SEC. 105. INCREASING EFFECTIVENESS OF ANTI-TRAFFICKING PROGRAMS.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress makes the following findings:

(1) United States assistance programs require enhanced monitoring and evaluation to ensure that United States funds are appropriately spent.

(3) While the results of programs related to trafficking in persons may be difficult to measure because of the criminal and underground nature of trafficking in persons, making efforts to measure such results are critical to learning the extent to which United States assistance programs affect the nature and severity of trafficking and change the fundamental conditions that facilitate trafficking.

“SEC. 107A. INCREASING EFFECTIVENESS OF ANTI-TRAFFICKING PROGRAMS.

“(c) TARGETED USE OF TRAFFICKING PROGRAMS.—The Director of the Office to Monitor and Combat Trafficking shall undertake efforts to provide assistance to foreign countries and nongovernmental organizations under this division and the amendments made by this division based on the priorities and country assessments contained in the most recent report submitted by the Secretary of State to Congress pursuant to section 110(b) of this Act.

“(d) CONSISTENCY WITH OTHER PROGRAMS.—The President shall take steps to ensure that the design, monitoring, and evaluation of United States assistance programs for emergency relief, development, and poverty alleviation under part I and chapter 4 of part II of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 and other similar United States assistance programs are carried out in a manner that takes into account and are consistent with United States policies and other United States programs relating to combatting trafficking in persons.

SEC. 236. ENHANCING EFFORTS TO COMBAT THE TRAFFICKING OF CHILDREN.

(a) FINDINGS AND SENSE OF CONGRESS.—

(1) FINDINGS.—The Congress finds as follows:

(A) The United States Government currently estimates that up to 17,500 individuals are trafficked into the United States each year. Of these, some 50 percent are believed to be under the age of 18. Many of these children are victims of sex trafficking and are forced into prostitution and other exploitative activities in the United States.

(B) Despite the large number of children trafficked into the United States every year, the Department of Health and Human Services has identified an average of 20 children per year as trafficking victims through fiscal year 2006. This disparity between estimated and identified victims demonstrates that much more needs to be done in educating individuals who may be coming into contact with trafficked children.

(2) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of the Congress that, to the extent consistent with the treaties and other international agreements to which the United States is a party, and to the extent practicable, the United States Government should undertake efforts to protect children from severe forms of trafficking and ensure that it does not repatriate children in Federal custody into settings that would threaten their life or safety.

(b) COMBATTING CHILD TRAFFICKING AT THE BORDER AND PORTS OF ENTRY OF THE UNITED STATES.—

(1) POLICIES AND PROCEDURES.—In order to enhance the efforts of the United States to prevent trafficking in persons, the Secretary of State, in conjunction with the Secretary of Homeland Security and the Secretary of Health and Human Services, shall develop policies and procedures to ensure that unaccompanied alien children in the United States are safely repatriated to their country of nationality or of last habitual residence.

(2) SPECIAL RULES FOR CHILDREN FROM CONTIGUOUS COUNTRIES.—

(A) DETERMINATIONS.—Any unaccompanied alien child who is a national or habitual resident of a country that is contiguous with the United States and has an agreement in writing with the United States described in subparagraph (C), shall be treated in accordance with subparagraph (B), if the Secretary of Homeland Security determines, on a case-by-case basis, that—

(i) such child has not been a victim of a severe form of trafficking in persons, and such child does not have a fear of being trafficked upon return to the child's country of nationality or of last habitual residence;

(ii) such child does not have a fear of returning to the child's country of nationality or of last habitual residence owing to a fear of persecution;

(iii) the return of such child to the child's country of nationality or of last habitual residence would not endanger the life or safety of such child; and

(iv) the child is able to make an independent decision to withdraw the child's application for admission to the United States.

(B) RETURN.—An immigration officer who finds an unaccompanied alien child described in subparagraph (A) at a land border or port of entry of the United States and determines that such child is inadmissible under the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1101 et seq.) shall—

(i) permit such child to withdraw the child's application for admission pursuant to section 235(a)(4) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1225(a)(4)); and

(ii) return such child to the child's country of nationality or country of last habitual residence.

(C) CONTIGUOUS COUNTRY AGREEMENTS.—The Secretary of State shall ensure that any agreements entered into between the United States and a country contiguous to the United States with respect to the repatriation of children shall be designed to protect children from severe forms of trafficking in persons. Such agreements shall, at a minimum, provide that—

(i) no child shall be returned to the child's country of nationality or of last habitual residence unless returned to appropriate officials or employees of the accepting country's government;

(ii) no child shall be returned to the child's country of nationality or of last habitual residence outside of reasonable business hours; and

(iii) border personnel of the countries that are parties to such agreements are trained in the terms of such agreements.

(3) RULE FOR OTHER CHILDREN.—The custody of unaccompanied alien children not described in paragraph (2)(A) who are apprehended at the border of the United States or at a United States port of entry shall be treated in accordance with subsection (c).

(4) SCREENING.—Within 48 hours of the apprehension of a child who is believed to be described in paragraph (2)(A), but in any event prior to returning such child to the child's country of nationality or of last habitual residence, the child shall be screened to determine whether the child meets the criteria listed in paragraph (2)(A). If the child does not meet such criteria, or if no determination can be made within 48 hours of apprehension, the child shall immediately be transferred to the Secretary of Health and Human Services and treated in accordance with subsection (c).

(5) ENSURING THE SAFE REPATRIATION OF CHILDREN.—

(A) REPATRIATION PILOT PROGRAM.—To protect children from trafficking and exploitation, the Secretary of State shall create a pilot program, in conjunction with non-governmental organizations and other national and international agencies and experts, to develop and implement best practices to ensure the safe and secure repatriation and reintegration of unaccompanied alien children into their country of nationality or of last habitual residence, including placement with their families or other sponsoring agencies.

(B) ASSESSMENT OF COUNTRY CONDITIONS.—The Secretary of Homeland Security shall consult the State Department's Country Reports on Human Rights Practices and the Trafficking in Persons Report in assessing whether to repatriate an unaccompanied alien child to a particular country. Such assessment shall consider whether there is reasonable risk that repatriation of an unaccompanied alien child would threaten the life or safety of the child.

(C) REPORT ON REPATRIATION OF UNACCOMPANIED ALIEN CHILDREN.—Not later than 18 months after the date of the enactment of this Act, and annually thereafter, the Secretary of Homeland Security, in conjunction with the Secretary of State and Secretary of Health and Human Services, shall submit a report to the Committee on the Judiciary of the Senate and the Committee on the Judiciary of the House of Representatives on efforts to repatriate unaccompanied alien children. Such report shall include—

(i) the number of unaccompanied alien children ordered removed and the number of such children actually removed from the United States;

(ii) a statement of the nationalities, ages, and gender of such children;

(iii) a description of the policies and procedures used to effect the removal of such children from the United States and the steps taken to ensure that such children were safely and humanely repatriated to their country of nationality or of last habitual residence, including a description of the repatriation pilot program created pursuant to subparagraph (A);

(iv) a description of the type of immigration relief sought and denied to such children;

(v) any information gathered in assessments of country and local conditions pursuant to paragraph (2); and

(vi) statistical information and other data on unaccompanied alien children as provided for in section 462(b)(1)(J) of the Homeland Security Act of 2002 (6 U.S.C. 279(b)(1)(J)).

(D) PLACEMENT IN REMOVAL PROCEEDINGS.—Any unaccompanied alien child sought to be removed by the Department of Homeland Security, except for an unaccompanied alien child from a contiguous country subject to exceptions under subsection (b)(2), shall be placed in removal proceedings under section 240 of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1229a).

(C) EXCEPTION FOR CHILDREN WHO THREATEN NATIONAL SECURITY.—Notwithstanding subparagraph (A), the Secretary of Homeland Security shall retain or assume the custody and care of an unaccompanied alien child if the Secretary of Homeland Security has substantial evidence, based on an individualized determination, that such child could personally endanger the national security of the United States.

(2) NOTIFICATION.—Each department or agency of the Federal Government shall notify the Department of Health and Human Services within 48 hours upon—

(A) the apprehension or discovery of an unaccompanied alien child; or

(B) any claim or suspicion that an alien in the custody of such department or agency is under 18 years of age.

(3) TRANSFERS OF UNACCOMPANIED ALIEN CHILDREN.—Any department or agency of the Federal Government that has an unaccompanied alien child in its custody shall transfer the custody of such child to the Secretary of Health and Human Services within 72 hours—

(A) upon a determination that such child is an unaccompanied alien child, if the child is not described in subparagraph (B) or (C) of paragraph (1); or

(B) if the custody and care of the child has been retained or assumed by the Attorney General under paragraph (1)(B) or by the Secretary of Homeland Security under paragraph (1)(C), upon a determination that the child no longer meets the description set forth in such subparagraphs.

(4) AGE DETERMINATIONS.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of Health and Human Services shall make an age determination for an alien described in paragraph (2)(B) and take whatever other steps are necessary to determine whether such alien is eligible for treatment under this section or section 462 of the Homeland Security Act of 2002 (6 U.S.C. 279).

