The House met at 10:30 a.m. and was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. DOYLE).

DESIGNATION OF SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE
The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following communication from the Speaker:

WASHINGTON, DC, March 24, 2009.

I hereby appoint the Honorable Michael P. Doyle to act as Speaker pro tempore on this day.

NANCY PELOSI,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.

MORNING-HOUR DEBATE
The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the order of the House of January 6, 2009, the Chair will now recognize Members from lists submitted by the majority and minority leaders for morning-hour debate.

The Chair will alternate recognition between the parties, with each party limited to 30 minutes and each Member, other than the majority and minority leaders and the minority whip, limited to 5 minutes.

GUN AMENDMENT TO OMNIBUS PUBLIC LANDS MANAGEMENT ACT
The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Nebraska (Mr. SMITH) for 1 minute.

Mr. SMITH of Nebraska. I rise today out of concern for the public lands bill that we are taking up. We will be taking up the Senate amendments to H.R. 146. I support the underlying goals of our Nation’s conservation systems, but I am concerned about overreaching actions by the Federal Government negatively affecting the American public.

The original bill, S. 22, combined 170 separate measures—most of which have never received a committee hearing.

Last week, the Senate called up H.R. 146, an unrelated battlefield preservation bill, and substituted the text of S. 22. Because we have already passed an earlier version of H.R. 146, the measure can be shielded from further amendments. This is unfortunate. There will be no opportunity to amend this bill. By sidestepping a legislative process, we are not making this bill better.

Last week, there was an amendment that protects hunting and fishing, but it certainly was silent because it didn’t need to be vocal at the time on the right-to-carry provision. But, on March 19, U.S. District Judge Colleen Kollar-Kotelly single-handedly decided to block the government’s common sense policy.

We can do better, Mr. Speaker, and we should do better.

AMERICAN RECOVERY AND REINVESTMENT ACT OF 2009
The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. CONNOLLY) for 5 minutes.

Mr. CONNOLLY of Virginia. I rise today to highlight the critical investments in America made by this Congress and by the Obama administration through the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 to turn our economy around.

We are embroiled in the worst economic crisis since the Great Depression. Our economy remains in a recession that dates back to December, 2007. Our gross domestic product decreased 6.2 percent in the fourth quarter of last year. Housing prices have declined for 24 consecutive months. Unemployment is at a 25-year high—and rising.

More than 4.4 million Americans lost their jobs, including a staggering 651,000 jobs lost last month. In my district, one of the wealthiest in the Nation, applications for food stamps increased 79 percent over the previous year.

In the past 12 months, Americans have lost 4 years of wealth, upending the carefully planned retirement strategies for millions of our fellow Americans. Over the next 2 years, if we do nothing, as some propose, our economy and the American people will suffer an estimated $2 trillion in lost potential, lost productivity, and lost earnings.

We know the price of inaction. The last 8 years left us a dire legacy we won’t soon forget: Trillions of dollars of budget surpluses squandered; critical infrastructure repairs and improvements ignored; alternative energy research and development placed on the back burner; regulations neutered and the financial sector allowed to run amok; poverty ignored and allowed to grow; middle-class Americans saw their purchasing power decline dramatically while a privileged few saw theirs grow and soar; and millions of jobs and trillions of dollars of economic progress lost.

Mr. Speaker, we can no longer afford the inaction of the last 8 years. That’s why this Congress acted, in concert with President Obama, to pass the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act. It was a bold stroke to put people back to work and make critical investments in our Nation’s infrastructure that have been so neglected in the last 8 years.

We acted to ensure the future prosperity of our country. The Recovery Act will save or create 3.5 million jobs, including 9,300 in my own district, and provide needed investment in education, energy independence, health care reform, transportation, infrastructure, and tax relief for the middle class.

While no one action we can take will instantly fix all of our economic troubles, our investments are showing progress. Thanks to the Recovery Act, shovel-ready projects throughout the Nation are breaking ground, putting people to work planning, constructing, and managing these projects. Highway construction projects nationwide receive $30 billion, with an additional investment of $10 billion in transit and rail projects.

Thanks to the Recovery Act, those firms that want our business or had to delay work are now being put back to work and putting people back to work repairing and improving roads and bridges, building schools, modernizing street light systems and water treatment plants, and building many other needed but neglected capital projects in my district and across the Nation. These are real jobs building real projects that are helping real Americans.

In the 4 weeks since the legislation was signed into law, Mr. Speaker, $175 billion has already been allocated, including $77 billion for education throughout the country, $27 billion for highways, and $15 billion in new Medicaid funding badly needed by our States.

The economic crisis has caused shortfalls for virtually every State and local government in the Nation. Our State and municipal governments are among the country’s largest economic engines. Everyday functions that Americans rely on daily, from public safety, to public health, to local education, to public libraries.

The Recovery Act provided $53 billion in State stabilization funding badly needed by our States that are hemorrhaging red ink right now. Specifically, the investment in education, for example, will pay immediate long-term dividends for our economy. Enhanced educational support includes $40 billion for local school districts and $21 billion for higher education, and will create increasing opportunities to prepare our children to enter the workforce.

In addition, our investments in education are paying off immediately by stemming the loss of tens of thousands of jobs for teachers and custodians and bus drivers and nurse’s aides and teacher’s aides all across school districts in the United States.

One of the primary drivers for economic recovery will be our investment in the technology field as well, Mr. Speaker. The world is changing and it’s critical America stay at the forefront. In order to reduce our reliance on foreign oil, we will move towards a cleaner, greener economy. The stimulus addressed those areas.

The Recovery Act provided $30 billion to transform our existing energy systems and $8 billion in weatherization and energy efficiency funds that will create 87,000 new jobs weatherizing 2 million households across the United States.

The cost of health care continues to rise dramatically, Mr. Speaker, and it’s incumbent upon us to reduce costs without harming existing coverage. The Recovery Act included almost $20 billion to accelerate the switch to health information technology systems by doctors and hospitals to modernize health care systems. It’s estimated that this reform ultimately will yield an annual saving of $77 billion in health care costs to average Americans all across the country.

This act is only one piece of the economic mosaic, and I know it’s going to succeed.

TIME BOMBS TICKING

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. BLUMENAUER) for 5 minutes.

Mr. BLUMENAUER. We have a lot of controversies here in Washington, D.C. There’s even controversy over whether some of us should be legislators or communicators. But there’s one area that all we can be policymakers, come together, make the economy stronger, and improve the quality of life for all Americans.

In every congressional office there’s a copy of the Congressional Quarterly Weekly. The current issue on page 656 has an article about the EPA dealing with the Pentagon pollution. I invite every Member, every legislative director, every staff member who’s responsible for defense or dealing with the environment to pick up this article and read the two pages.

It illustrates a bigger issue here—not just a dustup in the last administration between EPA and the Department of Defense that we will all play with thousands of time bombs literally ticking in every State and most of our congressional districts. It’s embarrassing that we still have almost 10,000 toxic sites with unexploded ordnance and military toxics scattered in every State of the Union, and 3,449 of these sites are Superfund sites. Amazingly, 2,600 of them are formerly used defense sites that, at the current rate—these are basing sites that are closed—at the current rate, it will take more than half a century to get rid of these dangerous elements and return the land to productive use.

This is not just a serious problem for every State and almost every community. First and foremost, it is a danger to our military, to their families, and to their neighbors, having these toxic and unexploded ordnance lying around. It also is a serious problem for military readiness.

One of the reasons that States and local governments are resisting the expanding training footprint that our military needs today is because we, the federal government hasn’t been a very good neighbor. People don’t know how to work with us to start doing it.

It’s past time that we own up to our responsibilities, that we solve the problem that will help military readiness today, technology that will save the lives of our servicemembers overseas, make our servicemembers at home and their families and the people who work with them safer, and meet our responsibilities to the environment. Oh, by the way. We will put tens of thousands of people to work cleaning up land and returning it to productive capacity all across America.

It’s time that Congress is no longer missing in action in this serious problem of military contamination. Look at the Congressional Quarterly Weekly that is on your desk, page 656. Thank you.

DAY 63

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the distinguished minority leader, the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. BOEHNER).

Mr. BOEHNER. Mr. Speaker and my colleagues, today is day 63 of the Obama administration and we are still waiting for something—anything—to create jobs and to help our economy.

The President says he wants input from the Republican side of the aisle and we are proposing better solutions. Now it’s time for Democrats to stop paying lip service to our ideas and actually work with us to start doing it.

During the stimulus debate, we offered a plan that would create twice as many jobs at half the cost. But the Democrats passed a bill that included hundreds of billions of wasteful Washington spending.
During the omnibus debate, we offered a plan that would freeze spending through September 30, but my Demo- crat colleagues passed a bloated bill with wasteful spending and some 9,000 earmarks.

Now Republicans are prepared to offer a better budget solution to create jobs, rebuild savings, and restore fiscal sanity here in Washington. The question is: Will Democrats work with us?

Unfortunately, the President's budget spends too much, taxes too much, and borrows too much from our kids and grandkids.

The Congressional Budget Office just last week reported that the President's budget is actually $2.3 trillion more costly than the White House initially claimed. In fact, his budget adds more to the debt in the first 6 years than his 43 predecessors have accumulated over the last 220 years. And his national energy tax will cost families up to $3,100 more each year.

All of this spending and taxing and borrowing begs the question: What is the world is the White House thinking?

President Obama should ask Speaker Pelosi and Senator Reid to delay congres- sional action on this budget so that mounting concern on both sides of the aisle about his budget can be ad- dressed. I think it is time to get back to reality. Our Nation is in serious cri- sis, and we need better solutions than what Washington has given the Amer- ican people so far this year, and I and my Republican colleagues will be offering them.

RESPONDING TO WALL STREET

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from California (Mr. SHerman) for 5 min- utes.

Mr. SHerman. Mr. Speaker, yesterday Wall Street won three great vic- tories. First, a plan was announced under which Wall Street puts up 6 per- cent of the money, assumes 6 percent of the risk, and takes 50 percent of the profits.

Second, the Senate announced that it was going to back burner the proposal to use the Tax Code to recoup the un- just enrichment received by certain execu- tives on Wall Street.

And finally, the media continued its condescending drumbeat in which speaking after speaker after the media says the only proper approach is that one must denounce Wall Street, and then capitulate to Wall Street. And any of us who want to actually do anything that Wall Street disagrees with are just a bunch of angry peasants with pitchforks.

Well, let me say, anger is no vice and gullibility is no virtue, and faith in Wall Street is not the true one faith.

We have got to be willing to take ac- tion that Wall Street disagrees with and deal with an establishment press which will then say we are gov- erning out of anger. I am very angry, but I am not blinded by my anger. I am also not blinded by a gullible faith that whatever Wall Street does will be in the national interest.

First, let’s take a look at this pro- gram where we put up 94 percent of the cash, Wall Street puts up 6 percent of the cash, Wall Street gets 50 per- cent of the profit. You know with a deal like that, you could probably get Wall Street to buy lottery tickets for $3 a piece. They will put up not $3 a piece, but 6 percent of the $3, the Fed- eral taxpayer puts up the rest, and then the winnings are split 50/50. Even if the average lottery ticket only pays out 20 cents for every ticket, that is a winning investment for Wall Street.

For us to give them half the profit while they take only 6 percent of the risk is a massive transfer of wealth from the American people to the hedge funds on Wall Street.

Second, let’s look at this issue of bo- nuses and compensation. Now we passed a bill last week that was imperfect. It was imperfect because it left alone million-dollar-a-month salaries, and it allowed any of the big Wall Street firms that were planning to pay multimillion-dollar bo- nuses to simply recast their compensa- tion and call it million-dollar-a-month salaries, or raise them to $2 million a month, and the bill we passed would have no effect.

Third, the bill we passed last week, while it would deal with the AIG bo- nuses, did not deal with the Merrill Lynch bonuses. That is why today—and I hope to have some additional cospon- sors before I introduce the bill—but later today, I will introduce legislation that will impose an excise tax that doesn’t look at bonuses separate from the rest of the compensation package, but looks at the entire compensation package. It says if the package is over half a million dollars a year and you’re working for a company that would be in bankruptcy right now if you weren’t bailed out by the Federal Government, then in effect you are being paid that enormous salary with taxpayer dollars only because the taxpayers came through and bailed out the company that is paying you that money. And for that reason, we are going to insist that unless you want to face a major tax, you return to your employer all of your compensation in excess of half a million dollars. This is an approach that would deal with a crisis that is not punitive. It is not confiscatory. It simply takes from executives the huge amount of compensation that they received only because the rules of capitalism were suspended and their companies that should be in bankruptcy or receivership and paying salaries that exceed what should be paid to an entity that is dependent upon the Fed- eral Government.

The bill will also provide that if the Treasury issues executive compensa- tion regulations, people will be able to receive restricted stock without limi- tation.

So I look forward to getting addi- tional cosponsors for my tax bill and responding to Wall Street logically and without gullibility.

SECOND AMENDMENT VOTE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Washington (Mr. HASTINGS) for 5 min- utes.

Mr. HASTINGS of Washington. Mr. Speaker, for weeks and weeks now, Democrat leaders in both the House and Senate have engaged in parliamen- tary contortions to block every Rep- resentative in this body of both parties from being able to offer even one amendment to the 1,200-page $10 billion omnibus lands package that contains over 170 individual bills. Since over 100 of these bills were never voted on in the House, this giant piece of legisla- tion needs careful review in a fair and open process. Yet, fair and open consid- eration is precisely what Democrat leaders have denied in this House.

Today, the House Rules Committee will vote to decide whether the most re- cent Senate-passed omnibus lands bill will be debated and voted on in this House, presumably tomorrow. While there are many areas of this bill that need improvement, there are several that rise to a serious level of concern.

Let me cite four of them.

First, addressing prohibitions against American-made energy on public lands, prohibitions that would deny job cre- ation in the energy sector on public lands;

Second, ensuring our border security by making certain that provisions of this bill don’t ban the use of vehicles and other technology to patrol our bor- der;

Third, ensuring that public lands continue to be open to public enjoy- ment. That includes wheelchair access for the disabled who would be banned under this bill, as well as access by Americans using bicycles and motor- ized bikes for recreation;

Lastly, Mr. Speaker, an area of the bill that rises to a very high level of concern after a Federal judge’s ruling last week, and that is the protection of Americans’ second amendment gun rights on public lands.

Specific amendments have been filed with the Rules Committee to address each of these issues. Democrat leaders have provided the House with a chance to vote on them. But more spe- cifically, Mr. Speaker, the House must act on the omnibus lands bill to imme- diately protect the second amendment rights of Americans. Last week, Demo- crat leaders in the House and Senate added the Altmire language to the om- nibus land bill to prevent the Federal Government from banning hunting and fishing on certain types of Federal land. At the time this amendment was added, the right of Americans to carry firearms for hunting and wildlife refuges was in accordance with State laws, and that was already recog- nized in Federal regulations.
However, last Thursday a U.S. District Court judge based in Washington, D.C. single-handedly decided to block this second amendment policy. Now there is a giant hole in the current Altmiere language, and Congress must fix it. Congress must not allow one Federal judge to single-handedly deny Americans their second amendment rights on Federal land.

I have introduced an amendment, along with the gentleman from Utah (Mr. BISHOP) to the omnibus lands bill that would remove the law the very protections struck down by this lone Federal judge. The House must vote on this amendment to repair the big void in the current Altmiere language contained in the omnibus lands bill. There should be no excuses, no more delays, no waiting for another day or another bill. The omnibus lands bill is the best place to fix what this Federal judge has done.

If we are going to pass a 1,200-page bill that dramatically expands Federal lands in our country, Congress must protect American second amendment rights while on these lands. The Constitution and the second amendment should not be pushed aside by an activist judge in a compliant Congress. House leaders must allow a vote on the Hastings-Bishop amendment to the omnibus lands bill to protect the gun rights of Americans when we take up this bill presumably tomorrow.

2010 BUDGET RESOLUTION

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. Scott) for 5 minutes.

Mr. SCOTT of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, this week the House Budget Committee will mark up the concurrent budget resolution for fiscal year 2010. Over a month ago, President Obama submitted a budget plan focusing on economic recovery, strategic investments, and most importantly, fiscal responsibility. At this critical juncture in our history, President Obama’s budget addresses the mistakes of the past, makes much-needed investments in the future, and will create a better future for all Americans.

As we debate the merits of this budget resolution, we must not forget that President Obama inherited deep deficits and an economic crisis from the Bush administration. This chart shows the budget deficit over the years of the Clinton administration, and what the Bush administration did to the budget. The Bush administration left behind a $1.25 trillion deficit, a high unemployment rate, and an economy on the verge of collapse. President Obama came into office merely 2 months ago, but he has already successfully proposed the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act which will create or save millions of jobs.

The President’s budget continues the path toward economic recovery and fiscal responsibility with many necessary investments in education. The President’s budget expands access to college education by making the American Opportunity Tax Credit permanent and indexing Pell grants to keep pace with inflation and the skyrocketing cost of college education. The President also doubles funding for early Head Start and expands Head Start.

The President’s budget calls for improving and expanding access to health insurance and lowering the cost of health care for every American. The President’s budget includes several provisions to improve quality and efficiency in the health care system, saving the American people approximately $300 billion over the next 10 years. The President believes that the only way to rein in the cost of government for the foreseeable future is to address the costs associated with health care, and this budget does that.

The President’s budget also ensures that the Nation honors and cares for our veterans when they return home by increasing funding for the Department of Veterans Affairs by $25 billion over the next 5 years. This increased funding will help the VA reduce their claims backlog and modernize and improve VA hospitals and facilities. These investments will help address the large influx of new veterans into the VA system from the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan.

So, Mr. Speaker, perhaps the most telling feature of the President’s budget is that it is an honest measure of where we are and of where we are going. The Bush administration used phantom budget tactics to keep the costs of many expensive measures out of the budget. Unlike budgets submitted in the past few years, the Obama budget honestly includes the cost of our military operations in Iraq and Afghanistan and other items that the President must pay for and have paid for every year such as the Medicare Doctor’s Payment Fix and the Alternative Minimum Tax. President Obama’s budget takes the necessary steps to put the budget back on a fiscally sustainable path once the economy recovers. The budget proposes to cut the deficit in half by 2013. Additionally, the President’s budget proposes to restore the fiscally responsible pay-as-you-go rules, which were critical in turning the budget around in the 1990s.

Many may claim that the President’s budget will cause deficits, but those who advocate the problems with the President’s budget fail to remind themselves that the policies that they, in fact, are advocating are the policies that got us in the ditch we are in today. What they forget is that this Nation had to endure 8 years of failed economic policies, which produced one of the worst recessions in 70 years, the worst job growth since the Great Depression, and an increase in the number of Americans living in poverty, and an increase in the number of Americans living without health insurance.

Furthermore, the Bush administration degraded the Federal budget’s condition from healthy to weak, converting a 10-year $5.5 trillion surplus to more than a $3 trillion deficit—a swing of more than $9 trillion over 8 years and an average of over $1 trillion a year.

Mr. Speaker, these policies have failed. It is time to turn to the policies that work. The President’s budget does just that. As a member of the House Budget Committee, we look forward to working with the Majority that that the congressional budget resolution reflects the priorities of the President’s budget.

CONSISTENCY, NOT CHAOS IN OUR PUBLIC LAND POLICY

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Utah (Mr. BISHOP) for 5 minutes.

Mr. BISHOP of Utah. Mr. Speaker, I am sure we all know the old story of the newlywed couple whose wife on her first meal that she prepares of a cooked ham presents the ham, and the two ends have been cut off. When her husband asks why, she says, “I don’t know. That’s the way my mother did it,” and when the mother-in-law shows up, they ask why, and she says, “I don’t know. That’s the way my mother did it,” and when the grandmother finally asks why she cut the ends of the ham off, the grandmother simply says, “I have a small oven. A full ham won’t fit.”

There are many things we do in government that are traditions that are as totally illogical as cutting the ends of the ham off. Only in a Federal court in this United States can we find a special interest group that can track down a maverick judge that contends that 8 months of study by the Department of Interior is, in fact, a last-minute recommendation. By this same law, the Department of Interior and the National Park Service finally updated its rules to allow concealed carry on national parks land and make it consistent with our policy of concealed carry on public lands.

You see, the national forest does not prohibit someone with a valid concealed carry license from going on public lands. The Bureau of Land Management, which manages some of our national parks, does not prohibit a valid concealed carry permit for going on their lands. Even President Clinton gave an executive order saying that our policies should reflect the State prerogative and authority. Only the National Park Service is not just things like Yellowstone. It is virtually impossible, or at least it will challenge you, to try to get from Virginia into Washington, D.C. without either driving or walking the National Park Service, and if you go in and you go out. There are no signs to tell you what you were doing; and indeed, law-abiding citizens have been entrapped on park service land, carrying a concealed weapon permit, where if they had gone a couple of blocks further and had been back in Virginia, they would have, indeed, been legal. That is illogical and it is also unfair.

What we should do is what the National Park Service decided to do in January and simply say State laws will be the ruling procedure. If it is legal for a concealed carry in this State, it is legal on all lands that are owned and controlled by the Federal Government, not just some lands "yes" and some lands "no."

Mr. HASTINGS of Washington has an amendment that should be put on the bill that will be before us tomorrow to clarify once again that the policy of the United States should be consistent on all of their lands, not on some "yes" and some not on the others. It was an amendment that would bring respect for allowing the Hastings amendment on all of their lands, not on some "yes" and some not on the others.

It is important that the Rules Committee does open up this particular bill for allowing the Hastings amendment that would bring respect for a concealed carry in this State, it is legal on all lands that are owned and controlled by the Department of Interior, and it would reject an outstandingly flawed decision made by a judge that actually creates chaos rather than solving this particular problem.

It is important that the Rules Committee does open up this particular bill for allowing the Hastings amendment so that we could actually debate this issue on the floor, because this is the proper time; this is the proper vehicle, and it is the right time for us to have consistency on our public land policy, not chaos in our public land policy, created by a judicial decision.

CYBER ATTACKS TO AMERICA'S NATIONAL SECURITY

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Rhode Island (Mr. LANGEVIN) for 5 minutes.

Mr. LANGEVIN. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to discuss a critical national security challenge and what I believe is an imminent threat to the safety of our country. That is cyber attacks.

Computers control everything from our banking systems to our electric grid, our military networks to our businesses and government functions. Never in the history of the world have so many people had so much access to ideas, knowledge and skills. However, increased access also opens additional vulnerabilities that allow our adversaries to potentially cause catastrophic economic and physical harm to our country. Nation-states, terrorists and other actors who seek to harm our Nation understand that the future of warfare is through cyber attack.

In recent years, American military leaders have noted an unfortunate increase in cyber attacks. The vice chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, James Cartwright, told Congress in March 2007 that America is under widespread attack right now in cyberspace.

But securing our networks is not simply the responsibility of the U.S. military. Mitigating vulnerabilities in America's critical infrastructure networks involves the work of a wide variety of government agencies and private-sector entities. Everyone, both in the public and private sectors, plays a role in securing cyberspace, and we must all work together to confront these threats.

Our Nation has some significant challenges ahead of us in the cyber security world. Right now, the United States is under attack, and quite frankly, it is not the first time. I believe that it is essential that we act swiftly and boldly to respond to this threat.

I recently cochaired the CSIS Commission on Cyber Security for the 44th Presidency. Our goal was to develop recommendations for a comprehensive strategy to improve cyber security in Federal systems and in critical infrastructure. This commission was made up of renowned cyber security experts from across the country, both in and out of government.

In December 2008, after hundreds of hours of briefings, of working group meetings and discussions, we released our final report proposing a number of recommendations for recasting administration to consider. Among the most critical and timely of those recommendations is the creation of a comprehensive national security strategy for cyberspace. "Comprehensive" means using all of U.S. power in a coordinated fashion: international engagement and diplomacy, military strategy and action, economic policy tools, and the work of the intelligence and law enforcement communities.

This strategy should begin with a public statement by the President that the cyber infrastructure of the United States is a vital asset for national security and the economy and that we will protect its investments of our national power. The commission also recommends that the Nation's cyber leadership be housed in the White House, not in any single agency.

We used the response to nuclear proliferation as a model for how to approach cyber security. Just as no single agency is in charge of nonproliferation, we recognize that the same is true for cyber policy.

To coordinate these efforts, we propose creating a new office for cybersecurity in the executive office of the President. This office would combine existing entities and would also work with the National Security Council in managing the many aspects of securing our national networks while protecting privacy and civil liberties. It is my hope that the leadership of this new office will be an assistant reporting directly to the President.

I am very pleased with President Obama's appointment of Melissa Hathaway to conduct a 60-day interagency review of the Federal cyber security mission. I think she is very knowledgeable of the issues surrounding the CNCI, and I have spoken with her regularly, encouraging her to review our critical infrastructure's defensive posture.

We have so many agencies that share in overseeing critical infrastructure that they can not fall through the cracks. This is an area I believe that we must improve on, and I look forward to working on legislation to implement the recommendations of the commission to ensure that our Nation's infrastructure is protected in cyberspace, and I certainly look forward to working with the administration on this important issue.

ECONOMIC CONSEQUENCES

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. PITTS) for 5 minutes.

Mr. PITTS. Mr. Speaker, what we do here in Washington, the policies that we make, have direct economic consequences on the market, on job creation or loss, on retirement accounts, and on the financial security of the American people.

For example, yesterday, Secretary Geithner finally released the administration's plan for dealing with the troubled assets that are dragging down our banks and that are impeding our Nation's economic recovery. The market jumped up 500 points.

Now, we still need to do some work to evaluate exactly how this plan will work, and whether it is the best plan for the country, but I think this is a perfect example of how our actions here in Washington affect Wall Street.

I have a chart here with some data that I have assembled for the last 30 years, from 1977 to 2009, of market activity, and I want to show a broad trend that we see over that time regarding the market's reaction to government policies:

Here on the left, this yellow line, is the Dow Jones Industrial Average. You will see the red and blue panels. The colors here indicate which party is in control of Congress. So, where you have red, that is the control of the Congress, both the House and Senate, by Republicans. Where you have blue, that is the control of the Congress by the Democrats, both House and Senate. Where you have these slash/slanted marks, you have a divided Congress.

From 1977 to 1995, you see the Dow Jones growing gradually, minimal growth. You see when it hits the red panel that it moves sharply up. When you have, actually, the dot-com collapse and 9/11 and the divided Congress, you see it goes down. When it hits the red, it goes sharply up again.

The next chart down below shows budget deficits from 1977 to 2009. The bars above represent deficits. The bars below represent surpluses. Notice under President Obama that last year protection that many issues of the Administration on fiscal year 2009. Let me just put that into perspective. That single deficit is more than the previous eight deficits under President Bush combined. If I could show you the projected deficits, they are all trillion-dollar deficits out for 10 years as far as we can look. So I think we need to really question some of the rhetoric we are hearing about fiscal responsibility about this present administration. These deficits have both immediate and long-term consequences. The long-term consequences are the debt that we are leaving to our children. In the more immediate term, they represent the erosion of our standing in the world. They are going to feed inflation and undermine the value of the dollar.

Last month, I met with a delegation of Chinese officials. The first question they asked me was, “Congressman, is America abandoning the free market system?” I mean the world is watching us, and they have expressed some hesitancy about buying more of our debt. I think, when a free market torsure to fund our budget, it is going to be harder and harder to find willing buyers.

When the rest of the world watches as the U.S. Government takes over private businesses as government spending grows and as the government crowds out the private sector and stifles innovation and the entrepreneurial spirit on which this Nation was founded, we’re going to face problems. When we take these kinds of actions and make these kinds of policies, we are jeopardizing our standing in the world and our future.

How can we be the leader of the free world with this kind of government intervention and undermining of the free market?

I also want to point out here that there is a good lesson here on this bottom chart. You see these 4 years right here in this row. That is when the Republicans were in control of Congress and when President Clinton was in office. For the first time in years, we balanced the budget 4 consecutive years in a row, and we paid down on the public debt 4 years in a row. Now, Clinton deserves some credit, and the Congress deserves some credit, but we balanced the budget 4 years in a row.

The lesson here is that real bipartisanship works. The phony bipartisanship that we seem to be hearing at the last minute and vote for something that we did not have any opportunity to create or to craft in the first place will not work. Real bipartisanship works and policies matter, and some policies help create an environment in which our economy can thrive.

The government cannot create wealth. The American people, entrepreneurs and businesses must do that. Yet the government can and at times has implemented flawed policies like spending we see as much taxing too much and borrowing too much like we are seeing right now. Those policies have economic consequences.

OMNIBUS LANDS BILL THREATENS SECOND AMENDMENT RIGHTS

Mr. WOLF. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I rise to support the Hastings amendment to the omnibus lands bill. I want to give you two examples why and they couldn’t be farther apart and still be in America.

One is here in Washington, D.C. I had a friend who worked for the Federal Government who was getting threatening phone calls from a disgruntled former employee. She was an older woman who lived alone and worked for an agency here in the Federal Government who was getting threatening phone calls from a disgruntled former employee. She was an older woman who lived alone and worked for an agency here in the Federal Government who was getting threatening phone calls from a disgruntled former employee.

Now here is my example from the West. It is springtime. We’re just starting to fix fence after a long winter that broke down some of the fences. When you’re sitting on the ground fixing a fence and you’re sitting right next to a rattlesnake, it can be very disconcerting. So a number of us carry weapons while we’re fixing fence. If you let a weapon be hidden under your seat there, then you need a concealed weapons permit. So some people get concealed weapons permits and carry a weapon while they’re fixing fence. Well, if you happen to be one of those and so she got a concealed weapon permit to protect herself and was commuting in and out of D.C. to an adjacent State. Having that concealed weapon would have been illegal under the new judge’s ruling, which is why the Hastings amendment to the omnibus lands bill needs to be adopted.

For the new judge’s ruling, which is why the Hastings amendment to the omnibus lands bill needs to be adopted.

Most people would say the Constitution gives you the right to carry a concealed weapon, but here in Washington, D.C., we are denying people the right to have a concealed weapon permit.

HOW WILL HISTORY JUDGE THE 111TH CONGRESS? IF IT DOESN’T DEAL WITH THIS ISSUE?

Cospending the Copper-Wolf SAFE Commission is supporting the bipartisan way forward. If any Member has a better idea that can pass this place, then they ought to put it forward. If they can’t, we should pass the Copper-Wolf bill.
declares the House in recess until noon today. Accordingly (at 11 o’clock and 21 minutes a.m.), the House stood in recess until noon.

☐ 1200

AFTER RECESS

The recess having expired, the House was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. BLUMENAUER) at noon.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, the Reverend Daniel P. Coughlin, offered the following prayer:

In the great scheme of things, it is You, Lord God, that can make the difference. Day by day, we make judgments and casual decisions. They all add up to a sense of direction. We move along a path in our personal lives. We set a path for this Nation. Guide us every step of the way, Lord.

Representatives in the United States Congress hold the hopes and perspectives of constituents and bring them to light on the floor of the House. To make daily decisions, they take all this into account, and yet they are appointed to be the ones to decide what is of most need for the Nation. Grant them prudence, patience, and perseverance. We ask this calling upon Your Holy Name, now and forever.

Amen.

THE JOURNAL

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair has examined the Journal of the last day’s proceedings and announces to the House his approval thereof.

Pursuant to clause 1, rule 1, the Journal stands approved.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. GARRETT) come forward and lead the House in the Pledge of Allegiance.

Mr. GARRETT of New Jersey led the Pledge of Allegiance as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

ELECTING A MINORITY MEMBER TO A CERTAIN STANDING COMMITTEE

Mrs. McMORRIS RODGERS. Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Republican Conference, I send to the desk a privileged resolution and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

Resolved, That the following member be, and is hereby, elected to the following standing committee:

COMMITTEE ON THE BUDGET—Mr. Latta.

The resolution was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

KEEP TO THE FACTS IN DEBATING THE PRESIDENT’S BUDGET

(Ms. LORETTA SANCHEZ of California asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. LORETTA SANCHEZ of California, Mr. Speaker, the President has sent his budget proposal to the Congress, and for the next few weeks we will debate it, but let’s keep to the facts in debating it.

There have been partisan attacks that claim that President Obama’s budget will kill small businesses. In fact, the President’s budget eliminates the capital gains tax for individuals on the sale of certain small business stocks and makes the research and experimentation tax credit permanent.

These proposals will spur investment and innovation to help small businesses. These are the job-creating engines of our economy, and nowhere else but in California can you see them so prominently working in this economy to build those jobs we so desperately need. Ninety-seven percent of all small businesses will not see their taxes increase in 2010.

What else is in the budget for small businesses? Twenty-eight billion dollars in loan guarantees to expand credit availability for small businesses at a time when it is really needed and support for the $1.1 billion in direct disaster loans for businesses, homes, and homeowners.

COMPREHENSIVE HEALTH CARE REFORM

(Mr. CARNAHAN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. CARNAHAN. Mr. Speaker, I’m proud of the work Congress and the President have accomplished in just over 2 months: Expanded health care for 11 million children; assistance to families to maintain their health coverage through COBRA; funds to help States prevent cuts to Medicaid; and investments in safe and cost-saving electronic health record technology.

Some naysayers claim that the President and Congress are doing too much too soon. But we cannot fix our economy without fixing our broken health care system. And that’s why I’m here today, to mark Cover the Uninsured Kids Act. It’s a call to action to achieve comprehensive health care reform, not next year, not in 4 years, but this year.

We have over 45 million individuals who lack health care coverage in this country. Fifty-six billion dollars in unpaid bills are driving up the cost of insurance for everyone.

Reforming health care will strengthen our middle class, help businesses create jobs and be competitive, rebuild the economy and put our Nation on a sound financial footing far into the future.

Now is the time for comprehensive health care reform.

THE CONFIDENTIAL SOURCE AND THE REPORTER

(Mr. POE of Texas asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. POE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, over the last few years, numerous reporters in the United States have been subpoenaed about their confidential sources.

Law enforcement, namely prosecutors, hear about a story that a news reporter covers regarding scandals, corruption, crime, or coverups, and then has the reporter subpoenaed to testify before a grand jury. The purpose of the grand jury investigation is to find out who gave such information to the reporter, with the goal to bring the confidential source before the grand jury to testify.

Most States protect journalists from having to reveal that source. However, there is no Federal law to shield the identity of confidential sources. The protection of the source’s identity is important because, without such a guarantee, sources would be fearful of possible reprisals if they revealed the information. Thus, the public would never know about the information.

With a few exceptions, prosecutors should not depend on reporters and their sources to root out crime. If whistle-blowers and reporters are protected by a shield law, the public’s right to know will be enhanced with the free flow of information.

And that’s just the way it is.

COMPREHENSIVE HEALTH CARE REFORM

(Mr. CARNAHAN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. CARNAHAN. Mr. Speaker, I’m proud of the work Congress and the President have accomplished in just over 2 months: Expanded health care for 11 million children; assistance to families to maintain their health coverage through COBRA; funds to help States prevent cuts to Medicaid; and investments in safe and cost-saving electronic health record technology.

Reforming health care will strengthen our middle class, help businesses create jobs and be competitive, rebuild the economy and put our Nation on a sound financial footing far into the future.

Now is the time for comprehensive health care reform.

THE DEMOCRAT BUDGET BORROWS TOO MUCH

(Mr. GARRETT of New Jersey asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. GARRETT of New Jersey. During the last campaign, Hillary Clinton said that she had a million good ideas. She probably never thought that she would be outbid by this new administration that has a million bad ideas that are going to cost American taxpayers literally trillions of dollars.

This current budget spends too much, taxes too much, and borrows too much. It spends too much, and it’s coming up to $2.3 trillion more than the White House even estimated a short time ago.

It taxes too much because every hardworking American household across this country is going to see their taxes go up by over $3,000. While they’re struggling with paying their bills, their taxes will be rising.

It borrows too much because it’s going to increase the debt on taxpayers across this country. Right now it stands at about $35,000 per capita. It’s going to double in 8 years to around $70,000.

You know, Americans were voting for a change. I think at the end they were really hoping for something better than this.
THE RECESSION IS REAL
(Mr. BUTTERFIELD asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)
Mr. BUTTERFIELD. Mr. Speaker, the recession is real.
In my home State of North Carolina, we have 100 counties. All of them experienced an increase in unemployment during the month of January. Seventy-two of the 100 counties had a 10 percent or higher rate of unemployment. Across my district, 23 counties, we now have an average unemployment rate of 11.2 percent. The highest county is 15.6 percent. That is unacceptable.
These numbers are staggering, and people are hurting. We must remember, Mr. Speaker, that we have met these challenges before, and we will meet this challenge now. North Carolina will benefit from about $6 billion as part of the stimulus package, which will create or save 155,000 much-needed jobs.
I am further encouraged by the efforts to ease the credit squeeze afflicting small businesses by buying up to $15 billion of securities that are linked to small business. This is an important step, Mr. Speaker, in encouraging lenders to make money available to entrepreneurs and small businesses.
I encourage the President to continue with his economic recovery.

GYRATION IN THE STOCK MARKET
(Mr. PITTS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)
Mr. PITTS. Mr. Speaker, as you can see here in this graph, what the President called gyrations of the stock market, in February of 2008, a year ago, the Dow Jones Industrial Average sat at just 13,000 points.
Just before Congress passed the so-called rebate check package worth $168 billion of borrowed money, Speaker Pelosi said, “This package gets money into the hands of Americans struggling to make ends meet.”
Yet since then, the market has lost nearly half its value. That’s trillions of dollars in wealth wiped out in 1 year from retirement accounts and the savings of hardworking families across America.
The rebate package a year ago was just the first in many attempts to borrow and spend our way out of this situation. Here we have the $300 billion housing bailout, $200 billion for Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac, $700 billion in TARP funds. Look at the drop after that: $14 billion, auto bailout; $787 billion, stimulus, before the market dropped.
Our actions have economic consequences.

WE’VE GOT TO CHANGE THE COURSE OF THIS NATION
(Mr. PERLMUTTER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)
Mr. PERLMUTTER. Mr. Speaker, I listened to my friends on the other side of the aisle. The problem is they forget, and they’re kind of revising history. It’s the Republican President and a Republican Congress that drove this country into the ditch financially and economically, and what we’ve got to do is change the course of this Nation.
That’s what the President is undertaking to do, by providing small business with tax credits, with assistance as to funding of their particular projects, because that’s where the real engine of our economy is—in small businesses.
So, last week, the President announced various initiatives to assist small business to make credit available to them for their various projects, to purchase their loans so that they could go forward, so small banks could make loans to small businesses.
This President is making available to 95 percent of us tax credits. So for 95 percent of the American public, they will see their taxes go down.
So my friends on the other side of the aisle forget the history that brought us here. The Republican administration, by giving tax cuts to the wealthiest while prosecuting a war, put us in a very difficult position, but we will get it out by changing the direction of this Nation.

THRUST FOR POWER
(Mr. KIRK asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)
Mr. KIRK. Mr. Speaker, political liberty is founded on economic liberty, and history teaches us that liberties are attacked during a crisis. The White House Chief of Staff has said never pass up an opportunity inside a crisis.
Secretary Geithner wants Congress to give the executive branch the authority to seize any financial institution in America. It is an awesome power that will be quickly abused after just one Federal Reserve Board vote among all Presidential appointees. No judge would rule. No vote of the Congress would happen. This is a historic lunge for power.
Americans, remember, it was government agencies, Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac, that caused this crisis. I am from Chicago, and I know about government abuse and corruption.
We should reject Geithner’s opportunistic thrust for control or rue this Congress when it gave only one branch of this government such a corruptible economic authority.

WE NEED ALL HANDS ON DECK IN THESE SERIOUS ECONOMIC TIMES
(Mr. YARMUTH asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)
Mr. YARMUTH. Mr. Speaker, we are in very serious economic times. Unprecedented challenges confront this country. It is a time when we need all hands on deck.
Unfortunately, all we’ve heard from the other side of the aisle is hyperbole: we’re spending too much, we’re not doing this, we’re not doing that. We need ideas.
It’s been said in America has always come because of a conflict of ideas, because of ideas converging and taking the best and assimilating them into policies that benefit all Americans. We’re not getting the help we need from our Republican colleagues. Again, we need all hands on deck.
Just this Sunday, one of the Republican Members was on a national talk show and said our faith in God is going to get us through this. Well, maybe it will, but faith in God, as important as it is, is not an economic policy.
We need the best that America has to offer from all sides of America. I invite my Republican colleagues to participate in this debate and help get us out of this economic challenge.

INTRODUCTION OF H.R. 1111
(Mr. REHBERG asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)
Mr. REHBERG. Mr. Speaker, each year there are two things that can get in the way of thousands of visitors seeking the picturesque vistas of Montana and all that it has to offer: high energy prices that make the trip too expensive and a blanket of smoke from out-of-control wildfires.
I’ve introduced legislation that brings some Montana common sense to those problems by literally harnessing the energy of a forest fire to generate electricity.
You see, nature wants to let the fires burn in order to preserve healthy forests, while man continues to try and put them out. When we interfere with nature, we wind up with overgrown forests that burn hotter and longer, wasting a potential renewable energy source. My bill restores these forests to a more natural and healthy density, while using the excess wood to create biomass energy.
Join me in cosponsoring H.R. 1111 to reduce the cost of wildfires and the cost of energy.

HEALTH CARE MYTH: HEALTH REFORM WILL LIMIT PATIENT CHOICE
(Mr. MURPHY of Connecticut asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)
Mr. MURPHY of Connecticut. Another health care myth—if we reform our health care system, patients will lose choice. Again, this is simply not true. First, it begs the question: What choice do patients have today?
In America, we have choice, but too often it lies not with the doctor or patient, but with the insurance company.
Patients are denied physician-prescribed treatment, doctors are denied reimbursement for necessary care, and increasingly restrictive networks of coverage mean restrictive choice for patients. A survey of the leading proposals for reform shows that no one is talking about limiting patient choice. In fact, a publicly sponsored plan, with a potential network of millions of Americans, would likely have one of the most robust networks of providers in the system since doctors and hospitals would want and need to have access to this large pool of patients.

A public plan itself increases patient choice by allowing families to decide whether they want to continue with their private insurance plan or move to a publicly sponsored plan that might provide better coverage due to lower administrative and profit costs.

Health care reform limiting patient choice? It’s just another myth about our health care system.

STOP JOB-KILLING TAX INCREASES

(Mr. PAULSEN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. PAULSEN. Mr. Speaker, we will not recover from this recession unless small business leads the way by growing jobs. A small business owner from my district, Paul Robinson of Sterling Critical Products in Bloomington, was just in Washington last week. The message he has for Congress is that we need to provide incentives and access to capital for small business—and we need to make sure that no job-killing tax increases are added to their burden.

The $1.4 trillion tax increase that is on the table in the current budget proposal would drive a stake into the heart of our Nation’s job creators. The proposal to raise taxes on asset creation by 33 percent would dry up badly needed capital and keep them from creating jobs.

My constituents are living within their means and they’re cutting expenses. They expect Washington to do the same. But this budget spends too much, it taxes too much, and it borrows too much.

In these difficult times, we demand solutions that put people back to work. Let’s reject these job-killing tax increases and start growing jobs now by supporting small business owners like Paul.

UNINSURED WEEK

(Mr. COSTA asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. COSTA. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to call upon the Congress to reform our health care system. It’s important. Forty-six million Americans currently have no health care insurance, yet health care costs have risen dramatically in years.

Insurance premiums in California have risen at a rate more than twice the rate of inflation, eating up a larger and larger percentage of household incomes. With the recent economic downturn, far too many families are losing their employer-based coverage and unable to afford the cost of health care on their own.

Like it or not, we taxpayers are paying for the health care in some of the most expensive ways possible, through the emergency room, for those who are uninsured. Last year, hospitals in my district provided nearly $200 million in uncompensated care. Clinics in our Central Valley alone have provided care for over 600,000 who have little insurance or none at all.

This system cannot and should not continue. The bottom line is we are paying for the uninsured today—the 46 million Americans who do not have insurance. We ought to do it in a better way.

Our citizens’ health and our Nation’s fiscal health depend on meaningful reform. Let’s begin this effort.

DIALOGUE WITH THE PRESIDENT

(Mr. DANIEL E. LUNGREN of California asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. DANIEL E. LUNGREN of California. Yesterday, Father Jenkins, the President of my alma mater, Notre Dame, explained his decision to give President Obama an honorary degree, in spite of his opposition to the culture of life expressed by that university and the Catholic Church. He explained it as an invitation to dialogue with the President. Let us hope so.

Let us hope there is a dialogue on the President’s support for partial-birth abortion; on his opposition to the born-alive baby legislation; on his reversal of the Mexico City policy; on his support for Federal funding for embryonic stem cells where, denouncing it, he gave the back of the hand to Catholic moral teaching; and, in vitiating the Federal regulations guaranteeing the conscience clause, which is aimed at Catholic hospitals, doctors, and nurses. Will this be an invitation to dialogue? Will the commencement address be an opportunity for the President to question his prior decisions? God only knows.

COVER THE UNSURED WEEK WITH A CALL FOR COMPREHENSIVE HEALTH CARE REFORM

(Ms. WATSON asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Ms. WATSON. Mr. Speaker, this is Cover the Uninsured Week, March 22–29, and I call for enactment of comprehensive health care reform this year.

Reforming the Nation’s health care to lower costs, improve quality, increase coverage, and preserve choice is a top priority for Congress and the President. Our Nation’s health care system, which costs more every year and leaves more than 45 million citizens uninsured, and millions more underinsured, is in bad need of reform.

We simply can’t afford to wait any longer to make the changes necessary to ensure greater access to quality health care.

The problem of the uninsured and its impact on the entire health care system continues to grow. The Federal Government estimates that over 45 million individuals lacked health insurance coverage of any kind during the last year, 2008. Approximately $56 billion is in uncompensated care.

We need to change that.

PROTECT PROSPERITY

(Mrs. BLACKBURN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Mrs. BLACKBURN. My constituents are tired of Congress spending money they haven’t made into programs they don’t want. According to the CBO, total spending in 2009 is going to be over $4 trillion. The price tag on the President’s budget is over $3.6 trillion.

Our country can’t afford this budget because it spends too much, it taxes too much, and it borrows too much money on our future.

The CBO predicts that this budget will push our deficit to 9.6 percent of GDP in 2019. THAT’S HISTORICAL. CBO predicts that this country will run historically high deficits for the next decade. The global demand for American debt will only continue if our economic policies are sound.

Although we don’t know the limits of the debt market, this budget is going to push us into unchartered territory. As lawmakers, it is our duty to preserve and protect prosperity. If we pass this budget, we will be abusing the economic opportunity for our children and our grandchildren. What kind of protection is that?

BREAST CANCER PATIENT PROTECT ACT OF 2009

(Ms. DeLAURO asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. DeLAURO. An estimated 184,000 cases of invasive breast cancer were diagnosed last year. I rise today in support of every breast cancer patient who has ever undergone a mastectomy and then been told by her insurance company that she has to leave the hospital in 24 hours or less before she has had time to recover.

I’m reintroducing the Breast Cancer Patient Protection Act today. It’s a bipartisan bill that overwhelmingly passed this House last year by a vote of 421–2. Simply, it ensures that after breast cancer surgery, a woman will have 48 hours to recuperate in the hospital, no matter which State she lives. in or what insurance coverage she has. It does not mandate that the patient has to stay in the hospital for 48 hours, but the decision should be made by patient and doctor and not by an insurance company.

A lifetime TV petition has been signed more than 23 million times, with people directing their stories to their Web site. We have information from 50 States.

The last thing any woman should do at this time is to fight with her insurance company. This should not be negotiable. Ultimately, that decision should be up to the patient and her doctor.

Before this session of Congress is over, we must take Federal action and pass the Breast Cancer Patient Protection Act into law, and take away this barrier to quality breast cancer care.

REWRITING HISTORY
(Ms. FOXX asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Ms. FOXX. I am absolutely amazed at the ability of my colleagues to bring to life the novel 1984 by Orwell. They stand up every day and rewrite history right here on the floor of the House.

We had 55 straight months of job growth, which ended in January 2007. Why? The Democrats took over the Congress that month. The Democrats then began spending too much, taxing too much, and borrowing too much—and they continue to do that. Their plans are going to finish off this country and they continue to do that. Their plans will grow the Nation's debt to 82 percent of the overall economy by 2019—from 41 percent in 2008.

The Democrat budget doubles the share of the debt on every family in America. The current debt per capita is roughly $35,000. Under the Democrat budget, this will rise to $70,000 in only 8 years.

Despite the Democrats' claim, their budget plans for deficits through 2019 are actually higher than any year before President Obama took office.

ONE ROAD TO ECONOMIC PROSPERITY
(Mr. COHEN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. COHEN. The American public wants to see bipartisanship and they want to see Democrats and Republicans work together. This is my second Congress I have served in, and it's disappointing to me to see a new President—who was elected with overwhelming numbers and overwhelming support—not get bipartisan support and help on his efforts.

I don't agree with President Obama on everything that he is trying to do to get us out of this economic crisis that the Republican Congress and the previous President and Vice President left us in. But I support our President because I know we have one executive authority and one Treasury Department that needs to have a direction to get us on the road to prosperity.

It is disappointing that people just criticize, criticize, criticize. The fact is we need to spend to stimulate this economy and recovery package as well as a reinvestment package to get this economy moving, and that's what is being offered. It's being geared toward the middle class that's being forgotten.

On the other side, they talk about preserving prosperity for our children and our grandchildren. Most people in this country—95 percent—don't have prosperity, and they need help. The Democratic budget will help them with health care, jobs, and education.

HONORING PRIVATE JASON WATSON
(Mr. FLEMING asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. FLEMING. I would like to take this privileged opportunity to honor and celebrate the life of Private Jason Watson. Private Watson is from Many, Louisiana, and recently died in Afghanistan.

Private Watson gave that last full measure of devotion to defend our freedom, and his death is a reminder of the cost of our liberty. Remember that it's not the Congressman and it's not the reporter who guarantee freedom of speech, it's the uniformed servicemembers working every day.

He proudly defended America so that we may never experience the horror of another terrorist attack on our home soil. While little will comfort the pain his family feels at this time, I want to thank them on behalf of our country, a grateful country, and let them know that their family will be in our prayers.

Private Jason Watson died a hero. I challenge my colleagues to remember our role here in Congress to make responsible decisions to protect the lives of Americans and to uphold the values and the pillars of freedom this brave young man died for.

HONORING THE LONG BEACH MUNICIPAL BAND
(Ms. RICHARDSON asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Ms. RICHARDSON. Mr. Speaker, I rise today as the daughter of a musician to honor the Long Beach Municipal Band on their 100-year anniversary. On March 14, 1909, under the direction of E. Harry Willey, the Long Beach Municipal Band gave its first performance at the Bath House Band Shell on the Pine Avenue Pier.

In particular, what I want to say about the band is, following a 6.25 magnitude earthquake in March of 1933 that almost destroyed an entire city, it was the band that remained and played to encourage the families who were left in shelters and in nearby parks.

Since that time, the Long Beach Municipal Band has gone on to perform 57,000 concerts, over 1 million pieces of music. Also, it's known as the longest running, municipally supported band in our country.

Please applaud our great city that has made an investment—the second-largest city in the largest country in this Nation—to remember that art is a part of music, and it's a part of this country.

NOT LOOKING FOR A BAILOUT, JUST A FAIR SHAKE
(Mr. THOMPSON of Pennsylvania asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. THOMPSON of Pennsylvania. It has been 68 days, Mr. Speaker, since the United States Forest Service approved a notice to proceed with oil and gas production on the Allegheny National Forest.

Why is this cause for concern? Well, we are talking about a relationship between the Forest Service and private landowners that has existed for 86 years without a disruption of this magnitude. We are talking about jobs. Without permits to proceed, companies continue to lay off employees, and the local economy suffers.

Take Michael Hale's company, for example, a constituent of mine from Bradford, Pennsylvania, who recently wrote:

"As an owner of an excavating company during tough difficult times, I am discouraged by the recent actions by the Forest Service in delaying processing of notices to proceed for oil and gas extraction in the Allegheny National Forest.

"For the first time in our 26-year history, we have had to make adjustments to our workforce due to an inability to work. Currently, 35 percent of our field workers have been laid off and the remaining workers have had their hours reduced by 25 percent.

"We are not asking for a handout or a bailout of any kind, we just want to be able to work."

It's companies like Michael Hale's that are the fabric which holds this economy and many of our rural communities together. They're not looking for a bailout, just a fair shake.

THE DEMOCRAT BUDGET SPENDS TOO MUCH, BORROWS TOO MUCH, AND TAXES TOO MUCH
(Mr. KINGSTON asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. KINGSTON. Mr. Speaker, the Democrat budget spends too much, borrows too much, and taxes too much. But spending and taxes has never been a problem for Speaker PELOSI and this Congress.

Take the latest boondoggle in the stimulus bill—$3 million for the city of Georgetown and Adams Morgan, upper income neighborhoods of Washington, DC, so that they can do, what? Install bike racks and buy new bicycles for all these poor yuppie elitist residents there, many of them who make six-digit incomes.

Now, to my knowledge, the Speaker pro tempore and I are the only Members of Congress who regularly ride bikes to work. I am glad. He’s got a great bike. Mine isn’t quite as nice, but I think it is a good bike. But we paid for them with our own money.

Why should the Federal Government have a bicycle program? Why are we going out to two of the wealthiest neighborhoods in Washington, DC and saying, hey, we are going to buy bicycles for you people? That is ridiculous, and that is part of the reason that we need to reject the Democrat budget. It spends too much money, taxes too much, and borrows too much.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore, Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX, the Chair will postpone further proceedings today on motions to suspend the rules on which a recorded vote or the yeas and nays are ordered, or on which the vote incurs objection under clause 6 of rule XX.

Record votes on postponed questions will be taken later.

DEPARTMENT OF HOMELAND SECURITY COMPONENT PRIVACY OFFICER ACT OF 2009

Mr. CARNEY. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 1617) to amend the Homeland Security Act of 2002 to provide for a privacy official within each component of the Department of Homeland Security, and for other purposes.

The Clerk read the title of the bill. The text of the bill is as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the “Department of Homeland Security Component Privacy Officer Act of 2009”.

SEC. 2. ESTABLISHMENT OF PRIVACY OFFICIAL WITHIN EACH COMPONENT OF DEPARTMENT OF HOMELAND SECURITY.

(a) In general.—Subtitle C of title II of the Homeland Security Act of 2002 (6 U.S.C. 141 et seq.) is amended by inserting after section 222 the following new section:

SEC. 222A. PRIVACY OFFICIALS.

“(1) In general.—For each component of the Department under paragraph (2), the Secretary shall in consultation with the head of the component, designate a full-time privacy official, who shall report directly to the senior official appointed under section 222. Each such component privacy official shall have primary responsibility for its component in implementing the privacy policies and procedures in accordance with the policies and procedures of such official under this section;

“(2) COMPONENTS.—The components of the Department referred to in this subparagraph are as follows:

“A. The Transportation Security Administration.

“(c) ROLE OF COMPONENT HEADS.—The head of the component shall have the responsibilities of such official under this Act assigned to such component.

“(1) has the information, material, and resources necessary to fulfill the responsibilities of such official under this Act;

“(2) is advised of proposed policy changes and the development of new programs, rules, regulations, procedures, or guidelines during the planning stage and is included in the decisionmaking process;

“(3) is given access to material and personnel the privacy official deems necessary to carry out the official’s responsibilities;

“(4) LIMITATION.—Nothing in this section shall be construed to abrogate the role and responsibilities of the privacy official under section 222.

(b) CLERICAL AMENDMENT.—The table of contents in section 1(b) of such Act is amended by inserting after the item related to section 222 the following new item:

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. CARNEY) and the gentleman from Florida (Mr. BILLAKIS) each will control 20 minutes.

Mr. CARNEY. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks and insert extraneous materials on the bill under consideration.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Pennsylvania?

There was no objection.

Mr. CARNEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I rise in support of H.R. 1617, the Department of Homeland Security Component Privacy Officer Act of 2009. This legislation will give the Department of Homeland Security the resources it needs to accurately assess how its programs and policies impact privacy. It will put the Department at the forefront of individual privacy protection in the face of changing technology.

The Department’s Chief Privacy Officer was the first ever statutorily created Federal privacy officer. The goal when establishing this office was for it to serve as the gold standard for other Federal agencies as they sought to fulfill their missions, while ensuring that privacy was protected.

Building on the original intent of the privacy officer, this bill would make the Department the first Federal agency to have a Privacy Officer in its component agencies. This will put the Department at the forefront of individual privacy protection in the face of changing technology.

Mr. CARNEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the Chair recognizes the gentleman from Pennsylvania. and will expedite privacy impact assessments awaiting completion and approval at the Department of Homeland Security.

The bill arose from a Government Accountability Office study, internal discussions with the Department’s Office of Privacy and Public Affairs, and public comments received by the DHS Chief Privacy Officer.

The act requires the Component Privacy Officers to, among other things: Serve as a point of contact between their component head and the DHS Privacy Officer; draft and review Privacy Impact Assessments and Federal Register notices published by their component; monitor the component’s compliance with all applicable Federal privacy laws and regulations; and conduct supervision of programs, regulations, policies, procedures, or guidelines to ensure the component’s protection of privacy.

The presence of a full-time Component Privacy Officer would ensure that privacy considerations are integrated into the decision-making process at each of the DHS’s components.

This body approved this commonsense measure during the previous Congress, and I urge my colleagues to continue to support this much-needed legislation to close this gap in the Department of Homeland Security’s programs.

I hope the committee will work to craft an authorization bill for the Department this year to address issues such as this one and to ensure the Department has all the necessary tools to achieve its vital mission. I urge my colleagues to support H.R. 1617.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. CARNEY. Mr. Speaker, I am prepared to close after the gentleman closes.

Mr. BILIRAKIS. I yield to the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. BROUN) 3 minutes.

Mr. BROUN of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. CARNEY) for offering this very important suspension.

As the gentleman knows, I am also on the Homeland Security Committee, and feel as though there is no greater responsibility of this body than to protect the homeland. But, Mr. Speaker, protecting the homeland doesn’t begin and end with privacy officers in the Department of Homeland Security. It is also our responsibility as Members of Congress to protect the economic security of the homeland.

Governance in a fiscally responsible manner is one way to ensure that the citizens of this country are economically secure.

I would note, Mr. Speaker, that the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. CARNEY) who brought forth this suspension has voted for both the $1 trillion stimulus which included a secret provision to allow the AIG bonuses to go forward, and a $410 billion omnibus spending bill which contained nearly 9,000 earmarks. That is nearly $2 trillion of added debt that the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. CARNEY) and his Democratic colleagues voted to place on our children and our grandchildren.

Mr. Speaker, next week we will have another opportunity to vote up or down on massive deficit spending. The Democratic budget will add trillions more of spending to the national debt and to the families of this country.

Mr. Speaker, I ask the gentleman, Mr. CARNEY, if he intends to vote for next week’s budget which runs contrary to the security of this country? I yield to the gentleman, if he would care to respond.

Mr. CARNEY. Mr. Speaker, on the matter of consideration, I believe in the privacy that we are after.

Mr. BROWN of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, it is unfortunate that the gentleman from Pennsylvania will not share his intentions with the American people. I think we should all be transparent about our votes here in Congress.

In 8 years, American families will either be on the hook for $70,000 apiece, or they won’t. If you vote “yes” on this budget, you intend eit to put $70,000 of debt on each family in this country. If you vote “no,” you don’t intend to put that burden on families. I hope we all keep that in mind as we prepare to vote on the Democratic budget next week. I believe that this budget is fiscally irresponsible.

Mr. CARNEY. I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. BILIRAKIS. I urge my colleagues to pass H.R. 1617, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. CARNEY. I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, public trust in the Department’s ability to protect personal privacy rights is abysmally low. The last administration’s habit of bringing in the privacy office at the 11th hour is not the proper way to blend in the privacy protections and appropriate safeguards before policies and programs are under way.

Although we trust the new administration to do better, we must also acknowledge that privacy protections have to begin at the component level.

This bill will provide each Department of Homeland Security component that handles personally identifiable information with its own privacy officer that will report up to both its component head and to DHS headquarters. Further, the bill will balance the need for greater accountability of privacy rights associated with personally identifiable information while enhancing the safety of our Nation. I therefore urge my colleagues to support this measure.

Mr. THOMPSON of Mississippi. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H.R. 1617, the Department of Homeland Security Component Privacy Officer Act of 2009.

The Department’s Chief Privacy Officer has the distinction of being the first-ever statutorily-created Federal Privacy Officer.

Along those same lines, this bill, introduced by Representative CARNEY, the Chairman of our Management Subcommittee, would make DHS the first Federal agency to have statutorily-required privacy officers in all its major component agencies.

To be effective, privacy officers need to be where the action is happening, not waiting for notice after key decisions have already been made.

However, currently, if the Department’s Chief Privacy Officer needs information concerning programs and practices that impact privacy rights, he has to go through the head of the relevant component.

Sometimes this information is shared, sometimes it is not.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Moreover, we have seen major privacy missteps, wasted Federal tax dollars, and even cancelled programs. Under this bill, the Transportation Security Administration, Customs and Border Protection, Immigration and Customs Enforcement, FEMA, and Coast Guard are among the key components that would receive a privacy officer.

Placing Privacy Officers in these key component agencies is the first step in ensuring that privacy protections are in place at the beginning of the policymaking process.

This bill was informed by an investigation by the Government Accountability Office, internal discussions with the Department’s Office of Privacy, and publications released by the DHS Chief Privacy Office.

Moreover, this legislation was approved overwhelmingly by voice vote when considered by the House in the 110th Congress.
I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting this legislation that will help ensure the effective operations of the Department of Homeland Security.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I rise in full support of H.R. 1617, legislation that will greatly enhance the security of the Department of Homeland Security, thereby making our nation safer. I wish to recognize my colleague, the gentleman from Pennsylvania, CHRISTOPHER CARNEY, for his work on this bill. In addition, I would like to thank the Chair, the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. CARNEY), for his continued leadership in making our nation as safe as possible.

This bill amends Subtitle C of the Homeland Security Act of 2002, mandating a full-time privacy official within each part of the Department of Homeland Security. The privacy official will act under the direction of the senior appointed official of the Department of Homeland Security. The privacy official will work within the following components:

The Transportation Security Administration.

The Bureau of Citizenship and Immigration Services.

Customs and Border Protection.

Immigration and Customs Enforcement.

The Coast Guard.

The Directorate of Science and Technology.

The Office of Intelligence and Analysis.

The Directorate for National Protection and Programs.

The privacy official will be the senior official’s eyes and ears regarding matters of privacy and matters that are within the Department of Homeland Security’s jurisdiction.

The bill requires the new component privacy officials to monitor the Department of Homeland Security’s component’s compliance with all applicable federal privacy laws and regulations, implement corrective or preventative actions, and notify the senior privacy official for the department.

The privacy component officials would assist in drafting and reviewing privacy impact assessments for system acquisition threshold assessments, and the system of records notices, for any new or changed program or technology that collects, maintains, or disseminates personally identifiable information within their components, or for proposed rulemakings and regulations within their components. The level of hands-on involvement gives me confidence that the privacy officers in the various divisions will be able to perform their jobs effectively.

The privacy component officials would be required to conduct supervision of programs or procedures, to ensure protection of privacy, as well as implement and monitor privacy training for employees and contractors. The privacy officials would provide the senior privacy official with written materials and information regarding the relevant activities of the component, including privacy violations or abuse, that the senior official needs to prepare reports for Congress. These are protective measures which could be deemed intrusive, but that is exactly what we want from our privacy officials. A hallmark of the new administration is transparency in government. I believe that as the American people see more of what we do in Congress their confidence in government.

Any other responsibilities could be assigned by the Secretary of the Department of Homeland Security or the senior privacy official for the Department. Nothing in the bill should be considered to abolish the role and responsibilities of the senior privacy official, or diminish their capacity within the Department of Homeland Security framework.

This is an important job and my wish is that the new appointee will be in place in regular order and fashion so that they can get on with the job of protecting our homeland.

Mr. CARNEY. I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is the motion offered by the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. CARNEY) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 1617.

The question was taken.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. In the opinion of the Chair, two-thirds being in the affirmative, the ayes have it.

Mr. CARNEY. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX and the Chair’s prior announcement, further proceedings on this motion will be postponed.

MARITIME BIOMETRIC IDENTIFICATION PROGRAM

Mr. CARNEY. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 1148) to require the Secretary of Homeland Security to conduct a program in the maritime environment for the mobile biometric identification of suspected individuals, including terrorists, to enhance border security.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The text of the bill is as follows:

H.R. 1148

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. MARITIME BIOMETRIC IDENTIFICATION.

(a) In General.—Not later than one year after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of Homeland Security shall conduct, in the maritime environment, a program for the mobile biometric identification of suspected individuals, including terrorists, to enhance border security for other purposes.

(b) Requirements.—The Secretary shall ensure the program described in subsection (a) is coordinated with other biometric identification programs within the Department of Homeland Security.

(c) Cost Analysis.—Not later than 90 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall submit to the Committee on Appropriations and the Committee on Homeland Security of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Appropriations and the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs of the Senate an analysis of the cost of expanding the Department’s biometric identification capabilities for use by departmental maritime assets considered appropriate by the Secretary.

(d) Definition.—For the purposes of this section, the term “biometric identification” means the use of fingerprint and digital photography images.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. CARNEY) and the gentleman from Florida (Mr. BILIRAKIS) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. CARNEY. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks and include therein extraneous material on the bill under consideration.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Pennsylvania?

There was no objection.

Mr. CARNEY. I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of H.R. 1148, a bill that will enhance the Department of Homeland Security’s ability to execute its border security mission in the maritime environment.

The U.S. coastline extends over 95,000 miles, and every day illegal immigrants and potential terrorists attempt to bypass the Department of Homeland Security watchdogs—the Coast Guard and Customs and Border Protection—in their efforts to sneak into the United States. Many of these individuals have already been convicted of felonies in the United States, and many more are wanted by U.S. law enforcement on outstanding warrants for felonies and other dangerous crimes.

As the lead Federal agency charged with border security, it is DHS’s mission to keep dangerous people out of our country. H.R. 1148 authorizes DHS to use technology that has been successfully piloted by the Coast Guard and the US-VISIT program since November of 2006 to identify dangerous people before they cross our borders and to better coordinate prosecution with Federal law enforcement agencies.

For example, as of March 3, 2009, the department has collected biometric information from 2,455 individuals interdicted in the Mona Pass, a 90-mile stretch of water in the Caribbean between Puerto Rico and the Dominican Republic.

DHS uses satellite technology to immediately compare the individual’s fingerprints against the US-VISIT database, which includes information about wanted criminals, immigration violators, and those who have previously encountered government authorities. Of these nearly 2,500 individuals who have been checked, almost 600 people have been found to have outstanding warrants and warrants in the United States.

To date, Federal prosecutors have successfully prosecuted 271, or 45 percent, of the matched individuals. As a result, migrant flow in the Mona Pass has been reduced by 75 percent since November 17, 2006. I would like to note that my colleague on the Management, Investigations and Oversight Subcommittee, Representative BILIRAKIS, had already an identical bill in the 110th Congress. And I was pleased to support his homeland security measure that passed the House by a vote of 394-3, with one Member voting present. I urge my colleagues to vote for this bill, one which gives the Secretary of Homeland Security the tools she needs to secure our Nation's maritime border. I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. BILIRAKIS. I yield myself, Mr. Speaker, as much time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H.R. 1148 which I introduced earlier this year. This bill directs the Secretary of Homeland Security to conduct a cost analysis and determine the most appropriate places to expand upon a successful pilot program conducted by the Coast Guard that collects biometric information on illegal aliens interdicted at sea. This tool, as used by the Coast Guard, has made a measurable impact on our border security and could be used by other DHS components with assets in the maritime environment, such as Customs and Border Protection. The expansion of this program will fully enhance the Department's efforts to secure our borders.

The February 3 episode of Homeland Security U.S.A. showed the Coast Guard using this technology at sea when it rescued a boat full of illegal aliens attempting to make it from the Dominican Republic to Puerto Rico. As a result of the use of these biometrics, the Coast Guard was able to identify and detain 10 individuals with criminal records in the United States, including a repeat human smuggler who was wanted by Customs and Border Protection. This episode illustrated the use of biometrics at sea and on land. It works. In fact, the Coast Guard has reported that illegal migration in the Mona Pass, the narrow body of water between the Dominican Republic and Puerto Rico, has been reduced by 75 percent as a result of the biometrics program.

Since the beginning of the Coast Guard's biometrics pilot in the Caribbean in November, 2006, the Coast Guard has collected biometric data from 2,455 migrants using handheld scanners. This has resulted in the identification of 598 individuals with criminal records in the United States, including U.S. Attorney's Office in San Juan, Puerto Rico, has prosecuted 271 individuals for violations of U.S. law, with a 100 percent conviction rate.

We have seen the success of this pilot program. It ensures that individuals attempting to enter the United States illegally by sea that have criminal records will not simply be returned to their homelands. They will be detained so they cannot attempt to enter the U.S. again. It is now time for the Department to determine the best and most effective manner to expand this program to enhance border security. I urge the Department will deploy this program in the most risk-based, cost-efficient manner possible consistent with the current appropriations of the Coast Guard and other DHS components. I also look forward to expanding the appropriate program as well.

I urge my colleagues to join me in this effort. This is the third time that the House is considering legislation to authorize this program. An amendment I offered to the Coast Guard Authorization Act that was similar to the bill was considered, it was passed actually, last year by a voice vote on April 24. In addition, the House passed a stand-alone version of that amendment last summer, as Mr. CARNEY said, with his support, at 394-3. The biometrics program is another tool that is being used by the Department in its effort to secure our borders. I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting H.R. 1148.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. CARNEY. Mr. Speaker, I have no more speakers. If the gentleman from Florida has no more speakers, then I'm prepared to close after the gentleman closes.

Mr. BILIRAKIS. I have no more speakers, Mr. Speaker. I urge my colleagues to pass H.R. 1148, and I thank the chairman. I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. THOMPSON of Mississippi. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 1148, a bill that will enhance the Department of Homeland Security's ability to execute its border security mission in the maritime environment. H.R. 1148 seeks to build upon the success of the DHS pilot by requiring the Secretary of Homeland Security to analyze the cost of deploying the biometric program in other waters.

If enacted, H.R. 1148 would enhance the ability of DHS to conduct mobile biometric identification of suspected individuals, including terrorists interdicted at sea.

For these reasons, I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting H.R. 1148.

Mr. BILIRAKIS. I have no more speakers, Mr. Speaker. I urge my colleagues to pass H.R. 1148, and I thank the chairman.

I urge passage of this important homeland security legislation that will help enhance the security of our maritime borders. Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 1148, a measure that will help protect our nation from another attack. This bill may not make headlines but it is at the essence of what protecting the American people is all about. We cannot wrap our nation in bubble wrap but we can take thorough and effective steps to thwart potential attacks. As we have seen, the forces of evil will go to enormous lengths to accomplish their insidious goals. That is why I join in a bipartisan spirit my colleague from Florida, Gus BILIRAKIS in support of this measure.

This bill requires the Department of Homeland Security, no later than one year after the date of enactment, to conduct a maritime program for the mobile biometric identification of suspected individuals, including terrorists. Biometric identification is defined to apply to the use of fingerprint and digital photography images. The Department of Homeland Security must ensure that the maritime program is coordinated with other biometric identification programs.

The Department of Homeland Security must submit a cost analysis no later than 90 days after the prospective enactment of this bill, expanding its biometric identification capabilities for maritime use to the House Appropriations and Homeland Security committees, and to the Senate Appropriations, and Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs committees. The analysis could include a tiered plan for the deployment of the program that gives priority to vessels and units more likely to encounter individuals suspected of making unlawful border crossings by sea. It is clear that we must try to secure our borders from all sides and often the liquid borders are forgotten in the discussion.

Indeed, Mr. Speaker, this legislation passed the House of Representatives and I, like 394... of my colleagues, both Democratic and Republican voted for it. Fighting against terrorists and other criminals must remain a bipartisan effort. It is also something that we must take up on all fronts: land, sea and air. Last weekend, in my role as Chairwoman of the Homeland Security Subcommittee on Transportation and Infrastructure, I had the opportunity to meet some of the fine professionals who work for the Department of Homeland Security's Transportation Security Administration division. They work tirelessly to defend our nation's airports. They make a stressful job seem effortless, and often are invisible, which is the hallmark of good security. Just as the transportation security professionals I met in New York City's LaGuardia Airport make our nation safer, so will the maritime security professionals from the United States Coast Guard.

The Coast Guard is made of truly dedicated and able professionals.

Again, Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support and urge my colleagues to support this legislation that will further strengthen our nation's ability to protect ourselves from both criminal and terrorist attacks.

Mr. CARNEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. CARNEY) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 1148.

The question was taken; and (two-thirds being in the affirmative) the rules were suspended and the bill was passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

NUCLEAR FORENSICS AND ATTRIBUTION ACT

Mr. CARNEY. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 730) to strengthen efforts in the Department of Homeland Security to develop nuclear forensics capabilities to protect the nation from the source of nuclear material, and for other purposes.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The text of the bill is as follows:

H.R. 730

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "Nuclear Forensics and Attribution Act".

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

Congress finds the following:

(1) The threat of a nuclear terrorist attack on American interests, both domestic and abroad, is one of the most serious threats to the national security of the United States. In the wake of an attack, attribution of responsibility would be of utmost importance.

(2) To date, nuclear forensics is a relatively undeveloped field. The post-detonation nuclear forensics field is also immature, and the challenges are compounded by the pressures and time constraints facing forensics after a nuclear or radiological attack.

(3) A robust and well-known capability to identify the source of nuclear or radiological material used in an act of terror could also deter prospective proliferators. Furthermore, the threat of effective attribution could compel improved national security practices, preventing the unwitting transfer of nuclear or radiological materials.

(4)(A) In order to identify special nuclear material and other radioactive materials confidently, it is necessary to have a robust capability to acquire samples in a timely manner, maintain nuclear samples, and compare samples against known signatures of nuclear and radiological material. (B) Many of the radioisotopes produced in the detonation of a nuclear device have short half-lives, so the timely acquisition of samples is of the utmost importance. Over the past several decades, the ability of the United States to acquire samples—often the preferred method of sample acquisition—has diminished. This ability must be restored and modern techniques that could complement or replace existing techniques should be pursued.

(5) The discipline of pre-detonation forensics is a relatively undeveloped field. The radiation signatures associated with a nuclear or radiological device may affect traditional forensics techniques in unknown ways. In a post-detonation scenario, radiochemistry may provide the most useful tools for analysis and characterization of samples. The number of radiochemistry programs and facilities in the United States National Laboratories and universities has dramatically declined over the past several decades. The narrowing pipeline of qualified people into this critical field is a serious impediment to maintaining a robust and credible nuclear forensics program.

(6) Once samples have been acquired and characterized, it is necessary to compare the results against samples of known material from reactors, weapons, and enrichment facilities, and from medical, academic, commercial, and non-intelligence containing such materials, throughout the world. Some of these samples are available to the International Atomic Energy Agency through safeguards agreements, and some countries maintain internal sample databases. Access to samples in many countries is limited by national security concerns.

(7) In order to create a sufficient deterrent, it is necessary to have the capability to positively identify the source of nuclear or radiological material, and potential traffickers in nuclear material must be aware of that capability. International cooperation may be essential to catalogue all existing sources of nuclear or radiological material.

SEC. 3. SENSE OF CONGRESS ON INTERNATIONAL AGREEMENTS FOR FORENSICS CO-OPERTATION.

It is the sense of the Congress that the President should—

(1) pursue bilateral and multilateral international agreements to establish, or seek to establish under the auspices of existing bilateral or multilateral agreements, an international framework for determining the source of any detonated weapon and the nuclear or radiological material used in such a weapon;

(2) develop protocols for the data exchange and dissemination of sensitive information relating to nuclear or radiological materials and samples of controlled nuclear or radiological materials, to the extent required by the agreements entered into under paragraph (1); and

(3) develop expedited protocols for the data exchange and dissemination of sensitive information needed to publicly identify the source of a nuclear or radiological weapon.

SEC. 4. ROLES FOR DOMESTIC NUCLEAR DETECTION OFFICE.

(a) ADDITIONAL RESPONSIBILITIES.—Section 1902 of the Homeland Security Act of 2002 (as redesignated by Public Law 110–33; 6 U.S.C. 592) is amended—

(A) in paragraph (9), by striking "and" after the semicolon;

(B) by redesigning paragraph (10) as paragraph (14); and

(C) by inserting after paragraph (9) the following:

“(10) develop and implement, with the approval of the Secretary and in coordination with the heads of appropriate departments and agencies, methods and capabilities to support the attribution of nuclear or radiological material to its source when such material is intercepted by the United States, foreign governments, or international bodies; and

“(11) establish, within the Domestic Nuclear Detection Office, the National Nuclear Forensics Center to provide centralized stewardship, planning, assessment, gap analysis, exercises, improvement, and integration for all Federal nuclear forensics activities in order to ensure a strong national technical nuclear forensics capability and strengthen the collective response of the United States to nuclear terrorism or other nuclear attacks;

“(12) establish a National Nuclear Forensics Expertise Development Program which—

“(A) is devoted to developing and maintaining a vibrant and enduring academic pathway from undergraduate to post-doctorate study in nuclear and geochemical sciences and related specialties dedicated to developing technical nuclear forensics, including radiochemistry, geochemistry, nuclear physics, nuclear engineering, materials science, and analytical chemistry; and

“(i) make available for undergraduate study student scholarships, with a duration of up to four years per student, which shall include, whenever possible, at least one summer internship at a national laboratory or appropriate Federal agency in the field of technical nuclear forensics;

“(ii) make available for graduate study student fellowships, with a duration of up to five years per student, which shall include, whenever possible, at least two summer internships at a national laboratory or appropriate Federal agency in the field of technical nuclear forensics during the course of the student’s undergraduate career; and

“(iii) make available for graduate study student fellowships, with a duration of up to five years per student, which shall include, whenever possible, at least two summer internships at a national laboratory or appropriate Federal agency in the field of technical nuclear forensics during the course of the student’s graduate career; and

“(i) make available for undergraduate study student scholarships, with a duration of up to four years per student, which shall include, whenever possible, at least one summer internship at a national laboratory or appropriate Federal agency in the field of technical nuclear forensics; and

“(ii) make available for graduate study student fellowships, with a duration of up to five years each, which shall include, whenever possible, at least one summer internship at a national laboratory or appropriate Federal agency in the field of technical nuclear forensics during the course of the student’s graduate career; of undergraduate students, graduate students, and university faculty from historically Black colleges and universities, Hispanic-serving institutions, and Tribal Colleges and Universities.

‘‘(13) provide an annual report to Congress on the activities carried out under paragraphs (10), (11), and (12); and’’; and

(2) by adding at the end the following new subsection:

‘‘(b) DEFINITIONS.—In this section:

‘‘(1) HISTORICALLY BLACK COLLEGE OR UNIVERSITY.—The term ‘historically Black college or university’ has the meaning given the term ‘part B institution’ in section 322(2) of the Higher Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 1061(2)).

‘‘(2) HISPANIC-SERVING INSTITUTION.—The term ‘Hispanic-serving institution’ has the meaning given that term in section 582 of the Higher Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 1101a).

‘‘(3) TRIBAL COLLEGE OR UNIVERSITY.—The term ‘tribal college or university’ has the meaning given that term in section 588 of the Higher Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 1059c(b)).

(b) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—

There is authorized to be appropriated the sum of $30,000,000 for each of the fiscal years 2009, 2010, and 2011 to carry out paragraphs (10) through (13) of section 1902(a) of the Higher Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 1067(a)).

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. CARNEY) and the gentleman from California (Mr. DANIEL E. LECENDRE) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

MR. CARNEY. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days in which to revise and extend their remarks and insert extraneous material on the bill under consideration.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Pennsylvania?

There was no objection.

Mr. CARNEY. Mr. Speaker, I submit for the RECORD an exchange of letters between the chairman of the Committee on Homeland Security and the distinguished chairs of the Committees on Foreign Affairs and Science and Technology.

COMMITTEE ON FOREIGN AFFAIRS,
HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
Hon. BENNIE G. THOMPSON,
Chairman, Committee on Homeland Security, House of Representatives, Rayburn House Office Building, Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: I am writing to you regarding H.R. 730, a bill introduced by Representative ADAM SCHIFF, to address an emerging homeland security threat. The Nuclear Forensics and Attribution Act is properly targeted to address an emerging homeland security threat. The Nuclear Forensics and Attribution Act is properly targeted to address an emerging homeland security threat.

Further, I request your support for the appointment of Foreign Affairs Committee conferees during any House-Senate conference convened on this legislation. I also ask that a copy of this letter and your response be placed in the committee report for H.R. 730 and in the Congressional Record during consideration of the bill. I look forward to working with you as we move this important measure through the legislative process.

Sincerely,

HOWARD L. BERMAN,
Chairman.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, COMMITTEE ON SCIENCE AND TECHNOLOGY,
Hon. BENNIE G. THOMPSON,
Chairman, Committee on Homeland Security, Ford House Office Building, Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: I am writing to you concerning the jurisdictional interest of the Committee on Science and Technology in H.R. 730, the Nuclear Forensics and Attribution Act. H.R. 730 was introduced by Congressman Adam Schiff on February 5, 2009.

H.R. 730 implicates the Committee on Science and Technology’s jurisdiction over Homeland Security research and development under Rule X(1)(o)(14) of the House Rules, The Committee on Science and Technology, and that a copy of this letter and of your response will be included in the Congressional Record when the bill is considered on the House Floor.

The Committee on Science and Technology also expects that you will support our request to be conferees during any House-Senate conference on H.R. 730 or similar legislation.

Thank you for your attention to this matter.

Sincerely,

BART GORDON,
Chairman.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, COMMITTEE ON SCIENCE AND TECHNOLOGY,
Hon. HOWARD L. BERMAN,
Chairman, Committee on Foreign Affairs, House of Representatives, Rayburn House Office Building, Washington, DC.

