Melody Fitzgerald, and his brothers Brandon and Shannon.

Ever since he was a small boy, Dusty—as he was known by family and friends—knew that he wanted to serve his country and help his fellow citizens. While attending Wayne High School, he enrolled in the school’s Junior ROTC program.

Initially, Dusty wanted to be a pilot in the Air Force. However, he came home one day and told his mother that he instead wanted to be a marine. At such a young age, Dusty knew exactly what he wanted to do. He was determined and took steps to pursue his dream.

Dusty simply loved ROTC. “He gave his all,” his mother recalled. “He enjoyed it so much and took it very seriously.” Dusty participated in the Junior ROTC program for 3 years.

During this time, Dusty made many friends. The other young students in Junior ROTC respected him and enjoyed his company. They found him to be sincere person—someone with a good sense of humor. One of Dusty’s many friends, Brenna Downs, wrote the following in a posting on an Internet tribute to Dusty:

I am so sorry to hear about what happened to Dusty. I was immediately taken back to junior high and early high school, when he used to hang out with all of us. He definitely stood out in our group with his sense of humor. He was genuine. Years after I knew him, I still remember how he made us all laugh. He was a good guy and will be remembered and missed by his old friends.

Dusty and his friends played baseball, basketball and wrestling while they were in high school. Dusty’s friends were drawn to him for the same reasons his peers at Junior ROTC were drawn to him. His mother said that Dusty “was very adventurous. [He had] a wonderful sense of humor. [He was] easy-going. He never had an enemy.”

In addition to sports, Dusty was crazy for cars. “When Dustin wasn’t fighting in wars, he loved souping up cars,” his mother said. In high school, Dustin fixed up a 1996 Dodge Stratus, outfitting it with racing tires and a spoiler. And just 4 months before he entered the Marines, he bought his dream car—a 1997 Mitsubishi Eclipse. He spent hours fixing it up. While he was stationed in the Middle East, Dusty would ask his mother to buy car accessories so he would have them when he got home.

After graduating from Wayne High School in 2000, Dusty began taking classes at his community college. In 2002, Dusty joined the Marine Corps, and within months, his unit headed overseas on the USS Gunston Hall. His family missed him tremendously, but they knew he was doing the right thing—that he was doing what he believed in.
SGT James Worster
Mr. President, I rise tonight to remember a fallen servicemember—SGT James Worster, from Broadview Heights, OH. Sergeant Worster was serving as a medic with the Army’s 10th Command Support Hospital in Baghdad, where he died of cardiac arrest on September 18, 2006. He is survived by his wife, Vicki, his children Trevor, his mother and stepfather Donna and Burleigh Thornton, his brothers Jack and Josh, and his sister Joy. He was just 24 years old.

James Worster was a dedicated and compassionate young man who responded to a pair of tragic events by finding a way to serve his country and help those in need. After his father Richard died from a medical condition in 2000, James was inspired to become a doctor. He simply decided that he wanted to help others.

One year later, James was studying at Cleveland State University when the terrorists attacked the United States on September 11, 2001. The attacks had a profound impact on James and compelled him to enlist in the Army. He had a strong desire to help prevent other such attacks from happening on our homeland. By becoming a medic in the Army, he was able to fulfill his father’s wish to serve our Nation.

James was born in Fargo, ND, on March 30, 1982. He moved to Alaska when he was 7 and attended middle school and high school in the city of North Pole. Those who knew James described him as a compassionate young student, who had a great work ethic. MAJ Jim Alonzo, who guided James through his high school Junior Reserve Officers’ Training Corps program, called him “a shining star” who was “always there.” These were the very words Major Alonzo used when recommending James for an internship with the National Park Service after James’s sophomore year of high school. Although the Park Service told Major Alonzo that they normally hire interns only as young as James, he was selected and spent the summers after his sophomore and junior years of high school working at Yellowstone National Park. This is the kind of impressive young man he was.

While serving in the ROTC program in high school, James met Brandy Kusinski. He fell in love. After graduating from North Pole High School in 2000, James joined Brandy, then his fiancée, at Cleveland State University. The two were married on October 13, 2002, and they celebrated the birth of their son Trevor 2 years later.

James felt a strong bond with children, both here at home and in Iraq. According to his mother, James’s son Trevor “was the light of his life.” Donna said that her son “hoped someday the country would be safe for his son and all people’s [children].”

This caring nature was evident in James’s work at the 10th Combat Support Hospital in Baghdad, where he treated children who had been shot. His mother Donna said, “He was glad he was there for them, and he was glad he was there for his soldiers.”

James’s work with soldiers and civilians, especially children, served as practice for what he hoped would be a medical career when he returned from Iraq. In Iraq, he performed a range of procedures that would prepare him procedures ranging from setting bones to even delivering babies.

Those who met James were always impressed by his compassion and consideration. Cesar Gonzalez served in the 10th Combat Support Hospital alongside James. According to Cesar, James was one of the kindest persons in the hospital. He said that James would always ask him how he was doing and that he would always put the needs of others above his own. As James’s mother said, he just “loved people, and [in turn] was loved by a lot of people.”

James’s family remembers him as someone who cared deeply about others and pursued his dreams with a smile on his face. In a written statement, his family spoke of this compassion and desire to help those around him. This is what they wrote:

James had a very strong faith in God and a very strong love of country. James lived his life serving his country, being a wonderful son, himself. Pursuing his dreams took him to the Army, where he learned to save lives and truly believed he was making a difference. His beautiful smile and endearing personality brightened any day, and . . . he was a beacon of light and will forever be remembered and loved.

While on leave, James was active in the Mustang Club in Cincinnati, OH. James started an organization devoted to the preservation and appreciation of Mustang cars. James not only appreciated classic cars, he loved to race them.

It was through racing that James met many friends, including Brandy from Colorado. According to Brandy, racing on the track simply isn’t the same without James. She wrote the following on an Internet tribute website in James’s memory:

He was one of the greatest people I’ve ever met. I’m sorry for all those who didn’t have a chance to meet him. He brought so much to everyone he met. It was just amazing to see someone with that much compassion and heart.

Also posted on that same Internet tribute website is a message from Vicki Gleisner, whom James knew as “Aunt Vicki.” This is what she wrote:

From the first day I met James, I knew he was a very confident, gentle young man. Even though I think he was only 5 at the time, he wasn’t a little boy. He was always protecting his mom. I guess that when he was satisfied that his mom was taken care of, he decided to take care of the rest of us.

James always had a very respectful way about him, and he always made me feel important. Thank you for letting me be a part of your life, James. You left your smile in my heart, so I can remember your gentleness.

James was a young man who truly understood the importance of service to others—his family, his friends, and our country. He was a son, a father, son, and brother. His life was one filled with, and he made a positive impact on everyone whom he met. My wife Fran and I will continue to keep SGT James Worster’s family and friends in our thoughts and prayers.

CAPTAIN TYLER SWISHER
Mr. President, I rise tonight to honor and to remember a fellow Ohioan—Marine Captain Tyler B. Swisher from Cincinnati, OH. On October 21, 2005, CPT Swisher was killed when his vehicle was struck by an improvised explosive device while conducting combat operations against enemy forces in Iraq. He was 35 years-old.

Tyler was the type of person who simply never gave up. He always sought out new challenges. At the time of his death, he was serving his third tour of duty. He was looking forward to serving two more. This is typical of his dedication and determination to succeed.
In high school, Tyler proved himself academically, by spending hours studying his books and lessons. His hard work paid off, when he made the honor roll during his senior year—an accomplishment for which he was very proud. After high school, Tyler went on to Butler University, where he graduated with a degree in biology in 1993.

And then, Tyler set his sights on the Marines. A longtime friend of the Swisher family, Jack Buckholz, remembers that Tyler attacked the challenges of boot camp with the same ferocity and determination that he had displayed with everything he did. He spent 6 months training on his own to make sure he was prepared. He ran several miles a day and worked construction in harsh elements.

Tyler entered the Marines as an enlisted man and then worked his way up to Officer’s Commission in 1997 and eventually became on to being a company commander for the 2nd Battalion, 2nd Marine Regiment, based in Camp Lejeune, NC. When he died in Iraq, 2009, his commanding officer said how proud he was of Tyler.

Tyler died doing what all Marine officers aspire to do—and that is lead Marines in combat,” said Captain Gary McCullar, one of Tyler’s best friends. “Tyler never faltered. Tyler did it right.

Tyler sought out challenges that most people would shy away from—challenges like training for mountain warfare in Korea, which involved steep climbing, rocky slopes, and living outdoors in harsh elements. It was miserable,” Captain McCullar remembered.

“(And,) he loved it.”

Tyler always pushed himself beyond all expectations and always gave his best—whether it was for himself, his school, or his country.

Tyler was a dedicated and hard-working Marine, but he was also a selfless person, who always placed the needs of family, friends, Marines, and Nation above his own. But, most important to him were his wife Stephanie and their three children: Ashleigh, Madison, and Jacob. Stephanie’s brother Peter Lynch remembers that Tyler was a devoted father and a committed husband.

For Stephanie, he was consistently a source of strength. No matter how bad a day she was having, he was always able to get a burst of laughter out of her.

And Tyler’s daughter Ashleigh left him the following message on an Internet tribute Web site:

Tyler Swisher, my Dad, was an amazing man. He was more than a Dad to me. He was my hero. He gave me the strength to face many hardships in my life, and he was always there for me. He was the best father anybody could ask for. He’s my inspiration everyday to live life. . . . I will never stop missing him. I’m so proud of you Daddy, thank you for being my hero, and protecting us all. With love, Ashleigh.

Todd Smith was one of Tyler’s boyhood buddies. At Tyler’s funeral, he addressed the following words to his friend:

I remember sitting in the (movie theater), watching ‘The Empire Strikes Back’ all day long. You were always there for me more than I was for you. I was the one who told you to come to me for help. I should have told you to come to me when things were not going right. I should have told you to think about how much I was proud of you. You made the ultimate sacrifice for your country, and you are truly a hero. I am blessed and lucky you were part of my life.

Tyler’s fellow Marines in Iraq felt the same respect and admiration for Tyler as his family and friends did back home. Doug Miorandi from Phoenix, AZ, expressed his respect for his friend and fellow serviceman on an Internet tribute Web site. This is what he wrote:

I was fortunate enough to have served with Tyler and feel honored to call him my friend. Tyler and I were roommates for over two years, serving at both Marine Barracks Washington, D.C., and the Presidential Retreat at Camp David. From being a ‘spit and polished’ Presidential Security Guard to a hard charging Marine, Tyler epitomized the word ‘Marine.’ I’ll never forget our time together, and I feel fortunate to have been a part of your life.

CPT Tyler Swisher was buried a hero at Arlington National Cemetery, and I am honored that I had the opportunity to attend the funeral services in Ohio for this fine marine. The streets were lined with family, friends and fellow servicemen and women who had come to honor him. I will always remember that sunny November day had the same thing to say—Tyler Swisher had loved being a marine, and he loved what he was doing.

I would like to conclude with the words of Tyler’s dear friend, CPT Gary McCullar, who was Tyler’s military escort on his final journey home. In a letter to the Cincinnati Post thanking the community and citizens for the respect and honor they showed to Tyler and his family, he wrote:

Captain Swisher epitomized the meaning of the Marines. He was a leader, he was tough, he was the best that this country has to offer, but most importantly he was a man who loved his wife and children and enjoyed spending every minute he could with them. Captain Swisher was also the best friend I ever had. I am very proud of how the City honored my friend.

Indeed the world is a better place because of Tyler Swisher. My wife Fran and I will continue to keep his family—his wife Stephanie and their three children Ashleigh, Madison, and Jacob, his parents David and Mary Beth Swisher, and his siblings John and Sara—in our thoughts and in our prayers.

I thank the Chair very much this evening. I yield the floor and suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. DEWINE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

HONORING SENATORIAL SERVICE

BILL FRIST

Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, it is with great pleasure that today I honor our distinguished majority leader, Senator BILL FRIST. After serving with BILL for the last 12 years, I have come to know that he is a fine leader, an accomplished physician and a person. He is a man of compassion and conviction who has served our Country and this body well.

It is only fitting that the majority leader of the U.S. Senate be a person who has dedicated his life to serving others.

We all know of BILL’s remarkable service to people around the world as a transplant surgeon for over 20 years. We have applauded him on several occasions as he has embarked on pilgrimages to help bring needed medical expertise to impoverished countries. We have seen him fight to secure over $15 billion in Federal funding to fight the spread of HIV/AIDS. We have marveled at his dedication to serving the people of Tennessee. And time and again, we have witnessed him here on the floor of the U.S. Senate in the middle of the night conducting the people’s business. And because the legacy of the Senate continues in the most professional manner.

I hope everyone understands what a sacrifice it is to take on leadership duties here in Washington. The Federal Government’s elected representatives come to Washington, they bring with them the hopes, dreams, and aspirations of each one of their constituents. Those who take this responsibility seriously spend every waking moment addressing concerns and working for the people they represent. That is quite a responsibility to bear. When you add to that responsibility the duties of being a leader and looking out for the interests of those you represent, the duties and the sleepless nights really start to mount. I, for one, am grateful for BILL’s exemplary service and willingness to spend his life looking out for the interests of others.

Over the last 4 years, as BILL has been majority leader, I have had several occasions to seek him out and ask for his advice and counsel. In every instance, he has made himself available. There have been times when I have been working on an issue of importance to the citizens of Utah until 1, 2, or even 3 in the morning and, even though the items we were working on did not impact BILL or his constituents, he and his staff were gracious enough to stay up and work with me. For that I am grateful.

As a highly trained physician, BILL has changed the way the Senate approaches health care policy. As a member of the Senate Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions Committee and the Senate Finance Committee, two committees with jurisdiction over health care issues, BILL has used his insight and training to shape and move legislation which greatly improves the health of Americans and the health care system in general. His skill as a physician has greatly improved the knowledge of this body and has made the lives of countless people better.

President, history is made when capable Senators is long and includes such names as Andrew Jackson, Andrew Johnson, Howard Baker, and, my good friend, Fred Thompson. These men represent what America stands to offer, and BILL FRIST has done much to add to this great legacy. As majority leader, BILL has shepherded through some very important legislation, including the Medicare prescription drug benefit legislation, legislation to reduce health care disparities among races, legislation to make health care more affordable and accessible, legislation to bolster America's defenses against bioterrorism, legislation to reduce childhood obesity, legislation to prevent childhood vaccine shortages, and legislation fighting drug abuse.

BILL’s willingness to support Federal funding for stem cell research this year made a huge difference in the national debate. I truly appreciated BILL’s support earlier this year to pass legislation that would make more embryonic stem cell lines available for Federal funding. Stem cell research is one of the most important issues we face today. Stem cell research gives hope to millions of people who have none. More than 100 million Americans suffer from heart disease, cancer, diabetes, Alzheimer’s, Parkinson’s, multiple sclerosis, and so many other life-threatening and life-debilitating diseases.

Thanks to BILL’s support, on July 18 of this year, the Senate passed H.R. 810, the Stem Cell Research Enhancement Act, by a vote of 63 to 37. H.R. 810 would have allowed Federal funding for stem cell research using stem cell lines derived under strict ethical requirements from excess in vitro fertilization embryos. Regrettably, of the dozen lines we were derived. I am grateful to BILL for taking such a bold and courageous stand on this issue for those suffering from these dreaded diseases and who will be helped by this research.

In closing, BILL is a consummate family man who cherishes family and the values family represents. He has been married to his wife Karyn for 22 years and, even as majority leader of the U.S. Senate, he has always made time for his three sons: Harrison, Jonathan, and Bryan.

There is no doubt BILL will be successful in any endeavor he undertakes as he leaves this great body. He has proven himself time and again and there is no question in my mind, he will be successful in the future.

Mr. President, I appreciate the efforts and service of our good majority leader, BILL FRIST. He is a great man, a great patriot, and a great friend, and I wish him well in his future endeavors.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, I welcome this opportunity to commend our colleague MARK DAYTON, the Senator from Minnesota, for his distinguished service in the Senate and for his commitment to helping our country live up to its highest ideals at home and abroad.

MARK’s life has been about service to others. Whether as a teacher in the bowery of New York, a counselor to troubled teens in Boston, an aide to our beloved Fritz Mondale, or State economic development leader working with businesses and constituents, or a Senator, MARK DAYTON has consistently answered the call of public service throughout his long and outstanding career.

He has been a champion of the right to quality and affordable health care for all Americans, and I know how frustrated he has often been by our inability to make greater progress on this critical domestic issue. Sadly, it will be hard for me to serve without him, but I still optimistic that we will still be able to accomplish it, and I have no doubt that MARK will continue with his commitment and compassion to help lead the charge from outside the Senate.

As a Senator, he had an indispensable role in our effort to expand the availability of prescription drugs. His heart went out to the senior citizens in Minnesota whose only hope to afford the drugs they desperately needed was to cross the border into Canada. Fortunately, in its effort to build a legal fence to keep them out, the drug industry more than met its match in Senator MARK DAYTON. Even my constituents in Massachusetts loved MARK, as they boarded buses from Boston to Minnesota to catch the lifesaving bus to Canada and get their medicine.

MARK also has had the courage to stand against the administration when it launched the tragic and misguided war in Iraq.

He never wavered in the Senate from what he believed was right, and we will all miss the skill and eloquence, the decency and courage he brought to our Senate debates.

We regret very much that he won last-minute air fares to get home.

He has insisted on better care for veterans. And he spearheaded efforts to ensure that soldiers on leave could get all the way home to visit their loved ones rather than simply being dropped off at remote cities and asked to pay last-minute air fares to get home.

MARK DAYTON has insisted on integrity and honesty in every aspect of his public life. He has been a true champion for Minnesota. Lucy and I wish him well as he goes on to other ventures.

LINCOLN CHAFEE

Mr. President, I would like to pay tribute to Senator LINCOLN CHAFEE. Senator CHAFEE has served the people of Rhode Island well. He has distinguished himself in important policy areas, including strengthening environmental protections and strengthening our national security.

I most appreciated his efforts to promote fiscal responsibility. Senator CHAFEE has been steadfastly committed to sound government budget policies. While he supported easing tax burdens for families by ending the marriage tax penalty and increasing the child tax credit, he had the courage to oppose irresponsible, budget-busting measures that were so popular, have resulted in huge fiscal deficits and an unsustainable increase in the Federal debt.
Senator CHAFEE has also been an unwavering supporter of reinstating pay-as-you-go constraints on the Federal budget first implemented by President Bush’s father in 1990. Under those rules, any tax cut or increase in Government spending must be accompanied by an equal spending cut or revenue increase.

I also appreciated Senator CHAFEE’s commitment to bipartisanship. He understands that reaching across the aisle together more often than not results in better decisions and better, longer lasting policy solutions. His efforts were not always appreciated by those in charge over the last couple of years. But those of us who worked closely with him know his commitment is genuine and his word is good.

I was pleased to welcome Senator CHAFEE to the Senate in 1999 when he was appointed to fill the seat of his late father. I had the pleasure of working often with John Chafee. We were both members of the Senate Finance Committee. I was not surprised to find that the son, like his father, was tough but fair-minded and a man of strong principle.

Senator CHAFEE brought a unique set of skills to the Senate. A native Rhode Islander, he earned a B.A. in classics from Brown University and was captain of the wrestling team. Instead of following immediately in his father’s footsteps, however, he initially worked as a harness race trainer in the United States and Canada and later in manufacturing management. These experiences gave him a great deal of respect for working people and helped him build a strong sense of independence and plain old common sense.

It is also clear that Senator CHAFEE never forgets his other important job. As a father of three school-aged children, he often reminds his colleagues to consider the impact of our decisions on the next generation. Whether he is talking often with John Chafee. We were both members of the Senate Finance Committee. I was not surprised to find that the son, like his father, was tough but fair-minded and a man of strong principle.

Senator CHAFEE has served the State of Rhode Island with integrity and compassion. He will be missed.

CONRAD BURNS

Mr. President, I rise today to acknowledge my colleague from Montana, Senator Burns, who will be leaving this body after serving Montanans for the past 18 years.

Since our States border one another, Senator Burns and I have had the opportunity to work together on issues important to both states and the Nation. Senator Burns has been a strong advocate for the interests of his State.

In 2002, Senator Burns and I joined forces to create the Bipartisan Task Force on Tribal Colleges and Universities. One of our goals for the task force was to secure adequate resources on the Federal level to support and grow these valuable institutions.

Senator BURNS, as chairman of the Interior Appropriations Subcommittee, was a strong advocate in helping the task force achieve this goal. Under his leadership, the tribal colleges received some of the largest increases in Federal funding since their inception. This provided the opportunity for the former BIA to become a source of opportunity for thousands of American Indians.

During this past year, we have also worked together on agricultural disaster legislation. Because both of our States have a strong agricultural sector in our economy, this issue is very important to our constituents. The support he has given to agricultural disaster legislation in both the Senate Appropriations Committee and the full Senate has been important to our efforts, and I appreciate his strong support.

Senator BURNS was also a valuable member of the ICBM coalition. During these past years, he and I have worked together. Senator BURNS understands the strong military deterrent to emerging world threats.

Since he arrived in Washington as a Senator only 2 years after I did, we have watched the debates and policy discussions in this body change for all of two decades now. During that time we have seen economic ups and downs, a major change in international power structure, and the new challenges we face after the 9/11 terrorist attacks.

Again, Mr. President, I have appreciated the opportunity to work with Senator BURNS and wish him well as he leaves the Senate.

JIM JEFFORDS

Mr. President, today I would like to take a moment to recognize my friend and colleague, JIM JEFFORDS, who after 32 years of distinguished service in Congress is retiring to spend more time with his family.

JIM JEFFORDS’ family roots in Vermont can be traced all the way back to 1794. After attending public schools in Rutland, JIM received his undergraduate degree from Yale University and his law degree from Harvard Law School. He served in the U.S. Navy and retired from the U.S. Naval Reserve.

I have worked closely with JIM JEFFORDS for years on the Centrist Coalition. He is a good friend and someone I could always count on. He has always been independent-minded with a strong sense of integrity, a real commitment to fiscal responsibility, an unparalleled dedication to the environment, and a passion for improving education for our children. During his time in Congress, JIM JEFFORDS has been a strong voice in advocating for our children’s needs and interests.

In 2001, JIM JEFFORDS made his mark on one of the most important legislation this institution has passed, including the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act, the Clean Air Act, the Clean Water Act, and the 2005 highway bill.

I applaud JIM JEFFORDS’ willingness to make tough decisions. He was never afraid to make tough decisions, and this one was no exception. It took courage to stand up against the rising tide, knowing that his decision would tip the balance in the Senate and set us on a new course.

JIM JEFFORDS embodies what it means to be a good Senator. He is a strong work ethic, courage, dedication, and being true to one’s convictions. He is also thoughtful, modest, and soft spoken. With these character traits it is hard to believe that he has a black belt in tae kwon do.

JIM JEFFORDS has been a true fighter for Vermont. His compassion and conviction will be missed in the U.S. Senate. I wish JIM and his family many happy years ahead.

MIKE DEWINE

Mr. President, today I would like to pay tribute and recognize the accomplishments of a colleague who will be leaving the Senate at the end of this term. Senator MIKE DEWINE has represented Ohio in the Senate for 12 years. During his tenure, he has been an important advocate for the interests of the Buckeye State.

Senator DEWINE will be remembered for his work on the Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions Committee and his service as chairman of the Subcommittee on Retirement Security and Aging. He was a vital and constructive member of the conference committee on the Pension Protection Act, and he illustrated what can be accomplished when you are willing to work across party lines on a common goal.

I have also admired Senator DEWINE’s commitment to our Nation’s children and his efforts to stop teen drug and alcohol abuse, as well as crack down on tobacco companies’ marketing of their products to children and teens. With unfailing courage, he took on those in his own party and other special interests to protect our kids from harmful tobacco products.

In addition, I believe he has set a good example for all of us in the Senate in how to honor those from our States who have fallen in service to our Nation. With deep admiration, I have listened to Senator DEWINE come to the floor and speak about the lives and families of Ohio service men and women who have died in Iraq and other fields of battle. It is clear that he understands and deeply respects the sacrifices made by our troops and their families.

Mr. President, for these and many other reasons, I have been honored to serve with MIKE DEWINE. I would like to join my colleagues in wishing the Senator and his family the best in the future and in paying tribute to his contributions to the Senate and our Nation. I wish him well.

MIKE DEWINE

Mr. President, today I rise to bid farewell to one of our esteemed colleagues, MIKE DEWINE of Ohio. It has been my special joy and privilege to work closely with Senator DEWINE for the last decade. Since 1997,
December 7, 2006

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — SENATE S11465

we have led the Antitrust Subcommittee, each taking our turns as chairman and ranking member. Thanks to MIKE’s honesty, candor, and cooperative nature, we have forged a productive bipartisan partnership as we have worked to promote competition in many critical sectors of our Nation’s econ-y

This productive, bipartisan working relationship has been a hallmark of Senator DEWINE’s leadership of the Antitrust Subcommittee since he assumed the chairmanship of the committee in 1997. From the beginning, he reached out to me and established our tradition of setting our agenda jointly, planning our hearings together, and,
even sponsoring legislation and writing letters to the administration jointly.
We tackled together such thorny issues encouraging competition in telecommunications, health care, the oil and gas, and airline industries, investigating dozens of important mergers ranging from AOLTIme Warner ATT/Bell South, and pursuing antitrust reform legislation. While we have not always agreed on every issue that came before our subcommittee although I am happy to say we agreed more often than not—MIKE DEWINE and I always agreed that we should put participation aside and accomplishing practical results for the American people first.

On a personal note, our close working relationship has caused me to come to know MIKE DEWINE very well. I have come learn that MIKE is a sober-minded, hard working, and caring person.
In my career, I have been privileged to know and work with a few distinguished Members of this Chamber whom I can truly call statesmen, leaders, and friends. MIKE DEWINE is one of them. He will be missed.

Mrs. CLINTON. Mr. President, I rise today to honor the great service of retiring Senators, MIKE DEWINE, MARK
DAYTON, and JAMES JEFFORDS.

Senator SARBANES’ service in the Senate stretches back three decades.
First elected in 1977, he had previously served as a Congressman and before that as a delegate in the Maryland State House. I have been so grateful to the Senator for his advice and his work in this Chamber.

Senator SARBANES is the son of immigrants from Laconia, Greece, and he has carried forward the values that he has for his Greek heritage, as well as the inspiration that he draws from it through his work in the Senate. His parents instilled in him a reverence for the principles of democracy and a respect for the values of opportunity and fairness. He has championed these values throughout his life in public service, passing important legislation to reform the accounting industry, the 2002 Sarbanes-Oxley Act, among many other legislative accomplishments.

I want to thank Senator SARBANES and his dedicated staff for their extensive and laudable work on the surface transportation reauthorization bill and in particular for their tireless efforts to ensure our Nation’s transit systems are adequately funded. With so much congestion on our roads it is critical that we continue to invest in our trains, buses, ferries, and other modes of transportation to reduce congestion and improve safety in the long term. MI-KE SARBANES did this work in his role as ranking member of the Banking Committee, and millions of people everyday—especially in New York—who ride trains and buses to and from work should be grateful that we had him on our side for so many years.

I could stand here for a long time singing the praises and accomplishments of Senator SARBANES after a long and distinguished career in the Senate. I will end by saying this: We will miss him and he has left his mark on this great Chamber.

I will also express a fond farewell to Senator DAYTON.

It has been an honor to serve on the Armed Services Committee with Senator DAYTON.

He has done a wonderful job for the people of Minnesota. In his time in the Senate Senator DAYTON worked hard to live up to the legend of Senator Wellstone, to honor the values that Senator Wellstone championed in this body.

One example: I was grateful to Senator DAYTON for his support of the Non-traditional Student Success Act, a piece of legislation to help more people attend college while working and raising families—to open the doors of opportunity wider for more and more Americans.

I am grateful to MARK DAYTON for his work to honor his values, and I know he leaves this body having made the people of Minnesota proud.

I will also say a few words about Senator JEFFORDS.

Senator JEFFORDS has ably represented Vermonters here in the Congress for decades. In doing so, he has reflected the independent spirit of the Vermonters, and no more so than when he took the courageous step in 2001 to become an Independent and caucus with the Democrats.

Since that time, I have had the great pleasure of working with Senator JEFF-ORDS on the Environment and Public Works Committee. His tenure at that committee was a fitting capstone to his career, as he has long been focused on environmental protection.

Throughout his distinguished career,
Senator JEFFORDS has been a strong advocate of renewable energy. In many ways, he has been ahead of his time. In 1990, he introduced a bill to promote ethanol and other alternative fuels, and nearly 10 years ago he introduced legislation to create a 20-percent renewable portfolio standard. During his tenure first as chairman, and then as ranking member of the EPW committee, he has been a strong and clear voice for a cleaner env

He has been an ally and a champion of reducing pollution from power-plants, fighting global warming, and making our buildings more energy efficient. And he has worked hard to hold the administration to task for numerous rollbacks of our landmark environmental laws. During his tenure on the committee, Senator JEFFORDS has been ably assisted by a staff led by Ken Connolly and Alison Taylor. I thank them and Senator JEFFORDS’ entire staff for their assistance to me and my staff.

Unfortunately, I could not attend the final EPW meeting this week, but I understand that Senator JEFFORDS announced that he is returning home to Vermont, and described home as “the place you can go where they have to take you in.”

I know that Vermont will welcome
Senator JEFFORDS back with open arms, and I know that he will always have a home away from home here in the Senate.

Finally, I also wish the very best to our Republican colleagues who will leave the Senate at the conclusion of this Congress. The Senate, at its best, is a body that promotes bipartisanship, deliberation, and cooperation, and the dedication to shared values. It has been a privilege to work with my departing colleagues on the other side of the aisle.

REMEMBERING MARY ARNOLD

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, as we approach this Christmas season, our joy is tempered by sorrow over the loss in late November of one of our Senate family members. The sorrow is borne of shock and loss as we mourn the sudden departure from this earthly life of our dear friend, Mary Miller Arnold. Yet, as we grieve, we must also give thanks for her life and for the enrichment she brought to all of the lives she touched.

It has been my honor and privilege to have served in the U.S. Senate for nearly 50 years. During this time, I have come to greatly appreciate and revere the work of the staff of the U.S.
Senate. These wonderful women and men play a sometimes invisible but always crucial role in the work of the Senate. They are dedicated, professional public servants who work long and unpredictable hours. When the Senate is in session, their families’ lives suffer and their social lives are almost nonexistent.

These are noble people who contribute to the history of our country every day, but, sadly, they will rarely be mentioned in the history books. Yet their lives are perfect examples of how our society can be strong.

I came to know Mary from her previous positions in the U.S. Senate and to appreciate her work as well as to like her personally. I was pleased and proud to have the opportunity to appoint Mary Arnold to her position as a Senate doorkeeper when I was the Senate majority leader, September 1, 1987.
She did not disappoint. One year later she was promoted to doorman supervisor.

Mary Arnold carried out her responsibilities superbly and with distinction, in just the same way she conducted her life. She worked professionally, energetically, and diligently. She was a caring, thoughtful, and very special person. Everyone who worked with her loved her. Selflessness was the hallmark of Mary Arnold’s personality. She was kind, thoughtful, polite, with a kind of old-world grace. She was not often seen so often these days. Mary exuded grace in this often graceless age. A tall woman, Mary had a quiet sense of authority about her which served her well on the Senate floor. Her elegant bearing commanded respect, and she knew just how to compel without offending. I admired her.

To me, Mary was a dear friend. I shall never forget her kindness to my dear wife Erma. Especially at Christmas, a season Mary really enjoyed. Mary’s love for her friends and family lighted our lives and set her apart. She fairly glowed as she made her Christmas visits with thoughtful notes and gifts which she must have spent hours preparing. She was a red rose among the pale lilies, and her memory will ever warm our hearts.

Her passing is a loss to the Senate, her community, and, of course, her family.

To her loving husband of 48 years, Edwin, and her children, Mary Elizabeth and Edwin, our hearts and prayers are with you.

I take comfort in knowing that Mary is now in the embrace of an all-loving God. As the Scriptures assure us:

And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall be any more pain: for the former things are passed away. (KJV, Revelations 21:4)

The Rose Still Grows Beyond the Wall
Near a shady wall a rose once grew,
Budded and blossomed in God's free light,
Watered and fed by the morning dew,
Budding and blossoming, day and night.

The rose—scents from God's garden—spread its fragrance more and more,
With never a thought of fear or pride.
Slowly rising to loftier height,
Watered and fed by the morning dew,
Budded and blossomed in God's free light.

THE ROSE STILL GROWS BEYOND THE WALL

Scents of the Roses
Let fate do her worst, there are relics of joy.
Bright dreams of the past, which she cannot deny,
That come, in the night-time of sorrow and care,
And bring back the features that joy used to wear.
Long, long be my heart with such memories filled.
Like the vase in which roses have once been distilled.
You may break, you may shatter the vase, if you will.
But the scent of the roses will hang around it still.” —Thomas Moore

RETRIEVAL OF MR. ANTHONY J. “TONY” ZAGAMI

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I rise to announce the retirement of a longtime public servant and former staff member of the U.S. Senate. After 40 years of Federal service, Anthony J. “Tony” Zagami will retire as the longest serving general counsel in the history of the U.S. Government Printing Office.

Tony arrived on Capitol Hill just as I was completing my first term in the Senate. The kindred spirit of our shared commitment to excellence in all that we do. I had the privilege of knowing and working with his late father, Dino, a member of the Senate’s Official Reporters of Debates staff. Dino retired in the early 1970s, while Tony went on to serve the Congress, moving to the GPO in 1990. The retiring Zagami became a valued and trusted staff member of the Congress in many different capacities. His strong skills and commitment to public service were well recognized, not just on the Hill but also throughout the legislative branch. As he departs the GPO for a well-deserved retirement, I thank him for his service and wish him all the best.

The names of such passengers accompanying the traveler must be stated on the travel voucher.

4. When damages to a privately owned vehicle are caused due to the negligence of the officer, employee, or employee of the Senate while acting within the scope of his/her employment, relief may be sought under the Federal Claims Act. Information on who to contact will go here.

B. Special

1. General

(a) The hire of a boat, automobile, aircraft, or other conveyance will be allowed if authorized or approved as more advantageous to the Senate whenever the Member or employee is engaged on official business outside his/her designated duty station.

(b) Where two or more persons travel together by means of such special conveyance, that fact, together with the names of those accompanying him/her, must be stated on each traveler’s travel voucher and the aggregate cost reimbursable will be subject to the limitation stated above.

2. Reimbursements for rental of special conveyances will be limited to the cost applicable to a conveyance of a size necessary for a single traveler regardless of the number of persons furnished transportation in the same vehicle, unless the use of a larger class vehicle on a shared cost basis is specifically approved in advance by the Committee on Rules and Administration, or the form Request for a Waiver of the Travel Regulations is submitted with the voucher, and found in order upon audit by the Rules Committee. For administrative reimbursement may be payable to only one of two or more Senator travelers traveling together on the same trip and in the same vehicle.

4. In lieu of the use of taxicab, payment on the spins of transportation terminals will be reported on the reimbursement voucher and used in computing the aggregate cost reimbursable will be subject to the limitation stated above.

5. Parking Fees: Parking fees for privately owned vehicles may be incurred in the duty station, when the traveler is engaged in interdepartmental transportation or when the traveler is leaving their duty station and entering into a travel status. The fee for parking at the Senator’s designated duty station in Washington, DC, shall be included in the applicable rate. The fee for parking at the Senator’s designated duty station in Washington, DC, shall be included in the applicable rate. Other parking fees, when incurred in connection with the use of Travel Awards, will be offset by the traveler; otherwise excess baggage charges will be an allowable expense.

6. Mileage for use of privately owned airplanes shall be certified from airway charts issued by the National Atmospheric Administration, Department of Commerce, and will be reported on the reimbursement voucher and used in computing the aggregate cost reimbursable. The reimbursement voucher and, if included, it must be explained.

7. Mileage shall be payable only on the first or last stop on the trip and not for transportation to and from the city where the traveler is staying while on official business. The names of such passengers accompanying the traveler must be stated on the travel voucher.
In some circumstances, a Member who uses a private airplane is required to reimburse the provider of the aircraft to avoid either a prohibited gift under the Senate Gift Rule or a prohibited contribution to an official office account. Senate Rule 34 (Prohibition of Unofficial Office Accounts), generally prohibits private sources from providing funds or services to reimburse or defray travel related expenses. Thus, if a friend offers to loan a Member an aircraft to attend town meetings across the Member’s home state, the Member must reimburse the cost of the aircraft to comply with Rule 34. Senate Rule 35 (Gifts) prohibits Members from accepting from an individual or organization with a direct interest in legislation, gifts aggregating over $100 per calendar year from anyone who is not a relative). Thus, if a lobbyist offers a Member the use of his airplane to fly the Member on a vacation trip, and if the value of the use of the airplane is over $100, the member must provide reimburse to comply with Rule 35.

In determining the value of an item for both reimbursement and disclosure purposes, the Committee has consistently stated that the applicable standard is the value of the item to the recipient. In the use of private aircraft, the Committee’s interpretation of value to the Member would be the cost he would have to incur to purchase the same level of service in the open market. The Committee felt that the level of service provided by the use of a private aircraft is most nearly equivalent to first-class service provided by commercial carriers where such commercial service is available. Where no regularly scheduled commercial service is available, to obtain the same service provided by the use of a private aircraft, a Member would be required to charter an airplane.

