EQUAL PAY DAY

Mr. BURRIS. Mr. President, many of my colleagues and countless Americans across the country recognize today as Equal Pay Day, a solemn reminder of the enduring wage gap that separates women from men. We mark this inequity on a day in late April because it has taken many women from January 2008 until now to earn what their male counterparts brought home in 2008 alone. This is simply not acceptable. At a time of widespread economic uncertainty, the disparity is more troubling than ever. We can and must do better.

In 1963, this body passed the Equal Pay Act which was signed into law and represented a triumph for America's workforce. That legislation laid the groundwork for significant progress. It established a set of principles that declared the United States of America as a nation that does not discriminate based on gender. It was an important first step. Nearly 50 years have passed since that day.

It is clear that we have more work to do.

The Paycheck Fairness Act, which I am proud to cosponsor, would update the original Equal Pay Act and bring the law in line with our Nation's other important civil rights laws. The Bureau of Labor Statistics tells us that in 2007, women with full-time employment earned roughly 78 cents for every dollar men earned. This represents modest progress compared to 2006, when the ratio stood at slightly less than 77 cents on the dollar. Sadly, women of color earn significantly less, even when they have the same qualifications as men they work alongside. Over the course of a 40-year career, women can lose as much as $1 million to the gender wage gap. Nationwide that means roughly $200 billion of lost income every single year. With families across America tightening their belts and working harder than ever to make ends meet, it would be a serious failure on the part of this Congress to ignore this call to action.

With this in mind, we must move swiftly to pass the Paycheck Fairness Act. This comprehensive bill would encourage employers to follow the law by creating substantial incentives and strengthening penalties for equal pay violations, aligning it more closely with civil rights legislation. It would close loopholes. It would prohibit employer retaliation, improve Federal outreach, and strengthen enforcement efforts. The bill would also draw on a measure already enacted in the great State of Illinois to fix the established requirement clarifying reasonable points of comparison between employees to determine their fair wages. All of this, together with increased training, education, and research, means the Paycheck Fairness Act would invigorate the landmark equal pay legislation of the 1960s and provide much needed updates for the 21st century.

In all of my years of public life, I have had the privilege of witnessing firsthand the progress our Nation has made over the past half century. The stubborn barriers of race and gender known to my parents' generation have been shattered. Even in my own lifetime, I have seen changes few could have imagined. But for all the progress we have made, there is still a very long way to go. It is this slow, steady march toward our highest aspirations—the active progress of perfecting our Union—that defines the shared destiny of all Americans: Black and White, male and female, from all walks of life, and every corner of the globe.

The Paycheck Fairness Act represents a concrete step in closing the gender wage gap and another powerful stride in the march to equality. It is a measure that stands for common sense, good governance, and equal opportunity. I am proud to cosponsor the Paycheck Fairness Act, and I urge my colleagues to join with me in supporting women in the workforce.

It is my hope we will soon commemorate Equal Pay Day not as a grim reminder of the gender pay gap but as a day we took decisive action to stop discrimination in its tracks. I ask my colleagues to join me in this effort and to adopt the Paycheck Fairness Act without delay.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Ohio.

Mr. BROWN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to address the Senate for 5 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Ohio is recognized for 5 minutes without objection.

WORKERS MEMORIAL DAY

Mr. BROWN. Mr. President, today is Workers Memorial Day, which has been established for many years in this country, a day when we honor injured workers. It is a day that is particularly important for the families of some 5,000 Americans every year who are killed on the job. It is hard to believe that in our country that is about 100 workers a week. Some 15 workers every single day in our country are killed in a workplace accident, some of them union, most of them nonunion workers, workers who say goodbye to their spouse or to their children or to their mother or father and go off to work expecting just another day at the job and they never come home.

Workers are killed in all kinds of construction accidents. That number of 5,000—some 5,500, actually, in the year 2007—does not even count people who die from workplace acquired diseases, workers who might be sickened by Diacetyl, the popcorn lung disease that workers in Ohio have contracted.

Today, under the chairmanship of Senator MURRAY, the Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions Committee held a hearing to commemorate Workers Memorial Day: Dr. Celeste Monforton, Jim Frederick, and Tammy Miser. Tammy Miser's brother was killed on the job, I believe, in Indiana. The three of them talked about how important Workers Memorial Day is. But, more importantly, they talked about how important it is that workers have better representation than provided by the Occupational Safety and Health Administration; that the families of victims or workers injured or killed on the job don't have the input into the Occupational Safety and Health Administration they should have. In fact, those workers complain—as did people who represented them today at this committee hearing—that too often during the last few years there has been a voluntary kind of compliance through OSHA, and voluntary compliance doesn't work to save lives and make the workplace safer. So I applaud what Secretary Solis is doing, and I applaud what Senator MURRAY is doing.