(B) PROCEDURES.—The Secretary of Health and Human Services, in consultation with the Secretary of Homeland Security, shall develop procedures to make a prompt determination of the age of an alien, which shall be used by the Secretary of Homeland Security and the Secretary of Health and Human Services for children in their respective custody. At a minimum, these procedures shall permit the presentation of multiple forms of evidence, including the non-exclusive use of radiographs, to determine the age of the unaccompanied alien.

(d) PROVIDING SAFE AND SECURE PLACEMENTS FOR CHILDREN.—

(1) POLICIES AND PROGRAMS.—The Secretary of Health and Human Services, Secretary of Homeland Security, Attorney General, and Secretary of State shall establish policies and programs to ensure that unaccompanied alien children in the United States are protected from traffickers and other persons seeking to victimize or otherwise engage such children in criminal, harmful, or exploitative activity, including policies and programs reflecting best practices in witness security programs.

Placement of child trafficking victims may include placement with competent adult victims of the same trafficking scheme in order to ensure continuity of care and support. A child shall not be placed in a secure facility absent an independent finding that the child poses a danger to self or others.

(3) SAFETY AND SUITABILITY ASSESSMENTS.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Subject to the requirements of subparagraph (B), an unaccompanied alien child may not be placed with a person or entity unless the Secretary of Health and Human Services makes a determination that the proposed custodian is capable of providing for the child's physical and mental well-being. Such determination shall, at a minimum, include verification of the custodian's identity and relationship to the child, if any, as well as an independent finding that the individual has not engaged in any activity that would indicate a potential risk to the child.

(B) HOME STUDIES.—Before placing the child with an individual, the Secretary of Health and Human Services shall determine whether a home study is first necessary. A home study shall be conducted for a child who is a victim of a severe form of trafficking in persons, a special needs child with a disability (as defined in section 3 of the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990 (42 U.S.C. 12102(2))), or a child who has been a victim of physical or sexual abuse under circumstances that indicate that the child's health or welfare has been significantly harmed or threatened. The Secretary of Health and Human Services shall conduct follow-up services, during the pendency of removal proceedings, on children and custodians for whom a home study was conducted.

(C) DATABASE ACCESS.—In conducting suitability assessments, the Secretary of Health and Human Services shall have access to all relevant information in the appropriate Federal, State, and local law enforcement and immigration databases.

(4) LEGAL ORIENTATION PRESENTATIONS.—The Secretary of Health and Human Services shall ensure that custodians receive legal orientation presentations provided through the Legal Orientation Program administered by the Executive Office for Immigration Review. At a minimum, such presentations shall address the custodian's responsibility to ensure the child's appearance at all immigration proceedings and to protect the child from mistreatment, exploitation, and trafficking.

(5) ACCESS TO COUNSEL.—The Secretary of Health and Human Services shall ensure, to the greatest extent practicable, that all unaccompanied alien children who are or have been in the custody of the Secretary or the Secretary of Homeland Security, and who are not described in subsection (b)(2)(A), have competent counsel to represent them in legal proceedings or matters and protect them from mistreatment, exploitation, and trafficking. To the greatest extent practicable, the Secretary of Health and Human Services shall make every effort to utilize the services of competent pro bono counsel who agree to provide representation to such children without charge.

(6) GUARDIANS AD LITEM.—The Secretary of Health and Human Services shall implement a program to appoint independent guardians ad litem for child trafficking victims and other vulnerable unaccompanied alien children. - (4) UNITED STATES MUNITIONS LIST.—The term “United States Munitions List” means the list referred to in section 38(a)(1) of the Arms Export Control Act (22 U.S.C. 2778(a)(1)).

SEC. 403. FINDINGS.

Congress makes the following findings:

- (1) According to the September 7, 2005, report to the General Assembly of the United Nations by the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for Children and Armed Conflict, “In the last decade, two million children have been killed in situations of armed conflict, while six million children have been permanently disabled or injured. Over 250,000 children continue to be exploited as child soldiers and tens of thousands of girls are being subjected to rape and other forms of sexual violence.”
- (2) According to the Center for Emerging Threats and Opportunities (CETO), Marine Corps Warfighting Laboratory, “The Child Soldier Phenomenon has become a post-Cold War epidemic that has proliferated to every continent with the exception of Antarctica and Australia.”
- (3) Many of the children currently serving in armed forces or paramilitaries were forcibly conscripted through kidnapping or coercion, a form of human trafficking, while others joined military units due to economic necessity, to avenge the loss of a family member, or for their own personal safety.
- (4) Some military and militia commanders force child soldiers to commit gruesome acts of ritual killings or torture, including acts of violence against other children.
- (5) Many female child soldiers face the additional psychological and physical horrors of rape and sexual abuse, enslavement for sexual purposes by militia commanders, and severe social stigma should they return home.
- (6) Some military and militia commanders target children for recruitment because of their psychological immaturity and vulnerability to manipulation and indoctrination. Children are often separated from their families in order to foster dependence on military units and leaders. Consequently, many of these children suffer from deep trauma and are in need of psychological counseling and rehabilitation.
- (7) Child soldiers are exposed to hazardous conditions and are at risk of physical injury and disability, psychological trauma, sexually transmitted diseases, respiratory and skin infections, and often death.
- (8) On May 25, 2000, the United Nations adopted and opened for signature, ratification, and accession the Optional Protocol to the Convention on the Rights of the Child on the Involvement of Children in Armed Conflict.
- (9) On June 18, 2002, the Senate unanimously approved the resolution advising and consenting to the ratification of the Optional Protocol.
- (10) On December 23, 2002, the United States presented the ratified Optional Protocol to the United Nations.
- (11) More than 110 governments worldwide have ratified the Optional Protocol, establishing a clear international norm concerning the use of children in combat.
- (12) On December 2, 1999, the United States ratified International Labour Convention 182, the Convention concerning the Prohibition and Immediate Action for the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labour, which includes the use of child soldiers among the worst forms of child labor.
- (13) On October 7, 2005, the Senate gave its advice and consent to the ratification of the Protocol to Prevent, Suppress and Punish Trafficking in Persons, Especially Women and Children, Supplementing the United Nations Convention Against Transnational Organized Crime.

(14) It is in the national security interest of the United States to reduce the chances that members of the United States Armed Forces will be forced to encounter children in combat situations.

(15) Section 502B(a)(3) of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 (22 U.S.C. 2304(a)(3)) provides that “the President is directed to formulate and conduct international security assistance programs of the United States in a manner which will promote and advance human rights and avoid identification of the United States, through such programs, with governments which deny to their people internationally recognized human rights and fundamental freedoms, in violation of international law or in contravention of the policy of the United States as expressed in this section or otherwise”.

SEC. 404. SENSE OF CONGRESS.

It is the sense of Congress that—

(1) the United States Government should condemn the conscription, forced recruitment or use of children by governments, paramilitaries, or other organizations in hostilities;

(2) the United States Government should support and, where practicable, lead efforts to establish and uphold international standards designed to end this abuse of human rights;

(B) facilitating reconciliation with their communities through negotiations with traditional leaders and elders to enable recovered abductees to resume normal lives in their communities; and

(C) providing educational and vocational assistance;

(4) the United States should work with the international community, including, where appropriate, third country governments, nongovernmental organizations, faith-based organizations, United Nations agencies, local governments, labor unions, and private enterprise—

(A) on efforts to bring to justice rebel organizations that kidnap children for use as child soldiers, including the Lord’s Resistance Army (LRA) in Uganda, Fuerzas Armadas Revolucionarias de Colombia (FARC), and Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam (LTTE) in Sri Lanka, including, where feasible, by arresting the leaders of such groups; and

(B) on efforts to recover those children who have been abducted and to assist them in their rehabilitation and reintegration into communities;

(5) the Secretary of State, the Secretary of Labor, and the Secretary of Defense should coordinate programs to achieve the goals specified in paragraph (3), and in countries where the use of child soldiers is an issue, whether or not it is supported or sanctioned by the governments of such countries, United States diplomatic missions should include in their mission program plans a strategy to achieve the goals specified in such paragraph;

(6) United States diplomatic missions in countries in which governments use or tolerate child soldiers should develop, as part of annual program planning, strategies to promote efforts to end this abuse of human rights, identifying and integrating global best practices, as available, into such strategies to avoid duplication of effort; and

(7) in allocating or recommending the allocation of funds or recommending candidates for programs and grants funded by the United States Government, United States diplomatic missions should give serious consideration to those programs and candidates deemed to promote the end to this abuse of human rights.

Amend the title so as to read:

A bill to authorize appropriations for fiscal years 2008 through 2011 for the Trafficking Victims Protection Act of 2000, to enhance measures to combat trafficking in persons, and for other purposes.

SUMMARY

H.R. 3887, the “William Wilberforce Trafficking Victims Protection Reauthorization Act of 2007,” reauthorizes existing U.S. programs to combat human trafficking and establishes new requirements and programs regarding trafficking into both sexual exploitation and forced labor. Among a wide range of initiatives, H.R. 3887 establishes new programs to prevent trafficking from occurring in foreign countries where trafficking begins, widens U.S. assistance programs to U.S. citizens, and provides additional protections for trafficking survivors who are threatened by trafficking perpetrators, and for children who are at risk of being repatriated into the hands of traffickers or abusers. H.R. 3887 also creates new or enhances existing criminal penalties against trafficking perpetrators, including strengthening crimes relating to sex tourism and unscrupulous labor recruiters. Unlike previous reauthorizations, this reauthorization is for four years, from fiscal years 2008 to 2011, recognizing that U.S. anti-trafficking programs have become more established.