RULING: The Committee has agreed on the following method for calculating the value of the use of an aircraft for both reimbursement and disclosure:
1. If the cities between which the Member is flying have regularly scheduled air service, regardless of whether such service is direct, then the value of the use of the aircraft is the cost of a first-class ticket from the point of departure to the destination.
2. If the cities have regularly scheduled air service but no direct flight is available, then the value of the use of the aircraft is the coach rate.
3. If either the city from which the Member flies or his destination does not have regularly scheduled air service, then the value of the use of the aircraft is the cost of chartering the same or a similar aircraft for that flight.

The Committee notes that its ruling is generally consistent with the Internal Revenue Election Commission regulations pertaining to the use of private aircraft by candidates for Federal office.

The Committee further notes that the Committee has adopted travel regulations pertaining to the level of reimbursement to be provided from official funds to Members who seek such reimbursement for air transportation costs they have paid. Our ruling addresses only the reimbursement which Members must make to the individual or organization whose aircraft he uses, not the level of reimbursement Members may receive from official funds.

NOTE: The Gifts Rule limit discussed in this ruling has been replaced by a method of calculating the value of the use of an aircraft remains the same.

IV. Interdepartmental Transportation
A. The Committee’s interpretation of Senate Rule 36 (Gifts) authorizes a travel expense pursuant to 2 U.S.C. 8(e) but only for the incidental transportation expenses incurred within the duty station in the course of conducting official Senate business. Such reimbursement would include the following:

1. Mileage when using a privately owned vehicle
2. Bus, subway, taxi-cab, parking, and auto rental. (However, reimbursement is prohibited for auto rental expenses within the Washington D.C. metropolitan area duty station.)

B. Pursuant to S. Res. 294, agreed to April 29, 1980, section 2 (1), reimbursements and payments shall not be made for commuting, including parking fees incurred in commuting.

VOTE EXPLANATION
Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I rise today to discuss my absence today during rollcall vote No. 274. The vote was in reference to Executive Calendar No.
907, the nomination of Andrew von Eschenbach of Texas to be Commissioner of the Food and Drug Administration. I had to be necessarily absent from this vote so that I could attend and speak to an international conference in England sponsored by the Ditchley Foundation to discuss the steps required to eradicate worldwide terrorism.

COMMEMORATING THE 65TH ANNIVERSARY OF PEARL HARBOR
Mr. KOHL, Mr. President, today I rise to commemorate the 65th anniversary of the bombing of the Pearl Harbor naval base, a dark day in our country’s rich history, brightened only by the courage and resilience of Americans soundly united to fight tyranny and bring order to chaos.
We honor the memory of the service men and women and civilians who fell defending our shores that day, and pay tribute to the thousands who would survive to rebuild, rear, and lead our war effort abroad. Millions of Americans, young and old, would join these brave men and women in factories, mills, in tanks and in trenches fighting under one flag for a common goal.
President Roosevelt’s day of infamy has lived on in the minds of those who bore witness to that day and in the hearts of the generations who have followed. Every soldier, sailor, airman, and marine, fighting with our flag on their shoulder, has been passed the strength and courage of the service men and women that came before them.
Every generation’s sacrifice is selfless and precious.
On this anniversary, let us remember properly those who have served our coun-y in times of conflict and peace and those serving our country today.

UNITED STATES CAPITOL HISTORICAL SOCIETY’S 2006 FREEDOM AWARD
Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I seek recognition today to congratulate national political correspondent and syndicated columnist David S. Broder on being awarded the U.S. Capitol Historical Society’s 2006 Freedom Award.
This award, presented annually by the Capitol Historical Society since 1993, recognizes and honors individuals and organizations that have advanced greater public understanding and appreciation for freedom granted us by the U.S. Capitol and Congress.
Following the presentation of the award to Mr. Broder, retiring Architect of the Capitol Alan M. Hantman’s official portrait was also unveiled. Both of these men made brief statements. I ask unnecessary consent to print in the RECORD the following thoughtful remarks.
There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

DAVID S. BRODER, 2006 UNITED STATES CAPITOL
HISTORICAL SOCIETY FREEDOM AWARD RECIPI-ENT, NOVEMBER 29, 2006

It is an honor to stand in this room, where so much history has been made. I appreciate the United States Capitol Historical Society for inviting Ann and me for this ceremony, and thank you for the chance of being your speaker. I have been coming up here for more than 50 years now, since I was hired as a reporter by Congressional Quarterly, and everytime I come up Pennsylvania Avenue and see that magnificent dome, my heart beats a little faster.
This building is majestic—far more so than the White House at the other end of the ave-ue. But even more impressive over the years have been the men and women sent here from 50 states and 435 districts to struggle with the responsibilities imposed by Article I of our Constitution. Article I, the legislative branch, is the fundamental branch of our system of representative government. George Mitchell, when he was the Senate majority leader, had a speech passage that I’ve even been using: ‘The power to legislate is the only power a democracy can entrust to its representatives. But democracy began when the Parliament established its independence from the crown, and an independent legislature has always been the best guarantor of freedom.’

We need to remember that—all of us, including those of us in the press. And we need to treat each other as respectfully as we do the president. I am not suggesting that there is something wrong with close scrutiny of congressional ethics—of the relations between lawmakers and interest groups, or legislative practices such as earmarks that steer money to favored individuals or groups. But more ought to be parity. We know that presidents and vice presidents accept entertainment from people with large interests in government policy, and they raise large sums of money for their campaign finances from those same people. We know that the White House and Cabinet departments steer money to their own favored constituencies and politically vital areas, and we may be outraged by it. And we often let the president, whichever party he may be, grab the credit for a notable achievement at a bill-signing ceremony, even when we know that the hard work has been done by legislators, often with little help or even active opposition from the executive.

One reason that Congress as an institution usually lags behind the president in public approval—no matter how high or low he may be at any given moment—is that Congress has no one who speaks for it as an institution, while the president has many spokesmen, all delivering the same message on any given day.

But also, the process that makes Congress work when it is working well is a process of slow negotiation and compromise, and the tendency in the press, even in so-called established news organizations, is to treat these incremental, process stories as boring—so readers and viewers have little idea what is happening in the day-to-day work of the Congress. But I would be less than honest if I did not also acknowledge that members of Congress themselves find fault with the workings of this branch.

During this past year, I have heard more concern—and more criticisms—from members of both parties than I can ever recall. The public may have been saying earlier this year, ‘We’re mad as hell and we’re not going to take it any more.’ But I was hearing the same thing from inside these halls for many months before Election Day. I would not attempt to catalogue all the frustrations. But I have come to believe that the greatest blessing a free people has is now clearer and prompter. Also, I think it healthy that members of Congress may no longer pick up the phone and ask individuals or groups directly for six-figure donations. And I’m happy that the campaign finance reform efforts have become futile, when it comes to reducing the influence of money in politics. And I’m pleased that many of the anti-earmark members of the House are now demanding to be treated as responsible legislators, and are no longer willing to accept generous money in politics. And I’m pleased that the problem of the House seats are really contested.

We saw a big turnover in the House this year, but about 375 of the 435 members had more of an incentive to speak of. That means that the part of the national government that was designed by the founders to reflect the electorate more closely than any other part of government—gave the people in the legislature and place it in the hands of a tiny fraction of the House seats are really contested.

The inclination of members from safe districts is to play to their political base—whichever group or ideology that may be—and to declare that the others are not their partners in legislation. We have seen that tendency among Republicans during their years of control, and we may now witness it among Democrats.

In either case, it tends to make the House a less representative institution than is the Senate. But also, the process that makes Congress work when it is working well is a process of slow negotiation and compromise. When people continually express low levels of trust in Congress, it is not just a problem for any other part of government. It’s our problem.

One reason that Congress as an institution usually lags behind the president in public approval—no matter how high or low he may be—is that Congress has no one who speaks for it as an institution, while the president has many spokesmen, all delivering the same message on any given day.

The need to welcome visitors respectfully to the People’s House, to protect the Congress, the visitors, and the Capitol itself. These exhibits offer the opportunity to educate those visitors to tour the Capitol and study our nation’s history and the aspirations of our nation will prepare those visitors to tour the Capitol itself. These exhibits offer the opportunity to learn about the Congress and, hopefully, inspire young and old to get more involved in their government.

I take great pride in this project and am honored to work with the many hundreds of dedicated professionals and tradesmen and women committed to bringing it to fruition. This project will set a new standard for historically accurate and respectful re-creations here on the Hill.

I take great pride in this project and am honored to work with the many hundreds of dedicated professionals and tradesmen and women committed to bringing it to fruition. This project will set a new standard for historically accurate and respectful re-creations here on the Hill.

As Congressman Sarasin mentioned, the Capitol Visitor Center is only one of the many important projects, such as the ongoing Supreme Court renovation, the many security and fire and life-safety projects, the Power Plant modernization, the recently-delivered National Gallery of Art, the East Front project, and many projects for the Library of Congress, among others. Integral to the success of these projects and the day-to-day operations here on the Hill are the people who make up the Office of the Architect of the Capitol.

Each person on this hard-working team takes great pride in the important contributions they make every day maintaining and operating this city within a city.
Together, we have transformed this Agency over the last 10 years into a cohesive and professional team that efficiently and effectively supports and serves the Congress; an Agency that continues to do so with innovations to come. It is the people of the AOC that are the heart of this organization and I am so very proud to have led the AOC team through the many years of growth and change. I want to thank each person for their dedication and commitment to excellence. There are some people here tonight who have given their lives to other places—I thank you for your service to the AOC and the Congress.

There are also many of you here tonight who will continue on with our mission, working for the United States Operation. Stephen Ayers, the next Architect of the Capitol to continue our efforts as good stewards of these national treasures. I wish you all well and I know that you will continue to make me proud going forward.

I would also like to congratulate and thank Michael Shane Neal for this truly sensitive portrait, including his rendition of Thomas Ustick Walter’s Dome, and the Frederick Law Olmsted lantern as the framing elements of this school.

These were, of course, designed and built by those who went before us—but they speak strongly to the continuity of the Congress as our country evolved to grow and the needs of the Capitol have continued to evolve.

When Shane and I discussed possible settings for the portrait, he photographed many alternative locations, but we ultimately agreed that the symbolic action of my descending the steps into the new Capitol Visitor Center with the Dome and the lantern in the background would enhance this sense of continuity.

I thank you, Shane, not only for being the fine artist that you are, but also for your patience during multiple sittings and the gracious hospitality you and Melanie extended to Roz and I on our visit to your studio in Nashville. I also would like to extend a special thank you to our Curator, Barbara Wolanin, for assisting with the initial selection of Shane and for lending her keen eye throughout the process.

As I look around this stately room that has itself witnessed so many historic events, I see so many people who have been so important to me as Architect of the Capitol, as a member of the Congressional, Washington, D.C., and professional architectural communities, those who have been my friends for decades, as well as members of my family who have blessed me with their love and support through both good and difficult times. And, I thank you personally, Senator Warner, for being here this evening and for having championed my candidacy what seems like so many years ago as Chairman of the Senate Rules and Administration Committee.

At a wonderful moment like this, I can’t help but think of those who have passed before... of my father who worked nights in the Post Office. We often talked of things past and the possibilities of the future when he came home to work at 5 a.m., and I was still awake cramping for exams. My soft-spoken mother supplemented the family income as a bookkeeper, and enriched our lives through her artwork and her dreams.

I think of Roz’s Mom and Dad, who lost so many loved ones in the Holocaust, our grandparents who immigrated here—who came through Ellis Island seeking a better life. I think of their financial struggles and personal sacrifices and the value they placed on strong family ties and education, and am forever grateful for the legacies they have left to Roz and me, our children, and grandchildren.

Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, today I rise in solemn tribute to CPL Adam A. Galvée, the Marines who gave his life in the service of his country during the global war on terrorism.

Over the past few weeks, I have had a chance to talk with Adam’s mother Amy and his father Tony. They are two wonderful people who are truly proud of their son. In speaking with them, I quickly learned what just a hero Adam was.

It is humbling to stand here today and to recognize and appreciate the fact that Roz and I have taken part in the flow of our nation’s history in some small way. I am truly honored to be here, and honored to join the nine Architects of the Capitol as we unveil this portrait and see it donated by the United States Capitol Historical Society to the collections of the United States Congress.

Thank you all so very, very much.

HONORING OUR ARMED FORCES
CAPTAIN JASON HAMILL
Mr. LIEBERMAN. Mr. President, I rise today to pay tribute to Capt Jason Hamill, U.S. Army, 31, who grew up in Salem, CT.

Nearing the completion of a year-long tour in Baghdad, serving with E Company, 3rd Battalion, 67th Armored Regiment, 4th Infantry Division, Fort Hood, TX, Capt Hamill died of injuries sustained when his military vehicle encountered an improvised explosive device.

Known for his sense of humor and as a bit of a free spirit, he was a proud family man. He followed in his father’s footsteps serving in the military with a deep, strong sense of purpose and belief in what he was doing. Prior to entering the Army, Capt Hamill was a member of BOTC at the University of Connecticut earning the respect of his fellow members and classmates, as well as his engineering degree. He lived as a true patriot and defender of our great Nation’s principles of freedom and justice serving in Afghanistan and Kosovo in addition to Iraq.

Hamill was a member of BOTC at the University of Connecticut earning the respect of his fellow members and classmates, as well as his engineering degree. He lived as a true patriot and defender of our great Nation’s principles of freedom and justice serving in Afghanistan and Kosovo in addition to Iraq.

Captain Hamill is a true example of the powerful American spirit that permeates this Nation’s history. He served as a messenger of truth, justice and idealism in the best tradition of American principles and patriotism. I am both proud and grateful that we have the kind of fighting force exemplified by Captain Hamill serving in the Persian Gulf—and the strong families back at home sending their love and support.

He was a credit to his family, his community, his service, and his country. Our Nation extends its heartfelt condolences to his wife, Karen, who he just married last year, and his parents, Sharon and Richard. We extend our appreciation for sharing this outstanding soldier with us, and we offer our prayers as well.

I also want to acknowledge East High School sophomore Junior Cruz, who as part of his Eagle Scout project came up with the idea of “Adam Galvée Street” and saw it through to its fruition.

I am blessed to live in a great State in the greatest country in the world. We learn about young heroes such as Adam Galvée. I am reminded that our true greatness lies in the sacrifice of such noble and brave service members.

PRIVATE FIRST CLASS DANIEL G. DOLAN, USA
Mr. President, on this the 65th anniversary of the attack on Pearl Harbor, I rise to pay tribute to a young American who gave his life to ensure that our nation will never be attacked again. That young man’s name was PFC Daniel G. Dolan.

Just 1 month before his 19th birthday, Private First Class Dolan joined the Army during a time of war. No doubt due to his professionalism, Private First Class Dolan was assigned to the 3rd Brigade of the 2nd Infantry Division, which is the elite 1st Stryker Brigade. This professionalism was also recognized when he was awarded, posthumously, the Bronze Star, Purple Heart and Combat Infantry Badge.

We, as a nation, are truly blessed to have such young men and women who are willing to serve. Private First Class Dolan’s life was short, but from what I have read it was full. I understand that he was an avid hockey player and fan who played for Roy High School and also served as an arithmetic teacher. I also been told that standing up for what is right is something that Private First Class Dolan did since childhood, standing up for his little sister and the other children in the neighborhood. He was a credit to his family, his community, his service, and his country.

I rise today to pay tribute to CPL Adam A. Galvée, USMC.
SECOND LIEUTENANT SCOTT B. LUNDELL, UANG

Mr. President, today I rise to pay tribute to a true American hero, 2LT Scott B. Lundell. Such a description is appropriate to describe Lieutenant Lundell, who was killed in an ambush while training an Afghan Army patrol in Oruzgan Province, Afghanistan.

Lieutenant Lundell was by all accounts a first-rate officer. He had risen through the ranks, first enlisting in 2004 at the age of 32 in the Utah National Guard’s 19th Special Forces Group and then graduating from Officer Candidate School.

Lieutenant Lundell truly felt a calling to serve, especially after the events of September 11, 2001. I have read that his wife Jeanine remembers that he was not satisfied supporting the war from home but wanted to make a difference overseas, so much so that he did not wait for the next deployment of his unit. Instead he volunteered for his final assignment, training the Afghan military, and went to Afghanistan. Lieutenant Lundell’s brother-in-law said, “He did not die doing what he loved—he died doing what he felt passionately about.”

Lieutenant Lundell believed in the rightness of his cause so much that when the youngest of his four children was born he named her Liberty. I am humbled that I had the honor to represent such a patriot in this august body.

MAJOR MARTA MALTBY, USAR

Mr. President, I rise to pay tribute to MAJ Marta Maltby, who died of natural causes during her deployment with the 328th Combat Support Hospital at Landstuhl Regional Medical Center in Germany.

This was the second time this intrepid care nurse had deployed overseas during a time of war to care for our Nation’s wounded. Major Maltby also deployed with the 328th during OperationDesert Storm. Accordingly, she was awarded the Meritorious Service Medal.

Recently, I was able to spend some time with Major Maltby’s mother, during an Army Reserve ceremony that, in part, honored the major. I deeply appreciated this opportunity because I was able to learn just how caring and remarkable a person Marta was, as a daughter, wife, and as mother to two grown children.

As I said at that ceremony, Major Maltby, and the rest of her unit, took a glimmer of hope and made survival and recovery a reality for hundreds of our servicemembers. These are also words that describe a true hero.

Our thoughts and prayers go out to the Maltby family during their time of grieving. May they find solace in knowing that the country appreciates the selfless dedication of their wife, daughter and mother, MAJ Marta Maltby.

RECONCILIATION PROGRAMS

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, in fiscal year 2004 I initiated a new fund in the Foreign Operations Appropriations Act entitled “Reconciliation Programs.” This fund is managed by the U.S. Agency for International Development’s Office of Conflict Management and Mitigation. In fiscal year 2006 it was funded at $15 million, and its purpose is to help individuals and communities engage in activities “which bring together individuals of different ethnic, religious and political backgrounds from areas of civil conflict and war.” Our intent is to support initiatives of organizations representing groups of people who have been in conflict with each other to promote better understanding and reconciliation.

This is a global program, and the funds have been allocated to support projects in countries in Latin America, Africa, Asia and the Middle East. For reasons that should be obvious, the Israeli-Palestinian conflict is the focus of many organizations in that region that seek to bring representatives of both parties to build trust, improve understanding, and find common solutions to the roots of the conflict.

There are dozens of conflicts in the world, and $15 million is too little money to support all our meritorious reconciliation proposals. This is particularly true in the Middle East. USAID has funded several organizations that bring together Israelis and Palestinians, but funding constraints and the military efforts to keep it isolated have put severe downward pressure on the organization. This unmet need is the subject of a recent op-ed in the Palestine Times which poses some important questions. I ask unanimous consent that the article by Rabbi Michael Cohen, who has done extraordinary work in this area, be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

[From the Palestine Times, Dec. 5, 2006]

PALESTINIAN PERMITS AND NGOs (Rabbi Michael M. Cohen)

The day after Israel observed the 11th anniversary of the murder of Yitzhak Rabin Haaretz summed up the Arab-Israeli conflict. “After more than six years of continuous fighting, neither side appears to have given up on the basic assumption at the beginning of the Intifada. The Palestinians and the Israelis are both still convinced the other side understands only force.”

The latest cease-fire in Gaza, shaky at best with Qassam Rockets still being fired into Israel, is a move in the right direction to quell the use of force by both sides. The truth is that for the past year we have not seen meetings between Israel and the Palestinians. King Abdullah has said more than once that unless there is tangible movement towards peace in the upcoming months this conflict will be cursed to go on for decades.

The Talmud teaches a very profound lesson about the use of force and power. In separate movements the prophets Daniel and Jeremiah ask the question how mighty is God. The Talmud responds with equal audacity by stating that God’s might can also be found and experienced wherever God decides to withhold his might and power. This is a lesson too often lost in this holy corner of the world.

There are scores of NGOs across Israel and the Palestinian Authority working together that understand that force will never translate peace into reality. In the ebb and flow of events these NGOs are on-going constant to strengthen the majority of Israelis and Palestinians who desire peace. At one time these organizations could apply for funds through the President’s Peacock Program grants from the US government. These have been cut from the US Budget so, for example, organizations of the American Friends for Peace in the East (ALLMRE) are limited where they can find funds.

Funding reconciliation attempts are made by ALLMRE to create a separate fund for NGOs working to end the Arab-Israeli conflict they are told by Congress that countries like Israel, Jordan, Egypt, etc., already get their aid, while other areas of conflict get much less. The only way to create such a fund would be to reduce aid, much of it military, to those countries. One question that was not asked recently of Prime Minister Olmert when he was in Washington was, “Would you be willing to have a few million dollars that Israel receives shifted to organizations that work towards reconciliation between Israelis and Palestinians?” At present the United States is spending $200 million a day for the war in Iraq. One wonders if the Palestinian-Israeli conflict a few hours worth of that spending, and we would see the Palestinian-Israeli conflict end in less than a year.

One of the key ingredients to reconciliation between Israelis and Palestinians is the ability to meet each other. For years now the Arava Institute for Environmental Studies, the premier teaching and research program in the Middle East where future Arab and Jewish leaders are prepared to co-operatively solve the region’s environmental challenges, has been unable to get permits for Palestinian students outside of East Jerusalem to study on its campus. This includes students who wish to, “learn to use the environment as an approach to peace building between Palestinians and Israelis.”

At present the Arava Institute has put together a coalition that includes the office of U.S. Ambassador Richard Jones, USAID, Members of the Knesset Ori Noked and Ami Ayalon, the Middle East Division of the Israel Foreign Ministry, and Gisha: the Center for the Legal Protection of Freedom of Movement. This coalition is working to challenge the Israeli policy of not issuing any new study permits for Palestinians, who have security clearance, and who wish to study in Israel. This policy flies in the face of the Agreement on Movement and Access that was signed last year by the United States, Israel, and the Palestinian Authority. Another question not asked of Prime Minister Olmert: “What will be your end this blanket policy of no new study permits for Palestinians to study in Israel?”

I am humbled that I had the honor to represent such a patriot in this august body.

Prime Minister Olmert reached out to Palestinians a few days ago when he spoke at the grave of Ben-Gurion and reiterated his statement to the Palestinian Authority working together. Turning to Prime Minister Olmert he said, “We have no choice and they have no choice. And a peace of no choice should be approached with the same determination and creativity as one approaches a war of no choice. And those who believe we do have a choice, or that time is on our side do not comprehend the deeply dangerous processes already underway.”
back up such words by both Palestinians and Israelis. An affirmative answer by Prime Minister Olmert to the questions raised above would signal a tangible seriousness about moving the process forward, and would show a determination and creativity that is so desperately needed. Similar action will also need to come from the Palestinian side, for both Arab and Palestinian peoples must move the peace process forward and not backward.

DARFUR

Mrs. CLINTON. Mr. President, the crisis in Darfur demands a more robust response. In July 2004, more than 2 years ago, the United States Senate declared genocide in Darfur. As the crisis has continued, as the death toll has mounted, it was hard to believe that the situation on the ground could deteriorate further. Unfortunately, it has, and the realities today are even worse than they were in July 2004.

As many as 4 million civilians have been uprooted from their homes, and by some accounts 400,000 people have been killed. Countless women and young girls are being violently and sexually abused. Escalating violence is forcing the evacuation of many vital relief workers. These realities are well documented. We have United Nations, U.N., reports, State Department reports, reports from our colleagues who have traveled to the region, and countless other reports that tell us what has happened, what is happening, and who may be responsible.

In the face of this crisis, the response of many citizens, officials, relief workers, and journalists has been impressive and inspiring. Their courageous efforts are testimony to the great work that can be done by individuals who act on their moral duty to end atrocities.

The Senate also has taken important steps. We have provided funding to African Union peacekeepers and to humanitarian workers; we have urged NATO assistance; we have encouraged the establishment of a no-fly zone; we have supported sanctions against the perpetrators of violence; we have established Presidential accountability by requiring regular reports on Darfur; and we have demanded the appointment of a Presidential Envoy to Sudan. We must continue to shine a spotlight and to take action wherever possible.

But like many of my constituents, I am disturbed that the killings and rapes and violence continue. I fear that our efforts and those of many Americans are not being complemented by equal efforts from our President. I again urge the administration to be more proactive and to turn the tables on Khartoum.

Khartoum repeatedly has committed to disarm the Jingaweit. In fact, the Government of Sudan committed to do so long ago, in the summer of 2004. To date, this promise remains unfulfilled. And this Spring, Sudanese officials said that U.N. peacekeepers would be allowed into Darfur once a peace deal was agreed. This commitment has been broken also. These abandoned promises may not be surprising in light of Khartoum’s intransigence. What is astonishing is that Khartoum has faced few consequences for these massive failures, and worse, that Khartoum still is being allowed to dictate the terms of peacekeeping and humanitarian assistance.

I implore the administration to learn from this grim history, and to get one step ahead of the leaders in Khartoum. We must prepare for all scenarios, not just those we seek.

Going forward, our agreements with Khartoum must include some “teeth” to incentivize compliance. We should remind Khartoum that we already have good records of the crimes committed in Darfur and of the suspected perpetrators. We also should pursue without delay all points of pressure that have been authorized by the U.N. Security Council. We must demonstrate to Khartoum that continued intransigence will be more painful than cooperation.

As we pursue these measures with Khartoum, we should remind rebel groups that they will be held accountable for violations of international law. In addition, we should work urgently with partners to stabilize eastern Chad and the Central African Republic.

I suspect that history will pass exacting judgment on all parties who have acted insufficiently to end the suffering in Darfur. But history is a long way off for the people of Darfur, and I will continue to work urgently with colleagues towards peace in Sudan and the region. I urge the President to work more proactively to end this un/conscionable crisis.

TRIBUTE TO JASON LEE

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I rise today to recognize a member of my staff, Jason Christopher Lee, who has been recalled to active Federal service as a member of the United States Army Reserve and will deploy in support of Operation Iraqi Freedom.

Jason joined my staff in February 2005, where he has done a tremendous job serving in the Norfolk office. In addition, Jason is attending college at Old Dominion University, where he is maintaining an excellent grade point average while studying communications.

I believe Jason’s success is due to his distinguished service in the U.S. Army, where he has attained the rank of corporal and is responsible for leading fellow soldiers into battle. This is not the first time Jason has answered the call of duty in support of our country. He has previously served in both Kosovo and Iraq, where he earned the Army Commendation Medal and was recognized as an outstanding soldier. Indeed, Jason was originally scheduled to be discharged from the Army prior to his Iraq tour, but he answered his country’s call to arms and was deployed to some of the most dangerous locations in Iraq in 2003 and 2004. Following this period, Jason was recalled to active Federal service and was placed in the inactive reserve.

Though generals and admirals may be the public face of this war, it is servicemembers, such as Jason, who fill the ranks of our formations, who carry out our Nation’s policy to the deadly streets of Iraq, Afghanistan, and elsewhere. They do not complain about the hazardous conditions they face, but go on with the knowledge that this Nation relies on them to fulfill their duty under all conditions. We owe them all a tremendous debt of gratitude for their selfless service.

Jason, I salute your courage and your unending personal sacrifice on behalf of this country. I join your family and friends in wishing you a swift and safe return.

FAREWELL TO THE SENATE

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. President, as the time for my departure from the Senate draws near, on behalf of the greatest blessings in my life, my wife Susan, and my children, Tyler, Forrest, and Brooke, I wish to thank my colleagues for their many courtesies and friendships forged during these past 6 years, and offer a few concluding reflections on our time here together, and the future of our Republic.

Our foremost senior statesman in Virginia, one who served with particular distinction in this body—Harry Byrd Jr.—has observed that, with the exception of the Presidencies of Abraham Lincoln and Franklin Roosevelt, no time in our Nation’s history has been witness to more problems and challenges of great magnitude than these past 6 years.

When I arrived here in January 2001, America was at peace—or so we thought. And then on the bright, blue sky morning of September 11, the skies were suddenly darkened with clouds of smoke from the Pentagon, and the horrific collapse of the World Trade Center Towers. And our world changed forever.

When I arrived in this body, accompanying a change of Presidential administrations, our challenges were mostly economic—or so we thought. Our prosperity was already slipping, but most forecasts were for a mild downturn in the economy. That changed on September 11 as well.

A cascade of other great challenges soon followed in rapid succession—issues foreign and domestic, challenges locally and nationally, threats man-made and disasters decreed by nature.

Through all of these unprecedented storms, it was our responsibility to make careful, prayerful decisions for the safety, security and prosperity of the people of our country.
I am particularly grateful to the people of the Commonwealth of Virginia for the opportunity to serve here—to give voice to their values and to fight for their future in this, the world’s most distinguished body.

We must understand and respect the will of the people—the owners of the government—in our representative democracy that brings us here and that may, at some point, take us away.

Sometimes winds, political and otherwise, blow the leaves off branches and break branches off trees. But a deep-rooted tree will stand and grow again in the next season.

And, if Providence accords it the right climate and nourishment, that tree will bear fruit for generations to come, and give life to other trees.

I have been honored, first as Governor and now as Senator, to be a part of important initiatives that have borne fruit for the people of Virginia and Americans.

As Governor, we worked across party lines to accomplish the honest change that Virginians had desired and deserved. We abolished the deceitful, le- nient parole laws, brought truth to sentencing, brought violent criminals to justice, and reformed our juvenile justice laws.

Today, the crime rate is down, and thousands of good people are not victims of crime, have not lost loved ones, have not had their lives shattered, because we are strong for truth and justice, and our reforms bore fruit.

We also brought high academic standards, accountability and new resources to Virginia’s education system. We stopped skyrocketing college tuition rates.

Our education reform initiatives quickly became models for other States, and even for this body in enacting education reform legislation for the nation.

These reforms, too, are bearing fruit. Today, Virginia students are learning more and performing markedly better on both state and national tests. Our schools are no longer engaging in social promotion.

And with investments in higher education from the coalfields with Appa- lachian School of Law and School of Pharmacy, to the Institute in Danville, to southwest Virginia and Roanoke HEC’s, to the Engineering School of VCU, to cutting-edge research at Virginia Tech, George Mason, Hampton and other universities we are equipping young men and women to succeed in the ever-more-competitive global marketplace.

And we replaced dependency with jobs rather than sit at home, collecting a check.

Nothing was more rewarding for me as Governor than to help ignite Vir- ginia’s economic renaissance. We sent a message to the world that Virginia has lowered taxes, reduced regulations, imple- mented prompt permitting, and re- cruited high-technology companies like IBM and Toshiba, Micron and Infineon—now Qimonda—Oracle’s east coast campus, millions of dollars in investment in semiconductor fabrication plants for world-class companies.

Before we recruited those companies 10 years ago, there were no computer memory chips manufactured in Virginia. Today, computer memory chips have replaced cigarettes as Virginia’s No. 1 manufactured export. We’re not just the “Old Dominion” anymore; now we’re the “New Science Capital”.

When I came to the Senate, my goal was to use this perspective and experience to continue and build on this work. I wanted to bring to our national policies the same emphasis on education reform, and re- phasis on economic opportunity—the same emphasis on protecting the safety and security of law-abiding people—the same time-tested values—that had guided my governorship.

I have been able to do that, and I am grateful to many of you for working in partnership with me on so many issues that are vitally important for the lives and safety and prosperity of our cit- izens.

Our time together has been full of challenge. But despite the broken branches and shattered limbs and lives of 9/11, America has stood strong like a live oak. We have relied on our roots as a freedom-loving nation. Out of these stormy times has grown a new national sense of urgency, resolve and mission. And this new spirit is bearing fruit today, and will for many years to come.

Yes, the people of America have grown impatient with the pace of this progress. It is not easy during pro- longed periods of national trial to sus- tain an attitude of optimism and a sense of purpose. Our foes know this about desperateness, and they seek to exploit it. But they will not succeed.

We Americans, of so many faiths and so many backgrounds, share this spirit above all else: We believe in the pos- sible, we are humane, we can achieve what we set out to do during our time here on Earth. But our opponents have no such belief. They fear human freedom, and glorify the extinguishing of human life more than the fruitful living of it. They will not succeed in their mission because they are only destroyers, and the world belongs to those who create.

The God who gave us life, and who presides over the affairs of all nature and all nations, endowed mankind with a powerful spirit of creation, regeneration, and renewal.

The attackers of 9/11 thought they would kill our spirit, but they only re- kindled it. And, despite one of the most unsettled and challenging times in our Nation’s history, look at what we have to show for it.

Our economy is displaying unprece- dented strength. Unemployment is the lowest it has been in a generation. Home values are significantly higher than just a few years ago, and the stock market is at a record high level. The tax burden on our people is at a 20-year low, while Federal tax revenues are at all-time highs, and inflation is under control.

There has not been a single terrorist attack on American soil since 9/11, and numerous major plots have been foiled. The al-Qaeda leadership has been deci- mated, and instead of meeting the enemy here at home, we have taken the fight to them in Afghanistan, Paki- stan, and Iraq and in locales that will never be known. Even with the world at war against a lethal enemy of radical terrorist organizations Americans are safer today than on 9/11.

We must respectfully work with other countries in intercepting fi- nances, creatively collaborating in law enforcement, combating terrorism efforts to thwart and defeat terrorist activity throughout the world.

This war on terror has many fronts. And all of us are deeply concerned about the lack of progress of the war on the Iraqi front. Although our prin- ciples and strategic goals have not changed, mistakes have been made and progress has been too slow. We cannot continue to do the same things and ex- pect different results. We must re- adapt our operations and change our tactics to meet the evolving terrorist threat. And the Iraqi people and their leaders must take control of their destiny.

Let us never forget, however, that our American troops are liberators who have freed a people from a brutal dic- tator and regime. In so doing, they and their families have made great sac- rifices not only for the freedom of Iraqis, but for the security of Ameri- canos. They more than anyone under- stand the consequences of failure in Iraq are far too high. Leaving Iraq as a safe haven for terrorists to launch new attacks will put America in mortal danger. Our troops should come home as soon as possible, but those should come home in victory—not defeat.

This global war on terror is still a work in progress, and much of the work is difficult. But I will leave here today with satisfaction that so many of the crucial steps we took to meet the challenges of the post-9/11 world have worked, and worked well.

The Patriot Act and other new and technologically sophisticated counter- terrorism measures designed to protect our homeland are working, and work- ing well.

Our courageous men and women in uniform, an All-Volunteer military that is the most powerful fighting force in the history of the world, is hard at work for us, and working well. We have also worked well on the do- mestic front. And I take great personal
That is why I have been the lead Republican cosponsor of the Partnership Access to Laboratory Science Act with Senator MENENDEZ, which will provide science education and laboratory grants for students in rural and low-income schools.

And that is why I have led the charge for legislation to help remedy the opportunity divide at America’s minority-serving institutions—the HBCUs, Hispanic-serving institutions, and tribal colleges. I am grateful for the Senate’s support of this initiative and hope it will very soon become a reality. All these initiatives I respectfully urge you all to pass and stay with them until they become law. For my part, I will continue to advocate for these incentives and this major national commitment to make sure that the U.S. is indeed the world capital of innovation.

Investing in education and innovation is vital for our global competitiveness, and so is achieving energy independence. Indeed, energy independence an economic necessity; it’s also a national security imperative. Our dependence on Middle Eastern oil limits our foreign policy options for addressing terrorism, tyranny and related geopolitical issues.

We have made some important strides in accelerating the exploration and development of American energy supplies, including American oil, natural gas, clean coal and nuclear power. And we’ve made progress in hastening the research, development and deployment of economically viable alternative and renewable sources of energy. But here we must all agree that there is far more to be done.

The bottom line is we need more energy explored, produced, and grown in America, so that hundreds of billions of energy dollars stay in America and are reinvested in America’s economy for American jobs, American competitiveness, and American security—instead of having to worry about the whims of some dictator in the Middle East, or some other hostile part of the world.

There are so many ways that what we have done here during the last six years has made a positive impact on the opportunities facing citizens all across our country.

In Virginia, whether it is the major port expansion at Crayne Island, or funding the Virginia Space and Applied Polymer Processing Institute in Danville, or the effort to assure that new development opportunities at Fort Belvoir are matched by adequate transportation facilities whether it is educational research funding, or new resources for roads and mass transit, or grants to make our communities safer, or in hundreds of other ways we have been able to have a major, positive impact on people’s lives all across the Commonwealth of Virginia.

And we have also broken down barriers to opportunity. My very first speech on the Senate floor was on behalf of Roger Gregory’s appointment as a federal judge on the esteemed Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals that sits in Richmond.

Judge Gregory had been nominated at the end of President Clinton’s term, but he did not get a vote, and to become a judge he had to be renominated by President Bush. So my first speech was to call on my Senate colleagues to rise above partisanship, rise above process, judge Roger Gregory as a person, and give him the fairness of a vote.

You did so, and as a result, Judge Gregory is serving with distinction on the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals, the first African American to serve on that esteemed appeals court.

For the good of our country, the Judiciary, and this Senate, I urge you—regardless of the party in power here and at the other end of Pennsylvania Avenue—to end the obstructionist practices of those who oppose, or other nominees, the fairness of an up or down vote, and that deny the American people the accountability that the advice-and-consent process should afford.

Mary Estrada was a victim of this unfair obstructionism, although a majority of Senators supported his confirmation. Let John Bolton be the last victim of these unfair, obstructionist practices.

Our Constitution provides a better way; let’s follow it.

Finally, during these times of war, we are all keenly aware of the sacrifice made by the men and women serving in our Armed Forces and their families. Virginia is home to more people serving in uniform than all but a handful of states, and so when a loved one is lost, we feel the pain very directly, very personally. A grateful nation must support the families of those who have fallen in defense of our liberty. That is why I introduced a bill in the first hours of the first days of this 109th Session to increase the military death benefit from the paltry amount of $12,420 to $100,000. I thank you for passing it, and I thank the President for signing it.

