The House met at 12:30 p.m. and was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore (Ms. Edwards of Maryland).

DESIGNATION OF SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following communication from the Speaker:

I hereby appoint the Honorable Donna F. Edwards to act as Speaker pro tempore on this day.

MORNING-HOUR DEBATE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the order of the House of January 6, 2009, the Chair will now recognize Members from lists submitted by the majority and minority leaders for morning-hour debate.

The Chair will alternate recognition between the parties, with each party limited to 30 minutes and each Member, other than the majority and minority leaders and the minority whip, limited to 5 minutes.

GUANTANAMO BAY’S UYGHUR DETAINES

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. Wolf) for 5 minutes.

Mr. Wolf. Madam Speaker, it is my understanding that President Obama’s decision regarding the release into the U.S. of a number of Uyghur detainees held at Guantanamo Bay since 2002 could be imminent.

The New York Times, ABC News and other news outlets have reported that the President will soon release these terrorists into the United States, yet this Congress has not been briefed on this decision.

Let me be clear, these terrorists would not be held in prisons, but they would be released into your neighborhoods. They should not be released into the United States. Do Members realize who these people are?

There have been published reports that the Uyghurs were members of the Eastern Turkistan Islamic Movement, a designated terrorist organization affiliated with al Qaeda.

Release of the Uyghurs is a matter of grave concern, a matter which prompted me to send a letter to the President last Friday detailing my reservations about any course of action that could pose a threat to the American people.

In my letter I called on the President to declassify all information about the capture and detention of the Uyghur detainees, including a threat assessment for each detainee who would be released in the U.S.

The American people, Madam Speaker, deserve the facts about these detainees and the risk they potentially pose to our communities.

Following the precedent that the administration set in declassifying the Office of Legal Counsel interrogation memos, they have a moral obligation to the American people to declassify all relevant information related to the Uyghur detainees.

This administration has already shown that it has no qualms about releasing selected classified documents. The White House cannot just pick and choose what classified information it deems worthy of releasing. It cannot have it both ways. It shouldn’t release information that conveniently makes their case without making information with profound national security implications available to the American people.

After learning that this decision was imminent, I requested briefings from a number of relevant agencies, but all the agencies have told me that our Department of Justice is now preventing them from speaking to me directly on this issue. So much for being open. So much for disclosure.

Is the Attorney General preventing agencies from answering Members’ questions? Is this a political decision being made by Eric Holder, the Attorney General?

This is not the transparency and accountability the President promised, nor is it the open and constructive relationship they want with Congress. This is, at best, a poor judgment and, at worst, a dangerous hypocrisy.

Is the administration intent on keeping Congress and the American people in the dark about critically important national security issues?

Madam Speaker, I have criticized both Republican and Democratic administrations for actions that I believe undermine the safety and the security of the American people.

I have not received responses to two letters to Attorney General Holder on the transfer of Guantanamo Bay prisoners. The first letter was dated March 13. The second letter was dated April 29. And I will submit them for the RECORD. They still have not answered the letters. My office has been told by the White House that some of the questions I have asked cannot even be answered.

When Attorney General Holder appeared before the Commerce-Justice-Science appropriations subcommittee, he poignantly said he would not play hide and seek with the information. What are they now trying to hide from the American people?

The Attorney General is slow-rolling the information as terrorist detainees are potentially going to be released into the United States.

According to an L.A. Times article published last week, “The Homeland Security Department has registered concerns about the plan,” among other government agencies.

Information I have received indicates that the Uyghurs may be more dangerous than the public has been led to believe.

Just last night, 60 Minutes had a disturbing segment which touched on the radio deaths of the Guantanamo Bay detainees. The story indicated that in Saudi Arabia alone, of 117 men returned from Guantanamo, 11 have shown up again on Saudi Arabia’s most wanted terrorist list.

Any independent assessment of the Uyghurs must take into account not only their previous training at terrorist camps but their potential subsequent exposure to the likes of Khalid Sheikh Mohammed, the mastermind of 9/11 who took pleasure in the beheading of Wall Street Journal reporter Daniel Pearl.

I say to this administration, the American people have a right to know all the facts, and I fear personally that expediency is clouding their judgment, which is inexcusable after we saw what took place on 9/11.

The stakes are simply too high for this administration to simply take their word that these men pose no security threats. I call on the Obama administration to declassify and release all the information that they have available so the American people can make a judgment.

Dear Mr. President: It is my understanding that your decision regarding whether to release a number of Chinese Uyghur detainees held at Guantanamo Bay into the United States is imminent. I have grave concerns about this action, which I believe could directly threaten the security of the American people.

Information I have received indicates that the Uyghurs are more dangerous than the public has been led to believe. I write today asking that you declassify all intelligence regarding their capture, detention, and your administration’s assessment of the threat they may pose to Americans, prior to any decision to release them. The American people deserve to have all the facts about these individuals before they should be expected to tolerate their presence in our communities.

I believe your administration also has an obligation to explain to the American people how you will monitor the Uyghurs’ activities should they be released in the U.S. Additionally, all state and local law enforcement should immediately be notified of your intended decision, provided a threat assessment of the released Uyghurs, and informed of the federal government’s plans to monitor their activities once released.

Following the precedent you have set in declassifying the Office of Legal Counsel in terrorism cases, there is a moral obligation to declassify this critical information.

The American people cannot afford to simply take your word that these detainees, who were reportedly former terrorist suspects, are not a threat if released into our communities.

Best wishes.

Sincerely,

FRANK R. WOLF,
Member of Congress.
primarily to the judge’s belief that the due process standards applicable in civilian trials required more disclosure than the Justice Department believed was required and safe to share. To understand why the 4th Circuit Court could take up to an additional year per trial. Considering that a federal appeals court in New York just recently overruled the federal district court’s refusal to disclose classified evidence in the 911 attack case—more than a decade after the attack and eight years after the trial—how long does your department envision civilian legal proceedings for Guantanamo detainees taking?

3. Will the defense attorneys for these combatants be given access to classified evidence that would help them provide adequate defense?

4. If terror suspects are brought into the civilian court system, how can they represent themselves, would the Justice Department allow them access to all discovery?

5. Will defense attorneys be allowed discovery on all such evidence and be allowed to challenge its admission in court? Would this require allowing defense attorneys to enter combat zones to view evidence?

6. Will U.S. service members who collected evidence still be forced to give up their duties in theater and return to the United States to give testimony in open court?

7. Will military personnel be required to have training on how to legally obtain evidence and preserve the chain of command needed to make such evidence admissible in court?

8. Will every combatant be given full legal rights and will these rights also be given to combatants deceased in the future?

9. The system of military tribunals for these combatants was designed to avoid the difficulties inherent in civilian trials. If the military tribunals are seen as insufficient, why are we investing in a system that is perceived as good enough for members of our armed forces, why is it deemed insufficiently fair for these detainees who have openly stated they are innocent after all?

10. If these combatants are transferred to the U.S. Court for the Eastern District of Virginia, how will the trials of other defendents in that court be affected?

11. If regular defense attorneys are not allowed to meet with clients at the jail facility in Alexandria due to increased security associated with these combatants, is the Justice Department concerned that those cases could be delayed to the point where those detainees lose their appeal?

12. The Moussaoui trial took a heavy toll on the prosecution team and I would be concerned that extended trials for numerous combatants could overwhelm the legal staffs. Do you have a plan for addressing how prosecution teams will work?

13. Are you concerned about the safety of the legal staff and the jurors who are assigned to these cases and have steps been taken to ensure their safety and the safety of their families?

14. Have the Justice Department considered establishing a separate court similar to the FISA court where judges would be assigned these cases, a rotating basis?

15. Has the Justice Department considered consulting with military experts, U.S. Marshals and other law enforcement officials before determining the safest place to house these detainees?

16. Have you considered with the families of the victims of the 911 attack as well as district attorneys for the 4000 defense lawyers in the military who are working on the cases in the 1990s and the Moussaoui case?

17. The Congress has received your FY 2009 supplemental request for $36.3 million for ongoing DOJ activities. But the majority of the funding, $36.4 million, is for activities related to the closure of the Guantanamo detention facility. Can you tell the Appropriations Committee exactly what the department is doing related to Guantanamo, and what you are proposing to do in the future with the requested supplemental funding?

19. I understand that you have created three task forces to implement the executive orders regarding Guantanamo Bay. How many individual detainee cases must be reviewed and disposed of?

20. Can you provide a list of possible outcomes from these task forces, such as transferring detainees to their home countries or detaining them indefinitely without trial?

21. For any detainees released to third countries, what assurances are you seeking from those governments in order to minimize the risks of recidivism?

22. You have stated that the issues related to closing Guantanamo Bay represent your biggest challenge. If the task forces conclude that the risks associated with civilian trials in the United States are too dangerous and costly, will you recommend to the president that the closure of the detention facility be delayed?

23. Beyond the supplemental request, what other post-Guantanamo requirements will there be?

24. I realize that your department has numerous issues to address before Guantanamo Bay is closed and all the combatants housed there moved. As the Justice Department continues to consider the disposition of these combatants, I think it is important for Congress to play an active role. As my previous letter stated, I take Congress’s oversight role seriously and believe that Congress must be given an opportunity to consider how the combatants are moved to the continental U.S.

Thank you for your service.

Sincerely,

FRANK R. WOLF, Member of Congress,

HON. ERIC H. HOLDER, JR., Attorney General, Department of Justice, Washington DC,

DEAR ATTORNEY GENERAL HOLDER: President Obama recently issued an executive order to close the detention facility at Naval Station Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, and decisions must now be made regarding how and where to house the 250 suspected terrorists and enemy combatants held there.

I was particularly concerned to read in the March 7 Washington Post that some of these detainees may be tried in and housed by the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Virginia (United States District Court for the Southern District of New York. Their presence so close to large civilian population centers could require additional security and logistics for any region forced to accept these detainees.

I do not—and would not—support the transfer of any prisoners presently being detained at Guantanamo Bay to any facilities in Virginia and have joined Virginia colleagues in introducing legislation (H.R. 1186) to prohibit prisoners at the Guantanamo Bay detention facility from being transferred to federal prisons or military bases in Virginia.

I take seriously the responsibility of congressional oversight, especially in matters with national security implications. In 1998 I authored legislation that created the National Commission on Terrorism. Unfortunately, it took the horrific events of September 11, 2001, for this topic to come to the commission to be taken seriously. I have traveled to Sudan five times and seen evidence of the terrorist camps used by Osama bin Laden in the 1980s.

The first bombing of the World Trade Center in 1993 was treated as a routine criminal case by the Clinton administration when there were clear indications from Sheikh Omar Abdel-Rahman that terrorism was the intended bombing.

Furthermore, the individuals currently at Guantanamo Bay are members of the same organization that bombed the U.S. embassies in Kenya and Tanzania as well as the USS Cole in Yemen.

The March 11 Washington Post detailed how detainees described themselves as “terrorists to the bone.” I have read in the court filing that they describe their role in the 9/11 attacks as “a badge of honor.” These dangerous individuals simply cannot be confined anywhere near large civilian populations.

As the ranking member on the House Appropriations Commerce-Justice-Science Subcommittee, I am concerned about the complexities of bringing any of these enemy combatants to any installations, military or civilian, in the continental U.S. Regardless of where these detainees are confined, I would appreciate your detailed response to the following questions: What steps has the Justice Department taken to assure the security of the surrounding population if such violent combatants are confined and tried in urban areas?

2. What precautions will be taken to ensure that the detainees do not escape?

3. Is the Obama administration concerned that the presence of these detainees will invite attacks from ideological followers in an attempt to set them free and, if so, what precautions are being taken to prevent this scenario?

4. How will the detainees be transported to the courthouses?

5. What type of security cordon will be in place if detainees are transported on local highways?

6. Has the Justice Department considered the impact of road closures around federal courthouses and local jails during the trials of these individuals?

7. If the detainees are flown to any location, will they use military or commercial airports?

8. If commercial airports are used, will terminals have to be evacuated to ensure security?
9. What will be the security perimeter around federal courthouses and will local residents and businesses be forced to move or close to ensure security? If so, for how long?

10. Will MetroRail stations in close proximity to the U.S. Courthouse in Alexandria be closed?

11. Will the Westin Hotel, approximately 200 feet from the courthouse, and the Patent and Trademark Office, approximately 250 feet from the courthouse be evacuated?

12. Has the Justice Department considered the impact such detainees will have on local prisons, such as the city jail in Alexandria, where federal defendants are often held during trial?

13. Will prisoners in local jails have to be moved to provide a secure location for housing these combatants, and, if so, who will bear the costs associated with their transfer?

14. Will there be an extensive list of rules and regulations governing local and state officials regarding the housing and trial of these suspects? If so, will a copy of the regulations be made available to state and local officials as well as members of Congress?

15. Will state and local law enforcement officers be required to assist federal officials and will the federal government compensate those agencies for the use of those officers’ time?

16. What costs will be associated with the trial and what portion, if any, will be borne by state and local governments?

17. Has the Justice Department consulted with the Defense Department regarding its ability or willingness to house these detainees?

18. Do a set of protocols for transferring and housing these individuals exist, and, if so, will you make it available to members of Congress?

19. What discussions regarding these detainees, if any, have administration officials had with the commanders of the Naval Station Brigs in Norfolk, Virginia; the Marine Corps Base at Quantico, Virginia, or any other military installation in the contiguous United States, Alaska or Hawaii?

20. Has the administration or the Department of Defense had any discussions with National Association of state and local governments regarding the possibility of transferring detainees to U.S. Naval vessels either in U.S. territorial or international waters today?

21. Has the administration had any discussions with the warden of the Administrative Maximum prison facility in Florence, Colorado, regarding the difficulties surrounding the housing of Zacharias Moussaoui and how other prisons might be affected by housing similar detainees?

22. Was the administration had discussions with any of the detainees’ country of origin regarding their willingness to accept custody?

While I understand that the Eastern District of Virginia and the Southern District of New York have successfully held the only trials to date of terror suspects, I remain extremely concerned that adequate thought has not been given to the extensive security, financial and logistical costs associated with the transfer of any of these individuals to civil court districts. State and local officials, as well as the citizens of northern Virginia, will face many challenges and dangers with these combatants housed in the Eastern District of Virginia.

I look forward to receiving your responses to these concerns. Best wishes.

Sincerely,

FRANK R. WOLF, Member of Congress

COMMUNICATION FROM THE CLERK OF THE HOUSE

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following communication from the Clerk of the House of Representatives:

Hon. Nancy Pelosi, Speaker, House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

DEAR MADAM SPEAKER: Pursuant to the permission granted in Clause 2(h) of Rule II of the Rules of the U.S. House of Representatives, the Clerk received the following message from the Secretary of the Senate on May 1, 2009, at 10:04 a.m.:

That the Senate agreed to without amendment H. Con. Res. 104.

DARIUS GOES WEST

(Mr. BARROW asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. BARROW. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to a special group of young men who are making a difficult but important contribution to Duchenne muscular dystrophy, DMD, which is usually detected in small children, is a debilitating and ultimately fatal affliction, usually taking its victims’ lives in their early 20s.

Darius Weems was diagnosed with DMD as a small child, and he will be 19 years old later this year. His brother, Mario, died at that age from the same disease.

Because of his condition, Darius never left his hometown of Athens, Georgia, for the first 15 years of his life. But just before Darius’ brother, Mario, died, Mario’s friend, Logan Smalley, made a promise to Mario to look after Darius when Mario died. After Mario died, Logan did more than that; he made Darius a star.

Four years ago, Logan Smalley and 10 other college friends decided to take Darius on a road trip from Athens, Georgia, to Los Angeles, California. Along the way, they met people who shared Darius’ illness, and they documented handicap accessibility throughout the country. Logan directed a documentary film of that trip, “Darius Goes West,” starring Darius and the rest of the crew.

Today that documentary is on track to sell 1 million copies, with the lion’s share of profits going to fight DMD. I’m pleased to report that there is a copy of “Darius Goes West” in every middle school and high school in the United States.

DMD is not a contagious disease, but the sense of hope and purpose that Darius and his friends possess is infectious, and I’m proud to commend Darius and the rest of the “Darius Goes West” crew for their hard work, and for giving literally millions of people a reason to care.

LOUISIANA STUDENTS OF THE YEAR

(Mr. FLEMING asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. FLEMING. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to congratulate three outstanding students from my district.

Randi Layne Adams of South Beauregard Elementary in Beauregard Parish was named student of the year. She is actively involved in 4-H and community service projects, including efforts targeted at recycling and gardening.
Henri Lin, an eighth grader at Caddo Middle Magnet, was named student of the year. Henri is on the staff of his school newspaper, serves on the student council, is a member of the Builders Club, takes advanced piano and competed with the 2009 U.S. Junior Olympics fencing team.

Nicholas Allen Taylor, a senior at Byrd Math and Science Magnet High School, was named student of the year also. Nicholas is captain of Byrd’s Quiz Bowl team, a member of the Mu Alpha Theta math honor society, and a member of the lacrosse team.

All three demonstrated outstanding academic leadership and communication skills and have bright futures ahead of them. Congratulations to all of them on this outstanding accomplishment.

SUPPORT MORTGAGE REFORM

(Mr. BACA asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. BACA. Mr. Speaker, I stand in support of H.R. 1728, the Mortgage Reform and Anti-Predatory Lending Act.

This bill will ensure that mortgage lenders make loans that benefit consumers and prohibit them from steering the borrowers into high cost loans, and we know what an impact it has had on our Nation and many individuals who have lost their homes. In addition, this bill encourages the market to move back towards making fixed-rate, fully documented loans.

This legislation also prevents predatory and abusive lending practices, holds creditors responsible for loans they originated and protects tenants who rent homes that go into foreclosure.

I ask you to support this legislation on behalf of those that are right now on the verge of losing their homes and protect those tenants.

CONGRATULATING ARKANSAS TECH UNIVERSITY ON ITS CENTENNIAL ANNIVERSARY

(Mr. BOOZMAN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BOOZMAN. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to congratulate Arkansas Tech University on 100 years of academic excellence.

Arkansas Tech University was originally established as a Second District Agricultural College by the State legislature and one of four State agricultural schools in 1909. Arkansas Tech University is now one of the fastest-growing universities in the State of Arkansas and has established a reputation as a school that truly serves the Nation.

It is said that an education from Arkansas Tech University is the best of both worlds, big time technology and an education in a friendly, small-town setting.

The school excels in exposing its students to the technology of tomorrow and better preparing students for future endeavors. An excellent faculty and staff provide an outstanding educational experience.

I am proud to support this fine institution and look forward to the next 100 years of academic excellence.

RELEASEING TERRORISTS FROM GUANTANAMO BAY

(Mr. WOLF asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Speaker, the Members of this institution ought to know that this administration and the Justice Department may be very close to releasing terrorists from Guantanamo Bay, the Uyghurs, out into the public, out around the country. And we are calling on the Justice Department to release any of the memos with regard to who these people are on individual cases. If they were members of a terrorist group, I believe the American people need to know.

This administration and Justice selectively released memos but will not tell the full story. So I urge all Members, unless you want them, these Uyghurs, terrorists from Guantanamo Bay, to move to your neighborhood, ask Attorney General Eric Holder, release all this classified information so the American people can know what we are about ready to face.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Persons in the gallery are not to express approval or disapproval of speeches on the floor.

ENFORCE IMMIGRATION LAWS

(Mr. SMITH of Texas asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SMITH of Texas. Mr. Speaker, when Arizona Governor Janet Napolitano was nominated to be Homeland Security Secretary, her record showed that she often opposed enforcing immigration laws. So it’s not entirely a surprise that she recently told CNN’s John King that illegally “crossing the border is not a crime per se. It is civil.”

That’s just plain wrong.

It is a violation of the criminal code to enter our country illegally. The law has been in effect for decades, and it has been codified in its current form since 1991.

The Obama administration apparently does not intend to enforce any of our immigration laws. There are numerous examples, such as delays in implementing a requirement that Federal contractors use E-Verify to ensure that illegal immigrants don’t get Federal jobs.

It’s hard to believe that this administration is not only weak when it comes to enforcing immigration laws, but also ignorant of immigration laws themselves.

INSIDIOUS TAX

(Mr. GOHMERT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. GOHMERT. Mr. Speaker, you know, there is an insidious tax out there, insidious because we tell the American people that they are not going to have to pay it, that we are going to put it on the greedy corporations.

Well, how do you think a corporation stays in business if it doesn’t pass that on to the people, and they don’t realize, they think somebody else is paying and yet it comes right back to their feet?

Some of us talked to CEOs of industries that moved from here to China. Why did you move? I thought maybe the number one answer would be because of labor being cheaper. They said the best labor in the world is right here in the United States, but corporate taxes are less than half of what they are here in the United States, 17 percent there, 35 percent here.

Now we are told today by the administration they are going to hire hundreds of new IRS agents. Well, as John FLEMING said this morning, now we know what it means by green jobs. They are going after your green.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX, the Chair will postpone further proceedings today on motions to suspend the rules on which a recorded vote or the yeas and nays are ordered, or on which the vote incurs objection under clause 6 of rule XX.

Record votes on postponed questions will be taken after 6:30 p.m. today.

RECOGNIZING THE SIGNIFICANCE OF CINCO DE MAYO

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and agree to the resolution (H. Res. 230) recognizing the historical significance of the Mexican holiday of Cinco de Mayo, as amended.

The Clerk read the title of the resolution.

H. RES. 230

Whereas May 5, or Cinco de Mayo in Spanish, is celebrated each year as a date of great importance by the Mexican and Mexican-American communities;

Whereas the Cinco de Mayo holiday commemorates May 5, 1862, the date on which the Battle of Puebla was fought by Mexicans who were struggling for their independence and freedom;
Whereas Cinco de Mayo has become one of Mexico’s most famous national holidays and is celebrated annually by nearly all Mexicans and Mexican-Americans, north and south of the United States-Mexico border;

Whereas the Battle of Puebla was but one of the many battles that the courageous Mexican people won in their long and brave struggle for independence and freedom;

Whereas the French, confident that their battle-seasoned troops were far superior to the outnumbered Mexican forces, expected little or no opposition from the Mexican army;

Whereas the French army, which had not experienced defeat against any nation’s finest troops in over half a century, sustained a disastrous loss at the hands of an outnumbered, ill-equipped, and ragged, but highly spirited and courageous, Mexican force;

Whereas after three bloody assaults upon Puebla in which over a thousand gallant Frenchmen lost their lives, the French troops were finally defeated and driven back by the outnumbered Mexican troops;

Whereas the courageous and heroic spirit that Ignacio Zaragoza and his men displayed during this historic battle can never be forgotten;

Whereas many brave Mexicans willingly gave their lives for the cause of their independence and freedom in the Battle of Puebla on Cinco de Mayo;

Whereas the sacrifice of the Mexican fighters was instrumental in keeping Mexico from falling under European domination;

Whereas the Cinco de Mayo holiday is not only the commemoration of the rout of the French troops at the town of Puebla in Mexico, but is also a celebration of the virtues of individual courage and patriotism of all Mexicans and Mexican-Americans who have fought for freedom and independence against foreign aggressors;

Whereas Cinco de Mayo serves as a reminder that the foundation of the United States was built by people from many nations and diverse cultures who are willing to fight and die for freedom;

Whereas Cinco de Mayo also serves as a reminder of the close spiritual and economic ties between the people of Mexico and the people of the United States, and is especially important for the people of the southwestern States, many of whom have Mexican and Mexican-American make their homes;

Whereas in a larger sense Cinco de Mayo symbolizes the right of a free people to self-determination. Benito Juarez once said, “El respeto al derecho ajeno es la paz” (“The respect of other people’s rights is peace”); and

Whereas many people celebrate during the entire week in which Cinco de Mayo falls: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the House of Representatives recognizes the historical struggle for independence and freedom of the Mexican people and requests that the President issue a proclamation recognizing that struggle and the importance of Cinco de Mayo.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. PAYNE) and the gentleman from Arkansas (Mr. BOOZMAN) each yield 30 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New Jersey.

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material on the resolution under consideration and experiences. Through efforts like the Merida Initiative and NAFTA, these ties continue to grow—only stronger.

Our mutual commitment to democracy and security in the region will increasingly be a brave in the hemisphere work to advance their illicit agendas. Already, we have seen the transnational impact of the drug cartels and organized crime groups operating in Mexico. Joint efforts by our countries to thwart criminal activities within Mexico have sent these criminals north into the United States and south into Central America.

We must continue to work with our democratic partners and allies to present a united front against those who pose a threat to U.S. interests, security, and values.

So, as many throughout the United States and Mexico celebrate Cinco de Mayo this week, I hope that they are reminded not only of Mexico’s proud past, but also of her ongoing shared commitment to independence, democracy, and security.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman BACA for introducing this timely resolution.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. PAYNE, I yield 5 minutes to the sponsor of the resolution, the gentleman from California (Mr. BACA).

Mr. BACA. First of all, I would like to thank the Congressman from New Jersey for his leadership in bringing this resolution and, also as the chair of the Subcommittee on Africa, I would like to thank the Ranking Member of the Subcommittee on the Merida Initiative, Mr. ROSETTEN, as well, for their leadership and support in bringing this bipartisan effort to the floor.

I rise today in support of H. Res. 230, a resolution recognizing the historical significance of the Battle of Puebla on May 5, 1862, which commemorates the Mexican Army’s victory over the French soldiers in the Battle of Puebla.

This resolution not only honors the memory of the fallen soldiers on this day but also recognizes the importance of Cinco de Mayo in promoting democracy and the rule of law in Mexico.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New Jersey.

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material on the resolution.
Today, Cinco de Mayo is celebrated not only in recognition of the defeat of the French Army, but it also celebrates the virtues of individual courage and patriotism of all Mexican Americans—all Mexicans who have fought for their freedom and independence. Today, we will celebrate the Cinco de Mayo in the White House with President Obama.

However, it also serves as a reminder to all of the wonderful culture and characteristics that Latinos have brought to our country. I am an example of what I am wearing right now.

Latinos are the fastest-growing minority population in this country, accounting for over 45 million people—49 million, if you include Puerto Rico. It represents about 17 percent of the total population.

The contributions made by Latinos to our American culture are countless—ranging from business, to art, to sports. It is not just a matter of what I am wearing right now; you see all kinds of figures everywhere around the United States.

Latinos have fought hard and are willing to make the ultimate sacrifice for this country. They have fought in every major war since the Revolutionary War. You have seen them fight for this country.

We have served with honor to defend this great country, and we will do that because we believe in it. That is why people come to the United States—for the freedom that we have.

Today, there are 30 Latino Members in the United States Congress—bipartisan. Also, we have Secretary Ken Salazar at the Department of the Interior, and Secretary Hilda Solis at the Department of Labor, who are both of Latino origin. This number points to what a driving force Latino communities have become in our country economically, socially, and politically.

Cinco de Mayo also serves as a reminder of our wonderful and long-standing relationship with our great neighbors to the south. Last year, over $367.5 billion of goods were traded between the United States and Mexico. That makes Mexico our nation’s third largest trading partner.

Cinco de Mayo provides us with a great opportunity to look back at our own heritage as Americans—and I say as Americans. Our ancestors all came from different cultures and different homelands. Yet, they banded together to fight against oppression and tyranny, helping to form this great country that we have today.

While Latino culture has come a long way, we all must come together to make sure we recognize the inequities that exist right now in our communities, and that we deal with social and economic disadvantage that affect a lot of us.

My colleagues and I in the Congressional Hispanic Caucus share a common purpose—working to break down those walls and increase opportunities in areas such as education and health care so that we all have equity, regardless of who we are, where we come from, for that same kind of justice and equality.

This past February, I was proud to give my support to the Recovery Act. As a great number of Hispanic families, as well as many other families, are struggling mightily during this recession, this act helps to create jobs for millions of Americans, invest in health care, education, and energy.

The SPEAK Act expired. The time of the gentleman has expired. Mr. PAYNE. I yield the gentleman 1 additional minute.

Mr. BACA. With that, I say let’s support H. Res. 230, and ask for your support.

Mr. BOOZMAN. I continue to reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. PAYNE. I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from California (Ms. WATSON).

Ms. WATSON. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of House Resolution 230, introduced by my good friend and colleague, Representative Joe BACA, to recognize the historical significance of the widely celebrated Mexican holiday, Cinco de Mayo.

On May 5, 1862, while outnumbered almost two to one at the Battle of Puebla, Mexican General Ignacio Zaragoza Seguin led the Mexican Army and defeated a much larger and well-equipped French Army that had not been defeated in nearly five decades.

The battle would also prove to be significant because this would mark the last time an army from a foreign country invaded the Americas. As many of you know, this holiday is not only commemorated in the United States and Mexico, but brings together cultures from all over the world to join in the celebration—even people in faraway lands such as the Island of Malta in the Mediterranean join in this festival.

The holiday is a chance for us to set aside our differences and support the Mexican people, the bravery shown by those men who fought at the Battle of Puebla 147 years ago.

I ask my colleagues to join me in recognizing the historical significance of Cinco de Mayo and the bravery shown that day in.

Mr. BOOZMAN. I continue to reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. PAYNE. It is my pleasure to yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Puerto Rico (Mr. PIERLUSI).

Mr. PIERLUSI. I rise today in strong support of House Resolution 230, which has been introduced by my friend and colleague, Mr. BACA, and recognizes the historical significance of Cinco de Mayo.

For the people of Mexico, Cinco de Mayo is an important symbol of freedom, liberty, and self-determination. In our country, Cinco de Mayo is a celebration of the rich history and culture that Mexican Americans have brought to the United States.

Hispanics are the fastest-growing minority group in the United States. There are 30 Hispanic Members of Congress, including many Mexican Americans, representing constituencies from all around the country.

Tomorrow, millions of Americans will join our neighbors to the south in celebrating Cinco de Mayo. This day serves as an important reminder of Mexico’s proud history and of the many contributions that Mexican Americans have made to this country.

I urge my colleagues to help recognize Cinco de Mayo, and to support House Resolution 230.

Mr. BOOZMAN. I continue to reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. PAYNE. At this time I yield 10 minutes to the gentleman from American Samoa (Mr. FALEOMAVAEGA).

Mr. FALEOMAVAEGA. I do want to thank my good friend and colleague, the gentleman from New Jersey, as our distinguished chairman also of our House Foreign Affairs Subcommittee on Africa and Global Health.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of House Resolution 230, to recognize the historical significance of the Mexican history of Cinco de Mayo. I commend my colleague, the gentleman from California, for introducing this legislation, as it truly does serve as a reminder that all the people of our great Nation, regardless of their race, color, or even gender, have enriched our diversity in our cultures and are worthy of respect as a Nation.

Mr. Speaker, Cinco de Mayo commemorates the battle of Puebla. On May 5, 1862, outnumbered and outgunned Mexican forces, determined to protect their land, successfully defended the town of Puebla against French soldiers and its transferred ruler by the name of Ferdinand Maximilian, who was an archduke from Austria and a puppet of Emperor Napoleon III of France.

For Mexico, this day has come to represent a symbol of Mexican unity and pride. Hence, the name Cinco de Mayo. It is a celebration of the virtues of individual courage and patriotism of all Mexicans and Mexican Americans whose ancestors are from Mexico and are part of the rich diversity of our Nation.

It also serves as a reminder of the cultural, spiritual, and economic ties between the people of Mexico and our great country.

Mr. Speaker, I want to share with my colleagues the life and history of a particular leader who, in my humble opinion, is the greatest hero in Mexico’s history—a true statesman whose name is inextricably linked with the name Cinco de Mayo. His name is Don Benito Juarez, President of Mexico from 1862 to 1865, and 1867 to 1872.

President Juarez led the Mexican people in their fight for independence during a period of their history. President Juarez was the first Mexican President of indigenous Indian descent—indigenous Indian descent.
His parents were members of the Zapotec tribe, prevalent in the provinces of the State of Oaxaca in Mexico. An orphan at age 3, young Benito Juarez worked in the cornfields and as a shepherd until the age of 12. When he went to school at the age of 15 to attend school, he could not read, could not write or couldn’t even speak Spanish. He was adopted by lay members of the Franciscan Order who taught the young Juarez reading, writing, arithmetic and Spanish grammar. Later, he entered the Franciscan seminary in Oaxaca and studied Aquinas and other great Catholic philosophers, eventually turning his attention instead to the study of law. President Juarez was educated in the law in preparation for a political career.

Mr. Speaker, in his first political position as a city councilman, he was noted as a strong defender of indigenous Indian rights. He participated in the revolutionary overthrow of Santa Anna in 1855, becoming the minister of justice and instituting reforms that were embodied in the constitution of 1857. During the Reform War of 1858 to 1861, President Juarez led the liberals against the conservative faction of Mexico’s Government. The liberals succeeded only through popular support and the unwavering determination of President Juarez, and he was elected President in 1861.

Mr. Speaker, to fully understand the quality of the leadership of Mexico at the time in the person of President Don Benito Juarez, one can compare him to, arguably perhaps, the greatest President in our own country’s history, President Abraham Lincoln. Both leaders, in fact, presided over their countries in times of crisis, demonstrating great courage and perseverance in the fight for freedom. Both grew up in poverty and studied law. Both fought against bigotry and racism. In fact, President Lincoln and President Juarez were contemporaries who held each other in high regard. In fact, in 1858, upon hearing of Juarez’s struggles in Mexico, President Lincoln sent him an encouraging message expressing hope “for the liberty of your government and its people.” Even in the midst of our own Civil War, President Lincoln provided arms and munitions to President Juarez to support the Mexican people in their fight against France. When President Juarez sent a request for arms to Lincoln for his army, President Lincoln provided arms and munitions to President Juarez to support the Mexican people in their fight against France.

It is ironic, Mr. Speaker, that we have the gentleman by the name of Lafayette whose portrait is right over here who came here as a French patriot to help us fight against British colonialism, and the only foreigner here with the patriot right next to our Founding Father, Washington. It is ironic that in the history of Mexico, Napoleon, being the ruler that he was, sent Maximilian to continue French colonial rule in Mexico, and so now we had to kick the French out in order to give the Mexican people their freedom.

Again I thank the gentleman from California, former chairman of the Congressional Hispanic Caucus, my good friend, for his leadership and initiative for introducing this bill.

I urge my colleagues to support this legislation.

Mr. LARSON of Connecticut. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong support of H. Res. 230, resolution honoring the significance and impact of Cinco de Mayo. I like to begin by applauding the efforts and leadership of the author of the resolution, Congressman Joe Baca, as well as the rest of my colleagues in the Congressional Hispanic Caucus for bringing this bill before us today.

Mr. Speaker, Cinco de Mayo has traditionally commemorated the victory of a poorly armed Mexican militia over a larger, better equipped French army at the Battle of Puebla. Today, however, Cinco de Mayo in the United States has become a celebration of Hispanic heritage not unlike Saint Patrick’s Day for Irish-Americans.

To be sure, Mr. Speaker, Irish-Americans and Hispanic-Americans have much in common. We are bound together by Catholic, working-class experiences. Our relatives came and continue to come to this country from largely rural, uneducated backgrounds. Our struggles were, and continue to be twin struggles for equality, as well as political and cultural recognition.

From Bernardo de Galvez to Admiral David Farragut to General Cesar Chavez, Hispanic-Americans have made significant contributions to the development of our nation. In just the last election, Latinos represented 9 percent of the electorate and provided the margin of victory in large swaths of the country, voting for President Obama by a margin larger than 2-to-1.

And because Hispanics constitute the majority of our nation’s newest Americans, Madam Speaker, I cannot speak here without at least mentioning the subject of immigration. As Mr. Fareed Zakaria affirms in his acclaimed book, The Post-American World, “Foreign students and immigrants account for almost 50 percent of all science researchers in [our] country. In 2006 they received 40 percent of all PhDs. By 2010, 75 percent of all science inventions will be awarded to foreign students. When these graduates settle in the country, they create economic opportunity. Half of all Silicon Valley startups have one or more Hispanic executives who are first generation American. The potential for a new burst of American productivity depends not on our education system or R&D spending, but on immigration policies.

Immigrants are America’s greatest strength. If we remain true to our history; if we remain the most open and flexible society the world; if we continue to absorb cultures, devours ideas and feed off the energy of poor immigrants we will thrive. This is America’s genius. Hispanics are another great chapter in the larger history of our immigrant country. They make America more American.

I urge my colleagues to support this important legislation.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker; I rise today in support of H. Res. 230 “Recognizing the historical significance of the Mexican holiday of Cinco de Mayo” and I would like to thank my colleague Representative pastor for introducing this resolution in the House.

May 5, or Cinco de Mayo in Spanish, is celebrated each year as a date of great importance by the Mexican and Mexican-American communities. This holiday commemorates May 5, 1862, the date on which the Battle of Puebla was fought. However, Cinco de Mayo is not “an obligatory federal holiday” in Mexico, but rather a holiday that can be observed voluntarily.