DEAR CHAIRMAN BERMAN: Thank you for your letter regarding H.R. 730, the ‘‘Nuclear Forensics and Attribution Act,’’ introduced by Congressman Adam B. Schiff on January 27, 2009.

I appreciate your willingness to work cooperatively on this legislation. I acknowledge that H.R. 730 contains provisions that fall under the jurisdictional interest of the Committee on Science and Technology. I appreciate your agreement to not seek a sequential referral of this legislation and I acknowledge that your Committee’s request for a sequential referral does not waive, alter, or otherwise affect the jurisdiction of the Committee on Science and Technology.

Further, I recognize that your Committee reserves the right to seek appointment of conferees on the bill for the portions of the bill that fall under your Committee’s jurisdiction over Homeland Security and other matters of great importance to the nation.

Sincerely,

BART GORDON,
Chairman.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of H.R. 730, a bill introduced by my thoughtful colleague from California, Representative ADAM SCHIFF, to address an emerging homeland security threat. The Nuclear Forensics and Attribution Act is properly targeted to address an emerging homeland security threat.

A reliable nuclear forensics capability is essential for key decision-makers to respond in a timely and effective manner. If terrorists knew that we could trace a nuclear or dirty bomb back to them, they may well think twice about attacking us. The potential deterrent value of achieving a robust national nuclear forensics capability is immeasurable.

H.R. 730 has a multifaceted approach to obtaining this critical capability. First, it expresses the sense of Congress that the President should pursue international agreements and develop protocols to help identify the source of destructive nuclear material. Second, it tasks the Department of Homeland Security with the mission of developing methods to attribute nuclear or radiological material, both within the Domestic Nuclear Detection Office, DNDO, and in partnership with other Federal agencies.

Third, H.R. 730 recognizes that the development of an expertly trained workforce and education programs in nuclear forensics are critical to attaining a robust domestic attribution capability.

Fourth, the measure authorizes the National Technical Nuclear Forensics Center to undertake centralized planning, assessment, and integration of all federal nuclear forensic activities.

The bill authorizes appropriations of $30 million per year for the next 3 fiscal years for this effort.

Identical legislation passed the House on June 18, 2008. Unfortunately, the Senate did not take up the measure in a timely fashion. In this Congress, I am pleased that we are offering this legislation early in the first session. With a strong bipartisan vote today, we can send this measure on a swift path to the President’s desk.

I urge my colleagues to support the bill. I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. LUNGREN of California. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, as the ranking member of the Homeland Security Subcommittee on Emerging Threats, Counterterrorism, Science and Technology, I am pleased to see this important bipartisan legislation once again come up for a vote.

In the last Congress, we spent a great deal of time discussing the efforts of the Department of Homeland Security’s Domestic Nuclear Detection Office, or DNDO, to deploy radiation portal monitors at our Nation’s ports of entry. These monitors, staffed by Customs and Border Protection officers, are the Nation’s primary defense against illicit trafficking of nuclear and radiological material. DNDO continues to improve these technologies, and I hope that we will be supportive of their efforts.

Yet terrorists could overcome even the best detection systems. As we know, no technology is 100 percent sensitive. Border areas between official ports of entry also remain vulnerable. For this reason, defense against terrorism requires a multilayered approach, as it does in so many other areas. This bill is a strategy to add another layer. It will fortify our national capabilities in technical nuclear forensics, a science that plays a key role in the attribution of nuclear material to its source. It enumerates a variety of responsibilities for the department to advance and sustain a technical nuclear forensics capability, and it authorizes the National Technical Nuclear Forensic Center to undertake this mission.

A key component is language designed to strengthen the pipeline of talented new scientists into this field. In recent years, as we know, the number of young people entering science has declined throughout this Nation. Nuclear forensics is particularly challenging, especially harmful to nuclear forensics. This bill therefore instructs the Department to establish a National Nuclear Forensics Expertise Development Program devoted to developing and maintaining a vibrant and enduring pipeline of scientific professionals. The program will grant scholarships and fellowships from the undergraduate through postgraduate and doctoral degrees in nuclear and geochemical science specialties directly relevant to technical nuclear forensics.

Yet, Mr. Speaker, we must remember that forensics is only one component of attribution. Success also requires credible intelligence, and geospatial, chemical and radiological data. All of these components together comprise a credible attribution program that will serve as a deterrent against nuclear terrorism.

The detonation of a nuclear device in a populated region of this country would be catastrophic in the truest sense of the word. It is indeed my greatest fear. We must have a layered system of defenses to deter, detect, disrupt and recover from terrorist attacks. This bill will invigorate the scientific workforce and improve our defenses against nuclear and radiological terrorism.

I urge my colleagues to support this bill and improve our much-needed U.S. nuclear forensic capabilities.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. CARNEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from California, the author of the bill, Mr. SCHIFF.

Mr. SCHIFF. Mr. Speaker, I would like to thank and congratulate my colleagues on the Homeland Security Committee and Chairman THOMPSON, and my colleague from California, Mr. LUNGREN. I appreciate all their support. The committee has taken an important step forward in preventing nuclear terrorism by persevering with this legislation. I appreciate all the hard work that has gone into it.

Countries around the world now have access to technology that was once the realm of the Cold War, and the material we catch is sure to unravel the details of the nuclear smuggling ring headed by A.Q. Khan 5 years after it was uncovered.

This is not a new problem. Illicit nuclear material has been intercepted in transit out of the former Soviet Union many times since the end of the Cold War, and the material we catch is surely just a small fraction of the total amount trafficked.

Last week, Graham Allison wrote in Newsweek that “the only thing that can keep nuclear bombs out of the hands of terrorists is a brand new science of nuclear forensics.” During the Cold War, we forestalled a Soviet nuclear attack on the United States with retaliatory forces. But the decentralized flexible terror networks that we face today are not as easily deterred. A terrorist attack will also not leave a missile contrail pointed back toward those responsible.

As Allison writes: “The key to a new deterrent is coming up with some way of tracing the nuclear material back from an explosion in New York City to the reactor that forged the fissile material, even to the mines that yielded the original uranium ore.” The Nuclear Forensics and Attribution Act is designed to do just that. The act is aimed at decision-makers in North Korea, Pakistan and elsewhere who could sell nuclear material, as well as the smugglers and corrupt officials around the world who could steal it. Those parts of the nuclear network can be deterred by the knowledge that if their material is found, the U.S. will find out and hold them responsible.

The first part of this bill expands our ability to determine the source of nuclear material by authorizing the National Technical Nuclear Forensic Center in the Department of Homeland Security. This center will coordinate the various agencies and ensure an efficient, combined response when nuclear material is intercepted or, God forbid, used in a weapon. We will improve our understanding of the science of nuclear forensics, bringing in new radiochemists and physicists to rejuvenate a rapidly aging workforce, and funding research on new methods to identify materials.

But this bill also has an important purpose. As with fingerprints or DNA, the strength of nuclear forensics depends on the strength of our database. Nuclear material can come from many nations, some friendly, some unfriendly, and the individual recipes are closely guarded secrets. However, little of the information needed for forensics is of direct use to adversaries, so in many cases the risk of not sharing the data is much greater than the risk of sharing it.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The time of the gentleman has expired.

Mr. CARNEY. I yield the gentleman an additional 90 seconds.

Mr. SCHIFF. To build a nuclear forensics database, the bill asks the President to negotiate agreements with other nations to share forensic data on their nuclear materials, both civilian and military. This effort is vital, and the National Technical Forensic Center must play a key role in the negotiations to ensure that the data we obtain is the data necessary for quick attribution and response.

Nuclear terrorism is a vague threat of devastating consequence and, therefore, difficult to guard against. But as communications and transportation revolutions bring us ever closer to our allies, they bring us closer to our enemies as well. I believe this bill will help make sure that our ability to prevent a nuclear attack keeps up with our increasingly interdependent age.

Again, I want to thank Chairman THOMPSON for his leadership and urge all Members to support the bill.
Mr. DANIEL E. LUNgren of California. Mr. Speaker, at this time I would be happy to grant 2 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. McCaul).

Mr. McCaul. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H.R. 730, the Nuclear Forensics and Attribution Act. This act deals with the process of determining the source of confiscated nuclear material. It is a necessary component of our defense as it could deter states from aiding terrorists’ efforts to carry out their activities.

One need only look to the A.Q. Khan network and its proliferation to Pakistan, Iran, North Korea, to know how important this bill and this provision is.

In the last Congress we held hearings on this bill in the Emerging Threats, Cybersecurity and Science and Technology Subcommittee, which I was the ranking member. I would like to thank my good friend, Mr. Schiff, for working in a bipartisan manner to incorporate some of our suggestions, including a provision that I requested to provide scholarships and fellowships for those pursuing careers in technical nuclear forensics. As we all know, America needs to incentivize more young people to go into highly technical professions such as these. The workforce involved in nuclear forensics, in particular, has been evaporating for the past 30 years. Without a qualified workforce, we cannot attain the level of protection needed.

This bill will reinvigorate the workforce pipeline to guarantee the Nation a resource of technical experts in this critical field, and strengthen America’s attribution capabilities. To ensure a worthwhile return on public investment, the bill mandates a 2-year commitment of service within the Federal technical nuclear forensics workforce after graduation for fellows of the scholarship programs.

Again, I would like to thank my colleague, Mr. Schiff, for introducing this important legislation and I urge my colleagues to support this bill.

Mr. CARNEY. Mr. Speaker, I continue to reserve.

Mr. DANIEL E. LUNgren of California. Mr. Speaker, if I might inquire, does the gentleman have any other speakers?

Mr. CARNEY. I do not believe we have any more speakers.

Mr. DANIEL E. LUNgren of California. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, this is an important piece of legislation. This deals with one aspect of what I consider to be perhaps the greater threat we have to our homeland and that is nuclear weapons, nuclear material that could be made into weapons to be utilized against the United States and its citizens.

We need to do more in the area of nuclear proliferation. We need to do more in the area of negotiations with Russia, it seems to me, and bringing down our overall stockpiles. We need to do more in terms of invigorating or re-invigorating Nunn-Lugar. All of those are elements of an approach that is necessary to us.

This bill takes on a slightly different aspect of that same threat that is out there. It is necessary, it is important, and I hope we will have the unanimous support of the membership for this.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. CARNEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 30 seconds to the gentleman from California (Mr. Schiff).

Mr. SCHIFF. I thank the gentleman for yielding. I just wanted to thank my colleague, Mr. McCaul, for his help when he was chairing the subcommittee and the improvements that he made to the bill. I wanted to acknowledge and appreciate all your efforts.

Mr. CARNEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself as much time as I might consume.

Mr. Speaker, I urge passage of H.R. 730, the Nuclear Forensics and Attribution Act. I would like to congratulate Congressman SCHIFF, Emerging Threats Subcommittee Chairwoman YVETTE CLARKE, and her predecessor, JIM LANGEVIN, for the thoughtful approach they have taken on this critical homeland security concern.

I would like to thank our members on the other side as well. This is a bipartisan issue that certainly does not cross party lines. It affects everyone. Given the catastrophic consequences of a nuclear weapon, it is imperative that the U.S. have a state-of-the-art nuclear forensics capability.

While a nuclear bomb is commonly referred to as a weapon of mass destruction, a radiological dirty bomb is better described as a weapon of mass disruption. A dirty bomb, if detonated, will likely kill few people. The main damage it would cause would be economic because it could render important commercial areas unusable due to radioactive contamination. In either case, we must build and sustain a nuclear forensics capability and workforce to address the nuclear and radiological threats that we face today.

That is why I urge a “yes” vote on H.R. 730.

Mr. THOMPSON of Mississippi. Mr. Speaker, H.R. 730, the “Nuclear Forensics and Attribution Act,” was first introduced in the 110th Congress by the gentleman from California, Mr. Schiff.

That measure, H.R. 2631, was marked up and adopted unanimously by the Subcommittee on Emerging Threats, Cybersecurity, and Science and Technology in October 2007.

It was unanimously approved by the Full Committee on Homeland Security on May 20 of 2008 and the House of Representatives on June 18, 2008.

Though the measure was taken up, amended, and passed by the Senate in late September, the stars didn’t align and it didn’t clear the last hurdle to arrive on the President’s desk.

This Congress, we are getting out of the gate early, in hopes of ensuring that this critical homeland security legislation becomes law.

I would like to congratulate Congressman SCHIFF, my colleagues on the Committee for recognizing the need to move quickly.

We know that our enemies, both terrorists and rogue nations, are aggressively developing and using nuclear or radiological weapons. In the case of an attempted or, heaven forbid, a successful nuclear or radiological attack, rapid attribution is critical.

Our government must have the capacity to quickly determine the source of the nuclear material so that the key decision-makers have the information needed to respond.

The deterrent effect of a robust nuclear forensics capability should not be underestimated.

Certainly, if terrorists know that we have a nuclear forensics capability that can pinpoint their role in creating a bomb, they are bound to have second thoughts.

In short, we rely on nuclear expertise and technology developed during the Cold War to address both nuclear weapons and the emerging threat of a radiological “dirty” bomb.

The nuclear weapons workforce is aging just as its mission has shifted from traditional deterrence policy to the more complicated challenge of containing the terrorist threat. Our Nation’s capabilities in the scientific fields of radiochemistry and geochemistry must be fostered to meet this new threat.

That is the purpose of this bill.

H.R. 730 expresses the sense of Congress that the President should pursue international agreements and develop protocols to share sensitive information needed to identify the source of a nuclear detonation.

I am heartened that the Obama Administration has indicated its willingness to engage in and re-energize such activities.

It also tasks the Secretary of Homeland Security with the mission of developing methods to attribute nuclear or radiological material—both within the Department’s Domestic Nuclear Detection Office, DNDO, and in partnership with other Federal agencies.

The legislation emphasizes that the development of a robust nuclear forensics capability depends chiefly on an expertly trained workforce in this area and provides support for education programs relevant to nuclear forensics.

H.R. 730 also authorizes the National Technical Nuclear Forensics Center, NTNFC, to enhance centralized planning and integration of Federal nuclear forensics activities; requires the Secretary to report annually to Congress on the Federal Government’s efforts to enhance its nuclear forensics capabilities, including the status of workforce development programs; and authorizes $30 million per year for the next three fiscal years for this effort.

H.R. 730 continues the Homeland Security Committee’s practice of authorizing programs and offices within DHS that are of value to the American people in order to assure that the work can continue and progress can be achieved in the years to come.

I urge my colleagues to support the bill.

Mr. CARNEY. I yield back my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. CARNEY) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 730.
The question was taken. The SPEAKER pro tempore. In the opinion of the Chair, two-thirds being in the affirmative, the ayes have it.

Mr. CARNEY. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered. The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX and the Chair's prior announcement, further proceedings on this motion will be postponed.

SCHOOL SOCIAL WORK WEEK

Ms. WOOLSEY. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and agree to the resolution (H. Res. 182) expressing support for designations of the week of March 1 through March 8, 2009, as “School Social Work Week”.

The Clerk read the title of the resolution.

The text of the resolution is as follows:

H. Res. 182

Whereas the importance of school social work through the inclusion of school social work programs has been recognized in the currendy of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 6301 et seq.) and the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (20 U.S.C. 1400 et seq.);

Whereas school social workers serve as vital members of a school's educational team, playing a central role in creating partnerships between the home, school, and community to ensure student academic success;

Whereas school social workers are especially skilled in providing services to students who face serious challenges to school success, including poverty, disability, discrimination, abuse, addiction, bullying, divorce of parents, loss of a loved one, and other barriers to learning;

Whereas there is a growing need for local educational agencies to offer the mental health services that school social workers provide when working with families, teachers, principals, community agencies, and other entities to address students’ emotional, physical, and environmental needs so that students may achieve behavioral and academic success;

Whereas to achieve the goal of the No Child Left Behind Act of 2001 (Public Law 107-110), schools must work to remove the emotional, behavioral, and academic barriers that interfere with student success in school;

Whereas fewer than 1 in 5 of the 17,500,000 children who are eligible for mental health services actually receive these services, and research indicates that school mental health programs improve educational outcomes by decreasing absences, decreasing discipline referrals, and improving academic achievement;

Whereas school mental health programs are critical to early identification of mental health problems and in the provision of appropriate services when needed;

Whereas the national average ratio of students to school social workers recommended by the School Social Work Association of America is 400 to 1; and

Whereas the celebration and of “School Social Work Week” from March 1 through March 8, 2009, highlights the vital role school social workers play in the lives of students in the United States: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the House of Representatives

(1) supports the designation of “School Social Work Week”;

(2) honors and recognizes the contributions of school social workers to the successes of students in our schools and in the community as a whole, in helping students prepare for their futures as productive citizens;

(3) encourages the people of the United States to observe “School Social Work Week” with appropriate ceremonies and activities that promote awareness of the vital role of school social workers, in schools and in the community as a whole, in helping students prepare for their futures as productive citizens;

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentlewoman from California (Ms. WOOLSEY) and the gentleman from Utah (Mr. BISHOP) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentlewoman from California.

GENERAL LEAVE

Ms. WOOLSEY. Mr. Speaker, I request 5 legislative days during which Members may revise and extend their remarks and insert extraneous material on H. Res. 182 into the RECORD.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentlewoman from California?

There was no objection.

Ms. WOOLSEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself as much time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H. Res. 182, a resolution to recognize the week of March 1 through March 8, 2009, as National School Social Work Week.

School social workers, Mr. Speaker, have long played a critical role in schools and the community as a whole. They are professionals who work with children to address their emotional, mental, social, and developmental needs.

School social workers help students build their confidence as learners, which is particularly important for elementary students who are just starting out on their academic careers.

During middle school, students face what is often a difficult transition from childhood to adolescence. For these students, school social workers help engage teachers, administrators, parents and students in the delivery of programs and services to help those students navigate these challenges and achieve success.

In high school, students begin exploring and defining their independence. These students face additional challenges along the way, including pressure to participate in risky behavior. School social workers help them with navigating these difficult decisions.

On top of this, school social workers must be responsive to the range of challenges that young people face every day, such as poverty, disability, discrimination, abuse, addiction, bullying, loss of a loved one and other barriers to learning. School social workers are also on the front lines when disaster strikes, such as the Southern California wildfires, such as Hurricane Katrina or 9/11.

There is a growing need for school districts to expand their support services in schools. Less than one in five of the 17.5 million children in need of mental health services actually receive the services that they need, and we need these services even more, primarily because the national average ratio of students to school social workers is far beneath the 400 to 1 ratio recommended by the School Social Work Association of America.

Mr. Speaker, this resolution serves to recognize the importance of the school social worker and acknowledge the priceless role that they play in guiding our students’ success in the ever-changing world of the 21st century.

I urge my colleagues to pass this resolution.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. BISHOP of Utah. Mr. Speaker, I rise to support this bill and yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of House Resolution 182, expressing support for the designation of the week of March 1 as School Social Work Week to promote awareness of the vital role that school social workers play in schools and in the community as a whole and in helping students to prepare for their future as productive citizens.

From time to time, students face certain challenges in achieving academic success. Emotional, social and behavioral problems can be serious impediments to learning and can have a harmful effect not just on the individual student but others in the school setting. Schools, families and communities must work collaboratively to assist students with achieving positive academic and behavioral outcomes. School social work services provide a comprehensive and coordinated approach to meeting the needs of students through early identification, through prevention, intervention, counseling, as well as support.

School social workers are trained, qualified professionals that meet State requirements to practice social work specifically in a school setting. They provide direct services to students who experience academic and social difficulties while developing relationships that will help to bolster self-esteem and reward positive behavior. School social workers support teachers by offering options for addressing students’ needs and by participating on the student support team. They also work with students and their families and communities to coordinate services.

According to statistics by the National Mental Health Association, 17.5 million children are in need of some kind of mental health services, and these workers address those needs. School social workers help students who do not receive services due to inaccessibility or lack of availability of services. I commend these dedicated professionals for the service they provide in our school setting, and I ask my colleagues to support this resolution. I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. WOOLSEY. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to recognize for 5 minutes the gentleman from Rhode Island (Mr. KENNEDY).

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. Speaker, I would like to commend the gentlewoman from California (Ms. WOOLSEY), and I rise today in support of House Resolution 182, supporting the School Social Work Week.

I introduced this resolution in order to recognize and support the critical, unsung work performed by school social workers in and across this country. School social workers bring unique knowledge and skills to schools and to the student services team all across this country. They work together to achieve for a Nation that every child needs in order to succeed in school.

Each day across this country, school social workers can be found assisting educators to understand family, cultural, and community factors affecting students as well as meet the demands of providing quality education for students of diverse backgrounds.

Each day, they can be found working with administrators to design and implement effective prevention programs and policies that address school attendance, teen pregnancy, school violence, and school safety issues, as well as child abuse and neglect, special education and more.

Each day, school social workers can be found working with parents so that they may effectively participate in their child’s education as well as improve parenting skills, understand special education services as well as access school and community services related to their child’s needs.

In health care, we must treat the whole person, and in education, we must do the same, so that is where school social workers recognize the need to connect the school and home in order to relate to the needs of the children. It is a shame that fewer than 1 in 5 of the 17 million children in need of mental health services actually receive them. Improved and expanded school mental health programs would help to bridge the gaps as a Nation that every child needs in order to succeed in school.

Mr. BISHOP of Utah. For some inexplicable reason, I have no one else here who is requesting time.

Ms. WOOLSEY. I am ready to close.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. Speaker, I urge support of this resolution, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Ms. WOOLSEY. Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to support Congressman KENNEDY’s absolutely important legislation. It recognizes the week of March 1 through 8 as National School Social Work Week.

I yield back the balance of my time. The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question was taken.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The text of the concurrent resolution is as follows:

H. CON. RES. 77

Whereas, during 2009, the United States honored the 200th anniversary of the birth of President Abraham Lincoln;

Whereas, on July 4, 1861, President Lincoln stated in a message to Congress that a principal aim of the United States Government should be “to elevate the condition of men—to lift artificial weights from all shoulders and to give the people all that is necessary for their support; and a fair chance, in the race of life”;

Whereas, on April 8, 1864, President Lincoln signed into law the legislation (Act of April 8, 1864, ch. 52, 13 Stat. 45) authorizing the conferring of collegiate degrees by the Commission on Instruction for the Deaf and Dumb, which is now called Gallaudet University;

Whereas this law led for the first time in history to higher education for deaf students in an environment designed to meet their communication needs;

Whereas Gallaudet University was the first, and is still the only, institution in the world that focuses on educational programs for deaf and hard-of-hearing students from the pre-school through the doctoral level;

Whereas Gallaudet University has been a world leader in the fields of education and research for more than a century; and

Whereas, since 1869, graduates of Gallaudet University have pursued distinguished careers of leadership in the United States and throughout the world: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate concurring), That the Congress—

(1) congratulates and honors Gallaudet University on the 145th anniversary of President Abraham Lincoln’s signing of the law that made Gallaudet University the world leader in the fields of education and research for more than a century;

(2) congratulates Gallaudet University for 145 years of distinctive educational service to the deaf citizens of the United States and the world deaf community.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from California (Ms. WOOLSEY) and the gentleman from Utah (Mr. BISHOP) each will control 20 minutes.

Ms. WOOLSEY. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and agree to the concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 77) recognizing and honoring the signing by President Abraham Lincoln of the legislation authorizing the establishment of collegiate programs at Gallaudet University.

The Chair reads the title of the concurrent resolution.

The yeas were ordered.
The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentlewoman from California?

There was no objection.

Ms. WOOLSEY. I yield myself as much as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H. Con. Res. 77, which congratulates Gallaudet University for 145 years of exceptional service to the hearing-impaired student community.

I am pleased to have worked with Senator SHERROD BROWN, who also serves on the board, to introduce this resolution. I urge my colleagues to support H. Con. Res. 77.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. BISHOP of Utah. I yield myself as much as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H. Con. Res. 77, a resolution recognizing and honoring the 145th anniversary of the signing of the law that established collegiate programs at the excellent institution of higher learning, Gallaudet University.

It was on March 1, 1864 that President Abraham Lincoln signed a Federal law authorizing Gallaudet University to confer collegiate degrees. The signing of this law finally gave deaf students an opportunity to pursue a higher education in an environment specifically designed to meet their communication needs. Gallaudet is still the only institution in the world that focuses on education programs for deaf and hard-of-hearing students through the doctoral level.

As of the 2007-2008 academic year, Gallaudet enrolled over 1,600 students. These students have the opportunity to choose from more than 40 undergraduate majors and have the opportunity to take advantage of a state-of-the-art facility. Additionally, each of these students graduating from Gallaudet will receive a diploma that has been signed by the sitting President of the United States.

I extend my congratulations to Gallaudet University on the 145th anniversary of its creation, and wish all of Gallaudet’s faculty, staff, students, and alumni continued success in their endeavors. I ask my colleagues to support this resolution.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. WOOLSEY. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time. I do not know if we have any other speakers on the other side of the aisle, Mr. BISHOP.

Mr. BISHOP of Utah. Mr. Speaker, with my profound respect for this particular institution and for the job that they do creating a chance for a specific need that is out there, I urge the support of this resolution.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Ms. WOOLSEY. Mr. Speaker, I would like to thank Chairman MILLER and the Committee on Education and Labor for their help in bringing Congressman KENNEDY’s resolution to the floor.

I urge my colleagues to support H. Con. Res. 77, which congratulates Gallaudet University for the 145th anniversary of the signing of its charter by President Abraham Lincoln.

I yield back the balance of my time.

WELCOME HOME VIETNAM VETERANS DAY

Mrs. HALVORSON. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and agree to the resolution (H. Res. 234) expressing support for designation of a "Welcome Home Vietnam Veterans Day".

The Clerk read the title of the resolution.

The text of the resolution is as follows:

H. RES. 234

Whereas the Vietnam War was fought in Vietnam from 1961 to 1975, and involved North Vietnam and the Viet Cong in conflict with United States Armed Forces and South Vietnam;

Whereas the United States became involved in Vietnam because policy-makers in the United States believed that if South Vietnam fell to a Communist government then Communism would spread throughout the rest of Southeast Asia;

Whereas members of the United States Armed Forces began serving in an advisory role to the South Vietnamese in 1961;

Whereas as a result of the Gulf of Tonkin incidents on August 2 and 4, 1964, Congress overwhelmingly passed the Gulf of Tonkin Resolution (Public Law 88–402), on August 7, 1964, which effectively handed over war-making powers to President Johnson until such time as “peace and security” had returned to Vietnam;

Whereas, in 1965, United States Armed Forces ground combat units arrived in Vietnam;

Whereas, by the end of 1965, there were 80,000 United States troops in Vietnam, and by 1969 a peak of approximately 543,000 troops was reached;

Whereas, on January 27, 1973, the Treaty of Paris was signed, which resulted in the release of all United States prisoners-of-war held in North Vietnam and the withdrawal of all United States Armed Forces from South Vietnam;

Whereas, on March 30, 1973, the United States Armed Forces completed the withdrawal of combat troops from Vietnam;

Whereas more than 58 members of the United States Armed Forces lost their lives in Vietnam and more than 300,000 members of the Armed Forces were wounded;

Whereas, in 1982, the Vietnam Veterans Memorial was dedicated in the District of Columbia to commemorate those members of the United States Armed Forces who died or were declared missing-in-action in Vietnam;

Whereas the Vietnam War was an extremely divisive issue among the people of the United States;

WHEREAS members of the United States Armed Forces who served bravely and faithfully during the Vietnam War were taught that their return home was the crossroad for all to deliberate about the involvement of the United States in the Vietnam War;

The SPEAKER pro tempore (during the vote). There are 2 minutes remaining in this vote.

So (two-thirds being in the affirmative) the rules were suspended and the resolution was agreed to.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.
Whereas the establishment of a “Welcome Home Vietnam Veterans Day” would be an appropriate way to honor those members of the United States Armed Forces who served in the Vietnam War; and

Whereas March 30, 2009, would be an appropriate day to establish as “Welcome Home Vietnam Veterans Day”; Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the House of Representatives—

(1) honors and recognizes the contributions of veterans of the Armed Forces who served in Vietnam; and

(2) encourages the people of the United States to observe Welcome Home Vietnam Veterans Day, through public programs, ceremonies and activities that promote awareness of the contributions of veterans who served in Vietnam and the importance of helping Vietnam era veterans re-adjust to civilian life.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. CUMMINGS). Pursuant to the rule, the gentlewoman from Illinois (Mrs. HALVORSON) and the gentleman from Florida (Mr. BILIRAKIS) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentlewoman from Illinois.

Mrs. HALVORSON. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of House Resolution 234. This resolution before us today establishes March 30, 2009, as a day to honor and recognize the contributions of veterans of the Vietnam War.

As Chair of the House Committee on Veterans Affairs, I have had the opportunity to hear the accounts of many Vietnam veterans. I hear the pride that came with the duty of defending their country, and I hear the anguish that they felt coming home to a country that confused the war and the warrior.

I encourage all Americans to reach out to veterans, especially our Vietnam veterans. Thank them and their families for their amazing sacrifice, understand more about their great contribution to our country, and gain the wisdom of their personal stories of our Nation’s history.

There are more than 24 million veterans living in this country today, including 8.2 million veterans that served during the Vietnam War. Of these veterans, 2.6 million served in country.

More than 58,000 members in our military lost their lives in Vietnam. Tragically, American casualties continued to climb after the war, as a result of suicides, substance abuse, and homelessness among these veterans and their families.

More than 300,000 members of the Armed Forces were reported wounded as a result of the Vietnam War. Today, this number also continues to grow, as more and more of our Vietnam veterans are feeling the effects of Agent Orange.

Approximately 20 million gallons of herbicides were used in Vietnam between 1961 and 1971 to remove unwanted vegetation that provided cover for enemy forces during the war. Shortly following their military services in Vietnam, some veterans reported a variety of health problems and concerns due to exposure to Agent Orange. Modern science clearly establishes that the symptoms of many degenerative diseases can take decades to onset.

Too many Vietnam veterans are suffering from conditions that resulted from their service to out country, yet are not considered service-connected by our government. Time is running out for many of our Vietnam veterans. Many have already lost the battle. And those who remain, along with their families, are fighting for their lives every day.

The Vietnam War was a very divisive time, and too many Americans, myself included, confused the war and the warrior. We did not provide the support, the care, the compassion, and the love that our dedicated servicemembers earned and deserved.

Many of our finest leaders, both military and political, have been quoted as saying that they did not believe that the men who served in uniform in Vietnam were given the credit they deserve.

In that spirit, the House of Representatives takes this step to recognize the contributions of brave veterans who served in Vietnam and the continued importance of helping Vietnam-era veterans readjust to civilian life.

So I ask my colleagues to join me in showing our gratitude to those brave men and women who served during the Vietnam War. Mr. Speaker, I urge strong support for House Resolution 234.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. BILIRAKIS. I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I thank the chairman for his quick consideration of the bill. I urge support for this House resolution expressing support for the designation of a “Welcome Home Vietnam Veterans Day.” I commend my colleague, Congresswoman LINDA SÁNCHEZ of California, for introducing this resolution.

The desire to welcome home our Nation’s Vietnam veterans is strong across the country. It has now been 36 years since the American troops left Vietnam. It was March 30, 1973, when the United States Army completed the withdrawal of combat troops from Vietnam.

Last Congress, we passed House Resolution 1231, a bill that recognizes the importance of Vietnam Veterans Day. In that legislation, we urged Americans to recognize the date and participate in local events. Across the Nation, several States have already organized Welcome Home events for Vietnam veterans on March 28 and March 29 of this year. This legislation before us would continue our support for this effort; provide honor and recognition of the contributions of veterans of the Armed Forces who served in Vietnam, and encourage the people of the United States to observe Welcome Home Vietnam Veterans Day with appropriate ceremonies and activities.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to support House Resolution 234. I reserve the balance of my time.

Mrs. HALVORSON. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong support of House Resolution 234, expressing strong support for Welcome Home Vietnam Veterans Day.

I want to thank Chairman BOB FILER and Ranking Member STEVE BUYER for their strong commitment to all of America’s veterans. Their leadership has been instrumental in bringing this important resolution to the floor today.

As a Nation, we honor those who defend us with statues, memorials, holidays, and praise. But as a people, we have not always fulfilled our duty to properly recognize those fellow citizens who put themselves in harm’s way to keep us safe and protect our freedom, and no fellow citizens did we let down more than those who served bravely in Vietnam. They came home to a time of civil unrest and some turned their back in opposition to the war too easily turned into opposition to those young men and women who served in it.

Unlike the GIs who served in previous conflicts, many Vietnam service members came home with no celebration, no welcome back parade, but to hostility, ridicule, and bitter criticism. This cold reception, in addition to the brutal realities of serving in Vietnam, interfered with some veterans’ efforts to transition back into their communities and establish a sense of normalcy. Just when they needed someone to lend an ear or helping hand, too many found a cold shoulder.

By encouraging Americans to observe Welcome Home Vietnam Veterans Day, my resolution seeks to provide these heroes the welcome home that they always deserved but that too many never received.

Welcome Home Vietnam Veterans Day is the culmination of years of effort on the part of my constituent, Jose Ramos, himself a Vietnam veteran. As an Army combat medic in Vietnam, Jose Ramos was victim to the indifferent and often hostile public response upon returning to our country. His story was his personal experiences and those of his fellow GIs that motivated him to work toward establishing a national day of recognition. His work inspired many, including me, to help give Vietnam veterans their long overdue welcome home.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The time of the gentlewoman has expired.

Mrs. HALVORSON. The gentlelady is granted an additional 30 seconds.

Ms. LINDA T. SÁNCHEZ of California. While today’s resolution may seem like a small gesture when compared to what our soldiers and their families sacrificed, it certainly is, it will serve to remind us of their service to our country.
I urge my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to join in honoring Vietnam veterans by participating in Welcome Home Vietnam Veterans Day events in their communities next year. Today, I ask for their vote.

Mr. BILIRAKIS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. CAO).

Mr. CAO. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of House Resolution 234, to establish a Welcome Home Vietnam Veterans Day. My family and I are direct beneficiaries of the sacrifice and service of the men and women who served this great Nation during the years of conflict in Vietnam.

I was born in Vietnam in 1967, during the most turbulent year of the war and while American troops were engaged in combat there. In 1975, my father, an army officer, was captured by the communists and sent to a re-education camp for nearly 7 years. I was 8 years old when I left my home country and came to America to make a new life with the tools of freedom and democracy that this great Nation stands for.

To the hundreds of thousands of veterans who returned from the Vietnam War, I say to you that your dedicated service to your country and mine is remembered by millions every day. I thank you for having fought for democracy and freedom that many of them faced in transitioning back to civilian life after the horrors they had witnessed in combat.

The legacy of our failure to welcome our veterans home is still with us today. Everyone night, roughly 154,000 veterans are homeless, and 45 percent of these are from the Vietnam era. To allow those that fought for our safety to live on the streets is a black mark on our Nation, on this Congress, and it is a warning to present and future generations of what must never happen again.

I believe the designation of March 30 as the Welcome Home Vietnam Veterans Day is the least we can do to beginrighting these wrongs. And as we do, let us also pledge to honor our commitment to the men and women who served in Vietnam, to give them the full care and benefits that they have earned. We make sure that no veteran, past, present, or future, is ever forgotten again.

Mr. BILIRAKIS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Michigan (Mrs. MILLER).

Mrs. MILLER of Michigan. Mr. Speaker, I certainly thank the gentleman for yielding.

Mr. Speaker, how amazing, quite amazing that we just heard this testimony and these remarks from our colleagues from Louisiana, Representative CAO. But if there is any reason for our colleagues to support this resolution, it is by the words that he just spoke. What an unbelievable story he told. He is a Vietnamese-American, his father for 7 years in a re-education camp in Vietnam, and here he is as a result of our men and women fighting for freedom and democracy.

That is certainly a vivid demonstration of why we need to pass this resolution today. I certainly support Resolution 234, which will designate a Welcome Home Vietnam Veterans Day.

My district in McComb County, Michigan, is actually home to I think one of if not the largest chapter of Vietnam veterans, Chapter 154, in the entire Nation.

My husband, a very proud Vietnam veteran, actually flew F-102s with the 509th Fighter-Interceptor group from air bases in both Danang and Saigon. These veterans served our Nation faithfully and with distinction and honor. But, to our everlasting shame, they received a horrible homecoming.

One of the saddest times. Mr. Speaker, in American history was the way that we treated our Vietnam veterans when they returned from combat. Caught in the crossfire of the debate on the war in our Nation, they came home to taunts, insults, and worse. These brave men and women, these great war fighters, these great patriots, these great Americans, they answered our Nation’s call to fight, and they fought, they bled, and they died in the service of our country.

Not only did they have to bear their physical and psychological wounds of warfare, Mr. Speaker, but our Nation did not recognize them as the heroes that they were and that they are. There were no parades, no yellow ribbons and no thanks for serving when our Nation asked them to do so, and they stepped forward to defend freedom and liberty and democracy.

These men and women deserved better. Mr. Speaker, and although it has taken many years to rectify the injustice some of our fellow citizens visited upon our Vietnam veterans, today we can honor them, and we should, with a day to welcome them home properly. The Vietnam Veterans Memorial here in Washington is one of the most visited memorials. This wall stands as a reminder that 58,000 of our fellow countrymen paid the ultimate price, and we must never forget them.

I owe our Nation’s veterans a debt that can never be fully repaid, but we want to thank them for their service and their sacrifice on behalf of our great Nation, and all of us will continue to work the halls of Congress to ensure that our veterans receive the help, the recognition, and the benefits that they so richly deserve. I know that I have a MIA/POW flag hanging right outside the door of my Congressional office, and if you walk up and down the halls of Congress, you will see many, many others displayed here as well.

We can never forget. And I would encourage every community in America to observe the “Welcome Home Vietnam Veterans Day” so that we never forget our veterans’ bravery, courage, and sacrifice. And to all of you, I say today, “Welcome home.”

I ask all of my colleagues to support this resolution.

Mrs. HALVORSON. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE).

(Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas asked and was given permission to revise and extend her remarks.)
Mr. Speaker, 2,637,100 people fought the triumph and tragedy of the Viet-nam War. Unfortunately, 58,000 never returned home again! If these now silent patriots have taught us anything, it is that because of these men and women who were willing to sacrifice their last blood and breath, the United States remains a symbol of freedom and a country whose ideas are still worth defending. And a remembrance and a reflection of these memories should be preserved and honored for future generations in this great nation.

It was Edmund Burke who once aptly stated: “The only thing necessary for the triumph of evil is for good men to do nothing.” The men and women who served in our military are good men who refused to submit to an unjust rule. Time after time, in battle after battle American men and women have not fled from mortal danger, nor instead they have rushed towards it. Our brave soldiers built this nation, first with independence, then with the righteousness of eliminating slavery, and finally in the last century they built this nation in the eyes of the world, not only as a superpower, but as a nation that values humanity and kindness over the tyranny of others.

I see the same courage and strength in the eyes of our current generation of soldiers. They bear the burden of a new world, in which the greatest threats against our life and freedom are often unseen. They also bear the hope of a nation and a world that clings to the hope of peace and stability. It was the great statesman Adlai Stevenson who said: “Patriotism is not a short and frenzied bout of emotion but the tranquil and steady dedication of a lifetime.” It is clear that the torch has been passed to a new generation of men and women willing to dedicate their lives to protecting ours. Our nation is truly blessed in so many ways, but our soldiers continue to be the greatest protectors of our blessings.

Because I feel so strong about our men and women fighting abroad and our veterans who served our nation, I will continue to advocate for their rights in Congress, and I urge my colleagues to fight as well.

Mr. Speaker, now is the time for the U.S. government to again fulfill our moral obligation to those who have fought for freedom and democracy. There are more than 1,701,118 veterans, in fact in the 18th Congressional district of Texas alone there are more than 38,000 veterans and they make up almost ten percent of this district's civilian pop-ulation over the age of 18. Yet we often forget about our men and women fighting abroad once the war is over; we must never forget these brave men and women who served our nation.

Vietnam Veterans like Antonio “Tony” Roman and John Footman, who today serve their country but are part of the Military Order of the Purple Heart working with our young soldiers.

Mr. Speaker, there is no honor—there is no honor that is too high for the soldiers who shed their blood, suffer and, of course, sacrifice on our behalf, those soldiers whose lives are lost, those soldiers who have come back to us, Vietnam vets deserve our honor. Today now we stand to welcome them home. Never will we turn our back. Always the light will shine on. We welcome them home.

Mr. Speaker, in support of H. Res. 234, “Expressing support for designation of a ‘Welcome Home Vietnam Veterans Day,’” I want to thank my colleague Congresswoman LINDA SÁNCHEZ of California for introducing this resolution.

Few years of Americans have sacrificed for our nation than those who have served in the Armed Forces. The war in Vietnam no longer makes headlines, but for many families it remains a daily reality, and I urge my colleagues to recognize the challenges that the families of these brave soldiers face and support this resolution in their honor.

Vietnam Veterans like Antonio “Tony” Roman and John Footman, who continue to give back to their fellow young military by working within the Military Order of the Purple Heart and by standing in the rain or the heat to be there when our Soldiers and Marines return from deployment. I meet with great men from Texas who are Vietnam Veterans, and our newer Gulf War, Operation Iraqi Freedom, and Operation Enduring Freedom—and I see their continuing need for our support.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to support H. Res. 234, “Expressing support for designation of a ‘Welcome Home Vietnam Veterans Day.’”

Mr. BILIRAKIS. Mr. Speaker, I continue to reserve the balance of my time.
veterans, preventing our veterans from ending up incarcerated, or even the public perception of veterans and the way veterans think about and understand themselves as veterans—we know the dangers that are out there, thanks in no small part to Vietnam veterans working to change the climate, and we know we have to act aggressively to make sure we fulfill our commitment to our newest veterans. For my part, I see no more important task as a member of Congress and of the House Veterans’ Affairs Committee. But I also have to say, I think something else has started to happen as we as a country have worked to honor and do justice to the veterans of our current conflicts—regardless of how we feel individually about the war itself. I think just as Vietnam veterans have done for Iraq and Afghanistan veterans what World War I veterans did for World War II veterans, supporting the next generation of veterans, I think our society’s treatment of our newest veterans has begun a really renewed appreciation for and a different, more positive perception of Vietnam veterans themselves. What you all went through when you came home is something that never should be repeated. And it should not have happened in the first place. But it says something about you and about America as a society that we have finally, I think, started to move away from the ugliness of that time, and from the stereotypes and clichés about Vietnam veterans. The new congressional majority that I was a part of when I was in Congress in 2006 committed to making our military and our veterans an absolutely top priority. And we did that last Congress, and we continue to do that in this new Congress. Last Congress, we passed the largest veterans funding increase in history, increasing pay for our military and providing them with more of the protection they need when they go into battle, passing into law a historic new GI Bill that should do for our 21st century veterans what the original GI Bill did after World War II. And we will continue that work in this Congress, putting America’s veterans first and working to provide them with the care and benefits they deserve. The debt we owe those who serve our country honorably in the military is never fully paid. But we owe that obligation to our veterans, and it begins with a full welcome home. The Nation can never fully repair the damage done with the failure to immediately and fully welcome home our veterans from Vietnam. But it is never too late to continue recognizing the obligation we owe you, and thanking you for what you have done and what you continue to do. (Mr. MCMAHON. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of House Resolution 234.

Designating March 30th as “Welcome Home Vietnam Veterans Day” is long overdue. This day is not only in remembrance of the over 58,000 members of the Armed Services that lost their lives in Vietnam, but serves as a lesson in conduct and appropriate public debate in regards to our veterans.

March 30th, 1973, has taught us lessons that ultimately will soon be very relevant to the present day. No matter the various views of the war in Iraq, I am confident that our servicemen and women will return home to an atmosphere of appreciation and reception. Unfortunately, the 543,000 troops that returned from Vietnam did not all receive the same respect, but their legacy has ensured a brighter future and degree of tolerance exercised towards the next generation of armed servicemembers.

Mrs. HALVORSON. Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to unanimously support House Resolution 234. I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentlewoman from Illinois (Mrs. HALVORSON) that the House suspend the rules and agree to the resolution, H. Res. 234. The question was taken; and (two-thirds being in the affirmative) the rules were suspended and the resolution was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

RECOGNIZING 30TH ANNIVERSARY OF TAIWAN RELATIONS ACT

Mr. BERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and agree to the concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 55) recognizing the 30th anniversary of the Taiwan Relations Act, as amended. The Clerk read the title of the concurrent resolution.

The text of the concurrent resolution is as follows:

H. CON. RES. 55

WHEREAS April 10, 2009, will mark the 30th anniversary of the enactment of the Taiwan Relations Act (Public Law 96-8), codifying in law the basis for continued commercial, cultural, and other relations between the United States and the Republic of China (Taiwan);

WHEREAS the Taiwan Relations Act has been instrumental in maintaining peace, security, and stability in the Taiwan Strait since its enactment in 1979;

WHEREAS when the Taiwan Relations Act was enacted, the United States’ decision to establish diplomatic relations with the People’s Republic of China was based on the expectation that the future of Taiwan would be determined by peaceful means;

WHEREAS the Taiwan Relations Act declares that peace and stability in the area are in the political, security, and economic interests of the United States, and are matters of international concern;

WHEREAS the Taiwan Relations Act states that it is the policy of the United States to provide Taiwan with arms of a defensive character to maintain the capacity to resist any resort to force or other forms of coercion that would jeopardize the security, or the social or economic system, of the people on Taiwan;

WHEREAS the Taiwan Relations Act also states that it is policy of the United States to preserve and promote extensive, close, and friendly commercial, cultural and other relations between the people on Taiwan, as well as the people on the China mainland; and

WHEREAS the relationship between the United States and Taiwan has strengthened with—

1) Taiwan’s evolution into a free society and a full-fledged, multi-party democracy;
2) the development of Taiwan’s robust free-market economy;
3) Taiwan’s determined effort and collaboration with the United States to combat global terrorism, as demonstrated by its participation in the Container Security Initiative and its generous contribution to the Pentagon Memorial Fund; and
4) the leadership role Taiwan has demonstrated in addressing transnational and global challenges, including its active engagement in humanitarian relief efforts, public health endeavors, environmental protection initiatives, and financial market stabilization efforts; and

WHEREAS Taiwan’s democracy has deepened with the second peaceful transfer of power from one political party to another after the presidential election in March 2008; Now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate concurring), That Congress—

(1) reaffirms its unwavering commitment to the Taiwan Relations Act as the cornerstone of relations between the United States and Taiwan;

(2) reaffirms its support for Taiwan’s democratic institutions; and

(3) supports the strong and deepening relationship between the United States and Taiwan.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from California (Mr. BERMAN) and the gentlewoman from Florida (Ms. ROS-LeHTINEN) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from California.

Mr. BERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members under consideration. The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

Mr. BERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of the resolution and yield myself as much time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, this resolution recognizes the enactment of the Taiwan Relations Act 30 years ago and reaffirms congressional support for that law. I would like to thank my good friend, Representative SHELLEY BERKLEY of Nevada, for her leadership both as co-chair of the Taiwan Caucus and as the chief sponsor of this resolution.

The Taiwan Relations Act of 1979 forms the official basis for friendship and cooperation between the United States and Taiwan. It has been instrumental in maintaining peace and security across the Taiwan Straits and in East Asia. Since the lifting of martial law in 1987, Taiwan has evolved into a robust and lively democracy. The U.S.-Taiwan relationship, once based solely on shared interests, is now based on shared values.

This remarkable political evolution proves beyond any doubt that the notion of “Asian values,” often used to justify one-man or one-party rule, is a fallacy. Taiwan’s democratic ideals have become even more engrained in its national identity following its second peaceful transfer of power in last year’s presidential election.
Taiwan has also developed into a vibrant free-market economy and a major trading partner of the United States. Taiwan’s impressive political and economic achievements give it the potential to play a very constructive role in international affairs. I would urge the governments of both to take additional steps towards reducing cross-Strait tensions. The act was enacted 30 years ago with the expectation that the future of Taiwan would be determined by peaceful means. It is encouraging that China’s top leadership recently stated that it was ready to hold talks with Taiwan to create conditions for ending hostilities and concluding a peace agreement between the two sides.

I am honored to speak on this resolution informing the Taiwan Relations Act stresses the concept of peace through strength. It has served as a key impediment to Communist Chinese military aggression and its attempts at forced reunification of the Republic of China on Taiwan and describes the Taiwan Relations Act as the cornerstone of our very close friendship with Taiwan. I strongly support this resolution. I encourage my colleagues to do the same.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Mr. Speaker, to start the discussion on our side of the aisle, I am honored to yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Florida, my colleague, Mr. LINCOLN DIAZ-BALART, who is the co-chair of the House Taiwan Caucus as well as a prime sponsor of this important resolution.

Mr. LINCOLN DIAZ-BALART of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I thank my distinguished colleague for the time. I am honored to speak on this resolution commemorating the 30th anniversary of the Taiwan Relations Act. This resolution reaffirms the United States’ commitment to the Republic of China on Taiwan and describes the Taiwan Relations Act as the “cornerstone” of U.S.-Taiwan relations.

The Taiwan Relations Act stresses the concept of peace through strength. It has served as a key impediment to Communist Chinese military aggression and its attempts at forced reunification under communism with the people of Taiwan.

As Members of the United States Congress, we will do all that is necessary so that the Republic of China on Taiwan continues to have the tools it needs to defend itself. This resolution is especially important because over the past 30 years, through six administrations, Congress has remained a steady and loyal friend and ally of the Republic of China on Taiwan. The strong support of Congress was evident once again in the fact that over 120 Members of Congress rushed to lend their name to this resolution in less than 1 month. As the 30th anniversary of the Taiwan Relations Act is just a few weeks away, the action by the United States Congress today reaffirms, once again, the close relationship between Taiwan and the United States.

Although the Republic of China on Taiwan has achieved the tremendous economic successes of a flourishing market-based economy and one of the highest standards of living in the world, the U.S.-Taiwan friendship rests on much more than shared economic interests and trade. Our friendship stems from a commitment to the fundamental ideals of the rule of law, freedom and opposition to totalitarianism.

The United States of America must never waiver in our support of the Republic of China on Taiwan. We must, and we will, continue to remind the world that Taiwan’s security is of the utmost importance to the United States Congress, to the American Government, and to the American people. I rose today in extraordinary admiration for the Republic of China, for its history in China and its renaissance on Taiwan. And I look forward to continuing to work to deepen cooperation between the United States and the Republic of China.

Mr. Berman. Mr. Speaker, I’m very pleased to yield 2 minutes to the sponsor of the resolution, the gentlelady from Nevada (Ms. Berkley).

Ms. BERKLEY. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding and for his extraordinary leadership on this resolution. I would also like to thank the delegate from American Samoa and the ranking member of the Foreign Affairs Committee for their support on this important resolution.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today as the co-chairwoman of the Taiwan Caucus and as a prime sponsor in support of this resolution in support of our growing and continuing relationship with Taiwan. Three decades ago, Congress declared that the U.S. would stand with Taiwan against any use of force that would jeopardize its security. We have kept our commitment, and we can now proudly commemorate this historic anniversary marking 30 years of an ever-strengthening U.S.-Taiwan relationship.

For 30 years, the Taiwan Relations Act has been instrumental in maintaining peace, security and stability in the Taiwan Strait. Over that period, Taiwan has transformed itself into a vibrant democracy, holding several free and fair elections along with two democratic presidential elections. Taiwan is an inspiring story of expanding freedom, a robust, capitalist economy and a strong trading partner of the United States. We must do everything in our power to continue protecting it and ensuring its survival.

As Taiwan enters a new era in cross-Strait relations and faces new economic and security challenges, Congress today reaffirms, through this resolution, its commitment to the Taiwan Relations Act, to Taiwan’s democracy and to our deep, long-standing friendship.

I thank the gentleman once again. I urge support for the resolution.

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Mr. Speaker, I would now like to yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. BURTON), who is the ranking member of our Subcommittees on the Middle East and South Asia.

Mr. BURTON. Mr. Speaker, I won’t take the whole 2 minutes. I think everything that is going to be said about the Republic of China on Taiwan can be boiled down to just a few words. They are our true friends. They have been with us through thick and thin. There have been times when we haven’t been as good a friend to them as I think we should have been. But they have always been there for us. Ever since they left the mainland and went to Taiwan, they have been a strong friend of Taiwan that has grown into one of the biggest economic countries in the world, the third biggest trading partner of the United States.

Mr. Speaker, I thank you, thank you for being such great friends.

Mr. Berman. Mr. Speaker, I have no further speakers on the floor. I will reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. BERKLEY. Mr. Speaker, I would now like to yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Florida, my colleague, Mr. MARIO DIAZ-BALART, who is also a sponsor of this resolution.

Mr. MARIO DIAZ-BALART of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the gentlelady from Florida, and also all the sponsors of this legislation.

Today in recognition of the 30th anniversary of this landmark legislation, the Taiwan Relations Act. It codifies into law the basis for the continued special relationship between the United States and the Republic of China on Taiwan. Our two nations share so many common beliefs and values. We both cherish freedom, human rights and democracy.

And last year, during the most recent Presidential election, they once again showed that, yes, of course they are a true, vibrant democracy. The Republic of China on Taiwan continues to be our strong ally on the war on terrorism. And they continuously prove that they are a true partner of the people of the United States of America.

Now contrast that, Mr. Speaker, with what just took place a month ago when the Communist Chinese dictatorship sent a number of ships to harass an unarmed U.S. Navy surveillance ship. This provocative action, and many others like it, should serve as a cause for concern when one appreciates the nation that regularly violates human rights. Again, that highlights the importance that the people of Taiwan know and that the world knows the United States Congress stands with this strong and proud democracy.

Mr. BERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I am grateful for this resolution, for having the opportunity to support this resolution, and make clear that our friends in Taiwan understand that Congress stands with them, really stands with them.

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Mr. Speaker, I am proud to yield 1 minute to the gentleman from California (Mr. ROYCE), the ranking member of our Subcommittee on Terrorism, Nonproliferation and Trade.

Mr. ROYCE. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of this resolution, which recognizes the 30th anniversary of the Taiwan Relations Act. This is a historic occasion. Taiwan, of course, is a beacon of democracy in Asia. We have a strong partnership that stretches back over half a century with this country. Today our relations remain strong, as Taiwan is a cornerstone of U.S. foreign policy in Asia.

This was signed 30 years ago, and the Taiwan Relations Act laid into the law the basis for the continued commercial, cultural and defense relationship between the U.S. and Taiwan. As this resolution states, it has been instrumental in maintaining the peace, the security and the stability in the Taiwan Straits.

While this resolution highlights many of the positive attributes of the U.S.-Taiwan relationship, language detailing our important economic relationship was regrettably struck. As the original version states, Taiwan is the ninth largest trading partner of the U.S., with United States exports totaling over $26 billion. Imports from Taiwan are important.

The truth is that trade is very important to Taiwanese security. Security isn’t based on weapons alone. The SPEAKER pro tempore. The time of the gentleman has expired.

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. I yield an additional 1 minute to the gentleman from California.

Mr. ROYCE. Mr. Speaker, I suspect it is wishful thinking with this administration, but I would like to see movement on a trade agreement with Taiwan. Certainly, if we throw up trade barriers, it would do much to destabilize Taiwan’s economy. We shouldn’t give trade short shrift.

Mr. BERMAN. Mr. Speaker, we have no further requests for time, so I will reserve to the ranking member.

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Mr. Speaker, I would like to yield myself such time as I may consume.

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support as an original cosponsor of House Concurrent Resolution 55. This resolution recognizes the Taiwan Relations Act as the cornerstone of the unbreakable relations which exist today between the people of the United States and the people of Taiwan.

The Taiwan Relations Act stands out as one of the key pieces of foreign policy legislation passed by Congress in the 20th century. Congress was prompted to act by the decision of President Jimmy Carter to suddenly cut off, as of January 1, 1979, our historic relations with a traditional ally, and to provide nothing further for its continued security nor defensive needs.

Taiwan has stood with the United States, both during the Second World War and in the Cold War, yet little thought was given to the fate of the then approximately 18 million people living on the island. Is this the way to treat an old friend? The response from the House of Representatives 30 years ago was a resounding “no.”

On March 28, 1979, the House passed the Taiwan Relations Act by an overwhelming bipartisan majority of 339-50. It is this anniversary that we commemorate this coming Saturday and, in so doing, Mr. Speaker, reaffirm our commitment to strengthen the U.S.-Taiwan relationship our support for the defensive needs of the Taiwanese people.

Thirty years ago Taiwan was put forward as the sacrificial lamb for our own apprehensions, ready to be surrendered to Beijing in an effort to end the Cold War. The Taiwan Relations Act put an end to that defeatist way of thinking.

In the three decades since the Taiwan Relations Act, Mr. Speaker, the economic and democratic evolution of Taiwan has been far more optimistic projections at that time. Taiwan’s robust, free-market economy made the island the ninth largest trading partner of the United States in 2007.

Taiwan, as a young democracy with a record of two peaceful transitions of power, is blossoming amidst a sea of Chinese communism. It has become a beacon of hope to all who aspire to democracy in the Chinese cultural world.

Now, more than ever, we must ensure that our robust ties with the people of Taiwan are maintained and even strengthened. Now, more than ever, we must ensure that the people of Taiwan are provided with defensive weapons needed to ensure that no sudden change in the status quo by the use of force undermines their political aspirations. Now, more than ever, we must ensure that Congress is fully consulted on a regular basis on both our overall relations with Taiwan, and our planned future arms sales.

The best means to achieve these goals, Mr. Speaker, is through overwhelming Congressional support for this resolution as a sign of our unwavering recommitment to the Taiwan Relations Act on its 30th anniversary.

Let us send a strong, unequivocal message to Beijing that we are unwavering in our commitment to democracy, to free markets, and to the people of Taiwan. Now more than ever, we must all stand by Taiwan on this important anniversary.

Mr. ACKERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I rise as a proud co-sponsor of H. Con. Res. 55 and I want to commend Chairman FALEOMAVAGEA and Ranking Member MANZULLO for moving this timely resolution forward.

Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to join in recognizing the 30th anniversary of the Taiwan Relations Act. Since 1979, the TRA’s clarity of purpose as the framers of U.S.-Taiwan relations and its singular role in shaping our relationship with the Peoples Republic of China has few equals in terms of foreign policy legislation produced by the Congress.

The TRA, Taiwan itself, I dare say the mainland, have both prospered and are vastly different places from what they were before the TRA was enacted. The TRA has facilitated Taiwan’s evolution into a full-fledged, multiparty democracy with a robust free market economy. And as Taiwan has evolved domestically, its role internationally has changed as well. Taiwan is an active participant in addressing transnational threats and has been deeply engaged in humanitarian relief efforts, addressing public health and environmental protection initiatives as well as financial stabilization efforts.

The resolution before the subcommittee today reaffirms the unwavering support of the United States Congress for Taiwan, its democratic institutions, and urges a deeper and stronger relationship between the United States and Taiwan. These are sentiments with which we can all agree, so I urge my colleagues to support the resolution.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of this resolution recognizing one of our strongest partners in business and in democracy, Taiwan. I would like to thank my colleague SHELLEY BERKLEY of Nevada for her continued strong leadership on issues affecting Taiwan, and Asia in general.

Whether you refer to the Republic of China, Formosa or Taiwan, this is a free society that has been a beacon of light and freedom in the Taiwan Strait.

April 10, 2009 will mark the 30th anniversary of the enactment of the Taiwan Relations Act, codifying in law the basis for continued commercial, cultural, and other relations between the United States and the Republic of China, or Taiwan. The Taiwan Relations Act has been instrumental in maintaining peace, security, and stability in the Taiwan Strait since its enactment in 1979.

When the Taiwan Relations Act was enacted, it affirmed that the United States decision to establish diplomatic relations with the People’s Republic of China was based on the expectation that the future of Taiwan would be determined by peaceful means. I truly believe that all of Asia wants the future of Taiwan to be peaceful and that this glorious society continues to be a beacon of light, freedom and commercial opportunity.

My district in Texas is home to a very strong Taiwanese American community, and while I understand that Texas is not known for it’s Asian population, it is very vital and an important part of the tapestry of diversity that the state of Texas must get recognition for.

The Taiwan Relations Act has stated that policy of the United States to provide defense articles and defense services in such quantity as may be necessary to enable Taiwan to maintain a sufficient self-defense capability. Our continued desire is that these articles remain unused.

The Taiwan Relations Act also makes it a policy of the United States to maintain the capacity to resist any resort to force or other to the Taiwan Strait. I welcome President Ma's important in the context of this anniversary to been mutually beneficial for generations in TRA and take further steps to enhance our it is critical that the United States Congress economies and is counted among America's formed into one the world's most dynamic

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from California (Mr. BERMAN) and the gentlewoman from Florida (Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from California.

Mr. BERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material on the resolution.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

Mr. ROYCE. Mr. Speaker, what we are recognizing here; come tomorrow was the 188th anniversary of the independence of Greece. And we are celebrating Greek and American democracy. And that date tomorrow represents the day at which, after 400 years of oppressive rule, Greeks finally became free. Greeks were able, and it is amazing to think about it, to maintain their language, maintain their religion, to hold on to their culture, despite 20 generations of persecution during that period of time.

And I think one of the reasons we are proud here in the United States about the role we played was because U.S. President James Monroe and our then-Secretary of State, Daniel Webster, peacefully sent funds and supplies to aid Greece in that time. More importantly, I think to all of us, free-born men, both white and black, born in the North, traveled to Greece during that struggle. They played a role over 150 years ago in free-doms. That was the power at the time of the concept of Greek liberty, that it drove Americans in this early republic to travel to Greece in order to take part in that very struggle. And that struggle, frankly, began an alliance between the U.S. and Greece that has joined our two countries in NATO, that has seen our soldiers fight tyranny in World War II.

We are indebted to the Greeks for their vast influence on our own society. Two thousand five hundred years ago, the Greeks ushered in Western civilization, and they brought about at that time the scientific method. They gave us the philosophy of Aristotle and Aristotelian logic, the birth of democratic government, the first age of real philosophy, and the beginning of the philosophy of Euripides, the three-dimensional painting that was not rediscovered as a technique until the end of the Dark Ages, until into the Renaissance when again the enlightenment represented, really, the rediscovery of Greek philosophy, of these concepts of the autonomy of the individual, of logic and reason.

Our own founding fathers were deeply influenced by those Hellenic ideas. Thomas Jefferson, Adams and Madison, they not only wrote and read Greek; they could speak Greek—Tom Paine as well. They were well-versed in Greek philosophy.

In crafting the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution, Jefferson and Madison drew heavily on the Greek ideal that a government derives its power from the people. Thomas Jefferson’s stirring words that all men are created equal and are endowed with unalienable rights have been to natural law theories that originated in Greek philosophy. Indeed, the very architecture of our buildings, the very ideals that drove our founding fathers through all of this Greek culture permeates throughout Washington, DC and our Nation. It is this legacy that we justly recognize today.

Mr. Berman. Mr. Speaker, I yield the remainder of time to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. Wexler).

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. Adler of New Jersey). Without objection, the gentleman from Florida will control the time.

The Chair recognizes Mr. Wexler.

Mr. WEXLER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to Ms. Berkley, the gentlewoman from Nevada.

Ms. BERKLEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today not only as a friend of Greece but also as a proud daughter. My mother’s family comes from Salonika, Greece, and I count my Greek-Jewish heritage among my most enriching.

Greece has been a strong ally of the United States, standing by us in our struggle against the Nazis and in the struggle against Islamic extremism. The Greek people paid a very high price for their opposition to the Nazis, and we are forever grateful for their sacrifices, of which there were many. Greece continues to be a top contributor to NATO and is a leader in the Balkan region.

The resolution before the House today extends its best wishes, our best wishes and congratulations, to the people of Greece, whom we look to as our forebears in democracy. I am a proud cosponsor of this resolution, but I hope this will not be our last word on our friendship with Greece.

I urge this House and our administration to strengthen our relationship with Greece by including it in the Visa Waiver Program. By approving admission into the program, we will send not only a message of friendship but a message of thanks to the Greek community, which is so deserving of our friendship and our gratitude. Greece has met the criteria to become a visa waiver country, and only awaits approval of their application. On this anniversary, let us take concrete action to strengthen our bond with Greece and send a message of thanks to our friends and allies.

Ms. Ros-Lehtinen. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 4 minutes to my wonderful colleague from Florida, Mr. Bilirakis. It is no surprise he is the co-chair of the Congressional Hellenic Caucus, and a fine job he does.

Mr. BILIRAKIS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today with great pride and strong support for House Resolution 273, recognizing the 188th anniversary of Greek independence and celebrating Greek and American democracy.

This bill is personally significant to me because, like Mr. Bilirakis, I, too, am of Greek descent, being the grandson of immigrants who came here from the very small but beautiful island of Ikaria, Greece.

It is significant that we understand in recognizing and in advocating for this resolution that our founding fathers chose the ancient Greek models in the formation of our own Constitution and in formulating and defining the values of freedom, justice and equality. What is equally interesting is that, when Greece attained its independence, it turned to the Jeffersonian democracy that we have in formulating its constitution.

This resolution reaffirms the excellent relationship between the United States and Greece. In its passage, I look forward to continued joint cooperation between these two nations in their mutual quest for peace, justice and democratic principles. Peace, justice and democratic principles are not just words. They mean something.

In this case, it means a renewed interest and quest for peace and democracy and the principles of democracy in Cyprus. It means ending the occupation that has lasted for over 35 years. It means this country working with Greece to effectuate that. It means preserving the sanctity and the integrity of the ecumenical patriarch, the spiritual father of nearly 300 million who are Christian Orthodox worldwide.

Ascribing to those principles is what we believe in, and it is what Greece believes in. I look forward to working with Greece in future years as we strive for that justice.

Ms. Ros-Lehtinen. Mr. Speaker, I would like to yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Nevada, Judge Poe.

Mr. POE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentlewoman from Nevada (Ms. Titus).

Ms. Titus. Mr. Speaker, I rise today as a proud member of the Congressional Hellenic Caucus to offer my congratulations to all Greeks and all Greeks living in America. This resolution recognizes and celebrates the 188th anniversary of Greek independence.

I have been blessed with this wonderful heritage throughout my life. I have enjoyed visiting Greece a number of times to learn firsthand about the birthplace of democracy, and these trips have given me a deep understanding of the country’s regions, its mythologies, its history, its food, its music, and especially its people.

The Hellenic Republic and Greece have always shared a special bond. When the new democracy was formed in Greece, they charged themselves with imitating and resembling American democracy, just like our forefathers shaped our democracy around the ideals of Aristotle and Socrates. Those are the very principles of government I teach in my political science classes at UNLV.

So, Mr. Speaker, I look forward to celebrating this holiday tomorrow with the leaders of the Hellenic community and with the President of the United States. I look forward to working to further strengthen the relationship between the United States and the wonderful Hellenic Republic of Greece.

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Mr. Speaker, I would like to yield myself such time as I may consume.

I am proud to both sponsor and rise today in support of this resolution. This measure, as we have heard from each side, expresses our support for the nation of Greece as it celebrates the 188th anniversary of its independence, and it also notes the many very positive aspects of our relationship with that country.

There is truly a kinship between the people of Greece and the United States, one that was born from the shared ideals of democracy. Americans, indeed, owe a great deal to the political philosophy of democracy that was born in ancient Athens so long ago in 500 B.C. It was the Greek city-state of Athens that first created the word “democracy” by combining “demos,” meaning people, with “kratos,” meaning power, and so it became the first state in history to introduce and implement the concept of democracy in its form of government.

As they framed our Constitution in the late 18th century, our founding fathers drew upon the principles and the forms of government that had been created in ancient Greece thousands of years earlier. Soon after that, 45 years after America’s Declaration of Independence, Greek freedom fighters looked to the young United States for inspiration as they began their work for independence from Ottoman Turkey in 1821. In fact, at that time, one of those Greek freedom fighters praised George Washington and the United States for being the land of liberty in his poem “Hymn to Liberty.” That poem then became a rallying cry in the Greek struggle for independence, and was later adopted as the national anthem for Greece.

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Today, Mr. Speaker, Greece is a strong ally of the United States. It was the only country that fought alongside the United States in every major conflict of the 20th century. The contributions and sacrifices made by Greeks in fighting the Nazis in World War II, in the Battle of Crete and elsewhere, are not forgotten by us today well over 60 years later. In this new century, Greece has also sought to reinforce stability and peace in her area of the eastern Mediterranean. As evidenced by her position at the crossroads of energy supplies between Asia and Europe and by its efforts to support stability in the region of the Balkans, Greece will play an increasingly important role in its immediate region in the European Union and the trans-Atlantic community of nations.

It is my privilege to have introduced this resolution, Mr. Speaker, recognizing the strong relationship between the United States and Greece and honoring the 188th anniversary of the revolution that led Greece to its freedom. I urge my colleagues to join us in supporting this resolution.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I might consume.

Mr. Speaker, as a proud member of the Hellenic Caucus, I want to express strong support for this resolution recognizing the 188th anniversary of the independence of Greece and celebrating Greek and American democracy. I would also like to take this opportunity to thank my very good friend from Florida (Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN) who has been a leading supporter of U.S.-Greek relations in Congress. Additionally, I want to express my gratitude to the co-chairs of the Hellenic Caucus, Congresswoman MALONEY and Congressman BILIRAKIS, for their efforts in moving this resolution forward.

Having had the honor of meeting with the Foreign Minister of Greece just ago, it is an honor to highlight one of America’s most important allies, Greece, and the common commitments to democracy, human rights and laws that bind our two nations. This resolution is an opportunity to praise Greece for its efforts to bring peace and stability to the Balkans, as well as the support Athens has given the United States following 9/11 and our collective efforts on the war on terrorism.

It is not lost on any of us in Congress that Greece was a key ally to quests by the United States during the war in Iraq and immediately granted unlimited access to its airspace and the base in Souda Bay. Many American ships that delivered troops, cargo, and supplies to Iraq were refueled in Greece.

Close cooperation with our NATO ally Greece continues on a daily basis, and it is essential that Congress and the administration recognize this extraordinary support and express our deepest gratitude to the Greek people and Greek government.

This occasion is not only important in terms of U.S.-Greece bilateral relations, but it is an historic occasion for millions of Americans. As a Member of Congress with a large Greek American community, I am especially pleased that we are passing this resolution today, which also highlights this community’s extraordinary commitments to their shared prospects.

It is undeniable that the Greek American community, which includes some five million Americans with Greek ancestry, is the lynchpin in the unbreakable bond between the United States and Greece. As unofficial ambassadors between the U.S. and Greece, Greek Americans have for decades successfully shaped this long-standing friendship and built new bridges to forge closer relations between our nations.

While this resolution recognizes an important anniversary in the independence of Greece, it is also my hope that today's floor debate will be used as a catalyst to promote our ally, Greece’s, participation in the Visa Waiver Program. Greece has fulfilled all of the criteria to be included in the Visa Waiver Program, and I urge the administration to act as quickly as possible, along with Athens, to finalize this process and open the door to further enhance the relationship between the people and governments of the United States and Greece.

Mr. Speaker, once again, I congratulate the Greek people on the 188th anniversary of their independence and strongly support this resolution.

Mr. CROWLEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to congratulate the Hellenic community as they celebrate the 188th anniversary of Greek Independence from the Ottoman Empire.

After close to 400 years of Ottoman rule, on March 25, 1821, the people of Greece rose up against the Turks and won their independence. March 25th is a date that will live forever in the hearts and minds of Greeks all around the world.

The Greeks have a history dating back almost 4000 years. Greece is the cradle of democracy and its great philosophers were an invaluable inspiration for our founding fathers as they created the democracy we have in America.

We are joined by culture and a deep commitment to shared values. Greek ideals of democracy and freedom continue to inspire us.

On Greek Independence Day, we celebrate the living history of Greek heritage. During the occupation by the Ottoman Turks, they risked harsh penalties, some extreme as death, to teach their children the culture, history, and language of their ancestors. It is this dedication to Greek culture and ideals that led them to revolt against the Ottomans in 1821.

Mr. Speaker, I have the great pleasure of representing a large number of Greek-Americans in the Seventh District of New York. Their influence and active participation in their communities has fostered economic, political, and social growth throughout New York City, and I am honored to represent them in Congress.

Generations of Greek Americans have enriched every aspect of our national life, in the arts, sciences, business, politics, and sports.
Through hard work, love of family and community, they have contributed greatly to the prosperity and peace that we all enjoy as Americans today. Although the anniversary of Greece’s independence is cause to celebrate, we must also use this occasion to remember the ongoing struggle for freedom and demand for human rights on the island of Cyprus. The United States and the international community must remain steadfast in our resolve to unify the Greek and Turkish Cypriots who have been divided for far too long.

Mr. Speaker, I reiterate my strong commitment to the Greek communities in my district, the country, and throughout the world. Their strength and dedication to democracy and peace in the world has made them an inspiration and model for modern civilization. I urge my colleagues to join me as we celebrate Greek independence.

Mr. McMAHON. Mr. Speaker, I rise to congratulate Greece on her 188th anniversary of Independence.

The U.S. tradition of democracy was built upon ancient Greek political and philosophical thought. And, the flame that ignited the first discussions of democracy in Ancient Greece, shined luminously throughout the Mediterranean on March 25, 1821.

Fortunately, this anniversary not only marks the centennial of a promising, new democratic state, but of a steadfast and loyal friend to the United States. I am proud to say that Greece has stood by the United States as a strong NATO ally. A quick and reliable partner in World War II, the Balkans and most recently, Iraq. And as a leader through its chairmanship of the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe.

I would also particularly like to congratulate the nearly 15,000 Greek-Americans of Staten Island and Southern Brooklyn whose strong family ties, established customs and tradition of hard work have added to the character and longevity of my district. These Greek Americans and their relatives in Greece are a tight community. Their relatives in Greece deserve to have the same level of access for tourism and business travel to the United States that most other European countries have. This is why I support Greece’s prompt membership into the visa waiver program.

I am urging all of us to remember the buck stops here, not with future generations.

SPECIAL ORDERS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker’s announcement of policy of January 6, 2009, and under a previous order of the House, the following Members will be recognized for 5 minutes each.

AMERICAN SCHOOL KIDS AND THE LONE SURVIVOR OF WORLD WAR I

Mr. POE. Mr. Speaker, in 1918, the war to end all wars was over. It was called World War I. It started in 1914, ended in 1918. And during that time, it was a stalemate until 1917 when the United States entered the war. The United States went overseas to Europe. Those doughboys fought in a land they did not know and for a people they did not know. They broke the trench warfare stalemate, and on the 11th day of the 11th month at the 11th hour of 1918, that Great War was over.

Fifteen million people in the world died because of World War I. And the casualties in the United States? Well, 4,734,991 Doughboys and Marines went to Europe. Those doughboys fought in a land they did not know and for a people they did not know. They broke the trench warfare stalemate, and on the 11th day of the 11th month at the 11th hour of 1918, that Great War was over.

But in the tall weeds of the Mall, there’s a little-known memorial for the D.C. veterans who fought in World War I. It is decrepit, it is falling apart, and it is dirty. It is built largely because the kids here in Washington, D.C., saved their nickels so that memorial could be built.

Mr. Speaker, we do not have a memorial on the Mall for all of the Americans who fought in World War I. America just never got around to it. So I have introduced the Frank Buckles Lone Survivor Act to expand the D.C. memorial so that it honors all that fought in World War I. Mr. Speaker, as you see, Mr. Speaker, Frank Buckles is the lone American survivor from World War I. He’s 108 years old. In World War I, he lied to get into the Army: he was 16; he should have been 18. But he went off to war in Europe and drove an ambulance and rescued other doughboys that had been wounded in France. After the war was over, he came back to America. And during World War II, he was captured in the Philippines by the Japanese and held there until the war was over. The United States went overseas and rescued those prisoners of war. And now he lives in West Virginia.

Mr. Speaker, here is a photograph of Frank Buckles, 108 years old. It is taken in front of what is left of the D.C. memorial. And what I am asking Congress to do is authorize the expansion of the D.C. memorial to include all who fought in World War I.

You know, the men that fought there should be honored by America. Even though they have offered to amend our legislation, government bureaucrats are opposed to this memorial, saying we don’t need any more memorials on the Mall. That dishonors America’s war dead, Americans the bureaucrats never even knew.

But kids across the Nation are answering the call of Frank Buckles. And let me explain. What is occurring is, service-learning projects in schools throughout the country are teaching our children about World War I and those that lived and fought and died in World War I. It started in Creekwood Middle School in my home district, and now it has spread to... schools in Kentucky, Connecticut, Michigan and Ohio. And because of that, these kids are raising funds to build this World War I memorial for all that lived and died in this war.

Mr. Speaker, it is imperative that we as a Nation honor all that fought in the four long years of the last war. And it is a shame we haven’t built a memorial to them. But I can tell you something, Mr. Speaker. America’s school kids will not be denied because they are the grassroots campaign to build that memorial, and they are raising funds to do it.

Mr. Speaker, there is nothing more powerful than American school kids that have made up their minds, and they have made up their minds that America shall honor the war dead of World War I, the Frank Buckles and all of those four million-plus that served with him. And we’re going to build this memorial whether the Federal bureaucrats like it or not.

And that’s just the way it is.

SCHOOLS INVOLVED IN THE EFFORT

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from the Northern Mariana Islands (Mr. SABLAN) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. SABLAN. Mr. Speaker, the covenant to establish a Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands in political union with the United States of America defines the unique relationship between the Northern Mariana Islands and the United States, recognizing United States sovereignty but limiting it in some respects, applicability of Federal law. The commonwealth accordingly enjoys a greater degree of autonomy than most United States territories.

The covenant was negotiated over the course of 27 months, from December 1972 to February 1975, by the Marianas Political Status Commission, made up of representatives of the Northern Mariana Islands and a delegation representing the United States.

The proposed covenant was signed by negotiators on February 15, 1975, and unanimously approved by the legislature of the Mariana Islands District of the United Nations Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands on February 17, 1975.

On June 17, 1975, the covenant was submitted to Northern Mariana Islands voters in a plebiscite. At the time, 95 percent of eligible residents had registered to vote, and of the 95 percent of all registered voters who cast ballots in the plebiscite, 78.8 percent voted to approve the covenant.

On January 9, 1978, the Northern Mariana Islands Government was established, and the first elected governor took office.

On November 4, 1976, qualified residents of the Northern Mariana Islands became United States citizens.

On May 8, 2008, President George W. Bush signed Public Law 110–229 and gave the Northern Mariana Islands the seat in Congress that I presently have the privilege to occupy.

Today, Mr. Speaker, the people of the Northern Mariana Islands mark the 33rd year of the date when the covenant took effect.

The 33 years of our political relationship, Mr. Speaker, has been beneficial to both the Northern Mariana Islands and to the United States, such that the political agreement continues to be celebrated by very proud citizens in that most western part of the United States. I join my people in their celebration and bring their joy to this Congress.

Thank you for the opportunity to share this joyful and historical day with Congress, the Nation and with the American people.

THE BUDGET

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. GOODLATTE) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. GOODLATTE. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to talk about the 2010 budget. I would like to make a few comments regarding the budget that the Budget Committee is acting upon this week and which some have proposed be brought to the floor of this House next week.

I would suggest that it is very much in need of dramatic change and would ask that the leadership of this Congress take that budget back and start over again because a debt of the magnitude that this country is already facing, added to the projected deficit for next year alone, now up to $1.8 trillion, is a stagflationary one and it is not something that is sustainable.

We have known this for a long time. In fact, one of the namesakes of the annual dinners that our colleagues on the other side of the aisle hold, the Jefferson-Jackson dinners that are held all across the country, he has been known throughout American history for his strong stand against piling on greater and greater public debt. In fact, late in his life he said, “The disease of avarice... an engine so corruptive of the government and so demoralizing of the Nation as a public debt. It will bring on us more ruin at home than all the enemies from abroad.” And we, in fact, see this statement coming to haunt us in very severe ways at this time in our history.

You know, we had up until last year a $9 trillion national debt that had been accumulated over more than 200 years of our Nation’s history. And yet the projection now is that in the next 10 years, according to this budget—and that is based upon optimistic projections—I would say with regard to government spending—the liabilities the government already has and the number of different programs, but the projection already offered by the administration is that that debt will increase by one-and-a-half times in the next 10 years.

And that is staggering to consider that we could outstrip all of the spending that has taken place over all of that period of time in such a short period of time, and I want to show you exactly how that works with this chart. The debt held by the public in a very short period of time. Projections now are that it will be even greater than this. This one shows that it grows to $16 trillion. We now have a new projection that says $23 trillion will be the national debt in total.

The public portion of the national debt, that portion of the debt that we owe to American citizens and other people around the world, will grow to $7 trillion from less than $6 trillion just last year. That is a stunning figure, but this doesn’t even tell the whole story because what this shows is just the public portion of the debt.

Every year, the Congress borrows from the Social Security trust fund, and other trust funds, additional funds, and the government simply puts an IOU in those trust funds, funds so important to our senior citizens and others who are counting on those funds to keep the government running. So we could outstrip all of the IOU in those trust funds, funds so important to our senior citizens and others who are counting on those funds to keep the government running. We now have a new projection that says $23 trillion will be the national debt in total.

We now have a new projection that says $23 trillion will be the national debt in total.

We have in this budget that has been offered in this Congress too much spending, too much taxation and, what we’re focusing on today, too much debt. Let me call the words of President Jefferson to mind again: To preserve the independence of the people, we must not let ourselves be burdened with perpetual debt. We must make our election between economy and liberty or profusion and servitude—and that is truly the crossroads that we have reached today.

Thomas Jefferson recognized that 190-plus years ago and pointed out that with economy comes liberty and freedom. With as he called it profusion, or what we call today big government spending, comes servitude of the people to their government. That is not what we should do. Servitude which, in my opinion, is in need of a balanced budget amendment to the Constitution. I will have more to say about this in the future, but I believe to oppose this budget and support real fiscal reform, which would be to adopt a balanced budget amendment to the Constitution.