At each step of the way, on this measure and so many others, I have never worked alone. Always at my side, as a partner—but even more as a gracious mentor, wise counsel, constant encourager, occasional corrector, and unwavering friend—has been our state’s senior Senator, John Warner. He has been the epitome of the Virginia gentleman, the model of an honest, hard-working Senator, and most of all, a true and loyal friend. I will leave here enriched immeasurably by this latest and best chapter in our partnership—never worked alone.

My friends and colleagues, as I prepare to take my leave, I am humbled and so grateful for the tremendous honor and privilege that has been accorded to me by the people of Virginia. I am also full of gratitude for the opportunity to serve with you and for the many courtesies you have extended to Susan and me along the way.
December 7, 2006

I leave with many new and enduring friendships, with some valuable lessons learned, with unrestrained optimism about the potential of America, about our nation’s future, and with pride in our accomplishments together.

My friends, don’t let these challenges along our national journey divert your focus from what truly matters.

The tree of American liberty is as strong as ever. Our roots run deep to a wellspring of values as old as our Republic itself.

Four hundred years after our Nation’s beginning at Jamestown, we are still in the springtime of our life as a nation. Still planting seeds and bearing fruit. Still growing and creating. Still inspiring and innovating. Still providing light and hope for people around the world seeking to escape the chains of tyranny, and embrace the blessings of liberty.

Indeed, the sun is still rising on a bright American morning!

And to the faith, no matter the challenges or choices, generations to come will remember and think well of us, for this: We never gave up. We never backed down, and, we always stood strong for freedom.

REMARKS TO THE GERMAN MARSHALL FUND CONFERENCE

Mr. LUGAR. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that my remarks, delivered in a keynote address at the German Marshall Fund conference on Monday, November 27, in Riga, Latvia, in advance of the NATO Summit, be printed in the Record.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the Record, as follows:

Thank you, Madame President [Dr. Vaira Vike-Freiberga, President of the Republic of Latvia]. I appreciate your thoughtful introduction and your generous hospitality. It is a pleasure to be in Riga and to deliver the keynote address here at this important German Marshall Fund conference. This conference and the participants it has drawn are evidence of the deep respect the Fund merits throughout Europe and North America.

In 1991 NATO stood at a crossroads. With the collapse of the Soviet Union and the Warsaw Pact, the Alliance could have declared victory and disbanded. Instead, NATO chose to adapt to the new security environment and build on its legacy of being the most secure defense and security organization in history.

Since that time, we have welcomed ten new members into the Alliance and have begun transforming our military capabilities. We have also undertaken missions in the Balkans and Afghanistan that have extended the purpose of the Alliance and the territorial defense of its membership. However, while NATO is busier than ever, these activities do not guarantee that the Alliance will remain strong and relevant.

For nearly half a century, NATO was oriented toward defending against an attack from the East by Warsaw Pact forces. Today, NATO must remain prepared by emerging threats such as the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction, rogue states, terrorism, and genocide. The security threats of the 21st century require NATO members to deploy forces rapidly over long distances, sustain operations for extended periods of time, and operate with pre-existing partners with the United States in high intensity conflicts. To be fully relevant to the security and well being of the people of its member nations, NATO must act globally.

THE TEST OF AFGHANISTAN

This is evident in the NATO mission in Afghanistan. That country presents a difficult environment, but NATO must be resourceful, resilient, and proportionate. The September 11 attacks were planned in Afghanistan, al-Qaeda still operates there, and the fate of the country remains inexorably tied to the success of the International Security and Assistance Force (ISAF) is responsible for security operations throughout all of Afghanistan.

In recent months, Taliban attacks have occurred with greater frequency, coordination, and ferocity. They have extended well beyond the South and East, where most of the fighting has been located. Although the hunt for al-Qaeda terrorists continues, the primary threat to the stability of Afghanistan is Taliban insurgents who are challenging and disrupting public order among the Afghans, cooperating with the narcotics trade and complicating security efforts in ways that inhibit the rule of law.

If the most prominent alliance in modern history were to fail in its first operation outside of Europe due to a lack of will by its members, the legitimacy of NATO and the ability to take joint action against a terrorist threat would be called into question. Moreover, Afghanistan has a legitimately elected government and people, both of which deserve a chance to succeed without the threat of violent upheaval.

It is imperative that NATO fulfills its commitments to Afghanistan. The Alliance has found it difficult to generate the political will to meet NATO objectives. The reluctance in capitals to grant NATO requests for troops and resources have complicated this process. Despite months of intensive discussions, Supreme Allied Commander Europe, General Richard J. Shirreff, in September said that NATO was 2,500 troops short of the minimal commitment requested for ISAF. These troopshortages did not materialize until General Whyte and other NATO leaders publicly put Alliance nations on the spot for these shortfalls.

Afghanistan has become a test case for whether we can overcome the growing discrepancy between NATO’s expanding missions and its lagging capabilities. NATO commanders must have the resources to provide security, and they must have the flexibility to use troops to meet Afghanistan’s most critical security needs. Unfortunately, NATO capitals are making the military misstep of increasing their own national caveats on the use of their forces. These restrictions are contradictory, with troop shortages, making ISAF a less cohesive and capable force.

Similar problems are plaguing the NATO Response Force (NRF), which is slated to be NATO’s expeditionary fighting unit. As is often the case, there is a glaring deficiency. I am hopeful that the plan to establish a fleet of C-17s under the command and control of NATO succeeds. Thomas Enders, the CEO of Airbus, has said that the Alliance and its members will respond to the challenge and others, we must reverse the downward spiral of defense spending. This is a matter of the alliance and build on its legacy of being the most secure defense and security organization.

NATO must think and act globally. The commitment of NATO and the West to Afghanistan’s emergence as a stable and free society.

CENTRALITY OF ENERGY

NATO’s challenges continue to come in new formations. We have to understand not only the military configuration of threats before us, but also the likely basis for future conflict. The NATO alliance has been successful, not because it fought wars, but because it prevented them. NATO was able to mobilize all of its members beyond the mission of military defense and begin to think about how to prevent the conditions that will lead to war.

In the coming decades, the most likely source of armed conflict in the European theater and the surrounding regions will be energy security and manipulation. It would be irresponsible for NATO to decline involvement in energy security, when it is abundantly apparent that the jobs, health, and security of our modern societies depend on the sufficiency and timely availability of diverse energy resources. We must hope that the economics of supply and pricing surrounding energy transactions will be rational and transparent. We hope that nations with abundant oil and natural gas will reliably supply these resources in normal market transactions to those who need them. We hope that pipelines, sea lanes, and other means of transmission will be safe. We hope that energy cartels will not be formed to limit available supplies and manipulate markets. We hope that energy rich nations will not exclude or confine profit hungry energy investments in the name of nationalism. And we hope that vast energy wealth will not be a source of corruption within nations that desperately ask for foreign aid.

Unfortunately, our experiences provide little reason to be confident that market rationality will be the guide behind energy policy and transactions. The majoriticy of oil and natural gas supplies and reserves in the world are not controlled by efficiently owned and operated companies. Governments and politics have created oil and natural gas superpowers that nearly monopolize the world’s oil supply. According to PFC Energy, the investments in the expansion of the world’s oil reserves through national oil companies. These governments set prices through their investment and production decisions, and they have wide latitude to shut off the taps for political reasons.

The vast majority of these oil assets are affiliated by at least one of three reasons: lack of investment, political manipulation, or the threat of instability and terrorism. As recently as four years ago, spare production capacity was sufficient to cover only about ten percent. As world demand for oil has rapidly increased in the last few years, spare capacity has declined to two percent or less. And interruptions of oil supply can drive up prices. Earlier this year, a routine inspection found corrosion in a section of BP’s Frudhoe Bay oil pipeline that shut off oil exports to US, oil outpacing a $2 spike in oil prices. That the oil market is this vulnerable to something as mundane as corrosion in a pipeline is evidence of the precarious conditions in which we live.

Within the last year and a half, the international flow of oil has been disrupted by hurricanes, unrest in Nigeria, and continued sabotage in Iraq. Al-Qaeda and other terorist organizations have openly declared their intent to attack oil facilities to inflict pain on Western economies. We should also recognize that some members are suffering hundreds of billions of dollars each year to some of the least accountable, autocratic regimes in the world. The revenues to authoritarian regimes often increase cor-rup tion in those countries and allow them to insulate themselves from international pressure on the issue of energy and to prop up their own peoples. As large industrializing nations such as China and India seek new energy supplies, oil and natural gas may not be ample and accessible enough to support continued economic growth in both the industrialized West and in large rapidly growing economies. In these conditions, energy supplies will determine the outcome of an even stronger magnet for conflict.

Under the worst case scenarios, oil and natural gas will be the currency through which energy-rich countries leverage their interests against import dependent nations.
The use of energy as an overt weapon is not a theoretical threat of the future; it is happening now. Iran has repeatedly threatened to cut off oil exports to selected nations if economic sanctions are imposed against it for its nuclear enrichment program. Russia’s shut off of its gas deliveries to Ukraine dem-strate how tempting it is to use energy cutoff and a member facing a military submission to foreign coercion because of an energy security. The economic and political impact on Western economies. We should also recognize that there is little ultimate difference between a member being forced to submit to foreign coercion because of an energy cutoff and a member facing a military blockade or other military demonstration on its borders.

In preparing for such a commitment, NATO leaders should develop a strategy that includes the re-supply of a victim of an agrressive energy suspension. How would the Alliance shift of strategy and services to help a member under such an attack? What steps can NATO take now to ensure that we have the infrastructure in place to respond to such an attack? What steps are needed to diversify our energy sources and supply routes to deter the use of energy as a weapon? Alto previous billion barrel pipeline routes must be identified and financial and political support for the development of alternative energy sources is crucial. A coordinated and well-organized strategy may also be a deterrent that would reduce the chances of miscalculation or military conflict. It would also provide a powerful incentive for Member countries to accelerate reforms and offer perspective members to accelerate reforms necessary to qualify for membership.

The energy threat is more difficult to prepare for than a ground war in Central Europ e. Troops, equipment, and supplies can move along highways and over difficult terrin. Energy supplies do not enjoy the same mobility. Developing a logistical response to an energy cutoff will prove a complex challenge.

My friend, the former U.S. Under Secretary of State for Policy, has proposed reviving the REFORGER exercises of the Cold War. These exercises were carried out to prepare a NATO force and equipment re-supply mission that would be required to thwart a Soviet attack. A new REFORGER should focus on how the Ali-ance would work with its member states who lack the energy resources needed to withstand geo-strategic blackmail. This will not be easy. Members of the Alliance will be required to tighten their belts and make hard choices. But, if we fail to prepare, we will intensify our predicament.

Beyond constructing strong alliance com-mittments related to energy, NATO must engage Russia and other energy rich nations. I advocate establishing regular high-level consultations between Russia and NATO on energy security. The economic and political implications of energy as a weapon are reflected by the price of energy. Moscow is banking on big returns from its energy sector indedependently of the state of the global economy, and increases in the price of oil significantly into the future. But the fickleness of energy markets affects not only consumers, but producers.

I believe that Russia has a long-term interest in securing a more credible deterrent that comes with greater investment in its energy sector and the development of a reputation as a trusted supplier. But its recent miscalculation or military conflict. It would prove a complex challenge.

Under the worst case scenarios, oil and energy cutoff and a member facing a military

mittments related to energy, NATO must en-should be invited to join NATO as soon as they meet Alliance requirements. Each has expressed a strong desire to join the Alliance, and each is capable of making important contributions. While I am disappointed that invitations will not be extended here at Riga, we must increase the tempo of cooperation between the Alliance and those states.

NATO should also invite Georgia to join the Alliance. Tbilisi is a young democratic government, resisting pressure from breakaway republics backed by Moscow and Russian separatist groups. Georgia has been a superb role model for the region, and it is host to critical segments of the Baku-Tbilisi-Ceyhan oil pipeline and the Southern Caucasus natural gas pipeline. Two months ago, the NATO Secretary General announced that the Alliance had launched an Intensified Dialogue with Georgia. While this is an important step, NATO must grant a Membership Action Plan as soon as possible.

After recovering from recent political instability, Ukraine has indicated that it wants to move more slowly toward NATO membership. I am pleased that Kiev has acknowledged the important work needed to accurately convey to its population what NATO could mean. While I hope this process might move more quickly, I urge the Alliance, when all applicable criteria are satisfied, to support efforts for Ukraine to join NATO.

The Alliance must also continue to encourage Belgrade to meet its international obligations, which include full cooperation with the International Criminal Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia. With additional progress on war criminals and other important reforms, Serbia would be a valuable member of the Alliance.

CONCLUSION

By their nature, alliances require constant study and revision if they are to be resilient and relevant. They must examine the needs of their members and determine how the Alliance can safeguard the freedom, prosperity, and security of each member. NATO has survived and moved more slowly toward NATO membership. I am pleased that Kiev has acknowledged the important work needed to accurately convey to its population what NATO could mean. While I hope this process might move more quickly, I urge the Alliance, when all applicable criteria are satisfied, to support efforts for Ukraine to join NATO.

The Alliance must also continue to encourage Belgrade to meet its international obligations, which include full cooperation with the International Criminal Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia. With additional progress on war criminals and other important reforms, Serbia would be a valuable member of the Alliance.

I understand that adopting energy security as a mission is a major advancement from NATO’s traditional role. But it represents an historic opportunity to change the circumstances of geopolitics to the benefit of all members. At this summit, we should engage in a broad, strategic discussion on how we can ensure progress in Afghanistan, strengthen NATO through new members, and face the energy security threats of the 21st century together. Although Riga may not produce definitive answers to these questions, it must be the summit that starts the crucial discussion that will lead to conclusions.

The challenges we face are so great that if we wait even a few years, we are likely to find that our alliance is in jeopardy. We will look back at this point in time and see it as a critical juncture that separated those who chose to look forward to working together with each of you to provide this leadership.

Thank you.
valuable advice and assistance in shaping policy there. He was actively engaged in the successful completion of several farm bills. Frank worked to craft the language, negotiate, and iron out differences in conference with the House. He has communicated closely with the administration over the years, all in a very professional and thoughtful way.

Mark and his wife Rhonda are close friends of mine. Mark’s personal qualities are impeccable. He is courteous and fair, works hard, has a strong sense of responsibility, and has good judgment. I appreciate the way he has helped manage the administrative and legislative functions of my office, as well as the counsel he has provided me for the past 17 years.

I am confident that Mark will do an excellent job in helping develop options for the next farm bill. He will be a great resource for the administration, as well as for the Congress.

We will miss him here in the Senate. I am pleased to congratulate him on his nomination and extend my thanks to him for the great job he has done in the Senate.

TRIBUTE TO FRANK C. FIALA

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, I rise today to honor Frank Fiala, superintendent of the Keweenaw National Historical Park. After nearly 32 years of Federal service, Frank will be retiring in January. Frank’s service to our country began in the U.S. Air Force where he worked as a medic from 1969 to 1973. His career then transitioned to the National Park Service, where he has worked to protect our country’s natural and historic treasures and to make them available for the public’s enjoyment and appreciation. Frank’s National Park Service career included assignments at the Lake Clark National Preserve in Alaska, Wrangell-St. Elias National Park and Preserve in Alaska, Rocky Mountain National Park in Colorado, Carlsbad Caverns National Park in New Mexico, and Dinosaur National Monument in Colorado.

For the past 10 years, Frank has served as superintendent of the Keweenaw National Historical Park in Michigan’s Upper Peninsula, working to preserve and interpret the region’s copper mining history. I offer this tribute to Frank because of my 10 years of personal experience working with Frank and witnessing his passion and enthusiasm for Keweenaw’s rich mining history of immigration, labor, vibrant cultures, and changing technologies.

Frank has been an extraordinary park superintendent at Keweenaw. Frank has successfully navigated the challenges of managing a park that owns less than 10 percent of the land within its park boundaries and requires partnering with a variety of public and private organizations. A significant milestone was reached with the completion of the park’s General Management Plan, which Frank shepherd. Development of the plan was at times contentious and involved incorporating viewpoints from multiple stakeholders, including local citizens, businesses, landowners, entrepreneurs, institutions, foundations, and government agencies.

Frank has been an enthusiastic advocate for the park, promoting the Keweenaw Peninsula’s historic and cultural resources serving the park’s role in the future economic development of the region. Where some saw rusted, dilapidated buildings as eyesores, Frank saw them as opportunities. To preserve the historic landscape of copper country, Frank secured funding to make several significant property acquisitions, including the Quincy Mining Company’s Pay Office; the Calumet and Hecla Mining Company General Office Building, which is now the Park Headquarters; the C&H Library, which now houses the park’s extensive archival collections; C&H Warehouse No. 1, and the Union Building.

A true preservationist, Frank successfully fought to stop the replacement of the city of Quincy’s historic water tower on the region’s cultural landscape with an underground storage tank. Frank personally researched and produced the original plans for the historic water tower, and now a replicated water tower stands proudly dedicated to the area’s residents and preserving a key feature of the Keweenaw landscape.

In addition to preserving historic buildings, Frank also helped save a large collection of artifacts from the Calumet & Hecla Mining company, which is being cared for and catalogued by one of the Nation’s finest professional staff of archivists, curators, and museum technicians. Since Frank’s arrival, the park’s museum collection has grown from nothing to over 300,000 historic items.

As anyone who has had the opportunity to drive through the park with Frank knows, Frank truly is a visionary. One is quickly transported back in time to the 19th century, when the Keweenaw produced 85 percent of the Nation’s copper. Frank makes the history of “copper country” come alive: the sounds of the immigrants arriving, the smells of pasties wafting from the lunch pails descending into the deep mine shafts, the tremors from the strikes of 1913 caused by unfair labor conditions. His enthusiasm in relation to interpreting the history of the Keweenaw, and his many years of public service is truly an example to others. His enthusiasm, vision, and proactive approach have given the people of Keweenaw, MI and our Nation a great gift.

Thank you, Frank, for your service, and congratulations on your retirement.

TRIBUTE TO MONTE ZUCKER

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, I rise today to pay tribute to one of our Nation’s preeminent photographers, Monte Zucker. Mr. Zucker has been a creative force in his field for over 50 years. Through his brilliant eye and focused lens, he has earned a place in the annals of photographic masters.

Monte Zucker created contemporary standards for lighting and composition in photographic portraiture. His work is beloved by his clients who cherished the memories so beautifully captured on film. His work is also admired by his peers, who recognize the unique signature and integrity in his work.

Monte Zucker has helped manage the administrative and legislative functions of my office, as well as for the Congress. He assisted the State Department in crafting the language, negotiate, and iron out differences in conference with the House. He has communicated closely with the administration over the years, all in a very professional and thoughtful way.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, as chairman of the Joint Committee on Printing, I want to commend and pay tribute to Bruce R. James, the 24th public printer, who has announced he will retire from his post as chief executive officer of the Government Printing Office on January 3, 2007.

At the President’s request, Bruce came out of retirement to take office at the GPO in December 2002. Since then, he has worked tirelessly to transform that venerable institution into a printing agency into a 21st century digital information processing facility. After a period of factfinding and consultation with GPO’s stakeholders, he issued a strategic vision for the GPO’s future that has guided the management of the agency ever since. Under the plan, he initiated the effort to construct a future digital system to organize, manage, and output authenticated Government information in a broad range of online and print formats. He led efforts to modernize the GPO’s plant operations supporting Congress. He assisted the State Department’s development and issuance of the new electronic U.S. passport and has led efforts to further enhance the GPO’s capacity and the GPO’s documents operation. He worked with the library community to ensure the continued transition to predominately
TRIBUTE TO JERRY M. HAMMOND

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, as chairman of the Joint Committee on Printing, I want to pay tribute to Jerry Hammond, Director of Congressional Publishing Services, who retired from the Government Printing Office, GPO, after 37 years of government service.

Mr. Hammond graduated from DeMatha High School in 1969 and then served as a sergeant, E-5, in the U.S. Marines Corps. Jerry came to GPO in 1972 and graduated in the apprentice class of 1977 in the Hand Section of the Composing Division. Mr. Hammond joined the Office of Congressional Publishing Services in 1985 and was promoted to the position of Director in 2004.

Jerry worked on the night shift at GPO for many years, working closely with the House and Senate, and with Congressional offices, House and Senate, night in and night out, to ensure the production and delivery of the Congressional Record.

Well done.

Thanks of a grateful nation for a job well served over the past 4 years by Public Printer Bruce James. His unceasing call for technology modernization and his steadfast adherence to business best practices will leave a legacy of continued improvement at the GPO for many years to come. As Bruce departs the GPO to return to retirement in his beloved Nevada, he leaves with our best wishes and the thanks of a grateful nation for a job well done.

TRIBUTE TO JERRY M. HAMMOND

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, two Sundays ago, when I was there in mass at Holy Trinity at Georgetown, we listened to a homily about the life of Angelo D’Agostino, SJ. I had been thinking about Father D’Ag, as those of us knew him called him, since I had received word from a dear friend Ben Palumbo that he had died. Ben and Madge Palumbo were wonderful friends to Father D’Ag, as they have been to Marcelle and me.

As Father Kevin O’Brien noted while talking about the home of Father D’Agostino began in Nyumbani, Kenya, Father D’Ag worked tirelessly to raise money, especially for abandoned HIV-positive children. His Nyumbani village was designed to hold together families, where most members had lost their normal family structure because of deaths from AIDS. So many of us, like my friend Senator Dennis DeConcini and others, always responded when the Palumbos asked us to go to fund-raisers to raise money for the work Father D’Agostino was doing throughout Africa. I told some of his fellow Jesuits that we long ago decided that we would do whatever Father D’Agostino wanted—eventually he’d make sure we would anyway, so we might as well try to begin with. Nothing fazed him when he was asking for others. He always went out of his way to remind Senator DeConcini, Ben Palumbo, and me that we shared Italian heritage. I once told him, “Angelo, no matter who you were seeking help from you would find something to connect you, and that would be the reason to do it.” I remember his laugh to this day.

The beauty of Father D’Agostino and the saintly nature of him was that he never asked for anything for himself. It was always for others. He gave a voice to those who had no voice, and he leaves a great gap in their lives.

Even the President of Kenya and his wife attended the funeral to express his sorrow for the death of Father D’Agostino. He told the board members and others at the funeral that they must carry on Father D’Ag’s work.

I am sure that Father D’Agostino would have liked. He founded these homes and wanted to succeed in reducing the prevalence and effects of HIV/AIDS. You should take the responsibility of ensuring that Father D’Agostino’s work continues.”

I ask unanimous consent that an article by Joe Holley of The Washington Post about Father D’Agostino be printed in the Record, as well as an article from the official website of the President of Kenya.

For my part, I feel blessed for having known Father D’Ag and I mourn his loss.

There is no objection, the materials ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

ANGELO D’AGOSTINO, PRIEST AIDED HIV-POSITIVE ORPHANS

(By Joe Holley)

The Rev. Angelo D’Agostino, 80, a physician, psychiatrist and priest who opened one of the first orphanages for abandoned HIV-positive children in Kenya, died Nov. 20 of cardiac arrest at the Karen Hospital in Nairobi. He had suffered for a week with abdominal pain from diverticulitis and died after surgery.

Father D’Agostino, who practiced and taught psychiatry in Washington during the 1970s and ’80s, was called to a country with more than one million children whose parents have died of AIDS. Children, often HIV-positive themselves, have been abandoned or left to roam through Kenya’s big-city slums.

He encountered the needs of Kenya’s children while serving on the board of governors for a large orphanage in 1991. When the orphanage began receiving scores of abandoned children who tested HIV-positive, Father D’Agostino suggested setting up a facility for them. The board opposed the idea, so in 1992, he founded the Nyumbani Orphanage, which cares for thousands of children every year.

Today Nyumbani, or “home” in Swahili, shelters about 100 Kenyan children, from newborns to 23-year-olds.

The larger nonprofit organization, also called Nyumbani, includes Lea Toto (Swahili for “to raise the child”), a community-based program founded in 1998 to provide outreach services to HIV-positive children and their families in the Nairobi area. Nyumbani also has the most advanced blood diagnostic laboratory in Kenya.

At the time of his death, Father D’Agostino, an indefatigable fundraiser, had just returned from Rome and the United States on a trip where he had raised money for Nyumbani Village, a self-sustaining community to serve the orphaned and elderly in Africa. He was known as the “lost generation” of the AIDS pandemic.

The goal of the village, which has plans for 100 houses, a school, a clinic and a community center, is to create new blended families for orphaned children under the care of elderly adults.

“It was difficult to say no to him, particularly because what he asked you to do were the kinds of things your conscience would bedevil you about if you said no,” said Benjamin L. Palumbo, a Washington attorney who served as president of Nyumbani’s U.S. board of directors.

Father D’Agostino’s friends and orphanage supporters ran the political gamut, from former Sen. Jesse Helms (R-N.C.) to Sen. Patrick Leahy (D-Vt.). Leahy called him "a living saint."

Short and rotund, "Father D'Ag," as some knew him, was quick to laugh but also had a temper, his friend James Desmond recalled. Desmond, former owner of a downtown bar called Beowulfs, one of the priest's haunts when he lived in Washington, recalled being with him in a meeting with congressional aides who were giving him the polite brush-off. When they realized what was happening, Desmond had to hustle him out the door before his temper got the best of him.

In 2001, Nyumbani became the first place in Africa to legally dispense drugs under an Indian pharmaceutical company's program to make such drugs more affordable on the continent where most of the world's AIDS patients live and die.

"I am sick and tired of doing funerals," Father D'Agostino told The Washington Post, explaining why he was willing to defy national regulations and international patent rules to buy cheaper, generic AIDS drugs.

"It's really the darker side of capitalism, the greed that is being manifest by these drug companies holding sub-Saharan Africa hostage," he told The Post. "People are dying because they can't afford them.

He also sued the Kenyan government for its policy banning HIV-positive children from public schools. He won that suit last year, which allowed more than 100,000 children to rejoin their classmates in schools across the country.

Agostino has a nephew.

The Jesuits couldn't afford them.

Father D'Agostino's work continues, President Mwai Kibaki and First Lady Lucy Kibaki said.

He called, "I am sure that is the assurance Father D'Agostino would have liked. He founded these homes and wanted them to continue fighting the prevalence and effects of HIV/AIDS.

"You should take the responsibility of ensuring that Father D'Agostino's work continues," the Head of State said.

"The Jesuits couldn't use a urologist or kidney stone specialist," his brother recalled, "so they told him to go into psychi-try."

After a psychiatric residency at Georgetown from 1959 to 1965 and further work at the Washington Psychoanalytic Institute from 1962 to 1967, he became one of the first American Jesuits to be trained as a psychiatrist. (He liked to say he had "more degrees than a thermometer," a nephew recolled.)

He was ordained in 1966, earlier than expected because the Jesuits were concerned that he might succumb to leprosy, an illness he had battled his whole life.

He taught psychiatry at Georgetown University and George Washington University and in 1972 founded the Center for Religion and Psychiatry at the Washington Theological Union to promote dialogue between the two. From 1983 to 1987, he was in private practice, and the number of his clients were police officers, many whom he met over beers at Beowulf's.

"Father D'Agostino helped administer refugee centers in Thailand and East Africa in the 1980s, but it was the lost children of Kenya who captured his heart and wouldn't let go," Rabbi Zvi Amichai, then director of the Kinneret Children's Home, said.

He retired when he turned 80, "but it was retirement with a small 'r,' " Joe D'Agostino said. "He still went to the office every day, although he was happy he didn't have to go to meetings anymore."

He will be buried in Kenya. His brother, his only immediate survivor, recalled that Father D'Agostino had only one regret about his adopted homeland: "He couldn't grow good tomatoes over there. Being a good Italian, that was important to him."

President and First Lady Attend Father D'Agostino's Requiem Mass

President Mwai Kibaki and First Lady Lucy Kibaki called Father D'Agostino for the requiem mass for Rev. Father Angelo D'Agostino at the Consolata Shrine Catholic Church in Westlands, Nairobi.

The mass was conducted by Nairobi Archbishop Ndingi Mwanza A'Nzeki.

Addressing the congregation, President Kibaki urged Kenyans to emulate Father D'Agostino and assist the less fortunate in the society.

He called on board members of Nyumbani Children's Home, Lea Toto and Nyumbani Village in Kitui to carry on with Father D'Agostino's work, ensuring that the homes are well maintained and succeed in serving the HIV/AIDS orphans.

President Kibaki said: "I am sure that is the assurance Father D'Agostino would have liked. He founded these homes and wanted them to continue fighting the prevalence and effects of HIV/AIDS."

"You should take the responsibility of ensuring that Father D'Agostino's work continues," the Head of State said.

called, "so they told him to go into psychi-

TRIBUTE TO RON RUPP

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, I want to take a few minutes to recognize an outstanding Vermont public servant who has played an important role in the health of our Nation—a real "Lead Leader."

In the city of Burlington alone, housing units occupied by low-income residents constitute the highest concentration of older homes in Vermont. Significant lead paint hazards are characteristic of the deteriorated condition of many of these buildings. The result is that Burlington has a childhood lead poisoning rate that is more than double the national average.

There is hard work of Ron and the VHCB Lead-Based Paint Hazard Reduction Program, Vermont is becoming a place where our children can grow up safe from lead poisoning. The removal of lead hazards from our old homes and buildings is a slow process and success can be long in coming, but with dedicated public servants like Ron I have no doubt that success will indeed be met. Thank you, Ron, and congratulations for your continued service to Vermont’s Lead-Based Paint Hazard Reduction Program the continuing success it is today.

RETIREE OF SAM WHITEHORN

Mr. INOUYE. Mr. President, I rise to pay tribute to a member of my staff who served the Senate Committee on Commerce, Science and Transportation after more than 15 years working for this institution and more than 25 years of service to the American public. Sam Whitehorn has been my deputy staff director and general counsel on the Commerce Committee during the 109th Congress, but he has worked diligently for the committee’s membership and many of our predecessors during more than a decade as senior counsel on the Aviation Subcommittee. I know Senators Jay Rockefeller, Fritz Hollings, and Wendell Ford hold Sam in the highest regard for his commitment to this institution and his efforts to pass legislation that established the United States as a world leader in aviation and transportation policy.

Sam’s reputation as an expert and dogged proponent of aviation safety, security, and economic viability is known to everyone in the aviation community. His ability to negotiate and work in a bipartisan fashion has served the committee honorably, allowing aviation legislation to consistently move responsibly and timely. His accomplishments speak well of him: he has been involved in the passage of six Federal Aviation Administration Authorization, FAA, reauthorization bills during his career. While Sam has recently expanded his reach to other major aspects of the Commerce Committee’s agenda, aviation continues to have a special place in his heart.

Thus, the aviation industry also has benefited from Sam’s commitment to public service and his expertise on the issues during one of our most difficult times in modern history. After the horrible attacks of September 11, 2001, he helped lead the passage of the Aviation and Transportation Security Act, which established the Transportation Security Administration, TSA. That legislation was instrumental in restoring public confidence in our aviation system.

He also played a central role in the development of legislation that currently funds the aviation system, efforts to advance the modernization of the National Airspace System, NAS, and promoted workplace reforms at the FAA which have helped place the agency on a more economically viable path. To put it simply, Sam Whitehorn’s name is synonymous with aviation safety, security, and viability.

Prior to working for the Senate Commerce Committee, Sam worked at the U.S. Department of Transportation, DOT, as a senior attorney in the Office of the General Counsel for Regulations and Enforcement where he represented the DOT on a host of aviation issues. Before that he was a staff attorney in the antitrust section of the Civil Aeronautics Board, CAB, the precursor to the FAA.

While Sam has a passion for aviation and has been truly devoted to the Senate Commerce Committee, nothing has been more important to him than his family. From his upbringing in New Hyde Park, NY, to the many years he has spent in his adopted hometown of Washington, DC, his close-knit family has been vital to his success. We have seen his dedication to his wife Carol, who has been extremely patient at times, and more recently saw him watch proudly as his son Michael and daughter Zoe went off to college. We greatly appreciate their willingness to share Sam with us for these many years.

As Sam retires from the Senate, we wish him nothing but the best. He will be missed, but will remain strong as we continue to tackle aviation issues in the future. I and this institution will miss him.

RETIREE U.S. ATTORNEY CHARLES LARSON, SR.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, I would like to take this opportunity to pay my personal and official congratulations and gratitude to retiring U.S. Attorney Charles “Chuck” Larson, Sr. While I could easily just focus on all Chuck has done in his years as the dedicated U.S. attorney for the Northern District of Iowa, this man has given so much more in over 40 years of Government service.

When his country has called, Chuck has been there. He served in the U.S. Army and Army Reserves for 40 years, retiring as a brigadier general in 1999.

Four U.S. Presidents have called on Chuck to serve in various capacities, and each time he has stepped forward and served with honor and distinction. Chuck was asked to serve as the U.S. attorney for the Northern District of Iowa by President Ronald Reagan in 1986 and continued to serve in this position under President George H.W. Bush through 1993. During his service at this post, Chuck went well above and beyond. He devoted himself to fighting the scourge of drug crime and abuse by bringing local, State, and federal agencies together. Chuck also recognized the need for community outreach, and he pioneered a number of programs that brought together community leaders, clergy, and citizens to explore approaches to reduce drug abuse in Iowa.

These ideas were recognized as very innovative at the time and led to President Clinton’s call for Chuck to serve on the Commission on Drug-Free Communities, a post in which Chuck served with distinction and which his son, Chuck, Jr., fills today.

Chuck was given the enormous task of training and administering efforts to train Iraqi judiciary, law enforcement, and civilian contractors. He was tasked with nothing less than restoring justice and equity to the Iraqi judicial system. Despite the inherent dangers and complexities of his mission, Chuck yet again served with distinction.

Again, I offer my thanks and congratulations to U.S. Attorney Charles Larson, Sr. Chuck’s dedication, devotion, and courage, again and again, provided invaluable service to our country and the great State of Iowa. Chuck, you are a true American and a model for all in Government service.

TRIBUTES TO KATIE GUMERSON ALTSHULER

Mr. KYL. Mr. President, I rise today to honor the service of Katie Gumerson Altsbuhler, my staff director at the Senate Republican policy committee. Katie has decided to return to her native Oklahoma and begin a new life as chief of staff to the Speaker of the House of the Oklahoma Legislature.

Katie became staff director of the RFC earlier this year, in what was the culmination of an impressive climb through the ranks of Senate staff leadership dating back to 1995 when she served as an intern for Senator Don Nickles the very same year when she graduated from Sweet Briar College 2 years later. Senator Nickles hired her first as a staff assistant and then as a legislative correspondent. And in 1999, he promoted her into the majority whip’s office, where she quickly became well known in the Capitol as a floor assistant and policy adviser to Republican Senators.
When Senator Nickles finished his term as majority whip, I was thrilled that Katie agreed to join me as my first deputy staff director of the Republican policy committee. In that capacity, she quickly became my eyes and ears helping, the Capitol Building, tracking the ins and outs of floor activity, representing the RPC within the leadership, and doing everything she could to ensure that only the best policy—good, conservative Republican policy—became law. As one of her many accomplishments, I recall that she developed our RPC “getaway” materials and stood over by the side door to my right and handed them to Republican Senators after the last vote of the week.

Katie quickly earned my trust, as I know she had earned the trust of Senator Nickles before me. So it was an easy decision to promote Katie to staff director of the RPC in June 2006. She had experience in a broad range of policy and understandance of the job I had of this body better than most ever will. My staff has enormous respect for her, and she is a natural leader.

Katie’s departure coincides with the end of my 4 years chairing the Senate Republican policy committee. I have enjoyed immensely. I want to thank Katie for the consistently good work product she helped us achieve during these past 4 years. She has inspired other staff members of the committee to achieve an even higher level of excellence than, I believe, has been of great value to Senators and their staffs. My goal, since day one, was to make sure we produced a first-rate product—thorough, accurate, and reliable. Katie understood this, and she made sure it happened. And so we both depart the policy committee—I for the chairmanship of the Republican Conference and she for the Oklahoma State House—I believe we have left it well-prepared and well-armed for the future.

Let me share a few words about Katie personally. We all know Katie to be bright, quick-witted, fiercely loyal, and genuinely warm to those around her. She is a true patriot who cares deeply for this Nation and the Senate, and I know she is proud to have served here for the past 9½ years. She loves and reveres this institution, even its eccentricities. For example, a former colleague of hers remembers fondly how irritated Katie can become when the decorum of the Senate is offended, even when it is a Senator who fails to take seriously the Senate Chamber’s dress code. When contacted a few days ago, Katie’s former boss, Senator Don Nickles, had this to say about her: “Katie brought a great deal of professionalism and enthusiasm into both the Whip office and Policy Committee. She will certainly be missed.’”

Eric Ueland, now chief of staff to Majority Leader McConnell, worked with Katie for several years in the Nickles whip office. He said: “No one should ever mistake Katie’s grace and charm for indifference to conservative philosophy or Republican ideology, because within her beats the heart of a lion and the ferocity of a tiger. Katie always harnesses the very best from her colleagues to bring creative solutions to bear. She always seeks to suggest the best way forward to do credit not just to the Senators she serves, but to the values that brought them to Washington.”

One more accolade. Dave Schiappa, the secretary for the majority, who handles all floor operations for the Republicans and who has worked with Katie for many years, had this to say: “Over my 22 years, I have had the privilege to work with a great number of intelligent and dedicated people. Katie Altschuler is one of those shining stars and has set a standard of professionalism and devotion to the Senate as an institution. I wish Katie could be convinced to stay here in the Senate, but I know that the pull of home and of new challenges is a strong one, and I wish her well in her new endeavors. So, Katie, my best wishes to you as you take up your new line of duty, and on behalf of the team I commend you for your excellent work. Thank you.”