Cinco de Mayo has become one of Mexico’s most famous national holidays and is celebrated annually by many Mexicans and Mexican-Americans, north and south of the United States-Mexico border. In the United States, Cinco de Mayo has taken on significance beyond that in Mexico. The date is perhaps best recognized in the United States as a date to celebrate the culture and experiences of Americans of Mexican ancestry, much as St. Patrick’s Day, Oktoberfest, and the Chinese New Year are used to celebrate those of Irish, German, and Chinese ancestry respectively. Similar to those holidays, Cinco de Mayo is observed by many Americans regardless of ethnic origin.

Cinco de Mayo is a regional holiday in Mexico, primarily celebrated in the state of Puebla, with some limited recognition in other parts of Mexico. The holiday commemorates the Mexican army’s unlikely defeat of French forces at the Battle of Puebla on May 5, 1862, under the leadership of Mexican General Ignacio Zaragoza Seguin.

Cinco de Mayo’s history has its roots in the French Occupation of Mexico. The French occupation took shape in the aftermath of the Mexican-American War of 1846-48. With this war, Mexico entered a period of national crisis during the 1850’s. Years of not only fighting the Americans but also a civil war, had left Mexico devastated and bankrupt. On July 17, 1861, President Benito Juarez issued a moratorium in which all foreign debt payments would be suspended for a brief period of two years, with the promise that after this period, payments would resume.

The English, Spanish and French refused to allow President Juarez to do this, and instead decided to invade Mexico and get payments by whatever means necessary. The Spanish and English eventually withdrew, but the French refused to leave. Their intention was to create an Empire in Mexico under Napoleon III.

The French, confident that their battle-seasoned troops were far superior to the almost amateurish Mexican forces, expected little or no opposition from the Mexican army. The French army, which had not experienced defeat against any of Europe’s finest troops in over half a century, sustained a disastrous loss at the hands of an outnumbered, ill-equipped, and ragged, but highly spirited and courageous, Mexican force.
After three bloody assaults upon Puebla in which over a thousand gallant Frenchmen lost their lives, the French troops were finally defeated and driven back by the outnumbered Mexican troops. Although the Mexican army was victorious over the French at Puebla, the victory only delayed the French invasion on Mexico City; a year later, the French occupied Mexico. The courageous and heroic spirit that Mexican General Zaragoza and his men displayed during this historic battle can never be forgotten. While Cinco de Mayo has limited significance nationwide in Mexico, the date is observed in the United States and other locations around the world as a celebration of Mexican heritage and pride. However, a common misconception in the United States is that Cinco de Mayo is Mexico’s Independence Day, which actually is September 16, the most important national patriotic holiday in Mexico. The Cinco de Mayo holiday is not only the commemoration of the rout of the French troops at the town of Puebla in Mexico, but is also a celebration of the virtues and courage and patriotism, which all Americans can appreciate. Cinco de Mayo also serves as a reminder of the close spiritual and economic ties between the people of Mexico and the people of the United States, and is especially important to the Southern United States, where millions of Mexicans and Mexican-Americans make their homes. In a larger sense Cinco de Mayo symbolizes the right of a free people to self-determination and should be recognized and honored by this Congress.

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and agree to the concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 111) recognizing the 61st anniversary of the independence of the State of Israel, as amended.

The Clerk read the title of the concurrent resolution. The text of the concurrent resolution is as follows:

H. CON. RES. 111

Whereas on May 14, 1948, the State of Israel declared its independence;

Whereas the State of Israel was one of the first nations to recognize Israel, only 11 minutes after its creation;

Whereas Israel has provided the opportunity for Jews around the world to re-establish their ancient homeland;

Whereas Israel is home to many religious sites sacred to Judaism, Christianity, and Islam;

Whereas Israel provided a refuge to Jews who survived the unprecedented horrors of the Holocaust;

Whereas the people of Israel have established a pluralistic democracy which includes the freedoms cherished by the people of the United States, including freedom of speech, freedom of religion, freedom of association, freedom of the press, and government by the consent of the governed;

Whereas Israelis have contributed to world civilization as scholars, inventors, artists and leaders, and view Israel as a strong and trusted ally; and

Whereas the close bond is based on shared values, including a commitment to freedom and democracy, and to the security and safety of Israel and all of its neighbors.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT

Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate concurring), That Congress—

(1) recognizes the independence of the State of Israel as a significant event in the history of the world, providing refuge and a national homeland for the Jewish people and in establishing a democracy in the Middle East;

(2) commends the bipartisan commitment of the United States administrations and United States Congresses since 1948 to stand by Israel and work for its security and well-being;

(3) congratulates the United States and Israel for the strengthening of bilateral relations in recent years in the fields of defense, diplomacy, and homeland security, and encourages both nations to continue their cooperation in resolving future mutual challenges;

(4) extends warm congratulations and best wishes to the people of Israel as they celebrate the 61st anniversary of Israel’s independence.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. PAYNE) and the gentleman from Arkansas (Mr. BOOZMAN) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New Jersey.

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members have 5 legislative days to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material on the resolution under consideration.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New Jersey?

There was no objection.

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H. Con. Res. 111, recognizing the 61st anniversary of the independence of the State of Israel, and yield myself as much time as I may consume.

Since its founding 61 years ago, the modern State of Israel has been a strong ally of the United States, Israel has established itself as a dynamic, pluralistic and democratic nation with a booming economy, a thriving culture and intellectual life. Contemporary Israelis have contributed to world civilizations as scholars, inventors, artists and educators, and Israeli citizens have been awarded the Nobel Prize. Israel is the home to many outstanding scientists, engineers, doctors, musicians and other hardworking people. This is an impressive record for a country of barely 7 million people.

Since Israel’s founding, the United States has had no greater friend in the Middle East. The close bond is based on shared values, including a commitment to freedom and democracy and to the security and safety of Israel and all of its neighbors. The United States and Israel also share a common history as a nation of immigrants, many of whom fled persecution from other parts of the world. The United States and Israel have worked to welcome people in their borders.

Israel declared its independence on May 14, 1948, providing opportunity for Jews from all over the world to reestablish their ancient homeland. Israel remains the home of many religious sites which are sacred to Judaism, Christianity and Islam.

Israelis continue to serve as a model of democracy and democratic values by voting free and fair elections, promoting free and fair exchange of ideas, having open press, open media and vigorously exercising in its Parliament, the Knesset, a democratic government that is fully representative of its citizens;

Whereas Israel has bravely defended itself from terrorist and military attacks repeatedly since independence;

Whereas the rocket attacks that have occurred in Israel in recent years have caused hundreds of civilians to lose their homes, schools, buildings, roads, power lines, and other significant infrastructure;

Whereas Israel has signed landmark peace treaties and successfully established peaceful bilateral relations with neighboring Egypt and Jordan;

Whereas despite the deaths of over 1,000 innocent Israelis over the last several years at the hands of murderous, suicide bombers and other terrorists, the people of Israel continue to seek peace with their Palestinian neighbors;

Whereas Iran, which rejects Israel’s right to exist as a nation, is a continued threat to Israel’s security, and has provided support to terrorist groups like Hamas and Hezbollah and through its ongoing efforts to acquire nuclear weapons;

Whereas the United States and Israel enjoy a strategic partnership based on shared democratic values, friendship, and respect; and

Whereas the United States share an affinity with the people of Israel and view Israel as a strong and trusted ally;

Whereas Israel has made significant global contributions in the fields of science, medicine, and technology; and

Whereas Israel’s Independence Day on the Jewish calendar coincides this year with April 29, 2009: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate concurring), That Congress—

(1) commends the bipartisan commitment of all United States administrations and United States Congresses since 1948 to stand by Israel and work for its security and well-being;
other nations, the most democratic by the manner in which it is created. I am certainly convinced that America and Israel will remain and retain their very strong and special relationships for years to come.

Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to support this resolution commending the 61 years of Israel's existence as a beacon of democracy and hope in the Middle East. I look forward to future anniversaries and to the day when Israel and her civilians can live in true peace and true security. I strongly support this resolution, and I strongly urge that all my colleagues do the same.

For thirty-one years, not one of Israel's Arab neighbors recognized the Jewish State. Finally, in 1979 and 1984, in respectively, vi-sionary Arab leaders Anwar Sadat of Egypt, and King Hussein of Jordan embraced the path of co-existence and signed peace treaties with Israel. I am convinced that someday the other Arab states will follow suit.

Mr. Speaker, at this time I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. BOOZMAN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, as we, today, commemorate 61 years of Israel's independ-ence, we commemorate and celebrate so much. To celebrate 61 years is an exercise of vibrant liberty, democracy and opportunity for those of all faiths. We celebrate over six decades of the revitalization of the Jewish homeland where Jewish culture, literature and philosophy have flourished. We celebrate 61 years of Israel's achievements in science and technology and business, achievements defined by continual in-novation and entrepreneurship, and we celebrate the hard work, determination and love of peace displayed by the peo-ple of Israel with whom we share our deepest values.

In short, Mr. Speaker, today we cele-brate a quintessentially American story, an example of what other coun-tries in the Middle East and beyond can achieve if they unleash the power of human freedom.

But as we celebrate, we cannot and must not ignore the continued and growing threats to Israel's survival. At the United Nations, Israel, like the United States, is singled out for bogus criticism and judged by double stand-ards. Most recently at the Durban II conference in Geneva, speaker after speaker lambasted Israel for supposed racism, and the assembled nations passed a declaration that criticized Israel alone among nations. Of course, the most memorable and infamous mo-ment from the Durban II was Iranian leader Mahmoud Ahmadinejad's speech where he savagely attacked the State of Israel and advanced anti-Semitic conspiracy theories that could have been taken verbatim from the Proto-cole of the Elders of Zion. Ahmadinejad has repeatedly called for Israel's deSTRUCTION, and given the Iranian re-gime's pursuit of nuclear, chemical, bi-o logical and missile capabilities, he and his ilk may soon have the where-withal to make good their threats. The prospect of an emboldened nuclear Iran is a threat to Israel, a threat to the United States and a threat to us all, and we cannot stand idly by in the face of this danger.

Likewise, to Israel's north, Syria's dictator has threatened Israel with vio-lence and brags of his support for the violent Islamist group Hezbollah, which continues to increase its capa-bilities to diminish Israel. Southern Israel continues to endure the nearly 9,000 rocket missiles and mortars that have been fired into Israel since 2001, more than 6,000 of them since Israel withdrew entirely from the Gaza Strip in November 2005. The result has been numerous Israeli deaths, physical and psychological wounds, and unceasing panic in the towns and cities within range of Hamas's artillery.

As we witnessed in the recent conflict in Gaza, Hamas's capabilities con-tinue to expand; thus, as we celebrate the anniversary of Israeli independ-ence, and with it the creation of a bas-tion of democracy in a sea of autocracy, we must remain mindful of the challenges that she faces. In short, the bond between our Nations and our peo-ple have never been stronger. The United States could not ask for a bet-ter friend and ally in the region, and I want to extend my best wishes to the people of Israel on their 61st inde-pendence day.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. PAYNE. At this time, I yield 5 minutes to the delegate from American Samoa (Mr. FALEOMAVAEGA). (Mr. Faleomavaega asked and was given permission to revise and ex-tend his remarks.)

Mr. FALEOMAVAEGA. Mr. Speaker, again, I thank my good friend from New Jersey for yielding.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong support of House Concurrent Resolu-tion 111, the legislation which expresses the sense of Congress recognizin-g and extending warm congratulations to the State of Israel for the 61st anniversary of its independence.

First of all, I want to commend the chief sponsor, Mr. SCOTT GARRETT of New Jersey, for introducing this important resolution celebrating this occasion on Israel's 61st birthday. I also want to recognize the commitment to their strong support of House Concurrent Resolution 111.

Mr. Speaker, on May 14, 1948, the State of Israel was founded when Israel declared independence and was ex- tended diplomatic recognition by the United States. We must acknowledge the commitment to their strong support of the United Nations in the 1940s in cre-ating the Jewish State soon after the horrific atrocities committed by the Nazis during World War II when they killed some 6 million Jews and impris-oned and viciously tortured many more in concentration camps.

Mr. Speaker, this legislation honors the anniversary of the reestablishment of the sovereign and independent mod-ern State of Israel and commends the leaders and the people of Israel for their remarkable achievements in building a strong and thriving democ-acy in the Middle East, while being threatened constantly with terrorism and war. The United States shares an affinity with the people of Israel, where we have a strong partnership based on democratic values that emphasize the importance of inalienable rights through the protection of the rights of individuals, maintaining the freedom of the press, providing for freedom of religion, having open and fair elections and, importantly, maintaining the rule of law. As the only democracy in the Middle East, we must commend Israel for their steadfast commitment to up-holding democratic principles.

Mr. Speaker, Israel is at the forefront of modern technology and contin-ued to expand its advancements in en-ergy efficiency and renewable energy technologies. I want to acknowledge Israel's efforts in preventing and combatting diabetes in the Pacific Islands. This is an epidemic which drastically impaired the people of the Pa-cific Island nations. Israel has contin-ued to work with the people of the Pa-cific Island nations either through di-rec or technical assistance, and I must recognize them for their support of the least fortunate in this part of the world. This resolution reiterates Israel's significant global contribu-tions.

Mr. Speaker, I want to praise the ef-forts of President Obama and his ad-ministration for making the Israeli Middle East peace process a high prior-ity of this administration. This was reaffirmed when President Obama ap-pointed Senator George Mitchell as Special Envoy for the Middle East process in his second day of office. Like President Obama, I believe that it is critical that Israel share a lasting peace with its neighbors in the Middle East and that a two-state solution, an Israeli state and a Palestinian state, is achievable and necessary in this important region of the world.

Mr. Speaker, I want to end on an im-portant note. At the National Prayer Breakfast held this year, former Brit-ish Prime Minister Tony Blair who is now the Quartet's Special Envoy to the Middle East, gave the most remarkable keynote address. In his speech, Prime Minister Blair mentioned a conversa-tion he had with his Palestinian tour guide during his tour of Israel. At the Mount of Temptation in Jericho, and with the guide's help, Mr. Speaker, his Palestinian tour guide said, "Moses, Jesus and Mohammed, why did they all have to come here?" This speaks volumes of the importance of this region when three of the most important religions of the world have a common cultural and religious history with the great city of Jerusalem.

I believe today, as did the late prime minister, and a great hero of mine, Yitzhak Rabin, that there will be solving and lasting peace between the Palestinians and Israelis who are in fact direct descendants of Father Abraham.

I keep telling my Arabic and Israeli friends: You guys are first cousins, why do you keep fighting each other? You are all sons and daughters of Father Abraham.

I want to convey my personal congratulations to the people of Israel in celebrating their 61st anniversary, and I urge my colleagues to support this resolution.

Mr. BOOZMAN. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. GARRETT), a member of the Budget and Financial Services Committees and the author of the resolution.

Mr. GARRETT of New Jersey. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman. I do now rise to commemorate this important event, the 61st anniversary of the founding of the modern State of Israel. As indicated, it was less than a century ago when most Jewish people were scattered throughout the world, often suffering from unjust persecution. Yet today, Israel is an independent, flourishing country that is vibrant as it goes forward day by day.

Just as the Jewish people celebrated Passover recently, the time when God delivered the Israelites out of captivity, I believe it is fitting and proper for us to celebrate the establishment of the only truly free country in the Middle East.

I have long been a strong advocate for Israel during my tenure here in Congress. During my very first term in office, I had an opportunity to visit Israel and to learn more about its people and the Jewish government. I also had the opportunity to establish a Jewish Advisory Committee in my district, to meet with Israeli and Palestinian officials.

Last year I introduced H. Res. 951, which condemned the rocket attacks on Israel, and I was pleased to see that this resolution passed the House overwhelmingly with bipartisan support.

So today, I come to the floor and am honored to speak on H. Con. Res. 111 because Israel has been one of our strongest allies, and our two countries have so very much in common. Israel and America have both faced so many wars. Israel has always enjoyed throughout it all to preserve the peace. And we continue now to promote freedom despite the ongoing resistance.

Earlier this year I joined with many of my constituents at a solidarity rally to remember Israel’s efforts during Operation Cast Lead. I sympathized with the families of the victims who were injured and killed there.

This recent conflict served as a sobering reminder that liberty comes with a great price and a great responsibility. Yet Israel has not allowed challenges to suspend its progress. Israel was little more than a barren desert back in 1948. And, amazingly, this wilderness has transformed into a center of thriving agricultural production. Not only has Israel been the source of innovative techniques, but it has also shared those techniques and that knowledge with countries across the world.

My own State of New Jersey is called the Garden State. Our State has directly benefited from the irrigation practices first developed by the people in Israel.

So I come to the floor right now grateful to how Israel has so freely shared their lessons that they have learned. By illustrating the virtues of liberty and the benefits of innovation, Israel today serves as a model for other developing nations.

This 61st anniversary is truly indeed a cause for celebration. I urge my constituents and colleagues to join me in recognizing this achievement of our friend and ally, Israel.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. BOOZMAN. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to my final speaker, Mr. GOHMERT, a distinguished member of the Judiciary, Resources and Small Business Committees.

Mr. GOHMERT. Mr. Speaker, I appreciate my friend from Arkansas yielding me this time.

On the 61st anniversary of the creation of Israel, we should stop to congratulate them. But I have a couple of points that I want to make sure that everyone understands.

Number one, there was a Holocaust. Number two, there could be another Holocaust.

Now today, we are told that the Taliban is near Islamabad. If Pakistan falls to the most radical Islamic terrorists, then the world is in trouble. We need to protect our friends.

We know that Israel is a democracy, a great democracy; so we are and should be friends. We know that Israel believes in the value of human life and human rights. We are and should be friends.

Someone once referred to Israel as the bond of the world for the world because when Israel suffers, the world is about to suffer.

That's the kind of friend we need to hold close and work together with. I want to make clear these radical Islamic terrorists, they are such a tiny, tiny fraction of the Islamic believers in the world. But they are a dangerous, dangerous part that needs to be understood and dealt with.

Congratulations to Israel. They are our friend. They should be our friend, and we need to make sure another holocaust never happens.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I rise before you today in support of H Con. Res. 111, recognizing the 61st anniversary of the independence of the State of Israel. I would like thank my colleague, Representative SCOTT GARRETT, for introducing this act of solidarity. I would also like to thank my fellow co-sponsors.

May 14, 1948—61 years ago—the Jewish people of Palestine declared their independence as a sovereign state. Across the world, the Jewish people saw a new opportunity to reestablish their ancient homeland—the possibility of living, not as eternal outsiders, but as a nation.

Eleven minutes after this declaration, the United States became the first country to recognize the new state. This began a long, strategic partnership based on shared democratic values, friendship, and respect. To this day, Americans share an affinity with the people of Israel and view their country as a strong and trusted ally.

The new nation provided a refuge to millions who had survived one of the most glaring examples of man’s greatest inhumanity to man. These survivors helped to found a democracy that was an inspiring example of all mankind, as we, as Americans hold dear ourselves, including freedom of speech, freedom of religion, freedom of association, freedom of the press, and government by the consent of the governed.

Israel continues to serve as a shining model of democratic values and a country that values holding free and fair elections, promoting the free exchange of ideas, and vigorously exercising, in the Knesset, a democratic government that is fully representative of its citizens. The leaders in this parliament have, as the times have re groupId, transformed Israel as they did for themselves from repeated military and terrorist attacks.

Likewise, when they saw the opportunity, the democratically elected leaders of Israel have worked for peace, as they did with the neighboring governments of Egypt and Jordan to establish peaceful, bilateral relations. These efforts continue to this day—despite the deaths of over 1,000 innocent Israelis over the last several years at the hands of suicide bombers and other terrorists—as the people of Israel continue to seek peace with their Palestinian neighbors. I will continue to work for a two-state solution and the saving of lives in Palestine and in Israel.

This is all to say nothing of the country’s many other accomplishments, including significant global contributions in the fields of science, medicine, and technology.

That is why I stand here today—to recognize this simple truth—that the independence of the State of Israel is more than a single event—it is the stabilization of a region, it is the lasting friendship of a like-minded country, it is the bond of sovereign friendship. I would also like to thank my fellow co-sponsor, Mr. SCOTT GARRETT, for introducing this act of solidarity.
Mr. Moran of Kansas. Mr. Speaker, for the past 61 years, the United States and Israel have enjoyed a strategic partnership based on shared democratic values, commitment to freedom, friendship, and respect. I rise today to recognize that relationship and congratulate the people of Israel on the 61st anniversary of Israel's independence.

In addition to congratulating the people of Israel, they celebrate their independence, H. Con. Res. 111 recognizes important events and people who have shaped this nation's history. While Israel's history is marked by proud accomplishments and successes, it is also peppered by instances when Israel's had to defend their country from outside threats. Sadly, many threats still remain. As Americans join Israel's in celebrating their country's independence, we should take notice of those threats and renew our commitment to addressing them.

No longer more challenging threat exists to Israel than that posed by Iran. Continuing to enrich uranium, Iran now has enough low enriched uranium that if further processed could produce a nuclear bomb. Such a development would be an existential threat to Israel. As one of Israel's closest friends and allies, the United States should take appropriate action to prevent Iran from acquiring nuclear weapons. Congress can begin by approving H.R. 1327, the Iran Sanctions Enabling Act, and H.R. 1985, the Iran Diplomatic Engagement Act.

By standing with Israel against Iran, we demonstrate the strength of ties that bind our two nations. Again, Mr. Speaker, I congratulate the people of Israel on the 61st anniversary of their independence and call on my colleagues in Congress to show their support for Israel by passing legislation that will pressure Iran into abandoning its pursuit of nuclear weapons.

Mr. Markey of Massachusetts. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of H. Con. Res. 111 recognizing the 61st anniversary of the founding of the State of Israel.

This resolution enjoys bipartisan support, because Americans from across the political spectrum agree that the State of Israel is a great friend of the United States, and we all celebrate the anniversary of its founding today.

As we mark this anniversary, it is fitting that we also note a new American tradition. May 1st of this year marked the beginning of the 4th annual Jewish American Heritage Month, during which we celebrate the many contributions that American Jews have made to the society in which we live and thrive. When the first Jewish settlers came to this land, they sought a place of promise where they could practice their faith in freedom and live in liberty.

The history of Jews in the United States includes the Holocaust, the holocaust of the generation, in which we live and thrive. When the first Jewish settlers came to this land, they sought a place of promise where they could practice their faith in freedom and live in liberty.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of H. Con. Res. 111 recognizing the 61st anniversary of the founding of the modern state of Israel. I believe it is important on this occasion to highlight the close bond between the United States and Israel. Just as the U.S. is a symbol of hope and freedom around the globe, Israel stands as a symbol of freedom and democracy in an area historically rampant with violence and opposition.

On May 14, 1948, Israel declared its independence, and the United States being the first country to formally recognize the new nation. Since that historic day, the United States and Israel have shared a close relationship of friendship and cooperation that serves as an example to the rest of the world. This relationship is strengthened with each successive year.

One critical aspect of the U.S.-Israeli relationship is the role Israel plays in the pursuit of peace in the Middle East. Indeed, Israel has worked hard to develop friendly working relationships with its neighbors, Egypt and Jordan, setting an example of leadership and peace even as many around them spread hatred and terror. And while recent years have unfortunately been marked by escalating armed conflict between Israel and Hamas, the United States will stand steadfast in its commitment to a free Israel as the Middle East comes to embrace the liberties and freedoms of democratic societies.

Mr. Speaker, as a cosponsor of this resolution, I am honored to recognize and congratulate the people of Israel on its 61st Anniversary. It is vital the United States continue to develop its strong relationship with Israel so that other countries around the world still oppressed and ruled by terror can see the true value of a free and democratic nation.

Mr. Gallegly. Mr. Speaker, on May 14, Israel will celebrate its 61st anniversary as a sovereign and independent nation. Only eleven minutes after its creation, the United States recognized Israel and was one of the first nations to do so. In these intervening 61 years, the people of Israel have established a unique, pluralistic democracy that includes the freedoms cherished by Americans.

Today, the United States House of Representatives voted for House Concurrent Resolution 111 that states that Congress recognizes the independence of the State of Israel as a significant event in providing refuge and a national homeland for the Jewish people; commends the bipartisan commitment of all United States administrations and United States Congresses since 1948 to stand by Israel and work for its security and wellbeing; congratulates the United States and Israel for the strengthening of bilateral relations in recent years in the fields of defense, diplomacy, and homeland security, and encourages both nations to continue their cooperation in resolving future mutual challenges; and extends warm congratulations and best wishes to the people of Israel as they celebrate the 61st anniversary of Israel's independence.

I am proud to be a cosponsor of House Concurrent Resolution 111 and I have consistently supported efforts to strengthen the relationship between the United States and Israel. As a senior member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, I will continue to work with members on both sides of the aisle to ensure that our country remains steadfast in our support for Israel and its people.

Mr. Calvert. Mr. Speaker, as many have said before, friendship is found and tested through adversity. The friendship between the United States and Israel has certainly been tried and proven true. Both our nations confront challenges that are rooted in extremism and terrorism. While America formerly found some comfort in distance, Israel stands as a true testament to freedom and democracy in the Middle East—but Israel does not stand alone. The commitments between Israel and the United States are not born out of mere necessity, but out of mutual respect and the common belief that all of mankind deserves to live in peace and freedom.

On the 61st Anniversary of the Independence of the State of Israel, I offer my gratitude and congratulations to a steady ally and friend.

Mr. Payne. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. Boozman. Mr. Speaker, I urge adoption of this very important resolution, and thank the gentleman from New Jersey for bringing it forward. Again, I urge all of our House Members to vote in the affirmative, and I yield back the balance of my time.
Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question was taken.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX and the Chair's prior announcement, further proceedings on this motion will be postponed.

SUPPORTING THE GOALS AND IDEALS OF MALARIA AWARENESS DAY

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and agree to the concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 103) supporting the goals and ideals of Malaria Awareness Day, as amended.

The Clerk read the title of the concurrent resolution.

The text of the concurrent resolution is as follows:

H. Con. Res. 103

Whereas April 25 of each year is recognized internationally as Africa Malaria Day and in the United States as Malaria Awareness Day;

Whereas despite malaria being completely preventable and treatable and the fact that malaria was eliminated from the United States over 50 years ago, more than 40 percent of the world's population is still at risk of contracting malaria;

Whereas according to the World Health Organization, 500,000 people die from malaria each year, the vast majority of whom are children under the age of 5 in Africa;

Whereas malaria greatly affects child health, roughly every 30 seconds a child dies from malaria, and more than 3,000 children die from malaria every day;

Whereas malaria poses great risks to maternal health, causing complications during delivery, anemia, and low birth weights, with estimates by the Center for Disease Control and Prevention that malaria infection causes 400,000 cases of severe maternal anemia and from 75,000 to 200,000 infant deaths annually in sub-Saharan Africa;

Whereas in Zanzibar, where malaria prevalence among children shrank from 20 percent to less than 1 percent between 2005 and 2007, and where malaria deaths in children and deaths appeared to decline rapidly after a large-scale distribution of bed nets and malaria treatments in 2006; and

Whereas a malaria-free future will rely on consistent international, national and local leadership, and a comprehensive approach addressing the range of health, development, and economic challenges facing developing countries; Now, therefore, be it

(1) supports the goals and ideals of Malaria Awareness Day, including the achievable target of ending malaria deaths by 2015;

(2) calls upon the people of the United States to observe this day with appropriate programs, ceremonies, and activities to raise awareness and support to save the lives of those affected by malaria;

(3) reaffirms the goals and commitments to combat malaria outlined in the Tom Lantos and Henry J. Hyde United States Global Leadership Against HIV/AIDS, Tuberculosis, and Malaria Reauthorization Act of 2008;

(4) commends the progress made during the last year by anti-malaria programs including the U.S. President's Malaria Initiative and the Global Fund to Fight AIDS, Tuberculosis and Malaria;

(5) recognizes the work of the Roll Back Malaria Partnership and the United States support for and contribution toward the achievement of the following targets:

(6) encourages donor nations to maintain their support and honor their funding commitments for Malaria programs worldwide;

(7) urges greater integration between United States and international health programs that target malaria, HIV, Tuberculosis, neglected tropical diseases, and basic child and maternal health;

(8) commits to continued United States leadership in efforts to reduce global malaria deaths, especially through strengthening health systems, interagency strategic planning, and domestic funding integration.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. PAYNE) and the gentleman from Arkansas (Mr. BOOZMAN) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New Jersey.

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that I may extend my remarks at the conclusion of this resolution.

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that extraneous material on the resolution be stricken.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. PAYNE) and the gentleman from Arkansas (Mr. BOOZMAN) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New Jersey.

WHEREAS the malnutrition and consequent anemia, and low birth weights, with estimates by the Center for Disease Control and Prevention that malaria infection causes 400,000 cases of severe maternal anemia and from 75,000 to 200,000 infant deaths annually in sub-Saharan Africa;
I ask you to reflect on the statistics: malaria takes the life of a child roughly every 30 seconds. This is simply astounding and unconscionable in 2009. Malaria also causes a great risk to maternal health, causing complications during pregnancy, anemia, and low birth weight, with estimates by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention that malaria infection causes 400,000 cases of severe maternal anemia and annually from sub-Saharan Africa.

An estimated 90 percent of the deaths from malaria occur in Africa. Malaria also perpetuates poverty. The Roll Back Malaria Partnership estimates that malaria costs African countries $12 billion annually in lost economic productivity.

The malaria burden also weakens governments’ abilities to provide services. The World Health Organization estimates that malaria accounts for 40 percent of health care expenditures in high-burden countries, demonstrating that effective, long-term malaria control is inextricably linked to the strength of the health systems.

However, there is good news. Heightened efforts by our own government and by other partner nations have made significant progress in the fight against malaria.

The President’s Malaria Initiative has purchased almost 13 million artemisinin-based combination therapies (ACTs), which will protect over 17 million people through spraying campaigns, and has distributed over 6 million insecticide-treated bed nets.

The Global Fund to Fight AIDS, Tuberculosis and Malaria has distributed 7 million bed nets to protect families from malaria and provided 74 million malaria patients with ACTs. As the World Bank’s booster program is scheduled to commit more than $500 million in International Development Association funds for malaria, this will help to move forward the control of malaria; approximately $500 million by the International Development Association.

Public and private partnerships are developing effective and affordable drugs to treat malaria, with more than 23 types of malaria vaccines in development. Years ago, there were virtually no vaccines in development. And so we have a world that has taken a real look at this dread disease and are moving forward to its elimination.

This resolution calls on the governments of our country to remit malaria awareness day for the health and wealth of the entire world. I strongly support this resolution and I urge my colleagues to do likewise.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. BOOZMAN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

As co-Chair with Chairman PAYNE of the Congressional Malaria Caucus and an original cosponsor of this resolution brought forth by Chairman PAYNE, I rise in support of H. Con. Res. 103, which supports the goals and ideals of Malaria Awareness Day.

It is widely known that malaria was eradicated in the United States more than a half century ago. Less known is the fact that malaria still affects as many as half a billion people in 109 countries in Africa, Asia and Latin America, and that malaria kills approximately 1 million to 3 million people per year.

Africa has been particularly hard hit. Ninety percent of all malaria deaths occur in Africa. It is the leading cause of death of children under the age of 5, claiming the lives of an estimated 3,000 African children per day. And because every malaria episode is debilitating, many businesses have been forced to hire two or more employees to fill a single position due to absenteeism. It is estimated that Africa loses $12 billion in productivity each year, because of a wretched mosquito. But with the commitment of host countries and generous donor support—including through the President’s Malaria Initiative; the Global Fund to Fight AIDS, Tuberculosis and Malaria; the World Bank; private donors and nongovernmental organizations, including Malaria No More—we are starting to see the light at the end of the tunnel.

Mass distributions of mosquito nets, indoor residual spraying, and the development and distribution of safe, effective and inexpensive drugs to treat malaria have yielded sharp declines in malaria-related deaths in a number of African countries. According to U.S. Army, Coordinator, Admiral Tim Ziemer, “These efforts are bringing newfound hope that malaria is not an intractable problem and giving children a fighting chance to improve their quality of life and build better futures.”

But we still have a long way to go. Malaria Day serves as a call to arms—a day to mobilize resources and recommit ourselves to the fight against this preventable disease. It reminds us that with the steadfast commitment of donors, host governments, local leaders and the countless heroes who are fighting to roll back this scourge on the ground each and every day, we may live to see the elimination of malaria from the developing world.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of this resolution. I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. PAYNE. I rise in support of this resolution. I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, this issue is serious. Forty percent of the world’s population, some 6 billion people living in this world, are still impacted and affected by this serious disease—malaria. On top of that, some 800 million people living on the continent of Africa, 90 percent of the people living in Africa, are also affected by this serious disease.

I want to thank the gentleman from New Jersey for his initiative and leadership in proposing this legislation and to extend my congratulations to my colleagues in working through the authorizing committees that we will build on what the gentleman, the chairman of our subcommittee, has done to bring to the attention of our colleagues and to the American people the importance of what we need to do as a country to help get rid of this serious disease.

Mr. PAYNE. I yield the gentleman 30 additional seconds.

Mr. FALEOMAVAEGA. I want to commend my good friend from New Jersey for working quietly and patiently but with tremendous effort in working with our colleagues in addressing the serious problems of malaria.

With that, Mr. Speaker, I want to once again thank my good friend from New Jersey for his leadership and for the work that he has done in trying to get rid of this dread disease.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H. Con. Res. 103, “Supporting the goals and ideals of Malaria Awareness Day” and I would like to thank my colleague Representative PAYNE for introducing this resolution.

Every year, April 25 is recognized internationally as Africa Malaria Day and in the United States as Malaria Awareness Day. Although, malaria is a completely preventable and treatable disease which was eliminated from the United States over 50 years ago, more than 40 percent of the world’s population is still at risk of contracting malaria. According to the World Health Organization, nearly 1,000,000 people die from malaria each year, the vast majority of whom are children under the age of 5 in Africa. I feel that the target of ending malaria deaths by 2015 is an achievable goal that the United States must aid in accomplishing.

As chair of the Congressional Children’s Caucus, this resolution is important to me because roughly every 30 seconds a child dies from malaria, and more than 3,000 children die from malaria every day. The malnutrition and consequent chronic illness that result from childhood malaria leads to increased absenteeism in school and perpetuates cycles of poverty. In addition to threatening the lives of children this disease also takes a great toll on women as well. Malaria poses great risks to maternal health, causing complications during delivery and an increased risk of maternal mortality due to malaria infection causes 400,000 cases of severe maternal anemia and from 75,000 to 200,000 infant deaths annually in sub-Saharan Africa.

An estimated 90 percent of deaths from malaria occur in Africa and the Roll Back Malaria Partnership estimates that malaria costs African countries $12,000,000,000 in lost economic productivity each year. The World Health Organization estimates that malaria accounts for 40 percent of health care expenditures in high-burden countries, demonstrating that effective, long-term malaria control is inextricably linked to the strength of health systems. Fortunately, the heightened efforts over recent years to prevent and treat malaria are currently saving lives. Progress and funding to control malaria has increased ten-fold since 2000, in large part, due to funding under the President’s Malaria Initiative (a U.S. Government international development program designed to cut malaria deaths in half in target countries in sub-Saharan Africa), the Global Fund to Fight AIDS, Tuberculosis and Malaria, the World Bank, and new funding by other donors. The President’s Malaria Initiative, which has purchased almost 13,000,000 artemisinin-based combination therapies (ACT), protected over 17,000,000 people through spraying campaigns, and distributed over 6,000,000 insecticide-treated bed nets, the Global Fund to Fight AIDS, Tuberculosis and Malaria has distributed 7,000,000 insecticide-treated bed nets to protect families from malaria and provided 74,000,000 malaria patients with ACTs, and the World Bank’s Booster Program is scheduled to commit approximately $500,000,000 in International Development Association funds for malaria control in Africa.

At the moment, public and private partners are developing effective and affordable drugs to treat malaria, with more than 23 types of malaria vaccines in development. According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, without control, or the prevention of malaria transmission via anophelines mosquitoes, which includes a combination of methods such as insecticide-treated bed nets, indoor residual spraying, and source reduction (larval control), as insecticide-treated bed nets, indoor residual spraying, and source reduction (larval control), the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention that malaria infection causes 400,000 cases of severe maternal anemia and from 75,000 to 200,000 infant deaths annually in sub-Saharan Africa.

A malaria-free future will rely on consistent international, national and local leadership, and a comprehensive approach addressing the range of health, development, and economic challenges facing developing countries. It is important that this Congress commits to continued leadership in efforts to reduce global malaria deaths, especially through strengthening health care systems that can deliver effective, safe, high-quality interventions when and where they are needed, and assure access to reliable health information and effective disease surveillance.

Mr. BOOZMAN. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. PAYNE. I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question was taken; and (two-thirds being in the affirmative) the resolution, H. Con. Res. 103, as amended, was agreed to.

The Clerk read the title of the resolution.