BACKGROUND AND PURPOSE FOR THE LEGISLATION

Trafficking in Persons represents an emerging and dangerous abuse of the increasingly interconnected nature of the international economic system. In this sense, it has often been referred to as the “dark side of globalization.” The International Labor Organization has estimated that as many as 12.3 million individuals are trafficked annually, with 40 percent being trafficked into sexual exploitation and a third into forced labor. Each year, up to two million of those victims cross international borders. These individuals are caught up in schemes of organized crime. Transnational criminals have increasingly become involved in trafficking, which may be the third most lucrative crime after the trade in illegal narcotics and the illegal sale of weapons. Trafficking has been estimated to yield $12 to $17 billion each year, giving traffickers increasing resources to avoid punishment.

These vast numbers obscure the human tragedy inherent in human trafficking. Women and girls are sold into sexual slavery, with personal testimonials suggesting that they are forced to commit commercial sex acts day after day for little or no pay, and are subject to coercion and violence. Individuals are forced to work in agriculture, domestic servitude, sweatshops and restaurants and hotels, often for no pay or in debt bondage that eliminates any hope of freedom. Passports are seized, threats of injury or retaliation against victims are made, and violence is perpetrated. Trafficking in persons is not just a transnational problem but also a human calamity.

The Committee has taken an intense interest in combating this developing horror and has repeatedly acted to combat it. The Trafficking Victims Protection Act (TVPA), P.L. 106-386, was enacted in October 2000 to combat trafficking in persons, ensure the prosecution of traffickers, and protect the victims of trafficking. The TVPA was amended and funding was reauthorized in the Foreign Relations Authorization Act, Fiscal Year 2003 (P.L. 107-228). The TVPA was further amended and funding reauthorized for fiscal years 2004 and 2005 through the Trafficking Victims Protection Reauthorization Act of 2003 (P.L. 108-193). The TVPA was again reauthorized in 2006 with the enactment of the Trafficking Victims Protection Act of 2005 (P.L. 109-164). A variety of other statutes have updated the TVPA, including the Violence Against Women and Department of Justice Reauthorization Act of 2005 (Public Law 109-162) and the Adam Walsh Child Protection and Safety Act of 2006 (Public Law 109-248). The TVPA and its progeny also give modern meaning to the Constitution's prohibition against involuntary servitude and comport with the customary and treaty law prohibition on slavery and involuntary servitude. Most recently, this and related issues were addressed by the Protocol to Prevent, Suppress and Punish Trafficking in Persons, Especially Women and Children, Supplementing the United Nations Convention Against Transnational Organized Crime, to which the United States is a party.

On October 18, 2007, the William Wilberforce Trafficking Victims Protection Reauthorization Act of 2007 was introduced. Recognizing the immense contributions of British Parliamentarian William Wilberforce to the abolition of the global slave trade in the 19th Century, H.R. 3887 was introduced by Chairman Lantos and had as its original cosponsors Mr. Smith of New Jersey, Mr. Conyers, Mr. Wolf, Mr. George Miller of California, Ms. Ros-Lehtinen, Ms. Lofgren, Mr. Pitts, Ms. Maloney of New York, Ms. Drake, Mr. Nadler, and Mr. Hastings of Florida. As with past legislative efforts, the legislation creates new anti-trafficking initiatives and directly confronts the issue of trafficking for sexual exploitation. H.R. 3887 also contains significant enhancements to combat labor slavery. Just as we are asking foreign countries to increase their labor protections of foreign workers and establish agreements relating to export of laborers, this bill also contains domestic measures to prevent unscrupulous labor recruiters from exploiting foreign workers here in the United States and give continuing effect to the content and aspirations of the 13th Amendment to the Constitution.

Some of the key international initiatives in the legislation include:

- Requiring a comprehensive analysis of trafficking data to help us better understand where victims are actually going and how to free them.
- Providing more help for countries to inspect locations where slavery or slave-like conditions occur, to register vulnerable populations and to provide more protection to foreign workers.
- Ensuring that U.S. assistance programs are transparent and effective.
- Urging the Administration to work with our friends to reach agreements between labor exporters and labor importers so that vulnerable workers have more, rather than less protection.
- Addressing the issue of child soldiers.

Key provisions relating to combating trafficking in the United States include:

- Protecting victims from retaliation by the criminals who trafficked them.
- Expanding and revising U.S. criminal violations, including creating crimes against sex tour operators and facilitating extraterritorial prosecutions against international trafficking criminals.
- Ensuring assistance to U.S. victims of trafficking in persons.
- Preventing the trafficking of unaccompanied alien children found in the United States by ensuring that they are not repatriated into the hands of traffickers or abusive families, and are well cared for.

H.R. 3887—William Wilberforce Trafficking Victims Protection Reauthorization Act of 2007

SUMMARY

H.R. 3887 would reauthorize several programs within the Departments of State, Labor, Justice, and Health and Human Services, and other agencies that combat trafficking in persons. The bill would specifically authorize the appropriation of $207 million in 2008 and $872 million over the 2008–2011 period. In addition, CBO estimates that the bill would increase the responsibilities of the Department of Labor (DOL) with respect to foreign labor contractors and spending by the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) on medical and foster care for certain unaccompanied alien children. In total, CBO estimates that implementing the bill would increase discretionary costs by about $825 million over the 2008–2012 period, assuming appropriation of the specified and estimated amounts.

In addition, CBO estimates H.R. 3887 would increase direct spending by $1 million in 2008, $20 million over the 2008–2012 period, and $61 million over the 2008–2017 period, primarily by expanding eligibility for certain public assistance programs. Finally, the bill would increase collections of certain fines (recorded as revenues), but CBO estimates those effects would not be significant.

Section 4 of Unfunded Mandates Reform Act (UMRA) excludes from the application of that act any legislative provisions that enforce the constitutional rights of individuals. CBO has determined that section 236(d)(5) addresses the due process rights of aliens in certain legal proceedings and thus would fall within that exclusion. Therefore, CBO has not reviewed that section of the bill for intergovernmental and private-sector mandates.

Other provisions of H.R. 3887 contain intergovernmental mandates as defined in UMRA, but CBO estimates that the annual cost of those mandates would not exceed the threshold established in UMRA ($66 million in 2007, adjusted annually for inflation).

H.R. 3887 also would impose private-sector mandates, as defined in UMRA, on foreign labor contractors and employers who use such contractors. (Foreign labor contractors include persons who recruit, solicit, or hire foreign workers living outside the United States for employment in the United States.) The bill would require foreign labor contractors to obtain a certificate of registration from DOL before engaging in contracting activities and to disclose certain information in writing about employment opportunities. In addition, the bill would require employers who use foreign labor contractors to use only those that have registered with DOL. Based on information from DOL, CBO estimates the aggregate direct cost to comply with those mandates would not exceed the annual threshold for private-sector mandates established in UMRA ($131 million in 2007, adjusted annually for inflation).

ESTIMATED COST TO THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT

The estimated budgetary impact of H.R. 3887 is shown in Table 1. The costs of this legislation fall within budget functions 150 (international affairs), 500 (education, training, employment, and social services), 550 (health), 600 (income security), and 750 (administration of justice).

Note: Components may not sum to totals in text because of rounding.

¹ In addition to effects on spending subject to appropriation and direct spending, CBO estimates enacting H.R. 3887 would have an insignificant effect on revenues.

² In addition to the direct spending effects shown here, enacting H.R. 3887 would have additional effects on direct spending after 2012 (see Table 3). The bill would increase direct spending by $20 million over the 2008–2012 period and by $61 million over the 2008–2017 period, CBO estimates.

BASIS OF ESTIMATE

For this estimate, CBO assumes that H.R. 3887 will be enacted before the end of calendar year 2007, that the specified and estimated authorization amounts will be appropriated near the start of each fiscal year, and that outlays will follow historical spending patterns for existing and similar programs.

Spending Subject to Appropriation

H.R. 3887 would specifically authorize the appropriation of $207 million in 2008 and $872 million over the 2008–2011 period. CBO estimates that new responsibilities and reports contained in the bill would require additional appropriations of $13 million in 2008 and $91 million over the 2008–2012 period. In total, CBO estimates that implementing this legislation would cost about $825 million over the 2008–2012 period, assuming appropriation of the specified and estimated amounts (see Table 2).

Department of Justice. As detailed below, H.R. 3887 would authorize the appropriation of $83 million in 2008 and $355 million over the 2008–2012 period for Department of Justice (DOJ) programs to combat trafficking in persons. CBO estimates that implementing those provisions would cost $309 million over the 2008–2012 period, assuming appropriation of the specified amounts.