The Speaker pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from California (Ms. WOOLSEY) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. WOOLSEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise to call the House’s attention to two very positive developments in the administration’s handling of foreign policy and military affairs.

First, the administration offered Iraq a new beginning in relations between our two countries. He did that on Tuesday. It was part of his message to the Iranian people, but not to their leaders on the occasion of the Persian new year.

The President said, “My administration is now committed to diplomacy that addresses the full range of issues before us, and Iran, and to pursuing constructive ties among the United States, Iran, and the international community. This process will not be advanced by threats. We seek, instead, engagement that is honest, and grounded in mutual respect.”

Mr. Speaker, President Obama is determined to settle differences with Iran peacefully. Of course, I don’t have any illusions about our ability to reduce tensions with Iran. That’s because they continue to develop a nuclear program which can be used to build nuclear weapons.

I do believe that diplomacy can produce good results over time. A diplomatic effort can begin within the next year, or in the next week actually, when Secretary of State Hillary Clinton attends a conference on Afghanistan in The Netherlands. Iran is expected to attend the conference, and Secretary Clinton could interact with Iranian officials.

The United States and Iran have cooperated in the past over Afghanistan, and this may be one area of common ground. But at the very least, the administration has created an environment where peaceful progress can be made, and I commend the administration for that.

The second development that is positive came last Wednesday when Secretary of Defense Gates announced that he is moving to end the Pentagon’s terrible stop-loss policy. Under stop-loss, Mr. Speaker, thousands of soldiers have been forced to remain in the military even after their enlistments have expired.

Ending stop-loss is long overdue. It has been essentially a backdoor draft, and it’s one of the policies that has stretched our military to the limit, putting a terrible strain on our soldiers and on their families.

The Army has acknowledged this problem. The Army Vice Chief of Staff told a Senate subcommittee last week that forcing soldiers to take longer deployments has helped produce a “stressed and tired force.”

Prolonged deployments, Mr. Speaker, which have separated soldiers from their families for these very long periods of time, have contributed to a tragic rise in the number of suicides among military personnel. The Army has confirmed that there were 133 suicides last year alone, and that’s just the Army.

Another serious problem is that many soldiers who have left the military have not had a happy homecoming. The unemployment rate for veterans of Iraq and Afghanistan is 11.2 percent, which is higher than the rate for nonveterans.

That is one of the reasons why I support the administration’s economic recovery plan, which actually is the third policy development that we should be talking about today, because this plan will produce millions of new jobs. I would have liked to have seen an even bigger recovery plan to create even more jobs, but Mr. Speaker, I have to disagree with the administration on some policies occasionally, and that’s stretching beyond where their good intentions are.

I also have to disagree with the administration on foreign policy issues. But on this occasion, I don’t want to go into that. I want to applaud the administration for taking three important steps that can make the world a more peaceful place and that will lift a very heavy burden off our brave troops and their families.

The Speaker pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Kansas (Mr. MORAN) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Mr. MORAN of Kansas addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

CAP-AND-TRADE

The Speaker pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. ROGERS) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. ROGERS of Michigan. Mr. Speaker, I rise today for the urgency that faces the United States—and I hope every single American engages in this debate.

The economy has certainly taken a great toll on the great State of Michigan, where I’m from, and President Obama’s recently offered budget, if enacted, is just one more slap at working people of the great State of Michigan and all around this country.

It creates a cap-and-tax program for the first time in this history. Something that used to be free, you’re now taxed to use it.

The National Association of Manufacturers estimate this plan will cost Michigan alone $121,000 jobs by 2030. It also increases gas rates by 141 percent and electric rates by 177 percent. What does that mean to you? If you have a $70 per month electric bill today, it’s going up to $193 per month just for the enactment of the cap-and-tax program.

If you’re paying about $1.91, as you are at the pump today, if enacted, the cap-and-tax program takes that to $4.60 a gallon. Good luck in economic prosperity.

If you’re a UAW worker in Michigan today and you happen to work in the great city of Lansing, Michigan, you are already paying a State gas tax, a Federal gas tax, a Federal excise tax for your driver’s license, a tax for your license tag, you’re paying a sales tax on the car which you purchased. You pay a city income tax, a State income tax, and a Federal incomes. You pay your FICA tax.

If you go home and if you enjoy a beer after work, there’s a special excise tax on the beer that you consume. You click on your cable TV, you pay a tax for that as well. You sit in your Barcalounger. Guess what? You paid a sales tax on that, too.

Mr. President, more taxes will not solve the problem. It will exacerbate the problem. Working families in this country deserve a break, not platitudes, not kind words, not silver-tongued speeches.

These people are right on the edge of losing their homes, and we’re going to enact a tax that makes it that much harder for them to make the very payments to stay in their homes today.

Every time you tax a job like this—imagine this. We build cars. Imagine if the taxes go that much up on just your home ownership costs—your electric bill, your gas bill, when you fill up your gasoline—it happens to the manufacturing base that uses energy. The cost for producing that car goes up.

So you’re paying more for gas a gallon, you’re paying more for your electric bill. And, guess what? If you want to go out and buy a car, good luck. The cost of that electricity increase is built into the cost of that car.

We no longer will remain competitive. I tell you what—China loves this idea. India loves this idea. Absolutely. They want to make it prohibitive for us to build anything in the United States of America. And how do we do it in this budget? We increase the budget... by $40,040 per man, woman, and child in America. Your Congress will have borrowed more money in the past year than the cost of all America’s wars combined. One year. You know, the sad thing is we here, the good guys, the good guys, China, Saudi Arabia, and others, and we get to ask them: Please, lend us money for these programs that we know may in fact hurt the American people here in the very near future.

The nonpartisan Congressional Budget Office estimates that President Obama’s budget will force the United States to borrow $9.3 trillion. That equates to more than $120,000 per family of four for 14 years—think of this—14 years of groceries for the average family of four. Every man, woman, and child, 14 years of groceries by just the debt that we are placing on our children’s heads in the very near future. This is an unprecedented expanse of government at the expense of the future prosperity of the children of the United States.

About 64 percent of the businesses will claim, at this $250,000 limit—64 percent of those are small businesses. So your diners, the folks that you go and get your auto fixed at—guess what? They’re getting a tax increase as well. So not only are they paying all that other tax, they’re getting another tax increase to make this whole budget try to work.

At the end of the day, you’re still assuming $120,000 in debt per family. What have we done? Where are we going?

We know how this works. And if we can just take a step back, take a deep breath and say, Mr. President, we’re with you. But you cannot tax the prosperity of America and our children and their future. You cannot tax so much, you cannot spend so much, and you cannot borrow so much if we want prosperity in the future.

I would hope Americans are paying attention and asking some very hard questions about the future of this great Nation.

IMPORTANT OF DIVERSITY IN FINANCIAL STABILITY AND RECOVERY

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from California (Ms. WATERS) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. WATERS. Mr. Speaker, I rise this afternoon to briefly discuss a very important issue. Several Members of the House have been working with the Congressional Black Caucus, the Financial Services Committee and other committees to increase access for minority and women-owned business enterprises. Just this week, a new report was released by the Center for Community Economic Development on ‘The Imperative of Closing the Racial Wealth Gap.’ I would like to include the summary of this report in the RECORD.

One of our primary focus areas over the last several months has been minority and women-owned business enterprises’ access to the Troubled Asset Relief Program. That is the TARP.

Originally, TARP was designed for the purposes of purchase and liquidation, and presented several opportunities for women and minority-owned businesses to participate through asset management, legal, accounting, and other professional services.

Following the implementation of the TARP, Representative GREGORY MEeks and I convened a meeting of over 60 minority asset managers and officials from the Treasury Department to ensure maximum participation by women and minority-owned businesses. We wanted to make sure that there were real opportunities for participation in the TARP.

As a result, legislative language was placed in the TARP bill describing specific steps Treasury was to take to ensure minority participation. In addition, members from the National Association of Securities Professionals met with Treasury several times and submitted written recommendations on how Treasury could work better with minority and women-owned businesses.

Unfortunately, shortly after enactment of the TARP, Secretary Paulson shifted the focus from toxic assets to direct infusions of cash to ailing financial institutions. This shift is known as the Capital Purchase Program. This shift both cut off major opportunities for minority and women-owned businesses via asset-related services, and opened an opportunity for participation in the way of debt underwriting and other banking professional services.

Unfortunately, these opportunities were never realized as banks that received TARP funds began a cycle of overextending and losing little capital or no access to TARP contracting opportunities for women and minority-owned businesses. The most egregious of this type of patronage was highlighted through the banks paying themselves to underwrite their own debt.

Yesterday, the Secretary of the Treasury announced a new program aimed at purchasing toxic assets from financial institutions. With this announcement, we have come full circle. Other Houses who wanted to make sure that these opportunities are available to all of the women and minority-owned businesses in our society also.

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

For every dollar owned by the median white family in the United States, the typical Latino family has twelve cents, and the typical African American family has a dime. If you own what you owe: assets minus debts.

This racial wealth gap has roots in the past, and reaches forward as well: It drains a family’s capacity to give the next generation a solid start. Without addressing the wealth gap, racial inequality will be with us for generations to come.

Anti-poverty programs have relied primarily on providing subsistence income for today’s necessities, not building assets that lead to economic mobility and security, and in fact are penalized low-income people for owning assets. Wealth-building policies can help even the lowest-income families gain stability and plan for the future.

Asset poverty is a new definition of poverty that reveals how many families lack even minimal amounts of wealth. It can be defined as not having enough assets to survive for three months without income. People of color are far more likely than whites to be asset-poor. The median family of color has assets of only five weeks at the poverty level, compared with seven months for the median white family.

THE ROOTS OF THE RACIAL WEALTH DIVIDE IN U.S. HISTORY

Throughout U.S. history, federal and state governments have provided “wealth starter kits” for some to turn their work into worth. For example, governments have given gifts of land, education, government-backed mortgages and farm loans, a social safety net, and business subsidies to white families, sometimes exclusively and usually disproportionately.

The same governments that boosted white wealth took land from people of color, denied them education, and erected barriers to home and business ownership.

Native Americans lost assets not just during the first centuries of U.S. history, through displacement and treaty violations, but also more recently through the mismanagement and Bureau of Indian Affairs mismanagement.

African Americans were not just denied property; they were property during slavery. Legal segregation and Jim Crow laws pushed Black citizens to the margins of the economy, where many remain stuck today. Wealth-building programs such as Social Security and the post-WWII GI Bill at first excluded African Americans, with multigenerational effects.

Latinos have been negatively affected by U.S. foreign policy and immigration policy. Mexicans and Puerto Ricans lost land to conquest. Temporary guest-worker programs and exploitative and undocumented immigrants have blocked many Latinos from getting a toehold in the U.S. economy.

Most Asian Americans were excluded from entry, and those who were here were largely denied citizenship until after World War II. Japanese Americans lost their assets when they were interned during World War II. While some Asian groups are now prospering, Southeast Asians continue to have a very high poverty rate.

Our country knows how to invest in wealth building for its people. We now need to do so for everyone. We cannot afford to squander America’s greatest asset: its people.

COMPREHENSIVE ASSET BUILDING FOR ALL

A comprehensive approach to asset accumulation should unfold over the course of a person’s life: learning to save as a child; earning more than just a living wage; borrowing on fair terms to invest in the future: buying a home; starting a business; and retiring with security.

To make that possible for Americans of all races, these interconnected policy areas must be improved to support wealth building:

Land: Land loss led to the impoverishment of Native Americans, Mexican Americans, and African Americans, and land ownership will be essential to the racial wealth divide. Suits over land claims brought by blacks, Mexican-Americans, and American Indians must move quickly to settlements. Native peoples including Native Hawaiians still do not control their own land, which is held in trust by the federal government and the state of Hawaii; they must regain full ownership over their land.

Unionization should be promoted. Public investment in unionized industries, should be affirmatively targeted to communities of color.

Savings and investments: The racial disparity in financial assets (cash, investment accounts, stocks, bonds, etc.) is wide: the median family of color had only $9,000 in financial assets; Black and Latino families were below the poverty line.

Since then, as the recession set in, unemployment has been steadily rising. Immigrants and others have struggled to find good jobs with inadequate pay and benefits. Anti-discrimination laws need to be enforced.

Unionization should be promoted. Public investment in industries of communities of color should be affirmatively targeted to communities of color.

Income and employment: Good jobs with good benefits are important wealth-building tools. In 2007 the median household income for African Americans was $34,001, and for Latinos $40,766, compared with $53,714 for white families.

Fairer rules in both programs would broaden their reach. But the disability and survivor programs are very important to African Americans; these programs must be protected against cutbacks.

The majority of minority-owned businesses are very similar to African Americans; these programs must be protected against cutbacks.

Currently tax policy prioritizes further asset-building for wealthy asset owners instead of helping wage earners acquire assets. The mortgage interest deduction reduces taxes mostly for owners of high-priced homes who are disproportionately white; low-income taxpayers who do not itemize get no benefit. Making the deduction refundable for low-income homeowners would help close the race gap. A parallel rent deduction would benefit many people of color.

Taxes on the very wealthy, such as the estate tax, need to be protected and expanded in order to broaden asset ownership to more people.

SEVEN PRINCIPLES FOR CLOSING THE RACIAL WEALTH GAP

From the recommendations made above, a number of principles can be distilled. They represent a framework that our leaders must pursue to lay the foundation for the full participation of all of our society in our economy.

1. Craft public policies to support wealth creation and provide opportunities to move up the economic ladder for all those stuck on the lower rungs.

2. Ensure full participation in programs intended to be universal through program design and implementation measures, targeting those often overlooked.

3. Draw upon the perspectives of experts of color to develop public policy.

4. Expand and enforce policies that eliminate discriminatory practices in the private and public sectors.

5. Promote the collection of racial and ethnic data essential to evaluating policy effectiveness.

7. Recognize that a comprehensive human capital agenda is needed.

In his inaugural address, President Obama said, “The state of the economy calls for action...not only to create new jobs but to lay a new foundation for growth.” By giving the populations that have endured years of disinvestment a boost onto the economic ladder, we can lay a foundation for renewed national prosperity.

in his business. Choosing to haul the trash for the $90 a month he was paying for trash removal, choosing to haul the trash himself, was too cut out the cable TV in his business.

As he sees it, he’s making tough economic decisions on how to keep his company financially stable during this rough economic time. But he is astounded that people in Washington can’t do the same thing, especially because help isn’t being targeted for businesses like his that really need it. He sees this cap-and-trade tax as one that will just naturally put him completely out of business.

Another individual I met has been in business for 35 years and has very, very little debt, which makes it easier for him to survive this crisis. He had to cut his staff from 50 down to 18 employees and cut unnecessary expenses.

What he’s mad about is that while he hears talk about wanting to help small business, he still has hundreds, if not thousands, of dollars of fees to pay to OSHA and Tennessee’s Department of Labor and Workforce Development.

As he sees it, large employers can afford these fees and weather the storm, but he doesn’t see help for small business. He would like to see the government ease the tax burden on small businesses to stay in business by easing up on the regulations when they can least afford it.

Of course, what I had to tell these two gentlemen was that you make too much sense to get your ideas heard here in Washington. We haven’t tightened our belts at all, and definitely haven’t gotten our financial house in order. We certainly haven’t curtailed the unnecessary regulations on small businesses or fees to help them weather this economic storm.

It’s time we started acting more responsibly and passed legislation that will stimulate economic growth and prevent our children from bearing the burden of this crushing debt we’re racking up to pay for irresponsible choices of the present.

On top of this economic stimulus bill comes the President’s budget, which spends too much, taxes too much, and borrowed too much. That, ladies and gentlemen, may be an understatement of the week.

With a worsening economic crisis in the forecast, you would think we’d be talking about how some of the President’s ambitious proposals could be scaled back. In fact, new economic numbers show larger deficits than the President originally predicted—and these numbers are already very significant.

Instead, the administration and its Democratic colleagues are insisting they will press ahead with the agenda undeterred, as though we don’t have an economic crisis.

The President is not at fault for the economic crisis. Instead, the administration and its Democratic colleagues are insisting they will press ahead with the agenda undeterred, as though we don’t have an economic crisis.

In short, the issue is simply not the executives at AIG. There is enough blame to go around, and we all have a part to play in changing the culture of our Nation.

Regardless of what happens in the short term, long-term economic and moral strength of our Nation depends on renewing one of our greatest American virtues, personal responsibility.

A BUDGET THAT SPENDS TOO MUCH, TAXES TOO MUCH, AND BORROWS TOO MUCH

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. BROUN) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. BROUN of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I rise today because the American people are witnessing one of the greatest magic tricks of all time. The 2010 budget proposal by this administration and currently under consideration by this legislative body is worthy of being mentioned with the greatest illusions created by Houdini himself.

The illusion is on one hand being held out as addressing the challenges of our Nation while taking steps to reduce the deficit. This one hand being shown to the American people reveals the ideas of reducing entitlement spending, particularly, Medicare and creating an emergency reserve fund. And while the magician waves his hand and distracts the American people, the other hand is out of public view, and this is where the trick is being played. This hand contains the real instruments of this budget: More Federal spending on more Federal programs; more taxes on all American families and small businesses; and a Federal deficit higher than in the past 4 years combined.

Simply put, Mr. Speaker, the end result of this magic trick is a budget that spends too much, taxes too much, and borrows too much. This budget proposal increases spending to $3.9 trillion, nearly one-third of the gross domestic product, a rate not seen in this country since World War II.

To put this into perspective, under this budget nearly $1 out of $3 in the entire American economy will be a result of Federal government spending. And what does this huge increase in government spending go towards?

Approximately $1 trillion will be spent on an increase in entitlement spending in the next decade. Nearly more than $600 billion will be spent on government-run health care, socialized medicine. And, more than $1.1 trillion will be spent on more discretionary spending, that is, optional spending, with government agencies receiving budget increases of more than 30 percent.

Now, where does this great magician get the money to pay for all this increased government spending and programs? By picking the pockets of the American public.

Here, again, the great illusionist holds out one hand and claims they will only increase taxes on the rich while giving tax cuts to the other 95 percent of all us American taxpayers. However, once again, the other hand is hidden away, and this is where the trick happens. The real result of the tax trick in this budget is more taxes on American businesses.

Mr. Speaker, I ask you, in these tough economic times, with rising unemployment, is a tax increase on small businesses, the engine that drives our economy, really the best course of action? How about resurrecting the death tax, which this budget does. Is that an appropriate course of action? I think not. I ask, what does an increase in capital gains taxes while cutting the tax deduction for the interest paid on mortgages do to stimulate our economy?

And I am sure that the 95 percent of Americans who are expecting a promised tax cut will find that money useful when it comes time to pay their share of the new so-called cap-and-trade — the so-called cap-and-trade, I call it cap-and-tax — energy tax that will result in higher costs on electricity, natural gas, home heating, gasoline, and all goods and services in America.

Just looking at my home State alone, with this new energy tax Georgians will see their disposable income reduced by $941; and the State is projected to lose up to 62,000 jobs by 2020. Even Houdini can’t hide these numbers.

Now, Mr. Speaker, just when the American people think they have seen the finale of this magic trick, they are then surprised with an ending twist. This is a magic twist that will be replayed for their children and grandchildren.

By their own estimates, the current deficit would decrease by half if this administration did nothing and we kept spending constant. We cannot continue this magic trick. We must stop this irresponsible budget that is being proposed by the administration.

OUR CURRENT ECONOMIC CRISIS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from Ohio (Ms. KAPTUR) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. KAPTUR. I thank the Speaker very much for that, and wish to say to that I present to the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD an account of some of the key legislative history and executive actions that have led our Nation into our current economic crisis, a meltdown of people’s accumulated savings, a loss of value in their homes and pensions, a 25-year high in unemployment, and major damage to our financial institutions and their ability to lend.

One of the individuals I talked about was the woman who headed the Commodity Futures Trading Commission back in 1998, in the late 1990s, and her name was Brooksley Born. She was an esteemed attorney, and she knew the field of regulation well. She said we had to regulate derivatives and, if we didn’t, we would get in trouble. She was prescient and she was right.

Three of the men that ultimately caused her resignation were pictured on the front of Time Magazine about a year later: Alan Greenspan who then headed the Federal Reserve, Robert Rubin who chaired Citigroup, and Larry Summers who was then Secretary of Treasury.

You know, it is good to remember history so you are not doomed to repeat it. The unemployment figures just announced nationally and for my home State of Ohio reveal the grim situation. The state unemployment rate is marching toward double digits, the city of Toledo is facing a massive deficit that grows with each passing day, and around our district families, businesses, and local governments are struggling to make ends meet.

Let me offer a seven-step restoration program to put our economy back on track.

First of all, we ought to bring the "too big to fail" institutions back under control for the sake of the American people. They should never have been allowed to get so big that the failure of a Citigroup that this man used to head or an AIG insurance company, which is much more than an insurance company, or Lehman Brothers could threaten the entire global financial system. These raging beasts have got to be brought back under control; and last week Federal Reserve Chairman Bernanke said, "the "too big to fail" issue has emerged as an enormous problem both for policymakers and financial institutions generally." He is right. Job number one should be bringing the big institutions back under control and, in my opinion, breaking them up.

Number two, we should restore the goal of financial security; that is, people should have more equity and less debt, and it needs to be restored at all levels, from our kitchen tables to the government of the United States. Read chapters 8 and 9 of Kevin Phillips’ book, American Theocracy. Treat yourself to a real understanding of how we have gotten ourselves into the situation we face today. Form a book club. Think about it.

Number three, we need to restore our national ethic that values savings over debt both in our households and in our communities. Our Congress should set a national standard for prudent and responsible financial behavior for our citizenry and institutions. The fact that JP Morgan could take a dollar of home equity and leverage it 100 times while the value of the underlying asset goes well beyond the realm of reason.

Number four, we need to restore the word “banking,” “prudent banking” to our vocabulary, and excise the word “financial services.” And we ought to start right here in the House of Representatives by renaming the committee of jurisdiction what it used to be called, the Banking Committee. This means deposits and prudent lending must be unwound, separated, and regulated differently from the securitization process for a major portion of economic activity.

Number five, we ought to incentize the accountability of equity by ordinary citizens, and I was pleased to see that President Obama’s budget includes savings proposals. And, we ought to restore an ethic of service to bank customers by those working in banks, not using them as a way to destroy the limited savings of the American people.

Number seven, we ought to restore the balance of power between Wall Street and the megabanks on the one hand, and community-based banks and credit unions at the other end of the scale. We ought to ask Chairman Bernanke for more on that score.

And, finally, we ought to investigate, investigate, investigate. In an article last week titled, “Then It’s Securities Fraud,” from Harrop wrote that law professor William Black of the University of Missouri Kansas City, who is also renowned for his work in ethics, has mounted a campaign for a new Pecora-type investigation here in the Congress. That was a series of hearings held by the Senate Banking Committee into financial wrongdoing at the end of the Great Depression.

Harrop writes, “As the bottom was falling out of derivatives trading, AIG was making very healthy profits. That’s not allowed under the law. Meanwhile, the company created a short-term bonus system for its top executives.”

Professor Black’s call for a Pecora Commission should not go unheeded by this Congress. The issue of securities fraud is not a small matter.

The first order of business is to get the financial system righted so the ship doesn’t sink. We owe that to the American people who are trying to hold on to their own dreams.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from California (Mr. SHERMAN) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. SHERMAN. We have been told this would be the most transparent administration in history. And in many areas, they are infinitely better than the Bush administration. Their single greatest failing comes in the area that, unfortunately, is foremost with most Americans today, which is the economy and the Wall Street.

Treasury Secretary Geithner has now proposed a new plan. It is a pretty good deal. Taxpayers will put up 95 cents of every $1, investors will put up well, between 5 and 7 cents. And it is called a nonrecourse loan; these speculators will put down 5 cents on the dollar to bet on certain packages of so-called toxic assets from the banks, buying them from the banks, and they will share evenly in the profits with the American taxpayers, except the American taxpayers can take 33 1/3 cents, and the speculators put up a nickel.

It is certain to perpetuate what has been going on on Wall Street, which is making a few people very rich and impoverishing average Americans, and this time through the tax system and putting taxpayers on the hook.

The program is reported, according to the Washington Times, to have been designed by two prominent Wall Street firms, Blackstone, a secretive private equity group, and a company called Pimco, both of whom apparently have very large positions in these so-called “toxic assets.” It is reported by the Washington Times that they suggested this to some of their insider buddies in the administration, and the insider buddies presented this to Secretary Geithner, who has been floundering around trying to put detailed plans to his program, and now he has found them. So Wall Street has written the details.

And the Washington Times also, according to Pimco and Blackstone are not only in line to be able to wash some of their toxic assets and to gamble mostly with taxpayers’ money on other people’s toxic assets, but they are going to be hired by the government to manage the program. What a beautiful sort of circular little system this is.

We need some accountability and transparency. We need a commission akin to the commission named after the collapse in the Great Depression to investigate. And then the President of what has gotten us to this point, who has been involved, what laws have been broken, with subpoena power so that some of these people can enjoy, instead of Federal handouts, they can enjoy Federal hospitality in a maximum security prison somewhere.

Plain and simply, I believe the American people are being taken to the cleaners again with this particular plan. What is wrong with actually taking AIG and winding it down? It is a so-called “zombie.” We are told in vague terms “it is too big to fail.” When I asked Secretary Geithner, just about 10 days ago, I read in the Wall Street Journal, Mr. Secretary, that, in fact, we are shoveling money in the front door of AIG because it is too big to fail, the taxpayers are on the hook for over $150 billion to AIG, and now we are 80 percent owners, and they are still paying bonuses to the people who created the problem, and apparently they are shoveling money out the back door to some of the firms who are getting money in the front door, most notably Goldman Sachs. Goldman Sachs has been getting direct infusions of cash from the Federal Government, and now they are going to be made 100 percent whole on their bets with AIG. They were gambling with AIG, betting against other people’s securities with these so-called “naked credit default swaps.” So instead of saying, “tough, we will give you back your bet, but we are not going to give you 100 percent of the amount you were betting on,” they are getting 100 percent of the amount they were betting on, and there are people who are subsidizing them on both ends here through this black box that is called “AIG” that is too big to fail, that, gee, it is just way too complicated to explain to you why it is too big to fail and why we couldn’t unwind this zombie corporation in an orderly way. Had we done that last fall or earlier this year, then we wouldn’t have had to pay the bonuses because it would have been clear the company was bankrupt, and it could have been taken care of and understood in a much better way.

But we are not being given the information about why it is too big to fail and why this is the way to do it.

And when I asked Secretary Geithner, is it true we are giving money to AIG that then they are giving to Goldman Sachs for bad bets they made? I asked if there was something called a “naked credit default swap?” He said, “oh, don’t believe everything you read in the Wall Street Journal. It is not true.”

The Treasury has revealed that what I read in the Wall Street Journal was indeed true. These some huge firms that are benefiting from a direct bailout out from the government are also getting a second-level indirect bailout on their bad bet. And some of these firms are foreign banks. We are not only bailing out the likes of Goldman Sachs. We are bailing out Deutsche Bank and other foreign interests.

And then, finally, we need a full investigation, an explanation of what has gone on and what is going on. We need to take legal steps to prosecute any of... those who broke the laws. And we also have to have stiff new regulatory reforms to make sure this doesn’t happen again. And none of that is happening, sad to say.

UNPRECEDENTED TAXING AND SPENDING

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker’s announced policy of January 6, 2009, the gentlewoman from Minnesota (Mrs. BACHMANN) is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the minority leader.

Mrs. BACHMANN. Mr. Speaker, I just wanted to comment also with the preceding gentleman, my colleague from Oregon. I would agree with him. I think he is 100 percent right. We do need to have an investigation. The American people were outraged last week when they heard about these bonuses. I would agree with the colleague from Oregon. We do need to have an investigation. Who knew what when? And the fingers need to be pointed right here at Members of Congress, Members of the House, Members of the Senate, and also the administration. Who was it that negotiated these payments? We still don’t have an answer.

The American people deserve to know. We have a timeline. We have some facts in evidence out there. We had Mr. Liddy, the CEO of AIG, in front of the House Financial Services Committee last week. I sat in that committee. Mr. Liddy, under questioning, I asked Mr. Liddy myself, did the Federal Reserve chair know about these bonuses? Did he acquiesce to them? The answer was “yes.” Also the Treasury Secretary. The Treasury Department was involved in negotiating the compensation contracts.

Today in Financial Services Committee, the Treasury Secretary again was sitting at the table before the committee. The Federal Reserve chair was there as well. The questioning came before them. The Treasury Department was involved. The Federal Reserve was involved. And we know that the bill that was brought to this body and voted here in this Chamber, the stimulus bill, the $1.1 trillion bill with debt service, this tremendous historic-spending-levels bill that came before us, that was the smoking gun. Senator Chris Dodd inserted that amendment into the bill. The Federal Reserve chair was there as well. The language that would protect these AIG bonuses. And as a matter of fact, you could call President Obama’s stimulus bill the “AIG Bonus Protection Plan” because they were simply protected by this bill.

I would agree with my colleague from Oregon. We need an investigation. We need a special independent prosecutor who can look into this and find out the true facts. We need to find out did the Obama administration know? When did they know it? What did Members of Congress know? When did they know it? Clearly, this was a government cartel that was protecting these AIG bonuses. And why do we need to know this? Because the American people have figured out something that Congress is only just now beginning to figure out. Under President Obama’s budget, we see that the administration spending is too much, they are taxing too much, they are certainly borrowing too much, so much so that the American people are saying “I have had it up to here, I can’t take it any more.” And the economy is following.

Well, our colleagues are here today to talk about this. They have a lot to say. Joining me right now is a colleague from the great State of Ohio. He represents the people in the 12th Congressional District of Ohio and the great city of Columbus, Mr. PAT TIBERI, the new father of triplets, and I defer now to my colleague from Ohio, Mr. PAT TIBERI.

Mr. TIBERI. I thank the gentlelady from Minnesota for yielding me some time to talk about a very important subject. As you mentioned, as the new father of triplets, looking at this budget is pretty frightening, not just for me, but obviously what I feel for them and what I feel all of us feel. We have in this budget an unprecedented level of spending and some policy issues that are going to cost them and many in my State of Ohio a tremendous amount of money.

So this bonus has real consequences on real people. In fact, the chart behind me demonstrates a little bit about that budget and what that budget does to our national debt. This debt, as you see in red, is representing the administration’s budget, a staggering number that will go up considerably if this budget, which is being debated in the House Budget Committee this week, presumably on the House floor, next week, if it passes, as it is, this will be the result. And this budget is not held by the public. It is unbelievable.

Who is going to pay that debt? It is going to be our children and our grandchildren. They are going to be saddled with unprecedented debt, debt as far as the eye can see.

When I got elected to Congress in 2001, when I was sworn in, you can see where the national debt was. The Republicans and the administration during the last 8 years were criticized for not doing anything about the debt in blue. And I think it went up. And it went up entirely too much. But not nearly as much as it is going to go up if this budget passes. The consequences are devastating to our economy.

In fact, within this budget is something called “cap-and-trade.” It is an energy issue to deal with the issue of global warming. But in Ohio, what it will do is devastate our already ailing economy. It will cause people to leave and businesses to leave. In fact, within my district and many other districts in Ohio there are municipal power companies, not investor owned, but owned by municipalities. And so, one such one has said that it will quadruple, quadruple the rates that their ratepayers pay. Quadruple. We are looking at the debt burden on my son, now 22. In his peak earning years, in the vicinity of his late father to be devoted just for the Social Security portion of his tax bill. It is simply unsustainable.
And our concern is that, under President Obama's budget, which clearly spends too much, taxes too much, borrows too much, we are looking at a legacy cost that is simply unsustainable. The President is putting together an unnecessary trillion dollar, trillion dollar, trillion dollar bill that requires us to double the debt limit for every man, woman and child in the United States. Double it. We are seeing these numbers go through the roof of the Capitol, like nothing we have ever seen. It is like a sugar high. It is as though the people who are putting together this budget in the Obama administration were all staying up late one night drinking 24-packs of 20-ounce Mountain Dews. They are on a sugar high right now. They can't spend enough of your money.

And the message that everyone needs to send to Washington, D.C. is, I can't afford it. My family can't afford it. My small business can't afford it. The Obama administration's spending habit.

We have this movie that is out now called Shopaholic. This is a shopaholic bill that we have got in front of us, and it is time to take a look at it. One of the things that Thomas Jefferson wrote about adding American taxpayers with public debt. It is worse than our foreign enemies we have got all over the world.

We cannot afford to pay for this budget because we don't have any money. We have spent it all. We have given it to you, you know, these banks that can't fail, and all these other special interest groups. So we are broke. So we are going to tax you for the money. And we are going to have to borrow the money from foreign countries. Number 1 on the list, the Chinese. You know, our good friends, the Chinese. We are going to borrow their money.

It was emancipated going to me, as a citizen, to see our Secretary of State go to China and beg to allow us to borrow money from them in the future. Even though they are a little worried about whether we can pay off this great debt that we are incurring and putting on kids yet to be born. It is disgraceful. Mr. Speaker.

And the second thing is, if we can't borrow enough money, the government's answer is, we will just tax them. Tax them to death. You know, the old statement goes, if something moves, regulate it. If it keeps moving, tax it. And if it stops moving, then subsidize it. We are doing all of the above right now. Things that aren't doing any good for the economy, oh, we are subsidizing them. Like AIG had to be bailed out. The trust rating that one person in this chamber had a chance to read this bill before we were expected to vote on it. There was no true debate on this stimulus bill that was passed earlier this year, $1.1 trillion. And now the President has a budget for $3.9 trillion that spends too much, taxes too much, borrows too much.

Leader BOEHNER stood on this House and demonstrated to the American people just how massive this is. I yield now to our leader, a man that we respect and admire. He hails from West Chester, Ohio, the eighth district. He is the leader of the Republicans in the House, but more importantly, he is the leader on the issue of fiscal restraint for the American people.

He stood right down here in the well, Mr. Speaker, he held up so the American people could see what 1,100 pages of a bill looks like. He held those 1,100 pages and made the incredible statement that not one person in this chamber had a chance to read this bill before we were expected to vote on it. There was no true debate on this stimulus bill that was passed earlier this year, $1.1 trillion. And now the President has a budget for $3.9 trillion that spends too much, taxes too much, borrows too much.

Leader JOHN BOEHNER stood on this House and demonstrated to the American people just how massive this is. I yield now to our leader, a man that we respect and admire, from the eighth district of Ohio, leader JOHN BOEHNER. Mr. BOEHNER. Let me thank my colleague for yielding. And thank the distinguished members all for participating in this discussion about the budget.

Before we get to the budget, you know, when I held those 1,100 pages up and indicated that no one had read the bill, it was pretty clear no one had been able to, and they would have realized there were 50 words in there that protected AIG executives, to make sure they were going to get their bonuses; more proof that we ought to actually read what we pass here on the House floor.

The discussion, though, is about the budget. And I have seen a lot of things over the years that I have been in politics. I was Township Trustee for 18 years in West Chester, or in the State House, or the 18 years I have spent in Washington. But I have never seen a legislative document more audacious, more far reaching, and, frankly, more bizarre than the budget that has been submitted by President Obama, because it does spend too much. It is pretty clear, when you look at the giant increases in spending. But it is not just that it spends too much. It taxes too much. There are nearly $2 trillion worth of new taxes that are imposed on the American people in that budget. Whether it is the national energy tax, for those who would drive a car, or those who would produce something with electricity, or someone who would flip on a light switch, every American is going to pay a higher tax.

But even with all the spending and the much higher taxes, look at what happens. Look at what happens to our debt. Even after $2 trillion of new taxes, the debt will double over the next 6 years under this proposal, more than what has happened in the 43 presidents that preceded President Obama over the last 220 years.

Now, there was a lot of criticism of President Bush, criticism of the Republicans, that we didn’t have a big enough handle on spending. Frankly, I agree. We should have had a bigger handle on spending.

But having said that, over the next 6 years, President Obama’s budget is going to make President Bush look like a penny pincher. And look at the debt. And what is going to happen here, with all of this debt that is piled on the backs of our kids and grandkids, means that the interest, 70 cents of every tax dollar that comes to Washington is going to be used just to pay the interest on the national debt, just the interest. 70 cents of every dollar.

So what happens to our national defense? What happens to our Homeland Security? What happens to Medicare or Medicaid, Social Security and all of the other government programs that we have? There is not going to be any money for it, because all of the debt that is going to get built up, interest has to be paid on that debt and the fact is, it won’t happen.

This budget, we need to start over. And I had a press conference earlier today where I suggested to the President, why don’t we just start over? Why don’t we sit down as Democrats and Republicans, and build a budget that restores fiscal sanity and shows the American people we can work together for the good of our country.

We can’t buy our way to prosperity. And that budget seems to believe. And I would hope my colleagues would help each other understand the enormous debt that will be piled up if we allow this budget to go into effect.

And I yield back.

Mrs. BACHMANN. Thank you to the gentleman from Ohio, Leader JOHN BOEHNER. We have tremendous respect for Leader BOEHNER and have great admiration for his courage in leading this effort in fiscal restraint. The American people deserve fiscal restraint, and Leader BOEHNER has emphasized that to our caucus, and is leading that charge here in the United States House of Representatives.

Also joining us today, Mr. Speaker, is a brand new Member from the Great State of Ohio, our third speaker from Ohio during this hour. Ohioans represent the heartland of our country. Hailing now from Ohio’s Seventh District is Mr. STEVE AUSTRIA, who has a lot to say. He represents the Dayton-Columbus area, and he is going to be speaking to us now as a small-businessman himself. I yield now to Mr. STEVE AUSTRIA from Columbus, Ohio. Mr. AUSTRIA. I thank the gentlelady from Minnesota.

We are very pleased here today in Ohio in this Chamber. There is a lot going on in Ohio, and this budget directly affects us, and I appreciate the opportunity to be able to speak today.

Let me just say, as a new Member of this Congress and having served less than 100 days, we have been faced with tremendous challenges and issues before us. I will start out with the second half of the bailout of the financial markets, the TARP bill, which was $700 billion that I felt did not have enough accountability and not enough transparency. The Treasury did not have a specific plan in place when we voted on that bill, and I had deep concerns with that, and I voted against that bill.

The second bailout, which I voted to vote on was the $791 billion over 10 years, $1.1 trillion stimulus bill that had a tremendous amount of government spending that I felt was not targeted toward where it should be, to small businesses, which are the economic engine of this country. Seventy percent of the businesses across this country are small businesses. We have 900,000 small businesses in the State of Ohio. Yet this plan did not focus on small businesses. It did little to nothing to create jobs. It is geared to be used on increasing government spending, which I felt was wrong.

We just heard the leader talk about what happens when you don’t read a bill, when you don’t have accountability, when you don’t have transparency, when you don’t have a plan. When you don’t read a bill, all of a sudden, you run into what we ran into last week with AIG bonuses being paid out of hardworking taxpayers’ dollars. Then there was a $410 billion omnibus appropriations spending bill that had an 8 percent increase, or a $32 billion increase, this year when we are asking Americans to tighten their belts and small businesses to make sacrifices. There are almost 9,000 earmarks in it.

Now we are being faced with a $3.6 trillion budget. I think the gentlelady has pointed out very well and right on target that the problem with this budget, now is that we are too much spending, too much borrowing, which we have already seen in these other bills, but in addition, we are now talking about $1.4 trillion of new taxes that are going to be put on Americans across this country.

There is a cap-and-trade, or what is being referred to as a cap-and-tax, on anything that uses carbon or CO2. We are going back and are going to raise the estate tax. There is the raising of the capital gains tax, the removing of itemized deductions, the increasing of marginal rates. All of these tax increases concern me in this budget.

Let me tell you, as a former small business owner and as a father of three, I have been brought to this body to begin major spending, running up a deficit, running up debt like we are running up, passing on debt to my three children at home. That is not why I came to Congress. I came to Congress to turn this economy around and to really help those new small businesses and new jobs and to be able to sustain those jobs over the long term. I believe it is our small businesses that can do this. I can tell you, as a small business owner, when I look at this budget that we are being asked to pass, I have been asked about what is facing me, new taxes, taxes and taxes.

I talked about the cap-and-trade—we have heard that, too—the increase of taxes on those who have incomes of over $250,000 or more, on the so-called “wealthiest” Americans of the country. Many of those are small business owners. Over half of those are small business owners in this country. If I am a small business owner and I know I have those taxes coming at me in 2011, I doubt if I am going to be looking at investing in my business and in expanding my business and in taking a risk. I am going to be preparing for that new tax increase that is coming right at me, and I don’t believe that is good for our economy. I don’t believe that helps our small businesses.

Again, in Ohio, we have over 9,000 small businesses. Seven out of ten of all new jobs are created by small business. America’s small businesses are the world’s second largest economy, trailing only to the United States as a whole according to NFIB. According to a Zogby poll released last week, nearly two-thirds of Americans, 63 percent of Americans, said that it is small business and entrepreneurial that are going to lead this country, lead the U.S., to a better future. Well, you know, while we look at what is going on within this budget, it does not make sense what we are doing.
The Congressional Quarterly just yesterday came out with a chart, showing that we are going to add $1.840 trillion to our national debt just this year, and then we are going to add another one $1.370 trillion next year and another $976 billion the year after that. In 3-year time, to add all of that over $4 trillion to our national debt under the most optimistic scenario by the estimate of the Congressional Budget Office.

That comes on the heels of several weeks ago when this Congress—most of us in the Chamber right at the moment voted against it—voted to raise the national debt limit to $12.104 trillion. That is an incomprehensible figure. Nobody can humanly comprehend that much, but we are going to hand over $4 trillion to that. What it means, Mr. Speaker, is this:

In just a few years, we are not going to be able to pay all of our Social Security and veterans' pensions and all of the things that we have promised our own people. I used to say—and I have heard many people say in the last few weeks—even what we are doing to our children and grandchildren is terrible—and it is—but actually, I think now we are going to be because I think that, in 10 or 15 years, if that long, we are not going to be able to pay all of these things we have promised our own people. If I think it is really sad what we are doing to the American people, taxing too much, taxing too much and borrowing too much.

Joe Scarborough said on his national television program just this morning: We are like a doctor who has diagnosed diabetes in a patient but who has then prescribed a diet of cotton candy. He said: We are like somebody making $100,000 a year who has suddenly gone out and bought ten $1 million houses. He said repeatedly something that I have noticed over these past couple of months: We can’t afford it. We are spending money that we do not have, and every place in this world and throughout history, when a government has gotten in the position that we are in, you either have staggering inflation or staggering deflation, and one is just as bad as the other. I don’t have a crystal ball to know which one we are headed into. My guess would probably be staggering inflation. What we are doing is reckless, and what we are doing is dangerous. We passed a stimulus bill, and it had some good things in it, but once again, we were spending money that we did not have.

The Washington Post, which favored the stimulus bill, had a front-page story in which they said it was going to mean a massive financial windfall—those are their words—for Federal agencies. Then they had another story a couple of days later in which they said—tens of thousands of new jobs would be added on or new hirers would be added on by Federal agencies. That is who is going to benefit from this stimulus package—first Federal agencies, then State agencies. So bureaucrats all over the country are going to come out just fine, and maybe a little bit is going to trickle down to everybody else, but this is not who is hurting. This area is one of the wealthiest in the Washington, D.C., northern Virginia, southern Maryland area. Yet they are going to receive a massive financial windfall according to The Washington Post.

On Lou Dobbs last week, he said 4 million jobs had been lost in the private sector in the last year alone. Four million jobs lost. Yet government payroll had expanded by 151,000. Now, because of what we passed up here, government payrolls are going to expand once again.

There have been so many exaggerations over what is going to be done with this money. A couple of weeks ago, a daily newspaper in Montana reported that the two Montana Senators put out a press release saying that 40 jobs were going to be created because of a $1.3 million portion of the stimulus package. The paper went to that agency, and that agency said: No, we have already got almost full employment. We are going to add these people because of this, and the rest of it is going to be spent on the employees they already have. So I think a lot of people are going to be disappointed over some of this money that we are spending, and we are spending, as I said, money that we do not have.

Now, two of the Members from Ohio—my colleague Mr. TIBERI and the new Member, Mr. AUSTRIA—both mentioned coal and utility bills and things of that nature because it has such a great effect on their State. We have powerful people in this body who are attempting to cut back on all because of this, and the rest of it is going to be spent on the employees they already have. So I think a lot of people are going to be disappointed over some of this money that we are spending, and we are spending, as I said, money that we do not have.

I have noticed throughout the years that most of the environmental radicals and environmental extremists in this country come from very wealthy or very upper income families, and perhaps they don’t realize how much they hurt the poor and the lower income and the working people because coal provides over 50 percent of our energy in this country today. If we cut way back on coal, we are going to double or triple our utility bills, and we are going to hurt a lot of poor and low-income people.

Mr. Speaker, is this:

I thank the gentlelady. I yield back to the Speaker.
trillion in tax increases in that budget. Jim Cramer, the famous stock man—he's on television every night, and he has been a six-figure contributor to the Democratic Party—he described the President's budget as the greatest death knell in history. And I will tell you, I have been coming from that source: the greatest death knell in history.

And we just don't have enough people who understand—there is waste in the private sector, but a vast number who continually wastes money cannot stay in business very long. But a government agency that wastes money, they use that as a justification for getting increased funding the next year.

So every dollar we can keep in the private sector is going to earn us more, and hold down prices because money in the private sector is spent so much more efficiently than the Government. Governor Edward Rendell, who is the governor of Pennsylvania, he testifed before a Congressional committee and he said Government does not work because it was not designed to. He said there is no incentive to work hard, so many do not. There is no incentive to save money, so much of it is squandered. That pretty much summed up the reason that money in the private sector is spent so much more efficiently than money turned over to the Government. So every dollar we can keep in the private sector will do more to create jobs and hold down prices.

So we certainly don't need a budget that increases taxes by $1.9 trillion. It has been proven all over the world that what you do is you create this elite hunger for status and material wealth sufficient to bankrupt the country. So that we could selfishly consume the wealth of the American people as individuals, it was written to limit the power of the Federal Government over the individual. And the 10th Amendment, the last of those 10, reserved the States power not expressly given to the Federal Government in the Constitution.

This spending bill that President Obama is putting forward to the 111th Congress would shock the founders of our Nation. I believe it will shock the American people and all those who might say that they bled and died and sacrificed their fortune and their sacred honor so that what? So that we could selfishly consume material wealth sufficient to bankrupt our Nation? That hardly seems what America is about or what America was founded upon.

Well, Mr. Speaker, joining us now is Dr. PAUL BROUN. He is a great patriot and a great friend, a great patriot, Dr. PAUL BROUN. Mr. BROUN of Georgia. I thank the gentlelady for yielding.

Promises made, promises broken. This administration has made many, many promises to the American public and has broken promise after promise after promise. We were promised that wasteful spending would decrease and be eliminated. But what do we see? We see a huge increase in the size of the Federal Government. We have been promised that those wasteful programs of the Federal Government would not be cut and eliminated. What do we see? We see a bigger growth of the Federal Government, and we see more wasteful spending than all of those combined. This one budget is greater than all of those combined.

So the first thing that we have to do is we have to stop and say, what is going to happen in the future? Are we going to spend even more? Are we going to spend even more?

And that promise has been broken. We have seen promise after promise broken by this administration. And not only that, we are creating a debt for our future generations so that the Founders had a government that would be tyrannical and reach far too in the pockets and in the freedom of the American people.

The very same day that our founders, the very first Congress, passed that Constitution, known across the world, they also passed the 10 amendments to that Constitution. And those amendments were written for one reason. It wasn't to limit the freedom and the power of the American people as individuals, it was written to limit the power of the Federal Government over the individual. And the 10th Amendment, the last of those 10, reserved the States all power not expressly given to the Federal Government in the Constitution.

This spending bill that President Obama is putting forward to the 111th Congress would shock the founders of our Nation. I believe it will shock the American people and all those who might say that they bled and died and sacrificed their fortune and their sacred honor so that what? So that we could selfishly consume material wealth sufficient to bankrupt our Nation? That hardly seems what America is about or what America was founded upon.

Well, Mr. Speaker, joining us now is Dr. PAUL BROUN. He is a great patriot and a great friend, a great patriot, Dr. PAUL BROUN.

Mr. BROUN of Georgia. I thank the gentlelady for yielding.

Promises made, promises broken. This administration has made many, many promises to the American public and has broken promise after promise after promise. We were promised that wasteful spending would decrease and be eliminated. But what do we see? We see a huge increase in the size of the Federal Government. We have been promised that those wasteful programs of the Federal Government would not be cut and eliminated. What do we see? We see a bigger growth of the Federal Government, and we see more wasteful spending than all of those combined. This one budget is greater than all of those combined.

And now we have a budget. Leader BOEHNER was here just a few minutes ago and spoke about the increase of the Federal debt. And I want to make it clear something that he said is that very important to the American people. It is going to strangle the American economy. This deficit spending, the debt that has been created with this budget alone, is greater than all presidencies combined. Every one of them combined. This one budget is greater than all of them. We can't continue down this road.

This budget bill is a steamroll of socialism that has been shoved down the throats of the American public. It is going to strangle the American economy. It is going to choke the American people economically.

We have been promised that 95 percent of Americans were going to get a tax cut. We saw that in this recent stimulus bill where the tax cut is $1.10 per day. That's it, $1.10 per day. I'm a physician, and I don't believe in smoking. I think everybody should quit. But you can't even buy a pack of cigarettes for that amount of money.

And not only that, but this cap-and-tax issue that's being proposed in this budget is going to tax every single American family by over $3,100 per family. Let me repeat that. Every single family is going to pay an increase in their cost of living. We can't afford that. It is going to hurt the poorest of people in this country. It is going to hurt our seniors who are living on a fixed income. It is going to hurt small business because of this class envy and class warfare that's being proposed by this administration.

We have seen promise after promise broken by this administration. And not only that, we are creating a debt for our future generations so that their standard of living is going to be much less, much lower than ours today.

As Mr. DUNCAN was talking about, we are either going to have hyperinflation or deflation. I think we're fixing to have hyperinflation. We have seen in the past that gross deficit spending by governments has created hyperinflation to the point that people almost literally had to have a wheelbarrow to take the currency to the grocery store to buy one loaf of bread.

That's where we're heading today. Warren Buffet just 2 weeks ago said that we're off the cliff.
I think we’re headed towards a marked prolongation of this recession, a deepening of this recession, and very probably a severe depression.

Franklin Delano Roosevelt, when he was spending taxpayers’ dollars like a drunken sailor, did nothing but prolong that depression. That is exactly what this philosophy that’s being promoted here in this House and in the Senate across the way and by this administration is going to do.

In fact, the one thing that got us out of the Great Depression was the creation of a manufacturing entity in America to supply the needs for World War II. Are we going to need a world war to get us out of this depression that we’re headed towards? I hope not.

But this deficit spending is totally irresponsible. It is unconscionable that we would have this kind of philosophy promoted in this Congress. It is going to hurt the people who can stand to be hurt the least, and that’s the poor people, the retirees, those on fixed incomes.

It is historically irrefutable. It is unconscionable that we would have this kind of philosophy put together. The Obama presidency is historic, Mr. President. It is historic in the amount of debt that will be accumulated.

Leader BOEHNER stood on this floor just a few moments ago and stated that the debt in 2007 will double in just 6 years. It spends more than all the previous Presidents put together. And Leader BOEHNER said this: He said that when a dollar flows in to the Federal Government, 70 cents of that dollar will be needed just to pay for interest.

This is absolutely unsustainable. Pretty soon we will have currency equal to Zimbabwe’s if we continue down this road because of currency devaluation we’re seeing. We’re looking at essentially a doubling of the debt under what the Obama administration wants to put together.

But what we hear over and over again from the Obama administration, they say this is a debt that we inherited. Is it really? We need to look at the facts.

The facts tell us something different. January of this year Congress was run by the Democrat majority. Republicans ran it up until 2007 January. At that point, both the House and the Senate took over and were run by the Democrats. At that point, we saw the Federal deficit begin to rise and skyrocket. Discretionary spending was rising and then skyrocketing, and mandatory spending was rising and skyrocketing. We had the stimulus bill that was passed, an over $152 billion.

Speaker of the House PELOSI, Majority Leader REID and Senator Obama all voted “yes” for every one of these spending measures that has gotten us into the place we’re in. Did they inherit this mess or did they help create this mess? The American people need to decide.

We have been promised by this administration that we were going to invest in our infrastructure. Well, the stimulus bill had only a miniscule amount of the—this huge deficit spending geared towards infrastructure which would, at least, create some jobs in the private sector.

But where are the jobs being created by bigger government? Bigger socialism. Taking our freedom away, taking our money away, taking our future away and taking our children and our grandchildren’s future away. Because this budget spends too much. It taxes too much. It borrows too much. And we’ve got to put an end to it. It’s up to the American people to cry out to the American public to cry out. No, we’re not going to put up with this. We want bipartisanship. We Republicans and Democrats to come together and solve the problem.

And small businesses are going to be hurt markedly by the tax increases, and that’s going to cost jobs. We’re not creating jobs.

We have been promised by this administration that we were going to invest in our infrastructure. Well, the stimulus bill had only a minuscule amount of the—that this huge deficit spending geared towards infrastructure which would, at least, create some jobs in the private sector.

So I encourage people to contact their congressman, contact their senator and say “no” to this budget.

And I thank the gentlelady for yielding.

Mrs. BACHMANN. I thank the gentleman from Georgia, Dr. PAUL BROUN. I have such great respect for Dr. BROUN. I appreciate his words. He’s made the hue and cry that the American people need to know that this budget is historic by any measure. We would have this philosophy that’s being promoted here in this House and in the Senate across the way and by this administration is going to do.

In fact, the one thing that got us out of the Great Depression was the creation of a manufacturing entity in America to supply the needs for World War II. Are we going to need a world war to get us out of this depression that we’re headed towards? I hope not.

We would have this kind of philosophy that’s being promoted here in this House and in the Senate across the way and by this administration is going to do.

This cap-and-tax policy is going to raise the price of groceries at the supermarket.

In 1929, when the country was headed towards a depression, the Treasury Secretary said it best. As a matter of fact, President Roosevelt’s Treasury Secretary said it best that when a dollar flows in to the Federal Government, 70 cents of that dollar will be needed just to pay for interest.

This is absolutely unsustainable. Pretty soon we will have currency equal to Zimbabwe’s if we continue down this road because of currency devaluation we’re seeing. We’re looking at essentially a doubling of the debt under what the Obama administration wants to put together.

And I thank the gentlelady for yielding.
Mr. LANCE. Thank you very much, and thank you for taking the lead on this extremely important issue.

Overspending and over-taxation are tearing the American economy today, but from my perspective the worst factor is levels of debt, and I think that this is, in effect, generational theft.

The Congressional Budget Office, in calculating the proposals of the Obama administration, indicate that spending will hit about 28.5 percent of GDP during fiscal year 2009, and this is a record amount. CBO also estimates that next year spending will be 25.5 percent and at 23 and 24 percent over the course of the next decade.

As someone who tries to be a student of American history, over the last 40 years, the level of debt has been roughly 20 percent, and this is an historic average. And yet over the course of next several years we increase this dramatically. Let me repeat the figures: 28.5 percent in this fiscal year, and similar amounts in the next 2 fiscal years.

I believe that this spending is too great, and I hope that the administration will review its budget and working in a bipartisan capacity to bring this amount down.

COLON CANCER AWARENESS MONTH

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 6, 2009, the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. BOREN) is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the majority leader.

Mr. BOREN. Mr. Speaker, I don’t come to the House floor very often to speak. In fact, last year I addressed this body only a handful of times. I think that I am much more effective in representing my constituents by developing relationships in a personal setting rather than arguing my viewpoint on the House floor. But today marks a special time of year.

Mr. Speaker, the month of March is colon cancer awareness month. I think that it’s only fitting that the month of March, a month where Congress has the most legislative work days, is devoted to an illness that is often relegated to the back burner of cancer awareness. Obviously, colon cancer is not an issue that garners a lot of headlines, but colon cancer has had a dramatic effect on my life, as it has millions of Americans.

I bring a picture of my mom up. Eleven years ago, my mom died of colon cancer. She was a vibrant woman. She filled my life with joy. She was filled with optimism. This horrendous disease took her from Earth far too early. Because of colon cancer, she never had the opportunity to hold her granddaughter. She never had the opportunity to attend my wedding and see me marry my beautiful wife, Andrea. It’s a tragedy that has forever left a void in my life.

You know, she was like so many mothers. She was always so proud of her son. She was always pushing me. She always cared about my grades. She always cared about how I did in school. And I was probably not the best student but she kept after me. She kept telling me how smart I was, and she kept pushing me.

The last memory I have of my mother is in a hospital room dying from this disease. She didn’t get to see me become a Congressman. And like all Americans who have felt the pain and fear that comes with losing a loved one to cancer, I wouldn’t wish that grief on anyone.

The reality, Mr. Speaker, is that I am not alone. This disease kills tens of thousands of Americans every year. It is the third most diagnosed cancer and one of the leading causes of cancer death in the United States. The American Cancer Society estimates that 150,000 Americans will be diagnosed with colon cancer in 2009, and out of that 150,000 citizens, over 50,000 of them will die.

What is so shocking about these deaths is the vast majority of them could have easily been prevented with a simple routine screening called a colonoscopy. That is 50,000 moms and dads and sons and daughters that could still be enjoying the great gift of life if they would have just taken the time to get a routine colonoscopy by their 50th birthday.

Mr. Speaker, a colonoscopy takes under 1 hour to complete, and the results you receive will literally save your life. The American Cancer Society estimates that if detected early, 90 percent of all colon cancer deaths could be prevented.

Now, just, if you will, take a look at this board here. Look at the stages. Now, the stage where my mom was diagnosed is stage IV. There’s about an 11 percent survivability rate and at stage I, 90 percent, and despite the effectiveness of this colonoscopy that can figure this out, only 50 percent of Americans use this procedure.

I think that’s a very shocking statistic. Compare that prevention rate to breast cancer, where 80 percent of women get a routine mammogram, and you can see why I work so hard to spread the word on preventing this disease.

But there is some outstanding news. The outstanding news is that there is hope ahead in fighting this killer. The Centers for Disease Control, along with groups like the American Cancer Society and the Colorectal Cancer Coalition, have taken it upon themselves to raise awareness about colon cancer.

Specifically, the American Cancer Society has launched a campaign to push the number of Americans who get screened for colon cancer from 50 percent to 75 percent by the year 2015. It’s a lofty goal, but it’s a goal that’s worthwhile. In fact, a few of my colleagues have introduced important legislation aimed at reaching this milestone.

One particular piece of legislation that I hope will receive strong consideration in the House Energy and Commerce Committee is my legislation, H.R. 1330, the Colon Cancer Screening and Detection Act of 2009. My legislation is pretty simple. Just like a mammogram, my bill would require every health insurance plan in America, both group and individual, to cover a preventive colonoscopy before the deductible. This legislation is very badly needed.

One of the top reasons many Americans do not get screened is the cost. The average cost of a typical colonoscopy is over $1,000. That wouldn’t be a concern to many citizens who are currently covered under a private health insurance plan, but most individuals do not have deductibles exceeding $1,000, or worse, they have a restrictive cap on preventive care, sometimes as low as $250, and that’s the issue.

We have thousands of Americans who are covered by insurance plans that pay little to none of the costs associated with a colonoscopy, so they never get one. It’s a shame. We live in the...
Mr. Speaker, I rise today to speak on the important issue of colorectal cancer, as Congressman BOREN also did.

Colorectal cancer is the third most commonly diagnosed cancer and the second most common cause of cancer deaths in the United States. Every 3½ minutes, and the more lives we save with colorectal cancer. Every 9 minutes, someone dies from colorectal cancer. This is a disease that affects both men and women.

This year, an estimated 149,000 new cases will be diagnosed, and an estimated 50,000 deaths will be caused by this cancer. The real tragedy is that many of these cancer cases and deaths occurred needlessly because the vast majority of colorectal cancer deaths can be prevented through proper screening and early detection.

That is why I introduced a resolution recognizing March as Colorectal Cancer Awareness Month and commemorating the 10th anniversary of the first designation of March as Colorectal Cancer Awareness Month.

The more we talk about this disease, the more we encourage our family, our friends, and our neighbors to get screened, and the more lives we save.

I hope my colleagues on the Energy and Commerce Committee will discharge House Concurrent Resolution 60 from committee soon so that leadership can schedule the resolution for floor consideration.

Less than half of those who should be screened for colon cancer are screened. Bringing House Concurrent Resolution 60 to the floor next week will encourage even more discussion about this disease that is preventable when detected early.

But talking about colorectal cancer and recognizing Colorectal Cancer Awareness Month aren’t enough. We need to increase Federal funding for early detection and screening. Along with my colleague from Rhode Island, PATRICK KENNEDY, I’ve introduced a bill that would authorize funding for early detection, screenings, and make preventive services more affordable.

Specifically, the Colorectal Cancer Prevention, Early Detection, and Treatment Act, H.R. 1188, would establish a national screening program for colorectal cancer for individuals over 50 years of age. That was what we are working on this week. We’ve also worked together on the Colorectal Cancer Prevention, Early Detection, and Therapeutic Services Act, H.R. 1251.

Screening for colorectal cancer is only 10 percent. When it’s diagnosed early—before it spreads—the survival rate is 90 percent. Early detection screening saves lives, and if everyone over 50 years of age were screened regularly for colorectal cancer, the death rate for this disease could plummet by 80 percent.

In addition to screening saving lives, early detection saves money. Treatment costs for colorectal cancer are extremely high and could be greatly reduced if mass screenings occur.

Colorectal cancer treatment costs totaled roughly $8.4 billion for new cases in 2004. The cost of two-thirds of these colorectal cancer cases are borne by the Medicare program.

The Lewin Group recently conducted a comprehensive study of the potential cost savings to Medicare and found that every 10 years a colorectal cancer screening program will result in savings of about 1½ years worth of Medicare expenditures. If the increase in colorectal cancer cases is increased among people 50 years and older in the United States, it would save billions of dollars in Medicare expenditures. It would also save thousands of lives.

The Colorectal Cancer Prevention, Early Detection, and Screening program ensures that people who are screened will get the full continuum of cancer care, including the appropriate followup for abnormal tests, diagnostic and therapeutic services, and treatment for detectable cancers.

If you have not already, I urge you to cosponsor the Colorectal Cancer Prevention, Early Detection, and Treatment Act, and join me in observing Colorectal Cancer Awareness Month. Observing Colorectal Awareness Month provides us with the opportunity to discuss the importance of early detection and screening. It also provides us with the opportunity to thank the thousands of volunteers and national and community organizations for their work in promoting awareness for colorectal cancer.

DAN BOREN. Thank you for your time and your work on this.

Mr. Speaker, I know who’s an advocate on this issue, my colleague, KAY GRANGER and Representative PATRICK KENNEDY. I know who’s an advocate on this issue, it is my hope that we can make a public impact on this terrible and painful disease.

And I would like to call my colleague, Representative GRANGER, up and maybe she wants to share some of her thoughts about Colon Cancer Awareness Month, and I know representing Texas and Fort Worth of course, being an alum of TCU, I’m very proud of her leadership on these health issues and for tribal issues. I want to thank her and would like to yield to Congresswoman KAY GRANGER.

Ms. GRANGER. Thank you to my colleague DAN BOREN. Thank you so much for your hard work on this Mr. Speaker, I rise today to speak on the important issue of colorectal cancer, as Congressman BOREN also did.
think about going and getting that test.

You know, Mr. Speaker, Katie Couric, the anchor of the CBS Evening News is a strong advocate for colon cancer awareness. She lost her husband to this disease and since then has led a personal campaign to bring awareness to this issue.

A few years back, she told a compelling story at her old job on the Today Show about a family that lost a loved one to this disease. I think it's a compelling story that I would like to share on the House floor today.

Mr. Speaker, Michael and Erin Stennis learned the hard facts about colon cancer in the worst possibly way. This is their story.

Michael Stennis, an ex-football player, was the picture of health—43, fit, a businessman who owned a chain of successful restaurants. He and his wife Erin had been married for 14 years and had two gorgeous children.

His wife described her husband's persona this way, "He had a lot of strength of character. He was amazing. He wasn't afraid of voicing his opinions. He loved his friends, and his children were his life. He was the consummate family man."

Mr. Speaker, you can tell that Michael was an all-American guy. Yet, it's hard to believe such a vibrant man would have such a difficult fight ahead of him.

Three years earlier, when he was just 40, Michael started experiencing irregular bowel habits and rectal bleeding. Like many Americans, he thought it was nothing serious. His wife began describing what happened, and said this, "He had blood in his stool. He went to the doctor. Unbeknownst to me, the doctor suggested that he have a colonoscopy.

"My husband, being the very macho man that he is, did not want anything invasive. I just could not imagine that type of procedure taking place. So, like thousands of other Americans, he came home and said, 'It's been taken care of.' And that was it."

A few years later, Erin realized that something was very wrong with her husband. She said, "It had gotten to the point where he was having such severe pain. Because he was an athlete, he sucked it up. He would say to himself, 'If I feel something, oh, you know, I can't just 'f--- out.' But it got to the point where the pain became so severe that he had trouble moving.

"Finally, in November of that year," she said, "I walked into our bedroom and I saw him hunched over in the closet. Something was very wrong."

So she finally got Michael to go in for the colonoscopy. And then they got the results. It was the evening of their daughter's Thanksgiving pageant. They got a call from their family doctor and friend, Peter Waldstein. She described the scene this way: "My husband was on one side of the phone and I was on the other side. His cell phone went off and I could see him on the phone and I could see the change in his face. It was our dear friend Peter calling to tell us both the news. We knew from that moment on that our lives had changed forever," she explains.

Mr. Speaker, this is a story that is told countless times across America. It is a story of a young and vibrant individual who has seen his or her life end far too early because of this horrendous disease. It's a sad case—a case that is very similar to the one that took my mom's life. It's a story similar to the one that took former White House Press Secretary Tony Snow's life. I think it's Congress's duty to do something about this.

My colleagues and I have introduced multiple pieces of legislation aimed at addressing this terrible cancer. But we need Congress to begin the process of examining it.

Every year, this disease takes thousands of lives. It is my hope that, with the support of groups like the American Cancer Society, the Colorectal Cancer Coalition, and my colleagues, we can make an impact.

I can't tell you how much I have personally lost from this—how many times I want to pick up the phone and I want to call my mom. This is a real human face. These are real people that are dying. They don't have to be dying. All it takes is a simple test. My mom waited too long. She got the test too late.

I don't want this to happen to some other family in America. So I need your help, all those in Congress, all of my colleagues, but I also need the American people to write your Member of Congress.

I introduced this legislation in the last Congress, the 110th Congress. I got four cosponsors. People were scared about the insurance companies. But, let me tell you what. When given the choice between my mom and the insurance companies, the choice is very easy. We need to help these families. This is why I came to Congress.

From the American Association of Public Health Physicians, “In the judgment of AAPHA, the current bill in its form will do more harm than good in terms of future tobacco-related illness and death. The current bill,” referring to the Waxman bill, “with all its ills primarily presents elements, has so many restrictions on Federal regulatory authority that it will be unable to effect favorable change. This bill is based on the false premise that cigarettes can be made safer and that all tobacco products make the State of North Carolina, over 8,600 people are employed by the industry, with a Statewide economic impact of nearly $24 billion. Mr. WAXMAN’s manufacturer and FDA on the farm provisions will put many companies and growers out of business, and we absolutely cannot afford to lose any more jobs.

We may soon see H.R. 1256, which is Representative WAXMAN’s bill to implement FDA regulation of tobacco products and leaf scheduled for consideration under suspensions of the rules on the House floor. This process will allow for no amendments or alternatives to be presented on this incredibly important and complex issue of tobacco regulation.

I urge my fellow Members to vote against the Waxman bill when it comes up on suspension so that we may consider an alternative bill, so that we may be able to consider the bill that Mr. BUYER and I are discussing tonight that does even more than Mr. WAXMAN’s bill while preserving a vital economic engine for many communities throughout the United States, including my district in Southeastern North Carolina.

H.R. 1261 is the Youth Prevention and Tobacco Harm Reduction Act that we have introduced together, and is actually better approving tobacco and preventing minors from using tobacco products than the Waxman bill.

The Waxman bill will grant the FDA, the Food and Drug Administration, and other government agencies regulations for tobacco products and leaf, and protect growers from being required to change their farming practices. The last thing that our farmers want to see is another government bureaucrat coming out on the farm walking around, snooping around about the soil and how he is growing his crops.

Congressman MIKE McINTYRE and I have introduced H.R. 1216, the Youth Prevention and Tobacco Harm Reduction Act. This legislation imposes significant regulatory oversight within the Department of Health and Human Services over tobacco products, and incorporates many of the provisions included in HENRY WAXMAN’s legislation. It includes serious policy and programmatic prevention, cessation, and harm reduction strategies designed to help children. We are also saying to the States that we want you to treat tobacco like alcohol. So where it is illegal for minors to possess alcohol, we also say: States, you should make it illegal for minors to possess tobacco.

Also, with Perkins Act, we are the major co-sponsor of this legislation. This is bipartisian legislation. It is an alternative to Mr. WAXMAN. And, actually, what Mr. McINTYRE and I were really hopeful is that our bill here would have been adopted in the Energy and Commerce Committee as a substitute. If we could have combined our effort with that of Mr. WAXMAN’s, we would have 435 votes here on the floor, and we could make this a reality and make our society a healthier and safer place.

Mr. McINTYRE. I would like to thank Mr. BUYER, who is the principal sponsor of this responsible tobacco regulation legislation. I was pleased to be the original co-sponsor with him. And, I want to see that this is an issue of fundamental fairness. This is not an anti-public health alternative. In fact, as Mr. BUYER was just saying and as we were just discussing in our interchange a few moments ago, in fact we have even stronger regulation to prevent youth smoking.

I have a son. When he was in high school, and he was not in law school, but he was, I guess, a boy, he was on the Campaign for Tobacco Free Kids. So we understand that, and this is a strong statement, even stronger than Mr. WAXMAN’s proposal against youth smoking. But it also recognizes that the FDA is understaffed and underfunded and overworked right now, and we are not in a situation where we need the FDA to come out on the farm and start regulating tobacco products, including tobacco products and leaf scheduled for consideration under suspensions of the rules on the House floor. This process will allow for no amendments or alternatives to be presented on this incredibly important and complex issue of tobacco regulation.

H.R. 1261 is the Youth Prevention and Tobacco Harm Reduction Act that we have introduced together, and is actually better approving tobacco and preventing minors from using tobacco products than the Waxman bill.

The Waxman bill will grant the FDA, the Food and Drug Administration, and other government agencies regulations for tobacco products and leaf, and protect growers from being required to change their farming practices. The last thing that our farmers want to see is another government bureaucrat coming out on the farm walking around, snooping around about the soil and how he is growing his crops.
In addition, our bill does more to protect public health and prevent minors from smoking even than the Waxman bill does. H.R. 1261 considers cutting-edge scientific research by promoting a harm reduction strategy to move smokers to less harmful tobacco products.

According to applied economics, the use of these reduced harm tobacco products increases the average probability of smoke cessation by over 10 percent; and I am sure my colleagues will be speaking more to that aspect of this bill.

H.R. 1261 specifically addresses youth tobacco by encouraging States to penalize minors for purchasing and possessing tobacco products. Under current law, retailers are prohibited from selling products to minors. But unlike with the purchase of alcohol, minors are not penalized for underage purchase and possession of tobacco products. And our bill clears that up and also allows for penalties in that regard.

The bill also calls upon States to increase their percentage of the Master Settlement Agreement dollars toward tobacco cessation and public health programs. In the past 10 years, States have spent just 3.2 percent of their total tobacco-generated revenue on tobacco prevention and cessation programs. Our bill would allow that to be increased.

H.R. 1261 is a commonsense approach to tobacco regulation that will both protect the public health and protect the jobs in our vital sector of the tobacco economy. I urge my colleagues to vote not “no” on Waxman and give yourself a chance to consider a more viable and reasonable economic alternative that does even more to protect our youth.

In closing to my colleague, I will say for our colleagues who may be in their offices or their staff that may still be in their offices this evening, we do have a chart that compares both bills. If we want to talk about, all right, what are the reasonable alternatives, one by one we go through the different segments of the bill to explain so that a real comparative analysis can be done. And that is what this is about. It is fundamental fairness in how we pass legislation so it is not just rushed through and we get a chance to actually analyze and compare these two bills, and that we do it in a way that will best achieve the goal here of protecting the public health, particularly of our young people, and protect jobs and not cost our economy any more than our country, unfortunately, has already lost.

And with that, I yield back to my colleague. And thank you for your great work on this bill.

Mr. BUYER. I thank the gentleman for his help and support on the bill. This is an issue about the public health of our country and the fact that we have a bipartisan approach here, a bill that we seek to decrease the mortality and morbidity rates is extremely important. There are over 100 nations around the world that are struggling with this issue. Tobacco is a legal product. It is the smoking that really hurts and harms and kills people. It is not that we are trying to do is to migrate people from smoking products to smokeless products. The very large risk differential, it is the difference between combustion and noncombustion products.

The gentleman brings that up. And he is embracing the harm reduction strategy from a public health perspective. And he also wants to make sure that we work in concert with our growers, that we have very sound export policies with regard to our trading partners around the world so we don’t have any World Trade Organization violations, while at the same time we are cognizant of illicit trade issues.

The gentleman is an expert in these areas. And I welcome his support. And I thank him for being here tonight.

What I would like to do is I’m going to share a chart that the world has never seen. And I am hopeful that here in the United States we can continue and lead the way to make the world a healthier place. And so what I’m going to do here is I want to talk about our harm reduction strategy and to talk about the risk differential among a continuum of risks. So the best way for me to do this is to put a chart up so all the Members can have a look at this. And I will talk about it here for a second.

I have continuum of risk here at the top, along then with the relative risk of chronic disease here on the side. And what I have done is what is not on the chart, I don’t put cigars or pipe tobacco in here. That is outside of the regulation of not only our bill but also of Mr. WAXMAN’s bill. But pipe and cigars are near the top. It is the degree one goes to put a continuum up so all the Members can have a look at this. And I will talk about it here for a second.

the difference between a U.S. smokeless product and Swedish Snus? Well, the difference is the U.S. smokeless product is fermented, and the Swedish Snus is pasteurized. So if you can actually move to the Swedish Snus, you can eliminate about 80 percent. Think about it, you cut about 80 percent of the health risks can be taken away, yet people can still gain access to nicotine.

Now, if you wanted to go on a little bit further, there are dissolvables of tobacco that have been manufactured. That is the really bad stuff, yet, you see, people can still gain access to nicotine. And these dissolvable products that are just being introduced and tested in the marketplace are these Orbs or a tobacco stick or a strip that you can lay on your tongue and you can gain access to the nicotine.

Now, I assure you, you don’t gain access to nicotine and get the sensation upon the brain as you would smoking the cigarette. But you can gain access to the nicotine and people then can make an informed choice, gosh, I can gain access to my nicotine, I don’t get it as quickly, I can get it, but, gee, maybe it is worth it for me to live a few more years and enjoy my family, and, gee, I’m not going to die from smoking. You see, that is extremely important. And as we move people and then migrate them down from this continuum, you can move them to therapeutic methods to gain access to nicotine, through the gum, the patch, the lozenges, and then for the individuals who seek to quit.

And that is part of the process of what we are doing here is we want to incorporate a harm-reduction strategy to inform a population that if you want to gain access to your nicotine, it is the smoke that is really going to kill you. So if you can get them off of smoking and move them to smokeless products and move them from there to therapeutic and then pharmacological to eventually cessation and quitting.

Now, that is part of the harm reduction strategy. And what I believe is extremely important is when we have this as a strategy, you have about 40 million smokers over here on this end of the chart, and you only have about 2 million down here that are actually trying to quit. In the meantime, of the filterless cigarettes, 90 to 98 percent of the individuals who are smoking the cigarettes are smoking lights or ultralights. Now why are they buying lights or ultralights? Because somehow they believe that if they smoke a light or ultralight that it will be less harmful for them. You see, people are trying to make an informed decision, and they think it will be less harmful for them. The reality is these are products that are going to be harmful to you. I think people need to know and understand that.

So what we are hopeful here is that in our legislation, we create this Harm Reduction Center under Health and Human Services where we take our great minds and we do science. We do science on the entire array of products along a continuum of risk, and we inform the public so that the public, when they buy these products, that we can actually migrate our population from combustible products and hopefully quitting, while at the same time, we want to make our investments in education and prevention programs, not just for children and minors, but also for adults.

What is important, what we are finding, is that when people migrate from smoking to smokeless, some fear that, wow, if somebody starts here, the smokeless product, will they actually migrate this direction on the chart, headed up the chart? The reality is it is not what is happening in the marketplace. So that is why we have created an alternative public health position for tobacco.

My good friend, Mr. Waxman, I applaud his perseverance over the years and his persistence. His legislation has been sort of an abstinence-only approach on tobacco. I respect Mr. Waxman. We have had a good working relationship over the years. And I really was hopeful that he would incorporate this harm reduction in his bill. Now, he said, “Steve, I have got harm reduction in my bill.” I said, “Well, Henry, you may have it in the bill.” But what he has are unrealistic standards that products that may gain access to the marketplace. He has a two-tiered, a two-tiered test, one that will test at the individual and one at the public with regard to the impact of a particular product. It will almost be impossible for new products to gain access to the market.

If we truly wanted to make our society healthier, what we should be doing is encouraging people to move from combustion to noncombustion products. And we can do that, if I can take out 80 percent of the health risk, we are making our country healthier and hopefully healthier.

That is why I call this the continuum of risk chart. And it is open and free to the world to use this chart, to scrutinize the chart. And I’m hopeful that other legislative bodies around the world will incorporate harm reduction as a strategy for a nation for them to be healthier.

The harm reduction policies advocated in H.R. 1261 are an important method to figure out how we can satisfy the nicotine cravings among all of these legal type products.

What I would like to share are what some of the scientists actually say about tobacco harm reduction as a public health strategy. From the American Association of Public Health Physicians, dated 2008, “tobacco harm reduction is taken to mean encouraging and enabling people to reduce their risk of tobacco-related illness and death by switching to less hazardous smokeless tobacco products.”
health threats from spurious health claims. As this report documents, there is a strong scientific and medical foundation for tobacco harm reduction, which shows a great potential as a public health strategy to help millions of smokers.

With regard to—here is another one from SmokeFree Pennsylvania. “Although smokeless tobacco is just as addictive as cigarettes and should not be used by those who are not addicted to nicotine, cigarettes are about 100 times deadlier than smokeless tobacco products.”

Here is a quote from Britton and Edwards, The Lancet, in 2007. “The risk of adverse effects associated with snus, now snus is pasteurized product, Swedish snus, is lower than that associated with smoking, overall by an estimated 90 percent. Whatever the true overall hazard, use of low nitrosamine smokeless products is clearly substantially less harmful than tobacco smoking.”

What about these risks? I am pulling out these quotes because what has been talked about as those who support the Waxman legislation is that somehow all of these products are equally harmful. That is false. That is what they say. They are not equally harmful. And it is extremely important that the public be informed about all that these types of products, along a continuum of risk, so people can make informed choices. We do that every day. We make decisions on what kind of automobile we want to drive. We do the continuum of risk. How about what we eat? How about what we drink? We make choices and decisions every day. Should I put on my seatbelt? Should I wear a helmet. All kind of things. We make judgments.

When I look at the farmers, my gosh, there are all types of risk out on the farm, and a lot of judgments are made along a continuum of risk along with the farm machinery.

We make these judgments. Why don’t we do that as a public health strategy for tobacco? It only makes sense. And what I am really hopeful here—I had a really good discussion last week with Mr. WAXMAN about some tweaks on amendments, some of which he didn’t agree to of which I was hopeful.

I really appeal to my good friend from California because we could combine, and I shared this with him. We could have had that. We could have had that. We could have combined our efforts here, good discussions with Mr. WAXMAN about some tweaks on tobacco? It only makes sense. And that is really not going to be going well. So the questions may have reached their maximum possible public health benefit because of the large number of cigarette smokers either unwilling or unable to discontinue their addiction to nicotine, and

Whereas there is evidence that harm reduction and can be accomplished in a way that will not increase initiation or impede smoking cessation and

Whereas health-related agencies and organizations, both within the United States and Abroad have already gone on record endorsing Harm Reduction as an approach to further reducing tobacco related illness and death, and

Whereas current federal policy requires tobacco product labeling that leaves the incorrect impression that all tobacco product poses equal risk; and

Whereas certain tax policies put ST products at a competitive disadvantage, compared to cigarettes; and

Whereas harm reduction approaches to reducing tobacco related illness and death promise to be more politically and financially viable than alternative approaches be it, therefore, Resolved that the American Association of Public Health Physicians go on record as favoring Harm Reduction as a central component of public health efforts to reduce tobacco-related illness and death and

Be it further Resolved that such efforts shall encourage the following approaches:

1. Product labeling to inform consumers of the relative risk profiles of the various classes of tobacco products.

2. Governmental and health-organization sponsored health education to educate consumers to the risk profiles of the various classes of tobacco products

3. Revision of taxation schemes at federal, state, and local levels to reflect risk profiles and costs to society of the various classes of tobacco products

4. Regulation of the manufacturing and marketing of the various classes of tobacco products reflective of their respective risk profiles and costs to society

5. Be it further Resolved that funds be established through taxation of tobacco products to facilitate government-sponsored (as opposed to tobacco company sponsored) research and program evaluation to refine our understanding of the relative risk profiles of the various classes of tobacco products, market trends, and the impact of governmental interventions on tobacco product consumption.

The last point I would like to make is that the appeal that my good friend, MIKE MCFINTRY, made to the Members. And the appeal is that we have a choice before us. The choice is whether we are going to take an approach, any approach to tobacco, or do we really combine forces and use a harm reduction strategy, coupled with cessation prevention education efforts. It should all be together.