The text of the resolution is as follows:

H. Con. Res. 283

Whereas Rabbi Charles H. Rosenzveig, Holocaust survivor, and founder of the Nation’s first free-standing Holocaust Memorial Center, passed away on December 11, 2008, which corresponds to the 14th Kislev, 5769 in the Hebrew calendar, and was buried in Jerusalem, Israel;

Whereas Rabbi Charles H. Rosenzveig was beloved by friends, family, and congregants and is survived by his wife Helen and four children, Martin Rosenzveig, Rabbi Ely Rosenzveig, Judy Rosenzveig, and Adina Novogrodsky, and ten grandchildren;

Whereas Rabbi Charles H. Rosenzveig was born on November 13, 1920, in Ostrovitz, Poland, to Yente and Eliezer Lippa Rosenzveig;

Whereas Rabbi Charles H. Rosenzveig was educated in the Jewish cheder and prestigious Bialystok Yeshiva, and studied the laws of his faith concerning the importance of good deeds and social justice, and developed exceptional knowledge of the Talmud, the rabbinic interpretation of Jewish Law;

Whereas Rabbi Charles H. Rosenzveig endeavored and bore witness to the horrific atrocities of the Holocaust, the Shoah, and members of his immediate and extended family perished at the hands of the Nazis;

Whereas Rabbi Charles H. Rosenzveig managed to escape from German-occupied Poland and with the help of his mother and extended family migrated to the United States, settling at first in New York City in 1947;

Whereas Rabbi Charles H. Rosenzveig attended the world-renowned Yeshiva University in Manhattan and was ordained in 1951 as a rabbi, leader, and teacher in the Jewish community;

Whereas, upon receiving the rabbinic designation, Rabbi Charles H. Rosenzveig led Congregation Mt. Sinai in Port Huron, Michigan, where he served as spiritual leader until 1993, when he left the pulpit to devote his entire energy and spirit to the Holocaust Memorial Center, a project he had envisioned since his escape from Europe;

Whereas the Holocaust Memorial Center, established in 1984 at the Jewish Community Center in West Bloomfield, Michigan, became the Nation’s first free-standing Holocaust Memorial Center;

Whereas the Holocaust Memorial Center is a monument to the memory of the victims of the Holocaust, and an educational institution with a mission to teach the lesson of tolerance to future generations, welcoming millions of visitors from around the world wishing to learn about the horrors of the Holocaust in order to prevent such a tragedy from occurring again;

Whereas other Holocaust centers around the country have been built, many modeled on Rabbi Charles H. Rosenzveig’s original Holocaust Memorial Center;

Whereas Rabbi Charles H. Rosenzveig traveled and spoke extensively to raise awareness and grow the Holocaust Memorial Center, allowing the Holocaust Memorial Center to move from its original home in West Bloomfield, Michigan, to a large, state-of-the-art museum in Farmington Hills, Michigan, that also houses the Museum of European Heritage and the International Institute of the Righteous;

Whereas it was Rabbi Charles H. Rosenzveig’s vision for the new center to enliven future generations about the horrors of the Holocaust and nourish a social consciousness whereby the “righteous acts of the few become the standard of the many”;

Whereas Rabbi Charles H. Rosenzveig succeeded in providing the tools necessary for the message of “Never Again” to be understood by future generations; Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the House of Representatives
(1) mourns the passing of Rabbi Charles H. Rosenzveig and pauses to remember the 6,000,000 Jews killed in the Holocaust and the more than 11,000,000 people murdered in World War II and earlier;

(2) honors the life and accomplishments of Rabbi Charles H. Rosenzveig as a scholar, teacher, rabbi, and Founder and Director of the Holocaust Memorial Center.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. PAYNE) and the gentleman from Arkansas (Mr. BOOZMAN) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New Jersey.

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material on the resolution under consideration.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New Jersey? There was no objection.

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of this resolution and yield myself as much time as I may consume.
I rise in support of H. Res. 283, a resolution offered by Mr. Peters of Michigan, honoring the life, achievements, and contributions of Rabbi Charles H. Rosenzveig. Although Rabbi Rosenzveig passed away last December, I think it is extremely and particularly appropriate for the House to honor him now after having recently marked Holocaust Remembrance Day.

While Rabbi Rosenzveig will always be remembered as a loving husband and father with a wife, Helen, and four children, whom followed in his father's footsteps into rabbinate and became a rabbi, many of us knew him as a path-breaking educator about the Holocaust and the founder of an important Holocaust museum and memorial. His life story of survival, escape and renewal serves as a model for all of us. Though he escaped the clutches of the Nazis who invaded his native Poland, Rabbi Rosenzveig lost much of his family in the Holocaust. After making his way but through the Soviet Union, he found refuge in the United States in 1947. After attending Yeshiva University in New York City, he became the spiritual leader of Congregation Mount Sinai in Port Huron, Michigan. In 1984, Rabbi Rosenzveig founded the Holocaust Memorial Center, a national free-standing memorial to the horrors of the Holocaust, in Farmington Hills, Michigan. In 1993, he left the pulpit to devote his energies full time to the center. The center serves not only as a memorial to those who perished at the hands of the Nazi regime and honors the life and accomplishments of Rabbi Charles Rosenzveig as a scholar, teacher, rabbi, and founder and director of the Holocaust Memorial Center. I urge my colleagues to support this important resolution.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Michigan, Congressman Peters, for introducing this measure which commemorates those who perished at the hands of the Nazi regime and honors the life and accomplishments of Rabbi Charles Rosenzveig as a scholar, teacher, rabbi, and founder and director of the Holocaust Memorial Center. I urge my colleagues to support this important resolution.

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of House Resolution 283, a resolution that I authored to honor the life, achievements, and contributions of Rabbi Charles H. Rosenzveig.

The late Rabbi Rosenzveig, who passed away in December, was a scholar, teacher, Holocaust survivor, and a founder of the Nation's first free-standing Holocaust Memorial Center in Oakland County, Michigan, which has educated millions of visitors, nourished a social consciousness wherever, as Rabbi Rosenzveig used to say, the “righteous acts of the few become the standard of the many.”

Rabbi Rosenzveig was an extraordinary American who devoted his life to serving others. I was fortunate to have the opportunity to meet him, and I was taken by his wisdom, vision, sincerity, and deep sense of caring for all people.

I urge my colleagues to support this resolution commemorating Rabbi Rosenzveig. I appreciate Chairman Payne and the staffs on both sides of the aisle for their hard work in bringing forth several measures today.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Speaker, I would like to commend and express my appreciation to the gentleman from Arkansas who has worked very closely in a bipartisan manner on many issues. It is a pleasure to work with him as we continue to move forward the needs of the people, not only of our country, but of the world.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Speaker, I would like to commend and express my appreciation to the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. Payne) that the House suspend the rules and agree to the resolution, H. Res. 283.

The question was taken; and (two-thirds being in the affirmative) the rules were suspended and the resolution was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

RECESS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 12(a) of rule I, the Chair declares the House in recess until approximately 6:30 p.m.
The recess having expired, the House was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore (Mrs. HALVORSON) at 6 o'clock and 30 minutes p.m. and 5-minute vote.

VOTES WILL BE TAKEN IN THE FOLLOWING ORDER:

MOMENT OF SILENCE IN REMEMBRANCE OF MEMBERS OF ARMED FORCES AND THEIR FAMILIES

The Speaker. The Chair now asks that the House observe a moment of silence in remembrance of our brave men and women in uniform, who have given their lives in the service of our Nation in Iraq and Afghanistan and their families, and of all who serve in our Armed Forces and their families.

IN HONOR OF JAY KEMP, FORMER MEMBER OF CONGRESS

The Speaker. Mr. King of New York, Madam Speaker, it is my duty to inform the House of the death of our friend and former colleague Congressman Jack Kemp.

Madam Speaker, Jack Kemp served in this House for 18 years. Subsequent to that he served in the Cabinet of President Bush. And prior to all that, he played for 13 years as a professional quarterback, achieving the status of All Pro on a number of occasions, being the AFL MVP in 1965, and this day holds many lifetime records as a quarterback in the AFL.

But Jack Kemp went beyond being a football player, beyond being a congressman, and beyond being a Cabinet Secretary. To all those who knew him, he was an inspiration. He was a man of tremendous energy and enthusiasm and vibrancy. As a Republican, I can say that the revolution of our party, and...

Ms. BACHMANN. Madam Speaker, Congress has recognized May as National Foster Care Month.

SAFE ENERGY
(Mr. POE of Texas asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)
Today I had the honor to be with my good friend, PETER WELCH of Vermont, and actor Robert Duvall, on this sacred hallowed ground. We were there for several reasons, but the primary reason was to preserve this battlefield. During the Battle of the Wilderness, Virginians had especially high casualties. Of the 3,500 that went into battle, 1,234 were killed.

PETER WELCH of Vermont and myself had the privilege to go and see that location. That same area where they were protecting the crossroads. This was the highest percentage of casualties in Vermont history. Most of those that were killed were from the small community of Woodstock.

On the first day of battle, the Union troops were able to push the Southern troops away. On the second day of battle, a Texas brigade, led by General Longstreet, had arrived at the battle after marching all night, 26 miles, at about 6:30 in the morning.

General Longstreet was excited to see the Texas brigade, and he said the Texans always moved them and, yes, they did, they moved the Union forces back a great distance. The general for the Texas Army said that “the eyes of General Lee were upon you,” and Lee rode with Texas. About 60 percent of those Texans who went into battle that day were killed.

Madam Speaker, all of the southern States participated in this battle. Eighteen of the northern States participated in this battle, and there are stories like that from all States, this sacred ground, where the Battlefield of the Wilderness, took place.

But today we are faced with another battle, Madam Speaker, because the giant corporation Wal-Mart wants to build a Wal-Mart on that sacred ground. You see, during the battle, blood was spilled so much that one soldier said you can’t tell whose blood it was, was, actually right, Madam Speaker. Every one of those troops that were killed that day, that fought that day and bled that day, whether North or South, were all Americans.

And that’s why PETER WELCH and myself and Robert Duvall were there today to get the attention of Wal-Mart to not build on this sacred ground. Yes, they have the legal right to do so, but they should move down the street, down the road a bit and build the Wal-Mart that they want to build.

Because this ground is consecrated by the blood of Americans, and we don’t want Wal-Mart to pour asphalt over the graves that are known only to God himself. So they should be a good corporate neighbor and build down the road.

You know, they need to put respect for history over love for money. They need to put dignity for the dead over lust for profit, because those that try to destroy history will be tried and convicted by history.

Wal-Mart has got more money than anybody. They can put their store anywhere they wish. So we are asking them to be good patriots rather than those who seek the profit motive and go somewhere else.

PETER WELCH and I are good friends. We probably disagree on everything except this one thing, that this land is consecrated by the lives of Americans who stood for those principles and died for that principle.

He said it best today when numerous people were there. He said the land, the Battlefield of the Wilderness, is the cathedral of sacrifice.

I agree that it’s a good corporate neighbor and build the Wal-Mart down the road a bit and build the Wal-Mart that they want to build.

And that’s just the way it is.

RISING FORECLOSURES

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from Ohio (Ms. KAPTR) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. KAPTR. Madam Speaker, as unemployment in community after community rises to double digits, and foreclosures similarly rise, Wall Street is at it again, milking both ends of the foreclosure debacle.

As many of the banks who volunteered to do foreclosure moratoriums, along with Freddie Mac and Fannie Mae, have ended those moratoriums, foreclosures are rising again and expected to continue to rise even with administration programs up and running. Between the first of this year and April 22, in my home county of Lucas, the major county I represent, 442 foreclosed properties have been sold.

Now, would you think that’s good? Who do you think is buying those homes? The very same institutions that made the liars loans and subprime loans in the first place, Deutsche Bank, followed by Citigroup, by Wells Fargo, by U.S. Bank, Fifth Third and JPMorgan Chase, HSBC, you know the names, or their subsidiaries.

So, they foreclose, they buy, then they sell, pulling profit each step of the way, while destroying neighborhood after neighborhood, community after community in their wake.

When are we going to stop letting Wall Street make money coming and going while people lose their homes and our communities are destroyed?

I will place in the RECORD material from the New York Times of this week.

The Obama administration, by last week as 12 Senate Democrats joined 39 Senate Republicans to block a vote on an amendment that would have allowed bankruptcy judges to modify mortgages. Senator Obama campaigned on the provision. And President Obama made its passage part of his antiforeclosure plan. It would have been a very welcome move to get lenders to rework bad loans rather than leaving the modification to a judge.

Now, who do they sell to? That’s interesting. absentee investors who don’t care or don’t even know where we reside. Absentee investors across our country and, in many cases, across the world.

Of the 442 properties sold—get ready for this—93 percent—93 percent—were sold to banks or to absentee investors. I don’t call that community reinvestment. I call that community disemboweling, community disinvestment.

These buyers have no connection to Ohio or our community. They have no tie to our people. They merely seek to make more profit off the anguish of places such as where we reside, through the foreclosure process, as unemploy- ment and mortgages go underwater. They do not have the tools to defend themselves from this predatory pillage.

Realtors from our district are telling us that the same banks purposely are slowing down short sales of properties, pushing off sellers, and leaving properties vacant. Why? To make more money again.

Federal policy should support Main Street families regaining equity and hope. Wall Street is rigging every transaction in their pockets—at the expense of the very taxpayers that supported them when they were crashing, and continue to support them as they stabilize. Business as usual for Wall Street—never doing for others, but profiting at everyone else’s expense.

Foreclosures weaken communities. Absentee investors do the same. We see home prices fall, which leads to more foreclosures as communities weaken and mortgages go underwater. People in communities are drowning across this country. To jump in and save them will require creative, big picture-thinking that goes beyond the gains of these big banks or the silos of governmental programs and goes beyond the benefit of one institution over another.

We must let the FDIC and SEC deal with troubled banks and their ledgers and our financial system as they are designed to operate. Any Federal agencies that deals with mortgages and foreclosures and jobs must join forces in designing funding mechanisms to radically transform the most hard-hit communities across our country. I would start with those that are now at double-digit in unemployment and foreclosures. Saving them will save more than just those communities. It will begin to breathe life back into our Nation’s economy.

It’s time Main Street was put ahead of Wall Street. And it’s time that this Congress paid attention to what is happening coast-to-coast.

I will place in the RECORD material from the New York Times of this week.

The Obama administration, by last week as 12 Senate Democrats joined 39 Senate Republicans to block a vote on an amendment that would have allowed bankruptcy judges to modify mortgages. Senator Obama campaigned on the provision. And President Obama made its passage part of his antiforeclosure plan. It would have been a very welcome move to get lenders to rework bad loans rather than leaving the modification to a judge.
But when the time came to stand up to the banking lobbies and cajole yes votes from recalcitrant senators—the White House didn’t. When the measure failed, there wasn’t even a statement of regret.

Mr. Obama’s plan to keep struggling Americans in their homes now relies on lenders to voluntarily rework bad loans. The plan provides incentives, including the payment to servicers who successfully modify loans and, in some cases, payments to mortgage investors who agree to modifications. Whether that will be enough remains to be seen.

The administration estimates that its plan will prevent three million to four million foreclosures, but it will take several months before the data is available to evaluate. In the past, however, voluntary modifications have failed to slow the rise in foreclosures. The number of foreclosure filings in March was very high, with estimates between 290,000 and 341,000.

Even if lenders do agree to modify loans, many Americans will still be in trouble. That’s because nearly 14 million homeowners are “under water”—they owe more on their mortgages than their homes are worth.

In a bankruptcy, such homeowners would likely seek a principal reduced, lowering their payments and helping them to re-build equity. In a typical voluntary loan modification, however, the monthly payment is reduced on a percentage of the principal that puts under-water borrowers at high risk of default, because there is no equity to fall back on if a financial setback leaves them unable to make mortgage payments.

The negative feedback loop—foreclosures beget falling home prices, which beget foreclosures, further weakening the banking system—will continue to be a problem. Bankruptcy reform that would prevent such a feedback loop from breaking the economy would be a lot harder.

In fact, last week we lost what one can say was a final hope for some Americans. With their mortgage payments completely underwater, credit card bills unpaid, home heating or cooling bills unpaid, healthcare bills unpaid and less food on the table . . . they turn to bankruptcy. This is the last chance and last hope for people who have tried everything else humanly possible to crawl out from under their debt. The decision of their hearts and souls distressed, the only way is bankruptcy.

Currently, bankruptcy does not include dealing with one’s primary residence. The House passed bill H.R. 1106 included “cramdown” provisions. Not ideal. Not what anyone wants to do, but at least it was progress and a step towards a more lenient bankruptcy process.

No such luck . . . the amendment in the Senate to achieve such a path was defeated.

WORLD PRESS FREEDOM DAY

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentle- man from California (Mr. Schiff) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. SCHIFF. Madam Speaker, Sunday, May 3, was World Press Freedom Day. Three years ago, in conjunction with World Press Freedom Day, Congressmen Mike Pence, Senator Chris Dodd, Senator Dick Lugar, and I established the Congressional Caucus for Freedom of the Press.

Since then, this bipartisan, bicameral committee has sought to highlight the importance of free expression around the world. The caucus is a forum where Members of Congress can come together to combat and condemn media censorship and the persecution of journalists worldwide. Our caucus works to send a strong message that Congress will defend democratic values and human rights wherever they are threatened.

We have hosted panel discussions with press freedom experts, journalists, and victims of press freedom crimes; written to leaders of countries which jail journalists, impose censorship, and allow harassment, attacks, and threats to occur with impunity. We have spoken out here on the House floor and in the media to call for reforms in countries that seek to censor freedom of speech and expression.

Just recently, Representative Pence and I introduced the Daniel Pearl Free- dom of the Press Act of 2001. The Daniel Pearl Freedom of the Press Act is named in honor of former Wall Street Journal reporter Daniel Pearl, who was kidnapped and murdered by terrorists in Pakistan just 4 months after the September 11 attacks.

This legislation will establish annual State Department reports on the status of press freedom in every country in the world and create a grant program aimed at broadening and strengthening the independence of journalists around the world.

Our government must promote free- dom of the press by putting on center stage those countries in which journalists are killed, imprisoned, kidnapped, threatened, censored—and this will do just that.

A free and independent media provides the nourishment for democracies to thrive and grow. Citizens rely upon credible, accurate information from the media to make informed decisions and hold their leaders accountable. Information is power, which is precisely why many governments attempt to control the press to suppress opposition and preempt dissent.

Far too often, the reporters and editors who demand reform, accountability, and transparency find themselves at risk. The censorship, intimidation, imprisonment, and murder of these journalists are not only crimes against these individuals, but they also impact democracy’s right of access to their ideas and information.

In 2008, the Committee to Protect Journalists reported that 41 journalists were killed in connection with their work. Another 125 were falsely imprisoned for their reporting. Unfortunately, 2009 is shaping up to be a similarly dangerous year, having already seen 11 journalists murdered.

For Americans, this should spur us to consider the role that press freedom plays in our society and to ponder what our Nation would be like if this cornerstone of our liberty were to be curtailed. Many Americans take the concept of a free press for granted and fail to realize that an uncensored press is vital to America’s national security and to our democracy here at home.

But much of the world’s population is not as fortunate as we are when it comes to access to independent news. Recent national news accounts have highlighted American journalists being detained on trumped-up charges in Iran and North Korea.

However, there are dozens of cases like these across the globe that don’t get attention. That is why each year, as co-Chairs of the caucus, we host a Special Order hour to highlight countries whose abuses of press freedom are particularly egregious.

In 2007, we focused on Russia, profiling the 18 journalists murdered in Russia during the administration of Vladimir Putin. Last year, we focused on China and its incarceration of more journalists than any other country.

This week, the caucus is a focus on growing press freedom abuses in Sri Lanka. Threats, attacks, imprisonment, and murders of journalists are becoming all too common in Sri Lanka.

This week is a particularly note- worthy week for press freedom in Sri Lanka. J.S. Tissainayagam, a contrib- utor and editor for a number of print and online publications, will stand trial on Wednesday, and he faces a possible 20-year sentence if he is convicted. He is being prosecuted for allegedly inciting communal disharmony related to articles that he wrote as early as 2006.

In March of 2008, J.S. was arrested under emergency regulations and held without habeas corpus for more than 5 months before being charged. His trial is set to resume on May 6, but it is our hope the Sri Lankan government will drop these baseless charges and release J.S. before the trial resumes.

So today, Madam Speaker, we recog- nize World Press Freedom Day and call on nations like Sri Lanka to stop the persecution of innocent journalists. We urge the Sri Lankan government to release Mr. Tissainayagam and to provide a peaceful environment for journalists to work in. I hope these efforts will bring attention to the growing press freedom abuses in Sri Lanka.

But I also hope the Sri Lankan government will lend an ear to the concerns of the journalists and human rights advocates in this country. We must remain vigilant and fight back against efforts to silence our press, especially because the press is so critical to our national security.

BIG THREE AUTOMAKERS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 6, 2009, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Carter) is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the minority leader.

Mr. Carter. I think most people know I spent a little time in the courts of this country. I am going to start off this conversation by saying that I'm not a bankruptcy judge, nor a bankruptcy litigant. And, in fact, I do not claim any expertise whatsoever in the area of bankruptcy. But I have some serious concerns that bother me about some things that are going on, and I would hope at least that the American people have these same concerns, because I really believe that the third branch of our government, the Judiciary, is there for recourse for all citizens, big and small. I think they are the fallback position, where politics should not interfere, but due process should prevail.

I believe that the protection of the minority interests of whatever we may be doing, it is best protected in the courts of our country. I look at what is going on tonight and have been trying to figure out—and, I'm going to tell you, you're going to hear me ask a lot of questions tonight that I would like someone to give answers to, because I don't understand where things are going. But I'm looking at what is going on with the automobile industry in this country.

You know, the big three automakers in this country have been symbols of corporate greatness for my entire lifetime. We all can have a debate about who made the best car, what is the best car ever made, but most Americans would argue for some form of a GM car or Ford or a Chrysler as the best car they ever drove. Our grandfathers and our fathers have owned these cars, and they have worked with these companies, and they have been respected and honored across this Nation.

Now, these companies are in trouble. At least two of them seem to be in a lot of trouble—Chrysler and General Motors. At least it has been indicated through the media that Chrysler is going to be seeking recourse in the bankruptcy court.

The reason I say it has been indicated is because, in the normal course of things, what you normally see is that the board of directors, through its chief executive officer, will have some vote or will discuss the economic situation of the company and will come up with the fact that it's just not going to be viable. That at least they need the reorganization and the cancellation of some of their debts to be able to maintain order within the company and be a viable company.

But, in the case of Chrysler, the announcement was made by President Barack Obama to the media in a speech that he made announcing Chrysler would go into bankruptcy—at least it's my personal opinion that I don't believe at that time Mr. Obama held any position in the corporate structure of Chrysler to believe, other than he is the President of the United States and he may have more knowledge than some of the rest of us, but it would be normal for Chrysler to make that announcement.

But then it would be normal for the board of directors of Chrysler to fire the executives of their company if they are not doing a good job, and it would be normal for the board of directors of General Motors to do the hiring and firing of executives that they have hired to manage their company. March 29 of this year, President Obama forced the CEO of General Motors, Rick Wagoner, to resign from his post. As far as anyone can tell, this marks the first time in American history that a United States President has directly intervened in the daily running of an American business.

So we should take this announcement. The CEO, Mr. Wagoner, is fired by the President. Then, the President announces—not the CEO of Chrysler, but the President—announces the bankruptcy of Chrysler.

This bankruptcy, under normal circumstances, would go before a bankruptcy judge. And we have a set of laws that are established in this country— they are called creditors' rights. And we have creditors that stand in different positions when it comes to being repaid on debts, depending on whether they are secured or unsecured creditors, and we have a battery of laws that make that determination, and the bankruptcy court, doing a way more complicated analysis than I just did, comes up with who gets paid what and when and where and how and what happens; what assets are sold, all or part, and these are laws that are on the books that pretty well anybody can go see, and they are from time-to-time changed by the legislative body.

But we understand now from what the newspapers tell us that the Obama administration has announced the deal they expect to be rubber-stamped by the bankruptcy court. That deal is, according to the papers, a 55 percent ownership of Chrysler will be owned by the UAW, United Auto Workers. So the laborers of that company will be owning 55 percent of Chrysler. The rest of Chrysler will be owned by Fiat, a foreign company out of Italy, and other places, I am sure. Then, 8 percent of Chrysler will be owned by the United States Government, and 2 percent of Chrysler will be owned by the Canadian Government.

I suppose, if we look at who is normally involved in corporate structure, you would have stockholders and preferred stockholders that are probably in there someplace; and, it looks like, to me, that they are divested of any interest in this trade.

Now, let me say that this should be something that the court makes a decision based upon creditors law, but it seems to be this is going into the hands of the court, with an announcement by the White House saying: This is a settlement these people have agreed to, and you will do it this way.

Mr. Inglis, who is looking out for the stockholder? I don't own any Chrysler stock, but if I owned a share of Chrysler stock, I would think that at one point in time I owned a portion of the Chrysler Corporation, that I was one of the owners of that business. Because we can cut through all the mystique of a corporate structure, the mystique that many call the bad guys, the big corporations. But big corporations are nothing more than a gathering of people who are called shareholders who invest their hard-earned money into a company, expecting that company to make profits and, in turn, return that value to them by an increase in stock price and possibly a dividend. It is Americans and others investing in America. That is what a corporation is all about.

Now, whether it is a small corporation that is in Round Rock, Texas, where I come from, that may have 20 shareholders, or whether it is a giant corporation like the Chrysler Corporation that probably has, who knows, a million shareholders, those people have invested their money and they have some interest in that business, and they have a right to expect that the board of directors, or the President, are going to protect their interest, that they are divested of any interest in there someplace; and, it looks like, to me, that they are divested of any interest in this trade.

You can hear some criticize and say that the Federal Government is taking over the automobile industry. Of course, I am sure that they would argue: Well, certainly not in the case of Chrysler, because we are not going to own but 8 percent of Chrysler. But their agent, the group that donates 99 percent, by the last report, of their political donations to the Democratic Party, the UAW, owns a controlling interest, 55 percent.

There seems to be an assumption that when this is announced by the White House, it is the deal, even though it seems that some of these preferred creditors have actually stood up a little bit and said, wait a minute, we didn’t make this deal. But it seems that these people are then, by the White House, called not cooperative or other things.

In fact, it was reported in the newspapers that they twisted the arms of these preferred creditors to a point where they felt like they were being threatened and not being able to look out for the interest of their people. And, of course, the finger was pointed to them as the big rich preferred creditors, the big rich bondholders, when, in reality, these were the companies that were stepping up and saying: We are not going to be threatened by the administration. We are going to stand firm. Because it is not just the couple of great big rich folks that have lots of people, including other people’s pension funds, that are invested in their hedge funds and their groups that own this interest.

According to Thomas Lauria, Global Practice Head of the Financial Restructuring & Insolvency Group at White & Case, said that Perella Weinberg Partners was directly threatened by the White House and, in essence, compelled to withdraw its opposition to the Obama Chrysler restructurings. They felt like the threat that the full force of the White House press corps would destroy its reputation if it continued to fight.

That statement should concern us all. The White House press corps is supposed to be a press corps that is gathering news and making inquiries, not becoming an arm of the White House or the White House’s restructing force that they are putting together to restructure this deal for Chrysler. It should concern each and every American that the White House is threatening the use of those people who sit in those press conferences supposedly asking the tough questions of the President, they are threatening that they can use them to harm these individual bondholders, these bondholder companies. I think there is something tragically wrong with that.

One of the questions I ask is where are these courts in this situation. I mean, the stockholders are being left with their interests basically dissolved in the Chrysler Corporation. The bondholders are being threatened by the press corps of the White House to the detriment of the bondholders who possibly 25 cents or less on the dollar as part of the deal, when there are creditors’ rights laws that should be looked to by the bankruptcy court. And if you are not getting good recompense in the bankruptcy court, there are other courts you can go to.

I am very disappointed that there seems to be some weakness that the courts are not standing up for what could be, and in my estimation would be, a large body of people whose defined rights are being forced away from them by the heavy hand of the White House. And the White House heavy hand is a dangerous place to be.

I wish that President Harry Truman seized the Nation’s steel mills during the Korean war in order to avoid a shutdown during a strike. He could have sought an injunction barring the strike under the Taft-Hartley law, but instead chose to base his order on his powers as Commander in Chief. He specifically notified Congress of the right to reverse or endorse his action, but Congress chose not to act. The Supreme Court overturned Truman’s Executive order.

The legal questions were: Has the Congress granted the President the power to take possession of the property? The answer was “no.” Does the Constitution grant the President the power to take possession of the property? The answer was “no.” Is Truman’s Executive order in compliance with the Constitution? And the answer was “no.”

The opinion written by Justice Black said: All powers of the Presidency are contained in the Constitution or in subsequent acts of Congress granting specific powers to the Executive. The contention that the aggregate power of the Constitution and acts of Congress create new minimum powers was rejected by the Court. Under the Taft-Hartley Act of 1947, Congress has addressed the precise issue of labor strikes and national security, and has chosen not to grant the President the right to break a strike.

Likewise, nowhere in the Constitution is the Executive granted the right to seize power. An evaluation says Youngstown was instrumental in reaffirming that the President cannot legislate, even if he has the executive legislation passed by the Congress.

Black wrote: The Constitution limits his function in the lawmaking process to recommending of laws he thinks wise and the vetoing of laws he thinks bad. The ruling limits the nature of the Executive order to carrying out the limitation of laws already established by Congress.

Now, I guess the question that we would have in what is going on in the Chrysler case is to the extent general Motors case, which we will get to in a little while: Has Congress granted the President the power to take control of the negotiations of a private corporation and attempt to make a settlement to go before the bankruptcy court? I would certainly argue that the Congress has not given the President that power, nor do I think that the Constitution grants President Obama the power to take control of the negotiations to submit it to a bankruptcy court and to threaten those who choose not to enter into these negotiations with abuse by the White House press corps that would harm their business.

I don’t think the Constitution in any way, form, or fashion grants that power to the President of the United States. And I think what is going on with the White House and its heavy-handed manipulation of the duties and responsibilities of the bankruptcy courts is not a new sort of court by the Constitution of the United States.

I think Americans ought to be looking at this, and Americans ought to be concerned about this. These are private businesses owned by private people who borrowed money from other groups of people who either are shareholders or lenders in some form or fashion whose rights are defined by law. And for the President of the United States and the White House to intervene to force a settlement to be submitted to the court and then ask the court to basically rubber-stamp that settlement without looking to the protection of these other rights of the other individuals that are involved, these people who have been treated unfairly, these people who have been threatened and not being able to look out for the people. And, of course, the finger was pointed to them as the big rich preferred creditors, the big rich bondholders, when, in reality, these were the companies that were stepping up and saying: We are not going to be threatened by the administration. We are going to stand firm. Because it is not just the couple of great big rich folks that have lots of people, including other people’s pension funds, that are invested in their hedge funds and their groups that own this interest.

In 2008, according to reporting that has been done, according to Open Secrets, the UAW gave 99 percent of its political contributions to the Democrats in the 2008 cycle. If you give 99 percent, then you own 55 percent of the company. Is that the way it is supposed to be? We shouldn’t have someone who work there in the form of the ownership by their union? And why isn’t it quid pro quo, when you look at what that union had done?

I have real concerns because I start from the premise that I believe that that third branch of government that I served in for 20 years is there for the protection of all Americans. That is what our court system is about. And if we were going to politicize—and as we look now to an appointment of a new Supreme Court Justice—if we are going to so politicize our court system as to take away the ability for the weaker party to have a voice through politics, then there is something wrong.

I would challenge my colleagues to start thinking about this: At what point in time does the...
President have to follow the Constitution, or at least does the Congress have to grant him powers before he can do these things?

That is just Chrysler. Now, the GM deal, President Obama hasn’t announced, and they are already going to bankruptcy court. But they are trying to work out a settlement.

Oh, going back to the Chrysler deal, doesn’t it bother anyone that the deal we are making is taking control away from the American stockholders and bondholders, and from the board of directors of Chrysler and giving ownership to the labor union? I don’t see any indication that the labor union is making the assumption of any of these debts or contributing any money to this project. They are just being rewarded for being a labor union. Now where is the logic in that? And then what are they going to do? Thirty-five percent of that is going to be Fiat. I have nothing against Fiat. I actually owned one at one time. So let me pull out my sticker cards on the table. It was a neat little yellow convertible, and my wife told me I couldn’t keep it, but I owned one for a while, and it was fun and a good car.

But now we are basically turning Chrysler over to a foreign company. I don’t have anything against foreign companies. We are in an international world. But let’s get a reality check here. The President of the United States is putting together a deal to turn Chrysler over to a foreign company in a foreign country. And you can bet your boots that one of these days the word “Chrysler” won’t be in our vocabulary anymore. I hope and I wish Fiat all the best, but realize that it will be the “Fiat Company of North America,” or at least logic would seem to make one think so.

All of this is to make sure that we meet a pledge that the President of the United States made to the UAW that he would protect their benefits and pensions. The government didn’t protect the benefits and pensions of the Delta pilots when Delta went bankrupt. So why, all of a sudden, is the government going into ownership of this company and taking direct direction of this company to make sure that it benefits this labor union rather than another labor union? It is a question that we ought to be asking. It is a question some court ought to be looking into, in my opinion.

Before I go any further, I do want to go ahead and lay the supposed GM deal that the White House is telling us looks like this is what they are recommending, and I read this one on the front page of The Wall Street Journal. Fifty percent of General Motors will be owned by the United States Government; 39 percent of General Motors will be owned, again, by the UAW; 10 percent of the company would be owned by the bondholders, at least the bondholders, and General Motors are left with 10 percent ownership. And the stockholders are going to do all right, too. They are going to go from at least more than 1 percent, they are going to go from some percentage of GM down to 1 percent. So if you’re the proud owner of GM stock, then all of the stock that is out there is going to be worth 1 percent of General Motors.

Fifty percent of General Motors will be owned by the labor union again, by the UAW, 10 percent by the bondholders, 39 percent of General Motors will be owned by the UAW, 10 percent by the bondholders, 39 percent of General Motors will be owned, again, by the UAW; 10 percent by the bondholders, and General Motors are left with 10 percent ownership. And the stockholders are going to do all right, too. They are going to go from at least more than 1 percent, they are going to go from some percentage of GM down to 1 percent. So if you’re the proud owner of GM stock, then all of the stock that is out there is going to be worth 1 percent of General Motors.

So those $700 billion went forward, the $787 billion on the stimulus plan and the $410 billion on the omnibus spending bill, 1,222 pages stacked up that high. They arrived at 11 o’clock at night and were brought to the floor the next morning, demanded to read, 1,222 pages, or have staff read all that, and figure out what was in it, and then figure out what was not in it and draw a good judgment on all of this. This was pushed through, shoehorned through, rammed through quickly for political reasons, I believe, Madam Speaker.

The AIG loophole was actually written into the bill. We don’t quite know yet whether it was the chairman of the Senate Finance Committee or whether it was the White House that actually had the most influence in that. We know there was communications going back and forth between the White House and the Chair of the Finance Committee and the Senate, and they talked in language that was a loophole that allowed for major, major bonuses to be paid. First it was $156 million. Then it went up to $300 million. Then it got up to about $240 million that went into bonuses for people who had led a company into disastrous ruin.

So now we are watching some of the spin-offs. This is some of the effort, some of the nationalization that goes on. Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac were nationalized. These were billions of dollars of companies, that should have been capitalized and regulated. We tried to do that on the floor of the House of Representatives, Madam Speaker, and we were blocked at every turn by some effort on the part of Republicans and a big effort on the part of Democrats. They argued, especially right now the chairman of the Financial Services Committee came to this floor and argued, Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac are in trouble. They don’t need to be capitalized. They don’t need to be regulated. I don’t see any problem there. I’m going to oppose any efforts. The gentleman who is now the Chair undersells his persuasive ability. But many of us tried during that period of time.

This thing unfolded with Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac being nationalized, AIG effectively being nationalized and spinning off the headquarters in Japan for $1 billion or so. I heard the gentleman from Texas, the judge, talk about Chrysler, well, formerly Daimler Chrysler, now Chrysler, and this push merger that goes on with Chrysler and Fiat—I never owned a Fiat. I want to make that clear to the gentleman from Texas. But I probably would have enjoyed it if I had had one—and the de facto nationalization of General Motors Company.

Now, that should alarm Americans. It alarms me that there was a poll that went out about 1 month ago that found that only 53 percent of Americans said they believe in capitalism. Now I didn’t see the exact text of the question, I think they have to believe in free enterprise in a bigger number. They might think capitalism is something not quite as clean and pure as free enterprise, but we have got to believe in our market system.

That is why I believe that capitalism is the system that we have in the United States of America is the engine that defeated the Soviet Union in the Cold War. For 45 years, we fought a Cold War, and we were playing chess and Monopoly on the same board. And the question was, will the Soviet Union checkmate the United States militarily with their ICBM missile endeavor before we bankrupt them economically? On that board, chess and Monopoly on the same board, this American free enterprise system defeated the Soviet Union and won the Cold War without technically firing a shot because our economy has been, and remains, the strongest in the world, the most robust in the world, the most resilient in the world and the most adaptable in the world because it rewards entrepreneurs better than any other in the world and because we have created a favorable tax arrangement and a favorable regulatory arrangement compared to, let's just say, European nations.