ADDITIONAL STATEMENTS

100TH BIRTHDAY OF CLAUDE WOOD

- Mr. BINGAMAN. Mr. President, earlier this week, Claude Wood celebrated his centennial. His name is familiar to several long-serving Members of this body, for he was the chief of staff to one of the Senate’s giants, Clinton Anderson of New Mexico. For all of Senator Anderson’s career in this Chamber, Claude was at his right hand.

A native New Mexican, he served our State, our Nation, and the Senate with distinction and honor. He retains an acute interest in what we do here and is a great friend of the Senate Historian, Richard Baker. I myself have known Claude for many years and am very glad to have this opportunity to send him best wishes on this milestone birthday.

IN MEMORIAM: BEBE MOORE CAMPBELL

- Mrs. BOXER. Mr. President, today I offer a few words in observance of the passing of novelist Bebe Moore Campbell, a most influential American writer and a leading advocate for people living with mental illness.

I extend my deepest sympathy and most sincere condolences to Ms. Campbell’s family, especially her husband, Ellis Gordon, Jr.; her mother, Doris Moore; and her daughter and stepson, Maia and Ellis Gordon III. My thoughts and prayers go out to them as they struggle with the death of a woman they loved dearly.

In an illustrious career spanning 20 years, Bebe Moore Campbell was an extraordinarily perceptive author who tirelessly explored the American experience through a variety of perspectives. Growing up in both the North and the South in the 1950s and 1960s, she experienced first hand the numerous ways in which fear and hatred are manifest in our society, from segregation and oppression. She learned about living amid injustice, about the rage and sorrow it imparts, and about the dignity and resolve required to overcome it.

Ms. Campbell drew much of her inspiration and strength from the strong bond she had with her parents. Her second book, “Sweet Summer: Growing Up With and Without My Dad,” is a loving tribute to the warmth of extended family and friends, the strong women in her life who helped mold her character, and the heroic example of her father, whose perseverance after a car accident left him a paraplegic taught her courage and independence. Ms. Campbell’s work and example would be a guiding theme in Ms. Campbell’s work and stimulated her interest in the intricate nature of relationships.

As Ms. Campbell continued to explore the parent-child relationship, she also delved into the complexities that exist between and within genders, race, and communities. She produced two critically acclaimed novels in the first half of the 1990s set against the backdrop of historical instances of racial violence: “Sometimes I Like Myself” and “Brothers and Sisters.”

In these novels, Ms. Campbell explored the issues of race, class, and gender and personalized them in the form of characters we related to and cared for. Courageous and exceptionally talented, she captured the social and historical forces that cut through society and divide us. She graphically demonstrated how America’s racial, economic, and gender fault lines often force people into difficult and painful conflicts with others as well as themselves.

Ms. Campbell focused in her later writings on the issue of mental illness. With passion and emotional depth, she explored the horrible consequences of mental illness and the strain that it places on those who love and depend on people suffering from a mental condition. Her work has helped to raise our Nation’s consciousness of this issue and has made an invaluable contribution to our society’s efforts to improve the lives of people living with mental illness. Ms. Campbell was a founding member of the Inglewood branch of the National Alliance for the Mentally Ill, and her children’s book, “Sometimes My Mother Gets Angry” won that organization’s Outstanding Literature Award for 2003.

In her work, Ms. Campbell illustrated how oppression and injustice dehumanize everyone involved. She challenged and inspired us to examine our preconceptions and fears and to open our hearts and minds to those around us.
Mr. President, it is indeed an honor and a pleasure to recognize this accomplished fellow Georgian from the “greatest generation,” some 70 years after his graduation from the U.S. Naval Academy. He is the consummate patriot and citizen, and his distinguished and worthy service to our Nation is laudable.

ALLAN ROSENFIELD GLOBAL HEALTH FELLOWSHIP

Mr. President, today I honor Dr. Allan Rosenfield, Dean of the Mailman School of Public Health at Columbia University, as well as introduce the training program named in his honor.

Dr. Rosenfield has spent his career working to improve the health and well-being of our most vulnerable populations. He has been a champion of women’s health both in the United States and around the world and well known for his work on the HIV/AIDS pandemic, innovative family planning studies, and strategies to address the tragedy of wholly preventable maternal deaths in resource-poor countries.

As dean and professor of the Mailman School of Public Health, Dr. Rosenfield has been, for the past 20 years, a mentor for several generations of educators, public health students, and researchers.

Dr. Rosenfield was among the earliest to voice the ethical challenges of decreasing transmission of HIV to newborns by treating mothers with antiretroviral drugs before delivery, without consideration of ongoing care and treatment of mothers. He has spearheaded programs in resource-poor settings that not only prevent mother-to-child transmission of HIV but also provide comprehensive clinical services to women.

Rich in light of Dr. Rosenfield’s countless contributions toward improving the health of individuals globally—as a researcher, an advocate, an educator and as a compassionate human being—it is fitting to name the ASPH–CDC Global Health Fellowship Program in honor of Allan Rosenfield.

The fellows in this program, who are graduates of the Nation’s accredited schools of public health, are trained to help prevent HIV infection, improve care and support, and build capacity to address the global HIV/AIDS epidemic. Fellows also participate in immunization program activities in support of global polio eradication, measles mortality reduction, regional measles elimination, and general global immunization activities. They receive mentorship and support from dedicated CDC employees in the field. The mission of this fellowship program is to train the next generation of global health leaders, and it is fitting that this program honor an individual who is a foremost leader in global health.

Mr. President, I ask my colleagues to join me in celebrating the Allan Rosenfield Global Health Fellowship, most appropriately named after a person whom I, and many others, admire and respect for his relentless dedication and remarkable achievements in preventing disease and saving lives worldwide. I would like to honor and thank him for his many years of work.

WOODBURY SENIOR HIGH SCHOOL, WOODBURY, MINNESOTA

Mr. President, today I wish honor Woodbury Senior High School, in Woodbury, MN, which will soon receive an Award for Excellence in Education for its exceptional and innovative achievements in educating children.

Woodbury Senior High School is truly a model of educational success. This large, suburban high school has consistently ranked above the national and state averages in ACT test scores and Minnesota Comprehensive Assessment scores and has been designated as a five-star school in reading and math by the Minnesota Department of Education for 2 years in a row. The schools receiving the five-star status are few and far between: Last year, 11 schools in the Twin Cities metropolitan area qualified for this status; this year, only 8 metro-area schools qualified. These scores show that top students continue to grow academically and also that all students continue to perform well above expectations.

Success at Woodbury High does not occur without the hard work and dedication of all students and staff. In addition to their classroom responsibilities, the teaching staff at Woodbury High are engaged in professional learning communities. Teachers meet in groups each week to study student learning and compare test scores and other objective data to determine areas of need. Then each group discusses best practices for teaching, in order to improve all students’ learning. These professional learning communities have resulted in better course grades, as well as improved test scores on state and national measures of student proficiency.

Course work calls for high standards of performance at all levels. For advanced learners, Woodbury High offers advanced placement classes in English, mathematics, science, and social studies. The staff is working to develop more AP classes to meet students’ needs. Each year, 225 AP tests are given in the school, with better than 75 percent of these students qualifying for college credit. This rigor translates into ACT scores above the State and national averages. Last year, Woodbury High schools received a composite score of 23.5 on the ACT test. Students requiring more academic attention may enter the Program for Success in grades 10, 11, and 12 in order to earn credit for on-the-job experience and academic credits. These classes are kept small and are taught by teachers who take personal responsibility for their students’ success.
Woodbury High is working to fulfill the District goal of giving all students an opportunity for excellence. With championship athletic teams and arts programs generating high-quality productions, students are stretched to reach their potential inside and outside the classroom. The Woodbury High girls soccer team has won the State championship during 3 of the past 4 years. The adapted soccer team and girls basketball team have also won State championships during the past several years. Excellence in education is the daily goal of teachers, administrators, and students at Woodbury High School.

Much of the credit for Woodbury Senior High School’s success belongs to its principal, Linda Plante, and the dedicated teachers. The students and staff at Woodbury Senior High School understand that, in order to be successful, a school must go beyond achieving academic success. It must also provide a nurturing environment where students can develop the knowledge, skills, and attitudes for success throughout life. All of the faculty, staff, and students at Woodbury Senior High School should be very proud of their accomplishments.

I congratulate Woodbury Senior High School in Woodbury for winning the Award for Excellence in Education and for its exceptional contributions to education in Minnesota.

HONORING DAVID HERMANCE

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. Mr. President, I take a moment to pay tribute to David Hermance, who died in a tragic plane crash on November 25. David was the North American executive engineer for Advanced Technology Vehicles at Toyota.

Many Americans may not know David’s name, but they know his work. He was one of the most well-respected environmentalists in America. He was a pioneer—called the Father of the American Prius—who worked tirelessly to help explain the workings and benefits of hybrid and other advanced technology vehicles.

David was an outspoken and passionate advocate. He championed advanced technology vehicles throughout his career at General Motors and Toyota and he earned a well-deserved reputation for being the most authoritative voice in America on hybrid technology. He helped me and many others better understand this new technology and its potential for creating a more sustainable future and a healthier world.

David was instrumental in raising awareness about the importance of these new technologies to help protect our environment. His death is a loss for us all.

TRIBUTE TO SISTER CYNTHIA “CINDY” MAHONEY

Mr. GRAHAM. Mr. President, today I ask that the Senate observe the recent passing of Sister Cynthia “Cindy” Mahoney and recognize her tireless service to this country. A former emergency medical technician, Sister Mahoney volunteered at Ground Zero in New York City on September 11, 2001, blessing victims and providing medical and spiritual attention to survivors. In the days following, Sister Mahoney helped set up a respite program for first responders at St. Paul’s Chapel across from the World Trade Center. She also became an official Red Cross volunteer serving as a grief counselor at the Pier 91 Federal Emergency Management Agency center.

In October 2001 Sister Mahoney joined the Red Cross Medical Examiner’s Fatality Team as a chaplain working out of the morgue to bless human remains excavated from Ground Zero. She served on the Fatality Team well into 2002.

In September 2002 Sister Mahoney moved to South Carolina to establish a spiritual presence for hurricane victims. By this time, Sister Mahoney was experiencing symptoms consistent with exposure to toxic materials like asbestos. Sadly she soon became homeless, and her physical condition continued to deteriorate. Last summer she was diagnosed with congestive pulmonary disease, COPD. Sister Mahoney died on November 1, 2006, from complications related to her pulmonary condition. I ask that the Senate join me in commemorating Sister Mahoney for her actions at Ground Zero on September 11 and in the months that followed that fateful day.

RECOGNIZING THE CIVIL AIR PATROL

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, as a member of the Civil Air Patrol for more than two decades and now commander of its Congressional Squadron, I am proud to call CAP an about CAP, an all-volunteer organization celebrating 65 years of service to the United States of America.

CAP was created on Dec. 1, 1941, to assist the U.S. military. During World War II, when Nazi U-boat submarines had infested our coastal waters, volunteer aviators of CAP’s Coastal Patrol distinguished themselves valiantly. It was a time when the U.S. military was unable to effectively counter these submarines. Flying small single- and twin-engine aircraft armed with 50 and 100-pound bombs, these brave men and women flew more than 24 million miles during 86,000 over-water missions—a total of 244,600 flight hours to help win the battle against U-boats that were preying on coastal shipping.

Despite the risk of death, they spotted 175 subs, attacked 57, hit 10 and sank 2. The Coastal Patrol aircrews also called in aid for 91 ships in distress, saved 363 survivors of sub attacks, discharged 172 fires, and flew 5,684 special convoy missions.

Fifty-nine members of these courageous aircrews died, 26 were lost at sea, and 7 others were seriously injured. They were inspired by the highest sense of patriotism, and they served with pride.

Today, CAP continues that tradition as one of the most unique volunteer organizations in America, consisting of pilots, navigators, flight leaders, teachers, first responders, engineers, and youth counselors to technology experts, communicators, and more. These volunteers, most employed at a paying job, perform 95 percent of inland search and rescue missions in the continental United States.

Whether performing search and rescue missions or helping communities recover from floods, wildfires, tornadoes, hurricanes, or terrorist attacks, CAP members are there to aid their nation. In 2005 alone, they saved 73 lives.

Following last year’s terrible Gulf coast hurricanes, 1,800 CAP volunteers from 17 States converged on hurricane-affected communities, serving over 50,000 volunteer hours. These patriotic members flew 1,000 air missions during 2,000 hours of flight time and provided more than 2,000 time-critical images of affected areas. They also ensured the well-being of Americans by visiting 4,500 residences, offering 8,560 patients, and distributing 30,000 pounds of relief supplies.

Coming full circle from its beginnings in World War II, Civil Air Patrol is again taking on homeland security responsibilities for the Nation. These include assisting the Air Force in ensuring the skies above Washington, DC, are safe and flying target-intercept training missions for U.S. military pilots all at a low cost of about $100 per mission.

With 530 aircraft and thousands of trained aircrew members, CAP is a tremendous asset to the United States at a critical juncture in our history. This capability, however, is now greatly enhanced because CAP, over the past few years, had the foresight to invest in developing and obtaining sophisticated new technologies to help with its emergency missions. Today it uses two high-technology imaging systems Airborne Real-time Cueing Hyperspectral Enhanced Reconnaissance, ARCHER, and satellite-transmitted digital imaging systems, SDIS, to assist in search and rescue, disaster-assessment missions and other missions. These technologies make it a critical asset to the Air Force, State governments and local communities.

CAP also provides exceptional growth opportunities to 22,550 youth in cadet programs, which stress leadership and moral responsibility and teach aviation and emergency response skills. Through CAP, these youth gain access to scholarship opportunities, top national summer flight academies, flight training in powered and glider aircraft, and programs that emphasize leadership and career formation. They routinely help communities when disaster strikes and other emergencies occur by operating radios, helping park a aircraft, and serving on ground search and survey teams.

In addition, CAP’s Aerospace Education Program touches over 400 educators, over 20,000 cadets, and thousands of other youths in classrooms across America by teaching them aerospace concepts that emphasize aviation’s connection to history, math, science, government, and economics.

CAP’s Missions for America annually impact the lives of thousands of Americans. These 56,000 volunteers all every-day heroes are deserving of our highest praise. Please join me in honoring and recognizing the Civil Air Patrol on the occasion of its 65th anniversary of service to our great Nation.

WESTERN SOUTH DAKOTA SENIOR SERVICES MEAL PROGRAM

- Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. President, today I wish recognize the fine work of the Western South Dakota Senior Services Meals Program in South Dakota.

This year, the Meals Program celebrates the important role it plays in delivering meals to elderly and disabled individuals in western South Dakota. The Meals Program currently serves between 735 and 750 meals per day, or 165,000 meals annually, to residents in 16 communities. These communities include Rapid City, several cities in the Black Hills, and many rural communities in western South Dakota.

Due to declining budgets, the goal of the Meals Program has remained constant: to provide healthy and nutritious meals to hundreds of Black Hills and western South Dakota residents. Many of these individuals are homebound, and the noon meal they receive is often the only warm, healthy, and nutritious meal they receive during the day. The visit by the Meals Program volunteer is welcomed by the elderly or disabled individual who is unable to leave his or her home. It isn’t just an opportunity for a brief chat with a friend and to receive a nutritious, home-cooked meal.

Meals are also served at various apartment complexes or senior citizens centers where several tenants can come together, eat a good meal, and share stories with friends and neighbors. When someone is unable to attend the noon meal, the meal is delivered to the apartment and it is an opportunity to check on the health and welfare of the individual.

It is my hope that more individuals can receive the benefits of the Meals Program in my State and across the Nation. More funds are needed so that current programs can be maintained and expanded so that deserving individuals can get the nutritious meals they need. I appreciate the various local sponsors and entities that allow the Meals Program to function in western South Dakota.

I commend and applaud the great work of all the staff and volunteers of the Meals Program and congratulate the Western South Dakota Senior Services, Inc., for their efforts. Thousands of western South Dakota residents have benefited greatly over the past 25 years from the Meals Program, and it is my hope these services can continue for many years to come.

CONTROL GROUP’S 100 ANNIVERSARY

- Mr. LAUTENBERG. Mr. President, I am pleased to recognize and congratulate a great New Jersey company, the Control Group, on completing 100 years of service to firms and facilities throughout the country. This century-old company founded in 1906 by Austrian immigrant Louis Turen is the Nation’s oldest, privately owned facility maintenance company. The Control Group is still a family-owned and operated business and one of the largest private employers in the State of New Jersey. Four generations of the Turen family have directed Control Group from their headquarters in Secaucus, NJ.

Louis Turen began a one-man enterprise washing windows and provided maintenance services. He eventually passed the torch on to sons Nathan and Sam Turen, who continued the tradition. Today, Nathan’s sons Edward D. Turen and Neal L. Turen carry the mantle of leadership of the organization. A fourth generation, Scott Turen, continues to carry on the family tradition. The growth of the company has been consistent and has expanded internationally as well as across our country achieving revenues in excess of $300 million annually.

Control’s success has produced a well-trained, loyal workforce of more than 7,000 employees providing their services to real estate, retail, banking, airport, pharmaceutical, and manufacturing industries as well as educational and public institutions. As a tribute to its business climate and its jobs market.

Faithful to its traditions of reliable service, quality, and new products, the Control Group has earned a reputation for its integrity, vision, and dedication. It is believed that the company will continue to expand its service offerings and expand its growth and opportunity. We applaud and thank the Turen family and their fine companies for their commitment to quality and client satisfaction and its allegiance to its roots in the State of New Jersey.

TRIBUTE TO LYNTON CALDWELL

- Mr. LUGAR. Mr. President, today I honor the life and work of fellow Hooiser, Dr. Lynton Keith Caldwell, of Bloomington, IN. I ask that the following tribute, attributed to Wendy Read Wertz of Bloomington, IN, be printed in the RECORD.

The tribute follows:

Dr. Lynton Keith Caldwell, 92, regarded as one of the twentieth century’s most distinguished scholars in the fields of environmental policy, law, science and administration, and a principal architect of the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969, died on August 15, 2006, at Bloomington, Indiana. At the time of his death Dr. Caldwell was Arthur F. Bentley Professor Emeritus of Political Science and Professor of Public and Environmental Affairs at Indiana University.

Today, Dr. Caldwell is frequently referred to in the “father of NEPA,” or the “inventor” of the Environmental Impact Statement. Importantly, as he frequently reminded people later, NEPA did much more than simply mandate paperwork. True to its title, Congress established this nation’s environmental policies in Section 101(a) of the Act declaring that continuing policy of the Federal Government, in cooperation with State and local governments, and other concerned public and private organizations, to use all practicable means and measures, including financial and technical assistance, in a manner calculated to foster and promote the general welfare, to create and maintain conditions under which man and nature can exist in productive harmony, and fulfill the social, economic, and other requirements of present and future generations of Americans.” And the reach of those policies goes beyond the federal government to touch every American. Indeed, in the law, “Congress recognize the person should enjoy a healthful environment and that each person has a responsibility to contribute to the preservation and enhancement of the environment.” (Section 101(c)).

Dr. Caldwell lived a full life, making contributions on many levels. He earned his undergraduate degree in English at the University of Chicago in 1934, his Masters degree at Harvard in History and Government in 1938, and his doctorate degree in Political Science at the University of Indiana. Where his special focus was on public administration.

In 1977 he was awarded an honorary LLD from Western Michigan University.

From 1941 until 1965 Dr. Caldwell’s career was focused on public administration. U.N. appointments took him to Columbia, the Philippines and Turkey where he served in Ankara as the U.N. Co-Director of the Public Administration Institute for Turkey and the Middle East. He became a Professor of Government at Indiana University in 1956 where he served as Director of the Institute of Training for Public Service and Coordinator of the Environmental Policy and Public Administration programs. Further assignments in a consulting or lecturing capacity took him to Japan, Pakistan, India, Europe and Australia.

In his private capacity, however, Dr. Caldwell was deeply committed to conservations issues. A lover of nature from childhood, he became a knowledgeable botanist and bird watcher. He helped to found the South Bend branch of the Audubon Society, assisted in the establishment of the National Lakeshore, and was a founding member of both the first local chapter of The Nature Conservancy in New York and of the Indiana chapter. He served on the Board of Governors of the Nature Conservancy from 1959–1965.

Dr. Caldwell will undoubtedly be missed by the many, many former students, colleagues and professionals in this country and around the world who benefited from his insights and teachings. His dignity, knowledge and personal compassion for the people and world around him served this nation well.

HONORING SALVATORE FERRO

- Mr. ROBERTS. Mr. President, today I honor Salvatore Ferro’s 40 years of Tributes and Remarks

TRIBUTE TO DR. NORMAN DUFFY

Mr. ROCKETEIZER. Mr. President, today I join the Council for Advancement and Support of Education, CASE, and the Carnegie Foundation honoring Dr. Norman Duffy. Dr. Duffy, a chemistry professor at Wheeling Jesuit University, has personified the best in education and the best in West Virginia throughout his career.

After receiving his bachelor of science in chemistry from Georgetown University, where he continued his studies as a doctoral student, Dr. Duffy began his career as a graduate and research assistant. His research then led him to take the helm of the NATO postdoctoral fellow at University College in London. After receiving his Ph.D., he began his teaching career at Kent State University where he first became a full professor and then eventually chairman of the Department of Chemistry.

Upon his departure from Kent State University in 1996, Dr. Duffy joined the faculty of Wheeling Jesuit University, WJU. From 1996 to 2000 he was chairman of the Department of Biology and Chemistry and from 2000 to 2002 he was Chairman of the Department of Chemistry. He continues teaching small classes that allow him to focus on individualized education as a professor in the Department of Chemistry.

In addition to his illustrious teaching career, Dr. Duffy has done a great deal to further the general public’s knowledge of chemistry and has been acknowledged for doing so. He has released 95 publications, authored 14 research grants at WJU, including three from the National Science Foundation, and has received many honors and awards including the Exemplary Teacher Award from the American Association of Higher Education during their 25th anniversary celebration in 1994.

In my decades of service to the people of West Virginia in the Senate, I have become very familiar with Wheeling Jesuit University and its outstanding academic programs. For 10 consecutive years US News and World Report has ranked WJU as one of the best master’s universities in the South.

Wheeling Jesuit has become one of the leading universities in the country in helping to educate and prepare students for the dynamic economy of the 21st century. WJU is home to the brand new Byrd Center for Educational Technologies, and NASA’s flagship educational program, The Classroom of the Future, which uses simulated space missions as a way to teach elementary and high school students about science and math.

The true legacy of a teacher is the mark that their students leave on the world, and by that measurement Dr. Duffy has certainly had a remarkable career. He has taught future Fulbright Scholars, many students who have received departmental honors, and, of course, he has been inspired enough by his example to become teachers themselves.

As a teacher, Dr. Duffy admits his work is never finished. Whenever he is asked if he plans to retire, Dr. Duffy responds by asking “Does everyone in West Virginia understand chemistry?” Dr. Duffy’s dedication is obvious and inspiring.

Mr. ROCKEFELLER. Mr. President, today I wish to pay my respects and to say goodbye to a man who was bigger than life itself. John Jordan “Buck” O’Neil passed away on Friday, October 6, in Kansas City at the age of 94. Buck was a gifted baseball player, a veteran of the U.S. Navy, the civil rights leader, a role model for young and old and a good friend he was and will always be an American Hero.

I count myself as truly fortunate to have known Buck and wish to cherish the opportunities I had to visit with him. When I think of Buck, I think of a great and loving man with a heart as big as Kansas City who believed that love and education could heal all wounds. I think of his near mythical baseball career, a career that spanned seven decades, making him a foremost authority of the game and one of its greatest ambassadors. I think of his contributions to his community as a role model and to society as a leader in the civil rights movement. Buck’s contributions to the game of baseball and society will be everlasting.

I’d like to take a few minutes to tell you a little bit about the Cub’s Buck.

Buck O’Neill, the player, was a first baseman and manager for the Kansas City Monarchs from 1937 through 1955. His achievements include hitting .333 and leading his team to the 1942 Negro World Series Title, hitting average of .386, including four .300-plus seasons winning batting titles in 1940 and 1946, hitting .345 and .353 respectively. Buck played in the 1942, 1943 and 1949 East-West All-Star Classics and barnstormed with the Satchel Paige All-Stars during the 1930s and 1940s.

Buck O’Neill, the manager, led the Monarchs from 1948 through 1955. His achievements as a manager include sending more Negro Leaguers to the Major Leagues than any other manager in baseball history, including Ernie Banks, Elston Howard, Connie Johnson, Sweet Lou Johnson, and Satchel Paige. He led the Monarchs to league titles in 1948, 1950, 1951 and 1953 and he managed the West squad in the East-West All-Star game in 1950, 1952, 1954 and 1955—the West won all four contests.

In 1956, Buck was hired by the Chicago Cubs as a scout, having two years for him to make history 6 years later when he became the first African American to coach in the Major Leagues. As a scout he discovered such superstars as Lou Brock and Joe Carter. In 1988, after more than 30 years with the Cubs, he returned home to Kansas City to scout for the Kansas City Royals.

The work Buck did after his retirement from the game are arguably more significant than the history of baseball itself. On his exploits on the field as a player, scout and manager. Buck’s true passion over the past 16 years was to share with the world the contributions that Negro Leagues players made to our National Pastime and more importantly to society through his work as chairman of America’s National Negro Leagues Baseball Museum in Kansas City.

Buck’s tireless work led the Baseball Hall of Fame in Cooperstown, NY, to hold a special election this spring to induct Negro Leagues and pre-Negro Leagues candidates into the Hall. In July, 17 legendary players, managers, and owners were inducted into the Hall. This induction was bittersweet for many of us as its most visible legend, Buck O’Neil, did not receive the necessary votes. Although many of us viewed this as an outrageous oversight, Buck graciously viewed this as one of the greatest days in Negro Leagues history. That was Buck in his true form. He was always about doing the right thing. No matter what doors had been closed to him; he always picked himself up and did what was right, never what was easiest or most beneficial to himself. What was most important to Buck was his true love for the Negro Leagues, the Negro Leagues players and the Negro Leagues Baseball Museum, pouring all of his life and energy into seeing that their stories were told and never forgotten.

Buck reminded us that these Leagues and their players are significant on so many levels: they represent a triumph of the human spirit, tremendous sportsmanship, high quality of play, were of vital importance to the African American community, and they led directly to the integration of the Major Leagues, which was the first in a series of major civil rights landmarks that eventually led to the progress we have achieved today. Buck was significant in so many ways and on so many different levels in his own right—he played an important part in shaping the America we live in today.

Buck’s remarkable life reminds me of a favorite poem, Game Called, by Grantland Rice. I’d like to read it into the Record:

Game Called. Across the field of play the dusk had come, an hour late. The fight is done and lost or won, the player files out through the gate. The tumult dies, the cheer is hushed, the stands are bare, the park is still. But through the night there shines the light, home beyond the silent hill.

Game Called. Where in the golden light the bugle rolled the reveille. The shadow creeps where we night falls deep, and taps has called the end of play.

The game is done, the score is in, the final cheer and jeer have passed. But in the night the score is span, that stands forever in the guide. Nor victory, nor yet defeat is chalked against the players name. But through the night there shines the light, home beyond the silent hill.

PETITIONS AND MEMORIALS

The following petitions and memorials were laid before the Senate and were referred or ordered to lie on the table as indicated:

POM-441. A resolution adopted by the Michigan House of Representatives relative to extending the production tax credit for wind power energy development; to the Committee on Finance.

House Resolution No. 307

Whereas, Energy is our economic lifeblood. Indeed, with energy prices soaring to new and never seen heights in our country this is more apparent now than ever. In an effort to foster the development of alternative energy sources for the future, a production tax credit for wind power energy development was established in 1992. The success of this program has been evidenced in the Congress that has been made in the development of clean sources of power for our country in the years since that time; and

Whereas, The longer-term effectiveness of the production tax credit for wind energy development has been impeded by the fact that this important program faces sunset provisions every two years. Although the sunset is a productive oversight tool to ensure sound spending policies, an extended effort like developing viable wind energy technologies requires enormous capital expenses and long-term commitment. The requirement for renewal every two years has proven to be counterproductive, as demonstrated by the fact that during most two-year cycles, the amount of power added by wind energy investment drops considerably in the second year of the period if the tax credit will be renewed after its sunset expiration; and

Whereas, The production tax credit would be made more effective if it were extended further beyond a two-year period. Like most other tax credits the government creates to encourage beneficial behaviors, the production tax credit is designed to foster an emerging and capital-intensive industry that may one day be a key part of America’s overall energy needs. Clearly, wind energy technology will see many more significant advances with a consistent, multiple-year tax approach; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the House of Representatives, That we memorialize the Congress of the United States to enact legislation to extend the production tax credit for wind power energy and to amend the two-year cycle under which it now operates; and be it further

Resolved, That copies of this document be presented to the President of the United States Senate, the Speaker of the United States House of Representatives, and the members of the United States Congress in the Senate and House of Representatives.

POM-446. A resolution adopted by the Michigan House of Representatives, relative to securing international recognition, ecclesiastic and human rights without compromise; and be it further Resolved, That copies of this resolution be transmitted to the President of the United States Senate, the Speaker of the United States House of Representatives, and the members of the Michigan congressional delegation.

STATEMENTS ON INTRODUCED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS

By Mr. VOINOVICH (for himself, Mr. AKAKA, Mr. LUGAR, Ms. MIKULSKI, and Mr. SANTORUM):

S. 4100. A bill to expand visa waiver program to countries on a probationary basis and for other purposes; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. VOINOVICH. Mr. President, I rise to introduce The Secure Travel and Counterterrorism Partnership Act of 2006, along with my good friends Senators AKAKA, LUGAR, MIKULSKI, and SANTORUM.

This legislation would expand the U.S. Visa Waiver Program in a way that would increase cooperation with key allies in the war on terror while strengthening U.S. national security.

The bill provides a way for us to expand and improve the visa waiver system so that Americans are safer and our Nation is more prosperous for years to come.

This legislation comes at a particularly important time in our Nation’s history. We are currently facing multiple foreign policy challenges in the post-9/11 world. We need the cooperation of several allies to combat transnational threats. As such, we are asking our friends and allies to contribute more of their troops and resources to Iraq, Afghanistan, and other conflicts in the world, so that we can be successful. This legislation will help us to solidify these relationships and increase reward the U.S. for years to come, while also enhancing travel security and safety at home.

My legislation would authorize the Department of Homeland Security, in consultation with the Department of State, to expand the Visa Waiver Program to countries that are true friends of America and prepared to do more to help us keep terrorists and criminals out of our borders.

For those that do not know about the Visa Waiver Program, it was established in 1986 to improve relations with U.S. allies and strengthen the U.S. economy. The program permitted nationals from the selected countries to enter the United States without a visa for up to 90 days for tourism or business.

Currently, 27 countries participate in the program, including the United Kingdom. But there are a number of new allies who would also like to participate in the Visa Waiver Program and are willing to meet strict security requirements and cooperate on counterterrorism initiatives.

Many of these countries were former members of the Soviet Union. They were victims of Soviet oppression for years, against their will, and despite their desire for freedom.

Today, many of these countries have boots on the ground in Iraq and Afghanistan and want to help us stop the terrorists and promote democracy. These countries are naturally suited to help other countries as they fight for freedom and democracy. Many of these countries are also actively engaged in Cuba, helping to promote democracy there. Likewise, they have a unique understanding of the struggle for democracy that is taking place in Iraq and Afghanistan.

Despite their commitments to the principles of freedom and democracy, these countries are still paying a price that other countries in the West do not pay. Citizens of Portugal, the U.K., or Spain can travel easily to the U.S., while citizens of Poland, Hungary, and Slovakia are given second-class treatment.

I would like to share a few examples to put a human face on this problem.

I recently learned of a story involving a young Czech officer who served in Iraq with Americans. This soldier wanted to come to America to visit the American friends he made during combat operations. But his application for a visa was refused. Why? Because his passport included a visit to Iraq, the very place he served with American soldiers.

Another example involves young students from places like Latvia, Estonia, or Bulgaria. These young people have a positive view of America and hope to visit our country. However, their expensive visa applications are frequently rejected, dampening their spirits and tainting their image of America. And this view is spreading every day.

By limiting travel to the U.S., we are risking a loss of influence with the future leaders of our closest allies.

I have been working for the last several months to develop a piece of legislation that will address these challenges, without sacrificing U.S. security. I was pleased when I heard President Bush announce his intention to focus on this issue in the coming year. On the margins of the NATO Summit in Riga, he called on Congress to expand the Visa Waiver Program and that we can reward our closest allies for their help and friendship.

I agree with the President—but I want to clarify that this is not simply a reward for these countries. The true reward is the knowledge that we are free and democratic countries working together to advance international security. But the foremost goal of this legislation is to create mutually beneficial partnerships with clear national security advantages for the United States.

By continuing on the current path, we risk marginalizing some of our closest allies in the war on terror and losing the hearts and minds of their future leaders and citizens. We have an opportunity to change direction in a way that will promote our own national security interests and improve control of our borders. The Secure Travel and Counterterrorism Partnership Act can achieve all of these objectives.

What would this bill do?

The legislation would expand visa-free travel privileges for up to five new countries, for a probationary period of 3 years.

In order for a country to participate in the plan, the executive branch would first need to certify that the country is cooperative on counterterrorism and does not pose a security threat to the United States. However, the country would also be required to take a number of new steps to enhance our common security. Participating countries would be required to conclude new agreements with the United States to further strengthen cooperation on counterterrorism and improve information-sharing about critical security issues.

Some might say—if these countries are key allies, aren’t they cooperating with us already? The answer is yes. They are very cooperative. But in today’s heightened security environment, there is more that each country can do, such as sharing additional sensitive information that can help our intelligence community and law enforcement agencies investigate threats and combat terrorist activity. By negotiating new agreements on counterterrorism and information-sharing to permit participation in the Visa Waiver Program, we can reduce threats to the United States.

Additionally, the legislation would require the countries to enact a number of significant security measures, which would limit illegal entry and unlawful presence in their countries and impede travel by terrorists and transnational criminals. Security standards required for participation in the program would include electronic passports with biometric information, as well as prompt reporting of lost, stolen, or fraudulent travel documents to the U.S. and Interpol.

These new requirements would help make the U.S. more secure. Expanding the number of participating countries would increase the number of states meeting common security standards. This would allow U.S. resources to shift consular resources used to issue visas to other missions with more critical security needs.

If at any time, participant countries are not complying with these requirements, their probationary status in the program could be revoked. Likewise, if the program is determined to be successful, it could be expanded to include additional countries.

That last part of the legislation is aimed at enhancing security requirements for countries who are currently participating in the Visa Waiver Program. In this post 9/11 world, the U.S. Government has already required additional security measures of participating visa waiver countries, such as machine-readable passports with biometric information. But we can and must do more.

I was very pleased that last week, Homeland Security Secretary Chertoff recommended several new measures to further enhance the efficiency and security of the Visa Waiver Program. His recommendations included an electronic travel authorization system, additional passenger information exchange, common standards for airport security and baggage screening, cooperation in the air marshal program, and assistance to foreign airports for the assistance for any traveler who overstays the terms of their visa or violates U.S. law.

As the administration works to develop the details of these recommendations, I would note that within one year, the executive branch provide a report to Congress on its plans for the Visa Waiver Program improvements.

In addition to the benefits to foreign relations and homeland security, this bill would do a great deal to advance U.S. competitiveness. Visa-free travel to the United States has been proven to significantly boost tourism and business, as well as airline revenues, and would generate substantial economic benefits to the United States well into the future. Additionally, it would improve attitudes toward the United States throughout the world, which would benefit the U.S. economy and national security for generations to come.

As a member of both the Foreign Relations and Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs Committees, I believe that we have a real opportunity to improve our foreign relations, our homeland defense, and the visa waiver system overall.

Therefore, I call on my colleagues in the Senate and the House to examine this legislation with a serious eye, refraining from the knee-jerk reaction that an expanded program is bad for national security. When you look at the facts involved and the opportunities ahead, you can see that we have an opportunity to improve cooperation and strengthen the bonds of friendship with our allies in the war on terror.

I look forward to working with my colleagues in the Congress and the President to move this legislation forward.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of this bill be printed in the Record.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

SEC. 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the “Secure Travel and Counterterrorism Partnership Act”.

SEC. 2. SENSE OF CONGRESS.

It is the sense of Congress that the United States should expand the Visa Waiver Program to extend visa-free travel privileges to nationals of foreign countries that are allies in the war on terrorism as that expansion will—

(1) enhance bilateral cooperation on critical counterterrorism and information sharing initiatives;

(2) support and expand tourism and business opportunities to enhance long-term economic competitiveness; and

(3) strengthen bilateral relationships.

SEC. 3. VISA WAIVER PROGRAM EXPANSION.