And I assumed the chairmanship of the Energy and Commerce Committee if he would protect the right that this substitute be heard here on the floor, just as he permitted this substitute to be made in the Energy and Commerce Committee. He said that his intent was to bring his tobacco bill to the floor under suspension. I appealed to my good friend not to do that. Allow Congress to work its will, just as you did at the committee.

When this bill came before the committee, it was all Republicans voted for it and all Democrats voted against it. I was surprised by that. I was surprised by that because we, Mr. MCINTYRE and I, looked at this from a bipartisan perspective, we were seeking to improve public health. And when you try to work to improve public health from this perspective this isn’t one of these fights about socializing medicine or something that defines political parties. This one really surprised me that within the committee, that there was a partisan vote. That should have never, ever have happened at the committee.

And what I am hopeful here is that Mr. WAXMAN, when he makes his appeal to the House, that he comes to the floor, that he actually goes through regular order, that he goes to the Rules Committee, and that Mr. MCINTYRE and I be permitted to have our bipartisan substitute be debated here on the House floor. And please, do not bring—this is too important of a public health position to come up on suspension. This is a bipartisan bill. And to bring it up on suspension denies the right of a lot of Members for this public, harm reduction strategy in which we seek to improve public health.

So, if, in fact, if Mr. WAXMAN brings his tobacco bill to the floor, my appeal would be to all Members to vote against the suspension. Now, the purpose of voting against the suspension isn’t necessarily on the substance of the bill itself. It is about the process. We have got the process and procedure and you have substance. To bring a bill this important to public health under suspension and denying the right of a substitute, now we have a process issue. And Mr. MCINTYRE and I will be appealing to Members to vote “no” on suspension. We shouldn’t be suspending the rules and denying amendments and the substitute here on this floor. The Congress should work the will of the American people, and that is, that all views and opinions and amendments and substitutes should be made in order here. And what this has really been about is the narrowness of the bipartisan for his legislation on the floor. And since Mr. WAXMAN will not incorporate this, the least we can do is have this issue heard here on the floor. And that is my appeal.

So let me conclude with this. Mr. WAXMAN, I appeal to my good friend, allow this to come to the floor. Do not put your bill on suspension. If your bill comes to the floor on suspension, then Mr. MCINTYRE and I are asking for all Members to vote against the suspension and for the clear purpose that our right to be heard. I will yield back.

THE IMPORTANCE OF TRAVEL IN OUR COUNTRY

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Ms. FUGE). Under the Speaker’s announced policy of January 6, 2009, the gentlewoman from Nevada (Ms. BERKLEY) is recognized for 60 minutes.

General Leaves

Ms. BERKLEY. I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material on the Special Order of business travel.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentlewoman from Nevada?

There was no objection.

Ms. BERKLEY. A few weeks ago, Madam Speaker, I came to the floor of the House and gave a very spirited defense of my congressional district which encompasses my hometown of Las Vegas. I did that because my community was under horrific attack by Members of this body, and it did us tremendous financial damage.

I wanted to speak more than 5 minutes to talk about the importance of this perspective, and we were seeking to improve public health, and why we should be encouraging people to travel, and why we should be encouraging businesses to continue to conduct their meetings in destination areas like Las Vegas, but there are so many others. And I would like to talk to you a little bit about my community. But before I do that, I think I would like to yield to my very good friend, Ron Klein from the great State of Florida, who also depends on tourism as its lifeline in its economy.

Mr. KLEIN of Florida. I would like to thank the gentlewoman from Nevada for calling us together tonight because I think, as we realize, all over the United States, tourism, the flow of people, the flow of dollars, goes with the flow of people, the fact that people come from all over the world to our great, wonderful attractions, whether they be in Las Vegas, or whether they be in Florida, where I am from, I am from the southeastern coast of Florida, Miami, Ft. Lauderdale, West Palm Beach, all over Florida and I know that all over the United States there are some just unbelievable places to go. And the good news is there are actually some good buys right now.

But besides that, the most important part though is that tourism is a very, very important part of our economy. It is important on so many levels. Economically, let’s just start with the jobs. I know that you feel so strongly about, Congresswoman BERKLEY, the jobs that are created in the hospitality industry, the construction jobs that go along with it, all the ancillary services and support and the food and the, all the entertainment and equipment and things like that. They are very much a part of our economy all over the United States. Certainly it is not just where the people actually travel to. It is the fact that the things that supply the equipment, the buildings, all the support services come from 50 States. Every State is impacted by a strong tourism trade. And it is just very exciting to be part and to live in a community where we have tourism as such an active part.

Because, from South Florida, it not only draws people from all over the United States to Florida, but we get people from all over the world, as you do as well. And I know just from the Latin American community, the European community, the diversity of the people in Florida, incredible restaurants to choose from. But, you know, obviously, in struggling times we know it affects everybody. It affects the discretionary dollar.

But I think one thing we do want to encourage, and certainly with the economic stimulus package that has now been presented, we are now beginning to work through some of these difficult issues with the banks and the credit which have a lot to do with supporting our economy throughout the United States. This is going to take a little bit of time.

But I think everyone should have that confidence level to know that as Americans, we are going to get through this. The goal is to contract what is going on right now.

The reality is, at the same time, people still need to get out; they still need to do business, and certainly, as we know, even as unemployment has moved up a little bit, we still have over 90 percent of Americans who are gainfully employed. There are wonderful opportunities to travel to our great places all over the United States, to enjoy the few dollars that we have left, wonderful place, to have family time, business time, to eat a good meal, and it is just all very exciting because we do have this great infrastructure and this great entertainment system in place, but it is the lifeblood, in many ways, of our country’s economy.

I just want to thank you for not only being a leader in understanding tourism, but also, in the recovery and reinvestment bill that we did, there is so much that we are doing to help support getting our economy moving again and in building that confidence to know that people should travel and should enjoy the tourism industry—our hotels, our properties and just get a great benefit out of it. I would like to thank you for calling us together. I am glad to support this great initiative that you have put out there.

Ms. BERKLEY. Well, I really appreciate your being here. I knew, as the Representative from south Florida, that our economy had been hit the same way that Las Vegas has. Could I ask you a question?

Mr. KLEIN of Florida. Absolutely.
Ms. BERKLEY. What we have found is that we know leisure travel is down because of the recession and that it's a little bit more challenging for families to go on vacation now, and I can understand that, but where Las Vegas has been particularly hit is in the business travel. Since the first of the year, we have lost 341 conventions. The impact on Las Vegas has been devastating. I'm wondering if you're seeing an impact on business travel as well.

Mr. KLEIN of Florida. If the gentlelady from South Florida wishes to yield, I would be more than happy to respond. Thank you for yielding to me.

The answer is, yes, there has been an impact. We have a lot of hotels that do a lot of business travel. We have convention centers in Miami, in Fort Lauderdale and in West Palm Beach, of course, and in the rest of Florida, also, which is a huge destination.

Ms. BERKLEY. Yes, they're the second best in the United States.

Mr. KLEIN of Florida. I don't know if it's the second best. It may be the best. Maybe we have the second largest number of hotel rooms, but again, great choices all the way around.

Yes, Florida has been hit hard. A lot of people travel to Florida and plan business conventions 1 year, 2 years or 3 years in advance. There have been some cancellations.

Ms. BERKLEY. What does that do to the job market in South Florida?

Mr. KLEIN of Florida. What it does, of course, anywhere is if, in fact, a hotel has a certain less number of room nights—of which we know "room nights" are the number of rooms times the number of nights for a particular convention—and if a convention has 100 rooms and there are 5 nights, which is 500 room nights, that's a big impact. It's not just the hotel. It's the food that goes with it. It's all of the hospitality.

Ms. BERKLEY. Taxicab drivers.

Mr. KLEIN of Florida. Absolutely.

Ms. BERKLEY. Dry cleaning.

Mr. KLEIN of Florida. That's right, and there is some great shopping in local communities, of course, that goes with it.

Ms. BERKLEY. I love shopping.

Mr. KLEIN of Florida. You know, it has had an impact. Again, I think that our businesses are doing what a lot of businesses are doing right now. They're clamping down. They're making sure that their systems are running as efficiently as possible, but they are great optimists, and the properties are just wonderful. We have a new one—I won't give a particular plug—but it's down in Miami. It's the Fontainebleau.

Ms. BERKLEY. Oh, yes.

Mr. KLEIN of Florida. Which is a world famous hotel.

Ms. BERKLEY. And they're also building that.

Mr. KLEIN of Florida. That's right. They are. They're the same owners. They just put $1 billion into a property down there, but it's not just that hotel. There are so many wonderful hotels. We have large hotels, boutique hotels. Again, people love to come to the beaches and relax.

Ms. BERKLEY. And you can get a good deal right now.

Mr. KLEIN of Florida. And you can get a very good deal, so keep that in mind if you're looking to travel.

But it is true. This economic downturn has made a lot more rooms available, and that does have a broad impact, which is why I am so supportive of these initiatives that we are taking right now to rebuild confidence in the economy.

The President's Reinvestment and Recovery Act is very much a part of recognizing, yes, we have to fix the banks and that, yes, we have to fix the mortgages. We are beginning to really move in some positive directions there. Yes, we had to do a stimulus plan, and the stimulus plan may not be perfect, but it is designed to be monitored very carefully so that, as we look every 30 days, we ask: Is it creating jobs? As for all of these outcome measurements that we're expecting, the key to all of this is that, if it's not working in creating jobs, it gets cancelled, and we move on to something else, but it's all about, in our local communities, doing things that will get the economy up and running, making people feel better about themselves so they can buy and sell businesses and houses.

Mr. FARR. If the gentleman will yield—

Ms. BERKLEY. We have been joined by Congressman Sam Farr from California, who happens to chair the tourism caucus in Congress. Welcome, and thanks for being part of this.

Mr. FARR. Thank you very much for inviting me. I enjoy being part of this tag team that is really trying to give different message than has been given.

I think the press has really done a disservice to criticizing business travel, because everybody knows we're in tough times, and so they feel like, well, people shouldn't be out recreating with a corporate budget. On the other hand, when you stop and cancel those conventions that have been in your city, in the backlash, we've lost 20 percent of the hotel market. Twenty percent of the hotel market has reported that, just in that 20 percent, cancellations have exceeded $220 million for January and February. Now, when you have a form of business that employs 7.5 million people, when that industry falls off—

Ms. BERKLEY. Did you say 7.5 million people?

Mr. FARR. Just in the domestic travel. Just domestic travel.

Ms. BERKLEY. Interesting.

Mr. FARR. If you break it down to business travel that we're talking about tonight, it's 2.4 million American jobs. That's $240 billion in spending and $30 billion in tax revenue, which is the TOT—the Transit Occupancy Tax—and sales tax that those folks in their business travel spend at places like we all represent. I don't represent a big convention area. I represent the very small Monterey peninsula, but our little county does $2 billion in travel and tourism, second only to agriculture. It is very important.

And yet, when you see these businesses that got out about domestic travel, is just contrary to what you have just talked about.

This stimulus package was about stimulating jobs, not about losing jobs. It is about keeping existing jobs and creating more jobs. If there is any industry that can pick up a lot of labor quickly when things are going good, it's the travel and tourism. It's the restaurant workers. It's adding additional workers—taxicab drivers, and because of the bad press, all of those travel promotion ads. To do that kind of destination marketing. We know that a lot of Canadians—

Ms. BERKLEY. My husband and I went to a Reno physicians' association meeting in Monterey, and it was an absolutely delightful place to have a convention.

Mr. FARR. Those associations, the small ones like your husband is involved in, have been canceling. So what has also affected the big conventions in your communities that can handle some of the largest conventions in the world trickle down to the smaller communities that handle the smaller ones. This impact, this negative message that got out about domestic travel, is just contrary to what you have just talked about.

But it is true. This economic downturn has made a lot more rooms available, and that does have a broad impact, which is why I am so supportive of these initiatives that we are taking right now to rebuild confidence in the economy.

Yes, we had to do a stimulus plan, and the stimulus plan may not be perfect, but it is designed to be monitored very carefully so that, as we look every 30 days, we ask: Is it creating jobs? As for all of these outcome measurements that we're expecting, the key to all of this is that, if it's not working in creating jobs, it gets cancelled, and we move on to something else, but it's all about, in our local communities, doing things that will get the economy up and running, making people feel better about themselves so they can buy and sell businesses and houses.

Mr. FARR. If the gentleman will yield—

Ms. BERKLEY. Exactly. Well, I think, if I'm hearing you correctly, you're saying that business travel is very much a part of the economy of the United States of America, and without it, we are going to have thousands, if not hundreds of thousands, of people unemployed. Those are our fellow citizens.

Mr. FARR. Travel and tourism is the largest business in the world, and it is expanding faster than any other business. Every country is trying to do more of it. You see the advertising on our television sets about islands in the Caribbean, about going to Spain or about going to Australia and New Zealand, all of those travel promotion ads. We don't do that. The United States, unfortunately, isn't running any ads in other countries, saying, "Visit the United States." We have the other co-Chair, Roy Blunt, of the Travel and Tourism Caucus have a bill. It is a bill to essentially provide grants to States and local communities to do that kind of destination marketing. We know that a lot of Canadians—

Ms. BERKLEY. Put me on.

Mr. FARR. What I just wanted to mention for both of you—because I am very, very sympathetic to the problems of Las Vegas. Las Vegas is the biggest convention city in the United States, and because of the bad press, all of these businesses have canceled. You've pointed out what is happening to the
Mr. FARR. In January and February, the travel and tourism, the business travel was so far down that we lost $1 billion. Now, $1 billion is a lot of jobs to be filled. I think that what we're doing is we're seeing how far the tourism is going down, and you are suggestion that companies should be doing business travel.

Mr. FARR. Absolutely not.

Mr. KLEIN of Florida. No. I would just support what you're saying.

First of all, I think your idea of branding the United States as a place for travel and tourism is a wonderful idea. You see the Philippines. You see what they did with the countries abroad. In Florida, we have something called Visit Florida, which is a public-private partnership, set up a number of years ago, which brands Florida and promotes it in different places. I think that branding the United States as a place and then, obviously, letting local communities cooperate together, putting leverage those dollars and doing it. I think you're all right.

One other point: We're talking about big. Let's also talk small. In your community, I'll bet there are lots of small businesses—bed and breakfast and lots of other things—that are just wonderful places. These are people who are very dependent and who are also in cooperation with our large properties.

Mr. FARR. What is very interesting about this is that travel is really educational. I mean this city, I think, is a must for any child in school who is learning about American history. In making it interesting, it comes alive. I mean the city of Washington may be the best family tourism city in the world because most of the things here are free—going to the museums, visiting the monuments—and you can't help but recognize the Capitol when you see it. You've seen it in books. You've seen the Washington Monument and the Lincoln monument. This city makes it exciting. So you think about how many different ways one gets educated, by visiting someplace else, knowing more about themselves.

I was a Peace Corps volunteer, and I was living in another culture and was experiencing all that newness in food, in dance, in music. In language that made me realize the strengths of my culture in America but also some of the weaknesses—the family values issues where people really stick together in families. I find that travel and tourism is an eye opener, and I represent Carmel where I live, which is a small, little town of 4,000 people. Everybody has heard of Carmel. It's just a charming, little town.

The mayor of Carmel, not Clint Eastwood but one of the other mayors, was telling me that, and asked me the question: What do you think is the number 1 question asked for things that we want from the city government? I always say: Where, is Clint Eastwood's restaurant? He said: No, that wasn't the question. That wasn't the number. It number 1 ask from the government of Carmel is for a copy of their zoning ordinance. That just shows that the tourists come and shop, not just with their pocketbooks, but they shop with their eyes and their minds. They looked at why they wanted a zoning ordinance, and so many Japanese asked for it that we had to have it translated into Japanese. The people said: If this city can look so cute, why can't our city incorporate some of these ideas?

So that's what, I think, of travel and tourism. Obviously, businesses use these ideas into their associations—the dental association or the plumbers' association—and go have a conference.

Ms. BERKLEY. Las Vegas can accommodate everyone from the Baptist conventions in Las Vegas. I mean that sounds unusual, but there are—to medical conventions, to dental conventions, as you said. We also are the site of some of the biggest conventions in the world—CES, the homebuilders, the shopping center convention every May. I mean these are huge conventions. Why do they come to Las Vegas? Why do they come to south Florida? Because we can accommodate this. We have the best transportation. We have got the best restaurants, the best shopping and the best facilities for conventions, large and small.

For the American business community to be turning their backs on us, not only is it bad for our business; it is bad for theirs because, contrary to what a lot of people think, a lot of business gets done in those meetings.

I know that the Congressman has got beaten up on this amount of amenity that people take advantage of after they've done their business. Las Vegas has world-class entertainment and some other amenities as well. People don't concentrate on that. They're there to do business, and we make it possible for them in these business meetings to conduct serious business, and I am sure it's the same with your district as well.

Mr. FARR. Well, I think that we're all in the media. We have to get elected in the media, and we have to go out and take risks. It seems to me that what we need to do is realize, as a country, that we should not be complicating businesses that are doing things to help people have jobs.
you want to jump start a lot of jobs in America, this is the industry that has the most jobs when you think of all of the venues that you talk about.

Ms. BERKLEY. I would love to make two points, and it dovetails beautifully with what you are saying. I know you just mentioned that legislation that you’re either introducing or thinking of introducing that would put some dollars into advertising the United States of America abroad so people would travel and invest in the United States, which I think is a wonderful idea. And you’re right, we’re eight years behind other countries in promoting our own.

But there are smaller ones that I was wondering what you thought of. I tried to get in the stimulus package—and wasn’t able to do so—but a $500 tax credit for business travel. If you’re a business traveler and you want to bring your spouse, I think we should be thinking of there should be a tax credit that will encourage men or women to take their spouses. It doubles the number of people that are coming to any one of our communities, and it also will help stimulate the economy and also keep families together. So I think that’s wonderful.

The other thing—and we call it the three Martini lunch—but the reality is it is so much more important and significant than that. I would love to see a 100 percent deductibility of meals tax. I am sure the same is happening in your towns as mine, the restaurant business is kaput. People aren’t coming to the towns so obviously restaurant business is down. Wouldn’t it be a good idea for a business to help stimulate the business? Most small businesses don’t have boardrooms. What they have is the back booth of the local deli. And if they could get a 100 percent deduction on their meals, I would think that would not only help them to do their business but it would also help the restaurant business as well.

Mr. FARR. We have a bill that’s annually introduced by NEIL AMER-CROMBIE, the Representative from Hawaii, and it is obviously in Hawaii’s best interest to have a lot of tourists. That’s what supports their infrastructure. And he’s introduced the business travel deduction for spousal travel and also increasing the meal deduction. We have just been unable to get it out of the Ways and Means Committee. Maybe now as part of the stimulus we could encourage things like that.

Ms. BERKLEY. Heaven knows I have tried. I am a member of the Ways and Means Committee, but I am going to keep pushing this because I can’t think of anything more stimulative to the tourism business and the restaurant business. And I know NEIL has been remarkable and, of course, NEIL AMER-CROMBIE represents Hawaii. It has also been very hard hit, and he’s down here every year for the interest of his community, and, of course, Hawaii depends on tourists and business travelers.

Mr. FARR. What I like what both of you really understand—and I think this is the difficulty that the industry has—is that it is the biggest industry there is in the world, and yet it is not looked at as an industry because it is made up of parts. When the part of the party is good, then the party is great. But you just think about it. It is the rental car business, they have their own association; it is the hotel business, they have their own association; it is the airline business, they have their own association; it is the travel agencies, they have their own association; the restaurants, they have their own association; it is the Federal Government because we have national parks which are destination areas and tourism is essential for us to sustain those parks on the fees collected at the gates and the rates paid for the services.

So we’re all in it, but what is more important it is really about America.

What I love about travel and tourism is that it is the spirit of our country. And as I say, I think that we travel within America to look and see what regions look like. We don’t just go to see—we don’t go to California to see what Californians look like or Florida to see what Florida looks like. It’s really not just the people—people are the character. But it is also—and the arts, obviously, the creative arts. But it is these physical attractions: the beaches of Florida, the incredible expansion of ideas. I think that one of the greatest shows that I’ve ever seen in my life—I have been raving about it. I saw it last summer. I was driving through Las Vegas on the way to our Denver convention. I stopped in Las Vegas and had never been there. And I went to Cirque du Soleil. That is a show that I think is—it is the epitome of creation, of musical talent and acrobatic talent; and it is something that every child would just love to see. I was just so disappointed—I thought—that I didn’t have my grandchildren with me.

Ms. BERKLEY. Every time I go—I’ve seen all of the Cirque du Soleils a number of times. Whenever we get company here, we take them to the Cirque du Soleil. Although we have got so many—we have Cher, we have Bette Midler. You name it, we have got it in Vegas. But every time I go, I see something new. There is so much on that stage going on. Going once simply isn’t enough. So I should invite you as my guest to come with your grandchildren. And I would be glad to host you.

Mr. FARR. If I had enough money, I would rent the whole theater and invite the whole world because I think it is something that everybody should see. It is a tribute to mankind’s creativity.

See, I think that’s what this is all about. You’re not going to get a Cirque du Soleil show if you’re going to have to travel somewhere. We always say in California that a tourist is anybody who is more than 60 miles away from home. So it makes most commuters in California tourists for a moment, because they are actually spending their money in another city when they go out for lunch, and they might go shopping there on their way home.

Mr. KLEIN of Florida. Every time I see Congressmen from other states there is not enough infectious energy there of her passion for what she does. You are probably the greatest representative that Las Vegas has ever had because of your beliefs in the industry.

Ms. BERKLEY. I don’t know how it is in your part of the world. I see Congressmen from Ohio. I’m from Ohio originally. They have the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame in Cleveland, Ohio. It is everywhere you go in the United States, there is the opportunity for tourism. And the most important recognition of this is it is about how we are as Americans, it’s about the rest of the world getting a piece of our culture. And it is also a tremendous export along with our entertainment industry. But bringing people to the United States, getting a feeling for what we’re all about, our democracy, our values that express themselves in the way we maintain our national parks. The way we—the Everglades, which is one of the great creations, The Grand Canyon. These are all things that when people leave the country——

Mr. FARR. The Big Sur coast.

Mr. KLEIN of Florida. I think we could all go on for a while.

Ms. BERKLEY. Congressmen, I would go so far as to say it is patriotic to be traveling.

Mr. KLEIN of Florida. I would agree. It is patriotic for Americans to see America. And it is also a wonderful way of showing what America is like to people around the world because when they go home and they can share their experiences of what they have seen and what they have felt and what Americans are like and what this particular destination, this ocean, this Grand Canyon, Lake Erie, any combination of things that are part of who we are as a country, it think it adds so much to our national parks. It promotes our interests worldwide as well.

Ms. BERKLEY. I believe that the Congressman from Ohio, who is here for another Special Order, has moved to join us in conversation.

Mr. LATOURRETTE. I absolutely am moved by the conversation. And one of the things that puzzles me as we go through this financial mess is that people have decided to target trips and conventions and destinations and tourism, and that’s exactly the wrong messages.

I don’t know how it is in your part of the world. In Cleveland, where we have the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame and we have great hotels. There are people who have to work in the hotels, there are people who cook the food, people who serve the food. And when you close down and just make fun of people that go and have conventions or go traveling, you really are cutting off your own future because you are drying up those jobs and you really are having a huge impact on the local economy. And I don't know any local economy that doesn't have as a component a healthy dose of dollars from that component.

And so as people sort of say this is bad, that's bad, don't do this, one thing that they shouldn't target is, in fact, people need to travel, people need to have meetings, and people need to rent rooms and eat meals.

I thank the gentlelady for yielding.

Ms. BERKLEY. We've been joined by one of our newest and finest Congressmen from the State of Florida (Mr. GRAYSON) who also represents a tourist-based economy in his district.

Mr. GRAYSON. I rise today to bring attention to the fact that there is increasing evidence to support the idea that taking vacations is necessary for your health.

Ms. BERKLEY. Your health?

Mr. GRAYSON. Your health. In times of economic uncertainty, it may seem hard to justify taking a vacation, but more than ever it is important to do so for your health.

The United States is a Nation of hard workers, but research shows that about a third of us in this country don't take all of the vacation days that we're entitled to. But according to Take Back Your Time, which is a nonprofit organization that studies issues related to overwork, there are 137 different countries that mandate paid vacation time, and the reason, typically, is health. The United States is not one of them.

With the number of Americans who said they didn't take a vacation is at a 30-year low, we need to take a look at the benefits of making that vacation that people have dreamed of a reality.

It is abundantly clear that individuals who take vacations are at a significantly lower risk for illness and disease. Likewise, those who do not take vacations are at a heightened risk of illness and disease. Even individuals without health problems can benefit from taking a vacation because it helps them to sleep better and it helps them to relax.

Ms. BERKLEY. When people come to Las Vegas, we don't want them sleeping.

Mr. GRAYSON. So it is sleeping afterward to make up for that face reaction.

A 2006 study was conducted to measure the benefits of taking vacations, and after a few days of vacation, the study found each participant was averaging more sleep and better quality sleep every night. There was also an 80 percent improvement in their face reaction times. And these benefits continued after they returned home. There is evidence that individuals who take vacations perform better at their jobs and they have higher job satisfaction.

The research has made such an impression that there is legislation being proposed here that would require a paid vacation time in the United States. It's currently called the Minimum Leave Protection Facilitation and Personal Well-Being Act, and it would mandate 3 weeks of vacation every year.

I think that Americans need to relax. They need to consider this evidence about the health and their well-being, and they need to take time off. And as the Congressman from Orlando, I recommend they take a few days off at Disney World.

Ms. BERKLEY. I have also been in your fair city, and when my kids were little, younger, we had wonderful family vacations in Orlando. It was quite a treat for us. So you do have a beautiful community and people should be flocking there.

Mr. GRAYSON. Thank you, too. I was in Las Vegas last year. I had a great time.

Ms. BERKLEY. Good. I hope you left a little money on the table.

Mr. FARR. I think it's important to realize that when we wanted to in Congress—we're essentially the one spouse, the father or the mother is serving in Congress, and taking away from the normal—we're not living with our family during the week. We're here in Washington. We go home on weekends. But in order to get us to bond together with your new freshman class and all the rest of us, we took a retreat. Essentially, that was business travel. We went to Williamsburg. We did that as Democrats, and the Republicans the following week did the same thing.

And so why did we do that? We didn't think of ourselves going on a vacation or going on a boondoggle. It was really about how to do our professional lives better and incorporate our families so that we can incorporate them in our businesses. And I think that that's really important.

And what's happened in this economic crisis is the press has made that kind of experience for businesses and even for government, that you shouldn't be doing that; you should feel very guilty.

Ms. BERKLEY. Congressman, I think we've had——

Mr. FARR. I feel guilty about the people that are getting unemployed because nobody's going out to a restaurant, not working, and very proud of his accomplishments.

That's what the tourism industry and that's what business travel means to Congress and the administration have also contributed to this feeling that maybe there's something wrong about traveling.

But I think we've turned the corner, and it's becoming very obvious to me, especially in President Obama's latest comments about the importance of traveling and how much he appreciates the travel industry and how important business travel is. Members of Congress also appreciated it as well, and I'm really glad that you guys did.

Mr. FARR. I think this last statement about how it's good for our mental health is absolutely true.

Ms. BERKLEY. We could use some good mental health in Congress, that's for sure.

Mr. FARR. And for the Nation. I think we need to be proud of who we are, and you know, going to a ball game is a tourist experience.

Ms. BERKLEY. It's a wonderful experience.

Mr. FARR. And if you went to that ball game out of town, you really would be a tourist. If you go in your hometown, it's something because it's a local activity, but it really is an experience. You being in that ballpark, you spent money to get there. You're spending money on food. You're spending money on programs, in the paraphernalia. That's all part of the tourist experience.

Ms. BERKLEY. It's as American as apple pie. Ball games, sharing them with your kids, with your spouse, I mean, what could be better? And if you could bring your whole business team with you, too, that's a wonderful way to bond and be more effective as a team.

There was something you said earlier, but I wanted to share something very personal. You know, even though we're friends, and you know, we know each other here in Congress, sometimes we don't know about each other's personal background. But something that you just touched on is because it seemed like you were talking about my own family.

My parents were driving across country. Everything we owned was in a U-Haul hooked up to the back bumper of our car. And my father was a waiter when I was growing up. He lived in state New York. We drove across country because my dad had a letter of introduction to get a job in a restaurant in southern California.

We stopped in Las Vegas for the night, and obviously we never left. And on a waiter's salary, my dad was a waiter at the old Sands Hotel which was very famous for the Rat Pack and just a very exciting time in Las Vegas' history. But on a waiter's salary, he was able to put a roof over our head, food on the table, clothes on our back, and two daughters through college and law school. That's not so bad on a waiter's salary. As a matter of fact, he's 84 years old now, still working, and very proud of his accomplishments.

That's what the tourism industry and that's what business travel means to Mr. FARR. Smaller businesses, you can come to Monterey peninsula, Monterey —
Ms. BERKLEY. The aquarium —
Mr. FARR. We have got a lot of great places to visit.
Ms. BERKLEY. As you know, my in-laws live in your district. So we go up and we visit them often. It’s a wonderful place to be.
Mr. FARR. Welcome to this discussion.
Ms. TITUS. Well, thank you so much for letting me join you and thank you, Congresswoman BERKLEY, for organizing this and giving me an opportunity. I know you’ve been talking about some of the issues already, and nobody is a stronger advocate for tourism and activities in Las Vegas than my colleague SHELLEY BERKLEY.
So I just want to add the fact that, yes, Las Vegas is a wonderful bargain and a wonderful place to come. You know, I think it’s injury when people canceled the convention, paid a cancellation fee, and then went to another city and paid a higher rate. That makes no sense whatsoever.
In Las Vegas, we have fabulous convention facilities. Nobody can feed a room of 5,000 eight courses and serve the line on time like you can in Las Vegas. So we do want you to come back.
And I was touched by the story of your daughter because that is so true. We should’t be thinking of this just in terms of statistics, and the statistics are staggering, but we need to think of it in terms of people.
Many of the people who live in District 3 work in the tourism industry. It’s not just along the famous Las Vegas Strip, but we have the Red Rock Casino. We’ve got the Green Valley Ranch. We’ve got the new Inn that’s opened, a lot of areas outside of the strip that are in District 3. So those are jobs.
Las Vegas, Nevada, has the highest unemployment rate it’s had in 25 years. You know, we used to think we were recession-proof, and if you had two nickels to rub together you’d come out there to try to change your luck. That’s not been the case recently. As people lose disposable income, they’re not coming. Those tourism dollars aren’t there, and people are losing jobs. If you lose a job or you lose hours on your job, or those kinds of things aren’t there, if you have one member of the family who is a tip earner then that leads to another problem which is the housing foreclosure.
So when you’re talking about where to have your convention and what the pluses are to having it in Las Vegas, remember, those are very real people who are making those beds, serving that food, dealing those cards, dancing in that chorus line. Those are real folks that live in the district, go to school, go to work, go to church and synagogues and mosques, and their business dollars in our town. And we visit them often. It’s a wonderful place to come. You know, it’s a wonderful community. You didn’t grow up there, I grew up there. A great town, great facilities, great convention town, get a lot of business done, almost patriotic to do this.
When we heard from Congressman Grayson, he was talking about your health depends on coming to Las Vegas and Monterey and South Florida.

There are so many communities in this country that have really been hard hit because businesses aren’t holding conferences. You can go to Miami, Atlanta, Atlantic City, New York, Hawaii, Las Vegas, Monterey. You name it.

We’ve got to get people traveling again and we’ve got to get our business community to come back and start conducting their business as they’ve become accustomed to. And, again, the caveat is we are not suggesting that these companies use taxpayer dollars in order to do their travel. But that is just a little itty bitty speck on business travel.

Mr. FARR. You can use your tax refund to do travel, if you get one.

Ms. BERKLEY. Absolutely. Ninety-five percent of the American people will be getting a tax cut.

Mr. FARR. I want to build on your comment about homeland security because of the Travel and Tourism Caucus, we’ve been looking at Las Vegas, too. One, you have the largest hotel capacity in the United States. I believe that the goal is to have 100,000 rooms.

Ms. BERKLEY. No, we’re at 140,000 now.

Mr. FARR. Well, you think about that. That means, theoretically, 140,000 people could check in and check out in the same day. And so your airport is one of the most sophisticated airports in the United States. And you’re starting to—which I think is a marvelous concept—look at wouldn’t it be a lot faster to move people if, when they check in their baggage to go to Las Vegas, that baggage then is in their room when they check in. When they leave their room, they leave the baggage there and it’s at the like baggage pickup when they go home. The idea is that, one, for security purposes. You do this perimeter screening and you don’t have to do it in the airport.

Secondly, they find what slows people down is sort of schlepping the bags. You’ve got to go pick them up and then you’ve got to lift them and you’ve got to get into a vehicle. That just slows things down. If people didn’t have to carry all that luggage, they could move a lot of people a lot faster.

So there’s a lot of lessons to learn here on just how—and, frankly, we’ve also taken from the hotel industry the way TSA—the agents who are at the gates—could learn much more hospitality treatment of not being rude to passengers. Just have a little bit more of a professional flare while they also do their security business.

So there’s a lot we’re learning from your field that has applications throughout this United States. I hope that we can model it. I wish that the United States would talk more and the President would talk more—whomever the President is—but President Obama would really talk about the fulfillment of the American Dream and the realization of the greatness of our country by encouraging people to really see more of it and experience it. His city of Chicago, I’m sure is a very great draw. He understands that.

Every community has a soul. Every community has something that can build upon that is really great. I think we are still in the developmental stages of pulling out the essence of that soul—what the natives in that community do, the historic aspects of the community. People settled there and built a town, and there’s something in that that will attract people to come and see it.

There’s so much opportunity to expand in travel and tourism—we just have to take it away from something of being a luxury item. It’s not that anymore.

Ms. BERKLEY. Well, I think DNA knows that President Obama has announced that he’s coming to Las Vegas in the spring. I believe that he’s going to be using that opportunity to say exactly what you’re saying, Congressman. That it’s part of the American Dream, this travel, and encourage people not only to do leisure travel, which Las Vegas is famous for, but business travel as well. And we’re famous for that as well.

Ms. TITUS. I think travel is so educational. I certainly agree with what you’re saying about how it enriches a person’s life.

When I was growing up, my father would put my sister and me in the car—the station wagon—and we would drive across country, hitting all the National Parks. So that is something that I don’t guess we do too much anymore.

If you want to look for the heart and soul of a small community, take that small trip. Because there are places around the country that have the biggest rubber band ball or the biggest stack of pancakes or the biggest ear of corn, country fairs and home cooking and boiled peanuts. That’s the way you really learn about this country and learn who your neighbors and fellow countrymen are.

Education is a great result of that kind of travel. That also builds tolerance and understanding when you can see and know people who aren’t necessarily just like yourself. That comes from travel.

Mr. FARR. What I’ve also noticed is that people are very interested in what we call “watchable wildlife.” The history is you go to zoos to see animals. But they really want to see them in the out-of-doors in their natural state.

Ms. BERKLEY. We have some wildlife in Las Vegas, you know.

Mr. FARR. The Red Rock and the other parks and the desert forests. But I was in Big Sur last weekend and I was talking to one of the hotels there. They were telling me that people—and they charge a lot for their rooms. But people call up and say, If I book a room in this hotel in Big Sur, can I see a condor? Because there are very few condors and we’re monitoring them and we have a radio device on them, we know where they are. So the answer is “yes” because we know where they are. They have a guarantee that you will see a condor. Other people will want to know about seeing sea otters.

So, living on the coast, what you realize is that natural flora and fauna really are so important, those that are native—that people want to come and see the out-of-doors. What I find is that you can’t make people an environmentalist, so to speak, in appreciation for a living environment until you have been there and then also had it explained to you. Once you do, you get it.

So this whole issue of why do we need to fight global warming and what is it doing to our natural systems, you can understand that once you get that experience in the names and get that experience being out-of-doors.

So it’s really our culture. It’s sort of the creativity of what you have done in Las Vegas, plus areas that just have the natural environment preserved in their natural state, that relate to this mosaic of travel and tourism.

Ms. BERKLEY. I think that is so eloquently put. I also want to remind people, especially the business traveler, that it’s a good break from your business meeting if you come to Las Vegas. We have Red Rock Canyon, which is spectacular; we have the Grand Canyon, that is even more spectacular; and, of course, the Hoover Dam.

So you can do your business, you can do your gambling, you can eat the finest food, and then you can go outside of the city and enjoy the natural wonders of this beautiful, beautiful country of ours.

Ms. TITUS. I would mention along those same lines that Las Vegas plays a big part in other things that you don’t think about. Right now there’s a big emphasis on renewable energy. Certainly, we are the sunniest State in the country in Nevada. Everybody goes to Las Vegas for the wonderful weather. They’re calling me every day to tell me how warm it is there compared to how cool it is here.

But the architecture that relates to that renewable energy is very interesting, very famous. I’ve written about the architecture of Las Vegas a number of years ago. They can go back and write another one now because there was a time not too long ago that of the top 10 LEED-certified green buildings in the country. Seven of those projects were along the Las Vegas Strip.

So it’s quite interesting to look at just from an architectural environmental standpoint, as well as just from the beauty of the decor. So that is something else they have to offer.

Ms. BERKLEY. Well, I think we have spoken for about an hour. We have had a very spirited discussion and I think a very enlightening and educated one. I hope that the people that are watching come to appreciate the value of travel on vacation, family travel, just a get-away for the two of you, or, more significantly, for the discussion tonight, business travel, which is so important to the economies of every State in the Union.

I don’t know whether you knew this—I’m sure you do as chairman of the Tourism Caucus—but in 30 States tourism is the first, second, or third most important industry. For a state like ours and a State like ours, obviously it’s number one. But for 30 other States we’re talking first, second, or third. That is huge.

We want to invite everybody back. Do those business meetings, Stop canceling. Stop being foolish. Enjoy and do your business in Las Vegas, in Monterrey, in Florida, Atlantic City, New York, Miami. We need you.

Mr. TIBERI, Mr. BERKLEY, and to thank her for holding this join with my colleague from Nevada, Ms. BERKLEY. That’s perfect. And thank you all for sharing this hour with me. I’ve learned things from everybody that has participated. I appreciate everything that you have said. Thank you so much.

Ms. BERKLEY. I thank you for the recognition, Mr. Speaker. I want to thank the minority leader for granting us this hour. This was an hour traveled by at least two other Members, Mr. TIBERI and Mr. AUSTRIA, also of Ohio.

We’re going to talk a little bit about what occurred last week and the week before. I know the Speaker will remember that the Capitol was sort of rolled, because I can’t imagine it to be quite quite possible, as well as they should, the shock. Because I can’t figure out how some people in this Chamber and at the other end of Pennsylvania Avenue can be shocked when they approved the language that authorized the bonuses.

Just a little bit of history here, Mr. Speaker. When the economic recovery plan or the stimulus bill was making its way through the United States Congress, there was an amendment offered by two Senators, a Democratic Senator from Oregon, Senator Wyden, and a Republican Senator from Maine, Senator Snowe. That would have put a limitation on bonuses like in the AIG case and in other cases that basically said that if you’re receiving billions of dollars in taxpayer funds to bail you out, perhaps you shouldn’t be giving millions of dollars bonus away in bonuses at the AIG in this case. And the words behind me—they’re only about 50 words on the chart behind me—were inserted.

This language specifically authorized the payment of millions of dollars in bonuses to people at AIG and anywhere else. So anybody who voted—when it came to us back in the House for a vote, this language was included in the bill.

So the reason I said I was shocked at people’s shock is that anybody that voted for the stimulus bill voted to give and authorize and protect the bonuses at AIG and any other company that has taken billion of dollars through the bailout program.

We don’t know—and I know the Speaker will remember last week we were on the floor for about an hour trying to figure out how it did happen. We started with I talked about the fact that there’s a face book. There are 435 Members and they meet in a room and report to the Speaker the progress of this search. I’m pleased to report to you that we have made significant progress. My friends and I are going to stop these bonuses from happening. And the words behind me—they’re only about 50 words on the chart behind me—were inserted.

This language specifically authorized the payment of millions of dollars in bonuses to people at AIG and anywhere else. So anybody who voted—when it came to us back in the House for a vote, this language was included in the bill.

So the reason I said I was shocked at people’s shock is that anybody that voted for the stimulus bill voted to give and authorize and protect the bonuses at AIG and any other company that has taken billion of dollars through the bailout program.

We don’t know—and I know the Speaker will remember last week we were on the floor for about an hour trying to figure out how it did happen. We started with I talked about the fact that there’s a face book. There are 435 Members and they meet in a room and report to the Speaker the progress of this search. I’m pleased to report to you that we have made significant progress. My friends and I are going to stop these bonuses from happening.
Al Franken and Senator Coleman. They are not the culprits in this particular case.

So we got down to a smaller group that we are going to talk about. But then our group expanded because there are a couple of members who make mistakes. Everybody makes a mistake. I probably made three before lunch today. But when you make a mistake, you should say: I made a mistake.

What is not acceptable is to compound the mistake by pretending you didn’t know about it; and then when you are caught, you come up with some goofy piece of legislation like we had on the floor last week to tax people at 90 percent.

And I have got to tell you, that was political theater. It never is going to become law. These people that are so outraged about executive bonuses, they are going to get their bonuses because that bill is not going anywhere. My friend STEVE AUSTRIA is going to talk about that in just a second, but that is never going to become law.

That is because for people who voted for the Economic Recovery Bill, because they found out, sadly, that they had authorized these 50 words that protected the AIG bonuses, and now they are shocked.

Well, sometime between Tuesday when every Member said we are going to get 48 hours, and Friday when we had voted on the bill, people forgot that promise. And on our side, at least, we were given 90 minutes, 90 minutes to read 1,000 pages to determine whether or not we could be supportive of the President to pass an important domestic economic policy position.

I voted “no,” and I don’t have any problem with the fact that I voted “no.” There were some good things in the stimulus bill, there were horrible things in the stimulus bill. But I couldn’t vote for it because I didn’t say to people, yeah, I voted for it, because I didn’t read it. And I don’t think any Member of this Chamber read the bill. If they did, more power to them, but I doubt everybody read the thousand pages.

But what that leads to is an embarrassment, and the embarrassment is everybody that voted for the stimulus bill will get to blame for AIG. And then to cover their tracks, they come up with this, oh, let’s tax at 90 percent.

Which, if you think about it, that is pretty silly, too, because let’s say the guy at AIG got $2 million bonus. Under that bill, that bill still gets to keep one-half million dollars. So if you are so outraged, why don’t you take all of the money away from them? Forget about the Constitutional arguments and the bills of attainder and all that.

It was political theater, and it makes you sad when that happens.

So we are going to spend the remainder of our time this evening attempting to sort of ferret out who was in the room. Because, of course, the Secretary of the Treasury was at the Financial Services Committee today, Mr. Geithner, and the Secretary was asked if he was in the room when this happened and he said he was not.

So we can cross off the Secretary of the Treasury; he was not in the room when this was done.

Last week, during the course of the debate on Ms. KILROY’S resolution saying that the administration was doing everything that they could to stop these bonuses, we asked the chairman of the Financial Services Committee, Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. He said he wasn’t in the room, so he is off the list as well. And the Speaker actually indicated the other day, Speaker PELOSI, that nobody from the House did it, and so we have to look elsewhere, I guess. And we are going to talk a little bit about that.

But first, to sort of set the table on this particular tax bill that was political theater, that was a farce, that was a fig tree to cover people who had made a mistake, I want to yield for a minute to my friend STEVE AUSTRIA from Ohio just to talk about what we think the prognosis is for this tax bill.

Mr. AUSTRIA. I thank the gentleman from Ohio for yielding. I think next to the leader, our senior Member from Ohio. I thank you for yielding.

And it is an important issue.

Being a new Member of Congress, having served less than 100 days in Congress, to be faced with what we are facing right now, the amount of spending, the amount of borrowing, the amount of debt that is accumulating. I didn’t come to Congress—I have three sons at home—just this type of debt on to our children.

But specifically talking about the bailout, talking about AIG and what has happened, one of the first bills that I was asked to vote on was the second half of the TARP, the financial market bailout, $700 billion bailout, something that I felt when I was running for office looking from the outside in was a bad idea, for government to get involved, to not have accountability, not have transparency, and not have a plan; have, as the gentleman from Ohio described, a plan that was brokered behind closed doors by a small group of individuals. As a Member of Congress, I therefore tell you that my views haven’t changed.

On that particular bill, when we voted on that bill I could not find answers on how the $350 billion, the first half of the $700 billion, how that money was spent, could not find as far as any type of specific plan from the Department of the Treasury on how they were going to turn around the financial markets. There was no accountability, and I had a real problem with that with the TARP bill.

Now, as the gentleman from Ohio talked about with the stimulus bill, language that was inserted in a bill, and which Leader BOEHNER stood on this floor and held up 1,100 pages, apparently no one had the opportunity to read before we voted on, to me, that is a terrible reason to be passing a bill. We should have had an opportunity to read that bill and understand what was in it before we voted on it.

But when you have no accountability, when you have no transparency, when you have no specific plan on how you are going to use that money to turn the financial markets around, when you have no opportunity to read the stimulus or spending bill, what that equals is disaster. And that is what we saw last week. We saw outrage. We saw the American people beginning to understand for the first time what was happening here in D.C. when 160-some million dollars of bonuses were paid out to executives and employees, of their hard-earned money, $170 billion of their hard-earned taxpayer money that was used to bail out this company.

I do believe we had some opportunities to do better. In an effort to try to resolve this situation, one of the things that I did was stand up with 14 members of our freshman class and introduce a bill to try to get that money back; doing in a different way, rather than raising taxes at 90 percent, getting 100 percent of that money back, asking the Department of the Treasury to use every resource they had available to get that money back within 2 weeks to ensure that any contracts, that the Department of the Treasury would sign off on those contracts and know what we are using that bailout money for. After all, the government now owns, I believe it is, 80 percent of that company.

Unfortunately, we hadn’t had any hearings on that bill, and it doesn’t appear as though it is going to move. The opposite side decided they were going to come up with a different solution with a 90 percent tax, to try to move that forward.

But what is happening here, and I know many people are getting their quarterly statements, their financial statements, they are beginning to see their accounts, their 401(k) and retirement accounts, their children’s education funds, their savings accounts. They are down significantly. We have had 2 million taxpayers with incomes over $100,000 [that] have lost 40 percent, 50 percent of their money, and they are very concerned as to what is happening with the financial market bailouts. And I think we have an opportunity and we have an obligation to turn things around, to ensure that every dollar of the $700 billion passed this body and is being used to bail out the financial markets, that there is accountability on the how that money is being spent, that there is transparency, so we know exactly what is happening, that there is a plan in place so that we can better understand.

What we are finding out is that some of the dollars that have been spent were bad investments. I am looking at testimony from Elizabeth Warren from the Congressional Oversight Panel to the Senate Banking Committee, that talks about how the Treasury invested about $254 billion in assets that were worth only approximately $176 billion, a shortfall of $78 billion. We can do better than that.

When you talk about the $165 million bonuses that were paid out to these employees—and I am looking at a news article, this is from the New York Post last week. Fully, 70 executives got $1 million or more each, of whom 22 were paid at least $2 million, while seven got $4 million, and one lucky duck pocketed a cool $6.4 million.”

We can do better than that. The American people expect us to do better than that and deserve better than that. But what all this is doing is creating uncertainty in the market when you don’t have a plan and there is no accountability for these dollars.

In years before being a State legislator for 10 years and coming to Congress, I was a small business owner, I was a financial advisor. And one thing I can tell you that is certain is that our financial markets, our businesses, they don’t like uncertainty. And we are seeing big fluctuations in the market right now, we are seeing a lot of downturn in the market right now I think because of that uncertainty.

I think because of public pressure, the American people stepping forward and saying enough is enough and being outraged about this, that we are finally starting to see a plan brought forward that we hope will help resolve some of this problem that has transpired as a result of this legislation.

I will yield back my time to the gentleman from Ohio. I thank you for the opportunity to speak on this, and thank you for bringing this issue forward. It is very important.

Mr. LAFOURETE. I want to thank my friend from Ohio [Mr. AUSTRIA]. Your comments really bring out why that tax piece of legislation that was political, theater, that was a fraud was such a lousy piece of legislation.

If we take the fellow, or it might have been a woman, that you have just identified that got $6.4 million worth of bonuses, the Democratic tax bill that used to be one of the most talked about pieces of legislation that has transpired as a result of this legislation, that person still got to keep $640,000. Why? Why? Why? If they shouldn’t have gotten any money, they shouldn’t have gotten any money. So why do you give them just 10 percent? And I will yield for a moment to that extent, that person still got to keep $640,000. Why? Why? Why? Why? Why? Why? Why? Why?

Mr. LAFOURETE. Mr. Speaker, why do you give them just 10 percent? I think because of public pressure, the American people stepping forward and saying enough is enough and being outraged about this, that we are finally starting to see a plan brought forward and try to solve this mystery. Now, it would be easier if somebody would just come forward and say “I did it.” You know, “I did it. I am Professor Plum; I am Colonel Mustard, and I did it.” But we don’t have anybody that has been forthcoming on Capitol Hill or down at the White House or at the Department of the Treasury, except for Mr. Geithner and Barney Frank and the people that I mentioned were not in the room when this happened.

So with apologies to our friends from Hasbro, we have sort of put this in the form of the game of Clue, which a lot of us, Mr. Speaker, played as we were growing up. There is the roommates. And if you are not familiar with the game of Clue, Mr. Speaker, basically a crime is committed and the junior detectives have to try and solve the crime. And the successful person, the winner, identifies what Mr. TIBERI[']s shoulder. And so we know it was done in writing, and the weapon at the bottom of this chart was a pen. So we are one step closer to knowing where it took place and by whom.

And just to sort of go around with the whoms, we don’t have Colonel Mustard, we don’t have Ms. Scarlet, but what do we have are people who were either conferees or made observations or news accounts that we will get into in a minute indicate were in the room.

Beginning at the bottom on my right is Charles Rangel of New York, who is now the chairman of the Ways and Means Committee; he was a conferee, he signed the conference report.

Next is Rahm Emanuel, who is the President’s Chief of Staff, used to serve with us here in the Congress representing a part of Illinois in the United States Congress.

At the top, the former president of Harvard University, Larry Summers, who is now an economic advisor to President Obama.

At the top Senator Dodd. Now, I have to say Senator Dodd in a lot of early news accounts was blamed for it. I am feeling kind of bad for Senator Dodd, because the last thing I saw him say was that, “Somebody at Treasury said to put it in, and so my staff put it in.” But clearly Senator Dodd is getting fingered for a lot of this. But if he did it, he should say so. If he didn’t do so, he should say, “I didn’t do it.”

In the upper left-hand corner is the Speaker of the House, Ms. Pelosi of California. Again, the news accounts kind of indicate that this took place in her office, but we are not going to get there yet.

Harry Reid, if you read, Mr. Speaker, yesterday’s Roll Call, people have expressed concern as to the fact that he appointed himself as the majority leader in the Senate as a conference, and that he may or may not have ties to AIG, and some questions are being raised.

And, at the bottom is David Obey, the very distinguished chairman of the Appropriations Committee who was also a conference and in the room at least some of the time.

Mr. Speaker, can you shed any light based on what you know or what you have heard that may help us sort of narrow this thing down?

Mr. TIBERI. Thank you for your leadership. I would certainly like to thank you for bringing this matter to light this evening and last week. I know both of you have the same experience that I have shared back in my district. People are dying to know what happened and when? Who was responsible for this? As you said, the Senator from Connecticut has said that somebody from the administration or somebody from Treasury instructed them to put this language in the bill.

I think it is interesting to note the language behind me that you talked about earlier wouldn’t have gotten in the bill if, if we had transparency from the beginning. Something that the new President has talked about, talked about during the campaign, talked about repeatedly during the campaign. In fact, as both of you know, our Speaker of the House talked about transparency before she became Speaker and how this was going to be the most transparent House ever, the people’s House, and the fact is, not only on this legislation, but certainly demonstrates it, but on countless pieces of legislation, there has been anything but transparency. And transparency has led to what this chart is really all about, and that is finding out who knew what when?

People in my district are outraged that this language showed up in this stimulus bill without anybody knowing about it, anybody but apparently the author of the amendment, but most everyone else, allegedly, didn’t know about this important wording that allowed AIG officials to receive millions of dollars in millions of dollars in billions of dollars.

In fact, I don’t know if the gentleman has an answer for this, as I digress a bit, there was a news report today that... over half of the bonuses that were paid to AIG went to non-Americans.

Mr. LaTOURETTE. Taking 1 minute of my time. I have not seen that news report. The news report that I’m familiar with—and if that is true, that is kind of shocking—is that 11 people of the 73 didn’t work for the company anymore. So you have 11 out of 73 who aren’t even at AIG anymore, and so if they are retention bonuses, they didn’t work so well, because they don’t work for AIG anymore.

I yield to the gentleman.

Mr. TIBERI. We are getting more questions on the table than answers. And that is what happens when you don’t have transparency. That is what happens when backroom deals are cut, backroom deals on this stimulus bill that was done back in February.

In fact, Mr. LaTOURETTE, I will quote from a Los Angeles Times article back in February that in the first major piece ever pushed by the President, transparency was missing. In fact, the President has no constitutional authority to set rules for Congress. But he suggested he would use his influence to see that Congress doesn’t conduct its work “in the dead of night and behind closed doors,” which is exactly what happened in this process.

The Times article goes on to say, Mr. Speaker, maybe we can add a picture here to your graph, important negotiating sessions devoted to the stimulus bill that took place in a congressional office outside public view. Representative HENRY A. WAXMAN (D) Beverly Hills said he was in the meeting about the stimulus plan Tuesday night in the office of House Speaker NANCY PELOSI (D) San Francisco. Among the participants was White House Chief of Staff Rahm Emanuel.

So, one person who says he was in the meeting in negotiations was the chairman of the Energy and Commerce Committee. But still, my question back to you would be, do you have to be in the meeting to instruct conferees in the dead of night in one of these offices to put something in this bill? Because you could still have the Treasury Secretary instruct everybody else that this is an important measure by telephone, couldn’t you?

Mr. LaTOURETTE. Well, you could. And taking back my time, I will tell you that I have had telephoned to me by this gentleman is making our task much more difficult if you continue to widen the net and now we have to deal with Mr. WAXMAN and others. But sure, conceivably.

I would just say that today—I don’t think it was under oath, but you’re not supposed to lie to Congress—the Treasury Secretary did indicate that he only found out about it on March 10, which is pretty amazing, and that he understands that staff did it, but he really doesn’t know a lot about it, and he knows he didn’t do it. So, yeah, it could have been somebody outside the room.

Mr. TIBERI. If the gentleman will yield, certainly I think as we continue forward having a special investigation, an Inspector General report trying to get to the bottom of this, if someone doesn’t come forward and say, yes, this is the language that I wanted, and this is the reason number of people that were paid were paid retention bonuses, and by the way, we weren’t able to retain them, and by the way, half the bonuses were paid to non-Americans, which is outrageous in the first place.

Mr. LaTOURETTE. Taking back my time, I thank the gentleman for that.

And I hope we don’t need to have an investigation. I would hope that whoever screwed up would come forward and say, do you know what? I did it. And then tell us why he or she did it rather than hiding behind the skirts of staff and hiding behind this bogus tax bill that we did last week. I would really hope somebody would come forward and do it.

But the other thing I would tell my friend is we don’t need to wait for an investigation. Tomorrow in the House Financial Services Committee chaired by the aforementioned Congressman Frank, I believe a member of this chart, we have filed something known as a “resolution of inquiry.” And the resolution of inquiry requests the Treasury Department to provide to the Congress, not to me, not to the Republicans, but to the Democrats, that they have in their possession that will help us identify—if the person won’t come forward and say, “I did it,” then this resolution of inquiry would direct them to give us the documents so we can figure it out and not add expense on top of the taxpayer in trying to ferret out who did this thing.

Again, I wish somebody, as I said last week, would just man up and say they did it.

Mr. TIBERI. Would the gentleman yield? And you’re being far too modest because the resolution does much more than that. And in fact, in reading a poll today, over half of the American people believe that AIG should be broken up. And part of your resolution does just that, that you want to expand upon that.

Mr. LaTOURETTE. Well, that’s exactly right. The resolution not only asks for documents, but it indicates that the American public now own, as Mr. Waxman said, over 80 percent of AIG. And quite frankly, I will say something bad about the Republican administration. I thought President Bush and his Secretary of the Treasury were wrong in asking for this $700 billion. The mantra was that these institutions are too big to fail. Well, most of the Americans now recognize that they are too big to fail. And as a result, they should be broken into pieces, going back to Teddy Roosevelt and the trustbusters. Let’s break these things apart.

So we do have legislation to divide this thing up. And I hope that it is favorably considered. And as you mentioned, about 60 percent of the American public think that is a good idea.

Mr. TIBERI. I know that you’re pushing that legislation. You have many cosponsors. But some think we are too busy to deal with that important legislation. I think you have a chart that demonstrates maybe we are not.

Mr. LaTOURETTE. We are not. And I do want to—well, let’s do that now, and then we will come back to seeing if we can move along in the game of Clue.

And maybe if the gentleman will help me.

Mr. TIBERI. The gentleman from Ohio has a chart that just shows an amazing.

Mr. LaTOURETTE. And you could sort of be my Carol Marol. I would appreciate that.

Last year we used the chart that Mr. TIBERI is going to give me a hand with.

Mr. TIBERI. The gentleman from Ohio has a chart that just shows an amazing.

Mr. LaTOURETTE. And you could sort of be my Carol Marol. I would appreciate that.

As, Mr. Speaker, you will remember, the Republicans did such a bang-up job in the majority that they threw us out in the 2006 elections and installed the Democratic majority. And we are honored to have Speaker PELOSI being the first woman to serve in that position since the beginning of the country. So when Ms. PELOSI and her colleagues became the majority party, gas was about $2.22, and the most important piece of legislation that folks thought we could discuss here on the floor was commuting the California-Santa Barbara soccer team for winning something. Now I like soccer. And I’m sure that everybody’s parents of that team are proud. And gas was only $2.22. So, okay, let’s congratulate people.

Then gas went up to $3.84, and the most important thing that we had to do on the floor that day was to declare it—that was about September 6—declare it National Passport Month. And I bet you guys got calls from people saying, Hey, it’s really costing a lot of money to fill up my tank. Well, gas went up to $3.03, and on that day, the new majority determined that the most important thing we could do was cong...
Then gas went to $3.77. And so clearly, we are going to talk about gas prices now, right? No. We declared it National Train Day was what we did then. And then gas goes up a little more to $3.84. And what did we do that day? We passed the Great Cats and Rare Canids Act. And I didn’t know—talk about reading things, I know what a cat is. I didn’t know what a canid is. It is a dog. And so we celebrated Dog and Cat Day when gas is $3.84. It goes up to $4.00, and the most important thing to do is to declare the International Year of Sanitation. That’s what we did around here. Then the price of gas goes up to $4.14. My phones are ringing off the hook. So clearly, we are going to talk about gas prices then. No, we passed the Monkey Safety Act here in the United States Congress. So you would think that maybe people would be chastened by that when we are no longer talking about gas prices. And sadly I hope we don’t do the way that we did in the 1970s. Now that gas is down to $1.89, I hope we don’t forget about when it was $4 a gallon and make those serious investments in renewables and get us off of carbon-based fuel and make us not dependent on countries around the world that don’t like us.

Well, this year, as everybody knows that isn’t living under a rock, we have a little bit of an economic crisis going on. And you would think that we would attempt to deal with that in a constructive way. On January 6 of this year, which was the first day of the 111th Congress, that is the opening day of this Congress, the stock market, the Dow Jones industrial, was at 7,936 points.

We get to January 20, and that is the day, of course, our new President, Barack Obama, became the 44th President of the United States. It was a very exciting day. All of us were pretty happy about it, the stock market took a little dip. Now that is not President Obama’s fault, because he was just getting sworn in that day. But the Congress, however, had a responsibility because we had already been in almost 1 month now by the time you get to February 2. The stock market goes down to 7,936, and the most important thing we can do on the House floor is to pass a resolution supporting the Goals and Ideals of National Teen Dating. That is a pretty important issue back in Ohio. I’m glad we took care of it.

The stock market dips a little bit further, and on that day, I guess because it didn’t go down quite 100 points, and so we commended Sam Bradford for winning the Heisman trophy. Now, I’m sure that Mr. Bradford’s family is proud of him. I’m proud of him. And anybody that wins the Heisman trophy is deserving of our congratulations. But when the stock market dips, and people are losing their 401(k)s, I don’t know if that is the most important thing, but now it takes a precipitous dip down to 7,114, and, oh, son of a gun, 2 years in a row, we passed the Monkey Safety Act. And I don’t want to make light of it this time because there was a horrible situation in Connecticut where a woman was attacked by a chimpanzee and suffered horrible injuries. And so clearly, we have a responsibility to do something about it, and that is a terrible event. However, when the stock market is down to 7,114 and people have lost their life savings, clearly, the Monkey Safety Act was not the thing that was foremost on the minds of Congress.

Actually, the interesting thing to show you how busy we were on that date of February 23, and it had only been 8 days before that the chimpanzee attacked the woman, and so we, as the greatest legislative body in the world, rushed in 8 days to pass the Monkey Safety Act. Then it went down a little bit further, and we, you know, like the soccer moms, we like animals, and so we passed the Shark Conservation Act on that particular day, not dealing with the economic crisis.

Then we sort of roll out to March 9. And this probably was my favorite resolution. We supported pi. And when I read the schedule that morning, I like pie, just look at me. And I thought what kind of ‘pie’ is it going to be? Well, it is not p-i-e, it is p-i, which you know, Mr. Speaker, is 3.1416. And apparently we felt that when the stock market had lost 3,000 points in value in 2 months, rather than helping our constituents deal with that, using the full might of the United States Congress to get to the bottom of that, we recognized pi here in the United States Congress.

So I don’t think—and this has been sort of tongue in cheek, but I don’t think we are too busy.

Mr. AUSTRIA. And I appreciate you pointing this out, because while all this is happening, the three of us represent the State of Ohio, there are real constituents dealing with that, and using the full might of the United States Congress to get to the bottom of that, we recognized pi here in the United States Congress.

There are over 900,000 businesses in the State of Ohio, and small businesses that make up 70 percent of our workforce out there across this country that are struggling to make payroll, they can’t get financing. They can’t get their payments. Our constituents deal with that problem, you mean, you laid out what has been happening here in Congress. But in addition to that, we passed the $700 billion TARP bailout with no accountability, in my opinion, not enough transparency. There was no specific plan by the Department of the Treasury. Then we passed the stimulus bill which contains the language that allows the bonuses to be paid out that you pointed out earlier; not an opportunity for any Member of this Congress to read that bill before we vote on it and pass it.

And then, you know, our constituents back home, hardworking Americans across this country are getting their quarterly statements and they are seeing their account values down. They are struggling to make it right now. And they turn on the television and they see that these executives at AIG are getting $100 million of bonuses of the $170 billion bailout that we gave to them of hard working taxpayers’ dollar. These are the same officials that you know, and were probably involved in a lot of these risky investments that brought AIG down to begin with.

And so what does the House do? We then rush a bill through to try to regain some of that money for our mistakes by trying to pass a 90 percent tax on this money to try to get it back, 90 percent of it back.

And I am reading from The Hill today, seeing where the headline on the front page here is ‘House Bonus Bill Is Putting the Fun in Finance’. I don’t think we really in the public outcry, despite the reaction that the House had in trying to get that money back, which I don’t think we ever should have been in that position to begin with, that bill appears to be not moving in the Senate right now. I yield back.

Mr. LATOURETTE. I thank the gentleman for his observations. And if the gentleman would go to the jump on Page 8, you will find a quote from the President of the United States, President Obama that I think sort of echoes at least my sentiments. And he said we shouldn’t use the tax code to punish people and that is why he is not in favor of this bill, which is why that bill was a piece of political theater to give cover to people who are embarrassed because, by voting “aye” on the economic recovery package, they specifically authorized, with the amendment that Mr. Tiberi—that specifically authorized this paragraph, these 50 words. And when you voted for the economic recovery bill, you voted to give the people at AIG and everywhere else the bonuses. And then, you know, because nobody read it, we are shocked. And so now we are going to use the Tax Code to punish people.

But you know, the President has said this is wrong, and apparently the Senate majority leader has said it is wrong.

Before we go back to our exercise in Clue, however, as we want to narrow this thing down if we can, because we are going to come back every week until somebody has the—I promised my wife I would be really watchful this evening and not use words that people find offensive. So somebody has the chance to stand up and prove it. And this is why I did it and sort of, you know, be a grown up about it.

But you were here, you have been here now to four or five terms, Mr. Tiberi, and I am going to yield to you. I mean, is it your experience as a Member that we are just so busy that we don’t have time to deal with gas prices?
Mr. TIBERI. I think the gentleman is right on target here. And as stocks tank, let me tell you, it impacts everybody. It impacts those police officers that protect our streets, firefighters, who are working in a courageous line of work, teachers in Ohio, as you know, who are working at a time when their college funds absolutely go into the ground, this is important. It impacts every single family out there as this market has tanked. And what are we doing? We are debating the Shark Conservation Act. In fact, the last several weeks, to your point, we have debated noncontroversial issues that have passed nearly unanimously, and not taken up the hard stuff like your resolution that could come to the floor.

In short, I want to add one thing. Today the leader, John Boehner, put together a working group with respect to savings, and I was part of that group. And we unveiled a blueprint that will help American families and American savers, and fortunately based upon past history, that piece of legislation will not see the light of day. And it is not like we are spending a lot of time around here passing substantive pieces of legislation. And when we get to reporting it.

And what else was in that stimulus bill that was as controversial as this? We don’t know. That may be another exercise for us to find out what other controversial measures, in addition to the game of Clue, I think we know it was the Speaker’s Office, based on press reports, but maybe it was the Senate leader’s office. Maybe it was on the other side of the Capitol.

Mr. LATOURETTE. Taking back my time. We had better get back to the AIG stuff before I do, the gentleman’s point is right on the money. In the last 2½ years, the American public can rest assured that they will not go into a post office in this country that doesn’t have a name on it because we spend a lot of our time naming Post Offices, but what they can’t rest assured is who put those 50 words in the economic recovery bill that authorized the payments of bonuses to these AIG officials, and now they are horrified, shocked and everybody else is just saying.

And just before we leave this, so that the three of us don’t get a lot of e-mails and hate mail from animal lovers, all three of us want sharks to be conserved, and all three of us think that we should have safe monkeys in this country. But we don’t, none of us think that it is the most important issue facing the country last year or this year.

Now back to the Clue, and I think that Mr. TIBERI makes a pretty good point because we do have—when you play Clue you try to collect clues. And there have been some clues recently. And I want to refer to one. On Anderson Cooper, a show on CNN, Dana Bash, who some of us see as a reporter that covers politics here in Washington, I have a transcript of her reporting on the night that this happened, that the crime happened. And I will submit it for the record:

And Dana Bash says, “well, Anderson, as we speak, the White House Chief of Staff, Mr. Emanuel, and the President’s Budget Director are inside Nancy Pelosi’s office.”

Mr. TIBERI. Not to interrupt, but should we add the Budget Director to the chart?

Mr. LATOURETTE. Well next time we come back we are going to put the Budget Director because he is up there too. And then she goes on to report, and in fact, they have been coming up on 8 hours straight. Eight hours straight shuttling between the House Speaker’s Office, and that is why we can’t get our speaker’s office yet because of this reporting. But maybe we will get there a little bit later. Shuttling between the Speaker’s office and the Senate majority leader, Harry Reid’s office urgently trying, attempting to broker a compromise between Senate Democrats. And you know what is interesting about that sentence is I didn’t hear the word Republican in there. So this was Democrats negotiating with Democrats. And now we know that we had the President’s Budget Director was here for 8 hours shutting back and forth, a little shuttle diplomacy, together with the President’s Chief of Staff, Mr. Emanuel, who was also there. So I think we are getting closer.

And if it is all right with you gentlemen, I would like to exclude Mr. Obey because I don’t think his fingerprints are on this. And Mr. RANGEL, I do have an observation from Mr. RANGEL, who indicated this: “Mr. RANGEL in this same report, and actually this was in the Congressional Quarterly, House and Senate Democratic negotiators met in the Speaker’s Office—and we are really getting close to the Speaker’s Office here. Madam Speaker—with the White House Chief of Staff, Emanuel and White House Budget Director Peter Orzag into the evening Tuesday, breaking at 9 p.m. and then Chairman RANGEL is quoted in this reporting, “it is so difficult to talk with a body that is controlled by three people. You have no idea.”

So I think that the distinguished chairman of the Ways and Means Committee is expressing frustration that three people, basically, figured out how to spend $792 billion in an economic recovery package and okayed these 50 words that authorized the payment of bonuses to AIG and other people similarly situated. So I think we are getting a little closer. But Mr. TIBERI, I think what he is saying is three Members of the Senate. We have two Members of the Senate on the Clue board, so I keep, you know, I keep wanting to take names off, but maybe we should add another picture there. We have got to figure out who the other Senator was that he is speaking about.

I do think we can take off the chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, Mr. RANGEL, I feel pretty confident he wasn’t the one. I think we can take the chairman of the Appropriations Committee off. But I am thinking we need to add a couple to the chart.

Mr. LATOURETTE. Well, I do too. And let me just get to that for a second. And there was another article that appeared on March 19, and the headline is that the “White House Staff Botched It!”, and this was, appeared in something called the Huffington Post, which is clearly not a conservative Republican organization. But I would submit this for the RECORD as well. It quotes an AIG executive, well, the article says according to AIG, the payments were okayed by the White House last Thursday. Why? Because it appears that David Axelrod, now we have got to add somebody else, senior policy advisor to the Obama administration and Rahm Emanuel grossly underestimating this whole inflationary impact.

The quote from the AIG executive is this: “We were not authorized until Thursday night,” that is, to give out these millions of dollars in bonuses. “We were negotiating with the Treasury and the Federal Reserve. Treasury indicated that they needed it cleared by The White House as well. We hit the go for the payments on Friday,” after they got the clearance from the White House.

Mr. TIBERI. I think again it is important to note, interrupting, and I apologize for interrupting, what Mr. AUSTRIA said earlier in which Americans are beginning to find out and are very troubled with, is that the American people own 80 percent of AIG. So somebody had to approve it with the Federal Government, and maybe that is the smoking gun.

Mr. LATOURETTE. Maybe. Well, the smoking pen. We have got the pen.

Mr. AUSTRIA. Point of clarification. I assume the pen has been eliminated, right?

Mr. LATOURETTE. We know it is the pen.

Mr. AUSTRIA. Well, somebody had to put that in there and write it in there. Somebody had to use the pen.

But no, I appreciate the point that the gentleman from Columbus made. Is or Columbus correct?

Mr. LATOURETTE. New Albany, I think.

Mr. AUSTRIA. I wanted to make sure I got that right for Central Ohio. But I think that is a very important point.

When the government owns 80 percent of a company and not knowing what is going on and we can’t get an answer as to who put this language in. I mean, I appreciate the gentleman from Ohio with this game of Clue because I think that it is as good as any
The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman has 10 minutes remaining. Mr. LATOURETTE. I thank the Speaker. Mr. TIBERI. Will the gentleman yield? Mr. LATOURETTE. I'm happy to yield. Mr. TIBERI. Clearly, to your point in this exercise, most would point the finger at the Senator from Connecticut—Mr. LATOURETTE. Mr. TIBERI.—which probably means he didn't do it, which probably means it's somebody else, because he is the most obvious choice having played the game.

Mr. LATOURETTE. Well, taking back my time, I am a big fan of Agatha Christie's, and as you read through those books, you're sure it's the butler or somebody else, and it's never the butler. So, you know, I don't think we can exclude the Senator, but I'm with you. I think, you know, when everybody is shooting at the Senator from Connecticut, it's probably somebody else.

Mr. TIBERI. Well, yielding back to me again—and I appreciate that—I think what we found in his comments last week in that impromptu press conference is that, one day, he said he didn't know anything about it, and the next day, he said, "Well, yes, I did do it, but I did it to sort of[''t]hrow somebody in the administration." Obvi-oulsy, he doesn't want to throw somebody under the bus, but he has already been thrown under the bus, so I would hope that we could end this rather quickly with: Who is it?

Mr. LATOURETTE. Right.

In just taking back my time, what troubles me about this is, the last time I checked, the Constitution does not permit anybody in the administration to write a law. So somebody could have suggested it at Treasury, said the President wants it, the Secretary wants it, whatever the facts are, but the fact of the matter is that nobody at Treasury can write legislation. That is the job of the Democratic Senate and of the United States Congress.

Mr. TIBERI. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. LATOURETTE. Oh, I'm happy to, but it was your point. I would like to submit this for the RECORD as well. It's a Los Angeles Times article from February.

[From the Los Angeles Times, Feb. 14, 2009] PRIVATE TALKS FOR PUBLIC STIMULUS; OBAMA HAS SAID HE WANTS CONGRESS TO WORK IN THE OPEN. BUT HE ISN'T TROUBLED BY THE NEAR CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — HOUSE

WASHINGTON.—Upending Washington's entrenched ways of doing business is proving tougher than President Obama may have as-sumed.

The nearly $800-billion stimulus bill served as a test case. During the campaign, Obama released a po-osition paper stating his commitment to open government. As president, he said, he would vigorously pursue that goal. In his own administration, he would press Congress to revamp its practices as well.

Obama has no constitutional authority to set rules for Congress, but he suggested he would use his influence to see to it that Congress doesn't conduct its work "in the dead of night and behind closed doors." In the first major piece of legislation pushed by Obama, transparency was missing. The backroom negotiation session devoted to the stimulus took place in congressional of- fices, outside public view. Rep. Henry A. Wax- man (D–Beverly Hills) said he was in a meet-ing the night the stimulus bill was drafted in the office of House Speaker Nancy Pelosi (D–San Francisco). Among the participants was White House Chief of Staff Rahm Emanuel, who "told us he'd do some hard bargaining," Waxman said.

The abundance of private deliberations made for some comic moments. Rep. Dave Camp (R–Mich.) was walking through the Capitol on Wednesday in his way to a public meeting in which Senators and House members were supposed to hash out differences over the stimulus. As he passed the Rotunda, Camp spotted Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid (D–Nev.) holding a conference committee session and caw the President made that commitment repeatedly in his campaign," he said.

Obama aides say that the president is still committed to transparency in government. He reiterated the pledge during the transi-tion, posting a promise on his website to "re-store the American people's trust in their government by making government more open and transparent," and cited closed conference committee sessions as a practice ripe for overhaul.

But the White House isn't apologizing for how the stimulus bill was handled. Given the dismal economic climate, White House aides said, the country needed a stimulus bill—fast.

Press Secretary Robert Gibbs, asked about the negative negotiations, said that Obama wasn't troubled. "He's pleased with the process and the product that has come out," Gibbs said while being pressed by reporters Friday night. " I can say the process is done, the American people will be proud of the product that we believe and we hope will begin to stimulate the economy," Gibbs said. "Democratic leaders continue to hand-LED according to procedures and customs that have been in place for years, including when Republicans controlled Congress.

Waxman said Congress' treatment of the bill was fairly standard. Could Congress have demanded that all negotiations play out in public? Waxman said that would have been impractical. "There are too many moving parts in this bill," Waxman said. "We would be sitting in an open conference committee for weeks, if not a whole month, to process all the amendments that would have been off- ered."

Again to your point, this says the President has no constitutional au-thority to set rules for Congress, "but he suggested he would use his influence to see to it that Congress doesn't conduct its work 'in the dead of night and behind closed doors,'" when in fact, in this particular exercise, as we know, the Senate from Connecticut has indi-cated, these words came from the ad-ministration and were put into the stimulus bill in the dead of night. We still don’t know who in the administration. We don’t know everybody who was in the room from the administration, so the administration can claim they have nothing to do with Congress. Based upon the documents still in the dead of night, with no transparency, no Republicans, no press, no C-SPAN, with nobody witnessing what was being done. The product you have at the end of the process are these 50 words that nobody in America is taking credit for. Your resolution tomorrow will begin to get to the bottom of this, unfortunately, if someone does not come forward.

Mr. LATOURETTE. Well, taking back my time, I do hope that in the markings of inquiry for tomorrow that we do see transparency and bipartisanship. Both Republicans and Democrats on that committee want to answer the question as much as, I’m sure, Senator Dodd wants to answer the question. I think you’ve made some very good points tonight, and I appreciate the opportunity to participate with both gentlemen from Ohio.

Mr. LATOURETTE. Well, listen. I thank you.

Mr. TIBERI. Would you like to close? Mr. TIBERI. Let me just, again, thank you for your leadership on this. I would hope that we don’t have to come back next week and add pictures and subtract rooms, but I am willing to do that if nothing occurs tomorrow. I certainly would not want to be in the majority—a Democrat in a competitive district—having to defend a “no” vote on your resolution tomorrow and a “yes” vote on a bill that allowed three, 47 words to go forward and millions and millions of dollars to citizens and non-citizens of a failing company that should go into bankruptcy or should be split up into several different companies. This is an outrage. Americans are outraged. We will get to the bottom of this, and at the end of the day, I predict that we will find out who was responsible for that pen.

Mr. LATOURETTE. Well, I thank both gentlemen for participating.

Madam Speaker, I thank you for your courtesy.

To reinforce Mr. Tiberi’s point, I think Senator Dodd has a vested interest in helping us with this because, currently, it looks like “Senator Dodd in the conference room with a pen.” Now, I don’t think that that is true, so I hope that whoever did this will tell us about it.

Dana, what is happening?

Dana Bash, CNN Senior Congressional Correspondent: So we speak, the White House chief of staff and the president’s budget director are inside House Speaker Nancy Pelosi’s office.

And, in fact, they have been here coming up on eight hours straight—eight hours straight—shuttling between the House speaker’s office and Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid’s office, trying to urgently broker a compromise between House Democrats and Senate Democrats in order to get the president’s stimulus package to—to his desk by the end of the day.

And I just spoke to a Democratic source who says that, in these talks, they are narrowing their differences.

Bash (voice-over): House Democrats are not happy that Senate Democrats cut some $100 billion in spending from their stimulus package, tens of billions slashed from Democratic priorities, like education.

But House Speaker Nancy Pelosi is now signaling, they will likely have to live with it.

Rep. Nancy Pelosi (D–CA), Speaker of the House: As President Obama cautioned the nation, that we cannot allow the perfect to be the enemy of the necessary. And we will not.

CQ—

Late into the evening, House and Senate Democratic negotiators met in the Speaker’s office with White House Chief of Staff Rahm Emanuel and White House budget chief Jack Lew late into the night, breaking at 9 p.m., working intensely to firm up an overall cap for the package and sort through differences.

“Let’s talk to a body that is controlled by three people. You have no idea.” Ways and Means Committee Chairman Charles B. Rangel, D–NY, said as he left the meeting, noting that the health and spending portion of the bill were proving most difficult to reconcile.

“There’s no obstacle that’s come up that we cannot resolve with a combination of pain,” he said.

As Senate Finance Committee Chairman Max Baucus, D–Mont., left the meeting, he said that $800 billion was the “ballpark” limit for the conference report, and that the final figure might come in a little lower than that. Baucus said that getting a deal by the end of the week, understanding the goal understood by everyone involved.

WASHINGTON STAFF BOTTCHED IT Folks, Geithner, Bernanke, and the Bush Treasury Department knew about the AIG bonuses for months. According to AIG, the payments were OK’d by the White House last Thursday. Why? Because White House Chief of Staff David Axelrod and Rahm Emanuel grossly underestimated how infuriating this would be.

“We weren’t authorized until Thursday night,” the AIG executive said. “We were negotiating with the Treasury and the Federal Reserve. Treasury indicated that they needed more information from the White House, so we hit the go button for the payments on Friday.”

For the new administration, the bonuses were a distraction from what senior aides called the main focus: getting the economy working and people back to work. “People are not sitting around their kitchen tables thinking about AIG,” Axelrod said. “They are thinking about their own jobs.”

Bad decision Dave.

Their message to the president when the group assembled for their first extended conversation about AIG in the Roosevelt Room on Sunday was not optimistic: They told him they had “done and will do what we legally can,” Axelrod said.

But Obama made clear at that meeting that he was unwilling to throw up his hands. He instructed Geithner and his aides to seek legal ways that the government might recover the bonuses. And he made plans to tell the public what he thought the next day. That decision ran counter to the belief among some in his inner circle that the bonus issue while an outrage was a small problem compared with the economic issues confronting his young and most important job we have to get this economy moving again,” Axelrod said.

“As galling as this is, it doesn’t go to the main issue.”

What you see is a fine example of poor decision making clouded by being inside the White House bubble. After spending two years out on the campaign trail ensuring that your message and actions mesh with what people are thinking, Axelrod is now inside the bubble and cannot see that the optics of this fiasco do matter to people, because he assumes naively that people will look beyond it due to an overriding fear of their own situations. He also assumes his boss can talk his way out of anything, when in fact Obama has surrounded himself with two tone deaf lops in Geithner and Summers.
Dodd’s Wife a Former Director of Bermuda-Based IPC Holdings, an AIG Controlled Company

(By Kevin Rennie)

No wonder Senator Christopher Dodd (D–Conn.) went over budget last week when he addressed the February amendment ratifying hundreds of millions of dollars in bonuses to executives at insurance giant AIG. Dodd has been one of the company’s favorite recipients of campaign contributions. But it turns out that Senator Dodd’s wife has also benefited from past connections to AIG as well.

Jackie Clegg Dodd served as an “outside” director of IPC Holdings, Ltd., a Bermuda-based company controlled by AIG, IPC, which provides property casualty insurance coverage, was formed in 1993 and currently has a market cap of $1.4 billion and trades on the NASDAQ under the ticker symbol IPCR. In 2001, in addition to a public offering 15 million shares of stock that raised $380 million, IPC raised more than $109 million through a simultaneous private placement sale of 5.6 million shares of stock to AIG—giving AIG a 20 percent stake in IPC. (AIG sold its stock in 2003.)