But our President, Madam Speaker, has drawn a different message. He has drawn a different message from the New Deal in the 1930s. The message that he has drawn is that the fallen New Deal actually would have succeeded if FDR had not lost his nerve and spent a lot more money. And this President has not lost his nerve. He has spent a lot more money. He has spent so much money that I look for the victory compared to, let's just say, European nations.

And even go out and create the market, stockholders 1 percent. And sometimes even go out and create the market, which Henry Ford did. Henry Ford actually did create the market for his Model T. And sometimes even go out and create the market, which Henry Ford did. Henry Ford actually did create the market for his Model T. And sometimes even go out and create the market, which Henry Ford did. Henry Ford actually did create the market for his Model T.
you see the unions are stepping in in ownership, I have to take you back to a Web site that everybody in America should visit, and it is the Democratic Socialists of America, DSA.org. And on that Web site, you can read some things.

One says, "We are not communists." Okay. Well, I need to understand that distinction. So I read that carefully. It says we are not communists because communists believe in the nationalization of the stock market, and they believe that the Federal Government should own all of the properties and all of the companies and tell everybody what to do and what to make and what they are going to make. And socialists are not really like that. They recognize there is merit to have little mom-and-pop shops running around making donuts, probably not selling gas anymore, but running the barber shop and the flower boutique. So they say, we don’t want to nationalize everything; we just think that the major corporations should be run for, get this, "the benefit of the people, not by them."

What does that tell you? Running major corporations for the benefit of, which is it, the unions or the customers? Because the people in the world is not the shareholders and the bondholders. But it is for the unions, the labor unions, the employees, one might say, or the customers.

And so we now have national socialism in America. The nationalization, socialization of these major companies, 50 percent of General Motors to the Federal Government, deemed by the President, 39 percent to the UAW, 10 percent to the bondholders, 1 percent to the stockholders. And watching this happen is a sad, sad tragedy that is not bringing the alarm in this country that I think it ought to bring.

I am greatly disturbed by what I see, and these are not speculations; these are the facts. These are after-the-fact facts that are there. History can’t write it any other way unless somehow the facts present themselves. Here is how I draw this thing. And I tell you, I look into the motives. And I tell you, I look into the motives. And I tell you, I look into the motives. And I tell you, I look into the motives.

But this rule, 12 of 14 rule works out to be like this: If an investor will partner with the President in picking up this toxic debt on these mortgage-backed securities, a regular investor, like Judge CARTER, for example, could lay $1 down on the table and then the Federal Government will match it with one of your tax dollars. So there are $2 on the table. And then there are loan guarantees that are guaranteed for the balance. And this is a $14 package, $12 worth of loan guarantees, guaranteed by President Obama, your tax dollars. So there is $12 worth of skin on the table from the taxpayers that are loan guarantees. There is another dollar on the guarantee for that, that is, matching the $1 that Judge CARTER introduced for his investment. The individual has a 7 percent investment, and the taxpayers will have a 93 percent investment. And so how do you think you might split some kind of an investment like that?

I would think, okay, I will give you the benefits of the profits for your 7 percent of the investment. But President Obama says no, no, no. I want you to have half of the profit. But you can take half the profit for your 7 percent investment, and the Federal Government, the taxpayers, will take 93 percent of the risk and even that wasn’t good enough. Then the President says, why would we want to tax the people who are our partners? So now they don’t want to tax 50 percent of the profit that you get for 7 percent of your investment, they want to waive the tax on that.

Now, if you’re in desperate condition and we needed to figure out something to do with these toxic debts and mortgage-backed securities, maybe that would be an act of desperation where you put together a package like that, and you can say, I am partnering with the private sector. This really isn’t the nationalization of the mortgage industry; I really didn’t follow along on what we did to Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac. No, this is a free enterprise end game.

Well, it doesn’t work out this way. Some of us, and I introduced legislation to do this, would suspend the capital gains tax on those investments that pick up the toxic debt. But we couldn’t suspend those. That idea was off the table in a heartbeat. The chairmen of the Financial Services Committee swept those things off the table immediately. So we couldn’t give a tax break to willing investors, but we couldn’t give a break if you partner with the Federal Government. We can’t suspend income tax on the profits made by most who pick up mortgage-backed securities because that would be what, free enterprise capitalism that had a favorable tax situation that could come in and rescue this situation with willing investors.

That confirms for me that this President is determined to nationalize, nationalize, nationalize until we become a Socialists of America Web site, dsa.org, where it says we just want to nationalize the big companies and run them for the benefit of the unions and the benefit of perhaps the customers, but not for the benefit of the shareholders.

That is the scenario today. I thank the gentleman for yielding, and appreciate him leading this Special Order.

Mr. CARTER. I thank the gentleman. I want to point out a couple of things so we don’t get off into this magic world that has been created by our Democrat friends and the media, that stockholders are some sort of exotic, wealthy billionaires that own all of these companies.

The teachers retirement system of Texas probably owns General Motors stock. I don’t know, I haven’t looked into it. But back when General Motors was worth $70 a share, somebody was proud to be an American, I am sure that pension funds for our teachers around this country invested. So those people would be looking at a 2-cent value or a 3-cent value or a nickel value for stock that they paid $60 or $70 a share for. So do we have this magic myth that is created by those who would like to socialize this country that we are talking about fat cats. We are not talking about fat cats. We are talking about the ladies down at the Catholic church that got together and decided they would have an investment club. And they all put a little bit of their egg and butter money, as my grandmother used to say, in a little pot and said, now let’s sit around and study this stock page in the newspaper and let’s buy ourselves some stock.

A lot of them made a whole lot of money and lost a whole lot of money during the dot-com boom of the 1990s. But those were not fat cat investors. Those were little old ladies at the Catholic church, okay, or at the Methodist church or at the Baptist church or the bridge club or whatever. They are your neighbors. They are the people who live next door to you. They are the people your children go to school with, their parents; and even the kids’ college funds are invested in things like General Motors and Chrysler.

So when we nationalize these industries, when we take it out of the hands of the people who own it, which is the stockholders, and even the kids’ college funds are invested in things like General Motors and Chrysler. So when we nationalize these industries, when we take it out of the hands of the people who own it, which is the stockholders, and even the kids’ college funds are invested in things like General Motors and Chrysler. the Chrysler deals. He said, “One of my clients was directly threatened by the White House and in essence compelled to withdraw his opposition to the deal under threat that the full force of the White House press corps would destroy his reputation and continue to fight. That was Mr. Perella Weinberg.” Ms. Lauria, the head of the bankruptcy department for the top New York City law firm of White & Case, told a WJR 760 radio host.

He went on to say down here, “Some of the critics charged that the administration used leverage to provide TARP funds to force banks to comply with this deal. In other words, investors like JPMorgan Chase, who also were bondholders in this Chrysler deal—the old TARP fund deal that we’ve been talking about for now for months—was all of a sudden the twist to make them get in line. And what happened was this group that Mr. Perella Weinberg was involved in, they didn’t take any TARP funds, they didn’t have the twist. And they stood up. And what did they do? They threatened them with the White House press corps. I’m sorry, when I was a kid, this doesn’t sound like the America that we grew up with. This sounds like the people we used to fight. This sounds like Joe Stalin and some of those people that threatened their way to power.

I am telling you, we ought to be worried about this. And I am deeply worried—albeit I am happy to see that this New York law firm is involved. I would hope that good litigants—because I believe in the justice system—would use the justice system to protect the rights of these creditors. I would hope they would do that.

I would hope that we would realize that neither this Congress nor the Constitution of the United States has given the White House or the President of the United States the kind of power and authority that he is executing and muscling on these two car companies. And then we find out that we’ve got some folks that—they have already said that they would take common stock in the banks, so they want to be stockholders when it comes to the banks. They want to vote that stock and control those banks. They want to take major interest in our large banks. That is another nationalization of an industry.

And so some of the banks said, you know what? We see the handwriting on the wall. We see that freight train coming down the track right at us. Here’s your money back. We don’t want your TARP money, take it back. And they are refusing to take the money back and threatening to charge massive penalties if the banks return the money that the American taxpayers provided to bail out banks in this TARP program. If they don’t need the money and they want to give it back, what is the world going to do? Except that no longer control the bank when they give the money back. You no longer can control the deals that are made with Chrysler by twisting the arms of the banks. You no longer can control American industry. And that is the kind of thing that all of these trillions of dollars that we’re spending, we, as Americans, should be deathly afraid of, that there are people who would control the future of this country that we give them out of our pocket and we permit them to borrow in our name that we are going to have to pay back.

I remember what I told my children as soon as they could understand English that American government, nor any other government, never made a dime; they took it from you.

Mr. KING of Iowa. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. CARTER. I yield.

Mr. KING of Iowa. I thank the gentleman from Texas.

It just brings to me a number that was reported in the aggregate, the union contributions, political contributions for the last election cycle, 45 billion dollars. And now we see a President and a Speaker of the House, and others, who have decided that they are going to make sure that there are shares in the hands of the workers. Without transfer ability? Without anything? Just simply—apparently they are good workers, all right. They think they are good campaign workers, that’s what I hear.

This question now troubles me, as I listened to the gentleman discuss this, with the teachers’ salary, Teachers Union salary, and perhaps as invested in General Motors and Chrysler. And a big part of that portfolio perhaps is spiraling downward—has spiraled downward. Now, if you take the position that the President has, “I will protect your benefits,” and the position that the Speaker is taking, “I am not going to let the automakers get bargaining leverage over the unions,” and if that turns it into, Here are some stock shares, and perhaps a control interest in the company—or at least to break even, half the interest—and broker it. If they can get together with the stockholders that have 51 percent, if that can be the case, this is a Federal Government bailout of a situation where they are setting up jobs for people, not jobs for production for profit. But if that happens—and it has happened—and the taxpayers are there, what happens if the retirement funds for the same people buy that stock at the end as the value of the stock shares for General Motors and Chrysler? How do you go in and nationalize a retirement fund for a union? I think you don’t, except to put the capital in there and just say we are going to guarantee it, just like we still will with Social Security or any other entitlement.

By great, huge gulps, this government is swallowing up the private interests, large corporations swallowing up one after another after another and nationalizing, taking on obligations in the process that are implicit, that go down the line. If you remember Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac, they didn’t have a guarantee from the Federal Government. They just had the implicit full faith and credit of the Federal Government. And we came through, $100 billion here, $100 billion there, $5.5 trillion in contingent liabilities. This can happen with these responsibilities, that the American taxpayer get nationalized, pretty soon everything is government except the barber and the shopkeeper and the little ones. And it is right off the Web page, dsa.org.

Mr. CARTER. And then we have national socialism, which is something we should fear.

Mr. KING of Iowa. We have national socialism.

Mr. CARTER. Something that we have fought against a lot of time. I think we are about to wrap this up. I want to thank my friend for coming in here tonight. I want to thank the Speaker for her patience. We are raising questions that we think everybody and Members of this House should be raising. We should be asking on the floor of this House and in committee and around this town. We didn’t sign on to get on the slippery slope to socialism, and it is time for us all to stand up and say so.

CONGRESSIONAL BLACK CAUCUS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker’s announced policy of January 6, 2009, the gentlewoman from the Virgin Islands (Mrs. CHRISTENSEN) is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the majority leader.

Mrs. CHRISTENSEN. Madam Speaker, it is my honor to be here to host this hour on behalf of the Congressional Black Caucus. And we want to talk about health care this evening.

Before the votes, I attended a District of Columbia Black AIDS Leadership Mobilization Summit; it was a town meeting held at the Kaiser Family Foundation, the Congressional Black Caucus Foundation, the AIDS Institute, the Kaiser Foundation, NAACP, National Urban League, the WYCA, Southern Christian Leadership Conference, the National Council of Negro Women, Inc. Helping Us, The Women’s Collective, Balm in Gilead, the National Black Leadership Commission on AIDS,Phi Beta Sigma, the National Medical Association, and all of the associations that came together to address the epidemic in the District of Columbia and around the country.

On March 16 of this year, the D.C. AIDS Office released its latest HIV surveillance report. And what it showed was that the HIV rate in the Nation’s capital is the highest in the country, and that an estimated 3 percent of the population is affected with AIDS. One percent would make it an epidemic, so it is of epidemic proportions here in the District.

The D.C. rate of infection is higher than 28 African countries. The infection rate puts Washington, D.C. on a par with Uganda. So this is an issue
Chairman BENNIE THOMPSON continues to address an issue that many of us on the Committee on Homeland Security have raised many times—and I am sure Chairman BERNHARDTHOMPSON continues to work to address—and that is the deficient public health system in this country, especially in rural communities, in poor communities, and communities of color. I raised the issue at the HINO hearing in the Health Subcommittee on Energy and Commerce last week. I just want to share a few quotes from the article.

Nicholas Kristof says, “The flu crisis should be a wake-up call, a reminder that one of our vulnerabilities to the possible pandemic is our deep dependence on a public medical system.” And he quotes from Deborah Burger, the co-president of the California Nurses Association, the National Nurses Organizing Committee, who says, “From SARS to avian flu to the current outbreak of swine influenza, it has become increasingly clear that we are risking a major catastrophe unless we act to restore the safety net.”

Nicholas Kristof continues, “Think of the 47 million Americans who lack insurance. They are less likely to receive flu vaccines”—which might or might not help,” he says—“less likely to receive prompt care when they get sick, and less able financially to stay home from work if ill, thus, they are more likely to both die and spread the virus inadvertently.”

He also goes on to say—which is something that we have brought to the attention of the Department of Health and Human Services and the Department of Homeland Security—“hospitals lack spare beds, ventilators, and staff to cope with an epidemic. One study found that a flu epidemic would mean that 10 million Americans would need to be hospitalized compared with a total of nearly 1 million beds in America, about two-thirds of them occupied.”

“Last year, Chairman Waxman ordered a review of surge capacity,” reports Mr. Kristof, “in hospitals available for a potential attack. What was the surge capacity? He found that more than half of the emergency rooms studied were already operating above capacity.”

“The last quote that I want to bring to your attention from this op-ed is a quote that he uses from Dr. Redlener, the director of the National Center for Disaster Preparedness at Columbia University’s Mailman School of Public Health. Dr. Redlener says, and I agree, ‘If a severe pandemic materializes, all of society would pay a heavy price for decades of failing to create a rational system of health care that works for us all.’”

A few years ago, we had a Dr. Stephen Wolf from Virginia Commonwealth University come and talk to us about a report that he did on health care disparities. And so it is there are other epidemics that exist in the Nation’s capital, and addresses this serious epidemic that exists in the Nation’s capital. Today, Nicholas Kristof wrote a column in the New York Times that ought to give us all pause. In it he addresses an issue that many of us on the Committee on Homeland Security have raised many times—and I am sure Chairman BENNIE THOMPSON continues to work to address—and that is the deficient public health system in this country, especially in rural communities, in poor communities, and communities of color. I raised the issue at the HINO hearing in the Health Subcommittee on Energy and Commerce last week. I just want to share a few quotes from the article.

country, but it’s important to every American because to the extent that so many people in this country remain uninsured, it adversely affects health care for everyone.

But insurance is just the beginning of what needs to be done to close the health disparities gap. For example, insured African American patients are less likely than insured whites to receive many potentially lifesaving or life-extending procedures such as high-tech cancer therapy, bypass surgery, or even kidney transplantation. And the IOM report of 2002 showed us that even when everything else is equal, educational level, economic level, and insurance, African Americans and other people of color get less care. Black cancer patients fail to get the same combinations of surgical and chemotherapy treatments that white patients with the same disease presentation received. African American heart patients are less likely than white patients to receive diagnostic procedures, revascularization procedures, and thrombolytic therapy, even when they have similar incomes, insurance, and other patient characteristics.

Even routine care suffers. Black and Latino patients are less likely than whites to receive aspirin upon discharge following a heart attack; to receive the appropriate care for pneumonia; and to have pain, such as the kind with broken bones, appropriately treated. Minorities are more likely to receive undesirable treatment than whites, such as limb amputation for diabetes.

To so begin to address these, the Tri-Caucus, which includes the Congressional Black Caucus, the Congressional Hispanic Caucus, and the Congressional Asian and Pacific Island Caucus, will be reintroducing the Health Equity and Accountability Act, which we have introduced over the last three Congresses and for which we had hearings held in both the subcommittees of Ways and Means and Energy and Commerce last year. The bill takes a comprehensive approach and will have budget impact, but we are talking about reforming a broken health care system, one which many call a “sick care system.” I really think it needs more than reforming; it needs a transformation.

Among the provisions, the bill includes work to hold close the disparities we’ve made to date, to close the gaps that cause the gaps and cause people to die prematurely from preventable causes, we know that in addition to addressing the gaps in the insurance, we are also going to have to turn our country’s focus to disparities in its broader context to the pervasive, persistent social determinants or primordial determinants of the poor health of our communities. If we don’t, the root causes, the totality of the environments in which we live and suffer from this ill health, we will never achieve wellness.

So if we are to be healthy and achieve our optimal health, it’s here also that change must occur. That is to ensure that the environments in which we live support the elimination of health disparities and support good health and our overall well-being.

I think the country is fortunate, and I know the country also understands how fortunate it is, and I’m blessed to work with the Congressional Black Caucus, where 42 diverse individuals with expertise and focus in many different areas such as health, education, economy, job creation, workers’ rights, environmental justice, housing, and all of the factors that are the underpinnings of our health, as a group, we work as a cohesive unit to improve the well-being of our communities and our health.

Now, I look at our entire Congressional Black Caucus agenda as a health agenda because we work on the broad agenda that is critical to closing the health gap and ensuring that all Americans have access to wellness.

And it’s critical that we do this because the real things, the things that underlie our poor health, the things that are really killing us are factors like an overabundance of liquor stores and banks, to black and minority communities; the flooding of everything we see, read, and hear with tobacco advertising; intractable poverty and the way it fosters depression, drug abuse, and crime, creating neighborhoods where it’s impossible to go outdoors or exercise, as we know we must; the refusal of businesses, including grocery stores and really medical entities as well, to come into poor and communities of color, where pharmacies that are there stock and dispense less pain medicine, everything that the individual is having just because we’re in a poor neighborhood that is made up mostly of racial and ethnic minorities; the profiling by the criminal justice system that makes some people wrong just because of the color of their skin, or puts the mentally ill into the criminal justice system rather than into treatment; the racism and discrimination that denies racial and ethnic minorities the same quality of health care that others have spoken about earlier that other diseases that we pay less for that death rates in our communities do the things that are less in our neighborhoods and as so provides a strong and effective disinscentive for hospitals and the other providers we need to come into our communities and stay there; the fact that too many of those providers that we do have don’t understand our culture or our language; and all of the many assaults on our very humanity that weakens the well-known strength of America and the will that we know will improve our health and our quality of life. All of this is still not fully on the radar screen of most who set and implement policy, and this is something else that we must change.

Yet communities around the country, whether or not they’re talking on some of these issues and creating miracles and making dramatic changes in people’s lives. We intend to help these communities and other communities become agents of change and to develop not just a better system of health delivery but an entire culture and environment of wellness.

Today I introduced the Health Empowerment Zone bill, through which we plan to give these communities the resources and the technical assistance that they need to live a healthier and well-being. Through this bill communities can apply. The Department of Health and Human Services would provide the technical assistance and some resources to help that community form a community coalition to identify their health care challenges, to do a community assessment and to develop a strategic plan. Then the community would apply for designation as a health empowerment zone, and if they’re so designated, they would have the opportunity to be a priority for programs that already exist in our government.

So this bill will not be a costly bill. We’re talking about a little bit of startup money to these communities and, more than that, technical assistance to help them to do their community assessment and to make the help that they will get to implement that plan and turn around their community and make it a place where people can be well would come from programs that already exist. These communities would have priority, and this is an attempt for us to address the social determinants of health, which we all know are critical if we are going to eliminate disparities and create healthy communities and a more healthy country. So we intend to help these and other communities, as I said, and we introduced that bill today.

Last week we held our Spring Health Brain Trust with the National Minority Quality Forum, and the messages that came from that meeting were very clear: Our health care system needs not just reform; it needs transformation. It will require an investment that goes beyond providing universal coverage because we have seen through many reports, the IOM and many more research papers, those minorities, people with less access to a diverse people of color, even when they are insured, don’t get the kind of care that the rest of the population gets. The message...

PRAYER
The Chaplain, Dr. Barry C. Black, offered the following prayer:
Let us pray.
O, holy God, who has taught us to place our confidence in You, give the Members of this body the power of Your wisdom. In all their duties, empower them to be loyal to You and obedient to Your precepts. Infuse them with faith to believe that You are willing to help them solve the problems they face when they place their trust in You. Lord, be their abiding reality and lead them into the paths of loving service, as they strive to honor You. Open their eyes to the many things they can do to accomplish Your will.

Today, Lord, we thank You for the life and legacy of former Congressman Jack Kemp. Comfort all who mourn his death and give them Your peace.

We pray in Your great Name. Amen.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE
The Honorable Mark R. Warner led the Pledge of Allegiance, as follows:
I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

U.S. Senate,

To the Senate:
Under the provisions of rule I, paragraph 3, of the Standing Rules of the Senate, I hereby appoint the Honorable Mark R. Warner, a Senator from the Commonwealth of Virginia, to perform the duties of the Chair.

Robert C. Byrd, President pro tempore.

Mr. Warner thereupon assumed the chair as Acting President pro tempore.

RECOGNITION OF THE MAJORITY LEADER
The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The majority leader is recognized.

SCHEDULE
Mr. Reid. Mr. President, following leader remarks, if any, there will be a period of morning business for up to 1 hour with Senators permitted to speak therein for up to 10 minutes each.

Following morning business, the Senate will resume consideration of the mortgage fraud legislation. At 5 p.m. there will be up to 30 minutes of debate equally divided and controlled between Senators Dodd and Vitter or their designees. At 5:30, the Senate will vote on Vitter amendment No. 1016 and, following that vote, 1017. The second vote will be 10 minutes in duration.

Last week the managers of the bill were able to reach an agreement to limit the number of amendments to the bill. It is my understanding that all amendments will not be debated and voted on here. But we will wait and see. We hope to consider the remaining amendments on the list today and tomorrow so we are able to finish passage of this bill tomorrow.

We will work as late as necessary tomorrow to do our best to complete the legislation.

Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. McConnell. I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

GITMO
Mr. McConnell. Mr. President, with the administration still unsure of what to do with the detainees at Guantanamo, Attorney General Holder has described its arbitrary closing date as one of his most daunting challenges. Secretary Gates said some would be released or transferred overseas, some tried in American courts, and the administration doesn’t know what to do with 50 to 100 who can’t be released or tried. Clearly, the administration lacks a plan and a safe alternative for closing Guantanamo. Let me make a suggestion. The administration should reconsider its arbitrary deadline on Guantanamo, as it has reconsidered its commitment to arbitrary withdrawal deadlines in Iraq. Once the administration has a plan to safely detain, prosecute or transfer these detainees, Congress should be consulted and briefed to evaluate the proposal. With no safe alternative, this is the only sensible approach.

No American will penalize the administration for putting safety over symbolism. Europe should not either, since it has been far more critical than helpful. It is increasingly clear that working through the problems related to Guantanamo will require time and close consultation with Congress. The Senate voted 94 to 3 against sending detainees to American soil even if only to prisons. Let me say that again. The Senate voted 94 to 3 against sending detainees to U.S. prisons, not to mention the possibility that they would simply be released into neighborhoods. Secretary Gates has conceded that no one wants these detainees in their communities.

The legal authority for releasing trained terrorists is in question, a concern the administration hasn’t publicly addressed at all. The administration hasn’t decided if it will use the military commissions process that Congress passed on a bipartisan basis at the suggestion of the Supreme Court.

Finally, the administration hasn’t said how it plans to deal with the problem of terrorists we released returning to the battlefield even, even as DOD has confirmed that 18 of the prisoners we released have returned to terrorism and that at least 44 are suspected as having done so.

The American people want to keep the terrorists at Guantanamo, out of their neighborhoods and off the battlefield. At this point, the only way we can assure them that neither one of these things will occur is for the administration to keep this secure facility open until it develops a sensible plan for the Congress to evaluate. We remain a nation at war with ground forces in Iraq and Afghanistan. Despite disagreements over the best way to combat this invisible terrorist, the truth remains that we haven’t been attacked at home since 9/11. That is a record we wish to continue. Maintaining a safe and secure way to detain terrorists is a critical part of protecting the American people.

I yield the floor.

RESERVATION OF LEADER TIME

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, the leadership time is reserved.

MORNING BUSINESS

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, the Senate will proceed to a period of morning business for 1 hour, with Senators permitted to speak for up to 10 minutes each.

The Senator from Missouri.

IN MEMORY OF JACK KEMP

Mr. BOND. Mr. President, I come to the floor to celebrate the life of a great American, Jack Kemp.

Jack Kemp was many things to many different people. Probably everyone knows the basics about Jack. He was a football player, a Member of Congress, a Cabinet Secretary, and a Vice Presidential nominee. Perhaps he was best known as the coauthor of the Kemp-Roth tax cuts that were the basis of the Reagan economic plan that brought progress out of prosperity and stagnation.

Today’s Wall Street Journal said about Kemp:

He was among the most important Congressmen in U.S. history. He wasn’t powerful because he held a mighty post, and he never served in the House majority. He helped transform the Republican Party though he was never its Presidential standard-bearer. His influence sprang from the power of his ideas, and from the sincerity and enthusiasm with which he spread them.

To millions of Americans, he was much more than a football player, Congressman, and candidate. For minorities who suffered from discrimination, Jack was an olive branch from a party that too often ignored them. As a quarterback and as leader of the football players union, he championed the rights of those players who held off for Lewis and fought against segregation. For the poor struggling to rise above their circumstances in the inner city, Jack was hope for a better future. He proposed empowering tenets in public education, an extraordinary vision of opportunity and education. For hard-working families who wanted more freedom from Government, Jack was a crusader for their cause. He believed everyone, especially those in inner cities, should have an opportunity to participate in our economy. His idea of enterprise zones has expanded and developed into many different areas of providing opportunities for those caught in circumstances in which they would otherwise have none.

Jack was all these things and more. Today Jack serves as a role model, I believe, for the future of our party. Known as the happy warrior, Jack always focused on the positive. Don’t get me wrong. Jack never shied away from a fight, and I know that in a couple instances. He called out his fellow party members for protectionism and anti-immigration efforts, believing they were wrong for this country and for the opportunities we seek. No matter how big the adversary, whether it was a linebacker or a powerful committee chair, Jack was a fearless fighter. But as a happy warrior, Jack understood the power of the positive.

Today’s Washington Post carried an article by Michael Gerson in which he said:

Opportunity, [Kemp] argued, is the most important measure of economic justice; capitalism is perfected by the broadest possible distribution of capital; and economic freedom and political freedom are inseparable. Jack was saying:

The best way to oppose a bad idea is to replace it with a good one.

You see, Jack was more about solutions than party labels. It is that pragmatism and willingness to work across the aisle to solve problems that all of us would be well advised to embrace today. As a self-described bleeding heart conservative, there are so many examples of Jack Kemp doing that. Jack worked across the aisle on some of the most important issues of our time, from civil rights to safe housing for all families. It was Jack who, along with the esteemed Dr. Benjamin Hooks, brought to the national stage the scourge of lead paint poisoning which was afflicting children and families in many of our cities, particularly older ones. Exposure to lead, particularly by young children, was causing learning disabilities, behavioral problems, slowing growth, and possibly causing seizures, coma, and, in some serious instances, death.

Jack Kemp and Dr. Hooks gave this avoidable tragedy a face and a very powerful voice. Thanks to their advocacy, Senator Mikulski and I launched a $50 million initiative to remove exposed paint in targeted neighborhoods. What started as an idea and a mission is now a more than $300 million program that has helped hundreds of children and their families. But this is just one example of the ideas that Jack, with his tireless advocacy, turned into action to improve the lives of the most vulnerable and needy in our country.

Jack was an olive branch from a party that too often ignored them. As a quarterly, he strangely resembled the most influential modern Republican who never became president. Jack believed that ideas—not interests or political deals or public passions—rule the world. In this sense, he strangely resembled idealists such as Hegel or Marx, who did not hide their power from the surface of history. For Jack, that force was liberal democratic values” (small “l” and small “d,” as he invariably added). Economic freedom, in his view, provides the poor with a hope beyond the dreams of socialism or large “L” Liberalism—the hope of becoming wealthy themselves. Opportunity, he argued, is the most important measure of economic justice; capitalism is perfected by the broadest possible distribution of capital; and economic freedom and political freedom are inseparable.

This belief in the power of ideas removed all rancor from Jack’s political approach. Example fell into one convert or potential convert. He seemed to believe that if he had just an hour—better yet, three hours—with anyone, he could change their mind by the force of his ideas. So he gave nearly everyone the benefit of the doubt. He assumed goodwill on the part of his opponents. And he became the closest kind of public figure—a conviction politician who was also a peacemaker.

The direction of Jack’s career was set by two events. He was a gifted and articulate member of the civil rights movement from the perspective of sports. As a quarterback and leader of the American Football League players union, he was the first African American to challenge the practice of blocking black teammates victimized by segregation on their travels. The experience left a deeply rooted impatience with bigotry.

For Kemp, Jack criticized the fail- ures of urban liberalism—the high-rise hor- rors of the projects, the economic desolation of the inner city, the schools that betray mi- nority students without consequence. He be- came the nation’s leading advocate for edu- cational vouchers, housing vouchers and en- terprise zones—applications of his philos- ophy of freedom to the needs of the poor. But Jack was nothing if not consistent. The same impulse led him to assert that the parity of Lincoln would never be achieved or even talked about if he were a Republican—and to oppose outbreaks of anti- immigrant sentiment among Republicans, often at political cost to himself.

The second event that shaped Jack’s career was a stroke of intellectual lightning in the 1970s that became known as supply-side eco- nomics. As an amateur economist of broad reading, convinced he knew exactly the way the world works, National wealth depends on productivity, which depends on low tax rates that reward work, enterprise and investment. So as a backbench congress- man, he proposed 30 percent across-the-board tax reductions, persuaded Ronald Reagan to embrace it, and helped spur decades of prosperity. Some dispute this version of eco- nomic history. Yet few would recommend a return to the 70 percent tax rates and stag- nation and easy money. If those policies don’t work, Mr. Kemp was already doomed.

Mr. Bush went on to repudiate Reagan- nomics with his tax increase of 1990 and made Mr. Bush the front-runner when he de- aded his running mate in 1980. The idea had support from those who favored a return to the 70 percent tax rates and stagner- ing and easy money. Mr. Bush had famously described Kemp-Roth as “voodoo economics,” but Reagan’s success in 1988. Mr. Kemp’s ideas and legacy continue to be rel- evant for today’s Republicans, even if few of them seem to recognize it. The financial meltdown and recession have given President Obama a chance to revive a policy mix of higher spending and taxes, intrusive regula- tion and easy money. If those policies don’t result in a sustainable expansion—and his- tory argues that they won’t—then Ameri- cans will again be looking for other ideas.

Kemp was ever the quarterback, lead- ing, inspiring, and winning frequently, it seemed, by sheer optimism and will. In my mind, Jack had three core polit- ical beliefs which he consistently pro- motion throughout his career. First, he was a free market enthusiast. He believed in Adam Smith’s invisible hand and worked tirelessly to convince everyone else about the benefits of supply-side economics.

Jack’s ideals and priorities never really changed over the years, as a congressman, as a Cabinet secretary, as a vice presidential nominee. This is a contrast to many Repub- licans, and former Republicans, who will never leave no mark beyond the vague, unpleasant memory of their opportunism. Even in Jack’s low precision of his own time, the Great Leveler, even of those who seem larger than life. But whether he won or lost, Jack always kept the faith. And so it was in the last battle of his life. Kemp, No. 15, thank you for the privilege of representing you in this Congress.

Mrs. KERRY. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Arizona.

Mr. KYL. Mr. President, I join my colleagues in mourning the passing of Jack Kemp last Saturday.

Order of Procedure

Mr. NELSON of Florida. Mr. President, I understand that morning business will run out in 6 minutes. I ask unanimous consent that I may speak in morning business for 10 minutes.

Mr. President, I wish to shift gears from that statement into the House of Representatives 30 years ago, in 1979, and on one of the tax bills I actually had the temerity to take him on on the floor. I will never forget the chairman of the Budget Committee walking up to me and saying: You better watch out because he is a fierce debater. Indeed, he was. He was passionate about what he believed in, and he was a strong advocate of what he believed in. That, of course, is a quality all of us admire. It was one of the attributes that drew me to Jack; he reciprocated, and we had a friendship over these last 30 years.

Clearly, the record has been set. Jack, of course, was the star quarterback for the Buffalo Bills. Before that, he was with the San Diego Chargers, and he said that his career in football prepared him well for a career in politics because he had been booed, cheered, cut, sold, traded, and hung in effigy in football. Sooner or later, those of us in politics will experience all of those. And how true a statement that is.

He talked about his career in politics. Jack represented western New York in the House for 9 terms. He ran for President. He served as the Secretary of HUD. He was the Vice President. It is a great loss.

The one thing I want to call to the attention of the Senate is the letter he wrote to his grandchildren upon the election of Barack Obama as President.

This letter was posted online on Jack's company Web site. I want you to listen to what he wrote:

...just imagine that in the face of all these indignities and deprivations, Dr. Martin Luther King could say 44 years ago, “I have an abiding faith in America and an audacious faith in mankind.”

Jack continues to write this letter to his grandchildren:

He described his vision for America, even as he and his family were being denied their God-given human rights guaranteed under our Constitution.

You see, real leadership is not just seeing the realities of what we are temporally faced with, but seeing the possibilities and potential that can be realized by lifting up people’s vision to be.

That is just one snippet of that letter he wrote to his grandchildren.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the Record the entire letter.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the Record, as follows:

A LETTER TO MY GRANDCHILDREN

(by Jack Kemp)

Dear Kemp grandchildren—all 17 of you, spread out from the East Coast to the West Coast, and from the high desert to the hills, and from the university at Wake Forest University in North Carolina:

My first thought last week upon learning that a 47-year-old African-American Democrat had won the presidency was, “Is this a great country or not?”

You may have expected your grandfather to be disappointed that his friend John McCain lost (and I was), but there’s a difference between disappointment over a lost election and the historical perspective of a monumental event in the life of our nation.

Let me explain. First of all, the election was free, fair and transformational, in terms of our democracy. Second, it was a grand celebration of the history of race relations in our nation.

What do I mean? Just think, a little over 40 years ago, blacks in America had trouble even voting in our country, much less thinking about running for the highest office in the land. A little over 40 years ago, in some parts of America, blacks couldn’t eat, sleep, or even get a drink of water using facilities available to everyone else in the public square.

We are celebrating, this year, the 40th anniversary of our Fair Housing Laws, which helped put an end to the blatant racism and prejudice against blacks in rental housing and homeownership. As an old professional football quarterback, in my days there were no black coaches, no black quarterbacks, and certainly no blacks in the front offices of football and other professional sports.

For the record, there were great black quarterbacks and coaches—they just weren’t given the opportunity to showcase their talent (and America) was the worst off for it.

I remember quarterbacking the old San Diego Chargers and playing for the AFL championship one time. My father sat on the 50-yard line, while my co-captain’s father, who happened to be black, had to sit in a small, roped-off section of the end zone. Today, I can’t imagine the NFL without the amazing contributions of blacks at every level of this great enterprise.

I could go on and on, but just imagine that in the face of all these indignities and deprivations, Dr. Martin Luther King could say 44 years ago, “I have an abiding faith in America and an audacious faith in mankind.” He described his vision for America, even as he and his people were being denied their God-given human rights guaranteed under our Constitution.

You see, real leadership is not just seeing the realities of what we are temporarily faced with, but seeing the possibilities and potential that can be realized by lifting up peoples’ vision of what they can be.

When President-elect Obama quoted Abraham Lincoln on the night of his election, he was acknowledging the transcendent qualities of vision and leadership that are always present, but often overlooked and neglected cases. They are not partisan. As president, I believe Barack Obama can help lift us out of a narrow view of America into the ultimate vision of an America where, if you’re born to be a mezzo-soprano or a master carpenter, nothing stands in your way of realizing your God-given potential.

Both Obama in his Chicago speech, and McCain in his marvellous speech, rose to this historic occasion by celebrating the things that unite us irrespective of our political party, our race or our socio-economic background.

My advice for you all is to understand that unity for our nation doesn’t require uniformity or unanimity; it does require putting the good of our people ahead of what’s good for mere political or personal advantage.

The party of Lincoln, i.e., the GOP, needs to rethink and revitalize itself as a party of emancipation, liberation, civil rights and equality of opportunity for all. On the other hand, the party of Franklin Roosevelt, John Kennedy and the Bushes, must put forth an agenda that understands that getting America growing again will require both Keynesian and classical incentive-oriented supply-side economic ideas. But there’s time for political and economic advice in a later column (or two).

Let me end with an equally great historical irony of this election. As Barack Obama is sworn in as our 44th president, we will celebrate the 200th anniversary of Abraham Lincoln’s birth. I’m serving, along with former Rep. Bill Clinton of Arkansas, on the Abraham Lincoln Bicentennial Board to help raise funds for this historic occasion.