- Section 214 would authorize the appropriation of $33 million over the 2008–2011 period for DOJ to make grants to state, local, and tribal governments and nonprofit organizations for programs to assist victims of human trafficking.
- Section 301 would authorize the appropriation of $16 million for each of fiscal years 2008–2011 for DOJ to make grants to state, local, and tribal governments and nonprofit organizations for other programs to serve victims of trafficking.
- Section 301 would authorize the appropriation of $15 million for each of fiscal years 2008–2011 for the Federal Bureau of Investigation to investigate severe forms of trafficking in persons.

Note: * = less than $500,000.

¹ Five-year costs in text and totals in the table differ slightly from a summation of the annual costs shown here because of rounding.

- Section 301 would authorize the appropriation of $18 million for each of fiscal years 2008–2011 for Immigration and Customs Enforcement to investigate severe forms of trafficking in persons.
- Section 302 would authorize the appropriation of $25 million for each of fiscal years 2008–2011 for DOJ to make grants to state, local, and tribal governments for programs to combat trafficking in persons.

- Section 302 also would authorize the appropriation of $7 million for each of fiscal years 2008–2011 for DOJ programs to reduce trafficking in persons in the United States.

Overseas Assistance. Section 301 would authorize the appropriation of $31 million a year over the 2008–2011 period to the Secretary of State and $31 million a year to the President in those same years for programs to prevent trafficking in persons, to protect victims of trafficking, for research on domestic and international trafficking in persons, to prevent refugees and internally displaced persons from being exploited by traffickers, and to assist foreign states in eliminating trafficking in persons. In addition, the U.S. Agency for International Development (USAID) would be required to make annual reports to the Congress on human rights practices; CBO estimates this requirement would cost less than $500,000 each year, assuming availability of appropriated funds. Section 302 would authorize the appropriation of $3 million a year for 2008 through 2011 to USAID to continue a pilot program that establishes residential treatment facilities in foreign countries to treat victims of trafficking. CBO estimates that implementing those provisions would cost $8 million in 2008 and $195 million over the 2008–2012 period, assuming appropriation of the necessary amounts.

Department of Health and Human Services. As detailed below, H.R. 3887 would specifically authorize the appropriation of $38 million in 2008 and $173 million over the 2008–2012 period for HHS programs. Furthermore, CBO estimates that one provision would require additional appropriations of $44 million over the 2008–2012 period. CBO estimates that implementing those provisions would cost $16 million in 2008 and $200 million over the 2008–2012 period, assuming appropriation of the necessary amounts.

- Section 214 would authorize the appropriation of $33 million over the 2008–2011 period for HHS to make grants to state, local, and tribal governments and nonprofit organizations for programs to assist victims of human trafficking.
- Section 301 would authorize the appropriation of $15 million for each of fiscal years 2008–2011 for HHS to provide assistance to trafficking victims in the United States, including those who would gain eligibility as a result of changes made in Title II.
- Section 302 also would authorize the appropriation of $15 million annually over the 2008–2011 period for HHS to make grants to victims' services organizations.
- Section 302 would authorize the appropriation of $5 million annually over the 2008–2011 period for HHS to establish residential treatment facilities for juveniles subjected to trafficking.

Section 236 would change current law regarding the repatriation of unaccompanied alien children in the United States and would authorize HHS to provide individuals who have special status as juvenile immigrants with both foster care and medical care. Based on information from HHS and the Department of Homeland Secuality (DHS), CBO estimates that, in 2008, the requirement to provide foster care payments would affect about 400 children and the requirement to provide medical care would affect about 500 children, with the estimated number of children doubling by 2017. Using information from HHS and the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services, CBO estimates the average monthly foster care payment would be $1,300 and the average annual medical costs would be about $2,600 in 2008. Adjusting for inflation and a slight lag in implementing the provision in 2008, CBO estimates that implementing those provisions would cost $3 million in 2008 and $43 million over the 2008–2012 period, assuming appropriation of the necessary amounts.

Department of Labor. CBO estimates that, in total, H.R. 3887 would increase spending for DOL by $16 million in 2008 and $90 million over the 2008–2012 period, assuming appropriation of the necessary amounts.

The bill would authorize appropriations of $15 million for each of fiscal years 2008–2011 for DOL to provide benefits and services to victims of severe forms of trafficking of persons in the United States and $1 million annually over the same time period to fund activities at the Bureau of International Labor Affairs to combat forced labor and child labor. CBO estimates that implementing those provisions would cost $58 million over the 2008–2012 period, assuming appropriation of the authorized amounts.

Section 202 would require DOL to establish an electronic process for registering foreign labor contractors, and would require the department to investigate and dispose of complaints related to any foreign labor contractor's failure to comply with the act. DOL currently performs such duties for farm labor contractors under the Migrant and Seasonal Farmworkers Act. Based on the current costs of those activities, CBO estimates that DOL would require additional discretionary resources of $8 million a year. CBO estimates that implementing this provision would cost $5 million in 2008 and $32 million over the 2008–2012 period, assuming appropriation of the estimated amounts.

Department of State. Section 301 would authorize the appropriation of $7 million for each of fiscal years 2008–2011 for operating expenses of the Interagency Task Force, which coordinates the implementation of the Trafficking Victims Protection Act, and the department's Office to Combat and Monitor Trafficking. CBO estimates that implementing those provisions would cost $5 million in 2008 and $24 million over the 2008–2012 period, assuming appropriation of the authorized amounts. In addition, the bill would establish a new rewards program to recognize individuals or organizations for their extraordinary efforts in fighting trafficking in people. Based on information from the department about a comparable program, CBO estimates this provision would cost about $250,000 a year, assuming availability of appropriated funds.

Other Provisions. Section 405 would prohibit funds from being used to carry out military programs with governments that the Secretary of State determines use child soldiers. Such programs include educating and training soldiers from other nations and financing the procurement of weapons for other countries. The President would be able to waive the prohibition if it were in the interest of the United States to do so. CBO has no basis for projecting how this provision would be implemented by the Administration, and therefore cannot estimate its effect on federal spending.

CBO estimates that several other provisions in H.R. 3887, when combined, would cost $1 million annually over the 2008–2012 period, assuming availability of appropriated funds. Some of those provisions would impose new or expanded reporting requirements, require a new information pamphlet on legal rights and resources for certain visa applicants, and create new positions at the DOJ and DOL to better coordinate anti-trafficking programs.

Direct Spending and Revenues

CBO estimates that H.R. 3887 would increase direct spending by $1 million in 2008, $20 million over the 2008–2012 period, and $61 million over the 2008–2017 period, primarily by expanding eligibility for certain entitlement programs. The bill also would increase collections of certain fines (revenues), but CBO estimates that those effects would not be significant (see Table 3).

Note: * = less than $500,000.

Foster Care. Section 236 would require the federal government to reimburse states for the cost of foster care provided to special immigrant juveniles not covered elsewhere in the bill (see the heading “Department of Health and Human Services” above in the section on “Spending Subject to Appropriation”). We estimate that this provision would affect about 160 children in 2008, with the number of children doubling by 2017, and that the average monthly foster care payment would be about $1,300 in 2008. Adjusting for anticipated inflation and a slight lag in implementing the program in 2008, CBO estimates that providing foster care payments to those children would increase direct spending by $1 million in 2008, $15 million over the 2008–2012 period, and $44 million over the 2008–2017 period.

Public Assistance. H.R. 3887 would affect public benefits such as Food Stamps, Medicaid, and Supplemental Security Income (SSI) in five ways:

- Section 201 would expand eligibility for T visas, a non-immigrant visa, for those brought into the country as witnesses in a judicial proceeding and for adult victims’ parents and siblings who are threatened because of the victim’s cooperation with law enforcement;

- Section 201 would expand eligibility for continued presence in the United States, a nonimmigrant legal status, for trafficking victims who have filed a civil suit against their traffickers;
- Section 201 would expand eligibility for parole, a nonimmigrant legal status that allows entry into the United States, for relatives of victims with continued presence status;
- Section 212 would grant interim access to benefits to those individuals whose application for a T visa is pending; and
- Section 213 would grant interim benefits to children whose certification as a victim of severe trafficking is pending.

Based on information from DHS and DOL, and conversations with other immigration and trafficking experts, CBO projects that those provisions would enable 100–150 additional people per year to become eligible for the entitlement benefits available to refugees, such as Food Stamps, Medicaid, and SSI. In addition, CBO forecasts that 125–150 people per year would become eligible for benefits sooner than they would have otherwise. Drawing on information from HHS, CBO expects 40 percent of the affected individuals would be eligible for the Food Stamp program and roughly 15 percent would be eligible for Medicaid and SSI. Presuming average per capita costs, we estimate that those provisions would increase outlays by less than $500,000 in fiscal year 2008 and $17 million over the 2008–2017 period.

Criminal Fines. Section 221 would establish new federal crimes for certain offenses relating to human trafficking. Because those prosecuted and convicted under H.R. 3887 would be subject to criminal fines, the federal government might collect additional fines if the bill is enacted. Collections of such fines are recorded in the budget as revenues, deposited in the Crime Victims Fund, and later spent. CBO expects that any additional revenues and direct spending would not be significant.

INTERGOVERNMENTAL AND PRIVATE-SECTOR IMPACT

Section 4 of UMRA excludes from the application of that act any legislative provisions that enforce the constitutional rights of individuals. CBO has determined that section 236(d)(5) addresses the due process rights of aliens in certain legal proceedings and thus would fall within that exclusion. Therefore, CBO has not reviewed that section of the bill for intergovernmental and private-sector mandates.