Clegg was compensated for her duties to the company, which was managed by a subsidiary of AIG. According to a proxy statement, Clegg received $122,000 per year and an additional $1,000 for each Directors’ and committee meeting she attended. Clegg served on both board committees during her final year on the board.

IPC paid millions each year to other AIG-related companies for administrative and other services, which Clegg was a diligent director. In 2003, the proxy statement report, she attended more than 75 percent of board and committee meetings. This while she served as the founder of Clegg International Consultants, LLC, which she created in 2001, the year she joined the board of IPC. (See Dodd’s public financial disclosure reports with the Senate from 2001–2004 here.)

Dodd is likely more familiar with the complicated workings of AIG than he was letting on last week. This week may provide him with another opportunity to refresh his recollections.

The President’s Challenge to Congress

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mrs. DAHLKEMPER). Under the Speaker’s announced policy of January 6, 2009, the gentleman from Oregon (Ms. BLUMENAUER) is recognized for 60 minutes.

Mr. BLUMENAUER. Thank you, Madam Speaker. I appreciate the opportunity to address the House this evening because tomorrow is going to be a great day as we move forward with a markup in the Budget Committee to deal with priorities that are going to be facing this Congress.

Before I begin my presentation, I would like to recognize the gentlewoman from Houston, Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE), if I could yield to her for a 3-minute presentation. I know she has some information that she would like to share with the House, and I would recognize her at this time.

Dr. Dorothy Height’s 97th Birthday

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Allow me to thank the distinguished gentleman from Oregon and to emphasize the point that he just made of the importance of the budget markup and also of the very important issues that he comes to the floor to discuss this evening.

There is another important event that occurred today, and that was the 97th birthday of Dr. Dorothy Height. I don’t think I have to remind my colleagues here how prominent Dr. Height is today and how important she has been over the years. She is now the chairman and president of the National Council of Negro Women, but she was the only woman present at the 1963 March on Washington. She has previously been an icon, working with Presidents as far back as Franklin Delano Roosevelt. A civil rights leader she is, but an empowerment of women is her calling. She has led the National Council of Negro Women now for decades.

Today, at that very building—really, at the only building owned by African Americans on Pennsylvania Avenue, women gathered from around the Nation to celebrate Dr. Height’s birthday.

Dr. Height was a pillar in the civil rights movement, standing alongside A. Philip Randolph and Martin Luther King and numbers of others. She has also been someone to encourage women to participate in governmental process, to be educated, to stand strong. She is a spokesperson for the empowered, and of course, she is a mentor to so many of us. She is a friend of the Congressional Black Caucus of the NASPC and of the National Urban League. When there is an issue of concern, you have the need to call Dr. Height. She is also a recipient of the Congressional Gold Medal along with many, many other awards.

I am privileged today to be able to stand on the floor of the House to recognize an American icon, a patriot, a woman of valor and courage.

Madam Speaker, it is again my great pleasure to salute Dr. Dorothy Height, a happy, happy birthday, now some 97 years old. I want to thank my friend and colleague for allowing us to share this with all of our colleagues and to celebrate, again, a life that has been worth living and is still worth living—a champion of the people.

Dr. Dorothy Height, happy birthday. I yield back to the gentleman.

Mr. BLUMENAUER. Thank you. I appreciate the gentlelady making that presentation.

Madam Speaker, the President of the United States has issued a challenge to this Congress and to the American people that is embodied in the budget that he outlined before us when he addressed this Chamber in his first joint session of Congress and has followed up with his budget submission. He has given a challenge to us to deal with the great interrelated problems of the day.

He has suggested that we move forward to deal with health care in terms of fundamental reform to all American’s access to care and energy instability and global warming, to deal with the incredible budget deficit that he has inherited to try and stabilize the fiscal situation of the country, and to deal with investing in education in the future.

What I would like to do this evening is address the element of the budget that speaks to climate change, global warming, energy independence, and in ways that is going to be tough, but we have got to move forward on this issue.

It has been interesting listening to our Republican friends who have been told by Mr. BOEHNER, the Republican leader, that they are not to be legislators, that they are to be communicators, evidently deciding that dealing with the messiness of government with energy, with the budget, with the nuts and bolts that the American people sent us here to address might be a little too risky. So, instead, they’re talking about communicating some of their concerns.

We have heard the mantra about the President’s budget—taxing too much, spending too much and borrowing too much. We have not heard constructive alternatives, and they certainly have not acknowledged that the policies of the Republican majority and the Republican President, when they were in charge for the last 8 years with the Bush administration and in charge for a dozen years in the House of Representatives, actually created these problems.

Spend too much? These are people who understand spending. They produced record budget increases, increasing spending faster than Bill Clinton, faster even than one of the favorite whipping boys they have—the Great Society of Lyndon Johnson.

Borrow too much? Well, these are people who, when President Bush took office, were faced with the daunting prospect of a $5 trillion budget surplus. That was the official estimate. Remember, there were smart people complaining with what would happen if we paid off the national debt. What would be the instruments for insurance and pensions and other commercial transactions? Well, they solved that problem by turning a $5 trillion surplus, with a pattern of reckless spending and ill-considered tax cuts, to a record deficit. It was a $5 trillion surplus, and they added $5 trillion to the national debt. They have given President Obama a record $1.8 trillion deficit that he is struggling with now.

They know about spending too much. They know about borrowing too much because much of this was money borrowed from the Chinese, the Japanese and the Europeans. Under their watch, the current accounts and the balance of all of the goods and services and trade in and out of the United States increased from 3.6 percent to over 5 percent, a 40 percent increase—rather sobering—and it is contributing to the instability that we face.

Well, these people are, hopefully, going to converge communicating long enough tomorrow to maybe roll up their sleeves and help us deal with very specific opportunities as part of the President’s challenge dealing with climate change, carbon pollution and the opportunity for energy independence.

This is critical for the same reasons that the Republican talking points are circulated because the situation today—with our carbon pollution, energy instability, climate change—is a tax on the future.

Last year, we whipped some $700 billion overseas to pay for imported oil, a sum that was taken away from our economy, much of it borrowed money. It is, in the future, it is a recipe for disaster as we move forward. They know that as we are in a situation today where we’re talking about disasters that are consequences of this climate instability—we have seen a dramatic increase in weather-related events in terms of drought just in terms of natural disaster. We saw last year $200 billion of costs associated with natural disasters, much of which is related to this climate instability, unpredictable weather events, and 220,000 lives were lost. And, going forward, we know we are facing greater and greater challenges.

The budget that has been advanced by the President that we will be discussing has the opportunity for us to carve out some room for some area that deals with—whether it’s cap and trade, a carbon tax, or some mechanism so that it is no longer free for people to pollute the atmosphere with carbon. We know that it is not free in terms of environmental consequence. We know that it is not free in terms of weather instability, in terms of drought, the permafrost in Alaska that is no longer perma, roads that are buckling, seaside villages that are washed away, and we watch as sea levels continue to increase in the United States placing millions of Americans at risk who live immediately adjacent to our coastlines and people around the world who are going to be susceptible to storm surges. We’re looking at a situation now where these challenges are going to bear directly on the quality of life of Americans and our economic stability.

It is clear that over the last 20 years, these concentrations of gases that trap heat in the atmosphere, raising the temperature of the planet, the case now is settled. The consensus of the environmental community is that we have—global warming is a reality and we have consequences that we must deal with.

It is important that we have an opportunity in this Congress to exercise our responsibility to do something about the costs and consequences of climate change. We are feeling them today, and they are going to be even more devastating on people in the future.

Lake Mead is less than half the level that it has been in recent years, putting tremendous stress on water supplies in the southwest. The City of Las Vegas, for instance, is looking at rather elaborate and expensive alternatives to try and maintain their lifestyle in the middle of the desert.

We’re watching increased forest fires year after year. These costs are increasing exponentially placing large areas, not just in the southwest, but the flame zone is stretching across the country.

There is increased damage from forest pests that are moving into new habitats as a result of the climate change.

And then there are the costs that we bear to national security. As we look at conflicts that relate to water and drought in sub-Saharan Africa, in the Middle East, these bear a cost burden on the United States. We very likely have to deal with those conflicts in the future.

There is also a very critical cost that is occurring. As the ocean absorbs increasing amounts of carbon dioxide, the ocean acidifies. We’re bleaching the coral reefs—the coral reefs that have been likened to the rain forests of the ocean; that reduces the ability of plankton to form calcium carbonate, reduces the ability of the ocean to absorb carbon and threatens the food chain on which not just aquatic life, but increasingly large numbers of people around the world rely.

There are significant health consequences as we look at the impact of severe heat waves. We watched thousands of people die in the Midwest, in Europe, particularly in France, with heat waves of just a few years ago. We are quite certain, and the research is clear, the models predict, and are, in fact, proving to be the case that as these intensify in magnitude and duration, we’re going to have further increases in mortality and morbidity especially amongst the young, the frail, the elderly and the poor.

We’re watching impacts on air quality, a tax on Americans now, dealing with regional ozone pollution, respiratory infection, aggravation of asthma and premature death.

These extreme weather events are having, especially along the Gulf and Atlantic coasts, severe events that have intensity of precipitation that is increasing the risk of flooding, greater run-off and erosion, and the potential for adverse water quality. The well-off and increasing numbers of whom are who are subjected to these problems of disease and injury to floods, storms, droughts, and fires, this is a real cost today and is one that is going to increase in the future.

Madam Speaker, there are opportunities for us to be able to make a difference, restructuring our economy, dealing with climate change, reducing carbon pollution, in ways that will make a fundamental difference in terms of how America lives. At a time when our economy is in a fall, what is needed is a smart, much better opportunity for us to be able to create economic opportunities at home, new green jobs that can’t be exported, building a smart grid, weatherizing homes, new jobs from exporting green technology that we create, and reducing the costs for American families through energy efficiency. Remember, it is not the rate but the bill at the end of the day.

We see an opportunity to increase economic competitiveness with a more efficient economy, and energy independence means we can stop sending our money overseas to people who don’t like us.

Now I see that I have been joined by my colleague from New York. Mr. TONKO has been a leader, both in terms of the private sector position, and for years in the New York Assembly before he joined us in Congress. He chaired relevant legislative committees dealing with these issues.

And we’re honored to have him join us this evening, and I would like to recognize him for his observations about the opportunity as we move forward with a new budget, with opportunities to reduce carbon pollution and usher in a new economic era.

Mr. TONKO. Thank you, Congressman BLUMENAUER. And it is with great interest that I join you because I listened to your opening about the important factors associated with this transformation in our economy.

I think it is so important for us to focus on the fact that as we grow American power, as we grow energy sources, we are creating American jobs for the benefit of American working families.

So this is a totally American agenda where we can grow that energy security and advance great opportunities in the workplace as we enhance our environment and provide for sounder energy policy.

You know, I am reminded that over the last 50 years, the major growth, over ¼ of the growth of our Nation’s GDP in the last 50 years, the major growth, over ¼ of the growth of our Nation’s GDP was technology and reform and transformation that we have adopted into all sorts of institutional outcomes.

That investment, that growth in our GDP, explained by emerging technologies only required a 3 percent, on average, investment in R&D; 3 percent of our GDP was invested in R&D. So when we think of that research and development opportunity at that mere 3 percent level, and to recognize that investment will overall economic growth in the Nation’s GDP, that is a powerful statement. Imagine what happens when we are willing to invest a greater amount into R&D.

I am tremendously encouraged by the Obama administration because of its embrace of the important role that science can play, treating science and technology as vibrant components in our comeback as an economy.

We also know that as we look at history, we can understand fully that it was technology and reform and transformation and innovation that produced the success stories here in this country. As we moved from an internal
Mr. BLUMENAUER. Well, I appreciate your sketching that vision of the future with a look towards the past. And if there was ever a time that the American economy needs a little rebalancing, it is now. We’re looking at a financial services sector that is going to be taken down. We’ve got a consequence where there is a certain amount of this economic growth, which was a result of developing exotic financial products, having desk jockeys figure out new ways to charge fees, and subprime loans, what happened with predatory loan lending, and in some cases, outrageous credit card practices.

Well, this is not arguably adding to the store of national wealth. And what you described was several instances in our history where we were developing and implementing new technology. We were adding value to the economy, real value to the American productivity. The family had more tangible activities. And people were involved with jobs that created value.

Well, we have seen study after study that indicates precisely what you have described is going to occur if we are able to make that transition. The State of California is already one of the most energy efficient in the Nation. In fact, the entire United States was as efficient on a per capita basis as California was just a few years ago, energy consumption in the United States would be reduced 32 percent.

Well, one wonders, well, then California may not have the economic upside of dealing with a cost-effective energy reduction. Well, that would be wrong. California has analyzed the economic impact of their plan to reduce greenhouse gas emissions to 1990 levels in the course of about the next decade.

That’s a 30 percent reduction from business as usual emission levels projected for 2020. If we achieve 15 percent below today’s level, and they found that the economic benefits would increase economic production overall for their State $33 billion. It would increase their gross State product $7 billion. It would increase personal income—and this was before the current financial situation—by $16 billion. On a per capita basis, Californians would be ahead $300 each per year, and there would be more than 100,000 new jobs. Oh, and by the way, they calculate billions of dollars—between $4 and $5 billion—a year savings in health costs.

So I think what you have described, we’re going to see the same thing in California where there’s been extensive study, that there’s an opportunity to really realize that vision.

Mr. TONKO. Well, having come from NYSERDA—mentioned my role in the New York State Assembly as energy chair for 15 years, but then I moved over to NYSERDA, the New York State Energy Research and Development Authority, where I served as president and CEO, I found that research and development equalled economic recovery. It provided many, many opportunities to advance science and technology and create jobs from the trades on over to the inventor and innovator, the engineering groups that design efficient products and then deploy them where they were success stories into the commercial sector.

I think that when we talk about these opportunities we’re reminded of a report that came out in 2005 from the National Academies and it was entitled, Rising Above the Gathering Storm. And let me just read the three basic categories that they thought were of the most meaningful path that America should follow: investment in basic research; innovation as the path to reducing our dependence on foreign oil; and improving science, technology, engineering, and math education.

Now, right there in a nutshell is a major impetus to a new era of job creation. We can bring about a much more vibrant outcome for the manufacturing sector simply by retrofitting new energy innovation to that workplace, providing for, if not cheaper, smarter outcomes, which then wins at the global marketplace.

I think that our manufacturing sector can grow great potential with an energy innovation in the direct impact of jobs created in that arena, but the ripple effect that then circulates into and impacts into many of our sectors of the economy.

I looked at a project when I was still in the State Assembly to work with our dairy farms in upstate New York. They were impacted by prices that simply were very marginal. They did not give them much of a profit, if one at all, and we did, as New York State look at ways to cut the costs of milk production for our dairy farmers. I thought, well, they’re dealing with a perishable product, they have energy costs that are sometimes difficult to manage because they can’t deal with peak and off peak necessarily, with Mother Nature taking hold in their operations. And so we worked on energy retrofits with Cornell University, with NYSERDA, with the local utility, and we worked with the farm representatives, the farm bureau, and using state-of-the-art, shelf-ready technology. Think of the many other applications that are out there looming that we can then advance through resources that come when we put together a system that checks the pollution impact on our environment and produces through that, resources that grow jobs, grow opportunities, grow discovery, grow innovation, grow demand reduction, and then move forward to creating this all-American agenda that impacts, finally, the American family in very positive measure.

Mr. BLUMENAUER. That’s a very impressive story, starting with reducing environmental pressures to right through the food chain, production chain, reducing costs, increasing productivity. And I would assume that it is also safe to say that there is a hidden advantage in the long-term because application of strategies like this reduce long-term demand.

Nothing is more costly for individual consumers than having to go and make massive capital investment for future production capacity. The cheapest kilowatt is one that we don’t have to generate, and this would be an example where you were saving future generations as well.

Mr. TONKO. And I hear you, Congressman BLUMENAUER. I think that in this country, beyond any other, with consumption per person, energy de- per person so above the average, there is a greater bit of opportunity here than in any other world Nation that is a manufacturing leader in the world.

So we have with this gluttonous dependency on petroleum-based, fossil fuel-based economy of ours to move forward aggressively, and just a simple 1 or 2 or 5 percent reduction in demand is monumental coast to coast. And so this is about job creation in a way that grows significant jobs from all sectors. For example, the three million dollar jobs of today, all can be transformed to some degree to a green collar work environment.
Just yesterday in Albany, New York, at the State Education Department, a subcommittee from the Science and Technology Committee of this House, headed by Chairman HINOJOSA, went to Albany to conduct a hearing on improvements in the Workforce Investment Act. This authorization is before us as we speak. We're looking at how we can better improve that act and also bring about today's thinking on green collar opportunities, green collar opportunities in the energy world and beyond.

And part of the witness table included a representative from GE's wind division. They talked about the Federal Department of Energy's forecast of some 500,000 jobs in that industry that will require those who are site managers, site operational people, to those who are wind technicians to be able to learn the trades, learn the maintenance and retrofitting and installation opportunities and skills to bring about this new workforce. There will be those, too, that are required to come up with the next generation of equipment that is, you know, today in the labs percolating in a way that is just, again, a revolution waiting to happen.

That same opportunity today, a golden opportunity made green in a way that will spark this innovation economy, that will transform a lot of the work opportunities out there and provide the bottom-line benefits to American working families.

I think the middle class Americans who have just realized the largest investment in a tax cut in the Nation's history through the recent recovery act will now stand yet another chapter of gain here with this sort of thinking.

Mr. BLUMENAUER. I love the pharmacology, "a golden opportunity turned green." I think that is well-said, and your analogy to the space race that we had with the Soviet Union, I think is a perfect analogy. It sparked a birth of technology. It encouraged us to invest in education in grade school, high school and college and post-secondary. It was a spurrt of innovation that led to a whole host of new products and increased productivity.

And you rightly point out that we are currently the largest consumer of energy in the world on a per capita basis. Sadly, we waste more energy than any other country on the face of the planet. It doesn't have to be that way, and in your State and mine, there are people hard at work developing new technologies and techniques to be able to essentially mine these energy sinks that we have with old residential and industrial buildings, wasteful practices, to be able to harvest the energy, to be able to recycle it, to lower bills and be able to have longer term productivity. This new energy opportunity is not a choice, but a necessity. It's a choice we have to make.

I want to just make one additional observation about the fact that change is coming. Now, there are some that say, well, maybe we don't want it in this budget, maybe we are not ready for it, maybe we're not facing up, as virtually every other developed country has done, and indeed over 900 cities across the country decided they weren't going to wait for the Bush administration. They were going to be Kyoto compliant. They were moving ahead with their own plans, including mine in Portland, Oregon, where we reduced greenhouse gas emissions for four consecutive years and actually are almost Kyoto compliant now.

Well, the Bush administration not only turned its back on its global responsibilities by not only not ratifying Kyoto and working with it, but not offering an alternative, just basically saying we'll go our own way, we'll ignore it. They ignored the problem in this country. The EPA administrator, Johnson, was in the most effective witness protection program in history. I think he appeared before one congressional committee. I only saw him once during his tenure, but they refused, EPA under President Bush and Administrator Johnson, refused to accept their responsibility under the Clean Air Act. You know, the Massachusetts Supreme Court case said don't delay further on dealing with tailpipe emissions, don't deny a decision to the State of California to try and do something about it.

Well, the Obama administration understands that nonaction is not an option when it comes to facing up and complying with the law finally and dealing with the potential of regulating carbon emissions under the Clean Air Act.

Well, I think if we took a census of people in the business community, overwhelmingly, they would rather that Congress stepped up with a regulatory process, whether it's cap-and-trade or carbon tax or some variation, so that they had certainty and that we have a chance to move forward rather than just doing it in a regulatory process administratively.

But one way or another, the head-in-the-sand approach of the prior administration and former congressional leadership that was going to deny the reality of global warming and our responsibility is a thing of the past.

The question is: How are we going to do it and how soon will we move forward both the carbon tax or a market benefits and avoid the consequences?

Mr. TONKO. Absolutely. I think the strategy is one that will be produced in very thoughtful exchange here in the House and in the Senate and working with the administration.

I think the resources you talk about, the garnering of resources, these can be applied in so many measures. I saw from my days in the assembly as Environmental Quality Chair, to my time as NYSERDA president, a huge sea change in thinking from even the business community, where they came to NYSERDA looking for opportunities for energy efficiency installments into their operation. They are being driven by some of these economic pressures.

When we think of it, it was an energy crisis that kind of drove this economic crisis. When gas prices were rising severely, when petroleum prices were rising severely, when the cost of running our factories and the cost of running our workplaces and the cost of maintaining our homes kept rising because of those fuel costs, then people came into an energy crunch. That drove this economic recession that has been so long and deep and lived by this administration as we now struggle with the Recovery Act to come forward with a solution.

Doing nothing would have meant what—500,000 to 600,000 job losses per month? So it took action—just like this will take action. As the President has said, energy reform is required for our economic recovery. Health care reform is required for our economic recovery.

So this opportunity for energy reform, where we retrofit our factories and provide for cheaper outcomes and more efficient government, in partnership with our private sector, making certain that we embrace our intellectual capacity, that is what this is all about.

I saw what we could do just in housing stock alone with efficiency measures that range from weatherization to home audits that produce all sorts of insulation requirements and those kinds of investments that, again, produce jobs in our neighborhoods. I saw what NYSERDA was doing through Hudson Valley Community College, one of the large community colleges in the capital region of New York State. They partnered with NYSERDA. We set goals. We put programs together. We made certain resources were there and then went forward with training people that might be construction management majors at Hudson Valley Community College and learning state-of-the-art PV and solar application for rooftops.

Training the workforce of the future, taking people through various work incentive programs, through our PIC—our Private Industry Council, and making certain they were connected to the community college opportunity, training them at Hudson Valley, directing them reaching out to other community colleges and creating that network of trainer doing the work with the future trainer. And all of them then working with unemployed, underemployed, people transition that need new skills developed that were highly skilled in the workforce, addressing our curricula in pre-K-12, addressing the opportunities for matriculation at our college-level certification programs. All of this is very important to building the human infrastructure that then goes out there and becomes that green energy team in all of our neighborhods, all of our States across the Nation, making certain that we spark that interest to bring out a movement to a cause that has us reducing our demand, that then has us producing something other than a fossil-based economy, and generating situations of power and energy needs that do not pollute and add to our global warming situation and to our carbon footprint. All of that is a spectacular outcome that is achievable with the proper focus, laser-sharp focus, commitment to resources, and advancement in space policy.

Mr. BLUMENAUER. Congressman Tonko, we are fortunate to have your 15 years of committee leadership and your work at NYSERDA to be able to bring to bear in a practical sense how we implement that vision. I could not agree with you more. Frankly, I am excited that the American public understands this.

Now there are those that try and distort what public opinion is, what the public wants, what they want to do. You have given concrete examples in your State of New York of how these pieces fit together. We find that more than 75 percent of the Americans in Gallup's annual environmental poll for this year say they are in favor of increased government financial support and incentives to produce energy from alternative sources, while just 8 percent say that government should do less. Thirteen percent said the government has it right exactly.

The same survey showed that Americans largely endorse government efforts to increase alternative energy production through the use of financial support or incentives directly in line with the stated objectives of this administration. Now these are majorities of Democrat, 86 percent; Independents, 79 percent; even Republicans, 63 percent, support these renewable energy investments. And 63 percent supported a special fund to make buildings more energy efficient and teach Americans how to reduce their energy use, even if that added an extra $2.50 a month to their electric bill. Seventy-seven percent said the United States should reduce its emissions of greenhouse gases, regardless of what other countries do. It seems to me this is pretty compelling evidence that the American public is starting to get it.

Mr. TONKO. Not only that, Congressmen BLUMENAUER, I think with that intensity that you just shared with us, it tells me that that should push elected representatives here in the House and Senate to respond to their constituents in a way that is thoughtful and progressive because that is the message I believe is imparted by such polling results.

People know that we have precious little time to correct some of this. But they also know that there's a great outcome. I believe the youngest generations in today's society are going to compel us to think outside the barrel. I think they are going to push us and say it is time to think outside the barrel and do things appropriately.

I will give you an example. Again, at NYSERDA we got involved in a school project across the State at several schools. We would install solar systems and then we would start to equip it, essentially saying, if we have solar, then we have to use the money that would be on the property taxpayer; B, invest in the children's education so they could see firsthand what was happening and to inspire them; C, to inform the educator to take the teaching staff and allow them to incorporate into the classroom activities, the discussion of renewable, of solar, of the opportunities to become independent—energy independent.

What a remarkably successful program. We need just to grow that. But, again, it is resource availability. That are sometimes are confined or restricted. If we have a strong partnership with Federal Government, then we can do that multid layering of government to respond in a way that advances this stretched thinking to allow us again to measure in green terms what the future can be and to see that so many of these opportunities are on that shelf, ready to be applied, tells us that there is leadership out there looming—looming large.

And so I think that polling statistics and the data that are exchanged here tell us that there's a new day coming. As we invest in this coming budget, I believe we're starting to open the door to a movement to a new world where we are that energy-secure Nation. And as we grow our energy security, I'm firmly convinced we grow our national security. Because our involvement, our dependancy on the Middle East, for instance, for our supply of oil and petroleum finds us depending on some of the most troubled spots in the world that have unstable governments, that then control our destiny for what is a basic necessity to light and heat our homes, to power our manufacturing centers, and our workplaces.

When we are dependent on such huge measure on that sort of importation, it only causes great concern and challenges to increase our energy independence terms and so I think we need to take that energy palette and paint it in bolder shades of green.

Mr. BLUMENAUER. I love your verbiage, including “thinking outside the barrel,” I think that is a very powerful concept. I think you sketch the larger challenge that we face. We are addressing with the President and with our leadership in Congress a threat to our planet, as you say—national security, shipping lots of money to people who don't like us very much, financing both sides of the war on terror; and, dealing with fundamental restructuring of our economy.

There aren't very many times when people in Congress—there have only been less than 12,000 men and women who have ever served in this body for the entire history of the United States. There are few times when there are fundamental existential challenges to our society, to our way of life. We are in one of those moments right now with the economy, with our national security, and with the threat to the planet.

As you have described, there is an opportunity now for the United States Congress to lead. In a sense, part of it, and I know from a little experience with some of the civic leadership in the State of New York—and it's certainly true in my home State of Oregon—that there is leadership in the private sector, in churches, in synagogues, college campuses, in businesses large and small. People who are young, who are of a real activist environmental bent, but also people of the greatest generation, people who grew up in the Depression. I think that we understand about conservation, understand about recycling, understand about working together to meet challenges. We have a
Mr. BLUMENAUER. Congressmen Tonko, well said. I deeply appreciate you joining me this evening.

We have an opportunity to deal with these issues tomorrow with the budget markup and this next week. And as we have committees moving forward, as you say, moving in various directions, I look forward to working with you and deeply appreciate your reasoned voice and your experience. It is going to make our legislation better.

Mr. TONKO. Well, I know you stand for progressive policies in Oregon, and you personify that very well. So it is a pleasure to work with you in this House, and we are going to go forward and have a very innovative budget.

Mr. BLUMENAUER. Madam Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

PRESIDENT OBAMA’S BUDGET SPENDS TOO MUCH. IT TAXES TOO MUCH. AND BORROWS TOO MUCH; AND, THE GIFT OF LIFE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker’s announced policy of January 6, 2009, the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. King) is recognized for 60 minutes.

Mr. KING of Iowa. Madam Speaker, I appreciate the privilege of being recognized to address you here on the floor of the United States House of Representatives, this Nation’s great deliberative body that we are.

I listened with great interest to the gentleman who has made their presentation in the previous hour, and I think back as we start this discussion, this 60-minute Special Order about what has taken place in the country. And many of us, as legislators, do our press conference. I wouldn’t be very surprised if President Obama has at this point reached the threshold for press conferences in his career that would match that of Ronald Reagan’s. Ronald Reagan didn’t believe in coming before the American people a lot of times in a row. That is clearly not the case with President Obama, Madam Speaker.

We are here dealing with a full-court press across this Nation that seeks to, as the President seeks to, sell his budget to the American people. We have watched the Congressional Budget Office come out with their estimates on what this budget is going to cost. I have watched the target move. I have watched the irresponsibility of the spending grow. And if you add up the cumulative total of the money that has been spent, taxpayers’ money borrowed and spent, I don’t really know anybody that has that full total. We need to put it down here on the floor and ring it up and spent, I don’t really know anybody that has that full total. We need to put it down here on the floor and ring it up and spend any money. A President can’t initiate any spending. In fact, a Senator can’t initiate spending. It has got to be initiated, by Constitution, right here in the United States House of Representatives.

That budget, that spending, that deficit for the 110th Congress and the deficit coming into the 111th Congress, that is the Pelosi debt, the Pelosi deficit. That is the money that was appropriated by this Congress that established much of the debt that was inherited by the 111th Congress that would be administered by the Executive Branch, which would be the President of the United States. His job is to carry out the policies we set and take care to enforce the laws with due diligence. But his statement has been he inherited a $1 trillion debt. Today we have another milestone I hadn’t heard before, Madam Speaker; and that is, now has been inherited a $1.3 trillion debt.

So the inheritance is good for the President, but it is shrinking for our grandchildren, unless we consider that they are inheriting debt, as well, and the burden of supporting this government and taking it out of duly-elected people in future, future years, without a prospect of being able to pay for this, without a plan to come out of it.

And the argument that if we just do something to establish socialized medicine, that will solve our economic problems and can cut amount of critical jobs, on that kind of a statement, Madam Speaker, and it concerns me a great deal.
So the inherited debt, which is not inherited from his predecessor the President, President Bush, but it is debt that is inherited from the 110th Congress and previous Congresses, has grown to $1.3 trillion. But the debt the American people inherit out of this is over $4 trillion. This debt represents $1.3 trillion. And we are still configuring and constructing more legs of this multi-legged stool that is supposed to bring us out of this economic crisis.

If I may, I will turn to the language that unfolded, and you have to listen very carefully to understand the meaning of the President's words. It is usually an artful job of crafting this ambiguity of language, this ambiguity of language that allows me to pull out of it the meaning that I want to know and hear, and allows someone, my ideological opposite, to draw an opposite meaning from the same words and the same phrase. There are a lot of different ways to describe it. I am going to be generous and call it a classical ambiguity style. And I find myself sometimes turning down the volume and waiting for the newspaper the next day, because you really have to parse all this language and analyze it, and it is hard for me to find time for that. But some of this language is more clear than others.

I intend to take up the issue in a moment of the President's appointment to the Office of Legal Counsel, but prior to doing so I think it would be appropriate to transition into the economic circumstances, and recognize the gentlelady from Minnesota for so much time as she may consume to talk about whatever it be on her mind.

Mrs. BACHMANN. I thank the gentleman from Iowa, also known as the Stunning STEVE KING of Iowa, as stated by national political commentators, who certainly know what they are talking about. STEVE KING is one of our stalwart patriots who is here on the floor fighting on behalf of the American people.

And while we are here tonight to talk about several subjects, we can’t avoid the first subject that is on the table. It is the fact that under President Obama’s budget that he has put forward, President Obama’s budget simply spends too much, it taxes too much, and it certainly borrows too much.

We are very concerned about the excessive spending that is contained in this budget of $4 trillion. The President’s budget is almost $4 trillion in spending under this budget deficit. This is an historical Presidency, historical for the amount of spending that is occurring under this President, $3.9 trillion.

Not only is that a huge amount of money just for spending and just for taxing; we know that just the energy tax alone that the President is putting in his budget is $2 trillion in spending. The President’s aids just came out within this last week and said that it is not sure they thought. It is nearly $2 trillion. That means for people in Minnesota, for people that are watching this evening, Madam Speaker, we are looking at perhaps an additional $4,000 per year out of the gate that every American household will see in increased taxes for energy. $4,000 a year in increased taxes. Who can afford that right now, when 401(k)s are down, when the value of houses are down, when we are having a hard time trying to afford that, Madam Speaker, the President surely must know that.

But, borrowing too much. Representative STEVE KING talked about the massive borrowing coming from under our President’s budget. This is what is remarkable. President Obama is borrowing so much of your tax money, Madam Speaker, of the American people’s money, that literally President Obama’s debt will be more than all previous Presidents combined.

Madam Speaker, you heard me correctly. From George Washington through George W. Bush, the 43rd President, you can add up the debt level of every one of those Presidents. And while we are here tonight to talk about the President blaming the previous administration for the current situation he is in; but President Obama will lay so much debt on the backs of the American people that it will trump all 43 Presidents combined. That is historic.

Take a look. These are the figures that are put out, this is the Office of Management and Budget, and these are the figures that the President himself points to. The figures here on the left are the figures for debt prior to President Obama coming into office. These figures on the right are the debt amount that President Obama by his own figures say will be accumulated, $20 trillion in debt by President Obama’s own figures.

As a matter of fact, the Congressional Budget Office came out and said so rosy were the President’s figures that he undercounted his debt by $2.3 trillion. He has rosier estimates of how great the economy is going to grow, and he has very conservative estimates on how high his debt will grow. We are concerned, we are very concerned about what the future debt load will be on the American people.

I am often reminded of the Founders; and Representative STEVE KING and I stand here tonight in this chamber, Madam Speaker. Together with yourself, we are literally standing on the shoulders of our great nation. And I was the Founders of our country, as we look through the rearview mirror of history, who very clearly made it known that our government was to be a Constitutional government formed on limited government principles. And the day that the Founders signed the Constitution, they also signed the first ten amendments to that Constitution; and those ten amendments were given as a gift, a protection to the individual American.

Why? Because our Founders were so concerned about the abuse of taxing authority of their mother country, Great Britain. They were so concerned about that abuse of a taxing authority that they said to the American people in the first ten amendments: We want you to know that your Federal Government will be limited in its power. And in the tenth amendment, they specifically said: These limited powers that are given to the Federal Government are all the Federal Government will have. Every other power that there is will be given back to the States. We, the Federal Government, won’t hold that power. We give it back to the States.

This is very important to realize, because our President doesn’t seem to see it that way, Madam Speaker. Our President seems to think that the time and energy and productive years belong to Uncle Sam and not to the individual. That is a completely different way of looking at the world than what our Founders viewed.

This evening, Madam Speaker, Representative KING wants to turn to the subject of the very smooth transition into the life of the gift of human life; the issue that our framers talked about in the Declaration of Independence when they called out for inalienable rights and said that we, Americans, were created by a God; that our creator God gave us inalienable rights, rights that only God can give, rights that no government confer nor can any government take away. That, among those rights are life, liberty, freedom, and the pursuit of happiness.

Tonight, I know what Representative STEVE KING wants to speak about, Madam Speaker. He wants to speak about that cherished gift enunciated in the Declaration of Independence, the right to life, and why we are so genuinely concerned about the nomination to the Office of Legal Counsel that President Obama is making and the individual that Representative KING will be speaking of.

Mr. KING of Iowa. Reclaiming my time. I thank the gentlelady from Minnesota for the eloquent presentation on the economic side of this thing and the very smooth transition into the life side. And this is an important issue that sits before this Congress.

Before I go to that issue, I would comment that in looking at the chart of the debt and the cumulative effect of the debt of President Obama’s debt compared to the sum total of all the previous administrations, Congress has started. The President signed the appropriation bills, there is another statistic that I saw that was a calculation brought to Congress, at the Office that took this debt in the budget that has been proposed by President Obama and lays it out into the future. The greatest share of our gross domestic product that we have had as debt in a budget was 1945, right at the end of World War II. And the budget projects to be not 100 percent of gross domestic product, but twice as high, 200 percent of gross domestic product is...
Madam Speaker, I point out another component of this, that yesterday there was a plan that was rolled out that is from former Secretary of the Treasury Henry Paulson, who argued that he should have $700 billion to pick up toxic assets from the lending institutions, and that proposal was rolled out yesterday. And here is how this calculates, and that is that is the Federal Government—and I want to make this point, Madam Speaker, before we move on, because I think it is so essentially important that we all understand what is taking place in this country with the nationalization of Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac, reaching into the auto makers with the partial nationalization that is going on there, the nationalization of AIG. The taxpayers own 80 percent of the shares of AIG. They are not worth a lot, but taxpayers are left with a big investment in Citigroup. And as the Federal Government swallows up financial institution after financial institution, now this administration reaches in to the mortgages themselves, and nationalizes even individual investors, perhaps, to deal with these toxic mortgages.

Now I have argued, and Congresswoman MICHELE BACHMANN and I have signed on to a piece of legislation last fall that would allow private capital to solve this problem with the toxic debt that exists, the toxic mortgages that are out there, those mortgages that aren’t performing and that are going in the tank. It is always preferable in a free-enterprise kind of an economy to have private-sector capital come in and rescue the rescue fund, the rescue act was a piece of legislation that I introduced that we are original cosponsors of, and one of the things that it does is that it would allow private capital to come into this very thing, these kind of mortgages. It would suspend capital gains taxes on rescue capital that would come in to pick up the toxic debt. Each time that we have pushed out into the middle of the table the argument that we should be either suspending or eliminating capital gains taxes so that investors could come in and pick up these toxic mortgages, and then if they yield a profit, let them keep the tax-free, they will reinvest those dollars and pay taxes on their capital at a later date, Madam Speaker, but we can’t get that simple idea of suspending taxes on capital gains to stay on the negotiating table any longer than it takes Chairman FRANK’s back of the hand to sweep it off.

Why? Why would the most logical proposal that can be devised, and the simplest one at that, that brings free-market solution and private-sector investor capital that is looking for a place to go, why would it not be part of the plan to resolve this economic downward spiral that we are in? I will submit it is because the people that are in charge of devising the plan don’t really believe in the free markets. If they did, they would want investors to come in.

So the White House has proposed a plan that would partner up the Federal Government, the White House and the taxpayers with private sector investment. Now I’m saying that we could get trillions of dollars of private investment to come in and pick up this toxic debt. You don’t want to buy it at any more than the market price is. There is no reason to overpay for it. But you want to take it off the books of the banks and the lenders and let them move on and heal up. So here is the proposal, and it works out to be like this. If an investor wants to put $1 down on the table to invest in these toxic debts that we are not supposed to call “toxic” anymore, these mortgage-backed securities, that investor can lay $1 down, the Federal Government will lay $1 down, and then the Federal Government will guarantee another $12 worth of debt. So, if I’m an individual investor, and I can come up with $1, that means the Federal Government puts another $1 in cash up to match it, and now that the Federal Government now decides to throw the dice and become a hedge fund and the taxpayer is the one who is there for all of the loss but not for the gain. I yield back.

Mr. KING of Iowa. If the gentlelady will yield for a question.

It just occurs to me as you speak of this, let’s presume that you had $1 million to invest. And you had been looking at a bundle of these mortgage-backed securities with the idea that you could go in and buy up this bundle with $1 million in investment and then manage them in such a way that you could get your money back out and make a profit. It would be a good thing for our economy. It would be a good thing for the investment in that capital.

Now, if you’re ready to invest that $1 million in buying up a bundle of mortgage-backed securities, how would you be able to compete with someone who also had $1 million and who had $12 million from the Federal Government, between them then $13 million, to match up against your $1 million? What happens to the free market in this? And how does someone who desperately wants to participate and make an investment like them in the same competition with the Federal Government, how do they possibly find a profit? How can they compete?

Mrs. BACHMANN. Exactly. And we haven’t got the question answered yet. It appears that only large institutional investors, a Goldman Sachs or someone like that, will be able to get in on these sweetheart deals. I don’t know too many Joe Averages that will be able to buy into this great deal.

So think of it this way in your example: You have $1 million worth of mortgage-backed securities. How much skin in the game would this private investor have? Again, public–private? Public is $850,000 worth of Federal tax money to $50,000 worth of investment from the private person. But yet what if the yield is positive? For a $50,000 investment, you could have a $500,000 gain. That is pretty amazing. Where was the Federal Government going to lose 95 percent, and there is nothing to lose when it comes to the private investor.

Mr. KING of Iowa. And reclaiming my time, the gentlelady mentions the institutional investors. And we have also watched the institutions on Wall Street such as Goldman Sachs, AIG, Citigroup and let me see, Lehman Brothers, and Merrill Lynch. The list goes on and on. It occurs to me that some of the same names and faces are inside the room where these decisions are made over and over again.

I think back to AIG, and the situation that flowed across this floor that would go back and back tax those retention bonuses that were paid to the executives that were being made. Who had the opportunity to say “no”? Some of the same people that are figuring this program now. It looks like it is designed for the institutional investors.

Mrs. BACHMANN. And if the gentleman would yield on AIG, let’s not forget what AIG was. Once the American Government came in and federalized AIG. AIG was essentially a pass-through entity, meaning Federal tax dollars were going to AIG, and then directed Europe and made whole foreign investors. So this is what the taxpayer was paying for. The taxpayer gave money to bail out foreign investors.

My question is, foreign investors were made whole 100 percent across the board. Goldman Sachs—and I am not trying to pick on them—but they were made whole $13 billion, 100 percent. My question, Madam Speaker, is will the American taxpayer be made whole 100 percent? And when will they be made whole, if ever?

Mr. KING of Iowa. We know that there won’t be any opportunity for the American taxpayers to be made whole. And I’m asking for the taxpayers to wake up. Take on this personal responsibility. Get out the tea bags. The American people can come together and say, enough is more than enough. This is too much. And it is time to put the brakes on this.

Mrs. BACHMANN. If there is one final thing I can add to the gentleman’s remarks. It was amazing this afternoon. President Obama had made a statement when he was with the prime minister of Australia. And he was asking Congress to give more power to the Treasury Secretary. As if they don’t have enough already, he wants more power to the Treasury Secretary, which means more power for himself, because the Treasury Secretary represents the President.

He wants more power for what? So that if a private corporation becomes in trouble—we are not talking about a bank now. We are talking about a private corporation that becomes in trouble, he wants the Treasury Secretary to have unilateral authority, on his own decision, to walk into a private business and essentially nationalize it, take it over and reorganize.

I’ll tell you what just the investors are worried now about the Federal Government coming in, opening up private compensation contracts and deciding to lower the amount of the wage value, you ain’t seen nothing yet. Because the Federal Government is going to come in with its Marxist view of economics and make a decision about who is allowed to make what wage based upon what government thinks. This is one of the scariest ideas to come down the pike.

Mr. KING of Iowa. As I reflect on your discussion about this attitude about the Federal Government deciding what executives should be paid, what businesses are viable and which ones should be closed, I recall there is a fine and stellar company that is domiciled in Minnesota that had one of their pieces of their investment that was nationalized. It was a rice processing plant in Venezuela. A Hugo Chavez move, I might talk over a rice plant in Cargill in Venezuela. And this is a pattern. I think if you would read the story about that and then bring it back and just change the names, the places and the dates, put some American companies in there. I don’t think you could discern the difference between the specter of what is hanging out for the American businesses that is coming out of the White House and what has actually happened to Cargill in Venezuela.

Mrs. BACHMANN. And we also have a great institution in Minnesota, a great bank, Twin City Federal. Twin City Federal took some of the TARP money, some of the Federal bailout money. They did so because they felt if they didn’t they would appear weak because the money was supposed to be only given to strong banks. Twin City Federal made the remarkable move about 1 month ago to return the TARP money. And people didn’t know if a bank even had that ability to return the money. But they said they wanted to. They wanted nothing to do with TARP.

I think now they are very happy that they got out of that program now that they see the Federal Government has no hesitation to step into a company and now go in and renegotiate the wage contracts between upper management and high-end employees.

Mr. KING of Iowa. I thank the gentlelady. And it occurs to me that at some point, that the NBA, the professional baseball leagues, the NFL, hockey players all are going to eventually come under scrutiny, and maybe even the Hollywood actors and actresses. If there is something that you can dictate what it is, the wages and benefits of executives in private business, then there is no line by which you wouldn’t cross to tell anybody in America what they could or couldn’t make.

Mrs. BACHMANN. And it makes me wonder if we will have politically correct wage decisions that will be made. For instance, if you are an executive at a wind-powered plant, is it okay for you to make $800,000 a year; but if you are the president of an oil company, we don’t like you so you are only going to make $300,000 a year. You do these kinds of decisions are coming down the road.

And again, this has nothing to do with free market capitalism or getting our country back in order. This has everything to do with the banana republic and bringing our country’s finances down the road to bankruptcy.

I yield back.

Mr. KING of Iowa. And the point that is being made, the undercurrent of this point that is being made is what the gentlelady from Minnesota made at the beginning of this hour, and that is, getting to the foundational principles of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness rights that are clearly articulated in the Declaration of Independence and flow through the Constitution that are part and parcel of our law and our culture and rooted in biblical values. These are the things that have made this a great Nation, along with property rights and free market capitalism, the rule of law, which is God’s law transferred into this country. And so today it brings us to this point, this point of the subject of the law itself and how it is interpreted, how the Constitution is interpreted, the profound constitutional questions and how the laws that are written within the parameters of the Constitution are interpreted, and how the President himself is advised by the Office of Legal Counsel. And I will submit that the President’s appointment to the Office of Legal Counsel is one of the most important appointments that is ever made. And it is an appointment that, according to the Newsweek magazine, the Office of Legal Counsel is the most important government office you have never heard of. This is the job that advises the President and other branches of government on all constitutional questions, evaluates executive orders as to their constitutionality and anything that might come before the President for a signature, a piece of legislation that would come out of here, for example, Madam Speaker, that is also something that would come under the purview of the Office of Legal Counsel.

The President issued, he rescinded the Mexico City Policy on January 23rd of this year, and that Mexico City Policy is a policy that prohibited Federal dollars, our tax dollars, yours and mine, from being used to fund abortions overseas. That is the Mexico City Policy. I think the President wanted to issue his Executive order on January 22, the anniversary of Roe v. Wade, but out of respect for the hundreds of thousands of Americans that poured into this city to make their case about the protection of innocent unborn human life, I think out of the respect that I have for this chamber and the law that governs this chamber, I am going to freely state my views on this issue.

And this letter is dated March 24 of this year. And there are 62 cosigners on it. And there are 62 cosigners on it. And I always read the cosigners. So, this is a letter that was written in March. And it is to be read into the newswoman's record.

And then, on top of that, we have the appointment of Dawn Johnson to the Office of Legal Counsel to advise the President on executive orders, constitutional questions, and someone who comes to this job with a real track record, a track record of a built-in bias as an opinion writer for the Office of Legal Counsel, under President Clinton, and someone who has made a whole series of outrageous statements, mostly that have come in conjunction with her doing her job as a legal counsel herself. So there is no way this is not talk that is coming along in the coffee shop. This is language that flows out of legal briefs that she has written.

Mrs. BACHMANN. And if we could just speak a little bit more about the importance of this office, the Office of Legal Counsel. The gentleman had quoted from Newsweek magazine. Newsweek went on to say that this role as Office of Legal Counsel acts as a kind of mini Supreme Court. This office is the President's legal counsel, for all practical purposes. They issue opinions, much like judicial opinions, kind of a mini Supreme Court. Newsweek went on to say that this role as Office of Legal Counsel, the most important office to whisper into the President's ear about where the President wants his legal advice to come truly rare, and certainly not non-existent.

In other words, this is a rejection of the position, the most, I will say the most friendly position that I get from people that do not support the protection of innocent unborn human life. At least they will concede that there is a moral abhorrence to it, and it should be minimized if they aren't willing to eliminate. And that was something that Hillary Clinton said, but this statement by Dawn Johnson, I think, makes it clear, Madam Speaker, that she says that abortion will never be rare and safe, legal and rare, as a matter of fact. It will not be. And that just opens up the door to further dialog on this particular issue. There are many issues that I would object to. But I focus this on the abortion side.

And another one of these statements that we carry to the President is this: And also, Madam Speaker, is among the most offensive statements that the American people are asked to accept as part and parcel of the package that you get when the President appoints someone to be, to head of the Office of Legal Counsel who carries this kind of a bias against the people who stand up for innocent human life. And this is her statement on abortion regulation. The State has conscripted her body for its own ends because the State has an interest in babies being born. If a State is not interested in protecting the fetus, the State is not interested in protecting the woman. And while women should never be viewed as fetal containers—I have never heard any more crass language in my life than the language that Dawn Johnson brought up—it is also true that babies are more than a product of tissue. Babies are a gift. Just as women are a gift, babies are a gift. Human life is to be cherished, not discarded.

Mr. KING of Iowa. And reclaiming my time from the gentlelady from Minnesota who has lived her life in demonstration to that commitment to life, your own children and the numbers of foster children that you have nurtured, you are the woman from Minnesota and had so many children but always knew what to do. And I have not quite figured out how to put that into the proper alliteration, but that is the concept.

Mrs. BACHMANN. We had great kids, Representative King. That's how we did it, and a great husband.

Mr. KING of Iowa. It definitely helps to have a good husband. I remind my wife of that, and I appreciate that comment.

Going back to this, as you mentioned, it was the Office of Legal Counsel is a perfect position to whisper... things into the ears of the President, to get the President’s attention, to be on his agenda, to make legal arguments, to make arguments that are going to help him rationalize and set the policy, a policy like the Mexico City.

Mrs. BACHMANN. And to help him make his statements for him because these are written statements that become binding precedent within the President’s office. This is an amazing amount of power.

Mr. KING of Iowa. Written statements with binding precedent, and the ability to write that into statements or whisper into the President’s ear fetal containers, Mr. President.

Mrs. BACHMANN. It also binds the administrative agencies. So this has power throughout the entire Presidential administration. Every agency, every department would be bound by these statements.

Mr. KING of Iowa. And it would limit the ability of the agencies to react to the very policy that this Congress has established, this Congress might establish. And this kind of pejorative language has no place in law. And it has no place in the dialog of America. It has no place in families and humanity, has no place in nurturing little children, and it has no place in taking care of the mothers, the brothers and the sisters with the idea that a fetal container, that reduces the unborn child, that innocent little baby, to being a term that hardly makes it as a medical term.

These aren’t the only comments that have been made by Dawn Johnson. I just picked them up as they come along. There is quite a stack here. And I don’t know if I will get through them all, Madam Speaker, but here is one that is also indicative of a similar kind of language in the previous quote where Dawn Johnson, again, the President’s appointee to head up the Office of Legal Counsel, has a physical or a mental disability, has a physical or a mental disability, and has poured her life out because she has given her life to the pro-life movement and all the arguments that women who become pregnant have in some sense consented to the pregnancy belies reality. I would like to think that most women who are mothers have consented to the pregnancy. Not all, but most. The large number of women who never receive proper information about contraception and others who are the inevitable losers in the contraception lottery, no more consent to pregnancy than pedestrians consent to being struck by drunk drivers. Pregnant mothers equivalent to being struck by drunk drivers when they become pregnant. That reduces this thing down into an act of almost negligent violence, if not willful violence. I think it is an act of love.

Mrs. BACHMANN. It almost seems contrary to feminism because feminism empowers women and believes that women have the capability to give consent, informed consent. The way that this is written by Dawn Johnson, it appears that she is saying that women are without capacity to give consent even in an area of becoming pregnant.

Mr. KING of Iowa. Reclaiming my time, even when they make that decision themselves.

I as a new grandfather myself 3 weeks ago today, I think of those children who are loved and wanted and planned and of those families who are not able to have children and who are lined up and adopt children who might become available. There are many more families in this country who are waiting for a child to come along who they can adopt and nurture into the bosom of their family and raise as one of their own than there are unwanted children in this country.

Mrs. BACHMANN. And if I could just correct the gentleman, my opinion is that every child is a wanted child. That is one of Planned Parenthood’s trademarks, that I believe, is one of the biggest myths that has been perpetrated in the last 40 years—every child a wanted child?

Mr. KING of Iowa. By God.

Mrs. BACHMANN. As if there are unwanted children. Every child is a wanted child.

I can attest to the fact that there are open arms for every child who is born. If a child is considered less than perfect, has a physical or a mental disability, there are homes all across the United States who are begging and pleading and waiting for a child. None of us can ever forget the words of Mother Teresa, who said, “If you don’t want the children, I want the children. Give them to me, I will take them,” little nun from Calcutta who was willing to take any child from across the planet. Here in the United States, we have willing, open hearts that would take every child who is born in this country.

Mrs. BACHMANN. As the argument says, the argument says that women who become pregnant have in some sense consented to the pregnancy, belies reality. I would like to think that most women who are mothers have consented to the pregnancy. Not all, but most. The large number of women who never receive proper information about contraception, and others who are UNDEFINITE, and they have been labeled now to be similar to the KKK by the prospective head of the Office of Legal Counsel who would be whispering these terms into the President’s ear and writing legal opinions and bringing influence on the enforcement effort of the Federal Government, bringing that up against people who are exercising their first amendment rights, assembly and religion to protect innocent life.

Mrs. BACHMANN. This is a remarkable statement because it seems to invoke the worst hate speech that you could possibly make. To call out those who are praying on behalf of life and to liken them to terrorists and to call them terrorists, that seems to me to invoke a hate speech and also a form of bigotry, religious bigotry of the worst order.

This really calls into question for me the President’s judgment in choosing someone like Dawn Johnson, who used this type of language, and putting her in the position of being Office of Legal Counsel. I think it is a stunning choice, and it really calls into question President Obama’s judgment in this selection.

Mr. KING of Iowa. Reclaiming my time, the gentlelady has articulated that I think very well.

We will add these expressions up together: pregnant mothers are the equivalent of being hit by drunk drivers; that abortion will never be rare; the equivalent of the KKK are people who are demonstrating and protesting that we should protect and support innocent human life.

I’ll put another one up here and add another quote to that. This is another quote from Dawn Johnson.

She says, “The experience of an abortion is no longer traumatic. The response of most women to the experience is relief.”

I don’t have any experience with that, but that is not the message that I get from the people I talk to who come to this city. The strongest leaders in the pro-life movement and always among them will be women who have had abortions and who have suffered the trauma, the psychological trauma of abortion. They don’t feel relief. They feel compelled to pray and march and demonstrate until Roe v. Wade is overturned, and we can protect innocent life in this country as God intended.

Mrs. BACHMANN. I would add that, with all due respect, this is one of the most ignorant comments that I have ever heard—that the experience is no longer traumatic. Speak to anyone who deals in the aftermath of dealing with women who have had abortions.

The President runs a crisis pregnancy center. She has given her life and has poured her life out because she loves women and she loves abortion-minded women. She wants to meet them at the point of their deepest crises. She has told me that, for women who come in who are considering abortion and also for women who have had an abortion and who come to her, it is completely traumatic. They agonize as they walk into the clinic. They agonize, the women who have had previous abortions, after they have had the abortion. It is traumatic.

Mrs. BACHMANN. It almost seems contrary to feminism because feminism empowers women and believes that women have the capability to give consent, informed consent. The way that this is written by Dawn Johnson, it appears that she is saying that women are without capacity to give consent even in an area of becoming pregnant.

There are reams of scientific papers that speak loudly to the trauma that the woman has experienced, let alone the trauma that the baby has experienced. That baby's life was taken in cold blood. That baby was killed in cold blood. Not traumatic? It was traumatic for that innocent child, but it was equally as traumatic for the mother. The mother realizes and understands what has occurred. This is traumatic. To make that statement, to me, is heartless at worst and ignorant at best.

Mr. KING of Iowa. Reclaiming my time, the trauma that has been visited upon many, many thousands of women in this country has brought about the beginnings of an entire organization, of a movement that has significant inertia and membership, and that is called Women Deserve Better. They come to this city continually and make the case that women deserve better. They deserve better than a macabre one that speak loudly to the traumatology that comes out of Planned Parenthood. It cannot be based on anything moral; it cannot be based in law. The philosophy of the President was also reflected during the Supreme Court testimony, speaking as if his daughters got pregnant—out of wedlock, I presume is what he was referring to.

He said, "I don't want my daughters punished with a baby." I listened to that tape tonight to be sure I heard it right. Those are the words of the President of the United States. He actually said, referring to his daughters, "I don't want them punished with a baby.

I don't believe a baby is punishment. I believe a baby is a gift and that the people whom I know who love their children as we do ours and our grand-children as we do ours see them all as gifts, all as children, all as their creation."

Mrs. BACHMANN. That is the crudest thing that could be done to a woman who is in crisis—to tell her that this is an easy quick fix and that you will experience relief. Women are strong, capable, intelligent people. They can handle the truth, and they deserve to be given full scientific evidence of the procedure they are about to undergo if that is the case. We need to respect women, and these statements do not reflect a true respect for women.

Mr. KING of Iowa. But they may reflect the majority of the input that is going into the ears of the President as these cases being made, and they would reflect the position of the Office of Legal Counsel if Dawn Johnson is confirmed by the United States Senate.

Now, we can expect that these ideas, this philosophy, this perjorative approach—is not balanced and that they do not bring a sense of legitimacy or legal scholarship or constitutional analysis. They bring a bias into this discussion. These kinds of biased positions would be reflected throughout the President's positions because he is the one who has chosen her. It does reflect his positions to some degree.

Mrs. BACHMANN. I would say that this is the President's position completely because we know, from the President's previous votes when he was a State Senator in Illinois, he was the most pro-abortion State Senator in Illinois. His voting record here in the United States Senate was that of the most pro-abortion United States Senator.

He fully supported partial birth abortion, one of the most gruesome, cruel procedures of infanticide one could ever imagine. Also, he voted for the Born Alive Act, which meant that he stood on the floor, as a matter of fact, in the Illinois State Senate and argued that children who were born, born alive, did not necessarily have a right to live, that as those children who were born alive after a "botched" abortion, the doctor would have the right to kill that baby after it was born, and now President Obama voted in favor of that unthinkingly gruesome thing. Mr. KING of Iowa. And he argued in favor of it.

The foundational principle that he argued for, Madam Speaker, was: A woman who sought to have an abortion had a right to a dead baby even if they botched the abortion and the baby survived.

That is not a moral principle. That is not a legal principle. It is a myopic principle that is pulled up within the political lobbying that comes out of Planned Parenthood. It cannot be based on anything moral; it cannot be based in law. The philosophy of the President was also reflected during the Supreme Court testimony, speaking as if his daughters got pregnant—out of wedlock, I presume is what he was referring to.

He said, "I don't want my daughters punished with a baby." I listened to that tape tonight to be sure I heard it right. Those are the words of the President of the United States. He actually said, referring to his daughters, "I don't want them punished with a baby.

I don't believe a baby is punishment. I believe a baby is a gift and that the people whom I know who love their children as we do ours and our grand-children as we do ours see them all as gifts, all as children, all as their creation."

Mrs. BACHMANN. One of the most gruesome quotes—and I don't know if the gentleman has this one—is when she is referring to her beliefs and to people who are pro-life.

She said, "Progressives," which would be far-left liberals, "must not portray all abortions as tragedies. Absent unforeseen technological and medical changes, abortion is unlikely to become truly rare and certainly not nonexistent."

In this statement, she is lamenting the fact that abortion could become rare. She wants abortion to occur. When do you ever hear anyone say that they don't want them rare? But that is what Dawn Johnson is saying.

When President Bill Clinton was running for President, he said he wanted abortions safe, legal and rare. Hillary Clinton said the same thing when she was running for President. Barack Obama—I'm not sure what his words were, but those were the words of the people running for President. Dawn Johnson is refuting that. She doesn't want to see abortions occur. That is in the realm of the macabre. I am amazed at that statement.

Mr. KING of Iowa. I thank the gentlelady. I have one more shocking statement made by Dawn Johnson. Now, remember, this is the person who would be making the constitutional analysis, making the judicial decisions, interpreting the law. She is taking a decision as a legal opinion, a binding legal opinion to the entire executive branch to one degree or another. She would have the ear of the President. I think Dawn Johnson has a major flaw in her jurisprudence even though she is probably well trained. She says what the difference between the Bush administration and the Clinton administration on balance.

She calls the Bush administration's claims to executive power "extreme, extraordinary, implausible, illegitimate, appallingly abusive." By comparison, as to the Clinton administration, "I do not have any specific criticisms of the Clinton administration in these regards." Well, I think that tells us about the lack of partisanship that is there.

Let's see. I was looking for a quote. I have it in front of me. I will take it back to the slavery issue where Dawn Johnson said, "Statutes that can curtail a woman's abortion choice are disturbingly suggestive of involuntary servitude, prohibited by the 13th amendment, in that forced pregnancy requires a woman to provide continuous physical service to the fetus in order to further the State's asserted interest."

Slavery? I could read through that Constitution dozens of times over. I could pour through this case law over and over again. I invite the law school creative people. I don't know who would come up with the idea that the opportunity to be a mother was equivalent to slavery.

For a couple of minutes, I will yield to the gentlelady.

Mrs. BACHMANN. You know, I would say that this heavy tax burden that the Obama administration is laying upon the American people has more to do with involuntary servitude than the fact of a woman who has the opportunity to carry an unborn child to term and to give life to that baby. Most women consider that a privilege and a gift from God and to cooperate with God and bring life into the world. Life is a beautiful thing. It is precious. It is something not to be wasted. It certainly cannot be equated with involuntary servitude, which is slavery. Slavery is what we are looking at right now with the debt burden that we are seeing from the Obama administration, where we are looking at having more debt under President Obama than under all previous 43 Presidents combined.

That is a huge burden that is place when a person has to work three-quarters of the year just to pay their tax bill, and that is what we are looking at down the road for our kids and grandkids, because this Obama administration is clearly spending too much, taxing too much and borrowing too much.

Mr. KING of Iowa. I thank the gentlelady.

And I would just remind the gentlelady, the Speaker, that we have, by letter, called upon the President to withdraw the name of Don Johnson to head up his Office of Legal Council for these reasons that we have argued here tonight.

And I say to the gentlelady that we didn't get to in the time that we had, for moral reasons, constitutional reasons, statutory reasons, reasons of logic, common sense, and understanding the nature of humanity; for reasons that we want to see this Nation continue to ascend in all of the levels of morality, and economics, and national defense, and culture, and vision so that this country can be moved to the next level of its destiny that's positive, one that we can be proud of, one that will carry us forward and make our children proud, one day that our children can come to the floor of the House of Representatives, somebody's children, the next generation, and say, We stand on the shoulders of our forefathers, our predecessors, the people who stood up for life, the people who stood up for what is right, the people who stood up for the Constitution and the principles of life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness that are embodied in the Declaration of Independence, and include extraneous material:

And with that, Madam Speaker, I move that the House do now adjourn.

RECOGNITION OF THE MAJORITY LEADER

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The majority leader is recognized.

SCHEDULE

Mr. REID. Mr. President, following leader remarks, we will proceed to a period of morning business for up to 1 hour. The Republicans will control the first half; the majority will control the second. Senators will be permitted during that time to speak for up to 10 minutes each.

Following morning business, the Senate will resume the postcloture debate on the motion to proceed to H.R. 1388, the national service reform legislation.

The Senate will recess from 12:30 to 2:15 for the weekly caucus luncheons.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, a lot of people are still justifiably upset that executives at bailed-out businesses received multimillion-dollar bonuses compliments of the American taxpayer. The Senate will continue to press the question of how to make sure this doesn't happen again. But already there are some clear lessons we can draw from this experience. Perhaps the most important one is this: If we can't keep track of $165 million, then it is going to be even harder to keep track of a trillion dollar stimulus bill, and it is going to be even harder still to keep track of the $3.6 trillion that the administration is proposing in this budget we will be voting on next week.

Americans have already heard enough about this budget to know that it taxes too much. That verdict was validated by an unexpected source last week, when the President's own Transportation Secretary, Secretary LaHood, said he doesn't think it is a good idea to raise taxes in a recession.

Americans know this budget spends too much, that the spending figures are simply staggering, and that much of the spending is borrowed money. They use this time would allow us to start this legislation so that we can offer some amendments today and finish it in a reasonable time. I hope we don’t have to work into the weekend. There are important things people have scheduled.

This is our last weekend prior to the Easter recess. I hope we can have thoughtful cooperation. If there are amendments, offer them, but let’s complete this as quickly as possible.

RECOGNITION OF THE REPUBLICAN LEADER

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Republican leader is recognized.

THE BUDGET

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, a lot of people are still justifiably upset that executives at bailed-out businesses received multimillion-dollar bonuses compliments of the American taxpayer. The Senate will continue to press the question of how to make sure this doesn’t happen again. But already there are some clear lessons we can draw from this experience. Perhaps the most important one is this: If we can’t keep track of $165 million, then it is going to be even harder to keep track of a trillion dollar stimulus bill, and it is going to be even harder still to keep track of the $3.6 trillion that the administration is proposing in this budget we will be voting on next week.

Americans have already heard enough about this budget to know that it taxes too much. That verdict was validated by an unexpected source last week, when the President’s own Transportation Secretary, Secretary LaHood, said he doesn’t think it is a good idea to raise taxes in a recession.

Americans know this budget spends too much, that the spending figures are simply staggering, and that much of the spending is borrowed money. They... know what this, in the end, means. It means that in the middle of a recession, when most Americans are rushing to pay down their credit cards, this budget does the exact opposite; it runs up the national credit card to an extent that we’ve never seen in our Nation’s history. This is the budget that I want to talk on this morning—that it simply borrows far too much.

In all the uproar about bonuses, some people may have forgotten about the budget. But with a vote on this funding blueprint fast approaching, it is time to refocus and review where we are.

A few weeks ago, with the Nation still reeling from the size of a trillion dollar stimulus bill, the administration unveiled a budget that made the stimulus bill look like pocket change. In the midst of a recession, the administration proposed a budget that involved major changes to education, health care, and energy. To pay for it all, the largest, fastest rise in history and a new national energy tax that hits everybody who turns on a light bulb.

Yet, even with these tax hikes, we still wouldn’t be able to pay for all these new programs if, even closer to now, we learned that the amount of money we would have to borrow to enact these policies in the midst of a severe economic downturn is even greater than we thought.

According to an analysis by the Congressional Budget Office, the administration’s projections were extremely optimistic. The CBO said that based on its projections, the budget would increase the deficit by $2.3 trillion more over 10 years than the administration initially claimed. Now, keep in mind that the total deficit from last year was $459 billion, a record-high figure at the time that only a few months ago everybody agreed was entirely too high for comfort. What we heard from the CBO is that the discrepancy between the administration’s budget estimates and the CBO estimates of a deficit over 10 years was more than 4 times the previous record annual budget deficit.

So the administration is asking us to borrow an astonishing amount of money—so much so, in fact, that if we were to pass this budget as it is, the Federal Government, in only 4 years, will have to spend $1 out of every $8 it receives in tax dollars to make interest payments on the debt. It would be as if every worker in America spent the first hour of the workday, every day of the week, working to pay off the finance charge on his or her credit card. Of course, as debt piles up, it only becomes harder to pay down. Under this budget, the debt piles up even more quickly than it has piled up in recent months as a result of all of the spending and all of the bailouts.

As the recession took hold, it took 13 months for the Nation’s gross debt to rise from $9 trillion to $10 trillion. It took less than half that time under this administration for the debt to reach the $11 trillion mark. The Nation’s debt is at its highest level ever, and it is growing larger and larger. Under the administration’s budget, the amount of public debt will double in 5 years and triple in 10 years.

It used to be that our friends on the other side seem completely unfazed by the CBO report that projects oceans of debt as far as the eye can see. I noticed that the Speaker of the House was quoted yesterday, saying that the CBO report wasn’t reason to rethink any of the administration’s budget priorities. Regardless of the CBO report, she said, “our priorities are the same.”

The CBO report should have been a wake-up call to Congress. Instead, it is being viewed by some as a mere inconvenience—a distraction from the political goals of those in power. Well, I suggest that if we have learned one thing over the past several months, it is that economic dangers need to be addressed early. In the midst of an economic crisis that could have been averted, Americans expect more from their elected leaders.

This budget borrows too much. Americans are saying so. Congress should listen to those warnings now before it is too late. I yield the floor.

RESERVATION OF LEADER TIME
The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, leadership time is reserved.

MORNING BUSINESS
The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, the Senate will now proceed to a period of morning business for up to 1 hour, with Senators permitted to speak therein for up to 10 minutes each, with the time equally divided and controlled between the two leaders or their designees, with the Republicans controlling the first half and the majority controlling the second half.

The Senator from Tennessee is recognized.

Mr. ALEXANDER. Mr. President, would the Chair inform me when I have 1 minute?

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Yes.

THE BUDGET
Mr. ALEXANDER. Mr. President, I will comment on the Republican leader’s remarks. I agree with him that this budget borrows too much. We say that publicly on the floor and we say that privately in our discussions. Many of us are afraid that this 10-year budget is a blueprint for our country that our children and grandchildren simply cannot afford.

First, I will say a word about the President’s press conference this evening. I hope that during his press conference, the President will reject the bill passed by the House of Representatives last week about the AIG bonuses as not the kind of thoughtful and mature response that the American people deserve from Congress in a time of crisis. It is certainly not worthy of approval from the President of the United States.

I hope the President will focus attention on something that is a mature and thoughtful response and is worthy of the attention of the President of the United States, and that is Secretary Geithner’s proposal yesterday to use a partnership of public and private resources to begin to get the toxic assets off the banks, and get credit flowing again.

I voted last October and then again on January 15 to give, first, President Bush and, next, President Obama the money he needed to fix the banks. I voted, at this point, through approval of the Secretary yesterday at first blush seems to me to be underfunded, undercapitalized by tax dollars and too late. But it is more important to say I believe it appears to be on exactly the right track, that it appears to be well thought out, and that at first blush it seems to be attracting support from the private sector, which it needs to do to be successful.

History shows us some lessons about when we have bank problems—and we have had plenty of them. When I was Governor of Tennessee in the 1980s, dozens of banks failed because of a problem with the Butcher brothers, who were basically kiting banks. But the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation came in and over the weekend usually recapitalized the banks, got rid of the bad assets, put them back out there, and our economy grew again.

That is harder to do today because the businesses are bigger and the crisis is much larger. But the fundamental solution to our economic troubles is the same.

We need to fix the banks and get credit flowing again, and the way to fix the banks is to get enough of the toxic assets out so they can have confidence to lend money, and business can start growing, and people can get jobs again. That is the history lesson.

There is another history lesson, and that is that we need the President of the United States to focus full attention on fixing the banks and getting credit flowing again. I have used the example of President Eisenhower going to Korea. Someone said to me: Senator ALEXANDER, no one pays attention to history. Well, the President Eisenhower said in October of 1952: I shall go to Korea to fix the Korean war. That was in October.
was elected President, and within weeks he went to Korea. He said: I will concentrate my full attention on this problem until it is honorably ended.

President Eisenhower was a very capable man. He was capable of doing more than one thing at a time. But he knew he couldn't do everything. He had to choose the one thing and the country needed to have confidence he would do it.

President Obama is extraordinarily capable as well. When I, or others, have suggested he do more than one thing at a time, he often says: I can walk and chew gum at the same time. I don't doubt that. I think we may not have had a more impressive President in terms of intellectual ability, and he has impressive people around him.

What we need for the President to do—and tonight would be a good time to start—is to assure us, as President Eisenhower did when he said “I shall go to Korea,” and say: I shall fix the banks and get credit flowing again. We know the present President is capable of this impressive and this talented, if he decides to throw himself into this problem with everybody he’s got for as long as it takes, he will wear everybody else out and he’ll get the job done. From the day we declare a clear confidence in this country will begin to recover at a fairly rapid rate. I say that with great respect to the President and to the proposal Secretary Geithner made yesterday, which I think is mature and thoughtful. That’s what we need for the country today, which I think is mature and thoughtful way.

As to the budget, the budget also makes a difference to whether the economy recovers. It is hard for the economy to recover if the Congress spends too much, if the Congress taxes too much, and especially if the Congress borrows too much. The Republican leader pointed that out in his remarks.

This 10-year budget is a blueprint for a country our children and grandchildren cannot afford. It doubles the public debt in 5 years, and nearly triples it in 10. It grows the public debt to 82 percent of the gross domestic product by 2019. The gross domestic product is the sum total of all of our efforts in a year, all the money we produce, and we produce 25 percent of all the money in the world each year, more or less.

This 10-year budget creates more new debt than all the Presidents of the United States from George Washington to George W. Bush combined. Let me say that again. All the Presidents of the United States, from George Washington to George Bush, did not run up as much debt as this President proposed to do in the next 10 years.

By the year 2019, we will be spending more than $800 billion just on interest payments on our debt every year. We only spend $720 billion on Defense in that year. We will be spending more on interest than we do on defense, and we will have enough left over to fund all the Federal spending on education. That is too much borrowing.

What do we do about that? There are a number of things we can do. I suggest we put a limit on runaway debt so that it cannot be more in any year than 90 percent of our gross domestic product. Another idea would be to enact a bipartisan Conrad-Gregg proposal which will help to put the President in a position in which he can set up a special commission that would figure out how to bring entitlement spending under control, make recommendations to the Congress, and we would vote it up or down, and act in the same way we close defense bases, which is also very hard to do. The Conrad-Gregg proposal has broad support in the Senate. It has broad support in the House. The President of the United States says he wants to control entitlement spending.

The Acting President, Senator McCONNELL, in his first address this year, went to the National Press Club and said: Mr. President, I am ready to work with you on entitlement spending. In other words, he wants to bring the debt down in the outyears. But so far we have not seen that priority.

I think the priority today ought to be to fix the banks and get credit flowing again. I support the President’s objectives for the second year. I do not think that it is the case — as I think health care has to be reformed in order to bring entitlement spending under control. But why can’t we go ahead and work on Social Security? Why can’t we pass the Gregg-Conrad bill? Why can’t we send signals that we are serious about reducing entitlement spending? Instead, this budget would move $117 billion of funding for Pell grants from discretionary spending to entitlement spending; in other words, move it from the area where we would want to control it if we can afford it to the area where we automatically spend it without having to vote on it. We shouldn’t be adding anything to entitlement spending this year.

Finally, new taxation is not good, for this year especially. I care about climate change, but now is not the time to impose a $500 billion tax on electric bills and gasoline prices in the middle of a recession. Republicans will offer a clean energy agenda based on conservation, nuclear power, electric cars, finding more natural gas, aggressively funding research in solar energy, and finding ways to capture carbon. We can do all that without imposing a new tax on the American people in the middle of a recession.

I look forward to the President’s remarks tonight. I hope, as I believe most Americans do, that he rejects the toxic combination and expands on Secretary Geithner’s proposal. I applaud him and I applaud the Secretary for a mature, thoughtful proposal, and I hope the President will, as Presidents must, select the most urgent issue before us and focus on it with all he has until he fixes the problem. He can do that. Only a President can do it, and this President is especially talented. I believe if he makes clear he intends to do that, the country will have confidence that he will get the job done. I yield the floor.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from New Hampshire is recognized.

Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, I wish to speak and continue the discussion which was raised by the Senator from Tennessee and the Republican leader earlier on the issue of where the budget that has been proposed by the President is going to take us. There are a lot of concerns raised by this budget.

Most of us have been willing to say we understand the President has inherited a very difficult financial situation; therefore, we’ll accept, in the short run this year and for much of next year, potentially a lot of money is going to be spent very quickly in order to try to refloat the economy. The Federal Government is the only place where there is liquidity right now, and it’s very important that liquidity is being aggressively used to try to get the economy going again.

The problem the President’s budget has is, as we get past this next year, and a half of recession and we get further down the road, the budget he has sent up to us continues to dramatically increase spending, dramatically increase borrowing, and dramatically increase taxes.

As we get into the third and fourth year of this budget, instead of seeing the numbers come back down to something that is manageable, we see a deficit running in the 4- to 5-percent range of GDP. We see a public debt-to-GDP ratio in the 60- to 80-percent range. These are numbers that cannot be sustained. They add up to massive debt.

This chart shows the situation in fairly stark terms. Historically, the national debt has been around 35 percent of GDP. That is a sustainable level. I think if you talk to most people in the economic area, they will say a government can do quite well if its national debt can be contained at that level.

Unfortunately, under President Obama’s proposal, that debt goes up, and by the 10-year window which his budget covers, it is at 80 percent of gross national product. That is not sustainable. That essentially means we are putting on the books a debt which we have to pay to the citizens of this country, which is unaffordable for the citizens, for the country. It has a lot of practical implications which are all very serious and about which we should be concerned.

The most obvious is that when we run up this much debt, somebody has to pay for it, and that means our kids and our grandkids. They are going to have to pay this debt off. Instead of maybe being able to buy a house, send their kids to college or live the lifestyle our generation has lived, they are not going to be able to do that because the debt burden on them is going to be so high that burden will overwhelm their ability to live the same quality of life that we have.

Equally important is the effect it probably will have on the value of the money of the United States, the dollar. There are only two ways you can handle it when you run debt up such as this. Either you dramatically raise taxes—and you basically make it virtually impossible for Americans to be productive if you raise taxes as much as this debt would cost to pay off—or you do something called monetizing the debt, which is a technical term for creating inflation. Inflation is a pretty big evil. If you get on a course of inflation, you quickly go into a spiral that is downward as a nation and as an economy. This debt on this present path, as proposed by the President, will lead us to that.

There is another problem this creates, equally significant and about which we are already hearing, and that is, for people who are observant and pay attention to our National, especially if they are lending us money and the whole world is lending us money, especially the Chinese—they look at our debt and they say: Is it manageable? Can the United States maintain this level of debt and still be a productive country, still be able to be prosperous?

There are beginning to be signs of people saying: No, we are not so sure that is true. We are not sure that is going to be the best thing to happen. So the value of the dollar starts to change and gets decreased. Equally important, people become restive about buying our debt, about financing this great spending spree which this administration has proposed by lending us money. I have now heard major statements from the Chinese leadership. The Premier of China has specifically said that he is concerned about the value of his investments in the United States. Remember, China holds the majority of our debt. Now we creating inflation. Inflation is a pretty big evil. If you get on a course of inflation, you quickly go into a spiral that is downward as a nation and as an economy. This debt on this present path, as proposed by the President, will lead us to that.

At the same time, the tax burden increases significantly under this budget. There is $1.8 trillion of new taxes proposed in this budget. Understand, it is the philosophy of the Government that now is the majority in this Congress and in the White House that Americans should pay more taxes. I understand that. I do not happen to agree with it. I think people are not undertaxed. I think basically we are a country that has some problems, but they primarily go to overspending. But even if you accept the fact that we have to raise taxes on the American people, which is proposed in this budget—there are two major tax initiatives. One would hit small business and one would hit every American. We call it the light switch tax or the national sales tax on energy. You would presume that they would take those revenues and, as good stewards, use them to try to reduce this deficit we are facing which is driving this debt up. But, no, that is not what happens here. They take all these revenues and use them to expand the size of Government, so Government grows dramatically.

Of course, they have now used up the resources which you might be able to do for the purposes of increasing the size of the Government. They are increasing the size of Government so fast that even though they have the largest tax increase in history built into this budget, the spending increases so much quicker than that, the debt skyrockets.

President Clinton when he came into office raised taxes significantly, too, because that was also his philosophy, but he took those tax dollars and used them—in conjunction, at that time, with a Republican Congress—to reduce the deficit and reduce the debt of the United States. That was proper. If you are going to raise taxes, that is what they should be for. You should not use them to explode the size of the Government.

Where is this Government explosion occurring? Primarily, the President has proposed to take the spending of the Federal Government, which has historically been about 20 percent of the gross national product, up to 23 percent of the gross national product. That spending increase is not for the short run. In the short run, he takes it up to 26 percent. That spending increase begins in the second and third year of his budget and it goes on forever—23 percent, actually creeping up every year, spending by the Federal Government. Over the last 40 years, the Federal Government has only spent about 20 percent of gross national product. That difference between 20 percent and 23 percent on our economy is a massive increase in spending. The amount of deficits run up because of that spending over the next 10 years will be over $9 trillion.

Just the interest on the Federal debt in the year 2018, as a result of this huge explosion of spending which is proposed in this budget, will be $816 billion. That is just the interest on the Federal debt. Put that in perspective. In that same year, we will be spending less—around $700 billion—on national defense. So we will actually be spending more on financing the deficit and financing the debt than we will on national defense. In the same period, we will be spending probably somewhere around $100 billion on education, if you include Pell grants and student loans. So we will be spending maybe eight times what we spend on national defense on our debt.

That is money that is being sent out of the United States. Hopefully, people will still be buying our debt. But it is money being sent out of the United States to people who own our debt. This is just out of control.

Some people have been saying the Republicans are being terrible naysayers about this budget. Yes, Yes, we are, because one generation does not do this to another generation. It is not a tradition in this country, that one generation goes out and borrows massive amounts of money which have to be repaid by the next generation at a rate which can’t be afforded by the next generation and then turns the country over to that next generation and says: Here, we are going to give you a country which has less opportunity for you than we received from our parents because this country is going to have such a huge debt burden on it as a result of all this spending. All this borrowing, which doesn’t go to basically reduce the deficit at all; it goes to expand the size of the Government.
It is not fair, really, for us, our generation, to do that to the next generation. That is why we suggested—OK, we will accept the fact that in the short run, over the next 2 years, there is going to have to be a spike in Federal spending. That's where we get our numbers. If that happens, the bond market will see what occurs, let's get back to what is an orderly process. Let's get back to numbers which are acceptable and responsible. Let's bring the public debt down from 80 percent of GDP, which is where we are getting out here in 2016, 2011, and that period—not too far away—down to 40 percent of GDP, where it has historically been, down here. Let's take the deficit down from 4 and 5 percent down to 2 percent, which is where it historically has been. Let's put in place responsible policies, not take the spending up to such levels that they simply cannot be afforded because of the amount of debt that goes on the backs of the American people that becomes grossly excessive and unaffordable. This is not an unreasonable request. We are not suggesting that the administration trim its sails this year. We are suggesting that in the outyears there be a responsible budgeting process around here that leads to sound policy. Why do the Chinese not have confidence in our currency? Why are they talking about changing from our currency? Why are they asking whether they should continue to invest in our debt? Because they don't see any policies coming down the pike from this administration which discipline in any way or limit in any way the spending of the Federal Government. Just the opposite—it is an explosion of spending on the entitlement side by over $1.2 trillion and an explosion of spending on the discretionary side by almost $1 trillion.