I close with this: One of my first Workers Memorial Days was in Lorraine, OH, arranged by local labor organizations. I was given this pin I wear. It is a depiction of a canary in a bird cage. The mine workers, as we know, 100 years ago used to take a canary down in the mines with them. If it died from lack of oxygen or toxic gas, the miner knew he had to get out of the mine immediately. In those days there were no unions strong enough to protect them, and they had no government that cared enough to protect them. Those days are behind us.

Back in 1970, the Occupational Health and Safety Agency was set up by the Government. It has made a huge difference, but nonetheless 100 people in this country show up for work and die on the job every single day on the average, and that is not counting workplace diseases.

So we have a lot of work to do so that by April 28 of next year we can commemorate Workers Memorial Day with significantly fewer workplace injuries and significantly fewer workplace deaths.

I yield the floor and thank the President.

EXECUTIVE SESSION

NOMINATION OF KATHLEEN SEBELIUS TO BE SECRETARY OF HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES—Continued

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Maryland is recognized.

Ms. MIKULSKI. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The Sr. Asst. Parliamentarian (Elizabeth MacDonough) proceeded to call the roll.

Mrs. SHAHEEN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mrs. SHAHEEN. Mr. President, I rise in support of our nominee for Secretary of Health and Human Services, Gov. Kathleen Sebelius. I have known her for over 20 years. I believe she is an excellent nominee, one who brings a wealth of knowledge and skill to the position at a time when we need it the most.

As our country and the world begins to battle a very serious outbreak of the swine flu, we need Governor Sebelius's leadership now. Over 100 deaths have been reported in Mexico, and here in America we have confirmed cases in 5 States. It is urgent we have a leader in place at Health and Human Services who can respond to this threat.

Governor Sebelius is that person. She recognizes the need to work with experts and scientists on a global scale to make key public health decisions. Our citizens need and deserve to know that our Government is doing everything it possibly can to protect the public and to control this outbreak. We simply cannot afford to delay action in filling this important Cabinet post.

Also, as we embark on national health care reform, we need a leader who appreciates the importance of health care security to everyday people. Kathleen Sebelius is a common-sense leader who understands the complexities of our health care system. Through her experience as Governor of Kansas, State insurance commissioner, and President of the National Association of Insurance Commissioners, she has a broad and deep understanding of health care and will be an outstanding leader as we work to fix our broken system.

Governor Sebelius has worked tirelessly to improve the quality and affordability of health care for the people of Kansas, and she will do the same for all Americans.

As a former Governor, I understand the pressures of balancing a budget and working across party lines to get things done, and I commend Governor Sebelius for her track record of success. Upon taking office, she faced a projected $1 billion deficit. So she implemented a top-to-bottom audit of State government that produced significant savings and efficiencies. Under her leadership, Governor Sebelius expanded health care for children and worked to reduce the cost of prescription drugs. Working across the aisle, she was able to reorganize State health care programs to make health care more affordable by creating an independent State agency to control spending on health care and simplify the process of obtaining health care for her constituents.

Undoubtedly, Governor Sebelius brings a wealth of knowledge and leadership experience that will be critical in her new role as the Secretary of Health and Human Services.

I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting nominee Kathleen Sebelius for Secretary of Health and Human Services. She is the right choice at a time when we desperately need leadership at the Department of Health and Human Services.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

Ms. SNOWE. Mr. President, I rise today to speak in support of the confirmation of Governor Kathleen Sebelius as Secretary of the Department of Health and Human Services.

This nomination comes at a transformational moment and at a monumental time—as the American people look to the Federal Government to achieve systemic change to ensure that all have affordable access to health care. The Senate Finance Committee, of which I am a member—along with the HELP Committee—is working mightily to craft reforms to address the current unacceptable reality of 70 million Americans lacking adequate coverage, and the increasingly unsustainable costs that undermine the health security of all Americans.

At the same time, our Nation faces the most severe economic distress we have witnessed since the Great Depression, with more than 2.6 million jobs lost last year. And it is the Department of Health and Human Services that stands at the forefront of helping to mitigate the consequences through our health and poverty programs. Therefore, there can be no doubt of the necessity for sound executive leadership at HHS.

Indeed, given both its prominence and its status as one of the largest departments in the Federal Government—which also oversees programs upon which nearly 1 in 3 Americans rely for their health care—our next Secretary of Health and Human Services should be a talented public official possessing a depth and breadth of experience as both a skilled administrator and manager, and a professional committed to systemic health reform. In that light, as former Kansas State Insurance Commissioner and now as Governor—and with her experience in tackling health care issues in her State—I believe Governor Sebelius possesses the knowledge and skills to meet the pressing demands facing our next leader of HHS.

In her work as Kansas State Insurance Commissioner she rightly recognized a takeover of her State's largest