Section 217(c) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1187(c)) is amended by adding at the end the following:

“(8) PROBATIONARY PARTICIPATION OF PROGRAM COUNTRIES.—

“(A) REQUIREMENT TO ESTABLISH.—Notwithstanding any other provision of this section and not later than 1 year after the date of the enactment of the Secure Travel and Counterterrorism Partnership Act, the Secretary of Homeland Security, in consultation with the Secretary of State, shall establish a pilot program to permit not more than 5 foreign countries that are not designated as program countries under paragraph (1) to participate in the program under this paragraph to issue electronic passports that include biometric information and to promptly return lost, stolen, or fraudulent passports to the Government of the United States;

“(B) DESIGNATION AS A PROBATIONARY PROGRAM COUNTRY.—A foreign country is eligible to participate in the program under this paragraph if—

“(i) the Secretary of Homeland Security determines that such participation will not compromise the security or law enforcement interests of the United States;

“(ii) that country is close to meeting all the requirements of paragraph (2) and other requirements for designation as a program country under this section and has developed a feasible strategic plan to meet all such requirements not later than 3 years after the date the country begins participation in the program under this paragraph;

“(iii) that country meets all the requirements that the Secretary determines are appropriate to secure the visa system and integrity of travel documents, including requirements to issue electronic passports that include biometric information and to promptly return lost, stolen, or fraudulent passports to the Government of the United States;

“(iv) that country cooperated with the Government of the United States on counterterrorism cooperation and information sharing before the date of the enactment of this paragraph; and

“(v) that country has entered into an agreement with the Government of the United States by which that country agrees to further advance United States security interests by implementing such additional counterterrorism cooperation and information sharing measures as may be requested by the Secretary of Homeland Security, in consultation with the Secretary of State.

“(C) CONSIDERATIONS FOR COUNTRY SELECTION.—

“(i) VISA REFUSAL RATES.—The Secretary of Homeland Security may consider the rate of refusals of nonimmigrant visitor visas for nationals of a foreign country in determining whether to permit that country to participate in the program under this paragraph but may not refuse to permit that country to participate in the program under this paragraph solely on the basis of such rate unless the Secretary determines that such rate is a security concern to the United States.

“(ii) OVERSTAY RATES.—The Secretary of Homeland Security may consider the rate at which nationals of a foreign country violate the terms of their visas by remaining in the United States after the expiration of such a visa in determining whether to permit that country to participate in the program under this paragraph.

“(D) TERM OF PARTICIPATION.—

“(I) INITIAL PROBATIONARY TERM.—A foreign country may participate in the program under this paragraph for an initial term of 3 years.

“(II) EXTENSION OF PARTICIPATION.—The Secretary of Homeland Security, in consultation with the Secretary of State, may permit a country to participate in the program under this paragraph after the expiration of the initial term under clause (I) for 1 additional period of not more than 2 years if that country—

“(i) has demonstrated significant progress toward meeting the requirements of paragraph (2) and all other requirements for designation as a program country under this section; and

“(ii) continues to be determined not to compromise the security or law enforcement interests of the United States.

“(III) TERMINATION OF PARTICIPATION.—The Secretary of Homeland Security, in consultation with the Secretary of State, determines that the country—

“(I) is not in compliance with the requirements of this paragraph; or “(II) is not able to demonstrate significant and quantifiable progress, on an annual basis, toward meeting the requirements of paragraph (2) and all other requirements for designation as a program country under this section.

“(B) TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE.—The Secretary of Homeland Security, in consultation with the Secretary of State, shall provide technical guidance to a country that participates in the program under this paragraph to

This concludes my remarks.
For example, in 2002, the executive director of the New Hampshire Republican State Committee saw flyers advertising telephone numbers for Democratic get-out-the-vote efforts that offered voters rides to the polls. The executive director hired the idea of jamming those phone lines on election day to prevent voters from getting rides to the polls.

He consulted the New England Regional Political Director for the Republican State Committee, who led him to an associate who could handle phone jamming efforts, an outfit called GOP Marketplace. GOP Marketplace contacted an Idaho-based tele-services company that agreed to have employees hang up the phone lines of the Manchester Democratic Party and the Manchester Professional Firefighters Association—the two groups offering rides—on election day, November 5, 2002.

As a result of these efforts, the New Hampshire Democratic Party’s get-out-the-vote volunteers and employees answered the phones only to find callers who said nothing and immediately hung up. Legitimate voters who called the Manchester Democratic Party or the Manchester Professional Firefighters Association seeking a ride to the polls received busy signals.

The Department of Justice prosecuted many of the men responsible for this dirty campaign, and some of the guilty have already served their sentences. These men were tried under existing phone harassment and civil rights laws. However, it is likely that the perpetrators of the next phone jamming effort will not be so ham-handed. General harassment laws may be insufficient to get at the next conspiracy. And even in the most recent election, we continue to hear about instances in which phone lines were hung up. That is why I am introducing the Election Jamming Prevention Act today. This bill will ensure that those who seek to disable election-related telecommunications will be criminally liable. This does not impede political speech—but this does stop nefarious efforts to shut down phone lines to cripple election-related efforts. From get-out-the-vote efforts, to voter education campaigns, qualified voters deserve to have access to information that will assist them in the exercise of their right to vote. Someone’s ability to hire a company to place hang-up calls should not determine whether voters get to the polls on election day.

This shouldn’t be a partisan issue, so I hope my colleagues on both sides of the aisle will join me in supporting this bill. I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the Record.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the Record, as follows:

S. 4102
Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,
Mr. SMITH. S. 4104. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to provide credit rate parity for all renewable resources under the electricity production credit; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. SMITH. Mr. President, today I am introducing legislation to provide for credit rate parity under section 45 of the Internal Revenue Code for electricity from eligible renewable resources produced and sold after December 31, 2006.

Currently, certain renewable resources such as wind and closed-loop biomass receive a credit of 1.5 cents per kilowatt hour produced. For other renewables, such as open-loop biomass and incremental hydropower, the amount of the credit is reduced by half. I have been a long-time supporter of the production tax credit. There are significant wind facilities in Oregon, where we have over 335 megawatts of installed wind capacity. These facilities provide clean energy as well as important revenues to farmers and rural counties in Eastern Oregon. My bill does not reduce the credit rate for wind but, rather, increases the rate for those renewables that are currently eligible only for the reduced credit rate.

I have also heard from those industries that receive the reduced credit rate that the disadvantage this creates for them in the marketplace. Often, when bidding to provide green power, the difference in the credit rate makes the difference in being outbid. We should provide a level playing field for all eligible renewables.

I applaud and support the current efforts to extend the existing section 45 tax credits for renewables for another year. I hope that can be accomplished before we adjourn sine die. In introducing this legislation today, I want to begin the discussion that will lead to parity for all of the important new renewable technologies that can help us meet growing demands for electricity with clean, sustainable resources. As a member of the Finance Committee, this is an issue which I will pursue next year.

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, today I am introducing the College Opportunity Tax Credit Act of 2006, COTC, this legislation will extend the existing section 45 tax credit that will put the cost of higher education in reach for American families.

An October 2006 College Board report found that this year tuition and other costs at public and private universities rose faster than inflation. And, according to the report, tuition and fees at public universities rose more in the past five years than at any other time in the past 30 years, increasing by 35 percent to $5,836 this academic year. Over the same time period, tuition and fees at private universities increased 22 percent to $22,218.

Unfortunately, neither student aid funds nor family incomes are keeping pace with inflation and fees. In my travels around the country, I frequently hear from parents concerned they will not be able to pay for college for their children. These parents know that earning a college education will result in greater earnings for their children. The second provides a nonrefundable tax credit for part-time students, graduate students, and other students that do not qualify for the refundable tax credit. It provides a 40 percent credit for the first $1,000 of eligible expenses and a 20 percent credit for the next $3,000 of expenses.

Both of these credits can be used for expenses associated with tuition and fees. The same income limits that apply to the HOPE credit and the lifetime learning credit apply to the COTC. The COTC will be phased out ratably for taxpayers with income between $45,000 and $55,000—$90,000 and $110,000 for married taxpayers. These amounts are indexed for inflation, as are the eligible amounts of expenses.

The College Opportunity Tax Credit Act of 2006 simplifies the existing credits that make higher education more affordable and will enable more students to be eligible for tax relief. I understand that many of my colleagues are interested in making college more affordable. I look forward to working with my colleagues to make a refundable tax credit for college education a reality next Congress. I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

By Mr. LAUTENBERG:

S. 4109. A bill to amend title 49, United States Code, to prohibit the operation of certain aircraft not complying with stage 3 noise levels, to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

Mr. President, I rise today to introduce a bill which would greatly improve the quality of life for many residents of New Jersey, as well as people across America, by reducing aircraft noise. The Aircraft Noise Reduction Act of 2006 would greatly reduce unnecessary levels of noise pollution by phasing out usage of the loudest aircraft still operating.

I have long had a strong interest in this issue; indeed, I first introduced legislation calling for the phase-out of older, noisier aircraft in 1990, and since then, some phase-out of stage 2 aircraft has been made. As we face an influx of many new aircraft to our system—some 5,000 new very light jets, VLJ’s, are expected to enter the U.S. aviation market and our airspace in the next decade—now is the time to rid our skies of the older, noisier planes.

For purposes of rating aircraft noise levels, aircraft have to meet U.S. Environmental Protection Agency noise standards classified as “stages”: stage 1 and stage 2 noise levels are the loudest, while stage 3 and stage 4 standards adopted just last year are the quietest. Commercial stage 1 aircraft were phased out by 1985, and Congress mandated the retirement of commercial stage 2 aircraft by 2000. However, these regulations only applied to aircraft weighing more than 75,000 pounds; this means that there are still many loud business jets still in service. The legislation I am introducing today would finally bring closure to this issue by phasing out the use of all remaining stage 1 and stage 2 aircraft in the United States.

The benefits of this total phase-out will be abundant. On average, older, noisier stage 1 aircraft are noisier as loud as newer, quieter, stage 3 planes. Unfortunately, at Teterboro Airport in my home State of New Jersey, one of the largest general aviation airports in the country, loud stage 2 planes have been common until recently. This contributed greatly to the noise pollution problems experienced in New Jersey communities, and hurt property values for many citizens. It’s precisely why it is critically important to work toward a complete phase-out of stage 1 and stage 2 aircraft.

This issue has particular resonance in New Jersey, because Teterboro Airport and Morristown Airport, among others, are located in densely populated areas. Stage 1 and 2 aircraft flying into these airports constitute an unnecessary daily nuisance for, literally, hundreds of thousands of my constituents, and I believe it is time to take decisive action to correct the problem. Voluntarily banning these aircraft from one airport will only force them to use another local airport, so I believe that a nationwide ban is necessary.

Furthermore, Mr. President, this bill would not only help decrease aircraft noise, it would also improve conservation. On average, stage 2 aircraft use 30 percent more fuel than otherwise comparable stage 3 jets, and passage of this bill would eliminate usage of many of the most fuel-inefficient aircraft still operational in America.

My bill takes an approach which is sensitive to the economic hardship of communities who want to allow these aircraft to continue in use. Individual airports would still be allowed to opt-out of this measure by choosing to accommodate these noisier business jets. Also, the act would not take effect until fully 3 years after enactment, allowing ample time for businesses to adapt to the new regulations.

Mr. President, I believe that this bill represents a significant step forward in the ongoing efforts to control aircraft noise, and I urge my colleagues to support the legislation. I also unreservedly consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD following my remarks.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

(2) Section 47532 of title 49, United States Code, is amended by striking “§ 47528 through § 47531” and inserting “§ 47528 through § 47534”.

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall take effect on the date that is 3 years after the date of enactment of this Act.

S. RES. 627

Whereas on November 9, 2005, a series of terrorist bombs exploded at the Radisson, Hyatt, and Days Inn hotels in Amman, Jordan, resulting in the deaths of scores of civilians and the injuries of hundreds of others; Whereas Jordan has been targeted in several terrorist attacks over the past few years and recently remains a target for Islamic extremists; Whereas Jordan provided unequivocal support to the United States after the September 11, 2001, terrorist attacks; Whereas Jordan has arrested suspected terrorists with possible ties to Osama bin Laden’s Al-Qaeda organization and has provided other critical support to the global war on terrorism; and

Whereas Jordan remains a firm ally of the United States in the global war against terrorism and in helping to achieve a lasting peace in the Middle East: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate—

Res. 627 commemorating the 1-year anniversary of the November 9, 2005, terrorist attacks in Amman, Jordan and reaffirming the support of the United States for the Hashemite Kingdom of Jordan as an important ally in combating terrorism in the region.

The Hashemite Kingdom of Jordan has been a steadfast friend and ally of the United States in the war against terrorism. Sadly, on November 9, 2005, Jordan itself became a victim of terrorism. Terrorists attacked western hotels in its capital city, Amman, killing and injuring scores of people.

This bill condemns the terrorist attacks that took place on November 9 and reaffirms the support of the U.S. Government for the Jordanian people and their government.

(a) Findings and Purpose.—(1) Findings.—Congress finds that—

(A) the Tribes have established treaty rights to take shellfish from public and private tidelands in Washington State, including from some lands owned, leased, or otherwise subject to harvest by commercial shellfish growers;

(B) the district court that adjudicated the Tribes' treaty rights to take shellfish found that the growers are innocent purchasers who had no notice of the Tribes' fishing right when they acquired their properties;

(C) numerous unresolved issues remain outstanding regarding implementation of the Tribes' treaty right to take shellfish from covered tidelands owned or leased by the growers;

(b) shellfish from covered tidelands owned or leased by the growers could be pursued through the courts, a process which in all likelihood could continue indefinitely, inhibit harvest of shellfish by the growers that the Tribes have agreed to in the settlement agreement, and be detrimental to the Tribes and the growers and the ultimate detriment of the State of Washington and the United States;

(C) to authorize the Secretary to implement the terms and conditions of the settlement agreement and this section.

(2) Purpose.—The purposes of this section are—

(A) to approve, ratify, and confirm the settlement agreement entered into by and among the Tribes, commercial shellfish growers, the State of Washington, and the United States;

(B) to provide other tribes with a fair and just resolution of any claims to take shellfish from covered tidelands, as that term is defined in the settlement agreement, that potentially could be brought in the future by other tribes; and

(C) in order to avoid this uncertainty, it is the intent of Congress that other Tribes have the option of resolving their claims, if any, to a treaty right to take shellfish from covered tidelands owned or leased by the growers; and

(H) this Act represents a good faith effort on the part of Congress to extend to other Tribes the same fair and just option of resolving their claims to take shellfish from covered tidelands, as that term is defined in the settlement agreement, that potentially could be brought in the future by other tribes;

(3) Approval of Settlement Agreement.—(A) the Tribes have established treaty rights to take shellfish from covered tidelands, as that term is defined in the settlement agreement, that potentially could be brought in the future by other tribes; and

(b) Settlement Agreement, and Conditions.—(1) Puget Sound Regional Shellfish Settlement Trust Fund.—(A) There is hereby established in the Treasury of the United States an account to be designated as the "Puget Sound Regional Shellfish Settlement Trust Fund". The Secretary shall deposit funds in the amount of $1,500,000 into the Special Holding Account in fiscal year 2011 at such time as such funds are appropriated pursuant to this section.

(b) Each of the Tribes may judicially establish their rights to take shellfish in the covered tidelands in accordance with this section. Such a transfer to a tribe shall constitute full and complete satisfaction of that tribe's claims to shellfish on the covered tidelands.

(D) The Secretary may retain such amounts of the Special Holding Account as may be necessary to provide security to the Department of the Treasury that may judicially establish their rights to take shellfish in the covered tidelands in accordance with this section, and any additional security as the Secretary deems necessary to protect the United States with respect to the expenditures and investments of the monies withdrawn from the Fund or Special Holding Account during the year covered by the report.

(E) The Secretary may continue to maintain the Special Holding Account in order to resolve the claims of other Tribes that have not signed the settlement agreement. Such a transfer to a tribe shall constitute full and complete satisfaction of that tribe's claims to shellfish on the covered tidelands.

(F) Twenty years after the deposit of funds into the Special Holding Account, the Secretary shall close the Account and transfer the balance of any funds held in the Special Holding Account at that time to the Treasurer. However, the Secretary may continue to maintain the Special Holding Account in order to resolve the claim of an Other Tribe that has not signed the settlement agreement. Such a transfer to a tribe shall constitute full and complete satisfaction of that tribe's claims to shellfish on the covered tidelands.

(F) The Secretary shall make a report to the Committee on the Budget of the Senate and the Committee on Appropriations of the House of Representatives that describes all expenditures made with any monies withdrawn from the Fund or Special Holding Account during the year covered by the report.

(G) It is the intent of Congress that the other Tribes, if any, enter into an agreement of agreeing to similar rights and responsibilities as the Tribes that are signatories to the settlement agreement, if they so choose.

(H) It is the intent of Congress that the Secretary may continue to maintain the Special Holding Account in order to resolve the claim of an Other Tribe that has not signed the settlement agreement. Such a transfer to a tribe shall constitute full and complete satisfaction of that tribe's claims to shellfish on the covered tidelands.

(4) Judicial and Administrative Action.—(A) The Secretary may take judicial or administrative action to ensure that any monies withdrawn from the Fund or Special Holding Account are used in accordance with the purposes described in the settlement agreement and this section.

(B) The Secretary shall maintain and invest the balance of any funds held in the Special Holding Account at that time to the Treasurer. However, the Secretary may continue to maintain the Special Holding Account in order to resolve the claims of the Tribes that have not signed the settlement agreement. (3) The Special Holding Account shall be maintained and invested by the Secretary of the Treasury pursuant to the Act of June 24, 1938, (25 U.S.C. 162a) until such time as all monies are transferred from the Special Holding Account.

(4) If a court of competent jurisdiction renders a final decision declaring that any of the Tribes has no treaty right or harvest of shellfish in covered tidelands, as that term is defined in the settlement agreement, such a decision to accept a share of the Special Holding Account, rather than litigate this claim against the growers, the Secretary shall make a report to the Committee on Appropriations of the Senate and the Committee on Appropriations of the House of Representatives that describes all expenditures made with any monies withdrawn from the Fund or Special Holding Account during the year covered by the report.

(5) Clarification of Trust Responsibility.—Beginning on the date that monies are deposited in a tribe of the Tribes or a tribe of the other Tribes pursuant to this section, any trust responsibility or liability of the United States with respect to the expenditure or investment of the monies withdrawn from the Fund.

PIPELINE SAFETY IMPROVEMENT ACT OF 2006

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the immediate consideration of H.R. 5782 which was received from the House.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the bill by title.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (H.R. 5782) to amend title 49, United States Code, to provide for enhanced safety and environmental protection in pipeline transportation; to provide for enhanced reliability in the transportation of the Nation’s energy products by pipeline, and for other purposes.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consideration of the bill.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Mr. President, I would like to thank Commerce Committee co-chairmen Stevens and Inouye for their hard work in achieving this bill’s passage. H.R. 5782 the Pipeline Inspection, Protection, Enforcement, and Safety Act of 2006 is a timely piece of legislation that I hope that in the future it will soon become law. I am proud to be one of the original cosponsors of the Senate version of this bill, S.3691.

Our 2.3 million miles of natural gas and hazardous liquid pipelines are more than simply a series of tubes. This system is the transportation mode for nearly two-thirds of the energy consumed by our Nation. From large transmission pipelines to distribution pipelines to service lines which run into our homes, every part of this system must be safe.

I am pleased that Congress is acting to reauthorize the Office of Pipeline Safety, OPS, and bringing its resources more in line with what is needed to adequately regulate this industry. This bill would authorize 50 percent more Federal pipeline safety inspectors than the Federal Government currently has.

The bill will change Federal policy to help prevent construction-related damage to pipelines by giving additional enforcement authority to OPS and authorizing grants to states to improve one-call notification programs. At the same time, it will also make OPS enforcement actions more transparent to those interested in what the Federal Government is doing to make their lives safer. Furthermore, this bill will also regulate for the first time low-stress oil pipelines, such as the ones in Prudhoe Bay, AK, and gas distribution pipelines all over the country.

One subject in the bill I was proud to author deals with the mandatory use of excess flow valves. These important safety devices can shut off gas flow when a service line is ruptured, preventing a potential explosion. It is well learned that the 1994 gas explosion in Easton, CT, that technology must be used to shut off gas flow in the case of a rupture. Shortly after that damaging explosion, I introduced legisin their states, the number reported may slightly understate the actual number. Further, we estimate that, on average, for each master meter and LPG system the operator has 100 services.

I will continue to work with Senator INOUYE in the next Congress, who will chair the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation, to determine the feasibility of requiring these important safety devices in types of buildings as well—other than single family dwellings—as safety advocates including the National Transportation Safety Board have suggested is feasible. These safety devices can provide crucial protection in the event of a pipeline rupture or similar incident, and technology has advanced to the point where they are effective and readily available. Many pipeline companies are already using excess flow valves in such installations.

I thank all those who worked toward an agreement on this provision and all those who helped pass this bill. A gas leak in a home can be a silent killer, with little warning; we must utilize technology which is available to keep our families safe.

Whereas the Coast Survey was established to carry out the duties established under such Act, and was the first Federal science agency to be established.

Whereas over time additional duties, including geodetic surveying and tide and current monitoring and predictions, were bestowed, which was last known as the U.S. Coast Survey and later the U.S. Coast and Geodetic Survey;

Whereas the focus shifted to providing charts and information vital to the young nation’s economic and commercial success, such pioneering agency led some of the nation’s earliest oceanographic research, underwater surveys of the Gulf Stream to determine temperatures, depths, direction, and velocity as well as the character of the seafloor and forms of vegetation and marine life;

Whereas the early technicians and scientists of such agency invented and supported the development of many innovative tools such as marine chart systems, shoreline, and geodetic surveying and cartographic methods, the first real-time water level stations, and deep-sea anchoring;

Whereas in the 20th century such agency, by then re-named the Coast and Geodetic Survey, advanced the development and marine applications of electronics and acoustics, such as development of radar, Acoustic Ranging, radio sonobuoys and the Roberts Radio Current Meter Buoy;

Whereas throughout their history these programs have provided services in support of the Nation’s commerce and defense serving in all theaters of the Civil War and in World War II, leading to advances in hydrographic, topographic mapping, and geodetic surveying, marine geology, and to aeronautical surveying;

(2) recognizes the vision of President Thomas Jefferson in supporting the advancement of science, and the survey of the coast in particular to the welfare and commercial success of the Nation;

(3) recognizes the contributions made over the past 200 years by the past and current employees and officers of the Office of Coast Survey, the National Geodetic Survey, and the Center for Operational Oceanographic Products and Services of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration and

Whereas during the 20th century such programs as the Marine Hydrographic Reconnaissance, mapping, topographers, topographers, and scouts, including the production of more than 100 million maps and charts for U.S. and Allied forces;

Whereas our Nation’s interests and economy became increasingly interwoven with the marine and atmospheric environment, a number of Federal science agencies with complimentary functions, including the Weather Bureau and the Bureau of Commercial Fisheries, were combined with such agency to create the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA);

Whereas today these mapping and charting, geodetic, and tide and current data programs are located in the National Ocean Service of NOAA, in the Coast Survey, the National Geodetic Survey, and the Center for Operational Oceanographic Products and Services;

Whereas these programs promote NOAA’s commerce and transportation goals and continue to support the research, development and application of state-of-the-art surveying, mapping, charting, ocean observing, modeling, and Internet-based product delivery services to promote safe and efficient commerce and transportation and contributing to the advancement of integrated ocean and earth observing systems;

Whereas these programs continue to demonstrate relevance, value, importance, and service promoting and employing innovative partnerships with other agencies, State and local authorities, academia, and the private sector;

Whereas these programs work internationally as the United States representative to the International Hydrographic Organization and with other organizations to provide integrated and uniform standards, protocols, formats, and services;

Whereas in addition to commerce and transportation programs also contribute NOAA’s weather and climate, and ecosystem missions including marine resource conservation, coastal management, and the protection of life and property from coastal storms and other hazards, as most recently demonstrated in responding to and facilitating recovery and commerce in the hurricane stricken Gulf Coast;

Whereas the devotion, industry, efficiency, and enterprise of these people and programs over the years have sustained an enviable record of public service: Now, therefore, be it

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, today, we pay special tribute to a giant of sports in Massachusetts we are proud to call our own. I was honored to speak at his memorial service in Boston, and I am proud today to offer this resolution on the one and only Arnold “Red” Auerbach, who died in October at the age of 89.

Red was a pioneer in sports and in civil rights as well. He has been widely praised as one of the architects of the new Boston. He will never be forgotten—and there will never be another like him.

Basketball was his sport, and the Celtics he led with the legendary Bill Russell set the gold standard for the NBA for many years and transformed his city as well as his sport.

The stories of his competitive drive have become legendary. Red had a deep and abiding passion for life and for living each day as if it was a gift from above. Whenever you were in his presence, you could sense the powerful joy that comes to the rare few like Red Auerbach, who know they have done everything possible in every way on every day to achieve their dream.

Red Auerbach was a great coach and also a great man. He believed in winning, but he also believed that every individual should have the chance to be a winner. In the 1950s, before every Boston Garden parquet floor. One play—

(On Thursday, November 16, 2006, the Senate took the following action:)

SEC. 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the “NATO Freedom Consolidation Act of 2006”.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

Congress makes the following findings:

(1) The sustained commitment of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) to mutual defense has made possible the democratic transformation of Central and Eastern Europe. Members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization can and should play a critical role in addressing the security challenges of the post-Cold War era in creating stable environments tailored to emerging democracies in Europe.

(2) Lasting stability and security in Europe requires the military, economic, and political integration of new democracies into existing European structures.

(3) In an era of threats from terrorism and the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization is increasingly contributing to security in the face of global security challenges for the protection and interests of its member states.

(4) In the NATO Participation Act of 1994 (title II of Public Law 103–447; 22 U.S.C. 2128 note), Congress declared that “fully and active participants in the Partnership for Peace in a position to further the principles of the North Atlantic Treaty and to contribute to the security of the North Atlantic area should be invited to become full NATO members in accordance with Article 10 of such Treaty at an early date . . . .” In the NATO Enlargement Facilitation Act of 1996 (title VI of section 101(c) of title I of division A of Public Law 104–208; 22 U.S.C. 2128 note), Congress called for the participation of seven countries—Poland, Hungary, the Czech Republic, and Slovenia to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, and declared that “in order to promote economic stability and security in Slovakia, Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania, Romania, Bulgaria, Albania, Moldova, and Ukraine . . . the process of enlarging NATO to include emerging democracies in Central and Eastern Europe should not be limited to consideration of admitting Poland, Hungary, the Czech Republic, and Slovenia as full members of the NATO Alliance.”

(5) In the European Security Act of 1998 (title XXVII of division G of Public Law 105–177; 22 U.S.C. 2128 note), Congress declared that “Poland, Hungary, and the Czech Republic should not be the last emerging democracies in Central and Eastern Europe invited to join NATO” and that “Romania, Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania, and Bulgaria . . . would make an outstanding contribution to furthering the goals of NATO and enhancing stability, freedom, and security in Europe should they become NATO members and upon complete satisfaction of all relevant criteria should be invited to become full NATO members at the earliest possible date”.

(6) In the European Security Act of 1998 (title XXVII of division G of Public Law 105–177; 22 U.S.C. 2128 note), Congress declared that “Poland, Hungary, and the Czech Republic should not be the last emerging democracies in Central and Eastern Europe invited to join NATO” and that “Romania, Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania, and Bulgaria . . . would make an outstanding contribution to furthering the goals of NATO and enhancing stability, freedom, and security in Europe should they become NATO members and upon complete satisfaction of all relevant criteria should be invited to become full NATO members at the earliest possible date”.

(8) At the Madrid Summit of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in Poland, Hungary, and the Czech Republic were invited to join the Alliance, and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization heads of state and government issued a declaration stating “[t]he alliance expects to extend further invitations in coming years to nations willing and able to assume the responsibilities and obligations of membership . . . .” to European democratic country whose admission would require the military, economic, and political integration of new democracies into existing European structures.
the [North Atlantic] Treaty and contribute to peace and security in the Euro-Atlantic area . . . [t]he three new members will not be the last . . . [n]o European democratic country would be willing to forego the responsibilities of the Treaty will be excluded from consideration, regardless of its geographic location . . . the membership of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in the next round of enlargement of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization by one or more of these countries would be a success for all; and (C) eventual membership in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization for all of these countries would be a success for Europe and for the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

(11) On June 15, 2001, in a speech in Warsaw, Poland, President George W. Bush stated—"[t]hroughout Europe's new democracies, from the Baltic to the Black Sea and all that lie between, we have the same commitment to security and freedom—and the same chance to join the institutions of Europe—as Europe's old democracies have. I believe in NATO membership for all of Europe's democracies that seek it and are ready to share the responsibilities that NATO brings . . . [w]e will not trade away the fate of free European peoples . . . [n]o more Munichs . . . [n]o more appeasement. When the Poles, the Lithuanians, and the Latvians make the commitment to keep the readiness of each as a way forward through the process, we should not calculate how little we can get away with, but how much we can do to advance the cause of freedom.''

(12) On October 22, 1996, in a speech in Detroit, Michigan, former President William J. Clinton stated ‘‘NATO’s doors will not close behind its first new members . . . NATO should remain open to all of Europe's emerging democracies who are ready to shoulder the responsibilities of membership . . . [n]ation should be automatically excluded . . . [n]o country outside NATO will have a veto . . . [a] gray zone of insecurity must not re-emerge in Europe.''

(13) At the Prague Summit of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in November 2002, Bulgaria, Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania, Romania, Slovakia, and Slovenia were invited to join the Alliance in the second round of enlargement of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization since the end of the Cold War, and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization heads of state and government issued a declaration stating ‘‘[w]e celebrate the success of NATO’s Open Door Policy, and reaffirm today that our seven new members will not be the last. The door to membership remains open. We welcome new partners to NATO, and the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia (1) in implementing their Annual National Programmes under the Membership Action Plan in order to continue pursuing the reforms necessary to progress toward NATO membership. We also commend their contribution to regional stability and security and encourage them to continue to assist them in their reform efforts. NATO will continue to assess each country’s candidacy individually, based on the progress made towards reform goals pursued through the Membership Action Plan, which will remain the vehicle to keep the readiness of each aspirant for membership under review. We direct that NATO Foreign Ministers keep the enlargement process, including the implementation of the Membership Action Plan, under continual review and report to us. We will review at the next Summit progress by aspirants towards membership based on that report.''

(16) Georgia has stated its desire to join the Euro-Atlantic community, and in particular, is seeking to join North Atlantic Treaty Organization by working closely with the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and its members to meet criteria for eventual membership in NATO.

(17) At a meeting with President Mikhail Saakashvili of Georgia in Washington, D.C. on July 5, 2006, President George W. Bush stated that ‘‘I believe that NATO would benefit with Georgia being a member of NATO, and I think Georgia would benefit. And there’s a way forward through the Membership Action Plan. And I’m a believer in the expansion of NATO. I think it’s in the world’s interest that we expand NATO.’’

(18) Following a meeting of NATO Foreign Ministers in New York on September 21, 2006, NATO Secretary General Jaap de Hoop Scheffer announced the launching of an Intensified Dialogue on membership between the Alliance and Georgia.

(19) Contingent upon their continued implementation of democratic, defense, and economic reform, and their willingness and ability to meet the responsibilities of membership in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia—by admittance of the Republic of Albania, Croatia, Georgia, and Macedonia to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization to promote security and stability in Europe.

(20) The North Atlantic Treaty Organization heads of state and government will hold a North Atlantic Treaty Organization Summit in Riga, Latvia.

SEC. 5. DECLARATIONS OF POLICY.

(2) supports the commitment to further enlargement of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization to include European democracies that are able and willing to meet the responsibilities of Membership, as expressed by the March 22, 2002 Munich Declaration and the June 21, 1997, its Warsaw Summit Communiqué of 1999, its Prague Summit Declaration of 2002, and its Istanbul Summit Communiqué of 2004; and

(3) endorses the vision of further enlargement of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization articulated by President George W. Bush on June 15, 2001, and by former President William J. Clinton on October 22, 1996, and urges our allies in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization to work with the United States to realize a role for the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in promoting global security, including continued support for enlargement to include candidate states, specifically by entering into a Membership Action Plan with Georgia and recognizing the progress toward meeting the requirements for submission of NATO membership by Albania, Croatia, Georgia, and Macedonia at the NATO Summit in Riga, Latvia.
(1) $3,200,000 is authorized to be available on a grant basis for the Republic of Albania;
(2) $3,000,000 is authorized to be available on a grant basis for the Republic of Croatia; and
(3) $10,000,000 is authorized to be available on a grant basis for Georgia; and
(4) $3,600,000 is authorized to be available on a grant basis for the Republic of Macedonia.

SEC. 6. SENSE OF CONGRESS.
Congress affirms that it stands ready to consider, and if all applicable criteria are satisfied, to support efforts by Ukraine to join the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, should Ukraine decide that it wishes to pursue membership in the Alliance.

REGARDING TURKEY'S ACCESSION TO THE EUROPEAN UNION

HON. CAROLYN B. MALONEY
OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 6, 2006

Mrs. MALONEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of the settlement agreement and in support of H.R. 6377, the San Joaquin River Restoration Settlement Act. This legislation not only sets out a course for the implementation of this historic agreement, but it also resolves issues that are crucial to my constituents in California's 18th Congressional District. Without this legislation, the settlement could result in significant costs—in the millions—for downstream landowners and flood control operations, and also would have significant impacts on water delivery systems for the State of California. The release of water to restore the river would have a domino effect downstream—from flooding, water table impacts, impacts on farmland and crops near the river, Endangered Species Act impacts and resulting water supply impacts to Delta water exporters—Central Valley and State Water Project contractors—and upon San Joaquin River tributary agencies—Merced, Tullock, Modesto, Oakdale and South San Joaquin Irrigation Districts.

This legislation establishes a regional energy market in southeast Europe.

Finally, Turkey's obligations to Cyprus remain unfulfilled. As part of this process, Turkey must normalize its relations with Cyprus, which joined the EU in May 2004. Unfortunately, Turkey still refuses to recognize Cyprus or open its ports and airports to Cypriot ships and airplanes. Additionally, Turkey has yet to extend the Customs Union to Cyprus to promote the free movement of goods and the removal of barriers to trade. If Turkey wants to join the EU, it should play by the rules.

Turkey is fully responsible for the outcome of this process, including if talks break off. If Turkey truly wants to be a member of the EU, it knows what actions it must take.

This legislation also allows the settlement to go forward with a phased-in approach, requiring the Bureau to conduct a feasibility study on the issues of costs and impacts and mitigation of the various options to release restoration flows. No water, other than test flows and minimum restoration flow levels, will be released until a feasibility study and mitigation plan for property is completed.

The settlement agreement’s two goals of restoration and water management are equal goals. In order for this settlement to be successful, it is crucial to have the continued support of the Friant Water Users. Meeting the water management goals of the settlement, with the Bureau developing a feasible reclamation plan with excess pumping capacity and a recovered water account to mitigate a substantial portion of the water losses to Friant districts, is the best path toward this success. Successful implementation also dictates that funding is provided to meet both of these goals.

I remain committed to continuing to work with my Valley congressional colleagues, Senators Feinstein and Boxer, the settling parties

This legislation ensures that the release of restoration flows down the San Joaquin River will not transfer impacts downstream. After weeks of negotiations with the impacted parties, Senator Feinstein and my other Valley congressional colleagues, I am pleased that we were able to come to an agreement on language that would allow the settlement to go forward, while at the same time protect the water rights and property rights of those not party to the litigation. RECOGNIZING IMPERIAL HIGH SCHOOL RECIPIENT OF 2006 DISPPELLING THE MYTH AWARD

HON. BOB FILNER
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, December 6, 2006

Mr. FILNER. Mr. Speaker, today I recognize Imperial High School, in my congressional district, the only high school in the Nation to receive a 2006 Dispelling the Myth Award, an award of the Education Trust. Five schools were presented this award by Department of Education Secretary Margaret Spellings on November 3, 2006, as part of the Education Trust’s 17th National Conference on “Closing the Achievement Gap.”

Imperial High is described in the award program as a school “just a few miles from the Mexican border. Seventy percent of Imperial’s students are Latino, many of whom are English language learners. Seven years ago, the school was considered chaotic and low-performing. After . . . identifying students who need help and support, matching instruction to standards, and encouraging students to think beyond high school graduation, Imperial is now considered a California Distinguished School.”

There are 773 students in grades 9–12 at Imperial High. Principal Lisa Tabares and her teachers deserve great praise for the caring environment and high standards they have developed in which remarkable accomplishments are achieved by their students.

The Education Trust, funded by the Annie E. Casey Foundation, the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation, the Carnegie Corporation of New York and eight other Foundations, has worked since 1990 for the high achievement of all students, focusing especially on schools serving concentrations of low-income or Latino, African-American or Native American students who, because of their environment, may need assistance to achieve at high levels. Their Dispelling the Myth Program honors high-performing and gap-closing schools that serve large populations of low-income or minority students.

The four other schools so honored in 2006 are Capitol View Elementary in Atlanta, GA; East Millsboro Elementary in Millsboro, DE; M. Hall Stanton Elementary in Philadelphia, PA; and Port Chester Middle School in Port Chester, NY.

“These schools provide compelling evidence . . . that when we teach students to high levels and focus on closing the achievement gaps, students succeed,” said Kati Haycock, director of the Education Trust. “These schools are a testament to the power of committed educators to transform the lives of children who too often get less than their fair share of what public education has to offer. We owe these educators a great deal of gratitude.”

As an educator, one of my top priorities is to provide a quality education for each and every child. I am proud of the principal and teachers and especially the students of Imperial High School for their achievements. I sincerely thank them for their contribution to the community of Imperial.

Ms. WOOLSEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor County Supervisor Cynthia Murray on the occasion of her retirement from two terms on the Marin County Board of Supervisors.

Since she was first elected in 1998, Cynthia has been a forceful voice on key issues in Marin County. She has been in the forefront of promoting transportation infrastructure improvements, from fighting for public transit as a member of the Golden Gate Bridge Board to chairing the Policy Advisory Group for widening a key bottleneck on Highway 101.