If we did something constructive around here such as set up the process—put in place a disciplining event on our entitlement spending, then these different nations would look at us—and our people could say: Listen, Congress is serious about getting this under control in the outyears. They are not going to pass this massive debt on to our kids. They are actually going to try to put in place some systems to try to address this.

But nothing like this is happening. This budget has none of that in it. Instead, this budget simply expands the costs of the Government and the borrowing of the Government, and then it raises taxes and spends it instead of using it to reduce the size of the debt. It is a policy which is not sustainable. The term “not sustainable” is used around here occasionally. What does it mean? Basically it means that when this policy comes to its fruition, after this budget and the one after it and it will pass. The simple fact is, it needs 51 votes and there are 58 Members on the other side. It is going to pass. After it passes and the policies underneath it come in place, the term “not sustainable” means we are going to pass on to our kids a government they cannot afford and which will reduce the quality of their life and which may put at risk the value of our dollar and the ability to sell debt according to the people who are buying it right now, the Government of China.

This is serious. This is very serious. We need to take another look. We need to reorient. We need to sit down and say: How can we make this work better? How in the outyears—and it is not that hard in the outyears—so we start to close these numbers on the deficit and bring down this rate of growth in debt so that it flattens out? How can we do that?

We are ready to do that on our side of the aisle in a bipartisan way, whether it is something like the Conrad-Gregg bill or something in the area of entitlement reform. Whether it is a freeze on discretionary spending as we move into the outyears; whether it is, if you are going to raise taxes, using those taxes to reduce the debt rather than expand programs; living within our means in the area of health care. We are willing to look at all those ideas because if we do not, basically we are going to pass on to our kids a government that will fail them and a government that will obviously not give them the lifestyle that they deserve and that one generation should pass on to the next generation.

I yield the floor.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Virginia is recognized.

FISCAL RESPONSIBILITY

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I rise today to state a principle that is known well by those of us who have served in the private sector, and that principle is simply this: What gets measured gets done.

This week, as my colleague from New Hampshire has already stated, we begin work on the Federal budget even as we are implementing the American Reinvestment and Recovery Act.

Both of these actions can either confirm the claims of critics, the skeptics who always say that Washington simply cannot manage the taxpayer's money responsibly or it could present us with a tailor-made opportunity to demonstrate that we can combine bold action with innovation and transparency as we work to get our economy and our country back on the right track.

In the near term, the targeted investments included in the Recovery Act are designed to create millions of new jobs.

The President's budget proposals, if they are enacted, will allow us to make longer term investments through the expanded use of electronic health records, the build-out of the smart grid, and through energy-saving improvements to millions of homes and businesses.

Now, I do not think the American people expect miracles—but they can, and they should, expect competence.

So we must put in place the people with the right skills using Web sites and appropriate measurements, and then demand transparency and accountability.

When I became Virginia's Governor at the peak of an earlier recession, back in 2002, I inherited a $6 billion shortfall in Virginia's $34 billion annual budget.

Our administration made the painful spending cuts, but then we did something else: we used that opportunity to enact long-term budget reforms that continue to save taxpayer money today.

For instance, we renegotiated a number of our State contracts and leveraged our purchasing power. We reduced the cost of light bulbs from 32 cents to 25 cents. Now, saving nine-cents per bulb will not close a $6 billion shortfall, but the State buys an awful lot of light bulbs.

We found similar savings in procurement across much of State government, bundling our purchasing power in the same way many major businesses do.

We examined and then eliminated outdated boards and commissions. We consolidated our State information technology activities. We took a whole new portfolio approach to managing our real estate holdings and our vehicle fleet, just as any business would.

These business-like reforms produced almost immediate taxpayer savings. And it accomplished something else as well: it created an expectation of transparency and accountability that resulted in Virginia being independently designated as the Nation's best managed State, and the best State for business investment.

I do not rise today to brag on the Commonwealth of Virginia well, perhaps a little bit. Instead, I rise today to suggest that this same approach—straight talk, tough choices, and an insistence on commonsense reform and accountability—is critically important here and now in Washington, DC.

President Obama has made it clear to Governors and mayors across the country that we need their help for this Recovery and Reinvestment Act to succeed, and I commend him for insisting that accountability does not simply stop at the State capital, once a Governor releases funds to localities. We must have the same high standards of accountability at the local level as well.

I also am pleased that the administration's recovery.gov Web site conveys a lot of useful information to the taxpayers in a clear and user-friendly way. And by midweek, all but a handful of States are expected to launch similar Web sites of their own making.

But as they launch these Web sites, we must make sure that they have standard metrics so we can actually
That now allows us to look at those programs that work—and those that don’t—across all of the States.

I believe this experience provides a useful model as we work to develop a common set of metrics that allows us to honestly and effectively track Federal spending, especially with the stimulus dollars where we are ramping up so many new initiatives in such a short time-frame.

To do this, we will need to work through existing organizations, such as the National Governors Association, the Conference of Mayors, the National Association of Counties, and others, as we work to design effective measurement tools.

For example, most of us agree that expanding high speed Internet broadband to rural communities will create jobs. It will allow folks in every region of our Nation to have an opportunity to compete and win in the global economy.

Obviously, as we roll out broadband, we will track our progress by noting how many schools are served and the number of Internet connections that are added.

But what if we also came up with a way to capture information about how many rural businesses were able to launch or grow because of this expanded access to broadband? That information would allow us to measure the true value of broadband to the longer term economic viability of our rural communities.

Or consider our commitment to dramatically expand weatherization improvements to the homes of lower-income Americans. Now, certainly we will tally the number of structures that undergo these energy-saving upgrades, and it should be relatively easy to document the number of workers in the weatherization program.

But couldn’t we also come up with some way to measure what one would reasonably expect to see in a reduction in the demand for Government-funded heating and cooling assistance? And wouldn’t that information be helpful as we consider funding levels for LIHEAP and similar assistance in the years to come?

In short, I believe every level of Government should go the extra mile in laying out exactly how the Federal dollars are being spent, and we should honestly measure and disclose program outcomes.

I also think, as we roll out these major expenditures, it is a good idea to link disbursements with predetermined timelines and checkpoints to better track our progress. Let’s not wait until all of the money is spent before we determine whether the program works or not.

Consequently, if we do not see appropriate progress, we could delay or defer future payments.

In addition, Federal and State governments could be encouraged to reach outside their comfort zones and challenge individuals in the private sector to step-up and provide specialized expertise.

Again, within the Recovery and Reinvestment Act, we are going to be ramping up a series of important new initiatives on a very short timeline.

How do we get the expertise from the private sector to engage in this effort? For example, this could be part of the Serve America Act, which we will consider and vote on this week, which will promote and expand public service opportunities for our citizens.

We must try to draw upon the best and brightest to bring them into Government service, even if it is on a part-time basis, as we ramp up these new initiatives.

I am talking about men and women with proven management capabilities, individuals who can move with the speed of venture capitalists to embrace new ideas, or recently retired military leaders who have successfully overseen relief efforts.

This is the type of expertise we need to draw upon if we are going to ramp-up the speed of venture capitalists to embrace new ideas, or recently retired military leaders who have successfully overseen relief efforts.

As a former Governor who enjoyed line-item veto authority, I wholeheartedly support President Obama’s pledge to conduct a line-by-line review of the federal budget to identify waste and fraud.

I also encourage the administration to conduct a broad-based review of Governmental programs to see what can be cut back or eliminated programs that cannot prove their worth.

As a former Governor who enjoyed line-item veto authority, I wholeheartedly support President Obama’s pledge to conduct a line-by-line review of the federal budget to identify waste and fraud.

Based upon my experience as Governor, and the experiences of countless Fortune 500 companies, I know that an enterprise-wide review could reveal additional opportunities to wring-out significant budget savings.

Typically, one can find sustainable savings in three areas: procurement, technology, and human resources.

That is why it is vitally important that we immediately move quickly to appoint its chief performance officer, and that CPO must have the authority to act quickly, along with the chief information officer and chief technology officer. These individuals must have a mandate to work across multiple Federal agencies, and I hope they ruffle a few feathers.

Mr. President, I will say it again: what gets measured gets done.

In the short term, creating an expectation of transparency and accountability will maximize our ‘bang for the buck’ as we continue to implement the Recovery Act.

And over the longer-term, this focus and genuine commitment to fiscal responsibility will demonstrate that Washington can, in fact, act with both confidence and restraint when it comes to spending the taxpayer’s money.

I yield the floor and suggest the absence of a quorum.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Ms. MIKULSKI. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mrs. GILLIBRAND). Without objection, it is so ordered.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

TRIBUTE TO CHRISTINE SARBANES

Ms. MIKULSKI. Madam President, I rise to pay tribute to the spouse of one of our colleagues. The entire Senate has now been notified that Mrs. Christine Sarbanes, the beloved wife of Senator Sarbanes, has passed away. I come to the floor with a heavy heart and with fond memories of, indeed, a remarkable person.

Christine Sarbanes was quite a woman in her own right. She was a woman of keen intellect, warm heart, and a compassion for the underdog. She was a woman who was a force in her own very quiet, understated way. If you really liked and admired Paul Sarbanes, which all of Maryland did, you also really loved Christine Sarbanes. Senator Sarbanes often joked that whenever he would come to an event, they would say: Where is Chris? Or they would say: Where is Christine? She often represented him in and around our State.

She had a unique way of talking that brought immeasurable common sense and practicality but yet a connection to people and their day-to-day needs.
There was a remarkable relationship that I had the good fortune of observing. I have known the Sarbanes family for more than 30 years. I met the young Paul Sarbanes, a spirited reformer, in Baltimore during the 1960s. Baltimore was dominated by political bosses. There were those of us who were bringing a new day, change that one could believe in. We reformers were running for local offices and challenging the machine. The local press nicknamed us the ‘shiny brights’ because we saw ourselves as the new force.

Paul Sarbanes was the first to beat the machine, running for the House of Delegates and then for Congress. When he ran for the Senate, I filled the House seat held by Senator Sarbanes. It was the remarkable third congressional seat. That seat was held by Paul Sarbanes, then by me, then by Ben Cardin, and now by John Sarbanes.

One of the joys of Christine’s life was to see John take the oath of office and to talk to the House of Representatives that his father held.

This was a remarkable couple, as you saw them doing good and having a strong presence in our community. They were really made for each other. These were people who really believed in the life of the intellect, but the life of the intellect lived in the community. They met at Oxford, Christine, like Paul, shared a very modest background. Her dad was an electrician; her mother was a waitress. After winning a scholarship, she attended Brighton and art history at Gilman, was a longtime colleague and friend.

The Baltimore Sun has a wonderful article about Mrs. Sarbanes, which I ask unanimous consent to print in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

(From the Baltimore Sun, Mar. 24, 2009)

CHRISTINE SARBANES

(By Frederick N. Rasmussen)

Christine D. Sarbanes, a retired educator, active board member and wife of former Sen. Paul S. Sarbanes, died Sunday of cancer at her Guilford home. She was 73.

“She lived in the dignity of every individual, and that every person has potential that is unlocked through literacy and access to higher learning.”

Sen. Benjamin L. Cardin said in a statement Monday, “She believed in the inestimable loss to all those who knew her” and that she had “enormous grace and presence.”

He added: “She was extremely likable” and “had the ability to relate to people and make them feel good.”

Christine Dunbar was born in London and raised in Brighton, England, the daughter of an electrician. After winning a scholarship, she attended Brighton and Hove High School for Girls.

She later earned a bachelor’s degree in Literae Humaniores from St. Hugh’s College, Oxford University, in 1958, and a master’s degree, also from Oxford, in 1974. It was Paul who brought her and her future husband together, when both were attending Oxford in the late 1950s. He was a Rhodes scholar.

“She came to me during the meeting of the American Association I headed. I forget what was on the agenda. All I remember of that meeting was that she was a brilliant woman,” Mr. Sarbanes told The Sun in a 1987 interview. “She was involved in trying to get women into the [all-male] Oxford Union, a debating society. I introduced her to the town council and invited her to tea to talk about it.”

Mrs. Sarbanes said in the interview, “People thought it was strange that an American would be so interested.”

After graduation, she began teaching Latin at Dana Hall School for Girls in Wellesley, Mass.

After marrying in 1960, Mrs. Sarbanes became a lecturer in classics at Goucher College.

In 1974, she left Goucher. After a four-year break, she returned to teaching in 1978, joining the Gilman School faculty, where she continued teaching Latin, Greek and French until retiring in 2000.

Lillian Burgunder, who taught Spanish and art history at Gilman, was a longtime colleague and friend.

“She was a wonderful teacher, and her knowledge of Latin, Greek and ancient civilization was remarkable. She was very intelligent and enthusiastic, and she brought that into the classroom,” Mrs. Burgunder said.

“She was dedicated to making her kids understand, and it was common to see a child with her once because she wanted to make sure they understood the material,” she said.

Nick Schloeder, a former Gilman teacher and coach, who had been an adviser to Mr. Sarbanes for 40 years, was also a colleague of Mrs. Sarbanes.

“I have a rather loud voice, and Christine had the classroom next to mine. I would hear a tap on the door, and Christine would say, ‘Mr. Schloeder, I’m teaching a Latin class, and you’re going to have to lower your voice or get some new stories,’” he said, laughing.

“There was a great intellectual compatibility between Christine and Paul. They were very smart, well-educated, and both loved politics,” he said.

“She was not just a candidate’s wife but a member of the inner circle. She was very much a part of the inner circle,” Mr. Schloeder said. “She was good politically and not afraid to express herself. She had a great political mind and really understood politics.”

Mr. Schloeder recalled that the two were inseparable and determined campaigners.

“When Paul ran for the House of Delegates in 1966, and Congress four years later, the two worked the bus stops and would knock on 500 doors in an afternoon,” he said. “And they would do that day after day. I can’t imagine them any other way than as a couple.”

In addition to her full-time job as a teacher, raising her three children, and assisting her husband in his political life, Mrs. Sarbanes found time to be an active board member.

“Christine grew up in England during World War II. Mrs. Sarbanes developed a lifelong love of books, libraries and librarians. She was always reading in her home, and I think she read every book in the library in Brighton,” said her son Michael A. Sarbanes of Baltimore.

For the Gilman School, Mrs. Sarbanes had been a member of the board of the Enoch Pratt Free Library.

“I do not know of anyone who worked as hard for the libraries of our city. Her commitment and dedication was important to the recent opening of the first two new libraries in Baltimore and over 90 years ago,” Mayor Sheila Dixon said in a statement Monday.

Baltimore and District Libraries were a sanctuary and a place of enlightenment and a place that could change people’s lives,” said Dr. Carla D. Hayden, executive director of the Pratt.

“She wasn’t just a board member but an active board member who headed many committees, including community services. So Baltimore and District libraries are because of her,” she said.

She said the news of Mrs. Sarbanes’ death hit her staff “particularly hard.”

“She was a very warm person, and she mixed that warmth with a practical mind. She was a steady force for us, and everyone knew they could count on Christine,” Dr. Hayden said.

She served on the Walters Art Museum Board. She continued to lend her expertise and time to several committees.

Dr. Gary Vikian, Walters director, recalled a conversation with Mrs. Sarbanes after her father’s death in Dublin. She casually mentioned that museums there didn’t charge for admission.

“That conversation took place in October 2003 and the next October I do not know of anyone who worked as hard for the libraries of our city. Her commitment and dedication was important to the recent opening of the first two new libraries in Baltimore and over 90 years ago,” Mayor Sheila Dixon said in a statement Monday.

We all know Senator Sarbanes’s remarkable career in the Senate, a man we all admired for his honesty, his integrity, his honor, and his ability to get the job done. Maryland loved him by reelecting him on several occasions, often being the highest voted senator. Christine came back and helped Paul with his career. She also continued her work in our community.

Mrs. Sarbanes was a gifted teacher, a spirited volunteer, and a civic leader, while she was raising a family of four remarkable children: three young men and a wonderful young woman who has a doctorate in literature and is in California. She also was an avid civic volunteer. Her great passion was books. She believed books would change lives. She taught at Goucher College. She taught at one of the more prominent prep schools, and she taught the classics. She would lose me in a hurry once or twice, about her area of interest.

I am very moved by her death. All of us feel grief and concern for Senator Sarbanes. There was a close relationship, one that was exemplary to all of us. She was a great supporter of his as she served in the Senate.

Today, I share all the time: Paul, when are you going to smile? When are you going to laugh? He was always so serious. I used to dig him all the time about that. He would get a wry grin on his face. He knew what I was talking about. He was serious, and so was his wife. She was a great human being. I personally express my condolences to Paul and his family because I know how close they were. I know how much she meant to him and vice versa.

CONCLUSION OF MORNING BUSINESS

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senate is meeting some extraordinary moments in history. One of the true sages of the Senate. He was a great man, a brave man, with a tremendous ability, who served with distinction in this body. It was Paul so much and respected him so much. He had Paul all the time: Paul, when are you going to smile? When are you going to laugh? He was always so serious. I used to dig him all the time about that. He would get a wry grin on his face. He knew what I was talking about. He was serious, and so was his wife. She was a great human being. I personally express my condolences to Paul and his family because I know how close they were. I know how much she meant to him and vice versa.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The majority whip.

Mr. DURBIN. Madam President, one of the real honors of serving in the Senate is meeting some extraordinary people. I was invited ‘Rublicans’ at a party: Of all the Senators with whom you serve, can you name one you look up to and again? At the time, I said it was Paul Sarbanes of Maryland. I liked Paul so much and respected him so much. He had made a contribution, not just for his State of Maryland but also for the Nation during his time of public service.

My good fortune was not only to get to know Paul but also to meet and get to know his wife Christine. What an extraordinary woman. She was a gifted, thoughtful, articulate person whose background and interest was in the classics. She would lose me in a hurry when we got into a conversation, as we did once or twice, about her area of interest.

I can recall traveling once from London Heathrow back to the United States, picking up a book along the way. It was called ‘Rublicans’; a story on the Roman Empire. I sent it to her, as if she needed my advice or background in that subject. She wrote me the nicest note afterwards thanking me for it.

She was a real lady and a great complement to Paul. The two of them worked so well together representing the State of Maryland and showing what a couple could do together working in public service.

I was so saddened to learn yesterday that Christine passed away. She was such a fine person. I wanted to add my voice to the Senate floor in sympathy for the Sarbanes family and so many people across the State of Maryland who came to know and respect her over the years.

Mr. HATCH. Madam President, when I came to the Senate in 1977, Paul Sarbanes was a colleague who came with me. There is no doubt that this was one of the true sages of the Senate. He was a great man, a brave man, with a tremendous ability, who served with distinction in this body. One of the reasons Paul was so successful in life, not that he couldn’t have done it alone, but I think he couldn’t have done it as well had it not been for the beautiful and wonderful wife he had. She was a tremendous human being.
In addition, there have been a number of studies that have shown that for every $1 invested in national service, there is anywhere from a $1.60 to $2.60 return on investment. That is in social benefits paid back to our society, whether it is kids being tutored, vacant lots turned into playgrounds and parks, homes being built, or in the form of disaster relief. It is an investment that pays for itself.

I hope people refer to national service as “paid voluntarism.” I think this is mostly a question of semantics. We do need to be careful to differentiate between Americans who volunteer for full-time national service and community volunteers who give a few hours episodically throughout the year.

Most current national service participants are spending a year of their lives serving their country full time, and their benefits include a subsistence allowance and an education award. The subsistence allowance is barely a survival stipend, a below-poverty payment that is enough to cover only the basic needs of living on a fixed income. The education award is a small amount of support, these members have tried to label this bill as another AmeriCorps program, ACORN was forced to return the grant it received under the program because it could not demonstrate that its volunteers that cannot demonstrate they have not received any funding under the program because it could not prove that the activities performed were eligible. We wanted to make it crystal clear that this would continue to be the case. I believe this was necessary in order to ensure the bill continues to enjoy bipartisan support.

As an add-on, this legislation, the authors of this bill have included a provision listing in detail the prohibited activities for national service participants. Specifically, under the bill no one will be able to use a national service position to influence legislation, or for union organizing efforts, or to participate in protests or boycotts, conduct a voter registration drive, engage in partisan political activity of any kind, or provide abortion services or referrals.

In addition, any group that has violated a Federal criminal statute is categorically ineligible to benefit under this legislation.

Like I said, I understand the temptation that some might have regarding these provisions. Indeed, a number of so-called nonprofit or service organizations engage in what many believe to be objectionable activities. But I believe this language makes it clear that such activities will not be performed by national service participants. That is not the case. I believe every Senator can support this bill without such reservations. I hope this puts the issue to rest.

I am sure we will hear some other arguments raised by skeptics of the bill, and I will do my best to address them as they come up. I am sure the distinguished Senator from Maryland, Ms. Mikulski, will as well. I just wanted to take a few moments to make sure people know the bill has not gone unaddressed by the authors of this bill.

As every Member of the Senate knows, the process of drafting, debating, and passing legislation is not a scientific one. There is no way of calculating all of the variables and finding all the angles in order to produce a perfect result. When any group of Senators works together on a bill—regardless of whether they are from the same or opposing parties—the best anyone can do is conduct an honest effort, and all the parties will proudly stand behind, even if they do not agree on every single section or provision of the bill.

The Senate substitute amendment represents the efforts of not only Senators Kennedy and myself but of Senator Enzi and Senator Mikulski as well, and others. As I said yesterday, I doubt any bill we consider this Congress will be spearheaded by such a diversity of beliefs and ideologies. As one coauthor of the bill, I do not claim that the product the managers peered from its other work—this was in 1997—and they have not received any funding since.

Make no mistake, I share the concerns of a number of my colleagues who do not want taxpayer funds to directly or indirectly benefit partisan political organizations, abortion providers, or illegal enterprises. While I believe current law prohibits national service participants for such activities, in the face of changing activities, we wanted to make it crystal clear that this would continue to be the case. I believe this was necessary in order to ensure the bill continues to enjoy bipartisan support.

I have also heard people refer to national service programs as “paid voluntarism.” I think this is mostly a question of semantics. We do need to be careful to differentiate between Americans who volunteer for full-time national service and community volunteers who give a few hours episodically throughout the year.

National service is not a job or a career move for these individuals. Indeed, no one is getting rich by participating in these programs. Those who join these programs are motivated to give back to their great country, to engage in their local communities, and improve the lives of those who are in need.

Once again, we cannot discount the fact that the work of those in national service programs has a multiplying effect. The point of this legislation was solely to provide national service slots for 250,000 individuals. I do not think we would have much to be proud of. But these national service participants will leverage millions of traditional volunteers and hundreds of millions of dollars of private investment in the nonprofit sector. The success of the program shall not be measured by the number of people who participate but by the work they accomplish.

Other potential opponents of the bill have tried to label this bill as another ACORN bill. Of course, they do so without ever even inquiring whether ACORN currently receives money under national service programs. Although I am not usually one to approach a good mystery, it has to be stated they do not. In fact, in the first year of the AmeriCorps program, ACORN was forced to return the grant it received under the program because it could not prove that the activities performed were eligible. It is, but I am proud to join my colleagues as we stand behind and work to preserve this product.

I certainly respect and will work to preserve the rights of any Senator to oppose this legislation or propose changes in good faith. The ability of every Member to offer amendments is one of the richest and most important traditions of the Senate. That said, it is important that we do not make changes and additions to this bill at a minimum. If we add too much or take too much away from the bill, I think we may jeopardize the coalition we have worked to preserve thus far.

As I have said, I do not claim the bill is perfect. But I do believe, as it is currently written, it has just the right balance to ensure that Members from both sides of the aisle should be able to get on board.

Madam President, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Maryland.

Ms. Mikulski. Madam President, first of all, I rise to thank my colleagues from Utah for his excellent statement. I think he outlines exactly where we are in terms of both the content of the bill and the way we have approached this bill.

It is my belief, as is the belief of Senator Kennedy, that this is a government to government bill. That is exactly what the Serve America Act exemplifies. The architects of this legislation are Senator Kennedy and Senator Hatch. It is an investment in the future of America. To bear their own passion on Americans being able to serve in our society. The growth of the Corporation for National Service, we have learned a lot.

So this bill, as originally introduced, had not only good ideas and good intentions, but came from lessons learned on how to better focus our efforts, get more of a dollar’s worth out of our efforts, and, at the same time, be able to harvest this growing desire of people to serve. This year, there are far more people who are applying for national service opportunities than at any other time in our history.

Senator Hatch has also outlined the very important parameters we have set in the bill: no money will be going to participants to engage in partisan activities, no money going to participants that cannot demonstrate they are providing viable services and meeting the very clear requirements of AmeriCorps. Together with other issues both Senators Hatch and Enzi have worked so constructively on to bring to our attention—and great yellow flashing lights around these issues—and we heard them. We not only heard their concerns, I want to thank them because they brought up some concerns to the table but very sound solutions. So I want to thank them for that.

I think on our side of the aisle, we have looked at AmeriCorps, we have looked at what President Obama is calling for, along with Senator Kennedy, and the wonderful contributions of Senator Dodd, and want to expand this program. But we realize there is a limit. There is a limit to the money we can spend, and there is a limit to our organizational capacity on what we can undertake.

So on our side there was an attempt to find that sensible center to be able to focus on what we wanted to achieve in certain basic corps and, at the same time, to merely make sure, increase the number of people volunteering.

We have taken a look at the education voucher award. It has been frozen for 16 years. We made a modest increase, and our index will be to peg it to the Pell grants. This seems to be a sensible solution. There were those on my side of the aisle who wanted to double or even triple the education award. If we looked at inflation over 16 years, I would have been in that category. Well, in the spirit of compromise and consensus, we all sometimes have to not make the perfect the enemy of the really excellent. Therefore, in 2010, we will raise the education award to $3,350, which would be an increase. That would be less than $50 a year over the last 16 years.

So we trimmed what the education award would be. We looked at how we wanted to triple the number of volunteers, and it shouldn’t be in a day or a year, so instead, we phase it in over a 7-year period. Again, it was taking what we wanted to do, but organizing it at a pace we knew the taxpayers could afford, and so the corporation and the index would expand, and be able to expand the programs in a sound way.

Then there comes the stewardship idea, which is, how do we make sure we build in certain reporting that really would ensure we were getting a dollar’s worth of service for a dollar’s worth of taxes? Senator Enzi of Wyoming, the ranking member of the committee, once again brought his very sound accounting skills to the table, and we came up with a way to, again, ensure value for the taxpayer, value for the community, and do it in a way that does not create a lot of micro-processes. We have put a lot of work into this bill.

We don’t want to lose sight of the fact that this legislation is to intended to really tap into the idealism of our young people. Idealism doesn’t know gender, it doesn’t know religion, it doesn’t come from a ZIP Code. I believe it is really in the hearts of people everywhere in the world. It is a unique American characteristic to want to help your neighbor. Some people call it the Golden Rule—’Do unto others as you would have them do unto you’—but this is more. This is really saying: I want to take my life my talent, and put it to work in the community and make the community a better place. That is the original purpose of this bill.

Yesterday, I don’t know how my colleagues felt, but gosh, I was bucked up when Senator Kennedy came on the floor, when he walked in that door with his jaunty cane and his good humor. The cheer that he brought to this body—it was very edifying, very inspirational, very energizing. Senator Kennedy brings his own unique energy to this.

I have been talking to him about this bill. He is so pleased that the Senate is taking up work with us as we have talked back and forth about improvements and so on. I know how strongly he feels about it. If he were on the floor himself today, he would be encouraging us. He would be inspiring us to pass this legislation so that we can engage a new generation of young Americans in national service, while at the same time, welcoming the large-scale participation of all generations to address national needs because, again, the desire to serve isn’t based on age. It is not only young people who feel it. We all do.

Communities across our country face challenges too numerous to count. If Senator Kennedy were on the floor, he would be reminding us about rising unemployment, particularly among young people, rising poverty, and falling home prices. At the same time, all of us are aware of the fiscal challenges many States and schools and communities face. And, as they have to cut back on services just when families and children need them the most.

Some of my colleagues believe we can’t afford this legislation at a time when our economy is struggling, but I say we can’t afford not to pass this legislation. This bill offers innovative solutions to those challenges by asking more Americans to give their time to serve their country and their community. It answers the economic challenges of communities and families and what they are facing today. It is a carefully developed and focused solution.

We have learned a lot in the past 16 years since the original legislation about what works and what doesn’t work. Senator Hatch spoke eloquently about it a few minutes ago. This bill draws on those lessons and actually puts them to work. We have learned that service can make a big difference in addressing specific challenges, and that service opportunities early in life can put young people on the path of lifelong service. We have seen that older Americans want to serve and work, have skills and experience and that social entrepreneurs in the private sector are coming up with very innovative ways to tackle the challenges we face in a way that is affordable.

This bill focuses national service programs where service can do the most good. I will repeat that. AmeriCorps, and these new programs with focused approaches, will focus service programs on where service can do the most good. In other words, following a Marine, we are saying to the AmeriCorps volunteers: Be best at what you are best at, and be best at what you are most needed for. Be best at what you are best at, and be best at what you are most needed for. That is why we are talking about an education corps. That is why we are talking about a health futures corps, a clean energy corps, a veterans corps, an opportunity corps focusing on poverty. That is why we are focusing our service efforts.

Social entrepreneurs such as those who started City Year and Experience Corps are the ones who are teaching us many of these lessons. When City Year began, it was about giving a year of service by a young person to do good in the community. That was the aegis of AmeriCorps. Back then, City Year took on all kinds of programs, but as City Year has matured, they found it is better to focus.

City Year focuses primarily on tackling one of our greatest national challenges—the dropout crisis in high schools. In Baltimore City, my hometown, only one in three students who enter high school graduate. This is a travesty mirrored in inner cities and rural areas throughout our country. City Year focuses on how to deal with that dropout rate.

Let’s talk about Experience Corps. Experience Corps is engaging older adults and uses them as AmeriCorps volunteers. What they found is Experience Corps works best by working in schools. They are taking adults with years of experience and putting their skills to work, and it is making a difference. I have seen Experience Corps work in my own hometown of Baltimore in a school called Barclay Elementary School that has had its ups and its downs and its sideways. It has had talented teachers, often a good principal, and yet they needed help. In that surrounding community, within the shadow of Johns Hopkins University, Experience Corps works, and in many ways it has helped and assisted and encouraged students coming from Hopkins. With that blend of volunteers, Barclay Elementary School has improved.

When I asked the CEO of Experience Corps—because the people in this age group can do a variety of things—why education, he told me that’s what Experience Corps could do best, where it was most needed. We have learned from programs like this, which is why AmeriCorps will now focus on those very specific programs.

We also found that this bill will, of course, encourages service learning opportunities for students, because students want to give as well. Working with Senator Dodd, who has been such a leader on these issues, we now have a Student Service Opportunity Corps for middle and high school students. These young people want to do it.

College is where so much of our young people’s character and experiences are shaped. This bill recognizes that, going the extra mile by allowing the designation of 25 campuses of service which will undertake activities to help students engage in service that will actually encourage people to go on to public service careers.

This legislation also creates Encore Fellows to help adults transition to longer term public service with a nonprofit organization. These adults are volunteering on the fringe. They have knowledge and experience, and we just need to get them in the door. This is a way to bring in people who have retired and who have incredible skills, such as that retired accountant who can help a nonprofit get its books together and maybe have that opportunity.

Finally, it is to help older Americans get more involved through Senior Corps, RSVP, Senior Companions, and Foster Grandparents. These are excellent programs.

In this bill, we have taken innovation, creativity and lessons learned and come up with a new framework of service.

Right now, our country faces an incredible economic challenge. We see it in health care, in businesses, and communities all over America. But as you look out, you don’t see faces of despair. People believe in this country, and children and grandparents know and even believe, also, in great possibilities. So while we are facing these great challenges, we have a great opportunity. This is not the “me generation” of a decade ago; it is the “we generation.” I think this bill will help us be “we, the people” who serve each other.

Madam President, I yield the floor.

today. Those women I met at the city jail are now grandmothers. I hope those children are finishing school, and I hope their lives were turned around. I hope the men who were at Valley House went through that valley of darkness and went into the valley of life.

As for me, as I tried to help them turn their lives around, they helped give my life direction. That is what we are talking about when we talk about giving back, getting involved, helping our neighbors. For those of us who volunteer, the changes are significant. What I say is, each and every one of us can make a difference. But when we work together we can make change. This is one of the bills that will help do it.

Madam President, I yield the floor.

THE BUDGET

Mr. DURBIN. Madam President, next week, the Senate is going to consider the budget resolution for fiscal year 2010. This may be one of the most important debates of our time. For 50 hours on the Senate floor, we are going to debate making a fundamental change in our economy.

We need to face the facts. This President and this country have inherited the worst economic crisis in 75 years, and I do not exaggerate. No President has faced this kind of a challenge. We see it every day in the jobs that are being lost, the businesses that are closing, the money in our checking accounts dwindling during the decline of the stock market. Retirement plans are being changed. Children are coming back from college because families are worried about making the payment for their expenses. Fundamental decisions about homes, cars, and future expenditures are being withheld because of the uncertainty of our economy.

Passing the economic recovery package that President Obama sent us was the first step to getting this economy back on track, but it is not the last thing, it is not the only thing. The next step is to pass a smart, fair, responsible budget that makes the economy work again. This is not a separate item. This is a continuing effort that Congress needs to make, joining with President Obama, to show we are serious about putting this economy back on its feet.

The President has proposed a budget that accomplishes that. It restores fairness for middle-class families, it re-establishes responsibility in the budgeting process, and it makes some smart investments in America’s future.

This budget begins to repair years of neglect in fundamental national priorities. It makes critical investments that we need for the economy to recover, particularly in the areas of energy, education, and health care.

The President has proposed a return to the country’s once enjoyed—careful investments in the future while protecting working families who have lost ground over the last decade. If we fail to make a number of critical investments now, it is going to be tougher for America’s economy to get back on track.

Many experts tell us that in order for our country to fully recover, we have to take a lead not only in the Nation but in the world. We need to lessen our dependence on foreign oil and develop renewable energy sources that reduce costs and create jobs.

America still remembers well $4.50-a-gallon gasoline when those overseas who send us the oil decided they would squeeze us, and they did, and we couldn’t say anything about it because we have become so dependent on foreign sources.

We also know that the way we consume energy is affecting the world in which we live. We know that global warming is a reality, climate change is a reality, and if we do not use different practices and different approaches with energy, we may leave our kids more than a mountain debt: we may leave them a planet which is uninhabitable in some places.

We also know we need to make it more affordable for Americans to extend and improve their education so that they can benefit and compete for good jobs in an increasingly competitive global economy. And we need to address health care costs. Whether it is an individual or a family or a business or a State or the Federal Government, only the escalating cost of health care will break the bank no matter what the President’s policies might be. We need to address it. President Obama has had the courage and I think the vision to say that has to be part of our agenda.

This budget allows for critical investments in health care. The President’s budget will begin the transformation of our health care system by allocating more than $630 billion over 10 years for fundamental health care reforms. How many times have we started this discussion and stopped it? Realizing the health care system in America needs dramatic reform, we find ourselves embroiled in debate and at the end of the day have nothing to show for it. President Obama stepped up in his budget and said: We are going to put the investment on the table to extend health care protection to those who do not have it and make it more affordable for those who do. He made that investment in his budget.

The budget would also support the adoption of health information technology and the widespread use of electronic health records. The Veterans Administration does this. Because they have electronic records, they can make a better diagnosis for a patient, they can avoid errors that might occur while someone is hospitalized, and they can reduce costs. We should do that for our health care system across the board.

The budget also expands research that compares the effectiveness of medical treatment so that patients and physicians have better information on what works and what doesn’t.

It would invest $330 million training doctors, nurses, and dentists we need to fill shortages of health professionals, especially in rural communities.

It would invest over $1 billion to step up food safety efforts at the Food and Drug Administration to prevent the kinds of outbreaks of contaminated food we have seen recently, the most recent being peanut butter, but before that a long list of outbreaks in food safety that concern Americans and their families.

This has been an issue I have pushed for a long time in the House and in the Senate, to try to coordinate our food safety effort in Washington so we can get more for our dollar and protect more families.

These investments will come when we need them. Over 47 million Americans do not have health insurance today—47 million people who woke up this morning realizing they were one accident or one diagnosis away from wiping out their savings. One million families in my home State of Illinois, a State of 12.5 million people, have at least one uninsured, including 360,000 of those families who earn more than $50,000 a year. They earn 1,000 bucks a week and do not have health insurance.

If you look at the cost of health insurance you can understand. For some families, even $50,000 a year makes it difficult to protect everybody. Being uninsured is no longer only the concern of the poor. In fact, the poor are taken care of in our Medicaid Program. It is a risk for many of us, many middle-income families. Members of Congress are pretty lucky. We get the same health care protection that Federal employees receive. It is the best plan in the Nation. But my people in my home State are not that fortunate.

Let me tell you about a fellow in Springfield, my hometown. Doug Mayol, since 1988, has owned a small business in downtown Springfield. He sells cards, gifts, and souvenirs. He is fortunate that his only employee is over 65 years of age and qualifies for Medicare and also receives spousal benefits from her late husband.

If this were not the case, Doug does not think he could possibly provide health insurance for his only employee. He knows, because he has a preexisting condition, that he faces the real possibility of becoming uninsured. Almost 30 years ago, Doug was diagnosed with a congenital heart valve defect. He has no symptoms. But without regular health care, he is at great risk of developing serious problems.

Like most Americans, his health care premiums have risen dramatically in recent years. In 2001, he paid $200 a month for health insurance. In Springfield, IL. In 2005, he paid $400. And after he turned 50 years of age last year, his rate shot up to $750 a month. He has a little business. It is hard for him to pay that.

To keep his insurance affordable, he chose a smaller network of providers and higher deductible, which brought the cost down to $650 a month. Then last year, the payment jumped again to over $1,000 a month. Only by taking the highest deductible has he been able to bring that cost down to $888 a month.

Think about that for a minute. That is $10,000 a year that this small business man has spent for basic health insurance with a high deductible, and he is not even a costly patient. With his high deductible, the insurance company has never paid a claim for illness or injury beyond routine care. Yet his costs have exploded.

He cannot afford not to have health insurance. Because of his faulty heart valve, he needs antibiotics before undergoing even a simple procedure, such as dental work.

Although Doug should see a cardiologist periodically, he avoids it. He fears it would add another red flag to his medical record. Think about that for a second—avoiding basic medical care for fear it will raise the cost of health insurance. That is a reality for a lot of people in America.

Why, in this wealthiest Nation on Earth, do we accept a system such as this, where a small businessman with insurance has to delay preventive care simply to avoid short-term costs, even though the long-term costs because something awful happens, will be far greater?

All Americans want the best health care system in the world. Yet we all know that reform is not easy. The process will be complicated. We will have to compromise. And we will have to work together. But we have to start by laying the foundation. President Obama’s budget does that.

The President’s budget also has a promise for education. The budget provides funding for innovations in the classroom, improved student assessment, improved teacher training, principal preparation, programs that reward teacher performance, and changes in the program, she now pays 7½ percent interest each year. That is higher than she pays for her home mortgage.

Holly heard about a Federal program that encourages teachers to work in a low-income school for 5 years by forgiving a portion of the debt. She taught for 4 years in an inner-city school, but then the school administrators left and the school became extremely unsafe. She left that job. She still has her loans, and she is not sure what she is going to do to repay them without giving up her teaching career. That is not what we need. We need young people who will submit themselves to teaching, not walk away from it. We can do better for Holly Clark. The FFEL program has proven to be an instant tax payer and sometimes unfair to borrowers. The President’s budget shifts the origination of student loans to the Federal Direct Loan Program starting in July of next year. We take the middleman out. We take the bank out of the equation because they are taking a profit. That change saves taxpayers $94 billion over the next decade. The banks are going to squawk. The people who have these programs are going to be upset. They are going to hire the best lobbyists they can get their hands on and come and stand out in the hall and beat on us when we come in to vote. But I hope we remember Holly Clark when we are making those decisions and not the folks with the Gucci loafers out in the hallway.

This budget backs spending on Pell grants mandatory, freeing this essential student aid program from the political process indexing the grants to inflation.

We cannot transform our education system overnight into a world-class system unless we prepare our young people with the best education.

On the issue of energy, the President’s budget also provides a downpayment for a time when oil will be more expensive and a time when oil will be in short supply. The President lays out an aggressive path to reduce our dependence on foreign energy. The President is starting to close the windows and doors and droughts of the future century, will result in lower agricultural productivity, threaten coastal areas with rising waters, increase severe storms and flooding and reduce biodiversity.

These are real changes, some of which will be irreversible, and sometimes unfair to borrowers. The President’s budget proposes a cap-and-trade system to reduce greenhouse gas emissions. We can reduce emissions by 14 percent below 2005 levels by the year 2020, and by 2050 we can cut emissions by 83 percent below 2005 levels.

Some say that is not realistic. They also said President Kennedy putting a man on the Moon was a bad choice for students. A lot of us have known this for a long time. The President’s way of thinking is to reach out to provide a tax cut for every American family earning less than $250,000 a year. Ninety-five percent of American families will not see their taxes increase a single penny under the President’s budget. After 8 years of stagnant wage growth for the middle class, with rising health costs and utilities going up, with the unemployment rate above 8 percent and growing, and with as many as 13 million families

The current student loan FFEL program was an unfortunate choice for Holly Clark from Chicago. Holly wanted to be a teacher. To pay for college and graduate school, she borrowed over $60,000 in student loans. Think about that. She chose this FFEL program because it was available to her, in low interest rates until she could pay off the loans.

Because of fluctuating interest rates and changes in the program, she now pays 7½ percent interest each year. That is higher than she pays for her home mortgage.

The FFEL program has proven to be an instant tax payer and sometimes unfair to borrowers. at risk for losing their homes, American families need a break. This budget would do that.

I have listened to a number of my friends on the Republican side of the aisle criticize this budget. They say it spends too much, taxes too much, we have to borrow too much. They are ignoring the obvious. This President is committed to cutting the deficit in half in his first 4-year term. When President Bush was elected, he inherited a deficit from President Clinton, a surplus in the budget. It had been a 4-year surplus and it was reducing the debt of programs such as Social Security. We were moving in the right direction. Our national debt that we accumulated over the history of the United States to that moment when President George W. Bush took office was about $5 trillion. So the President, George W. Bush, came in with a $5 trillion national debt that he had inherited from George Washington until his moment in history and he inherited a budget surplus.

What happened over the next 8 years? Sadly, under President Bush, we saw the national debt of America more than double in 8 years. The accumulated debt of the United States had produced $5 trillion in debt. The 8 years of the Bush administration more than doubled that debt. President Bush took the surplus of the Clinton years and brought us to the biggest annual deficits in the history of our nation.

Many of those who supported the President’s approach, many of those on the other side of the aisle who voted for his budgets—many who stood in defense of President Bush when he said I don’t want to count the cost of the war; we will set that aside; we will call it an emergency; we will not put it in the budget—are the same people who made that excuse for 7 years during the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan under President Bush. And one lesson we saw the accumulated cost of those wars exceed $700 billion and none of it was in the budget. None of it was accounted for. Many on the other side said that was acceptable. They also supported the President’s idea of tax cuts, tax cuts for some of the wealthiest people in America. Taking these things off budget, tax cuts for the wealthy—what happened? We ended up with the worst deficits we had seen in our history. That is what this President inherited. Now that he has promised to reduce the size of our deficit by half in his first 4 years, many on the other side are standing and saying we are destined now for bankruptcy. Where have they been for the last 8 years? Some of the harshest critics of the President’s budget were giving a stamp of approval, year after year, to President Bush’s budget.

What President Obama is doing is an honest budget, a responsible budget that moves us toward reducing the deficit in a time when the economy is in a sorry situation. I think that is important. I think it is important we come together on a bipartisan basis to pass that. As to those who think this budget borrows too much, this President is on the right track of reducing the deficit. They have been on the wrong track for a long time. These are policies that they have offered before that did not work. They are President Obama’s policies, yesterday’s politics. It is time for something new. It is time for real change. Preparing the budget is about making choices and President Obama’s budget is a document that makes the right choices in a fair, year after year, approach. It is giving tax breaks to working families, putting money into investments so their children can see a brighter future. It is a budget that is responsible. It puts the cost of the war online in this budget so we can track it as part of our real debt. It is a budget that also makes smart investments in America’s future.

It is not just a matter of creating a job, a make-work job. This President’s vision is to create the kind of jobs in energy and new energy for the 21st century; in education, so our kids can compete in this century, and to make sure our health care system is one that gives us quality care at the lowest cost. That embodies three sensible goals that we in America share.

This budget would bring true long-lasting change to America, and I certainly encourage my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to look long and hard at this budget, realize the good things the President is making with this budget, and join him in charting a course of spending for the next 4 years that will move us out of this recession, create jobs and businesses and give America a smart investment for our future.

I yield the floor.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

RECESS

Mr. DURBIN. Madam President, I ask the Senate stand in recess under the previous order.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Senate stands in recess until 2:15 p.m.

NATIONAL SERVICE REAUTHORIZATION ACT—MOTION TO PROCEED—Continued

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Ohio is recognized.

Mr. BROWN. Mr. President, I rise in support of the bipartisan legislation before us today, the Serve America Act. I would like to thank Senators KENNEDY from Massachusetts and HATCH of Utah, as well as Wyoming’s Senator ENZI and Senator MIKULSKI of Maryland for their hard work on this legislation. Last week I held a conference call in my office with two very impressive young men who are a testament to what the Serve America Act is all about. Their names are Mark Rembert and Taylor Stuckert. I met them last year while they were serving in the Peace Corps and they are now living in southwest Ohio that has been devastated by the closure of the Wilmington Airport where DHL employed about 8,000 people—DHL, Astrar, and ABX, three national companies.

Mark and Taylor decided they simply could not sit on the sideline while their community struggled to absorb this tremendous economic blow. Instead they founded Energize Clinton County, a nonprofit focused on economic development and environmental issues.

In the midst of an economic disaster in their community, these two young men, Mark and Taylor, decided to serve. They are examples of what inspired this bill and what service to our country is all about.

I know something personally about City Year, one of the programs within the Serve America Act. City Year is part of AmeriCorps. My daughter Elizabeth served in City Year Philadelphia for 5 years. She paid $700 a month, as were the six or seven roommates she had in an old house on Baltimore Pike near the VA in Philadelphia. They met every Sunday night to talk about how they were going to, after paying their rent—about $300 a month each—how they were going to figure out how to eat. They pooled their resources and figured out how to do that.

During the day—each day of the week—often 6-day weeks, often more—Elizabeth and other of her colleagues would go into a middle school in Philadelphia and work with local students in some of the poor areas of Philadelphia.

This program mattered to those students she helped. It mattered to me. My daughter who I said was paid $700 a month for this service in City Year. It made her more reliable, and it made her more strong. It made her more understanding of the community around her. It taught her so much about these programs over the years, so many of these volunteer service organizations have taught us. Whether it is the Peace Corps or Vista or City Year or Teach America, not just the people who are served by these young people but the people who do the serving, it stays with them the rest of their lives. It matters so much to them as they understand our society even better.

The passage of this legislation will mean even more Americans will be able to answer President Obama’s call to serve. The Serve America Act will provide opportunities for Americans of all ages and from all backgrounds to serve. It invests in action and it promotes existing voluntarism by supporting and expanding existing community service and development programs to tackle the problems at the root of the economic crisis. It strengthens programs such as AmeriCorps, which, contrary to the wholly unwarranted and counterproductive partisan attacks of some of my colleagues, have launched against them, have paid for themselves many times over. When that measure is the impact of these programs on their participants, enabling individuals to find a productive path and avoid a less productive path or whether your measure is the tangible work accomplished in communities throughout this nation, whether your measure is the culture of voluntarism cultivated, choose your measure. AmeriCorps and like programs are a cost-effective means of strengthening our Nation and promoting the old-fashioned values of hard work, empathy, and civic responsibility.

Across the country, the bill would create 175,000 new service opportunities. I am proud to cosponsor the Serve America Act, which programs such as City Year Columbus, Ohio College Advising Corps in Cleveland, the Wood County Corps in Bowling Green would value additional volunteers, and there is no doubt that Ohio would benefit from their work.

Service opportunities will be expanded to incorporate and encourage Americans of every age group: programs such as the Summer of Service Program for middle and high school students, the Youth Engagement Zone Program for young people from low-income areas, and Encore Fellowships for retired Americans. This is not only for young people to volunteer and to serve. The Serve America Act also invests in nonprofit service organizations that do good work. These organizations are on the front lines of this Nation’s economic crisis. They will play an integral role in our recovery. These organizations empower Americans and spur economic growth and community-level.

Those very organizations embody the values that enable our Nation to remain unified when widespread hardship hits and become stronger in the process of turning that hardship around.

The Serve America Act is part of the change this country called for. It not only creates a catalyst for recovery through a renewed service movement, it recognizes the resources and the programs it will take to get us there. I was proud to cosponsor the Serve America Act. I urge my colleagues to support it.

I yield the floor, and I suggest the absence of a quorum.

Mr. PRESIDENT. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

EMPEROR FREE CHOICE ACT

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, I have sought recognition to state my position on the bill known as the Employee Free Choice Act, also known as card check. My vote on this bill is very difficult.

First, on the merits, it is a close call and has been the most heavily lobbed issue I can recall. Second, it is a very emotional issue with labor looking to this legislation to reverse the steep decline in union membership and business expressing great concern about added costs which would drive more companies out of business or overseas.

Perhaps, most of all, it is very hard to disappoint many friends who have supported me over the years, on either side, who are urging me to vote their way. In voting for cloture—that is to cut off debate—in June of 2007, I emphasized in my floor statement and in a Law Review article that I was not supporting the bill on the merits but only to take up the issue of labor law reform.

Hearings had shown that the NLRB was dysfunctional and badly politicized. When Republicans controlled the board, the decisions were for business. With Democrats in control, the decisions were for labor. Some cases took as long as 11 years to decide. The remedies were ineffective.

Regrettably, there has been widespread intimidation on both sides. Testimony shows union officials visit workers’ homes with strong-arm tactics and refuse to leave until cards are signed. Similarly, employees have complained about being captives in employers’ meetings with threats of being fired and other strong-arm tactics.

On the merits, the issue which has emerged at the top of the list for me is the elimination of the secret ballot, which is the cornerstone of how contests are decided in a democratic society. The anti-union compressor arbitration is a particularly bad feature. The brilliant labor lawyer he has this provision, if an agreement is not reached within 120 days may subject the employer to a deal he or she cannot live with. Such arbitration runs contrary to the basic tenet of the Wagner Act for collective bargaining, which makes the employer liable only for a deal to which he or she agrees. The arbitration provision could be substantially improved by the last best offer procedure, which would limit the arbitrator’s discretion and prompt the parties to move to more reasonable positions.

In seeking more union membership and negotiating leverage, labor has a valid point that they have suffered greatly from outsourcing of jobs to foreign countries and losses in pension and health benefits. President Obama has pressed labor’s argument that the middle class needs to be strengthened through more power to unions in their negotiations with business.

The better way to expand labor’s clout in collective bargaining is through amendments to the NLRA rather than eliminating the secret ballot and mandatory arbitration. Some of the possible provisions for such remedial legislation are set forth in the appendix to this statement.

In June 2007, the Employee Free Choice Act was virtually monolithic: 50 Democrats for cloture; and 48 Republicans against. I was the only Republican to vote for cloture. The prospects for the next cloture vote are virtually the same.

No Democratic Senator has spoken on the Employee Choice Act. Republican Senators are outspoken in favor of a filibuster. With the prospects of a Democratic win in Minnesota yet uncertain, it appears the 59 Democrats will vote to proceed, with 40 Republicans in opposition. If so, the decisive vote would be mine.

In a highly polarized Senate, many decisive votes are left to a small group who are willing to listen, reject ideological dogmatism, disagree with the party line, and make an independent judgment. If I can be mine.

The emphasis on bipartisanship is misplaced. There is no special virtue in having some Republicans and some Democrats take similar positions. The value, really, is independent thought and an objective judgment. It obviously cannot be that all Democrats come to one conclusion and all Republicans come to the opposite conclusion by expressing their individual objective judgments.

Senators’ sentiments expressed in the cloakroom frequently differ dramatically from their votes in the well of the Senate. The Nation would be better served, in my opinion, with public policy determined by independent, objective legislative judgments.

The problems of the recession would make this a particularly bad time to enact the Employee Free Choice Act. Employers understandably complain that adding such a provision would result in further job losses. If efforts to give labor sufficient bargaining power through amendments to the NLRA are unsuccessful, then I would be willing to reconsider the Employee Choice legislation when the economy returns to normalcy.

I am announcing my decision now because I have consulted with a very large number of interested parties on both sides and I have made up my mind. Knowing that I will not support the cloture on this bill, Senators may choose to move on and amend the NLRA as I have suggested or otherwise. This announcement should end the rumor mill that I have made some deal for my political advantage. I have not traded my vote in the past and would not do so now.

I ask unanimous consent that the text be printed in the Record, as well as an appendix with suggested revisions to the National Labor Relations Act.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the Record, as follows:
STATEMENT BY ARLEN SPECTER

My vote on the Employees Choice Bill, also known as Card Check, is very difficult for many reasons. First, on the merits, it is a close call and has been the most heavily lobbied bill on Capitol Hill. APPENDIX

SOME SUGGESTED REVISIONS TO THE NATIONAL LABOR RELATIONS ACT

(1) Establishing a timetable:
(a) Require that an election must be held within 10 days of a filing of a petition from the employer.
(b) In the absence of a joint petition, require the NLRB to resolve issues on the bargaining unit and eligibility to vote within 14 days from the filing of the petition and the election 7 days thereafter. The Board may extend the time for the election to 14 additional days if the Board sets forth specifics on factual or legal issues of exceptional complexity justifying the extension.
(c) Challenges to the voting would have to be filed within 5 days with the Board having 15 days to respond to them. If the Board fails to issue a decision within 10 days if they find issues of exceptional complexity.
(d) Additional labor practices:
(a) an employer or union official visits an employee at their home without prior consent for any purpose related to a representative capacity;
(b) an employer holds employees in a " captive audience" speech unless the union has equal time under identical circumstances.
(c) an employer or union engages in campaign related activities aimed at employees within 24 hours prior to an election.

(2) Authorizing the National Labor Relations Board to impose treble back pay and back pay with interest when an employee is unlawfully fired.

(4) Authorizing civil penalties up to $20,000 per violation on an NLRB finding of willful and repeated violations of employees' statutory rights by an employer or union during an election campaign.

(5) Require the parties to begin negotiations within 21 days after an election is certified. If there is no agreement after 120 days from the first meeting, either party may call for mediation by the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service.

(6) On a finding that a party is not negotiating in good faith, an order may be issued establishing a schedule for negotiations and imposing injunctive relief.

(7) Broaden the provisions for injunctive relief with reasonable attorneys' fees a finding that either party is not acting in good faith.

(8) Require a dissent by a member of the Board to be completed 45 days after the majority opinion is filed.

(9) Establish a certiorari-type process where the Board would exercise discretion on reviewing challenges from decisions by an administrative law judge or regional director.

(10) If the Board does not grant review or fails to issue a decision within 180 days of receiving the record, the decision of the administrative judge or regional director would be final.

(11) Authorizing the award of reasonable attorneys' fees on a finding of harassment, causing unnecessary delay or bad faith.

RECORD under "Text of Amendments."
Mr. CRAPO. I send an amendment to the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk reads as follows:

The President from Idaho [Mr. CRAPO], for himself and Mr. CORKER, proposes an amendment numbered 688 to amendment No. 687.

The amendment is as follows:

(Purpose: To increase the borrowing authority of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC) to $100 billion and provide for additional amounts above the $100 billion pursuant to subparagraph (A) of subparagraph (a) of section 14(a) of the Federal Deposit Insurance Act (12 U.S.C. 1824(a)) is amended—

(1) by striking "$30,000,000,000" and inserting "$100,000,000,000";

(2) by striking "The Corporation is authorized to borrow" and inserting the following:

"(1) IN GENERAL.—The Corporation is authorized to borrow;"

(3) by striking "There are hereby" and inserting the following:

"(2) FUNDING.—The Corporation is hereby authorized to issue, sell, and redeem debt of the Corporation, the proceeds of which shall be used—

(A) for the additional borrowing authority and its intended uses;"

(4) by adding at the end the following:

"(3) TEMPORARY INCREASES AUTHORIZED.—

(A) RECOMMENDATIONS FOR INCREASE.—During the period beginning on the date of enactment of this paragraph and ending on December 31, 2010, if, upon the written recommendation of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System (upon a vote of not less than two-thirds of the members of the Board of Governors) and the Board of Directors of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (if the Board of Directors of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation determines that additional amounts above the $100,000,000,000 amount specified in paragraph (1) are necessary, such amount shall be increased to the amount so determined to be necessary, not to exceed $500,000,000,000.

(B) TEMPORARY AUTHORIZATION.—If the borrowing authority of the Corporation is increased above $100,000,000,000 pursuant to subparagraph (A), the Corporation shall promptly submit to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs of the Senate and the Committee on Financial Services of the House of Representatives describing the reasons and need for the additional borrowing authority and its intended uses.

Mr. CRAPO. Mr. President, today we face very difficult economic threats in our financial industries. It is important that we consider the possibility that our regulatory authorities do not have sufficient authority necessary to deal with potential financial institution failures. As a result, this is not an acknowledgment that anything like that will happen, but there is certainly the threat and concern in our financial markets as to whether we need to have additional protective authorities.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation protects against the loss of insured deposits if a federally insured bank or savings institution fails. It is important to note, though, that depositors are protected by Federal guarantors, and these guarantees are, in the event of a bank failure, immediately protected by the FDIC. It is not the taxpayers but fees and assessments paid by the depository institutions themselves that cover the cost of this protection. However, the level of borrowing authority the FDIC has to protect the banks has increased since 1991. At that time, the amount was set at $30 billion. The assets in the banking industry under protection have tripled since that time from $4.5 trillion to $13.6 trillion. Yet the borrowing authority of the FDIC has not been increased.

This legislation does two significant things. It increases the borrowing authority of the FDIC from $30 billion to $100 billion, approximating the percentage increase of the assets under protection and the growth in the assets under protection since the original level was set in 1991. The bill also authorizes a temporary increase in borrowing authority from that $100 billion increased level up to but not to exceed $500 billion. It requires the FDIC to require the concurrence of the FDIC, the Federal Reserve Board, and the Treasury Department, in consultation with the President. The reason for this additional authority is because of the extreme difficulties that are occurring in our economy, and we need to ensure that the FDIC has the necessary capacity to deal with any such threats.

This legislation is very important and urgent. The reason I bring it forth on the floor today is because we don’t have time to wait to consider this legislation. It exists in a freestanding bill form on a bipartisan basis, with Republicans and Democrats in strong support of the legislation. I believe there is strong agreement throughout the financial industries that this kind of increased borrowing authority for the FDIC is helpful and an important piece of the solution to the problems we face today.

As a matter of fact, one of the reasons it is urgent is not only because we need to be sure the FDIC is properly protected or in a position to properly protect depositories and financial institutions but also because in order to deal with this needed fund, the FDIC is currently considering significant increases in assessments to our Nation’s banks. These increased assessments in many cases, in some of our smaller and midsize communities, are creating a tremendous impact on the banks. Which, in turn, then reduces the potential of these banks to engage in lending authority, the type of credit activity we want to see happening. While Congress waits, we see credit being further restricted by the failure of Congress to take this action and free up the FDIC authority.

Again, another one of the reasons I bring the amendment today is because this legislation, even though it is supported on a broad, bipartisan basis, is being caught up with other issues in the Senate that could delay its consideration and result in the imposition of significantly increased assessments on our Nation’s banks. That is the cramp-down legislation in terms of bankruptcy proposals that have been put forward.

Everyone in this body and throughout Congress and the country recognizes that we are having a difficult time dealing with these controversial proposals about our bankruptcy laws which have become known as the cram-down provisions that may or may not gain support in this Senate for passage. I personally think it is unlikely that the cram-down legislation will ultimately gain sufficient support in the Senate to be passed, but regardless of whether that happens, it is a difficult, controversial issue. This legislation, which is not difficult and not controversial, is being slowed down by being tied with the bankruptcy cram-down provisions. Because of that, it is imperative that we move forward as expeditiously as possible, consider the amendment, and move forward with the passage of the important reforms necessary for us to properly address the credit crisis and the financial threats our Nation faces today.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who seeks recognition?

Ms. MIKULSKI. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. CARPER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. KAUFMAN). Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. CARPER. I say to the President, this is an ironic that both of us, who are from Delaware, are in the Chamber right now, and I want to start off by telling a short story about the University of Delaware, an institution I had there not long ago. I was invited, as my colleague has been invited, to speak to students and to host and be a part of a townhall meeting a month or two ago.

I opened up by talking to the students for a bit of the time, and then I took questions or comments from the students. I felt one of the most poignant questions was asked at the end of the session. Most of the students there were freshmen, sophomores, and juniors.

One young lady, who asked a question at the end of the session, was a senior. She is going to be graduating in a couple months. The question on her mind is, frankly, on the minds of a lot of the graduating seniors at colleges and universities inside of Delaware and throughout our country. I might also add, it is on the minds of a lot of folks who are about to finish high school or who have finished and are still looking for work.

The young lady who spoke recently at our forum at the University of Delaware said: I am going to graduate in May, I am not sure what I am going to do. She said: There used to be a lot of employers who came to this campus and other campuses looking for people to hire, to come and join them at their companies or at their workplaces. She said: And so many that is going to be this year, for reasons I think we all understand.

While I am hopeful and encouraged this is not a permanent phenomenon but one that will be short lived, relatively speaking, our concern is justified. I shared with her that when I graduated from Ohio State many a moon ago I entered a life of service for about 4½ or 5 years with the U.S. Navy. It was a deal I gladly entered into, Navy ROTC. The Navy helped put me through school at Ohio State, and when it was over, I owed the Navy some years of my life. I was very pleased to give that time, even in the middle of a hot war in Southeast Asia. What I decided to do for the woman that day at the University of Delaware is that if she decided she did not find the job she wants with a company she wants or some other employer she is not working for she should consider spending maybe not just a couple of months but maybe a year or even two in serving.

There are any number of opportunities to serve in Delaware and throughout the country. In fact, in some ways the need for people to serve is greater than it has been in a long time because nonprofits and others are cutting back and there is a need for those who will volunteer and step forward and say: Here I am. Send me. Or what can I do to help out?

I am not sure to what extent she internalized that message and is going to go out and look for opportunities to serve, but I know there is a great need for people who will serve.

For us, part of the challenge is trying to make sure those who want to serve can identify the opportunities to serve, those who want to make a difference in their lives, and find some help and guidance in getting to places where they can make a difference with their lives.

The thing I like most of all about this legislation—we talk a lot here about that we ought to be more bipartisan. And God knows I believe that. I know the Presiding Officer feels that way. But one of the great things about this legislation is that it is about as bipartisan as it gets.

I want to take a moment to commend a couple of folks who are on the floor. I see Senator HATCH talking with Senator DODD. Both of them have been very instrumental in this legislation. I commend Senator MIKULSKI, Senator HATCH, Senator ENZI, Senator MCCAIN—I do not know if he is a co-sponsor of this bill. He has been a big champion of service over the years. I commend Senator KENNEDY, who I believe was here yesterday. He is a huge champion of this legislation. This legislation enjoys broad bipartisan support.

I say to my friend from Connecticut: Good going. Thank you for being the wind under our wings on this issue for a long time and for continuing to inspire us and encouraging us to go forward.

A couple years from now—maybe not even that long—I hope I run into that young woman again who asked that question at the University of Delaware a month or so ago. I hope she says to me: I took your advice. I looked around and I found a couple of opportunities and maybe I decided to do that for a year or so. At the end of my year so or so, the job market improved, the economy improved, and I went to work for some other employer and went on with the rest of my life.

One of the things I look for as an employer, one of the things I look for when there is a downtime, like right now, a downtime in our economy—when a lot of people are looking for employment opportunities and maybe not finding it, is there some space to fill in their lives—how do they fill up that space? How do they fill up that dead time?

I am always encouraged when I find someone who says: I decided to go out and work to help make sure they were going to be successful in life. I worked with veterans. I worked with Boy Scouts or Girl Scouts. I worked in Boys & Girls Clubs. I mentored. I did all kinds of things. The idea behind this legislation is to better ensure that those who want to serve—maybe who do not have a lot to do in their lives right now; they have some free time they have not had for a long time because their studies are over—we want to make sure they will have some opportunities, good opportunities, to serve.

I will close with this: These are the words I actually shared with the University of Delaware students the other day: I look for joy. I look for joy. We always look for joy. Everybody wants to be happy. Almost everybody I know wants to be happy. There are any number of sources of joy people turn to from time to time. In my own life, I have always found the best source of joy—the one that never goes away, the one that never disappears, which always can be counted on—the best source of joy in our lives is helping other people, finding ways to give of ourselves to help other people.

For those young people in this country who decide to seize on the opportunities that will be provided through this legislation’s enactment, they will have the opportunity to get something. Maybe it will provide good letters of recommendation going forward. Maybe it will provide for a stronger resume going forward. I think even more importantly than that, they are going to do a lot of good for folks with their lives. They are going to do a lot of good for folks. They are going to help those people who need to be helped, and maybe, as important as anything, the one who serves will enjoy a sense of satisfaction that, frankly, is sometimes hard to come by.

So I again applaud those who provided leadership on this bill, and I look forward to supporting it as we go forward this week. Thank you.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Connecticut.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, let me begin by thanking my colleague from Delaware for his generous comments. He has been an advocate and strong supporter of the notion of service, and for that I thank him. I also commend my colleague from Maryland, Senator MIKULSKI, as well as Senator HATCH, Senator T. KENNEDY, and Senator ENZI, who have all been strong supporters, over the years, of the idea of providing venues and opportunities for people to serve our country in one capacity or another.

I rise this afternoon to offer my support for the S 3638—Serve America Act. Four and a half decades ago, I was with my parents on a very cold January 20, not very far from where I am standing today, watching a young man by the name of John F. Kennedy, at the age of the 43, become the President of the United States on the east front of the Capitol. It was a bitter cold day—we had a terrible snowstorm on the day before that January 20, 1961. As a very young boy of 12 or 13 years of age, I listened to the President’s inaugural address, and it is with a lifelong commitment to get involved in things larger than ourselves. I was so motivated by his remarks, as were millions of others, that a few years later when I finished college, I joined the Peace Corps. I traveled to the Dominican Republic, not far from the Haitian border, where I spent 2 years in the mountains of that country working with the people in the small village of Benito Moncion in the province of Santiago Rodriguez. It was a life-changing experience. I came back from that experience a very different person than when I had left.

I was joined by millions of others, who went off and joined VISTA, the military, and community action organizations all across the country. I have been asked so many times over the years why I joined the Peace Corps. Why did other people go into the Marine Corps, the Justice Department, and serve their country? The reason I decided to do that was four and a half decades is, because an American President asked me to. It’s not any more complicated than that. Someone asked me to serve, and the thought that someone believed I could do something to make a difference was a form ofattery. I suppose that it also provided the opportunity for me to meet that challenge. It did so by creating the structures that allowed us to step into a program that gave us the opportunity to serve.

That is what we are doing again here today: providing the structure that will allow for people today—who are no different from any other generation of Americans over our two centuries as a Republic—to be asked to serve. People today want to serve, and they have the same desires and ambitions to make a difference for our country in their local communities, in our States, and in our Nation.

What Senator MIKULSKI, Senator HATCH, and Senator ENZI have done with this bill is to create the architecture by which when we ask people to serve, they have a place to go to have a spot for you to have a place where you can make a difference in our country. That is the brilliance of this idea. This bill expands opportunities not only to college graduates or to those out of graduate school; we actually begin in this bill by offering you the opportunity to serve as a middle school student, a high school student, or someone who does want to go on to higher education. Maybe most exciting of all, we offer these opportunities to people who perhaps never thought to give back—people in our country who have been at work providing for their families, engaged in business practices by which they developed their wisdom and expertise over the years, and who have come to realize perhaps one day they would like to share that. What a wonderful opportunity for our country to reach out to that generation of retirees and say: Here is an opportunity for you to continue to make a difference.

After I finished the Peace Corps, I came back and served for 6 years in the Army Reserves, the National Guard. That was a good experience. It was very different, obviously, to go off to basic training at Port Dix, NJ, but nonetheless a very worthwhile experience. So service covers a wide range of activities. In my case, it was the Peace Corps, then it was the Army Reserves, and then it was Big Brothers Big Sisters. I was a Big Brother in my State of Connecticut, but service has been a major part of my life.

I would like to think today that to the extent I have made a difference in this job, it was affected certainly by my family, first and foremost, but also by the people whose names will never be known by others, who had a huge influence on me. People in that small village in the Dominican Republic, people in my community in Connecticut, people I met in the military and who have helped me and taught me the lessons of how serving each other, making a difference in each other's lives, can make a significant difference for many more.

In Connecticut, community members, both young and old, are giving their time.

In Hamden, CT, older Americans such as Mozelle Vann, a retired social worker, are working to make sure elementary school students don't fall through the cracks. One example, one woman, making a difference, affecting the lives of students who are going to be enriched and lead better lives because Mozelle Vann is giving something back.

High school students in Waterbury, CT, are giving back to their communities by taking part in the Youth Health Service Corps created by the Connecticut Area Health Education Center. This organization works with disadvantaged high school students interested in pursuing health careers. Lord knows we need people to move into professions relating to health care. These students complete rigorous training and then serve in the midst of determining what their futures will hold, are being offered the opportunity to learn about health care services, making a difference in a nursing home that is most likely short-handed, and serving people in that community.

This past year, residents worked with students to create a Martin Luther King, Jr. Day event that brought together many students to continue discussing Dr. King's impact on our Nation.

There are as many examples as there are communities and individuals whom we represent of people who want to serve. And I think we can make a significant difference for many more Americans to serve. Just as when I was in the Peace Corps,I have no doubt that the younger generation will respond to that call.

The Semester of Service Act is also a large part of the bill. The bill provides our middle and high school students unique opportunities to serve during the summer months. Already in Connecticut, more than 5,500 students take part in community service activities linked to academic achievement. With this legislation, that is something we will be able to do across the country.

The bill also includes many parts of the Encore Service Act, a bill Senator COCHRAN and I authored to help harness the enormous expertise and wisdom of older Americans to have in their communities, as I mentioned a moment ago. We have all heard about the challenges posed by the 78 million baby boomers nearing retirement age. Yet Americans are living longer and healthier lives than at any time in our history, and it is time to look at that growing population of experienced, capable Americans who want to work and contribute not just their professions and backgrounds as the asset it is, and to realize what a difference it can make in our country.

Together, the programs included in this bill will encourage older Americans to serve communities with the greatest need, whether through AmeriCorps or through the Silver Scholars Program. The legislation also offers Encore Fellowships for older Americans who have already had full, successful careers to lend their professional expertise and experience to the cause of community and public service. It expands the capacity and builds on the success of current senior programs. So I again commend my colleagues for including that language of which I am proud to be a leading co-sponsor, for the accomplishments they have achieved. As I said a moment ago, this bill is creating the opportunity for Americans to serve. Just as when I was in the Peace Corps, we have the opportunity to get deeply involved and serve those communities. That is the benefit. Some discuss the cost of the 75,000 AmeriCorps members, but the fact that we are able to get 1 million people to also serve is tremendously worthwhile. Which is why I am pleased that in this bill, we increase the AmeriCorps education award and peg its increases to the Pell Grant. I again thank the authors of this bill, of which I am proud to be a leading co-sponsor, for the accomplishments they have achieved. For all of the reasons I have mentioned, this bill is very worthy of our unanimous support, and I hope it will enjoy that. This is one of those moments when I think all of us, despite our political differences from time to time, recognize the value of this. Whether it is in faith-based organizations, whether it is in community organizations, we are a richer, stronger, more vibrant nation because people have the opportunity to serve each other. There is nothing more gratifying, nothing you will ever do that will give you a greater sense of gratification than knowing you have helped another human being. Particularly in times such as these when people are struggling—losing jobs, homes, savings—they want to know if anybody can help. Every single one of us can make a difference in the life of somebody else. Providing that opportunity today, with the structure that Senator Mikulski, Senator Kennedy, Senator HATCH, and Senator ENZI have created, is just what we need. So I commend them for it.

MIKE CRAPO, the Senator from Idaho, and Senator HATCH, and Senator ENZI have created, is just what the Crapo amendment would do. It is just what we need. So I commend that amendment, a proposal to deal with the Crapo amendment, a proposal to deal with the Crapo amendment. Let me say that I support what my good friend and a very valuable amendment, a proposal to deal with the Crapo amendment. First, on the Serve America Act, I wish to say on the Senate floor that we really appreciate the contribution he has made to this bill. When Senator Kennedy and Senator HATCH were working on it, I know they had three goals: how we could reinvigorate national service, how we could refocus it in a contemporary way, as well as how we could reenergize it.

I think the Senator’s ideas were some of the best, involving middle school children and so on. They have been outstanding. That is no surprise because the Senator has been involved with this not only in his own personal life—walking his own talk as a Peace Corps volunteer. We always think maybe it is only the affluent and the young who can serve. The Senator from Connecticut was the one who said: Wait a minute. Everybody can serve. It doesn’t matter what your age or your income is.

I think the original bill was better because of the philosophy of the Senator. Now we can see that here. It is a philosophy about the empowerment of people. We thank the Senator for that.

On the banking bill, I too, agree with the Senator. He can offer the amendment, but this could sink the bill in the process. I hope he will withdraw this amendment and offer it on a more appropriate vehicle.

Again, I thank the Senator for his work today and for his work as a Senator.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. Udall of Colorado). The Senator from Georgia is recognized.

Mr. ISAKSON. Mr. President, I am glad the Senator from Connecticut and the Senator from Utah are on the Senate floor. I rise to speak in favor of the Serve America Act and to commend the Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions Committee for the diligent work they did on this reauthorization.

There are a lot of people who will poke fun at voluntarism or at programs or say we are always creating more and others have my commitment that unless we act, there is a catastrophic event that could occur. But clearly we need to move on this. He and others have my commitment that we are going to achieve that, but at this point I am still—this is important to us in the United States, and it is important to our reputation around the world.

I also want to acknowledge his support on this effort, along with Senators HATCH and Kennedy. This past Saturday, I attended one of the most moving ceremonies of my life—moving in a sad way but also in an uplifting way.

Unfortunately, a wonderful young lady, 24 years old, from Cumming, GA, Kate Puzy, was killed in Benin. A Peace Corps volunteer who graduated first in her class in high school, was an honors graduate from William and Mary, and she studied French in Paris to learn the language that led her to be able to go to this part of the world and teach this poor African nation about agriculture and other skills. She served since July of 2007 and was in the last 2 months of her service in Benin.

I also want to take a minute—Senator Dodd served in the Peace Corps, and I wanted him to hear this because I want to acknowledge his support on this legislation. He is a great American. I left with my respects to a great American. I left with my respects to a great American. He is personally a good friend of mine. His daughter Michelle has dedicated her life to the organization of volunteer efforts in this country to improve the plight of other people. She now heads the Points of Light Foundation, started by George Herbert Walker Bush, which helps people around the country. For Michelle’s everlasting support and contribution to voluntarism, I give her my credit.

Madam President, I thank the distinguished Senator from Georgia. He has been a prime sponsor of this legislation in previous Congresses. I think around here I admire any more than I admire him. He is a terrific addition to the Senate. I am honored that he would be on this bill and be willing to speak for it. That means a lot to me, and it is going to mean a lot to the folks in his home State and all over this country. It is the right thing to do. I thank him personally for being such a great Senator.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, I wish to make a statement to discuss the role of the State service commissions under this bill and the existing national service system. One of the things that was very important to me when we drafted this legislation was to make sure that the States were given a primary role in the program so we would have 50 State laboratories using this program. We didn't just want to add a level of Federal bureaucracy. Time and time again, it has been shown that State governments are more responsive and in tune with the needs of their communities and, with this bill, we will put that resource to good use.

For those who do not know, State service commissions are Governor-appointed public agencies or nonprofit organizations made up of more than 1,100 commissioners—private citizens helping lead the Nation's philanthropic movement. The Nation's 52 State service commissions currently grant more than $220 million in AmeriCorps funds and $26 million in State-based initiatives with State or private funds to support citizen service and voluntarism in America.

In Utah, this role is filled by the Utah Commission on Volunteers, which is overseen by our Lieutenant Governor, a great Lieutenant Governor here, a great public servant, Gary Herbert. They oversee the work of more than 8,000 Utahans who participate in national service programs, including the AmeriCorps, Learn and Serve, and, of course, Senior Corps programs, to mention a few.

The Serve America Act will triple the overall number of programs, if you will, for commissions over the course of the next 5 years, increasing participants from 75,000 to 250,000. Effective grants oversight and planning by commissions is essential to the integrity of these new programs. The State commissions will administer five new corps, five grant competitions, and the Serve America fellowships program, which is an individual placement program that will be very administratively helpful to get members to rural communities and small organizations.

Increasingly, State commissions take the lead role of managing volunteers and doing so in response to natural disasters, which has been particularly important in the gulf coast hurricane recovery and Midwest flood relief. For example, the Iowa Commission on Volunteer Service last year set up eight volunteer reception centers, staffed with AmeriCorps members, that helped increase and better utilize traditional volunteers in Iowa's historic flooding and tornadoes of last summer. Those centers connected over 800,000 volunteer hours to families who called in for help. These are the central points for deployment for faith-based groups, schools, and businesses that sent volunteers to help.

AmeriCorps members often lead teams of unaffiliated volunteers after training to get to the scenes of disaster. This bill was valued at over $13 million by FEMA in savings to the taxpayers, and it is still going on today. In fact, two of the centers are being run for the rebuilding phase and over 1,000 AmeriCorps members will help support the massive rebuilding efforts of this past summer. I think it is clear the State service commissions are up to the task of overseeing much of the work that will be done under the Serve America Act. I certainly will be glad to see them take on this much larger role that this bill gives them the responsibility to do.

I think I have a firm believer of one reason why our economy has run so well in the past and one reason why we have a Federal Republic that has lasted all these years is because we recognize that with these 50 States, we have 50 State laboratories to test out these programs. Then we can pick and choose which ones are the most successful and why. It is great to have them competing against each other, having them setting examples for each other, having them open doors for each other. There is a lot to that. This bill basically turns over the effective running of all these funds to State representatives and to State volunteer movements and commissions, State service commissions.

We will learn a lot from this. We have already learned a lot, but we will learn even more, and as we move toward 250,000 volunteers under this program, that will be extended to probably at least 7 million or 8 million more voluntary hours for giving this type of service—at least these 7 million or 8 million. We do pay people a small stipend that is less than the minimum wage, less than the poverty level, but that extrapolates into as many as 7 million people, maybe even more—we hope more—who will actually volunteer at no cost to the Government and save trillions of dollars over the years.

This is a conservative program in many respects and it is a liberal program in the sense that it helps so many people. Conservatives want to help all these people too. I guess the best thing to say is it is neither conservative nor liberal. Although it has the best instincts of both sides who come together in the best interest of helping their fellow men, women, and children in this great country.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk
will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk pro-
cceeded to call the roll.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I am sure there are others who wish to speak on the Crapo amendment. However, either speaking on the Crapo amendment or the bill, we ask people to come over and talk on it. In the meantime, we would be willing to set this amendment aside. If there are other amendments the minority wishes to offer, we are certainly not going to stop them from doing that. I think we should get all the amendments we can on this legislation.

So if there are other amendments people have, there is no stopping them from offering them.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk
will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk pro-
cceeded to call the roll.

Mr. KAUFMAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without
objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. KAUFMAN. Mr. President, I would like to begin by thanking my distinguished colleague, Senator Mikulski, for her effective leadership steering this bill through the HELP Committee while gaining bipartisan support.

The strong support this bill enjoys is not surprising given her stewardship and, of course, the hard work of Senator KENNEDY who brought us to this point.

I would also like to thank Senators
HATCH and ENZI for their work on this bill.

When we work together across the aisle, the end result is a better bill and good governance.

I can think of no bill that better represents the values of America than the Serve America Act.

It will expand the opportunities for Americans to serve their communities and their Nation.

It makes me—and I think all of us here proud that each year over 60 million Americans volunteer, donating over 8 billion hours of their own time, their own lives—to make our country—and the world—a better place.

We all know that right now, our country needs those volunteers at our schools, hospitals, and shelters more than ever. Nonprofits are doing all that they can to help those who have lost their jobs, their houses, their

The bill recognizes the need to rein-forse and strengthen this system in a number of ways.

I recently spoke here in the Senate
about the need for our country to reset its focus on how best to change the culture of our economy away from a Wall Street profit-first mentality to one that prioritizes jobs and careers that will help our Nation tackle the challenges it currently faces.

I believe that the vitality of our conomy rests with our ability to be the world’s leader in innovation, and I believe this means that we must do more to attract the best and the brightest to careers in science and engeering.

Those who have dedicated themselves to these fields have much to contribu-
t beyond making our economy competitive; they also contribute to our com-
unities’ well-being.

This bill, I am proud to say, recognizes the important role that engineers
can play in bettering our communities.

I ask unanimous consent that the HELP Committee for expanding the purpose of the bill to include providing service opportunities for our Nation’s retiring professionals, including those retiring from the science, technical, engineering, and mathematics professions—
also known as ‘‘STEM’’ jobs.

Not only will this allow us to tap the unique skills and knowledge of our re-

This bill will send retired engineers to share their wisdom and experience

Ultimately, they will help these young people understand not only the important role that science and math community’s needs.

This bill recognizes the need to rein-forse and strengthen this system in a number of ways.

I recently spoke here in the Senate
about the need for our country to reset
its focus on how best to change the culture of our economy away from a Wall Street profit-first mentality to one that prioritizes jobs and careers that will help our Nation tackle the challenges it currently faces.