President-elect Obama’s honoring of Lincoln in many of his speeches reminds us of how vital it is to elevate these ideas and ideals to our nation’s consciousness and inculcate his principles at a time of such great challenges and even greater opportunities.

In fact, we kick off the Lincoln bicentennial celebration on Wednesday, Nov. 19, in Gettysburg, Pa. The great filmmaker Ken Burns will speak at the Soldier’s National Cemetery on the 145th anniversary of Lincoln’s Gettysburg Address. On Thursday, Nov. 20, at Gettysburg College, we will have the first of 10 town hall events on “Abraham Lincoln: Freedom and Equality of Opportunity.” I have the high honor of joining Rep. Jesse Jackson Jr., Professor Allen Guelzo and Norman Bristol-Colon on the panel, with Professor Charles Brannham as the moderator.

President-elect Obama talks of Abraham Lincoln’s view of our nation as an “unfinished work.” Well, isn’t that equally true of all of us? Therefore let all of us strive to help him be a successful president, so as to help make America an even greater nation.

Mr. NELSON of Florida. Mr. President, this is “A Letter to my Grandchildren” by Jack Kemp on November 12, 2008, just a few days after the election of Senator Obama as President of these United States.

CONGRESSIONAL GOLD MEDAL

Mr. NELSON of Florida. Mr. President, I wish to shift gears from that sad note to a celebratory note because... we are approaching the 40th anniversary of the first landing on another celestial body by human beings. A number of our colleagues have joined me to honor two major firsts from the early days of America’s space program.

Today is the lunar landing. We have introduced legislation to bestow the distinguished Congressional Gold Medal, the highest civilian award given by Congress, on the crew of Apollo 11. Neil Armstrong and Buzz Aldrin were the first humans to put a footprint on the Moon, while command module pilot Mike Collins orbited above.

In this legislation, which we have termed the “New Frontier Congressional Gold Medal,” we also honor the first American who orbited the Earth, Senator John Glenn.

Today at 87 years old, John Glenn is retired from the Senate. He lives in his home State of Ohio. He retains his home in the Washington, DC, area. We get a chance to see John from time to time as he comes back and joins his colleagues on the floor of the Senate.

These are pioneers. They are firsts—Glenn first to orbit the Earth as an American. We got surprised by the Soviets. They launched Yuri Gagarin for one orbit, and we did not even have a rocket with strong enough thrust to get into orbit.

Shortly after Gagarin, we put Alan Shepard into orbit, followed by another suborbital mission with Gus Grissom. Ten months after Gagarin—and by this time the Soviets had flown a second cosmonaut, Titof, and he had orbited several times—10 months after that fateful first human flight, we took a chance. We took that Mercury capsule that John Glenn climbed into—and, indeed, he had to shoehorn in to get into it, it was so small—put it on top of an Atlas rocket that we knew had a 20 percent chance of failure, and the rest is history.

Of course, we remember that story. There was an indication that John’s heat shield was loose which, had it been, he would have burned up on re-entry. The last radio communication we had as he entered that blackout period coming through heat 3,000 degrees Fahrenheit at reentry that creates a blackout situation for radio frequency, the last thing we heard from John Glenn before he went into that blackout period was human voice, the “Battle Hymn of the Republic.” Oh, what words those were when suddenly we heard: “Houston, this is Friendship 7.” We knew he was alive.

He paved the way for that extraordinary mission back to Earth from Neil Armstrong in which he said:

“...One giant leap for mankind.”

This was the small step for [a] man, one giant leap for mankind.

This past weekend, I had the occasion to join with a number of our American astronauts on the induction of the space shuttle explorers into the Astronaut Hall of Fame. The inductees were space shuttle veterans—Pinky Nelson, Bill Shepherd, and Jim Wetherbee. They joined the elite ranks of 70 other legendary astronauts, who already include John Glenn, Armstrong, Aldrin, and Collins.

I went to this particular ceremony because I had the privilege of being a rookie astronaut, and Bill Shepherd, otherwise known as “Shep,” was the rookie astronaut who actually strapped us in before launch.

While I was there meeting and seeing these three new astronauts honored by the Hall of Fame, I thought about the amazing achievements we have made, how strong leadership and bold vision has changed not the space program but all our lives. I think about the true American character of exploration, whether it is the space program or exploration into the inner workings of the mind, the functions of the body, exploration into the climate of this planet, exploration of how we cope each day with all the problems we are facing, our space programs before our exploration which did not start just recently. We are a nation of explorers.

We did not just start with exploration. This started way back in our history. We had a frontier then. It was westward. Now that frontier is in so many other areas, including space.

The space program has given us much to improve life on Earth, from fire-resistant material to weather forecasting equipment, to scratch-resistant lenses, to new kinds of laser surgery. It has also given us selfless heroes who put their lives on the line for the benefit of all the rest of us and for the generations to come.

It was Armstrong who made that first step out on the lunar dust. It was Glenn who paved the way for the rest of Mercury and Gemini and Apollo. It is hard to believe that all these things happened after President Kennedy presented a bold challenge before the Nation coming together. It inspired a generation of kids to get excited about science, math, technology, and engineering. We have seen that generation fulfill President Kennedy’s promise, which was science and education have greatly enriched a new knowledge of our universe, and our environment. Life on Earth has improved by leaps and bounds from all the spinoffs from the space program.

Simply put: We all reap the harvest of gains because of exploration and the pioneering endeavors of brave Americans, such as those whom we honor with this gold medal, the highest congressional honor. They deserve this honor because of their significant contributions to our planet Earth.

I ask our colleagues to join me in supporting this resolution. There will be ample opportunity for co-sponsorships, in addition to those of us who have submitted the resolution.

I yield the floor. I do not have to suggest the absence of a quorum because the great Senator from the State of Delaware is here, and I want him to know what a delight and pleasure he is to serve with.

I yield the floor.

Mr. KAUFMAN. Mr. President, I wish to say it is an honor serving with Senator NELSON. I also commend him for his tribute to Senator Glenn and the astronauts. As usual, he is right on point. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. KAUFMAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. KAUFMAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to speak as in morning business for 25 minutes.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

PUBLIC SERVICE RECOGNITION WEEK

Mr. KAUFMAN. Mr. President, today marks the beginning of Public Service Recognition Week. This is a time to recognize the hard-working and devoted men and women who serve in our Federal, State, county, and municipal governments.

I wish to make particular mention of the several programs taking place throughout the week in celebration of our civil servants and their contributions. I know the Partnership for Public Service, an organization with a mission to highlight our finest Government workers and promote public service, will be marking the week by awarding their annual Service to America medals. I congratulate the medal finalists and thank them for their excellence in service to our Nation.

This is an appropriate occasion to address the subject which is so relevant to the way we face the challenges before us as a nation. These challenges have shaken the public’s confidence in our financial markets, in our economy, and in our Government. We must work to restore the public’s confidence.

So many of the solutions being presented from the rising cost of health care to the multiple threats from overseas, to the mortgage crisis, rely primarily on the work of dedicated and dependable civil servants. The Federal employees who work day in and day out to better our country, often at great private sacrifice, deserve our public’s confidence and that is what this speech will be all about.

In the post-9/11 era of insecurity and following years of political indecision and divisive partisanship, we are left with an abundance of problems. Our honored veterans complain of diminishing benefits, while the young decry the increases in the cost of education. America’s health care system is outdated and leaves millions uninsured. We remain painfully addicted to foreign oil, and auto manufacturers require more public funds to stay afloat. Some of our challenges rise to a level unseen in decades.

As a case in point, whenever Americans face difficulty, we display that greatest trait of our nature. Service to the common good has been our answer to every hardship since even before the birth of our Republic. One would be hard-pressed to find any public figure of note who does not highly invoke the praise of community service and voluntarism.

Indeed, in every neighborhood in all 50 States, one can find our citizens extending their hands in help to their fellow Americans and to the unfortunate throughout the world. Likewise, no one can refrain from honoring the service and sacrifice of our brave men and women. Their selfless dedication and diligence ensure our safe borders and sustain our liberty. The hard work of our servicemembers is rightly congratulated.

But, Mr. President, there are those who give so much of themselves and often so many years of their lives, yet receive hardly any share of recognition. In the recent past, the disparagement of our Federal employees—the greatest civil servants in the history of our republic—has become a commonplace. Diminishing their contribution to this Nation is an all-too-frequent exercise.

Federal employees deserve praise for the vital role they play each day enforcing the laws we pass in this very Chamber. They care for our veterans. They toil in laboratories to create new energy technologies. Our Federal workers safely manage the complex network of our crumbling infrastructure day and night. They deliver our mail, regulate fair housing practices, and conduct our diplomacy abroad. They serve in all three branches of Government.

They are, in many ways, silent sentinels of our Nation’s well-being. Indeed, Federal employees have become indispensable to our national life. With a generation of Federal employees nearing retirement, we need to attract and retain talented civilians back to public service. Good, honest, responsible government requires the best civil servants.

Throughout our history, great men and women answered the call to serve in the Federal Government from all walks of life and from every corner of America. There are those who dedicate their entire careers to public service, but there are also so many Americans who enter Federal employment for just a short period. Even the novelist William Faulkner worked part-time as a postmaster when he was a young man.

The nature of our Federal workers today is the same as it was when the French philosopher Alexis de Tocqueville visited in the early 19th century. He observed that:

Public officers in the United States are commingled with a crowd of citizens; they have never put on any ceremonial costumes. This simple exterior of the persons in authority is connected not only with the peculiarities of the American character, but with the fundamental principles of that society.

I, too, was a Federal employee when I worked for 22 years with then-Senator Joe Biden, and I can attest as much as anyone that to serve entails responsibility and dedication. During my years in Government work, including 13 years as a member of the Broadcasting Board of Governors, I met so many hardworking, well-qualified, and devoted public servants, most of whom will not be recognized individually by the public for their important contributions.

The American people collectively put their faith in all who work in Government, from those elected to the highest office, to those like Faulkner, working part-time for a modest wage. Our esteemed predecessor in this House, Henry Clay of Kentucky, once declared: Government is a trust, and the officers of the government are trustees; and both the trust and the trustees are created for the benefit of the people.

Senator Clay could not have been more correct. Those who serve the Republic carry the heavy responsibility of not working for the benefit of themselves alone but for the good of all. What should be a source of pride to those who enter employment in the Federal Government has become, all too often, a thankless job. Serving in the Federal Government can be an enriching experience, and we need to do more to persuade young people, I am encouraged that there is a growing desire now, unlike in the past several years, among our best and brightest students to seek Federal jobs.

For so long, the allure of easy wealth and Wall Street and scorn for Government work led our young graduates to overlook positions in civil service. But it should not take a recession and a popular new administration to attract this talent. Our young people are eager to take on new public service, prove themselves worthy of others’ trust. They want to have a part in what President Obama has called “repairing the world.” With more recognition of our Federal workforce and praise for its important contribution, there is no reason we cannot convince these young, idealistic Americans to seek in Government what they so desire—a role in history, a chance to shape their world.

The recent decision by Kal Penn, the young Hollywood star, to accept a position working in the administration advances this effort significantly. Despite a lucrative career in film and on television, Penn—a second-generation American whose parents are immigrants from Mumbai—announced he would take a couple of years off from acting to serve his country in the Federal Government. When asked about his motives, he said:

It was because of the value system my grandparents instilled in me. There’s not a lot of financial reward in these jobs. But, obviously, the opportunity to serve in a capacity like this is what it’s all about.

Mr. President, when I was young, it used to be that this honor which Penn speaks of drew young people by the thousands to careers in our civil service. A job in Government was a mark of distinction. It was a privilege to be able to work for the betterment of the American people. However, in recent years, that honor has been eroded by the misconception that our civil service is growing beyond measure and consisting of a cadre of diehards from our past who are out of touch with ordinary Americans. But I say this characterization is completely untrue.

The number of Federal employees today has not grown—indeed, it’s probably significantly larger—than its size in the 1960s. In fact, 85 percent of all Federal employees live and work outside of Washington. They are ordinary Americans, yet they perform extraordinary work.

As De Tocqueville observed more than 150 years ago, the qualities embodied by our civil servants reflect the greatest values we hold dear as Americans. Federal employees display exemplary citizenship, choosing of their own accord to pursue careers only to provide for their families but benefit the Nation as a whole. This is despite the advantages to private sector employment. Our civil servants are industrious. They work hard, tackle difficult problems, and represent millions of our fellow citizens, and do so with grace and humility.

They often need to take risks, not only to make new discoveries in science and engineering, but to represent us in unsafe corners of the world, but also to expose unnecessary waste and corruption where it may arise. The history of our civil service is filled with those who choose to uphold the public trust even when at a danger to their own lives and careers. Their work requires great perseverance, and results may take longer than their tenure in office. It requires great care and attention to detail. When the public’s faith in Government is growing beyond measure and consisting of a cadre of diehards from our past who are out of touch with ordinary Americans. But I say this characterization is completely untrue.

reflect the excellence of our civil service as a whole. They have each been selected by a blue ribbon panel which includes Senator SUSAN COLLINS, in concert with Partnership for Public Service, to receive a Service to America medal.

When she began her job as Director of the Office of Public Housing Programs in 2002, Nicole Faison inherited a HUD rental system program rated for 13 years as a “high risk” program by the Government Accountability Office due to rampant waste, fraud, and abuse. Today, it is recognized for helping more low-income families receive housing assistance without wasting resources. Under Nicole’s guidance, the program eliminated over $2 billion in fraudulent payments and earned praise for its streamlined operations.

Since 9/11, there has been much attention on the security of cargo containers entering our country from overseas. Leading the charge to secure our ports, Tracy Mustin serves as Director of the Department of Energy’s office of Second Line of Defense. Under Tracy’s leadership, her office has installed monitoring devices at more than 100 airports, seaports, and border crossings in 60 countries which help detect and prevent the trafficking of nuclear or radiological substances. She also oversees the Megaports Initiative, which screens and monitors cargo entering major seaports around the world. In addition to her responsibilities as a civil servant, Tracy is commissioned as a captain in the Navy Reserve.

While Tracy and her team have been fortifying our Nation’s second line of defense against terrorism, brave men and women in the Armed Forces remain overseas fighting on the first line of defense. When our wounded warriors return home, they can thank the dedicated civilian employees of our Defense Department for their advancements in the treatment and care they will receive for their injuries.

Dave Carballeyra, the Air Force’s Director of Stereolithography, introduced a new 3-D technology for bone and tissue imaging which has improved treatment and rehabilitation care for wounded veterans. In particular, his work has helped soldiers suffering from severe burns from bombings in Iraq and Afghanistan and those requiring surgery for prosthetic devices. These advances have significantly improved their quality of life. Believe it or not, Dave is only 25 years of age.

Another public servant whom I very much want to mention is Dr. Rajiv Jain. Each year it is estimated that 2 million patients develop infections while in U.S. hospitals for routine procedures. One hundred thousand of these patients die as a result, and the elderly and newborn are particularly susceptible. Rajiv and his team at the University of Pittsburgh are at the forefront of an effort to reduce these infections. The infection rate at their VA facility has already dropped 60 percent, and the strategy developed by Rajiv to prevent infections has now been adopted by all 153 VA hospitals.

When asked about his work, he commonly explains that “one infection is too many.” The final person I will mention, who works for the Department of Energy, has proven wrong those who are convinced that Government can’t do something right. At the end of the Cold War, when the former Rocky Flats nuclear weapons plant near Denver was designated as a Superfund site, it was estimated that it would take 70 years and nearly $40 billion to clean it up. Many advocated a permanent quarantine of the site, arguing that its rehabilitation was not worth the cost. Frazer Lockhart took charge of the cleanup effort in 1995 and finished the job in 10 years, spending only $7 billion. Today, 95 percent of the original site has been delisted from the Superfund and been set aside as a 2,200-acre wildlife refuge. Frazer’s sound management and perseverance led to the cleanup 60 years ahead of schedule and $30 billion under budget.

Mr. President, these stories are just a few of the countless many. Indeed, there are a great number of exceptional Federal employees, and I hope to continue sharing their stories before the Senate and honoring their service over the coming weeks and months, beginning with this group. I invite my fellow Senators to join me on those or other occasions in doing the same. These men and women daily carry out the work of developing new technologies, protecting our free markets, ensuring a cleaner environment, and advancing our interests around the world.

I believe the Founders foresaw the need for a vibrant and effective civil service and that they would be proud of the Federal employees serving today. When the Constitution was completed in New York on March 4, 1789, its first matter of business was to fulfill an obligation set to it by the Constitution. Article VI declares that all public officers are to be bound by an oath or affirmation to support the Constitution, but the document leaves up to Congress to decide on the form. The first piece of legislation ever to be passed by the United States Congress and signed into law by President Washington was the Oath Act, which modified this simple but poignant oath:

I do solemnly swear or affirm that I will support the Constitution of the United States.

In the years since, it has been expanded to the oath presently taken by all of us who serve in this Chamber and in the House of Representatives and by every Federal employee. But the underlying point remains unchanged from that original oath. What the Founders intended in their first act of Government was to reaffirm with each taking of our modern oath, is that everyone who serves in our Government is not only obligated to support the Constitution but also entrusted with that responsibility. That— the same as was noted by Clay—is the foundation of our civil service. It is the guiding principle of our Federal workers and the reason they deserve the public’s confidence.

Careers in Government, we know, frequently pay far less than comparable careers in the private sector, and many times our Federal employees are asked to move across the country or overseas to perform their duties. Many serve for 20 years or more, leaving a lasting impact on communities and on our national policies without special recognition. They never see bonuses like those paid on Wall Street or elsewhere in the private sector. However, after many years of service, when our civil servants retire, they can look back on their careers and know with certainty that when their country needed them, they gave of themselves. They gave to our Nation, and they know their contribution, even if little recognized, has been genuine and significant. This is their bonus, the satisfaction and the knowledge that they have answered the call to duty, that their lives have surely served a meaningful purpose.

Again, please let it be noted that the first week of May each year is Public Service Recognition Week, and it is with great pride that I honor the service and sacrifice of our Federal employees. I thank them, and I urge my colleagues to join me this week and in future weeks to thank them for their continued work in support of our recovery during this challenging time.

I yield the floor. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tem will call the roll. The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. KAUFMAN). Without objection, it is so ordered.

CONCLUSION OF MORNING BUSINESS

HELPING FAMILIES SAVE THEIR HOMES ACT OF 2009

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Senate will resume consideration of S. 896, which the clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (S. 896) to prevent mortgage foreclosures and enhance mortgage credit availability.

Pending:

Dodd/Shelby amendment No. 1018, in the nature of a substitute.

Corker amendment No. 1019 (to amendment No. 1018), to address safe harbor for certain servicers.
Vitter amendment No. 1016 (to amendment No. 1018), to authorize and remove impediments to the repayment of funds received under the Troubled Asset Relief Program. Vitter amendment No. 1017 (to amendment No. 1018), to provide that the primary and foundational responsibility of the Federal Housing Administration shall be to safeguard and preserve the solvency of the Administration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Connecticut is recognized.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I am going to take a few minutes to explain. I know the leadership has already made these announcements, but as I have been told, at 5:30 there will be two votes on amendments offered by our colleague from Louisiana, Senator Vitter. I am going to take a few minutes here, once again, to review the underlying proposals Senator SHELBY of Alabama and I have crafted as part of this bill. Then I will take a few minutes to express my views on the two Vitter amendments. I presume Senator Vitter will want to talk about this or others who are interested in the two amendments may show up to express their interest in them as well.

I thank the majority leader, Senator Rund, for scheduling the time for the consideration of this bill. Obviously, the importance of foreclosure mitigation is still critical. I still believe, as many do, that the root cause of our financial problems in this country began with the mortgage market and the predatory lending that went on with literally millions of people in this country. The Wall Street Journal reported that some 60 to 65 percent of people who were talked into predatory loans, subprime loans, actually qualified for conventional mortgages. Conventional mortgages are far less costly than subprime mortgages, but because there was a greater financial reward for brokers and others who were able to market the subprime mortgages, they were marketed to people. Of course, those mortgages became far more costly. There were adjustable rate mortgages, there were teaser rates with almost no downpayments required and very little interest payments for months on end and then, of course, ballooning to the point that many people could ill-afford them. For many, they could not afford them at all, to the point that problem migrated to other areas of our economy. As a result, today we find ourselves in a recession, and a deep one at that.

This bill is designed to help families save their homes. That is what it is designed to do. There are a lot of provisions that relate to the smaller banks in the country and how we can be of some help to them to get credit moving.

I did this last week at the close of business, but I thought I would spend a few minutes to review, once again, the major provisions of the bill without going into great detail as to what is included in each provision and then, as I said, address the two Vitter amendments that will be offered later this afternoon.

This amendment we have offered is a substitute amendment that Senator SHELBY and I have before us now, which is S. 896. It expands the number of tools to prevent foreclosures and the ability of homeowners and loan servicers to use those tools. In addition, the bill includes provisions to make the banking system more stable and improve the availability of credit. Specifically, there are about 8 or 9 or 10 major provisions of the bill.

The first of these provisions expands the ability of the Federal Housing Administration in rural housing to modify loans. I made the point last week that this is absolutely critical. FHA has been a savior in many cases, providing credit when credit has not been available elsewhere to keep a limited housing market open. It is very important that they have the tools that they need. They need to modify FHA or USDA loans, as they do for non-Government loans they service. This part of the bill is one that is critically important and can make a huge difference to people. There will be an amendment to modify this provision of the bill. If we end up undermining the role of the FHA at this critical time, we can make it far more difficult for these foreclosures to be mitigated and decrease the possibility of people no longer being able to own their homes.

Second, it expands access to the HOPE for Homeowners legislation, which makes a number of changes to that bill we adopted last summer. It was a program that was well intended but left a lot of problems in terms of the effectiveness and efficiency of the legislation. This bill will allow for the option to lower fees and streamline the borrower certification requirements. We give the Secretary of the housing agency in our country limited discretionary authority to determine the amount and distribution of future appreciation. We ban the very wealthiest in our country from being involved in this program. It was never intended to be such. We allow for incentive payments to servicers and originators who participate in the program. Again, it is something designed to be of help to the average citizens, working families in this country.

Third, we create more enforcement tools for the FHA to eliminate bad lenders. This was an important provision that provides the tools to the housing and urban development agency to more expeditiously drop lenders that break FHA rules. This was needed to strengthen those losing in their homes and make sure resources go to the areas that need them. They are certainly not to be used by lenders who are violating the rules of FHA.

We then provide for a safe harbor for servicers who would either modify a loan consistent with the Obama foreclosure mitigation program or refinance the borrower into a HOPE for Homeowners loan. This has been a contentious issue between bankers and investors, trying to do something with regard to mitigation. This has been narrowly drawn.

The House-passed bill—and I say this respectfully of the administration—had a broad provision in this area. This was an idea Senator MARTINEZ offered a number of weeks ago. He has since modified this—and I agree with him—to try to restrict time, duration, and circumstances in which a safe harbor would apply.

What is a safe harbor? A safe harbor is designed to encourage the servicers to modify loans, servicers who have had contracts with investors. The investors obviously are somewhat reluctant to make a modification of any of these things that would deprive them of the ability to take legal action against a servicer who engaged in a modification creating a safe harbor for the servicer. We encourage them—it does make a difference to them to modify those loans with the borrower, in the absence of which I doubt any servicer will be willing to step forward.

So this is an absolutely critical area. While there are still concerns on the part of some, I believe it is the right step to be taking. It is limited in duration. It is limited to only the Obama foreclosure mitigation and the HOPE for Homeowners, only in those two instances and therefore would not be as open and broad-based as provisions that have been adopted elsewhere.

So I encourage my colleagues to be supportive. There will be an effort to change this in a way that I think would make it unworkable in terms of achieving the desired results here. Again, with 10,000 foreclosures going on every single day in our country, we need to try to bring closure to that problem where we can. This is not going to just disappear in value by the day, obviously every one is adversely affected.

With the Obama proposals and HOPE for Homeowners proposals, we think that would make a significant difference, allow people to stay in their homes, and allow the lenders to get some payment back rather than the property falling into foreclosure. While there are still concerns about the contagion effect of a foreclosed property in a neighborhood is very daunting. We know for a fact that with one foreclosure in a neighborhood of a one-square-block area, the value of that neighborhood will decline by 20 percent. We estimated 1.7 to 2 million foreclosures can be avoided with this kind of proposal in the bill.

of the consumer groups, the realtors, the Financial Roundtable, and others strongly support the provisions Senator SHELBY and I have in this bill when it comes to the issue of safe harbor. Again, I thank Senator MARTINEZ, my colleague from Florida, for initiating this proposal.

The next provision authorizes an additional $130 million for foreclosure prevention activities. Senator REID is the author. I mentioned earlier that this is a broad issue spanning the space and time for this bill to come up has been critically important but also the addition of this language which we now know is terribly effective.

Earlier, Senator SCHUMER and others offered language to provide resources for the support of the prevention activities; that is, counseling activities. It proved very helpful. These can be complicated areas. To get into the issue of modifying a mortgage requires some good counseling. This is not a matter of sit down, spend a few minutes and you will solve the problem. It proved very helpful. These can be complicated areas. To get into the issue of modifying a mortgage requires some good counseling. This is not a matter of sit down, spend a few minutes and you will solve the problem.

We also support the amendment of Senator SHELBY and I have in this bill for both the FDIC and the National Credit Union Administration, a two-thirds vote of the Federal Reserve Board, and agreement by the Secretary of the Treasury in consultation with the President of the United States. We stretch out the payment of assessments to rebuild bank and credit union deposit insurance funds to 8 years and just land mark provision; for many of our lending institutions, that period of assessment is absolutely essential. If it is too short, it obviously puts a huge financial burden on these institutions. I believe the 8 years was a provision that was very important to these institutions and one that they are very pleased our legislation includes. I hope that work will as well as we intend to.

We also improve the FDIC systemic risk assessment authority. Again, that is a real relief to institutions that would not participate in that program, that would have been assessed anyway. This provision of the bill protects them from that kind of assessment. Again, it is essentially important.

That is a very quick review of the major provisions of the bill. As I mentioned earlier, this legislation enjoys broad-based support in our country, from major consumer groups in our Nation: The National Consumer Law Center, the Independent Community Bankers, the Center for Responsible Lending, the American Bankers Association. Rarely do I find these organizations coming together around a bill. You will normally have the consumer groups on one side and your financial services sector on the other side. That is normally how it works. But because of the effort made by so many people on our committee and elsewhere, we have put together a piece of legislation which we think will make a difference on foreclosure, provide some needed reform to our major financial institutions, provide counseling and additional support for people who seek that kind of help, as well as attract the kind of support from diverse institutions that watch and care very much about these groups.

Last week I included letters of support. I should add as well that Lenders One, an association of mid-sized independent mortgage brokers, and the Mortgage Bankers Association, have endorsed what Senator Shelby and I have put together in this bill.

That is a rough summary of the legislation. Of course, anybody who is interested in further information about this, we would welcome them to come over and ask any provision they have interest in.

Let me, at this point, if I can, address the two amendments which this body will consider at 5:30. The first one I will discuss is the amendment of Senator VITTER of Louisiana No. 1015. This amendment, as I understand it—obviously Senator VITTER will come and explain his own amendment. I hope and accurately I describe it. Under the Emergency Economic Stabilization Act, currently it requires the Treasury to permit a TARP recipient to repay the financial assistance it receives subject to consultation with the appropriate Federal banking agency. When its assistance is repaid, the recipient must also buy back the warrants it provided to the Treasury at the current market price. As I understand the Vitter amendment, it would require the Treasury to permit a TARP recipient to repay TARP assistance it received if the institution would be well capitalized after repaying the funds.

Capitalization of our lending institutions is a critical component, as the President and Congress knows, very important, certainly essential, before one would even consider, again, having TARP money come back, the whole idea of insulating upon properly capitalized institutions. Under the amendment, Treasury could not condition the right of a TARP recipient to repay TARP on an agreement to also buy back the warrants. Under the current law, payback of the TARP money must be accompanied by the repurchase of these warrants.

In fact, the amendment gives the TARP recipient the right to determine when the Treasury must buy back the warrants it received; the TARP recipient is not required to pay market price for them.

I oppose the amendment and urge my colleagues to vote against it, I say respectfully of the author of the amendment, Senator VITTER, a member of our committee and a fine Senator. If this amendment, if adopted, would further destabilize our financial system and could harm taxpayers who, of course, are the ones who put up the TARP money.

Under this amendment, the Treasury would be forced to permit a bank that received TARP money to repay that assistance based on the sole criterion that the bank would remain well capitalized. Again, I emphasize that is an important consideration, but it is not the only one.

If there is one lesson we have learned from this crisis, the definition for what well capitalized means is inadequate. For example, Citibank and Bank of America are well capitalized according to the standard in the amendment, and despite their obvious troubles, they would be able to return the TARP money they received. The standard the amendment would establish is simply ineffective and not comprehensive enough.

Currently, the regulators can consider the bank’s condition in a more complete, holistic way in assessing its fitness to return TARP funds. The amendment would tie the hands of the regulators to this one particular factor, capital, a very important one but not the only one, a factor that has already proven to be faulty and insufficient to weather today’s economic climate.

To get out from under the executive compensation restrictions and other conditions imposed by Treasury, for example, institutions that are in a weakened condition may put themselves and the broader economy at risk. That is why this is important. If we are only talking about one institution, certainly getting the TARP money back is something we would all welcome. But I think we need to stop at this beyond just what the effect is on that one institution but what is the effect of the overall financial system. That was the reason why these TARP dollars went out in the first place.

So the being well capitalized is very important, if you limit it to that and that only and allow an institution, such as the ones I have mentioned, to then move beyond that, there could be put at risk the larger economy, which is, of course, our major goal here, to get the overall economy functioning and moving in the right direction.

If banks were allowed to move in that direction merely on that basis alone, then I think we would regret that. Again, I think it is something we ought to be striving for, but this amendment is too narrow, in my view, to limit the decisions strictly on that one criterion. If lending is limited as a result of the amendment, that would mean more businesses closing for lack of financing, more job losses in our country, and a further weakening of the overall economy, delaying even further the recovery we all seek.

It might mean more foreclosures, which is at the heart of the bill. Foreclosed homes will stay on the market longer because people would not be able to get mortgages to buy these homes.

As my colleagues know, the large banks have gone through the so-called stress tests. Many of them, despite being designated as “well-capitalized,” may still be forced to raise more capital, we are told.

It strikes me as unwise that we want to tie Treasury’s hands at this important time, right when the results of the stress tests are to be announced.

The amendment would also harm the taxpayer by allowing the TARP recipient to decide when warrants may be exercised and by limiting the Treasury’s ability to require the repurchase of warrants when TARP funds have been repaid.

It also harms the taxpayer by eliminating the requirement that Treasury pay market price for the warrants and would allow banks to try to negotiate a better price, thereby reducing the returns to the taxpayers who put up the money in the first place.

In conclusion, I would respectfully oppose this amendment. Current law already allows the banks to repay their TARP funding—in fact, we would encourage it—when it is the right time and safe to do so, examining an array of criteria, not just being well-capitalized. The quicker we can do that, the better off we are going to be. But it is ill-advised that when some of these major institutions repay that, that in so doing they are not going to jeopardize the economy at large.

The amendment, however, could cut credit availability at a time when credit is desperately needed and could put more institutions at risk when stability is needed; and it is a bad deal, further, for the American taxpayer who, ultimately, is the one who put up the resources and hopes to get repaid when this economy begins to recover.

Again, respectfully I say to my colleague and friend from Louisiana, I would oppose that amendment.

The second amendment is No. 1017. This amendment deals with the Federal Housing Administration. The Vitter amendment would establish “solvency” as the “primary foundational responsibility” of the Federal Housing Administration, the FHA.

The amendment then requires the Secretary to close down any FHA program if it seems “reasonably likely” that the FHA might need credit subsidies from Congress. Again, I oppose this amendment because it does exactly the opposite of what we ought to be doing at a moment such as this.

We thank our lucky stars that we have the FHA providing credit at this time. In exactly a moment such as this, you need the FHA out there to provide that credit when credit is so unavailable through the clogged-up financial system in our Nation. First and foremost, this amendment fails to reflect the fact that the primary mission of the Federal Housing Administration is to help create and sustain home ownership for American families.

The mission of the FHA is especially important now, while we are struggling through such troubled economic times. FHA currently insures nearly 30 percent of the mortgage market in our Nation.

If you extend the logic that the amendment proposes, you would shut the doors of Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac right now because both have had to draw down substantially the cash on hand they had when the Treasury. Without them, we would lose the other 70 percent of the mortgage market overnight, turning a housing recession into a deep housing depression.

In my view, if it were not for the Federal Government at this hour, working through FHA and other federally supported institutions, there would be no mortgage credit available at all.

The FHA has a mission. It is to ensure that adequate and affordable mortgage credit is available in every part of our Nation. It is currently fulfilling that mission admirably, while many other sources of credit, as I mentioned earlier, have totally disappeared or almost completely disappeared.

The Federal Housing Administration pushes against the prevailing downward winds in our economy. It is counter-cyclical. The Secretary of the Treasury should turn the FHA into a procyclical program, withdrawing credit, pulling it back, when credit is so difficult to come by. This change would help deepen the worst housing recession we are experiencing since the Great Depression.

Moreover, I think it is important to know that FHA fund is not at risk. As of the second half of the fiscal year 2009, the sum of FHA’s investments and cash on hand is nearly $32 billion. Its net position, assets minus liabilities, on March 31 of this year, was a positive $11.8 billion. Although FHA’s capital has fallen to 3 percent, it is still 50 percent above its statutorily mandated level of 2 percent. Failing capital in tandem with losses is not what is going on. We all understand that. That is what you have capital for, to protect yourself in the bad times.

In addition, it is important to remember that FHA has always been a fluid-rate mortgage backer, never got involved in the exotic and often predatory practices offered by the subprime lenders. FHA has also required income to be documented and verified.

In fact, because FHA has been known for its solid loan products, more and more people with better credit quality are using FHA today. Over the past 6 months, the average credit score in FHA has increased by nearly 40 points. Finally, current law already establishes a fiduciary duty “to ensure that the Mutual Mortgage Insurance Fund remains financially sound.” The Secretary is already required to make program changes or adjust premiums if FHA’s performance is expected to differ substantially from the baseline established by an independent actuarial report.

Secretary Donovan has assured me and the Congress that the Congress would be immediately alerted if he thought the FHA was at risk at all.

In short, I ask my colleagues, again, I say this respectfully of its author, to oppose this amendment. It is not needed. It would be exactly the wrong message, the wrong action to be taking at this critical time. Solvency is not an insignificant issue, but the role of the FHA is not to provide solvency, necessarily, but it is to provide credit at a time when credit is not available.

When as many people as I have indicated by the facts are relying on the FHA at a time when we are trying to encourage home ownership on responsible terms—and the FHA, as I pointed out earlier, was not one of these exotic lenders that was out there with these predatory practices. Quite the contrary. So rather than, in a sense, changing the mission of the FHA, fundamentally altering what its goal is and ought to be at these times, we need to oppose this amendment.
Again, we need to rely, as we can and must, on the fact that the FHA is in sound shape. If it is not for some reason, we have every reason to believe we can take that step.
Accordingly, again, I would urge our colleagues, when talking about both of these amendments, join me in opposing them, given the difficulty that both these amendments would raise if they were to be approved.
Again, I will be happy to be in the Chamber for the next hour or so. If people wish to come over and engage in a discussion or debate, I welcome that opportunity. But at 5:30, in a little more than an hour, we will have a vote on both these amendments of our colleague from Louisiana.
Let me say, again, I think we assume this is personal in nature. It is not. I have respect for my colleague. We have a different point of view on matters.
That is the nature of the institution and the debate that occurs.
I don't question his motives or the sincerity behind his amendments, but I believe in both cases they would move us in the opposite direction from where we need to be going.
With regard to TARP funding, all of us wish to get the TARP money back to the taxpayers as quickly as we can with interest. But we need to understand it is more than just capitalization when we make that decision. We don't want to do harm to our economy at a critical moment such as this. Secondly, with regard to FHA, solvency is important. The mission of FHA is, of course, to be countercyclical, not procycical. At a critical time such as this, depriving them of that opportunity—so taxpayers are not left on the hook. I ask my colleagues to support that amendment.
Mr. BOND. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent to have this article printed in the RECORD following my remarks.
The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.
(See exhibit 1.)
Mr. BOND. Let me reemphasize, because this is important, if we continue to overburden FHA, this powder keg may explode.
I thank my colleague, Senator VITTER, for highlighting the need to make protecting our FHA solvency a priority—so taxpayers are not left on the
that amendment.
Madam President, I yield the floor.