Other provisions of H.R. 3887 contain intergovernmental mandates as defined in UMRA, but CBO estimates that the annual cost of those mandates would not exceed the threshold established in UMRA ($66 million in 2007, adjusted annually for inflation).

If state or local officials have reason to believe a person may be a juvenile victim of trafficking, the bill would require those officials to notify the Secretary of HHS within 72 hours. CBO estimates that the administrative cost of this mandate would not be significant.

In addition, H.R. 3887 would require the Secretary of HHS to place a juvenile victim of trafficking with a person capable of providing for the child's physical and mental well-being. For this purpose, the bill would require state and local agencies to give the federal government access to law enforcement and immigration databases to verify the potential caretaker's identity and to investigate any criminal record. State and local governments would incur administrative costs associated with any increased usage of their databases, but CBO estimates that requests associated with the placement of juvenile victims of trafficking would be infrequent, and any incremental administrative costs would be small.

The bill would impose private-sector mandates, as defined in UMRA, on foreign labor contractors and employers who use such contractors. The bill would require any person who is a foreign labor contractor to obtain a certificate of registration from DOL before engaging in contracting activities. As defined in the bill, such activities include recruiting, soliciting, hiring, employing, or furnishing an individual who lives outside of the United States to be employed in the United States. Foreign labor contractors also would be required to disclose certain information about the employment opportunity in writing to each worker who is recruited for employment. In addition, the bill would require employers who use foreign labor contractors to use only those that have registered with the DOL. Based on information from DOL, CBO estimates the aggregate direct cost to comply with those mandates would not exceed the annual threshold for private-sector mandates established in UMRA ($131 million in 2007, adjusted annually for inflation).

SECTION-BY-SECTION ANALYSIS AND DISCUSSION

Section 1. Short Title and Table of Contents

This section provides that the Act may be cited as the, “William Wilberforce Trafficking Victims Protection Reauthorization Act of 2007,” and includes the table of contents.

TITLE I—COMBATTING INTERNATIONAL TRAFFICKING IN PERSONS

Section 101. Interagency Task Force to Monitor and Combat Trafficking

This section adds the Secretary of Education to the Task Force.

Section 102. Office to Combat Monitor and Combat Trafficking

Subsection (a) amends provisions related to the State Department’s Office to Monitor and Combat Trafficking by mandating the continuation of the office, by conferring additional responsibility to work on public-private partnerships to combat trafficking and provides that the Director of the office have the ability to review and concur in State Department programs and U.S. Agency for International Development programs, including programs that are administered in the field, that are not managed by the Office to Combat Trafficking in Persons (the “TIP” office). While the Committee does not want to delay implementation of the trafficking programs, there needs to be greater coordination with the office that has the most expertise on designing and implementing trafficking specific programs. This subsection also makes clear that the TIP office is to have authority to manage its own programs. In particular, the Committee hopes that such authority will reduce or eliminate delays between the TIP office’s decision to award grants and contracts and the actual expenditure of funds under those grants and contracts.

Subsection (b) expresses the sense of Congress that the Secretary of State should locate the TIP office at the main headquarters for the Department of State, in Washington, D.C., in offices that reflect the broad and historic mission of the office to end modern-day slavery.

Section 103. Prevention and Prosecution of Trafficking in Foreign Countries

Subsection (a) provides additional methods for combating trafficking abroad, including support for the capacity of foreign governments to conduct investigations, for the capacity of foreign governments to provide immigrant populations information regarding their rights in the country, to provide for legal frameworks that protect foreign migrant workers, including domestic servants, to the same degree as citizens, and assistance to register vulnerable populations.

Subsection (b) amends the foreign assistance act to provide specific assistance for anti-trafficking investigation and prosecution units in foreign countries relating to individuals and entities involved in sexual exploitation. The Committee notes that assistance directly to law enforcement, as contemplated by section 134 of the Foreign Assistance Act, which is the subject of this subsection, should be used to combat trafficking by increasing investigations, prosecutions and convictions.

Section 104. Assistance for Victims of Trafficking in Other Countries

Section 104 provides for a number of amendments to section 107 of the Trafficking Victims Protection Act, including ensuring that programs are carried out in a manner that takes into account the transnational aspects of trafficking, supports increased protection for refugees and internally displaced persons, and emphasizes that cooperative efforts are to be undertaken on a regional basis. The Committee believes that refugees and internally displaced persons are particularly vulnerable populations that need special protection.

Section 105. Increasing Effectiveness of Anti-Trafficking Programs

Section 105 amends the TVPA by adding a new section which provides for transparency and evaluation of trafficking programs.

Subsection (a) provides findings that U.S. assistance programs related to combating trafficking in persons should be monitored and evaluated, and the U.S. should measure results—that is, the actual effects—as well as numerical outcomes of such programs. These outcome results should include rescue, rehabilitation and reintegration programs in the United States and abroad, proactive prevention activities at the community level, and education, health, and law enforcement programs.

Subsection (b) provides for an amendment to the TVPA of 2000 to ensure that all U.S. anti-trafficking programs, both programs carried out in the United States and abroad, are transparent and provide for evaluation of such programs. These provisions include a requirement that the awarding of grants, cooperative agreements and contracts be awarded transparently and competitively, consistent with current law. The Committee does not intend this provision to prohibit small grants without competition that are permitted under existing procurement mechanisms where such grants are warranted, although the Committee encourages the Department to use competitive processes wherever possible. The Committee also notes that subsection (a) of the new provision states that the agency review process for grants, cooperative agreements and contracts should not be subject to ad hoc or intermittent review by individuals or organizations outside the U.S. Government. The Committee does not intend to prevent persons from providing their opinion with respect to specific proposals they are aware have been made; rather the Committee does not believe they should not have access to the internal analysis or process used for formally reviewing those grants.

Subsection (c) of the new section of the TVPA also provides that the President establish performance goals and ensure performance indicators are used for all U.S. programs carried out in the United States and abroad. The Committee expects that the President will delegate this authority to each individual agency to establish performance goals and indicators that are tailored to each program.

The process of creating and implementing performance goals for anti-trafficking programs should reflect the evolving understanding of most effective strategies. Such indicators should be sufficiently flexible to enable local, context-specific approaches. As a 2007 GAO report noted, it is important that anti-trafficking efforts encompass reintegration efforts, place further emphasis on individual care plans for each survivor, and provide realistic and properly resourced programs for local follow up and monitoring of survivors. These initiatives must be guided by local conditions and dynamics; the Committee urges that the formulation and implementation of performance goals provide sufficient flexibility to ensure this. In addition, consistent with the recommendations of the Government Accountability Office report from July 2007, performance indicators should measure the extent of local community engagement in strategies to prevent trafficking, since the lack of the involvement of the local community where anti-trafficking programs are targeted will likely undermine the success of such programs.

Subsection (c) of this new section also provides that efforts shall be undertaken to provide U.S. assistance consistent with the priorities and country assessments contained in the most recent annual TIP report. Because of the way funds are programmed, amounts available for anti-trafficking programs are often apportioned and then allocated for specific countries with insufficient regard to the subsequent publication of the annual TIP report. The Committee believes there should be greater congruence between the priority countries in the TIP report and U.S. Government programming decisions.

Subsection (d) of the new section mandates that the President take steps to ensure that the design, monitoring, and evaluation of U.S. assistance programs for emergency relief, development and poverty alleviation are carried out in a manner that takes into account and is consistent with U.S. policies and other U.S. programs relating to combating trafficking. This provision constitutes a “mainstreaming” of trafficking policies into the overall U.S. assistance programs. At a minimum, U.S. assistance programs should not undermine U.S. efforts to combat trafficking.

Section 106. Minimum Standards for the Elimination of Trafficking

Subsection (a) eliminates the limitation that only countries with a significant number of victims be monitored. Under this amendment, any country that has any trafficking victims will be subject to the provisions of the TVPA.

Subsection (b) clarifies that in evaluating whether a country is making significant efforts to combat trafficking, convictions that result in suspended or significantly reduced sentences shall not be considered to be an indicator of serious and sustained efforts to eliminate severe forms of trafficking in persons. The Committee notes that while prevention and protection are critical to reducing trafficking, criminal prosecutions with significant sentences are critical to breaking the criminal syndicates that conduct trafficking and should be given special emphasis when determining whether a country is meeting or making significant efforts to combat trafficking. Likewise, efforts to reduce demand for commercial sex acts should be prioritized in a similar manner in making such determinations.

Subsection (b) also provides that an additional criterion for such standards is the provision of training in the identification and treatment of trafficking victims. Finally, given the priority in reducing the demand for commercial sex acts, subsection (b) sets as a separate criterion whether a government has made serious and sustained efforts to reduce demand for commercial sex acts and to eliminate participation in international sex tourism.