Cynthia has also stepped up on other important issues, especially emergency services and disaster preparation; seniors’ independence, education and workforce, sustainable economic development, the battle against Sudden Oak Death, and wetlands preservation. She has chaired the Disaster Council and the Long Term Care Task Force and served on the Schools to Careers partnership, North Bay Watershed Association, which she founded, and Novato Business Education Roundtable. Regionally she sits on the Bay Area Economic Forum and chairs the Bay Area Water Forum.

Cynthia has been a strong partner to my offices in working for shared priorities such as education—life-long learning, mentorship and internship programs for youth, and increased access to technology in schools; affordable housing—Community Development Block Grants, the Section 8 voucher program, Community Opportunity funds; breast cancer research; the Older Americans Act and expansion of programs for seniors; transportation—car pool lanes, bike paths, the Golden Gate Bridge retrofit, and the acquisition of the railroad right of way; conversion of Hamilton Air Base, and environment—acquisition of Bel Marin Keys V and restoration of over 1,800 acres of wetlands in Bel Marin Keys, Hamilton and Bahia.

Born and raised in New Jersey, Cynthia was the oldest of seven children. This may explain why she so easily handles many responsibilities. She graduated from Rutgers University and moved to Marin in 1978. In 1988 she moved to Novato where she served 7 years on the Novato City Council, including one term as mayor. She has two children, Katie and Mack, who are both in college.

Mr. Speaker, Cynthia Murray will remain active and involved in local issues. I have enjoyed working with her as a supervisor and look forward to her continuing participation in issues affecting the people of Marin and Sonoma Counties.

John J. “Jack” Rodgers at age 64 is retiring from the Columbus Consolidated Government after 24 years as a member of the Columbus Council. He served 8 of those years as mayor pro tem, having been unanimously elected to that position by his fellow councilors for four consecutive 2-year terms.

Mr. Rodgers, who was born in Pittsburgh, PA, has lived in Columbus since 1961. He was inducted into the United States Army in 1961 and served for 2 years. Mr. Rodgers now lives in Columbus with his wife, the former Barbara, and they enjoy the quality of life in Columbus for himself and his family, but also accepted leadership roles in business and government. He earned a B.S. at Columbus State University in 1973.

Jack Rodgers had a distinguished 21-year career with Ford. He then launched his own mortgage company and has been chair and CEO for 15 years. During his service on the Columbus Council, Mr. Rodgers was selected for four 1-year terms as Budget Review Committee chairman. He also served as the council’s Ethics Committee chairman, and had a major role in developing revisions to the city’s tax law by chairing the council’s Occupational Tax Committee. Among the many notable and worthy projects to which he has contributed vital energy and leadership was the placement of the “Eternal Flame” memorial in front of the Columbus Government Center, a project for which he and then-Councilor Bobby Peters led fundraising efforts in the private sector. His wisdom and counsel, especially in financial matters, are frequently sought by other councilors and by citizens in his council district, as well as throughout the city.

Jack Rodgers is known as a devout Christian, a longtime member and leader in Edge- wood Baptist Church of Columbus. He has often been called upon for invocations and other prayers in council meetings and on other public occasions.

His civic and social affiliations, which speak his dedication to service, include: the Rotary Club of Columbus; the Columbus Georgia Convention & Trade Center Board, of which he formerly served as vice-chairman; the Valley Rescue Mission, of which he is a former board member; president of the Heritage Educational Foundation; board member of the Columbus Technical College Foundation; and board member of the There is HOPE Foundation. His leadership qualities also have made him valuable to governmental associations: the Georgia Municipal Association; the National League of Cities; and the Georgia Municipal Association/Association County Commissioners of Georgia.

Today, as Jack Rodgers moves into retirement from government service, we honor and thank him for all he has done for the benefit of Columbus, Georgia, an elected official and a role model dedicated to the age of others. His exemplary service to his community has set a standard of dedication and leadership that has inspired many and will inspire many others.

TRIBUTE TO MR. KEVORK S. HOV NANIAN

HON. FRANK PALLONE, JR.

OF NEW JERSEY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 6, 2006

Mr. PALLONE. Mr. Speaker, I would like to recognize a most deserving business and community leader, Mr. Kevork S. Hovnanian. On Saturday, November 18, 2006, Kevork was honored as the Honorary Life Chairman and founder of the Fund for Armenian Relief at the New York Public Library.

Kevork has been a benefactor in his community; the benefactors his businesses success have always been interposed by examples of community leadership in both the United States and Armenia. He has exemplified the pursuit of business consciousness and never compromised his commitment to providing "value" and not just housing.

Kevork will leave a personal legacy marked by numerous accomplishments. In the 1980s, he partnered with the city of Newark to rejuvenate the areas impacted by the riots some thirteen years before. In 1996, the New Jersey Institute of Technology awarded him a President's Medal for "Distinguished Achievement in an Outstanding Entrepreneur." Not three years later, his carer ethic earned him a place among other greats like Thomas Edison and George Gallup on the list of "Twenty Five Top New Jersey Business Leaders of the Century."

The achievements he has earned since his immigration to the United States have not made him forget his roots. Kevork has loyally contributed to the Armenian people in times of celebration and need. The Diocese of the Armenian Church and the New Jersey Council of Christians and Jews both named him Man of the Year in recognition of his aid to earthquake victims in Armenia.

He currently serves as the chairman of the Armenian Church Endowment Fund and Fund for Armenia Relief, which works for international development. This organization pledges to provide short and long-term plans for the economic and social development in Armenia. It is responsible for a variety of programs, ranging from soup kitchens to educational scholarships and implementing agricultural technology. There is a special focus on preparing Armenian youth as the future of their nation.

As much as he is an active part of the Armenian community, Kevork remains vigilant in providing available health services to children and families in the community. In 2002, Mr. Hovnanian helped establish the K. Hovnanian Pavilion and the Altson A. Hovnanian Emergency Care Center at River-
TRIBUTE TO JOHN A. NEJEDLY

HON. GEORGE MILLER
OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 6, 2006

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. Mr. Speaker, with a heavy heart, I rise to pay tribute to the life of former California State Senator John A. Nejedly who died on September 19, 2006. For more than 35 years, Senator Nejedly dedicated his life to serving the people of California and his Contra Costa County community. As a California State Senator, Mr. Nejedly was a brilliant leader in environmental policy and following his career in the senate, he was a relentless advocate for disadvantaged youths in Contra Costa County and throughout California.

John A. Nejedly was born on October 22, 1914, in Oakland, California, and had been a resident of Walnut Creek since 1938. He graduated from the University of California with a Bachelor of Science degree and in 1941 earned his law degree from the University of California School of Law. His ties to the University were especially strong and the gold sweater he wore as a symbol of his devotion to Cal soon became his trademark.

In 1942, with World War II at hand, John Nejedly became an intelligence officer in the Army Air Force and served as a Japanese language officer until his honorable discharge in 1946. Shortly after the war, John opened his law firm and was soon after appointed to the position of City Attorney for the city of Walnut Creek and Deputy District Attorney for Contra Costa County. He worked diligently in this capacity for 12 years before being elected Contra Costa County District Attorney.

In 1969, District Attorney Nejedly was elected to the California State Senate. John served the people of the 7th Senate District with distinction for 11 years. As a State senator, he wrote some of California's most important environmental laws and in the process became one of our State's principal water policy experts. He also helped to create one of California's greatest urban park initiatives for Contra Costa County. Renowned for his art of persuasion, John was instrumental in securing our precious resources for generations to come and, as a result, in 1966 he was named one of ten “Outstanding Americans in the Field of Conservation”.

Senator Nejedly retired from public office in 1980 and followed his passion of helping disadvantaged youth full time. He donated 80 acres of landing California's Sierra Mountains to provide a camp for the Boy Scouts and created the Contra Costa Youth Council to assist disabled, and underprivileged youth take pleasure in the outdoors. In addition, he funded a generous scholarship to help minority adults who have been touched by the work he has done. We will be forever grateful for the integrity, compassion and generosity with which he sought to make our community, the State of California, and our country, a better place for all of us. We are extremely grateful to John's family for sharing with us for so many years.

H.R. 1176. THE “NONPROFIT ATHLETIC ORGANIZATION PROTECTION ACT OF 2006”

SPEECH OF
HON. CAROLYN B. MALONEY
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, December 5, 2006

Mrs. MALONEY. Madam Speaker, I rise today in opposition to H.R. 1176, the “Nonprofit Athletic Organization Protection Act of 2006.” This legislation would provide broad immunity to nonprofit athletic associations which enact rules governing athletic competitions. In some cases, these rules have resulted in injuries to children and participants including serious head and spinal injuries because of swimming pools that were too shallow for diving. I also have strong concerns that passage of this legislation would preclude victims of sexual assault from bringing civil lawsuits against nonprofit athletic associations which have acted negligently.

Unfortunately, the Majority, in its rush to adjourn, has brought a bill to the floor that leaves children vulnerable to abuse. I urge my colleagues to vote no.

IN RECOGNITION OF SOROPTIMIST INTERNATIONAL OF MODESTO
HON. DENNIS A. CARDOZA

Their membership is composed of women of all ages, cultures and ethnic groups who are committed to making a difference through service.

Soroptimist International of Modesto is also a leading philanthropist in our community who donates generously to the Modesto area through their service projects such as the Community Christmas Tree at Vintage Fair Mall, scholarships and other local community organizations and projects such as the M.O.Mobile. Soroptimist International of Modesto truly makes a difference in the lives of citizens because of the work of all of its members. I am honored to recognize this outstanding organization and all of the members whose time, energy, vision and commitment has made the organization the involved, informed and active part of our community that it is today. IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, December 6, 2006

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Speaker, I am proud to rise today to recognize a highly valued citizen of my home city of Newark, New Jersey. John Arthur Thomas celebrates his 80th Birthday on December 6, 2006. He has been married for fifty four years to Elizabeth Lee Nowlin. In addition, he is the father of two wonderful daughters and grandfather of two grandsons and triplet granddaughters. He has dedicated his life, for almost five decades, to educational and political development throughout the state of New Jersey.

Mr. Thomas, who is devoted to service, has established himself as an innovative member of his community. From marching with Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. in the March on Washington to serving as Chairman of the Urban League of Hudson County, he has proven his dedication to service and leadership.

One of his leadership positions, that had a profound impact in my development during my high school years, was as the assistant football coach in Newark, New Jersey. Continuing with his commitment to sports, he currently serves as co-chair in the Newark Athlete Hall of Fame Annual Dinner held in Newark.

In the 60’s Mr. Thomas was the founder of the “Crispus Attucks Day Parade” celebrating Black History.

The parade is currently titled, “The African American Black Heritage Day Parade” and is the largest African American heritage parade in the state.

Mr. Speaker, I invite my colleagues here in the U.S. House of Representatives to join me in honoring John Arthur Thomas, who becomes 80 years young on December 6, 2006, for his tireless work for the Newark community. He is a paragon of true virtue through his selfless dedication to the betterment of others. I am proud to have him in my Congressional district and wish him never-ending success in his future endeavors.

IN RECOGNITION OF TROY SMITH FOR EXCELLENCE IN COLLEGE FOOTBALL

HON. STEPHANIE TUBBS JONES
OF OHIO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, December 6, 2006

Mrs. JONES of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in recognition of a constituent of the 11th Congressional of Ohio, the starting quarterback for the Ohio State University football team, Mr. Troy Smith. Mr. Smith is currently a senior majoring in communications. Born in Cleveland, Ohio, Mr. Smith attended Glenville High School, which he led to the state playoffs. After a strong senior year at Glenville, Smith was invited as one of eleven of the top high school quarterbacks at the elite 11 competition where he earned great praise. Following his performance, Ohio State recruited Smith late in the recruiting process.

As a freshman, Smith played sparingly as a running back and kick returner. As a sophomore, Smith was a backup quarterback but took over as starter when starter Justin Zwick was injured halfway through the season. Smith won four of five games as a starter, including a victory over archrival Michigan. Soon after, Coach Jim Tressel decided to make Smith the sole starting quarterback.

Smith was named the Offensive MVP of the 2006 Fiesta Bowl after leading the Buckeyes in a victory over the University of Notre Dame. Smith was recently honored as one of five finalists for the Johnny Unitas Golden Arm Award, which is given to the top senior college quarterback. In three games against Michigan, Smith has a total of 1,151 yards of total offense, two rushing touchdowns, and seven passing touchdowns. Smith is the first Ohio State starting quarterback to win three straight games against Michigan. Additionally, Troy
Mr. FILNER. Mr. Speaker, earlier this year, the foundation that Jim built proved to be a lasting one during the quarter-century that followed. There have been memorable legislative battles, from telecommunications reform to financial services modernization to the Sarbanes-Oxley Act. In 2001, we made the unprecedented move from the Commerce Committee to the Financial Services Committee. As counselor to the chairman, Jim helped me organize a committee soon recognized for its productivity and responsiveness to all of its members.

Jim inspires great loyalty by treating everyone he meets with respect. Considering the transient nature of most staff, the retention rate in my office is unheard of. My core staff when I announced my retirement had combined legislative experience of more than 250 years, a true tribute to Jim’s management skills. Many other staffers have gone on to successful careers after getting their first “break” from Jim, who remembers the feeling of starting a career in a city where the U.S. Capitol exerts a magical influence.

In a town where success often depends on the relationships you build, Jim has thrived professionally through the strength of his personal character. It is evident in both his work on the Hill and his volunteerism for charitable causes like the Multiple Sclerosis Society. I am reminded of the observation that Doris Kearns Goodwin made in Team of Rivals, her book about Lincoln, that “the qualities we generally associate with decency and morality—kindness, sensitivity, compassion, honesty, and empathy—can also be impressive political resources.”

Jim’s ideals have remained the same since the day he arrived in Washington from Montana. He came for the same reason we all come— to serve the people and our Country. It is above all a privilege, but that should not prevent us from showing appreciation to those who have done the job well. With gratitude, “Team OXLEY” salutes Jim Conzelman for his service.

The Honorable Leon L. Williams truly has been an inspiration to all of San Diego. Several of Leon’s towering contributions to San Diego remain in place today and have blossomed; for example, both the Trolley and SEDC have grown and continue to provide well paying jobs and numerous business opportunities to residents living in southeastern San Diego.

Even in retirement, Leon remains gracious with his time, civic expertise and wisdom by helping to improve the quality of life for all San Diegans.

The Honorable Leon L. Williams—a true inspiration to all.

Hooked on Health approaches these priorities through a campaign model designed to increase physical activity, improve nutritional choices, and reduce tobacco use and lower stress.

The campaign brings in motivational speakers and produces wellness activities and incentive-based community partnerships, such as reduced fees at health clubs and health screenings. Hooked on Health has modeled this program to community partners representing local businesses, hospitals, school systems, government, and nonprofits.

The success of the campaign in its first year shows that an investment in healthy choices makes an important impact. After just 8 months, the wellness campaign teams reported: 1,029 pounds lost, 13 improved lipid profiles, 21 hypertensive employees met blood pressure goals, four diabetics improved Hg A1C (a glucose control measure), one smoker quit and two decreased, and 88 percent are still engaged.

Jim Pericaud, a Public Health employee who participated in the Hooked on Health campaign sessions, stated, “I started riding my bike to work last July. I ride to work 2 to 3 days a week. My wife has encouraged healthy eating by preparing meals of lean meats, fish and vegetables. I also do weight training. I have lost 15 pounds since July and I feel great!”

I appreciate the opportunity to discuss the challenges facing our country’s overall health and to highlight the solutions promoted through Hooked on Health in southwest Georgia as a model for employers, school systems, and community groups across the country.

TRIBUTE TO THE SHARE AND CARE FOUNDATION

HON. FRANK PALLONE, JR.
OF NEW JERSEY
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 6, 2006

Mr. PALLONE. Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the Foundation for their valuable work in India. Their annual gala was recently held at the New Jersey Performing Arts Center in Newark, New Jersey on Saturday, November 4th. I was pleased to attend that evening. This event marked the kickoff of their second campaign against another Southern Indian state, in one of the poorest regions in India.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to commend Dr. Ketki Shah who has been closely involved with the Share and Care Foundation. Dr. Shah, a Diplomate, American Board of Psychiatry and Neurology, is an experienced Psychiatrist with specialization in Psychopharmacology and Addiction Psychiatry. She is a low keyed humanitarian with the sole purpose of helping people who need help. She attended a global women’s conference in Geneva to promote peace in the world. Her work including field visits during emergencies like earthquakes and the 2004 tsunami are remarkable. Her work as a chairperson of the medical committee is directly correlated with over ten million dollars of medical equipment and medical supplies that have been sent to India. This has generated tremendous benefit, especially for the people who are challenged and need our attention. She has demonstrated that excess and unuseful resources of one society can be diverted for the betterment of another society.

Dr. Ketki Shah’s selfless work has earned the goodwill of many, especially for those who are also involved in humanitarian work. This year, humanitarian Shabana Azmi and her husband Javed Akhtar appeared on stage in a riveting performance that highlighted the career of Shabana’s father, a renowned poet and a freedom fighter. Shabana Azmi, leading star of Indian Cinema, is an outstanding social activist, a passionate advocate of human rights, and a prominent humanitarian. Her work in each of the areas has been exceptional and has earned her a long list of awards, recognitions and medals including Padma Shri, one of the prestigious recognitions in India.

She was one of the sixteen women to whom tributes were paid by President Mitterrand of France in 1989 on Bicentenary celebrations of International Human Rights. In 1993, she was invited to Cape Town to present “The News maker of the year award” to President Nelson Mandela. She received the United Nations Goodwill Ambassador on Population and Development. She was selected to Rajya Sabha by the President of India. On October 26, 2006, she was the first Indian to receive a prestigious Gandhi Peace award presented by the House of Commons, London. Previous recipients of this award include Nobel Laureates: Honorable Dalai Lama and Archbishop Desmond Tutu.

She had lead march of 4 days for communal harmony from Delhi to Meerut. Her heart goes to the economically challenged for whom she undertook a 5 day hunger strike and as a Chairman of Nivara Hakk, she has managed to get alternative land for slum dwellers. Her struggle for the poor in India has now resulted in the construction of 30,000 homes under a tripartite agreement amongst charities, a private builder and the Maharashtra government.

She has also addressed several Universities in the USA, such as Harvard, Columbia, Berkeley, and MIT, for the need to relate communal harmony to issues of social justices.

Shabana thrived and expanded the project “Mijwan Welfare Society” started by her father in Mijwan, a small “challenged village” in Uttar Pradesh, India. There emphasis is placed on education and empowering girls and women. We are extremely pleased to join hands with Shabana in this project to make a difference in one of the poorest regions with a very high infant mortality rate and birth rates, low female literacy and near absence of health and sanitation facilities. They have started 2 computer training schools, training center and “Sewa”; embroidery projects for women.

Shabana’s accomplishments are countless and extremely commendable, however, her dedication to humanity is what makes her a special individual.

Mr. Speaker, Shabana Azmi, Javed Akhtar and Dr. Ketki Shah are all very special individuals who are making a difference in the global community. Together they have realized the benefits of volunteerism and self-help.

INDIA PLAYS THE VICTIM TO COVER UP ITS TERRORIST ACT

HON. EDROLPHUS TOWNS OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 6, 2006

Mr. TOWNS. Mr. Speaker, last month, Indian Prime Minister Manmohan Singh publicly stated that India is the victim of cross-border terror. The Council of Khalistan under the leadership of Dr. Gurmeet Singh Aulakh wrote to Prime Minister Singh stating that India has been sponsoring cross-border terrorism in Sindh, a province of Pakistan, as the Washington Times reported on January 2, 2002 and that according to India Today, which is the leading news magazine in India, the Indian government created the Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam, which the U.S. government has identified as a terrorist organization.

It has also sponsored domestic terrorism against the minorities within its borders, including murdering a quarter of a million Sikhs and holding over 30,000 political prisoners; killing Muslims by the tens of thousands in Kashmir, where more than 90,000 have been killed, Gujarat, where between 2,000 and 5,000 died in a massacre preplanned by the government, and elsewhere; killing Christians throughout India, including over 300,000 just in Nagaland; and mass killing many other minorities. Yet India proclaims itself the victim of terrorism and proclaims itself a democracy. Well, Mr. Speaker, it certainly doesn’t act that way.

The repression and terrorism must be stopped. We should send all aid and trade with India until such time as the repression ends and people enjoy the most basic human rights, and we should throw our full support behind self-determination in Punjab, Kashmir, in Nagalim, and wherever people are trying to be free. The essence of democracy is the right to self-determination. In addition, we should designate India a terrorist state and impose the sanctions that that designation brings.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to insert the Council of Khalistan’s open letter into the Record. It is a frightening record of Indian terrorism.

INDIA IS A TERRORIST STATE, NOT A VICTIM

DEAR PRIME MINISTER SINGH: On October 4, you said that India is a victim of cross-border terrorism. India is a terrorist state itself and should be subject to the penalties that are imposed on terrorist states.

On January 2, 2002, the Washington Times reported that India is supporting cross-border terrorism in Sindh, a province of Pakistan, the very same kind of thing that Prime Minister Singh was claiming is victimizing India. In addition, India’s leading newsmagazine, India Today, reported that the Indian government created the Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam (LTTE), identified by the U.S. government as a terrorist organization, and its leaders were put up by the Indian government in the finest hotel in Delhi. How can you blame Pakistan when India started cross-border terrorism with its own actions?

The Indian government has committed terrorism against its own minorities. It has murdered over 250,000 Indians; thousands of children, youth, men, women, and elderly since 1984, as well as more than 300,000 Christians in Nagaland, over 90,000 Muslims in Kashmir, thousands of Cyriacans and Christians throughout the country, and tens of thousands of Assamese, Bobos, Dalits, Manipuris,
Tribute to Reverend Angelo D'Agostino

Hon. George Miller of California. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to Rev. Angelo D'Agostino, a hero and a pioneer in the fight against AIDS in Africa.

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California, Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to Rev. Angelo D'Agostino, a hero and a pioneer in the fight against AIDS in Africa.

I was deeply saddened when I heard news of Father D'Agostino's death. I met Father D'Agostino on my trip to Kenya in 2000 and I remain a firm believer in his AIDS orphans and families program.

He was a friend and a champion in the fight against AIDS. Constantly fighting the small battles on the front lines of the war against AIDS, he was responsible for improving the lives of many young Kenyans devastated by the scourge of AIDS.

Father D'Agostino, a Jesuit priest, was sent to Kenya to coordinate the refugee work of the Jesuits. Through his work, he was exposed to the AIDS-affecting population of the country.

All over Kenya, children were orphaned as AIDS claimed the lives of their parents; leaving the children alone, abandoned and in many cases HIV positive. He was deeply disturbed by the devastating effect of the disease on children and the community and knew that helping these children and families was his mission.

Father D'Agostino dedicated his life to making a better life for those suffering the devastating effects of the horrible disease.

He founded the Nyumbani Orphanage with three children in 1992 to transform it into a community for children and adults alike. The Nyumbani organization is also involved in community-based programs such as Leo Toto (meaning to raise a child), which are set up to provide outreach services to HIV-positive children and their families in the Nairobi area.

His tireless efforts to better the lives of those touched by AIDS were widely successful.

Father D'Agostino believed that every individual had a right to an education. He successfully sued the Kenyan Government, forcing them to repeal a law banning HIV positive children from public schools. Under Father D'Agostino's leadership, Nyumbani became the first place in Africa to import hugely discounted AIDS drugs. It also has the most advanced blood diagnostic laboratory in Kenya.

Father D'Agostino was truly a hero and a pioneer in the fight against the scourge of AIDS. He believed that every HIV positive and AIDS infected child and family, no matter how poor or meager their existence, deserved the chance to live a better life. He was a model for those who wish to dedicate themselves to improving the lives of others. I admire his work and commitment in serving children marginalized by society. He will be missed.

IN REMEMBRANCE OF CHARLES J. GERMANA
HON. DENNIS J. KUCINICH
OF OHIO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, December 6, 2006

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in memory of my friend and constituent, Charles J. Germana whose personal service to the greater Cleveland Community and the United States alike are a shining example of the all-American spirit. Charles’ life is marked by his dedication to his country, community, and his family.

Charles valiantly defended freedom in World War II in the United States Navy. He transformed his courage and core values to civilian life when he actively led his community by founding the Seven Hill Democratic Club. Charles continued his leadership by proudly being elected as the Mayor of Seven Hills from 1967 to 1973. His public service career did not end there as he went on to selflessly serve as the Council President in Seven Hills.

Throughout his long and distinguished life, Charles did not only serve his community in elected positions. He was also a devoted and enthusiastic Boy Scout for 50 years. His strong leadership skills were cultivated heavily throughout a lifetime of volunteering and brotherhood in the Boy Scouts of America. Charles was also a very spiritual man, showing his faith as an active member of the Columbine Catholic Church.

Family was very important to Charles. His legacy continues through his wife, Mae; three children, Chuck, Joe, and Janet; and the memory of his daughter Emily; eleven grandchildren; and sixteen great-grandchildren. Charles’ love and concern for his family reflected in his hard work and Four Star Insurance Agency, which he founded in 1954, still remains in the control of his family. Charles Germana’s love of his family and his dedication to public service continue on as his son Chuck carries the family torch of public service as the President of Parma City Council. Charles nurtured these values of leadership, service, brotherhood, and giving in all of his family—making him truly an honorable statesman and father.

Mr. Speaker and Colleagues, I am honored to ask you to join me in recognition of Charles J. Germana as a loving community leader, member, and pillar. Charles’ unwavering commitment to his family, church, and community is a great example of how one man can in deep faith dedicate his life to helping others.

TRIBUTE TO MR. CURTIS PARHAM REDDING
HON. SANFORD B. BISHOP, JR.
OF GEORGIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, December 6, 2006

Mr. BISHOP. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor a gentleman who has tirelessly dedicated his life to bettering his community. At the age of 74, Mr. Curtis Parham Redding, also known as C.P., is retiring as a Quitman County, Georgia Commissioner. He has served his community faithfully while blazing new trails for those who would follow him.

C.P. was born in Quitman County to proud parents, Curtis Lowe and Ora Inez Green Redding. As the eldest of three children, he quickly learned about dedication to family, service to nation, and responsibility. Quitman County is located on the banks of Lake Walter F. George, near Macon, Georgia. The citizens of Quitman County are known for their strong work ethic and sense of self-sufficiency and regional pride, and C.P. was no exception.

With the exception of a few years, C.P. lived his entire life in Quitman County and was raised to love and respect his hometown. After graduating from Georgetown High School, C.P. recognized his love for politics and most importantly people. Realizing the town lacked social services, educational services and basic services any citizenry would require, he began working hard to become a Quitman County Commissioner in 1975. During his first tenure as a Commissioner, he served for two years. Recognizing the need for involvement and higher basic educational standards for the County, he was then appointed to the Quitman County School Board where he served until 1994. C.P. was again elected to the Quitman County Commission and took office on January 1, 1996 and during this tenure, Quitman County achieved each of the goals C.P. established.

Although C.P. has decided to retire, his vision for Quitman County has not ended. C.P. has always believed that for small counties to flourish, it would be through organized coalition. To this end, he lives in creating and serving on Boards such as: Four County Economic Development Authority (Past Chairman), Southwest Georgia Chamber of Commerce (Past Chairman), and Southwest Georgia Housing Development Board just to name a few. He and his wife, Annie Ruth Holmes who is the retired Director of the Quitman County Department of Family and Children’s services, selflessly continue to devote their services to the advancement of Quitman County.

As an enduring testament of his dedication to his community and fortitude as a public servant, bids are currently being taken for the construction of a building to house the Quitman County Health Services since they have outgrown their present facility. Serving the needs of his community remains paramount to C.P. Redding. Today, we thank and honor Mr. Curtis Parham Redding for his dedication and lifelong commitment to the welfare of others and his community. His lifetime of altruistic service has made him a legend in Southwest Georgia and an inspirational figure for us all.

RECOGNIZING THE CHATTY HATTY RED HAT LADIES OF RAINBOW SPRINGS, FLORIDA

HON. GINNY BROWN-WAITE OF FLORIDA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, December 6, 2006

Ms. GINNY BROWN-WAITE of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I rise to honor a group of women from Rainbow Springs, Florida who have gone above and beyond the call of duty in their efforts to help the soldiers serving in Iraq. The Chatty Hatty Red Hat Ladies of Rainbow Springs have adopted soldiers serving in Iraq, sending them care packages each and every month. The Ladies deserve recognition for their efforts.

Earlier this year, the Red Hat Ladies contacted my office to find soldiers from the 5th District currently deployed in Iraq. The Ladies were looking to adopt a couple of soldiers from the district and to send them packages filled with necessities and goodies. These women wanted to let our troops know their friends back home support their service in the Global War on terror.

As you might imagine, those first few soldiers greeted with nearly 30 soldiers that the Ladies eventually adopted. Each month they put together three large care packages for the troops, and once a quarter they send over a special box of movies so that the soldiers can have a “movie night,” complete with packages of popcorn.

To help celebrate Christmas, the Ladies and their friends took up collections and donations to ship the troops a Christmas tree with all the trimmings, as well as individual stockings stuffed with gifts. This way the soldiers can enjoy Christmas, even though they are still serving in Iraq and missing their friends, family, and loved ones.

Mr. Speaker, volunteer groups like the Chatty Hatty Red Hat Ladies of Rainbow Springs are just one of the thousands of dedicated organizations throughout the Nation who support our troops overseas. Millions of Americans have donated their time and their money to ensure that our troops know the folks back home support their mission and hope they return home safely. The Red Hat Ladies are to be commended for starting this adopt-a-soldier program and for helping to brighten their days of service.

TRIBUTE TO MARGARET FORGACH CUMMINGS

HON. RAUL M. GRIJALVA OF ARIZONA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, December 6, 2006

Mr. GRIJALVA. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor Margaret Forgach Cummings, a tireless public servant for the Pima County Sheriff’s Department. Ms. Cummings, currently a Deputy Sheriff, will be retiring after serving the citizens of Pima County for more than 20 years. She has served my community with honor and compassion throughout her career.

She started her service as a volunteer crisis advocate with Pima County Attorney’s Victim-Witness Program. Her stellar commitment and performance as an advocate laid the foundation for her to participate in a Meditation program with a grant from Volunteer in Service to America (VISTA). She was one of five individuals that initiated the program at the South Tucson Police Department.

Her reputation and selfless devotion as volunteer earned her the opportunity to become a Police Dispatcher for the South Tucson Police Department. Mastering that position, she proven to be an invaluable member in support of the city’s police force. Recognizing her abilities, the police department trusted Margaret with further responsibilities, and through the 1980’s Margaret served her community with distinction as Emergency Radio Dispatcher.

More recently, Margaret has benefited the Tucson community by volunteering as Reserve Deputy of the Pima County Sheriff’s Department, in addition to her duties as a Public Safety Dispatcher. Her dedication to the well-being of the residents of Tucson makes her an outstanding citizen and public servant, and I am honored to recognize her efforts.

Additionally, Anson is responsible for the budgets of three off campus agriculture centers and has budgetary responsibilities for various foundation accounts including oversight of private, public and foundation grants. Anson has several publications, including a chapter in an American Society of Agronomy book on the hybridization of crops. In addition to administrative responsibilities, Dr. Elliott teaches three classes on a yearly basis and serves as an advisor to student organizations.

Anson Elliott is making a difference in America’s agricultural community. As an advisor and a friend of mine, it gives me great pleasure to offer these words of congratulations to a true leader in Missouri agriculture.

IN HONOR AND REMEMBRANCE OF ROBERT LOCKWOOD, JR.

HON. DENNIS J. KUCINICH
OF OHIO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, December 6, 2006

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in joyful remembrance of the life and work of Robert Lockwood, Jr., a giant of Delta blues, whose music and spirit will leave a lasting legacy in Cleveland, his hometown since 1961.

Born in Turkey Scratch, Arkansas, Robert Lockwood, Jr., began playing the guitar at the age of 11. Under the tutelage of master bluesman Robert Johnson, Lockwood was playing professionally by the age of 15.

Over time, Lockwood developed a unique musical style of his own, going beyond the Mississippi Delta Blues he mastered as a youth. Two of his albums, “I Got to Find Me Woman” and “Delta Crossroads” were nominated for Grammy Awards. He is the recipient of numerous honors, including the National Heritage Fellowship presented to him by Hillary Clinton in 1995, two National Blues Music Awards from the Blues Foundation, induction into the Blues Hall of Fame, and honorary doctorates from Case Western Reserve and Cleveland State Universities.

Home of the Rock ‘n Roll Hall of Fame, Cleveland’s diverse cultural community thrives on music and art. Robert was a regular performer for years in the popular Fat Fish Blue, a blues-themed restaurant and bar in Cleveland, and in venues all over the city. Robert’s infectious music and hypnotic finger-picking has left an indelible stamp on Cleveland as well as a whole musical genre.

Mr. Speaker and colleagues, please join me in honoring the memory and legacy of Robert Lockwood, Jr., protege to Robert Johnson, mentor to B.B. King, and entertainer to generations of fans. His soulful blues and personality will live on in our hearts.

HON. HOWARD P. “BUCK” McKEON
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, December 6, 2006

Mr. McKEON. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H.R. 4766, the Esther Martinez Native American Languages Preservation Act of 2006. This measure will empower Native American tribes, organizations, and colleges as they seek to preserve Native languages and cultures.

In many Native American communities, Native languages are disappearing at an alarming rate. It is estimated that only 20 indigenous languages will remain viable by the year 2050. Providing grants to Native American language programs consisting of language nests, survival schools, and restoration programs will bolster the effort to preserve this important part of our Nation’s history and culture.

By encouraging a greater focus on Native language programs, we are not only striving to preserve the identity of the Nation’s tribes, but we’re encouraging greater academic performance among Native American students as well. In fact, the legislation requires that Native American language survival schools work toward a goal of all students achieving both fluency in a Native American language and academic proficiency in mathematics, reading (or language arts), and science. It is our intention that students in survival school programs demonstrate adequate progress in English proficiency according to their appropriate grade level.

It is also our intention that the Department of Health and Human Services’ Administration for Native Americans administer this program in such a way that Native American survival school grantees be required to obtain parental permission for students to enroll in the survival schools. All parents should be able to make decisions about their children’s education, and this bill provides Native American parents with new opportunities to do so.

I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting this worthwhile legislation.

INTRODUCTION OF A BILL TO AMEND TITLE 17, UNITED STATES CODE

HON. RICK BOUCHER
OF VIRGINIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, December 6, 2006

Mr. BOUCHER. Mr. Speaker, today my colleagues from Virginia, Mr. GOODLATTE, and I introduce a bill to amend Section 119 of Title 17 of the United States Code. This modest, consumer-focused measure would simply allow a court to accept a negotiated settlement between parties to a lawsuit in which it is alleged that a satellite television provider has engaged in copyright infringement by providing the signals of out-of-market television stations to ineligible homes.

I, like many of my colleagues, have been flooded with phone calls over the last several weeks from concerned constituents who subscribe to EchoStar’s DISH network satellite television service. They are upset and confused because their access to the signals of out-of-market network television stations was suddenly cut off and of the stations now unavailable to receive any network television service from DISH. Many of the affected households are in rural and underserved areas with a limited choice of alternative video programming providers to turn to. In my district alone, thousands of people have lost service, and nationwide, 800,000 are affected.

The Satellite Home Viewer Act (SHVA), which was enacted with my support in 1988, allows residents to receive by satellite the network signals they cannot receive over-the-air from their local broadcast television stations. As a result, thousands of Southwest Virginians and millions of Americans who cannot view local television signals over the air today receive by satellite ABC, CBS, Fox and NBC network channels that originate from markets outside of their own communities. In some areas of the United States, particularly in mountainous regions like Southwest Virginia, a home may be predicted to receive a strong over-the-air signal from a local television station but not actually get a quality picture. Receipt of good local television signals is effectively blocked by obstructions between viewers’ homes and the local station. These households have come to depend on the distant network channels for important news and emergency information, as well as network programming. Without SHVA, millions of Americans, particularly those in remote areas, would be denied network television programming.

Since December 1, 2006, EchoStar’s DISH network has been prohibited by a permanent injunction from providing out-of-market signals to any of its subscribers due to violation of SHVA. The company which enjoined EchoStar also rejected a settlement negotiated by EchoStar and affiliates of the ABC, CBS, Fox and NBC networks which would have avoided mass consumer disruption by allowing DISH to continue to provide most out-of-market channels. I am deeply disappointed that the court found that it could not accept the settlement, an outcome which was acceptable to the defendant and four of five plaintiffs in the case and which would not have prevented the fifth plaintiff from availing itself of the remedies provided by statute. In virtually any other lawsuit, the parties may settle at any time, even after the jury or judge has rendered its decision. I am gravely concerned that the result of the court’s action has been a denial of network programming to hundreds of thousands of households located primarily in remote areas.

The simple, straightforward measure we introduce today would merely clarify that the court has the option of accepting a settlement between the parties to a distant signal copyright infringement lawsuit. It would enable the court to protect consumers, who are the true victims here, from the abrupt cutoff of all network television service. The ability to receive network television programming is important to Southwest Virginians, and I am committed to assuring its availability by satellite throughout my district.

I therefore urge my colleagues to protect rural households by adopting this measure and clarifying that a court may adopt a settlement to which the parties in a lawsuit have agreed.

TRIBUTE TO KAZAKHSTAN

HON. ROBERT B. ADERHOLT OF ALABAMA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, December 6, 2006

Mr. ADERHOLT. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize the country of Kazakhstan on the occasion of its 15th anniversary of independence from the former Soviet Union on December 16, 1991. Kazakhstan has been at the crossroads of trade and empires for centuries along the ancient Silk Road, and today plays an increasingly important role in the stability and security of the Central Asian region, and of our world.