The New Home Bust

Everyone knows how loose mortgage underwriting led to the go-go days of multitrillion-dollar subprime lending. What isn't well known is that a parallel subprime market has emerged over the past year—all made possible by the Federal Housing Administration. This also won't end happily for taxpayers or the housing market.
Last year banks issued $180 billion of new mortgages insured by the FHA, which means they carry a 100% taxpayer guarantee.
Many of those have the same characteristics as subprime loans: low downpayment requirements, high-risk borrowers, and in many cases shady mortgage originators.
Homes now insured nearly one of every three new mortgages, up from 2% in 2006.
The financial results so far are not as dire as those created by the subprime frenzy of 2004-2007, but taxpayer losses are mounting on its $562 billion portfolio. According to Mortgage Bankers Association data, more than one in eight FHA loans, is now delinquency—nearly triple the rate on conventional, nonsubprime loan portfolios. Another 7.5% of recent FHA loans are in "serious delinquency," which means at least three coverage. FHA's economic value has fallen by almost 40 percent over the past year.
FHA approval of new lenders has increased by 525 percent over the past 2
years, and there is evidence some former subprime lenders and brokers take advantage of FHA to make money Any activity in the mortgage industry has put in play—and FHA indifference to protecting it means banks and mortgage lenders have no option but to underwrite standards, in particular by elimi-ating the 100% guarantee. That guarantee means banks and mortgage lenders have no
skin in the game; lenders collect the 3% to 5% origination fees on as many FHA loans as they can push out the door regardless of whether the borrower has a likelihood of repaying the mortgage.

The housing foreclosure crisis continues to affect families and communities throughout the Nation. I appre-CIATE the efforts of Senators DODD and HELBY and the Banking Committee to try to tackle this crisis.
Until we address these issues head-on and remove the toxic assets that have poisoned not only our financial system but the world's financial system, economic recovery will be difficult to achieve. President Obama himself said, when he addressed us in January, that all the other things happening are not going to get us out of the crisis we are in until we get the toxic assets out of the system.
I particularly appreciate the fact that included in the bill is the Dodd-Crappo-Bond bill as an amendment which will strengthen the Federal Insurance Corporation to go after institutions which are on the verge of failing. To me, that is the direction this administration and the previous one should have been following but have not.
But there are some troubling aspects of the Government's action in the FHA area, and I am concerned about the im-lications of some of the provisions in the bill before us. My biggest concern is the health and solvency of the Department of Housing and Urban Devel-oped's Federal Housing Administration, or FHA. I appreciate the work the managers have done to deal with the situation, and there is evidence Senator VITTER's efforts to raise this issue through an amendment he has offered.
I think this amendment goes in the right direction. We might want to work on some of the language, but it gets at the problem.

The bottom line is this: The FHA is a powder keg that could explode, leaving the taxpayers on the hook if Congress and the administration continue to overburden the Government agency. As I stated at a recent Transportation, Housing and Urban Development Appropriations Subcommittee hearing, the FHA's health and solvency are at high risk. The signs are troubling in many ways. FHA mortgage default rates are at their highest level in several years. FHA's economic value has fallen by almost 40 percent over the past year. FHA approval of new lenders has increased by 525 percent over the past 2
years, and there is evidence some former subprime lenders and brokers have infiltrated FHA to conduct busitness. That in itself ought to be an alarm bell that goes off. Fraudulent activity in the mortgage industry has put in play—and FHA indifference to protecting it means banks and mortgage lenders have no
option but to underwrite standards, in particular by elimiinating the 100% guarantee. That guarantee means banks and mortgage lenders have no
skin in the game; lenders collect the 3% to 5% origination fees on as many FHA loans as they can push out the door regardless of whether the borrower has a likelihood of re-
paying the mortgage.

Mr. DODD. Madam President, let me just say that my offering these amendments should not necessarily indicate we have reached an agreement on these amendments. Senator GRASSLEY’s staff and our staff are working together to see if we can achieve an agreement on them. We hope we do. But certainly he has the right to raise those amendments. I was more than happy to offer them on his behalf.

With that, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The clerks will call the roll.

The bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. VITTER. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

AMENDMENTS Nos. 1016 and 1017

Under the previous order, the time until 5:30 shall be equally divided prior to a vote in relation to amendments Nos. 1016 and 1017 offered by the Senator from Louisiana, Mr. Vitter.

The Senator from Louisiana is recognized.

Mr. VITTER. Madam President, I rise to again present my amendments coming up for a vote, Nos. 1016 and 1017. I have spoken before on this floor about them, but I want to summarize briefly.

Amendment No. 1016 is very simple and straightforward, but it is very important as well. It says any bank that has accepted taxpayer TARP dollars can repay those dollars, with interest, and get out of the program whenever it wants, as long as it meets all of the safety and soundness criteria, and all the capitalization and liquidity criteria that any other existing requirement, cause the FHA to be reasonably likely to need a bailout from Congress—which a lot of folks think is imminent—then the Commissioner shall temporarily suspend that program which is causing a need for a bailout and recommend legislation to Congress to fix the situation.

Many observers, including the Wall Street Journal, think it is a virtual certainty that we are headed toward a crippling blow to the FHA needing a bailout from Congress. Rather than rush there and heap more burdens and more requirements and more need for the FHA, which this underlying bill does, perhaps we should put in some basic protections to the solvency of the FHA. That is what my amendment does very clearly.

With that, I reserve the remainder of my time.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Who yields time?

Mr. DODD. Madam President, I see my friend from Louisiana is here. I spoke earlier about my colleague’s two amendments. I appreciate the spirit and motivation behind them. I will take a couple of minutes to review my concern about the Congress regarding Senator Vitter’s first amendment, No. 1016, dealing with TARP money. I think we all would like money coming back sooner rather than later—getting to a point where these resources come back, with additional limitations, to the taxpayers so taxpayers can be made whole as a result of coming up with that money in the first instance and trying to bring stability to the financial markets. There is no debate about that. We agree about that.

There was significant debate that occurred about whether there should be TARP money to begin with. It wasn’t all one way. I supported it. I thought it made sense to try to stabilize our economy. I believe most believe that the decision made last September, early October, was the right one. In fact, had we not done that, we probably would have lost major lending institutions in the country over many months. Obviously, this administration inherited a good part of the problem, which didn’t begin overnight, and it is trying to grapple with it in a holistic fashion, institution by institution.

My concern with the amendment of my friend from Louisiana is this: He is certainly correct if we have an institution that is well capitalized, that is a very important criteria in consideration of when these TARP moneys ought to be repaid. My concern is it is not the only criteria. We have major lending institutions, such as Citibank and Bank of America, that are well capitalized but, frankly, they have other issues they are grappling with beyond being well capitalized.

If there was this one criterion, then we would be able to have the TARP money come back. Citibank may want to do that, and Bank of America—and I am not suggesting they do, but they may—their problems could migrate very quickly to the larger financial problems with which we are trying to deal. On the one hand, I agree with the motivation, and that is we ought to try to get to the bottom of this as quickly as well as the TARP moneys back so the Treasury is replenished with these resources. On the other hand, if we do so prematurely solely on the basis of being well capitalized, we can end up compounding a problem that is already serious and making it far worse.

For that reason, I urge this amendment be rejected. I say that respectfully to my colleague. I don’t like getting up and FHA has an amendment that is simple reason of opposing them. There is a difference here, above one criteria on which we would depend solely on the determination of returning these dollars, putting the larger issue at risk, FHA is strictly the right move to make at this point. Therefore, at the appropriate time I will ask for the amendment to be rejected.

Regarding FHA—and, again, I find myself in the awkward position of not disagreeing with my colleague. Solvency is obviously an important issue. Had the rest of the lending institutions in the country been as prudent as FHA, we wouldn’t be here talking about this larger problem. FHA never engaged in the exotic instruments that many others did in the subprime markets with teaser rates and no-doc loans, as they were called, or liar loans, as they have been a monkey business, prudent operation. Today, when very little credit is available for home mortgages, FHA is proving to be vitally important. Thirty percent of the mortgage market today is made up of FHA. If there is the chance of it—today it is 50 percent above statutorily what it is required to have on a cap of 2 percent, at 3 percent, less than 6 they had a while ago. Obviously, we have to keep an eye on this. But law unilaterally requires the Secretary of the Treasury to notify the Congress when, in fact, there is danger of FHA falling either at or below that 2-percent requirement. Again, solvency is not insignificant. If that becomes the criteria at a time when we need to be getting more credit out so we begin to get the housing market moving again, I think it is absolutely essential. If FHA is forced to close down just as it is needed most, making sure FHA is countercyclical—not procyclical—which is exactly what we need to be is countercyclical, not procyclical—then we would be turning the recession in the housing area into a depression, which none of us want to see happen.

At this very moment, were we to move away from FHA when so much of our housing market depends upon them, I think would be a step in the wrong direction. For that reason, I respectfully express my opposition to this amendment. Again, I find myself in the awkward position of not disagreeing with what my colleague talks about in the case of both amendments; that is, getting TARP money back as soon as we can and that solvency is a critically important function at FHA. That is why the statute was written the way it was. I agree with him on those points. I am just concerned if in the first case we set a sole criteria of being well capitalized in the case of FHA if solvency is the only value, then we lose the value of FHA at a time when housing is being a hard time finding available credit.

I yield to the PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Louisiana.

Mr. VITTER. Madam President, I appreciate the kind comments of my colleague. I note that he never disagrees with me, although, unfortunately, he always opposes my amendments. We will work through that.

I have a few closing comments. First of all, with regard to my first amendment, I am very much against the TARP money as long as they are sound and secure, I note that the U.S. Chamber of Commerce strongly supports this amendment. I have a letter from the Chamber.

I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the Record the letter from the Chamber of Commerce.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the Record, as follows:

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE UNITED STATES CONGRESS:

Mr. DODD. Madam President, I reserve the remainder of my time to the extent I have any.

Mr. VITTER. Madam President, I would respectfully ask our colleagues to oppose them, I think would be a step in the right direction.

Accordingly, the Chamber urges you to support Vitter Amendment #1 to S. 896.

Sincerely,

R. BRUCE JOSTEN,
Executive Vice President, Government Affairs.

Mr. VITTER. Madam President, I also note a particular line in that letter, which is an excellent point, which is that the repayment of these moneys from TARP banks will actually be an enormously positive confidence-inspiring element of events. I would do a lot to shore up concern regarding financial institutions that will be correctly perceived as movement in the right direction.

With regard to my second amendment regarding the FHA, I just note a couple of things. First of all, my amendment does not propose in any way shutting down the FHA under any circumstances. What it says is, if the FHA thinks it is headed toward insolvent, it is going to stop these new mandates on it, these new programs which are pushing it toward insolvent and, at the same time, immediately report to Congress about how we deal with that situation.

Unfortunately, I don’t think it is a very well kept secret that this is a grave threat for the FHA to start walking down the path of Fannie and Freddie and everyone else.

Again, the Wall Street Journal wrote in their very prescient article, “The Next Housing Bust,” predicting exactly that. There are very many tell-tale signs on the horizon:

According to Mortgage Bankers Association data, more than one in eight FHA loans is now delinquent, nearly triple the rate of conventional non-subprime loan portfolios. Another 7.5 percent of recent FHA loans are in serious delinquency, which means at least 3 months overdue. The FHA is almost certainly going to need a taxpayer bailout in the months ahead.

I try to head this off before another collapse, another rattling of the system is upon us and keep the FHA solvent rather than having it shaken, having public confidence rattled once again and having Congress have to act in a complete emergency atmosphere. My amendment would head that off in an effective way.

Madam President, I reserve the remainder of my time to the extent I have any.

Mr. DODD. Madam President, I wish to add regarding the FHA amendment, for my colleague’s information, joining me in opposing the amendment are the mortgage bankers, homebuilders, realtors, Lenders One—the people very involved in the residential mortgage market. I note they expressed a concern about the amendment.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. DODD. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Under the previous order, there will now be 2 minutes of debate, equally divided, prior to a vote on amendment No. 1016, offered by the Senator from Louisiana, Mr. VITTER.

Mr. DODD. Madam President, I think we are both prepared to waive that time and go right to the vote.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, there will now be 2 minutes of debate equally divided prior to a vote on amendment No. 1017, offered by the Senator from Louisiana, Mr. VITTER.

The amendment (No. 1016) was rejected.

Mr. DODD. Madam President, I move to reconsider the vote, and I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, there will now be 2 minutes of debate equally divided prior to a vote on amendment No. 1017, offered by the Senator from Louisiana, Mr. VITTER.

The amendment (No. 1017) was rejected.

Ms. LANDRIEU. Mr. President, I know we are probably going to move forward on discussing the underlying bill. I ask unanimous consent to speak about a resolution I would like to discuss for a moment, about a wonderful event that actually took place in our country this weekend.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Ms. LANDRIEU. Mr. President, every year for 135 years, the country has been watching and cheering and celebrating the Kentucky Derby.

While this event is not held in Louisiana—it is held in Kentucky—many people in my State and around the country tune in. Some people have the opportunity to actually attend what has become one of the most extraordinary sporting events in our Nation’s calendar year. This weekend was no exception. It was an extraordinary race. Anyone who watched it could attest to the tremendous skill of the Louisiana-born-and-bred jockey who rode Mine That Bird to a victory in a heart-pounding, quite shocking and surprising victory. So this resolution just simply says:

Whereas Calvin Borel, born and raised in St. Martin Parish, Louisiana, began riding match horses at the age of 8;—

As my husband says, we just sort of strap them on and let them go, but he most certainly learned at a young age.

Whereas Mr. Borel began his professional career as a jockey at the age of 16;

Whereas [he] has more than 4,500 career starts;—

Whereas [he] won the 13th Kentucky Derby by 6½ length, the greatest winning margin since 1946;—

Whereas [he] is the first jockey since 1993 to win both the Kentucky Oaks—

Which is the fillies race—and the Kentucky Derby in the same year;—

Whereas in 2 minutes and 26.6 seconds, [he] and Mine That Bird completed the race and placed first, making it [his] second Kentucky Derby victory: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate commends Calvin Borel and Mine That Bird for their extraordinary victory at the 135th Kentucky Derby.
It is an event that Senator KAY BAILEY Hutchison and I proudly and happily, joyfuly sponsor every year for the Senate; that is, Take Our Daughters and Sons to Work Day.

It was started 17 years ago by Ms. Magazine, thinking it might be a good idea for girls, particularly girls between 10 and 16, I gave an opportunity to go to work with their parents because many women, of course, do wonderful work at home raising children and working out of the home. But a lot of important work goes on outside of the home as well. Ms. Magazine thought that would be a great opportunity for girls, particularly, and then, of course, have included boys, to go anywhere where their parents work, whether that work is out of the home or in the home and actually come to appreciate work that is related to keeping our society moving forward and this country moving forward.

So KAY BAILEY Hutchison and I cohosted. The Senator from Texas and I hosted this every year. I would like to first acknowledge her support, also acknowledge Ms. Magazine that founded this day, and to thank all of our Senators and staff and workers around the Capitol who participated in that day.

I ask unanimous consent to print in the RECORD the names of the young ladies who joined me that day.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Sophie Boudreaux, Meraux, LA, Chalmette High School; Dominique Cravins, Washington, DC, St. Peter's School; Heather Duplessis, New Orleans, LA, Metairie Park Country Day School; Maya English, Baton Rouge, LA, St. George's Episcopal School; Matisseur Gilmore, Mitchellville, MD; Monet Gilmore, Mitchellville, MD; Golnax Kamrad, Washington, DC, Georgetown Day School; Mallory MacRostie, Bethesda, MD, Bethesda Chevy Chase High School; Lily Silva, Washington, DC, Georgetown Day School; Mary Shannon, Shingles, daughter of Senator Landrieu, Washington, DC, Georgetown Day School; Mary Agnes Nixon, Washington, DC, Aian Montessori School; Sydni Rita-Tucker, New Orleans, LA, Online Academy; Kelsey Teo, Bristow, VA, Stonewall Jackson High School; Eliza Warner, daughter of Senator Mark Warner, Alexandria, VA, School; Britany Watts, Tickfaw, LA, Hammond High School.

Ms. LANDRIEU. These young ladies and many young men who joined them had a wonderful day, understanding what happens at the Capitol, working in the Senate. I thank them and their parents for making this day special for us and hope and trust that their day was inspirational to them as they think about their career opportunities in the future.

I yield the floor and suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. SCHUMER. I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. SCHUMER. Mr. President, I will not offer my amendment at the moment. We are still trying to negotiate it. But I want to discuss an amendment I will offer, hopefully, with agreement. That is an amendment that would require the Secretary of the Treasury, in consultation with the Secretary of HUD and other housing-related Federal agencies, to develop a program to address the rising defaults and foreclosures in multifamily properties.

The program is necessary because the same excesses that occurred in the single-family mortgage market also occurred in the multifamily mortgage market, leading to buildings that are significantly over-rented with rent rolld that are unable to support basic operational expenses and maintenance. The tenants of these buildings had absolutely no input into the misguided decision of the owners and lenders who mortgaged the property beyond supportable levels, but they are the ones who will face the consequences of this investment and foreclosure, as owners are unable to meet monthly payments and maintain the properties.

In New York City alone, it is estimated that a large portion of multifamily housing are at risk of disinvestment and foreclosure. We have similar problems in smaller ways in many upstate cities as well. We have seen buildings in New York where in order to make the loan underwriting work, lenders estimated tenant turnover rates that would double or triple the neighborhood average, rent increases that were not even legal under local law, and expected maintenance costs that were actually the renter-rent in previous years. This kind of basic underwriting malpractice has left tens of thousands of families in New York State and other States vulnerable. We are not the only ones. New York has the highest multifamily delinquency rate in the country, according to a recent Deutsche Bank report.

The 15 States with the highest multifamily delinquency rates are not concentrated just in the Northeast or on the west coast. This is a truly national problem. I ask my colleagues to listen because their State may be among the one-third, or close to it, the 15 out of 50. They are Tennessee, Georgia, Florida, Michigan, Nevada, Texas, Illinois, Ohio, Indiana, Connecticut, Oklahoma, New York, Kentucky, Missouri, and Mississippi.

While I am strongly supportive of the administration's efforts to help families who have lost their homes, the loan modifications and other financing options, a similar effort to protect tenants of multifamily properties must be made. It must be made in a way to protect the tenants and first and foremost to let the developers and the investors, who did all the wrong, get away with wrongs.

Housing experts in New York have begun to examine options to assist these buildings. There are a number of different ways that might be effective in addressing this problem. So the bottom line is, we need Federal expertise, leadership, and support to help determine the best course of action and implement a program across the country to make sure that innocent tenants do not have to pay the price for the poor decisions of landlords and lenders.

This should be an easy amendment to support. I am not asking for any new money. We are certainly not asking to bail out any of the bad actors or even giving specific directions to the Treasury Department to take this approach or that one, although I have talked to the Secretary of HUD about this problem and, in fact, we worked on some problems related to this when he was the head of the HUD, the housing department in New York City.

What we are doing in this amendment is simply asking the Congress to direct Treasury to examine this problem and develop a program to address it in whatever way they determine best. My hope is that the Treasury will consult with HUD. It is unfair that tenants of multifamily rental buildings are being left out in the cold while single-family homeowners receive focused attention from their agencies. Single-family homeowners should but should also those in multiple developments.

I urge my colleagues to support the amendment.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. SCHUMER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. SCHUMER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that once the Senate considers the amendment to S. 896 on Tuesday, May 5, the time until 10:50 a.m. be for debate with respect to the Corker amendment No. 1019, with the time equally divided and controlled between Senators DODD and CORKER or their designees; that at 10:50 a.m., the Senate proceed to vote in relation to the amendment, with no amendment in order to the amendment prior to a vote.
of health insurance, which is supposed to ease uncertainty, breeding uncertainty instead. If they lose their job, they lose their insurance. If they get sick, they cannot get insurance. If they submit a claim, it may be paid in a month, in 3 months, in 6 months. Sometimes they fight and pay their bills with credit, and the claim is not paid at all. Ohioans are tired of their insurer treating them like unwanted guests rather than paying customers. To be meaningful, health care reform must be more than words. And to be responsive, health care reform must address insurance affordability, insurance reliability, and insurance continuity. That requires a two-part strategy. The first strategy is to give Ohioans and every American more options. They should be able to choose whether to keep the coverage they have or purchase coverage backed by the Federal Government. What is the difference between the two?

The federally backed plan—again, an option—would provide continuity; it would be available in every part of the country, no matter how rural, no matter how sparsely populated, its benefits would be guaranteed, and its cost-sharing would be standard. Are you interested in life, or is it just a burden? The federally backed plan would not be an option but certainly not the only option. Americans who have employer-sponsored coverage would still have it. Americans who have individual coverage through a private insurer would still have that. The federally backed insurance would be an option, not a mandate. Some people will choose it, others will not.

One reason such an option—a Federal option—is important is because hundreds of thousands of Americans are losing their jobs and have no place to go, have no affordable coverage options. This would give them one. Where would they turn otherwise? If you have ever tried to purchase affordable coverage in the individual insurance market, you understand why a federally backed insurance program is so important. If you live in a rural area where no affordable insurance coverage is available, you know why a federally backed insurance option is so important. There needs to be an option for people who cannot find what they need in the private insurance market—just as Medicare is there for seniors. The federally backed plan will give those under 65 a place to turn.

The second strategy is to fix what is wrong with private insurance. Ohioans should not be discriminated against by insurers based on past health care needs. Take, for example, Debra from Summit County, OH, near Akron. She is one of the nearly 50 million Americans locked out of our health care system because she lacks insurance. Her income is too high for Medicaid, and her preexisting conditions—she has a spinal injury and is recovering from surgery to ease uncertainty, breeding uncertainty instead. If they lose their job, they lose their insurance. If they get sick, they cannot get insurance. If they submit a claim, it may be paid in a month, in 3 months, in 6 months. Sometimes they fight and pay their bills with credit, and the claim is not paid at all. Ohioans are tired of their insurer treating them like unwanted guests rather than paying customers. Her income is too high for Medicaid, and her preexisting conditions—she has a spinal injury and is recovering from surgery. She wrote to me:

My only option [is] to start paying for my funeral.

Ohioans should not have to go through 100 hoops just to get a claim paid. They should not be rebuffed because they have a ‘pre-existing condition.’ They should not have to wait for months to receive their claims check. They should not have to pay premiums that break the bank. They should not have to pay copays and deductibles so high that coverage, for all intents and purposes, is meaningless. They should not be subjected to huge bills based on the difference between what their provider charges and their insurer’s reasonable and customary payments. When an insurer reimburses providers only pennies on the dollar and patients have to pick up the difference, that is not reasonable. That is not real insurance.

Long story short: Insurance reform, putting the public option, must be part of health care reform. We cannot claim we have fixed our health care system while leaving a fault-riddled insurance system intact. If we give consumers more options, including the option to purchase federally backed coverage designed to provide affordability, reliability, and continuity, and if we reform the private health insurance system to require insurers to actually do their job instead of skirting their liability, we will have gone a long way toward making the U.S. health care system work for every American.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Connecticut.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I compliment our colleague from Ohio for his eloquent statement. I think it is important that we all hear our colleagues as to what goes on in our respective States. I commend my colleague, who has had around 150 roundtables in his State with those who have been listening to his constituents on a wide range of issues. I think we all benefit from his report on those meetings.

I say to my colleague from Ohio, those responses you are hearing from your constituents in Ohio are not any different from what we are hearing from all across the country, as I know my colleague is aware. So we thank our colleague very much for that, and his comments on health care are very important.

KENTUCKY DERBY

Mr. BINGAMAN. Mr. President, even people who don’t follow horse racing, and certainly those who do, have been thunderstruck by this year’s Kentucky Derby results. The only reason I mention it is that the horse wearing the blanket of roses this year is a gelding from New Mexico. “Mine That Bird” swept the field on Saturday, coming from so far behind he was last, to win with nearly seven lengths separating him from his nearest competitor.
We have seen his trainer, Bennie "Chip" Woolley, and his owners, Mark Allen and Leonard Blach, talk about this remarkable victory and the outstanding jockey, Calvin Borel. He took his horse from last to first by the shortest furlong—along the rail. It was a masterful display of ability and skill from all involved, not least the horse, and New Mexicans are delighted that our state is home to this remarkable victory and about the outstanding jockey, Calvin Borel. We are raising a beautiful family of good, caring, hard-working children. The rising cost of fuel has affected us. We do not even have the option of purchasing a hybrid, or smaller car as our family will not even fit. We will be staying closer to home this summer, though we have family out of town who we would love to visit. I do not have a heart-wrenching story to give you, but it affects our family every day. Due to the increasing price of food, clothing, and transportation, we have cut back. We will make it, but it takes money away from savings for medical expenses, and just general peace of mind savings.

I am a stay-at-home mom, who has thought more than once lately of finding a new line of work in order to save money. I need to have the upbringing of my six children someone else.

I would very much like us to open up the resources we have in this great country. It seems ludicrous to me that we have the resources right around us, and yet continue to buy foreign fuels. . . . The earth was placed in our hands and we are still to care for it even when tapping into those resources that are so abundant around us. Research alternative energy methods, find ways to harness those things around us to power our lives.

Thank you for listening.

My husband and I are frustrated with having to spend so much gasoline on these days when the oil companies are making so high a profit that each quarter they set a new record. Why are they charging so high prices at the pump when they are continuously setting new record-highs? Bennie Woolley lives and works in southeast Boise near Micron, where there are no public transportation services available and impossible to ride a bicycle, I can not drive a car to work. Carpooling is not feasible due to my schedule after work.

If it were my choice, I would very much like us to open up our summer vacation to Oregon to visit family and the Oregon Coast. Due to gas prices we cannot make it to Washington this summer to visit our three other children and their families. Our daughter and son-in-law who live near Belfair, Washington, are faced with the same problem as we are, and they will afford heat this winter because they have oil heat in their house. They cannot afford to purchase a new electric furnace nor can they afford to have the oil tank refilled with the current prices. A few weeks ago when it was still cold, they ran out of oil and had the tank refilled one-quarter. It costs them approximately $450. A tank does not make it through the winter and they in no way afford to pay current prices. These prices are causing difficulty for many people and we have to have the oil tank refilled with the current prices. 3. More electric and plug-in hybrid cars. Most people do not seem to make the connection that nuclear, coal, wind, etc. produce electricity and without electric and plug-in hybrids, we are not going to be able to do that. We have the technology now for both of these types of cars. Let us start producing them! This is probably the quickest and most effective way to deal with the situation. We already have all of the infrastructure in place.

4. Hydrogen Vehicles: This technology is a long way off. Also, what about the infrastructure? It would be ridiculously expensive.

I would say this to any politician: Please do what is right for the United States, regardless of what is right for you personally or politically. That is really what we need.

NATHAN, Idaho Falls.

You may not like what I have to say, but I believe in tough love and tough policies. Current oil prices are causing changes, but they are too insignificant to think that creating a "recession" whereby the cost of fuel is real. It is real that foreign oil prices are too high to ignore. Governments getting in the way of a natural rebellion to that real cost does not offer long-term sustainable solutions. Okay, so I become a bit more frugal with the miles I drive; and so I start looking into buying a more fuel-efficient vehicle. These changes cause real and natural consequences like manufacturers dumping more of their money into creating greener options for consumers. Consumers will rebel against costs. Life-styles will change. Why do not we embrace the positive direction this drives us away from materialism and consumerism (the hatred of which caused us to be the target of the Taliban in the first place)?

War on terrorism is still war. Showing love to our planet and global community by accepting the consequences of our policies (need I elaborate?) and vowing not to repeat or continue the rape our natural resources: this will heal the hatred. There is something much bigger at stake here than the few "books of the American people. I urge you to dig for that, not for petroleum.

All the issues are as connected as we Americans are to the cultures that span the globe.

SUSAN, Ketchum.

I am a disabled Vietnam Veteran; my disability benefits are $914 a month. With the cost of gas now and the rising price of food, I cannot go anywhere. It takes me three months to save enough extra money to buy a tank of gas to go visit my mother, who is in a home in Jackson, Wyoming. If gas and food prices get any higher, there will be no need for me to even own a car, for I will not be able to afford the insurance and tags.

ROBERT.

I am less concerned about gasoline price than I am about heating fuel. Being recently (voluntarily) placed in the "fixed income category, I am in a position that as I do have a fair amount of discretion regarding the number of miles I drive each year, but as both my wife and I work and both have to work away from home, thus increasingly more sensitive to hyperthermia, I am much less flexible regarding heating. The projected global cooling for the next decade, with return to harsh Idaho winters, simply exacerbates the situation. A few years ago, the highest monthly electric bill for electricity, gas, and propane was on the order of $500. Last winter, that cost rose to $1,500. Looking at projected fuel and electricity costs, within a year, it is going to rise to $3,000. Should that happen, I am faced with the prospect of having to sell my house in order to afford heating it.

In the 1970s, the citizens of this country accepted energy conservation as a stopgap measure to allow the federal government time to develop a workable and affordable energy infrastructure for the country. The federal government has not only squandered the three decades of grace given it, but has actively blocked all measures attempted by private enterprise to develop a workable domestic energy supply. The only measures that have been taken by the federal government (such as ethanol) have made the situation worse by skyrocketing food costs, which we are only now seeing the leading edge of. I raise poultry. A 50-pound bag of turkey finisher (of which my fowl are a component) cost $8 in 2004. In February of this year, it was $15. Last month, that same sack of turkey finisher was cost $30. Scratch grain rose from $5 to $15 during that same time frame. Chicken feed ain't chicken feed any more, and although transportation costs and other factors are certainly a major reason, I think that the major contributor is not the major contributor. Whatever were you people thinking of when you decided to subsidize competition of this country's energy supply with its food supply?

As far as what I want to see our federal government do, first, dissolve the Department of Energy and replace it with a commission; then task them to correct the total failure of the DOE to devise an effective short-term and long-term energy policy for the USA. Second, remove the hobbes the government has placed on the oil companies for using currently known petroleum reserves, including offshore and, especially, ANWR. Third, roll back the excessive and crippling regulations the federal government has placed on this country. Quit the insane policy of requiring our dwindling number of refineries to produce dozens of different gasoline and diesel blends. Return to a licensing process that allows a nuclear plant, coal-fired plant, or refinery to be on line within five years of lining up the money and building it. The government immediately commencing the development and build and operate nuclear plants at the scale needed to have a commitment to improving the well-being of children and their families. I support the development and utilization of our natural resources including drilling on the north slope and extracting shale oil in Utah, Colorado, and Wyoming. Why would we endanger our sovereignty by relying so heavily on foreign oil? We should be producing our own oil like we did in the 1950s when the U.S. reacted to the oil embargo of 1973. OPEC realized that we were capable of being self-sufficient and therefore constantly tried to make our economic policy difficult to deal with the natural results of competition. Our founding fathers understood the concept—have we forgotten it? I do not support increased taxes for oil companies or the consumer. Let the oil guys make some money and remove the fetters of exploration, refinement, and drilling. Let us take care of America for a change. Every American should be able to afford to drive—it is part of being free.

DON.

Fewer trips, less fishing, flying when I used to drive—all because of the partisan behavior of politicians. Most lack plain old "common sense", lack any business or military horse sense. I believe price of fuel will continue upward until we fix (partisan posturing).

BOB.

I just wanted to take a moment to write to you to let you know how the price of gasoline has affected me and my family and the recent past. I am a student working on my doctorate in Political Science at ISU. This last semester I had to drive from Rigby to Pocatello five days a week. As you may be aware, that is a one-way distance of about 70 miles. The cost last semester for transportation—air and fuel—ran about $300 per month. Because I would not be able to afford the transportation costs simply to get from home to campus and back home again.

I works for the local service and Idaho Falls as a night supervisor, and part of her job requires her to drive from site to site, delivering supplies, checking on the patients, and making sure that they have done their job. This means that she spends a good part of her job every night in the car, putting miles on driving from spot to spot. Her job does not pay her enough for gas used, and does not pay enough for her to be able to deduct her mileage off of her taxes. Since her employer cannot afford to give her a raise and we have no way of being able to recoup the increased costs of her doing her job, we have, in effect, had a cut in income from her. I do not know what can be done and I do not know what should be done, but something needs to change because I know in our case we are falling farther and farther behind simply because of the increased price in gasoline.

There is no doubt in my mind that we cannot drill our way out of this problem. But there is also no doubt that ignoring the production of drilling will make matters much worse. I believe we need to have a comprehensive energy policy that includes drilling for more oil resources, increased use of natural gas, a reduction in the policies that prohibit the building of nuclear power facilities, and coal liquefaction programs.

Thanks for reading my comments.

JAX, Rigby.

TRIBUTE TO CATHY LEWIS

Mr. BROWN. Mr. President, today I wish to commend and congratulate Cathy Lewis, the organization Voices for Ohio’s Children, to receive the 2009 Champion for Children Award.

Voices for Ohio’s Children established the Champion for Children Award in 2005 to recognize local individuals or organizations demonstrating a commitment to improving the well-being of children and their families.
Cathy Lewis, from Cleveland, OH, has been a strong and clear voice for children and their families for many years. Cathy’s volunteer and philanthropic works have made a real difference in the lives of thousands of Clevelanders, most of whom she is likely never to meet. As chairperson of the board of directors of the Cleveland Foundation from 2001 to 2003, she was instrumental in starting Cuyahoga County’s early childhood initiative, Invest in Children. This successful public/private partnership has helped families and communities provide that nurturing environment that we know is essential for the success of our children.

As Americans we are realizing the depth and breadth of the impact of HIV/AIDS on our communities. Cathy stepped up with others to form the Citizens’ Committee on AIDS/HIV. This group created a strategy for addressing AIDS prevention, education, and services that continues to this day as the AIDS Collaborative, which she chaired for 10 years.

Cathy currently serves on the Advisory Committee for the Center for International Child Health at Case Western Reserve University, the board of directors of the Institute for Research on Unlimitless Love, cochair of the Strong Families=Successful Children Vision Council at United Way, and is a trustee of the George Gund Foundation, where she serves as cochair of the Communications Committee for Invest in Children.

Cathy richly deserves the 2009 Champion for Children Award, and I thank her for her selfless service to Ohioans in need.

TRIBUTE TO JOHN PHILLIPS

Mr. COCHRAN. Mr. President, I am pleased to commend John Phillips of Holly Bluff, MS, for his service and contributions to the State of Mississippi during 2009, through his service as the 74th president of Delta Council.

Delta Council is an economic development organization representing the business, professional, and agricultural leadership of 18 delta and part-delta counties of Mississippi. This prominent and widely respected organization was formed in 1935 to deal with the challenges which faced the economy and quality of life of this region of our State.

John Phillips has served as president during a period when our Nation, as well as the State of Mississippi, and the Mississippi delta region, have experienced precedent-setting economic challenges. As an experienced businessman and farmer, John has brought an abundance of practical knowledge to the role of Delta Council president. His experience and expertise have enabled him also to be an effective advocate for flood protection in the Yazoo-Mississippi River basin. Additionally, he has demonstrated the foresight to accelerate and expand the efforts of Delta Council in other important areas of interest to Mississippi, including healthcare, adult literacy, early childhood education, and transportation throughout this region of our State.

John has also proven himself to be an exemplary conservationist by supporting efforts to protect wildlife and other valuable natural resources. He has utilized his year of service as president of Delta Council to advance the economic opportunities of all of the people of the Mississippi delta region. I am confident that John will continue to be an effective leader for the Mississippi delta in the years ahead.

In Mississippi we appreciate John Phillips, and his wife Ann Elise, their son, Jack; granddaughters, Whitney and Reid, for the sacrifices they have made to help improve the quality of life of all who live in the Mississippi delta.

HONORING THE NEW HAMPSHIRE STUDENT HONOREES IN THE 2009 PRUDENTIAL SPIRIT OF COMMUNITY AWARDS

Mrs. SHAHEEN. Mr. President, I would like to congratulate and honor two young New Hampshire students who have achieved national recognition for exemplary volunteer service in their communities.

Edward Zaremba of Salem has been named State Honoree in the 2009 Prudential Spirit of Community Awards program, an annual honor conferred on only one high school student and one middle school student in each State.

Mr. Zaremba was nominated by Pinkerton Academy for his work in founding a club at his school that promotes awareness and inclusion of students with developmental disabilities. The club sponsors social events throughout the year so that classmates with and without disabilities cannot only have fun together, but learn from each other as well.

Ms. Stein was nominated by St. Joseph Regional Catholic School for her work raising money for the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation. She baked cookies and cupcakes every night for 2 months and sold them at school the next day, raising a total of $440 for this very worthy organization.

It is important that we encourage and support the kind of selfless contributions these young people have made. People of all ages need to think more about how we, as individual citizens, can work together at the local level to ensure the health and vitality of our towns and neighborhoods. Young volunteers such as Mr. Zaremba and Ms. Stein are examples to all of us, and I commend them for their service.

I would also like to congratulate two other young people in my State of New Hampshire who were named Distinguished Finalists by the Prudential Spirit of Community Awards for their outstanding volunteer service. Rachel Liff of Bedford prepared a handbook for Special Olympics athletes and volunteers, and Jane Stark of Merrimack issued a guide to purchase water filtration systems for people living in developing countries.

All these young people have demonstrated a level of commitment and accomplishment that is encouraging in today’s world, and they deserve our admiration and respect. Their initiative shows that young Americans can—and do—play important roles in their communities, and that America’s community spirit continues to hold great promise for the future.