Section 107. Actions Against Governments Failing to Meet Minimum Standards

Subsection (a) provides that if a country has been on the special watch list for two consecutive years, such country shall be deemed to be not making significant efforts to combat trafficking unless the Secretary of State determines that: (1) the country has a written plan to begin making such efforts; (2) the plan, if implemented, would constitute making such efforts; and (3) the country is devoting sufficient resources to implement such plan. This provision addresses the problem of “parking” countries on the Tier II Watch List. When Congress created the list, it was not the intention that countries could stay on the Watch List permanently. There needs to be real progress by such countries or such countries will have to be determined to be Tier III.

Subsection (b) provides a clarification that a country that is subject to sanctions under section 110 but has not received non-humanitarian, non-trade related assistance in the previous year has both such assistance and exchanges cut off in the year in which sanctions apply. The Committee understands that there is some ambiguity as to whether a Tier III country that did not receive assistance in a previous year is prohibited from receiving such assistance in the year after they are placed on the Tier III list. This provision is designed to clarify that if a country is placed on Tier III, such country will not be able to receive non-humanitarian, non-trade related assistance.

Subsection (c) requires translation of the State Department’s annual report required pursuant to the TVPA of 2000, and publication of the translated report on appropriate websites.

Section 108. Research on Domestic and International Trafficking in Persons

Subsection (a) amends section 112A of the TVPA of 2000 to require the establishment of an integrated database combining all available data relating to trafficking trends in order to improve coordination of the collection of data related to trafficking in persons by each agency of the U.S. Government, promoting uniformity of data collection and standards and systems related to such collection, and undertaking a meta-analysis of such data. In GAO’s report from earlier this year entitled “Human Trafficking: Better Data, Strategy and Reporting Needed to Enhance U.S. Antitrafficking Efforts Abroad” (GAO-06-825), GAO reported that “[t]o date, the U.S. government has funded few projects to improve estimates of trafficking on a regional or international basis,” that “officials stated that they do not systematically analyze the trafficking information they receive and lack the human and financial resources to do so,” and “based on our analysis of agency data sets, we found that Federal agencies do not have data collections programs that could share information or include common data fields.”

This subsection would rectify these problems by creating greater uniformity and better data collection. The results of combining these data sets would allow the U.S. Government to perform a meta-analysis of trafficking trends. Modern computer technology has made possible “such an analysis, a method based on combining and then analyzing a group of data sets collected on the same topic. Pioneered in medical research, it has been important in discovering trends in both the incidence and successful treatment of major diseases. At present there are a number of independent data sets on human trafficking within U.S. Government agencies, as well as international organizations such as the International Labor Organization and the International Office of Migration (IOM). Indeed, GAO noticed that IOM has a particularly useful data set. Combination of these data sets would make possible a deeper understanding of the incidence and trends of human trafficking.

Depending on the quality of the combined data sets, the power of the analysis could range from gaining a clearer broad picture of trafficking, to findings that can apportion precise weights to the factors that generate this criminal activity, thus indicating the most effective points of intervention.

Subsection (b) amends section 112A to provide that the Human Smuggling and Trafficking Center (HSTC) would be responsible for efforts to improve data collection and the meta-analysis required by the amendment in subsection (a). The GAO notes that efforts to improve data collection “could include assigning a trafficking research and data unit to serve as interagency focal point charged with developing an overall research strategy, collecting and analyzing data, and directing research.” GAO also provides that the Center could carry out such activities if properly funded. The Committee understands from GAO that some additional employees for the HSTC could accomplish this mission, and H.R. 3887 includes additional authorizations to section 112A to carry out this purpose.

Section 109. Presidential Award for Extraordinary Efforts to Combat Trafficking in Persons

This section authorizes the President to establish an annual award for up to five persons (or organizations) who provided extraordinary service in efforts to combat trafficking in persons. This award is intended to be provided to U.S. citizens and foreign nationals, and U.S. and foreign non-governmental organizations, that make extraordinary efforts to combat trafficking in the United States or abroad.

Section 110. Responsibilities of Consular Officers of the Department of State

Subsection (a) requires consular officers conducting interviews of employment-based non-immigrant visas to ensure that the applicant has information about the illegality of slavery and other exploitation, the availability of services for human trafficking victims, the legal rights of immigrant victims of trafficking and other exploitation, and the provisions related to foreign labor brokers.

Subsection (b) provides for special provisions relating to A-3 and G-5 visas, including ensuring that the applicant has an employment contract in a language that the applicant understands, that the Secretary of State report on the feasibility of having a system of monitoring of applicants that receive such visas and of creating a system by which diplomats for whom such applicants work purchase a bond, and that the Secretary cooperate with law enforcement officials to the fullest extent practicable with U.S. international obligations.

This section also provides that no such visas be issued if the individual who would hire the applicant is from a diplomatic mission or international institution where the Secretary determines that trafficking or other abuse has previously occurred or an individual has departed the United States because of credible evidence of such abuse, unless the Secretary of State determines that a mechanism is in place to prevent such abuse in the future. Subsection (b) also requires a report on diplomatic missions and international institutions affected, exceptions made and waivers of diplomatic immunity requested.

The Committee notes that once an A-3 or G-5 visa holder is admitted, there is currently no system to either provide for a one-time visit to ascertain that the visa holder has a copy of the holder's employment contract, the visa holder's passport, and an information pamphlet in a language the visa holder understands. Nor does any U.S. Government employee review, in a language the worker understands, the contents of the employment contract with the domestic worker and ascertain that she understands the rights and obligations stated in the contract. There is no system to monitor such employees to make sure that they are not being abused during their term of employment. The Committee believes that at least a one-time visit is merited, and that there should be a system of ongoing monitoring of the situation. This provision therefore mandates a feasibility study for such a system.

The Committee also notes that domestic servants have sometimes faced abuse. The Committee believes that where abuse has occurred and a domestic servant has not been provided his or her wages, the Department should take steps to ensure a fair settlement. In particular, where a civil claim is dismissed as a result of the State Department's intervention and assertion of diplomatic immunity, the Committee believes the State Department should take all reasonable steps to encourage, assist and support the foreign mission to achieve a just settlement of the claim between the alien and the employer. One alternative, which is used by the Government of Singapore, is for the diplomat employer to post a bond so that if the domestic servant is not paid, the domestic servant can collect funds based on the bond. Therefore this section provides for a feasibility study to study various forms of compensation, including a bond program, compensation scheme or an insurance scheme.

Section 111. Report on Activities of the Department of Labor to Monitor and Combat Forced Labor and Child Labor

This section requires that the Secretary of Labor provide an interim report on the progress toward implementing section 105(b) of the Trafficking Victims Protection Reauthorization Act of 2005 and requires the final report not later than September 30, 2008. The Committee appreciates the notice of Proposed Procedural Guidelines for the list of goods imported with slave labor published by the Department of Labor on October 1, 2007, and believes this is a good first step toward the eventual publication of such items. However, the Committee is concerned that the definition of the scope of the proposed list is too narrow as it applies to goods that are assembled without slave labor but that include components that are produced with slave labor or labor under slave-like conditions. At a minimum, the list produced by the Department should include items produced by slavery or by labor in slave-like conditions, and items where 50 percent or more of the value can be attributed to components made with slave labor or by labor in slave-like conditions.

Section 112. Sense of Congress Regarding Multilateral Framework Between Labor Exporting and Labor Importing Countries

This section provides a sense of Congress that the Secretary of State should seek to establish a multilateral framework between labor exporting and labor importing countries to ensure that individuals migrating between such countries are protected from trafficking in persons and worker exploitation of any kind.

TITLE II—COMBATting TRAFFICKING IN PERSONS IN THE UNITED STATES

SUBTITLE A—ENSURING AVAILABILITY OF POSSIBLE WITNESSES AND INFORMANTS

This subtitle provides for certain changes to the T visa and the authority for continued presence of trafficking victims. The Committee continues, as in the TVPA of 2000, to seek to use the T visa created by that Act as a way to assist law enforcement officials while also seeking to address the humanitarian needs of trafficking victims. This section allows for bringing a victim's relatives into the United States so that the opportunity for retaliation, a key barrier to full cooperation with law enforcement, is reduced. It also allows T visas for those victims whom the Secretary of Homeland Security determines are unlikely or unable to cooperate with law enforcement because of physical or psychological trauma. These provisions will afford an opportunity for such a victim to become more stable and therefore more likely to cooperate with law enforcement.

In this regard, the Committee notes that under the TVPA of 2000, a T visa applicant must have responded to any reasonable request by law enforcement officials in order to investigate or prosecute traffickers. This requirement was modified by the TVPRA of 2003 to provide that a request was not "reasonable" if the victim, "due to psychological or physical trauma is unable to cooperate with a request” from law enforcement officials.” The modification in subsection (a) of Section 201 of this Act creating a new prong for the issuance of a T visa is therefore a streamlining as opposed to an expansion of the visa. A conforming change is made by section 201 to eliminate this language added by the TVPRA of 2003.

Finally, the Committee notes that adjustment of status to a Lawful Permanent Resident status, while conformed to certain changes made in the T visa, remains discretionary and includes the proviso that the victim respond to any reasonable request for assistance from law enforcement officials, maintaining the link to law enforcement in any event.