I had the privilege of visiting Kazakhstan along with Congressman JIM MCDERMOTT, Congressman MAURICE HINCHEY and former member Don Bonker in January of this year to see first hand the accomplishments that have been made since 1991. While in Kazakhstan we spent considerable time with members of the President’s Cabinet and the current Speaker of the senate, Nurtai Abykayev learning about current work going on in their country and their endeavors in making Kazakhstan a real leader in Asia and the world.

In the first few years after independence, Kazakhstan successfully rid itself of the fourth largest nuclear arsenal in the world and closed the world’s largest nuclear test site at Semipalatinsk, an unwanted legacy from the U.S.S.R., and continues to be a model for the global community. In 2005, the U.S. Senate unanimously adopted a resolution congratulating Kazakhstan on the 15th anniversary of the removal of all nuclear weapons from the country and commended Kazakhstan-U.S. cooperation in this sphere as a “model.” Earlier this year, this House unanimously adopted resolution 905 congratulating Kazakhstan on the 15th anniversary of the closure of the world’s second largest nuclear test site in the Semipalatinsk region of Kazakhstan and for its efforts on the nonproliferation of weapons of mass destruction.

Kazakhstan condemned the terrorist attacks against the U.S. on September 11, 2001, and has been a staunch supporter of the U.S. led international coalition against global terrorism since. Kazakhstan provides free overflight rights and a major international airport for U.S. and coalition aircraft for operations in Afghanistan. Kazakhstan works with the international community to bring peace and stability to Iraq following the U.S. led campaign to end Saddam Hussein’s regime. Kazakh military engineers in that country have destroyed more than 4 million pieces of ordnance since 2003. In a recent visit to Astana in 2005, U.S. Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice said, “Today, Kazakhstan is poised and ready to break a path for a new Silk Road, a great corridor of reform.” A strong and prosperous and democratic Kazakhstan will once again energize international commerce and security across the steppes of Central Asia. This nation has a glorious past and its destiny is destined for a hopeful future. Kazakhstan’s greatest days lie ahead of it. And the United States wants to be your partner.”

During his 2006 visit to Washington President Nazarbayev and President George W. Bush signed a joint statement which says, “We are satisfied with the progress made by Kazakhstan and the United States of America in the promotion of our strategic partnership, and announce our commitment to promote stability, prosperity and democratic reforms in Central Asia and outside of the region.” The joint statement also stipulates the U.S. support for Kazakhstan’s plan for accession to the WTO. The document recognizes Kazakhstan’s leadership in regional integration, considering its significant contributions in Eurasia and Afghanistan. The joint statement outlined a number of directions of the bilateral cooperation underlying “we announce our intention to further strengthen our strategic partnership via strengthening strategic dialogues on energy, military collaboration, trade, investments and democratization. We express solid confidence that our enhanced strategic partnership will assist to security, prosperity and democracy development in the 21st century.”

President Nursultan Nazarbayev has called for a massive transformation of Kazakhstan’s political life and strengthening the country’s move to democracy in a March 2006 speech to the first session of the State Commission. The priorities include significant strengthening of the role of the national Parliament, increasing the numbers of deputies in both houses of Parliament; continuing the introduction of elections of akims—mayors—at district levels, and the introduction of a bill on local self-government. “Democracy is the choice of civilized people, and it is our choice too,” President Nazarbayev said.

Mr. Speaker, because of Kazakhstan’s peaceful transition to democracy, its strong commitment to eliminating nuclear weapons, and her strong support for our country in the wake of the September 11, 2001 attacks, I rise today to congratulate all her people on the occasion of the 15th anniversary of their independence.

H.R. 4766, ESTHER MARTINEZ NATIVE AMERICAN LANGUAGES PRESERVATION ACT OF 2006

HON. HEATHER WILSON OF NEW MEXICO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, December 6, 2006

Mrs. WILSON of New Mexico. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H.R. 4766, the Esther Martinez Native American Languages Preservation Act of 2006. H.R. 4766 will help to preserve all the indigenous languages that are still being spoken.

It is estimated that only 20 indigenous languages will remain viable by the year 2050. Providing grants to Native American language programs consisting of language nests, survival schools, and restoration programs will help to preserve this important part of our Nation’s history and culture.

By encouraging a greater focus on Native language programs, we are not only striving to preserve the identity of the Nation’s tribes, but we’re encouraging greater academic performance among American students as well. H.R. 4766 requires that Native American language survival schools work toward a goal of all students achieving both fluency in a Native American language and academic proficiency in mathematics, reading (or language arts), and science. It is my intention that students in survival school programs demonstrate adequate progress in English proficiency according to their appropriate grade level.

It is also my intention that the Department of Health and Human Services’ Administration for Native Americans administer this program in such a way that Native American survival school grantees be required to obtain parental permission for students to enroll in the survival schools. Parents should be able to make decisions about their children’s education, and H.R. 4766 provides Native American parents with new opportunities to do so.

HONORING 100 YEARS OF SERVICE BY FIDELITY ASSOCIATES INSURANCE AND FINANCIAL SERVICES

HON. CATHY MCNORRIS RODGERS OF WASHINGTON
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, December 6, 2006

Mrs. MCNORRIS RODGERS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize Fidelity Associates Insurance and Financial Services for their 100 years of service to Spokane, Washington. Fidelity Associates is one of the Inland Northwest’s largest locally owned, independent insurance agencies, and one of its richest in terms of history and tradition. Fidelity Associates is a family-owned business and has the distinction of being one of the few to be passed from the hands of the third generation to those of a fourth.

In 100 years, this proud company has become a leader in the insurance world. From humble roots, it has grown to manage premiums in excess of $40,000,000. This places Fidelity in the top 5 percent of all United States insurance agencies. Its employees are directly involved with over 8,500 clients through employee benefits and financial services. On top of all this, the employees of Fidelity Associates post thousands of hours toward community service each year.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today to acknowledge and thank Fidelity Associates Insurance and Financial Services, the Jones Family, and the exemplary employees for their 100 remarkable years of service to our community, and I invite my colleagues to join me in congratulating this company and the family which has led it for so long.

A TRIBUTE TO THE HILLIARD DAVIDSON WILDCATS, THE 2006 OHIO HIGH SCHOOL STATE FOOTBALL CHAMPIONS

HON. DEBORAH PRICE
OF OHIO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, December 6, 2006

Ms. PRICE of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to extend my congratulations and adulations to the 2006 Hilliard Davidson Wildcats football team, which on Saturday, December 2, earned the title of State Champions in the Division I Ohio State Football Playoffs, and finished its storybook season a perfect 15–0.

No superlative or tired sports cliche can effectively capture the magic of the Wildcats’ season. Consistently overlooked and routinely outsized by its opponent, week after week, Davidson utilized its underdog role, its unglamorous but methodical offense, and its blistering defense to knock off yet another favored adversary. Davidson won with discipline, with heart, and perhaps most importantly, with class and dignity.

Quietly, Davidson has amassed a 73–25 record under the leadership of Coach Brian White, and has firmly asserted itself as a premier, dynastic program in central Ohio. However, each year, Davidson and other central Ohio high school football programs are largely ignored by the football experts and pundits, and relegated to the shadows of storied, goliath programs in the northeast and southwest parts of the state.

This year, however, one by one, the Goliaths fell to Davidson—or in this case, Davidson. In its heart-stopping, double overtime victory on Saturday, Davidson fully entrenched itself in the hearts and minds of central Ohio football fans, and served notice to high school football aficionados across the State and Nation that Hilliard Davidson is second to no one.

Throughout its historic championship run, Hilliard Davidson represented the ideal virtues of amateur athletic programs—teamwork, tenacity, competitiveness, and dignity—and its storybook season will be recounted for generations to come in central Ohio.

And thank not more than seven years to represent Hilliard Davidson High School in Congress, and I congratulate the players, coaches, fans and parents who made 2006 such a memorable one.

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, I rise in esteem of Jeanette Grasselli Brown’s lifetime of profound accomplishments. Ms. Grasselli Brown has contributed immensely to the world through her distinguished career as a chemist, and since retiring she has been just as busy working to improve northeast Ohio.

After beginning her career as the only female chemistry major at Ohio University, Ms. Grasselli Brown continued to work for 39 years at BP America, retiring as the director of corporate research. At BP, Ms. Grasselli Brown fought to ensure that female employees received salaries equal to their male coworkers, and that they received flexible schedules and since retiring she has been just as busy working to improve northeast Ohio.

Grasselli Brown continued to work for 39 years at BP America, retiring as the director of corporate research. At BP, Ms. Grasselli Brown fought to ensure that female employees received salaries equal to their male coworkers, and that they received flexible schedules while raising their children. While working full time, she earned her master’s degree in organic chemistry, and wrote a monthly column called “Letter from America,” for a European spectroscopy journal. Ms. Grasselli Brown also has served as an advisor for The White House Initiative on Historically Black Colleges and Universities, the National Science Foundation, the U.S. Department of Energy, the National Institute of Standards and Technology, the International Women’s Forum, the Ohio Academy of Sciences, the Smithsonian Institute, and the International Union of Pure and Applied Chemistry. In addition to her full time job at BP, she has been a director of six corporations, three of which are Fortune 500 companies.

Ms. Grasselli Brown has been a tireless worker in the corporate, civic, and philanthropic realms, and continues her commitment to northeast Ohio through her work on numerous committees and boards of regents, acting as trustee and chair.

Today I am honored to ask my colleagues to join me in recognizing the life and achievements of this amazing woman, Ms. Jeanette Grasselli Brown.

TRIBUTE TO DENNIS DOUGLASS, DEPUTY DIRECTOR OF THE DEPARTMENT OF VETERANS AFFAIRS EDUCATION SERVICE

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, December 6, 2006

Mr. BOOZMAN. Mr. Speaker, I rise to pay tribute to Mr. Dennis Douglass, who will retire on January 3, 2007, after 30 years of service to our Nation’s veterans.

Over the last 7 years Mr. Douglass has served with distinction as the Deputy Director for the Education Service at the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs. He was a consummate professional with unquestioned integrity, who consistently exhibited management and leadership qualities that put him among VA’s top performers.

I first had the privilege of meeting Mr. Douglass when I became chairman of the Subcommittee on Economic Opportunity at the Committee on Veterans’ Affairs and began working on legislation to improve education benefits for servicemembers and veterans. Mr. Douglass has always made himself available to Congress when needed and served on behalf of the Secretary with honesty and sincerity. He has been the VA’s institutional memory on education benefits and his contributions will truly be missed.

Mr. Douglass began his Federal career in 1976 as a Veterans Claims Examiner at the VA regional office in Detroit, Michigan. In 1982 he transferred to VA Headquarters in Washington, D.C. to work in Education Service. Since his arrival, he has written procedural guidance for education claims processing, assisted in systems design, performed quality assurance reviews, conducted regional office appraisal visits, and served as Budget Analyst and Staff Assistant to the Director of Education Service. In 1999 the Secretary of Veterans Affairs appointed him Deputy Director in Education Service.

When asked, staff at VA describe him as an avid golfer with a penchant for corny jokes. Many remarked on his priceless collection of bad ties from the 70’s and 80’s. Overall, Mr. Douglass is known as one of the nicest persons that any of them have had the privilege to work with at VA. His colleagues state that his understanding of veteran’s needs and his dedication to the job will be sorely missed by all, including the veterans he dedicated his career to serve.

Mr. Douglass was born in Ypsilanti, Michigan, and served honorably in the U.S. Army from 1969 through 1971. He graduated from Michigan State University in 1974 and did graduate work at Wayne State University. He resides in Springfield, Virginia, with his wife JoAnn, son Daryl, and daughter Alison.

TRIBUTE TO JOHN W. JACOBS, JR.
OF GEORGIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, December 6, 2006

Mr. DEAL of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, as a journalist major, John W. Jacobs, Jr., understands that a person’s life is like a newspaper.
From the announcement of birth, an event over which we have no control, to the obituary notice, which we will never read, events fill the pages of our lives, and it is how we respond to or create those events that will determine if our life’s story is worth reading or remembering.

For John W. Jacobs, Jr., most of his life has evolved in Gainesville, Georgia, where he was born on November 28, 1922. He graduated from high school there and attended Riverside Military Academy for a year before venturing west to the University of Missouri to attend the prestigious journalism school. The outbreak of World War II interrupted his education and he soon found himself on the battlefields of Europe in one of the most important battles of the war, the Battle of the Bulge, where he was awarded two Silver Stars. When the war concluded, he finished his college degree and returned to his hometown where he began his career in communications by selling ads for a local newspaper.

He soon joined some of his veteran friends and formed the radio station WDUN. In the years that followed, he formed, bought and sold a newspaper, a cable television system and an FM radio station. Today, his company, Jacobs Media, owns three radio stations, an on-line news service, a newspaper, and a travel agency. He and his son and daughter are the sole shareholders.

If that was all that John Jacobs, Jr., had done with his life and talents, it would be an impressive story worthy of an extensive spread in our local paper. But that is only part of the story, for John understood that business success must be coupled with personal service if anyone is going to be inspired by the story of your life. And it is in this arena where the real story of John Jacobs can be found. He has served as President of the Greater Hall County Chamber of Commerce on two separate occasions, President of the Gainesville Jaycees, Exalted Ruler of the Elks Lodge, local President and Governor of the Georgia District of Kiwanis, President of the Georgia Association of Broadcasters and the Georgia Cable Television Association.

In addition, John has been active in Grace Episcopal Church, serving as Warden and Vestryman, chairman of Building Funds and Day Reader. John recognized that Brenau University was one of the jewels in his hometown and he has served on its Board of Trustees since 1958 and as Chairman of the Board of Trustees for 21⁄2 years as President of that organization.

John’s wife Martha Rand Jacobs, and their children, Elizabeth Carswell, and Jay Jacobs, and their seven grandchildren have set an example for service for all of us.

John W. Jacobs, Jr. has filled the pages of his life with excitement, successes and service, and every day he is writing a new paragraph. He is an outstanding example of a purpose driven life, and he is a great encourager for all who would follow in his path.

CONGRATULATING DR. RENÉ DÍAZ-LEFEBVRE FOR HIS SELECTION AS THE 2006 ARIZONA PROFESSOR OF THE YEAR

HON. ED PASTOR OF ARIZONA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, December 6, 2006

Mr. PASTOR. Mr. Speaker, I rise before you today to congratulate Dr. René Díaz-Lefebvre, Professor of Psychology at Glendale Community College in Glendale, Arizona, for his selection as this year’s Arizona Professor of the Year. Sponsoring by The Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching and administered by the Council for Advancement and Support of Education (CASE), the Professors of the Year awards recognize professors for their influence on teaching and their outstanding commitment to teaching undergraduate students. Dr. Díaz-Lefebvre is the first Latino from Arizona and one of eight community college professors to win this award, one of the most prestigious and competitive in the Nation.

A fifth generation Arizonan, Dr. Díaz-Lefebvre was born in South Tucson, in a low-income housing project known as La Reforma. Encouraged by his family, who taught him that la educación abre puertas (education opens doors), Dr. Díaz-Lefebvre was in the first graduating class of Pima Community College in 1972. He went on to receive his Bachelor’s degree in Humanistic Psychology from the University of Redlands, his Master’s degree in Guidance and Counseling from California State University, San Bernardino, and his Ph.D. in Counseling Psychology from Union Graduate School.

Dr. Díaz-Lefebvre has been a leader in applying cognitive psychological research to innovative ways of helping students learn and assessing that learning. He has pioneered the Multiple Intelligences/Learning for Understanding (MI/LfU) method of teaching, learning, and assessment, which takes into account the differences in students’ learning abilities and offers as many approaches to learning as possible, such as role playing, creative writing, and computer simulations. Dr. Díaz-Lefebvre has received numerous awards and recognitions for his work on MI/LfU and is frequently asked to speak at conferences regarding his innovative approach to teaching.

Mr. Speaker, I am honored to recognize Dr. Díaz-Lefebvre with this prestigious award, and to express my gratitude for his innovation and determination in teaching our next generation of leaders. It is with great pleasure that I congratulate Dr. Díaz-Lefebvre today for this award, which duly recognizes his important work.

NATIONAL ALZHEIMER’S AWARENESS MONTH

HON. CONNIE MACK OF FLORIDA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, December 6, 2006

Mr. MACK. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to express my support for the goals and ideals of National Alzheimer’s Awareness Month. It is during this month that we recognize the millions of Americans who have succumbed to this devastating disease, as well as their loved ones and caregivers. It is also a time to renew our commitment to advancing the research efforts aimed at preventing and combating Alzheimer’s disease.

As America’s Baby Boomer generation ages, the need to find a cure for this disease is more urgent than ever. There is groundbreaking work being done at our Nation’s premier research universities, the National Institutes of Health, as well as the Department of Veterans Affairs, to further understand how Alzheimer’s affects the brain. We must continue to support this cutting edge research to combat and prevent the debilitating effects of this disease.

Far too many Americans are faced with what Nancy Reagan called the “long, long goodbye.” Over 4 million Americans are living with Alzheimer’s and it is estimated that in the next 50 years that number will likely triple. These numbers do not take into account the countless family members, loved ones, and caregivers who shoulder the burden to ensure that patients are able to live out their days with as much dignity and comfort as possible.

Mr. POMBO. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to submit into the RECORD a birthday greeting for my father-in-law, Mr. Franklin Eugene Cole. I honor Franklin on his 80th birthday and would like to bring attention to the life Franklin has lived. Having served his country honorably in the United States Navy during World War II, Franklin returned to California where he married his wife of 53 years, Rena Cole. Over the years Franklin built a successful small business and dedicated himself to the education of children while he served on the Jefferson school board for over 30 years. Today, Franklin lives happily with his wife Rena, two daughters, and five grandchildren. Mr. Speaker, I want to salute Franklin Cole on his birthday for his unending patriotism and devotion to the American dream.

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, December 6, 2006

Mr. GENE GREEN of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to two very special tots, Juwan and Rhaquann Brunson, who had the presence of mind to call 911 to seek assistance from emergency personnel when their grandmother, Mrs. Otisteen Brunson, became dizzy and fell in her house on Park Avenue in Wilson, North Carolina.

Mr. Speaker, I learned that as soon as Mrs. Brunson fell, Rhaquann and Juwan immediately charged to their grandmother’s rescue; Rhaquann’s tiny fingers happened upon 911 on his grandmother’s telephone while little Juwan provided comfort to his grandmother by rubbing her head until the emergency personnel arrived.

Mr. Speaker, this incident stresses the importance of parents, grandparents or older siblings taking the time to familiarize children at a very young age with the proper way to respond in emergency situations. It is critically important for children to know their address, home telephone number and how they should respond when confronted with a catastrophic situation such as illness, a fire or flood.

I applaud Juwan and Rhaquann Brunson for their bravery, but more importantly, I applaud their grandmother, Mrs. Otisteen Brunson, for taking the time to teach these tots how to dial 911.

Mr. Speaker, this special act performed by Mrs. Brunson and her grandsons very well may have saved her life, as she had just recently been released from the hospital and she suffers with arthritis, congestive obstructive pulmonary disease and diabetes.

Mr. Speaker, I ask my colleagues to rise and join me in paying tribute to two mighty brave tots, Juwan and Rhaquann Brunson. I thank God for the blessings of children.

ON THE RETIREMENT OF DAVID BUCKLEY
HON. JANE HARMAN
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, December 6, 2006

Ms. HARMAN. Mr. Speaker, while Members of Congress are the ones with our names on the door, I doubt any of us would disagree with the view that we are only as good as the team we have working with us.

David Buckley has been one such stellar member of my team. As Minority Staff Director of the House Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence for the last two years, “Buck” or “Mud”—as he affectionately knows—has been an indispensable aide, a calm counselor, and one of the most pleasant people with whom I have ever worked and traveled.

Together, Buck and I have visited with the brave women and men of the intelligence community in some of the most challenging and austere parts of the world.

Together, Buck and I have discussed and analyzed some of the most difficult intelligence and national security issues confronting our country, and we have worked hard to translate those efforts into policies that will hopefully keep the American people and the world safe in this era of terror.

David Buckley came to the Intelligence Committee with many years of impressive experience in congressional and criminal investigations, counterintelligence and law enforcement. Following 8 years of active duty service in the Air Force, he worked as Chief Investigator for the Senate’s Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations, chaired at the time by former Sam Nunn, one of the most respected voices on national security the Congress has ever produced. He served in the Inspector General’s office in the Department of Defense and later as the Assistant Director for Defense, National Security and International Affairs in the Government Accountability Office. Immediately prior to joining the Committee, Buck led a staff of 350 criminal investigators in the Treasury Department’s Inspector General for Tax Administration’s office. Finally, Buck is also a graduate of the Defense Intelligence Agency’s clandestine human intelligence case officer course and the Federal Executive Institute.

Buck leaves Capitol Hill with the affection and respect of Members and staff on both sides of the aisle. He is genetically programmed to be bipartisan and courteous traits that have served him extremely well and will continue to distinguish him in the workplace. I personally will miss our daily conversations, his unfailingly positive attitude and consummate professionalism.

I wish him and his wonderful family time for dinners at home, church activities, scout trips, and lots of love and laughter. As Buck begins this new chapter in his life, he remains a valued member of “Team Harman.”

INTRODUCING “AMERICAN NATIONAL RED CROSS GOVERNANCE MODERNIZATION ACT OF 2006”

HON. GEORGE RADANOVICH
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, December 6, 2006

Mr. RADANOVICH. Mr. Speaker, charitable giving makes a real difference in the lives of people in need, and I have continually sought ways to encourage all Americans to give more. More than a government program or grant or stipend—not reflecting better the spirit of man caring for his fellow man than the act of freely, benevolently giving out of his own pocket. I truly believe that by increasing charitable giving, we can make a real difference in the world. The Red Cross is the symbol that best represents charitable giving to most Americans. That is why I became involved in this effort to make the American Red Cross a more effective organization, capable of carrying out its mission of meeting critical disaster and emergency needs around the globe. We need to better enable the Red Cross to meet the needs of victims from natural disasters like Katrina, the tsunami, and the California wildfires.

Yesterday, I introduced the “American National Red Cross Governance Modernization Act of 2006.” This bill is in large part the result of a report done by the Red Cross, entitled American Red Cross Governance for the 21st Century, and the hard work and dedication of Senator CHARLES GRASSLEY and his staff. Earlier this year, the American Red Cross underwent its first significant review of internal governance since 1947, in an effort to modernize and strengthen its governance structure and practice. In February of this year, the Red Cross challenged its Governance Committee to conduct a comprehensive review and analysis of the Board of Governors, the role of management, the relationship with chapters, and the transparency and accountability of the Red Cross. To conduct this review, the Committee brought together an independent panel of the country’s preeminent governance experts and with this panel produced recommendations that were unanimously approved by the Board of Governors in October.

The most important aspects of effectively operating a large corporation are governance, oversight, and accountability. This carefully crafted legislation will modernize the Red Cross governance structure by decreasing the size of the Board of Governors and clarifying their role as being responsible for governance, not day-to-day operations. The bill subjects the Red Cross to oversight by creating an Office of the Ombudsman that reports annually to Congress, and ensuring that oversight is a primary responsibility of the Board. Through the legislation, the Comptroller General is authorized to review Red Cross involvement in any Federal program or activity, and the bill includes findings that Congress expects the Red Cross to maintain open communications with State regulators of charitable organizations and cooperate with them as necessary. These provisions will help the Red Cross achieve greater transparency and accountability.

Governance, oversight, and accountability are the hallmarks of an efficient corporation that meets the needs of its consumers. In the case of the Red Cross, those needs are great and, unfortunately, continue to grow. But the changes made by the American National Red Cross Governance Modernization Act of 2006 will better equip the Red Cross to achieve its mission worldwide. We need to pass this bill as soon as possible to enable the Red Cross to begin making these changes. This will allow the Red Cross to continue to be a major conduit for charitable givers and better utilize the generosity of all Americans.

That is why, Mr. Speaker, I have introduced the American National Red Cross Governance Modernization Act and strongly encourage my colleagues to cosponsor and pass this important legislation.

IN HONOR OF MELANIE CHRISTOPHER
HON. CHARLES W. “CHIP” PICKERING OF MISSISSIPPI
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, December 6, 2006

Mr. PICKERING. Mr. Speaker, as this Congress comes to an end, we see the closing of an era for News Channel 12 in Jackson, Mississippi. After 25 years in the business, Melanie Christopher—the cheerful and informative co-anchor of WJTV—will be retiring at the end of this year. She will be focusing more time and attention on her husband and family, but we, her viewers, will miss her.
Melanie is one of Jackson’s most respected and honored television journalists. This year, she was voted “Newsperson of the Year” by the Mississippi Associated Press, the first female journalist to earn this distinction. Her work has also won awards from the National Commission on Working Women, the Mississippi Association of Broadcasters, and the Associated Press. She has served as emcee of numerous fund-raising events on WJTV over the years, including the Children's Miracle Network telecast to benefit Batson Hospital for Children in Jackson.

In recent years, Melanie has been the face of health and medical reporting for WJTV as she informed viewers about the latest treatments, drugs, and how to improve their health.

Melanie serves on the Board of Directors of the Metropolitan YMCA and MORA, the Mississippi Organ Recovery Agency. She also works with the March of Dimes, the Multiple Sclerosis Society and the Blair E. Batson Hospital for Children. She is also a board member of Ballet Mississippi and hosts “The Learning Exchange” four times a year on Mississippi ETV.

Mr. Speaker, Melanie Christopher has long been a reliable, trustworthy source of news and information for Mississippians, and her dedication to the community has earned her well deserved honor. She has served in her role as journalist and kept the public trust in that institution. We will miss tuning in to see and hear her on WJTV, but I’m convinced she will continue to benefit her community and all of Mississippi for many years to come.

RECOGNIZING THEODORE JOSEPH FETERLING FOR ACHIEVING THE RANK OF EAGLE SCOUT

HON. SAM GRAVES
OF MISSOURI
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, December 6, 2006

Mr. GRAVES. Mr. Speaker, I proudly pause to recognize Theodore Fetterling, a very special young man who has exemplified the finest qualities of citizenship and leadership by taking an active part in the Boy Scouts of America, Troop 357, and in earning the most prestigious award of Eagle Scout.

Theodore has been very active with his troop, participating in many Scout activities. Over the many years Theodore has been involved with Scouting, he has not only earned numerous merit badges, but also the respect of his family, peers, and community. It is with extreme pleasure that I commend the dedication Theodore has shown.

Mr. Speaker, I proudly ask you to join me in commending Theodore for his accomplishments with the Boy Scouts of America and for his efforts put forth in achieving the highest distinction of Eagle Scout. I am proud to represent Theodore in the United States House of Representatives.

IN HONOR OF OFFICER JOHN GREEN

HON. SAM FARR
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, December 6, 2006

Mr. FARR. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize Officer John Green of the Santa Cruz Police Department. During his tenure, Officer Green served in the Patrol Section as a Patrol Officer and Field Training Officer as a Detective in the Investigation Section and with the Santa Cruz County Narcotics Enforcement Team. He is a man of honor and will be greatly missed.

Officer Green was born in Long Island, New York and grew up in Queens, New York to a family of two sisters and one brother. He enlisted in the Navy in 1975 and was stationed in Jamaica, New York. He was an Aviation Machinist Mate First Class. He later transferred to Moffett Field, California and remained there until his discharge in 1981.

Upon discharge, John worked as a Maintenance Technician for a large corporation in Santa Clara, California before beginning a career in law enforcement when on February 3, 1986, Officer Green was sworn in as a Police Patrol Officer. In 1984, John was hired as a Deputy Sheriff with the Alameda County Sheriff's Department where he worked in the detention facility for 2 years before being hired by the Santa Cruz Police Department. In 1986, John attended several U.S. Navy Aircraft Mechanics schools, studied at Mission College in Santa Clara, California and graduated from the Alameda County Sheriff's Department Police Academy.

To my knowledge, this is the first time a law enforcement officer has volunteered to serve this country first, and then volunteered to return to his community to serve the community and its citizens through law enforcement. He enjoys interacting and working with members of the community and strives to help keep our community safer. Community members describe him as professional, poised, kind, thorough, and having a positive attitude. One person even stated, “His compassion for people, kindness . . . open and friendly attitude puts everyone at ease.” Officer Green is a man of integrity and respect.

John has been married for 13 years to his wife Sharon. They have three children; Brandon, 12; Melissa, 20 and Lori, 31. In John’s spare time he likes to travel, spend time with friends and family. His retirement plans include more fishing, traveling, and time with friends and family, plus working part time and engaging in volunteer work of some sort.

Mr. Speaker, for all of these reasons it is with great joy that I acknowledge Officer John Green of the Santa Cruz Police Department for 20 years of service to the community.

HONORING JON BUTLER
OF NEW JERSEY
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, December 6, 2006

Mr. HOLT. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor Jon Butler, a constituent from Pennington, and recognize his great achievements.

Butler has recently received the 2006 Hershey’s STRIVE award, National Ad- ministrator of the Year from the National Council of Youth Sports. Butler has been chosen for this award because he has been a guiding force in his community. He has worked closely with Pop Warner Little Scholars, the largest youth football, cheerleading, and dance program in the United States. Mr. Butler has worked to facilitate children’s participation in group sports and activities. These activities engage children in a safe environment and help to teach essential skills and knowledge. Jon now has begun educating Capitol Hill about the value of Pop Warner Little Scholars.

Mr. Butler sets high standards for children and always encourages them to perform at their highest level. Mr. Butler has developed a Coaches Education Training Program to educate adults on the basic fundamentals of youth sports, including sportsmanship, coaching techniques, and respect for youth.

STRIVE, which stands for Sports Teach Respect, Initiative, Values, and Excellence, honors adult leaders who have a passion for helping children, and I am proud to recognize Mr. Jon Butler for receiving this award.

TRIBUTE TO FIRST LIEUTENANT JOSHUA DEESE

HON. MIKE McINTYRE OF NORTH CAROLINA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, December 6, 2006

Mr. McINTYRE. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to a true gentleman, a wonderful father, and a leader in the Armed Forces. First Lieutenant Joshua Deese, who passed away while on patrol near Kirkuk, Iraq when his vehicle was hit by a roadside bomb on October 15. 2006. Josh’s legacy and contributions will live on in the hearts and minds of many for generations to come, and we are forever grateful for his service to our country.

Born and raised in Rowland, North Carolina, Josh embodied the true spirit of a dedicated and determined leader. He graduated from South Robeson High School in 1999 and joined the Army shortly after his graduation from the University of North Carolina at Pembroke in 2003. Described as a natural leader by his family, Josh served as a platoon leader in the infantry and had recently become an executive in service of the Army, a position he had deployed to Iraq in August after serving in Afghanistan.

As someone who grew up in a military family, Josh always dreamed of serving in the Army as a paratrooper. In addition to his uncle, Dexter Clark, his older sister Ronnean Collins, and his two grandfathers, served in the military.

Josh loved his family and is survived by his parents, Ronnie and Regina Deese; his sisters, Ronnean Collins and Myra Deese; his 2-year-old son Jacob and his girlfriend Andrea Huggins; his brother, Ronnie Deese; his younger sister, Ronnie Clark; his younger brother, Ron Deese; his younger sister, Regina Clark; and a host of other relatives.

President Dwight D. Eisenhower once said, “If we make ourselves worthy of America’s ideals, if we do not forget that our nation was founded on the premise that all men are creatures of God’s making, the world will come to know that it is free men who carry forward the true promise of human progress and dignity.” Indeed, Josh’s life was the embodiment of this. He was a man who was known by persons of all races, ages, and religions for both his kind deeds and his loving, unselfish heart. Mr. Speaker, dedicated service to others combined with dynamic leadership has been the embodiment of Josh’s life. May we all use his wisdom, selflessness, and integrity as a beacon of direction and a source of true enlightenment. Indeed, may God bless to all of our memories the tremendous life and legacy of First Lieutenant Joshua Deese.

TRIBUTE TO LIEUTENANT GENERAL LARRY J. DODGEN

HON. ROBERT E. (BUD) CRAMER, JR. OF ALABAMA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 6, 2006

Mr. CRAMER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to LTG Larry J. Dodgen, Commanding General of the United States Army Space and Missile Defense Command/United States Army Forces Strategic Command. General Dodgen is also the Commander of the Joint Functional Component Command—Integrated Missile Defense.

General Dodgen, a native of New Orleans, Louisiana, began his military career after graduating from Louisiana State University in 1972. Over the next 34 years, he has received numerous decorations and awards for his distinguished duty, including the Defense Distinguished Service Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster, the Legion of Merit with two Oak Leaf Clusters, the Meritorious Service Medal with Four Oak Leaf Clusters, the Army Commendation Medal, and the Army Achievement Medal.

Mr. Speaker, I had the opportunity to work with General Dodgen during his 2-year tenure as the Commanding General of the U.S. Army Aviation and Missile Command, which is located at Redstone Arsenal in North Alabama. He served in that capacity from September 2001 through December 2003. During his tenure in North Alabama, General Dodgen worked to ensure that the entire North Alabama defense community was engaged in efforts to meet the future needs of the Army and the warfighter. Our work together continued after General Dodgen assumed the Command at SMDC. I applaud his commitment to the Army, Redstone, and to our Nation.

Mr. Speaker, after 34 years of honorable service to the Army, a consummate leader and defender of our great Nation, General Dodgen is retiring from active duty. On November 30, 2006, the North Alabama community held a celebration in his honor. I rise today to join them in their tribute and to thank him for his many years of service. I wish General Dodgen the very best for the future.

H.R. 5441. FY2007 HOMELAND SECURITY APPROPRIATIONS CONFERENCE REPORT

HON. LUCILLE ROYBAL-ALLARD
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 6, 2006

Ms. ROYBAL-ALLARD. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 5441, the Homeland Security Appropriations Conference Report. As a member of the Homeland Security Subcommittee, it has been an honor to work with Chairman MARTIN and with our Ranking Member MARTIN SABO who is retiring from Congress at the end of this session. Congressman SABO has served our country with honor and distinction throughout his distinguished career in the House of Representatives.

I have had the privilege to serve with him on the Budget Committee and for the past 4 years on the Appropriations Homeland Security Subcommittee.

As the ranking member on the Budget Committee, MARTIN fought hard for fiscally responsible budgets and funding priorities that would enhance the quality of life of all Americans. As the ranking member on the Homeland Security Subcommittee, he has been a true champion and advocate for real and effective security for our Nation.

He has led the fight, for example, to protect our ports, our aviation system, and our chemical plants.

Mr. Speaker, Congressman MARTIN SABO is a gentleman Congressman and a respected Member of the House. He has been the voice of common sense in a process that has had the potential to be partisan and acrimonious. It has been a genuine privilege to serve with him in the U.S. House of Representatives and particularly on the Homeland Security Appropriations Subcommittee.

I will miss him. I wish this House will miss him. MARTIN, I wish you the best in the future. Mr. Speaker, the conference report before us makes several improvements to the House-passed bill and is a testament to Congressman SABO’s leadership. The increased funding for Urban Area Security Initiative (UASI) grants for Los Angeles and other communities that continue to be potential terrorist targets. UASI grants are badly needed by our local law enforcement officers who are the first line of defense in a disaster or terrorist attack. These funds are critical to local efforts to prevent, prepare, respond and recover from acts of terrorism or mass disaster. I am happy that the UASI grants are funded in the conference at the House level of $770 million, $13 million or 2 percent above 2006.

I am pleased that this conference report has increased funding for fire grants to $662 million; this is above the House-passed level and $14 million (2 percent) above 2006. Included in the grant money is $115 million for hiring additional personnel under the Stafford Act for Adequate Fire and Emergency Response Firefighters Act (SAFER Act). These funds are critical to firefighters such as those in my state of California. The funds will help fire services obtain additional personal equipment and training to better protect the American public.

The conference report also increases port security grants to $210 million. This is $173.25 million above last year’s level. While this is an improvement over previous years’ funding, it is still insufficient to meet our nation’s needs identified by the Coast Guard to adequately secure our ports. With only 6 percent of containers entering our seaports and fewer than half of our ports having radiation portal monitors, much work remains to be done.

I am pleased also that the conference report includes my report language on unaccompanied alien children, detention standards, alternatives to detention, increasing Customs and Border Protection operations at Ontario International Airport, and bill language that prevents the Department of Homeland Security from moving forward with its potentially dangerous plan to privatize key immigration officer positions at the Bureau of Citizenship and Immigration Services. I am thankful that the inherently governmental functions will continue to remain the responsibility of trained and experienced Federal employees directly accountable to the Department and not to the bottom line of a private company. I am also pleased that Senate language limiting the tenure of the university centers of excellence was not included in the conference report.

Nevertheless, Mr. Speaker, I also have a few concerns about this conference report. First, I am disappointed and greatly concerned that this bill’s report expresses support for the expansion of the 287(g) program. I believe that State and local law enforcement officers to perform immigration enforcement functions. Many local law enforcement officers have stated that if they are required to enforce Federal immigration policies it would hamper their ability to successfully fight crime in their respective communities.

Secondly, I am concerned about certain provisions regarding chemical plant security. Preventing the Secretary of Homeland Security from approving a security plan on the presence or absence of a particular security measure, undermines the Secretary’s authority to require meaningful and comprehensive security measures.

Furthermore, shielding from public disclosure information submitted on security plans, treating the information during court proceedings as if it were classified material, and making scrutiny of the implementation and enforcement of the security requirements the sole purview of the Secretary, prohibits the needed transparency and oversight of a system intended to provide security for all Americans. Finally, I am concerned that allowing the Secretary to approve alternative security programs established by private sector entities, Federal, State, or local authorities may allow the Secretary to pre-empt State laws that impose more stringent requirements.