TRIBUTE TO JOHN A. GARRETT

Mr. SHELBY. Mr. President, today I pay tribute to John A. Garrett, an honorable Alabamian and a good friend of mine. On Sunday, May 10, 2009, John A. will celebrate his 100th birthday. John A. was born on July 25, 1909 in Bay Minette, AL. He graduated from Alabama Polytechnic Institute, now known as Auburn University, in 1936, the same year that he married the love of his life, Katherine Virginia Stowers, also of Snowdoun United Methodist Church in Montgomery. Together, they have two daughters, Kitty Walter Dawson and Mary John, a son-in-law Sim Byrd, three grandchildren, and five great-grandchildren.

Most people in Alabama know John A. for his many contributions to Alabama’s agriculture industry. During the 1950s, he served as the State director of commodity services for the Alabama Farm Bureau. Later, he would go on to farm and operate Cherokee Builders, an industrial and commercial construction business.

In 1969, he was appointed by President Nixon to serve as the director of the Alabama Farmer’s Home Administration, a position he would hold until 1977. In the early 1970s, John A. became a nationally recognized leader on agricultural and water issues. Later, at the age of 88, John A. established the Alabama Rural Water Association, an organization of which he served as executive director for 17 years.

An avid leader, John A. is the recipient of many honors and awards. In 1970, John A. was designated an Honorary Alabama Farmer by the Future Farmers of America. Two years later, in 1972, he received the ACTION Federal Employee Distinguished Service Award for his extraordinary volunteer service. In 1985, Auburn University honored John A. for his outstanding services on the Montgomery County Auburn Committee. He was named Alabama Farm Bureau's 1989 Citizen of the Year and in 1991 he was awarded to the Alabama Senior Citizens Hall of Fame.
John A. is also known for his wit and wisdom. In addition to authoring numerous poems, John A. penned the secrets to a wonderful life: a positive attitude and thinking, clean living, and “Toddy Time” every afternoon. Indeed, Congress should live by his rules.

Today, John A. remains very active in his community. He attends the monthly meetings of the Snowdoun community, Snowdoun Volunteer Fire Department, Montgomery County Alfa, and the Alabama Cattlemen’s Association. John A. can also frequently be found greeting the visitors at his gift shop on Mulberry Street or riding on his farm and tending to his cattle.

On the day of his 100th birthday, John A. will be celebrated by his friends and family, and honored for his dedication and many contributions to Alabama. I wish him much luck in his future endeavors, and I ask this entire Senate to join me in recognizing and honoring the life of my good friend John A. Garrett.

think of, including credit default, commodity, equity, foreign currency, interest rate, and even weather swaps. That type of sweeping statutory prohibition had never been included in any bill voted on by the Senate before being inserted into a must-pass appropriations bill in December. That is why the House appropriations bill was approved by the Senate on a voice vote.

Today we are living with the disastrous consequences of that ill-conceived prohibition on the regulation of swaps.

One example says it all: AIG. AIG is a financial holding company that, by itself, has cost taxpayers more than $150 billion so far. Over a period of years, AIG had issued more than $400 billion in credit default swaps without setting aside sufficient capital or liquidity reserves. After its swaps began losing value, AIG’s counterparties required it to put up additional collateral to secure payment on those swaps as AIG’s rating declined. AIG had purchased credit protection from other swap dealers as well as across the financial system. Regulators could then use that information to look into what additional safeguards are needed and what abuses need to be stopped.

The Levin-Collins bill offers a limited, commonsense way to restore immediate federal authority over a high-risk, high-dollar financial sector that has operated for too long in the shadows, and whose failure has cost us hundreds of billions of dollars so far. Due to the trillions of dollars and financial risks involved, I urge my colleagues to act on this bill as soon as possible.

I would also like to take a moment to extend my thanks and appreciation to the SEC, CFTC, and Treasury officials who took the time to provide technical assistance in drafting this legislation. I hope those agencies, and the Obama Administration as a whole, will announce their support for the bill and work for its enactment.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that a summary of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

SUMMARY OF LEVIN-COLLINS AUTHORIZING THE REGULATION OF SWAPS ACT

The Authorizing the Regulation of Swaps Act, introduced by Senator Carl Levin, D-Mich., and cosponsored by Senator Susan Collins, R-Maine, is intended to give federal financial regulators immediate authority over swap agreements in light of the fact that trillions of dollars in swap transactions continue to be marketed, traded, and implemented in the United States without adequate federal oversight or regulatory authority. Hundreds of billions of taxpayer dollars have already been expended to overcome the failures of firms that engaged in unregulated swaps. The bill contains the following provisions:

Repeat Existing Prohibitions on Regulated Swaps. The bill would repeal over a dozen provisions in existing law, including in the Commodity Futures Modernization Act of 2000, which prohibit federal financial regulators from regulating swaps.

regulators, including bank, securities and commodities regulators, to oversee and regulate all types of swap agreements, including credit default, commodity, equity, interest rate, and foreign currency swaps. The bill uses the same definition of swap agreement that is used in current law to prohibit swaps regulation, and would authorize federal oversight of all exchange-traded and over-the-counter swaps.

Require Consistent Treatment of Swaps. The bill does not require federal regulators to regulate swaps agreements—it merely authorizes such regulation and removes barriers that have prevented this regulation since 2000. Nor does the bill provide any direction to federal financial regulators on how to regulate swaps other than to require them to consult, work, and cooperate with each other to promote consistency in the treatment of swap agreements.

Establish Interim Authority. By removing existing statutory prohibitions and providing federal financial regulators with authority to oversee and regulate swaps, the bill would eliminate harmful statutory barriers, give regulators immediate interim authority over cross-border swaps, and clear the way for more specific swaps requirements in subsequent comprehensive financial reform legislation later this year.

By Mr. KERRY (for himself and Mr. LUGAR):

S. 962. A bill to authorize appropriations for fiscal years 2009 through 2013 to promote an enhanced strategic partnership with Pakistan and its people, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, I rise today to join my colleague, the ranking member of the Foreign Relations Committee, Senator LUGAR, in introducing what we consider to be an important piece of legislation from our committee and an important initiative for the administration and for the Congress and the American people. We are joining today to introduce the Enhanced Partnership with Pakistan Act. I believe the legislation has already been placed at the desk.

This legislation that will fundamentally change America’s policy toward Pakistan, and I hope over time it will fundamentally change America’s relationship with the people of Pakistan as well.

I especially thank Senator LUGAR for his partnership in crafting this legislation and for his ongoing leadership on this issue.

It is hard to overstate the importance of Pakistan to our national security. Many of the newspapers are full of events that are transpiring there and of the challenges we face. Pakistan is a nation which could either serve as a force for stability and progress in a volatile region or it could become an epicenter for terrorism and violence on a cataclysmic scale.

This is a nation of striking contradictions and on divergent paths forward.

On one hand, we all know Pakistan is a nation where Osama bin Laden and the leadership of al-Qaeda have found sanctuary for the past 7 years—a haven from which they and their confederates have plotted and carried out attacks on their host country, on neighboring countries, and on sites around the globe—a nation that has in recent weeks seen the Taliban advance to within 60 miles of its capital, and a nation with 170 million people who are overwhelmingly committed to democracy and rule of law; a major non-NATO ally that has sacrificed the lives of 1,500 of its soldiers and police in the fight against terrorism and insurgency; and a nation that has lost more of its citizens to the scourge of terrorism than all but a tiny handful of countries throughout the world.

In short, Pakistan has the potential either to be crippled by the Taliban or to serve as a bulwark against everything the Taliban represents. That is why the Obama administration and many of us in Congress see the need for a bold new strategy for Pakistan. The status quo has not brought success, the stakes couldn’t be higher, and we have little choice but to think differently—in fact, to think bigger—about what these challenges are. The Enhanced Partnership With Pakistan Act is the centerpiece of this new approach, which is why President Obama has called for it in his speeches.

An earlier version of this bill was reported out of the Foreign Relations Committee in July with overwhelming bipartisan support. This version builds upon its predecessor in a number of important ways. First, this new legislation directs $100 million toward an urgent need: police reform and equipping. Second, it mandates strict accountability from the administration as to every dollar that is spent, using benchmarks and metrics to measure and adapt our performance. Third, in light of the acute security challenge on the ground today, this bill gives our Ambassador the flexibility needed to respond to events as they unfold.

We believe this bill is urgently needed. For decades, the United States has sought the cooperation of Pakistani decisionmakers through military aid—almost exclusively military aid—while paying scant attention to the wishes and urgent needs of the population itself. This arrangement is, frankly, rapidly disintegrating. We believe we are paying too much for one thing and getting too little for a broad number of things we really need. When I say “we,” I really emphasize the Pakistani people’s needs. The desires and aspirations of the Pakistani people have never been adequately focused on or attended to sufficiently in these policies. Most Pakistanis understand that they have been, frankly, left out of the picture. As a result, an alarming percentage of the Pakistani population now sees America as a greater threat than al-Qaeda. Until we change that perception, there is, frankly, very little chance of ending tolerance for terrorist groups or persuading any Pakistani Government to devote the political capital necessary to deny such groups and to deny them the sanctuary they have taken, particularly in the western part of the country, as well as to deny them the covert material support which they have also been able to get from a number of different sources.

This bill is not the only one rising almost every day. So when people measure this legislation, that is really what they have to consider. What happens if you do nothing? Well, if you do nothing, it is clear that the march of terror that is taking hold in a number of different places clearly threatens nuclear weapons that might then potentially fall into hands that are completely unpredictable. In fact, to whatever degree they might be predictable, one can only see danger in that kind of eventuality. The danger is real. Almost any scenario played out plays against the broader interests of the Pakistani people and of the democratic Government which struggles today to provide services and to govern them.

Within the month since President Obama called on Congress to pass the bill we are now introducing, the situation on the ground in Pakistan has deteriorated significantly. The Government struck what many of us believed and hoped was a deal that effectively surrendered the Swat Valley to the Taliban. The deal, predictably—as many of us said—emboldened the Taliban to deploy the same brutal tactics they had used in both Pakistan and Afghanistan and to use their base in Swat to then extend their reach ever closer to the country’s heartland.

I emphasize—I know Senator LUGAR will join me in emphasizing this—ultimately it is not the United States or the policy of the United States that is going to decide what happens in Pakistan. Ultimately, it will be Pakistanis, not Americans, who must determine their nation’s future. But we can change the nature of our relationship and we can empower those Pakistanis who are fighting to steer the world’s second largest Muslim country onto a path of moderation and stability and regional cooperation. That is the foundation of the bill Senator LUGAR and I are introducing.

Frankly, I have seen firsthand how this approach works. Following the 2005 Kashmir earthquake, the United States spent nearly $1 billion on relief efforts. Having visited places, as I did then, such as Mianwali and Muzaffarabad in the earthquake’s aftermath, I can personally attest to the awesome power of the operation we launched. I will never forget flying up in a helicopter to the northwest part of Pakistan, not far from the big Himalayas, where one could see off in the distance, and landing in a small spot by the river and meeting kids in a tent city because this was the first time those kids had ever come out of the mountains and, in fact, the first time any of those kids had ever gone to school. It was extraordinary to see the sight of American service men and women introducing the light of freedom to Pakistan citizens. Frankly, it was invaluable in changing the perceptions of America in Pakistan. At that period of time, while we provided that assistance and while we were visibly involved in saving lives, and in making that fact clear is that the reputation of the United States in the country as it was measured by polls at the time markedly increased, very dramatically increased.

In the wake of that natural disaster, we weren’t the only ones to recognize the need for public diplomacy based in deeds rather than in words. The front group for the terrorist organization Lashkar-e-Taiba set up a string of professional relief camps throughout the region trying to mimic what we were doing but that war was far more effective, and the permanent gift of the U.S. Army’s last mobile Army surgical hospital, or MASH, had a profound impact on the perceptions of people in the region. For a brief period, America was going to war with the Taliban and our concern was a true battle of hearts and minds, and we were winning.

It is up to us to recreate this kind of success on a broader scale, without waiting for a natural or even a man-made event. How can we most effectively demonstrate the true friendship of the American people for the Pakistani people?

We believe this bill is an important first step. It is a prime example of what we call “smart power” because it uses both economic and military aid to achieve an overall effect that is greater than the sum of its parts. On the economic side, this bill triples non-military aid to $1.5 billion annually for 5 years and urges an additional 5 years of funding. These funds will be used to build schools, roads, and clinics. In other words, they aim to do on a regular basis what we broadly achieved with our earthquake relief and what the Pakistani Government, because of the economic crisis as well as political crisis in the country, has been unable to do to date. But this money will do a great deal more than just good deeds. It will empower the fledgling civilian Government in Pakistan to change the lives of the citizens of Pakistan a better life. It will empower the moderates, who will have something concrete to put forward as evidence that friendship with America actually brings rewards, not just perils, and it will empower the vast majority of Pakistanis who reject the terrifying vision of al-Qaida and Taliban but who have been angered and frustrated by the perception that their own leaders and America’s leaders don’t care about their daily struggle.

To do this right, we must make a long-term commitment. Most Pakistanis think that America has used and abandoned their country in the past, most notably after the jihad against the Soviets in Afghanistan. They fear we will just desert them again the moment the threat from al-Qaida subsides. It is this history and this fear that cause Pakistan to hedge its bets.

If this bill is passed and if we really want to break decisively with the Taliban and other extremist groups, then we need to provide firm assurance that we are not just foul-weather friends. By authorizing funds through 2013, and hopefully longer, this bill offers the chance to clearly state America’s longer term concerns and interests.

On the security side, the bill places conditions on military aid that will ensure the money is used for the intended purposes, which was not the case over the last 8 years. In order for Pakistan to receive any military assistance, it will need to meet an annual certification that its army and spy services are genuine partners in this endeavor.

In the struggle against al-Qaida and other terrorist groups, including Lashkar-e-Taiba—as we all know, Lashkar-e-Taiba was the perpetrator of the Mumbai massacre of last November. We also will need a certification of their partnership in the battle against the extremists who threaten our troops in Afghanistan from their sanctuaries in the Pakistani tribal areas, as well as in the effort to solidify democratic governance and the rule of law in Pakistan. We believe those standards should be reasonable, and they should be easy to meet for any nation receiving American aid.

As important as the economic and military components of the bill are is the question of how they fit together. Making this unequivocal commitment to the Pakistani people enables us to calibrate our military assistance more effectively. In any given year, we may choose to increase it or decrease it or to simply leave its level unchanged, but the flexibility that provides, which we haven’t had in prior years. For too long, the Pakistani military frankly believed we were bluffing when we said we would double our assistance, and that belief will continue to sustain the Taliban and its affiliates who threaten our troops in Afghanistan from their sanctuaries.

We believe this bill is a long-term investment in the Pakistani military and does not allow the U.S. Government to become disengaged. This bill authorizes and urges the use of economic and military aid in support of democratic governance and solidification of democratic governance and the rule of law in Pakistan. We believe this will increase the security of Pakistan against the threat of terrorism, which is the key to the security of the United States.

The bill also places conditions on economic aid. It will be reduced if Pakistan’s support for the Taliban and its affiliates who threaten our troops in Afghanistan from their sanctuaries in the Pakistani tribal areas is not increased, very dramatically increased. We will finally be able to require that Pakistan vigorously support our troops in Afghanistan and direct our assistance to the areas that are key to our security.

Ask any resident of Lahore, Karachi, or Peshawar what these places used to be like and you will hear a long statement of the reveries of the time that Pakistanis know and feel. When the United States will now be assisting Pakistan, it is not only about the traditional foreign policy tools are at their disposal. But the bill Senator LUGAR and I are introducing will provide vital help for the United States in the war on terror. It is the “bullets” and the “bullion” of our mission. Nor is this bill intended to be a silver bullet. It provides powerful tools, but these tools are only as effective as the policymakers who wield them. I am confident President Obama and his team will use wisely whatever policy tools are at their disposal.

We need to approach this endeavor with a large dose of humility. The truth is that our leverage is limited. The bill will allow us to be more decisive and forceful in our approach to the problem of Pakistan and the region. It requires Pakistan to demonstrate its commitment to the “clear” phase of the struggle. The United States will now be assisting this mission through other vehicles. But the bill Senator LUGAR and I are promoting aims for the medium term and especially the long term. It won’t drive the extremists out of Swat Valley next week or next month. Its aim is, once the Taliban is driven from Swat and from Bajaur and from Dir, to help keep them out. To put it in terms of basic counterinsurgency doctrine made familiar by General Petraeus, the Pakistani military is already able to handle the “clear” phase of the struggle. Pakistanis remember from their childhoods. It is this nation that most Pakistanis desperately wish to reclaim. The bill that Senator LUGAR and I now introduce will help America ensure that Pakistan has the resources necessary to choose a peaceful, stable future. It offers them a helping hand in getting there. I urge our colleagues to join us in supporting this bill.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore, The Senator from Indiana is recognized.

Mr. LUGAR. Mr. President, I am pleased and honored to join our chairman, JOHN KERRY, in introducing the Enhanced Partnership with Pakistan Act of 2009. Then-Senator JOE BIDEN and I originally introduced this legislation in July 2008. I have been especially pleased to continue the bipartisan effort on this bill with Senator KERRY.

Senators BIDEN and KERRY and I have worked the past year with the State Department, USAID, the Defense Department, and the National Security Council to craft this legislation.

On March 27 of this year, President Obama announced a comprehensive strategy for Afghanistan and Pakistan. In his speech to Congress, the President outlined an approach to pass a bipartisan bill cosponsored by JOHN KERRY and RICHARD LUGAR that authorizes $1.5 billion in direct support to the Pakistani people every year over the next 5 years—resources that will build the foundation for stability and strengthen Pakistan’s democracy.

Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff ADM Mike Mullen and CENTCOM Commander David Petraeus repeatedly advocated expanding foreign assistance to Pakistan as an essential element of our national security. Defense Secretary Robert Gates and Secretary of State Hillary Clinton both have testified that strengthening democracy and countering terrorism in Pakistan go hand in hand. Secretary Clinton said at the Senate Appropriations Committee meeting last week:

As President Obama has consistently maintained, success in Afghanistan depends on success in Pakistan. We have seen how difficult it is for the government there to make progress, and the Taliban continues to make inroads. Counterinsurgency training is critical. But of equal importance are diplomacy and development to provide economic stability and diminish the conditions that feed extremism. This is the intent of the comprehensive strategy laid out by Senator LUGAR and I now introducing.

Mr. BINGAMAN. Mr. President, today Senator UDALL and I are introducing a bill that will end an ongoing water rights dispute in northern New Mexico. The bill accomplishes this by authorizing a water rights settlement resolving Taos Pueblo’s water rights claims in the Rio Pueblo de Taos, a tributary to the Rio Grande.

The Rio Pueblo de Taos adjudication is a dispute that is almost 40 years old. The parties have been in settlement discussions for well over 20 years, but it was not until the last 5 years that the discussions took on the sense of urgency needed to resolve the issues at hand. A settlement agreement was signed by the Pueblo, State, and other interested parties in March 2006. Federal legislation was then finalized and introduced last year. Progress was made on the bill, including hearings in both the House and Senate which resulted in the identification of a few more issues which needed to be addressed. The parties negotiated a resolution to these issues and legislation to authorize and implement the settlement is now ready to move forward.

The settlement will fulfill the rights of the Pueblo consistent with the Federal trust responsibility. It will also continue the tradition of sharing precious water resources in a manner necessary to protect the sustainability of traditional agricultural communities. Finally, the Town of Taos and other local entities are assured of accessing the source of water necessary to meet the principal and domestic needs. In sum, the Taos Pueblo Indian Water Rights Settlement Act represents a commonsense... set of solutions that all parties to the adjudication have a stake in implementing.

This legislation is widely supported in the Taos Valley, probably as close to a consensus as any water-related agreement can get in the West. The State of New Mexico, under Governor Richardson's leadership, deserves recognition for actively pursuing a settlement in this matter and committing financial resources in recognition of the importance of this matter to all water users in the Valley.

This bill, as with any water rights settlement, is crucial to New Mexico's future. In an arid State such as ours, the legal system is poorly equipped to allocate water and create the infrastructure needed for its efficient use. Negotiated agreements between the parties, the State Engineer, and the Federal Government are much more likely to lead to long-term solutions that allow for the use of water in a sustainable manner. This other authorizes builds upon the provisions included in the Navajo water rights settlement enacted into law on March 30, 2009 as part of the Omnibus Public Lands bill. That settlement, and each subsequent one, will help provide more certainty and less conflict with respect to the allocation and use of water in New Mexico. I look forward to working with my colleagues in the Senate, as well as the House of Representatives, to see that this bill gets enacted into law.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 966

A bill to improve the Federal infrastructure for health care quality improvement in the United States; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. ROCKEFELLER. Mr. President, I rise today with my colleague, Senator WHITEHOUSE of Rhode Island, to introduce the National Health Care Quality Act, to create a sensible infrastructure to guide quality improvement; however, this infrastructure does not exist today. The lack of a coordinated effort to improve health care quality has hindered the ability to improve patient health outcomes and reduce inefficiencies in our health care system. In order to achieve our goals for true delivery system reform, health care quality must be elevated as a national priority. As the cost of health care in America continues to increase, the quality of care Americans receive continues to decrease. The average cost of health insurance has doubled within the last nine years, from $5791 in 1999 to $12,680 in 2008. However, less than half of adults report receiving recommended care. More is spent per person on health care in the United States than in any other nation, and yet America has some of the worst health outcomes. Wide-spread inefficiencies plague our health care system. The Congressional Budget Office, CBO, estimates that 30 percent of annual health care spending, or as much as $700 billion, could be achieved in other nations.

Several entities contribute to health care quality improvement in the U.S. including numerous federal agencies within those departments, and additional private-sector partners. While there has been some progress to coordinate efforts among these entities and create a framework for navigating quality improvement efforts, there is no defined structure in place to guide the process of quality improvement, prioritize limited resources, and provide oversight to ensure these efforts reflect the best interests of all patients. The current legislation focuses on modernizing our health care structure to create better coordination of quality efforts, and make certain the decisions about reimbursement and coverage will allow the government to effectively deliver care that is of the highest quality.

The National Health Care Quality Act would create a sensible infrastructure for health care quality improvement by creating an accountable entity—a new Office of National Health Care Quality Improvement within the Executive Office of the President—to set health care quality priorities for the nation. This office will be led by a Director of National Health Care Quality, who will work with public and private stakeholders to establish and routinely update health care quality priorities for the nation based on a number of mandatory considerations, including the needs of children and the void in pediatric quality measures.

This legislation also puts forth a construct to coordinate health care quality improvement efforts across all federal agencies involved in purchasing, providing, studying, or regulating health care services. The bill statutorily re-establishes the Quality Inter-agency Coordinating Council, QuICC, first created during the Clinton administration, within the Office of National Health Care Quality. The purpose of the Quality Inter-agency Coordinating Council is to coordinate health care quality improvement efforts across all relevant Federal departments and agencies involved in health care services. It also provides a framework for the development and implementation of Department- and agency-specific quality improvement strategies.

Lastly, the legislation enhances health care quality improvement efforts within the Department of Health and Human Services, HHS, by expanding the authority of the Agency for Healthcare Research and Quality and elevating the role of the Director of AHRQ to a Senate-appointed position. By building on and improving the public-private process for health care quality measure development, AHRQ can also help to streamline the implementation of quality improvement measures within federal health programs under the jurisdiction of HHS. AHRQ will establish a standardized method for reporting quality measures and data to all federal health programs. Lastly, AHRQ would be required to develop and launch a public education campaign, aimed at both providers and consumers of health care, about health care quality improvement. It is my belief that the multi-pronged approach provided in the National Health Care Quality Act will lead to vast improvements in the coordination of quality efforts and, most importantly, patient health outcomes. Given the current problems in the health care system, Congress has a responsibility to the American people to guarantee individuals have access to high quality, safe and effective care, and I urge my colleagues to join us in support of this important bill.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the Record, as follows:

S. 966 be enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled.

By Mr. BINGAMAN:

S. 967. A bill to amend the Energy Policy and Conservation Act to create a petroleum product reserve, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

Mr. BINGAMAN. Mr. President, I am pleased to introduce the Strategic Petroleum Reserve Modernization Act of 2009. This bill will ensure that the Strategic Petroleum Reserve will continue to fulfill the goal that its creators envisioned for it in 1975, which is to protect Americans from the economic consequences of oil supply disruptions.

This bill includes two key provisions. First, it creates a refined petroleum product component within the existing SPR. The Department of Energy is required to hold at least 30 million barrels of the total 1 billion barrel SPR inventory in refined petroleum products, such as gasoline and diesel fuel.
In the 1970s, the U.S. was vulnerable to supply disruptions in crude oil, as it was a significant and growing importer of crude oil. In 1973, major oil exporting nations embargoed oil exports to the United States in retaliation for U.S. support for Israel during that year's Yom Kippur War. The embargo and resulting oil price spikes wreaked havoc on the U.S. economy. Preventing a recurrence of this kind of geopolitical oil supply disruption was the primary goal of the SPR. Because the country’s energy security was significant, the SPR managers decided to hold only crude oil in the SPR.

In 1999, our domestic oil market has changed. While we are more dependent on imported crude oil than ever before, we also import more refined petroleum products and have considerably less spare refinery capacity. When U.S. refinery operations are disrupted, we require imported products from other countries to fill the gap.

We have learned in the last 34 years that weather-related events are the most frequent source of oil supply disruptions. In history, the SPR has been used in connection with only one geopolitical event, during the 1990–1991 Iraqi invasion of and removal from Kuwait, while it has been used several times in response to hurricanes or other weather events, such as dense fog halting tanker traffic in the Houston Ship Channel.

These nearly frequent weather events are usually as disruptive, if not more disruptive, to U.S. refinery operations as to crude oil production and imports. Hurricanes Gustav and Ike in September 2008 took much of the U.S. Gulf Coast infrastructure offline, and shortages of gasoline and diesel were experienced throughout the Southeast through October of that year. The SPR was of limited use in mitigating these shortages because the refineries affected by the storms were not able to process SPR crude oil into gasoline and diesel.

Including a small volume of refined petroleum products in the SPR, as required by The Strategic Petroleum Reserve Modernization Act of 2009, would provide a cushion to affected markets while damaged infrastructure were brought back online, or until imported gasoline and diesel could arrive to service the area.

The second key provision included in the Strategic Petroleum Reserve Modernization Act of 2009 authorizes the Secretary of Energy to release emergency oil from the SPR. Under current law, only the President of the United States can authorize an emergency sale of SPR oil. Experts believe that this requirement creates a disincentive to use SPR oil for the purposes for which it is intended, as the President does not want to alarm the public by announcing that the country is in an oil supply emergency.

Moving the SPR drawdown authority to the Secretary of Energy would allow SPR policy decisions to be made closer to the oil markets that the SPR serves. I believe that many of my colleagues share my disappointment that recent discussions about when and how to use the SPR have become so political that sound decisions, based on the reality of our country’s oil market, have not been possible.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD. There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the “Strategic Petroleum Reserve Modernization Act of 2009”.

SEC. 2. PETROLEUM PRODUCT RESERVE.

(a) STRATEGIC PETROLEUM RESERVE.—Section 154(a) of the Energy Policy and Conservation Act (42 U.S.C. 6234) is amended—

(1) by striking subsection (a) and inserting—

(2) the method of acquisition of refined petroleum products; and

(3) storage facility options for the storage of refined petroleum products; and

(4) the estimated costs of establishment, maintenance, and operation of the refined petroleum product component of the Reserve;

(5) the department will take to ensure that distributors and importers are not discouraged from maintaining and increasing supplies of refined petroleum products; and

(6) actions that will be taken to ensure quality of refined petroleum products in the Reserve, including the rotation of products stored.

(c) DRAWDOWN AND SALE.—Section 161 of the Energy Policy and Conservation Act (42 U.S.C. 6241) is amended—

(1) by striking subsection (d) and inserting the following:

(2) LIMITATION ON DRAWDOWN AND SALE.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The drawdown and sale of petroleum products from the Strategic Petroleum Reserve may not be made unless the Secretary determines that—

(A) the drawdown and sale are required by—

(i) a severe energy market supply interruption; or

(ii) obligations of the United States under the international energy program; or

(B) in the case of the refined petroleum product component of the Reserve, a sale of refined petroleum products will mitigate the impact of weather-related events or other acts of nature that have resulted in a severe energy market disruption.

(2) SEVERE ENERGY MARKET DISRUPTION.—For purposes of this subsection, a severe energy market supply disruption shall be considered to exist if the Secretary determines that—

(A) an emergency situation exists and there is a disruption in global oil markets of significant scope and duration; and

(B) a severe increase in the price of petroleum products has occurred and is likely to result from the emergency situation; and

(C) the price increase is likely to cause a major adverse impact on the national economy.

By Mr. REID (for himself, Mr. PRYOR, Mrs. MURRAY, Mr. MENENDEZ, and Mr. BENNET): S. 968. A bill to award competitive grants to eligible partnerships to enable the partnerships to implement innovative strategies at the secondary school level to improve student achievement and prepare at-risk students for postsecondary education and the workforce; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, in our global economy, a high school diploma has become the minimum qualification necessary for a good job. Yet only about a third of the students who enter 9th grade each fall will graduate 4 years later prepared for college or the workforce.

Another third will leave high school with a diploma, but without the skills and knowledge they need to succeed. Yet another third will not graduate from high school within four years, if at all.

This trend, across thousands of our Nation’s schools, robs millions of young Americans—particularly poor and minority students—of their best chance to succeed.

Students in Nevada are hit particularly hard. Less than 70 percent of high school students in my home state graduate on time. For African American and Latino students, that number is closer to 50 percent. Nearly 20,000 students in Nevada who started school with the class of 2008 did not graduate with their peers.

Leaving these students behind hurts our economy in both the short- and long-run. These students will cost the State’s economy an estimated $5.1 billion in lost wages over the course of...

Almost 90 percent of the fastest-growing and best-paying jobs require some post-secondary education. We can no longer afford to ignore our unacceptable graduation rates. We can no longer afford to look the other way while more and more students remain unprepared to compete in the global economy. It is not right for these students, and it is not right for our economy.

That is why Senators MURRAY and PAYOR and I are introducing the Secondary School Innovation Fund, a bill to improve the education our students get in America’s secondary schools. Our future competitiveness depends on our ability to transform our Nation’s middle- and high-schools to meet the needs of the 21st century. This legislation aims to address some of these challenges.

Many of our high schools are too large and impersonal. They lack the rigor and high expectations that we must set for all of our students. We can, of course, many of the problems that lead students to lose interest or drop out of school begin at the middle-school level.

To meet the challenges of this economy and prepare our young people for life after high school, we must give our middle and high schools the opportunity to try new ideas and approaches that will improve students' performance and their graduation rates.

We share proven ideas and put them in the schools that need them the most like extending the school day or year; dividing large urban schools into smaller, more personal learning academies; expanding summer learning opportunities for middle-school students; or partnering schools with colleges and universities to allow high school students to take and receive credit for college-level courses.

The bill also says that schools throughout my home state of Nevada, and across the country, have already started implementing these sorts of innovative strategies:
The Clark County Schools District in southern Nevada—the Nation’s 5th largest and one of the fastest-growing—has opened some of the most cutting-edge career and technical academies in the country. With programs in engineering and design, medical occupations, and communications, a visitor to one of these new academies might think they were on a university campus.

In northern Nevada, the Washoe County School District has teamed up with the local community college to open three new career and technical academies. The Truckee Meadows Community College High School now allows students to take a combination of college and high school courses, and they get credit on both levels. Not only do these students complete challenging, college-level coursework, but they are laying the groundwork for success after high school.

Encouraging our secondary schools to meet new, demanding and competitive requirements requires replicating these types of school models. But they need adequate Federal support to do so. The Secondary School Innovation Fund gives them just that.

President Obama and Secretary Duncan know this as well. The budget we passed last week proposes a similar fund that would promote innovation and excellence in America’s schools. And the economic recovery plan that we passed earlier this year includes unprecedented funding for improving and reforming our education systems. It also creates a $5 billion “Race to the Top Fund” that rewards states and districts for innovation.

This bill will give states, districts, schools, institutes of higher education, businesses, and community-based organizations $500 million in competitive grants in each of the next 6 years to reform in our Nation’s secondary schools.

By supporting a variety of strategies for innovation and creating evidence-based, systemic and replicable models of reform, we will improve student achievement and prepare them to succeed in school and then in the workforce.

We also know that every dollar we spend belongs to the American people. That is why we will only help programs that can demonstrate that their students are improving.

Democrats are committed to expanding educational opportunities for all Americans and preparing them to succeed in the global economy. We must give them the best chance to achieve their full potential, and this bill will help make that possible. I hope my colleagues will join me in supporting this legislation.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 968

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the “Secondary School Innovation Fund Act”.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

Congress finds the following:

(1) Since almost half of the fastest growing and best paying jobs now require some postsecondary education, a secondary school diploma and the skills to succeed in postsecondary education and the modern workplace are essential.

(2) Only 1⁄2 of all high school students in the United States graduate in 4 years prepared for a 4-year institution of higher education. Another 1⁄2 graduate, but without the skills and qualifications necessary for success in postsecondary education or the workplace, and the rest will not graduate from high school in 4 years, if at all.

(3) Dropouts from the class of 2008 will cost the United States more that $319 billion in productivity and 4 million jobs.

(4) The Nation’s failure to meet the increasing demand for skilled workers means that American companies cannot fill a large number of jobs. 81 percent of American manufacturing companies report experiencing a moderate to severe shortage of qualified workers.

(5) The education system of the United States should support critical thinking, creativity, and innovative approaches to problem-solving. Unfortunately, when the results on this assessment of students from the United States are compared to those of students from 27 other countries, many of which are economic competitors of the United States, the United States students rank 24th in problem-solving, 21st in scientific literacy, and 25th in mathematical literacy.

(6) As the bar for success continues to be raised, the responsibility to engender these attributes with progressive programs and original models lies squarely with the education system. It is imperative that the United States develop and implement new, innovative approaches to fully prepare every student for the 21st century.

(7) Realigning the education system to meet new, demanding requirements and face intensifying competition requires effective, systemic reform. Identifying and replicable models that achieve this goal is a critical step towards enhancing the prospects of all students entering the modern workforce.

SENATE RESOLUTION 127—RECOGNIZING THE MEMBERS OF THE UNITED STATES ARMED FORCES AND THE PHYSICIANS OF MAINE MEDICAL CENTER FOR THE OPEN-HEART SURGERY THEY PERFORMED ON A 6-YEAR-OLD IRAQI GIRL

Ms. SNOWE submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Armed Services:

S. Res. 127

Whereas 6-year-old Tiba and her mother, Sareea traveled from the countryside of Iraq to Maine so that Tiba could receive open-heart surgery;

Whereas the bravery of a young child and the phenomenal service of the courageous soldiers in the United States Army are inspiring and place a human face and a human heart at the center of some of the most war-torn areas in the world;

Whereas Kim Block of WGME channel 13 in Portland, Maine professionally produced and broadcast a heartbreaking story on this case;

Whereas all of Maine feels a boundless sense of pride for the tremendous commitment and contribution of Dr. Reed Quinn who led the team at Maine Medical Center in the 8-hour open-heart surgery procedure that saved Tiba’s life; and

Whereas such surgery was made possible by the compassion of the Maine Foundation for Cardiac Surgery, and was a mission fulfilled by a team of genuine heroes: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate recognizes the soldiers, doctors, nurses, and hospital staff at Maine Medical Center for their compassionate service, and Tiba and Sareea for their remarkable story.

Ms. SNOWE. Mr. President, today I introduced a Senate Resolution recognizing the United States Army and the physicians of Maine Medical Center for saving the life of a 6-year-old Iraqi girl.

My Maine constituents and I are bursting with pride over the tremendous commitment and contribution of Dr. Reed Quinn and the team of health professionals at Maine Medical Center who recently conducted an eight-hour open-heart surgery procedure which saved young Tiba’s life. The procedure was made possible by the compassion of the Maine Foundation for Cardiac Surgery, and the mission was fulfilled by a team of genuine American heroes, led by the U.S. Army.

I am particularly touched by the bravery of a young child and the outstanding service of our courageous soldiers in the U.S. Army. I will always remember this story because it places a human face at the center of a war-torn area.

After viewing the moving news series reported by Kim Block of WGME Channel 13 in Portland on “Operation Good Heart,” I thought it was fitting to recognize the story of 6-year-old Tiba and her mother, Sareea, and their journey from their village in Iraq to Maine. Tiba suffered a dangerous heart condition and was transported by the U.S. Army from Iraq to Maine for life-saving open-heart surgery performed by the talented physicians of Maine Medical Center.

I hope my colleagues will join me in commending the dedicated soldiers of the U.S. Army, the superlative professionals of Maine Medical Center, the generous folks at the Maine Foundation for Cardiac Surgery, the good people of Channel 13, and—above all—the brave mother and daughter who traveled across the globe. This is a heartwarming story about wonderful people who make America great, and I urge adoption of the Resolution.