Despite the Committee’s efforts and estimates of as many as 17,500 trafficking victims entering the United States every year, the number of victims coming forward to assist U.S. law enforcement remains too low. The Committee hopes that the changes in this subtitle and others provisions in this Act will increase the numbers of victims who come forward, the number who will be prepared to act as witnesses against trafficking perpetrators, and the number of successful prosecutions against such perpetrators.

Section 201. Protecting Trafficking Victims Against Retaliation

In particular, subsection (a) provides for certain changes to the T visa for trafficking victims. Paragraph (1) allows persons who are brought into the country by the government for investigations or as witnesses to apply for such a visa so as to prevent retaliation for their cooperation. It also allows a visa for persons who are not able to participate in an interview with law enforcement because of the trauma experienced by the applicant, clarifying the existing language in the T Visa authorization, and eliminates the “unusual and severe harm” standard.

Paragraph (2) allows parents and siblings who are in danger of retaliation to join the trafficking victims.

Paragraph (3) conforms the T visa to the changes made in paragraph (1) related to trauma of the victim.

Subsection (b) modifies certain requirements of the T visa, including providing criteria on extreme hardship.

Subsection (c) clarifies and expands the Secretary of Homeland Security’s authority to permit continued presence of trafficking victims, including if the alien has filed a civil action against the trafficking perpetrators. It also allows for parole into the United States of certain relatives of trafficking victims, consistent with the amendments in section 205 of the Act. If enacted, the bill would therefore allow the T visa process and the continued presence process to be equally flexible in meeting law enforcement officials’ needs.

Subsection (d) provides that the Secretary of Homeland Security may waive the restriction on disqualification from good moral character for T visa holders applying for adjustment to Lawful Permanent Resident Alien if the actions that would have led to the disqualification are caused by or incident to the trafficking which the victim experienced. Such waivers are currently available at the issuance stage, and this subsection is intended as a conforming amendment given that initial T recipients are expected to adjust at a later point in their recovery.

Section 202. Information for Work-Based Nonimmigrants on Legal Rights and Resources

Subsections (a) and (b), in conjunction with section 110 of the Act, require the Secretary of Homeland Security, in consultation with the Secretary of State, to create an information pamphlet for trafficking victims similar to the information required under the International Marriage Brokers Act, including the illegality of slavery and trafficking, rights of immigrants, and available services. It is expected that the Secretary of State shall ensure that the TIP office will be centrally involved in the drafting of the pamphlet, and that the Department of Labor will also play a significant role. Consistent with its mission under the TVPA of 2000, it is also expected that the pamphlet and its issuance will be subject to review by the Senior Policy Operating Group.

Subsection (c) requires summaries of the pamphlets to be made for review.

Subsection (d) requires translation of the pamphlet into certain key languages.

Subsection (e) provides for distribution of the pamphlets

Subsection (f) provides for the creation and distribution of the pamphlet within 120 days of enactment of the Act.

Subsection (g) provides for protection of foreign workers from unscrupulous foreign labor recruiters, who have been responsible for significant abuses discovered in the United States. Under this section, foreign labor recruiters who recruit foreign workers will have to register with the Department of Labor through an electronic system. Such recruiters will have to provide a disclosure to each potential employee recruited. If the recruiter provides materially false or misleading information, such labor recruiter will be subject to civil enforcement action by the Department of Labor and possible criminal prosecution. An employer who uses a foreign labor recruiter who is not registered, or knowingly disregards that such a recruiter is in violation of the provisions of this section, such employer shall also be subject to enforcement action.

Section 203. Clarification of Roles of Secretary of Homeland Security and Attorney General

This section clarifies the roles of the Secretary of Homeland Security and the Attorney General in making certain determinations under the Immigration and Nationality Act.

Section 204. Relief for Certain Victims Pending Actions on Petitions and Applications for Relief

This section allows the Secretary of Homeland Security to stay the removal of an individual who has made a prima facie case for approval of a T Visa (relating to human trafficking).

Section 205. Parole for Derivatives of Trafficking Victims

This section authorizes the provision of parole to derivative family members of trafficking victims to prevent retaliation against the victim or the victim's family. In cases where parole is being sought to support the victim's needs, rather than due to threats of retaliation against the victim's family, it is expected that the law enforcement officials filing the application for parole to determine, through consultations with the trafficking victim, her advocates and service providers, which family members should join the victim to provide emotional and sustaining support necessary for the victim's cooperation and recovery. This provision need not be used for total family reunification in all such cases, though it is expected that the T visa process will serve that process for adjudicated victims.

Section 206. Implementation of Trafficking Victims Protection Reauthorization Act of 2005

This Section requires the Secretary of Homeland Security to issue interim regulations on the adjustment of status to permanent residence for T visa holders. The Committee is concerned that T visa holders have not been able to fully recover because they continue to be in the immigration system due to adjustment regulations not being issued. The T visa was intended to provide an alternative to the use of the "S" visa to protect trafficking victims—that visa was originally formulated for co-defendants rather than victims, and its requirements for ongoing supervision were onerous on survivors and case agents alike. Prompt adjustment will allow survivors who have cooperated with law enforcement and observed the requirements of the T visa to complete an important step toward full integration into society.

SUBTITLE B—ASSISTANCE FOR TRAFFICKING VICTIMS

Section 211. Victim of Trafficking Certification Process

This section makes certain clarifications resulting from conflicting amendments to the TVPRA and strengthens the role of the Secretary of Health and Human Services in making determinations regarding assistance to victims.

Section 212. Assistance for Certain Visa Applicants

This section clarifies that visa applicants as well as holders have access to certain public benefits.

Section 213. Interim Assistance for Child Victims of Trafficking

This section provides that if credible information is presented that a child has been a trafficking victim, the Secretary of Health and Human Services (HHS) may provide interim assistance to the child for up to 90 days. This section also provides that any Federal official must notify HHS within 48 hours of coming into contact with such child and that State or local officials must notify HHS within 72 hours of coming into contact with such a child.

Section 214. Ensuring Assistance for All Victims of Trafficking in Persons Concerns have been raised that the TVPA of 2000 and programs carried out under it do not sufficiently meet the needs of American victims of human trafficking. The TVPA's victim-services regime was not intended as programs for foreigners only, but provided exemptions to the 1996 Welfare Reform Act's prohibitions against services for many aliens. Section 214 seeks to ensure that a "service gap" does not exist between victims who are U.S. citizens and victims who are foreign nationals.

Subsection (a) amends the TVPA of 2000 to specifically authorize the use of funds for an assistance program for victims of severe forms of trafficking of persons and provides for establishing a system that refers such victims to existing programs at the Department of Health and Human Services and the Department of Justice.

Subsection (b) broadens the scope of services by providing that in addition to the program for assistance to women in prostitution authorized in the TVPRA of 2005 and reauthorized in section 302 of this Act, the Attorney General is authorized to use Victims of Crimes Act of 1984 (VOCA) funds to assist persons victimized under Chapter 117 of Title 18 (the Mann Act).

The Committee understands that existing guidelines prohibit assistance to any person in detention and cannot be used for “offender rehabilitation.” In addition, the Committee understands that some states have guidelines that limit the use of State VOCA funds for individuals who may have committed a crime. All these guidelines may have the effect of limiting VOCA funds for women in prostitution who are trying to escape their plight. The Committee believes this is inappropriate, as many of these women are victims of those criminals who handle them. However, the Committee does not necessarily intend that these funds be taken away from State grants. The Attorney General may use existing discretionary VOCA funds or may take steps to ensure that State grants give priority to this underserved population.

Subsection (c) ensures equality between classes of victims by providing that grant applications for trafficking programs should include a statement as to whether the service organization applying for the grant has a referral system to ensure that all victims receive assistance regardless of alienage.

Subsection (d) requires that the Attorney General and the Secretary of Health and Human Services submit a report on any service gaps between foreign and U.S. citizen trafficking victims (pursuant to chapter 117 of Title 18 of the U.S. Code).

SUBTITLE C—PENALTIES AGAINST TRAFFICKERS AND OTHER CRIMES

Section 221. Enhancing Trafficking and Other Related Offenses

Subsection (a) clarifies that the Government, in order to prosecute, does not need to prove that a defendant knew that a victim was not at least 18 years old.

Subsection (b) amends section 1592 of title 18 to streamline it, extend it to persons who are obtaining or maintaining a person in prostitution and adds abuse of government process, blackmail, or causing of financial harm to the list of offenses. The misdemeanor-level crime linked to causing or exposing a person to financial harm is intended to reach those schemes that do not rise to the level of serious harm as defined in section 1589 of Title 18 of the U.S. Code. For instance, “financial harm” could encompass a recruiting fee that is usurious, fees that are unrelated to the actual service provided, or a scheme that creates an ongoing dependency on a recruiter such as a fee that eats up more than 1% of the total wage that a guest worker is promised. This misdemeanor will provide a lesser-included offense to the current Forced Labor and Sex Trafficking felonies which carry sentences of up to 20 years for services compelled through a “scheme, plan, or pattern [including] intentionally causing the victim to believe that her family will face harms such as banishment, starvation, or bankruptcy in their home country.” (Conf. Rep. 106–939—Oct. 5, 2000). Although this new crime is intended to give law enforcement officials another tool to prosecute traffickers where there may be lesser indications of force, fraud and coercion, as required by sections 1589 and 1591, its creation and use is not intended to alter the definitions of a victim of a severe form of trafficking for any provision of law, including within the scope of a T visa and who is eligible for it.