Mr. Speaker, in spite of these concerns, I believe the passage of this conference report is important to our property owners and the safety of our Nation and the American people. As Chairman ROGERS has said on numerous occasions, those who seek to do us harm only have to do their job right occasionally. We have to do our jobs to protect America 100% of the time. This is a step toward that important goal. I urge my colleagues to support this conference report, and fund these efforts to protect our Nation.

WELCOME TO THE FIRST LADY OF AZERBAIJAN, DR. MEHRIBAN ALIYEVA

HON. SHELLEY SEKULA GIBBS
OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, December 6, 2006

Ms. SEKULA GIBBS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to echo the sentiments of my colleague from Tennessee and also extend the welcome of the House of Representatives to the First Lady of Azerbaijan, Dr. Mehriban Aliyeva, to Washington.

The House of Representatives recognizes the strategic relationship the United States has with Azerbaijan. We know that its troops stand with us in Europe, Afghanistan and Iraq, that it supports our efforts toward combating global terrorism, and that it plays a key role in providing a secure and dependable energy supply to the West. The Caspian Sea Republic is rapidly modernizing, in large part due to its offshore sector and the opening earlier this year of the Baku-Tbilisi-Ceyhan gas pipeline and Baku-Erzerum natural gas pipeline. The country experienced 26 percent growth in 2005 and is expected to surpass 30 percent growth this year. This phenomenal growth is allowing Azerbaijan the opportunity to make significant investments in its future, in many respects. Here in the United States, and I might add in my home district, in particular, we are acutely aware of the importance of investing in our own future through efforts to develop new sources of energy for our own use and those of our global friends.

We also recognize Azerbaijan as an emerging democracy that is working hard to improve the social, political and economic opportunities of its predominately Muslim population. As an aspiring NATO and EU member, as well as a member of the Council of Europe, the largest governmental human rights organization calling for its members to harmonize human rights protection laws and regulations and compelling compliance with them, the success of initiatives in these areas is an example for other Caucasus and Central Asian countries.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to take the opportunity of the visit of Azerbaijan’s First Lady to draw special attention to the strides it is making in areas of particular importance to me as a doctor. Not only is the First Lady of Azerbaijan an elected member of the Azerbaijani Parliament and chair of its Azerbaijan-U.S. Parliamentary Friendship Working Group, but she is a UNESCO Goodwill Ambassador, President of the Heydar Aliyev Foundation, the largest regional nonprofit NGO in the Caucasus, and herself a Moscow-trained ophthalmologist.

As a doctor myself, I am particularly aware of the opportunities and responsibilities and benefits that we have as physicians leaders to take medical knowledge and apply it in ways that benefit the greatest number of people. In the way Dr. Aliyeva has used her training and respected position for philanthropic and charitable works through the Heydar Aliyev Foundation in the areas of education, health care, science, humanitarain aid, international relations and culture, we have been closely involved in the construction and refurbishment of Azerbaijani hospitals and the international exchange of new medical technologies and commend those efforts. I’ve also learned that Houston, too, has played a direct role in advancing medical technology in Azerbaijan and the region through various programs over the years with Texas Medical Center institutions. In 1998, Baylor College of Medicine’s world-renowned heart surgeon Dr. Michael DeBakey traveled to Baku to assess the country’s cardiovascular needs and the state of its health care. I understand that Dr. DeBakey met with President Aliyev in Baku after having previously met with him in Houston, and I would imagine that Mrs. Aliyeva personally appreciates the importance of sharing medical technologies across borders as her husband is a heart attack survivor himself.

Mr. Speaker, I am honored to welcome First Lady Mehriban Aliyeva to Washington on behalf of the House of Representatives. I commend a fellow doctor, parliamentarian, wife and mother on her personal commitment to sharing medical technologies across borders and more peaceful world. A magnificent role model, she led her conscience and practiced her ideals each and every day.

In 1981, at the height of the Cold War—as superpowers stockpiled nuclear weapons, the international arms trade boomed and intercontinental ballistic missiles grew ever larger—Sally Lilienthal founded the Ploughshares Fund. Based in her living room with few resources and her determination to inform the public about the issues and the danger, it became an enormously influential foundation dedicated to the prevention of nuclear, biological and chemical weapons of war.

She supported researchers, policy activists, and scientists in the United States and overseas who were trying to change government policies and was a vital figure in shaping the anti-proliferation agenda during the Cold War. As of now, the fund has raised more than $50 million, mostly for startup research and is the largest grant-making foundation in the United States focused exclusively on peace and security issues.

I extend my deepest sympathy to her family—Ms. Lilienthal was 12 when her family moved to San Francisco. She graduated from Sarah Lawrence College and returned to San Francisco in 1940. During the 1950s, she studied sculpture at the San Francisco Art Institute. Elegant and artistic, she could have spent her life comfortably moving in San Francisco’s art and social circles, but she turned her attention and her might to the issues of war, peace, and social justice.

Together with her husband Philip Lilienthal she founded the Northern California Committee of the NAACP Legal Defense and Education Fund in 1970. She served on the regional ACLU board. She cofounded Amnesty International Western Region and was an early supporter of the International Campaign to Ban Landmines that, while she was vice chair, resulted in a global treaty and a Nobel Peace Prize in 1997. In 1990, the United Nations Association bestowed to her its Eleanor Roosevelt Humanitarian Award.

In addition to her work for peace, for social justice, and the arts, Sally Lilienthal was an active member of our community supporting progressive policies and politicians. For 30 years I was blessed with her support, her advice, and her friendship.

I extend my deepest sympathy to her children: Laurie Cohen, Liza Pike, Thomas Cohen, Matthew Royce, Suzy Lilienthal, Andrea Lilienthal, and her 11 grandchildren. I hope it is a comfort to her family that so many people mourn her passing and will hold Sally in their hearts forever.
TRIBUTE TO HONORABLE PATRICK J. BRENNAN

HON. ROBERT E. ANDREWS
OF NEW JERSEY
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, December 6, 2006
Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor Patrick J. Brennan, Mayor of Merchantville, New Jersey and lifetime resident of New Jersey. Mayor Brennan served on the borough council for four years before becoming mayor.

Mayor Brennan is married to Joan Foley and they have seven children. He was born in Camden, New Jersey, raised in Collingswood and attended Camden Catholic High School, Georgetown University and Rutgers University. After an unsuccessful run for state Assembly, Mayor Brennan was elected mayor, a job he has held for 12 years. Mayor Brennan is also the owner of three companies in Turnersville, NJ.

Mayor Brennan has successfully maintained Merchantville’s hometown, laid-back atmosphere while improving, revitalizing, and developing the borough. He has overseen the development of a new senior housing complex, which will make it easier for the elderly to stay in the town while providing housing opportunities for new seniors. He has also overseen the opening of Chestnut Station in 2003.

Mr. Speaker, I offer my congratulations to Mayor Brennan for his years of outstanding service to the borough of Merchantville. I wish him all the best in his retirement.

HONORING DR. B.J. MISTRY

HON. NITA M. LOWEY
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, December 6, 2006

Mrs. LOWEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor Dr. B.J. Mistry on her installation as President of the Ninth District Dental Association.

Founded in 1909 and with a membership of close to 1600 dentists, the Ninth District Dental Association is dedicated to advancing the dental profession and promoting public service. I have no doubt that under the leadership and guidance of B.J. Mistry the organization will continue to grow and expand the positive role it plays in our communities.

A graduate of the Government Dental College in Ahmedabad, India, as well as the College of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey, Dr. Mistry has played an active role in promoting dentistry and proper dental health throughout her career. She has served as an Assistant Clinical Professor at the Albert Einstein College of Medicine, is a longtime member of the American Dental Association and previously served 5 years on the Board of Governors for the Ninth District Dental Association.

Her installation as the 98th President of the Ninth District Dental Association also marks a historic occasion as she becomes the first woman and first immigrant to lead the organization.

I am honored to work closely with Dr. B.J. Mistry to better our community, and I urge my colleagues to join me today in recognizing her accomplishments.

RECOGNIZING THE TULARE COUNTY HOUSING AUTHORITY

HON. DEVIN NUNES
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, December 6, 2006

Mr. NUNES. Mr. Speaker, I would like to pay tribute to the Tulare County Housing Authority in central California. This agency has done an outstanding job of managing their housing units, implementing the Moving to Work program, and empowering low-income families to be self-sufficient.

By way of background, the Tulare County Housing Authority was established in 1945 with their first major project being the development of housing for returning World War II Veterans and their families. Currently, the Tulare County Housing Authority is managing and administering 5,000 units for families, seniors, and the disabled. It is quite clear that the Tulare County Housing Authority has established a solid reputation for providing safe, affordable housing for low income people.

In fact, the Tulare County Housing Authority is performing so well that their Board of Commissioners has made the decision to return their operating subsidies to the Department of Housing and Urban Development for Fiscal Year 2007. It goes to show that a Housing Authority, that pays attention to rent structures and operating costs, can not only enhance the lives of those directly participating, but also benefit taxpayers by operating independent of federal subsidies.

I commend the Tulare County Housing Authority and their Board of Commissioners for their efficient management and sound business practices.

GALT CHRISTIAN CHURCH

HON. SAM GRAVES
OF MISSOURI
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, December 6, 2006

Mr. GRAVES. Mr. Speaker, I proudly pause to recognize Galt Christian Church in Galt, Missouri. This church will be celebrating its 125th year anniversary of service to the community on October 15, 2006. Over these past 125 years, this church grew to meet all the needs of its congregation.

As a staple of the community throughout the years, the church has gone through growth and expansion with the Galt community it serves. From humble beginnings, this church is a stabilizing force for this community. Originally, this church was borrowing space from a neighboring church.

The church buildings grew in concert with its congregation. Growing, even taking in two hundred new members in one afternoon, with a large baptism of faith. Finally in 1974, the church’s current building was erected to house the growing congregation.

Mr. Speaker, I proudly ask you to join me in recognizing the Galt Christian Church. The contributions which they have provided over these 125 years are not only fundamental to the growth of this community. Let us use the Galt Christian Church as a powerful example of the lasting commitment to faith.

TRIBUTE TO THE 172ND STRYKER BRIGADE COMBAT TEAM

HON. DON YOUNG OF ALASKA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, December 6, 2006

Mr. YOUNG of Alaska. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to acknowledge the significant contributions and sacrifices of the 172nd Stryker Brigade Combat Team, "Arctic Wolves," based out of Ft. Wainwright, Alaska. I would like to congratulate this elite fighting force of men and women who performed with distinction during an unprecedented 16-month deployment in Iraq.

Few units in the history of the Army have developed such a diverse ability to effectively fight in extreme combat situations. The 172nd formed, lived and trained in the harsh Alaska arctic conditions. Alaskan winters have as many as 21 hours of darkness a day and an average daily temperature of 15 degrees. During the initial Iraq deployment in July/August of 2005, these soldiers faced dry, desert conditions in heat topping 120 degrees, quite different from their original training conditions.

The 172nd’s commitment to their fellow soldiers, and the families they serve, has made the difference in any environment is one of the many exceptional traits of these Arctic and now, "Desert Wolves."

During their tour of duty, the Stryker Brigade had an outstanding combat record and an exceptional reputation for their relationship with the Iraqi citizens. During their service, 5 soldiers were Silver Star Recipients, along with the entire 172nd receiving the Valorous Unit Award. The sacrifices made by these soldiers over the last 16 months were tremendous; 26 soldiers lost their lives and another 381 soldiers were wounded, while in Iraq. The commitment of these soldiers to their Nation is admirable. This brigade, despite their extended tour, had the highest reenlistment rate in the Army with over 53 percent of assigned personnel signing up for the second life cycle.

Along with the contributions our Alaskan service members make on a regular basis to the security of this Nation we cannot forget the difficulties their families face during these deployments. Close to 5,000 Alaskan family members of the 172nd had been without their loved ones for 16 months and waited to be back in their arms of their husbands, wives, sons and daughters. While soldiers were overseas, these families in the Fairbanks community pulled together with resounding resolve.

Not only am I proud to represent the Arctic Wolves, but I am also proud to represent the great military families of Ft. Wainwright who patiently waited for their brave soldiers to return.

Over the last 4 months, the 172nd has received increased publicity because of their extended deployment, and the families and soldiers were asked to perform duties few are capable of handling. However, I am proud to say that our Arctic Wolves acted with the utmost level of professionalism and heroism on the ground, from the unit commanders to the most junior enlisted ranks. The 172nd Stryker Brigade Combat Team has made a significant contribution to the proud United States Army military history and I am proud to represent the hardworking Alaskan communities. On behalf of the state of Alaska, I extend my thanks and appreciation for their exceptional service to this nation. Welcome home, Arctic Wolves.
IN RECOGNITION OF THE HEROIC ACTIONS BY THE STAFF OF JEANNE MOORE, INC., IN MONTGOMERY, ALABAMA

HON. MIKE ROGERS OF ALABAMA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 6, 2006

Mr. ROGERS of Alabama. Mr. Speaker, I respectfully ask the attention of the House today to pay recognition to the heroic actions of the entire staff at Jeanne Moore, Inc. Daycare in Montgomery, Alabama, and to specifically recognize the bravery of Ms. Jeanne Moore, Ms. Liberty Duke, Ms. Sharon Ware and Ms. Elaine Edwards.

On November 15th, powerful tornados swept through Alabama, including the City of Montgomery. Jeanne Moore, Inc. Daycare was in the path of one of those tornados and was destroyed while the children were on site. According to Jeanne Moore, one four year old described the terrifying experience as, “my school was breaking in two...” Responding quickly and professionally, the staff at the daycare did not flee, but made sure the children were safe and covered the children with their own bodies during the brunt of the storm. According to news reports, Ms. Liberty Duke had two of her own children at the daycare when the storms hit. Instead of going to look for her children, she saved the ones closest to her knowing and trusting that the staff at Jeanne Moore, Inc. would take care of her own.

Jeanne Moore recalls seeing other nearby citizens nominee mayors in the contest then Mayor Reed, the 7-term mayor of Harrisburg, Dauphin County, and the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

In addition, media reports said that Ms. Jeanne Moore recalls seeing other nearby citizens risking their lives when they realized what was happening. Moore said after the storm passed people were running from surrounding businesses to help pull children from the rubble. Miraculously, no one died and only minor injuries were incurred. I salute the heroes from that horrible day— everyday Alabamians working together to save innocent children. It is indeed a miracle that no lives were lost, and I hope we will all look to these brave Alabamians as role models for us all.

TRIBUTE TO MR. STEPHEN R. REED

HON. TIM HOLDEN OF PENNSYLVANIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, December 6, 2006

Mr. HOLDEN. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor Mr. Stephen R. Reed of Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, who was voted America’s number one mayor in the World Mayor 2006 online poll by the City Mayor organization.

Mayor Reed, the 7-term mayor of Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, is the only United States mayor to ever break into the top 3 spots in the annual online contest finishing third in the world. From January to May each year, citizens nominate mayors in the contest then choose from a list of fifty finalists from June to October. This year, over 103,000 people voted giving Mayor Reed more than 7,000 votes.

Under his leadership, the Pennsylvania state capital has been revitalized with the development of shops, hotels, and restaurants in the downtown area that once stood virtually vacant; the Harrisburg Senators baseball games and other attractions have revived tourism in the city; the Harrisburg University was established; and graduation rates have increased since Mr. Reed took control of the city school district.

Mr. Speaker, it is a privilege to be able to recognize a man who has dedicated his entire life to the City of Harrisburg, helping hundreds of people in my district, including myself. I ask you and my other distinguished colleagues to join me in congrats for Mr. Stephen R. Reed on his many years of devoted public service and thank him for the many contributions he has made toward the well being of the citizens of Harrisburg, Dauphin County, and the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

H.R. 5466, CAPTAIN JOHN SMITH CHESAPEAKE NATIONAL HISTORIC TRAIL DESIGNATION ACT

SPEECH OF HON. MICHAEL N. CASTLE OF DELAWARE

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, December 5, 2006

Mr. CASTLE. Mr. Speaker, today I rise in strong support of H.R. 5466, the Captain John Smith Chesapeake National Historic Trail Designation Act, which traces the 1607 and 1608 water voyages of Captain John Smith to chart the land along the Chesapeake Bay. The water trail extends approximately 3,000 miles along the Chesapeake Bay and its tributaries in Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania, Delaware, and in the District of Columbia. The year 2007 will mark the 400th anniversary of the founding of Jamestown and Captain John Smith’s monumental voyages of exploration in the Chesapeake Bay, making passage of this legislation and the designation of this route as a national historic trail timely.

Designating this historic trail is an excellent way for Americans to learn about the voyage of Captain John Smith and the valuable resources of the Chesapeake Bay and will help to spur efforts to protect and restore the region’s historic and environmental assets. During his voyage, Captain John Smith traveled 45 miles up the Nanticoke River into Delaware. He reached approximately half a mile above Broad Creek, in present-day Sussex County, where he placed a brass cross to symbolize the furthest extent of his exploration. During that time, Captain John Smith met and traded with hundreds of the Kuskarawak (Nanticoke) Indians who were vital to keeping the Jamestown settlement alive through their knowledge and trade goods.

This project is widely supported in Delaware and the DuPont Corporation.

As an original cosponsor of this legislation and earlier legislation that authorized the feasibility study of the proposed trail by the National Park Service, I fully back this project and look forward to visiting the portion of the trail that extends along the Nanticoke River in Delaware.

Mr. CLYBURN. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to a medical pioneer, Dr. Carl E. Yaeger, Jr. Dr. Yaeger is the recipient of the Trailblazer Award, a recognition bestowed upon him for his extraordinary contributions to his profession.

Carl Yaeger was born in Hartford, Connecticut, the son of another trailblazer, Dr. Carl Yaeger, Sr. founder of the Yaeger Clinic in Long Island, New York. Carl Jr. came to my home State of South Carolina to practice his profession after graduating from the University of Southern California, Los Angeles College of Chiropractic and Center States College of Physiatrics. In 1956, Dr. Yaeger joined his father in Miami, Florida to open the Yaeger Clinic there. It is one of the oldest African American owned medical facilities in the country.

Over the years, Dr. Yaeger built a tremendous clientele. He has provided health care to... several generations of patients, treated disaster victims and delivered over 400 babies in the clinic’s four-bed maternity ward. Some patients were so loyal to Dr. Yaeger they traveled from as far as Georgia and the Bahamas regularly to see him. He counts among his more than 100,000 patients, Muhammad Ali, who came to his clinic while living in Miami in the 1960s. He continued an active Naturopathic and Chiropractic medical practice until 2005. Dr. Yaeger continues to serve on the executive board of the Yaeger Foundation, Inc. and is actively involved in the organization’s establishment of the National Medical Museum.

Among Dr. Yaeger’s many contributions, was his appointment as Chairman of the Florida Board of Naturopathic Medicine by Governors Rubin Askew and Bob Graham. He also provided internships to aspiring health care professionals and free medical services to indigent patients.

Dr. Yaeger has been the recipient of many other honors including the Florida Chiropractic Association’s Lifetime Achievement Award. He has served as the President of the Florida Naturopathic Physicians Association and was a member of the Practice Parameters Advisory Committee of the Florida Agency for Health Care Administration. Outside his professional affiliations, Dr. Yaeger has been a civil rights activist that helped integrate many of Miami’s segregated restaurants and hotels and is a Lifetime Member of the NAACP.

Dr. Yaeger and his late wife, Ollie, raised four children. He is now the proud grandfather of two grandchildren.

Mr. Speaker, I ask you and my colleagues to join me in congratulating Dr. Carl Yaeger, Jr. for receiving this distinguished honor. He has given a lifetime of service to the medical community, and has had a tremendous impact on Miami and its people.

HONORING THE ROY CLASSEN FAMILY FOR BEING SELECTED AS THE ESCAMBA COUNTY 2006 OUTSTANDING FARM FAMILY OF THE YEAR

Mr. MILLER of Florida. Mr. Speaker, it is a great honor for me to rise today to extend congratulations to the Roy Classen Family for being selected as the Escambia County 2006 Outstanding Farm Family of the Year. ST. NICHOLAS
HON. TED POE
OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, December 6, 2006

Mr. POE. Mr. Speaker, while later this month kids will talk of Santa Claus, today, December 6th, belongs to St. Nicholas. The Christian Bishop. The human Santa Claus.

In Europe, around 300 A.D., St. Nicholas, a devout Christian, gave away all of his possessions. And dedicated his life to helping the poor.

St. Nicholas wearing a long, red robe, would sneak into homes leaving fruits, chocolates, and small presents by the fireplace for families in need.

As word of his deeds spread, eager young children would hang stockings or leave out shoes hoping for a visit from St. Nicholas.

When St. Nicholas died in 343 A.D., an annual day of celebration was declared on the anniversary of his death—December 6th.

Across centuries, throughout centuries, acts of generosity continued to be carried out in St. Nicholas’ name. Today the spirit of St. Nicholas is still celebrated.

Children leave their shoes by the door, waking to the candy and gifts left by St. Nicholas.

St. Nicholas Day reminds us of the true meaning of the holiday season . . . giving to others and spreading goodwill among all. It’s a good thing.

TRIBUTE TO DAVID E. JANSSSEN
HON. HENRY A. WAXMAN
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, December 6, 2006

Mr. WAXMAN. Mr. Speaker, I rise to pay tribute to Dr. David E. Janssen and to thank him for his 40-year career as a public servant in the State of California. Our Nation owes him a debt of gratitude for his decades of dedicated public service.

In August 1996, Dr. Janssen became the ninth Chief Administrative Officer (CAO) of Los Angeles County, a position that was created in 1938. He has been a superb leader and an inspiring example of personal integrity and dedication. He brought a wealth of fiduciary and operational knowledge gained through years of experience to his post that has resulted in prudent recommendations and sound oversight of the County’s $20 billion budget.

As CAO, Dr. Janssen has been responsible for a wide range of duties, including making financial recommendations to the County of Los Angeles Board of Supervisors to bring more cost-efficient programs to better serve the public. He has worked closely with the 38 County Departments to make certain that Board policies and priorities have been implemented. He has monitored Countywide spending and recommended departmental budget allocations are not exceeded.

Dr. Janssen has made sure that the Board’s legislative and intergovernmental policies and objectives have been coordinated with the Board Offices, the Legislative Strategist, and the offices in Sacramento and Washington, DC.

Dr. Janssen has coordinated capital projects/debt management, asset management, leasing and space management; administered insurance management programs; coordinated emergency preparedness and cost recovery efforts following major disasters; addressed unincorporated area issues; handled centralized security management for employeess and facilities; advised Board offices and departments on international protocol issues; managed the County’s employee relations program; coordinated centralized marketing programs; performed demographic and geographic research; coordinated centralized workplace programs, such as ride sharing, saving bonds, charity and volunteers; initiated and promoted activities which provide information about the County to the public; and provided centralized photographic and graphic art services.

Under Dr. Janssen’s leadership, the CAO’s office initiated an annual Vision Statement for the County that defined “core values” for providing public services, including integrity, commitment, accountability, professionalism, compassion, respect for diversity, and responsiveness. Dr. Janssen was instrumental in implementing a Strategic Plan in conjunction with the Vision Statement, which now includes six goals: Service Excellence; Workforce Excellence; Organizational Effectiveness; Fiscal Responsibility; Children and Families Well-Being; and Community Services.

Dr. Janssen has held memberships in several civic and professional organizations, including the United Way, on which he continues to serve as a member of the Board of Directors, and the Rotary. He also serves on the University of Southern California School of Policy, Planning and Development Board of Directors. In addition, he is a member of the American Society of Public Administration and the National Academy of Public Administration, which honored him with the 2003 National Public Service Award given for exemplary public service.

Dr. Janssen has served our Nation, our State, and our County with honor and distinction. He is to be commended for his philosophy of open and honest government that provides easy access to information for employees and the public so they can meaningfully participate in the governmental process.

I ask my colleagues to join me and Dr. Janssen’s many co-workers, family, friends, and associates in congratulating him on his retirement and wishing him health, happiness, and good fortune in his future endeavors.

GOVERNMENT SUPPORT CRITICAL TO AMTRAK
HON. BARNEY FRANK OF MASSACHUSETTS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, December 6, 2006

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Mr. Speaker, one of the most important institutions in the region I represent in this House is the New England Council. No organization does a better job of advocating in a reasonable way for the economic interests of our area. The Council is composed largely of businesspeople and it is important to note that they are businesspeople who recognize that we need both a vibrant private sector and an adequately funded and well run public sector working together to make the kind of progress that will improve the quality of lives of all of those we represent.

James T. Brett is a very able chief executive of the Council. Mr. Brett is a former State Representative who has a very impressive understanding of the importance of this private-public interaction. During our recess, he wrote a very interesting article published in the Patriot Ledger of Massachusetts making in very strong terms the case for significant improvements in the way in which the federal government deals with Amtrak. As Mr. Brett notes, “the regional consequences would be disastrous if Amtrak were unable to operate.”

Mr. Brett cogently addresses one of the important issues that will be facing us when we convene for the 110th Congress, and I ask that his important article be printed here so that Members will have the benefit of this information as well.

[From the Patriot Ledger]

Government Support Critical to Amtrak
(By James T. Brett)

Passenger rail is vital to our quality of life and economy in New England, where rail is an integral part of the region’s multi-modal transportation system and relied on by so many for daily commuting and business travel.

Yet the future of Amtrak, including the future of the nation’s busiest rail route—the Northeast Corridor—will be affected in the coming weeks as Congress works to finalize spending bills before the end of the session.

In July, the full Senate Committee on Appropriations approved $1.4 billion in funding for Amtrak as part of the Senate Transportation-Treasury bill for the 2007 fiscal year, which funds Amtrak at $1.14 billion. In June, the House passed its Transportation-Treasury bill for the 2007 fiscal year, which funds Amtrak at $1.14 billion.

It is critical that Congress approve adequate funding for Amtrak in the upcoming appropriations debate. A 2007 funding level for Amtrak that is very low, at $1.3 billion, will allow Amtrak to continue to operate with some infrastructure investments.

Over the last several years, Amtrak has implemented many reforms, modified service and reduced personnel. More than 14 million people rode Amtrak trains in the Northeast last year and Amtrak had its third straight year of record ridership. In addition, Amtrak has continued its efforts to implement a capital investment plan to bring its infrastructure closer to a state of good repair.

Despite the progress, much important work still needs to be done. In this year’s fiscal 2007 request, Amtrak cited Northeast Corridor infrastructure improvements as a critical priority. These include three major bridges in Connecticut—the Thames River, the Niantic River and the Connecticut River Bridges—which date back to the turn of the century and need to be replaced. Forty Amtrak trains run over these bridges daily, providing service between New York and Boston.

Other projects, cited by Amtrak, include the replacement of wood ties on main tracks; the replacement or replacement of much of the overhead catenary system that supplies power; the replacement of major portions of the power supply systems; and the upgrading of information and signal systems.

Amtrak is a vital transportation link for millions of New Englanders. At a time when our highways are increasingly congested, the regional consequences would be disastrous if Amtrak were unable to operate. Amtrak serves hundreds of thousands of commuter rail riders and represents thousands of jobs in the region.

And highway congestion is not a problem that is going away anytime soon. A new study by the transportation think tank the Reason Foundation reported this summer that traffic delays will increase 65 percent and the number of congested lane-miles on urban roads will rise 50 percent over the next 25 years. Even in smaller cities, traffic congestion is expected to worsen substantially over the next two decades. In our region, Massachusetts and Connecticut are both ranked in the top 25 states that will have the most congested lane miles by 2030.

A safe, reliable passenger rail system is vital to managing transportation in the Northeast. The region’s ability to sustain and enhance its economic growth and remain competitive is linked to an efficient regional transportation system which includes intercity passenger rail. Government support is critical to Amtrak’s survival. And it is important that Congress consider these economic factors as they debate funding for Amtrak.

Mr. CALVERT. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize the outstanding and professional effort of the staff working in the National Aeronautics and Space Administration’s (NASA’s) Printing and Design Office for their high quality professional work in support of NASA’s overall mission. Throughout the course of a legislative cycle, NASA officials meet with Members of Congress and their staff via meetings, briefings and Congressional Hearings. The effectiveness of these interactions is directly attributed to the quality of the products developed by the staff of NASA’s Printing and Design Office. Under the outstanding leadership and commitment of the Printing and Design staff, the Agency has been prepared and able to present professional briefing charts, Congressional testimony, posters and publications to the United States Congress in an exemplary manner.

The staff includes: the Head of Printing and Design Office, Michael Cmrkovic; the Printing Officer, Stanley Arts; the Printing Specialist, Jeffrey McLean; the Customer Service personnel, Frank A. Application Specialists, Carl Hammond and Ondray Mackin; and, the Distribution Clerk, Carl Paul. In addition, the competent, professional and expert Exhibit Design Team, consisting of Michael Barnes, Ray Brown and Steve Schaeberle, has enabled NASA to present montages demonstrating NASA’s contributions to Members of Congress that are proudly displayed and observed by all who visit these Members’ offices.

I ask my colleagues to join me in recognizing NASA’s Printing and Design Team for its role in presenting the Vision for Space Exploration.

Mr. ROSS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor Brian M. Brian of Camden, Arkansas, who died on October 22, 2006, while working in Iraq as a police trainer. Brian M. Brian was 58 years old when the military convoy he was riding in was attacked. Brian M. Brian was working outside of Baghdad as an international police liaison officer.

Before going to Iraq, Brian worked for the Ouachita County Sheriff’s Department for 13 years. Brian held many roles within the department and left the office with the rank of Captain. While not serving our state and our country, Brian enjoyed helping people and animals in his community who were in need of shelter, food or help.

Brian M. Brian gave his life to serve our country and will forever be remembered as a hero, a son, and a husband. My deepest condolences go out to his wife Connie. He will be missed by his family, and all those who knew him and counted him as a friend. I will continue to keep Brian M. Brian and his family in my thoughts and prayers.

Honoring the Memory of Mr. R.C. Craft

Hon. Jo Bonner of Alabama

In the House of Representatives
Wednesday, December 6, 2006

Mr. BONNER. Mr. Speaker, Baldwin County and indeed the entire state of Alabama recently lost a dear friend and I rise today to honor him and pay tribute to the memory of Mr. R.C. Craft, a devoted family man and dedicated community leader.

A veteran of World War II, R.C. moved to Gulf Shores from Fort Myers, Florida in 1954, where he parlayed 16 years in the nursery flower business with the H. L. Hobbs Co. into his own business growth years.

After 10 years, R.C. and his only child, Robert, went into the sod business, which continues to this day. By the late 1980s, the company diversified into championship golf courses. They opened Cotton Creek, designed by golfing great Arnold Palmer, as well as Cypress Bend and The Woodlands course.

R.C. was a very personable man who loved to tell stories, but he was also a firm believer in hard work and determination. He was the type of man who would look you in the eye and firmly shake your hand when the deal was done. That was how he did business, and a successful businessman he was.

In 2001, the Baldwin County Commission honored R.C.’s many contributions to the HONORING MAJOR DAVID HAN

HON. FRANK R. WOLF
OF VIRGINIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, December 6, 2006

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Speaker, it is an honor for me to recognize Major David Han upon his retirement from the United States Marine Corps after 22 years of dedicated service. Major Han is a true American hero and a native of Virginia. He spent 12 years as an enlisted Marine and another 10 years as an officer, completing assignments across the country, including his last assignment in our Nation’s capital.

During Major Han’s last 2 years of service in Washington, DC, he has been the Administration officer in the Marine Corps’ Office of Legislative Affairs. In this capacity he was able to support members of Congress and congressional committees, working on issues related to the Marine Corps and national security. During this time, Major Han volunteered to deploy to Iraq, serving with II Marine Expeditionary Force Forward at Camp Fallujah. While at Camp Fallujah he served as a protocol officer, coordinating, planning, and executing over 150 visits to USMC units in Iraq by generals, foreign dignitaries, congressional delegations, the vice president, and the secretary of defense.

These assignments are only a small glimpse of Major Han’s many accomplishments as a Marine. I have no doubt that Major Han has made a lasting contribution in the capability of today’s Marine Corps and has helped to shape the future of the Marines. His performance and dedication to duty over his 22-year career has been exemplary. I want to take this opportunity to wish him, his wife Cassandra, and two daughters, Anna and Madeleine, all the best as he retires from the Marine Corps. Semper Fi!

IN RECOGNITION OF THE 70TH ANNIVERSARY OF FIRST HOUSES, THE BIRTHPLACE OF PUBLIC HOUSING IN THE UNITED STATES

HON. CAROLYN B. MALONEY
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, December 6, 2006

Mrs. MALONEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to First Houses, the first public housing development in the United States. This year, the New York City Housing Authority is celebrating the 70th anniversary of First Houses and the worthy ideals which it symbolizes.

By creating the New York City Housing Authority seven decades ago, the leaders of our Nation’s greatest metropolis launched an ambitious initiative to improve the lives of America’s least privileged members by providing affordable housing that met high standards of sanitation. The first fruit of that noble undertaking, the watershed First Houses development, was created by rehabilitating a series of tenements built in 1846.

For the first time in American history, First Houses proved that government could provide a practical remedy to the shortage of decent affordable housing confronting citizens of low and moderate incomes. By removing every third building of those original tenements to expand light, air, and open space, combining backyards, and constructing a welcoming common courtyard and recreational area, those visionary civic leaders created in First Houses a vibrant and livable public housing development that became a model for the Nation.

In a tribute to the momentous achievement marked by the opening of First Houses, the inaugural celebration of the complex was attended by two great New Yorkers and great Americans, First Lady Eleanor Roosevelt and Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia.

Today, the approximately 174 authorized residents of First Houses live in eight attractive four- and five-story buildings located on 1.23 acres of land lying between East 2nd and East 3rd Streets and Avenue A and First Avenue on Manhattan’s Lower East Side in New York’s Fourteenth Congressional District, which I am privileged to represent in this House.

Indeed, as is fitting for New York, traditionally a beacon of progressive ideals of social reform, First Houses also marked the first housing initiative of the newly founded New York City Housing Authority (NYCHA), the oldest public housing agency in the continent of North America. Throughout its history, the NYCHA has also been the largest public housing authority on the continent. Today it administers 344 public housing developments containing 2,866 buildings housing approximately 412,281 authorized residents in 179,025 different apartments. Today, more than one in twenty New Yorkers lives in public housing managed by the NYCHA, enough to constitute the population of the Nation’s 44th largest city.

Mr. Speaker, I ask my colleagues to join me in recognizing the historic 70th anniversary of First Houses, in congratulating Mayor Michael Bloomberg and New York City Housing Authority Chairman Tino Hernandez for their dedication to maintaining and expanding New York City’s affordable housing, and in recognizing the tremendous contributions to the people of the city of New York and our Nation made by the hard-working men and women of the New York City Housing Authority throughout its proud 70-year history.

Mr. HALL. Mr. Speaker, today I have the privilege of recognizing a dear friend of mine, Reverend Fred Randles of Sulphur Springs, who is retiring as minister of music after serving the church and community for the past 25 years.

His youth choirs have toured extensively, singing throughout the U.S. and in Ireland, Canada, Puerto Rico, Mexico, and the Bahamas as well as on a number of cruise ships. The youth choir under his direction has also appeared on Good Morning America and the Early Show on CBS.

Reverend Randles also has enjoyed many achievements with the senior adult choir known as the Silverton Choir. Under his direction, the choir has recorded for Benson Music Company and performed at a variety of conventions and conferences. They have had the privilege to perform at conferences in Glorieta, New Mexico; Ridgecrest, North Carolina; and Williamsburg, Virginia.

A particularly noteworthy accomplishment is Rev. Randles’ assistance in originating the Dairy Festival, the annual event that has brought such notable figures as the President of the United States to Monroeville.

Reverend Randles also has contracted with the Doe Fund, a not-for-profit organization, to perform outreach concerts for juvenile offenders. He has recorded 16 albums, and more than 40 conventions and conferences have contracted for his services.

Mr. Speaker, I commend J.W. Sales for his long-standing commitment to the community and for his many professional achievements. I know his wife, Wendy, his family, and his many friends join with me in praising his accomplishments and in celebrating this latest milestone.

DEMOCRATIC PACIFIC UNION

HON. JOHN ABNEY CULBERSON
OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, December 6, 2006

Mr. CULBERSON. Mr. Speaker, on August 14, 2006, the 60th anniversary of the end of World War II, the Democratic Pacific Union was formally inaugurated in Taipei, Taiwan. The ceremony drew 76 dignitaries from 23 countries, including the presidents and vice presidents of Taiwan, Costa Rica, Guatemala, Nicaragua and Palau.

The Democratic Pacific Union’s goal is to promote democracy and encourage cooperation among its 28 member democracies. So far, the Union has planned regular regional meetings in the East and the West Pacific regions, initiated the Pacific Economic Advisory Group and the Pacific Congressional Caucus, established a training program for typhoon and flood disaster reduction, offered scholarships for students to study in Taiwan, planned a Pacific university network in Taiwan, and invited women to Taiwan to discuss women issues in the Pacific region.

On December 8–10, the Taiwan Chapter of the Democratic Pacific Union will be holding a special symposium in Taipei, Taiwan. The symposium will examine critical issues such as the legislature and democracy, the legislature and electoral process, and the legislature and campaign finance. Fifty or more legislators from DPU’s member states will be invited. U.S. lawmakers are especially welcome to attend this symposium.

We should give encouragement to the leaders of the Democratic Pacific Union by endorsing its goals for democratic and economic cooperation in the Pacific region. I am certain that the Union will attract more members and win even wider international attention and recognition in the months and years ahead.