I believe that the vitality of our conomy rests with our ability to be the world’s leader in innovation, and I believe this means that we must do more to attract the best and the brightest to careers in science and engeering.

Those who have dedicated themselves
to these fields have much to contribu-
t beyond making our economy competitive; they also contribute to our com-
unities’ well-being.

This bill, I am proud to say, recognizes the important role that engineers
can play in bettering our communities.

I ask unanimous consent that the pose of the bill to include providing service

opportunities for our Nation’s retiring professionals, including those retiring from the science, technical, engineering, and mathematics professions—
also known as ‘‘STEM’’ jobs.

Not only will this allow us to tap the unique skills and knowledge of our retired STEM workforce, but it will allow us to strengthen the STEM education pipeline.

This bill specifically allows funds to be used to integrate service-learning programs into

The Serve America Act will help our young people identify those challenges and link them with real opportunities to make a difference—opportunities like improving energy efficiency, working toward energy independence for America, bolstering disaster preparedness and response, promoting environmental sustainability, strengthening our education and health care infrastructure, and improving opportunities for economically disadvantaged individuals.
These challenges are daunting, yet I know that if asked, a new generation of engineers and scientists will rise to the occasion.

I stand in proud support of the Serve America Act, as it will inspire multiple generations to volunteer and to engage in national service.

Their generosity will not only strengthen America—but the world. I appreciate my colleagues’ allowing me the opportunity to explain how the service opportunities this bill creates are also opportunities for our practicing and retired engineers to serve their fellow citizens—ensuring that that our country’s future STEM workforce is strong, diverse enough, and motivated enough to tackle the greatest challenges facing America.

I will close by once again thanking Senators Mikulski, Kennedy, Hatch, and Enzi for their leadership.

Mr. President, I yield the floor and note the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

Mr. DEMINT. I ask unanimous consent for the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. DEMINT. Mr. President, I wish to speak for a few minutes on the Serve America Act. I think this is a great opportunity to explain what it is about a lot of the Members of the Senate. I certainly appreciate and applaud the sponsors of this bill for their good intentions and know their hearts are in the right place. Some of my best friends are supporting this bill. But I think, as we look at what is good about the hearts of many Members of the Senate, we need to recognize this bill does represent a lot of what is wrong with our Federal Government today—a lot of our philosophies, and a lot of our departures from a constitutional form of government.

What works in America today is our civil society—a lot of the volunteer groups that many of us have been a part of. I know for years I spent more time in United Way and a lot of the charity groups, being on their boards back in my community, and I saw what the volunteer arts groups and PTAs and other subsidies, you make it so government charity is anathema to our Constitution stands for. Despite our good intentions, where we try to implant social justice and loving our compassion through the force of Government, we are effectively violating our oath of office here.

Well-intended legislation has left more than half of all Americans dependent on Government. Today in America over half of Americans get their income from the government or a government source. Another 20 percent gets their income and health care from Medicare or Social Security. Once you add in welfare and other subsidies, you make it so over half of all Americans are already dependent on the Government. This bill proposes to spend nearly $6 billion over 5 years, which means it will be probably $10 billion, probably more, over a 10-year period. It will have nearly a quarter of Americans working for it, which would be the 14th largest company, as far as employees, in the entire world.

What have we done here that suggests we can manage anything like that? Do you see anything in our history, as a Federal Government, that shows we have the ability to effectively manage something like that without extreme levels of waste and fraud and abuse? Look what we have done recently with the stimulus plan and the $78 billion in bailouts that has come to light what is actually happening with that money, people are outraged at what is going on. Despite the good intentions of this bill, we are creating a huge new government entity that will be unmanageable and violates some of the core principles of our civil society. Every time the Government steps in to solve a problem, it creates three new problems in its place.

This bill is everything wrong with how Government does business. Government will make service organizations less effective, less responsive, and less personal. When the French historian de Tocqueville came to the United States not long after we were founded, one of the things that amazed him about our country that was so different from France was that in his home country when there was a problem, people would say: Someone ought to do it and government should do it; but in America, if someone saw a problem, they went and got a friend and formed a small group and solved the problem themselves. Much of that was motivated by religious convictions that our place in this world is not only to help ourselves but to love and help those around us. That was key.

Jefferson called it little democracies, when he saw these little groups all around America voluntarily doing things to solve problems and make communities better. Burke called them little platoons. Most people who understand America know that those voluntary groups are what made our country great and what sustain us even today. Civil society, because it is communities, not by its fruits, but by its motives—charity, donations, giving, without thought of getting anything in return. This is the selfless sacrifice that happens throughout America today. This is what works.

What does not work is what we are doing right here. The big difference is private service organizations exist for the people who receive the aid. Government service organizations exist for the people who give it. In this case, for the people who are paid to do it. You cannot pay people to volunteer and expect the organization to remain focused on its mission. Charity is a private, moral impulse, not a government program.

Government will not and, by definition, cannot strengthen and replace the civil society. Volunteerism is something that works in America. When we think of America, we do not think of Government and Presidents, we think of Little League games and PTA meetings and bake sales.

Civil society is America. It responds to needs, meets challenges, and solves problems because it is free from Government. Because volunteers donate their time and money, accountability is acute. I have seen it. I have sat on a United Way board. Every year we evaluate every program and every dollar we have given to someone, and we determine if it is working or can we make it more efficient.

If the program is not working, the money goes away immediately. That does not happen here. If the program does not work here, we add more money to it. That is going to happen with every program we start, including the one we are talking about today.

Projects that do not work in a civil society get cut. Organizers who lose or abuse funds are dismissed. It is voluntary. So everyone is invested in its success. We know the large groups throughout America, the Boy Scouts, the Girl Scouts, the United Way, the Salvation Army, the YMCA, Catholic Charities, fraternal orders, groups such as Kiwanis, Rotary, Knights of Columbus. These are large organizations, but they work because they are locally controlled.

Smaller groups, local arts councils and community theaters, PTAs, youth sports leagues, the animal rescue groups, the book clubs, crisis pregnancy centers, soup kitchens, food and other clothes drives that go on, church service groups, they are everywhere.

Those are platoons, the little democracies that make this country work. For us to presume, in the Congress, that somehow we are going to reach out into all these groups and make it work better is pretty presumptuous based on our history.

Why now? Why at a time in economic crisis with unimaginable debt and spending do we come in and say: We need to spend another $10 billion over the next 10 years to create another Government program to do something that is already working.

At the same time, we are talking about creating this new bureaucracy to replace private voluntarism with Government programming. We are actually cutting some of the incentives for people to do charity and for the private sector to work. The President's budget actually cuts the charitable donations of the people who give the most to charity in this country. So look at what we are doing. We are making it harder for the private sector to work.

You also look at what we have done over the years, forgetting that a lot of private charity and the motivation to serve God and community is a religious-based motivation. What have we done in this country?

We have essentially tried to purge that motivation from our country. Most public schools, or at least a lot of them, used to sponsor Boy Scout groups. After being sued for years because the Boy Scouts have God in their pledge and they set standards for their leaders that some do not agree with, the threat of lawsuits essentially means our Government schools have thrown out the Boy Scouts.

More than half our astronauts, half our FBI agents, a lot of the most successful people in this country were trained in the Boy Scouts to serve their community, where their character is formed. But this Federal Government has forced them out of public places. For years we purged religion from our society. Religion was the primary motivation for a lot of civic groups, a lot of services, a lot of charities, a lot of hospitals that were formed in many cases.

But we have said that has no place. Because we have unleashed the ACLU and other groups to constantly sue and intimidate groups, that religious motivation has been moved, has been purged in many cases.

Now we are going to come in and help solve the problem we have created. We want to promote voluntarism, we want to promote community service, when what we have done over the last several decades is essentially tried to destroy the motivation for people to serve a cause that is greater than themselves.

We cannot replace private charity with Government programs. If we try, a lot of people are going to miss meals, suffer cold winters, and leaky roofs. I wish to go back to where I started. I appreciate the motivation, the heartfelt sense of compassion and the patriotism that our volunteers feel in sponsoring this legislation.

But I think we need to come to a point as a government that we recognize we cannot do everything. That is why we take the oath to the Constitution to defend and protect the very limited form of Government. This Congress, this Government, does not need to start or expand an organization to a quarter million people, when we are paying people to do work that we decide needs to be done and take those decisions out of the hands of millions of Americans who look around every day and see what they can do to make their families, their communities, and their country a better place to live.

These are not Government decisions. We need to focus on what we were set up to do and do it much better than we are doing, instead of every week coming in here, bringing our good intentions and our compassion and every problem we see across the country we say something needs to be done. Then we say: The Government needs to do it. That is the fatal flaw of the Congress today, is we forget that sacred oath of office that says: We will protect and defend the Constitution which says this Federal Government has a very limited function. And those functions that are not prescribed in the Constitution are left to individuals and to the States.

This is a huge well-intended mistake we are making. It serves a point that we need to realize this Government needs to stop spending and stop borrowing, stop taxing, and let America work.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Utah is recognized.

Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, almost every group that the distinguished Senator from South Carolina has mentioned and every one of them wants this bill. This bill is basically run by the States. I agree with the Senator, they do it better than anybody else.

As we close today's debate, I want to take this opportunity to focus on the economic case for national and community service, to articulate why the Serve America Act makes sense from an economic standpoint, and to highlight why the bill will generate a good return on investment right when the country and so many individuals need it most.

In today's environment, every bill we consider must be viewed through an economic lens. What role does the legislation play in fueling our economic recovery? How can we cost-effectively make Government a partner with the private and nonprofit sectors? How can we ensure we support efforts that are effective and shut down those that are not? What are the short- and long-term effects of what we do?

Unfortunately, the economic recession has had a dramatic effect on our nonprofit sector and civil society. In the wake of the downturn, centers, soup kitchens, nursing homes, and other nonprofit organizations serving the vulnerable have seen a threefold crisis. As the markets have fallen, wealth has evaporated and decimated charitable donations. By the way, I do not agree with the President's recommendation to cut back on tax benefits to those who give to charity. The State and local budget crunch has hit the nonprofit sector especially hard. And the human need for help from community-serving institutions is skyrocketing right at a time when their resources are shrinking. One report called it America's "Quiet Crisis." I believe that we here in the Senate should give this crisis more attention and ensure that our civil society and our Nation's volunteers, which are the bedrock of efforts to meet needs in our country, remain strong. We need to help give more Americans opportunities to do good works in hard times.

Research has uncovered disturbing evidence of civil society's growing troubles. Churches, which are typically our Nation's great engines of compassion, deliver social services to the poor and needy. Our country depends on faith-based institutions to meet needs that they are uniquely equipped to meet, far better than distant Government bureaucracies. Unfortunately, churches raised $3 to $5 billion less than anticipated in the last quarter of 2008, crippling efforts to keep pace with growing humanitarian needs. Other nonprofit budgets are shrinking. Chicago's Meals on Wheels, which delivers hot meals to homebound seniors, trimmed its budget by 35 percent; and half of all Michigan nonprofits say their financial support has dropped.

Meals on Wheels is a Federal program. It would not exist without support from the Federal Government. It is handled very well at the local level. These trends are severe and occurring just as need for help is rising. United Way call centers saw a 68-percent increase over the past year in the number of calls for basic needs, such as securing food, shelter, and warm clothing, and is receiving 10,000-15,000 more calls every month than in 2007.

Lorna L. Koci, services director for the Utah Food Bank, recently visited my office to talk about increasing needs in my home state. The top three people dial 2-1-1 in Utah to reach the United Way call center is for emergency food assistance followed by health care and housing needs. In the past 6 months, calls requesting food assistance have doubled and food pantry visits by Utah families are up at least 30 percent. Now you can imagine what that is in other States. Utah takes care of our people. My own church has a church food pantry. No one in my faith should go without food, shelter or clothing. Most of the people served are the working poor, but many families are seeking assistance for the first time. These were contributors and are now recipients. At alarming rates, needs are growing in Utah and across the Nation.

Addressing this quiet crisis in our civil society is a matter of jobs, not just charity. The nonprofit sector accounts for 5 percent of GDP and 11 percent of the American workforce, with 9.4 million employees and 4.7 million volunteers nationwide. For perspective, the nonprofit sector is greater than the auto and financial industries combined. It contributes more than $322 billion in wages, more than ramped up the combined workforces of the utility, wholesale trade, and construction industries. What happens to our nonprofit sector will have a big effect on our country, both from the standpoint of employment and meeting needs of the most vulnerable in our society.

We have spent a lot of time on the floor of this Senate discussing ways to "bailout" industries and get our economy moving again. I certainly have not agreed with the levels of spending, and I worry about the long-term effects of our actions on the Federal deficit and the national debt. I don’t think many of our actions have been wise, in the short term and certainly not for the long term. Thomas Jefferson warned of the moral problem of leaving a crippling debt to future generations. With the changing demographics in this country and the growth of entitlements, we are setting ourselves up for a fiscal crisis of tremendous significance.

Yet the economic debate has almost completely ignored the platoons of civil society, those individuals, volunteers and nonprofit institutions in local neighborhoods and communities that do most of the social service work in our country to meet vital needs and do it at low cost to governments and society.

There also has been so much talk of "bailout" in our debates, let’s just bail out this industry or that industry. We need to move from talk of bailouts and to get our economy moving again. I certainly don’t think many of our actions have been wise, in the short term and certainly not for the long term. Thomas Jefferson warned of the moral problem of leaving a crippling debt to future generations. With the changing demographics in this country and the growth of entitlements, we are setting ourselves up for a fiscal crisis of tremendous significance.

So our debates on this floor should no longer exclude our nonprofit sector and civil society and the citizens who stand ready to help in times of trouble. No sector, quite frankly, offers more bang for the buck and generates a better return on investment than investments in ourondereous ors—talents and skills and enterprise of our people.

Let’s first talk about the important task of getting Americans into productive work meeting vital needs and are now recipients. At alarming rates, needs are growing in Utah and across the Nation.

2007, our national service programs leveraged an impressive $231 million in financial resources to meet local needs. It is a successful model of a public-private partnership, where the private participation in the form of resources and volunteers together outpaces the public sector. National service programs also have been shown to meet critical needs in communities. Independent evaluations have shown that teachers in Teach for America have made greater gains in math among their students compared to other teachers; participants in Citizen Schools show higher school attendance, a significant predictor of whether a student will stay on track to graduate from high school, and higher math and English grades; and third graders working with Experience Corps members scored higher in reading tests and exhibited better behavior in schools than children in control schools. African-American men in Youth Corps programs were more likely to have experienced more employment and higher earnings, to have voted in the last election, and scored higher on measures of personal and social responsibility than members in a control group. Twenty percent of participants in the YouthBuild program, most of whom are high school dropouts, had found gainful employment, were going to school, or were training for jobs. Research has also shown that participants in Youth Corps programs were more likely to secure better employment after completing their service and that former members, particularly African-American and Hispanic males, had higher wages than their peers not in the program.

These are the programs we are helping; programs that are doing all this work for free and making a difference in the lives of children and families. These are the programs that enlist senators who want to give back to the community. How can the argument be made that these programs should not be in effect?

The economic benefits of traditional volunteering are also significant. In 2007, more than 60 million Americans—or more than 26 percent of the adult population over 16—gave 8.1 billion hours of volunteer service. The cost of that service, had it been done by paid workers, would have amounted to approximately $231 billion. Volunteering in America rose significantly after 9/11. I believe thanks in no small measure to the leadership of President George W. Bush, who asked every American to give back to the community. How can the argument be made that these programs should not be in effect?

The Serve America Act gives our country a hat trick—it puts Americans into productive work at low cost to Government, meeting the needs of the Nation, and with no new bureaucracy; since volunteers work through an established network of well-known and trusted nonprofit organizations created by the social enterprise of innovative people. The legislation also targets the two populations most in trouble during the economic downturn—our young people and older Americans. A new volunteer generation fund will tap, train and help deploy more traditional volunteers to meet needs identified by local communities. We saw the wellspring of American compassion in the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina. We need more of those efforts every day, not just in times of disaster.

The bill also creates 175,000 more opportunities for full-time and part-time national and community service; mobilizing millions of Americans to work in full-time and part-time national and community service; leveraging millions of additional volunteers to help meet urgent community needs; mobilizing among the next generation of social entrepreneurs; and engaging nonprofit institutions in helping to meet challenges in key areas, we can help strengthen our economy and do something this country has always done well since its founding—release the energy of more Americans to work in full-time and part-time national and community service; leveraging millions of additional volunteers to help meet urgent community needs.

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—SENATE

then I be recognized, and then the Senator from Hawaii, Mr. AKAKA, be recognized.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. UDALL of Colorado, Mr. President, I presided over the last hour and listened to the speeches about this important Serve America Act, and I felt compelled to rise and express my strong support for the legislation as well.

I am a proud cosponsor of this legislation, and I want to particularly thank my colleagues—Senators KENNEDY, HATCH, MIKULSKI, and ENZI—for working in a bipartisan manner to bring this important legislation to the Senate floor.

During these challenging times, we forget that every day millions of volunteers give their time and energy to help others and to make their communities better. Thousands of recent college graduates help educate young people in poor and rural schools through the Teach for America program. Millions of men and women join together to build affordable homes or improve health services for those in need through the AmeriCorps program. Tens of thousands of seniors are foster grandparents to our young people or companions to those who need help with everyday tasks through the Senior Corps program.

These volunteers, as we have been hearing most of this afternoon, are the best of what our country has to offer and the very essence of the American spirit. By working together to pass this bill, we are doing honor to their commitment to civic engagement and public service.

Service to community and country is something that has been an important part of my life. Prior to my career in politics, I served as the executive director of the Colorado Outward Bound School. Outward Bound provides participants with opportunities to test themselves—both physically and mentally—by confronting obstacles and surviving the elements. At the same time, the school teaches participants to rely on each other for support, assistance, and to work better as a team to meet all the challenges that Mother Nature can throw at you.

As part of the Outward Bound program, we considered it important to promote volunteering because we believed it helped strengthen our communities.

Voluntarism also enables young people to develop personal confidence and self-respect, to avoid the temptation to utilize violence to settle differences by instead learning skills and helping others.

I also had the opportunity to work in the House of Representatives with my fellow House Member Tom UDALL, where we introduced legislation to promote volunteer efforts on our public lands. The goal of our piece of legislation called the SERVE Act was to enhance the stewardship of the natural and cultural resources for the millions of people who visit them for recreation and education every year.

We also worked together to give the Peace Corps a new lease on life in their ranks. After more than 40 years, the Peace Corps remains one of the most admired and successful initiatives ever put in place. The Peace Corps offers an avenue to better understand other cultures and to do a better job of promoting the understanding of American values by citizens abroad.

Many Coloradans have dedicated themselves to community and national service. For example, Colorado has one of the highest levels of recruitment of Peace Corps volunteers nationwide, including my mother, who served in the Peace Corps in Nepal from the age of 56 to 61.

So we have a great volunteer spirit in this country, and we can do more to expand the opportunities for people who would like to give their time to help others in our communities. The bill before us today, the Serve America Act, does that by building on the very strong foundation built by AmeriCorps and other service programs.

Let me discuss a couple of the important elements of this important piece of legislation.

First, it establishes the Youth Engagement Zone to strengthen communities through the Campus of Service program. By engaging high school students and out-of-school youth in community opportunities, we can instill a spirit of service in our young people that will stay with them for a lifetime.

Secondly, the Campus of Service program recognizes colleges and universities with outstanding service-learning programs, and provides resources to support students who want to pursue careers in public service. So many adults who work in Government, non-profits, and other public service careers got started because of opportunities they had when they were in school. This program will expand the options available to students, so more young people can find rewarding volunteer experiences, and so we can increase the number of young people who want to pursue careers in public service.

Third, the bill creates a set of focused corps of the Clean Energy Futures Corps, the Healthy Futures Corps, the Clean Energy Futures Corps, the Veterans Corps, and the Opportunity Corps.

I wish to take a minute to address one, the Clean Energy Futures Corps. In this program, the participants would do a variety of jobs to help make our communities more energy efficient and to preserve our country’s natural beauty. These volunteers might help weatherize low-income households to help residents save money or to help clean and improve parks, trails, and rivers.

I was fortunate I was born into a family with a long tradition of working to protect our country’s majestic public lands so future generations could enjoy the spectacular scenery and outdoor recreation activities we appreciate today. So I am pleased that Senators KENNEDY, HATCH, MIKULSKI, and ENZI included preserving our national treasures as a core principle of the Clean Energy Futures Corps.

I am also very pleased the corps will encourage energy efficiency and weatherization efforts. Energy efficiency must play a key role in helping us use energy in a more responsible and sustainable way. If you think about it, the most affordable kilowatt of energy is the one that is not used. This is important, especially for families struggling to get by each week. Energy efficiency and weatherization efforts will help ensure these families do not have to choose between paying their heating bill and putting food on their table.

Community service enriches everyone who participates—those who are being helped and those who are offering their service. Volunteers can change a neighbor’s life or transform our entire country.

I support the mission of this bill. I commend President Obama as the driving force in promoting service opportunities for Americans of all ages.

Mr. President, as I conclude, I want to offer some additional remarks that amplify what my good friend from Utah, Senator HATCH, said in response to our good friend from South Carolina, I could not disagree more. I think civil society and government are not mutually exclusive. In fact, the Founders designed our formal democratic government systems based on what they learned in their civic society of the early days of our country.

Lincoln—probably our greatest President, the founder of the Republican Party—if I can paraphrase him—said: What we cannot do alone, we do together in self-government to accomplish.

There is an increasing demand clearly in our society that Senator MIKULSKI, Senator KENNEDY, Senator ENZI, and Senator HATCH have heard and want to tap into. Senator ISAACKSON was on the floor earlier talking about creating an infrastructure of volunteers that this bill would so importantly promote. He talked about that the corps’ participants are only paid stipends and small, cover-your-expenses salaries. So this is not an expensive program for the benefits that are generated.

The Senator from Utah talked about how this is the best of the liberal and conservative philosophies combined. The Senator from South Carolina talked about the great French historian de Tocqueville who identified this... wonderful spirit in America of voluntarism way back in the 1820s and suggested somehow that could only be pursued through what he called the civil society. Well, that spirit is unique to America, I believe, and it is alive and well, and it can be promoted by civil society, by private sector, as well as by this private-public partnership that is envisioned in this important legislation.

In closing, I cannot help but think of my friend, a mentor, a leader, the Senator from Arizona, Mr. MCCAIN, who, in expressing the lessons he had learned in his life, talked about why he joined the military. And he put it simply. He said in order to build his self-respect, he wanted to dedicate himself to a cause greater than his own self-interest. That is what this important legislation will do, and it will allow millions of Americans to have that opportunity, to dedicate themselves to causes greater than their own self-interest.

I urge swift passage so we can go to work.

Mr. President, I thank you and yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Nebraska.

SEC. 184A. AVAILABILITY OF ASSISTANCE.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds the following:

(1) Special Olympics is a nonprofit movement with the mission to provide year-round sports training and athletic competition in a variety of Olympic-type sports for children and adults with intellectual disabilities, giving them continuing opportunities to develop physical fitness, demonstrate courage, experience joy, and participate in a sharing of gifts, skills, and friendship with their families, other Special Olympics athletes and the community.

(2) With sports at the core, Special Olympics is a leader in the field of intellectual disability, and is making impressive strides in the areas of health, education, family support, research, and policy change for people with intellectual disabilities.

(b) AMENDMENT.—Subtitle F of title I is further amended by inserting after section 184 the following:

"SEC. 184A. AVAILABILITY OF ASSISTANCE.

"Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act relating to eligibility in subtitle C, D, E, or H of title I regarding an entity eligible to receive direct or indirect support under this Act, the framework for Special Olympics under this section shall include an organization promoting competitive and non-competitive sporting events involving individuals with disabilities (including the Special Olympics), which promote the quality of life for individuals with disabilities".

Mr. JOHANNS. Mr. President, I rise today to speak about the need to support programs which help individuals with developmental disabilities such as Special Olympics. The care and treatment of people with developmental disabilities has always been a priority of mine. In fact, it is probably the major reason I am in public service today.

When I was Governor of Nebraska, I made it a priority to reform a piece of the system delivery in our State. Many of these citizens had mental illness and developmental disabilities. One of my major achievements was signing a bill into law which increased the use of community-based services for these citizens.

In Nebraska today, these citizens are much more likely to receive care at a specialized day treatment program or other local residential facility. This legislation was for those Nebraskans and their loved ones who suffer from mental illness, giving them a chance to more fully participate in everyday life and to make a contribution to their communities.

Our efforts to aid the most vulnerable among us, though, must be a national as well as a local goal. And Government is only a part of the solution.

There are many impressive private organizations which assist people with disabilities, but perhaps none as impressive as Special Olympics. With the strength of their organization dedicated to helping this population become physically fit and productive by participating in sports training and competition. For over 40 years, Special Olympics has used sports to help bring people together and provide a venue for athletes with disabilities to compete with each other as equals.

But as anyone who has been involved with Special Olympics can tell you, it is much more than just the competition. The camaraderie and the sense of accomplishment felt by these very special citizens and athletes gives them self-confidence in every aspect of their lives. This is critically important work.

Special Olympics and similar organizations are vital to our fundamental national principles of human equality and our basic common dignity. It takes many volunteers to drive the success of Special Olympics. In fact, when the National Games come to Nebraska next year, they are going to need 8,000 volunteers to serve 3,000 athletes, 15,000 family and friends, and 30,000 fans who will attend.

I am very proud our home State is taking on the challenges associated with this sporting event. Special Olympics has raised $1.5 million in private local funding for the 2010 National Games, and I applaud the State’s level of enthusiasm for the event. To encourage the American volunteer spirit and help Special Olympics reach its goal of 8,000 volunteers for the 2010 games, I am very pleased to introduce an amendment which would increase the funding authorization for service programs assisting people with disabilities. I can think of no more worthwhile endeavor.

My amendment would double the amount of funding authorized under the National and Community Service Act that is set aside for such purposes and double the limit of such funding to $20 million. It must be the task of all of us to care for those most at risk. Help people with developmental disabilities lead productive and fulfilling lives benefits our entire Nation and should thus be a national priority. I hope the Senate will agree with me on this and vote to pass my amendment.

Thank you, and I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Maryland.

Ms. MIKULSKI. Mr. President, first of all, I say to the Senator from Nebraska, I wish to thank him for his compassion. This side of the aisle, and I know the other cosponsors of the Serve America Act, are very much interested in working with him to accomplish the goal he so eloquently stated in his very compassionate statement. I would ask respectfully if we could—before I make a request—lay the amendment aside, and the staff on interested in working with him to accomplish the goal he so eloquently stated in his very compassionate statement. Mr. AKAKA. Mr. President, it is my great honor and privilege to speak in support of the Serve America Act. I want to thank my dear friend and colleague Senator Kennedy, as well as Senators Snowe, Mikulski, and Enzi, for their commitment and dedication to this legislation, which celebrates our national legacy of service and volunteerism—a legacy which has made this country great.

In my home State of Hawaii, children are taught from an early age the importance of nurturing and strengthening bonds between people. Each member of an ‘Ohana—or extended family—is expected to make a contribution. To help them understand how great or small—and to use their unique talents to benefit the community. Through this legislation we can increase this same sense of community responsibility throughout the Nation.

In my role as chairman of the Homeland Security Subcommittee on the Oversight of Government Management, the Federal Workforce, and the District of Columbia, I have advocated for programs and policies that encourage talented young people to join the Federal workforce. After we have opportunities for national and community service, it is worth emphasizing that Federal Government service is a valuable way to contribute.

I am pleased that this bill includes language that encourages post-secondary students to pursue careers in public service through the Campuses of Service program. By supporting efforts to develop and implement models of service-learning, the Campuses of Service programs will help us build a new generation of public servants in the Federal workforce. This will help us prevent a future leadership gap as more of our Nation’s long-serving, dedicated Federal employees become retirement eligible.

As chairman of the Veterans Affairs Committee, I am supportive of the provision in this Serve America Act that creates a Veterans Corps. This program will help our nation’s veterans—members of our ‘Ohana—serve families through the creation of community-based programs designed to address their unique needs. This is a great way to give back to the community; to assist the men and women who have bravely risked their lives in defense of our Nation, by providing comfort to their families while their loved ones are deployed, or by helping disabled veterans back home. I am also pleased that the Veterans Corps will encourage our veterans to become volunteers. As former members of our military, these dedicated men and women have gained experience and skills that can be used to benefit our Nation through community service.

In Hawaii, we have a saying, ‘a’ohi hana nui ke alu ‘ia,’ which means that no task is too big when done together by all. This bill helps create opportunities for cross-sector work together now, and to teach the value of collaboration to younger generations. Please join me in voting in favor of passage of the Serve America Act. mahalo—Thank you.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Montana is recognized.

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, in a few moments, I will ask that an amendment be pending. First, I will speak on the amendment.

Mr. President, I rise today to offer an amendment that will strengthen small charities around our country, especially in places where resources are scarce.

My amendment will create a ‘Nonprofit Capacity Building Program.’ I am pleased to have worked with my colleague Senator GRASSLEY to develop this program. I have worked with Senator GRASSLEY for several years on oversight of tax-exempt organizations and efforts to strengthen the nonprofit sector.

Our amendment will connect Government funds with private-sector funds to provide education and training to small and midsize charities.

Small charities around our country serve people in need of food or clothing, run afterschool programs, provide housing counseling, and other services that are vital to our communities. But in many cases, these small charities lack access to education opportunities where they might learn how to manage the charity’s finances, fundraise effectively, accurately file tax forms, adopt new computer programs or plan a long-term budget.

In nonprofit circles, folks would say these small nonprofits lack “capacity,” and training in these areas is called “capacity-building.”

Our amendment will add $5 million per year over 5 years to the budget of the Corporation for National and Community Service to make matching grants to larger organizations so they will, in turn, provide training to small and midsize charities throughout their State or region.

These key training opportunities are especially rare for charities located in rural areas. Folks running a charity in a rural area may never have the chance to attend a grant-writing training or a class on nonprofit budget management.

That is why our amendment states that nonprofit training opportunities should be targeted at charities in areas with these resource challenges.

The amendment also requires the grants to our dollar-for-dollar matching grants. The match must come from non-Federal sources, such as private foundations or corporate giving programs. It is important that both the Federal Government and the private sector pitch in to provide this support.

Government and private giving must coordinate better in support of people and communities. The underlying bill, the Serve America Act, supports the development of public-private solutions to problems facing our country. Some of my colleagues believe that the private sector must solve every problem facing our communities. Many others believe that Government is essential to solve the same problems. I believe that we need a combination of the best ideas from both. That is the spirit behind this amendment.

I hear from folks in my home State of Montana on a weekly basis in support of this idea.

The National Council of Nonprofits, Independent Sector, and the Alliance for Children and Families have voiced their strong support for this amendment.

I urge my colleagues to vote in favor of the Baucus-Grassley nonprofit capacity building amendment.

AMENDMENT NO. 692 TO AMENDMENT NO. 687

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the pending amendment be temporarily set aside so I may call up my amendment No. 682.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Montana (Mr. BAUCUS), for himself and Mr. GRASSLEY, proposes an amendment numbered 692 to amendment No. 687.

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The National Council of Nonprofits, Independent Sector, and the Alliance for Children and Families have echoed the request.

The amendment is as follows:

(Purpose: To establish a Nonprofit Capacity Building Program)

On page 297, between lines 16 and 17, insert the following:

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, I hope Senators will support this at the appropriate time. Pending that moment, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Maryland is recognized.

Ms. MIKULSKI. Mr. President, I compliment the Senator from Montana on his amendment. I understand his amendment is also a bipartisan amendment; is that correct?

Mr. BAUCUS. Yes, that is correct.

Ms. MIKULSKI. Both he and the Senator from Iowa, Mr. GRASSLEY, are co-sponsors. I believe the Senator's amendment has identified a very specific need, particularly for the small, primarily rural organizations that sometimes are not looked at when we do a big national framework. I want to be as supportive as I can of the Senator's amendment. I want to examine it more closely. In order to follow the framework, I need to discuss it with my colleague, Senator HATCH, and also Senator ENZI of Wyoming. As many know, Senator ENZI has been trapped in a snowstorm. He will be here tomorrow. We will have a chance to review this amendment, determine our ability to work with the Senator from Montana and the Senator from Iowa to see whether we can find some comity to adopt the amendment. I thank them for their spirit of bipartisanship. We will continue to follow that same framework.

Mr. BAUCUS. I deeply thank the Senator from Maryland, who is a strong advocate for Serve America, a wonderful program. I think this will make it a little better. It is bipartisan, as she said. This helps more people. I thank the Senator.

I yield the floor and suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. NELSON of Florida. I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. TESTER). Without objection, it is so ordered.

NATIONAL SERVICE

Mr. NELSON of Florida. Mr. President, we can all be proud that we live in a country where citizens volunteer to serve their Nation. We can see this especially after any tragedy, be it national, be it local, how our citizenry responds.

I am heartened to see the number of young people responding to serve. There is quite a contrast I have seen in the young people today and what we have seen over the last several decades. If we go back as far as my generation, four decades ago, we were very interested in public service. We wanted to be public servants. We wanted to contribute something to our country. It was very attractive, as a young person growing up, to want to go into government and serve the public that way. We were inspired by a young President, President Kennedy.

Then along came those events that so soured so many of our young people—first of all, the split in the Nation over an unpopular war. We had three major assassinations over a short period, including two brothers of one family. Then this Nation went through the process of the resignation of a President. That was about the time of a lot of the political and the drug culture. It was a tough time. There was a lot of cynicism bred out of that time. A lot of young people got turned off to public service.
I am beginning to see it again, young people really getting interested in public service. If you have that heart for service, it is the exact opposite of what Time magazine chronicled on the cover of its magazine back in the late 1960s, the "Me Generation." It was concerned about me, me. Now we see so much interest in helping our communities as being more the "we generation." Now we see a lot more young Americans applying to the Peace Corps and its domestic counterpart, AmeriCorps, and so many other national service programs.

Our new President has issued a call for all Americans to devote at least 1 year of their lives to public service. If I had my druthers, I would want every young person to have an obligation to serve at least 1 year in some capacity to their country. This would have tremendous benefits down the road. They could choose the military, the Peace Corps, AmeriCorps, a teacher's aide—a host of these things in helping out our communities. Of course, we are not at a point, especially with the economic condition we are in, that we can afford that as a mandatory obligation. So what the new President has called for is for all Americans to devote at least 1 year of their lives to national service.

We come today to discuss legislation that is an acknowledgment across the political divide of our President's call to engage people in national service. This is going to be the first substantial investment in our Nation's service programs in nearly two decades. What this bill is going to do is triple the number of participants in our national service programs from 75,000 to 250,000. These volunteers are going to serve as tutors and mentors. They are going to do that for children. They will help build affordable housing. They will teach marketable computer skills. They will repair our parks and waterways. They will run afterschool programs and help respond to disasters in communities.

The legislation would create several programs that all of us on both sides of the aisle can work together to pass the best possible legislation. There are a lot of long overdue investments that last beyond today. I ask unanimous consent to have today's legislation, and Idahoans deserve to be heard. Their stories not only detail their struggles to meet everyday expenses, but also have suggestions and recommendations for Congress to do now to tackle this problem and find solutions that last beyond today. I ask unanimous consent to have today's letter printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Several years ago, the President, in his State of the Union message, noted that our nation was "addicted to oil". Well, that is the first step of recovery, to admit you have a problem, but it is not recovery. My wife and I decided to do something about it. We bought a smaller home (downsized from 3,300 to 1,600 sq feet) right on the Greenbelt in the Waterfront District of Garden City. That cut our commute down from about 7 miles, one way, to 3 miles, one way, to 3–4 and eliminated a 300 foot climb/descent. Before the move, we already owned small, fuel efficient vehicles and bike commute about 50 percent of the time. Now we rarely drive and find we get places faster than by car and do not have to worry about parking. Both of our cars sit in the garage and we plan to sell one shortly.

Driving up the price of fuel for everyone remaining addicted to oil can create a problem, but it is not recovery. My wife and I decided to do something about it. The Employee Free Choice Act is vital legislation for strengthening the Nation's middle class. I have the deepest respect for my colleague from Pennsylvania, Senator Specter, and I welcome his recognition of the need for labor law reform. Working Americans are suffering in ways we have not seen since the Great Depression. Wages are falling and benefits are disappearing. Workers are losing their jobs, their homes, and their hopes. Now more than ever, workers deserve a voice in those truly important decisions that will affect their jobs and their families in the years ahead.

Unions were fundamental in building America's middle class, and have a vital role today in preserving the American dream. History shows that strong unions mean strong economic growth that both businesses and employees can share. Protecting the right to form a union today will help countless working families achieve greater economic security and build a better and brighter future. I hope very much that all of us on both sides of the aisle can work together to pass the best possible legislation to put working families back on track.

VOTE EXPLANATION

Mr. ISAKSON. Mr. President, on March 12, 2009, I was attending the funeral of a very close friend and was unable to cast votes on rollcall vote No. 97 and rollcall No. 98. I ask that the record reflect that had I been present I would have cast my vote as follows: rollcall vote No. 97, confirmation David W. Ogden, of Virginia, to be Deputy At-Creating windfall profits for oil producing (and not always friendly) nations including Saudi, Russia and Venezuela

Addition to global warming

Creating a need to "defend" oil resources and, therefore, creating windfall profits for oil producing states. Some of these changes are to happen by reducing our need to produce our own oil and to import less oil. First, we need to reduce our transportation needs by changing how we live and how we drive. This is not new, as we have had 70 years to develop technologies to make this change. We have not made this change because the current system is still profitable to those who currently own the oil or are invested in the oil sector. We need to take advantage of this opportunity now. We have to be more energy efficient in our daily lives and reduce the consumption of oil, gas and other fuels.

We need a small financial push to get them to turn on the lights and, then, go on to see how their decision affects them in their home as well as turning off lights and unplugging electronics. They just need to live our daily lives.

I speak with people every day from all walks of life in Idaho who are concerned about future costs of heating and cooling their home as well as turning on the lights or running the A/C in the summertime. They are so concerned about making cold air a more sustainable lifestyle. They just need a small financial push to get them to the other side.

My company designs, installs and services renewable energy systems for homes, commercial and industrial buildings as well as farms and other agriculture uses. I field phone calls and e-mails from almost every walk of life (doctors, lawyers, school teachers, government workers, businessmen, housewives, farmers, religious leaders, etc.) looking for help in making Idaho America’s most bike friendly state.

We do not exceed speed limits on the freeway because we live in a smaller house (despite the state which I live in) and we use scooters as our primary commute. To keep costs down on the electric, we need to live our daily lives.

Thank you for your time and I would be more than happy to further on our experiences and knowledge as it relates to this very important topic.

Thank you for this opportunity to send you my thoughts and opinions on a very important subject—Energy in Idaho!

I am in a position to offer you some unique experiences and knowledge as it relates to my current employment and the issues I am addressing. I realize that skyrocketing gas and diesel prices are on everybody’s mind all over the United States and more so presently in Idaho. I have been in business almost five years, and we install wind, solar and geoxchange (aka geothermal) systems in Idaho. We have worked with Twin Falls to Coeur d’Alene, and have spoken with many in between about their sincere desire to obtain renewable energy solutions in their lives. People want to look up at their solar panel and know it is on their property and feel a sense of comfort that they are in control over a portion of their energy usage per year. Others are paying $700 to $900 a month to heat their modest-sized homes on propane or fuel oil. They come begging for help through our geoxchange system. Over and over, the main hurdle is upfront costs. As you may know, renewable energy generally requires a person to invest upfront in a system such as a wind turbine, solar panel or geoxchange.

Many of the states around us (Oregon, Washington and Utah that we research), offer substantial financial assistance incentives that make the transition to renewable energy. Idaho currently sticks out as a sore thumb when it comes to helping its people invest and obtain renewable energy solutions in their homes and many of our state’s utilities could do more to help people make this critical transition to a more sustainable lifestyle. I would ask you to please support any type of legislation that allow Idahoans to obtain something they really want—renewable energy!!!

Thank you for your time and I would be more than happy to further on our experiences and knowledge as it relates to this very important topic.

Jeff, Boise.

My family has set travel needs for work and some other obligations that cannot be changed for obvious reasons; just going for a recreational ride has long ago been cut out of our budget. Now with the horrendous increase in gasoline and food we are scrambling to make ends meet. We can hope to cope with this condition very long without serious consequences.

If there were no options available that would allow us to live within the means of our income, I think that our government is not allowing the oil companies to go after the resources that are available in our own country and place this burden on our citizens for the foolishness of the global warming fraud or the slogan of being green, is unconceivable in my opinion. The Congress needs to stop trying to socialize the oil companies and all of the entities that matter; we are not stupid, and we can see what they are trying to do.

Our government is not listening to its constituents and it is time for the people to find a way to remind the governing body that they work for the people and not the other way around. This not the way the framers of the Constitution intended it to work.

Craig.

Thanks for the email concerning the price of high gas. I feel that a lot of times our Representatives could care less about the lower income people in the United States and more about keeping the foreign policies in place. It is really appreciative that you still care.

I live on a small farm in Newdale. It is about fifteen miles east of Rexburg and about the Teton Dam. I have to travel to work about fifteen miles east of Rexburg and near Newdale.

Although I can empathize with many Americans at the lowest income levels about the price of gas, I think that this time last year I was paying $2.39 a gallon for the same thing; that is an astonishing increase of $2.46 a gallon in 1 year. I am in a position to offer you some unique experiences and knowledge as it relates to my current employment and the issues I am addressing.

We do not exceed speed limits on the freeway because we live in a smaller house (despite the urgeings of our real estate agent that we can afford so much more).

We plan our errands to reduce fuel consumption.

We limit use of air conditioning in the summer and keep our house between 65 and 70 degrees Fahrenheit.

We do not exceed speed limits on the freeway and, in fact, often go somewhat slower.

We live close to our needs; work, shopping, entertainment, etc.

We limit the use of plastics and recycle as much as possible.
If you as our leaders [want] this great nation to come to a grinding halt in travel, [if] you want most of the restaurants, and movie theaters, and amusement parks, and small businesses to keep doing the profits go ahead and keep doing what you have been doing about escalating gas prices, nothing. But if you still have a heart left in you, you will come to the realization that the impact of what we pay at the pump—now, not five, ten or twenty years from now when gas will be so unaffordable that only the super rich will be able to do anything!

Please do something now!

CHRIS, Lewiston.

Yes, Senator, the increase in fuel prices affects us. We have not been able to take our family on a real vacation in years, and we certainly will not this year with the outrageous cost of gas.

Having said that, it is just as important to me to see the Idaho Delegation do something to save our wild salmon runs. I get very frustrated that these "hot" issues receive so much attention while we throw away billions on a barge and dam system that does not work. If you and the rest of the Idaho delegation continue to do nothing on this issue, your legacy will be the extinction of Columbia/Snake salmon, the runs that once were the most abundant in the world. And Idaho sits in a unique position to continue to languish economically because the runs are not healthy.

TBD.

I am taking a few minutes to respond to a request from fellow Idahoans as to fuel costs. As you already know, Idaho is not a greatly populated state (that is not a bad thing!). But, in my particular job requirements, I need to travel throughout all of southeastern Idaho to attend to cities that other service stations do not have access to. I do not have an option of commuting or staying in the office and still be able to provide the customer service to our members, as is necessary. It had cost me about $40 to fill my car's tank with gas—now it is costing about $52 for that same tank. (so the $120 I was spending on fuel is now costing me about $208 per month). That is almost a 100% increase.

ADDITIONAL STATEMENTS

CONGRATULATING KENTUCKY HISTORY AWARD WINNERS

• Mr. BUNNING. Mr. President, today I congratulate the winners of the 2009 Kentucky History Awards, which was held at the Thomas D. Clark Center for Kentucky History. These awards are sponsored by the Kentucky Historical Society and recognize exceptional achievements by individuals, businesses, civic leaders, communities, museums, and history organizations throughout the commonwealth in the field of history. Several projects and individuals who have demonstrated tremendous efforts to promote the preservation, awareness, and appreciation of state and local history were honored at this ceremony.

These awards serve as an opportunity to recognize the dedication and hard work of those who contribute to the study of Kentucky history. This year the Madison County Fiscal Court received the Government Award for their Civil War Battlefield Preservation and Interpretation. The Larue County Herald News received the Media Award for the Lincoln Bicentennial. These two organizations have done the Commonwealth a great service by being advocates for our history.

Dr. Kenneth Carstens of Calloway County was also a recipient of one of these prestigious awards. Dr. Carstens received the Lifetime Dedication To History Award for his service. During the time leading up to this award, Dr. Carstens received numerous teaching recognition awards and many significant committees on Murray State University’s campus, and conducted research for the college’s contract archeology program. He has published nine books and is currently working on six more.

Mr. President, I would like to thank these people for their contributions to the State of Kentucky, and I wish them well as they continue to enhance the history of our great State.

REMEMBERING JOSEPH SONNENMAN

• Ms. MURKOWSKI. Mr. President, I wish to remember an Alaskan who has recently passed away, Joseph Sonneman.

Joe was born in and attended school in Chicago, IL, but he spent much of his life as an Alaska resident living in our great State. Educated in government administration, Joe worked as a budget analyst, photographer, taxi driver, heavy equipment oiler on the Alaska pipeline, postal worker, and university instructor.

Joe had a passion for public service and was active in politics his entire life. He was active in the Alaska Democratic Party, served as their treasurer, and ran for the Mayor of Juneau and participated in several U.S. House and U.S. Senate primaries. Having been born in Chicago, Joe was a true lover of living to see Barack Obama, a Chicagoan, sworn in as President of the United States earlier this year. His political activism extended to my office as well, since Joe would periodically write to me to convey his views on the issues of the day, particularly on veterans health care and the military. A veteran of the Korean war, Joe served as a radar repairman in Korea between 1963 and 1966. He lived for several years at the Washington State Veterans Home near Seattle, WA where he courageously battled ALS, or Lou Gherig’s disease.

I would like to convey my condolences and God’s blessings to his family, including his mother Edith and his sisters Eve, Ted, and Bill. Joe, you and your family will be in my thoughts and prayers.

NORTHEAST KINGDOM ANNIVERSARY

• Mr. SANDERS. Mr. President, sixty years ago today, Senator George Aiken, one of the great statesmen in the history of Vermont and indeed our entire Nation, spoke to a group of rural Vermonters in the remote and sparsely populated northeastern corner of our State. As he spoke about the rugged region of the Green Mountain State he called the Northeast Kingdom, a name which has lasted to this day as the way in which we in our State refer to this region. Today I celebrate the anniversary of this pristine area’s unique and poetic name and to make a few observations about its land and its inhabitants.

The Northeast Kingdom is Vermont at its most strikingly beautiful. Beckoning tourists are the glacial formations of Willoughby and Crystal Lakes, the farmland and forests along the Upper Connecticut River, and the northernmost reaches of the Green Mountains along the Canadian border. Vermont is one of the most rural States in the Nation, and the Northeast Kingdom is our most rural region. While it makes up more than one-fifth of the State’s total geography, it has barely 10 percent of Vermont’s total population. In fact, my first home in Vermont was in the Northeast Kingdom, in the town of Stannard, a town with a population of 200.

As we look for new dawn in this time of economic difficulty, I am reminded of this fiercely independent region of which Senator Aiken spoke so eloquently 60 years ago. The Northeast Kingdom is inhabited by working Americans, solid and proud Vermonters: it is from their hardy spirit, and the spirit of people like them, that our country’s strength has always come. It is my hope that not only will the rugged beauty of the forests and lakes of the Northeast Kingdom survive, but so will that strong and independent spirit that we can turn to as a catalyst for rebuilding our Nation.

STATEMENTS ON INTRODUCED BILL S AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS

By Mr. CARDIN (for himself and Mr. MIRKULSKY):

S. 673. A bill to allow certain newspapers to be treated as described in section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 and exempt from tax under section 501(a) of such Code; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. CARDIN. Mr. President, Thomas Jefferson, a man who was vilified by newspapers daily, once said ‘If I had to choose between government without newspapers, and newspapers without government, I would hesitate to choose the latter.’ Like Jefferson, I believe that a well-informed public is a core foundation of our democracy. Watergate, AIDS, Tobacco, ENRON, AIG. News stories, uncovered by journalists, bring the most important stories of our nation to the front page, and thus into public debate.

I rise today to introduce the Newspaper Revitalization Act, to help our disappearing community and metropolitan papers by allowing them to become non-profit organizations. Newspapers across the country are closing their doors, slashing their staff, and shuttering bureaus in the United States and around the world. The Philadelphia Inquirer, The Seattle Post-Intelligencer, The Rocky Mountain News, the Philadelphia Daily News, the San Francisco Chronicle, and my own Baltimore Sun are either in bankruptcy, or facing bankruptcy and closure, The Los Angeles Times has reducted its newsroom by one-half, the Miami Herald and twenty-eight other dailies have laid off at least one-quarter of their workforces in the past year. At the largest daily newspaper in New Jersey, The Star-Ledger, 45 percent of its journalism staff took buyouts when the owner threatened to sell the newspaper. Increasing numbers of metropolitan regions may soon have no local daily newspapers.

The economy has caused an immediate problem, but the business model for newspapers, based on circulation and advertising revenue, has been weakening for years. At the end of 2008, advertising revenue was down by about 25 percent and according to a December forecast by Barclays Capital, advertising revenue will be down about 17 percent in 2009. Circulation is also down because of the many other sources for news. Today we have the internet, television, radio and blogs around the clock. Now, some might say these are all reasons why we may not need daily print newspapers anymore. But they are wrong.

While Americans have quick access to the news, there remains one clear fact, when it comes to original in-depth reporting that records and exposes actions, issues, and opportunities in our communities, nothing has replaced a newspaper. Most, if not all sources of journalistic content from Google to broadcast news or panditry, gain their original news from the laborious and expensive work of experienced newspaper reporters diligently working their beats over the course of years, not hours. According to the Pew Research Center’s Project for Excellence in Journalism, a typical metropolitan paper ran 70 stories a day, counting the national, local and business sections, whereas a half-hour of television news included only ten to twelve. Research by the Pew Research Center further follows the agenda set by newspapers, often repeating the same items with less detail. Newspaper reporters forge relationships with people; they build a network, which creates avenues to information.

These relationships and the information that follows are essential in a free, democratic society. Without it, accountability is lost. In a 2003 study published in the Journal of Law, Economics, and Organization, the relationship between corruption and “free circulation of daily newspapers per person” was examined. The study found that the lower the circulation of newspapers in a country, the higher it stands on the corruption index. In another study, published in 2006, it is suggested that the growth of a more information-oriented press may have been a factor in reducing government corruption in the United States between the Goldwater and the Clinton Presidencies. Newspapers provide a form of accountability. They provide a “check” on local governments, State governments, the Federal Government, elected officials, corporations, school districts, businesses, individuals and more. We need to save community newspapers.

The Newspaper Revitalization Act provides help. It will allow newspapers to operate as non-profit organizations, if they choose, under section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to the extent that the space allotted to all such advertisements in such newspapers does not exceed the space allotted to fulfilling the educational purpose of such qualified newspaper corporation.

(a) In General.—Paragraph (3) of section 501(c) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 is amended by inserting ‘‘including a qualified newspaper corporation’’ after ‘‘educational purposes’’.

(b) Qualified Newspaper Corporation.—Section 501 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

‘‘(r) QUALIFIED NEWSPAPER CORPORATION.—For purposes of this title, a corporation or organization shall be treated as a qualified newspaper corporation if—

(1) the trade or business of such corporation or organization consists of publishing on a regular basis a newspaper for general circulation;

(2) the newspaper published by such corporation or organization contains local, national, and international news stories of interest to the general public and the distribution of such newspaper is necessary or valuable in achieving an educational purpose, and

(3) the preparation of the material contained in such newspaper follows methods generally accepted as educational in character.’’

(c) Unrelated Business Income of a Qualified Newspaper Corporation.—Section 513 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

‘‘(k) ADVERTISING INCOME OF QUALIFIED NEWSPAPER CORPORATION.—For purposes of this title, income from advertising shall be treated as unrelated business income of a qualified newspaper corporation if—

(1) the trade or business of such corporation or business does not include the sale by a qualified newspaper corporation (as defined in section 501(r)) of any space for commercial advertisement to be published after the date of the enactment of this Act to the extent that the space allotted to all such advertisements in such newspaper does not exceed the space allotted to fulfilling the educational purpose of such qualified newspaper corporation.

(d) Deduction for Charitable Contributions.—Subparagraph (B) of section 170(c) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 is amended by inserting ‘‘including a qualified newspaper corporation as defined in section 501(r)’’ after ‘‘educational purposes’’.

(e) Effective Date.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to taxable years beginning after the date of the enactment of this Act.

By Mr. AKAKA:

S. 674. A bill to amend chapter 41 of title 5, United States Code, to provide for the establishment and authorization of funding for certain training programs for supervisors of Federal employees; to the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs.

Mr. AKAKA. Mr. President, I rise today to reintroduce the Federal Supervisor Training Act to enhance Federal employee and manager performance.

Performance is essential to the success of our Federal Government. However, we cannot expect employees and managers to perform well if we do not invest in them through training and professional development. In particular, Federal employees deserve the support and guidance of well-trained managers who empower them to perform effectively, and managers deserve tools to successfully motivate and supervise employees.

For managers and supervisors in the Federal workforce, few things are more important than training. Supervisor trading programs improve communication, promote stronger manager-employee relationships, reduce conflict, and cultivate efficiency in the federal workforce. While the federal government mandates managerial and supervisory training, the development and implementation of training programs is left to the discretion of individual agencies. This leads to inconsistent guidance on training and sometimes inhibits effective training due to an agency’s other priorities and limited resources.

According to the 2002 report Making Public Service Work: Recommendations for Change, the Merit Systems Protection Board reported that poor supervisors or managers are the most common reason employees leave a position. The U.S. Office of Personnel Management 2008 Federal Human Capital Survey also shows the need for improvement. Nearly 40 percent of Federal employees believed that their organization’s leaders generate high levels of motivation and commitment to the workforce; only 42 percent said they are satisfied with their leaders’ policies and practices; and only 49 percent of Federal employees said they were satisfied with the information they get from managers.

Given the growing number of Federal managers who are eligible to retire, it is increasingly important to train new supervisors to manage effectively. Good leadership begins with strong management training. It is time to ensure that Federal managers receive appropriate training to supervise Federal employees.

The Federal Supervisor Training Act has three major training components. First, the bill will require that new supervisors receive training in the initial 12 months on the job, with mandatory retraining every three years on how to work with employees to develop performance expectations and evaluate employees. Current managers will have three years to obtain their initial training. Second, the bill requires mentoring for new supervisors and training on how to mentor employees. Third, the measure requires training on the laws governing and the procedures for enforcing whistleblower and anti-discrimination actions.

In addition, my bill will: set standards that supervisors should meet in order to manage employees effectively; assess a manager’s ability to meet these standards; and provide training to improve areas identified in personnel assessments.

I am delighted that my bill has received support from the Government Managers Coalition, which represents members of the Senior Executives Association, the Federal Managers Association, the Professional Managers Association, the Federal Aviation Administration Managers Association, and the National Council of Social Security Management Associations; the American Federation of Government Employees; the National Treasury Employees Union; the International Federation of Professional and Technical Engineers; the AFL-CIO, Metal Trades Department, and as the Partnership for Public Service. I believe this broad support, from employee unions to management associations to outside good-government groups, demonstrates the need for this bill.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 674

By Mr. LEAHY (for himself, Mr. SPECTER, Mr. KOHL, and Mr. DURBIN):

S. 678. A bill to reauthorize and improve the Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Act of 1974, and for other purposes; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, I am introducing today important legislation designed to strengthen our communities and particularly our most precious asset, our children. I am pleased to be joined by Senator SPECTER and Senator KOHL, who have been leaders in this area of the law for decades, and Senator DURBIN, who is the new Chairman of the Senate Crime and Drugs Subcommittee. Our legislation is intended to keep children safe and out of trouble and also to help ensure they have the opportunity to become productive adult members of society.

The Senate Judiciary Committee reported this important bill last July. I was disappointed that Republican objections prevented this vital bipartisan legislation from moving forward in the last Congress, but we will redouble our efforts to pass this bill this year.

The Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Act sets out Federal policy and standards for the administration of juvenile justice. It authorizes key Federal resources for states to improve their juvenile justice systems and for communities to develop programs to prevent young people from getting into trouble. We are recommitting ourselves to these important goals with this proposed reauthorization. We also push the law forward in key ways to better serve our communities and our children.

The basic goals of the Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Act are to keep communities safe by reducing juvenile crime, advancing programs and policies that keep children out of the criminal justice system, and encouraging states to implement policies designed to steer those children who enter the juvenile justice system back onto a track to become contributing members of society.

The reauthorization that we introduce today augments these goals in several important ways. First, this bill encourages states to move away from keeping young people in adult jails. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention has concluded that children who are held in adult prisons commit more crimes, and more serious crimes, when they are released, than children with similar histories who are kept in juvenile facilities. After years of pressure to send more and more young people to adult prisons, it is time to seriously consider the evidence that this policy is not working.

We must do this with ample consideration for the fiscal constraints on states, particularly in these lean budget times, and with deference to the traditional role of states in setting their own criminal justice policy. We have done so here. But we also must work to ensure that unless strong and considered reasons dictate otherwise, the presumption must be that children will be kept with other children, particularly before they have been convicted of any wrongdoing.

As a former prosecutor, I know well the importance of holding criminals accountable for their crimes with strong sentences. But when we are talking about children, we must also think about how best to help them become responsible, contributing members of society as adults. That keeps us all safer.

I am disturbed that children from minority communities continue to be overrepresented in the juvenile justice system. This bill encourages states to take new steps to identify the reasons for this serious and continuing problem and to work together with the Federal Government and with local communities to find ways to start solving it.

I am also concerned that too many runaway and homeless young people are arrested for actions like truancy, without having committed any crime. In a Judiciary Committee hearing last year on the reauthorization of the Runaway and Homeless Youth Act, we were reminded of the plight of the invisible and population, even in the wealthiest country in the world, and inspired by the ability of so many children in this desperate situation to rise above that adversity.

This reauthorization of the Juvenile Justice Act takes strong and significant steps to move away from detaining children from at-risk populations for status offenses, and requires states to phase out the practice entirely in three years, but with a safety valve for those states that are unable to move quickly due to limited resources.

As I have worked with experts on this legislation, it has become abundantly clear that mental health and drug treatment are fundamental to making real progress toward preventing children from entering the criminal justice system. I was struck when Chief Richard Miranda of Tucson, AZ, said during our December 2007 hearing on this bill that we cannot arrest our way out of this problem. I heard the same sentiment from Chief Anthony Bossi and others at the Judiciary Committee’s field hearing last year on young people and violent crime in Rutland, Vermont. When seasoned police officers from Rutland, Vermont, to Tucson, Arizona, tell us that prevention programs are pivotal, I pay attention.

Just as the last administration gutted programs that support state and local law enforcement, so they consistently cut and narrowed effective prevention programs. It would have been even worse had it not been for Senator KOHL’s efforts. We must work with the
The Obama administration has reversed this trend and helps our communities implement programs proven to help kids turn their lives around.

I thank the many prominent Vermont representatives of law enforcement, juvenile justice systems, and prevention-oriented non-profits who have spoken to me in support of reauthorizing this important Act, and who have helped inform my understanding of these issues. They include Ken Schatz of the Burlington City Attorney’s Office, Vermont Juvenile Justice Specialist Theresa Lay-Sleeper, and Chief Steve McQueen of the Winnebago Police Department. I know that many Judiciary Committee members have heard from passionate leaders on this issue in their own states.

I have long supported a strong Federal commitment to preventing youth violence, with full respect for the discretion due to law enforcement and judges, with deference to states, and with a regard to difficult fiscal realities. I have worked hard on past reauthorizations of this legislation, as have Senators Specter and Kohl and others on the Judiciary Committee. We have learned the importance of balancing strong law enforcement with effective prevention programs. This reauthorization pushes forward new ways to help children move out of the criminal justice system, return to school, and become responsible, hard-working members of our communities. I hope all our communities benefit from these programs.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the bill text be printed in the RECORD:

"...be enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled..."

"SEC. 101. FINDINGS.

"Congress finds the following:

"(1) A growing body of adolescent development research supports the use of developmentally appropriate services and sanctions for youth in the juvenile justice system and those at risk for delinquent behavior to help prevent youth crime and to successfully intervene with youth who have already entered the system.

"(2) Research has shown that targeted investments to redirect offending juveniles onto a different path are cost effective and can help reduce juvenile recidivism and adult crime.

"(3) Minorities are disproportionately represented in the juvenile justice system.

"(4) Between 1990 and 2004, the number of youth in adult jails increased by 208 percent.

"(5) Every day in the United States, an average of 7,500 youth are incarcerated in adult jails.

"(6) Youth who have been previously tried as adults are, on average, 34 percent more likely to commit violent or property crimes than youth retained in the juvenile justice system.

"(7) Research has shown that every dollar spent on evidence-based programs can yield a return of $13 in cost savings.

"(8) Each child prevented from engaging in repeat criminal offenses can save the community $1,706,900 to $3,400,000.

"(9) Youth who have spent more than 19 times more likely to commit suicide in jail than youth in the general population and 36 times more likely to commit suicide in an adult jail than in a juvenile detention facility.

"(10) Seventy percent of youth in detention are held for nonviolent charges, and more than 92 percent are charged with property offenses, public order offenses, probation violation, or status offenses, such as truancy, running away, or breaking curfew.

"(11) The prevalence of mental disorders among youth in juvenile justice systems is 2 to 3 times higher than among youth in the general population.

"(12) Eighty percent of juveniles in juvenile justice systems have a nexus to substance abuse.

"(13) The proportion of girls entering the justice system has rapidly increased over the past several decades, rising from 20 percent in 1980 to 29 percent in 2003."

SEC. 304. TECHNICAL AND CONFORMING AMENDMENT.

Mr. KOHL. Mr. President, I rise today with Senator LEAHY and Senator SPECTER to introduce the Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Reauthorization Act. The Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Act, JJDPA, has played a key role in successful state and local efforts to reduce juvenile crime and get kids back on track. This legislation has runumts with the law. This legislation will reauthorize and make significant improvements to these important programs.

A successful strategy to combat juvenile crime consists of a large dose of prevention and intervention programs. Juvenile justice programs have proven time and time again that they help prevent crime, strengthen communities, and rehabilitate juvenile offenders. The JJDPA has always had a dual focus: prevention and rehabilitation. The JJDPA has successfully focused on intervening in a positive manner to work with those who have fallen through the cracks and have had a few scrapes with the law. Many of the juveniles who come into contact with the justice system are not violent offenders or gang members. Rather, they are kids who have made mistakes and deserve a second chance to succeed and lead healthy lives. In fact, seventy percent of youth in detention are held for nonviolent charges. Research has shown that youth who come into contact with the justice system can be rehabilitated, and we have an obligation to support successful programs that do just that.

While putting young people on the right path will require that the youth be found in contact with is tremendously important, we would all prefer to keep them from getting into trouble in the first place. Title V, of course, is the only federal program that is dedicated exclusively to juvenile crime prevention. Evidence-based prevention programs are proven to reduce crime. Because each child prevented from engaging in repeat criminal offenses can save the community $1.7 to $3.4 million, reducing crime is a very strong priority. Research has shown that every dollar spent on effective, evidence based programs can yield up to $13 in cost savings.

Since the last reauthorization in 2002, research and experience have revealed that there is still room for improvement. That is why we are proposing a number of changes to the Act. Under Title II, the existing JJDPA required specific core requirements to ensure that juvenile offenders are provided with adequate mental health screening and treatment for these juveniles who are adjudicated delinquent. Evidence-based prevention programs are proven to reduce crime. Because each child prevented from engaging in repeat criminal offenses can save the community $1.7 to $3.4 million, reducing crime is a very strong priority. Research has shown that every dollar spent on effective, evidence based programs can yield up to $13 in cost savings.

The Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Act of 1974 (42 U.S.C. 5601 et seq.) is amended—

(1) in the section heading, by striking “SEC. 505. AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.” and inserting “SEC. 504. TECHNICAL AND CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.”;
(2) in section 246(a)(2)(D), by striking “section 223(c)” and inserting “section 223(d)”;
(3) in section 290(b), by striking “section 223(c)” and inserting “section 223(d)”;
(4) by striking “this title” and inserting “this Act”;
(5) the term ‘mentoring’ means matching 1 adult with 1 or more youths (aged 6 to 17) for the purpose of providing guidance, support, and encouragement aimed at developing the character of the youths, where the adult and youths meet regularly for not less than 4 hours each month for not less than 9 months; and
(6) the term ‘youths’;”

Finally, and possibly most importantly, the key to success is adequate support. Funding for juvenile justice programs has been on a downward spiral for the last 8 years. Just 6 years ago, these programs received approximately $566 million, with more than $94 million for the Title V Local Delinquency Prevention Program and nearly $250 million for the Juvenile Accountability Block Grant program. Last year, the Bush administration requested just $250 million for all juvenile justice programs, which represents an 80 percent cut from fiscal year 2002. Local communities do a great job of leveraging this funding to accomplish great things, but we cannot say with a straight face that this level is sufficient. We look forward to working with President Bush to ensure that these vital programs once again receive the adequate funding they deserve.
The Federal Government, through the 21st Century Truck Partnership, has for some years provided funding to conduct research and development for the modernization of this industry, in association with a collection of private industry partners. Despite the significant potential benefits of hybrid trucks, however, research in this area was eliminated recently to emphasize a focus on passenger vehicles. This decision was shortsighted.

In 2008, truck operators in Maine and around the country were hard hit by increases in the price of diesel fuel. While fortunately there has been some relief in 2009, it is likely that as our Nation recovers from the current economic downturn, the demand for and prices of diesel fuel will increase again in the future. Given that our Nation relies upon the trucking industry to keep our economy running by providing timely delivery of food, industrial products, and raw materials, we must develop alternatives that make the industry less susceptible to dramatic changes in oil prices. Hybrid power technologies offer tremendous promise of reducing this critical industry's dependence on oil.

Trucks consume large amounts of our imported fuels. Successfully transitioning trucks to hybrid power technology will reduce our Nation's oil consumption and improve our energy security. The Heavy Duty Hybrid Vehicle Research, Development, and Demonstration Act directs the Department of Energy to expand its research in advanced energy storage technologies to include hybrid trucks as well as passenger vehicles. Current hybrid technology works well for cars that can be made with lightweight materials and travel short distances. Trucks need to be constructed with heavy materials commensurate with the heavy loads they carry and, if they are going to be plug-in hybrids, relatively long distances between charges. Thus advances in battery and other technologies are needed to make plug-in trucks commercially viable and may require more advanced technology than is required for passenger cars.

Grant recipients will be required to complete two phases. In phase one, recipients must build one plug-in hybrid truck, collect data, and make performance comparisons with traditional trucks. Each new programme in phase one will be invited to enter into phase two where they must produce 50 plug-in hybrid trucks and report on the technological and market obstacles to widespread production. The bill will also sponsor two smaller programmes to deal with drive-train issues and the impact of the wide use of plug-in hybrid technology on the electrical grid. In total, the bill authorizes the expenditure of $16,000,000 for each of fiscal years 2010, 2011, and 2012.

This bill will accelerate research of plug-in hybrid technologies for heavy duty trucks.

SEC. 3. EXPANDING RESEARCH IN HYBRID TECHNOLOGY FOR LIGHT VEHICLES.

Subsection (g)(1) of the United States Energy Storage Competitiveness Act of 2007 (42 U.S.C. 1723g(1)(1)) is amended by inserting "vehicles with a gross weight over 16,000 pounds," before "stationary applications."
a line” in bailing out Bear Stearns. Mr. Novak wrote that was an underestimate and that we wouldn’t know the ramifications of this decision for a long time.

Well, I think we better understand those ramifications today. We are now trillions of dollars past that line and we are beginning to comprehend the course on which that decision has set us. I, personally, believe that trillions of dollars past that line, we are no better off. That is enough. Tim Geithner’s bailout approach has taken us too far. Instead of Congress using the AIG bonus issue to cover up Tim Geithner’s mistakes in allowing those bonuses, we should take it as an opportunity to fundamentally reevaluate the bailouts thus far and put an end to any more bailouts. Now, with the revelations of how AIG is being used to funnel money to foreign banks to make them whole on bad investments at the expense of the U.S. taxpayers, we need to put an end to this approach on bailouts. The taxpayers deserve no less.

The debate over the AIG bonuses, though extremely important, only scratches the surface of some much deeper issues. First, the furor over AIG bonuses leads to another, more important, news about the AIG bailout regarding counterparties—or creditors—counterparties, to some of AIG’s more exotic transactions. Second, the AIG bonus issue reveals a significant, less known, but equally important, Treasury’s approach on bailouts. That is Tim Geithner’s bailout approach to failing financial institutions.

Under Tim Geithner, the $150 billion in taxpayer money AIG has received is being used to funnel money to AIG’s counterparties, mostly big investment banks and foreign banks. Taxpayers are right to be angry about the bonuses, but they should be even angrier about how their taxpayer dollars used to bail out AIG are being distributed by Thirteen banks have each received $10 billion AIG investment. Secretary Geithner needs to explain to us why relatively healthy firms such as Goldman Sachs are not paying any loss on a clearly bad investment in AIG. Why can AIG be getting 100 percent of their investment at the expense of the U.S. taxpayer? Here is a sample of the banks that are getting made whole by U.S. taxpayers—people who elect us to office: The Bank of Montreal, Canada, $1.1 billion; the Societe Generale, France, $11.9 billion; investments made by a French bank. This is a French bank that bought an interest in AIG, they lost their money, they come back to us to pay them back for their loss. The BNP Paribas, $1.9 billion; the Deutsche Bank in Germany, $11.8 billion; the ING, Netherlands, $1.5 billion; Barclays, of the UK, $8.5 billion. This is just a sampling of the over $50 billion of foreign banks have gotten off of AIG. In other words, $50 billion in taxpayers’ money has gone to foreign banks. I don’t think many people have caught on to that yet. The taxpayers are picking up the tab. Meanwhile, some U.S. banks are getting the same treatment. Goldman Sachs has received $12.9 billion. These are all investments in AIG. Merrill Lynch, $6.8 billion; Bank of America, $5.2 billion; Citigroup, $2.3 billion. All told, the U.S. banks have gotten around $45 billion through AIG from the U.S. taxpayer. What is interesting, as bad as it is that U.S. banks are getting back $45 billion for bad investments, the foreign banks are actually getting back more than the U.S. banks. The reason I mention this is that one AIG investment has an AIG investments—not one. AIG’s counterparties have been made whole across the board by the U.S. taxpayer. Why is that? Why can’t any of these banks take any of the loss on their AIG investment? Why is the taxpayer being asked to bear the full cost of all these bad investments? The American taxpayers have a right to know and Secretary Geithner needs to explain this.

I also know that some people are outraged in my State of Oklahoma about the fact that there have been bonuses that have been made, but this is even far worse than that was. The American people are becoming completely fed up with their $150 billion AIG investment, $700 billion bailout of Wall Street, and billions in ad hoc bailouts, of which we have still not seen the end. Only this week, Secretary Geithner has announced that the Government will work with private investors to purchase between $500 billion and $1 trillion of toxic assets.

Now, at this point I would say, remember back when we were being sold a bill of goods, I voted against it, but 75 percent of the Senate voted for it—$700 billion to be given to an unselected bureaucracy to do with as they wished. We all remember that. What was that supposed to be used for? The bad part of the toxic assets, and if you don’t believe me, just look at that, the whole country is going to go down and we are going to have another depression again. So the President’s budget includes a placeholder for billions in additional banking bailouts. Now, I guess it is hard to explain to people how AIG is being used to funnel money to foreign banks to make them whole on bad investments, that is a bad deal for the U.S. taxpayers. Now, in light of all of this, I have introduced legislation to do more than the bonus issue of AIG that is S. 680, just introduced. S. 680 gets to the root of this problem. Of the $150 billion we have already given to AIG, it is my understanding that there is $30 billion more for AIG from TARP that has been approved by the Secretary but has not yet been drawn down. My legislation would prevent that from going forward. The taxpayers have given AIG about $150 billion so far. I think it is completely reasonable to say that once a single company gets a bill of goods, I voted against it, but 75 percent of the Senate voted for it—$700 billion to be given to an unselected bureaucracy to do with as they wished. We all remember that. What was that supposed to be used for? The bad part of the toxic assets, and if you don’t believe me, just look at that, the whole country is going to go down and we are going to have another depression again. Levin, Mr. Schumer, and Ms. Stabenow:

S. 682. A bill to amend the Public Health Service Act to improve mental and behavioral health services on college campuses; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

Mr. DURBIN. Colleges and universities take many steps to support their students and ensure that they succeed. Financial aid offices find ways for students to afford tuition and textbooks, housing offices provide safe places for students to live, and tutoring centers provide academic supports for students who are struggling to keep up in class.

But there is another critical service that many students require to succeed, and it is much less frequently discussed. I am talking about mental health services and outreach provided by college counseling centers.

For a long time, we have overlooked the needs of the students on college campuses. We now know that many mental illnesses start to manifest in this period when young people leave the security of home and regular medical care. The responsibility for the students’ well-being often shifts from parents to students, and the standards aren’t always completely prepared. It is easier for a young person’s problems to go unnoticed when he or she is away at college than when they are at home, in the company of parents, old friends, and high school teachers. College counseling centers provide a new opportunity for young people to experiment with drugs or alcohol.

The consequences of not detecting or addressing mental health needs among students are real. Forty-five percent of college students report having felt so depressed that it was difficult to function. Ten percent have contemplated suicide. We have even seen tragedies on the scale of shootings at Northern Illinois University in February 2000 and Virginia Tech in April 2007. These heartbreak- ing and traumatic incidents demonstrated the tragic consequences of mental instability and helped us recognize we need to do more to support students during what can be very tough years.

Fortunately, many students can succeed in college if they have appropriate counseling services and access to needed medications. These services make a real impact. Students who seek counseling and take their medications are 6 times less likely to kill themselves. Colleges are welcoming students today who 10 or 20 years ago would not have been able to attend school due to mental illness, but who can today because of advances in treatment.

But while the needs for mental health services on campus are rising, colleges are facing financial pressures and having trouble meeting this demand. As I have traveled around my State, I have learned just how thin the lines between college and universities are stretched when it comes to providing counseling and other support services to students.

Take Southern Illinois University in Carbondale. SIUC has 8 full-time counselors for 21,000 students. That is one counselor for every 2,500 students. The recommended ratio is one counselor for every 1,500 students. And there is another critical need. Roughly 40% of rural communities, Carbondale has only one community mental health agency. That agency is overwhelmed by the mental health needs of the community and refuses to serve students from SIUC. The campus counseling center is the only mental health option for students. The eight hard-working counselors at SIUC do their best under impossible conditions. They triage students who come in seeking help so that the ones who might be a threat to themselves or others are seen first. The waitlist of students seeking services has reached 45 students.

The story is the same across the country. Colleges are trying to fill in the gaps between the shortage of counselors, students’ needs are overlooked. A recent survey of college counseling centers indicates that the average ratio of professional-staff-to-students is 1 to 1,952, and at 4-year public universities it is 1 to 2,607 students.

Although demand for mental health services is high, the recession has put pressure on administrators to cut budgets wherever they can. At times, counseling centers are in the cross hairs. Ten percent of survey respondents reported that counseling services were cut during the 2007–8 academic year, half said their budgets stayed the same, and nearly a quarter reported that their funds increased by 3 percent or less.

With so many students looking for help and so few counselors to see them, counseling centers have to cut back on outreach. Without outreach, the chances of finding students who need help but do not ask for it go down. This is a serious problem. We know that serious signs of a tortured mental state. But faculty and students do not always know how or where to express their concerns. Outreach efforts by campus counseling centers can help educate the community about warning signs to look for as well as how to intervene. Of the students who committed suicide across the country in 2007, only 22 percent had received counseling on campus. That means that of the 1,000 college students who committed suicide, 900 may never have looked for help. How many of those young lives could have been saved if our college counseling centers had the resources they needed to identify those students and help them? Our students need and deserve better.

We need to help schools meet the needs of their students, and that’s why I’m introducing the Mental Health on Campus Improvement Act today. This bill would create a grant program to provide funding for colleges and universities to improve mental health services. Colleges could use the funding to hire personnel, increase outreach, and educate the campus community about mental health. The bill also would direct the Department of Health and Human Services to develop a public, nation-wide campaign to educate campus communities about mental health.

Reflecting on the loss of his own son, the well-known minister Rev. William Sloan Coffin once said, “When parents die, they take with them a portion of the past. But when children die, they take away the future.” I hope the bill I am introducing today will help prevent the unnecessary loss of more young lives and bright futures.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 682

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE. This Act may be cited as the “Mental Health on Campus Improvement Act.”

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

Congress makes the following findings:

(1) The 2007 National Survey of Counseling Centers Directors found that the average ratio of counselors to students on campus is nearly 1 to 2,000 and is often far higher on large campuses. The International Association of Counseling Services accreditation standards recommend 1 counselor per 1,000 to 1,500 students.

(2) College counseling reports that 8.5 percent of enrolled students sought counseling in the past year, totaling an estimated 1,600,000 students.

(3) Over 50 percent of counseling directors believe there is an increase in the number of students coming to campus with severe psychological problems. The majority of counseling directors report concerns that the demand for services is growing without an increase in resources.

(4) A 2008 American College Health Association survey revealed that 43 percent of students at colleges and universities report having felt so depressed it was difficult to function, and one out of every 11 students seriously considered suicide within the past year.

(5) Research conducted between 1989 and 2002 found that students seen for anxiety disorders doubled, for depression tripled, and for serious suicidal intention tripled.

(6) Many students who need help never receive it. Counseling directors report that, of the students who committed suicide on their campuses, only 22 percent were current or former counseling center clients. Directors did not know the previous psychiatric histories of 90 percent of those who committed suicide.

(7) A survey conducted by the University of Idaho Student Counseling Center in 2000 found that 77 percent of students who reported that they were more likely to stay in school because of counseling and that their school performance would have declined without counseling.

(f) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—

There are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to carry out this section.

By Mr. HARKIN (for himself, Mr. SPECTER, Mr. KENNEDY, Mr. DURBIN, Mr. KERRY, Mr. SCHUMER, Ms. STABENOW, Mr. DODD, Mr. BROWN, Mr. SANDERS, Mr. CARL, Mr. TESTER, Mrs. GILLIBRAND, and Mr. BENNET) own communities, rather than in an institution. With appropriate community-based services and supports, we can transform the lives of people with disabilities. They can live with family and friends, not strangers. They can be the mother, the father, the daughter, the son of a person who is supported in their own community. This is not asking too much. This is the bare minimum that we should demand for every human being.

Community-based services and supports allow people with disabilities to lead independent lives, have jobs, and participate in their communities. Some will become taxpayers, some will get an education, and some will participate in their communities and civic activities. But all will be given a chance to make their own choices and to govern their own lives.

The Community Choice Act will open the door to full participation by people with disabilities in our workplaces and economy. It will give them better access to the American Dream.

As has been true with all major disability-rights legislation going back to the ADA, this is a strictly bipartisan bill. I urge all my colleagues to come together on this important measure. I especially want to thank Senator Specter for his leadership on this issue and his commitment to improving access to home and community-based services for people with disabilities. I also thank Senators Kennedy, Durbin, Kerry, Schumer, Stabenow, Dodd, Brown, Sanders, Casey, Tester, Bennet, and Gillibrand for joining me in this important effort.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

SEC. 1. SHORT TITLE; TABLE OF CONTENTS.

(a) Short Title.—This Act may be cited as the “Community Choice Act of 2009.”

(b) Table of Contents.—The table of contents for this Act is as follows:

Sec. 1. Short title; table of contents.
Sec. 2. Findings and purposes.

TITILE I—ESTABLISHMENT OF MEDICAID PLAN BENEFIT

Sec. 101. Coverage of community-based attendant services and supports under the Medicaid program.

Sec. 102. Enhanced FMAP for ongoing activities of early coverage States that enhance and promote the use of community-based attendant services and supports.

Sec. 103. Increased Federal financial participation for certain expenditures.

TITILE II—PROMOTION OF SYSTEMS CHANGE AND MEETING COMMUNITY NEEDS

Sec. 201. Grants to promote systems change and capacity building.

Sec. 202. Demonstration project to enhance coordination of care under the Medicare and Medicaid programs for dual eligible individuals.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS AND PURPOSES.

(a) Findings.—Congress makes the following findings:

(1) Long-term services and supports provided under the Medicaid program established under title XIX of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1396 et seq.) must meet the abilities and needs of individuals with disabilities and older Americans, including the choice to live in one’s own home or with one’s own family and to become a productive member of the community.

(2) Similarly, under the United States Supreme Court’s decision in Olmstead v. L.C., 527 U.S. 581 (1999), individuals with disabilities have the right to choose to receive their long-term services and supports in the community, rather than in an institutional setting.

(3) Nevertheless, research on the provision of long-term services and supports under the Medicaid program (conducted by and on behalf of the Department of Health and Human Services) continues to show a significant funding and programmatic bias toward institutional care. In 2007, only 42 percent of long-term care funds expended under the Medicaid program, and only about 15.6 percent of all funds expended under that program, pay for services and supports in home and community-based settings.

(4) While much effort has been dedicated to “rebalancing the system, overall, about 60 percent of Medicaid long-term care dollars are still spent on institutional services, with the lowest percent going to home and community-based services. In 2007, only 11 States spent 50 percent or more of their Medicaid long-term care funds on home and community-based services.

(5) The statistics are even more disproportionate for adults with physical disabilities. In 2007, 89 percent of Medicaid long-term care spending for older people and adults with physical disabilities paid for institutional services. Only 6 States spent 50 percent or more of their Medicaid long-term care dollars on home and community-based services for older people and adults with physical disabilities while ½ of the States spent less than 25 percent. This disparity continues even though, on average, it is estimated that Medicaid dollars can support nearly 3 older people and adults with physical disabilities in home and community-based services for every person in a nursing home.