Subsection (c) amends various provisions of title 18 to ensure that victims of trafficking offenses get restitution and restoration of forfeited assets.

Subsection (d) enhances the civil action by providing that an action is also available against any person who knowingly benefits from trafficking. It also provides for a realistic statute of limitations.

Subsection (e) adds a new crime regarding actions against persons who intimidate or expose violations of employment-based immigration or labor law involving aliens, and creates a civil cause of action against perpetrators of such intimidation.

Subsection (f) expands the Mann Act relating to transportation of individuals involved in prostitution to any act “in or affecting interstate commerce”.

Subsection (g) creates a new crime—sex tourism—and punishes individuals who travel abroad with the intent to engage in illicit sexual conduct, and those who promote and coordinate this travel for their own financial gain.

Subsection (h) provides for updating of sentencing guidelines.

The victim services and immigration benefits created by the Trafficking Victims Protection Act of 2000 are not linked to what, if any, criminal charges are brought. This Act’s creation of tools to better address forms of sex trafficking under 22 U.S.C. 7102(9) does not create any rights or access to immigration or other related benefits that are limited to victims of severe forms of trafficking, as defined in 22 U.S.C. 7102(13).

Section 222. Jurisdiction in Certain Trafficking Offenses

This section provides jurisdiction to U.S. courts for prosecution of certain slavery and trafficking offenses committed abroad, including slavery, peonage and trafficking under sections 1589 and 1591 of the U.S. Code. Prosecutions may only take place against a person already facing prosecution in a foreign jurisdiction if the Attorney General or the Deputy Attorney General approves such a prosecution.

Section 223. Amendment to Other Crimes Related to Trafficking

Subsection (a) expands and makes more useful section 278 of the Immigration and Nationality Act, relating to aliens in prostitution, including by applying it not only to those who harbor, transport or otherwise use aliens for prostitution, but to anyone who uses aliens for prostitution.

Subsection (b) requires review of sentencing guidelines to ensure conformity.

Subsection (c) makes technical modifications to provisions relating to the International Marriage Brokers Act to clarify that it applies to anyone in interstate or foreign commerce as well as within the special maritime and territorial jurisdiction of the United States.

Section 224. Model Statute Provided to States

Subsection (a) requires the Attorney General to ensure that changes to an existing model statute on trafficking is not being construed as derogating from, or in any way limiting or constraining the operations of, current existing State law relating to prostitution.

Subsection (b) requires publication of such a model statute on the website of the Department of Justice.

Subsection (c) requires that the Department of Justice draft and post on its website a model statute setting forth best legislative practices in the area of state and local anti-prostitution enforcement.

SUBTITLE D—ACTIVITIES OF THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT

Section 231. Annual Report by the Attorney General

This section requires that the annual report by the Attorney General include activities by the Department of Defense to combat trafficking in persons, actions taken to enforce policies relating to contractors and their employees, actions by the Secretary of Homeland Security to waive restrictions on section 307 of the Tariff Act of 1930, and prohibitions on procurement of items or services produced by slave labor.

Section 232. Annual Anti-Trafficking Conference

This section amends the TVPRA of 2005 to provide that annual anti-trafficking conferences examine the use of existing Federal and State laws that do not require force, fraud or coercion as an element of a felony crime to prosecute traffickers.

Section 233. Senior Policy Operating Group

This section amends section 206 of the TVPRA of 2005 to ensure that the Senior Policy Operating Group reviews all anti-trafficking programs.

Section 234. Coordinators to Combat Human Trafficking

This section establishes a coordinator to ensure consistency of Department of Justice policies regarding trafficking and a coordinator at the Department of Labor. The Committee expects that the Trafficking and Worker Exploitation Task Force will focus on enforcement issues, as opposed to setting policy decisions which should be made by the Interagency Task Force and the Senior Policy Operating Group (SPOG). With the new and expanded crimes created by this Act, an increased need for coordination between the Department of Justice and the Department of Labor is clear. This development and the creation of the coordinators are not intended to derogate from the work of the SPOG, in particular their responsibility to review and coordinate major agency anti-trafficking policies before they are put into effect. The Committee also expects to maintain or heighten the level of representation of each U.S. Government agency to the SPOG.

In coordinating the anti-trafficking activities at the Department of Justice, it is noted that the Chapters 77 (Peonage, Slavery, and Trafficking in Persons) and 117 (Transportation for Illegal Sexual Activity and Related Crimes) of Title 18, U.S. Code, are critical anti-trafficking tools and should be used in tandem to address the criminal phenomenon of trafficking in persons. The Criminal Division's anti-trafficking activities should not be limited only to those sex trafficking cases involving children.

The Justice Department should ensure that there are appropriate structures for the prosecution of both severe forms of trafficking and sex trafficking, as defined in the Trafficking Victims Protection Act of 2000, including cases involving adults in prostitution in which force, fraud, or coercion are not provable. Structures to address such sex trafficking cases should not dilute the servitude-based work of the Criminal Section of the Civil Rights Division, but should build upon and supplement the Criminal Division's existing anti-prostitution activities through the current Child Exploitation and Obscenity Section. In this connection, the Exploitation and Obscenity Section of the Criminal Division of the Department of Justice should be redesignated the "Sexual Exploitation and Obscenity Section," and the Human Trafficking Prosecution Unit of the Civil Rights Division should be redesignated the "Slavery & Trafficking Prosecution Unit."

Section 235. Preventing United States Travel by Traffickers

This section provides that the Secretary of State may prohibit the entry into the United States of traffickers. This authority is expected to be delegated to the Director of the TIP office.

Section 236. Enhancing Efforts to Combat the Trafficking of Children

Section 236 responds to concerns of service providers that a more effective sorting mechanism is needed to carry out the mandate in Section 107 of the TVPA of 2000 that Federal officials affirmatively seek to identify and assist trafficking victims, especially children.

Subsection (a) expresses the sense of Congress that the United States should undertake efforts to protect children from trafficking, including during repatriation.

Subsection (b) provides enhanced procedures for preventing child trafficking at the U.S. border and U.S. ports of entry. It codifies and improves procedures for the repatriation of unaccompanied children from contiguous countries. It also provides that the Secretary of State shall develop a system for the safe repatriation of unaccompanied children and shall develop a pilot program for that purpose.

Subsection (c) requires better care and custody of unaccompanied alien children to be provided by the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS).

Subsection (d) improves procedures for the placement of unaccompanied children in safe and secure settings. It requires that HHS take steps to assist children in complying with immigration orders, assist children in accessing pro bono representation and, in certain cases involving particularly vulnerable children, to obtain guardians ad litem.

Subsection (e) revises procedures for obtaining special immigrant juvenile status and provides refugee assistance for children in such status. It also provides for adjudication of asylum applications by asylum officers.

Subsection (f) provides specialized training, including training related to trafficking, to Federal officials who come into contact with unaccompanied children.

TITLE III—AUTHORIZATIONS OF APPROPRIATIONS

This title provides authorization of appropriations for various trafficking programs.

Section 301. Trafficking Victims Protection Act of 2000

Of the amounts authorized under this section to the Attorney General, $200,000 should be used to ensure that safety and security consultation is incorporated into any training and technical assistance provided to grantees who provide social services to victims of human trafficking. Moreover, up to $2,000,000 should be used to expand the activities of the Criminal Division's Innocence Lost Task Forces incorporate situations involving adults in prostitution (under Title 18, U.S. Code, Chapter 117, as amended by this Act). Funds authorized by this section should also be used to expand the Criminal Division by five prosecutors to investigate and prosecute cases under the expanded Chapter 117, including cases against those who profit from prostitution and sex tourism, and to expand the Civil Rights Division by five prosecutors to investigate and prosecute cases of severe forms of trafficking, pursuant to the TVPA and its progeny, including this Act.

Section 302. Trafficking Victims Protection Reauthorization Act of 2005

This section amends the TVPRA to add funding through fiscal year 2011.

Section 303. Rule of Construction

This section states that the amendments made by sections 301 and 302 should not affect the availability of the funds currently appropriated.

Section 304. Technical Amendments

This section amends the earlier trafficking bills to reflect the name change of the Committee on Foreign Affairs (formerly known as the "Committee on International Relations").

TITLE IV—PREVENTION OF THE USE OF CHILD SOLDIERS

Section 401. Short Title

acts as a direct result of being trafficked, including by providing training to law enforcement and immigration officials in the identification and treatment of trafficking victims using approaches that focus on the needs of the victims.

(3) Whether the government of the country has adopted measures to prevent severe forms of trafficking in persons, such as measures to inform and educate the public, including potential victims, about the causes and consequences of severe forms of trafficking in persons[, measures to reduce the demand for commercial sex acts and for participation in international sex tourism by nationals of the country], measures to establish the identity of local populations, including birth registration, citizenship, and nationality, measures to ensure that its nationals who are deployed abroad as part of a peacekeeping or other similar mission do not engage in or facilitate severe forms of trafficking in persons or exploit victims of such trafficking, and measures to prevent the use of forced labor or child labor in violation of international standards.