COMMEMORATING THE 150TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE ARRIVAL OF THE SISTERS OF THE SACRED HEARTS IN HAWAI’I

Mr. SCHUMER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the immediate consideration of S. Res. 126, submitted earlier today.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the resolution by title.

A resolution (S. Res. 126) commemorating the 150th anniversary of the arrival of the Sisters of the Sacred Hearts in Hawaii.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the resolution.

Mr. INOUYE. Mr. President, today, I rise in support of a Senate resolution commemorating the 150th anniversary of the arrival of the Sisters of the Sacred Hearts in Hawaii. I am pleased to have Senators Daniel Akaka and John Kerry as original cosponsors of the resolution.

The first Catholic missionaries to the Hawaiian Islands were members of the Congregation of the Sacred Hearts of Jesus and Mary and of Perpetual Adoration of the Most Blessed Sacrament of the Altar.

The Congregation was founded by Pierre Coudrin and Henriette Aymer de la Chevalerie in Pottiers, France, on Christmas Eve 1800.

In 1825, the Congregation responded to a request of Pope Leo XII for missionaries to the Pacific Rim, then known as Oceania.
The Sacred Hearts Priests and Brothers arrived in Hawaii in 1827; the Sisters, in 1859.

Today, through the missionary zeal of its members, of which a noteworthy exemplar in Hawaii is Blessed Damien de Veuster, the Brothers and Sisters of the Congregation of the Sacred Hearts of Jesus and Mary are present in 40 countries and on all continents.

The Sisters of the Sacred Hearts Pacific Province is the administrative center of communities of Sisters currently serving in Hawaii, New Mexico, and Massachusetts. In observance of the 150th anniversary of the Sisters’ arrival to Hawaii, I urge my colleagues to support this resolution recognizing the Sisters’ dedication through these years to the education of the children of Hawaii, California, Massachusetts, New Jersey, and New Mexico.

Mr. SCHUMER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the resolution be agreed to; the preamble be agreed to, and the motions to reconsider be laid upon the table, with no intervening action or debate, and that any statements related to the resolution be printed in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The resolution (S. Res. 126) was agreed to.

The preamble was agreed to.

S. Res. 126

WHEREAS, during the past 150 years, the Sisters of the Sacred Hearts, also known as the Sisters of the Congregation of the Sacred Hearts of Jesus and Mary, in 2009 are celebrating the 150th anniversary of their arrival in Hawaii on May 4, 1859, to provide Catholic education to the children of Hawaii; and

Resolved, That the Senate—

(1) recognizes the 150th anniversary of the arrival of the Sisters of the Sacred Hearts in Hawaii; and

(2) honors and praises the Sisters of the Sacred Hearts Pacific Province for their good works in the education of the youth of the United States and in service to the people of Hawaii, California, Massachusetts, New Jersey, and New Mexico, and for the Sisters’ pursuit of educational, social, and economic equality of all persons.

APPOINTMENT

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair announces, on behalf of the Republican leader, pursuant to P.L. 110–229, the appointment of the following to be a nonvoting member of the Commission to Study the Potential Creation of a National Museum of the American Latino: Sandy Colon Peltyn of Nevada.

IN HONOR OF THE POLISH AMERICAN CONGRESS AND POLISH CONSTITUTION DAY

HON. DENNIS J. KUCINICH
OF OHIO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, May 4, 2009

Mr. KUCINICH. Madam Speaker, I rise today in honor of the Polish American Congress, Ohio Division, as they join together on May 3 to celebrate Polish Constitution Day—a day when the Americans of Polish heritage reflect on the struggles for freedom and celebrate the victories, customs and history of their beloved Polish homeland and share their cultural gifts with the entire Greater Cleveland community.

The first written European constitution, the Governmental Statute of Poland, was instated on May 3, 1791. Poland’s Constitution was the result of nearly five centuries of struggle and perseverance by the people of Poland to diminish the power of the King and to create a constitutional government. An important document in the world history of democracy, the Polish Constitution established the separation and balance of powers, freedom of religion, and social justice by abolishing key elements of serfdom.

Formed in 1949, the Polish American Congress is a national umbrella organization representing over ten million Americans of Polish descent and origin, and serves as a unifying force for both Polish Americans and Polish citizens living in America. The Polish American community in Cleveland is deeply rooted in their commitment to the values of family, faith, democracy, hard work and fulfillment of the American dream. Since its founding, the Polish American Congress has created programs to successfully integrate people of Polish descent in the U.S., including the Displaced Persons Program, which allowed almost 150,000 Polish immigrants to enter the U.S. after World War II. The Polish American Congress has a legacy within our Cleveland community and across the nation of offering services of support to veterans, families and individuals. As in years past, the Greater Cleveland Community will join in celebration of Poland’s rich history and culture by joining Cleveland’s Polish community in attending events such as the Polonia Ball, the Grand Parade and the Photographic Exhibition.

Madam Speaker and colleagues, please join me in honor and celebration of the leaders and members of the Polish American Congress, as they celebrate Polish Constitution Day. Their collective and individual efforts in sharing, preserving and promoting their heritage, history and culture with Greater Cleveland serve to strengthen and illuminate the textured and diverse fabric of our community.

HONORING THE VOLUNTEER SERVICE OF DARRIEN GISH

HON. WALT MINNICK
OF IDAHO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, May 4, 2009

Mr. MINNICK. Madam Speaker, I would like to congratulate and honor a young student from my district who has achieved national recognition for exemplary volunteer service in his community. Darrien Gish of Nampa has just been named one of the top honorees in Idaho by the 2009 Prudential Spirit of Community Awards program, an annual honor conferred on the most impressive student volunteers in each State and the District of Columbia.

Mr. Gish is being recognized for his work with the Canine Companions for Independence. He is devoting fourteen months of his own time to train and care for the puppy Delphie. He also earned his own money to fund Delphia’s health care. Mr. Gish spends time every day working with Delphi on basic skills so that eventually she can assist people with disabilities perform everyday tasks like turning on lights and opening doors.

In light of numerous statistics indicating that Americans today are less involved in their communities, it’s vital that we encourage and support the kind of selfless contributions this young citizen has made. People of all ages need to think more about how we, as individual citizens, can work together at the local level to ensure the health and vitality of our towns and neighborhoods. Young volunteers like Mr. Gish are inspiring examples to all of us and are among our brightest hopes for tomorrow.

Mr. Gish should be extremely proud to have been singled out from the thousands of dedicated volunteers who participated in this year’s program. I heartily applaud him for his initiative in seeking to make his community a better place to live, and for the positive impact he has had on the lives of others. He has demonstrated a level of commitment and accomplishment that is truly extraordinary in today’s world, and deserves our sincere admiration and respect. His actions show that young Americans can—and do—play important roles in our communities and that America's community spirit continues to hold tremendous promise for the future.

HONORING THE INDUCTION OF ENCARNACION “CARNY” GUERRA INTO THE 2000 CLASS OF THE LAREDO BUSINESS HALL OF FAME

HON. HENRY CUELLAR
OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, May 4, 2009

Mr. CUELLAR. Madam Speaker, I rise today to celebrate the induction of Encarnacion “Carny” Guerra into the Laredo Business Hall of Fame. Carny Guerra has always been hard working, ambitious, a knowledgeable businessman, and it has shown through his work in Laredo, Texas.

Carny Guerra’s business knowledge-how he first emerged while attending a dance in Laredo, Texas. While waiting for his band Carny saw his next step to be the purchase of a radio station which furthered the popularity of both his ballroom and the bands.

As every new business encounters initial problems Carny had trouble booking bands and he decided that the best way to solve this would be to use local South Texas bands. As he found new bands he began to record their music and promote them to local radio stations. These local bands soon became celebrities in the area, thus selling out the Casa Blanca Ballroom performance after performance. Working with bands and radio stations on a daily basis Carny saw his next step to be the purchase of a radio station which furthered the popularity of both his ballroom and the bands.

Now some years later Carny Guerra’s business has flourished and become Guerra Communications, which now owns a Tejano, hip-hop, and country radio station. In addition, Carny is credited with giving many of today’s popular bands their start.

Carny, after many years of hard work, is now enjoying his retirement and the company of his 5 daughters, 17 grandchildren and 1 great grandchild.

Madam Speaker, I am proud to have had this opportunity to recognize the accomplishments and honor the inductee to the Laredo Business Hall of Fame Encarnacion “Carny” Guerra.
Mr. PERLMUTTER. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize and applaud Ricardo Munoz who has received the Arvada Wheat Ridge Service Ambassadors for Youth award. It is essential that students at all levels strive to make the most of their educational opportunities and develop a work ethic that will guide them for the rest of their lives.

CREDIT CARDHOLDERS’ BILL OF RIGHTS ACT OF 2009

HON. JOE BACA
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, April 29, 2009

The House in Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union had under consideration the bill (H.R. 627) to amend the Truth in Lending Act to establish fair and transparent practices relating to the extension of credit under an open end consumer credit plan, and for other purposes:

Mr. BACA. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of H.R. 627, the Creditcard Holders’ Bill of Rights Act of 2009.

Now more than ever, working families need strong, fair lending and credit laws. H.R. 627 curbs some of the most abusive and unfair credit card lending practices that trap consumers in an unending, costly debt.

The credit card companies’ tricks and traps that are addressed by H.R. 627 have always been unfair, but in this time of growing economic uncertainty for the average family, the financial hardship could be overwhelming.

Companies should not be allowed to randomly hike the interest rate on a consumer’s existing balance if they make their payments on time just because of an “anytime—any reason” clause in the contract. This practice is unfair and un-American.

Equal access to credit is a vital step in helping racial and ethnic minority families move out of poverty, into the middle class and be given a real shot at the American dream.

Much like the targeting and discrimination that occurs with home loans, our minority communities are steered toward credit cards with the highest fees and interest rates and most complicated payment terms.

According to the National Council of La Raza, one report showed that 15 percent of African-American and 13 percent of Latino card users have cards with interest rates over 20 percent, compared to only 7 percent of White card users.

More than one-third of Latinos use their credit cards to make ends meet.

As low-income Latinos use credit cards for safety-net purposes, they are more likely to get behind in their bills and become buried in unmanageable debt.

Instead of providing relief or a financial bridge, credit cards with abusive features and practices often create vicious cycles of debt.

The passage of this bill would be a historic victory for consumers of all backgrounds and ethnicities across the country.

I urge my colleagues to support this bill and the long over due consumer protections that it provides.

A TRIBUTE TO MATTHEW POLITE

HON. EDOLPHUS TOWNS
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, May 4, 2009

Mr. TOWNS. Madam Speaker, I rise today in recognition of Matthew Polite, a leader in his community and an inspiration to all of New York.

Matthew Polite was born in 1905 on the island of St. Helena, off the coast of South Carolina. The only son of a former slave, Matthew understands how freedom is a cherished gift to be used in the service of your fellow man.

Matthew Polite and his wife, Netha, were wed in 1926. They moved to Savannah, Georgia, where he worked as a baker in Whole-some Bakery. After some years, they moved again to Miami, Florida where he continued as a baker. Matthew and his family moved to New York City in 1954. There he became the Deacon for the Orange Baptist Church in the Bronx, forging a lifelong relationship with the congregation. He served the church community with honor and distinction for many years until his retirement in 1969, when he returned to his hometown in Stavenhagen, South Carolina.

Matthew Polite has since returned to New York City, surrounded by his friends and family, including his four children, nine grandchildren, twenty great grandchildren, fourteen great-great grandchildren, and two great-great-great grandchildren.

Madam Speaker, I would like to recognize Matthew Polite, a shining example of dedication to community service for all of New York. Madam Speaker, I urge my colleagues to join me in paying tribute to Matthew Polite.

HONORING RANDY SIEFKIN

HON. DENNIS A. CARDOZA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, May 4, 2009

Mr. CARDOZA. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor Randy Sieffkin, a long time political icon of Modesto, California. Randy has spent a majority of his days as a Professor of Political Science at Modesto Junior College, but behind the scenes he has proven effective in getting countless candidates elected to local office.

Randy Sieffkin’s first hint at political interest may have been in 1952, when at age 10 he helped arrange an ice cream hour for Dwight D. Eisenhower. He furthered his hunger for politics by working on campaigns for Nixon and Rockefeller—and eventually made a career by steadfastly serving as Professor of Political Science at Modesto Junior College from 1970 to 2001. From that day in 1952 right up to this very hour, Randy is actively collecting political buttons from every corner of the earth.

Thirty one years of educating students left little time for much else, but somehow Randy managed to devote his discretionary time to a number of community groups and civic organizations. Ranging from serving on the Board for the Muir Trail Girl Scouts to directing the Modesto Film Society to participating with North Modesto Rotary, Randy has shown a genuine devotion to his community.

Politics and civic duties have not only been a passion for Randy, but his family is equally devoted to giving back as well. Randy Sieffkin is married to Stanislaus County Superior Court Judge Susan J. Sieffkin and they have two children—Nelson, a Cultural Resources Specialist for the National Park Service, and Kristen, a Public Relations professional.

Madam Speaker, it is an absolute honor to share a little bit about Randy Sieffkin and to thank him for his selfless devotion to his family, his community, and his country.

MEDIA EXAGGERATE PRESIDENT’S APPROVAL NUMBERS

HON. LAMAR SMITH
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, May 4, 2009

Mr. SMITH. Madam Speaker, in the recent terms assessing President Obama’s first 100 days in office, the national media have been quick to tout the President’s supposedly high approval rating.

But the facts are otherwise.
A Rasmussen poll released yesterday showed the President’s approval rating at 55 percent and his disapproval rating at 43 percent.

Fewer than half of voters say the President is doing a good job handling the economy.

These are hardly impressive figures.

The fact is that many Americans are not happy with the direction of the country under President Obama.

The national media should take a break from patting the President on the back and recognize that President Obama is doing a good job handling the economy.

Mr. PERLMUTTER. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor the Maryland Masonic Home on the celebration of its 75th Anniversary as a retirement community for Master Masons and their families.

The Maryland Masonic Home has provided exceptional service to its residents since 1934. After purchasing the property called Bonnie Blink, the Masons converted the farm and mansion into the Maryland Masonic Home. It was created as a housing facility for Masons and their families who were either elderly, or of declining health.

The Masonic Home has grown over the years from a simple dormitory, to an active community with a wide range of services. From dining rooms and recreational facilities, to health care practices and scheduled activities, that Masonic Home presents opportunities for its residents to maintain a vibrant lifestyle. For the past week, the Maryland Masonic Home has been celebrating this truly remarkable milestone with various events and activities for its residents.

Over the last 75 years, they have lived up to their mission, “To provide excellent care in a safe, affordable, dignified, quality environment for eligible Masons and their families, in keeping with Masonic Principles, providing for expansion, while maintaining financial viability.”

Madam Speaker, I ask that you join with me today to honor the Maryland Masonic Home on the celebration of its 75th Anniversary. As a fellow Mason, it is with great pride that I congratulate the entire organization on this incredible accomplishment.

IN HONOR OF KENDAL GUNLICKS

HON. DENNIS J. KUCINICH
OF OHIO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, May 4, 2009

Mr. KUCINICH. Madam Speaker, I rise today in honor and recognition of Kendal Gunlicks, upon the occasion of his retirement as Director of Music at Independence High School. Mr. Gunlicks leaves behind a legacy of kindness, mentorship and dedication to fostering an atmosphere where creativity and teamwork flourished.

Over the course of a career spanning 35 years, he led his students through band camp, half-time shows, parades, Madrigal Dinners, musical theater productions, outdoor community concerts and memorable trips to Florida. But for Mr. Gunlicks, teaching was far more than a job. It was an avocation. He consistently went above and beyond the call of duty, working to establish successful mentoring relationships with all students. Through the powerful medium of music, he inspired his students, encouraged their participation and strengthened their self-confidence. His students trusted, respected and admired him, and he was always willing to help with a problem or provide fatherly guidance and advice.

Mr. Gunlicks’ belief in musical opportunities for all is evidenced throughout his tenure at Independence High School. As Director of the Vocal Program, Mr. Gunlicks made room in his programs for all interested students. Students who wanted to participate but who weren’t confident enough in their talents as singers were encouraged to join the chorus, without having to audition. Under his leadership, the marching band grew steadily over the years, from 26 members in 1974 to more than 100 band members today.

Mr. Speaker and Colleagues, please join me in honor of Mr. Kendal Gunlicks, whose passion for music and unwavering dedication to his students has served as a source of inspiration, joy, and camaraderie.
within the hearts and minds of every student who has walked through the band room doors. His tenure as Music Director has had an impact on the lives of countless students; he served as a wonderful role model for each of them to emulate—in the classroom and in life. Mr. Gunlicks’ passion for music, humble approach and dedication to his profession have enriched the fabric of our entire community, connecting us all through the universal language of music.

IN PRAISE OF THE TRANS-ATLANTIC LEGISLATORS’ DIALOGUE MEETINGS HELD LAST MONTH IN PRAGUE
HON. HOWARD L. BERMAN
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, May 4, 2009

Mr. BERMAN. Madam Speaker, I would like to call the attention of my colleagues in the Congress to a successful meeting of the Transatlantic Legislators’ Dialogue (TLD) that was held in Prague, Czech Republic, from April 18–20, 2009. Chairwoman SHELLEY BERKLEY, the gentlelady from Nevada, continued to provide this important interparliamentary exchange in the context of a permissive leadership and a strong commitment to strengthening relations with our European allies. I commend this bipartisan delegation—which included PAUL KANJORSKI (D–PA), DANA ROHRABACHER (R–CA), LORETTA SANCHEZ (D–CA), JOHN R. CARTER (R–TX), PHIL GINGREY (R–GA), VIRGINIA FOXX (R–NC), STEVE COHEN (D–TN), and RON KLEIN (D–FL)—for their contributions to an informed and productive exchange of views with Members of the European Parliament.

The Transatlantic Legislators’ Dialogue serves as the formal response of the European Parliament and the U.S. Congress to the commitment in the New Transatlantic Agenda of 1995 to enhance legislative ties between the European Union and the United States. The TLD involves bi-annual meetings between American and European legislators in order to exchange views on topics of mutual interest and foster transatlantic discourse. I welcome the discussion held by members at the Prague session about ways in which to deepen the dialogue and improve communication beyond these formal meetings.

Given the recent transition in the U.S. administration and the ongoing European Parliament elections, it is essential that legislators continue their collaboration on the important issues facing citizens on both sides of the Atlantic. The financial crisis was a central topic at the Prague meeting, with presentations by European experts as well as representatives of the EU and U.S. administrations. The TLD emphasized the need for a strong and coordinated transatlantic policy response, while reiterating the importance of the Transatlantic Economic Council (TEC) as a framework for cooperation. Members also addressed pressing foreign policy issues. Particular attention was devoted to Afghanistan and Pakistan, as well as the Thirty Four round dialogue with Richard Boucher, U.S. Assistant Secretary for South and Central Asian Affairs, about President Obama’s comprehensive new strategy.

Other foreign policy debates focused on the status of diplomatic initiatives regarding the Iranian nuclear threat, the Middle East peace process, and relations with Russia. In addition, the delegates talked about the challenge of climate change, the importance of energy security, and President Obama’s decision to close the Guantanamo detention facility.

I extend my congratulations to the two new chairwomen, Madam Speaker, Shelley Berkley, Chairwoman, United States Congress Delegation, Phil Gingrey, Acting Vice Chairman, United States Congress Delegation, Ron Klein, Acting Vice Chairman, United States Congress Delegation, and Jonathan Evans, MEP, Chairman, European Parliament Delegation.

We, the Members of the European Parliament and the United States House of Representatives, held our 66th Interparliamentary Meeting (Transatlantic Legislators’ Dialogue) in Prague, Czech Republic, on 18–20 April 2009.

Building on the joint statement issued following our last meeting in Miami on 6–8 December 2008, we stressed the importance of regular dialogue on a range of political, social and economic issues that affect all of our citizens. We agreed to report back to our parent bodies on the content and outcome of our discussions, particularly in the areas where joint efforts are likely to result in positive outcomes.

We discussed with Czech Minister of Foreign Affairs and Council President-in-office Karel Schwarzenberg the Summit held in Prague on 5 April 2009 between President Obama and the 27 EU Heads of State and Government. We welcomed its outcome and called on our trust to provide a strong impetus for strengthening the transatlantic relationship and furthering a common agenda.

The Transatlantic Legislators’ Dialogue agreed that we should build on this political momentum to improve and renew the framework of the transatlantic relationship. In this context, we called for collaboration between legislators in the US House of Representatives and the European Parliament on issues of common concern and legislation that affects both sides of the Atlantic. We also expressed our intention to have increased communication between our biannual meetings, using mechanisms such as periodic video conferences and formation of working groups to address specific topics in greater detail.

With regard to foreign policy and security issues discussed during our TLD meeting, we agreed that joint action is the most effective way to approach problems which affect both sides of the Atlantic. In particular, we considered that:

a) peace in the Middle East requires a durable ceasefire, an end to attacks on Israel from Hamas and other terrorist groups, functioning and effective government in the Palestinian Territories. We also expressed our support for the appointment of George Mitchell as Special Envoy to the Middle East Peace Process;

b) the comprehensive new strategy for Afghanistan and Pakistan announced by President Obama on 27 March 2009 constitutes a good basis for a regional approach to security, combating terrorism, and economic development. The EU and the US should enhance their cooperation and support, work to improve the coordination and effectiveness of Provincial Reconstruction Teams (PRTs), and seek to help build critical infrastructure across Afghanistan;

c) the dialogue affirmed that a nuclear armed Iran is unacceptable. We also agreed that relations with Iran should involve both incentives for Iran to build constructive ties with the international community as well as concerted pressure on Iran if it continues to fail to comply with its international obligations in the nuclear area and human rights; and
d) relations with Russia should involve cooperative cooperation and support, work to improve relations, and include all aspects of political and human rights.

The dialogue expressed concerns about democratic principles, including security matters, disarmament and non-proliferation, and respect for democratic principles and human rights standards, and adherence to international law. The dialogue expressed concerns about Russia’s recent behaviour in regards to the recent conflict with Georgia and energy dispute with Ukraine. We also cited the need to enhance mutual trust between the transatlantic partners.

On energy and climate change, we stressed that the EU and the US should work together to address these issues at the UN negotiation in Copenhagen later this year. We discussed cap-and-trade systems and the feasibility of setting up mutually compatible systems. We noted the link between tackling climate change and addressing energy security and economic growth, recognizing that the fight against climate change could also be an opportunity to create new jobs and sustain economic growth.

We examined the consequences of the global economic and financial turmoil. We agreed that the crisis requires a strong and coordinated policy response by the US and the EU. Recovery plans currently being adopted are critical in mitigating the effects of the crisis; approaches should be compatible, avoid protectionist measures, and not give rise to distortions of competition in the transatlantic market place. We considered that global financial regulation and supervision should be strengthened, including better crisis prevention and management, and that EU and US should cooperate on the reform of international financial institutions.

We stressed the importance of the Transatlantic Economic Council (TEC), including its work on competitiveness and macroeconomic cooperation between both partners. We welcomed the progress made over recent months in promoting transatlantic economic integration, the TEC meetings, agendas, roadmaps and progress reports should be agreed upon between the core stakeholders as early as possible and then made public. Such measures are crucial to developing a clear and transparent process for setting the agenda of the TEC, extending the TEC to new sectors, and establishing a long-term roadmap of activities. We called on the US and EU executive branches to facilitate more active participation by members of the US Congress and the European Parliament in the TEC process, in particular via the TLD.

We considered that both partners should use the full potential of the TEC in order to overcome the existing obstacles to economic integration. To this effect, legislators on both sides of the Atlantic should convey their views on legislative and bureaucratic obstacles to the TEC leadership and conduct a regular review of the situation. We emphasized once more the concerns raised by the US and EU over trade in services and addressing energy security and economic growth through the initiatives designed to address the needs of over 15,000 people in our community who are uninsured and fall 200% below the poverty line. Ms. Tatom should be extremely proud to have been singled out from the thousands of volunteers in each state and the District of Columbia.

In light of numerous statistics indicating that Americans today are less involved in their communities, it’s vital that we encourage and support the kind of selfless contributions this young citizen has made. People of all ages need to think more about how we, as individual citizens, can work together at the local level to ensure the health and vitality of our towns and neighborhoods. Young volunteers like Ms. Karissa Tatom are inspiring examples to all of us and are among our brightest hopes for tomorrow.

Ms. Tatom should be extremely proud to have been singled out from the thousands of dedicated volunteers who participated in this year’s program. I heartily applaud her for her initiative in seeking to make her community a better place to live, and for the positive impact she has had on the lives of others. She has demonstrated a level of commitment and accomplishment that is truly extraordinary in today’s world, and deserves our sincere admiration and respect. Her actions show that young Americans—like Ms. Karissa Tatom—can make a difference in our communities and that America’s community spirit continues to hold tremendous promise for the future.

HON. MIKE PENCE
OF INDIANA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, May 4, 2009

Mr. PENCE. Madam Speaker, on rollcall No. 207 I was absent on the evening of April 27, 2009, because I was attending a public meeting at the Allegheny National Forest in Warren, Pennsylvania, regarding the pending Supplemental Environmental Impact Statement (SEIS), ongoing litigation, and the proposed “settlement.” Recent Forest Service actions on the Allegheny have created adverse disinterest economic distress in my rural district and are unfairly denying my constituents access to their legally owned subsurface mineral rights.

Had I been present, I would have voted “yea.”

TRIBUTE TO DR. SIDNEY J. PARNES

HON. BRIAN HIGGINS
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, May 4, 2009

Mr. HIGGINS of New York. Madam Speaker, I am honored to pay tribute to Sidney J. Parnes, one of the great practitioners and researchers in the field of creativity and a co-founder of the Osborn-Parnes Creative Problem Solving Process.

In honoring Dr. Parnes as a pioneer in the worldwide understanding of creative thinking, the House of Representatives adds their appreciation to those that will be expressed by his family, friends, students and colleagues as they gather at Daemen College on May 8–9, 2009 for “Unlocking the Magic: A Tribute and Celebration with Sidney J. Parnes.”

Dr. Sidney J. Parnes is co-founder of the International Center for Studies in Creativity, housed at my alma mater, Buffalo State College, and remains the only place in the world where you can receive a Masters of Science degree in Creativity. His contributions have added to the city of Buffalo’s significant reputation as a dynamic arts community.

Dr. Parnes’ passionate belief that creativity is a result of a balance between divergent and convergent thinking and that everyone can be taught to apply creative behavior in their personal and professional lives has led to his well-earned recognition as the world’s leading expert in the field for more than a half century.

A life-long creativity researcher and author, world-class educator and Professor Emeritus of Creative Studies at the State University of New York College at Buffalo, Dr. Parnes co-founded CPSI (Creative Problem Solving Institute) with Dr. Alex Osborn in 1955. The CPSI became an international gathering for the more than 50 years it was held annually in Buffalo when, at times, 700 people representing 36 countries were in attendance.

A life-long researcher and author, this world-renowned educator is responsible for assembling the most comprehensive library on creativity at the University with over 2,400 volumes and launched the scholarly Journal of Creative Behavior in 1967 which includes the latest research, tools and techniques on creativity, innovation and creative problem solving.

From 1967 to 1984, Dr. Parnes served as president of the Creative Education Foundation, presenting countless workshops on creativity and creative problem-solving for leaders in business, education and government throughout North and South America, Europe, Asia, Africa and Australia.

He is a recipient of the State University of New York College at Buffalo “President’s Award for Excellence” and is a member of the Creative Education Foundation Hall of Fame as well as the American Creativity Association’s Hall of Fame. He has also been recognized by the Innovation Network with a Lifetime Achievement Award for his unprecedented accomplishments to further the creative movement worldwide.

Our congratulations extend to his wife, Bea Parnes, whom Dr. Parnes called “my indispensable colleague, my life companion and dearest friend.” Along with their collaborative educational research, they have served as board members of People Inc. for many years and provided numerous workshops for social agencies.

Our good wishes extend to his children and grandchildren who influenced and participated in Dr. Parnes pursuits as he has noted “I’m proud of my family and their achievements, especially their receptivity to creative problem solving and willingness to apply it from their earliest days to family issues and challenges.”

I am pleased and honored to send the best wishes of the United States House of Representatives to Dr. Sidney J. IN HONOR OF TAIWAN’S PARTICIPATION IN THE WORLD HEALTH ASSEMBLY

HON. KENNY MARCHANT
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, May 4, 2009

Mr. MARCHANT. Madam Speaker, I rise today to celebrate the announcement of Taiwan’s participation as an observer in the World Health Assembly, WHA, to be held in Geneva, Switzerland. This announcement is the culmination of more than a decade of efforts by the Taiwanese people to be included in the assembly. Additionally, many of my congressional colleagues and I have been active in supporting Taiwan’s participation in the WHA. I am delighted that after years of work in both Taipei and Washington, DC, these efforts have finally paid off and that Taiwan will be able to send a delegation to the WHA later this month under the nomenclature of “Chinese Taipei.”

With the outbreak of the H1N1 virus sweeping across the United States and several countries, Taiwan’s inclusion as an observer in the WHA is especially crucial in coordinating global responses to epidemics. Diseases do not stop at national borders, and Taiwan’s long absence from the WHA meant that a coordinated global response to outbreaks was not as effective as it could be with Taiwan’s inclusion.

I congratulate the Taiwanese people on finally winning inclusion in the WHA and look forward to continuing the good relations between Taiwan and the United States.

PRESIDENT NURSULTAN NAZARBAEV OF KAZAKHSTAN

HON. ENI F.H. FALEOMAVAEGA OF AMERICAN SAMOA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, May 4, 2009

Mr. FALEOMAVAEGA. Madam Speaker, I rise today to commend President Nursultan Nazarbayev on his offer to host a nuclear fuel bank in Kazakhstan administered by the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA), which the United States would expect to meet the highest international standards for safety, security and safeguards. It is my understanding that the U.S. Department of State has welcomed President Nazarbayev’s announcement, and is prepared in principle to support this offer. In fact, even today, Secretary Hilary Clinton is meeting with Kazakhstan’s Foreign Minister Marat Tazhin, and I understand that this important measure is on their agenda.

I am pleased by these series of events, especially in view of history. From 1949 to 1991, the Soviet Union used Kazakhstan as its nuclear testing ground, exploding more than 500 nuclear bombs and exposing more than 1.5 million Kazakhs to nuclear radiation. When the Soviet Union collapsed in 1991, Kazakhstan inherited the world’s fourth largest nuclear arsenal and the second largest nuclear test site. While Kazakhstan could have retained enough highly enriched uranium to produce 20 nuclear bombs, President Nursultan Nazarbayev, in cooperation with the United States, and under the auspices of the Nunn-Lugar Cooperative Threat Reduction (CTR) program, voluntarily dismantled and shut down the nuclear test site at Semipalatinsk.

Kazakhstan has since signed with the United States amendments to a bilateral agreement on the nonproliferation of weapons of mass destruction which has moved the two nations towards a new level of cooperation in preventing the threat of bio-terrorism.

As a Pacific Islander, I have a special affinity for President Nazarbayev and the people of Kazakhstan. From 1946 to 1958, the United States detonated 66 nuclear weapons in the Republic of the Marshall Islands (RMI) including the first hydrogen bomb, or Bravo shot, which was 1,000 times more powerful than the bomb dropped on Hiroshima. Acknowledged as the greatest nuclear explosion ever detonated, the Bravo test vaporized six islands and created a mushroom cloud 25 miles in diameter. If one were to calculate the net yield of tests conducted by the U.S. in the RMI, it would be equivalent to the detonation of 1.7 Hiroshima bombs every day for 12 years. Regrettably, the U.S. has never fully made right the suffering of Pacific Islanders who, then and now, face severe health problems and even genetic anomalies for generations to come.

Through His Excellency Kanat Saudabayev, now Secretary of State for the Republic of Kazakhstan, I learned of President Nazarbayev’s historic leadership in the cause of nuclear nonproliferation and, since my visit to Semipalatinsk, I stand with him in calling for...
REMEMBERING THE LIFE OF LIEUTENANT JAMES THOMAS, FIREFIGHTER

HON. ELIJAH E. CUMMINGS OF MARYLAND
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, May 4, 2009

Mr. CUMMINGS. Madam Speaker, on June 28, 2000, the Baltimore City Fire Department (BCFD)—and indeed, the entire Baltimore community—lost a dedicated and passionate advocate and brother, Mr. James Thomas. He had retired from BCFD in 1992 after nearly 37 years of dedicated service.

Mr. Thomas started his career in 1956 with Engine No. 6, three years after African Americans were allowed to be employed by the fire department. In 1962, as member of Engine No. 8, Jim was promoted to the rank of Lieutenant, which made him the first African American Officer within the BCFD. Jim took on many responsibilities and leadership positions within the BCFD, serving as a fire and safety inspector.

However, as it is widely known firefighters do not ever retire. They just stop going to the fire house everyday and this was also the case for Mr. Thomas. After his retirement, firefighter cadets and those with years of experience often sought out Jim for his advice, guidance, and instruction or simply to listen to his experiences within the BCFD.

Madam Speaker, in addition to being a dedicated firefighter, Jim above all else was a devoted husband to his wife Maureen and a man of faith. Although he passed away nearly nine years ago, his life remains an inspiration to us all, speaking volumes for what can be accomplished when a person’s faith and determination are synchronized with his conduct. It is my hope that the family and friends of Mr. James Thomas continue on to the fond memories they shared with him.

HON. MIKE PENCE
OF INDIANA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, May 4, 2009

Mr. PENCE. Madam Speaker, I come to the floor today in support of World Press Freedom Day, celebrated on the 3rd day of May each year. I do so with a profound sense of humility and with a sense of privilege about being able to come to the floor to speak in support of freedom of the press around the world.

World Press Freedom Day has been observed for 16 years now and serves as a reminder to us all of the vital importance of this core freedom. It is a day in which we celebrate the indispensable role played by journalists in exposing abuses of power, while at the same time we sound the alarm about the growing number of journalists that are still being silenced by death or jailed as they attempt to report on important issues of the day and bring to light information in the public interest.

Since this day was first celebrated, 692 journalists have been killed. The majority of victims were local reporters covering topics such as crime, corruption, and national security in their home countries. Adding to this tragic figure are the hundreds more each year who face intimidation, censorship, and arbitrary arrest—guilty of nothing more than a passion for truth and a tenacious belief that a free society depends on an informed citizenry. In every corner of the globe—from Iran to Zimbabwe, Burma to Pakistan, Cuba and Venezuela—there are journalists being actively harassed and exercising self-censorship because of threats and intimidation from repressive regimes.

As part of combating this intimidation and censorship, Mr. ADAM SCHIFF of California and I recently introduced the Daniel Pearl Freedom of Press Act. As many will remember, Daniel Pearl was kidnapped and murdered by terrorists in Pakistan, just 4 months after the September 11th attacks.

At the time of his kidnapping, Pearl served as the South Asia Bureau Chief of the Wall Street Journal, and was based in Mumbai, India. He went to Pakistan as part of an investigation into the alleged links between Richard Reid, the shoe bomber, Al Qaeda and Pakistani Inter-Services Intelligence. He was subsequently beheaded by his captors. This legislation is dedicated to Daniel Pearl, the many that have gone before him, and those that still face such dangers today. The legislation seeks to highlight and promote freedom of the press by establishing an annual State Department report on the status of press freedom in every country in the world and create a grant program aimed at broadening and strengthening the independence of journalists and media organizations.

Around the globe who love freedom and continue to strain at the bonds of tyranny and oppression on this day of remembrance.

On this day, we remember reporters like Roxana Saberi. Miss Saberi is a 31-year-old American journalist who was arrested in February 2009, and is being held on charges of espionage, which her lawyer and the U.S. Department of State call baseless. Saberi is a freelance journalist who moved to Iran 6 years ago and is being held on charges of terrorism—allegations that Saberi believes is just the latest—guilty of nothing more than a passion for truth and a tenacious belief that a free society depends on an informed citizenry. In every corner of the globe—from Iran to Zimbabwe, Burma to Pakistan, Cuba and Venezuela—there are journalists being actively harassed and exercising self-censorship because of threats and intimidation from repressive regimes.

We understand why oppressive regimes like that of Iran want so desperately to muzzle the unfiltered reporting of journalists like Saberi. We understand why it is so important to cherish and protect freedom of the press as a human right. Today, we call on the government of Iran to free Miss Saberi, hospitalized in her desperate attempt to win her freedom with a hunger strike that might appeal to the conscience of her oppressor where her valid legal arguments did not.

As a conservative who believes in limited government, I believe the only check on government power in real time is a free and independent press. A free press ensures the flow of of information to the public, and let me say, during a time when the role of government in our lives and in our enterprises seems to grow every day—both at home and abroad—ensuring the vitality of a free and independent press is more important than ever.

I salute the bravery of reporters and press outlets around the world. I urge you to stand firm and take heart. The U.S. House of Representatives stands firmly behind your right to increased freedoms; soon we hope to see this right enshrined in our public law, and stand in solidarity with those on the front lines of the worldwide fight for freedom of the press.