(6) For Medicaid beneficiaries who need long term care, services provided in an institutional setting represent the only guaranteed benefit. Only 11 States have adopted the benefit option of providing personal care, or attendant, services under their Medicaid programs.

(7) Although every State has chosen to provide certain services under home and community-based waivers, these services are unevenly available within and across States, and reach far fewer eligible individuals. Individuals with the most significant disabilities are usually afforded the least amount of choice, despite advances in medical and assistive technologies and related areas.

(8) Despite the limited funding for home and community-based services, the majority of individuals on Medicaid long-term services and supports prefer to live in the community, rather than in institutional settings.

(9) The goals of the Nation properly include providing families of children with disabilities, working-age adults with disabilities, and older Americans with:

(A) a means of living and receiving long-term services and supports in the most integrated setting appropriate to the individual’s needs;

(B) the greatest possible control over the services received and, therefore, their own lives and futures; and

(C) quality services that maximize independence in the home and community.

(b) Purposes.—The purposes of this Act are the following:

(1) To reform the Medicaid program established under title XIX of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1396 et seq.) to provide services as the most integrated setting appropriate to the individual’s needs, and to provide equal access to community-based attendant services and supports in order to assist individuals in achieving equal full participation, independent living, and economic self-sufficiency.

(2) To provide financial assistance to States as they reform their long-term care systems to provide comprehensive statewide long-term services and supports, including community-based attendant services and supports that provide choices and control, and direction, in the most integrated setting appropriate.

(3) To assist States in meeting the growing demand for community-based attendant services and supports, as the Nation’s population ages and individuals with disabilities live longer.

(4) To assist States in complying with the U.S. Supreme Court decision in Olmstead v. L.C., 527 U.S. 581 (1999), and implementing the Olmstead v. L.C. mandate of the Americans with Disabilities Act.

(e) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—

(I) IN GENERAL.—There is authorized to be appropriated to carry out this section, for each fiscal years 2010 through 2012.

(II) INELIGIBILITY.—Amounts appropriated to carry out this section shall remain available without fiscal year limitation.
The environmental and economic damage is impossible to both fathom and assess; countless seabirds, marine mammals, and fish were killed. As a result, companies like the Chuigach Alaska Corporation went bankrupt. There were huge losses to recreational sports, fisheries, and tourism. Today, 20 years later, there is still oil in the area.

But most of all, Exxon Valdez showed us just how we were. Today, this disaster serves as a constant reminder that we cannot allow complacency to drive the ship when it comes to protecting our oceans from oil spills.

This is why I rise today—on the anniversary of this catastrophe—to introduce the Oil Pollution Prevention and Response Act of 2009.

This legislation is designed to address some of the weaknesses that perfectly aligned to make the Exxon Valdez disaster possible. It will put mechanisms in place that will work to protect our Nation’s environment and economy from this kind of devastation, and add another layer to our oil spill safety net.

Because while our oil spill safety net has come a long way since 1989, it could still be stronger.

In response to the Exxon Valdez oil spill, Congress passed the Oil Pollution Act of 1990 to say once and for all that complacency has no place in this country’s oil shipping industry. It revolutionized oil spill risk management, and demonstrated that prevention, preparedness, and response were the key to filling some of the gaps.

The probability of a major spill has greatly decreased.

In my home State of Washington, the Coast Guard’s District 13 leads the Nation in oil spill prevention and works closely with the State of Washington, tribal governments, and industry.

But while the probability of a spill has decreased, the potential impacts are greater than ever, and just one spill could catastrophically damage our pristine waterways, ecosystems, and economy.

This is especially true in places like Washington State’s Puget Sound, where every year, 1,400 oil tankers and 3,000 oil barges travel through the Sound, carrying about 15 billion gallons of oil. Or in a place like the Port of Seattle, where port facilities and activities support more than 190,000 jobs in the region and generate more than $17 billion in revenue for businesses.

Alarming, in 2005, the Seattle Post-Intelligencer identified 650 near-miss incidents, including traffic violations, collisions, and groundings that occurred in the Sound between 1985 and 2004.

Unfortunately, these close calls are not all we have to worry about.

According to Coast Guard data, although the number of oil spills from vessels has decreased since passage of OPA 90, the volume of oil spilled nationwide is still significant.

In 1992, vessels spilled more than 665,000 gallons of oil.

In 2004, that number was higher, at almost 723,000 gallons.

In 2004, there were 36 spills from tank ships, 141 spills from barges, and 1,562 spills from other vessels, including carry ships.

I know that many of my colleagues have examples of their own, as there have been recent spills involving significant amounts of oil off the coasts of Alaska, Maine, Massachusetts, Oregon, Virginia, Hawaii, and Washington.

In the last 2 years, we have seen oil on the beaches of San Francisco and the shores of the Mississippi River in Louisiana. What we learn from these incidents, from Exxon Valdez, from every close call. We must pass iron-clad policies that show there is no room for complacency.

The Oil Pollution and Prevention and Response Act of 2009 is designed to do just that.

It builds on previous efforts, like the Commerce Committee Subcommittee on Fisheries and Coast Guard field hearing I chaired in Seattle in 2005. This hearing focused on improving our oil pollution prevention and response capabilities, and as a result of the testimony from many people during that hearing and conversations with the Coast Guard and other stakeholders, I introduced the Oil Pollution Prevention and Response Act in March 2006.

This bill updates that effort and includes additional provisions to reinvigorate our commitment to oil spill prevention and strengthen our oil spill safety net.

This bill will strengthen navigational measures in sensitive areas by requiring the identification of natural resources of particular ecological or economic importance—such as fisheries, marine sanctuaries, and important estuaries. Because if we know where the critically important resources are, we can re-route ships away from them.

It will improve the Coast Guard’s coordination with State Oil Spill Prevention and Response.

The bill will mandate the Coast Guard to further reduce the risks of oil spills from activities that have been put on a back burner in the past; such as the potential for a spill when oil is transferred between vessels.

The bill will augment the Coast Guard’s vessel inspection manpower.

It will require the Coast Guard to track and report on instances of human error, the most frequent cause of accidental spills.

This is an important step in the right direction to protect our Nation’s oil spill safety net.

It is a proclamation that we are not going to allow complacency back at the wheel, nor are we going to allow politics to get in the way of doing what’s right.

Twenty years ago we saw exactly what can happen. Today it is up to us to ensure that this country’s environment, economy, and people never have to witness the aftermath of another Exxon Valdez.

The truth is, until we move this country away from its dangerous dependence on oil and toward a cleaner, more affordable, sustainable energy future, oil spills will be inevitable. So while we must continue to fight for a new energy future, we must also take responsibility and precautions for the symptoms of our actions today.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

SEC. 3. FINDINGS.

The Congress finds the following:

(1) Oil released into the Nation’s marine waters can cause substantial, and in some cases irreparable, harm to the marine environment.

(2) The economic impact of oil spills is substantial. Billions of dollars have been spent in the United States for cleanup of, and damages due to, oil spills; while many social, cultural, economic, and environmental damages remain uncompensated.

(3) The Oil Pollution Act of 1990, enacted in response to the worst vessel oil spill in United States history, substantially reduced the amount of oil spills from vessels. However, significant volumes of oil continue to be released, and the potential for a major spill remains unacceptably high.

(4) Although the total number of oil spills from vessels has decreased since passage of the Oil Pollution Act of 1990, more oil was spilled in 2004 from vessels nationwide than was spilled from vessels in 1990.

(5) Waterborne transportation of oil in the United States continues to increase.

(6) Although the number of oil spills from tankers declined from 183 in 1992 to 36 in 2004, spills from oil tankers tend to be large with devastating impacts.

(7) While the number of oil spills from tank barges has declined since 1992 (322 spills to 141 spills in 2004), the volume of oil spilled from tank barges has remained at approximately 200,000 gallons spilled each year.

(8) Oil spills from non-tank vessels averaged between 125,000 gallons and 400,000 gallons per year from 1992 through 2004 and accounted for over half of the total number of spills from all sources, including vessels and non-vessel sources.

(9) Recent spills involving significant quantities of oil have occurred off the coasts of Alaska, Maine, Massachusetts, Oregon, Virginia, and Washington, and involved barges, tank vessels, and non-tank vessels.

The value of waterfront property, sport, commercial and tribal treaty fisheries, recreation, tourism, and threatened and endangered species continue to increase.

(10) It is more cost-effective to prevent oil spills than it is to clean-up oil once it is released into the environment.

(11) Of the 20 major vessel oil spill incidents since 1990 where liability limits have been exceeded, 10 involved tank barges, 8 involved non-tank-involved tankers, and only 1 involved a vessel that was double-hulled.

(12) Although recent technological improvements in vessel design, such as double hulls and redundant steering, increase tanker safety, these technologies are not a panacea and cannot ensure against oil spills, the leading cause of which is human error.

(13) The Federal government has a responsibility to protect the Nation’s natural resources, public health, and environment by approving or requiring measures to prevent and respond to oil spills.

(14) Environmentally fragile coastal areas are vitally important to local economies and the way of life in coastal States and federally recognized tribal governments. These areas are particularly vulnerable to the threat of oil spills. Coastal waters contribute approximately $60 billion annually to commercial shellfish and finfish catches, and over 81 percent of all recreational fishing catches in the United States, outside of Alaska and Hawaii.

(15) The northern coast of Washington State and entrance to Puget Sound is the principal corridor conveying Pacific Rim commerce into the State, to Canada’s largest port, and through the nation’s largest naval complex. The area contains a National Marine Sanctuary, a National Park, and many National Wildlife Refuges contiguous with marine waters.

(16) State, local, and tribal governments have important human resource and spill response capabilities which can contribute to response efforts in the event of a significant oil spill. State, local, and tribal governments may have unique local knowledge of resources which can improve the quality of spill response. For these reasons, State, local and tribal governments need appropriate information to have knowledge of spills, as well as incidents and activities that may result in a spill, which can impact State waters.

By Mr. LAUTENBERG (for himself, Mr. ROCKEFELLER, Ms. CANTWELL, Mrs. BOXER, and Mr. BINGE):

S. 685. A bill to require new vessels for carrying oil fuel to have double hulls, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.
Mr. LAUTENBERG. Mr. President, this is a very significant day in environmental history in our world, particularly in our country. While the debate goes on about what corporate America has done and what they have not done and how we should treat them in trying to get our economy back on track, we have heard questions raised about corporate behavior.

I came out of the corporate world when I came to the Senate. It seems to me that things were different years ago.

Over the last few days, we have heard many in these Chambers, here and in the House of Representatives, call on companies to be better corporate citizens.

Today I rise to point out what may be the greatest abandonment of corporate citizenship in our Nation’s history, and that was displayed by the Exxon Corporation, one of the most profitable companies in American history.

It was 20 years ago today that the Exxon Valdez crashed into the Bligh Reef in Alaska’s Prince William Sound. That ship spilled 11 million gallons of crude oil, damaging 1,300 miles of shoreline, and ruining the lives of thousands of Alaskans.

Now, as chairman of a subcommittee with appropriations jurisdiction over the Coast Guard, I was taken to Alaska by the Coast Guard and arrived there 3 days after the Exxon Valdez ran aground. To see the damage was horrific. But also during those days there, during that first day, I saw so many of the people who worked for the Government.

This is a discussion we often have about Government servants and their obligations—and I would say, having come from the corporate world, there are few who are more mindful of their obligations than those who work for Government. That day I saw from the helicopter in which I was flying so many of our people committed to their responsibilities, dealing with the problem, brave people traveling to tiny islands by helicopter and small boats. Their mission was to save the wildlife. I saw many of them fairly close up taking birds, and mammals—the young mammals, particularly—and fish into their hands and wiping the oil off to try to save the lives of these victims. One by one, wherever they could, they were saving animal lives. It was devasting to see.

It was obvious, as one looked at the waters of Prince William Sound, a beautiful place, surrounded by glaciers, that this lure, this almost seductive beautiful place, surrounded by glaciers, were saving animal lives. It was devasting to see.

Still, even today, 20 years later, the company continues to stonewall the victims by trying to avoid paying the interest that fell on these charges. Exxon’s actions are the height of corporate irresponsibility. As a former CEO of a major corporation, I understand the drive to succeed. But there is nothing more reprehensible than a company evading its obligations to our country’s people just to make a quick buck and to avoid the legitimate responsibility that is a giant factor in our economy and social well being.

They have that responsibility.

Exxon had record profits last year of $45 billion. Even last quarter, when economic times were suffering, this company, Exxon, posted a profit of nearly $8 billion in a single quarter—$8 billion.

Now, it would have been a drop in the bucket for this corporation to have fully compensated the victims who were so severely hurt. All the money, energy, and time that Exxon has wasted should have been spent making local communities whole again and helping to fix the environmental and economic damage done to Alaska’s Prince William Sound.

The truth is, Exxon needs to change its ways, and today, the 20th anniversary of the Exxon Valdez disaster, is a perfect opportunity.

On this anniversary, we are also reminded how dangerous transporting oil can be. That is why I have introduced a bill this day that will accelerate the use of double-hulled vessels by shippers.

Oil spills are absolutely catastrophic to the environment and seaside communities and influence wide geographic areas beyond those communities. After examining the costs of past spills, we have written a bill to substantially reduce the possibilities of future spills.

So I look forward to seeing this bill passed by this Chamber and to working with colleagues to make sure that disasters like the one we saw 20 years ago this day will never happen again.

By Ms. MIKULSKI.

Ms. MIKULSKI. President, I rise today to introduce two important social work bills; the Dorothy I. Height and Whitney M. Young, Jr. Social Work Reinvestment Act and the Clinical Social Work Medicare Equity Act of 2009. I am proud to sponsor these pieces of legislation to improve the shortage of social workers and properly reimburse social workers for the services they provide.

Social workers play a critical role combating the social problems facing our nation and are an integral part of our healthcare system. As we move into an era of unprecedented healthcare and social service needs, we must have the workforce in place to make sure that our returning soldiers have access to mental health services, our elderly maintain their independence in the communities they live in, and abused children are placed in safe homes. Social workers support physical, psychological and social needs. They provide mental health therapy, caregiver and family counseling, health education, program coordination, and case management. In these tough economic times social workers play a more important role ever to keep communities together and help individuals and families cope with the new stresses they are facing.

The Dorothy I. Height and Whitney M. Young, Jr. Social Work Reinvestment Act reinvigorates in social workers by providing grants to social workers, reviewing the current social workforce challenges, and determining how this shortage will affect the communities social workers serve. I am honored to introduce this bill today with two social visionaries, Dorothy I. Height and Whitney M. Young, Dorothy Height, a pioneer of the civil rights movement, like me began her career as a case worker and continued to fight for social justice. Whitney Young, another trailblazer of the civil rights movement, also began his career transforming our social landscape as a social worker. He particularly honored to introduce this bill today, on Dorothy Height’s birthday, Whitney Young, another trailblazer of the civil rights movement, also began his career transforming our social landscape as a social worker. He particularly honored to introduce this bill today, on Dorothy Height’s birthday, Whitney Young, another trailblazer of the civil rights movement, also began his career transforming our social landscape as a social worker. He particularly honored to introduce this bill today, on Dorothy Height’s birthday.
This bill is about reinvesting in social work. It provides grants that invest in social work education, research, and training. These grants will fund community-based programs of excellence and provide scholarships to train the next generation of social workers. The bill also addresses how to recruit and retain new social workers, research the impact of social services, and foster ways to improve social workplace safety. This bill establishes a national goal that will allow for social work education, advocacy and research institutions to collaborate and work together. It will facilitate gathering and distributing social work research to make the most effective use of the information we have on how social work service can improve our social fabric. This bill also gives social work the attention it deserves. It creates a media campaign that will promote social work, and recognizes March as Social Work Awareness Month.

Today, 30,000 social workers specialize in gerontology, but we will need 70,000 of these social workers by 2010. I want to make sure that when the aging tsunami hits us, we have the workforce in place. As our aging family members, the Alzheimer patients, and the disabled.

The Clinical Social Work Medicare Equity Act of 2009 ensures that clinical social workers receive Medicare reimbursement for mental health services they provide in nursing facilities for each patient they served. Under the Prospective Payment System, services provided by clinical social workers are lumped, or "bundled," along with the services of other health care providers for the purposes of billing and payments. Psychologists and psychiatrists, who provide similar counseling, were exempted from this system and continue to bill Medicare directly. This bill would exempt clinical social workers, like their mental health colleagues, from the Prospective Payment System, and would make sure that clinical social workers are paid for the services they provide to patients in skilled nursing facilities.

This bill is about more than paperwork and payment procedures. This bill is about equal access to Medicare payments for the equal and important work done by clinical social workers. It is about making sure our nation's most vulnerable citizens have access to quality mental health care. The overarching goal we should be striving to achieve for our seniors is an overall improved quality of life. Without clinical social workers, many nursing home residents may never get the counseling they need when faced with a life-threatening illness or the loss of a loved one. I think we can do better by our nation's seniors. I am fighting to make sure we do.

As a social worker, I have been fighting to protect and strengthen the safety of our nation's seniors. Making sure that seniors have access to affordable, quality mental health care is an important part of this fight. I know that millions of seniors do not have access to, or are not receiving, the mental health services they urgently need. Nearly 6 million seniors are affected by depression, but only one-tenth ever receive treatment. According to the American Psychiatric Association, up to 25 percent of the elderly population in the United States suffers from significant symptoms of mental disorders. Among low-income elder home residents the prevalence is as high as 80 percent. These mental disorders, which include severe depression and debilitating anxiety, interfere with the person's ability to carry out activities of daily living and adversely affect their quality of life. Furthermore, older people have a 20 percent suicide rate, the highest of any age group. Every year nearly 6,000 older Americans kill themselves. This is unacceptable and must be addressed.

This bill protects patients across the country and ensures that seniors living in underserved urban and rural areas, where clinical social workers are often the only available option for mental health care, continue to receive the treatment they need. Clinical social workers, much like psychologists and psychiatrists, treat and diagnose mental illnesses. In fact, clinical social workers provide mental health services for nursing home residents and seniors residing in rural environments. Unlike other mental health providers, clinical social workers cannot bill Medicare directly for the important services they provide to their patients. Protecting seniors' access to clinical social workers ensures that our most vulnerable citizens get the quality, affordable mental health care they need. This bill will correct this inequity and make sure clinical social workers get the payments and respect they deserve.

Before the Balanced Budget Act of 1997, clinical social workers billed Medicare Part B directly for mental health services they provided in nursing facilities for each patient they served. Under the Prospective Payment System, services provided by clinical social workers are lumped, or "bundled," along with the services of other health care providers for the purposes of billing and payments. Psychologists and psychiatrists, who provide similar counseling, were exempted from this system and continue to bill Medicare directly. Whereas the Senate is an institution that can raise awareness in the general public and the medical community of cerebral palsy: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate—

(1) designates March 25, 2009, as "National Cerebral Palsy Awareness Day";

(2) encourages all people in the United States to become more informed and aware of cerebral palsy; and

(3) respectfully requests the Secretary of the Senate to transmit a copy of this resolution to Reaching for the Stars: A Foundation of Hope for Children with Cerebral Palsy.

SENATE RESOLUTION 84—URGING THE GOVERNMENT OF CANADA TO END THE COMMERCIAL SEAL HUNT

Mr. LEVIN (for himself and Ms. COLLINS) submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations:

S. RES. 84

Whereas the Government of Canada permits an annual commercial hunt for seals in the waters off the east coast of Canada;

Whereas an international outcry regarding the plight of the seals hunted in Canada resulted in the 1983 ban by the European Union of whitecoat and blueback seal skins and the subsequent collapse of the commercial seal hunt in Canada;

Whereas the Marine Mammal Protection Act of 1972 (16 U.S.C. 1361 et seq.) bars the import into the United States of any seal products;

Whereas, in recent years, the Minister of Fisheries and Oceans of Canada has authorized historically high harp seal hunting;

Whereas more than 1,000,000 seals have been killed during the past 4 years;

Whereas harp seal pups can legally be hunted in Canada as soon as they have begun to molt their white coats, at approximately 12 days of age;

Whereas 97 percent of the seals killed are pups between just 12 days and 12 weeks of age;

Whereas, in 2007, an international panel of experts in veterinary medicine and zoology was invited by the government of the United States to observe the commercial seal slaughter in Canada;

Whereas the panel noted that sealers failed to comply with sealing regulations in Canada and that officials of the Government of Canada failed to enforce such regulations;

Whereas the report also concluded that the killing methods permitted during the commercial seal hunt in Canada are inherently inhumane and should be prohibited;

Whereas many seals are shot in the course of the hunt and escape beneath the ice where they die slowly and are never recovered;

Whereas such seals are not properly counted in official kill statistics, increasing the likelihood that the actual kill level is far higher than the level that is reported;

Whereas the few thousand fishermen who participate in the commercial seal hunt in Canada earn, on average, only a tiny fraction of their annual income from killing seals;

Whereas many of the sealing and fishing industries in Canada continue to justify the seal hunt on the grounds that the seal population in the Northwest Atlantic is healthier than the level that is reported;

Whereas the vast majority of seal products are exported from Canada, and the sealing industry relies on international markets for its products;

Whereas 10 countries have prohibited trade in seal products in recent years, and the European Union is now considering a prohibition on trade in seal products; and

Whereas the persistence of this cruel and needless commercial hunt is inconsistent with the well-established regulations of the Marine Mammal Protection Act (MMPA) and other marine mammals;

Whereas 97 percent of the seals killed are young, 12 days to 12 weeks, when the harp seal hunt begins in earnest; So today I am pleased to join by Senator COLLINS in submitting a resolution that urges the Government of Canada to end this senseless slaughter, as noted in the January 19, 2005, letter from the U.S. Department of State, in response to a letter Senator COLLINS and I wrote to President Bush, urging him to raise this issue during his November 30, 2004, visit with Canadian Prime Minister Paul Martin.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that support material be printed in the RECORD.

Resolved, That the Senate—

That the Senate—

(1) designates March 25, 2009, as "National Cerebral Palsy Awareness Day";

(2) strongly supports an unconditional prohibition by the European Parliament on trade in seal products in the European Union. This measure may now be considered by the full European Parliament in the coming months.

Yet, in Canada, the largest commercial slaughter of marine mammals in the world continues. According to the Humane Society of the United States over one (1) million seals have been killed over the past four years. In Canada, seal pups as young as 12 days old can legally be killed. The vast majority of seals killed in these hunts are between 12 days and 12 weeks of age.

The U.S. Government has opposed this senseless slaughter, as noted in the January 19, 2005, letter from the U.S. Department of State, in response to a letter Senator COLLINS and I wrote to President Bush, urging him to raise this issue during his November 30, 2004, visit with Canadian Prime Minister Paul Martin.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that support material be printed in the RECORD.

Resolved, That the Senate—

That the Senate—

(1) designates March 25, 2009, as "National Cerebral Palsy Awareness Day";

(2) strongly supports an unconditional prohibition by the European Parliament on trade in seal products in the European Union.

We are aware of Canada’s seal hunting activities and of the opposition to it expressed by many Americans. Furthermore, we can assure you that the United States has an enduring policy opposing the hunting of seals and other marine mammals absent sufficient safeguards and information to ensure that the hunting will not seriously affect marine mammal population or the ecosystem of which it is a part. The United States policy is reflected in the Marine Mammal Protection Act (MMPA) which generally prohibits, with narrow and specific exceptions, the taking of marine... mammals in waters or lands subject to the jurisdiction of the United States and the importation of marine mammals and marine mammal products into the United States.

The United States seal hunt is known to the Government of Canada its objections and the objections of concerned American legislators and other Canadian commercial seal hunt on numerous occasions over recent years. The United States has also opposed Canada’s efforts within the Arctic Council to promote trade in sealskins and other marine mammal products.

We hope this information is helpful to you. Please do not hesitate to contact us if we can be of assistance in this or any other matter.

Sincerely,

Nancy Powell

RUSSIA TO BAN HUNTING OF BABY SEALS

(By A.G. Sulzberger)

Russia announced on Wednesday that it would ban the hunting of baby seals, effectively shutting one of the world’s largest commercial seal hunt on numerous occasions over recent years.

The decision is yet another blow to an age-old industry that has been losing a public relations battle in recent years to animal-rights groups, which have gained public support by highlighting photographs of harp seal pups less than a month old being clubbed to death on blood-stained ice flows.

In addition, the European Union is considering a ban on baby seal products—similar to one that the United States adopted decades ago—which would eliminate a key trade route and end market for the furs. And even in Canada, where the world’s largest seal hunt is scheduled to begin later this month and top leaders vigorously defend the industry, a legislator for the first time introduced a proposal to curtail sealing.

“It’s highly significant,” Rebecca Aldworth, director of Humane Society International in Canada, said of the political developments. “It shows that world opinion is moving away from commercial seal hunting. There’s hope on the horizon that this may be the last year that we ever have to witness this cruelty.”

In Russia, where the number of new pups has dropped sharply in recent years because of the warming of the shrinking ice in the White Sea, the government initially announced a ban on the killing of the very youngest and most highly prized seals, known as “whitecoats.” The seals shed the white fur in about two weeks, with the resulting silver coat also coveted.

But the government announced in unsparring language that it intended to extend the ban to include all seals less than a year old. (While adult seals are also hunted in smaller quantities, their coarse, scarred fur is generally not used in fashion.) The move was publicly backed by Prime Minister Vladimir V. Putin and coming just weeks before the hunting season was to begin, could save as many as 35,000 seals, according to a spokesman for the International Fund for Animal Welfare.

The Associated Press quoted the natural resources minister, Yuri Trutnev, as saying in a statement: “The bloody sight of the hunting of seals, the slaughter of these defenseless animals which you cannot even call a real hunt, is banned in our country, just as well as in most developed countries, and this is a serious step to protect the biodiversity of our fauna.”

Masha Vorontsova, the head of the International Fund for Animal Welfare in Russia and a biologist who has been pushing for a ban since the fall of the Soviet Union, credited an outpouring of public support for ending the hunt. “It’s a fantastic achievement,” she said in an interview.

In contrast, Gail Shea, Canada’s Minister of Fisheries and Oceans, did little to disguise her frustration at moves taking aim at the industry which she hailed as one which had contributed to “mistruths and propaganda” spread by special interest groups.

“For some reason the European Union will not recognize what the actual facts are because it’s an emotional issue and a political issue,” she said in an interview.

Ms. Shea, who earlier flew to Europe to lobby against the ban, warned that such a move could violate international trade law. An industry spokesman said that nearly all Canadian seal products passed through Europe on their way to major consumers like Norway, Russia and China. It is unclear whether Russia will also ban the import and sale of seal products.

Commercial sealing also takes place in a handful of other countries, including Norway, Greenland and Namibia.

In Canada, last year’s catch of 207,000 seals—or roughly one in five pups born that year—earned the roughly 6,000 licensed sealers a total of $7 million, down from $33 million in 2005. (July Jenkins, in the capital, said the hunt was not sustainable without subsidies.)

The United States has made known to the Government of Canada its objections and the implications battle in recent years to animal protectionists. The United States has adopted decades ago—which would eliminate a key trade route and end market for the furs. And even in Canada, where the world’s largest seal hunt is scheduled to begin later this month and top leaders vigorously defend the industry, a legislator for the first time introduced a proposal to curtail sealing.

However, the Canadian industry came under rare official scrutiny last week, when Prime Minister Stephen Harper introduced the legislation to cancel the coming hunting season to begin, as an effective attempt to end the hunt.

“Italy because of a sharp drop in prices for the pelts from $33 to $3 for a perfect specimen. Seals are killed by rifle or by club.

The harvest population level has held steady at about 5.6 million for the last decade, he said, but anti-sealing groups contest that figure.

NOMINATION OF GARY LOCKE

Ms. CANTWELL. Mr. President, I rise to take my colleagues for the ex-pedited approval of former Washington Gov. Gary Locke as the 36th Secretary of Commerce.

I have known Gary Locke for more than 20 years and I can say to my colleagues you did the right thing tonight by approving him for this job.

He has helped our State with broadband service delivery to rural communities. Under his leadership, Washington State used E-rate funds to help develop a K-20 network, a high-speed, high-capacity network linking K-12 schools and universities across the State of Washington.

He has been involved with both public and private sector trade missions in helping to sell U.S. products abroad. At the International Trade Administration within Commerce, he will put that experience to good use. Part of that agency’s mission is to provide advocacy for American companies abroad, and it can mean the difference between whether a foreign company gets foreign sales opportunities go to U.S. companies or to foreign competitors.

At NOAA, which is over half the Department of Commerce’s budget, Gov-ernor Locke’s prior experience with the complexities of Puget Sound, endan-gered salmon species, and the hazards of oil spills, will all be invaluable. As Governor, Gary Locke dealt with many of our most trying fishing issues and was in charge of appointing members to the North Pacific Fisheries Management Council.

Fisheries in the North Pacific have been recognized by many organiza-tions, including the U.S. Oceans Commission and the Pew Oceans Commis-sion, as some of the best managed fish-eries in the world.

In addition to that effort, Governor Locke has dealt with the complexities of endangered salmon species and getting the first locally developed re-gional salmon recovery plan for Wash-ington State. I know that this expert-ise will be put to good use at NOAA.

Many of my colleagues understand that there are challenges at the Depart-ment of Commerce, including management challenges—from the set-top box program for the digital television transition, to getting the NOAA sat-ellite program back on track, to wisely investing the $47 billion of broadband grants as part of the American Recov-ery and Reinvestment Act.

I know Governor Locke, who has never shied away from management challenges, will put his expertise to good work in making sure these programs are implemented effectively.

He worked with Democrats and Rep-ublicans during the tech bubble crisis to come up with a budget and spending reduction proposals that were certainly unpopular at the time, but what the State budget needed. I know he will continue in the same bi-partisan fashion as Secretary of Com-merce.

I believe Governor Locke will help round out the President’s economic team as someone who understands the challenges many Americans face as we try to stabilize our economy. Gov-ernor Locke was born and raised in public housing. He combined an intense work ethic with part-time jobs and fi-nancial aid, and graduated from Yale University and received a subsequent law degree from Boston University.

He became the first Chinese Amer-ican elected Governor in the United States when he was elected to be Gov-ernor of the State of Washington.

He is a testament to the American dream.

So I hope that as we have approved this nomination, he will get started immediately on helping our economy return to robust growth and use the great resourcefulness he has dem-onstrated as Governor of Washington State. He will make sure the Com-merce Department plays a key role in getting our economy back on its feet.

I thank the Chair, and I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Washington.

Ms. MURRAY. Mr. President, I join my colleague from Washington State, Senator CANTWELL, this evening to congratulate Gary Locke on his con-firmation now as our next Secretary of Commerce. This comes at an important time in our Nation’s his-tory as we all work very hard to re-cover from the worst economic down-turn since the Great Depression. We need a Commerce Secretary with the dedication and expertise to carry out policies that are going to strengthen our economy far into the future. Gary Locke is uniquely qualified for that task because he does have a lifetime of experience built on hard work, a wealth of knowledge and appreciation of the American dream.

Governor Locke understands the im-portance of the American dream be-cause he lived it. His grandfather emi-grated from China, and he worked as a servant about a mile from the Gov-ernor’s mansion in Olympia that one day his grandson would call home. There are a lot of reasons why Gov-ernor Locke is an ideal Commerce Sec-retry, but I wish to share with you this story this evening that I think illus-trates his commitment to public serv-ice and to making sure we make the best decision for our taxpayers.

I first met Governor Locke when he was in the Washington State legis-la-ture and he was chair of the House Appropria-tions Committee and I was a new State Senator trying to get a piece of legislation passed that was critical to my constituents. As part of getting that bill passed, I had to go before the Governor. Gary Locke was chair of that Appropriations Committee, and it was one of the toughest political experi-ences of my lifetime. I knew the

EXTENSIONS OF REMARKS

STIMULUS: BUSINESS GROWTH, NOT SPENDING

HON. JACK KINGSTON

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, March 24, 2009

Mr. KINGSTON. Madam Speaker, on January 9, 2009, then-President-Obama stated that “[t]here is no disagreement that we need action by our government, a recovery plan that will help jumpstart the economy.” I rise today to submit to the Record the following list of economists, compiled by the CATO Institute, that disagree with the President’s remarks. Along with these economists, myself and my colleagues from both parties believe that increased government spending and higher taxes deter productivity instead of encouraging development. History has shown that an increase government spending does not solve problems. The way to solve our problems is to cut taxes across the board, encourage investment, and restore fiscal responsibility in the White House and Congress. Passing the burden of deficit spending to our children and grandchildren does not lead to a brighter future. We need a policy based on fiscal discipline, not government spending, to reinvigorate our economy.

HON. JACK KINGSTON OF GEORGIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, March 24, 2009
Mr. KINGSTON. Madam Speaker, I rise today to submit for the Record this article from “The Skinne” written by Scott Lorette.

The W-2 summary statement detailing my ’08 taxable earnings arrived by mail last week. I scanned it, skimmed the numbers, cursed the government, and reminded myself to be grateful.

I try to let daydreams of bureaucratic misuse of government funds distract me. Send the thing off to my accountant and be done with it for another year. But, it’s inevitable. At some point, I’ll say it. Just like you probably have. To your spouse. Your mother. Your financial advisor. Your god. Or yourself. In both anger and disbelief. “Can you believe I paid (fill in the blank with the appropriate amount) in taxes?! And for what?!”

But, the point is, you pay them. Just like I do. You might not like it. But you recognize you’re not the law. You were fortunate enough to be born under the Red, White, and Blue, or you found your way here one way or another, and you accept that the privilege of being a citizen has costs. You might be summoned to jury duty. You’re bound by a set of laws. You can choose to wear the uniform of a particular service branch. If you earn a certain amount of money, the government’s going to compel you to surrender some of it.

So, despite your political inclinations, you should be apoplectically outraged.

Timothy Geithner is a tax cheat.

Timothy Geithner is the 75th Secretary of the United States Treasury.

Among other things, the United States Treasury runs the Internal Revenue Service, the bureau responsible for collecting your taxes.

Don’t be blinded by your ideology. And don’t buy into the comically ridiculous notion that this is the only guy who could handle the truth? I’ll sum up Geithner’s resume for you. He has ZERO meaningful private-sector experience. He has spent most of his 23-year professional life at three different government institutions: the Treasury Department, the International Monetary Fund and The Federal Reserve Bank of New York. Is he a smart guy? Sure. He graduated from Dartmouth and earned a master’s degree from Johns Hopkins. Never mind that government and Asian studies were his academic areas of concentration.

So—ONLY for this crucial job during this time when we’ve embraced (inexplicably) the notion of equivalence between the federal government and our collective savers is more than 300 million American citizens?! Are we really that naive? Forget naive—stupid. I could reproduce the resumes of my 750 classmates from the Wharton School and you’d probably find 300 that make Geithner look like an underachiever.

Moving on, we have former senator Tom Daschle. He cheated on his taxes, too. Okay, he’s sorry. And, he says, it was “inadvertent.” Apparent working definition of inadvertent: When you realize you’re about to get caught and you’ve been named as the President’s cabinet, call your accountant and let him know you stole from the American people. Then, start to cover your tracks. Promise to turn the spoils of your theft. Finally, frown deep and speak in somber tones as you feign contrition in front of the cameras you conveniently assembled.

Don’t misinterpret my message. I can promise you the Democrats don’t hold a monopoly on deceit and defamation of the public trust. In fact, Geithner could be a Republican for all I know. And, with certainty, the House of Representatives is home to tax cheats on both sides of the aisle by type.

Here’s the point. You’re giving trillions of dollars to companies that have failed or underperformed. Would you do that with your own savings? Say you own a stock. The company is doing lousy. The management stinks. The industry is dying. Would you take more money and double down? Or would you sell so fast your broker’s head would spin and redeploy the money elsewhere.

It’s a no-brainer. You don’t want to own a portfolio full of dogs. You try to reward winners with good ideas. It’s your money. You make the smartest choices you can.

Well, Geithner and Daschle — probably wouldn’t. It’s the forced allocation of capital to institutions that haven’t earned it by merit. In a capitalist economy, capital (where do you think the name came from, anyway?) flows toward opportunities that provide promising returns and away from festering sinkholes of impudence. Guess what—you don’t live in such a place anymore.

So, throw up our hands or move to Antarctica? No. We love it here. But let’s start small. One simple demand. Any public employee at some predetermined level of seniority must be subjected to an IRS audit. Period. Every representative. Every senator. Every secretary and undersecretary. Refuse, and forfeit your spot.

We have the resources. Instead of randomly auditing a few thousand private citizens, redirect the resources to this end. Remember, all of these people work for us.

Oh, you argue, “Qualified people won’t seek those jobs.” I respond, “If they cheat on their taxes, they’re not qualified.”

One more thing—something Messrs. Geithner and Daschle probably wouldn’t like. If you cheat, you’re out. Go try and make a living in the real world like the rest of us.

RECOGNIZING THE 150TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE VILLAGE OF MIDDLEPORT

HON. CHRISTOPHER JOHN LEE
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, March 24, 2009
Mr. LEE of New York. Madam Speaker. It is with great pride that I rise today to commemorate the 150th Anniversary of the Village of Middleport, New York, a family-oriented community nestled between two of the nation’s most heavily populated residential complexes.

Residents call home. Located just 45 minutes from Buffalo and Niagara Falls, the Village of Middleport, rich in history, has a capability of up to 450 Torah mantles, wedding canopies, and prayer shawls. Awarded the Philip and Annemarie Golub for her outstanding efforts and share award, Ms. Golub has created artwork as seen on the Newark Museum. This year’s Fine Arts Award will be given to Ina Golub whose fiber and bead artwork is known nationally and internationally. She is currently the subject of a major exhibition at the Newark Museum. GENERATIONS INVIGORATING VOLUNTEERISM AND EDUCATION ACT

HON. BETTY MCCOLLUM OF MINNESOTA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 18, 2009

The House in Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union had under consideration the bill (H.R. 1388) to reauthorize and reform the national service laws.

Ms. McCOLLUM. Mr. Chair, as a member of the National Service Caucus, I rise today in strong support of H.R. 1388, the Generations Invigoration, and Education or GIVE Act.

President and First Lady Obama have encouraged a renewed spirit of service and active citizenship in America. The GIVE Act swears that call to service by reauthorizing and expanding the National and Community Service Act of 1990.

H.R. 1388 will increase national service opportunities for many more of our citizens. This bill expands AmeriCorps, an existing and outstanding service-learning program with a proven track record of integrating academic study with community service. It also creates four new service corps in the areas of clean energy, education, health care, and veteran service and adds new programs to enable middle and high-school youth and retirees to serve their communities. Finally, this bill expands the National Civilian Community Corps to include disaster relief and energy conservation and provides funds to help non-profits recruit new volunteers.

The GIVE Act more than triples the number of federal volunteers serving in our communities so that an estimated 250,000 Americans will be able to participate in a year of service by 2014. These extra volunteers will help their neighbors endure these tough economic times by improving education, providing food and other services to the disadvantaged, and rebuilding towns and cities after disasters. This bill will also strengthen the economy because every dollar invested in service produces up to $3.90 in direct, measurable benefits.

Volunteerism is growing in America. From 2002 to 2007, one million more citizens across the country started dedicating their time to worthy causes. Twenty-seven percent of all Americans are now volunteering. My state of Minnesota has a proud tradition of civic engagement. In a study conducted by the Corporation for National and Community Service, Minneapolis-St. Paul was ranked number one for volunteer rates in a large city.

American men and women who choose to better their communities and themselves by responding to the nation's critical education, safety, homeland security, and health needs exemplify the values of America. I want to thank every American volunteer and urge my colleagues to support this important bill.

HONORING MAYOR CAROLYN RISHER OF INGLIS, FLORIDA

HON. GINNY BROWN-WAITE
OF FLORIDA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, March 24, 2009

Ms. GINNY BROWN-WAITE of Florida. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor a true public servant who dedicated nearly two decades to serving her community. Mrs. Carolyn Risher, long time mayor of Inglis, Florida will retire this week after 18 years of public service.

Born and raised in Inglis, Mayor Risher's dedication to the town of Inglis is deep seeded. She followed her father's example, first serving as Road and Bridge Commissioner before being elected mayor in 1993.

Fondly known as a "Working Mayor," Mayor Risher led by example as hands-on manager, from helping neighbors in the aftermath of hurricanes to raising funds for the annual community Fourth of July celebration. Without Mayor Risher's efforts, the South Levy Recreation Park would not be what it is today.

Mayor Risher cherished her roles as wife, mother and mayor. Married for 50 years, Carolyn and James Risher are parents to five children and eight grandchildren, many who live in the area and will continue the family's involvement in their community.

Madam Speaker, it is public servants like Mayor Risher who keep our communities and towns running strong at home. Her dedication and willingness to serve are admired and stand as a model to others. We thank her for her service. She may no longer be Mayor, but Mrs. Risher will not be forgotten and will surely be missed.

Baldeep Dua of Berkeley Heights, New Jersey has made significant achievements both in business and in her community. And I am very pleased to congratulate Baldeep for her outstanding efforts and share her good work with my colleagues in the United States Congress and the American people.
Mr. COURTNEY. Madam Speaker, I rise today to celebrate the extraordinary life of Stephen Marcham of Vernon, Connecticut who passed away after a courageous battle with cancer on March 19, 2009.

Stephen Marcham was a lifelong resident of Vernon, a town he loved dearly. He attended Rockville High School and later enrolled at the University of Connecticut where he earned his degree from the School of Pharmacy. After graduation, Steve returned to Vernon, Connecticut and became co-owner of Vincent’s Pharmacy where he had worked since high school. During his more than 30 years at Vincent’s, Steve was recognized for his outstanding service when he received the A. H. Robbins Bowl of Hygeia Award, the Pharmacy Leadership Award from the National Association of Retail Druggists and the 2006 Daniel Leone Pharmacist of the Year award from the Connecticut Pharmacists Association. As his customers could tell you, Steve’s care and compassion for his fellow man found their outlet within the walls of Vincent’s.

In addition to his service as a community pharmacist, Steve had a deep passion for public service. It was here in the public arena that Steve created a lasting mark as a progressive who built consensus with one overriding goal: improving his community. In 1968, while still attending the University of Connecticut, Steve was elected as the youngest official elected to public office when he won a seat on the Board of Education. After serving on the Board of Education for a number of terms, Steve was elected to the Town Council before being appointed in 1986 to serve as the Mayor of Mount Vernon, New York. A decade later, he was re-elected to that position which he held until 1989. It is a body of work that has always personified the values of life, service to community and family flawlessly. He was in many ways a Jimmy Stewart-like figure from “It’s a Wonderful Life.” It was an honor to have known him and worked with him during my years in the state legislature and the Congress.

For those of us who knew him and had the honor and privilege to call him a friend, this is a difficult time. To Janice, his wife, Ashley, his daughter, and his beloved mother Frances, we offer our sincerest condolences. For all of us, Steve to be a part of our lives. I ask my colleagues to join me in honoring the life and service of Steve Marcham.

Mr. GARRETT of New Jersey. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor the anniversary of Greek independence, which occurred on March 25, 1821. It’s been one hundred and eighty-eight years since Greece obtained freedom from the oppressive Ottoman Empire. Like our own American Founding Fathers, the people of Greece fought valiantly to achieve independence from a sprawling empire that treated its citizens like subjects. The Greek revolutionaries also drew much of their authority from European philosophers, much like our forefathers who were motivated by classical and English values. A culture steeped in such a rich tradition, such as Greece, can be celebrated by all Americans.

As the birthplace of democracy, Greece has informed numerous self-government efforts across the world. The celebration of Greek independence coincides with a Greek Orthodox holiday, the Annunciation of the Theotokos. Yet Greece’s bloody struggle for independence from the Ottoman Empire bears little resemblance to the peaceful appearance of the Archangel Gabriel. The Greeks endured atrocities such as the Chios Massacre, the massacre of Heralikon, and the Destruction of Psara; most of these conflicts were religiously motivated and they highlight the Greek dedication to freedom.

After eight years of brutal fighting, the Greek people were finally able to achieve independence. The Treaty ofConstantinople was signed in July 1832, giving Greece its independence from the Ottoman Empire.

I am honored to cosponsor H.J. Res. 39, which recognizes the 188th anniversary of the independence of Greece. Furthermore, I am pleased that this bill is scheduled to be considered by the House of Representatives today.

I would again like to congratulate Greece for celebrating such a momentous occasion. This anniversary is a time to remember the sacrifices of the past, to take pride in your nation, and to look ahead to a future of promise.

Mr. ENGEL of New York. Madam Speaker, I rise today to bring to the attention of my colleagues and the entire nation, the work of my constituent William “Billy” Thomas. Mr. Thomas is a great man who will be honored by the citizens of Mount Vernon, New York for his lifetime work. It is a body of work that has always personified actions that go way beyond the call of duty. The City of Mount Vernon, New York, will rename South Sixth Avenue William “Billy” Thomas Boulevard after its beloved local and national pioneer in youth development.

William “Billy” Thomas began working at the Mount Vernon (NY) Boys’ Club (MVBC) in 1955. Over the next 22 years he rose from athletic to program director and finally to Executive Director. During each and every year, young men were placed in his skillful hands and taught the values of life, service to community, sportsmanship, courage, integrity and respect for self and others. He became an icon, a living legend for his work in inspiring young people to pursue and live positive and progressive educational materials about voters’ rights and ballot initiatives regarding education, women’s issues, and natural resources.

Mildred Lewis of Cranford, New Jersey has made significant contributions to so many in her community. I am pleased to congratulate Mildred Lewis for her outstanding efforts and achievements. This year’s Civic Leadership Award will be given to Mildred Lewis because of her extensive commitment to making our community a better place. For 15 years, Mildred has served as the president of the Cranford Chapter of the League of Women Voters, coordinating candidates’ forums at both the municipal and county levels. Mildred has conducted voter registration drives and prepared and distributed educational materials about voters’ rights and ballot initiatives regarding education, women’s issues, and natural resources.

Mildred is also a member of the Roselle-Cranford Hadassah where she is active in many aspects, including the Bulletin, American Affairs, and fund-raising dinners. Ms. Lewis also worked as a full time volunteer at Alexian Brothers Hospital in Elizabeth, New Jersey where she manages volunteers. Mildred also volunteered at Temple Beth El Mekor Chayim as the kitchen coordinator, where she plans and creates meals for more than 100 people.

Mildred has also been active in the Cranford Historical Society and is a member of several other Jewish organizations, including National Council of Jewish Women and the Sisterhood of Temple Beth El Mekor Chayim.

I would again like to congratulate my constituent William “Billy” Thomas for his lifetime work and his service to our community.
returned to the Boys' Club in 1971 to continue his work and improve the life skills and lives of young men in the community. He has served the Mount Vernon community in various capacities for over 45 years. Mr. Thomas's accomplishments are too many to site, but a few must be noted.

In 1993, Mr. Thomas was joined by Denzel Washington, as they received The Boys and Girls Club of America Connection Magazines Mentor Magic Award. In 1997 Mr. Thomas received the “Man of the Year Award” from the National Association of Negro Business & Professional Women's Club of New Rochelle, New York.

Mr. Thomas worked with countless young people in an effort to either turn their lives around, or continue their lives on a positive path. Over the years, Mr. Thomas mentored thousands of young people. Some are now doctors, lawyers, bus drivers, ministers, fathers and mothers as well as the current executive director of the Mount Vernon Club—Lowes Moore. Mr. Thomas also influenced several former NBA players: brothers Gus and Ray Williams, as well as Calvin “Scooter” and Rodney McCray. Mr. Thomas always went about his work without praise or formal recognition. He has taught all the young people that entered the club that each has a responsibility to lend a hand to those less fortunate. His actions speak volumes as he worked with special needs children in New Rochelle and White Plains, New York. He also volunteered his services in many areas that included teaching chess, reading, a Youth Commission for the City of New Rochelle and of course, a basketball coach.

Mr. Thomas sacrificed a great deal to give back to his community. It is only fitting that the community honor his deeds by renaming the street in front of the Boys Club William “Billy” Thomas Boulevard. This is testament that hard work and dedication are appreciated by the community and that the seeds sowed will blossom for many years to come. The renaming of South Sixth Avenue to “William Billy Thomas Boulevard” is an important testament of South Sixth Avenue to “William Billy Thomas Boulevard”. This is a good path for many years to come. The renaming of South Sixth Avenue to “William Billy Thomas Boulevard” is an important testament to the contributions of the Honorable Path at the Brooklyn Botanic Garden.

PAULE MARSHALL—HONORING A NEW YORK CITY LITERARY GREAT

HON. CHARLES B. RANGEL
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, March 24, 2009

Mr. RANGEL. Madam Speaker, I stand before you today to acknowledge Paule Marshall, a renowned American author and poet who published her first novel, “Brown Girl, Brownstones”, 50 years ago, and served as an influential trailblazer for emerging black female writers in the 60s and 70s.

I introduce into the RECORD an article from the New York Times of March 12, 2009 highlighting the career of Paule Marshall and her new publication titled “Triangular Road”, a memoir that follows her early years as a writer.

Born in Brooklyn, NY to Caribbean parents and raised in a Bedford-Stuyvesant brownstone, Ms. Marshall brought a unique voice to the literary genre. She captured, in a fine balance, the stories of West Indian life emerging in American culture. It is no surprise that Langston Hughes selected her to accompany him on a tour of Europe in 1965.

Over the last 50 years, she has consistently remained relevant, publishing 2 collections of short stories and five novels, while simultaneously teaching at various universities, including Yale and New York University.

Ms. Marshall has received many awards and honors throughout her career, including an American Book Award and a John Dos Passos Award of Literature. She was a MacArthur Fellow and designated as a Literary Lion by the New York Public Library in 1994. In 2001, Marshall was inducted into the Celebrity Path at the Brooklyn Botanic Garden.

At this time, I would like to honor this distinguished New York City literary figure and offer recognition of the work she has contributed to American literature.

CELEBRATING COLONEL CHRISTOPHER O'CONNOR, COMMANDING OFFICER OF MIRAMAR MARINE CORPS AIR STATION

HON. BRIAN P. BILBRAY
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, March 24, 2009

Mr. BILBRAY. Madam Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to Colonel Christopher O’Connor, Commanding Officer of Marine Corps Air Station, Miramar (MCAS, Miramar) which I have the pleasure of representing. Colonel O’Connor has served his country with distinction for over twenty years and I wish him no other than the best as a new chapter in his life begins.

Colonel O’Connor was born and raised in New York where he received his commission through the Naval Reserve Officer Training Corps (NROTC) at the University of Rochester in May of 1979. Since then, he has participated in humanitarian relief operations while deployed to the Republic of the Philippines, served as the Aviation Department’s action officer for Base Realignment and Closure (BRAC) issues and aviation training range systems and reported to the Office of Asian and Pacific Affairs in the Office of the Secretary of Defense where he served as the Country Director for Australia and New Zealand.

In August 2006, Colonel O’Connor took over as Commanding Officer of MCAS, Miramar where he has excelled in working with local leaders while representing the Marine Corp with professionalism and distinction to communities surrounding the base and San Diego County as a whole. Colonel O’Connor’s decorations include the Legion of Merit, Defense Meritorious Service Medal, Meritorious Service Medal with gold star, Joint Service Commendation Medal, Navy Commendation Medal, and Navy Achievement Medal.

I applaud the good service that Colonel O’Connor has provided this country. He has been an absolute pleasure to work with throughout his tenure and I urge my colleagues to join me in celebrating this great American.

HON. JOSEPH CROWLEY
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, March 24, 2009

Mr. CROWLEY. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize the bravery of Chad Lindsey, a constituent of mine who jumped onto the New York subway tracks to rescue a fellow passenger that had fallen.

On March 16, 2009, Mr. Lindsey was waiting for the subway at Penn Station in New York City when he saw a man fall onto the track and hit his head.

Knowing that a train was coming shortly, Mr. Lindsey courageously jumped onto the subway track. The man who fell was unconscious, and despite repeated attempts did not wake up. Yet, with the lights of the train coming toward them, Mr. Lindsey knew he had to act and used all his strength to pull the man to the platform edge and, with the help of others, lifted him to safety.

Thanks to Mr. Lindsey’s quick thinking and selfless actions, the injured man was taken to the hospital and later released. Mr. Lindsey, having done his part, got on the next train, ready to go back to his everyday life as a working New York City actor.

In the days since the incident, Mr. Lindsey has tried to resist the attempts of the media to label him a “hero”. But this is exactly what he is.

He did not hesitate before rushing to help someone else in need, even though his actions put himself at risk. For Mr. Lindsey, this act of bravery came naturally.

His courageous act reminded us that there are people willing to put themselves in danger for the sake of others. He sets an example that we all should strive toward.

I applaud Chad Lindsey for his brave actions, and I am so proud to call him both a constituent and hero.

THE 60 TO 55 RESERVE COMPONENT RETIREMENT ACT

HON. FRANK A. LOBIONDO
OF NEW JERSEY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, March 24, 2009

Mr. LOBIONDO. Madam Speaker, I rise today to introduce the 60 to 55 Reserve Component Retirement Act.

Given the increasing demands placed on the brave men and women who serve as citizen soldiers in the Reserve Component, it is time to recognize and reward them in a more timely fashion. The current age requirement for Reserve Component to begin receiving retirement pay is 60 years old, whereas the Active Duty may begin receiving retirement pay as soon as they serve their 20 years, which in some cases, may be as early as age 38. The age limitation placed on the Reserve Component was set in 1948, when the Reserve Component was a much different force. Since 9/11, the National Guard and Reserves have expanded beyond their traditional bounds into a fully functional, combat-ready, and deployable partner to the Active Duty Armed Forces. This shift in use to a full partner has placed tremendous strains on the men and women of the Guard and Reserves.

The legislation I am introducing with Congresswoman GABRIELLE GIFFORDS of Arizona will lower the age at which Reserve Component servicemembers can begin receiving their retirement pay from age 60 to age 55. This vital legislation will help close the gap between the Active Duty and Reserve Component retirement age, which will improve recruitment efforts and be more fair to the men and women serving in the National Guard and Reserve.

IN HONOR OF NATALIE WOLFE

HON. ANDRE’ CARSON OF INDIANA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, March 24, 2009

Mr. CARSON of Indiana. Madam Speaker, today I rise to recognize Natalie Wolfe for her brilliant career as a child advocate. She has distinguished herself through her dedication to ensuring that all children are afforded the right to quality child care services.

After losing her daughter due to the negligence of an unlicensed child-care provider, Natalie has committed herself as a driving force in the State of Indiana to increasing awareness about the need for child-care reform. As a result, she has helped establish the Indiana Association for Child Care Resource & Referral Better Baby Program. As a voice for thousands of parents who have suffered from similar circumstances, Natalie participated heavily in the passage of Reagan’s Law.

Earlier this month, Natalie represented Hoosier families in Washington, D.C. at the National Association of Child Care Resource and Referral Agencies’ (NACCRRA) National Policy Symposium. This conference allowed Natalie to meet with other child-care advocates and policy makers on the importance of passing sound legislation that protects and safeguards young children.

I urge my colleagues to join me in thanking Natalie Wolfe for her dedicated public service. Her efforts should inspire us all to recommit ourselves to ensuring that the growing child-care needs of our nation’s children are effectively met.

Mr. TURNER. Madam Speaker, I am proud to recognize the members of the General Daniel "Chappie" James American Legion Auxiliary Post 776, located in my congressional district in Riverside Ohio, for the service its members have given to our nation and our community.

Ms. Carol T. Robinson has completed a successful year as the 2007–2008 Department of Ohio President of the American Legion Auxiliary. She is the first African-American woman to hold the office. A TRIBUTE MR. JODIE BAILEY

HON. WM. LACY CLAY

OF MISSOURI

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, March 24, 2009

Mr. CLAY. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor Mr. Jodie Bailey a Missouri coaching and community legend. Mr. Bailey had a positive influence in the sport of basketball, in the lives of the young men he coached and his community.

My first encounter with Mr. Bailey was 45 years ago at the age of 7 years old. He was Head Camp Counselor for Camp Rivercliff of the YMCA, where I attend summer camp. He had a positive impact on my life at an impressionable age and helped make me the man I am today.

Mr. Bailey set unprecedented records and won championships over the span of 42 seasons at three different area St. Louis Public High schools. He had an outstanding record of 824 wins with only 198 losses. He coached many great sports stars, including the late Elston Howard of the New York Yankees and the Boston Celtics Jo Jo White. His accomplishments led him to be inducted into the Missouri Sports Hall of Fame in 1989.

He put an emphasis on teaching fundamentally in the game of basketball. He always worked to get young people to be the best they could be. In addition, Mr. Bailey was a teacher who took time to make personal investments in each of his student’s lives, which they remember until this day.

Mr. Bailey always sought to impart knowledge into the people that came into his life. He was a tenacious but mild-mannered coach; always ready to give constructive and encouraging words of advice.

His success as a coach spanned four decades including the turbulent 1950’s and 60’s that included segregation and the Civil Rights movement. He continued coaching through the 1980’s. Mr. Bailey was a role model on and off of the court teaching integrity and self-respect to his players. He was a respected community leader and viewed as a “Godly” man.

I rise today to pay tribute to Mr. Bailey, a man of humility and passion who’s influence surpassed his coaching success. He made a difference in all the lives he touched. I urge my colleagues to join me in honoring Mr. Jodie Bailey, coaching and life legend.

Brother Reinhardt faithfully served his community since 1967 in various roles as a student, professor, dean and finally, as President of the University.

His accomplishments at Saint John’s are numerous and have impacted so many students’ everyday life. As liturgy director in 1983, Brother Reinhart led the committee on the revision of the Liturgy of the Hours at Saint John’s Abbey, a version that is still used in public prayer services. In November of 2008, after being diagnosed with malignant metastatic melanoma, Brother Reinhart commented that “Saint John’s is a community where people stand by each other—they care about each other—and that there is always room in this community”. Brother Reinhart passed away at the retirement center at St. John’s Abbey on December 29, 2008. Recognizing Eisenhower High School in Rialto, California, for Winning the Division 2 State Title in Boy’s Basketball

Hon. Joe Baca
Of California
In the House of Representatives
Tuesday, March 24, 2009

Mr. BACA. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize the boy’s basketball team at Eisenhower high school, in my hometown of Rialto, for winning the California Interscholastic Federation Division 2 state title on Friday, March 20.

The Eisenhower Eagles ended their 32–3 season with a 73–61 victory over the Rocklin Thunder. Friday’s win was the 23rd consecutive victory for the Eagles, and occurred in front of a crowd of over 10,000 in Sacramento.

Eisenhower’s remarkable run to the state title came after a 29–3 regular season, and playoff victories over state powerhouse Powerhouse Loyola, and a win against high rated Leuzinger.

Their historic victory marks the first ever California Interscholastic Federation state title for a school from San Bernardino County.

Everyone said they were too small, but led by head coach Steve Johnson, the undersized Eisenhower squad achieved victory against a taller Rocklin team by causing turnovers with quick-handed tactics and dominating the Thunder in transition points up and down the court.

Coach Johnson has led the Eagles program back to greatness only two years after taking a several year hiatus from coaching.

I specifically want to recognize all 9 Eisenhower players, and thank Andrew Bock, Bryan Bock, Alex Varner, Nicholas Carter, Keyon sayles, Devin Garner, Nazareth Richardson, Bernard Ireland, and Kirby Gardner for their hard work and commitment to excellence throughout the season.

I also want to recognize the parents, assistant coaches, and school administrators—who all played a critical role in Eisenhower’s State Championship run.

Brendan Lane, star player for the opposing Rocklin Thunder, said about the Eagles, “They’re relentless. They get every rebound and every loose ball. They come after you the whole time.”

On behalf of myself, my wife Barbara, Councilman Joe Baca Jr., Jeremy, Jennifer, and Natalie Baca, I congratulate the Eisenhower Eagles for their relentless effort, not just in the title game but throughout the season. I thank Coach Johnson and all the Eagle players, for their grit and determination, and hope their achievement has brought to the Inland community in these times of economic difficulty.

Of New Jersey
Tuesday, March 24, 2009

Mr. PASCRELL. Madam Speaker, I want to state for the record that today, March 24th, I was detained in my district and therefore missed the three rollcall votes of the day. Had I been present I would have voted “aye” on rollcall vote No. 147 on the Motion to Suspend the Rules and Pass H.R. 730—Nuclear Forensics and Attribution Act. Had I been present I would have also voted “aye” on rollcall vote No. 148 on the Motion to Suspend the Rules and Pass H.R. 1617—Department of Homeland Security Component Privacy Act of 2009. Had I been present I would have also voted “aye” on rollcall vote No. 149 on the Motion to Suspend the Rules and Pass H. Res. 182—Expressing support for designation of the week of March 1 through March 8, 2009, as School Social Work Week.

Tribute to David H. Dubbs, Jr.
Of Florida
In the House of Representatives
Tuesday, March 24, 2009

Mr. MEEK of Florida. Madam Speaker, I rise to pay tribute to the late Dr. David H. Dubbs, Jr., a beloved and dedicated public servant who tirelessly devoted his efforts to the well-being of our nation’s most important asset, our children, as a valued educator of the Miami-Dade County community and beyond. Moreover, I would like to commend him for his years of service to the Miami-Dade County School System and his long standing involvement in the South Florida community.

Dr. Dubbs, a native of Miami, was born to David H. Dubbs, Sr., and Gussie Dubbs on May 19, 1945. After graduating from Miami Northwestern Senior High School, he furthered his education at Central State University in Wilberforce, Ohio where he majored in political science. Dr. Dubbs then obtained his master’s degree in administration and his doctorate in administration and supervision, both from Nova Southeastern University. Throughout his life, Dr. Dubbs’ warm spirited persona and exceptional educational background contributed to his unwavering commitment to help others.

He began his professional career as a teacher at Pine Villa Elementary and then moved to Mays Elementary. Dr. Dubbs also taught at Citrus Grove Middle School, Henry Fowler Elementary School and Miami Beach Senior High School. As his career flourished, he then became an assistant principal at Miami Killian Senior High School and principal of Zora Neale Hurston Elementary where he served as district director with the Miami-Dade County Public School System. Through his experience, it is quite clear that he was successful at meeting the challenge of educating the needs of his community’s young people.

Upon retirement, Dr. Dubbs continued to devote his life to the field of education and to his community while serving on a number of boards, including vice-chairman of the Florida Memorial University advisory board. Aside from the fact that Dr. Dubbs was an outstanding professional educator, he was well read in African-American history and politics and would engage in a very stimulating conversation on any topic.

Dr. Dubbs is survived by his loving wife of 38 years, Mrs. Priscilla Dobbs and daughter Priscilla Rashida Dobbs.

Madam Speaker, I ask you and all the members of this esteemed legislative body to join me in recognizing the extraordinary life and accomplishments of Dr. David H. Dubbs, Jr. I am honored to pay tribute to Dr. Dubbs for his invaluable service and tireless dedication to the South Florida educational community. Dr. Dubbs’ life was a triumph and he was blessed with a loving family who took pleasure in every aspect of his life and his interests. He will be missed by all who knew him, and I appreciate this opportunity to pay tribute to him before the United States House of Representatives.

Mr. DOYLE. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor a Pittsburgh resident and a constituent of mine, Lieutenant Colonel Paul Moore, Jr. Lieutenant Colonel Moore is retiring from the United States Army after an illustrious 22-year career protecting the safety and freedom of our nation.

His career began while attending college at the University of Indiana of Pennsylvania, where he was enlisted in the Army Reserves as a wheeled vehicle mechanic while getting

He was quickly assigned to a number of leadership positions while stationed there, including M1 Abrams tank platoon leader, scout platoon leader, support platoon leader, and executive officer. The experiences he acquired in his first active duty assignment included the field that he would eventually devote the majority of his career to—military intelligence. Colonel Moore helped provide valuable intelligence to our service men and women across the globe to ensure they completed their missions efficiently and safely. He served the intelligence community as Detachment L commander for the Washington field office during Operation Desert Storm, Chief of the Military Intelligence and Electronic Warfare Team, Product Manager for Information Warfare within Program Executive Office Intelligence, and as the Army’s Senior Systems Coordinator for Information Operations.

HON. LEONARD LANCE
OF NEW JERSEY

Mr. LANCE. Madam Speaker, I rise in honor of National Women’s History Month and to congratulate Denise Miles of Summit, New Jersey who will be honored on Friday, March 27, 2009 at the 17th Annual Women of Excellence Dinner held in Union County, New Jersey.

This special annual event is held by the Union County Commission on the Status of Women. The Commission and the Congressional District to highlight the amazing work of individuals who are making our communities better places to live. The Commission on the Status of Women organization seeks to recognize the contributions of women in the fields of education, health care, the arts, government, business, law, community service, technology, public service, women’s advocacy and lifetime achievement.

This year’s Volunteerism Award will be given to Denise because of her extensive volunteer efforts and numerous organizations throughout Union County.

Specifically, Denise is considered the backbone of the Wallace Chapel of the AME Zion Church, where every Monday she calls church members who were not in church on Sunday and checks in on those who are sick or homebound. Each Tuesday Denise delivers Meals on Wheels on her routes and helps with food and friendship. After working for 38 years at Overlook Hospital in Summit, New Jersey as a nurse, Denise joined the Ashland Military Hospital’s Chaplain Service. In this effort, she goes room to room visiting patients of all denominations. Denise also volunteers weekly at her local library and reads to preschoolers during story time.

Denise keeps this vigorous volunteer schedule despite the fact that she does not have a car. She literally volunteers every day of the week by walking from place to place or taking the bus.

I am pleased to congratulate Denise Miles for her outstanding efforts and share her good work with my colleagues in the United States Congress and the American people.

OPPOSING THE BLAIR HOLT’S FIREARM LICENSING AND RECORD OF SALE ACT

HON. DENNY REHBERG OF MONTANA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, March 24, 2009

Mr. REHBERG. Madam Speaker, a few weeks ago, I stood on the floor of the House of Representatives to express the outrage I’m hearing from Montanans regarding H.R. 45 and similar bills that erode our Second Amendment rights and make eventual confiscation of firearms easier. Even gun-control advocates understand that this bill goes too far. They promise that H.R. 45 will never pass. Notice, they don’t say it shouldn’t pass—only that it won’t.

Some of my colleagues here in Washington, D.C. wish it could pass. And that’s why it remains so important to stand our ground against The Blair Holt’s Firearm Licensing and Record of Sale Act and similar measures.

Thomas Jefferson wrote, “The price of freedom is eternal vigilance.” While public outcry has made H.R. 45 a politically unattractive proposal for now, make no mistake about it: if we ease back, even for a moment, opponents of the Second Amendment will take advantage. I recently created a user-group on the popular social networking website Facebook entitled “Fight to Protect the 2nd Amendment Against H.R. 45.” It has been incredible to watch the response as friends have invited friends to join and people posted their opinions on “The Wall” for others to read. In a little over two weeks, the group has more than 1,500 members, with more joining every day.

Sadly a bill like H.R. 45 is not politically unattractive because it’s a bad idea. Congress passes bad ideas every day. It’s politically unattractive because Americans like those in my constituency need the opportunity to buy a gun, however small, the second amendment would not be violated. This is an abuse of the definition and meaning of the second amendment, unfairly restricting the scope of amendment and marginalizing it until rendered ineffective.

“Being a gun owner is not only a privilege but my right. Anyone who wants to take our gun rights has forgotten how the birth of our great country came about. The Colonists were facing an outrage of men, wanting to take their guns, it would be detrimental to the well being of every American. The criminals will have them anyway and the good working citizens will have no way to protect themselves, not to mention being able to hunt. Hunting is a way of life for a lot of families, especially families who cannot afford to buy hunting gear and spend a fortune on ammunition.”—Tara Preshinger
“Guns have been a part of my life and my family’s life since we have lived in the US. It has been a useful tool in feeding my family since we have been here. I am a soldier, hunter, and a fisherman. There are many other things and I refuse to let this right be taken from me when all that will happen is it will take firearms from people who use them as tools and a sign of personal responsibility. You leave us with nothing.’’—Justin Chodkow

“HR 45 makes the jobs of criminals easier and threatens the safety of all law abiding citizens, with it you can also say goodbye to your 2nd and 4th amendment rights! It also hurts those who use firearms for hunting and fishing and hunting that so many people share.’’—Brant Manley

“Honest citizens use the right to bear arms as a source of recreation through hunting, trap shooting, etc. as well as for a essential source of protection in dangerous situations. We follow the firearm regulations that are already in place. Crime is, however, does not. The only people who will be affected by further restrictions against our right to bear arms will be law-abiding citizens. HR 45 will have no affect on criminals. Instead, the only people left with firearms will be the ones who should not possess them in the first place.’’—Christine Hodges

“I have seen it argued that HR 45 is simply a bill proposing gun registration. That contention is absolutely false. HR 45 is nothing less than a backdoor attempt to circumvent the 2nd Amendment, by harassing law-abiding citizens into giving up their firearms. Criminals don’t register guns anyway. It’s quite obvious that this is their intention . . . and it isn’t criminals. HR 45 addresses only law-abiding citizens; yet, treats them no better than convicted sex offenders or other sensitivity issues. The only reason this bill is presented toward . . . and it isn’t criminals. HR 45 addresses only law-abiding citizens; yet, treats them no better than convicted sex offenders or other sensitive individuals. When the government starts using heavy-handed tactics to suppress the freedoms of law-abiding citizens, then those citizens need to stand up in defense of their rights and preserve the integrity of the US Constitution.’’—Debra Sullivan

CHILD CARE FACILITIES FINANCING ACT OF 2009

HON. CAROLYN MCCARTHY
OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, March 24, 2009

Mrs. MccCarthy of New York. Madam Speaker, I rise in support of legislation I am introducing today entitled, the “Child Care Facilities Financing Act of 2009.’’ I would like to thank the organizations that make up the National Children’s Facilities Network (NCFN), as well as several of the Network’s staffers, including Caitlin Kovalkoski, from the Local Initiatives Support Corporation (LISC) and Corey Carlisle, from the Low Income Investment Fund, for all their guidance in revising this legislation that, if adopted, will meet the financial and technical needs of early care development.

Early care and education has a profound impact on the development of our nation’s youth. To date, the federal government, in conjunction with state and local efforts, has invested billions of dollars through the Child Care and Development Block Grant (CCDBG) and programs like Head Start and Early Head Start. While these efforts have done much to enhance early care in our nation, a lack of consistent funding and organized infrastructure has prevented the early childhood field from addressing its physical capital needs and creating the kind of environments that support quality programs.

President Obama has articulated on numerous occasions America’s need to make headway in youth development programs. However, the supply of suitable spaces to house early childhood programs has not kept pace with the growth of the sector, and the shortage is especially severe in low-income communities—both urban and rural. Research conducted at a Connecticut preschool center documented how quality facilities result in more productive play environments, with fewer conflicts among children, higher staff morale and lower staff turnover—all of which are established indicators of program quality. Yet it is rare to find high quality early learning centers designed to meet the unique needs of very young children, especially in low-income neighborhoods where programs typically occupy makeshift, surplus or donated space such as church basements or storefronts, and out of date school buildings designed for older children.

To address the shortfall in quality child care facilities, I am pleased to introduce the Child Care Facilities Financing Act of 2009, which will go a long way toward providing a dedicated source of capital for early care and education programs in our nation.

By allowing the Secretary of Health and Human Services to award competitive grants to experienced non-profit community development organizations, my bill will help providers develop well-designed and appropriately-located facilities that will foster an environment of productive play and staff dedication. Non-profit facilities organizations can leverage a relatively small public investment with additional private capital, multiplying the total investment in child care facilities and serving even more children.

Over the past several years, two Community Development Financial Institutions (CDFIs), the Leviticus Alternative Fund and the CDC of Long Island, have made nine loans to child care providers serving children from low-income families in my Congressional District. The Leviticus Fund lends to licensed child care centers and has made loans to Harbor Day Care, AMC Child Care Center, D&D Day Care, and Pat-Kam Early Childhood Center. The CDC of Long Island lends to Family Day Care providers and has lent to Susie’s Day Care, Inc., Rosa’s School House, Elena’s Children’s Home, Barbara’s Children’s Home, and Carolyn Reid, all in the Fourth District. Passage of this legislation will further increase the support we can give to child care providers.

I urge my colleagues to support this important legislation for our nation’s youth.

RECOGNIZING THE IMPORTANCE OF ATHLETIC TRAINERS

HON. JEFF MILLER
OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, March 24, 2009

Mr. MILLER of Florida. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize the importance of athletic trainers and all that they do to improve the health and quality of our lives.

As overweight and obesity rates soar, athletic trainers serve as an outstanding opponent to the frightening statistics. Their job widely varies, and they do far more than simply “work out” with others. Athletic trainers guide their clients with life-long fitness and exercise skills and push their clients to aerobic excellence. Many also provide nutritional guidance that helps those derailed from healthy eating habits develop better eating tendencies. In doing so, they often provide their clients with a greater sense of self worth.

Their impact on society is incredibly beneficial. Athletic trainers do much to help decrease the increasing population of the obese and overweight. For this, I thank those athletic trainers in the First District of Florida, as well as the rest of the Nation, who constantly make a difference. We are truly grateful.

HON. LYNN C. WOOLSEY
OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, March 24, 2009

Ms. WOOLSEY. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor Gary Lewis Morgan of Sonoma County, California, who passed away January 16, 2009, at the age of 55. Gary was a loving father to his son James and a loving friend to Emmie Morgan, his ex-wife, James’ mother, and a member of my staff.

Born in the San Fernando Valley in 1953, Gary grew up there and attended Monroe High School both as a gymnasium and as a barbershop quartet singer, a passion he later introduced to James.

In 1975, Gary graduated from California State University, Northridge with a degree in graphic design and a job designing ads for the Yellow Pages. He met Emmie at the home of a mutual friend and immediately offered to read her palm. As Emmie says, this “involved some holding of the hand. After that, he was telling people about this wonderful woman he had named Emarah. That was our joke, and he still often calls me that.”

They married in 1983, and their son James was born in March, 1985. Emmie recalls how “the morning after he was born, Gar came to the hospital in striped suspenders and a button that said, ‘Kids Are People, Too.’ He loved being Jamie’s Dad.”

Looking for the best place to raise Jamie, they moved to Sonoma County in 1986. Gary became well known there as a singer, muralist, and multimedia artist whose work includes statues, flags, and stained glass panels. One of his statues was purchased by the Queen of England, and a flag he designed was flown at the Washington Monument for the 1976 Bicentennial.

Gary’s murals appear in various sites around Sonoma County, including Harmony School, an elementary school in Occidental. I was fortunate to have the opportunity to see this mural with Gary and talk with him about the creation of it. He was selected through an interview process that included students, and he made sure to seek their input as he developed the design. Of course, he also talked to the teachers, too, so when one of them said, “Hey, there has to be a book somewhere,” he made sure he gave the dragon by the tree something to read.

Gary’s musical abilities were evident in his beautiful voice, and he sang in three local choirs—the Occidental Community Choir, the Sufi Choir, and the Center for Spiritual Living’s One Heart Choir.

His musical talents were clearly passed to Jamie, but it was Gary (and Emmie’s) nurturing that also helped James grow into a fine young man. He is currently a student at Sacramento State University and will enter the Berklee College of Music in Boston in the fall, which would have made his father very proud.

One of Gary’s other interests was metaphysics, the study of what lies beyond the physical world, and this interest was a comfort to him in his times of trouble.

In addition to Emmie and James, Gary is survived by his siblings Gale and Bryan, his mother Barbara, and his long-time friend, Zan Spencer.

Madam Speaker, Gary Morgan’s life touched many people. As Emmie Morgan stated, “He was an amazingly kind, authentic, sincere, honest human being. Every person I’ve talked to tells me they were close to him, even people who met him only once.” That is a testament to Gary Morgan’s character that makes me proud to honor him today.

HON. LEONARD LANCE
OF NEW JERSEY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, March 24, 2009

Mr. LANCE. Madam Speaker, I rise in honor of National Women’s History Month and to congratulate Heather Suarez of Springfield, New Jersey who will be honored on Friday, March 27, 2009 at the 17th Annual Women of Excellence Dinner held in Union County, New Jersey.

This special annual event is hosted by the Union County Commission on the Status of Women in the Seventh Congressional District and highlights the amazing work of individuals who are making our communities better places to live. The Commission on the Status of Women recognizes the contributions of women in the fields of education, health care, the arts, government, business, law, community service, technology, public service and women’s advocacy and lifetime achievement.

This year’s Law Award will be given to Heather Suarez who has been described as a pioneer in the legal industry. Heather was hired directly out of law school, by persuading the three male partners at her Newark law firm to hire her. She became the firm’s first female attorney, staying with that firm ever since, now enjoying a tenure of 28 years.

After the firm relocated to Roseland, Ms. Suarez continued to be a leader in her field and at the firm. When she announced, in 1987, that she was pregnant, Heather was a change agent for the firm, resulting in its first maternity policy. Continuing to work at the firm while raising two young sons, Ms. Suarez not only became the first female partner, but also the first part time partner as the firm worked with her to accommodate and balance her busy home life with professional responsibilities.

Ms. Suarez has been recognized by many organizations in her field. Her commitment to women’s advocacy is evident as she works tirelessly as a member of the New Jersey Supreme Court Committee on Women in the Courts.

Mr. REYES. Madam Speaker, El Paso, Texas has a history of producing strong, passionate, and caring educators who motivate and engage our children to become lifelong learners. As a parent and grandparent, I am grateful for the contributions of our teachers in the El Paso area, and today I want to take this opportunity to congratulate Mrs. Christine Gleason, a teacher at Fabens High School in the Fabens Independent School District, for being selected as the 2009 Texas Secondary Teacher of the Year. The Texas Teacher of the Year is the highest honor that the State of Texas can award to a teacher and Mrs. Gleason will be representing the State of Texas in the National Teacher of the Year program in Washington, D.C. Facilitated by the Texas Education Agency, the Texas Teacher of the Year Program annually recognizes and rewards teachers who have demonstrated outstanding leadership and excellence in teaching. Mrs. Gleason represents the best of the best in the teaching profession, and we salute her energy, efforts, and dedication.

Mrs. Gleason earned a Bachelor’s degree in English and creative writing as well as a Master’s degree in English and American literature from the University of Texas at El Paso. At Fabens High School, she teaches English IV, AP English IV, and Dual Credit English. She currently serves the school district as Chair of the English Department, National Honor Society Sponsor, Dual Credit Facilitator, UIL Coordinator, and is a literary criticism coach. Mrs. Gleason originally intended to be a novelist, but found teaching to be “life-changing” and “unsurprisingly rewarding.” Mrs. Gleason said that her goal is to be a “vibrant, tenacious, creative and absolutely unforgettable teacher because that is what [she] never had and that is what every kid in this country deserves in every classroom they attend.” The El Paso community is very fortunate to have Mrs. Christine Gleason as one of our class teachers and we are appreciative of her commitment to our children.

Mrs. Gleason is part of a larger history of educational excellence in El Paso. I am also proud to note that for the past three years, El Paso area educators have been chosen as Texas Teachers of the Year. In total, El Paso has had nine Texas Teachers of the Year. The National Teacher of the Year Program began in 1952 and continues as the oldest, best in the teaching profession, and we salute her energy, efforts, and dedication.

Mr. LANCE. Madam Speaker, I rise in honor of National Women’s History Month and to congratulate Kristina Silvestry of Cranford, New Jersey who will be honored on Friday, March 27, 2009 at the 17th Annual Women of Excellence Dinner held in Union County, New Jersey. This special annual event is hosted by the Union County Commission on the Status of Women in the Seventh Congressional District and highlights the amazing work of individuals who are making our communities better places to live. The Commission on the Status of Women recognizes the contributions of women in the fields of education, health care, the arts, government, business, law, community service, technology, public service and women’s advocacy and lifetime achievement.

This year’s Women’s Advocacy Award will be given to Kristina Silvestry. Currently, she is a primary counselor at “A Child’s View,” a Union County PALS Program. Kristina currently is employed as a counselor for the YWCA of Eastern Union County, serving the women, children, and families of Union County. Ms. SPEIER. Madam Speaker, I rise in both sadness and awe as I reflect on the passing of George M. Keller who, together with his late wife Adelaide, was a philanthropic titan on the San Francisco peninsula and across our country.

Born in Kansas City and raised in Chicago, Mr. Keller moved to San Francisco with his new bride when he took a job with Standard Oil after graduating from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology with a degree in chemical engineering—a degree delayed by George’s service in the United States Army Air Force during World War II.

Setting in San Mateo, George worked for Standard Oil (later Chevron) for half a century, eventually becoming the company’s chairman in 1981. As chairman, he led Standard’s 1984 bid to acquire Gulf Oil Corporation, at the time, the largest corporate takeover in history. Two years after retiring from Chevron in 1988, George and his wife established the George M. and Adelaide M. Keller Foundation.

Madam Speaker, I am constantly reminded of the generosity of the Keller family. The 12th Congressional District’s San Mateo County Health Center is a principle beneficiary of the foundation, having received millions of dollars in recent years. Much of that money went to helping some of the most vulnerable members of our community through the Keller Center for Family Violence Intervention.

George Keller’s work in our community touched virtually everyone. He served as Chairman of the Board of Belmont’s Notre Dame de Namur University from 1982 to 1994 and as Chair of the Bay Area Council from 1985 to 1988. He and Adelaide’s philanthropy has benefited many local institutions, including the Lighthouse for the Blind, the Exploratorium, the Coyote Point Museum and the Monterey Bay Aquarium. In addition, the Keller Foundation has supported homeless shelters, firefighters and helped build a playground for special needs children in Burlingame.

Adelaide, the love of George’s life, passed away last year. She and George are survived by three sons, Bill, Bob and Barry, and six grandchildren.

Madam Speaker, not all of us leave an indelible mark on our community when our time on earth is done, but George Keller certainly did, and we are all the better because of it.
